BACKGROUND-

Germany invaded Russia nearly two weeks ago in violation of non-aggression pact signed in August, 1939, an event which laid the ground for the outbreak of war the following month. Germany joined by Finland, Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia in campaign. Thrusts being made into rich Ukraine, toward Moscow, up the Baltic coast and toward Soviet Arctic port of Murmansk.

Russia's high command today reported a vast slaughter of German troops in the second day of fighting along the bloody Berezina River, 400 miles west of Moscow, with "thousands of German dead, blazing tanks and enemy aircraft" littering the battlefield.

The Red Army declared that the three main German offensives into the U.S.S.R. had now been checked by a defensive blitzkrieg, and that in one sector 160 Nazi tanks had been destroyed.

In the Minsk area, on the central front, the Berlin radio reported that Soviet troops failed in an attempt to smash through a Nazi encirclement and that 20,000 Russians had been captured. Countering official German claims that the backbone of the

Threat to Moscow Made in Two Sectors.

The main German threat against Moscow apparently centered in alternative blows at Borisov, 40 miles northeast of Minsk on the road to the Soviet capital, and at Bobruisk.

Further north, in the Dvinsk sector of Latvia, the Russians reported they had taken up new positions after engaging German columns which crossed the Dvina River at two points.

The question of the Army's future size was momentarily obscured by the rush of highly critical congressional reaction to the request, but Young, 29, colored, 632 Second street subjects were very closely linked. The Army's present strength is about 1,400,000 men. If the bulk of those men are to be kept on duty, Regulars recruited and the scheduled 900,000 trainees inducted in the next year, the land forces would be close to 2,800,000—the goal the Army has in mind for the first expansion, if one is deemed necessary because of world conditions. Equipment is being manufactured for an Army of that size.

Tempest in Capitol. Regardless of its ultimate objectives, yesterday's request touched off wordy tempest on Capitol Hill, where most of the legislators to volunteer comment were openly hostile to granting the power asked. Generally, congressional reaction followed two lines. Some rejected the idea of extending the tour of service on the ground that it would lized or inducted with the understanding that they would be released after one year of service. The other attack centered on the request for permission to use Guardsmen or trainees outside of the hemisphere. Critics of the adadded, however, that this was due ministration's foreign policy viewed entirely to the shortage of shipping it as another step toward eventual United States participation in the war, and Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana charged the administration planned to use American troops to occupy Iceland.

A Fourth of July Reminder:

There Is Still Taxation Without Representation in the United States of America!

Washington Voteless Inhabitants Are as Voiceless in , the Nation's Affairs as Were the Colonists in the British Parliament Prior to the Declaration of Independence!

One hundred and sixty-five years ago this Fourth of July the Thirteen Original Colonies, resentful of taxation without representation, declared their independence of Great Britain.

TODAY-1941, A. D.-more than a century and a half later, here at the seat of the Federal Government, the same obnoxious, undemocratic situation prevails, which produced the War of the Revolution. The injustice of this totalitarian situation is emphasized in the present "Unlimited Emergency" and National Defense Program, with the conscription of men for military service, the expenditure of vast sums of money, mounting public debt and rapidly increasing Federal taxes. Clearly, these Americans of the District of Columbia "are, and of right ought to be" entitled to voting participation in the national government which taxes them, makes all laws for them and sends them to war, to bleed and perhaps to die.

Washingtonians, disfranchised and de-Americanized, demand a voice in the levying of the taxes they must pay, in the making of the laws they must obey and in declaring the wars in which they will

Addressing the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at a Fourth of July celebration at Old Union Engine House, Mr. Horton said: "We entered the war in 1917 to defend ourselves. We are preparing at this moment to defend ourselves again."

"The difference between the threat of 1917 and today is one of degree alone," he added. "Today we face the possibility of meeting a stronger, more ruthless and unconscionable antagonist than has stolen a continent for many centuries.

Mr. Horton sharply criticized those who have been attacking policies of the administration. He took exception to those who claim the United States has "no interest" in the conflict between Germany and Russia. those who say "let the Nazis destroy the Communists or vice versa.' This point of view he branded as "fallacious.

"The conquest of Russian wheat fields and Russian oil wells," said the speaker, "would add immeasurably to the strength of the German war effort. * * * Every milestone that Hitler expands his domination is a link in the chain with which he would encircle us. # U. S. Just Beginning To Get Adequate Anti-Aircraft Guns

Army Has Only Four 90-Millimeter Guns Used In Europe Now

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON. Resting smugly behind its ocean barriers, the United States has become the most backward of all major nations in its anti-aircraft defenses and only now is beginning to get deliveries of guns which have not been outranged for years by those of both the Allied and Axis powers

The new anti-aircraft gun promost closely guarded of War Department military secrets. It actually is more difficult to get reliable figures of modern anti-aircraft gun strength of the regiment, therefore, performances and production than is 12 3-inch guns, 24 37-millimeter it is to get similar statistics concerning warplanes.

Behind the secrecy, however, there is much activity in both the production and research fields to make good the very serious defi- able will be handled by the same ciencies which have resulted frfom the long-standing national complacency and shortsightedness concerning the development of ground States it is probable that much of defense against air attack.

The rub is that, although thousands of the 90-millimeter guns are on order, only four of them actually have been delivered. These four "pilot" models have made possible the creation for service test purposes of a full battery of 90-millimeter guns. Not Much Hope This Year. There is not much hope of great improvement in the American antiaircraft gun situation this year. The 90-millimeter gun is not expected to reach quantity production for another year. The Army would like to have 6,200 or more 37-millimeter automatic anti-aircraft cannon, chiefly for use agailnst aireraft operating at low and medium altitudes, but the current production rate is only about 20 a month. Quantity production of 20-millimeter guns, most of which probably will be used in airplanes, will not be reached before the end of this January 1, 1942, was to be 4.616. year, although they have been in use for more than a year abroad. At the time of Munich, however, there were fewer than 300 antiaircraft guns in the whole of the United States, as compared with more than 900 at that time installed within the defenses of London alone.

Army anti-aircraft defense guns are operated by anti-aircraft regiments of the Coast Artillery Corps. Since home defense is the primary objective of the National Guard, the Guard also is strong in antiaircraft gun regiments. The anti-aircraft regiment at

A Reminder

As another holiday marking the signing of the Declaration of Independence rolls around, Washingtonians join whole-heartedly with other proud citizens of the Republic in celebrating the historic act by which this Nation cast off the yoke of Old World tyranny and dedicated itself to the cause of liberty and justice for all.

But while Washingtonians patriotically glory in the democratic freedoms which stand out in such striking contrast to the terroristic bondage which prevails in so much of the world today, their hearts, withal, are sorely troubled. Their fellow citizens throughout the fortyeight States should not forget that Washingtonians are in the anomalous position of being American citizens who are not permitted to share in some of the most precious liberties which the founders of the Nation sought to guarantee to every citizen of the United States. Residents of the District of Columbia cannot but feel indignant that while all other citizens enjoy the rights which are the assured heritage of Americans, Washingtonians are deprived of a voice in the Government which taxes them, which makes laws for them and which sends their sons to war.

Something can and must be done to correct this grave, un-American injustice. What can and must be done about it is outlined in the article "A Fourth of July Reminder," on Page A-3 of today's Star. Every member of Congress, every believer in the principles of democracy laid down 165 years ago at Philadelphia, should read this "reminder" that, despite the Declaration of Independence, taxation without representation still survives in the Capital of the Nation.

Army Training

The arguments in support of the proposal by General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, for an extension of the training period for selective service men, Reservists and the National Guard are most per-

It has been shown by experience, including the recent maneuvers in Tennessee, that only relatively slight progress has been made toward preparing the Army for the test of war, and the attainment of that degree of preparation is the basic purpose underlying our entire national defense effort. The maneuvers, according to observers at the scene, revealed that the soldiers are well advanced in physical conditioning, but that in other respects, such as skill in the use of modern weapons, teamwork and command, a great deal remains to be done.

And it is doubtful if these shortcomings can be corrected during the balance of the training year. That, at least, is the belief of General Marshall, and his opinion is entitled to the highest respect.

It is important to bear in mind that the men now in training would be called for service in event of war. In any conflict in the near future they would have to serve as the backbone of the Army, and if they should be returned to civilian life before their training is completed they would have to resume their training after the beginning of hostilities. If that is to be our course, it means that we must gamble on being given the time in which to perfect a half-trained Army after war has started. Certainly, the experience of the past two years argues most strongly against the taking of such a risk. In adopting the Selective Service Act and kindred legislation we set out to protect the Nation by raising, equipping and training an Army in advance of war. We assumed, and nothing has occurred to invalidate the assumption, that we would have but little time in which to take this precaution. If anything, the time is much shorter now, and nothing should be permitted to interfere with the attainment of our original objective.

General Marshall's other recommendation-that geographical restrictions on the use of selectees and guardsmen be lifted-turns upon a more fundamental question of national policy. But it is to be hoped that Congress, should a formal request for legislation embracing this proposal be submitted, will give most earnest consideration to the fact that General Marshall, as chief of staff, is in the best possible position troops would make for the perfection | five years old, Governor O'Daniel | thing.

of the national defense in what he calls "the most efficient manner," that fact alone should carry great weight with Congress. In examining these proposals against the background of domestic policy, we can ill afford to close our eyes to the fate which has overtaken other nations that lost touch with reality in preparing their defenses.

This Fourth of July The Declaration of Independence,

accepted by the Representatives of the United States of America in General Congress Assembled, July 4, 1776, was the answer of the New World to the challenge of tyranny in the Old. Careful reading of the text shows that the document is, in effect, the announcement of an intention upon the part of "these colonies" to resist "abuses and usurpations" designed to "reduce them under absolute despotism." The delegates of the thirteen different communities joined in an indictment of King George III and the Parliament of Great Britain before Christendom. A lengthy bill of complaint was filed against "a form of government" which had become "destructive" of "certain inalienable rights" including "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

With reference to the principles affirmed in the phrases last quoted, it is necessary to remember that the authors of the Declaration were writing against a background established by social philosophers well known on both sides of the Atlantic. Those teachers-John Locke most notably-had set forth a new concept of the purpose of organized society. It was their doctrine that the "consent of the governed" was an essential requirement for any tolerable system of administration. The business of the managers of public affairs. they insisted, was the insuring to individual citizens of those privileges with which "they are endowed by their Creator." Since the sovereign lord of England and his legislature had been guilty of "repeated injuries" not merely to the general welfare of the colonial people but also to that theory of neighborly association under which they desired to live, they proclaimed their absolution from "all allegiance" to the British

But the Declaration is something more than an advertisement of a separation from the mother country. It is likewise a contract between and among the signatory States "to provide new guards for their future security." One of their primary objectives is that of "safety." King George, it specifically is explained, was "waging war against us." There was no question, then, that recourse to arms would follow the publication of the revolutionary covenant. Indeed, the inevitable struggle had been in progress ever since the battles of Lexington and Concord in April of the previous year. Congress simply confirmed the prevailing strife, condemning especially the "circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages" with which it was waged by "a prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant."

Read in the light of this Fourth of July, the Declaration of Independence is seen to be possessed of an applicability which might be lacking in less critical times. Thoughtful Americans will find in the precious charter of their liberty a solemn obligation for themselves in the emergency which now, as in 1776, prevails. Humanity everywhere in the Eastern Hemisphere is in chains. A modern despotism unguessed by the founders of the United States affronts "the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God." The danger to democratic civilization surpasses every previous threat in its compelling magnitude. Notice of the enmity of a gangster power has been formally broadcast That force has decreed the destruction of individual integrity. It was in response to such a program of criminal oppression that the immortal Signers joined to "mutually pledge"-"our Lives, our Fortunes and our Sacred Honor."

New Texas Senator

In the closest senatorial contest in Texas history, Governor W. Lee O'Daniel appears to have won the race for United States Senator. Representative Lyndon Johnson, who claimed the support of the President and campaigned on a "Roosevelt and unity" platform, held a substantial lead in the earlier returns, but Governor O'Daniel moved slightly ahead in the final tabulations.

A former flour salesman, who came to Texas about a decade ago from Kansas, Governor O'Daniel is a comparative newcomer in the politics of the Lone Star State. Employing a band of "hillbilly" musicians, he used the radio with notable success in selling his flour. The program and its music enjoyed great popularity and when Mr. O'Daniel asked one day whether the people wanted him to be a candidate for Governor, he received about 50,-000 telegrams and letters urging him to run.

With his hillbilly band playing an important role, he campaigned in 1938 as a businessman candidate, easily winning the election. After his inauguration, he began regular Sunday morning broadcasts from the Executive Mansion. These programs included talks by the Governor, and music from a string orchestra. Though critics charged that he had failed to carry out some of his camto understand the requirements of | paign promises, notably the pledge | protected on the flanks by vicious

The results of the election Saturday show that Governor O'Daniel still has a large following among the masses of the voters in his State. To what extent his successes have been due to the use of "mountain music," and his mastery of radio technique, and to what extent to political ability, is not altogether clear. A colorful figure, he now enters the national political arena as the sixth Senator to be elected by Texas since the turn of the century.

Calling Pan-America

Indirectly, yet unmistakably, our Government has called upon the twenty sister republics of the Americas for united action, with special reference to the use of their air and naval bases, in case the United States is involved in war with the Axis

This important step took the form of an indorsement by the State Department of a suggestion by the government of Uruguay urging upon its Latin American neighbors "positive implementation of the policy of hemisphere solidarity." The Uruguayan circular note, issued a fortnight ago, suggested a formula under which any Western Hemisphere nation warring with a country outside the hemisphere "in defense of the interests of democracy" would not be considered a belligerent. This formula would supersede the ordinary rules of neutrality, under which those Latin American nations which did not themselves follow us in declaring war against the Axis would be obliged to debar our warships and planes from the use of their ports and air bases. That would place us at a distinct disadvantage in protecting the Western Hemisphere below the Panama Canal.

It is interesting to note that Uruguay made a similar suggestion in the first World War, though it was not then generally adopted. Uruguay, however, placed its port facilities at our disposal. Uruguay thus has a consistent record of friendliness to the United States and appreciation of hemisphere solidarity.

The warmest indorsement of Uruguay's proposal in Latin America to date has come from Brazil, another of our traditional friends. In an official statement, Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, said: "We must help each other when trouble comes, or the work of years to accomplish the Americas' unity will be wasted. * * * The nations of the continent find concerted action imperative to safeguard their freedom and insure the peace they preach."

The most reserved answer received to Uruguay's circular note was that of Argentina. The reply indicated that Argentina did not fully accept the proposed formula and would continue to adhere to a policy of strict neutrality. This is in line with Argentina's attitude, which has tended to be strongly nationalist and 'isolationist" where effective Pan-American action is concerned. The acting President, Dr. Ramon Castillo, is known to be of this mind.

However, there is a strong body of Argentine public opinion which favors Pan-American solidarity and is strongly anti-Axis. Former President Justo, one of the country's most astute and influential political figures, is reportedly urging the adoption of such a policy. The general trend in Latin America seems clearly in that direction.

Our Government is leaving no stone unturned to promote Pan-American co-operation. In his note to Uruguay, Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles stressed the practical assistance furnished Latin American nations under our leaselend law on a "stupendous scale," including not only economic and financial aid but also the use of naval and air bases acquired by our Government from Great Britain and Denmark. He likewise called attention to the fact that a clause in our Neutrality Act exempts American republics from the law's restrictions when they are engaged in war against a non-American nation. The United States Government is thus already fulfilling both the letter and the spirit of the policy which it is asking our sister republics to adopt.

A Europe in America

The average American lake teems with a variety of life, all engaged in the overcrowded profession of doing the best they can for themselves. In sheer point of numbers the animalculae come first, but they lead a harried life. Totally unarmed, they become easy prey even to insects which, though partially armed, fare not much better, being themselves prey to such relatively insignificant foes as tadpoles and minnows. But before they get to first base, millions of tadpoles and minnows are gobbled up by small perch, bass or pickerel-that is, if the small perch, bass or pickerel have been able to escape absorption by larger members of the same gang. The entire social system of the lake is remarkably like that of Europe.

The boss is sure to be some old, wily, evil-eyed snapping turtle and associates of the superior race. Slowly, secretly, he grows in power, size and armament, preying on the feebler while he is weak himself and patiently awaiting the day when he can take anything in the lake. The other inhabitants, who easily could have broken him when he was a mere egg, find it a tough task when he is thoroughly mechanized, coated with impenetrable armor, the Army. If he believes that full to provide thirty-dollar-a-month freedom in the use of all classes of pensions for all Texans over sixty- that can cut through almost any-

Chinese Writer Argues Peace Could Be Won by Drive On Germany and Japan

To the Editor of The Star:

The Russo-German war takes the enemies of Hitler rather unexpectedly, in the light of the fact that they had not made any mutual arrangements toward co-operation in anticipation of such an emergency. The British Prime Minister and the American President have avowed to give every possible aid to Russia. But what aids can be given is a question puzzling to many. The discussion so far seems' to have led only to the conclusion that effective aid in the form of sinews of war will reach Russia only if she can withstand the attack long enough.

There is, however, another question that is even more puzzling and really should be considered first of all; i. e., what are England and America actually thinking of this war and how far are they prepared to go in the matter of aiding Russia? If the democratic countries can see in this new field of war a significance of life and death to themselves, they certainly will do their best and utmost to aid Russia. And if they are decided to so so, they certainly will be able to discover the necessary ways and means. The outstanding fact of the eastern war is, after all, that there now is a chance of a quick defeat of Hitlerism, however slim the chance may be. After the tragedy of France, the Red Army is the only army in the whole world that is a match for the Nazi land force. Even if the Red Army is able to do no more than drag the clay feet of Nazidom into the mud of the steppes, as the Chinese Army has done to the Japanese, England will be saved from a Nazi invasion and the sons of America will be preserved from shedding their blood at home or on the European continent fighting Hitlerism. On the other hand, if Russia falls and Hitler thereby becomes the overlord of Eurasia, the invasion of Britain is as certain as death and the least America can expect is a long struggle. One can deny the fate of Russia to be the fate of the democracies, but it certainly needs no prophet to tell that the outcome of the war will shape the destiny of the whole world in general and that of the democracies in

A well-known commentator has stated that Uncle Sam can help European Russia only by speeding supplies to Britain and can help Asiatic Russia by keeping her Pacific Coast unmolested by Japan. But the United States will be able to do more than that if she chooses, for she can join the conflict right now or send all the available planes in her services to Britain by way of the Atlantic and to Russia by way of China. It is only in the interest of the United States that she should forestall Hitler at every turn. Quite a number of Americans already have suggested that their country enter the war at

The United States has had too much of her own interests on her mind; she also thinks too much of the present and material well-being. It is perhaps needless to recall on how many occasions United States leaders have declared to their people that it is for their own interest that Britain and China should be aided. Let us reflect upon what Mencius. the second greatest Chinese sage, replied to an ancient ruler who asked him what he would suggest for the interest of that state. So replied Mencius, "Why shall you. Sir mention 'interest'? If every one cares only for his own interest, the country will never be at peace. The only things worth while are the principles of humanity and justice." The Chinese have always admired the Americans for their firmness in principle

Returning to the subject of forestalling a Japanese move against Asiatic Russia. the one effective way is to help the Chinese start counteroffensives on all fronts against the Japanese right now. If the hands of the Japanese are bound to the China war, they certainly will not be able to help themselves freely either in the north or in the south. A general offensive can be started against the Japanese as soon as England will allow part of her air force to volunteer in the Chinese Army or if hundreds of American fliers will arrive in Chungking with their planes.

Whether Britain and America think that a showdown with the Japanese in Asia will come some day, or they presume the so-called moderates (no one knows how moderate they are) in Japan can gain the upper hand by the force of circumstances, now is the time for the democracies to force the issue. This is the opportunity (which may last only for three months and may never come again) for the democracies to use all their air power as well as naval forces against Germany and Japan with hope of greatest results which may well mean the rapid defeat of totalitarianism and world peace for our generation as well as for our children and children's chil-Y. #### Proposes War Against Germany To "Shake" Hitler Off "Tightrope."

To the Editor of The Star: To be material-minded in peacetime is deplorable; to be material-minded in wartime is fatal. Is America so material-minded, so pre-occupied with the material aid she is sending the Allies, that she is blind to that incomparably greater aid of the moral sort which she instantaneously could give by a worldresounding declaration of war against the government that sank the Robin Moor and promises to sink as many other ships as her torpedoes can strike?

Have we forgotten how many nations followed us in declaring war against Germany in 1917? And how soon thereafter German morale cracked and crumbled, so that only a minor fraction of our draftees saw even short service at the front? Is it not possible for us to understand that it was our staggering shock to German morale and the corresponding great strengthening of Allied morale that brought victory to freedom then and could do the same today?

Hitler is walking a veritable tightrope. America easily could give that rope such a shake as would send Hitler tumbling into oblivion.

At first I thought something was after the bird, as she was opening her wings alternately, turning and twisting in the foliage, darting back and forth like a shuttle; presently she flew up to the well arm and began to dry herself. Soon the male came and went through the same maneuvers, and was joined by the female who again sponged herself with the wet and dripping leaves.

Letters to the Editor

Discusses "Causes" of Crime And "Effects" of Neglect of Children.

To the Editor of The Star: Because of the current interest in the local crime problem, one may be led to assume that the condition recently has become acute. Actually, such is not the case. But, because of the nature of some of the crimes recently perpetrated, the public has become aware of the real situation. Washington actually has lagged far behind other cities in combatting delinquency and subsequent crime conditions. The Nation's Capital has long been show place of elaborate buildings and beautiful monuments. However, hidden beneath this veneer there exist some of the worst slum areas, as well as one of the most inadequate juvenile court systems in the entire Nation. These facts long have been recognized, but no active measures have been taken to combat them. What does it matter that the Juvenile Court Building is one of the most attractive in the country, if the facilities are so inadequate? In the present setup it is quite probable that the existing facilities have been utilized to their best advantage. The fact remains, however, that these facilities are very inadequate. The present organization has no provision for medical examinations, either psychological or psychiatric. The law of cause and effect states that there can be no effect without a preceding cause. Realization of this has produced profound changes in modern concepts of criminology. It has been proven that a typical behavior always results from causes inherent in the individual or his environment. It is rather obvious that a large proportion of delinquents come from slum areas, but it is also obvious that all poor people do not commit crimes. Individual insecurity plus individual factors do predispose for delinquency. Now there is less theorizing about crime as an entity and the individual is studied instead. In place of the absolute evaluation of right and wrong, and the consideration of the law as a rigid measuring rod, a more relativistic attitude is assured. The offense is viewed in the light of the individual that committed the offense.

About 50 years ago, there might have been some question as to whether medicine had anything to do with children's delinguencies. If they were trifling, the father's razor strop was deemed sufficient punishment. If they were more severe, confinement in jails was meted out. Now it is recognized that children are complex creatures and defy any attempt at simplified reduction of their behavior to any common denominator. Diagnosis and treatment are the main contributions that medicine, through psychiatry, has to offer in the field of delinquency.

Medicine long ago recognized that Either America will do this or she will | vention. This same analogy follows for | now will save hundreds of thousands of social evils. this responsibility. Advocates Sending Forces Abroad To "Meet" Hitler Now.

To the Editor of The Star: The most harmful doctrines with which the American spirit has ever been drugged are those asserting that we must not fight until we are attacked and that American men must not be sent away from our shores to fight.

The course of the war has shown the folly of relying on such counsels of cowardice. Of all the countries that have faced Hitler, from the time of the Nazi attack on Poland up to the Nazi attack on Russia, England alone has fought wherever she could find the enemy and England alone remains free and fights on. The other countries, which waited for Hitler to bring the war to them, are now Nazi provinces. Germany's cardinal principle is to fight in any country but her own. Japan follows the example of her German partner.

England has ample historic precedent for pursuing a policy of carrying the fight to the Nazis. It was that same policy on the part of the British which started Napoleon along the road to Waterloo. In 1809, when Spain was on the verge of falling to Napoleon, Sir John Moore diverted the aggressor with the small British force which was in Spain. The little British Army made a valiant stand at Coruna before it was driven into the sea, and Spain was saved. The British lost a military genius in Sir John's death at Coruna-his burial after the battle has been immortalized in Charles Wolfe's famous poem-and they lost a number of men, but the setback they gave Napoleon's plans spared countless other lives in the long run. We have committed ourselves by law to do everything necessary to defeat Hitler short of war. Since we naturally will fight when we are attacked, "short of war" simply means that we are reluctant to send our forces to fight abroad lest some of our finest manhood die in battle. Death in war is horrible, but no more so in Africa or Asia than in New York or California. Must we wait until the bombs rain down on the skyscrapers of Manhattan and crumble San Francisco into the dust, or shall we send our forces now to meet Hitler wherever he is vulnerable on land, at sea and in the air? Must we wait until the millions of people in the rest of the world who would gladly fight with us have all been condisease could be controlled best by pre- quered? Risking a few American lives

Rockefeller's Important Task

Inter-American Office Can Serve U. S. Well

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

More and more the attitude of South American countries toward the future policies of the United States is giving genuine concern. The theory that

Latin America is wholly sympathetic with President Roosevelt's foreign policy is a bit outworn. European inroads into the thinking of governments to the south of us are such that the United States Government has David Lawrence. reverted to the policy it applied during the first World War-an active educational campaign among the peoples of Central and South America with the hope of maintaining their cooperation no matter what contingency may arise.

To carry on an educational campaign in Latin America, where Nazi agents are numerous and where newspapers and magazines are subsidized directly by Nazi funds, is a difficult task for the United States. Thus far the American Government has not resorted to such tactics. The plan rather is to make available information through legitimate channels with the hope that persons influential in the Latin American scene will see that America's side gets a fair deal.

Certainly South America needs certain raw materials on which priorities have been established here. Financial aid for commercial transactions is also essential. Under such circumstances and with so many ramifications to the whole program it was most natural that President Roosevelt should create an agency, now known as the Office of Inter-American Affairs, which is headed by Nelson Rockefeller.

Red Tape Must Be Cut.

But as often happens in the case of an expanding government, the department which has hitherto handled all matters concerning external relations finds it necessary to take into acount activities by other agencies of the same government which cannot operate under the strict rules of a foreign office procedure. Red tape, for instance, has to be cut and omary diplomatic machinery cannot be used sometimes to obtain action on various commercial matters growing out of an emergency.

For several months the problem of adjusting the Office of Inter-American Affairs to the work of the State Department and its representatives abroad has been one of the challenges of the war emergency. But it can be stated that the integration of the two agencies has been accomplished, due especially to the tact and skill of Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, who is number one man in knowledge and background of Latin American affairs covering the last quarter of Separate Staffs Advisable.

It is no criticism of our trained diplomatic officers in foreign countries to say that they are not technically familiar with all the problems growing out of attempts to improve public opinion in the countries where they reside. They are trained in the art of silences and cautious statement rather than aggressive combat against such bold and at times vicious opponents as the Nazi agents can be. The situation properly calls for a separate set of representatives who, while working with the embassies and legations, are not restricted by diplomatic etiquette in dealing with anti-American manifestations.

During the first World War, the United States Government, through the Committee on Public Information, headed by George Creel, established information centers in many foreign capitals and this proved an effective way to get the doctrines of President Wilson printed in the foreign press, to say nothing of the many tasks of counteracting attacks Eight More Drafted on the United States, which were likewise performed. His engaging personality has made him quite popular among the officials of the New Deal. The main reason is that he works night and day at the job of speaking for and to Latin American commercial and cultural interests insofar as they affect national policy here. This is something too big and far reaching to be left as a side issue of a department which has to care for our diplomatic interests not only in Latin America but all over the world, and that's why the working arrangements between the State Department and the Office of Inter-American Affairs constitute a milestone in efficient progress. (Reproduction Rights Reserved.)

If, as a result of a housing emergency due to the sudden expansion of defense industries, the principle is established that the Government must subsidize rents for workers, that principle will not be abolished with the end of the war emer-

Eventual Demand for Subsidy. That there is a housing shortage calling for Government action is undeniable. The Labor Department has estimated that there are 5,000,000 workers engaged in the defense industries and other agencies report a shortage of some 500,000 dwelling units

Congress has made all its appropriations for defense housing on the condition that they shall be used only where private capital fails to supply the shortage.

But is can also be argued that as long as the predominant Government policies with regard to defense housing are followed, private capital never will supply the shortage. For the policy of the Government that involves a heavy subsidy to a small percentage of defense workers creates a situation with which private industry cannot possibly compete, and will eventually create a demand for subsidy on the part of all workers.

What Should Be Done.

The Government ought, therefore, to set up a defense housing program of such a nature that it. could be followed by private capital and create a model for further housing activities after the war emergency has passed. In other words, the defense housing program should be of such a nature that it can pave the way for grandiose slum clearance and rehousing projects in the future in which both private and public credit and capital might be engaged

This would mean that the houses must be economic-that the workers who occupy them must pay for what they get. with all speculative values squeezed out.

If the Government goes on with a system whereby rents are gauged by wholly uneconomic factors, such as the workers' ability to pay, so that one worker pays one rental and another for the same facilities, anothersubsidy to some and no subsidy for others-we shall be heading for serious political troubles. Under such conditions whole blocks of charity recipients are created, who can be politically manipulated, and friction invariably follows with the stepchildren, those whose superior earning power turns out to be a liability to them rather than an

There is plenty of experience in other countries to show the lack of wisdom of such procedures. The Austrian Social Democratic party rehoused the workers of Vienna in a grandiose manner, but the superior facilities offered to one part of the population at the expense of another, turned out to have fateful political consequences.

Moreover, in this country, which was the first in the world to understand mass production. there is no reason why housing should not be produced at a price that workers are able to pay.

Mass production of housing has not occurred because there was insufficient demand and an inadequate certain market. Now, suddenly the demand and the market are both here. And there is no more reason why the state should subsidize rents or ownership of houses than of automobiles or clothes. The question is one of technical efficiency, adequate wages and the elimination of speculative values in building and in land.

The "Camden Plan" Praised. These remarks, of course, do not apply to housing that is plainly temporary. If a powder plant is set up in a desert, obviously to be dismantled when the demand for vast quantities of powder shrinks, the housing problem is like the problem of building barracks for soldiers. Such houses should be built with the clear intention to dismantle and salvage.

But much of the housing now needed is in industrial areas where there was a housing shortage before the defense program began, and where the houses now erected will be used in the future, permanently displacing slums.

It is in this connection that the Federal Works Agency's socalled "Camden Plan," or "Mutual Homes," merits attention and approval. The author is Col. Lawrence Westbrook, who has applied it to the problem of providing houses for several thousand workers of the New York Shipbuilding Co., in the Camden area. The plan is uniquely American: it is copied from the mutual insurance idea; it is excellent investment capitalism and thoroughly social; and it does away entirely with subsidy, at the same time keeping for the workers something of the elasticity of rent, with the stability of ownership. That it has the approval of both the National Association of Manufacturers and the C. I. O. commends it.

How It Works.

Briefly, Mutual Homes sets up a large housing complex of units of various sizes and sells stock in the whole to the occupants, who agree to pay monthly a sum sufficient to cover interest, amortization, insurance, taxes, maintenance repair, vacancy reserve and administration expenses.

Initial monthly payments range from $24 to $30 depending on the size of the house. If the resident keeps up his place adequately the percentage for maintenance is released back into the reserve; after the expiration of a year the occupant receives certain credits, and cannot be deprived of his equity

Furthermore, as his housing needs expand or contract, he can move inside the Mutual Homes Corp., without disturbing his equity. Theoretically, Mutual Homes could be built throughout the whole United States, and the policyholder could move from Hartford to Detroit to Los Angeles without loss.

Only Disadvantage Political.

Col. Westbrook and his associates erected Audubon Village by prefabrication in a factory set up for that purpose, to demonstrate the superior speed and efficiency of such a process.

The whole program is liquidable, costs the taxpayers nothing, and risks decrease in proportion to the number of units and participants, on an actuarial basis. It is as applicable for private capital as for public credit, provided investment and not speculation is the object, and could offer an outlet for insurance companies' and savings banks' funds. But it offers no political advantages to any administration, and that may be one reason why some circles in Washington regard it coldly. It is an added reason, however, why capital, labor and the public should support it, and why, indeed, Congress should demand it as the form of outlet for Government funds. For it does not compete with private capital, but, on the contrary, suggests a means whereby vast amounts of idle money could be put immediately to productive social use.

Apparently there are men who, to appease the lobbyists of these groups, are willing to expose the whole Nation to disaster.

Trouble in Getting Action.

However, they are in a small minority, and there would be no difficulty in overcoming them if the President would put himself forcefully behind a bill to give his price controller the instruments without which he cannot function and at the same time recognize that a policy of simultaneously putting stilts under food prices and permitting wages steadily to rise completely nullifies the whole price-control effort-renders it, in fact, a joke. The trouble is to get the President to act in this way. Just as well as Mr. Henderson -and every other man capable of thought on the subject-he knows

This Changing World

New Nazi Peace Offensive Expected If Russian Armies Are Defeated

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Russia is breathing heavily; her aviation and tank corps have been badly mauled; Stalin's mechanized forces appear overwhelmed by the massed Germans. Whether a guerrilla warfare, with the destruction of the country's wealth and the harassing of the German forces by quick raids can be effective, remains to be seen. Military observers in Washington have little faith in such operations under modern war conditions.

While nobody here has any tears to shed over Stalin and his group of incompetent advisers and military leaders, there is no question that if Russia goes under it will be one of the greatest tragedies of the present war. The U. S. S. R. is the last remaining power to force Hitler to retain a certain degree of caution. If Hitler no longer has to worry about an attack from the east he will attempt an all-out campaign against Great Britain. It is too early to predict whether he will strike at the British Isles directly or continue his effort to carve up the empire first by reducing the Suez Canal defenses in a move through Iran to the Persian Gulf.

New Peace Offensive.

In some diplomatic quarters it is believed the Fuehrer before embarking into another campaign against Britain will make another peace offer to London and Washington. It is believed that Herr von Ribbentrop will take advantage of the hatred against Communism in Britain and the United States and tell the people of those two countries that now that he has ridden the world of its most destructive element - Communism - he is willing to talk peace once more. The tune will be the favorite song the Germans have been singing in the last 12 months-the new order in the world. In usually well-informed quarters it is felt that Hitler will attempt now to make an appeal to the masses rather than to their governments, which can see through this "new order." The old theme which used to be ington some three years agobefore the war broke out-that Germany wants the world divided in "logical" spheres of influence may be repeated again. At that time we were told that the Fuehrer did not want the destruction of the British Empire. He wanted Europe under the complete control of the Axis: Britain to be maintained as she was then, minus a few colonies; Japan dominating the Far East but not the Indian Ocean, and the United States to be given a free hand in the Western Hem-

These four political entities were to co-operate economically since they each complement the other. The orginal plan, as far as Washington can make out, has been somewhat modified. North Africa from Tangier to the Suez Canal is now considered as a component part of Europe-hence Britain will have to forego her influence in that region. The legalistic point of view taken by the Germans now is that Britain never actually owned Egypt. That country has been recognized as an independent kingdom. Hence Britain would not be deprived of any of her imperial territories if she is asked to renounce her political hold on Egypt. The Suez Canal is international; Britain will have just one voice in a board of directors composed of Europeans-all under the Nazi influence.

As far as this country is concerned, the belief is that the old story whispered to us in 1938 will be whispered once more. At that time we were told unofficially that after all the Reich looks on the yellow races with as much misgivings as the United States. To Raise Living Standards.

Germany, so we were told, intends to raise considerably the standard of living of its peopleespecially the factory workers. The German workmen's ideal was at that time to reach his

American colleague comforts of life. Two countries prevented that. One of these countries was the U. S. S. R. and the other Japan. If America were to play ball with the Reich, so we were toold in 1938, the two countries could keep Japan to what she should always have been-a third-rate power. As for South America, some of the German "friends" of the United States told us then, we should just go right ahead and use any method we thought fit to bring it into

The collapse of Russia's military power may bring forth another such peace offensive with the necessary changes due to the officials are fully expecting it. In London Prime Minister Churchill also expects an appeal to the British people to stop this "useless slaughter." It is believed that Hitler will take advantage of the eventual purging of Stalin and offer the olive branch to the western world. But those who have followed the previous German gesture are sure that the new olive branch will have even more poisonous fruit than those which have been tendered us in

McLemore-Glorious Fourth Needs Specialist

By HENRY McLEMORE.

The arrival of another Fourth of July reminds me that any doctor with a stethescope, a shingle, and even a passably good bedside man> ner has a chance to clean up in this coun-All he has to do is specialize in the treatment of Fourth of July ailments. In no time at all he would stand out among his colleagues like a sparkler in a Henry McLemore. dark closet because there isn't a doctor in the United States doing this sort of work. To whom, for example, are thousands of us going to turn after the Fourth for Roman Candle Fright treatment? Where are we going to find a man trained in the diagnosis and cure of Croquet Back? Or Traffic Jam Frustration or Slapped Sunburn?

These, and many others, are common Fourth of July ailments. Half the population gets one or all of them each glorious Fourth, and on July 5 needs prompt and expert attention.

Roman Candle Fright is perhaps the most widespread Independence Day ailment. It is contracted by almost every adult who is called upon to shoot one of the danged things. Roman candles were devised for children and should be shot by children who still have the daring and quick reactions of youth. Erratic in Aim.

Place a Roman candle in the hands of a grown-up and he gets cold all over, his hands tremble and he usually points the infernal machine toward the dining or living room windows. The cry of "Heavens no, John!" from his wife only tends to increase his desperation. The taunts of the children, who handle them as easily as they do their cereal, deepens his general nervousness. Sometimes it is three weeks after the Fourth before a man can use his cigarette lighter without holding it at arm's length for fear a ball of fire will run up his coat An allied ailment is Two-inch Salute Nervousness. Many a man has cracked after a day of relighting the tiny little fuses that remain on firecrackers that have previously fizzled. And there never was a child who was content to admit that a fizzled firecracker was a fizzled firecracker. He always rings in a cowering adult to do the dirty job of relighting it.

Inevitable Invitation.

Then there is Croquet Back. This is acquired from playing croquet for the first time in a year. There is always one satanic soul on every Fourth of July party who yells, "Let's have a game of croquet," and before you know it men and women who haven't bent over in a year except to tie their shoes are walking around the lawn all doubled up like one of the rusty wickets.

Croquet Back usually takes about 12 hours to set in. The first symptom is an inability to get out of bed The second is a feeling that even if you could get out of bed, you wouldn't want to. The third symptom is a stabbing pain on your ankle, the result of having missed the ball in trying to knock an opponent's ball into another lawn and whacking yourself instead. Traffic Jam Frustration comes from being caught in terrific mobs of motorists who left for home early or late, just as you did, in order to miss the traffic. When the tens of thousands of drivers all meet on the main highway, just as if they had arranged a rendezvous instead of having spent hours planning how to avoid one another, you can hear the teeth gnash and the gears clash. A Saddened Return.

There are few sadder sights than that of an American family returning from a joyous Fourth of July outing. Father's head aches, his shirt hurts his sunburn, his shoes are full of sand; mother is worn out and keeps insisting they made the wrong choice of a place to go. The kids are sitting or standing on every place in the car that wasn't designed for sitting or standing. They're thirsty. They're hungry. They keep wanting to stop for pop and ice By the time the family reaches home it is pretty much in a state of collapse and certainly needs the attention of a Fourth of July specialist who would know just what to do to restore them all to normalcy and get them ready for another jaunt on Labor Day. Happy Fourth of July! If you get in a terrific traffic jam just blow your horn and the guy who turns around and swears at you will probably be me. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

IN PURE WOOL!

EN have asked us how pure wool can make a cool, light summer tropical. Our answer is: The pure worsted that goes into a Wonder Tropical, although of the same content as winter-suit woolens, is many ounces lighter in weight. In order to give it added strength, this lightweight worsted is twisted tightly and then woven with a special open weave, making a cloud-light fabric. Wonder's tropical worsted, because it is wool, tailors more easily, holds shape and crease firmly, takes richer colors. Thus you look better and feel cooler. That's the "secret" of Wonder's Tropical beauties. But there's no secret to Wonder's slim price-NO MIDDLEMAN, that's all!

Gunfire in the Blue Ridge Hills

camp ritchie, Md., July 4.—Deep in the lush rolling hills of Blue Good Control Ridge Summit there is camped today, one of America's armies. Seventyeight years and a day ago these hills reverberated with cannon fire as Pickett charged at Gettysburg and the Blue hurled back the Gray to turn the tide. Now the same hills, like well-matched tennis players, again volley with gunfire echoes.

This is a strange little army that is gathered here. There are some soldiers and marines. There are a few policemen and, scattered and largely anonymous, are some corpulent, retired colonels and generals. A millionaire in a torn coat lies flat on the ground in a driving rain and presses a trigger with unerring aim. Nearby shoots a garage mechanic from upper New York and a salesman from Buffalo. Their goal is the

In the heavy and with graying hair, but he still is atmosphere the report sounds like a damp match that has been struck, a winning pitcher and yesterday he but this man whom we shall call McNabb, because that is his name, achieved the 299th triumph of his seems as grimly intent as he was at Beirut.

This is part of America's civilian army and part of that vast army of sports competitors which plods along, unsung and unheadlined.

There is a true cross-section of American life here in this verdant July program. valley. Take the case of this rich guy. He could sail a yacht or own polo ponies. Instead, he travels the rifle circuit. He's about 35.

To shoot in small bore competition he buys a couple of custom made 22-caliber barrels. One of the three or four "old masters" of the land the Chicago Cubs nosing out the St. painstakingly carves them out for him. He goes to another "old master," Louis Cardinals, 2-1, and the Boston who "beds" the barrel in a special stock. A special expert on triggers gets Braves beating the Phillies, 4-1. the products next. When everything is finished the two .22-caliber rifles Both Chicago runs were unearned cost something like $1,000. And that's only the beginning.

There are poor guys who own standard equipment and who sling their guns over their shoulders and thumb their ways to the big meets. Sometimes, as in the case here, they sleep in tents. They don't mind. The fellow in the next cot probably is the millionaire. A lucky few get ciding run with a single in the

There are golf widows and baseball widows and other kinds of widows, but none is more forlorn than the rifle widow. They are here, sitting in steamy automobiles and patiently waiting the return of their Six Times in Two Days Daniel Boones. There is not much thrill in watching hubby on the range. You can't follow the bullet and you can't see where it pierced the target. You have to take the scorer's word for it.

If there is any color in the sport it is in the habiliment of the shooter. Most of them wear khaki coats with bright cloth labels sewed on the backs and the sleeves. You get a label for participating in the with a double-header at Cape big events and these invariably are slapped onto the coats in the manner Charles. Va., to be followed by a of stickers on the trunks of 'round-the-world travelers.

This, then, is the rifle and pistol shooters' chief bid for attention. But don't underestimate these chaps. They probably can outshoot most of the Army sharpshooters and the War Department knows of their prowess and has these unsung sports headliners tabbed and, if the day Nine to Defend Titles comes when the enemy parachutes within range, it will be given a warm

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 4 .double order of golf fireworks, served up in today's Independence Day card at the 42d Western Amateur tournament with two sets of 18-hole matches, will hammer the field down to four semifinalists by sundown at Broadmoor's mountain

The two prime favorites-defending Champion Marvin (Bud) Ward and Medalist Harry Todd-checked in for the second day of match play, Ward after one of the tightest squeaks of his career.

Ward, 1939 National Amateur king from Spokane, Wash., found himself trailing by three holes on the fourteenth yesterday, then struck back with two pars and two birdies for a 1-up victory over Rodney Bliss, Omaha veteran. He drew Warren Berl, Stanford and San Francisco performer, in today's second round.

Todd Has Easy Match. Todd, 1939 Western winner from

Dallas, rolled over Lyman Wright, Colorado Springs ex-bronco buster, with his prodigious hitting attack, 7 and 6, and drew Claude Wright, young Denver plasterer, today in the bracket opposite Ward's. The tournament exploded plenty of fireworks a day ahead of the fourth. In addition to Ward's subpar, uphill triumph, there were three 20-hole matches-one producing three birdies and an eagle in the two added holes—and sizzling underpar shooting by tennis professional Ellsworth Vines and 18year-old Frank Stranahan, stevedore-shouldered trans-Mississippi champion from Toledo. #### 241 Cases in Month Cleared by Police Court

A total of 241 cases were disposed of in jury branch of Police Court during the month which began June 2 and ended yesterday. In one additional case mistrial was declared when the jury failed to agree. Verdicts of guilty were returned by the jury in 35 cases and not guilty verdicts in 25. Of the other cases there were 85 guilty pleas, 75 nolle prossed and 20 dismissed for want of prosecution. There was one lunacy inquisition. Judge George D. Neilson, who presided in the branch during the month, gave a farewell talk to the jurors yesterday after the last case had been tried.

As takens of friendship the jury presented bill folds to Judge Neilson, to Charles Driscoll, his clerk, and to Thomas Campbell, bailiff. Mr. Campbell was unable to be present, being on sick leave recovering from being struck by a footpad. Mrs. Mark V. Ziegler, one of the jurors, made the presentations in behalf of the jury.

Inquiry to Resume Monday; Brown Denies 'Gestapo'

The House subcommittee investi-gating the Washington Police Department will resume the inquiry Monday at 10 a.m. with three former members of the Detective Bureau as the principal witnesses.

The three officers-Lt. Robert Barrett and Sergts. Richard Mc-Carty and Robert Murray-have been described before the subcommittee as "outstanding" detectives who were "glad" to get out of the Detective Bureau because of existing conditions.

In addition to these three officers, Acting Chairman Hebert of the subcommittee said he probably would call several others, but declined to reveal their names.

Mai Ernest W Brown superintendent of the Police Department, the chief witness late yesterday, corroborated the statements of several other police officials that the Detective Bureau is the "weakest link" in the organization, but explained he had already taken steps to re-

Lightning Kills Man as Storm Ends Heat Wave

Downpour Probably A Factor in Traffic Death as Well

Cool and cloudy weather brought relief to Washington today in the wake of a thunderstorm which killed one man late yesterday and probably was a contributing cause in a traffic death.

The mercury got down to a low of 85 degrees early today under misty skies and remained in the comfortable 60s well into the morning. The drop in temperature was a welcome change from record-breaking heat and high humidity of the last few days.

At the height of the thunderstorm which rolled over the city in late afternoon a bolt of lighting struck and killed William Butler, 33, colored, of 127 Quander street S.E. as he was entering a truck parked in the 400 block of Fourth street

The man was found lying under tree at the curb and was pronounced dead by a physician who responded with a Casualty Hospital ambulance.

Pedestrian Killed.

The traffic death was that of a man tentatively identified as Ernest Hancock of 910 I street N.W. He was crossing the street in the rain about 7:40 p.m. when hit by a truck. Police were told the man was caught in the intersection by a change in traffic lights. Six-year-old Robin Grimes, son of the announced opening time, 8 p.m. The National Symphony Orchestra however, played anyhow because of a radio commitment and at least 100 sturdy music lovers sat through the entire performance, from 8 to 9:30 o'clock, which was broadcast by Station WMAL.

The musicians, led by Charle O'Connell, director of artists and classical recordings for RCA-Victor. gave a spirited exhibition, which apparently was enjoyed by the little audience huddled in the rain as much as by the radio listeners.

No admission was charged the 100, who sat under umbrellas and bundled in rain coats in the gusty downpour. The musicians played behind a canvas curtain dropped over the front of their covered shell.

Tickets May Be Exchanged. Since the concert was postponed from Wednesday night, it was canceled last night. Holders of tickets may either exchange them, the orchestra management announced, or have their money refunded in the symphony box office in Kitt's

Star-Spangled Garnish Appropriate...

There is nothing like a good platter of spicy cold cuts to have around the house over a holiday week end. Unexpected guests can be taken care of in a jiffy-that gay house party at the summer camp or cottage will enjoy the colorful collection as much as the hostess, who is saved time and trouble by serving such ready-to-eat items. Thinly sliced boiled ham, corned beef, liverwurst and wedges of jellied chicken loaf are given a gala touch by the addition of cranberry jelly cut in shape of stars.

Dear Miss Nowell-We have several old oak trees on our place as well as two beautiful elms. In the two electric storms we have had this summer we have lost several big limbs which have snapped off in the wind. Is there anything that we could do to brace these? We would probably not live long enough to grow two others like them, and we are very much disturbed at their destruction.

Answer: I hesitate to advise you about your trees until you are sure of the cause of the breaking. It may be just old age, but, on the other hand, they may be infested with a bug that is impairing their strength and causing the breakage in storms. Suggest you get the advice of a tree surgeon who can tell whether or not there is any infestation and also advise about bracing

Miss Nancy Glover's Troth To Mr. A. Lloyd Symington To Be Announced Today

Wedding Expected to Be Notable Event of Fall or Winter Season Here

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nancy Everett Glover, to Mr. A. Lloyd Symington of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Symington of New York. The formal announcement will be made this afternoon at a cocktail party which Mr. and Mrs. Glover will give in their summer home

Mr. Glover joined his family for the holiday and week end and Mr. Symington accompanied him and is their guest. Also at Nonquitt for the festivity are Mr. and Mrs. Symington, who went from their summer home High Low Bridge, on Lloyd Harbor, at Huntington, Long Island.

No date has been set for the wedding, but it is expected to be an event of the autumn or early winter in Washington.

Made Her Debut Here After Graduation From St. Timothy's.

Miss Glover was graduated from St. Timothy's School in 1939 and was presented at a tea June 10 of that year which her parents gave at their home, Orchard Hill, on Massachusetts avenue. The party was a brilliant fete, the several hundred guests including leaders in various circles of Capital society. Following the tea Miss Glover was among the guests at the dinner which the Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs.

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor gave for &their daughter, Mrs. Frank Goodnow MacMurray, who then was Miss ning which Capt. Theodore Wilkinson, U. S. Almost within calling distance of the Moran McConibes' house in Maryland is charming White Stone Farm, belonging to Margot's mother, Mrs. Randall Hagner, and scene of the jolly supper party she gave Wednes-

White Stone Farm is just that-in a setting of lush green rolling hills, with a view of the river from the cool flag-stoned terrace that includes not one but two bends in the beautiful winding Potomac. There's an outside barbecue, there are fields of new green corn and a special field equipped with jumps for young Bella Hagner's hunters; a vegetable and flower garden and even some cows—one particularly glamorous one named

Inside, the house is equally attractive, all done in old pine with bright chintz curtains and big squashy sofas. "Specialite de la maison" are the cook's famous hamburgers, which we had at the party; also the biggest, frostiest and best mint juleps, Maryland baked ham and beaten biscuit, fried chicken, two or three different salads and a wonderful frozen

The McConihes came from across the way dressed like the real farmers they are, in blue jeans and plaid shirts, bringing with them Mike's young brother Malcolm, who is here for a day or so from New York. Mrs. Sidney Lee wore powder blue slacks and shirt. She's going out West very soon to join her sister, Mrs. Warren Barbour, on a ranch. Mrs. Noyes Lewis, Mrs. Pearsons Rust and Mme. Prochnik wore cool summer frocks, as did the hostess. Young Bella wore pale blue linen, Mrs. George Pettengill had a becoming turban on her head, Mrs. Waggaman Pulver had her dark brown curls cut shorter for summer and Mrs. Archibald Davis looked fresh and crisp in black and white print.

Gentlemen included Mr. Prochnik, Capt. Wilmer Allison, who will be joined shortly by his wife, since they have leased the Joe McCammons' house on California street for the summer. Mr. McCammon, by the way, had just announced to Capt. Allison that the house is all ready and he could move in any time. "And," added Joe, "I've even had the oil burner checked and filled with oil for you!" This was Wednesday-remember, with a temperature of 96! But to go on with the men at the party-Art Landa was there (he's off today for Southampton for the week end), also Edward Gardner, who will go only as far as Warrenton, Va., for his week end, and Charlie Hume, who is going to take his July 4 vacation fishing at Bethany Beach. Then there were Ralph Hill, who will be one of a house party that Mrs. Francis Whitten is giving in White Sulphur for the holidays; George Vournas, who will stay home and give a party himself tomorrow night at his Maryland farm; Edward Van Devanter and Charlie Thomas and Col. John Mecham.

Mrs. Hagner and Bella will take their usual summer vacation on a Montana ranch, planning to leave some time next month, but finding it hard, we suspect, to tear themselves away from White Stone Farm.

The story thus far: Nancy Duval returns to the family home in Mount Pleasant after graduation from nursing school and, through the family doctor, gets a job as nurse-companion to wealthy Mrs. Sinclair, who lives with her two nephews at beautiful old Fairfield Hall. Nancy's sister Clare and her mother have driven Mr. Duval to financial despair but the high salary Nancy will earn gives her hope of soon balancing the family budget. She urges her father to curtail Clare's and Mrs. Duval's allowances and thereby wins their enmity. The first night she stays at Fairfield Hall a bit of gossip she heard in town is revealed as true. She awakens in her darkened room to find a strange, white-haired old lady peering down at her

'Billy, the Kid,' Reveals Western Is Far From Dead

Taylor Portrait of the West's Bad Boy Is a Thriller of the Old School: 'Three Cheers' on Stage

By JAY CARMODY.

A canny studio. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. While its competitors are trying to think up another way to satirize the Western or are content to make one that looks like a Santa Fe travel folder, M-G-M has gone back to the original formula. Its "Billy, the Kid," with Robert Taylor is all action-in technicolor splendor-and it is surprising how entertaining it turns out to be. Its characters are interesting, its dialogue is fetchingly laconic, its guns shoot loud, hard

Hope's 'Caught in the Draft' And Army's Stuck With Him

Military Routine Becomes Daffy Sort of Life in Comedian's New Picture at the Palace

By HARRY MacARTHUR.

The great tide of pictures dealing with military affairs, which we may expect to continue has now swept up Mr. Bob Hope in its full flood. The film, which opened vesterday at Loew's Palace, is a daffy little item called "Caught in the Draft," detailing the adventures of the antic Mr. Hope when he falls, quite by mistake you may be sure, into the rigors of Army life. The meeting of the two is, have no fear, quite as much a CLASSIFIED AD RATES strain on the Army as it is on Mr. .

The script in which the comedian is caught in "Caught in the Draft" ta tenuous affair, certainly, but the Hope admirers should be made avoedingly gleeful by the various produced by Harry Tugend. At the Palace.

made up his mind to return the way he had come. Just then, from farther up the Big River, he heard the harsh, rattling cry of Rattles the Kingfisher. It suddenly occurred to him that perhaps Rattles had his nest somewhere in the bank of the Big River. Peter hurried in the direction of Rattles' voice. Presently he came out on a little sandy beach. There he squatted for a minute, blinking his eyes, for the sun was very bright. Then a little way beyond he saw something that in his eager curiosity made him quite forget that he was out in the open where it was anything but safe for a Rabbit to be What he saw was a high, sandy bank

With a hasty glance this way and that way to make sure that no enemy was in sight, Peter scampered along the edge of the water until he was right at the foot of that sandy bank. Then he squatted down and looked eagerly for the hole of Rattles the Kingfisher. Instead of one hole he saw a lot of holes. They were small holes. He knew right away that Rattles couldn't possibly get in or out of a single one of them. In fact, those holes in the bank were no bigger than the holes Downy the Woodpecker makes in trees. Peter couldn't imagine who or what had made them. They seemed to him very mysterious. As he sat there staring and wondering, a trim little head appeared at the entrance to one of these holes. This trim little head had a very small bill and a snowy white throat. At first glance Peter thought it was his old friend, Skimmer the Tree Swallow. With a lively twitter of greeting the owner of that little hole in the bank flew out and circled over Peter's head. It wasn't Skimmer at all; it was Banker the Bank Swallow, own cousin to Skimmer, the Tree Swallow. He was a little smaller than Skimmer and not nearly so handsome. His back, Junior Star Page—Personal appearances of Frank Luke, daredevil balloon menace of World instead of being beautiful rich steelblue, was a sober grayish-brown. Pass West opened a low heart and South beamed with approval as he won with the jack of hearts. A successful diamond finesse would give him his contract, for he would make two diamond tricks, two spades, three hearts and five clubs. And there was a chance for the contract even if the diamond finesse should lose. For unless the spade ace were cashed at once, South would take five clubs, three hearts and the rest of the diamondsbarring a really bad diamond break. So South led a low diamond at the second trick-and almost groan- 14. Swiss river. ed when West discarded the deuce 15. A swindle was the only hope for the contract.

Declarer saw it in the twinkling of an eye. He hastily put up dummy's ace of diamonds and returned a low diamond. East naturally went into deep thought. To put up the king of diamonds would establish the entire suit for dummy, and that might easily give South his contract unless West had an ace. It looked safer to preserve the double stopper in diamonds, so East played the diamond nine.

That, of course, was just what South had been hoping for. He won with the queen of diamonds and forced out the ace of spades. Two diamond tricks were all he needed for his contract and East could never get in to cash the diamond king.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER—Lofoten Islands in Codfish Industry If you sail north along the coast of Norway you will at length come to the Lofoten Islands. They are above the Arctic Circle and are famous for the "fishing grounds" near them. The Lofoten Islands are remains of a mountain range. Other parts of the range sank under the sea long ago. Some of the peaks are left above water and they are the islands of today.

Those mountain tops are not just points of land. They have an area of 475 square miles and 22,000 people live on them.

We may wonder why so many people would care to live that far north. There are two answers-good fishing and a fairly good climate. The climate is not so cold as that of inland parts of Norway above the Arctic Circle. The Gulf Stream goes

Last Year's Mark Passed as 308 Enter Soap Box Derby

Boys Urged to Listen To Final Instructions Over WRC Tomorrow

The final tabulation of registrations for Washington's fourth annual Soap Box Derby reveals a total of 308 boys entered for the coaster race July 12, Zeb T. Hamilton, director of the Derby, announced today. The figure is 30 above that of last year, Mr. Hamilton said.

"The rate of return of postal cards sent out by headquarters indicates we shall have a high percentage of the registrants actually taking part in the racing." the Derby director commented. "The cards were dispatched for the purpose of learning when the boys would have their cars completed.

Final instructions to entrants will be broadcast tomorrow during the last radio program in the Derby Service Orders series, which will be heard at 12:30

Inspection facilities will be set up Keeler

In red on the letter he will receive, and the must show up only on that date," Mr. Hamilton warned,
