World Series Opens Oct. 1 in Yankee Stadium

One-Day Layoff Scheduled Between 6th and 7th Games

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis decided today that the 1941 World Series would start Wednesday, October 1 in Yankee Stadium.

This was that, regardless of which club wins the National League pennant, there will be a one-day lay-off between the sixth and seventh games, if the series goes seven games, to permit a satisfactory sale of tickets.

Lists Series Schedule. With Presidents Will Harridge of the American League and Ford Frick of the National League and representatives of the New York Yankees, Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds sitting in on the meeting, Judge Landis laid out the following schedule for the series:

Games 1 and 2—Yankee Stadium, October 1 and 2. Games 3, 4 and 5 (if Brooklyn or Cincinnati win the National League pennant), October 3, 4 and 5, in the National League ball park.

Games 6 and 7 (if Brooklyn or Cincinnati win the National League pennant), October 6 and 7, in the National League ball park.

Senate Votes Byrd Plan to Cut Spending

Body Also Rejects Taxes on Radio And Billboards

The Senate this afternoon approved as part of the $3,679,800,000 tax bill the Byrd amendment creating a joint congressional economy committee to seek cuts in non-defense spending.

The economy group would consist of six Senators and six Representatives chosen from the appropriation and tax committees of the two houses, together with the Secretary of the Treasury and the budget director.

Pushing ahead on non-controversial phases of the big revenue measure, the Senate also ratified the action of the Finance Committee in dropping the new House taxes on radio broadcasting and billboards.

After disposing of these uncontroversial amendments the Senate recessed until 11 a.m. tomorrow—an hour earlier than usual—with leaders still hoping to pass the bill this week.

Three or four major controversies had been put aside for debate tomorrow and Friday, including: The effort to knock out the lower exemptions, the amendment removing the advantage now held by married persons in eight community property States, where property may be divided between husband and wife on separate returns and the Downey pension amendment.

Surtax Increases Accepted.

Without a record vote it promptly accepted increases in the corporation surtax rates, as follows: On corporate income up to $25,000, 6 per cent instead of 5; on income above that level, 7 instead of 6 per cent. These increases accounted for $120,000,000 of the Senate boost in the bill.

The Senate also approved without a roll call the Treasury's simplified form, under which individuals with income of not more than $3,000 may avoid filing a complex return by (See TAX BILL, Page 2-X.)

More Scrap Metal Sought to Speed Up Armament Program

20 Per Cent Increase Asked by Knudsen Of Waste Dealers

(Earlier Story on Page A-17.)

Defense officials appealed to waste materials dealers today to increase by 20 per cent the scrap metal available for the armament program.

About 80 representatives of dealers in non-ferrous metals, iron and steel scrap, wool rags, cotton rags and scrap rubber nominated members for an advisory committee to work with defense officials on means of increasing scrap supplies.

The 18-member committee will not be announced until the nominations are approved by the Government.

William S. Knudson, director of the Office of Production Management, asked the "patriotic co-operation" of the dealers in increasing collections of waste materials. Leon Henderson, price administrator, told them they would be held to "strict accountability" for failure to co-operate with the Government in any schedules of price ceilings which he said might be imposed on waste materials.

Officials estimated that about 25 per cent of the new steel produced this year would come from scrap. Percentages of the supplies of other materials to come from scrap, they said, included: Copper, 34 per cent; tin, 29 per cent; aluminum, 22 per cent; lead, 20 per cent; and rubber, 16 per cent.

Simultaneously, Ralph Budd, defense transportation commissioner, announced that iron ore movement on the Great Lakes during August amounted to 11,429,570 long tons, an all-time monthly record. It exceeded the July total by 39,000 tons.

Total movement of iron ore during the present shipping season amounted to 51,418,000 long tons to September 1, an increase of 13,182,000 long tons or 34.7 per cent over the corresponding period of 1940.

Order Issued Providing Within-Grade Pay Raises

Regulations governing administration of the within-grade salary advancement plan for Federal employment were promulgated today in an executive order issued by President Roosevelt.

The salary advancement formula was contained in section 7 of the Classification Act of 1923 as amended by the Act of August 1, 1941. It provides for salary increases at stated intervals of service where merit and efficiency ratings are maintained.

In the regulations issued this afternoon, the President specifies that in cases of Federal employees who after military service are restored to positions of like seniority they shall be entitled to receive salary at the latest rate before entrance into service, plus such within-grade advancements as might have been made by law.

It was further specified that in the use of funds available in any fiscal year the priority salary advances shall take priority over those authorized for especially meritorious service.

McKechnie, on Wrong Plane, Winds Up in Wrong League

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—"Forbes Field," said the tall, scholarly looking passenger to the taxi driver who picked him up at Detroit City Airport today.

"Hub?" demanded a startled cabbie who knew every route to Briggs Stadium and could have recited half the Tigers' batting averages. "Forbes Field," insisted the passenger, this time a bit impatiently. "You know, where the Pirates play."

"Mister," was the reply. "I don't know nothing about no Forbes Field and no Pirates. Where do you think you are, anyway?" "Look," said the passenger kindly, as one would explain to a small child. "I'm Bill McKechnie. Maybe you've heard of me; I'm manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"That's a baseball team. We're going to play your Pittsburgh Pirates today at Forbes Field and I want to go out there right away."

It was the taxi driver's turn to explain. When he had finished a blushing passenger alighted and bought himself a ticket on the next plane from Detroit to Pittsburgh.

The traveler said he had bought a Pittsburgh ticket in Chicago earlier in the day, but boarded the wrong plane after turning it in at the airport gate.

Nazi Drives Against Leningrad, Moscow Hurlled Back, Reds Say; British Bombers Blast Berlin

22 Villages Retaken In Central Sector, Russians Claim

By The Associated Press.

Twin Russian counteroffensives were reported today to have rolled back the German thrusts toward Moscow and Leningrad.

In this claimed resurgence of Red Army power the Russians said they had retaken 22 villages in a 10-day, 30-mile counterthrust on the center of the main front before Moscow, destroyed an entire division of the elite Schutzstaffel (blackshirt Hitler Infantry) and driven the Germans back three miles from their advanced positions before Leningrad, at the northern end of the main front.

The Russians placed German losses in dead, wounded and captured in two years of war at 2,930,000, of which more than 2,000,000 were on the eastern front.

Fiercy Assault on Berlin.

While the Russians were reporting these successes against the Germans, the British were describing—and Berlin confirming—a fiercy assault by R. A. F. bombers on the German capital.

The bombers caused "enormous explosions" in Berlin and started a "very large fire" near one of the main Berlin railway stations, the Air Ministry news service said in London. "Some of the heaviest bombs" were used, the news service said.

The Germans officially acknowledged civilian casualties and residential damage in the raid, which was one of the sharpest on Berlin in many months.

The past 24 hours, by German count, brought destruction of 18 British planes, six bombers in the nocturnal sortie on Germany and 12 downed over the English Channel and the Dutch and Norwegian coasts. The British admitted loss of nine.

Nazis 20 Miles From Leningrad.

Leningrad had been under direct threat. The Germans claimed yesterday to have driven to within 20 miles of this second largest city of the Soviet Union. The proximity of the threat to Moscow has never been clarified, but the Germans were known once to have passed beyond Smolensk to the Voznya area, about 125 miles southwest of the capital.

While the Leningrad forces were executing their stroke under the personal command of Marshal Klement Voroshilov, troops on the center were wrestling an important height from the blackshirted Nazis, according to the combined accounts of Red Star, the army newspaper, and Pravda, organ of the Communist party.

Germans Halted at Gates Of Odessa, Reds Claim

MOSCOW, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Germans have been hurled back with heavy losses by Russian counter-offensives on the fronts before Moscow and Leningrad and stopped at the gates of Odessa, Russian war dispatches reported today.

The Nazis war-long losses were put at close to 3,000,000 men.

This was the situation pictured in the Russian press along with indications that Nazi offensive power is wearing down and Russian resistance growing stronger.

Before Moscow—German forces driven back at one point as far as 30 miles, and one elite SS infantry division destroyed by a 10-day Russian counteroffensive.

Before Leningrad—The German siege ring pushed back three miles, with heavy losses, under a counter-assault directed personally by Marshal Klement Voroshilov.

Before Odessa—The Germans stubbornly resisted by the Red Army in attempts to break into the Black Sea port with sailors from the Russian Black Sea fleet bolstering the army by carrying out raids behind the Nazi lines.

2,900,000 Lost on East Front.

Yevgenia Yevgenyevna, a member of the central party and a leading Communist publicist, declared in Pravda, that the Germans had lost 2,930,000 men—dead, wounded and prisoners—since the war began, including more than 2,000,000 on the eastern front alone, where the action is fiercest.

Yevgenyevna compared this estimate with German losses of 2,890,000 on the eastern front in the last war, emphasizing that Russia's male population is more than double Germany's. He said three five-year plans had created new bases "unreachable to the enemy" and "millions are willing to throw the forcible reserves into the battle."

Twenty-Two Villages Retaken.

On the center of the front, in the sector entrusted to Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, Pravda, the Communist party organ, said advancing Red Army troops have retaken 22 villages in 10 days of battle.

Units commanded by Col. Boyevikov, it was stated, threw the Germans back more than 30 miles after a flank attack of Russian mechanized forces had snipped off a German salient at its base.

Outside Leningrad, the Red Army newspaper, Red Star, said Marshal Voroshilov directed an attack which drove the Germans from a strategically important town.

The Germans reported yesterday that their troops had penetrated to the rail line town of Krasnogvardeisk, 20 miles south of Leningrad.

High-Ranking Military Men To Go to Russia With Harriman

Mission Is Expected To Leave Capital For Moscow Soon

BACKGROUND—
Idea for Anglo-American-Soviet round-table conference on long-range planning for prosecution of war against Axis powers was conceived by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill during their historic Atlantic conference last month. A joint statement proposing meetings in Moscow was forwarded to Prime Minister Stalin and accepted by him at that time.

By JOHN C. HENRY.

President Roosevelt took another step forward today in redeeming his promise of full aid to Soviet Russia, appointing the top-ranking members of a mission to Moscow.

Expected to leave Washington in the near future for joint conferences in the Russian capital with Soviet and British representatives, the mission will be headed by W. Averell Harriman and will include the following:

MAJ. GEN. JAMES H. BURNS, at present executive officer in the Division of Defense Aid Reports; MAJ. GEN. GEORGE H. BRETT, chief of the Army Air Corps; Admiral William H. Standley, former Chief of Naval Operations, now retired; and William L. Batt, deputy director of the production division of the Office of Production Management.

Will Discuss Supplies.

"The mission will join," the White House said, "with a similarly constituted British mission under the chairmanship of Lord Beaverbrook and other high-ranking members of the British government regarding the supplying of Russia by the United States and Great Britain of munitions, raw materials and other supplies needed by Russia for her defense against German aggression."

The Washington and London governments took this step to expedite their assistance to Russia, an unqualified denial was issued by the White House here that any face-to-face consultations are contemplated between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Konoye, Japanese Prime Minister.

It was reported this morning that the head of the Japanese government, itself a partner of the Rome-

German Pocketship Luetzow Torpedoed By British Plane

Sir Archibald Sinclair Also Reports Low Total of Sinkings

LONDON, Sept. 3.—A British torpedo plane hit the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Luetzow a few weeks ago, Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Air Minister, told a national defense luncheon meeting today.

He announced no details of the engagement.

The Luetzow (formerly the Deutschland) is one of the three pocket battleships with which Germany entered the war.

Only she and the Admiral Scheer remain. The Admiral Graf Spee was scuttled December 17, 1939, after she had been driven by three British cruisers into Montevideo, Uruguay, in a running battle off the South American coast.

Message Sent by King.

King George VI, responding to an expression of loyalty from the National Defense Committee, sent a message that "the two hard years that lie ahead us have led us all unshaken in our determination to see justice and freedom re-established throughout the world."

Sinclair told the gathering that the battle of the Atlantic "is not going too badly for us," but warned that it would probably require for some time "an immense concentration of attention and effort."

"Sinking of British ships in the month of July," he said, "were the lowest for any month for more than a year. . . . During the last 10 weeks the average weekly rate of

Non-Defense Building Faces Virtual Halt From Shortages

Federal Action on Priorities Plan Still Hangs Fire After Two Months

By JAMES FREE.

Shortages of building materials have brought projected construction work in non-defense fields to a virtual standstill here and in other localities throughout the country.

Even defense housing has been slowed down, and in some cases stopped, for the same reason.

Still Government authorities, charged with responsibility for determining preference ratings on defense housing and essential civilian construction work, have not taken action on a defense housing priorities plan announced more than two months ago.

George Says Taxes Must Be Levied to Encourage Industry

Defends New Bill As Senate Begins Debate on Measure

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate was warned today by Chairman George of the Finance Committee that "we are due for the skids" unless taxes are so levied as to encourage private industry to take up the employment slack when the present emergency is over.

The Georgian opened debate on the $379,800,000 revenue bill with this admonition, after Senator La Follette, Progressive of Wisconsin had filed a scathing minority report against the bill on the ground it "soaks the poor" and deals too lightly with excess profits.

Confirmed Car Situation.

Mr. Pelley said in a prepared statement he read to the committee, that last May a fact-finding group named by the American Petroleum Institute "looked into the tank car shortage and confirmed the fact that 200,000 rail tank cars were available and that this equipment would move from six to eight million barrels of oil a month from Texas to the Atlantic seaboard."

A few moments later he made the disclosure of the conference tomorrow of the rail and oil companies executives, and said: "We hope that out of that meeting will come an arrangement to use some of the idle tank cars."

Cost Is Difference.

Senator Radcliffe, Democrat, of Maryland, asked to know if any reason had been advanced why the idle tank cars had not been used to alleviate the East Coast oil shortage.

"Yes," replied Mr. Pelley. "The difference in charges. It costs more to move oil by rail than in tankers or pipe lines."

Transportation of oil in tank cars, the committee was told, costs 3.05 (See GASOLINE, Page A-2.)

Stanton Woman Slain; Young Husband Accused

By The Associated Press.

STAUNTON, Va., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Helen Rankin Foster, 23-year-old Staunton woman, was shot and killed in the Whitmore Apartments here last night, and Police Chief John Webb said her husband, Lee Garland Foster, 22, of Waynesboro, had been charged with slaying her.

Chief Webb said Foster walked into the Staunton police station last night and said: "I shot a woman in room 203 of the Whitmore Apartments."

Mr. Webb and three fellow officers found Mrs. Foster, face downward, on the floor. She had been shot twice.

The chief said Foster, who was questioned for nearly two hours before being jailed early today, declared that he separated from his wife about March 1, after having been married nearly two and a half years.

He went to her apartment last night and talked and drank with her for an hour and a half before shooting her, the chief quoted Foster as saying.

One-Cent Milk Boost Ordered by Wickard Effective Saturday

Increase for Farmers Approved by President; Dairies May Pass It On

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard today set Saturday as the date on which the price received by farmers for milk sold to dealers in the District and in nearby Maryland will advance about 1 cent a quart. This increase may be passed on to the consumer.

With the approval of President Roosevelt, the amended order for the Washington shed on the basis of a vote taken among producers in a referendum, in which 1,199 of the 1,357 farmers eligible voted. The returns were 100 per cent in favor of the issuance of the order.

The Agriculture Department said the increase in the price of milk delivered to District dairies is $3.11 for milk delivered to Maryland dairies.

Exact Terms of Order.

The amended order increases the minimum Class 1 price, the fluid milk price, by 40 cents a hundredweight—to $3.37 a hundredweight for milk delivered to District dairies and to $3.11 for milk delivered to Maryland dairies.

The price of Class 2 milk—used primarily for cream—will be increased by 20 cents to $2.10 a hundredweight for deliveries to the District and to $1.87 for deliveries to Maryland handlers. In no case, the department said, will the Class 2 price be less than the Class 3 price.

The price of Class 3 milk—used in manufacturing, such as for ice cream—is unchanged. Present Class 3 minimum prices to producers are: Between 130 and 134 new vessels will be completed this year on the basis of current reports from the yards. This means that a 25 per cent speedup in production has occurred since he gave Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia the figure of 105 ships for 1941 in May of this year.

Speedup in 1943.

In the first quarter of 1943, 220 ships aggregating 2,270,000 deadweight tons were completed.

Cargo Ships on Hand Enough for '41 Needs, Admiral Land Says

Faster Production In Next Two Years Expected, He Declares

By WILLIAM J. WHEATLEY.

The present supply of cargo ships and the rate of construction of new ships together give Great Britain and the United States all the vessels they need or will need during 1941, "if conditions do not get worse," Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission told a press conference today.

Admiral Land added that shipping requirements will be increased in 1942, when, it is expected, our national defense and lease-lend programs will be in full swing.

"With this in mind," the chairman said, "the effort has been made to reach a high level of production during the first quarter of 1942 and to maintain that level until the end of 1943."

Will Pass 1918 Record.

He said that in the first quarter of 1943, if the commission is able to carry off the schedule it has set, more shipping will be delivered than was produced in the United States in the whole of 1918, when the United States built 1,830,000 deadweight tons of ships.

Asserting that the commission's construction program is "ahead" of the schedule, he said that approximately 12,410,000 deadweight tons would be placed in operation between the period that began July 1 this year and will close at the end of 1943.

Admiral Land asserted that before the program is finished there would be 32 shipyards in the country with a total of 234 yards. At the same time he said that in expanding its program it was the commission established policy of the commission to increase existing facilities at yards already in operation rather than to undertake the establishment of new yards.

130 Ships This Year.

Bearing in mind that it ordinarily takes from 11 to 15 months to construct a cargo vessel, and that the big expansion program has hardly begun, Admiral Land said the following facts are worth considering: Between 130 and 134 new vessels will be completed this year on the basis of current reports from the yards. This means that a 25 per cent speedup in production has occurred since he gave Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia the figure of 105 ships for 1941 in May of this year.

Shipstages due to priorities or other factors do not hold the commission back, Admiral Land added, 90 vessels of 1,000,000 dead weight tons will be delivered in the first three months of 1942; 146 vessels of 1,400,000 tons in the second three months; 154 vessels of 1,646,000 tons in the third quarter, and 184 vessels of close to 2,000,000 in the fourth quarter.

Speedup in 1943.

In the first quarter of 1943, 220 ships aggregating 2,270,000 deadweight tons were completed.

Original Budget Figures for D. C. To Be Secret

'Pressure Campaigns' Start Otherwise, Mason Declares

By DON S. WARREN.

Breaking a practice of many years' standing, the Commissioners revealed today they would not release for publication this year the original budget estimates of municipal department executives before the annual public hearing or before the Commission's report is determined what their proposals will be.

Commissioner John Russell Young, when asked why the new policy was adopted, shook his head and merely said, "I don't know," refusing further comment. The Commissioners made the decision at a recent board meeting.

Commissioner Guy Mason declared the decision to keep the departmental estimates secret was based on very definite reasons. He said: "When I covered the District Building as a reporter (about 30 years ago) these estimates were never made public. The department executives put in a lot of fly-by-night stuff which doesn't mean a thing. I don't want their appropriation requests made public, certainly before the Commission's report is made. The Commissioners have decided what their budget proposals will be."

Public May 'Talk Blind.'

The Commissioners already have scheduled public hearings on the 1943 fiscal year estimates, for September 15 and 16. When reporters asked Mr. Mason how the public and the press would know what to talk about at the hearings if the original estimates were not released, Mr. Mason said:

"I don't care if the public has to talk blind—if they don't know what the needs of the city are, then they will have to talk blind. As a matter of fact, the public knows as much as I do as to the city's needs; why can't they talk intelligently without getting the department executives' estimates?"

"The department executives are the ones who are charged with spending the money in carrying out the municipal services. All the public has to do is pay the bill. If the public and the press want to raise hell about this decision, it is O. K. with me—let them raise hell. I don't mind if people quarrel with my judgment, but I don't think this information should be given out, because the result is that pressure campaigns are started for or against certain projects or movements, and this starts before the Commissioners can decide what should be done."

Kutz May Ask Reconsideration.

But Gen. Charles W. Kutz, the Engineer Commissioner, when asked by reporters for comment, said he agreed with Mr. Mason that the original estimates should not be made public, but later announced that he would bring up the question for "reconsideration" at the next meeting of the Board of Commissioners. He said he was not sure when this meeting would be held.

He suggested that the public should be at no loss in testifying at the September 15 and 16 hearings, since "they ought to know, generally, that representatives who are sized groups probably would be able to present better arguments if they were told the things the departments had recommended and the justifications given by the department officials."

Commissioner Mason said the new plan would mean that the Commissioners would hear the arguments, in private session, of the department executives, and that the Commissioners then would decide what their own proposals would be, with none of this information given to the public. When asked if this meant that the departmental estimates would never be made public, even as revised by the Commissioners, he said:

"Yes, the original estimates would not be released at all."

Were Kept Secret Before.

Years ago, departmental estimates and, in fact, the Commissioners' own budgetary proposals, were made public, and the first positive information the public had was when the President placed the District budget before Congress. This procedure today, when persons were asked about 10 years ago, the practice was developed of giving the public at least some information as to what was proposed by the department executives or the Commissioners.

For about eight years, the Commission would consider the original departmental estimates in detail, and, for the most part, they have also given at least a general description of what the Commissioners themselves proposed to the Budget Bureau.

Increased importance has been attached to the Commissioners' budget proposals in the last year, since the Budget Bureau announced a new policy under which it said it would not maintain control over the details of the Commissioners' estimates, leaving them for decision by the Commissioners and taxpayers, but would restrict its authority to the total of the budget, revenue estimates and that of the "Federal interests."

Citizens' Head Protests.

A protest over the new policy was voiced shortly after noon by Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, who said the Executive Board of the group would consider the issue. He said: "We had planned to have a meeting" (See ESTIMATES, Page A-17.)

Suez Canal Area Raided

CAIRO, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Suez Canal area was raided last night, the Ministry of the Interior announced today. One person was killed and five were injured. Some damage was done, the ministry said.

Kotmk Cavalry Drives Spearhead Into Almat Defenses in Arkansas

But this thrust was nullified later when 2d Army officials ruled the maneuver void and had the cavalrymen move back across the river. It was announced that the river may not be crossed until September 5.

While the 9th Engineer Battalion was putting the bridge together just north of the Louisiana border, the horsemen on foot struck at the flank of the 7th Army Corps 35th Division to the north.

The crossing was augmented by faked attempts farther upstream to draw the Almat forces. Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., into a horseshoe bend where they would be trapped by the 14th Cavalry actually making the effort.

At the river's edge, the young riders dismounted, slung their rifles over their shoulders and pushed off from a sandy beach. Then heavy trucks filled with pontoon equipment were brought up.

With the only main highway across the river in South Arkansas as their goal, the troops set out to secure the bridge so their trucks could have a clear path to the 35th Division protecting Eldorado.

Meanwhile, the infantry of both armies fought a pitched battle 50 miles north at Camden.

C. I. O. Union Is Accused Of Training Communists

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—James B. Carey, 29-year-old president of the C. I. O. Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, was defeated for re-election late today at the union's national convention.

Copies of letters purporting to prove his accusation were placed before the convention officers by Clifford Haley, who also said that the decisions of the district's Executive Board appear in the Daily Worker, Communist publication.

Mr. Haley made his charges during debate on a resolution proposing that the union oppose any person who works against the interests of the United States and the union.

McCarran Urges Capital Be Advised of Affairs

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) The voteless condition of Washington makes it imperative that the people be kept fully advised on their national affairs at all times.

In a community where the check has no opportunity to check through the ballot box the actions of their public officers, it is essential that all information possible concerning their affairs be available to the people at every step.

There was considerable discussion at the meeting over the tax situation as it concerns the gate receipts. It was pointed out that in Cincinnati or St. Louis State taxes would be levied.

The same prices for series admissions will be in effect as in the past—$6 per box seat, $5 for a reserved seat, $3 general grandstand admission and $1 to the bleachers.

Ed Barrow, the Yankees' president, and Charles McManis, superintendent of the stadium, represented the American League.

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals; Gabe Paul, secretary of the Cincinnati Reds, and Mr. MacPhail and Jack Collins, the Dodger business manager, represented the National League clubs still in the race.

Racing News

Rossway Comment

FIRST RACE—NYLVE, RED DUKE, OOPS.
NYLVE still is a maiden but he has shown smart form in both races and workouts. He may defeat the opener. RED DUKE appears to have reached top form and may be the one to dispute the issue. OOPS scored at Bel Air. JUNE PENNANT has won two of three tests.

SECOND RACE—MARIYAH, CHAINWICK, SETTLER.
MARIYAH hasn't been able to win a race this year but she has worked well in recent morning spins and it's possible for her to come to life and give this sort of a trim. CHAINWICK appears on the improve and she has to be accorded consideration. SETTLER is due for an improved performance.

THIRD RACE—BAFFLER, TAM O'SHANTER, WORTHFUL.
BAFFLER disappointed on Monday when he continually made bad landings and finally went down. He was a top-heavy favorite in that disappointing try and he should improve over that effort. TAM O'SHANTER has been second in his last two and he is dangerous. WORTHFUL deserves a good chance.

FOURTH RACE—GRAEME, CRACKER, ELTONHEAD, BRAINCHILD.
GRAEME CRACKER trimmed fair opposition at Bel Air and Hagerstown and her best effort should be good enough to lead this good opposition past the judges. ELTONHEAD has won often this year and may be a tough customer to turn back. BRAINCHILD always has shown to be good advantage with this sort.

FIFTH RACE—MARIYAH, CHAINWICK, SETTLER.
MARIYAH hasn't been able to win a race this year but she has worked well in recent morning spins and it's possible for her to come to life and give this sort of a trim. CHAINWICK appears on the improve and she has to be accorded consideration. SETTLER is due for an improved performance.

SIXTH RACE—WINTONA, JOAN ASBESTOS, WEST SEA.
WINTONA just galloped to score in her last at Marlboro and her form before that was very good, indeed. She meets tough competition here, but her best should turn the trick. JOAN ASBESTOS has early foot and she should be in the thick of the scramble. WEST SEA has been racing in good form.

SEVENTH RACE—CRENDENCE, BULL TERRIER, YANKEE LAD.
CRENDENCE has shown a lot of improvement in every one of his recent outings and he may be the one to visit the winner's circle. BULL TERRIER won at Charles Town and he has worked well of late. YANKEE LAD manages to win his share and he has been given a lot of stout consideration.

EIGHTH RACE—DUCHESS DEL, WORTHWINING, COUNT ME.
DUCHESS DEL has won two of her last three attempts and in her present good form she is selected to dispose of her opposition in the nightcap. WORTHWINING has been racing well this year and his best race should have him battling for the important money. COUNT ME won his last at Marlboro.

Heurichs Win Right To Enter Tournament

(Earlier Story on Page A-12.) United States Attorney Edward M. Curran, as Amateur Baseball Commissioner here, ruled this afternoon that the Heurich Brewers team should represent the National Capital at the National Amateur Tournament at Youngstown, Ohio, starting Saturday.

Mr. Curran's decision was handed down after the Brewers protested the eligibility of Jesse Fraley, Naval Air Station pitcher, who defeated them in the final game of the city championship tournament. The Brewers charged Fraley had not participated in the necessary five league games with his team during the regular season to qualify for the tournament.

All Federal Jobs Gearing to Defense, N. F. E. Is Told

Mrs. McMillin Speaks, Interagency Transfer Lateralization Sought

By J. A. FOX, Star Staff Correspondent.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 3.—Government workers were told today that "this is no time for business as usual; it is a time for individual concentration to whatever duties are assigned to us as civilian soldiers of defense."

The admonition came from Commissioner Lucille Foster McMillin of the Civil Service Commission, who emphasized to 200 delegates at the convention of the National Federation of Federal Employees that "a unique defense problem" faces the American people.

"The current turbulence is different from any other national emergency that we have faced," she said. "In the Revolutionary War, there was an immediate tangible problem of Colonial people seeking independence. In the other war that followed there was a sharp clash of clear issues. Today, our country has been faced with the necessity of preparing for eventualities without being able to predict the national future, so to speak, at all times."

The result has been that many of our people have not been aroused fully to the gravity of the hour. In such a situation, there is need for bringing clearly before the employees of the Federal Government the importance of the work they are doing and the responsibility of working for the national program.

Speaking at the outset of a session that found delegates resuming work on the mass of resolutions dropped into the convention hopper, Mrs. McMillin devoted most of her address to defense matters in their relation to Federal employment.

Cites Concentration of Workers.

A problem she cited in this connection was the concentration of Federal workers in localities affected by defense projects, and the commissioner, recalling the publicity given to conditions in Washington, remarked parenthetically that "this is not a problem peculiar to Washington."

"The great majority of new defense employees have been appointed outside of the District of Columbia," Commissioner McMillin continued. "The increase in personnel in Washington since June, 1940, has been slight, more than that outside the District of Columbia, the increase has been more than 300,000. Whenever thousands of new employees are added, there are problems of housing and feeding workers and some of these problems cannot be worked out overnight. Naturally, the workers and will hear more about working conditions in Washington than elsewhere. Anything that happens in Washington excites more comment than if it occurred in some less-discussed locality."

"Therefore, we may expect to continue to see in the press reports of war workers in Washington and their trials and tribulations just as we read about them 20 years ago. The fact is that the average Washington worker is getting along to the satisfaction. At the same time, he is doing a good job for the Government under very heavy defense pressure."

Urges Contacts With Selectees.

Commissioner McMillin urged all Federal workers, especially those in supervisory capacities, to take more interest in their colleagues who are called into military service to bolster their morale. Particularly, she emphasized, should these persons be advised of their legal right to re-employment with undisturbed seniority, when their military service is over. Further, she continued, during their absence, the persons in the employing office should maintain a regular, friendly contact with them to let them know that they are not forgotten, and when they are ready to come back, the employing office itself should take the initiative in restoring them to their former positions to the ones formerly occupied."

Starting to work yesterday on resolutions, the delegates voted for a plan to facilitate interagency transfers after hearing widespread complaints about the difficulties that now attend the effort of personnel to go from one position to another, even though a desirable promotion is involved.

The proposal, advanced by the Minnesota State Federation, provides for establishment by the Civil Service Commission of a transfer office in which employees desiring to shift places could register their qualifications. The commission then would certify them for vacancies they could fill. A resolution of like import from the federation local in Little Rock, Ark., called for the commission to fill vacancies wherever possible by transfers instead of holding examinations to get eligibles.

Approval System Cited.

Delegates said one of the principal stumbling blocks to transfers is the requirement that they be approved by the supervisory officer of the agency from which the employee desires to change. This regulation was designed to prevent the exodus of workers from defense jobs to other places where employment conditions were more attractive, but a Milwaukee local protesting against this system said in some cases it actually was a "detriment" to defense activities, administrative officers often being unwilling to lose efficient workers by transfer.

The Civil Service Commission at present has an interdepartmental placement register on which the qualifications of all employees are listed, but agencies having vacancies are at the liberty to use it or not.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 3.—Government workers were told today that "this is no time for business as usual; it is a time for individual concentration to whatever duties are assigned to us as civilian soldiers of defense."

The admonition came from Commissioner Lucille Foster McMillin of the Civil Service Commission, who emphasized to 200 delegates at the convention of the National Federation of Federal Employees that "a unique defense problem" faces the American people.

"The current turbulence is different from any other national emergency that we have faced," she said. "In the Revolutionary War, there was an immediate tangible problem of Colonial people seeking independence. In the other war that followed there was a sharp clash of clear issues. Today, our country has been faced with the necessity of preparing for eventualities without being able to predict the national future, so to speak, at all times."

The result has been that many of our people have not been aroused fully to the gravity of the hour. In such a situation, there is need for bringing clearly before the employees of the Federal Government the importance of the work they are doing and the responsibility of working for the national program.

Speaking at the outset of a session that found delegates resuming work on the mass of resolutions dropped into the convention hopper, Mrs. McMillin devoted most of her address to defense matters in their relation to Federal employment.

Cites Concentration of Workers.

A problem she cited in this connection was the concentration of Federal workers in localities affected by defense projects, and the commissioner, recalling the publicity given to conditions in Washington, remarked parenthetically that "this is not a problem peculiar to Washington."

"The great majority of new defense employees have been appointed outside of the District of Columbia," Commissioner McMillin continued. "The increase in personnel in Washington since June, 1940, has been slight, more than that outside the District of Columbia, the increase has been more than 300,000. Whenever thousands of new employees are added, there are problems of housing and feeding workers and some of these problems cannot be worked out overnight. Naturally, the workers and will hear more about working conditions in Washington than elsewhere. Anything that happens in Washington excites more comment than if it occurred in some less-discussed locality."

"Therefore, we may expect to continue to see in the press reports of war workers in Washington and their trials and tribulations just as we read about them 20 years ago. The fact is that the average Washington worker is getting along to the satisfaction. At the same time, he is doing a good job for the Government under very heavy defense pressure."

Urges Contacts With Selectees.

Commissioner McMillin urged all Federal workers, especially those in supervisory capacities, to take more interest in their colleagues who are called into military service to bolster their morale. Particularly, she emphasized, should these persons be advised of their legal right to re-employment with undisturbed seniority, when their military service is over. Further, she continued, during their absence, the persons in the employing office should maintain a regular, friendly contact with them to let them know that they are not forgotten, and when they are ready to come back, the employing office itself should take the initiative in restoring them to their former positions to the ones formerly occupied."

Starting to work yesterday on resolutions, the delegates voted for a plan to facilitate interagency transfers after hearing widespread complaints about the difficulties that now attend the effort of personnel to go from one position to another, even though a desirable promotion is involved.

The proposal, advanced by the Minnesota State Federation, provides for establishment by the Civil Service Commission of a transfer office in which employees desiring to shift places could register their qualifications. The commission then would certify them for vacancies they could fill. A resolution of like import from the federation local in Little Rock, Ark., called for the commission to fill vacancies wherever possible by transfers instead of holding examinations to get eligibles.

Approval System Cited.

Delegates said one of the principal stumbling blocks to transfers is the requirement that they be approved by the supervisory officer of the agency from which the employee desires to change. This regulation was designed to prevent the exodus of workers from defense jobs to other places where employment conditions were more attractive, but a Milwaukee local protesting against this system said in some cases it actually was a "detriment" to defense activities, administrative officers often being unwilling to lose efficient workers by transfer.

I. official also emphasized that the system inaugurated by the Civil Service Commission in 1929, under which all applicants for Federal employment are fingerprinted, now is paying dividends, a fingerprint check in the course of the present emergency having prevented the employment of one man who had been convicted of espionage in a British dominion in the last war and of another who had a record as a saboteur.

Soldier, Mrs. Wright Disagree on Whether He'll Marry Cobina

Wealthy Corpl. Beaudette Says at Hotel Press Party It's All Set

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 3.—Corpl. Palmer Beaudette and Cobina Wright, Jr., appear to be in sharp disagreement as to whether the corporal is to marry Cobina Wright, jr., in New York City November 14.

Corpl. Beaudette insists it's so. All arrangements, he avers, were made at a week-end consultation with the Hollywood actress and night club singer near Reno, where the Wrights, mother and daughter, are staying.

But at Reno, Mrs. Wright assured newspapermen it was all a mistake. "There is no truth at all in the statement that Cobina will marry him," she said. "She is too interested in her career to marry him or anyone now."

To this comment Cobina added nothing. The former New York glamour girl was too ill to come to the telephone, her mother said.

The Army corporal brought his version of the betrothal back to Seattle yesterday by chartered airliner. The flying trip here from Oakland, Calif., cost him $1,500.

This was a high price, he agreed, but not for Miss Wright's company. "Having just come off Army maneuvers, I was naturally anxious to see Cobina," he said.

And because his infantry regiment is leaving Fort Lewis today to return to its headquarters at the Presidio in San Francisco, Corpl. Beaudette was obliged to rejoin his company last night.

"I'm going to see that I have a reservation to New York well in advance of the wedding—providing I can get Uncle Sam to get me time off," he said.

Corpl. Beaudette formerly lived at Carmel, Calif., and said he is a grandson of O. J. Beaudette of Detroit, one-time auto body manufacturer. He now claims Los Angeles as his address.

During the time his Army unit was on maneuver in Washington, the $54-a-month corporal maintained an expensive suite at one of Seattle's leading hotels, and it was there he received the press last night.

Mrs. Roosevelt Defends Girl Conscript Suggestion

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today offered a further explanation and defense of her widely discussed suggestion that it might be of value to conscript girls between the ages of 18 and 20 for a year of training and service. Writing in the current Liberty Magazine, Mrs. Roosevelt said "there seems to be a slight misunderstanding" and declared that she never suggested that all women be conscripted, nor that girls be placed under military discipline in camps as are boys.

"It is, however, an opportunity to develop a sense of responsibility for democratic citizenship through the willing gift of a year in some useful capacity in the community, which I think is an experience of great value in a democracy," she declared.

"We have had it abundantly proved to us that many of us accept the benefits of democracy without feeling very much the weight of responsibility of what is owed to the form of government by every individual citizen."

with the traffic executives to discuss general rate reductions on petroleum from the central part of this country to the Atlantic Seaboard States and a meeting of the two groups has been arranged for tomorrow.

Mr. Pelley appeared at the committee's request to discuss the possibility of using tank cars to help increase the flow of oil to the East. The railroad man said that despite the general increase in the transportation of oil production, the use of rail tank cars for that purpose had declined in recent years, and hence a surplus of cars was available.

Walsh Protests Curtailment.

Before Mr. Pelley submitted his statement, Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts described the enforced curtailment of gasoline sales in the East as a "glaring example of bureaucratic blundering" and appealed to the committee to find "some rational plan" to assure fuel oil and gasoline to Northeasterners this winter.

Senator Walsh's written protest against blanket cuts in gasoline deliveries was made a part of the committee record.

Senator Walsh issued his critical blast after Mr. Davies announced yesterday that filling stations would be held 10 per cent below July sales. The reduction, the same as the original cut which was in effect the last half of August, means that pleasure drivers must continue to get along with about 15 per cent less fuel than in July.

He estimated that between 600,000 and 700,000 deadweight tons were added to merchant marines of the Western Hemisphere when the 21 American Republics agreed last Thursday to place in operation refugee ships of Axis and Axis-dominated countries.

Twenty-six of the vessels were tankers, the chairman said, and these will be used to ameliorate the oil shortage situation in the Western Hemisphere.

213 Navy Ships Complete.

The Navy Department also issued a report of progress in its two-ocean fleet construction program, announcing that 213 vessels of all classes had been completed since the first of this year and the keels laid for 436 others.

An additional 249 craft of various categories launched between January 1 and September 1 need only finishing touches, the department said, to make them part of the United States fleet.

Vessels completed since January 1 include 2 battleships, the North Carolina and Washington, 8 submarines, 12 destroyers and 42 patrol craft.

Henry-Haye to Protest To Hull Against Stories Of Pro-Nazi Activities

Angry French Envoy Denies All Accusations, Charging Anti-Vichy Plot

By BLAIR BOLLES. GASTON HENRY-HAYE, the French Ambassador, today requested a conference with Secretary of State Hull to enable him to protest in person against newspaper articles which have linked him with pro-Nazi activities in this country.

In an angry mood, the Ambassador denied all the accusations brought against him in the articles and attributed their publication to a plot he said exists among certain Americans and Frenchmen to deteriorate relations between Washington and Vichy and to cause M. Henry-Haye's removal from his ambassadorship.

The Ambassador, at a special press conference on the terrace of the Embassy, undertook at the same time to clear his colleagues, Capt. Charles Brousse, Press Attache, and Col. Georges Bertrand-Vigne, of charges brought against them in the articles, which have been syndicated by the New York Herald Tribune.

Denies Aiding French Secret Police. He denied that he co-operated with French secret police or that he used underhand methods to obtain information in this country that would be of benefit to the German government, with which his government is collaborating. He denied that he spent $1,000,000 a month in the name of the embassy, saying that it was more in the neighborhood of $25,000 a month.

In answering the story that he tipped off the Germans and Vichy to the prospective bombardment of Dakar, Africa, by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, he said that neither he nor M. Brousse nor Col. Bertrand-Vigne were in this country at the time he allegedly received the plans here for the de Gaulle expedition.

Commenting on the story that he sought the construction of a wireless station on the North American island of St. Pierre, the Ambassador said that the Minister of Colonies in Vichy last May had told the Western Union Co. that Vichy did not want the station there. He said the proposal for the station originated with Western Union.

No Dealings With Nazis Here. He said that Charles Brousse, about whom it had been written that he kept in close communication with the German press, did not know either of those Germans and had never presented his card at the German Embassy. He said that since Vichy had no diplomatic relations with Germany, he had no dealings of any kind, social or otherwise, with diplomatic representatives of Berlin.

Col. Bertrand-Vigne, charged with sending money abroad, was using some of his own funds to contribute to the support of his mother, in France, the Ambassador said.

The Ambassador said that reporters present that Jean Musa, who figured in the newspaper stories as a mysterious character sent on secret missions about the country, was an old friend of his who volunteered on occasions to perform a few secretarial duties. Musa, he said, has never been on the payroll of the Embassy and has never undertaken a diplomatic mission with the approval of the Embassy.

Bren Gun Stories Held Silly. In that connection, the Ambassador said reports he was seeking information about the Bren gun were ridiculous because he had never heard of the Bren gun until he read about it in the story connecting the gun with himself. He added that he had since discovered from his military attache that the details of the gun are common knowledge to all governments.

The article said that M. Musa had been dickered to obtain information about the gun.

The Ambassador indicated that he proposed to make his protest in order to keep his official record clear. He has no hope that the State Department will take any action with regard to newspaper stories.

Sinclair said German bomber crews would "pay dearly for the destruction of British homes next winter, and the German people will pay more dearly still."

"From February 1, 1941, up to today," he said, "we have lost 382 fighters, mostly over enemy territory, together with 310 pilots, and our fighters have destroyed 537 enemy planes in offensive operations."

The Air Minister appealed to American workmen for more bombers. Addressing them, he said: "I want all the heavy bombers you can send us, and the sooner you send them the quicker you will end the war."

Japanese Are Afraid Of U. S., Maas Says After Duty With Navy

House Member Lauds New Pacific Bases; Declares Hawaii Strong

By the Associated Press. A Minnesota member of the House, just returned from six weeks of sea duty as a Marine Corps Reserve air officer, declared today that Japan was "deathly afraid" of the United States Fleet when it was in the Pacific.

The legislator-colonel, Representative Maas, Republican, of Minnesota, remarked in an interview that some of the fleet had been withdrawn to the Atlantic, but he expressed the opinion nevertheless that United States forces in the Pacific remain strong enough to fend off any attack against this Nation and at the same time keep open supply routes for vital shipments of rubber and tin.

Further, he said he believed that the Western Hemisphere "is in no danger from Japanese aggression."

"The Hawaiian Islands are more powerful than Gibraltar ever was because their defenses are geared to modern warfare," he said. "No navy could get to Panama without passing Hawaii and no navy could get past Hawaii."

"Japan is deathly afraid of the American Fleet when it is intact. It is significant that they did not move into Indo-China until the fleet in the Pacific had been split and part of it had been transferred to the Atlantic."

In spite of all the secrecy of the Navy, the public had that the fleet had been split was a news broadcast from Tokyo giving the dates the ships went through the canal and their names."

Representatives Maas, ranking Republican member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, began active training in July when he piloted a four-engine patrol bomber from San Diego to Honolulu in what he said was record time of 14 hours 25 minutes.

Inspected Island Bases. For the next six weeks he flew 18,000 miles, once making a seven-day inspection trip of "all our island bases" which he refused to enumerate. The development of those sites, he said, is ahead of schedule and soon the United States "will have forged a chain across the Pacific to supplies which are vital to us in the Dutch East Indies."

The flying lawmaker said that if Japan should make further moves toward those Dutch possessions, he believed the United States should take steps to obtain the use of Singapore from the British as a base for counteroperations.

"All our islands and fleet out there are not as modernly equipped as I would like to see them," he said, "but we would still be in a position to successfully defend our interests in the Pacific against any combination of forces that might challenge us."

"In my opinion, the most immediate pressing problem is to see that Singapore is kept available for the American fleet in the event circumstances should compel us to operate in the far Pacific. If Singapore should be captured, the United States to all practical purposes would be driven out of the Pacific."

Representative Maas participated in recent Pacific maneuvers as marine air officer on the staff of Vice Admiral W. H. Halsey, commander of the fleet's aircraft battle force.

Buy U. S. Bonds To Beat Hitler, Willkie Urges

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Wendell L. Willkie said today "I would rather own a United States bond which is part of a national indebtedness of 150 billion dollars, with Hitler out of the world, than a bond which is part of a 50 billion dollar debt with Hitler still in the world."

Mr. Willkie spoke at the opening of a glass-enclosed booth in Rockefeller Center Plaza, where bonds and stamps will be on sale throughout September.

Mr. Willkie noted that many persons, while expressing the wish for defeat of totalitarianism in the world, hold back with the explanation, "I don't like the administration."

"I don't do any good now for the French to look back on the help that some of them did not give because they didn't like their administration," he said.

Maybank Is Expected To Face Johnston in Runoff for Senate

Governor Leads Rival, But Fails to Win Majority in Primary

By the Associated Press. COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 3.—Returns from 384 of the State's 1,528 precincts indicated today that Gov. Burnet R. Maybank and former Gov. Olin D. Johnston would enter a second primary September 16 for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate.

An unofficial count of votes cast in yesterday's primary gave Gov. Maybank 56,975, Mr. Johnston, 38,636 and Representative Bryson 24,195.

The nominee, assured of election in this solidly Democratic State, will be the fourth to hold the Senate seat this year.

On elevation of Senator James F. Byrnes to the Supreme Court, Gov. Maybank appointed Alva M. Lumpkin, Federal district judge, to the post, but Mr. Lumpkin soon died.

Roger C. Peace, Greenville publisher, then was given the interim appointment, expected to last until October 15.

The new Senator's term will expire in January, 1943.

Gov. Maybank, 42-year-old Charleston businessman and member of an old and wealthy family, was Mayor of his home city for seven years before becoming Governor. Mr. Johnston, 45-year-old Spartanburg lawyer and one-time textile worker, has served in the General Assembly and ran unsuccessfully for the Senate against Senator E. D. Smith in 1938.

Representative Bryson, also a lawyer and a former textile mill employe, has also served in the State Legislature. His home is in Greenville.

Flying Red Mission Waits at Kodiak on Trip to Washington

Seattle Headquarters of Navy Expects Word on Hop From Air Base

By the Associated Press. SEATTLE, Sept. 3.—Thirteenth Naval District headquarters awaited today a flash from the distant Navy air base at Kodiak on the departure of a flying Russian military mission on the second leg of its two-plane hop over United States territory en route to Washington, D. C.

The two flying boats, with 47 aviation experts from Moscow and a Russian diplomatic official from Washington, who joined them at Nome, arrived at Kodiak last night.

No information on Plans. Navy headquarters received only a brief message that the big planes arrived at 7:25 p.m. (Pacific standard time). There was no information on when the Russians expected to take off.

The new Navy base at Sitka, about 700 miles due west across the Gulf of Alaska and the North Pacific, appeared the next likely stopping spot.

The War Department in Washington announced yesterday that the Russians were coming to the United States on a "purely technical mission" in connection with airplane production.

Flight Took 7 1/2 Hours. The elapsed time of the Nome-Kodiak flight was nearly 7 1/2 hours. The direct distance by air is about 600 miles, but if the two flying boats kept to the coastal line around the West Coast it would have been about 800 miles.

The first destination out of Nome was listed as Anchorage, site of an army air base, but seaplane facilities were lacking there. Whether it was that factor or the Russians' desire to keep near the water that led to the flight to Kodiak was not known here.

Mexico Will Buy 160 U. S. Planes on Credit

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3.—An official announcement said today the United States would open a special credit to allow Mexico to buy 160 American warplanes.

The announcement said the credit would be granted as soon as pending questions between the countries were settled. It added that two new aerial regiments would be formed as part of the Mexican Army by the end of 1941.

President Manuel Avila Camacho told Congress Monday that settlement of United States-Mexican questions was expected soon.

Flames of Crashed Army Plane Kill 3 Small Children

Pursuit Craft Plunges To Street After Pilot Bails Out at 700 Feet

By the Associated Press. HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Enveloped in a sheet of burning gasoline, three children suffered fatal burns yesterday as a United States Army P-39 pursuit plane crashed in flames in a busy street in this Long Island community.

The pilot, Lt. Roy W. Scott, of Mitchell Field, stuck with his disabled plane until the last moment, attempting to get it back to the landing field, but was forced to bail out after it had dropped to an elevation of 700 feet. Landing in a tree, he was virtually uninjured.

Two of the children, Casper Cuccio, 5, and Georgene Kramer, 4, died several hours after the mid-afternoon accident, while the third, Pauline Cuccio, 7, died late last night.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Kramer, and Peter Cuccio, parents of the three children, suffered minor burns from the glass-enclosed cockpit and from the screaming child in the plane. The plane crashed with such force that it broke a water main several feet below the surface of the ground.

As the plane's gasoline tank exploded, a sheet of flame shot across the street, enveloping the children and searing the front of nearby buildings.

From the tree where his parachute had caught, some 300 feet from the crash, Lt. Scott, unable to help, watched with horror as the children fell victims to the flames.

Japanese Forces Leave Chinese Port of Foochow

By the Associated Press. SHANGHAI, Sept. 3.—Japanese forces have been withdrawn from the Fukien port of Foochow, Japanese military and naval authorities said today.

Chuking officials announced last week that Chinese forces in Fukien Province had retaken Futsing, a port south of Foochow.

"Having completed their operations, Japanese forces left for another destination," a joint announcement said.

The Japanese occupied Foochow early this summer to block one of Chungking's supply routes through there, the authorities said. Should such activity be renewed the troops would return, they added.

Private advices from Foochow reported Japanese troops withdrew under protection of aircraft which bombed the outskirts of the port during the evacuation.

The city was occupied immediately following the withdrawal of the Japanese by Chinese guerrillas who proclaimed themselves allies of Chungking, it was reported.

British Tell How Air Fortress Survived 7 Planes' Attack

U. S.-Made Bomber Landed Battered and Smoking, With Some of Crew Dead

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Sept. 3.—The first of Britain's big American-made fortress bombers to be tackled by German interceptors came through a seven-plane assault, battered and smoking, some of the crew dead and others wounded, and returned to Britain, with its mission fulfilled.

The official account of the test was made public last night—a laboration of a brief report of the dogfight that ensued Aug. 16 when one of the winged fortresses carried out a high altitude bombardment of the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau at Brest, France. It did not say how many of the plane's crew were killed.

The Air Ministry News Service, which carried the account, said the fortress flew at less than the "full ceiling" which is the stratosphere at between 30,000 and 40,000 feet—thus indicating that the five Messerschmitt 109Fs and two Heinkel 113s were benefited by the denser air at the lower altitude.

Not many pursuit planes can achieve, for operations, the extreme ceiling of the air-borne fortresses.

Not at Full Ceiling. "Flying at a great height, but not at the fortress' full ceiling, the bomber crossed the Channel," said the news service.

Near Brest the bomber was separated from the rest of the detachment. "It flew on, attacked and returned by itself."

"Not all the crew saw the bombs burst, but the fire-controller, a flight sergeant, who is now recovering from his wounds in a hospital, saw one bomb out of a stick burst on the quay just beside one of the battle cruisers. He did not see the other bursts."

"Three minutes after the bombs had gone, the fire-controller's his job to stand with his head in the astro-hatch and watch every part of the sky—saw two Heinkel 113's coming out from a light cloud about a thousand feet below the fortress and slightly to starboard," the story continued.

"They were joined almost at once by five Messerschmitt 109Fs. All the fighters appeared to come from the same quarter of the sky. Their arrival was so prompt that it was obvious that they had come from a standing patrol."

Captain Dived Bomber. "The fighters made many attacks from both sides and from dead astern. Two of the fortress' gunners and the wireless operator were severely wounded. In spite of his wounds, the wireless operator continued to signal to his base. The captain swung the bomber quickly from side to side and dived—now fast, now slow.

"Down came all the fighters after him, firing all the while. The fortress' No. 4 petrol tank was punctured and the crew thought the engine had caught fire. As one of them said, 'There seemed to be no part of the bomber not hit.'"

"Then when the fight had gone on for 20 minutes, the fortress reached a low patch of cloud and all the enemy fighters broke away. Black smoke was now pouring from the bomber.

"The fighters had scarcely left when the fire-controller, tried wounded in the hand and leg, tried to reach the other wounded men.

Mission Is Expected To Leave Capital For Moscow Soon

Japanese and American Governments is the question of American aid to Russia being shipped by way of the Pacific port of Vladivostok. Japanese blockade of the port and the interception of American shipping is believed a possibility.

Making the denial of any contemplated Roosevelt-Knox meetings, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said this morning: "The President has no invitation to such a meet. . . There will be no conference held."

Mr. Early said he would have made the same answer to the writer of the story that such a conference was in the making, if the writer had seen fit to check the White House in advance.

Actually, Mr. Early concluded, the only water trip now planned by Mr. Roosevelt is one in the near future from Annapolis to Washington by way of Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac River.

Won't Reveal Departure Date.

With regard to the Moscow mission, Mr. Early refused today to say when members of the group would leave, how or by what route they would travel, or when they might return. It was believed, however, that departure would be in the near future and it is understood Chairman Harriman expects the task to take about six weeks. The actual length of the consultations, however, will depend on the rate of progress made when the tri-power representatives meet.

In addition to the five ranking members named today, Mr. Early estimated that 8 or 10 technical aids would be included in the mission.

It was noted that keymen in the defense and aid programs, with emphasis on the military considerations, have been selected for this mission.

Mr. Harriman has been serving for some time past as special representative of the President on the British end of the lease-lend program for aiding the empire. He returned to the United States at the time of the Churchill-Roosevelt conference, being a member of the American delegation participating in the meetings at sea.

Traveling "Trouble Shooter." Last week the President designated John D. Biggers, Ohio industrialist and recently director of production in the O. P. M., to take over Mr. Harriman's work in London. This, it was explained, will leave Mr. Harriman free to become a traveling "trouble shooter" in the aid program.

Gen. Burns, with a background of distinguished service in the Ordnance Department of the Army, has been assisting Harry L. Hopkins in direction of the lease-lend program since its inception.

Gen. Brett, recently elevated to head of the Army Air Corps, is at present on a special mission to Great Britain and the Middle East in connection with deliveries of American aircraft to British forces.

Admiral Stanley was Chief of Naval Operations from 1933 to 1937. He was a member of the American delegation to the Disarmament Conference in London in 1934 and also a delegate to the London Naval Conference of 1935. He was retired in August, 1938.

Mr. Batt, president of S. K. F. Industries, Inc., has an extensive background as a production man in private enterprise. He served at one time as chairman of the Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department and also as chairman of the board of the American Management Association.

their barns. Premium payments do not apply to class 3 milk.

Costs May Nullify Rise. One factor in increasing potentially the costs of the dairies beyond the raise in price of class 1 and class 2 milk is the provision in the amended order that places all milk otherwise unaccounted for on the dairies' books in class 1 instead of class 2 (where it is at present).

The amended order also removes provisions in the present order—effective since February, 1940—which specify that new producers shall receive the lowest class price for all their milk for a limited period.

It provides also for the payment of new producers on the same basis as old producers, and authorizes the market administrator to designate an independent laboratory for testing the butterfat content of milk.

The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association asked for the changes on the ground that drought, farmers' costs and the scarcity of farm labor had increased the cost of production.

The District wondered what effect the changes would have on the programs for supplying cheap milk to low-income persons and on the proposed program for aiding the cheap distribution of milk in schools.

morning study of the possibilities of increased consumption of milk for undernourished children in the District schools to see whether a Federal sponsored penny-a-pint program can be undertaken.

Returning to his office yesterday, Mr. Haycock found a letter from officials of the Surplus Marketing Administration of the Agriculture Department, saying that such a penny milk program would be impossible unless a 270 per cent increase in milk consumption were shown to be feasible.

S. M. A. officials explained that this increase was necessary so that milk producers will be protected against a decrease in total returns. Such decreases, they said, might arise from the fact that producers receive a lower price for milk sold under a Federally sponsored school milk program than they receive for milk otherwise sold to schools.

"It becomes therefore essential," the letter advised Mr. Haycock, "that the increase in consumption of milk, which is the objective of the program, should be of such a magnitude as would offset the loss on existing sales of milk to schools."

Producers receive a higher price for such special milk uses than they do for surplus milk, S. M. A. explained, and it is therefore to their advantage to have the project.

Milk prices to the producer under the amended order will be 8.38 cents per quart for fluid milk. Milk sold under the program will pay the producer 5.86 cents per quart, a decrease of 2.52 cents per quart. If the milk is sold purely as surplus milk the price to the producer is to be 4.94 cents a quart, or 0.92 cents a quart under the special project milk price. By dividing the 2.52 differential by the 0.92 difference, the S. M. A. figures arrived at their estimate of 270 per cent increased consumption required.

Whether the schools can guarantee this increase is expected to be Mr. Haycock's first point of study.

New Defense Board Tackles Industrial Rationing for Defense

Closing Forecast for Plants Not Essential To Preparations or Public

The Nation's new superdefense board, S. P. A. B., got down to grips today with its avowed and unenviable job of "cutting off the fat and hardening the muscles" of industry to meet the demands of an all-out, realistic defense program.

At its initial meeting yesterday, the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board did little more than outline its general purpose—to trim less essential American industries so that all available men and machines can be put to work on defense requirements or essential civilian goods.

Some Closings in Prospect. This means, it was made clear, that plants in some of the less essential industries will be forced to close. At a press conference after the board's first session neither Vice President Wallace, S. P. A. B. chairman, nor Donald Nelson, the board's executive director, would name a single "less essential" industry. But there have been, nevertheless, definite indications of what some of the industries in this classification will be.

A number of industries, however, already are listed on defense agency books as users in some degree of supplies and machinery that are necessary to defense. Some of these plants possibly can be converted to defense production, and others perhaps will be kept open to supply goods for military or essential civilian use. But definite prospect for classification as "less essential" are civilian consumer producers of automobiles, refrigerators, tires and rubber goods, stoves, washing machines, electrical appliances, silk and rayon goods, zippers, coin machines, aluminum ware, metal furniture, and virtually all brass, bronze and copper products.

There are doubtless others, too, but these—employing millions of workers who must somehow be fitted into the war economy that appears inevitable—are enough to give an idea of the magnitude of the task that lies ahead of S. P. A. B.

More Plants to Be Used. At his press conference yesterday afternoon, President Roosevelt also dealt with this subject of utilizing existing plants for new military manufacture.

First step, he indicated, will be increased employment of small factories—presumably the sub-letting of a greater proportion of defense contracts.

Second step, he went on, will be the diversion of many plants now in civilian production, cessation of which will be forced by imposition of priorities on raw materials.

And in all cases, he continued, there will be new emphasis on working plants second and third shifts daily. Eventually, he said, it is hoped to have about 60 per cent of munitions employment on the first shift, 30 per cent on a second, and 10 per cent on the third turn.

Mr. Roosevelt likewise told his conference that there will be an increased tempo of Government spending on arms production, with a new lease-lend appropriation request scheduled early next week and a supplemental overall fund to be sought before the end of the year. He would not indicate how much either of these requests might involve.

Today the Office of Production Management, one of the agencies under general policy direction of S. P. A. B., has scheduled conferences with representatives of some of the Knudsen, associate director general of O. P. more than 500,000 workers in the automobile industry to consider problems of threatened employment dislocation as raw materials normally used in that industry are diverted to defense production.

To assure wisest use of all resources available, S. P. A. B. will devise a system of priority controls for equitable distribution in military and essential production, according to its announced statement of policy. These controls, it was indicated, will follow general patterns already laid down in preference rating policies of O. P. M. and Leon Henderson's Office of Price Administration.

One of the board's first steps will be to assemble a national-wide inventory of all raw material supplies. Once this is done, materials hoarded in cellars and attics of certain industries and traders, according to S. P. A. B. spokesmen, "will be routed out and put to use where most needed."

Vice President Wallace was asked if businesses that have been hoarding materials will be required to reveal what they have.

"We'll know what they've got," he replied firmly.

With the complete inventories, Mr. Wallace said, the problem of expanding production will be simplified. In cases of extreme shortages of materials known to be hoarded, he asserted, the Government will not hesitate to force them into defense use.

In its efforts to achieve most efficient use of the country's resources, Mr. Nelson said that S. P. A. B.'s program would include a program for systematic picking up scrap metals and other discarded materials that might be utilized and also would involve simplification of models in production for civilian use.

Mr. Nelson was asked about the possibility that some businesses may have to shut down entirely because

Note-Writing Thief Sought After Taking Food in Apartment

Intruder Signs Self 'The Meddler'; Naval Officers Report Loss

Police were searching today for "The Meddler," a thief who writes notes to his victims.

He is a burglar with a liking for food. Miss Myrtle Boyles, a War Department secretary, and Miss Val Kirkpatrick, store clerk, found that out last night when they arrived at their apartment, 2003 H street N.W. Hungry for a platter of fried chicken, a cantaloupe and a bunch of grapes, prepared for the evening meal, they found instead only bones, rinds and seeds, piled neatly on the platter. Beside the heap was this note:

"We were hungry, so we ate your chicken and grapes and cantaloupe. Guess who? The Meddler."

The same thief on another visit stole a bushel basket of food from her apartment recently, Miss Boyles said.

In another burglary $417 worth of fine liquor and clothing, including some garments bearing naval insignia, was stolen from the home of Lt. Donald Agnew and Lt. H. Ridgely Bullock, 16 Kalorama Circle N.W., according to police. John Kelly, proprietor of a liquor store at 415 H street N.E., reported his establishment entered through a broken window today and eight bottles stolen, according to police. Police locked up two white men, 38 and 39, answering descriptions of men seen running from the store.

CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR IF YOU ARE RUPTURED

If he advises you to wear a truss he will probably refer you to the Kroman Instrument Company.

Tom Collins, factory trained expert fitter, with 30 years' experience, will fit you promptly a high-tensile, wabable, sanitary truss, which has no understraps, springs or elastic and will positively not slip either next the skin or over the underwear. It is invisible and anatomically correct.

Many trusses are improper or improperly fitted, and can cause more harm than good by delivering pressure to delicate nerves and blood vessels, which eventually gives a nervous reaction that saps the vitality and aces the wearer before his time.

Come in and let us examine your truss and adjust it free of charge. We will be glad to explain your rupture to you and teach you the proper method of wearing a truss.

We have the most modern and best trusses. We sell service to ruptured people, which guarantees comfort and proper retention.

Nazi Drives Against Leningrad, Moscow Held Hurling Back

went to the front, worked out of Leningrad at night, approached a plan of attack, and launched it the next day.

Combined Armies Attack. Combined forces of the Red Army and the People's Army, which is sworn to die rather than yield their city, carried out the counter-offensive, Red Star said.

Red Army artillery laid down a heavy artillery barrage, the account said, then two Russian infantry battalions went over the top, charging across a railroad embankment and a field toward the German positions in the forest.

The Germans were reported driven back to town "N." their mortar and machine-gun fire dwindling gradually as the Russians pushed forward. Heavy losses were reported to have been inflicted on the Germans and some Russian losses also were acknowledged.

Soviet Troops "Inspired." Red Star said Marshal Voroshilov's arrival at the front "inspired Soviet troops for heroic deeds and they took an oath to fulfill his order regardless of difficulty. . . . Thus, day and night, our men heroically defend the approaches to Leningrad."

The dispatch to Pravda said the Germans had been put completely on the defensive in the central sector and that the Russians had succeeded in ironing out their uneven line.

Houses, bridges and roads have been rebuilt to within two miles of the front line, it reported, and over-ripe crops are being harvested. In the assault in which Red Army forces regained the height and destroyed the SS division, Pravda said, the attack was made under cover of night by soldiers from the Ural region.

For the next three nights, it added, the Germans made counter-thrusts, but could not dislodge the Russians.

Air Forces Testing Strength. The Red Air Fleet and the Luftwaffe were reported testing strength anew as Nazi bombers took up the task of blasting defense positions, where the Russians said the German advance virtually was stymied for the sixth day.

Claiming an edge in the fierce dogfights along the battlefield, Russian pilots said they shot down 198 German planes Saturday, Sunday and Monday, with a loss of less than a third of that many aircraft of their own.

Today's earliest communique said a large formation of German bombers was beaten off from an attempted raid on a heavily-fortified sector, pursued to their own airfield by Russian planes, and bombed there when they landed.

The communique acknowledged the loss of the Estonian capital and Baltic naval base, Tallinn, whose capture the Germans reported last Friday.

The war bulletin indicated a stubborn fight was continuing in the same principal defense lines the Red Army had reported holding for almost a week.

A midday communique said, "Our troops continued to fight the enemy on the entire front."

Hilfer Calls for Duce's Aid. S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet spokesman and Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs, declared last night Nazi losses on the Russian front had drained German man power so deeply Adolf Hitler had called on Premier Mussolini to fill the gaps in the ranks with Italian troops.

The Soviet spokesman at the same time denied foreign reports that negotiations had been started between Russia and Finland for peace. Of Italy, Lozovsky said: "It is quite clear that Germany, having lost more than 2,000,000 men on the eastern front, has decided it was time to make Italy pay her share of blood and cannon fodder."

He said an Italian effort to send a volunteer army against Russia had failed, and added: "When it comes to the actual sending of Italian armies to the eastern front, then Premier Mussolini will find out what the Italian people think of the German henchman, Benito Mussolini."

The Soviet spokesman told a press conference, "Now that the Germans have lost their game in Iran there is every possibility they will exert pressure on Turkey."

Roaring Rock Slide Buries Old Colorado Mine Shafts

By the Associated Press.

OURAY, Colo., Sept. 3.—A vast, rumbling rock slide down the face of Middle Red Mountain is burying dozens of old mine shafts which were worked in southwestern Colorado's mining boom of 50 years ago. The slide started at midnight last Friday with booming reports that awakened sleeping workers in Mineral Basin, 2 1/2 airline miles across the valley. F. L. Peart, Denver mining engineer, reported.

Continuing steadily since, the disturbance has sliced a quarter-mile-wide gash on the mountainside. Several acres of spruce timber have been covered.

Mr. Peart warned curious observers from venturing too near the slide area, because, he said, "the whole side of the mountain seems to be moving."

Civilian pilot training schools in Colombia now have a total of only four planes and two gliders.

Germans' High Regard for Morale of British, Evidenced by Russian War, Found Correct

By JOHN T. WHITAKER, (Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.)

II. BRITISH MORALE.

British morale, plus American aid, has made an invasion of Britain impossible in the past, and too costly for Hitler to undertake in the immediate future. That is why Hitler has invaded Russia in preparation for a showdown with America, and why, with the Russian campaign once terminated, he will attempt to clear the Mediterranean, conquer Africa and establish U-boat bomber bases against the United States.

Germans in Italy, Spain and Portugal are confident that America will not enter the war now. They predict that later, when Hitler is in a position to deal with America, the morale in this country will collapse. They say with absolute confidence that their fifth column is paralyzing democracy in America already, and that it will ultimately force Washington to call for a British surrender.

Their confidence already has won over confidence Frenchmen and Spaniards as well as Italians with whom I have talked—that is the only reason why French Chief of State Marshal Petain went over to the German camp—and I imagine that it is the basis of Japan's present policy. In short, the American people, not the British, are the weak blockhouse in the beleaguered fortress of democracy.

No Defeatism in Britain. I think the Germans have sized up America wrong. I know they have got Britain right. After spending one month with the British, I marvel that any nation in the world can achieve such morale. I found no defeatism in any class or group in England. The heart of city after city is being to ground by bombs, the people have discovered that they can take it. It wasn't half as bad as last winter, as their imaginations led them to expect, or, as they add, "half as bad as it's going to be this coming winter." Standing in the ruins of their homes, they are lifting their fists and swearing to "fish it back."

That is the spirit of the British aristocrat, once pro-German, whose lovely debutante daughter was killed by a German bomb as she drew the blinds of her London home.

That is the spirit of a formerly Communist dock worker in Plymouth who said that he killed my wife and child. That's why we workers on the docks carry on whether he's bombing us or not. We don't go down to the shelters. There is the British bombing pilot, a former school teacher, who showed me a pile of bricks under his cot at the bomber command. "It's part of the masonry of the home in which the Germans killed my mother," he said. "I take a brick and drop it on a German every time I take over a load of bombs. I've dropped 122 bricks and we haven't half started yet. We have to teach Jerry, you know."

Four More Indicted As Espionage Trial Of 16 Gets Under Way

Girl and Three Men Named in New Case; 17 Await Sentence

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Three men and an 18-year-old girl were indicted today on charges of conspiracy to violate the Espionage Act, as the Government moved to break up what Federal agents described as an international ring of spies operating here and in Spain, Portugal and Germany.

The Government charged that the defendants, all in custody, had gathered and transmitted to colleagues in Europe information on the movements and disposition of American forces together with pictures and sketches of strategic points along the Eastern seaboard.

Named in the indictment as ring-leader was Kurt Frederick Ludwig, about 40, who was born in Ohio of German parents. He was educated in Germany from childhood, made several trips to the United States and in 1934 was arrested in Australia on a charge of photographing bridges. The charge was later released.

Others Indicted. Working under Ludwig, according to the indictment, were: Miss Lucy Boehmer, 18, of Mass-peth, Queens, New York City, who was born in Stuttgart, Germany, and came to New York with her mother and sister in 1929.

Hans Page, 20, of Brooklyn, a brewer who was born in Wunstorf, Germany, and came here in 1931. Frederick Edward Schlosser, 19, who was born in New York and lived in Brooklyn.

The indictment, returned a few hours after 16 other persons went on trial in Brooklyn Federal Court on espionage charges, said that Page and Schlosser were active members of the German-American youth movement, which later became a part of the German American Bund. The Ridgewood (Brooklyn) branch, to which they were attached was among the most active units in drills and camping activities.

United States Attorney Mathias Correa said that Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, in arresting Ludwig, discovered that he had a short-wave radio in his car.

The indictment charged that in an prayer when one bomb blew in the front door, another the back of the house and a third threw an automobile into the road. Then the Germans began to drop fire bombs. My lady sprang to her feet. "Where in the hell is the fire bucket?" she cried, one second after praying, as she led us all to the roof.

Little boys of 10 and 12 climb the roofs to throw down incendiary bombs. That's the spirit of Britain. I thought after the collapse of France that Britain would be beaten. I found no one in Britain to whom this idea was not wholly novel. No one apparently ever envisaged the possibility of defeat. In that black hour when France collapsed, Americans felt panic but not the British. One fanatic's comment to a friend of mine was typical apparently of the reaction of all Britons. "I'm proud of that man," she said. "At least, there's no one left to let us down."

The people of Britain today know nothing of the soul-searching, indecision and doubt that affects Americans. To them the problems have become simple, starkly simple. England expects that every man will do his duty. It's that simple. The people with whom I talked have made their peace with death and have forgotten any financial worries for the future. Every one must behave well. Every one dies. My own personal friends, without exception, looked in better health and happier than when I had seen them before the war. People have found a new courage and a new faith to recall the warships that kind of morale.

Need American Man Power. That morale has convinced the Germans that an invasion of Britain is too risky. Add to it two facts. American planes, tanks, arms and foodstuffs are reaching Britain in quantities that the warships that supplies as far as Iceland, and the sinkings have fallen off abruptly. Those two things mean much to morale. The supplies and forces Washington recall the warships that the people of Britain can stand anything the Germans bring against them this winter—bombings, gas or invasion. The British cannot take the offensive in any immediate future without American man power, in my opinion, but they cannot be beaten by Germany unless American aid is stopped.

Finally there is the promise of the future to be seen in England today. Your train comes into the railway station. People have laid out fish or newspapers or other wares on burnt timbers placed across piles of bricks. They are trying to carry on. Suddenly you hear the drone of motors, then the roar. Here they come—bombers—10, 30, 50 bombers. And above and beyond them is the whine of fighter aircraft, too high to be seen. The people's faces brighten. The Royal Air Force is on a daylight sweep across the Channel to Germany.

Twice when I watched this scene the people standing in the railway station ruins lifted a cheer—the kind of cheer that coered from the throats of peace-loving but hard-fighting English folks at Blenheim, Trafalgar or Waterloo.

Those planes that streak out toward Germany—increasingly many of them American-made—fly in the V (victory) formation. I think Hitler's got America wrong. I know he's got Britain right if he thinks British morale is too high for an invasion effort now. (Copyright, 1941, by Chicago Daily News.)

effort to baffle the F. B. I. the defendants maintained a large variety of aliases and gave a number of fictitious addresses. Some of the communications with "persons unknown to the grand jury" in Spain, Portugal and Germany were in code, the indictment charged.

It said further that the ring carefully culled from trade magazines, military publications and the daily newspapers information of American troop movements and dispositions and sent it along to the European agents.

Ludwig, the indictment charged, had traveled the Eastern seaboard making sketches and taking pictures for Germany, which country, according to the indictment, paid him for his work. He entered the United States most recently in 1940. As 16 members of a ring accused of espionage activities went on trial in Brooklyn Federal Court today, three more defendants pleaded guilty to one of two counts against them.

The pleas brought to 17 the total number of persons who have acknowledged guilt. Four previously Those entering guilty pleas before Federal Judge Mortimer F. Byers were Richard Eichenlaub, 35, German-born proprietor of the Little Casino restaurant; Paul Baente, 50, German-born iron worker, tool and die maker, and Felix Jahne, 48, German-born soda clerk.

Four Change Pleas. One of four defendants changing their pleas to guilty yesterday was Everett Minister Roeder, 47, who worked in the Sperry Gyroscope factory as an inspector of the famed Sperry bomb site. The others were Max Albrecht Blank, 38, former employe of the German Library of Information which has been shut by Government orders; Gustav Wilhelm Kaercher, 35, employed in a New Jersey powder plant, and George Gottlob Schuh, 54, who worked in the German Bund Camp Nordland in New Jersey.

Roeder pleaded guilty to the second count of the indictment—that he helped gather information and send it to a foreign power. The other three pleaded guilty to the first count—that of being unregistered agents of a foreign power. All were remanded in bail of $25,000 for sentencing.

The Government charges that the ring sent information about ship movements, developments in United States naval, Army and aircraft products, and transmitted, by means of courier, samples of the latest armaments. Conviction carries a sentence up to 20 years.

Mrs. Roosevelt Says Civil Defense Is Slow Due to Lack of Crisis

Since There's No Deadline, Time Can Be Taken to Do Job Well, She Declares

The civilian defense program is moving slowly because there is no "deadline" to compel immediate action, Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference today.

Expressing gratitude that the "deadline" did not exist, the President's wife commented that Office of Civilian Defense officials were inclined to be "perfectionists."

If it were necessary to feed and evacuate 100 children here tomorrow, she went on, the program would be rushed through in some way and the children would be fed, but without the compulsion to act, but with-officials felt they could take more time and do the job right. Mayor La Guardia, chief of the O. C. D., agreed with her, she said, that the civilian defense program is not yet satisfactory and will not be until every man, woman and child is participating. Many people, she said, are interested in doing something tangible in a military way, such as preparing for air raid warden service or fire watching, but, she added, there are many equally tangible services to be rendered in giving the people of the community a sense of what they are defending. She recommended greater participation in a Nation-wide nutrition program, stressing closer co-operation between urban and rural communities in working out a school nutrition program, over and beyond school lunches. She also told her press conference in answer to questions that she had no foreknowledge of the sea meeting between the President and Prime Minister Churchill, that her new broadcast series, sponsored by a coffee combine, would start September 28, and that the White House kitchen bought in such large quantities that she had not yet noticed the increase in food prices.

Strong Nationalism Wrecked League, Session Is Told

Institute of World Organizations Held Setup Also Blamed

Making a critical survey of the economic and financial phases of the League of Nations, Dr. Michael A. Heilperin of Hamilton College, formerly of Geneva, Switzerland, today told the Institute on World Organization at American University that the League's efforts toward "economic integration of the world" had been wrecked by a set of factors concerning strong nationalism.

"In spite of the work of the League of Nations," said Dr. Heilperin, "the world economy failed to become integrated after 10 years of peace." Economic nationalism was stronger than ever. All the conferences relating to commercial policies that were held between 1927 and 1935 either reached recommendations that were ignored afterwards or failed to reach even an agreement on recommendations.

Setup Also Blamed.

"As one surveys the 20 years of League endeavor, one cannot escape a feeling of futility. There was no lack of good will and no lack of talent or work put at the service of the lofty idea of international organization. The reasons for the striking lack of greater results are to be found in the forces which made for a growth of nationalism and in the way in which the League of Nations was set up.

"Everybody who draws from one vantage point or another, the balance sheet of the League comes sooner or later to the conclusion that the aims of international organization stand in sharp conflict with the maintenance of national sovereignty.

League Held Feasible.

Continuing his discussion of "The League of Nations in World Life," Arthur Sweetser of the League staff declared that the League's experience has demonstrated that it is completely feasible, practicable and possible to create a mechanism of international collaboration, complete in all its details.

Reviewing its accomplishments, Mr. Sweetser said the League had laid the essential groundwork for the future, notably for arms reduction and control, and for evolving the whole general philosophy of international co-operation.

On the other hand, the League had great weaknesses, the speaker said. Its greatest specific handicap being the lack of universality. The League also was impersonal to the man in the street, he said, adding:

"It had no living personality or symbolism, nothing to arouse emotion or fixed devotion, nothing like the flag or a swastika."

Narcotics Discussed.

The subject of "Narcotic Drugs" was again under discussion by Dr. Leon Steing of this city, formerly of Geneva, a member of the opium section of the League. He traced yesterday the successful efforts of the Permanent Central Opium Board, but expressed some concern as to the effect of the present war, and its aftermath on the illicit opium traffic.

Carl C. Hambro, former president of the Norwegian Parliament and now the No. 1 man in the skeleton organization of the League, last night told the institute that democratic states at war, including several of the invaded countries, continue to pay their membership dues to the League.

"The League must remain the starting point for future collaboration."

U. S. Materials Found Part of Hess' Plane

By the Associated Press.

BURBANK, Calif., Sept. 3.—American-made products were part of the equipment that former Nazi leader Rudolf Hess used on his historic flight from Germany to the British Isles, Donald Dunning said on his return home after 15 months in England.

He served as maintenance instructor to Royal Air Force members assigned to Lockheed bombers sent from this country.

Mr. Dunning said he examined Hess' plane and was amazed to find that the tires bore the stamp of a United States manufacturer.

"The fuel tank called for 100 octane, an American designation, and a popular United States brand of aviation oil was specified above the intake valve," said Mr. Dunning. "The tires were new, live rubber, too."

Mr. Dunning said he spent 13 of his 15 months abroad on heavy duty at British airdromes.

Army Officer's Widow Is Held on Suspicion; Denies Fatal Stabbing

Mrs. Tucker Juried May Get Case Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Marie M. Tucker, 39, booked on a charge of suspicion of murder, today told authorities she is innocent of the fatal stabbing of her husband, Maj. George A. Tucker of Fort MacArthur.

The Army officer died in a San Francisco hospital July 12, 11 days after he was injured. Military officials said he had stabbed himself while making a sandwich at his San Pedro home.

"I married George the day he graduated from West Point, 19 years ago," Mrs. Tucker said. "I loved him then fervently and I loved that way until he died."

"Yes, even more so. I loved him enough to give him three sons. He was so proud of them. They were very proud of their father."

Mrs. Tucker's arrest was followed by seven hours' questioning by police and district attorney's officers. Also questioned was the oldest son of the couple, William, 12. Details of the conference were not disclosed.

Capt. Vernon Rasmussen of the police homicide squad said Mrs. Tucker would be held pending presentation of the case to the county grand jury tomorrow or Friday.

Also set for tomorrow was a hearing on a petition by her attorney,

Frank W. Doherty, for a writ of habeas corpus. He contended that the California statutes define no such charge as suspicion of murder. Superior Judge Benjamin J. Scheiman refused the petition and fixed the hearing date, but set no bail.

Icelanders' Pride Is School System Available to All

University of Reykjavik, Only Four Years Old, Is Modern Institution (Thirteenth of a Series.)

By THOMAS E. HENRY, Star Staff Correspondent.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland.—The pride of Iceland—and truly one of the marvels of the world—is the nation's school system.

On a hilltop overlooking the city is the University of Reykjavik, about four years old. Its main building is the biggest structure in Iceland. It is built largely of native materials, particularly of Icelandic spar, and sea shells were mixed with the imported cement to give the concrete a national flavor.

This is the world's newest and perhaps most modern institution of higher learning. It is almost unbelievable that a country with an extremely scattered population of only 120,000 can tax itself to support a university about which any small American State would boast.

It is a complete university, with schools of arts and sciences, law, medicine and theology and a very distinguished group of scholars for a faculty. The visitor is most impressed with the medical school, with its shining equipment for physiological experiments. This department is in charge of Dr. Olegsson, recent postgraduate of the Mayo Clinic and Iceland's most distinguished physician.

Research in Animal Diseases. Besides training physicians, this school is specializing in research on animal diseases, especially important for Icelandic agriculture. Domestic animals, with the exception of epidemics which may be due to the climatic and light conditions. These have caused heavy losses in the past.

Besides there are human medical problems peculiar to Iceland—the most serious being the meroles of tuberculosis in the land of sunless winters. Leprosy once was prevalent on the island—probably due to the same causes as tuberculosis, for the two diseases are closely related. It has been greatly reduced by strict isolation. Dr. Olegsson and his colleagues plan to get down to the fundamentals of the situation.

The pride of the university is its chapel—Lutheran, for that is the state religion, but with the harp of Erin prominent in its decorations as a symbol of Iceland's pride in its Irish blood.

Only Four Years Old. This university is the first place to see in Reykjavik. I was shown through it with a group of United States Marine officers, some of them graduates of Annapolis and some of State universities. They gasped with amazement as room after room was opened—classes are closed for the summer—by a courteous guide. The university is only four years old. It hasn't got a football team yet, but the students do include in "glima" contests. "Glima" is a form of wrestling, a very old sport practiced by the Vikings in the days of the sagas.

This university with its 290 students was built and endowed by a national lottery. It is intended as a symbol to the rest of the world of the eternal independence of the Icelandic mind, which refuses to be shackled in Danish, German or English ways of thought. It believes it to be the natural center of studies of one of the world's great cultures of the past which will have an ever-increasing influence on world thinking and philosophy in the future. Graduate students are expected from all over the world.

High Schools for All. One of Iceland's worst sisterly quarrels with Denmark has been over the removal to Copenhagen of the ancient Icelandic manuscripts to which, the natives claim, the Danes never had any title—morally or culturally. Now the Icelanders expect to get them back and make Reykjavik University a shrine for them.

The little nation has on either center of higher education—the agricultural college at Akureyri, the metropolis of North Iceland. For more than a generation boys and girls have been traveling from the farmsteads at the heads of the lonely fjords to the Arctic city and then returning, versed in all the science of modern agriculture, to resume without complaint their isolated lives.

Elementary and high school education is almost universal in the nation. How 120,000 people support the system is incomprehensible.

Sterling Hayden Drops Film Career for Sea

By the Associated Press. GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 3.—Sterling Hayden, the 25-year-old Gloucester skipper who made good in Hollywood, said today he was through with moving pictures because he wanted to live his own life.

He drove up to Capt. Ben Pine's wharf in a surprise visit, grimly threw his California automobile registration plates into Gloucester harbor and replaced them with Massachusetts numbers.

Hayden, 6-foot-4-inch blond who has appeared in two pictures with Madeleine Carroll, told a reporter that his plans for the future were uncertain and that he had abandoned the films simply because he did not wish to be tied to Hollywood.

Industrial Capacity Expansion Cost Set At $4,900,000,000

Estimate of Year's Investment Is Peak For United States

By OLIVER MCKEE.

Due to the demands of the total defense program, approximately $4,900,000,000 will be invested in new manufacturing facilities and equipment this year, by far the largest expenditure in our history, Lowell J. Chawner, chief industrial economist of the Commerce Department, estimated today. In 1940, expenditures for plant and equipment totaled $2,303,000,000, and in 1920—the previous peak—they were $3,165,000,000.

Although manufacturers of predominantly civilian goods are making some additions to their production facilities, the greatest expansion is occurring in the war and closely related industries. Mr. Chawner pointed out.

According to his estimates, based on an extended study of reports from American manufacturers and other sources, $2,660,000,000 will be spent this year for additions to plants and new equipment, by industries manufacturing munitions and war supplies.

$550,000,000 for Shipbuilding.

Principal items include the following: Airplanes, motors and parts, $700,000,000; chemicals, including powder, $580,000,000; shipbuilding, $550,000,000; ammunition, shells and bombs, $480,000,000, and guns and small arms, $280,000,000.

In addition to the investment in plants manufacturing munitions and military equipment, it is estimated that $1,310,000,000 will be spent in expanding industrial facilities closely related to defense. Indicated expenditures of this type include the following: Iron and steel, $500,000,000; non-ferrous metals, $300,000,000; petroleum products and coal, $250,000,000, and machinery, including electrical products, $260,000,000.

Plant equipment expenditures by non-defense industries manufacturing civilian goods will total less than $1,000,000,000 in 1941. Though slightly larger than the corresponding totals last year, these expenditures represent a normal expansion.

Capital expenditures for manufacturing facilities, both public and private, in terms of 1940 prices, increased from approximately $620,000,000 in 1915, to $2,466,000,000 in 1918. This year's additions, therefore, will be twice the total for 1918, when production effort during the World War reached its peak.

During the two years following the end of the war, new additions to manufacturing facilities continued at a high level. Until this year, the $3,200,000,000 expended in 1920 represented an all time high. The huge expenditures in 1919 and 1920 were largely due to the rapid readjustment of manufacturing facilities to peace-time purposes, particularly in the metal-working and automobile industries. The volume also reflected the rising prices of these years.

Adds 13 Per Cent.

The Nation's manufacturing facilities are valued today at approximately $22,800,000,000. Making allowances for depreciation, this year's expenditures are expected to add $3,000,000,000, or 13 per cent, to the net capital invested in manufacturing. This will be the largest net addition ever made in a single year to industrial capital. In recent years, the net capital increases have averaged from 2 to 3 per cent.

This net addition in industrial capital is more than twice the average increase from 1917 to 1920, and 50 per cent above the previous peak of $2,000,000,000 in 1920. During the 1930s depreciation charges more than offset the new investment for the decade as a whole.

End of a Controversy

The final compromise plan for the new War Department building in Arlington represents an eminently satisfactory solution of a problem that threatened to disturb the whole future course of orderly planning in the Nation's Capital.

Despite official disclaimers and denials, rumors persist that a separate Russo-Finnish peace is in the offing. In this connection it is interesting to note the words of General Lennart Oesch, addressed to his victorious troops after the recapture of Viborg.

It may be noted that the general statement made no mention of the larger conflict between Soviet Russia and Germany, with which Finland is allied.

The revised plan, which has received the approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission, calls for erection on the site of the proposed quartermaster depot, along Columbia Pike, of an office building half the size of that originally advocated by the War Department.

The President has wisely reiterated his determination that the Northwest Rectangle development will proceed. This is a vital step in carrying out the long-range plan of Washington.

Useful as the Finns have proved in the specialized fighting amid lakes and forests, their small numbers alone would limit their value in the titanic combat which remains to be fought.

Under the first of these changes the exemption for married couples would be reduced from $2,000 to $1,500, and that for single persons from $800 to $750.

The Tax Bill

The new tax bill, as revised by the Senate Finance Committee, has been changed in two important respects from the form in which it left the House.

Under the first of these changes the exemption for married couples would be reduced from $2,000 to $1,500, and that for single persons from $800 to $750.

Rebuff for Mr. Lewis

In approving a resolution yesterday favoring all-out aid to Great Britain, and other nations resisting aggression, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America have provided additional evidence that President Roosevelt has the backing of the bulk of American labor in mobilizing the resources of the United States to help free the world from the Nazi menace.

The second change contemplates the abolition of the preferred status enjoyed by married persons in the eight community property States—Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington. Under the laws of these States husbands and wives have been able to divide their incomes evenly for Federal tax purposes. The result has been that married couples in these States with surtax incomes have paid substantially smaller taxes than couples in the remaining forty States having the identical incomes.

This, on its face, seems clearly inequitable. If it is fair in eight States then it should be fair in all States, but if the community property feature were to be applied throughout the country, the total loss in revenue would be far greater than the $50,000,000 which Government experts say would be lost next year under the community property arrangement.

During the Senate debate of the bill, expected to begin today, the constitutional issue involved in the community property question should be and undoubtedly will be fully explored. Unless it is shown to be unconstitutional, however, and there is no reason to suppose that such will be the case, it is to be hoped that both this change and that effecting the broadening of the base will be kept in the bill.

Will Finland Make Peace?

Despite official disclaimers and denials, rumors persist that a separate Russo-Finnish peace is in the offing. In this connection it is interesting to note the words of General Lennart Oesch, addressed to his victorious troops after the recapture of Viborg.

By the conquest of Viipuri (Viborg), the coercive Moscow peace is no more," and he added: "Ancient Finnish soil is still in the hands of the enemy. May your success give you strength to carry your task to a final and permanent conclusion."

It may be noted that the general statement made no mention of the larger conflict between Soviet Russia and Germany, with which Finland is allied.

Johnson Island

It seems incredible yet it is true that the career of an Austrian paper-hanger has so much affected the world that even the tiny speck in the wide Pacific known variously as Johnson, Johnston and Cornwallis Island has become important.

Most reference books are silent about the microscopic "knob of rock" which the Navy Department has announced will be developed as an air station for the defense of the United States and its territorial possessions.

The new Navy station will be on a line with Manila. It lies southeast of the Midway Islands, north of Palmyra, Washington and Jarvis Islands; northeast of Howland and Baker Islands. Wake Island and the Marianas are due west. Hawaii is some 700 miles distant in the opposite direction.

Of course, Hitler did not intend to teach the people of America the necessity to protect themselves, their property and their traditions, but that is what he has accomplished.

A Confederate veteran at one breath puffed out 92 of the 95 candles on his birthday cake. Now if he will only refrain from burning the other three at both ends.

officers of the union pointed out that any basis for disagreement that might have existed prior to the German invasion of Russia had now been removed and declared that all groups in the labor movement should unite in support of "every step necessary to crush Hitlerism."

In endorsing speedy aid to the Allies, this union, one of the major units in the Congress of Industrial Organizations, has, by implication, sharply repudiated the isolationist stand of John L. Lewis, founder and former president of the C. I. O.

Yesterday's vote seems to mean that Mr. Lewis, in criticizing the program for aiding nations resisting aggression, and in urging a policy of isolation, does not represent the views of a majority of C. I. O. members.

It will thus be welcomed as a further indication that the American people are ready to release the additional energy which the President, in his Labor Day speech, warned will be necessary to defeat Hitler and his Nazi forces.

Half-Tone Inventor

Dying at eighty-seven, Stephen Henry Horgan, once a resident of Washington, lived long enough to see his claims to fame admitted by the leaders of the printing craft, to which he devoted his life.

His first half-tone picture appeared in the New York Graphic on March 4, 1880. The earliest of his cuts to be used in a modern daily was a portrait of Senator Thomas C. Platt, displayed on the front page of the New York Tribune for January 21, 1897.

Mr. Horgan, a native of Norfolk, Virginia, born on February 2, 1854, had the advantage of thorough training as a photographer. Studying engravings of line drawings, he observed that shadows were achieved by many fine lines arranged in close proximity.

He made a screen of parallel lines on a glass and set this glass between a photograph and a sensitized metal plate. The photograph was transferred to the plate with its darker details broken into hundreds of lines of uniform thickness.

Later, these lines were crossed by other lines of like dimensions. In principle, the same technique remains a standard practice to the present day.

But Mr. Horgan did not succeed without opposition. Printers called him an "idiot," and James Gordon Bennett, Jr., "fired" him. Yet he persevered, and the results justified his faith.

However, the press of Germany was not altogether pleased that the representatives of the United States had selected the 2nd of September as the date on which to present the statue of Baron von Steuben.

It is the judgment of those seemingly in the best position to appraise the military, political and economic situation that Hitler, after getting what he really wants from Russia, probably will attempt invasion of England, and, if successful, then look westward.

Gift to Germany Did Not Bring Peace

Writer Tells of Dedication of Von Steuben Statue Whose Symbolism Failed

Thirty years ago, this September 2, there occurred at Potsdam, Germany, a significant event. In the presence of Kaiser Wilhelm the American people gave to the German people a reproduction of the statue of Baron von Steuben, which stands in the Park of the Patriots facing the White House.

President Taft had appointed as representatives of the Congress Richard Bartholdt of St. Louis and Charles B. Wolfgramm of New York. They departed appropriately on the steamer George Washington, of the North German Lloyd.

The 2nd of September was selected as the date of presentation because as a German holiday, it celebrated the anniversary of Napoleon's surrender at Sedan.

In the presence of the Kaiser, Congressman Bartholdt said, "The name of Steuben will ever awaken patriotic memories beyond the ocean."

It seems to have two ordinary songs, one which is often put on paper as "tea-kettle, tea-kettle," etc. Others say it says "Joe Reaper."

It is perfectly possible, of course, for a real melody to be just two notes. The Hawaiians, in many of their songs, have shown how this may be done.

After the wren had wallowed in the grass for a time, it flew over into some tall shrubbery, where it piped its song again.

This song is bubbling, loud, but entirely unlike the cascade of sound made by the ordinary house wren. The latter is heard a hundred to one in this vicinity.

The Carolina wren is much more colorful, and much larger. It is said to be a much more constant bird in its affections, remaining true to one mate for life.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

There was some unknown bird in the trees, singing a song we had never heard before. The melody went "round and round," reminding a listener of a whirling wheel.

It was not until several days later, however, that we discovered what this bird was. We saw a large songster in the grass, apparently taking a sort of "dust bath" in the blades.

This was proved when the bird started to sing on the ground. It was our friend of the whirling melody.

Inspection showed it to be rather on the red-brown side, with a white line above the eye, and a capable looking bill, slightly curved.

It was by no means a small bird, but approximated almost 6 inches in length. It was, we recognized, a Carolina wren.

This is the wren which the State of South Carolina has adopted as its State bird.

In the South it sometimes sings at night. It has been called the mocking wren because it so sings, and also because it seems to mock some of the habits of the thrasher and the catbird, notably the tail switching.

It seems to have two ordinary songs, one which is often put on paper as "tea-kettle, tea-kettle," etc. Others say it says "Joe Reaper."

Movie Probe Perils Basic Freedom

Right of Producers To Express Ideas Faces Challenge

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Freedom of expression, whether through the press or the radio or the movies, is one of the four freedoms which both interventionists and isolationists agree is fundamental to a democracy.

The Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana is chairman, is about to hold hearings to determine whether the motion picture producers have or have not produced films of an anti-Nazi theme.

Most all motion picture films are based on fiction, and the right to dramatize a fiction story has never before been challenged unless such a story overstepped the border line of morals or decency.

Congress has no right to legislate on the subject of moving picture themes. And where there is no right to legislate, there can be no right to investigate.

The danger lies not in whether the motion picture producers should or should not produce more or fewer anti-Nazi films than they have produced—for the real effect of the coming hearing may be to quell them or intimidate them—but whether the precedent should be established that any committee of Congress should use its powers to inquire into the editorial scope of any medium of public expression.

The precedent is a serious one because today the isolationists may dominate such a committee and tomorrow another committee may seek to invade in an equally obnoxious manner the personal liberties of the isolationists.

The principal objection to the proposed hearing is that it assumes the right of Congress to pass judgment on editorial expressions.

The charge that the movie men are trying to drag America into war is as baseless as the charge that the isolationists are under the influence of Hitler or his agents.

Loans, secured and unsecured, may be made from $60 to $10,000... and over.

On the Record

Policy of Barring Refugees Described as Heartlessness to Friends of Democracy

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

The situation regarding American visas for refugees from Fascist countries has never been adequately clarified, and it is regrettable that the tendency is to become more and more illiberal, as the country does more and more in an active way to defeat Fascism.

Dorothy Thompson

Actually, of all the people languishing in Europe and seeking to escape, the political refugee, the man who is in danger because somewhere at some time he has actively tried to halt Fascism in Europe, is in the worst way. For some reason or other, American consuls abroad are likely to regard as a "dangerous" fellow, any one who has ever actively championed and fought for the very kind of a society that we enjoy here.

Treat Enemies Better. A more or less well-to-do Vichy Frenchman will get a visa, in order to come to America and tell us all over again how "correct" the Germans have been in occupied France.

In other words, we have a situation in which there is an active Fascist international, also a Communist international, but no really functioning democratic international, to protect the world-wide supporters of democracy.

Congress on June 20 and 21 passed laws that provide that any American diplomatic or consular officer may refuse a visa to a foreigner applying for entrance into the United States whom he thinks may engage in activities likely to injure the country, and a second law giving the President power to modify the immigration laws in the present emergency.

officers. Early in June, the State Department, anticipating legislation, ordered consuls to refuse visas to any person leaving close relatives behind in Germany, Italy or countries occupied by the German armies.

The reason advanced for this ruling was that there was "evidence" that secret police operating in the United States had been bringing pressure to bear upon such immigrants to work for them, with threats of revenge against their relatives at home if overtures were refused.

A Case in Point. How much of such evidence exists is not revealed, but the ruling works out with illogical cruelty. I think, for instance, of a 70-year-old couple, the man a famous art historian, whose only daughter is already in the United States and able to support her parents. But the parents are refused a visa because they have close relatives in Austria!

The French republic in a panic locked up every German refugee in Paris at the outbreak of war—lumping together Nazis and anti-Nazis in the same camps. The story was spread all over France that the chief fifth columnist was German Jews posing as refugees. The Pétain government delivered many of the anti-Nazi over to the Germans, when they came, and it is now quite clear who the chief fifth columnist in France were: The men who now rule France!

British Move Humane. The British, wise and more humane, classified "refugees" as all right, doubtful and dangerous, and the treatment of refugees has progressively improved under pressure of public opinion. Actually both in Britain and in this country some very important contributions to the war effort, especially in the realm of science, have been made by some of these refugees.

The idea that men who have already faced every sort of terror for their principles, in Czechoslovakia, France, Austria and elsewhere, will suddenly become prey to terrorization over here is not convincing at all.

In this country the agitation against refugees has been malicious, but investigation shows no basis in fact for the charges. America has not been "overrun" with refugees.

The Great Game of Politics

Byrd Plan to Cut Non-Defense Costs Called Last Chance at Retrenchment

By FRANK R. KENT.

There is considerable cynical comment accompanying the appearance in the Senate of a new bill by which an additional $4,000,000,000 will be extracted in taxes of one kind or another. For example, it is being said in some quarters that when, in 1942, the taxes provided in this bill are collected, most of the interest for — and most of the indifference to — this war will evaporate in Frank R. Kent.

Frank R. Kent

In brief, this is a prediction that, if it depends upon us, the war will not last long after the second income tax begins fully to operate, thus pinching many millions of citizens who never were pinched before. This is an exceedingly low view to take of the American people.

Nevertheless, it may as well be conceded that a vast number of men and women, heretofore lightly touched—directly touched at all—by taxes, are going to be affected by these two bills far more seriously than they have any idea now. Full appreciation will not come until the collection of the new taxes actually has begun.

Extremely Unpleasant. They will be squeezed, all right—and properly so. But they have become somewhat inured to that, know better what is coming and how to prepare. This time many millions who never before paid any form of direct tax will be brought in under the new bills, and at the same time the indirect taxes, which hit everybody, will be heavily increased.

Jingoistic Japanese Factions on Warpath; Business Interests Want Peace With U. S.

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

An undercover but nonetheless fierce controversy is raging at present in Tokyo, according to the latest dispatches received from the Japanese capital.

Of course, it is wicked to suggest that, by reason of the tough times ahead, our national fortitude will vanish and the people generally lose taste for the basic foreign policy to which the Nation is committed—to wit, that there shall be no peace negotiations until and unless Hitler is finally and completely crushed.

In such a situation wisdom and high-mindedness upon the part of our selected rulers is the vital essential. If they fail in these qualities—if they are partisan, political, incompetent and insincere—then the sort of cynical prophecy above mentioned cannot be dismissed with the contempt it deserves.

Financial Sanity. For this reason attention is once again drawn to the pregnant question of retrenchment, which, though it has seemed dead almost beyond hope of resurrection, suddenly has been revived by that indomitable champion of common sense, Senator Byrd of Virginia.

Showdown Urged. Prince Konoye is told that a showdown with the United States must take place at once and that the sending of American ships laden with war material for Russia provides the excuse for the showdown.

The importance of Congress adopting the Byrd amendment and resolution is hard to exaggerate. In all probability they present the last real chance the country will have of recovering its financial equilibrium.

McLemore

has asked Miss Marlene Dietrich to lend her limbs to the popularization of substitutes for silk stockings.

Mr. Morton used admirable discretion in announcing that Miss Dietrich's legs had been drafted for defense. He only said: "The Government could use Miss Dietrich's legs."

It was left for us to wonder to just what use they would be put. A reasonable guess is that they will be draped in cotton, linen, organdie, buripal, lisle, canvas, muslin and all of the other materials not high on the priority list, then photographed and shown to the women of America to prove that legs can look nice in anything, and that silk stockings were just old-fashioned Japanese propaganda.

Suppose he gave a story like this to the newspapers: "The O. P. M. announced today that despite the need for silk for defense work, officials have decided that all American women who felt that their legs were so unattractive that they needed silk hosiery to enhance them, would be allowed to buy all of the silk stockings they wanted. Only those women who feel that their legs are passably attractive will be required to wear the silk substitutes. The women themselves will be allowed to judge their legs. There will be no questioning of their decision."

You couldn't see a pair of silk stockings if you gave away a bowl of goldfish with them. Automatically, silk stockings would disappear in this country.

There isn't an American woman who would admit, by pulling on silk stockings, that her legs were so bad that they deserved special help from the Government of the United States. Give any gal two legs she could stand on, and she'd dress 'em up in lisle, sackcloth or what have you. Before she'd wear silk, with its announcement that her legs weren't quite up to standard, she'd stay home and make catty remarks about her friends who were so vain they wouldn't ask the Government for a pair of silk stockings.

At the moment Mr. Morton's scheme seems to have been blocked by a bit of sabotage. Simultaneously with the drafting of her legs by the Government Miss Dietrich tripped over a toy fire engine and suffered a fractured ankle. It is to be hoped that the F. B. I. wasted little time in launching an investigation to determine whether her accident was a natural fall or was due to a plot by agents of a foreign government, bent on thwarting the limb-lease bill.

My guess is that Miss Dietrich was a victim of sinister agents of the Gestapo. "Get Dietrich, get Dietrich," the word probably went out from the secret police headquarters in the Wilhelmstrasse. "Even if you have to sit through her last picture, 'The Flame of New Orleans.'"

Naturally, I hope that Miss Dietrich and her legs recover quickly from the Nazi machine with which they came into contact. But at the same time I hope, even more fervently, that this country isn't in such bad shape that it couldn't pull through, even if Miss Dietrich never is able to pose for Mr. Morton and his candid camera.

Age vs. Youth Is Issue as Eastern All-Stars Meet New York Giants on Grid

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN,
Star Staff Correspondent.

Whistles in Their Teeth, All-Stars at Their Heels

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The old-time sports editor, with a whiff of cut-plug bulging in his cheek and the great American novel in the back of his mind, apparently is gone forever. There is now the new type, a whistle in his teeth and a pack of all-star football players at his heels. He is called "Coach."

In a sequel to the all-star game invented by Coach Arch Ward of the Chicago Tribune is this affair tonight, bringing together the New York grid Giants and the Eastern All-Stars rounded up by Coach Stanley Woodward of the New York Herald-Tribune. Neither Coach Ward nor Coach Woodward behaves like plain, non-journalistic coaches. Mr. Woodward, for instance, flatly says his All-Stars can beat the Giants, as they did last year.

"We are potentially one of the greatest football teams of all time," he says. "Nothing is lacking except a certain competitive fire which we hope will be in evidence under the Polo Grounds floodlights. If it is this All-Star team will beat the Giants as sure as I am sitting in front of this typewriter. This All-Star team has no business getting beaten by anybody—Giants, Chicago Bears or Dodgers."

That's the way a journalist-coach talks. No wonder the Coaches' Association of America is peeved. It's had enough to have a couple of outland coaches talking for the public, but to be articulated at the same time is too much.

Coach Woodward Is a Kindly Man

We well remember the year we tried to make Coach Woodward's team. He was sitting at the head of the training table in the Stork Club when we reported for action. Coach Woodward eyed us in calm appraisal. We eyed him in return, holding first one hand over an eye and then the other, for it helped no end.

"Your name," asked Coach Woodward, kindly, for he is, indeed, a kindly man.

"Judzuckscivich of Yale," we answered promptly, anxious to clinch a job on the spot.

"Ah," sighed the coach, "you may be Judzuckscivich of Yale but you look more like Abacadabba of Harvard."

"Judzuckscivich," was the stern reminder.

"Abacadabba of Harvard," repeated Coach Woodward sternly, "for he is a stern man when a stern word is necessary."

"All right," we answered, "Abacadabba of Harvard. Six feet, 2 inches. Weight, 134 pounds. Right or left guard and able to pull out quickly, especially under fire."

Coach Woodward waved us to our rightful place under the training table.

Stop Leemans, but Don't Split Infinitives

It was on the practice field, however, that we got a real insight into the workings of this famed sports editor-coach. We had been slaving at left guard, with Goldstein of Notre Dame on one side and Tom, the fun-loving Rover of Carter Hall, on the other. The coach admitted that we made quite a trio.

"Wait until Steve Owen and the Giants get a load of you fellows," said Coach Woodward, generously and with a slight grin which caused the edges of his mouth to nestle next to the ear lobes. "By the way, I'm going to print the pre-game words of all of my boys. You, Judzuckscivich, he said, pointing, "what do you think?"

"Do I have to?" we cracked, knowing the coach appreciated a quick wit. "Besides, I'm Abacadabba of Harvard."

"You're Judzuckscivich," he glared.

"Well, coach," we answered, "the Giants have never seen us and . . ."

"Young man," stormed Coach Woodward, his face glowing like an angry coal against a background of black velvet, "you will refrain from splitting infinitives. I don't care if you stop Tuffy Leemans cold all night, you cannot split infinitives. You should say 'the Giants never have seen us.' Let that be a lesson. One more split infinitive and you're off the squad."

We knew then our days as an All-Star were numbered—from one to two.

Some Old Clat Marks That Won't Wash Off

Coach Woodward always has been a stickler for fierce competitive spirit. "Get on fire," he always yells as his boys tear down the field. We know this by experience because, on the eve of the big game, we were busy trying to down the field, the New Deal and Coach Woodward, himself, all at once.

"O'Flannery," shouted the coach, creeping up behind us. "I don't think you have the proper spirit. You're not on fire," he added, his eyes burning into us.

"I'm getting that way, coach," we answered cleverly, intent upon saving a starting assignment. "Where there's smoke there's fire and I'm getting hot under the collar."

Coach Woodward apologized on the spot and in gratitude we devised a special play in the dressing room just before the game, unbeknown to him. It contained a dash of the Warner system, a jigger of "T" formation, a spot of single wing and a bit of Mother Goose. "I think it would be fun," giggled Tom, the fun-loving Rover, for it was really he.

We never could understand why Coach Woodward yanked us so quickly. The special play didn't lose more than a few yards and we can prove we were there by some old clat marks on our back that won't wash off.

Defense of Jobs Inspires Pros; Hein on Spot

Veteran Opposes Two Formidable Centers Seeking His Berth

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Two arguments almost as old as sport itself will be renewed before 50,000 spectators tonight at the Polo Grounds in the sixth football game between the Eastern All-Stars and the New York Pros for the benefit of the Herald-Tribune Fresh Air Fund.

There's the youth vs. age dispute, which seldom turns up on the gridiron, and the long unsettled question as to whether the players whose feats are given the greatest publicity actually are the best.

The All-Stars, of course, feature youth. They're all fellows who ended their college careers last season and most of them are just starting out again as freshmen in the professional game. The Giants, too, have a number of rookies, but they also have veterans such as Mel Hein, a great center who is starting his 11th pro season; Ed Witzeth, Ken Strong, Ed Danowski and Ward Cuff. They'll be matching their skill and experience against the youngsters' speed and strength in an effort to hold their jobs.

Hein has tough rivals. Hein, for example, will be up against two of the finest college centers developed in the last four years, big Chet Gladchuk of Boston College and Lou De Filippo. Both have signed with the Giants and will join the club after tonight's game. A notable newcomer in the pros' backfield is George Franck of Minnesota, who was voted the outstanding player of the All-Star team that faced the Chicago Bears last week at Chicago. He's on the other side this time and some of the collegians will be trying to win the job from him.

The "heroes vs. unknowns" argument gained fresh impetus in last year's game when an all-star squad picked mainly from small college teams whipped the Giants after squads of more famous players had failed in four previous years. This year's team is drawn mainly from the big colleges, including the "owl" teams of Fordham, Boston College and Georgetown and Cornell's "Ivy League" champions. Yet Jimmy Crowley, the Fordham coach who is in charge, has indicated that he prefers some of the less famous players to the "All-Americans."

Drahos Won't Start. Pete Dobus of Carnegie Tech is expected to start at tackle instead of All-American Nick Drahos of Cornell and John Kuzman, one of Crowley's best Fordham players. Charley Seabright of West Virginia earned the starting quarterback role ahead of Cornell's Walt Matuzszak and Hank Tozlowski of Boston College. Gladchuk was rated second to De Filippo among the centers and Chuckin' Charley O'Rourke of Boston College. George Kraum of Pitt and Nick Basca of Villanova were scheduled to ride the bench at the kickoff.

Probable Lineups: Pos. All-Stars. N. Y. Giants. L.E. Shook (W. Va.). Poole L.G. Dugan (Carnegie). Cop R.G. De Filippo (Fordham). Hein C.O. Kerr (B.C.). O'Connell T. Seabright (Fordham). Mellis M. Cabrelli (Cornell). Howell Q.B. Seabright (W. Va.). Shaffer R.B. O'Rourke (Boston). Egan P.B. Schmidt (Fordham) or Osmanski (Holy Cross). Leeman Starting time—7:30 p.m. (E. S. T.)

FOOTBALL FORECASTS: STORMS FROM SOUTH!

Prospective Grid All-Americans May Make Life Miserable for Capital College Elevens

They call 'em illustrated or pictorial football magazines and they're brimming with stock action shots (vintage of '24) and enough dope to fuel an argument from now until the Rose Bowl.

The last of them hit the newsstands this week and District coaches still have the shakes. It is definitely not the type of literature for hours in the library, but heavy stuff to be taken in small doses.

Picked in bold type to twinkle in the southern firmament this season are 10 stars and five of them will play in Washington or Baltimore against teams from this belt.

It may be laughed off, at least not by the masterminds who clucked their charges into a training giddap yesterday, but doing tidings. It means only one thing—trouble ahead and plenty of it.

Old Miss Presents Pair. And we'll be seeing them soon for the first crack out of the box brings Ole Miss against Georgetown September 26. Mississippi has a couple of boys this particular map raves over, viz. John Alexander Hovius, Jr., and Merle Hapes, both backs.

The book says Dixie Howell in his greatest year at Alabama is the nearest thing to Hovius the South has seen since it heard about football. Hapes is the third of a family of Californians to attend Mississippi, which puts him in a class all by himself.

The book says Tom Lieb nostalgic memories of the old rock-crushing lines at Notre Dame years ago.

It isn't a pretty picture these dope books paint for our boys, but it sounds mighty interesting to the layman.

Ruling on Brewer Protest Is Due

District Attorney Edward M. Curran is expected to hand down a decision today on the protest Heurich baseball team made regarding the eligibility of a player for Naval Air Station nine, winner over the Brewers in the recent sandlot championship series.

It was charged that Jesse Fairley, pitcher who stopped the Brewers in the semifinal game, was ineligible, not having participated in five league games, a requirement of the Amateur Baseball Federation, of which Judge Curran is president.

Naval Air was slated to represent Washington in the national sandlot championship tournament at Youngstown, Ohio, beginning on Saturday. If the Brewers' protest is upheld it will represent Washington.

Ball Player Banned Year for Attacking Official Scorer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 3.—In what is believed to be the first case of its kind, Fred Shoemaker, a player on the Oil City club in the Pennsylvania State League, has been suspended from organized baseball for one year for an assault upon an official scorer.

Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association, said yesterday Shoemaker admitted in a written statement he spit in the face of Joe Szarfman, Oil City newspaperman who was serving as official scorer at a game on August 7.

The two had argued over whether a ball hit by a player was an error or a hit. Szarfman ruled it an error.

Judge Bramham said baseball had no jurisdiction over baseball writers as such, but did when they served as official scorers. The suspension is retroactive to August 8.

Boy Hiker Williams' Pal After Waiting Day to See Ted Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Billy Kane's hero is Red Sox slugger Ted Williams—more so today than ever.

Billy, 14 years old, wanted to see him hit a home run, so he set out from his home in South Brewer, Me., on Monday on a 250-mile hitch-hike trip to Fenway Park in Boston, eating fruit and berries along the way.

He arrived yesterday and was broken-hearted to discover there was no game. He walked into the park behind some workmen and fell asleep in the bleachers.

Two policemen found him there early last night and heard his story. They took him to the police station and telephoned Williams.

Dodgers Quickly Regain Stride After Slump

Gain on Idle Cards In Blasting Braves As Higbe Stars

There have been a lot of cracks about the Brooklyn Dodgers, but so far there have been no cracks in them.

From time to time the Dodgers have appeared doddering and their fans have become fearful. The latest occasion of this kind was the last week end when Brooklyn dropped a double-header to the New York Giants and came out of a 21-inning double tussle against the seventh-place Boston Braves with one narrow victory and one tie.

But Brooklyn has a way of making up for these lapses and yesterday the Dodgers overwhelmed the Braves, 9-2, in playing off the tie, just as they slaughtered the Giants, 13-6, on Sunday to cover up the embarrassment caused on Saturday.

Higbe Bags 19th Victory. Kirby Higbe had one of his powerful days yesterday and achieved his 19th victory which reduced the idle St. Louis Cardinals' lead to two percentage points.

He did not allow a hit for the first five innings and yielded only a half-dozen in the entire game.

Brooklyn bagged three runs in the first inning after loading the bases with one out. A force play accounted for two tallies, with Pete Reiser running a record anchor lap to score from second base while the putout was being made there. Then Lew Riggs doubled the other bases.

The Dodgers added four more in the third, knocking Al Javery out of the box with five hits, and finished with two in the seventh off Frank Lamarna.

There was only one other contest in the tin for legions. The Chicago Cubs clipping the Cincinnati Reds, 3-1, in a pitching duel between old Charley Root and young Gene (Junior) Thompson.

Landis Calls Series Parley. Thompson allowed just four hits, but two of them, a double by Lou Stringer and a single by Stan Hack, were linked with a walk and a long fly for two runs in the third.

Root held the Reds to five safeties, and the losers got their only run on a walk, a sacrifice and Lloyd Warner's double in the third.

The other clubs were to swing back into action today, but a portion of the spotlight was focused on a meeting called by Commissioner Keneaw M. Landis in New York to arrange plans for the world series next month.

Representatives of clubs still having a chance to win pennants in the two leagues were invited to attend.

Red Sox Buy Southpaw

WILSON, N. C., Sept. 3 (AP)—Monk Webb, southpaw from Georgia, who has won 23 and lost 4 games for Wilson of the Coastal Plain League, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox. His string included six shut-outs.

George Archie's term as the Nats' third baseman was to expire today. As the Nats tackled the Philadelphia Athletics today at Griffith Stadium, Buddy Lewis was to return to third base for the third time this season, with Roberto Ortiz, up from Charlotte of the Piedmont League, slated to be installed in right field.

Also ticketed to report to the Nats today or tomorrow is Pitcher Early Wynn, a right-hander who won 16 games and lost 9 with Springfield, Mass., of the Eastern League. Shortstop Hillis Layne and Second Baseman Bill Letchus of Chattanooga will be imported after the Southern Association playoffs.

Sid Hudson was to face the A's today, with Dutch Leonard due to seek his 16th victory against them here tomorrow. Washington will be idle Friday, but will battle the Athletics in double-headers at Philadelphia on Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile Griffith has sent another protest to William Hartridge, president of the American League, appealing a Hartridge ruling that gave Boston a forfeit victory over the Nats last month. Griffith challenges Hartridge's authority to forfeit a game.

Pro Rams Are Picked To Keep Clean Slate Against All-Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Opportunity, generally held to knock but once, beckons to the College All-Stars for the fourth time as they face the professional Cleveland Rams tonight in their annual pre-season football encounter.

Only in 1938, the first year of the American Legion-Cleveland News charity contest, was the score close.

The Rams squeezed out that one, 10 to 7; smashed on to a 27 to 0 triumph the following season and made it 28 to 0 over the newest crop of willing but ineffective collegians last fall.

WHAT'S ALL THIS ABOUT MOTOR OIL WEARING thicker?

8 cars driven to Death in torrid Death Valley—to settle today's bad puzzlers for you. Know the right answers—and Save.

NOT LONG BACK you'd never heard of mucky sludge and sticky varnish and other troublesome "goo" coming from motor oils. Today no complaint is more common. You're even told of oils thickening up like a mess of paint in an open can, when your worst worry used to be oils wearing too thin!

Conoco Nth motor oil lasted 13,398 miles on one 5-quart fill. One "rival" gave out so quickly that Conoco Nth outlasted it by 8,268 miles. And even the runner-up in the test was outlasted 5,683 miles by Conoco Nth. This is all Officially Certified, yet anything so remarkable demands explanation.

New oil Economy aid... Man-made. Man-made or synthetic betterment of motor oils has long been the keystone of Conoco success. For example, the celebrated Germ Processed oil patent on the use of a synthetic with magnet-like action has made it possible to give engines oil-PLATING. This lasting form of lubricant can't all quickly drain down—not the whole night long—but must stay plated up throughout the engine... on guard against wear in advance!—all the while you use Conoco Nth oil.

CERTIFIED The Engine Destruction Test in Death Valley, testing Continental Oil Company's new motor oil and five other well-known advertised competitive brands, was closely observed by me and my assistants during the preparation of the test feet and during the entire period of the test.

Daring Death Valley Destruction Test of CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

You'll see that this oil launched its success the hard way. It went "up against the blaze" in Death Valley—where heat hits record highs (official). It went up against 5 other representative big-name oils, in a Certified Test to the death.

Now in addition to this same OIL-PLATING assured by Conoco Nth oil, it brings the newest synthetic life-giver, called "Thialkene inhibitor."

This inhibitor checks the breakdown of the extremely refined oil demanded for present day motoring. That's why Conoco Nth oil didn't quickly churn up deadly "goo" in Death Valley, but kept right on to outlast 5 high-rated brands—by 74% all the way up to 161%. And even though you cannot think of exceeding the oil-change periods specified for your car and driving conditions, it's great to think of skipping many a stop for a quart. The best place of all to read about that is right on your own engine gaucstick. You'll see... just change today to Conoco Nth at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. It's popular-piercing. Postal receipts at the City Post Office in August were $2,000 larger than the August receipts of $1,800,000 in the like period of a year ago...

Postal receipts in the District compare by months with 1940 as follows: January 1941 $1,800,000 1940 $1,700,000 February 1941 1,900,000 1940 1,800,000...

Commercial banks were creditors for $19,000,000,000 of the Federal Government's $50,000,000,000 public debt. Banks increased their holdings of United States Government obligations and Government guaranteed obligations by $3,000,000,000 during the year.

Dealings slower than yesterday, with about 450,000 shares traded. Despite irregularity at the opening the market today was on a relatively steady ground.

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Stocks experienced a moderate downturn pull today as bullish tendencies in lately favored groups fizzled out.

Dealings were slower than yesterday, running for the five-hour period around 450,000 shares. The mid-reversal after the comparatively good action of the last two weeks had no special significance for market students but it suggested the urge to take small profits when available still dominated among active participants.

Bonds were mixed. Commodities again registered some sharp gains. Chicago wheat finished 1 3/4 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel higher. Corn rose 1/2 cent to 1 1/2 cents in late trades were up about 15 to 50 cents a bushel.

War Building Will Take 14 Months to Build

Foundations at Depot Site Boost Estimate, Gen. Somervell Says

Predicting that construction will require about 14 months, Brig. Gen. Brehon Somervell, Army engineer, conferred with President Roosevelt shortly after noon today for final clearance on plans for the new War Department building in Arlington County.

Gen. Somervell said that building costs are now being estimated and that contracts will be let without advertising on a fixed-fee basis. He said the 14-month time for construction, two months longer than was estimated for the larger building originally planned, is necessitated by the difference in location. Foundations of the site chosen will have to be supported on piles, he said, a requirement not present in the original plans.

Gen. Somervell was accompanied by the White House architect, George Bergstrom, who has handled designs for the structure. After the conference, Gen. Somervell said the President had requested some minor changes in the facade design.

Signaling the end of a month-old controversy, President Roosevelt yesterday told his press conference he had reached a final decision on the structure. He said it would be big enough for 20,000 employees rather than the 40,000 the Army originally proposed to put under a single roof, and that it would be located once and for all on the so-called Quartermaster Depot site. The building will be used by the War Department for the duration of the emergency and then be converted into a storehouse for Government fuel.

This site, an 87-acre tract of land lying south of the Arlington Experimental Farm along Columbia pike, is south of Arlington Cemetery, the President explained, and a building there will not interfere with the view of Washington's "city of the dead."

Sees Road Expansion Feasible. Cost of the revised building will be considerably less than the $35,000,000 estimated necessary to bring the originally proposed structure to completion, the President said. He also said he had been told that a system of access roads in the vicinity could readily be built in time to insure movement of the employees to and from the building. He added that this would be a virtually impossible task for 40,000 workers being placed there.

The President said he had not abandoned his hope that a permanent War Department building will be erected within the District of Columbia in the Northwest rectangle, and that he had asked the Army to design the Arlington structure accordingly. It was being planned, the Chief Executive emphasized, with the express idea that ultimately it will become a records building.

Pentagonal Structure. Its shape, he said, is pentagonal, and there will be approximately 15 interior courts. The Army's original plan, the one that touched off the long and sometimes bitter controversy, was for a five-sided building on the experimental farm.

Opposition to this scheme, led by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the National Commission of Fine Arts, flared up at once when the project was unceremoniously set aside as an item in a $6,000,000 supplemental defense appropriation bill. Neither commission, it was developed, had been consulted by the Army before funds were asked for the building's construction.

While discussions were still in progress last Friday, the President told his press conference the building would be located on the experimental farm, and that he wanted professional opinion on an idea he had conceived to build it as a "solid block" without interior courts or windows.

Parties in Agreement. Thus, it appears that developments since that time have led the Chief Executive to revise his ideas concerning the building only so far as its shape is concerned, he apparently having abandoned his hope for a solid structure. The President emphasized the finality of the plans as he described them yesterday by stating that all parties to the controversy now were in agreement.

His solid construction scheme would be followed in only one of the projected structures, probably 15 courts, the President said, pointing out that this would be done in an effort to determine the worth of this type of building.

Discussing development of a permanent War Department building in the Northwest rectangle, the President said it was his hope that it be as big or bigger than the structure planned 10 years ago for this site by the Park and Planning Commission. The recently completed War Department Building at Twenty-first and Virginia avenue N.W. is the first unit of this contemplated edifice.

The President said he talked over the idea of converting the Virginia structure into a records building with Representative Woodrum, Democrat, of Virginia, yesterday, and that Mr. Woodrum had agreed with him that there was a pressing need for such a storage place for Government papers.

County Votes to Buy 3 Tracts of Land To Extend 16th St.

Building Code Area Is Widened; Rezoning Petitions Received

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. ROCKVILLE, Sept. 3.—Another step toward ultimate extension of Sixteenth street was taken by the Montgomery County commissioners here yesterday when they authorized purchase of three tracts of land in Leighton's subdivision in Woodside at a cost of $3,100.

This is the first land purchase authorized for the proposed extension since 1938 when the county bought approximately $10,000 worth of property to provide part of the right of way for the extension of Sixteenth street to Georgia avenue between Highland drive and Woodside parkway.

Two of the lots will be purchased for $2,700 and are located in block 8 of the subdivision. They belong to Mildred M. and George L. Clark. The intention of the commissioners to purchase the land already has been advertised.

The third lot which lies in block 18 of the subdivision belongs to John J. Dolan and is to be purchased for $400. This will afford opportunity to widen and enlarge the terminus of the dead-end street known as Lanier place or street in Silver Spring.

Call for Early Action. In the authorization, the commissioners ordered their counsel, Joseph A. Cantrel to draw up the necessary papers at the "earliest practicable date."

There is still more land to be purchased to provide the complete right of way for the street extension. Agitation for the extension began several years ago and came to a head two years ago when it was decided to extend Sixteenth street direct to Georgia avenue. There were several other plans which were abandoned, among them a proposed tie-up of Sixteenth street with Columbia pike and a direct extension with a slight curve to avoid several houses standing in the way of a direct extension. The State Roads Commission was particularly insistent that the extension be direct.

Extend Building Code. In addition, the commissioners at their meeting also extended the county's building code to include all of the Maryland-Washington Regional District within Montgomery County. This would extend the building code beyond the present metropolitan district of the county to the Patuxent River via Brookeville, continuing south along the Patuxent, finally swinging west to return to the Potomac, including all the Sandy Spring area. The commissioners extended the scope of the building code under the terms of a bill enacted at the 1939 session of the Maryland Legislature.

The commissioners also received three requests for the re-zoning of property in Takoma Park and Silver Spring.

One petition was that of Herman Welsh, agent, for re-classification of lots 10 through 22 and lot 31, all in block 52 in Gilbert's subdivision in Takoma Park, from residential "A" to residential "B." The land is located on the south side of Erie avenue between Albemarle and Flower avenues.

The other two petitions were filed by the Blair Management Corp. One seeks reclassification of a part of the Blair property near the intersection of Eastern avenue, Colesville road and residential "C" and another part also in the same vicinity from residential "A" to industrial "E."

Approve Road Bid. The other request seeks the reclassification from residential "A" to residential "C" of a part of the property bounded by Eastern avenue, Colesville road, the East West Highway and Blair Mill road.

The commissioners approved a bid of $25,042.50 by the B. R. Aker Co., Inc., of Bethesda, lowest bidder, for the job of grading and macadamizing New Cut road from River road to Glen Mill cut, a distance of 1.21 miles.

New Drive on Rats To Enlist Civic Aid In Communities

Block Leaders to Be Named to Push Campaign in Capital

Formation of an anti-rat Gestapo composed of Health Department officials and civic leaders was planned last night in a renewed drive against the increased number of rodents that have hit the city.

The Medical Society of the District of Columbia endorsed the campaign in a statement yesterday. "To prevent the rat-borne diseases—typhus fever, bubonic plague and trichinosis—Washington citizens must plan and put into effect a vigorous and year-around campaign for the extermination of rats," the statement declared.

Typhus Appears in Capital. "In Europe, the rat represents a real peril, and in the United States there has been a gradual increase in the number of cases of disease transmitted by the rat flea," it said. "Typhus fever is generally increasing and appeared last year in Washington for the first time. Other cities previously free of this disease are reporting similar cases."

The rat-smashing offensive will be directed by a co-ordinator under Health Officer George C. Ruhland and his Rodent Control Committee. Ambrose Bell, public health engineer, is the co-ordinator and will keep in touch with civic organizations.

Citizens' associations, under the program, will be asked to name chairmen in their areas to handle publicity and appoint "square supervisors" and block managers. The square supervisors will supervise the distribution of bait and tabulations of results, while the block managers will give information on the rat hideouts.

May Seek Funds. The Health Department will prepare the bait "in accordance with approved methods," but the civic groups must pay the cost of materials and baiting operations. No funds are available in the Health Department budget to finance the program, and Health Officer Daniel Seckinger indicated he might seek funds for a rodent-control division in the next budget.

On information of the block manager, the committee chairman will report to Co-ordinator Bell his "police requirement."

The block managers will record their "catch" and report back to the central committee.

In case of rats, too smart to be trapped in the bait, follow-up of trapping is planned by the block managers and the co-ordinator.

A meeting with Columbia Heights Citizens' Association has already been held and other meetings are planned in the near future, it was said.

William Henry Allen Rites to Be Held Today

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Va., Sept. 3.—Funeral services for William Henry Allen, a native of England, who was master of Stuyvesant School here for many years, were to be held this afternoon at Lonoka Harbor, N. J., where he had a summer home. He was struck down by an automobile on August 17 while bicycling near his home. He died Monday.

Police Hunt Gasoline Thieves Using Syphon and Big Tank

Discovering what may be the first evidence of gasoline poachers in Washington, police today broadcast a lookout for three white men circulating through the city in a 1931 coupe—equipped in the rear with a 55-gallon drum.

Seventh precinct police have in their possession a smaller gasoline container—holding 1 gallon—and a rubber hose used as a syphon. These were found abandoned today on the running-board of a prospective victim's auto, police said, apparently after gas thieves were frightened away.

Police Report Asks Force Of 1,800 Men

Figures Reveal 30% Of 1940 Felonies Are 'Uncleared'

An increase in the personnel of the Metropolitan Police Department, to bring its strength to not less than 1,800, which would be 280 more than the present authorized strength, was urged in the annual report of the department for the fiscal year ended June 30. The report was filed with the Commissioners today.

The report showed that the department had a tougher job last year than the year before, at least as far as felony cases were concerned. There were 8,463 felons in the past fiscal year, or an increase of 1,081 over 1940. Of these, 2,551, or about 30 per cent were not cleared during the year. A case is marked "cleared" when police action supposedly has been ended by the making of an arrest and the filing of charges against the offender.

Simultaneously it was announced today by the Commissioners that they would meet tomorrow with Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, Acting Police Chief Edward J. Kelly, and members of the District Board of Inquiry into police efficiency, to act on the 40-odd recommendations made by the board for improving police efficiency. It has been predicted the Commissioners will approve the great majority of the recommendations which, called, among other things, for a stronger vagrancy law, imposition of heavier penalties on habitual criminals, development of a more thorough course of training for all policemen and specialized training for police officers, and enlargement of the police force.

Maj. Brown's Tenure Covered. The report was filed at the direction of Acting Chief Kelly, but it represented activities of the department in the past fiscal year while Maj. Ernest W. Brown, retiring police chief, was in charge.

As to the need of more men, the department said: "In the continuing increase of population in the District, serious consideration should be given to a yearly increase in police personnel and to meet the many demands at the present time and in the next year or two, the personnel should be increased to not less than 1,800 members."

"In the estimates (for the next fiscal year) consideration should be given to replacing policemen in civilian positions with civilians, and consideration also should be given to increased pay for all civilian members in the department, in keeping with salaries paid in the Federal service."

Police officials also repeated the oft-stated recommendation for establishment of a new police precinct in the area east of the Anacostia River, now patrolled by men from No. 11. It is proposed to build a new station house on District-owned land at Forty-second and Benning roads. Request for funds for this purpose, the statement said, would be included in the 1943 estimates.

Police officials also renewed old proposals that wrestling bouts be placed under the control of the District Police Commission, stating that at the present time, during the supervision whatever over wrestling and that "conditions have developed at wrestling bouts that in my opinion justify consideration of legislation for supervision and regulation."

During the past fiscal year, the Detective Bureau handled 18,076 assignments, increase of 1,058 over the previous year.

In the traffic division, the accident-prevention unit, established in September, 1940, handled all fatal accidents and about 70 per cent of all other accidents, it was reported.

The Woman's Bureau came in for some praise. Last year it completed 22 years of service and, police officials said, "has proved during that period to be a very valuable unit of the department—this bureau has functioned efficiently. During the past year the bureau made 660 arrests and handled 5,036 complaints. Lost, stolen and abandoned property, and property received from estates and insane persons, received by the property clerk in the past year was valued at $1,123,130. Money turned over to the District tax collector from the auction sale of August 5, 1940, of 55 automobiles, three boats and one iron beam totaled $1,212. Proceeds from a sale of lost, stolen and abandoned property held November 5, 1940, were reported to be $2,975.

The Public Buildings Administration said more agencies would be moved in as the remaining tenants move out. Two of the remaining tenants have leases that expire on November 1 and February 1, respectively, it was explained. The Attorney General's office, which recently ruled that the Government will stand by its agreement to lease the building, has said these two lessees will not be disturbed.

The competition was a feature of a traffic safety program sponsored by the Washington Lodge, No. 15, B. P. O. E. The Committee on Traffic Safety is headed by Ambrose A. Durkin, chairman, and Allen J. Duval, secretary. Other members are James E. Colliflower, John D. Fitzgerald, Philip U. Gayatt, Henry M. Jett, John E. Lynch, Arch McDonald, Charles F. O'Connell, Leonard L. Pearce, Jr., Roy M. Perry, Edwin S. Puller and George E. Strong.

Judges of the contest were Pat Jones of The Star, John Rissling of the Post and Richard Hollander of the Times-Herald.

'Pop' Concerts Here to Offer 'Sociability and Strauss'

Kindler Promises 'Schmalz' Music In Symphony Series at Stadium

The chance to hear music by the National Symphony Orchestra while sipping refreshment or munching a sandwich will be offered Washingtonians the night of September 22.

The occasion will be the first of six "pop" concerts in Riverside Stadium, which have been underwritten by several members of the orchestra's Board of Directors. Beer, light wines, soft drinks and sandwiches will be served during the programs.

'Sociability and Strauss' is the slogan favored by Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the orchestra for this new project. "Beer-barrel music of every possible kind" is his promise.

Idea Is Experimental. Dr. Kindler and J. P. Hayes, manager of the orchestra, outlined plans for the series during a press conference in the Raleigh Hotel yesterday. They emphasized the idea was experimental but was based on similar ventures in Boston and Cleveland, which have proved successful.

"I've been waiting for it for a long time," the conductor declared. "All comedians want to play Hamlet; all conductors want to play Harpo Marx."

This is the plan: The "pops" will be presented Monday and Thursday nights at 8:30 o'clock. Between 400 and 250 tables will be arrayed on the floor of Riverside. Seats at them will be reserved. Patrons sitting in the tiers about the floor will be able to get their refreshments during the two intermissions at an 85-foot bar in the lobby. The music will be substantial but not heavy.

"Nothing but Schmalz." "It will be fun to play nothing but schmalz," Dr. Kindler said yesterday. "Schmalz," to musicians, is the type of music that always gets intermissions at an 85-foot bar in the lobby. The music will be substantial but not heavy.

Mr. Hayes announced that the ticket policy will follow that of the summer Water Gate series—unreserved seats in the tiers for $5 and 60 cents, reserved seats on the floor at $1 and $1.25, with the customary reductions for strip purchases. The orchestra manager, who now refers to himself as a "tavern keeper," said reasonable prices will prevail for refreshments, and the sandwiches will be "the best in town."

Adult education classes will be expanded and special training in citizenship teaching given, through the co-operation of the Works Project Administration, Immigration and Naturalization Service and Office of Education.

Following discussion of curricula and State organizations today and tomorrow, about 20 of the conferees will hold technical meetings here through Saturday. About $14,000,000 of W. P. A. funds have been earmarked for the program, and $6,000,000 more from the Department of Justice.

Evidence Given, Jury Studies Catoe Case

No Indictment Today Is Seen; 20 Witnesses Called

The District grand jury shortly after noon today took under advisement the case of Jarvis Catoe, 36, colored, accused of slaying Jesse Elizabeth Strieff, following the presentation of evidence by the District attorney's office in a two and one-half-hour session.

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran and Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihely, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, did not confine it to the Strieff case, but went into other cases in which Catoe might be involved, including that of Mrs. Rose Simons Abramowitz.

While Mr. Curran promised that if an indictment is returned, Catoe will be speedily arraigned and tried, it was not known when the grand jurors might act, inasmuch as the presentation of evidence and its deliberations are conducted in secret. Indications were, however, that no indictment would be forthcoming today.

20 Witnesses Called. Mr. Fihely said during the noon recess that the grand jury would proceed with its regular schedule this afternoon with the case of Assistant United States Attorney Evan T. Davis, regularly assigned to grand jury work.

Some 20 witnesses were to have been called in all, but the district attorney's office, in accordance with a notice Department of Justice refused to disclose their names, it was believed, however, that witnesses included those who testified before the coroner's jury yesterday.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who conducted the inquest into the Strieff case that resulted in Catoe's being bound over, certified to the district attorney's office the other cases, without the formality of a hearing.

Catoe Probably Didn't Appear. It was not thought Catoe appeared before the grand jury, inasmuch as an indictment was refused to disclose their names. It was believed, however, that witnesses included those who testified before the coroner's jury yesterday.

District Attorney Curran announced that a special return would be made of the coroner's jury yesterday, so that the colored man can be arraigned immediately.

Catoe was bound over to the grand jury after the coroner's jury heard witnesses outline the case against the alleged slayer of seven women.

It was indicated that Catoe would be brought to trial for the murder of Miss Strieff, 23-year-old War Department worker.

The only known, tangible piece of evidence which police have in their possession in any of the murders which they say Catoe admits is the umbrella which figures in the Strieff case.

This umbrella, which was brought before the coroner's jury yesterday, was carried by Miss Strieff on the afternoon of June 16 when she went forth in a storm to buy butter from a corner store.

After Catoe had been arrested it was announced that he had given it to her. As far as police have disclosed, they have no other evidence in this or the other cases beyond the prisoner's statements. An indistinct fingerprint was found at the scene of the slaying, but this is not considered strong evidence.

That positive identification of the umbrella could be established became apparent yesterday at the coroner's hearing. Both the owner of the article, Miss Strieff had borrowed it from her mother, and the woman to whom Catoe gave it were able to point it out.

Finance Fallers. These two women were among the parade of witnesses who testified before the hearing at the Morgue. Among the witnesses were the police who first arrived upon the scene, the friends who searched for Miss Strieff after she vanished and the police who listened to Catoe's amazing recitation of violence.

The most pathetic testimony was that of Miss Strieff's fiancé, Stanley Le Blanc, Farm Credit Administration clerk, who led the search for her on the Sunday that she disappeared.

Mr. Le Blanc was slow in answering when he first took the stand. He had trouble remembering details and apologized: "I'm sorry, I guess I can't think very well."

Coroner MacDonald sought to bring out details of the identification of the missing body, which was found strangled and stripped in a garage in the rear of the 1700 block of Q street N.W. Mr. Le Blanc's memory failed and he wet his lips nervously, explaining: "I'm afraid I'm in too much of a daze to know."

Tells of Futile Search. He told the jury of his futile search through the apartment and the neighborhood for his sweetheart. He mentioned the trouble he had with the Strieff family in the apartment when he requested permission to search the place.

Mr. Esher, one of the three attorneys engaged by members of Catoe's family, questioned Mr. Le Blanc closely about the janitor. He sought to determine whether Mr. Le Blanc had seen coal dust in the apartment—having earlier sought to learn from detectives whether coal dust had been found on the girl's body.

Miss Betty Strieff, friend of the slain girl, identified her umbrella, pointing out torn places on it which she remembered. Esther Hall, colored maid, of 1532 Swann street N.W., to whom Catoe gave the umbrella, also identified it.

Detective Sgt. Aubrey Tolson repeated the details of Catoe's alleged confession. The accused man—against whom five formal charges of murder were brought yesterday by police—was calm throughout the proceeding.

'Hopeless Cripple' Confounds Doctors in Tricycle Travels

Wilford F. Wright, 41-year-old World War veteran, is shown on his tricycle, which he is using to strengthen his crippled legs.

Four years ago, a "hopeless incurable cripple" today, a smiling, fighting chap who can walk a little and hope.

That's the story of Wilford F. Wright, 41-year-old World War veteran, who is back in Washington with his family after what was destined to be his last trip to a Florida veterans' hospital in 1937.

Mr. Wright attributes his remarkable battle for recovery to intense mental concentration and physical effort. Even the Government doctors at the Florida hospital had given his case up, but Mr. Wright had just started his fight.

He read biographies of great men and women who had conquered their own mental and physical ills. He talked and thought religion, philosophy and psychology. To the amazement of the doctors he began to improve, and finally, in August, 1939, he was able to ride a tricycle.

The tricycle has done the rest for him, Mr. Wright commented yesterday at his home.

County Board Acts On 3 Tracts; Building Code Area Widened

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.

ROCKVILLE, Sept. 3.—Another step toward ultimate extension of Sixteenth street was taken by the Montgomery County commissioners here yesterday when they authorized purchase of three tracts of land in Leighton's subdivision in Woodside at a cost of $3,100.

This is the first land purchase authorized for the proposed extension since 1939 when the county bought approximately $10,000 worth of property to provide part of the right of way for the extension of Sixteenth street to Georgia avenue between Highland drive and Woodside parkway.

Two of the lots will be purchased for $2,700 and are located in block 8 of the subdivision. They belong to Mildred M. and George L. Clark. The intention of the commissioners to purchase the land already has been advertised.

The third lot which lies in block 18 of the subdivision belongs to John J. Dolan and is to be purchased for $400. This will afford opportunity to widen and enlarge the terminus of the dead-end street known as Laney place on street in Silver Spring.

Call for Early Action. In the authorization of the commissioners ordered their counsel, Joseph A. Cantel to draw up the necessary papers at the "earliest practicable date."

There is still more land to be purchased to provide the complete right of way for the street extension. Agitation for the extension began several years ago and came to a head two years ago when it was decided to extend Sixteenth street direct to Georgia avenue. There were several other plans which were abandoned, among them a proposed tie-up of Sixteenth street with Columbia pike and a direct extension with a slight curve to avoid several houses standing in the way of a direct extension. The State Roads Commission was particularly insistent that the extension be direct.

Extend Building Code. In addition, the commissioners at their meeting also extended the county's building code to include all of the Maryland-Washington Regional District within Montgomery County. This would extend the building code beyond the present metropolitan district of the county to the Patuxent River via Brookville, continuing south along the river, finally swinging west to return to Rockville.

Other two petitions were filed by the Blair Management Corp. One seeks rezoning of a part of the Blair property near the intersection of the East West Highway and the Coleville road from residential "A" to residential "C" and another part also in the same vicinity from residential "A" to industrial "E."

Approve Road Bid. The other request seeks the rezoning of residential "A" to industrial "E" of a part of the property located on Eastern avenue, Coleville road, the East West Highway and Blair Mill road.

The commissioners approved a bid of $25,042.50 by the B. R. Acker Co., Inc., of Bethesda, lowest bidder, for the work of grading and macadamizing New Cut road from River road to Glen Mill road, a distance of 1.21 miles.

The board also issued a permit to the No. 28 Post of Tacoma Park and the Cissel-Sixton Post of Silver Spring, both of the American Legion, for presentation of a benefit show to be held from September 29 to October 4 inclusive on the East West Highway south of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station in Silver Spring.

The board also approved a request of Pvt. Joseph C. Hawkins of the Montgomery County Police for a leave of absence effective today. Mr. Hawkins, who has been called up for military service was appointed to the force on July 21 under terms of a law enacted at the last session of the legislature and providing for addition of 150 more men to the county force.

BUT DR. K. The chance to hear music by the National Symphony Orchestra while sipping refreshment or munching a sandwich will be offered Washingtonians the first of September 22. The occasion will be the first of six "pop" concerts in Riverside Stadium, which have been underwritten by several members of the orchestra's board of directors.

Beer for Musicians, Too? Dr. Kindler eschewed dignity in speaking enthusiastically about Washington's coming "pops." He said he hoped the musicians would be permitted to have some beer after the second intermission.

"Nothing but Schmalz." "It will be fun to play nothing but schmalz," Dr. Kindler said yesterday. "Schmalz," to musicians, is the type of music that always gets a hand. Dr. Kindler explained he intends to play all kinds of familiar music, except swing, "as long as it is not obscene musically."

Rezoning Approval Given for Apartment On Defense Highway

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Sept. 3.—Approval of a rezoning petition to permit construction of 200,000 apartment house project on the Defense highway near the Bladensburg Elementary School was granted here yesterday by the Prince Georges County commissioners.

County Commissioners Postpone Hearing on Improvement District

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. The rezoning is from residential A to residential B. The name of the prospective buyer of the 7-acre tract was not revealed. Ralph Power, Hyattsville attorney, appeared before the board representing Sherman Hollingsworth, agent for the purchaser, Fred A. Volland of Bladensburg. He is the present owner of the land. Plans call for apartment houses of 300 units.

Hearing on request to designate Clearwater, Md., as a special improvement district was postponed until October 7. Ralph Wagner of Clearwater appeared to file a petition calling for formation of the special improvement district. He was opposed by a group led by Leo Fuhrmann, also of Clearwater, whose petition asked for more time to consider the question. The board suggested that the two groups meet and discuss their differences.

George W. Chesbro, executive secretary of the County Welfare Board, introduced to the commissioners his temporary successor, Bernard W. Scholtz. Mr. Chesbro leaves today for duty at Mitchell Field, Long Island. He is a reserve infantry captain and was granted leave for one year. Mr. Scholtz was formerly case supervisor for the Welfare Board.

War Building On Depot Site to House 20,000

Architects' Plans Pushed as President Ends Controversy

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.

Army architects today were putting finishing touches on plans for a multi-million dollar building in Arlington, Va., designed to provide office space for 20,000 War Department workers for the duration of the emergency and then be converted into a storehouse for Government files.

Signaling the end of a month-old controversy, President Roosevelt late yesterday told his press conference he had reached a final decision on the structure. He said it would be big enough for 20,000 employees rather than the 40,000 Army originally proposed to put under a single roof, and that it would be located once and for all on the so-called Quartermaster Depot site.

This site, an 87-acre tract of land lying south of the Arlington Experimental Farm along Columbia pike, is south of Arlington Cemetery, the President explained, and a building there will not interfere with the view of Washington's "city of the dead."

Sees Road Expansion Feasible. Cost of the revised building will be considerably less than the $35,000,000 estimated necessary to bring the originally proposed structure to completion, the President said. He also said he had been told that a system of access roads in the vicinity could readily be built in time to insure movement of the employees to and from the building. He added that this would have been virtually completed had 40,000 workers been placed there.

The President said he had not abandoned his hope that a permanent War Department building will be erected within the District of Columbia in the Northwest rectangle, the President said. He said the Army to design the Arlington structure accordingly. It was being planned, the Chief Executive emphasized, with the express idea that ultimately it will become a records building.

Pentagonal Structure. Its shape, he said, will be pentagonal, and it will be approximately 15 stories in height. The Army's original plan, the one that touched off the long and sometimes bitter controversy, was for a five-sided building on the experimental farm.

Opposition to this scheme, led by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the National Commission of Fine Arts, flared up at once when the project was unearthed as an item in a $6,000,000 supplemental defense appropriation bill. Neither commission, it was developed, had been consulted by the Army before funds were asked for the building's construction.

While discussions were still in progress last Friday, the President told his press conference the building would be located on the depot site. He said he wanted professional opinion on an idea he had conceived to build it as a "solid block" without interior courts or windows.

All Parties in Agreement. Thus, it appears that developments since that time have led the Chief Executive to revise his ideas concerning the building only so far as its shape is concerned, he apparently having abandoned his hope for a solid structure. The President emphasized the finality of the plans as he described them yesterday by stating that he had been consulted by the Army before funds were asked for the building's construction.

Fleet Partly Damaged In Premiere of Two-Hour Aquafete

6,000 Watch Water Spectacle at Pool; Shows Through Friday

The 1941 Red Cross Aquamerica had its premiere last night in the Takoma pool and today is ironing out the rough spots and rebuilding a part of the fleet which met with disaster and had to be scuttled.

Just before the finale of the two-hour water carnival—an opening feature of the silver anniversary of the annual Red Cross Roll Call of September 22—the miniature fleet battled on the "open seas" of the pool. Though firing blank shots one of the gray battleships caught fire from flying sparks and partly burned before its pilot (a swimmer inside) could scuttle it and extinguish the flame.

Otherwise the program went off as scheduled, with special swimming events, water stunts, clown diving and aqua-waltzes. A crowd of more than 6,000 youngsters and grown-ups filled the playground area for the aquafete. The main setting for the marine display featured the prow of a battleship, flanked by red, white and blue decorations. Prominent were huge "Vs" for victory in deep blue, fading off into the background edges of the setting.

Asks Support of Work. Edgar Morris, general chairman of the Red Cross Roll Call Committee, formally opened the show with stress on the importance of Red Cross work during this present emergency. "I feel," he said, "that wherever such a large group as this is gathered we cannot avoid thinking of the horror and suffering which prevails in so many parts of the world. Even on happy occasions such as this, that horror and that suffering constitute a back-drop, somber and thought-provoking." He then called on Washingtonians to "give us your support, moral and financial, and prove to all humanity that you are ready with the Red Cross, as the Red Cross is ready, for any emergency."

Each nightly show from now through Friday will begin at 8:30 o'clock and include demonstrations and acts by some of the outstanding swimmers of the local playgrounds, under the direction of Elmer R. Hipsley.

Mermaids Ride Surf Boards. The water show began with the entrance of a candle-lit float bearing girls in costume with a seashell background. Then came six surf boards pulled by swimmers bearing mermaids, followed by two sets of paddle boats bearing bathing beauties.

In one of the contests Mr. Hipsley, as a fisherman, lost to his "fish," Swimmer John Welsh.

Between the swimming acts the Madolin Smithson Hodgson dance group presented ballet numbers and tap dancing. Fancy diving exhibitions were given by Bill Tarbott, Frank Reilly, Jackie Richards, Bill Dean, Joan Trainor, Nick Sheridan and Lucille Kirsch.

Swimming demonstrations of team co-ordination were given by Patricia and Phyllis Palmer and Betty and Buddy Roland. These events were set to waltz music.

One of the demonstrations which delighted the audience was given in canoe handling by R. Aubrey Bogley, assisted by Mary Moncure. Mr. Bogley showed how rescues could be made from a canoe with a minimum of danger. He also flooded the canoe and, remaining in the water, emptied it. He also showed how to "paddle" a canoe without a paddle through body motion.

Other routine rescue methods taught by the Red Cross also were demonstrated, including use of the ring, torpedo and surf board, as well as the cross chest and hair holds. As part of these demonstrations, Miss Kirsch showed how to rescue four swimmers at one time. This was done by gathering them into a close group and towing the middle two while the others held on.

Bill Havens successfully defended his canoe-tilting title by vanquishing his opponent in less than the four-minute allotted time.

The masked marvel, who may reveal his identity to the crowds at the closing show Friday, last night was tied in a laundry bag and tossed overboard, only to break from his bonds as soon as he hit the water.

A chorus of 21 swimmers gave a formation swim, building up a pyramid design. The Aquamerica swimming chorus included Helen Mills, Pat Dolan, Dot Sharkey, Betty Lanzillotti, Mary Ora Frames, Jackie Frames, Lorrie Notton, Sonny Frames, Leo Jarboe, Duke Dodson, Patsy Pugh, Patsy Montee, Margot Molander, Dot Robinson, Rose Mary Boal, Edward Thompson, Margaret Sullivan, Vance Brown, Nellie Huggins, Laura Smithers, Mary Jane Detrich, Charlotte Theiss, Phyllis Cook, Helen Engleman, Philip Jackson, Charles Greenbaum, Marguerite Bailey, Vivian Stein, Harriet Sisk, Arthur MacNeil, Jane Lartz, Bill Burrows and Kay Tillinghast.

By the Way—

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ontario, Canada—Three days hard motoring and we are in Canada! At Sault Ste. Marie, the customs officer asks, "Any out-board motors, moving picture cameras, guns, dogs—?"

"Only Buttercup," we reply. "What kind of a dog is Buttercup?" he inquires.

"A Mexican Chihuahua—"

"I'll just write Mexican terrier," says the officer.

"We know how to spell Chihuahua," we tell him. He ignores us and writes Mexican terrier.

"What value?" he asks.

To us Buttercup is priceless. We think up a nice fat sum.

"Two hundred dollars," we say.

"Two hundred?" asks the officer.

"Yes," we reply firmly. "Two hundred."

"Will the Canadian government give us $200 if anything happens to Buttercup in Canada?" inquires our son.

"No," replies the official. "The Canadian government will make you pay duty on that $200 if you don't take Buttercup out of Canada with you when you go!" Imagine our leaving Buttercup—

We go to a little hotel in the middle of town to spend the night. It's Sunday, so all the shops and movies are closed, but a few cafes look bright and busy. If we fell far from the way out West, we feel very close to it hearing the radio to hear the latest war news.

The automatic music machines play patriotic airs—there are signs all about warning against giving away military secrets—urging men to enlist in the Canadian Army and "help finish the job," urging those who can't fight to help by buying victory bonds—huge victory "Vs" on delivery trucks, in shop windows, on private cars, chalked on the sidewalks. One enormous sign shows a determined bulldog with a caption "Keep your chin up, there'll always be an England!"

Gasoline isn't sold on Sundays or after 7 p.m. on week days, and motorists are asked to conserve it as much as possible. It costs almost twice as much as in the States, but we get a 10 per cent premium on the exchange of our money and traveling accommodations are still fairly reasonable. There has been no food rationing as yet, but it's illegal to buy or sell sliced bread. The authorities have issued a warning to butchers for using their meat slicers for "bottling slicing" of bread—and they mean to take drastic steps to stop it.

In Ottawa, we stop for lunch with the Lewis Clarks, who are en poste here with the American Legation. They've taken a charming house out in beautiful Rockcliffe Park, have had their own attractive furniture sent on from Washington and are now completely settled. Right near the Clarks, also in Rockcliffe, is the residence of the American Legation, where the United States Minister and Mrs. Pierrepoint Moffat live. Close by, the Assistant Naval Attache and Mrs. Julius Fleischmann have the same house that was once used as the official legation residence by the late Warren Delano Robbins and Mrs. Robbins when Mr. Robbins was Minister to Canada. At that time the United States Government did not own an official residence, so the Minister and his wife had to find their own. Since then they have purchased the present one, and it's considered to be one of the finest and loveliest houses in Canada. The Government has furnished it, but Mrs. Moffat has also brought some of her own lovely personal things—and made it even more attractive. The Clarks take us to see the magnificent American Legation offices—beautifully situated across from the famous towering buildings where the Canadian Parliament and Senate convene. This business legation was built by the United States Government some years ago, and is probably the finest legation in Ottawa.

Like Washington, just now Ottawa is packed and jammed with people. It's almost impossible to find a house. The restaurants and streets and hotels are crowded. Just about every third man you see is in uniform. Entertaining is very informal, mostly cocktail parties or small early dinners. The women are up to their necks in war work. Everyone seems hurried and busy—and intense. Ottawa has changed a great deal since we were last here in 1938. The Clarks says they love it. Both look busy, but well and happy. Ann's father and mother, Judge and Mrs. Harry Covington, are coming up in a day or so for a little visit—bringing small granddaughter Ann Clark back to her parents after a summer at camp in Vermont. The Clarks are thrilled over the prospect. As we drive away, they send love to their friends back in Washington—"I shall probably be done for a few days this fall," says Ann. Hurried "good-byes," and we're off—headed this time toward home!

Woman's Suit Asks $700,000 Damages From Tax Lawyer

Breach of Promise To Marry and Slander Alleged in Action

A $700,000 damage suit, alleging slander and breach of promise to marry, was filed today in District Court by Margaret Buchanan, 5035 North Capitol street, against Otis Beall Kent, tax lawyer, 1026 Sixteenth street N.W.

The complaint contends that between March, 1940, and the end of June of that year, Mr. Kent promised to marry the plaintiff "within a reasonable time," yet in November, 1940, he said to her he would not marry her. The plaintiff asks the court to give her $500,000 for this. The complaints also assert that in February, 1941, the defendant made untrue statements about her. For this the suit asks $100,000 and an additional $100,000 as punishment in the form of exemplary damages.

The plaintiff is represented by the law firm of Simon, Koenigsberger & Young. The suit was filed by Attorney Lawrence Koenigsberger.

Attorney William H. Collins, representing Mr. Kent, said upon learning that the suit had been filed:

"On behalf of Mr. Kent I wish to state that we have a complete defense and at the proper time this litigation will be exposed in its true light."

The plaintiff was a nurse to Mr.

Kent's mother in her last illness, it is understood.

Paralysis Cases May Halt Induction in 11 Counties

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—The Army considered today the advisability of stopping the induction of soldiers in the 11 Pennsylvania counties hit hardest by infantile paralysis.

York County, center of the current outbreak which has taken 24 lives to date this year among 300 victims in 41 counties, already is under an induction ban. It has reported 85 cases.

A conference of Army and health department officials took place this week, said Dr. J. Moore Campbell, director of the Bureau of Health Conservation, and the military authorities are studying conditions in the afflicted areas.

Schuylkill, Montgomery, Cambria and part of Northumberland.

School Opening Delayed.

Dr. Charles S. Tippetts, headmaster of Mercersburg Academy at Mercersburg, Pa., today announced the opening of the school has been postponed from September 17 to October 1 on advice of the State health officer because of uncertainty in the infantile paralysis situation.

Loquacious Old Bird of 23
Is Dog's Faithful Companion

Mingo Also Eats
At Table and Has
Own Toothbrush

If you knock at the door of 1910 I street N.W., the chances are that you will hear something yell "mama"—and it won't be a child.

The yell will come from Mingo, a 23-year-old bird from Santo Domingo, which has been in the possession of Mrs. Lennie Dickerson of this city for 29 years.

Mingo's vocabulary, while distinctly under par compared with Webster, nevertheless includes a variety of words. For instance, Mrs. Dickerson says that if you play anything "foolish" on the radio Mingo will shout, "Shut up!"

Pals With Spaniel.
Mingo, who hails from a warm climate, can't get around town during the winter, but he doesn't do so badly in the summer. His owner puts a pink shawl over him and carries him downtown and into department stores, where Mingo attracts a crowd like a bargain basement sale.

"He doesn't try to get away when he's with me," Mrs. Dickerson explained. "He behaves. He's on his dignity."

Faithful companion of the bird is Brownie, a 2½-year-old spaniel. During the warm months of the year the two go out for a stroll in the neighborhood, or Brownie may give Mingo a ride.

It was friendship at first sight with Mingo and Brownie. They soon formed a mutual protective association, so that no one but Mrs. Dickerson can touch Mingo, and Mingo will bite any one who interferes with Brownie.

Once Saved Her Life.
The other day they went to the beach. Mingo gave the feminine contingent plenty of competition, and soon had a crowd watching as he sipped water from a paper cup. The bird doesn't go in the water but paces up and down the beach while Brownie splashes around. When Brownie shakes water off Mingo wiggles in sympathy.

Mrs. Dickerson credits Mingo with saving her life. Several years ago there was a refrigerator leak in the room. Mingo screamed and flapped his wings so hard he lost most of his feathers but finally managed to awaken Mrs. Dickerson in-time.

Dickerson said that the bird is careful of his appearance, possessing his own toothbrush and washcloth.

Mrs. Dickerson, who has had more than one offer for the bird, said she "wouldn't take anything for him."

Dies Calls Henderson Unfit for Price Job

By the Associated Press.
ORANGE, Tex., Sept. 3.—Chairman Dies of the House committee investigating un-American activities said yesterday he would release from Washington within a few days facts that would prove Leon Henderson "is unfit to administer the price-control efforts of the Government and justify his dismissal."

"I shall give the record of some of his chief assistants and my statement will be supported by photostatic copies of a number of documents in my possession," Mr. Dies said.

"Some of his appointees have gone on record in opposition to the American form of government and our system of free enterprise," Mr. Dies continued.

"Since all of these appointees, as well as Mr. Henderson, will be called upon to perform the most important function of the Government affecting every business in America, I feel that it is imperative to give the people the facts about the type of men, their background and political views who will exercise this far-reaching power."

Mr. Dies added he would submit "all this documentary proof to the President."

FALSE TEETH
were Untrue to Grandma Gray
BUT THE KIDS ALL LOVE HER NOW!
The kindness of Grandma Gray
Made kiddies all adore her.
No wonder she was hurt when they Decided to ignore her.
The truth was that they could not stand
The odor nor the sight
Of Granny's FALSE TEETH; though by hand,
She scrubbed them day and night.

"Use POLIDENT," her dentist said,
"Its action can't be beat.
You neither scrub nor rub; instead
You soak plates clean and sweet!"

Since Granny has, the kiddies make
Her life serene and nice.
If you wear PLATES, you too should take
This POLIDENT advice.

3 Polio Cases Reported In Montgomery County

Three cases of poliomyelitis have been reported in Montgomery County, Md., during the past two weeks, Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, disclosed today.

However, Dr. Ellicott said he informed the county commissioners that he would not recommend ordering any restriction on travel or public meetings in the county or any change in the opening date of schools next Monday because he does not consider the situation alarming.

Dr. Ellicott said there are a total of 56 cases of the disease in the 23

Maryland counties and consequently the three reported cases may be considered about average. In addition they are widely separated, Dr. Ellicott said, adding that one case is in the Poolesville area, another in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase district and a third in the Silver Spring-Takoma Park vicinity.

Dr. Ellicott said that the peak of the disease usually comes during August and September and that a break results with the arrival of cold weather. Three cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, two of them fatal, were also reported by Dr. Ellicott. The season for this disease is nearly over, Dr. Ellicott said. The cases were reported during the past few months.

MADE UP TO KILL

By Kelley Ross

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

I wrenched myself free and reached out for the light. My hand met nothing but black emptiness. "Hello! Anybody down there!" "It's Halia, Clint and Alice."

"As soon as I find my damn lighter here it is!" I saw the flare of his lighter like a miniature torch high above me. "I'm coming down."

"I'll be glad to see you."

I wondered where he had popped from and immediately remembered that a door opened from his office onto the balcony. The flame disappeared as he started down the steps and was there again as he reached the orchestra. He groped his way down the center aisle, shielding the flickering lighter with his hands. He climbed up on the stage.

"I thought Alice was here."

"She is." But I couldn't find her. "Or was."

"Maybe she's afraid of the dark. She might have gone out."

"I think she's afraid of herself. What's wrong with the lights?"

"They were out in my office, too. And the street lights are out. That happens sometimes during an afternoon storm. Every light in town burning at once, the strain is too great. Hey, Nick!" he shouted.

There was a startled grunt as Nick awakened in his cubicle and shuffled in. Clint sent him out for a flashlight, then said to me, "Where's Jeff?"

"He's due at 3."

"I know, he called me this morning."

"He's getting hot, Clint, or thinks he is. He thinks he knows."

"Knows? Knows who...?"

"Yes. He knows who the murderer is."

Clint Is Startled.

There was a long pause and when Clint spoke again his voice was grave and quiet. "I hope to God he does. I want to get this whole mess over with. You know, Halia, that child's face is haunting me. A kid like Carol living with that thing over her head, a kid who never looked any one. God! I see those big frightened eyes every place I go. And her bravery makes it all the worse. If she'd break down... if she'd..."

"I said, 'Carol can take care of herself, Clint.'"

He didn't seem to hear me. "I tell myself that it's none of my doing, that all I did was to give her a break that a thousand other girls would give their right hands for, a chance to be an actress. Yes, that's the way I do it. I do it for myself. I gave the poor kid a break all right. A chance to be murdered, to live in fear and terror, a chance to spread herself all over the front pages in a gruesome murder case. If she should be..."

The bitterness and self-reproach in his voice were beating at me. In the quick flame of his cigarette as he drew on it I could see his face, the sad tight lines around his mouth, the furrows between his eyes. I couldn't stand it.

"Clint," I said, "there's no reason for you to reproach yourself. Nothing's going to happen to Carol. Nothing was ever meant to happen to her. She... it was Eve, Clint, who was supposed to be killed. The murderer meant to stab Eve, not Carol. The murderer meant to poison Eve."

I could hear him catch his breath. "Eve! No! God, no! Who would..."

"Yes, Clint," I said gently.

His voice was shocked, almost breaking. "No, no. Not Eve. The poison... Halia, the poison was put in Carol's glass. Not Eve's."

"Yes, I don't... I stopped."

A Sudden Suspicion.

If Eve was to be the victim, then the poison must have been placed in her glass. That much was certain. How had Jeff figured it out last night? Something about Philip Ashley and his fight with Eve. Did he mean Ashley was the murderer? It was something that Philip had said to Eve. "Why didn't you upset the table?" he had said. "You have the whole play to yourself and still you have to steal my one big scene, you have to rattle everything on the table... rattle everything on the table. Then if Eve had rattled the glasses... if she had changed the glasses..."

"Clint," I said, "Clint, that poison was put in Eve's glass! And she changed the glasses herself! There were no flowers on the table for her to arrange and she ad libbed business with the glasses. And Carol got the one that was meant for her!"

"Yes," he said slowly. "Yes, that..."

"But the next night there was no mistake. Oh, Clint, who could have wanted to murder Eve? Who could have hated Eve? You must know, Clint, you were her friend, the only one who really knew her. You've been so close to her and so loyal... producing for her when she was no longer great, ruining yourself to keep her on Broadway, giving all you had through these years! Clint, you must have loved her very much or..."

Then I suspected.

He didn't speak; there was no sound from behind the glow of his cigarette. Suddenly the theater was not any longer warm and cozy. It was an enormous cavern filled with cold dark danger. I wanted to get out. I stood up and the floor was hard and icy under my stockinged feet.

"Let's go out and wait for Jeff," I said.

"All right."

Hide and Seek.

I didn't scream because I had pressed my hand tight over my lips, holding them closed before the sound got to them. The voice that had answered me had not been Clint Bowers' voice. But it was, it must have been, I told myself frantically. It had come from right behind that point of light. It was Clint Bowers' voice with all its pleasant friendly warmth gone. It was Clint Bowers' voice, harsh and cruel and with a deadly quiet.

It was then I knew.

The burning cigarette was there, unmoved, barring me from the stage door. I felt sick with the weak nauseous feeling that pervades you when you're coming out of ether. I couldn't run or fight or scream.

Then the light leaped toward me, the length of a step, and my head cleared and I snaped out of it.

Putting my cigarette behind me I crushed it between my thumb and forefinger. I crept forward toward the footlights, feeling for them with my toes, moving toward them by slow inches. Thank God for the rain and the snow that had soaked my shoes and had made me take them off. The lights couldn't have been more than three feet from the davenport where I had sat, but it was taking eternities for me to reach them.

Then the edge of their groove was beneath my toe and I stepped across the reflectors and lowered myself into the orchestra pit. Unless I had moved far to one side, the center aisle should be almost in front of me. I reached out and swept my hand across the backrest and it touched one seat, another, and then no more.

I looked back. The cigarette was moving across the stage to the davenport where I had been, moving as stealthily as I had moved. I started up the aisle, feeling for the rows of seats, counting them as I passed. How many rows did the Colony have, how long would it take me to reach the back? The Music Box has 14 rows. The Plymouth has 19. I thought hysterically, why doesn't Clint Bowers chase me through the Music Box? Then I'd know when I had passed them all. Then I'd have a chance.

I could hear him behind me on the stage, moving about and bumping into things.

I could see the faint glimmer of daylight through some crack in the outside door. My hand tangled in the velvet portieres that hung behind the last row of seats and the brass rings above them clanged together and rattled. I stopped dead, holding onto the mass of velvet to keep myself from falling. He had heard the sound on stage. His voice came booming through the house.

"Halia, where are you!"

I made one last stab at keeping up this insane farce. "I'm going out the front door, Clint. Jeff will be coming by this way."

The voice was calm, laughing. "It's locked, Halia."

I didn't try to be quiet, then, or to pretend I wasn't terrified. I felt wildly for the door. In my wet, sticky hand the knob was cold. I turned it and my hand slid aimlessly around while it stayed still. I put my coat over it and turned again. It was locked.

I ran from one door to another and they would not budge. I turned and with my back up close against the doors, I faced the stage. The light was coming down into the orchestra pit; now it was starting up the aisle.

Hugging the wall and side-stepping, I moved along the back of the theater, my eyes holding onto that small circle of light with an intensity that made them burn and water. I moved toward the side aisle. I was a step from it when the light turned, too, and crossed the row of seats toward the spot where I was going. He had seen me. Perhaps that tiny shaft of light that crept through the doors at my back had been enough to outline me for him. I crouched there for a second, then eased myself under the seats into the last row and lay there, my knees almost under my chin, my arms squeezed in around me, holding my breath to make myself smaller. I could hear him not four rows in front of me now, walking up the aisle. He would pass an arm's length from me. Or he wouldn't pass.

Nature's Children

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.
America's first balloonists were spiders! In some mysterious way these creatures have mastered the art of flying by adjusting themselves to weather conditions and conforming to laws of physics in order to extend their territory. By rising in the air on strong cables of silk, the aviators may travel the uncharted airways and descend where they will by eating their ballast, or if their power (the wind) suddenly gives out, a forced landing is equally acceptable.

Spiders are important friends of ours. They contribute to our well-being in service that is impossible to estimate in dollars and cents, for swift rate before they decide to make a landing. In this case, the silk cords will be consumed, permitting the landing to be slow and uneventful. Or the wind ceasing may be responsible for the sudden downward journey.

Upon reaching earth again, the few remaining strands may settle to the ground and become covered with dust and dew. In this new environment, the balloonist will hunt for we insects if they are present, or manage another take-off to better hunting grounds.

This spider measures only one-twentieth of an inch in length. You will recognize it from other species by its light color and bright yellow head.

they consume millions of pestiferous and noxious insects that combine to make life at times quite miserable, to say nothing of the valuable property destroyed.

Ballooning spiders are quite small and easily escape our attention during the early spring and summer months. In August and even through September, if the weather is warm, they can be observed taking off from weed stems, fence rails, leaf-landing fields and such places.

Now is the time to add to your knowledge concerning spiders. They neither know of your presence, nor do they care if spectators are about. The urge to use the swift autumn winds for going places is the all-absorbing matter that counts. Therefore, you may see the balloonists prepare for their journey, take off and sail into the trackless blue.

You will notice the spider fastens each of its eight feet upon the selected foundation. Before its position is decided on, the balloonist will spin a strand of silk, to learn the direction of the wind. Having established this most important truth, the weaver will anchor himself or herself before another cable is spun and then the spinning goes rapidly forward. If you use a magnifying glass, focusing it upon the spider's feet and legs, you will see how terrible is the tension upon them as the strong cords increase in number and strength. Then, in the space of a second, the spinner has reversed its position, gathered the silk cords in the claws of the feet and sailed into the air.

The balloonists may travel at a

Upper Marlboro Lists Tobacco Prices

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.
UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Sept. 3.—Frank Hall, chairman of the Upper Marlboro Board of Trade, announced figures on the bumper tobacco crop here yesterday, with top prices of 49 cents on a total sale of 13,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Hall said that the average price this year of 34 cents was 12 cents higher than that of last year. The top price this year exceeds last year's high mark by 7 cents.

The smaller of the two warehouses here turned over $1,700,000 to farmers for their tobacco during the season beginning April 22, Mr. Hall said.

At a meeting Monday warehouse representatives agreed to close for the year Friday, Mr. Hall revealed.

Cinema's Most Doomed Man Finally Becomes a Name

Critic Who Always Intended to Do So At Last Identifies Louis J. Heydt; 'Andy Hardy' Film to Linger

By JAY CARMODY.

Far be it from this department to chide Hollywood publicists for such a small thing as missing a bet on the life story of Louis Jean Heydt. There are so many other things about which to chide the boys if one were in a chiding mood.

It is just that Louis Jean's life story fascinates us because it is a story of more sudden and varied deaths than that of any other Hollywood player.

Offhand, since it probably would not be worth any exhaustive research, we recall having seen Louis Jean die in such assorted ways as gunshot wound, of tropical fever, a cute alcoholism, in an airplane and automobile crashes, and once by being stuffed into a machine, which normally was used for making rope out of hemp. When and if death does come to Louis Jean—which he should be long delayed—should be totally lacking in novelty, perhaps something he has experienced in life some half dozen times in the same, or worse, forms.

This recurrent brooding on Heydt was induced the other day when he popped up again in "Dive Bomber." His appearance in the role of Swede Larsen, one of the three Top Hats, as that stunt flying team was called, reminded us again that we should look up his name and remember it this time. Each of his previous pictures had induced the same thought, that we really ought to know Louis Jean's name.

After all, a man born so conspicuously to die should not remain nameless, especially to a reviewer who sits on the edge of his seat wondering how he is going to be bumped off this time.

After every picture, until "Dive Bomber," it was the same. We would intend to look in the cast sheet and fix his name in our mind so it never would be forgotten. Then we would go away and promptly forget. Louis Jean would just have died again. That was that.

It might always have been the same except for "Dive Bomber." In that one, he started off even with Fred MacMurray and Regis Toomey in the apparent size of his role. It was the sure tip-off that he was going to die out of there very fast, and even more violently. He did—in a spectacular dive bomber crash. It was the sort of thing to fix him in mind as an actor, whose name no longer could be ignored.

Henceforth, whenever we see him, we'll be able to say: Here goes Louis Jean again. It will seem more personal that way. And it is no more than such a consistently doomed man deserves.

As it must to all theaters, the hold-over has come to Loew's Capitol.

The hold-over is "Life Begins for Andy Hardy," the tenth picture of the series and obviously one which audiences are finding enchanting in inverse ratio to the feeling of the Legion of Decency. The picture, which deals with life beginning for Andy Hardy, came as quite a shock to the latter body, which had found the previous nine almost fanatically pure and fanned with the lovely breezes of adolescence.

The disapproved part of Andy's growing up, which does not seem to be disturbing the general public at all, is that area in which Judge Hardy lectures his glib son on the wiles of a certain type of blond. Correlatively disapproved are the preceding passages in which the blond gives a demonstration of the wiles the judge is talking about.

Interpretative dancers, who have seemed doomed to do their arabesques and entrechats far removed from the supper club scene, are knocking the ballroom dance artists around these days as if they were the Brooklyn Dodgers. (This department is strictly a St. Louis Cardinal fan.) In all sorts of places that seem odd for it, the long-haired dancers are proving enormously popular, so much so that no name is too big to be billed top rung on a big supper club program.

It is the development which has inspired Helen Hamilton to start her Troika season with the Chandra Kaly dancers as the chief attraction. Almost as chief attractions, however, will be Rosita Rio, the Latin American thrush, and pretty Gypsy Markoff, who could—but certainly doesn't—get by with far less skill as an accordionist.

Bulletin board: "Lady Be Good," which will come next to the Capitol, was screened yesterday for critics. . . . And today the same set of people will gather at the Earle screening room to see "Our Wife." . . . "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which a lot of people bet would hold over at the Earle, will return Friday to the Metropolitan.

It's a Malevolent Fate That Trails the Holdens

When It Is Not Work, Appendicitis Strikes to Frustrate Honeymoon; Mr. Benchley in a Snit

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

HOLLYWOOD. They say it isn't in the books for movie stars to marry movie stars and live happily ever after—but Bill Holden and Brenda Marshall, who wed July 12, wouldn't know about that.

In the seven weeks since they struck off on that Las Vegas elopement, the Holdens haven't been together long enough to hang up their hats. In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Holden, both recuperating today in the same hospital from appendicitis performed within a few hours of each other, are principals in the most frustrated romance Hollywood has ever known.

Following the ceremony, they had been on long series of ups—Brenda and Bill walked more than three miles over sand dunes and sage brush patches when their plane missed the airport in the dark. That was just the beginning.

They spent the first few weeks of their honeymoon separated by a continent and 3,000 miles. This happened when Warner Brothers assigned Brenda to the heroine role in "Captains of the Clouds" and sent her off on the longest location trip of the season—to North Bay, Ontario.

Holden met her at the station at Pasadena at 3:30 on a Friday afternoon. The train was late. That at 8:30. Holden left for Carson City to work in Paramount's "The Remarkable Andrew."

The studio-crossed lovers were to have been reunited when Bill returned, a week later. But he became ill on the train and, arriving at the station, got news that his bride had been taken from studio to home in an ambulance. She was suffering from a severely-infected throat and had case of nerves.

Physicians visited them en masse. After the dual checkup, they received orders to prepare for an appendix removal alike.

"Think like this can't go on forever, so the next item about the Holden-Marshall honeymoon is more cheerful. Doctors say they're getting along nicely and their respective studios wax fatherly by declaring they can have exactly four weeks to recuperate and try out married life before facing the cameras again.

Robert Benchley grumbles that script writers have libeled him to such an extent he now flees when passing a mirror.

In "You'll Never Get Rich," Benchley explains, the man who wrote the screen play describes him as "a man who carries his 50 years lightly. The sap of spring fows through his veins."

In his next film, "Bedtime Story," the character Benchley interprets is written off as an engaging mugg of 50. In other scripts, the comedian remembers he has been variously described as "a drunken, dissolute reporter, with slept-in clothes," "a man with a pudgy face and twinkling eyes," "the opposite of the popular conception of Beau Brummel" and "a man who would be at home in any company, if it were bad enough."

"Next writer I see," snarled Benchley, "will receipt for a punch right in the eye!"

Orson Welles has given Peter Lind Hayes a new sketch for his show at the Grace Hayes Lodge, a real-life radio which the mimicking Peter repeats to the customers of this popular night haunt of the movie crowds.

Peter explains that Orson was invited to a small town to speak on "Aesthetics." On arrival, he discovered the crowd small and no one was there to introduce him. So, after waiting an appropriate amount of time, the three-ring genius was forced to bow himself in.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "since no one is here to give you the high lights of my life, I will tell you about myself. I am a writer of plays. I am a producer of plays. I am an actor on the legitimate stage. I am a writer of motion pictures. I am a producer of motion pictures. I am a motion picture actor. I am a magician. I also sketch and paint. I am a puppeteer and a book publisher. I am a violinist and a pianist."

Here Orson (in the person of Peter) pauses dramatically and says: "Isn't it a shame there are so few of you and so many of me?"

Glamour Girl of 1941 To Make Debut for $25

By the Associated Press.
 RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—Betsy Cordon, glamour girl of 1941, will make her bow to North Carolina society here September 12 at a $25 debutante party.

That is the cost of a debut at North Carolina's debutante ball, which turns out debutantes on a mass-production basis. New York cafe society may rate Miss Cordon glamour girl No. 1, but she'll make her debut here with 145 other belles.

The $25 which each gives will pay the orchestra, hire the Municipal Auditorium for two nights of dancing, take care of a morning dance, a luncheon and a banquet—and each will get a corsage of roses.

Miss Cordon is the 18-year-old daughter of Robert W. Cordon, a native of Washington, N. C., and a vice president of the Manufacturers' Trust Co. of New York.

Veteran Held on Charge Of Threatening Sabotage

By the Associated Press.
 SAN JOSE, Calif., Sept. 3.—Piliberto Aloysius Bravo, filling station and store operator, was arrested last night on charges of writing six letters signed with the German word, "vowerts" (forward), and threatening to dynamite industrial concerns.

Nat. J. L. Pieper, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Francisco, said evidently no one but Bravo was involved. Bravo, a World War veteran, denies writing the letters.

The first, received January 10 at the Pacific Manufacturing Co. of Santa Clara, said the factory would be blown up unless it ceased lumber mill work for Army camps.

Another was received by the Santa Clara American Legion, stating the "Dresden Branch Fifth Columnists" had been established in San Jose, one of 100 similar branches throughout the country.

Thirty thousand men were employed in constructing the new Yunnan-Sikang highway in China.

Well-Chosen Furnishings Produce Effect of Spaciousness in Small Room

Modern Headboard Beds Are Practical Solution For Crowded Space

Make-up Shelf with Drapery Fabric Skirt and a Mirror Glass Top Is Adequate

By Margaret Nowell

Present-day houses are designed to provide the utmost in space conservation; most new apartments have rooms scaled down to the least common denominator. So, since comfort depends on the use of a conventional number of pieces of furniture and good decoration demands that rooms be uncluttered, it is quite a problem to meet all these specifications and turn out a livable house.

Bedrooms are likely to be most difficult, for beds do take up a certain amount of space, and many of us still cling to the idea that a bed must be a bed and not a couch. The little room pictured illustrates what can be done in a small space. In actual measurements it is 13 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. Yet it holds twin beds with a night table between them, a large six-drawer chest, dressing table, upholstered chair and another side chair, with no effect of crowding, no necessity to move a chair to get into the closet or any other difficulty. In this room, the scaling off of a few inches here and there has made the whole thing possible.

A pair of beds with the usual bedstead taken up 12 inches more in width and 6 more in length, which made it out of the question to use a table and lamp at the head of the beds and also made the passage at the foot of the beds so narrow that a dressing table was impossible. In addition, the footboard of the bed had the appearance of

Size No Barrier to Charm

It isn't at all necessary to relinquish charm and comfort in order to more than adequately furnish a small bedroom. For example, in this tiny room such "tricks" as the use of modern headboard beds, a narrow shelf for a make-up table and the balanced application of color have been applied cleverly and successfully. The room loses none of its decorative appeal through the conservation of space.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

The woman who spends much time in her car has complexion problems which other women miss. Her skin is drastically exposed to the elements and windburn and sunburn are definite threats. Also, her outer coating is likely to become rougher, dryer and darker.

Before putting on your make-up, apply a liquid base. You can buy only ones which do not dry the skin. Remember age signs don't happen suddenly, but gradually, day by day! The time we spend driving ourselves about counts up after a few years.

You will be lucky if you reach the end of the summer without discovering that one arm is several shades darker than the other. Of course, you could wear long sleeves when you drive, but who wants to? You could also have a separate sleeve (just above elbow length) to slip on when your outer arm is in the sun.

If you don't wish to bother with any of this, you can use a suntan make-up on your lighter arm until you bleach out. Many women who seek the rays of the sun but don't want their faces tanned for early fall and winter, keep the face and neck in the shade while sun bathing and then use suntan make-up when the contrast between legs and face is too marked.

If you spend much time in your car, your lips will no doubt become dry, so use an oily lipstick.

Because of the many thousands of requests for leaflets reaching Mrs. Lowman during the last few weeks, there has been some delay in mailing. All requests, however, will be filled as soon as possible.

Dirndl Dress With Dickey Combines Two Fashions

By Barbara Bell

Here is an interesting new style for junior girls—a combination of two very popular fashions. Pattern No. 1459-B is based on the dirndl dress, with its long fitted basque top and full skirt, the unique feature is that the top is open so that a dickey is worn with it, and the fabric of the dickey is repeated in a band around the hemline of the swingy gathered skirt. At one and the same time you are dressed peasant fashion and tailored, too, when you wear this frock. It is destined for wide success with the returning college girls. Girls who are in business will find it ideal for it provides the opportunity to wear a fresh touch of sparkling color near the face.

The dress may be of wool crepe, tweed, plaid, rayon mixture crepes, velvet, corduroy or flannel.

'Ruminator' Needs Care Of Doctor

Functional Upset May Have Serious Consequences

By Lettice Lee Streett

Dear Mrs. Streett:
My question is what to do about a vomiting baby? He weighed 8 pounds 9 ounces at birth and now at 6 months he weighs 18 pounds. He loves to eat, but brings back food as late as two or three hours after feeding. This is very upsetting as I never know how much food he retains. Thank you kindly for your help.
MRS. C. H.

A most encouraging fact is that your baby boy is apparently gaining and growing as he should. Eighteen pounds is a normal weight for him and this shows that he is vomiting only a part of his food. Perhaps he is just a very greedy little fellow, and eats more than he should. However, it sounds as though he might be what is known as a "ruminator." Ruminator is a functional disorder and the name describes vomiting that is not brought up in a rush, but which more or less seems to roll back of the mouth. Strange as it may seem, babies sometimes do this because they like to.

A doctor can decide if this is true of your baby by watching action of the tongue and the jaw muscles. This cereals are sometimes helpful in feeding children who have developed this habit and the doctor may order that the baby wear a cap with a wide band pulled snugly under the chin to keep the jaws together. The baby will wear this cap for about two hours after each feeding.

At any rate, let me stress strongly to you the importance of your taking your little son to a pediatrician at once. It is impossible for any one to tell you what the true cause is without seeing the baby, so please do not delay in visiting the doctor. There are many reasons why bottle-fed infants vomit, and among them are:
The forcing of food when the baby is not well or has eaten enough.
Illness, acute indigestion.
Overfeeding. Some babies will eat more than they need when the food is offered to them.
Irregular feeding schedule.
Eating too rapidly.
Eating too slowly.
Rough handling after feeding.
Excitement, fatigue, nervousness.
Milk that is too rich in fat, or an improperly balanced formula.
Sleeping in a stuffy, poorly ventilated room.

We have prepared two useful gifts for you: One is a chart that clearly shows the value of foods suitable for the average young child and the other describes a series of well-tested exercises for the entire body, with hints on how to gain your child's co-operation in performing them. If you wish either or both of these, send for our Classified Food Tables and the Importance of Correct Posture pamphlet, including a 3-cent stamp with your request. Print your name and address clearly and address orders to the Woman's Department of The Evening Star.

Ham Rolls

Deviled ham rolls make an interesting salad accompaniment. Trim the crusts from slices of enriched bread and spread with a ham mixture and roll up jelly-roll fashion. Brush the outside with melted butter or margarine and toast in the broiler until golden brown.

Dorothy Dix Says --- Commendation Inspires Children The Same as It Does Adults

One of the greatest mistakes that parents make in dealing with their children is in not realizing that praise has the same effect upon them that it has upon adults. It is uplifting and inspiring. It is the Archimedes lever that moves the world. All of us know that the thing that makes us grown-ups put our hearts and our backs in our work is commendation. Yet most fathers and mothers go upon the theory that the way to incite ambition in a child is to tell it how dull and stupid and blundering it is. Apparently, the great majority of parents seem to think either that it will develop sinfully vainly in their youngsters to give them a word of approbation for good performances, or else that compliments are too valuable a commodity for home consumption. At any rate all that the poor little takes get from morning till night is criticism, so it is no wonder that when a little girl was asked her name she replied that it was Don't Mary.

Of course, the fathers and mothers who bring up their children on the nagging theory are not intentionally cruel. On the contrary, they love their children and think they are doing their duty by them in keeping their faults and weaknesses ever before them, and they are blissfully unaware that they are doing them the greatest harm that one human being can do another, for they are establishing inferiority complexes in their youngsters that will doom them to failure as long as they live.

What parents forget is that they are their children's public, and if the youngsters never get the glad-hand from Mom and Pop they feel just as humiliated and discouraged as an author does if his book falls flat, or a business man does when his enterprise goes into bankruptcy.

Also, children take their parents' estimation of themselves as final, and if all of their virtues are passed over in silence and the spotlight is always turned on their mistakes and blunders, they feel that they have

Crocheted Dress

By Baroness Piantoni

Light, soft wool yarn makes this dainty "going-out" dress for your little girl. She will love it in pink with its puffed sleeves and its bows of satin ribbon. Let her wear it as much as she wishes, for it can be laundered over and over again and requires no ironing. A lacy stitch for the bottom and single crochet for the top completes the design. The dress is suitable for a child from 1 1/2 to 2 years old. Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for the above.

Stepmother Encounters A Problem

Misunderstands Request to Use First Name

By Emily Post

The modern generation's bad taste in the matter of unrestrained first-name calling apparently does meet with occasional rebuff. At least this is the evidence sent me by a young man who went to stay with the family of his college room-mate. The family includes two younger sisters and a young stepmother. He tells me, "She seems young and acts young, although she has been my friend's stepmother for quite a few years and now has two small children of her own. My friend and his sisters call her by her first name—Jane. This is the only name I have ever heard them call her. I called her Mrs. Smith, although she seemed too young to be called that."

"When I wrote my thank-you note, I told her what a wonderful thing she had done for me, and she seemed so completely one of us I wondered if she would let me call her Jane the next time I saw her. Well, I don't think there will be a next time—because she has misunderstood me entirely and resents my 'freshness,' and so far as I can guess, the front door is shut to me. I think her attitude is silly, and I never once called her Jane. I only asked her if I might. All the same, I feel sorry about it."

This sort of question is difficult to answer, because I have no idea how your letter was worded. If at the time you were staying in the house you had asked, "Do you mind if I call you Jane, too?" she might have said "No"; but she might not have understood you as she evidently did your letter. The point is that many things can be said lightly and brightly, but they become as solid as stone cutting when they are put down in black and white. If you have read your "Iliad," you know how much Homer spoke of "winged words." This is just what spoken words can be, but which written words cannot! Even so, if I were you, I would write her another letter and say briefly that you feel very sad and as upset to find out that you had been fresh, because you had not intended to be—and let it go at that! I can't imagine that she will shut the door on you for long—if at all!

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong for a soon-to-be divorced person to announce her engagement before final papers have come through? Every one knows she and her husband have been separated for some time. Answer—It is certainly not in best taste. Although it is done by many who might be expected to know better. The answer is definitely no.

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me who travels on the same train with the deceased, whose body must be taken from one place to the other for burial. Some say the nearest kin, others say this would be cruel. Answer—Not only are the nearest kin expected to perform this office, but those to whom the deceased was dearest, usually do.

My Neighbor Says:

Icebox cookie dough can be packed in pound butter cartons, loaf pans or small bowls, or it can be shaped into rolls 2 inches in diameter and wrapped in wax paper. The dough should be chilled 24 hours or longer, and then cut into thin slices by using a sharp knife dipped frequently in cold water.

A little sweet oil applied to bronzes after they are dusted, followed by a brisk rubbing with a chamois skin will bring out their rich tones.

The blunt end of a pencil is excellent to use when marking initials on linens which are to be embroidered.

New Era of Elegance Seen in Second Year Of American Fashion

Showings by 'Big Names' in Style World Reveal Luxury And Pleasant Sophistication

By Helen Vogt

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—At a tender age, American fashion is frankly wise and pleasantly sophisticated. Officially born last fall amid an atmosphere charged equally with high hopes and pessimism, it emerges on its first anniversary much more self-confident and tasteful. The American couture and the designers who create it have lost much of the uncertain groping which arose from their intense desire to assume world leadership in fashion. Gone are last season's unwearable "show pieces" to be replaced by luxurious, lavish clothes which can and will be worn by the best dressed women. As New York devotes this week to the showings of its uptown fashion houses—the "big names" in the world of style—it would seem that a new era of elegance is upon us.

Certainly no Paris opening could have been filled with more dazzling clothes than were seen in the two-and-one-half-hour showing presented by Bergdorf Goodman last night. It would be impossible to define certain trends from this group of clothes, so varied are they in silhouette and treatment, but it is important to say that it has been years since the fashion world beheld more flattering styles, richness of materials and unusual treatments. Included were daytime suits with boxy, fur-lined top-coats, a two-piece suit with cuffs and tuxedo collar of ermine, a beige dress with collar and cuffs of mink, a black wool and velvet suit with ermine jabot and, best perhaps of all, the simple, beautifully tailored "little black dress" enhanced this year with tiny forward tilted hats or those set far back on the head, with spools or other back interest.

Reminiscence of the Victorians were jacket dresses with peplum and hem edged in beaver, worn with tiny beaver muff and hat. Skirts in most of the daytime models tended toward fullness, some with side draping. Despite much talk of softer shoulders and deeper armholes, these were modified, but to be almost unnoticeable. Very much in evidence, however, were such 19th century trends as the coachman's collar, the jacket dipping in back, the suit with bottle green jacket, sulphur colored waist and fawn skirt.

Definitely breath-taking was Bergdorf Goodman's display of evening modes shown with exquisite jewelry, including, of all things, a solid gold evening "helmet." Also shown were rings, which appeared on sleeves, skirts, shoulders—almost anywhere. The gowns, ranging from covered up dinner types to the most revealing evening styles, particularly stressed a low V neckline which in many cases looked almost unweareable. Slender sheaths with daringly slit skirts, figure-revealing gowns with tiny straps, were worn with long mitts, often in taffeta or lace to match the dresses. An exquisiteness of detail was obvious throughout, with a new, flattering bodice drape worked in both day and evening modes. Orate but tasteful detailing appeared in the form of tiny pastel beads in flower design, almost covering the front of a black crepe gown, or heavy pearl embroidery placed at the bodice of a black velvet dress and repeated again in great clunky designs at the hem. The "harem type" skirt looks important for winter wear, best done in black or pastel taffeta. Also outstanding are sheaths of lame which reveal even one extra pound, and dresses of gold cloth which may be worn with a shawl of gold and turquoise.

Furs included such delicacies as ermine jackets with wide, turned back cuffs and full length capes of platinum fox. Casually introduced was a huge silver fox scarf wrapped twice around the arm. It corresponds with the wide hem of silver fox on a black dinner gown.

Yesterday afternoon, the fashion press viewed the fall collection of Jay-Thorpe, which is undoubtedly to have its effect on clothes for the coming season. They emphasized straight, slim skirts, some of them so narrow that they would seem to restrict freedom of movement. Long, straight sleeves in both day and evening clothes appeared throughout, while the two-piece dress, apparently the darling of this house's designers, was the most favored silhouette, frequently utilizing a combination of materials such as wool and velvet. Jackets are long and fitted, slim skirts often accented with vertical bands of contrasting material. For example, bands of Persian lamb appeared on a wool suit, velvet bands on

Psychologists Plan Study for Rehousing Effect on Families

U. S. Calls on Experts To Make Comprehensive Survey of Projects

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Writer.
 CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The greatest human laboratory in the United States, the Federal rehousing in the lower economic third, was opened to American psychologists today for scientific work.
 The aim is to find out how much good has been done, the drawbacks, improvements in methods, and effects whether good or ill on other parts of the American community.
 The call to the psychologists, 2,000 of whom are meeting at Northwestern University this week, was made by J. B. Maller, chief of social research, United States Housing Authority, Washington. In his absence S. C. Menefee, Washington, laid the plan before the American Association for Applied Psychology, and heard suggestions about what can be done.

Rare Human Laboratory.
 This is one of the rarest human laboratories ever offered to science, the scholars said, because for every 500 families who obtained better housing in each area, there are at least as many of precisely the same status even to numbers of children, who failed.
 The two groups can be compared, and gains measured with unusual accuracy. Things to be studied include the effect of the better homes on delinquent children, on personality changes, and what is done with the extra money that comes from lower rents in these project homes.

One of the psychologists cited his experience with new apartments, where he said there was attractive architectural decoration and places for overstuffed chairs, but no where to study or write.
 It was proposed to find out how businessmen in the neighborhoods are affected, the influence on real estate, on neighbors, and whether there are changes in the outlook of the rehoused families themselves.

Mixing of Social Strata.
 Influence of better housing on morale in national defense was another proposal for scientific analysis. What happens, the psychologists asked, to families who are moved out of slums, during the interval before they can come back to better, cheaper quarters?
 A mixing of social strata on an unprecedented scale was pointed out in those areas where the rehousing has been taken over by two groups, one from slums, which stepped upward, and the other, formerly well-to-do, which had lost everything and thus stepped down.
 Housing authority is building, with co-operation of local officials, 193,000 units, of which one-third is complete, one-third is building and one-third contemplated.
 Before and after studies in one such case already have started in Denver.
