Cuban Authorities Charge Conspiracy To Overthrow Him

BACKGROUND-

Fulgencio Batista sprang to fame in September, 1933, as the unknown leader of the "revolt of six sergeants," which overturned the regime of President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes. Batista, taking the title colonel in place of sergeant, remained as head of Cuba's military forces until December, 1939, when he resigned from the army to run for President and was elected.

Mission Hears Plea for Easing Japanese Curb

More Liberal U. S. Entry Law Urged By Mrs. Ives

A demand that this Nation loosen its restrictions on Japanese immigration was voiced here today as the militant leaders of the National Christian Mission delved further into a study of the responsibility of Christianity in world affairs. Mrs. Hilda Ives, professor at Andover-Newton Theological Seminary and member of the mission's "revival team." told a capacity crowd of women at a Christian life forum this morning that American churchwomen should organize at once to bring about a loosening of these restrictions "as a demonstration of

sincere Christian spirit. Speaking at Foundry Methodist Church, Mrs. Ives declared the Japanese had been "flouted" for years by United States immigration laws and added: "A true spirit of justice and fair play would be shown in removal of the blot at this time.' Organization Suggested. She suggested that religious leaders of Washington organize groups in their own churches and keep the movement constantly before their national boards.

That Christians must take a fresh

view of the role of religion in world affairs was emphasized in other meetings and conferences which featured the third day of the mission's week-long program Addressing a gathering of scores of ministers at Calvary Baptist Church, Dr. E. Stanley Jones, worldrenowned missionary-evangelist. de-religion "Christianity does not exist and function for the purpose of perpetuating a form of government known would be betrayal of Christianity and ruinous to democracy. Religion is not the handmaiden of tiations with Germany, which have democracy. Rather, religion deliberately determines the quality of and a definite agreement within the democracy. If democracy scarcely survived the first World War, its life may be even more precarious in the present conflict, largely due to reigious and political apostasy." Miss Anne V. Rice, former gen eral secretary of the International Y. W. C. Speculators Hoarding Aluminum Scrap, Defense Official Says

Drastic Action May Be Needed to Halt Price Rise, Bishop Warns

Charges that certain manufacturers and speculators are hoarding scrap and secondary aluminum and thereby doing a "disservice to the defense program" were made today by C. A. Bishop, member of the Price Stabilization Division of the National Defense Advisory Commis-

Mr. Bishop said this hoarding already has caused the price of secondary, or reconditioned, aluminum to rise higher than that for virgin ingot, currently selling at 17 cents a pound. Undess this situation is corrected, Mr. Bishop declared drastic action will be needed to prevent a sharp price increase.

He said two groups have accumulated "very substantial quantities" of scrap metal. One group consists of manufacturers who, instead of marketing scrap, hold it for reprocessing if aluminum becomes scarce. The second group is composed of those holding the metal for speculative profit only.

"Motive Not to Their Credit." The speculators. Mr. Bishop deelared, "are doing a distinct disservice to the defense program and for a motive that is not to their credit * * * the former group is doing an equal disservice, but with a motive which may not be criticized to the same degree."

There is sufficient scrap aluminum to satisfy needs of the next few months, however, according to figures accumulated by the Defense Commission. Reports reaching the price stabilization division indicate that certain consumers are buying more than their current needs of scrap aluminum in order to accumulate surplus inventories. Such pracages and price rises-precisely the Bishop added. Scrap aluminum is bringing as much as 22 to 28 cents a pound at present, it was said. Drastic Action Undesirable.

failure to pay her World War debt New Coast Guard Reserve Urged by Senate Body

The Senate Commerce Committee recommended today creation of a new Coast Guard Reserve force and designation of the existing reserve as a Coast Guard auxiliary.

Approving legislation to provide for the new organization, the committee said that immediate emergency needs required induction in the Reserve of 100 commissioned officers, 126 warrant officers and 270 boats with a total complement of 1.620 men.

The annual cost for putting this force into active service was estimated at $3,494,611. In testimony before the committee. Coast Guard officials said they planned to use the reserve complement to guard docks, harbors,

The decision directed the company to dis-"company dominated" Columbus, Bedford and Seymour, Ind., and at Huntington, W. District Citizenry Congratulates WMAL On New Transmitter

Wider Service to Area Forecast in Dedicatory Program

Washington congratulated The Star and WMAL during a half-hour broadcast last night at the studios in the Trans-Lux Building, officially inaugurating the station's new 5,000watt transmitter in Montgomery County, Md., which was put in operation yesterday morning.

Representatives of various com munity interests in the Capital voiced appreciation of The Star's and WMAL's past services to the community and brought greetings from the groups on the acquisition of the new transmitter.

Fleming Newbold, vice president and business manager of The Star, spoke on behalf of The Evening Star Newspaper Co., which owns the station; William S. Hedges, station relations vice president of the National Broadcasting Co., which operates the station, brought felicitations from his organization, and Kenneth Berkeley, station manager spoke for the studio.

The program was enlivened by the music of Morgan Baer and his N. B. C. Orchestra and the baritone singing of Gene Archer Hazen Notes "Wise Policy."

Unable to attend because of illness, Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners, sent a telegram, which was read by an announcer. Mr. Hazen congratulated WMAL and The Star on the progress represented in completion of the new transmitter and declared that he had "noted the wise policy" of the station "using its facilities in connection with the advancement of worthwhile undertakings which benefit the City of Washington." adding, "Construction of this new transmitter with its increased power indicates continuance on an even broader scale of this policy

Mr. Newbold told of WMAL's origin, reminding the radio audience that the last three letters of the station's name are the initials of its founder, Martin A. Leese, whose family long was connected with The Star. The Star, he said, had maintained a friendly interest in WMAL since its beginning in

A wish expressed by Mr. Leese that The Star some day would acquire the station was realized about three years ago, when the newspaper bought WMAL, Mr. Newbold related. He said The Star, in deciding to enter the radio field, "saw an opportunity to render additional service to the people of Washington. The occasion we are celebrating tonight." he continued, "is but one manifestation of our intention to make the most of that opportunity.'

Dedicated to the Public Interest. station's progress would not stop with the acquisition of a new transmitter. "As new developments occur in the magic realm of radio,' he declared, "friends of WMAL and The Star may expect to find their favorite station keeping fully abreast of the trend. * * The Star pledges that WMAL always will be conducted in the interest of the public in general and of the citizens of the National Capital in

Mr. Hedges, referring to WMAL as "a mirror of Washington's acdeclared it was a key station of the National Broadcasting Co.'s blue network. "Through it he said, "the North, the South, the East and the West have kept in touch with their Government.'

Station Manager Berkeley said staff members of WMAL believe that the enlarged community which will be reached by the new power setup "will receive an important service heretofore denied it." Tracing the station's "career." he declared that WMAL is "an expression of America's right to freedom of speech and freedom of thought."

Mrs. Doyle Expresses Thanks.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said she wished to express the appreciation of the board and herself for the service rendered by WMAL and The Star in making possible many programs that interpret the work of the public schools. The two institutions, she declared, "were pioneers in Washington in a continuous effort to acquaint the community with the work of the public schools.

Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest; James E Colliflower, president of the Board of Trade, and Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, in brief messages added the congratulations and best wishes of their organizations

Others unable to attend the cere mony, but who sent telegrams which were read over the air, were George E. Burrus, president of the Advertising Club of Washington; the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, and Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress.

Roosevelt Expected To Name Ambassador To Britain Thursday

Identity Not Disclosed, But Talk Centers On Winant

By JOHN C. HENRY.

Nomination of an Ambassador to Great Britain probably will be sent to the Senate on Thursday, it was indicated at the White House today. Resignation of Joseph P. Ford Engineers Say Nazis Can't Equal U. S. Production

Research Is Turned to 'Integration of Flow Of Material' to Planes

This is the 15th of a series of articles on aircraft engine production by The Star's aviation

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON,

(Fifteenth article of a series.) DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 4 .- Germany never can hope to match industrial production with the United States, in the opinion of Ford Motor Co. engineers, who now are turning the vast Ford facilities to aircraft engine production and re-

"The Germans learned their production technique from this country, but they never can beat their teachers, because we have a number of new stunts to uncork which we are confident they know nothing about," a Ford spokesman said Among these "stunts" are advances in the science of metallurgy, the substitution of castings for forgings in aircraft engines and the adaptation of American automobile production methods, unrivaled anywhere in the world, to aircraft production

Flow of Material.

One of the major phases of the Ford research program today is directed toward "integration of the flow of material" into the aircraft and aircraft engine production This is an exacting science, developed by the automobile industry through many years of study and experience and as yet not mastered by the younger aircraft industry generally, it was explained

Upon the proper rate of flow of the thousands of parts which go into the individual airplane or engine depends the effectiveness of the entire production line, it was explained. The development of precision methods of integrating the flow of so many parts is a contribution which has been made to industry generally by the automobile factories, it is claimed, and is the real key to mass production. Applicatin of these principles to aircraft production is regarded here as the greatest contribution the automobile industry can make to

Flooded With Applications.

The Ford company has been "flooded" with applications for admission to the new aircraft school. The volume of applications has been so great, according to F. E. superintendent of Ford schools, that only one of every 40 can be accetped. Before the end of 1940 several hundred young men had been qualified for admission, and a full quota of 2,000 is expected to be filled before next June. As the students complete their training course new applicants will be accepted to fill vacancies left by those graduating into regular pro-

"We are seeking only the best material to fill our new training school," Mr. Searle said. "The ac- he asserted, is to create dissatisfaccuracy required in building airplane parts is not so much greater than that needed in producing automobiles, but we have a slightly different problem when it comes to finishes. In aircraft work almost all surfaces must be super-smooth or the material will be scrapped, while in car parts great smoothness is not required in many cases.

"Thus our preliminary training program and the schedule to be followed in the new school will have to be geared to cover this new attitude of mind. The additional skill in working smooth surfaces will be vitally essential."

Whitman Says Cost Of 6-Lane Road Must Be Borne by Government

Possible routes of a proposed sixlane superhighway between Washington and Baltimore are being studied jointly by the Maryland State Roads Commission and the United States Public Roads Administration, Chairman Ezra B. Whitman of the commission disclosed today.

Chairman Whitman explained by telephone that the cost of any such project, which he estimated at approximately $12,000,000, probably would have to be borne entirely by the Federal Government. He said the commission had not approached any officials here concerning financing, preferring that the Public Roads Administration seek funds if the new road is given final approval

The new highway would run to the east of the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, overcrowding of which prompted study of another road,

Elaborating on his statement vesterday before 130 engineers attending the fifth annual highway engineers' short course at the University of Maryland, Mr. Whitman said his suggestion of a six-lane road with "rough side lanes for trucks" did not mean trucks would travel in lanes separated from the principal pavement. The lanes at either side of the highway would be constructed of heavy-duty concrete to withstand the pounding of heavy vehicles, he explained.

BERLIN, Feb. 4 (A).—The Ger- possible. man press omitted today editorial discussion of the French political situation, but the commentary Dienst aus Deutschland emphasized the existence of a victor-and-vanquished relationship between Germany and France.

Relations between the two countries, it said, rest on the dual bases of the armistice treaty and the Hitler-Petain conference at Montoire last October

The armistice treaty meant not only a cessation of hostilities between Germany and France," the article said, "but also included necessary stipulations for continuing Germany's war against England from

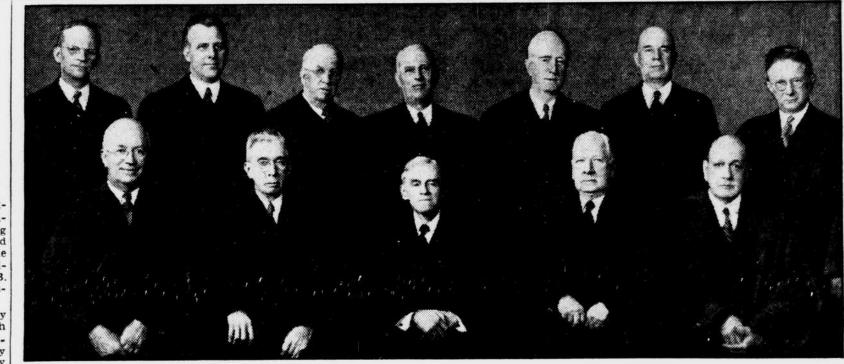

French soil."

Patiency Exercised. Of the Hitler-Petain meeting, the commentary said, "the French chief of state manifested a determination for co-operation with Germany . . . and on the German side it was viewed as the French task to make a political reality out of their opportunity at Montoire. Accordingly the greatest hesitancy and the continued patience have been shown with respect to the internal affairs of France. It went on to say that Pierre Laval, former vice premier and Foreign Minister, was considered in Germany to be an exponent of cooperation "who was turned out of the cabinet and later reviled and persecuted. On the German side many doubts have been raised about Vichy politics * * *." Formation last week in Paris of a French national party, described as opposed to policies of the Vichy "Committee or 51," it was said, had German approval, if not full support-pending clarification of M.

Wage-Hour Act Upheld

The Supreme Court decision upholding the Wage and Hour Act is another important victory for the New Deal social welfare program, and extends still further the everwidening orbit of the power of the Federal Government within the States.

The law, prohibiting interstate shipment of goods produced under lower wage-hour standards than provided by the act, was held unconstitutional by a Georgia District Court, which said it sought to regulate manufacture within the States, and could not reach under its power to regulate interstate commerce.

With one incisive sentence, the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court, read by Justice Stone, swept away this contention:

"While manufacture is not of itself interstate commerce, the shipment of manufactured goods interstate is such commerce and the prohibition of such shipment by Congress is indubitably a regulation of the commerce." Then, as if further to emphasize the sweeping effect of the decision, the court said that "the obvious purpose of the act was not only to prevent the interstate transportation of the proscribed product, but to stop the initial step toward transportation-production with the purpose of so transporting it."

In the same opinion, the court validated the child-labor ban embodied in the act, and specifically overruled a twenty-two-year-old decision holding Congress to be without power to regulate the employment of minors. In that earlier decision, which provoked a notable dissent by Justice Holmes, the court had said that the congressional power to prohibit interstate commerce was lim-Red to articles which in themselves harmful and deleterious property-"a distinction" Justice Stone commented, "which was novel when made, and unsupported by any provision of the Constitution—has long since been abandoned."

The Church in Norway

In a militant protest destined to ring around the Christian world, the seven Protestant bishops of Norway, led by the Bishop of Oslo, have remonstrated against Nazi tyranny in their conquered country. Their manifesto, addressed to the Education and Church Councilor of State in the guise of an appeal for "clarification," constitutes an outspoken indictment of the Norwegian "new order." The regime imposed by the German authorities is pilloried on three principal counts-open and systematic encouragement of violence and contempt for law; conditions which caused resignation of all members of the Supreme Court, and illicit interference, contrary to agreement, with church laws, including preachers' vow of secrecy which, the With automobile accidents taking | bishops say, "is not only granted by law, but is the foundation of the church, the magna carta of the con-

But the territory never actually has been brought into subjection by any European power. The inhabitants a decade ago were estimated to number about six hundred and twentyone thousand. A vast majority of these people are semi-nomad shepherds of Arab stock or of Ethiopian ancestry. The plateau-dwellers generally are Copts, their neighbors in the highlands and in the lower country are disciples of Islam. A certain militant pride characterizes both elements. Neither is noted for anxiety to avoid trouble. Perhaps the contemporary population is of only relatively recent importation. The main road from Adulis to Axomis runs through territory which formerly was occupied by different races. Ruined cities, broken monuments, may be seen on either side of the highway. The inscriptions are in several primitive alphabets. It is recorded that "at the end of the reign of Nero, and perhaps even earlier, the king of the Axumites ruled over the Red Sea coast from Suakin to the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, and traded constantly with Egypt. fixing a minimum wage of thirty-two ous disorder of the neighborhood led to the intervention of Italy with the approval of Great Britain. On February 5, 1885, Italian troops occupied the principal town, Massawa, described as "the chief and only good port" affording access to the turbulent interior. There followed intermittent strife involving Ethiopians and nameless highland tribes resentful of foreign intruders even when they appeared with money in their hands to pay for the real estate

they wanted. As a practical investment, Eritrea never has been worth its cost to Italy. If, however, it is appraised for its strategic value, it must be conceded to be important. It could be and probably has been a base for operations against the British lifeline to India. Obviously, it is for that reason that English armies currently are moving to expel the Italians from the coastal region.

A Novel Decision Labor unions have been given what amounts to a judicial license to engage in jurisdictional strikes and similar abuses by the majority decision of the Supreme Court in the Anheuser - Busch case - a ruling which was described by Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Roberts as a seeming "usurpation by the courts of the function of the Congress not only novel but fraught, as well, with the most serious dangers to our constitutional system of division of powers."

The case turned on a dispute between the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the International Association of Machinists, both members of the American Federation of Labor. as to which should perform a certain class of work for Anheuser-Busch. Anheuser-Busch had had agreements with both organizations whereby the machinists were given the disputed jobs and the carpenters agreed to submit all disputes to arbitration. In 1939, however, officials of the carpenters' union insisted on having the jobs, went on strike and instituted a boycott after refusing to submit the demand to arbitration.

This resulted in a situation in which an employer who was not accused of any anti-union activity, and, indirectly, the general public, became the victims of a family quarrel between two unions, and on this basis Thurman Arnold, head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, sought and obtained an indictment charging a criminal violation by the carpenters' union officials of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

In declaring this indictment to be the state. "The church's whole ex- the Clayton Act and the Norris-La Court is branded as having been "in a union acts in its self-interest," open conflict with acknowledged Justice Frankfurter said, "and does principles of law and as having ab- not combine with non-labor groups, the licit and the illicit (under the Clayton Act) are not to be distin-Explaining that these reactionary guished by any judgment regarding developments have created feelings the wisdom or unwisdom, the rightness or wrongness, the selfishness or unselfishness of the end of which the particular union activities are the means." Congress, in passing the Clayton and Norris-La Guardia Acts, sought only to restrict the use of injunctions against labor unlons. Despite determined efforts by labor over a long period of years to secure complete exemption from the anti-trust laws, there has never been any legislative curb imposed on criminal proceedings under the statutes, although the possibility of such action being initiated hardly could have been overlooked by Congress. In arriving at his conclusion, however, Justice Frankfurter summarily disposed of this question of congressional intent. The Clayton and Norris-La Guardia Acts, he said, "must not be read in a spirit of mutilating narrowness," and taking a broad view of the language of the statutes, the justice held that because Congress had curbed the use of injunctions it also intended, on a given set of facts, to ban resort by the Government to criminal proceedings.

Describing this reasoning as "a process of construction never, as I think, heretofore indulged by this court," Justice Roberts, in the strongly worded dissent, added: "I venture to say that no court has ever undertaken so radically to legislate where Congress has refused so to do." In that comment there is a suggestion of unintended irony, reminiscent as it is of the New Dealers' complaintat the time of the fight over the President's court bill-that the "old court" was guilty of judicial law-

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

Newly discovered methods of fire fighting, largely worked out in the laboratories of the United States Department of Agriculture, have contributed much to the protection of London from incendiary bombs.

These, it has been learned here, have contained aluminum or magnesium powder. Both these elements unite easily with the oxygen in water to form a highly explosive gas. Thus if a hose was turned on such a bomb, unless it was done with considerable skill, it would only spread the flames. This was discovered by Department of Agriculture chemists a few years ago in investigating disastrous fires in American aluminum plants.

At that time, however, it was found that if a very gentle spray was turned on the flames the hydrogen was released slowly and its rate of burning could be controlled.

"The difference," said one Department of Agriculture chemist, "is about that between lighting a jet on a gas stove and lighting a match in a room

So the watchers on the London rooftops are being trained to spray the burning bombs very lightly so they will burn out gradually. It is dangerous to attempt smothering the fires with sand, to say nothing of carrying it to the rooftops in sufficient amounts to do any good. There is some advantage in surrounding a blazing bomb with a wall of wet sand to prevent spread of the Fire protection in wartime, it is stressed, is almost entirely a civilian responsibility. For this reason the National Defense Advisory Committee has named a group of experts, including engineers, Army and Navy officers, and fire chiefs, and headed by Mayor Maurice E. Tobin of Boston, to organize this branch of the Nation's defense. It is considered so important in London that, according to latest figures received here, a reserve of 26,000 men has been built up and service in it is considered equally important with service in the army. The possibility of fire offensives was recognized before the war and American reports carefully studied.

While America's professional firemen are well trained in latest methods, according to members of the committee. they probably would be far from adequate in the face of a concentrated shower of fire bombs such as London has experienced several times. Also many small cities and some large ones still are protected only by volunteer departments, mostly with inadequate training. So vital is the need that courses in fire fighting have been started in several colleges.

The Department of Agriculture fire fighting experiments have been carried David J. Price of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, and were originally concerned with dust explosions in flour mills. Dr. Price now is a member of the

It soon was found that customary methods of fighting fires in such mills often resulted in violent explosions that cost the lives of firemen. This was due to the fact that turning the full force of the hose on such a building shook loose the accumulated dust from the walls and ceiling, forming a cloud which was highly explosive.

From this came the recommendation for lighter sprays which worked very well until the aluminum dust was encountered. German military authorities. apparently, learned this lesson early and applied it in building their bombs

Summarizes Objections To Lease-Lend Bill

To the Editor of The Star: I favor the lease-lend bill because there seems to be so few good reasons for opposing it. The reasons advanced are

Col. Lindbergh: Doesn't want either side to win, wants a negotiated peace, believes a just peace is possible now and that we should co-operate with the victor. Thinks 10,000 planes sufficient, does not believe we could impose our way of life on Europe or Asia, hopes for peace by the collapse of one side or the other, but has no preference concerning the ethics of either. Believes we were largely responsible for the war and that Germany will win, but that we can lick her all alone. Mr. Kennedy: Puts the cost in one pan of the scale and the safety of our institutions in the other, is afraid of arousing "the public to fighting pitch," afraid to trust the President with the power of quick and necessary action. Believes the British Navy will neither fight to the death nor surrender, but when England is defeated will protect British possessions. Would rather surrender to a victor than become "involved," and prefers a Hitler-dominated world to risking war, but would rather see Britain successful.

Mr. Thomas: Would welcome drastic changes in our Government, doesn't like the present trend toward preserving democracy.

Gen. Johnson: Fears to give power to the President, even in the present emergency; would rather risk the danger of delay than trust the President and his

* * * * Bird banding is carried on under the auspices of the Biological Survey. The work is done to give ornithologists a true picture, with statistics, of

bird life in this country. They want to know how long birds live. whether the same pairs remain together, where they migrate, whether they return to the same places year after year, and so on

A license is necessary now to take part in this work. Essentials in this work are traps, officially numbered and registered bands and a desire personally to handle birds without harming them.

Only a comparatively few amateur bird lovers will have any desire to take part in this type of work. Birds, when caught, are extremely scared, naturally enough. Their reactions differ, of course, but any one who ever has held a bird in the hand knows what it is.

Unless one is extremely careful in handling the traps, and especially in springing the door, a bird may be caught. Removing them is a matter of great fluttering on the part of the bird and some trepidation on the part of the human being involved, especially if new at the work.

The bands have to be put on just so. They should slide, but not allow so much play that a berry or other foreign substance could get in between the band and the leg. If too large, the band may cause the creature to become caught somewhere.

It is not very often that one sees banded birds hereabouts.

operating. A tedious amount of clerical work is involved-tedious, that is, if one does not like such work. Checking and rechecking (check and double check, as Andy used to call it) do not appeal to some natures.

It is the only way, of course, to recognize a bird and to keep track of its movements.

Persons who find dead birds with bands on their legs should remove the band, check the number and send it to the Biological Survey. In this way they know where the bird was first banded, its subsequent career, as far as reported, and its end. In this way, and in this way alone is it possible to tell how long the wild birds live It has always seemed to us that bird banding would be a most melancholy task. We looked over a record some time ago, showing the histories of hundreds of banded birds, and it was amazing how many of them lived but two or three years.

Perhaps one must have the true scientific spirit to enter into bird banding in 1941. with vim and vigor and perennial interest. There can be no doubt that the interest grows with the work. * * * *

Of Lease-Lend Bill Unchanged. To the Editor of The Star

At this time when American safety and freedom are threatened, it is imperative that all political factions quickly agree on a national policy that will assure American safety. Time cannot be secured by prolonged debate. We know that our security depends upon Britain retaining command of the sea. Good sense dictates a policy of full aid to Britain. Our Navy and air force should be co-ordinated with those of Britain

The responsibility of Congress today is greater than that of any Congress since 1861. This Congress has the information and advice of the President, his cabinet. of high Army and Navy officers. The President's lease-lend bill should be passed without change and in time to save Britain from defeat. There is no use in considering halfway measures when Hitler has told the world that he will take from the "have nations." negotiated peace is impossible, we have Hitler's word for it.

I should like to ask the isolationists if it is half as disastrous to "plow" American soldiers under European soil as it would be to tie their hands and "plow" them under American soil along with women and children bombed and machine-gunned in American cities?

Of course, the opinions of these gentlemen may open the field for clearer thinking on the question of whether or not we should go the limit. In the meantime, it is well that we extend our industrial capacity to the utmost in order that a maximum strength may be reached as soon as possible

I believe, however, that along with the appropriation of billions for our defense, some attention should be devoted to the job of plugging the gaps in domestic revenue laws. It seems incredible but true nevertheless, that importers (citing one example), with great energy and fertile ingenuity, manage to take advantage of the loopholes in the Tariff Act and the apparent lack of an adequate field force to enter goods at values and classification rates of duty inconsistent with the nature of the imported article. If handicaps such as this could be overcome, I think Treasury Department actuaries would note a general increase in the yield of customs revenue.

The War Department which is supposed to be a non-partisan and non-political agency could learn all this readily, but decided to obey the behest of a labor leader on the National Defense Commission who insisted that a provision be included in certain War Department contracts submitted to bidders. When the superfluous language appended to the contract was not accepted by the bidder the War Department without warrant of law arbitrarily refused to award the contract to

Mr. Patterson may learn after he has been in Washington awhile is that the United States Army and the War Department are no longer independent agencies able to exercise their own judgment, but they must be careful not to offend pressure groups. Thus the Associated Press in a Washington dispatch this week reveals how important compulsory unionization has become to the War Department.

"Inasmuch as the Ford management excepted to the labor clauses in the defense truck contract, it was not immediately apparent whether the American Federation of Labor unionization gains would have an effect on the company's chances for future orders.

Says Tie-ups Are Understood. The direct tie-up between unionization and the award of the contracts is well understood in Washington and the meaning of the foregoing paragraphs is that the War Department will doubtless wait to be advised by Sidney Hillman whether it is all right to go ahead now and give orders to the Ford Motor Co. since the American Federation of Labor has announced that it is engaged in unionizing the two big plants of the Ford Co.

Despite, therefore, all the protestations of Senator Wagner of New York that the Wagner Act does not compel a man to join a union if he does not wish to do so, it is apparent that an employer cannot be awarded Government business on defense unless he accepts the dictation of union organizers.

In the old days of special privilege in Government, favors were handed out to the biggest contributors of funds to the campaign, all of which liberals and radicals denounced as corruption. Today, however, the pressure groups with the largest vote-influence can make their desires felt even above any national defense needs. Middle Ground on Lease-Lend Bill Held Essential If Unity on Aid to Britain Otherwise Fails

By GOULD LINCOLN.

The need for national unity was never greater than it is today. The House began yesterday and is continuing today debate on the leaselend bill for aid to Britain-a measure that has been designated an "act to promote the defense of the United States" There is no division in Congress over the need of greater national defense. There is division however, over the method, and particularly over the degree of power which is to be delegated by Congress to the Chief Executive.

Reading the minority report on the bill, it appears there is no disposition to oppose aid to Britain short of war. Indeed, the minority declares specifically for such aid. There is, however, among members of Congress a desire and determination to retain in the legislative body the right to pass upon major policiestion as the United States Army can particularly as they may affect the involvement of the United States in

Failure of Vichy to Co-operate With Nazis May Mean an End to Notion of Independent France

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

When Admiral Darian, Petain's chief adviser, discusses the situation of the Franco-German "co-operation" with Hitler's spokesman in Paris, Herr Abetz, he will, according to reliable reports, be confronted with the following situation

Either the Vichy government plays along with the Reich without further delay or there will be a disrupting movement in France which might put an end even to the fictitious notion that there is today an independent France.

Marshal Petain, as far as it is known here, would like to stick strictly The fact is that while all of the to the terms of the armistice and not participate even indirectly in the democracy, much has been said of gigantic clash between Germany and Great Britain. Two Choices for Petain

Petain is reported to face the following alternatives: He can yield as the isolationist party, it will never to pressure and permit the German to use the North African naval for a balance-of-power position, to bases and possibly the French fleet in the war in the Mediterranean. Or, he gives up and retires to North Africa, where there still is a is solemnly termed "an open mind"

A few weeks ago the French could have obtained the necessary supplies from the British on condition that the Weygand forces collaborated with the British. But now it will be difficult to send them the necessary supplies because Britain herself is facing a critical period.

The German total blockade operations are expected to start within Judgeship, a new Post Office in his the next two weeks. Under the circumstances, Petain realizes that his flight to Africa, which would have been wise in June or July last year, might be a useless, empty gesture now. There is no question gins on defense contracts or conthat the bulk of the French people are against a co-operation which might harm England. Trading involves delay, involves holding out for a higher price, whether in the form of profit marcessions in the legislative field

As a result, the Congress is effectively prevented from giving a swift decision on any important piece of legislation. In domestic affairs, this means that many urgently needed measures are automatically deferred until desperate situations arise-but we agree that this is part of the price we are prepared to pay for the privilege of self government

In issues of foreign policy, however, delay is one luxury we cannot afford. At least we cannot afford delay in the face of the streamlined, split-second timing of the axis. A senatorial filibuster is no defense against a Blitzkrieg and no answer to the merciless logistics of total war

The Crisis Is Now.

So it is with the aid-to-Britain bill. The one thing we cannot afford in this connection is delay and indecision. The crisis is now, the need is now, tomorrow may be too late and the day after tomorrow we may find ourselves looking back on today as a lost gold mine of minutes and hours which we let slip from our possession

That there is division over the aid-to-Britain bill is natural. The vast majority of us are entirely willing to adopt this measure, pretty much as written. Some of us want it amended so as to "safeguard" it against theoretical dangers. A few want it beaten, either because they fear it will "drag us into war" or because they really want the axis

Under the circumstances, the American people as a whole have the right to demand that Congress act swiftly and decisively in disposing of this legislation. As individuals, we have the right to urge Congress to pass, amend or defeat the aid-to-England bill, but as a Nation we say to Congress:

"You are our representatives. It is up to you to act immediately. Time is of the essence. For the sake of America and for the sake of the world, we call on you to complete your action on this bill before Lincoln't birthday at the latest earlier if possible. We do not tell you to pass it, we do not order you to deteat it, we do not insist that you amend it. We simply say, "For God's sake! gentlemen of the Congress show that a democratically elected Legislature has the courage and capacity for quick decision. Show that you realize that it is impossible to filibuster a world war or to coin a world revolution into patronage and post offices. You are our servants. We pay you to represent our will. Now our will is that you set aside talk for delay's sake. debate for the purpose of sacotage, and act, act, act-now!"

Addresses Recorded As Metropolis View Association Meets

Stull, Wender and Rover Speak; Larger Civic Interest Urged

Speakers at the meeting last night of the Metropolis View Citizens' Association had the novel experience of hearing their addresses played right back to them from a portable recording set which was installed for the occasion.

Prominent civic leaders to appear before the group included Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations; Harry S. Wender, the Federation's vice president, and Leo A. Rover, former United States attorney for the District of Columbia. Mr. Stull and Mr. Wender both praised the work of local citizenry for the betterment of the community, but Mr. Wender emphasized the need for active participation in civic affairs by a larger number of Washingtonians. He said this was particularly necessary "if the local voteless residents are to obtain their own American heritage of representation in government." Mr. Rover, who is at present chairman of local Draft Board No. 20 in the District, lauded the spirit of the young men affected by the Selective Service Act in "realizing their responsibilities and obligations to American democracy."

Among others to address the association were Samuel Sidotti, president of the Board of Barber Examiners; Capt. Oscar Letterman of No. 12 police precinct; Benjamin W. Bolinger, charter member and first president of the Metropolis View council for the group, and Miss Grace Bush, principal of the Noyes School.

Needed to Cut Traffic

The association indersed two proposed routes of a crosstown bus line and urged appropriations to add 100 policemen to help reduce the traffic

Vincent P. Boudren presided over the meeting in the Crosby S. Noyes

As Mayor of Cleveland until last fall, Senator Burton gained wide experience in traffic problems, lifting that city to top-rank in safety records in 1939. Takoma Group Hears Inspector Kelly Blame Speed for Death Toll

The need for an educational campaign to reduce pedestrian fatalities city was discussed. When the mat- posed zoning change to permit the and make motorists observe the right of way at the crosswalks was stressed last night by Inspector Edward J. Kelly of the Metropolitan Police Department in an address at the annual banquet of the ministration, "as ratified by the Citizens' Association of Takoma, of Trinity Episcopal Church.

The speaker said police were doing everything possible to cut the death rate which has shown a decided increase over a year ago. CRUSADE

By NORMAN CHANDLER Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

∧BOUT thirty million A good citizens will have a chance to read this. It is a plea. It is an urgent plea for every one of you to enlist with us in a "drive" we have in mind.

This "drive" is for a very great goal-a better America.

Now I know that no one of us can do very much alone-any more than one soldier can win a war. But together-and with almost no effort—we can raise the strength of this great democracy of ours to unbelievable heights.

Perhaps I ought to call this proposal of mine a game, for it can become that.

Here is how you play it:

Start with this copy of your newspaper. Pick out of it one-just one -item of news which you think is important in making America better, stronger, a finer place to live.

Don't pick a selfish thing-something which would benefit you or your town at the expense of some

For example, you'll be tempted. if you're a schoolteacher, to approve some news which favors schoolteachers. If you're an orange grower you'll have to resist a cheer if a frost nips half the orange crop, leaving you untouched, with higher prices for your own oranges.

Pick out an item about an advance in medicine or a story of a new industry which makes good and needed jobs for a thousand men. Or pick a report of a good sermon or a fine, statesmanlike speech by a congressman.

Then spread this story. Tell a neighbor. Simply say to him, "I saw in the paper that so-and-so has done this-or-that."

Sound silly? It isn't at all. Do you realize that the whole nationthe 130 million of us—is merely the product of all the good and the bad that we do? And if more of us actively approve the good and unselfish and actively deplore the bad, we'll encourage more goodness and discourage the unsound, the evil, the dangerous.

After all, the very reason for newspapers existing in America is to bring you the record of what is going on. You wouldn't be qualified to take part in governing the district, the state or the nation you live in if you didn't know what was happening or what the news meant to you and your neighbors.

Try this crusade with us, will you? It won't be much trouble, but if thirty million good citizens just told one good thing to thirty million others every day we'd have a nation so strong and with such a spiritual unity that nothing could break it.

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, composed of over 350 leading American Newspapers, publishes these messages simultaneously each week. The force which unites these newspapers is their recognition of their responsibility to you, the reader.

Baseball Girds to Battle Czar While Pro Football Submits to Dictatorship

By GRANTLAND RICE.

Sports Championships Must Bow to Defense

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (N.A.N.A.).—The blend of war and sport is going to make a much larger difference in the future than many have suspected. Some time back we wrote an article to this effect, only to have many promoters on the professional side laugh heartily.

"There always will be sports," they said. There will be. And there also will be war and preparations for war for some time to come-and war comes first.

Winning an Olympic championship or a great international match is one thing. Losing a war is something else. Winning or losing one minor battle is a thousand times more important than what might happen to Joe Louis or the Cincinnati Reds.

But sport can be and will be a first-class morale builder for regiments and brigades, for divisions and army corps.

Football and baseball stars already have been called, or soon will be. I mean headliners who may change the entire situation as we see it today. For 1941 is certain to be a terrific year on land and sea and in the air. It may force sport back to a morale maker for our plans for defense-or

Hot Sports Competition Revived Camp's Morale

I can take you back to our camp in Greenville, S. C., in 1917-8. We had only wooden guns for the artillery—guns made from pine dians. logs that couldn't shoot. We had four inches of snow and a temperature that ranged from 10 above zero to 15 above. We had big holes in our ble between some of the major tents through which the snow came to cover our cots. We were shipping league clubs and Landis over a new from 5 to 10 pine boxes away each day with influenza victims.

The morale at Camp Sevier wasn't any too high. And we then were at war. Not practicing quick starts for an unknown test. It was sport that revived this morale-football games and baseball later in the spring. Regiment against regiment—brigade against brigade. I've never seen keener or harder competition.

The same thing carried through into France-even after the war. At Camp Sevier in Greenville one of my first orders was to turn a pine forest into a playing field-using dynamite, saws, spades, harrows and the rest of it. The limit was two weeks. Over at the 113th Field Artillery practically the same order went out to a young fellow by the name of Larry MacPhail, now head man of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry was the type of soldier an army needs. I know we trimmed them at football. We were in France before the baseball part was finished. could be returned to the minors Maybe MacPhail's bunch had the edge. I'll give him the break, anyway. three times without getting waivers.

Service Athletes Apt to Overshadow Civilians

The main point is that sport was a vital factor 24 years ago in building company, battery, regiment, brigade and division morale.

It will be the same way this summer. Unless there is peace-and there's no sign of peace in sight right now-we will have more than a million young men under arms in camp. And so far we are not actually

These million or more young Americans know only one outlet. Aleno to some class double-A club This is sport. Sport again will be the great morale maker of all our Army like Indianapolis for a year's seacamps. Ask Wild Bill Donovan-he knows.

I still believe the greatest sport interest by midsummer will go to will have to ask for waivers by the the Army or Navy or air force—not to those making from $20,000 to other major league clubs. If the $100,000 a year as civilian competitors.

When Hank Greenberg is switched from $35,000 a year to $30 a other club should put in a claim, month, which he will be by June or July, you will hear more about it. If the fury of this war rises, which seems almost certain, it will be Army sport that will dominate the scene—not the financial prospects of private promoters in boxing, baseball or football,

This is the age of the quick-or the dead. Spring and early summer of 1941 easily may be the most vital spot in the history of the world. It easily can mean more to more millions than any six months ever drew from history. It carries more dynamite than our Uncle Sam's 135,000,000 inhabitants can even understand in their dreams.

Revaluation of Laurels Due by Midsummer It is the province and the duty of sport, outside of the Army or

There still are the millions who need their games. Baseball and foot- five. Brooklyn will have to get championship three-cushion tournaball, golf and tennis, track and boxing should be and will be carried on. They must carry on for the public far back of the lines.

But these games still may be secondary to Army sports, as they were in 1917 and 1918

In war-or in the approach to war-the troops come first. Army and Navy and air force must have the call.

What credit could there be in trimming Detroit later with Hank every player capable of holding a

Landis Makes Irks Majors

Protest Is Expected By National League At Slate Meeting

By JUDSON BAILEY. Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Backstage struggles in baseball over rules and regulations sometimes seem drab business to the average sports fan. Sometimes they are, but the apparently technical lawmaking is the warning rumble before such volcanic eruptions as Commissioner Kenesaw M. Gone from the scene in future District Golf Association tournaments will be the men who wait until the entry deadline has passed and then send in their names. The District association, with four major events on its schedule this year, in addition to two club affairs, now has on its books a rule permitting no post entries.

It also has listed as an added tourney a senior championship, to be played for the Henry L. West Memorial Trophy, so named in honor of a former local golf writer. This affair will be played at Columbia, the club which Henry West served as president and where he was a member for many years.

In a meeting lasting less than an hour at the University Club last night the District fathers of golf o. k.'d tournament dates, chose officers, and set the course of local golf for the year. Tournament dates of District sponsored events were set as follows: District amateur championship, Kenwood Golf and Country Club, September 9, 10, 11 and 12; junior championship, Indian Spring Country Club, June 25; muxed Scotch foursome tourney. date to be chosen later.

It is then that the tricky Aggies break open the fireworks and start pouring in field goals like a machine.

The further they come from behind the better the crowd likes it. "My players are their own coaches in the first half of every game," Iba explained. He depends on them to feel out the weaknesses of the opposition and see for themselves what style to use down the home stretch. On the whole the system has paid dividends, but when it collapses it blows all to pieces. It didn't work last Saturday night and the Missouri Valley champions, seeking their sixteenth straight conference victory, dropped a 32-to-29 decision to the lowly St. Louis University squad which hadn't won a game this year, and it didn't work last night when Washington University eked out a 21-18 victory. Iba took the losses good na-

Christmas Clubs Book 78,953 New Members; Slightly Under 1940

D. C. Postal Receipts Smash All Previous Records for January

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Washington banks operating Christmas savings clubs registered! 78.953 accounts for the 1941 clubs. with a total amount subscribed of $7.171.985, compared with 82,295 members subscribing a total of $7.-255,315 in the 1940 clubs, it was learned in the financial district

This was a 4.1 per cent decrease in the number of accounts and a 1.2 per cent drop in the amount subscribed compared with last year Today's report was made to the District Bankers' Association by Rutherford J. Dooley, chairman of the association's Advertising Committee and vice president and cashier of the National Bank of Washington. The comparative figures 1 were prepared by Raymond G. Marx, controller of the Riggs National Bank

Three associate members, the Arlington Trust Co., Bank of Bethesda and Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., also reported their Christmas savings club figures. These boost the Washington total for the 1941 clubs to 85,513 accounts. with $7.645,135 subscribed, compared with 89.020 accounts and $7.-714.552 subscribed in the 1940 clubs a 39 per cent decrease in accounts but only 0.9 per cent in the amount subscribed

The main reason for the small decrease from 1940 is the fact that some of the banks dropped the $25 a year classification in the clubs, and some did away with the $50 accounts. This action reduced the number of new accounts more than the total amounts subscribed. The lower classifications have always been the most popular. Several banks made no special efforts this year to push the new clubs on account of bookkeeping costs and dif- 1: ficulties in loaning the money to advantage. However, the 85.513 accounts in the 1941 clubs show that a high percentage of the Capital's population favors this form of savings with which to meet the year end's pressing financial needs.

Postal Receipts at New Peak. January revenues at the City Post Office smashed all previous records for that month since the office was started, it was announced by offi-

Receipts at the City Post Office in January this year totaled $705,-804.95, in comparison with $672,-270.73 in January, 1940, an increase of $33,534.22, or 4.98 per cent, officials said. If some one had bought a few more stamps, the gain would have been 5 per cent. Today's report follows the December statement, which revealed a new record for that month, as well as for any other month in the history of the Washington office. The Jan-uary figures indicate a very high state of business activity in the

Postal receipts in the Capital in the full year 1940 totaled $8,596.851, as compared with $8.071,554 in 1939 a striking increase during the year of $525,297.

The gain in postal revenues is similar to that in bank clearings in the Capital, January canceled checks totaling $132,187,282, against $107,137,093 in January, 1940, an increase of $25,050,189 and the highest January clearings total ever known here.

Associated Press Financial Writer NEW YORK, Feb. 4.-Further efw forts to promote a rally in today's stock market were half-hearted at * the best and early gains of fractions to a point or so were reduced or turned into declines when the closing gong sounded.

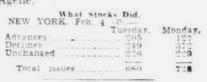

Quotations were highest in the forenoon when steels, rails, rubbers, coppers, oils and specialties were favored by timid buyers. Leaders began to slip after midday

Volume was inconsequential, both during firming and softening intervals. Transfers of around 350.000 shares were among the smallest in 1/4 about five months.

Stocks up the greater part of the day-some eventually faltered-included U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, American Smelt. ing. International Nickel, N. Y Shipbuilding, Bath Iron Works, Paramount, Union Carbide, Westinghouse and United Aircraft.

Lacking much rising power were General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American 14 Telephone, Anaconda, Du Pont, General Electric, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris, International Harvester and J. C. Penney.

In a listless curb plus marks were tacked on Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum and Phoenix Securities. Backward were American Gyanamid "B," New England Telephone, Pennroad and Novadel-Agene.

Writer Presents Dark Picture of British Prospects

A prediction that "formal dedicaof the United States' entry into the European war would come about June was made by Ray Tucker, newspaper columnist and maga-zine writer, in an address before the League of Republican Women of the District yesterday.

Mr. Tucker, who presented a dark picture of British prospects at present, expressed the belief it would be impossible for England, without aid, to wrest the invaded countries on the continent from the Nazi conquerors. Should the United States eventually join with England in such an undertaking, a combined Army of 15,000,000 men would be required for its success, he declared.

Mr. Tucker suggested, however, that this Nation exercise a certain amount of selfishness in making future decisions and that the prevailing consideration be "what is best for the United States."

He asserted that Britain's shipand sailor began shortly after his ping losses were much more serious than damages caused by Nazi planes. which so far, he said, have destroyed only about 7 per cent of Britain's turnout of weapons. Strike Arbitration Bill Is Vital in Defense, Says Ball in Forum

Senator Explains Plan For 'Cooling Off' Period Prior to Stopping Work

Senator Ball, Republican, of Minnesota discussed "Labor Relations in Defense Industries" in an address last night in the National Radio Forum, arranged by The Star. The speech was broadcast over a national hookup of the National Broadeasting Co. and was heard locally over Station WMAL.

The text of the talk follows: This problem of developing better and more efficient labor relation procedures in the United States is not a new one. It has been with us for at least a century. During the last 50 years especially it has been the subject of ever-increasing investigation and public discussion and debate. The growth of both labor organizations and business enterprises have increased the magnitude of the problem and its complexities. Today we have single plants employing upward of 10,000 men. A stoppage of work in such a plant as a result of a labor dispute cannot but have a tremendous effect on the community and often on an entire region.

Actually, the techniques and proeedures used in handling labor dislabor's use of its collective power to obtain for itself a larger share in the fruits of production results from the disruption of production schedules and the bitterness between employer and employes which always follows any plant shutdown due to this cause. Any labor leader and any employer who has been through it will admit that after a plant has been closed down as a result of a labor dispute, it often takes months and even years to restore the harmonious relations and teamwork between management and employes so essential to speedy and efficient production. It is my opinion that these indirect losses due to plant shutdowns as a result of labor disputes are far greater than the direct losses in production which might have taken place during the shutdown.

That is why today the public, management, organized labor and the Congress are all concerned about this problem of labor relations. With the dangers threatening our Nation. we simply cannot afford to permit anything to slow down our defense

Voluntary Change Takes Time.

If these were normal times, I believe it would be wiser to leave this problem to the parties directly concerned-management and labor. I am sure that in the course of the years they would voluntarily work out fair and equitable procedures which would eliminate to an ever increasing degree stoppages of production due to labor disputes. I believe that eventually, when they had perfected these procedures to auit themselves, they probably would come themselves to the Congress and ask for enactment of legislation writing these procedures into the statutes. But, unfortunately, that sort of development, and it is a development which fits best into the pattern of our democracy, takes time, years of time, and today we cannot afford that time. I believe it is essential that procedures be worked out immediately that will reduce to the absolute minimum stoppages of production due to labor disputes. We do have some models and some experience on which to draw. Noteworthy among these is the Railway Labor Act. It is significant, I believe, that this act, which has virtually eliminated major stoppages of work in that industry, was the result of nearly 40 years of trial, error and experience. Congress enacted the first railway labor disputes conciliation law in 1888, and made one or two other attempts beefore 1926 when the railroad brotherhoods and the big international unions in that industry joined with the railway executives to draft the present Railway Labor Act which Congress passed. We have also the experience of several States under State labor relations acts, notably that enacted ment of the American Federation a provision bitterly. I think it sota, which was a modification of the breadth of understanding the Railway Labor Act to meet the and the statesmanlike approach to sota, which was a modification of the Breadth of understanding the Railway Labor Act to meet the varied conditions existing in all industry as opposed to those only in the railway industry. In the nearly two years of its operation the Minth the entire statement, including the position that the scorer all of which takes three or four years of the blood. Our country naturally divides into certain recognized zones, and the conference declared its intention to immediately endeavor to secure conferences with employes in such districts, or zones, beginning with the shipbuilding industry, so that without loss of time those who must produce for national defense-management and labormeet at the conference table for the purpose of negotiating working rules agreements, the intent effect of which will be to unify and stabilize industrial relations, and the terms of employment in such districts. Such agreements must contain provision for voluntary arbitration, and that there shall be no stoppage of work. The entering into of such agreements are the guarantee that there will be neither strikes nor lockouts.

As the conference declared itself on June 20, 1940, it so again declares its policy and its intention to co-operate to the greatest degree, to which recognition is given to it, with every Federal agency connected with national

The bill which Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee introduced is somewhat more elaborate and follows a little more closely the pattern of the Railway BACKACHE, elaborate and follows a little more Labor Act. It also contains one feature which I believe would cause endless trouble. That is a prohibition of closed-shop agreements with unions. The unions, which have fought long and hard for closed- BE DANGER SIGN I believe the metal trades depart- shop agreements, would resent such

days under the specifications. A requirement of 50 days of negotiation on such a job obviously would tie

labor's hands completely. Further, I believe the need is for broad legislation covering all industries producing for defense. A number of separate acts applying to individual industries would cause endless confusion and increase costs

This need for a fairly simple and speedy procedure which can be applied to all types of industry is one factor which led me to depart considerably from the Railway Labor Act model. The Railway Labor Act sets up a very complicated and lengthy procedure. It provides first for direct negotiation between the employer and employes, then for submission to an adjustment board, then for mediation by the National Mediation Board, then for an attempt to get both parties to agree to arbitration, and finally if all else fails, for appointment of a special fact-finding commission by the President. During all these procedures, and they often string out over many months, there can be neither a strike nor a lockout. That sort of procedure has worked out very well for the railways where employment is stable year in and year out and where there is a long record of collective bargaining on both sides of the table. I don't helieve it can be applied immediately to all industries, and so I have simplified the machinery as much as possible. I hope and I believe that eventually organized labor and organized employers will themselves get together and work out procedures aimed to settle disputes with a minimum of strikes or lockouts They will either incorporate such union leaders have been and are In addition to these legislative at- employers working under such Congress to enact them into law.

> Permits Labor to Strike. The bill which I have introduced does not take away labor's basic right to strike. I am absolutely opposed to a legislative prohibition of all strikes or a requirement for compulsory arbitration, which amounts to the same thing. For one thing, Congress could not stop strikes by such legislation; it would merely make them illegal. Furthermore, I believe the emphasis in such legislation should be on conciliation and negotiation, rather than having Government step into the labor relations picture as a policeman cracking down on either party.

I do not believe that a requirement of 20 days of negotiations in all before a strike could take place impairs labor's right to strike seriously. As I see it, it simply means that when a group of employes and their employer have reached the them that you must make one more

The chances of effecting a settlement of a labor dispute are much better and the job is much easier employes and employers if the employes are still working would be required to give written and the plant still operating. Once

Young Pianist Combines Technique, Brains and Sentiment Appearing With Masterly Cellist

Love Unaware by Day Russell -

The story thus far: Verity Vane is abruptly summoned to the office of old Mr. Danforth, head of the big steel company whose building is across the street from the office where she works. She has seen the old man from her window many times, and now learns that he has observed her closely for some time and is confident of her ability to undertake a strange mission for him, for which he will provide her with unlimited expense money and $10,000 if she succeeds. He wants her to locate his son Dennis, whom he hasn't seen since they quarreled 10 years ago, and bring him home. Compelled by a love of adventure to accept the offer, Verity arranges to take with her as paid companion her roommate, Peggy Marshall. With money advanced by Danforth they buy a car and new clothes. Neither knows that Peggy's boy friend. Jimmy Deacon, is also employed by Mr. Danforth to guide them in their search.

Visit Odd Places.

They had had dinner. Two boys had asked them to dance, but Verity had excused herself on the plea of tiredness. They had not driven far, but they had bathed twice and had explored half-a-dozen small fishing villages, each with its collection of old people who did curious things for a living and enjoyed life as few city people did. They had had tea with a little old woman who had taken a tiny fisherman's cottage and had converted it with paint and imagination into a delightful little home. There she did something with oranges and cloves and odd bits of material and made perfume bags to hang in odd places in the house. Everybody who passed seemed to drop in for tea and to buy one or more of her perfume

Recent Word From London Discloses That Woolen Hose Are Being Worn

Spring Corset Trends Shown; 'Military Trend' in Almost Every Article of Attire

By Helen Vogt

THE FASHION DEPARTMENT LENDS AN EAR--to style news received in a recent letter from London. One of our enterprising and sympathetic friends recently sent a British lady some nylon stockings-the first ones the latter had seen, for the magic fabric had not yet reached England. In her letter of thanks, she says that silk hose are now nearly non-existent in her country and that gayly colored woolen ones are being worn-and very effectively. They are matched to sweaters or jumpers and chosen in bright tones. Novelty touches such as wide lacings up the side are also being seen in these stockings, which are as warm as they are practical.

-to corset trends for spring, 1941. At a recent showing, the highlights indicated that a lady-like silhouette will be in vogue, with an eased waistline and straighter hipline. The extremely pointed bra has gone out and there is a new, rounded, natural effect. Fabrics are thinner and stronger, with nylon used often and well. Complete garments, boneless, may weigh as little as 4½ ounces! Half size figures will get special attention and pantie girdles for larger figures will be in all price ranges. The favorite colors remain French nude for daytime, white for resort wear, black for evening, -to a new slip that has quietly entered the picture. It's really only

She was given a nap after lunch instead of before it as she had been having, and got along much better. Tantrums are often caused by fatigue.

Sometimes they are caused by physical ailments. A child with earache loses his control early and tantrums are in order. Poor vision tires a child very soon, and so does poor hearing. Any child who shows temper and irritation over nothing important should be examined for physical defects.

Children in good health, 'living under harmonious conditions, do not have tantrums. These spells of uncontrolled behavior are not just a child's evil spirit exhibiting itself. They are indications of hidden difficulties, and instead of punishing the child for bad behavior we should search for causes and remove them wherever possible.

In this search do not omit consideration of the personalities that are touching upon him during the day. If there is any one who insistently commands him, try to relieve that person of any responsibility for the child. If there is anybody teasing or bullying him, frightening him or exciting him, take care of that person and relieve the child from his attentions. Nothing tires a child so completely and swiftly as personal pressure from inconsiderate people

Also, look at the atmosphere of the home. Is it the kind that makes a child's activity a burden to him? Is noise a crime, and disorder a sin? If so, the child cannot thrive there. Is there fear and strain in the house? Is there discord, scold-Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1714-B ing and tears? Adolescence Full of Grief, But Brings Many Joys by Way of Compensation

Majority of Young People Weather Teen Years With Little Real Unhappiness

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

Well, teen-agers, have you had your daily cry today? Or are you just too dumb or too busy to realize how tragically unhappy you are? Because you are, you know A lot of the columnists say so.

We hate to disagree with our respected colleagues, but we just can't swallow that one. Those who sincerely believe it are, in our opinion, either totally incapable of remembering their own teens or they are judging all youth on the basis of an unhappy adolescence which they unfortunately experienced themselves. Because we get an awful lot of letters from boys and girls who are going through what one columnist terms "the sorriest phase of existence." And some of them do have problems, some are unhappy. A few of them are suffering from a strain of some kind. All that is true,

But the great majority of them are more carefree, and happier, and less burdened by the ills of the world than any older group of human beings we know. And when you try to sell them the idea that they are struggling through what is inevitably a sad and trying period of their lives, you're not only talking through your hat, but you're doing them

Of course, the "teens" bring trials. Young people who have heretofore been children are changing into adults. They are dealing with a whole new set of emotions and ex- -

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. As I have told you, Farmer Brown's Boy had been all about the neighborhood asking at each farmhouse if anything had been seen of Bowser the Hound. Of course, nothing had been seen of him, and so at last Farmer Brown's Boy felt sure that something dreadful had happened to Bowser in the woods.

For several days he tramped through the Old Pasture, looking for signs of Bowser. His heart was heavy, for you know Bowser was quite one of the family. He visited every place he could think of where he and Bowser had hunted together. He knew that by this time Bowser couldn't possibly be alive if he had been caught by the foot in a trap or had met with an accident in the woods. He had quite given up all hope of ever seeing Bowser alive again. But he did want to know just what had happened, and so he kept searching and searching.

One day Farmer Brown's Boy heard that a strange dog had been found over in the next township. That afternoon he drove over there his heart filled with a great hope But he had his long ride for nothing for when he got there he found that the stronge dog was not Bowser at

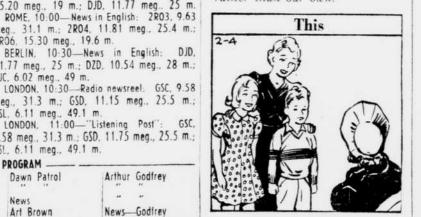

Meanwhile, Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox and Old Granny Fox had become very bold. They even came up around the henyard in broad daylight. "I believe you know something about what has become of Bowser," Farmer Brown's Boy said as he chased Old Man Coyote away one day. "You certainly know that he isn't home, and I more than suspect you know why he isn't home. I certainly shall have to get another dog to teach you not to be so bold.

But somehow Farmer Brown's Boy couldn't quite bring himself to take such a step as getting a new dog. He felt that no other dog ever should take Bowser's place, and in spite of the fact that he thought he had given up all hope of ever seeing Bowser again, way down deep inside was something which, if it were not hope, was something enough like it to keep him from getting another dog in Bowser's place.

Whenever he went about away from home he kept an eve out for oppose the Washington Eagles on the Riverside dogs in the farmyards he passed. He did it without really thinking anything about it. He had given up hope of finding Bowser and yet he was always looking for him.

VORE" is his way of informing the listeners that he speaks French like a native . . . of Squeedunk. Why use au revoir (literal meaning "to the seeing again") at all since our own good-by is by far the sweeter sentiment?

Good-by is a contraction of "God be with ye," the steps of decay being: God be wi' ye; God bw' ye; God bwye: good-bye or good-by As actors and dramatic readers must occasionally use the French au revoir, they should not risk embarrassment by mispronouncing the phrase.

But North's bidding sounded so weak to me that I wasn't even sure we could make two spades. let alone four. Where did we go astray?"

We have to agree with South that North's bidding was too weak to encourage him to make a third bid. While a defeat at two spades seems a little remote, there is no assurance of being able to make three spades If North's weak bidding is really representative of his hand.

North had two chances to assist his partner reach the game. At his first opportunity two spades would be a better choice than one notrump. Thurber's Play an Event, A Truly Merry One

'The Male Animal' Presents Spirit Of Its Author's Drawings in New Medium at the National

"The Male Animal" was reviewed in New York by Jay Carmody shortly after its opening there. Since it is the same "Male Animal," with the minor exception of some changes in the supporting cast during the Broadway run, the original report is herewith reprinted.)

By JAY CARMODY,

It would be an event when James Thurber writes a play. Moreover, his first one, "The Male Animal," which Herman Shumlin displaying at the National Theater, is a singularly happy event, one of the most pleasant things that has happened in the theater recently. Mission Hears Plea for Easing Japanese Curb

A demand that this Nation loosen its restrictions on Japanese immigration was voiced here today as the militant leaders of the National Christian Mission delved further into a study of the responsibility of

Christianity in world affairs. Mrs. Hilda Ives, professor at Andover-Newton Theological Seminary and member of the mission's "revival team." told a capacity crowd of women at a Christian life forum this morning that American churchwomen should organize at once to bring about a loosening of these restrictions "as a demonstration of

sincere Christian spirit. Speaking at Foundry Methodist Church, Mrs. Ives declared the Japanese had been "flouted" for years by United States immigration laws and added: "A true spirit of justice and fair play would be shown in removal of the blot at this time.' Organization Suggested. She suggested that religious leaders of Washington organize groups in their own churches and keep the movement constantly before their national boards.

That Christians must take a fresh

view of the role of religion in world affairs was emphasized in other meetings and conferences which featured the third day of the mission's week-long program Addressing a gathering of scores of ministers at Calvary Baptist Church, Dr. E. Stanley Jones, worldrenowned missionary-evangelist. declared the future of this country is in the hands of disciplined people. He warned it is not necessary that the group which is disciplined be a large one. "It was a small group which made Germany Nazi. Italy Fascist and

The Civitan Club of Washington at a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, heard Dr. C. J. McCombe pastor of St. Paul's and St. drew's Methodist Church of New York, issue a warning to Christians to avoid the misplaced emphasis of assuming that democracy precedes religion

"Christianity does not exist and function for the purpose of perpetuating a form of government known would be betrayal of Christianity and ruinous to democracy. Religion is not the handmaiden of tiations with Germany, which have democracy. Rather, religion deliberately determines the quality of and a definite agreement within the democracy. If democracy scarcely survived the first World War, its life may be even more precarious in the present conflict, largely due to reigious and political apostasy." Miss Anne V. Rice, former gen eral secretary of the International Y. W. C. Speculators Hoarding Aluminum Scrap, Defense Official Says

Drastic Action May Be Needed to Halt Price Rise, Bishop Warns

Charges that certain manufacturers and speculators are hoarding scrap and secondary aluminum and thereby doing a "disservice to the defense program" were made today by C. A. Bishop, member of the Price Stabilization Division of the National Defense Advisory Commis-

Mr. Bishop said this hoarding already has caused the price of secondary, or reconditioned, aluminum to rise higher than that for virgin ingot, currently selling at 17 cents a pound. Undess this situation is corrected, Mr. Bishop declared drastic action will be needed to prevent a sharp price increase.

He said two groups have accumulated "very substantial quantities" of scrap metal. One group consists of manufacturers who, instead of marketing scrap, hold it for reprocessing if aluminum becomes scarce. The second group is composed of those holding the metal for speculative profit only.

"Motive Not to Their Credit." The speculators. Mr. Bishop deelared, "are doing a distinct disservice to the defense program and for a motive that is not to their credit * * * the former group is doing an equal disservice, but with a motive which may not be criticized to the same degree."

There is sufficient scrap aluminum to satisfy needs of the next few months, however, according to figures accumulated by the Defense Commission. Reports reaching the price stabilization division indicate that certain consumers are buying more than their current needs of scrap aluminum in order to accumulate surplus inventories. Such pracages and price rises-precisely the Bishop added. Scrap aluminum is bringing as much as 22 to 28 cents a pound at present, it was said. Drastic Action Undesirable.

failure to pay her World War debt New Coast Guard Reserve Urged by Senate Body

The Senate Commerce Committee recommended today creation of a new Coast Guard Reserve force and designation of the existing reserve as a Coast Guard auxiliary.

Approving legislation to provide for the new organization, the committee said that immediate emergency needs required induction in the Reserve of 100 commissioned officers, 126 warrant officers and 270 boats with a total complement of 1.620 men.

The annual cost for putting this force into active service was estimated at $3,494,611. In testimony before the committee. Coast Guard officials said they planned to use the reserve complement to guard docks, harbors, dams and other works against possible "sabotage." District Citizenry Congratulates WMAL On New Transmitter

Wider Service to Area Forecast in Dedicatory Program

Washington congratulated The Star and WMAL during a half-hour broadcast last night at the studios in the Trans-Lux Building, officially inaugurating the station's new 5,000watt transmitter in Montgomery County, Md., which was put in operation yesterday morning.

Representatives of various com munity interests in the Capital voiced appreciation of The Star's and WMAL's past services to the community and brought greetings from the groups on the acquisition of the new transmitter.

Fleming Newbold, vice president and business manager of The Star, spoke on behalf of The Evening Star Newspaper Co., which owns the station; William S. Hedges, station relations vice president of the National Broadcasting Co., which operates the station, brought felicitations from his organization, and Kenneth Berkeley, station manager spoke for the studio.

The program was enlivened by the music of Morgan Baer and his N. B. C. Orchestra and the baritone singing of Gene Archer Hazen Notes "Wise Policy."

Unable to attend because of illness, Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners, sent a telegram, which was read by an announcer. Mr. Hazen congratulated WMAL and The Star on the progress represented in completion of the new transmitter and declared that he had "noted the wise policy" of the station "using its facilities in connection with the advancement of worthwhile undertakings which benefit the City of Washington." adding, "Construction of this new transmitter with its increased power indicates continuance on an even broader scale of this policy

Mr. Newbold told of WMAL's origin, reminding the radio audience that the last three letters of the station's name are the initials of its founder, Martin A. Leese, whose family long was connected with The Star. The Star, he said, had maintained a friendly interest in WMAL since its beginning in

A wish expressed by Mr. Leese that The Star some day would acquire the station was realized about three years ago, when the newspaper bought WMAL, Mr. Newbold related. He said The Star, in deciding to enter the radio field, "saw an opportunity to render additional service to the people of Washington. The occasion we are celebrating tonight." he continued, "is but one manifestation of our intention to make the most of that opportunity.'

Dedicated to the Public Interest. station's progress would not stop with the acquisition of a new transmitter. "As new developments occur in the magic realm of radio,' he declared, "friends of WMAL and The Star may expect to find their favorite station keeping fully abreast of the trend. * * The Star pledges that WMAL always will be conducted in the interest of the public in general and of the citizens of the National Capital in

Mr. Hedges, referring to WMAL as "a mirror of Washington's acdeclared it was a key station of the National Broadcasting Co.'s blue network. "Through it he said, "the North, the South, the East and the West have kept in touch with their Government.'

Station Manager Berkeley said staff members of WMAL believe that the enlarged community which will be reached by the new power setup "will receive an important service heretofore denied it." Tracing the station's "career." he declared that WMAL is "an expression of America's right to freedom of speech and freedom of thought."

Mrs. Doyle Expresses Thanks.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said she wished to express the appreciation of the board and herself for the service rendered by WMAL and The Star in making possible many programs that interpret the work of the public schools. The two institutions, she declared, "were pioneers in Washington in a continuous effort to acquaint the community with the work of the public schools.

Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest; James E Colliflower, president of the Board of Trade, and Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, in brief messages added the congratulations and best wishes of their organizations

Others unable to attend the cere mony, but who sent telegrams which were read over the air, were George E. Burrus, president of the Advertising Club of Washington; the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, and Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress.

Cleveland Will Speak

Richard F. Cleveland, Baltimore lawyer and son of former President Grover Cleveland, will discuss "Are We at War?" at the Annapolis Town Meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, in the gymnasium of St. John's College.

Roosevelt Expected To Name Ambassador To Britain Thursday

Identity Not Disclosed, But Talk Centers On Winant

By JOHN C. HENRY.

Nomination of an Ambassador to Great Britain probably will be sent to the Senate on Thursday, it was indicated at the White House today. Resignation of Joseph P. Kennedy from this post was submitted to President Roosevelt late last fall with its acceptance conditional on an understanding that Mr. Kennedy would stand by for emergency service until a successor was designated Since then speculation on the Identity of the new envoy to the London government has centered most frequently on John G. Winant, former Republican Governor of New Hampshire and at present head of the International Labor The President has never disclosed identity of the appointee, although he told a press conference several weeks ago that he had chosen a man for the post. Since then he has conferred at least twice

Capitol Hill at that time. There has also been speculation that a minister may be named by this Government to the British government, presumably to serve as arranging aide to the new Ambassador. The British government has named two ministers to Washington to serve with Lord Halifax, new Am-

In diplomatic circles, it also has been reported that Nelson T. Johnson, our Ambassador to China, may be shifted into a new post, possibly exchanging assignments with Clarence E. Gauss, now our Minister to Australia. These changes likewise would require Senate confirmation. Meanwhile, the Chief Executive made a check on progress of America's defense program in an early morning conference with three cabinet officers and top-ranking defense advisers.

Called to the White House for consultation were Secretary of State Hull. Secretary of War Stimson. Secretary of the Navy Knox. Gen. George C. Marshall. Army chief of staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

Ford Engineers Say Nazis Can't Equal U. S. Production

Research Is Turned to 'Integration of Flow Of Material' to Planes

This is the 15th of a series of articles on aircraft engine production by The Star's aviation

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON,

(Fifteenth article of a series.) DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 4 .- Germany never can hope to match industrial production with the United States, in the opinion of Ford Motor Co. engineers, who now are turning the vast Ford facilities to aircraft engine production and re-

"The Germans learned their production technique from this country, but they never can beat their teachers, because we have a number of new stunts to uncork which we are confident they know nothing about," a Ford spokesman said Among these "stunts" are advances in the science of metallurgy, the substitution of castings for forgings in aircraft engines and the adaptation of American automobile production methods, unrivaled anywhere in the world, to aircraft production

Flow of Material.

One of the major phases of the Ford research program today is directed toward "integration of the flow of material" into the aircraft and aircraft engine production This is an exacting science, developed by the automobile industry through many years of study and experience and as yet not mastered by the younger aircraft industry generally, it was explained

Upon the proper rate of flow of the thousands of parts which go into the individual airplane or engine depends the effectiveness of the entire production line, it was explained. The development of precision methods of integrating the flow of so many parts is a contribution which has been made to industry generally by the automobile factories, it is claimed, and is the real key to mass production. Applicatin of these principles to aircraft production is regarded here as the greatest contribution the automobile industry can make to

Flooded With Applications.

The Ford company has been "flooded" with applications for admission to the new aircraft school. The volume of applications has been so great, according to F. E. superintendent of Ford schools, that only one of every 40 can be accetped. Before the end of 1940 several hundred young men had been qualified for admission, and a full quota of 2,000 is expected to be filled before next June. As the students complete their training course new applicants will be accepted to fill vacancies left by those graduating into regular pro-

"We are seeking only the best material to fill our new training school," Mr. Searle said. "The ac- he asserted, is to create dissatisfaccuracy required in building airplane parts is not so much greater than that needed in producing automobiles, but we have a slightly different problem when it comes to finishes. In aircraft work almost all surfaces must be super-smooth or the material will be scrapped, while in car parts great smoothness is not required in many cases.

"Thus our preliminary training program and the schedule to be followed in the new school will have to be geared to cover this new attitude of mind. The additional skill in working smooth surfaces will be vitally essential."

Whitman Says Cost Of 6-Lane Road Must Be Borne by Government

Possible routes of a proposed sixlane superhighway between Washington and Baltimore are being studied jointly by the Maryland State Roads Commission and the United States Public Roads Administration, Chairman Ezra B. Whitman of the commission disclosed today.

Chairman Whitman explained by telephone that the cost of any such project, which he estimated at approximately $12,000,000, probably would have to be borne entirely by the Federal Government. He said the commission had not approached any officials here concerning financing, preferring that the Public Roads Administration seek funds if the new road is given final approval

The new highway would run to the east of the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, overcrowding of which prompted study of another road,

Elaborating on his statement vesterday before 130 engineers attending the fifth annual highway engineers' short course at the University of Maryland, Mr. Whitman said his suggestion of a six-lane road with "rough side lanes for trucks" did not mean trucks would travel in lanes separated from the principal pavement. The lanes at either side of the highway would be constructed of heavy-duty concrete to withstand the pounding of heavy vehicles, he explained.

BERLIN, Feb. 4 (A).—The Ger- possible. man press omitted today editorial discussion of the French political situation, but the commentary Dienst aus Deutschland emphasized the existence of a victor-and-vanquished relationship between Germany and France.

Relations between the two countries, it said, rest on the dual bases of the armistice treaty and the Hitler-Petain conference at Montoire last October

The armistice treaty meant not only a cessation of hostilities between Germany and France," the article said, "but also included necessary stipulations for continuing Germany's war against England from

Patiency Exercised. Of the Hitler-Petain meeting, the commentary said, "the French chief of state manifested a determination for co-operation with Germany . . . and on the German side it was viewed as the French task to make a political reality out of their opportunity at Montoire. Accordingly the greatest hesitancy and the continued patience have been shown with respect to the internal affairs of France. It went on to say that Pierre Laval, former vice premier and Foreign Minister, was considered in Germany to be an exponent of cooperation "who was turned out of the cabinet and later reviled and persecuted. On the German side many doubts have been raised about Vichy politics * * *." Formation last week in Paris of a French national party, described as opposed to policies of the Vichy "Committee or 51," it was said, had German approval, if not full support-pending clarification of M.

Wage-Hour Act Upheld

The Supreme Court decision upholding the Wage and Hour Act is another important victory for the New Deal social welfare program, and extends still further the everwidening orbit of the power of the Federal Government within the States.

The law, prohibiting interstate shipment of goods produced under lower wage-hour standards than provided by the act, was held unconstitutional by a Georgia District Court, which said it sought to regulate manufacture within the States, and could not reach under its power to regulate interstate commerce.

With one incisive sentence, the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court, read by Justice Stone, swept away this contention:

"While manufacture is not of itself interstate commerce, the shipment of manufactured goods interstate is such commerce and the prohibition of such shipment by Congress is indubitably a regulation of the commerce." Then, as if further to emphasize the sweeping effect of the decision, the court said that "the obvious purpose of the act was not only to prevent the interstate transportation of the proscribed product, but to stop the initial step toward transportation-production with the purpose of so transporting it."

In the same opinion, the court validated the child-labor ban embodied in the act, and specifically overruled a twenty-two-year-old decision holding Congress to be without power to regulate the employment of minors. In that earlier decision, which provoked a notable dissent by Justice Holmes, the court had said that the congressional power to prohibit interstate commerce was lim-Red to articles which in themselves harmful and deleterious property-"a distinction" Justice Stone commented, "which was novel when made, and unsupported by any provision of the Constitution—has long since been abandoned."

The Church in Norway

In a militant protest destined to ring around the Christian world, the seven Protestant bishops of Norway, led by the Bishop of Oslo, have remonstrated against Nazi tyranny in their conquered country. Their manifesto, addressed to the Education and Church Councilor of State in the guise of an appeal for "clarification," constitutes an outspoken indictment of the Norwegian "new order." The regime imposed by the German authorities is pilloried on three principal counts-open and systematic encouragement of violence and contempt for law; conditions which caused resignation of all members of the Supreme Court, and illicit interference, contrary to agreement, with church laws, including preachers' vow of secrecy which, the With automobile accidents taking | bishops say, "is not only granted by law, but is the foundation of the church, the magna carta of the con-

But the territory never actually has been brought into subjection by any European power. The inhabitants a decade ago were estimated to number about six hundred and twentyone thousand. A vast majority of these people are semi-nomad shepherds of Arab stock or of Ethiopian ancestry. The plateau-dwellers generally are Copts, their neighbors in the highlands and in the lower country are disciples of Islam. A certain militant pride characterizes both elements. Neither is noted for anxiety to avoid trouble. Perhaps the contemporary population is of only relatively recent importation. The main road from Adulis to Axomis runs through territory which formerly was occupied by different races. Ruined cities, broken monuments, may be seen on either side of the highway. The inscriptions are in several primitive alphabets. It is recorded that "at the end of the reign of Nero, and perhaps even earlier, the king of the Axumites ruled over the Red Sea coast from Suakin to the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, and traded constantly with Egypt. On February 5, 1885, Italian troops occupied the principal town, Massawa, described as "the chief and only good port" affording access to the turbulent interior. There followed intermittent strife involving Ethiopians and nameless highland tribes resentful of foreign intruders even when they appeared with money in their hands to pay for the real estate

they wanted. As a practical investment, Eritrea never has been worth its cost to Italy. If, however, it is appraised for its strategic value, it must be conceded to be important. It could be and probably has been a base for operations against the British lifeline to India. Obviously, it is for that reason that English armies currently are moving to expel the Italians from the coastal region.

A Novel Decision Labor unions have been given what amounts to a judicial license to engage in jurisdictional strikes and similar abuses by the majority decision of the Supreme Court in the Anheuser - Busch case - a ruling which was described by Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Roberts as a seeming "usurpation by the courts of the function of the Congress not only novel but fraught, as well, with the most serious dangers to our constitutional system of division of powers."

The case turned on a dispute between the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the International Association of Machinists, both members of the American Federation of Labor. as to which should perform a certain class of work for Anheuser-Busch. Anheuser-Busch had had agreements with both organizations whereby the machinists were given the disputed jobs and the carpenters agreed to submit all disputes to arbitration. In 1939, however, officials of the carpenters' union insisted on having the jobs, went on strike and instituted a boycott after refusing to submit the demand to arbitration.

This resulted in a situation in which an employer who was not accused of any anti-union activity, and, indirectly, the general public, became the victims of a family quarrel between two unions, and on this basis Thurman Arnold, head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, sought and obtained an indictment charging a criminal violation by the carpenters' union officials of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

In declaring this indictment to be the state. "The church's whole ex- the Clayton Act and the Norris-La Court is branded as having been "in a union acts in its self-interest," open conflict with acknowledged Justice Frankfurter said, "and does principles of law and as having ab- not combine with non-labor groups, the licit and the illicit (under the Clayton Act) are not to be distin-Explaining that these reactionary guished by any judgment regarding developments have created feelings the wisdom or unwisdom, the rightness or wrongness, the selfishness or unselfishness of the end of which the particular union activities are the means." Congress, in passing the Clayton and Norris-La Guardia Acts, sought only to restrict the use of injunctions against labor unlons. Despite determined efforts by labor over a long period of years to secure complete exemption from the anti-trust laws, there has never been any legislative curb imposed on criminal proceedings under the statutes, although the possibility of such action being initiated hardly could have been overlooked by Congress. In arriving at his conclusion, however, Justice Frankfurter summarily disposed of this question of congressional intent. The Clayton and Norris-La Guardia Acts, he said, "must not be read in a spirit of mutilating narrowness," and taking a broad view of the language of the statutes, the justice held that because Congress had curbed the use of injunctions it also intended, on a given set of facts, to ban resort by the Government to criminal proceedings.

Describing this reasoning as "a process of construction never, as I think, heretofore indulged by this court," Justice Roberts, in the strongly worded dissent, added: "I venture to say that no court has ever undertaken so radically to legislate where Congress has refused so to do." In that comment there is a suggestion of unintended irony, reminiscent as it is of the New Dealers' complaintat the time of the fight over the President's court bill-that the "old court" was guilty of judicial law-

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

Newly discovered methods of fire fighting, largely worked out in the laboratories of the United States Department of Agriculture, have contributed much to the protection of London from incendiary bombs.

These, it has been learned here, have contained aluminum or magnesium powder. Both these elements unite easily with the oxygen in water to form a highly explosive gas. Thus if a hose was turned on such a bomb, unless it was done with considerable skill, it would only spread the flames. This was discovered by Department of Agriculture chemists a few years ago in investigating disastrous fires in American aluminum plants.

At that time, however, it was found that if a very gentle spray was turned on the flames the hydrogen was released slowly and its rate of burning could be controlled.

"The difference," said one Department of Agriculture chemist, "is about that between lighting a jet on a gas stove and lighting a match in a room

So the watchers on the London rooftops are being trained to spray the burning bombs very lightly so they will burn out gradually. It is dangerous to attempt smothering the fires with sand, to say nothing of carrying it to the rooftops in sufficient amounts to do any good. There is some advantage in surrounding a blazing bomb with a wall of wet sand to prevent spread of the Fire protection in wartime, it is stressed, is almost entirely a civilian responsibility. For this reason the National Defense Advisory Committee has named a group of experts, including engineers, Army and Navy officers, and fire chiefs, and headed by Mayor Maurice E. Tobin of Boston, to organize this branch of the Nation's defense. It is considered so important in London that, according to latest figures received here, a reserve of 26,000 men has been built up and service in it is considered equally important with service in the army. The possibility of fire offensives was recognized before the war and American reports carefully studied.

While America's professional firemen are well trained in latest methods, according to members of the committee. they probably would be far from adequate in the face of a concentrated shower of fire bombs such as London has experienced several times. Also many small cities and some large ones still are protected only by volunteer departments, mostly with inadequate training. So vital is the need that courses in fire fighting have been started in several colleges.

The Department of Agriculture fire fighting experiments have been carried David J. Price of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, and were originally concerned with dust explosions in flour mills. Dr. Price now is a member of the

It soon was found that customary methods of fighting fires in such mills often resulted in violent explosions that cost the lives of firemen. This was due to the fact that turning the full force of the hose on such a building shook loose the accumulated dust from the walls and ceiling, forming a cloud which was highly explosive.

From this came the recommendation for lighter sprays which worked very well until the aluminum dust was encountered. German military authorities. apparently, learned this lesson early and applied it in building their bombs

To the Editor of The Star: I favor the lease-lend bill because there seems to be so few good reasons for opposing it. The reasons advanced are Col. Lindbergh: Doesn't want either side to win, wants a negotiated peace, believes a just peace is possible now and that we should co-operate with the victor. Thinks 10,000 planes sufficient, does not believe we could impose our way of life on Europe or Asia, hopes for peace by the collapse of one side or the other, but has no preference concerning the ethics of either. Believes we were largely responsible for the war and that Germany will win, but that we can lick her all alone. Mr. Kennedy: Puts the cost in one pan of the scale and the safety of our institutions in the other, is afraid of arousing "the public to fighting pitch," afraid to trust the President with the power of quick and necessary action. Believes the British Navy will neither fight to the death nor surrender, but when England is defeated will protect British possessions. Would rather surrender to a victor than become "involved," and prefers a Hitler-dominated world to risking war, but would rather see Britain successful.

Mr. Thomas: Would welcome drastic changes in our Government, doesn't like the present trend toward preserving democracy.

Gen. Johnson: Fears to give power to the President, even in the present emergency; would rather risk the danger of delay than trust the President and his

* * * * Bird banding is carried on under the auspices of the Biological Survey. The work is done to give ornithologists a true picture, with statistics, of

bird life in this country. They want to know how long birds live. whether the same pairs remain together, where they migrate, whether they return to the same places year after year, and so on

A license is necessary now to take part in this work. Essentials in this work are traps, officially numbered and registered bands and a desire personally to handle birds without harming them.

Only a comparatively few amateur bird lovers will have any desire to take part in this type of work. Birds, when caught, are extremely scared, naturally enough. Their reactions differ, of course, but any one who ever has held a bird in the hand knows what it is.

Unless one is extremely careful in handling the traps, and especially in springing the door, a bird may be caught. Removing them is a matter of great fluttering on the part of the bird and some trepidation on the part of the human being involved, especially if new at the work.

The bands have to be put on just so. They should slide, but not allow so much play that a berry or other foreign substance could get in between the band and the leg. If too large, the band may cause the creature to become caught somewhere. * * * *

It is not very often that one sees banded birds hereabouts.

the bureau and the person who is cooperating. A tedious amount of clerical work is involved-tedious, that is, if one does not like such work. Checking and rechecking (check and double check, as Andy used to call it) do not appeal to some natures.

It is the only way, of course, to recognize a bird and to keep track of its movements.

Persons who find dead birds with bands on their legs should remove the band, check the number and send it to the Biological Survey. In this way they know where the bird was first banded, its subsequent career, as far as reported, and its end. In this way, and in this way alone is it possible to tell how long the wild birds live

It has always seemed to us that bird banding would be a most melancholy task. We looked over a record some time ago, showing the histories of hundreds of banded birds, and it was amazing how many of them lived but two or three years.

Perhaps one must have the true scientific spirit to enter into bird banding in 1941. with vim and vigor and perennial interest. There can be no doubt that the interest grows with the work. * * * *

Of Lease-Lend Bill Unchanged. To the Editor of The Star

At this time when American safety and freedom are threatened, it is imperative that all political factions quickly agree on a national policy that will assure American safety. Time cannot be secured by prolonged debate. We know that our security depends upon Britain retaining command of the sea. Good sense dictates a policy of full aid to Britain. Our Navy and air force should be co-ordinated with those of Britain

The responsibility of Congress today is greater than that of any Congress since 1861. This Congress has the information and advice of the President, his cabinet. of high Army and Navy officers. The President's lease-lend bill should be passed without change and in time to save Britain from defeat. There is no use in considering halfway measures when Hitler has told the world that he will take from the "have nations." negotiated peace is impossible, we have Hitler's word for it.

I should like to ask the isolationists if it is half as disastrous to "plow" American soldiers under European soil as it would be to tie their hands and "plow" them under American soil along with women and children bombed and machine-gunned in American cities?

I believe, however, that along with the appropriation of billions for our defense, some attention should be devoted to the job of plugging the gaps in domestic revenue laws. It seems incredible but true nevertheless, that importers (citing one example), with great energy and fertile ingenuity, manage to take advantage of the loopholes in the Tariff Act and the apparent lack of an adequate field force to enter goods at values and classification rates of duty inconsistent with the nature of the imported article. If handicaps such as this could be overcome, I think Treasury Department actuaries would note a general increase in the yield of customs revenue.

The War Department which is supposed to be a non-partisan and non-political agency could learn all this readily, but decided to obey the behest of a labor leader on the National Defense Commission who insisted that a provision be included in certain War Department contracts submitted to bidders. When the superfluous language appended to the contract was not accepted by the bidder the War Department without warrant of law arbitrarily refused to award the contract to

Mr. Patterson may learn after he has been in Washington awhile is that the United States Army and the War Department are no longer independent agencies able to exercise their own judgment, but they must be careful not to offend pressure groups. Thus the Associated Press in a Washington dispatch this week reveals how important compulsory unionization has become to the War Department.

"Inasmuch as the Ford management excepted to the labor clauses in the defense truck contract, it was not immediately apparent whether the American Federation of Labor unionization gains would have an effect on the company's chances for future orders.

Despite, therefore, all the protestations of Senator Wagner of New York that the Wagner Act does not compel a man to join a union if he does not wish to do so, it is apparent that an employer cannot be awarded Government business on defense unless he accepts the dictation of union organizers.

In the old days of special privilege in Government, favors were handed out to the biggest contributors of funds to the campaign, all of which liberals and radicals denounced as corruption. By GOULD LINCOLN.

The need for national unity was never greater than it is today. The House began yesterday and is continuing today debate on the leaselend bill for aid to Britain-a measure that has been designated an "act to promote the defense of the United States" There is no division in Congress over the need of greater national defense. There is division however, over the method, and particularly over the degree of power which is to be delegated by Congress to the Chief Executive.

with the assent of the administration, four amendments have been written into the lease-lend bill by the House Foreign Affairs Committee. A Republican minority of the committee has submitted seven other proposals, which so far have been resisted by the administration. A middle ground should be attainable-must be attained if the coun-

Reading the minority report on the bill, it appears there is no disposition to oppose aid to Britain short of war. Indeed, the minority declares specifically for such aid. There is, however, among members of Congress a desire and determination to retain in the legislative body the right to pass upon major policiestion as the United States Army can particularly as they may affect the involvement of the United States in

There is an amendment already in the bill which says that the bill shall not be construed as giving the President authority to use American naval vessels to convoy The clause had nothing to do merchant vessels through the war zones. The Republican congressional representation is split wide open on the subject. It was because of this that Chairman Martin moved to prevent a showdown with regard to Willkie both at Des Moines and Omaha.

A great majority of the Republican Senators and Representatives came out of the last campaign bitterly resentful against Willkie, and his quick acceptance of the lease-lend bill followed by his trip to England virtually as an administration agent has greatly intensified this feeling However, there is a substantial group of Republicans who, while they profess no love for Mr. Willkie, agree with his assertion that "if the Republican party allows itself to be presented to the American people again gain control of the American Government." Failure of Vichy to Co-operate With Nazis May Mean an End to Notion of Independent France

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

When Admiral Darian, Petain's chief adviser, discusses the situation of the Franco-German "co-operation" with Hitler's spokesman in Paris, Herr Abetz, he will, according to reliable reports, be confronted with the following situation

Either the Vichy government plays along with the Reich without further delay or there will be a disrupting movement in France which might put an end even to the fictitious notion that there is today an independent France.

Marshal Petain, as far as it is known here, would like to stick strictly The fact is that while all of the to the terms of the armistice and not participate even indirectly in the democracy, much has been said of gigantic clash between Germany and Great Britain. But the Germans the habit of American business in have played their cards carefully. They were "nice" to Petain so long as he relied chiefly on Pierre Laval for political advice, but turned mean soon after Laval was ousted. In the meantime, their agents have taken advantage of the political passions of the French and especially of the venality of a number of politicians to organize a movement for an intimate German-French co-operation. They spent a good deal of money for that purpose. Money does not cost them anything. The funds spent on buying adherents to the "People's Committee" comes from the 400,000,000 francs a day which the French government has undertaken to pay the Reich as an indemnity for the army of occupation. There are a number of men like Doriot who are only too anxious to step into the Marshal's shoes-naturally with the aid of the Gestapo

Two Choices for Petain

Petain is reported to face the following alternatives: He can yield as the isolationist party, it will never to pressure and permit the German to use the North African naval for a balance-of-power position, to bases and possibly the French fleet in the war in the Mediterranean. Or, he gives up and retires to North Africa, where there still is a is solemnly termed "an open mind"

Tanks lack oil and gasoline, There is sufficient ammunition for guns for about four days and about a seven-day supply for small arms.

A few weeks ago the French could have obtained the necessary supplies from the British on condition that the Weygand forces collaborated with the British. But now it will be difficult to send them the necessary supplies because Britain herself is facing a critical period.

The German total blockade operations are expected to start within Judgeship, a new Post Office in his the next two weeks. Nobody knows in London how efficient this new district, the ousting of a political menace will be, but the admiralty and the war department don't want opponent from the Federal service, to take a chance. It is possible that within the first two weeks only a assurance of personal advancement very small number of transports will be able to reach British ports. The general staff is worried about Hitler's invasion in March. In order to Senatorial post. There may be a repel it, it will be necessary to use every air and naval unit available bill he wants passed. All of these and for that they need every ounce of gasoline at present stored safely things are the currency of the politiin the United Kingdom.

The British might have been able to spare some supplies for the is human nature in action French in December and January, but they certainly can't spare any now.

Yielding Seen Under Pressure

Under the circumstances, Petain realizes that his flight to Africa, which would have been wise in June or July last year, might be a useless, empty gesture now. His military and naval advisers, who estimate the situation mathematically, believe that if France is really pressed hard by the Germans, there is no choice but to give in. There is no question gins on defense contracts or conthat the bulk of the French people are against a co-operation which might harm England. They know that an eventual British defeat would spell France's doom as well. But the people of France don't have much to say these days. They are helpless. Their first concern is food and they get less and less each day. All they want is to see this war come

Because of the feeling which exists in Tunisia and in France against the Italians, Pierre Laval

The Germans are said to have yielded on this point and promised the French there would be an exclusively French-German co-operation

Congress Urged to Act With Haste

Politics of Delay Hit In Handling of Aid To Britain Bill

By JAY FRANKLIN.

Of the twin-evils which beset our don't have time for such scruples, clinging to the economics of scarcity Since the downfall of France, they in an age of technological abundance. Little has the realm of both industrial production and legislative action. The average Senator or Representative, faced with a major political measure, is apt to maneuver "hand" would be a better word-

This is all perfectly respectible almost institutional by now. The Senator or Representative is not in the market for bribery but in the natural course of events there are a number of things which he has already sought from the Government of which he is a part: a Federal to the governorship or a vacant cal market place and since politics inevitable that there should be trading in even the most urgent

Trading Involves Delay.

Trading involves delay, involves holding out for a higher price, whether in the form of profit marcessions in the legislative field

As a result, the Congress is effectively prevented from giving a swift decision on any important piece of legislation. In domestic affairs, this means that many urgently needed measures are automatically deferred until desperate situations arise-but we agree that this is part of the price we are prepared to pay for the privilege of self government

In issues of foreign policy, however, delay is one luxury we cannot afford. At least we cannot afford delay in the face of the stream. lined, split-second timing of the axis. A senatorial filibuster is no defense against a Blitzkrieg and no answer to the merciless logistics of total war

The Crisis Is Now.

So it is with the aid-to-Britain bill. The one thing we cannot afford in this connection is delay and indecision. The crisis is now, the need is now, tomorrow may be too late and the day after tomorrow we may find ourselves looking back on today as a lost gold mine of minutes and hours which we let slip from our possession

That there is division over the aid-to-Britain bill is natural. The vast majority of us are entirely willing to adopt this measure, pretty much as written. Some of us want it amended so as to "safeguard" it against theoretical dangers. A few want it beaten, either because they fear it will "drag us into war" or because they really want the axis

Under the circumstances, the American people as a whole have the right to demand that Congress act swiftly and decisively in disposing of this legislation. As individuals, we have the right to urge Congress to pass, amend or defeat the aid-to-England bill, but as a Nation we say to Congress:

"You are our representatives. It is up to you to act immediately. Time is of the essence. For the sake of America and for the sake of the world, we call on you to complete your action on this bill before Lincoln't birthday at the latest earlier if possible. We do not tell you to pass it, we do not order you to deteat it, we do not insist that you amend it. We simply say, "For God's sake! gentlemen of the Congress show that a democratically elected Legislature has the courage and capacity for quick decision. Show that you realize that it is impossible to filibuster a world war or to coin a world revolution into patronage and post offices. You are our servants. We pay you to represent our will. Now our will is that you set aside talk for delay's sake. debate for the purpose of sacotage, and act, act, act-now!"

Addresses Recorded As Metropolis View Association Meets

Stull, Wender and Rover Speak; Larger Civic Interest Urged

Speakers at the meeting last night of the Metropolis View Citizens' Association had the novel experience of hearing their addresses played right back to them from a portable recording set which was installed for the occasion.

Prominent civic leaders to appear before the group included Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations; Harry S. Wender, the Federation's vice president, and Leo A. Rover, former United States attorney for the District of Columbia. Mr. Stull and Mr. Wender both praised the work of local citizenry for the betterment of the community, but Mr. Wender emphasized the need for active participation in civic affairs by a larger number of Washingtonians. He said this was particularly necessary "if the local voteless residents are to obtain their own American heritage of representation in government." Mr. Rover, who is at present chairman of local Draft Board No. 20 in the District, lauded the spirit of the young men affected by the Selective Service Act in "realizing their responsibilities and obligations to American democracy."

Among others to address the association were Samuel Sidotti, president of the Board of Barber Examiners; Capt. Oscar Letterman of No. 12 police precinct; Benjamin W. Bolinger, charter member and first president of the Metropolis View council for the group, and Miss Grace Bush, principal of the Noyes School.

Takoma Group Hears Inspector Kelly Blame Speed for Death Toll

The need for an educational campaign to reduce pedestrian fatalities city was discussed. When the mat- posed zoning change to permit the and make motorists observe the right of way at the crosswalks was stressed last night by Inspector Edward J. Kelly of the Metropolitan Police Department in an address at the annual banquet of the ministration, "as ratified by the Citizens' Association of Takoma, of Trinity Episcopal Church.

The speaker said police were doing everything possible to cut the death rate which has shown a decided increase over a year ago. Since December 1, he said, 25 persons had been killed and speed was a big factor. Operators of the vehicles second trust holders, which was not involved were held in 12 cases and negligence on the part of the victims. CRUSADE

By NORMAN CHANDLER Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

∧BOUT thirty million A good citizens will have a chance to read this. It is a plea. It is an urgent plea for every one of you to enlist with us in a "drive" we have in mind.

This "drive" is for a very great goal-a better America.

Now I know that no one of us can do very much alone-any more than one soldier can win a war. But together-and with almost no effort—we can raise the strength of this great democracy of ours to unbelievable heights.

Perhaps I ought to call this proposal of mine a game, for it can become that.

Here is how you play it:

Start with this copy of your newspaper. Pick out of it one-just one -item of news which you think is important in making America better, stronger, a finer place to live.

Don't pick a selfish thing-something which would benefit you or your town at the expense of some

For example, you'll be tempted. if you're a schoolteacher, to approve some news which favors schoolteachers. If you're an orange grower you'll have to resist a cheer if a frost nips half the orange crop, leaving you untouched, with higher prices for your own oranges.

Pick out an item about an advance in medicine or a story of a new industry which makes good and needed jobs for a thousand men. Or pick a report of a good sermon or a fine, statesmanlike speech by a congressman.

Then spread this story. Tell a neighbor. Simply say to him, "I saw in the paper that so-and-so has done this-or-that."

Sound silly? It isn't at all. Do you realize that the whole nationthe 130 million of us—is merely the product of all the good and the bad that we do? And if more of us actively approve the good and unselfish and actively deplore the bad, we'll encourage more goodness and discourage the unsound, the evil, the dangerous.

After all, the very reason for newspapers existing in America is to bring you the record of what is going on. You wouldn't be qualified to take part in governing the district, the state or the nation you live in if you didn't know what was happening or what the news meant to you and your neighbors.

Try this crusade with us, will you? It won't be much trouble, but if thirty million good citizens just told one good thing to thirty million others every day we'd have a nation so strong and with such a spiritual unity that nothing could break it.

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, composed of over 350 leading American Newspapers, publishes these messages simultaneously each week. The force which unites these newspapers is their recognition of their responsibility to you, the reader.

Baseball Girds to Battle Czar While Pro Football Submits to Dictatorship

By GRANTLAND RICE.

Sports Championships Must Bow to Defense

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (N.A.N.A.).—The blend of war and sport is going to make a much larger difference in the future than many have suspected. Some time back we wrote an article to this effect, only to have many promoters on the professional side laugh heartily.

"There always will be sports," they said. There will be. And there also will be war and preparations for war for some time to come-and war comes first.

Winning an Olympic championship or a great international match is one thing. Losing a war is something else. Winning or losing one minor battle is a thousand times more important than what might happen to Joe Louis or the Cincinnati Reds.

But sport can be and will be a first-class morale builder for regiments and brigades, for divisions and army corps.

Football and baseball stars already have been called, or soon will be. I mean headliners who may change the entire situation as we see it today. For 1941 is certain to be a terrific year on land and sea and in the air. It may force sport back to a morale maker for our plans for defense-or

I can take you back to our camp in Greenville, S. C., in 1917-8. We had only wooden guns for the artillery—guns made from pine dians. logs that couldn't shoot. We had four inches of snow and a temperature that ranged from 10 above zero to 15 above. We had big holes in our ble between some of the major tents through which the snow came to cover our cots. We were shipping league clubs and Landis over a new from 5 to 10 pine boxes away each day with influenza victims.

The morale at Camp Sevier wasn't any too high. And we then were at war. Not practicing quick starts for an unknown test. It was sport that revived this morale-football games and baseball later in the spring. Regiment against regiment—brigade against brigade. I've never seen keener or harder competition.

The same thing carried through into France-even after the war. At Camp Sevier in Greenville one of my first orders was to turn a pine forest into a playing field-using dynamite, saws, spades, harrows and the rest of it. The limit was two weeks. Over at the 113th Field Artillery practically the same order went out to a young fellow by the name of Larry MacPhail, now head man of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry was the type of soldier an army needs. I know we trimmed them at football. We were in France before the baseball part was finished. could be returned to the minors Maybe MacPhail's bunch had the edge. I'll give him the break, anyway. three times without getting waivers.

Service Athletes Apt to Overshadow Civilians

The main point is that sport was a vital factor 24 years ago in building company, battery, regiment, brigade and division morale.

It will be the same way this summer. Unless there is peace-and there's no sign of peace in sight right now-we will have more than a million young men under arms in camp. And so far we are not actually

These million or more young Americans know only one outlet. Aleno to some class double-A club This is sport. Sport again will be the great morale maker of all our Army like Indianapolis for a year's seacamps. Ask Wild Bill Donovan-he knows.

I still believe the greatest sport interest by midsummer will go to will have to ask for waivers by the the Army or Navy or air force—not to those making from $20,000 to other major league clubs. If the $100,000 a year as civilian competitors.

When Hank Greenberg is switched from $35,000 a year to $30 a other club should put in a claim, month, which he will be by June or July, you will hear more about it. If the fury of this war rises, which seems almost certain, it will be Army sport that will dominate the scene—not the financial prospects of private promoters in boxing, baseball or football,

This is the age of the quick-or the dead. Spring and early summer of 1941 easily may be the most vital spot in the history of the world. It easily can mean more to more millions than any six months ever drew from history. It carries more dynamite than our Uncle Sam's 135,000,000 inhabitants can even understand in their dreams.

D. C. Postal Receipts Smash All Previous Records for January

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Washington banks operating Christmas savings clubs registered 78.953 accounts for the 1941 clubs. with a total amount subscribed of $7.171,985, compared with 82,295 members subscribing a total of $7.-255,315 in the 1940 clubs, it was learned in the financial district

This was a 4.1 per cent decrease in the number of accounts and a 1.2 per cent drop in the amount subscribed compared with last year. Today's report was made to the District Bankers' Association by Rutherford J. Dooley, chairman of the association's Advertising Committee and vice president and cashier of the National Bank of Washington. The comparative figures 1 were prepared by Raymond G. Marx, controller of the Riggs National Bank.

Three associate members, the Arlington Trust Co., Bank of Bethesda and Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., also reported their Christmas savings club figures. These boost the Washington total for the 1941 clubs to 85,513 accounts. with $7.645,135 subscribed, compared with 89.020 accounts and $7.-714.552 subscribed in the 1940 clubs a 39 per cent decrease in accounts but only 0.9 per cent in the amount subscribed

The main reason for the small decrease from 1940 is the fact that some of the banks dropped the $25 a year classification in the clubs, and some did away with the $50 accounts. This action reduced the number of new accounts more than the total amounts subscribed. The lower classifications have always been the most popular. Several banks made no special efforts this year to push the new clubs on account of bookkeeping costs and dif- 12 ficulties in loaning the money to advantage. However, the 85,513 accounts in the 1941 clubs show that a high percentage of the Capital's population favors this form of savings with which to meet the year end's pressing financial needs.

Postal Receipts at New Peak. January revenues at the City Post Office smashed all previous records for that month since the office was started, it was announced by offi-

Receipts at the City Post Office in January this year totaled $705,-804.95, in comparison with $672,-270.73 in January, 1940, an increase of $33,534.22, or 4.98 per cent, officials said. If some one had bought a few more stamps, the gain would have been 5 per cent. Today's report follows the December statement, which revealed a new record for that month, as well as for any other month in the history of the Washington office. The January figures indicate a very high state of business activity in the

Postal receipts in the Capital in the full year 1940 totaled $8,596.851, as compared with $8.071,554 in 1939. a striking increase during the year of $525,297.

The gain in postal revenues is similar to that in bank clearings in the Capital, January canceled checks totaling $132,187,282, against $107,137,093 in January, 1940, an increase of $25,050,189 and the highest January clearings total ever known here.

Brokerage Service Held Ample.

Among the rapidly expanding markets, as indicated by hte 1940 census results, which may be expected to hold new commission business for New York Stock Exchange firms, are Miami, Fla.: San Diego, Calif .: Washington, D. C .; Jacksonville, Fla.; Houston, Tex.; Charlotte, N. C., and Los Angeles.

The Exchange, magazine published by the New York Stock Exchange, coverage in these cities in view of the population changes. Washington stands third in the list of "fastest growing cities in the United States with a population of more than 100,000."

Miami's population jumped 54.4 per cent in 10 years, San Diego, 36.5 per cent, and Washington, 36.2 per Some cities with more than 100,000 population have only one brokerage house. It is evident that Washington, with 10, has ample exchange facilities. Too many offices, some local brokers assert.

The committee, in outright divergence from the Governor's expressed wish, recommended that the State retain 70 per cent of the income tax revenue and that 30 per cent go to the counties and Baltimore City, instead of the present

75-25 per cent distribution. Passage of that proposal would force the Governor to dip still further into the State's approximate $7,000,000 surplus, part of which already was earmarked to make up for loss of revenue as a result of reduced taxes.

Both State Controller J. Millard Tawes and State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles said the 70-30 plan would 'seriously affect the State's financial equilibrium.

Writer Presents Dark Picture of British Prospects

A prediction that "formal dedicaof the United States' entry into the European war would come about June was made by Ray Tucker, newspaper columnist and maga-zine writer, in an address before the League of Republican Women of the District yesterday.

Mr. Tucker, who presented a dark picture of British prospects at present, expressed the belief it would be impossible for England, without aid, to wrest the invaded countries on the continent from the Nazi conquerors. Should the United States eventually join with England in such an undertaking, a combined Army of 15,000,000 men would be required for its success, he declared.

Mr. Tucker suggested, however, that this Nation exercise a certain amount of selfishness in making future decisions and that the prevailing consideration be "what is best for the United States."

Strike Arbitration Bill Is Vital in Defense, Says Ball in Forum

Senator Explains Plan For 'Cooling Off' Period Prior to Stopping Work

Senator Ball, Republican, of Minnesota discussed "Labor Relations in Defense Industries" in an address last night in the National Radio Forum, arranged by The Star. The speech was broadcast over a national hookup of the National Broadeasting Co. and was heard locally over Station WMAL.

The text of the talk follows: This problem of developing better and more efficient labor relation procedures in the United States is not a new one. It has been with us for at least a century. During the last 50 years especially it has been the subject of ever-increasing investigation and public discussion and debate. The growth of both labor organizations and business enterprises have increased the magnitude of the problem and its complexities. Today we have single plants employing upward of 10,000 men. A stoppage of work in such a plant as a result of a labor dispute cannot but have a tremendous effect on the community and often on an entire region.

Actually, the techniques and proeedures used in handling labor dislabor's use of its collective power to obtain for itself a larger share in the fruits of production

division of fighting troops which we dispute

results from the disruption of production schedules and the bitterness between employer and employes which always follows any plant shutdown due to this cause. Any labor leader and any employer who has been through it will admit that after a plant has been closed down as a result of a labor dispute, it often takes months and even years to restore the harmonious relations and teamwork between management and employes so essential to speedy and efficient production. It is my opinion that these indirect losses due to plant shutdowns as a result of labor disputes are far greater than the direct losses in production which might have taken place during the shutdown.

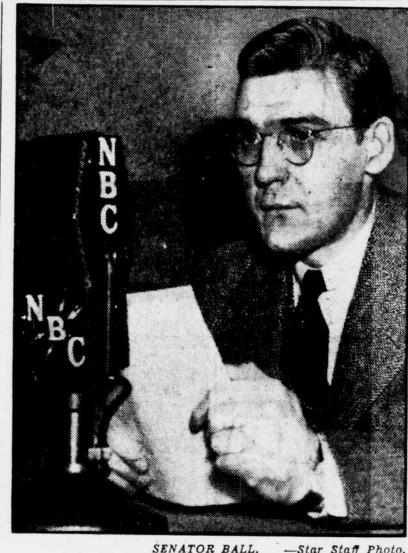

That is why today the public, management, organized labor and the Congress are all concerned about this problem of labor relations. With the dangers threatening our Nation. we simply cannot afford to permit anything to slow down our defense

Voluntary Change Takes Time.

If these were normal times, I believe it would be wiser to leave this problem to the parties directly concerned-management and labor. I am sure that in the course of the years they would voluntarily work out fair and equitable procedures which would eliminate to an ever increasing degree stoppages of production due to labor disputes. I believe that eventually, when they had perfected these procedures to auit themselves, they probably would come themselves to the Congress and ask for enactment of legislation writing these procedures into the statutes. But, unfortunately, that sort of development, and it is a development which fits best into the pattern of our democracy, takes time, years of time, and today we cannot afford that time. I believe it is essential that procedures be worked out immediately that will reduce to the absolute minimum stoppages of production due to labor disputes. We do have some models and some experience on which to draw. Noteworthy among these is the Railway Labor Act. It is significant, I believe, that this act, which has virtually eliminated major stoppages of work in that industry, was the result of nearly 40 years of trial, error and experience. Congress enacted the first railway labor disputes conciliation law in 1888, and made one or two other attempts beefore 1926 when the railroad brotherhoods and the big international unions in that industry joined with the railway executives to draft the present Railway Labor Act which Congress passed. We have also the experience of several States under State labor relations acts, notably that enacted ment of the American Federation a provision bitterly. I think it sota, which was a modification of the breadth of understanding the Railway Labor Act to meet the and the statesmanlike approach to sota, which was a modification of the Breadth of understanding the Railway Labor Act to meet the varied conditions existing in all industry as opposed to those only in the railway industry. Our country naturally divides into certain recognized zones, and the conference declared its intention to immediately endeavor to secure conferences with employes in such districts, or zones, beginning with the shipbuilding industry, so that without loss of time those who must produce for national defense-management and labormeet at the conference table for the purpose of negotiating working rules agreements, the intent effect of which will be to unify and stabilize industrial relations, and the terms of employment in such districts. Such agreements must contain provision for voluntary arbitration, and that there shall be no stoppage of work. The entering into of such agreements are the guarantee that there will be neither strikes nor lockouts.

As the conference declared itself on June 20, 1940, it so again declares its policy and its intention to co-operate to the greatest degree, to which recognition is given to it, with every Federal agency connected with national

Minnesota Stoppages Cut Down. In Minnesota these principles of Soldiers' Home for the fiscal year

The bill which Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee introduced is somewhat more elaborate and follows a little more closely the pattern of the Railway BACKACHE, elaborate and follows a little more Labor Act. It also contains one feature which I believe would cause endless trouble. That is a prohibition of closed-shop agreements with unions. The unions, which have fought long and hard for closed- BE DANGER SIGN I believe the metal trades depart- shop agreements, would resent such days under the specifications. A requirement of 50 days of negotiation on such a job obviously would tie

labor's hands completely. Further, I believe the need is for broad legislation covering all industries producing for defense. A number of separate acts applying to individual industries would cause endless confusion and increase costs

This need for a fairly simple and speedy procedure which can be applied to all types of industry is one factor which led me to depart considerably from the Railway Labor Act model. The Railway Labor Act sets up a very complicated and lengthy procedure. It provides first for direct negotiation between the employer and employes, then for submission to an adjustment board, then for mediation by the National Mediation Board, then for an attempt to get both parties to agree to arbitration, and finally if all else fails, for appointment of a special fact-finding commission by the President. During all these procedures, and they often string out over many months, there can be neither a strike nor a lockout. That sort of procedure has worked out very well for the railways where employment is stable year in and year out and where there is a long record of collective bargaining on both sides of the table. I don't helieve it can be applied immediately to all industries, and so I have simplified the machinery as much as possible. I hope and I believe that eventually organized labor and organized employers will themselves get together and work out procedures aimed to settle disputes with a minimum of strikes or lockouts They will either incorporate such posed to a legislative prohibition of all strikes or a requirement for compulsory arbitration, which amounts to the same thing. For one thing, Congress could not stop strikes by such legislation; it would merely make them illegal. Furthermore, I believe the emphasis in such legislation should be on conciliation and negotiation, rather than having Government step into the labor relations picture as a policeman cracking down on either party.

I do not believe that a requirement of 20 days of negotiations in all before a strike could take place impairs labor's right to strike seriously. As I see it, it simply means that when a group of employes and their employer have reached the them that you must make one more

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

At the Mayflower Hotel yesterday morning two splendid artists collaborated in giving the program of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's Monday musicale. Rudolf Serkin, pianist, who has long been associated with Adolf Busch, violinist, in ensemble playing, joined forces with Emanuel Feuermann, cellist, and the two artists gave one of the most memorable concerts of this series. Love Unaware by Day Russell -

The story thus far: Verity Vane is abruptly summoned to the office of old Mr. Danforth, head of the big steel company whose building is across the street from the office where she works. She has seen the old man from her window many times, and now learns that he has observed her closely for some time and is confident of her ability to undertake a strange mission for him, for which he will provide her with unlimited expense money and $10,000 if she succeeds. He wants her to locate his son Dennis, whom he hasn't seen since they quarreled 10 years ago, and bring him home. Compelled by a love of adventure to accept the offer, Verity arranges to take with her as paid companion her roommate, Peggy Marshall. With money advanced by Danforth they buy a car and new clothes. Neither knows that Peggy's boy friend. Jimmy Deacon, is also employed by Mr. Danforth to guide them in their search.

They had had dinner. Two boys had asked them to dance, but Verity had excused herself on the plea of tiredness. They had not driven far, but they had bathed twice and had explored half-a-dozen small fishing villages, each with its collection of old people who did curious things for a living and enjoyed life as few city people did. They had had tea with a little old woman who had taken a tiny fisherman's cottage and had converted it with paint and imagination into a delightful little home. There she did something with oranges and cloves and odd bits of material and made perfume bags to hang in odd places in the house. Recent Word From London Discloses That Woolen Hose Are Being Worn

By Helen Vogt

THE FASHION DEPARTMENT LENDS AN EARto style news received in a recent letter from London. One of our enterprising and sympathetic friends recently sent a British lady some nylon stockings-the first ones the latter had seen, for the magic fabric had not yet reached England. In her letter of thanks, she says that silk hose are now nearly non-existent in her country and that gayly colored woolen ones are being worn-and very effectively. They are matched

At a recent showing, the highlights indicated that a lady-like silhouette will be in vogue, with an eased waistline and straighter hipline. The extremely pointed bra has gone out and there is a new, rounded, natural effect. Fabrics are thinner and stronger, with nylon used often and well. Complete garments, boneless, may weigh as little as 4½ ounces! Half size figures will get special attention and pantie girdles for larger figures will be in all price ranges.

She was given a nap after lunch instead of before it as she had been having, and got along much better. Tantrums are often caused by fatigue.

Sometimes they are caused by physical ailments. A child with earache loses his control early and tantrums are in order. Poor vision tires a child very soon, and so does poor hearing. Any child who shows temper and irritation over nothing important should be examined for physical defects.

Children in good health, 'living under harmonious conditions, do not have tantrums. These spells of uncontrolled behavior are not just a child's evil spirit exhibiting itself. They are indications of hidden difficulties, and instead of punishing the child for bad behavior we should search for causes and remove them wherever possible.

In this search do not omit consideration of the personalities that are touching upon him during the day. If there is any one who insistently commands him, try to relieve that person of any responsibility for the child. If there is anybody teasing or bullying him, frightening him or exciting him, take care of that person and relieve the child from his attentions. Nothing tires a child so completely and swiftly as personal pressure from inconsiderate people

Also, look at the atmosphere of the home. Is it the kind that makes a child's activity a burden to him? Is noise a crime, and disorder a sin? If so, the child cannot thrive there. Is there fear and strain in the house? Is there discord, scold-Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1714-B ing and tears? Adolescence Full of Grief, But Brings Many Joys by Way of Compensation

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

Well, teen-agers, have you had your daily cry today? Or are you just too dumb or too busy to realize how tragically unhappy you are? Because you are, you know A lot of the columnists say so.

We hate to disagree with our respected colleagues, but we just can't swallow that one. Those who sincerely believe it are, in our opinion, either totally incapable of remembering their own teens or they are judging all youth on the basis of an unhappy adolescence which they unfortunately experienced themselves. Because we get an awful lot of letters from boys and girls who are going through what one columnist terms "the sorriest phase of existence." And some of them do have problems, some are unhappy. A few of them are suffering from a strain of some kind. All that is true,

But the great majority of them are more carefree, and happier, and less burdened by the ills of the world than any older group of human beings we know. And when you try to sell them the idea that they are struggling through what is inevitably a sad and trying period of their lives, you're not only talking through your hat, but you're doing them

Of course, the "teens" bring trials. Young people who have heretofore been children are changing into adults. They are dealing with a whole new set of emotions and ex- -

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. As I have told you, Farmer Brown's Boy had been all about the neighborhood asking at each farmhouse if anything had been seen of Bowser the Hound. Of course, nothing had been seen of him, and so at last Farmer Brown's Boy felt sure that something dreadful had happened to Bowser in the woods.

For several days he tramped through the Old Pasture, looking for signs of Bowser. His heart was heavy, for you know Bowser was quite one of the family. He visited every place he could think of where he and Bowser had hunted together. He knew that by this time Bowser couldn't possibly be alive if he had been caught by the foot in a trap or had met with an accident in the woods. He had quite given up all hope of ever seeing Bowser alive again. But he did want to know just what had happened, and so he kept searching and searching.

One day Farmer Brown's Boy heard that a strange dog had been found over in the next township. That afternoon he drove over there his heart filled with a great hope But he had his long ride for nothing for when he got there he found that the stronge dog was not Bowser at

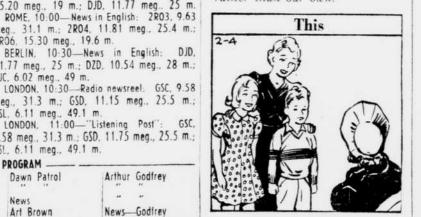

Meanwhile, Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox and Old Granny Fox had become very bold. They even came up around the henyard in broad daylight. "I believe you know something about what has become of Bowser," Farmer Brown's Boy said as he chased Old Man Coyote away one day. "You certainly know that he isn't home, and I more than suspect you know why he isn't home. I certainly shall have to get another dog to teach you not to be so bold.

But somehow Farmer Brown's Boy couldn't quite bring himself to take such a step as getting a new dog. He felt that no other dog ever should take Bowser's place, and in spite of the fact that he thought he had given up all hope of ever seeing Bowser again, way down deep inside was something which, if it were not hope, was something enough like it to keep him from getting another dog in Bowser's place.

Whenever he went about away from home he kept an eve out for oppose the Washington Eagles on the Riverside dogs in the farmyards he passed. He did it without really thinking anything about it. He had given up hope of finding Bowser and yet he was always looking for him.

Au Revoir French. Good-by till we meet again.

From Dayton: Why not comment on the radio commentator who always signs off with "aw ree-VORE"?-L. C.

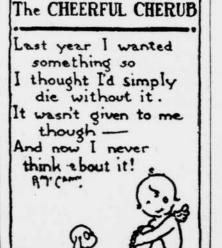

Answer: Tossing off "aw ree-VORE" is his way of informing the listeners that he speaks French like a native . . . of Squeedunk. Why use au revoir (literal meaning "to the seeing again") at all since our own good-by is by far the sweeter sentiment?

Good-by is a contraction of "God be with ye," the steps of decay being: God be wi' ye; God bw' ye; God bwye: good-bye or good-by As actors and dramatic readers must occasionally use the French au revoir, they should not risk embarrassment by mispronouncing the phrase.

(Do you remember of the wag of the Gibson girl era who used to convulse his friends with the burlesque French "over the river." or, still more killingly, "well, olive oil, Correct pronunciation:

"I was South and made eleven tricks because the king of hearts was held by West. But even if it had been held by East, there would still have been ten tricks. North says my distribution was good enough for one more try, and that he'd have gone to four spades if I'd gone to three. But North's bidding sounded so weak to me that I wasn't even sure we could make two spades. let alone four. Where did we go astray?"

We have to agree with South that North's bidding was too weak to encourage him to make a third bid. While a defeat at two spades seems a little remote, there is no assurance of being able to make three spades If North's weak bidding is really representative of his hand.

North had two chances to assist his partner reach the game. At his first opportunity two spades would be a better choice than one notrump. Such a bid does not promise any greater high-card strength, but it does promise a positive fit for spades rather than the more or less neutral fit which North actually indicated by his bidding. That promise of trump support, indicated by the immediate raise, would have enabled South to reach a game. was deeply troubled. Almost from the start, the Greeks proved they were better sailors. Their vessels were smaller than those of the Persians, but were handled better. By nightfall the battle was over The Persian fleet had been defeated badly, with a loss of 200 ships. The Greeks had lost less than one-fourth as many. This sea fight is known in history as the Battle of Salamis. Instead of waiting to fight another day, Xerxes led most of his soldiers back to his homeland. About 50,000 Persian troops were left in Northern Greece under command of a skillful general. This force marched south the next spring to make another attack. It was beaten back, and later lost the Battle of Platea. Thus the Greeks ended the Persian invasion, and were able to carry on their lives as they chose. (For history section of your scrapbook.)

"The Male Animal" was reviewed in New York by Jay Carmody shortly after its opening there. Since it is the same "Male Animal," with the minor exception of some changes in the supporting cast during the Broadway run, the original report is herewith reprinted.)

By JAY CARMODY,

It would be an event when James Thurber writes a play. Moreover, his first one, "The Male Animal," which Herman Shumlin displaying at the National Theater, is a singularly happy event, one of the most pleasant things that has happened in the theater recently.
