Texan Proposes Time Limit on Lease-Lend Bill

Johnson of House
Group Hits Critics; Castle Testifies

FINAL BULLETIN.
Chairman Bloom late today announced six witnesses called for tomorrow by the House Foreign Affairs Committee on the British aid bill. Heading the list is former Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt. The others are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Minister to Norway; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Gen. John F. O'Ryan of New York; Dorothy Thompson, columnist, and William L. Shirer, radio commentator just back from Berlin. Mr. Bloom announced Army and Navy officials would be heard Monday in closed session.

By J. A. O'LEARY.
A time limit on the powers the lease-lend bill confers on the President to aid Great Britain as a means of strengthening American defense will be urged by Representative Johnson of Texas, ranking Democrat on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he announced this afternoon.

Mr. Johnson made his announcement while the committee was hearing former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle in opposition to the bill.

Speaking for the America First Committee, Mr. Castle centered his argument against the delegation of congressional power to the executive.

In revealing his move for a time limit, Representative Johnson also replied to the claim of opponents that the bill gives the President a "blank check" on the Nation's purse by pointing out that the bill is merely an "authorizing" measure, and that actually the money to be spent would have to be passed on by Congress from time to time in appropriation bills.

Republicans Rebuked.
Meanwhile, the Republicans on the committee were rebuked on the floor of the House by Representative Colmer, Democrat, of Mississippi for staying away from an executive session this morning at which the majority decided high Army and Navy officials should be permitted to testify in secret on the bill.

"The American people are looking to this Congress as they have never looked before for patriotic, non-partisan consideration of this legislation," Mr. Colmer said.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 24 (C. D. N.).

—After three days of stiff fighting in the streets of Bucharest and outlying cities, the legitimate government of Gen. Ion Antonescu, backed by the regular army, today held the upper hand over the Iron Guard civilian corps led by Horia Sima, in a victory which may prove significant to the future of axis aspiration in Southeastern Europe.

During the fighting, the German flying column, domiciled in Bucharest, took no part in the continuous series of street battles for the possession of the capital's nerve centers, sending only infantry, jammed trucks and motorcycle columns on patrol without taking part in the engagement between the brown-clad men of Gen. Antonescu and the Legionary Irregulars.

The snipers, who continued sharp-shooting through the day, were described in military quarters as "Communists, some of whom had filtered into the Iron Guard ranks and continued firing after Sima ordered them to surrender, two hours before daybreak.

It is difficult to ascertain the number of casualties, many hidden in homes but the Legionnaires admit at least 60 dead.

Bell Tolls Sad News.

The bell before the cathedral tolled almost unceasingly as guards and runners brought sweeping relatives through the perilous streets to identify the corpses, mostly students, toppled on the sidewalks.

Every knoll was echoed by the smaller bell of the guardist church, signifying another death. After ordering all civilian-owned weapons surrendered, Gen. Antonescu is reported to have taken over the leadership of the city.

Arriving by a German plane Tuesday, your correspondent saw Bucharest, a modern city resembling Cleveland from the air, covered with a black stream of smoke as if in mourning, through which burst flames, visible from the air and revealing a burning tank car.

300 Bethlehem Steel Workers Reported In Sit-Down Strike

Company Officer Says Men Stopped Work In Three Departments

By the Associated Press.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 24.—A Bethlehem Steel Co. official reported late today that 300 men had quit work in three departments. He described the situation as a sit-down strike.

No comment was available immediately from the employees involved. The official said the departments affected were the bullet yard, bridge shops and tool steel department. He said the men stopped work about 1 p.m.

Bethlehem Steel has been the object of a unionization drive by the C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. A mass rally had been advertised some time ago by the S. W. O. C. for tonight at Bethlehem.

Fire and Counterfire.

The clatter of machine-gun fire, like an unearthly applause, the heavy booms of anti-tank guns and the quick crack of rifles were heard intermittently from a dozen quarters of the city, each burst instantly answered by counterfire.

The bitter engagement was difficult to locate because of deceptive echoes from countless big buildings scattered throughout the labyrinth of the streets where we finally located the prefecture of the city police, the arsenal of federal constabulary and the American-built telephone exchange.

The struggle for this 12-story building, whose last American executive left a few days ago, following its purchase by the new nationalistic government from the International Telephone Co., seethed throughout the three days left the edifice and its five-to-eight story neighbors almost without intact window panes.

The garments of Guardsists who died trying to storm the building were found in the street by your correspondent after following the (See BUCHAREST, Page X-2.)

Presidential Vessel At Annapolis Roads To Meet Battleship

New British Ambassador Is Expected to Board Potomac Late This Afternoon

By a Staff Correspondent.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt and Lord Halifax, the new British Ambassador, were to exchange greetings aboard the presidential yacht Potomac in Annapolis Roads late today in a welcome unprecedented in American diplomatic history.

High ranking officials of the United States, including Secretary of the Navy Knox, and diplomats of the British Empire were on hand to witness the historic gesture of friendship in the shadow of the new 35,000-ton British battleship King George V on which the new Ambassador had just completed a secret trans-Atlantic voyage.

Never before, in the recollection of veteran observers, had a President of the United States reversed protocol and gone to extend personal greetings to a foreign envoy on the water.

The British battleship was to anchor at Annapolis Roads, about five miles off the Naval Academy docks, and Lord Halifax and his party were to board the Potomac, on which Mr. Roosevelt and his aides had left Annapolis at 3:07 o'clock to meet the incoming vessel.

Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, military aide and secretary to the President, said the Potomac could be expected back in dock here about 7 or 7:30 o'clock tonight, indicating the President and Lord Halifax would cruise around until that time.

Plans call for the entire group to travel to Washington by automobile after the yacht docks again in the early evening.

Whether the Ambassador would go to the White House was not made public.

Accompanied by Four Ships.

The presidential yacht was accompanied by a supply ship laden with Secret Service men, by the Anita Clay, the Academy superintendent's private craft, and two navy vessels.

A heavy mist hung over the Severn River and Chesapeake Bay and it was impossible to see Annapolis Roads from shore. The river and bay were choppy.

The President was accompanied by Secretary Knox, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of Naval Operations; Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aide to the President, and Gen. Watson.

A party from the British Embassy, headed by Neville Butler, recently appointed Minister to this Government, also came to Annapolis to meet the new British Ambassador.

Illness Keeps Casey Home.

Others in the embassy party were S. L. Childs, counselor of the British Embassy; F. R. Hoyer-Millar, first secretary of the British Embassy; Merchant Mahoney, charge d'affaires of the Canadian Legation, and Alan S. Watt, first secretary of the Australian Legation. Richard Casey, Australian Minister, was prevented from going on account of illness.

Capt. F. A. L. Vossler, acting superintendent of the Naval Academy, met the President at the academy gate. A marine guard of honor and the Naval Academy Band, assembled to greet British officials expected from Washington, moved away from the gate prior to the arrival of the President, who had requested that there be no ceremony.

"How are they behaving, all right?" the President smilingly asked Capt. Vossler. "There are a lot of things down here I want to see."

Press Kept in Dark.

Marine officers would not permit newspapermen and photographers to go on the dock until just before the Potomac pulled out.

Not until that minute was it officially disclosed that the President was going out to meet Lord Halifax. Newspapermen accompanying him from the White House were not even told where they were going when Mr. Roosevelt left.

Marines and sailors were soaked by the cold rain as they stood at attention while the President was being piped aboard the Potomac.

Paper in Havana Suggests Cuba Annex Florida

(By the Associated Press.)

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 24.—A New Jersey Senator's proffered resolution that President Roosevelt open negotiations for inclusion of Cuba in the United States evoked Cuban protests today and a newspaper's counter-suggestion that Cuba annex Florida.

Senator Smathers, Democrat, introduced the resolution yesterday and declared he was "convinced" that Cuba "would embrace an opportunity to become an integral part of the United States." Under his proposal Cuba would have equal standing with other States.

The suggestion on Florida came from the newspaper Aleria, which also suggested editorially that Cuba should protest to all the American republics over the Smathers proposal.

Salvador Garcia Ramos, leader of the Liberal party in the House, said, "We hope that the good neighbor policy is not getting confused. We hope that the United States policy will continue to be that of the good neighbor and equal treatment."

Roosevelt Goes to Annapolis To Welcome Halifax, Arriving On Big New British Battleship

President May Spend Week End on Yacht With Ambassador

BACKGROUND—
Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador in Washington since before war started in Europe, died here last month, and Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Minister since February, 1938, was appointed to take his place. He comes to the American Capital faced with task of expediting United States aid to Britain.

President Roosevelt left the White House at 1:30 p.m. today in a car bound for Annapolis to extend a personal welcome to the United States to Viscount Halifax, the new British Ambassador to the United States. The Viscount and Lady Halifax were aboard the new 35,000-ton British battleship, King George V, which entered Chesapeake Bay at 7:03 a.m. today, after a secret Atlantic crossing.

The presence of the presidential yacht Potomac in the waters off Annapolis gave rise to general speculation that the President intended to give tonight, tomorrow and Sunday to a quiet talk with the Ambassador aboard the yacht in order to soak up as much as possible the latest confidential news from England and to chart the coming course of Anglo-American wartime relations.

Navy Making Arrangements.
The Potomac arrived in Annapolis last night and was anchored next to the Naval Academy station ship, with a supply ship that ordinarily carries secret service agents lying nearby. Naval Academy officials took special precautions to prevent the presence of unauthorized persons on the academy grounds this afternoon.

Defense Chiefs To Testify in Secret Session

Republicans Insist On Open Meeting And Stay Away

BACKGROUND—
American aid to Britain thus far has been on a cash-and-carry basis. Pending legislation would remove the cash element and permit lending or leasing of every kind of war material. Actually, by present wording of measure, President Roosevelt could extend assistance in this manner not only to Britain but to any other nation—including possibly Greece and China.

By J. A. O'LEARY.
The Democrats on the House Foreign Affairs Committee decided today to hear high Army and Navy officials testify in secret session on the lease-lend bill to aid Great Britain after a dispute over procedure prompted the Republicans to remain away from a closed committee meeting.

The row developed when Representative Fish, Republican, of New York insisted that Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, should appear in open meeting for questioning on the testimony of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, that America is in no danger of invasion.

A stormy exchange took place between Chairman Bloom and Mr. Fish when the committee members met again in the hearing room after the decision. Mr. Fish called the committee "the most out-rageous set I have seen and I have been in Congress for 20 years." The leader of the opposition also charged that the committee's action was prompted by "higher-ups."

Bloom Denies Accusation.
This was vigorously denied by Chairman Bloom, who declared he had not talked to any high administration officials or to the Speaker. The hearings were recessed until this afternoon, when former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, will appear for the America First Committee in opposition to the bill.

Chairman Bloom made public a letter Gen. Marshall sent to Mr. Fish last night suggesting that he be heard in executive session "in order that I might make complete and frank replies to the questions that probably would be asked."

Mr. Fish asserted that these Army and Navy officials "have been appearing in open sessions of committees for years. They will be asked to appear later when the bill reaches the Senate committee, and this makes the House look ridiculous."

Row Takes Up Whole Morning.
The leader of the opposition to the bill insisted he had given assurance that the general and the admiral would have been excused from answering any questions that might have revealed information they thought confidential.

The row took up the entire morning despite the fact the committee is trying to complete the hearings by tomorrow night.

The first intimation that trouble was brewing came at 10:15, after newspapers and a partly filled committee room had wondered why the military experts had not appeared at 10 a.m. Chairman Bloom (Continued on Page A-4, Column 1.)

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee in Washington yesterday has created a sensation in London.

Col. Lindbergh's display of indifference in regard to the fate of this country came as a special shock to his quondam friends and various hosts and hostesses. Lady Astor, who entertained him handsomely at both her St. James' square town house and her famous Cliveden estate, was extremely upset.

President Chooses Supreme Court Name, But Keeps It Secret

Makes Selection to End Impertinities, but Won't Tell Now

By JOHN C. HENRY.
President Roosevelt has chosen a successor to Associate Justice James Clark McReynolds on the Supreme Court, the Chief Executive revealed to his press conference today, but the choice is not to be made public for several weeks.

Mr. Justice McReynolds submitted his resignation Wednesday, effective February 1. Speculation as to his successor has centered principally on Attorney General Jackson and Senator Byrnes, Democrat, of South Carolina.

The President's disclosure that he had made up his mind was made half-jokingly when he told questioners they might save everybody a lot of trouble by intimating that the matter has already been settled, but will not be announced for several weeks.

Asked why the naming of a successor to Justice McReynolds is to be delayed so long, the President declined an explanation. To a further question whether it was being held back until after the pending lease-lend bill is passed, he laughed heartily.

No Comment on Halifax.
Mr. Roosevelt was indefinite under questioning about the arrival of Lord Halifax, new British Ambassador, or the selection of a new envoy from this Government to the Court of St. James. The President said he had no news on either matter.

Regarding the latter appointment, the President explained he could not say anything to the press until he had received approval of the London government of his choice and was ready to send a nomination to the Senate. John G. Winant, former Republican Governor of New Hampshire, who has been most frequently mentioned for the post, called on the President today.

Asked about reports that he would accept certain modifying amendments to the pending lease-lend bill, he said:

Mass Production of Plane Engines Not Yet in Sight

Allison Engineers Give Picture of Goals In Path to That Goal

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON.
Star Staff Correspondent.
INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—There is no royal road to mass production of aircraft engines. Gains in production must be made "the hard way" by continually fighting the "battle of the bottlenecks."

The experience of the Allison Division of General Motors Corp., now engaged here in the production of 1,000-horsepower, liquid-cooled airplane engines under United States and British orders totaling $25,000,000, is a good illustration of the heart-breaking struggles involved in building up to even a semblance of mass production, even with the background of the greatest automotive mass-production methods the world has known.

Allison engineers, trained in the field of mass production, admit that no way has yet been found to apply to aircraft and airplane engine production such principles as have been applied to the automobile industry. After many months of the most strenuous effort, backed by nearly 10 years of research and experimentation, Allison today has arrived at a production rate of 350 engines a month. Its production during all of next month probably will not be much more than 400 engines and, in the following month, less than 500 engines, come what may in the (See EDGERTON, Page A-5.)

D. C., Maryland and Virginia Show Big Employment Gains

8,000 Get Jobs Here in December; Increase of 540,000 for Whole U. S.

Employment in the District in December totaled 369,000, an increase of 8,000 since November and a gain of 38,000 over December, 1939. Secretary of Labor Perkins reported today.

Non-agricultural employment in Maryland in December was 543,000 and in Virginia 520,000 gains, respectively, of 10,000 and 5,000 since November.

In the entire country approximately 540,000 workers were added in non-agricultural employment in December. Secretary Perkins announced. This was the largest December increase in the last 11 years and brought non-agricultural employment to a total of 37,100,000, nearly 1,500,000 more than in December, 1939.

These figures do not include the C. C. C., W. P. A. and the N. Y. A. nor do they include the armed forces, which increased 62,000 during the month.

The December, 1940, employment index for all manufacturing industries combined stood at 116.2, the highest since the Labor Department started the index in 1919. Approximately 10,500,000 persons are now employed in manufacturing, according to Secretary Perkins' estimates.

An increase of 72,000 in December brought employment in the Federal executive service up to 1,184,000. Pay roll disbursements of $178,618,000 were $10,227,000 greater than in November.

At a press conference today, Secretary Perkins said she would like to see "many more agreements" (See EMPLOYMENT, Page A-3.)

Guardist Chief Is Hunted as Revolt Leader

Rumanian Ministers Order Punishment For Horai Sima

BACKGROUND—
Rumania has been ruled since September by Iron Guard under leadership of Gen. Ion Antonescu, who became chief of state upon abdication of King Carol after cession of part of Transylvania to Hungary. Iron Guardists now are split into two factions, one supporting Gen. Antonescu, the other Vice Premier Horai Sima. Later demand restoration of areas ceded to Hungary.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 24. (Passed by Military Censor).—Rumania's Council of Ministers in a special communique announced today severe punishment would be meted out to Horai Sima, vice premier and Iron Guardist chieftain, and other alleged leaders of the bloody rebellion against the Antonescu government.

This was the first official allegation that Sima was involved in the disorders. The Bucharest radio reported the army now is searching for him and others among the rebellious leaders.

The Antonescu government, once again in control of this Rumanian capital in collaboration with German armed forces, ordered swift trials for the rebels and called on citizens to report nests of snipers.

Immediate Trials Ordered.
Military courts were under orders to try those rounded up within 24 hours of arrest, with punishment to be executed within 10 hours of sentencing.

All permits for firearms were canceled, even those for hunting weapons. All civilian-held guns must be turned in by nightfall today.

The Council of Ministers' communique said: "The following are considered as accomplices and, therefore, will suffer full penalties of the law: 'All who know of and do not announce to the authorities the places where the originators and executors of the rebellion are hidden, beginning with Sima and ending with the last cutthroat who took advantage of the situation.'"

Information that German forces were helping restore order was lacking, but German motorized troops, along with Rumanian, patrolled Bucharest streets while Gen. Antonescu sought to restore order throughout the country after three bloody days.

New Nazi Envoy Arrives.
Baron Manfred von Killinger, newly appointed Nazi Minister to Bucharest, arrived today. He was met at the station by Minister of Justice Michael Antonescu, former Minister Fabricius, the chief of the German war mission, Gen. Hansen, and the chief of the German Air Mission, Lt. Gen. Spiedel.

A DNB, German official news agency, report here said the Rumanian high command had called the recruit class due for this year to report February 15.

Division Gen. Leonanu was made new director of the state police and Brig. Gen. Mitrea police prefect for Bucharest.

The government's communique asked the public to refrain from buying any jewelry, furniture or anything else from second-hand stores as it entered much of these goods had been looted from homes.

Guard Will Be Reorganized.
Early this morning Gen. Antonescu announced that the Iron Guard (See RUMANIA, Page A-6.)

Jurist Who Sentenced Hauptmann Retires at 77

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 24.—

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, 77-year-old New Jersey Supreme Court jurist who sentenced Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair, retired today.

In white-haired justice said, "I figure I'm entitled to a rest now." He had been appointed to the court in 1906.

Hauptmann, Bronx carpenter, was sentenced at Flemington, N. J., February 13, 1935, as the killer of Charles Lindbergh, Jr., kidnaped from his parents' home near Hopeville March 1, 1932.

Committee O. K.s Acheson

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved without dissent today President Roosevelt's nomination of Dean G. Acheson to succeed Henry F. Grady as Assistant Secretary of State.

American's Home Used as Fort in Rumanian Revolt

At the height of the fighting in Bucharest, troops and civilians twice commandeered the home of J. Webb Benton, 49-year-old first secretary of the United States Legation, who was born at Fort Myer, Va., the Associated Press reported today.

The residence was used as a fort from which occupants shot at Gen. Antonescu's soldiers. Later, the Army stationed a tank in Mr. Benton's yard to protect the premises from further forays. All Americans, including Mr. Benton and his mother, were reported to have reached safety in the American Legation, which was unharmed.

Mr. Benton, who had been stationed by the State Department in many European and South American cities, has been assigned to Bucharest since 1938.

Troops Sweeping West of Tobruk, British Report

Italians Are Declared To Have Abandoned 2 Eritrean Outposts

BACKGROUND—
British offensive against Italians in North Africa began December 9 with attack upon Fascist outpost of Sidi Barrani, in Egypt. After its capture the British, with Australian troops at their spearhead, captured Bardia, just inside Libyan border, and then pushed on to capture Tobruk, which fell Tuesday.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 24.—The British Imperial Army, having mopped up captured Tobruk and seized upward of 20,000 troops, is continuing its sweep westward across Northern Libya, the Middle East command announced today.

Further down in Africa, the high command said that on the Sudan-Eritrean front the Italians had abandoned two more outposts and "are continuing their retreat."

In Ethiopia native patriots were declared to have inflicted casualties on Italians in hit-and-run thrusts south and east of Lake Tana.

The Fascist-abandoned outposts were said to be Keru and Alcoita. Previous British forces had reported that the Italians had withdrawn 40 miles inside Eritrea.

"Our troops are continuing their advance westward," today's war bulletin said briefly on the Libyan campaign.

Patrol Activity Vigorous.
In Kenya colony, which faces both Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, the high command said vigorous patrolling activity was under way "up to and over the frontier on a large portion of the frontier" and that "few of the enemy were encountered."

Carrying the air offensive deep into Ethiopia, British bombers blasted Sciacciamanna airdrome, 120 miles south of Addis Ababa, yesterday and destroyed four Fascist planes on the ground, the R. A. F. announced.

British 'Close Ranks' To Meet Nazi Attempt At Spring Invasion

Army Already Carrying Out Dress Rehearsals to Counter Expected Blow

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 24.—Britain's armed services have been ordered to "close ranks" in preparation to meet an anticipated all-out invasion attempt against these islands in the spring, it was learned today.

The army guarding these shores—the most powerful force ever assembled by Britain—already is carrying out "dress rehearsals" to meet the expected blow.

Informed sources here said the British defense forces, in intensive training for more than a year against the day the Nazis might try to set foot on the British Isles, have been ordered to speed up every phase of their preparations.

Stress on Role of R. A. F.
When and if—the invaders strike, military quarters said it probably would be the greatest assault ever hurled by a military machine. And, they added, Adolf Hitler would find this island seat of empire ready.

Considerable stress has been placed on the part of the Royal Air Force expected to play. The ranks of the R. A. F. have been greatly increased by recruits drawn from the home front and by trained pilots turned out under the broad commonwealth air-training scheme.

As one of the invasion precautions a campaign has been launched to make Britons—both fighting men and civilians—gas conscious. This action was taken when it was found that only a fifth of the civilian population was carrying gas masks.

One suggested remedy of this situation was that gas masks be shown to obtain a ticket into an air raid shelter.

Gas Alarms Considered.
The Ministry of Home Security is considering the inauguration of regular gas alarm practices for civilians. Gas chambers are being established so that the people may become accustomed to wearing masks "under fire."

Oppenheim in England After Adventurous Trip

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—E. Phillips Oppenheim, author of many thrillers, arrived in England yesterday after an adventurous journey from South France with his wife and maid.

The 74-year-old author said he had a "rough time" and added the French were showing a "definite change of feeling"—against the Germans.

Nazis Claim Sinking Of 25,000 Tons of Shipping Yesterday

Air Force Is Credited By DNB; Raids Carried Out West of Ireland

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The long arm of the Nazi air force reached out into the Atlantic yesterday to damage or sink approximately 25,000 tons of shipping bound for England, DNB, the official German news agency reported today.

Augmenting previous reports, the news agency declared that a 4,500-ton merchant vessel had been struck amidships by two bombs which tore her apart and sent her to the bottom within eight minutes.

Another 3,500-ton ship was reported to have been hit twice and left in a sinking condition.

Bombs were reported to have started a large fire on a 5,000-ton ship, which was said to have stopped with heavy lists.

Heavy explosions and shooting flames followed bomb hits on a 12,000-ton freighter which probably could be considered lost, DNB said.

The raids were said to have been carried out on shipping lanes west of Ireland from low altitudes.

The German high command's version of the attacks described the two smaller British vessels as "armed merchantmen" and said definitely that they had been sunk.

The high command also reported that Nazi aircraft had bombed "war essential objectives" at a British east coast harbor yesterday. One British plane was reported shot down in an air fight.

REPUBLICANS IN "SIT-DOWN" STRIKE—The Democratic majority on the House Foreign Affairs Committee voted today to hear in secret session the heads of the Army, Navy and Air Corps on the lend-lease bill, after the Republican minority (above) refused to join in a discussion of the question at a closed meeting. The Republicans, meanwhile, gathered in a group in the hearing room, left to right: Representative Mundt of South Dakota, Representative Fish of New York, Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, Representative Stearns of New Hampshire (standing), Representative Vorys of Ohio, Representative Eaton of New Jersey, who said it looked "like a sit-down strike"; Representative Jonkman of Michigan (standing) and Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts. —A. # Racing News Entries and Selections for Tomorrow

Rossvan's Comment Selections for a Fast Track at Hialeah Park

FIRST RACE—NOTES, OH-ALBETROSS. NOTES broke very sluggishly in his debut and closed a lot of ground when he finally decided to run. That education should have benefited the colt considerably and he may graduate. OH-ALBETROSS has been working very swiftly in the early morning and must be given stout consideration. ALBETROSS is another well favored by the clockers.

SECOND RACE—QUEEN ECHO, HILLBLONDE, CHICHARRA. QUEEN ECHO won her first Tropical outing with speed in reserve and the mare has worked swiftly since that nice showing. She may be able to trim these cheapners. HILLBLONDE has been threatening to come to life and lick a band of this sort. CHICHARRA has to be accorded a fighting chance.

THIRD RACE—CLARKSVILLE, SEVENTH DAY, HERE AGAIN. CLARKSVILLE won his last in excellent running time considering the condition of the track. The colt may be able to step up

Allen Caruthers Dies; Prosecuted Daltons

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Allen Caruthers, 74, prosecutor of the Dalton gang of Oklahoma outlaws before the turn of the century, died of bronchial asthma today in St. Clare's Hospital.

A practicing attorney in New York City since 1897, Mr. Caruthers was founder of the State Bar of Oklahoma Society of New York City.

He was born in Hartsville, Tenn., a grandson of Abraham Caruthers, founder of Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn.

Bride, 14, Seeks To End Marriage, Return to School

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Ellen Healey Doty, 14-year-old bride of last August, wants the marriage with her soldier husband annulled so she can return to school.

Eileen and the bridegroom, George Doty, 22, were intercepted by State police and arrested 30 when they sought to re-enter Connecticut after slipping over the State line to be married in New Boston, Mass. Subsequently tried, and acquitted on a charge of seduction, Doty joined the Army.

The young wife, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Healey of New Hartford, said in an affidavit papers filed in Superior Court that she had given her age as 18 when she was married and that she had not lived with her husband since.

A grammar school graduate last June and prevented from entering high school, Eileen said she eloped because of Doty's "impudent, persistent and urgent influence."

Antonescu Holds Upper Hand After Three-Day Riots

Witness Tells Harrowing Story of Clashes in Bucharest's Streets

fighting through an unyielding night and the how-eyed face of Corneliu Zelea-Codreanu, the martyred idol of the Guardists, stared down into pools of mud from the balcony of the International Theater, where the Legionary leaders had waited.

Fighting at High Pitch. On Tuesday night the fighting reached such a pitch that it became necessary for your correspondent to join with two fellow American newspapermen, Robert St. John of the Associated Press of Chicago and Edmund Stevens of the Christian Science Monitor, to do what he could to rescue some of the fallen. Accidentally, caught before our eyes in a crossfire of guns on the other side of the empty street from a doorway where we were pressed, a tall young man fell to his knees. We were across from helping apply a tourniquet in a sheltered arcade, sidled along the streets carrying it in such a way that he could not complain of rain because he was asking for his "palton," which meant his overcoat.

One of the hospitals were full and we found a relief station. One of its two operating tables already was occupied by a civilian, presumably a Guardist, badly struck on the head, back and shoulders. Four haggard, silent men stood at the doctor's elbow, waiting for the work when we left as more wounded arrived.

Our next vehicle was a commandeered boulevard bus, lately serving as a hearse for dead Legionnaires, which conveyed us back to the fighting zone. We sat on the floor until a Maryland-educated guardian reminded us that more courage was expected of Americans. The Americans jumped out last, but only because they had back seats.

Germans Remain Neutral. The streets were filled with the hoarse shouts of soldiers, the challenges of the Guardists. During this phase the Germans remained strictly neutral, officers studying the street battles with interest from field cars, infantry men remaining within their barracks.

While several Jewish stores, marked with the Star of David, were watched by detachments of them against looting, and while soldiers formed a cordon around a synagogue after a crowd with axes turned it into a shell in a few minutes, no municipal police or federal constabulary were seen.

Among the newspapers only the Universal appeared and it was limited to government decrees. Gen. Antonescu's soldiers were applied in the course of Wednesday's cleanup to occupy, strip and close the office of the newspaper which had the "revolution" largest demonstration took place Tuesday night. The publisher and at least one reporter were arrested.

During most of the morning of liquidation, German chaser planes circled high over the business houses and dwellings. According to the official view, only a dissident, terrorist faction of the Iron Guard was involved in the uprising. The Legionnaires were difficult to round up because they were almost all in their teens or early 20's and have no insignia except a secret membership card and wear only their uniforms as can be concealed about their clothing.

Fires Break Out. Fires broke out in Jewish dwellings, The villas of Magda Lupescu and Carol's former chancellor, Ernst Urdarianu, were occupied by the Guards.

With anti-aircraft searchlights illuminating the skies, the mud-splashed streets seemed like a disorderly backstage set because many of the high chancellery buildings already were so weakened by earthquake shocks that only the scaffolding buttresses held them over the huddling pedestrians.

Despite intermittent gunfire, the Rumanians walked down town to their jobs and found German engineers stringing over boulevard poles and supplementary telephone lines connecting up some of their various hotel quarters.

While several Guardists held buildings during the night, including the Ministries of Interior and Justice, we found them alertly defended but lacking communications because of the government's timely capture and severance of the telephone service. By similar foresight private alarm bells at a secret field for Sima's men were put out of action when governmental regulars eliminated them by stripping their crudely mounted machine guns.

Fighting Shifts. The fighting shifted across the hawking and petty city predictably. At one time the huge Central Square before the Royal Palace was wholly cut off, only to become a few minutes later the only safe place in miles. Bathrooms in the chief hotels, eagerly used as bed-rooms, were unobtainable on account of the demand about the streets Wednesday morning when 10 Guardist's bodies were lined up before the besieged telephone company, the whole air was seething with machine gun fire and sniping.

The American newspapermen were not to take the first of rescue through the streets' back of the forces and remove any living Guardists. We made it conditional on getting into telephonic communication with the chief of Gen. Antonescu's garrison holding the building, and communication proved impossible.

The confident handling of the crisis put the prestige of Gen. Antonescu on the rise. In a proclamation to the people Gen. Antonescu called on them as patriots to defend their homes against invaders of any kind, repeated the frequent avowals of friendship for the queen, emphasized the importance of keeping the nation politically able to work with it, and urged the populace to watch particularly against Jews, Free Masons, Communists and internationalists.

U. S. Minister Escapes. A Rumanian fear of the skirmishes with the same frequency as Rumanians, but all escaped unhurt. The American Minister, Mr. Franklin Gunther, held by mortar trouble in an outlying village, found himself trapped in a Guardist

Cheltenham Inquiry To Be Launched by Assembly Group

Exclusion of Delegates Heinekamp and Booth Protested in Petition

By JACK ALLEN Star Staff Correspondent

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—A special committee from the House of Delegates took steps today to launch an investigation of conditions at Cheltenham, colored reform school in Prince Georges County, and other State institutions.

Simultaneously, a petition protesting the exclusion of Delegates William Heinekamp and John T. Booth, both of Baltimore City, made its appearance in the lower chamber.

Mr. Booth sought signatures to the petition after Speaker Thomas Conlon appointed a subcommittee from the House Ways and Means Committee to lead a group to investigate alleged "undesirable" conditions in State institutions.

The petition protested the "naming of an institutional committee which did not include Delegates Heinekamp and Booth, who devoted much time to making unofficial inspections in State institutions and bringing to light numerous undesirable situations.

Investigators Named. When the House adopted a favorable report on the resolution yesterday, however, Speaker Conlon named the special Ways and Means Subcommittee which began an investigation immediately after Mr. Heinekamp presented his resolution.

The special committee is made up of Delegates Walter J. Locke, Baltimore City, chairman; Charles C. Jones, Montgomery; James B. Monroe, Charles; J. Elliot Cecil, St. Marys; and P. Allan Burroughs, Wicomico.

Upon introducing his resolution, Mr. Heinekamp declared he and several colleagues had made an unofficial investigation of State institutions and found that some inmates were not given enough to eat, "that the food in several places is 'terrible' and that some of the institutions do not maintain discipline, while in others the inmates suffer 'too much discipline.'"

Lease-Lend

Republicans, Mr. Colmer continued: "That kind of business causes this Congress to lose caste with the American people."

He said if Congress is going to follow partisan lines on the bill it will be difficult to get patriotic consideration.

The minority took the position they did not want to take part in a meeting called for the purpose of applying a "gag" rule.

Mr. Caste said in answer to a question, that he favored aid to Britain as long as it does not weaken American defense or involve this country in the war.

Believes Japan Wants Friendship. Answering Representative Vorys, Republican of Ohio, Mr. Caste said he feels sure Japan does not want to get into war with the United States, realizing its prosperity depends on friendly relations with this country.

He recalled, however, that "they have stated that miserable pact with Germany" and said it is conceivable that if we go to war against Germany, Japan may attack. He argued, however, Japan could attack only in the Orient and the taking of the Philippines is the worst that would do.

Representative Fish, Republican of New York asked Mr. Caste to comment on the view taken by some that the Kellogg-Briand peace pact justifies affirmative action by any signatory to aid another country which is attacked by a party to the pact.

"I've never agreed with that interpretation," the witness answered. "It was discussed at the time and encountered opposition. I've always felt that if that was in the pact the Senate would not have ratified it."

Cites International Law. As asked by Representative Johnson if he objected to aid given Great Britain thus far, Mr. Caste replied: "I make no criticism of the sale of arms to Britain by private interests. By the Government, it is contrary to international law."

Mr. Johnson asked the witness which side he wanted to see win the war. He answered he would "win" rather see the Allied powers win because he is interested in the preservation of democracy.

Castle Attacks Broad Powers. Attacking the broad power the bill would give President Roosevelt, Mr. Caste said: "We would have two world dictators, one for the totalitarians and one for the democracies."

The lease-lend bill would create a dictatorship without enabling "us to help Britain more than we are doing now," he said, "in so far as it permits the President to ignore such laws as he pleases and thus to make war," Mr. Caste testified.

The bill, he declared, is "clearly a war measure." It would enable the President to "make war" without declaring war.

"The only way to get aid to Britain is to send planes and guns and ships," Mr. Caste said. "The amount of this depends wholly on our ability to expand production, not on the orders of the President."

"It is never wholly satisfactory to oppose a measure and suggest no alternative," Mr. Caste declared. "Yet, in the case of a bill, the real purpose of which seems to be to create a dictatorship, nothing is necessary except opposition."

Fears Impotent Congress. "At home, Congress would be impotent, and in Britain, fear rather than gratitude, would bring the British government to the feet of the American President," Mr. Caste said.

"The only way to get aid to Britain is to send planes and guns and ships," Mr. Caste said. "The amount of this depends wholly on our ability to expand production, not on the orders of the President."

"We are then reduced to the supposition that the authors of the bill mean that that aid will go more quickly if the Congress is eliminated. We are not now at war. Britain is at war. But even so, the British Parliament functions as effectively as ever."

U. S. Helps Finland Through Red Cross Rather Than Loans

Additional Allotment Of $500,000 Made for Food Shipments

The Associated Press. The United States is seeking to meet Finland's more urgent needs for food and other relief supplies through the American Red Cross rather than through further governmental loans, it was learned today.

An additional allotment of $500,000 for foodstuffs and other materials has been made by the Red Cross, bringing to $2,379,000 the amount of relief shipments already made or being prepared for Finland during this winter.

This is far short of the needs estimated by Hjalmar Procopé, Finnish Minister, but authoritative sources indicated there was no present intention to supplement Red Cross relief with a Government loan.

$30,000,000 Loan Used Up. Finland obtained a $30,000,000 Export-Import Bank loan during the Russo-Finnish War, which has been virtually exhausted by purchases in the United States.

Finnish authorities here were said to have made informal inquiries among various Government officials on the possibility of obtaining further loans.

With the Export-Import Bank engaged now in a large-scale program of financial assistance to Latin American republics as a part of hemisphere defense, however, the plight of Finland was said to be looked on more as a relief problem which could be dealt with by the Red Cross.

British blockade authorities largely control imports into Finland through the navicert system. They have announced that passage would be allowed for "such supplies as may be necessary to meet Finland's requirements" so long as Finland's neutrality was beyond question.

British View Cited. In view of this, British authorities were believed to prefer that food supplies for Finland be handled through the Red Cross, which has a representative in Finland, than through direct Finnish purchases financed by an American Government loan.

The Finnish Minister of Supply, Vaino Kotilainen, was quoted in recent dispatches from Helsinki as asserting that the United States had rejected a request for a loan of $7,000,000. Officials here, disclaiming knowledge of any formal request for or rejection of a loan, said the Finnish minister probably meant that informal inquiries about a loan had been unpromising of results.

Minister Procopé submitted a list of Finland's urgent needs to Chairman Norman Davis of the Red Cross two weeks ago, which included fats, wheat, cotton and other items.

The new $500,000 allotment will fill part of the request, it was said, while additional supplies are planned during the next few months.

Mrs. J. Rupert Mohler Dies in Grottoes, Va.

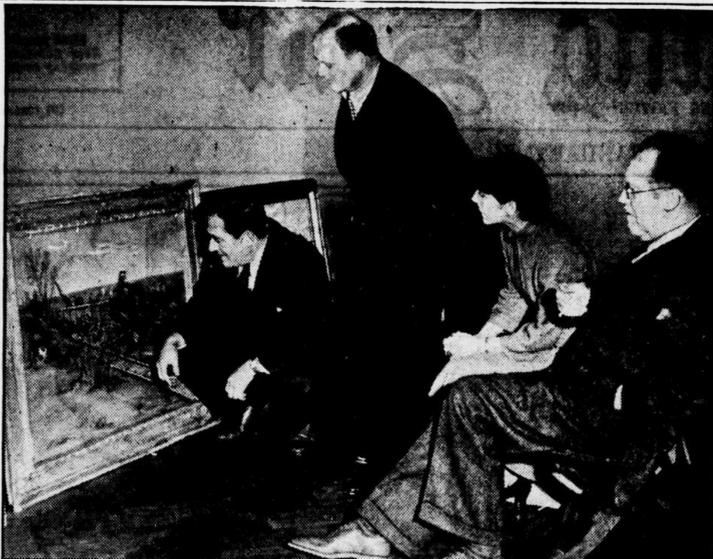

Mrs. Gertrude Hester Mohler, wife of J. Rupert Mohler and a native of Georgetown, died today at her home in Grottoes, Va.

Born the daughter of James William and Eliza Addison Hester, she was a direct descendant of the Rev. John Addison, an early rector of Addison's Chapel, Oxon Hill, Md. She was educated in private schools in Washington and was married by her uncle, the Rev. Thomas Addison, on January 18, 1881, in old Trinity Church, at Fifth and E streets N.W.

Mr. and Mrs. Mohler celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary last week at Grottoes, where they had made their home ever since their marriage.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Mohler is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Givens Fulton and Mrs. Charles H. Patterson of Grottoes; four sons, J. William, F. Kemper, J. Rupert, jr., and J. Addison Mohler of Washington; a sister, Mrs. Edward Knox Cook, and a brother, William B. Hester, also of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence tomorrow at 2:30 p.m., with burial at Mount Hope Cemetery.

WINS STAR PRIZE—This painting, "Contemporary Scene," by Nicolai Cikovsky, being viewed by a jury of judges at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, won The Evening Star prize of $100 in the 50th annual exhibition of the Society of Washington Artists. British Air Force Shown in Action in Exhibit Coming Here

Photographs of Bombing Flights and of Duels Over England Included

Photographs showing Britain's Royal Air Force in bombing flights over Germany and engaged in duels with enemy planes seeking to pierce England's defenses will go on exhibition at headquarters of the British War Relief Society, 1018 Connecticut avenue N.W., Monday.

The pictures were part of the British exhibit at the New York World's Fair and were obtained for exhibition here through the British Embassy.

The famous Vickers Supermarine fighters and Hawker Hurricanes are pictured in dogfights over land and sea. Blenheims bombing military objectives in Northern France and Germany and Westland Lysanders flying over the Suez Canal are shown.

The new weapon of the British fleet, the Blackburn Roc fighter of the fleet air arm, is pictured with its power-operated gun turret and powerful Bristol Perseus engine.

The first photographs of the famous Coastal Command, whose flying boats have covered several million miles watching over British shipping by spotting submarines, are in the show. Lockheed Hudsons, the American planes much in service in England, are shown on patrol and the big Sunderland flying boats are pictured meeting convoys far at sea.

200 School Officials To Meet Tomorrow

More than 200 school administrators and supervisors will attend the Middle Atlantic States Regional Conference for Administrators and Supervisors tomorrow at George Washington University.

Delegates from Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the District are expected to attend the meeting, which is sponsored jointly by the Board of Education of the university and the Department of Supervisors and Directors of Instruction of the National Education Association.

A talk by Dr. W. Earl Armstrong of the American Council on Education on "Opportunities Presented by New Instructional Practices" will feature the opening session at 9:30 a.m. Dean James H. Fox of the university's school of education will preside.

At 11 o'clock the conference will divide into three discussion groups. In the first division the delegates will discuss the topic "How Can Schools Achieve Wider Utilization of Community Resources?" Robert Eaves, administrative principal in the District, will act as chairman.

Miss Ruth Kincer Webb, lecturer in education at the university, will preside at the meeting of the third group, which will consider "How Can Co-operative Planning Be Used in Supervision?"

Nicolai Cikovsky Wins Washington Artists' Exhibit Prize

125 Paintings Selected For Annual Show at Corcoran Gallery

Nicolai Cikovsky of this city won the $100 Evening Star Prize at the Fiftieth Annual Exhibition of the Society of Washington Artists at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, it was announced today.

His picture, "Contemporary Scene," won the prize in competition with 700 works of art, of which 125 were accepted for display in the gallery. The jury which awarded this and other prizes in the exhibition reviewed the show three times during two days and concluded its judging last night.

The $100 prize offered by the Society of Washington Artists went to Cikovsky, also of this city, for his picture, "City by the Tracks." The judges were John F. Carlson, Woodstock, N. Y.; Reginald Marsh, New York City; William Gropper, Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Concetta Scaravaglione, New York City.

Other Prize Winners. Winners of other prizes were: Lois M. Jones, $50, "Robert Wood Bliss Prize, 'Indian Shops'; Mitchell Jamieson, $50, "Thomas Saltz prize, 'Figure Painting'.

Society medals went to Peter De Anna for figure composition, Helena Hall, landscape; Melvin Buckner, still life; Dorothea Greenbaum, sculpture; and these honorable mention in various fields: Mary Jane Corr, Fred Huston, Ollie P. Long, Russell Houston, Howard Svenson.

The jury members were guests of honor at a dinner given by the Society of Washington Artists Wednesday night at the Arts Club, at which Rowland Lyon was toastmaster.

To Be on Exhibition. Among those who spoke were: The jury members, Mr. Cikovsky, Forbes Watson of the section of fine arts, the Building Administration; Miss Lella Mechlin, art critic of The Star; Paul Manship, director of the Corcoran Gallery of Art; Eugene Welsch, Jeremiah O'Connor, Kenneth Stubbs, also of the Corcoran Gallery of Art; C. Law Watkins of the Phillips Memorial Gallery, and A. H. O. Rolle.

The exhibition will be opened to an invited group on Saturday, February 1, and to the general public beginning Sunday, February 2. It will continue about three weeks.

Mr. Watkins, in the judges, said that the exhibition in his opinion was one of the best shows he had ever seen outside of New York, while other judges said it ranked with the best contemporary American art.

Fire Destroys Plant With Defense Orders

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 24.—Officials estimated today that fires last night at three Lancaster County industrial plants—including one at work on Government orders—did "thousands of dollars" damage.

The brass and aluminum foundry of F. N. Miller here was destroyed. Officials said it held defense orders. Other fires damaged the United States Asbestos Co. plant at Manheim and the heating and sheet metal plant of Clarence Mohler at Ephrata. Mr. Mohler's brother, Paul, said he suspected incendiaries.

350 Escape Fire With Eastern Star Leader's Aid

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 24.—Saved from a fire that had trapped them on a third floor last night, 350 members of the Order of the Eastern Star showed credit today on Mrs. Hazel F. Murray, worthy matron, for averting a possible panic.

Excitement prevailed when the lodge members discovered in the midst of elaborate installation ceremonies that flames on the first two floors had blocked escape down the stairways, but it subsided when Mrs. Murray, on the rostrum, said: "Listen to me. Everyone can get out safely if we file two by two and go down the fire escape. Everything will be all right if we don't lose our heads."

Following her instructions the entire gathering reached the street safely.

Lindbergh References Bring Hisses at Film Screening

Quentin Reynolds Tells How Londoners Spent 'Christmas Under Fire'

Lightly veiled references to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's testimony yesterday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee drew a few hisses and the apparently tacit approval of an audience of several hundred persons gathered at Constitution Hall last night to watch the preview of a British war film.

Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent for Collier's magazine, and narrator of the film, referred to Col. Lindbergh only as a "personally courageous man and a great flyer," but added:

"I admire his objectivity when he said 'I prefer to see neither side win.' He should make a great reporter. Whether he can be a great American is something else."

"Thank God, our affairs are in the hands of men of statesmanlike qualities, and not in the hands of a man expert only in the commercial and simple job of piloting an airplane."

Earlier, Thomas H. Beck, president of C. F. M. and Sidney Hillman, Publishing Co., had made a slighting reference to the flyer.

"Some one has said—I didn't say a man—some one has said 'It doesn't matter who wins.'"

In the pause that followed some one in the hall shouted: "Yes it does," and drew a ripple of applause.

Mr. Reynolds, who spoke after the screening of "London Can Take It," previously released film, and "They Spend Christmas Under Fire," showed publicly for the first time in America, told of his observations in London, where, he said, he heard far less war talk than he has in this country.

"What amazes me," he said, "is that I don't see any hatred of Fascism in Washington. Where there is no hatred of Fascism there can be no defense against it. You have to hate it the way a preacher hates sin."

Only Wants to Borrow Weapons. England, he declared, "doesn't want American blood shed on her soil. She wants to borrow weapons and supplies to fight for freedom."

Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, expressed the appreciation of the British people for American sympathy and aid. The speakers were introduced by Mr. Beck.

"They Spent Christmas Under Fire" shows scenes of children and adults trying to retain the spirit of Christmas and peace in a shelter world and in cellars and walkways in London. The picture was made by the Crown Film Unit and released through Warner Bros., with gross profits to go toward British relief. Mr. Beck said.

APPROVED PAN-AMERICAN ANNEX PLAN—In general, the above drawing shows the compromise arrangement approved yesterday by the Fine Arts Commission for an annex to the Pan-American Union, which will not block the view from the Interior Department to Constitution avenue. Virginia avenue would be closed between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets and the annex would push out on to what is now Eighteenth street, requiring rerouting of the street around it and a similar change in Nineteenth street to match.

Defense Offices Quit Reserve Building About February 1

All Activities to Center About Social Security Structure Then

The marble Federal Reserve Building will be vacated about February 1 by the Office of Production Management and National Defense Commission, it was learned today.

All defense offices in the building will be moved to the new Social Security Building, which already is a center of defense activity, containing offices of the Army's Ordnance and Surgeon General departments.

William S. Knudsen, director general of C. F. M. and Sidney Hillman, co-director, will move with their staffs, along with the other such officials who have all but crowded out offices of the Federal Reserve.

C. J. Gutridge, chief of the Office of Planning Space Control of the Public Buildings Administration, said many defense offices will move to the Social Security Building this week end.

The defense personnel are now scattered in 13 buildings in the District and include about 1,200 employees, most of whom already are project, most of whom already are project, most of whom already are project.

Several hundred will move from the Munitions Building to provide space for the ever-expanding War Department, although several liaison officers will remain there. About 200 employees, including many officials of the O. P. M. and National Defense Commission, will be moved from the Federal Reserve Building. They will move into a section of the Social Security Building, now being completed.

Morgenthau Calls In Advisers to Discuss Defense Financing

Magill and Viner Help Work Out Treasury Borrowing Program

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau called in two of his favorite financial advisers today to discuss methods of raising the billions necessary for financing the defense program.

They were Roswell Magill of Columbia University, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago.

The financing plan began to take shape yesterday when Mr. Morgenthau was advised by leading House and Senate members that they would introduce and support legislation to raise the Federal debt limit from $48,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000.

Now, Mr. Morgenthau is seeking advice from numerous sources on what types of securities should be sold, and what sales methods should be employed.

He already has indicated he has plans for selling small denomination securities, including $5 bonds and possibly 25-cent saving stamps, as was done during the World War.

However, officials said that, naturally, the bulk of the borrowing probably would be done through long-term bonds of the usual $1,000 denomination.

Extent of the borrowing contemplated by Mr. Morgenthau was shown in President Roosevelt's $17,485,528,049 budget for the next fiscal year, which provided for a deficit of $2,210,000,000. This deficit will have to be met from borrowing except to the extent that new taxes, also advocated by the administration, are enacted.

Pan-American Union Annex Site Gets Board's Approval

Fine Arts Commission Effects Compromise In Long Controversy

Years of controversy over a site for a proposed annex to the Pan-American Union appeared a step nearer solution following approval by the Fine Arts Commission yesterday of a plan to locate the annex immediately west of the present union building.

The new plan, which requires congressional approval, harmonizes the desire of the union for an annex with the insistence of Secretary of the Interior Ickes on protecting the view from the new Interior Building south to Constitution avenue.

Under the compromise, Virginia avenue will be closed between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, thus preserving the view from the Interior Building. Eighteenth street N.W. will be indented slightly westward to swing it around the new annex and Nineteenth street will be indented eastward about the same to harmonize with Eighteenth. Secretary Ickes is reported to approve this plan.

Authority Given in 1929. The Pan-American Union has been interested in an annex since 1927 and received specific authorization to build it in 1929. Original plans, however, located it in the triangle immediately south of the new Interior Building. This, complained Secretary Ickes to President Roosevelt, would block the view and he was upheld despite the enabling legislation. It is this legislation on the subject, it was explained, which make the new plan require approval by Congress.

Meanwhile, various compromise arrangements were suggested. Citizens Protest Plan. In addition to the issues to be straightened out between Mr. Ickes and the union, is the feeling of the citizens of the area. Vigorous objection to the closing of Virginia avenue has been made by the West End Citizens' Association, supported by presidents of many other associations.

At the time the annex was originally planned for the triangle, tunnel was built to the proposed location, but never used. Other action by the Fine Arts group yesterday included consideration of sketches for the new General Accounting Office authorized by Congress. Models of sculpture were the Oscar S. Straus Memorial Fountain were approved.

Several projects were presented by officials of the National Park Service including a plan for East Potomac Park and a lighting scheme for the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway.

Indians Win Deferment For Their Rain Chief. GALLUP, N. Mex., Jan. 24.—Albert, 26-year-old Zuni Indian rain priest, has been given a deferred classification under selective service. Fellow tribesmen pleaded that Albert's services were needed to bring rain not only for their semi-arid Western New Mexico reservation, but for the whole world.

The draft board held the rain priest was entitled to the same consideration given ministers of other religions.

Gillette Estimates $60,000,000 Spent On Campaign

By the Associated Press. A "rough guess" that between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 was spent on political campaigns leading up to the recent elections came yesterday from Chairman Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa of the special Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures.

The Senator's estimate was based on a report approved by the investigating committee which showed that contributions aggregating $24,174,223 and expenditures amounting to $22,740,313 actually were reported by national State and senatorial groups.

"I believe expenditures probably were three times the reported total," Senator Gillette said. "The committee compilation does not include campaign funds used by county or local candidates and committees. It does not include campaign costs for House candidates. It does not include hundreds who are under no legal requirement to make reports such as money spent for newspaper and billboard advertising within States and local jurisdictions."

State Expenditures Greatest. The report, approved by the committee and to be sent to the Senate later, said Republican organizations reported spending $14,941,143 and receiving $16,476,040, and Democratic groups listed $6,095,357 in expenditures and $6,284,463 in contributions.

Biggest items in the Republican totals were $11,792,149 in contributions and $10,791,625 in expenditures by Republican State central and finance committees. The Republican National Committee listed $2,564,606 in contributions and $2,242,742 in expenditures. Other national groups supporting the Republican presidential candidate, Wendell L. Willkie, reported $2,986,919 contributed to them and $2,832,187 expended.

The Democratic National Committee reported $2,454,105 received and $2,438,092 expended. The Senate committee said other national Democratic groups collected $576,210 and spent $557,048, and Democratic State committees collected $2,935,062 and spent $2,785,660.

Communists Spend $89,500. Among expenditures by other political groups was $89,500 by the Communist party, and $377,000 to the Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

Film Star Gives Autographs At Mile o' Dimes Stand Today

Preston Foster Aids Campaign For Victims

Preston Foster, movie star appearing in the current film "Northwest Mounted Police" was on hand for an hour this afternoon beginning at 1:45 o'clock and gave autographs to all laying dimes on the Mile o' Dimes stand, Fourteenth street and New York avenue N.W. Mr. Foster followed the appearance of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. at "Dimes Square" yesterday afternoon, when several hundred movie fans were attracted to the scene.

After rolling up with a full police motorcycle escort, Mr. Fairbanks laid several dimes on the line and called on the assembly and unseen radio audience to join in contributing to the fight against infantile paralysis.

"My mission here in Washington has been in connection with the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies," Mr. Fairbanks said. "I have in that connection been concerning myself with the thoughts of the thousands of British children who have been ravaged and made ill by the war. But I'm sure that we all think first of the thousands of American children who annually are smitten by the scourge called infantile paralysis."

Early Diagnosis Important. Miss Gibson pointed out that early diagnosis and treatment is of prime importance in battling infantile paralysis and said that much valuable equipment, such as tanks for under-water treatment and a splint and cast laboratory, had been made available through money collected in previous President's birthday campaigns.

"This is a pleasant and happy way to do it," she concluded. The stand, which is sponsored by The Star and the National Broadcasting Co., was visited at 4:30 p.m. yesterday by Miss Ethel Richardson, who brought $52 from the employees of Federal Communications Commission; Harold B. Colvin of the Postal Telegraph Co., who laid 66 dimes from employees of the firm, and 8-year-old Nancy Peraz, 1407 Juniper street N.W., who contributed a dime for each year of her age.

Astronomers Ask Laws To Check Astrology

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The Boston and Cambridge branch of the American Association of Scientific Workers, whose membership numbers prominent Harvard University astronomers, considers increasing public interest in astrology "harmful" and proposed that lawmakers do something about it.

The scientists approved a report by an investigating committee headed by Prof. Bart J. Bok and Mrs. Margaret W. Maynard of the Harvard Observatory which said: "Predictions of astrology lack every conceivable scientific foundation. Astrologers have failed to suggest a workable mechanism by which the stars and planets can exert their influence on human destiny."

The report expressed alarm over the interest shown by supposedly intelligent sections of the public in astrology and assailed it as harmful both to true scientific progress and healthy social psychology. It proposed "more vigorous laws" governing the practice of astrology.

Five Who Survived T. W. A. Plane Crash Leave Hospitals

C.A.B. Chief Opens 10-Day Investigation of St. Louis Wreck, Killing Two

By the Associated Press. ST. LOUIS, Jan. 24.—Five of the 12 persons injured in the crash of a Transcontinental & Western Air sky sleeper were released from hospitals today and the other seven were reported in fair condition. Two men were killed: Capt. P. T. W. Scott, pilot, of Little Neck, N. Y., and John Frank Mott, T. W. A. mechanic, of Kansas City.

Frank Caldwell, chief of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said his investigation of yesterday's pre-dawn crash would continue 10 days. Then an inquiry will be conducted here in an attempt to fix the cause. "Something Went Wrong." Earl Bierman, radio operator in the control tower at Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport, said "something apparently went wrong because the pilot pulled the plane into what looked like an S-turn and it disappeared behind some trees. Then there was a 'flash' as it tore through telephone wires almost at the edge of the landing field."

After a preliminary survey, John A. Collins of Kansas City, superintendent of operations for T. W. A., said the plane's tail might have hit first. "There is a rise beyond the west end of the field and sections of the tail found there indicate that the airplane brook on the tops of the trees and part of the tail group was torn off. The plane then plowed straight ahead through some high-tension wires."

Injured passengers remaining in hospitals were: Mrs. William Ekey, of Delphi; Mrs. Thomas McCloskey Crawford, of St. Louis; Mrs. Jurgens Kirkwood, of Miss Leabelle C. Hadden, Baltimore; Clinton Criggs, Worthington, Ohio; Miss Mary T. Eshback, hostess, and Comptroller Orestis J. Dio Guardia, both of Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Continued Air Crashes Feared by McCarran By the Associated Press. Calling attention of the Senate to the crash yesterday of a T. W. A. airplane near St. Louis, Senator McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada, predicted that "this unhappy series of air disasters will continue until the Congress returns the Civil Aeronautics Authority to independent status."

Admiral Opposes Proposal for Two New Naval Academies

Committee Approves Measure to Increase Annapolis Appointments

By the Associated Press. Two members of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee suggested yesterday that additional naval academies, similar to that at Annapolis, be established to provide additional officers for the "two-ocean" Navy. The proposal, advanced by Senators Johnson, Republican, of California and Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, drew sharp opposition from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, who was testifying for a House-approved bill increasing appointment of midshipmen to Annapolis. The Senators suggested that additional naval academies be established on the Gulf of Mexico or on the West Coast.

Admiral Nimitz protested that it would take longer to build and equip the additional training centers than the "present emergency" would allow. "How long will the present emergency last?" Senator Johnson demanded quickly. "I didn't bring my crystal ball with me," the admiral replied with a broad smile.

Admiral Nimitz testified that speedy training of college youths in the Naval Reserve officers was expected to provide 4,500 junior Naval Reserve officers this year. He said they would be assigned to active duty immediately. He said that the bill already passed by the House would fill existing facilities at Annapolis by permitting appointment of five candidates each by the 491 Senators and Representatives. They now name four each.

"Annapolis will be able to supply all the officers needed above the grade of commander and perhaps lieutenant commander," the admiral said. The committee approved the bill and sent it to the Senate for debate.

Shanghai Tax Opposition Unaffected by Shooting

By the Associated Press. SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—Japanese authorities declared today the opposition of Japanese taxpayers to a 40 per cent increase in Shanghai's municipal taxes had not been affected by the shooting of W. J. Keswick, British chairman of the city's Municipal Council, and proponents of the measure and that the fight would be waged "to the limit."

A statement issued through Keizo Hironaka, Japanese consul general, said, however, that "it goes without saying that legitimate means only are recognized and a defeat will be taken with good grace." The Japanese admitted that Y. Hayashi, chairman of the Association of Japanese Street Unions, was responsible for the shooting of Mr. Keswick, who, with two Japanese members of the Municipal Council, was slightly wounded. They promised a quick trial for Hayashi, militant leader of the tax-increase opposition.

Mr. Keswick and his Japanese associates on the council were wounded in a shooting which broke up an emergency tax session at the Shanghai Race Course shortly after the meeting had voted down Hayashi's resolution opposing the increase.

British Naval Attack Turned Tobruk Into Mass of Flames

Huge Petroleum Stores Were Ignited And Hits Scored on Italian Cruiser

By LARRY ALLEN, Associated Press War Correspondent. WITH THE BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Jan. 23 (Delayed).—British light naval forces, firing an estimated 500 tons of high explosive shells, turned the harbor of Tobruk into a mass of flames before the Italian stronghold fell to onrushing British troops. Huge petroleum stores were fired by the bombardment and several direct hits were scored on the Italian cruiser San Giorgio. Gunboats and other warcraft, sweeping close inshore, handed the Italians a severe pounding for more than four days before the British land forces launched their attack on Tobruk. The shells blasted enemy defenses and supply bases and scattered troop concentrations. The naval forces pursued the same strategy they used at Bardia, helping to clear the path for a powerful British land drive against the Italian garrison, variously estimated at 30,000 to 40,000 men.

Australians, as at Bardia, were the first troops to reach the heart of Tobruk, where they reported taking "thousands of prisoners." Some sources estimated the number of captives may reach 30,000. Even after the Australians penetrated the defenses naval units continued to sweep along the Libyan coast, pouring huge shells into motor transports and the ranks of retreating Italian infantry. Much of the naval bombardment was carried out under extremely unfavorable weather conditions, with heavy seas running and blinding sandstorms sweeping the Tobruk area, but the shelling was described as highly successful. For a time the naval units were engaged by guns of the San Giorgio and shore batteries, but none of the British ships was hit. The San Giorgio, which was believed to have brought supplies to the Italians several weeks ago and then was prevented by the British blockade from returning to Italy, was given repeated barrages of 6 to 15 inch shells. One naval officer said the cruiser apparently was a total loss.

The Italian command announced in Rome that the San Giorgio was dynamited and set afire by her own crew before Tobruk fell. Stokowski to Help Modernize Army Bands and Music

Leopold Stokowski, director of the All American Youth Orchestra, will conduct experiments in modernizing Army bands and music, the War Department announced today, by directing an 85-piece band at Fort MacArthur, Calif. This modernization, it was said, a basic purpose will be the explanation of music in the development of spirit among troops. Nucleus of the experimental band will be the 3rd Coast Artillery Band of 26 members. In addition, 12 Regular Army bandsmen will be provided for the infantry, field artillery and coast artillery training center bands.

Libya

(Continued From First Page.) blasting which returning pilots said set tremendous fires. Bombs straddling the barracks on the southern edge of Apollonia, airdrome were said to have set off explosions and fires visible 35 miles away. Intensified Drive Expected. Military circles here believed the British high command would make every effort to follow up the Tobruk victory with an intensified offensive on the entire African front, extending from Libya to Ethiopia. News that former Emperor Haile Selassie had re-emerged Ethiopia to rally his old subjects was accepted here as evidence that the British drive in that area was swinging into high gear. Reports from Eritrea declared the Italians already had been forced to abandon 5,000 square miles of that colony to British troops advancing eastward from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Nowhere are the Italians being given any rest, British sources said, hinting at a concerted drive to make good Prime Minister Churchill's promise to "tear the Italian empire in Africa to pieces."

Three Firms, Ex-Klan Chief Fined in Monopoly Case

By the Associated Press. ATLANTA, Jan. 24.—Hiram Wesley Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and three refining companies were fined a total of $30,000 in Federal Court today for conspiracy and monopoly in the sale of emulsified asphalt to the State. Mr. Evans, who had entered a plea of nolo contendere, was fined $15,000. District Judge E. Marvin Underwood also assessed $4,000 fine against the Emulsified Asphalt Refining Co. at Charleston, S. C.; $5,000 against the Shell Oil Co., Inc., of St. Louis and $6,000 against the American Bitumuls Co. of San Francisco on like counts to which they pleaded nolo contendere.

Many Italians Surrender to U. S. Newsman By EDWARD KENNEDY, Associated Press War Correspondent. TOBRUK, Libya, Jan. 22 (delayed).—So many Italian prisoners have been taken in the British capture of Tobruk that—as in other battles of the desert campaign—handing them is an annoyance not only to the British Army but to correspondents. I am the only American covering the campaign, but in a war correspondent's uniform I am mistaken for a British officer. Consequently, dozens of Italians have surrendered to me, most of them in this last battle. This poses a question as to whether under the Neutrality Act an American is allowed to capture prisoners. Usually I have solved this problem by turning them over to a British colleague or directing them to the spot where they may be officially captured.

Democrats to Hear High Defense Chiefs In Secret Session

had announced at 4 p.m. yesterday that Mr. Fish had invited them. When the chairman finally called the committee to order, there was no witness in the chair and Mr. Bloom made a motion for an executive session.

Losers Won't Go Along. When the Democrats retired to a closed office, Representative Fish with the long enough to state his side of the controversy and then left, announcing he did not wish to be bound by the action of the majority.

While the Democrats were closeted two floors above, deciding what course to take, the Republicans remained in the hearing room marking time.

Mr. Fish told reporters he felt sure the general and admiral were perfectly willing to appear in open session, but charged they had been advised to take a different course.

According to Mr. Fish, he first called them by telephone early yesterday, in accordance with authority that had been given him to invite minority witnesses. He went to Philadelphia last night to make a speech and on returning to his office this morning found a message from the officers telling of the change in the situation.

Mr. Fish told reporters he thought "the majority of the committee are afraid of what they (Gen. Marshall and Admiral Stark) might say after what Col. Lindbergh told the committee yesterday about air bases and the absence of danger of invasion."

Mr. Fish said among other questions he wanted to ask them "Why we have only 200 combat planes when Col. Lindbergh suggested 10,000" and why "we do not have the South American air bases suggested a year and a half ago."

After the executive session, the Democrats issued the following statement: "The Democratic members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House have invited as minority witnesses..."

"The full committee, in a prior executive session, had authorized Representative Fish, the ranking minority member, to invite whatever witnesses he desired as minority witnesses." Representative Fish invited Admiral Stark, Gen. Marshall and Gen. Brett (acting chief of the Army Air Corps).

"Subsequent to the invitations issued by Mr. Fish and after their names had been announced at Mr. Fish's request, the witness, in conversation with the chairman of the committee, asked whether or not the committee had invited them to appear as witnesses, to which the chairman replied that the committee had authorized Mr. Fish to invite such witnesses as he desired 'as minority witnesses.'"

Gen. Marshall's Letter. "Gen. Marshall, chief of staff, wrote a letter to Representative Hamilton Fish, furnishing a carbon copy to Chairman Bloom, which read as follows: 'My Dear Mr. Fish: 'With reference to your invitation for me to appear before the Foreign Affairs Committee in connection with H. R. 1776, I was informed by the chairman of the committee last night that my presence had not been requested by the committee.'"

"In view of the fact that my testimony would be that of the chief of staff of the Army, rather than that of an individual, I would prefer to appear on the request of the committee. I take the liberty of suggesting that if my presence is desired by the committee, the hearing be in executive session in order that I might make complete and frank replies to the questions that probably would be asked."

"In view of the above facts, the majority members of the committee have met this morning and unanimously agreed to extend and have extended to Admiral Stark, Gen. Marshall and Gen. Brett invitations to appear and testify before the committee. In deference to the expressed wishes of the distinguished officials, they have been assured that their testimony will be heard by the committee in executive session."

President Silent on Bill Changes. At his press conference, President Roosevelt said he would not express an opinion on any proposed changes to the British aid bill, at least until he saw the measure when it came out of committee and could study the specific language of any amendments.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not read, and therefore would not comment on, the statement made before the Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday by Col. Lindbergh to the effect that the war might have been avoided if the United States had not given its moral support to Great Britain and France.

After stating he had not read the Lindbergh testimony, he asked the reporters why he should do so. The President would not comment on a reporter's statement that Republican Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts had endorsed the British aid bill.

Senate to Call Cabinet Men. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided, coincidentally, to call four cabinet officers, headed by Secretary of State Hull, as witnesses when it begins public hearings on the bill Monday.

Mr. Hull was expected to be followed to the stand by Secretaries Knox, Stimson and Morgenthau. All testified before the House committee.

Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas said he has suggested that Col. Lindbergh also be called by the Senate committee, while Senator Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa was reported to have urged that the committee ask Maj. George Fielding Eliot, military analyst and newspaper columnist, to testify.

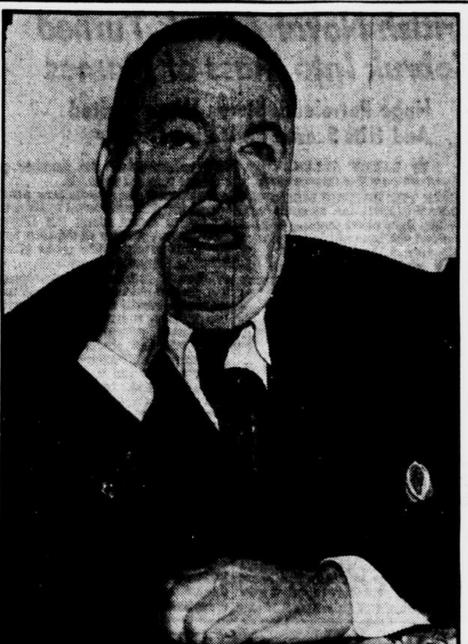

Col. Lindbergh, appearing yesterday as a "star witness" against the bill and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who followed him, both foresaw war hazards in the lease-lend proposals. The famous flyer firmly and repeatedly described the legislation as a "major step" toward hostilities.

Johnson sees U. S. in War. Gen. Johnson, peppy former chief of the N. R. A., made the specific prediction: "If we're not careful, we're going to be in this war in 30 or 90 days, possibly on the north coast of Africa—or on the west coast of that continent."

Col. Lindbergh and Gen. Johnson agreed on a number of points. They disapproved thoroughly of the bill. They scouted the danger of an axis attack on the United States. They advocated national defense measures. Col. Lindbergh stated the belief that a 10,000-plane air force and the acquisition of more bases, particularly in Latin America, would make the country secure against attack.

On aid-to-Britain the two parted company. Gen. Johnson snapped: "I don't see why people should begin to turn their noses at 3,000 miles of the Atlantic and 5,000 miles of the Pacific when we see the trouble Mr. Hitler has been having with 22 miles."

Repeatedly he exhorted Congress to take no action that might involve delegation of its constitutional powers. A committee member inquired if there was not necessity for vesting discretionary authority somewhere. "I'm willing to repose the destiny of the United States in Congress until things get a lot hotter than they are now," Gen. Johnson shot back.

FORESEES WAR HAZARDS.—Gen. Hugh Johnson, columnist and former N. R. A. chief, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday he was opposed to the administration's lease-lend bill as a "major step" toward involvement of the United States in the war.

not get into a war until "we know which way the cat is going to jump. We don't know what Japan and Russia are going to do."

Summing up his opinions, he declared he favored any measures that were in "aid of our national defense and not one inch more."

Aside from testimony before the committee, congressional interest was aroused by apparently authentic reports that Mr. Roosevelt was willing to accept amendments to the bill, "within reason."

He was represented as feeling that the legislation would be more effective if it was approved by many "middle-roaders" who thus far have taken no position.

Persons in touch with the White House predicted that the President might agree to some or all of the following restrictions:

1. A time limitation—probably two years—on operation of the lease-lend program.

2. A prohibition against use of American naval vessels to convoy shipments of American goods to Great Britain.

3. An amendment forbidding the President from leasing or lending to friendly "democracies" any equipment deemed necessary by military experts for the effectiveness of American armed forces.

4. A requirement that Congress approve the President's designation of countries which would benefit under the lease-lend program.

5. A provision that Congress receive periodic reports on the functioning of the program (with a stipulation that information regarded as military secrets by the Army chief of staff and the chief of Navy operations would not be released).

Woman Is Found Dead In Gas-Filled Room

Mrs. Helen Ritter Creamer, 32, of 4418 Conduit road N.W. was found dead last night in the gas-filled kitchen of her home by her brother, Prescott D. Batchelder. Gas jets were open in the stove, police said, and towels had been stuffed in the cracks of the door.

Mrs. Creamer was pronounced dead by a physician who responded with an ambulance from Emergency Hospital. She was said to have suffered a nervous breakdown recently. The coroner's office issued a certificate of suicide.

States' Party Chiefs Called Here in U. S. Probe of Campaign

Republican and Democrat Leaders Subpoenaed For Next Week

Chairmen and treasurers of State political groups are being subpoenaed to appear before a special Federal grand jury here next week in conjunction with its inquiry into expenditures during the recent campaign.

Assistant United States Attorney William S. Tarver today announced this list of persons scheduled to be heard next Tuesday: L. D. Schriber, treasurer of the Illinois Democratic State Committee of Chicago; Richard W. Lawrence, treasurer of the New York Republican State Central Committee, Buffalo; James Baker, treasurer of the New Jersey Democratic State Central Committee, Trenton; J. Fred Blittinger, chairman of the Ohio Democratic State Central Committee, Columbus; M. Ray Allison, treasurer of the Ohio Democratic State Central Committee, Columbus; Ed Schorr, chairman of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee, Columbus; and Hugh Huntington, treasurer of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee, Columbus.

H. Alexander Smith, treasurer of the New Jersey Republican State Central Committee, Princeton, is being subpoenaed for next Thursday.

Appearing today to testify before the jury were: Clayton E. Freeman, chairman of the New Jersey Republican State Central Committee; Clarence B. Low, treasurer of the New York Democratic State Central Committee; and Thomas S. Hammond, chairman of the Illinois Republican Finance Committee.

Arthur A. Sullivan, chairman of the Illinois Democratic State Committee, Chicago, is due in the city later today, his plane having been grounded, Mr. Tarver said.

Ben I. Berve, chairman of the Illinois Republican State Committee, who was to have appeared today, is due next Thursday. Edwin P. Jaekle, chairman of the New York Republican State Central Committee, is another prospective witness, originally scheduled to be heard today, but whose appearance was deferred.

Publishers to Conduct Safe-Driving Contest

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The American Newspaper Publishers Association, in co-operation with the International Circulation Managers Association, today announced an annual safe-driving contest for newspaper truck drivers in Canada and the United States.

Annual awards will be made to newspapermen recording the first, second and third lowest number of accidents per 100,000 vehicle miles driven during the contest year by fleets delivering daily newspapers.

British Planes Bomb Mighty Italian Base On Island of Rhodes

Other Craft Are Reported To Have Attacked Derna, 95 Miles West of Tobruk

ROME, Jan. 24.—The Italian high command announced today that British warplanes had bombed the picturesque island of Rhodes, site of one of Italy's mightiest naval and air bases in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Other British warplanes were reported to have carried out bombing attacks on the Libyan base of Derna, 95 miles west of Tobruk, where the Italians said Fascist troops clinging to the western fringes of the town continued to offer "stubborn resistance" to besieging British land forces all day yesterday.

Italian planes, the daily war bulletin said, bombed and machine-gunned British mechanized forces in the Tobruk zone.

The German air corps meanwhile carried out another bombing attack on the British naval base at Malta in the central Mediterranean, the high command declared.

The British declared that the high command attack on Rhodes, which still bears many evidences of occupation by crusading knights in the medieval ages, was said to have been carried out Wednesday night and was said to have caused "slight damage to private dwellings," but no casualties.

"Several" high explosive bombs were dropped, the communique said. In East Africa fighting was said to be continuing on the Sudanese front and along the Kenya colony border, where the Italians said their ground forces were "effectively supported" by the air force in engagements with British mechanized units.

The communique did not indicate the trend of fighting.

William A. Dimmette Funeral Rites Today

Funeral services for William A. Dimmette, 30, Federal Government employee for more than 10 years, will be held at 3 p.m. today at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street N. W. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria, Va.

Mr. Dimmette, who died Wednesday in Emergency Hospital following a short illness, had served with the Agriculture Department and with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Native of Greensboro, N. C., he had lived here since his parents moved to Washington in 1919. He was educated in District public schools and was graduated from Central High School with the class of 1929.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susan Dimmette, of 6277 Ninth street N.W.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude C. Dimmette; two brothers, C. C. Dimmette, jr., of Washington and Milton Dimmette of Alexandria; and two sisters, Martha Dimmette of Washington and Mrs. Victor Campbell of New York.

Flu Epidemic Believed Due Entirely to Type A Virus

Disease, Still Mild in Form, Already Has Burned Itself Out in Far West

By THOMAS R. HENRY. The influenza epidemic now sweeping the country probably is due entirely to the "type A" virus, the first discovered.

With the first "explosion" of the disease in California nearly two months ago many samples of blood were taken from sick persons and others who had just recovered. These were brought to Washington, where extensive tests with mice have been carried out at the United States Public Health Service laboratories.

There are now two known types of flu virus, A and B. A victim of either builds up in his own blood protective substances, or antibodies, against that particular type. An inoculation with either virus will kill a mouse. When it is mixed, however, with the blood serum in which antibodies have been produced the animal is protected.

Same Results in East. The Public Health Service keeps strains of both viruses. They have found that the blood serum of the California flu victims almost invariably protects the mouse against type A, but never against type B.

The same results have been obtained with blood serum collected from a boys' reform school in the East where there has been an extensive flu epidemic. There is little question, Public Health Service doctors say, that the milder, now raging east of the Mississippi is identical with that which entered the country by way of California. The process of diagnosing the disease is very laborious and requires many mice, so that reliance must be placed on representative samples.

Second Virus Discovered. Until a few months ago all influenza was supposed to be due to the same virus. Then the discovery of the type B organism was reported. This was alarming only because it was new and unknown—not because it caused any more serious symptoms than type A, for which a probably effective vaccine had been produced by workers of the Rockefeller Institution.

Many of the cases now reported in the East have been designated popularly, and by some physicians, as "intestinal flu." The name, say Public Health Service doctors, apparently has no real meaning. No association ever has been found between either type of virus and any of the abdominal organs.

The only known direct action of the influenza virus in man, according to Dr. John W. Oliphant of the Public Health Service staff is on the lining membrane of the respiratory tract, a very thin layer of cells. These are attacked and destroyed, leaving a road open for bacterial infections, such as pneumonia, to reach the lungs.

Epidemic Consistently Mild. Undoubtedly, says Dr. Oliphant, during a flu epidemic many persons suffer from abdominal symptoms such as severe cramps. Many others, in the same neighborhoods, have no such condition. There has never been a flu epidemic chiefly characterized by intestinal symptoms. They may be due to idiosyncrasies of individuals suffering from the disease. There may be no connection whatsoever between them and the flu virus.

The present epidemic has remained consistently mild. Although the number of cases has advanced in three weeks, according to reports to the Public Health Service, from 77,000 cases to 120,000 there has been no increase in the number of deaths due to pneumonia, the true criterion of the seriousness of such an epidemic. The figure 120,000, it is admitted, may be only a small percentage of the number actually ill with the disease. It represents only the cases actually reported.

"Burned Out" in West. Already the disease has "burned itself out" west of the Mississippi. Only in Texas have the numbers gone above 30,000 each week for three weeks in succession. From some of the largest Eastern States there have been no official reports, although it is known that they have many victims.

Practically every State east of the Mississippi now is in the grip of an epidemic and the number of victims reported probably will increase for several weeks. The fact that it crossed half the country without any increase in virulence although it passed through several crowded cities, is considered evidence that it soon will "burn out" in the East.

Police Sergeant Injured When Hit by Truck

Sergt. Charles S. Dwyer, 50, of No. 1 precinct, was believed recovering today from head injuries received when hit by a truck while crossing K street in the 1200 block yesterday afternoon. The truck, police said, was operated by William G. Hiney, 29, of 113 Rhode Island avenue N.E.

Police investigating the accident were unable to obtain an immediate statement from the injured man, who was removed to Emergency Hospital. The driver said Sergt. Dwyer walked into the side of his vehicle.

Two motorists were to face a coroner's jury at the Morgue today in traffic inquests into the deaths of Spencer W. Sahlgren, 45, of 1740 Riggs place N.W., who was run down at Eighteenth and K streets N.W. last Sunday, and John S. Snyder, 29, of 2635 Otis street N.E., who was knocked down by an automobile while crossing Rhode Island avenue N.E. in the 2600 block.

28 New Flu Cases Make Month's Total 438

Twenty-eight new influenza cases were reported to the Health Department yesterday, bringing the total for the month to 438, as compared to 29 at the same time last January.

The Health Department said the total is probably only a part of the cases in the city, many not being reported.

Government Fast Becoming World's Largest Landlord

Rufus Lusk Cites Menace To Private Ownership At Taxpayers' Dinner

The Federal Government will become the world's greatest landlord, possibly "excepting Soviet Russia," if the present trend of the real estate activities of the Government continue for a few more years, Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers' Association, told the Washington Real Estate Board at a dinner meeting last night in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Continuation of such activities "will prove to be a serious menace to private ownership," Mr. Lusk declared. "Carried to its logical conclusion, there will be no private ownership of property. A citizen cannot compete with his Government."

The head of the taxpayers' organization said the Federal Government had built or financed or guaranteed the financing of approximately 700,000 housing units during the last five years, and he placed the "stake" of the Government in real estate at at least $10,000,000,000.

"This figure does not refer to the Government's holdings on Army posts and naval bases, not to Government buildings on public reservations and in parks," Mr. Lusk emphasized. "It refers solely to urban and rural real estate operations which, until recently, have always been the field of private enterprise."

He charged that "Today the Government is in direct competition with every holder of real property."

The dinner, attended by more than 100 Washington realtors, was a testimonial to J. Clyde Nichols, veteran member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Waverly Taylor, president of the board, congratulated Mr. Nichols on his 16 years' service, and in response, the official urged the real estate men to remember the responsibility for planning building in key with the Capital's growth.

Jackson Urged to Drop Wire-Tapping Move

Attorney General Jackson was urged today to withdraw his recommendation to Congress that wire-tapping by Federal officials be legalized, in a letter from Hugh Miller, chairman of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action.

Mr. Miller said freedom of opinion and expression, and the right to personal privacy require that "individuals should be immune from snooping and similar harassment by public officers."

Police investigating the accident were unable to obtain an immediate statement from the injured man, who was removed to Emergency Hospital. The driver said Sergt. Dwyer walked into the side of his vehicle.

Two motorists were to face a coroner's jury at the Morgue today in traffic inquests into the deaths of Spencer W. Snyder, 29, of 2635 Otis street N.E., who was knocked down by an automobile while crossing Rhode Island avenue N.E. in the 2600 block.

28 New Flu Cases Make Month's Total 438

Twenty-eight new influenza cases were reported to the Health Department yesterday, bringing the total for the month to 438, as compared to 29 at the same time last January.

The Health Department said the total is probably only a part of the cases in the city, many not being reported.

Jackson Urged to Drop Wire-Tapping Move

Attorney General Jackson was urged today to withdraw his recommendation to Congress that wire-tapping by Federal officials be legalized, in a letter from Hugh Miller, chairman of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action.

Mr. Miller said freedom of opinion and expression, and the right to personal privacy require that "individuals should be immune from snooping and similar harassment by public officers."

D. C. Audubon Society Founder Ends 17 Years as President

Dr. T. S. Palmer (left), shown last night at the meeting of the Audubon Society of the District at the Washington Club, shaking hands with Vernon Bailey, the man he expects to succeed him as president of the group. —Star Staff Photo.

The meeting of the District Audubon Society belonged to Dr. T. S. Palmer rather especially last night, since he was bowing out after nearly 18 years as president.

It didn't seem right to think that the 73-year-old ornithologist, with his facile speech and extraordinary memory for exact dates would not be calling the order of business as usual next time.

"I feel like Vice President Garner," he observed dryly to the group of 60 or so at the Washington Club. "I want to retire."

He was a founder of the District society 44 years ago—March 3, 1897, to be exact—and again, with his passion for precision, he would not let it be said he had served 18 years as president until the last day of February. He has been interested in birds since 1877 when at the age of 9 in California he collected birds' eggs as a hobby, and has since kept track of the game laws in every State, which he has at the tip of his tongue.

His Achievements Recalled.

Dr. Harold C. Bryant, acting superintendent of Kings Canyon National Park, recalled to the group other achievements of the retiring president—his organization of junior Audubon groups, his dealing with Metropolitan Police Force in getting food to quail in hard winters, his activities at the Capitol in behalf of conservation bills such as the recent eagle conservation measure, and his work at the State Department in behalf of international conservation.

"Dr. Palmer," he concluded, "we do appreciate you."

The retiring president sat back most of the evening and listened to members' brief talks on birds they had seen since the last annual meeting last January. Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson of the Fish and Wildlife Service

Ex-Senator King Revealed As Honorary Greek Citizen

Former Senator William King of Utah displayed today a parchment scroll designating him as an honorary citizen of Athens, Greece.

The designation was made in 1934 but was not delivered by the State Department until today because Mr. King was a member of the Senate and law requires a Federal official to receive permission from Congress before receiving any honors from a foreign government.

Mr. King said he had aided Greece in obtaining $10,000,000 from this Government during the World War and had helped found Ahepa, organization of Greek-Americans.

Although while a member of the Senate he was frequently at odds with President Roosevelt, Mr. King said he favored speedy enactment of the lease-lend bill, which would make possible aid to Greece.

"The President is right and we've got to support him," Mr. King declared.

Mr. King said that besides the Greek award he had also received a decoration from the government of Cuba, first offered while he was a member of the Senate.

way of emergencies at home and spring offensives abroad which may settle the fate of nations. The contemplated maximum production rate of 1,000 engines a month set for Allison cannot be reached before next November.

Difficulties in the Way.

To attain even its current production rate, Allison has had to branch out into many new fields. It has had to build and equip a great new aluminum foundry at Anderson, 30 miles from its Indianapolis plant, to turn out engine castings which could not be bought in the market. It had to farm out the manufacture of crankshafts, camshafts and timing gears to General Motors' Cadillac plant and Cadillac had to build and tool from the ground up to do the job.

Automobile tools and methods were not good enough to do the airplane engine job, which calls for precision beyond anything of which the automobile people ever dreamed. Airplane engines not only produce 10 times the power of the best automobile engines, but they must be made without an ounce of unnecessary weight.

This meant that metal in the interior of crankshafts—not contributing to strength though to weight—had to be machined out so that every ounce of metal carried its share of the load. Operation after operation came up that never had occurred in automobile practice. Special machines had to be designed and built, and some of them were more than a year in the process.

Comparison with Auto Engines.

An Allison crankshaft starts in the Cadillac plant today as a rough steel forging weighing 1,000 pounds or more and comes out a tenth of that weight of mirror-surfaced metal. The weight of the best automobile engine runs from 5 to 10 pounds per horsepower. The Allison engine weighs 1,325 pounds and delivers 1 horsepower for each 1.2 pounds of engine.

Not only are steels machined and hollowed to reduce weight but aluminum and light alloys are used wherever possible. At points of wear steel or other metal parts are inserted.

There are 7,000 parts in the Allison engine, and about 2,000 of them are individual items, not duplicated. A total of 70,000 inspections must be made during the course of production of each engine—an average of 10 inspections to each part. Completed engines are given a "green run" of seven hours on a test stand, with propeller attached, and are then completely disassembled for a micrometer test of each part. If everything is in perfect condition, the engine is reassembled and run at least three hours more before being packed for shipment.

$20,000 Worth of Engine.

The completed engine—sleek and beautiful—$20,000 worth of watchmaker's precision—gives no indication to the observer of the tremendous experimental and production of the Interior Department told of tremendous water bird concentrations in the islands near Alaska.

"It was the greatest spectacle in the bird world I ever expect to see," he said, adding that on one island, "I stopped counting after 5,000,000."

Woodpeckers That Store Acorns.

program necessary to bring it to its prewar production stage of today.

"The immensity of the present operations can hardly be compared with any similar undertaking in industrial history," Allison officials declare.

"When you consider that back of our present huge output of automobiles lies the experience of 40 years of tooling, I think we can take pride in the accomplishments at Allison," said C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors.

"There were some setbacks, as was to be expected in the stress of emergency, but I believe the bugs are licked and we can look forward to the production of Allison engines in ever-increasing quantities."

Sharp Drop in Price Of Lumber Expected After Warning

'Draft' Hint to Industry Given by Henderson; U. S. Blamed in Defense

A sharp decrease in the price of lumber used in Government construction was confidently awaited today by the National Defense Commission as the result of a blunt warning that President Roosevelt might be asked to fix lower prices and exercise his power to "draft" the lumber industry.

Using that same method that resulted recently in almost instant price reduction of scrap iron, Leon Henderson, defense commissioner in charge of price stabilization, told the Lumber and Timber Products Defense Committee yesterday:

"If the whole price level had acted like that of the lumber industry, this country would be in a state of paralysis. We can get lumber. The Government can get all it wants by fixing a price and having the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy forbid any payment of higher prices. We can then use the Selective Service Act to draft lumber the same as we are drafting men. As far as I'm concerned, I'm going to make that recommendation unless the situation improves."

Fort Meade Increase Cited.

Mr. Henderson said that at Fort George G. Meade, Md., the Government had "paid a 75 per cent increase in the cost of lumber for that construction."

In a spirited defense, representatives of the industry blamed Government purchasing methods, among other factors, and said prices already were on the downgrade.

M. L. Fleishel of Jacksonville, Fla., chairman of the lumber group, said a conference he had with Mr. Henderson last week provided "the first direct information we had had that the Government had any complaint against lumber prices."

At the start of the defense program last year, he said, the Government required delivery of more than 1,500,000,000 feet of lumber for its cantonments and camps—which are entirely of wood construction—and much of the requirement came in a relatively few grades and sizes.

"If any one thinks that the amount of lumber involved in the Government purchasing program was not a large one," he said, "it probably can best be explained by stating it would require a train 600 miles long."

"Rush" Orders Affected Prices. "Undoubtedly higher prices were paid for some lumber than would have been paid if delivery dates could have been better adjusted to the actual needs and if rush bidding and rush deliveries could have been avoided."

Mr. Fleishel said the average price paid by the Government in September was $41.10 a thousand board feet; in October, it was $39.06; in November, $37.24, and in December, $35.81. The downward trend is continuing, he said.

Mr. Henderson, in his talk to the lumbermen, said all he wanted was for them to "sell lumber to the Government or private buyers at a decent price," and mentioned $25 per 1,000 board feet as the "decent price" at the mill for No. 2 Southern pine lumber. He distributed charts showing increases in lumber prices from 1940 lows had ranged from none for No. 1 redwood boards, up to 52.7 per cent for No. 1 pine timbers.

After the speech, Mr. Fleishel told reporters that "he didn't take us for as much of a buggy ride as I thought he would. He asked of $25 per 1,000 after all the price is now about $27."

aboard the King George V might endanger the ship and the lives of all aboard it.

Those going to Annapolis from the British Embassy are Minister N. M. Butler, counselor of Embassy, who has been Charge d'Affaires in the interim of Lord Lothian's death and Viscount Halifax's arrival; Rear Admiral Pott, M. V. O., naval attaché; Col. R. V. Read, C. V. O., D. S. O., military attaché; F. R. Hoyer Miller, first secretary, and Stephen Childs, press attaché.

Sir Gerald Campbell, Minister, will meet the new Ambassador at the Embassy. He is not going to Annapolis, since he has not yet officially assumed his new post.

The first news that the battleship was in American waters came from an anonymous shipping source which told the Associated Press in Baltimore that the King George V had passed through Cape Charles and Cape Henry, entrance to the Chesapeake, at 7 a. m. Later the Coast Guard at Norfolk confirmed the report, saying that the ship, 35,000 tons, passed Cape Henry at 7:03 a. m., proceeding "very slowly" through a fog.

London was as surprised as Washington by the news that H. M. S. King George V was in commission. Lord and Lady Halifax were put aboard her by Prime Minister Churchill and Mrs. Churchill at what the Associated Press described as a "northern port." The information was contained in a communique released today at the Admiralty Office, which said in part:

"Lord and Lady Halifax have crossed the Atlantic in the battleship H. M. S. King George V. Capt. W. R. Patterson, C. V. O., R. N."

The floating fortress, described by the London press at the time of her launching as one of the "largest battleships ever built in this country," mounts 10 14-inch guns in two turrets, 16 8.25-inch guns and many lighter ones. The ship was designed to carry three airplanes and 1,500 officers and men. It has a speed of about 30 knots.

No information was available before the anchorage of the King George V as to what sort of escort the battleship might have.

Halifax to Land Today, London Announces

Doolittle's Son Made Eligible For Flying Cadet Appointment

JAMES H. DOOLITTLE, JR.

The Army said today that James H. Doolittle, jr., son of Maj. James H. Doolittle, famed Army flyer, has been placed on the eligibility list for appointment as a flying cadet. "The thing I want most is to follow in my dad's footsteps," the 20-year-old youth was reported to have said. "I want to be an Army pilot. I think it's every young man's duty to try for an Army flying cadet scholarship."

Young Doolittle plans to leave his studies at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., and apply immediately for enrollment in the nine-month scholarship course if his appointment is granted. His father, now military adviser to the Industrial Aviation Committee in the Detroit region, has given his consent. Applications for 245 scholarships monthly are being taken by Army recruiting officers in Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and Indiana.

700 Navy Reservists To Enter Academy On February 14

Commissions as Ensigns To Be Awarded After 90 Days' Training

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 24.—One week after the Naval Academy sends some 400 new ensigns and marine officers into service, at its "stepped-up" graduation exercises February 7, approximately 700 Naval Reservists will move into the Academy for 90 days' training.

Their goal is the same as that of the lowest plebe—a commission. But, it will take the plebe a lot longer to get his gold braid. The 700—all with at least two years of college education behind them, plus a month's training aboard ship—will take over the southeast wing of Bancroft Hall, will live together and form a battalion separate from the rest of the midshipmen. They will be under command of a naval officer.

One-third of the group will comprise the engineers' school and two-thirds the "deck" school. Regularly enrolled Academy midshipmen study in the morning and drill in the afternoon. The Reserves will reverse the schedule. They will attend classes which will be sandwiched in from 9:30 a. m. to 5:15 p. m. daily.

The curriculum for reservists seeking commissions as engineer officers includes marine engineering, electricity, and seamanship. Prospective deck officers will study ordnance, navigation and seamanship. All of the courses have been set up and approved by the Navy Department instead of the Academy Board of Visitors. Special lectures will be given by Academy personnel and regular Academy professors will give concentrated classroom instruction.

Reservists will enjoy—or otherwise, depending upon how the regular midshipmen regard them—a hybrid existence. They will wear practically the same uniforms as midshipmen, except for three-inch gold band on their sleeves; they may not participate in Academy sports, but will have full privileges in using Academy facilities; in effect, they will have all of the rates and privileges, including liberty, ordinarily given only to first classmen.

On February 14, the day they are due to arrive here, they will be fitted for uniforms and take the oath. Classes will start the following Monday, February 17. A number were weeded out during "battleship trainings" and more are expected to go before the course is completed.

About midway they will be graduated and receive commissions as ensigns in the Naval Reserve and will be given a choice of going on active duty with the fleet or reverting to civilian status subject to call. Most of them are expected to pick active duty.

The course here will be similar to ones now being given at Northwestern University and aboard the U. S. S. Illinois.

tion that the King George V, 35,000 tons, is in commission. It is one of a class of the five largest and most powerful armed battleships in the world.

C. D. Howe, Canadian supply minister and member of the cabinet, were reported to have returned to North America aboard the King George also. Mr. Howe went to London early in December.

The King George V was launched on February 21, 1939.

Word was received from London last April that the King George V and four new sister ships were undergoing trial runs, but the ship had not been mentioned in official dispatches since that time.

Charles H. Hastings, Publisher, Is Dead

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 24.—Charles H. Hastings, 82, president and treasurer of Hastings & Sons Publishing Co., publishers of the Lynn Item, died today after a long illness.

A member of the Associated Press, he had been connected with the Item for 60 years and had been active until several months ago.

Philadelphia Navy Yard To Go on 60-Hour Week

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Because of an apparent shortage of skilled labor, the 23,000 civilian employees at the navy yard will go on a 60-hour week January 27, receiving time-and-a-half overtime wages for all hours worked over 40.

While yard officials completed arrangements for the new working period, 50 structural workers who left their jobs early yesterday on a huge drydock returned to their tasks.

Daniel Young, a representative of the contractors, said the men offered no explanation for the stoppage but that he understood it was caused by a jurisdictional dispute between the steel workers and carpenters' unions. Union officials would not comment.

Work on the drydock, where super-dreadnaughts will be built, was not delayed, Mr. Young said.

High Officers Praise Observers in Aircraft Warning Test

Drum, Woodward and Arnold Describe System As Necessary in War

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Three high-ranking Army, Navy and Air Corps officers today praised test operations of the air defense command's aircraft warning system and described it as the nucleus for a permanent organization of air defense "which we must have."

They were Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the 1st Army; Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commander of the 3d Naval District, and Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Air Corps, all of whom inspected the system's New York information center on the final day of the four-day experimental tests.

Admiral Woodward described the organization—10,000 civilian volunteers have been watching the skies from 700 points—as "the best I have ever seen." Gen. Drum emphasized that the main features must be incorporated permanently and Gen. Arnold said the Air Corps must be trained in air defense "so that the use of this equipment is second nature to them."

It was indicated the next moves in aircraft warning organization would be in the Southeastern coastal region and on the West Coast. Lessons learned from observations in England and from the four-day experiments will form the basis of the permanent air defense.

Questioned about a statement made in Boston yesterday by Maj. Gen. T. A. Terry, commander of the 1st Coast Artillery District, that the Northeast sector was vulnerable to attack, Gen. Drum said, and the others agreed that:

"We wouldn't be spending billions of dollars if we were not vulnerable in some spots."

Meade Anti-Tank Unit Demonstrates Defense

By the Associated Press. FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., Jan. 24.—Junior officers of the 29th Division witnessed a demonstration yesterday of anti-tank defense staged by Company A of the 93d Infantry, under command of Capt. Howard Johnson.

About half of the demonstrating company, Capt. Johnson said, are selectees with less than two months of service. After a drilling exhibition, the officers heard Capt. Johnson lecture on the principal arm of the anti-tank units, the 37-millimeter cannon.

Meanwhile, at Maj. Gen. Milton Record's headquarters, staff officers pored over charts and papers planning the training program the division will follow when it arrives here in February.

Gen. Record has established a school for adjutants under instruction of Maj. Edgar B. Heylman. Regimental and brigade adjutants are assigned there.

United Democrats Ask Beer Monopoly for Montgomery County

Group Also Proposes Pay-as-You-Go Basis For Local Government

The county congress of the United Democratic Organization of Montgomery County last night adopted a legislative program which included extending the county liquor monopoly to include the beer business, construction of an incinerator plant and placing the county on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The program to be presented to the county's delegation to the State Legislature at the present session had been discussed at previous meetings of the congress and provoked little discussion except on the question of the beer monopoly, which was opposed by the delegates from the Bethesda-Chevy Chase areas.

J. Harry Welch, a Bethesda delegate who announced he also was an attorney for the beer dealers, described the proposal to take over the beer business as "un-American" and "undemocratic." He said the county should invade the field of private industry and that beer dealers would be willing to pay a county license fee of $500 each in addition to the $250 State license fee.

Petition Presented. Kenneth Lydgate of Chevy Chase presented a petition which he said bore 1400 signatures opposing the proposal. Their stand was supported by Trial Magistrate James C. Christopher of Bethesda Police Court and Robert Bell and Larchmont delegate James C. Perry, Democratic leader in that section, took no stand on the question.

James W. Gill of Silver Spring, who presented the proposal for the County Liquor Control Board, warned the delegates that unless the beer business was subjected to more stringent regulation the county soon might be faced with complete prohibition. He charged that beer dealers were giving secret rebates, engaging in price cutting and extending unlimited credit in order to get business.

Joseph B. Simpson, jr. of Takoma Park, who seconded the motion, denied taking over the beer distribution in the county would be an invasion of the field of private business, which eight wholesale dealers are now engaged. It has long been recognized that the public interest demands special consideration in handling intoxicating beverages and many States already have taken over the entire field, he said.

After a substitute motion by Mr. Welch to refer the proposal back to the county board of health and compromise was defeated, the proposal carried, 105 to 22. Proponents of the plan have claimed it would raise $100,000 a year for the county.

The pay-as-you-go resolution recommended that no new general obligation bonds be issued for the next fiscal year and indicated that no school bonds would be approved in a clause specifying that all reasonable requests and definitely authenticated needs of children for new schools and additions be made from money available to the county treasurer.

Julius P. Stadler, chairman of the School Committee, said his committee had conferred with members of the Board of Education regarding the school construction program, which recommended $750,000 for buildings and additions in the immediate future, but that it would abide by the Congress' vote on the resolution against issuance of new bonds.

No Recommendation on Building. The resolution concerning the county refuse and garbage-disposal plant recommended that "suitable legislation" be framed to provide modern facilities and to authorize a collection service when deemed advisable. No recommendation was made as to whether the plant should be built and maintained by the county commissioners or the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, but unless the county were to issue bonds for the initial cost it would mean construction by the sanitary commission, which already has authority to issue bonds for that purpose and has built a similar plant for Prince Georges County.

War of Liberation Seen If Tunisia Is Invaded

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 24.—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the "free French" forces, declared last night that if France is invaded by the whole French empire "will re-enter the war of liberation as a bloc if tomorrow the enemy puts his foot on our Tunisia with or without Vichy's consent."

Roosevelt

lend legislation, the President said he felt it better not to comment on any proposed revisions until they had been offered by a congressional committee or had been submitted formally to him.

In the exchange of questions and answers at the conference, the President also was asked if he would make any general comment on interruptions on defense production by strikes, the question citing specifically the Allis-Chalmers tie-up.

See Number Relatively Small. Replying that each strike seems to be a case by itself, with varying circumstances, Mr. Roosevelt added that he felt it very encouraging on the whole that there had been a "relatively small number" of production delays caused by labor difficulties.

In this connection, incidentally, it was pointed out by high administration authorities that the newspapers of the German-Italian-Japanese axis have emphasized and exaggerated the degree to which American defense production has been hampered by labor troubles.

Mr. Roosevelt also commented briefly today on yesterday's proposal of the Council of State Government that work relief administration be turned over to the States and direct relief become a responsibility of the Federal Government. Remark that such a change would turn the present system upside down, the President emphasized that direct relief for unemployables is essentially a home proposition which ought never to be directed from Washington.

Rumania

would be reorganized under his own leadership. A government communique warned that persons who engaged in looting or who fired on military men, public buildings or citizens would be executed on the spot.

State employees who fail to report for work immediately will be discharged, the communique added. Army generals were put in charge of secret police and the Bucharest police took over the gas and electric companies. Exchange of foreign money was forbidden and all public meetings were outlawed. Hundreds of army subofficers were promoted.

This is the first day since Sunday that the din of revolver, rifle, machine gun and artillery fire has not filled the air.

The exact number of dead in three days of ferocious fighting in all parts of the country has not been determined.

Many Bucharest hospitals were full of wounded, however, and partial lists of dead were posted outside.

The situation in the provinces was said to remain much in doubt, especially at such cities as Brasov, Giurgiu, Constanta, Ploesti, Cantina and Craiova, which the Iron Guard announced it had taken over completely.

Army headquarters said, however, that calm rapidly was being restored in all those centers and that soldiers now were in complete control.

A dramatic call for surrender from Vice Premier Sima, signed at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, came to most battling guardsists in the form of a special one-sheet edition of the official Iron Guard paper, which numbers carried through the firing lines to barricaded party members.

In some localities it was impossible to reach rebellious groups who kept up the battle long into the day.

Peak of Fighting Tuesday. The reached Tuesday afternoon and evening. The guard then held the prefecture of police. Solid masses of bareheaded guardsists attacked in surrounding streets. In front of the seven-story building, hundreds of yellow candles were burned on a spot where three Iron Guardsists were killed the day before. In a nearby church services went on constantly for the dead.

On a hill at the edge of the city a giant bell in front of the Orthodox Cathedral, which is tolled only on occasions of national emergency, was pealing constantly. This bell was rung by 20 men.

In another part of the city chiming in the tower of the Iron Guard Church were rung for five minutes every hour, the death of another guardsist was reported. There were few intervals of silence during the entire night. Air raid sirens kept up a constant whine.

Nazis Expected to Take Drastic Rumanian Steps

By the Associated Press. Germany is expected to take swift and drastic action in Rumania, dispatches received yesterday in diplomatic quarters here said, unless the Rumanian government succeeds immediately in restoring order in that turbulent Balkan kingdom.

The German authorities were said to have hinted at two "possible ways" to end the disorders, which threaten production of oil and agricultural products vital to the German war machine:

1. Establishment of a "protectorate" over the entire country which would, in effect, be equivalent to a German army of occupation of the country.

2. Establishment of a Rumanian military dictatorship under the watchful eye of the German military authorities.

In either case, the German military authorities would be in complete control of Rumania.

Rebellion Continues Outside Bucharest

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 24 (AP).—A revolt by dissident Iron Guardsists and other elements against the Rumanian government was reported today to be continuing outside Bucharest, although the official Bulgarian radio said rebels holding the police barracks and city hall in the capital had agreed to end hostilities.

Some border reports estimated the dead throughout the strife-torn and Nazi-dominated kingdom at 2,000 since the outbreak of disorders Tuesday, with total casualties of 6,000, while other dispatches said there were more than 2,000 dead in Bucharest morgues alone, including many Jews taken from their homes and slain along with Iron Guards.

Miss Eleanor Keith Hurt In Fall on Hunt Course

Miss Eleanor Keith, 28, of Campobello, Mass., who was brought to Emergency Hospital yesterday after she was injured in a fall with her horse on the fashionable Middlebury (Vt.) hunt course, was reported recovering today.

Miss Keith was injured internally when her mount, Merrimouth, failed to clear a jump and rolled on her in the fall. She was brought here in a private ambulance for an emergency operation.

The attractive horsewoman, who recently took up her residence near Middleburg for the winter hunt season, was reported "doing nicely" by hospital officials.

Maryland May Make Defense Council Part Of State Setup

Gov. O'Connor Suggests Plan Be Drafted For Legislature

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—Gov. O'Connor has announced that he will consider the possibilities of making the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources a formal part of the State government.

He said, however, he intends to keep it off the State pay roll and expense accounts. It costs the State nothing now.

He has suggested to council members, he explained, that they work up legislation to be presented to this session of the General Assembly. Some other States already have taken this step, he said.

The Governor was in Washington Sunday, conferring with Governors of nearly all the other States and officials entrusted with rearming the Nation. He said he and other Governors were given to understand that the Federal Government expected to co-operate with the States even more closely than in the past.

Points to Authority. "If that's going to be the case," Gov. O'Connor said, "then I believe it might not be a bad idea to make our Defense Council an integral part of the State government, so it can have all the authority it needs in dealing with the Federal Government."

The Governor would not comment on possibilities of a special session of the Legislature arising from defense problems after this session is concluded. But he did point out that Maryland budgets set aside enough money to pay the costs of a special session if one is necessary.

In such a case the Legislature could be convened at any time by the Governor's proclamation.

Senator Dudley G. Roe, Finance Committee chairman, said provisions to grant all penal institution employees merit system protection would be written into the laws.

Mr. Roe announced this decision after Willis R. Jones, Department of Correction director, told the committee that as the law now stands every employee of penal institutions could be dismissed to make way for "political jobholders."

Different View. The Board of Correction, however, he added, has dealt with employees as if they were under the merit system.

Mr. Jones' view of the employees' status differs from that of State Employment Commissioner Harry G. Jones. The commissioner holds employees in the men's prisons at the penitentiary and House of Correction are in the merit system, but that workers at the Jessups Women's Prison are not.

A crowd of building and loan association officials, headed by Representative Sasser, yesterday jammed the Finance Committee room to oppose a tax on such associations, as specified in the new income tax law.

Mr. Sasser said the levy would double the tax on unearned income for thousands of low-income individuals.

Kimble Bill Highlight.

Highlighting a 21-minute session of the Senate yesterday was a measure by Senator Robert B. Kimble, Allegheny County Republican, which would abolish judges' pensions. In a statement concerning the measure, Mr. Kimble argued:

"I do not subscribe to the theory that, because a man happens to be a judge, he is better than any other honest and respectable citizen."

A direct contradiction to testimony given before the Senate Militia Committee Wednesday, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, Maryland National Guard commander, informed Gov. O'Connor he definitely did not have "fears" that the proposed State Guard, a home defense unit, would supplant the National Guard.

Gen. Reckford will testify before the Militia Committee next Wednesday on the Guard bill.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin voiced opposition yesterday to a proposal that a small tag, which renews a permanent license plate each year, be issued at county seats of government.

Favors Bill as Drawn.

He told Gov. O'Connor he favored the State Guard bill as drawn. On Wednesday, Robert H. Archer, Baltimore attorney and former National Guard sergeant, told the committee Gen. Reckford feared a political organization might develop from the State Guard setup and that he had proposed a committee to protect the National Guard's interests in Washington.

Gen. Reckford will testify before the Militia Committee next Wednesday on the Guard bill.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin voiced opposition yesterday to a proposal that a small tag, which renews a permanent license plate each year, be issued at county seats of government.

New French Council Set Up by Petain to Share Responsibility

Provisional Body of 200 Given Power to Advise Chief of State

By the Associated Press.
VICHY, France, Jan. 24.—A new national council of nearly 200 members was created by Chief of State Henri Philippe Petain today to share with him the responsibility of directing the government.
 An announcement by Marshal Petain more than a month ago forecasting formation of the assembly said it would "give advice and assume useful contact between the chief of state and the people."
 The new body will be only provisional until a new constitution is created, it was explained, and while including many members of the old Senate and Chamber of Deputies will not replace these two bodies.

Powers Only Advisory.
 Havas, French news agency, reported that the official journal would publish the new law creating the council and would name its members. They will not be appointed for fixed terms.
 The council will have neither constitutional nor legislative powers. It will be consulted only on questions submitted by Marshal Petain and its decisions will be only "advice" to the chief of state, who need not follow it.

Not only parliamentarians, but more than 40 representatives from agriculture, an "appreciable contingent" from industry, prominent intellectuals and members of liberal professions are to be given membership.

Veterans to Have Place.
 Members of trade unions, skilled workers and city and farm workers also will have a proportionately larger place than in the last elected parliaments. A war veterans' organization also will have members.

A communique said the choice "down to the last detail is the personal work of the marshal" and the council is so selected that it will "represent essential elements of national life."

Most members have more than four children and some have 7, 9 and even 11. This was taken as a "sure guarantee" that the principle of family would be protected.

A. B. C. Board Studies Ariston Grill Case

Members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today were considering whether a case had been made against Mrs. Lillian Keenan, operator of the Ariston Grill in the 2400 block of Eighteenth street, for allegedly permitting the playing of a game of rummy for stakes on the premises the night of December 4.

Charges the game of rummy was played for money were denied by Mrs. Keenan at a hearing before the board yesterday. Policemen N. I. Troup and W. W. Williams testified they spent more than an hour in the establishment and heard the tinkle of coins in a nearby booth where the card game was played.

Six other witnesses claimed no money was paid for the game. Mrs. Keenan said she knew the two men were police officers because "They ordered egg sandwiches and coffee."

'Nothing More Urgent' Than New Courthouse For D. C., Proctor Says

Need for New Building Is Stressed at Meeting Of Jurists and Lawyers

The drive for a new District Court building took on added impetus last night at a meeting attended by representatives of the bench and bar. Emphasis was on the need for a new courthouse, with location occupying a secondary role.

Justice James M. Proctor of District Court, addressing the meeting at the Empire Restaurant, declared that the present courthouse is so lacking in conveniences as to interfere with the efficient administration of justice. "There is nothing more urgent for the people of the District of Columbia," he said, "than a new courthouse."

Justice Proctor said he, as well as other jurists, literally have to fight their way in their robes through the crowds of litigants, lawyers, jurors and witnesses that throng the corridors. He said that if more clerks were added to the personnel, the officials would have to have hanging, swinging platforms from the rafters to accommodate them.

Valuable Records in Corridors.
 Valuable records, which guarantee the land title to every important piece of property in the District, he said, are housed in the basement corridors.

He said conditions that require judges to elbow their way to their courtrooms "drag the robe of a Federal judge in the dust." He spoke of the turmoil and confusion because of the noise; said that the court clerk has an insignificant cubbyhole for an office, wholly out of keeping with the dignity and importance of his position; pointed out that assistant United States attorneys preparing important cases are crowded two and three to a room and have to interview witnesses for trials in congested quarters, and conveniences for jurors and women are lacking.

"These conditions," declared Justice Proctor, "are a disgrace to the City of Washington, besmirching the administration of justice."

Jurists of District Court recommended the courthouse location east of the Supreme Court, he said, because it would bring a new building more rapidly. There might be objection, he felt, to razing the old Pension Office Building because of the need for Government space.

The Bar Association of the District favors the Judiciary Square location. Courts Official Urges Agreement.

Henry P. Chandler, director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, expressed his advocacy of the project, urged Washingtonians to agree on a plan and said that if Congress is to be impressed there must be a united community spirit behind the proposal. He added, "The thing for us to do is to sit down and take counsel and agree on a common plan."

Attorney F. Regis Noel, a former president of the Bar Association and chairman of the organization's Committee on a New Courthouse, presented to Mr. Chandler a book,

DISCUSS COURTHOUSE DRIVE—This group from the District of Columbia Bar Association Committee on New District Courthouse, organized their plans yesterday for a campaign for a new building. published in 1923, entitled, "The Inner Court of Queen Elizabeth."

Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the association, who presided at the meeting, said he favored "a new courthouse large enough to take care of the needs of District Court" in Judiciary Square.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said he believes the city will get a new courthouse more quickly if it is placed in Judiciary Square and that there are poor arrangements on Capitol Hill for such a building. He said it would add to the architectural beauty of the city to tear down the old Pension Office Building.

Walter M. Bastian, a former president of the association; Arch K. Shipe, vice chairman of the Courthouse Committee, and William A. Roberts, who advocated the Judiciary Square site as most convenient.

Mass Housing Program As Defense Plants Urged

By the Associated Press.
 The C. I. O., following up its recent proposal for the mass production of warplanes, suggested yesterday the mass production of prefabricated dwellings for defense workers at new plant sites.

The defense housing program is "lagging far behind schedule," the C. I. O. Housing Committee said in a memorandum dispatched to the Office for Production Management. The methods recommended would be used to augment construction by conventional building techniques. The present defense housing program has operated, the C. I. O. said, "to entrench vested interests of industry and labor with little or no regard for maximum efficiency or fair play for the workers."

The C. I. O. has a union of workers in the construction field rivaling the powerful A. F. of L. Building Trades Union, and contends it has been practically frozen out of defense construction work.

The recommendation to the O. P. M. to break "the defense housing bottleneck" called for direction of a pre-fabricated housing program by a separate agency. It said such a program would provide four principal advantages, listing these as maximum speed, least dislocation of industry and labor, economy, and maximum salvage value.

Response to pre-campaign solicitation for National Symphony Orchestra funds has been encouraging, Walter Bruce Howe, chairman of the 11th annual sustaining fund campaign, told 38 members of the drive organization at a meeting yesterday in his home, 1821 H street N.W.

The preliminary appeal to persons who previously have contributed $25 or more has brought favorable response from about 200 and realized

"about 5 per cent more in dollars and cents than we did last year," Mr. Howe said.

The campaign chairman said the $107,600 goal would not be harder to reach this year than in the past and commented:

"People who have been engaged in similar philanthropic activities in other cities tell me that it has been at least no harder raising the necessary sum this year than before."

1,500 Delegates Due To Attend National Parley for Palestine

Dr. Abba Silver to Open Conference Here Tomorrow Night

More than 1,500 delegates from 44 States are expected to hear Dr. Abba Silver of Cleveland, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, open the National Conference for Palestine tomorrow night at the Willard Hotel.

The conference is regarded by Jews of the United States as one of the most important in two decades because it comes at a time when the Jewish community of 550,000 in Palestine is participating in the "war for democracy" and when millions of homeless Jews in Nazi-dominated countries are seeking permanent homes in Palestine, which has received 280,000 refugees in the last eight years.

The $12,000,000 war emergency campaign of the appeal will be inaugurated at the conference to raise funds for the enlargement of immigration activities and the intensification of the defense of Palestine.

Special Camps Urged To Rehabilitate Men Rejected by Army

Youth Commission Sees Plan as Part of a Health Improvement Program

With the assertion that "an alarming high percentage of young men is being rejected by the selective service boards for physical disabilities," the American Youth Commission suggested today that special camps be established to rehabilitate rejected selectees willing to take part in such a program.

Such camps, said the organization, could be part of a large-scale health program for the physical reconditioning and development of American youth.

The commission, of which Owen D. Young is chairman and Floyd W. Reeves is director, expressed the opinion that draft rejections "merely typify an underlying condition of unsatisfactory health in a large segment of the population."

The commission urged a youth health plan "on a scale never before attempted in this country."

Equally important, said the organization, is a recreational leisure-time program to preserve and improve mental health and morale.

"We dare not postpone such activities for the duration of the emergency," the report said, "because there is no reason to believe that the emergency will be short. On the contrary, it may last for years. The children and youth growing up to adulthood will undoubtedly face a world in which they will need all the preparation that can meanwhile be given."

Surveys conducted by the American Youth Commission, said the report, have disclosed large numbers of youth "soft, underweight and generally lacking in muscular development."

"Most of these deficiencies," it was asserted, "that be traced directly to malnutrition, inadequate or no medical or dental care and the generally bad living conditions to which a substantial part of the population is exposed."

The postwar restoration of Jewish rights and the resettlement of millions of Jews who will be required to find new homes when peace comes will be one of the most important questions to be discussed here.

Guest speakers at the conference will include Federal Security Administrator McNutt, House Majority Leader McCormack and Dr. Bernard Joseph, legal adviser of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Dr. Joseph flew 17,000 miles from Palestine to attend the conference and make a report on the present status of affairs in the Jewish homeland.

Among the Jewish leaders who will address the conference will be Dr. Solomon Goldman of Chicago, national co-chairman of the appeal; Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Jewish national fund; E. I. Kaufmann of Washington, president of the Zionist Organization of America; Louis Lipsky of New York, chairman of the Executive Committee of the appeal; Charles Ross, chairman of the Palestine foundation fund; Charles J. Rosenbloom of Pittsburgh, national treasurer of the appeal; Judge Morris Rothenberg of New York, national co-chairman of the appeal, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, chairman of the Administration Committee.

Other Speakers.
Others who will speak will be Rabbi Philip Bernstein of Rochester, chairman of the New York State appeal; Rabbi Morton Ber- man of Chicago, Representative Koppleman of Connecticut; Rabbi Irving Miller, chairman of the Executive Committee, New York Palestine Appeal; Mrs. David De Sola Pool, president of Hadassah; Leon Gellman, president of Mizrahi Zionist Organization; David Wertheim, secretary of Poale Zion (Labor Zionists); Sylvan Gotshal, prominent New York lawyer, who was recently named executive chairman of the Greater New York campaign; Rabbi Max Shapiro of Miami, Fla.; Rabbi Saul E. White of San Francisco; Sidney Herold of Shreveport, La.; Gustave L. Goldstein of Los Angeles and Joe Weingarten of Houston, Tex.

Special Dispatch to The Star.
LEESBURG, Va., Jan. 24.—Victor B. Harding of Ashburn was re-elected a director of the eastern division and Horace L. Gregg of Hamilton of the western division of the Loudoun County members of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association.

Frank C. Walker, president of the association, and C. F. Bleech, field agent, called upon the members to increase their herds for a greater production of milk to meet the increased consumption in the District and surrounding areas.

Farm Mechanization Rapid in Russia

Russia claims that its farms are rapidly becoming mechanized. A Moscow report says that more than 500,000 tractors, nearly 170,000 harvester combines and 200,000 trucks are operated on the fields of the Soviet. Their total capacity is 27,000,000 horsepower.

Full Necessary Aid

The assertion that we can give "full aid" to England by "methods short of war" has been repeated so often and accepted as a practical program by so many people in this country that a confusion of definition is threatening to obscure the basic realities of our foreign policy.

In any consideration of this matter it is essential to have a clear understanding of what is meant by "full aid" or "all-out assistance" to England. If these terms have any real meaning, they necessarily must imply a degree of assistance which will prevent the defeat of the British and the passage of naval control of the Atlantic to the totalitarian powers.

If this interpretation of "full aid" to England is valid, and The Star believes it is the only tenable one under the circumstances in which we find ourselves, the qualification, "by methods short of war," becomes singularly inappropriate. "Full necessary aid"—that is, all aid necessary to prevent a Hitlerian victory, more clearly states our national policy—and that policy cannot be more narrowly restricted. With our Government, of course, resides the final decision of what aid is necessary.

In the first place, the term "aid short of war" itself is not susceptible of any precise definition. Except for an actual attack by our armed forces on Germany or Italy, almost anything that we do to aid England might or might not be an act of war. Hitler, for instance, might have elected to treat the recent transfer of fifty destroyers as a warlike act, but it did not suit his purposes to do so.

With the great majority of Americans—including many of those who oppose the administration on this or that detail—solidly behind the program of aiding England, it may be assumed that this is our settled policy and that it will not be abandoned if it is at all possible for us to see it through. And it is an equally safe assumption that this majority contemplates continued and effective aid; that public opinion in this country would strongly oppose any curtailment of assistance to the British merely because such aid was reaching effective proportions and was therefore becoming offensive to Hitler.

The vital interests of the United States, both now and for many years to come, make it necessary, as the President has said, for us to become the great arsenal of the embattled democracies. And it follows as a necessary corollary that the weapons produced in this arsenal must reach those for whom they are being made. Otherwise, it is useless to talk of giving "full aid" to England, for weapons which never reach the field of battle are of no assistance whatsoever.

Election Costs

The report of the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee showing disbursements of approximately $21,000,000 by the two major parties in the recent election is proof that the sky still is the limit so far as political expenditures are concerned, in spite of the Hatch Act. The Republicans obviously were not troubled by the new law, their record-breaking outlay of nearly $15,000,000 being more than $700,000 above the 1936 figure—the previous all-time high. The Democrats spent $6,000,000, a sum $3,000,000 less than the cost of the campaign four years ago, but whether this reduction was in deference to the reform legislation is open to question.

Further, the totals reported by the Senate committee are subject to revision upward, as they include only the returns from national and State committees and organizations, and make no allowance for the funds handled by local, county or similar groups, which no doubt also run into the millions.

The Bureau of Standards

The United States Bureau of Standards is one of the great scientific institutions of the world. There is hardly a family in America which does not benefit directly by its fundamental researches in such fields as fabrics, building materials, gasoline, automobiles and by its simplified practice standards which cheapen prices and go far to make parts interchangeable.

In a national emergency like the present its importance increases tremendously. It seems to be entering one of its periods of great expansion, such as it experienced during the last war, when few institutions contributed more to the ultimate victory. The purchase of the Pembroke Park estate, adjoining the present site of the bureau, and the plans for a new $600,000 laboratory to be erected in the near future, are striking evidences of this new growth.

Its work, for the most part, is extremely practical and deals with things which enter the everyday lives of everybody. But under the surface of these familiar things lie some of the most carefully hidden secrets of nature, into which the bureau physicists and chemists continually are delving. Out of these researches come new tools, both for ordinary living and for war.

Tobruk—and Beyond

The capture of Tobruk after a brief siege and an even briefer assault is another bright feather in the cap of General Wavell and his composite imperial army. As at the taking of Bardia, there was the same perfect co-ordination of British land, air and sea forces. Italian resistance was literally smothered by this British type of blitzkrieg. Some 20,000 prisoners and vast quantities of war materials were thereby gained by the attackers, who report their own losses at the almost incredibly small number of 500 casualties.

This latest chapter in an amazing campaign inevitably suggests speculation as to how much farther the British intend to go in their conquest of Italy's North African colony. It must not be forgotten that when they made their first attack on the Italian vanguard at Sidi Barrani on December 9, the operation was frankly an experiment. The British forces were outnumbered and had orders to retire if the attack was unsuccessful. But the pitiful showing made by the Italians disclosed an all-around weakness which converted a trial reconnaissance into a major operation. Like the good soldier he has proved himself to be, General Wavell determined to keep the offensive and give a disorganized enemy no rest. Thus he has gone from victory to victory, and the end is presumably not yet. Already British motor units are reported well on their way to Derna, some 100 miles further west, while beyond Derna lies the city of Benghazi, the capital of Eastern Libya. Both these key points may be considered legitimate objectives for the British invaders and their capture is rendered much easier by the fall of Tobruk, which possesses the best deep-water harbor on the entire Libyan coast. Thereby the British have acquired a new base, where reinforcements and supplies can be landed without the necessity of a long overland haul which they have hitherto been obliged to make.

barren and almost waterless country, where the desert touches the sea. Not unless the British can successfully negotiate that forbidding strip will they approach the better region of Western Libya, where stands the chief Italian stronghold, the city of Tripoli. Whether such a feat will be attempted even by deserting General Wavell may be doubted. But, in any case, the complete conquest of Eastern Libya would leave him immune to further Italian counterattack and might permit him to divert his forces to other fields. It should be remembered that the Libyan campaign is only part of a much larger strategic whole which covers the entire Mediterranean basin.

Colonel Lindbergh

At the outset of his testimony yesterday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Colonel Charles Lindbergh said: "I understand that I have been asked to appear before this committee to discuss the effect of aviation upon America's position in the war." He then proceeded, in a prepared statement, to give his personal views on that technical subject. As a famous pilot, albeit a less active one today than he was ten years ago, Colonel Lindbergh is well qualified to discuss aviation. He was entitled to receive, and he did receive, a respectful hearing from the committee and a roomful of spectators. Although some of his opinions as to the defense needs of the United States run counter to the consensus of veteran military and naval experts who have made special studies of the subject, Colonel Lindbergh's ideas are nonetheless interesting. He feels satisfied that 10,000 planes—not 50,000 as contemplated under our air expansion program—are enough to protect the country from invasion. The possibilities of successful invasion of the Western Hemisphere are quite remote, anyway, he believes. He scoffs at suggestions of aerial attacks by way of Greenland or Alaska. He favors a ring of air bases around the Northern Hemisphere, as a safety measure.

All of this testimony would have been entirely relevant at a committee hearing on air power. But Colonel Lindbergh was not testifying before the House Military or Naval Affairs Committee. He was testifying before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, which presumably was holding a hearing on the administration's lease-lend plan for aiding our first line of defense, England. Colonel Lindbergh was distinctly at a disadvantage when committee questions caused him to sidle from his favorite field of aviation—where he is thoroughly at home—into fields which he is fitted neither by training nor experience to explore. The committee led him into realms of international power politics and of world economics; and, although the witness laid no claim to expertise in such broad and complex spheres of discussion, he evidenced typical Lindbergh intrepidity in meeting the challenge.

Thus, Colonel Lindbergh vouchsafed an assertion that the present war in Europe could have been averted if the United States had served notice beforehand on England and France that we would not supply them with arms—forgetting that we had served such notice in the isolationist-inspired embargo clause of the Neutrality Act. He envisioned a negotiated peace "based on realities"—falling to consider that the realities of such a peace at this moment include prospects of another Munich, of more broken promises by conquest-mad dictators, of political, social and economic domination of the world by a totalitarian triumvirate inflamed with militarism.

The Lone Eagle conceded that he was dealing with questions on which he was not an expert when asked by committee members to steer his course yesterday from aviation to foreign affairs. Consequently, it cannot be said that his latest venture has contributed substantially to the fund of knowledge which the committee must have to reach an ultimate decision with respect to the all-important lease-lend bill.

It's an Ill Wind

As the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers' rumpus goes into its blankth week of total war, several interesting facts emerge. As in other wars, the neutrals, in this case the radio public, suffer most. Sponsors probably come next, being deprived of opportunity to couple their messages with snappy new songs which, alas, cannot even be bootlegged across the ether without instantaneous detection. The actual belligerents, composers and publishers on the offensive and broadcasters on the defensive, also undoubtedly suffer.

This war, however, has been a tremendous boon to songs of yore which hitherto had one foot in the grave and the other one on the way. Old Black Joe's head, in spite of what he says, is not really bending low; the paralysis of boogie woogie has given a new strength to Joe's cranium and it is now held proud and high. That famous locomotive, Old 97, has been taken from the junk pile and put in order again for use on the air. Susanna has taken a new lease on life and still listens to the banjo on somebody's knee. Polly Wolly Doodle is no longer an old hag; she has been rejuvenated. But perhaps the most spectacular turning back of time in its flight has come to Jeanie, who got a real break. Although she must be an old lady by now, no one would ever guess it; she still has that same light brown hair, and plenty of publicity agents to mention it.

Says Italy's Plight Is Tragic

Fascist Defeats Regarded As Results of Failures Of Mussolini

By Gaetano Salvemini.

When things go right, everybody takes the credit. When things go wrong, those who are responsible begin to quarrel and ask who was the guilty one. This is the significance of the shake-up that took place last December among Italy's military chiefs. The chief of all Italian armed forces, Marshal Badoglio, the governor of the Dodecanese Islands, Count de Vecchi, and the chief of staff of the navy resigned. De Vecchi has always been considered more loyal to the King than to Fascism; he is one of the King's men.

Did these men really resign? It is an open secret in Italy that when he wants to get rid of some high official, Mussolini first announces through the papers that the victim has resigned and then sends the letter of resignation for signature to the victim. It is true that an official communique was issued on December 9, after Badoglio's resignation, to the effect that Mussolini had received Marshal Badoglio and engaged him in a cordial conversation. But this also may be one of Mussolini's well-known mystifications. The news may not be true. It is true, however, that Badoglio could do nothing to counteract it. No paper would publish his statement.

Be that as it may, another feature of the recent shake-up deserves particular attention. The resignations and the appointments of successors were announced with the formula: "By Royal decree previously had been announced only after they were actually signed by the King. In December, 1940, for the first time the public officially was notified that the King would sign royal decrees, not before, but after, they had been enacted. In short, the King was reduced, not only de facto but also de jure, to the position of a rubber stamp. Resignations and new appointments had taken place over his head. As a result of the unpleasant military situation and of the restlessness that is spreading throughout the country we may surmise that the military chiefs have begun to wonder whether the Mussolini perchance has not become the wrong horse on the defeat at Sidi Barrani on the frontier between Egypt and Libya is a further proof of the fact that recriminations between Mussolini and the highest military chiefs have become too bitter to be kept secret.

In his report Graziani maintained that the British attack of December 9 did not take him unaware. He did not explain how an attack that he had foreseen was so instantaneous and successful that the British bagged 38,000 prisoners, of whom 25,000 were Italians. It is obvious that Graziani wanted to suggest that the responsibility for the disaster must be borne by those who were on the spot and did not watch the movements of the enemy as they should have done.

So far, Graziani was criticizing his subordinates. But he blamed Mussolini as well. When he stated that he was unable to make further progress on the Egyptian frontier owing to the lack of transportation, Graziani wanted to make clear the fact that the government in Rome, that is Mussolini, left him in the lurch instead of supplying him with all means necessary for the advance.

In the case of the failure of the army in Greece, the military chiefs insisted that they were not responsible. But one of Mussolini's henchmen in Italian journalism, Signor Farinacci, denied this and asked what they had done with the nine billion dollars Mussolini had given them with which to prepare the war.

Signor Farinacci forgot that the highest military chief in Italy is Mussolini. The Duce has been for many years Minister of War. He has chosen the other military chiefs. He has concentrated in his own hands all civil and military powers. He cannot now disclaim responsibility for what is happening either in the military or in the civil sphere.

Future events are unpredictable. The future is sown with seeds of infinite possibilities. After things have happened, historians find out why they happened and why they had to happen in that way. But before they happen, our forecasts are but guesses.

The only statement we safely can make is that in the quarrels between Mussolini and the military chiefs there may be the seeds of important developments. The King may be adopted by the military chiefs to infuse a more virile attitude toward Mussolini.

The problem, however, which confronts the military leaders and the King cannot readily be solved. A dictator like Hitler or Mussolini cannot be dismissed and returned to private life like the president of a democratic republic. On the other hand a military conspiracy against Mussolini and a military coup d'etat against the Fascist party could take place only if the army chiefs took the initiative. Will they? Hitler is at the Brenner Pass. And German agents control the most important centers of Italian life. On the day the Italian government wavered in its loyalty to the German alliance, Hitler would march on Venice and Milan without further ado. But meanwhile, Hitler is interested in stiffening Italian resistance as much as he can by sending Mussolini all kinds of military help so far as it is needed and as long as Germany is able to send it. Hence my guess is that the Italian Army chiefs will stick to Hitler, and therefore to Mussolini, as long as they can, in order to get German help and to avoid German invasion. It is natural for the Italian military leaders to want to hold out as long as Hitler does. In so doing they will suffer only one disaster, British victory at sea, and not two disasters at the same time: British victory at sea and German invasion by land. The situation of the Italians is tragic. If Hitler wins the war, the Fascists will grab territories here and there, but Italian national independence will collapse under a German protectorate. If Italians want to be rid of Germany, they must pray for England's victory. Obviously a lesser evil is England's victory, on the condition that Italy does not collapse before Germany. A greater

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"SILVER SPRING, Md. "Dear Sir: "Last year I wrote to you describing some birds which were newcomers to my feeding station, and asking you if you could tell me what they were. "You answered very promptly, identifying them as fox sparrows.

"I note from your column, that a great many people seem to have trouble feeding the birds, so I thought I would give you my solution to the problem. "I simply cut the suet into very small pieces and put it right in the feeder with the seed. I buy baby scratch feed, and mix it with sunflower seed which I raise here on my farm.

"You would be surprised to see how quickly the birds come to the feeder, pick up a piece of suet and fly away with it. It is gone in no time. I put suet in the feeder two or three times every day.

"And, speaking of feeders—do you know that those large round wooden cheese boxes make very attractive feeders? "I use the top and bottom of the box for the feeder, leaving a small portion of the side, just enough to keep the rain or snow from blowing in and getting the seeds wet.

"I cut the sides down, of course, so that the open space where the birds fly in to eat measures about 7 to 8 inches (top from the bottom). "I used three wooden pegs to hold up the top, then I covered the top with roofing paper. Just a little extra work, but all the neighbors admire it, and the birds surely like it.

"Very truly yours, P. T." "There are many everyday containers which make excellent bird feeding stations, when combined with a little work and some ingenuity. Mostly they cost very little. Cigar boxes and cheese boxes are two of the best. The former is easily transformed into a neat window-sill feeder, or one to place on top of a post, or hang in a tree.

Cedar stands up very well in the open, even if it is in thin pieces. The back of the box can be raised and held in position by two narrow strips of wood, forming a back. Then a thin piece of wood can be used as a roof, held up by two front posts. Almost any bits of wood can be used in these changes.

It is best to place such a feeding station with the back to the west or north. Usually a position with the back to the northwest is best. This keeps off the prevailing winter snows and winds, and many of the rains. By facing the feeder south, that is, with the open part south or southeast, the birds are in such sunshine as may be present.

The round cheese box makes a most attractive feeder, when fixed up a bit, as suggested by our correspondent. The shape is unusual, to begin with, and the body will hold more seed, and

Letters to the Editor

Praises President Roosevelt And Prays for His Health. To the Editor of The Star: "Those who listened to the inaugural address of President Roosevelt could not have failed to glimpse the sincerity and integrity within his heart.

As he stood with undaunted courage and pledged himself for the third time to the highest service of his country, the desire of the American people was fulfilled. This unprecedented event may never be repeated in American history. As we enter the next four years with Mr. Roosevelt still at the throttle, I share with thousands of other Americans the confidence that he will give his very best to his fellow men in the future as he has in the past.

We cannot change the things others have done or undo the things we have done ourselves, but we can ever keep alive in our hearts the fire of hope—that spiritual fire that has warmed and bolstered the courage of men since the beginning of time. May God bless our gallant President with good health and vigor and guide him over the safest course in the years that lie ahead, so that we may achieve the spiritual rebirth of democracy in America. MRS. JAMES ALFRED ALLEN. Woodbridge, Va.

Asks If Soldiers Are to Be Denied Opinion. To the Editor of The Star: "It is encouraging to know that one man at least is able to think clearly and speak out in real common sense. I refer to Joseph Kennedy.

All this argument and red tape about the lend-lease bill makes the average citizen wonder what it is, anyway, that President Roosevelt can do that Congress can't. Why is it necessary to give him a free hand, if he does not want to do anything that Congress would not stand for? The boys who would have to fight, if war comes, have no way of expressing their opinion except through Congress, and now we propose to take this privilege from them. Is that the idea? MRS. W. S. JONES.

Objects to Government Clerks Driving Own Cars to Work. To the Editor of The Star: "I have visited most of our large cities and I think you have more reckless driving in Washington than I have observed elsewhere.

There is a lack of lights and traffic policemen and the way automobile drivers dash around is terrifying. I know most people praise the layout of streets in Washington, but this layout always has seemed to me the worst that the human mind could conceive. And why is it that each Government employe is permitted to drive his or her own car to work? I sometimes wonder if some of them do not have to walk as far from their parked cars to their offices as they would have to walk from trolley cars or buses.

Send a man out any weekday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and let him observe the Government employes jumping into their cars like madmen and dashing in evil would be English victory coupled with German invasion. And the greatest evil of all would be a German victory pure and simple. New York City.

Haskin's Answers To Questions

Reeves Will Bans Sale Of Downtown Property To Rush $313,500,000 Ship Bill to Vote

Disposal Is Allowed 21 Years After Death Of Last Grandchild

Immediate Construction Of 200 Cargo Vessels Is Provided For

By the Associated Press. House leaders, cutting parliamentary red tape, sought speedy passage today of an emergency resolution to provide $313,500,000 for immediate construction of 200 cargo ships...

This was disclosed today when a petition for the probate of Mr. Reeves' will was filed in District Court. The will revealed that his property at 1209 F street N.W. is appraised at $229,338 and that at 1208 G street N.W. at $94,271.

In addition to these downtown holdings, Mr. Reeves left property at 1859 Wyoming avenue N.W. appraised at $17,000, real estate in Front Royal, Va., with an assessed value of $500, as well as personal property valued at $49,391.

Mr. Reeves left his business to his son, Algernon P. Reeves, who survives him here, and in addition bequeathed to him 200 shares of stock in the Washington American League Baseball Club.

The testator expressed a desire for his son and grandson to continue the business.

Japan Holds U. S. Goods In Haiphong Warehouse. HANOI, French Indo-China, Jan. 24 (AP)—Japanese troops surrounded a Haiphong warehouse today and prevented removal by French officials of nine truckloads of American goods...

President Roosevelt has urged approval of the program with "the least possible delay." Including the cost of new facilities to permit construction of the ships without interference with naval and other merchant shipbuilding, the program will cost a total of $350,000,000.

The new ships, described as a "No. 1 urgency" by Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission which will supervise their construction...

Meanwhile, a communique reported more fighting yesterday with Thailand troops advancing to the west bank of the Mekong River in the Bassac district, which is practically undefended.

TOKIO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Koh Ishii, director of the Japanese Board of Information, declined today to confirm or deny reports that Japan had offered to mediate the Thailand-French Indo-China difficulties...

BANGKOK, Thailand, Jan. 24 (AP)—The high command announced today that the Thailand (Siamese) air force had carried out widespread air raids on the Cambodia border area of French Indo-China...

Meanwhile, the Maritime Commission announced sale of 12 cargo vessels from its laid-up fleet to British shipping interests.

The British will pay $2,779,600 for the 12 vessels whose deadweight tonnage totals 107,067.

The British had bid $4,611,650 for 20 ships, but this was rejected. Yesterday's sale increased to 49 the number of ships the commission has sold to the British from its laid-up fleet.

In addition to the commission's sales, it has authorized the sale to the British by private American operators of 146 ships of all types since the outbreak of the war.

The commission yesterday approved applications for the transfer to British registry of three American-owned vessels.

Five of the vessels on which the British submitted bids were sold to the United States Lines Co. of New York City for $1,328,384.

The 12 vessels sold to J. H. Winchester & Co., Inc., of New York City, acting as agent for British interests, together with present locations, follow:

Artemis, Solomons, Md.; Bellhaven, Berkeley, Calif.; Gumbah, Highgate, Montreal, Quebec, Canada; Western City, all laid up in the James River in Virginia, and the Invincible, laid up at New Orleans.

The following vessels, all laid up in the James River, were sold to the United States Lines: Bakersfield, Egremont, Jacob Rust, West Pocasset and West Campgaw.

France-Siam agreement of 1902 against that part of Siamese territory around Chantabour, southeast of Bangkok, then occupied by France.

Thailand also claims 40 islands in the Mekong River. Following negotiations of Roger Garreau with the Thai government, these have already been ceded.

French official circles are not united that the acceptance of Japanese mediation does not necessarily imply the acceptance of territorial concessions.

To what distance the "yellow confraternity" will go to obtain its aims remains to be seen, but there is no doubt that Thailanders will be given at least partial satisfaction.

As matters stand at this writing the French Ambassador to Tokio, Charles Arsene-Henry is reported negotiating toward bringing an end to Indo-China-Thai fighting.

Reich Acted to Bar Intervention by U. S. VICHY, France, Jan. 24 (AP)—Marshal Petain's government announced last night it had accepted the offer of Japan to mediate in the four months' Asiatic border conflict...

An authoritative source said that back of Vichy's readiness to accept Tokyo's good offices was a German "suggestion" which sprang from a desire to exclude any possibility of United States intervention.

air raids on the Cambodia border area of French Indo-China in what it said was retaliation against new French air attacks on Thai towns. Highway and railroad junctions, military buildings, oil depots and rail terminals in Mongkolburi were said to have been set afire and heavily damaged.

On land, the high command said its forces had ripped down the French flag over the border town of Champassak, hoisted the Thai flag and "liberated the population."

After an intense exchange of fire across the Mekong River, the war bulletin said, the French attempted to land in the Nang Hai region from canoes but were driven back.

Tin and rubber production in Malaya are at near maximum levels. Cabinet Information Bureau announced today.

The Vichy government previously accepted Japan's offer to mediate the 4-month-old war.

Hilton School Pupils Broadcast on Star's Science Series

Fortified With Cough Drops, 7 Sixth-Graders Discuss Astronomy

Hilton School children clustered around portable radios to hear their sixth-grade school mates broadcast yesterday on The Star's "Science Everywhere" program from Station WMAL. Fortified with cough drops "recommended for speakers and singers," seven sixth-graders who have been studying astronomy this month discussed their discoveries with their teacher, Miss Elizabeth Stein.

The broadcast was part of their study of radio as a means of communication. Stephen Nagy, president of the National Capital Amateur Astronomers Association, also spoke and invited the children to lectures sponsored by the association the first Saturday of every month at the National Museum, and at Langley School every Monday night. The constellation gazers who spoke yesterday included Lloyd Crouse, Walter Steele, 12 of 321 Maryland avenue N.E.; Keith Shille, 11, of 310 East Capitol street; Harold Hagen, 12 of 120 C street N.E.; Mary Goldhardt, 11 of 22 Eighth street N.E.; Doris Myers, 12 of 710 East Capitol street, and Catherine Cunningham, 11 of Ninth street S.E.

Eire Stores Refuse Sales to Non-Residents

When 600 women went from Belfast, Northern Ireland, to Dundalk, Eire, on an excursion train and tried to buy butter, sugar or tea, they obtained nothing but stern refusals. Civic guards had visited every grocery in the city and informed the owners that if they supplied any of the three articles to non-residents of Eire they would be prosecuted.

Three Who Banded Rockefeller's Name Held in $7,000 Fraud

Trio Accused of Forging $200,005,000 in Checks To Create Impression

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Three men accused of forging the signature of John D. Rockefeller, jr., to three checks totaling $200,005,000 and bandying about other big names to create impressions have been charged with grand larceny in an alleged $7,000 fleeing of two Fifth avenue merchants. Assistant District Attorney Harris Steinberg said today the men—Moses M. Gans, 57; Jerome Koplik, 39 and Jean Muenzer, 35 all of New York—obtained the money from the two business men in fantastic schemes and told their victims not to become too insistent upon details because "if you ask too much, John D. will get sore and won't let you in on it."

"Christmas present" from the philanthropist. Another deal, Steinberg said, involved the sale of the "picture box corp." an imaginary concern, and the victims were promised 900 per cent profits on their investments. Sidney Lisner, a jeweler, lost $5,000 in the schemes and Theodore Osmansky, cigar store owner, $2,000, according to Steinberg.

Income Tax Benefits Two Nearby Counties

Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties were among those receiving increased benefits when the State income tax replaced the old securities tax, according to a compilation for the Maryland Senate Finance Committee. The State keeps 75 per cent of the income tax collections and returns to each subdivision 25 per cent of the amount collected within its boundaries. Under a pending tax bill this division would be continued. Montgomery received $65,169 and Prince Georges $8,275 under the securities tax as compared with $155,332 and $38,838, respectively, under the income levy.

Dan Tracy Declares New Deal Labor Laws Won't Be Repealed

Assistant Secretary Of Labor Warns Of "Employers' Lobby"

Warning that representatives of "employers" were lobbying in Washington against progressive labor legislation, Assistant Secretary of Labor Dan W. Tracy, yesterday expressed the conviction that all laws for the protection of organized labor put on the statute books during the last seven and a half years would remain law. In Congress, he said, there were still some "old reactionaries, and some new ones," and the speaker predicted that Congress would continue to bear "watching." He urged representatives of labor to be on the alert against any attempts to repeal progressive legislation. Mr. Tracy spoke at the regular monthly luncheon meeting of the FAMOUS FULLER BROOM. business agents of the Central Labor Union, local affiliate of the American Federation of Labor at the Mayflower Hotel. John B. Colpoys, United States marshal for the District, concurred in Mr. Tracy's prediction, with the added reassurance, however, that so long as President Roosevelt was Chief Executive "we have no fear that progressive legislation will be repealed, or neglected." Mr. Colpoys characterized President Roosevelt as "the best business agent organized labor ever had."

Others who spoke: Edwin Jones, director of the District of Columbia Employment Service; Victor Saad, director of the District of Columbia Social Security Board; John A. Marshall, director of the District of Columbia Unemployment Compensation Board; Howard T. Colvin of the Conciliation Service, Department of Labor, and Fred Walker, editor of the Trades Unionist, who is a member of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Board. Presiding officer was J. Raymond Humphrey, chairman of the Executive Board of the Washington Building Trades' Council.

Fort Meade Job's End Seen as Relief Problem

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Jan. 24.—Maryland may face a relief problem when the construction program at Fort George G. Meade is finished and the 16,000 laborers and carpenters employed there are released from their jobs. This possibility was foreseen yesterday by J. Milton Patterson, State welfare director, who expressed fear some of these men could not qualify later for factory jobs. "A great many of these people are marginal workers," Mr. Patterson said, "and I am afraid that when they are laid off they will drift around for a while and eventually become relief problems."

Chinese Offensive As Result of U. S. Aid Is Forecast

Dr. Soong Cites Strength Of Army of 2,500,000 At New York Dinner

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—China, heartened by President Roosevelt's recent announcement of a $100,000,000 Chinese aid program, may take the offensive soon in her three-year-old war with Japan, according to Dr. T. V. Soong, China's former finance minister.

"The Chinese Army," he said last night at a dinner of the China Society of America, "is a rugged, redoubtable force of 2,500,000 regulars, supported by vast numbers of guerrillas. Although China has lost over 2,000,000 soldiers in the war, by all accounts she has today an infinitely better organized and more experienced army than at the beginning of the war.

"With the Japanese Army strung out over a very wide area, demoralized and discouraged by a war that has no end, a determined offensive campaign could have far-reaching results.

Dr. Soong, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bank of China, said all hope of a negotiated peace had disappeared when Japan allied herself with the axis powers.

"Peace now," he said, "would only be a temporary armistice, with all the advantage accruing to Japan; and, as the Sino-Japanese conflict is a part of the general struggle, enduring peace can come only as part of a general world settlement."

Given "Renewed Confidence."

President Roosevelt's announcement of aid, Dr. Soong said, gave the Chinese "renewed confidence" in ultimate victory and helped greatly to solve their two major problems: Lack of money and lack of planes.

China, he emphasized, will continue to think of America as her ally, whether America enters the general struggle or not.

China, he promised, will continue holding your ramparts in the Pacific and will co-operate with the United States in keeping the Pacific area safe for your children and your children's children.

Shoe Lace Nearly Drags Man To Death in Huge Grain Tank

By the Associated Press. MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—Dave Severson likes to lace his shoes up tight. Yesterday he'd have laughed if anyone had told him that might kill him. But today—

Dave, working in a grain elevator, climbed into a bin to see if the grain were flowing smoothly through a floor chute to the big storage tank below. Suddenly his face hardened. He was caught in the undertow. If he went through the chute, it was death.

Holding his shovel against one side of the chute he checked his slide. A fellow-workman yelled for help. Others came bringing boards to build a dam about the struggling man's body.

Still the grain flowed down from the sides of the great bin. Now it was up to Severson's neck. Like mad the men shoveled. They tied a rope around Severson's chest but they could not budge him. His right foot was stuck fast.

Firemen came with tarpaulin to reinforce the boards and tied more ropes about Severson's chest. They pulled and yanked. The dust of the grain stirred up by the shovelers was almost unbearable.

Nearly an hour passed. Back and forth, like a great stake, the men jerked Severson. Suddenly he tore free.

All the doctors could find wrong was a strained right leg. Cheap enough, thought Dave as he looked at his shoe, reflected that a tight lace might really kill a man.

If he didn't, they were going to get him."

Carey, also a former N. M. U. official, was beaten and shot here in September, 1939.

Mr. McCuiston was arrested by Washington police October 31, 1939, as he stepped from the witness chair after several appearances before the Dies Committee. Held here on request of New Orleans authorities, he successfully fought extradition on two occasions, and was released. Later he was arrested in Warsaw, Ind.

In his testimony before the Dies Committee, he assailed the National Maritime Union as an outgrowth of Communist-inspired attempts to get control of the American marine industry. Mrs. Crawford also testified and told the committee that Mr. Curran, the N. M. U. president,

William McCuiston Acquitted in Slaying in New Orleans

Former Maritime Union Official Was Arrested Here in 1939

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24.—William C. McCuiston, former official of the National Maritime Union, was acquitted by a jury last night of charges of murder in the slaying of Philip Carey, 27, here September 17, 1939.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Dolly Crawford, Mr. McCuiston's mother, had testified that in 1938 Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, had threatened "to get" her son.

"Curran knew my son on his return from Spain was going to fight against Communist domination of the Maritime Union," Mrs. Crawford testified. "He said it would be well if he kept his mouth shut and that had once remarked to her that "Communists could take over the Government overnight, stop every ship from sailing and tie up railroads."

After Mr. McCuiston's arrest here, Representative Starnes, Democrat, of Alabama, member of the Dies Committee, charged that "there has been a patent effort to discredit the witness and the details are sordid. . . . The whole thing not only smells to high heaven, but it stinks."

Argentine Radicals Urge Return of Ill President

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24.—The powerful Radical bloc of Congress yesterday asked ailing President Roberto Ortiz to come out of retirement in a manifesto charging Acting President Ramon Castillo with failure to propose legislation to solve war-born economic problems.

The statement also said Castillo had discontinued since Ortiz's retirement last July policies designed "to give back to the people the full enjoyment of its sovereignty."

The Radical party, with 73 Deputies, is the largest single group in the chamber, but holds only a minority in the overwhelmingly Conservative Senate.

Castillo challenged the Radicals to prove he discontinued policies started by Ortiz, with whom he conferred yesterday after appearance of the manifesto.

Astor

German planes and told one and all that it was useless for Britain to try to equal their force. He was also able to describe some very impressive Potemkin tours which Hermann Goering had been good enough to arrange for him in order to show him the power of the German aircraft industry.

"He seemed to be fascinated by German efficiency," one of his friends declared today.

Serious people here are not disturbed by the nature of Col. Lindbergh's testimony because it appears to them to be so fantastic as to defeat itself.

His statement that the Germans were producing 20,000 planes a year in 1938 surprised them; it is now generally agreed that the total strength of the German air force at the time of Munich was approximately 3,300. His opinion that the United States and Britain could not defeat Germany is at variance with that of every other non-German military expert in Europe. So were most of the other opinions which he produced for the benefit of the Congressmen.

For the sake of the record, it may be noted that nobody in England, which boasts of several thousand military people who know more about British prospects in this war than Col. Lindbergh, has the slightest doubt that Britain and the United States together would be able to defeat Germany, from either without or within, by the end of 1942.

Col. Lindbergh's general attitude toward Britain surprises his British former friends because he always gave the impression of enjoying himself here. The shy boy who impressed the world by his modesty when he arrived in Paris, had become something short of an accomplished socialite by the time he attended a small, select royal ball at Buckingham Palace during his last visit. When he started telling British big shots how bad the Russian air force was and how invincible the Germans were, he suddenly recovered from the muteness which characterized his dealings with ordinary reporters. His very eloquence made him convincing.

One thing which people are willing to grant in favor of Col. Lindbergh is the fact that he offered the British government his services as adviser on air affairs. Either because of his political slant or for other reasons, his offer was not accepted.

War Puts Reich Families on Their Mettle

Typical Day of German Craftsman's Wife Shows How Women Are Taking Their Place in Conflict

By ANGUS THUERMER.
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—War's hampering grip is felt in all phases of life these days, but especially stern is the lot of the wife of the small craftsman.

Germany's pride—the master craftsman, be he optical worker, tool expert, or a cabinetmaker—is a man of self-respect.

The war is putting him and his family on their mettle. It's not just a matter of doing without French champagne or storing the car away, as it is with wealthier fellow-citizens.

With him it gets down to brass tacks and pennings.

Let's visit Frau B's home.

Frau B, a genuine Berliner—meaning she was born somewhere else—came to Berlin at the age of 16 on the death of her father, and eight years ago, when she was 23, married a young carpenter.

For a while they lived on the outskirts of town, but moved into the city to save commuting time.

Frau B gave up working, and in 1937 a second child was born. Last year, however, wanting to help out the family income, she went back to work at her former job in the maling department of a chemical factory. Her husband was drafted last April. Since then she has kept going alone.

Stops at Kindergarten.

In the evening she leaves the factory, stops at the kindergarten run by the Nazi welfare organization and picks up the little son she left there in the morning on the way to work.

Continuing home, she stops at the milk shop and gets a pint in a sauceman she left early in the morning.

At the meat market she asks the butcher to save her some hamburger for the next day, then has the baker snip off 500 grams worth of bread on her ration card in exchange for a loaf.

It's a five-minute additional walk home. Through the great front door over a dark court we go into a rear wing, up to the fifth floor.

The apartment consists of a 25-square-foot vestibule, a kitchen 8 by 12, a living-sleeping room 12 by 15. Two grips stand in the entry way, one containing the family's papers and the other some pieces of table silver, along with clothes ready to be taken down into the cellar in case of an air-raid alarm.

The walls of the kitchen are painted bright blue. At the left of the door stands a coal range with two cooking holes, and near it a gas ring.

Daughter Sleeps on Sofa.

In the bedroom, papered in yellow, hangs a picture of Frau B and her husband taken at their wedding before a justice of the peace.

There are two hickory beds, a crib and a sofa, on which her 8-year-old daughter sleeps.

There is a round table in the center of the room. At one side

there is a large clothes closet, behind which is stowed a sewing machine and a vacuum cleaner. The room is heated by a high porcelain stove with decorated tiles.

As Frau B arrives home the Nazi block leader, a woman from next door, is distributing food cards for the next month.

The block leader tells about how an evacuation train is going to take her daughter Ingrid to her grandparents in East Prussia, and the two women talk about how happy the grandparents will be, the unlikelihood of R. A. F. flyers reaching East Prussia, the good news that geese will be available for food.

In the bedroom, blackout papers are hanging over the windows. It is still dark when Frau B leaves in the morning and dark when she gets home, so there is no occasion for taking them down during the day.

The stove is cold and the beds still unmade, because of the rush in the morning to get the children dressed and to school and kindergarten, after which Frau B has a 20-minute streetcar ride to get to the chemical factory by 8.

The first job in the evenings is to get the big stove roaring.

Coal Supply Adequate.

In 20 minutes the room is warmed up. Frau B has been rationed 20 hundredweight of coal briquettes for the winter, and thinks it will easily carry her through.

Since the war began she has received permits to buy a pair of slippers, a pair of shoes and a coat. Then with the clothing card—on the point system—she was able to buy a pair of bloomers, four yards of wool material, some knitting wool, and six pairs of slightly defective stockings, which counted only half the regular number of points.

In the cellar, during air-raid alarms, she knits stockings for the children and herself.

Frau B works eight hours at the chemical plant, part of the time on her feet.

Despite tough going, she doesn't complain, but leaves no doubt in the observer's mind that if circumstances permitted she's rather stay home than go to the plant.

With the government's allowance for the wages her husband would earn if he were not in the army, plus her own wage, her income is about 300 marks ($120) a month.

As the wife of a soldier, she doesn't have to pay taxes on her 75-pennig-an-hour (30 cents) wage, but some is taken off for German workers' health work. Every fourth Sunday brings a "one-dish dinner" so that she can contribute 50 pennings to a relief fund.

Rent, $11.12 a Month.

Her rent is 23.80 marks ($11.12) a month, and gas and light come to 5 marks every two months. Food takes up 30 marks ($12) a week, and care of the children 4.30 marks ($1.72).

Frau B helps her mother out with a contribution of about 30 marks a month, now and then sends her husband a 10-mark note, and pays fire insurance premiums.

She hasn't been able to save much, but hopes to be able to start a postal savings account.

The life Frau B leads is like that of many other German women who "fill their places in an unchangeable and unshakable consciousness of duty" as the newspaper Das Reich puts it.

American Coalition To Convene Monday

Representatives of more than 100 patriotic organizations will attend the annual convention of the American Coalition of the various societies Monday at the Carlton Hotel.

Maj. Augustin Ridd of New York will speak at the morning session at 10 o'clock at which Walter S. Steele, chairman of the Committee on National Security, will preside.

The afternoon meeting, beginning at 1 o'clock, will have Senators Willis, Republican, of Indiana, and Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana as speakers.

W. P. A. Project Served 1,701,817 Lunches

Needy Washington school children were served 1,701,817 lunches by the District's W. P. A. school lunch project last year, Paul Edwards, W. P. A. administrator, announced in a report today.

A total of 6,863,927 lunches have been served since the project was established in December, 1935, the report stated.

Much of the food is provided from surplus commodities, while other items are furnished by the Board of Public Welfare, sponsor of the project.

At present, 8,845 children are receiving daily lunches in 79 public and nine parochial schools throughout the city.

Alien Films Censored In Panama City

Panama City's newly appointed Mayor has inaugurated a more rigid censorship of motion pictures scheduled for exhibition in Panama. While the censorship has a general application to films originating in foreign countries, it is not expected to affect American films, the chief offenders being distributors of other countries. Panama City agents of distributors will be held responsible for previews of their films and must furnish necessary facilities.

Capital Transit's Net Scores $21.7, 673 Gain During Year 1940

Washington Gas Income Shows $107,042 Rise Over 1939 Record

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Net income of the Capital Transit Co. in the full year 1940 totaled $664,784.64, compared with $587,111.47 in 1939, a striking gain of $77,673.17, or 13.2 per cent, according to the report filed with Public Utilities Commission today.

Operating revenues totaled $13,636,713.65, an increase of $1,013,364.09, or 8.4 per cent. Operating expenses called for $8,984,631.11, an increase of $624,276.50, or 7.5 per cent, while taxes required $1,174,110.53, up $107,455.37, or 10.1 per cent.

Depreciation amounted to $1,371,064.42, which was $33,238.02 more than in 1939, the increase being attributed to the new streetcars and buses put in service. Deductions from gross earnings for bond interest cost $701,000, or $33,000 less than a year ago.

Revenue passengers in 1940 numbered 186,312,671, against 171,965,729, a gain of 14,347,142 car and bus riders, or 8.3 per cent, today's fine report reveals.

Capital Transit reported a net income for December of $58,085.30, compared with $53,394.79 in December, 1939, or $4,690.51. Back pay under wage arbitration awards is included in operating expenses of December, 1940, in the amount of $104,847.47 for the period July to December, 1939, and of December, 1939, in the amount of $39,939.27 for the period July 1 to November 23, inclusive.

Gas 1940 Net Jumps $107,042.

The Washington Gas Light Co. reported to the Public Utilities Commission today that net income in 1940 totaled $1,065,366.00, compared with $958,323.97 in 1939, a sharp gain of $107,042.

Operating revenues totaled $9,302,823.43, a gain of $1,055,396 over 1939. Operating expenses, including taxes, called for $7,487,591, an increase of $1,048,220 in 1940, compared with $2,067,750, from which income deductions of $805,785 were made, $11,395 less than in 1939.

The yearly net income revealed a gain of 9 per cent, while taxes moved up 30 per cent during 1940 compared with 1939.

December net income was reported as $155,588, compared with $180,075 in December, 1939, higher taxes contributing substantially to the reduction of $24,487.

The report shows gas sales of 1,513,261 cubic feet for the month, an increase of 183,175, or 12 per cent, over December, 1939. There were 165,585 meters in service in the District of Columbia on December 31, 1940.

The company expended approximately $111,400 in December and $1,001,800 in 1940, for extensions to its property in Washington.

Bankers Plan Big Meeting.

The midwinter meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers' Association will be held on Monday night at the Willard Hotel, according to a report today by President A. M. McLachlan. About 250 bank officials, directors and prominent guests will attend.

The guest of honor and principal speaker will be Joseph C. Rovinsky, director division of finance and industry, office of the coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics, Council of National Defense. His subject will be "The Financial Aspect of Our South American Relations."

Mr. Rovinsky has been vice president and a director of the National National Bank since 1928 and is on leave of absence to serve on the Council of National Defense. He was financial expert to American members of International Conference, Basle, 1931, and member of the American delegation to the League of Nations Bankers Association, representing the Fifth Federal Reserve District, will speak on the activities of this committee, particularly as they affect banks in the fifth district.

Scattered Strength Appears Late in Market Session

Transfers at 400,000 Shares Are Among Low Totals for Month

Stock Averages table showing 30-day, 90-day, and 180-day averages for various stock indices.

(Compiled by the Associated Press.)

By VICTOR EUBANK.

Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Scattered spots of strength cropped up in the latter part of today's stock market, but many leaders were unable to get far on a rally and mild irregularity persisted at the close.

The list spent most of the day at slightly lower levels, with rails inclined to rest after their recent recovery excursion. There were a few gains and losses of a point or so in the final hour, although fractional price changes either way were the rule. Numerous issues were unchanged.

Dealings were negligible from the start, transfers of approximately 400,000 shares being one of the low totals for the month to date.

A little related support came from British officials were conferring with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau at Washington on the problem of American war bonds, which the empire wishes to liquidate. Much of the timidity lately has been ascribed to the thought that any real advance would touch off more selling from British sources. Some comfort was derived from Treasury estimate that stock holdings as of December 31 were down to about $616,000,000. Wall Street believed a sizable portion of this amount had already been sold "over-the-counter" and that further off-the-exchange offerings were to be expected from day to day.

Upward tendencies were exhibited by Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Bendix, Texas Corp., American Smelting, Johns-Manville and International Harvester.

Looking for a promising move most of the time, the United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, United Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Union Carbide and Liggett & Myers "B" stocks.

H. S. A. Head Reports Hospitalization Up 100% in 6 Years

Increase of 100,000 In Clinic Visits for 1940 Disclosed

Hospitalization arranged by the Health Security Administration for 9,000 persons in the amount of 107,000 bed days during 1940 showed a 100 per cent increase over the first year's operation of the administration six years ago. Dr. Henry C. Macatee, president, disclosed last night at the annual meeting of H. S. A.

There was an increase of nearly 100,000 in the number of clinic visits over 1939. In addition to handling $262,800 in hospital and clinic care through hospitals affiliated with the Community Chest, the H. S. A. spent $226,320 for other health care.

Dr. Macatee also reported that there were 55,000 applications for H. S. A. service; 36,768 clinic visits were made and 23,000 days of hospital care were provided by Community Chest hospitals without charge.

Officers elected included Dr. Macatee, president; Dr. William W. Eldridge and Dr. William DeKleine, vice presidents; Ross Garrett, administrator, and Willard C. Smith, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke and Mrs. Edna Treasure were elected to the Board of Trustees and the following were elected directors: Randolph G. Bishop, Dr. John P. Burke, W. R. Castle, Dr. DeKleine, Dr. Francis J. Eisenman, Dr. Eldridge, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, Dr. Macatee, Dr. Margaret Nicholson, Dr. Herbert P. Ramsay and B. Brent Sandage.

Dr. DeKleine read a paper on "Contribution of Voluntary Hospitals to National Defense."

Speed Law Fines Net $525 in Traffic Court

Fines for speed law violations alone netted $525 in Police Traffic Court yesterday and Judge George D. Neilson also levied heavy fines for other traffic law violations.

The cases included a sentence of a $125 fine or 90 days in jail levied by Judge Neilson against Price Oden, 22, of the 1200 block of Columbia road N.W., on a charge of driving while drunk. Another defendant, Irving Westfield, was given a sentence of 60 days in jail on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a permit and sentenced to pay a fine of $35 or serve 30 days in jail on a charge of tampering with an automobile without permission of its owner.

Fines levied against speeders included 1 $35, 2 of $25, 11 of $15, 24 of $10 and 7 of $5.

Pepco Rate Cut Up to Utilities Commission

$318,315 Reduction Or Half That Is Question at Issue

The Public Utilities Commission was called on today to decide whether consumer rates of the Potomac Electric Power Co. should be reduced for this year by $318,315, or by approximately one half that amount.

The problem was posed at the outset of a public hearing called by the commission to consider what adjustments should be made in the company's rates under the sliding scale plan adopted for the firm about 15 years ago.

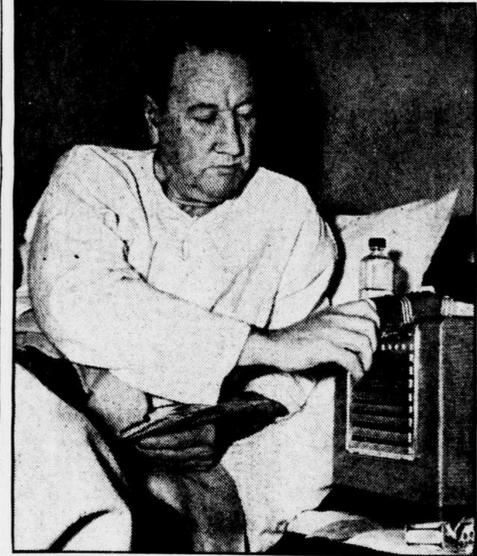

V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the Utilities Commission, who was the first witness called, offered testimony to show that profits of the company last year were sufficient to warrant a rate reduction of $318,315—this amount being the excess of profit over the basic 6 per cent rate of return allowed the company.

$160,703 Available for Cuts. However, immediately after Mr. McElfresh had completed his testimony, A. G. Neal, president of the power company, took the stand and presented testimony to show that $160,703 should be available for rate reductions this year.

The chief difference in the two reports of the financial experience for the past year was this: The company listed as valid deductions from its revenues amounts totalling $11,254,629 while the commission set these operating expenses at $10,930,297.

Spokesmen for the company contended that the commission should allow a larger amount for property depreciation to be included in the operating expenses, thereby decreasing the company's reported profits and reducing the net income available for rate reductions.

Reynolds to Press for D. C. Vote as Committee Head

Senator Reynolds shown at Naval Hospital today.

A florid-faced man lay in bed at Naval Hospital today and declared that the right to vote in the District should be made a clean-cut issue and should be provided through an act of Congress.

He said he saw no reason for "beating around the bush" about a question as serious as "taxation without representation." He added that he thought the Federal Government was paying too little toward the expense of the area it is using as a capital.

This, in effect, was the statement of Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, who yesterday accepted the post of chairman of the Senate District Committee. He spoke from the bed in which he has been confined with influenza for the last week.

He said Washington's first problem is the traffic toll and that, next in importance to this comes the need for a stadium.

"The idea of the Capital of our country with 1,000,000 population and no stadium," he deplored.

The sandy-haired Senator, whose hobby is travel and whose daily routine calls for 15 minutes of setting-up exercises, is serious about the next task that has been laid upon his shoulders and considers it an important post, mainly because it has to do exclusively with the District of Columbia. He said the trouble with District problems is that in the past there has been "too much conversation and too little action."

Senator Reynolds, father of two daughters and a son, came to Congress in 1932 from Asheville, N. C., where he had established a law practice and had served as prosecuting attorney for a four-county area for four years. He enjoys exercise, "if not too strenuous," takes part in most modern activity and got a big kick out of listening to the inauguration over the radio at his bedside.

Annually he sets out from the Capital to indulge in his hobby of travel. He has visited every continent and most of the countries of the world several times. He made a trip around the world in 1923, a trip to Canada, Mexico and throughout the United States in 1935, and last year visited every country in Central and South America.

As contemplated control over work relief would pass from the Federal Government to the individual States, which would have the sole power to determine if projects should be carried out within their boundaries.

Other resolutions adopted by the council were as follows: Indorsing the Treasury Department proposal for a national commission to work out an integrated program for federal, State and local governments.

Pledging continuation of the drive to eliminate State trade barriers.

In the long run, advocates said, their program would reduce relief costs and provide better service for the unemployed.

State Control Of Relief, With U. S. Aid Urged

State Governments Council Plan to Go to Congress

Radical changes in the public assistance setup throughout the country were included in a program ready today for presentation to Congress and State Legislatures.

Adopted by the Council of State Governments at the conclusion of a three-day session here late yesterday, the plan would make both work relief and direct relief joint Federal-State ventures to which the Government would contribute 50 to 75 per cent of the total cost, depending on the share individual States were able to pay.

While this would put the Federal Government in the field of direct relief for the first time, it also would have the effect of requiring relief expenditures by States whose principal needs in this regard previously have been met by the Government.

For example, those States which have no direct relief programs and have depended on Federally financed W. P. A. projects would be obliged to contribute 25 to 50 per cent to future work-relief undertakings. If they saw fit to revert to direct relief, their share would be fixed in the same proportion.

A minority in the council vigorously fought the proposal, which it was declared would hit some States in the "deep South" where relief is entirely on a W. P. A. basis. A scattering of other States also would be affected. The opponents accused advocates of promoting a "raid" on the Treasury, in asking the Government to share in their direct relief programs.

To the contrary, advocates declared that the plan would permit co-ordination of work and direct relief programs in those States where both are carried out.

The plan also calls for a liberalization of the "matching" arrangement under which States participate in the social security programs for relief for blind, aged, indigent and dependent children. Here, too, the Federal contribution would be gauged by the ability of the respective States to pay.

In the long run, advocates said, their program would reduce relief costs and provide better service for the unemployed.

Other resolutions adopted by the council were as follows: Indorsing the Treasury Department proposal for a national commission to work out an integrated program for federal, State and local governments.

Program to Remedy Traffic Evils Here Offered by A. A. A.

More Policemen Urged; Elimination of Ticket 'Fixing' Advocated

A program advocating improvements in Washington's traffic system, ranging from the need for additional police to establishment of a separate traffic branch in Police Court to care for all traffic cases, was presented today by the American Automobile Association to the District Commissioners.

Burton W. Marsh, director of the Safety and Engineering Department of the association, told the Commissioners the aim of the program is to remedy deficiencies in the city's traffic setup rather than to blame any one for its present condition, which has resulted in an average toll of one victim every two days since January.

Among "necessary reforms presented by Mr. Marsh before Commissioner John Russell Young, acting on behalf of the other two Commissioners, who were unable to be present, were:

1. Additional police personnel. Mr. Marsh pointed out that figures developed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police show that Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, should have available for traffic duty 92 more officers than he now has.

"The proportion of the police force on full-time traffic duty here," he declared, "is less than one-half of what is recommended by the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police."

2. Elimination of ticket fixing. The speaker characterized this practice as "one of the most dangerous and most effective traffic enforcement devices." He also warned against extension of diplomatic immunity for traffic violations to people who are not entitled to it.

3. Establishment of a separate traffic branch in Police Court to care for all traffic cases.

Radio Announcers To Help in Birthday Ball Celebrations

The city's leading radio announcers and theater executives will join with movie and tennis stars to make the President's birthday celebrations in seven hotels Thursday the most successful in the history of the benefit event.

Arrangements for the infantile paralysis benefits this year include an "all-star" dinner at the Willard, at which some 500 guests will be entertained by all performers in the city for the festivities.

The annual "gold plate breakfast" at $25 a plate will be held at the Carlton Hotel as a grand finale of the city-wide festivities. The breakfast will round up most of the celebrities attending the parties here.

On Sunday night the cast of "The Old Acquaintance" will present a performance at the National Theater for the benefit of the infantile paralysis fund.

Several film stars and well-known radio announcers will lead the entertainment program at the third annual ball to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night for the benefit of the charity fund.

Plans to satisfy the "jitberbug" inclinations of 120,000 selectees who will visit Washington for recreation from the rigorous Army life at eight nearby Army camps are underway here with a proposal to establish "something like" the old taxi dance hall, but minus its "evils."

Supervised Version Of 'Taxi Dance' Halls Urged for Selectees

Proposal Made in Session To Plan Recreation for Men in Nearby Camps

Plans to satisfy the "jitberbug" inclinations of 120,000 selectees who will visit Washington for recreation from the rigorous Army life at eight nearby Army camps are underway here with a proposal to establish "something like" the old taxi dance hall, but minus its "evils."

Archie Edwards, president of the Federal Employers' Recreation and Welfare Council, told a luncheon meeting of the Recreation Division of the Council of Social Agencies yesterday that the Government would be called upon to provide halls in various Federal buildings.

Mr. Edwards, who is head of subcommittee handling Government employees service of the National Defense Committee of the District, estimated that 5,000 selectees would be coming to the District nightly looking for entertainment when all the camps are filled next summer.

The most pressing problem is facilities for dancing, he said, because the soldiers will like something "along the jitberbug line."

Proposing establishment of taxi dance halls, he said he had seen them in operation on the West Coast where they were considered something of a "public utility."

Mr. Marsh also advocated creation of a paid executive secretary for the Traffic Advisory Council; increased public safety education through the press, radio and theater; and co-ordination of motor vehicle administration, enforcement, education and engineering.

Pharmacology Laboratory Is Dedicated at G. W. U.

George Washington University's new pharmacology laboratory was dedicated last night as Morris Goldstein, president of the District Pharmaceutical Association, which equipped the laboratory, pledged pharmacists to support national defense.

With the presentation of a plaque to President Floyd Heck Marvin of the university, the laboratory was dedicated to Dr. Henry E. Kalusowski, former dean of the school of pharmacy. Dr. Marvin described the progress of the school during the past 38 years and predicted even greater developments.

The plaque was presented by Howard M. Bradbury, Fred B. Campbell and A. C. Taylor, president of the District Board of Pharmacy. Dr. Marvin was introduced by Dean W. Paul Briggs of the school of pharmacy.

Dr. C. M. Lemon of the Fish and Wildlife Service gave an illustrated talk on vitamins.

About 1,800 persons jammed the McKinley High School auditorium yesterday for the student concert by the National Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Dr. Hans Kunder.

Perhaps the most popular piece on the program was "Natchez on the Hill," an American number by John Powell.

Dr. Kinder took the stage and introduced the instruments of the orchestra to the audience, explaining the function of each. The program ended with the finale to Tchaikowski's "Fourth Symphony."

On the Civil Service Committee, Representatives Rogers of Massachusetts, Rees of Kansas and Kilburn of New York retain their places. New Republicans appointed are Fellows of Maine, Baumhart of Ohio, Gale of Minnesota and Stratton of Illinois.

Two new Republican members appointed on the Banking Committee are Representatives Smith of Ohio, Kunkel of Pennsylvania, Rolph of California and Dewey of Illinois.

New Republican members of the Public Building and Grounds Committee are Representatives Rodgers of Pennsylvania; Wilson, Indiana, and Bishop, Illinois.

New Republican members on the World War Veterans Committee are Representatives Pfeiffer, New York; Bennett, Missouri, and Cunningham, Iowa.

Young Bandits Get $800 In Two Liquor Stores

Two liquor stores were robbed last night by three young bandits who escaped with more than $800.

The three obtained about $600 after entering the Avenue Wine & Liquor Store at 2224 Pennsylvania Avenue S.E., where they emptied the cash register and then forced the owner, Harry Dobkins, to hand over the money in his pockets. Mr. Dobkins was in a back room eating his dinner at the time of the hold-up.

A few hours later bandits answering the same description pulled guns in a liquor and grocery store at 4909 Wisconsin Avenue N.W. They forced David Tveysky, the proprietor, to hand over $200. A customer, Mrs. Helen Fuge of 4436 Forty-ninth street N.W., struck at one of the bandits with a bottle, she said, but missed.

Police today were looking for a colored man believed wounded by a railway detective who surprised a gang attempting to steal a copper cable from the freight yards at New Jersey avenue and I street S.E. The officer said the man fired two shots at him when he ordered him to halt.

The detective returned the fire. He expressed the belief he had hit the thief, who was accompanied by three other men.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has been named honorary chairman of the 1941 campaign of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, according to an announcement today by Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general manager of the Reicht Co., the general chairman for the drive.

A goal of $100,000 has been set for the campaign scheduled to open February 15 and continue through March 13.

In accepting the honorary chairmanship, Mr. Hoover said: "Crime is rooted in the bad companionship and dangerous interests of misguided youngsters. They lack the opportunity to choose more wisely. Their environment offers them little or no chance to develop respect for law and order, to learn the meaning of good citizenship and fair play."

Hoover Named Honorary Head of Boys' Club Drive

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has been named honorary chairman of the 1941 campaign of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, according to an announcement today by Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general manager of the Reicht Co., the general chairman for the drive.

A goal of $100,000 has been set for the campaign scheduled to open February 15 and continue through March 13.

In accepting the honorary chairmanship, Mr. Hoover said: "Crime is rooted in the bad companionship and dangerous interests of misguided youngsters. They lack the opportunity to choose more wisely. Their environment offers them little or no chance to develop respect for law and order, to learn the meaning of good citizenship and fair play."

Adding that any agency which offers these desirable objectives to a young boy is stopping crime at its source, Mr. Hoover asserted that the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police is doing just that. It is giving its citizens instead of criminals. Therefore I am happy to participate in this important work, and urge my fellow-citizens to support generously this drive for the good of these boys and the well-being of our community."

A rare specimen of sea elephant weighing over 1,300 pounds was captured recently off Playa Picoles, Argentina, and placed in a zoo.

Two St. John's College seminars on the list of great books that forms the core of the college program will begin here Tuesday.

One will meet at the Library of Congress and the other at the graduate school of the Department of Agriculture at 7:30 p.m. Registrations are limited to 25 in each group, it was said.

Ickes Says Blast Shows Mine Safety Bill Need

Secretary of the Interior Ickes yesterday called the Kimball, W. Va., coal mine explosion, which killed five men and injured thirteen others Wednesday, "tragic proof" that Congress should enact the mine safety bill.

The bill, passed by the Senate last year, but held in the House Mines Committee, would permit Federal safety inspectors to enter mines without first obtaining permission of the owners.

Mr. Ickes told his press conference he understood that Committee Chairman Smith, Democrat, of West Virginia intended to reintroduce the bill.

Urges Long-Range Planning. Senator Reynolds is worried about the real estate situation in the District of Columbia. He said there should be some long-range planning at present to keep Washington from becoming "the ghost city of America" when the war boom is over.

"Since 1933," he recalled, "Washington and vicinity has grown faster than any other area in America. This population growth must end one of these days and then we must be prepared to meet the situation."

Senator Reynolds, father of two daughters and a son, came to Congress in 1932 from Asheville, N. 500 Selectees Take Physical Tests Tonight

They Will Be First Of 1,500 Making Up February Quota

Physical examinations will be given approximately 500 Washington selective service registrants at six hospitals tonight. They will be the first of a group of approximately 1,500 to be given examinations to fill the District's February draft quota of 353 men.

Registrants of Local Boards 1, 2, 3, 6 and 10 have been ordered to report to Georgetown Hospital where Dr. Henry R. Schreiber will serve as chief examining physician.

Emergency Hospital facilities will be used to examine registrants of Boards 8, 9, 13 and 14. Dr. Linn F. Cooper will be chief examiner. Boards 4, 5, 7, 11 and 15 will be served by Garfield Hospital, with Dr. Stewart Foster as chief examiner.

Five Boards at Providence. Registrants of Boards 12, 21, 22, 23 and 24 will be examined at Providence Hospital where Dr. R. W. Conklin will be in charge. Freedmen's Hospital will be visited by colored registrants of Boards 11, 12, 15, 19 and 25. Dr. J. A. Keene will be the chief examining physician.

Sibley Hospital, with Dr. E. Y. Davidson as chief examiner, will take care of registrants of Boards 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 25.

Other mass examinations of registrants are scheduled for Wednesday and Friday of next week. With these examinations officials expected to have established a pool of Class 1-A registrants sufficiently large to fill the February quota.

Physicians Named. The District Selective Service Office today announced the nomination of 25 additional examining physicians to be assigned to local Selective Service Boards.

The nominations are subject to appointment by the National Selective Service director. Physicians named, according to local boards, were:

- 1. Dr. John R. Cavanagh, 1935 I street N.W.
2. Dr. Joseph J. McHale, 900 Seventeenth street N.W.
3. Dr. Frank M. McChesney, 4620 The Sixties N.W.
4. Dr. Benjamin Newhouse, 4213 Sixteenth street N.W.
5. Dr. Clarence L. Miller, 3118 Sixteenth street N.W.
6. Dr. Alfred H. Richwine, 1365 Kennedy street N.W.
7. Dr. Max E. Markham, 3208 Seventeenth street N.W.
8. Dr. John W. Trenis, 1150 Connecticut avenue N.W.
9. Dr. Melville B. Fischer, 1801 I street N.W.
10. Dr. Charles G. Aronstein, 1707 Columbia road N.W.
11. Dr. Merrill H. Curtis, 1939 Thirteenth street N.W.
12. Dr. Edwin J. Watson, 404 M street N.W.
13. Dr. Richard T. Sullivan, 900 Seventeenth street N.W.
14. Dr. R. Lomax Wells, 1746 K street N.W.
15. Dr. Francis W. Dunne, 638 Massachusetts avenue S.E.
16. Dr. Philip A. E. Stebbing, 800 North Carolina avenue S.E.
17. Dr. Thomas F. Collins, 324 H street N.E.
18. Dr. Philip A. Degnan, 816 Maryland avenue N.E.
19. Dr. Walter S. Savoy, 1901 Seventeenth street N.W.
20. Dr. Percy A. Bryant, 3800 New Hampshire avenue N.W.
21. Dr. F. Nelson Strawbridge, 2130 Minnesota avenue S.E.
22. Dr. Max E. Feldman, 1311 Oates street N.E.
23. Dr. Edward A. Kelly, 2801 Pennsylvania avenue S.E.
24. Dr. Richard J. McNulty, 1016 East Capitol street.
25. Dr. Ulysses L. Houston, 1310 U street N.W.
These additional doctors will advance to three the number of physicians serving with each local board, with the exception of five boards with large registrations, which will have four physicians. The five physicians, already sworn in and appointed are Board No. 11, Dr. W. Leroy Dunn, 1150 Connecticut avenue N.W.; No. 12, Dr. Paul Eganet, 4847 Illinois avenue N.W.; No. 15, Dr. Herbert Martyn, Cumberland Apartments; No. 19, Dr. J. A. O'Keefe, 4500 Sixteenth street S.E.; and No. 25, Dr. Jerome Krick, 1701 Sixteenth street N.W.
Leniency Is Stressed. Utmost leniency in classification of registrants was emphasized last night at a dinner meeting of chief clerks of the 25 local draft boards in the District.
Maj. Donald T. Winder of the National Selective Service legal staff, said that the most important factor present when there exists any doubt as to proper classification, decisions should be made in favor of the registrants. "The country is not now hungry for manpower," he said. "If the need arises, we can always reclassify them."
Likewise, Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, national selective service director, urged board officials to make classifications that would least disturb the family group. He also warned against improper classification of men employed in key posts in industry, which would hamper the nation's defense.
Others at the speakers' table, including Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee, discussed briefly various national aspects of the Selective Service Act and praised its administration.
William E. Leahy, chairman of the Board of Appeals in the District, complimented local boards on their classifications, pointing out that less than 10 per cent of the boards' decisions had been appealed and only about 10 per cent of these appeals had warranted modification of original decisions.

Members of Cabinet And Wives Give Annual Dinner for Roosevelts

Mrs. Hull Arranges Plans for Event And Vice President and Mrs. Wallace Attend as Guests for First Time

By MARGARET HART, Editor.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were feted last night by members of the cabinet and their wives at an elaborately appointed dinner at the Carlton Hotel. In the early days of President Roosevelt's first term it was decided the cabinet would combine forces and give only one dinner to their chief in place of the time-honored series of individual dinners. This was the occasion last night. In past years this tribute has been paid March 4, the anniversary of the first inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull welcomed the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the former's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, on their arrival and escorted them to the drawing room. Here the honor guests received and animatedly informal conversation filled the room despite the ceremony and pomp which prevailed in the formal arrangements.

Five cabinet members were in the role of hosts for the first time, having been appointed since the dinner last March. The "newcomers" were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Frank Walker, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude R. Wickard and the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones.

The cabinet circle was completed with the presence of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr.; the Attorney General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, and the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins.

Mrs. Hull Arranges Plans for the Event.

Mrs. Hull each year has arranged the dinner for the cabinet group. Though she still is convalescing from her recent illness, she personally directed the plans for last night's party, and her exquisite taste was evidenced in the party's attractive setting.

Guests were seated at a long banquet table in the Carlton room laid with gold-banded china, handsome crystal goblets and wine glasses. The mirrored plaques hanging over the table were outlined with pink sweetpeas and smilax. Much of the silver used, such as the graceful candelabra holding white tapers, and the low silver bowls filled with pink roses and snapdragons which alternated down the center of the table belonged to Mrs. Hull.

A profusion of ferns and palms were placed about the room and the mirrors high on the walls were draped with pink smilax. Smilax also was used in the picturesque balcony, where the scarlet-coated Marine Band Orchestra played as the music arrived.

Featured in the decorations each year is the improvised bridge connecting the Carlton room at the patio where the program is given. Last night this arrangement, which is one of the ideas Mrs. Hull brought back from South America, was even more effective. On one side of the bridge was a fountain playing over variegated lights and on the other side was a statue illuminated by colored lights. Many ferns, beautiful potted plants and flowers were arranged under and on the sides of the bridge and the general effect was that of a charming garden in full bloom.

Former Cabinet Members Attend the Celebration.

It was the wish of the President that all who had served in his cabinet at one time or another as well as the widows of cabinet members be included in this more or less family affair. Three former cabinet members were in the company last night. Mr. Justice Frank Murphy, former Attorney General, was present as well as former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and former Secretary of Commerce Mr. Daniel C. Roper, accompanied by Mrs. Roper. Mrs. William H. Woodin, whose late husband served as Secretary of the Treasury, came from New York for the function, and also present were Mrs. George H. Dern, widow of the late Secretary of War, and Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, widow of the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wallace Are Guests for First Time.

The Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace were guests and not hosts for the first time. Mr. Wallace entered the cabinet as Secretary of Agriculture in March, 1933.

Among others present were the Speaker of the House, Mr. Sam Rayburn, with his sister, Miss Lucinda Rayburn; the former Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, sr.; Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, MISS SOPHIA NICHOLS.

Weddings of Interest

Miss Anne Derby Orpin Becomes Bride of Mr. Gustave Johnson

The wedding of Miss Anne Derby Orpin and Mr. Gustave Johnson took place Saturday afternoon. Dr. Paul Sperry, minister of the Church of the Holy City, performed the ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sanfred Johnson, with only members of the immediate families present. A reception in the home followed the ceremony.

The bride, the daughter of Mrs. Robert C. Orpin of Winchester and Woburn, Mass., and the late Mr. Orpin, was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Frederick Brasch, chief of the Smithsonian Division of the Congressional Library. She wore a blue dress and matching hat, and her corsage was of white orchids.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Randolph Johnson, was maid of honor and wore a dusty rose ensemble and a corsage of roses. Mr. Thomas Russell of Rose Hill, Miss., was best man.

Receiving with the bridal couple were Mrs. Johnson, in burgundy with a corsage of violets and Mrs. Orpin, in black with a corsage of roses.

Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, and Mr. Nikolai Weigant, secretary of the Farm Credit Administration.

The bride was graduated from the Nylin School in Boston and attended Rollins College and Columbia Polytechnic Institute. Mr. Johnson attended the State College of North Carolina and Teachers' College, Columbia University.

After a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will make their home in Washington.

Miss Inez Margaret Brown is married to Mr. Williams.

Miss Inez Margaret Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brown of Arlington, Va., was married January 3 to Mr. Harry McFarland Williams, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Williams of Pasadena, Calif.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Ball at the Metropolitan Baptist Church.

The bride, a graduate of Washington-Lee High School and Strayer's College, wore a blue wool suit with matching hat trimmed with flowers and wine accessories. Her corsage was of orchids.

Miss Dorothy Bergeson of Arlington, the maid of honor, wore a red-tinge of ashes of roses, with a matching hat and brown accessories. Her flowers were talismans roses.

Mr. Joseph Collins of Washington was best man and the ushers were Mr. Wilton A. Brown, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jack Cocker. The bridegroom attended Georgetown University, Loyola University and the University of California. He is with the Social Security Board in Long Beach, Calif., and he and his bride will live in Pasadena.

An interesting wedding occurred January 16 at the Memorial Seventh Day Adventist Church, when Miss Ena-Beth Paris, daughter of Mrs. Lydia C. Paris, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Collins of Washington.

After a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will make their home in Washington.

By the Way—

Beth Blaine

Meeting a movie star is always exciting, but meeting Douglas Fairbanks, jr., at the small and very attractive cocktail party which the Mathew Dicks gave yesterday was really such fun that even the most blasé of guests could not fail to rally to its charm.

First and foremost, Mr. Fairbanks is a very real and natural and charming person. His main topic of conversation is not himself or his work in the movies—but rather the very vital and absorbing topic of aid to Britain. It is because of this work that he is in Washington now.

When we said rather modestly that we had met him in Hot Springs last summer (where his wife has an utterly beguiling house, said to be the oldest in the vicinity), his very flattering reply was, "But of course I remember very well." Upon inquiry as to where his pretty wife was and why she wasn't at the party, we were told that the Washington "flu" had caught up with her and that she was in bed.

Another "flu" bachelor was Edward Reed, whose wife, Caroline, is still ill at home and missing so many parties, planned to welcome Ed home from his post in Rome.

Arriving with the George Garretts (with whom she is staying) was pretty Mrs. Benjamin Rae, who looked completely ravishing in a red wool costume trimmed with silver fox fur and a tiny silver fox fur hat to match. Countess Zoppoli, who has taken a house here for the remainder of the winter, chatted with Mrs. Arthur Fowler and Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs (all in gray). They were joined by Pendleton Turner, who immediately sent them all into gales of laughter.

Baron Baeyens was there without his sweet little wife, Mary (they will give a small dinner preceding the last of the three dances at the Sulgrave tomorrow night). Countess Lasocki, both so good-looking and attractive, sat with the Albert Deweys, Mrs. Dewey in beige with a tiny matching hat with a dark brown veil. The Deweys, by the way, also will give a dinner tomorrow night.

Mrs. Jasper DuBois in gray velvet, sat with the Arthur Krocks who have just returned from Palm Beach and looked very fine and healthy and unburned. Mrs. Kent Legare arrived wearing a black frock and a tiny black hat with two little birds' wings of turquoise blue. Our hostess poured tea looking very feminine and charming in a dark red crepe afternoon frock with a beautiful topaz and gold clip on her shoulder and a very striking bracelet to match—and once again we decided that our favorites—along with Mrs. Dick's—were all white flowers, for nothing else seems to give a room such a gala, and still such a fragile touch.

Poor Marianna Sands who arrived in town for a week's visit and planned to see all (and that's quite a lot) of her old friends, was suddenly called back to New York on business and saw scarcely any one. She did, however, promise to close up the business and return to the Capital next week—so perhaps we shall all have a chance to at least glimpse the sparkling and very popular Mrs. Sands.

Robert Joyce is back from Bogota and he and his new wife, Jane, will be in town for several days before going on to their new post in Havana. Roberto Mendoza also plans to go to Havana, his home, of course, as soon as he can arrange to rent his attractive Georgetown house and take a really long leave.

Lewis Clark, also of the diplomatic corps, is recovering from an eye operation. Mrs. Mondell Gregg has gone to Florida for a winter vacation; Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert will leave for Palm Beach, Monday, to be with her small daughter, "Birney," on her birthday "bawl" and will return to join Mr. Robert immediately thereafter.

Miss Miller Engaged to Wed Mr. Steiwer

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mann Miller of Chevy Chase today announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edna-Mae Miller, to Mr. Frederick Steiwer, jr., son of Mrs. Steiwer of this city and the late Senator Steiwer of Oregon.

Miss Miller is a student at the Corcoran School of Fine Arts, where she has studied for three years. She is specializing this year in portrait painting.

Mr. Steiwer was graduated from Emerson Institute, Georgetown University, and the New York Stock Exchange Institute, and is a registered representative of the New York Stock Exchange. He is associated with the Alex. Brown & Sons banking firm and at present is serving as an Army lieutenant in the Chemical Warfare Division.

The date for the wedding has not been set.

Miss Sophia Nichols Engaged to Marry Mr. S. L. Chaconas

Mr. and Mrs. Louis John Nichols announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sophia Nichols, to Mr. Stephen Louis Chaconas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stephen Chaconas. No date has been set for the wedding.

The announcement was made last evening at a dinner party given in their home by Mr. and Mrs. Nichols. Later the company attended a dance at the Mayflower Hotel given by Ahepa.

Miss Nichols is a graduate of the Marguerite Bourgeois College in Montreal, Canada. Mr. Chaconas is an architect and a graduate of Catholic University.

Miss Buckler Is Ill

Miss Maxine Buckler, daughter of Representative and Mrs. R. T. Buckler of Minnesota, is a patient at the George Washington Hospital, where she underwent an operation Monday.

Miss Anne Orpin Becomes Bride of Mr. G. J. Johnson

Mr. Verner Nielsen of Takoma Park, son of Mr. Peter Thorvald Nielsen, The Rev. George Semler Rapp, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. Robert Eldridge sang. The church was decorated with palms and ferns with baskets of gladioli and carnations.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Vinard L. Paris, wore a long gown of white velvet with a slight train and a long veil which fell in folds from a beaded tiara in three tiers, one of which was over her face. Her gown was fashioned on Colonial lines with fitted bodice and full skirt and elbow-length sleeves. Her bouquet of white roses was tied with a wide white satin ribbon.

Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Lois Paris. She wore a long gown of ecru georgette made with full skirt and a girdle of gold ribbon. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Little Wilma Jean Carey, who wore a long frock of ice blue made in Colonial style, was flower girl, and little Bobby Green in a white suit was the Bible bearer.

The best man was Mr. George Nielsen, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. Julian Clatterbuck and Mr. Nelson Wood.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Georgetown home of Mr. and Mrs. Vinard Paris. Mrs. Paris, the bride's mother, wore a gown of black lace with a corsage bouquet of yellow orchids. She was assisted by Mrs. Irene B. Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen left later on a wedding trip, the latter wearing a smartly tailored turquoise blue silk serge street dress with a black fitted coat with velvet collar and white turban and scarf.

They will be at home at their apartment at 723 Carroll avenue in Takoma Park after tomorrow.

Mrs. Nielsen is employed at the Federal Communications Commission in the office of Mr. Gerald C. Gross, who with Mrs. Gross was among the guests.

President's Wife Attends Dames' Tea

New York Society Entertains at Dumbarton House

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was among those who attended a tea given yesterday by members of the New York Society of the National Society of Colonial Dames at the headquarters at Dumbarton House.

The President's wife, a member of the organization, was an early arrival and explained that she could stay only a short while.

Mrs. Ethelbert Low, president of the New York group, who had come to Washington for the afternoon, greeted Mrs. Roosevelt in the drawing room.

Later the President's wife chatted with a cabinet hostess, Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who is also a member of the New York group, and had a cup of tea in the library with Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, a relative of the President.

Wears Inauguration Dress.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore the Americana red dress she had chosen for the inauguration, with a hip-length brown fur jacket and a small matching hat trimmed with fur balls.

Most of the members of the hostess society who were present yesterday reside in Washington. A group which came down from New York with Mrs. Low, however, included Mrs. Lyman Rhoades, Mrs. Eben Whitman and Mrs. Chesapeake Davison.

One of the guests was Mrs. Frederick Mott, a native of Canada, who had received her naturalization papers earlier in the day at Rockville. Mrs. Mott, the daughter of Canon Bertal Heeney, of the Winnipeg Cathedral, was entertained by Miss Agnes Peter, one of the national officers.

At Home in New Status.

After a warm greeting from Mrs. Roosevelt and a cordial welcome from the Colonial Dames, Mrs. Mott, whose husband is an American, felt very much at home in her new citizenship status, she said.

Mrs. Stimson presided at the tea table most of the afternoon.

Mrs. William Hollister, Wilmer, chairman of Dumbarton House, and Mrs. Haral Milliken were among those assisting.

The tea was one of a series of weekly gatherings at the society's national headquarters when the various State societies serve as hostesses.

Woman Democrats Honor Mrs. Walker At Tea Tomorrow

Mrs. Frank C. Walker, wife of the Postmaster General, will be guest of honor at a tea to be given by the Woman's National Democratic Club from 4:30 to 6 p. m. tomorrow at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue N.W.

Mrs. Claude Pepper, president, will receive with Mrs. Walker and with Mrs. W. W. Howes, wife of the former First Assistant Postmaster General. Mrs. A. J. Monroey, Hostess Committee chairman, will make the introductions. Mrs. Curtis Shears, chairman of the Hospitality Committee, and Mrs. Charles J. Brand, chairman of the Membership Committee will be hostesses, assisted by their committees.

Those who will pour tea include Mrs. Harlee Branch, Miss Eleanor M. Connolly, Mrs. Frank H. Buck, Mrs. Lawrence Arnold, Mrs. George Grant, Mrs. John McMillan, Mrs. Clarence Lea, Mrs. Louis Ludlow, Mrs. Luther Patrick and Mrs. Pete Jarmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris were hosts at dinner last evening at the Shoreham in honor of the retiring Commercial Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Campbell.

Among the guests were the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels, the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Fernandez, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Dr. and Mrs. William O'Donnell, the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Saenz, the Secretary of the Embassy and Senora de Rodriguez, Senora de Gazitua of New York, Senor Don Alejandro Masson, local radio vocalist, and Scottish dances with bagpipers in full regalia.

Y. W. C. A. Changes In England Told At Luncheon

"Great Britain and Our World Association" was the subject of a talk by Miss Pearl Carruthers of the World's Office of the Y. W. C. A. at the World Fellowship luncheon of the local association yesterday.

Miss Carruthers described how the Y. W. C. A. in England had changed its peacetime program to meet the demands of war days. Work in hospitals, cafeterias, clubs and halls, with music, drama, discussion and physical education programs has taken the place of the normal peacetime schedule, she said. The British government, she added, has turned to the Y. W. C. A. for assistance knowing that it has no "ax to grind," no set age limits, and no limits as to church preference.

The speaker said many of the British Army men after returning from Dunkerque had stopped at the Y. W. C. A. when they saw the "welcome" sign.

Miss Carruthers was introduced by Mrs. Albert Atwood, chairman of the World Fellowship Committee. Others at the head table were Mme. Promoi, wife of the Minister from Thailand; Miss Marianne Mills of the World's Y. W. C. A.; Miss Nesbit Vincent, a member of the board at Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mrs. Fred Wright and others.

Here for Meetings

Trigg of Kansas City, past national president, will be at the Mayflower Hotel for the 16th Woman's Patriotic Conference on National Defense January 27 to 29. They will attend the convention of the Department of the Poloma, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, in the Washington Hotel. A reception, memorial service and public installation of officers will be held at 6:30 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Hotel.

Mrs. Arnold Hostess

Mrs. Thurman Arnold, wife of the Assistant Attorney General, entertained at luncheon today in honor of Mrs. Charles Clark, wife of Judge Clark of New Haven, who is visiting the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Samuel O. Clark.

Scottish Society To Mark Burns Anniversary

St. Andrew's Scottish Society will celebrate the 182nd anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns with a concert, dance and buffet supper at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets N.W., tomorrow at 8 p. m. All proceeds from the entertainment will be used for British war relief.

Mr. A. C. E. Malcolm will bring greetings from the British Embassy. The program will feature Miss Fleurette Joffre, coloratura soprano, who was soloist with Sir Harry Lauder's company for two years. It will include the "Village Singers" of Kensington, Md., under the direction of Arnold L. Lovejoy; Alex. Masson, local radio vocalist, and Scottish dances with bagpipers in full regalia.

Representative Luther Patrick of Alabama will speak on "Robert Burns, a Regular Fellow." Following the concert there will be informal dancing for the guests, featuring old-time favorites such as the schottisch, quadrille, patronella and military two-step, as well as American dances.

Tea Will Honor School Alumnae

A tea in honor of new members of the Gunston Hall Alumnae Association will be given by Miss Mary

B. Kerr and Mrs. Beulah C. Compton, principals of Gunston Hall School, at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow at the school. All alumnae living in Washington and vicinity have been invited to attend.

American Goldfinch (Astragalinus tristis)

By Lillian Cox Athey.

Minnesota has for her State bird one of the most beautiful little birds with charming manners and a canary-like song. Nearly all bird lovers admire the goldfinch and never one have we heard find a single fault with this family bird. At one time the goldfinch, because of its song and color, was known as the wild canary, and sad to tell, was laced in a cage. The male is brilliant yellow with black wings and tail. His love song, according to Dr. Chapman, who is an authority, is "delivered with an ecstasy and abandon which carried them off their feet, and they circle over the field sowing the air with music. Could words give us a clearer idea of the beauty of the mating song of the goldfinch?

These birds are among the last builders of nests in the spring, though they are neither lazy nor procrastinating. Truth is, goldfinch babies must have their bassinet lined with thistle-down and this does not arrive in its perfection until quite late in the season!

The nest is placed in the forks of sapling or bush and some are found in a sturdy group of blackberry stalks. You never know whether the snug little nursery will be close the ground or 30 feet from it. But it will be an artistic dwelling constructed of bark strips, grasses, leaves, felted plant-down for the outside walls and a springy mattress of thistle-down. Nests have been found as early as June and as late as September. And should the builders find that time was the essence of getting ready an old nest of some neighbor will be conditioned by adding a heavy link of down.

From the pale bluish-white, unmarked eggs will hatch the small canary-like infants whose capacity for food is unbelievable. Later in the season, after their downy coat has been replaced by a deep brown plumage with wing-markings of pale brown, they will resemble their mother to a great degree.

During the days when the mother must guard the eggs and young the song has changed from high glee to being quite personal in its appeal. To hear it at this time is to wonder how it can be mistaken for that of any other bird. For no other calls so lovingly "Tic-o-ree, o-ree, o-ree" with many variations, until the listener hears distinctly "by-by ba-bee."

Until the nuptial colors are put on the males are clad in olive and are often mistaken for the females or young. In large flocks these birds gather in fields and seedy marshlands where they find some of our most determined weed-pests. As spring approaches the new, fresh plumage colors replace the somber ones of winter.

The American goldfinch, known from ocean to ocean, is our friend. Through the winter he seeks the seeds of our most flourishing weed-foes, and when this type of food has vanished he turns his attention to eliminating cankerworms, plant lice, small beetles and grasshoppers. Many call this friend the thistle bird. He does love this plant. For its seeds are much enjoyed and its down is used for furnishing the nursery. It is of interest to examine the many seemingly perfect thistle seeds always found under the plant after the goldfinch has gone. At first glance each seed is apparently untouched. But a closer look will show how cleverly a slit was made in the shell and the meaty kernel extracted. Ragweed seed is also a favorite among them. So it should be our great pleasure to protect these birds in every way possible. Hay fever victims especially will be grateful for their ragweed appetite.

Optimists Unit to Fele 100 Boys' Club Members

Approximately 100 members of the Boys' Club of Washington will be guests of the Washington Optimists Club Tuesday night at a dinner in celebration of the 55th anniversary of the founding of the first of the three branches of the boys' clubs.

The occasion also will mark the 15th anniversary of the adoption of a policy by the optimists for the help and encouragement of thousands of young members of the boys' clubs. The clubs are supported by the Community Chest.

Arkansas Avenue Citizens Celebrate Their Successes

Association Holds Its Second Annual Banquet; Quinn Lauds Group

Meeting last night in the Roosevelt High School for their second annual banquet, members of the Arkansas Avenue Community Association celebrated their successes in civic work during their two years of existence.

Henry I. Quinn, former member of the Board of Education, congratulated the body. "This organization has done a splendid job," he said, but warned that any such group must be "eternally vigilant." Mr. Quinn declared the members should depend on themselves and not take too seriously the statements of Federal officials in making their decisions. He made specific reference to one statement by a "lady who lives on Pennsylvania avenue."

Mr. Quinn further warned the group to beware of encroachments by the Federal Government. The people of Washington, he said, must fight to see that their rights are maintained and their opinions respected.

Hugh V. Keiser, president of the association, pointed out in his welcome to the guests that the body had in two years built up a membership of 400 and solved many of their most important problems, including the floods on Arkansas avenue, which caused the founding of the group. In addition, the covenants on which the group has been working are 85 per cent completed, and the body reports satisfactory progress toward location of the Wilson Teachers' College, on Upshur street N.W.

Among those introduced by Mr. Keiser were A. J. Driscoll, president of the Midcity Citizens' Association; Elwood Seal, former District corporation counsel and president of the Piney Branch Citizens' Association; Frank M. Schertz, a vice president of the group and chairman of the Dinner Committee; Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations; Milton Vollmer, secretary of the Georgia avenue Businessmen's Association; the Rev. John Qually, pastor of the Church of the Transfiguration, who pronounced the invocation; David Babo, secretary of the Federation of Citizens' Associations; Frank Potter, president of the Petworth Citizens' Association; Daniel Dollard, president of the Arkansas State Society of Washington, and Frank Y. Pollard, first vice president of the Arkansas avenue group.

Entertainment was provided by community singing led by Ted Lewis, dancing and singing by the pupils of the Smithsonian Hodgson School of Dance and Expression, Capt. Dick Mansfield's chalk talk and the drawing of prizes. Music was furnished by Al Massie's Orchestra.

Approximately 250 members and guests attended the dinner.

Public Hearing Ends In West Virginia Senate Battle

Briefs Still to Be Filed Before Election Body Reaches Decision

By the Associated Press.
Prosaic legal considerations today replaced revealing testimony of political feuding in West Virginia's Senate seat contest.

The public battling ended—at least temporarily—with the close yesterday of oral testimony in support of conflicting senatorial appointments by Gov. M. M. Neely and former Gov. Homer A. Holt.

Now the entire matter rests with the Senate Elections Committee, charged with the task of determining whether Mr. Neely's choice, Joseph Rosier, Fairmont educator, or Mr. Holt's selection, Clarence Martin, Martinsburg attorney, should be seated.

That decision will be reached in

Businessmen Urge Klinge-Park Road Route for Bus Line

Military Road Is Second Choice for Proposed Cross-town Service

The Klinge road-Park road route was advocated last night by the Federation of Businessmen's Associations on a motion by Arthur F. Carroll, jr., for a proposed cross-town bus line. In lieu of this Military road was second choice in case the Public Utilities Commission did not think the former route feasible.

Nathan M. Luber, chairman of the Steering Committee of the interested citizens' associations of the city, pointed out the possibilities of both routes, but favored the Military road line.

A resolution asking that the District unemployment compensation tax be reduced from 2.7 per cent to 1 per cent for a period of at least five years was unanimously adopted. It was pointed out that at the present time there is a surplus of $20,000,000 in the United States Treasury that could be used to help run the District for 10 years.

J. Nelson Anderson, general counsel and chairman of the Law and Legislation Committee, said he would present at this session of Congress the opposition of the Federation to the spending of $25,000 of District funds on a survey for a tunnel under the Potomac River from Virginia to the District and also inform the Congress of the special desire of the body to have the Federal Government stand the expense of at least 50 policemen and guard legations and embassies. He said 5,000 hours of police time were spent last year for purely Federal functions by District policemen who should have been elsewhere.

Arthur Hartung, president of the Northeast group, presented a technical film taken by him of the inauguration festivities and parade. The meeting was held in the Continental Hotel. The next meeting will be called in the Hay-Adams House.

Use of Blind Volunteers In Air Defense Studied

The result of tests to determine the efficiency of blind volunteers in air raid listening posts is being awaited with interest here by many sightless residents, according to Miss Stella Plants, who heads the Department for the Blind, an organization supported by the Community Chest.

There can be little doubt that the blind have superior hearing. Miss Plants said, but this is due to the fact that sightless individuals have learned to "sort sounds" more efficiently than persons with a sense of sight to rely upon.

"Perhaps the ability to sort sounds better than sighted people will give some of these handicapped persons an opportunity to be of use in the national defense program," Miss Plants said.

"Every new channel of usefulness that is opened will serve to help blind persons toward more normal and more interesting contacts with the seeing world."

The tests Miss Plants referred to were those being conducted by the Army with the aid of civilians to determine the most effective methods for detecting the approach of "enemy" aircraft.

Committee Organization

Pending organization of the new House Judiciary Committee, consideration has been delayed on the bill to authorize heads of Federal departments to use "wire-tapping" methods in the collection of legal evidence against persons in their department suspected of plotting a felony.

The bill was introduced January

16 by Representative Hobbs, Democrat, of Alabama and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The measure would empower the head of any executive department to collect evidence by intercepting telephone, telegraph, radio or other messages when he has reason to believe that a felony is being planned or has been committed.

The use of "wire-tapping" methods would be limited to "any investigative agency forming a part of the department."

The bill further provides that such evidence shall be admitted as a "self-proving document" in any subsequent trials.

Democracy Served Best by U. S. Peace, Dr. Hutchins Says

Educator Warns Nation Is Drifting Unprepared Into European War

By the Associated Press.
 CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago declared last night that the cause of democracy would best be served if the United States stayed out of war.

The Nation, he said, has just begun to grasp the meaning of justice, democracy, the moral order and the supremacy of human rights. To go to war, he said, would be to cancel whatever progress has been made toward achievement of democratic ideals.

The 42-year-old educator and World War veteran asserted in an unsponsored address over an N. B. C. network that the American people, "defeated by martial music, fine language and large appropriations are about to commit suicide" by drifting into a war for which they are "morally and intellectually unprepared."

"The conclusion is inescapable," he said, "that the President is reconciling to active military intervention if such intervention is needed to defeat the axis in this war."

"We have made some notable advances in the long march toward justice, freedom and democracy," he said, "if we go to war we cast away our opportunity and cancel our gains. For a generation, perhaps for a hundred years, we shall not be able to struggle back to where we were."

"The Nation must secure for itself a realization of democratic ideals, he contended, before it can serve as a missionary abroad."

"I have supported Mr. Roosevelt since he first went to the White House. I have never questioned his integrity or his good will. But under the pressure of great responsibilities, in the heat of controversy, in the international game of bluff, the President's speeches and recommendations are committing us to obligations abroad which we cannot perform.

"The effort to perform them will prevent the achievement of the aims for which the President stands at home."

"False Path to Freedom."
 "The path to war is a false path to freedom," Dr. Hutchins said. "A new moral order for America is the true path to freedom."

Hitler, said Dr. Hutchins, "sprang from the materialism and paganism of our times. In the long run we can beat what Hitler stands for only by beating the materialism and paganism that produced him."

He urged national rearmament against "military or political penetration" and recommended aid to Britain, China and Greece "on the basis most likely to keep us at peace, and least likely to involve us in war."

A statement urging immediate enactment of the lease-lend bill and signed by 125 University of Chicago faculty members was issued while Dr. Hutchins spoke. There are approximately 900 on the faculty. The statement set forth that Americans who say the war is of no concern to the Nation "practice a policy of appeasement."

Army to Train 12,000 Flying Cadets Annually

Plans for expanding the training program of the Army Air Corps to provide basic training for about 12,000 flying cadets annually were announced last night by the War Department.

Eleven civilian schools are to be established, in addition to the 17 already existing, the department said. These schools will give basic training to a class of 1,100 cadets entering every year. After the weeding-out process the yearly output of qualified flying cadets is expected to reach between 11,500 and 12,000.

About 100 cadets will receive basic flying training at each of the 11 schools, which are to be located in the South and Southwest, where flying conditions are more favorable the year around. The five-week courses start March 22.

After completing their primary training the cadets will receive advanced flight schooling at Randolph and Kelly Fields and other Army air centers.

Auto Club Opposes Traffic 'Vigilantes'

Opposition to the appointment of a committee of 100 citizens to cooperate with police in reporting traffic violations was voiced today by the Keystone Automobile Club.

Describing the plan as "un-American," the club urged as a substitute the enlistment of persons as "citizen observers" to direct attention of motorists and pedestrians to dangerous practices in traffic.

Under this proposal, it was said, emphasis would be placed on safety education rather than enforcement. In addition, names of the observers would be made public.

G. A. R. Ladies to Hold Convention Tomorrow

The eighth annual convention of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of the Potomac, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the Hotel Washington.

The program will include a reception Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the hotel, followed by a memorial service and installation of officers. Mrs. Blanche Covert, department president, will preside at all sessions.

Pius Eleventh Guild

The Rev. Joseph B. McAllister of Catholic University will lecture on the "Liturgy of the Catholic Church" at 4 p. m. Sunday, at a meeting of the Pius Eleventh Guild at the Hotel Grafton. The lecture will be followed by a dinner and entertainment program in the hotel dining room.

Simple Homemade Candies Perfect Energy Food on Cold Winter Days

Citrus Fruits and Juices Make Wholesome Base For Luscious Sweets

Use of Thermometer Makes Results More Successful; Read Directions Closely

By Betsy Caswell, Woman's Editor.

Cold weather calls for additional sweets in the diet—especially for children. Making candy at home, and using fresh fruits as part of the ingredients is the perfect solution to the problem. The essential food values are combined with the energy-giving elements, and expense and trouble are at a minimum in the recipes given today.

With citrus fruits at the peak of their season, we suggest that you use them as a base for these simple candies which should give pleasure to young and old alike.

Equipment for successful candymaking includes: A pan large enough to allow for boiling and heavy enough to prevent ingredients from scorching, a two-tined fork for dipping, a wooden spoon for beating, a spatula, wax paper, metal baking sheets, a platter, standard measuring cups and spoons and a candy thermometer.

In making candy remember these rules: Measure ingredients and follow directions exactly. Proportions and temperatures have been carefully worked out to make the recipe successful. Testing candy in cold water for soft ball, hard ball, etc., is useful but not accurate. (It is much better to use a candy thermometer.) If cold-water test is used, try only one or two drops at a time. When candy begins to test, remove gently from heat so that it will not overcook while the test is being made.

ORANGE FRUIT PASTE.

$\frac{1}{2}$  cup ground unpeeled oranges
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cups apple sauce or stewed fresh or dried apricots or peaches
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup liquid pectin
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup light corn syrup
2 cups sugar

CANDIED ORANGE PEEL.

Peel from 4 to 6 oranges
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup light corn syrup
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup orange juice
 $\frac{3}{4}$  cup lemon juice

Choose oranges with clean skins. Cut fruit in halves and remove all pulp and membrane from shells. Remove all white pith and membrane from shells. Cover with water and add 1 teaspoon salt for each two shells. Boil  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour. Drain. Boil  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour in unsalted water—or until tender—changing water several times, if necessary, to remove all bitterness from peel. Drain and cut peel in strips.

Make a syrup of the corn syrup, sugar, lemon juice and  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup of the extracted orange juice. Bring to boil and add candied peel. Boil slowly in syrup being sure peel is absorbed. Drain and place on waxed paper. Roll in granulated sugar.

Rock Candy Strips: Roll in crushed rock candy.

Colored Peel: Add red or green vegetable coloring to syrup or roll strips in colored sugar.

Spiced Peel: Add a little cinnamon, clove or ginger to syrup. The whole spices in cloth to prevent darkening peel. Gmner added to syrup gives a confection very much like crystallized ginger root.

Chocolate Peel: Coat the strips of candied peel with melted dipping chocolate.

ORANGE SUGARED WALNUTS

1 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound walnuts
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cups sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel.

Cook sugar and orange juice together to 240 degrees F. or soft-ball stage. Remove from heat, add orange peel and nuts. Stir until syrup begins to look cloudy. Before it hardens, drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper. Separate into individual kernels.

ORANGE FONDANTS.

$\frac{1}{2}$  cup evaporated milk
 $\frac{2}{3}$  cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup butter.

Cook in saucepan, stirring until mixture comes to boil. Cover and continue boiling slowly about 3 minutes to dissolve any sugar crystals which may begin forming on sides of pan. Uncover and cook very slowly, without stirring, to the soft-ball stage (240 degrees F.). Pour onto buttered platter. Cool until mixture retains a dent made by the finger. Beat or stir with a spatula or large spoon until fondant is smooth and creamy. If desired, place in a pint jar and store in refrigerator overnight to "ripen." Roll into balls, varying as follows:

Orange Coconut Creams: Make balls of fondant into which coconut has been kneaded.

Orange Nut Creams: Top balls with walnut halves.

Orange Cream Dates: Stuff topped dates with balls.

Chocolate Orange Creams: Coat balls with melted dipping chocolate.

ORANGE MARSHMALLOWS.

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup orange juice
2 cups sugar
1 egg white
1 teaspoon grated orange peel.
Powdered sugar.

Soak the gelatin in  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup of the orange juice. Add the other  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup orange juice to sugar and boil to hard ball stage (253 degrees F.). Stir this into the soaked gelatin and beat until dissolved. Beat egg white until stiff. Gradually beat the gelatin mixture and orange peel into egg white and continue beating until cool and stiff. Pour into a square pan that has been buttered and dusted with powdered sugar. When firm cut into squares with a sharp hot knife. Roll in powdered sugar. Keep in a covered container in refrigerator to retain moisture.

GLACE ORANGE SEGMENTS.

A candy thermometer is required for success in this recipe. These orange segments are best served the day they are prepared. They are not suited for candy gift boxes.

2 cups sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon cream of tartar.
1 cup water.

Mix ingredients in saucepan over a hot fire. Stir constantly until until sugar is dissolved. Let syrup boil to the hard crack stage (310° F.) as determined by thermometer. This mixture will begin to discolor. Remove from heat at once and check boiling by setting saucepan in a pan of cold water. Then remove from cold water and set in a pan of hot water while dipping orange segments.

Prepare orange segments by peeling fruit and separating into sections without breaking fine membrane surrounding each one. Be sure each segment is dry and unbroken when dipped. Drop segments separately into syrup and place on metal sheet to harden. Remove segments from syrup preferably with tweezers. A fork may be used but care must be taken not to pierce fruit and release juice.

UNCOOKED FRUIT CARAMELS.

1 cup raisins (seeded or seedless).
1 cup figs.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup dried apricots.
1 cup stoned dates.
1 cup California walnuts.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup candied orange peel.
6 candied cherries (optional).
2 to 4 tablespoons orange juice.

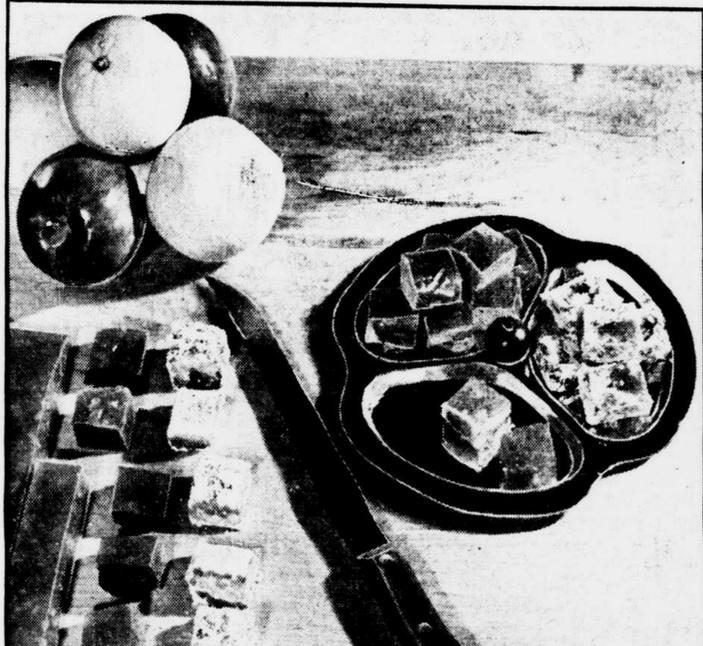

Wash dried fruits. Put through food chopper with nuts. Moisten with orange juice, using just enough to hold fruits and nuts together. Pack into buttered pan. Chill overnight in refrigerator. Cut in squares and dust with powdered sugar. (Put a little of the powdered sugar in a small paper bag. Drop candy squares into bag a few at a time, and shake.)

Cranberry Punch Base

4 cups cranberries.
4 cups water.
1 cup sugar (or more to taste).

Cook cranberries in water till the skins pop. Strain through cheesecloth. Place juice on stove, bring to boiling point, add sugar and boil two minutes. For hot punch add unchilled carbonated beverage and serve immediately. For storage pour the warm cranberry liquid into sterilized bottles and seal. Combine with your favorite carbonated beverage when ready to serve.

For That After-School Snack...

Delicious and healthful candies are easily made at home, to benefit that sweet tooth that seems to become troublesome along about the middle of the afternoon, when the youngsters get back from school. Using fruits and fruit juices as the principal ingredients adds much food value to these tempting morsels.

By Dorothy Murray.

Be smart and have a seasonal cookie cutter set. By "seasonal" we mean that the cutters are made in forms to symbolize any holiday.

For instance, one in the shape of a heart would be nice to use for St. Valentine's Day, while another in the form of an ax symbolizes George Washington's Birthday. You will also find these quite sharp enough to cut sandwiches. . . .

Did you ever hear of a peeling knife with knee action? Well, we have and it is really helpful when peeling potatoes and carrots because it allows only a thin skin to be removed. It is also an excellent item to have for shredding cabbage. The blade is made of stainless steel and as an added attraction, on the other end there is a gadget for slicing string beans. . . .

At long last we have found the salt shaker that will not allow the salt to clog during the damp weather. This is prevented by having the openings in the bottom instead of the top. The salt shaker and its twin brother for pepper are made of glass and have a lever on the top of each which when pushed releases the seasonings. These fit securely into a bakelite base which may be obtained in any color. They are very attractive as well as helpful.

"Tobacco Road" is the title printed on a humidifier that is made to resemble three books placed between book ends. The supposed books are marked as volumes one, two and three, and the appearance is very realistic. The outside of this humidifier is covered with leather and has gold lettering. The interior is lined with wood. . . .

It is a well-known fact that women hate to throw anything away, and when they do they will usually find them hurrying to retrieve the discarded articles before the collector arrives. This collection of salvaged items is usually placed in various containers such as empty cans, powder or hosiery boxes and then stored in bureau drawers. Recently placed on the market is a set of eight boxes made to take care of this situation. When empty, the boxes nest compactly together, but are useful for keeping the many items such as buttons, jewelry, handkerchiefs, art materials, etc., under control. . . .

My Neighbor Says
If your floors are worn and will not hold wax, try touching up the worn places with white shellac and then wax. The floors will be much improved by this treatment.

Stewed prunes, stuffed with cheese, nuts or celery and arranged on lettuce leaves, make a suitable salad with chops or roasts. French or mayonnaise salad dressing may be used with it.

Give lilac bushes plenty of room, perfect drainage, good cultivation, a little bone meal once in a while and each year a top dressing of manure. If you follow these directions your lilacs should flourish.

Wash silk underwear in lukewarm water, but never in hot. Do not rub hard or twist fabric. Remove the water by patting the silk between towels.

If mayonnaise curdles in the making, add a few drops of cold water to the curdled mixture.

Plant seeds in the house during February and March, transplanting as seedlings grow.

Paint piazza and garden chairs now so that they may be thoroughly dried before you wish to use them.

To stir paint thoroughly use a small paddle. Paddle may be made by cutting off enough of one leg of a clothespin to fit over edge of can when not in use.

Grease spots on wall paper may be removed by covering with a paste made of cornstarch and water. When dry, brush off and stain should disappear.

Dorothy Dix Says - - - Women of Today Have More Fun Than Did Their Grandmothers

A correspondent asks: Are women happier now than they were in our grandmothers' time? I don't know whether they are happier now than they were then, but they certainly have more fun. Happiness is a state of mind and it may be a sort of mental anesthesia in which you do not suffer because you are not feeling anything, but fun is doing something interesting out of which you get a kick. Life for Grandma must have been a pretty dull affair, hedged in as it was with mother and the conventions on one end and a wife's duty on the other end, and with nothing in between but cooking, mending, darning, baby-tending and toying the line so discreetly she never got talked about. Nothing but an omelet soufflé education for her, no matter how good a brain the Lord had given her. No career, no matter how much talent she possessed. No dates unless mama was allowed to listen in on every word that was said. No more liberty than a canary bird in a cage. Not even the poor privilege of picking out her husband, for a nice girl married the good match her parents selected for her. And if a girl belonged to a poor family her lot was, indeed, a sad one for she was a helpless prisoner in the jail of the social customs of her day. She could not go out and get a job and support herself because a perfect lady was not supposed to work outside of her home, and, anyway, about the only gainful profession open to women was marriage.

What a proud-spirited, independent, intelligent, able-bodied woman suffered in having to sell herself for a living when she knew herself perfectly capable of making her own bread and butter; the humiliation she endured in better-off relations and wearing their old clothes, and the shame that burned her up in being the fringe on the family that did not want her, no tongue can tell. But it was a martyrdom that thousands of women went through in grandma's time.

Of course, divorce was an almost unheard-of thing in those days, but that was not because marriage was any more a bed of roses then than it is now. Grandma was just as frisky as the modern husband, but grandma had to suffer and be strong because there wasn't anything else she could do.

She couldn't put on her hat and slam the front door behind her, because if she left her husband she had nowhere to go. She had to stand him, whether she lost her taste for him or not.

And there were no alleviations of matrimony then, as there are now. Unhappily married ladies couldn't slip the yoke that let the galled places heal by taking a trip. No could they go in for causes and belong to clubs, or substitute other pleasures for the lack of pleasure at home.

So it is no wonder that grandma was called a "settled married woman" at 20, and that by the time she was 40 she was an old woman.

Of course, the woman of today has her troubles, but compared with grandma, she leads a life of almost hilarious joy. The world is hers and she is free to take her share of the pleasures and perquisites and emoluments of it.

Every occupation is open to her and she can know the greatest thrill that ever comes to any human being, that of independence, of knowing that she can stand on her own feet and support herself.

Perhaps the modern woman does work too hard and play too hard. Perhaps with having gotten the right to earn her own living, she has the necessity to do it. Perhaps she has cares and anxieties that grandma never knew and lacks the peace that grandma called happiness. But she has a life that tingles with excitement and thrills, and she has lots of fun.

DOROTHY DIX.

Use Plain Colors on Chairs To Offset an Elaborate Living Room Scheme

Heavy Oil Paint or a Special Preparation Most Effective For Cement Back Porch

By Margaret Nowell.

DEAR MISS NOWELL: I am very much perturbed about my living room furnishings. For I seem to have too much design. Can you tell me whether or not the finished effect of the following scheme will be too jumbled? The rug is a figured, hooked rug with a medium size conventional pattern; the draperies of a small, all-over English chintz pattern. The sofa has a stripe with a small diamond pattern in between. The only plain material in the room is in the ruffled curtains close to the window. I have three other chairs in the room, which need going over. These I presume should be plain, but what color?

MRS. T. G.

Answer—From your description of the size of your pattern, I think it will be all right. You have neglected to give me the color scheme, so I cannot tell you what color to use, but needless to say it should be plain. If possible, do two chairs in two shades of the same color, for instance, one in soft pale rose and one in deep rose, or two shades of gold color. Then the other chair may be in a contrasting color. Select tones that tie the rug and drapery colors together and I think you may find that it will be most effective.

DEAR MISS NOWELL:

Our back porch is cement and was painted last fall with the idea that it would be cleaner looking. We used several coats of enamel paint, but it was expensive, but it flaked off almost immediately and now is completely bare in the traffic strip. Is it possible to remove what is left? What shall we do to either get back the plain concrete or repaint?

F. S. C.

Answer—I am sorry that this happened, but enamel paint is better for wood or metal than for cement, and therein lies at least part of the trouble. Remove the rest of the paint with a good paint remover which your paint dealer will recommend. Just for luck, wash the surface with a solution of zinc sulphate and warm water, to neutralize any alkaline spots. Then paint with a priming coat of oil paint and varnish mixed. After that, two coats of heavy oil paint or the specially prepared cement paint will fix the porch for several years.

DEAR MISS NOWELL:

I have a hundred dollars to spend on my bedroom. Would it be wise to invest this in one good piece of furniture like a highboy or chest of drawers and make out with the old beds and other accessories, or would it be better to buy an expensive bedroom set that will give me the usual pieces?

J. T.

Answer—With the advantage of the present furniture sales, your $100 should buy a fine highboy, or possibly that and one other small piece like a bedside table. Your money will be used up on beds alone if you plan on new springs and mattresses as well as the bedsteads. With another hundred next year you might get the beds, and then you will have the nucleus of the furnishings for a bedroom which will be worth passing on to posterity.

DEAR MISS NOWELL:

I am about to buy the utensils for my kitchen and cannot decide whether to invest in enamel, wood, aluminum or glass. Each one seems very desirable, and there seem to

Susan—Be Smooth!

By Nell Giles.

Even with rigid soap and water cleansing of cream or liquids, your skin is most likely to develop blackheads, which are the hardened secretions of oil and dirt in your pores. Of all complexion faults, blackheads are the most common and the most unattractive.

Therefore, most Susans have developed the "picking habit" . . . a 15-minute session in front of the bathroom mirror every night, gouging and punching at nose and chin to dislodge the dirt. Picking out blackheads never entirely removes them. You have only pinched off the top, and in doing this have bruised thousands of tender skin cells, some perhaps permanently.

You have further enlarged and toughened the area of skin cells which produced these blackheads, and tomorrow night you have this to do all over again.

There is one further bad effect from picking blackheads which has to do with the mind, not the face. We have noticed that Susan in her blackhead session is Susan in a daydream. Break yourself right now of the daydream habit. Substitute action for dreaming and you'll find those wandering thoughts coming true. This psychology is not too deep for you; we know that you understand exactly what we mean.

And so, for this psychological reason . . . which, we are sure, would bewilder the manufacturers . . . we recommend a better way to remove your blackheads. There are any number of masks on the market, compounded of stimulating herbs and fuller's earth, which will pull the blackheads right out. There are also grains and meal, which are most effective in removing and out again. Any of these dozen products are safe and successful; they are all fun to apply (which will encourage you to use them) . . . and any one of them will eliminate the dancing, picking and punching habit and will substitute a definite act for a state of dreaming. In the four or five minutes it takes the cream to dry on your face . . . actually you'll need it just where the blackheads are . . . you'll have a chance to go on with your dressing or undressing, as the case may be.

We do not believe in heavy powder foundations for young skins. We believe that these foundations teach you to cover up skin faults rather than to cure them. If your nose gets red and shiny, add more fruit and fresh vegetables to your diet and improve your circulation by walking and exercise. If your chin is pimply, cut out the sweets and chocolate in your diet . . . don't cover up the pimples and continue to do the very thing which makes more pimples. Get your skin to the "scrubbed, dewy look" by legitimate means.

Tomorrow—MAKE-UP—A GOOD FOUNDATION.

Manners of the Moment

This skiing business is something that a girl shouldn't go into casually . . . or even, for that matter, purely sartorially. I've noticed girls around the place who get themselves all diked out in the cutest ski outfits you ever saw. But they forget to get the skis and the ski poles.

Then they hit themselves out to the country for a week end, and very cheerfully they approach their host or their boy-friend, and remark that they're all ready to try the sport. If there is an extra pair of skis they could borrow.

Well, my dears, skis aren't like golf balls. The real ski addict has his skis specially fitted to his feet, and he babies them like a violin virtuoso babies his Stradivarius. So when you ask the boy friend if you may borrow his skis for a try at the game, you are asking a great deal of him. He may loan them to you, but afterward, when he is working with screwdriver and muscle to readjust them to his own feet again, he will begin to wish he had never met you.

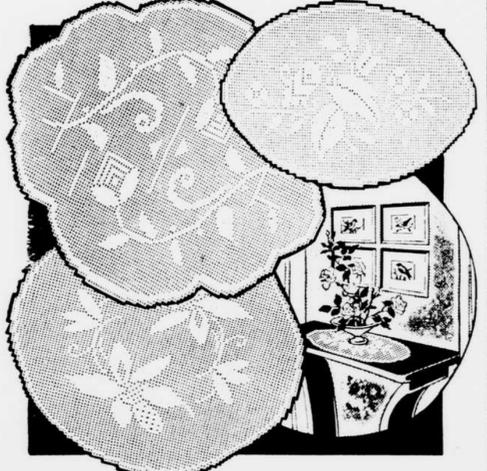

It's best to have your own, or use none. Borrow a man's skis and you may break his heart, and your own leg at the same time. JEAN.

Roast Pork Supreme

6-lb roast.
2 cups ginger ale.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup brown sugar.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup dry bread crumbs.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon concentrated maple flavor.

Whole cloves.
Roast pork in uncovered pan 30 minutes in slow oven, with skin on. Take from oven, remove skin, score fat and spread with mixture of bread crumbs, brown sugar and maple flavor. Stud with cloves. Return to oven for  $\frac{1}{2}$  hours, basting frequently with ginger ale. Add more ginger ale if needed.

Unusual Centerpieces

By Baroness Piantoni

The three filet lace dollies offered today are different in size and design yet are enough alike in feeling to fit into the decorative scheme of any one room. With size 30 cotton, the oval or smallest measures 17 by 11 inches; the round one measures 16 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches in diameter while the largest one measures 21 $\frac{1}{2}$  by 16 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

Baker Anticipates Good Season for His Tigers, No Worse Off Than Year Ago

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

Detroit's Problem: National Defense, Legislation, Senility

The major league baseball rosters are beginning to arrive and, with perhaps a dozen or so yet to come, it seems safe to assume that the team defending the American League pennant will be the oldest club in the big show.

The flag defense problem of the Detroit Tigers is nothing less than terrific. They are strapped by the non-trading rule which Clark Griffith authored in 1939 following four straight pennants by the Yankees.

The Tigers are hoping that Charley Gehring has another year left in him. Gehring is 38. They are going to try to squeeze another full campaign from Shortstop Dick Bartell, who is 34 and has rheumatic legs.

Few of Newcomers Indicate Much Promise

Not Tommy Bridges nor Schoolboy Rowe but the ageless Buck Newsom is the ace of the Tiger pitching staff now. Newsom is down at 32, which means practically nothing because it wasn't until he turned 30 that he developed into a good pitcher.

Next to Catcher Billy Sullivan, the Tigers' most-used pinch-hitter last year was Earl Averill, now a ripe 38. Desperately seeking a reserve infielder to fill in for Higgins, Bartell or Gehring when their seams begin to split, Detroit came up with Eric McNair, who is 31.

The Tiger roster fails to suggest that many of the newcomers will prove a big help. A right-handed pitching rookie named Harold White won 16 and lost 4 for Buffalo last year, indicating that he may help, and an outfielder named Ned Harris batted .312 for Beaumont.

Griff's Non-Trade Rule May Be Junked

The low draft number of Greenberg and the possibility that he may be called by the Army in June apparently has revived the attack against Griffith's non-trade rule, which was put into effect to prevent a single club from monopolizing the pennant.

The Greenberg affair, if it happens, may be the spark to ignite and burn the rule. Despite the fact that his team was penalized and probably lost the 1940 pennant as a result of the rule, President Ed Barrow of the Yankees is believed to be in favor of junking it and, if the Army swallows Greenberg in June and thereby helps to wreck a team which happens to represent the best baseball town in the country, Barrow may be the man to lead the attack against Griffith when the brass hats hold their mid-summer meeting on the occasion of the All-Star game, booked at Detroit on July 8.

The fact that many are not sold on the rule, anyway, lends credence to the report that a voiding will be attempted. And if Greenberg is taken from the Tigers, and if the Tigers find themselves helplessly tapping toward the bottom, and if the Detroit fans suddenly decide there is more entertainment away from the ball park, American League clubowners are pretty sure to rescind the legislation because that will be important money out of their pockets.

Crosby Golf Scramble For 'Big Name' Pros Starting Today

Guldahl, Demaret, Snead, Nelson Among Stars Gallery Favors

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif., Jan. 24.—Two-time winner, Slammin' Sam Snead may bag the $3,000 Bing Crosby pro-amateur golf tournament for the third time, but gallery experts were as unsettled as the weather today as the first division of the links brigade swung out in the first round.

While Snead and most of the other name-professionals take their first whacks at the Rancho Santa Fe course tomorrow, 19th hole observers tried to guess a winner of the 36-hole affair.

Guldahl Well Favored. Tall Ralph Guldahl, whose feat of winning the National Open crown two years in succession, was the top choice of many.

Oliver Last Winner. "Let it rain," Crosby sang. "We'll just play one round and the whole purse still goes. If it rains again, we'll shoot for it with mallets."

Harrison roamed in with a pair of 69s in 1939 for first money and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del., blossomed into prominence with a winning score of 68-67-135 last year. Par is 36-36-72.

Lanahan Gets in Line To Hurl for Bucs

Lanahan, 27, won six and lost eight for the Bucs in his first full season of major league baseball last year.

Young Pitchers To Aid Detroit, Pilot Figures

McNair Held Infield Help; Not Worrying About Greenberg

LAKELAND, Fla., Jan. 24.—Delmar Baker isn't predicting that the Detroit Tigers will win the 1941 American League pennant but says, "We're no worse off than we were a year ago."

Since they were good enough a year ago to launch a drive that took them into the World Series it would seem the Detroit manager doesn't expect them to finish in the cellar this year.

"Practically everybody placed us in fifth place in pre-season predictions last year," Baker said today at his winter home here, "but somehow we fooled 'em."

Many Young Hurlers Due. Taking inventory of his squad, Baker said that a flood of young pitchers will be coming up to help the Newsom-Bridges-Rowe combine; that the catching staff is one of the most capable in baseball; that the aging infield has been strengthened by the addition of Eric McNair, "who I think has a lot of good baseball left in him," and that the outfield is pretty well set if Uncle Sam doesn't take big Hank Greenberg for Army service.

No Infield Worries. Concerning the infield situation, which is the chief worry of Detroit fans hopeful of another pennant, Baker asserted he believed it is every bit as good as a year ago.

He said Charley Gehring's back ailment seemed to be clearing up and he expected the veteran second baseman to have a good year. Rudy York, of course, is a fixture at first base and Pinky Higgins is all set to play third.

"I'm going to turn McNair loose with Dick Bartell and Frank Croucher and let them decide which will play shortstop," he said.

EVERYTHING IS ALL SET—These sportsmen yesterday completed details for the basket ball game for the infantile paralysis fund that will find Catholic U. and Georgetown opposed to the pro Washington Brewers at Riverside Stadium Sunday night.

Brewers Will Shift Basketekers Against Cards and Hoyas

Starting Players Named For Composite Game to Aid Paralysis Fund

The Washington Brewers today announced they will employ separate shifts of players against Catholic University and Georgetown in Sunday night's basket ball game at Riverside Stadium, the profits of which will go to the Mile o' Dimes fund for the relief of infantile paralysis.

Coach Mack Posnaek has decided to juggle his talent in the two 20-minute periods. Against Catholic University in the first period he will use Whitney Wilson and Moe Dübiller, forwards; Howard Bollerman, center; and Ben Goldfadden and himself at guards.

Against Georgetown he will start Wilson and Nat Frankel, forwards; Bollerman, center; and Phil Rabin and Ben Kramer, guards. Otis Zahm, crack forward, is lost to the Brewers at present due to a damaged rib and may be out for the season.

Catholic U. will start Brendon Stynes and Mike Cherello, forwards; Jack Reidy, center; and Jack Daly and Jim Mulvihill, guards. Georgetown will step out with the same lineup that has started in its last 10 winning games, with Jim Kiernan and Jim Giebel, forwards; Bill Bornheimer, center; and Francis O'Grady and Irving Rizzi, guards.

Four outstanding referees selected from the same lineup that will handle the feature and preliminary games. Dallas Shirley and Bucky Buscher will officiate in the pro-collegiate game, while Phil Fox and Bernie Lieb will work the 7:30 o'clock preliminary between St. John's and Bethesda-Chevy Chase High.

Colored Basket Tourney To Be Organized

A meeting to organize a basket ball tournament for colored Government employees will be held tomorrow night at 514 G street N.E., starting at 7 o'clock.

Teams wishing to participate should have representatives present.

Mile o' Dimes Fund to Profit From Three Sports Events

The local sports fraternity, ever eager to aid a worthy cause, is contributing heavily to the Evening Star-N. B. C. Mile o' Dimes fund for the relief of infantile paralysis and will continue to swell the purse over the week end.

Tonight's Eastern Amateur League hockey game at Riverside Stadium, involving the Washington Eagles and New York Rovers, will increase the fund, with 10 per cent of the receipts being donated from a match expected to lure a sizable crowd.

Another enticing bit of bait will be the basket ball game at Riverside on Sunday night, in which the Washington Brewers will play Catholic University and Georgetown quints. The entire profits will be poured into the fund.

Also kicking the kitty will be a turkey shoot Sunday at noon at Hilltop Tavern on Conduit road one-eighth of a mile beyond the District line.

Even during his career as manager at Washington and Cleveland, Sir, $35,000 is a lot of money, a lot more than I ever made. But Newsom and Feller are both fine pitchers right now."

And he repeated: "If they get it—they're welcome to it."

Boudreau Prizes B. S. Degree, Foundation of Future, More Than 'Rook of Year' Rating

Starting Players Named For Composite Game to Aid Paralysis Fund

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Lou Boudreau, who knows how to keep his eye on the ball, also has it on the future.

The picture of a sensational 23-year-old baseball star talking about the future may seem unusual. But then, Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians is an unusual young man—one who refuses to let all the praise and gifts that came to him this winter obscure his vision of that day when his diamond-starting years are over.

The record book indicates Lou hasn't anything to worry about for a long time.

Last season his first full one in the majors, he played in all 155 of Cleveland's games, batting a smart .295, driving in 101 runs, scoring 97 runs and leading American League shortstops afled with a .968 average based on only 24 errors in 755 chances. He was acclaimed the rookie of the year.

But those records, while he's pardonably proud of them, won't take care of him after he's hung up his glove for good—and he says "no one knows that any better than I."

"I love baseball and it's been grand to me," he says quietly. "But no player ever knows when some injury suddenly might end his playing days just when he's going his best. I'm proud of my averages, but I'm just as proud, or perhaps a little more so, of that bachelor of science degree I got at Illinois last year."

That bachelor of science degree was earned the hard way. Declared ineligible for athletic competition at Illinois three years ago when the Indians were found to be paying his mother $100 a month while Lou still was in school, he twice returned to the campus to graduate.

He wants to coach baseball at some college when his playing days are over and believes that degree—"something no one can take from me"—won't hurt his chances.

With his wife and small daughter Boudreau lives in a modest bungalow 25 miles south of Chicago's Loop.

Mrs. Phaler estimated that more than 3,000,000 women are bowling this year in the United States, with 100,000 appearing in sanctioned leagues.

Travis, in a letter to Lewis, said he would prefer to remain at third base, while Lewis says he won't play third unless President Clark Griffith increases his pay enough to offset the embarrassment Buddy feels will be his by playing there.

Lewis and Travis, only Washington regulars to hit over .300 last season, seldom have squawked over contract terms, but both are likely to confer with Griffith before signing 1941 contracts.

Next Meet in Los Angeles. The next International Congress is scheduled in Los Angeles in May and Mrs. Phaler is busy taking reservations and arranging the schedule.

Virginia's Harman Hurler, Catcher

Starting Players Named For Composite Game to Aid Paralysis Fund

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va., Jan. 24.—Coach Gus Tebell counts two outstanding hurlers in Bill Harman, 205-pound senior who performs at either battery assignment, and Alex Cave, sophomore, for his 1941 Virginia baseball team.

John Willey, a veteran from last year's team, is expected to be another to get a big share of the mound assignments.

Shorts Banned As Attire for Fair Bowlers

Poor Garb for Plump Tenpinners, National Secretary Opines

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 24.—The czarina of feminine bowlers took a look today at a fashion magazine depicting "what bowling women should wear" and turned down a neatly manufactured but emphatic thumb-on shorts.

Spread across the magazine pages were pictures of several girls—blonds, brunets and redheads—all clad in shorts.

"We do not, and will not, permit any of our members to wear shorts," said Mrs. Emma Phaler, secretary of the Women's International Bowling Congress. "They mostly bowl in slacks, but that is more true in the West than it is here."

"Shorts" Question Settled. "I guess the reason we won't permit shorts is that the well-shaped girls would look all right, but the fat women—that would be impossible."

And that just about settles the "shorts" question for the woman bowlers, for Mrs. Phaler rules with an iron hand when such debates arise concerning the 100,000 registered keglers of the so-called women's sex.

Just now, however, Mrs. Phaler has plenty to do besides putting a ban on shorts. She has been secretary of the International Congress for years and years and finally had to rent a downtown office when records of the organization began to overrun her home.

Next Meet in Los Angeles. The next International Congress is scheduled in Los Angeles in May and Mrs. Phaler is busy taking reservations and arranging the schedule.

Del Rio Bowlers Shoot for Monopoly on Coin in Major Southern Tournaments

From the PRESS BOX U. S. Needs More People To Stay Under Water

By JOHN LARDNER.
Special Correspondent of The Star.
NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (N.A.A.)—If some eager agent or promising young manager, fresh off the campus at Sing Sing or San Quentin, is looking around for a meal-ticket these days, I advise him to get hold of a "summersible" man or woman who can stay under water.

There's millions (well, anyway, hundreds) of dollars in staying under water. The sport has been quiet for 25 years, and the public hangers for action. The crowds would lap it up. For instance, I had sold tickets at a quarter a head I would have cleaned up $8625, enough to pay my fine and then some.

"The public demand for staying under water is terrific. The event should be held in some handy spot, like a horse track in a public square, where the fans can congregate. In no time at all you would have enough money to build a stadium around the trough, and then you could begin importing out-of-town talent, the best people in the under-water game, and you could sell your tickets for $1.10—60 cents in the bleachers.

Pauliquen Very Quiet While Under Water

"I do not pretend to be the best man that ever stayed under water, but until a true champion comes along I will gladly meet all comers. If you know of a good manager, send me his address. There is a fortune to be made in this racket."

E. Pluribus Unum is not telling me anything I don't know. If I've said it once I've said it a hundred times, that this country needs more staying under water.

The other day I was browsing through the works of Francis Goodly Menke, the sports historian. His chapter on staying under water is as thrilling as any detective story.

Take the day in 1917 when the great Maurice Pauliquen of Paris set the modern record for staying under water—6 minutes 29 1/2 seconds. What a day that was! Fair in the morning, with increasing cloudiness, and mild northwesterly winds.

Pauliquen went under the surface quietly, with a medium-sized ripple. There was no boastfulness in his attitude, no show. Pauliquen fundamentally was a modest man. If he sent up a bubble now and then, it was only to let the crowd know that he had not fallen asleep, that he was in there punching.

No Sharks Bothered Elsie Wallenda

When he came up, after 6 minutes 29 1/2 seconds, he was the same old Pauliquen. Success had not gone to his head. His assistants rolled him over a barrel a few times, and the crowd broke up. Some of them went home to supper. Some of them went around the corner to the movies. I forgot what picture was showing.

Pauliquen's record still stands. The woman's record is held by Elsie Wallenda, who stayed under water for 4 minutes 45 1/2 seconds in 1898, in the presence of four timekeepers. The timekeepers were just dealing their third hand of bridge when one of them noticed that Miss Wallenda still was submerged in the drink.

"I wonder if Elsie is all right," he said.

"Bound to be," said his partner. "There ain't been any sharks in this neighborhood since Monday."

And he was perfectly correct. Miss Wallenda came up unscathed and refused two magazine offers to write her reminiscences.

"I am not in the under-water game for glory," she said. "I am in it for the sake of the sport."

Finney Made His Mark Sinking Under Water

In 1882, while fully clothed, the great James Finney swam 339 feet under water at the Prince of Wales baths in Blackpool, England. In the true test of skill, however—the stationary under-water event, with no nervous swimming around—the best Finney could do was 4 minutes 29 1/2, not even as good as Prof. Beaumont, the Australian ace.

"I get restless down there, when alone with my thoughts," explained Finney. He did not say what his thoughts were, but his friends expressed the opinion that they chiefly were political, and pretty deep.

As for H. Bennett's record—3 minutes 15 1/2 seconds under water, standing on his hands—I do not think trick stuff is what the public wants. The public wants dignity in the under-water game. And they want it fast. As E. Pluribus Unum says, a man can make his fortune today with perseverance and a good, accessible horse-trough.

Ballplayers Soft Now, Says Kelley

By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—Mike Kelley, an old-timer himself, took down his hair last night before 150 Old Guards of the Diamond at their 20th annual dinner, and pitched scorn at modern ballplayers.

"I think they are petted and pampered too much; they are hothouse athletes," said the owner of the Minneapolis club of the American Association.

Nowadays a club carried 8 to 10 pitchers and "they think they are overworked when they pitch twice a week," continued Kelley. In the old days, "I used to win pennants with five-man pitching staffs."

"Nowadays, some ballplayers insist upon laying off if they discover ingrowing hair on their faces," declared Kelley.

Master Barbers Out Front in Scramble For Pin Pennant

Clip National Capital Loop Leaders, Gain Edge of 2 Games

Sweeping the erstwhile leading Structural Porcelain Club, Harry Rich's Master Barbers last night at the Lucky Strike moved two games out front in an exciting National Capital League flag scramble. Bill King, whose timely last-bat strike paved the way for the rout, led the charge with 387. Ed Nash contributed a potent 381.

The Benmacks continued to climb with a 2-1 victory over the strong Chaconas Market. Sam Shreve's 381 and Dixie Davis' 145 were the winning wallops. Lou Pantos of the losers was tops with 397.

Despite a 2-1 loss to Jalepes Restaurant, Red Circle Food Shop gained a tie for the runner-up spot. With Harry Akroy's last-game homer of 141 in a 3-7 netting its lone win. Luke Lambert's 139-368 were high for the restaurant rollers, who posted 658 for high game. Ernie Hauser's 389 led Shaffer Flower Shop to a 2-1 decision over Potner's Grill.

Cornely Sidney Wells shone at the Lucky Strike with 126 as the leading Pinettes copped the odd game from E. & E. with highs of 508 and 1,480 in the Procurement Ladies League. Bess Smith of the losers was tops with 339. The Demons moved to second place with a sweep over the Cardinals.

The pacesetter Elite No. 1 bowlers came through with 552-1,612 to whitewash Page pimmens in the Laundrymen's League despite the gallant efforts of Harrup who shot 385 for the losers. Long of the winners with 365 turned in a high of 137.

Blanche Ely of Slow Meters with 120 and Ethel Ritt of Five Fuses with 317 were the stars in the Utility Ladies League. The Megawatts posted 458-1,355 at the New Recreation to sweep the Live Wires and garner team honors.

Tennis Fans Flocking To Watch Marble's Troupe Perform

Al Ennis, advance agent for the professional tennis troupe of Alice Marble, Mary Hardwick, Don Budge and Bill Tilden, estimates the 65-match tour will net between $175,000 and $200,000.

The troupe, which will appear at Ritchie Coliseum on January 31, already has drawn $62,848.50 in eight matches, some 42,138 fans seeing the court show thus far.

Ennis says Tilden, recently injured in an automobile accident, will be able to play here.

Marble Loses Net Tilt First Time Since 1939

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Jan. 24.—Alice Marble last night suffered her first defeat since the 1938 Wimbledon championships when England's Mary Hardwick outstayed her for a 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 victory before a 6,000 crowd at the Boston Garden.

She lost seven of the 14 service games she had in the 28-game match that was played without intermission.

"I get restless down there, when alone with my thoughts," explained Finney. He did not say what his thoughts were, but his friends expressed the opinion that they chiefly were political, and pretty deep.

Ifshin Lost to Wilson For Shepherd Game

Wilson Teachers eagars, out for their seventh win of the season tomorrow against Shepherd College, will be without the services of Hal Ifshin, high-scoring forward.

The game will be at 8 o'clock at Tech gym. Coach Doc White says that Ifshin, who has figured prominently in all of Wilson's victories, is abed with a severe cold.

Cue Masters Turn Over Gate For Layton's Hospital Bill

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Johnny Layton, famed Sedalia, Mo., redhead, won the world three-cushion billiard championship seven times. He valued it more than anything in life.

Today he found something he valued more—true friendship.

The men who shot the works against Layton in competition now are going to shoot the works for him—to help him in distress. Layton is flat on his back, gamely striving to recover from grave injuries. So the 18 players contending for the 1941 championship unanimously decided to turn their share of Sunday night's "gate" over to Layton to help defray hospital expenses.

The sum of $3,000 may be raised from the "gate" and other sources. Even the greatest of all billiard

Boast Eight Triumphs Of Nine Scored by District Pinmen

Strive Next in Virginia Open; 100-Average Man Turns in 190 Game

Already the winners of eight of the nine major state events captured by Washington bowlers and favorites to cop the sixth annual Virginia State Open tomorrow at Rosslyn and the third annual Julian Easterday in Baltimore Sunday, members of the great Del Rio teams, sponsored by Hero Sachs, bid fair to give the Capital a near monopoly on the 22 Southern major tournaments this season.

With three victories to his credit, Astor Clarke tops his illustrious mates, while Hokie Smith, the defending champion in the Easterday, and Perce Wolfe each have won two. Tony Santini, top money winner last season, so far has triumphed only once.

Oddy, Ed Blakeney, who tops the country in stake events with an average of 131, has yet to win one. His closest bid was second place in the United States Open. Harry Hilliard, the sixth member of the Del Rio, also is seeking his first conquest of the season.

The Del Rios have won more than $2,000 in prizes.

Al Wright, winner of the Ray Von Dreel, is the only other District pinman to cop a major event.

Duffer Rolls 190 Game.

In one of the season's standouts, Hyman Barr, a 100-average roller, banged out an all-time record of 190 in the Friends' Association League last night at Northeast Temple. Barr rolled a quadruple strike, but troy counts on two of his four spares cost him a 200 game. His whopper plus Lou Moss' 380 gave the Redskins season highs of 598 and 1,592.

An all-time record went by the boards in Section D of the Washington Catholic League when Don Hart Akroy's last-game homer of 141 in a 3-7 netting its lone win. Luke Lambert's 139-368 were high for the restaurant rollers, who posted 658 for high game. Ernie Hauser's 389 led Shaffer Flower Shop to a 2-1 decision over Potner's Grill.

Ray Watson, for year one of the leading rollers of the old Columbia Heights League and several times its champion, turned on the heat in the Brookland Merchants League with counts of 161 and 413. Hite's Shell was tops with 627 while M. P. M. Sarket registered a high of 1,778 to sweep Brookland Hardware.

Share Interior Laurel

In the Interior League at Penn Recreation, John Quinn of Wild Life Service, with 156, and Frank Gartside of National Capital Parks, with 391, copped the honors. Charley Dev's 140-369 led in Reclamation No. 1's 3-0 win from Survey.

Olive Pettit continued to hold the spotlight in the Silver Spring Ladies League, when her top 131 gave the pace-setting Shepherd Park quint a high count of 345. Mary Norris, with a high of 343, paced Silver Spring Standard's set of 1475. Shepherd Park has a four-game lead in the flag chase.

Louise Schlosser of the Orioles, with 122, rolled the highest game of the season in the Chevy Chase Ice Palace Ladies League. Pauline Ford of the Doves and Dorothy Flack and Thelma Robinson of the Meteors shared set honors with 341.

Lupien, Bosox Rookie, Makes Early Start

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—Clydes Lupien, former Harvard captain and ranked as Jimmy Fox's understudy, returned his signed contract in person today and advised Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox that he would gain a wide jump on the rest of the squad.

Lupien said he intended to make an early training start in the Harvard baseball cage.

The co-feature went to Mildred Burke, who has owned the title of the flying tackle Steinborn since she was a little girl. Miss Burke was a hold described as a cross between a shampoo and a facial massage to throw Gladys Gilliam.

The Masked Hornet crossed up everybody by playing the hero and winning from the Yonkers via disqualification of the latter. Ivan Managoff tussled 30 minutes with Warren Bockwinkel, but no dice. Fred Grubmier threw Tiger Tasker in 14 minutes.

Georgia Will Sponsor Southern Title Golf

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 24.—Georgia will sponsor the seventh annual Southern intercollegiate golf tournament at the Athens Country Club April 10-12.

Bert McDowell, Louisiana State, shotmaker, won the title last year.

Eagles Go for Eighth Straight Victory in Tilt With Rovers

Win Would Tie Record Streak of Olympics; Foe Strengthened

In quest of their eighth straight victory, the Washington Eagles tonight at 8:30 will tangle with the New York Rovers in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League game at Riverview Stadium with 10 percent of the receipts to be donated to the Mile of Dimes infantile paralysis fund.

Washington will be seeking to tie the season record held by the Boston Olympics and at the same time continue its mastery over the Rovers, who have dropped six of seven games with the Eagles.

Rovers Regain Injured Players.

New York will be fortified for the engagement, however, retaining Julie Sawchuk, Bob Brownridge and Frankie Parker, all of whom have been injured and introducing a new goalie in Reggie Haggerty, up from the Cornwall Club of Montreal.

Hal Dewey, Washington wingman who was granted a furlough in order to make a run over the Canadian railroad by which he is employed as a brakeman, is expected to rejoin the Eagles by game time.

Also attempting to prolong a streak will be the Eagles' flashy Norm Burns, who has scored at least once in each of Washington's last eight games. Burns has only to score 10 more goals to tie the 53-goal record established by Baltimore's Norm Calladine last season.

Four Victories Close.

Squaring the Eagles is a string of successes against the Rovers four of their games have been decided by a margin of one goal. Although New York has been floundering this season it remains an attractive drawing card here and a sizeable crowd is anticipated.

The Eagles is an announcement that the Eastern League champion will face the champion of the Canadian Senior League for the amateur championship of the world sometime in April. The series is expected to be played in Buffalo or Detroit.

The Eagles also have obtained permission to face the best players of New York, Baltimore and River Vale here on February 7 for the benefit of the Boys' Club of Washington.

Dusek's Flying Tackle Makes Steinborn Swoon on Mat

Ernie Dusek is one up on Milo Steinborn in their historical wrestling feud after taking the latest "rubber" match last night at Turner's Arena. Dusek's margin now stands at 972 victories against 971 defeats in this series. The figures are pretty close to those for the Dusek-Cox set, which Ernie leads by the comparatively safe advantage of 1,205 to 1,109.5.

In subdividing Milo Ernest employed a hold he hadn't tried since last week—the flying tackle. Steinborn swooned at the sight of Dusek's supple chassis rippling through the air like a flying torpedo and Ernie pinned him for the necessary 3 count.

The co-feature went to Mildred Burke, who has owned the title of the flying tackle Steinborn since she was a little girl. Miss Burke was a hold described as a cross between a shampoo and a facial massage to throw Gladys Gilliam.

The Masked Hornet crossed up everybody by playing the hero and winning from the Yonkers via disqualification of the latter. Ivan Managoff tussled 30 minutes with Warren Bockwinkel, but no dice. Fred Grubmier threw Tiger Tasker in 14 minutes.

Jenkins Go Step Toward Zivic Title Tilt, Declares Ambers, Not Planning Retirement

By SID FEDER.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Aside from tossing the label "bum" around carelessly, the best way to tangle with a buzzsaw at Mrs. Brown's uptown boarding house for refined fastid gentlemen these days is to tell laughing Lou Ambers he's training for a comeback.

You can call him most anything else you like and get away with it, but if you accuse him of that, the little fellow who was knocked out from under the lightweight crown last May is likely to stop strumming his guitar right there, grab it by the handle and bounce it off your brand-new fedora. He wants it distinctly understood he (1) never retired from the ring (2) isn't making a comeback now, and (3) is not tussling with Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins February 21 because he needs the money.

He is comfortably fixed with two annuities—one for his mother, the other, $60,000, for himself. He's just bought a house back in his home town, Herkimer, N. Y., and he's a successful laundryman there, besides.

Craves Action Again.

"I've got a lot of reasons for looking for fighting action again," he said today in the uptown rooming house where fighters have gathered (American or European plan) for years. "But the chief one is that this is my business. Sure, I'm doing pretty good at the laundry, but what do I know about washing socks and lace doilies. People that work for me do that. Fighting is what Lou Ambers knows."

"Look—I never quit the ring. It's just that since Jenkins stopped me last May, I took a longer layoff than usual. This was for two reasons. First, I was going to become a father. I couldn't let fighting or training interfere with that, could I? Second, I was just opening the laundry and since I'd sunk about $12,000 into that, I had to be around to get it running right."

"Now everything's okay again. Luigi, Jr. is doing all right and so's the laundry. We even have a boxing license for him (Luigi, Jr. I mean). So I'm back again to pick up where I left off. And take it from me, I'm going to win the welterweight championship before I quit."

Would Square Jenkins Feud.

"First I want to settle that little party with Jenkins. When I met

Weight-Lifters Match Beauty and Brawn In Title Meet

Weight-lifters of the District will match charms—and muscle and brawn—in a contest to decide the "perfect man" next Tuesday evening at the Jewish Community Center.

The contest will be held in connection with the D. C. A. A. U. annual weight-lifting championships and will be similar to the "Mr. America" contest staged in Madison Square Garden.

The Judges' Committee will consist of Maury Needham, professor of English literature at Georgetown University, James C. Hayes, B. P. Heiss, Gilbert Amies and Paul Dean. Mrs. John Dulin and Nancy Craig will handle the recording.

Georgetown Prep and Friends School ended all even in their opening game of the Private School Soccer League, deadlocking 1-1 when Mike Tobin of Prep made a penalty shot near the finish.

Rannett scored Friends' goal in the first period.

The SPORTLIGHT Great Track Mentor Easy on Athletes

By GRANTLAND RICE, Special Correspondent of The Star.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24 (N.A.A.)—It takes no subtle expert to understand that in the majority of cases that condition is one of the essential requirements in the making of a champion. But there are many arguments as to how one reaches condition along the surest and the quickest road.

"No, I haven't any very revolutionary ideas about the training of young athletes. I ask them to be sensible and temperate in their eating and adopt regular habits for sleep and exercise. If the average youngster will live a normal life, eat wholesome foods and be regular in his everyday habits there isn't going to be very much wrong with him."

The speaker was Dean B. Cromwell, famous track and field coach at the University of Southern California. Cromwell's teams have won so many track championships that the experts almost have quit trying to keep track of them.

I found Dean Cromwell at historic Bowdoin Field on the Trojan campus, the field which has sent six football teams to the Rose Bowl without defeat, the field which has been the proving ground for champions of the national and Olympic championships of the sport, the field which has turned out several prominent baseballers now performing in the major and minor leagues. Mr. Cromwell always is there, no matter what the season. Of course, Howard Jones attends to the football and Sam Barry bosses the baseballers, but the venerable Dean, now in his 32d year at Troy, keeps a weather eye on all the athletes.

Follow Good Home Habits Is All Cromwell Asks

"We're very fortunate here in Southern California," continued Coach Cromwell, "that the climate is so close to hand, plus the fine sunshine, provide most of the vitamins so necessary to good health for growing youngsters. The boys come from average homes where for years they have been eating the right kind of food.

"If a boy has been drinking tea or coffee and he comes to me a healthy youngster I'm not going to tell him to quit. If a boy has been a big milk drinker and he's sound physically I don't change his diet, even if some coaches do claim that drinking milk is bad for the wind."

Coach Cromwell's training orders sound simple, but there happens to be a little bit more than what he reveals. He sets his foot down hard on overwork, particularly in early season.

Trojans Boost Remarkable Bunch of Champions

Cromwell's rivals in the coaching business will be "advised" when he makes this statement. His Trojans have won 9 of the 13 N. C. A. A. meets in which they have completed, including the last six straight; taken top honors in the 1, C. 4-A the last seven times they entered and whipped Stanford in the A. A. U. last 12 dual meets to say nothing of bagging several Pacific Coast Conference crowns.

Cromwell believes the recent emphasis on Eastern indoor meets is bad on the college runners. Says it is his right for the A. A. U. and the promoters who cut up the mounting gate receipts, but states that the boys who are bearing down on the boards are put to too great a strain by having to be in shape clear through the summer for outdoor competition.

"You can bring your athletes to a peak only two or three times during a season," continued the Dean, "and these occasions must not be too far apart. I've asked Coach Cromwell what world record he thought would be broken next.

Rates Bud Houser Greatest Competitor He Has Coached

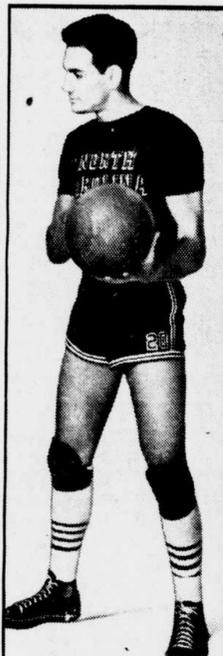

Cromwell has two other stars on his 1941 squad. They are Bob Peterson, the football fullback, who has hurled the javelin farther than any other American and Howard Upton, a fine quarter-mile. Incidentally, don't be surprised if the Trojan mile relay team regains the world record set last year by Stanford's quartet. Southern California held the mark for many years at 3:11.6. Last season Stanford cut this to 3:10.5, with a team anchored by the great Clyde Jeffrey. In addition to Upton, who has turned the 440 in 0:47 flat, Cromwell has Howard Bachman, Cliff Bourland and Hubert Kerns and two of these have beaten 0:48 flat.

The 60-year-old Trojan mentor, who appears and acts 20 years younger, has turned out a long string of champions, among them Charley Paddock, Morten, Bud Houser, Charley Borah, Lee Barnes, Frank Wyckoff, Dick Barber, Jess Hill, Bill Graber, Fred Kelly, Bill Setton, Earle Meadows, Ken Carpenter and many more.

He says Bud Houser, former world record holder in the discus and Olympic champion in the discus and the shotput, was the greatest competitor he ever coached.

Fred Kelly, he believes, was his greatest athlete.

"As a freshman at Southern California this boy, virtually unknown, went to Stockholm and won the 110-meter hurdles in 1912. He was terrific, the best I ever had," the U. S. C. coach said. Kelly now is head sprinter for one of the major airlines after serving many years as a pilot, and Houser is a leading dentist in Los Angeles.

RAMPAGING TOSSER—George Glumack, North Carolina's 6-foot-6-inch center, appears peaceful here, but it will be different tonight when he takes the court against Maryland at College Park. He's averaged 22 points a game so far this season.

Holbrook Carries D. C. Vote to Printers' Baseball Confab

Chicago Meeting Plans To Preserve Teams Hit By Defense Draft

Charles (Chick) Holbrook, veteran of the Union Printers' baseball team, will leave today for Chicago to represent his mates at the Union Printers' International Baseball League, which convenes tomorrow for a two-day meeting.

Thirteen cities will be represented at the convention, held annually in the same city where the major league bigwigs gather each year to discuss plans for the coming season.

Arrangements for the printers' annual tournament, which will be held this year in Indianapolis, will be made and the problem of keeping teams organized despite the loss of players who are drafted by the Army also will come up at the meeting.

The Washington team, which plays here in the United States Government League, already has lost two regular players from last year's squad by the draft and is in hopes of finding new talent among the city's printers who are under the draft age.

Undefeated Buckeyes Keen for Tilt With Badger Quintet

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Ohio State's undefeated Buckeyes, conquerors of Northwestern, Chicago and Michigan, the Big Ten's tall-end clubs, will meet the leading scorer of the conference, Gene Englund, lanky Badger center, has reeled off 61 points in five games.

In the only other conference game Saturday night, Northwestern will make its fifth bid for a Big Ten triumph in the national conference. Chicago, coes outside the league for its competition, playing De Paul of Chicago.

Maryland's wrestling squad, which lost its opening meet to Penn State, has eight more dual affairs and also will be host to the Southern Conference title tournament at College Park on February 28-March 1.

Like all other Terps, the grapplers are taking time out for mid-year exams and will not resume action until Gallaudet is visited on February 1.

Other dual matches are: February 5, Johns Hopkins at Maryland; 8, Rutgers; 13, Franklin and Marshall; 19, Haverford; at Haverford; 25, Duke; 26, Gettysburg; at March 8, Davidson.

Junior Middle at C. U. Thrills With Punch More Than Polish

Leon to Display Wares As La Fond's Boys Open Against Lock Haven

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

Some of us are just born lucky and some make good through persistence and stable training, but Eddie La Fond is guilty on both counts.

Tomorrow M. La Fond unveils his 11th Catholic University ring team in a match with Lock Haven (Pa.) Teachers at Brookings. Through Eddie's unsparing labor the boys will look and act like fighters, but the fact that he may have another five-star box office attraction is purely a stroke of good fortune.

We saw Leon Wowak work out earlier in the week, and he should lay 'em in the aisles—the customers, not his opponents. He's rugged. He loves to fight, and he hasn't any more polish than a pair of old shoes, but he's going to be the darling of C. U. supporters this winter.

Wowak, a 155-pounder, worked with Leo Houck—a fancy Dan! if we ever saw one. Houck was leached on a boxing glove and raised in an atmosphere thick with ring lore, so when he ties on the mittens he knows how to conduct himself. Well, he singled Wowak's whiskers until Leon must have thought somebody was using a blowtorch on him, but it didn't faze him. Blows rattled off Wowak's chin like a machine gun, and he still didn't affect him.

No Fun for Houck. When they called it quits Houck had a bloody nose and Wowak hadn't taken a backward step. He did style something akin to that of Steve Marmakes, with a punch sharper and harder. Nor did he get hit as often. But the point is he actually was willing to trade a couple of punches for one—a style that can't help please ring fans.

Blows rattled off Wowak's chin like a machine gun, and he still didn't affect him. Eddie has been extremely lucky in this respect. Last year he had Jay Turner alternating as a 175-pounder and heavyweight. Jay was exactly what the doctor prescribed for the Cards, even though he had one of its most powerful teams. A lot of fans pleaded their admission on the line simply to see Jay swing those haymakers, and his epic duel with Abe Cohen in the Columbus match will not soon be forgotten.

Before Turner, and with him for a time, was Joe Buns, a kayo artist. Before him was Leo Katalina, a heavyweight who lacked polish but had a lot of heart and a knockout wallop. Before "Kats" was "Angy" Restaino, Eddie Thibbs, dean Rocco Blasi, Sully Greco and others. They had their own following and kept the cash registers ringing merrily in the box office. The cash helped pay the freight on C. U. sports and did La Fond no harm in the long run. Eddie looked hopefully for another when candidates were called out this year, but had his fingers crossed.

Color in Card Line-Up. Wowak won't win all of his fights, possibly, because of long-armed individuals unwilling to meet in close quarters may stab him into defeat with long-range shots. But such individuals will endanger the record for backpeddling, because if they don't come to him Leon is going after them.

Catholic's line-up tomorrow night will embrace more than one colorful youngster. Ted Mandrius is slated to appear in the 120-pounder, and his thin frame encases a veritable little bantam. Lenny Barton, the 127-pounder, can punch as hard through a rock as he can hit it, and Lenny's aim is vastly improved this season.

Leo Gaffney is a newcomer in the 135-pound berth but a kid with a lot of polish, who eats, sleeps and lives boxing. He appears small for his weight, but La Fond doesn't think he's selling a boy's do on the job. He's the best boxer on the team.

Huck Hughes, a letterman, is back at 145 pounds, and Wowak gets the 155-pound assignment. Gerry Strang, who reached the final round in the national collegiate tournament last spring after a 3,000-mile auto trip across the country, is down for the 165-pound job, and unless a bad thumb injury is aggravated in his final workout today he should do all right. Young Ed will meet Tom Neidhart, 136-pounder, and the quotable Julius Stanges will take the heavyweight task.

That isn't a bad line-up. No, in fact La Fond thinks rather highly of it. He isn't counting the profits yet, but he thinks he's in for another good season.

The forwards covered the most territory, the instruments recording 5.31 miles for Fred Lapham and 5.14 miles for Tom Neidhart. Bob Adist, the center, registered 4.25 miles. Beck alternated his guards, who turned in a total of 9.31 miles.

The most active of the four secondaries was Will Oumette, the left guard, who played all but the closing minutes, and totaled 3.74 miles.

Basket Play Torrid In Four Divisions Of Rec League

Washington Flour Rated Roosevelt Favorite; U. T. Tech Winner

Washington Flour basketers loom as early favorites in the Roosevelt division of the Recreation League play after nipping the strong Government Accounting quint, 17-16, yesterday on the Roosevelt floor.

Bernie Chism paced the victors with 10 points, but the smart floor play of "Rolling" Joe Branzell kept his team ahead throughout the contest.

Other games in the Roosevelt division saw Bellman Fuel top General Tire, 29-16, and Jewish Community Center defeat McLean, 30-18.

At Tech, United Typewriters beat the strong F. B. I. quint, 37-35, in the closest battle. Regal's routed St. Martin's, 39-10, and Census nosed out Nebraska, 27-24.

The highest scoring fray was played at Central, where Sports Club Vardon defeated Treasury, 52-31. Railroad Retirement trounced the Cavaliers, 28-17, and Herby's topped Agriculture, 44-24.

The eastern division's closest tilt saw Post Office Mailing ed out Bowie, 29-23, while Sports Club trimmed Call Radio, 28-21, and Arlington Maccabees bowled over Braves, 47-11.

Landon I. A. C. Record Still Clear After Boys' Latin Tilt

Landon School retains its clear record in Interstate Academic Competitive basket ball with its 22-14 win over Boys Latin in Baltimore yesterday.

Paul Baker led the assault with 10 points and was the spearhead of the drive which gave Landon a 12-6 advantage at the half.

The men, incidentally, will enter the final phase of their challenge match with the fair riders, with a 13-2-fault advantage. Ellie Leh, Lisbeth Stieg and Mrs. C. E. ## Battle for Team Honors Tops Drama-Packed Horse Show Ending at Myer Tonight

By BILL DISMER, Jr.

Pronounced by seasoned equestrian fans to be one of the best horse shows ever held around Washington, the first event, celebrating the President's birthday anniversary, was scheduled to wind up tonight with another capacity crowd in attendance at Fort Myer's riding hall.

And in the wake of such dramatic incidents as occurred at the opening performance last night, another throng of 1,700 is expected to be storming the doors when the opening ceremony gets under way at 8:15 o'clock.

Such episodes as a virtually unknown Government-owned mare beating a recent Madison Square Garden champion, a favorite Washington rider making an auspicious return to the ring for the first time since suffering a serious spinal injury more than a year ago, a Fort Myer captain winning one of the feature events after taking the spiliest spill of the night and a spine-tingling exhibition by the 55th Field Artillery's famed "gray horse" battery sent the patrons out talking to themselves last night—talking about returning this evening.

Team Match Interest Keen. Indeed, so superlative was the entire performance that few gave vent to the only two disappointments—the failure of the President to be present and the appearance of Cinemator Preston Foster, advertised as a participant in the road back class, in the decidedly unheroic role of a referee.

Foster's activities were confined to presenting the trophy to the winner of the event in which he had been billed to ride.

Only one of last night's competitions will be repeated tonight, the conclusion of the team match between men and women riders, but the five classes scheduled should result in even greater efforts than afforded last night. That is because the American rules, in which even tips count, will be in effect in the contest, and the international rules prevailing last night in which only knockdowns were scored against the contestant.

The men, incidentally, will enter the final phase of their challenge match with the fair riders, with a 13-2-fault advantage. Ellie Leh, Lisbeth Stieg and Mrs. C. E. It was in this class, also, that Margaret Cotter returned to the ring after nearly a year's enforced absence and won the first of two ribbons she earned during the night.

Although seven horses were in the first jumpoff, but only Enterprise, with Capt. Wagstaff astride, and Miss Cotter's Rocksie reached the second round with Black Beauty. Rocksie was eliminated when he toppled the third jump on the next round, but both Black Beauty and Enterprise fouled on the sixth. In the third and final round, Black Beauty balked at the seventh obstacle, pitching Howze over her head and the hurdle, but was returned the winner when Enterprise toppled a bar at the fourth.

Terp Basketers Aim To Stop One-Eyed Scoring Wonder

Tar Heels' All-America Glumack Has Average Of 22 Points a Game

Maryland tangles with North Carolina in an all-terp conference basket ball game tonight at College Park and the Terps battle cry is "Stop Glumack."

Stopping 6-foot 6-inch George Glumack, the Tar Heel center, might not win the game, but probably it would knock 20 or 25 points off Carolina's first count and make the figures sound more respectable. Moreover, it would help the Old Liners shake off a feeling of futility slowly spinning a shroud around their hopes of winning a game. Stopping Glumack would slip a brilliant plume into their bedraggled caps. After all, it hasn't been done this season.

A singular angle to this is the Terps are setting up their defenses against a one-eyed sharpshooter, for All-America Glumack is handicapped by poor vision in one lamp. It's almost totally blind as the result of an accident in a sandlot football game. The big fellow's sight is at its best after 10 hours sleep, but he frequently is obliged to pause, clap a hand over the darkened optic and focus on the bucket with his normal eye.

But the bad Glumack glimmer apparently has had little effect on his point-getting. He chalked up 22 points against New York U. last Saturday and earlier in the year hit the hoop for 32 against Wake Forest. He averaged 22 points a game in 33 scored against Lehigh. He's averaged 22 for 13 games this year. Last year he rang up the tidy total of 458 points, quite possibly an all-time all-Southern record.

Glumack's poor vision, oddly enough, may have had a lot to do with his shooting. Seldom does he seem to concentrate on a hook shot from the foul zone—the toughest in the book. His tremendous height, remarkable timing, judgment of distance and long arms are of incalculable value. Seldom has a coach planned a plan for successfully coping with this one-man attack, although Burt Shipley, Maryland's mentor, did it two years ago when the Terps visited Chapel Hill. "Ship" gave instructions to George De Witt, no midget himself, and the Marylander did not stop Glumack with two field goals but chalked up eight.

Maryland has no De Witt tonight—not even a team on a par with the average outfit, but Shipley thinks he has another plan for halting Glumack, although he refuses to divulge any information on the subject.

If the scheme works all Maryland has to do is put the skids under four other pretty good players named Jimmy Howard, Bob Rose, Julian Smith and Paul Severin to win its first victory of the campaign. Otherwise you can mark it up for the Tar Heels, who happen to be the heavy favorites to take the conference title this year.

Mount Rainier Soars Above .500 in Win Over Rockville

Mount Rainier High's basket ball team is above the .500 mark after winning its fifth game in nine starts at the expense of Richard Montgomery High of Rockville yesterday, 20-14.

Mount Rainier's ace forward, Ludwig Rodriguez, staged a one-man show throughout the first three stanzas, scoring all of his team's points. His 13-point total was high for the game. Dick Virtz of Rockville was runner-up with 8.

Grid Star to Quit For Girl, Studies

By The Associated Press.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 24.—Frankie Sinkwich, sensational sophomore back at Georgia last season, is quitting football, he says, so he can have a date with his girl when he wants to and make a better showing in his studies.

The widely-publicized Youngstown, Ohio, player didn't show up for spring practice and explained, "I'm tired of football. Have you ever wanted not to be famous? Well, I want to do just that—to see my girl whenever I want to just like any other guy."

"My father told me I was interested in one making good grades. And that's what I'm out to do."

The gong, major—Ralph Richards of Methuen, Mass., thinks the national defense program should be relatively easy as long as we have Boston College on the Atlantic Coast and Stanford on the Pacific.

Upset Due as School Quints Stage Two Battles Tonight

Tech, Roosevelt Favored Over Wilson, Western; Tigers Injury Hit

By GEORGE HUBER.

Choice spot for an upset, or even two, is this evening's high school basket ball double-header at Tech gym. At 7:30 Wilson will battle Tech, and at 8:30 Western and Roosevelt will tangle.

Favorites on form are Tech and Roosevelt, but the series is overdue for an upset. Western is conceded the best chance of spilling the dope, what with Wilson handicapped by injuries and illnesses.

Western's veteran crew hasn't been playing up to its potential strength, although last week against Anacostia it displayed a punch which, if present this evening, should give Roosevelt's champions a load of trouble. Jake Hill, Irving Schenker and Jim Karas all were regulars last year. Don Cross and Hal Mitchell, the other two members of this evening's starting line-up, were well-used reserves, giving the Red Raiders the most experienced group of players in the District schools.

If they can match Roosevelt's fast early pace they stand an excellent chance of coming out on top. The Rough Riders are flying high with three successive victories in the series, all over clubs conceded a class. Irving Schenker and Jim Karas all were regulars last year. Don Cross and Hal Mitchell, the other two members of this evening's starting line-up, were well-used reserves, giving the Red Raiders the most experienced group of players in the District schools.

Wilson's Green Tigers are in poor shape. Bud Lemerie's injury in the Central game Tuesday turned out to be a severely twisted ankle and not a break as feared, but Bud is through for several weeks. It's a blow to the Tigers' chances because Fred Topp, Kupka planning to promote Lemerie to the starting five when Bob Bedell leaves school in February.

Bill Jawish, a Wilson regular, has water on the knee and probably will not play. Both Ed Polihmus and Fred Topp, regulars, have colds. The practice period yesterday consisted mostly of a roll call and a recapitulation of injuries and illnesses. About the only regular on whom Kupka can count is Don Hillock, but Hillock is a valuable asset. Although only a junior and playing his first year with the first team—he was a lightweight last year—the angular "Bones" is developing into just about the best schoolboy center in the city.

Tech is all set on its line-up, except for center. Coach Dutch Uhlman still is experimenting with several boys and probably will divide the job this evening between Tom Burnett and Buddy Webb.

Marriage by Appointment

The story thus far: Kelly Madigan, broke and at loose ends, with his football and stunt pilot careers well behind him, comes upon a dentist when he rescues a girl in a wedding dress from a swarthy fellow manhandling her on the street. Kelly and the girl, who is O'Dian, leave the man unconscious, leave the car in a cab, and a few hours later they are married. There's no admitted love, but there's $20,000 for Kelly, because Sherr's uncle and legal guardian, John O'Dian, was overheard by her dealing with her fiancé, George Gregory, to retain control of her inherited fortune. But that deal falls through and the money is legally hers now that she's married. An attack upon Kelly a few hours after the wedding convinces John O'Dian that the old man has not given up. Kelly beats off the attackers and he and Sherr return to their apartment.

CHAPTER IX

Kelly awakened to the violent, persistent shaking of a hard hand. He opened his eyes and as quickly closed them. Calvin was standing over him and shouting something. Kelly's head hummed, and his eyelids were so heavy he could not open them. His mouth felt as though it had been stuffed with cotton and there was a queer heaviness about the room.

Something clicked in his mind then. He struggled to sit up. Calvin helped him.

"What's matter?" His speech was thick, uncontrolled. "What's happened?" Kelly shook his head and a sharp pain shot across his forehead. Realization of something amiss was slowly coming to him. He focused his eyes attentively to hear what Calvin was saying.

"Speak slowly, Calvin!"

But the butler's voice was high pitched, frantic.

"Miss Sherr, sir! Miss Sherr!"

Kelly leered forward, grasped Calvin hard, the fuzziness in his head was clearing. "What are you saying? What happened? What's the matter with her?"

"She's gone, sir! They've taken her!"

Kelly caught his breath abruptly. Uncle John O'Dian!

"Who has taken her? Are you sure?"

"They came in here and forced her to leave. Three of them, sir."

"When? Why didn't you yell?" Kelly demanded savagely.

He bounded from the bed. Calvin was explaining as Kelly dressed frantically.

"This morning at about 3 o'clock. They came in with guns and caught me, tied me up and stuffed a gag in my mouth."

"Can you describe them?"

"The one who held the gun on me. I couldn't see the other two. They had a flash and they kept it in my eyes. I stared straight into it and after a while I could make out the outline of the man holding the light. He had a white patch on the side of his nose and his hair was turned down all the way around."

Kelly recalls fight.

"Ah," Kelly murmured. He was vaguely remembering what he had thought was a dream. The sensation of struggling was still with him; the hopelessness of being plucked down securely and after a while a delicious weariness, under which he had subsided quietly, had sapped the strength from him.

"They must have chloroformed me," he said aloud. "Let in some air, will you, my room is off."

The butler moved swiftly to the long windows, flung them wide. The morning air was sweet and clean. Kelly breathed deeply.

"How about the rest of them, Calvin?"

"I don't know, sir. After they tied me in the chair they put a gag in my mouth and a blind over my eyes. I just managed to work myself loose."

Kelly smiled briefly. "Good work, man."

"I heard their voices, sir. I think I could recognize them."

"Two others, sir. One had a harsh voice and the other was sort of deep a baritone."

Kelly's immediate thought was of George Gregory. But that was irrational. Gregory would be in a spot if he was in on anything like this.

Kelly needed time to think. His mind was rapidly clearing. Where could Sherr be? Kelly realized that he knew nothing about her life beyond what she had told him. She had mentioned a few things, but John O'Dian would not go there; that thing might accidentally go off.

"It might," Crosey said grimly. He rested the gun on the desk, but he kept his hand covering the butt. He flicked a button on his desk transmitter.

"Yes, sir," came the meticulous voice of the secretary.

"I don't want to be disturbed," Crosey said.

"Yes, sir!"

Kelly said, "I'm waiting. I might conceivably take that gun away from such a chance that, Madigan."

"Not much chance of that, Madigan."

Kelly settled back. "I'm waiting," he said quietly.

Tomorrow—Kelly takes matters into his own hands.

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.

(David Bruce Burnstone, Merwin D. Maier, Oswald Jacoby, Howard Schenken, world's leading team of four inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in existence.)

Bridge Swindles: No. 30

South's contract could have been defeated easily enough, if his opponents could have been sure of the correct defense to adopt. A simple bridge swindle by South was what threw them off the track:

East dealer Neither side vulnerable

West opened the queen of diamonds, and South won with the ace. It was immediately obvious to South that he couldn't afford to ruff out his three losing diamonds, for then he would have to get back to his hand each time by ruffling clubs. Eventually that line of play would leave him too trump weak.

The only other chance was to set up dummy's spade suit, but even this presented difficulties. To draw trumps first would allow the opponents to cash diamond tricks; and to leave the trumps at large would allow an opponent to ruff the third round of spades.

Since drawing the trumps was bound to be ruinous, South had to risk the spade ruff. At the second trick he led the ten of spades, and let it ride for a finesse. East won with the queen of spades and returned the club ace. South ruffed and continued his scheme by leading the five of spades. East won with the spade ace and assumed that his partner held the jack of spades. Abandoning all thought of a spade return, East tried a second round of diamonds. Thereupon South breathed a sigh of relief, for he was able to ruff in dummy, draw trumps, and discard his remaining diamonds on dummy's spades.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER — Pearly Nautilus in Single Chamber

In many schools pupils study a famous poem called "The Chambered Nautilus." It was written by Oliver Wendell Holmes and tells about the life of an animal of the sea.

"As the spiral grew," wrote Holmes, "he left the past year's dwelling for the new... built up its idle door, stretched in his last-found home and knew the old no more."

The chambered nautilus also has the name of "pearly nautilus." It is found in some parts of the Pacific and Indian Oceans, chiefly around the Island of New Guinea and the Philippines, also along the coasts of India.

The pearly nautilus was so named because of the pearly inside of its shell. During life, while the animal moves about under water, the outside of the shell does not glow with the beauty of a pearl. The shell of a dead animal can be treated with acids so the pearly layer is brought into view.

At the start of life the young pearly nautilus has only a small, horn-shaped shell. Its body grows inside this shell, then sends out material which forms a new and larger living place.

A Pearly Nautilus.

a wall and the body grows inside the second chamber, one end of which is open. Over and over again this happens until a dozen or more chambers have been formed.

Only the last chamber is a real living place during each stage of the animal's life. There are seven or eight dozen of these tentacles and they are useful in bringing food to the place where it is wanted. The food is made up of small crabs and other creatures of the sea.

Some knowledge of the pearly nautilus seems to have existed in Europe in ancient times. Aristotle wrote about an animal which probably was the same one, but did not say enough about it to make us quite certain about the point.

Close modern study did not take place until the year 1829 when a British traveler in the South Pacific found and took home a specimen. That was the year in which Oliver Wendell Holmes graduated from Harvard at the age of 20.

The pearly, or chambered, nautilus is too rare to have much to do with the world's food supply, but in a few places it has been captured in oyster pots. In some parts of India the body is salted, dried and served as food.

'Maisie' Carves New Niche In Capitol's Current Film

Philosophic Show Girl Takes Over A Society Family in Picture; Will Bradley Show Excellent

By JAY CARMODY.

Eventually the "Maisie" series, with Ann Southern, catches up with every one. The additional audience which it will catch up now is that which drops into the Capitol Theater, where "Maisie Was a Lady" is the current attraction. To make it the more fetching, the management offers Will Bradley and his orchestra as the stage attraction; that being the orchestra which recorded so successfully "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar."

Maisie as a lady has the assistance of one of the best casts Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has yet assembled about the South Brooklyn girl whose philosophy is one of the more entrancing things the cinema has conceived. As a leading man, for instance, it offers Lew Ayres—the young Dr. Kildare of another popular series—in a role so different that he hardly is recognizable to the bar.

Jay Carmody.

With M. Ayres to help out, Maisie gets away from her usual routine to become involved in a serious romance with one of the older and better families of the East. As it all ends, she is engaged to the young waster, and whatever happens to the other installments is one of those things which the script writers will have to work out for themselves.

In getting thus entangled, Maisie is what she always has been, the provocative show girl who still is stranded, and desperately in need of a job.

As "Maisie Was a Lady" opens, she has a job as the headless woman in a carnival. When Ayres, as the drunken scion of a wealthy family, gets her fired through one of his silly antics, she is reduced to the point of working for his family. It turns out to be a very stupid, as well as rich, family, and when Maisie gets through with it, both she and it are the wiser.

Pretty Miss Southern provides her usual fine characterization as the wise-cracking show girl. Even when she resorts to such puns as "he's the phase on the bathroom floor," there is something about her that sort of warms the heart. As a matter of fact, there are even worse puns on words in "Maisie Was a Lady" which seem to be justified by Edwin L. Marin's picture, which the credit sheets lists as the work of Betty Rheinhardt and Mary C. McCall.

As for his part in it, Ayres has an unsympathetic part which is redeemed by his recognition of Maisie's simple virtues as the film draws to a conclusion. In subordinate roles, C. Aubrey Smith and Maureen O'Sullivan give a pair of performances which cannot fail to enhance the appeal of the Maisie series. The former is cast as the faithful retainer of a family that is not worth a nickel, in spite of its rating by Dun and Bradstreet; the latter as the daughter who yearned only for love and never found it among her egomaniacal relatives.

The story of the latest Maisie picture is one of those compact writing jobs which is a successful admixture of comedy and drama. With Miss Southern turning in one of her better performances in the well-established role, and with the assistance of one of the best supporting casts assembled for the particular job, the picture turns out to be more than ordinarily acceptable. Bradley's stage show is one of those things which goes well, and nappily, beyond a single successful recording of a swing tune such as "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar." The young maestro has assembled one of the most beguiling shows of its kind, a thing of real variety and interesting in its every phase. One of the specialties offered is the drumming and boogie-woogie vocalizations of Ray McKinley. That is only because the comedy acts of the Wesson brothers and Herman Hyde and Sally Burill are not as fresh as they were when M. Bradley's band first crept into the limelight. The same goes for the dancing of Terry Allen and the antics of Lynn Gardner and Freddy Slack and the tromboning of the maestro himself. Altogether, it is a fine stage show.

A RETURN TO GLAMOUR—Forsaking those heavier dramatic roles which have demanded her attention recently, Carole Lombard again becomes the glamour girl and sophisticated comedienne in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." The Alfred Hitchcock-directed comedy is on the future-reference schedule at Keith's.

San Carlo Performance Of 'Rigoletto' Is Lauded

Ivan Petroff, in the Name Role, Is Called One of the Few Great Artists in This Part

By ALICE EVERSMAN. At the National Theater last night the San Carlo Opera Co. added more laurels to the accumulation of the first days of its week's engagement with a performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto." The three leading characters were taken by Lucille Meusel, the Gilda, Ivan Petroff, in the name part, and Arthur Chetvry, at the Duke of Mantua in place of Dmitri Onofrei who was scheduled to appear. Mr. Onofrei has been ill and so far has not been able to sing any of the roles for which he was announced.

Mr. Chetvry is an American tenor who has just arrived from France. He was singing in opera there when France capitulated and traveled three months by bicycle through France and Spain until he reached Lisbon, where he embarked for the United States. Last night was his first appearance in the role of the Duke with the San Carlo company, and he was ready for it only yesterday afternoon. His voice is fine and light but with hardly enough body to it for this particular role. In appearance he fits the part well and has a graceful stage manner. Since his call to replace Mr. Onofrei was a last-minute one, it would not be just to estimate his ability completely, but in most of the scenes he sang and acted with assurance. The aria in the last act, "La Donna e Mobile" was less successfully negotiated but he had full share in the enthusiastic reception given the other artists.

Miss Meusel and Mr. Petroff Praised. Miss Meusel inherited the part of Gilda with character as well as charm and her lovely voice worked its customary effect on the audience. In her scenes with Rigoletto, her acting was exceptionally fine and she brought to it tenderness and pathos. Ivan Petroff is a superb Rigoletto and surpassed his performance last year both vocally and historically. The extreme savagery of his voice last season seemed hardly forceful enough for this role, but it has now gained both strength and resonance. The high point of the evening was his scene with Gilda in the third act which brought a storm of applause lasting some time.

He has made his conception of Rigoletto a great one and can now be classed with the few great artists in this role. Charlotte Bruno, who has a knack of doing every part well, was the Maddalena. Harold Kravitt as Sparafucile gave an entirely new and effective interpretation of the character with make-up and gestures intensifying its ruthlessness. The Monterone of Richard Wentworth was made outstanding by the dignity of his bearing and the fine quality of his voice. The shorter roles were equally well taken, Dorothy Dickson being the Contessa di Ceprano.

Pro Arte String Quartet. The first of the series of eight concerts devoted to the chamber music by Brahms at the Library of Congress took place last night with the Pro Arte String Quartet, assisted by Harold Klatz, violinist, and Lysbeth Le Fevre, cellist, as the artists. This performance was programmed the "String Quartet in C Minor, Op. 51, No. 1"; the "Quintet in G Major, Op. 111" for two violas, two violins and cello, and the "Sextet in B Flat Major, Op. 18" for two violins, two violas and two cellos.

The quartet and sextet represent Brahms' first attempt at writing for this combination of instruments. The concert was given under the auspices of the Coolidge Foundation. The Pro Arte String Quartet has a new leader in the person of Antonio Brusa, replacing Alphonse Onnon, who died recently. The four artists have not as yet perfected their ensemble, and the union effect was disappointing. They are given to a robust style, which continued throughout the three numbers with little effort at suave or tone or marked differentiation in shades. The blending of the four instruments is not of the finest, and the performance held a disturbing atmosphere because of its lack.

The sextet also has a pronounced classiness which the tonal quality of the artists did not suit unusually well. Possibly with time or as the series progresses they may respond to one another more thoroughly and the performance become smoother and more varied. The next concert will be given tomorrow at 3 p.m., when the quartet will be assisted by Gunnar Johansen, pianist. The program will consist of the Brahms "Sonata in G Major, Op. 78" for violin and piano; the "Sonata in E Minor, Op. 38" for cello and piano, and the "Trio in B Major, Op. 8" for violin, cello and piano.

Loretta Plans to Combine Her Career and Wedlock

She'll Make Films While Husband Is in Hollywood and Return To New York When He Does

By SHELLAH GRAHAM.

Loretta Young, the youngest-oldest star in the business—she is 28 and has been a star 13 years, blooms brightly on "The Lady From Cheyenne" set and explains the whys and wherefores of her current private and professional bliss. It starts with my question, "Where is your husband?"

"In New York," replies Loretta calmly. "But he'll be back very soon. We are fixing things so that we will be together most of the year. You see, he's a radio executive. And by great good luck he can work six months of the year in Hollywood. The other six months he has to be in New York. I have arranged my films to make two a year during the time my husband is here. The rest of the time we will be together in New York." Loretta is wise. Separation because of career—or any other reason, is not healthy for marriage—to judge by the many wrecks on this rock.

Professionally, Loretta is in the happy state of the successful free lancer. "I get more money for two pictures a year than I did with six under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox," Loretta tells me. At the latter studio she earned $35,000 a year. Now she gets $50,000 per picture. "But best of all, I can choose my films. I don't have to make 12 bad pictures for every one that is good."

Robert Preston is Miss Young's leading man. It's his first loan-out from Paramount. But his ecstatic grin is only 50 per cent due to working for Frank Lloyd. "I've never been so happy in my life," he crows. "I've been married two and a half months." I hope you say the same, Bob, in two and a half years.

Shellah Graham.

At the moment Laraine is a little dizzy. "I need a rest," she tells me. "In the past year, I've made three 'Kildares,' one 'Bad Man,' 'My Son, My Son,' 'Foreign Correspondent,' and now this." Robert Young was her brother-in-law in the last Kildare. But she'll marry him in this picture. The man she is accused of killing as "Mary Dugan" was her husband in "Bad Man." Did I say Laraine was dizzy?

Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray are about to meet for the first time in "One Night in Lisbon." The scene is an air-raid shelter in a London street. It is night and raining, and sand-bags are piled high about the shelter. "Camera!"
