District Highway Contracts Sharply Criticized by Controller German Bomber

'Loaded' 'Bids Hit in Report To Congress

Nearly Even Division Of Work Among Four Contractors Cited

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The District government's method of seeking bids and making contracts for highway work was sharply criticized in a special report to Congress by Controller General Lindsay Warren, which came to light today when it was referred to the Senate District Committee.

The report spoke of "unbalanced" or "loaded" bids, and questioned the validity of the District's highway contracts on the ground of uncer-

"Investigation disclosed," the report stated, "that inadequate, inaccurate and overstated estimates have been and are being used in requesting bids for the repair and improvement of streets and highways; namely, that bids are asked and received on far more items and quantities of materials and work than are expected to be, and then are furnished and performed. As an example, bids may be asked on 50 items of materials and work, while usually not more than 25 or 30 of such items are furnished.

Even Division Among Contractors. 'Such practice has resulted in the submission, receipt and acceptance of unbalanced or 'loaded' bids. Confirmation thereof is found in the fact that during the period from February 16, 1937, to July 17, 1940, there was close to an even division of work between the four principle contractors engaged in the improvement and repair of streets and highways in the District of Columbia report. The figures were sum- place marized for the four-year period as Corsum & Gruman-Bids, 67; contracts, 20; total, $1,329,106. Highway Engineering & Contract Co.-Bids, 46; contracts, 20; total, $1.436,795. McGuire & Rolfe-Bids, 58: contracts, 14; total, $1,292,074. Wilmoth Paving Co.-Bids, 45 contracts, 13; total, $1,233,041. Other Criticisms Made.

The report also criticized the District's method of regulating "overrun" work in the contracts, and concluded with this statement: "The practices herein reported are not deemed to be to the best interest of the District of Columbia or the United States, and, accordingly, should be brought to the attention of the Congress."

The controller explained he was (See ROADS, Page 2-X.)

Official Optimism on Soviet Is Based on Reports by Hopkins

American Visitor Impressed by Failure Of Fifth Column and Industrial Expansion

By DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON, Aug. 20 .- Official opimism in Washington and London over Russia's chance in the struggle with Germany is based on three assurances given to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill by Harry Hopkins during their Atlantic conference, it was reported reliably tonight.

The assurances which emerged from Mr. Hopkins' conference with Russia's Premier Stalin, and the lease-lend administrator's personal observations on his recent visit to Russia, were these:

1. Nazi efforts to raise a fifth column with Russia have failed. 2. Despite the terrific blows of the German armies, Moscow has "These were allowed to work until been able to maintain unbroken the O.G.P.U. 3. Soviet industrial expansion in the past five years has been on such a scale that even if the Germans hold the Western Ukraine, the Russians will be able-with some American and British help for immediate needs-to equip new armies and organize new air formations for the duration of a long war.

Explaining failure of a German fifth column in Russia, an informant declared, "Stalin had welded the army and people together before the war and purged his government of dissident elements."

"There were numerous Nazi spies and fifth columnists In Russia at the outbreak of the war," he said.

Roosevelt Asks Army to Redraft Building Plans

Order Affects Both Size of New Offices And Arlington Site

BACKGROUND-

Construction of $35,000,000 War Department building on grounds of old Experimental Form in Arlington County was authorized in supplementary military supply bill passed by Congress and sent to President. It has been opposed on ground that the Arlington property should be held for Arlington Cemetery expansion and because of traffic congestion project would create. Government also was urged to make building only half as large as contemplated.

Nazis on East Front Fight From Trenches As in World War

Youthful Soldier Tells of Digging in Under Shell Fire

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Aug. 20 .- Fighting from mudholes on the Eastern front gives German warriors of the new genera tion this much to boast of-now they can talk on even terms with their fathers, veterans of the trench warfare of the World War.

Corpl. Hans Juergen Weidlich presented a mudhole view of the new war in an account he entitled "Day's of Trensch Warfare," just sent back to Berlin.

He told how he and his comrades dug themselves in on a hillside in an undesignated sector which the Russians, well hidden in a birch woods, kept under heavy machinegun and artillery fire.

Weidlich said the situation or the hillside was similar to a scene from a Punch and Judy show, except that a hand grenade or a bullet took the place of the usual frying-pan hurled whenever a head beats on our roofs, tinkles on steel helmets, makes the ground gluey and sticks on our uniforms. To protect our carbines from moisture requires the greatest of effort. Stoically we squat in our holes and somehow wait for some begin-"Suddenly Jahn shouts from his hole, 'It's fun, anyway! At last we experience the World War. Now when we get home we can tell our fathers that we, like them, really lay in the mud. "The Bolsheviks meanwhile have esumed their furious fire. Antitank guns shoot, shrapnel bursts, grenades fly over our heads, whistling, howling and roaring through the rain. Early Morning Attack.

Weidlich went on to report that his group was relieved toward evening and went to a nearby barn to rest, only to have another fierce Russian artillery attack in the early morning cut short their sleeping time and kill two of their comrades The men spent the rest of the day cleaning their uniforms and equipment, but kept their wet boots on. "We preferred to dry them on our feet-another experience we can tell our fathers," Weidlich wrote, "And we, like our fathers, have not taken them off for weeks." scribing still another Soviet artil-

Dr. Jessup Acclaimed Hero of Air Crash Fatal to Eight

Led Rescue Party Back To Plane After 18 Hours In Brazilian Jungle

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Aug. 20 .-Prof. Philip C. Jessup of Columbia University was acclaimed a hero today for his self-sacrifice in guiding a rescue party to the scene of a Panair do Brasil airplane crash in which eight persons died.

Dr. Jessup, an international law expert: Hugh Davies, a native of Gardner, Pa., and the plane's steward, David Novak, escaped serious injury because they were asleep and relaxed in rear seats when the plane fell.

Although all were hurt and shocked, they struggled out of the mountain wilderness to get word here of the tragedy; then Dr. Jessup led a rescue party back to the scene. After an ordeal of 36 hours he collapsed.

Before leaving the spot in the Cantareira mountain jungle, 15 miles from here, Dr. Jessup, Mr. Davies and Mr. Novak managed to extricate two seriously injured passengers from the wreakage.

Unable to free more occupants. they went for help. For 18 hours they crawled down mountain sides. waded creeks and crept on hands and knees where the growth was so thick they could not stand. Finally, they reached a telephone.

Mr. Davies, 39, manager of the San Paulo branch of the International Harvester Co., who suffered a fracture of the nose, and Mr. Novak, whose right arm was dislocated, were brought to a hospital

Rescue squads worked through the night to remove the bodies of the dead in the plane and to care for the two injured, identified as Julio Carlos Wittis and Savio Cruz Secco. Cruz Secco was found unconscious his arms around his dead wife. The pilot of the plane, Roldao De Barros, died shortly after the rescue workers reached the scene. A Panair spokesman said an early examination of the wrecked plane showed no signs of sabotage.

Byrd Asks Revamping Of Defense Setup in Charging Failure

Nothing Can Be Done Until Program Has One Head, Senator Says

Declaring that not a single Army eamp has an adequate supply of military equipment, and calling for complete reorganization of the defense production system, Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia late yesterday told the Senate that "in that job for the past two years, we have failed and miserably failed, and the sooner we as a nation realize it, the better we can remedy our mistakes and go forward."

Speaking at length, the Virginian enumerated the deficiencies in the present program and blamed this condition on lack of organization and co-ordinated planning. As the first move in reform, he continued, "there must be one head of our defense program and this head should have the power and authority to give orders and enforce decisions. This is the first step and, in by judgment, nothing of a constructive character can be done until this head is appointed. our defense program unified, and the total lack of co-ordination which now exists corrected."

He further demanded suspension of the 40-hour work week, and said "social gains" and "everything else" must yield to the rearmament effort. Pictures Production Lags.

"In my judgment," Senator Byrd emphasized," it would be an act of utter folly to become a voluntary shooting participant in the European conflict in our present state of unpreparedness.

Plan for Releasing Of Selectees to Cause Increased Draft Calls

Monthly Rate to Be Raised To About 70,000, Says Hershey in Address

Draft calls will have to be increased when the War Department's new plan for releasing selectees after an average of 18 months' service goes into effect, according to Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director.

In South Bend, Ind., to address an American Legion State convention, Gen. Hershey told newspapermen that monthly draft calls would be increased to about 70,000 men a month, near the maximum allowed

Banker Osborn Gets Job of Running Army Morale Service

Ex-Defense Welfare Official Isn't Planning Anything Radical

By the Associated Press.

A 6-foot-8 civilian, who was made night, tackled the job today of running the Army's important morale branch but carefully avoided taking sides in a controversy as to whether the soldiers' morale is good or bad. He is Frederick H. Osborn, 52vear-old New York banker, whose appointment as brigadier general was sent to the Senate yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Despite his lack of military training, the new morale chief has had close contact with American soldiers in both war and peace.

During the World War, he had charge of the military activities of France for a year and since last January, he has been chairman of a special War Department committee handling recreational and wel- Islanders Fight for King

New oil's Long-Lived Protection

That's telling you ... in certified figures. And to tell you in the shortest words that will do it, this patented Conoco Nth oil contains a new lifegiver ... Thialkene inhibitorman-made. You've heard of inhibitions holding back a person from doing this or thatrestraining them-checking them. And Thialkene inhibitor acts to check the effect of poisons always formed in the operation of every car engine. No engine can help it, but Thialkene inhibitor can restrain this poison from "festering"

this new Conoco Nth oil kept

America's Hotspot kills off 6 new cars to prove

HERE'S WHY THIS OIL THAT CLEANED 'EM UP IN DEMON DEATH VALLEY IS CLEANING UP HERE AT HOME

Some of the people down the street and around town haven't paid out to add one quart of motor oil in weeks-ever since they changed over in a rush, at the introduction of

CONOCO NI MOTOR OIL

-the oil that's nailed up its Proof for You A bit back, you might have strung along with a staff of impartial Official Observers braving the white-hot Death Valley desert-279 feet below sea level-to watch 6 new everyday coupes running their heads off...or really running their crankcases off.

That was exactly the idea. For each car had exactly one regular fill of some one good brand of oil locked in by the Referee, so never a drop could be added. And when was it quits? Not till every oil was down to bottom ... not till every engine was junk.

The 5 other brands averaged 7,057 miles less than Conoco Nth ... Certified At the start, you will see, all 6 cars in this all-out test were more alike than a litter of kittens. And you'll see that all ran under the same conditions. Yet after the best of the other brands tested was all through, and let the engine go to smash, on lasting another 5,683 miles!

fast through Conoco Nth motor oil. Hence this oil stays more like its own good self—so the engine does -good way to save quarts.

Besides, the engine's OIL-PLATED by Conoco Nt.

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another Conoco man-made aid to oil economy. A magnet-like action is created that keeps OIL-PLATING bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down to the crankcase-not even overnight-not while you're using Conoco Nth oil. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance.

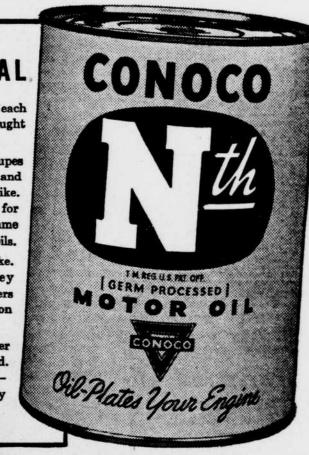

By OIL-PLATING the engine and inhibiting-checking-the waste poisons that commonly make motor oils waste away, new Conoco Nth motor oil far outlasted 5 "good ones" in demon Death Valley ... outlasted one of them by 161%. But you're not out to stretch all limits without mercy-any more than you'd loop-the-loop with your car just because you know it can be done. You'll sensibly drain and refill on your regular schedule, just noting shrewdly that after you have changed to Conoco Nth you could almost forget what it is to add a quart. Continental Oil Co. -Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics used. Same make and model. Broken-in alike. Engines taken apart for Referee—to assure same conditions for all oils.

All cars tuned alike. Same Death Valley route for all. Drivers rotated to even up on skill and weight.

Committee Is Formed To Send Medical Aid To Russia

New Yorker in Capital To Consult Officials On Helping Soviet

Formation of an American Committee for Medical Aid to Russia was announced here yesterday by Edward C. Carter of New York, chairman of the new group.

Mr. Carter, who has been associated with the disbursement of relief to China and who is executive secretary of the Institute of Pacific Relations, explained:

"A number of us felt that the people of this country had been providing relief for the British people and the Greeks and the Chinese and that we should do as much for the people of Russia. They are putting up a terrific fight against

Russian Embassy Queried. Mr. Carter said that his group had queried the Russian Embassy to find out if such aid would be welcome and that the Russians had in turn inquired whether the American people really wanted to help. When Mr. Carter assured the Soviet representatives here that there was such sentiment in this country, they submitted a list of medical supplies which they could use.

These supplies included surgical instruments, drugs and other medical necessities which could be used. A number of prominent Americans agreed to serve on the committee and Mr. Carter came to Washington to consult with officials.

Money to Be Collected.

The money will be collected in this country by solicitation and the supplies will be bought here and shipped to Russia for distribution by the Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies there. The American Red Cross is not participating in the activity at the present time.

Constantin Oumansky, the Soviet Ambassador, expressed his thanks to the organization for their efforts. Dr. Henry E. Sigerist of Johns Hopkins University heads the Medical Advisory Board of the committee. The following are serving on the Preparatory Committee of the organization: Mr. Carter, Joseph Barnes, C. C. Burlingham, F. W. Gehle, Vilhjalmur Stefansson and Judge Thomas D. Thacher.

Nazi Orders Clamp Rigid Rules on Dutch Newspapers

'Ten Commandments' Of Journalism Foster Germanic Ideals

By H. J. J. SARGINT,

Correspondent of The Star and North American Newspaper Alliance. LONDON, August 20 .- Information reaching me from reliable sources in Holland paints a distressing picture of the state of servitude to which the Dutch press has been reduced by the German authorities.

A new "department of information and art" has been set up in the Netherlands by German Commissar Seyss-Inquart, which works in close association with the press section of the German administration. This department has been circularizing Dutch papers and periodicals, telling them what they shall print and what they shall not print. One of these circulars, dated May 23 and marked "very confidential," runs as follows:

1. Nothing is to be published regarding the strikes in Belgium. 2. At least once a week, each paper should refer to the "Winterhulp" (the German-sponsored winter aid campaign which is a dismal failure in Holland). Pictures must be used and will be supplied by the press office of the "Winterhulp."

Churchill Carlestured. 3. No reference may be made to the report that tickets which won a prize in a "Winterhulp" lottery were marked.

4. The German photographic agency Stapfl will supply the best Winston Churchill cartoon available. The press section and the Propaganda Ministry would highly appreciate conspicuous publication of this caricature.

5. Reports referring to the restriction of railway traffic must be referred to the press section. 6. Reference must be made to the marches of the Hitler Youth and the Dutch Nazis, which will take place on May 31 and June 1.

Nazis must be fully reported. 7. There will be a press conference at which the new rationing system will be discussed.

Speeches by Seyss-Inquart and other

Editor Arrested.

The editor of the influential conservative paper Het Algemeen Handelsblad, Dr. von Balluseck, has been arrested, while J. Vesters, editor of the Catholic daily paper, Volkskrant of Utrecht, has been forced to resign. The Catholic dailies De Maasbode and Residentiebode were suspended some months ago.

Perhaps the most irritating action by the Germans has been to appoint Max Blokzijl, formerly Berlin correspondent of Het Algemeen Handelsblad and now Holland's "Haw-Haw," who regularly broadcasts over the German-controlled Hilversum radio, to be chief of the Information and Art.

All journalistic organizations have been dissolved and journalists have had to become members of a newlycreated Dutch Chamber of Journalists, which is controlled by a Dutch Nazi called Goedewaagen. It is this chamber which has issued a fantastic set of rules for the guidance of Dutch newspapermen which it calls "The Ten Commandments." These are as follows:

1. The new European order shall be a free co-operation of equal national communities under the supreme direction of Adolf Hitler, leader of all Germanic people.

Must Support German Union.

2. Journalists shall aim at the union of all Germanic powers. The Dutch press must steadily and actively emphasize the cultural, economic and military advantages offered by a Germanic union. 3. Journalists will strive continally to strengthen the national life. spiritually, morally and materially. 4. While constantly emphasizing the idea of a national union, journalists will take into account the characteristics of different parts of the country and oppose narrow class distinctions and any unnecessary religious differences. They will also oppose all attempts to keep in existence different political parties. 5. Dutchmen will only be those of pure Dutch blood.

6. The press will make efforts to relieve material needs. It will encourage winter help and the work of land reclamation, with especial reference to the reclamation of heath and peat districts.
7. Journalists will promote a better understanding and knowledge of the land workers' value, on whose labor the nation depends.

8. Journalists will oppose strongly any attempt to belittle the dignity of manual labor.

9. Journalists will do their utmost to encourage feelings of discipline, order and comradeship in the nation's youth by effective articles and stories. 10. Journalists must win and keep the respect of all Dutchmen. Incidentally, any journalist writing in a spirit contrary to the "ten commandments" is threatened with two years' imprisonment or a fine of 10,000 guilders (about $6,000) The same penalty is threatened against any one who instructs or pays a journalist to infringe the commandments." Finally, any one following the journalism without Chamber of Journalists may be sent to prison for six months.

Quoting Lincoln

President Roosevelt, discovering an obvious "parallel" in the prevailing emergency, read to his press conference yesterday a quotation from a statement made by Abraham Lincoln in the anxious autumn of 1862. The text included the lines: "I have no word of encouragement to give. * * * The fact is the people have not yet made up their minds that we are at war with the South. They have not buckled down to the determination to fight this war through. * * * They have no idea that the war is to be carried on and put through by hard, tough fighting.' Lincoln was speaking informally.

His listeners were a group of women from Chicago, headed by Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, a volunteer leader in the Northwestern Branch of the United States Sanitary Commission, later to win fame as a suffrage and temperance reformer and as a journalist. According to the records of Frank B. Carpenter, "things had gone on from bad to worse." The battles of Shiloh and Antietam had been costly but indecisive struggles. General Robert E. Lee had demonstrated his capacity to raid Northern territory as distant as the Cumberland Valley in Pennsylvania. The Army of the Potomac had won some vic-.tories which merited commendation, yet its commander was regarded as dilatory and slow. Sentiment in the States loyal to the Union was confused.

"We had reached the end of our rope on the plan of operations we had been pursuing." Lincoln told Carpenter. Six days after he issued the Emancipation Proclamation he wrote to Hannibal Hamlin: "While commendation in newspapers and by distinguished individuals is all that a vain man could wish, the stocks have declined and troops come forward more slowly than ever."

How deeply moved the Emancipator was may be guessed from a statement he prepared for Mrs. Gurney, a Quakeress preacher, to whom he said: "We are indeed going through a great trial-a fiery trial. * * * Being a humble instrument in the hands of our heavenly Father, as I am, and as we all are, to work out His great purposes, I have desired shat all my works and acts may be according to His will. * * * If I had been allowed my way, this war would never have been commenced. If I had been allowed my way, this war would have been ended before this: but we find it still continues, and we must believe that He permits it for some wise purpose of His own, mysterious and unknown to us, and though with our limited understandings we may not be able to comprehend it, yet we cannot but believe that He who made the world still governs it."

Such was Lincoln's faith. Remain-Ing steadfast in it, he lived to see the fulfillment of his hopes. The conflict between the States ended in a victory for the whole of civilization. A similar result from the present world-wide strife is sought by the democracies. President Roosevelt was well-advised when he warned the American people that the contest is real and that there is need for them to be awake to its demand, responsive to its challenge.

Lesson in Taxation

The announcement by Harry K. Green, Arlington County commissioner of revenue, that District residents working in Government buildings to be located in the county will be subject to the State income tax, should serve as an object lesson to those responsible for drafting the District's income tax law.

Under the Virginia law the State can collect the tax if it has jurisdiction over the person or the subject matter-in this case the source of Income. The District law in its original form was patterned after the Virginia statute, but for purely political reasons it was finally enacted in such form as to be applicable only to persons "domiciled" in the District. The result, of course, was that thousands of persons working and living here were able to escape the tax by asserting legal residence in one of

As to those already subject to the District tax, the Virginia levy will be more of a nuisance than a revenue raiser, since they will be given credit for the tax paid in the Capital. But if any of the thousands of employes slated for assignment to jobs in Virginia have been escaping the District tax by claiming legal resicome tax they will become subject | midnight every Sunday.

there would be no basis for allowance of a credit.

The whole business may be something of a headache to the Virginia authorities, who fear that the cost of administration will exceed the tax receipts, but it is a situation which nevertheless throws a revealing light on the governmental handicaps placed on a community which has no voice in the selection of its governing authorities.

Well-Deserved Rebuke

President Roosevelt's announcement of his opposition to the plan to erect a massive and unsightly War Department building near the front entrance to Arlington National Cemetery carries with it a well-deserved rebuke to an ill-conceived scheme which constitutes a serious setback to orderly and intelligent city planning in the National Capital.

tion of a huge concrete structure covering thirty-five acres of ground on the site of the Arlington experimental farm. Into this colossus among office buildings would be herded a maximum of 40,000 workers, and their transportation to and from their homes-largely in the District -would present a traffic problem of staggering proportions. When to these considerations there is added the fact that the War Department scheme was submitted to Congress without advance notice and without affording the Fine Arts Commission or the National Capital Park and Planning Commission any opportunity to pass on it, it is easy to understand why the President saw fit to class the project as a culminating incident in the history of the desecration of parks by Government buildings. There is no doubt, as the President said, that this plan, if carried out, would mar for a hundred years the stately beauty of the Potomac Park setting, from the Lincoln Memorial across the river to the slopes of Arlington National Cemetery and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. From an esthetic standpoint, it is unthinkable that this magnificent vista, the product of long years of careful planning, should be destroyed by one hasty, ill-considered act, and as the President goes more deeply into this question he also will discover that formidable physical obstacles, as well as esthetic considerations, were overlooked or ignored by the sponsors of this War needs of the War Department for more space cannot be met within working out this program for development of the Federal establishment. After many years of study, Federal planning authorities recommended, and Congress approved, extension of the governmental building program westward from the White House toward the river. In a spacious rectangle west of the new Interior Building were to be placed two main groups of office buildings having to do with defense. The first, a new home for the War Department, was authorized by Congress by act of June 25, 1938, and the first unit of this building has been completed. Other units were to be added, and a $24,000,000 Navy Department group was to be erected just west of the Naval Hospital, which was to be taken down. Sponsors of the Arlington War Department site presumably were prepared to scrap this carefully planned program, but, as the President has pointed out, such reckless disregard of intelligent planning is unnecessary. As he suggested, there is no reason why the emergency needs of the War Department cannot be satisfied by adding new units to that already built and promptly going ahead with construction of the Navy buildings, the latter to be used by the War Department during the emergency and turned back to the Navy when the war is over. If that were done, there would be no reason to throw up acres of emergency office space in a prospective park area for the War Department, for which there would be little if any real need after peace comes.

Because of the hasty manner in which this ill-advised project has taken form, the residents of Washington who are unalterably opposed to what they believe will be a desecration of the Capital must look to the President to intervene. He has not disclosed what he intends to do. if he decides finally against the undertaking, but if he can work out some arrangement under which the monstrous Arlington plan would be abandoned in favor of the orderly and dignified program already mapped out, he will have made a contribution to the maintenance of the National Capital which would command the gratitude of Americans today and for a hundred years to

Permit Suspensions

In a new safety effort, the Maryland commissioner of motor vehicles has announced that motorists convicted of violating traffic laws on the State's highways on week ends will face possible suspension or revocation of their driving permits. The new policy is being adopted on the recommendation of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. It was tried out on the Fourth of July week end and proved so successful in the opinion of the motor vehicles commissioner | Vichy has to face. that he decided to make it applicable dence in States which have no in- between midnight every Friday and of traffic regulations during the week ends are brought before the commissioner or his examiners for individual hearings to show cause why they should not lose their licenses. As a result of the July Fourth week end. 350 motorists had their licenses revoked or suspended. This penalty was in addition to the ordinary punishment for the specific offenses on which the drivers were arrested. Out-of-State drivers also were affected, being deprived of the right to use Maryland highways. The new system is listed by the safety commission as one of the factors which led to a 30 per cent reduction in the number of fatalities in July, 1941, as compared with July, 1940. It may have been mere coincidence, but July, 1941, the first month that the new system was tried, saw a reversal of a trend. Until that month fatalities in Maryland were up 30 per cent over 1940, but the reduction The present plan calls for the erecin fatalities during July lowered this excess to 17 per cent for the year. In administering the new policy officials will be called upon to make judicious use of their powers. There is no excuse as a rule for suspension or revocation of permits for mere technical violations that are not accident breeders. But border-line cases inevitably will occur which require common-sense application of the rule. This policy, however, has been followed successfully in other jurisdictions. If Maryland has the personnel available to handle the hearings there seems little reason why the system should not apply every day rather than be limited to week ends.

'III Wind' in France

In his recent address definitely committing France to long-term collaboration with the Axis, Marshal Petain warned that he felt an "ill wind rising in many regions of France." The aged leader of the Vichy regime thus frankly admitted the rising storm of opposition to his policies, though he condemned it as short-sighted and voiced his determination to stamp it out.

However, all signs indicate that repression will not be easy. Even in German-occupied France, active resistance mounts. Serious rioting in Paris last week was put down only with the help of German soldiers when it threatened to get beyond French police control. The riots were followed by the establishment of German courts-martial and a procla-Mr. Roosevelt indicated his belief mation by General von Stuelpnagel, commander in chief of the German that there is no reason why the occupation forces, that the entire population would be held responsible the scope of the so-called Northwest | for similar outbreaks in the future. This warning was coupled with an offer of a million francs reward for information leading to the detection of the saboteurs.

The most active element in this resistance campaign seems to be the Communists. Relatively quiescent during the period of Russo-German understanding, the French Communists have become aggressively militant since the Soviet Union and the Third Reich are at death grips. The Communist party was numerous and powerful under the Third Republic, and though it has been officially abolished by the Vichy government, the party organization undoubtedly continues to exist underground. The German forces of occupation certainly seem to regard it as the most dangerous opponent. In the drastic decree already mentioned. General von Stuelpnagel warned that any person engaging in any form of Communist activity would be considered an enemy of Germany, brought before a German court-martial, and summarily shot.

A less violent but perhaps even more widespread source of discontent centers in the old-line politicians who have been thrown out of jobs by the abolition of parliamentary democracy. Marshal Petain alluded to them also in his memorable address, and has just struck a shrewd blow against them by removing them from the pay roll and depriving them of their privileges, although their salaries were presumed to continue until 1942. The reputed fury of a woman scorned seems to be equaled by the ire of these parliamentary left-overs, suddenly deprived of their perquisites. So vehement have been their denunciations that a number of them have been placed under administrative arrest. In France itself, the "Free French" movement of General de Gaulle does not seem to play an important role in the opposition to Vichy and the Germans. Of course, no De Gaulle organization has been tolerated, so whatever is being done for the cause must function secretly. Nevertheless, De Gaullist sympathizers are known to exist in government circles, and it is to weed out such persons that Vichy is obliging all public functionaires to take a personal oath of loyalty to Marshal Petain. Below and beyond all these articulate centers of disaffection and potential revolt spreads the sullen opposition of a majority of the French people. The average Frenchman perhaps would be resigned to passive acceptance of his present hard lot if that were all. But when the Vichy government orders him to make common cause with his oppressors, the average Frenchman instinctively gets his back up. That is the most serious symptom which

'Brave New World' Anticipated

Writer Tells of Vision Of Earth Made Free From Fear and Want

By Clare Boothe

(This is the third in a series by leading American writers on the theme of the Williamstown Institute of Human Relations at Williams College, Aug. 24 to 29.)

I want to live in a world in which the public's business is conducted by men whose chief ambition is to enrich and educate the public. I want to live in a world in which the leaders, elected by the will of the people, are always opposed by some of them, and sometimes by all of them. For the leader who finds, or brooks, no opposition and rejoices in this, is leading a nation of slaves, or dupes, or dopes, to their undoing. I want to live in a world in which the common people do not discuss politics morning, noon and night, exasperating their neighbors and wearying their wives with footling, frantic, fearsome discussion. For only when the common people seldom speak of politics is a nation being well governed.

civilian is honored above the soldier, and the pen and the plow, the foundry and the loom above the 75-millimeter gun and the nose-dive bomber. For soldiers bring no joy to any one with their weapons, and the man of peace has no need of them. I want to live in a world where the vast output of industry is for peaceful pursuits. For the greater a nation's armaments, the greater its confusion, and a nation in arms is by this very token a nation in physical peril. I want to live in a world in which men do not grow wild with joy over victories on the battlefield. For a nation which rejoices at bloodshed is in spiritual peril. No amount of patriotic casuistry can conceal this truth from honest minds.

I want to live in a world where the

I want to live in a world in which the leaders of great nations govern humbly in the knowledge that every country is part of the world and not a world apart, that "nationhood" is a geographical concept inevitably doomed to alteration or disaster unless the spiritual concept of brotherhood is placed above it. I want to live in a world in which diplomats are somewhat more careful of the fate of whole peoples than they are of the creases in their pin-stripe pants and who know that great and rich states must at all times serve small and poor ones. For this is the only way to win their allegiance. I want to live in a world where powerful statesmen see quite clearly that only the strong can be and must be generous. For to be ungenerous is to breed hatred, to encourage attack and thus in the end to grow weak.

live in a world in which the leaders seek first among their own peoples for the blame and the fault attendant to crisis. The fault for the hunchback child lies in the mother's womb. It is that you must study. The leaders of America and Great Britain will never understand Hitler nor cure Nazi-ism until they first understand America and Great Britain. For if we are at war with this moral hunchback, Hitler, it is not because of his shorttermed folly, but our long-termed blindness; not because of his brief lunacy, but our longspun stupidities. And if we are to eradicate the forces of Nazi-ism we must eradicate the causes.

Above all I want to live in a world in which responsible men have fully grasped the new and beautiful truth of our times: That at last the means of production, transportation and communications do exist whereby all the men on this globe can be fed, clothed and educated. For until this astounding mechanical fact is spiritually grasped and politically implemented by our own peoples and our own leaders, we are committed to wars without end in this

I want to live in a brave new world where service to his fellows, not service from them, is the measure of the individual's success; where honor and glory accrue to him for a quick heart and ready brain; and not because he has a nimble thumb for clipping coupons; where he feels he provides better for his children by leaving them a good name than a great fortune. In short, I want to live in a world in which all men are born equal in opportunity to achieve by merit, virtue or genius that fine inequality which will be viewed by lesser men without jealousy or rancor.

I want to live in a world where mortal men can and do turn freely and often to whatever immortal God they deem good for the comfort and guidance which are never to be found among men in even the most glittering, productive and just material world.

I want to live in a world in which Buddha, Confucius, Laotse, Mohammed, Moses and Jesus replace Genghis Kahn, Attila, Marlborough, Frederick the Great and Napoleon as pertinent matter for widely syndicated newspaper columnists. I want to live in a world in which there are great public bonfires of all the "How to Kill" and "Who to Hate" books: The books of Clauswitz. and Fuller, Fortsch and Mahan, De Gaulle and Hitler.

That's the sort of world I want to live in. So. I suspect, does every sane person. But "sane people" tell you, these days, only insane people believe that sort of world is possible. In which case, the world I want to live in is a world largely peopled by madmen.

Expresses Skepticism Concerning Religious "Slogan." To the Editor of The Star:

Some of our preachers seem to have adopted what seems to me to be a dangerously deceptive slogan: "This is God's world." I do not know what they mean by that.

If this is God's world, I should dislike very much to see how Satan's world looks

Is it possible that our preachers thoughtlessly use that slogan as a subconscious alibi for their conformity to the status quo? Or do they mean to say that, since this is God's world, all that a child of God needs to do, when he wants anything, is to help himself? It sounds to me as though that slogan | have made us relatively great and pros- | repeatedly. THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"BETHESDA, Md.

"Dear Sir: "Recently we read your interesting article about turtles and we thought you might like to hear about our experience of last year.

"We live on a woodsy lot, but back of the house is a cleared space across which an old road used to run. We have lived here five years and up to this time grass has grown much in the ruts of this road, worn through the use of many

"It was in one of these ruts on the 10th of June, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, that we found Mrs. Box Turtle working in the earth. Why she selected this hard, dry rut for her purpose is a mystery. "When we found her she had scooped out only a shallow place but we mistrusted that she was digging a hole in which to lay her eggs, and so decided to watch and see what happened. Slowly but persistently the turtle worked. First she scraped the earth with one hind leg, using the claws to bring out the dirt. Then she moved over and used the other leg. Then she would rest for a second or two. From side to side the turtle went, removing the earth with the tiny nails of her feet. Instead of leaving the earth in a pile, immediately behind her, she spread it evenly around her on both sides in a ridge. She paid no attention whatsoever to us, not even when, as it grew dark, we found need of a flashlight.

"As the hole grew deeper and deeper, she stretched her legs out more and more into the earth, until finally she could reach down no further. It was finished. It was about 7 o'clock and the turtle had dug a hole in the earth 31/2 inches deep.

"Into this hole she then layed four smooth, leathery-covered, ivory-white eggs 11/4 inches long and about 3/4 of an inch through at the widest part, and the long job of covering them up began.

"She scraped the earth from around her a little at a time, beginning with what she had piled nearest her head. first using one foot, then ponderously moving over and using the other, bending her leg at the joint from time to time, using it as a knuckle to press the dirt down into the hole tightly against

"It was then that we understood why she had distributed the earth around her in digging the hole. She could reach it easier and she could reach it all. On and on she worked. From side to side and from side to side again. Reaching out with her leg fully extended, pulling the earth in with first one leg and then the other, pressing it down now and then. At 9:45 she had put the finishing touches on the ground. It was smoothed off, pressed down smoothed off again and covered with little pieces of grass. No one could have possibly guessed the secret that lay beneath. them stay where they were. We found an old cellophane box about 5 inches square and with hair pins stapled it down around the place where the eggs were hidden. "Weeks passed. Rains fell, warm breezes of summer fanned the earth. the sun shone hot on the incubator Mrs. Box Turtle had prepared for her eggs. Anxiously, every once in a while, we peered into the box. Birds nested, raised their young, and left for their Southern homes. Still no sign from the earth under the cellophane inclosure. "We were about to give up hope, when, on the 27th of September, after a very heavy rain the night before, we found a tiny turtle! It had evidently only just emerged from the damp earth, as we could look down into the place it had left and see the other little turtles. one below the other, with pieces of their leathery shells around them. We were certainly excited. When they all came to light there were four of them, and all the eggs had hatched.

"They were but slightly bigger than a quarter.

* * * * "We just couldn't bear to leave them to the vagaries of the fall and winter weather, they were so very small and helpless, so we converted the aquarium into a nursery by filling it with moss, partridge berries and wood plants, leaving a place in one corner for a small dish of water. We partially covered the aquarium with glass.

"The turtles ate little during the fall and early winter and finally dug themselves under the moss and we seldom saw them. As the warm sun of early spring began to shine into their home, they began to appear frequently and eventually were out most of the day. Their shells had hardly grown through the winter months, but we could notice a definite thickening of their necks, and their heads and feet were larger.

"On the 21st of April, 1941, a lovely day, we took the aquarium to the side woods near some piles of old leaves under which they might hide, and let them out. We watched them as they stretched their tiny legs and ambled away into the great, big spring world and wished them happy turtle lives. "We wish to express our appreciation for your many fine articles.

"Sincerely your, F. N. M." "P. S .- You asked the other night for food acceptable to wood thrushes. Our wood thrushes, and we have had many pairs of them this summer, have eaten quantities of soaked bread, and during the nesting season came continually during the day to get large mouthfuls which they carried away to their nestlings. They also took suct and some hamburger. In fact, soaked bread has been a great favorite with all the parent birds this season, cardinals, tufted titmice, blue jays, wood thrushes, thrashers and catbirds have seemed to enjoy it and we have fed at least a loaf of bread a day through the nesting season.

Zoological classification recognizes only turtles and tortoises. Those called turtles are most fresh-water species and all marine species, while most terrestrial species are called tortoises. Box tortoises have lived for 50 years in captivity when permitted to bury themselves in winter. They dig down below the frost line, whatever that may be, usually from 1 to 2 feet.

'Home Front' Danger to President

Vote on Draft Bill Cited as Growing Threat to Policies

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

President Roosevelt has ahead of him a situation on what may be called the "home front" which is so serious that, if not soon remedied, it can check the successful operation of his foreign policy. For many months the "home front" has been ig-mense nored. It has been assumed by down. the Administration that those either were sympathizers with David Lawrence. the fascist idea or were totally unaware of the dangers in a Hitler victory. At no time have the administration men here taken the trouble to examine the real reasons for the intense opposition which prevails in the Middle West against the President's policies.

Until now the subject has been academic but an administration which has achieved a reputation for political insight is not likely to brush aside as inconsequential a vote of the House of Representatives which reveals a majority of the members of both parties in a certain section to have voted against the President

In 11 States in the Middle West the vote on the extension of the draft bill was 100 against to 18 in favor of the proposal. This means that 75 out of 76 Republicans in the same 11 States voted against draft extension and that 25 out of 42 Democrats did likewise. The States are Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio

Were Overwhelmingly Against. Every delegation from each of these 11 States was recorded overwhelmingly against draft extension. Lest it be thought that the opposition was confined wholly to the Middle West, it will be found on examining the State-by-State voting that the New York State delegation divided 22 against, to 21 for the measure. Nor was the line-up partisan for it revealed 12 Democrats and nine Republicans in favor of the bill and 10 Democrats and 11 Republicans and one American member against it. New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Wisconsin were among the populous States that showed a majority against the President.

Translated into electoral votes, there were enough States which showed a majority against the measure so that a presidential election adverse to the administration would be recorded.

Why did the 203-to-202 final vote show such an amazing opposition to a recommendation which had the indorsement of the chief of staff of the Army as well as the President? Some of the voting was, of course, political and for the purpose of catering to pressure groups back home. But this does not explain away the whole trend Members of Congress had plenty of time to appraise the they did

This distrust arises from the fact | Virginia referred so eloquently in prices. that misuse of public power exists in Washington and reaches out into the Nation. The distrust springs largely from the fear that the war situation is being used as a camouflage to put over a scheme of State Socialism and there are millions of citizens in America who do not believe in eitner Fascism or Communism or State Socialism or New Dealism.

If it be unjust to say that the administration has ulterior purposes and means to use the emergency wrongfully, then it is equally accurate to say that not a single word or deed of reassurance has come from the Government since September 1939 to allay the fears.

The men in power control in key agencies are mostly radicals. Conservatives have been brought in for window dressing here and there but It is common gossip in Washington that they have no power or authority and the moment the President essays to give them a real position, the sniping against them begins from New Deal quarters.

This morale is due to the following factors: Patriotism and the fact that no private owners or stockholders are making profits, so the people are working for the whole community; intelligent organization work, with emphasis always on the human element may well be considered a psychological factor; continual intercourse between management and workers, and the sympathetic interest in their welfare shown by assistants who stop people working if they show exhaustion: communal feeding; the presence of women workers who in every factory they have entered have lifted the spirit, cheerfulness and work standards of the entire body. The experience of seeing England at war throws light on the whole question of management and labor relationships. What stands out in brilliant clarity is that even such things as fatigue are largely psychological; that men and women will work beyond any normal powers for what they consider necessary and essential to the whole people; that they will drive machines, but will not be driven by them; that equality of effort, sacrifice and danger takes the sting out of all of them and that the delegation of responsibility to the individual and to the group brings out more energy than any slave driver can create.

England has not been able to keep up the same amount of effort at all times. Always since the war began it has been way above normal. But in the days of Dunkerque and the months that followed it was super-human because the workers knew the fate of Britain was immediately at

There has been plenty of opportunity for them to make a party record by pounding away at the weakness and incompetence of the defense organization. There has been every justification for indicting the administration for its craven policy toward organized labor; for its supine yielding to pressure from the farm lobby; for the feebleness with which it is dealing with the inflation danger; for the absurdity of its price-control program, and for its failure to reduce

Strong Bases and Forces in West Africa Might Spur Weygand to Rejoin British

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The West African Coast from Sierra Leone to Capetowr, may become a new base of operations for foes of the Axis.

Large quantities of war material are being sent to that region, according to reports. Every harbor along the coast which offers an adequate shelter either for submarines or larger vessels is being fortified. Airfields are being constructed as quickly as possible. President Roosevelt's announcement Monday that American war planes will be ferried to the Middle East across the Atlantic by way of Freetown makes it necessary to improve existing air fields in those regions.

According to military observers. Great Britain, with our assistance, will endeavor to establish a first-class military base in West Africa and preparations are being made to hasten its establish-

Suggested New Line.

Last spring, when things were not going well for the British in Egypt, many strategists suggested that Gen. Wavell, then commander in chief of the British forces in the Mediterranean withdraw from Egypt and establish a new line from Port Sudan on the Red Sea, to Freetown. The idea was based on the fact that since the British were not strong enough to start an offensive in Europe, they must have a foothold in Africa from which ward toward the Mediterranean when the time was ripe.

This idea was discarded, but apparently it has been taken up again and improved.

The British have sent heavy reinforcements to the Middle East command. These troops apparently are to attempt to join the Russians in the Caucasus and stop the Germans short of the Baku oil fields. The latest type of war material is said to have been sent through Gibraltar under escort of the entire Mediterranean fleet. German bombers were occupied in Russia and the Italians made only sporadic attacks

Over 200,000 men, fully equipped, are reported to have reached the Middle East and are prepared to move through Iran - where German penetration has reached a dangerous

point-to join the Russians in the Caucasus

Would Be Used in Egypt. But should the German armies get ahead of the British-a possibility which must be taken into consideration - and the union with Marshal Budyenny's army be impossible, the British troops will undoubtedly be used in Egypt, and a portion of them might be sent to territory extending from Sierra Leone to Congo. The presence of an adequate force there will become increasingly important in the event the Germans decide to go to Dakar and Gen. Wevgand does not feel strong enough to oppose them

There are all kinds of stories about Weygand's attitude. Some maintain that his egotism never will permit him to rejoin his former allies. Last year, when he urged the wavering French government to conclude an immediate armistice with the Germans, he based his arguments not only on the total collapse of the forces under his command, but also on his theory that the British would have to follow France's example in "less than a month." He assured former President Lebrun and Premier Reynaud that Britain could withstand the Nazis no better than France. Therefore, he argued, what was the good of listening to Churchill's arguments that France should not sign an armistice, but continue her resistance from Africa. He proved a talse prophet, and many who know the little French general believe that his present dislike of the British is based chiefly on the fact that they showed Others who are in close touch with Weygand at the present time believe that his ambiguous attitude is merely due to the fact that he hasn't a chance to fight the Germans if he cannot receive the necessary airplanes and munitions from the United States or Great Britain. American observers who see him occasionally say that we are all wrong about Weygand. He is a soldier who looks at a situation unemotionally. If the Allies were able to provide him with the tools to resist German aggression in North Africa there is no question that he would fight At present his only power of resistance is embodied in about 250,000 men, completely unequipped. Should the United States and Great Britain succeed in Gulf of Guinea from which they could send Weygand's professional soldiers necessary equipment it is more than likely that the French pro-consul would throw his lot with his former ally. He is, of course, deeply loyal to Marshal Petain and would hesitate to cross the old warrior. But he despises Admiral Darlan and the rest of the Vichy crowd. He has been frank with many Americans who have seen him. He told them he cannot fight with promises fro mthe United States and Great Britain. In order to take a strong stand he must know that the essential weapons are on hand in Africa.

If the British, with our assistance, are able to organize a first-class force on the west coast of Africa there is more than an even chance the entire situation in North Africa might be changed.

AN ATLANTIC BASE, Aug. 20 .-This correspondent is higher'n a ki e as he writes this. Higher'n two or place, I don't know. The Atlantic Ocean has few distinguishing landmarks. It looks the same all over to me. You know, blue and wet and salty and all wrinkled up with ripples that have the same profile and fingerprint. In the second place, even if I knew where I am the Navy Department wouldn't let me tell you. A man with a hard face and lots of gold braid told me to keep my whereabouts to myself and he said it so vehemently that even if I were cast away on a desert island on this trip, I'd give the wrong address in writing home for help. I am taking this trip because I want to get a working view of a sister plane of the one that tracked down the Bismarck and led the British ships in for the kill. The British have criticized some of the planes we have sent them, but the PBY, which they have termed the Catalina, has received nothing but

The PBY is about the size of a house that politicians like to be born in, big enough to have comfort but not large enough to have airs. It is between log cabin and bungalow in size, and if parked on a corner lot it would mark its owner as one who gave his family the comforts but not the luxuries.

The PBY is one of those planes that inspires confidence. You get in it-with a feeling that you are coming back. It doesn't get off the water as fast as some of the other Navy ships do, but you feel deep down inside, as it cuts the water for a take. off, that it definitely is going to get up and that once up it will stay up It may not have the pickup of a gull but it has the dependency of a pelican, and that is what you want in patrol flights that sometimes last as long as 30 hours

At the moment I am sitting in the machine-gun "blister," near the tail of the ship. There is a gunner on my right and a gunner on my left. The Navy asked me not to tell you the caliber of the guns. so I will oblige by simply describing them as of about the same size that the tanks I saw at Fort Benning carried. And that they make a whack of a racket when fired. About two paragraphs ago (which may partially explain my jerky prose style) the gunners cut loose at an imaginary enemy for practice, and with the first outburst of rat-a-tat my first impulse was to drop to the floor and vell "kamerad" or whatever it is that you well when you are scared to death at 10,000 feet.

enemy tormentors the PBY dropped down from her path in the stratosphere to within 25 feet of the ocean. She rode so close to the waves that I felt that I could lean from the gun "blister" and drag my hands in the water as if I were riding in a rowboat. The big ship is safer near the water. At 25 feet no enemy fighter can get beneath her, and she is vulnerable only from above. Even if hit and badly hurt, she has only to sink a few feet to ride the waves. We're heading home now. To what base I do not know. But I am keeping a sharp lookout for any possible conferences at sea. After what happened last week, there is no telling who is meeting out here. Who knows but what Ickes and all the filling station attendants are out here somewhere in the Atlantic on a secret conclave to think up another measure to increase gasoline consumption.

Meade Returns Officer To Essential Civil Job

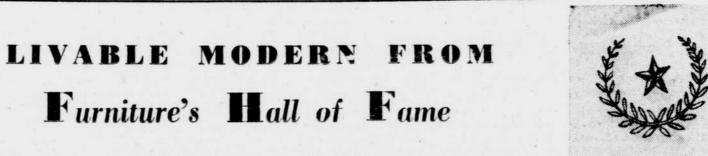

By the Associated Press. FORT GEORGE G. MEADE. Md. Aug. 20 .- The 29th Infantry Division yesterday announced the first case of an officer being returned to inactive military status by the War Department because his civilian services are regarded as essential to the Nation's defense effort.

The officer is Capt. Elmer C. Phipps of Baltimore, adjutant of the 104th Medical Regiment, who was an executive in the real estate department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad until the regiment's induction into Federal service last February.

Fall Training for Football Fans

This may be as good a time as any for the intrepid fan to start his own football preparations. It won't be long now. Just a matter of a few weeks. The season sneaks up on you like an insurance premium. It might be a good idea to take it easy at first. George Washington belongs to the Southern Conference now. The Colonials are going to bring some good teams to town. It might be wise to brush up on some of the old songs. How does that G-street ditty go, now? That chorus part . . "see our men go around their end." Or is it . . . "see those men go around our end"? It could be the latter, especially since Uncle Sam has claimed Frank August, the best wingman on the campus.

George Preston Marshall, the big chieftain of the Redskins, always advises that fans learn the words to "Hail to the Redskins." This can be done very easily, he always explains. Recordings are on sale in some of the music shops. "Every civic-minded person in Washington, nearby Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia should own a record," advocates Mr. Marshail. "After all, what are the Redskins except a great civic Veteran grandstand coaches rarely go into the season cold prospects on the three Army and and untrained. They have various ways of conditioning themselves but five industrial teams the Nation's most of them are good and uniformly successful.

One well-recommended method is for the subject to pick out a yearly sandlot derby for the first cool day and sit in a draft, with his feet dipped into a basin of ice water. This can be done at home because several other people are needed. Always sit on something low and hard, preferably behind a pillar, and have the other members of the family yell and screech in your ears, pound their fists on your hat and shoulders and plunk their knees in the small of your back. When this is done for two hours a day for a the newspaperman turned ivory couple of weeks the subject is ready to go to Griffith Stadium of a hunter. Sunday afternoon to watch the Redskins.

This may well be a year wherein it will be necessary to learn about ice skating, boogie-woogie dancing and music appreciation. This is of because it is almost a certainty that Mr. Marshall's between-the-halves Greenwade of the Brooklyn Dodgers, shows will be greater than ever. Up to now Mr. Marshall has been unchallenged as a showman. With his 100-odd-piece Indian band and his separate swing unit which sits in an elevated wigwam from which smoke pours, George Preston and his movieland wife, the former Corinne when the youngsters at home read Griffith, have pioneered the way for the other pro teams to entertain that Brother Tom and Cousins Dick their customers during lulls.

Dodgers' Sonja Henie Is New Chief Threat

Now the other pro teams, having been shown the benefits of such elaborate extra-curricular entertainment, are prepared to meet Mr. and Morris, "that baseball, like the Army Mrs. Marshall on an even footing. Steve Owens' burly Giants will be inspired this season by an improved Babe Ruth still can hit, but his legs and enlarged darktown strutters band and a bigger and better glee club to render the Giants' own theme song.

It is from Brooklyn, however, where Mrs. Marshall will meet her biggest threat. With one full pro football season behind her, Mrs. Dan staff has shown the most interest Topping, who is the former Sonja Henie, may be expected to embellish are Monte Basgall, second baseman; the Dodgers' programs with that movieland touch.

Mr. Topping, who appreciates a well-turned knee, also has made a practice of having drum majorettes lead the band. If this won't be enough to take the play away from the Redskins, it could be that Mrs. Topping will rustle up an ice show. That's hard to beat

There is a new combination working together now in the National Football League. Bert Bell and Art Rooney, formerly bitter enemies, are commanding the Pittsburgh Steelers. Up to now the Steelers haven't gone in much for entertainment, football or otherwise. But this is another year. Messrs. Bell and Rooney have some fresh money and Mr. Rooney has been in the fight-promoting business for some time. This might be a clue. Perhaps Mr. Rooney will stage a pugilistic show between halves.

The only team in the pro league that may not find it worth while to entertain the customers during the intermission is the Chicago Bears. If the big, bad Bears take up where they left off last December, while burying the Redskins by a 73-to-0 score, their rivals may not come out for the second half. Each Holds Decision In Past Matches in National Tourney

Both Should Be Primed For Omaha Regardless Of Which Wins Today

By EARL HILLIGAN,

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.-The rubber match of one of amateur golf's liveliest twosome battles went on in the Great Lakes amateur golf championship today-with the principals both looking ahead to next week's National Amateur test at Omaha.

The two stars involved-Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., and Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. -met in the Great Lakes event at Knollwood for the third time in their brilliant fairway careers. With each holding one decision, they were hard for victory today. Regardless of the outcome, however, it was probable both would tee off in the big Nebraska show Monday with their games at razor-edge.

Ward Won in 1939 Final. Two years ago, at Chicago's North Shore Club, Ward won the National Amateur by downing Billows in the final, 7 and 5. Last year, at Winged Foot, Billows whipped Ward 4 and 3 in the quarter-finals. Ward next week will be one of the standout favorites, while Billows says "this should be Bud's year to win, but don't count

Both Ward and Billows were impressive yesterday in double victories. Ward had to go 19 holes to down Frank Kovack of Chicago, 1 up, then routed Johnny Lehman, Chicago veteran, 5 and 4. On September 27 the highly touted William and Mary Indians will get their first major test against the strong Navy team at Annapolis, V. M. I. meets Clemson's defending Southern Conference champions at Lynchburg and Virginia will entertain Lafayette, one of the Nation's few undefeated teams of 1940.

On November 8 William and Mary entertains V. M. I. at Williamsburg in a clash which may decide the face of a concession stand girl. The rivals. Virginia and W. and L., meet girl's mother, also an employe at at Charlottesville in a home-coming the park, conked the man's head game and the Richmond Spiders play host to the Tar Heels of North Carolina.

Big Ten Expecting Bigger, Better Grid Year With Defense Moves Little Felt

Northwestern, Iowa Loop's Only Schools Hard Hit by Draft

Broad Physical Program Planned by Conference To Aid Preparedness

(This is another of a series dealing with likely effects of the national emergency on 1941 college tootball.)

By CHARLES DUNKLEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Business as usual, bigger and better. That sums up prospects for the 1941 football season in the Western Conference, one of the Nation's major athletic groups. The draft has made no serious inroads on player strength and reports indicate the "Big Ten" is headed for a bumper year insofar as attendance is concerned. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference, says the circuit intends to intensify its general athletic program during the period of the emergency as a contribution to national physical preparedness. The effects of selective service upon football personnel appear to be slight, he says.

"A relatively few among prospective members of football squads have been called, primarily because the average of conference football men is under the limit of 21 years," Griffith says. "While there are scattered individual losses, the total effect is slight.

No Hint of Curtailment,

"There has been no suggestion that the one-year residence or freshman rule be modified or dropped. Neither have there been suggestions for retrenchment or curtailment. Football schedules are unchanged and ticket prices in general are the same as last year. Preseason ticket sales indicate increased interest."

As regards the draft, the most pessimistic report comes from Iowa Northwestern, too, may feel the effects of the selective service pro-

Michigan's Butler in Army.

The only casualty thus far a Michigan is Jack Butler, reserve tackle, who has joined the Army Air Corps. Among Michigan stars classified are Reuben Kelto and Bob Flora, star tackles, and Bob Westfall, ace fullback. All, however, have high numbers.

Minnesota's Golden Gophers, who swept to the Big Ten and national honors with an undefeated 1940 season, will escape any serious blow from the draft. Purdue has lost none of its regulars, but Co-captain Tom Melton, guard, has a low number. Other Boilermakers who may be lost before the end of the season include John Petty, fullback; Herman Timpertackle; Joe Hillenbrand, guard; Hal Schumacher, fullback, and Alex Leudo, center. Melton, Petty and Timperman are expected to be mainstays of the team.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 .- The magazine Iron Age predicted today that most non-defense orders for steel would not be filled in the near future because of the Government's steel priority order. "The mills," said the magazine, "are awaiting official word that they can use their own experience and discretion where necessary in determining the proper sequence of steel orders so that rolling mill schedules will not be upset and production actually lost. "Steel mills which roll on certain sizes and types of steel for long periods before switching to another size or type are concerned with the likelihood of increasing costs as well as slower production. Large consumer industry groups, such as canners, railroads, the oil industry and jobbers are growing still more ap-prehensive over their ability to obtain the necessary steel. . . Reof lack of materials. "Unless the railroads obtain a preferential rating for railroad material, including rails and track accessories, they are expected to face a serious situation after September 1, when full effects of mandatory steel priorities will be felt. Steel companies have a mandate from the O. P. M. to complete defense orders ahead of non-defense orders. "But thousands of tons of rails now on steel company order booksand urgently needed by the railroads have no priority rating. Completing this picture are estimates of 1942 rail requirements running as high as 1,500,000 tons. On September 1, a date likely to be long remembered, large consumers of pig iron with non-defense orders face the likelihood of being cut off from supplies. * *

D. C. Postal Savings Show $991,834 Gain During Fiscal Year

National Deposits Also Rise Sharply In Same Period

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Postal savings deposits in Washington during the fiscal year ended June 30 scored a striking advance of nearly $1,000,000 over the previous 12-month period, according to reports compiled at the City Post Office, it was learned today.

savings accounts in the Capital aggregated $9,579,193, as compared with total deposits of $8,587,359 at the conclusion of the previous fiscal year, an increase of $991,834.

The figures cover postal savings deposits made at the main office and all the Washington branch offices. Post Office officials are enthusiastic over the gains for the year and consider the rise in deposits as a particularly good indicator of thrift among Washington residents.

Figures just compiled by the Post Office Department show that postal savings in the whole United States at the end of June reached an estimated total of $1.304,044,481. against $1,292,980,828 a year ago, an increase of $11,063,653 for the Nation.

The reports indicate that the national defense efforts have inrather than decreased creased. public interest in this type of savings.

National Bank Loans Mount. Controller of the Currency Preston Delano announced today that the loans held by national banks in the United States and possessions on June 30, date of the recent call for condition reports, increased nearly $500,000.000 in the quarter. and were nearly $1,750,000,000 more than the loan held at the end of June in 1940. The call covered the 5,136 active banks. Their loans and discounts amounted to $10,922,-

Total assets of $41,315,000,000 were higher than any previous call date, and exceeded by $1,122,000,000 and $4.430,000,000 the total assets reported as of April 4, 1941, and June 29. 1940, respectively.

Deposits totaling $37,351,000,000. again higher than on any other call date in the history of the National Banking System, were $1,064,000,000 more than on the previous call date and $4,277,000,000 more than the aggregate held in June of last year.

Department store sales in this territory continue to show the largest percentage gains in dollar volume of any of the 12 Federal Reserve Districts according to the Federal Reserve Board's latest re-

From January 1 to August 9 sales in the Richmond District, which includes Washington, were 22 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year. The national gain was 16 per cent

In the more than seven months St. Louis stood second with a 20 per cent advance, while Atlanta and Cleveland districts noted 19 per cent better sales. Next came the Philadelphia and Kansas City areas with pickups amounting to 18 per

Boston and San Francisco have enjoyed 16 per cent advances so far this year; Chicago, 15 per cent; Kansas City, 14 per cent; New York, 13, and Minneapolis, 12, the report

Credit Curb Coming Soon. In notifying all banks in Washington of the coming regulation of installment credit by the Federal Reserve System, President Hugh Leach of the Reserve Bank of Rich-

"The initial regulation of installment credit is a step towards carrying out the purposes of the executive order by assisting in the adjustment of public demand to the available supply of automobiles, household electrical equipment and other similar articles the production of which requires defense materialsespecially metals-now urgently required for military and naval pur-

"By regulating the terms of installment credit for the purchase of such articles, it is contemplated that demand will be dampened so that greater effectiveness will be given to other means adopted for checking price advances and devoting materials, manufacturing facilities and man power more intensively to the defense effort. Another objective is to assist in building up a backlog of demand for such articles until defense needs are lessened. "The regulation will be amended by the Board of Governors from tions. For the purpose of assisting the Board of Governors in this respect we shall be glad to receive any suggestions that you may wish to offer as to changes that should

Transfer of Control In North American Units Approved

Wisconsin Electric To Take Over Two Other Subsidiaries

The Securities Commission approved yesterday a plan under which Wisconsin Electric Power Co. would acquire control of Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. and Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. through an exchange of securities with the North American Co., parent of all three operating companies. Wisconsin Electric would issue 1,-265,000 shares of its common stock. By the Associated Press. $10 par value to North American which already owns 1,228,710 shares. or 88 per cent of the amount outstanding. In return, Wisconsin would receive from North American all of the common stock of Wisconsin Michigan, amounting in each case to 300,000 shares, $20 par value.

The move was described by Wisconsin Electric as a step toward a possible later merger of all three Wisconsin companies and tending to increase the marketability of Wisconsin Electric common stock held by North American. The latter company indicated during S. E. C. hearings that it might eventually dispose of the Wisconsin properties. Wisconsin Electric serves 256,000 customers in Milwaukee and four neighboring counties. Wisconsin Gas serves 67,000 electric and 51,000 gas customers in territory immediately surrounding that of Wisconsin Electric. Wisconsin Michigan serves 37,000 electric and 9,000 gas customers in two areas, one centered at Appleton, Wis., and the other at Iron Mountain, Mich.

Wisconsin Electric also proposed to transfer $3,300,000 from its depreciation reserve and $2,200,000 from its earned surplus account to its reserve for contingent losses on investment and its transportation

The S. E. C. said the record in the case "is replete with evidence of three companies, which might be destroyed by bombs, the dealers said.

quisition by Wisconsin Electric of the common stock of Wisconsin Gas and Wisconsin Michigan is not 'detrimental to the carrying out of the provisions of section 11' and that it will serve 'the public interest by tending toward the economical and efficient development of an integrated public utility system."

Wisconsin Electric told the commission in asking approval that the market closed firm today in what inplan would provide a single integrated system which would be of mutual benefit to consumers and investors of all three companies, that let" of recent weeks. it would tend to improve the earnings of Wisconsin Electric common stock and that it would "materially improve the capital structure of Wisconsin Electric and substantially increase the equity behind its senior securities."

Advances of Fractions To Point Reduced Before Close

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 .- The stock market was given a modest lift today by a mild buying movement which started in the steels and gradually spread to other departments.

to around a point, closing prices were a bit under the tops in a number of cases. Dealings continued at a relatively slow pace and totaled arounr 500,000

At the best levels attained around midday gains ranged from fractions shares. Speculative quarters saw little connection between the improvement in values and outside news, and it was assumed the buyers were willing to chance the prospects of a further recovery from the August lows purely on the market's technical position.

Some were impressed with the favorable action of the list in the light of President Roosevelt's warning the democracies faced a long uphill fight if they were to defeat Nazi-ism.

Prominent on the rise were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet. Chrysler, Goodyear, Goodrich, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck. Douglas, Westinghouse, Kennecott, Santa Fe and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Iron Ore Consumption At New High Mark During July

Seven Months' Total Also Reaches Another Record

By the Associated Press CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.-Under pressure of mounting defense demands, the steel industry consumed 6.497.442 gross tons of Lake Superior iron ore during July, a new record, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported today.

This exceeded by 85,911 tons the previous peak of 6.411.531 tons set in March this year and compares with 6,231,067 tons this June and 5.523.595 tons in July, 1940. Consumption for the first seven months this year rose to the unprecedented high mark of 43,178,525 tons, against 32,856,261 tons for the similar period last year Despite the rapid melting pace, reserve stocks of the Northwestern ores are being built up, the report showed. As of August 1 there were 28,256,869 tons at furnaces and 3,-340,517 tons on Lake Erie docks, for a total lower lake supply of 31.597,386 tons. This compared with 26,629,670

During July one additional blast furnace was blown in to make 176 of an available 186 in operation. This compared with 152 in blast a tons a month ago and 28,244,066 tons

Ickes Blames Utilities For Public Power Growth

vinced that private utilities alone are to blame for the growth of Government-sponsored power op- year. erations which he is determined shall be expanded to the very limit. "There would be no public power versus private power issue in this country today if the private utilities had been satisfied with a reasonable profit, if they had not engaged in corrupting our political life," he told a mass meeting last night. In this public-power conscious section Mr. Ickes took occasion also to proclaim his belief that industrial leaders worked in league to achieve their own advantages without regard for public economy.

"All of us * * * want to stabilize industrialization," he said. "We don't want any monopoly to have the power of economic life or death here or anywhere else."

Thus did the Secretary explain his department's refusal to grant the Aluminum Co. of America an additional 60.000-kilowatt block of power from Bonneville Dam. The power instead was assigned to the Reynolds Metals Co. to operate a competing plant.

Doll Orders Expand Despite Price Rise

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Aug. 20 .- Toy manufacturers reported today that orders from retailers for plastic dolls, de-25 per cent increase in prices, were running two and one-half times ahead of the like season last year. Production, they said, was at the rate of last October.

Some manufacturers said short-Christmas, due in part to dwindling supplies of rayon plush, used in stuffed animal dolls.

Dry Goods Market

NEW YORK. Aug. 20 (P).—Demand for coarse constructions of gray goods was stimulated further today by the Government's request that 25 per cent of production capacity be put aside to satisfy defense needs.

Woolen piece goods mills are operating at capacity with the turnover restricted by the inability of producers to find available yardage for delivery.

The rayon industry continued to mark time pending anticipated action on ceiling prices for finished goods. Rayon weavers, whose supply of yarn was curtailed by the order allocating 10 per cent of mill stocks and production to the hosiery trade, are urging that a strong protest be made against further divergence.

$379,749,325 Notes Sold by Treasury

The Treasury reports receipts from the sale of tax anticipation notes totaled $379,749,325 in the first 16 days after they were placed on sale August 1.

Officials said actual sales were higher, since most of the notes are sold through Federal Reserve banks and are reflected in Treasury receipts figures a few days later.

To Be Made in D. C. This Year

Return Is Less Than 61/2% Base for First Time Since 1935

For the first time since the adoption in 1935 of the sliding-scale arrangement for regulation of gas rates, no money will be available for a rate reduction this year, it was disclosed today at the Public Utilities

Commission's annual rate hearing. It was the shortest gas rate hearing ever conducted by the commission, the inquiry being completed in slightly more than an hour. This resulted chiefly from the fact that the commission's staff and officials of the Washington Gas Light Co. were in almost complete agreement on the firm's operating expenses and the net amount available for return. V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the commission, testified that the company's rate of return during the year ending last June 30 was 6.0109 per cent. Under the sliding-scale arrangement, if the percentage of return is less than 61/2 per cent, but more than 6 per cent, no change in rates can be made until this condition has continued for two consecutive years.

Figures Given.

He reported the net additions to the rate base, or the value of the company for rate-making purposes, amounted to $1,986,158 during the year. He listed the company's operating revenues as $8,348,585 and estimated its operating expenses at $6.768.776.

Despite an increase in population that resulted in a rise of 16.6 per cent in house-heating customers, the increased revenue from this class of business was only 1.05 per cent as a result of the abnormally mild weather prevailing during the year, he said

Mr. McElfresh listed the following as the major factors which caused the rate of return to drop below the base rate:

1. Net additions to the rate base were more than double last year's net additions.

2. Rate reductions ordered last year, amounting to $105,300, included a carry-over adjustment from the prior year's earnings of $43,474, and constituted the second largest rate reduction effected since the sliding scale was inaugurated.

increase in house-heating customers. 4. Increase in Federal income tax rates from 20.9 per cent to 24 per cent, retroactively effected subsequent to last year's rate case, necessitated the inclusion of $38.764 in the current test year's taxes, an item applicable to the previous year's in-

Robert C. Owers, vice president and treasurer of the gas company. listed the firm's operating expenses as $6,770,938, which was $2,162 higher than the commission's figure. The difference resulted chiefly from the company's listing of contributions to the Greater National Capital Committee as business expenses. Both Mr. Owers and E. Barrett Prettyman, counsel for the company, contended that such payments constituted a business expense. In previous years the commission has ruled that they are not an operating ex-

Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter said the estimated loss for the past year was $795,071, an increase of $61,570 over 1940. The average loss per fire was $173.44, an increase of $9.74. The per capita loss was $1.06, this being rated as less than "very low." During the year there were 4,584 fires, an increase of 103. Multiple alarms were sounded in 39 cases, 16 more than in 1940. There were 849 false alarms, an increase of 250. Arrests and convictions were obtained in cases involving 17 of these. department issued 10,319 notices to abate fire hazards discovered by inspectors and made 211,605 fire prevention inspections.

Fire Department discipline was better than in the previous year, the report indicated. Disciplinary measures were taken in only 11 cases, 18 less than in the year previous, and 9 of these were called "minor.

Wilbur L. Bosch, 23, And Companion Die In Florida Everglades

Wilbur Lewis Bosch, 23, of Falls Church, Va., a flying cadet in the Naval Reserve, was one of six student flyers and an instructor killed in air crashes at Florida training fields in the past few days, the Navy Department announced. Mr. Bosch, the son of Mrs. Mary Bosch of Falls Church, was with Cadet Otis Kinzel Harbuck, 26, Marine Corps Reserve, of Williamsburg, Ky., when their plane went into "an uncontrollable spin" during a training flight over the Everglades, about 15 miles from the Miami Naval Air Station at Opa-Locka, Fla.

Mrs. Bosch was to leave today by plane for New Douglas, Ill., where her son's body will be taken for burial. He attended the University of Southern Illinois at Carbondale until he came to live with of the planes and parachuted to his mother in Falls Church last safety.

He underwent preliminary training at Bolling Field here and had Air Station were killed when their been at the Miami Flying School since February. He would have completed his course and received his flying rating this week, according to word received by his mother.

Driving Permit Suspensions Up 86% in Year

System Is Creating Desired Effect, Board Believes

An 86 per cent increase in the number of automobile permits suspended or revoked for traffic violations during the fiscal year ended June 30, was reported to the Commissioners today by Edward R. Deane, secretary of the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits. During the year, the board considered 11.640 cases, as compared with 9,810 in the year before. The board suspended or revoked 2,220 permits, as against 1,189 in the 1940 fiscal year. During the last year 1,722 drivers were summoned before the board and given warnings, the board seeing fit to take no action in the remainder of cases presented by Washington police or authorities from the States. In discussing the figures reported, Mr. Deane said: "Although the number of suspensions greatly increased over the previous year, it is the belief of members of the board that the present system of suspending permits is having the desired effect. This can be noticed in the fact that second and third offenses of speed have greatly decreased in the past year.

Reciprocity Suspensions Rise. "The board also wishes to note greater number of persons using outof-town tags in the District while employed by the Federal Government on defense projects." During the past year the board restored 985 permits, which previously had been suspended or revoked. It

Daily Average Curb on Sale of Gas Attempted

Utilities Commission Warns Taxis on Unnecessary Cruising

The probability that they will run out of gasoline entirely in the last few days of the first 15-day rationing period was prompting members of Gasoline Retailers of Washington, Inc., today to curtail sales on a daily average basis. From August 15, when the rationing order went into effect, until the end of the month dealers can receive and sell to consumers only 45 per cent of the quantity disposed of during the month of July

Meanwhile a veiled threat that possibly rules of more drastic nature might be considered in the future if voluntary co-operation fails. was offered by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday as it called on taxi owners and operators to cease unnecessary cruising as a means of saving gasoline.

Letters Warn Cab Owners.

The commission today is sending letters to about 5,000 cab owners and drivers urging them to observe all existing regulations and law forbidding unnecessary cruising in search of fares. This action was brought a Scottie along for the taken as a result of a request by Defense Petroleum Co - ordinator Ickes that steps be taken to reduce the broad face he figured three cruising as much as possible withwasn't a crowd-not as long as the out placing an undue burden on cab operators.

In the absence of specific rationing instructions on the sale of gasoline here many dealers have gone ahead on a "business as usual" basis and now are far ahead of their quotas, if figured on a daily average. Under a plan proposed by the retailers, the filling station operators will divide their allotment by the number of days remaining before September 1, making allowances for busy days, such as Saturdays. A dealer's business experience, it was said, should enable him to strike an average for every day in the week. Daily Quota Closings Advised.

The utilities board, in its letter to taxi men, said "It is, of course, the desire of the Commissioners of the District and the Public Utilities Commission to co-operate fully with the co-ordinator and your complete cooperation is essential to the fulfillment of this desire. You are urgently requested to observe all existing regulations and statutory laws pertaining to cruising.

Cites New Stands.

"The Public Utilities Commission with the approval of the joint board, has established numerous criticising the Brookings Institution taxicab stands adjacent to fire hyproposal for a change in the basic drants in the downtown shopping area. Observation reveals that very little use is made of such public space. The commission believes that greater use of these facilities would do much to conserve gasoline and oil. features of the report for incorpora-"The Commission is hopeful that your entry into the spirit of our national defense program for the conservation of petroleum products will prevent more drastic action in the future.'

District officials frankly have doubts as to how effectively they can enforce present rules banning "unnecessary" cruising, so they couched the letter in terms of a plea for co-operation. Some officials said, however, if it is found there is widespread disobedience hereafter they may have to consider "other steps" which might include bans on any cruising of cabs in downtown sections.

Leaders Split On Manager Plan in County

Brookings Survey Divides Citizens In Montgomery

Mixed reaction was voiced today by Montgomery County civic leaders to the action of the county commissioners in adopting a resolution criticising the Brookings Institution proposal for a change in the basic and calling for appointment of a committee to work out the best features of the report for incorporation into the county's present system of government.

The resolution as presented for adoption yesterday by Thomas E. Hampton, board chairman, declared that replacement of the county commissioners with a board of nine councilmen and a county manager would scrap the two-party system in the election of county administrative officials and would preclude voters of the districts from voting for any councilman but their own, thus reducing "the representative value of the vote of every citizen of Montgomery County to one-ninth of its present value in county affairs."

Not Revolutionary. While Joseph B. Mattre, president of the county's Civic Federation, declined comment on the commissioners' action, O. M. Kile, past federation president, said the Brookings report "does not strike me as particularly revolutionary."

"It proposes what essentially is a county manager form of government which has been tried out successfully in a number of counties and cities and there is a good deal to be said for a non-partisan county governing board," Mr. Kile said.

"Insofar as elimination of the twoparty system is concerned, it would concern only the selection of the members of the county administra- By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. tive board, but you will still be able to elect State officers and members of the Legislature on the basis of Backs Commissioners.

On the other hand, general agreement with the resolution adopted by the commissioners was voiced by 3 and 4, Chevy Chase. Carey Quinn, member of the Executive Committee of the Civic Federation, who declared that, from a personal point of view, he did not feel that residents of the county should be limited to the election of only the councilmen from their particular districts, as proposed by the Brook-

Mr. Quinn also said he did not believe in attempting to eliminate political parties because it is impossible and, despite any attempt in this direction, various factions will "get together and try to put over what they want done.

Lewis Meriam, in charge of a survey of Montgomery County for the Brookings Institution, said:

"The Brookings Institution has made its report on Montgomery County available for study by the people of the county. My hope that they will study it is apparently being realized. The people of the county are the ones to determine what changes they wish to make in their local government. The issues are now in their hands to be decided by them in the American democratic way.'

Plans Complete Study.

Allan H. Gardner, chairman of a joint committee of 10 county-wide educational, civic and agricultural organizations which is studying the report, declined to comment on the resolution signed by the commissioners. He said the report deserves a careful study and that his committee will sponsor a detailed study of its various phases and will hold a meeting designed to inform the public of its study and to secure the views of all groups on the report. Public officials, including the county commissioners, will be invited to participate in the meeting, Mr. Gardner said. He said, however, that his committee would prefer to reserve its opinion until it had had sufficient time to make a thorough study of the report. It was believed by some observers that chief opposition to the proposal for the change in the basic form of government in the county would be centered in the county's rural areas which, they said, are growing more and more apprehensive of losing influence in county the rezoning of lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 affairs to the Metropolitan Area. It was also felt that chief sup-

Utilities Commission Warns Taxis on Unnecessary Cruising

The probability that they will run out of gasoline entirely in the last few days of the first 15-day rationing period was prompting members of Gasoline Retailers of Washington, Inc., today to curtail sales on a daily average basis. From August 15, when the rationing order went into effect, until the end of the month dealers can receive and sell to consumers only 45 per cent of the quantity disposed of during the month of July.

Meanwhile a veiled threat that possibly rules of more drastic nature might be considered in the future if voluntary co-operation fails. was offered by the Public Utilitles Commission yesterday as it called on taxi owners and operators to cease unnecessary cruising as a means of saving gasoline. Letters Warn Cab Owners.

The commission today is sending letters to about 5,000 cab owners and drivers urging them to observe all existing regulations and law forbidding unnecessary cruising in search of fares. This action was taken as a result of a request by Defense Petroleum Co - ordinator Ickes that steps be taken to reduce cruising as much as possible without placing an undue burden on cab operators.

In the absence of specific rationing instructions on the sale of gasoline here many dealers have gone ahead on a "business as usual" basis and now are far ahead of their quotas, if figured on a daily average Under a plan proposed by the retailers, the filling station operators will divide their allotment by the number of days remaining before September 1, making allowances for busy days, such as Saturdays. A dealer's business experience, it was said, should enable him to strike an average for every day in the week.

Daily Quota Closings Advised. It was suggested that rationing for non-essential uses be figured accordingly. The dealers were advised. it was said, to close when their daily average was exhausted, rather than run the risk of being forced to close for several days at the end of the Commissioners of the District and the Public Utilities Commission to co-operate fully with the co-ordinator and your complete cooperation is essential to the fulfillment of this desire. You are urgently requested to observe all existing regulations and statutory laws pertaining to cruising. Cites New Stands.

The utilities board, in its letter to taxi men, said:

"The Public Utilities Commission with the approval of the joint board, has established numerous taxicab stands adjacent to fire hydo much to conserve gasoline and oil.

"The Commission is hopeful that your entry into the spirit of our conservation of petroleum products District officials frankly have doubts as to how effectively they "unnecessary" cruising, so they couched the letter in terms of a plea for co-operation. Some offithere is widespread disobedience hereafter they may have to consider "other steps" which might inin downtown sections.

Talk Slated Monday.

The District Petroleum Conservation Committee announced today a talk on gasoline and fuel-oil savings would be made Monday at 5 p.m. by Harold N. Marsh, attorney, before the University Women's Club at 1634 I street N.W. A film illustrating oil-conserving driving will be shown. The Conservation Committee also

Venezuelan Embassy Party Today Honors Dr. John Studebaker

Dinner Parties Given at Southampton; Archibald Roosevelts to Go to Newport; Mrs. Whitten to Be Hostess

Washington society is finding much with which to entertain itself, whether in the cool Washington environs or in the resorts.

Outstanding event of today among the diplomatic contingent of the Capital was the ceremony held at noon at the Venezuelan Embassy to honor Dr. John W. Studebaker. Dr. Studebaker, who is United States Commissioner of Education, was presented a Decoration of Education by Dr. Antonio Castillo, dean of Central University of Caracas. The Venexuelan Ambassador, Dr. Diogenes Escalante, was host to a number of friends and colleagues on this occasion.

And Duchess Are Hosts.

Dinner parties were a popular form of entertaining yesterday a Southampton, Long Island, and among the hosts were the Duke and Duchess of Richelieu, the latter formerly Miss Elinor Douglas Wise of Baltimore. The Duchess of Richelieu is a gifted and cultivated singer and has given generously of her talents to aid various charities wherever she has lived. They at present are making their home in New York and are frequent visitors in Washington where she has given numerous re-

By the Way—

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.-Motoring here by way of the Rocky Mountain National Park is a little longer route, but the magnificent mountain scenery making the extra mileage well worth while. Up the Trail Ridge road to an altitude of over 12,000 feet, to the high "above timber line"-looking down on a panorama of rivers, lakes and valleys of wild flowers, so beautiful that it leaves one speechless. On the highest peak we saw the first car with a District of Columbia license plate since we left Detroit-a Washington taxi-cab!

Past Iceberg Lake where perpetual ice floats, to the resort village of Grand Lake. Here is the highest registered yacht anchorage in the world 8,369 feet above sea level. There are hotels and guest ranches as well as some charming private summer cottages on the lake's edge. There is every possible summer sport-riding, swimming, fishing, tennis, hiking and mountain climbing—and in winter excellent skiing, skating, tobogganing and snowshoeing. In the village of Grand Lake we saw our first cowboys. It's hard to tell them from the dudes who try to dress just like them. One way, say our Western friends, is that the cowboys are nearly always bow-

To the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs for luncheon with Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fosdick. Bee will be here for several weeks in all, returning to Newport to join Snowden for the dance they will give there the end of the monthbut that's another story. The Fosdicks are from New York and also have a lovely winter house in Palm Beach-just now they're taking a short vacation here. After cocktails and a delicious luncheon we decide to do a little sight-seeing.

The hotel itself is beautifully situated at the foot of the mountains. There's an indoor pool for swimming and also a fresh water lake with a beach for sun bathing and a broad terrace with comfortable garden furniture where one may have a cool drink between dips. There are tennis courts and a very fine golf course right at the hotel, and the famous polo field is near by. It was here that William Elmsley of the British Embassy played when he lived in Colorado Springs several years and also "Chuck" Newbold, who's recently gone to Washington to live.

All the attendants of the hotel are costumed a la Westernlike cowboys and cowgirls. It's very picturesque and attractive. First we saw the wonderful indoor skating rink, open all the year round, then up the steep mountain road to the Will Rogers Memorial. "The singing tower" it's called-and it is a great and amazing tribute to a great man. The view again is magnificentnearby is Pikes Peak, far below the hotel and buildings of Colorado Springs look like tiny toys. On the first floor of the tower are murals covering the walls. They depict scenes in the life of Rogers and all the people shown are real characters. On the floor above. the walls are lined with photographs which tell the story of Rogers' entire life and then at the very tip-top is the lookout tower where one may get the full superb view for miles around.

Next we saw the "Garden of the Gods" just a little way from Colorado Springs. The natural formation of the red rocks has made them into things of weird and wondrous shapes, and people come from all over the country to see them. Some of the cowboys from nearby ranches have ridden over, they feed and water their horses before starting back. An old Indian sells beads and tom-toms to the tourists-it's all like being in

Deaths Blamed on Religious Dispute Among Tribesmen

BELCHER ISLANDS, Hudson Bay Canada, Aug. 20.—One of the weirdest stories to come out of the frozen North was unfolding today before a white man's court hearing murder charges against seven Eskimos accused of putting nine others to death in a dispute over whether Christ had come to earth again.

Some of the nine died of gunshol wounds, some of beatings and the rest-four of them children-were snow last winter to perish of cold. Preliminary testimony was taken yesterday from some of the accused,

They spoke through interpreters in a tent which served as the courthouse for the judicial party headed by Justice C. P. Plaxton of the Ontario Supreme Court-a party which took 13 days for the long trip north.

The story they told was one of long arguments over claims of two tribesmen to divine power, of beliefs that Satan was driven from the tribe by Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Leary, with the deaths, and of the burning of their daughter, Mary Lee, and their religious books deemed no longer son Dalton of Takoma Park, are needed if Christ walked again

The Eskimos normally are peaceloving. Seldom has a member of any of the tribes been executed for violation of the white man's law. A verdict of guilty makes the death sentence mandatory. However, such a sentence can be commuted by the Governor General on the advice of the Department of Justice.

War's Awakening of U. S. Industrial Colossus Promises an Air-Minded Nation in Peace

BACKGROUND-

The urgency of defense has spurred the United States' industrial giant to new records of production, creating new social and economic problems throughout the nation, booming aviation and shipbuilding into positions of prime importance. It's a strange contrast to the years of depression and yet merely a part of the story of the new American life described in this series.

By DON WHITEHEAD,

The Star's Special News Service. NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The specter skies above the United States with from chimneys of industries producing at record levels.

The American industrial colossus is aroused as never before. The pace of production steadily is being not be discounted. There must be violence of the transition from the lethargy of peace-time depression to sudden prosperity in a virtual wartime economy has shaken the Nation into new patterns of thought and action.

The impact of war and defense fell on industry first because war ly to go to the nation or combination of nations with the most and best machines.

Germany had a seven-year start on the world in producing implements of war, and now the wheels of American industry are turning at a dizzy pace to cut down this

The war prodded industry into increased activity with orders from Britain and France for planes, armament, munitions and supplies. Then our own defense program swept it forward under the impetus of billions of dollars in contracts for goods and materials.

The vaunted genius of American industry for mass production is being put to the test-and early results show it is living up to advance billing. Production is hitting new levels. Government economists predict that by next year it will be 40 per cent greater than the boom year of 1929-a year of golden production which stood through 10 years as a gauge of prosperity.

Strikes, bottlenecks, inadequat planning, shortages of materials and dozens of other snarls have slowed the machines, yet production in-

Factories are producing at capacity and are expanding facilities for even greater output. Employment in nonagricultural work has reached almost 39,000,000, a new record, and breadlines have disappeared. Farmers' income is up. The only desperation is in the urgency to produce more goods. No one has time to listen to the medicine men.

Within a few months the young aircraft industry boomed into a wartime giant as the United States set out to build the greatest military air fleet in the world. The industry expanded beyond the wildest dreams of aviation enthusiasts. It still is shipping will be built this year and about 2,500,000 gross tons a year, according to estimates by the American Bureau of Shipping.

Employment in the shipyards will be approximately 562,000 men, or almost six times the average in the pre-war period. Along with the merchant shipping is the three-fold expansion of the United States fleet into a two-ocean

Navy. The Navy had some 323 ships of 1,253,400 tons on January 1, 1941, but by 1947 it will have grown to 691 ships of 3,500,000 tons. The cost of naval vessels under construction last March 1 totaled $4,680,721,000. Nature's Children

Black-Throated Blue Warbler (Dendrocia caerulescens)

Warblers are insect chasers. They spent southward to the West In-are industrious beyond belief, for dies and Northern South America, they never seem to waste any time where we are told they continue in play. Though it is true that most | their effective insect patrol. of the warblers live in the trees, seldem coming to the ground, a few of the members live close to or even upon the ground. You should observe how affected they appear to be as they walk about in a graceful manner, apparently showing off in the fashion of the pipit or wagtail. This "mincing" way of walking is easily explained if you look at their feet closely. Warblers are used to finding their food on the trunks of trees and in the air. Because these useful birds spend most of their time in the trees and among the foliage, we have hardly realized how very beautiful their plumage is. Once you know of their habits, you may study the birds more closely, though you must use field glasses if you wish a close-up.

Warblers belong to America, and it is the second largest family of All of them are valuable friends of ours. Their tireless zeal in the search for insects, haunting and often harming our orchard trees, shows them to be actively engaged in constructive conservation They are methodical, too. When they take up patrol duty on a tree, they never leave an inch of it uninspected. The policing is thorough, as testified by many who have watched these birds go over every cranny of the bark, check over each leaf, scrutinize every bud and flower and triumphantly drag forth the hidden foe. The insect that manages to hide from the gimleteved, determined monster is indeed a canny foe. Flying through the air at terrific speed, the warbler squadron picks up foes unable to dodge their efficient enemies.

The black-throated blue warbler is by choice stationed in the Northeastern part of Connecticut, the mountains of Pennsylvania, Northern Ontario and Southern Michigan, northward to Laborador and the shores of Hudson Bay. During migration the route is westward to the base of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado and New Mexico, with sometimes a few detouring to sight-olive tinged with yellow. Both have short bills, slender, tapering toward the tip, fairly long wings, brilliant brown eyes and strong, sturdy feet, built for grasping slender branches or holding fast to tree bark.

This bird is a woodland lover and specializes on the densely shaded second growth of the sunny sides of wooded hills. It even loves to free the dense undergrowth from their enemies and may be seen inspecting the leaves of the mountain laurel.

It is not much of a songster compared with many of its more musical cousions, but its sweet little song is a cheerful note, and its knowing air assures you that depression and gloom would not get a foothold with the happy hunter. The consort of this brilliant fellow keeps in the background, and the most we have heard her say is "tsip!". Yet it was in such a decided manner you had no doubt she had ideas of her own. Midwestern Officials Are Shown How Navy Trains 3,000 a Month

Great Lakes Station Puts on Governors' Day Program

By the Associated Press.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Aug. 20.—The Navy showed Midwestern officials today how 3.000 Midwestern men a month are being turned into sailors at this expanding training station.

Three Governors were listed as guests and 10 others sent official representatives for the Governors' Day program at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, the largest

On hand to welcome them with a 19-gun salute were Secretary of Navy Knox, Rear Admiral John Downes, some 7,000 enlisted seamen and one woman-Maureen O'Sullivan of the movies.

From the 13 States whose officials were invited, the Great Lakes station draws its recruits and gives them a six-week course in the fundamentals of manning fighting ships. Also to be inspected was the midshipmen's school on the Chicago campus of Northwestern University.

Ready to pass in review was the class of 1,076 recruits to be graduated Saturday. Most of them will be sent nearer to salt water for further training in advanced schools.

The training camp, on the Lake Michigan shore, 33 miles north of Chicago, is being expanded to handle more men. Nine new buildings, including six barracks, are being constructed.

Naval officers arranged for each Governor and other official to have a midshipman aide from his own State. At the noon mess, at tables seating 18, each official had a seat with 17 blue jackets from back

The officials were from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

While doing research work in Manchuria in the early 20s, Ichiro Ohga, a Japanese botanist, found a dried-up lake where lotus seeds were so plentiful native children digging for peat fuel hunted them for food. the lake disappeared. Ohga collected many of the seeds and distributed them to botanists in various parts of the world.

'Book of Facts' About Sheets Very Outstanding Example Of Service to Consumer

By Margaret Nowell

Those much-beloved August "white sales" have been an institution since grandmother was a girl, but this year it is especially important that you take advantage of them, giving your linen closet undivided attention and thus assuring your family the utmost in comfort for several years. You may purchase freely without having that "hoarding" feeling, for the stocks are not depleted and your dollar receives full value. On the other hand, next year you may not feel that you can stock up and still be

In purchasing, it is most important that you understand value, for It is neither wise nor thrifty to buy for several years unless you get the best merchandise. Labels and facts about materials are becoming more and more explicit, and the wise shopper reads her labels and takes advantage of the information offered.

For example, one important item of household equipment is sheets. probably no single item is given more constant wear, but what do you know about buying sheets? How can you compare one brand with another? You should know the thread count, breaking strength, construction of cloth, shrinkage and type of cotton used if you are to get the most

> Sometimes a child will develop the habit because the nails are not cared for, are allowed to grow long so that they break off and leave jagged edges that catch on every-Then the child will chew them in the effort to make them smooth. When you keep your child's nails short and evenly filed you are practicing one precaution, at least, against this unpleasant habit.

If a young child under 2 years old starts biting his nails the mother may have success in stopping him if she will make little mitts out of white linen or heavy cotton, and keep the baby's hands in them for a few days. Light arm splints are effective with some babies. It does absolutely no good to scold or punish a small nail-biter of this age, he sould not do it are wasted how he treats her.

interest him. If he is absorbed in playing he will forget about his fingernails. The older child can be talked to and the mother may gain his co-operation if she is tactful. Cotton gloves are a nuisance, but they will break the habit if they are worn for a long enough time.

However, before any of the mechanical methods are used it is well to investigate the cause of the habit. The highly strung child should be allowed ample sleep at night, rest every single afternoon, no matter how old he is, plenty of outdoor play and sunshine and a well-balanced diet abundant in fresh fruits and green vegetables. Furthermore, he should be scolded, punished, corrected and ordered about as little as possible. If the parents believe that he has a fear fancy or that he feels inadequate in any way in his play or school work, they should discuss this with him alone, and sincerely try to bring the trouble out into the open so that they may reassure and help him.

The cause must be eliminated be fore a real cure can be effected, for otherwise the child will only substitute another bad habit for that of biting his nails.

We have prepared two useful gifts for you: One is a chart that clearly shows the value of foods suitable for the average young series of well-tested exercises for the entire body, with hints on how to gain your child's cooperation in performing them. If you wish either or both of these, send for our Classified Food Tables and the Importance of Correct Posture pamphlet, including a 3-cent stamp with your request. Quiet, Please! Here's That Hosiery Problem Taking The Spotlight Again

Leg Make-up Still Superior to Other Suggested Solutions, As Far as We're Concerned

After the last two weeks, anybody who continues to entertain doubts about the clothes consciousness of women either has been living in a cave or managed to let his newspaper subscription lapse. We've done our share, we must admit, in the contagious business of yelling and screaming about the silk hosiery shortage, or the expected one. We've come out strongly for the idea of leg make-up which we consider a practical, attractive and highly logical answer to the problem if and when the necessity occurs. So far there are plenty of stockings and shipments still coming in. Should the day arrive when there are no more stockings of the kind we've come to love-and by that we mean sheer, flattering hose-we think that women will take to leg make-up and consider it far from silly or impractical.

Interesting indeed, has been the general masculine reaction to this fantastic feminine problem. With but a few exceptions, the gentlemen voted "aye" in favor of make-up, approving the appearance and, we suspect, also thinking of the hosiery bills wives can run up in no time flat. Frequent comment from the masculine observers was that "now maybe women will have to keep their legs smooth and well groomed without stockings to hide the flaws." And that is an important item in this discussion, both from the wearer's and spectator's point of view.

Originally Nature planned to pad along the edge of the hand to protect the underlying muscle from hurt. Little did she guess that we would decide to stand up on our back legs and look over the neighbors' fences.

Now beautiful ladies again have taken up the habit of walking on their hands, and wisely so. One of the few exercises which use practically all of the muscles of the body in one fling toward beauty is the following: Simply walk on all fours, using the hands like another set of feet. You'll feel funny and you'll look funny, but it's a grand exercise. Practice will make it eas-Walk part of the time with the knees straight and part with them bent, but don't drag the knees on the floor.

Also try standing on your hands. Face the wall (a mat is a good idea at first). Place the hands on than you've ever done before, or the floor by the wall. Put the top else the whole idea of leg make-up of the head down between the will be a disaster instead of smart hands. Straighten the elbows as you throw the legs up against the wall, straightening the knees. Throw one leg at a time. You may require help at first. Have some one catch the legs and hold them up.

If you are new to exercise and want a set of easy beginning gyrations, send a 3-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

How Many Tons of

through the body so fast that the heart probably pumps 9 to 10 tons of blood daily!

Many people never realize that the blood stream must travel at this terrific speed in order to keep you alive. As you know blood is made up of millions of tiny red blood cells. Each of these cells picks up a load of life-giving oxygen from the lungs—then rushes off to all parts of the body and releases its cargo to hungry living tissues. When the oxygen is burned up, the cells then carry off waste substance. celled carbon dloxide, back through the lungs where it is eliminated.

When blood is rich and pure, it contains chemical substances and cells capable of repairing damaged body tissues and replenishing our strength and energy. That is why some folks get over sickness and disease twice as fast as others. Tarely feel tired ... never complain ... even cuits and bruises vanish like masic.

Now here's a tip. If your blood is thin, pale and watery ... unable to supply ringed strength and vinergy ... do something about it today. Get a bottle of Boncauet (pronounced Bon-Kay) Tablets. Devised by an eminent blochemist. Boncauet Tablets contain the active principle of raw liver (the red blood cell maturing factor), orsanic vegetable iron and other minerals, vitamin B complex, fortified with pure crystalline vitamins B and G, and assimilable calcium and phosphorus. Your blood needs these essential raw materials that are generally deficient in the modern everyday diet.

Try Boncquet Tablets for 9 days, if you want to add new fighting blood. If you don't feel better, look better, have more strength and youthful energy, your money will be immediately refunded. Broadway's Mr. B. Learns A Neat Waterfall Trick

If It Makes a Too Noisy Neighbor For a Summer Theater, You Just Turn a Gadget and It Stops

If you learn history through the plays of George Kaufman, which is possibly the worst way in the world to learn history, you know about Bucks County, Pa. Knowing him thus, you wonder what the blazes he is like as the producing genius associated with summer theater. You visit New Hope to find out.

What do you find? The most impressive thing is that he is suddenly the typical suburbanite in his fascination for what conclusion, let it be said that the elsewhere. reference is to what it has done to a waterfall which once operated the millwheel of the structure which is now the Bucks County Playhouse.

The millwheel is gone but the waterfall is still there. It is perhaps the most interesting single feature of any summer theater, a thing so distinctive that you wonder why the others converted barns, town halls, etc., instead of mills into arenas of thespic art.

Distinctive or no, however, waterfalls make a volume and type of noise that interferes with the drama. It is after pointing that out to you that the press agent in Mr. B. goes into action 'What do you think we do?" he asks, knowing he could offer $1,000 and 1.000 sets of the enclycopedia with complete safety for an answer. You say you don't know. "We turn off the waterfall," says

That is characteristic of most meadow theaters. Not Bucks County. > Mr. Bamberger's playhouse-which really is the playhouse of 80 stockholders of whom many are local and ohe is Mr. Kaufman-has had the same profitable summer that others have enjoyed. The season's high light undoubtedly was the two-week engagement of Kaufman and Harpo Marx in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." The people, who come from Philadelphia, Trenton, the nearby countryside, New York, Washington and points West, East, North and South could not get enough of the play with the author and one of the drama's major characters in principal roles.

It was splendid, Mr. Bamberger will tell you, and not simply because of impressive boxoffice.

"There was a story, for instance," he says, "that after all those years ranging from $75 to $500 a week, of pantomime, Harpo wouldn't know only to be dropped quietly when his lines; that he couldn't handle dialogue.

Since we only work on a news paper, we weren't sure and couldn't answer. But this did bring us into discussion of current affairs, especially in Russia, which Mr. Lichine can talk of, being both a Russian and a chap intensely interested in what goes on in the world. He is not despondent, it should cheer you to know. In the first place, he knows the part of Russia toward Germans are pushing; they're running into more difficult terrain. Now that it is fairly certain that the Washingtons are not too likely to cop the American League pennant,

Mr. Arch McDonald, the ace baseball announcer, is permitting himself some lighter moments of relaxation.

Turning to the arts, as he has before, he is playing this week the central role, the title role even, in the Don

Marquis comedy, "The Old Soak," at the Cross Roads Theater, where he was a success, or at least a sensation in the same play a few seasons ago.

Mr. Marquis' comedy probably is funny on its own, but one seeing it with Mr. McDonald in the leading role-never would know or care how it is on its own. Mr. McDonald, in addition to being an actor of some considerable stature, if you get what we mean, is also an actor with what is known as an individual style.

He remains unequalled, no one ever having played "The Old Soak," or any other play for that matter,

Mr. McDonald's supporting cast includes Ann Cloward, Ruth May,

Edith Simmons, Fred Draper, Allen

Properly applied to present chaotic political, social and economic conditions here is rapidly convincing many ultraconservative investors that productive soil within commuting distance of this Capitol City is the world's safest investment today, because regardless of what new order finally rules the roost the long-after-thewar reconstruction period that is bound to come according to experts is going to prove more trying to our way of life than anything yet experienced. If it is, in my humble judgment, the man with a hoe, or a horse or an ox and some productive soil is certainly going to be in a better position to face it than the man with a bank roll that will buy nothing or the fellow in the city without a job, with an empty icebox. Unfortunately, resarding this, many of us are compelled to trust to luck, but to the fellow with a small amount of cash, looking for an investment. I say "You owe it to your family to INVESTI-GATE."

Bedtime Stories By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A great commotion had broken out in the Old Orchard. Instantly Skimmer the Swallow flew over to see what it was all about and Peter Rabbit followed lipperty-lipperty-lip as fast as his legs could take him. He was just in time to see Chatterer the Red Squirrel dodging around the trunk of a tree, first on one side, then on the other, to avoid the sharp bills of the angry feathered folk who had discovered him trying to rob a nest of its young.

Peter chuckled. "Chatterer is getting just what is due him," he muttered. "It reminds me of a time I got into a Yellow Jacket's nest. My, but those birds are mad!" Chatterer continued to dodge from side to side of the tree while the birds darted down at him, all screaming at the top of their voices. Finally Chatterer saw his chance to run for the old stone wall. Only one bird was quick enough to catch up with him and that one was such a tiny fellow that he seemed hardly bigger than a big insect. It was Hummer the Hummingbird.

Hummer followed Chatterer clean to the old stone wall. A moment later Peter heard a humming noise over his head and looked up to see Hummer alight on a twig, where he squeaked excitedly for a few minutes, for his voice is nothing but a little squeak. Often Peter had seen Hummer darting from flower to flower and holding himself still in midair as he thrust his long bill into the heart of a flower to get the tiny insects there and the sweet juices he is so fond of. But this is the first time Peter had ever seen him sitting still. He was such a mite of a thing that it was hard to realize that he was a bird. His back was a bright, shining green. His wings and tail were brownish with a purplish tinge. Underneath he was whitish. But it was his throat on which Peter fixed his eyes. It was a wondeful ruby red which glistened and shone in the sun like a jewel. Hummer lifted one wing, and with his long, birdlike bill, smoothed Debussy's "Air de Lia" and Ponce's darted out into the air, his wings moving so fast that Peter couldn't see them at all. But if he couldn't see them he could hear them. You see, they moved so fast that they made a sound very like the humming of Bumble the Bee. It is because of this that he is called the Hummingbird.

In a few minutes he was back again and almost at once was joined by Mrs. Hummer. She was dressed very much like him, but did not have the beautiful ruby throat. She stopped only a minute or two and all the world like a tiny cup of moss.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE. In small matters as well as large ones, action is more effective than words.

Mother: "I'll put the funny paper in my room until you're dressed for Bible School, son. Then you may have it until it is time to go."

Mother: "Hurry up-you're going to be late to Bible School. For pity's sake, quit looking at those funny papers and get dressed. Hurry, now!"

If you look closely you'll see that a horrible bridge crime was com mitted in the play of the card Try to spot the crime and the crim inal before you read on.

East was the criminal for co ering the jack of diamonds wit his queen. The old rule says "Cov an honor with an honor," but doesn't always apply. It is particular larly bad to cover an honor whe that card is backed up by a touch ing honor (in this case, the jac was backed up by the ten). Correct play in that case is to play low o the first honor, but to cover a late honor lead if it then seems advisa

Surprise Word of the Week

It is worthy of note that the word CLOTHES is almost universally mispronounced "close" to rhyme with hose, nose, pose. But, according to unanimous dictionary opinion, it is not proper to omit the sound of "th."

We unfailingly pronounce the "th" in the verb clothe, and its past tense clothed, and in the noun clothing. Likewise, we should sound the "th" in the noun clothes. The "o," of course, is long as in

Hard to Believe

From Walla Walla: What is the origin of the word DIPLOMATIC? Has it any connection with DI-PLOMA?-L. P.

Answer-Yes. Both words come from the Latin diploma, which means . . . (you'll love this) . . a piece of paper folded double! It's hard to believe that a diplomat or one who is diplomatic, is literally a person who is proficient in folding sheets of paper, but it's true.

Debacle

Several readers report that they have heard this word pronounced "DEB-uh-k'l". Can that be right, they ask? The answer is no. The dictionaries give us these choices: (1) Dee-BAH-k'l; (2) dee-BAK-k'l.

Silk Shortage to Hit Professional Magicians

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK.—The nation's silk shortage is affecting the art of magic, according to Russell Swann, president of the Master Magicians of America. He says that magicians will be forced to eliminate all "silk tricks"-the favorite one being the illusion of pulling yards of gaily colored material from an empty hat or pocket as soon as their present stocks of silk cloth are exhausted.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER -19 Towers Inside Moscow Kremlin

There is a part of Moscow which has been famed for a longer time than any other section. It is known as the Kremlin, a name which means "fortress." The Kremlin might be called a little city inside a big one. It has high walls around it and some sections of the walls are 65 feet high. During the past 25 years, most visitors to Moscow have not been allowed to see the inside of it. Since the Red revolution it has been the center of government, at least as important as when olden Czars used It as their headquarters.

Rules have been in force against any visitor taking a photograph of the Kremlin. These rules came other buildings. At present some from fear that foreign spies would of the churches are used as governuse pictures to give away secrets ment offices, along with a palace of the mighty fortress.

Rezoning of Tract variety . . . all sizes . . . Under Advisement Following Hearing

> Commissioners Weigh Georgia and Luzerne Avenues Case

After hearing nearly two hours of spirited argument, the Montgomery County (Md.) Commissioners, sitting as a District Council late yesterday at Silver Spring, took under advisement a petition to rezone a tract of property at the intersection of Georgia and Luzerne avenues from residential "A" to residential "C" classification. The hearing concerned the application filed by James W. Gill, Silver Spring attorney, who represented The Countryside School, Inc., owners of the property which is the proposed site for an apartment building near Silver Spring.

Opposing the granting of the petition were Allen H. Gardner, Washington attorney and resident of Silver Spring, who represented the Woodside Park Civic Association. and Samuel H. Horne, president of the association. The community according to both its spokesmen, would be particularly harmed by the granting of the petition.

Cites Commercial Property. Mr. Gill told the Council the majority of the property at the interpurposes and the land of his client is no longer suitable as a purely residential tract. In addition he contended that the granting of the petition would be "sound and logical zoning" and would not harm residents of Woodside Park.

Mr. Gardner attempted to crossexamine Mr. Gill under oath but the Council decided it had no authority to conduct such proceedings. Mr. Gardner then sought to put a series of questions on the general question of county zoning to the Council, which also went unanswered. Likewise in vain were his attempts to put Irwin I. Kaplan, acting chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, on the stand. Mr. Gardner declared that the application, if granted, would be a case of spot zoning which Mr. Gill denied. 1207 E St. and said he planned to inform F.

1221 E St. Byrne Austin, county zoning administrator, of all the "misuses of property which have or do come to

Fears Depreciated Values. Mr. Horne declared the majority of the area was built up with single family dwellings and argued that construction of an apartment on the site would depreciate property values, overload the demand for services from public utilities and increase taxes. In addition he said that additional school facilities would ultimately be required if such Opposition was also voiced by Joseph B. Matre, president of the tion, who declared himself an old time resident of the area. He said he had built there with the as-surance that there would be no commercial development but later tract after tract was re-zoned in a sort of "blitzkrieg" fashion.

L. T. Sauder, of 9393 Georgia avenue also opposed the re-zoning of the tract.

Mr. Gardner said he planned to take the case into court should the petition be granted.
