

Priority 'Inflation' Is Making Ratings Of Little Value

730,000 Issued Already On 300 Items; 7,000 Applications Weekly

By JAMES FREE. Inflation has set in in the defense priorities system.

So many preference ratings have been issued, and so many more have been applied for, that the value of priority certificates has been lowered.

More than 700,000 priority ratings extensions have been issued by the Army and Navy Joint Munitions Board on orders involving some 300 items on its "critical list."

At this reason Donald M. Nelson, director of priorities, already has begun a change in the prevailing method of assuring supplies of scarce materials to defense and essential civilian industries.

The trend is toward the Government-through the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board—assuming control of scarce materials at the plants whose output is considered more essential.

Advantages of the rationing or allocation method are two-fold. It permits more complete regulation of supplies.

Pass On Orders Received. Allocation by industry is not new. It was tried in latter stages of the World War, and it is now in effect in several industries.

In the case of industries or plants engaged in non-defense work, tentative plans call for distribution of scarce materials according to a base year calculation.

Adoption of an allocation system would be perhaps more severe on civilian industry than the priority rating plan.

Windsors (Continued From First Page.) tie and a light gray shirt. The Duchess had on a blue beanie, or skull cap, with a veil that dropped just over her eyes.

The Duchess had remained at the Embassy to greet several friends while the Duke visited the Commerce and State Departments.

Best view of the speeding entourage was gained by several hundred colored school children in a playground near the park entrance.

jumped up and down and waved as the motor cycles and limousines passed. The Duke and Duchess walked quickly up the long flight of stairs to the rotunda level where several thousand spectators had gathered behind ropes.

They were greeted by a roar that notified those waiting outside the station that the Duke and Duchess were on their way. A rumor had spread through the crowd earlier that the Windsors would breakfast on the train and many of the early risers feared they might have to leave for work without a glimpse of them.

On their way to breakfast at the Embassy, the Windsors were preceded by a corps of six motorcycle police and followed by an automobile full of detectives. Several hundred spectators had gathered at the Embassy, including some Embassy employees who had not been informed whether or not they would be given an official opportunity to see the ducal couple and lingered outside the Embassy.

The Duke planned to confer this afternoon with Director James J. McEntee of the Civilian Conservation Corps at the C. C. C. administrative offices in the Otis Building, 810 Eighteenth street N.W.

Embassy Dinner Tonight. Later in the afternoon with guests drawn exclusively from the official lists and limited to about 25 will be held this evening. No reception is planned and the dinner probably will not break up before 11 p.m.

Step Into Limousine. Probably a majority of the crowd outside caught scarcely a glimpse of the couple before they stepped from the shadow of the massive station archways into their limousine, an American-built Embassy car bearing the English seal and crown on its radiator cap.

Both were smiling. Beside crisp "howdy-dos," they occasionally chatted for a few minutes with the men as they were introduced. Then they strolled along the platform, the Duke in the lead.

When he saw he was somewhat ahead of the crowd, he scurried to one side to walk with Sir Ronald. The Duchess followed with Chief of Protocol Summerlin, ranking State Department official at the station.

Among the other greeters on the platform were Stanley Woodward, assistant chief of protocol, F. R. Hoyer, Military first secretary of the Embassy; Sir Anthony Rumbold, second secretary; Col. Rex Benson, Assistant Military Attaché at the Embassy, and several other Attaches. None of them wore formal clothes.

ministration authority to carry on an undeclared war." Senator Taft foresaw a knock-down-and-drag-out battle in the Senate against any repeal attempt.

Wadsworth Hopes for Action. However, Representative Wadsworth, Republican, of New York believed that the House was ready to repeal or modify the law, and he voiced the hope that it would be "wiped off the statute books."

Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which must first pass on any question of repeal or modification, also declared he believed that the House should be able to sail the high seas to any port in the world.

Senator Connally predicted last night that the Neutrality Act "will be amended in important respects" and that it might well be repealed in its entirety if it did not contain some desirable provisions, including that providing Government control over exports of war weapons and munitions.

Arming Called Desirable. Senator Connally also termed the arming of American merchantmen a "desirable" and said he would sponsor an amendment authorizing such action. He added that he felt sure Congress would approve it, and Speaker Rayburn said he thought the House would act favorably on such a measure.

Mr. Rayburn told his press conference yesterday that "a lot of fighting and scratching around" might be involved in the process. He added that modification of the Neutrality Act in general, the Speaker remarked: "There's not much left after you take the arming of merchant ships out of it."

Final Decision Doubtful. That a final administration decision had been reached appeared doubtful, however, for it was learned that the State Department is now engaged in a comprehensive study of the act.

Neutrality (Continued From First Page.) proached the car left fingerprints on the doors, police believe, and photographs were taken within a few minutes after the holdup. Mr. Duckett said that the boys were on their way to deliver the Sanitary Commission pay roll, which is made up this time every month, and to take the remainder of the money to the bank's branch in Mount Rainier, and for deposit in Washington.

Some of the cash was in bills of large denomination up to $1,000, he said, and some of the money might be traced should the bandits attempt to exchange them for bills of smaller denomination in this vicinity. There also was a large number of small bills and considerable coin. After the holdup, another pay roll was sent over to the Sanitary Commission so that there would be no hitch in paying off employees today and tomorrow.

The entire action took place in only two or three minutes and within a block and a half of the heavily traveled Baltimore boulevard, jammed at the morning rush hour.

Deliveries Emphasized. "Instead of sitting over here and talking about 'danger zones' in European waters," this official declared, "we should create 'safety zones' with our fleet and deliver the supplies that will insure the wiping out of the Nazi menace that threatens to strike us next."

Senator Taft expressed the view that any major change in the Neutrality Act should be coupled with the issue of sending ships into the presently defined combat areas. "I think it would be better to fight out the whole issue of neutrality repeal at one time," the Ohio Senator declared.

He said that Senators opposing administration foreign policy probably will ignore the week to decide on their strategy against any change in the Neutrality Act. The group frequently confers in the office of Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Maneuvers Retute Theory U. S. Youth Has 'Gone Soft'

Prove Stamina in Gruelling Marches, Combat Duties And Hospital Records

By JOHN H. CLINE, Star Staff Correspondent. LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 25.—A visit to the Army maneuvers should prove to be an instructive experience for those swivel-chair experts on physical culture who fear that American youth has "gone soft."

There is nothing soft, physically or otherwise, about the swivel-chair experts who make up the 3d Army today. These youngsters, to put it bluntly, are tough—very tough.

When they were brought into the Federal service anywhere from nine months to a year ago many of them were below par physically but they are a changed outfit today—healthier, stronger, harder—and they can "take it."

Stamina Proved. Some of the outfits have proved their durability by long, hard vigils at some remote Army bases.

Behave Like Veterans. During the first phase of the maneuver, the total advance of the 38th Division was greater than that of any other division.

Capture of Kiev Typical of German Offensive Strategy

By MORGAN BEATTY. The victory at Kiev is a perfect example of German military strategy against a foe required to defend his position along a vast line.

The German theme is strike hard at separate points—first all along the line, and follow through wherever a break occurs.

Under sledge-hammer blows of that type the defense must move back or get caught in pockets, for the German offensive forces move like fingers for four or five defense positions.

Since 1934 the German general staff has been experimenting with grouping armed forces to find out how to put maximum punch into spearheads.

Contrary to daily communiques, the heaviest thrust in the daily assault on Kiev, the secondary assault on Kiev, the Desna Valley drive, the Ichnya thrust, the Cherkasi river crossing and the Pereyslav drive.

Meantime the main drives against Konotop were pressed to the limit. So was another drive to the north—against Bryansk, to keep the Russians from filtering in and spoiling the triangle trap set for Kiev.

Next, Kremenchug and Konotop began to show signs of cracking. Then Cherkasi. The Pereyslav drive apparently failed to develop full pressure, so it was left to founder.

As strength was diverted to the Cherkasi-Desna River valley drive, the movement gained the attention of the German high command.

Followed Railroad to Kiev. The Desna columns apparently followed the railroad to Kiev, and apparently took the river crossing into the city from the east, co-operating with the forces on the west bank of the Dnieper.

How much of this or that ingredient goes into their recipe. They can—and do—tell any military man who wants to know that they group their army strength into units composed of motorcycles, armored cars, tanks, infantry, anti-tank guns, machine-guns, anti-aircraft guns, field artillery (75 and 105 millimeter field guns), engineers and signal troops.

Depends on Circumstances. The percentage of each of these ingredients depends on the ground, the defenses in front of them and where they want to go.

Third Army Strikes North in New Phase Of Louisiana Games

Lear's Forces Withdraw Along 100-Mile Front To New Positions

WITH 2d ARMY, Sept. 25.—Lt. Gen. Ben Lear's 2d Army withdrew its 110,000 men several miles along a 100-mile front today to prepared positions, as the 3d Army struck powerful thrusts northward in the opening blows of the second phase of the Louisiana war games.

Columns of trucks, some in black-out, moved northward all night. Thousands of infantrymen tramped on foot through the dark.

The strategy was comparable to that of a fast, ring-wise boxer stepping away from his heavier opponent's knockout punches and preparing himself for a sudden spring-back while his larger, slower foe is off balance.

Outposts Cover Retreat.

With Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger sending his numerically superior 3d Army forces from concentrations in South Louisiana, outposts of the 2d Army acted as buffers along the wide front to protect the strategic withdrawal.

To delay the advance of the 3d Army's 245,000 men, Gen. Lear ordered the Red River bridge at Clarence, La., "destroyed" and pontoon crossings at Camp and Lake End, La., removed during the night.

Strategic highway bridges along roads across the entire front were destroyed in the wake of the withdrawal.

The major worry of Gen. Lear's intelligence unit was to keep track of the team movement of the 2d Armored and 2d Infantry Divisions. Such a combination indicated an attempt to penetrate the 2d Army line with mechanized forces so that infantry and artillery could break through.

Move Secretly.

Equally secretive was the 2d Army's movements of its armored, cavalry, two streamlined triangular and three 19,000-man square divisions, which gave Gen. Lear a faster moving force than that of Gen. Krueger.

To meet any sudden moves vast reserves were in readiness behind the 2d Army's front line, spread out at strategic points so as not to weaken the advance shock forces.

800 Storm-Bound Planes Released to Seek Enemy

WITH 3d ARMY, Sept. 25 (AP)—Orders for dawn attacks signaled the renewal of the lightning war in the Louisiana maneuvers today.

Grounded by storm winds and poor visibility at the opening of the final week of the field exercises, almost 800 planes of the 2d and 3d Armies were released to seek out the enemy from Shreveport, in North Louisiana, to Lake Charles, La., to the south.

Already land patrols of both armies had clashed, seeking the main bodies of troops and testing their strength for the development of a "battle" line almost 100 miles long across the central part of the State.

Second Defends Shreveport.

The 2d Army, commanded by Lt. Gen. Ben Lear, has the mission of defending Shreveport against Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's larger 3d Army advancing from the south and spread eastward from Texas.

Both commanders apparently held back their armored divisions until the war games developed to a point for a decisive blow.

First, armored scout cars of cavalry regiments shot out into the 100-mile strip that separated the armies, to reach the enemy quickly, and as soon as possible determine the type and strength of the opposition immediately ahead.

Meanwhile, slow but powerful infantry divisions moved forward, each a force of 15,000 to 22,000 men, to hold fast if it met stronger opposition or fight its way through lighter resistance.

Patrols Hold Boyce.

The 2d Army apparently jumped off from south of the Red River between Shreveport and Alexandria, La. Meanwhile, cavalry patrols of the 3d Army soon reached Boyce, La., northwest of Alexandria, and seemed in excellent position to hold that town as an anchor for a great staff-arm swing southwest.

Once the 10 division of the 3d Army and the seven of the 2d were locked in the simulated war it appeared that both sides would let loose their armored forces for the finish fight. The battle might last the week out.

Reds Report Battle At Leningrad Turns In Their Favor

Counterattacks Against Besiegers on Several Sectors Reported

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—The Red Army declared today the tide of the first battle of Leningrad has begun to swing in its favor and reported counterattacks against German besiegers in greater number and strength on several sectors.

German reinforcements are constantly arriving to fill the gaps left by enormous losses, declared the army newspaper, Red Star, "but Red Army fighters and armed Lenin graduates are dealing blows in various directions. Here and there the German Army already is unable to resist our pressure."

(A few German tanks succeeded in penetrating the Soviet first line of defense at Leningrad in a strong infantry and tank attack yesterday, but were thrown back with heavy losses, the Moscow radio was heard in London to announce today.)

A Red Star war bulletin also reported a Soviet counterattack in the Gornel region, on the central front, where Russian forces are taking the offensive apparently to try to lessen German pressure on the Baltic and Black Sea flanks.

Four More Warship Launchings to Set Record for Navy

New Destroyers to Bring September Tonnage to Total Never Equaled

By the Associated Press.

The Navy hit its fastest ship-building pace since World War days this week with a program of six warship launchings in five days.

The new men-of-war—the battleship Massachusetts and five destroyers—brought to 10 the total floated in the month, the best monthly performance since the start of the two-ocean construction program.

Launching of the destroyers Cowie and Knight at the Boston Navy Yard will climax the week's record performance. The destroyers Rodman and Hambleton will hit the water at Kearny, N. J., tomorrow.

The destroyer Macomb was launched at Bath, Me., Tuesday as a smaller echo of the 35,000-ton splash made that day by the Massachusetts, fourth battleship floated of the 17 being built to make this country defensively impregnable in the Atlantic and Pacific simultaneously.

Berlin

The Germans faced tank charges by the Russians.

The air force there also was active in patrol over a wide region. It was reported to have sunk a freighter on Lake Ladoga, north of Leningrad, and to have dispersed troop concentrations in the Leningrad area with "bloodiest" losses to the Russians.

A German commentator claimed that dive bombers and heavy artillery had subdued some Russian batteries at Leningrad, but said "the fight continues, extraordinarily bitter and severe."

Soviet naval craft recently reported by the Germans to have been bombed in the Gulf of Finland, including the battleship October Revolution, were said to be definitely out of the picture of Leningrad's defense now. Another Russian submarine hit a mine and sank, D.N.B. reported.

ing a lot of people to make sacrifices, especially those whom we are asking to leave their business and homes to go into the Army and Navy at a dollar a day.

"If we ask them to do that, I think everybody else ought to be willing to do as much."

Asked whether the President had endorsed the idea, Mr. Morgenthau reminded reporters that he never answers such questions.

One inquirer wanted to know whether the Secretary thought industry would co-operate with the defense program under such a profit limitation.

Mr. Morgenthau replied: "I have sufficient confidence in industry and I think they are as patriotic as any one else. The answer is yes."

Il Duce Greeted All Gibraltar 'Suicide Raiders'

ROME, Sept. 25.—Officers and sailors who took part in a raid three nights ago on the inner port of Gibraltar were received today by Premier Mussolini, and a communiqué said all of them were there.

The Italian high command has announced that three supply vessels "assault boats" which sped through the formidable port defenses, and a fourth ship was driven aground and probably lost. (The British said the Italians sank only a "hulk.")

(The statement that all the participants were present to hear Il Duce's eulogy is surprising. Such raids are considered almost suicidal. An "indispensable minimum"—presumably one man to each boat—guides the tiny torpedo craft toward the target, and a return trip is considered next to impossible.)

The communiqué said that "Il Duce received all the officers and sailors who took part in the attack, addressing to them words of admiration and eulogy, interpreting the feelings of the Italian people."

L'Enfant Map Is Introduced In Special Parking Test Case

Documents and maps, including one of the L'Enfant plan of 1791, were introduced in evidence yesterday in traffic branch of Police Court in test cases regarding the validity of the Government's right to restrict parking on West Executive avenue to individuals who hold special permits.

The various documents were offered yesterday before Judge Hobart Newman, who had a record made of the material offered in evidence and continued the case indefinitely to permit the Government and defense to submit memoranda in the form of arguments on the legal exhibits and the law.

The Government, through Assistant Corporation Counsel Glen

A. Wilkinson, contends that West Executive avenue is Federal property and the Government therefore has authority to restrict parking. In this connection he produced maps of 1861 and 1894 to support a claim that the area is officially the President's park and therefore Federal property.

Photostat of Map Ordered.

The defense, represented by Attorney James R. Kirkland, claims the avenue is a public highway and therefore the Government has no right to discriminate in parking.

Mr. Kirkland offered in evidence the L'Enfant map, among others, with an idea to prove his point that the avenue has become a public highway. The L'Enfant plan map and others were brought over from the National Archives by P. M. Hamer, chief of the Division of Reference there. Judge Newman, in return, requested that photostatic validity or force of effect in law." The Government offered in evidence a letter from Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks, to George E. Kneipp, manager of the Washington and Baltimore areas of the Keystone Automobile Club, expressing the belief that the Government does have authority to restrict parking on the avenue.

Louis F. Frick, attorney from the Park Police office, is assisting the Government with the cases.

At one point during yesterday's hearing, Mr. Hamer, upon being questioned, said it was not for him to say whether any one of the maps was an official map of the District.

The cases against the three men had been continued until yesterday for a hearing.

25 Ships Released For Service as Strike Of Seamen Ends

Consair Dispute Goes To Mediation Board; Settlement Expected

By the Associated Press.

A seamen's strike for higher war bonuses has been ended by an agreement to negotiate the dispute between the sailors and owners before the National Defense Mediation Board.

The decision, reached yesterday, released for immediate service 25 ships needed for transporting defense materials and lease-lend supplies. On Monday a conference here will try to adjust the dispute which involves the mariners' demands for a war bonus of $60 a month for voyages to West Indian waters.

Ships had been tied up by the strike in seven harbors on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts.

Dispute Goes to Board.

The Mediation Board took jurisdiction in another dispute of vast importance to the national defense effort—the threat of a strike by 22,000 A. F. of L. mechanics in the Consolidated Aircraft Co. plant at San Diego, Calif., which holds huge orders for bombers. While 98.8 per cent of the union membership were reported to have voted in favor of a strike, spokesmen for both the union and management appeared confident that the differences could be adjusted without an actual walk-out.

The union has demanded a blanket 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. The company's counteroffer called for a 5-cent raise and an increase in beginners' scales from 55-65 cents an hour to 60-75 cents.

In the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania about 1,400 of 20,000 striking C. I. O. United Mine Workers returned to work yesterday after walking out several days ago in protest to an increase in union dues and assessments. Forty anthracite mines in the Hazleton, Pa., area, remained closed, however.

Operations Blocked Anew.

Approximately 500 picketing hard coal miners roared through the Southern anthracite area again today, blocking anew all attempts to operate any of the 42 collieries that have been shut down two weeks.

Two collieries near here reopened yesterday, but early today the pickets rolled up in 100 cars and locked the gates. No workers attempted to enter. There was no disorder. Assured that the operation would remain closed, the caravan then moved on to check up on other mines.

A mass meeting is expected to be called soon to receive a rejection by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, of their terms for ending the walkout, which is keeping 22,000 workers idle.

On another front the A. F. of L. Pittsburgh Building Trades Council called off a 14-day strike on construction of the $5,000,000 Curtiss-Wright propeller plant at Beaver, Pa., and ordered 200 craftsmen to return to work today.

In Pittsburgh the three-day strike of 159 truck drivers employed by the city Bureau of Highways and Sewers has ended, with strikers returning to work under an agreement City Council will consider their demands for wage increases.

Celanease Parley.

Labor Department conciliation officials met here with union and company officials in an effort to reach an agreement on demands of a C. I. O. textile workers union for wage increases for employees of Celanease Corp., Cumberland, Md.

The union also seeks a union shop. Labor Department officials said they would not make public the present wage rates and the increases sought.

Today was the first joint meeting with the company and union representatives. Previously, labor conciliators had met separately with representatives of both sides.

Individual Pictured as Part Of Great 'Cosmic Animal'

Single Brain Contributing to Composite Mind Discussed at Science Session

By THOMAS R. HENRY, Star Staff Correspondent.
CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Sober scientists talked here yesterday about "the cosmic animal," discussing the possibility of its existence as super-intelligent microbes might discuss the possibility of the existence of man.

The entire universe, said Dr. Charles Hartshorne, associate professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago, in a paper presented before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, may be a unified, living organism, with a mind composed of the minds of all living individuals.

There is a biological certainty of a future world state integrated in a way similar to that in which parts of the human body are integrated, said Dr. Ralph W. Gerard of the same institution.

Each a Brain Cell.
Dr. Hartshorne pictured a world mind, in which every individual is a sort of brain cell.

"Just as between a brain cell and the human mind there is no further mechanism," he said, "so between every individual in existence and the world mind there is no chain of intermediaries, not even a nervous system, but each and every one is in the direct grip of the world value."

"After all, the higher the organism the larger the part taken by the gray matter. The highest organism must therefore be able to use its entire body as its gray matter. What, you may ask, would the cosmic organism be doing? The answer, of course, is that the purpose of the organism would be the prosperity of the parts and of the whole."

"But is the cosmic genuinely and organically unified? Let us recall that nothing happens anywhere but its effects are communicated with the speed of light in all directions. Any group, short of the universe, can break up, fall to pieces, in all sorts of ways and degrees. But from the universe there is nowhere to go. It is the only aggregate which is entirely its own foundation."

"This conception of the ultimate, or cosmic organism, is the remedy for two great errors of political thought—abstract individualism and abstract collectivism. Neither the human individual nor any human class, race or group is an absolute end, but only that whole in which men and nations and all existences have their place and value. We are members one of another because we are members of one ultimate body—mind—one inclusive, unborn and imperishable organism."

Dr. Gerard, on the other hand, saw the world "epi-organism" as in the process of evolution rather than as already existing.

Parts Subordinated.
"There will also be continued conflicts between the selfish and unselfish drives of individuals as evolution toward to epi-organism advances faster than the human nature which underlies it," he said.

"In the evolution of organism and the barrow terror into a milk sop. Something of the sort actually has been done in the psychological laboratory of the University of Chicago, it was reported by Dr. Warder C. Allee.

It is accomplished, Dr. Allee said, through the process of conditioning, dear to the hearts of progressive educators.

First he had three strains of mice that apparently inherited their fighting tendencies. One was a race of black animals that would fight at the drop of a hat. A strain of white mice was pacifistic and would take anything rather than show resistance. An intermediate brown strain could fight very well but was slow to start.

He took the toughest of his white mice, which could beat every one of his cage mates, and put him with the fighting blacks. He was badly beaten up. When returned to his fellow white animals, he had become the most subdued of the lot. All the fighting spirit had been beaten out of him.

Then Dr. Allee took the most pacifistic of his brown mice, a timid animal. Passive white mice were placed in his cage. He had never before made an attack but now, in the presence of his mate, he threatened and fought off the very mild invaders.

"He was made to encounter several low-ranking whites daily in the fighting cage," reported Dr. Allee, "and as a result of the total build-up he became definitely aggressive."

How Colds Are Caught.
A chill, a cold, an attack of flu often are followed by pneumonia. Yet pneumonia is due to the invasion of the lungs by bacteria. They have nothing to do with the temperature or the germs of colds or flu.

The relations between these seemingly contradictory phenomena were described today by Dr. Oswald H. Robertson, professor of medicine at the University of Chicago.

Before there can be pneumonia it is necessary for the germs to get into the lungs. They ordinarily cannot be breathed in because they are stopped in the bronchial passages. They must get in by "swallowing the wrong way."

Nature provides a safety valve, the epiglottis to prevent this. It is closed most of the time so that no liquid can get through into the lungs.

The recent experiments, Dr. Robertson said, show that when the surface of the body is chilled the thin plate of cartilage which constitutes the valve tends to shrink so that drops of liquid can seep past it. Large numbers of bacteria, including some of those responsible for pneumonia, are always present in the normal throat, he said, and the number is vastly increased during a cold or flu attack. Hence any liquid from the throat seeping into the lungs is likely to cause pneumonia.

French Report British Attack Somaliland

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Sept. 25.—The Jibuti radio charged today that the British were carrying out systematic attacks on French Somaliland by both land and sea. In the land attack, it was stated that two sections of British regulars, supported by flanking detachments, attacked the French frontier post of Assamo, forcing the French to withdraw to a hill position. The radio also charged that British warships have been seizing and sinking small French boats off Jibuti, machine-gunning some of them.

Shortages Don't Exist In Defense Materials, Auto Spokesman Says

'Fear' Is Held to Blame; Army and Navy Accused of Hoarding Goods

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Sept. 25.—Assertions that shortages of essential defense materials do not exist brought automobile industry spokesmen today in conflict with Government authorities directing the Nation's defense program.

From Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corp., which holds millions of dollars' worth of defense orders, came the charge that allocation of priorities far ahead of actual need had made necessary the decrease in production of consumer goods.

"You create a shortage," he declared, "when you create a fear of shortage."

Testifying before a congressional committee inquiring into defense migration and defense production, Mr. Wilson also said that more defense work was needed by the automobile industry if unemployment is to be minimized in the change-over from civilian to defense production.

The committee was to conclude its three-day hearing today with testimony of representatives of the Office of Price Administration and the labor division of the Office of Production Management.

Mr. Wilson said one flaw in the defense setup was the flow of materials that permits some persons to obtain priorities that "will not be in use for months."

Asked by Chairman Tolson what he proposed to do about it, Mr. Wilson replied:

"I suggest a study of the flow of materials. It is human nature for manufacturers to try not to be caught short and you create a shortage when you create a fear of shortage."

C. C. Carleton, president of the Automotive Parts and Equipment Manufacturers' Association, accused the Army and Navy of hoarding materials.

He testified he had "stood in the shoes of C. P. M. and heard Army and Navy officials demand priorities on materials that they don't want to use until 1942."

Raps "People in Washington." In his testimony Mr. Wilson said General Motors, with 8 per cent of the Nation's productive capacity, is utilizing only a small percentage of it in defense work "because of the prejudice against big business in Washington."

"If the Government had to give General Motors its proportionate share of defense orders," he said, "it would sound so big in dollars the people in Washington would be afraid of it."

"That is our feeling. There it is, gentlemen—and I have been wanting to say it for a long time."

Responding to questions, the General Motors president said automobile production quotas imposed by the Government were neither necessary nor anticipated. About 90,000 auto workers, he estimated, would be idle by mid-December because of the curtailment.

Spokesmen for the Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. agreed with Mr. Wilson that new defense contracts were needed to absorb unemployment. Officials of Packard and Hudson companies, however, said work on hand would provide for their displaced employees.

Postwar Slump Held Unnecessary. Asked what his company expected to do with new plants after the emergency is over, Mr. Wilson answered:

"We feel that when the time comes there will be enough accumulated demand for consumer goods to permit us to make use of the plant facilities."

He added that inflation and depression could be avoided following the defense slack if individuals do not go into debt and if "the ground rules of business are not so changed we do not know how to proceed."

Mr. Wilson took issue with earlier testimony of R. J. Thomas, president of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers, that the automobile industry had refused to accelerate defense production.

"There is a good deal of lack of understanding of how much automobile production machinery can be converted into defense use," he said. "Machine tools are highly specialized. Perhaps 15 per cent of them at most could be used for defense jobs, and that 15 per cent is of the type of machines most easily obtained."

Auto Price Inflation May Impose Ceiling, Dealers Are Warned

Washington automobile dealers, facing a serious curtailment of their business because of the cut in new car production, last night were told by an official of the Office of Price Administration to "sharpen their pencils as never before" to realize a legitimate profit, but not to inflate, under penalty of having a price ceiling set.

Cyrus McCormick, chief of the Automobile and Truck Price Section of the Office of Price Administration, brought the advice to some 200 members of the Washington Automobile Trade Association meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Facing a group of admittedly concerned businessmen who will have next year only one new car to sell when normally they would have two, Mr. McCormick said that "foolish" practices of the past would have to be discontinued by the dealers, and trades for used cars would have to be made on a sounder basis.

"But there must be no inflation," he warned, "for automobiles will set the fashion for every other piece of merchandise in the country, and everything from iceboxes to women's hats will follow suit if the automotive industry tends toward inflation."

Some special method, he admitted, might have to be devised to protect the sound dealer from the "gyp" who will continue to offer the public inferior used cars.

Defends Henderson.

Mr. McCormick praised Leon Henderson, chief of the price office, as the "sanest man in this whole mess" and defended him against charges of being a Communist.

"If Leon Henderson is a Communist, my name is Joe Stalin," said the speaker.

Mr. Henderson has a bad "press" and really needs a good press agent, Mr. McCormick continued. But being the price administrator is probably going to make him "the most unpopular man in America, anyway," Mr. McCormick added.

Trade Group Advises Granting Virginia Control of Airport

Reaffirms 1940 Stand Against Incorporation Of Tract in District

A special subcommittee of the Board of Trade of Virginia... Meeting with its chairman, Jo V. Morgan, the district's one-man Board of Tax Appeals, late yesterday, the subcommittee expressed its opposition to legislation to incorporate the airport in the District and indorsed the Randolph bill to place the boundary between the District and Virginia at the present high-water mark on the Virginia shore.

The subcommittee's recommendations were forwarded to the Aviation Committee, which is expected to act on the proposals at an early date. William P. McCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce, is the committee's chairman.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who previously had urged the Board of Trade to reaffirm the position taken last year, told the airport subcommittee yesterday that it would be illogical to bite off a small piece of Virginia to straighten out the airport's jurisdiction.

Mr. Settle declared that Virginia officials were willing to agree to joint supervision of the airport but were against ceding any territory to the District.

The subcommittee was informed by a spokesman for one of the airlines at a meeting last week that the jurisdictional conflict between the District and Virginia over the airport had placed the airlines in a difficult position from the operating point of view. He said the lines serving the air field face 14 "conflicting" taxes under the present setup.

School Officials Find Jobs Are Accounting For 'Lost' Pupils

6,907 Work Permits Granted in Year, Over Twice 1939-40 Figure

School officials were feeling better today after a study revealed where many of their "lost" pupils had gone. After making careful plans for an expected congestion in the system, they were frankly "shocked" when both opening and second-day registrations were substantially below those of a year ago.

Mr. Bristor said one vocational school alone reported more than 100 students employed and probably not returning to classes.

He added that there might easily be 800 to 1,000 students over 18 years old who ordinarily would have returned to high schools, but who have accepted employment instead.

After questioning several school principals, Mr. Bristor said he found other pupils were still on vacation, some were sick and still others were being kept at home by parents for fear of infantile paralysis.

Announcing he was going to make a further study of the employment problem as it affected school enrollment, especially in vocational schools, the statistician, nevertheless, predicted that many of the boys and girls would be trickling back into classes, and that enrollment would eventually work out as predicted—an increase over last year of about 3,400.

In their predictions of congestion in the Anacostia-Benning section, where many new housing developments have been opened for both white and colored, school officials were more accurate. Yesterday 10,479 were registered in 15 schools in the area, against 8,826 at the same time last year.

Mystery Slaying Probed After Gruesome Find At Dump Site

The decapitated body of a 33-year-old man, thrice convicted of crimes in the District, was found yesterday on a dump pile in Pittsburgh, the Associated Press reported.

Detestatives said they believed the man, Wallace Lloyd Brown, was killed about midnight Tuesday. He was released on parole January 11 after serving part of a sentence in prison for larceny and for stolen goods. Police said Brown had lived in Pittsburgh several years and had worked at odd jobs since his latest release from prison.

Texas Society Donates Longhorn to D. C. Zoo

A real, rip-roaring Texas longhorn, with a spread of almost three yards between the tips of his horns, has been roped by cowboys in his native mesquite and sage fields and soon will be on his way to the local zoo.

Announcement of the donation was made yesterday by Representative Patman of Texas, president of the Texas State Society here, which will present the wild animal to the zoo.

The longhorn is 12 years old and weighs 1,200 pounds. Zoo Director William M. Mann was enthusiastic over the prospect of receiving this addition to the Zoo's extensive collection of wild cattle from all parts of the world.

Mr. Patman visited the Zoo today to look over the quarters which will be provided for the newcomer.

Two Pennsylvania Sisters Near Death After Attack

By the Associated Press
MEDIA, Pa., Sept. 25.—Brutal beating of two elderly sisters brought on a manhunt today personally directed by District Attorney William B. McClanahan.

Investigators picked up a lighted cigarette within a few feet of where the women were battered into unconsciousness, prompting McClanahan to express belief the attacker just missed being caught at his deed.

Carpenter Earl Thomas said he heard moans while working at his home last night and found Miss Belle Geary, 80, and Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, 78, lying in the yard of their home where they lived alone.

Physicians termed Mrs. Watson's condition critical. She was beaten about the face and her nose broken while Miss Geary was clubbed about the head. The attack marked the eighth such crime in this community within two years.

Superhighway Urged As Serving Federal Plants in Arlington

$4,000,000 Road From D. C. to South Would Fill Only Gap in Radials

The proposed $4,000,000 superhighway from Washington to the South, plans for which were revealed yesterday by the Virginia State Highway Department, would fill the only gap in the system of radial roads serving the Capital area.

Mr. Nolen said it would about bisect territory south of Washington between U. S. Route 1 and Lee boulevard, adding that this was the only area not now served by a radial highway. He pointed out that this was one reason why the planning commission has urged construction of such a road for a number of years.

Severe Drought Grips East and Southeast; Reservoirs Run Low

Maryland and Virginia Truck Suffers, Though Staples Are Harvested

By W. H. SHIPPEN.
One of the worst fall droughts since the parched months of 1930 is developing throughout most of the East and Southeast, with pasture lands turning brown, water running low in reservoirs, power dams and rivers, and fall grain fields baking too hard for the plow under a bright sun.

J. B. Kincer, chief of the Weather Bureau's Division of Climate and Crop Weather, admitted the situation would be serious unless general rains come soon, but pointed out the damage can scarcely be as heavy as in 1930 because the main staple crops already have been made in the affected areas.

However, the levels of storage water behind the hydro-electric power dams of the Southeast are falling toward a point which alarmed industrialists in that section last spring before the rains of June and July saved the situation.

New England Hit.
In New England, the Weather Bureau reports, the drought is seriously reducing industrial and water supplies and parched forests are presenting an increasing fire hazard, except in the extreme North.

On the other hand, harvesting was progressing rapidly with the aid of almost continuous sunshine.

Farmers in Northern New York were scanning the skies in hope of rain before sowing wheat. Pastures were very poor and getting worse, but apple picking was in full swing and the good weather aided the collection of other crops.

Late crops in New Jersey were being badly damaged by the drought with pastures and meadows turning brown and moisture along the stream beds drying up.

Likewise in Pennsylvania growing crops were slowly burning in the fields, pastures were getting worse, wells were running low, while continued sunshine sped the harvesting of mature crops of all kinds.

Late garden crops were suffering in Maryland and Delaware and Virginia, with springs and wells running low. Water shortages were growing quite serious in some sections of Virginia.

Much the same situation extended through the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, although cotton picking in these States was well advanced. Drought conditions are getting worse in Ohio, Indiana and Tennessee.

Rain Abundant in West.
Curiously enough, the severe Eastern drought has grown worse while there is abundant rain in most Western areas. Florida also has received sufficient rain.

The rains received in the East in June and July prevented a recurrence of the disastrous drought of 1930, when some of the driest weather occurred during the peak of the growing season, Mr. Kincer pointed out. In that year most of the East experienced dry weather throughout the spring, summer and fall.

So far this September most Eastern States have received less than 50 per cent of their normal rainfall. The drought with varying intensity covers practically all States east of the Mississippi, the Weather Bureau reported.

The most immediate agricultural damage generally is to fall pastures and the delay in seeding winter grain. The hazard of forest fires has become serious in most wooded areas and the sun has baked the ground so hard that farmers in Eastern States are far behind with their plowing.

Senator Murray Charges Big Business Rules Defense

Declaring that "big business dollar-a-year men, drawing huge salaries from private corporations, have moved into control of the Defense Commission," Senator Murray, Democrat, of Montana charged last night that "small business enterprises have been discriminated against right and left."

The Montanan said he would ask for $1,000,000 to carry on the work of the special Senate committee studying the problems of small business, of which he is chairman.

He described reports that small business could not handle defense contracts as cheaply and efficiently as large contractors as "pure, unadulterated, big business propaganda."

$200,000 Blaze Hits Waterfront Area At New London

16 Firemen Are Hurt; Two Southern Fires Cause $400,000 Damage

By the Associated Press.
NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 25.—One of the worst fires in New London's history today left reduced to half-submerged wreckage the New Haven Railroad's steamship pier and freight terminal, situated where the marine tempo has been greatly accelerated since the beginning of the defense program.

The loss here, the home of the submarine base, was estimated unofficially at $200,000 and the cause was listed as undetermined, although Chief Thomas H. Shipman attributed it to probable "carelessness."

Sixteen firemen received minor injuries fighting the four-hour blaze, which started late Wednesday afternoon and destroyed the 1,000-foot pier, the 750-foot steel and timber freight shed, eight laden freight cars and a small freight boat.

It was feared at first that the fire might extend to the huge, adjacent pier of the War Department, but the absence of strong winds prevented its spread.

Sailors and Marines from New London and Groton, soldiers from the Army depot and the island forts in Long Island Sound and Coast Guardsmen from the local base aided New London firemen and State, local and railroad police in fighting the blaze and patrolling the area.

Two Fires Cause $400,000 Damage
PAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—Fire destroyed the Atlantic Coast Line's freight station in this booming Army camp town early today, just a few hours after Norfolk, Va., had been visited by a blaze which wrecked a Norfolk & Western Railroad grain elevator.

The damage here, which included nine freight cars, was estimated at $150,000 to $200,000. At Norfolk, where 100,000 bushels of grain were consumed, the loss was placed at $200,000.

Fayetteville firemen said the fire in the freight station probably was caused by an accumulation of gases.

'The Little Foxes' Retains All Its Drama as Film

And That Was a Lot of Drama As Bette Davis' New Vehicle At Keith's Bravely Reveals

Amid the glitter of a premiere, R-K-O last night "proudly" presented Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Little Foxes." Its pride in the picture at Keith's is justified. In fact, the whole movie industry might well crash the emotion, for Miss Lillian Hellman's distinguished play has been made into an equally distinguished motion picture.

Jay Carmody.

"The Little Foxes," with Bette Davis playing the main role to the hilt, is none of your usual movie material of course. It is the story of an evil, acquisitive, amoral family, ready to ravage every decency at the click of a coin. Miss Hellman felt very savage when she wrote about its members for the stage. She retorted not a bit in adapting the original for Mr. Goldwyn. The result, as directed by William Wyler and played by a superbly gifted cast, is a motion picture of extraordinary force. Rarely has the screen been so successful in proving that the abominable can be as fascinating as the beautiful. Rarely, indeed, has the screen tried. That is one of the things wrong with the movies. "The Little Foxes" helps to correct the imbalance.

In her unending quest for wicked women to impersonate, Miss Davis has found none to equal Regina Giddens, none so egregiously evil. Maddened by avarice, she will kill her decent, charming husband, send her cunning, cruel brothers to prison, hold always in reserve the sacrifice of her lovely, innocent daughter as bride to a lecherous, drooling first cousin. Regina wants money, you see, in all the worst ways.

There is no pretense of softness in the screen version of "The Little Foxes." With a fine awareness of the camera's wide scope, Miss Hellman has expanded her story. But despite the injection of an occasional flash of gentle comedy, the accent is where it should be. Regina and her brothers, the Hubbard boys, were beasts in the vilest sense of the word and audiences brave enough to face them will find themselves amply rewarded. Under circumstances, however, to be sure, is the title to suggest another Walt Disney film, all of which play the same house on Fifteenth street.

As Tallulah Bankhead before her—so closely as to look like an exact duplicate at times—Miss Davis plays Regina for the ultimate dress of her loathsomeness. There is no love, no pity, no tolerance in her. She lusts for money. It is the single motivation of her life and as she moves across the family scene, her murderous meanness mounts in force until it becomes one of the most passionate portraits Miss Davis ever has accomplished.

The acting of "The Little Foxes" is consistent in standard. Match-

Fans Want Love Scenes Shorter and Funnier

George Stevens, Now Directing The Hepburn-Tracy Photoplay, Reports a New Trend

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN. HOLLYWOOD.

Movie fans, we were advised today, want their love scenes free and easy, full of fun and without all the old beat-heating and voice quivers. Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn are following that pattern in "Woman of the Year." They play six love scenes together in this film. They're all short, sweet—and humorous. Reason for this is a fellow named George Stevens.

Stevens, directing the picture, has some strange ideas on celluloid love-making, mode 1941. He's cooled it off.

"Today's audiences want their love stripped of the old Romeo-Juliet balcony features," he told us. "You can't throw out tenderness, of course, but one or both principals must show a sense of humor."

"Long movie clutches today can make a sublime moment very laughable. No longer does the hero dare crush the glamour lady of his heart fiercely to him and hold her thus a full 10 seconds—the allotment prescribed by the Hays code. His kisses, too, must be short and snappy—and well spaced.

"Any love situation that plays more than a minute starts today's audience tittering. Blame it on the war, or whatever you wish, but the screen today perhaps is even more effective than the original in its revelation of Regina's depravity. It has permitted Miss Hellman to write more amply the character of the husband, a man of gentleness and honor, and his death at Regina's hands is heightened in cruelty. If the amplification were due merely to the fact that Herbert Marshall could play a role of no lesser scope, that would be reason enough. It helps the screenplay.

Otherwise, "The Little Foxes" is still a straightforward, relentless account of the Hubbards and the sister who married Horace Giddens. The Hubbard boys, Ben and Oscar, are almost the equal of their sister in money madness. The innocents who surround them, just as Regina's husband and daughter, are treated with equal cruelty. Oscar is not above slapping his beautiful, broken patrician wife who has taken to drink as her only solace. Nor is he above encouraging his son to rob the bank in which he works, specifically the safety deposit box of Regina's husband, and at the end when the battle of the Hubbards between themselves and with the innocents is over, the husband dead, the son disgraced and the daughter fled, Miss Hellman makes it clear the Hubbard type is not through yet. It is very grim. Or had you guessed that?

The acting of "The Little Foxes" is consistent in standard. Match-

Commerce & Savings Loans and Deposits Climb During Year

Higher Costs Cited In Annual Meeting at Alexandria

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Bank of Commerce & Savings Loans reported a 19% per cent increase in deposits during the past year. Thomas J. Groom, president, told the stockholders at the annual meeting held in Alexandria this forenoon at an all-time high mark, showed an increase during the year of 18 per cent, he announced.

Mr. Groom called attention of the shareholders to the growth in deposits since the bank was opened on December 2, 1930. On that date deposits totaled $44,324. By December 31, 1930, they had grown to $1,844,517, on December 31, 1940, amounted to $4,859,801 and on August 31 of this year totaled $5,237,678.

While interest rates on loans and deposits are at lower levels, earnings for 1941 should be highly satisfactory, he continued. In recent years the 40-hour week has necessitated additional personnel with resulting increased operating costs, while social security and unemployment insurance and Federal Deposit Insurance expense have added to the cost of doing business.

Since the bank was founded, Mr. Groom said, dividends equal to $24.50 have been paid on each share of stock, and the book value at the end of August was $100 per share.

The same board of directors was re-elected including George B. Burrus, William L. Bush, E. T. Chewning, Theodore Cogswell, James E. Collifore, A. E. Greenleaf, Thomas J. Groom, Frank Owens, George M. Quirk, Donald F. Roberts, M. D. Rosenberg and Joseph Sanders.

Department Store Orders Soar. Outstanding orders for merchandise placed by Washington department stores were 98 per cent larger at the end of August this year than in the corresponding date in 1940.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today. Outstanding orders in the Fifth District were 106 per cent higher, 119 per cent higher in Baltimore, 91 per cent in Richmond and 136 per cent in a group of other cities in this district.

Stocks of goods on hand were also much heavier than last year, the report revealed, being 29 per cent higher in Washington stores, 20 per cent in Richmond, 32 per cent in Baltimore and 27 per cent in the other cities.

Collections were favorable in Washington stores during August, 27 per cent of the bills outstanding being paid. The average for the Fifth Reserve District was 29 per cent.

As already noted, the volume of sales in Washington department stores was up 32 per cent in August and 23 per cent in the first eight months of 1941 over 1940.

Suburban Bank to Expand. B. J. Darnelle, president, of Suburban National Bank with offices in Silver Spring and Takoma Park, today announced plans for the enlargement of the $11,111,000 Fifth Reserve District.

The substantial growth in population in the other hand, and business in Silver Spring has made it necessary to provide for the personal, banks and real estate departments.

The present vault, located in the rear of the bank's lobby, will be removed and a substantially larger vault will be installed in the rear of the new addition to the present building.

The bank has experienced a substantial growth in deposits during the past three years. Deposits in 1938 totaled $4,172,380 and reached a total of $7,369,072 on September 16, 1941, with an all-time high of $8,066,356 in total resources.

Bank Ratio Change Urged. The time-honored asset-to-liability ratio is an inadequate test to measure the sufficiency of bank capital in relation to deposits, John D. Hospelhorn, president of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks, said at the annual convention in St. Paul, Minn., today.

Hospelhorn, who is deputy bank commissioner of Maryland, recommended that the Executive Committee agree upon some better basis of measuring capital sufficiency.

A bank might have a 25 per cent ratio and yet its assets position could be unsound. On the other hand, a bank could have a 6 per cent ratio and yet its assets could be of such high quality as to indicate no risk whatever, he asserted.

Assets of good quality are a truer form of deposit protection than the present ratio policy, he added.

Lively Trading on Exchange. Trading was lively on the Washington Stock Exchange today, opening with Capital Trust selling at 16 1/2, highest price in recent sessions. The day's sales totaled 88 shares.

Garnfield common stock appeared on the board, 25 shares changing hands at 1 1/2, against the last previous sale at 1 1/4.

Washington Gas Light common registered a 25-share sale at 20 1/2, practically unchanged.

Woodward & Lothrop common came up on a 25-share sale at 44 1/2, up 1/2 points.

Bankers Going to Chicago. T. Howard Duckett, president of the Prince Georges County Bank & Trust Co., Hyattsville, is among the Maryland bankers planning to attend the A. B. A. convention in Chicago. Others include Robertson Criswell, Maryland Trust Co., Baltimore; Thomas B. McDermott, president, Union Trust Co., Baltimore; L. Alan Dill, Hopkins Place Savings Bank, Baltimore; and Herbert C. Bell, Westminster Deposit & Trust Co., Westminster.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Tax fears, and not the war, today received the principal blame for one of the sharpest stock market breaks since last April.

The list was slightly in arrears on slow dealings during the morning. Heavy offerings in various departments hit the ticker tape shortly after midday as Secretary Morgenthau revealed the Treasury even now was at work on a bill that would drastically limit corporate profits.

The official yesterday had suggested a 100 per cent tax on net earnings above 6 per cent on invested capital.

When word was received in Wall Street that the proposed limitations were actually being written into a measure for congressional approval, the assumption was that the move had the blessing of the administration and might have a fair chance of becoming law.

Steel, motors, aircrafts and industrial specialties were among the first to tumble. Declines ranged from 1 to 5 points at the most. Extreme losses were reduced in many cases at the close when advices from the Capital indicated strong opposition to the Treasury shift.

Aeronca Preferred Placed on Market At $15 a Share

WESTINGHOUSE DIRECTORS Authorize Filing for New Common

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—An underwriting group offered to the public today 30,000 shares of cumulative convertible preferred stock of Aeronca Aircraft Corp. priced at $15 a share.

At the same time the group, headed by Bond & Goodwin, Inc., offered 20,000 common stock purchase warrants at 10 cents a warrant.

Net proceeds from the sale of the preferred stock, estimated at $368,005, will be used to expand aircraft manufacturing operations necessitated by defense production. These net proceeds may be increased by the sale of common stock depending upon the exercise of the common stock purchase warrants.

Westinghouse Board Acts. Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. directors authorized filing of a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the sale of 554,426 additional shares of common stock. The statement is expected to become effective about October 14.

Proceeds of the sale of new stock will be used for financing the company's defense production expansion. The directors said it was intended that holders of outstanding preferred and common stock shares should have the right to subscribe for the new common shares on the basis of one-fifth share for each share of preferred or common held on October 15, and that the rights should expire on October 28. The price of the new stock has not been determined.

National Cylinder Gas. Public offering was made by an underwriting group of 100,000 shares of capital stock of National Cylinder Gas Co. at $10.25 a share. The stock comes from the estate of M. Keith Dunham, one of the founders of the company and its former chairman.

Northern Pacific. The Northern Pacific Railway reported net railway operating income for August totaled $2,806,139, an increase of $1,100,176 over August, 1940.

Alloys of Metal Powder To Speed Up Defense. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 25.—A new method of making a cheap alloy powder from scrap metal that is now wasted and using it to make materials for defense more quickly today by Dr. John Wulff, Massachusetts Institute of Technology metallurgist.

Addressing a metallurgy conference attended by representatives of many leading defense industries as well as Army and Navy officials, Dr. Wulff declared that the powder of various substances could be used to produce bombs, lubricants, resistant paints and other things "important to our defense effort."

He said the method involved taking scrap metals that cannot be used efficiently for melting and reducing them to powdered form by gravity and corrosion techniques.

Using stainless steel as one example, Wulff said that ordinary treatment of that metal to form other products entails "the most difficult machining processes in the world."

But, he declared, reducing it to powder form and then making new products by comparatively simple machine techniques eliminated great machine costs.

Richard J. Cullen, president, said he was hopeful that when all technical requirements involved in the change have been met and the new company has come into existence it would be possible to act promptly in clearing up arrears of $5 a share which have accumulated on preferred stock.

Steel, motors, aircrafts and industrial specialties were among the first to tumble. Declines ranged from 1 to 5 points at the most. Extreme losses were reduced in many cases at the close when advices from the Capital indicated strong opposition to the Treasury shift.

Heavy offerings in various departments hit the ticker tape shortly after midday as Secretary Morgenthau revealed the Treasury even now was at work on a bill that would drastically limit corporate profits.

The official yesterday had suggested a 100 per cent tax on net earnings above 6 per cent on invested capital.

When word was received in Wall Street that the proposed limitations were actually being written into a measure for congressional approval, the assumption was that the move had the blessing of the administration and might have a fair chance of becoming law.

Refusal to Relax Milkshed Limits Is Indicated

Hearing Concluded By Commissioners On Schulte Bill

By DON S. WARREN.

The Commissioners will disapprove any move to open the District to importation of milk or cream from distant areas...

At the conclusion of two days of public hearings on the bill of Representative Schulte, Democrat, of Indiana, designed to break down what he calls the "Chinese Wall" around the Washington milkshed...

First, that Washington now gets an exceptionally high quality of milk, both as to purity and butter fat content.

No Lower Price Assurance.

Second, that there is no assurance Washington retail milk prices would be reduced to any degree if the Schulte bill or the more specific model code sponsored by the United States Public Health Service, and...

Third, that there is no immediate threat of a shortage of milk supply for Washington, despite its recent growth of population.

So far, the city heads have made no announcement of their view. When hearings were concluded yesterday, they merely said they would study the voluminous record. But there is reason to believe they were impressed with testimony suggesting that perhaps some technical requirements placed on milk producers as to more or less expensive farm equipment were unnecessarily rigid and might be modified without losing any protection. More study may be given this point.

Under-Consumption Noted.

Also, there appeared to be sympathy for the view that there is an under-consumption of milk among many of the poorer Washington families, and some step may be considered on this point, but it is said the Commissioners were not convinced a solution could be achieved merely by opening the market to shipments from distant States, if the present quality is retained.

They are said to believe the distributor must be considered in any move leading to any retail price reduction.

Throughout the hearing, called in response to insistent demands by Representative Schulte for opening the Washington market, only one witness appeared to support the Schulte bill and only a few gave definite support to the model code of the United States Public Health Service, even as might be modified (See MILK, Page B-6.)

John Walsh's Estate Valued at $367,463

Attorney John Walsh, who practiced law here for many years and was a brother to the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, left an estate valued at $367,463. District Court was advised today in a petition for the probate of his will. Mr. Walsh died in Montana August 25.

The will, dated July 24, 1940, leaves the bulk of his property to his widow, Mrs. Edna J. Walsh, 2311 Connecticut avenue N.W., and his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Walsh Long of Evanston, Ill. Attorney John W. Watawa, a nephew, presented the petition for probate to the court on behalf of the executors.

The estate is mostly in stocks and bonds. Debts will total around $8,500. Mr. Walsh's will, in his own handwriting, left $2,000 to his secretary of many years, Margaret Matheson, and left his law library to his immediate law associates.

Red Cross Signs 3,015 to Date In Roll Call

Speakers Foresee Increased Activity Under Emergency

The 15,000 volunteer canvassers now at work in the city on the District's 25th annual Red Cross Roll Call added 962 more memberships yesterday, carrying the total to date to 3,015.

While yesterday's total was well under the figure submitted after the first check and indicated a drop in activity, Chairman Edgar A. Morris attributed the slump to a natural reaction after the opening of any campaign and said he expected canvassing to pick up this week and to continue on a peak scale until the goal of 200,000 members is reached.

Particular activity was noted among members of the residential group, now at work under the direction of Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, chairman, and Mrs. E. G. Montgomery, Mrs. James McClintock and Mrs. N. A. Burnell, vice chairmen.

The speakers bureau, under the leadership of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, also got in high gear yesterday. Two talks were given during the day and others are scheduled at meetings of local civic and patriotic groups during the next few days.

Totals turned in by individual groups so far follow: Governmental, 1,316; financial, $3 utilities, 36; professional, 601; general business, 299; residential, 365; special gifts, 91; booths, 298.

Six firms and officers were added yesterday to the list with 100 per cent memberships. These included the East Washington Savings Bank, Transcontinental Western Air, Inc., and the patent law offices of Henry L. Foster, Thomas F. Healy, James P. Burns and Samuel Scrivener, Jr.

In a talk yesterday before a luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club at the Raleigh Hotel, Chairman Morris stressed America's nearness to war and the vital need for larger contribution to the Red Cross.

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "the fact is that our Navy, if not our Army, is already on an actual war basis with orders to shoot potential enemies on sight. That can mean only one thing—that sooner or later, and I fear it is sooner, we will have American casualties in this war. You know as well as I do what this will mean to the Red Cross. The mere possibility of our being called upon to care for the wounded and the dead of our organization. This is due not only, of course, to the increased naval activity, but likewise to the vast increase in our other defense forces."

Similar thought was expressed at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel by Edward F. Curran, United States attorney for the District of Columbia and a member of the Red Cross Speakers' Bureau.

"The American Red Cross has been asked to take an important part in strengthening the national defenses of the country and, in order to do this," he declared, "we must obtain support from the public comparable to that of the first World War."

Housing and Priorities Will Be Discussed

Builders, architects, bankers and all persons connected with private home building in the Washington Metropolitan Area have been invited to a discussion of housing and priority regulations at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

The mass meeting is being called by the Operating Builders' Association of the District, of which Waverly Taylor is president. Mr. Taylor said all builders of the Capital area who erect five or more houses a year are urged to attend, along with architects and loan men.

The builders have invited representatives of the following organizations to attend: Washington Chapter, American Institute of Architects; District Bankers' Association, Board of Trade, Washington Building Congress, Mortgage Bankers' Association and the District Building & Loan League.

Low Anderson, District director, Federal Housing Administration, will explain priorities procedure. The meeting will discuss the serious situation which is developing here as a result of the Priorities and Allocation Board ruling that only houses costing $6,000 and less will be given preference ratings as housing essential to national defense.

Agriculture Employees Learning First Aid

Thirty-two men and woman employees representing various branches of the Agriculture Department started today on a course of instruction in Red Cross first aid, with a view to developing a corps of more than 500 employees with such training throughout the department.

The instructor is Harold M. Salmon of the Soil Conservation Service. The class meets twice each week in Room 6962 of the South Agriculture Building.

The scene of the dinner was the home on Foxhall road which their mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, leased last fall. She spent the winter there. Mr. Cromwell and Mrs. Atwill being with her part of the time. One hundred guests represented many circles in Washington society.

Mrs. Stotesbury was unable to be present and acting in her place was Mrs. John R. Williams, who received with Mrs. Atwill and the host.

Author Is Honored At Tea

Newspaperwomen Give Party for Lillian Hellman

The Newspaper Women's Club gave an informal tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Lillian Hellman, author of "The Little Foxes," who came to Washington for the first showing of the motion picture version of her play.

Small and graceful, Miss Hellman was dressed in black, her only ornament a rhinestone feather. Her hat also was black, particularly becoming to her titian hair. Miss Hellman sat for some time chatting with members and their guests, answering their questions about her work and her success.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, president of the club, also wearing black with a becoming black hat and veil, received the guests. Assisting through the afternoon were Helen Essary and Louise Hartley Fairman, active members of the club, and associate members, including Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Atherton Macondray, who is back in her home on Seminary Hill in Alexandria after spending the summer in the West, and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

The attractive clubrooms were decorated with pompons in autumn shades sent to the club by Gretchen Smith, an active member who is recuperating from an accident she suffered early in the summer. Mrs. Smith is staying at Belle Meade near Front Royal, Va., with her parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Henry Varnum Butler, and the flowers came from their gardens.

All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding last evening of Miss Kathryn Yonne Gehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Gehan of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mr. Dwight H. Owen, son of Mrs. Herbert Owen of Dover, N. H. The rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. H. H. D. Sterrett, officiated at 8 o'clock and Dr. W. H. O. McGehee played the wedding music. The quaint little church had no decoration except on the altar and in the chancel where white autumn blossoms and fern were used with lighted candles in the candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Mrs. R. Graham Dods of Newport News, Va., as matron of honor and Miss Bernece Motl of Milwaukee as maid of honor. The bride's costume was of ivory satin made with a seed pearl collar on the draped bodice, the long sleeves ending in points over the hands and the skirt falling into a long train at the back. Her full-length veil of ivory white illusion was arranged like the headdress of Mary Queen of Scots, outlined with seed pearls and she carried white orchids surrounded by white roses and a shower of bouvardia.

Mrs. Dods was dressed in du-bonnet faille taffeta in a robe de style, the sweetheart neckline trimmed with seed pearls and her velvet halo hat matched in color. Miss Motl and the bridesmaids, Miss Auldine Drury and Miss Rachel Horak, wore similar frocks, the maid of honor in cherry pink, and the bridesmaids in deep violet. They all carried rubrum lilies.

Mr. J. Russell Verbruyke, 3d, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Roger Robb, Mr. Larry Sherfy, Mr. Raphael Sherfy, Mr. Frederick Stevenson and Mr. Robert Verbruyke, all of Washington.

The reception was held at 3640 Sixteenth street and later Mr. and Mrs. Owen left on their wedding trip, which will end in Providence, R. I., where they will make their future home. ### Study Group Planned To Weigh Report on Montgomery Setup

Public Meetings And Speakers Will Examine Survey

A county-wide study group has been organized to consider the Brookings report on the present Montgomery County government setup. It was announced yesterday by its chairman, Allen H. Gardner of Silver Spring.

Plans for publication of bulletins summarizing the major findings of the study group are being made by the Publicity and Education Committee.

Franked Envelopes Part of Data Given Nazi Probe Grand Jury

Investigation of Activities Of Suspected Agents Will End Soon

Early completion of the grand jury investigation of suspected Nazi agents was predicted today at the Justice Department, where it was reported that a large quantity of unused postage-free envelopes, given to members of Congress for their official mail, had been found in the local offices of two anti-war groups and was included in the evidence laid before the grand jury at District Court.

The envelopes, it was said, bore the franks of known isolationists in both the Senate and House. Some contained copies of their speeches and others were empty. The envelopes were said to have been turned over to the investigators by Prescott Dennett, secretary of Make-Europe-Pay and Islands-for-Debts Committee, who was among the witnesses summoned before the grand jury today.

Special Assistant Attorney General William Power Maloney, directing the inquiry, declared in court earlier in the week that "known German agents" gave money to both committees.

The names of members of Congress whose envelopes were turned up in the investigation were not made public. It was prevented that congressional immunity provided their being subpoenaed while Congress is in session.

Sobbing Directs Searchers To Little Boy Lost in Woods

By the Associated Press.

NEW MARKET, Va., Sept. 25.—He was a big, brave, quiet boy for a long time as he wandered through the woods, but he finally sat down on a rock and cried because he was hungry and Mama had gone somewhere. That crying—for which hundreds of searchers had listened vainly for two days and a night—finally brought Edward Burroughs, 30 months, to his home and to a royal feast of ice cream last night.

The lad, a son of L. and Mrs. Sherman Burroughs of near New Market, was located at 7 o'clock last night 2 miles from the home of his grandmother by Cecil Bynaker and several other men. They, like scores of others, had been waiting to hear his sobs.

Although clad only in underclothing, he appeared to an examining physician to have suffered nothing worse than scratches and insect bites. His father then took him to an ice cream bar and his experiences seemed quickly forgotten.

"Mother's gone away in the car," he complained when Mr. Bynaker took him up.

Mrs. Burroughs left him with his grandmother while she made a trip to Roanoke Tuesday, and the tot wandered away from a sandpile down an old overgrown road leading through the foothills of Massanutten Mountain. When he could not soon be found, hundreds of citizens and C. C. workers organized a

Father Calls Police, A. W. O. L. Son Surrenders

By the Associated Press.

FREEMONT, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Patsy Barboro, Jr., 21, who went A. W. O. L. from his soldierly duties at Fort Devens, Mass., today was in military custody because his father put devotion to country above parental love.

Patsy, Jr., appeared at his home last night and was warned by his father that he was going to call the police. The youth thereupon grabbed the family shotgun and dashed into the woods. Military police from nearby Mitchell Field began a search which ended when the son meekly surrendered. He had thrown away his gun.

Unions Denied Use Of Radio Facilities, C. I. O. Complains

Newspapers' Stations Discriminate Against Labor, F. C. C. Is Told

By CARTER BROOKE JONES.
The Congress of Industrial Organizations intervened today in the investigation of newspaper ownership of radio stations through a statement to the Federal Communications Commission by Allan S. Haywood, director of organization, complaining of "discriminatory denial of the use of radio facilities."
Mr. Haywood told the commission the C. I. O. welcomed any investigation that will throw light on procedures or controls in radio broadcasting that may have an adverse effect in restricting freedom of the air.

The national organizer of the C. I. O. charged that "some of the more glaring instances of discrimination against labor unions have been committed by newspaper-owned stations."
Labor Alleges Bias.
The C. I. O., he added, has determined that "there is a general feeling in labor ranks, buttressed by many practical experiences, that most of the daily press is biased against labor because of its big ownership, because of its dependence upon advertising and because of the editorial policy of the particular publishers."
Mr. Haywood cited as "one of the most serious cases of denial of labor's right to the air" the reported refusal of Station KYA in San Francisco, owned by the Hearst newspaper interests, to renew its contract for the daily C. I. O. program there.

Declaring he did not mean to imply that this alleged discrimination was perpetrated entirely by radio stations associated with newspapers, he added that there was a general feeling in labor ranks "that our constitutional rights to freedom of speech and freedom of press are severely curtailed by present policies and methods of control of both press and radio."
Publishers Press Pleas.
Testimony concerning the general policy of allowing newspapers to own radio stations was interrupted earlier to allow two West Virginia publishers to present specific evidence in support of their pending applications to construct radio stations.
The witnesses were W. E. Ingersoll, business manager of the Parkersburg News and Sentinel, and Charles L. Long, vice president and assistant publisher of the Wheeling Intelligencer and News Register.
These newspaper representatives, called by James S. McCluer, Parkersburg attorney, explained that they regarded a radio station as a necessary modern adjunct to a progressive city daily. Their permits, held by numerous others, have been held up by the commission until the question at issue is determined.
Mr. Ingersoll explained that, although the two papers are under the same management, the Parkersburg News and Sentinel, the News Republican. Their staffs are separate, though they use the same building and equipment and offer combination advertising rates, he said.

He told the commission that the Sentinel, applicant for the radio permit, has no reason to own a station "other than to give additional service to the public and to safeguard its commercial interests."
"Do you fear loss of circulation and advertising if you do not have a radio station?" asked Commissioner T. A. M. Craven.
Mr. Ingersoll said that might be true to some extent, though the benefit of a radio station to the newspaper was more indirect.
"Do you feel," asked Chairman James Lawrence Fly, "that a newspaper has some advantage in making a success of a radio station?"

Background Valuable.
Mr. Ingersoll said he thought so, pointing to the background of a newspaper as valuable to the operation of a station.
If the Parkersburg newspaper station is allowed to operate, the witness added, he doubted if the listener could determine from any program the political views of the owners any more than readers could now unless they read the editorials in the two papers.
Mr. Long, whose two Wheeling papers—like the Parkersburg papers, one Republican, the other Democrat—seek a radio station through a subsidiary company, said he considered a newspaper radio outlet "essential to keep up with modern times."

Louis G. Caldwell, counsel for WGN, the Chicago Tribune station, filed with the commission a statement explaining in a general way the nature of the evidence he expects to introduce later in the hearings.
Milk

to call for only Grade A milk with certificates available only to farms getting a 90 per cent rating. The vast majority of witnesses and spectators were for keeping the District's present high health standards and milk quality, even though some questioned whether certain specific rules were too rigid.

"Trade Barrier" Charged.
Two widely divergent views were voiced by key witnesses near the conclusion of the hearings—by Representative Smith, Democrat, of Virginia, House Rules Committee member, who told the city heads he had operated a milk farm in Virginia for some 17 years, and Donald E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel of the Agriculture Department.

Mr. Smith said he saw "no excuse" for opening the District milk market. Mr. Montgomery argued that Health Department rules for shipment of milk into the District limited supplies to those from the Maryland and Virginia milkshed and amounted to "trade barriers."
Mr. Smith insisted that records brought by the city heads showed Washington milk prices compared "very favorably" with those of many comparable cities and that Washington had an adequate supply. The supply in August, he said, was more than 20 per cent over that of a year ago, and there still was a surplus of nearly 12,000 gallons per day.
The only other reason for opening the market to shipments from distant States, he said, would be that "somebody" would want to ship milk into the District.

Smith Monopoly Possibility.
Mr. Smith also denied there was any "monopoly" among milk producers in this area, but declared if the proposed United States model milk ordinance were adopted, a real monopoly could be developed. He said there already were several national dairy chains and that while none of these had indicated such a desire, it would be possible for some chain later to "break down" the local producers if the Federal plan were adopted. He said once a "universal" milk shed and regulations were adopted, a chain might refuse to buy the milk of local producers, if the price did not suit, and might threaten to send in milk from some other area.
He also reminded the Commissioners of the "bootleg" milk scandal of two years ago and said there would be an invitation for repetition of such cases if the field were thrown open.

Mr. Montgomery advised the Commissioners to read a lengthy printed statement of the Agriculture Department on the dangers of "trade barriers."
He demanded to know why public health standards of the District would be jeopardized if the District adopted the Grade A milk system of the United States Public Health model code and specified that no milk be admitted unless the dairy farm received a 90 per cent rating as certified by the District or State medical authorities.

On the latter point, Health Officer George C. Ruhland has argued that he would not be in real control over inspection work if the farms were too far removed from the District. He and his assistants have insisted 200 miles was the "workable" limit for such home-base inspection.

Sees Conflict in Position.
Mr. Montgomery said that when the Agriculture Department was considering recently the requested increase in producer prices, local milk producers testified they needed the price boost because of the costs resulting from District milk rules. Now, he asserted, they have reversed the price boost and are insisting that District milk requirements should be reduced.

Earlier, Harry S. Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, voiced fears as to the adequacy of supply to meet expected further increases in Washington's population, declared Washington's health standards should not be sacrificed, at any cost, but that the Federation would like some moves made to reduce retail prices and questioned whether some of the milk rules were not "arbitrary and unnecessary." He added that the District had no moral responsibility to maintain the Maryland and Virginia producers. "The consumers of Washington must come before the producers," he concluded, "contending that many children in Washington now could not be provided with fresh milk."

Opposition to the Schulte bill or any other legislation permitting importation from beyond control of District authorities was voiced by Louis I. Obergh for the Federation of Businessmen's Associations.

Mrs. Ernest W. Howard of the District Federation of Women's Clubs opposed the Schulte bill or any other major operation on the District code, and Mrs. M. O. Lenz, chairman of the Consumers' Committee of the District Defense Council, testified for adoption of the Federal code as against retention of present municipal rules.

Crisp, Cool Days Bring More Autumnal Supplies to Local Markets

First Fresh Cranberries Arrive Just in Time to Grace Young Turkeys

Cauliflower Is Especially Recommended This Week; Brussels Sprouts Good

By Betsy Caspell

More of those fresh young hen turkeys are reaching our markets this week, and along with them the first cranberries of the season.

Good Hubbard squash is in now, as well as plenty of the little acorn variety. The first type may be boiled or baked and served as a vegetable or makes good soup.

Put Dried Fruits In Lunch Boxes

School lunch packers, take note: When it's a case of pills versus peaches, peaches win out every time.

Frock for Pigtail Age Daughter Will Be Well Dressed In This Attractive Pattern

By Barbara Bell
She'll shine at the blackboard and she'll shine in the playground as the best-dressed girl in her class.

Main Dish for a Buffet Supper . . .

Even though cool autumn is rumored on its way—a smooth textured, deliciously flavored molded salad is always a perfect main dish for Sunday night supper, or a buffet party. Here is a basic recipe which lends itself to a variety of main ingredients.

A main dish salad may, as its name implies, be the main dish or fit into a more bountiful buffet meal which includes a wider assortment of food.

This basic recipe for tuna fish salad mold may be used substituting chicken, veal, salmon, crabmeat, or shrimp—they are all delicious. And the cucumber dressing is appropriate for any combination you choose.

Eggs Third on List Of Foods Needed In Defense Diet

Among the foods listed as essential in our defense diet eggs come third. These are classified as belonging to the protein group, but because of the large water content the contribution in this respect is comparatively small.

Eggs are lower in calcium than milk, but are higher in phosphorus and much higher in iron, with which milk is scantily supplied.

Perfect Muffins

To make perfect muffins combine all dry ingredients, then add liquids quickly, stirring but not beating. Do not stir after ingredients are moistened.

Sour Cream Makes Nice Dressing

Gives Special Tang To Meat Dishes Or Vegetables

Once upon a time housekeepers were concerned with the question of what to do with cream which had "turned." Thrifty cooks put this product to use as shortening for cakes and cookies.

Pasteurized cream does not turn in the sense that it develops a slightly acid flavor. Instead it becomes bitter and should not be used in cooking, both on this account and because bacteria of a type which are not too good for us develop.

Sour cream may be purchased at a slightly lower price than sweet cream. In some sections where this type of cream is used in large quantities it can be found at a still lower price.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING. 1/2 cup cream, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar, 1/2 cup sour cream.

PORK GOULASH. 2 pounds fresh pork shoulder, 3 medium-sized onions, sliced, 1 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon celery salt, 2 tablespoons chopped dill pickle, 1 11-ounce can sauerkraut, 1 cup sour cream.

Luscious Festival Cake . . .

This feathery white cake with an eggnog filling is made to order for "harvest homes" and other fall and winter festivities.

The gathering of the harvest and the crisp, cool air makes fall the festival time of the year for good food. This is the time that calls for the kind of food that satisfies appetites stimulated by nippy, brisk winds.

Especially designed for festival eating is this snowy cake, with its delicate, velvety texture. Its velvetness is partly the result of creaming the shortening and sugar until they are a fluffy mass.

For a holiday note, eggnog filling substituted for jiffy icing between layers gives this cake an unusual flavor that is most irresistible.

EGGNOG FILLING: 4 egg yolks, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/2 cup butter, Grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup coarsely chopped nuts, 1/2 cup chopped candied citron, 1/2 cup raisins, 1/4 cup rum, brandy or whisky flavoring.

WHITE FESTIVAL CAKE. 1 cup shortening, 2 cups sugar, 3 cups sifted flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk, 1 1/2 teaspoons flavoring, 6 egg whites.

ICE CHAMBER. Do not keep anything in the ice chamber of your refrigerator but ice.

Enjoy These Super-Juicy, Super-Tasty UNCLE SAM'BURGERS. 1 lb. lean beef ground, 2 STEERO Bouillon Cubes dissolved in 1 1/2 cups boiling tomato juice, 2 tbsp. melted butter.

When You Say 'Thank You,' Be Convincing About It; Appreciation Counts

Charming, Gracious Manner Far More Important Than Emphasis on Etiquette

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison
The Harrison half of this column-writing combination recently devoted four hours out of a very busy day to entertaining a 17-year-old girl from his home town. This girl was the "queen" of a big civic celebration, and she had been elected on the basis of her looks and her popularity.

One of the honors she received was an airplane trip to the big city, and Alden was asked to meet her and show her around. This he did to the best of his ability—and those who should know claim that the best of his ability isn't bad!

He dashed about like a mad thing, having the queen photographed for her home town paper, introducing her to a couple of celebrities, showing her all the sights. He hired more taxis in four hours than he ordinarily uses in four weeks. He bought her an expensive lunch, and even provided her with magazines to read on the plane ride home.

Whereupon the popularity queen boarded the plane, murmured a casual good-by over her shapely shoulder, and never even said "Thanks!"

This is just one glaring example of a fault we find in many young people, which is far more serious than mere bad manners. It's a general lack of graciousness, a fundamental attitude of not being appreciative. And if you're going around with that attitude, you won't be popular with many people very long, and we don't care how many contents you win or how many crowns you wear.

Your manners are important, but they aren't nearly so important as your manner. You may be ignorant of the niceties of etiquette, or forget them under excitement or strain, and still be likable because of a basically pleasant and considerate manner. But you can follow all the rules in the etiquette book to the letter, and you'll still be a boor if you don't seem appreciative of the things that other people do for you.

We knew a handsome boy in high school, the only child of well-to-do parents, who had been coached in etiquette until he was a regular little Lord Chesterfield. Adults thought he was a perfect gentleman, but his classmates considered him a first-class pain in the neck—simply because of his supercilious, inconsiderate, superior attitude.

We knew another fellow whose home background was nothing to brag about, and who couldn't even hold a fork properly. But he was one of those big, clumsy, gentle kids who wouldn't willingly hurt the feelings of a fly. And he was one of the best-liked boys in school—in spite of the rough spots in his social technique.

This is something that every fellow and girl should take seriously. We're all for your improving your manners, and learning everything you can about the polite way to do things. We're all for your adding to your physical attractiveness in every way possible.

But don't forget the fundamental, vital point of your manner. Glamour is no substitute for it; neither is mere surface politeness. If you're wondering how you can make yourself better liked, a good place to

Hear Child's Complaint Calmly

Investigate Story For True Facts Before Acting

By Angelo Patri

When children come home with a complaint against their teachers or playmates, wait a little before deciding that the teachers and the playmates ought to be excluded from decent society. Don't be in a hurry to do anything about it, or to say much beyond "Well, that is too bad."

If the story is founded on fact there will be time enough for you to adjust things. Situations that bring serious difficulties upon you and the children do not vanish overnight. The delay will give you time to think clearly and decide calmly upon your course. It will do something else quite as important. It will allow the child who brought home the complaint time to cool off so that his mind and not his imagination can tell the story.

Only those who work with children and adolescents know how imagination can color stories. What reality a wish can give to something that does not exist. What strength hysteria can put into an otherwise feeble idea.

Wait and say nothing until the child has slept over the happening. Then ask him, casually as possible, what it was he said yesterday. Don't be surprised if he tells you a different story, or wipes the whole thing out with a gesture. That often happens, and when it does just forget it.

Don't take an excited child's story on the surface value he gives it. Don't rush to school and complain. "My child never tells a lie." You don't know your child if you say that for what you are calling a lie is usually an impression and a reflection of the child's imagination. If there is a grain of fact in the story he usually has colored it well. Complaints are rarely bare, hard fact.

Wait, go slowly, doubt until you investigate and, above all, don't tell the world about it. It is often most embarrassing to explain your mistake if a mistake has occurred. Better say nothing until you have gotten to the root of the matter and cleared it up.

Triumph for Dodgers Today Would Settle Pennant If Cardinals Are Beaten

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

Star Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—We have taken leave of the Cardinals because of a firm conviction that only by a miracle can those dead-game...

If the Cardinals win the pennant in Chicago, they will be photographed in the clubhouse, a sweaty, grimy gang of kids with their caps off...

But think of what will happen in Brooklyn if the Bums blow. A taxi driver named Bloomstein probably will start the ball rolling by leaping off the Brooklyn Bridge.

The Gowanus Canal will be transformed into a sluiceway of corpses, most of them resting on the bottom due to heavy rocks tied around the necks.

Followers of Bums Demand 'De Woiks'

The police and the State Militia may save a few Flatbushers from themselves but they will be vacant-eyed drooping people the rest of their lives.

It can't happen, of course, because if the Bums win two out of three games from the Bels and Phillies, the Cards couldn't catch them by winning all of their remaining three games against the Pirates and Cubs.

It might be added, however, that nothing short of a World Series victory over the Yankees will satisfy completely those who shower their idolatry upon the Bums.

Brooks Are Slow and Lack Power

The Brooklyn fan, as you may know, is a fan apart. He knows all about the 1920 series. He knows that Sherry Smith and Boley Grimes beat Cleveland that year.

When was the last time a National League club licked the Yankees? The Brooklyn fan knows it was back in 1926.

What the Brooklynite expects and what he gets, when and if the Bums get into the World Series, may be something else.

The records of the Brooklyn pitchers, however, stand up better in comparison than any hitting, fielding or base-running records.

Among Regulars Only Camilli Holds Edge

Joe McCarthy, however, has not handed his pitcher this year with an eye toward having somebody break the record of Ho's Redburne.

The only edge the Brooklyn hold over the Yanks in the regular positions is at first base, where Camilli must be rated over Rookie Johnny Sturm.

Probably the best of the Dodgers is Pet Reiser, the center-fielder. He is a real good player and it is his misfortune to be compared with Joe Di Maggio, who is great.

This does not necessarily mean the Yankees will win. If the Bums don't read the papers but listen to what followers say about them, they could play that way.

Griffith Shivers as Draft Hits Hudson; Dom Di Maggio's Bat Wrecks Nats in Double Bill

By BURTON HAWKINS.

Clark Griffith is beginning to shiver as the result of that draft. The most recent of his Nats to receive a communication from his draft board is Pitcher Sid Hudson.

Louis Asks Army Delay So He Can See Series

Max Baer Will Seek Berth as Physical Instructor in Navy

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The figures say the Dodgers can clinch that pennant today, but our hunch is that they won't do it before Saturday—If they survive the victory party the fans are planning for Friday night.

to try to get the Navy to take him on as a physical instructor. With two days off from regular games, Ted Williams plans to spend his time getting some batting practice just to make sure his heritage won't fall below 400.

Two soldier football fans, Ed Houston and Fred Bleiler, plan to fly from Tallulah, La., to Baton Rouge to see Holy Cross play Louisiana State Saturday. They're maneuvering with the 50th Air Base group and have persuaded a couple of aviator pals to fly them to the game.

Walker's Triple On His Birthday Saves 'Bums'

Clears 98 Bases; Gumbert Slab Star As Redbirds Win

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are on the threshold of the National League's king row today.

Another victory for the "Bums" against the Braves and a defeat for the St. Louis Cardinals at Pittsburgh would turn the trick.

This may not happen today, but it shows how close the Dodgers finally have come to clinching their first pennant in 21 years.

At the moment the standings are: Brooklyn 88 53 649 3; St. Louis 96 54 640 1 1/2.

After their games today both clubs will be idle tomorrow. Then the Dodgers will go home to Brooklyn to wrap up their prize with two final games against the poor and harmless Phillies while the Cardinals spend Saturday and Sunday at Chicago.

If both clubs win today, Brooklyn can clinch the championship by beating Philadelphia Saturday, no matter what the Cards do.

Both leaders win. Both of the rivals won yesterday—the Reds, 4-2, at Boston and the Redbirds, 4-0, at Pittsburgh.

It was Dixie Walker's 31st birthday anniversary and he celebrated by slamming out a triple with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to bring Brooklyn roaring from behind.

Up till that time Kirby Higbe's chances of attaining his 22d victory had appeared gloomy. Two singles and two costly errors by Peeewe Reese and Cookie Lavagetto had given the Braves a pair of unearned runs.

Then up strode Walker, who hadn't made a hit all day. Left Fielder Max West edged in close behind his shortstop hoping Walker would lift a little loop as he had in the third inning.

Gumbert Stretches Struck. Harry Gumbert scattered six singles as the Cards shut out the Pirates yesterday.

The remaining positions in the National League finally were settled in the other games.

THAR SHE BLOZIS

—By JIM BERRYMAN

Trains as Though He Figures on Short Evening's Work

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer. GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Simply because he's the kind of a guy who doesn't like to work over-time, Joe Louis expects to knock out Lou Nova inside of eight rounds in the Polo Grounds ring next Monday night.

Joe doesn't come right out in meeting with a prediction as to when they'll be lugging Louie the Yogi out of there. Joe doesn't pick the round any more, ever since he made a slight error one day in 1936 by taking himself to kayo Max Schmeling in a large hurry in their first fight. That was a bad one.

But the Bomber gave you the tip-off today as to how he feels about this outline. He tore through his training ritual up here in the Ramapo Hills like a pedestrian crossing Broadway against the lights.

He sailed right over sparring partners and drove through his floorwork as if he was getting ready for an eight-rounder instead of the full 15-round derby route.

A couple of sports writers mentioned the fact. Joe Adds to Repertoire. "Eight rounds?" he countered. "Say, that's an awful long night's work, ain't it?"

As if he felt he needed something special to counter the cosmic punch or dance-with-the-dynamic-stance that Nova will put on display for the 50,000 or so folk sitting in on Monday's proceedings, Joe has added a new wrinkle to his own repertoire this time. You notice it when he moves in to cuff his sparmates around. It's a little head bob and weave.

Not much, you understand, but about like the small swagger of a fellow who's just put over a parlay on a pair of 20-to-1 shots. It doesn't help his attack any, but it should put a little more hand-cap on a sharpshooter trying to nail the Bomber on the whiskers.

Joe doesn't know yet if he will be his blow-out from the business of basking beaks. He turns in his trunks and gloves next month to get a knaki suit and do some fighting for Uncle Sam. That is, if he can pass his Army physical examination in mid-October.

"Guess I can," he added. "Ain't nothing wrong with me, cept maybe flat feet, but that shouldn't stop me goin' in the Army."

This means he'll be independent the way he figures it, around the end of October. "I'll keep in shape and do some." (See LOUIS, Page C-4.)

Sally League's Macon Sweeps Series With Mobile, S. E. Ruler

By the Associated Press. MACON, Ga., Sept. 25.—South Atlantic League baseball proved superior to the Southeastern League brand in their interleague series.

The Mobile Shippers, Southeastern pennant winner and undefeated in its loop playoff, did not win a game from the Sally's Macon Peaches, who took the interleague series with a 9-1, fourth-straight victory last night.

Macon finished first, but was eliminated in the Sally playoff by Columbus.

Georgetown to Pull All Football Tricks Out of Bag in Mississippi Battle

Eager to Start Well, Hoyas Will Gamble Tomorrow Night

Blozis Is Likely Punter In Shoot-the-Works Effort G. U. Plans

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON. Georgetown will gamble on everything or nothing tomorrow night in a shoot-the-works effort to win its opening game from Mississippi at Griffith Stadium.

Coach Jack Hagerty today indicated that to win he'd pull every trick out of the bag even if it meant exposing the Hoyas' hand to a horde of fifth-columnists infesting the premises.

Thinking in these terms, Hagerty has about decided to let Al Blozis handle the kicking assignment on straight punts.

Hoyas to Vary Offense. Georgetown needs a long-distance booter more than Al Jolson needs a mammy and lanky Al seems to be the choice.

Coach Jack Hagerty today indicated that to win he'd pull every trick out of the bag even if it meant exposing the Hoyas' hand to a horde of fifth-columnists infesting the premises.

Frank Dornfeld, Lou Falcone and Joe Gyrogaydak will handle the quick kicks, which will be much in evidence and Dornfeld and "Bullet Ben" Reiges will attend to the passing.

Spirit Again High. Georgetown's spirit has perked up in the last couple of days. For a time it seemed as though dry rot had settled on the squad.

Much of their hopes are in the laps of the gods for reserves are scarce, and if any of the key men are injured there will be none to carry on.

Both teams will work out at the stadium tonight. Georgetown will be first on the field and Mississippi due here at 7:30, will follow.

Athletes just about are in command of the highly rated R. O. T. C. unit at the University of Maryland, which consists of a regiment of four battalions.

Maryland Aces to Meet

An important meeting of the Maryland Aces, 150-pound football team, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Maryland Park Market.

COLONIAL PITCHER—Scott Gudmundson, who is slated to start in the Georgetown Washington backfield in the opening game against Mount St. Mary's at Griffith Stadium Saturday afternoon. He's a versatile junior, with passing as his strong point.

Eight Lettermen Start for G. W. In Opener Against Mounts

Eight George Washington lettermen are in the tentative starting line-up named for the season's bow against Mount St. Mary's by Coach Bill Reinhart. Two positions will be filled by vets who failed to win a letter and the eleventh goes to a lone sophomore.

Stan Zlobro, a guard last season, will make his debut at left end, teaming up with the brilliant Johnny Picco who is expected to be a 4-star performer at the other wing.

Reinhart is confident the center of the line will be formidable, what with the veteran Ellis Hall and Henry Agusiewicz at guard and Don Seibert at center.

The backfield, principal cause of Reinhart's worries, will be manned by four vets, Paul Nugent, former fullback slated to start in the blocking back slot; Stub Martinson, Walt Fedora and Scott Gudmundson. The latter is a triple threat.

While this group has drawn the opening-game assignments the coach has let it be known that none can afford to loaf for the arrangement is far from permanent.

'Gators Taught to Take Chance On Throwing Away Pigskin

By the Associated Press.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 25.—It may boomerang occasionally, but Coach Tom Lieb of Florida hopes to win football games this fall by throwing the ball away.

It's the rugby influence that Lieb introduced last spring when he drilled the 'Gators in the British game, and its first season test brought a 26-0 victory over Randolph-Macon.

"In American football," explains Lieb, "we have taught our teams for a hundred years to 'hang on to that ball tight,' and oftentimes long gains or scores are missed by not passing the ball to a teammate in the open.

"One year I stressed lateralizing very hard with my boys and they threw five passes—four of which went to the opposition. But that was before they had much experience in handling the ball. The most recent handicap, I think, is that all the would-be blockers want to run behind the ballcarrier, anticipating a lateral, and sometimes the downhill blocking is not so good.

"I like the open style of game, and we hope to make our kids lateral-conscious to the extent that if there is a possible chance to score we'll utilize it. We scored three touchdowns on laterals last year—two of which went for 40 yards."

Ford, Given Hard Fight by Ellis, Retains Metro Ringer Title

Holley Ford still rules the colored horseshoe flippers of Metropolitan Washington. In a ding dong battle last night on the Commerce Building courts Ford retained his championship by defeating young George Ellis, District titleholder, in the final of the colored section of The Evening Star tournament, four games to two.

Two of the games were decided by a single point, as the pitchers matched ringer after ringer. With the count at 49-1 in the first skirmish, Ford fired a double and Ellis missed with both irons.

The youngster quickly squared matters with a 50-33 win for which he threw a flock of doubles.

Pitchers who competed in the event will meet at the "Y" Monday at 8:30 p.m. to form a horseshoe association.

the quarter-finals a consolation tournament will be held tonight at 7:30, to be followed by novel handicap matches. Consolation prizes will be presented by the Twelfth Street "Y."

Following are the pairings: Division A—Harrison Tyler vs. Ernest Marbury, Mark Johnson (bye), Harry Budd vs. Leon Hawkins, John Curley vs. Ike Bell.

Division B—Joseph Coles vs. D. E. Nokes, Leon White vs. R. Smoot, J. Smoot vs. Maurice Frazier, Aaron Hunter vs. Walter Brooke.

Wood, Nelson Win $2,000 Tilt, End Hogan-Demaret Streak

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Sept. 25.—Golf's law of averages finally has caught up with Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret.

The two Texans, the game's greatest twosomes, suffered their first defeat yesterday when National Open Champion Craig Wood and Byron Nelson trimmed them, 5 and 4, in a 36-hole best-ball challenge match over the Country Club of Detroit course.

Winners of the Inverness four-ball Invitational Tournament, Hogan and Demaret were unable to make up a five-hole deficit Wood and Nelson had gained at the halfway mark.

Rose Garden at Plant

HICKORY, N. C. (AP)—In six months this city's sewage plant grounds have been turned into a rose garden. Public contributions of cash, plants and materials installed the garden, maintained by plant employees. UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

—Swifts Help Supply Food for Chinese

Among the small birds which fly at high speed are the swifts. There are several kinds of swifts and all are related to hummingbirds.

One interesting kind of swift is the tree swift, also known as the crested swift. It is found in India and in other parts of Southern Asia. Often it grows to a length of 10 inches, but it makes a nest only a little larger than half the shell of an English walnut!

We may wonder how a swift could use a nest so small. The answer is that it sits over the nest, not inside it. The nest is fastened to a tree limb which provides a resting place for the mother bird. Only one egg is placed in the nest; it receives enough heat for hatching when the mother covers the opening of the nest.

That tiny nest is made of feathers and thin flakes of bark. It is glued to the tree limb with a gummy juice which comes from the mouth of the parent bird.

A nest almost as small is made by palm swifts. The nest is composed of cotton down and feathers. Often it is fastened to a palm tree downy seeds to make its nest. They are held together with the same kind of gummy juice employed by swifts of other kinds. Often they are hung from the roof of a cave. A nest of this kind may be six inches wide and two feet long.

"Edible swifts." The man at right is gathering nests.

The gummy juice is important in the trade of Asia. There are large numbers of "edible swifts" in Southern Asia, and they can make their nests entirely from the "glue" which comes from their mouths. The nests are almost without color—very much like window glass.

Long ago the Chinese learned that such nests could be eaten. On many tables in China "bird's nest soup" is a favorite dish. Some of the edible swifts use feathers, along with gummy juice, in building their nests. Such nests have little, if any, value when they are taken to market. The Chinese want their bird's nest soup to be pure.

The Queenmaker

by J. B. Ryan

The story thus far: Adam Warburton's partnership with the French desperado Montjoie ends in violence after Montjoie, to Warburton's horror, murders a messenger to Queen Elizabeth in the course of robbing him on the highway. Adam, loyal to his Queen, promises the dying man to fulfill his mission for him, which is to carry the black ring of Mary Tudor to Elizabeth as evidence of Mary's recent death. The man also has a letter addressed by Mary to the King of France but Montjoie makes off with it. Elizabeth tells Adam he must recover the letter or die—that her throne depends upon it—and he, with her servant Carewe, sets out to find Montjoie. At Underhill's tavern, outside London, where he and the Frenchman parted, and where Adam's life was saved by the blind swordsmen Sir Arthur Vance, the two men learn that Vance and Montjoie left together to call on Black George the channel pirate, who is also the Marquis of Winston. They meet Vance's daughter Molly and she joins them.

CHAPTER V.

"Why," asked Molly Vance in a small voice, "did you not inform them who I was?"

"Because, Mistress Vance," answered Warburton, "whether or not Parry's charges are true, your father seems to be a hunted man. You would have been held for questioning, if not actually arrested, and I would spare you that."

She looked into his eyes. "My father seems to have a true friend in you, Master Warburton. His daughter would be pleased to accept the honor of your protection from here to London."

He assisted her to mount, but when he moved to his own horse, she found Carewe waiting for a word with him.

"Why did you send Parry off on that wild-goose chase?" asked the blond man.

"Arthur Vance is a man to whom I am much beholden."

"But Vance is a criminal and there is a great reward offered for his capture. You could use a little money, couldn't you?"

Warburton drew himself up stiffly. It is becoming clearer every moment, Master Carewe, that you have been sent along merely to spy upon my actions. And even then, that it pleases me to believe that I can be the true subject of Elizabeth and, at the same time, the loyal friend of Arthur Vance."

No Quarrel Sought.

"I am asking no quarrel Warburton," protested Carewe, and smiled enigmatically as he added: "I am merely analyzing your various actions."

Warburton accepted the apology and in a moment the little party was on the highway, moving through the moonlight of the English countryside. Molly riding between Carewe and Warburton, with her man Purse following at a respectful distance.

Toward dawn they came upon another wayside inn, and here they paused for a short rest. Warburton, anxious to overtake Montjoie, left word that they be called after 2 hours of slumber. It seemed that he had hardly closed his eyes before he was stumbling down the stairs to a breakfast.

"If you keep up this pace, Adam," commented the sleepy-eyed Carewe, "we will overtake Montjoie in spite of the handicap of a late start."

"The advantage is all on our side," said Warburton. "We can make a bee-line for London, but Montjoie must move with caution, knowing that many eyes are on the alert for him."

"Good morning, gentlemen!" came a cheery voice, and both men were upon their feet, smiling a welcome to the girl who came to the door, the polished gallant, who drew back her chair for her.

The girl was more radiant than ever to Warburton. The pensiveness of the night before seemed to have been dispelled. Yet it was Carewe who thought to say, "You are beautiful this morning, Mistress Molly."

"You are only flattering me, sir," she protested. "I know that I look terrible from lack of sleep. These forced marches are no aid to beauty."

Progress Is Slow.

"Then heaven help us if you ever obtain your full measure of repose!" grinned Carewe. "I can hardly wait until we get to London where I can show you around. Wait until those old cronies of mine, Chisholm and Twerenbold, see the ravishing creature I have discovered in the hinterland..."

Warburton, who had been listening with a forced smile to the man's airy compliments, lifted his head. Twerenbold and Chisholm, he knew from hearsay, were two of the most reputable rakes in London. If they were friends of Carewe, what manner of man was this Carewe?

They took to the road once more. Progress was slow because of the recent rains, which had been heavy in this district. In the afternoon they halted in a small town at the suggestion of Carewe. "I am not unacquainted here, and if Montjoie and Vance have passed through, I'll find it out."

They saw Molly established in a room, but not together. "We'll make better progress if we search separately," Carewe had pointed out. Warburton spent the better part of an hour tramping from place to place. A blind man? A dark, foreign-looking gentleman? No, no such men had been seen in the little village.

Finally he returned to the tavern that was the headquarters of his party. Carewe was already in the public room, at table, deeply engrossed in conversation with two other men. He looked up with a quick smile at sight of Warburton.

"No luck, eh, Adam?" he called. "I guess they did not come this way." As Warburton sank into the only vacant chair, Carewe waved a hand toward his two companions. "Here are two friends of mine—Sir Roger Twerenbold and Master Richard Chisholm."

A Strange Proposal.

Twerenbold and Chisholm bowed. They were faultlessly attired, but tailor and barber could not conceal the marks of dissipation on their sallow faces.

"We have been discussing you," said Carewe, and for once he was not smiling. "We have decided that you are not as blindly devoted to Elizabeth as you would have us believe."

Only then did Warburton note that he had been maneuvered into a chair that placed him in a corner, hemmed in by the table and surrounded by the three men. Was it coincidence, also, that the room was empty of other patrons and even servants?

"We feel that you will listen to reason, Adam. You are a poor man, are you not?"

"Unfortunately, yes," admitted Warburton.

"In fact," added Twerenbold, with saturnine reish, "a penniless jailbird, not above knifing a traveler for his few belongings."

"Sir!" Warburton controlled an impulse to strike the sneering face. "Your words have all the flavor of an insult..."

"Roger!" Carewe snapped. "Let me handle this!" To Warburton: "Sir Roger—in fact, none of us—is any better than we believe you are. And birds of a feather should work together."

"Well?" asked Warburton, relaxed into his seat. What were these fellows getting at?

"We," said Carewe, and three pairs of eyes watched the brief of the words on the listener: "we are prepared to offer you wealth beyond your wildest dreams if you will abandon this search for Montjoie."

Warburton returned Carewe's gaze steadily. "I am afraid, sir," he said, "that I do not quite grasp your meaning."

"We want you to allow Montjoie to proceed unmolested to France with that letter."

"But... that would be fatal to Elizabeth's hopes..."
