Nazis Get Two Footholds in Crete; Martinique Reported Warned by France to Prepare to Repulse U. S.

British Fighters Are Withdrawn From Crete

BACKGROUND— Fighting broke out in Crete Tuesday as Germans began landing troops by plane and glider. First attacks were repulsed by defending Allies. British reported, but admissions came yesterday that the Germans were establishing themselves at a few points on the island. British fleet reported to have entered the battle yesterday.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 22.—German troops pouring from the sky on the third day of a mass aerial invasion of Crete have wrested two footholds from the Greek island's British and Greek defenders, the British acknowledged today.

A New Zealand division, a scattering of Australians and Greek land forces apparently had been left to defend Crete against the German "vertical" approach. It was reported they could without the aid of R. A. F. fighter planes.

An official statement here admitted that the R. A. F. fighting force was withdrawn from Crete as soon as the attack started Tuesday because of "the pronounced disadvantage" of operating from the limited airbases of the island. The defenders, of course, still had strong naval protection.

Analogy to Britain Denied.
"To do otherwise would have been a waste of the air forces involved," said a statement which warned against considering an invasion of Crete analogous to what Britain might expect.

"The distance of Crete from our airbases in Egypt is such as to preclude any possibility of strong air support by the R. A. F. from our bases there," the statement said.

The defense operation at Crete, it said, "must be regarded as one in which, on our side, naval and land forces primarily are employed. Offensive air operations are, however, being carried out by our bomber units in Egypt against airbases from which the enemy are operating in their attacks on Crete."

In New York, the German radio was heard broadcasting that Stuka bombers had sunk a British cruiser off Crete and had severely damaged two others.

(Authorized sources in Berlin, however, listed only one cruiser damaged in addition to the one reported to have been sunk and located the scene of the attack merely as the Eastern Mediterranean.)

(This was in addition to the attack yesterday, in which today's Nazi high command communique said a British battle ship, six cruisers and a destroyer were hit by air bombs in the Mediterranean.)

Nazis Take Town of Candia.
Prime Minister Churchill informed the House of Commons that Nazi paratroopers had taken the town of Candia, but that British troops still held the airport there.

The Near East command in Cairo acknowledged that the town of Malmei was in Nazi hands.

Both reports, however, called the German gains only isolated successes in the heretofore airless warfare against German soldiers dropping from the skies in transports and floating down by glider and parachute.

Both also said that attempts by the Germans to put supporting forces ashore from the sea had been frustrated.

Nazis Paying Heavily.
From these accounts, the Germans appeared to be paying heavily, both at sea and ashore, to establish themselves on the island, which the British have said they will defend "to the death."

Middle East headquarters said German casualties yesterday were higher than on the first day of the assault, when the skies began raining down Nazis before dawn.

Hess Bailed Out During Chase By R. A. F. Plane, Commons Told

Air Chief Says Hamilton Had Never Met Deputy Fuehrer Before Landing in Scotland

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 22.—Rudolf Hess, the runaway deputy fuhrer of Nazi Germany, bailed out of his Messerschmitt May 10 after hot pursuit by an R. A. F. Defiant fighter plane. Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told the House of Commons today. The Sinclair statement, one of the most revealing official statements so far in the Hess case, thus contained a possible explanation of the bullet holes which the British found in the tail of Hess' wrecked Messerschmitt.

The British Defiant was "hot on the trail" of the Messerschmitt, following it in the darkness, when Hess bailed out, Sinclair said. He did not say, however, whether the Defiant fired on the Messerschmitt.

The Duke of Hamilton, premier Scottish peer and R. A. F. squadron leader, for whom Hess is said to have asked when he was picked up, injured from his parachute jump, never met the Deputy Fuehrer before the night he confronted Hess as a

Biggest R. A. F. Drive Opened on German Centers in Libya

5,000 More Italians Taken in Southern Ethiopia, British Announce

By EDWARD KENNEDY, Associated Press War Correspondent.
WITH BRITISH DESERT FORCES IN NORTH AFRICA, May 22.—The Royal Air Force has unleashed its most intensive effort of the desert war so far against German concentrations and transport columns in Libya.

In the past 30 hours, the British say, eight German planes have been destroyed—five on the ground and three in the air—and an ammunition dump and a gasoline dump have been exploded.

As flight after flight of British bombers showed missiles through the day and night, R. A. F. fighter planes skimmed over the roads and desert trails sending thousands of incendiary bullets into Axis vehicles.

German aviation in the desert is described by the British as remaining strangely inactive. Among steps to counter the British air offensive, however, the Nazis are said to have stationed tanks at regular intervals along the roads and trails to shoot at low-flying, strafing British planes.

The main target of British air attacks has been a concentration in the Capuzzo-Bardia area, just across the Libyan frontier from Egypt, which is said to be made up of about 2,000 vehicles.

Supply transportation to this concentration, however, is regarded as only normal, and the British say there is nothing to indicate that the Nazis plan an imminent offensive.

The only land action of the past week was reported by the Associated Press.

MANILA, May 22.—The National Assembly early today approved by an overwhelming majority a resolution seeking indefinite suspension of the export taxes quota provisions of the Philippine Independence Act.

By JAMES ALDRIDGE, War Correspondent. The Star and N. A. N. A. (By wireless).
CAIRO, May 22.—The British say information received by wireless from British military commanders in Crete contains interesting details about the tactics used by the Germans in the biggest airborne war movement they have yet made.

The first batch of Germans in New Zealand uniforms, landed before dawn Tuesday from more than a hundred low-flying Junkers and Pöckel-Wolf four-engine aircraft.

Choosing the four flattest stretches which had been used by the British as air fields, the initial parachute troops landed from 400 feet. British planes had left the island the day before.

Island Ordered To Prepare for American Attack

VICHY, Unoccupied France, May 22.—Reports given publicly in German-occupied Paris said today that defense forces in the French Caribbean island of Martinique had received orders to prepare for an American attack.

The newspaper Le Matin, published in Paris, said yesterday that defense of Martinique would be centered around the fortress holding gold reserves of the Bank of France and that its defenders would blow up the stronghold as a last resort.

Martinique defenses were being strengthened, the newspaper said.

(In Washington, Secretary Hull gave implied assurance that Martinique had no reason to fear invasion by the United States action against it and described French reports that an American attack is in prospect as German-inspired propaganda.)

Secretary Stimson Again Urges Repeal Of Neutrality Act

Reiteration of Position, Long Held, Follows Same Appeal by Knox

By NELSON M. SHEPARD.
Repeal of the Neutrality Act and maintenance of the traditional policy of "freedom of the seas" for American merchant ships was advocated today by Secretary of War Stimson as an "answer" to the question of delivering war munitions to Great Britain.

His reiteration of views he is known to have held for a long time had added significance, since it followed closely a statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox, who yesterday said he favored repeal of the Neutrality Act.

Mr. Stimson made no direct reference to conveying, his position having been made clear in a recent radio address, in which he was the first cabinet officer to urge use of the American Navy to safeguard the delivery of war materials across the seas. He did not use the word "convoy."

The issue arose again at a press conference when the Secretary was asked if he favored now the repeal of the Neutrality Act. His reply was immediate.

Recalls Prophecy of "Trouble."
He declared he had always believed in repeal of the Neutrality Act and had been on record, as a private citizen, in a speech he had made before the Institute of International Law.

"I have always considered it a violation of one of our most sacred and important traditions—freedom of the seas," he said. "Also, I have always prophesied it would bring us into trouble to give in to our fears in this matter."

Asked if he regarded repeal of the act or a redeclaration of the "freedom of the seas" policy as an answer to the question of delivering goods, Mr. Stimson replied, "I certainly do think it will have to be very carefully considered as one of the answers to delivering these goods."

Mr. Stimson, who was an artillery officer in the World War, described (See STIMSON, Page A-4.)

Report German-Inspired Propaganda, Hull Says

Secretary of State Hull today described reports from France concerning prospects of an American attack on Martinique as German-inspired propaganda aimed at creating an entirely erroneous impression.

His comments were made at his press conference in response to questions about reports in German-occupied Paris that the French Caribbean island of Martinique had received orders to prepare for an American attack.

Smith Says Congress Should Act on Need Of Potomac Tunnel

By J. A. O'LEARY.
The traffic situation in and around Washington has become so acute Congress should pass on the need for a tunnel under the Potomac River without creating a commission to study the question, Representative Howard Smith, Democrat, of Virginia told a House committee today.

Although his bill, which came before the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee this morning goes no further than to set up a board to make preliminary surveys, Mr. Smith said so many things have happened since he introduced the bill to swell the traffic load "that this committee itself will well determine the desirability of the project."

"Since the bill was introduced, Washington has become a very crowded city," Mr. Smith said. "The area across the river has become virtually a part of the Capital. The new airport has been finished."

Situation Declared Serious.
From the national defense standpoint, the traffic situation in crossing the river is becoming serious, Mr. Smith testified.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway engineer said, additional facilities across the river could properly be classified as a defense need.

Under questioning by committee members, he said the District Government is "decidedly not" able to finance such a project at this time.

He recommended that the entire proposal be carefully surveyed, as to locations, type of facility and methods of financing. The $25,000 authorized in the bill for the survey should be $50,000, he suggested.

Tunnel Held Preferable

Capt. Whitehurst whose recent preliminary study of District traffic needs included recommendation for a tunnel under the river between Alexandria and Blue Plains, testified that flying conditions make a tunnel preferable across the lower Potomac.

When Representative Harris, Democrat, of Virginia asked if a tunnel also would be safer from a defense standpoint than another bridge, if Washington should be attacked, Capt. Whitehurst said that is a debatable question.

"I'm not an expert, but there are those who say yes and those who say no," he replied. He explained some experts contend the tunnel is an easier target for bombing planes, because it can be spotted by the (See HIGHWAYS, Page A-3.)

Navy Takes Action In Attempts to Halt Shipyards Strike

By the Associated Press.
OAKLAND, Calif., May 22.—The Navy took over today in an attempt to reopen strikebound shipyards on the San Francisco Bay.

More than 40 Navy and Marine Corps vehicles were mobilized at the Navy Temple and carried some 800 shipyard workers to the Moore Drydock plant and others to the General Engineering Shipyard.

(In Washington the Senate Defense Investigating Committee set a hearing for tomorrow on the West Coast shipbuilding tie-up, which Chairman Truman said was "to find out what is involved in the strike, who it has not been settled, and who is responsible for the country not getting ships.")

Senator Truman said witnesses would include representatives of the involved San Francisco unions, a spokesman for Bethlehem Steel, probably Vice President A. B. Homer, Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, and others, possibly including John P. Frey, head of the A. F. L. Metal Workers' Union.

A. F. L. and C. I. O. machinists closed 11 shipyards 13 days ago. The yards held a half billion dollars worth of defense contracts.

Crossed Picket Lines.
There was no certainty whether the Navy force being landed at plants today. Yesterday groups of A. F. L. shipyard workers—not machinists, crossed picket lines.

All 1,700 machinists are on strike and approximately 13,000 others are idle because of the situation.

Admiral John Greenleaf, commandant of the 12th Naval District, visited the Moore plant today before the workmen were brought in. He was not in uniform.

A. P. M. Appeal For Picket Fund Bared at Probe

Cost of Line Setup At White House Put At $100 a Day

BACKGROUND—
Dies Committee began investigation of un-American or subversive activities nearly three years ago, has conducted extensive hearings and secret probes here and in cities throughout country. With threatened war, its findings on alleged operations of Nazi, Communist and Fascist followers have attracted more widespread attention.

By JAMES E. CHINN.
The American Peace Mobilization, whose representatives are carrying on an "around the clock" picket in front of the White House, sent out a telegraphic appeal to nine prominent persons three days ago for funds to carry on the demonstration, according to information given today to a special subcommittee of the Dies Committee investigating un-American activities.

The picketing, it was revealed, is costing A. P. M. $100 a day.

The information was given the subcommittee by one of its two undercover woman agents—Miss Hazel Huffman. She read a telegram said to have been sent Monday to the nine persons by Marion Briggs of A. P. M. appealing for funds to carry on the picketing at the White House.

The wire, which was seized by committee agents at the Postal Telegraph Co., read:

"Peace vigil at the White House approaching the 340th hour. Still going strong. Urgently need money to keep going. Vigil costs $100 per day. Please send airmail special any funds you can."

Persons Are Listed.
Persons to whom the appeal was directed, according to the telegram read by Miss Huffman, were Lionel Stander, the movie actor; Herman Shulman, Broadway theatrical producer; George Marshall, identified as a member of the editorial council of Soviet Russia Today; Mrs. Guggenheimer, Anna Rochester and Alfred Stern, all of New York City; Herbert Biberman of Los Angeles and Mrs. Ellen Brandstetter of Chicago.

Miss Spargo, former Washington Daily News reporter, another undercover agent of the Dies Committee, preceded her colleague on the witness stand and testified she had been told the A. P. M. had made "considerable progress" in organizing workers at the Washington Navy Yard.

Miss Spargo said Charles T. Gift, who testified before the Dies Committee in executive session about a year ago concerning alleged Communist activities at the Washington Navy Yard, is an employe at the plant and is "active" in A. P. M.

Recounting her experiences at a peace rally in New York last month, she said to have been sponsored by A. P. M. Miss Spargo testified that Mrs. Helen Miller, whom she identified as the wife of an attorney for the Bituminous Coal Commission, during an address declared America is an "imperialist nation" and that its government employes are overworked and underpaid.

Links Officials to Reds.
Miss Spargo told the subcommittee yesterday an administrative officer of the Coal Commission had told her the agency was "loaded from top to bottom with Communists."

Hugh Miller, husband of Mrs. Miller, Miss Spargo said, is the secretary of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action. She declared she "believed" Mrs. Miller is employed in the Labor Department.

The subcommittee also was told by Miss Spargo that a statement was made by a speaker at the New York rally that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and Committee Chairman Dies are the "three leading Fascists in this country." Miss Spargo said her investigation of A. P. M. had convinced her its "party line" completely coincides with that of the Communist party.

She later related her observations at a meeting of the Washington unit of A. P. M. on U. S. street several months ago at which a campaign was started to obtain jobs for 7,000 Negroes at the Glenn Martin aircraft factory at Baltimore. Buttons were sold at this meeting, she said, to raise campaign funds.

During the meeting of the Washington chapter of A. P. M. on U. S. street, Miss Spargo said, Mr. Dorothy Strange and Jack Zucker, whom she identified as vice president.

Racing News Ross van's Comment

FIRST RACE—MOWMET, PETE'S GOLD, LITTLE SCANDAL. MOWMET just galloped to win his first race at the meeting and right off that corking test the gelding must be taken for a repeat performance.

SECOND RACE—RED IDOL, WESTING, SCHLEY BUCK. RED IDOL copped his last test with speed in reserve and in good running time. There appears nothing in this affair capable of giving him a licking.

THIRD RACE—GROUCHY. FIRST RACE—Purse $400. Maiden 2-year-olds and up, 1 1/2 miles. 1.10. 2.10. 3.10. 4.10. 5.10. 6.10. 7.10. 8.10. 9.10. 10.10.

FOURTH RACE—CHIEF HOLLIS, PLEASANT LADY, SMALL CHANGE. CHIEF HOLLIS made every pole a winning one in his first start of the year and at this distance the Tall Timber gelding should be the victor.

FIFTH RACE—DUCHESS DEL IVONIA, BUFFOON. DUCHESS DEL has a conditioner at this strip and now she should be ready to turn on her best speed. A try would land her in the winner's circle.

SIXTH RACE—BIG JACK, TANTRUM, CLAY HILL. BIG JACK was badly trimmed in his first start at this strip, but his previous form, including a win at Pimlico, says he is the stoutest kind of threat.

SEVENTH RACE—POMARY, WELSH LAD, VANTRYST. POMARY has won both of her local attempts and in her present condition she must be accorded the post of honor at the top of the field.

EIGHTH RACE—SARANTIE, STAR CANTER, HAGERS-TOWN BOY. SARANTIE is very consistent and she has been threatening in recent tests. If the substitute is used the mare should win as her rider places STAR CANTER and HAGERS-TOWN BOY to scrap it out for the short end.

NINTH RACE—SARANTIE, STAR CANTER, HAGERS-TOWN BOY. SARANTIE is very consistent and she has been threatening in recent tests. If the substitute is used the mare should win as her rider places STAR CANTER and HAGERS-TOWN BOY to scrap it out for the short end.

Draft Boards Show Disposition to Avoid Calling Married Men

Interviews Reveal Effort To Disrupt as Few D. C. Homes as Possible

Washington's draft boards appear to be following a when-in-doubt-leave-them-out policy in classifying married men.

Boards members interviewed at random today indicated that the city's boards generally are making every effort to avoid disrupting homes, economically and spiritually, and are classifying as available for immediate military duty only those married men whose absence will have a minimum of influence on domestic conditions.

The informal survey of opinion and practice was made after an accumulative report released by selective service headquarters yesterday showed that only 641 out of 26,045 married men classified in Washington had been placed in class I-A.

"It is my opinion that the future of the country depends to a great extent on married people," Edmund M. Toland, acting chairman of Board No. 3, commented in explaining the relatively low percentage of class I-A men among that board's classified married men.

Only four out of 763 married registrants were classified as available for service by No. 3.

"Separation of husbands and wives naturally affects to the birth rate of the Nation," he continued. "The whole picture boils down to a moral question. If we separate them, no one can foresee what may happen."

Mr. Toland explained that each case is considered on its own merits, and particular inquiries are made in cases of registrants who have married since the draft law was passed to determine whether the marriage took place in order for the registrant to avoid the draft.

Cases of recent marriages also are reviewed carefully by Board No. 7, according to Philip Ersler, chairman. This board classified 30 out of 895 married men I-A as of April 30.

Mr. Ersler said his board attempts to draw a "reasonable" salary level of a wife whom the board considers self-supporting and whose husband, therefore, may be called to service without affecting her economic standards to any great extent.

This level, he said, is generally at about $1,400, but "naturally varies with individual cases and conditions."

Lists Three Categories. The Rev. J. D. Pair, member of Board No. 12, which placed 36 out of 544 married men in class I-A, outlined three categories in which married men so classified have fallen:

- 1. Those who are unemployed and desire to go into the service and those whose wives give written consent and express a desire for them to be called into service.
2. Men not living with their wives and having no children or dependents.
3. Those whose wives make higher salaries than they and are in no way economically dependent on their husbands.

The spokesman explained that "a very few" have been classified because of the latter reason. Among the higher percentages of married men classified I-A was that of Board 1, with 37 out of 665 so classified. Joseph A. Wilner, member of that board, said, however, that the majority of these cases have involved registrants who were not living with their wives and were unemployed.

Liberal Stand Adopted. "We have been extremely careful to take a liberal stand on the marriage issue," he said. "We have tried not to break up homes, whether the wives work or not."

Gail T. Judd, chairman of Board No. 23, which classified 14 out of 2,043 married men I-A, commented: "We have tried consistently to carry out the wishes of the President in attempting not to disturb the economic conditions of homes. In a number of cases we have reached conclusions only after interviewing both husbands and wives."

Meanwhile, 121 white selectees were sent to Richmond today for induction into the Army. Names of those scheduled for induction are:

Company B Victor in Drill By St. John's College Cadets

Corpl. James Poulos of Company E (left) congratulated yesterday by William Steele, colonel of the St. John's College Cadet Corps, after Corpl. Poulos won the prize as the best drilled cadet for the second year in a row.

Company B, commanded by Capt. James Sullivan, yesterday marched to victory in the annual competitive drill of the St. John's College cadets on the Ellipse.

The winning company receives a silver cup and medals for the captain, first and second lieutenants of the unit. Company C was second and Company G third.

For the second consecutive year, Corpl. James Poulos of Company E took top honors in the individual competition for the best drilled cadet.

Some 450 cadets in all took part. They reached the Ellipse in buses, but after the drills and passing in review, marched back to the school.

Slowpoke Drivers Face Arrest As Delaware Speeds Up Traffic

DOVER, Del., May 22.—The State of Delaware began an experiment today in speeding up slowpoke motorists while safety authorities dispute value of the new traffic regulation.

It is now a misdemeanor to drive a motor vehicle "at such a slow speed as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic, except when reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or in compliance with the law."

"The minimum speed law will be enforced only where traffic is heavy and conditions are hazardous," explained Norman R. Purnell, State police superintendent.

"Under such conditions when an officer sees a slow driver holding up traffic he will be required to advise the driver to move faster. If the driver fails to comply he will face arrest and prosecution."

Maryland Painter, Indicted in Slaying, To Be Tried June 9

Former Bethesda Firemen, Accused of Starting Blazes, Go to Trial Same Date

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. ROCKVILLE, Md., May 22.—Trials of two former Bethesda (Md.) volunteer firemen, indicted in connection with the slaying of a woman and attempting to murder her husband.

The court also set for the same day the trial of a Germantown painter, indicted on charges of murdering a Bethesda woman and attempting to murder her husband.

The two former firemen are Wilson E. Everhart, 19, and Paul J. Voight, 22. When the court arraigned prisoners yesterday neither appeared. They are due to enter pleas at the trial.

Everhart was indicted on three arson charges, involving fires at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, an unoccupied dwelling in Bethesda and a Bethesda paint and hardware store.

Voight was indicted on charges of setting fire to brush on the Bergdoll estate on Wisconsin avenue near Dorset avenue.

Dewey Thompson, 43, was indicted in connection with the murder of Mrs. Clara Robertson, 36, on April 27, and an attempt to murder her husband, John G. Robertson, while the couple was visiting Mr. Thompson's father in Germantown.

When arraigned yesterday Thompson pleaded guilty but, because the court cannot accept such a plea for a capital crime, Attorneys Charles Prettymann and Donald Bowie were appointed to defend him.

Samuel Randall, 25, of Rockville, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging assault with intent to murder his brother, Leslie, on April 19, and will be tried June 4. Charles R. Burke, Jr., 20, of the 300 block of G Street N.W., Washington, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging rape of a 16-year-old Washington high school girl and will be tried June 6.

Charles C. Nolan, 25, pleaded guilty to four indictments charging housebreaking, but entered a not guilty plea to another charging that he is a "rogue and vagabond." He also pleaded not guilty to a fifth housebreaking charge and will be tried June 4.

F. B. I. Mobilizing Nation's Policemen As Defense Move

Hoover Outlines Plan For Army To Promote Internal Security

By the Associated Press. Director J. Edgar Hoover announced today the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in the interest of national defense, is conducting a voluntary mobilization of virtually every law enforcement agency in the United States.

The effect of the co-operative program, the F. B. I. chief said, was the welding of most of the country's 150,000 police officers into "an active, vigilant, alert army safeguarding the internal security of the Nation."

The key of the plan, Mr. Hoover explained in an interview, was the interchange of information between leading law enforcement officials and representatives of the F. B. I. working out of 54 strategically located field offices.

F. B. I. to Correlate Tips. State, county and city police will turn over to the F. B. I. all information concerning national defense matters. The bureau correlates such tips in the hope of finding a pattern which will lead to solution of a crime or prevention of one.

Some of the cases, including complaints which come directly to the F. B. I., are turned back to the local police for handling.

Subcommittee continues hearings on new labor mediator bill (10:30).

Five Main Results Expected. Mr. Hoover said that the voluntary plan was expected to have these results: 1. Bring police officials together for a nationally co-ordinated public service and demonstrate that there is no need for a national police.

2. Help eliminate through co-operation some of the jurisdictional limitations which frequently hamper city, county or State officials.

3. Raise the standards of law enforcement through an interchange of knowledge, increase the proficiency of all officers and tend to standardize police reports.

4. Afford a maximum protection against sabotage and espionage, as well as set up a tremendous investigative system.

5. Prepare the Nation's police during a period of peace for greater demands which might possibly arise.

Safety Drive to Stress Peril in Stepping From Between Parked Cars

Posters, Pamphlets and Signs to Carry Message To Children and Adults

With nine persons killed here in traffic this far this year by stepping into the street from between parked cars, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer today announced details of an intensive safety campaign, to be launched May 30, to curb this dangerous practice.

Need for such a drive was further emphasized by the fact that four of the fatalities involved children, of whom three lost their lives within the past three weeks. And with the summer vacation period approaching, Mr. Van Duzer pointed out, this figure threatens to assume "shocking proportions" unless action is taken to prevent it.

Already, he emphasized, the District is running far ahead of 1940 in the number of traffic deaths, with 32 fatalities thus far as compared with 20 during the same period last year.

First step in the drive, he said, will be to "blanket" 1700 blocks in the area south of Florida avenue with safety posters. These signs will show a child lying on the street with a policeman about to pick him up and automobiles parked along both sides of the thoroughfare.

Along the tops of the posters will be the warning "Don't cross the street from between parked cars."

At the same time, 100,000 pamphlets, of which 50,000 will be distributed to schools and 50,000 to Government departments, will be issued, explaining the danger of entering a street from between parked cars and showing the same illustration as that on the posters.

In addition, between 3,000 and 4,000 signs will be placed over school blackboards. These will read as follows: "Your teacher wishes you a happy vacation. Don't play in the street."

Raid Smoke Shrouds Base at Helgoland, British Declare

Power Station and Oil Refinery Near Bethune, France, Also Attacked

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 22.—British bombers which attacked the naval base, docks and center of the town at Helgoland left that German island stronghold in the North Sea shrouded in a "swirl of dust and smoke lit here and there by flames," the Air Ministry news service said today.

A football game was in progress when the bombers swooped over the base yesterday, the report added. The navigator of one plane said that anti-aircraft batteries went into furious action while the bombers swept over a height of only 40 or 50 feet.

Bombs from one plane made a direct hit on an anti-aircraft battery of four guns. It was said that the other air operations last night, but another daylight attack was made yesterday on a power station and oil refinery at Gosnau, near Bethune in German-occupied France about 40 miles south of Dunkerque.

The navigator of one plane said that after dropping his bombs on the power station he saw "dozens of small white mushrooms of smoke, followed by many yellow and green explosions all over the target area."

The raiders were said to have flown straight to their target even though air battles were in progress all around them as a result of encounters with German fighters.

The British admitted losing two bombers and six fighters in the two operations, but said five German fighters were shot down.

The Air Ministry news service asserted German fighters "were unable to shake off our Spitfires and Hurricanes" escorting the bombers in the Bethune attack.

The wing commander who led the fighter escort in the battle of Britain it almost invariably ended in enemy bombers being left to the mercy of our fighters.

"But today we managed to drive away the ME-109s Messerschmitts and keep in company with the bombers."

On the home front, the Air Ministry announced last night its decision to discontinue giving details of Nazi plane casualties in the information benefit German strategists.

The number of raiders shot down over Britain will be given as usual, it said, but not the place or the manner in which they are downed.

Showgirl Bride Killed In Fifty-Floor Plunge

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 22.—After calling "Good-by, John," to her husband of eight months, Frances Stutz Huppman, former showgirl and beauty contest winner, fell or jumped from the terrace of a 50-floor penthouse apartment at West Seventy-fifth street late last night.

She was impaled on a picket fence and two and one-half hours later she died in Roosevelt Hospital.

Her husband, John Huppman, sales supervisor of a bottling equipment company, told detectives he and his wife had quarreled and when he went to answer the phone in the midst of the argument she ran out on the terrace and leaped over the wall, calling out her good-byes over her shoulder.

Damage in Helgoland Admitted by Nazis

BERLIN, May 22 (AP)—An attack by single British planes caused damage in residential quarters and dead and wounded among the civilian population of Helgoland yesterday, the German high command said today.

Naval guns brought down two of the attacking planes, the communication said, and seven other British planes, including six chasers, were reported shot down in attempted raids along the channel coast.

President Working On Radio Address For Tuesday Night

Curtails Engagements To Prepare Delayed Talk on U. S. Policy

By JOHN C. HENRY.
President Roosevelt will work today on a radio address, expected to be one of his most important announcements. The address is to be scheduled for next Tuesday night.

Officially labeled a "fireside chat," the speech takes the place of one planned for last week before the Pan-American Union. Because of Mr. Roosevelt's illness, and possibly because of the tide of world developments at that time, that address was canceled. Pan-American diplomatic representatives have been invited to the White House Tuesday to hear the President deliver the address.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early told the press this morning that the Chief Executive was planning to put in at least a couple of hours of dictation on the speech today and that he probably would curtail all engagements between now and Tuesday to permit adequate working time. The address is to be a half-hour one and will be broadcast by the Nation-wide radio networks and rebroadcast by short wave to all the world.

Three Formal Engagements.
Mr. Roosevelt had three formal engagements today. The first of these was a luncheon conference with Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court. Mr. Early said that Mr. Douglas was planning to leave Washington for a vacation in the West as soon as the court recesses.

Later the President was to commission Mayor La Guardia of New York as director of the new Office of Civilian Defense. Mr. La Guardia is planning to retain his post as Mayor of New York, it is understood, and the form of his commissioning for the Federal post is being shaped as to avoid legal conflict with his municipal responsibilities.

"War Yorker" Called.
The New Yorker had a White House breakfast conference this morning with Harry L. Hopkins, director of the lend-lease program. Late today, the Chief Executive was to have one of his regular consultations with the so-called war cabinet.

Summoned to the White House for this purpose were Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox, Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall and Navy Chief of Operations Admiral Harold R. Stark. Mr. Hopkins also is to attend this meeting.

In mid-afternoon Mr. Roosevelt was to make a brief appearance at a White House garden party for disabled war veterans.

It is possible that the Germans are now drawing on a second division.

Fine Feathers Fail to Fool Modest Peacocks at Zoo

Marina Lord, ballet dancer, went to the Zoo today to take a lesson from the peacocks. She aimed the birds so that they fled in despair. She hatched her elaborate arrangement of feathers to her steel corset, spread them out and started to make friends with the nearest peacock.

The bird took one look and ran. He didn't stop running until he had found a perch high on a cliff. Another peacock happened by and fled. The eagles, condors and assorted birds of prey in nearby cages sought out dark corners and hid.

Defense Bond Sales Better Than Hoped, Morgenthau Says

Treasury Secretary Vigorously Opposes Compulsory Savings

By BLAIR BOLLES.
Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, defending the low-cost Defense bond drive as successful despite criticism of it from the Capitol, said today that he vigorously opposes any scheme for compulsory savings. The British have instituted a compulsory scheme to raise money for financing the war and to check inflation, and John Maynard Keynes of the British treasury has been in Washington preaching its advantages.

"I'm going to do it the hard way," Mr. Morgenthau said at his press conference, "which is the democratic way." By "it" he meant sell the Defense stamps and bonds which have been available in small denominations at post offices and in larger denominations at banks since May 1. The Treasury reported sales of defense bonds from May 1 to May 27 totaled $27,646,000, indicating that the previously announced minimum goal of $300,000,000 for the month would be attained.

Sales "Entirely Satisfactory."
The average daily sales come to $1,500,000, Mr. Morgenthau said, and he added that he considered that "entirely satisfactory." However, he revealed that the sales system is still being organized in various portions of the United States.

At the same time he defended the bombing money raising plan and said that the bond market received the new Treasury offering today "awfully well." The Treasury put out $600,000,000 in new bonds to raise supplemental money for the defense program and refunded $24,000,000 of 3 1/2 per cent bonds of 1933 coming due in August. The 1933 coming due for cash today bear 2 1/2 per cent interest and will mature in 15 to 17 years. Holders of maturing 3 1/2 per cent bonds were given the choice of exchanging them for more of the new 2 1/2 per cent bonds or for 3 per cent notes maturing in 1943.

Against Any Compulsion.
Mr. Morgenthau discussing his low-cost Defense-emergency bonds, said that he is confident the Treasury is doing everything needed both in the way of money raising and in the way of inflation insurance. He refused to comment directly on Mr. Keynes' visit or on the statement made at the Capitol by Representative Crawford, Democrat of Michigan, a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, that the Defense bond sale was a complete "failure." But indirectly he gave his views on the opinions of both men.

"The sales," he said, "are in excess of what we had hoped for." Further, anything that is compulsory in this country, compulsion is exactly what I don't want. We are selling in a democratic way to people who believe in this country and want to lend money to the Treasury in order to aid the defense program.

Alvin T. Burrows Dies; Former Weather Editor

Alvin Todd Burrows, 65, former official in the Weather Bureau here, died yesterday at his home in Jacksonville, Ill., following an illness of eight months.

Mr. Burrows, a native of Iowa, during his service here from 1899 to 1906 edited Weather Bureau publications. He also was editor and publisher of the Urbana (Ill.) Courier for 20 years.

His wife, Mrs. Media Moore Burrows, a native of Washington, died last Friday at Jacksonville. Mrs. Suzanne Moore of Chevy Chase, Md., a sister of Mrs. Burrows, survives.

Funeral services for Mr. Burrows will be held Saturday at Urbana.

Willis B. Magruder, Formerly of Patent Office, Dies at 81

Lifelong D. C. Resident Was One of Early Carrier Boys of Star

Willis B. Magruder, 81, former chief of the Assignment Division of the Patent Office and a lifelong resident of Washington, died yesterday at his residence, in the Lee Sheraton Hotel, after a short illness.

Born here December 28, 1859, Mr. Magruder was the son of John Belford and Harriet Couzens Magruder, natives of Washington.

Mr. Magruder entered the Patent Office as a messenger when 17 and worked his way to chief of the Assignment Division. He retired in 1932, completing 55 years' service.

He was a charter member of the National Rifle Association and was a lieutenant when the company held its last parade during the Spanish-American War.

An authority on patent assignments, Mr. Magruder wrote several books on the subject. He married Susan H. De Saules here in 1883. Mrs. Magruder died in 1932, a short time before Mr. Magruder retired from Government service.

Surviving are a son, Willis B. Jr., and two grandchildren, all of Washington. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street N.W. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery. The Rev. M. Chandler Stith, pastor of the Brookland Baptist Church, will officiate.

Mediation Unit Enters Soft Coal Dispute Again Tomorrow

Southern Operators and Lewis Break Off Talks With Flare of Hot Words

By the Associated Press. The National Mediation Board prepared today to act for a second time in the soft coal wage controversy. Meanwhile, a hitch developed in an effort to end a strike at the Ravenscroft (Ohio) steel-loading plant. Contract negotiations between the C. I. O. United Mine Workers and the Southern Appalachian operators were broken off in New York yesterday, with both sides issuing sharp public statements. In newspaper advertisements the Southern mine owners charged that John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, was attempting to become "dictator of this country" by gaining a "death grip" on the flow of bituminous coal to industry. In answer, K. C. Adams, spokesman for Mr. Lewis, called the Southern operators "mock patriots."

The union and Southern operators were to appear before the Mediation Board here tomorrow and the Northern operators and the union Saturday. Longshoremen's Strike Settled. A longshoremen's strike at Buffalo, N. Y., was reported ended. The A. F. L. longshoremen switched from a previous stand and decided to accept a pay increase of 7 1/2 cents an hour which had been awarded by a Federal arbitrator who was called into the dispute involving two Great Lakes package freight lines. A threat of a strike vote, possibly by Monday, arose at the Los Angeles factory of North American Aviation Corp., where C. I. O. employees are seeking a wage increase. The union's aims call for a 10-cent hourly raise for all production workers, whose pay ranges from 50 cents to $1.25 an hour, and an increase in beginners' wages from 50 to 75 cents an hour. The company has 11,000 employees, and is making plans for the United States and Great Britain.

Hudson Production Resumed.

Production at the Hudson Motor Car Co.'s three Detroit plants was resumed today, exactly a week after the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) called a strike for wage increases. An agreement approved by 3,000 to 4,000 members of U. A. W.-C. I. O. Local 154 yesterday afternoon provided for an 8-cent hourly raise for the company's 8,500 workers. The union had demanded a 15-cent hourly increase. In San Francisco partial returns from a referendum of striking A. F. L. cannery workers today showed them 2 to 1 in favor of returning to work under a new Federal conciliation plan.

ceived orders to prepare for an American attack. Such reports are either of German or pro-German origin exclusively, as far as he has been able to learn, Mr. Hull said. This Government's attitude toward Martinique is just as it has been, the Secretary emphasized.

The United States and other American republics are prepared to take over Martinique or any other European possessions in this hemisphere if there should be evidence of Germany gaining direct or indirect control over them. It is understood, however, that no action is planned unless French collaboration with Germany actually is extended to involve France's possessions in the Americas.

"Watchful Waiting" Policy.

Informed officials have indicated that the United States will pursue a "watchful waiting" policy regarding Martinique and the other French territory in the hemisphere until the Vichy government formally discloses the extent of the "collaboration" it plans with Germany. Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, for example, expressed doubt that any immediate move would be made, explaining there had been no indication that the status of the French colonies on this side of the Atlantic had been changed by the Franco-German understanding. Pending some concrete evidence that France's New World possessions would be affected, Senator George said that it probably would be inadvisable for the United States to take any steps.

After Tuesday's frank exchange of opinions between Secretary Hull and Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador, the United States was understood to be waiting for a formal written declaration from the Vichy government, detailing the extent of the "collaboration" it has pledged Germany heretofore.

Paris Scene of Discussions.

Germany's request that the United States withdraw diplomatic representatives from Paris was understood to make no change in the situation since the only American officials left in the French capital are consular officers. Germany's designation of Paris as an "extended zone of operations" led observers here to believe that the action was taken either as a prelude to intensified Nazi efforts to invade England from French bases or as an attempt to cut off information now coming from the occupied zone. It was noted, however, that Paris has been the scene of nearly all the discussions involving closer "collaboration" between officials of the German and Vichy governments. There was some conjecture that the Nazis were anxious to hush up all future negotiations. Senator George expressed the belief that while collaboration between France and Germany "naturally concerns us, and puts some new dark lines in the picture as a whole, it probably will have no immediate effect in this hemisphere." "Tangible developments, he added, seem to show that any "collaboration" undertaken has been primarily in the Middle East. The Georgia Senator's remark referred to France's action in permitting German warplanes to use airfields in French-mandated Syria for operations against the British forces in Iraq.

Post on Mosul-Haifa Pipeline Captured, British Declare

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 22.—The German radio relayed today a Baghdad report that Iraq planes had made surprise attacks on a British airfield at Amman, trans-Jordan—the first reported attack on that British-protected country. "This was the first Iraq air attack against a British stronghold outside Iraq," said the German broadcast, heard here by C. B. S.

Entire Iraq Garrison Taken, British Say

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—British forces in Iraq have captured a post on the Mosul-Haifa oil pipeline 25 miles northeast of Rutba and taken the entire Iraq garrison, authoritative sources said today. Imperial troops which seized the town of Fallujah, 40 miles east of Baghdad, three days ago captured 300 Iraqis, including 27 officers, and considerable quantities of stores and equipment, these sources said. The Foreign Office announced appointment of Gerald de Gaury as charge d'affaires with Emir Abdul Ilah, deposed regent of Iraq, "pending re-establishment of communications with his majesty's Ambassador at Baghdad." The Emir announced in Palestine May 4 that he was returning to his native country to lead it back to prosperity "under a lawfully constituted government." He was deposed in an April coup d'etat.

velt had called the German occupation of Syrian airfields a " sinister development in Vichy policy." Mr. Eden added that French statements that there is to be only "political and economic" collaboration between France and Germany were unsatisfactory.

"These explanations," he said, "cannot conceal that they have embarked on a course which must place the resources and territories of France and her empire increasingly at the disposal of a power which is the enemy not only of France's former ally, but of France herself." "The French government will, his majesty's government are sure, regard this policy as incompatible with the honor of France, nor will they believe the future of France and her empire will be better served by surrendering them to Hitler's so-called new order than by resolutely maintaining and defending their independence until such time as victorious allies have completed their liberation.

Hold Selves Free.

"If the Vichy government in pursuance of their declared policy of collaboration with the enemy, take action or permit action detrimental to our conduct of the war or designed to assist the enemy's war effort, we shall naturally hold ourselves free to attack the enemy wherever he be found, and in so doing we shall no longer feel bound to draw any distinction between occupied and unoccupied territories in execution of our military plans. "On August 7 last his majesty's government assured Gen. de Gaulle it was their determination when victory was won to secure full restoration of the independence and greatness of France.

'Free French' Invasion Of Syria Unconfirmed

CAIRO, Egypt, May 22 (AP)—Military sources here were unable today to confirm radio reports that the "Free French" forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle had crossed the Palestine border into Syria. Nevertheless, news of the "Free French" agitation in Syria recently has been most encouraging to the British and observers pointed out that, with German air troops engaged fully in Crete, this would be the most opportune time for outright De Gaulleist action. Renewed precautions by Vichy authorities in Syria now include establishment of a total blackout, authoritative sources said.

Merger of Municipal Police Courts Urged To End Lag in Trials

Bill Designed to Ease Heavy Burden on District Tribunal

Legislation merging the Municipal and Police Courts and raising the jurisdiction of the combined tribunals over small civil suits would relieve the heavy burden which District Court now must assume over both large and small civil litigation, it was pointed out at Municipal Court today. The real bottleneck in the disposition of this type of lawsuit, it was explained, is not in Municipal Court, but in District Court, which is compelled to try more suits than it possibly can dispose of within a reasonable time.

The bill, which representatives of the Justice Department, the bench and the bar have approved finally, as reported in The Star yesterday, would expand Municipal Court jurisdiction to include suits involving at least $2,000. At present every suit with more than $1,000 at stake goes to District Court, and often, in recent years, there has been a space of two years between the filing of a suit in District Court and its trial, despite strenuous efforts of the justices, there still is a long lag. The Municipal judges are up to date on their calendars, despite the fact that around 80,000 cases a year are filed, it was declared. It is possible, if both sides are ready, to file a case in Municipal Court and have it tried within two weeks.

Presiding Judge George C. Aukam, called the "father of the Municipal Court" since he presided for its adoption and has served on its bench since it was created in 1909, has insisted on keeping calendars current, and he and the other judges have worked night and day to maintain this swift disposition of litigation. A substitute Municipal Court merger bill is expected to be introduced in Congress within a few days by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

dent of the local branch of the organization, urged every A. P. M. member to support the "drive" to place 7,000 Negroes in the Glenn Martin plant.

"The A. P. M. objective," she said, "was to have 300 to 100 Negroes apply at the Glenn Martin plant every day for a job." "If we achieve this victory," she quoted one of the speakers, "we have got 7,000 new members. Think what that means to us!" "The A. P. M. objective," she said, "was to have 300 to 100 Negroes apply at the Glenn Martin plant every day for a job."

"I was very much shocked and did not believe there were people in this Government who were afraid to testify against Communism," she declared. Nevertheless, she said, investigators of other Government agencies confirmed reports she had heard that those who "testify against Communism lose their jobs."

Camp Deaths Charged.

At a meeting of the Washington unit of A. P. M. April 26, Miss Spargo testified, Miss Susan B. Anthony, whom she described as "a young Government employee," declared five soldiers at Camp Dix had been killed by "capitalist" had suppressed the information. "On certain days," she also declared, Miss Anthony said her informant had told her the men at the camp were fed only "bologna sandwiches." Miss Spargo quoted Miss Anthony as saying: "We must go right into the camps and see what is going on."

House Unit Approves Navy's Request for Vice Admirals

U. S. Army Grows To 1,324,800, Near June 30 Quota

By the Associated Press. Unusual legislation to create an unspecified number of vice admirals to command special forces which might be assigned important military missions was unanimously approved today by the House Naval Affairs Committee. Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, gave the committee a carefully guided explanation of the need for the measure which, nevertheless, made it clear the new commands would be assigned only to missions of major importance. The Navy's unexpected request for the legislation stirred immediate conjecture as to whether the proposed "task forces" as they were called, might be used to protect American shipping soon to be moving into the Red Sea or for some equally significant operation. When a committee member sought to link the measure to such particular missions, Admiral Nimitz did not answer and the question later was stricken from the record at his request.

At present the Navy has only three vice admirals and they hold commands from which they could not readily be detached. In opening his testimony on the measure, Admiral Nimitz said: "It is conceivable that ships and planes will be broken up into task forces to carry out special missions. Such a task force might consist of a division of battleships, a wing of aircraft, a flotilla of destroyers and a number of submarines."

He said he could not disclose to the committee how such forces might be used. The proposed legislation threw little light on the reasons behind it, merely stipulating that in addition to the officers now serving in the grade of vice admiral, any officer "designated by the President to perform special or unusual duty, or to command a naval unit or organized for the purpose of performing a special or unusual mission, may, within the discretion of the President, have the rank, pay and allowances of a vice admiral while so serving."

Judge Overrules Plea Challenging Curran

Curran Plea Challenged

Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday overruled a plea in abatement which contested the right of United States Attorney Edward M. Curran to hold his office, on the ground he is not "a resident of the District of Columbia, but a qualified voter in the State of Maine." The plea was filed in April by Edward N. Bergh, defendant in a larceny after trust case, through his lawyer, Isadore H. Halpern. After overruling the plea, Judge McMahon continued the Bergh case to June 4 for jury trial. A similar plea filed through Attorney James J. Laughlin in behalf of his client, Joseph R. Burko, dismissed Police Court clerk, was overruled in March by Justice F. Dickinson Letts of District Court. At that time Justice Letts held there is a presumption as to the regularity in the appointment of United States attorneys which cannot be attacked collaterally. Mr. Burko recently was cleared by a District Court jury of conspiracy to split traffic fines with a Police Court bailiff.

Britain Trying to Buy Refugee Ships Held In This Hemisphere

Negotiations May Hinge On Inter-American Committee's Action

By LLOYD LEHRBAS, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Great Britain, it was learned authoritatively today, is negotiating with Latin American nations for the purchase of some of the 100-odd refugee foreign merchantmen now idle in hemisphere ports.

The negotiations, it was learned, parallel discussions between Sir Arthur Salter, chief of the British Shipping Mission, and the United States Maritime Commission, whereby Britain hopes to obtain some merchant tonnage when the United States formally requisitions the 84 foreign ships now under official surveillance here.

The success of British efforts, it was said, would hinge largely on the deliberations of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Committee, representing all 21 American republics, which convened at the Pan-American Union today to consider the whole ship seizure question.

Unified Policy Is Sought.

The envoys of the American nations will present their governments' views concerning the most feasible ways in which refugee foreign ships may be utilized for the benefit of the trade and defense of the Western Hemisphere. A unified hemisphere policy on the subject is the objective.

One proposal made would place all requisitioned foreign vessels in a "pool" from which sufficient ships would be drawn to meet hemisphere requirements. Many Latin American nations have been severely affected by the shipping shortage caused by heavy British and neutral losses and transfers from the Latin American service.

Should this proposal be adopted, it was understood that Great Britain would be given the opportunity of negotiating for the purchase of "surplus" vessels.

First, however, some agreement must be reached on the conflict in opinion between British and hemisphere nations over their right to put the foreign-flag ships in operation.

Attitudes Conflict.

Great Britain's attitude, it was said, was that enemy ships are subject to seizure by the British Navy even though they have been taken over in the New World and fly the flag of one of the American republics.

The American republics have taken the position that "foreign-flag" ships immobilized in their ports by the war may now be utilized by the American republics in accordance with the rules of international law and their national legislations to promote the defense of their economies, the peace and security of the continent.

Informed quarters predicted that since it would serve the interests of Britain as well as the American republics to have the idle ships in useful trade—Britain and the American nations would be able to reach a compromise on the question.

Mansfield Sees Land On Use of Vessels

Representative Mansfield, Democrat of Texas said yesterday, after talking with Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, that it was probable several of the 83 foreign ships that would be seized under current legislation would be allocated to coastwise trade.

One of the House conferees on the ship-seizure bill, Mr. Mansfield said Admiral Land told him earnest consideration would be given the need for additional bottoms between Atlantic and Gulf coast ports.

Mr. Mansfield declared that great stocks of commodities urgently needed in defense plants were accumulating at Texas ports because of lack of sufficient ships.

Marr and Anderson File For Falls Church Council

Special Dispatch to The Star.

FALLS CHURCH, Va., May 22.—J. Marr and James E. Anderson have filed as candidates for the Town Council in the municipal election June 10. Town Clerk Edwin Scheid said today.

Mr. Marr, who was defeated in a close race with Mrs. Earl D. Fowler last year, is from the second ward, where Charles Pendleton is expected to run for re-election. Mrs. Fowler's term does not expire until 1942.

Mr. Anderson is from the third ward where Lawrence E. Laing, whose term expires next September, expects to be inducted into the Army under the Selective Service Act.

Charles Kellogg, first ward, is expected to run for re-election but, like Mr. Pendleton, cannot file until the Civil Service Commission grants permission for Federal employees to participate in town elections under the amended Hatch Act.

"Sunkist" LEMONS at

LEMONS are shipped the country over in one standard size crate—the size, the weight and content of which, regardless of packer, has not been changed in years. LEMONS are graded by size and known to the trade by the number of each size accommodated in this standard crate.

LEMON grading is so consistent that these standard crate content numbers are accepted market valuations—252's (extra large), 300's (large), 360's and 432's (medium), 490's and 540's and 588's (small).

LEMONS in large sizes being limited in supply are not always available. Small sizes are generally not stocked by reliable markets. The medium sizes make up the great bulk of lemon sales. LEMON prices reduced to simple arithmetic clearly indicate that the "by the dozen" prices at Your Giant represent the most economical LEMON buys.

Price-Fixing Power Of Leon Henderson Challenged by Smith

Senate's Agriculture Chairman Aroused by Limit on Cotton Yarn

By the Associated Press.
 The price-fixing powers of Leon Henderson were openly challenged today by Chairman Smith of the Senate Agriculture Committee.
 "I'm going to demand that this man Henderson come before our Senate committee and explain by what authority he fixed prices," said Senator Smith, frequent critic of New Deal programs and policies.
 President Roosevelt, in his executive order, designated Mr. Henderson, economist and member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, as administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civil Supply. Since then Mr. Henderson has fixed maximum prices for steel, coal during the recent strike, second-hand machine tools and other vital defense materials.
 A White House conference yesterday between Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Henderson and Wayne Coy, director of the Office of Emergency Management, was considered an indication that the administration was contemplating further active measures to control prices stimulated by heavy defense demands for materials. Mr. Henderson told reporters as he left, however, that he had no price-control legislation on hand.
 Nevertheless, Chairman Smith informed reporters that Mr. Henderson would be called to testify at public hearings by the Senate committee on a resolution by Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma for an investigation of prices of "necessary and essential farm products."
 The Thomas resolution, not yet approved either by the committee or Senate, included a provision that pending the investigation "no agency of the Government should assume to exercise power in undertaking to fix maximum prices on any essential farm commodity."
 Senator Smith readily admitted that he was irritated at Mr. Henderson's announced intention of fixing a price ceiling for combed cotton yarn at considerably below recent market peaks.
 "It's time that somebody finds out where he gets the authority to fix the price on yarn or anything else," Senator Smith said. "He doesn't try to fix a maximum price on cotton, that's too obvious. But he can run around and fix the price on combed yarn."
 If issued, this price-fixing order would be the first affecting a major farm commodity. Senator Smith said there always was a direct relationship between yarn prices and prices of raw cotton.

W. P. A. Fund Far Too Short, C. I. O. Secretary Charges
 President Roosevelt's request for an $886,000,000 W. P. A. appropriation for the next fiscal year "is between 1 1/2 and 2 billion dollars short of what is really needed," James B. Carey, secretary of the Congress of Industrial Organizations declared in a statement today.
 "We are profoundly shocked by the size of the appropriation suggested," Mr. Carey said. "It is so inadequate that it seems impossible that the President was fully acquainted with the facts when he approved the budget proposal."
 "The national defense program will not wipe out unemployment in the next year, or within the foreseeable future. Those who know the facts about unemployment know that it will not fall below 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 within this year."
 "The proposals in the President's message to wipe out the vicious 18-month lay-off provisions, to end the costly and useless investigations of need, and to end the inhuman prohibitions of jobs for aliens are excellent, and would considerably improve the program. Such improvements, however, must be implemented by adequate appropriations or they mean nothing."

Assignments Shifted In Police Court

Judge John P. McMahon, as presiding judge, is representing Police Court at the three-day judicial conference which opened here today.
 In his absence, Judge Walter J. Casey was scheduled to preside in the jury branch, where Judge McMahon has been presiding this month.
 Judge Hobart Newman, in turn, was to preside in Judge Casey's place in the District branch of Police Court and in addition to preside in the court's United States branch, where he has been regularly scheduled to preside this month. Judge George D. Neilson was to continue to preside in the Police Court's traffic branch.

Nazis Ask Nations To Shut Diplomatic Offices in Paris

Desire to Get Embassies And Legations to Vichy, Germans Announce
 By the Associated Press.
 BERLIN, May 22.—All nations have been asked to close their embassies and legations in Paris, the Germans announced today, describing the request as a measure not directed at any particular country but designed to bring the embassies and legations together at Vichy.
 Wilhelmstrasse sources said 34 foreign missions were involved in the closure request, including those of the United States and several Latin American nations.
 "Vichy is the present capital of France, and that is where diplomatic representatives belong," a spokesman said.
 There is no objection to any nation having diplomatic relations with Germany to have consulates in Paris, he added, however.
 The United States now has no Parisian consulate as such, but it was indicated here that one might be created if Washington wishes.

The United States Paris Embassy had a consular section which, presumably, could function independently.
 The present American representatives in Paris, Edwin A. Pitt, Tyler Thompson and Lawrence W. Taylor, all hold dual commissions from the State Department for both consular and diplomatic functions.
 In Vichy yesterday, where word first was received of the withdrawal order, it was understood June 10 had been set as the final date of departure.
 Foreign legations and embassies at Vichy have kept representatives in Paris chiefly to care for their citizens and interests in the occupied zone. Only Germany and Italy keep their regular embassies there; all others' diplomatic relations with the French government are handled at Vichy.

Guard Talks 'Lifers' Into Giving Up Effort To Escape Alcatraz

Convicts Tie Up Three Officers, Then Surrender To Persuasive Captain

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Hard steel and the persuasive powers of Guard Capt. Paul Madigan kept four desperate life-terms from cutting their way out of Alcatraz Prison, Warden James A. Johnston said today.
The four convicts, described by Mr. Johnston as "all desperate and all plotters," worked nearly two hours and trussed up three prison officers yesterday in an attempted break from the mat shop at the San Francisco Bay island penitentiary.
Mr. Johnston said the quartet were: Lloyd H. Barkdoll, Oregon bank robber; Joseph Paul Greer and Arnold Kyle, brothers-in-law, convicted of bank robbery at Los Angeles and additionally sentenced for escaping from McNeil Island Federal Prison and slugging a United States marshal, who later died, at Tacoma, Wash.; and Sam R. Schokley, Muskogee (Okla.) bank robber and kidnaper.
Three Officers Bound Up.
The convicts had broken the inside detention sash on one of four small rooms in the shop and were working on the toolproof steel bars with an emery wheel when Guard Clyde E. Stoops came into the room.
They overcame Stoops and bound him hand and foot, then proceeded with their work on the bars. Next to enter during routine inspection was C. J. Manning, superintendent of prison industries. He was likewise bound, as was Lionel Johnston, work area yard officer, who entered later.
Mr. Johnston said Capt. Madigan entered the room about 5:30 p.m. and the convicts grabbed him. By that time they had been two hours at work on the bars, with little success.
Talks Men Out of Escape.
"Capt. Madigan was resourceful and persuasive," the warden said. "He convinced the already discouraged convicts that their efforts would be futile. The convicts, disgusted with their failure, released Madigan and he sounded the emergency alarm. When other guards arrived Madigan was leading the convicts out of the room."
Had the convicts succeeded in escaping from the mat shop, they still would have had to dash to the prison island beach, through an area within the crossfire of watch tower guards.

Mexico Turns to Japan For Rayon Imports
By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, May 22.—Minister of National Economy Javier Gaxiola reported last night that Mexico was unable to obtain rayon in the United States or Italy because of war conditions and therefore was negotiating with a Japanese firm.
He said an adequate supply was being sought to prevent paralyzing the nation's important textile industry.
United States defense preparations, he said, prevented rayon exports. Japan also has been found reluctant to guarantee any large shipments.

Southern Presbyterians Open Assembly Tonight

By the Associated Press.
MONTREAT, N. C., May 22.—The 81st General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States will open tonight in Anderson Auditorium.
The first sermon will be preached by the Rev. Frank C. Brown of Dallas, Tex., retiring moderator.
The sermon and election and induction of the new moderator will be the main items of the opening session. The assembly will plunge tomorrow into six days of activity that will include a study of every phase of the Southern church. There will be an ovation from the Mecklenburg Presbytery asking that a fact-finding committee be appointed to investigate the soundness of seminaries on the fundamentals of the faith. It will call attention to a pamphlet published by a layman, Thomas M. Glassgow of Charlotte, challenging the orthodoxy of Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson, professor in Union Seminary, Richmond, Va.

'Fight-the-Boss' Stand Helps Hitler, Union Official Declares

Anti-Labor Employers Also Aid Nazis, Society On Management Told

Labor unions adhering to a "fight-the-boss" policy are helping Hitler, as are employers who believe unions should be liquidated now, M. H. Hedges, director of research for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, declared today.

Speaking at the spring conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management at the Wardman Park Hotel, Mr. Hedges also expressed the opinion that broadening of governmental powers, when such a move produces disputes, also operates as a boon to the Nazi cause.

"It seems reasonable to declare, therefore, that the labor unionists who believe that the objective of his union is to follow the policy of the class struggle and fight the boss is helping Adolf Hitler."

He said the opponents of democracy have machinery geared to take advantage of its every fault and commented:

"It would seem wise for us in our effort to prepare against invasion to correct these faults."

Mr. Hedges suggested establishment of a tribunal entrusted with the task of apportioning among Government, business and labor equal shares of responsibility in the present emergency.

In calling for national unity at this time, Mr. Hedges charged that half the victories attained by Germany "have been won within the countries subjected by the capitalization of internal dissension."

Analyses Industrial Morale. He said Hitler has carried to the extreme the logic of mechanized control.

L. P. Alford, chairman of the department of administrative engineering at New York University, gave an analysis of the basic principles of morale in industry.

Industrial morale, he said, is an attitude or feeling toward the organization and fellow workers that affects the individual's relations to everything that he does.

William Y. Elliott, professor of government at Harvard University, told the conference that a national decision must be made in this country to indorse completely the national defense program.

Battle-of-Britain Pin For Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Viscountess Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, will receive the first two "battle of Britain" pins to be released in this country by the British-American Ambulance Corps.

The emblems, made from fragments of bombs and anti-aircraft shells picked up on streets in England after air raids, will be received here Saturday, Mrs. Hubert Martineau, chairman of the Aid-to-Britain division of the corps, announced in New York City.

Mrs. Martineau said the pins would be placed on sale throughout the United States next week. Twenty-five per cent of the $1.50 purchase price will go to her division, she explained.

Drivers Asked to Report Obscured Traffic Signs

The Keystone Automobile Club today appealed to motorists to forward to club headquarters, 1643 Connecticut avenue N.W., the location of stop signs, traffic signals or other highway markings which have become obscured by overhanging tree limbs or shrubbery or have been defaced.

Club officials, it was pointed out, already have turned over to District authorities the location of a large number of such signs and prompt action has resulted.

Brazil Pays $19,200,000 Export-Import Loan

The Export-Import Bank from which numerous credits poured into South America last year, wrote paid across a $19,200,000 debt against Brazil yesterday.

Warren Lee Pierson, president of the bank, said that amount had been repaid by Brazil, liquidating a loan made in 1939 during the visit of Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, to Washington.

With payment came a laudatory letter expressing appreciation for the loan which aided Brazil to cushion the shock of the outbreak of the European war on its national economy.

Britain Losing Battle Of Atlantic, Admiral Glassford Declares

Job Is to Save England And That Means Ships, He Says in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, May 22.—Rear Admiral William Glassford, commander of the United States Yangtze naval patrol, declared tonight that the battle of the Atlantic "at this moment is being lost by the Allies."

"We are not only facing inevitable defeat of England and collapse of the British Empire, but also defeat of the United States unless something is done," he added.

Admiral Glassford told an audience of Chinese and American businessmen here that something must be done "to stop the sinking of Allied ships in the Atlantic, which is going on faster than they can be replaced."

"Once again," he declared, "it is the United States' job to save England."

"This means ships. Once again we are asked to build a colossal merchant marine to carry war supplies to England. We shall do it. But if it is not evident soon, this will not be enough. These ships must get safely across the Atlantic."

Referring to the possibility of convoys, the admiral said: "This is the one real and deadly effective solution, but just how we are to insure safe passage of the Atlantic remains to be seen."

Mrs. Steadman Planned To Kill Self, Court Told

BOSTON, May 22.—Testimony that Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 26-year-old blond, intended to die with Robert Emery, 26, whom she is accused of strangling as the climax of a hopeless love affair, appeared today on the records of her trial.

With the prosecution preparing to present medical evidence in the death of the married real estate man, father of two children, Detective Daniel F. Donovan testified yesterday he had asked Mrs. Steadman, who also has a child, why she bought 200 sleeping tablets.

"Go kill Bobbie and myself," he quoted her as replying. The detective said he asked her whether Emery knew anything about the tablets and that she answered "No."

A policewoman testified the attractive defendant told her she still loved "Bobbie" and did not care if she went to the electric chair—to which Massachusetts never has sent a woman.

Mrs. Steadman's apartment January 21, a rope around his neck. She was found, suffering from alcohol and sleeping tablet poisoning, on a bed in the apartment.

Some Helpful Hints FOR TELEPHONE USERS

In the rush of business, domestic and social duties, the simple little things which must be done to get the most satisfactory telephone service are sometimes forgotten. The hints given below are not new—they are just reminders:

CONSULT DIRECTORY
Memory is often faulty. Look up the number when in doubt.

IF YOU WOULD BE UNDERSTOOD
Keep your lips about one inch from the mouthpiece and speak directly into it, clearly and naturally. Chewing gum, pencils, cigars, pipes and cigarettes make it almost impossible for your words to flow clearly into the transmitter.

WHEN ANSWERING
Always answer pleasantly. It may be your best friend. It may be someone who will get a lasting impression of you from a first call.

PAD AND PENCIL
You'll save time and steps and have a written record of important messages if you keep a pad and pencil by the telephone.

HANG UP GENTLY AND CAREFULLY
It may annoy the person at the other end of the line if you hang up roughly. Also, if your receiver doesn't rest properly on the hook, people who call you will get a "busy" until this condition is corrected.

LISTEN FOR DIAL TONE
If you start dialing a number before you hear the dial tone (a steady humming sound) your call cannot go through.

DIAL CAREFULLY
Dial the first two letters only of exchange name and then each digit of the number, carrying the dial around to the stop with your finger. Allow it to return naturally.

IF YOU MAKE A MISTAKE
Hang up before re-dialing. Then lift the receiver and proceed as on a new call when you hear the dial tone.

BE SLOW—BE FAST
Be slow to hang up. Give the person you're calling time to answer. A good plan is to count the rings. Ten rings equal a minute. Be fast to answer when your telephone rings. The person calling you will appreciate it.

There's always time to use the telephone properly and to keep a smile in your voice.

Colleges to Join Work So Boys Can Join Army

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 22.—Between 400 and 500 liberal arts colleges will offer a three-year concentrated course beginning this fall to enable students to finish their academic work before being called into military service.

Dr. Guy E. Snavely, executive director of the Association of American Colleges, who announced the plan last night, estimated that 250,000 to 300,000 students would begin the speedup program in September.

The outlined course would enable a student entering college at 18 to finish at 21 when he is eligible for military duty. It is expected to keep college enrollments up, too, as it will encourage young men to complete their academic work before entering the Army.

Dr. Snavely said the shortened college course would be made possible through the institution of a three-term year, the third coming during the usual summer vacation.

Few Friends, 500 Curious See Tom Mix's Horses Sold

By the Associated Press.
NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 22.—It was almost like a Roman holiday out here at the late Tom Mix's ranch.

A few of his friends and 500 or so curiously seekers milled about in the hot dust while the circus and movie star's possessions were auctioned off yesterday.

But it was no holiday for 70-year-old Willie Simms, who attached himself to the then-unknown Mix in 1908 and has seen the world since.

This is a sad time, sir, a sad time," the colored groom murmured as his idol's horses went under the hammer. "I've felt bad in my time, but never this bad."

"Stumpy," as Mix called him, had watched each of the famous horses grow up.

The only prize not in the stable was Tony, who achieved picture fame equaled only by Strongheart. The 33-year-old Tony was willed to Ivan Parker, Mix's close friend, along with a roomful of trophies, saddles, riding habits and guns.

The 11-year-old Warrior, Mix's chief performing horse since 1925; Wonder, 14; Banjo, 18, both veterans of the act, and the mottled King, whom Mix called the best trick horse he ever trained, brought an average of $100.

Mix's jewelry and more personal possessions, particularly those with his monogram, commanded the best prices. A wrist watch brought $80. Buck Jones, Ken Maynard, Bill

Highway Program Financing

The public hearings on Captain H. C. Whitehurst's plan for highway improvement in the District revealed that, while there is widespread approval of the plan itself and of its objectives, the problem of financing such a program at this time would present serious difficulties.

Most of those who testified were in agreement with Captain Whitehurst and his associates as to the need for improvement of traffic facilities and few of the spokesmen were inclined to dissent from the view that the need is a present one.

There was, however, a considerable body of opinion to the effect that other needs, particularly those pertaining to national defense, might be more urgent in the immediate future, and there was also strong opposition to financing the program by doubling the gasoline tax.

Opposition to the gasoline tax increase is not due merely to the human disinclination to pay more taxes, or refusal to face realistically the fact that improvements cost money. Before the original imposition of the gasoline tax, the National Government, exclusively responsible for planning and developing the National Capital street system as one of the most expensive in the world, was meeting its proportionate share of financing street and highway improvements.

The gasoline tax was proposed as a substitute form of taxation, to be accompanied by the repeal of other taxes. As such, it was supported by the people of Washington. But when the gas tax law was enacted, the tax became a new and additional tax, other taxes for which it was to be substituted being retained.

And instead of going exclusively into the improvement of the street system, the tax in effect became the means by which the National Government, since it does not contribute to the gas tax, withdrew altogether as a contributor to the improvement and maintenance of the street system.

Through the gasoline tax, as in the case of the water tax and water system, the cost of street and highway improvements has been gradually shifted to local taxpayers and surpluses in the gasoline fund in recent years have broadened the uses originally contemplated for the tax receipts.

Those who are opposing the doubling of the gasoline tax now as a method of financing highway improvements made necessary by the expansion of the Federal City to meet national needs do not feel that before this increase is approved efforts should be made to determine in advance the amount of Federal participation in the cost of a very expensive undertaking.

Certainly other means of meeting the cost of the program should be fully explored. For, once it is doubled, the gasoline tax will never be reduced again. It is not merely the assumption of heavier taxes to finance a fine highway program that is being considered; it is the assumption of a heavier tax burden, at a time when other taxes are to be increased, that will be with us indefinitely.

Another factor which was mentioned in the Board of Trade statement, and which should not be overlooked, involves the wisdom of launching such an extensive project as that envisioned by Captain Whitehurst at a time when all the resources of the American people, particularly materials and labor, are apt to be needed in carrying out the defense program. Under conditions such as those which may be expected to prevail in the next few years, many projects which ordinarily would be considered desirable and urgent, may have to be deferred.

Death Afoot

Never has need for a renewal of the appreciation of danger on the streets been more evident than in recent months. With summer vacations approaching and the greater freedom of outdoor activities already at hand, a new traffic safety campaign, as planned by the traffic director, is in order.

This campaign, beginning Memorial Day, will be aimed at the education of children and adults who step into traffic lanes from between parked cars. In the case of the young such a hazard usually means a dash into peril during a game, but with their elders it too often is a risk-taking disaster in an effort to save a few steps or a little time.

Last year twenty-five or eighty traffic deaths reported resulted from the latter practice and, although official findings are incomplete in some cases, the ratio appears as high this year.

Much has been said and written in Washington concerning the relationship of playground facilities and child safety. It is true that many neighborhoods are without private or public recreational facilities, forcing children to spend most of their day on public thoroughfares. But the practice of playing in the streets is not confined to underprivileged neighborhoods, for it is to be observed in exclusive areas where some of the city's finest recreational advantages exist.

Responsibility for children is primarily that of their parents rather than of the police. There must be greater co-operation among all citizens and officials to brand motor traffic lanes as zones of imminent death. It is to be hoped that the new campaign will receive wholehearted support from the entire community.

The Battle of Crete

The German aerial invasion of Crete is developing into one of the most significant, and certainly one of the most spectacular battles of the entire war. Despite heavy preliminary losses, the attack is doggedly pressed. Swarms of German troops continue to drop literally from the skies, while reports from British sources intimate that additional invaders may have come by sea.

The German high command would hardly sacrifice such numbers of highly-trained shock troops and even more valuable materiel, including planes, unless it had a major objective in view.

Crete is not merely a strategic prize; it is also a psychological factor of high importance. The conquest of the island, Britain's key bastion in the eastern Mediterranean, by the daring new tactic of "vertical envelopment" or concentric attack from the air, would resound throughout the Near East.

To impressionable Oriental peoples, the success of this novel method, never before attempted on a large scale, would go far to confirm in their minds the terrifying legend of German military invincibility which Nazi propaganda has sedulously fostered.

With war still flaming in Iraq and kindling in Syria, the attitude of the entire Arab world would become more restive, while isolated Turkey would tend to grow more pliant to German demands for passage of troops and supplies.

All this the British know only too well, and the garrison in Crete can be counted on to fight, as Mr. Churchill has put it, to the death. The danger is that this garrison may not be large, and that it consists mainly of troops recently evacuated from Greece.

Three weeks is a short time to reft exhausted troops, deprived of their heavy equipment in the recent forced evacuation of the Greek mainland. With pressing demands elsewhere in the Near East, it is doubtful whether they have since been notably re-inforced.

The long, narrow island of Crete is little more than a ridge of serrated mountains, especially at its western end where the main German invasion is taking place. There, also, is Suda Bay, the chief British naval base. The mountainous interior may hinder quick concentration of German landing parties, but it also enables those who do gain mountain footholds to conduct guerrilla warfare.

With so many bases in Greece, the Aegean Islands, and the Italian Dodecanese, averaging only about a hundred miles from Crete, the Luftwaffe could quickly shuttle in large forces, once firm footholds were obtained.

With both sides resolved to win, a desperate struggle seems inevitable. Its outcome will go far to determine not only the local strategic situation but also the entire far-flung battle-front, today extending from the Peloponnese to the Persian Gulf, and perhaps soon destined to spread into still more distant regions.

Mystery Unsolved

Six years have come and gone since Lawrence of Arabia disappeared from the earthly scene, and passing events have but served to add to the legends which cluster about his name. Even those who had the right to call themselves his intimate friends cannot read the riddle of his curious personality.

The record shows that he was of Leicestershire stock, a member of a family which had migrated to Ireland and later to Wales. His baptismal designation was Thomas Edward, and he customarily signed himself "T. E."

The date of his birth was August 15, 1888. A consuming enthusiasm for the Near East developed in his heart while he was a student at Oxford. In preparation for the writing of a book on the cultural influences of the Crusades, he toured Syria on foot in 1910.

Post-graduate endowment funds granted by Magdalen College made it possible for him to assist in an archeological enterprise at Carchemish. Gradually he accumulated a practical acquaintance with colloquial Arabic, an achievement which made feasible a series of independent excursions in Mesopotamia.

Lawrence's sympathies with the desert peoples had flowered before the beginning of the first World War. The processes by which he arrived at his decision that a great free Arab nation was desirable are part of the mystery of his life. Unification of the rival tribes involved incredible difficulties. The magic of El-Orens' genius is nowhere better exemplified than in the statesmanship by which he brought together the divergent elements of what became the kingdom of Iraq, with the Emir Faisal as sovereign under British protection.

But, probably because he had committed himself too definitely to his followers in the successful revolt

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

A new kind of "flu" has just been found by United States Public Health Service doctors. It is essentially indistinguishable from ordinary influenza but is caused by a filterable virus which sometimes causes a disease clinically similar to the dreaded cerebro-spinal meningitis, although far less fatal.

Perhaps as much as 11 per cent of the population has had the disease, without knowing it. Recent studies have shown that it is especially prevalent in rat-infested houses. This kind of "flu" has been suspected in the past, but there has been no proven case.

About seven years ago Dr. Charles Armstrong, Public Health Service surgeon, described a condition which he called "chorio-meningitis." Victims showed most of the symptoms of spinal meningitis—a disease caused by a bacteria somewhat similar to the organism responsible for pneumonia. None of these bacteria could be found in Dr. Armstrong's cases. Instead a virus was isolated which caused the same symptoms in experimental animals.

Immune bodies formed in the bloodstream to combat this virus were found quite generally distributed through the population. They were especially prevalent in the blood of inmates of various institutions. There were no fatalities, although the victims were extremely ill with symptoms of serious involvement of the nervous system such as would be expected from inflammation of the meninges, or linings of the brain and spinal cord.

The lack of deaths was surprising in the days before the sulfanilamide group of drugs which have rendered meningitis, formerly one of the most dreaded of all killers, much less serious.

The discovery was one of the outstanding medical events of the decade. In Europe the malady, which Dr. Armstrong called "chorio-meningitis," now is known as "Armstrong's disease."

Dr. Armstrong found that about 11 per cent of the general adult population had immune bodies in their bloodstreams. This meant that they must have had the malady at some time, but most of those examined denied experiencing any symptoms similar to those which he described for chorio-meningitis. He decided at the time that the malady probably occurred in a mild form which the average doctor would diagnose as "flu," or gripe, and in which there would be no nervous system involvement.

Ever since Dr. Armstrong has been seeking a case which could be proved. The only way to do so was to locate some person who developed immune bodies after a mild case of supposed influenza, and who did not have them before. This was harder than finding a needle in a haystack. Most persons are treated only by their family physicians, who would have no reason to suspect Armstrong's disease in what would appear to be an ordinary "flu" case.

The break came last March when a physician in Dr. Armstrong's own laboratory was taken sick with supposed influenza while actually working with the chorio-meningitis virus. It had been demonstrated previously that he had no immune bodies. He ran a high temperature and suffered from the backache characteristic of influenza.

Fortunately, he himself was on the lookout for any obscure attack of "chorio." So was the Public Health Service physician, Dr. J. W. Hornbrook, who attended him, and his wife, a trained nurse who had followed the research. He was given the customary treatments for influenza, but during his convalescence both neutralizing antibodies and a strain of the virus which caused the disease in animals were isolated from his blood.

The finding renders much more complicated the diagnosis of influenza. Not all sharks are dangerous. This is stressed in a bulletin on this family of fishes by Dr. Henry W. Fowler of the Philadelphia Academy of Sciences, just issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

Some of the largest, he says, probably are harmless—including the so-called basking sharks which usually inspire terror. When encountered, he says, they rarely, if ever, make any defense, but try to escape by swimming slowly away. Stories that the animal dives when harpooned and sometimes will drag a small boat with its crew to the bottom are now discredited. Occasionally it may upset a boat. While it reigns as a monster among sharks, it is actually not so formidable as a common dogfish shark.

Perhaps the most dangerous are the so-called "carcharodons," found in all the warm seas, although nowhere in abundance. They are among the strongest and most voracious of all fishes, but still far less frightful than their fossil ancestors.

Some of the latter are known from teeth five or more inches long. They were surely, Dr. Fowler says, "the largest of all fishes, having been estimated over twice the length of the largest living basking sharks or whale sharks. Their total length must have been upward of 88 feet. Such monsters must have rendered incessant the butchery of the majority of other aquatic animals."

Tells of First Metal Steamboats Built in the United States. To the Editor of The Star: I have noted in your "Question and Answer" column of April 18 that the answer to one asking when the first metal vessels were built in this country is that the Chatham was the first, built in 1837, and Lamar, 1838.

My history states that there was a small metal steamboat built at York, Pa., and launched in November, 1825. She was 60 feet keel, 9 feet beam and 3 feet depth. This boat was named Commodore, after the little river that runs through York and into the Susquehanna River.

She was planned by Phineas Davis and built by Davis & Gardner. This boat arrived in Harrisburg, December 3, 1825, and in June and July, 1826, she went up the Susquehanna as far as Owego and Binghamton.

The first steamboat of really commercial size and value built of iron in this country was the John Randolph, built in Savannah, 1834, of iron imported from England. The Chatham, 1836, was second. J. W. BOMERVILLE.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

A dry spell is the time to take the nozzle off the hose and let the water flow slowly for hours on end, fairly soaking the ground.

In this way a great deal of moisture is put into the lawn, flower beds and around the roots of shrubs and evergreens.

The job of sprinkling then does not have to be done every day. Old-timers swear it is the best way to water at any time, but especially during a time of drought.

The evergreens seem to need more water than most plants, but the average home gardener never stops to think about them.

He is so afraid his lawn will burn up, or his annuals or perennials will suffer, that he spends most of his time spraying these.

Experts have told us, and keep on telling us, although we don't always believe them, that a light spraying, while refreshing the leaves, and clearing them of the dust, does most in refreshing the mind of the person handling the hose.

In other words, such a light spraying is held to be almost worse than none at all, since it compels the grass plants to turn their roots upward, in a dry season, rather than downward.

Some persons try to make up for this by sprinkling at night. This is better than doing it earlier, since there is not so much evaporation, but the surface film still compels the grass roots to come up.

So another of those vicious circles is completed. The roots, being shallow, rather than going down deep, are easily burned by the sun. The grass tends to die out at the slightest touch of the sun. And since, in such times, there is sun all the time, day after day, the gardener finds his task an almost impossible one.

The real solution of the grass problem during a drought is to have good grass. This means that bare spots will have to be filled in with fresh seed. It is impossible to have a good lawn without good grass to start with, although many persons try it, just the same, and no one can blame them. The good lawn problem grows worse and worse, year after year, in the cities. Since many suburban and city dwellers come from small towns, where everybody had good grass—at least that is the way they remember it—they often do not understand that special care is needed hereabouts. Many suburban homes are built on farmed-over land which lost its fertility years ago.

Most such soils seem to need natural humus and various mulches, especially peat moss, or peat moss, more than they do added fertilizers. Most amateur gardeners have had the experience, at some time or other, of putting fertilizers on the lawn, only to have the grass grow faded and yellow after an initial burst of super-greenness.

Chemical fertilizers are hard to handle in dry periods, and their use requires more horticultural knowledge than most modern home owners have. They should be watered in thoroughly, at once, care being taken to see that none is left on leaves of any sort. At the best, such fertilizers

Letters to the Editor

Explains Cultural Purposes Of Sokols of Czechoslovakia.

To the Editor of The Star: To your appreciative and appreciated editorial on the Sokols, in The Star of May 19, may I add that the purpose of this organization was not primarily recreational, but rather cultural—physical, intellectual and moral culture? Physical training was made an important part of this work on the theory that a sound, healthy mind can develop and function properly only in a sound, healthy body.

It also may be of interest to your readers to know that the word "slet" means "a flying or flocking together," as of birds—a congregating or assembling through flight. It is also used to designate the convention or congress which results from this "flying together." The use of the term in this connection will be obvious if it is remembered that the word "sokol," as you have pointed out, is the name of a bird, the falcon.

The destruction of the Sokol organization in Czechoslovakia, the plundering of its property, and the imprisonment and torture of its leaders will not materially affect the results of the struggle now going on in Czechoslovakia. That organization was but the outward expression of something deep within the nature of the Czechoslovak people themselves—something which cannot be destroyed by the destruction of its outward manifestation. It can be destroyed only by the destruction of the people themselves. And such is the ultimate aim of the Nazi barbarians. That is why the present struggle will go on, must go on, until one side or the other attains victory. Those who are calling for peace negotiations short of that goal, simply do not know what is at stake—or do not care.

EDWARD WOLESENSKY.

Advocates Chinese Ruler's Philosophy Regarding Taxing and Spending. To the Editor of The Star: A wise Chinese ruler once said, "To govern a great state one should do it as a cook fries small fish, that is, without scaling or cleaning them." Unfortunately, the New Deal for almost a decade has adopted the opposite idea. It removed the "golden" scales from corporate bodies, while literally "cleaning" the American taxpayer. As a most natural result, we at present are involved in fiscal disorder of the first magnitude.

Conservative minds agree that if intelligent methods are applied the waste can be checked. Inasmuch as the Government has embarked on a stupendous defense program, isn't the time ripe to devise ways and means to combat unnecessary costs with the view of making ends meet? This can and should be done in order to forestall ultimate disaster.

EDMUND K. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Protests Impatience Of Horn Blowers. To the Editor of The Star: There already is enough din from trolleys and the ordinary flow of traffic, and we ought not to have imposed upon us the impatient and nerve-wracking horn-toting of discourteous drivers. Invariably, when one is waiting for a stop light to change, the horn blower is behind one ready to begin his infernal rasping even before the red light has turned to green. Many times his blasting is so capricious and uncalled for that it is almost necessary to conclude that with many of our drivers the itch to horn-blow has become a vicious habit.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Says That Reprisals Against Germany Constitute Legal Retaliation. To the Editor of The Star: An invasion of America's maritime immunity zone by Germany for purposes of violence may legally be met by the seizure of her vessels of war by the public forces of the United States.

The creation of a state of quasi-war with Germany opens a road that goes distant into the domain of imperfect hostilities and makes possible the inflicting of injuries while avoiding full hostilities.

Our departure from neutrality constitutes us a de facto enemy of Germany. If Germany and America each is desirous of avoiding full war, they may continue the practices from which their respective grievances arise and resort to reprisals.

Being acts of war in fact, while not in intention, reprisals are employed when the aggrieved state does not deem the injuries endured to justify complete war. They mostly are employed when a state will not redeem injuries, their object being to obtain redress, to end the injury or to retaliate for wrongs inflicted.

Reprisals may take several forms. The state employing them may confiscate the vessels and property of the citizens of the offending nation. When The Hague government repudiated a treaty with England, the British, in reprisal, suspended the operation of treaty provisions in respect of freedom of the seas and commerce to the serious injury of the Netherlands.

Our imperfect war with Germany, however, does not make us cease to be hypothetically a neutral while we retain the law by which we departed from our historic doctrine of the freedom of the seas and by which international rights were sacrificed by Congress.

EDWARD CONN.

Urges Occupation of Colonies Of France and Denmark. To the Editor of The Star: It is the opinion of the writer that the United States immediately should take possession of all French possessions within 2,000 miles of our shores, as well as the Azores, Greenland and Iceland, and those French African possessions, such as Dakar, French Guiana, etc.

After Hitler is defeated those territories can be turned over to France and Denmark, providing they prove worthy of them. P. H. GEOGHEGAN.

Lake at Sunrise

Sunrise across a lake is like a breathless dream

Whose gold is tangled with awakening . . . Soft on the cool mouth of the moon's white theme Warm lips are pressed for rapture's slaking. A slow pulse quickens to the venture-careless And sun-flecked dimples play at hide-and-seek . . . No tilted mirror ever held more loveliness Than blushing sky and water cheek to cheek.

The undertow draws backward, leaving a bare stone, And quick wind pricks against the watcher's brow . . . A molten wave suells upward—then lies darkly prone As ripples run from a canoe's swift prow.

Night-shadow slumbers in a dual sky And the far shore answers a loon's weird cry. PEGGY LAWSE.

Economy Is Ignored Despite War

Senate's Disregard Of Budget Bureau Warning Is Cited

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

When will the Congress of the United States discover that there is a war on in the world, which in the words of the President, threatens as never before the safety of the American Republic?

David Lawrence.

This question is asked because the official record of the debates in the Senate this week shows that the National War Reliance Commission is demanding for economy on non-defense expenses, the era of extravagance is unchecked and the same slipshod methods of spending the people's money are being practiced which have been the political habit in normal times.

It would seem that with selective service men serving in the Army at $21 a month and with taxpayers being asked to pay taxes up to almost the point of confiscation, the realistic conception of what is going on in America than they appear to have had when they voted to disregard the Budget Bureau's recommendation and thus created additional jobs for bureaucracy's protection of American industry.

The Budget Bureau functions under the direction of the President. Each department comes before it and presents estimates. The anti-trust division of the Department of Justice asked for a bigger appropriation. It was given not all that it sought but a new increase of $250,000 more than the previous year, when it received $1,323,000.

Budget Bureau Defied. Under the executive orders of the President, it is permissible for subordinate officials to lobby in Congress for appropriations. They are supposed to abide by the decision of the Budget Bureau.

In this instance the Attorney General, head of the Department of Justice, did abide by the rule. But his subordinate, the Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Arnold, responding to an invitation to appear before a House committee, not only advocated a higher appropriation, but persuaded the House committee to increase it by $750,000. This increase was eliminated by the unanimous action of the Senate Committee on Appropriations. Thereupon pandemonium seemingly broke loose in the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice. Data and memoranda, extracts from pending court suits, and other information regarding smearing corporations whose cases are before the Federal courts were fed to Senators, who used them as ammunition almost verbatim in their speeches on the Senate floor.

Senator McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada tried to persuade his fellow Senators to uphold the Budget Bureau. One of the Senators openly said: "I do not care what the Budget Bureau says." This was the spirit of the spender group, especially after it was brought out that the purpose of the fund was to harass American business and industry. Not a single Senator of the Republican party—supposed to be the opposition party—arose to counteract this type of attack, much of which was based on misstatements and misrepresentation of the facts.

Vital Defense Item. Senator La Follette, who wanted to see the funds increased, naively remarked: "I realize that for many months it has been popular in the Senate to dress up in the garb of national defense all items of appropriation upon which favorable action is desired. However, after the investigation which I have been able to make into the issues involved in the item of appropriation under consideration I am firmly convinced that the $750,000 item involved here is one of the most vital and important national defense items that this Congress has considered during the present session."

Senator La Follette, one of the leading isolationists, has not exhibited much concern about the defense program in any other major respect. He never made an investigation of the reasons why Herr Hitler was permitted to build up a huge air force while America slept or, specifically, the reasons why the Congress of the United States as late as March, 1940, answered the request of the Army Air Corps for 1,600 combat planes by furnishing only 166 planes. But he believes now that American industry should be persecuted just the same for having failed, for instance, to provide aluminum for planes that the Government itself never thought of ordering before a year ago.

President Circumvented. Nothing in the debate reveals what is to be done for the defense program with the additional $750,000 that cannot be done with the big appropriation previously approved by the Budget Bureau for the anti-trust division. Senator McCarran made this statement to the Senate: "Under the bill as reported, he (Mr. Arnold of the anti-trust division) will have $250,000 more than he had for the current year. He can devote that $250,000 to taking care of things that impinge upon the welfare of the farmers of America. He can employ 50 lawyers at $5,000 per annum and go forward. We have given him the money to do it, and it is in this bill. He can enforce all the laws that affect all anti-trust matters that touch upon the farmers, and the American Farm Bureau Federation will find itself entirely taken care of by the $250,000 written into this bill. Fifty more lawyers added to 171 will not make a bad army to go forward with the enforcement of the anti-trust laws."

But the Senate paid no attention to the arguments of the isolationists in the contentions of the Senators who admitted having been influenced by the anti-trust division itself. Thus does a Government bureau circumvent the President's own executive order after lobbying for appropriations.

The Political Mill

Criticism of Mellett Agency Declared Fantastic and Unwarranted by Facts

By GOULD LINCOLN.

The Office of Government Reports has been given a definite legislative status in a bill which has now passed both houses of Congress and which will soon be sent to the President for his approval. Since the President recommended the legislation and the office comes directly under the Executive Order, there is no question about his signing the bill when it reaches him.

Two arguments, in the main, were made against the passage of the bill. One was that the Office of Government Reports would turn into a propaganda mill and perhaps into Government censor of all news relating to the administration. The other was that the expenditure—$1,500,000 is the sum authorized to be expended for the office during a fiscal year—was not justified.

The fact of the matter is that the Office of Government Reports already has been functioning for several years, first under the title of Emergency National Council and then under its present title. The language of the bill now passed and the authority given under it are the same as contained in the President's executive order setting up the office. In other words, the Office of Government Reports could be used as a propaganda agency or as a Government censor equally as effectively without the legislation as with it. Both President Roosevelt and Lowell Mellett, director of the agency, have said repeatedly that they are opposed to censorship in any form. Certainly there has been no effort on their part to invoke censorship—although the Navy Department has asked for a voluntary censorship on the part of the American press as far as the movement of ships, including the entrance into American ports of British warships.

Critical of Newspapers. There has, however, been no move whatever to limit publication by the newspapers of reports of Government activities or criticisms of the administration of the Government. Probably no administration has been under more attacks in the press than has that of Mr. Roosevelt, and no Chief Executive has been more often the target of criticism. The President has on occasion replied to attacks sharply. He has in turn been critical of newspapers and their publishers. But he has never told a newspaper it could not publish what it wanted. Nor is it in the cards that he ever will. He was critical of newspapers which published photographs of a British warship entering New York Harbor recently—after the request of the Navy Department for voluntary censorship. This is a period of emergency, however, when this country is overwhelmingly in favor of granting aid to the British in their war against Hitler, an aid which Congress has overwhelmingly voted. Anything that might hamper that aid might be subject to criticism.

Several of the opponents of the bill to give the Office of Government Reports legislative status—which means that appropriations for the office hereafter will be made in the independent offices appropriations bill instead of being taken from other funds appropriated by Congress under direction of the President—went into the realm of fantasy. Senator Aiken of Vermont, for example, said there was "nothing in the bill to prevent the establishment of a White House secret service for the purpose of obtaining such information" information relating to the activities of the various agencies and departments of the Federal Government.

Likened to Hitler Agency. There is nothing in the bill which provides for a "secret service" to obtain information. Furthermore, Government officials go along with the administration for which they work, or they go out of office. That has always been the case Senator Norris of Nebraska, who has gone along with the New Deal administration on practically all of its legislative demands, balked at the bill giving more permanent status to the Office of Government Reports. Mr. Norris' argument was to the effect that it involves a useless expenditure of Government funds and that from it may blossom an ugly propaganda agency which will enable almost any Government to perpetuate itself.

The New Deal administration for which Senator Norris has labored and campaigned has really done things which should make it possible for any administration to perpetuate itself in power. It has subsidized millions of workers all over the country. It has subsidized millions of farmers. It has put millions of persons, men, women and children, on the various Government pay rolls. Mr. Norris did not oppose this direct action by the administration, direct action which necessarily means votes. All of which makes the possibilities of the O. G. R. pale into insignificance.

The purpose of the O. G. R. is to provide a central clearing house through which the individual citizen, organization or Government agency, State or Federal, may obtain information about the activities of the Government, may transmit inquiries and complaints and receive advice and information. It is also designed to aid the President in dealing with special problems requiring the clearance between the Federal and State and local governments, and to keep the President currently informed of the opinions and desires and complaints of citizens and groups of citizens and State governments with respect to the work of the Federal agencies.

An Effective Weapon. The O. G. R. can perform effective and valuable service—and it has already done so. Those Senators who attacked the bill spoke highly of Mr. Mellett, who is one of the President's special assistants. None of them suggested that the evils they foresaw would arise while he continued as head of the office. Congress retains in its hands the power to deal with any agency of the Government which becomes a public menace. It can at any time decline to appropriate money for its maintenance—no matter how strenuously a President may demand the money—and the agency will fade out of existence. It is an effective weapon, which could be used against the Office of Government Reports as well as any other Federal office.

The Senate accepted only one amendment to the bill, an amendment which was offered by Senator Taft of Ohio, directing that the O. G. R. not distribute films or radio speeches. The office is not distributing films and has not for a couple of years. It does have its State representatives deliver radio talks, which it supplies, about the activities of the Government agencies. An effort will be made to compromise the matter by waiving authority to distribute films and continuing the radio speeches.

Attack on Crete Mystifying

Eliot Sees Weak Point in Chain of Strategic Reasoning That Might Prompt Nazi Assault

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELLIOT.

The German attack on Crete appears to be another operation conceived on the well-known German principle of the maximum and minimum objective. At the worst, the Germans gain valuable experience in using airborne troops against off-shore island positions and in the methods of establishing beach heads. They may hope to draw British naval units to the scene and inflict upon Maj. G. Fielding Eliot, them disproportionate damage by air bombing. With a little better fortune, they might obtain a firm foothold on the island, and perhaps compel the British to reinforce Crete from Egypt, thus relieving the pressure on Gen. Rommel's army in Libya (which is, as previously pointed out, in not too happy a position).

The disruptive effect of this Crete operation on the whole British strategy in the Middle East probably was not the least of the considerations which induced the German high command to undertake it. Finally, the Germans might succeed in driving the British out of Crete altogether, a feat of great importance.

The island of Crete lies like a sort of natural stopper across the mouth of the Aegean Sea. It commands all the approaches from Greece toward Africa, as well as toward Syria and Palestine.

An Important Gift. When Mussolini invaded Greece, the fact that his action made the British a free gift of Crete was perhaps its most serious consequence and was largely responsible for the subsequent British successes in the western desert and Cyrenaica. While the British are strongly inclined to undertake air-borne operations in great force directed toward Syria.

But to take the long view of the German proceedings in the Middle East, one is compelled to ask why they are fighting there at all. Certainly there remained no menace to the rear, once the last British foothold on the continent was broken, Greece and Yugoslavia conquered and the Italian Army in Albania rescued from its sorry plight. From that point of view, they were free to concentrate on Britain, the decisive area of the war. Two other considerations remain, however. There is the army in North Africa, which probably would be destroyed in due time were it not for the concentration of its efforts on it. Were this to happen, the results might be widespread—in French North Africa particularly—and important. British forces might be released for operations elsewhere.

Oil Question Arises. Beyond this is the question of oil. There have been recent suggestions in the press that the German oil situation is becoming precarious. This seems due partly to persistent and increasingly effective British bombings of oil conversion plants, refineries and storage tanks; partly to interruption of barge traffic on the Danube, due to the Yugoslav campaign; to Yugoslav destruction of barges and to continued guerrilla operations in that area; partly to unsettled conditions in Rumania, and to the damage to Rumanian refineries, bad condition of East European railways and shortage of tanker rolling stock; partly to the wholly destitute condition of Italy with regard to oil, a condition which cannot be relieved while Italy remains in the grip of the British sea blockade.

It may be, therefore, that the ultimate German object is to obtain free access to Middle Eastern oil. For this purpose it would be necessary to drive the British feet out of the Eastern Mediterranean, which could be done only by rendering its bases untenable or capturing them.

Cyprus May Be Next. With such an ambitious program, the steps so far taken are consistent—the diplomatic pressure on Turkey, the inspired uprising in Iraq, the pressure on Moscow to recognize the new Iraq government, the pressure on Vichy to allow German use of the Syrian airdromes, the continued activities on the Egyptian frontier, the last-ditch stand of the Italians at Amba Alagi, the systematic occupation of the Aegean Islands, the attempt to infiltrate into Iraq, and now the assault on Crete. If the attack on Crete succeeds, the next step seems likely to be a similar attack on Cyprus, which bars the way from Crete to Syria.

But the weak point in this chain of strategic reasoning is the fact that Syria itself is the key to the situation. Syria is weakly held by a French force of questionable loyalty, while there are British troops and free French forces on its southern frontier. There seems little to prevent the British and free French from marching in and taking over.

Certainly the Germans cannot count on the British being always too late; certainly they must anticipate that political considerations, however compelling, would not deter the British from occupying Syria if it was a question of doing that or being driven out of the Eastern Mediterranean altogether.

Hence, because of the unknown factors involved, one is inclined to cross fingers in estimating this situation. It may be that the Germans have no rosy anticipations of getting free access to the oil of Iraq, but are principally concerned with trying to extricate their African army from a situation of increasing difficulty. Or they may hope that the fall of Crete might bring about a further softening at Ankara (and at Moscow).

From the tactical viewpoint, the attack on Crete has not developed to a stage where extended comment is possible. The use of troop-carrying gliders has made its bow in modern war; the rugged terrain seems to have been little favorable to the parachutists, though a good many of them seem to have resorted to individual action as snipers—a game at which the Cretean mountaineers appear to have proved superior. This Changing World

Berlin-Vichy Axis Formed With an Eye To Shape Post-War World Will Take

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

A new political association has been formed in Europe; the Berlin-Vichy (Paris) axis. This new combine has been created with an eye on the post-war world. Of course the French are taking for granted that Britain—even with the support of the United States—is bound to be defeated and a huge German empire will be established on the ruins of the British. Present day France is quite happy to be a satellite of such an empire.

For the time being, statements—official or unofficial—from the Vichy government to the effect that the French won't fight again are correct. But in the course of events which are bound to develop in the course of the next few months, nobody can say whether French military, naval or air units won't be used in the fray. The mere declaration—justified in ordinary times—that the French forces would oppose any attempt of any power to occupy an inch of French territory might bring about an armed conflict between France and the enemies of Germany. It is conceivable that under the armistice terms the Germans may wish to use the Dakar air base for certain operations. But it is not conceivable that this will be tolerated by foes of the Reich since it is a matter of life and death for them. Thus, despite the honest and peaceful declarations of the French government, a conflict with those who oppose Hitler's expansionist policies would be inevitable. The French are naturally fed up with the war in which they are no longer combatants but they are forced to suffer its consequences all the same. Hence, a desire has frequently been expressed by their leaders in private conversations to see this mess ended.

Hitler Foresaw Vichy Axis. The conception of the Berlin-Vichy Axis had existed in the mind of Herr Hitler and was shared by some French industrial and political leaders even before the war started. But it assumed definite form after the French collapse last June, when the country's democratic institutions took on a totalitarian pattern.

Former Vice Premier Laval worked openly toward that end. He was overthrown because he wanted too much power for himself and too little for his associates. Hitler grumbled but remained aloof. The time to organize the new Axis was not ripe. The Balkans had to be taken care of and there was Italy in particular which had to be put in her right place.

Even Laval, the pro-Italian, protested the "rights" Mussolini had obtained from his Berlin associate regarding the future distribution of the French Empire. Although Italian troops have occupied a very insignificant portion of French territory, the agreement between the two Axis partners concerning Savoy and the Maritime Alps is still in existence and Mussolini occasionally reminds his colleague of it. The same agreement gives Italy the right to take over Tunisia after the war is over. It was only after Italy had been defeated in Greece and in Africa and had to be saved by the Germans, that Hitler was able to talk business with the French.

In the new setup, it is said that France was given a definite pledge that she would lose nothing to Italy. If Duce, after the German victory in the Balkans, was told that Italy's role in new Europe would be expansion in the Balkans. For this reason Italy was allowed to annex Dalmatia, to create the Croatian Kingdom under the wing of Mussolini and will soon be given an expanded Albania, possible as far as Bitolj. Italy as the mistress of the Balkans will have her hands full for many years to come—if the Axis is victorious.

'Glamorous Future' for France. The French were told that they would have to surrender their African colonies which used to belong to the Reich. In exchange, however, the French were told that they could "pick the British carcass" and would be allowed to take over British possessions in West Africa. France, according to Hitler's reported promise to Admiral Darlan, would have a glamorous future. The inventive genius of the French would complement the thorough organizing powers of the methodical Germans. Hitler is said to have spoken in glowing terms of the military valor of French soldiers. Their trouble, he said—and in this he was right—has been that political corruption and the lack of an ideal had weakened the French race to the point of destruction.

however, seem to have been formed. The reported use of small surface ships suggests possible intervention by British naval units, though the exact present disposition of the Mediterranean fleet is unknown, and the Germans may have chosen a moment when Sir Andrew Cunningham's slender naval forces were employed elsewhere. The attacks appear to be continuing. This was to be expected, as the Germans do not do this sort of thing by halves.

When I use a word, Schickelgruber said in rather a scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean—neither more nor less. For instance, when I say 'eternal friendship' it means 'a knife in the back'; when I say 'shameless defense' it means 'heroism'; when I say 'non-aggression pact' it sometimes means 'let's gang on a third party'; and sometimes, 'look out, little fellow, I'm going to gobble you up and count your change (if any) before I eat you.'"

"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."

"The question is," said Schickelgruber, "which is to be master—that's all—impertinence!—that's what I say. That means that we've had enough of that subject; that the R. A. F. never could get through to Berlin, and that if they did they would never hit anything except museums, hospitals and non-Aryan infants."

"What does non-Aryan mean?" "It means any one whom I don't happen to like at the moment—Aryan is any one of whom I approve—the Japs, for instance."

Schickelgruber began to sway back and forth violently on his banquet perch, and thinking to calm him, Alice put her hands behind her back and began to recite the "Lorelei."

"Ach, the genius of Germany! How sweet, how Aryan!" "But surely Heine was—?" "Heine! Who was Heine?—that lovely poem is anonymous—which means, 'Ask no questions and you'll hear no lies.' I, too, have written a lovely poem; I will repeat it to you."

"I sent a message to the British: 'I told them 'This is what I wish—' 'I sent a message to Herr Hess, 'Resulting in a frightful—' Alice never knew how the poem ended, for at that moment a heavy crash shook the forest from end to end.

The Conning Tower

Home Defense Note.

From Saugatuck to Lyons Plain. The thirsty glebe could use the rain.

One of Connecticut's Senators, Mr. Danaher, objecting to the bill that made the Office of Government Reports permanent, warns that the measure "would make our press subservient to and an arm of the Government." It won't and it can't, we warn. The press is still free. It will continue to be free, And the Connecticut press, of which only a trace is Democratic, will continue to be free to tell the administration what it ought to do, what it ought to have done and how inept it is in word and deed.

Happy Ending. (With thanks to Lewis Carroll and profound apologies to Humpty Dumpty.) The face only got crosser and crosser, and less and less human; when Alice had come within a few yards of it she saw that it had eyes, a nose, a mouth and a small, black mustache, like a toothbrush; and when she had come close to it she saw that it was Schickelgruber himself.

"And how exactly like a Schickelgruber he is!" she said aloud, standing with her hands ready to catch him, for she was every moment expecting him to fall. "It's very provoking," he said, "to be called a Schickelgruber. My patience is almost exhausted again."

"I said you looked like a Schickelgruber, sir," Alice gently explained. "And some Schickelgrubers are quite sane. And don't you think you'd be safer on the ground?" "Of course I don't think so! Why, if ever I did fall off, I did—there's no chance of—but if I did—if I did fall, Stalin has promised me—ah, you may turn pale if you like! Stalin has promised me, with his very own mouth—to—to—"

"To free the earth of the Communist menace," Alice interrupted, "I would declare that's too bad!" Schickelgruber screamed, breaking into a sudden passion. "You've been listening at doors, or you couldn't have known it!" "I haven't indeed!" Alice said very gently. "It's in a book called 'Mein Kampf'."

"There's glory for you!" "I don't know what you mean by glory," Alice said. "Of course you don't—till I tell you. I meant 'The apotheosis of the German race.'"

"But glory doesn't mean the—whatever you said." "When I use a word," Schickelgruber said in rather a scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean—neither more nor less. Nazis Say British Led Iceland to Quit Danes

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, May 22.—The Icelandic Althing (Parliament) which has just voted to sever the royal tie with Denmark, acted under the duress of England, authorized German quarters declared today.

"It seems beyond doubt that Britain had her fingers in the pie," it was declared.

Sveinn Bjornsson, Icelandic diplomat and former Minister to Denmark, has been elected regent of Iceland as a sequel to her cancellation of the treaty of unity with Denmark, D.N.B., official German news agency, reported.

Four Brothers at Fort Meade and Their Father

3 Brothers Follow Capt. Conlyn Into Military Careers

Each Joined Guard Engineers on Reaching Age of 18

When Capt. Pearson Chapman Conlyn joined the District National Guard in 1922, the day after his 18th birthday, he started something of a family stampede for military life. For as soon as his three brothers, William James, Jr., Andrew Grant and Robert Marshall Conlyn reached the age of 18, they followed him into the Guard.

Today these four Washington brothers are together as active officers at Camp George Meade, Md., in the 121st Engineers. William and Andrew are first lieutenants, while Robert is a second lieutenant.

The trek to the colors, so their father, William James Conlyn explained, started when a "pal" of Capt. Conlyn joined the National Guard.

"So he went in," Mr. Conlyn said. Mr. Conlyn, who is a retired law examiner, expressed the belief that his eldest son decided to join the Engineers after a talk with one of his colonels. The colonel was a friend of Mr. Conlyn from law school days.

Live in Same Barracks. In any event, the brothers not only followed Capt. Conlyn into the Guard but into the 121st Engineers as well. Except for a training period last fall, when Capt. Conlyn

Big Success Claimed For Chinese Troops

By the Associated Press. CHUNGKING, China, May 22.—The Chinese troops claimed last night their success in Chekiang province scored one of their biggest successes in months Tuesday by fighting their way into Chuki, a railroad town south of Hangchow.

The army said the Japanese abandoned 4,000 dead and much war material.

Comdr. Eickelberg's Funeral Services Set Tomorrow

Noted Engineer Died In Baltimore Tuesday After Long Illness

Funeral services will be held at 2:15 p.m. tomorrow in St. Mary's Chapel, Arlington, for Lt. Comdr. Ernest W. Eickelberg, 51, former official in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, who died Tuesday in Marine Hospital, Baltimore, after a long illness. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

A noted engineer, Comdr. Eickelberg held the post of assistant chief of the division of terrestrial magnetism and seismology at the survey office here from 1931 to 1938. He entered the service of the Geodetic Survey in 1913.

Comdr. Eickelberg was born in Haskins, Ohio, and was educated at Cornell University where he received a civil engineering degree in 1913. He received his early education in schools in Baltimore and Buffalo, N. Y.

Served in World War. During the World War Comdr. Eickelberg served in the Coast Artillery Corps, eventually taking command of the United States Mine Planter Graham. He was promoted to the rank of captain in 1918 and placed in charge of laying and testing mines and controlling cables.

He returned to duty here and later led survey work between Tacoma and British Columbia. He also was in charge of the District of Columbia-Virginia boundary survey and saw service in the Philippines, where he was in charge of the computing office of the survey.

Comdr. Eickelberg served as executive officer of survey ships Pathfinder, Lydonia and Surveyor and was commanding officer of the ships Explorer and Guide in Alaska up until the time of his last illness.

Member of Several Societies. He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Philosophical Society of Washington, Society of American Military Engineers, Washington Society of Engineers, Washington Academy of Sciences, Heroes of '76, Sojourners Club, the Anchor Masonic Club, Society for Research on Meteorites, American Geophysical Union and the American Society of Photogrammetry.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Stanley Eickelberg of Wilmington, N. C., and two children, Jean Stover and Ernest Werner, Jr.

Knox and Land to Talk To Naval Architects

Secretary of the Navy Knox and Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, will address the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers at the annual meeting tomorrow in the Mayflower Hotel.

Featured will be an inspection of the David W. Taylor Model Basin at Carderock, Md. After luncheon tomorrow a technical session will be held, during which Capt. Harold E.

Saunders and Lt. Comdr. A. G. Mumma will discuss various phases of work being done at the model basin.

Houghton Re-Elected

Woodson P. Houghton has been re-elected president of the Family Service Association, it was announced yesterday. Other officers include David Edward Finley and G. Howland Chase, vice presidents; Benjamin W. Thoron, treasurer, and William H. Savin, secretary and director.

Fate of London Waits

New York, Hillman Warns

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 22.—Sidney Hillman, appealing for increased aid to Great Britain, warned last night that New York might "become a second London."

"We cannot wait until our whole seaboard becomes a line of flaming cities," said the associate defense director in an address before the National Industrial Conference Board.

"We dare not run the risk of being left alone in a hostile world to face a showdown between two ways of life.

"The battle of Britain is ours. The conflict between democracy and totalitarianism is ours.

"We should not wait for bombings before we do what Great Britain has had to do."

Mr. Hillman said that the present defense program involved the expenditure of $42,000,000,000 but that "further and vaster sums will probably have to be expended, because our efforts will be determined not by ourselves but by the totalitarian powers."

D. C. Representation Resolution Tabled By Clubwomen

Federation Convention Acts After Brief but Spirited Debate

By FRANCIS LIDE, Women's Club Editor.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 22—A proposed resolution on national representation for the District was tabled today by the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention here after a brief but spirited debate. Indications were that it would not be brought again before sessions of the golden jubilee convention. Statements that the resolution would "sabotage" the constitution were made after the resolution was presented.

A West Virginia delegate, who moved that the resolution be set aside, asserted she was convinced that the question "has convincing argument on both sides." But she expressed the opinion that the national organization had not had sufficient time to consider the issue.

Carried by Voice Vote. The motion was carried by a voice vote, although the General Federation president pointed out that the resolution has been on the organization's study program for the past six years. The resolution would have introduced the proposed constitutional amendment empowering Congress to grant national representation to the District.

Mrs. Ernest William Howard, legislative chairman of the District Federation, asserted that "for years this whole campaign has been engineered by a powerful organization, known as the Noyes organization, which has printed every word of literature in favor of it."

In a spirited rebuttal, Mrs. E. B. Merritt, a past District Federation president, pointed out that the organization has long been in favor of national representation for the District. "Theodore Noyes is heartily in favor of it," she said, "but the District Federation has been working for it for years."

Mrs. Willey Explains Plan. Mrs. Harvey W. Willey, who opened the District representation discussion for proponents, pointed out that the amendment proposed is in accordance with American principles and traditions and that it makes it possible for Congress to give national representation to the citizens of the District just as Congress has already had the power to give national representation to the territories.

"The amendment corrects Congress' lack of power," she declared. "It does not direct or fix any time limitation within which the powers granted were to be exercised. This is only the first step. After passage through Congress and ratification by the States it would still be up to Congress to decide when such national representation would be granted to us—the citizens of the Nation's Capital City."

Mrs. Pierce B. Ashburn, the District Federation's corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, who holds an important chairmanship, were others who spoke in favor of the measure.

Sees Proposal Step Forward. Presenting her appeal as a "proposal to Americanize the District of Columbia," Mrs. Ashburn asserted that "all Americans the people of the District of Columbia are alone without the rights to choose representatives in Congress and to vote for a President and Vice President."

The proposed constitutional amendment marks a real step forward making Washington a part of the Nation, because it protects fully the national interest which led to national control of the seat of government, and yet makes it possible for Congress to end the denial of vital and fundamental rights to the people of the Capital City," she continued.

The majority of District of Columbia women here were in favor of the measure and some had lobbied for it along hotel corridors. The delegation had not been able to set up headquarters for distribution of literature for the proposal and no outside speaker was permitted. Proponents of the measure had no plans this afternoon to bring the question to the floor again before the close of the sessions tomorrow.

Division of Convoys. The convention's reaction to a forum on the convoy question yesterday afternoon indicated there would be a sharp division on any strongly worded expression of foreign policy.

Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida and Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana received applause when they discussed the convoy issue. When Senator Wheeler put the question of conveying to the convention, both "Yes" and "No" were shouted back.

A voice called "God bless Wheeler" when the Montana Senator was presented. But applause greeted Senator Pepper when he suggested that the way to keep Hitler out of America is to keep him in Europe.

Senators Poll Audience. Senator Wheeler called for an expression of opinion when he ended his speech: "All who want America to go to war please hold up their hands."

One woman responded, but she said it was a mistake. Senator Pepper in rebuttal, called for a poll, too. "All who want to see war stay out of America, hold up your hands."

The Senator ruled the result "about even."

Senator Pepper said that American policy is based on affirmative defense, "not a negative defense that runs to hide its head in a pillow."

Thomas E. Dewey, chairman of the United Service Organization also addressed the convention yesterday, calling for the support of federated women in the U. S. O. drive for funds to man and operate service clubs adjacent to camps.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health office, emphasized women's responsibility to community defense.

EDDIE DUCHIN'S
Topsy-Turvy Meat Pie

1 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Sauce
1 can tomato soup
1 cup milk
2 cups biscuit mix

1 tablespoon shortening
1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt

Brown onion in hot fat. Add beef, cook until brown and crumbly, but not hard. Add salt, Lea & Perrins Sauce, tomato soup, and cook until thick. Combine milk and biscuit mix, spread over meat. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 20 minutes. Invert on serving plate. Cut in wedges and serve hot. This makes 6 servings.

Want to see a disappearing trick? Then serve this inspired casserole combination, and it will be a clear case of now-you-see-it, now-you-don't. It's the Lea & Perrins Sauce that does the trick and gives you the reputation of a kitchen-conjuror.

Little Enmity Found Toward British in Syria and Lebanon

Troops Moving, However, And Warships Exercise In Beirut Harbor

By J. Reilly O'Sullivan, Associated Press foreign correspondent, traveled across Syria and Lebanon to see how those French-mandated territories have been affected by the spreading hostilities in the Near East. He was refused permission to stop.

On the other hand, little hostility toward the British is to be found in these French-mandated territories of the Middle East, and although the army generally is counted as loyal to Gen. Dentz, some "free French" sentiment is known to exist. Some French airmen are said to have gone over to the "free French."

(Reuters, British news agency, and Radio Brazzaville, "free French" station in French Equatorial Africa, reported that a full regiment of French regulars in Syria was believed to have deserted to join "free French" troops declared to be advancing into Syria from Palestine. (The British news agency quoted the independent French agency A. F. I. as saying the regiment which deserted to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's forces comprised the rear guard of a large army ordered into Lebanon to forestall possible intervention from Palestine.)

Borders Remain Open. Highways are guarded and blocked, but the borders remain open and there is no blackout in the cities despite British bombings of airfields used by the Germans in sending help to Iraq. Gen. Dentz has protested these bombings as acts of aggression. His broadcast warning to the British, in which he said Syria would not "endanger its just cause by aggressive actions," but stood "ready to meet force with force," was interpreted as an indication of a prior French-German agreement permitting Nazi use of airports in Syria and Lebanon. Unofficial reports said a German demand for use of the airfields had been rejected a fortnight ago, but that Nazi planes suddenly began to land anyway. "In view of the situation, especially at home, what could we do?" some Frenchmen asked me.

Hope to be Spared Conflict. I heard the hope widely expressed during my trip through Syria and Lebanon from Turkey that these lands would be spared conflict beyond that at the airdromes and many natives openly expressed delight at the discomfiture of the French in the current situation. There is talk of an infiltration of German "tourists" but foreigners to whom I talked said they had seen no indication that any Nazis were present except aviators. Most Englishmen and Americans are holding themselves in readiness to leave if the situation makes it imperative. A hundred of them, including students and staff members of the American University at Beirut, crossed into Palestine yesterday en route to Jerusalem and Cairo.

Peruvians Honored At Naval Academy

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, May 22.—Full military honors were accorded Gen. Fernando Melgar of the Peruvian Army as he and his party toured the Naval Academy today. Gen. Melgar, head of the military household of the President of Peru, came here by automobile from Washington, accompanied by Col. Armando Revoredo, Peruvian military attaché at Washington; Lt. C. W. Lord, U. S. N., and Capt. P. L. Chrystal, U. S. A. A 13-gun salute roared as the distinguished party arrived here. Gen. Melgar was welcomed by Rear Admiral Russell Willson, academy superintendent, his aides and other high-ranking naval officers.

Typographical Union Here Votes Against Return to A. F. L.

Columbia Result in Line With Scattered Figures Throughout Country

The Columbia Typographical Union last night voted down a proposal for the international union to reaffiliate with American Federation of Labor, a stand that is in line with scattered returns from other cities voting in the referendum.

The Associated Press reported that scattered returns reaching the union's headquarters in Indianapolis were more than 2 to 1 against reaffiliation. Columbia's vote was 1,298 against and 859 for.

I. T. U. Secretary Woodruff Randolph was quoted as saying, however, that an accurate trend of the vote probably could not be determined for "at least a couple of days."

The Columbia Union, in its biennial election last night, re-elected Clarence J. Desper of the Times-Herald president for his second term. He won over Edward C. McEntee of the News, 1,200 to 1,084.

Evans Re-elected.
For vice president, John R. Evans of the Government Printing Office was re-elected over James W. Biggers of the same agency by a vote of 1,122 to 1,108.

A run-off for the post of secretary-treasurer is necessary between James I. Crockett of The Star and Williamson C. George of the Times-Herald. The vote was Mr. Crockett, 1,108; Mr. George, 655; and Floyd C. Grimes of Nave Typographic, 609.

Delegates named to the international convention were J. H. Abercrombie and Arthur A. Burr, both of the G. P. O.; Guy A. Caponnetta,

Dance Drummer Dies as He Plays At Arlington Club

Stricken with a heart attack while playing a dance number, Frank Amorosi, 37, a drummer with Meyer Davis orchestras for many years, died at the Army and Navy Country Club in Arlington, Va., last night.

Dr. W. C. Welburn, county coroner, issued a certificate of death from natural causes.

Mr. Amorosi was taken ill early in the evening, but returned to the orchestra platform and played several numbers before a heart attack proved fatal before a doctor could be summoned, relatives said. He was a native of Philadelphia but had lived here most of his life. His home was at 930 L street N.W.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helena Amorosi; a 3-week-old daughter, Shelly; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Amorosi; three brothers, Vincent, John and Arthur Amorosi; and three sisters, Mrs. Constance Veze, Philadelphia; Mrs. Helen Abbott, Arlington; and Mrs. Mary Picillo.

Times-Herald, and Frank S. Lerch, retired.

Some 80,000 members of 450 local typographical unions were asked to vote on the proposal to reaffiliate with the international body.

The A. F. L. suspended the I. T. U. two years ago for non-payment of a special assessment levied in 1937 during a membership drive by the rival C. I. O.

McCurdy Re-elected Head Of Labor Federation

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22.—The Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, concluding a three-day convention, named Joseph P. McCurdy of Baltimore president yesterday for his ninth term.

Mr. McCurdy was nominated for re-election without opposition.

Six vice presidents were elected from eight candidates nominated. They are Frank M. Karshner and G. Howard Kingston, Baltimore; John Locher and Harry J. Thompson, Washington; John L. Geist, Hagerstown, and Paul W. England, Cumberland.

Secretary Frank J. Coleman of Washington was re-elected for his 18th consecutive term. Others elected, all without opposition, were Robert Lester, Baltimore, treasurer; Robert Burkbaum, Baltimore, organizer, and M. F. Healy, Baltimore, delegate to the national A. F. of L. convention.

Speakers at the final session included Charles E. Moylan, chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission; James Wilson, international representative, and Frank Borchard, field representative of the Social Security Board.

ICED TEA

YOUR FAVORITE KIND PRICED LOW

Warmer days call for casual coolers... tall frosty glasses filled with tempting iced tea is just the thing. At Safeway you'll find a wide selection which is sure to include your favorite brand.

Hints on Making Iced Tea

- Be sure the teapot is thoroughly clean.
- A lukewarm pot isn't enough... it must be HOT!
- Make tea with fresh boiling water. Water that stands awhile or that boils for long impairs the flavor of the tea.
- Never steep the tea longer than 5 to 8 minutes. For stronger tea, use more tea leaves rather than longer steeping.
- Keep teapot hot while steeping. The flavor's better.
- If tea is not to be drunk at once, pour it off of leaves into preheated, covered container and keep it hot until time to use it.
- For uniformly good tea every time, use standard measuring equipment, and measure both tea leaves and water accurately.
- For choice tea, select Canterbury Tea.

Marion Talley Tells Of 4-Year Plea to Husband for Child

Testifies She Tried to Get Eckstrom to Make Home in Hollywood

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, May 22.—The story of a mother's fight for possession of the child she left with her father soon after his birth was related by Marion Talley, former opera singer, in her divorce suit against Adolph G. Eckstrom, New York voice teacher.

She is seeking sole custody of 6-year-old Susan, who is permitted to spend nine months of each year with her under a New York custody decree. Mr. Eckstrom also seeks sole custody in a suit yet to be tried in New York.

Her blue eyes snapping angrily, the 34-year-old singer testified yesterday that she sought vainly for four years after Susan's birth in 1935 to induce Mr. Eckstrom to bring the child to Hollywood so they could make a home together.

Fearing to go to New York. Her relations with her husband finally became so bad, she said, that she feared to go to New York to seek possession of her daughter.

"I was desperately afraid to go back," she testified. "I did not know what kind of people I was dealing with and concluded that I would be involved in some sort of embarrassing litigation."

But she determined to make the venture after Aubrey Scott, who directed her in a motion picture and befriended her in efforts to regain Susan, brought a picture from New York that disclosed the child's left eye was crossed; Mr. Eckstrom, she said, ignored her request that she arrange for treatments of the crossed eye.

After days of search, Miss Talley continued, she located Susan at Mamaroneck, N. Y., home of Mr. Eckstrom's sister, Mrs. Ruth E. Nelson.

Thrown Out of House. "I said, 'I've come to take Susan,'" the singer related. "Mrs. Nelson said, 'Oh no, you're not,' and I said, 'Oh yes, I am; I'm her mother.'"

Mrs. Nelson seized the child, she said, and ran for the house, screaming, "call the police—kidnapers, kidnapers."

Then, Miss Talley testified with tears in her eyes, her daughter cried out to Mrs. Nelson, "Mommy, mommy, don't call the police."

"Then she threw me bodily out of the house," Miss Talley added. "You mean physically?" her attorney asked.

"Very physically," she replied.

Safety Medals Given 12 Government Drivers

Recipients of the award were Leonard S. Bussler, 324 Second street S.E.; Charles E. Taylor, 2302 Nichols avenue S.E.; Dennis O'Connor, 124 Thirteenth street S.E.; Yuell Redmiles, Laurel, Md.; Okie James, 1126 Spring road N.W., and R. L. Harton, 5225 Conduit road N.W., all for five years without an accident; Herman Waldhuber, Del Ray, Va.; William A. Dabney, 40 Adams street N.W., and W. C. Vogts, 1648 Irving street N.W., for two years without accident; and Bernard T. Barnes, Silver Spring, Md.; Glen Crispell, 1922 Fourth street N.E., and Robert M. Burke, Cabin John, Md., for one year.

El Salvador Minister to Speak

NEW HOUSE PAINT

made by DU PONT amazes thousands!

IT'S SELF-CLEANING!

DUPONT House Paint is being acclaimed by home owners everywhere! It stays brilliantly white because it cleans itself! It forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot, or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it and exposing a fresh white surface. This self-cleaning process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Du Pont House Paint costs no more than other good paints. It saves you money because it needs fewer repaintings. Ask your painter to use Du Pont House Paint.

Why a Kodak lens "gets the picture"
A point of light—an artificial star—is shining through a Kodak lens from the end of a dark tunnel, 75 feet away. The size and shape of the "star" image formed by the lens—seen through the 200-power microscope—determine its quality.

Even the simplest Eastman lens is tested on this principle, although this particular instrument is employed for anastigmat lenses only. The untem lens quality is of paramount importance—you can trust the lens of a Kodak or Brownie.

THE SLEEK LINES of your new Kodak are a delight to the eye. And that isn't all. Under your fingers is a mechanism that for split-second accuracy is one of the world's finest.

The methods and machines responsible for Kodak precision were a long time in development—more than 50 years. So this "inside value" comes to you without extra price—you share the cost with so many millions of other buyers, present and past.

Choose a Kodak for confidence and certainty of performance. It will get the pictures you want. Kodaks as low as $3.95—Brownies from $1—see the late models at your Kodak dealer's... Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y.

To those in Service Camps—and to the folks back home... Snapshots will keep you closer. Now, more than ever, you'll want to send back and forth the news of the new life in the Nation's service—and of the life at home—in the unforgettable form of snapshots.

Federal Issues Stage Active Advance on Bond Market

Gains Range to 9-32 Of Point; Treasury 3 1/4 in Demand

Bond Averages table showing various bond indices and their values.

NEW YORK, May 22—United States Government bonds, in active trading, jumped as much as 9-32 point today.

Over-the-counter traders reported heavy turnover throughout the Federal list, with attention centered on Treasury 3 1/4's.

The Treasury's announcement that holders of the issue would receive rights to new 2 1/2 per cent bonds, due in 1956 and callable in 1956, was in line with Wall Street expectations.

The corporate market rode an even keel, meantime, with fractional gains and losses about evenly divided.

A little weaker than International Paper Co., International Telephone & Telegraph 4 1/2's, and Portland General Electric 4 1/2's.

A shade lower, however, were some rails, including Santa Fe 4's of '95, Illinois Central 4 1/2's, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5's of '62, Missouri Pacific 5's of '77 "F" and Nickel Plate 4 1/2's.

In the foreign dollar sector French 7 1/2's of '41, stamped, and German 5 1/2's of '65 were sold at steady prices.

Goodyear Dealers Requested to Help Save Rubber

Litchfield Suggests Educating Public on Emergency Needs

NEW YORK, May 22—P. W. Litchfield, chairman of the board of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., requested the company's dealers throughout the Nation today to conserve available rubber for essential purposes.

Specifically, he suggested that the American public can do without white sidewall tires and that motorists should be educated to drive more slowly to save tire wear.

"We live in this country today," said Litchfield, "what amounts to a normal 18-month supply of rubber. Half of this is in the hands of manufacturers and dealers while the other half is Government owned and subject to use only as national emergency needs may dictate.

"Our major source of supply lies half way around the globe, where plantations in the British and Dutch East Indies produce approximately 95 per cent of all the rubber required by the world.

"Production of crude rubber is now and is not likely to be plentiful; the problem which we will be called upon to face in the very near future is that of getting the rubber from the East Indies to America."

"If some of the ships now trans-ported rubber to America can be re-routed for Britain's pressing requirements, they undoubtedly will be so transferred.

"This in turn will mean that non-essential uses of rubber here at home will be sharply curtailed or completely stopped. If a white sidewall tire requires an additional 2 pounds of rubber as compared with a standard black tire, and it actually costs then the white sidewall may be spotted as one of the things the American public can do without.

"If a net saving in rubber can be accomplished through the procedure of substituting a lower grade of rubber as compared with a standard, then the process of recycling may be forced into much wider use.

"If American motorists can gain substantial additional mileage from their tires by reducing the speed at which they travel, and they can be educated to travel at a slower rate, then the process of recycling may be required to use the substitute material as just a few simple examples. But they convey the idea of what may come."

Board to Seek Funds For Site to Replace Birney School

Votes Request for 1943 Budget; Dr. Ballou Reappointed for 3 Years

The Board of Education yesterday voted to seek funds in the 1943 budget for land near the recreation center at Nichols and Sumner avenues S.E. for a 16-room elementary school, equipped with assembly hall, gymnasium, to replace the present Birney School.

Members also voted to advise the Alley Dwelling Authority that should an A. D. A. building project be completed in advance of the 1943 budget in the neighborhood, they would be inclined to seek a special deficiency appropriation to meet the need.

As the first order of business at yesterday's session, the members reappointed Dr. Frank W. Ballou to another three-year term as superintendent of schools. He was first appointed July 1, 1920, and his seventh consecutive term will be up July 1.

Unanimous Choice.

The reappointment was unanimous on motion of Mrs. Velma G. Williams, a colored member of the board, and seconded by Charles D. Drayton, a lawyer member. The superintendent received a round of applause as he entered the boardroom following the reappointment. Privately, in his office after the meeting, the board presented him a set of fishing tackle.

Mrs. B. B. Brown, administrative principal of the Deanwood School, was transferred to administrative principal of the Giddings-Lincoln School, replacing Mrs. S. E. Gray, who is retiring. Mrs. M. V. Branner, teaching principal at Crummell School, was promoted to administrative principal of Deanwood and Mrs. Rosa H. Jones, teaching principal of Reno School, was promoted to the Crummell post. Mrs. A. B. Hunicutt, a teacher at Brown Junior High, was named to succeed Mrs. Jones as principal at Reno.

Opinion From Keech Read.

In a lengthy opinion, the corporation counsel advised Dr. Ballou that the question whether employees of school cafeterias are entitled to protection under the United States Employees' Compensation Act is debatable and can only be determined by proper judicial authority.

However, Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech advised the board to make some arrangements adequately to protect any and all school authorities from individual liability by taking out insurance until such time as the status of the employees has been fixed judicially.

The annual meeting of school officials with representatives of the citizens' organizations to determine needs for the 1943 school budget will be held June 13 at 8 p.m. in the Thomson School.

Naval Court Halts Trial To View Plane Death Area

By the Associated Press.

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 22—Testimony in the manslaughter court-martial of two Naval Air Station students was delayed today so naval officials might view topographical conditions at an Alabama farm 35 miles from here where a woman was decapitated by their low-flying plane March 25.

The students are Ensigns Joseph E. Thompson of Healdsburg, Calif., and Paul E. Brown of Chicago. They are charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Robert Phillips while she worked in a turnip field belonging to Sam Ard.

Yesterday Mr. Ard and his son, Duane, testified that the flyers' plane dived at them and other workers and that its right wing tip "skipped the ground" just before it struck Mrs. Phillips.

Morgan Lovell, 17, of Loxley, Ala., said a yellow plane containing two persons dived within 5 or 6 feet of him on March 25, and Cecil Dyers, farmer, testified a plane numbered 18 (the same number of the plane checked out to the students) dived within a foot and a half of him as he worked in a field near Loxley that morning.

Only skillful brewing from the highest priced Hops and Malt can make a Beer as good as Gunther's

All beer is NOT alike. A beer can't be as fine as Gunther's when it is NOT made from the highest priced grain, malt and hops! And what beer made in this part of the country IS made from the costliest ingredients?

The public is entitled to the facts!

NO BREWER IN THE U. S. A. uses HIGHER PRICED MALT and HOPS than Gunther's. And that goes for beers selling here for 15¢ . . . or ANY price!

Because Gunther's order and pay for only the top 10% of the malt and hops! 90% of the beer made today must definitely be brewed from cheaper or less costly malt and hops. Because only 10% of the hops and malt bought by all brewers cost as much as ALL the malt and hops used in Gunther's!

THOSE ARE FACTS!!

Regardless of what you pay for your beer . . . Remember those facts when someone offers you "a beer as good as Gunther's!"

PROOF

PROOF

PROOF

Authority Shift On Playgrounds Being Weighed

Parks Superintendent Would Give Control To Proposed Board

By JOHN W. THOMPSON, Jr. An amendment to compel the superintendent of National Capital Parks to turn over authority over all playgrounds...

This was revealed today by Chairman Hunter of Ohio as the subcommittee of continuing hearings on two plans to reorganize the recreation structure of the District.

One would establish a nine-man Recreation Board including representatives of the Board of Education, the Commissioners, the National Capital Parks Office, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and five citizens.

The other would establish a three-man executive recreation department of a superintendent, the head of the Playground Department and the head of the Community Center Department.

All testimony today was supporting the nine-man board which bears the indorsement of all the agencies involved.

Concessions Would Be Affected. Chairman Hunter later explained that the proposed amendment would not affect the membership of the superintendent of parks of the board, but would keep him from withdrawing park-owned properties from the board at any time and from letting out swimming pools to concession operators, as most of them are now.

At present, a clause in the bill permits any of the participating agencies to withdraw any facilities from the Recreation Board if they desire.

Mr. Hunter brought out during testimony by Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the Park and Planning Commission, that properties being acquired by the commission under the Capper-Crampton Act of 1930 are being paid for from District funds at the rate of $300,000 a year.

When Mr. Settle raised the point that the School Board could likewise withdraw properties, Chairman Hunter replied that the School Board was made up of citizens and as such could be counted on to cooperate for the recreation interests of the city. He added that it was District money that was being used in acquiring the land.

Another Session Tomorrow. The hearing adjourned about noon to resume tomorrow at 10 a.m. with numerous civic leaders waiting an opportunity to testify.

Mr. Settle, who said he "knew the bill was one of the most far-reaching District measures to be considered by Congress since the Organic Act of 1878.

His position was supported by Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle, president of the Board of Education, who told the subcommittee this was the first time the agencies involved had been able to agree on a plan. The bill has the indorsement of the Board of Education, the Commissioners, the National Capital Parks Office and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Mrs. Doyle was asked by Mr. Hunter if there was conflict between the playground department and the community center department.

"Not battling," said Mrs. Doyle. "We just had to clear everything through so many agencies."

"In other words," observed Representative Bolles, Republican, of Wisconsin, "you've been bothered by red tape."

Settle Details Bill's Effect. Appearing for Chairman Frederic A. Delano of the commission, Mr. Settle said the genius of the bill was that it groups around the conference table representatives of the four agencies concerned—the Commissioners, the National Capital Park Office, the Board of Education and the Planning Commission—and five citizens.

He read a letter from President Roosevelt in 1935 to the heads of the four agencies saying that the same staff and properties could produce one-third greater results here.

"I'm confident you will enact this legislation," he told the committee. As an example of the close connection between the agencies, Mr. Settle described the Takoma Recreation Center, where a tract owned partly by the School Board, partly by the commission and partly by the Park and Planning Commission is administered as a unit, with the new Calvin Coolidge High School especially planned to fit in the recreation picture with its gymnasiums and other facilities.

Schools Use Football Field. "The football field is on park property," he said, "but the schools use it."

Supt. of Schools Frank W. Ballou described the bill as "adequate" and told the subcommittee the spirit of the measure is the "expected cooperation" between the agencies which control the facilities.

Pointing to the fact that the parks office uses District money in purchasing land, Representative Bolles asked Dr. Ballou if he thought the Federal agency should be compelled to turn over authority of these properties to the Recreation Board.

Dr. Ballou replied that the parks office should contribute as much to the program as the schools and the Commissioners.

Canadian Tanker Feared Sunk With Casualties. By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 22.—The Canadian oil tanker Canadolt, 11,309 tons, is feared to have been sunk off the west coast of Africa, with a number of Canadian casualties.

The vessel, built in 1926 and owned by the Imperial Oil Co. of Montreal, some days ago was reported "overdue."

Action Expected Soon On Reorganization of D. C. Defense Council

Pressure of Other Work May Take Whitehurst From Executive Office

Reorganization of the District Defense Council setup was being discussed today at the District Building along with reports that Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst would ask to be relieved as its executive vice chairman.

Capt. Whitehurst has been considering the move for some weeks, feeling that he cannot devote enough time to the council's work. The Commissioners, who are co-chairmen of the council, are expected to act soon.

Reorganization of the council committees and their work is expected to be discussed at a meeting called by Capt. Whitehurst for 3 p.m. Monday. Some officials believe there is some overlapping in the present setup and that realignment of responsibilities is needed for efficiency.

Activities of the District council are expected to be increased as a result of the President's order on civil defense programs, along with the appointment of Mayor La Guardia of New York to head the civilian defense office and announcement of a new schedule of activities by State and local councils.

Seven Major Committees. The District council now has seven major committees. They are civil protection, headed by Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown; welfare and consumer interest, Robert E. Bondy; and residential, headed by District director to take a post with the American Red Cross; health, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer; housing, works and facilities, Maj. John Blake Gordon, District sanitary director; human resources and skills, Porter M. Mumy, District director of industrial resources and production; P. Y. K. Howatt, and volunteer service, Mrs. Harry S. Bernston.

An intensive training course opened today for persons who will work in the placement unit of the Civil Control Administration of the District Defense Council after the city-wide registration of volunteers June 10-12.

Sixty women signed up for the first session this morning at 10 o'clock at the Junior League, 2001 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W. The group under the chairmanship of Mrs. Stuart A. Rice, will place the volunteers after they have been registered.

Miss Lenroot Speaks. The first meeting considered "The Importance of the District in Our Community Defense," with Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the United States Children's Bureau, as the principal speaker, followed by her assistant chief, Charles Schottland, speaking on how volunteers may fit into a staff.

Miss Lenroot said public and private welfare agencies in Washington are staggering under a heavy load of demands for services and she emphasized the need for a large corps of volunteers. The situation here is more serious than in many other cities because of inadequate relief funds, she said.

Mr. Schottland said that volunteers who hope to render effective service must determine the functions of the agency they have offered to aid and carry out their duties in such a way that they will not interfere with the work of the regular staff members.

Types of Help Needed. Mrs. G. Howland Chase, who headed a committee which conducted a survey of present needs for volunteer workers, reported immediately by District Government agencies, settlement houses, hospitals and other institutions. The Health Department, for example, needs between 200 and 300 volunteer clerical workers and a number of helpers for its laboratories, Mrs. Chase said.

Other types of workers in demand today, she explained, are nursery group leaders, motor corps workers, neighborhood visitors, playground supervisors, secretaries, telephone operators, craft leaders, librarians, hospital and autopsy revealed death was caused by poison, the coroner reported.

Death Called Suicide. A certificate of suicide was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday in the death of Mrs. Mary Miller, 39, of 5320 Eighth street N.W., who collapsed in her home and died two hours later in Emergency Hospital. An autopsy revealed death was caused by poison, the coroner reported.

Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood Elects. Herman Norwood, 1343 Fairmont street N.W., was elected president of the Washington Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood, meeting last night at the congregation. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the congregation addressed the group.

Also elected were Colman B. Stein, first vice president; Herbert Hollander, second vice president; Maury Young, third vice president; Sidney Night, secretary; and Bernard A. Baer, treasurer; Bernard Conn, financial secretary; and Edward Sonneborn, recording secretary.

Churches Plan Meeting. PRINCE FREDERICK, Md., May 22 (Special).—The Rev. Dr. John W. Harm of Washington, executive secretary of the Maryland Council of Churches, will speak at the spring meeting of Calvert County churches, to be held in Prince Frederick on May 28, at the interdenominational meet. The object is to get a closer co-operation of churches in the county.

Plans Ordered Drawn For 9 New Army Camps. Contingent on Congressional action on further expansion of the Army, the War Department has awarded architectural and engineering contracts for the preparation of advanced plans and layouts for nine proposed new triangular division camp sites.

This is considered merely a precautionary step in accordance with War Department plans for "any emergency that may necessitate a sharp increase in the size of the Army. It was estimated the new construction program would cost $27,000,000, or approximately $23,000,000 for each camp.

Since no money has been authorized, the whole camp program is dependent on congressional action. The proposed camp sites are at Blackstone, Va.; Columbus, Ind.; Neosho, Mo.; Fort Smith, Ark.; Santa Maria Lompoc, Calif.; Eugene, Oreg., and Medford, Oreg.

Ballou Acts To Get 1-Cent Milk for D. C.

Surplus Marketing Unit Asked to State Action Necessary

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, District superintendent of schools, has written the Surplus Marketing Administration, Agriculture Department, for information about the steps the Washington school system should take to enjoy the new program which makes available milk to school children at 1 cent a half pint, it was learned today.

At the same time, a study of the operation of the District's program of inexpensive milk for persons eligible for relief shows that slowly increasing advantage is being taken of it. Whereas only 1,000 quarts a day were sold when the program was launched last August, now more than 3,000 quarts a day are being dispensed.

If all the eligibles bought all the low-cost milk they are legally entitled to, 15,000 quarts a day would be sold.

Diet Habits Stubborn. Persons close to the program say that diet habits formed over long years by most of the eligibles actual and potential purchasers. Although they can buy milk now at 5 cents a quart, most of the eligibles are slow to respond to this opportunity to obtain a food which is almost a stranger to them. Education in the value of milk is viewed as the key to arouse the apathetic.

The Federal relief milk program for Washington was placed in operation last August 12. From that date through this February a total of 415,920 quarts of milk were distributed to relief families here. During February, the latest month for which figures are available, 3,768 relief cases, representing about 14,318 persons, purchased a total of 65,709 quarts.

New Orleans presents the same need for diet education, although in most cities where the program of low-cost milk is operating, the potential beneficiaries take advantage of it. While the potential relief-milk sale in New Orleans is 45,000 quarts a day, only 12,000 quarts are sold. There also it is said education to overcome the diet habits of a population is required to arouse large numbers of persons to benefit themselves and their children by milk drinking.

1-Cent Milk New Program. The 1-cent milk program for school children is viewed as one avenue of education. This is a new program in the District, which is eligible. The program was launched on an experimental basis in Chicago last fall and was put on a permanent basis there January 20. Now 155 schools in Chicago enjoy the fruits of the program. In New York City it is reported to be serving 400,000 children. In some localities local welfare boards or local sponsors buy the milk for the children.

Establishment of the 1-cent program here would displace the present school milk program, operated by the District Milk Producers' Association. Under the existing scheme, the board purchases milk from a distributor on contract and makes it available to children in schools in low-income areas. The 1-cent program probably could be less expensive for the District than the current program.

The Surplus Marketing Administration of the Agriculture Department plans now to push this 1-cent program forward so that as many schools in as many cities as possible will be ready with it for the opening of the next September.

The program has been extended to Baltimore, Birmingham, Ala.; Boston, St. Louis, Omaha and Ogden, Utah. It is operative in cities where a milk marketing agreement exists. Washington has had an agreement for more than a year.

"Under the plan, the Surplus Marketing Administration, the Board of Public Welfare, the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association and a Washington dairy.

Details of Operation. The official announcement about the introduction of the 1-cent program to St. Louis sheds light on the method of operation of the program. The announcement said in part:

"The program will be operated in St. Louis if bids to be made by handlers desiring to supply milk to the Board of Education are accepted by the S. M. A.

"Program operation would be limited to the schools which are located in the low-income areas. Handlers whose bids are accepted would receive 1 cent per half pint for the milk they deliver in specified quantities to the designated schools.

In addition, the handlers would receive a Federal payment, equal to their accepted bids, for the milk they deliver under the program. This payment would be made from Federal surplus funds.

"Under the plan actual distribution of the milk to the children in the designated schools would be made free or at not more than 1 cent per glass, and at the rate of not more than one glass per day to each child. The milk would be consumed in schools."

Staggered Pay Days Win Support of 3 D. C. Organizations

Board of Trade Awaits Poll of Membership Before Reporting

Reports from all but one of the local organizations requested by the District Commissioners to express views on staggering Federal pay days show unanimous approval for the proposal, it was learned today.

The Washington Board of Trade expects to take official action early next week following completion of a poll of its membership.

Asked by the author of the bill, Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, to report on the measure which would provide four pay days a month and discontinue the present semi-monthly system, the Commissioners asked opinions from the Federation of Citizens' Associations, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, the Federation of Civic Associations and the Board of Trade.

Arthur J. Sundin, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, said his organization not only had asked the Commissioners, but Senator Reynolds, former head of the Senate District Committee, some time ago to explain that Washington merchants were anxious to level off the peaks in their business to permit a steady flow of buying and spending throughout the month.

Federation Indorses Measure. The Federation of Citizens' Associations indorses the measure at its last meeting. The indorsement has been notified of its stand. Harry N. Stull, association president, said. The Commissioners also have received a favorable response from the Federation of Civic Associations.

Washington banks also are studying the proposed change in the pay system. A. M. McLachlan, president of the District Bankers' Association, said bank executives were not contemplating any opposition to a four-pay day plan, but were discussing the change to see what effect it would have on bank personnel and Federal phases of the banking business.

The proposal, introduced in the Senate by Senator Capper, and in the House by Representative Hebert, Democrat, of Louisiana, provides that the Government pay roll be distributed over four pay days, the 1st and the 15th and the 7th and 22d of the month.

Another Plan Suggested. Another plan for staggering pay days, which has won the support of some Washington businessmen and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, would provide 20 pay days a month, including Monday to Friday of each week.

District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkeron said today he believed District employees should be included in any change made in the distribution of the Federal pay roll. He explained, however, that the $1,500,000 monthly District pay roll probably would be distributed as a unit, resulting only in a possible change in the days of payment.

He added that per diem workers in the District government already are paid on a staggered basis to prevent peaks of work in the disbursing office.

Boy Accused in Triple Murder Boasts of Skill as Marksman

15-Year-Old Son of Orchard Laborer Held 'Somewhere in Virginia' for Hearing Saturday

By W. H. SHIPPEN, Jr., Star Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Va., May 22.—"Yes, sir, I'm a pretty good shot—I got 30 squirrels last year."

The small tow-head, held for a triple slaying, grinned and showed his snaggle teeth. He was seated on a table and he waved his brow about 6 inches above the floor.

Thomas Dewey Cameron, Jr., seemed to be enjoying all the sudden attention. It was as if he had won a shooting match. "I got the squirrels with a shotgun," he explained.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Wish Luck To Mrs. Byron

Special Meeting Arranged Sunday At Cumberland

CUMBERLAND Md., May 22—Managers of Mrs. Katherine E. Byron's campaign for Congress announced today a special meeting had been arranged for Sunday between the Democratic candidate and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

On a trip to Arturdale, W. Va., Mrs. Roosevelt is scheduled to stop in Cumberland—a city which has cast big majorities for President Roosevelt—to wish Mrs. Byron luck in the special Sixth District election next Tuesday.

Will Visit Frostburg. High light of Mrs. Byron's tour today through Allegany County is a scheduled stop at Frostburg, home of A. Charles Stewart, her Republican opponent.

Adhering closely to the campaign methods of her late husband, Representative Byron whose death caused the vacancy, she brought to Cumberland two of her sons—Jamie, 13, and Goodloe, 11, both mandolin players. They will entertain at rallies.

Mr. Stewart, meanwhile, continued a personal contact tour of Mrs. Byron's home town, Williamsport.

C. I. O. Chief Backs Stewart.

Mr. Stewart, according to an announcement issued by opposition campaign managers, has received endorsement of John T. Jones, State C. I. O. chief. In a letter made public last night by Mrs. Byron's camp, Mr. Jones declares labor "owes Charlie Stewart a debt of gratitude."

"That debt can be paid by all of us only by uniting our support and co-ordinating our effort," the letter continued. "We should go to the polls on May 27 and cast our votes for A. Charles Stewart."

The announcement of the Jones letter was an unusual procedure, it was admitted by political observers, who said that Mrs. Byron hoped to capitalize on sentiment against strikes in non-industrial sections of the district.

The letter explained that members of the United Mine Workers were arrested during a strike in the Western Maryland coal mines in 1922 and Textile Workers' Union members were arrested during the strike at the celanese plant in Cumberland a few years ago and were unable to furnish bond pending their trials until Mr. Stewart, owner of a store in Frostburg, agreed to go their bail.

Psychiatrists Seek To Save Doomed Man

Six psychiatrists have joined in a petition to Gov. O'Connor of Maryland to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence given a colored man for criminally assaulting a Bethesda woman, it was learned today.

French Lee White, 23, was sentenced on April 7 to be hanged on a conviction for rape in the Montgomery County Circuit Court. He is now confined in the Maryland State Penitentiary in Baltimore awaiting execution.

Three attorneys who were appointed by the court to defend White, F. Bernard Welsh, Edward S. Northrup and John R. Reeves, have filed the petition in behalf of the prisoner and have obtained depositions from the psychiatrists to show that White is "an imbecile and of such low mentality that he does not understand the nature and consequences of his acts" so that "it would be inhuman" that he be hanged.

The psychiatrists who made the plea for the prisoner are Dr. Benjamin Weininger, Dr. Dexter Bullard and Dr. Douglas Noble of Rockville, Dr. Eloise Caslane psychiatrist of the County Board of Education, Dr. G. Wilson Shaffer, Johns Hopkins University, and Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan of St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Clinton Church Dinner

The Ladies' Guild of Christ Episcopal Church, Clinton, Md., will hold a fried chicken dinner in the church at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Dance Drummer Dies as He Plays At Arlington Club

Stricken with a heart attack while playing a dance number, Frank Amorosi, 37, a drummer with Meyer Davis orchestras for many years, died at the Army and Navy Country Club in Arlington, Va., last night.

Dr. W. C. Weiburn, county coroner, issued a certificate of death from natural causes.

Mr. Amorosi was taken ill in the evening, but returned to the orchestra platform and played several numbers before a heart attack proved fatal before a doctor could be summoned, relatives said.

He was a native of Philadelphia but had lived here most of his life. His home was at 930 L street N.W. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helena Amorosi; a 3-week-old daughter, Shelly; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Amorosi; three brothers, Vincent, John and Arthur Amorosi, and three sisters, Mrs. Constance Veze, Philadelphia; Mrs. Helen Abbott, Arlington, and Mrs. Mary Piccolo.

Herbert Weston Dies; 33 Years in G. P. O.

Herbert R. Weston, 53, employe of the Government Printing Office for 33 years, died yesterday at his home at 906 G street, Silver Spring, Md., after a brief illness.

Born in Medford, Mass., Mr. Weston enlisted in the Navy during the World War and saw service overseas. At the time of his death he was an assistant foreman in the pamphlet bindery division.

Mr. Weston was a member of Columbia No. 3 Masonic Lodge and of the Printing Office Post of the American Legion. A resident of Washington many years, he moved to Silver Spring about 19 years ago. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lily C. Weston; a daughter, Jeanette, and his mother, Mrs. Charles F. Weston.

Churches Plan Meeting

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md., May 22 (Special)—The Rev. Dr. John W. Harm of Washington, executive secretary of the Maryland Council of Churches, will speak at the spring meeting of Calvert County churches, to be held in Prince Frederick on May 28, at the interdenominational meet. The object is to get a closer co-operation of churches in the various communities in Southern Maryland. Officers will be elected and reports will be heard.

Dr. John Gibson Named President of Physicians

LEESBURG, Va., May 22—Dr. John A. Gibson, Leesburg physician, was elected president of the Virginia Medical Society at the spring meeting here yesterday. He succeeds Dr. Robert E. Moran.

Other officers elected were Dr. Lyle M. Oser of the District of Columbia, vice president; Dr. J. Rogers Young of Washington, recording secretary; Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald of Washington, corresponding secretary, and Dr. Robert Scott Lamb of Washington, treasurer.

Fifty physicians from Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia attended the meeting. Dr. Thomas M. Foley and Dr. G. B. Tribble of Washington presented papers during the morning and a discussion was led by Dr. W. O. Bailey of Leesburg.

A paper by Dr. Dexter M. Bullard of Rockville, Md., on "The Recognition and Diagnosis of Pre-Psychotic Traits in Individuals Which Would Unfit Them For Military Service," occupied the afternoon. A discussion followed the paper.

The group was entertained at luncheon at the Leesburg Inn by the Loudoun County Medical Society.

Robert E. Lohr Heads Takoma Park Lions Club

Robert E. Lohr was elected president of the Lions Club of Takoma Park yesterday at the annual meeting at the Indian Spring Country Club.

Other officers elected include William H. McChene, first vice president; J. Douglas Bradshaw, second vice president; H. J. Smythe, third vice president; George A. Cook, secretary; Harold J. Gates, treasurer; A. L. Lilley, lion tamer, and J. Arthur Walters, tail twister.

Fairfax to See Films

FAIRFAX, Va., May 22 (Special)—The Fairfax County Tuberculosis Association will hold a meeting in the Fairfax Elementary School at 8 o'clock tonight to preview films to be used in the educational campaign of the association.

Boy Accused in Triple Murder Boasts of Skill as Marksman

By W. H. SHIPPEN, Jr., Star Staff Correspondent. LEESBURG, Va., May 22—"Yes, sir, I'm a pretty good shot—I got 30 squirrels last year."

The small town-head, held for a triple slaying, grinned and showed his snaggle teeth. He was seated on a table and he waved his brows about 6 inches above the floor.

Thomas Dewey Cameron, Jr., 15-year-old, seemed to be enjoying all the sudden attention. It was as if he had won a shooting match. "I got the squirrels with a shotgun," he explained.

"But the revolver?" "Well, I won a shootin' match." The boy indicated by his silence he didn't want to go into the subject further. "These people are here for only a moment. . . . don't talk to them if they embarrass you."

But the diminutive tow-head wanted to talk. He rather liked the flare of flash-bulbs in his face, and somebody promised to send him a picture. When he got down off the table and stood beside Sgt. Blue, the boy looked very small. The sergeant (or so a father said) might have reached around to take him over his knee for a sound whipping. The boy, who will be 16 next Christmas, stands only 4 feet 10, and weighs 96 pounds.

Planners to Act Today on Sites For Buildings

Water Supply and Pollution Reports Also To Come Up

Action on the selection of sites in the District of Columbia for temporary Government office buildings was to be taken today by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, beginning its two-day May session.

Although no announcement of the commission's stand was forthcoming yesterday, it was considered likely that approval would be given at least one of the sites in question—that on the Mall.

The Public Buildings Administration already has awarded a contract for construction of a single temporary office building on Independence avenue between Fourth and Sixth streets S.W.

The second site the commission will consider is on the grounds of the Army War College, where three buildings are planned. Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Affairs Committee announced several days ago he was opposed to placing temporary offices there because of secret military work being carried on at the college.

Senator Reynolds also indicated he now is in favor of giving the Government discretionary power as to whether the buildings should be placed in or outside the District.

Restricted in Bill. The P. B. A. originally planned to put some of them in nearby Arlington County, Va., but in making available $4,100,000 for construction of temporary office buildings, Congress ruled they should be placed within the city limits on Government-owned property.

Among other items the planning group was to consider today were three reports, the first on the adequacy of the water supply for the area served by the District system. This report was compiled by the District Engineer's Office at the commission's request, it was said.

The second report covers the sources of pollution of the Potomac River below Washington and was prepared by the Public Health Service. Results of a recent conference between members of the commission and the District Engineer's Office regarding navigation and flood control projects associated with the Anacostia River were to comprise the third report.

This afternoon, members of the Planning Board were to make a field inspection trip to the new District Armory, the defense housing project in Anacostia and the area involved in the proposed extension of South Capitol street bordering on Bolling Field.

Whitehurst to Present Program. Tomorrow, Capt. Whitehurst, District director of highways, will present to the commission for approval his preliminary highway survey report, on which the District Commissioners now are holding hearings.

Capt. Whitehurst also will present a revised plan for a grade separation at Fourteenth street and Maine avenue S.W., it was announced.

John Nolen, Jr., director of planning for the commission, is to report on a recent conference he held with Virginia officials regarding the proposal to extend the southern approach to Arlington Memorial Bridge through Arlington and Fairfax Counties to connect with United States Route 1.

Mr. Nolen also is to present a new plan for construction of a tunnel beneath the Potomac River between Alexandria and Washington.

Thomas S. Settle, commission secretary, is to make his usual report on the status of legislation affecting the work of the commission.

Coleman Jennings Talks To Virginia Laymen

FALLS CHURCH, Va., May 22—A need for faith in the present critical period was stressed by Coleman Jennings, president of the Washington Community Chest, guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Northern Virginia Laymen's League of the Episcopal Church at Madison School.

R. L. Harrison of Arlington was elected president of the league. He will succeed Frank L. Humme of Herndon.

Special Inquiry Slated In Legislative 'Shakedown'

BALTIMORE, May 22—The grand jury probing an alleged legislative "shakedown" will begin special afternoon sessions next week to study testimony taken by the last grand jury.

Other late developments in the probe, according to State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells, are: 1. Word from Walter H. Kirkman, director of the Department of Budget and Procurement, that the $5,000 for retaining special investigators would be available when needed.

2. That trial of Charles S. Houck, Jr., Frederick County delegate, on charges of perjury and attempted obstruction of justice, has been set definitely for Tuesday.

3. That William Curran, attorney, will aid Leo Weinberg, Frederick counsel, in representing Mr. Houck at the trial and that a jury trial will be sought. Judge J. Craig McLanahan yesterday dismissed Mr. Houck's motion to quash the indictment against him and his demurrer to the true bill.

Kensington Council Members Renominated

Raymond L. Burgdorf and William O. Kingston were nominated to succeed themselves for two-year terms on the Kensington Town Council at the town caucus in the Kensington Armory.

Mr. Burgdorf is completing a two-year term and Mr. Kingston, one year. No other candidates were named last night, but nominations can be submitted to the town clerk until midnight of May 28. The election will be held June 2.

Table showing toll in previous months for 1940 and 1941. Columns for months January, February, March, April. Rows for 1940 and 1941.

In May, Beware Of:

- 1. Careless walking at night. Six of the eight persons killed in traffic during May, 1940, were struck after dark.
2. Crossing a street at a point other than a crosswalk. Two pedestrians met death by this action in May last year.
3. The six other traffic victims injured while either crossing a street against a proper signal, attempting to jump onto a moving vehicle, attempting to stop stampeding horses, standing in a button safety zone, crossing at an uncontrolled intersection or riding in an automobile.

Miss Coleman To Wed June 7

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Mary Eugenia Coleman and Ensign Louis Roddis, Jr., U. S. N., son of Capt. and Mrs. Louis Roddis. The ceremony will take place June 7 at 4 o'clock in St. Alban's Church. The Rev. Charles T. Warner will officiate, assisted by Comdr. William N. Thomas, chaplain of the Naval Academy. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception for the bridal party and members of the immediate families.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of the National Cathedral School for Girls and made her debut last May at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gravatt Coleman, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Evans Maudlin. She will have as maid of honor Miss Ann Brooke Peterson, daughter of Mrs. George Peterson, and niece of Dr. Sinclair

Bowen of this city. Attendants will be Miss Dorothy Vivian Funsten of Charlottesville, Va.; Miss Olive Shadrick and Miss Helen Marie Lewis of Washington, who, with the maid of honor, are former school classmates. Other bridesmaids are Miss Jane Winston Ducey, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. David Ducey, U. S. N.; Miss Alice Ingersoll, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal Ingersoll, U. S. N., and Miss Elizabeth Mae Hills, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Huntington Hills, U. S. A., and cousin of the prospective bridegroom.

Ensign R. N. Perley, Jr., U. S. N., will act as best man if his ship is in port and ushers will include Ensign Frank C. Jones, U. S. N.; Ensign A. P. Hirth, U. S. N. R.; Ensign Greydon Parker Copeland, U. S. N. R.; Lt. Frank Thorp, 3d, U. S. A. R., and Lt. E. Roger Kirk, U. S. A. R.

Miss Coleman will be at home Thursday evening, June 5, when she has asked her friends to meet Ensign Roddis, who will arrive from the West Coast the day before. Many parties have been given in her honor and are being planned to precede the wedding. The most recent evening luncheon at Collingwood given Saturday by Miss Louise Chamberlain. Miss Olive Shadrick will entertain at luncheon in her honor Saturday, Miss Alice Ingersoll will give a shower to Monday and Miss Gladys Ann Carter will give a luncheon Wednesday.

Students' Club of the tent, will place a wreath on the graves of past commanders in chief of the G. A. R., Tanner and Jewell, and later on that of Gen. Logan. At 3:30 p.m. Mrs. Yoder and color-bearers will hold services at the Battle Ground Cemetery with the Brightwood Citizens' Association. Members will attend the joint memorial service at the Washington Hebrew Temple at 8 p.m.

G. A. R. services will be held at 8 p.m. June 4 at 2015 Massachusetts avenue N.W., with R. J. F. McElroy in charge of arrangements.

Col. Osborn Oldroyd's discharge from the Union Army was presented to the tent by Mrs. Daisy Oldroyd Gordon. It will be placed in the G. A. R. room.

The tent voted to send $5 to the national treasurer for the Southern Memorial Fund for graves of Union soldiers in the South.

Mrs. E. Helen Temple will be in charge of services at the Tomb of the Unknown Civil War Dead at Arlington, at 3 p.m. June 1 and will place a wreath for the Department of Illinois.

Girl Scouting Needs Stressed in Talk

Local Girl Scouting facilities must be increased to meet the needs of the rapidly growing population and of the national defense emergency, members of the District No. 3 Girl Scout Committee were told yesterday by Mrs. Harry C. Kramer, District Girl Scout Commissioner.

Mrs. Kramer spoke at a luncheon for adult Girl Scout workers at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church which was attended by more than 200 adult workers and friends from the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area.

The program for the local Girl Scouts is being planned to meet the national defense situation, Mrs. Kramer said. Training courses for leaders will be offered during the summer and troops encouraged to continue their activities centered on health and safety, community service and outdoor activities.

New leaders must be trained to organize new troops to care for the 1,500 girls on the growing waiting list, she added.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt Give Their Annual Party for Press at White House

Entertain at Dinner Preceding Dance for Presidents of Newspaper Organizations

Men and women of a free press who cover Washington danced last evening at the White House when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave their annual party for the fourth estate. Preceding the dance, which was set for 9 o'clock, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were hosts at dinner, entertaining in honor of the presidents of the several organizations of newspapermen and women, although the President had dinner upstairs with his son, Mr. Elliott Roosevelt, and joined the party afterward to receive the guests for the dance. Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, Mr. G. Hall Roosevelt, who is in Washington for a few days, acted as host for his sister, who had at her right Mr. John C. O'Brien, president of the White House Correspondents. At her left sat Mr. Melbourne Christerson, president of the National Press Club, and Mrs. Harold R. Brayman, wife of the president of the Gridiron Club, sat at the left of Mrs. Roosevelt's brother. On his right sat Katharine Brooks, president of the Newspaper Women's Club.

Others at the dinner were the President's Secretary, Mr. Stephen T. Early, who has charge of press relations, and Mrs. Early; Mr. Lowell Mellett, administrative assistant to the President; Mr. Brayman, Mr. William D. Hasset of the State Department, and Dr. Kemper Simpson, former economic adviser to the Securities Exchange Commission and more recently economic adviser to the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Harry Hopkins Present at Dinner.

The former Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Harry Hopkins, joined his hostess and her dinner guests in the Red Room and accompanied them to the dinner in the small dining room, but did not remain throughout the meal. The long table had a large cluster of pink roses in a low silver vase in the center with smaller clusters in small, low silver bowls on each side. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a very becoming gown of pale violet chiffon, fashioned with very full long skirt, without a train, and a fitted bodice which was held by several narrow straps of the material over her shoulders. Her sash was of gros grain ribbon in a deep shade of French blue and about her neck she wore the famous necklace of tiger's claws which her uncle, President Theodore Roosevelt, brought her after one of his big game hunts. The set also includes a pin beautifully mounted in gold and a bracelet of smaller claws from a tiger.

Host and Hostess Receive in Blue Room.

Contrary to the custom of other years, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt received their more than 1,011 guests in the Blue Room rather than standing in the corridor and the hostess sitting in the east room. Last evening the guests came up the stairway from the east room and crossed the corridor into the blue room, where the President sat in a high backed carved armchair with his back to the windows. Mrs. Roosevelt stood beside him. The President, though looking rested and refreshed from the rest of his recent slight illness, did not remain downstairs throughout the party but retired to his quarters on the second floor shortly after 10 o'clock. Mrs. Roosevelt, however, strolled about the rooms, looking on at the dancing in the large group and enjoyed the fragrance from honeysuckle on the south portico where she stopped to chat with numerous friends.

The east terrace was opened and lemonade was served there during the evening, with chairs and tables placed for the comfort of the guests. Similar punch bowls were on the south portico where the scene was enhanced by the lighted Japanese lanterns hung about the rose garden to the west and the old fashioned garden to the east, as well as at the foot of the graceful curving stairs from the portico to the south lawn. The good weather last evening made it possible to have the kegs of beer out of doors and tables were placed in front of the south entrance from which glasses of beer and sandwiches were served.

A delicious supper of cold meat and salad was served at 11 o'clock, the long buffet table in the state dining room having similar bowls of pink roses to those on the dinner table and on the mantel under the Lincoln portrait clusters of the pink roses were mingled with delicate fern.

Vice President and Wife Are Among Guests.

The Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace were among the guests. Mrs. Wallace smiling and attractive in a chiffon print gown in shades of blue and green. The Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson were among the first on the dance floor when the orchestra played an enticing old-fashioned waltz. Mrs. Stimson wore black, the bodice trimmed in white about the neck, and her ornaments were pearls. The Attorney General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson also were among the dancers, the latter wearing a gracefully full skirt of black with a bodice of white crepe. Mrs. Frank Walker, who accompanied the Postmaster General, wore a canary yellow chiffon trimmed with panels of delicate black lace, and Mrs. Claude R. Wickard, who was with the Secretary of Agriculture, had a cool pale green chiton frock and jade necklace and earrings. The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse H. Jones also enjoyed the dancing, the latter wearing black and white. The Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, was dressed in black and white print made with a jacket which had tiny crystal beads outlining the pattern.

Other officials in the large group last evening were the Civil Service Commissioner, Mrs. Lucille McMillin, looking unusually well in a white chiton frock trimmed with black thread lace, and the Director of the Mint, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, wearing black lace trimmed with touches of blue. Both Mrs. McMillin and Mrs. Ross are associate members of the Newspaper Women's Club. Also enjoying the party were Capt. William H. Santelmann, leader of the Marine Band, and Lt. Charles Benter, leader of the Navy Band, who were not on duty, as the dance orchestra was chosen from civilian ranks. Guests lingered well after midnight, sitting out in groups for conversation in the cool of the lawn, portico or terrace, unmindful that their hosts had retired to the second floor.

Official Set Entertained Extensively

Wallaces Honored At Garden Party By Guffeys

The official set was entertained extensively yesterday afternoon. There was the garden party at which the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace were honored by Senator Joseph P. Guffey and his sister, Miss Ida Guffey; the tea honoring Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, delegate to the Youth Administration Congress, given by Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, and Mrs. Basil Manly at the latter's home, and the garden party given by the former Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper. Diplomats and members of residential society were equally well represented at the parties, along with the official set.

Beautiful Rose Gardens Are Shown to Guests

Assisting in entertaining guests at the party for the Vice President and Mrs. Wallace were Senator Guffey's other two sisters, Miss Pauletta Guffey and Mrs. Carroll Miller, who showed the callers through their beautiful rose gardens. The honor guests received with their host and hostess, Mrs. Wallace wore a black chiffon and lace gown of street length with a matching straw hat and a corsage of gardenias. Miss Guffey chose a flowered chiffon gown with red roses on a background of mingled blue, black and white.

Miss Pauletta Guffey was in a red and yellow print chiffon with a white background and Mrs. Miller was in a blue and white print. Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Hugo L. Black, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Frank Walker, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. Sherman Miles, Mrs. Claude Pepper and Mrs. Allen J. Ellender.

Among the guests were Mrs. Cordell Hull, wearing a green print costume and a straw hat with a green bird at the front; Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, in a black and white frock; Senora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, in a red and white print with a red hat to match; the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio F. Cucheno, and the Chilean Ambassador, Dr. Rodolfo Michels; the former Attorney General, Mr. Homer Cummings; Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mrs. George Barnett, the Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullitt; Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Judge and Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. John (Continued on Page B-4.)

ORT Hears Mead Plead For Unity
U. S. in Serious Danger, Senator Tells Women

A strong plea for national unity and support of the "great spokesman for leadership in the White House" was made by Senator Mead of New York yesterday at the first annual spring luncheon of the local chapter of the American ORT held at Hotel 2400.

"We must realize that we are in grave danger ourselves," Senator Mead declared, pointing out that Hitler is today "invading his 16th nation and that his progress has never been stopped."

Senator Mead implied his belief that the danger to the United States was so grave that it might eventually have to face attack.

"We must recognize the fact that Hitler had years to prepare," he said, "and that we have only a few fleeting months to prepare to repel the invader."

Successful national defense depends upon unity of thought and action by all, he emphasized.

"We require the unity of the 130,000,000 people of this country, Jews, Catholics and Protestants," he asserted; "of capital and labor, as every individual has a great stake in the outcome of this unhealed."

The New York Senator referred to the new neutrality law and to the lease-lend bill and said that the legislation had been presented to the people of the United States, who by their final vote had defined the policy they favored.

"There must be unity behind our leadership, whose sworn duty is to carry out the mandate of the people," he declared.

He referred to "convoys question," and stated that if a decision should be reached favoring convoys which would "keep the traditional freedom of the seas for her ships which America has enjoyed" that unity again would be required behind the National leadership.

"Whether you are a militarist, an isolationist, an interventionist, a pacifist or just good plain American there is no argument against the plea for unity," he added.

Individual co-operation is required for national progress, the Senator advised.

"Whether your position is high or low you are making a contribution to the smooth productive work of America by doing your own work a little better," he said.

"We want peace in the Western Hemisphere," Senator Mead emphasized. "But if war is thrust upon us, we must decide what we can endure and be prepared to make a supreme sacrifice to preserve civilization. We need unity in support of national effort. We must recruit the moral forces of America to support the military forces."

He concluded with a tribute to the work of the ORT, which he described as a "humanitarian organization which steps in and makes its contribution to exemplary Americans in an age when humanism yields to barbarism."

Senator Mead was introduced by Mrs. Irwin Geiger, president of the local chapter. Others at the speakers' table included Mrs. Florence E. Dolowitz, Mrs. Louis King, Mrs. Emmett Markwood, Mrs. Alexander Lish, Mrs. Joseph Barnett, Mrs. Ernest Wolf, Mrs. Milton Kellert, Mrs. Albert Youngman, retiring president of the local chapter, and Mrs. Samuel Wolff.

Soroptimists See Coast Guard Films

Motion pictures of the National Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., were shown to members of the Soroptimist Club following their weekly luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

An explanation of the purpose of the Coast Guard and the duties and responsibilities of Coast Guard officers was given by Harold E. Whitner and E. F. Mashburn, who are attached to the public relations office of the National Coast Guard. Announcement was made by the chairman of the Civics Committee of the club that a library will be installed in the women's division of Occoquan and that Mrs. Vesta Eales, a member of the club, has donated 100 books for its use. The club will celebrate "book day" May 28 and each member is requested to bring one book for the library. The club is a sponsor for the play, "Little Women," to be presented by Rose Cohen, a member, at the Chevy Chase Women's Club tomorrow for the benefit of Bundles for Britain. Children from the Children's Emergency Home will be taken by the club to attend the performance, and children from the Settlement House will be taken by Mrs. Ethel Fistere, who, in addition to Miss Marjorie Webster, a member, is an individual patron of the affair.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Petticoterie
Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and President's Wife
Have Long Had Many Interests in Common

FAMILIAR EQUESTRIENNES—Eleanor Roosevelt (right), wife of the President, and Elinor Morgenthau, wife of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, ride along a Washington bridge path. This has been a familiar sight for three administrations to early-rising citizens of the Nation's Capital. —A. P. Photo.

One of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's warmest friends for many years has been her Hyde Park neighbor, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury. Vesta Kelling tells of their association in this third of four daily stories for The Star's Special News Service on the Capital "Petticoterie." Tomorrow: Mrs. James M. Hein, Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary.

By VESTA KELLING.
Of women of the official family at the Nation's Capital, Elinor Morgenthau, wife of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., doubtless occupies the warmest place in Eleanor Roosevelt's heart. The two friends have been a familiar sight to early rising citizens, centering along Washington's bridge paths together long before civil service workers have been disturbed by alarm clocks. Ever since they were both young women rearing families, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Morgenthau have been neighbors in Dutchess County, N. Y., where the Morgenthaus have a farm 15 miles from Hyde Park.

Has Wide Interests.
Mrs. Morgenthau's role in the Morgenthau ménage, friends say, approximates that of Mrs. Roosevelt's in the White House. Her husband listens to her opinions with real interest. This niece of New York's Gov. Lehmann always has been more than a social adjunct to her husband in his political life.

Her interests are shown in the organizations to which she belongs: The Women's Trade Union League of New York and the National Women's Trade Union League. She helped found the Washington Self-Help Exchange, where men and women exchange what work they can for the necessities of life. She admits that she loves campaigns. Vividly brunette and with snapping black eyes, Mrs. Morgenthau is known for her wit and humor. She Kids Washington. In Washington she kids Washington. Once at a luncheon for wives of dignitaries, at which Mrs. Roosevelt was a guest, the table centerpiece was a huge goldfish bowl in which particularly luscious specimens sported themselves. In front of each guest was a miniature bowl containing one lonely goldfish, which Mrs. Morgenthau explained reminded her of the way the wives of Washington officials are forced to live. Elinor Fatman was three years out of Vassar when she married young Morgenthau, son of a businessman-philanthropist whom Woodrow Wilson made Ambassador to Turkey. As young married folk, the Morgenthaus lived on their Fishkill Farms doing practical farming, without lights or modern conveniences, but have since acquired a spacious house with a swimming pool, where Mrs. Roosevelt often is a guest.

Aged and indigent run by the District of Columbia at Blue Plains, when their car stalled in a drift. Their unannounced arrival at the back door revealed living and kitchen conditions which they regarded as appalling and resulted in a congressional hearing which brought a larger nursing staff and better menus to the institution. Mrs. Morgenthau worked actively in New York for farm women, children and labor and frequently toured the state with Mrs. Roosevelt doing political and social work when both were with the women's division of the New York Democratic State Committee.

Chevy Chase Citizens Indorse Plan for Staggered Pay Days

Association Opposes Any Tax Increase For Highway Program

The proposed staggering of Government pay days would alleviate growing congestion in banks and stores, the Chevy Chase Citizens' Association agreed last night in supporting a motion by Don Carpenter.

Opposition to any tax increase to support a major highway development program was voted in action on a program of F. C. Heigle, who cited a labor shortage as a reason for postponing all highway programs until after the defense crisis.

The association urged appointment of the clerk for the Senate District Committee to advise on District matters, the appointee to be a resident of the District for five years and a District taxpayer. Mr. Heigle made the motion.

Acting upon the motions of Warren Hogan and J. M. Heiser, the group opposed a proposed rezoning of the property bounded by Dogwood street, Thirty-second street, Chestnut street and Oregon avenue N.W. to permit building of stores. Mr. Heiser, Mr. Hogan and Raymond Pigott were elected to represent the association at hearings before the Zoning Commission June 5.

The body reaffirmed its stands in favor of a nine-member Board of Recreation and the Military road route for the proposed cross-town bus line.

Appreciation for the years of service given the District by Engineer Commissioner Col. David McCouch was voted on the motion of Mr. Heigle.

An appropriation of $100 to cover expenses in the printing of a directory of members of the group was passed.

New Mexico possesses six of the seven life zones found on the North American continent, giving the State an almost unlimited variety of climate. Most sections of the State enjoy from 75 to 80 per cent possible sunshine.

Complete Covenantee Urged on Association

The Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens' Association was urged last night to redouble its efforts for complete covenanteeing of the area.

Clifford H. Newell, chairman of the Covenant Committee of the Arkansas Avenue Community Association, told of his association's progress and said "the success of a covenant can only be complete when every lot of property is accounted for." More than 95 per cent of land owners in his area have signed the covenant.

On the motion of Alfred H. Rich-wine, the Educational Committee was instructed to investigate the land at Thirteenth and Van Buren streets N.W., as a possible site for an elementary school.

Donald Thomas invited members of the association to a Community Chest Fiesta, held at the Charles Glover estate, 4300 Massachusetts avenue N.W., on May 23.

The final meeting of the group will be held next month at the home of Jesse Rawling. Mr. Rawling was delegated to invite Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst to address the association at the meeting.

Burma Road Traffic Thrives Despite Repeated Bombings

Deliveries Slowed, but Never Stopped, As Industrious Chinese Repair Damage

(Fourth of a Series.)
By A. T. STEELE.

Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News

KUNMING, Southwest China (Via Clipper).—The Japanese air force may bomb the Burma road from now until doomsday, but it is doubtful whether this way alone they will ever be able to halt or seriously impede the ever-growing traffic in supplies.

Frequently Japanese communiques have announced stoppage of the Burma road traffic through damage or destruction of the two vital bridges crossing the Salween and Mekong rivers. This is wishful thinking. Bridges have been battered and even destroyed; at times traffic has been slowed up—but at no time has it been halted.

On my trip over the road I made both the river crossings by bridge. There was not the slightest congestion at either place. Automobile ferries made of gasoline drums now stand in readiness at both crossings to be utilized instantly in case the bridges go out. Formerly the country of these rafts was not quite adequate for all arriving trucks. There were long line-ups of waiting cars. With new ferries built and building it is now believed that the whole traffic can be handled.

Hit and Repaired Often.

The first of the two big bridges we came to was the 300-foot suspension span across the Salween—a rushing torrent originating in Tibet. The bridge has been hit and repaired, hit and repaired, on repeated occasions. Yet the bridge we crossed—patched, wired and camouflaged though it was—was the same bridge the Chinese had built at the opening of the highway two and one-half years before.

The Salween Valley is a tremendous gash in China's southwestern escarpment. It is a 26-mile descent from a 7,500-foot summit to the level of the river, where the altitude is only 2,300 feet. On the way down we discarded topcoats, coats and vests. It was like going into an oven. There are eight divides between Lashio and Kunming, but of them all, this is the worst.

It was late in the evening of our third day out that we drove up to the walled upland town of Paoshan. We had heard no news of world events since leaving Lashio and were impatient for tidings on the Balkan campaign. So in the darkness we stumped through the narrow, deserted streets to the home of a missionary, thinking that he surely would have a radio. After much pounding, the door was opened and Friar Tuck of Paoshan, a touse-headed Englishman, wearing his nightgown, greeted us. We apologized for our intrusion and asked for news.

"But I have no news," he said sympathetically. "I usually get it from travelers like you."

"Well perhaps you can tell us, anyway, what has happened in Yugoslavia since the invasion," we implored him. Innocently, he replied:

"Has Yugoslavia been invaded? I hadn't heard."

On the following day, we crossed the Mekong, where the Japanese bombing has been more effective than at the Salween. The suspension bridge of six months ago was no more—wiped out by a bomb which had struck its supports. A steel bridge, hastily built, had suffered the same fate. So now the resilient Chinese—as industrious and as undiscouraged as ants—had built a third bridge across the torrent, in the record time of six weeks. It was a suspension span, whose cables had been wound on the spot from wire shipped from Burma. Near the bridge lay oil-drum rafts, unsinkable and almost indestructible, ready to do duty in the interim should a fourth bridge become necessary.

The Chinese have found many other uses, incidentally, for the 55-gallon containers in which American oil and gasoline are shipped to China. They are useful for making culverts and drain pipes. I have seen them employed for building walls and houses. Hundreds return to Burma refilled with tung oil, in repayment of American credits.

I was surprised to note along the Burma road that though all trucks entering China are bursting with cargo, more than half of the returning vehicles are empty. This wasteful condition is apparently caused by the fact that insufficient fuel and transport in the interior of China makes it impossible to feed export goods to the Burma road in large quantities. This is another problem John Earl Baker, new inspector-general of the highway, will tackle, so that shipments of tung oil, tungsten and tin to the United States may be increased.

We escaped accident on the Burma road, but there were some narrow escapes. Ninety per cent of the vehicles on the highway are of American make and nearly all show the scars and bruises of collision. Numerous broken-down cars stand abandoned along the highway, awaiting spare parts which are sometimes days or weeks in arriving. Here and

Repair facilities on the highway are far from adequate, though the official Southwest Transportation Co. maintains repair stations and rest houses for its own carriers all along the road. The road is kept in repair by thousands of laborers, mostly women and children.

There is much work to be done on the Burma road, but it is also true that much has been done since my last journey two years ago. The miracle is that with so little to work the last half of our journey, over with, the Chinese have been able to keep the highway open and even increase its capacity. Whatever the road's deficiencies, the important fact is that supplies, in limited quantities, are getting through the undulating plateau of Central Yunnan Province, was comparatively easy. At Kunming, the terminus, we found a city wholly unbroken in spirit by repeated Japanese bombings. Here is a town which is growing faster than Japanese bombs can tear it down.

GOVERNMENT LEASES BUILDING OF CAPITOL BEDDING COMPANY

(Retiring After 28 Years of Successful Business)

The Palais Royal Department Store Buys Out Entire Stock of Mattresses, Studio Couches, Etc., and Places Them on Sale at Close-Out Prices

We've done business with The Capitol Bedding Company for a greater part of the 28 years they have been in business, so they sold us their entire stock at a fraction of its real worth. Frankly we haven't enough space to store it in, so we've piled the mattresses in stacks on our fourth floor, so you can see them all. We expect a record-breaking quick sell-out. THE SALE BEGINS FRIDAY, 9:30 A.M. . . its closing will depend on how long the quantities will last. But for first selections be here at 9:30 sharp to take the first elevator to the BEDDING DEPARTMENT, FOURTH FLOOR.

Sharp Cuts in W. P. A. Rolls Before July 1 Urged by Hunter

1,000,000 Level as Asked by President Outlined at Hearing

By the Associated Press. Sharp cuts in W. P. A. rolls between now and July 1 to start and keep the new fiscal year at the 1,000,000 work relief level recommended by President Roosevelt were reported today by Howard O. Hunter, acting W. P. A. commissioner.

There were 1,497,000 on W. P. A. rolls on May 14, but the figure was rapidly declining as defense and other industries absorbed employables. Mr. Hunter appeared before a House appropriations subcommittee for nearly three hours yesterday, testifying on the President's request for $886,000,000 for relief for the fiscal year starting July 1, a third less than this year's expenditure. He was asked to return today for further questioning.

Mr. Hunter was reported by committeemen to have advocated abandonment of the present system of staggering W. P. A. employment, whereby fewer are kept on the rolls in the summer months and a larger number in the winter when unemployment is greater.

He favored instead, members said, starting the new fiscal year with 1,000,000 relief workers and maintaining the lists at that level throughout the year on the theory that defense work will provide an upsurge by next winter that will obviate increasing the relief load.

President Roosevelt told Congress his appropriation request would provide a monthly average employment of 1,000,000 persons, compared with a monthly average for this year of 1,700,000.

The committee was said to have been told yesterday that to take care of all unemployed would require $1,700,000,000 or almost double the President's request.

Soviet Russia was the first country to train armed parachutists.

Good-Will Envoy, 14, Due Here From Brazil

A Brazilian good-will ambassador, aged 14, was due to arrive in Washington today to be a guest of the Boys' Club of Washington.

He is Roberto Andrade, who has been visiting the Madison Square Boys' Club in New York during National Boys' Club Week.

Arriving at Union Station shortly after noon, the youth was to be received at the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt. He bears a message to the President from President Vargas of Brazil.

He was to be met at the station by boy members of the Eastern branch of the local Boys' Club, as well as by Charles M. Fyfe, director. Following his White House visit, Roberto will tour the three branches of the Chest-nutted club in Washington and will attend a get-together in the evening.

Children of Revolution To Meet Saturday

James Faulkner Chaning will be host at 2 p. m. Saturday at his home, 3126 South Dakota avenue N.E., to the senior group of the Potomac Society, Children of the American Revolution. Robert G. Huey, vice president, will preside, and after the business session, Harvey Lee Huey, chairman of patriotic education, will talk on "Our Flag." Mrs. Carl H. Giroux, national organizing secretary, will be guest of honor.

Capital Parks Unit Hit for Denying Use of Field House by Post

Conduit Road Citizens Elect McGhee at Last Meeting of Season

The election of Curtis E. McGhee, 5523 Sherrier place N.W., as president and condemnation of the action of the Office of National Capital Parks in forbidding the use of the Palisades Park Field House by the Potomac Post of the American Legion featured the meeting of the Conduit Road Citizens' Association last night at the Field House. Action on the Legion matter came after Walter Conjug read a letter from the acting co-ordinator of recreation which stated that public buildings in the District were to be used only by organizations which were public in nature and that the Legion did not come under that classification. Others Elected. Other officers elected for the coming year included Alex D. MacKinnon, first vice president; M. Johnson, second vice president; Mrs. Irene Sheehan O'Conner, recording secretary; Mrs. Sidney Gambill, corresponding secretary; George Morse, treasurer; Mr. McGhee and Frank Shull, delegates to the Federation of Citizens' Associations, and Mrs. Conjug and Thomas V. Regan, delegates to the Northwest Council.

The Whitehurst highway improvement program was endorsed with the suggestion that it be financed 50 per cent by the Federal Government and 50 per cent by an additional gas tax. The group asked that all Potomac Heights buses be kept express during the evening rush hours from Twentieth and K streets N.W. to Thirty-fifth street and Reservoir road N.W. Approve 9-Member Board. The bill proposing a nine-member recreation board for the District was approved in reference to a three-man board. A request for a traffic light at Thirty-fifth and Reservoir road N.W. was renewed on a motion by Mr. Conjug. New members accepted were Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Grey, Mr. and

Mrs. J. L. Lambstreet and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Herbert. The meeting was the last until September. Ballou Is Cool to First-Aid Defense Units in Schools The plan of the Health Committee of the District Defense Council to establish first-aid stations in various sections of the city for medical emergency service under its second set back yesterday when Supt. Frank W. Ballou frowned on the use of public schools for this project. Previously the committee's plan to use police stations was turned down by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who suggested that the committee sound out the schools. Maj. Brown felt location of the stations in the police precincts would hamper the work of the police during an emergency. In a letter to Health Officer George C. Ruiland, Dr. Ballou indicated that limited use of schools during the summer vacation period and where summer school was not in session might be arranged but that such limited use would so restrict the program, he thought it unwise to try to use the schools at all. In a previous conference with Assistant Health Officer Daniel Seckinger, Dr. Ballou told Dr. Seckinger he did not see how he could agree to the first-aid project being housed in the schools when schools were in regular session. He said it would constitute undue interference with the school program and expose the children to "undesirable observations" if and when the stations might be put into use. Pediatrician to Speak Dr. W. Warrick Cardozo, clinical instructor in pediatrics, Howard University school of medicine, will discuss "Early Diagnosis of the Diseases of Children" at a meeting of the Medico-Chirurgical Society tonight at 9 o'clock in the Mu-So-Lit Club, 1327 R street N.W. Officers will be elected. GUARDS CLOTHES AGAINST MOSHES Before packing garments, woollens, etc., expose to strong sunlight. Then have dry cleaned, steam pressed, or brush thoroughly. Next, clean out clothes chest or trunk and sprinkle Bee Brand Insect Powder liberally in corners and over bottom. Lay a sheet of paper over powder, place clothes on top, then cover clothes with more paper and over it sprinkle more powder. Bee Brand Insect Powder kills moths quick, yet it's safe to use. BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people eliminate about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. Used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Shipbuilding Speed Marks Observance Of Maritime Day

Emergency Program For 412 Ships Reported Well Ahead of Schedule

By The Associated Press. Its shipyards jammed with a gigantic merchant building program, the United States today observed National Maritime Day—the 122d anniversary of the Savannah's departure on the first successful trans-Atlantic voyage by steam.

A ceremonial observance was scheduled here aboard the Maritime Commission's training ship American Seaman, but due to emergency conditions the Washington Navy Yard was not open to the public.

The anniversary's keynote this year was the urgency of speed in the Nation's merchantmen construction program, which has been vastly expanded since the pre-war days when it first got under way.

The original construction program—a long-range undertaking—called for 50 ships a year for a 10-year period.

To this, President Roosevelt has added a 412-ship emergency program and the Maritime Commission reported this well ahead of schedule today.

The emergency program, which may be increased if conditions warrant, is designed to provide 212 ships for Britain under the Lend-Lease Act and 200 for this country. In the long-range program the commission has placed orders for 198 ships of 1,548,398 gross tons.

Of these, 84 vessels of 656,947 gross tons have been delivered and several others are scheduled for delivery in the near future.

The steamship Savannah sailed from Savannah, Ga., on May 22, 1819, for England and the Scandinavian countries on the first successful steam-propelled crossing of the Atlantic.

She returned to her home port November 22 of the same year, heralding the beginning of the end of the sailing ship era.

The Savannah made only one Atlantic round-trip. Two years later she was wrecked on the coast of Long Island.

100 Bombers Monthly Rate Expected by Ford Co.

The Ford Motor Co. is expected to reach a late 1942 production rate of 100 heavy bombers a month—approximately equal to the entire present output of the Nation for this type of aircraft—under a new contract now being negotiated with the Government, it was learned today.

The remainder of the accelerated program to turn out 500 four-motored bombers a month, announced by William S. Knudsen, defense production chief, yesterday, will come from Government-owned assembly plants being rushed to completion at Tulsa, Okla., and Fort Worth, Tex., scheduled to turn out 100 each a month and from expanded facilities of three companies already engaged in heavy bomber production, Boeing, Lockheed and Douglas.

Shortly after Mr. Knudsen revealed the Office of Production Management's plan for attaining the heavy bomber production rate asked for recently by President Roosevelt, Secretary of Commerce Jones, who is Federal loan administrator, announced allocations of $650,000,000 for construction of new Government-owned airplane, aluminum and magnesium plants.

Aluminum and magnesium are important in making airplanes.

Mr. Jones said $350,000,000 would be allocated for airplane factories; $250,000,000 for aluminum plants and $50,000,000 for magnesium plants.

The airplane plants, it was indicated, would be devoted principally to engine production. The O. P. M. will determine the location and other details of the plants, which are to be financed and built by the Government but operated by private companies under contract.

Meanwhile, authoritative congressional sources asserted today the O. P. M. has been urging the War Department to almost double its $6,500,000,000 estimates for the coming year to permit a tremendous new expansion in production of bombers, tanks and other armament weapons.

Burned Axis Ship Crews Deported by Costa Rica

By The Associated Press. SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 22.—The Costa Rican government today released 126 German and Italian sailors from the federal penitentiary here and sent them in a guarded train to Port Limon for deportation to Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone.

The Axis sailors included crewmen of the German freighter Eisenach and the Italian freighter Felina, who had been accused of sabotage after the ships were set afire at Puntarenas recently.

The charges were dropped upon the government's decision to deport the sailors. A German seaman, accused of killing a Japanese sailor in a brawl, was sent along with them.

At Cristobal they are expected to board a Japanese liner.

Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use douches of over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues.

Why Must They Die? No. 31 Killed in Traffic Same Date Last Year—20

—One of a Series of Factual Analyses of D. C. Traffic Fatalities—

Analysis of traffic death No. 29 has not been published pending completion of official investigation.

The place: Pennsylvania avenue and Twenty-sixth street N.W. The accident: A 70-year-old colored woman was crossing Pennsylvania avenue at Twenty-sixth street in the crosswalk when she was struck by the left front door of an eastbound automobile. She was picked up about 23 feet away and taken to Emergency Hospital, where she died three and a half hours later. Skid marks of the striking vehicle extended for 62 feet before the point of impact and continued for 43 feet. After hitting the pedestrian, the car swerved into Twenty-sixth street, where it came to a stop.

The time: About 7:30 p.m., May 16. The weather: Clear. Lighting good. The street: Straight and level.

Diagram indicates how a 70-year-old pedestrian was killed when struck by an automobile while she was crossing the street in the crosswalk. Black dot shows the point of impact and the circled "X" denotes the place where the victim lay after the accident.

The vehicle: A 1935 coupe. Brakes were not tested because car had flat tire after the accident. The driver first told police he was traveling about 25 miles an hour, but later said he didn't know how fast he was going because he didn't see the speedometer. He did admit, however, that he was traveling "fast."

The driver: An 18-year-old boy with three-years' driving experience. He said the victim was walking very fast across the intersection with one hand on her hat and her face turned in the opposite direction to that in which he was traveling. He said he attempted to swerve his car to the right in order to avoid striking her, but was unable to avoid the accident. He said the victim walked into his vehicle. Coroner's jury verdict: Driver held for action of the grand jury.

Lavarre to Head Unit in Commerce Bureau

William J. Lavarre, Jr., explorer, newspaperman and author, has been selected to head Latin American activities of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. It was learned today. The Civil Service Commission has approved the appointment, which is expected to be announced in the near future by the Commerce Department.

Born in Richmond, Va., Mr. Lavarre has travelled widely in Latin-America, both as an explorer and newspaperman. Under the recent reorganization of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, an American republics unit has been established to handle all Latin American activities. No immediate expansion in personnel is contemplated.

Junior High Teachers Elect Mrs. Agnes Arnold

Anna Tenyson, Langley, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Trundle, Paul, corresponding secretary; Miss Lela Crawford, Eliot, recording secretary, and Miss Eleanor Robeson, Gordon, treasurer. Committee chairmen elected were Miss Margaret Dorsey, Alice Deal, education; Elbert Olney, Anacostia, administration; Mrs. Mary Ambrosi, Powell, membership, and James Gallahorn, Jefferson, legislation.

MAIN DISH SALAD FOR SPRING SUPPERS

RECIPE

DEVILED EGG SALAD—Cut 6 hard cooked eggs in halves lengthwise, then remove yolks. Mash yolks, then add 3 tablespoons Heinz India Relish, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 3 tablespoons Heinz Mayonnaise and 1 teaspoon Heinz Pure Cider Vinegar. Mix well. Refill whites, then place three halves per serving in a nest of water-cress. Place a spoonful of Heinz Mayonnaise in center. Serve with crisp whole wheat crackers as illustrated.

FOR that extra flavor that makes folks remember your salads, use Heinz Vintage Vinegars! These clear, sparkling vinegars are patiently mellowed in wood to full strength. That's why they go further! Select your favorites of Heinz four kinds: Cider, Malt, Tarragon and Distilled White. See how much better your salads taste!

SING A SONG O' SWAN SOAP!

LADY—HOW YOU'LL LOVE IT!

Yes'm, it's the first really new white floating soap since The Gay Nineties! It's 8-ways better!

Mild as a moonbeam, Pure as castile; Whiter and smoother—A pleasure to feel.

Smells fresher, cleaner. Breaks smoother, too. After one trial—Swan Soap for you!

That's Swan for you! Pure and mild as imported "100% olive oil" castiles. Just what the doctor ordered for baby, so it's grand for mom's hands and face, for silks, woollens, all your nice things that deserve extra-gentle care!

Suds twice as speedy as Old-time floating soap. In hard or soft water, Swan's all that you hope.

Firmer, fine-textured; More for your money. Any old which way, Swan is a honey!

You'll go for Swan, once you use it for dishes. It billows up into gobs of rich, silky suds twice as fast as old-time floating soaps. Thicker, creamier suds that last much longer—even in hardest water.

What elegance! What swank! Such a rich-looking, rich-feeling soap! Yet Swan's thrifty as a miser because it has far less moisture, more real soap. It's firmer, solid, harder. It lasts and lasts!

Two convenient sizes—Large and Regular

District Pharmacists Discuss Drug Act At 89th Session

Medical Service Fees Defended; Banquet to Close Meeting Tonight

Discussions on the relationships between dentistry and chemistry, problems of salesmanship and regulations contained in the Pure Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act occupied the attention of District pharmacists today at their 89th annual meeting in the Shoreham Hotel.

Speakers at the concluding sessions of the conclave today were to include Dr. Daniel Lynch, president of the District of Columbia Dental Society, and Prof. Richard G. Borden, director of sales training and sales control of the Borden Co. The druggists also were to hear talks by Sam J. Waddell, president of the Travelers Auxiliary of the Association, and Mrs. W. Paul Briggs, president of the Women's Auxiliary.

The closing event of the two-day convention will be the annual banquet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Shoreham. Principal speaker will be Alvin L. Newmyer, Washington attorney. Morris G. Goldstein, the outgoing president, will preside, and the new roster of officers, headed by Irving Tennison, president-elect, will be installed.

Court to Hear Plea for Trial In Alimony Contempt Case

The question of whether a man is entitled to a trial on contempt charges resulting from his alleged failure to obey an order to pay alimony will be decided by the United States Court of Appeals on Monday. By granting such a request the court would be setting a precedent.

The case is that of George A. Brown, theater electrician, who last September was instructed to pay his wife, Mrs. Mary Estelle Brown, $25 weekly, and who now is reported $800 behind in payments.

After hearings, District Court declined to grant Mrs. Brown maintenance, but the appellate court ordered the payments, and today defended its ruling by holding it has power to issue a maintenance order pending appeal.

The appellate tribunal announced, however, that it would hear oral arguments Monday morning by Louis Lebowitz, Mr. Brown's attorney, who maintains that no person can be deprived of his property without a hearing.

The lawyer wants the trial to take place in the Court of Appeals, at which time he would endeavor to have District Court Justices Jennings Bailey and Daniel W. O'Donoghue appear as defense witnesses. They were the jurists who first heard Mr. Brown's domestic troubles and sided with him by failing to order alimony payments.

Says Fee Criticism Unjust.

At the afternoon session yesterday, the pharmacists heard O. K. Fike, director of Doctor's Hospital, charge both the medical and pharmaceutical professions with failing to acquaint the public with the services they render.

In the case of the medical profession, he declared, this has resulted in much criticism of hospitals and doctors for the fees they charge.

For the services they render, Mr. Fike said, hospitals are not overcharging the public. He said the hospitals have been partly to blame for failing to let the public go behind the scenes to see what such institutions must provide to meet the service demands of the sick.

"Last year, the medical profession saved 800,000 lives—and the public squawks that the doctors and hospitals are being paid too much," he said.

Cites Nation's Medical Bill.

He pointed out that the nation spent $1,900,000,000 for medical services last year, but he added that only 15 per cent of the doctors received $1,600 for their year's work; 25 per cent, $2,300; 50 per cent, $3,800; 12 per cent, $10,000, and less than 3 per cent, $20,000 or more.

"The cost of medical care is the most discussed and most cursed subject in the world," Mr. Fike said. "It is up to us to show the public that hospitals are not overcharging their patients when you consider the services they render. Our job is to be good public relations agents for the medical profession."

The Pharmaceutical Association also heard addresses by Dr. Ralph W. Clark, head of the prescription service department of a national pharmaceutical supply firm, who discussed how to improve the operation of prescription departments; Dr. William P. Herbst, chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the District Medical Society, who told of uses of sulfanilic acid, and J. W. Pollard, food department executive of People's Drug Stores.

Now Is the Time to Lay Your Plans for That Memorial Day Picnic

Clambake or Corn Roast Worth Trouble Involved In Their Preparation

Markets Will Be Featuring Items for Alfresco Meals During Next Few Days

By Betsy Caswell

Although Memorial Day is a week from tomorrow, our next market report will appear a little too late to be of aid to you forward-thinking housewives. On Tuesday the "Just Looking" column will feature picnic "gadgets," which may help you in planning your outing. But we'll have to touch on the food end of the matter today.

There will be plenty of "specials" for picnic meals offered by Washington stores and markets before the holiday. Smoked meats, cold cuts, luncheon meats, special loaves, hot dogs and specially seasoned ground meat for hamburgers will all be featured. If you haven't been trying the reinforced breads, make their acquaintance in sandwiches with mustard and thinly sliced Swiss cheese for the fillings. These reinforced breads come sliced, too, as you probably know. You might like to take along thick steaks to broil on your charcoal grill—or perhaps ears of the delicious fresh golden bantam corn from Texas for a real "corn roast." If you are a friend for your vitamins, get a local store that specializes in fresh vegetable juices to make you up a tasty mixture according to your preferences, and take it along well chilled in a thermos. Bottled beverages should be transported in a bucketful of ice—wrap the whole affair up in burlap or newspapers, and the melting process will be nil.

Try a clambake for a change. It is a lot of trouble, but if you love seafood, and have some friends who know enough about clambakes to be a help instead of a hindrance, you can have a wonderful time. If the day promises to be cool, or your picnic is scheduled for after dark, take along a steaming hot casserole, of rice and chicken livers, or corn, shrimp and green peppers, wrapped in towels or blankets to keep the heat in. Whatever you choose, try to have your picnic a little different from the usual sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs and fruit, that get so monotonous.

The market picture in general remains pretty much the same as last week. That corn on the cob we predicted actually arrived in lower prices Friday afternoon, and there are more shipments coming in from day to day. It is a little high in price, but really very sweet and tender. Big white radishes for cooking are available, and the new "improved" yellow summer squash is a smooth and firm, a little different from the familiar "crook neck" of other days. Enormous avocados are here for summery salads, and cocktails, with good romaine, cress and garden lettuce to accompany them. Cauliflower seems poor at the moment, and the first part of the week many of the greens were low quality. Home-grown strawberries are with us now, selling for only a few cents a quart. Lima beans are a little lower, but the small green ones still flirt with the luxury budget.

Lamb and duck roasts of beef will be offered at attractive prices over the week end. Frying chickens are at their peak, and are deliciously plump and tender. Plenty of good fish is available, with crab lump coming in bigger and better than I have ever seen it. Fresh salmon is exceptionally good, and is there in quantities much better than pink-boned salmon served cold with green mayonnaise seasoned with chopped cucumber and chives?

Dorothy Dix Says --- Cripple May Rise Above Handicap To Become Outstanding Man

Dear Miss Dix: When I was a senior in college I was stricken with infantile paralysis which left me with one leg 14 inches shorter than the other. I finished college and have a grand job in a large corporation office and manage to walk without a cane or crutches, although the stairs are pretty hard for me. Here is my problem: I am madly in love with a wonderful girl and we wish to be married, but my parents are dead against it. They say that a cripple has no right to attach himself to any one because it would only be a hindrance to that person. I know that my girl friend doesn't feel that way about it, but before I take any steps I would like your opinion. If I marry in opposition to Mother and Dad, they will bar me from their house forever, and I don't know what to do. I feel that a cripple has just as much place in the world as any one, don't you?

Answer—I think that any one who has the strength of character and courage and intelligence to rise above a physical misfortune, and make a full life for himself in spite of it has not only a place in the world, but is entitled to a seat among the mighty. When I see blind men and women pegging away at their machines, writing the words they will never see; when I see cripples forcing their poor, maimed bodies to give them the last ounce of service that is in them; when I see sick and ailing people carrying on and wrestling victory out of the very jaws of death. I take off my hat to them and salute them. They are the bravest of the brave.

How any one can wish to add even a feather's weight more to the heavy load that these afflicted ones are doomed to carry through life is past comprehension. They are due every compensation that Fate can give them, and the mere thought of shutting them off from love and marriage and homes and children for no other reason than because they limp as they walk, or have lost an arm, or their eyesight, is monstrous.

Perhaps only those who suffer from some physical handicap know how great their misfortune is, but they also know that it does not keep them from being loved and admired, nor bar them from success.

On the contrary, many a blind man is given to see the glory of woman's love and tenderness and pity that no man with unimpaired vision even glimpses. And many a cripple's need to use his every talent to the utmost has made him accomplish far more than he would have done had he possessed the body of an athlete. It carried one man to the presidency of the United States.

Of course, there is reason in all things. If a man has some disease that will make him a chronic invalid, he should not marry. Nor should he marry if he is so badly crippled that he is incapacitated from making a living and the burden of the support of himself, his wife and his children will be thrown upon others.

But if he is strong and well and has already shown that despite his limitations he can hold his own with other men in the battle of life, there is no reason why he should not marry and be happy, if he has found a girl who loves him all the more because he needs her more.

I think your father and mother are entirely wrong in the position they have taken on this subject, and that you will be foolish to let them add lonely bachelorhood to your other misfortunes. Don't worry about their casting you out of their lives. They couldn't if they wanted to. Fathers and mothers are not built that way.

Aid Dejected Adolescent When Sad

Little Happenings Can Cause Great Despondency

By Angelo Patri

"What's up, Helene? You look as if you'd lost your last friend." "That's how I feel. Everything's wrong. Everything. I don't fit in at home, nor in school, nor anywhere. Everything I try to do is wrong. Every time I move somebody has something to say about it and it's not too complimentary, either. I'm ready to give up."

That is an adolescent mood, and boys have it as often as girls. They are tired oftener than we know and what seems simple routine to us is likely to mean unusual effort for them. What seemed to us a helpful suggestion was just another bit of faultfinding to them. Little unexpected happenings that would not give us a second thought are great disappointments to them. We forget that in many ways they are still children and still in need of consideration and understanding.

Helene's world came to an end that day when gym teacher counted her out of a group of dancers. "One too many there. Step out, Helene. You are on the end. Work with the ladder group." Helene did not like ladder work and she did like dancing. The English teacher said, "Instead of working on that editorial today, Helene, I wish you would go over this last composition of yours for sentence structure. It's weak all through. Put this period on it and see if you can't better it." Helene wanted to do that editorial and she felt that the teacher was telling her she had done poor work. And she had.

To put the crown on her grief her chum waited for her between classes to tell her that the trip to the shops for inspection of dance frocks was off. Her chum explained she couldn't go because of bad marks in math. That meant no dance for Helene either, and what sorrow is as deep as that of a lost party when one is 16? Everything was wrong.

If this looks like nothing to grieve about, you are wrong. To the child it is a heavy load and needs the relief of tears and a comforting word from some understanding soul who can point out that there are still joys in life, other parties, other days for dancing and for doing pleasant work. And that comfort and encouragement is essential to the child's healthy growth and normal adjustment. Don't scold and don't say, "You've little to worry about. If you had to pay the rent and the grocery bills and the rest of it you might find out what real worry was. Go on and forget it." That won't do. Better take time out to set things right in the child's mind before passing by.

Boys are not so articulate about these things as girls, as a general thing, so one must be on the watch to see what is going on to create these moods of despondency. Don't allow such a mood to pass without doing your best to get to the cause of it. Asking what is the matter will not help. You will have to do some sleuthing, make some fine deductions on your own, and do your best to show the child the happier side of his day.

When you cannot find any cause, try to give the child a feeling of hope and courage by showing him your faith in his intelligence and understanding by putting some responsibility on him, that would make him proud. You help him when you turn his attention away from his troubles toward his usefulness. And don't talk about what ails him, but let it vanish in the healthier mood of service.

Lovely Two-Way Pattern For Summer Wardrobe

By Barbara Bell

Planning your hot-weather sewing? You will surely want to include a few fresh apron frocks for household wear—and with pattern No. 1393-B you can also make yourself a house coat—something sheer and cool for summer's heat. The princess cut is always a favorite because it is flattering for slender or heavier figures. The frock is such a quick-to-make style you will want to have it in several fabrics. Just as easy to cut and sew is the floor-length robe, which may be trimmed with two gay bows on the bodice. Pattern No. 1393-B is one you must surely order now. Use it for all types of sheer and sturdy cottons. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1393-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Dress size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric with short-length skirt, 4 yards braid. Long house coat, 5 1/2 yards. Bows require 1 1/2 yards ribbon.

Masculine 'Bull Sessions' Until Wee, Small Hours Cause Parental Woes

Youngsters Should Endeavor To Get Home a Bit Earlier On Non-Dating Evenings

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

At shortly after 1 a. m. on a recent Friday night (or Saturday morning, if you insist) we stopped at a drive-in restaurant with another couple for a round of hamburgers and coffee. We found the place practically popping with guys and gals of high school age, many of whom were still there when we left a half hour later.

Some of the crowd undoubtedly had been dancing or attending parties, so their presence at that hour was natural. But judging from their costumes, many of them hadn't been doing anything special that evening. For instance, a big table next to us was occupied by eight high school boys who obviously hadn't had going-out dates—unless they had been to a "Come-as-You-Were Party."

Now, this was a nice-looking bunch of fellows, and they were doing nothing more wicked than indulging in the mildly moronic but highly entertaining horseplay which usually features such a gathering. But we couldn't help wondering in how many of their homes there would be trouble because of the hour at which they would finally tumble into bed.

Perhaps some of their parents belonged to the don't-know, don't-care, or don't-bother schools of child-rearing. But we'll bet that in at least half of those homes, fathers were fretting and mothers were worrying because Pete or Johnny was out until all hours, and they didn't know where he was or what he was doing.

A lot of high school fellows object very strenuously to any sort of family curfew, particularly on week ends. We go along with them to the extent of believing that a rigidly set hour at which Johnny or Pete must be home under all circumstances is an unreasonable and unworkable arrangement which merely leads to domestic discord.

If a boy is allowed to go to a dance or other social affair, we think he should be allowed a reasonable time after the party's conclusion to take his date home, perhaps stopping on the way to buy the little darling a morsel of nourishment. But we're on the parental side in questioning the wisdom of said boy wandering or dashing about the landscape until the wee, small hours, when there's nothing special on the social calendar.

As in the case of girls, later hours are permissible on week ends rather than on school nights. The chief consideration is that boys of this age, like their sisters, need sleep. And the hours they miss when they're 16 or 17 can never be made up.

On the other hand, parents are unjustified in leaping to the conclusion that their sons are speeding straight down the road to perdition just because they tiptoe in well after midnight on evenings when they have no dates.

No adult will believe—unless he has an exceptional memory—how fast the hours can slip by when a gang of fellows is just sitting around a restaurant table, chewing the fat. If Johnny gets in at 2, that doesn't mean that he's been sticking up a filling station, shooting craps in some alley, or chasing a dizzy damsel. The chances are pretty good that he has merely been parked in a hot dog house, discussing such world-shaking matters as next year's football prospects, the neighborhood glamour girls and the size of the chemistry prof's ears.

These sessions are very dear to the heart of the youthful male, and to be deprived of them by an inconsiderate curfew strikes him as an unbearable interference with his personal liberty, and a gross insult to his budding manhood.

Frankly, if we were the father and mother of such a night-blooming cereus, our chief concern would be the nature of the boys with whom he was spending those midnight

Why Grow Old?

Husbands and Wives Should Plan A Trip Without the Family

By Josephine Lowman

While separate vacations for husband and wife have their value, the most important vacation is the one which these two take together.

Naturally a couple likes to take their children on some trips, but this doesn't provide the same kind of carefree association which a man and woman get when they go alone.

The man has been so occupied with his business and the woman with her responsibilities of home and family that the habit of close companionship is sometimes lost in the stress of modern living.

It is so easy to lose the habit of laughing, of exchanging ideas and of having fun together that often a man and woman who have lived as husband and wife for years discover they know little about each other.

I believe that there would be fewer divorces if a husband and wife would occasionally leave the children and all of their responsibilities to slip away for a vacation alone. I read an article not long ago which was written by a husband who said that he and his wife had avoided a divorce by taking a long vacation together. On this trip they rediscovered the companionship which had been lost in the rush of life and again encountered the man and woman with whom they had originally fallen in love.

When you plan your vacations, don't forget the one you will take with your husband!

Vacation Near Army Camps All Right

Proprieties Must Be Reconsidered In Present Day

By Emily Post

Ever since the training camps have sprung up over the country, letters with training camp problems—most of them from those left behind—have peppered the mail. Today there is an especially appealing letter from a girl whose fiancé has gone to training camp. It brings a problem which I am sure is being, and will be, duplicated many times over in the coming months. I'd like rather especially to urge my readers to read the following letter because their remembrance of its problem is likely to make them sympathetically understanding of the problem of a friend or a friend's daughter and perhaps agree with me, instead of disapproving. This is the letter:

"I'm almost 20. I was to be married but my fiancé had to go to training camp and we thought it better to wait a year until he came back. Unhappily we are going to see little of each other as he was sent to a camp far away and I have an office position. When I get my vacation this summer I would like to fly to where he is stationed and stay for the two weeks in a hotel near the camp and see him as much as I can.

"Father says I will be criticized unless I take an older woman friend with me. But that would be impossible since no one can get away when I go, and besides it would cost too much to pay a second fare and board and lodging, and it is not the sort of vacation that any one would want to take except to see a husband or fiancé. My father has, I must confess, given in to the point of saying that if you say it is all right, he'll agree to it. But I'm afraid he won't otherwise."

Crochet Smart Bolero

By Baroness Piantoni

The bolero continues to be a high style note in the fashion world, and is an excellent companion to the blouse and skirt ensembles in every wardrobe. This crocheted model can be worn, too, with sport and day-time frocks, and when made in lovely shell stitch of soft yarn, as this bolero is, it can be extremely flattering over simple evening dresses.

very questionable. But it seems to me that in all fairness, such present-day proprieties have to be considered somewhat in the light of the emergency that has created them. I really don't see how any one who has any understanding at all could criticize you for what you want to do. Surely it is a most natural impulse. A vacation spent without seeing him would seem scarcely worth the spending. I think and, moreover, I believe, every one who thinks at all, will think as I do—that if you and he both have never given townspeople cause to doubt your uprightness of character, you will have their confidence now. This being the case, I think the risk to your reputation in going to stay alone in that faraway hotel and seeing your fiancé whenever he is off duty would be negligible.

A slip giving answers to questions about suitable presents to men in camps and advice to their visitors may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to Mrs. Post in care of The Evening Star.

Listen, Fellas!

It's time to start getting out your summer dinner jackets, fellas, if you haven't taken care of that little detail already. Anyway, even if you have no definite plans for going out dressed up "fit to kill," it's still a good hunch to look over your evening wear. Coats probably will need cleaning and we're sure you're going to need a new maroon tie and boutonniere. Why don't you try a bright blue one as well this season? Kinda nice for a change.

Be sure your jacket fits you perfectly, too. Maybe it'll need a bit of taking in or letting out—if by some chance your measurements have altered. Remember that the secret of looking really well groomed in evening clothes is to have them fitting in a way that would gladden the heart of a tailor's dummy.

NOW! THRILL TO THIS UTTERLY NEW AND REVOLUTIONARY KIND OF BREAD!

Better than "White"! Better than "Whole Wheat"! Because Better for Health and Better for Flavor!

AT LAST!—HERE ARE THE LIFE-GIVING ELEMENTS, THE NATURAL VITAMINS AND MINERALS WITH ALL THE RICH FLAVOR MOTHER NATURE GAVE WHEAT AND NONE OF ITS OUTER, BITTER, AND INDIGESTIBLE, SPLINTERED "SKIN" Contains 4 Times More Natural Vitamin B₁ Alone than Ordinary White Bread!

HAILED A GREAT BOON TO EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN AMERICA!

Heaven-Sent to Those in Every Walk of Life Who Now Are Paying the Penalty in "Nerves" and Lack of Vitality Due to Deficiency in the Vitamins and Minerals It So Richly Contains

NO OTHER BREAD IN THE WORLD BRINGS YOU IN THIS AMAZING WAY VITAMINS WITH A TASTE—BECAUSE ONLY STAFF IS MADE UNDER THE EARLE PATENTED PROCESS

At Last! Sun-Ripened Wheat's True, Good Flavor—Thanks to the Earle Patented Process

Read this Amazing Story:—How a Mining Engineer's Curiosity Led to the Invention that Made Possible this Great New Benefit to Your Family!

HERE now is that utterly new and revolutionary kind of bread you have heard so much about. Different from any bread ever before known, many scientists believe it may influence profoundly the lives of millions. Because of its power to improve their physical and mental processes of life amazingly.

For this new bread brings the treasure-trove of life-giving elements, the rich hoard of vitamins and minerals with all the wealth of flavor Mother Nature amassed in each bursting grain of sun-ripened wheat. And, of the utmost importance, none of the bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin!"

Better Than Ordinary White Bread Than "Whole Wheat"

Never before have you tasted bread like this. Here's aroma to make your mouth water—as fresh as the sight of fields of wind-rippled, sun-splashed wheat. Here's taste to delight you—even better than bread fresh-baked from wheat ground at the old mill on the creek. And a texture to melt in your mouth—as delicious and lacy and velvety of crumb as that of a blue-ribbon winning loaf at the State Fair.

A Mining Engineer Solves The Problem

Despite fortunes spent, no miller ever found, without losing precious vitamins and minerals, how to get rid of wheat's bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin." Then came this epochal and far-reaching discovery.

In the "flotation" process, which separates the dross from the gold of the hills, Theodore Earle, mining engineer and inventive genius, at last found the clue toward separating the bad from the gold of the plains.

First, scientists of a leading university set out to prove the new health values; milling and baking experts of the Continental Baking Company spent 6 months perfecting formulae; over $340,000 for new facilities. Then, came the development of Staff—a new bread better for health and flavor!

A Boon In Better Health, Better Nerves, Renewed Vitality

In England, to help combat the terrible nerve strain of blackout horror and correct the deficiencies of rationed food, all bread has been fortified artificially with Vitamin B₁. Over here, the strain increases daily. Food is not rationed, but millions of people in all walks of life, authorities on nutrition say, fail to get enough Vitamin B₁ alone for their best physical and mental health and vigor.

Actually, millions of people who now believe it their lot to feel "jittery," easily fagged out, may again experience the happiness of renewed vitality a more adequate diet provides.

No Other Bread In The World Like Staff

The only bread made under the Earle patents, you can tell Staff is a natural wheat bread by its golden wheat color. For Staff contains 4 times more natural Vitamin B₁; twice the natural minerals; and more protein than in many ordinary white breads.

Hence, for better meals, better health, better spirits, you are urged to serve Staff in your home. Note the amazing difference the good flavor of sun-ripened wheat makes. Get fresh Staff today—and "Eat Staff For Life." Serve it every day and take comfort in the knowledge that you have left no stone unturned to give your family this wonderful opportunity for better family-being that Staff affords.

Let Staff remain in the toaster about 50% longer than white bread for perfect toast.

Senates Keep Softball Record Clean With Rosenfeld Back

Abe Allows Standards Only 2 Hits; Kavokos And Sholl Girls Win

Senate Beer stands atop the Merchants Night Softball League as the only undefeated team following a game last night in which the Beers humbled the previously undefeated Standard Linen, 9-2, at Ballston Stadium.

High light of Senate's victory was the return of Abe Rosenfeld, ace pitcher. He limited the Linenmen to two safeties, one of which was a lengthy homer by Martin Green. In another league game International Business Machines swamped Manhattan Auto & Radio, 8-2.

At Washington Stadium Kavokos Grill slammed Clem Stralka's Service Station Redskins, 15-5, while Yellow Cab shut out May Hardward, 6-0, as Cy Stewart gave only four scattered hits. In the opening of a triple-header, Sholl's Cafeteria girls downed M. P. M. Market lasses, 5-4, scoring all their runs in the first inning.

Tonight at Washington Stadium Kavokos will attempt to lengthen its Capital City League lead taking on Garvin's Grill, the last-place club. This game, at 8 o'clock, will be followed by a National Night League game between Star Club and Christian Endeavor.

In a War Department League game yesterday, Undersecretary's Office swamped Quartermaster Corps Blues, 14-1.

Champ Mildred Burke Defending Mat Title In Tonight's Show

Elvira Snodgrass, Smokey Mountain (Tenn.) hillbilly, and Mildred Burke of Columbus, Ohio, recognize the world's feminine wrestling champion, grapple tonight at Turner's Arena.

Turner says he is offering Miss Burke $500 to risk her crown. Indications are that Turner will referee the bout, since Billy Wolfe, who manages Champion Burke, and Elmer Snodgrass, who manages and seconds Elvira, have requested the mat impresario to be the third man in the ring. Turner says if he changes his mind, Casey Berger will serve.

Miss Burke is unbeaten in more than 400 bouts and none other than Jack Dempsey calls her the "strongest gal for her weight in the world." She is a lightweight.

Elvira has won two straight locally, beating Gladys Gilliam and Betty La Verne. In hillbilly language, it's scuffin', not wrestling, according to Elvira. Husband Elmer also will wrestle, meeting Henry Kulkovich, and Elvira will second him.

Who Walks on Sand

by Rita Hansen

The story thus far: Matt Burgess is in Europe trying to locate his brother when the war breaks out, and for many months he is unable to get passage home. In Lisbon he is wandering around the docks when he meets a garrulous sailor, who insists that Matt have a drink with him. In the nearby Cafe of the Angels they take a booth and have their drink. Then the sailor leaves for a moment. While he is gone a beautiful Spanish girl enters the booth, knocks the glass from Matt's hand and with passionate urgency hustles him out of the place through a secret door leading to a small wharf. She insists that his drink was drugged and that the sailor planned to shanghai him, and she forces him into a rowboat and shoves off. As they are swallowed up by the mist over the harbor Matt's bewilderment dissolves in stuporous sleep.

CHAPTER III.
The police boat had slowly headed north, rounding the headlands and out of sight. There was a long silence interrupted only by dripping rain and Matt's relaxed face. Crouched in the middle of the rowboat, Carlita wiped sweat from his forehead. It was almost midnight when the dark form of the boat slipped out from under the low pier. Carlita sat up and stretched luxuriously and drank in the fresh, cool air. She sat up and stretched luxuriously and drank in the fresh, cool air. She sat up and stretched luxuriously and drank in the fresh, cool air.

Just in front of her was an old freighter, its riding lights bobbing gently over the smooth water. She could see clearly the lights of the other boats and far ahead the mouth of the harbor out to the open sea where she must go. There would be another patrol boat there, but with luck she could evade it. Skillfully she muffled the oarlocks with the strips of rags kept under the seat for that purpose.

To Matt, the trip through the harbor was a series of momentary pictures and long periods of blackness in between. He heard always the lapping of the water and felt the hard wood of the seat against his back. He wondered who he was to see the tall spars of a sailing vessel, black against the cloudy sky, rising above him. And again he saw Carlita's white back, her shoulder muscles rippling strongly as she pulled the oars. He wondered who she was to see the tall spars of a sailing vessel, black against the cloudy sky, rising above him. And again he saw Carlita's white back, her shoulder muscles rippling strongly as she pulled the oars.

Carlita went back to the terrace. "Miana" she called and when a dark servant girl appeared she said, "Tell my father to come here at his convenience." She spoke Spanish and Matt couldn't understand. She told him, "My father will be here soon to talk to you. He is very grateful for your gallant rescue of me."

Matt forced to laugh. "May I have a drink of water, please?" Matt said quietly. She poured it quickly and he said, "Now throw it in my face. I want to wake up." She held it out unsmilingly and he took it and drank it.

on smiling. "When you lost consciousness," she amended primly. "I could think of only one thing to do. I rowed out of the harbor and south to a private seaport of a friend of my father's. I begged him in the name of friendship to take us to Cartagena and he brought us here. In his airplane."

"Indeed!" Mat exclaimed. "That was handy, wasn't it? Look, maybe I'm too personal but what were you doing in a dive like the Cafe of the Angels if you've got a home like this and a wealthy father?"

"Oh, but I did not say my father was wealthy. He is only a poor merchant. And I—I ran away but now my father has taken me back, and he is eternally grateful to you for bringing me back."

"Let's not go into that again," Matt went back and sat on the couch. "My head hurts."

"Heard a soft shuffling step outside on the terrace. A thin brown-faced old man came into view, Carlita smiled at him as he spoke to Matt, then translated his words, saying, 'My father is a pure Castilian, he speaks only that language and French. Do you know any French?'"

"Un peu," Matt replied doubtfully. "J'etudie la langue." That wasn't quite right, he was sure, but evidently the old man understood, for he smiled crookedly and from then on they talked French.

His name was Jon San Porte and though he was dressed in ordinary business clothes except for a pair of silk sandals, Matt found himself doubting that he was Spanish. Something about the set of his eyes and the movements of his body suggested a darker race. He looked as though he would be more comfortable in loose robes than in the conservative black suit he wore. Carlita bore out his suspicion with her warm honey skin and black hair.

He listened as the old man expressed his joy and gratitude in stilted French phrases. He wanted Matt to accept the hospitality of his house and know that everything in it was his for as long as he wanted it. Also he suggested that when Matt felt like it, he would expect a visit from him in his office. And then he left Matt.

All that day Matt strolled aimlessly about the house and gardens and ate of the endless meals set before him. He didn't see Carlita after the morning interview, but he discovered he was virtually a prisoner. The wooden gate that led out to the road was barred, and even the front half of the house was walled off and sealed with an iron gate. He stroked the terrace and looked at Cartagena and the sea and the strange and wonderful plants in the garden. He had long ago ceased to worry. The whole thing was too far from reality to worry about.

The next morning when he awoke, half expecting to find himself in his Lisbon hotel room, he saw the maid, Miana, coming with his breakfast. Then Carlita came in, dressed to die in chalk white, that made her skin glow deeper than ever. He wondered if he should confront her with the small red mark he'd found on his left arm; just the sort of mark a hypodermic needle might make. He meant to ask her why she found it necessary to dope him. But he thought better of it and decided to play dumb. "Carlita, I'd like to see your father this morning and arrange to get back to Lisbon."

Her eyes were blue-gray in this light and very wide. "Burgess, you aren't going back to Lisbon, are you?"

"I was impatient with her. 'Of course, I can't stay here forever. I appreciate being here and all that, but well, I have other things to attend to.'" the first thing about being captain of a ship." "My boats are not shiny and my crews are native sailors, but you're an American. That's what I want. And you need not know as much as you think to captain one of my boats."

"But, Burgess!" She always called him that, seeming to prefer it to the harsher syllable of Matt. "You have no money or passport, or no identification at all. Remember Thompson stole it!"

"That was precisely what her father said this morning when Matt stood before him in his little office. 'It will be very hard for you to go anywhere or do anything in these times,' he remarked, squinting up at the young man. 'I am sorry for you.'"

Matt knew that this was true. He had got in touch with his father, he would be practically impossible to do anything. "But I must make an effort to regain them by going back to Lisbon," he answered the old man. And he knew the answers to that, too. He didn't even have the fare back to Lisbon and if the old man had some reason for wanting Matt to stay there, he certainly wouldn't lend it to him.

There was a silence while Matt's puzzled ideas turned around his head. Jon said, "I have given you my proposition straight out in the American manner. Now I want an answer."

On sudden impulse Matt gave him one. He said, "You've got yourself a captain, Jon San Porte." (Copyright, 1941, Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

King-Smith Group Stages 'Kind Lady' In Skillful Manner
The luster of the reputation that has been achieved by the students of the King-Smith Playhouse is dimmed not a whit by their finished production of "Kind Lady," which they are staging around the clock for the last time tonight, at the Rock Creek Park Playhouse.

The Edward Chodorov melodrama is in safe hands here and under the ministrations of Director Keiser Hill and these students of the drama it emerges a corking entertainment. "Kind Lady," adapted by Mr. Chodorov from a Hugh Walpole story, is one of those brooding affairs, the sort which might have Evelyn Williams or Robert Montgomery in the lead, and it approaches its melodramatic moments slowly and carefully on an attenuated tightrope of suspense.

When the "kind lady" of the piece brings a sinister artist with a hard-boiled story into the fashionable London home of a cup of tea, you know something will happen to her sooner or later. It doesn't happen for two acts, but Mr. Wolff

Bard in Swingtime For British Relief
"As We Like It," modernized swingtime version of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," written by students of the seventh and eighth grades at Gunston Hall, will be presented by them this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the school grounds as a benefit for Young America.

The same students presented the original "As You Like It" a few weeks ago and the present version was inspired by Jane Kless, who played Orlando. Her dream that they had played the comedy in modern swing style led to the actual writing and playing of it that way.

Celebrate Anniversary of Game Fishing Virginia West Shore Entices Anglers

A white marlin weighing 132 pounds was caught off the South Carolina coast last week. Had it been taken by an angler on rod and reel it would have been in a commanding position to draw down $250 in the Ruppert contest, but it was brought in by commercial fishing Blackfish Bank, some 30-odd miles offshore and from 75 fathoms down.

On the North Cuban coast commercial men handle both white and blue marlin in depths up to 400 fathoms, but we never heard of a like occurrence in North Atlantic waters.

Whether it means we will have an early run at Ocean City is something else, for little is known about these fish from the time they leave Southern waters until they are heard before they are taken in Ocean City. It might be that they follow the coast up, and again they might come straight in. The late Paul Townsend believed the latter. So does Capt. Bill Hatch. At Montauk the marlin always are heard east, possibly going back from whence they came.

In a magazine article Thomas Aiken tells the story of the catch of the first tarpon on rod and reel. Samuel H. Jones of Philadelphia had no intention of becoming a founding father of that hot spring day taken in 1881, but the 170-pound fish, taken on ordinary surf tackle, made him just that, for it was the start of big-game fishing in America. Since Tommy has received thousands of letters from every section of the country urging that the founding of big-game fishing be recognized this summer. He is hard at work on the idea. The necessary funds have been promised, arrangements have been made to hold recognition day in Miami on July 4 and awards will be made to outstanding individuals who have contributed to the phenomenal growth of sport fishing. Members of the Outdoor Writers' Association of America have been asked to make the nominations for these citations. Recognition day also will be the start of the 2d annual Miami summer fishing tournament, a competition that last season drew many entries from local anglers, anglers who knew, or were learning, that Southern Florida fishing in the summer is far better than that of winter.

The western shore of Virginia (Smith Point to Cape Henry) is one of the most productive fishing areas anywhere in the world. It is because of this section that the average catch per square mile of 11 tons for the 2400 square miles of the Chesapeake is possible, a catch that is four times greater than that made every year on the famed Georges Banks.

This stretch of Chesapeake Bay is one of the finest grounds for sports fishing along the whole seaboard, yet the number of local anglers fishing there is relatively small alongside of those who go to the beaches and inlets.

The runs usually are 30 days ahead of the fishing in upper bay waters, and as early as Wachapreague and Chincoteague. Blues, when they are running, are caught there late in May and early June. The cobia come with them and stay through August. As a matter of fact this area has a greater concentration of this fine sport fish than any other place in the United States. The largest of the species always have been caught here. A Washington angler is credited with catching the largest ever taken on hook and line. It weighed 102 pounds, but because the rod was broken it never has been recognized as an authentic catch.

Right now, according to Capt. Floyd Rollins of Messick, large hardhead are supplying the only fishing, but another few weeks will change that. Capt. Rollins also reports a few blues being taken in the nets, but of the same size as those of which we hear in North Carolina waters—summer blues.

From Smith Point to Old Point Comfort and from Willoughby Point to Cape Henry, reached by Route 17, fishing towns are to be found every few miles.

Maybe, Mr. Capra, Each Man Should Write Own Ending

That Might Help Solve Your Problem Of Providing a Logical Climax For 'Meet John Doe'

By JAY CARMODY.

An open letter to Frank Capra: Dear Mr. Capra: The fact that you have made four endings for your picture, "Meet John Doe," clearly indicates that you came up against a stone wall harder than the pavement John landed on in his suicidal leap in the first ending. It's tough trying to find the answer to life, isn't it? The one you live or the one you create for the screen?

However, somewhat belatedly because we had to cover Orson Welles' first picture, we got around to seeing "Meet John Doe" only last night.

Not to harass you—as people always say when the hero and heroine are about to harass a man—we did not like the ending. It is the one, in case you are not sure, which the Earle is showing, in which all the principals gather on the tower of City Hall and ends with John carrying Miss Stanwyck to the smiling saits so every one can live happily ever after. It looked like hokum to us, a concession to the tradition which used to show the hero and heroine walking toward the setting sun. (Why never the rising sun?)

Don't jump to the conclusion, Mr. C., that we are a sentimentalist trying to veneer himself with realism, or that we believe in the inevitably tragic destiny of idealists such as John. We object to that ending on the ground of its, to us, insincerity. We simply don't believe it. What is more, we doubt that even such skilled performers as Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan, and such semi-skilled ones as Miss Stanwyck and Edward Arnold believe it either. They did not play that way, even under your fine direction, although up to the point of that strange mass meeting, they were invariably convincing.

We do not insist gruesomely that John Doe end up as a pulp on the pavement in front of City Hall although that is the agreement he makes when he becomes John Doe—and which might be argued as the only logical truth of the whole fiction on which your picture is based.

What do we insist, then? Well, if you can't end your picture satisfactorily, we would not assume that we could. But there is a way by which it could be left to every one to end it for himself. Why strive for definiteness when there apparently is no such thing? Why not, instead, end it with John having deposited his letter of explanation, shown in silhouette against the City Hall tower door leading out onto the balcony? With the preceding shots showing all the others rushing to the spot to persuade him not to jump?

You might demur that no one then would ever know. We would know the opposite, or the two deduced conclusions might even be reversed.

The point is that the picture would have had an ending, each person's private ending.

The indefinite ending is not disastrous to a picture. You will remember that "Gone With the Wind" concluded in such a way that every one could decide for himself whether Rhett really meant he didn't give a "damn" what happened to Scarlett.

In case you'd like to know, we thought he did, but that it made him rather a fool.

P. S. We forgot to say that, apart from the ending, we thought "Meet John Doe" an excellent piece of entertainment.

Instead of being plagued by that irritating "who's that?" in connection with the skilled lady who impersonates Vivien Leigh's mother in "That Hamilton Woman," know right now that it is Sarah Allgood. Miss Allgood's brilliance is an old and lusty story in the theater, but it took Hollywood longer to discover her than it will take to make actresses out of some of its current glamour girls. No, that's an exaggeration, for Hollywood did finally discover Miss Allgood via Alexander Korda, who knew her in her Dublin Abbey Theater and London days.

To stand out in a bit part in a picture which is so brightly accented by Miss Leigh's loveliness and her rightness as a woman in love—or an actress playing a woman in love—is something of a feat. Miss Allgood not only does that, but does it so effortlessly that an impressed Hollywood is looking around for enough work to keep her away from Broadway.

It might even work out that way, but, happily, Miss Allgood is one of those devotees of the stage who is unlikely to be mesmerized by the lotus land life which keeps so many talented players 3,000 miles away from New York and Washington.

CAUSE OF IT ALL—It's the ire of Paulette Goddard which inspires a radio program called the "Pot o' Gold," in the film called "Pot o' Gold," opening today at Loew's Capitol.

There's a New Greta Garbo Emerging These Days

She's Even Been Seen in Night Clubs, And Just the Other Day Challenged Bob Taylor to a Race—and Won!

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

Greta Garbo... Swedish enigma, spinster, star... Aged 35, now starting her 15th year in pictures... Three years ago she was listed as "poison at the box office" by independent exhibitors... She proved them wrong with "Ninotchka," but found her bosses harder to convince. They allowed 18 months to elapse between that film and her present offering (untitled) now before the camera, with Melvyn Douglas co-starred. The picture is a modern streamlined version of an old German movie titled "Twin Sisters." Greta plays both parts. It's a comedy, and Greta gets the best wardrobe yet of her career... Her romantic life she still prefers slacks, a floppy hat and heelless sandals. Her romantic life... She is not as wealthy as she would be if the bank in which she had $400,000 had not crashed in the pre-Roosevelt era... Her mother, brother and sister-in-law now live in Hollywood, which is far from Sweden, where Greta was born plain Gustafsson in Stockholm and where she began her working life as a barber's assistant.

Her temperament... Is her silence shyness or smartness?... When Miss Garbo first came to Hollywood with Director Maurice Stiller, she was a big girl who enjoyed a five-course meal, rummaging through the shops on Hollywood boulevard, posing with lions for publicity pictures and talking to any one who wanted to talk to her. But mostly she was ignored by the Metro biggies. They tell the story about the early days when Nick Schenck was in the same elevator with Garbo. The publicity man with the actress wanted to introduce them. But Schenck said he was too busy. Greta had herself a beautiful revenge by refusing all contacts with her Metro chiefs when she was famous. Even Louis B. Mayer, who pays her $250,000 a picture, cannot contact her directly.

Lately she has dropped some of the bars of her seclusion... She was at Chasen's the other evening with Lady Mendel... She saw the inside of several New York night clubs recently... She is frequently seen at the local Saks, debutante shop—although when she wears them is a mystery... A crowd of tourists saw Greta the other day in a deep huddle with George Cukor, her present director. There were several cases of fainting when Greta waved to them... The other day she challenged Robert Taylor to a race on the lot—and beat him by several yards! Greta has applied for American citizenship. And no longer do we hear the famous words, "I thank I go home." She is building her first home in Hollywood. There will be a tennis court (she is fairly proficient at tennis) a swimming pool and a secluded spot for her favorite pastime—sun bathing... Her closest woman friend is still Salka Viertel, who advises her and writes her scripts... Edmund Goulding is closer to Greta than any man here, always excepting her current romance. She frequently stays at Goulding's Palm Springs estate.

Her dressing room at Metro is in white upholstery with bleached wood. The following is a typical one-day, non-protein Garbo diet: Breakfast—Water, fruit. Lunch—Celery, lettuce (no dressing). Mid-afternoon—Pineapple juice, water. Dinner—Rare roast beef or lamb, one vegetable, salad. She can have it. (Released by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. "Those cousins don't look much alike, do they?" remarked Jenny Wren, as she poked her head out of her house to gossip with Peter Rabbit.

"What cousins?" demanded Peter, staring all about very hard. "Those two sitting on the fence over there. Where are your eyes, Peter?" replied Jenny rather sharply.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, Peter," exclaimed Jenny Wren. "Tut, tut, tut, tut. Who told you any such nonsense as that? Of course they are related. They are cousins. I thought everybody knew that. They belong to the same family as Brownie the Trush and all the other trushes. That makes them all cousins."

"What?" exclaimed Peter, looking as if he didn't believe a word of what Jenny Wren had said. Jenny repeated what she had said, and still Peter looked doubtful. Then Jenny lost her temper, a thing she does very easily.

"Tut, tut, tut, tut, Peter," exclaimed Jenny Wren. "Tut, tut, tut, tut. Who told you any such nonsense as that? Of course they are related. They are cousins. I thought everybody knew that. They belong to the same family as Brownie the Trush and all the other trushes. That makes them all cousins."

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.

An Old Problem
We think we know," write Mr. and Mrs. J. W. T. of Hartford, Conn., "where the mistake took place in bidding this hand. But we'd like to make sure about it: South, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

South West North East
14 Pass INT Pass
24 Pass Pass Pass
With both black kings in favorable position, we made 11 tricks at a contract of only two spades! But surely we should have been at game if all we needed was one out of two fineses.

The bidding:
South West North East
24 Pass Pass Pass

"We agreed, after the hand had been played, that the South hand is worth a raise of four spades if North raises to two spades instead of bidding one no-trump. But, and this is what we want to make sure of, is the North hand worth a raise to two spades?"

Yes, the North hand is worth a raise to two spades—and our readers have put their finger right on the sore spot of the bidding. This is an old problem; we receive a few letters on just this matter every week—year in and year out. The main point is that a simple raise does not guarantee any more strength than a response of one no-trump; it just shows a different type of hand.

If you forgot all you know about bidding systems you would have only one thought, holding the North hand after a spade bid by South. That thought would be: This hand ought to be played at spades. And if you decided to make any bid at all, you would raise spades.

And to that extent, at least, our system conforms to elementary logic. We don't believe in bidding no-trump when we really want to raise spades. Make the simple, logical bid and forget about artificial requirements.

Yesterday you were Howard Schenken's partner and, with neither side vulnerable, you held:
A J 9 3
K 10 4
K 5

Schenken Jacoby You Maier
17 Pass 14 Pass
20 Pass 37 Pass
3NT Pass (3) Pass

Answer—Pass. You have indicated a strong preference for hearts or diamonds, but your partner apparently doesn't want to play the hand at hearts. Since you have told your story, you must trust to his judgment.

Score 100 per cent for pass, zero for any other bid.
Question No. 766.
Today you hold the same hand, but the bidding is different:
Schenken Jacoby You Maier
10 Pass 14 Pass
24 Pass (3) Pass

What do you bid? (Answer to-morrow.)

Don't Take My Word for It!

By FRANK COLBY.

Fewer—Less
This week's slip of the tongue: "He had no less than 10 pairs of shoes." No. Do not use less in referring to numbers. Better say: He had no fewer than 10 pairs of shoes.

Wrong: "He has less responsibilities than me." There are two mistakes here. Right: He has fewer responsibilities than I (have).

Wrong: "He is the less honest of the three." Right: He is the least honest of the three.

Wrong: "He is less big than me." Right: He is smaller than I (am).

How to use the word correctly: It took less time than I thought. This is of less value as it grows old. The charge was less than $50. He has fewer subjects this semester.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER—Dense Bamboo Thickets in Burma

Yesterday I spoke of a strange type of boat in Burma, a craft moved by "leg power."

Another odd kind of Burmese boat is fitted with long-handled oars. The oars are so long that they cross each other in the boat. The man who is rowing holds the right-side oar in his left hand, and the left-side oar in his right.

Boats which are handled with the crossed oars are sampans, or house-boats. They are very much like the sampans of China.

Among the rivers of Burma is the Irrawaddy. It runs for 1,300 miles, from the mountains in the northern part of the country down to the Bay of Bengal. One of the cities on its banks is Mandalay, which was made famous through a poem written by Kipling.

Burma is a big country, with about a quarter of a million square miles. The population is close to 16,000,000. A great deal of the country is covered with forests and jungles. The government has set aside 30,000 square miles as a forest reserve. In the jungles there are dense bamboo thickets. The bamboo stalks grow so closely together, in some parts, that a person could not push his way through them. The Wabo bamboo in Burma has stalks as much as 10 inches thick, and they reach a height as great as 150 feet. That is rather tall for a plant which is classed as a grass! Among the wild animals are tigers, bears, leopards, apes and monkeys. The rhino and the elephant also roam the land.

Axis Deer (Cervus axis)

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.
In India and Ceylon, the axis deer or chital is considered the most handsome member of its tribe, and it is the most characteristic mammal of India. Its dappled coat is the reason for its second common name.

During the heat of the day, the deer is enjoying a quiet time in the dense thickets, for it dislikes publicity extremely, being of a shy and retiring disposition. Soon after sunrise the animals—and there are always large numbers of them together—seek retirement in the way of tender herbage. Rather methodical by nature, a drink of cool water is enjoyed between 8 and 10 in the morning. After resting for several hours, a light supper is eaten before sunset.

Scientists acquainted with the coloration of this deer's coat say that some are more beautifully colored than others; the ground color of light brown has a deeper sheen, the white spots purer and arranged in longitudinal lines. The head and neck are a uniform brown, and a black line is continuous from the nape of the neck to the tip of the tail. The tail is a typical deer appendage, though it is relatively long, thin and pointed. The rather large ears are lined with white; the chin and upper part of the throat are also white. There is no evidence of any mane on this deer. The average length of the antlers of the larger members in this species is about 30 inches and typically three-tined.

In the northern part of India, the wedding takes place during the winter. The shedding of the antlers apparently depends upon the range of the individuals, since bucks have been seen with fully developed antlers at all times of the year. Fawns, too, have been seen at all seasons. As we have said, the axis deer are sociably inclined. Contrary to the general belief, a brightly clad creature usually finds it important to keep out of the limelight, to prevent instant recognition. These animals travel about in herds of a hundred or more, because while an individual would be very conspicuous if seen in an open glade, yet in the woods the beautiful coat harmonizes perfectly with the colorings of the tree bark, dead leaves and grass, and the flecks of white with the patches of sunlight on the leafy branches. Added to this combination, an almost noiseless gait, by which these deer move through the forest, makes it all but impossible to find them at first.

As a rule, an ancient and honored stag heads a group of as many as 30 or sometimes only a small party of around 10. It is he who gives the shrill bark of notification of the presence of a foe. Hunters in search for tigers have been led, through this note of fear, to the animal they were seeking.

During March, April and May,

these deer are hunted either on foot or shot from the howda of an elephant. Great numbers have been found when searching parties have gone out for tigers. The cry of the stag is a weird, moaning sort of bellow, usually heard at night. It is interesting to note that in the Pliocene formations of Southern France remains of deer resembling the axis are

Assistant Air Attache At Berlin Transferred

Lt. Col. Arthur W. Vanaman yesterday was ordered relieved from duty in Berlin, where he has been Assistant Military Attache for Air. He was expected to leave Berlin about June 1 and will return to Washington for duty temporarily with the Chief of the Air Corps. No reason was given for his transfer.

Capt. Gordon K. Cusack, Field Artillery, also was relieved at the United States Military Academy and ordered to Hawaii.

Lt. Philip S. Wagner, Medical Corps officer on duty at Fort Belvoir, Va., received orders assigning him to duty with the selective service system in Washington.

The Capital Hiking Club on Sunday will follow an 8-mile trail through Cedarville State Forest, Maryland. The party will visit such historic places as Mrs. Surratt's house, St. Paul's Church and Bran-dywine Lookout Tower. Bob Shoemaker will be leader. Buses will leave the city at 9 a.m. and return in the afternoon.

Gold Watch Is Presented Retired Census Aide

Harvey J. Zimmerman, former chief statistician of the cotton and oils division of the Census Bureau, who retired about seven months ago after 40 years in the Government service, received a gold watch yesterday from his former associates in the bureau. Dr. Vergil Reed, acting census director, made the presentation.

Approximately 100 census employees attended the ceremonies, held at the Commerce Department Building. William L. Austin, former director, who joined the bureau about the same time as Mr. Zimmerman, told of some of his earlier experiences in the bureau.
