(Text of President's Message on Page X-2.) By GARNETT D. HORNER.

The United States today landed naval forces in Iceland as part of an active defense program to forestall any German "pincers movement" against the Western Hemisphere, President Roosevelt informed Congress in a special message.

Announcing the Navys arrival in Iceland, the President said he also had ordered the Navy to take "all necessary steps" to insure the safety of shipping between this country and Iceland and "all other strategic outposts.'

Action to "forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western Hemisphere" also includes the sending of "substantial forces" to the Trinidad and British Guiana bases in the South Atlantic acquired from Great Britain last year, Mr. Roosevelt said.

The Navy forces arriving in Iceland will supplement and eventually replace the British forces which have been stationed in Iceland in order to insure adequate defense of that country, the President explained. He gave no indication of the strength of the naval forces landed.

Texts of Communications Sent With Message.

His special message to Congress was accompanied by texts of a communication from Prime Minister Herman Jonasson of Iceland. inviting the United States to take over protection of that country. and the President's reply. Both were dated July 1.

The "understanding" reached in these communications provided full recognition of the independence of Iceland as a sovereign state and called for the exchange of diplomatic representatives. Before the war, Iceland recognized the King of Denmark-now occupied by Germany-as her sovereign.

Emphasizing that "considerations of safety from overseas attack are fundamental," Mr. Roosevelt said in his message to Congress:

"The United States cannot permit the occupation by Germany of strategic outposts in the Atlantic to be used as air or naval bases for eventual attack against the Western Hemisphere * Assurance that such outposts in our defense frontier remain in friendly hands is the very foundation of our national security and of the national security of every one of the independent nations of the new world "For the same reason substantial forces of the United States have now been sent to the bases acquired last year from Great Britain in Trinidad and in British Guiana in the south in order to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against naval forces on Iceland as "one of the Western Hemisphere. It is essential that Germany should not be able successfully to employ such tactics through sudden seizure of strategic points in the South Atlantic and the North Atlantic."

By the Associated Press. LONDON, July 7 .- A British foreign office spokesman tonight described the landing of United States the most important and significant events of recent months from our standpoint. "It's big news and important

Although authoritative sources declined comment on the effect the United States occupation would have on patrol of the North Atlantic sea lanes. Lt. Barrett testified he was appointed to the force July 1, 1925, and was assigned to the Detective Bureau in December, 1930, after serving about four years as a precinct detective. In August, 1939, he said, he was promoted to be a lieutenant and left the Detective Bureau

Mr. Hebert asked if the promotion came through some outstanding work he had done. He replied the elevation came as a result of a civil service examination

"Suppose you had solved 10 cases of outstanding crimes you still would not have been promoted unless you had passed a civil service examination," inquired Mr. Hebert. "That is true." he answered

At the same time, he explained he had solved 10 outstanding crimes himself while attached to the Detective Bureau.

Lawes Will Retire After 21 Years as Sing Sing Warden

> Noted Prison Official Plans to Write And Lecture

By the Associated Press OSSINING, N. Y., July 7 .- On a bleak winter day 21 years ago an automobile bearing a grim-visaged passenger drove through the grounds of a great cluster of gray buildings on the Hudson River.

It was the Christmas season and although New Year's Eve was near, the man in the car was far from gav.

He was Lewis E. Lawes and the scene was Sing Sing Prison, where he was about to become the new warden.

His mission-to tame the riotous prison-was a tough one, but the tall husky warden fulfilled it. Now, at 57, he is retiring.

Behind him is a record of 36 years of service in New York State penal institutions and 21 years at Sing Sing; ahead of him writing, lecturing and "many causes which have long interested me.'

He submitted his resignation Thursday to John A. Lyons, State commissioner of correction, asking that his retirement become effective July 16, when he will be eligible for a pension of $6,000 a year. In his tenure, he has been responsible for 36,750 prisoners, but only two months, the rest of his only two violent escapes occurred. He credits this success to an

O. P. M. Sets Up Unit To Enforce Defense Priority Compliance

Withholding of Material Expected to Bring Violators Into Line

Admitting there has been some evidence of violation of its preference orders favoring defense needs, the Office of Production Management today set up in its Priorities Division a new compliance section charged with the duty of investigating and taking punitive action against those who "continue to display willful negligence in their efforts to carry on business as usual."

E. R. Stettinius, jr., director of priorities, in announcing the O. P. M.'s initial step toward assuring enforcement of its regulations, said the action was taken so the majority of producers, who co-operate willingly, will not be penalized by the unfair activities of a few who refuse to co-opoerate.

He stressed that efforts will be made to obtain voluntary co-operation in all cases, but that punitive action will be taken if necessary.

Three Possible Courses. Such punitive action, it was asserted, may take the following forms of public statements 1. Issuance regarding violations or evasions. 2. Withholding of vital raw materials until compliance is assured. 3. Prosecution in court

The second form of punishment is expected to bring quick results, it was explained, and legal action probably would be in the nature of a court order requiring compliance or, if defiance persisted, a contempt of court proceeding.

The new compliance section is to be headed by L. J. Martin, former assistant to the president of the Thomas A. Edison Industries and now in charge of the inventory control section of the O. P. M.

Boy, 7, Naturalized Without Necessity Of Taking Oath

Step Not Required of Italian Nobleman's Son Because of His Age

District Court today witnessed an innovation when a 7-year-old boy was admitted to American citizenship under the new Naturalization Law without the necessity of taking the oath, because of his youth. The new American citizen is John James Gino Charles Aimone de

Martino, now living at the Wardman Park Hotel. He was officially admitted this morning by Justice James M. Proctor. The child's father, an Italian nobleman, is dead and the boy's mother, Mrs. Asta Berwynd de Martino, 28. made application for her son's citizenship. The child was born February 27

1934, at Bern, Switzerland, of Italian nationality. He has been in the United States frequently and speaks English, but last entered this country in May by automobile from Mexico.

Attorney George W. Dalzell represented the mother and child at today's proceedings.

Justice Proctor decided it was not necessary for the child to take the oath, but he enjoined upon his mother that she should instill into the child all the principles laid down in the oath of allegiance. The law provides that when a child is too young to understand the full meaning of the oath, it may be waived by the court.

The child's mother acquired American citizenship by the naturalization of her mother in 1932 minor

The capture of Minsk four days ago was claimed by D.N.B., which quoted a German soldier war reporter as saving a panzer division had rumbled into the city and begun the work of mopping up without hampering operations as a whole.

An earlier German high command communique did not mention Minsk, but said operations against the Stalin line were continuing "according to plan" and that the number of prisoners taken between June 22. the day the invasion began, and July 5, totaled about 300,000.

A special communique said that 52.000 Red troops had "deserted" west of Minsk. (These, it was thought, were among units of two Russian field armies, totaling perhaps a half-million men, reported six days ago to have been isolated between Bialystok and Minsk.

Pastoral Letter Is Read Throughout Reich to Reveal True Situation

BERLIN. July 7.-- A pastoral the Catholic bishops of Germany charges that some forces presently are working to dissolve the union between Christ and the German people.

The letter of protest against "restraints and limitations" on "free expression of faith and religious church life" was read yesterday in Catholic churches throughout Germany

The document was framed recently at Fulda, an ancient seat of German culture northeast of Frankfurt, "at the grave of St. Boniface," apostle of Germany who was martyred nearly 12 centuries Existence or non-existence of Christianity and the church in Germany is at stake," the letter declared.

Official as well as authorized government sources declined to comment

Complaints Repeatedly Made. The letter, among other statements, assured the faithful that "your bishops are at their posts" and said it was intended to reveal "the real situation of the church."

Repeatedly, it said, the bishops "have made justified demands and complaints to responsible authorities.

"Be assured that the bishops are speaking openly because as teachers of the faith and defenders of the rights of the church they are in stilled with a sacred duty to do so."

The letter referred to a booknot identified otherwise-in which, it said. "the assertion was made that Germans today had to choose between Christ and the German people.

"With flaming indignation we German Catholics decline to make such a choice. We love our German nation and serve it, if need be even to giving up our lives.

"At the same time, however, we live and die for Jesus Christ and want to remain bound to him in these times and eternally. Sacrifices Gladly Made.

First Chamber Music Program Outdoors Slated Tomorrow

2,000 Seats Available In Meridian Hill Park For Concert

The first open-air chamber music program ever presented in the United States is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in Meridian Hill Park. The concert will be the first of the Starlight Chamber Music Concerts staged by the National Capital Parks in co-operation with C. C. Cappel. There are 2,000 seats grouped around the reflecting pool in the park.

The development of a special band shell, with the most modern amplifying equipment, has made it possible for the first time to present a program of chamber music outdoors, freeing it from the bonds of a small room.

Tomorrow's concert will feature the Primrose Quartet, led by the noted viola player, William Primrose. The group will be featured again at the second of the series Friday night, when Betty Humby, British pianist, will join them for the performance of the Schuman Piano Quartet.

There will be a special fountain display and ceremonies tomorrow night marking the inauguration of the concert series. The park is located between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, Euclid street and Florida avenue N.W. Reserved seats are on sale for 55 cents, others for 25 cents.

Atlantic Is Forum Topic Present use of the American Navy to clear the Atlantic of German ships would at least establish "an antiseptic ring between this hemisphere and the colussus of the world." Leo M. Cherne, author of "M-Day." said last night in Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air. The topic under consideration was Secretary Knox's proposal that the United States send the Navy to clear the Atlantic.

The Navy's use now "would lead us inevitably and inexorably into total war not only against Germany but also against Italy and Japan, her Axis aliies," Representative Short, Republican, of Missouri said. He insisted the United States is not prepared for combat on such a scale. Representative Patrick, Democrat, of Alabama said Secretary Knox's proposal was "merely a timely and IMAGINE, if you can, a bomb so powerful that it could stun a whole city-leave all the people, young and old, dull-stupefied-fumbling. A bomb so powerful it would leave the nerves of the population hopelessly jangled.

Now imagine this bomb to be noiseless -to fall like a mysterious blight on whole sections of the population without their realizing what has happened.

THERE IS SUCH A "BOMB." It is raining down on America today. And there is a defense against it-the defense weapon the U.S. Government itself is urging the whole country to accept. It is a contribution to this defense that Fleischmann is offering the nation.

The "bomb" is a lack of certain vital health substances, notably parts of the Vitamin B-Complex and iron. Millions of Americans probably suffer from this lack in some degree. There are not even any accurate estimates of the damage. But this we do know-a too-limited supply weakens and incapacitates the victims.

Here is the new defense weapon:

Today the nation's bakers are being offered a new improved yeast to enrich bread. This product, called Fleischmann's Enriched Hi-B1 Yeast, does not change the taste, the color or the texture of bread. But when added in sufficient quantities it helps ward off the insidious and weakening effects caused by lack of those important B vitamins and the food iron recommended for "Enriched Bread."

Isn't it indeed a strange turn of events to find a food manufacturer in the first line of defense? One thinks ordinarily of the food producers and distributors as committed entirely to the arts of peace. But to Fleischmann this new thing called "total war" is an old story.

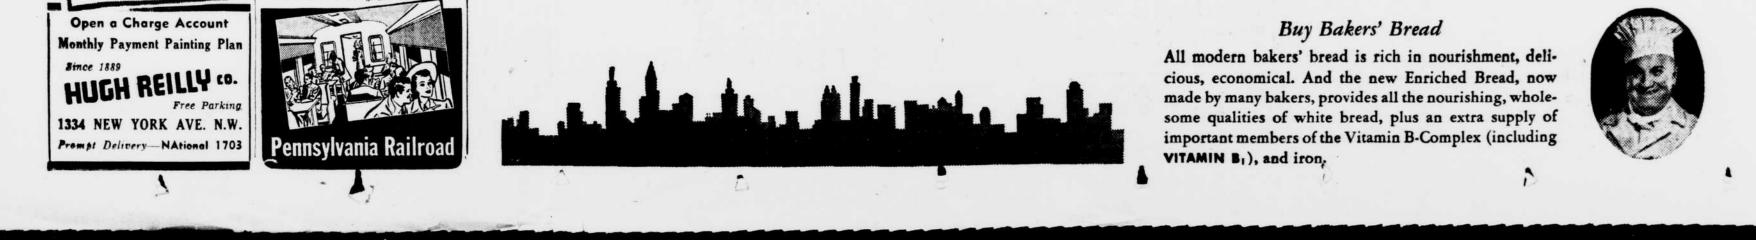

For more than two decades, Standard Brands Incorporated, the makers of Fleischmann's Yeast, have had scientists in their laboratories fighting the continuous war against human ills, supplying nutritional factors so important to national health and national strength.

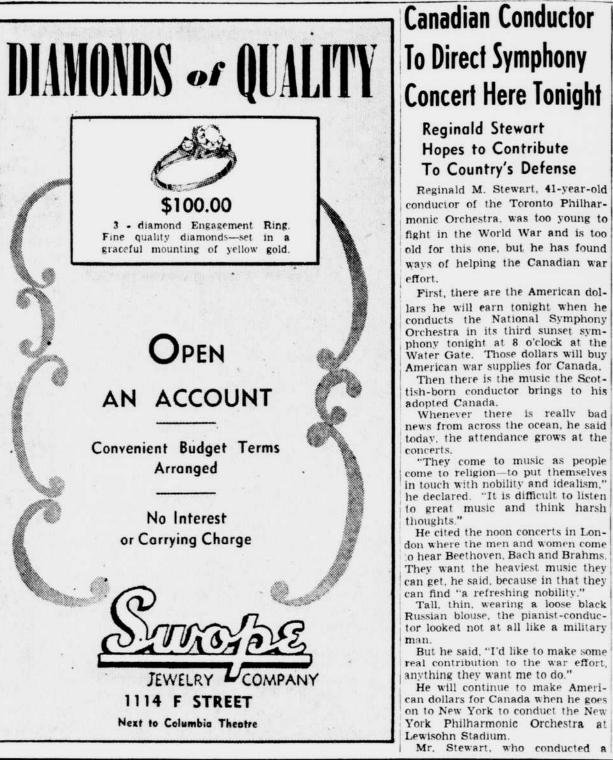

As a consumer you don't need to concern yourself about the technical details of Fleischmann's Enriched Yeast and what it does for you. You are welcome to these details, but, better yet, you can assure yourself that you are getting the benefit Fleischmann's Enriched Yeast can give you by eating the enriched bread containing it.

Fleischmann's great national distribution system contacts every baker. Fleischmann's technicians are now demonstrating to the baker ways in which breads can be enriched.

We wanted you to know about this service to the nation at this time when each of us must do his part and depend on his neighbor doing likewise.

Holiday Traffic Kills 384 in Nation; 244 Others Die Violently

Rain Credited With Keeping Toll Down Over July 4 Week End

By the Associated Press.

Violent death overtook 628 persons throughout the Nation during the long Independence Day week end. As the country went back to work today it counted among the dead 384 victims of traffic accidents, 14 more than the average for an ordinary Friday, Saturday and Sunday in July

While automobile fatalities slightly topped the National Safety Council's estimate for a normal week end, they were far below the council's prediction that 475 persons would die in traffic accidents during the past three days. Rain in some parts of the country during the holiday period was believed to be the chief reason the total was not higher.

Other violent deaths drownings, plane crashes, shootings and the like-totaled 244 throughout the country to swell the number killed by all causes to 628.

California's 67 reported deaths, 48 of them in vehicular mishaps was 20 ahead of Illinois' total of 29 traffic and 18 other fatalities.

New York was third with 41 deaths, of which 21 were by cars, followed by Pennsylvania with 27 traffic fatalities and 11 others. Fifth was Ohio, where 25 persons were killed by autos, 10 by other causes.

Three States-Rhode Island, Nevada and South Dakota-had no violent deaths.

On the fireworks casualty list were five deaths-three more than last year-but still far less than in Brazil's first congress of social years when laws against the sale of fireworks were less strict

The 'Gestapo' Squad

The statement by Acting Chairman Hebert of the House subcommittee investigating the Police Department, that the so-called "gestapo" squad should be "absolutely destroyed" raises a question which seems to have received little if any consideration during the committee's hearings.

It is not entirely clear whether Representative Hebert's criticism was directed to the personnel of this particular undercover squad or whether he is opposed to the maintenance of any such group in the department. It would seem, however, that the latter is the case.

In that event, there naturally arises the question of how the Police Department is to keep a check on its membership. Unfortunately, experience has shown that a small minority of policemen are unworthy of the trust that is reposed in them. No matter how trustworthy the great majority, there are always a few who prove to be faithless, and who can be "bought up" by the criminal element. Certainly, the best interests of the Police Department and the best interests of the community as a whole make it imperative that there be some means of detecting and rooting out this minority. And if the squad maintained by the department for that purpose-a squad whose members necessarily have to remain unknown to those who might be under suspicion-is to be "absolutely destroyed," how is it proposed to rid the department of undesirable men who worm their way into the police force? From the specific testimony which has been submitted to the committee. it appears that the undercover squad in three years has investigated four members of the department, two of whom subsequently were dismissed for "taking graft" from gamblers. That, on its face, does not appear to justify the charge that the squad is "a spying outfit" which has demoralized the whole department. However, even though there may be some merit to the claims as to the demoralizing effect of the squad as It is now set up, it does not follow that a properly chosen and properly supervised squad of this sort should have an adverse effect on police morale. Certainly, the evil effects will be far greater if the alternative is to be the inauguration of a system under which there is to be no effective method of detecting dishonest police officers and protecting the department and the community from their morale-destroying activi-

China Also Ponders

The heart-searching so liberally indulged in at Tokio since the unheralded start of the Russo-German war a fortnight ago is undoubtedly paralleled by a similar process at Chungking, Free China's inland capital. The titanic struggle now raging in Eastern Europe has upset all political calculations in the Far East. For both China and Japan, the outlook is highly uncertain, with various possibilities complex and largely unpredictable in character. Incidentally, today marks the beginning of the fifth year in the interminable Chino-Japanese conflict which Tokio euphemistically calls "the China incident." It was in the late evening of July 7, 1937, that the clash between Chinese and Japanese soldiers at the Marco Polo Bridge in the outskirts of Peiping lighted the conflagration which has spread throughout China, with incalculable destruction of property and the loss of millions of human lives. This conflict, sprawling obscurely over an area almost as large as the United States, has reached a condition of relative stalemate. A million Japanese troops hold the coasts and river valleys, and have set up a puppet Chinese government at Nanking headed by Wang Ching-wei. But the mountainous interior remains in the hands of the Free China government of Chiang Kai-shek, who has the allegiance of nearly all Chinese under Japanese military rule. Chiang's armies greatly outnumber the Japanese, but cannot match them in equipment, much of which must reach them from abroad over devious routes.

A large part of these vital military supplies has come from Asiatic Russia, which has consistently supported China in its struggle against Japan. Chungking fears that Russia can no longer spare this aid to China. Indeed, the collapse of the present Soviet regime and its replacement by a Russian government subservient to Germany might transform Russo-Chinese relations into hostility, if Germany were disposed to aid Japan, its Axis partner, to the fullest extent.

However, this by no means exhausts the list of possibilities. Japan may seize the opportunity of Russian preoccupation in Europe by invading Siberia. That would indirectly aid China, because the conquest of Russia's maritime provinces and perhaps the whole of Eastern Siberia to Lake Baikal would so strain Japan's military resources that she would presumably have to stand on the defensive in China. In that case the stoppage of Russian supplies to Chungking would not be so gravely felt. An even more intriguing possibility would be if Japan did not attack Siberia and the Soviet government, though driven from Europe, established itself solidly east of the Urals. Such a regime, still Communist but become wholly Asiatic, might seek to dominate large parts of China by backing the Chinese Communists and overthrowing the nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek. This may sound far-fetched, yet it is not impossible in a situation so fluid that almost anything may happen.

nificant when it is remembered that the area of the Soviet Union is 8,095,728 square miles; the population 165,847,100.

But the disabilities of Russia perhaps may be substantial aids to the Red armies in their defensive operations. Communications that were inadequate in seasons of peace are a "present help" in time of strife. The whole result of Hitler's attack upon his erstwhile partner may be decided by what efficiency the Germans can show in the quick construction of "gates" adequate to their purpose.

Accident Lessons

The Star's factual analysis of traffic deaths in Washington for the first six months of this year serves to emphasize anew the previously established fact that careless use of the streets by pedestrians is a major cause of fatal accidents in the District of Columbia. Careless driving was a contributory factor in a number of the cases, of course, but when it is considered that of the forty persons killed on local streets since the first of the year, thirty were pedestrians, twenty-one of whom, according to the records, were violating elementary rules of safety, it is obvious that the pedestrian problem should continue to receive special attention of traffic authorities and civic groups. The accident tabulation shows that seventeen of the twenty-one pedestrians who were killed while ignoring safety precautions were struck down while crossing the street other than at a crosswalk and when approaching traffic rendered the move harzardous. Eight of these middle-of-the-block crossers emerged from between parked cars into the path of oncoming automobiles. One of them was playing in the street. Two were crossing at intersections against the red light.

Particularly depressing is the fact that eight children have been killed during the past six months-five more than during the first half of 1940 and one more than the total for all of last year. The analysis indicated that most, if not all, of these young lives might have been saved if reasonable rules of safety had been observed. Five of the children were crossing the street at points other than a crosswalk and four of these came from between parked automobiles.

It is because of such findings that the Traffic Department has launched a poster drive to impress upon pedestrians the grave perils of crossing the street elsewhere than at a crosswalk. Placards with the warning "Never cross the street from

Mr. Ickes Defends His Alcoa Action

Answers Criticism by David Lawrence in Aluminum Company Case

To the Editor of The Star In writing, in his column of June 30, that I am responsible for the delay in the production of aluminum. Mr. Lawrence, as usual, exercised his imagination. So far as Mr. Lawrence is concerned, this is no more news than a story that a man has been bitten by a dog.

I do claim credit for having refused an additional contract for Bonneville power to the Aluminum Company of America. But at the precise time that I did this I approved a contract with the Reynolds Metals Co. If I had yielded to the representations of the Aluminum Company of America, the latter would have had to put up a plant capable of producing 60 million tons of aluminum. Under the contract with the Reynolds Metals Co., that concern will produce 60 million tons of aluminum. This Reynolds plant is well under way and will be in production in two or three weeks. The Aluminum Company of America did not even promise to do any better than this. In fact, its estimate of time was longer.

This is the way that I have "slowed up" aluminum production. Last February I wrote an urgent letter to O. P. M. suggesting that we speed up the production of aluminum and increase our estimate of the amount required. Once again. as Mr. Lawrence would doubtless see it, I was "delaying" production

On April 21, O. P. M. wrote me a letter about another aluminum plant at Bonneville After conferring with the President I replied, on April 24, that we would be prepared to discuss with O. P. M. at its convenience the building of an aluminum plant with Government funds, to be operated under a management contract with Alcoa or anyone else. That was about ten weeks ago and I have heard nothing officially from O. P. M. since, although I have learned from the newspapers that it is about to proceed to negotiate contracts.

Here also the fanciful Mr. Lawrence would doubtless discover that I was "delaying" aluminum production.

In connection with contracting for power at Bonneville for the production of aluminum, I would like Mr. Lawrence to consider the language in Section 2 (b) of the Bonneville Act. This section provides the authority for the Bonneville construction program: "In order to encourage the widest possible use of all electric energy that can be generated and marketed and to provide reasonable outlets therefor, and to prevent the monopolization thereof by limited groups . . ...

Minerals From Alaska

Under plans recently completed, the Geological Survey will devote particular attention, in its field work in Alaska this summer, to a search for strategic minerals. Alaska has wast mineral resources, so far but partly developed, and there is every reason to believe that a careful reconnaissance will reveal the existence of many deposits hitherto unknown. Since the United States today is largely dependent upon foreign countries for its supplies of many minerals vital to American industry, the decision of the Geological Survey to intensify its search for Alaskan sources of strategic metals and minerals will be welcomed as a move to strengthen hemisphere defense.

The major objective will be a search for tin, nickel, chrome, tungsten, antimony and guicksilver. At the presont time, East Asia is our principal supplier of tin. Deposits of tin ore are known to exist in two areas in Alaska. One is in the western part of Seward Peninsula and the other in the Hot Springs district of Central Alaska. The investigations of the Geological Survey this summer should go far to determine the quantity of tin that Alaska could supply, if imports from the Far East should be cut off or drastically reduced.

Nickel, chrome, quicksliver, antimony and tungsten are also to be found in Alaska. Further reconnaissance, however, is required to show the extent of the deposits of these strategic minerals and their location. There is need also for topographic surveys, to facilitate the investigation of the mineral resources of the territory and their

Russian Communications

An ancient proverb says: "The gates of Russia are wide to those who enter, but narrow to those who would go out." Certainly, the Germans by this time must be aware of the difficulties of moving their heavy machinery of war over the arterial highways of the land they have invaded. A clue to the condition of Russian communications may be found in the fact that of 1.368,000 kilometers of "constructed roads" in the Soviet Union only 221,600 kilometers are "built roads." The state of the ordinary paths of travel is suggested by the phrase "natural gravel roads," a designation synonymous with "practically unsurfaced." Nevin O. Winter, in a book written nearly thirty years ago, explained: "Roads are few and far between. In some places, as between Moscow and Kharkov, there is a fairly well-kept highway * * *. Between the large cities there are roads laid out on generous lines by the military power. They stretch out in broad, white lines across boundless plains, wide enough for half a dozen teams to pass * * *. But many of the roads once constructed so well are in a bad state of preservation. From Warsaw to St. Petersburg, then Moscow, Kiev and Warsaw, there is a fair road for automobiling, and in the Crimea will be found the best roads of all." The Bolshevik government spasmodically attempted to improve the communications system which it seized when it drove out Kerensky in October, 1918; but more than good resolutions were needed for the development of traffic facilities equal to the need of so vast a country. A plan for double-tracking the Trans-Siberian Railroad from Omsk to Chita has been largely executed. For the rest, the rail lines remain approximately what they were in the days of Nicholas II. One "circuit" includes Moscow, Kursk, Kiev, Sevastopol and between parked cars" have been placed about the city, especially in the center of congested blocks, and 100,000 pamphlets embodying a similar warning have been distributed through the schools and Federal offices. With special regard to children, the Traffic Advisory Council and various civic groups have organized a "skating committee" to arrange for off-the-street skating zones during the critical vacation season. Experience has shown that law. safety campaigns of this nature can be highly effective. Constant education of the walking and driving public, plus unrelenting, vigorous enforcement of traffic regulations by the police, can save many human lives during the remainder of 1941. Washington cannot afford to relax for one moment its efforts to reduce the number of avoidable deaths on the city's traffic-congested highways.

An About-Face It is not at all likely that the American Youth Congress, often charged with being a Communistcontrolled organization, will be able in the future to exert much influence on the thinking of American youth or on any other segment of this country's population. As a supposed American organization, it has by its own activities since the day when it was receiving friendly pats on the back by influential elders. Nevertheless, for the sake of the record, it is interesting to take note of the about-face which the congress has done with respect to the war in Europe. Until recently, so far as the congress was concerned, it was a strictly imperialistic conflict, a struggle in which this country had no legitimate interest and from which it should remain strictly aloof. Those who expressed the belief that it was in our own interest to aid the British were summarily dismissed as warmongers, and the congress went on record as opposed to such aid in any way, shape or form. But now, with the German attack on Soviet Russia, the Youth Congress has had a change of heart. No longer is it an imperialistic war, of which we should wash our hands. At its annual convention in Philadelphia last week the congress for the first time took note of the danger of "complete isolation of America" and adopted a resolution pledging "our co-operation with the people of Britain and the Soviet Union who are fighting to end the Hitler threat of world conquest."

It hardly seems necessary to elaborate on the significance of this turn-about. Once again, the activities of the American Youth Congress speak for themselves.

Alcoa now has contract rights to 47.1% of the power ultimately to be produced at Bonneville. If we had given it the additional amount asked for, this percentage would have been raised to 58.5%. As I see it, this would have come pretty close to a monopolization of Bonneville power, and, therefore, would have been against the

I do not know what Mr. Lawrence regards as a "comprehensive investigation." but so far as the Secretary of the Interior is concerned, the hearing upon which the report was based was purely ex parte. Neither the Secretary of the Interior nor any member of his staff was called as a witness, and no one in the Department of the Interior was given an opportunity to meet the self-serving statements of the Alcoa representatives even by a written memorandum. Nevertheless, this type of hearing meets with unqualified praise by your discredited columnist, while the been rather thoroughly discredited Senate Committee, which did hear both sides, and gave everyone an opportunity to be heard, is unqualifiedly condemned, apparently because it did not feel that. on the evidence. Mr. Lawrence's pet monopoly, the Aluminum Company of America, was entitled to a whitewash. In your own editorial of July 1, with commendable fairness you pointed out that the Senate Defense Committee had made one finding with respect to the Aluminum Company of America while the House Committee had made an entirely different one. You say that "neither the House Committee's statement nor Secretary Ickes' charge can be accepted as a conclusive settlement of the pros and cons of the aluminum dispute." However, in your final sentence you seem inclined to accept at its face value the report of the Military Affairs Committee and to intimate that perhaps I had been hasty and ill-advised in the charge that I have made with respect to "an industrial concern whose activities have been of a nature to command such extraordinary commendation as that given by the

> I am willing to wager that the writer of this editorial did not know of the nature of the hearing upon which the finding of the House Military Affairs Committee was based. Probably he was not aware that members of the committee did not know that this report was to be presented for consideration and that, although taken by surprise, it was so vigorously opposed that it carried by only a single vote. The Star is too fair and just a paper to give the faith and credit that it does in this editorial to an ex parte hearing at which the person accused was not given an opportunity to present his evidence. It would seem to me that Secretary of the Navy Knox should be looked supon as a hero, instead of being censured and investigated or threatened, for the speech he made in Boston at the meeting of State Governors, Secretary Knox practically said that we should go into the war now.

When we realize that this country, in all of its experiences, in common with England, and nearly all other democracies, never begins to commence to get ready to start to prepare until after we are in a war; that Bernard Baruch was not appointed by President Wilson to be chairman of the War Industries Board until after we had been in the World War 11 months-then we must be realists, and realize that we will do now exactly as we have done in the past, and that the sooner we get into the war, the sooner we will prepare to keep from being beaten, and the longer we stay out, the surer we are that we will be pleasing Hitler, and allowing him to conquer one country after another, until it is our turn. ## Polls on Entry Into War Are Revealing

President Berated On Appointments In Emergency

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Polls of public opinion on the question of whether the United States should enter the war are causing the administration some concern. President Roosevelt took the trouble the other day at his press conference to discount in advance @ &~ the results of a poll now being taken by a newspaper advocating isolationist views. The President pointed out that

David Lawrence a poll which asks the question whether the United States should or should not go to war was a good deal like asking people whether they were for or against sin

But it would be a mistake to ignore the precise nature of these polls just the same. Time and again questions have been asked such as "Would you favor entering the war If Britain collapsed?" and the result is far different from that poll in which the question is confirmed to the query, "Would you favor entering the war?" It is plain that where the national defense enters the picture and the question relates directly to our national safety the percentage which favor using force to maintain security always rises.

If the President studied these numerous polls he would find something else in them rather significant. The people do not respond to abstractions as well as they do to concrete situations. Thus while the present generation has been taught by the history books, and by various cynics who like to misrepresent our attitude toward the first World War. to believe that the United States went to war in 1917 "to make the world safe for democracy." This is not correct. Anybody who takes the trouble to read the Congressional Record of the debate on the night in April, 1917, when the war resolution was discussed, will find a strong undercurrent of sentiment in favor of our entry into the war only because American rights had been violated. The late President Harding, who was then a Senator, took time to make a speech specifically stating that he was casting his war

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. Reliable reports from Moscow state that at the bidding of the Soviet government the remaining "friendly" Embassies and Legations have been warned by the Kremlin to prepare themselves to follow the government to Sverdlovsk (Ekaterinburg), a city east of the Urals, in the event Moscow becomes untenable because of the German advance. Stalin, Molotoff and the other members of the U.S.S.R. government are contemplating moving the capital some 900 miles away from Moscow in the event the capital is directly under the German guns

It is a queer twist of fate that leads the Bolshevik government to think of moving to the very city where Czar Nicholas and the other members of the imperial family were assassinated on July 16, 1918.

Official reports from Moscow indicate the German attack was a complete surprise for the Russians during the first few days of the attack. It appears that for reasons known only to the Soviet general staff, the entire firstline army was strewn along a thin line over 1,000 miles. In no place, these reports say, was the depth greater than 35 miles. It was a long ribbon which the Germans cut at will.

There is no doubt that the Russian troops have fought with unbelievable bravery. But they were outnumbered in tanks and airplanes every time the Germans attacked. Hitler's mechanized forces had the initiative, thus they chose the points which they intended to break and attacked those points with a threeto-one superiority. Although the Soviet armies are superior numerically to the invading forces. the Russian forces were outnumbered at the points chosen by the Nazis for attack.

Thus the first 10 days of the offensive were favorable to the Reich. The Russian high command seemed dazed and did not dare make too large a transfer of troops for fear of uncovering other important strategic points such as those covering Kiev.

After All, Did You Ever Know a Spy?

By HENRY MCLEMORE.

This column should be written in nvisible ink or in code because it deals with spies. It had its beginning a few days ago when 29 foreign espionage agents were rounded up and arrested within a few blocks of my home in New York.

If there were that many enemy spies in the neighborhood. I reasoned, there mustone a crying other people's business. I felt it my duty to volunteer in the American spy service.

I thought this would be as simple as enlisting in the infantry, artillerv or engineer branches of the service. So I picked up the telephone (after first putting on gloves so as to leave no fingerprints) and called the local Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters. A sepulchral voice finally answered "F. B. I. field office."

I told the voice of the F. B. I exactly what I wanted to do. That with the country in a state of emergency, I wanted to be a spy and was there somebody there who could tell me where to report for duty. "I am sorry we cannot tell you that," the F. B. #### Lesson of Value.

The lesson in that experience is still of value. American opinion reacts unfavorably to war today just as did British opinion before Munich and for a long time thereafter. Democratic peoples do not like war and it doesn't take any polls to prove it. What the issue really comes to be today is whether the rights of the United States on the high seas and the most precious of all rights-the right to live in one's territory without molestation-is about to be violated by the Nazi war machine after It gets through with various nations of Europe.

Just now the American people have lulled themselves into a feeling of security because they think Hitler will exhaust himself in Russia. This is the wishful thinking that other nations of Europe have indulged themselves. It never, for instance, was believed that Hitler would venture to take on Russia. If by the end of this summer, as the military experts believe. Hitler has gained his objective-the capture of the resources of the rich Ukraine-he will have fortified himself against the effects of a long blockade.

Any poll taken now doubtless will show a different attitude toward our entry into war than may be the case when Russia is out of the way in the autumn or sooner and when Britain recurs.

From the few accounts about Russia's defensive works, it appears that it possesses three such lines. A covering chain of fortifications was in front of the Minsk region. This has now been taken by the Germans. The second and reportedly the most powerful of all lines is in front of Moscow extending from Leningrad to Kiev. Finally, the third one is the Ural Mountains.

At present, it appears from the conflicting communiques that the second, the Stalin line, is now being attacked. Russian soldiers throughout history have been considered much better on the defensive than on the offensive. Hence in some military quarters it is believed the German forces will meet more stubborn resistance on that line than in any other place they have been fighting since 1939. The reason competent military observers are pessimistic over the Russian prospects in this campaign is that the Soviets have lost a tremendous amount placements of men. In well-informed quarters there is a good deal of speculation as to whether the activities of the fifth column will help the Germans break without trouble through the so-called Stalin line. So far, the agents of that column have done but little work at the front. No panic is being reported from the industrial cities, which are now under the German guns. The population is holding out all right, but it is uncertain when there might be some uprisings in those cities. It is known that the Germans have done a lot of work during the two years they have been the ally of the U.S. S. R. They have been particularly active in factories and ammunition plants. The situation there is unknown to outsiders. since both American and British observers, while treated in a friendly manner by the Soviet authorities, are not allowed any

"Listen." I said on the third repeat, "I want to be a spy. I am healthy, patriotic, have average intelligence and feel that there must be a place for a man who is willing to spend a great deal of his time ferreting out information."

"Listen, fellow," the officer said, 'you'll have to take your place in line. My office is half-filled now with women who want to be 1941 Mati Haris. They come in here every day, four or five of them. and volunteer to hang around night clubs and pick up information. All they want is $100 a week spending money and a few evening clothes.' The officer went on to tell me that all volunteers for spy service were turned down. He said they were turned down for the simple reason that insofar as he knew and insofar as all the other officers knew, there was no such thing as a spy.

"Did you ever know a spy?" the officer asked me. "Did you ever see a spy? Can you tell me the name of a spy? I have been in the Army since long before the last war and I never saw or heard of a spy. As far as I know, the United States doesn't have spies."

Come to think of it, I don't suppose I ever did know a spy. A spy wouldn't be much of a spy, would he, if he went around telling everybody he was a spy, or wearing a red suit marked "spy" on the back. The more you think about it, the more you realize that the only spies who ever got recognition must have been pretty sorry ones, else they never would have gained publicity. The good ones do their work silently, surreptitiously and successfully.

I can't help but be disappointed by my failure to become a spy. In the first place, what in the world will I ever do with that stationery with the letterhead "McLemore-GX234"? In the second. Abercrombie & Fitch is being pretty nasty about taking back my seven new spy ensembles.

In the third place, my beard is still growing.

W. C. Devereaux, Expert Flood Forecaster, Dies By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, July 7.-William Charles Devereaux, 67, whose science cheated raging Ohio River floodwaters of much toll in life and property in 1913 and 1937, died last night.

Senior meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau at Abbe Observatory since May 1, 1911, Mr. Devereaux made his last weather forecast June 27.

Ill for many months with an intestinal ailment, he died at Good Samaritan Hospital which he entered last Wednesday,

The veteran weatherman was regarded as the Nation's No. 1 flood forecaster. In 1937, when an 80foot-high mass of muddy destruction swirled through this part of day and night predicting expected rise of the water.

His predictions gained valuable hours over disaster for stricken valley residents, just as they had done in the famous 1913 flood which roared down on the city from the Miami Valley.

Tide Brings in Body Of Boy, Ending 7-Day Vigil of Father

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 7 .- Each dawn for seven days, early rising ocean-front residents at Edgemere, Long Island, saw Edward Steffens take up a lonely vigil on the boardwalk as the tide came in. What Mr. Steffens watched for was his 11-year-old son. Edward, jr., who he knew would be returned some day by the waves that claimed him while swimming June 28.

The father's patient watch ended yesterday. In a swirl of foam, his son's body was washed up on the sand.

learned today, has urged Congress to enact legislation permitting the Treasury to eliminate import duties on any article certified by any department or agency to be useful for national defense

The proposal has drawn charges from opponents that it would give the administration a free hand to eliminate tariffs at will. The measure provides that duties may be wiped out on goods imported "by or on behalf of" Government departments or agencies. Some legislators have contended this language is broad enough to give the Treasury virtual control over the tariff to learn from Chief of Staff Marshall that the limitations imposed by Congress have "hamstrung" the development of the army as an effective detense force.

In the midst of our observance of a day commemorating our birthright of freedom, so precious now in a world half enslaved, Americans were warned by General Marshall that these limitations should be immediately removed.

General Marshall said that Congress should move quickly to enable the army to retain selectees and National Guardsmen in service for whatever period required and to provide for "whatever defensive measures that may be necessary" by the armed forces of the United States for the "security of the American people."

Our Chief of Staff asked that this be done only in order that we have a "fair opportunity"-mark those words-"to protect ourselves against the coldly calculated, secret and sudden action that might be directed against us."

We know by now what this secret and sudden action can be. We know by the mounting toll of other nations murdered by the cold and ruthless Nazi war machine. We cannot delude ourselves into believing that if we cross our fingers the ever-widening circle of conquest will not encompass us.

The heads of our army and navy are our chosen military experts. We have every right to respect their words as the deliberate findings of those best qualified to utter them. They have every right to our confidence.

And they ask only that America be given a chance—a fair chance -to take defensive steps where these steps will be most effective. On this there is no room for disunity except that voiced by a minority in and out of Congress.

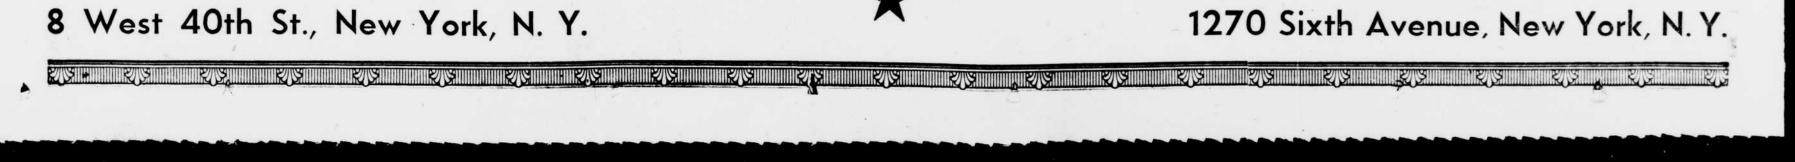

The Committee to Defend America and the Fight for Freedom Committee already have pledged support to Secretary of the Navy Knox's call for the employment of the American Navy to clear the Atlantic of our foes, the Nazis and their allies. These representative bodies unite in supporting both Secretary Knox and Secretary of War Stimson against the noisy clamor of those who for too long have obstructed preparedness and endangered the national safety. These organizations speak the true sentiments of an overwhelming majority of Americans.

And these two organizations now ask that Congress cease allowing itself to be wagged by the isolationist tail. They ask that our national representative body begin this day to be representatives in the fullest sense. They also ask for leadership at the Capitol end of Pennsylvania Avenue. They urge that Congress respond to the urgent plea of General Marshall. They ask support for Secretary Knox. They ask patriotic initiative instead of obstruction and delay when time is so vital.

Win-Hungry American League Eager to Resume Glamorous All-Star Classic

THE HOT-AIR LEAGUE

Win, Lose or Draw Pride-Hurt Loop By FRANCIS E. STAN. Star Staff Correspondent.

One Time When the Bettors Are Mournful

DETROIT, July 7 .- The bettors are saying mournfully that there is no use in wagering against the American League. The boys in the back rooms don't like the propositions. They are, of course, referring to the annual All-Star baseball game. It comes off here tomorrow for the ninth consecutive year

The American Leaguers have won more times than the National Leaguers. The score in games is 5 for the Americans and 3 for the Nationals, as we recall it. But within the last 16 months or so, the National Leaguers have held the upper hand. They won the 1940 Finnish benefit game at Tampa, which was nothing except an early-season test of the two big loops. They won the 1940 All-Star game in July and they won the World Series which was between the Cincinnati Reds and Detroit Tigers.

This is an American League city, of course, and, perhaps, the most rabid of all baseball towns. Yet this same game, transferred to Pittsburgh Leaguers are thoroughly tired of it or to Brooklyn, would find the American Leaguers as favorites. The two of mind when they tangle with their leagues don't play the same kind of basebali. The National League teams National League rivals in the ninth are like the Billy Conns. They put on a show and they jump into the annual All Star game at Briggs lead but there remains the threat of a knockout punch, a la Joe Louis. Stadium tomorrow. That is why the bettors aren't willing to go overboard against hard hitters like Joe Di Maggio and Ted Williams and the rest.

Di Maggio, Williams Always Are Threats

The National League has been mopping up of late. The Nationals, whereas the National Leaguers are at long last, have won a big All-Star game and a World Series in the same glutted with victories lately almost year. Yet they are not outranked by the Americans. There are many ways by which the Americans can win; there is only one method by which the Nationals can win

For the most part the National League produces only one-run-at-atime team. The emphasis is on finesse, moderate power and defensive Finnish relief, and they never play. Every now and then this type of team wins a championship. Yet there are very few who are willing to bet on this team.

The American Leaguers display a lustier, more rugged spirit. The at St. Louis a year ago and then game of baseball, more than a century old, is standardized to an astonish- detailed the Cincinnati Reds to trim ing degree and yet there are certain peculiarities. The American Leaguers the Detroit Tigers in the world still stress the primitive forces of rowdy, fruitful innings when a lost game series suddenly is won.

This, then, is one of the reasons why the bettors and the bookies are afraid to play against the American League teams. This is why the American League Ali-Stars, who face the National Leaguers, rank over the other guys. There is no way of telling when Joe Di Maggio is likely to lift a ball over a fence. There is no method of determining what Ted Williams is likely to do.

Keeler: He Belonged in Dad's Day

These muscular gentlemen are individualists. They are likely to hit screaming line drives over the fences or scorch the fairways with singles. Nobody knows what these fellows are going to do.

The National Leaguers, by comparison, are relatively easy to follow. Maggio, Ted Wiliams, Rudy York They play for single runs. They are the artistes of the game. They delve and the other mighty batsmen of into the study of let-up pitches and knuckle balls. They work hard to put the aroused American Leaguers across squeeze plays. In short, the National Leaguers work,

It seems only vesterday that the man with the little mustache started disturbing the world with his gutteral guff, and about the same time sports fans over here were occupied with the selection of American and National League stars to perform in a game that fulfilled the dreams of every baseball lover.

That was nine years ago, and in the meantime the man with the little mustache has upset the stomach of the world and the annual all-star game has become installed as a classic and a tradition. ## By JOHN LARDNER,

Hubbell Stopped 'Em All But Rude Gehringer

The 1934 game, if you remember. produced a great sequence of pitching by Carl Hubbell, who struck out Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin in succession. However, we are apt to forget that immediately before this sequence began Mr. Hubbell had to pitch to Mr. Gehringer, and Mr. Gehringer rudely rapped him for a single.

Today the Gray Ghost of Detroit starting today. is washed up, at least for All-Star purposes. He failed to make the squad in 1939 and 1940. His logical successor is Joe Gordon, who played almost all of the last two All-Star games. But Gordon does not reign alone as Gehringer did-and that is the text of our sermon today. There is another great second baseman in the American League who, I am happy to say, gets the recognition he deserves this year.

I don't mean Ray Mack of Cleveland, who made the squad in his freshman year last season. Mack is a fine player, but give him time to cook a little. In Boston a dark. quiet fellow named Robert Pershing Doerr has been cooking for four full years, and now is as good a portion of second baseman as you will find anywhere

Hogan Picked Over Ruling Aces for P. G. A. Title

Nelson, Wood Second Choices in Classic Opening Today

Spectacular Practice Rounds Gain Strong Support for Ben

By RUSS NEWLAND

Sports Writer DENVER, July 7 .- Framed in the champion and the United States Open titleholder relegated to the 1941 National Golfers' Association Professional tournament started today at picturesque Cherry Hill

Hogan, the trans-Benny planted Texan, was picked as the man to beat as the field of more than a hundred crack shots opened fire in the first round of the 36 qualifying holes.

Pre-tournament drills indicated par 71 would be trimmed with many predicting qualifying honors would be won on a score of 140 or under. National Open Kingpin Craig Wood, fresh from last month's spectacular victory, was passed up in the rush to get on the Hogan bandwagon. So was Byron Nelson, battling in defense of his P. G. Hogan was the solid favorite and It was Hogan the others were laving for. The 138-pounder with the heavyweight golfing punch earned the sometimes unenviable role of favorite by a series of spectacular practice performances

In a final drill yesterday he clubbed a 66 from the exacting mile high course, with its back drop of snow-capped rockies. In 15 or more rounds, his average was under par for the 35-36-71 test. He won the Vardon trophy for point standing last year and is the present leader besides topping the money winners in 1940 and heading this division for the first half of this season Open Champion Wood also unlimbered his war clubs in peak form In a brief tune-up he equalled par A. standard-bearer Nelson moved into competition seemingly bit off his usually well-balance game. ## Their Use Proves Site Is in Virginia, A. B. C. Board Told

By JOHN W. THOMPSON. The new National Airport a Gravelly Point was built with P. W. A. funds specifically forbidden for use in the District, and there is "no question" that it is in Virginia. Representative Smith, Democrat, of Virginia today told the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

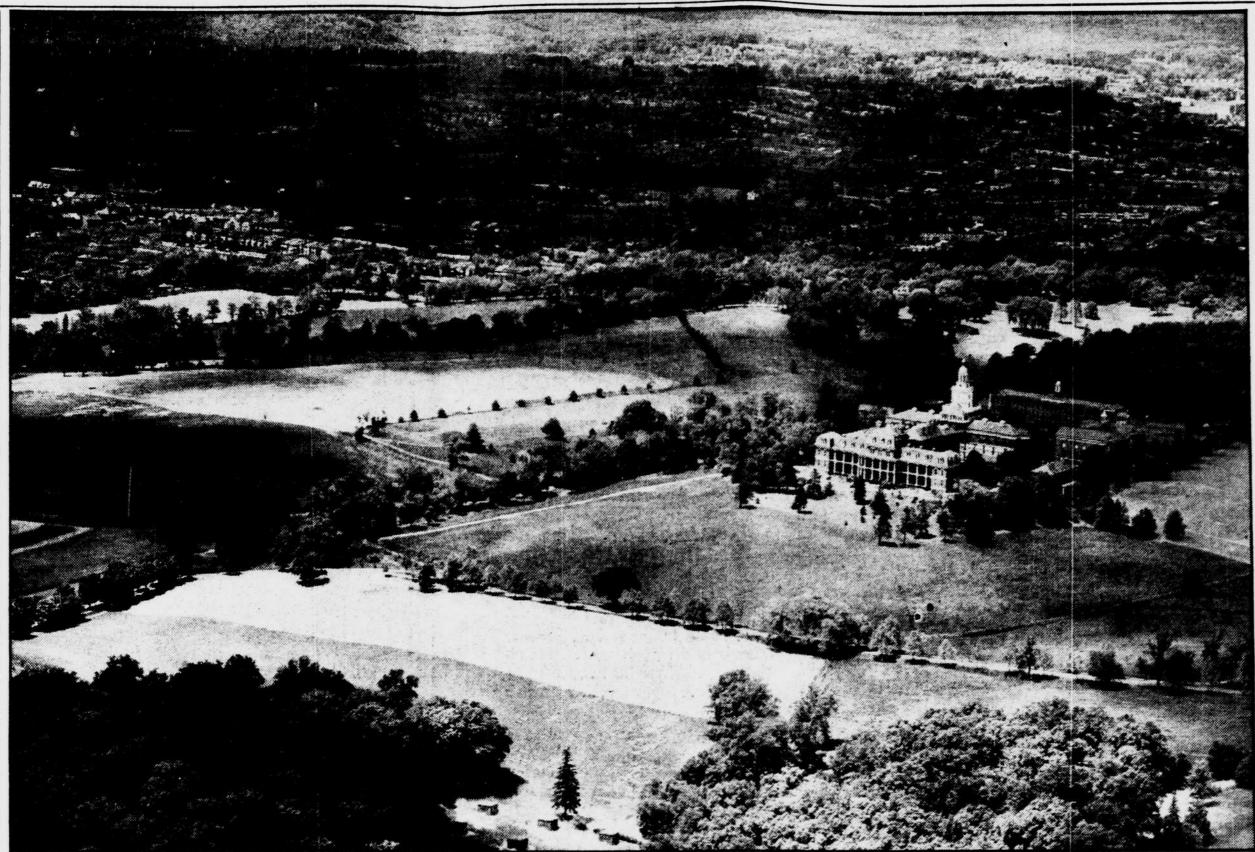

Appearing in opposition to the issuance by the District of a license for sale of liquor by the drink at the airport, Mr. Smith insisted the board had no jurisdiction to issue licenses in Virginia and warned that State authorities would probably prosecute anybody acting under a license so issued.

He was supported by Thomas S Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and W. G. Hayward, civil engineer for the National Park Service, both of whom testified the airport building is some 200 feet inside Virginia, measuring from the highwater mark of 1791.

Shoreline Has Changed. Under questioning from Mr. Smith and Chairman Thomas E. Lodge of the A. B. C. Board, Mr. Hayward, who surveyed the Gravelly Point location, said he never had seen any map that placed the airport building location in the District, although it was indicated that the shoreline changed from time to time between 1791 and the present.

Former Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, representing Air Terminal Services, Inc., told the Liquor Board it was not the proper agency to fix the Virginia-District boundary line. He added that the board should be bound by the ruling of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech of May 19 that the airport is in the District.

Robert G. Thatch, vice president of Air Terminal Services. Inc., told the board they were already operating a coffee shop under verbal permission from the District Health Department pending issuance of a full restaurant license when the necessary equipment is completely first Derby Racers shop license has already been Washington's latest traffic victim, Jean Lincoln, 31. of 1327 Fairmont street N.W., died yesterday from injuries received late Saturday night when the bantam car in which he was riding and a sedan collided at Seventh and P streets N.W. His death carried the fatality total for this year five ahead of that for the same period in 1940.

Others Killed in Accidents.

Other traffic deaths during the week end were those of Howard D. Norwood, 17, Montgomery County, Md., injured in an accident near Clarksburg, Md., and Louis Dent, 65, colored, Riverdale, Md., who died in Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon following an accident in Riverdale Buford Raines, 36. of Merrifield. Fairfax County, Va., died in a Fredericksburg hospital yesterday of injuries received in an auto-truck accident on route 1 Friday night, the Associated Press reported.

The drowning victim was Albert N. Bond, 41, Baltimore, who jumped into the Patuxent River from a rowboat to recover an oar early yesterday and disappeared. Two companions reported that the incident happened during a rainstorm shortly after midnight and that Mr. Bond velled to them that h the oar, but could not find the boat in the dark. Matches lighted by the two men failed to guide him. In the crash near Bel Air, State Trooper Thomas Ward, who investigated the accident with Sergt. J. T. 2. In a letter to Representative Smith dated July 5 and signed by the acting administrator of the C. A. A., the ban for District use of the P. W. A. funds with which the airport was constructed was recalled. It was stated that "for accounting purposes," the airport is in Virginia. 3. In the contract between the corporation and the C. A. A., language read by Mr. Thatch to the board describes the airport location as partly in the District and partly in Virginia.

D. C. Ban Is In 1938 Act.

The ban on the use of the P. W. A. funds in the District was contained in the 1938 act which appropriated funds for Federal construction projects in the States and continental United States "outside the District of Columbia." From this fund, $3,900.600 was allotted for construction of the airport. This information was contained in the letter from the acting administrator of the C. A. A. to Representative Smith, who introduced a copy of the letter into the record.

"You can't have it in Virginia for one purpose." Representative Smith said, "and in the District for another.

Mr. Seal urged it was not inconsistent to do so in this case, indicating that the C. A. A. ruling was arbitrary for the purpose of allocating funds and did not determine the boundary.

Mr. Smith said he planned to write a letter to the C. A. A. asking an explanation of its ruling that the airport was in Virginia for "accounting purposes" and its apparent Hamilton, Derby director, has inapproval of the District designation structed them to pay particular in the license application.

Woman Who Helped Him Through College Held For Grand Jury

B: the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 7 .-Prosecutor Floyd E. Cook of Monroe County today advanced the theory that the pistol slaying of Charles P. Mattingly, 41. attorney-examiner for the Indiana Public Service Commission, was motivated by the jealousy of a woman friend of college davs

The Indianapolis lawyer was shot five times through the back Saturday night as he sat against a screened kitchen window in the home of Gus Nickas, a confectionery owner, with whom he and his 33year-old wife were visiting. He died in a hospital within two hours. Mrs. Caroline Pavne, 43, tall, dark-haired business manager of the Bloomington Daily Telephone, whom officials described as a one-time "very good friend" of Mr. Mattingly, was taken in custody at her home. Coroner R. A. Demotte ordered Mrs. Pavne, a divorcee, held for the county grand jury which will convene September 3.

Threats Charged.

Mr. Demotte said that Mr. Mattingly on his deathbed had told him Mrs. Payne had threatened his life several times. Mr. Cook, who reported he found letters written by Mr. Mattingly to Mrs. Payne in her purse, said her jealousy over Mr. Mattingly's wife was the cause of the shooting.

Although Mrs. Payne made no statement, Mr. Cook said her niece, Mrs. Myrtle Forth of Bloomington, told him that Mr. Mattingly for several years had roomed in the home of Mrs. Payne, the divorced wife of a State Senator.

"She helped put him through school," the prosecutor quoted Mrs. Forth as saying. "set him up in practice and helped him get the job with the Public Service Commission

Pistols Found in Home. Mr. Mattingly, who graduated from Indiana University law school in 1926 and had a law office here until 1936, was married on May 5, 1940, to Luravne Oberholtzer Witchen, who worked in his office. He was after he had attempted, police reappointed secretary of the commission in 1936 and two years later was ing a hotel in the 700 block of G named attorney-examiner.

Mr. Cook said that two new automatic pistols, of .32 and .38 caliber, were found in Mrs. Payne's home, and five of the six chambers in the .38 weapon were emptied. He also said that her shoes fitted the Nickas window.

Mr. George Vournas Host at Holiday Party for 50 Guests: Grosvenors Leave Tomorrow

Week end house parties were the simplest form of entertainment over the rainy holidays, although a few cocktail parties also enlivened the days. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Lacy entertained at their Leesburg home for the former Premier of Russia, Mr. Alexander Kerensky, who is leaving Leesburg today. He was honored at a luncheon on the Fourth by Mr. and Mrs. Lacy, who are planning to leave soon for Centerville, at Cape Cod, to spend the summer.

Mr. George Vournas had planned a party at his farm near Rockville. but the rain made the roads to the farm impassable, so yesterday he substituted a local cafe for the farm, and the party went merrily on.

More Than 50 Guests

Attend Vournas Party.

Among the 50 guests at this gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley and their house guest, Miss Josephine Barlow of Havana. Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley will entertain at cocktails tomorrow for Miss Barlow.

Other guests included Senorita Christina Michels, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels; Miss Nancy Ordway, Mr. Rovce Powell, Mr. George Williams and Mrs. Lee Murphy, all of whom added to the gaiety by offering their own particular brands of entertainment-whether singing, reciting or playing the piano. Also in the party were Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Sims Snow, Miss Emily Davis, Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs. William T. Mann, Mr. George S. Depasta, Counselor of the Greek Legation: Dr. Kemper Simpson, Mrs. Donald Downs, Mrs. Royce Powell and several others.

Entertain at Cocktails.

Among vesterday's cocktail hosts were Maj. and Mrs. R. A. Boone, who entertained in their Albemarle street home to honor the correspondent for the Japanese news agency, Mr. Robert Horiguchi, and Mrs. Horiguchi.

The Beer and Skittles Club, too. was undaunted by the weather, and gathered as planned at Wolf Trap Farm, where Miss Joan Dodd again was hostess to the group. There were about 30 in the gathering and they plan to enjoy a party each week with various members of the club as host or hostess. Mrs. H. A. Neilson also was among yesterday's hostesses, her party being held at the Marhall Exnicos home on Tracy place, which her mother, Mrs. McCord Boyle, has taken for the summer.

There was certainly no lack of social activity for the stay-at-homes this Fourth of July. Loads of the men were too busy to get away, and business at Oklahoma City and a great many of the fair sex-for one reason or another-lingered on in Seminole, Okla. He came to Washtown, too. Best reason for not going away was Eddie Gardner's. All ington to study law at George Washpacked and ready to set off for the week end at the Bill Doellers' in War-, ington University. While a student renton, he went out to get in his car only to find it had been stolen! True the rain marred all the outdoor picnics and tennis and swimming parties planned for the holiday, but every one was so glad to be cool once again that none seemed to mind. At the Moran McConihes' Piney Spring Federal Housing Administration as Farm party the night of the Fourth, we had our "before-dinner" cocktails in front of a blazing wood fire and (wearing heavy coats or sweaters) set our fireworks off in a quiet drizzle.

Guests at the McConihes were Mr. and Mrs. John Wilmerding, who've just leased the Reber Littlehales' adorable house out on Burning Tree road for a year; the young Godfrey Kauffmann's; Mike McConihe's brother, Malcolm. jr., who said he was staying at Mike and Margot's "town house" for a few days; Mrs. Pearsons Rust and Charles Newbold. "My but you're well known in this part of Maryland," said Mr. Newbold to "Mike." "We stopped any number of times to ask how to get here-and every one knew just who you are." Mike looked rather pleased and smug about this-when "Chuck" Newbold added-"But you should have seen the people we asked!"

Soviet Strategy Calls For Elastic Defense, Heavy Pressure

Reds Expect Long War, Believe Weight Will Wear Down Enemy

(Maj. E. Cecil-Smith, who commanded the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion of Canadian volunteers in the Spanish Republican Army, served with many Red Army instructors and advisers attached to the Spanish forces. He learned their military theories which they are now putting into practice against the Nazi invaders. In the following article, written for the Canadian Press and brought to you by The Star's Special News Service, Maj. Cecil-Smith discusses the Russians' war strategy.

By MAJ. E. CECIL-SMITH.

TORONTO, July 7 .- For many years the officers of Soviet Russia's Army have looked forward with absolute fatalism to a war with Germany, and their grand strategy is based on the belief it will be a long war during which the great resources of the country and the weight of its man and machine power gradually will wear down the enemy

This I learned, among other things about the Russian Army, from close association with a number of Red Army officers during two years of front-line service in the Spanish civil war.

radically from the time-table "blitz" theories of Fascism which call for the building up of everything for a sudden attack which must carry all before it. The Russian idea is expressed in the tactics of continually increased pressure, to be brought to bear cumulatively until the enemy cracks.

An effort was made to modify this tactic and strategy to the Spanish war, but it eventually failed because Spain has not the resources or man power of Russia and was not capable of producing all its military needs at home, since some of the most important arsenals were | officers that even if a whole enemy in the hands of the Fascists.

Tactic Proved Decisive.

But the Soviet Union is not Republican Spain. It has great factories and resources, enormous man power, and great spaces over which to maneuver. In the last two respects, it somewhat resembles China.

In the short campaigns of 1936 and 1939 against Japan in the east and in the Finnish war of 1939-40 we have been able to see this tactic in practice. While perhaps not so dramatic as the German time-table assaults, the so-called "blitz." it has proved effective and decisive. The Red Army won all these engagements by gradually putting into the struggle the weight of its whom I met in Spain certainly proved themselves capable of adapting themselves to new conditions faster than most of us, whose earlier training in British and Canadian armies made Spanish conditions seem almost impossible at times. Russian defensive tactics, as shown by the proposals made to the Spanish Republican Army by Soviet instructors, are based on the belief that there is no such thing as a literally impregnable line, provided the enemy has sufficient power and determination. A fixed immobile defense has no dynamics and plays into the hands the enemy by reducing the capacity of the defenders to maneuver. The task of defense is to prepare the ground for counter-attack, and this can best be done by envisaging a battle of maneuver from the very outset

"Elastic Defense" Theory.

Rather than stage a series of heroic stands where units perish to the last man, one of their tactics is the so-called "elastic defense,' a modification of the defensive offense. The stationary defense may win medals, but it does not always win the battle. On the other hand, the Russian advisers would say, you may well weaken your whole line by pouring your supports into the weak position. Since you are bound to give up some of your positions if the enemy shows sufficient determination, then why not decide in advance which these shall be, instead of waiting for the adversary to make your mind up for you, the Russians ask. It is today an axiom of war that a defense position should be organized in depth. The Russians say that the individual unit should not try to take in too much depth, but it is better advised to maintain a force of from a quarter to a The Russian strategy differs third of its effectives as mobile reserves.

Was a Matter of Maneuver.

Of course, the Russian "elastic defense" does not mean that no positions are to be held to the last man. Some key positions must never be surrendered, as the whole defensive line may hinge on them. If this is done on a large scale, instead of a large number of small traps, one great elastic bulge might be opened up to engulf an entire division or army corps

In fact, in theoretical discussion of the tactic I was told by Russian mobile column were to break through the front in this manner, it would not necessarily be anything to worry about, provided the competent authorities had made the necessary plans in advance to deal with them This will explain why Soviet defense does not depend on some inflexible line of fortifications to keep out an advancing enemy. True, there will be a number of relatively impregnable defended areas, but war is considered primarily a thing of maneuver in the minds of Russian officers.

Against Hitler and his allies in the present conflict they will probably have to exert themselves to the limit, for Russian officers with whom I spoke were quite plain in their belief that victory does not go to the piker in war any more than it does in a poker game.

But in 1939 they expressed themselves as well prepared for the contingency and capable of winning out. Since then the Red Army, air force and navy have certainly been greatly strengthened, and on May 1 Marshal Timoshenko stated that the army equipment had again been remodernized within the last three years

Minneapolis Pet Is First Animal Victim Of Allergy Found

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, The Star's Special News Service.

NEW YORK, July 7.-All hay fever victims owe two bows to Mitzie, fox terrier living in Minneapolis: One curtsey of sympathy, because Mitzie has human hay fever, the first animal ever to show a proved human case.

One bow of gratitude, for Mitzie makes it possible for science to use animals to hunt for the hay fever cure.

Many thousands of other dogs, and probably cats and horses. also owe Mitzie gratitude, because thier longunrecognized sufferings from hay fever now can be relieved. The human medicines seem to work for animals as well as for men.

Mitzie's case was reported by F W. Wittich, M. D., of Minneapolis. It developed some important discoveries about allergy.

Mitzie Knew She Was Sick.

Mitzie really new she was sick. She would enter the doctor's office slightly tense, walk up to him and stand almost rigid. Regularly she came this way for injections and nasal sprays or capsules when necessary. She would stand patiently throughout treatments

When they were finished, she leaped into the air and frisked about the office like a happy child. She knew the treatment was over. Her co-operative attitude was a help in identifying her trouble as the human disease, something which medical men for many years doubted could be possible.

The dramatic proof came when Dr. Wittich was able by skin tests to transfer Mitzie's hay fever sensitivity to her mistress, and there to identify it as the human kind. He also transferred it to another dog. Mitzie's trouble was ordinary ragweed pollen. Each ragweed season in Minneapolis, for years, she sneezed, cried tears, rubbed her nose like a child. She itched all over, too.

Hay Fever Suspected.

Away from ragweed areas. Mitzie would get better. She became ill again the moment she returned to the pollen area. Her owner thought it must be some sort of hay fever. but. Dr. Wittich said. three competent veterinarians failed to find that so.

A Minneapolis newspaper picture of Mitzie set Dr. Wittich on his search. The caption said Mitzie had "canine hay fever."

Her case was only the prelude to more important discoveries. Hay fever was found in another female. and then in a male. A litter of allergic puppies is expected soon. These animals, with known hereditary allergies exactly like the kind, are expected to make possible two important tests. One is the search for a hay fever cure. The dogs probably will help doctors experiment with new treatments. The other test concerns anaphylactic shock, which is loss of some of the body's protection to a second exposure of a harmless substance. Animals and humans have this kind of shock.

• B-7

Other Allergies Reported.

It now appears possible that human allergy (hay fever) and shock, and the animal counterparts, are all one and the same mechanism. Reports of other animal allergies are coming in. One is a horse in Ohio, which breaks out in hives (human type) if given one chocolate drop. Another is a Texas cat sensitive to food.

During the first four months of 1941, 3.100.000 gallons of foreign spirits were sold in the United States, an increase of 12 per cent over the same period of 1940, the Commerce Department reported today.

Aided by talk of both higher prices and scarcity, sales of Scotch whisky by importers rose sharply in April-783,000 tax gallons, as compared with 525,000 gallons in April, 1940. During the month, 717,-000 gallons of Scotch whisky reached the United States, bringing the total for the four months to 2,200,000 gallons. This was 1.800.000 gallons less than in the same period last year, when importers were building up their stocks.

Daylight-Saving Time Finds D. C. Divided On Feasibility

Indications Are Capital Will Not Balk if Plan Is Applied Nationally

Co. pointed to a curious change which air-conditioning has brought about.

The local peak load of power. which used to occur around 7 p.m., is recorded today at about 1:45 p.m. due to the air-conditioning of most Government buildings.

The air-conditioning demand, it was explained, increases during the morning hours of summer as the temperature outdoors rises. In other words, the hotter the natural at mosphere, the more power it requires to maintain the artificial atmosphere at a constant temperature. However although the late afternoon may bring the day's maximum heat, the power load begins diminising then because the Federal offices start quitting work at 3 o'clock, and from then until 6, as employes leave in successive waves, the air-conditioning is turned off in the emptied building

Near Peak in Morning Rush. The old peak came at a time transportation, cooking and other power resources were most in demand. It probably was past 7 in the longest days of the years and undoubtedly was earlier in winter, but that hour was the average. There also was a near-peak during the morning rush hour. But air-conditioning, though not yet the major power demand, requires a considerable part of the city's resources, enough, along with other constant uses, to balance the scales and bring about the heaviest load

How much illumination daylight time would save has not been estimated in the kilowatt-hours-and a rough estimate is the best any one could do-but engineers say it would be substantial

At the height of America's last war effort, on March 19, 1918, it was decreed by Congress that clocks be set ahead one hour the last Sunday in March and turned back the last Sunday in October. It was recorded that this saved a vast amount of electric power and coal, as well, in plants where light current was generated by steam. It also was reported to have had the effect of increasing food supplies by allowing farmers and suburban home owners to spend an extra hour in their gardens in the evening

Leisure Time Becomes Argument. Afterward advocates of daylight time urged it on grounds other than industrial. They said it gave the people more leisure during the long days when they could make use of it. Factory and white collar workers alike had another daylight hour to enjoy as they pleased. Daylight was ed at the other end from period when most folk were asleepthe dawn. They lost an hour's sleep the night the clocks were turned ahead, but after that it became routine to follow the time and no one noticed the differences.

War daylight time was repealed in August, 1919, and since then some cities and some whole States have clung to it, while others have refused to touch their clocks. This has brought more or less confusion. Washington, with standard times, finds itself an hour behind New York, Philadelphia and Chicago between April and October. The railroads, maintaining standard time find numerous cities an hour ahead of their schedules, and travelers must keep a wary eye on two sets of clocks.

The Federal Power Commission is engaged in a power survey to determine the likely effect of Nationwide daylight time at this crucial era.

Critical Time Forecast.

An official of the commission said there was no doubt the measure would save substantial amounts of power used for illumination.

A critical power situation was foreseen recently by T. R. Tate, director of the defense power staff of the commission. If, he said, "we are going to double airplane production. quadruple tank production, treble powder, small arms ammunition and rifle production and multiply output of machine guns and other materials, then by the end of 1941 the power situation will be critical indeed."

Facing a shortage of aluminum rital defense metal, essential in plane production, defense chiefs are casting about for the development of additional hydroelectric power. Sufficient power to carry on the electronic process of producing aluminum is a more serious problem than finding enough raw material.

Some Dislike Clock Tampering. There is no record that wartime daylight saving caused any particular flurry in Washington, though some residents disliked it, opposing time-tampering on principle. But then there were so many war measures, such as meatless days and darkened white ways, htat this one was taken in stride.

The Board of Trade reports that most of its members would like to see daylight time back in the Capital. The Executive Committee recently went on record as asserting that if in the interest of national defense it is deemed desirable, the District should go along with other communities in adopting it. But a recent effort to obtain the time change for Washington alone was blocked in the House District Committee.

In 1922 this city tried the experiment of advancing the time of reporting for work in the morningand, theoretically, milk and paper deliveries and everything else-an hour without changing the clocks. The results were described as anything but happy. The trouble was, say reports of that day, some did and some didn't. And President Harding called it off, so far as Federal departments went, and private interests quit even sooner.

Asserting the man assaulted by Leonard "rushed to the capitol" to see Gov. Rivers, the jury added:

"The Governor claimed to be ignorant of the whole affair and stated his secretary had, perhaps, granted them. * * * The Governor recalled Leonard's pardon and ordered the money refunded. Chandler went back to the camp and returned the $25.

Another accusation by this jury was that "the racket netted one close adviser of the Governor $6,000 in two years, including a $1,000 fee from a lottery racket operated with 16 previous convictions.

Capitol records showed 203 pardons issued the last week of Mr. Rivers' administration, and a total of 1.879 pardons for the four years he was in office. His successor, Eugene Talmadge, was recorded as pardoning 406 during four years of his previous regime.

In discussing his pardon record, Mr. Rivers asserted that for every man he gave his freedom, he rejected 25 or 30 others.

Expedition Is Forced To Use Car Heater Near Equator

Pan American Highway Group Drops From Cold To Sweltering Heat

The Pan American Highway Expedition, headed by Sullivan C. Richardson, former Detroit newspape rman, has reached Peru in its slow and often tedious journey over Latin American roads, both good and bad. The party, which is traveling in a specially built automobile, expects to motor to the tip of South America, its southern terminus.

By SULLIVAN C. RICHARDSON. PAN AMERICAN HIGHWAY EXPEDITION, Lima, Peru (Via air mail) .- The first time this expedition turned on the car heater after leaving winter in Michigan last November was within one day of the Equator. We were crossing a range of the Andes at 12,000 feet.

In the morning we were shivering in cold wind two miles in the air. By noon we were down sweltering in the heat of heavy tropics. By night we were back up in the cold again. Three times that day we climbed from low altitudes of uncomfortable heat to altitudes of over 10,000 feet. We spent the night in a broken and abandoned mudgrass hut above 11,000 feet where greasy smokesoot - accumulated from years of inside fire when the hut was inhabited-hung from the bamboo gables like ragged black moss flipping in the cold wind.

From Bogota, Columbia, where we sent the last article north, we traveled good gravel roads to Quito, Ecuador. There were four major mountain passes over 10,000 feet in Colombia, and a long stretch of 'sola via'-one way traffic-over single track mountain road. Traffic goes one way in the morning, the other way in the afternoon.

Cars Well Inspected.

Before a car is allowed to start this one way stretch, it is well inspected by an officer. The car must be equipped with chains in case rain is encountered on the high mountain grades. The officer banged our car up the road at 40 miles an hour, whirled it around and tried to stop on a dime with our 1,000 pounds of luggage.

Twelve times that morning, in fact, until 2 o'clock that afternoon, we were stopped by officers with chains across the road. They cautioned us about dump trucks working ahead, shovel men on the curves. speed on the grades, etc. We listened respectfully, got their rubber stamp and signature on our long page of "permit" paper we carried, and went on. At the last chain, I begged the officer to sign the paper and return it to me. I wanted evidence of Colombia's efficiency in handling traffic on mountain grades. It's control we'd never think of in the States. But at least it gives a lot of namesigners and rubber-stamp makers a The mountain sides in Colombia and Ecuador are plastered with native farms. Like plaques hanging on a wall, these acres cover the pre-cipitous slopes. And in most places the irregularity of sizes and boundaries give the scene an appearance of gigantic spreads of green and yellow "cobblestone" kitchen linoleum tipped on edge and glued to the sky. We've never seen anything like it before. Both Colombia and Ecuador continued unbroken the train of magnificent co-operation the expedition has received from officials of government from the Rio Grande to Lima. Our car is full of cameras, film, equipment and camp necessities. Not once have we paid a cent of duty, or deposit, on the car or its equipment. Certainly, we believe that indicates friendliness and cooperation from our Latin American neighbors that sets a record difficult to beat by anybody. We appreciate such courtesy and cordiality. Snow on Peaks Near Equator. At the equator, a few miles north of Quito, we stopped more than three hours. A great monument marks the spot, with latitude carved in stone. Two high peaks sit within a few miles of the monument, one almost exactly on the equatorial line. Both are covered with snow that never melts. While in Quito, the expedition on a side trip down into the jungles along the Pacific to visit the littlephotographed "Colorado" Indians. We wallowed in mud for two days to reach them. Three times we had to lift our mules out of the bog by their ears and tails, and pick camera cases out of the mud. When we finally reached the home of a family clan we found a fiesta going on. For three days they had been drinking quiche and aguadiente, and the old medicine man didn't like our cameras. I left mine running as they came up the trail from their canyon pow wow: men first, women and children lagging. I walked away, but the whir of the camera motor told the old medicine man happy. what was happening. I put the An excerpt from my notebook, coronet of twisted cloth about the thickness of three fingers. # 'Family Man' Is Still in Existence Despite Modern Cynicism and Ridicule

Human Nature Unchanged By Flippancy of Today; Old Virtues Persist

Our Worn Cliches of the Past Will Provide Only Laughs For the Modern-Minded

By Dorothy Dix

Where are the cliches of yesteryear? Isn't it queer that the phrases that were once on every tongue pass into "innocuous desuetude," as Mr. Cleveland was wont to say, and you would be just as much astonished to hear one as you would be to meet an old friend you thought dead?

As a proof of this, take the fact that I was actually startled when I read in the paper the other day that a certain prominent politician was s "family man." I hadn't heard a man called "a family man" for years and years, yet once it was the favorite orchid that we pinned on the breast of good, substantial citizens. The kind of men, you know, who think that one wife at a time is a-plenty and who are more interested in their stenographers' spelling than they are in their hosiery; who welcome every new baby as a bundle from heaven instead of one more brat to support: who mow their own grass and raise prize dahlias, and who spend their evenings at home instead of at a night club.

There must be millions upon millions of men like that still extant, for, after all, there is enough virtue and substance left in the country to keep it a going concern, but nobody ever thinks of describing them as family men. They are called "good citizens." "men of vision." "pioneers in this or that" "successful doctors, or lawyers, or merchants," but we never mention that they are good husbands and fathers. Probably not even a "family man" would want -

'Urge to Tinker' Responsible For Nail Polish Nuisance. Savs Today's Observer

By John W. Stepp (Ed. note: In the first in a short series of comments on fashions and beauty donated by masculine members of The Star staff, while the fashion editor is on vacation, our Mr. Stepp expresses a typical male reaction to the fingernail problem.)

Now and then we may hear a person say: "The world is made upof many kinds of people." Those words are true about the world and about any country or city. Even a village may have "many kinds" of people-some tall, others short, some dark, others light.

The whole earth has about 2.000 million persons. The exact number is not known and never will be. Many lands do not have good census reports and even the best reports have mistakes. Yet the figure . given is believed to be fairly close.

The most common way of "classing" the people of the world has been by skin color. We speak of the white, yellow, black and brown races. Also we may hear of the "red race" as the one which includes the American Indians.

Close study seems to have proved that American Indians came from Asia. It is believed their ancestors belonged mainly to the so-called "vellow" or "Mongol" race, but there races in some parts of the earth. probably was a mixture of people India is an example of a place with dark brown skins among the where that has gone on. ## Tragedy Needs a New Girl, With Bette Davis Quitting

It's Only Temporary, but Her Job Is Vacant as She Tries Comedy; Theaters Cut Prices to Servicemen

By JAY CARMODY.

Tragedy has had no finer hand-maiden than Bette Davis. As its victim, the frail lady set upon by a malevolent and ungallant fate, she has been superb. As its agent, an avenging fury wreaking havoc among the weak and disenchantment among the good, there has been no one like her.

Local Drama Groups It Was a Neat Deal 'Shipknackers' Used to Pull, Roadside Reports

By HARRY MacARTHUR.

Unless you are John Kieran (which the odds are against), an authority on Civil War history, an executive of Lloyds of London, or a member of the Roadside Theater's staff, you probably haven't a notion in the world as to what a "shipnacker" might be. Well, you will in just a minute. "Shipnackers" are, or were back in the 1860s, unscrupulous parties who devised a neat little shipping racket for the purpose of turning quite a nice, handy dollar at the expense of the insurance firm of which you probably are not an executive. It was a tidy little racket, this project of the "shipknackers," and so simple a baby crook could operate it. First one of these gents would contract to deliver an order of munitions and supplies to the Con federacy. Then he would insure with Lloyd's and set sail. Only it always turned out to be a boatload of junk and, as the vessel neared the American coast, the crew would scuttle her and take to the small boats. Back in England the chief collected from Lloyds, full value for one boatload of supplies and munitions.

Now you know what a "shipnacker" was and if you will just hang on a moment you will know why the Roadside Theater folk care what a "shipknacker" was. The Roadside is interested because one of those 1860 melodramatists who worked from the front pages of the day, fellow name of A. T. Palmer, found the "shipknackers" fine melodrama material. And it is his "Insured at Lloyds," or "Perils of the Sea," which opens a twoweek run at the Roadside one week from tonight.
