Army Plane Crashes Into Nevada Mountain; Eight Feared Dead

LOVELOCK, Nev., Feb. 6.—A big Army plane crashed into the side of Ragged Top Mountain near here today. Army officials feared it was the four-engine experimental bomber carrying two officers and a crew of six from Sacramento to Denver. A railroad section worker saw the plane strike the mountain. He said there was a tremendous noise, and clouds of black smoke billowed in the sky. He ran to a telephone and notified authorities. The missing bomber was in charge of Capt. R. S. Freeman of McClellan Field, Sacramento. It was last heard from at 9:30 a. m., when it was 50 miles east of Reno. Constable Wallace Van Reed and a group of C. C. youths went into the rugged, difficult terrain immediately. Ambulances and physicians were dispatched. The latest Army register listed Capt. Freeman as commanding officer of Lead Field, Fairbanks, Alaska. The bomber was said to have been en route to Denver for experiments in cold weather flying.

Crowd in Rome Checked on Way To U. S. Embassy

ROME, Feb. 6.—A crowd of students bearing Italian and German flags marched toward the United States Embassy this afternoon shouting, "Down with Democracy." They were turned off down a side street and did not pass the Embassy itself. Reports circulated afterward said some of the demonstrators had shouted against the United States, but members of the crowd told Americans they were demonstrating against Britain, not America. Stefani, the official news agency, said the students were reacting to British radio reports of disorders in Rome. Shouting vivas for Premier Mussolini, Adolf Hitler and King Victor Emmanuel, the students began the march at the tomb of the Italian unknown soldier, where they had gathered to render homage. There was no strong reinforcement of guards around the Embassy, as was placed in front of the United States consulate in Turin during similar demonstrations there last week.

The new Ambassador, in a statement issued upon his arrival aboard the liner Kamahura Maru, said: "As I am now only on my way to take up my duties, I am not ready to discuss any problems affecting either the United States or Japan. I can, however, say this—that I am confident that there is no question whatsoever outstanding between the two countries which cannot be settled in an amicable and satisfactory manner through a timely display of statesmanship by the responsible people on both sides. And with that confidence, I am proceeding to Washington."

New Envoy Is Coming to Washington, Confident of Finding Accord

By the Associated Press. Mr. Harrison indicated that approximately 750,000 employees would be involved. Ballots will be placed in the hands of employees by February 15, and they will have 30 days in which to vote. If a strike is authorized, Mr. Harrison said, a Labor Executives' Committee will fix a date. A strike could not be held immediately, however, since the National Mediation Act provides for the President to appoint a fact-finding committee to investigate any such situation. Mr. Harrison said he had placed the situation before President Roosevelt expressing regret that it was necessary to take a strike vote in the midst of the national defense program but "there is no other course open to us."

750,000 Railroad Employees To Vote on Calling Strike

Harrison Says Action Was Taken In Deadlock Over Paid Vacations

By the Associated Press. George M. Harrison, railway labor leader, announced late today that representatives of 14 of the standard railway labor organizations had decided to take a strike vote because the Nation's class 1 railroads had refused to negotiate on demands for vacations with pay. Mr. Harrison indicated that approximately 750,000 employees would be involved. Ballots will be placed in the hands of employees by February 15, and they will have 30 days in which to vote. If a strike is authorized, Mr. Harrison said, a Labor Executives' Committee will fix a date. Wheeler Unfair in Plane Statement, Stimson Says

By the Associated Press. Secretary of War Stimson said today that Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, was guilty of making "an unfair statement" in charging that the Army had no warplanes completely modernized and ready for combat. "I think I can assure that any planes the United States sends into combat will have leak-proof tanks," Secretary Stimson told reporters. Senator Wheeler, he said, was "unfair" by "implying deficiencies as somebody's fault and due to bad management." What deficiencies exist, Mr. Stimson asserted, were due primarily to the rapid advances made in warplane design and construction since the European war. "If Senator Wheeler had been fair he would have said that we have the materials ready to make our plane tanks leak proof," he said.

60 Army Planes Grounded To Replace Propellers

By the Associated Press. EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 6.—Sixty Army training planes at Parks Air College were ordered grounded today by the Materiel Division of the Army Air Corps at Dayton, Ohio, pending replacement of metal propellers by wooden ones. Fred Parks, vice president of the flying school, said the order resulted from a crash Tuesday in which Edward E. Hersman, 23, an Army cadet from Akron, Ohio, and S. Lawrence Harris, 31, civilian instructor, were killed here. One blade of the plane's metal propeller could not be found in the wreckage. Investigators were working on the theory the blade broke off in flight and the resultant vibration tore a wing off the craft.

By the Associated Press. LONG BEACH, Calif., Feb. 6.—A chiropractor who was inquisitive about science was found asphyxiated in his office today. Nearby was an unfinished chair recording the heart pulse, respiration and temperature caused by dry ice fumes. The chiropractor, Dr. Wilfred C. Blair, 33, who was said by his wife to have lost consciousness and been revived recently during a similar study, left a note reading: "I am conducting some experiments with carbon dioxide. I fully expect no trouble, but if anything should go wrong, this is to absolve any one from blame."

Applause Leads George to Clear Hearing Room

Spectators Ousted After Cheering Hanford MacNider

BULLETIN. Chairman George ordered the Senate Foreign Relations Committee room cleared of spectators late today after the audience broke into applause at the conclusion of testimony by Hanford MacNider, former American Legion commander, who spoke in opposition to the lease-lead bill. "I am asking the police to clear this room of spectators," Senator George said. "This is not a town hall meeting. I have been very patient, but the police will open the doors and permit spectators to leave."

Dirksen Plan Could Bring About Repeal By Simple Majority

Surprise Revolt Tentatively Successful After Rejection Of Other Amendments

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) By GOULD LINCOLN. Opponents of the President's lease-lead bill caught the administration forces napping in the House today and put through, 148 to 141, an amendment offered by Representative Dirksen, Republican, of Illinois, which would make it possible for Congress, by concurrent resolution, to repeal by a simple majority vote, any or all powers granted the President under the bill. Fifty or more Democrats were absent from the chamber when the tentative vote on the Dirksen amendment was taken in committee of the whole. The opponents of the bill, however, were in the House in force. The adoption of the Dirksen amendment caused a parliamentary tangle which is now worrying the administration forces. They are trying to find some way of removing the Dirksen amendment from the bill without removing at the same time the committee amendment which limits the operation of the bill to June 30, 1943. The Dirksen amendment came in the form of an amendment to a Foreign Affairs Committee amendment to limit the operation of the bill to June 30, 1943. The House, still acting as a committee of the whole, later in the afternoon adopted on a voice vote the entire amendment, including the Dirksen addition to it. The majority members of the Foreign Affairs Committee earlier had proposed an amendment to the amendment which limited to July 1, 1946, the period for future commitments and contracts made by the President under the powers granted him in the bill. Democrats Join Republicans. The amendment to limit contracts was adopted without opposition just prior to the submission of the Dirksen amendment. Without the Dirksen plan, the only way in which the Congress could repeal the powers granted in the lease-lead bill is through a new bill, requiring a majority vote in both houses. The Dirksen amendment, or a two-thirds vote in both houses overriding a presidential veto. Mr. Dirksen in offering his amendment, said that if adopted it would place Congress in a position at any time by a majority vote to take back the powers granted under the bill if these powers were abused by the President. Distrust Is Charged. Representative Eberharter, Democrat of Pennsylvania charged the Dirksen amendment was offered in a spirit of distrust of President Roosevelt. He said it showed the partisan feeling of those who were opposing the lease-lead bill, a feeling which he deplored. The first test of strength today came when the House, in committee of the whole, voted down, 206 to 145, a substitute for the bill offered by Representative Mundt, Republican, of South Dakota. The Mundt substitute virtually limited the whole aid to Britain effort to a credit of $2,000,000,000 and omitted the grant of power to the President to take other steps in aid of Britain and the democracies. In committee of the whole, the House also defeated by a vote of 109 to 78, an amendment offered by Representative Vorys of Ohio, Republican member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, which would have made it necessary for the (See BRITISH AID, Page X-2.)

President Can Send Navy to Europe Now, Mrs. Roosevelt Says

By the Associated Press. SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., Feb. 6.—Advising a re-reading of the Constitution by those who feel the lease-lead bill gives too much power to the President, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that the Constitution grants the Chief Executive authority to declare an emergency and under such circumstances he could send the entire Navy to Europe. Her statement was made in reply to a student's query during a question and answer hour at Mt. Holyoke College. She pointed out that the President was commander in chief of the Army and the Navy. Curtailment of the right to strike, she asserted in reply to another question, would slow down production rather than speed it up. She cited English experience with such curtailment.

Netherlands Deplore De Geer's Return Home

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Netherlands government in exile announced tonight that it had learned "with a profound sense of indignation" that Derek Jan de Geer, former Prime Minister who fled his homeland when the Germans conquered it last May, had gone home. The government statement said "this unfortunate incident can in no way be interpreted as an indication of any change in the firm determination of the Royal Netherlands government to continue the war against Germany on the side of their British ally until ultimate victory." De Geer left England in November for the Netherlands East Indies on a mission that would have enabled him to join members of his family there, the statement said.

Manville Home Robbed Despite Elaborate Guard

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Burglars slipped through one of the most elaborate private guard systems in the country last night and stole $5,000 in cash from the palatial home of Thomas (Tommy) Manville, asbestos heir. The Manville mansion, overlooking Long Island Sound, is surrounded by high walls surmounted by guardhouses, and searchlights. One of the guards discovered the theft this morning. Mr. Manville had passed the night in New York. In addition to the cash, police said the loot included 12 gold dinner plates, cups and saucers, two motion picture cameras and several cigarette lighters, all taken from a forced safe. Police Chief Paul A. Verick said the burglars had overlooked thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry and about $10,000 in cash in another safe nearby.

Republicans Confer On Amendment Fight Strategy

Administration lease-lend bill would authorize President to have war supplies manufactured in American factories. These products he then could lend, sell or give to Great Britain or other nations whose defense he deemed essential to defense of United States.

The Mundt substitute for the administration British-aid bill, calling for a $2,000,000,000 appropriation to aid Britain and other democracies, was defeated in the House today by a vote of 206 to 145.

The House later voted down a provision that would have required certificates from Army and Navy chief of staffs that any supplies to be sent were not essential to the defense of the United States.

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Administration forces in charge of the lease-lend bill agreed today to two further changes in the measure as the House began consideration of amendments.

The first amendment fixes a limitation of five years—three years beyond the expiration of the act—on future commitments and contracts which may be entered into by the President under the provisions of the proposed law.

The second amendment is contained in a new sub-section which declares nothing in the bill is to be construed as authorizing the use of American merchant ships to carry goods into the war zones in violation of the Neutrality Act.

These amendments were agreed at a meeting of the Democratic members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, attended by Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack.

Limited Funds Opposed.

The Democrats turned a cold shoulder, however, to proposals that a definite limitation be placed on the amount which may be authorized to be appropriated to carry out the purposes of the bill.

Despite the fact the Democrats have so far done nothing about such a limitation or "ceiling" for the bill, a drive for a compromise between the Republican proposal of a $1,000,000,000 limit and the "no limit" carried in the bill is expected to continue.

While the Democrats were meeting in the office of the Foreign Affairs Committee, a Republican gathering was held in the office of Minority Leader Martin.

The Republicans considered various amendments, who should present them, and general strategy in consideration and action on the bill.

Representative Martin said at the meeting the purpose of the Republicans was "to give the President a mandate without increasing the powers of the President."

Among the Republicans attending, in addition to Mr. Martin and Foreign Affairs Committee members, were Representatives Treadway of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee; Jenkins of Ohio and Michener of Michigan.

The two amendments agreed to by the administration forces will be offered on the part of the majority of the Foreign Affairs Committee by Chairman Bloom, when the proper time comes. They make a total of six amendments now proposed to the original bill by the committee Democrats and will be regarded, in a measure, as a compromise and an effort to bring about unity in the House behind the measure.

Bill Expires June 30, 1943.

The language of the time limit on future commitments and contracts proposed in the new committee amendment fixes the expiration of the period as July 1, 1946. The bill as it now stands, with the committee amendment adopted some days ago, limits the life of the measure to June 30, 1943.

This extension of the contractual power three years beyond the proposed expiration date of the law, it was said, would permit the completion of large projects, warships for example.

The new subsection proposed in the second amendment agreed to by the Democrats reads: "Nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize or to permit the authorization of the entry of any American vessel into a combat area in violation of section 3 of the Neutrality Act of 1939."

Chairman Bloom presented to the House the two amendments agreed to by the committee majority as soon as that body met at 11 a.m., an hour earlier than usual, in its drive to complete consideration and action on the lease-lend bill by tomorrow.

British Steamer Sunk By Sub, Italians Claim

ROME, Feb. 6.—An Italian submarine sank the 5,200-ton British steamer Uria, the Italian high command reported today. The submarine was the same vessel which on February 2 reported the sinking of three British vessels totaling 15,000 tons in a convoy in the Atlantic.

More Help Can Only Increase Bloodshed, Flyer Asserts

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The United States, by aiding Great Britain and other countries, "is encouraging war, prolonging it and increasing bloodshed in Europe without materially affecting the course of the war," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh asserted before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today.

Reiterating opposition to the administration's British-aid bill he voiced previously before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Col. Lindbergh declared in a prepared statement that "the responsibility will lie with those who send our arms abroad."

He told Senator Connally, Democrat of Texas, in reply to a question that the United States is already committed to giving Britain some aid and "we should keep our promise." He added: "I think it is very important that England not be beaten in war, but I don't think that is in American control."

Air Force in "Deplorable" Shape.

Col. Lindbergh charged that most of the new airplanes made in this country in the last year have gone abroad, and that "our own air force today is in deplorable condition."

Col. Lindbergh told the committee the German program of expansion will stop only "when it becomes unprofitable to go forward."

Testifying for nearly two hours, the flyer contended that: "This country is in no danger of invasion unless it transfers too much of its air production to Europe."

That this country encouraged the present war by taking part in the last war, and steps taken since that war.

That this country should build up an air force of 10,000 combat planes, an equal number in reserve and about 5,000 training ships.

When the colonel told Senator Pepper, Democrat of Florida, Germany would stop only when it became unprofitable for her to go forward, either because it confronted an equal force or other circumstances, the Senator asked: "Well, how can you stop an aggression of that kind by negotiated peace?"

Tells of Warning British. Col. Lindbergh replied he would favor war if they came over here, but he thought England could get a better negotiated peace now than it could later.

Earlier, the flyer confirmed reports that he advised the British before the start of the war that "the German air force was stronger than any combination of air forces that could be sent against it," but denied that he had tried to discourage the British or French from resisting German expansion.

This testimony came at the end of a series of questions by which Senator Pepper took the witness over his several visits to Germany, England and other parts of Europe in recent years.

After the colonel told of three or four conferences he had with Gen. Goering, chief of the German Air Force, Senator Pepper asked him to describe in detail the occasion when he was given a decoration in Germany.

Declaring he would be glad to do so, the colonel said he was invited by the American Ambassador in Embassy to attend a dinner at the Embassy to promote closer relations (See HEARING, Page A-3.)

Army to Call 1,100 From D. C. in March For Texas Training

Men to Be Assigned To Serve With 260th; Quota Sets Record

Washington will furnish 1,100 selectees in its fifth call for men to receive a year of Army training—a quota more than three times as large as any previous call—Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, selective service executive for the District, announced today.

Notification came today from 3d Corps Area headquarters which specified that all of the men are to be sent to Fort Bliss, Tex. for active duty assignment with the 260th Coast Artillery, District National Guard regiment, now on duty there.

The selectees, all white, are to be inducted from March 3 to March 10, inclusive.

Selective service officials pointed out that the assignment to serve with the local anti-aircraft unit presents the opportunity for men of draft age to request service with the March quota and be assured of serving their military training period with a Washington organization and with Washington men.

The Coast Artillery Regiment arrived at the Texas camp recently after a long overland trip in a motor convoy.

Plans for Inductions. Selectees will report to the induction station at the 5th Regiment Armory in Baltimore beginning March 3. A total of 158 men will be inducted on that date. Totals of 157 men each will be inducted on March 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10.

After induction, the selectees will be sent to the reception center at (See D. C. DRAFT, Page A-4.)

Col. Donovan's Visa For Syria Reported Canceled by Vichy

France Said to Have Barred American's Visit Under Any Circumstances

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 6.—A reliable informant said today the French Embassy at Ankara, acting on last-minute instructions from Vichy, canceled a visa permitting Col. William J. Donovan, unofficial United States observer, to travel through Syria en route to Palestine and Egypt.

Shortly before Col. Donovan's train left Ankara Monday night, the informant said, a French Embassy official arrived at the station and asserted that Vichy had cabled that under no circumstances should Col. Donovan be permitted to travel through Syria, which is under French military control.

Col. Donovan arrived in Jerusalem today, having flown there by way of the British island of Cyprus.

Col. Donovan and his party hastily changed their plans and went by train to Adana, in Southern Turkey, and from there were flown to Palestine by Lord Forbes, assistant British air attaché at Athens, who piloted Col. Donovan from Greece to Turkey. They avoided Syrian territory.

Refusal of the visa appeared to be a new departure by the French authorities, who in recent months have granted numerous visas to Americans in Turkey.

Col. Donovan had planned to spend one day only in Syria. He was accompanied on the trip by Comdr. Richard Tuggle, United States naval attaché in Turkey, and a British colonel named Sykes.

Turkish newspapers credited Col. Donovan's Balkan tour with bolstering Bulgarian and Yugoslav resistance to axis pressure by bringing assurances that President Roosevelt is determined to give Britain all possible aid.

British Trawler Sunk As Nazis Raid Convoy

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Admiralty announced today that the trawler Tourmaline was sunk in a German air attack on a British convoy off the southeast coast yesterday. None of the convoyed ships was lost or damaged, the Admiralty said, and the trawler Lady Philomena shot down one dive-bomber.

War Costs Britain $42,000,000 a Day, Double Year Ago

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, told Commons today that the war is now costing the British $10,500,000 (about $42,000,000) every day, or more than double the daily expenditures of a year ago.

He made the statement in asking for another lump-sum appropriation of $600,000,000 (about $2,400,000,000) for the rest of this year and $1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000) to start the next fiscal period beginning April 1.

Details as to how the money is being used are kept secret.

4,000 Nazi Planes Seen Ready to Hit England

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The current issue of the magazine Aeroplane estimates that the German air force has 4,000 first line planes immediately available for the battle against England.

Of this number, it added, "the structure of the Luftwaffe makes it certain that not more than 1,500 are fighters."

The magazine's figures conflicted with those of the Sunday Times' air correspondent, who placed the number of planes available to Germany for "full operation at any given time" at about 9,000 and her total air strength, including all types of planes, at about 40,000.

Informed sources said they considered the Times' figures, published last Saturday, to be more nearly accurate than those of the magazine.

"Daylight raids of the last year taught the enemy that fighter escorts in a ratio of at least 10 to 1 are necessary to prevent losses from becoming excessive," it added. "On this basis the enemy does not seem likely to be able to throw more than 150 bombers into action by day at any one time."

At present, the magazine says, there are three Nazi air fleets ranged against Britain, operating from continental airbases strung out from Northern Norway to the Spanish frontier.

With operational reserves and transports attached to each squadron, added, the total number of planes is not more than 8,000.

Tobey Calls for Senate Probe of Recreation Association

Charges Funds Withheld From Government by U. S. Employees' Group

Senator Tobey, Republican of New Hampshire, introduced in the Senate today a resolution calling for an investigation of the Welfare and Recreational Association, charging that "responsible officials of the Government have played fast and loose with funds belonging to the Government."

In a speech on the Senate floor explaining his reasons for asking the investigation, Senator Tobey said that the organization, which operates cafeterias, newsstands and soda bars in Government buildings in addition to tennis courts and golf courses elsewhere, was working under an illegal contract.

Under this contract, he pointed out, the association was to turn over to this Government one-half of the profits after building up a specified reserve account. Officers of the association, he charged, have withheld from the Government funds which should have been paid over under this arrangement.

The Senator charged that the association, in order to avoid giving the Government its share of the profits, has charged up all sorts of fanciful expenses—such as automobile tires, refrigerators, carpets and spar plugs, which were purchased for members of the Board of Trustees and their friends.

Report From G. A. O. Senator Tobey's charges were based on reports which he said had been made by auditors of the General Accounting Office, who had gone over the books of the association and found many irregularities. The auditors found, he said, "that a minimum of $261,000, which belonged to the Government, has been withheld and this has not been paid up to the present time."

Senator Tobey said: "According to the report of the controller general, the association charged off to expense thousands of dollars in order to avoid paying the Government its full share of the profits. 'Vouchers' contained in the association's files showed purchases of automobile tires, refrigerators, carpets, spar plugs and other articles purchased with the funds of the Government."

Senator Tobey said: "The other fellow (Lt. Laycock) jumped out of his plane. I thought the parachute would never open. It spread out and he got a broken—just in time."

Lt. Laycock suffered a broken ankle. His plane whirled to earth, finally stopping beneath a viaduct on the main thoroughfare.

It was the second crack-up of the week of pursuit planes operating out of Mitchell Field, Army air base, on Monday, Second Lt. Sherman E. Denny was killed when he crashed near Northport, Long Island.

Mission Leader Compares Totalitarian, Christian Ideal

Against the totalitarian worship of collective power and contempt of the individual is arrayed the Christian concept proclaiming "the eternal value of the individual soul, which means liberty," it was declared today in one of a score of messages which leaders of the National Christian Mission brought to Washington.

Dr. Adolph Keller of Geneva, Switzerland, general secretary of the European Central Office for Interchurch Aid, said at a luncheon of the Junior Board of Commerce at the Kensington Hotel.

"Democracy and liberty are at stake, not only on the continent, but all over the world. New ideals of collective life and government have come up and there is a fight today, not simply between armies and political systems, but between ideologies."

The remaining democracies, he told the young businessmen, "have to re-think their ideals" and he added: "Perhaps democracies have failed on the continent because they did not live up to their own ideals. We have therefore to re-think the very foundations of democracy and liberty."

Dr. Keller saw these foundations and ideals "in the message of Jesus Christ, which proclaiming the eternal value of the individual soul, which means liberty, and then a form of collective life which Jesus describes as the brotherhood of man."

D. C. Flyer Is Killed As Two Army Planes Crash in Midair

Pilot of Second Craft Bails Out After Collision Above Long Island

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. FARMINGDALE, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Two Army pursuit planes collided 2,000 feet above this Long Island village today, killing a 25-year-old pilot and injuring another who bailed out just in time to reach earth safely.

The pilots—First Lt. John H. Eakin, native of Washington, D. C., and a resident of McLean, Va., who was killed, and Second Lt. Joseph Laycock, 23, of Baton Rouge, La., were flying in V-formation with a third "lead" plane when their two rear ships plucked wings, and nosed downward.

An eye-witness, Stephen Vass, who was standing in his yard, described the accident this way: "The planes spun crazily for seconds, then appeared to straighten out. I saw both men trying to bail out. The man who was killed jumped but his parachute caught on the plane's tail structure. His plane caught on fire. A couple of hundred feet from the ground he jumped. They found his body 10 feet from the plane, the parachute covering him."

The other fellow (Lt. Laycock) jumped out of his plane. I thought the parachute would never open. It spread out and he got a broken—just in time."

Lt. Laycock suffered a broken ankle. His plane whirled to earth, finally stopping beneath a viaduct on the main thoroughfare.

It was the second crack-up of the week of pursuit planes operating out of Mitchell Field, Army air base, on Monday, Second Lt. Sherman E. Denny was killed when he crashed near Northport, Long Island.

British Close in On Eritrean Railroad Town

Troops Expected To Reach Bengasi Within 48 Hours

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 6.—British forces in Africa are closing in on Cheren, important railroad town in Italy's Eritrea, British headquarters announced today.

In Northern Africa the advance of the army of the Nile on Bengasi, Libya, "progresses satisfactorily," a communique said.

On both fronts, separated by some 2,000 miles of desert and rough hills country, the Royal Air Force carried on violent bombings to prepare the way for the advance land forces, an R. A. F. communique said.

Italian Positions Bombed. Dive bombers made smashing attacks on the Italian gun positions in the hills around Cheren and on the road east of the town. At Barrentu two Italian planes were captured and one shot down.

Cheren lies about 40 miles north-east of Agordat, which the British captured last Saturday, and is about halfway on the railroad line between Agordat and Massaua, Eritrea's principal Red Sea port.

The Italian positions about Cheren are believed to be strongly fortified and the country is wild and rugged, making motorized advances difficult.

Faster soldiers in Eritrea, the British said, the Fascist forces which had withdrawn eastward from Barrentu were vigorously pressed in the Tole area.

Due in Bengasi in 48 Hours. The British pace in North Africa was expected to bring them to the gates of Bengasi in about 48 hours.

Since the beginning of the East African campaign, the communique said, "about 1,500 prisoners, mostly Italians, have been taken with further captures of military material of all descriptions."

The British are making good progress in their advance along the Gondar road in Ethiopia, the communique declared, in spite of numerous minefields left by the retreating Italians.

Royal Air Force headquarters announced that bombers had raided Benina (Bengasi's airport) and the town of Berka on the night of February 4-5.

Two hangars were destroyed at Benina, the R. A. F. said, and a large fire, probably of oil, was started. Bombs also burst among motor transport vehicles and on the landing ground, after which the British swept the buildings with machine-gun fire.

The barracks and airfield at Berka and the railway station at Barce were given the same kind of treatment, the communique said.

On the same night other R. A. F. planes attacked the Maritza Airfield on the island of Rhodes.

Italians Leaving Bengasi. Pilots of Royal Air Force bombers, blasting a path for the British advance, told of seeing Italian trucks rolling southward out of Bengasi along the coastal road which offers the only overland line of retreat from the town.

There was no indication of the magnitude of the movement, but east of Bengasi the Italians were reported in full retreat toward the town with the British at their heels.

Panic-stricken Italian settlers, who emigrated to this fertile region in large numbers in recent years, were said in British reports to be tangled with columns of Blackshirt troops falling back upon Bengasi.

Move 30 Miles a Day. Reports from the front indicated British advance units, moving at a 30-mile-a-day clip, were within 60 miles of Bengasi. This would place the British close to the Italian air base at Barce, reported bombed repeatedly in recent days. A narrow-gauge railway runs from Barce to Bengasi.

A military spokesman declared there had been a "marked speeding-up" of the tempo of the British advance not only in Libya but in East Africa, where the Italians were reported falling back steadily on Eritrea. The Italians were said to be abandoning weapons and supplies in a retreat toward Asmara, the colonial capital. Last reports from the front put the British within 40 miles of that town.

In Ethiopia, Italian troops, who have been virtually cut off from their homeland for 18 months, were reported withdrawing further into the interior along roads little better than muletracks, harried by fierce tribesmen.

Winant Appointment Applauded by Britain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. LONDON, Feb. 6.—British official sources applauded today President Roosevelt's appointment of John G. Winant to be Ambassador to Great Britain.

They said he would be welcomed in London "both as a man with a wide, liberal outlook in international affairs and as a loyal collaborator of President Roosevelt."

Recreation Director Declines Comment On Tobey's Charges

Would Be Glad to Answer Controller's Report in Court, Hoover Says

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) Mr. W. Hoover, director of the Welfare and Recreation Association, said this afternoon he did not care to comment on "personal allusions" in a speech Senator Tobey, Republican of New Hampshire, demanding investigation of the association.

The report issued by Acting Controller General Richard N. Elliott, stirred a row that has not yet been settled. The association denies owing the Government $187,000, as charged in the report, and has said that when the account was disputed in 1937 settlement was effected for $8,000.

There is at present an effort between the association and the controller general's office to straighten out the accounting dispute, and an agreement is being sought on the contract under which the association is operating. The trustees insist that it is legal and the controller general's office contends it is illegal.

British Aid

President to obtain the approval of the chief of staff of the Army and the chief of operations of the Navy before he transferred supplies of the Army and the Navy to the democracies. An amendment offered by the Foreign Affairs Committee directs that the President "notify" the chief of staff and the chief of operations before making any transfers of Army and Navy materiel to Britain or the other democracies. The House adopted the committee amendment.

Asks One Year Limit. Representative Voorhis, Democrat, of California immediately after the adoption of the Dirksen amendment proposed that the time of operation of the bill be restricted to one year, instead of two. He made an argument in support of his amendment, urging that if it became necessary, Congress could extend the life of the proposed law next year.

The amendment failed of adoption, however, when a vote was taken a few minutes later. The vote was 136 to 83. With the adoption of the Dirksen amendment, it remained for the administration forces to decide whether to kill the time limit amendment to the bill recommended by the Foreign Affairs Committee, and so kill the Dirksen amendment, which was an amendment to the committee amendment, or wait until the bill comes into the House from committee of the whole and hope to remove the Dirksen amendment.

Repealer Legality Questioned. Immediately after the adoption of the Dirksen amendment, a discussion arose whether Congress by a concurrent resolution of the House and Senate could repeal a law. Mr. Dirksen pointed out, however, that if in writing legislation Congress inserted a provision for the repeal of a law by concurrent resolution, it would stand.

During the consideration of the Voorhis amendment, Representative Fish of Michigan attacked the leave-lend bill as the worst sleight-of-hand bill he ever saw. It should be entitled, "A bill to go to war with foreign nations."

He charged that under the provisions of the bill the President could dispose of the Navy, the food supplies of the country and practically everything else. Majority Leader McCormack took the floor to oppose the Voorhis amendment. He said that all the amendments proposed "will have a solid vote on a Republican side."

Fish's Language Questioned. He ridiculed charges made by Representative Fish that Congress was granting broad powers to the President, pointing out that in January Mr. Fish had introduced a bill in which "the broadest powers" were granted to the Federal Loan Administrator to extend credit to Great Britain.

Mr. Fish pointed out that in his bill it was proposed to limit the credits to Great Britain to $2,000,000,000 and that the powers granted the Federal Loan Administrator extended only to that amount.

Under the parliamentary situation existing in the House at the time of the vote the Dirksen amendment still subject another vote, probably on a roll-call—and possible rejection before a final vote on the bill itself.

When the amendment first was called up it was rejected by a standing vote of 107 to 63. Mr. Dirksen demanded a teller count which turned out 148 to 141 for the amendment, which thus became the first from the Republican side to be accepted.

Racing News Entries and Selections for Tomorrow

Rossvan's Comment

FIRST RACE—TRUE HEART, BLOSSOM LANE, LUSTROUS. TRUE HEART has been knocking at the door of victory in her last 3 starts and the Time Maker miss is given the nod in the opener. Eddie Araco again will be in the saddle and a good ride is assured. BLOSSOM LANE is a fast worker and may be the one to beat. LUSTROUS figures third best.

SECOND RACE—CRUISING. CRUISING can better his recent indifferent showings and the Whiskaling sprinter is apt to find his best stride in this company. He has only to break alertly to open an advantage that will be hard to overcome. MADISON has late speed and may be up in time to land the place. ARCHER may threaten.

THIRD RACE—JOHN'S HEIR, ROCK MAKER, DOUBLE B. JOHN'S HEIR is a frequent winner in these ranks and the Hicks-trained gelding is selected to show the way in the third. He has the speed to dominate the running throughout. ROCK MAKER, a recent winner, qualifies as the dangerous rival. DOUBLE B runs an occasional good race and merits money consideration.

FOURTH RACE—REACT, AIR BRIGADE, SEVENTH DAY. REACT displayed enough improvement in her last race to warrant the belief the Hard Tackly can whip this band. An equal share of racing fortune may be all that is needed to turn the trick. AIR BRIGADE is in good fettle and may be the runnerup. SEVENTH DAY may scrape into the money picture.

FIFTH RACE—CLYDE TOLSON, FAIRFLAX, PLAY HOUSE. CLYDE TOLSON, winner of his last two races, still retains his edge and the Bryson color-bearer bids fair to chalk up another score in the fifth. FAIRFLAX won his last race in clever fashion and the Sweep All gelding will have to be reckoned with. PLAY HOUSE has little to beat for the minor award.

SIXTH RACE—CAVALIER, KANSAS CITY, ROYAL ROBES. CAVALIER is meeting a field he can best in the sixth and it appears the Brandon Stable representative has only to run his race to add this purse to his list. KANSAS CITY has been right there in recent races and looks as though he is down. ROYAL ROBES may share in the purse distribution.

SEVENTH RACE—PRINCE DEREK, SNOW, BIG ROVER. PRINCE DEREK was beaten by a head in his last race and on the strength of that performance the Gallant Fox gelding is accorded the honors. He has a brand of stretch speed that will be hard to deny. SNOW is a steady sort and may furnish the stoutest argument. BIG ROVER is a possibility.

any boys to war?" Senator Glass continued. "No," the witness answered, "but I have watched the trend since the 'quarantine' speech in Chicago. 'You think he might change his mind,' the Senator interrupted. 'If there is a general officer of our defense forces,' he said, 'I think it is possible, sir,' came Col. Lindbergh's answer. 'Yes, so do I,' Senator Glass replied, and when the audience laughed, Senator Glass explained that while he thinks that might happen, his hope is that it will not. Hanford MacNider, Assistant Secretary of War during the Coolidge administration, took the stand after Col. Lindbergh finished and testified against the bill, charging its consideration should not be carried on 'in an atmosphere of manufactured fear.'

German Paper in U. S. Urges Resistance to Lease-Lend Bill

Text of Article Calling Measure Treason Put in Congressional Record

The Congressional Record today reprinted an article which appeared on the front page of the Free American Deutscher Weckruf, a German-American newspaper, on January 30, appealing to German-Americans to urge members of Congress to oppose the lease-lend bill, which it described as the "treason bill."

The article was inserted in the Record by Representative Eberhart, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, who described it as an "insult to thousands of patriotic American citizens whose ancestors came from Germany."

Mr. Eberhart said his father was born in Germany, but if he were living today, he would "resent with every fiber of his being such an insult to his intelligence and such an attempt to segregate class against class, nationality against nationality, just as today I, a World War veteran, resent this from the very innermost of my being."

The paper, Representative Eberhart said, is published in New York City by the A. V. Publishing Corp., Inc., of which G. Wilhelm Kunze is president.

Text of Article.

The article is headed "You German-Americans." The text as it appeared in the Record follows:

"Show that you are Americans by exercising your American rights. As you love the United States and its institutions, let your protest against the treason bill H. R. 1776 be heard in Washington. If you believe that your Senator or Representative will pigeon-hole it or consign it to the waste paper basket, send it to Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

"If you can't send a telegram, or a letter just write a postcard: 'I am a patriot and I sign this measure to register my protest against the passage of H. R. 1776.' Then sign name and address. Or write:

"As H. R. 1776 contravenes the letter and spirit of our institutions, I beg you to do your utmost to defeat the measure, however amended, since it empowers the President to make Britain's war our war."

Called Betrayal to Republic.

"It is your duty as a loyal American to do this unless you want your sons to fight Britain's war. If a million such protests pour in upon Congress, they will not fail to influence the fate of the proposed betrayal to the Republic.

"There is no 'emergency' save such as the President creates every time he wants a free hand to use the United States as a pawn for Britain's imperialistic purposes. The Tories, Anglophiles, interventionists and international conspirators constitute a minority bloc, but they control the press, the radio and the screen.

"The opposition consists of 83 per cent of the American people, are helpless to make themselves felt except by wiring and writing letters of protest.

"Free America of its dictators by rendering them impotent to guide the country's destinies. Germany has been our friend from our infancy. It has no designs on our territory or our institutions, while England has been our constant enemy.

"If America should succeed in helping England to win the war, the next great war for which our sons would be drafted will be between the British Empire and the United States.

"Don't be a mollusk. Write today."

"Same Mistakes, He Says."

Representative Eberhart declared the Nazi propaganda machine "is making the same mistake today in its attempt to influence American people that the Germans made 20 years ago."

Mr. Eberhart pointed out that although the newspaper is named "The Free American," it is attempting to influence the people of the United States. In other words, he declared, "this agent of Hitler does not want any power given to the President of the United States. He wants this Congress to fail to pass this measure and Hitler, those responsible for its publication would not last one week."

Greenbelt Co-operative Votes $7,250 Dividend

By a Staff Correspondent of the Star. GREENBELT, Md., Feb. 6.—Members of the Greenbelt Consumer Service, co-operative marketing organization of the model community, last night voted a dividend of $7,250 at a meeting marking completion of the co-operative's first year of operation.

In a report to the membership, Walter R. Volkhausen, president of the consumers' group, revealed a net saving of $9,666. Out of this amount $2,266 was set aside as a reserve fund and $150 for dividends on outstanding shares.

Members of the co-operative group will receive their dividends half in cash and half in stock, while non-members will receive their shares in stock only.

Mr. Volkhausen reported that sales at various stores in the community totaled $375,000 in 1940, as compared with $346,000 in 1939, and that membership of the consumer group rose from 303 to 424 at the end.

Wilkie's Airliner Off West Africa On Pioneer Flight

2,220-Mile Lisbon Hop Completed in 14½ Hours; Trinidad Next Stop

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Dixie Clipper, blazing a new trail from Europe to the United States and carrying Wendell L. Wilkie back to this country, touched the waters off Bolama, West Africa, at 9:48 a. m. (E. S. T.) Pan-American Airways said today, completing the 2,220-mile hop from Lisbon in 14½ hours.

Bolama was the first stop on a southern route touching four continents. It was reported the plane would lay over there at least four hours before taking off on the second leg to Port of Spain, Trinidad, a distance of 3,120 miles.

Mr. Wilkie left Lisbon at midnight last night as one of the pioneer passengers on the new trans-Atlantic plane route to New York by way of Portuguese Guinea, on the African West Coast, British Trinidad and Puerto Rico. This new route avoids groundings which have hampered operations.

Mr. Wilkie, accompanied by John Cowles, president of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and Landon K. Thorne, banker, who went to England with him, is not scheduled to arrive in New York until early Saturday at the earliest, airline officials said, and probably not until Sunday.

Mr. Wilkie commented before his midnight takeoff that his visit in Britain had been more strenuous and eventful than the election campaign last year.

The plane carried 10 passengers and about a ton and a half of mail.

Wilkie Denounces Nazis In Leaving England

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—Wendell L. Wilkie's parting denunciation of the Nazi regime—made in a direct radio message read to the land of his ancestors—already is on the way to the German people by the "underground route" and will be scattered far and wide over Germany in a special "leaflet raid."

"Tell the German people that we German-Americans reject and hate the aggression and lust for power of the present German government," Mr. Wilkie said in the message he left in London. It was his parting gift to the bomb-battered land in which he has spent the last 10 days and was intended for a country where listening to foreign broadcasts is a crime.

"The Daily Herald told of the plans to 'bomb' Germany with leaflets bearing the message and added: 'Already printed copies of it are on their way to the German people through a multitude of underground channels.'

Mr. Wilkie was on his way back to America when the British Ministry of Information released his message. It was broadcast last night in the British Broadcasting Corp.'s regular German news transmission. Later, he was repeated to Germany on the air.

His message to the German people climaxed a 10-day tour of England in which he talked to Britons of all classes—from dwellers in battered slums to Prime Minister Churchill and the Queen—before he left with them the promise to do all he could "to help Britain in her fight for freedom."

Germans Contemptuous Of Wilkie's Speech

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP).—Authorized German sources asserted today that utterances such as that by Wendell L. Wilkie released yesterday in London would not have much effect with the German people.

The German government, the authorized sources said, did not pay much attention to Mr. Wilkie's words, since he is a private citizen.

"Of one thing we are sure," they said, "Wilkie would not have much effect with the German people. This reference to his German extraction before election."

(Actually Mr. Wilkie made a full statement concerning his German ancestry in his acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., last July.)

The authorized sources called Mr. Wilkie "a past master at metaphors."

"It is a pity he didn't live in Ovid's time; he might have given the poet new inspiration," was one comment.

Ovid, a Roman poet of 43 B.C.-17 A.D., is best known for his "Metamorphoses," a narrative poem recounting legends dealing with metamorphoses of shape.

It was asserted that Mr. Wilkie had behaved "more English than American"—"the British lords so impressed him."

Previously Berlin authorities expressed doubt that any number of Germans heard the Wilkie broadcast in view of prevailing laws making it illegal to receive foreign broadcasts subject to heavy penalties, including death in aggravated cases.

Wilkie's Message Lauded by McCormack

By the Associated Press. Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic leader of the House, made this statement last night concerning Wendell L. Wilkie's message to the German people: "By his courageous action, Mr. Wilkie has made himself one of the outstanding Americans of his generation, casting aside personal or political considerations when danger confronts our country. As I view it, while members of the Republican party may reject his leadership, by his action he has crystallized the fact that he is the real leader of the Republicans throughout the country."

Text of Col. Lindbergh's Statement

Flyer Renews His Opposition to Lease-Lend Measure, Telling Senators He Doesn't Believe Britain Can Win

By the Associated Press. The text of the statement prepared by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for his appearance today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, considering the British aid bill, follows:

In the hope that it will save time and add to clarity, I have attempted to outline briefly my reasons for opposition to this bill. In general, I have two. I oppose it, first, because I believe it is a step away from the system of government in which most of us in this country believe. Secondly, I oppose it because I think it represents a policy which will weaken rather than strengthen our Nation.

The first point is simply my opinion as an American citizen. The second is closely connected with the development of aviation as a factor in modern warfare. It is the second point, if you will permit me, that I would like to discuss. I shall have to speak with the utmost frankness in order to make my position clear. If my discussion seems materialistic, it is because such materialistic and must be met, at least for the moment, with material measures. No one deplores this fact more than I. Possibly if our outlook had been more spiritual during the years of peace, it would not have to be so material today.

Prefers Negotiated Peace.

Another point I would like to say that I have never taken the stand that it makes no difference to us who wins this war in Europe. It does make a difference to us, a great difference. But I do not believe that it is either possible or desirable for us in America to control the outcome of European wars. When I am asked which side I would like to have win, it would be very easy for me to say "the English." But, gentlemen, an English victory, if it were possible at all, would necessitate years of war and an invasion of the continent of Europe.

I believe this would create prostration, famine, and disease in Europe—and probably in America—because the world has never experienced before. This is why I say that I prefer a negotiated peace to a complete victory by either side.

This bill is obviously the most recent step in a policy which attempts to obtain security for America by controlling internal conditions in Europe. The policy of depleting our own forces to aid England is based upon the assumption that England will win this war.

Doesn't Believe Britain Can Win.

Personally, I do not believe that England is in a position to win the war. If she does not win, or unless our aid is used in negotiating a better peace than could otherwise be obtained, we will be responsible for futiley prolonging the war and adding to the bloodshed and devastation in Europe, particularly among the democracies. In that case, the only advantage we can gain by our action lies in whatever additional time we obtain to prepare ourselves for defense.

But instead of consolidating our own defensive position in America, we are sending a large portion of our armament production abroad. In the case of aviation, for instance, we have sent most of it, yet our own air forces are in deplorable condition for lack of modern equipment. In that case, the planes we now have are obsolete on the standards of modern warfare.

This bill even authorizes the transfer of the equipment that our air forces now possess. From the standpoint of aviation, at least, I believe the policy and practice of sending a large portion of our armament production abroad is a step away from the security in America. In order to make this point clear, I would like to touch briefly upon the aviation situation in Europe.

Reich Natural Air Power.

During the study I made of European aviation in 1936, 1937 and 1938 I was struck by the conclusion that Germany was the natural air power of Europe, just as England is the natural sea power. I based this conclusion upon a combination of factors, including geographical and meteorological conditions, national psychology, ability in the design, manufacture and operation of aircraft, and upon a comparison of existing European air forces and manufacturing facilities.

I concluded that the United States was the only nation in the world capable of equalling or exceeding Germany in aviation. But, since we in America had specialized in commercial aviation and neglected military aviation, it was obvious to me that Germany had a lead in military aviation which could not be overcome in less than several years.

I believe that the campaigns and developments of the war have borne out these conclusions.

Semi-circle Around Britain.

At the present moment, Germany controls air bases on the continent of Europe which extend almost in a semi-circle around the British Isles.

D. C. Funds Asked For Social Worker In Rental Court

Housing Association Group Seeks Inclusion Of Item in '42 Budget

The Commissioners will be asked to include an item in the 1942 welfare budget covering the cost of the social worker's office in the Landlord-Tenant Court which has been operating there since December under private auspices.

This was decided last night by friends of the Washington Housing Association at a meeting of the home of Mrs. C. C. Glover.

It also was decided to seek private contributions to maintain the office until the end of the present fiscal year. J. B. Wyckoff, president of the housing association, said the request would include a social worker, Mrs. Florence T. Conlin, and a clerk.

Cost Is $350 a Month.

Mr. Wyckoff said the city heads would be asked to attach the social worker to the case work staff of Welfare Director Robert E. Bondy. He said the office should prove of value in the consideration of rent relief problems. He estimated the cost of the office at $350 a month.

Need for work was revealed last July in a study made under auspices of the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies. It was said, and Mrs. Conlin began work in December. During the last two months she handled 173 cases which came into the court and succeeded in working out adjustments in 145 instances.

Investigates Background.

In the main she investigates the background of delinquent tenants to find out why they have not paid their rent, it was explained, and attempts to get a solution satisfactory to both landlord and tenant. For the two-month period, only 14 cases were not adjusted. Out of the cases adjusted, 112 were worked out through contact with the real estate people, lawyers or tenants involved.

In a dozen cases the tenant worked out a satisfactory solution. In seven instances the Ford Motor Co. appeared before the conference with Mrs. Conlin.

Only 18 of the tenants involved were known to public or private social agencies. Mrs. Conlin said, thus leaving a large group who did not know exactly where to turn for advice in settling their problems.

Of the 14 unsolved cases, the bulk were shiftless or transient tenants who had left town or for other reasons could not be located.

Dickstein Invites Cameron To Testify on Citizenship

By the Associated Press. Chairman Dickstein said today he had sent a "friendly invitation" to W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Co. to appear before the House Immigration Committee next Wednesday to answer questions regarding his citizenship.

Representative Dickstein said Mr. Cameron was asked to appear in connection with a resolution by Representative Geyer, Democrat, of California, calling for an investigation of how Mr. Cameron, who was born in Canada, obtained his citizenship.

Representative Geyer contended in a statement in the Congressional Record of January 21 that Mr. Cameron was naturalized in 1935 without the usual five-year waiting period by claiming he had voted regularly from 1900 to 1927 and that later, in registering to vote in Detroit, swore he never had voted.

Mission Speaker Sees Pastors Re-emerging As Guiding Counselors

Dr. Holman Points to Revival of Practice Of Pastoral Visitation

"are willing to re-think their principles, they will certainly find a new stimulus in the hopes to retread the house of liberty and democracy, which today is menaced by an earthquake."

Dr. Arthur L. Kinsolving, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Princeton, N. J., addressing a Cosmopolitan Club luncheon at the Carlton Hotel, spoke of the international crisis as "at base a spiritual crisis," adding:

"Our leisurely, good-natured manner of accepting or neglecting religion in this past age has been found wanting. Religion is the only ultimate foundation of morality and we have been running short. Religion conceived as a religion of culture has broken down."

Fit Said to Survive. "In an hour of dire need we have a high chance now to rediscover what primitive Christianity was and what real Christianity is—a religion of salvation. Though that term has been tarnished by our dull handling, men everywhere are looking for redemption and nowhere short of God can we find great hope that a bad situation can be translated into a good situation."

Dr. Kinsolving conceded that "there may be no solution to the world's problems at the level at which we are prone to attack them," but he added: "In this universe that survives which is fit to survive. Therefore the Christian need not lose courage in the midst of this wholesale destruction. Man can only destroy the prints, for God holds the negatives."

At another luncheon, that of the Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower Hotel, Harry N. Holmes, field secretary of the World Alliance on International Friendship Through the Churches, said the message and concept of this National Christian Mission was rooted in the basic documents of American history—the Mayflower Pact of 1620, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights in the Constitution.

"The spiritual and religious essence," he said, "is the final significance of American democracy, and democracy must forever defend and forever safeguard freedom of worship, freedom of assembly, freedom of speech and freedom of press."

Praise Given Pastors. The Right Rev. Thomas C. Darst, Episcopal Bishop at Wilmington, N. C., addressing a women's meeting at Foundry Methodist Church today, pointed out that God had left plenty of work for humanity—damming rivers, hewing forests and solving the unemployment problem, for example.

Bishop Darst pictured Washington as "full of angels" in unselfish humanity, and he expressed the hope that the uplifting influence of the Christian Mission on the city might in turn influence the Nation.

The mission heard a word of praise today for church pastors, who have been criticized by some of the speakers for making their services drab and unimaginative and their sermons dry.

The praise was voiced by Dr. Charles T. Holman, associate professor of pastoral duties in the divinity school of the University of Chicago, in an address before a large gathering of ministers in Calvary Baptist Church.

Calling attention to a great revival of interest in pastoral visitation work, Dr. Holman attributed this to development by pastors of a new appreciation of the significance of the personal relationship in pastoral work.

"As a result," he declared, "the minister's ancient function as guide, philosopher and friend of his people is re-emerging."

Pastors themselves weren't wholly to blame for the loss of interest in personal visitation work, Dr. Holman said, explaining:

"The reasons were twofold. First, pastoral calling had ceased to have any such professional significance as had the visit of the doctor. Secondly, new responsibility made heavy demands upon the minister's time. Modern programs of religious education were emerging and to put these programs into effect required much time and effort."

It was quite inevitable, he said, that an activity which seemed relatively insignificant tended to disappear.

"But today there's a great revival of interest in this work," he declared, "and there are multitudes of baffled and burdened folk who need friendly guidance if they are to succeed in the struggle against almost overwhelming odds."

The minister, as the accredited representative of Christian faith and fellowship, "has unparalleled resources to bring to the aid of troubled souls," Dr. Holman added.

Mrs. Hilda Ives, professor at Anderson-Theological Seminary, who was the speaker at the women's forum at Metropolitan Presbyterian Church this morning, told a large gathering of American mothers is great in this critical hour in the world's history.

"The mothers must create citizens for the Republic which will stand without flinching, all onslaughts of evil," she declared. "They must make a Republic which will take the lead in the way of brotherhood and peace, and give allegiance to the supreme personality of all ages, Jesus of Nazareth."

The morale of this Nation for the years to come—"years of world problems and vast reconstruction"—is now in the making "by the fathers and mothers of our American homes," Mrs. Ives asserted.

Address Mass Meetings. As the third day of the far-reaching revival program came to a close last night, eight militant leaders of the mission were heard by large gatherings assembled at area mass meetings throughout the city. Highlights of their addresses included:

Dr. E. Stanley Jones, missionary-evangelist, told an audience at Foundry Methodist Church that Christians can thank totalitarianism for one thing: "It has broken the mold of our individualistic thinking and helped us discover how totalitarian our Gospel is."

"Our Gospel is more totalitarian than the totalitarianisms," he said, "for it goes from the innermost thought to the outermost rim of the social, national and international life, and demands that all life come

Program to Attract Younger Persons to Church Wins Interest

Dr. Bowman Outlines Plan at Mission Seminar On Christian Family

The story of what one church is doing to attract and hold the interest of its younger members drew expressions of admiration yesterday at a National Christian Mission seminar on "Christian Family Life."

The story came from Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, who promptly was questioned by members of other churches wanting to hear more about the program. The problem before the seminar was how to make the church a more vital part of the every-day lives of its young people, and not just a place where church school and church services are held.

Four-Pointed Program. The Washington City Church of the Brethren, the seminar was told, is helping to solve the problem by a four-fold program involving:

1. A special course in Christian ideals of love and marriage. 2. A training course to prepare young people for marriage, touching the practical problems they must face.

3. A Bible class for young married couples—with added feature of a social gathering once a month. 4. Special courses for young parents to train them for home-making and rearing children.

As a corollary to the program, the church maintains a nursery—containing modern equipment and supervised by graduate nurses—where mothers can leave their children while they attend the Bible classes, church services and training conferences.

Other young members of the congregation co-operate in the program by providing transportation for young married couples. The church also maintains a library which contains many books dealing with these problems.

"I can get more ideas across in these courses than in a sermon from the pulpit," Dr. Bowman said. Denies "Expert" Needed. One of the seminar participants, calling Dr. Bowman an "expert" on Christian family life relations, asked why other churches didn't have such programs.

"I'm sure I don't qualify as an expert," Dr. Bowman said, with a smile. "Every church can have such a program if they really want it. You don't need experts."

He emphasized, however, that the real training must be given in the home.

"Figure it this way," he said. "From the time a boy is born until he is 21, he has approximately 105,000 waking hours to spend. If he goes to church school every Sunday, that will take up about 2,100 hours. If he is in school every day, that's another 10,000 hours."

"That leaves approximately 92,000 hours when he isn't in church or school. Now, isn't it obvious where most of the training must take place?"

under a single away—the will of God." "Can Christianity save civilization?" Dr. Jones asked.

"It can, provided there is a re-awakening and a revitalizing of the center of our civilization—the religious heart," he said.

But, he added: "What we do must do quickly, for this country is going either Communist, or Fascist or Christian. The decision is at our doors."

In this same vein, Miss Muriel Lester told a gathering at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church: "We can't overcome Hitlerism by Hitlerism. We have to outtrain the totalitarians. We have to overcome them by something more lasting, more enduring than their temporary sporadic power."

Obviously, she said, Christians would be naive if they imagined they could stand up successfully against the evil of the world "without considering our equipment."

"To equip oneself with prayer is constantly to practice the presence of God," Miss Lester said.

Church "Only Binder." Dr. Roy E. Vale, who is pastor of the largest Protestant congregation in Indiana—the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church of Indianapolis—also asserted, at a mass meeting at the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church, that the church "is the only institution today that has any chance of binding together a broken world."

"The only true international meeting that could possibly be held would be constituted of representatives of the Christian church," Dr. Vale said.

Addressing a gathering in Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, Dr. Roger T. Nooe, pastor of the Vine Street Christian Church of Nashville, Tenn., declared that Christians cannot have a democracy unless they have religion—"a religion that believes in God, sovereign and supreme, a religion that believes in the worth of every human being and the possible perfectability of all people in the domain." Dr. C. Jeffares McCombe, pastor of St. Paul's and St. Andrew's Methodist Church of New York, who spoke with Miss Lester at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, warned that the entire educational system, the church, the system of government and the industrial order "must always be subjected to the most searching scrutiny in the light of what they do to human beings."

"Jesus lived, though, talked and worked and died in the belief that personality is the central fact of the universe," he said. "The sacredness of human personality is the most revolutionary and determinative concept of the mind of men ever confronted."

"The world is at war at this moment, over the denial and defense of that fact." Seminars Draw Crowds. The various seminars which are a feature of the mission's program continued to draw large and enthusiastic audiences yesterday.

At one of these gatherings, a warning was issued that a new depression in the United States is "inevitable" when the present emergency passes and defense production slackens.

Addressing a seminar on "Christian Social Relations," George E. Bigge, member of the Social Security Board, sounded the warning and called for "statesmanlike thinking in the States" at this time to prepare for the problem of caring for the increase in the number of unemployed.

State authorities, he said, should make plans now and not become over confident with respect to the ability to deal with future situations in the face of current large reserves in unemployment insurance funds. "Coverage should be extended to agricultural and domestic workers and other groups that are not now covered," he said.

N. L. R. B. Aide Speaks. Malcolm Ross, director of information of the National Labor Relations Board, asserted before the same gathering that the Nation is in a better position to cope with labor problems under the defense program today than it was in 1917. He pointed out that in 1917 4,450 strikes occurred, while 2,000 less walkouts, involving less than half the number of workers affected, took place last year, despite increase in union memberships.

He emphasized that the strikes of 1917 took place despite a declaration by President Wilson that industrial production must not be interrupted.

"Jesus lived, though, talked and worked and died in the belief that personality is the central fact of the universe," he said. "The sacredness of human personality is the most revolutionary and determinative concept of the mind of men ever confronted."

"The world is at war at this moment, over the denial and defense of that fact." Seminars Draw Crowds. The various seminars which are a feature of the mission's program continued to draw large and enthusiastic audiences yesterday.

At one of these gatherings, a warning was issued that a new depression in the United States is "inevitable" when the present emergency passes and defense production slackens.

Addressing a seminar on "Christian Social Relations," George E. Bigge, member of the Social Security Board, sounded the warning and called for "statesmanlike thinking in the States" at this time to prepare for the problem of caring for the increase in the number of unemployed.

State authorities, he said, should make plans now and not become over confident with respect to the ability to deal with future situations in the face of current large reserves in unemployment insurance funds. "Coverage should be extended to agricultural and domestic workers and other groups that are not now covered," he said.

N. L. R. B. Aide Speaks. Malcolm Ross, director of information of the National Labor Relations Board, asserted before the same gathering that the Nation is in a better position to cope with labor problems under the defense program today than it was in 1917. He pointed out that in 1917 4,450 strikes occurred, while 2,000 less walkouts, involving less than half the number of workers affected, took place last year, despite increase in union memberships.

He emphasized that the strikes of 1917 took place despite a declaration by President Wilson that industrial production must not be interrupted.

"Jesus lived, though, talked and worked and died in the belief that personality is the central fact of the universe," he said. "The sacredness of human personality is the most revolutionary and determinative concept of the mind of men ever confronted."

'Sixth Column' Urged By Rotary Speaker For National Unity

Club Hears Dr. Holmes Of Christian Mission Call for Living Heritage

A "sixth column" among American clubs to develop national unity was advocated yesterday at a Rotary Club luncheon in the Willard Hotel by Dr. Harry N. Holmes, National Christian Mission speaker.

Declaring that the duty of the Rotary Club is "to keep alive the heritage of American history," Dr. Holmes pointed out that the aim of the club and that of the mission are the same.

Dictators Fight Ideals. European dictators are fighting churches there for preaching the same universal brotherhood and friendship for which American organizations stand, Dr. Holmes asserted.

Declaring that the Rotary Club's creed of service is the answer to criticism of American fraternal organizations as "knife and fork" clubs, Dr. Holmes said, "No organization has a right to demand support or authority which is not saying something to the whole world."

He pleaded for rededication to church, club and Nation. Answers Eternal Challenge. "The character of America is its response to the eternal challenge of religion," he said.

Dr. Holmes pointed out that the beginnings of the United States are not lost in folk lore, like those of many countries. American beginnings sprang from such faith as is exemplified in the Magna Carta.

Bill of Rights and Mayflower Pact, he continued. The associate secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches was introduced by Col. William Tufts. Bert Nye, Rotary president, presided.

Camp Lee, near Hopewell, Va., and from there will be sent to Fort Bliss. Physical examinations will be held February 13, 17, 20 and 27, selective service headquarters said, with approximately 500 men being examined on each day.

A breakdown of the draft board allocations for the 1,100 selectees is expected to be ready for publication tomorrow.

With the addition of the new group, the 260th Coast Artillery Regiment will be brought up to full strength.

Aims of the District Selective Service Board of Appeals and plans for publicizing board decisions were discussed yesterday at an informal conference held in the office of Gen. Cox.

Representatives of the Washington Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.) met with selective service officials to discuss provisions of the Selective Service Act, with particular reference to deferment decisions by local draft boards, and subsequent action by the appeals board.

Spencer Gordon, chairman of the Registrants Advisory Board, told the council representatives that, in his opinion, early decisions by the local boards on the question of deferment had been too stringent in connection with the determination of dependents.

He pointed out that under the act, dependency is a question of actual fact, and in each case must be determined by the individual boards. It was pointed out at the meeting that a greater uniformity in the local boards' decisions on defer-

Alexandria Youth Faces Many Charges

19-year-old Alexandria (Va.) youth is scheduled to go before Alexandria Police Court on a variety of charges ranging from speeding to non-support.

Arthur L. Mudd of R. F. D. No. 3 was arrested by police last night after a chase which ended at River road and Hume avenue and charged with reckless driving, exceeding a speed of 60 miles per hour, possessing no registration card, having no driver's permit and illegal use of a siren, police stated.

Arriving with him at police headquarters, they said they found there a warrant charging non-support, and he also was booked on that charge.

No Outright Plane Gift To Greeks Planned, White House Says

Statement by Knox Craft Were Rejected Is Denied by Legation

A proposed transfer of 30 Navy warplanes from this Government to Greece was surrounded by conflicting stories and a certain amount of mystery today.

Revealed first by Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday afternoon when he announced the Greek government had declined an outright gift of 30 second-hand Grumman planes, the deal ran into its first contradiction last night, when the Greek Legation said there had been no final decision on the part of its government.

Today at the White House it was said that no outright gift had been contemplated at all, and that the President is not at this time giving or lending any military equipment to anybody.

Sought 30 Planes. Actually, it was claimed at the White House, the Greek government had sought to buy 30 fighting planes and had been offered the Grummans, which already were in

Burden of Food Relief Put on U. S. by Nazis

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Authorized German sources expressed the opinion today that one word from the United States to Britain on food shipments would be sufficient to make possible that "humaneness prevail in dealing with the civilian population in occupied zones."

This was in comment on a Washington dispatch saying that conversations on the food needs of the United States Department of State and the French Ambassador to Washington, Gaston Henry-Haye.

(In making the disclosure yesterday, Secretary Hull said that no action would be taken pending tangible evidence of acute need in France. Food shipments would have to go through the British blockade of Europe.)

The German sources said it was not right for Americans to think of possible British difficulties in the way of permitting food to reach the occupied zones because, they asserted, England was already 99 per cent dependent on the United States.

service in the Navy. It was further explained that the ships were constructed and are being used as dive bombers.

The Navy, it was said, has ordered newer models as replacements and plans to put the 30 now in use in the reserve category. This would permit their being offered for sale.

Word From Athens Awaited. Meanwhile, the Greek Legation said it was awaiting instructions from Athens.

What the Greeks apparently wanted, Secretary Knox said, was 30 new planes which they were trying to obtain from stocks ordered here by Great Britain. The Chinese government, he said, recently arranged to obtain 100 planes which had been ordered by Britain.

Navy authorities did not give the age of the 30 planes from the Wash. However, Mr. Knox said they could be considered "obsolete for the purpose of this transaction," although he added they could be used as either combat or training planes.

D. C. Hospitals Put Boycott on G. H. A., Prosecutor Charges

Patients Turned Away In Some Cases, Expelled In One, He Says

By HAROLD B. ROGERS.
Charging that "harsh, outrageous and unreasonable treatment" had been accorded patients of Group Health Association at a number of Washington hospitals under pressure of a "boycott" by organized medicine, John Henry Lewin, assistant to the Attorney General, today told District Court that one woman patient, a member of G. H. A., had been expelled from a hospital after having been given morphine preparatory to an operation.

Mr. Lewin, continuing his opening statement in the Government's anti-trust medical case before Justice James M. Proctor, described in some detail the case of this woman patient who, he said, had been refused an operation at this hospital because her surgeon, Dr. Raymond E. Seiders, was a Group Health doctor.

The expulsion occurred, Mr. Lewin explained, after the woman had been admitted to the hospital, put to bed and given morphine to prepare for an operation.

"Denied the services of her own surgeon because of his connection with Group Health Association," the prosecutor continued, "she had to dress and leave the hospital, seriously sick and in a stupefied condition."

Emergency Cases Held Delayed. In some other cases, Mr. Lewin charged, patients were turned away from hospitals after automobile accidents because they were taken to the hospitals by a G. H. A. doctor.

"In other instances," he continued, "Group Health Association patients in need of emergency care were kept waiting—their treatment delayed and their health jeopardized—while the hospital authorities haggle and deliberate over the question of admitting them."

Some hospitals even went so far, the prosecutor charged, as to refuse to accept G. H. A. checks in payment of hospital bills.

Mr. Lewin went into the Government's charges against four organizations of doctors and 20 individual defendants at some length. He resumed his opening statement after having spent an hour before the jury yesterday afternoon.

Especially, the prosecutor outlined the alleged "boycott" by organized medicine against Group Health Association doctors practicing in Washington private hospitals. He also charged that the American Medical Association and the District of Columbia Medical Society had exerted pressure on doctors joining Group Health Association staff.

Three of them resigned, he explained, and attempts were made to expel another, while still another was expelled by the District of Columbia Medical Society.

Grant W. Kelleher, assistant to the Attorney General, closed the opening statement for the Government by declaring that "the keystone of the conspiracy was the economic purpose of the defendants to destroy legitimate practice of medicine in the District of Columbia."

He had outlined at some length litigation which has held that Group Health Association was legal.

Reply to the charges was to be delivered by William E. Leahy of defense counsel.

Mass of Evidence Waits. In his statement yesterday Mr. Lewin said more than 30 witnesses and a mass of documentary evidence will be presented by G. H. A. during the trial.

The Government then plans to call on its witnesses and its mass of documentary evidence to support charges that organized medicine has violated section 3 of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and is guilty of a misdemeanor. The specific charge includes restraint of trade against Group Health Association, its members, its doctors and also certain restraints directed to 12 Washington hospitals and members of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

Doctors at Liberty. Defendants include the American Medical Association, the Medical Society of the District, the Washington Academy of Surgery and the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society, a member of the A. M. A., and 20 individual doctors, five from Chicago and 15 from this city. All of the individual defendants were in court yesterday afternoon with the exception of Dr. Francis X. McGovern, who is ill. They are at liberty on their own recognizance, and not even required to attend all sessions of court, depending on their own judgment as to whether their attention is needed for care of the sick.

The jury was not locked up overnight, but permitted by Justice Proctor to return to their homes under the admonition not to discuss the case with any one.

The list of witnesses called by the Government in the case was read in court by Justice Proctor. First of the witnesses were to be called this afternoon, according to indications as court opened. Among the prosecution witnesses are Dr. Hugh Cabot of Rochester, Minn., a nationally known advocate of group medicine; William C. Kirkpatrick, first president of G. H. A.; Dr.

Seasoned, Confident Army Awaits Invasion

Comparatively Young Generals, Now at Top of Britain's War Machine, Perfect a Mobile, Co-ordinated Force

Drew Middleton, who accompanied the British expeditionary force to Flanders during the blitzkrieg last spring, tells how Britain has revitalized her armed forces.

By DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON (Cable Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Battered and bewildered in June, seasoned and confident today—that's the British Army which must defend the soil of England against the boldest military enterprise of modern history.

While the Germans muster their tremendous army of war for a threatened invasion, a British force of 3,000,000 waits—and the empire's future rests on the fighting service and on none more heavily than the men in khaki. Ultimately they are the men who will have to deal with invaders.

(Prime Minister Churchill recently spoke of an army of 4,000,000, but the army says his figure includes the navy, air force and army abroad.)

Final Blow by Army Seen. Firmly embedded in the British grand strategy is the belief that, although the naval blockade will weaken Germany and nightly bombings will whittle her industrial output, it is up to the army to repulse invasion, then strike a final blow on the continent to end the war.

There are 2,000,000 men of the regular army and 1,000,000 of the home guard under arms in the United Kingdom. They have gone through a thorough revolution in command, tactics, equipment and morale since June, 1940.

A German military attaché leaving for his homeland stung the war office at the outbreak of the war with the remark: "The British have one good general—Wavell, and they've stuck him in the Middle East where he won't bother us."

His reference was to Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, who is directing the British thrusts at Fascist regions in Libya and Italian East Africa.

The wish of the new body of commanders thrown to top control of the military machine by the convulsions of last May and June is to prove that they are good generals, too.

Rows of Medals. None of them, except bluff, statuesque Lord Gort, now director general of training, resembles a "movie" general. From white-haired, pen-dantic Sir John Dill, chief of the imperial general staff, to scholarly brigadiers, they give the impression of men of thought rather than of action. This impression is belied by the rows of battle medals and ribbons on their tunics. The comparative youth of the men who are running this army—long dominated by oldsters—is striking. Dill is 59; Brooks, who will command the home forces against possible invaders, 57. Three other commanders, all major generals, are younger. Gen. Alexander, of the southern command, is 49; Adam, of the northern command of staff with the E. F. P.—and now with the Ulster command, is 54. Gifford Lequesne Martel, major general in command of the Royal Armored Corps—perhaps the most vital single arm—is 52, peppery and forthright.

Deep within these men, masked by the deprecatory manner Britons adopt toward anything they're really intent about, is the desire to prove that they are better soldiers than the Germans. They contend that the British army will use the lessons learned in Flanders, improve on them, and break Germany.

To this end, they changed the British Army out of all recognition. Mobility was developed to new heights. There is now not one type of infantry battalion, but four, graded on mobility. These are the regular battalion of riflemen, the motorized battalion, motorcycle batalion and mechanized battalion. "Mobility, mobility," is the chant of the new group of generals. Mobility also is stressed in the plans for the defense of airdromes and possible landing fields—mobility coupled with fire power.

To school the troops the general staff threw armies over the beaches and fields, down moors and along the highways of Britain from June until early January. They practiced invasion on the full scale, studied it and theoretically repelled it in extensive maneuvers.

Side by side with time-worn axioms of defense are new tricks for use against invasion forces. A subaltern able to kill a sentry silently was "not quite pukka" in the army 25 years ago. Today he's the white-haired boy.

The general of one command said, "There is not a foot of land in the command that we don't know and haven't made preparations to defend."

Watching the British work out the tactical problems of possible invasion, an observer is struck by the enormous advantage they hold—knowledge of a country denuded of signposts and town identifications—a "land of nowhere." Men from Devon know where to place anti-tank guns on the Yorkshire moors, farmers from Hampshire unhesitatingly pick out the best machine-gun posts along the Wash.

Trade Group Collusion Reported Unfounded

By the Associated Press. Chairman O'Mahoney of the Federal Monopoly Committee said yesterday that authors of a survey of trade associations, made for the committee, had found ground for belief that "relatively few" such organizations had engaged in "collusive restraints of trade in recent years." Senator O'Mahoney said the study illustrated "the steady trend toward centralization of trade and commerce," showing that there were in 1938 about 1,500 active national and regional trade associations having an aggregate income of approximately $70,000,000.

Symphony Drive Broadcasts On WMAL to Start Tonight

$33,787 Pledged In Drive for Fund Of $107,600

With New York City added to its conquests, the National Symphony Orchestra was back in Washington today, while volunteer workers campaigning for a sustaining fund for the symphony's 1941-2 season approached the final week of the drive heartened by the reception given Conductor Kans Kandler and his musicians at Carnegie Hall Tuesday night.

Tonight, the first of the N. B. C.-Star Dollar Club programs will go on the air at 9 o'clock from Station WMAL. Campaign Chairman Walter Bruce Howe will appeal to Washington music lovers to perpetuate their sympathy by contributing to the needed fund of $107,600, of which $33,787.63 already has been pledged.

Tomorrow, the second of four report luncheons, at which the progress of the drive is made public, will be held at the Carlton Hotel at 12:30 p.m. To be known as "business and professional day," the luncheon will have as guests of honor and speakers outstanding representatives of the city's commercial and professional life.

The campaign will close next Thursday. Eight hundred volunteer workers, divided into 11 subcommittees, of which nine solicit funds, began the drive Monday. Tuesday Mr. Howe reported that 31 per cent of the total fund had been pledged.

42 Years on Time, Worker Retires To Be Late

John H. Fox of 5323 Thirteenth street N.W., considers it his right and privilege heretofore to be tardy without excuse at school, church or lodge meeting.

For 42 years without a break he has gone back and forth to his job as a bookbinder with the Government Printing Office and not once has he been late.

Today, at 65, Mr. Fox has retired to take things easy for the remainder of his life. One of the first things he has determined to do, he said, is to break away from that iron rule of arriving on time.

A member of the West River Yacht Club, he will turn his attention now primarily to the yacht he has tied up down at Back Bay Beach, across from Gaesville, Md.

When Mr. Fox came to Washington from New Jersey in 1899, men were digging the foundation of the Printing Office building at North Capitol and G streets. He worked in the old structure at North Capitol and H streets, recently torn down and replaced, in the Union Building on G street, near Seventh street, at the North Capitol and G street printing office and, for the last 15 years, at the Library of Congress.

Lecture on Gaspe

Howland Bettinger will lecture on "An Artist Goes to Gaspe" at Constitution Hall tomorrow night before members of the National Geographic Society.

The National Museum at Washington has more than 5,000,000 insect specimens on file.

YOU'RE ENTITLED TO HAVE YOUR COFFEE CUSTOM GROUND!

If you're going to get the full fine flavor out of coffee—and that's what you pay for—then your coffee must be ground to just the fineness required for your type of coffee pot. Or—to use the A&P term—it must be Custom Ground for you. Here's the reason: Different types of coffee pots bring hot water into contact with coffee for different lengths of time, as follows...

In Regular Pots, boiling water is in constant contact with coffee... hence, you should have A&P Coffee ground coarse. Percolators force the water over coffee only intermittently... so have your A&P Coffee ground medium. In Drip Pots, water goes through the grounds only once... so A&P Coffee should be ground fine. In Vacuum Pots, the contact of water and coffee is briefest of all... so have your A&P Coffee ground extra fine.

Be sure to tell the clerk in your A&P Coffee Department the type of coffee pot you use—then the fresh coffee beans will be Custom Ground exactly right, so that you'll get all the magnificent flavor.

There are 3 A&P Coffee blends to suit every taste: Bokar is vigorous and winey; Red Circle, rich and full-bodied; and, if your personal taste is for a mild and mellow blend, you should choose Eight O'Clock, the largest selling coffee in the world.

Three-Block Cave-In Breaks Gas and Water Mains in Mining City

20 Families Thrown From Beds and School Building Is Damaged

By The Associated Press.
WEST PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 6.—At least 20 families were thrown from their beds and half a dozen streets were damaged early today by a surface settlement affecting a three-block area in this Eastern Pennsylvania community.

The settlement was preceded by a loud rumbling noise. Cracks as deep as 20 inches appeared in some streets. Gas and water mains were broken and some residents were ordered from their homes until the gas could be turned off.

Windows in one large store were shattered.

The community, with a population of about 8,000, is in the heart of Pennsylvania's anthracite field and the affected area is underlined with mines.

A large area of another Pennsylvania anthracite town—Shenandoah—was badly damaged by a similar subsidence about a year ago.

Today's settlement—unlike some—ended quickly. Among buildings damaged was a public school, with an enrollment of about 600. It was ordered closed.

Police said the sinking caused no panic, although many persons were badly frightened. Some residents slept on until awakened by police and firemen.

Although the subsidence was measured mostly in inches, pavements at some points dropped 2 to 3 feet. A section of one street looped downward like a roller coaster track, with the bottom end 6 feet below the surface.

Washington's Orchestra

If ever there were any doubt about the professional maturity of the National Symphony Orchestra, the recent appearance of Dr. Hans Kindler's company of musicians in Carnegie Hall, New York, must have resolved it. Only the best of such organizations are invited to play in the most famous of all American auditoriums with a financial guarantee provided. The fact that Washington's symphonists were asked to visit the metropolis and were assured of being paid for their acceptance means a great deal. A notably friendly reception signifies something additional. The audience attending Tuesday evening's concert and the critics who wrote about it were equally cordial. Indeed, it might be said without apology that they were distinctively exuberant in their praise.

The orchestra now is completing its tenth consecutive season. It was established in 1931 and has had only one conductor—the talented Dutch harmonic master who served his apprenticeship in Rotterdam and Amsterdam and came to the United States in 1914 to be first cellist with the celebrated Philadelphia aggregation of melodists. Dr. Kindler, confessedly, began at the bottom of the ladder when he brought together the members of his ensemble for their first rehearsal. He has developed his own genius and has stimulated and inspired that of his fellow artists, with the acknowledged result of admission to the front rank of orchestral institutions. To have achieved such success in a single decade is phenomenal.

But Dr. Kindler and the group of eighty men and women who work under his baton want only a fair portion of the credit. They realize that they are indebted to the music-lovers of Washington for the opportunity of service which they enjoy. Subscribers to the number of nine thousand, eight hundred and eighty-four made possible the present season's programs. The eleventh annual sustaining fund campaign began on February 3 and is scheduled to close on February 13. A total of one hundred and seven thousand, six hundred dollars is solicited. This money is a small sum as compared with amounts devoted to purposes relatively inconsequential. Whether it be regarded as an investment in art, a musical philanthropy or a form of cultural defense may not matter. Thoughtful citizens will center their attention on the practical idealism represented in an enterprise which, as exemplified in New York's appreciation, surely deserves the generous support of its principal beneficiaries.

Maritime Personnel

The Maritime Commission has dealt firmly with an important issue in emphasizing that shipmasters are entitled to unrestricted selection of personnel for their commands, and urging accordingly on shipping interests that advantage be taken of this prerogative to insure that trustworthy crews man American vessels.

By this step, the commission seeks to confer no new powers on these officers, nor does it infringe on the relationship between the unions which customarily supply the crews, and employers. What it does is to serve notice that the Government wants to prevent the infiltration of subversive elements into the merchant marine, and will back up efforts to gain this objective.

The commission stand was outlined in a recent speech by Daniel S. Ring, director of the Division of Maritime Personnel. After giving full consideration to the prevention of subversive activities at sea, he explained, it was decided that the evil was susceptible of being choked off at the source if ship officers enjoyed absolute freedom in refusing to sign on men whose trustworthiness and loyalty to this country were open to question. There were only two objections to this course which seemed to carry weight; one was the possibility that it might interfere with union agreements with ship-owners, and the other, that it could be used as an excuse for "union-busting." Study convinced commission officials, however, that contracts with both American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations unions would permit shipmasters to follow a discretionary hiring policy, and it was agreed that the Government could deal adequately with attempted abuses. Against this background, the commission is calling on the shipping industry to co-operate, and, in turn, is pledging its full support to make the plan effective.

The only public dissent that has been brought to the attention of the commission was voiced by Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime Union, one of the left wing groups of the C. I. O., who saw it as an attempt to weaken labor. That particular point, however, has been answered sufficiently by the commission, and it is to be hoped that no specious arguments will be permitted to stand in the way of what is essentially a safeguard for American commerce.

New Drive in China

Although the spearhead of Japanese aggression momentarily is pointed toward the South Pacific, with Singapore and the Dutch East Indies as all but openly avowed objectives, it is "the China incident"—the unsuccessful effort, after nearly four years of war, to conquer free China—that continues to absorb and sap the inland empire's energies. Until that ill-starred campaign is marked by decisions more definitive than any yet enforced, Japan's vast expansion dreams far to her south seem condemned to remain unrealized. The prolongation of Chinese resistance is therefore a factor of the first importance in the calculations of the British, the Dutch, the Australians, the New Zealanders and ourselves, who would be the victims of the "new order" which Japan, under axis encouragement, is bent upon imposing in Asia and the Pacific.

As latest evidence of her necessity to subjugate China with a minimum of delay, Japan has just made a surprise move near Hong Kong. For the purpose of cutting off transit of supplies from the British crown colony into China, Japanese troops, co-operating with naval units, have landed on the shore of Bias Bay, in Kwangtung Province. The acknowledged plan is to block the route by which heavy quantities of munitions and other stores for Chiang Kai-shek's armies have been flowing. How far inland the invaders propose to penetrate is not yet disclosed, but the operation is described as a "drive" and bears earmarks of becoming the most ambitious movement undertaken by the Japanese since their abortive plunge northward from Canton many months ago. Waichow, busy river port forty miles north of Hong Kong, is expected to be the first major objective.

Tokio military spokesmen, claiming the drive will "deal another severe blow at Chungking's forces and greatly reduce their fighting strength," say it is designed to destroy a supply route, which since the closing off of Indo-China and the "effectual bombing" of the Burma road, has assumed vital value for Chiang. Of course, it remains to be demonstrated whether the Chinese will be as seriously crippled by this latest maneuver as Japan expects. To date, Chungking's forces remain sufficiently formidable in mobility, morale, numbers and equipment to require the aggressors to hold the field in undiminished force. Granted a continuance of American assistance, financial and otherwise, Chinese leaders assert confidently their ability to keep the enemy at bay indefinitely. Meanwhile, such developments as rationing of rice, Japan's great food staple, speak volumes as to the wear and tear on her economic system, which the costly failure to end "the China incident" is entailing.

Ethiopia Resurgent

It was a dramatic moment in the House of Commons when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formally announced that his majesty's government would welcome the reappearance of an independent Ethiopian state and would recognize Emperor Haile Selassie's claim to the throne. Thereby, Britain stands pledged to undo Mussolini's unprovoked conquest of a primitive people in his ruthless quest for empire.

This official statement is no mere gesture expressing an eventual hope. On the contrary, the task of liberation is so far advanced that Italian domination over Ethiopia seems to be nearing its end. Hardly had Italy entered the war when daring British agents began to slip over Ethiopia's wilderness borders from British East Africa and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, fanning the still-glowing embers of revolt among tribes which, five short years of Italian rule had barely pacified. The results were soon evident in local revolts and in desertions from newly recruited native troops in Italian service.

The good work being done thus started, Britain brought Haile Selassie from his exile in England and installed him at Khartoum, capital of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, ready to return to his country and head a larger revolt at the right moment. The hour struck after the first Italian disasters in Libya had revealed the hollowness of Mussolini's African empire. In mid-January, the bearded little Emperor was flown by airplane to one of the centers of Ethiopian revolt. On landing, he was formally greeted as "your majesty" by British officers leading the insurgents. Since then, the flame of revolt has spread far and wide. Throughout Ethiopia the war drums are beating on the high mountains and in the deep jungles. Italian garrisons are pinned to their posts, even the main highroads are safe only for caravans of motor trucks escorted by armored cars, and the very outskirts of the chief towns are infested with lurking guerrillas, especially after nightfall. Fear and incipient panic are reportedly showing among the Italian colonists, out off from home in a savagely hostile land.

On top of all this comes the smashing drive of the large British imperial army from the Sudan into Eritrea, coupled with lesser thrusts from Kenya in the far south. A semi-official statement from London predicts that Asmara, the capital, and Massawa, Italy's main port on the Red Sea, may fall within a week. That implies both a decisive defeat for Italy's field army and the virtual isolation of its forces in Ethiopia. Should this happen, it would look like the beginning of the end.

British strategy has a two-fold reason for hastening a clean-up in East Africa. In less than six weeks, the "little rains" set in which would bog down mechanized equipment and give the Italians a breathing spell. Furthermore, in the larger sense, the quick liquidation of Italian resistance throughout Africa would release very large British imperial forces for use elsewhere—perhaps in the Balkans, possibly for an invasion of Sicily. The British feel they have the Italians on the run. And they do not intend to let up.

Nolle Prosses

Acting with commendable forthrightness in a much-discussed nolle pro case at Police Court, Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech has transferred an assistant for using "extremely bad judgment" and has issued instructions designed to tighten restrictions on the quashing of charges by representatives of his office. Mr. Keech shifted an assistant prosecutor to the District Building as an outgrowth of the dismissal of a driving-while-drunk charge against a local attorney. The lawyer was permitted to plead guilty to a lesser charge after the prosecutor had been advised that the defendant had paid the complainant's damages and that none of the witnesses wished to press the charges. The information, if true, was not sufficient to warrant the action taken, Mr. Keech pointed out.

Mr. Keech is on sound ground when he contends that the corporation counsel's office should not be used as a collection agency, that the mere payment of damages has no relation to prosecution and that it is the duty of the prosecutor, when proof of a charge is available, to "leave the responsibility of conviction or acquittal on the complaining witnesses and the jury." Under the new procedure, all changes of charges or nolle prosses, must be justified in a full statement submitted to the corporation counsel. Meanwhile, Mr. Keech is considering the reopening of the original case against the attorney.

The disclosures regarding the strange handling of this traffic prosecution were not conducive to public respect for law enforcement methods used at Police Court. Prompt action by responsible authorities to remedy weaknesses in the machinery of justice is essential if public confidence is to be maintained in the courts.

Republican Report

In their minority report on the bill to increase the public debt limit to $65,000,000,000, Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee have made several constructive proposals on the subject of the Nation's fiscal policies that merit the careful consideration of Congress. One of these is their recommendation for the creation of a nonpartisan congressional committee to co-ordinate Federal expenditures and revenues, a recommendation that closely parallels the proposal of Representative Woodrum of Virginia for a joint budget committee. In view of the vast expenditures required by the total defense program, there is clearly a need in Congress for a closer tie-up between the committees handling appropriations, and those responsible for raising revenue, and an overall study of the Federal budget by congressional leaders.

The minority report contains two other sound proposals. The first is a recommendation that as much of the cost of rearmament as possible be paid through current revenues, by raising Federal taxes; the second that economies be effected in non-military expenditures. Though the preparedness program cannot be financed without borrowing, Congress can meet a greater part of defense costs out of current revenues by increasing taxes and broadening the tax base, so that the burden would be more widely distributed.

Though the Ways and Means Committee Republicans oppose an increase in the public limit to $65,000,000,000, they nevertheless concede the necessity for lifting the present debt ceiling, and suggest that a $60,000,000,000 limit, would give the Treasury all the additional borrowing authority that it needs during the coming year. Present budget estimates place the probable public debt, on June 30, 1942, at $58,000,000,000. Aid to Britain, however, is still an unknown factor in the equation. Since the American people are determined to extend all necessary help to Britain in her battle against the axis powers, the Treasury should be given a greater borrowing power than necessary to meet the obligations now in sight. For this reason, Congress should increase the debt ceiling to $65,000,000,000, and then make every effort to reduce non-military expenditures, and increase Federal revenues by raising taxes.

Of Stars, Men And Atoms

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

At least 1,200,000 men will be required to meet the draft quota of 800,000 expected by July 1.

Approximately 400,000 will be turned away because of physical defects, without considering the vast numbers who will be exempted because of families, or because they cannot be spared from essential industries.

This is the estimate of the United States Public Health Service from an intensive study of the disposition of the second million men drafted in the first World War. It assumes that the general health of the men of draft age is as good as it was in 1918. It is probably, public health officials say, slightly better. On the other hand defects not recognized then, such as certain pre-renal symptoms, now will be causes for rejection.

The study was made by Public Health Service Statisticians Rollo H. Britten and George St. J. Perrott because of proposals that either their home States or the Federal Government rehabilitate, wherever possible, men found unfit to serve their country in the ranks.

In 1918 approximately 40 out of each 1,000 called by draft boards had bad eyes, although not necessarily bad enough to cause their rejection. This is probably worse today. Thirty-eight had crippled or paralyzed limbs, and 32 were handicapped with flat feet. Thirty of each thousand were underweight, 24 had teeth too bad to be admissible in the army. About four in each thousand were insane or epileptic.

The rate of rejections varied enormously according to States. In Rhode Island nearly 60 per cent of those called were turned down, while in Wyoming only 18 per cent were rejected. This was due in part, the Public Health Service statisticians say, to more rigid examinations in some places, but in part it reveals a real physical difference between the young men of different parts of the country. Rhode Island has a large industrial population, whereas the youth of Wyoming is largely rural, brought up in the open air and accustomed to vigorous physical exercise. There is little reason to believe, they say, that the relative status has changed very much.

The age limits from which the second million was chosen in 1918 were 21 to 31. It required 1,672,961 to obtain 967,486 fit for full service. After 30, physical defects begin to increase quite rapidly, so the difference in age limits of the present draft should more than offset any improvement in the general health. By the time the drafting of the second million started, Drs. Britten and Perrott point out, the examination procedure had become standardized so that few were escaping service for pretended ailments.

There is every reason to expect, they believe, that at least a third of those called in the present draft will not be fit for full military service, although some of them may be fit for limited training, or for work in various war industries.

A hitherto unknown and extremely virulent type of pneumonia germ has just been discovered by United States Public Health Service bacteriologists. This increases to 33 the known kinds of the microscopic organism, the pneumococcus, which invades the lungs and has always been one of the worst killers of the human race. While the maladies due to all these types are essentially similar, it is necessary to know which kind of "bug" has gotten into the lungs in order to protect a patient with the appropriate serum.

This has become very important in the last decade since serum treatment with pneumonia has greatly reduced the death rate. It still is considered at least equal, and sometimes superior, to the sovereign pneumonia remedy, sulfa-pyridine, and many physicians prefer to use it. Serum produced against one type, however, is usually worthless against another type. Several States and some cities have established testing laboratories where types of pneumococcus are determined for physicians.

The new "bug" was discovered in the course of a co-operative survey of the prevalence of various types in Northern California by the Public Health Service and the California State Department of Health. Tests at the Public Health Service laboratories in Washington, just reported by Bacteriologists Alice L. Chinn and Bernice E. Eddy, leave no doubt that it is different from all the others, and possibly one of the most virulent.

In Northern California it was found to be more prevalent than four other types. It is likely to be confused with five others in the laboratory and its existence greatly increases the difficulty of determining the exact kind of organism that has caused the disease.

There is a possibility, it is explained, that the new type of organism is what is known to geneticists as a "mutation"—a new form of microscopic life which has just appeared in the world. The pneumococci are believed to be in a state of rapid change, which may have resulted in the hitherto recognized 32 types evolving from a single type in a relatively few generations.

In this case, Public Health Service physicians believe, it may possibly be confined to the Pacific Coast, although the other types are generally distributed over the country. They warn bacteriologists in public testing laboratories everywhere to be on the lookout for it.

Out of 39 cases in which the new "bug" was found, there were three deaths. It caused both lobar and bronchopneumonia and in most of the cases surveyed was associated with various complications.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"Dear Sir:
Thank you, and The Star, for a most helpful and interesting column.
I enjoy the various letters and was interested particularly in reading about the African violet blooming continuously for two years.
I have African violets but never that many blooms at one time. My plants have really beautiful leaves but instead of bending over they stand upright.
With such healthy plants I cannot understand why they don't bloom.

"I have fairly good results in starting new plants from rooting a leaf in water. It takes a long time for the roots to appear and many times the leaf dies, but a certain number will root if one has patience. (Be sure, however, the stem only is in water.) The plants seem to do well in a northeast window.
I have the plants in saucers of water all night but remove the saucers during the day.

"Have mostly sparrows at my feeder with one mocker and two beautiful jays. When the sparrows are in the midst of enjoying their meal the mocker swoops down and scatters them. However, they soon return, sometimes to have the mockingbird chase them again.
Sincerely, E. L. B.

Many new plants come on the market at this time of year, ready for the spring planting season, but the African violet goes right ahead winning new admirers and holding old ones.

African violets, as well as most plants, bloom better when they are pot-bound. This means that they often do best, as far as blooming is concerned, when they are in pots which seem too small for them.

The desire to give an African violet a larger pot should be resisted. The plant will thrive, all right, in a larger one, but this thriving will consist mostly of leaves.

If the plant is left alone in a pot which strikes an observer as far too little for it, it will surprise the owner, often enough, by throwing a profusion of flowers.

Since this plant is tropical, and in nature often stands in water, but with its leaves protected from direct rainfall by huge overhanging leaves of other and much larger plants, it follows that the saucer of water in which it stands should stay put and night.

The best results are secured when the plant is watered solely in this manner, that is, water is poured into the saucer, so that this saucer in which the pot stands is kept filled all the time.

If there were a time of day when the saucer of water should be present, and one when it should not, it would be best to have it in operation during the day.

Letters to the Editor

Writes of Memories
Of President Harrison's Inauguration.
To the Editor of The Star:
I think it was your name (Editor T. W. Noyes) mentioned over the radio on January 20 as speaking of previous inauguration days and the weather, good and bad, that was experienced. I did not hear you mention March 4, 1889.

At that time I was a student at Georgetown College and came in to Washington to see the inauguration. Oh, how it did rain! I saw the parade, having stood for hours in front of Driver's Saloon just below the Metropolitan Hotel. I was soaked through and through and looked like a drowned rat, but I saw Cleveland and Harrison pass by in a carriage in which rode also Senator Cullom. Buffalo Bill with his troop attracted much attention. I spent the rest of the day in the old National Hotel drying my clothes. That night I did not go to the ball held in the old Pension Office building, but went to Al-baugh's to see Mary Anderson, whom I thought and still think the greatest actress of my time. There was a double bill, "Pygmalion and Galatea" being one of the plays and I have forgotten the other. The house was packed and some of the ex-President's cabinet occupied one box, one of those being ex-Secretary Endicott.

How times have changed! Ben Harrison, perhaps, had more ability than any other President since the Civil War, but was said to be as cold as an iceberg. I have seen him many times walking on Pennsylvania avenue and also on F street, always alone, and gazing in the store windows. On one occasion I saw him stand in front of a large department store at or near Tenth and F streets, looking at the goods displayed in the windows. His speeches on his tour of the country were very fine.

Along about this time I went to the Supreme Court to hear J. Proctor Knott of Duluth and Pennsylvania avenue fame and Joe McDonald of Indiana oppose each other in the Green Island case. The court let Mr. Knott talk for twenty minutes over his allotted time of one hour, because he was so enter-taining. He told a yellow dog joke which convulsed the court. Knott made a very fine argument and won the case. Perhaps an incident of this kind has not occurred again in the Supreme Court.

Dr. Abbot Quotes Great Preacher Of Another Tragic Day.
To the Editor of The Star:
Having lately heard from the pulpit the statement that it is an evidence of the decline of religion in the United States that "we are hurrying into war," it is interesting to recall the words of a famous clergyman.

In the year 1863, the Rev. Dr. Henry Ward Beecher gave an address at Liverpool, beginning against a fury of hisses, cat calls and interruptions from a large section of an audience of many thousands calculatingly prepared to howl him down and prevent his utterance, he nevertheless at length carried the vast audience with him overwhelmingly. Near the end he said: "And now in the future it is the work of every good man and patriot not to create diversions, but to do the things that will make for peace. On our part it shall be done. On your part it ought to be done; and when, in any of the convulsions that

Arlington Mansion, Restored
Seeing how darkly, through the empty years, These rooms had ached with loneliness, I said: This house is like a heart too chilled for tears From whose halls even memories have fled. I knew the shadowy ghosts of happier days Must shun the echoing rooms, un-tenanted; Must flee the paths of once familiar ways, Encircled by the tomb and quiet dead. But now, lured gently from the long ago, I like to think those vanished ones move here, Freed from the bitterness of war and woe, Among the cherished things they once held dear; Clinking their glasses, by faint candle-gleam, To days when war shall be a fading dream.

Supreme Court Rule On Commerce Clause Is Decreed

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Though war and defense take the headlines, something of transcendent significance happened this week which so far as affecting the economic life of the United States may have results extending far more years into the future than the present impact of Europe's battles.

David Lawrence.

For without amending the Constitution or giving the people the opportunity to pass judgment on it, the Supreme Court has just enlarged and broadened the commerce clause so that centralized government in Washington, as the policeman and regulator of all the interests of the citizen that touch on business of any kind, is here to stay.

This evolution—or revolution as some may call it—has been so gradual that it apparently occasions today no upheaval of public opinion. Time was when the regulation of the hours of work or the rates of minimum pay were considered matters for the States to fix. The courts went considerable distance in establishing the principle that hours of work were related to health, especially of women, and this brought in a series of laws fixing hours. But when it came to the matter of minimum pay, the Supreme Court of the United States said "No." The States could not, so the decisions ran—fix minimum rates of pay any more than they could fix maximum rates of pay. Wages, it seemed, were so closely related to the rights of the people that neither Federal nor State governments were considered to have the power to regulate them.

Demanded Federal Laws. Uneven situations in various States were soon construed, however, to be damaging to the cause of the worker and there came an insistence on a uniform system. President Roosevelt declared that it was not adequate to let the States do it. He demanded that the Federal Government apply uniform laws governing minimum wages and maximum hours.

The one thing that stood in the way was the Constitution as interpreted by justices for a number of years. Such justices were called reactionary because they were charged with standing in the way of progress. But the truth is history may record that they were the true liberals, for they stood staunchly against allowing fundamental rights of this nature to be legislated upon by judicial decisions.

Today the New Deal dominates the Supreme Court and it is considered proper by the radicals to use the Supreme Court to write legislation. Including laws that Congress itself has specifically refrained from writing. Mr. Roosevelt has publicly proclaimed that because three-fourths of the States must ratify an amendment and hence 13 States can block reform, the method is too cumbersome.

Another Way of Putting It. This is but another way of saying that the Constitution itself is outmoded and that the end, if benevolent, fully justifies the means. Not a single amendment has been submitted to the people by the Congress in the last eight years even though the New Deal party has had a two-thirds vote in both houses which is ample to assure passage of a resolution requiring submission of amendments to the States.

The Supreme Court has constantly herefore quickly and in the interests of the people and when in doubt has refused to validate statutes involving a fundamental change in constitutional doctrine, preferring to have the people pass upon each issue in the way provided in the Constitution itself. Now all this is changed. The way is opened for Congress to fix all wages, control all labor unions and to confiscate anybody's business at any time.

The 10th Amendment has always been believed to be a check against abuse of the Constitution by either the States or the Federal Government. That's the clause which provides that all powers not specifically granted to the States or the Federal Government are "reserved to the people." This week the 10th Amendment was practically discarded. For when the Supreme Court said Congress had full control over commerce and construed commerce to mean anything or everything that touches the economic life of the country, the court gave to the Congress virtually unlimited power over all that the citizen may do or not do. It would be hard to think of any rights now "reserved to the people" which cannot be taken away by the new interpretation of the commerce clause.

There are many who will defend the enlarged view of the commerce clause. America's increasing population, they say, doubtless required that commerce be considered national. But the precedent of usurping power without letting the people pass on it concretely has been established.

Wadsworth Speech for Lease-Lend Amendment May Go Down as One That Changes History

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Now and then a speech is made in Congress that changes history. Now and then a speech is made which changes votes on a major measure under consideration. Such a speech may well have been made in the House on Tuesday by Representative Wadsworth of New York, in which he pleaded for national unity back of the bill to aid the democracies now warring against the totalitarian governments. The House today will begin consideration of amendments to the bill, and upon the outcome may depend the measure of the unity so vitally needed.

Mr. Wadsworth strongly urged administration forces to accept two amendments, which he insisted might, if adopted, swing a large number of votes to the measure. One calls for fixing a specified limit on the amount of money that may be expended for the purposes of the lease-lend bill. The other, for a limitation, in time, on the future commitments which the President may enter into during the life of the bill, which he regards as fixed by the House Foreign Affairs Committee as June 30, 1943.

Neither of these amendments would halt or hinder aid to the democracies which is proposed—the appropriation and expenditure "ceiling" is not too low. Mr. Wadsworth made it clear he would go along with any reasonable sum, whether it be three or four billion dollars. It remains to be seen whether the administration, for the sake of national unity, will accede to such amendments.

Puts Partisanship in Background

The New York Representative holds to an unusual degree the respect of his colleagues. He is a Republican. But he has never let partisanship interfere with his views and his action on measures which he regards as vital to the people and the country. He speaks seldom in the House but when he speaks it is after full consideration and study of the issue at hand. He has a clarity of expression and of reason in his addresses that is not equaled often. He never subordinates principle to partisanship. He has an eloquence that comes largely from sincerity but not entirely, for he has a gift of expression that is rare.

Other men in public life of this country have a similar devotion to principle and duty, a similar intellectual honesty. Three other public men come to mind—men who have not believed with Mr. Wadsworth either politically or on non-partisan issues. The first is the late Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, who served as Democratic leader of the House and later as Democratic leader of the Senate. Another is former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, as died-in-the-wool a Democrat as Mr. Wadsworth is a Republican. The third is the Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. All of them had or have great gifts of expression. All of them were or are forthright in their views and their devotion to principle.

Mr. Wadsworth sacrificed a good deal in his political career because of his independence and devotion to what he considered to be the interests of the country. He came to the Senate as Senator from New York when he was 31 years old. Before he had completed his second term in the Upper House, he had been recognized as outstanding, and he was listened to with the same interest as he is today in the House. He did not move with the times, however, in a day when the national prohibition issue was becoming predominate. Because of his opposition, he was defeated for re-election in 1926. Since that time, his position on national prohibition has been vindicated politically, at least, for the eighteenth amendment has been repealed.

For many years Mr. Wadsworth retired from public life, and then in 1932 he was elected to the House and has been re-elected ever since. In his appeal for support of the lease-lend bill, which grants great powers to the Chief Executive, Mr. Wadsworth did not cavil at the grant of such powers. He told the House he did not believe that the grant, or their exercise by the President, would spell the end of liberty in this country. His concluding paragraph was prophetic: "He said: 'The country and the process of government under the Constitution of the United States, I do not believe that a bill of this sort spells the end of liberty in America. I do not believe that. Three precious things we Americans possess, and they cannot be taken away from us without our consent—free speech, a free press and free elections. Armed with these weapons, the American people will continue to be the master of their destiny.'"

Mr. Wadsworth's argument in favor of the amendments which he suggested was based on the need of Congress to keep control of the "pure strings." While Congress holds the purse there can be no doubt of its power, he said. The adoption of the amendments, he urged, would satisfy the fears of many Americans who have been told that the passage of the present bill would bring virtual dictatorship, with the abdication by Congress of its constitutional powers.

lished for generations to come. The doctrine that if the object is socially desirable, it doesn't matter whether procedure is in accordance with the way provided in the Constitution is a dangerous deviation from American Democratic conceptions and much more in line with the manner in which European governments of the totalitarian type have recently been taking away power from the people. The British democracy, to be sure, delegates vast powers to its parliament—a combination of the executive and legislative branches—but in Britain there is an instantaneous check on possible abuse whereas in America elections are held at two or four-year intervals, and it is difficult to relate the campaigns to a single issue of a constitutional nature. Battle for a Continent

Crushing of Italians by British May Yield Victors Major Resources of Africa

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT.

The campaign in Italian East Africa, as distinct from that in Libya—though the two are to some extent interdependent—is now beginning to take shape. In this theater it is clear that troops of the Indian Army are being largely employed for the direct advance from Kassala into Eritrea, and from Gallabat toward Gondar. On the Kenya front the British forces seem to be largely South Africans, plus Maj. G. Fielding Eliot, native unit of the King's African Rifles and Royal West African Frontier Force.

The principal objective of the main attack—which is now well beyond the Italian railroad at Agordat—is probably Asmara, capital of Eritrea. This place is of importance not only as an administrative center, but because it is the point where the main roads into Ethiopia leave the railway—one running due south all the way to Addis Ababa, one southwest to Axum and the cities of Tigre Province, and one west to Tessenet, thence south to Gondar.

The capture of Asmara would give control of all Eritrea to the British forces, and would also present them with a central position from which a further thrust southward into Ethiopia could be developed. Moreover, Asmara is connected by rail with the port of Massawa on the Red Sea. Massawa, on the low littoral, could not defend itself against the master of Asmara: the main base of the British expedition might then be shifted from Port Sudan to Massawa, and once more the advantages of command of the sea would have been demonstrated to the Italian military mind, which has seemed so sadly to disregard these ancient precepts.

Truck and Animal Transport. At present the British communications in this area run from Port Sudan to Kassala, where trucks and animal transport columns take the task of supplying the fighting forces. Kassala is also connected by rail and road with Khartoum, and by road with Atbara on the Nile. The column operating from Gallabat has a good road which connects with the Khartoum-Kassala-Port Sudan Railway at Gebaret. But the good communications for the most part end at the frontier between the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Italian East Africa. On the Italian side of the line, little has been done to improve any roads save a very few trunk highways.

The advance from Agordat to Asmara is likely to prove difficult. The country is mountainous and Asmara lies some 1,000 feet higher than Agordat, from which it is about 100 miles distant by rail, or by the highway which parallels the railroad. While a strong Italian defense of Asmara is to be expected, it is pointed out that an attack from the rear, by means of a landing at or near Massawa, should prove of effective assistance to the main overland attack.

It is not yet clear what the purpose of the force which has taken Barentu in the country, besides what to the south of Agordat, and it seems likely that the British purpose here was simply to mop up the Italian garrison occupying the place. The terrain east of Barentu is so rough and trackless that it offers little opportunity for a parallel advance toward Asmara. It is, however, possible that having taken Barentu, this column may attempt to reach the main Asmara-Addis Ababa road south of Asmara, thus cutting off Asmara from any hope of re-inforcement.

The attack on Gondar is perhaps for the moment the most interesting of the several thrusts into Italian territory. The ancient and almost inaccessible city of Gondar is one of the historic cities of Ethiopia, and is a former capital of the country. It has great significance in the African mind, and it seems very probable that its capture is being attempted, not for strategic reasons, for it has little strategic importance in a campaign directed toward the breaking of Italy's military power in East Africa.

This Changing World

German Suggestion Ousted Count Ciano From Post in Italian Foreign Office

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Count Galeazzo Ciano has been definitely eased out of the foreign office, according to reports received here recently. Mussolini's son-in-law was ordered to take command of an air unit in Albania, thus making a speedy exit from the foreign office at the suggestion of the Germans.

Ciano and his wife, Edda, were strongly pro-Nazi and fully sympathetic with the co-operation policy of Il Duce, but Ciano made a grave mistake when he induced his father-in-law to start the offensive against Greece last fall in opposition to the advice of the German high command. The Germans, according to reliable reports, had definitely warned Il Duce against the Greek adventure. They told him the season was too far advanced to repeat the Norwegian campaign in the Balkans, and the preparation of the Italian army for such a job was inadequate.

Ciano Convinced Mussolini

Mussolini, these reports say, was inclined to listen to the advice of the more experienced German general staff, but the enthusiastic Ciano convinced his father-in-law that Greece was a pushover. Ciano was certain that he had fixed up a super-fifth column in Greece and that in less than 24 hours the Italian flag would fly over the royal palace in Athens. He did not count on Greek resistance and British aid, and was badly fooled.

The Germans told Mussolini politely, "We warned you about it," and let Il Duce stew in his own juice. But when Mussolini and Hitler got together to talk over spring activities, the Fuehrer insisted that the charming, bungling, young Ciano must go. And Mussolini sent him to the front, where he is heading an aviation group.

Badoglio was a victim of Ciano. The former foreign secretary decided to make the old marshal the scapegoat of the Greek misadventure. That was not difficult. Il Duce was looking everywhere for scapegoats and when Badoglio was suggested as a worthy sacrifice, he did not hesitate to throw him overboard.

The camarilla in Rome had been denouncing Badoglio as a dangerous opponent of the fascist regime and accused him of plotting with the loyal followers of the King to upset the present political system of Italy. Whether this is true or not, it is difficult to say. But it was well known in Berlin that Badoglio, while not a particularly ardent booster of the fascist regime, and somewhat doubtful over the outcome of the war as far as Italy is concerned—is undoubtedly the greatest strategist Italy has. Marshal von Keitel, in particular, was impressed by the sound views of the former Italian commander in chief, and suggested to the Fuehrer that he should induce Mussolini to order Badoglio back on active service.

This, according to reports received from Rome recently, is likely to be done in the next few weeks when the Italian army will undergo another thorough spring cleaning.

Franco Agrees to Fight

Reports from Spain indicate Generalissimo Franco has definitely agreed to go to war on the side of the Reich whenever his participation is required by the Fuehrer. For the time being Spain's "neutrality" is welcomed by the Reich because of certain shipments of foodstuffs entering the country under the guise of feeding the neutral and hungry Spaniards.

Franco is said to have promised full co-operation on condition that there is a sufficiently large force in the country to meet any danger from within.

All reports reaching this country indicate that trouble is brewing in Spain now. The situation is particularly unsettled in the southern section of the country where the revolutionary movement gains momentum. The Spaniards are starving. Promises of the Germans that after the war Spain will be allotted a large section of the French Morocco and possibly French and British colonies in West Africa, may be appealing to Spanish leaders, but do not feed the bulk of the population. The people of Spain would rather see plenty of bread and meat immediately than look to large territorial gains in the more-or-less distant future. Meanwhile, Generalissimo Franco, who is as much Hitler's prisoner as Il Duce, is awaiting word from Berlin to start fighting. But he is worried, fearing that the beginning of another war might be the signal for a new era of internal strife.

of the Italian morale in Ethiopia is unknown, but we may assume that it is not high; they have been cut off from their homeland for 17 months, while the tide of native insurgency runs slowly about them. Now they are asked to fight a hopeless battle of which there can be no victorious outcome. What the quality of their resistance will be remains to be discovered, but a guess might be ventured that it will not be formidable in many places. Thus the new Roman empire appears to be crumbling at the first lusty blows of attack; and the importance of this fact goes far beyond the borders of the territory involved. Those of African experience will know how the news will travel: within a comparatively short time every African native clear down to the Cape and across to the Atlantic will hear the tidings of Italian defeat, of British victory. The British armies in East Africa and in Libya are achieving not only the defeat of an enemy, but perhaps also the conquest, for the duration of the war, of the resources of a whole continent.

St. Lawrence Project Soon To Reappear

First-Rate Battle Forecast Over Plan In Congress

By JAY FRANKLIN.

The President's references to the proposed Arkansas Valley authority at a recent press conference are regarded by insiders as a tip-off that the long-discussed St. Lawrence seaway and power project will be brought back to Congress.

One of the anticipated developments is that the aid-to-Britain bill has been adopted, men like Wheeler of Montana and La Follette of Vermont, who have taken a leading part in opposition to the lease-lend proposals, will suddenly emerge as pro-administration leaders in the fight for the St. Lawrence undertaking.

Delay in presenting this matter to Congress has been caused by a curious series of accidents. The Canadian Minister of Transport was torpedoed on his way back from England and eventually had to return to the Dominion on the King George V with Lord Halifax. The Canadian director of external affairs, Skelton, died suddenly of heart-failure, and the head of the Ontario hydro system was laid up by a serious automobile accident. All of these combined with the aid-to-Britain debate, have held back the seaway.

General Study Made. However, Army engineers have been conducting tests and borings on the river since October, 1940, and the Department of Commerce has been making a general study of the whole St. Lawrence project. The St. Lawrence project in order to be fully prepared with the facts and the figures when the matter comes before the Congress. At the same time, opposition has been voiced by such powerful trade associations as the National Association of Manufacturers, the Edison Electric Institute, the Lake Carriers' Association, the Association of American Railroads, the Mississippi Valley Association and various chambers of commerce. The United States Chamber of Commerce, which stands in opposition favoring the St. Lawrence seaway and is expected to debate the issue at its next annual convention.

Government officials who have studied the proposition say that it is equivalent to a combination of the Panama Canal and the T. V. A. in its effects on both commerce and industry—it amounts to threatening to present an economic gold mine to the people of North America. They wonder why there should be opposition from manufacturers to a proposal to make industrial power cheaper and more plentiful. Why shippers on the Great Lakes should object to a plan which will increase commercial tonnage on the Great Lakes, and why the Western railroads, which stand to benefit by increased traffic and by escape from the cramping differential freight rates, should take a common stand with the Eastern lines which fear loss of traffic.

First-Rate Controversy. In other words, here there are all the materials for a first-rate controversy, involving powerful economic interests and the principles of the St. Lawrence project. Advocates of the plan will claim that the completion of the St. Lawrence project will convert the Great Lakes into a North American Mediterranean around which we can mobilize our industrial and naval power without fear of attack. Opponents will point out that the scheme cannot be completed in time to be effective during this present war. To this argument, the advocates will reply that in 1934, when there was time to finish the job, it was blocked by a filibuster and a coalition of forces in the Senate. By Huey Long of Louisiana, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. They will quote from the President's message to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway Conference at Detroit last December:

"The opposition which defeated the St. Lawrence treaty in 1934 was a mistaken opposition based on failure to appraise the full needs of their country in the world situation which was even then developing. 'What would we not give today,' asked the President, 'who are responsible for the country's supreme defense effort, if the great St. Lawrence turbines were already in place, steadily revolving under the drive of St. Lawrence waters running to waste, producing every hour of the day 1,000,000 horsepower to supply the expansion of our essential defense industries?'"

The administration believes that two of the former objections to the project have been discounted by events. With private industry absorbing $15,000,000,000 of defense contracts, the cost of the seaway is prohibitive at $300,000,000, especially since annual savings of nearly $80,000,000 in freight rates are indicated by preliminary surveys. And with industrial growth in New York State now checked through lack of hydro-power, it is felt that New York industries will give greater support than previously to the power end of the project. But the administration anticipates a long, hard fight.

Rabbi Metz to Speak. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz will deliver the first in a series of four lectures on "The Philosophy and Basic Principles of the Jewish Religion" tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Adas Israel Hebrew Congregation, Sixth and I streets N.W.

Darlan Leaves Vichy To Renew Talk With Laval in Paris

Opposition to Return of Ex-Vice Premier Is Hinted as He Departs

BACKGROUND—

Outset of Vice Premier Laval from Vichy government in December led to straining of relations between Germany and French government. M. Laval was leading exponent of total collaboration with Germany, including presumably granting to Germans of use of French fleet and naval bases for prosecution of war against England.

By the Associated Press. VICHY, France, Feb. 6.—Naval Minister Admiral Jean Darlan left Vichy by special train today for Paris, where he expected to resume his duties as former Vice Premier Pierre Laval.

Admiral Darlan smilingly declined to discuss his errand, but appeared in a cheerful mood as he waited at the station to begin his second trip to Paris within five days.

"I cannot say anything—I leave all comments to Marshal Petain (French chief of state)," Admiral Darlan replied to questions of the press.

Admiral Darlan departed amid indications that the French government was opposed to restoring M. Laval—chief proponent of French-German collaboration—to the cabinet on his own terms.

Leahy Confers with Petain. A half hour after Admiral Darlan's departure, United States Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy had an interview with Marshal Petain for what the Embassy called "general information."

Censorship as to Admiral Darlan's movements was lifted, and the press was permitted to announce his departure, contrary to previous practice.

M. Laval's first demands, it was said, were rejected as exorbitant at a meeting yesterday of Chief of State Marshal Petain and his Ministers.

Official circles reported last night after a stormy two-hour meeting of the Council of Ministers that M. Laval might be offered both the presidency of the Council and the Interior Ministry, which would give him control of all police services in unoccupied France.

Resignation Proposal Rejected. The Council was reported to have rejected a proposal by Admiral Darlan at the outset of the meeting that all the Ministers resign and allow Marshal Petain to form an entirely new government.

Finally it was decided, informants said, that further action be withheld pending the outcome of Admiral Darlan's renewed deliberations with M. Laval in Paris.

Creation of a triumvirate of M. Laval, Gen. Charles Huntziger and Admiral Darlan to administer the government under Marshal Petain was expected in some quarters. Gen. Huntziger, it was explained, might add the ministry of youth to his present post as war minister, with Admiral Darlan becoming minister of both foreign affairs and the navy.

The French people were given their first official word on the negotiations with M. Laval last night in a communique which said merely that Admiral Darlan had reported on his conversations of Monday in Paris and the Ministers had "de-liberated on general policy."

Baudouin Heads Bank. Censors also permitted newspapers to publish belated notices of the appointment of Paul Baudouin as chairman of the Bank of France.

Widow of Grove Herbert Dies in Ohio at 79

Mrs. Laura Kissell Herbert, 79, widow of Dr. Grove Herbert, prominent Chautauque lecturer, died Tuesday night in a Findlay (Ohio) hospital after a long illness. She was the mother of Mrs. Cecil J. Wilkinson of Washington.

Dr. Herbert died last December. Mrs. Herbert had spent several winters here with her daughter. A native of Rocky County, Ohio, she was educated at Ohio Northern University.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at McComb, Ohio.

Woman 'Deported' To New York After House Disurbance

Police Escort to Train Follows Appearance in Garb of Death

Margaret Russell, who was "deported" from the District yesterday after she had donned death's garb in the House gallery and interrupted debate with an observation of her own, explained the whole thing to New York reporters today.

The young woman, who baffled reporters by giving her age as 34, although she did not appear to be out of her 20s, was escorted to Union Station by a Capitol detective late yesterday. He watched as she boarded a train for New York.

She had been arrested as she left the gallery, wearing a heavy black robe and a mask that resembled a skull. Police hustled her out for questioning, then released her on condition she would leave town.

"I would have explained in Washington," she told an Associated Press reporter in New York today, "but they put me in jail and let me go only on my promise to leave town immediately."

Represented Death. "You see, I represented death. So when the Congress members got to debating about whether Germany or Britain would win, I just slipped on my costume and shouted, 'Victory will be mine!' Get it?"

Then, she said, there was a hubbub with police and others crowding around and voices all over demanding her arrest.

The policeman told me I was awfully lucky not to have been slugged," she said.

Representative Young, Democrat, of Ohio was speaking on British aid legislation when the interruption came. After shouting "Victory is mine," the girl walked slowly toward the door from the public gallery, chanting in a high voice.

Seized by Policemen. She was seized by three Capitol policemen and taken to the office of Kenneth Romney, House sergeant at arms. After being questioned, she was removed to the Women's Bureau.

Members of the House arose in anger when she cried out. From the floor came shouts, "Arrest her," "Put her out," Detective Sgt. Carl Scamp escorted the girl to the station.

She described herself as a "pamphleteer" and at first would give her name only as "Andra." Later, it was learned that she is publisher of a neighborhood "throw-away" periodical in New York.

The periodical, "Vista," has attracted attention in the past for a number of unusual contributions which the young woman had made to it. She said she came from Denton, Tex., originally a graduate of Vassar and schools in Switzerland and France.

Death Held Suicide. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide yesterday in the death of Charles E. Berkheimer, 25, found seated in a gas-filled kitchen in the 1300 block of Hamilton street N.E. Relatives reported the young man had been despondent since the recent death of his mother.

Medical

George B. Trible, throat specialist of this city; Maj. Gen. Merritt W. Ireland, former surgeon general of the U. S. Army, and a number of persons who have had experience with group medicine.

Justice Proctor yesterday afternoon denied "without prejudice" a motion of defense council to strike large portions of the indictment returned in December, 1938, which, it was contended, were prejudicial to the defendants.

Mr. Lewin during his opening statement yesterday went to some length in describing the operations of Group Health Association's aims and purposes for providing medical care on a risk-sharing basis, principally for the low-income group. He went sharply into the restraints which he charged organized medicine launched against G. H. A. in 1937, and continued up to the time of the indictment returned in December, 1938.

The evidence will show, declared Mr. Lewin, that G. H. A. is "a worthwhile and needed experiment in the field of medical economics, a worthwhile attempt to bring about greater efficiency, and less cost, and easier burden to the patient in getting the medical job done and paid for. It was, as the evidence will show," he added, "an experiment which richly deserved, not opposition, but cooperation and assistance from so-called organized medicine, including the defendant."

Co-operation Sought, He Says. Pointing out that G. H. A. took an attitude of attempting to co-operate with the Medical Society in the beginning, the prosecutor said officials of G. H. A. had asked the society to help select personnel, would be glad to receive recommendations of doctors and "perhaps employ them."

Mr. Lewin described the establishment by the Medical Society of what he called a "white list" of applicants for the "white list" on which the Medical Society failed to list G. H. A. In July of 1937, he continued, one of the defendants, Dr. Courson Baxter Conklin, then secretary of the Medical Society, sent a letter to each member of the society including the "white list" and calling attention to the fact that the constitution of the society forbade its members from having anything whatever to do with organizations or doctors not listed thereon. On their first official working session, Dr. Conklin sent another letter to each member of the society directing their attention specifically to "an organization (meaning G. H. A.) interested in gaining medical personnel."

"This list so distributed and these letters so sent," declared the prosecutor, "constituted a direct threat that members of the District Medical Society would be disciplined, if they should attempt employment with G. H. A., or consult with any of its doctors." The "white list," he declared, really operated as a "blacklist."

Charging participation of the American Medical Association in the restraints, Mr. Lewin named one of the defendants, Dr. William W. Creighton Woodward, now of this city, former director of the Bureau of Legal Medicine and Legislation of the A. M. A., as advising that the District Medical Society could not "go along" with G. H. A. without violating the A. M. A.'s "principles of ethics."

River Plate Nations Establish 'Baby' Pan-American Union

Delegates at Montevideo Meet to Put Formal End To 2-Week Discussion

By ALLEN HADEN, Chicago Daily News Foreign Correspondent. MONTEVIDEO, Feb. 6.—In a dramatic and unexpected last-minute flurry of negotiation, the regional conference of five River Plate nations last night adopted a convention creating a regional office of economic information and studies, and today the conferees, elated by their achievements, met to call a formal end to almost two weeks of discussions.

This convention, in the view of many here, is likely to be accepted as the parley's principal accomplishment. Headquarters at Buenos Aires. Lack of concrete results had worried many delegates. While it was admitted that principles of co-operation had been reaffirmed, the feeling existed that something more substantial should emerge from the deliberations here. Too many proposals had ended as mere recommendations.

Designed as a statistical research center, the regional office will have its headquarters at Buenos Aires. Recalling the original organization of the Pan-American Union as a center of economic information, the regional office will, in effect, be a baby Pan-American Union with regional instead of continental scope. Its work will be co-ordinated with the studies of the Pan-American Union of the International Labor Office, of the Economic and Financial Committee of the Washington Inter-American Development Commission and of private organizations specializing in research, such as Chambers of Commerce.

Five to Be Represented. All the countries participating in the regional conference—Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay—will be represented in the regional office and its first work will probably be to study bases on which a regional customs union—meaning general reduction of tariffs for one another's goods—can be elaborated.

One deficiency of the conference, of course, was the fact that the delegations lacked authority to accept proposals affecting the fundamental economy of their respective nations. There was also a lack of experts qualified to speak on vital issues. Both these factors led to avoidance of many basic problems. As a result, principles on which all agreed were formulated as recommendations. This amounted to pigeonholing of proposals—perhaps indefinitely, if one remembers the fate of most recommendations at conferences.

Committees Revising Measures for Action

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 6 (AP).—Representatives of five nations prepared to wind-up the regional River Plate Conference late today with a majority apparently determined that their work be limited to the economic problems of land-locked Bolivia and Paraguay.

Final action on numerous proposals intended to facilitate world commerce of the two inland countries was to be taken at a plenary session of the conference at 3 p.m. after committees finished revising the measures.

The 12 days of discussions have been marked by a trend—sponsored principally by Argentina—away from regional pacts and toward agreements negotiated between individual nations. This trend was contrary, it was pointed out, to earlier predictions that the conference would be a stepping stone toward creating an economic, or even a political bloc, among the countries of the River Plate system.

Determination to avoid possible political complications was expressed by the delegations of Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay in their criticism of a Bolivian proposal for free transit of goods or passengers at "any time." Ostria, Gutierrez, head of the Bolivian delegation, said he was "highly satisfied with the practical results of the conference, which pave the way for other regional River Plate meetings . . ."

C. C. C. Camps in Vermont Probed by House Group

The "experimental" Civilian Conservation Corps camp for college graduates, which was opened last month near Sharon, Vt., was under quiet study by a House appropriations subcommittee today. Opening the inquiry yesterday, the subcommittee headed by Representative Tarver, Democrat, of Georgia, questioned James J. McEntee, C. C. C. director, about the project, known as Camp William James.

Some committee members criticized the project on the ground that it smacked of Germany's work camps. They pointed out in that connection that Prof. Eugene Rosenstock-Huussy of Dartmouth College, a native of Germany, was one of the advisers consulted by the college youths who initiated the project. Senator Aiken, Republican, of Vermont, whose speech recently in the Senate about the camp prompted the House group's inquiry, said at that time it was the professor's antipathy toward Hitlerian objectives which brought him to the United States.

"I hope to see the time when every boy in America, be he rich or poor, will have the opportunity to spend a full year working in our forests or on our farms," Senator Aiken said, adding that if the Camp James idea were successful, the Nation would need 1,000 like it. House committee members said yesterday they believed the C. C. C. was not in favor of the idea underlying the camp, which Senator Aiken said had President Roosevelt's approval. But the committee decided to hold further hearings later.

Bell Soon to Hit Production Stride in Airacobra Pursuiters

Thousands of Workers Being Trained for 7 Complete Assembly Lines

(Seventeenth of a series.)

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON, Star Aviation Editor.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Quantity production of the Army P-39 Airacobra pursuit airplane, after some delays due to lack of engines and the necessity of working "bugs" out of the airplane and of making necessary changes incidental to the building in of armor protection and leak-proof fuel tanks, now is getting under way.

From now on, production of these revolutionary new warplanes and the special type of Allison "E" engine to power them is expected to increase steadily, month by month, to a peak rate which will be attained probably during the coming fiscal year.

The Bell Aircraft Corp., building the Airacobras, has just completed construction of an initial contract lot of these high-performance fighter planes without armor or leak-proof tanks. The production lines now are being set up for the building of the first mass production order of about 1,600 airplanes, with armor and the new tanks. Many of the thousands of parts for these planes now are beginning to stack up in their proper places along the assembly lines and within a few days the assembly lines will be humming.

Thousands Trained for Work

At the same time, the Bell personnel training program has reached impressive proportions, with more than 5,000 graduated or completing training to man three complete production lines in the old factory in Buffalo and the four lines in the new factory at Niagara Falls Airport.

Bell also has attained a full working schedule of three shifts a day, seven days a week. Necessary maintenance of machinery and tools is accomplished during the final hour and a half of the third shift each day. Although its United States and British contracts do not provide for overtime payments, the Bell company now is paying a great deal of overtime money as its own contribution to the speeding up of the defense program.

Under provisions of the Federal Wage-Hour Act, the company is compelled also to pay wages to students going through the factory training school, although it has no way of binding them to go to work and some of them are leaving after being trained for other defense jobs. The students are being paid at the rate of 30 cents per hour, with a maximum of $15 a week while in school.

Bell, like other aircraft plants, is losing some men to the Army by operation of the Selective Service Act. No national policy has been adopted with regard to aircraft manufacturing workers; each case is decided by local draft boards on individual merits. With some of the boards length of service is apparently a determining factor and men with little service, regardless of type of work, are being called.

Mistake in Policy Charged. This, in the opinion of Bell officials, is a serious mistake. Bell is a new company and its oldest workers have no more than five years of service in present posts. A great majority have less than one year, having been taken on as a result of a tremendous expansion program during recent months.

A man with only one week of experience is regarded as of value in these troublous times, since his loss would mean not only that at least another week would be lost while a new man was given the same amount of training, but that a lag in both training and production, small in the individual case, but large in the aggregate, would result. The Bell factory today is approximately 1,500 men short of its program requirements, but there is hope of making up the full personnel complement during the first half of 1941 by operation of the factory training schools, with the assistance of Federal and State vocational training schools.

Test Pilots Being Taken.

Another serious situation facing the aircraft manufacturing industry is the ordering to active duty by the Army and Navy of factory test pilots who hold Reserve commissions in the aviation branches of the two services. Bell now has appeals pending in Washington against the ordering into service of pilots essential to its production program and it is understood that other factories face the same danger.

Aircraft production leaders have indicated a belief that there should be a realistic Federal policy covering both the drafting of aircraft workers for compulsory military training and the withdrawing of pilots from essential test-flight status in the industry.

We've put one over on the yardsticks

Here are Four New Additions to the Buick SPECIAL Line that Compact Motorcar Bigness into Handy Size

TIME was when you measured a car's ability and standing by the yardstick distance from bumper to bumper.

But not any more—not entirely.

Not since Buick made ready the four new additions to its 1941 SPECIAL series that are built for big-car travel tastes—and small-car garages!

They are cars to take the measure of almost anything on the road in the lift and life of their 115-hp. Buick FIREBALL engines.*

They are cars that doff their bonnets to no others for smart appearance, rich, comfortable interiors and thoroughgoing Buick quality.

They are cars with room for all the family, with all the little Buick luxury touches, with the unrivaled comfort of Buick's all-coil springing and steady-going roadability.

But bumper to bumper they are shorter—so they fit your garage.

Their wheelbase is 118 inches—so they park like a bicycle and fit through traffic with ridiculous ease.

They go farther on every gallon—farther, even, than other Buick models—and they've got a get-up-and-get-away-from-there lift that gets you where you're going pronto!

So you can't take their measure with a yardstick.

You've got to measure them by what they do for you—in the easier handling, the bigger thrill, the extra convenience they add.

And when you hear the prices on them—prices made lower by their new compactness—you'll find they measure up plenty BIG in the dollar-for-dollar value they put within your reach.

How about seeing them—now?

*Add Compound Carburetion at slight extra cost and horsepower steps up to 125 while gasoline mileage goes even higher.

Navy Will Turn Out 6,720 Pilots a Year By 1942, Knox Says

686 New Planes Delivered in Last Four Months, Secretary Asserts

In an informal review of the naval situation, Secretary of the Navy Knox told reporters yesterday that the Navy will be turning out 6,720 pilots a year within a year and that 686 new planes have been delivered to his department in the last four months. Two-fifths of these, he added, are combat ships, the others being for training purposes.

At the same time, Mr. Knox said that in his personal opinion the new 35,000-ton American battleship North Carolina will be "the best ship afloat" when she goes into service on April 11. A sister ship, the Washington, is scheduled to join the fleet in the early summer.

Recruiting Drive Sets Record.
Among other things the Secretary told his press conference: The United States is making as good airplanes as are made anywhere in the world.

The Navy recruiting drive set a new record of 10,655 voluntary enlistments in January; work is proceeding satisfactorily on the $4,860,000 naval air station at Argenta, Newfoundland, which already has been visited by American patrol planes; 13 reserve air training bases will be ready to handle 100 student reserve pilots each by April and three new ones will be built at Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas.

These 16 Reserve bases, the Secretary explained, will feed pilot material into the Navy's three air training bases at Pensacola, Fla.; Jacksonville, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex. Completion of the $28,000,000 Corpus Christi station by June of this year will swell the monthly output of trained flyers from the three stations to 560.

The production of 298 planes in January of this year, Mr. Knox said, was itself equal to the full production for the Navy in the fiscal year 1939.

"Several months ago," Mr. Knox said, "most manufacturers were behind schedule, in some cases as much as 30 per cent. Today they are on schedule and even ahead."

Mr. Knox singled out the Stearman aircraft division of the Boeing Co. at Wichita, Kans., and the Government-owned naval aircraft plant at Philadelphia for special mention. Stearman, he said, in the last two weeks of January produced planes at the rate of 360 a month.

The Philadelphia plant since last July has averaged better than a plane a day, the Secretary said, compared to 18 a month up until then.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susie W. Lash; a daughter, Miss Ada Lash; a son, Irving Lash of the news staff of The Star; a sister, Mrs. Belle Ryan of Washington, and a brother, Robert, of Miami, Fla.

Dove Nearly to Illustrious' Masthead, Nazi Pilot Says

Lt. Eberhard Jacob Tells of Attack on Aircraft Carrier in Radio Interview

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—First Lt. Eberhard Jacob, German pilot who dived on the British aircraft carrier Illustrious "almost to the masthead" in the epic naval-air battle last month in the Mediterranean, said last night in a broadcast interview from Berlin arranged by C. B. S. that his Stuka plane was three years old, and that dive-bombing at speeds past 400 miles per hour was "no particular strain."

Harry W. Plannery, C. B. S. Berlin correspondent, interviewed the 23-year-old veteran of campaigns in Poland, Norway, France, Belgium and Britain, who has been with the German pilots newly based in Italian Sicily to prey on British shipping.

C. B. S. said about 20 listeners in New York had objected to the broadcast by telephone on the ground that it was "discouraging" to Britain. Most of the criticism, it was said, was based on the young pilot's statement: "I'm firmly convinced that the German Luftwaffe and U-boats will conquer Britain."

Tried to Avoid Attack.
The pilot told this story:

"When we drew near these three ships (the Illustrious and two other warships escorting the British convoy January 10 near Malta) they tried to avoid an attack by constantly changing their course, while at the same time heavy fire from anti-aircraft guns of high caliber was opened on us.

"I could scarcely see the flashes from the guns aboard the airplane carrier that I had sealed orders for as my target.

"But once you start diving you don't care any more for gunfire. I dived a few seconds after the first plane and could clearly see the explosion of the bomb close to the bow of the carrier.

"I saw from where that bomb had fallen that the wind was a little stronger than had previously been estimated. I rectified my sights. I had the carrier which was just changing its course again well in my line of sight and threw my bombs from the nearest possible height.

"In these attacks we dived almost to the level of the mastheads."

British Admit 80 Killed.

The British have admitted that 80 men were killed and 20 bombing planes destroyed in one direct hit by a 1,000-pound German bomb, but said the Illustrious reached port at Malta, under own power. Secretary of the Navy Knox said yesterday in Washington the Illustrious now had arrived at Alexandria, Egypt.

The German pilot said German Stuka dive bombers were exceptionally accurate in attacking small targets, that his present craft had held up three years now, and that the terrific speeds in diving were "no particular strain on me."

When it was pointed out by the C. B. S. correspondent that German Stukas in the campaign in France were reportedly equipped with sirens in order to terrify ground troops, Lt. Jacob said:

"Our air squadron was not equipped with sirens. The pronounced noise was due purely to the high speed when diving."

Dozen German Soldiers Given Pope's Blessing

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Feb. 6.—Pope Pius chatted yesterday with a dozen German soldiers who in a party of a thousand persons were admitted to a general audience.
 The Pope, speaking in German, told his German visitors that he was happy to be able to receive and bless them.

Hearing

ated. The witness explained that what he meant was that the attitude of the United States was only one of a number of factors contributing to the war.
 When Senator Pepper began his cross-examination by asking, "When did you first go to Europe," the colonel replied:
 "In 1927," and the crowd broke into prolonged applause, recalling his dramatic flight across the Atlantic that year. When the ovation subsided, Chairman George served notice the committee "is not conducting a side-show" and threatened to clear the room if demonstrations were repeated.
 Col. McCormick testified he favored occupying British and French island possessions "by force" that were necessary to prevent Germany from using them as bases for an attack on the United States.
 After the witness had declared it "fantastic" to believe the United States could be invaded, Senator Pepper asked: "Suppose Germany should conquer Great Britain and take over British bases in this hemisphere?"

"Wouldn't Let Them Do It."
 "I wouldn't let them do it," Col. McCormick replied.
 To prevent such a step, Col. McCormick declared, he would seek first to acquire the island possessions in advance, but that if this were impossible he would occupy them "by force."

"What do you think the effect would be on Hitler?" Senator Pepper asked.
 "I couldn't tell you," Col. McCormick answered. "I am not interested in that."

Senator Pepper asked what Col. McCormick would do if "Hitler sought to take over the Azores."
 "I'd get there first," the witness answered.

"An invader could give us a lot of trouble if they had the British fleet," Senator Connally asked.
 "Senator, I've known Winston Churchill for 25 years. I don't believe he would have made that promise (about the fleet) unless he meant to keep it."

Stresses Canal Advantages.
 "Suppose Churchill is killed or captured?" Senator Connally continued. "Are you hinging our whole safety on the good faith of Churchill?"

"Certainly not," the witness answered, adding he would not concede naval danger of invasion.
 "You favor a two-ocean Navy?" asked the Senator.

"I don't think it's a military necessity," said the witness, stressing the advantage of the Panama Canal in moving the American fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific.
 Col. McCormick told the committee he would favor purchase of the European island possessions in his hemisphere as a further measure of defense.

"Suppose they would not sell?" asked Pepper.

Col. McCormick said then he would follow the example of Gen. Grant, who suggested he would take over island possessions during the dispute with Great Britain over his country's claim growing out of the building of the ship Alabama for the Confederacy.

The Germans are not going to conquer England, Col. McCormick asserted. When Senator Pepper questioned his confidence of this, the witness replied:

"Do you think that if Britain was in serious danger of invasion she would send a large motorized army into Libya?"

Col. McCormick said he is sympathetic to aid for Britain for her own defense, but does not believe it necessary unless there is to be an invasion of the continent of Europe, in which event, she would need several million men and more material. He said he is opposed to that.

When Chairman George asked Senator Glass, Democrat of Virginia if he cared to question Col. McCormick, the Virginian answered:
 "No, if things are as serene as Col. McCormick pictures them, I think Congress should pass the normal appropriations bills and go home."

The publisher accompanied his formal statement to the committee with a map of the world showing geographical invasion routes, and American defense bases.

Discussing invasion possibilities, Col. McCormick said that for an attack across the South Atlantic a German army would have to travel 4,300 miles—most of it over difficult terrain—to reach a jumping-off position at Dakar. The overwater hop to Brazil would be 1,620 miles, he asserted, and then there would be 2,000 more miles through or over equatorial jungle before the southernmost American base in British Guiana could be reached.

Furthermore, he added, Dakar as a base could easily be destroyed by a British air fleet operating from Portugal's nearby Cape Verde Islands. Britain, he said, had a treaty right to use Portuguese territory.

Says Panic Not Justified.
 As for the North Atlantic route, he presented this picture: An enemy would have to travel 850 miles from Norway to Iceland, where the Canadian garrison now in occupation would have to be overcome. Then 1,650 miles to Newfoundland, where both the United States and Canada have bases. Then 800 miles more to Canada.

"Can any one dream," he demanded, "of an enemy forcing his way through this country in face of one or two million trained American and Canadian troops?"

In the Pacific he cited the long distances, strong bases and the presence of the battle fleet.
 "Even if we did not have these overwhelming strategic advantages, this panic over possible German attack would not be justified," he commented.

Murray Criticizes Measure.
 Philip Murray, President of the C. I. O., criticized the lease-lend bill yesterday in a statement submitted to the Senate committee which constituted his first public expression on the legislation. William Green, president of the A. F. L., has endorsed the measure.

Mr. Murray said the bill appeared to empower the President to set aside the Wagner Act, the wage-hour law or any other labor legislation if he deemed it necessary. He also complained that "the present bill does not forbid convicts" and that the President, in supplying material to other countries, could adopt procedure which would "eliminate the need of such country raising its own funds from its own people" and place the entire cost on American taxpayers.

His statement said "the American Nation supports the policy of giving full aid to Great Britain."
 The Senate committee received testimony yesterday afternoon from Dr. Herbert Wright, professor of international law at Catholic University, who branded the bill "an unwarranted, unnecessary and excessive delegation of power by the Congress to the chief executive, the exercise of which might very easily involve us in war or a violation of international law, or both."

 Dr. Wright told the committee that Russia is "pursuing her consistent policy of world revolution" by encouraging the capitalist nations of Europe to war against each other until those countries sink into such a low economic, political and social condition that they will be ripe for Communism.

"The United States," he argued, "can do more for herself as well as for the rest of the world in stemming the really great menace of the rising tide of Communism by remaining aloof from the European conflagration, so that she may be able to conserve her resources and thereby be in a better position herself to withstand the onslaught of Communism after the war and assist in the rehabilitation of trade that must come after the world has returned to some sort of normalcy."

 Among the witnesses before the committee was Gerald L. K. Smith, who said he represented the "Committee of 1,000,000." He objected to the lease-lend bill on the ground that it grants too much power to the President.

and received favorable action by the House committee, but did not get to a vote. After careful consideration of this question, which means so much to the voters and unemployed people of the National Capital community and with the approval of the citizen proponents, I have today introduced in the Senate a joint resolution identical with that which Judge Sumners has already reintroduced in the House of Representatives and will not offer the form which I have for years sponsored.

"As I stated to the Senate on August 1, 1939, and again on August 13, 1940, I approved the Sumners proposal and believe that there is much greater likelihood of its receiving favorable action than the form I have been sponsoring.

Sees Objections Met.
"It is much simpler in form and overcomes objections against carrying detailed legislation into the Constitution. This amendment, if added to the Constitution, will round out in a logical way the powers of Congress over the Nation's spot of Government.

"There are two features in the amendment proposal which I am now offering that are not included in the one I have for years advocated. One of these would permit Congress to delegate to a local government of the District of Columbia any of the power of exclusive legislation over the seat of Government of which Congress might want, for the time being, to divest itself.

"The other is that Congress retains the right to amend or repeal any legislation which may be enacted under the amendment, except that such amendment or repeal could not affect the office of a Representative or Senator during the time for which he was elected.

"This is a broad enabling provision to be added to the Constitution. It contains no controversial items. All such details are left for subsequent legislation by Congress. It simply broadens the powers of Congress to do for the District of Columbia whenever or whatever in its judgment it believes should be done for this large, worthy group of fellow-Americans.

"It is a perfectly safe proposal, as the reservation of the right to amend or repeal seems to dissolve any objection which might be raised against admitting these isolated Americans to the councils of our Nation.

"I sincerely hope that the Senate Committee on the Judiciary may give early and favorable consideration to this joint resolution."

Tobey

association for various members of the Board of Trustees, key departmental employees and their friends." He said that the controller general's office, in an opinion some years ago, held that the association was illegal, and that it had no right to operate on Government property under the contract which it had signed with Federal officers.

"The present director of the association, Mr. Frank W. Hoover, who originally was secretary of the association, and who was one of the originators of the scheme to set up the association, received a salary of $9,000, plus additional funds for an automobile, and it is indicated in the report that he has withdrawn from the directors and trustees information regarding irregularities which in all conscience and good practice should have been given to them.

"This investigation from the controller general's office into the books and activities of the association was conducted and reported more than a year ago, but nothing has been done about it yet."

Unable to Get Report.
The New Hampshire Republican said he had attempted to get copies of the report from the General Accounting Office, but that a former official of the recreational association had blocked his efforts there. "To sum up," Senator Tobey said, "the findings of the controller general's office show a situation in which responsible officials of the Government have played fast and loose with funds belonging to the Government; have maneuvered to keep their untoward activities from coming to the attention of the Congress or to the attention of the authorities of the Government who should have looked into the matter and taken definite action; the alleged contract was entered into by officers of the Government who at the same time were beneficiaries of the alleged contract, they being officers of the association, which was one of the two parties to the contract."

Italian Tank Attack In Tepeleni Sector Routed, Greeks Say

Shock Troops Fled During Clash, Leaving Arms, Dispatches Report

BACKGROUND—Greeks have steadily repulsed Italians who invaded their country last fall until they took control of nearly half of Albania, taken over by Italy on Good Friday, 1939. In recent weeks Greek forces have been attempting to capture Valona, one of most important bases used by Italians on the Albanian coast, but have made slow progress.

ATHENS, Feb. 6.—An Italian attack yesterday in the Tepeleni sector of Albania, in which tanks were reported to have led the way for shock troops in armored cars, was reported today by the Greeks to have been shattered, putting the Italians again on the defensive.

Dispatches from the front said that anti-tank fire destroyed four of the armored cars and "many" tanks and that the assault troops, routed by a Greek bayonet charge, threw down hand grenades and automatic weapons as they fled.

The counter-assault was launched the moment the column halted for the motorized troops to go into action. The crews of four armored cars were taken prisoners, it was said.

The attack was made in darkness but the surprise element was lacking, the Greek dispatches said. The Italians were reported hastily retreating at some points of the front and here and there Greek advance units were so close, it was said, that they could hear their foes at work.

Valona Use Reported Given Up.—The Albanian port of Valona, once one of the busiest links in the Italian supply chain to Albania, has been so badly battered by repeated bombings that the Italians have given it up as a base port, Greeks reported today.

The Greeks quoted Italian prisoners as saying the Fascists have been forced to unload supplies at Krionero, a small town south of Valona on the Bay of Valona.

The Greek spokesman reported fresh advances by Greek soldiers in Albania, despite "very unfavorable weather conditions."

The spokesman declared that Greek warriors, wielding bayonets in hand-to-hand fighting which he described as "the most brilliant since the outbreak of the war," drove Italian defenders from a village and found intact a storehouse full of munitions and equipment.

Three days of torrential rain, he asserted, also netted 148 Italian prisoners, including four officers, and quantities of machine-guns, mortars, rifles and materials.

Fighting continued in the Tepeleni sector, he reported, with the Greeks attacking and conducting mop-up operations despite three days of torrential rains. Tepeleni is approximately 30 miles southeast of Valona.

Dispatches to the border town of Bitoli, Yugoslavia, said the Italians were rushing reinforcements by air to the defenders of Tepeleni, but that the Greeks expected its fall at any hour.

Two Italian counterattacks in the coastal sector were thrown back, the spokesman said, with the Fascists running away "in confusion, abandoning dead and wounded on the field of battle."

Weather Limits Operations.—ROME, Feb. 6 (AP).—Bad weather was reported by the Italian high command today to have limited operations on the Albanian battle-front yesterday to artillery and patrol activity.

Winant

was believed to have been delayed because the President wanted to give Harry L. Hopkins, his personal representative, time to wind up his work in London.

Mr. Hopkins went abroad as a sort of unofficial envoy to serve until an Ambassador was named.

Labor Office Director.—Since 1939 Mr. Winant has been serving as director of the International Labor Office, whose headquarters originally were in Geneva, Switzerland, but recently have been transferred to Canada.

Throughout his public life the nominee has been classified and active as a Republican. He has been chosen on several occasions to serve in various capacities for the New Deal administration. His first service of this kind was as chairman of a textile inquiry board in connection with labor troubles in that industry in 1934. In 1935 he became chairman of the Social Security Board and served in that capacity for two years.

Mr. Winant resigned the latter position to take an active part in the 1936 presidential campaign, defending the Social Security Act against widespread Republican criticism, one of the main issues of the campaign.

In 1937 he became an assistant director of the I. L. O. and assumed the directorship in 1939.

A native of New York City, he became a resident of Concord, N. H., in 1903, when he was 14 years old.

Graduate of Princeton.—A graduate of Princeton University, he entered politics when he was elected to the New Hampshire Legislature in 1917. After service in the World War, during which he attained the rank of captain, he returned to politics in 1921 as a State Senator. He became Governor in 1925, at 36 being the youngest chief executive of any State at that time. After serving three terms, he declined a fourth.

Tall and black-haired, he has a Lincolnlike appearance. In announcing the nominations, the White House did not settle speculation that a minister from this Government to Great Britain also may be named. With the appointment of Lord Halifax as British Ambassador here, the London government also appointed two ministers to Washington. In the light of that action, it has been generally believed that this Government would follow a similar procedure.

Regarding the exchange of posts between Mr. Gauss and Mr. Johnson, it was recalled that Mr. Gauss served for many years in the Chinese area, at one time being consul general at Shanghai and later counselor to the embassy in China.

Mr. Johnson, it was explained, has served through a very difficult period in China, with his transfer to Australia actually being a reward and an opportunity for him to live a more normal family life.

The shift in envoys to Panama and Uruguay marks the raising of the Uruguayan post from the diplomatic rank of a ministry to that of an ambassadorship.

War May Hinge on U. S. Ship Output, Cross Says

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 6.—Ronald H. Cross, Minister of Shipping, told the American Chamber of Commerce today that United States production of shipping provided the turning point of the World War and probably could be the same in this war.

"We can make no pretense of turning out ships to keep up with our present losses," Mr. Cross said.

Bond Averages

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Railroad bonds continued to attract moderate inquiry in today's market.

Going into the final hour bonds of small fractions to around a point were added to selected issues in the rail, utility and industrial groups.

Among the rails moving higher were New York Central 4 1/2's, Southern Railway 5's, Great Northern 4's and Illinois Central 4 1/2's.

Consolidated Edison 3 1/2's of 1948 and Commonwealth Edison convertible 3 1/2's of 1958 added fractions in the utilities sector.

Irish Free State 5's of 1960 advanced 1/2 in the foreign bond department.

United Gas Asks Delay For Integration Plan

The Securities Commission took under advisement a request by Arnold H. Hirsch, an attorney representing H. Jerome Jaspas of Philadelphia.

Hirsch said that he would urge the Commission to order separation of control of gas and electric utilities in Philadelphia in order to assure competition.

He said that the present relation between Philadelphia Gas Works Co. and U. G. I. was such as to suppress free competition.

Du Pont Estimates Taxes at More Than Million a Week

$56,700,000 Total Will Be Given in Annual Report

By the Associated Press. WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 6.—E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. will say in its forthcoming annual report that in 1940 the company's total bill for direct taxes was approximately $56,700,000, at the rate of more than a million dollars a week.

"The only operating cost items of greater magnitude were wages and salaries, about $94,800,000, and raw materials, about $88,000,000," the report will say.

Of the total direct taxes of $56,700,000, about $50,200,000 were payable to the Federal Government.

This compares with $16,000,000 in 1939, an increase of more than 200 per cent. The Federal tax on 1940 earnings was more than double the amount it would have been if the tax law had remained in effect.

An accompanying chart showed that taxes paid by the company since 1925, as per cent of earnings available for dividends, increased from 4.5 in 1925 to 1940.

Even those figures, the report will say, "substantially understate the company's total tax burden: First, because they include no allowance for taxes not directly assessed against the company yet indicated by the Federal Government."

Second, because they exclude all taxes paid by subsidiaries not wholly owned, and also the taxes paid by General Motors Corp. attributable to your company's ownership of approximately 23 per cent of the common stock of that company."

Aviation Corp. Registers 1,445,555 New Shares

Emanuel & Co. and Lehman Bros. both of New York, will be the principal underwriters for the stock offering.

The plan for selling the stock was made public some weeks ago in connection with a program under which Aviation & Transportation Corp. will be dissolved after transferring its assets to the Aviation Corp.

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Wheat price gains of almost a cent a bushel, at one stage today faded rapidly after completion of buying, attributed principally to mills and dealers covering previous "short" sales. Closing prices were very little changed compared with yesterday.

Pit brokers said some of the buying may have been associated with Army flour buying, reports of Oriental activity in the export market, and other agricultural commodities may be included under terms of the pending British aid bill.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1/4 lower compared with yesterday. May, 82 1/2; July, 79 1/2; corn, 1 1/2; down 1/4; soybeans, 10 1/2; 6 1/2; soy unchanged to 1/4 lower.

Bituminous Output Gains During Week

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended February 1 as approximately 10,150,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week, 1940, 10,190,000 tons; 1939, 10,190,000 tons.

The report of the Bituminous Coal Division of the Department of the Interior shows production of 9,655,000 tons for the week ended January 18, 1940, over the week ended January 25, 1939.

Production this year, through February 1, 44,926,000 tons (subject to revision); corresponding period 1940, 43,775,000 tons; decrease 9 per cent.

'Morale Unit' Maps Busy Programs for 260th Coast Artillery

Basket Ball League Being Formed; Varied Outdoor Activities Planned

Special Dispatch to The Star.
 FORT BLISS, Tex., Feb. 6.—The 260th Coast Artillery, anti-aircraft regiment of Washington, D. C., now firmly established at its training base, has set up a special "morale unit" charged with keeping the men busy with organized "extra-curricular" activities.
 Co-ordinator of the morale division is the regimental chaplain, Lt. Col. Arlington A. McCallum. Directors of each unit section, as approved by Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding officer of the regiment, are Lt. James W. Hill, morale officer; Lt. David E. Osborne, athletic director; Lt. Kenneth G. Texter, dramatic and entertainment officer, and Lt. Charles A. Kenny, public relations officer.
 Outdoor Program Developed.
 Lt. Hill, who in civilian life is a special agent of the F. B. I., has completed arrangements during the two weeks he has been here for officers and enlisted men to obtain instruction in horseback riding, aviation, mountain climbing and numerous other outdoor activities which will occupy the attention of the personnel of the regiment during its year of military training. Horses have been obtained from a large ranch nearby which makes a specialty of horseback riding instruction. The lofty mountains that act as a backdrop for the anti-aircraft cantonment here afford an excellent site for mountain climbing, while not far away a privately operated flying school has more than 50 planes for instruction, dual and solo.
 Lt. Osborne, former George Washington University basketball star, has launched a regimental basketball league of 12 teams which will inaugurate play February 10. The round-robin loop will be completed the latter part of March, with the champion scheduled to play the Fort Bliss League winner. The games will be played at the Army Y. M. C. A., located in the business section of El Paso. As the 260th Regiment is quartered approximately 7 miles from the center of town, arrangements have been completed to transport the contesting teams to the "Y" on the nights of scheduled games. For the next few days the teams will hold practice scrimmages in order to select the best players of each outfit.

 Teams entered, with their respective managers, are Headquarters Battery, Pvt. James E. Mills; Medical Detachment and Headquarters Battery, 2d Battalion (combined), Pvt. Arthur E. Farquhar and Sgt. Linton L. Moody; Band, Sgt. David L. Greenspan; Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, Pvt. Harry Kai-avittinos; Battery A, Sgt. George Trupp; Battery B, Corp. Ufford B. Smith; Battery C, Sgt. Willard E. Oliver; Battery D, Sgt. Edgar V. Saugstad; Battery E, Sgt. Richard W. Harvey; Battery F, Sgt. George G. Sitold; Battery G, Sgt. Kenneth W. Russell; Battery H, Corp. Leonard M. Nevius.

 Handball, swimming, fencing, boxing, football, hardball, wrestling, tennis and track are other sports that will be organized as soon as Lt. Osborne has completed plans for the basketball league.

Talent to Broadcast.
 Lt. Texter, a claims adjuster in one of the Government agencies, will produce his first program as dramatics and entertainment director February 10, when a local radio station will stage a program featuring the talent of the 260th Regiment. It is expected that the band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Joseph Berst, will be a principal feature. Arrangements have been completed whereby a transcription will be made of this program and forwarded to Washington for broadcasting over a District radio station in the near future.

 On February 28 the National Broadcasting Co. will originate a broadcast from Fort Bliss using talent chosen exclusively from the military personnel. It is expected that the radio program planned by Lt. Texter for next Monday night will uncover sufficient talent as to earn a spot on the network. Final tryouts will be held February 24.
Would Honor Unknown
 Representative Faddis, Democrat, of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill for the posthumous award of the Purple Heart military decoration on the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

Scientists Told Of 100 Defense Research Jobs

Patent Protection Is Main Problem, Educators Hear

One hundred scientific research projects already are under way in an effort to improve this country's defense strength.

He addressed the National Conference of Defense Committees of Colleges and Universities, attended by 500 educators from 41 States and the District.

Mr. Compton told the conference, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, that the main problem in the contract for research projects has been obtaining satisfactory patent protection.

Mr. Compton told the conference, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, that the main problem in the contract for research projects has been obtaining satisfactory patent protection.

Each expert investigated.

In early stages of the research work which began shortly after Mr. Compton's committee was formed last summer, he said, there was some difficulty getting prompt investigations of experts selected to do the work.

The presiding officer, Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins University, admonished the educators to take a firm stand that other phases of the program shall not be neglected in the provision of young men for military training.

McNutt His Money Optimism. Asserting that the amount of higher learning is much better prepared to aid on national defense than they were during the first World War, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Commissioner of Education, told the conference that nearly 400,000 young persons have been trained in the Nation's colleges and schools in the last nine months.

Other speakers during the morning were Frederick Osborn, chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on Selective Service and the War Department Committee on Education, Recreation and Community Service; Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, executive officer of the National Selective Service System, and Francis J. Brown, executive secretary of the conference's Subcommittee on Military Affairs.

Gen. Hershey told the conference that "there must be, for the good of the country and for the good of the colleges, large representation in the defense forces at all times, and that short cuts in education and intensification of training may be required. He said that every care must be exercised to prevent a condition in which the personnel of colleges would appear to the general public as a group which had special privileges.

The afternoon was devoted to a number of sectional meetings on special defense problems. The first session is to conclude tonight with a general session to be addressed by John D. Biggers, director of production of the Office of Production Management.

Theft of Papers Stored by Roads Office Probed

Officials of the Public Roads Administration reported today that members of their staff were investigating the theft of papers of the department from storage quarters at 1345 E street N.W.

Someone entered the quarters early yesterday, they said, by forcing a door of a third-story room from the roof of an adjoining building.

The officials also reported that the investigation was proceeding as rapidly as possible and that, so far, they had been able to find nothing of value among the missing papers. Thousands of pictures of American highways and photographic copies of road plans were stored in the quarters, it was learned. The upper three stories of the four-story building are occupied by the Public Roads Administration.

Express Bus Decision Delayed as Citizens Ask Time for Rebuttal

North Sixteenth Street Hearing Brings Out Opposition to Route

A delay of a week or two is expected before the Public Utilities Commission can complete the hearing and render a decision on the petition of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens' Association for a rush-hour express bus service for the north Sixteenth street area.

Closing of the case was postponed indefinitely yesterday when the petitioners sought time to answer arguments and figures offered by the Capital Transit Co. that the express service should not be ordered.

Other Citizens Oppose Route. The North Sixteenth street case was complicated at yesterday's second-day hearing when spokesmen for the Manoir Park Citizens' Association and the Citizens' Association of Takoma, D. C., strenuously opposed the request of the neighborhood group if it meant that the proposed express buses would be routed down Thirteenth street, as requested.

W. C. Magathan, president of the Takoma group, referred to the 10-cent fare on express buses. He said that if the fare were 10 cents, it would be a hardship on the poor. He also mentioned the fact that the proposed express buses would be routed down Thirteenth street, as requested.

See 10-Cent Fare Wedge. The two argued also that the company was attempting to "build up" higher fares on express bus lines. Various witnesses for the North Sixteenth street area had agreed they would be willing to pay 10-cent cash fares if the commission found express bus service costs more to operate.

There was reference also to the petition of the Capital Transit Co. for a 10-cent cash fare for the Takoma express bus service in an argument that this service now costs more than it produces, and Mr. Corbin and Mr. Magathan feared the company might seek a 10-cent cash fare for all express services.

Deane J. Locke, transit company staff engineer on schedules and traffic, introduced a variety of statistical exhibits intended to show that a 10-cent cash fare should be granted if the North Sixteenth street express buses were ordered; that Upper Sixteenth street now is receiving "adequate service"; that residents of the area are not using "fully" the bus service now provided.

Mr. Locke argued that if the company had to place one new bus in service on the line, to provide two rush hour trips a day, the company would have to charge 151 cents per trip in order to meet the costs.

Rate Cut Applied To February Readings

Final orders for a $338,000 reduction in consumer rates of the Potomac Electric Power Co., including an average cut of about 5 cents a month in the bill of the householder on schedule "A," were issued late yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The new rates, published a few days ago when agreement on principles was reached between the company and the commission, will be effective on meter readings after February 1.

The commission included in its order reference to a new formula agreed upon as to the accounting for receipts and expenses of the company for the January "lag" month period in annual adjustment of the company's rates under its sliding scale plan.

Deficiency Item Of Million Asked For Six Schools

Board Sees Need Of Serving Benning And Anacostia Area

A $1,000,000 program for six new school buildings in the Benning-Anacostia area to meet expected demands from a mushroom growth of housing units by next fall will be forwarded to the Commissioners within a day or so for inclusion in the first deficiency bill to be sent to Congress.

The program was approved by the Board of Education yesterday on recommendation of its Finance Committee, which recently toured the rapidly growing area. A recent survey by school officials revealed some 4,000 housing units are under construction by both Federal and private builders and most of them will be ready by next fall.

Two of the items sought are included in the 1942 appropriations bill now before Congress, but because of the urgent need for an early start to be ready by next fall, board members asked that they be placed in the deficiency bill instead. Budget Bureau Must Approve.

To be included in the bill the program must be approved by both the Commissioners and the Budget Bureau. The requested program calls for: 1. Funds for a site adjacent to the Benning School and construction of an eight-room addition with assembly hall-gymnasium, $230,000.

2. An 8-room addition with assembly hall-gymnasium to the Rangle Highlands School, $230,000.

3. Purchase of a site and construction of an eight-room extension school in the vicinity of Nichols avenue and Atlantic street S.E., $180,000.

4. Purchase of a site and construction of an eight-room school in the vicinity of Pennsylvania avenue and Alabama avenue S.E., $180,000. The site is carried in the 1932 estimates.

5. Purchase of a site and construction of an eight-room elementary school in the vicinity of Minnesota avenue and Ely place S.E. Both items are carried in the 1942 estimates. Cost, $180,000.

6. Purchase of a site and construction of an eight-room extension school in the vicinity of Fourth street and Alabama avenue. Site costs not included.

All the schools would be elementary schools and the figures quoted do not include the amount for the sites. This land purchase item being fixed by the Engineer Commissioner, Supt. Frank W. Ballou, declared, and are confidential.

Howard D. Woodson, colored civic leader, urged the Finance Committee to include funds for a $400,000 colored junior high school at Fort-ninth street and Washington place. He also urged the Board of Education to relieve the load on Brown Junior High School, which is now operating on a double shift because of its 1,460 pupils.

In addition to this million-dollar program the School Board also served notice on the Commissioners that an additional program of emergency needs in the colored schools would follow soon. The members referred to the Finance Committee a report from First Assistant Supt. Garnet C. Wilkinson recommending funds for two construction projects in Northeast and Southeast. One is for a site and construction of an eight-room extension elementary school with assembly hall gymnasium in the vicinity of Fort-ninth and Hayes streets N.E., and the other for a site and construction of an eight-room addition with assembly hall gymnasium to the Van Ness School. The Van Ness, formerly used by white pupils, yesterday was transferred to the colored divisions.

Housing Projects Cited.

These schools are needed, Dr. Wilkinson's report said, to meet demands next year for 600 new housing units for colored in the area. An effort was made during the Finance Committee meeting which preceded the board session to include in the request for deficiency appropriation bill funds for some 100 new teachers for the colored schools. The committee was told there is a mathematics class in a colored junior high school where the teacher has 67 pupils.

The election was held in the club-rooms in The Star Building.

Mrs. Ruediger Named Supervising Principal Of Division Seven

Miss Katherine Doonan And Miss M. M. Short Moved Up In Vacancies

Mrs. I. T. Ruediger, acting supervising principal of the third division in the public elementary schools, yesterday was named by the Board of Education to be supervising principal of division seven. She fills a vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss E. A. Hummer.

Succeeding Mrs. Ruediger as acting supervising principal and principal of the H. D. Cooke School will be Miss Katherine Doonan, at present principal of the Health-West School. The vacancy created at the Health-West will be filled by the transfer of Miss M. M. Short from the Lenox-Van Ness. Dissolution of the Lenox-Van Ness combination was ordered and the Van Ness was transferred to the colored schools.

Graduate of G. W. U. Mrs. Ruediger is a graduate of George Washington University and her teaching experience has been exclusively in the local schools. In 1934 she became teaching principal of the Truesdell School, from which she was promoted to the administrative principalship of the Edmonds-Kingsman-Murray school combination and later the H. D. Cooke. At the time of her appointment to succeed Miss Hummer she was acting co-ordinator of recreation in place of Lewis R. Barrett, who resigned effective February 15.

Supt. Frank W. Ballou reported on a proposed bill to unify recreation for the District. He recommended that the bill be studied by the Legislation Committee, taking into consideration other methods of unification. He indicated he proposed to suggest amendments later.

Proposes Board of Nine. The board of nine, consisting of representatives of the schools, the Commissioners, the National Capital Parks, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and five citizens.

He cited one hospital "which two years ago established a syphilitic clinic with a prominent group of men as advisers, not one of whom has looked inside the clinic." Hospital superintendents, he said, "seem to maintain the tradition that they do not care to treat venereal diseases, at least until they have reached distressing proportions."

Would Expand Health Department. Dr. Hazen also blamed insufficient funds and the reduction of budgets by the Commissioners for the District's venereal disease problem. He said that additional Health Department physicians and clerical help are needed, he added.

To improve the program, Dr. Hazen made the following proposals: The collection of blood samples by the Health Department from several convenient centers. Establishment of an enlarged social service staff for the tracing of lapsed infectious cases. Building up of a corps of physicians who shall care to treat venereal diseases, and who can help out any clinic staff on short notice.

The establishment of early treatment centers as a joint project of the Army, Navy, U. S. Public Health Service, local Health Department and the Social Hygiene Society. Dr. Hazen added that a technician is "urgently needed" at the Lorton (Va.) reformatory.

Miss Mary Craig McGeachy, representative of the Ministry of Economic Warfare, British Embassy, told the group that included prominent Government and private social workers and representatives of the American Red Cross, of the work English women are doing in their country's war effort.

The fourth speaker on the program was Mrs. Florence Kerr, assistant commissioner of the Work Projects Administration, who stressed that military defense must go hand in hand with social defense.

30 More Modern Streetcars Planned by Transit Company

A request that it be permitted to borrow $255,000 from local banks to finance the purchase of 30 more streetcars of the President's Commission type was filed with the Public Utilities Commission today by the Capital Transit Co. Purchase of the 30 additional modern cars would bring to 252 the total of streamlined cars and the P. C. C. cars, since merger of the old streetcar companies. The cost of the number was placed at about $42,669,000. Transit experts said the new equipment would provide sufficient cars to operate the off-peak schedules for all lines in the city, with the exception of the Rosslyn-Benning line, which is to retain two-man cars in service so as to provide work for men who cannot qualify for operation of the new cars.

Details of the financing plan will be filed with the commission for approval as soon as they have been completed. Some years ago, at the instance of the commission, the company adopted the policy of borrowing funds from Washington banks to finance purchase of needed modern rolling stock, the loans being paid off over a period of years. The transit company now has 661 streetcars assigned to operating service. There are some additional cars not being used.

Larger Vice Squad To Protect Health Of Service Men Urged

Washington police lack the personnel to combat effectively growing prostitution as a result of increased numbers of enlisted men in Army camps in the vicinity of the city, Ray H. Everett, executive director of the District Social Hygiene Society, declared yesterday.

While police have done a "thoroughly good job," he said, the change conditions require additional men on the vice squad. He criticized "unsympathetic judges" who throw prostitution cases out of court because "what they consider insufficient evidence."

Mr. Everett's remarks were addressed to a large gathering at the Y. W. C. A. Building, where National Social Hygiene Day was being observed. More than 5,000 communities throughout the country held similar observances yesterday.

Cites Diseased Manpower. There is little organized prostitution here, but it should not be overlooked that 25,000 service men are stationed near Washington, Mr. Everett declared. He claimed that 35,000 cases of venereal disease have been found among men in the Nation already examined under the Selective Service Act.

Local hospital superintendents and consultants were asked to make a study of the situation that has prevailed. Some of those who have been apprehended were boys and some men, but I am not advised as to the disposition made of these cases."

In December, George H. Kidwell, chief field examiner of the auditor's office, reported that the meters are producing this year approximately $5,000 less than last year, and that thieves have stolen $1,000 from the boxes.

Officials reported that 450 cases of meter box breaking since last July 1, had been found. Of the original 309 meters put in service, only 250 were still in use last December. During the Christmas season thieves were rifling the boxes at the rate of 30 a week.

Wife of Lt. Col. Unmacht Dies at Walter Reed

The Unmacht home was at 135 Glenbrook road, Bethesda, Md. Mrs. Unmacht was a native of Columbus, Ohio, and first came to Washington in 1921 with her husband. Col. Unmacht's tours of duty brought them here in 1925 and again last year.

Active in the Sojourners' Club and the Red Cross, Mrs. Unmacht received a Red Cross medal for her work during the last war. Surviving, in addition to her husband, are a son, Lt. George P. Unmacht, U. S. N., now on sea duty, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Temple of Springfield, Mo.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the Fort Myer Chapel and burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery. Honorary pallbearers will be Lt. Col. Edwin S. Bettelheim, Jr.; Lt. Col. Dirksen Raps Police, Charges Looting Of Parking Meters

Mr. Dirksen had learned that of the 310 parking meters which have been installed in the District, only 156 are in operation and 154 are out of commission and in a state of being repaired.

"Inquiry has shown that both men and boys in the District have been breaking up these parking meters by means of hammers and cold-chisels and rifling them of the money deposited by the people who park their cars," said Mr. Dirksen.

"In the last six days 59 meters have been destroyed or laid up until repair parts can be obtained."

As a result proceeds ordinarily averaging $700 or more per week have dropped to $337 a week.

"This is an unheard of situation and is a definite reflection on the police department and on the policing of parking meters by both the Police Department and the public," Mr. Dirksen said. "I cannot recall a single instance in the case of municipalities where parking meters are in operation where such a situation has prevailed. Some of those who have been apprehended were boys and some men, but I am not advised as to the disposition made of these cases."

Senate D. C. Group Discusses Sabotage, Defense Unit, Traffic

Meeting Starts Promptly First Time in Memory Of Any Present

Legislation to create a home defense unit, to tighten the guard against sabotage in the District, and plans for a long-range survey of local traffic conditions were discussed this morning at a meeting of the Senate District Committee.

The meeting, first held under the chairmanship of Senator Reynolds, Democrat, of North Carolina, started sharply at 10 o'clock—the first time within the memory of any of the Senators present that the committee got under way on schedule. Chairman Reynolds informed committee members that he had appointed Senator Burton, Republican, of Ohio, who was recently appointed to head the Senate Traffic Subcommittee.

The small District Committee room in the old House Office Building where the meeting was held, was jammed with spectators. Many were forced to stand. Representative Henshaw, Democrat, of California, an unexpected witness, described a 6-mile parkway in Los Angeles, where there are no intersections and the speed limit is 45 miles per hour, and where motorists can drive the entire distance in eight and one-half minutes in comparative safety. He said he hoped that something similar would be started in Washington.

Chairman Schulte next called Judge Nielson and asked him for suggestions to stop what he described as "wholesale slaughter" on the streets.

Far-Sighted Program Urged. Judge Nielson proposed that everybody in Washington concerned with traffic safety "put shoulders to the wheel" and work for the adoption of a far-sighted safety program.

He said he served as judge in the Traffic Court the last 16 days in January and in that time had tried 519 cases, which netted $6,700 fines. He asked whether the District judges could drive the entire distance in eight and one-half minutes in comparative safety. He said he hoped that something similar would be started in Washington.

Chairman Schulte next called Judge Nielson and asked him for suggestions to stop what he described as "wholesale slaughter" on the streets.

Schedule of Fines. Representative Schulte wanted to know what Judge Nielson fined drivers convicted of speeding. The judge cited a schedule ranging from $5 for driving 35 miles an hour to $25 for exceeding 50 miles an hour—the maximum penalty. Judge Nielson declared he believed the maximum penalty in January was $200.

Judge Nielson explained that on the 16 days in January he sat on the Traffic Court bench he tried six cases in which the defendants were charged with driving while drunk. He mentioned, incidentally, that in many of these cases accidents had occurred.

Representative Schulte inquired whether the corporation counsel or his assistants should be allowed to change a driving-while-drunk charge to a lesser charge. "That's his prerogative," Judge Nielson replied.

Uniform Penalties Favored. Mr. Schulte asked Judge Nielson if he thought a uniform scale of penalties would aid in the disposition of traffic cases. "I see no reason why the judges cannot adopt a scale of uniform penalties," he declared. "It would create much more respect for the law."

Representative Schulte also asked Judge Nielson whether he favored a "single large scale" of traffic cases. The four Police Court judges now rotate on the Traffic Court bench. Judge Nielson explained that the "most serious" cases—driving while drunk and reckless driving—now go to the judge, and that the Traffic Court judge handles only "minor cases."

Nielson Calls Speeding Chief Traffic Hazard

House Subcommittee Gets Many Plans To Reduce Toll

Speed drivers—motorists who are in a hurry "get no plan" are the chief contributors to Washington's traffic accident fatality list, Police Court Judge George D. Nielson told a special meeting of the Streets and Traffic Subcommittee of the House District Committee headed by Representative Schulte, Democrat, of Indiana, last night.

Judge Nielson was one of the group of District officials who told the subcommittee what is wrong with traffic conditions here and suggested more than a score of plans for improvement.

For nearly three hours the subcommittee listened to the Police Court judges and other municipal officials outline a varied program which ranged from stiffer penalties of traffic violators to an intensive educational program that would encourage motorists to have greater respect for the law.

Observers Attend Meeting. Sitting with the subcommittee as "observers" were Commissioner John Russell Young and Chairman Reynolds of the Senate District Committee. Representative Schulte, of Ohio, who was recently appointed to head the Senate Traffic Subcommittee.

A resident of Washington for the last 75 years, Mrs. Stout played a prominent part in local D. A. R. circles, serving as organizing regent for the Mary Desha Chapter and later as regent and historian for the Patriots' Memorial Chapter.

Mrs. Stout was born in Westchester, Pa., and as a child lived at Fort Monroe, Va., during the Civil War. Her father was Dr. John Paul Jefferis, an Army medical officer.

Her husband, the late Orrin B. Stout, served in the Army for 42 years as a paymaster. He died in 1896.

Surviving Mrs. Stout are a daughter, Miss Ellen E. Stout of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. E. D. Easton of Hackensack, N. J., and formerly of Washington, D. C.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at Hines' funeral home, Fourteenth and Harvard streets N.W. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Alfalfa Club's Coachman, Former Slave, Dead at 96

"Uncle Billy" Rollins, former slave who for years was the official coachman of celebrities at the annual "crop mowing" party of the Alfalfa Club, is dead.

Passing of the colored man, who said he was 96 years old, was revealed last night by former Representative Joseph H. Himes, on whose estate near Frederick, Md., "Uncle Billy" became known to the Nation's leading statesmen.

As club coachman, "Uncle Billy" in frock coat and top hat, drove an ancient phaeton that headed the procession each year on the Himes estate, scene of the crop-mowing party. Former Vice President Garner and Senator Pat Harrison were among the ex-slave's many acquaintances.

Death came as a result of injuries received in a recent automobile accident.

Minerals on Display At Metallurgists' Banquet

The District of Columbia section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers began at home last night in its drive to have the organization's importance to national defense recognized.

At its banquet at the Columbia Country Club, speakers gave way to displays of minerals and metals.

More than 150 members and guests, including a number of persons from its women's auxiliary, sat down to a dinner around 18 tables, each decorated to represent a type of durable mineral. Centerpieces were made of such items as manganese, asbestos and coal, and favors were of the same material.

This same theme was carried out in the menu, with celery, for instance, representing mica, staghornites and olives green collets.

An illuminated, revolving hemisphere was displayed after the banquet to indicate the locations of the various minerals included on the tables.

Objections Raised To Connecticut Ave. Apartment Project

Zoning Commission Told Building Would Shut Off Light and Air

Proposed construction of a $500,000 apartment house on the south side of Legation street and on the west side of Connecticut avenue N.W., today provoked a debate before the Zoning Commission. The hearing was called to consider 18 changes in property classifications and several amendments to the zoning regulations.

Petition for the change of zoning on the Legation street site from residential "A" restricted to residential, 60-foot "C" area, was filed for Andrew D. Torre, who said he planned to erect an eight-story building to provide accommodations for 110 families.

Opposition was voiced by C. Murray Bernhardt, who filed a petition signed by more than a dozen nearby residents. He claimed the building would reduce light and air and argued that an exception would have to be granted from normal zoning rules to permit the apartment.

Height Limit Pleas Received.

The commission also had before it requests for raising the height limit from 90 to 110 feet for property on the east side of St. James street N.W. from 10 to 11 streets, where the Statler Hotel interests have planned to erect a large hotel. Some of the property in the site now has the 110-foot limit, which permits a building with setbacks to be carried to 130 feet.

A similar proposal was denied recently by the Board of Zoning Adjustment on the grounds that it involved a change in zoning, which can be approved only by the Zoning Commission.

One of the amendments on the schedule would set up a new zoning classification, known as the "community unit plan," to govern the use and development of large tracts for residential purposes and accessory uses. It was offered some time ago by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission at a meeting permitting, with some modifications, the proposed $15,000,000 "Crystal City" development planned on the Dean tract at Connecticut and Florida avenues N.W.

Nolan Favors Delay.

The Zoning Commission, however, has rejected a plea from the promoters of this project for increased height limits and commercial frontage on Connecticut avenue. John Nolan, jr., of the Planning Commission staff, said he would suggest that the commission delay action on the proposed zoning Commission amendment to permit perfection of its wording and scope, since speedy action apparently was not now necessary.

Another proposed amendment before the commission would set up a definition for lodging and rooming houses and for boarding houses.

Capt. James E. Bobo of No. 13 precinct said today he probably will apply for retirement either April 1 or May 1.

The inspector denied rumors he expected to retire immediately from the force. "I hope to hang on for a couple of years at least," he said.

Miss Genevieve Garner To Wed; Speaker's Niece Engaged to Texan

Miss Natalie Bayard Merrill, Niece of Mrs. Peter G. Gerry, Betrothed to Mr. Henry Howard

By MARGARET HART, Society Editor.

In our most recent letter from Mrs. John Nance Garner, we find news that will be of interest to the many Washington friends of the former Vice President and his popular wife. Their only grandchild, Miss Genevieve Garner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tully C. Garner of Amarillo, Tex., is to be married February 24. The young man is Mr. John Currie, Jr., also a native of the Lone Star State.

The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents and the bride will be given in marriage by her father.

Uncle of Bride-Elect To Officiate at Wedding.

The pretty bride-elect spent the past week end with her grandparents at their home in Uvalde, which is more than 500 miles from Amarillo. Mr. and Mrs. Garner, of course, will be at their granddaughter's wedding, for, according to Mrs. Garner, "Genevieve says she won't feel properly married unless her "Paw-Paw," as she affectionately calls her grandfather, is there."

Another relative, whose presence the bride-elect is particularly sentimental about, is her uncle, the Right Rev. Goodrich Fenner, bishop of Kansas. He officiated at the baptism of his niece and his first official act after his consecration as bishop was to confirm her. He is to officiate at the wedding.

Made Many Friends While in School Here.

Miss Garner is a graduate of Arlington Hall, and while attending the school spent many week ends with her grandparents at their home at the Washington Hotel. She has a wide circle of friends here, and although she turned her back on a formal debut she attended many festivities for the younger set. In explaining her dislike of coming-out parties, while a senior at Arlington Hall, she said: "Nobody makes debut back home. It just seems like a lot of fuss." Miss Garner was selected as "Queen Shenandoah" in 1939 and presided over the Virginia Apple Blossom Festival. She is a skilled horsewoman and a lover of the outdoors.

Miss Virginia Rayburn Plans Spring Wedding.

Another wedding of note in Texas will be that of Miss Virginia Rayburn, niece of the Speaker's Festival House, Representative Sam Rayburn. The speaker and his sister, Miss Lucinda Rayburn, had letters yesterday from their niece telling of her plans to marry Mr. Thomas Bolton of Dallas in the spring. Miss Rayburn visited her distinguished uncle last month, and returned to Washington for the inaugural festivities and returned to her Texas home a week ago. Miss Rayburn is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rayburn of Dallas.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Niece Selects Wedding Date.

Washington also will be interested in an early spring wedding which will take place in Boston April 12. Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, niece and namesake of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, will be married on Easter eve to Mr. Edward Procter Elliott, son of Mrs. Arthur Spencer Elliott, of Briarley, Yorkshire, England, and the late Mr. Elliott.

Miss Roosevelt is the daughter of Mr. G. Hall Roosevelt, brother of the President's wife, and Mrs. John Cutter of Dedham, Mass. She made her debut at the White House when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a dance for her at Christmas, 1938.

The ceremony will be performed in St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Dedham, the Rev. Thomas Huntington Chappell officiating at 4 o'clock. A reception will follow in the Dedham Country and Polo Club.

Mr. Elliott was graduated from the Liverpool University, where he was awarded a fellowship to carry out research in architectural design under Eliel Saarinen at Cranbrook Academy of Art. His fiancée was graduated from the Winsor School and studied art at the Cranbrook Academy.

Mrs. Laura Field Cheatham Engaged to Dr. Huntington.

The announcement today by Mrs. James Gaven Field of the engagement of her daughter, Mrs. Laura Katherine Field Cheatham, to Dr. Camp Stanley Huntington of Washington attracts the attention of members of old residential circles as well as the service set.

Mrs. Cheatham is the daughter of the late Capt. Field, Medical Corps, U. S. N., and the granddaughter of the late Gen. James Gaven Field, attorney general of Virginia. She attended Miss Madeira's School and was graduated from Holton-Arms Junior College. She made her debut several years ago.

Dr. Huntington, son of Mrs. Stanley Huntington of this city and Dr. William Henry Huntington of Portland, Oreg., is a nephew of the late Dr. Arthur Camp Stanley. Dr. Huntington is a graduate of the MISS GENEVIEVE GARNER, The granddaughter of former Vice President and Mrs. John Nance Garner, will be married February 24 to Mr. John Currie, Jr. The wedding will take place in Amarillo, Tex., where the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tully C. Garner live, and her grandparents will be present.

Weather Cuts Short Nazi Raid and Bars British Air Activity

Large Number of Areas Visited by Germans Before Attack Ends

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 6.—Bad weather conditions which caused German bombers to wind up their nocturnal raids on Britain early last night also prevented major night attacks on Germany by the R. A. F., reliable sources reported today.

Although the raids on Britain were described officially as "on a small scale," the Nazi raiders were said to have visited a fairly large number of districts before the weather sent them home.

Comparatively few bombs were said to have been dropped, however. Some fire-bombs struck a London hotel, which burst into flames, but the blaze was brought under control quickly without casualties.

A number of houses were reported demolished on the outskirts of the capital and some casualties were said to have resulted because many persons had not gone to shelters.

The air ministry announced that British plane losses in raids against German and German-occupied territories yesterday had been raised to seven.

"Full reports of yesterday's R. A. F. operations show that two fighters were lost with their pilots in addition to those already announced, making a total of seven lost during the day," a communique said.

Germans Report Planes Sank British Vessel

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP).—German warplanes sank one 3,000-ton merchant vessel and damaged two others in attacks on British sea lanes yesterday, the Nazi high command reported today.

Two of the ships—including the one sunk—were reported attacked off the mouth of the Thames. The other was bombed about 280 miles west of Ireland, "incapacitated and stopped motionless," a communique declared.

The Nazi air force directed its overnight attacks, the high command said, on "war vital objectives" in Southeast England, starting "numerous" fires in harbor facilities of one coastal town.

British plane losses in the past two days were estimated by the high command at 21—including 17 reported shot down in a daylight attack yesterday on German-occupied territory along the Channel, which was said to have "collapsed under spontaneous defense."

Another British plane was reported shot down near Brest, making total British losses of 18, against acknowledged German losses of 3 aircraft.

Col. Oesau, commander of a Nazi pursuit squadron, was said to have scored his 40th air victory yesterday.

The high command said no British planes penetrated German or German-occupied territory in the night. Informed sources previously were quoted as saying British planes attempted to attack the German-occupied Channel coast in the vicinity of Ypres and Nieuport, but did little material damage.

Mrs. Breckinridge Will Be Honored At Tea Tomorrow

Mrs. Lawrence Groner will entertain the members of the Washington Committee of the Frontier Nursing Service at tea tomorrow at her home, in honor of Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, founder and director of the organization. Prior to the tea Mrs. Breckinridge will make a report to the committee on the work of the organization last year.

Each year Mrs. Breckinridge leaves the Kentucky mountains, where her work is centered, to lecture throughout the country. Last month she spoke in four cities and held numerous meetings.

Mrs. Breckinridge's work is national in scope, for while her field is only in the mountains of eastern Kentucky, nurses under her training and education, have been sent to Mexico, Alaska, California and Puerto Rico.

Mrs. Groner, who is chairman of the committee, has asked her three vice-chairmen, Princess Boncompagni, Mrs. Richard B. Wigglesworth and Mrs. John Washington Davidge, to assist her.

Dow Loses Fight On Enforcement Of N. L. R. B. Order

20 Chemical Company Employees to Receive $100,000 in Back Pay

By the Associated Press. CINCINNATI, Feb. 6.—The Sixth United States Circuit Court of Appeals ordered enforcement, with slight modification, of a National Labor Relations Board decree against the Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich.

About 20 employees will receive approximately $100,000 in back pay. The estimate was made by Philip C. Phillips, regional director of the board, who argued the case before the court.

The board on July 25, 1939, directed the firm to cease alleged domination and recognition of the Midland Chemical Mine Workers' Association; purported discouragement of membership in the United Mine Workers of America (C. I. O.); specified that 25 former employees be reinstated and that 20 discharged workers be reimbursed with back pay.

In its answer, Dow contended that the 25 discharged were ringleaders in a suspected strike movement and cited the Circuit Court of Appeals' decision in the Ford case, which set forth that Ford "had reason to fear that there would be an attempt to seize the gates of this River Rouge plant and to invade it for the purpose of staging a sit-down strike."

Judge John D. Martin wrote in his opinion that "the situation here is utterly different . . . the fear of a sit-down strike . . . rested wholly on mere suspicion and rumor."

That part of the N. L. R. B. order directing Dow to repay to relief agencies certain monies given to discharged employees was ordered stricken because of a United States Supreme Court decision in the Republic Steel Corp. case.

'Daddy' Rebert Passes Century Mark at Lutheran Home

Now Blind, He Cuts Birthday Cake at Party

Residents of the National Lutheran Home for the Aged made their way to the dining hall with more than usual anticipation when the luncheon got sounded yesterday, for "Daddy" was to celebrate his 100th birthday anniversary.

"Daddy" is Amos Rebert, a member of the home's "family" since 1922, and a native of Codorus, Pa. Mr. Rebert is blind and can hear only when words are spoken in a loud voice close to his ear, so he spends most of his time in his room, leaving it occasionally to visit neighbors down the hall.

Yesterday, however, he was brought downstairs in a wheelchair and helped to a place of honor in the dining room, where a large birthday cake, inscribed, "Happy Birthday, Daddy," had been placed on a table between two candles. Mr. Rebert was dressed in his "Sunday best," and when told he was about to be photographed, exclaimed: "Well, shouldn't I stand up, then?" Assured he would make as effective a picture seated, the centenarian grasped a proffered knife and placed it across his birthday cake.

Seated beside him at the head table were two nephews, the Rev. C. B. Rebert of Westminster, Md., and Quintin D. Rebert of Littleton, Pa. Although members of the home's staff protested he could have few things of which to repent, Mr. Rebert reiterated his philosophy of life yesterday as the birthday feast began.

"I have prayed to the Lord for time in which to repent, and He is giving me time."

Marion Talley Charges Husband Tried Extortion

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—The marital troubles of Marion Talley, former Metropolitan Opera star, have brought coast-to-coast court action. In an amended divorce complaint here, Miss Talley charged that her husband, Adolph G. Eckstrom, voice teacher, attempted to extort $150,000 from her on a threat to accuse her falsely of misconduct with seven men.

They were: Edgar Bergen, ventriloquist; Eric Rhodes, film actor; Rust Heinz of the canning family; Aubrey Scott, film director; Arthur Rosenstein, musician; Jean Sablon, singer, and John S. Keith, her attorney. In New York, Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin denied her motion for dismissal of Mr. Eckstrom's separation suit, and for dismissal of that part of his suit relating to his effort to gain control of their 5-year-old daughter Betty Ruth.

A previous judgment awarded Miss Talley custody of the child, but Judge McLaughlin said her actions subsequent to that judgment would be considered in a Supreme Court ruling on the case. The separation complaint charged that Miss Talley had been too friendly with certain men.

Navy Suspends Awarding Of Schiff Safety Trophy

Orders suspending award of the Schiff Memorial Trophy, presented annually since 1925 to the naval aviator or squadron with the best safety record for the preceding year, were announced by Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, at the annual trophy dinner last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

The trophy was presented at the White House yesterday to Lt. Comdr. H. B. Miller, commander of a Navy patrol squadron operating on neutrality patrol out of the Canal Zone. Admiral Towers explained that the Navy now has entered an emergency period during which safety considerations must become secondary to the efficiency of military operations. He also said the competition entails a great deal of statistical and paper work that emergency conditions make it inadvisable to continue.

MOTHER OUGHT TO PUT ME OVER HER KNEE!

1. AND SHE PROBABLY WOULD if she knew how I'd been going around thinking I knew all the answers... not taking people's advice about saving money by using GOOD LUCK Margarine in place of the spread-for-bread I was using. Well, I've certainly changed my tune, and now...

2. GOOD LUCK ON MY TABLE means grand praise from my family! They rave about GOOD LUCK'S fresh, country flavor. And it's so good for them... because GOOD LUCK contains abundant food-energy value, plus extra Vitamin A for extra healthfulness. And another thing... GOOD LUCK'S completely natural goodness is always guaranteed. Every package is "Dated for Freshness"... a guarantee you won't find on any other spread-for-bread, regardless of cost!

3. NOW DON'T WAIT as long as I did! Try GOOD LUCK Margarine right away. It's marvelous for cooking and frying... works wonders as a shortening for cakes, pie-crusts and biscuits... gives a scrumptious flavor to fresh, cooked vegetables. Serve lots of GOOD LUCK at every meal. It's such a swell spread-for-bread. And don't forget! You'll be delighted at the money you'll save on every single pound!

GOOD LUCK is UNCONDITIONALLY guaranteed to give complete satisfaction... or your money back.

Soft-Talking Bandit, 'Boss Outside,' Robs Ice Cream Store

Another Holdup Man Repents When Woman Reprimands Him

The soft-talking bandit who brings along a paper bag as a container for his loot made another raid on a High's ice cream store yesterday. Mildred Wehausen, 22, clerk in the High's store at 300 Tenth street S.E., reported to police that a young white man, brandishing a pistol, entered the store around 5 p.m. and announced in a quiet voice, "This is a holdup. I am sorry, but the boss is waiting outside."

The girl said the man handed her a paper bag and that she dropped in it between $8 and $9, including all the change in the cash register except the pennies. She reported that he added, "The boss wants the pennies, too," and then instructed her to go into the back of the store and to wait 5 minutes before emerging.

Robber Says He's Sorry.
Miss Stella Griffith, 34, of 2231 Bancroft place N.W., told police how she used her tongue to get back the pocketbook snatched from her while she was walking through a playground at Twenty-third and S streets N.W. yesterday. She said a young colored man grabbed the purse, then stopped in his flight when she reprimanded him, returned the purse, said he was sorry and picked up her hat he had knocked to the ground.

Two colored men, armed with a gun, according to police, robbed the liquor store of Isidore Paskow at 201 G street N.W. last night for the third time in two months. The proprietor was forced to lie on the floor while the bandits took $25 from the cash register and $200 from a box under the counter.

Filling Station.
Gordan L. Warsham, night manager of the Bethelme Gas Station at North Capitol and G streets N.W., reported to police that he was held up at 4 a.m. today by a white man with a bumpy face and forced to remain in a rest room of the station while the bandit took $70 in cash, an automatic pistol and a revolver from the cash drawer.

Marjorie Hanftman, 29, of 635 Eighth street N.E., told police a colored man struck her in the stomach while she was walking in the 1100 block of Neal street N.E. and attempted to seize a bag she carried in her arms, but gave up and fled when she held tenaciously to it.

John Lewis, colored, 38, of 1741 T street N.W. reported he was struck on the head with a bottle by a colored man while he was standing at Fourteenth and S streets N.W. around midnight and robbed of $41.

Woman Ends Life

Anna Mae Johnson, 32, colored, of 636 Twelfth street N.E. was found by her husband, Peter Johnson, slumped over open gas jets in the kitchen of her home yesterday afternoon. A note saying she planned to take her life lay beside her. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

THAT BLOWN-UP FEELING IS OFTEN CONSTIPATION GAS

Very often it is the GAS formed by accumulated waste in the intestines that accounts for the bloating, griping and cramps in temporary constipation. Relief from such distress comes only from a laxative that, besides inducing a smooth, thorough bowel action, also relieves this gas. Beechams Pills do both these things, pleasantly and thoroughly. Try them tonight and see for yourself how helpful Beechams Pills can be. Buy at your druggist—104, 25¢, 50¢.

Mrs. McLean, 59, Widow Of Rear Admiral, Dies

Mrs. Olive Gale McLean, 59, widow of Rear Admiral Ridley McLean, died yesterday at her home, Tanglebank, 2121 Kalamora road N.W., following an illness of four months.

A member of a family prominent in Washington for more than a century, Mrs. McLean had been active in philanthropic work. She served for many years on the Board of Directors of Children's Hospital and was a member of the Junior League.

Mrs. McLean was born in Washington, April 6, 1881, a granddaughter of the late Thomas J. Fisher, who founded the real estate firm of that name. Admiral McLean, who died in 1933, was in command of a battleship division in the Pacific.

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The huge sign on a Tulsa store said: "Fire sale! Fire sale!" And under it, in very small letters: "Without the fire."

The sign was a member of the Chevy Chase Club, the Garden Club of America and the Mayflower Society. The Ida May Gale Memorial Library of the All Souls' Unitarian Church was donated by Mrs. McLean.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Charles Godwin Moore, the wife of Comdr. Moore of the Navy, and a son, Gale McLean, of Washington.

The Rev. Dr. U. G. B. Pierce, pastor, will officiate at funeral services at All Souls' Church at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Speeding Big Factor In Heavy Traffic Toll, Nielson Says

ation to uniform penalties, explained that he gave individual consideration to each case, and added: "I'm not going to sit on the bench and fine one man who has money $25 and another the same amount who has a wife and children to support. That is not equality."

"Special Privileges" Assailed.

Judge Casey also told the subcommittee that as long as there is a "group" in Washington with special privileges it would not "get anywhere" in a campaign for traffic safety.

"What special group is shown special privileges?" Representative Schulte asked.

"The diplomatic group," he replied. "Week after week you pick up the newspapers and you find a list of people at the embassies and foreign legations who are excused for some violation simply because they are entitled to it."

Judge Casey intimated that a car with a low number or diplomatic tag is given special consideration by the police.

"We have got to recognize diplomatic immunity," interrupted Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown. "When diplomats violate the traffic regulations we report these violations to the Commissioners and they in turn report them to the State Department. Often we get an apology."

"The low numbers don't mean anything in the Police Department. We would arrest the driver of a car bearing tag No. 1 just as quick as we would the driver of a car bearing tag No. 1001."

Van Duzer Offers Suggestions.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer made 15 suggestions for improving traffic conditions. Chief among them were:

1. That the number of traffic policemen be increased.
2. That the number of judges in Police Court be increased.
3. That Congress appropriate an additional $50,000 a year for the purchase of traffic lights and to make "refinements" to those lights now in operation.
4. Funds to replace temporary traffic signs with ones that can be used for at least eight years.
5. Chemical tests for intoxicated drivers.
6. Installation of additional parking meters.
7. An increased penalty for first-offense speeding.

Complaints Against Buses.

Representative Schulte said he had received complaints that inter-urban buses were occupying too much space at the curbs in the business section and that commercial vehicles are interfering with traffic during rush hours by making deliveries. He also declared he believed the zoning regulations should be amended to require that every new home or apartment, house or commercial building provide off-street parking facilities for the tenants.

Richard B. Keech, corporation counsel, promised a survey would be made to find out why Washington merchants can't make deliveries before or after the morning and afternoon rush hours to prevent traffic congestion in the business section.

"We must do something to control speed," declared Inspector Arthur E. Miller in charge of the accident investigation unit of the Metropolitan Police Department.

"The most effective remedy is more motorcycle men," he said. "To do a good job we need 100 more."

Inspector Miller told the subcommittee he had made an analysis of the traffic deaths in December and January and learned that of the 25 who died drivers of automobiles were responsible for 13 of the deaths.

Inspector Miller also declared his analysis showed that 10 of the 25 deaths were caused by speeding automobiles and that 12 of the deaths occurred between 7 and 10 p.m.

Lighting Survey Asked.

Representative Bates, Republican of Massachusetts, who has insisted that better street illumination might reduce traffic accidents, urged that a comprehensive survey be made to determine whether the streets of the city are adequately lighted.

Mr. Bates said he had made a study of the cost of street lighting in Washington for the past 10 years and discovered that the street lighting bill was 10 per cent less than it was in 1930. He asked if the reduction meant there is less street illumination than in 1930. He was assured that the streets are better lighted than they were 10 years ago.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, told the subcommittee his bureau in cooperation with the Department of Motor Vehicles and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads is making a comprehensive survey, designed to solve Washington's traffic problems and that the preliminary report, which will contain some definite recommendations, will be made public in April.

Senator Reynolds inquired if the report would show the need of underground parking spaces in the vicinity of theaters and public congested sections of the city. Capt. Whitehurst assured him that it would.

Of 8,000,000 trees planted in Kansas shelterbelts last spring, 88 per cent survived the first growing season. The average was greater than for any year since the project was started in 1935.

Illustrious Has Arrived In Egypt, Knox Reports

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of the Navy Knox said the British aircraft carrier Illustrious, surviving axis air attacks which cost her about 80 men killed and 20 bombing planes destroyed in one direct hit by a 1,000-pound bomb, had arrived at Alexandria, Egypt, under her own power from Malta.

The Secretary's disclosure was the first mention of the number killed and of the crossing of the Mediterranean from Malta, where the newest of Britain's carriers first had limped to refuge.

In reaching the main British fleet base in the Mediterranean the Illustrious survived the hardest test so far of air power versus warships.

Easily recognizable German bombers, flying so low that their Junkers insignia could be read from the Illustrious' decks, pounced down on the ship in a seven-hour torpedo and bomb attack last January 10. Scarred but still plodding through the Mediterranean, the Illustrious made port at Malta, where the attacks were renewed. As a result of the following attacks, the German news agency DNB said a long time would be required for repairs. Secretary Knox told of the Illustrious' experiences in a press conference discussion of the vulnerability of surface craft under air bombing.

New Gadget Allows Parachute Jumps From 8 Miles High

Light Oxygen Tank With Mouthpiece Described to Doctors

By THOMAS R. HENFY.

Eight-mile high parachute jumps are possible with a special apparatus just developed at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

This apparatus, consisting of a 3-pound oxygen tank strapped to the chest and a special mouthpiece, was described at the postgraduate course in military medicine at George Washington University today by Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace II, surgeon of the Mayo staff.

A person leaping from a height of 40,000 feet, Dr. Lovelace said, probably would lose consciousness in a few seconds because of lack of oxygen. As a free-falling body it would require about three minutes for him to reach the ground and it is probable, from the Mayo test chamber experiments, that he would recover consciousness in time to pull the ripcord of his parachute and land safely. If he followed instructions, however, and opened up as soon as he was clear of the plane, Dr. Lovelace said, it is hardly conceivable that he would reach the ground alive. He would perish from lack of oxygen long before the slow-descending parachute reached an altitude with sufficient oxygen to sustain him.

40,000 Feet Simulated. The new apparatus was directly out of tests in low-pressure chamber with the pilot of one of the new Army interceptor planes. At a simulated altitude of 40,000 feet the man tried to remove the face piece connected with the oxygen tank in the cockpit and put on a special apparatus. The operation required only an instant, but he succeeded only in getting the new mouthpiece between his teeth. He could not turn on the oxygen supply before losing consciousness. With the new apparatus the tiny tank, weighing only three pounds but with an oxygen supply for 18 minutes, is already in place and he has only to put the tube in his mouth. Even then, the Mayo experiments showed, there was likely to be trouble. Even momentary lack of oxygen at such altitudes causes the mouth to sag so the mouthpiece will fall out. This difficulty has been overcome by an especially arranged device.

The apparatus was developed in association with Capt. O. O. Benson, medical director of Wright Field.

Other Mayo Clinic experiments, Dr. Lovelace said, have demonstrated that the greatest height to which the average man can go without a supply of oxygen is about 20,000 feet. This would require an exceptional individual and most persons would "pass out" completely at approximately the height of Mount Everest.

At 35,000 feet the test pilot upon whom the Mayo Clinic experiments were made developed convulsions in 40 seconds, breathing 100 per cent oxygen. This makes 33,000 feet approximately the limit to which fighting planes can go without sealed cabins. This figure might be pushed up to 40,000 feet for exceptional individuals.

Air Bends Different Matter.

An entirely different problem, he pointed out, is that of air bends, or accumulation of nitrogen bubbles in the blood as one ascends rapidly from a sea-level air pressure on the body of about 30 tons to the extremely low pressures at high altitudes. Mayo Clinic tests have shown that by breathing pure oxygen for about an hour it is possible—in the low-pressure chamber—to reach an altitude of 40,000 feet in two minutes without developing these bends.

The Mayo doctors, Dr. Lovelace said, now are conducting experiments on transportation of sick and wounded by plane even at moderate altitudes, and some hitherto unknown phenomena are being revealed. It might become very serious for a person with a bullet wound in the abdomen, with the almost certain accumulation of gases, he pointed out.

In connection with the experiments 10 Mayo Clinic doctors have learned to fly and 10 more now are undergoing training.

Agencies Offer Aid To Solve Defense Welfare Problems

McNutt to Confer With Recreation Authorities Here on Monday

Pointing out that many communities near military training posts and defense industry centers are obviously unable to meet the additional social service burdens being thrust on them, virtually all the Nation's major health and welfare private agencies have offered their facilities and counsel to the National Defense Commission.

The present situation in such communities, according to the National Social Work Council, "constitutes a major defense problem which must soon be dealt with."

Members of the council—which represents 29 national groups such as the Red Cross, Community Chests, Catholic Charities and Jewish Welfare Board—have met several times with Paul V. McNutt, coordinator of health and welfare activities for the Defense Commission.

Mr. McNutt has asked a number of recreation authorities from public and private agencies to confer with him here Monday. This may be the first of a series of meetings on various defense problems assigned to Mr. McNutt's division.

Reports Submitted.

At his request, larger private social service agencies have submitted to Mr. McNutt detailed reports on their current activities and outlines of additional tasks they could perform.

The National Social Work Council, headed by Robert E. Bondy, District Director of Public Welfare for several months has been studying defense problems that might fall under its scope. After consultation with three other associated groups—the National Education-Recreation Council, the National Health Council and the Social Case Work Council of National Agencies—it concluded that adjustments in health and welfare services to defense needs should follow certain principles.

Foremost was that the Federal Government should have the primary responsibility of starting, leading and financing the comprehensive program needed.

It suggested, too, that existing agencies should be utilized as much as possible, with flexibility being allowed for local adaptations to meet local situations.

Co-ordination Urged.

It also recommended that national, State and local programs be co-ordinated through joint planning by public and private agencies.

Most of the new work to be done—aside from social work maintained at an adequate level in home communities and activities of special Army and Navy units and the Red Cross in military posts proper—will be, it was agreed, in communities near military camps and defense industries.

While some of the latter communities are big enough and have sufficient resources to adapt their own programs to meet defense needs, others are not. In commenting on them the National Council of Social Work said:

"Despite the unorganized nature of many of these smaller environmental communities, they have so far been expected to meet the impossible burdens being thrust on them. Their obvious inability to do so with any degree of effectiveness constitutes a major defense problem which soon must be dealt with. Under whatever auspices and with whatever funds these communities are aided to expand their facilities in response to new demands, the task of organization should not be longer delayed."

Problems Expected to Arise.

Among the particular problems that may be expected to arise in defense industry communities and those near military posts the council pointed out that there will be need for expanded individual welfare and family security services in connection with the separation of families, failure of individuals to get or retain jobs, adjustment of persons to new employment, need for relief pending establishment of residence and difficulty in obtaining housing.

Important, too, it was explained, is the problem that Mr. McNutt's conference will consider here Monday—that of provision of proper recreation for young soldiers off the military reservation and defense workers in smaller communities.

Destructive use of leisure time in such cases, the council believes, "constitutes a serious threat to morale, health and military effectiveness . . . and affects the future well-being of the men and their home communities."

The National Social Work Council is a conference body composed of executive officers from the following national organizations: American Association for Labor Legislation, American Country Life Association, American Public Welfare Association, American National Red Cross, American Social Hygiene Association, Boy Scouts of America, Boys' Clubs of America, Camp Fire Girls, Child Welfare League of America.

Community Chests and Councils, Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, Family Welfare Association of America, Girl Scouts, Jewish Welfare Board, National Association of Legal Aid Organizations, National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations, National Child Labor Committee, National Committee for Mental Hygiene, National Conference of Catholic Charities, National Consumers' League, National Council of the Young Men's Christian Associations, National Health Council, National Probation Association, National Recreation Association, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, National Travelers' Aid Association, National Tuberculosis Association and Social Work Publicity Council.

'Good Neighbor' Pact With Mexico Nearly Ready for Signature

Agreement Is Expected To Settle All Major Financial Problems

By LLOYD LEHRBAS, Associated Press Staff Writer.

The United States and Mexico, it was learned authoritatively today, expect to sign a comprehensive "good neighbor" agreement in the very near future, settling all major economic and financial questions now outstanding.

The pact, it was understood, will provide for a general, all-inclusive disposition of "every problem between the two nations." A number of the points involved have been pending for a number of years and involve millions of dollars.

The formulae for the agreement were worked out by Undersecretary of State Welles and Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador. They were said to have concentrated on a lump settlement, rather than a piece-meal disposal of numerous claims and counter claims arising from the oil expropriation, agrarian appropriation and other controversial questions.

Final arrangements for the pact probably will follow the return of the Mexican Ambassador here Friday, after conferences with his foreign office in Mexico City.

One of the major questions scheduled to be settled arose in 1938 from the Mexican government's expropriation of American, British and Dutch-owned oil properties, valued by the oil companies at from $400,000,000 to $440,000,000, but appraised at only $35,400,000 by Mexican courts.

State Department officials refused to disclose what payment had been proposed for the oil properties, or the manner in which any payment would be made.

Foreign Minister Padilla was reported to have forecast in Mexico City that any settlement would be a "direct arrangement between the Mexican government and the companies."

New York financial interests estimated that the American-owned companies—Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New York and Continental Oil (Sinclair)—had properties in Mexico worth $200,000,000.

The Sinclair interests, whose holdings represented an estimated $16,000,000, made a separate settlement of their claim in May, 1940, for $8,500,000, payable over three years.

G. W. to Close Exams With Prom Tomorrow

George Washington University students will celebrate the closing of examinations with the annual all-university prom at 10 p.m. tomorrow at the Washington Hotel.

Twelve students will be tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa as a feature of the program.

SWAN
PURE WHITE FLOATING SOAP

Two convenient sizes—large and regular!

- LOOK! SWAN'S WHITER! IT'S AS PURE AS IMPORTED CASTLE!
Pure? Why, you couldn't buy a purer soap! And Swan's as mild as imported castile. For baby's tender skin, for your lovely hands—Swan is gentle as can be. Ask your doctor about Swan's purity and mildness. He has the details in his medical journals.
- LOOK! SUDS TWO TIMES QUICKER!
Swan breaks into rich, creamy lather—two times faster than old-style floating soaps. Here are suds that last, too!
- LOOK! MAKES HARD WATER SOFT-HEARTED!
Come, all you hard-water sufferers! Swan gives you more abundant suds—creamier, richer lather in water "hard enough to cut diamonds!"
- LOOK! SWAN IS MUCH FIRMER! LASTS, LASTS, LASTS!
You know how old-fashioned floating soaps are often so soft you can push your thumb into the cake. Well—here's another surprise for you! Feel Swan! It's more solid—harder by far than old-time floating soaps. Swan has far less moisture. It's bound to last longer—bound to go further!
- LOOK! BREAKS SMOOTHER—EASILY!
Notice the way the cake breaks—without knife or string! Just break Swan by hand and you'd think it was sliced; it's so smooth and even. No jagged, rough edges; no wasteful, crumbly surface. Here are two beautiful cakes, one perfect for the kitchen; the other swell for the bathroom!
- LOOK! SMELLS FRESH AS A DAISY!
Swan smells cleaner—refreshing as mountain air! Not strong or harsh—never stale or flat!
- FEEL HOW SMO-O-O-TH IT IS!
And no wonder! Swan is made differently—creamed over and over, 64 times a minute. That's why Swan is smoother, finer-textured like finest toilet soaps.
- LOOK! MORE REAL SOAP FOR YOUR MONEY!
There's actually far less moisture in Swan than in old-type floating soaps. It's more real soap for your money. You don't have to store a supply to harden and dry out—as you've probably been doing with softer soaps. We harden Swan in advance.
- LOOK! SWAN BOSS UP ALL OVER THE HOUSE!
For face, hands, bath; for baby; for silk things, dishes, woodwork—for anything that needs soaping—Swan's your buy!

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK IF . . .
Compare Swan with any other floating soap, point for point. Then if you don't say, "Swan for us"—mail the wrapper to Swan, Cambridge, Mass., and we'll pay double your money back. Offer closes Feb. 20-41.

Mule (Ungulata equidae)

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY. During the World War mules did their part nobly.

The expression, "as stubborn as a mule," may turn out to be a compliment. What reason have we to doubt that the mule has figured out the stand he should take and has courage to stick to his convictions?

Keep False Teeth Purified Says Dr. Sherwin. Don't brush your false teeth or dental plates—you can't purify them that way.

Just a little of Sierra-Kleen in a half glass of water and all slimy mucin stains and milkiness begin to disappear.

Now that we have extolled the mule, we must in fairness admit that there are a few eccentricities to accept.

Man Is Given 15 Years In Assault Case

Floyd O. Jones, 31-year-old Washingtonian, was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary yesterday on a charge of a criminal assault upon a 25-year-old five and ten cent store employee.

Circuit Court Judge Steadman Prescott imposed sentence at Rockville, Md., overruling the defense attorney's motion for a new trial on the grounds that evidence did not support the jury's verdict returned January 31.

Judge Prescott also sentenced Marvin Ruben Booker, 21, colored, a transient, on three charges of burglary alleged to have occurred on September 19.

Early Sunday Liquor Sales Opposed by Association

Any change in the present liquor laws that would permit liquor to be sold by the drink from 12 midnight Saturday to 2 a.m. Sunday was opposed by the Friendship Citizens' Association last night after hearing a report of its president, Samuel J. Flickinger. An amendment to the report recommended no sale of liquor by the drink from 12 midnight Sunday to 2 a.m. Monday.

sale liquor stores at 10 p.m. weekdays, 12 midnight on Saturdays and the days before holidays and closed all day on holidays. Opposition was voted to any increase in taxes until the District is properly represented in a body to vote against such an increase. The association also opposed any increase in gasoline tax in the District, the additional fund to be used for more policemen or a traffic sub-way system, as has been suggested in Congress. Support of the proposed cross-town bus line was voted, the group calling for either the Kingline road or Military road route.

Seaman Treated After 1,600-Mile Trip to Save Eye

A seaman from the aircraft carrier Wasp is in the Navy Hospital here after a 1,600-mile air trip was made in an effort to save his eye-sight. Leonard H. Yates, seaman second class, was on duty on the flight deck of the Wasp when he was struck by the propeller of a plane as it left the carrier. He suffered severe Injuries, including a fractured skull and badly lacerated face and eyes. He was flown from the Wasp to Miami, Fla., where he was put aboard the Secretary of Navy's personal air transport for the flight to Washington. Immediate hospitalization was needed for a plastic surgery operation to save the eye. Whether the operation is successful has not yet been determined. On arrival here he was given special attention, among the consultants being Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, personal physician to the President.

Two Commerce Bureau Chiefs Are Appointed

Appointment of James H. Edwards and Robert F. Martin as chiefs of two new divisions of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was announced by Secretary Jones yesterday. Mr. Edwards will head the Division of International Economy and Mr. Martin will head the Division of Industrial Economy. These are the last of five appointments made by Secretary Jones under a recent reorganization which gives national defense absolute priority in the work of the bureau.

From 1934 to 1935, Mr. Edwards was chief of the Latin American division in the office of the special adviser to the President on foreign trade, and in 1936 was director of the commercial department of the Export-Import Bank. From 1937 to 1938 he served as financial adviser to the government of Nicaragua and general manager of the National Bank of Nicaragua. Mr. Martin is a former senior economic analyst in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Thomas Gainsborough collected musical instruments because the sight of them pleased him. He could play only the violin.

Newspaper Sales Hit Peak During 1939

Newspapers obtained a greater revenue in 1939 from subscriptions and sales than in the boom year of 1929, the Census Bureau revealed today. Based on reports from 7,310 newspaper establishments covered by the census of manufactures, the bureau estimated 1939 revenues from this source at $306,192,294—the highest total so far recorded as compared with $275,781,131 in 1929. Advertising revenues, which totaled $797,338,231 in 1929, were $539-

494,841 in 1939. The value of products and receipts reported by the 7,310 newspapers covered by the 1939 census was $845,687,135. Because they account for a relatively small part of the totals, newspapers doing less than $5,000 business annually are not covered in the census.

Romance Is the Keynote Of Portrait of Victoria

Anna Neagle's 'Queen of Destiny,' At the Little, Story of Her Love for Prince Albert

By HARRY MACARTHUR.

Those sixty glorious years Queen Victoria spent upon the throne of England are not exactly masked in mystery. The story of Britain's beloved ruler and her beloved Prince Consort, Albert, probably is as familiar to most of us as the legend-laden story of our own George Washington. Thus it is doubly the credit of Miss Anna Neagle that she creates such a vivid and memorable portrait of Victoria, a portrait full of the drama of those six decades, in "Queen of Destiny," at the Little now for its first Washington showing.

Miss Neagle, of course, is not unfamiliar with the role. Back in 1937 she played Victoria ever so admirably in a film called "Victoria the Great," which, incidentally, was not only the forerunner but the reason for "Queen of Destiny." After the British government saw the original picture, learned with what understanding Miss Neagle could play Victoria and Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox could treat the whole subject, permission was granted—an unprecedented permission—for use of Windsor, Balmoral, Buckingham and other British royal palaces as film sets.

So Mr. Wilcox got busy with a script to treat of other aspects of Victoria's life and reign, cast Miss Neagle once again in a role she quite evidently cherishes, and decided such handsome sets most certainly called for technicolor. The result is a film which, in addition to being pictorially beautiful as any photograph filmed in these surroundings could be, is both a heart-warming story of a royal romance and an inspiring story of a woman who ruled her people with a love and understanding which merited the great love they gave her in return.

"Queen of Destiny," for all the fact that it can hardly achieve any dramatic suspense in the face of the familiarity of its subject, is not to be passed up on this account. The outline is familiar, but the approach is somewhat different from previous studies of the queen who gave her name to an age in our past. The film might even be called "Prince Consort of Destiny," for the emphasis is placed on Victoria's love for Albert and on his difficulties in winning over the suspicious Britons. It is truly an admirable account of the tragedy which rode Albert, from the moment he arrived in England unwelcome, through the years when he thought only of Britain's interests and his difficulties in winning over the suspicious Britons. To encompass the entire pageant of Victoria's reign seems not to have been the purpose of "Queen of Destiny," though the film embraces the time from her announcement to the House of Lords of her betrothal, in 1840, to her death which shortly after her Diamond Jubilee in 1897. Rather it is the intimate side of her life that is treated, her life with Albert and her children and the effect on her of Wellington, the Crimean War, Disraeli and his Suez Canal, Khartoum and the Diamond Jubilee.

The cast which Mr. Wilcox has selected to record his warm-hearted documentary account of this phase of Victoria's life, is an altogether capable one. Miss Neagle, as we may have hinted before, can create a picture of Queen Victoria which will win you even as the original won her subjects, a Victoria even Helen Hayes must admire tremendously. She has the regal poise to make her Victoria every inch a queen, the heart to make her a woman in love and the tenderness of a loyal British lass for the memory of Victoria which shines through always in her portrait. Of the others, the most notable are Anton Walbrook, the perfect choice for the Prince Albert role, and C. Aubrey Smith, as fine as Wellington as he is as any one else, which is mighty fine.

There should be one final word, too, about the settings. They outdo Hollywood even at its most lavish, which is a bit of outdoing, and sel-

All-Star Cast

Grouped around Merle Oberon and Dennis Morgan as the stars of "Affectationally Yours" at Warner Bros. will be a brilliant supporting cast of players. Rita Hayworth, Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason and Rattle McDaniel complete the list of players for this fast comedy-drama. With Lloyd Bacon as director, the production gets under way this week.

Movies Are Top Diversion Of Those Who Make Movies

Merle Oberon Attends 400 Films Every Year to Head the List Of Stars Who See Stars

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN. HOLLYWOOD.

How do moviemakers stack up as moviegoers? Are Hollywood actors and actresses proportionately well represented among the 65,000,000 Americans who reputedly buy admissions to film theaters throughout the Nation each week?

You imagine, maybe, that the average performer gets pretty well fed up on that sound-stage job—that, come nightfall, he and she are anxious to turn to some other type of diversion, anything except the movies.

Sounds logical, doesn't it? Yet it isn't true. The chief diversion of the average film actor isn't Ciro's, or gin rummy, or Santa Anita or even elbow-bending, as you might suspect. It's the movies.

The best and the worst movie fans in the world are found among the men and women, the boys and girls who make pictures in Hollywood.

week or oftener are Priscilla Lane, Joan Crawford, Walter Pidgeon, Spencer Tracy, Anne Shirley, Lucille Ball, Lewis Stone, Andrea Leeds, Warner Baxter, Gloria Stuart, Ann Southern, Irene Dunne, Dorothy Lamour, Stuart Erwin, Joan Bennett and Dick Powell.

In putting this compendium together some odd moviegoing habits come to light. Joan Blondell, for instance, says she attends the movies about twice a month. But her husband, Dick Powell, said he saw at least two a week. Figure that one out.

Anne Shirley keeps a diary on every film she witnesses and thus is able to tell at a glance the number she has seen in any given period. Last year, Anne saw 213 features—an average of more than four a week.

The Hays office and the industry at large should do something big for both Merle Oberon and Anne Shirley, its champion consumers.

Lewis Stone, who has nothing to do nowadays but appear as the judge in the Hardy family series, spends practically all his free time either on a horse or in a movie theater. Recently, Mr. Stone says, he slackened up on his riding and now gets around to three pictures a week. That makes him the most picture-seeing actor at the M. G. M. studio.

Home Theaters Disappear. However, Joan Crawford doesn't do so badly by Hollywood product. When Joan isn't working in a film she sees at least two pictures a week, sometimes three and even four. She is one of the few stars who still maintain projection rooms in their homes. Norma Shearer is another.

But for the most part, the home theater has long since been given up by actors. The arrival of sound and the elaborate equipment necessary for projecting talking pictures—to say nothing of union-wage and man-power demands—make stay-at-home moviegoing a luxury even for $2,500 a week actors.

Among the colony's more disinterested moviegoing moviemakers are Olivia de Havilland, Bruce Cabot, James Cagney, Bing Crosby, Claudette Colbert, Don Ameche, John Stewart, Fred Astaire and James Cagney.

Next to Errol Flynn, Hollywood's low in male patronage appears to be the cadaverous-appearing Mr. Carradine. They'll never be able to charge Carradine with stealing his grime from other character experts, for he sees only 15 pictures a year. Miss de Havilland lists her moviegoing tendencies at "about one a month."

Explains Jimmy Stewart: "I never go to the movies unless there is something I really want to see; never just to have something to do." (Released by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Sturges Stays on. Two of the most prominent figures on the Paramount contract list, Bing Crosby and Producer-Director-Writer Preston Sturges, have renewed long-term leases at the studio. Crosby, whose new comedy with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour is "Road to Zanzibar," put his name on a contract scheduled to run for three years without options. Sturges' two-year agreement with the studio provides for him to write and direct three pictures a year, an arrangement which in 1940 yielded the harvest of "The Great McGinty," "Christmas in July" and the forthcoming "The Lady Eve," starring Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck.

Unemployment Check Led To Juanita's Discovery

Spotted as She Called for Hers, Miss Stark Has Been Signed To a Warner Contract

By SHEILAH GRAHAM. HOLLYWOOD.

The latest piece for a person to be discovered for the movies is in an unemployment office! Newest Cinderella girl in this city of Cinderellas is 20-year-old Juanita Stark. Miss Stark was spotted by an agent picking up her check in an unemployment insurance office. "I can get you a job in pictures," he told her. And when she had recovered from her faint, took her to Warners, who tested and signed her to a contract.

It had been planned to put brown-eyed Juanita in a movie based on the West Virginia girl who thought Irene Dunne. And Warners now want him for a film on aviation.

But the idea has already been scrapped. Miss Stark was spotted in a story by Republic. "Cinderella in Washington" is the title. The latter studio has been known to make a movie in seven days. So I guess Warners will have to think up something else for Miss Stark.

In spite of Ernest Hemingway's nomination of Ingrid Bergman for "Maria" in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," it is by no means certain that Paramount can borrow the lady from David O. Selznick, to whom she is under contract. There are four other girls under consideration—Annabella (Mrs. Tyrone Power)—who is perhaps a little too old for the 16-year-old maiden. Betty Field, who has too much personality for the nebulous character of Maria; Ellen Drew, who might be very good, and Stef Duna.

For the important "Pilar" role, Paramount is hoping to sign Beulah Bondi. For the almost as important part of "Pablo," the choice currently lies between Akim Tamiroff and Oscar Homolka. I prefer Homolka. Lawrence plays the gypsy. And "Robert Jordan" goes to Gary Cooper or Stirling Hayden. I think Hayden would be better. The picture won't start until September—to give the book a chance to hit the million-sales mark.

There are three gentlemen under consideration for Warners' "The Man Who Came to Dinner"—Gary Grand (bad casting, this), James Stephenson (not much better), and Fredric March (fair). Personally, I'd like someone like Jack Oakie in the part. March is also wanted for "One Foot in Heaven." Falling him, Raymond Massey gets the parson role. James Cagney is again interceding at Warners for Ann Sheridan, who ought to go back to work soon unless she wants to fight her way out of pictures.

The reason Virginia Field refuses to be photographed in night clubs with George Raft is that she considers it unkind to Richard Greene, who is in the tank corps in England! (He is also making propaganda pictures in his spare time.) Virginia is hoping for a part in Raft's next picture—"Danger Zone."

Robert Montgomery, who is "punished" for his verbal fights with producers by frequent loan-outs to various studios, is like a little boy dismissed early from school every time he is informed by Metro that he must go to such and such a studio. He did a swell job on his loan-out to R-K-O in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" with Carole Lombard. He is now at Universal doing like-wise in "Unfinished Business" with John Archer.

Author's Request. Guy Kibbee has been given the title role of "Scattergood Baines" at the request of Clarence Buding Kelland, author of the popular story series on which the film is being based.

Producer Jerry Brandt and Director Christy Cabanne, who are making the picture for R-K-O Radio release, had tested literally scores of stage and screen actors before the final selection of Kibbee (recently of "Chad Hanna" and "Our Town") was made.

Brandt is bringing Dink Trout out to Hollywood for the big part of Piny, the role he now is playing in Chicago on the national broadcast of "Scattergood Baines." Others currently in the motion picture cast are Emma Dunn, Carol Hughes and John Archer.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. On his way back to the Green Forest, near Farmer Brown's home, Blacky the Crow kept a sharp watch for Old Man Coyote.

Old Man Coyote looked up at Blacky sharply. Blacky is polite only when he wants to get something. "There was plenty of hunting, but little enough reward for it," replied Old Man Coyote.

Now Blacky the Crow is a very wise fellow. He knows when it is best to be sly and crafty, and when it is best to be frank and outspoken.

Old Man Coyote pricked up his ears and grinned. "I thought he was dead," said he. "It's a long time since we've heard from Bowser. Is he well?"

"Quite well," replied Blacky, "but unhappy. He is homesick. I suspect that the trouble with Bowser is that he hasn't the least idea in which direction home lies."

Old Man Coyote threw back his head and laughed in that crazy fashion of his till the very hills rang with the sound of his voice.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

—Phidias Carved Statue for Parthenon

Of all the temples men have built, the Parthenon ranks as probably the most beautiful. For many hundreds of years it stood proudly on a hill in Athens, and was a wonder to those who looked upon it and entered it. Today it is in ruins, but even in its ruins we can see something of its olden beauty. The fame of the Parthenon never rested on its size. There were larger temples in ancient times, and there are larger ones standing now. The fame of the Parthenon never "Maiden's Chamber." That name was at first given to one of the rooms inside, but later it was used for the whole building. The Parthenon is 101 feet wide and 228 feet long. This means it covers only a little more than half an acre of ground. The height is 64 feet, which is almost the same as before the building suffered great damage. There were 46 tall pillars around the outside of the Parthenon. Most of these are still in fairly good condition. Behind the outer pillars are others of equal size and beauty. The pillars and most of the rest of the temple were cut from white goddesses, animals and people. Figures were shown taking part in one of the processions in Athens in honor of the goddess Athena. It was for Athena that the Parthenon was built. Work was started in the year we call 447 B. C. We do not know exactly how much time passed before the temple was finished, but the period was about 16 years. In one of the rooms of the temple a huge statue of Athena was placed. This statue was carved by Phidias, the greatest of all Greek sculptors. It rose to a height of about 40 feet, and was coated with ivory and gold. In our next story I shall speak of the great hill on which the Parthenon stands, and shall also tell the temple's history since ancient times. Completion of Large Army Housing Units By May 15 Seen

Society of Engineers Holds of Problems in Col. Styer's Talk

The "hurry-up" job of building a billion dollars worth of housing for more than a million new soldiers was described to the Washington Society of Engineers last night by Col. Wilhelm D. Styer, executive officer of the reorganized Construction Division, Quartermaster Corps.

Col. Styer expressed the opinion that most of the 188 larger projects throughout the country will be completed by March 15 and all by May 15. He added, however, that bitter cold in the North and heavy rains in the South have thrown many construction jobs behind schedule.

The engineers, meeting at the Cosmos Club, were told the Army had housing facilities for only 800,000 men last summer, and this spring the Quartermaster Corps expects to have complete accommodations for 1,400,000.

Greater Problems Presented. In many ways, Col. Styer said, the program is more demanding than that undertaken during the World War. The larger cantonments will have populations ranging from 25,000 to 40,000 and over, he said, and will be complete with all equipment for the health, sanitation, amusement and training of the troops.

The Washington office of the construction division was reorganized to provide for semi-independent zone construction headquarters in the nine Army corps areas, the speaker said. This has resulted in a speeding-up of the program under men familiar with the problems in their particular areas.

Each zone area has its administration, engineering and operations branches. The Army engineers have benefited from the aid, Col. Styer said, of top-ranking civilian engineers and architects. Despite the great haste, he added, some time has been found for the landscaping and beautification of the camps as a stimulus to the morale of the citizen army.

Cites Humorous Incidents. Col. Styer referred humorously to some of the incidents which occurred during the early, more hectic days of the great building program. Project engineers, he said, were required to send "progress" reports accompanied by aerial photographs of the cantonments under construction. One engineer explained his tardiness by the fact that military authorities arrested his photographer when the latter landed an airplane with pictures of the camp. The photographer was jailed and the Navy confiscated his plates. On another occasion he was taking unauthorized pictures of a military base.

Col. Styer was presented to the engineers by Morris Weschler, president of the society, who presided. After his talk the Army construction man answered many technical questions from the floor as to the details of contract letting, structural materials, purchasing methods, etc.

Layden 'Railroaded' to Throne, Three Pro Owners Claim

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Elmer Layden quit the cloisters of collegiate football for the turbulent pro grid business last Monday and already he has noticed the change. "The former Notre Dame coach and athletic director found himself in the middle of a controversy today over his appointment as National Professional Football League commissioner hardly before the ink on his contract had dried. Bert Bell, half-owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, and two other club owners—Alexis Thompson of Pittsburgh and Dan Topping of Brooklyn—touched off the debate by declaring that Layden had been "railroaded" into office. All Legal, Says Halas. "The procedure followed in making the appointment apparently caused the squabble among pro owners. Boiled down, it appears that a committee delegated to interview three prospective commissioners quit after talking only to two, recommending Layden precipitately because his contract at Notre Dame had expired. Bell and George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, formed the interviewing committee. The situation was explained thusly by Halas:

"A majority of the club owners voted to hire Layden and his appointment is legal and official. . . . At a recent meeting in Chicago the plan was to select the commissioner at the April meeting, but circumstances made it imperative that we hire Layden without delay if we were to get him. Layden's contract with Notre Dame expired last week and the university proffered him a new one. Neither Layden nor Notre Dame could wait until an April meeting. Couldn't Inform Bell. Bell charged that Layden had been "railroaded" illegally over John P. Kelly, Philadelphia Democratic leader, and Frank McCormick, Minnesota athletic director. "A majority of the club owners voted for Layden and a majority is all the league constitution demands on any matter of business," Halas said. "It is true that we were unable to inform Bell of the official vote, but that was because he was traveling en route to Florida." Bell stated in Philadelphia that the first he knew of Layden's appointment was when he read it in the newspapers.

Reds' Derringer Is Rated Links Title Threat

Russell Also Deemed Menace to 3-Time Tourney Winner

By GAYLE TALBOT. Associated Press Sports Writer. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 6.—The annual titanic exhibition of golf in the law between the country's baseball heroes begins in a burst of strong language at the Jungle Club course here today. Nothing much is at stake except a good looking statuette and a lot of fairways equipment, but Paul Derringer didn't bend down harder trying to strike out Billy Sullivan in the last World Series than he will in trying to outstay the Detroit catcher for the next four days. The boys take their golf seriously and controversially, both. Today there is an 18-hole qualifying round, with the low 32 diamond divotees entering the championship flight of match play starting tomorrow and winding up in a volcanic 36-hole final on Sunday.

The dominating figure of the tournament and the man every ball player dreams of trimming is Wes Ferrell, the former Cleveland, Washington and way-stops pitching ace. He wears glasses now and his right arm has lost its zing, but he's a tough golfer. Fox Is Tourney Host. There have been five previous tournaments and Ferrell has won three of them, including the last two. The only ones to break through on him were Sammy Byrd in 1937 and Paul Waner in 1938. Byrd is a professional now, but Waner is here with bells on. The host is none other than Jimmy Fox of the Boston Red Sox, one of the all-time hitting greats and considerable of a golfer. Jimmy leases and runs the Jungle Club course. They say he is losing money on it, but, still, it isn't every ball player who has the distinction of operating his own golf course. Unfortunately, perhaps, the tournament has lost a little of the fine, ripe flavor it possessed up to two years ago. Our athletes used to fight it out strictly catch-as-catch-can, with every man for himself and almost any hole good for an argument that smoked. But the boys became refined last year and brought in George Jacobs, former president of the P. G. A., to act as referee, and it would be surprising to hear a sample conversation like this the next few days: "I say, old man, didn't you move the ball about 3 feet forward in improving your lie that time? Pardon me if I'm wrong."

"By Jove, maybe you're right, pal. I guess my mind was wandering, or something. Thanks for calling it to my attention, pal." "Empire Won't Lose Cent. For all this reding and blueing Jacobs draws no salary and, in fact, came out a little in the hole a year ago. A ballplayer ordinarily is not a very fast man with a dollar. But the fellows have agreed to see that George doesn't lose a cent this time, much as they naturally are repelled at the thought of paying an umpire out of their own pockets. If Ferrell is to be dethroned, it might be by Derringer, who carried him two extra holes in the semifinals last winter; by Jack Russell, the former American and National League pitcher, who lost to the champion, 2 and 1, in the 1940 finals, or by Merv Shea, the Detroit coach, who now and then shoots in the 60s and is the real dark horse of the meet.

Jane Crum Reaches Golf Semifinal in Stirring Finish

By the Associated Press. PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—A new challenger for winter women's golf laurels, Jane Crum of Orangeburg, S. C., took her place in the semifinals of the Palm Beach tournament today after a thrilling 20th hole victory over medalist Elizabeth Hicks of Pasadena, Calif. Miss Crum, 1 down at the turn, staged a subpar comeback on the second nine to square the match and won with a birdie 2 on the second extra hole. The South Carolina miss faced Grace Army of Palm Beach in one semifinal bracket today, with Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, Ohio, playing Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., in the other. Miss Amory, runnerup to Miss Hicks in the Miami Biltmore tournament last week, trounced Mrs. Miriam Phipps-Lyon of Miami, 7 and 5. Miss Bauer eliminated Diana Fishwick Critchley, former British champion, 4 and 3, while Miss Gardner outputted Nancy McClave of Maplewood, N. J., 1 up.

Lee, Former Flyweight Champ of Britain, Dies

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 6.—James "Tancy" Lee, 59, former holder of the British flyweight and featherweight boxing titles, died today of injuries received last night when knocked down by a bus in Leith. Lee won his greatest fame in the ring in 1915 when he knocked out Jimmy Wilde in 17 rounds to win the flyweight title and the Lonsdale belt. He continued in active competition until he was 45 years old.

Miller Alone of Four Horsemen, Out of Running for Irish Job

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, Feb. 6.—Don Miller would be glad to carry on for the famed "Four Horsemen" in the Notre Dame football coaching job. But, he calmly added today, he knows he won't get it. "I wouldn't have a chance," declared the 38-year-old Cleveland attorney. "They wouldn't even consider me. They want some one who has been active in football." That makes him the only member

Man Will Grapple Alligator Here

A wrestling bout with an alligator, a fight with a swordfish and an underwater heavyweight boxing match are among the events planned for the annual water show and carnival of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross on February 13, 14 and 15 at the Shoreham pool. David Ross of Florida, whose fights with alligators have been featured in the newspapers, will put on his act here. Also coming from Florida will be the swordfish, which five of Washington's best swimmers will try to corner. Other high spots on the show will be a war between miniature battle fleets, monsters dropping from the ceiling, spectators jumping into the pool in full evening dress, clowns, fancy divers and formation swimmers.

Columbus Mends Ring Fences For Arkansas Tech Match

All the shake-ups aren't in Cuban politics. For confirmation see Coach Jim McNamara, who is busy trying to fit together the pieces of his Columbus University boxing team for its match with Arkansas Tech Saturday night at Turner's Arena. McNamara virtually is certain to send two newcomers to the post to help the Explorers bag their first victory of the campaign. That 4-4 tie with The Citadel last week didn't sit so well with the mentor, but that isn't the cause of the proposed shuffle. Injuries are to blame. Frank Cuddy, whose eye was chopped up by the Bulldogs' Dick Ulrich, isn't likely to be ready by Saturday. If not, Max Coe will lace on the mittens and pinch-hit for him. And there is a possibility that Stringbean Jim McAleer, 19-year-old heavyweight, will get the call over Ray Weir in a straight change with no injury involved. Master McAleer simply seems to be the better battler.

36 Kayoes Back Vigh, Matched With Soose

Middle Title Seeker Began Fight Game At 10 in Parlor

By SID FEDER. Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Among other things, Ernie Vigh, the cement-chinned clouter from upstate, learned how to knock another guy's ears down the same way your kid sister Mamie learned her piano lessons—by practicing in the front parlor. A Joe Palooka-ish looking fellow, Ernie is only a couple of nurlies away from a shot at Ken Overlin's world middleweight championship. He goes to work on one of these barriers by tangling with Billy Soose, the glamour boy from Penn State College, in a 10-rounder tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden. The winner tackles Overlin in mid-March. Not Good for Ceiling. Vigh was just a 10 or 11 year old kid when he got the idea he'd like to take up the trade of thumping chins. His older brother, Julius, a fair light-heavyweight at the time, helped Ernie out by hanging a punching bag from the ceiling of the parlor in their home at Newburgh, N. Y. "Mama didn't like that very much," Ernie recalled today. "I'd stand on a soap box so I could reach the bag and I'd throw punches at it. There were times I'd let a good, solid one go and the plaster on the ceiling began to show signs of wear and tear. I'd have to disappear fast then." Nevertheless, this living-room larping probably is what developed Ernie's ability to do strange things to his opponents. He's lost only three decisions, but one of his conquerors, Larry Kellum, was flattened in a return go. Ernie Knocks Out 36. To date, he's had 52 pro fights in his two-and-one-half years as a pro and has knocked out 36 rivals, 10 of them in one round. He has lost only three decisions, but one of his conquerors, Larry Kellum, was flattened in a return go. This knocker-outer talent, plus his ability to absorb punches to his chin, as successfully as a sponge can be dunked in coffee, are his strong fortes in the ring. A few weeks ago, for instance, he met one Coley Welch from Maine in the Garden. For three rounds Welch measured his man and pitched shots at Ernie's chin, with no more effect than a feather duster. Then Vigh came on and won going away.

20 Years Ago In The Star

James J. Connolly of Georgetown University ran second in the Hunter mile in the Boston A. A. games, losing by a narrow margin to H. C. Culbitt of the host club. Charles Albea was forced to record a perfect score to nose out C. C. Fawcett, who shattered 49 out of 50 targets in the Washington Gun Club shoot. Central High staged a great rally in the closing minutes of their game with the University of Virginia Freshmen, to take a 28-to-25 decision.

Seton Hall's Tossers Score 38th Win in Amazing Streak

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Seton Hall's amazing basketball winning streak goes on and on. Seton Hall made it 38 in a row over a three-season stretch by just running all over St. Francis of Pennsylvania, 36-22. It was the Jerseyans' 14th straight conquest this season. The 10th Madison Square Garden double-header of the season followed form, although only 9,544 fans turned up to see it. First St. John's nipped Manhattan, 37-35, on Tommy Bae's three field goals in the last two minutes. Then New York University trounced St. Francis of Brooklyn, 32-27. It was the Violets' 10th win of the year. Temple carried the Eastern banner into the Midwest and turned on the heat down the stretch to nose out Loyola of Chicago, 43-40, after trailing, 31-17, well into the second half. Yale barely managed to beat Brown, 49-48. Columbia handed Army its fifth straight setback, 33-26. Princeton snapped out of a two-game losing streak to whip Rutgers, 42-33. A couple of other Eastern Intercollegiate League teams, Dartmouth and Harvard, also came through. The Indians mauled Holy Cross, 65-32, and the Crimson nipped Tufts, 33-32. West Virginia scored a mild upset in downing Penn State, 35-29.

Lee, Former Flyweight Champ of Britain, Dies

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 6.—James "Tancy" Lee, 59, former holder of the British flyweight and featherweight boxing titles, died today of injuries received last night when knocked down by a bus in Leith. Lee won his greatest fame in the ring in 1915 when he knocked out Jimmy Wilde in 17 rounds to win the flyweight title and the Lonsdale belt. He continued in active competition until he was 45 years old.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, Feb. 6.—Don Miller would be glad to carry on for the famed "Four Horsemen" in the Notre Dame football coaching job. Clarke Cuts Smith's Lead to 20 Pins, Arcadia Gains on Luckies in D. L. Races

The SPORTLIGHT Ball Players' Title Golf Is War of Jungle

By GRANTLAND RICE.
ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 6 (N.A.N.A.)—This isn't quite as rough as it sounds. I am referring to the ball players' annual golf championship to be played this week end over Jimmy Fox's Jungle course at St. Petersburg.

You probably have seen such ball players as Lucky Medwick, Wes Ferrell, Paul Derringer, Paul Waner and others in pennant fights. A pennant battle strictly is thin, pink tea compared to one of their winter golf championships.

I've seen young palm trees almost demolished by a barrage of steel heads after fluffed shots or missed putts.

Wes Ferrell triple champion among the ball-playing golfers, never was any dove of peace on the mound. You should see Wes on a golf course in the thick of tournament scrap.

I recall one tournament at Sarasota when by the time he reached the ninth hole Wes had completely destroyed four putters and two niblicks, using the hand and knee system.

And Ducky Medwick is no serene philosopher when he blows one. In a battle between the two the safest spot is a bombproof shelter.

Plenty of Real Talent Among Diamond Stars
Don't get any idea into your head that these ball players are hackers. I'll give you an example. I played with Ducky Medwick around St. Petersburg and he had a 70 which included a 7 on a short par 3 hole. It was only a niblick shot. With a par 3 here he would have had a 66.

In the course of the round Ducky had five birdies.
I've seen Wes Ferrell shoot in the low 70s more than once. If he only could harness one of the most violent tempers I've ever seen in sport he could give most pro golfers an even better shot.

So can Paul Waner, a Pirate rookie when Ring Lardner and I ran across him in 1925. That was only 16 years ago right here in California, when Stuffy McInnis told me that he knew of no one who could hit a baseball as solidly as Rookie Waner.

Tourney Always Produces Colorful Situations
In the last World Series at Cincinnati I caught Paul Derringer, one of the crack Red pitchers, warming up before the game.

"Don't miss that ball players' championship in St. Petersburg," he said. "It will be another World Series."

This tournament usually produces at least one circus event. Last year it started out to be Ferrell's argument with the Dodgers as to whether or not he could continue play after training began, but Medwick soon stole the show. He and Derringer tied for the medal and had to play off.

While Derringer was talking to Jacobus, who was to referee, Joe hooked a ball out of bounds. Then he sliced one of a nearby fairway. Every one thought he was trying to tee off, but Joe said he was just practicing and the match didn't begin until after they had flipped a coin. Jacobus backed him up and it made good copy.

Two years ago there was a story about Waner and Ferrell in the finals. Waner hit into some moss and claimed he had the right to move his ball. Ferrell said, "No!" so Paul finished with two balls, tying Ferrell with the one that was in the moss and beating him with the other. They played the rest of the game to a tie. He and Derringer tied for the medal and had to play off.

Once he squares off and gets one right, I doubt if there is any one who can hit a golf ball farther than amiable Jimmy Fox, who owns and runs a jungle course.

Joe Di Mag to Return Contract Unsigned, Star Indicates
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6 (AP)—Joe Di Maggio, 1940 American League batting champion, is dissatisfied with the New York Yankees' offer for his services and will send back his contract unsigned, he indicated today.

He didn't say what he wanted this year, but indicated that the Yankees offer was too near the reported $2,500 he received last year. Prefacing a statement that he was "feeling great" and expected to report at the Yankee training camp in the best shape ever, Joe asserted he was entitled to an increase.

The North Beach Italian professional has little interest in the $30,000 reportedly given Bob Feller in his 1941 Cleveland Indian contract, or in a similar amount guaranteed Buck Newson by Detroit.

"They're entitled to as much as they can get and the more the better," said Di Maggio.

Big Marlin Caught On a Light Line

By the Associated Press.
KONA, Hawaii, Feb. 6.—Charles Clapp of Orange Cove, Calif., claims a world record for catching an 815-pound black marlin on a 39-thread line regulation tackle. The previous record was a 730-pounder caught at Miami, Fla. Clapp made the catch near where President Roosevelt fished, without getting a bite, when he visited the islands several years ago.

Second Score of 191 Rolled by Burdette, Navy Yard Star

Duplicates at Queen Pin Whopper Shot at Lucky; Interior Pinmen Hot

Lee (Red) Burdette of the Navy Yard and Southeast Leagues today boasted his second season record game of 191.

Early in December Burdette fired his first whopper at the Lucky Strike, scoring 10 marks in a row. Last night he duplicated the count at Queen Pin with two less marks. After two flat boxes he reeled off four spares and two double-header strikes, counting nine on his final spare.

Elmer Wesley with a 200 is the all-time record-holder in the Southeast League.

Finishing with a 414-set, Burdette paced Leagues' 2-1 win from Bantam Press. Other league highlights were Harry Brown's 389, that won an entry in Saturday's Red Megaw tournament; Ducky Cranston's 376; Brad Mandley's 375; Jim Holloway's 384 which aided the Leagues' 2-1 trip to the strong Rosson Motors twice, and Elmer Wesley's 389. Boy's Restaurant counted highs of 653 and 1,719.

The season's set record was topped twice in the Interior Department League when National Capital Parks came through with 1,818 to beat by five sticks their old mark, while Reclamation cracked it with 1,837. Leo Bittner was the Parks top shooter with 157, while Charley DeW's 407 was the potent wallop for Reclamation.

Bill Clamptt, once a District League star, was high with 398 as Schaeffer Motors swamped Brothman's Market 2 with a season record game of 682 and 1,823 in the Petworth League. Bill Dietrich of the losers was tops with 123. Tony De Pino's 391 featured City Awning's sweep over Wonder Bread.

Lucy Owen of Washington Centennial with 125 and 328 was high roller as Washington Centennial grabbed team honors in the Eastern State League. Also tops at the Capital Strike was Hattie Hanson with 330. Bethany and Lebanon are tied for first place with the former leading with total pins.

Despite Fourny Hissey's top scores of 124-328, Fourny No. 1 dropped the odd game to Eldbrooke No. 1 in Methodist Ladies League. Rolling highs at Lucky Strike also were the Eldbrooke No. 1 with 466 and Petworth with 1,349.

Beating her own season record set nine sticks to 348, Virginia Rhoades also shot top string of 124. Her 124-341. Miss Guile boosted her average to 121-12, only nine pins shy of Lucy Rose's top average. Beth Minson's 140-336 was high for Arcadia.

Irene Gochenour, one of the three Rosson substitutes, who is filling in for the touring Lucy Rose, Bianca Wootton and Evelyn Ellis was high for Rosson with 118-318. Margaret Petersilia and Hilda Sprinkle are the other two extras.

Chevy Chase Ice Palace failed to get over its 13th winning match, losing two games to Clarendon as Mary Fike with 132-352, and Alma Mehler with 136, led the invaders to victory. Boots Pettit's 136 and Lucile Young's 350 were high for the Ice Palace. Del Ray with Mary Esten rolling 121 and Florence Sabeen 337, trimmed Georgetown Recreation, 2-1, despite Marge Smith's 128-344.

Individual and team scoring honors were taken by Jones and his O. A. S. I. teammates, who whipped Weather Bureau, 40-25, in the Central Division. Jones scored 18 points. Other games in that section found Scotts Club defeating Shannon & Luchs, 33-28, and Royal Typewriters taking a 22-18 decision from Post Office. In the Roosevelt Division, Retail Clerks beat Immigration, 24-16, and Sixth Presbyterian nosed out Nauman Photo, 22-20.

ASHLAND, Ore., Feb. 6 (AP)—The first time the new electric scoreboard in the Southern Oregon College of Education gymnasium was used it proved inadequate.

Its limit is 99 points. The college team walloped the Jacksonville Townies, 110-15.

Hokie Hits Toboggan With 343 as Rival Chalks Up 381

Arcadia Two Games Out Of First Place; King Pin Girls Set Pace

Out to knock Hokie Smith and his Lucky Strike mates off their top spots in the District League, Astor Clarke of Lafayette Bowling Center was only 20 pins behind the individual leader, while Arcadia gaining undisputed possession of second place, was only two games out of first place.

Hokie almost helped Astor accomplish his purpose when he took his huge 136 average on a toboggan ride at King Pin last night. His count was only 343 as Lucky Strike won a 2-1 decision from the Rhode Island avenue pin plant representatives.

Clarke, shooting for his third consecutive championship, fired 381 at Lafayette and although he dropped several pins below the 129 mark he picked up 38 sticks on Smith, who shrank his top average to approximately 129-15 for 60 games. Throwing in a 154 last game, Clarke was outplayed by Paul Fitzgerald, who featured Lafayette's 2-1 victory over Penn Recreation with 161-419. Games of 633, 606 and 654 netted the winners a count of 1,893.

Arcadia Sweeps Sweep.
Sweeping Brookland Recreation as Ollie Pacini led with 136-373, Arcadia pulled away from a second place tie with Convention Hall.

After losing the first skirmish to Clarendon, 640 to 604, Convention Hall banged out winning scores of 645 and 659 to post the evening's top set of 1,908. Ed Blakney's 135-398 and Tony Santini's 150-396 were high for the invading Hokies. Joe Freschi led the Virginians' first-game win with 142 and finished with 395 but Lou Jenkins topped his efforts with 160-396.

Harry Hilliard was the standout pin mauler of the night when he fired 162-443 as Hyattsville smeared the visiting Georgetown Recreation with 646-1,885. The Westenders dropped the final tilt by one lone mauler, 630 to 629. Harry Wolfe's 382 and Perce Wolfe's last-box counting also were valuable to the winners. Sam Benson's 143-401 was high for the losers.

The champion Rossvins eked out a first game win from the invading Chevy Chase Ice Palace quint by two pins but were on the short end of the winning counts in the final two. Paul Jarman's 153-388 and Ed Nash's 155-385 gave the winners their edge. Whip Litchfield led the Rossvins with 150-385 while George Clark shot 379.

King Pin Girls Lead.
King Pin, on total pins, rides in front of the Ladies' District League flag. The Del Ray with Mary Esten rolling 121 and Florence Sabeen 337, trimmed Georgetown Recreation, 2-1, despite Marge Smith's 128-344.

Mrs. Rose was tops in the Spartansburg doubles victory with 140-385, while Ida Simmons was high in the team win with 154-369.

Green Hornet Meets Bockwinkle in Mat Feature Tonight

Seeks Fifth Win in Six Matches; R. Dusek and Boesch Do Battle

Seeking his fifth victim in six starts, The Green Hornet, masked wrestler in emerald, will meet Warren (Flash) Bockwinkle, of St. Louis, in tonight's feature at Turner's Arena.

The Hornet already has demonstrated that he cares little for the rules of wrestling, and is determined to stamp himself as the "most wicked" grappler ever to hit these parts.

Most of The Hornet's matches have been won by reason of body bends.
Lou Plummer, another villain ran into The Hornet last week and was rubber out in 17 minutes.

Rudy Dusek, who hopes to get a crack at The Hornet, will meet Earl Boesch of California in the semi-main event.
Red Brill, a cowboy from Texas, will make his bow, meeting Milo (Strong Man) Steinborn. Plummer faces Joe De Valteau and Fred Grobmer, master of the scissors, will engage Dick Stahl.

Individual and team scoring honors were taken by Jones and his O. A. S. I. teammates, who whipped Weather Bureau, 40-25, in the Central Division. Jones scored 18 points. Greenskeeping Group Fights to Rate as Golf Amateurs

Held Pros by U. S. G. A., See Status as Same As College Coaches

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 6.—The Greenskeeping Superintendents' Association has protested—and strenuously—against classification of its members as professionals by the United States Golf Association.

Delegates from 30 States and Canada, attending the 15th national conference of the turf technicians, voted unanimously today to file an objection with goldfom's ruling body over the regulation which puts the greenskeepers among the professionals.

The men who groom the grass believe they should have been extended the same courtesy as school and college coaches, when the U. S. G. A. at its January 11 meeting classed those teachers as amateurs.

The superintendents pointed to the fact that they do not earn their living by teaching or playing golf, but indicated they were willing to wear a cap and gown, if necessary, to qualify for the amateur tournaments.

President John Gray of the golf superintendents, from Windsor, Conn., declared that several younger members of the G. S. A. would be a threat in any amateur competition. He pointed specifically to Emil Massiochi of Chicago's Onwenstia Club, the present national champion of the greenskeepers and who clipped seven strokes off par with a 71-64-135 performance at the Indianapolis Speedway course last October to beat the field of superintendents.

Norman Johnson, superintendent of the Medical Country Club, was appointed chairman of the committee to handle negotiations with the U. S. G. A. on the matter which the greenskeepers consider an unfair boycott of eligible amateur players.

Want More Federal Aid.
The greenskeeping superintendents also moved to put turf improvement on the same basis as tobacco and mushrooms insofar as Federal appropriations are concerned.

Joe Ryan of the Rolling Green Golf Club, Media, Pa., former president of the turf technicians and present chairman of the group's Federal Turf Research Committee, said that more than $500,000 annually was appropriated from Federal funds for tobacco study, improvement and development.

Mushrooms, too, Ryan declared, come in for a hefty cut of Federal cash, while turf improvement of all kinds gets Government aid of less than $4,000.

Need for Government funds to aid in the study of turf improvement of the turf technicians was evidenced by the fact that 10,000,000 acres of turf are affected annually in highway-erosion programs in America, along with 1,000 square miles in grassed areas of parks and playgrounds.

Bancroft declared Federal aid in turf research problems would also aid the present defense program.

Airport officials now are seeking information on desirable turf for runways, it was said, pointing out war in Europe has proved the vulnerability of concrete runways.

Parker Casts His Lot With Pro Football
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Clarence "Ace" Parker has made his choice and it is football.

The former Duke athlete who won the 1940 National Football League's most valuable award while virtually playing on one leg for Brooklyn, has chosen a two-year Dodge contract, the terms of which virtually end any possibility of a career as a major league ball player.

Veteran Roger Cramer Becomes Griffman
Roger Cramer, veteran outfielder, is a full-fledged member of the Washington baseball team today and predicting great things for the Griff's in '41 race.

Cramer signed yesterday. He will go south with the first detachment of players to leave Washington late this month.

Cramer, a left-handed hitter who throws with his right, was obtained from Boston in a three-cornered deal among Washington, the Red Sox and Cleveland.

Kovacs, Riggs Extended To Survive in South Florida Tournament

By the Associated Press.
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—Seeded favorites, some of whom had trouble surviving the quarter-finals, clashed today in the South Florida tennis tournament.

Frank Kovacs, the California clown, encountered Hal Surface of Kansas City.
Top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Chicago matched strokes with Ed Allog of Rollins College.

Billy Grant of Atlanta, perennial upset artist, met Jack Kramer of Los Angeles.
Elwood Cooke of New York faced Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., who ousted seventh-seeded Billy Talbert of Cincinnati, 6-4, 7-5.

Kovacs was forced three sets to whip Gus Ganzenmuller of Port Washington, N. Y., 3-6, 7-5, 7-5, and Riggs also was extended in beating Dick McKee of Miami, 6-1, 6-8, 6-3.

Three Golf Rulers Are Teamed In Texas as Betty Jameson, Little, Nelson Seek Title

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 6.—Three rulers of American golf, including a comely, subum-haired lass who shyly agreed to "play just this once" in a man's tournament, were paired today in one of the games unique foursomes in the pro-amateur event of the Texas Open Golf Tournament.

If rain that pattered overnight doesn't interfere, National Open Champion Lawson Little, National P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson and National Women's Champion Betty Jameson will team with handsome Louie Windland, local ace, in the pro-amateur foursome.

Over the Willow Springs layout that took one of the worst lickings in its history yesterday in pre-tournament workout rounds, Little and Miss Jameson, queen of women golf the past two years, will team as a unit.

Bashful Betty will carry a handicap of five strokes. She normally plays the 6,600-yard par 36-35-71 course in the middle and high 70s.

Goalie Ceryance 7th Oriole Chosen for All-Star Team

Baltimore Takes Lead In Defeating Rovers; Eagles Play Boston

Frank Ceryance, Baltimore's great goalie who scored his second shutout of the season last night when his Orioles assumed the Eastern Amateur Hockey League lead by whipping the New York Rovers, 2-0, will be in the nets for the league's All-Star team which faces the Washington Eagles at Riverside Stadium tomorrow night.

Including Ceryance, the All-Stars are due to have seven of Baltimore's high-flying ice men, four stars from River Vale and three from the Rovers. Coach Pick Hines, one of the Stars' two coaches, claimed today that it was the best all-star aggregation that had been formed since the league was organized.

Hines, the Baltimore coach, said he would use all seven of his stars against the Eagles.

Outstanding players of the rival teams will be presented with two handsome trophies immediately after the game. The D. C. Ice Hockey Writers' Association will give a 17-inch cup to the Washington player selected, while Owner S. G. Leoffler will make a similar award to the chosen member of the All-Star team.

The Eagles, determined to snap their string of four losses, are scheduled to play the Boston Olympics at the Boston Garden tonight, but will leave for home immediately after the game. They have whipped the Olympics in six of seven games already in this season.

Inexpensive Fish From Southern Waters Keep Local Markets Well Stocked

Meat Prices Show Slight Reduction This Week End, Led by Beef and Pork

Careful Marketing Discloses Number of Vegetables That Are Still Very Reasonable

By Betsy Caswell, Women's Editor

Whether or not it is the result of determined non-buying on the part of Washington housewives, we cannot tell exactly, but certainly many meat prices show a slight drop this week as compared to last. Beef and pork are decidedly more reasonable, with lamb also showing a slight reduction. Veal continues high, in most markets, but there are good bargains in sausages, hams, spareribs, commercial loafs, etc., to be found everywhere. Poultry is plentiful, and not too high, although turkeys and stewing chickens would appear to be the best buys. However, there are good fryers and roasting chickens to be had, if the budget can stand spending a little more. Guineas are about reaching the end of their season—incidentally, they have never been better than this year. Squab pursues the even tenor of its way as to price and quality—but a plump young bird is always a treat for the connoisseur.

Plenty of medium priced fish is coming in from Florida, although the more expensive items, such as pompano, are selling so well in the South that few of them are reaching us here—and those few, of course, are quite high in price. However, we have a wide selection from which to choose—and all of the items included will put little or no strain on the finances. Trout, Spanish mackerel and red snapper are especially good; there is some fresh cod available, and the supply of shad from Southern waters is coming in steadily. Sweet, tender little bass and silvery smelts are also recommended. Although crab lump has been somewhat scarce, there is a good supply of it on hand in many of the local fish markets, along with lobsters and lobster meat. Shrimp, raw and cooked, are not expensive, and unusually good just now, while oysters are at their prime.

Leafy greens, such as collards, spinach and kale are among the best vegetable buys this week end. Celery, cabbage, anise, white radishes for cooking (add a little milk to the cooking water to keep them white), string beans, sprouts, crisp watercress and fat leeks are also suggested. It is rumored that peas will be lower by the end of the week—but that remains to be seen. Lettuce is better than it has been, with shipments of the Boston type and romaine available, but watercress has succumbed to the weather and the first part of the week was conspicuous by its absence. Tomatoes are lower than they have been, but cucumbers are high and very "fancy." Citrus fruits continue excellent, both in price and in quality—there's no excuse for your not getting the essential vitamins which they contain! Plums and nectarines from Argentina are proving delicious if allowed to ripen rather slowly in a warm room, and there are apples of every kind priced most attractively. Rhubarb and strawberries still lend the springtime touch, and are really very good.

Had You Ever Thought of This One?

For these cold, frosty mornings let's give our family a treat and start them off to work and school with a smile. Give them a pep-up breakfast, an apple-sausage French-toast sandwich. Allow two pieces of French toast for each person, two links of sausage or a large sausage cake broiled. Have apple rings fried in butter; then generously sprinkle with superfine sugar and place under the broiler for just a second; then serve piping hot. Maybe one sandwich each will not be enough!

Dorothy Dix Says - - - Girls Must Be Highly Honorable In Their Dealings With Men

Dear Miss Dix—I am a staunch believer that a woman sets the pace in any situation, especially in her dealings with men, and I don't think that girls give boys a fair break in not making their intentions toward them explicit so that the boy will know where he stands. Every girl plays the field of young men for her own gains and for that alone. Not one hesitates to carry a half-dozen young fellows along, making each feel that he stands out in her opinion above the rest. Then comes the fatal day when she blossoms forth with a sparkling ring from one of the lot. What are the other five to do? I would appreciate knowing what you think of this side of the situation. Perhaps you can suggest something to help some of us back on our feet.

Answer—Perhaps the love game can never be played with all the cards on the table and with every player being perfectly square and honest. And especially is this true of women, for they are handicapped by not being able to select the men they would like to have for husbands and court them openly and frankly. A girl can't say to a boy: "John, I love you. Will you marry me? I have a good job and I think I could support you in the style in which your father has always done." No, she has to dissemble her feelings and desires and sit on the sidelines and pretend she hasn't even noticed John until some freak of luck makes him see her. So the only chance she has of getting the man she wants is to gather around herself as many men as she can in the hope that among them she will find one who will be what she wants.

This is no sin, believe me. For while she is looking out for Mr. Right she has to ensure all sorts and conditions of men—she has to look interested while she is listening to bores who are so tiresome they make her want to scream. She has to dance with bores who step on her feet and ruin her slippers. She has to stave off pawers without insulting them and making them mad. She has to date with tightwads who begrudge her an ice-cream soda. She has to go through sufferings

Sampler for Children

By Baroness Piantoni
The peace and quiet that reigns in the nursery when little tots repeat "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray thee Lord my soul to keep, if I should die before I wake, I pray thee Lord my soul to take, if I should live for other days, I pray thee Lord to guide my ways." The sampler with its quaint lettering is simple cross-stitch and its well-thought-out picture in outline stitching hung in the nursery will be a gentle reminder to her not to hurry over or miss entirely these precious moments. The youngster, too, will be inspired with this wall panel even though still not at the reading age. The pattern comprises one hot-iron transfer design, measuring 11 by 16 inches; color chart with illustrations of the stitches; also full information and instructions. Ask for No. 1591 and inclose 15 cents. Address orders to the Needlework Editor of The Evening Star.

Some Old and New Tricks To Try Out on 'The Gang' When Boredom Sets In

Puzzlers and 'Gags' Will Do Much to Enliven Evening That Fails to Sparkle

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

Have you ever experienced any of those awful moments when your date starts palming his yawns and you can't think of a thing to do or say? At a time like that a simple parlor trick can be worth its weight in gold—even if it isn't very good. And those we're telling you about today ARE good!

For example, here's a bit of match magic which we've used on a dozen occasions, and it's never failed to elevate every eyebrow in sight. Take two paper matches from their book, being careful that they are equal in length and that the ends are reasonably square. With a pencil, put a heavy black mark on one side of each match.

Now place the matches side by side, pencil marks up, the ends pressing against the tips of your left thumb and forefinger. They should be about a quarter of an inch apart. With the tips of the right thumb and forefinger, grasp the matches by their middles and turn them end over end. Have the forefinger on top when you do this, and turn the matches with a smooth twist of the wrist. When you grasp them again in the left hand, the unmarked sides are up.

Now starts the hocus-pocus. Again grasp and flip the matches, but this time also roll them over between the thumb and forefinger. To the amazement of your audience (we hope) the unmarked sides will still be up, although you obviously turned

Flip them again, this time without the roll, bringing the marked sides up. Flip once more, with the roll, and the matches will now appear to be marked on both sides!

You can keep this up almost indefinitely, and if you're reasonably clever, you can discover the trick unless he's in on it or just naturally too smart. A little practice will show you how simple this stunt is. Just be sure that your fingers are supple before you start to do it.

And here's one to fill in that pause after the waitress brings you your soda straws and water glasses, but before she finally produces the soda. If the straws are encased in paper, tap them smartly on the table, then peel the paper jacket down quickly, so that it looks like a tiny accordion. Now sprinkle a few drops of water on the paper and watch it wiggle and crawl across the table until its folds are all straightened out. Ordinarily we don't advocate playing with your eating utensils, but this stunt is inoffensive and eminently safe. The point just under the skin at the middle of the banana. Push the needle perhaps an inch farther around its circumference. Inserting the point again in the "out" hole, repeat the process until the middle of the banana is completely encircled by the loop of thread just under the skin.

Now grasp the end of the thread and pull steadily. It will come out, leaving the skin intact but with the fruit neatly divided in half. In the evening, tell Joe that you have a special kind of bananas grown for you, already divided, and give him the fruit to peel in the usual way. Watch his jaw hit his top vest button when he discovers the division. He'll spend the rest of the evening trying to figure it out.

If you're in a giddy mood some evening, you might bet the boy friend that you can stand facing him on a newspaper, and he still can't kiss—or touch—you. After his noods of disbelief have exhausted themselves, show him how it's done, by placing the newspaper in a doorway, getting him to stand on one side, and then closing the door between you.

Or bet him that he can't lie on the floor, arms folded across his chest, and rise to his feet without touching his elbows or hands to the floor. Or bet him you'll lose this little gamble, but not often.

And here's a little mental footer that you can try on your date or your gang with complete assurance that most of them will miss it. A boy had six pairs of blue socks and

Misconstrued Friendliness Of In-Laws

Divorce No Reason For Grandmother Not Seeing Child

By Emily Post

From the standpoint of strict propriety, all their in-law relationships are severed by the divorce of a husband and wife. This is the worldly answer to the letter that says: "My son is being divorced by his wife. They have been married 25 years and have two children. Naturally I feel very bad about this, but so far have done nothing to sever my relationship with my daughter-in-law. I am still going about with her and every day feel more loyal to my son, because I think being seen with her may look to many people as though I were taking sides with her, and I am not. In truth, I see her for the sake of the children. What is right in the eyes of the world?"

In answer to this, I can only say that of far more importance than the "eyes of the world" is the question of mitigating, as much as possible, the unhappiness of the children. Therefore, whatever is best for them is the objective to be sought for, and of next importance—to you possibly of first importance—is consideration of the feelings of your son.

If you feel that he was unfairly treated, then being seen with his ex-wife as regularly as before their separation would certainly be showing disloyalty to him. But if they have remained friends, and if neither has caused the other any real pain, then the best the children are made to feel the breaking up of their home the better. And in such a case your conduct would be—I think—right. Certainly their tranquility—as much of it as can be preserved—should come before public opinion.

New Beauty Aids for Winter

These Products Will Preserve Skin Texture

By Patricia Lindsay

Whether you are a winter sports enthusiast or simply an unfortunate woman who must live long months in a cold climate, you will be more than elated to know that there are three new beauty products especially mixed for your needs. One is (and praise be that some one thought of presenting it to us who suffers from chronic chapping) a satiny lotion to be rubbed all over the body, hands and face after a bath. Ages ago heated, rare oils were rubbed on the skin of famous beauties during cold weather, and we women of today should be thrilled that we can do likewise at little cost. This new body lotion is flesh-colored—just to be more appealing.

For very dry skin, or faces exposed to reflected sun from snow, there is a rich protective film which keeps your face looking as dewy as a flower petal at dawn and it actually does prevent drying and chapping. Any woman (sports enthusiast or not) may use this as a make-up base during nippy weather. It has the smoothness of velvet and cream roses blend with it exquisitely. You may wear it with or without face powder—many young things like a shining countenance instead of a mat one.

You may find that your very favorite lipstick is not sufficient to keep your lips smooth and unchapped when Arctic winds blow. To cope with this problem there is a brand-new sportstick which is neither a lipstick nor a pomade. It is, however, a most excellent foundation for your favorite lip rouge and it does a splendid job of keeping your lips invitingly smooth! You apply it, naturally, before you go out of doors.

Smart Three-Piece Outfit Fine for Playtime Wear

By Barbara Bell
Right now, little Miss 2-to-6 can wear this frock with its mite of a bolero, and be very smart indeed in the playground or kindergarten. Later on, when the weather turns warm and she plays on the sea sands, she'll wear the sleeveless frock (a sweet thing it is, too) and the bolero to shade her eyes. All three play pieces that you'll make with this design are cute as a dimpled elbow, and so easy to do that you can turn them all out in a few hours.

Buttercup yellow chambray, blue checked gingham and flowered percale are pretty for this tot's fashion, with trimmings of rickrack braid. Make it up time and again, because you'll love the way your small daughter looks in it, and it's so practical and comfy.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1313-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 2 1/2 yards of Listen, Fellas!

Although we hate to even intimate that women have more color-sense than men, it looks as though that may be the reason behind their more highly successful ensembling.

For instance, since the girls have been wearing suits, they've discovered that there's usually one color, such as the fleck in the material, which can be "picked up" and repeated in accessories to give a new life and interest to the costume in general.

Our idea is that it would be a good thing for the fellas to watch, too. Most of your new spring suits will be easy to ensemble if you know how to go about picking up the indistinct color note that should set the pace for the "accessorizing."

Fortunately, most of the new suits are easy to fit up with furnishings, for most everything looks well with them. But, listen, fellas, watch it, will ya?
