MOSCOW, July 28.-The Red Army appeared today to be taking the initiative on several sectors of the Russian-German front-a 2,000-mile fighting zone along which Soviet spokesmen earlier declared the Nazi blitzkrieg had broken down to siege

A communique reported "fighting actions of our troops" throughout the night in the directions of Neve and Smolensk, in the central region and at Zhitomir, in the Ukraine. This was a variation from the wording of previous communiques which mentioned only stubborn bat tles or fierce fighting, indicating that the Russians now are undertaking more than defensive operations. Sandbags and Army Lorries Are Only Signs of War To Be Seen in Moscow

WITH THE RED ARMY AT THE FRONT, July 28.-People at the front laugh at German reports that they have captured Smolensk. One German unit reached the city's outskirts where it was surrounded and destroyed. The city itself was never in German hands. I left Moscow Friday afternoon

The city's appearance is practically unchanged. Only sandbags covering shop windows and an abundance of army lorries remind one of the war

A splendid road took us past sunny country homes, forests and tall yellowing crops of grain. Everywhere people worked busily in the fields. Cattle grazed in pastures.

Not far from Moscow two German planes were lying by the roadside. They were brought down that morning while attempting to penetrate the capital's defenses.

One of the planes was a Heinkel 111. Its smoking ruins lay on the bank of a small river. The engine and propeller were half buried in sand. Nearby lay the arm of a German flyer. It was in a sleeve and somewhat burned. The fingers were twisted but the nails still bore evidence of a recent manicure.

Well camouflaged lorries with Red Army troops and munitions and gasoline tank trucks moved incessantly toward the front lines. Caterpillar tractors rumbled past with heavy guns trailing behind. reserves seemed endless.

Saboteurs Arrested.

Before entering a small town our car was stopped by a young girl with a gas mask holder over her shoulder. She demanded our documents, examined them carefully, then returned them with a smile. "Don't take offense." she said.

"This is an important matter. Our youth group yesterday arrested two German saboteurs."

We heard stories of parachutists and scouts and of the liquidation of parachute groups thy home guard battalions and Popular Guards. I heard many such stories during my first trip, too. Following testimony of Gen. George C. Marshall. Army Chief of Staff, that removal of limitation is "urgent necessity" and statement of President Roosevelt it should be done to prevent "complete disintegration" of the Army, Senate Military Committee, 9 to 1, Saturday reported out measure giving President authority to extend service period.

Arrangements May Block Vital Materials From Nippon, He Declares

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles indicated today a belief that arrangements for preclusive buying by the United States of strategic materials from many Latin American countries and the general policy of Inter-American co-operation for hemisphere defense would act to prevent Japan from obtaining from South America materials she cannot obtain elsewhere under trade restrictions imposed by this country, Britain and the Netherlands.

Mr. Welles also indicated that the United States, Great Britain and the Netherlands could be expected to continue taking parallel action to counter-threatening moves by Japan in the South Pacific

London May Remain Smaller.

The result has been a huge expansion of the population of safer places like Winchester, Reading, Salisbury, Bath, Exeter, Gloucester, Oxford, York and Durham. Sometimes the worried people of these towns exaggerate it, but frequently it causes painful congestion.

The social effects of this dispersion and resettlement of the population will be enormous. Many people never will go back to their old homes. London may well be permanently smaller. As Lord Horder says, the scattering of slum children throughout the country has raised the level of their health, their manners and their ambitions. Regional lines and class lines are being broken down as never before; the people are being better unified.

The government demands that everybody give his efforts to the utmost. Food rationing offers the rich and poor much the same fare. A millionaire can get no more red meat, butter or jam than a working man, and cannot get as much cheese as the farmer or miner. Clothes rationing gives every one much the same wardrobe. A farm cottage in Cumberland is better than a mansion in Park Lane; in fact, the Park Lane houses are mere shells through whose ruined windows the passerby can see trees waving in their gardens. ## John Doe, With $3,000 Income, Rayburn Says Price Bill Faces Tripled U.S. Tax Bill

Direct and Indirect Levies Next Year Expected to Rise to $129

By IRVING PERLMETER.

Associated Press Staff Writer. John Doe added up his Federal taxes are figured at 10 per cent of tax bill today, and found it probably was going to be tripled.

Mr. Doe is an ordinary taxpaying citizen. He makes $3,000 a year, has a wife and a child. Maybe your budget is far different from his, but his may give you an idea of what's in store for you. He figured that counting such things as the gasoline tax he would pay Uncle Sam, directly and indirectly, $42.10 in an average year under present rates. Then he looked at the new schedules proposed by the House Ways and Means Committee and calculated they would raise the bill to $129.21. Tax increases will not become effective until House and Senate have acted on the committee proposals, but best indications were that those or similarly high rates would eventually be enacted.

5 Per Cent Surtax. Our ordinary taxpayer figured his income tax first. He still would get family but the pending bill would assess a 5 per cent surtax on him. That would raise his income tax $5.40 paid this year to $48.40 to be paid next March.

Then he discovered new taxes on

Britain Warns Iran On Infiltration Of Nazi Agents

2,500 Germans Reported Operating as Officers' Corps of Fifth Column

By the Associated Press.

ANKARA, Turkey, July 27 (Delayed).-The British government was reported authoritatively today to have pointed out to the governmen of Iran (Persia) dangers which might result from activity of German agents in Iran.

The British Minister was said to have made representations to the Iran government at Teheran, mentioning German operations. These, it was reported here, were said to range from anti-British intrigue by German technical advisers to the Iranian Army to plots for sabotaging British oil interests in Southern Iran.

According to one semi-official foreign estimate, 2,500 Germans described as "an officers corps for a future fifth column" are operating out of headquarters in the Iranian cities of Teheran and Tabriz.

Nazis Capitalize on Sentiments. The Iranian people, historic anti-British and anti-Russian sentiments, it was said, are being capitalized by the Nazis, who are spreading reports that the British are ready to occupy Southern Iran and Russia the north. British sources stoutly deny that Iran's sovereignty or independence is threatened by the British-Russian alliance, but it is acknowledged that the Nazis have won considerable influence there with such claims, especially among army commanders who have relied on German armaments in recent years. The British are understood now

The New Tax Bill

The Ways and Means Committee, after three months of study and compromise, has reported to the House its new tax bill-a measure designed to raise the stupendous total of $13,000,000,000 in revenue. This—the greatest tax bill in our history-adds $3.529,200,000 to existing taxes, but the total is expected to fall at least $10.000,000,000 short of anticipated expenditures this year.

These figures, both as to revenues and deficit, are so great that it is difficult for the average taxpayer to comprehend their meaning, but there is no escaping the fact that they bear directly both on every income in the country and on the future of our national solvency. That being the case, it is important to examine some of the things that the committee has done and has refrained from doing.

In the majority committee report it is conceded that the bill falls short of perfection. And the minority comment on the measure is that "the most that can be said in its favor is that it might have been worse."

The full burden of the increased taxes is placed squarely on the shoulders of those who were already footing the tax bills. Increases in hidden taxes, of course, will reach virtually all citizens, but the committee turned a deaf ear to suggestions for spreading the income tax burden by widening the tax base. Likewise, the committee was unwilling to impose requested "penalty" taxes on durable consumer goods that compete with the needs of defense industries. These taxes had been urged for two purposes-as a curb on inflationary spending and as a means of conserving raw materials for defense, but the rates approved by the committee can hardly be expected to have either effect.

A sharp difference of opinion also developed between the majority and minority members with respect to non-defense spending. The bill itself ignores this matter on the theory that it lies within the province of the committees on appropriations, but it is significant that the majority report contains no recommendations or suggestions with regard to non-defense items.

length on this subject. To some extent the minority expressions may be discounted as partisan in nature, and they would also be more persuasive were it not for the fact that Republicans all too often have joined with Democrats in voting for large and wholly unwarranted increases in non-defense appropriations.

Despite these considerations, however, the fact remains that the minority report is an impressive document. It shows that from July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1941, the New Deal spent $67,000,000.000. That is more than the total cost of running the Government from the time of George Washington through the World War administration of Woodrow Wilson. Against the New Deal expenditures during the eight-year period, there were revenue receipts of $40,000,000,-000, leaving a total deficit of $27,-000 000 000

Thus, as the minority pointed out, our national finances were in critical shape when the need for huge de-· fense outlays became imperative. It was against this background that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau told the Ways and Means Committee that non-defense spending could safely be cut by $1,000,000,000. Other competent witnesses urged a cut of twice that amount. But there has been no such reduction, and no - evidence of any determined administration support for such action.

There are indications that a "gag" rule to prevent the offering of amendments will be sought when the bill is called up in the House, and it is to be hoped that such an effort. if made, will be defeated. Americans generally recognize the absolute necessity of paying higher taxes, and they will pay them willingly if they feel that their sacrifice is being put to the best possible use. But there is no reason to believe that this tax bill is the most scientific or the most equitable means of raising the necessary revenue, nor is there anything to indicate that the money so raised will be spent to the best possible advantage. Therefore, the House, having in mind the great public interest in this legislation, Independence, the Constitution of should not seek to stifle all suggested | the United States, Lincoln's Address improvements, but should gladly at Gettysburg and all such other consider any proposal that might pronouncements as are typical of as disillusioning and excruciating to spread the tax burden more equit- Anglo-Saxon democracy. ### An Army 'Plucking' Board

Drastic remedies are required in national emergency, when the welfare and the safety of the Nation are at stake, and the legislation authorizing the Secretary of War to take a short cut in removing unfit officers of the Regular Army from the active list admittedly is of that nature.

In brief, the congressional resoluion which passed both houses unanimously, sets up an official 'plucking" board to replace the cumbersome, and as General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, so aptly characterized it, "the totally ineffective" procedure now governing the dismissal or forced retirement of incompetent officers. Autocratic as are the powers it imposes on the Secretary of War, testimony given by General Marshall and others before the Military Affairs Committees indicates an imperative need for authority to cope decisively with a difficult problem during the present emergency.

At present, it is very difficult to dismiss or retire an incompetent officer of the Regular establishment. In fact, the testimony indicated that it is a painful process of a year to eighteen months' duration and even then the officer can bring political pressure to bear at the White House.

By ordering the suspension of the present method, Congress has provided a way that will get the desired results in about a month's time. It provided wisely, no doubt, that the officer chosen for dismissal or retirement shall have the right to plead his case before the new board of general officers. But the decision of the Secretary of War is to be "final and conclusive," thus barring an appeal over his head to the President.

General Marshall, in asking for the law, said the authority was desired to correct deficiencies in the Regular Army. Under existing law the commissions of Reserve officers may be revoked at the discretion of the President and Federal recognition of National Guard officers may be withdrawn upon the recommendation of a board of officers appointed by the Secretary of War. The Regular Army, however, would be affected | self-confidence there appear regrets only for the duration of the emer-

It is hoped that the President will sign the joint resolution promptly. The number of officers that probably would be brought before the board, if and when it is established, one per cent of the regular officers. That speaks rather well for the effiwhole. The legislation is aimed directly at those who, in the opinion of the chief of staff, "slow down the development of our emergency army through lack of vigor and intelligent, aggressive leadership." Equally important from the viewpoint of Army efficiency, it provides authority for the retirement of those officers for whom, for several years past, suitable assignments have been almost impossible to find.

Professor Kittredae

Those who grow gray in the study of English are privileged to learn one final lesson ere they depart, The minority, however, dwelt at namely that, because the expression of the Anglo-Saxon race most particularly derives from its experience in the world, the language and the literature so produced are instinct with the humanities. No other species has a more notable endowment in that respect. The greatest of poets was also the greatest of journalists. His acquaintance with what men work in, with what they aspire to, with what perchance they fail to win-his knowledge of them made him what he is.

> So, too, George Lyman Kittredge was a master not merely of speech but likewise of the sources of utterance in the human soul. To say that he was a member of the faculty of Harvard University for fifty-three years and that a long list of other institutions of higher learning delighted to recognize his achievement as a teacher is to summarize his career in a single sentence. There was more to him, however, than can be told in even unlimited space. Each of his ten thousand pupils discovered in his character and personality a separate impression. If they were wise, they understood that what they found in him was a reflection of themselves, polished and refined, yet not essentially changed under his

> That was the significance of the presiding genius of "English 2." Professor Kittredge might have been exclusively a writer or a critic. an editor or a commentator, an historian or an expositor of the idioms of Britain and America. In all of those many roles he was a useful and helpful servant of the civilization to which he proudly belonged. But in addition he was a pedagogue in the best and most accurate meaning of that word. He taught by being as well as by doing. Thus it happens that he is to have a living monument. Until the last of his "boys" has died he will be remembered as a symbol of Chaucer and Shakespeare, but, even more important, as a symbol of the generous concept of life which descends from them. He was an apostle of a philosophy which includes the English Scriptures, the Declaration of quiet courage and a willingness to suffer rather than basely to yield, he was compact of the qualities by which the race survives and because of which, please God, it deserves to triumph.

Qualified Blockade

In theory, President Roosevelt's sudden economic thrust at Japan last Friday evening was complete. By freezing Japanese assets in the United States and its possessions, including the Philippine Commonwealth, commercial and financial transactions between us and Japan depend entirely upon executive discretion. Henceforth Japan cannot liquidate any of her American assets without first obtaining a license from the Treasury permitting her to do so. For instance, Japan's enormous purchases of American oil can be cut to zero simply by refusing to issue a single license for the conversion of assets into cash when the purpose is to buy oil. And the same thing can be done for any other commodity.

Japanese exports to this country are similarly affected, because the island empire's silk and other products will no longer be landed here if new assets obtained by their sale are immediately frozen. The same applies to shipments of Japanese gold, so extensively employed during recent years to cover extraordinary purchases of oil, scrap, lumber and other American products largely destined to build up reserves in Japan for expected emergencies.

However, the extent to which our Government intends to exercise its powers against Japan is not yet disclosed. Washington seems to be watchfully waiting to see what Japan is going to do before fixing definite regulations. The fact that Tokio has responded by similarly freezing American assets in Japan is immaterial. That gesture was foreseen as inevitable. The important point is how far Tokio will translate the gesture into action.

Tokio clearly dislikes what has happened and wishes the unpleasant consequences could somehow be averted. This is evident in the mixed reaction of both Japanese press and official comment. Alongside expressions of bitterness and that we do not "understand" Japan's position and the hope that the difficulty can be adjusted.

These contrasting emotions are well illustrated by two statements made Saturday by Masatsune Ogura. Japanese Finance Minister and rephas been estimated at only about resentative of big business in the Konove cabinet. The first of these was an obvious pep talk addressed to ciency of the officer personnel as a | the Japanese people, assuring them of the self-sufficiency of resources in Japan's "co-prosperity sphere" in Eastern Asia. But later that same day Mr. Ogura stated that his government's freezing of American assets would be administered in the same spirit displayed by Washington. The inference is that Tokio will go easy if we do the same.

Such tentative olive branches held out by Tokio should not distract Americans from the real issue. The President's asset-freezing order was issued in response to Japan's brazen aggression in French Indo-China. which our Government has declared to be a menace to our vital interests sions of an even more dangerous character. Possession of Indo-China does ease Japan's shortages of rice. tin, coal and a few other commodities. But it does not meet the empire's vital requirements for oil, iron and many other necessities. America, in conjunction with Britain and the Netherlands, can keep those necessities from Japan and throttle most of its foreign trade by economic weapons, without resorting to armed force. We must face the risk that, in the process, a desperate Japan may take up arms. But there should be no backdown from the stand just assumed. Japan must be halted and made to realize that its aggressive program will not be tolerated.

Right Is Left

The only way to win this war is to think fast and clear, anticipate the moves of the enemy, and beat him to the punch. Whatever success Hitler has had so far has been largely due to his power of prediction, in which he is popularly supposed to be aided by a corps of highly uneasy astrologers who advise him when to hit.

As an example of the lack of foresight that may be expected in a democracy, take the case of the new mechanical spud peeler for K. P. use. Four of these gadgets were supplied to Camp Robinson, Arkansas, and issued by a sergeant to four luckless members of that ignoble army, the kitchen police. But, by an odd coincidence, every spud peeler was built for right-handed use, and every member of the out-of-luck squad was left-handed, so the sarge himself had to peel. There is no excuse for not having available a plentiful supply of lefthanded machines as well. The powers that be should have realized that the mere presence of righthanded spud peelers, with no other kind in sight, would automatically cause any bright kitchen policeman to turn southpaw as freely as a switch hitter in the big leagues.

Those British raids on Western Europe are now largely relegated to the second and third pages of the press. The results, however, are just ture population growth for the United States, according to the National Resources Committee, the Census Bureau, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and practically all students of population, is the Scripps Foundation estimate of an increase of 20,000,000 during the next forty years. It is interesting to note that the Scripps estimate assumes that the birth rate will decrease 25 per cent by 1980. In other words, even if the birth rate decreases one-fourth the total population will increase some 20,000,000 or to about 153,000,000. This does not count foreign immigration which even at the present relatively low rate would boost the population another five million to 158.000,000 by 1980. (See: Our National Resources, National Resources Planning Board, 1940, p. 3).

According to Dr. Harriet Elliott of the National Defense Advisory Commission there are now 45,000,000 people in this country living at a level below the requirements for health and efficiency. (Washington, September 23, 1940). If this statement is even near the facts it will be difficult enough healthfully to support an additional 25,000,000 people. And this increase, it should be remembered, assumes a decrease in the birth rate of about 25 per cent. Yet Professor Zimmerman would have us increase the birth rate about 25 per cent.

We are not in a position at the present time to say with accuracy how far the population would increase with an | if he will keep on looking. average family of four children over a period of years. But it would be conservative to say that the four-child family if continued would increase the population 100,000,000 during the next hundred years and the increase would grow larger year after year until the population reached fantastic heights. putting to shame the population of

It would seem sane and logical that, before urging an increase in the birth rate, to find some means of supporting healthfully the population we already have, not to mention the 25,000,000 we may have in the near future even with a decrease of 25 per cent in the birth

There is any amount of evidence to prove that this country does not need a larger total population than the present total of 132,000,000. In fact, the evidence indicates that it would be to the best interests of the general welfare if our population was somewhat smaller than it is.

"If this country could choose between having a stationary population of 131,000,000 (our present total) or 150,-000,000 or 100,000,000," says Professor P K Whelpton of the Scripps Foundation and a population expert for both the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations, "it can be shown quite conclusively that the smaller number would be best from an economic point of and the prelude to still other aggres- view." (Eugenical News, September, 1939, p. 49).

To support the population of this country at the standard of living which the Brookings Institution says "would seem a reasonable minimum aim of our national economy" we would have to have "an increase in the production of all kinds of consumers' goods and services by something like 70 to 80 per cent." (America's Capacity to Consume, p.

From the scientific and humanitarian evidence available it appears we should aim at a decrease in the birth rate of about 25 per cent during the next forty years, and that one of the most dangerous policies to follow would be to increase the birth rate to an average of four children per family.

If we decrease the birth rate about one-fourth we shall still increase the population about 20,000,000. With such a decrease in the birth rate production capacity as far as age composition is concerned would increase 4 per cent per person in 1980, and we shall have some five million more potential soldiers than we had during the first World War.

On the other hand, if we increase the birth rate as Professor Zimmerman suggests we shall be following in the footsteps of China, India, and other countries where the standard of living is miserably low. And it should not be forgotten that the faster and larger we increase the population, the faster and larger we shall have to increase it in the future to keep our age groups in order.

Notwithstanding the evidence which indicates that our population has increased too rapidly in the past, the United States has the rare opportunity to taper off its population growth slowly and stabilize the total population around 150,000,000. Even that number is larger than the total which would be to the best interests of the general welfare, but it is far preferable to the condition in which Professor Zimmerman's recommendation would land us.

In the above we have suggested a systematic and a eugenic decrease in the birth rate of about 25 per cent during the next forty years. But it will not be necessary to think about statistics (or even eugenics) if we agree with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who, following Professor Zimmerman at the same conference, insists that babies should not be produced when the parents cannot provide sufficient food to feed them properly. Mrs. Roosevelt's recommendation is perhaps the solution to the whole problem, but we "fear" it would decrease the birth rate more than 25

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"GEORGETOWN.

"For some time I have been wanting to thank you for your kind words in behalf of the English sparrow. As he cannot speak for himself his friends should do it for him, and as I am very much beholden to him for his staying by me all the long winters, for his pretty choral singing in the bush under the apple tree, for his example of resourcefulness and courage in the face of enemies, and his industrious habits regarding food and housing, I am glad to take an opportunity to say 'thank you' for him.

"Dear Sir:

"In the years 1918-19 in Baltimore it was a remarkable sight to see the sparrows coming home in the evening. There was a row of plane trees along the north side of Mount Royal avenue east of Charles street that was the roosting place of thousands of sparrows, and one could stand near there, where you overlooked Union Station and Jones Falls, and watch them coming in in clouds from their feeding grounds in the outlying parks and suburbs that surrounded the northwest, north and northeast parts of that city. I use the word 'clouds' advisedly, for it gives the best picture of how they looked-soft and billowing. From them came a gentle cheeping, hopeful, tired, sleepy.

"Not a sparrow falls but our Heavenly Father marks it, a very consoling thought in this world where life is so little considered.

"Sincerely yours, N. McM." * * * * For sheer observing pleasure, there are few birds which outdo the English sparrow. Provided, of course, that the one who does the observing thinks them interesting and worthwhile. That is a hurdle which dislike never gets over. It is one of the great drawbacks to disliking. Surely these persons we meet, every now and then, who like everything, are to be envied. Though at times they rub one the wrong way, in the main they are on the side of the angels, and in an age when it seems as if most human beings are on the side of the devil, at least until the trance is broken, all in God's time

The person who likes everything surely will like the sparrows, and even he who is not so wide in his appreciation may be able to find something good in them,

The sport of bird watching, as practiced now in many a home and garden. is fortunate in that it demands no particular equipment.

One just looks. Any one can do it. Books and their knowledge are helpful, but not really necessary. The smallest child can watch the robin, and the greatest philosopher can get pleasure out of sparrows.

There are sparrows and sparrows of District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

which comes in crowds, flocks, whatever one wishes to call it.

This is held against it, but really it is one of its best features, since it leads to the choral singing of which our correspondent speaks.

There are many persons, no doubt, who look upon themselves as great bird lovers, who nevertheless have not heard the sparrow chorus, because they have always driven these birds away from their home.

The propaganda against this species has died down in recent years. Except for an occasional voice, you do not hear much any more about sparrow traps, and the birds' "harsh" voices and their "dirty" ways

The observer who looks at all life as interesting finds that the sparrows have their good points as well as their bad ones, and that not the least of the former is the habit of midafternoon choral singing.

If they have had enough to eat, and the afternoon is bright, they will congregate about 2 o'clock in the shrubbery, and there perch and sing for half an hour or more.

It is here as in the old country church. where no person had a really good voice. but all together made some mighty pretty music

The English sparrows enjoy this sort of singing, and the listener, provided he is broad-minded, as we say, when it comes to his music, can enjoy it, too. No number of wood thrushes, superb singers though they are, could equal the music these little birds put out, because Wherefore, we must give the devil, in this case the English sparrow, his due. He is a pretty, an interesting bird. and is not half as black, we feel sure, as he has sometimes been painted.

thrushes are soloists, not choral singers.

No, there are plenty of two-legged devils without going to the birds for them.

Liking for the more numerous English sparrows will lead on to appreciation of that supreme specimen, the song spar-

This is admitted by all as one of the best of birds, but no doubt scores of observers miss it through their supposed dislike of the other. In other words, they are so intent on disliking the English species that when they see the song sparrow they dismiss it with a phrase which they intend to be withering, "just a sparrow.

The song sparrow is the most friendly of all the sparrow tribes. It will hop to within a few feet of your chair as you sit on the lawn. It will come to the bird bath and bathe for several minutes almost while you are pouring water down.

Appreciation for the song sparrow is good in itself, but is especially so since course. Nineteen species come to the it shows even the most obdurate person how close, indeed, the other sparrow is to this supreme sparrow. Suggests Turning Statue of Liberty To Face American People. To the Editor of The Star

For many years the Statue of Liberty. a gift to the American people, has faced Europe, holding the torch of enlightenment aloft. Many have come in answer to its beckoning call to live among us and to enjoy the freedom vouchsafed by our Constitution. Many of them have become naturalized citizens

But some of them, and many of us who are native born, have forgotten just what price was paid for the freedom which we enjoy in this distraught world. We have neglected our duties of citizenship while hiding behind the skirts of our Goddess of Liberty. We have ever been ready to accept all the blessings of liberty, but prone to avoid our share of the responsibilities of citizenship intrusted to us.

So, while Europe is no longer paying any attention to her torch and to her plea for a universal spread of our type of freedom, it would be well, in imagination at least, to turn this great statue to face our people, so that all of us might be awakened by the light of her torch to the realization that our freedom was bought by the sacrifice of liberty-loving people in the past, and that it will be retained for the future only by the united efforts that we of the present exert to C. Proposes Three Years' Service And Increased Pay for Draftees. To the Editor of The Star.

Speaking of holding our draftees until the period of danger is past, I agree. That is, I agree that the draftees should be held, but only for three years. I am ignorant of military knowledge, but I certainly do not think that a man with three solid years of experience would have too much trouble in an emergency if compelled to enter Reserve service after his release. Bulletins with examinations would keep his knowledge

I also think that the draftee, while serving those three years, should have his pay doubled the second year and tripled the third year whether he has advanced in rank or not.

Let us defend the Western Hemisphere, but please, Mr. President, don't stick our fingers in that European pie. CHARLES FRANCIS LUCE.

The point that I wish to make is this, that-all eye charts to the contrary-I actually do not have any important defect in my vision. Similar are the cases of many other rejectees. We do not ask that the service accept the lame, the halt and the blind, but we do urge that regulations be relaxed in regard to minor defects. I was not there then, but I am quite sure that there were no such rigid regulations at the time of the battle of Bunker Hill. ## Lindbergh's Right to Talk Defended

Ickes Assailed For Personal Attack on Flyer

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

I. America should go to war, our principal peace aims will be the establishment everywhere of what President Roosevelt terms the four "freedoms

One of these is freedom of speech and another is the freedom of the

It is pertinent, therefore, to pul some of these to the acid test of liberalism. For it is liberalism which the present Administration since 1933 David Lawrence.

has been priding itself on, as against 6 what it has so often termed the reactionary point of view

Freedom of speech means freedom for those who disagree with us as well as those who agree. It means the right of individuals to express themselves without punitive measures being taken against them by the Government Such measures when practiced by members of the Government can amount to assassination of character by the imputation of improper or unpatriotic motives. Since members of the Government, too, can give wide publicity to their comments and can through economic or regulatory measures touch the mediums of expression, it is all the more important that Government officials exercise restraint in public debate and regulatory action. The activity of the Federal Communications Commission in its relations to radio and the press is a case in point. Likewise the case of Mr. Lindbergh versus Secretary Ickes is an interesting one to penetrate

Many people disagree with the noted flyer as does this correspondent who happens to believe that Mr. Lindbergh's point of view, if adopted as a national policy, would be harmful to our national security. But the merits of the Lindbergh speeches or writings seemingly have little to do with the controversy that has been engaged in by the Secretary of the Interior.

Personal Motives Questioned.

The Ickes addresses have been directed at the personal motives and patriotism, or lack of it, of Mr. Lindbergh Just why some high Government officials can't carry on a debate without getting personal is difficult for fair-minded persons to America has been trained to believe in sportsmanship and not in below-the-belt tactics. The impression given by the Ickes attacks on Mr. Lindbergh is that somehow the fiver is connected with the Nazis. The Secretary asks for instance. why Mr. Lindbergh hasn't returned his Nazi decoration. This correspondent would be happy to see Mr. Lindbergh do it, but the latter may have good and sufficient reasons for not doing it, one of them possibly being that the Secretary has openly demanded it and sometimes people

With respect to that decoration, it should be noted that Mr. Lindbergh didn't know it was to be awarded and was just as much surprised when it was pinned on him as were the officials of the American Embassy whose luncheon in Berlin he was attending. Other Americans have accepted German decorations and degrees and honors from their institutions and it is a matter of individual decision as to what they do about them. The only important point to establish is whether Mr. Lindbergh is actually connected with the Nazis and this Mr. Ickes has not proved. When a thing like this cannot be proved it is a dangerous accusation, coming as it does from a member of the cabinet of the President of the United States. It is a mark of disapprobation which inevitably discourages others to attempt to oppose administration proposals. It is an old form of intimi-

Personal Abuse Assailed.

Mr. Lindbergh may be wholly mistaken in his views and many millions of people think so, but that he technique of attack-personal abuse Is to make friends for those who are wrongfully abused. Mr. Lindbergh married Anne Morrow, the daughter of former Ambassador Morrow-one of the finest Americans in the last half century. Mrs. Lindbergh's views are criticized, too, as being closer to the Nazi philosophy than to democracy. But anybody who has known these two people intimately knows that their convictions are deep-seated and sincere and could not have been inspired by any foreign government or its agents.

In a democracy where the four "freedoms" are the keystone of good government, debates usually are not won by intimidation or by personal abuse or by name-calling. They are won on the merits of the argument. It is not at all improbable that many persons who hadn't thought much one way or the other about isolationism have been attracted to it by reason of the violent attacks made against the isolationists. This is always one of the boomerangs of injustice. There are so many persuasive arguments which can be used to refute Mr. Lindbergh and the isolationists that the use of suspicion and imputation of improper motive would seem to be wholly superfluous. President Roosevelt in a Jackson Day address a few years ago urged tolerance and said that when name-calling was resorted to in debate it was a sign of the dearth surely they could not be wrong. But something was wrong. One felt it rather than realized it. Something was wrong with the people. Their faces wore a sullen, furtive expression, Soldiers going off to the front departed in a silence that was not reticent but ominous

People Showed Nervousness.

No one there seemed to notice it. Perhaps other observers had become accustomed to it and found it normal. No one seemed to notice that waiters in restaurants and salespeople in shops were irritable. Courtesy had departed from them. They were overwrought and nerves were snapping.

As though it had some profound significance I observed that the grass in the gardens had not been cut. They have given it up already, I thought, before a bomb has fallen and put resolutely out of mind what I could not put out of my nerves. That was on May 1, 1940, and before I had departed on May 23 it was all over really. Perhaps, I thought, I would find something like that in England. People have written, "England has changed." Yes, but how? There were things one would like to see changed in England. But something else was in England, something flowing, imperturbable, deep like England's unturbulent rivers, something continuous, unchanging, strong Had the bombs, the insufferable clamor and the insensate tumult of the skies exploded that deep, quiet stream, throwing upon its surface all the sediment and hidden scum? Perhaps that had happened. Better not go, I thought-better trust and believe and have faith, but do not see. I saw first the port at which my plane put down and then the faces of those who came to meet me. Homely faces. Merry faces. The people must have thought me a little overwrought from the flight when I began to laugh

-a laugh of sheer relief. The port was terribly scarred. Street after street of obscene ruins of houses caught off guard, and all their intimacies revealed in the wreckage. Shops, factories and great stores which represented some one's life work. some one's pride, were now dumps into which no one could

There were bits of pathos. A sign told me in prim, clean let-

I watched faces, looking hungrily for confirmation, looking bravely for repudiation. People walked briskly past. Girls with stout legs, men bent on their business. They ignored the ruins. They did not avert their eyes from them; they overlooked them.

"Rather grim," was the only comment of my companions. And then our car swept off into rural England, into the eternal, beloved landscape of cumulus clouds in the ever-changing English sky, browsing cattle, thrifty haycocks that combed and brushed and lovingly tended the land-a shy country, gentle and retreating.

Boys and girls peddled bicycles on the road and soldiers passed, walking and on bikes. They did not look quite like soldiers. They were too casual, too at ease. Yet I had the feeling that they were watching, that every one was watching in an unostentatious way as though unwilling to pay too great a tribute to the enemy, who was dangerous, but still con-

"I have 750 sulphur bombs sunk in my lily pond." I heard some one say. "They don't disturb the lilies, just for the moment they invade.

Slow but Assured.

"Is this wartime?" I thought in the pub, with its dark, beamed ceiling, its faded cretonnes, its filets of fish and its beer. It was dark when we came to London. The driver proceeded slowly but surely, as one walks through rooms of one's own house when the lights have gone out.

The sky was wanly gray. There was no moon. Only as my eyes became accustomed could I see that I was moving among ruins by the ghostly outlines of gaping walls, by the vague contours of a broken arch, by the sightless eyes of a building that was all front and no rear, and the sky graying through it.

But the porter at the desk took my name and gave me messages as he did in other days before all this began. A little more warmth and friendliness to those who come from beyond the fortress, from that other world. that other world of people who do not know. And then the next day and the next.

Why was it that I should feel in this heart, that has become the heart of the world? Perhaps the enemy will come over again and drop destruction and twist form into chaos. Still I should feel safe. I should feel safe because I have found what Walt Whitman described as "a city invincible to the attacks of the whole of the rest of the earth ... the new city of friends."

I have not seen a sullen face nor heard any angry word since my arrival in England. Out of what depths I wonder do these people draw upon inexhaustible reserves of nerves? There is no stridency, no clamor in the people. Nobody brags, but everybody is proud in a secret way.

These people have a secret-a secret understanding. I think, each with the other. An unspoken love affair with England. As a man has no fear when he fights to protect his love so these people, loving, have utterly lost

Leonard Replogle, whose experience in the last war qualifies him to speak, pointed out that automobiles are the real bottleneck, so far as shortages are concerned, in this business of defense.

A 50 per cent reduction in their manufacture, he asserted, would nickel, etc. To sustain this conwhat he was talking about. The vigor of his protest did succeed which would have cost several bilof time and diverted an army of workmen from other vital jobs. To say why he holds to this course would involve an analysis of Mr. Roosevelt's mental make-up and temperament for which there is not space. But, certainly it is beyond dispute that the fact that he does so hold is responsible for the confusion and has precipitated the clashes, of which that between O. P. old War Industries Board made a M. and Opacs is just one. All such conflicts have to be taken the war was over it had discovered to the President to be straightened out. In this matter of the Henderson 50 per cent reduction order, there is little criticism of its soundness It should have gone through long ago, and would have had there been a responsible boss on the job. The criticism now being made is that Mr. Henderson bumptiously acted as though he were the boss and assumed an authority which he does not have. The power to curtail production, it is contended, is logically that of the Office of Production Management and not that of the price administrator. The fact that Mr. Knudsen was slow in acting was no justification for Mr Henderson's butting into a field in which he has no business. If he would attend to his job of keeping down prices, which are rapidly getting out of control, he would find more than enough to do. That is typical of the comment solve every shortage problem—steel, heard in defense circles, following copper, aluminum, manganese, the Henderson action. On the other hand, the New Deal friends tention he produced figures of the of Mr. Henderson, and the adminindustry which proved he knew istration press agents, who are partial to him, loudly applaud "Leon's boldness." in halting the steel-expansion plan, it was bold, the question then arises as to why "Leon" does not lions of dollars, wasted a great deal exhibit a little of this boldness in the particular field of price control to which he is assigned. ## This Changing World

Future of Japanese Expansion Policy Hinged on Success of Nazis in Russia

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Despite the severe crisis in the Far East and the growing rumbles in South America, the attention of the whole world is focused on the Russo-German front where, it seems, the German schedule has been badly delayed.

Until 10 days ago, military observers were reluctantly convinced that in spite of the obvious Russian resistance Hitler's troops would keep up with the time table set by the high command. Now the experts fervently hope they will have to admit they

The Germans and their allies have followed the traditional German strategy which has proved so successful in Western Europe: Strike, surround and move on, regardless of what is happening to the enemy forces left in the rear of the army. The western armies, when surrounded, bowed to the lessons of strategy taught to their leaders in war colleges and surrendered. A surrounded army generally cannot escape; hence it is useless to waste lives and surrender is inevitable.

The Russians have not been educated at the high schools of strategy. They apparently are too ignorant to know that the position of their surrounded forces is hopeless; and they continue to fight on until they manage either to break down the ring or inflict such losses on their foes that the forward march of the Nazis must be slowed down by the heavy losses

Of course, the Soviet mechanized units have contributed a good deal to the slowing down of the German advance. It is true that many Russian planes are old crates and some of their tanks are only lightly protected. But all the same they have numbers and don't mind sacrifices. As in the last war, when the masses of Russian soldiers went into battle with one rifle for two men. without the divisions recoiling before the better equipped Austro-Germans, now the Russian divisions are sacrificing their men and machines in the hope of stemming the German advance They all realize that if the Axis forces can be delayed for another few weeks, even the eventual loss of the key cities of Moscow Leningrad and Kiev would make no great difference.

Delays Nazis Until Spring.

This resistance, if continued. would bring the second phase of the war into the autumn and no spectacular action on the part of the Reich will be possible until next spring. This would give the United States precious time to continue its preparations, and, early in 1942, the whole situation will be considerably different from what it is today.

Military observers are still reluctant, however, to declare that the major danger to the U. S. S. R. is over. It is true that some of the Nazi blitz maneuvers have not been as successful as they were in France. But for the time being, according to the best available reports, only 56 Nazi divisions have been thrown into the battle. In this figure are not included the Finnish, the Hungarian and the Rumanian divisions.

These same reports say that some 135 divisions of German troops have been concentrated on the eastern front. The campaign opened with only 110 divisions, but, as the losses were heavy and the Russian resistance stubborn, the German high command brought to the front another 25 divisions. Not half of them have been thrown into the battle yet. Whether the German general staff will decide to push in all its reserves is a question which most military men outside, Germany would like to know. An answer is expected possibly before the end of this month.

In the meantime the Japanese are pausing and feeling their ground. They like to think that, as in the past, the western nations interested in the Pacific are talking loud but will not act. Hence the suggestions from Tokio that the interruption of all economic relations between the United States, Britain, the Netherlands, on the one hand, and Japan on the other is in all likelihood a symbolic gesture. (The Japanese love this expression.) In fact the new regulations will not be adopted with

Thailand Threatened.

Japan has indicated semi-officially that she understands the western powers must save face, but, in the event they shut their eves to some little business, Japan will not object to the continuation of trade - even if it is bootlegged. The Japanese military has remained adamant as far as the occupation of Indo-China is concerned. They are unwilling to give assurances that they will not move into Thailand. The forces they have brought to Indo-China are sufficient for all types taking as many as 50,000 men to any point off the mainland.

For the time being, however, the Tokio government is watching with anxiety the Russo-German war, which, as far as the Japanese government is concerned, is far behind schedule. Until the Germans are capable of smashing the Soviet forces, the military clique in Japan feels that it should do no more than it has done so far.

The army, navy and air force are now in an ideal strategic position. More transports are bringing reinforcements from China and from the Nipponese islands. According to reliable reports, no less than 75 per cent of the navy is now in the Southern Pacific. All these forces are ready to move at a moment's notice. The direction they will take is known only to a few.

McLemore-A Favorite Skillet

Marches to War

By HENRY McLEMORE. With my chin up, but with a tell-wall to my favorite aluminum skillet today A hard-bitten Boy Scout, whose merit badges marked him as a vet-tale mist in my eyes, I bade fare-country's peril was fully brought home to me for Henry McLemore. the first time.

The imminence of danger was made so much clearer to me than it ever was by the President declaring a state of national emergeny, or by his asking Congress to do likewise.

The impact was terrific as I watched that old skillet of mine, a little bacon and eggs still on its face, go down the street surrounded by strange double boilers, cylinder heads it nad never seen before, hair curlers and a haughty cigar

At that moment I honestly don't believe I would have been surprised if some one had tapped me on the shoulder and said, "The Germans are crossing the Hudson River, and some of them are already on Fortysecond street."

Many of you who have contributed your bits of aluminum must have shared my emotion

Somehow, it's alarming that the United States, the richest, the largest and the most resourceful democracy in the world, has been forced to beg from kitchens for materials with which to protect itself, A man would have to wear bifocal rose-colored glasses to find cheer in the fact that his country, in its efforts to build a bulwark against blitzkrieg, has had to rustle and hustle and ferret among the pantries for such non-lethal weapons as waffle irons and egg-beaters.

Common sense tells me that when a nation calls on the cooks and the housewives, the scullery maids and the dust bins, a four-ply, handstitched emergency is at hand. It wouldn't dig that deep unless there was real trouble

Some of my best friends are prominent jack-leg politicians. They have told me, and almost any one else who would listen, all they know about the Government. Yet it still fleet of transports capable of isn't quite clear in my mind why be in such a shape

Some have advanced the theory that this country is in peril because it was taken by surprise. That's a possibility, all right,

After all, "Mein Kampf" wasn't' written until 1925. Sixteen years isn't much of a warning. And Hitler has been running wild for only seven or eight years. For us to have taken steps then would have been as foolish as it would be for a man to grow alarmed simply because he sees an armed burglar prowling around the backyard. Who knows but what the burglar means no harm at all and is just out for a midnight constitutional?

Some say that no one can rightfully be blamed for this country's shortage of several essential war materials. Mention aluminum and they point out that it would have taken a far-seeing man indeed to predict how greatly we would need it. The Wright Brothers soloed at Kitty Hawk in a plane that didn't feature the stuff in its make-up, so what was there to indicate that planes of 1941 would have to have it? And didn't Drake do it all right against the Spanish armada without aluminum?

There is always the chance, of course, that the aluminum supple was allowed to dwindle in order to make it necessary to call upon the citizens for help. The old payehology stuff, you know. A man who suffers from the heat because his electric fan has gone to the wars as an airplane propeller is certain to be more interested in giving further aid to his country than a man who has made no sacrifice at all. From now on I will feel closer to the battle line, what with my skillet right up there in the danger zone. Farewell, my pretty skillet.

You'll soon know why the United States is called "the greatest melting pot of the world."

Be happy of a chance to help keep this country sunny side up, just as you did my eggs. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

Can a Camera Make a Gehrig?

The wire services announce from Hollywood that Sam Goldwyn, the producer, practically has decided that Gary Cooper will play the lead role in "The Life of Lou Gehrig." He might as well have chosen Rudy Vallee or Hugh Herbert. Obviously Mr. Goldwyn never saw

Now it is one thing to tolerate something frothy called "Betty Co-Ed" or "Hold That Line." wherein the gridiron hero who wins the Rose Bowl game is a double-chinned, 40-year-old ham, and it is another thing to commemorate baseball's Iron Horse with a moving picture which has to be bad before it even leaves the cutting room. Somebody should remind Mr. Goldwyn that when Gehrig was alive he was offered a role of Tarzan and one of the reasons he turned it down was that he was too knotty. Does that sound like Gary Cooper?

We realize, of course, that Hollywood can work wonders. Its runt actors become two-fisted screen sluggers who tower over their tall, and everybody is wondering whether slinky lady friends by simply standing on a box. It is reasonable to suppose that Mr. Cooper's legs. arms and torso could be padded more over of their own accord. or less realistically to resemble the Gehrig physique. It is almost certain, header to the Pittsburgh Pirates in fact, that whoever plays the role must be padded. There isn't a pair yesterday, 4-3 and 8-0, to fall two of legs in Hollywood like Gehrig's, unless the gams belong to one of full games behind the St. Louis those heromes who always wears evening gowns or slacks. Meanwhile, who's going to play ball for Cooper?

Gary Swatted Flies in "Meet John Doe"

"The Life of Lou Gehrig" certainly will have to embrace some base- For seven innings, in the opener, ball, although not long ago there was a rumor that Mr. Goldwyn, exercising some sort of a poetic license, intended to include and even feature Lou's comparatively unimportant football career at Columbia. It will have finally had to retire because of the to include baseball, because that was life to Gehrig, who was a self-made 90-degree heat. Then in the ninth ballplayer if there ever was one. Baseball didn't come easy to Gehrig Maurice Van Robays exploded a any more than it did to Joe Cronin and a few other stars who loved it double with the bases loaded against so much they overcame their lack of natural dexterity.

Mr. Cooper is our favorite plowboy, plainsman, Canadian mountie, Texas Ranger and soldier. He'd have to be to keep peace around the house. . . "Gee, isn't he grand! The way he looks at you. It sends chills down your spine. I like those strong, silent men, don't you?" We always say yes. At the same time, Mr. Cooper was no ball of fire when bases filled and Vince Di Maggio hit he played the part of a ball player in "Meet John Doe." Even the ladies a homer with two on. admitted that much, thanks to baseball's "ladies' days." He pitched like he was swatting flies on a wall. It was easy to see why he got a sore arm in the picture and had to become "John Doe."

Thus if Cooper didn't even resemble an ordinary, anonymous bush league pitcher it isn't reasonable to expect him to depict Gehrig and make baseball fans-and there are about 20,000,000, Mr. Goldwyn-like it.

Casting Problem Is Nothing Very Trivial

Mr. Goldwyn got himself an idea when he decided to do "The Life of Lou Gehrig," but not all of his succeeding ideas have been as good, if the Hollywood gossip is authentic. Not that we don't appreciate Sammy's casting problem, either. It is easy to see where the gentleman sat down, double-header with the Boston looked over the Hammywood roster and eliminated the profiles some- Braves. They lost the first, 12-10. thing life this:

Melvyn Douglas-Good field, no hit. Jack Oakie-Punchy from bucking the line in Betty Grable pictures. William Powell-Remember those legs when he wore the Scoutmaster's

James Cagney-Too rough on the women. Tyrone Power-Bullfighter, not a ballplayer Robert Taylor-Not with those eyebrows, chum.

Cesar Romero-Even the camera can do only so much.

Pat O'Brien-There's no girl to lose in the story.

Poor Mr. Goldwyn! In his lap he's got something that would be eaten up by millions of baseball fans who learned to respect one of the 2-0, with five-hit pitching, but the great diamond figures during his lifetime and who mourned when he was Reds made only four hits themput out of the game long before the nine innings were up. And on Holly- selves and both runs were scored wood's pay rolls there apparently is nobody who can do the job without on a wild pitch by Boom Boom making the customers squirm or stay at home.

Hollywood Never Successful With Baseball Stories

Hollywood never has been very successful at putting baseball on the ecreen. At least no diamond picture has been No. 1 in its year, as we recall, and the reasons are obvious. In the first place, it is hard to act held the part of a ballplayer. There is no popular pastime, with the exception of championship golf, that is more difficult to play, as can be partially proved by pointing out that only 400 men in the world are in the major leagues while there are something like 25,000 college football players, a million or more bowlers, etc. In the second place, a guy who can play Football is comparatively easy to screen and make look authentie. Thornton Lee. This still left them The hero with a Martian helmet on his head and shoulders broadened 1112 games in front of the Cleveland by leather pads looks very inspiring in close-ups and as he rushes into Indians. the fray at a critical moment. Thereafter his double, usually a Southern California or Stanford backfield star, takes over and realistically wiggles 90 vards to the winning touchdown. The same is true of prize fighting. Maggio. He connected for a tower-But baseball is something else. It almost demands a close-up of the hero ing triple in the opener and hit his engaged for the year, however, many batting, and it never would do to have Cary Grant or Tony Martin 23d homer, a double and a single in swinging as if they were beating rugs.

If we were Mr. Goldwyn (aha, the voice of experience!), we should forget the shank-legged and double-chinned heroes and find a ballplayer who can read lines. A fellow like Charley Gehringer might do in a pinch. He's at the end of his string, but he was as good as Gehrig, and he batted left-handed, and after Hollywood's make-up wizards pinned Heving holding the Red Sox to six as an assistant at the Hawkeye back his ears he might make as reasonable a facsimile as the Coopers hits and getting timely hitting and Cagneys. Charley would ham it up, undoubtedly, but that would be support nothing new in Hollywood, and at least the City of Make Believe would have honored Gehrig by casting a real ballplayer in the lead role.

Ten One-Putt Greens In Stretch Gain Him One-Stroke Edge

Matches Guldahl's Birdie On Final Hole to Nose Him Out for Crown

By EARL HILLIGAN. Associated Press Sports Writer. ST. PAUL, Minn., July 28.-The most phenomenal putting touch in golf today belongs to Horton Smitha player apparently destined to go down in the records as the greatest greens player this era has produced. There is little argument among the stars with whom he plays that the 33-year-old Smith is the best putter golf has seen in years. There was no argument vesterday on that point among the 7.000 spectators who saw the Pinehurst, N. Has Ten 1-Putt Greens.

The one-time "Joplin Ghost" who came out of Missouri in 1929 and 1930 to blaze his way to 12 titles and some $30,000, Smith for years has concentrated on putting. Yesterday, before each of his last rounds, he was on the practice green. Shortly afterward the magic of his "wand" turned what appeared to be a lean three days' work into gold. He had ten 1-putt greens. He made only one bogie and eight birdies. And he wound up his show with a 12-foot putt for a birdie at the 18th that was the "payoff."

Open champion and long one of the game's great finishers, also holed a back at 277. Smith's four rounds were 69-74-70 and 63, the last being 9 under par. Guldahl's rounds were 68-71-69-69. Smith's finish pulled him from far back at 54 holes to first place at the finish.

World Record Finish Makes Clarke Nation's Top Duckpinner 6th Year in Row

District Ace Outbowls Connecticut's White By 23 Pins for Lead

Nine Here in First 30 Ranked: Caroline Hiser Women's No. 2 Roller

Aster Clarke of Washington and Arlington sits the throne of America's duckpin bowlers, an achievement outstanding in the Nation's realm of sport, but to climb back he was forced to set a world record in his final tournament of the 1940-41 He topped the great Jack White of Connecticut by 23 pins and White was only a few sticks ahead of Mac Carboni, a fellow Nutmegger who landed third in the rankings of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, announced last night by Executive Secretary Arville Ebersole. For 404 games, Clarke, manager of the Lafavette maple plant and a member of its team, averaged a fraction over 129, a point better than his figure of the season before. Of the 30 places in the rankings, Metropolitan Washington bowlers won nine. Hokie Smith of the Lucky Strike, who nosed out Clarke for the coveted District League championships, was rated fifth; Lou Jenkins, Clarendon star, 10th; Ed Blakeney, Convention Hall, 14th; Tony Santini, Convention Hall, 17th; Perce Wolfe, Hyattsville, 21st, Cletus Pannell, Clarendon, 22d; Ed Nash, Ice Palace, 25th, and Ollie Pacini, Northeast Temple manager, 30th.

Caroline Hiser Next to Top. Caroline Hiser of Hyattsville moved into second position in the women's rankings behind Katherine Vick of Norfolk, who succeeded Ida Simmons of the same city, who voluntarily stepped down after six years as the queen of maple Miss Simmons did not roll enough league games to be

At a time when it was thought White virtually had a lock on the Stars Are Rated top spot. Clarke established a national five-game record of 782 and ran up the sensational total of 1.426 10 games in winning the Virginia-Carolina Sweepstakes at Richmond on April 5. Even with this it was reckoned White needed only to sit tight to triumph. Sportsman that he is, the Connecticut Blue Ribbon ace, to accommodate friends in the bowling business, shot in two late tournaments in which he lost 182 pins on his average.

A born competitor, Clarke throughout the campaign shot for every stick and, as Ebersole pointed out last night: "If he had been careless enough in 24 of his 404 games to lose a stick unnecessarily in each, White would have topped him."

Year's Big Money Winner. Clarke also was the big money ous in half a dozen sweepstakes and shared first place in another, the Halloween at the Queen Pin, in which he became the only bowler to tional games win a second time. He paired with Naomi Zimmerman. He won the Jimmy Wallace and Norman Levy events at Norfolk, the Jefferson Recreation at Portsmouth, the Megaw and the Carolina-Richmond. He finished well into the money of several other tournaments. Mrs. Vick's triumph with an average of 118-plus was less than a w

CLEVELAND, July 28 (AP).-Production of steelworks and foundries is "on the point of being throttled because of the difficulty of obtaining adequate supplies" of iron and steel scrap, the magazine Steel declared today

"Curtailment of ingot production for lack of scrap within the next three or four weeks was foreseen by steel producers and defense agency officials last week," the magazine asserted. "Some slight reductions in operations already have been ascribed to shortage of this raw material, although the national operating rate continues at 97 per cent trict production last week was down and steelmakers said further reductions would follow in a few weeks if more adequate supplies were not forthcoming. One producer who has been able to maintain production so far said the present rate could be increased if sufficient scrap and pig iron were available. In the Detroit area the supply out-look is becoming more critical. • • • Steel observed that "with the proper foresight we could have retained at least 6,000,000 tons of the more than 10,000,000 tons of scrap which we turned over to potential ascribed the shortage "to a total of unfortunate blunders." To "profit from them," it suggested that the President appoint "one competent man to head defense, put the scrap problem up to experienced men charge them with the responsibility of getting scrap-regardless of politics, social concepts, economic theories, prejudice, fear, favor or red tape. Then we will have scrap."

While the steel situation become ever tighter, the review said, "there are few, if any, instances of steel users shutting down from lack of materials, even those engaged in non-defense work."

Four districts advanced their production rates last week: Wheeling 2 points to 93; Cleveland, 1 to 96 Pittsburgh, 12 to 100, and Detroit 2 to 88. Declines were: Eastern Pennsylvania, 112 to 9512; New Eng land, 10 to 85. Unchanged were Chicago, 100; Youngstown and S Louis, 98; Buffalo, 93; Birmingha 90, and Cincinnati, 851/2.

D. C. Home Financing T In First Half of Year Far Above 1940

Total Is $36,809,000 In 7,312 Mortgages On Homes in Area

By HAROLD B. ROGERS. Home financing in the District of Columbia during the first six months | 1679 of 1941 by all types of mortgage lenders showed a big increase over the same period in 1940, according to a report today by economists of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The total for the first half of this year was $36,809,000 in 7,312 mortgages on homes, as compared with $29,858,000 in 6,739 mortgages for the similar 1940 period. By types of lenders the number and amount of home mortgages in the first half of 1941 were as follows: Savings and loan associations, 2,956 mortgages, $16.389,000; insurance companies, 581 mortgages, $4.124.000: banks and trust companies, 641 mortgages, $4,385,000; individuals, 2.060 mortgages, $6,-285,000, and "others." 1.074 mortgages, $5,626,000. Each month the Home Loan Bank Board's division of research and statistics compiles figures on mortgage recordings up to $20,000 each in value. Co-operating in this survey are President O. K. La Roque of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, savings and loan executives, the American Title Association and the Mortgage Bankers' Association.

Bank Hours Studied.

Faced with the provisions of the Wage-Hour Act, and its 40-hour week, bank executives are making a careful study of the effect of the 154 longer hours adopted by most of the local banks to accommodate Government clerks on the two extra Government paydays on the 8th and 23rd of each month.

The question was a subject of considerable discussion at the regular 168% Friday luncheon of the D. C. Bankers Association at the Willard Hotel, but no concerted action was agreed to.

The consensus seems to be that more time is needed to try out the longer hours by which the banks as a rule stay open until 5 or 5:30 p.m. on the four paydays each

There is considerable difference of opinion among the banks as to what to do. Most of the banks have adopted the longer hours. Some are finding that there is little activity during the later periods in the afternoon

Value Is Questioned. One bank official estimated that

It was hardly worth while to keep the bank open in the late afternoon just to take care of "stragglers." many of whom only want to pay utility bills.

On the other hand another banker expressed himself as favorable to the longer hours as an accommoda-#ion to the public and its clientele. Consideration is being given in ome quarters to an adjustment of hours to the needs. But it is likely that all will give the situation a trial for some time before any changes are made, in order that the institutions may be of service to Government employes and the pub-

More Auto Factories Finish Production Of 1941 Models

All Will Stop Before Week's Close, Except For One or Two

By DAVID J. WILKIE.

Associated Press Automotive Editor DETROIT, July 28. - Another group of the motorcar industry's assembly plants closed down today their 1941 model production concluded. A few others still behind on deliveries continue operations, but with one or two exceptions all will stop assembly work on this year's models before the week end.

Ford, with 1941 model production scheduled well into August, will be the last to end current model activity and probably, as has been its custom in past years, last to bring

First of the producers to get a 1942 model ready for an informal Washington Exchange preview is Hudson, which showed its several lines for the new year to s specially invited group of Detroit automotive writers today. It plans Capital Transit Co.-10 at 157, a more formal preview later. Other companies are arranging for their usual press showings throughout the coming month and into September Conferences Continue.

Plans for implementing the curchament of passenger car and light truck production during the 1942 model year still are being worked out in conferences between the Office of Production Management and industry representatives. Regardless of what may be decided upon less of what may be decided upon for initial output of the 1942 models. Ter Rf & W Cp 1st 448 1948 100% the industry's chiefs and trade authorities generally expect the aggregate output of passenger vehicles and trucks below the 1-ton rating will not exceed 2.400,000, or approxi-

probably will touch a new low for the current year. The first full week of August probably will go even lower, and in the opinion of some trade observers there is little likelihood the total for the month will match that of the same period last

August production in 1940 was 46.823 passenger cars and 29,050 trucks. While there appears to have been some difference of opinion between the Office of Production Management and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply Real Estate (m6) regarding curtailment of car and of the fact that August, first month Garanckel com (200) truck output, both took cognizance of a new model year, always is a lean one so far as assemblies are

Delay Is Expected.

Thus neither the 2015 per cent curtailment ordered by the O. P. M. nor the approximately 50 per cent cut suggested by the Opacs was applied directly to August pro-of production may not be effected until after the August and September schedules have been completed, provided, of course, the manufacturers have materials available.

Car and truck production last week totaled 105.635 units compared with 109,912 in the preceding week, according to Ward's Reports, Inc. This assured an aggregate for the final month of the 1941 model year of around 435,000 vehicles and brought the total for the model period to approximately 5.300.000 units. The figures cover production of United States and Canadian

Further evidence of the trouble facing the price control program of the Opacs was presented during the past week when ceiling prices on cotton cloth were advanced under pressure from the textile industry Back of this force appears to be the strong political influence of Southern cotton growers.

House District Group Accepts Police Report

Survey Is Approved 9 to 2; Vagrancy Action Requested

By JAMES E. CHINN.

The full House District Committee by a vote of 9 to 2, today accepted the report of its subcommittee which recently completed an investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department and recommended a series of changes to increase its efficiency.

Action was taken behind closed doors and the names of the members who voted against acceptance of the explosive report were not re-

Before the committee's acceptance of the report, however, Representative Bates, Republican of Massachusetts, made an attempt to have action delayed for a week. He was voted down, also by a 9 to 2 vote.

Quick Action Asked.

Chairman Randolph announced after the meeting that the report would be filed with the House and copies would be sent to the Commissioners for consideration and possible action. At the same time. he said he had requested the Commissioners, both of whom-J. Russell Young and Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz-were present at the meeting, to take steps "as quickly as possible to send to Congress proposed legisla-tion to strengthen the existing vagrancy and habitual criminal laws.

Tightening of these two laws was among the subcommittee's recommendations, and it is understood, drafts of legislation to carry them out already have been completed by Corporation Counsel Richmond B.

"Spying" Is Condemned.

The final report of the subcommittee as accepted by the full committee contains several additions to the original report made public last of having officers spy on brother ing to escape the sweltering heat. This denunciation is an outgrowth of a charge by Capt. Harvey G. Callahan of the first late Saturday night on Livingston the harbored a "Gestapo"

4. A statement that the subcommittee had analyzed the reports and findings of civic organizations whose representatives were not given an opportunity to testify as a result of the abrupt halt of the investigation. The full text of the major addition to the original report follows:

"Court-The committee feels that the co-operation of the courts is absolutely imperative if the police are to be efficient in their service to the public. Long and frequent delays in the hearings of some cases results in discouragement to the police and encouragement to the law

"More supervision needed-The committee recommends that there in charge of the precinct should be Hill High School. held responsible for the honesty, integrity and efficiency of the men under his command. The committee condemns the practice of having an officer spy upon their brother offi-

The final report also made several other changes in introduction to the original report. For instance it added this statement, "the calling of civic groups and individuals would have unnecessarily prolonged the hearings," and eliminated this sentence, "it (the police department) needs, in the opinion of the committee, a thorough overhauling."

Jury Is Chosen To Try McKenzie In Assault Case

Curran Conducting First Trial Since Taking Office

Considering the case of major imortance, United States Attorney Edward M. Curran today began his first trial since he took office in April, 1940, as James R. McKenzie, colored, 21, was placed on trial in District Court. McKenzie is charged with criminally assaulting and robbing a 26-year-old woman clerk June 24 in a cleaning and dyeing store in the 3400 block of Fourteenth

The Government asked for the death penalty to halt a series of major crimes here, officials said. Although there was some apprehension that a jury might not be speedily obtained because of widespread publicity given the case, a jury of 12 men was selected and sworn after less than an hour's preliminary investigation. The jury was sworn at 11 o'clock in Criminal Court No. 2, with Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson of the Northen District of Texas presiding.

Draft Boards Defer 36,955 For Dependents

More Than Half of District Registrants Put in Class III

By THOMAS C. HARDMAN. More than half the 64,626 District elective service registrants who had been classified through June 30 were deferred because of dependents, a cumulative report compiled by headquarters officials revealed to-

In all 36,955 men had been given class 3 ratings by the city's 25 local boards by the eve of the new registration day, July 1. The per-centage is expected to be lowered somewhat when classification of the new 21-year-old registrants gets under way, although the virtual blanket deferment of married registrants now in effect may offset this

Officials emphasized today, however, that the latter registrants will be subject to the same rules of individual classification as those who were enrolled last October. There will be no group classifications, it was said. Fewer dependency deferments naturally are expected among the 21-year-olds.

By June 30, 2,441 Washingtonians had been deferred because their occupations were considered in the national interest. Two thousand, two hundred and fifty-three of this total were engaged in jobs directly connected with the national defense effort, the report indicated, while 188 were employed in occupations considered just as necessary but more civilian in character. 4,061 Men Accepted. Registrants who had been accepted at induction stations at the e of the report numbered 4 061.

Reich Peace Plan Predicted After Soviet Is Beaten

Partitioning of Russia Among Rumania, Turkey And Poland Included

SOCIETY.

By PRESTON GROVER,

Associated Press War Correspondent, ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 28 .- A detailed report that Germany plans to partition European Russia when and if she conquers the U.S.S.R. up to the Ural Mountain divide and then offer a "painless peace" to the British Empire has gained credence in pro-British circles, who said it came from an Axis diplomat.

The diplomat-not, however, a representative of either Germany, Italy or Japan, but rather of one of the satellites-was said to have outlined the broad scheme in a private conference with an Allied official

The conference was said to have come during a stopover by the diplomat en route home from his warvacated post at Moscow.

Outline of Plan. From him, a pro-British source said, was gained Germany's general plan for a quick peace before United States interest in the war becomes so deep as to make the envisaged peace impossible. The plan and subordinate factors in it were outlined as follows: be divided into two classifications, one to include the Ukraine under a German governor and the other to be divided among Rumania,

Turkey and Poland. Rumania's would be a strip along B3 the Associated Press. the Black Sea coast, including the Caucasus wherein lie Turkish "ghost towns." minorities, and Poland, to be re-

Italy Wants Egypt. 3. Italy is claiming Tunisia, Ethiopia and control of Egypt but the Germans oppose this (so the outline goes) because their peace offer would stipulate that the British empire be left intace on condition Britain recognizes Germany as the sole great power on the continent of Europe. Egypt, whose military protection is a British function, comes the closest of any of the three to being actual parts of the British empire. Except for British influence Egypt is independent, likewise Ethiopia, although control of both is for defense of British Mediterranean, Near Eastern and African holdings. Tunisia is French African territory. Noteworthy is the absence

4. Once Russia is occupied as far as the Urals Germany will offer to recognize Britain's place in the world as a naval power and to reassure her Germany will restore political independence to countries of the northwest coast-Norway. Denmark, Holland and Belgium. (Here again France might be mentioned, but is

Independence for Czechs. 5. The German right to disposal of central and eastern Europe must not be contested. Germany will offer the Czechs a measure of independence, but they will not be permitted to reunite with the Slovaks. 6 On completion of the Russian campaign Germany will halt hostilities on all fronts. Even if the Brit-ish continue to fight, Germany will not respond for a certain period, so as to make the point that the war, If it continues, goes on under British, not German initiative. 7. Germany considers that for this plan to succeed the United States must not actually be in the war when the plan is advanced. Germans count on certain opinion in the United States to compel British acceptance of the proposals. Pro-British sources here said the whole report sounded highly cred-

Steps Urged to End Birth Certificate 'Bottleneck'

By the Associated Press. Estimating that 60,000,000 Americans are without birth certificates, the War, Navy and Commerce Departments today jointly urged State governments to issue such documents on proper evidence.

A letter which went out to the vital statistics department of each State explained that thousands of individuals need evidence of birth-and citizenship-to obtain entrance to the military forces, many Government positions and some types of restricted defense work.

Officials of the three departments suggested that the States adopt a uniform plan for issuing the delayed certificates, basing them on such evidence as entries in family Bibles, hospital records and insurance policies.

Mr. Henderson says in addition to stiffer price control the Government must take up some of the increased purchasing power by higher taxes and the stimulation of savings, and that attention should be given to expansion of production

Food costs have set the upward trend recently, as it is shown in the charts and figures of the U. S.

Bureau of Labor Statistics. The latest bureau report of food price changes in the retail market from mid-May to mid-June said that food costs had advanced 10.4 per cent in seven months and that the general level was 13.3 per cent above the level for August, 1939.

Flurry After War Started. There was a flurry of retail buying in the first month of the war that hiked the retail cost of food. Housewives, mindful of the price rises in the first World War, rushed out to buy certain table items. But

The cost of living level, including food, dropped during the fall of 1939, but turned slightly upward again early in 1940. From then on through the first quarter of 1941 the cost of living fluctuated within narrow limits.

An upward trend became more noticeable in the late winter and spring of 1941, especially in food. although rents in some places bounded upward with the influx of workers for defense manufacturing and construction.

Last spring food prices began to move faster and from March to May jumped 31/2 per cent. In that period the general level of rents moved up less than 1 per cent, housing furnishings about 11/2 per cent and clothing about 0.5 per cent.

Wholesale price advances for food -regarded as the most important item in the wage-earner's budgetare being increasingly reflected in the retail markets.

Retail Egg Prices Jump. The retail price of eggs on the basis of reports from 56 cities increased 10.7 per cent from mid-May to mid-June and was 34 per cent higher than in June, 1940.

Pork chops advanced 9.1 per cent in the month and 30.3 per cent in the year. Coffee gained 3.2 per cent for the month and 7.5 for the year. Butter was up 1.9 from May to June and 25 per cent over June. 1940. Round steak advanced 1.1 for the month and 5.3 during the year. Potatoes were up 31.8 per cent from May to June, which was partly seasonal and partly due to smaller supplies. The Bureau of Labor Statistics cost of living index adjusted in relation to the average of 1935-39 prices as a base of 100 shows that living costs in 1923 and 1929 stood slightly above 122. By June, 1933, the figure hit bottom at 90.8; climbed to 104.3 in September, 1937, fell off to 98.6 in June, 1939, and climbed up gradually during the subsequent war months until it reached 102.9 last May. It has not yet been issued for June

At the 102.9 level, the cost of food was 22.2 per cent below what it was in June, 1929; clothing, 11 per cent rent, 25.2 per cent; fuel, electricity and ice, 9.1 per cent, and house furnishings, 7.9 per cent.

Japanese Industry Held Dependent on U. S. Raw Materials

Native Supplies and Exports Limited, Shipping Figures Show

As an export and industrial na tion, Japan is largely dependent on supplies of raw materials from the countries, according to a Commerce Department report. in a few products, such as silk. aquatic goods and camphor, does Japan occupy a dominant role as a world supplier, it said. Although half of the Japanese people still earn their livelihood from the soil. Japan in recent years country. With the development of cotton textile, silk, rayon, woolen machinery, shipbuilding chemical, electrical and pottery industries. Japan has now achieved a high rank among the manufacturing nations of the world. The rise of Japan's heavy industries since the World War has been based on imports of iron ore, scrap iron, coking coal, machinery, machine tools and other materials, the report stated. Using raw cotton from the United States, British India, Egypt and elsewhere, Japan manufactures cotton piece goods for re-export. Japan's rayon industry depends on wood pulp imports from the United States and other countries. Other vital raw material imports are wool from Australia and rubber from British Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies.

Since September, 1940, Japan has discontinued publication of all detailed trade figures. During the first nine months of that year, principal Japanese imports, with their value, were as follows: Raw cotton, 396, 487,000 yen; oils, fats and waxes 237,308,000 yen; beans and peas, 86, 499,000 yen; coal, 85,543,000 yen; sheep's wool, 85,320,000 yen; salt 49,157,000 yen, and pulp for artificial silk, 41.421,000 yen. Leading exports for the same period were raw silk, 299,240,000 yen; cotton piece goods, 288,963,000 yen: machinery and parts, 191,407,000 yen; ores and metals, 98,607,000 yen;

Raids of Luftwaffe On Moscow Called Useless by Observer

Planes Remain Too High for Effective Raids on Red Capital

By ERSKINE CALDWELL MOSCOW, July 28 .- The Luftwaffe came back to Moscow at midnight Saturday and spent the early hours of Sunday morning laboriously trying to set fire to the city. From the viewpoint of the Luftwaffe they might just as well have stayed away from Moscow as they did Friday

They killed a number of persons wounded a number and set a few fires to dwellings and apartment houses, but even that was no mora victory in these days.

The number of planes over the city at any one time was never more than six or seven. Those six or seven evidently circled overhead and when the air defense got too strong they went away and returned later.

Sunday's communique states that about 100 German planes attempted to reach Moscow but that no more than seven succeeded and that six raiders were shot down during the attempt to break through Moscow's Kept High Altitudes.

Shrapnel peppered the rooftops and streets Saturday night when the anti-aircraft guns let loose at the Luftwaffe over the city. Heretofore the zenith gunfire has been confined to the defense zone. This evidently kept raiders at high altitudes because even after parachute flares were dropped the planes didn't risk flying low.

When the Luftwaffe parachute flares it looked like an attempt to string a line of white way lights in the sky. Saturday night's flares came down in formation like a string of beads suspended parallel to the ground.

A peculiar thing about the Luftwaffe's parachute flare operations over Moscow is that even after lights are dropped the raiders appear to be afraid to come down out of the sky close enough to follow up with bombs. They drop bombs at great height as though unconcerned whether they hit their target or

Apartment houses are poor makeshifts for military objectives. While watching the raid Saturday night from a rcoftop I could not keep from thinking it might be worthwhile from the German point of view to give up trying to set fire

Accomplish Little.

In five nights of raiding they have accomplished little more than the entire Swiss Navy accomplished in the first World War. That's the story from Moscow.

The story from Leningrad, the largest city is even more eye-opening. The government has stated that between July 20 and 26 the Luftwaffe attempted 12 times to raid Leningrad without success, losing 41 planes in

From this end it looks to me as though the Soviets' war effort isn't something in the blueprint stage After traveling most of Saturday looking at the outer ring of Moscow's defense zone and seeing German planes in various stages of wreckage on the ground after being shot out of the sky by Soviet patrol planes I have healthy respect for the manner in which Russians are putting heart and soul into this

War Office Problem Reversed by Air Raids

One problem has been reversed for the London War Office. Once it was chiefly concerned with finding relatives when something happened to a soldier; now it must find the soldier when something happens to his relatives. In every town after every bombing raid a liason officer looks after the homes and families of absent soldiers. Wives and next of kin are asked to carry in their identity cards a note bearing name and unit particulars of the soldier relative, so that he can be informed quickly if anything

Q. How does the Treasury Department's regular purchase plan operate?

A. Upon request, reminders and return envelopes are sent to you. These reminders will come at any intervals you select-weekly, semimonthly, monthly, etc. You may change these intervals at any time, increase or decrease your orders, or stop ordering at any time. The advantages of the regular purchase plan have already led more than 100,000 persons to make systematic savings through savings bonds.

Plant Seizure Bill Heavy Blow to Labor, Murray Declares

C. I. O. Head Calls On Congress to Turn Down Defense Plan

Charging that its sole aim is to break strikes and return property to management, Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., in letters to all members of the House and Senate, sharply criticized today the conference report on the plant seiz-

"A vote for this bill is a vote to destroy organized labor," he said, in urging its return to the conference committee, and the adoption of the House version, after the House had eliminated the "antilabor" provisions of the original

May bill for lowering the draft age. Asserting that the conference report, in effect, replaces the original Connally amendment as passed by the Senate, Mr. Murray said: "Although the revision of the language of this section of the bill does not specifically mention strikes and labor relations, it impairs labor's basic right to strike by permitting occupation of plants and the use of the Army and Navy to break such strikes as the President may designate. This gives by law to the executive branch of the Federal Government the effective power also to impose compulsory arbitration on American labor.

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations, as recently as July 7 has unanimously stated its opposition to the use of the Army and Navy to break strikes and to the imposition under any guise of compulsory arbitration. The House, in defeating the anti-labor provisions of the original May bill on July 10, gave support to these basic principles protecting labor's fundamental sinks to Near Zero rights. In presenting a revised Connally bill to you, the joint con-ference, in a subtle manner, is asking you to renounce these principles. "It should be noted that the authority of the President granted under this bill is not to requisition the plants, but merely to take possession. This means that the bill is not intended to exercise any compulsion against management, but Associated Press Feature Service. only against labor. This conclusion must be reached because the bill more patriotic, more intelligent, aims solely at breaking strikes, and better informed and less rebellious thereafter returning property to toward laws laid down for it than management. In other words, profits of management are not to be disturbed, but the rights of labor are to be abolished. A vote for this bill

Hair Styles For Older Women

Highly Important To Consider Age. Shape of Face

By Patricia Lindsay

In adopting a new coiffure, two of the first things a mature woman should consider is her age and the shape of her face. There isn't anything more pitiful than the middleaged matron effecting a sweet-16 hair-do!

As age advances a woman must think in terms of more formality and dignity in hair arrangement. The casual or bizarre is not for the woman of 40-plus. The only exception to that statement is the occasion when a woman wants to toss practicality to the winds and concentrate only on being deliciously entrancing for a few hours. Coiffures suitable for such a time are quite likely to fall apart and look blowsy the day after. So it is better to adhere to simple, though attractively becoming, styles for everyday wear,

Right before your own mirror you may experiment with new hairdos. Here are a few suggestions which might guide your brush and

If your face is round, try building your hair high above each ear in a diagonal direction from the placement of your eyebrows. Reveal your normal hairline around your temples. Then bring the back hair rather low on the neck behind the ears, rolling it into a soft "bun" or fluffing the short ringlets. Thus your face is "framed."

For the woman with an extremely high forehead, a dashing arrangement of easily managed bangs or forehead fluff is suggested. However, the oval-faced, high-foreheaded woman should comb her hair

Should you have a tendency to sticky sort of way! being square-faced (with a prom-Inent jaw) build the hair high on to the mood of the tropics. Surround either side in front and carry the yourself with white notes, or clear, fullness to the crown of the head. Back hair should be sleekly twisted and also fastened high.

The "horse-faced" woman can be softened miraculously in her expression by framing her face in soft ringlets or small rolls. The back hair should be worn as low as the back hairline and so pinned to keep it evenly distributed from baths and an unusual amount of ear to ear. The soft front rolls are made by parting the side hair in three sections and rolling each loosely backward. It is also good to bear in mind that prominent features call for plain coiffures. unusual arrangements.

The older woman who attempts to cover her graying temples by winding back hair forward and it about her face only draws attention to the fact that she resents growing older. Much more beauty-wise would she be if she brushed her hair away from her face and let the graying hair make a soft frame for her young eyes. Nature's gradual fading of the skin and hair cannot be improved upon!

New Latex Garment Is Being Modeled In Local Store

By Helen Vogt

If anybody is so inclined, they can shed a tear for the passing of the "great American gesture." that at long last there's a girdle that will not ride up and which therefore automatically eliminates that well-known tugging and pulling which has become as natural to American women as applying

This week in a local store there's an exhibit of these girdles which are made of latex and which mold to the figure in the way a second skin would be likely to do. The demonstrating them had never before worn a garment of this type and she vows that she will never again be without one.

The beauty of the whole thing is that she never need be. So smooth and form-fitting are these thin garments that they are perfect under everything from bathing suits to evening gowns. There is, in addition, a pantie-girdle and a regular type with garters made all in one piece, a continuation of the garment proper. This last feature alone is enough to sell it, as indeed in some cases it has. No more garters which come loose from the body of the girdle, and no unsightly marks under tight-fitting clothes.

You'll find these new seamless. stitchless and boneless girdles in pale pink, blue and white, and in a variety of sizes from extra small to extra large, with lengths running accordingly. Best of all, these perforated garments are not warm to wear, as you might suspect. They're porous and extremely difficult to tear, unless you're too free with fingernails. Busy business girls welcome them because they don't roll over at the top, even after hours of sitting at a desk, and what's more, they're always fresh because It's merely a matter of rinsing them in suds, patting with a towel and they're dry. Might be a good idea to go up and chat with the model about this new discovery in figure control. She's in the store until August 1.

Q. Our church society is planning birthday party, with 12 tables, one for each month and each seating 12 persons. We will charge 25 cents each, serving ice cream and cake and providing entertainment. Can you suggest some novel way to decorate the tables?

A. Since the tables are to represent the 12 months of the year, the most appropriate way to decorate them would be with centerpieces consisting of specially dressed dolls n suitable settings. For example: January: Dolls representing old

Discard Those Romantic, Impossible Yearnings For Fame, Fortune

Consider Natural Aptitudes And Choose Job You Like; Then Become an Expert

By Dorothy Dix

Now when virtually every girl expects to earn her own bread and butter for a while, at least, a great many young women ask me to advise them on the choice of a profession. To them I would say: It doesn't make a bit of difference what you do, girls. It is how you do it that counts You can make a success of anything, from frying doughnuts to singing in grand opera, if you have talent and ability and put your head and your heart and your back into it. There is still room at the top. There are successes and failures in every line of human endeavor, and your fate rests with you yourself. We do our best work, however, when we do the thing we like to do. We achieve our greatest success in congenial work because we never count the effort we put into it, and we are always thinking about new ways in which we can do it better.

So sit down and have a heart to heart session with yourself and try to decide what you really like to do better than anything else. But begin by eliminating all of the highfaluting, impossible, romantic yearnings that from time to time fill the breast of every girl. Of course, you would like to be a film star and make a million a minute; or an actress with your name in electric lights on Broadway; or a great writer; or a famous artist; or a diva at the Metropolitan. So would we all, but there is no use in wasting any time wishing.

Get down to brass tacks with yourself and make up your mind whether you enjoy trimming hats, or selling things, or keeping books, or doing things with your hands. or your head. Also, take into account your natural aptitudes. If you can't spell, for pity's sake don't try to be a stenographer. If you can't juggle with figures, let office work alone. If you hate children, don't try to teach. If you are not a born follier, pass up a career Take your school work into con-as an artist, painting poor pictures that she cannot sell, who could make a fortune as a dress designer, or a milliner, if she would use her knowledge of line and her sense of color in constructing clothes that would make women look like living pictures instead of dress-hangers. And, after all, why isn't a woman just as much an artist who paints with fabrics as one who paints with oil? And, finally, girls, go about whatever work you undertake as if you were going to do it as long as you live. The reason so many women fail at their jobs is because they never give but one lobe of their brains to it. All the balance of their intelligence is concentrated upon catching a husband, and they consider their occupation merely a stop-gap between the schoolroom and the altar. They never think it worthwhile to learn anything about their work. They never take the slightest interest in it. Now perhaps you will marry, perhaps you won't. He held it open for me.

"Good luck" he yelled. It was a wonderful night. November had begun to take itself seriously, and the air was crisp and cold. ## Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Over in a maple tree on the edge of Farmer Brown's dooryard lived Redeye the Vireo and his little mate. Peter Rabbit knew that they had a nest there, because Jenny Wren had told him so. He would have guessed it anyway, because Redeye spent so much time in that tree. No matter what hour of the day Peter visited the Old Orchard he heard Redeye singing over in the maple tree. He thought to himself that if song is an expression of happiness Redeye must be the happiest of all birds. Redeye was a little fellow of about the size of one of the Warblers and quite as modestly dressed as any of Peter's acquaintances. The crown of his head was gray, with a little blackish border. Underneath he was white. For the rest, he was dressed in light olive green. The first time he came down near enough for Peter to see him well he understood why the bird is called Redeye. His eyes were red. Yes, sir, his eyes were red and this fact alone was enough to distinguish him from any other members of his family.

But it wasn't often that Redeye came down so near the ground that Peter could see his eyes. Redeve preferred to spend most of his time in the treetops and Peter only got glimpses of him now and then. But if he didn't see him often it was less often that he failed to hear him. "I don't see when Redeye finds time to eat," declared Peter as he listened to the seemingly unending song in the maple tree.

"Redeve believes in singing while he works," said Jenny Wren. "For my part I should think he'd wear his throat out. Just listening to him makes my own throat sore. When other birds sing they don't do anything else, but Redeye sings all the time he is hunting his meals, and only stops long enough to swallow a worm or a bug when he finds it. Just as soon as it is down he begins to sing again while he hunts for another. I must say for the Redeves that they are mighty good nest builders. Have you seen their nest over in that maple tree. Peter?'

clared Jenny Wren. "It is high up and those leaves are so thick that of the National Symphony program, conducted they hide it. It's a regular little basket, fastened in a fork near the end of a branch, and it is woven alof Engineer Clifford Holland and of the "sand- most as nicely as is the nest of hogs" who built New York City's famed Hol- Goldy the Oriole." "What's it made of?" asked Peter. "Strips of bark, plant down

It was a little too dangerous to finesse diamonds again before drawing trumps, so South next led the jack of spades. East took the trump 13. If West had started with four or more diamonds, dummy's fourth diamond could not be set up for the vital club discard. But if South blanked dummy's top clubs, the other hope—the establishment of the club jack-might actually come about without South's being sure about it.

To remove this guess, declarer cashed dummy's top clubs then and there-the Vienna coup of setting up an adverse winner so as to squeeze the holder more effectively later on. Then he ruffed the third heart and led his last trump. West then found it impossible to hold the club queen and all his diamonds, so discarded the club queen. Thereupon South cashed the club jack and made his slam with another diamond finesse.

superb piece of work. New England is marvelously photogenic. Its white churches, its proud, clean villages and its gentle rolling landscape make a dramatic setting for the story which Frank Craven narrates in simple, melodious prose. > Its actors are the New England farmers, loggers, housewives, farmhands, school teachers, pupils and country families who lived on the landscapes found by the camera crew. They illustrate what a fine actor the novice is when he is playing himself, but without self-consciousness. It is one of the special charms of the picture that its characters are as natural as the hills they live among-that a logger can fluff a swing without asking for a retake, that a fattish little girl can fumble for a piece of cake and a thinnish little boy can drink milk with that universal childish awkardness as if there weren't a camera within miles.

That's what acting should be and Edgar Peterson, 2d, has packed his film with it. John Alden Finckel, Washington composer, provided the musical score which adds another excellence to "Harvests for Tomorrow." Before we forget, it is now showing at the Metropolitan.
