Change of Venue Refused Catoe

Justice James W. Morris in District Court this afternoon denied a defense motion for a change of venue for Jarvis R. Catoe. Catoe is due to go on trial Wednesday on a charge of slaying Mrs. Rose Abramowitz.

Enlisted Army of Women Seen As Aircraft Warning Aides

Corps of 25,000 Performing Secret And Technical Work Is Visualized

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—An army of enlisted uniformed women who would be attached to the Air Corps Interceptor command in highly technical and secret positions was visualized today by Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the air force combat command, Bolling Field, Washington. Gen. Emmons disclosed that the War Department already has recommended to Congress passage of a bill authorizing the enlistment of from 25,000 to 40,000 women for this service.

Because of the strenuous nature of the work, Gen. Emmons said he believed the age limits would be between 18 and 35 and because of the secret nature of the duties involved all women would undergo detailed investigation and be finger-printed.

Adjunct of the Army.

The general said the women would have to be personable, trustworthy, speak plainly because much of their work would be by telephone, in good health and be able to meet certain educational requirements, probably a high school education.

He said the Women's Enlisted Corps would serve largely at information and filter centers in connection with the aircraft warning service.

"We propose to uniform them, enlist them as soldiers and commission some as officers," said Gen. Emmons. "They will be an independent adjunct of the Army."

He said that in three or four months we may not be so secure and I believe the people now realize this," adding that there was a definite possibility of token air raids in the event of war.

War Closer All the Time.

"War is getting closer to us all the time and our exposure to air raids becomes more and more in the realm of possibility," the general said. In connection with the present air force maneuvers in the northeastern area, Gen. Emmons said he noted considerable progress in the aircraft warning system in this section. He praised the co-operation of various telephone companies and the work of the civilian spotters, particularly the Boy Scouts, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mickey Owen, Goat of Series, Sells His Goats

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 10.—Arnold (Mickey) Owen, the Brooklyn Dodgers' catcher during the baseball season and a farmer the rest of the time, has sold his herd of goats—but don't jump to conclusions. Grinning, he announced the sale to neighbors who greeted him on his return from the World Series to his 250-acre farm but he quickly added it was "not because they reminded me of my part in the series."

Owen tried his best to convince his friends his error in dropping that third strike in the ninth inning of the fourth game permitted the Yankees to win the championship. "If it hadn't been for that muff Whit Wyatt would have given another day of rest—and with more rest he would have beaten the Yankees again," Owen said.

VIERECK ARRIVES—George Sylvester Viereck, as he arrived at District Court this afternoon.

Plea of Innocent Entered by Viereck In Propaganda Case

George Sylvester Viereck, New York publicist, pleaded innocent in District Court this afternoon to an indictment charging him with failing to register properly at the State Department as a German agent. He was photographed and fingerprinted at police headquarters and held in $15,000 bail.

Through George A. McNulty and William Power Maloney, special assistants to the Attorney General, the Government served notice it would push for a speedy trial. The Government was agreeable to having the $15,000 bond, set in New York City, continued here. Defense Counsel Daniel F. Coahalan, Jr., and Emil Morosini, Jr., both of New York, said they would create no unnecessary delays in the trial. Mr. Viereck is the head of the German propaganda office in New York City, continued here. Defense Counsel Daniel F. Coahalan, Jr., and Emil Morosini, Jr., both of New York, said they would create no unnecessary delays in the trial. Mr. Viereck is the head of the German propaganda office in New York City, continued here.

When Mr. Maloney attempted to tell the court that the evidence will show that Mr. Viereck is the head of Nazi propagandists in this country, Mr. Morosini intervened, declaring that there is no need to try the case at this time, and Justice Morris agreed.

Grand Jury Questions Two Fish Secretaries

Walter J. Reynolds, secretary to Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, and George Hill, Mr. Fish's second secretary, were questioned this afternoon by the additional District grand jury inquiring into alleged Nazi propaganda. Along with Charles Wilson, an employee of the House, they were questioned shortly after a number of franked matter of members of Congress who are sympathetic with the isolationists' viewpoint, were delivered to the jury.

Women United Protest 'War Steps' to Congress

Bearing written protests against arming American merchant ships and lease-lend aid to Soviet Russia, more than 500 members of Women United visited offices of members of Congress this afternoon after a trip here by special train from New York. The delegates met in the Senate Building caucus room to adopt a resolution condemning what they termed these "two insidious steps designed to push our country, against the will of the people, into war."

House Provides For 100 More D. C. Police

Lease-Lend Bill Amended in Move To Curb Crime

Without a dissenting vote the House late today adopted an amendment to the lease-lend appropriation bill providing for 100 additional policemen for the Metropolitan Police Department to help clean up the crime situation in Washington.

The amendment was offered by Chairman Cochran of the House Committee on Accounts after he had conferred with Democratic and Republican leaders. It had the effect of retaining the determination of the House to provide an adequate police force.

Funds Already Voted.

A special appropriation act passed by unanimous consent of the House August 15 provided an appropriation of $136,570 for this addition to the force. Of this amount, $117,570 is from the general fund and $19,000 from the highway fund, since 15 per cent of Police Department costs is assessed against the highway fund. Representatives, ranking minority member of the Appropriations Committee, asked Mr. Cochran if his amendment was not a repetition of the special act passed by the House, which the Senate has not yet reported out of committee, and whether it was not his hope that by making the provision in the emergency defense legislation the Senate might be impelled to act on it.

Cochran Explains Purpose.

Representative Cochran replied that the purpose of the amendment is to "stop attacks on women and give the police force sufficient personnel so that they can be held responsible for cleaning up the crime situation."

Chairman Cannon of the committee in charge of the lease-lend bill said that in view of the fact that the committee previously had brought the legislation before the House and obtained its approval, the committee would accept the amendment. Then the vote was taken.

Hillman Sees Jobs for Men Made Idle by Priorities

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—National defense building will shortly absorb the men, machines and industry made idle through the priorities system, Sidney Hillman, labor chief of the Office of Production Management, declared today. "Those startled by yesterday's headlines to the effect that private construction would be largely stopped because of the needs of the national defense program for materials should not be alarmed further," Hillman said. He added, "This is one of the phenomena we must take in stride if we are to preserve our liberties against Hitlerism."

Nazi Agent Claimed British Mail Scanned At Lisbon, Trial Told

F. B. I. Agent Testifies On Disclosure by Confessed German Spy

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A Federal Bureau of Investigation agent testified today that he heard a confessed German spy say that the contents of all British diplomatic pouches bound for this country were examined and photographed by a Nazi agent in Lisbon. The F. B. I. agent, William Friedman, a Government witness at the trial of 15 men charged with espionage conspiracy, also said he had overheard two of the defendants on trial discussing the best way to procure London's Washington-bound diplomatic pouches and that William G. Sebald, American counter-espionage agent posing as a German spy, had to caution them against throwing a diplomatic courier overboard.

Mr. Friedman said he overheard the conversations in Mr. Sebald's office. Motion pictures were made secretly of several of them, and they showed various defendants in conversation with Mr. Sebald. Noted Conversation. Mr. Friedman said that on April 25, 1941, he assumed his eavesdropping position in Mr. Sebald's office and made notes of the conversation between the defendant, Erwin W. Siegler, ship's butcher who with 17 others has pleaded guilty to the indictment; Leo Waalen, a painter, and Erich Strunk, ship's steward, who are on trial. Siegler and Strunk were then working on the liner Siboney, chartered by the American Export Line and plying between New York and Lisbon.

"Strunk said he had seen Capt. X again on the last voyage," testified Mr. Friedman. "He said Capt. X again was carrying diplomatic mail between London and Washington. "Strunk said that once while he was observing Capt. X on deck, an unknown destroyer fired a shot across the Siboney's bow. He said Captain X did not drop overboard the diplomatic pouch he carried, so he concluded the warship was English.

"Strunk said he could determine the contents of the pouch by taking it while Capt. X was asleep. "Wanted No Homicides. "Siegler said it could be done that way and also by stealing the pouch. Siegler said he thought the best way was to grab the pouch and push Capt. X overboard. "Sebald told all of them to refrain from any violence—that he wanted no homicides or assaults. Mr. Sebald, the Government's key witness, had testified earlier that he was commissioned by the German Gestapo to head the American spy ring and that he did so—in collaboration with the F. B. I.

Mr. Friedman said that on an earlier meeting, on March 28, Strunk told Mr. Sebald that Mr. Duarte (an unapprehended defendant named in the indictment under the alias Herbert Dobler) was "the main German official in Lisbon. According to the indictment and statements made by defendants, Duarte received microphotographic information from couriers from America and gave them German letters and other materials to be delivered to agents in the United States.

Had Access to Mail. "Strunk told Sebald," Mr. Friedman testified, "that Duarte had access to all diplomatic mail from and to London. He said Duarte (See SPIES, Page 2-X.)

Arms Plant Strikes Seen if C. I. O. Firm Gets Housing Job

SEATTLE, Oct. 10.—Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, said today that award of the Wayne County defense housing contracts to a firm dealing with the C. I. O. would cause a strike of A. F. L. unions on $50,000,000 worth of armament plant construction in Detroit. Mr. Martel, attending the A. F. L. national convention, told interviewers that if the Government gave the contract to the P. J. Currier firm of Detroit, it would amount to a "conspiracy to circumvent the law."

Arnold Sees Violation In F. W. A. Failure to Let Housing Contract

Prosecution Indicated In Slight to Lumber Firm, Carmody Told

Thurman Arnold, Justice Department anti-trust chief, has advised Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody that incidents behind the failure to award a defense housing contract to the Currier Lumber Co. of Detroit indicated a violation of the anti-trust laws, which would appear to require prosecution. This was learned today from informed persons who disclosed that Mr. Arnold had written to the F. W. A. chief last week on the basis of a complaint from P. J. Currier, president of the company, which erects pre-fabricated houses. The Anti-Trust Division investigated the situation and a report of preliminary findings has been sent to Mr. Carmody, it was reported.

House Defeats Lease-Lend Ban On Soviet Aid

Move to Bar Russia Is Voted Down 162 to 21

BULLETIN. The House passed the Lease-lend bill at 5:20 p.m. today.

By the Associated Press.

The House refused this afternoon specifically to exclude Russia from aid under the $5,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation.

By a standing vote of 162 to 21, the members defeated an amendment by Representative Rich, Republican, of Pennsylvania to provide that no part of the fund be used for the benefit of the Soviets.

Mr. Rich said he wanted something in the bill to prevent President Roosevelt from "transferring one cent" of the fund "to any nation which practices Communism." Democratic speakers replied that while they too loathed Communism Russia was opposing Hitler and Representative Faddis, Democrat, of Pennsylvania asserted: "Whether we like to admit it or not, we owe a debt of gratitude to Russia."

Amendments Beaten. Sponsors of the appropriation have said repeatedly that present plans did not call for aid to Russia under the pending legislation.

The House easily defeated a series of amendments, starting with the rejection of an attempt to cut $100,000,000 from a $1,190,000,000 fund for ordnance, supplies and ammunition. The standing vote was announced as 133 to 84. Representative Case, Republican, of South Dakota, who sponsored the reduction, argued that the $100,000,000 could be taken, if necessary, from another $1,000,000,000 in the bill for "unforeseeable requirements."

Cannon Defends Allotment. Saying the reduction would mean a month's production loss, Chairman Cannon of the Appropriations Committee asserted: "It's impossible to predict 12 hours in advance what's going to happen. In 30 minutes a bomb may destroy a factory that's building supplies in Great Britain."

Then Representative Engel, Republican, of Michigan, proposed a $60,000,000 cut in a $385,000,000 item for tanks, armored cars, automobile and trucks, contending, like Case, that that total could be reduced and, if necessary, the cut could be made up from the contingent fund. But his amendment also was cast aside on a 135-83 standing vote.

Other Proposals Lose. In short order these amendments also were rejected: By Representative Rich, to cut $40,000,000 out of the $850,000,000 category for ships and supplies, on a 116-to-69 standing vote.

By Representative Taber, Republican, of New York, to slash $300,000,000 from a $1,875,000,000 fund for agricultural, industrial and other articles and commodities, on a 97-to-71 teller vote.

By Representative Andersen, Republican, of Minnesota, to provide that none of the money could be spent for sending tractors abroad, on a teller vote of 137 to 95.

Foes Concede Passage. Meanwhile, Republican critics privately conceded the House probably would approve the huge appropriation by nightfall and send it to the Senate.

Opponents of the new spending authority said, off the record, that they were trying, principally, to make a better final-vote showing than last spring, when the House approved the first $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation on a 336-55 roll call.

Two days of general discussion of the bill ended yesterday with Republicans chiding Democrats because less than a dozen of them were on the floor to listen to the arguments. But the Republicans conceded, too, that only about 50 of their number were listening.

Day Hits Soviet Aid. Representative Day, Republican, of Illinois, who until yesterday had planned to sponsor the amendment that would have barred aid to Russia, told the House: "Every dollar of this appropriation, in the sole discretion of the President, can be given to the Soviet Union if he so desires. Please do not in this chamber haul down the flag of the Constitution."

"The scheme of lend-lease is to have a continuous flow of materials. This bill is but one of a series. They will bring more inflation, more disaster."

"I would rather not leave this chamber and have it said that I forgot my friends in Illinois and became a close buddy of Joe Stalin when I got to Washington."

Russia's Valor Cited. But Representative Woodrum, Democrat, of Virginia declared that to date Russia is "the only power that has been able to check or stop or slow up the hordes of Hitler."

"I have no more love for Communism than you have," the Virginian told the House. "I do not like a rat-scatter and I am not going to get close to one if I can help it, but if I could get hold of one of them and had a fair opportunity, I would like to slip it up the pants leg of Adolf Hitler."

Nazis Smashing On to Moscow Over Piles of Dead, Reds Say; New Threat to City Is Reported

Russians Hurling in Massed Reserves To Halt Drive

By The Associated Press.

Russian front-line dispatches conceded today that Adolf Hitler's invasion armies were still advancing "over mountains of German corpses" in the Bryansk sector of the 9-day-old battle for Moscow, and simultaneously the British radio reported a new threat developing almost due west of the U. S. S. R. capital.

B. C. said Nazi troops were striking toward the upper Volga town of Rzhev, 125 miles west of Moscow, thereby stretching the main Soviet defense line into a 270-mile arc through Vyazma and Bryansk to Orel. The Germans said the line of attack was 30 miles long.

In the see-saw fighting around Vyazma, 125 miles southwest of Moscow, the Russians admitted the Germans had scored gains in several sectors, but said picked Red Army troops were now moving up to meet them, reinforcing units which breached the first violent impact of the Nazi onslaught.

The sweep of mighty armed German forces through the gap in Russia's central front lines was compared by the authoritative German commentary Dienst aus Deutschland with a torrent of water pouring through a break in a once-pouring dam.

The news commentary used the simile in asserting that the breakthrough announced by the high command had opened the way for "the masses of German divisions to pour into the spaces conquered by armored formations."

Rings Are Tightened.

Besides breaking the Russian lines, the communique said, the Germans yesterday tightened the rings around Red armies at the Sea of Azov, Bryansk and Vyazma.

The Germans reported "forward progress along the entire front" and said one "kettle" of Soviet resistance after another was being wiped out.

The Germans were now hammering at Moscow from three and perhaps four main sectors, possibly attempting to surround the Russian capital as they circled Warsaw in 1939.

Reports circulated in Berlin, officially unconfirmed but not denied, that Nazi troops had captured the important railway town of Tula, only 130 miles south of Moscow.

Authorized German sources hinted that vanguards of German units south of Moscow already were east of the longitude of the Russian capital with the intention of surrounding it.

A Nazi military commentator said the break-through extended roughly from Orel, about 220 miles south of Moscow, to Vyazma.

Huge Nazi Forces Hurdled.

Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, said the Germans were throwing immense forces into the new push after being routed earlier in the Bryansk sector, 220 miles southwest of Moscow.

As an example, Red Star said two Nazi tank divisions and two motorized infantry divisions were hurled against a single Red Army unit of undisciplined size, and that three German infantry divisions, led by 100 tanks, attacked another Soviet unit during a one-day battle.

Red Star said the Germans were continuing to advance at several sectors near Vyazma, about midway on the Smolensk-Moscow highway. But there, too, it said, the invaders were paying the price of enormous losses.

Furthermore, it declared, the pick of the Red Army is moving up to them, reinforcing units which took the first shock of the offensive now in its second week.

Elsewhere in the same region, counterattacking Soviet troops were reported to have routed a German motorized column, killing 8,000 Nazis and destroying 220 tanks in a five-day battle.

Main Plan Declared Foiled.

Red Star summarized the broad picture of the situation by saying the Germans had won some successes on some sectors but that one of their main plans had been foiled by failure to surround the defending armies.

Other Soviet dispatches asserted that despite the renewed fury of the German onslaught, Hitler's vast encirclement plan for Moscow had collapsed and that at least some of the trapped Red armies had battled their way out of the Nazi trap.

The atmosphere in Moscow itself, contrasting with yesterday's official acknowledgement of a grave emergency, was distinctly more confident.

The Soviet command was reported to have opened the floodgates of Russia's mighty man power reserves, throwing masses of fresh troops into the bitter conflict.

A Red Army bulletin reported also that the Nazi offensive north of Orel, on the south wing of the German drive on Moscow, had been blocked. The Russians earlier acknowledged the loss of Orel.

Soviet front-line dispatches said at least 15,000 German officers and soldiers had been killed in various "pocket" battles around Vyazma and Bryansk.

Loss of 3 Cities Admitted.

Authoritative quarters in London confirmed that the Germans had captured Melitopol, Oskoppek (Berkansk) and Mariupol along the north shore of the Azov Sea, and said it was possible that a considerable pocket of Russian resistance existed west of those points—presumably cut off.

These informants were skeptical, however, of German assertions that

Hitler Is Reported Offering Armistice Terms to Russia

Soviet Declared Giving Consideration; London And Berlin Deny It

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Reports that Germany had offered an armistice to Russia circulated widely in Europe today.

A non-Axis informant on the continent, a man with wide diplomatic connections whose information has proved highly reliable, said Russia was giving the terms, forwarded through Japan and Bulgaria, serious consideration because of her present critical situation, but this was denied by an authoritative Russian source in London.

"There is not a vestige of truth in the report," this London source said. "The Germans know we would not accept an armistice if it were offered."

Another reliable London source said, however, that it was understood the Germans had floated a trial balloon through the Japanese.

He said he did not know if any actual offer had been made, but indicated feelers had been put out as to Russia's attitude on turning over her air force to the Germans and placing her factories under German supervision.

Informed circles in the United States considered an armistice offer quite possible—in fact, considered it a quite normal procedure on the part of the Germans at such a time—but were less inclined to accept the thesis that Russia was giving such a proposal any serious consideration.

200,000 Men Rejected British Fleet Planes For Army Service To Be Rehabilitated

President Says U. S. Will Pay Cost of Correcting Defects

By JOHN C. HENRY.

President Roosevelt announced today that the Government will undertake immediately a program for rehabilitation of 200,000 registrants who have been rejected for military service under the Draft Act.

This number, he explained, is included among 1,000,000 men rejected, and is the portion for which complete rehabilitation is believed feasible.

Consulting a report submitted to him by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, the President informed his press conference that approximately 50 per cent of 2,000,000 examined registrants have been disqualified because of physical, mental or educational reasons.

Others, totaling approximately 100,000, were rejected because they could not meet fourth grade educational standards, but the 900,000 remaining were all found to be physically or mentally unfit.

It is a situation, the Chief Executive remarked gravely, which the country should consider most seriously. With 200,000 of the rejected men believed in shape for full rehabilitation and subsequent general service in the Army, the President said that many of the remainder could be possibly restored to health and inducted for limited service.

The initial rehabilitation program, however, will deal only with those who may become fully serviceable.

United States to Bear Costs.

In brief, Mr. Roosevelt explained, the registrants will be chosen by Army medical boards for the rehabilitation effort and will be given the privilege of having the curative services performed by family physicians or dentists in their home communities.

"The cost of this rehabilitation program," Gen. Hershey's memorandum to the President stated, "will be borne by the Federal Government as a necessary part of our national defense program and additional funds will be made available to the selective service system for this purpose."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had no immediate estimate of this expense, but that the Army believed it would cost it $500,000,000 if the rejected registrants had been inducted first and rehabilitated later. The proposed method will cost much less, Mr. Roosevelt said.

For the 100,000 rejected on educational grounds, the President said there is no Federal corrective plan at present. Education, he pointed out, is primarily a State and local problem, and he would not favor having the Federal Government

British Planes Reported In Collision Off Sicily

Rome, Oct. 10.—The collision of two British bombers off the Sicilian coast during heavy anti-aircraft fire was reported today by the Italian high command.

It said both crews were killed. The planes caught fire on collision, it said, and one crashed to the ground while the other sank at sea.

Lively Italian artillery action was reported in the siege of British-held Tobruk, and German and Italian airmen were said to have conducted separate raids on the docks, harbor, artillery and other defenses of the city.

The communique acknowledged a British raid on Bengasi.

C. I. O. Boycott In Dispute Perils Tank Production

Workers at Toledo Refuse to Handle A. F. L.-Made Parts

By The Associated Press.

Production of transmissions used in about 70 per cent of all Army tanks "is going down hourly" because of an A. F. L.-C. I. O. dispute at the Spicer Manufacturing Co., Toledo, Ohio, and a subsidiary at Hillsdale, Mich., Vice President Ralph E. Carpenter reported at Toledo today, following an announcement by the War Department here that the bulk of the Army's tank production was threatened.

Mr. Carpenter said C. I. O. unionists in the Spicer plant refused to handle parts manufactured by A. F. L. workers at the Hillsdale Steel Products Co.

"No more materials are being received from the Hillsdale plant, and the Spicer plant is drawing on stocks at hand," Mr. Carpenter added. The company gave no indication how soon stocks may be depleted.

Mr. Carpenter pointed out that Spicer's 2,200 employees were at work, but that the drain on existing stocks eventually would shut down production.

Operating About Normal.

L. W. Thomas, plant manager of the Hillsdale subsidiary, said his company was operating about normal.

The Hillsdale firm was closed last week because of a dispute between United Automobile Workers Union (A. F. L.) and the U. A. W.-C. I. O. Mr. Thomas said, however, the company had resumed production last Wednesday following fighting between the rival groups at the plant gates Tuesday. He said only about 35 workers of the 800 employed were not at work.

A score of State police are maintaining a guard at the Hillsdale plant, where seven were seriously hurt in Tuesday's fighting.

Also Makes 'Jeep' Parts.

The War Department announcement said the Spicer company makes about 70 per cent of the transmissions for all the Army's tanks and also for most of the half-tractor and "Jeep" combat vehicles.

The Toledo plant was said to be involved in the dispute only indirectly. It has a contract with C. I. O.-A. W.

The Hillsdale Co., however, has a contract with the A. F. L. Automobile Workers' Union, which recently won a Labor Relations Board election there.

The Toledo plant was involved yesterday when, officials said, the C. I. O. put into effect a secondary boycott at the Spicer plant, serving notice that workers there should not handle any of the parts of the Hillsdale plant. Several freight cars of parts from Hillsdale were said to be unloading at Toledo today.

Army Police to Begin Duty Here Tomorrow

A squad of military police will be placed on duty in the District 9 a. m. tomorrow, Washington Provisional Brigade officers announced today.

Authority for the move was granted the brigade by the War Department yesterday, and it was understood that military police would begin duties in Washington on the week end of October 18. However, a meeting with Acting Police Chief Edward J. Kelly late yesterday, brigade officers decided to put the program in effect a week ahead of schedule.

Twelve men will be in the first group of military police, working in three 8-hour shifts. They will be stationed at the Municipal Center, where a cell block has been turned over to military authorities for use as a "clearing house" for soldiers arrested in the city.

President to Address U. S. By Radio October 27

President Roosevelt will make a Nation-wide radio address on the night of Monday, October 27, he announced at his press conference today.

The speech will mark the annual observance of Navy Day to be broadened in scope this year and given the title of Naval and Total Defense Day.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would make his speech at a dinner of the Navy League, now tentatively scheduled for the Mayflower Hotel. The speech will be broadcast about 10 p. m.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 10 (AP)—Dr. B. F. Fackenthal, 90, of Riegelsville, Pa., president of the Board of Trustees of Franklin and Marshall College, was killed today in the collision of two automobiles while he was being driven to a board meeting at Lancaster, Pa.

New War Building To Be Four-Fifths of First Size Planned

Somervell Reveals Dimensions in Reply To Architects' Criticism

The new War Department Building in Arlington, Va., will be about four-fifths the size of the structure originally proposed by the Army, Brig. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, Army construction chief, said today after a conference on the structure with President Roosevelt at the White House.

Gen. Somervell made the statement concerning the building's size when pressed for details and informed of charges by several Government architects that the Army was being "secretive" about its plans for the structure and intended, in spite of the President's wishes, to put up a building equally as large as that originally proposed.

Acceptable to White House.

Gen. Somervell said the dimensions had been worked out several weeks ago with the knowledge of the White House at a conference between himself, Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission, Budget Director Harold D. Smith and Secretary of War Stimson.

The general also said a plan submitted at the Army's request by the Public Roads Administration for provision of access roads to the building on the Virginia side of the Potomac were acceptable to the War Department.

He said he understood from conversations with Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District director of highways, that provisions for solution of the District traffic problem in connection with the new building had been worked out. The cost of planning the city's improvements, as he understood it, are to be borne by the city itself.

As for the cost of the improvements themselves, Gen. Somervell said he was not certain whether the District of the Federal Government would have to pay.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District director of highways, said later, however, that there was no question but that the Federal Government will have to pay. He said the Federal Government already has given him money to make preliminary surveys of the necessary work and that the city will need at least an extra $4,000,000 if the work is to be done in time to meet the demands of the War Department Building program.

Capital 'Bombed' in Test of New Civilian Aid Raid Signal Corps

The Capital underwent its first "air raid" at 12:50 o'clock this afternoon when an attack flight of "enemy bombers" passed over the city to test the communications of the newly organized air raid warning system for civilian defense.

The first "raid" was heralded at the message center for the Metropolitan Area in District fire alarm headquarters when a yellow light flashed on the switchboard. This meant that the approaching "raiders" were approximately 20 minutes flying distance from Washington and put the city on the "air alert."

The warning was telephoned here from Baltimore, and was based on information supplied the filter center there by civilian observers posted at many points between Washington and the Atlantic seaboard.

At 12:54 the blue light flashed on the switchboard of local headquarters, meaning the approaching hostile aircraft were approximately 12 minutes out of the capital. At 12:55 the red light showed on the board, giving the five-minute warning. The airplanes swept over the city a few minutes later and the white light for "all clear" was flashed at 1:07.

From the message center in Washington, warnings were telephoned to hospitals, public utilities, Government buildings, police and fire services, etc., and to air raid wardens and to a theoretical corps of air raid wardens on the streets when the yellow light showed.

A false "raid" alarm, for which no explanation was immediately available, flashed on the control board at 3 p. m. The blue signal, indicating that enemy planes were approaching Washington and only 12 minutes distant, came up first. Seven minutes later the all-clear white signal was flashed, and this word was sent out from headquarters here to message centers in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Porter Lumpkins, chief clerk of the District Engineer Department, who was appointed chief air raid warden for the exercises, was at his station at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue N.W. to receive the warnings of the developing "attack" through a telephone set plugged into the fire alarm box. It was Mr. Lumpkins' duty to inform message headquarters of such services were needed in his locality.

Home Washer Plants Certified for Award Of Defense Contracts

In Peril of Shutdown, Industry Is Declared Available for Arms

By The Associated Press.

The O. P. M., acting to avert widespread unemployment in the household washer and ironer industry, certified the entire industry to the War Department today for special treatment in the award of defense contracts.

It was the first industry-wide certification, covering 34 companies in many States, all threatened with curtailments because of shortages of materials needed in military production.

The certification declared the industry was capable of making 17 defense items, ranging from anti-aircraft machine gun mounts to bomb fin assemblies. O. P. M. estimated that "an order for a sizable quantity of any one of these items would absorb the bulk of the unemployment in prospect at this time."

Recommended by Floyd B. Odum, director of O. P. M.'s contract distribution division, the certification was in line with the new purchasing policies worked out to spread armament orders into plants confronted with "priorities unemployment." Previous certifications have covered communities rather than entire industries.

Three of the largest firms were certified as being capable of handling prime contracts, and the rest of the industry has assented to their accepting such contracts with the understanding that the firms would grant smaller plants sub-contracts in amounts proportionate to the unemployment faced. The three are the Nineteen Hundred Corp., St. Joseph, Mich.; the Apex Electrical Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, and the Easy Washing Machine Corp., Syracuse, N. Y.

Construction Paralysis Seen In U. S. Order

Builders Declare Millions Will Lose Their Jobs

BACKGROUND—

Involving unparalleled veto power over the $11,000,000,000 construction industry, the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board has prohibited the start of any non-essential public or private construction which would divert vital materials from the defense effort. S. P. A. B. issued a policy ruling that projects which it deemed unnecessary to "direct national defense," public health or safety would be barred for the duration of the emergency from "priorities" on such vital metals as steel, copper, bronze, aluminum and brass.

How Building Ban Works. See Page A-22.

Representatives of the construction industry predicted here today that "thousands" of workers in Washington and about 4,500,000 persons throughout the country would be thrown out of jobs as a result of the Government's action yesterday curbing new building projects not essential to defense or to the health and safety of the people.

Arthur B. Heaton, president of the Washington Building Congress, estimated that the policy decreed by the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board will force 3,000 small building and building supply firms and contractors out of business in the Capital.

M. W. Watson, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, declared that if the order is strictly enforced it will add 4,500,000 persons to the Nation's unemployment rolls. He said that S. P. A. B.'s estimate of 1,500,000 men working on non-defense construction did not include the 3,000,000 men and women employed by materials makers and in other branches of the industry.

Mr. Watson said S. P. A. B.'s announcement did not reveal figures which "justify such a drastic step" and added that while the construction industry is willing to make any necessary sacrifice for defense, it "should not be shut down without ample explanation by the Government of the absolute necessity of such action and assurance that other industries are expected to make equal sacrifices."

Experts at the Office of Production Management estimated that building construction of all kinds will drop in 1942 from an estimated $11,200,000,000 to about $3,500,000,000 with the volume of non-defense construction expected to be around $2,000,000,000 as compared with $5,000,000,000 this year.

The O. P. M. statisticians placed the unemployment rate at materially less than the estimate of Mr. Watson, reaching a figure of 800,000 as compared to his estimate of 1,500,000. "Construction workers in many communities will be very hard hit," O. P. M. said, "although those in other localities will benefit by the shift in activity. Building trades workers as a rule are more mobile than industrial or commercial workers."

Richard Gray, an A. F. L. building trades official, said that thousands of construction workers would be affected by the order, but he would not venture a more exact estimate.

Finished in 18 Months.

A large portion of 1,500,000 building mechanics organized by the A. F. L. are now engaged in defense plant construction work, but in another 18 months, he said, most of this work will be finished. He predicted that with a ban on new non-defense building, construction employees would be left without employment.

"It will be a job for us to try to establish these workers in some other line," said Mr. Gray, "and with their average age about 47, rehabilitation will be difficult."

S. P. A. B. asserted that due to the heavy defense demands for metals, the United States cannot build all the warships, planes, tanks and other things essential to national security if scarce metals are unnecessarily used in building projects that are not vital to defense.

Pointy concerns have made reports similar to that of W. L. Browning of Barber & Ross Co., who said the S. P. A. B. order "will put us out of business." He said his company, one of the city's largest materials firms, supplies supplies primarily for private projects and has little Government or defense business. He added that local builders so far seem to have little trouble getting priorities and that effects of curtailments had not been felt to any considerable extent—up to now.

$4,000,000 in Permits Pending.

At the District Building, a check-up revealed that applications for building permits are pending on projects for more than $4,600,000 in the city. Only $191,200 in permits were issued this week, the smallest total in several years.

Pointing to S. P. A. B.'s assurance that construction already started and substantially completed will be allowed to permit completion of the job, some District officials expressed confidence that no major public or private projects were to be halted.

Their forecast did not apply to all private pending projects, however. While the far-reaching order indicated that every navigation and flood-control project on the billion-dollar program now pending in Congress would be subject to critical study by S. P. A. B. authorities said that the program would be altered only slightly, since plans were made with the thought that such a development might occur.

Members of both the House Flood Control and the Rivers and Harbors Committees said that projects were

Nazis Resent Dogs Instead of Hitler In Dutch Press

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Netherlands government sources here assert that the following official notice has been sent to editors of newspapers in the Netherlands by the German authorities:

"Severe action will be taken unless the practice stops of publishing a whole page of pictures of dogs on the main news pages when Hitler meets Mussolini or Horthy, or when the German Army has made sensational advances on the eastern front."

"We are just as tired of this as of articles ventilating public complaints about food shortages and coffee that does not taste like coffee."

all other Government-owned buildings, said he had instructed Charles A. Peters of the Public Buildings Administration to undertake a survey of them.

Laughingly, the President agreed that the campaign compares with some of the economy moves of President Calvin Coolidge—one of which was to save pencils. Asked if one of which was to save pencils. Asked if one of which was to save pencils. Asked if one of which was to save pencils.

Mr. Roosevelt said some of those already are being liquidated. Brass and copper are among the industrial metals for which the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board yesterday declared an urgent need.

The President, remarking there might be comparable quantities in

Fish Aide Obeys Court Order to Deliver Mail Bags to Jury

Sacks Produced Against Representative's Advice For Nazi Investigation

A number of mail sacks wanted by a District grand jury investigating activity of alleged Nazi agents were removed from outside a storeroom assigned to Representative Fish, Republican of New York and delivered to the grand jury before noon today.

Finis Scott, House postmaster, said the delivery was at the written request of George Hill, second secretary to Mr. Fish. In a District Court hearing yesterday Justice T. Alan Goldborough ruled that Mr. Hill should produce the bags by noon today or explain why not.

The Justice Department claims these bags came from the office of Prescott Dennett, secretary of Make Europe Pay War Debts Committee. This organization, the department asserts, received contributions from George Sylvester Viereck, registered German agent who is scheduled to be arraigned here today under grand jury indictment on charges of withholding essential information in his registration with the State Department as an agent of the Nazi government.

Mr. Hill told reporters he could make no comment today, since the grand jury had told him to maintain silence. But Representative Fish reiterated his contention that his secretary could not legally produce the bags, although he might ask the House postmaster to send them over on the postmaster's own responsibility.

Mr. Fish said he advised Mr. Hill that "since the bags have never been in your possession you should not touch them."

Disappeared September 19. The Justice Department contends the bags were among 20 which disappeared from Mr. Dennett's office at 1430 Rhode Island avenue N.W. on September 19, a few hours after Mr. Dennett was ordered to appear as a grand jury witness.

Mr. Fish said Mr. Hill sent a House of Representatives truck on that morning to pick up 500 copies of Fish speeches, at Mr. Dennett's suggestion. The truck came back loaded with mailbags which Mr. Hill refused to accept, according to the representative. It is some of these which were found outside Mr. Fish's locker, he believes.

Mr. Fish today called attention to the fact that the bags have now been lying unguarded and unlocked for weeks.

Could Move Evidence. "If any one wanted to stuff those bags with grand jury evidence," Mr. Fish said, "he had every chance to do it." Mr. Fish said, "And if anybody wanted to take evidence out of those bags, he had every chance to do it."

He recalled that from the first discovery of the bags outside his locker, he has invited the Justice Department to come and take them away. Department officials have indicated several times that they were on the point of doing so, but they have not, on the grounds that they have no authority to remove mail from a House storage room.

Mr. Fish suggested this morning that the proper person to be subpoenaed was the truck driver who, he said, placed the bags on his own responsibility. Investigator Maloney ridiculed this suggestion, telling a reporter that the bags "were in the possession of Fish, and Hill did order where they should be stored."

THE DROUGHT HELPED BUILD IT—This picture of the retaining wall beneath the Massachusetts Avenue Bridge shows workmen putting on the finishing touches. Unhindered by rainfall, which would have caused washouts during its construction, workmen hope to complete it tomorrow, a month ahead of schedule.

Dry Spell Helps Speed Retaining Wall for Rock Creek

Job Takes Two-Thirds Of Time Due To Lack Of Washouts

It's an ill drought that does nobody good. A case in point is the District, which has profited in one way from the current dry spell.

Out in Rock Creek Park, beneath the recently completed $500,000 Massachusetts Avenue Bridge, workmen have been building a retaining wall to keep the stream from undermining the span's west foundation.

To be finished tomorrow, the retaining wall was started two months ago. During the progress of the work the amount of rain that has fallen wouldn't have dampened a gnat's wing. Weather Bureau officials say the precipitation since the first of August has been more than 50 per cent below normal.

Ordinarily this wouldn't be cause for joy, but the District Highway Department is the exception. Working at the base of a steep bluff, where any rain causes washouts and otherwise hampers construction, the men making the retaining wall were able to finish it in two-thirds of the time ordinarily taken for such a job.

While the saving in time taken to build the wall won't reduce its $12,000 cost, since that amount was stipulated by contract, it will mean quicker completion of the widening work on Rock Creek and Potomac parkway on the other side of the stream.

The Office of National Capital Parks, which controls the land, required the District Highway Department to complete the retaining wall before finishing up with the parkway. This was done because widening the road meant showing the stream perilously close to the opposite side, where it might have harmed the bridge's foundation.

Now, with the retaining wall finished, the road can be finished in a couple of months, and a broad avenue will pass under a beautiful bridge, where before a narrow, hazardous road wound beneath a dumpy archway.

Now let it rain.

LINDBERGH KIN AT RALLY—Augustus F. Lindbergh (right), a relative of the flyer, chatting last night with actress Helen Gahagan (Mrs. Melvyn Douglas), Democratic National Committee woman from California, while waiting for the start of a dinner session of the "Continental Congress for Freedom." Board Hits Parking Bill's Condemnation Powers

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission objects to broad powers given the District Commissioners in the off-street parking bill, including outright authority to acquire by condemnation, or otherwise, any property in the city for garages or parking lots, it was reported today.

This bill is to be considered Monday and a report is being prepared by the commission to be sent to the House District Committee. The committee has been advised of the report.

The planning commission is of the opinion that it should have authority to approve sites selected for parking facilities on the fringe of downtown areas. Specific objection will be made to a section of the bill which says the Commissioners shall have "the power to acquire any property, real or personal, or any interest therein, by purchase, lease, gift, bequest, devise, or grant, or by condemnation in any area of the District as to which the (parking) agency shall have made a determination that public parking facilities are necessary or expedient."

Beer Sales Net $7,723, Montgomery Reports. Beer sales by the Montgomery County (Md.) Liquor Control Board of last week resulted in a net profit of $7,723.67, it was revealed yesterday. The August figure was $7,730.06.

A total of $65,183.24 worth of beer was sold by the board to liquor stores throughout the county in September, as compared with $75,640.06 worth sold the previous month.

After deducting costs of purchases, freight and containers, a gross profit of $12,107.52 was reported last month. Further deductions for salaries, rent, light and supplies brought this figure down to $7,723.67. With the addition of other income, such as cash discounts and vendors' receipts, the county reported a net income of $7,723.67.

Miss Mildred Alicia Heinemann, 854 Van Buren street N.W., is president of the local alumni chapter.

Senator Reynolds and Bride Spend Night at Raleigh, N. C. RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 10.—Senator Reynolds, Democrat, of North Carolina, and his bride of a few hours, the former Evelyn McLean, arrived here late last night on a honeymoon trip that will take them to Florida, and perhaps to Cuba, during the next few weeks.

The 57-year-old senator and his 19-year-old bride were welcomed in the lobby of their hotel by a group of State officials.

Senator Reynolds said that the length of his wedding trip depended entirely "on what takes place in Washington." He said the Military Affairs Committee, of which he is chairman, had cleared up all pending legislation except a bill by Senator McCarren of Nevada providing for the creation of a separate department of air.

On his way back to Washington, the Senator said, he expects to stop at the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Hugh Drum to observe maneuvers of the 1st Army, which are now getting underway in North and South Carolina.

Mrs. Reynolds, who said that she was "terribly tired" after the long trip from Washington, posed for a few pictures with her husband and excused herself.

The Senator said that he and Mrs. Reynolds planned to make their home in North Carolina at the lodge he owns in the mountains near Asheville.

Democracy Fighting For Its Safety, Johns Tells Kiwanians

Wisconsin Representative Calls for Critical Eyes Against Propaganda

Warning that "instead of a world made safe for democracy, democracy today is desperately fighting to make itself safe in the world," Representative Johns, Republican, of Wisconsin today called for a revival of "true democratic faith" to help "analyze and reject false and subversive appeals that are being broadcast in the way of foreign propaganda."

The speaker, who was formerly president of Kiwanis International, spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Capital district of the organization in its 23d annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Every citizen of the Republic must think and act, not in terms of what he may enjoy for himself or herself, nor in terms of what this Government may do for you," he said, "but in terms of what would be our fate and our children's fate if we should have an economic breakdown of our Republic and totalitarian forms of government should gain any degree of dominion over us."

Democracies "Resting on Oars." "The great trouble is, the democracies of the world have been resting on their oars ever since the World War and have permitted totalitarian governments to establish themselves in almost every part of Europe."

Praising the ideals of Kiwanis, he said: "The only thing for every member of Kiwanis to remember is that the vocation of every member of his club is to serve our people."

The speaker called on his hearers to help "our public enterprise, in civic, State or national work." It will do much to overcome the harm that is being done in this country by propaganda and other subversive influences."

This afternoon the program called for a golf tournament at Congressional Country Club and sight-seeing. The annual banquet to-night will be addressed by Floyd B. Odium, director of contract distribution, of the Office of Production Management.

Hear Call for More Bombers. "Air Defense Against Air Attack" was discussed at the opening session last night by William Courtenay, British aviation journalist. He called on the United States for more bombers for England, to help "keep the war from your own shores and over the other fellow's territory."

In air warfare, the speaker said "attack is the best form of defense." Calling attention to the current program here of establishing the American air defense system, Mr. Courtenay explained the elaborate system in England, relating personal experiences there.

"The war may be drawing nearer your shores," warned the speaker, "not via the Atlantic as is popularly supposed—but via the Pacific. If Germany conquers Moscow and advances to the Ural Mountains before winter, she may be able to resume her march through Siberia next spring and thus confront you with the prospect of invasion via Alaska and not via the Eastern Seaboard. It is a contingency which should never be far from your thoughts, since war is full of surprises."

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Herman S. Hoffman of the Washington club, who also presented Group Capt. David F. Anderson of the Royal Air Force, now at the British Embassy, and C. R. Fairley of the British Air Commission, American and British flags flanked the speakers' platform, and the audience sang both the "Star Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King."

Sees Children as Future. Welcoming the convention on behalf of the Washington Kiwanis Club, of which he is president, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter referred to the Kiwanis program as vital in the present crisis, looking to the future with its aid to youth. "Every issue which is beyond the immediate present," he said, "depends upon our second line of defense—our children. It is no exaggeration to state that service to the underprivileged and unfortunate members of our respective communities is the greatest contribution to a vitalized democracy that can be made. Our opportunity as Kiwanians is to help build youth of strong character, bodies and mind, in order that they, as the men and women of tomorrow, will be able to reconstruct a new world order out of the debris left by the war, founded solidly on justice, equity and truth."

District Commissioner Guy Mason welcomed the convention on behalf of the city. Irving Diener of Alexandria, Va., responded. Charles G. Reiner of Baltimore conducted a memorial service. Group singing was led by Bill Raymond and Bill Schmucker. The Pikesville (Md.) Kiwanis Boys' Band played several selections. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. C. C. Bell of Washington Street Methodist Church, Alexandria.

Carson Gregory, Petersburg, Va.; Louis P. Smith, Roanoke, Va.; D. Hurd Good, Martinsville, Va.; Martin L. Doodson, Bridgeville, Del.; Claude B. Hellman, Baltimore, Md.

Businessmen Push Recruiting of Aides For Chest Drive

Full Roster of Captains By Oct. 15 Is Goal; Clapper Voices Plea

Spurred on by an address yesterday of Raymond Clapper, newspaper columnist, Communist Chest recruiting was launched with new force today as the business section of the Metropolitan Unit set as a goal completion of the entire roster of 66 team captains by the middle of this month.

Members of the business section will be assigned to duty in three concentrated downtown areas. B. M. McKelway, chairman, announced that volunteers for this service are urged to get in touch immediately with chairmen or team captains.

"We need our volunteer personnel now, in order to be properly organized by the time the intensive Chest campaign opens on November 13," Mr. McKelway said.

Federal Group Meets Tonight. Meanwhile, Wayne Chaffetz-Taylor, chairman of the Government Unit of the campaign, invited approximately 100 representatives of Federal offices to meet at 7 o'clock tonight at a dinner at the Chevy Chase Country Club.

Government Unit vice chairmen invited to tonight's meeting include James V. Bennett, director of prison, Justice Department; Frank A. Birgefeld, chief clerk of the Treasury; W. L. Clayton, deputy Federal loan administrator; Ernest G. Draper of the Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System; G. Howland Shaw, Assistant Secretary of State; South

Trumble, Jr., solicitor, Commerce Department, and John Russell Young, president of the Board of District Commissioners.

In his talk yesterday, Mr. Clapper, recently back from a trip to England, advised that "conditions which approach wartime" add more than ever to the need for social services.

Warns of Prosperity. "Things I saw in England convince me of this," he declared. "Over there the social service organizations are second only to the military forces."

More than 150 representatives of the various units which will help with this year's Community Chest drive assembled at a luncheon here at the Y. W. C. A. heard the columnist give a detailed account of his trip abroad and conclude with a warning that prosperity in a community does not lessen the need for social service.

"England has prosperity of a nature," he said. "That is, everybody is working. But England needs social service now more than ever, and the same is true here in Washington. Don't let prosperity or a boom fool you. The more people who come to a community, the more you must have social service to take care of them."

Great Britain's dislocated life, according to Mr. Clapper, has given rise to the greatest community organization in its history. The present war, he said, is a war in the civilian areas instead of a war out on the front, and every woman has some special social work which she does to help keep the home of the community going. Some are members of the fire department and some do canteen work and some assist in air raid precautions, he related, but all work for the other fellow.

Campaign Film Previewed. "I came back feeling more than ever," he said, "that, with a lot of faults they have, they have worked out a system that allows the kind of life we like to live."

After Mr. Clapper's talk, the Community Chest's new campaign motion picture, "For Freedom," was previewed in its first formal showing. In presenting it, Herbert L. Willett, Jr., director of the Chest, announced that the film already has been booked to be shown before more than 300 agencies and groups.

Discussing further the plans of the business section, Mr. McKelway revealed that volunteer solicitation in Area No. 3, headed by Richard L. Johnson, chairman, and Richard K. Lyon, vice chairman, will be carried on entirely by Junior Board of Commerce teams. The board, he explained, has for many years assumed responsibility for an entire area in the Chest campaign.

United States control over the Isthmus of Panama."

"The coup d'etat of the Republic of Panama is another episode in Roosevelt's policy," Gayda wrote. "It is the United States that has provoked it and assumes all responsibility for it."

The editor declared that the United States had brought about this as an answer to Panama's attempt to avoid paying United States-owned ship under its flag, which he said would involve the country in war.

Differences With U. S. Acknowledged by Arias. HAVANA, Oct. 10 (AP)—Dr. Arnulfo Arias, ousted President of Panama, said today "certain differences" had arisen between his administration and United States authorities and he added caustically that his case contained "a lesson for small countries."

In an interview with Cuban reporters he discussed the situation he left when he fled the little republic incognito before dawn last Tuesday, ostensibly to see an oculist in Cuba.

"It appears that they (little countries) prevent the right to raise living standards, achieve economic independence and prosper let they be considered 'a threat' for the future," Dr. Arias said.

"My government wished to grant lands (to the United States) for air bases and other defense works, but it wished full compensation for private lands," he went on. "Otherwise the much-discussed solidarity couldn't be understood."

The coup convinced me I was wrong. Believe me when I say I sincerely regret it for Panamanians and for those, our good neighbors, of the north."

He acknowledged that Panama's refusal to permit the arming of United States ships of Panama registry had been "badly received" in the United States.

New Crisis With U. S. May Spur Japanese To Fresh Conquests

Present Government May Be Wrecked and Army Get Tighter Grip

By GLENN RABB, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Japan is moving toward a new crisis in her relations with the United States which may wreck her present government, place the empire's destinies more completely in military hands and open a new phase of her program of conquest, according to trustworthy sources reaching the Associated Press in New York.

The Japanese have felt that for the last six weeks there has been an encouraging truce in the long-drawn, steadily worsening friction with America. They date the truce from the delivery late in August of a personal message from Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye to President Roosevelt. They indicate that hopes they placed in that gesture have been disappointed and that the truce is nearing an end. They blame American unreadiness to match that gesture of conciliation.

Persons in close touch with developments in Japan and able to draw on information not permitted to pass the censor give this picture:

Japanese leaders fear a break with the United States is impending. Premier Konoye has let it be known that he will not accept responsibility if this comes. In his effort to come to some sort of understanding, even a transitory and superficial one, with America falls, if there is not early improvement in trans-Pacific relations, the Konoye cabinet will fall.

Minami May Become Premier. It will be replaced by one of general and administrative ability, even more under the domination of the "Greater East Asia" Axis-bound military clique than ever before. Names of likely successors to Konoye already are being discussed, among them Gen. Jiro Minami, who was War Minister when the program of conquest began in Manchuria 10 years ago, and others of like background.

Prince Konoye is reported to have asked rather hopelessly, "what good did it do me to change the cabinet?" referring to his recent resignation of the government just three months ago to get rid of Foreign Minister Yosuko Matsuoka, who was held chiefly responsible for the alliance with the Axis and the neutrality pact with Russia.

This was a move to regain a measure of diplomatic freedom of action, to permit Japan to take stock of the world trade and see whether something could be done to avoid a clash with the United States.

Prince Konoye made such an effort when he sent his letter to Mr. Roosevelt. Its contents have remained secret, but the Japanese set much store by it. Most of them really believed there was a chance of coming to some kind of terms. No such hopes were expressed in Washington. Americans felt that a reconciliation of their declared policy of all-out aid to Britain, Russia and China, and Japan's program of conquest in alliance with Germany and Italy called for fundamental concessions the Japanese were not ready to make.

Calm on Surface. But for the last six weeks the President has omitted specific mention of Japan from his verbal attacks on the Axis. Ambassador Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura was known to be continuing "explanatory" talks with Secretary Hull. On the surface there was calm, although mutual freezing of assets halted trade between the two countries and trans-Pacific steamship services were suspended.

The storm clouds seem to be gathering again. For one thing, the successes of the German Army against Russia are provoking new clamor for action by the Japanese militarists. They are preparing a mighty arm in Manchuria apparently for a drive into Siberia. If the Russian armies in the west collapse they are expected to insist that an unparalleled opportunity to end forever the Russian menace in the east must be seized. And a failure to reach understanding with America will strengthen this insistence.

The present Konoye government and the masses of Japan want no trouble with the United States. But the government's position, with its own militarists and the Germans both pressing for action, is nearly desperate.

The German interest is to keep Japan and America hostile to each other, bring them to war if possible. Some of the Reich's ablest diplomats are concentrating in the Orient to promote this. Whether Japan lunges at Singapore and the Netherlands Indies in the south or Siberia in the north, the break with America will be nearer.

Measures Taking Effect. American and British economic measures against Japan are beginning to take effect and economic experts believe they will produce progressively more hardships in the next two or three months. One Tokyo newspaper says Japan is "choking" has had no imports of oil or steel for many weeks. Foreign commerce, except that with the conquered areas of the Asiatic continent, is practically finished.

The winter just ahead promises to be the worst in memory for the Japanese masses. The summer rice crop was damaged by typhoons and floods. Quantities of other food crops have rotted in the sodden fields. The government has found it necessary to assure the people there will be enough to eat but to urge them not to depend on rice but switch to potatoes and coarser grains.

Fuel is scarce. No private automobiles may be operated. Clothing is more shoddy. Persons returning to Tokyo after a few months' absence express astonishment at the poor quality of goods in the shop, the shabbier outward aspect of Tokyo, the change in the temper of the people.

This, they say, is characterized by a deepening bewilderment and sullenness. The Japanese people really do not understand the pass toward which they have moved these last 10 years. But they do not blame themselves or their government. Their resentment is against America and other nations that "do not understand" them.

Ready for Hari-Kiri. This attitude, the informants say, blends dangerously with the mood

Man Who Inspired Bairnsfather Cartoon Of 'Old Bill' Dies

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Portly, walrus-mustached J. Murrigan, 76, the original of Bruce Bairnsfather's cartoon character "Old Bill," died today at the Chelsea Royal Infirmary.

He served with Bairnsfather in a Warwickshire regiment in the World War.

of the militarists, a combination of desperation and eagerness to seize the enticing opportunities opened by German victories. Partly it is Japanese fatalism. If their program must fail they are ready to go down fighting, commit a kind of national hara-kiri.

The consensus of experienced persons in the Orient is that the next move of the Japanese armies probably will be against Russia. The movement of men, machines and horses northward goes steadily on and estimates are that about 1,000,000 men are concentrated in Manchukuo and Korea, with all equipment for a campaign lasting through the winter. This force is believed to be at least equal now in numbers and armament to the Red Army of the Far East, on which Stalin undoubtedly has drawn heavily to buttress his yielding ramparts in the west.

Mutual fear pervades the narrow Sea of Japan. Vladivostok is blacked out nightly. Travelers on the Trans-Siberian Railway report many signs of feverish military activity. Tokyo is building air-raid shelters, drafting a program of air-raid insurance, trying out anti-aircraft batteries. This month the capital and other Japanese cities are undergoing air-raid maneuvers surpassing anything before.

To return to the American question: The Japanese press, which has close government control, points out that six weeks have passed since Konoye wrote to the President and churched a belief that conciliation has failed. It contends that "the cancer of the Pacific"—Japanese-American friction—cannot be removed by such gentle means. It blames American selfishness and inability or unwillingness to understand how Japan's program for a "Greater East Asia" will contribute to the well being of humankind.

Disappointment Sincere. Much of this disappointment is sincere. For years the Japanese people have not been permitted to read anything that might shake their faith in the righteousness of Japan's program of conquest and expansion. Editors, writers, even high officials have come to accept this gospel without question.

There is reason to believe that when Ambassador Nomura reached Washington a few months ago he was appalled by the distrust and dislike of Japan's policies and the abyss between the American and Japanese points of view. In Japan he had not been able to get the real picture, although he had been among the nation's most eminent leaders, for a time Foreign Minister.

His chief efforts since, it is understood, have been directed toward giving his government some conception of the vast psychological differences between Washington and Tokyo and of the strength of American determination to fight totalitarian domination of the world.

That was one reason why his chief aide, Minister Kaname Wakasugi, hurried to Tokyo a few weeks ago. Wakasugi returned to Washington this week but indications still are lacking that his mission has improved matters on either side of the ocean.

Japanese Press Continues Attacks Against U. S.

TOKIO, Oct. 10 (AP)—Editorial blasts against the United States, apparently timed to coincide with the return to Washington of Japanese Minister Kaname Wakasugi, appeared today in Japanese newspapers for the third straight day.

Since important talks between the United States and Japan undoubtedly have reached a critical stage, observers said, the Japanese papers appear to be preparing the public for an adverse result.

The newspaper Kokumin asserted there was no way of knowing how the talks were progressing since Premier Prince Konoye sent a message to President Roosevelt last August 28.

U. S. Held Responsible. "But," the paper added, "it is evident the conversations sooner or later will collapse completely as long as the United States forgets Japan's friendly attitude to America. We may not be able to avoid the worst eventuality. The United States should know that she is responsible for whatever happens."

The Japan Times and Advertiser, controlled by the Foreign Office, said editorially that the "whole situation in the Pacific shows the United States and Britain are building a great and menacing machine for employment against Japan."

"The protective steps already taken or contemplated by Japan are seen as justified by the aggressive nature of these demonstrations."

Contradiction Laid to U. S. The government spokesman, Koh Jishi, declared at a press conference that he thought it was a contradiction for the United States to negotiate with Japan on one hand and "adopt such an unfriendly attitude" on the other as he said was reflected in recent Manila, Singapore and Hong Kong conferences.

The cabinet approved a foodstuffs program by which 24,555,000 yen (about $5,650,000 before yen quotations were stopped) would be spent to convert nearly 250,000 acres of mulberry groves to wheat, barley and other foods.

Japan hopes to obtain an additional 4,000,000 koku (20,476,000 bushels) of wheat and barley. Domei reported that the Japan-Manchukuo-China economic liaison conference meeting here decided to establish a central control body to regulate all trade between the yen bloc and other countries.

British Awakened To Seriousness of Crisis in Russia

Newspapers Hammer at Complacency; Gravity Of Situation Stressed

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Britons suddenly awoke today after several pleasant months during which they had thought the Russians would probably finish Hitler off—with, of course, such supplies as Britain and the United States could send—and found themselves facing an impending crisis such as has not existed here since the days of Dunkerque.

Every British newspaper today hammers at British and American complacency. Dozens of articles bring forcibly home to those who have not seen it, the desperate gravity of the situation on the Russian front. Such optimistic comment as exists dwells on the stubborn fighting qualities of Russian men and women, on the fervent nationalistic patriotism which will make the Russians carry on the war even if Moscow falls.

For the first time, the phrase "if Moscow falls" appears in the headlines.

Tremendous Anxiety Felt. Were the British government headed by any one other than Winston Churchill, whom the British people believe to be a dogged fighter with sufficient daring to undertake the most dangerous expeditions if he thought they would have a chance of success, it would not be rash to say the government would fall if Moscow fell. As it is, the government will not fall, but it will be the butt of bitter criticism and the outlet for the tremendous anxiety that people here are beginning to feel.

Military information here is scanty. The Beaverbrook and Harriman missions, which reached London this morning, can add little to the picture of the Moscow campaign. They left Moscow a week ago. They can say what Russian effectives are—how large Russian reserves of men and material are.

The government has asked them to make a full statement at the next session of Parliament. Emanuel Shinwell, the most alert member of the Labor party, tabled a motion yesterday asking for such a statement after Lord Beaverbrook's return and the situation is such that the government will certainly have to make some statement. Whether the information that Parliament wants can be given in a public session of the House is doubtful.

Churchill May Speak. It is rumored that Mr. Churchill may speak to the nation Sunday night.

Meanwhile such information on the campaign as is known here comes from German communiques. It is believed, however, that the German drive against Rzhnev is powerful and so far has not been stopped. It is equally clear that German tactics consist of two pincer movements designed to incircle Soviet troops in the Vyssama and the Orel areas. If these are successful the Orel arm of the pincers will probably drive northeastward to join up with the Rzhnev pincer behind Moscow and to cut off Moscow from the east by cutting the Trans-Siberian Railway.

In the south the Germans have made considerable progress toward Rostov, occupying by Russian admission, the Azov coastal towns of Melitopol, Berdyansk and Mariupol. There, it is believed, fairly large Russian forces have been encircled. Further north the drive from Poltava toward Kharkov has been slowed down and heavy fighting is going on in that area.

Stalin Goes to Front. The visit of Premier Josef V. Stalin to the central front with his military adviser, Gen. Shaposhnikov, has raised the question in many minds as to whether the strategy being followed there is Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's or Gen. Shaposhnikov's. Were it certain that it is Marshal Timoshenko's, non-British military experts would be more confident, as they have considerable confidence in the marshal.

They point out that he headed his class at the German staff college and presumably thinks along the same military lines as his opponent. If Marshal Timoshenko is following tactics used by Kutusov, the general who defended Moscow against Napoleon, he will have withdrawn his troops without exposing them to encirclement.

It is recalled that the grand duke attempted to follow Kutusov tactics during the last war but that the Czar canceled his orders, with disastrous results. Has Stalin intervened with different plans on the advice of Gen. Shaposhnikov and will the result be the same? If the answer were known to these questions it would be easier to estimate Marshal Timoshenko's chances of maintaining the bulk of his armies intact. (Copyright, 1941, Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

Opponents of Revising Neutrality Act Map All-Out Battle

Isolationists Hope To Keep U. S. Ships From Warring Ports

BACKGROUND— Pressure for revision of neutrality law has been built up behind record of sinkings of American-owned ships engaged in maintaining supply lines between this country and hemisphere outposts or the fighting fronts of the anti-Axis forces. In first World War cargo carriers were armed and were permitted to sail in any waters. By present law prohibitions are enforced against both of these privileges.

By the Associated Press. Congressional opponents of neutrality law revision decided today they would have to wage an all-out fight against President Roosevelt's request for authority to arm shipping, even though some in their ranks were not opposed to the idea of putting guns on merchantmen.

The big objective, Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, explained, was to preserve the law's existing provisions prohibiting American-flag merchantmen from operating in combat zones or voyaging to belligerent ports.

However, he said, many opposition legislators had come to the conclusion that unless a substantial vote could be mustered against the ship-arming proposal in the House, administration forces in the Senate were likely to seek more sweeping changes, which would end the curb on ship movements. House hearings are expected to start on Monday.

"There are some who believe that the arming of ships might not be so bad in itself," Senator Taft told reporters, "but when it is linked with a proposal to send those vessels into the war zone, the whole question must be considered."

Fish to Change Stand. In the same vein, Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he would reverse his previous decision to support the armed-ship proposal if it became apparent that this was "part of an administration plot to get rid of the combat-zone provision in the Senate."

"In that case," he declared, "I will be against the whole darn thing." President Roosevelt told Congress yesterday, in specifically requesting repeal of the ban on arming merchantmen, that he hoped the legislators would carry out the "true intent of the Lend-Lease Act by making it possible for the United States to deliver articles to those who are in a position to use them."

"In other words," he went on, "I ask for congressional action to implement congressional policy."

This meant, the President said, that Congress out to give "earnest and early attention" to other major revisions of the Neutrality Act so that this country would cease giving the definite assistance which we now are giving to the aggressors.

"For, in effect," his message said, "we are inviting their control of the seas by keeping our ships out of the ports of our own friends."

"It is time for this country to stop playing into Hitler's hands and to unshackle our own."

The President pointed out that while most of the war supplies authorized by Congress were being delivered, many of them were being sunk, adding that as this country approached full production requiring the use of more ships it would be "increasingly necessary to deliver American goods under the American flag."

The United States could not, he went on, depend on the exiled governments of Norway and Holland to furnish the ships needed to carry supplies to countries fighting Hitler, nor should its ships be forced to "masquerade" as they have done under the flags of sister American republics.

This was promptly interpreted in some quarters as an invitation for immediate action to repeal the ban against American ships entering belligerent ports, but administration-sponsored legislation introduced in both chambers immediately after the message was read called only for elimination of the armed-ship restriction.

Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told reporters, however, that he hoped to offer legislation at a "later date" to strike out the combat zone provision. He insisted he had no present plans to link it with the pending bill, despite opponents' assertions that such action was contemplated if the House passed the army-ship proposal by an overwhelming margin.

The President's message aroused mixed reaction in Congress, with administration leaders uniformly endorsing his proposals.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said that in view of the "danger our country now faces, there is no course we can pursue but to follow the recommendations of the President."

On the other hand, Minority Leader McNary expressed his belief in the Neutrality Act had been passed to keep the country out of war, and he saw "no justification for its modification."

Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia said he thought the President had taken "a wise step" in recommending the arming of merchant vessels, and he did not believe such action would "in any way increase the danger of our becoming an active belligerent in the war."

Senator Lucas, Democrat, of Illinois looked on the arming of ships as a "timely warning" to would-be attackers and Senator McFarland, Democrat, of Arizona asserted that the crews should not be denied the protection such action would give them.

Although congressional critics were quick to say that the changes suggested by the President would lead to what Senator Taft described as "an undeclared naval war in the Atlantic," the President assured the legislators in his message that the proposed revisions "do not call for a declaration of war any more than the Lend-Lease Act called for a declaration of war."

Defense Needs May Cut Power for Drought Area

By the Associated Press. Defense industry requirements may force a cut in civilian electric power consumption in the drought-afflicted Southeast, the Federal Power Commission warns.

Unless the drought is broken soon, commission engineers say, hydro-electric power production may be affected "even more adversely" than in 1925 and 1939, the worst years on record.

They predicted that without rain, conditions may become acute in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi by November 1, and in other southeastern States by December 1.

A meeting of State public service commissioners and utility engineers is scheduled next Tuesday in Atlanta to consider the problem.

R. A. F. Planes Start Offensive Against Nazi Lands Again

Bombers Skim Beneath Low Clouds to Strike At Coast of France

In spite of continued unfavorable weather, British bombers resumed their operations against Nazi-held territory last night and today.

Skimming over Dover Strait under low rain clouds, Royal Air Force fliers struck today against the German-occupied coast of France. One formation speeded for a point between Calais and Dunkedue. Later others made for Boulogne, Calais and Dieppe.

Last night British bombers attacked shipping and other objectives at Aalesund, on the west coast of Norway. Details were lacking.

One Plane Raids Britain. Britain was raided by a single German plane last night which dropped bombs on one place on the southwest coast.

"A few houses were damaged and a very small number of people sustained slight injuries," a communique said.

The Air Ministry news service in London said tankers, supply ships and armed trawlers in fjords along the Norwegian coast, spotted during daylight reconnaissance, were targets of last night's R. A. F. attack, along with a fish oil factory at Aalesund and a radio station on an island nearby.

Bombing by bright moonlight, some of the attacking planes dived within 200 feet of the targets, the news service reported.

Faeroes Islands Raided. German bombers sank four merchant ships totaling 6,600 tons yesterday and attacked important installations on the Faeroes Islands and in Northern Britain, the German high command announced in Berlin.

German artillery batteries on the channel coast were said to have scattered a British convoy which was heading southward, the force forcing the ships to return to British harbors.

On the same night, the British said, the R. A. F. blew off parts of the foredeck of another merchant ship of about the same size in a low-level attack, leaving the craft badly damaged.

Sight-Seeing Agents To Convene Monday

A North American travel conference will be staged in conjunction with the convention, to afford rail, steamship, bus and air agents an opportunity to discuss travel plans for the coming year.

Reports of Germans Massing at Brenner Circulate in Reich

European Diplomatic Circles Also Hear Of Concentration

By Radio to The Star. SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE, Oct. 10.—Reports of Nazi troop concentrations in the vicinity of the Brenner Pass on the Italian frontier are circulating among certain usually well-informed European diplomatic circles and among people within the Reich itself.

According to these accounts, the numbers of these troops far exceed the normal requirements of the border guard, particularly for an "allied frontier," or even for replacement units now in Italy. It must be stressed that there is no external confirmation of such movements, although the current European rumor crop includes, from other sources, assertions that the Italians are at work on Brenner fortifications on their side.

Story Widely Repeated. Within the Reich the story of a German Brenner threat spreads from mouth to mouth like the first information that the Nazis were massing troops in Poland on the eastern frontier last spring. The source then was usually letters to relatives from soldiers in the field. It may be the same now. At any rate the account is being widely repeated.

Two internal measures indicate some change in the Nazi-Fascist relationship. Many Germans in recent months have spent much-needed vacations with their southern neighbors. Three weeks ago the Reich suddenly refused to issue such visas. More recently a new regulation requires special permission from the Reich labor office for Italian workers employed in Germany to return for brief visits home. Previously they traveled relatively freely.

Talk of a separate peace effort is repeatedly heard since the disastrous African campaigns last spring. Most observers believe that this is impossible, pointing out that the Italians must fight either for or against the Nazis. Their position is unenviable.

Revolt Not Likely. The prospects of an internal revolt likewise are minimized despite the widespread grumbling, unrest and hardships. Few German soldiers are seen in Rome currently, but Sardinia and Sicily are reported heavily garrisoned, while Nazi officials share the most important ministry posts as "advisers."

As always in war, the little people will be the biggest sufferers, whatever the result. Italy already relies heavily on what supplies the Reich is still able to forward. A sudden rupture of this Alpine artillery would add new chaos to Italian economy.

Whether Germany is able in any circumstances to meet her commitments remains an open question. She is believed now to be behind in scheduled coal deliveries, one of the principal commodities. Central heating is not to be permitted in Rome until January, it is noted. (Copyright, 1941, by Chicago Daily News.)

Gen. Muir Assumes Command of 44th, Replacing Powell

Transfer of New Jersey Political Leader Is First Shake-up in Maneuvers

By the Associated Press. CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 10.—The 1st Army arrived at the concluding phase of its first week of maneuvers in the Carolinas today with a new commanding officer for the 44th Division and the prospect of undergoing more strenuous training next week.

Maj. Gen. Clifford R. Powell, New Jersey political leader and veteran of the World War, was succeeded in command of the 44th by Brig. Gen. James Muir, on the recommendation of the 2d Corps commander, Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall.

Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, after conferring with Gen. Powell, announced formally that the 44th Division commander had requested assignment as commander of Fort Dix, N. J., home post of the New Jersey and New York National Guardsmen, in the 44th.

In this position he would have only the administrative duties incident to operation of the camp and instead of training soldiers or commanding field troops, would head the permanent "housekeeping" force of about 2,000 there.

Five Officers Transferred. Simultaneously, announcement was made that a colonel, two lieutenant colonels and two majors in the 29th Division (Maryland-Virginia-District of Columbia) had been relieved of their commands.

A statement from the Army's public relations department indicated all five were above the age limit for their present ranks.

Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer of the 115th Infantry, also was relieved of his duties and assigned at corps headquarters.

Lt. Col. George Henderson, intelligence officer of the 29th Division and former Mayor of Cumberland, Md., was expected to succeed Col. Markey, and be succeeded by Maj. Sidney Morgan.

The five other high-ranking 29th Division officers who fall under the terms of the new age-in-grade regulations were transferred to special duty with the 2d Army Corps.

Col. Markey, whose home is in Frederick, Md., has been ill since Monday when he suffered a fainting spell. At 58, he is overage for duty in his rank with troops in the field. Besides Col. Markey, those who went to corps head were Lt. Col. Graham E. Bright, division inspector; Lt. Col. Ray H. Uhlinger, 176th Field Artillery; Lt. Col. Harry B. Jordan, 116th Infantry; Maj. Marshall Fletcher, assistant division plans and training officer; Maj. William N. Briscoe, 104th Quartermaster Division motor officer.

Speaking to the officers of his corps, Gen. Fredendall expressed satisfaction with the teamwork and progress shown in field tactics.

However, he severely criticized one regimental commander for sending soldiers on a forced march under a blazing sun carrying full packs when, he said, truck transports were available to carry the packs. Only a third of the command reached its objective, he said, adding that the incident was an example of "what not to do."

Gen. Fredendall also said "officers set a poor example for the men falling out Monday morning when they could have kept going. Week end bellywash and a hot sun don't mix."

Meantime, Maj. Gen. Charles F. Thompson's 1st corps, divided into Red and Blue arms, struggled through the final phases of a mock battle near Winnsboro, S. C. The 28th and 29th Divisions of the 2d Corps completed an exercise in withdrawal and pursuit in the area west of Chesterfield, S. C.

Under the lead of its new commander, Gen. Muir, the 44th Division arrived at Carthage, N. C., and engaged in simulated combat with the 26th Division and other troops of Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell's corps.

Upon conclusion of their problems today the various units will return to their base camps for a week end of recreation.

One soldier was killed and nine others were injured in two accidents in the Army maneuvers area yesterday.

Pvt. (First Class) William L. Selton, 95th Engineer Battalion, stationed near Ellerbe, N. C., was killed when the Army truck he was driving overturned about 3 miles south of Ellerbe.

Bishop Warns A. F. L. Soviet Victory Means Threat to World

Says Labor Would Be Victim if Russia Becomes Conqueror

SEATTLE, Oct. 10.—In the face of an American Federation of Labor Executive Council recommendation for aid to Russia, the Catholic Bishop of Seattle warned today that a Communist victory would threaten the world with disaster.

The Most Rev. Gerald Shaughnessy, S. M., asserted in an address prepared for the fourth day's session of the A. F. L. convention: "I solemnly warn you, my friends of the labor movement, that not in the wildest dreams and without the aid of the Gohls and Visignis of ancient days . . . was there ever such a totality of death and destruction as almost inevitably will crush this earth if, in our zeal to overcome one enemy of freedom, we raise on high as the winner the steed and triumphant arm of conquering Communism."

Opposes Aid Proposal. The bishop said he spoke with specific reference to "what I understand to be a fact that this convention is going on record as favoring all-out aid to Russia."

The reference was to a recommendation of the A. F. L. Executive Council. The council's annual report proposed that, although Russia's Communist regime is inimical to the interest of democracy and "without the slightest pretense that the United States and Soviet Russia are friends or can be friends," practical military self-interest dictates aid to the enemy of Nazi Germany.

Far more dangerous than the fifth column threat, Bishop Shaughnessy declared, "is the communistic propaganda army which I shall christen the sixth column—a Frankenstein monster . . . which bids fair to finish the destruction of pitiful Russia."

The bishop continued: "Frankenstein's monster, I fear, is abroad in our land today, that monster of Communism that bids fair to finish the destruction of pitiful Russia which thought she had found freedom from communism only to learn that man's inhumanity to his fellow man is a far more bitter lash than the most inhuman despot can devise."

Indicts Both Sides. The bishop indicted regimes of Germany and Russia jointly for enslavement of labor and suppression of religion, admonishing: "Labor can never calmly stand aside and behold religion oppressed without realizing with undeniable logic that labor itself is the next slated victim."

Emphasizing that the freedom of elections was a cardinal principle to be defended to the end, Bishop Shaughnessy declared: "Some have indeed brazenly dared to go so far as to suggest that in 1942 the regular constitutional elections in this country be omitted. Whether this be a trial balloon or not, I think it well for every citizen to be upon his guard and not to laugh off as silly such a suggestion. Such laughter rose Hitler to the power he wields today."

F. I. Jones Dies; Former Employment Director. Francis I. Jones, former director general of the United States Employment Service, Labor Department, died yesterday in Neptune, N. J., it was learned here today.

He was a founder and president of the St. David Society of Washington. Mr. Jones leaves three children, Miss Gwladys W. Jones, Francis I. Jones, Jr., and Dr. Clifford I. 'Turkey Ball' to End Annual Rockingham Festival Tonight

Miss Jacquelyn McWin Is Crowned Queen of Virginia Event

HARRISONBURG, Va., Oct. 10.—Turkey throws, band concerts and a street carnival were planned for visitors to the third annual Rockingham Turkey Festival today, while a round of receptions and other social events constituted the program for Miss Jacquelyn McWin of Waynesboro, on the final day of her reign as festival queen.

Miss McWin will ride at the head of a float parade of 30 units this afternoon. Bands will be in the line of march. The two-day celebration will close tonight with the "turkey ball" at Harrisonburg's city armory.

Miss McWin received her crown in colorful coronation ceremonies on the Madison College campus yesterday. Representative Randolph, Democrat, of West Virginia placed the crown of snow-white turkey feathers on the brow of the Waynesboro girl, who was "Miss Virginia" in the recent Atlantic City beauty pageant.

Mayor Ward Swank presented the queen, clad in a robe of pure white, with her scepter. E. D. Ott, Harrisonburg attorney, introduced Mr. Randolph.

Miss Caroline Crown of Harrisonburg, representing the host city, and Miss Bee Hite of Timberville, representing Rockingham County, were maids of honor. One hundred princesses and ladies in waiting, three vested choruses and a guard of honor from Augusta Military Academy furnished a striking setting for the coronation of the 18-year-old queen.

Coronation Ball Held. Miss McWin, members of her court and distinguished visitors were guests at a reception at the Elks' Home after the coronation. The opening day's events were concluded with the coronation ball at Augusta Military Academy.

A crowd of thousands saw the festival's opening yesterday. The program included the release of eight big turkeys from the top of a six-story building at noon. Spectators jamming the streets below scrambled for the choice birds as they fluttered down.

Congress Heights Citizens Approve Air Warden Plan

Deputy and Skeleton Staff Will Be Appointed Soon At Mass Meeting

The District's movement to set up machinery for the selection of civic air raid wardens was approved last night by the Congress Heights Citizens' Association at its first meeting since the summer recess. Co-operation in the plan was pledged 24 hours after it had first been launched at a special session of 100 leaders of various groups throughout Washington.

Plans also were made for the distribution of circulars to advertise a mass meeting which will be held in conjunction with other District citizens' associations at a date to be set by Commissioner John Russell Young, defense co-ordinator. At this meeting one deputy air warden for the Congress Heights zone will be elected, as well as three assistants and perhaps 20 or 25 others to make up the remainder of a skeleton staff.

The Executive Committee, headed by President J. Lewis Geibman, last night also reported the following proposals for the 1943 District budget: Opening of Fourth street S.E. to make a direct route from Nichols avenue to the new defense housing project at Fourth and Atlantic streets; higher powered lights on Alabama avenue from Nichols avenue to Good Hope road; widening of Alabama avenue from Nichols avenue to 12th street S.E.; paving of Congress street S.E. from Tenth to Eleventh streets, and a protest against the proposed increase in water rates.

The Congress Heights' Citizens' Association also promised its support to the Health Department's drive against rats in the District. There was also discussion of a plan to relieve the congestion at the Eleventh Street Bridge by the construction of another bridge at the end of South Capitol street.

U. P. Official Denies Papers Blocked News For Radio Stations

F. C. C. Attorney Seeks To Show Protests Halted Negotiations

By CARTER BROOKE JONES.
 Marcus Cohn, an attorney for the Federal Communications Commission, today sought repeatedly to develop at the commission's inquiry into newspaper ownership of broadcasting stations that the United Press refused to serve with news independently owned radio stations because local client newspapers objected.

But the witness under examination, Edwin M. Williams, United Press vice president, pointed to various other reasons why negotiations with those stations bogged down and contracts were not signed for a radio news report. He did admit there were protests from newspapers in a number of instances, but he did not concede that this was a controlling factor in failure of the press association and radio stations to "get together."

Mr. Williams admitted there were such negotiations with the Tampa (Fla.) Station WBAE, owned by the Tampa Times, and they failed and the U. P. later signed a contract with WFLA, owned by the Tampa Tribune, a newspaper that already had the U. P. news report. Asked if the Tribune had not blocked the contract with the rival station, Mr. Williams said:

"I don't think they wanted to see another radio station owned by their competitor use the same service they were getting. And we didn't think it was fair for WBAE to ride in on the promotion given our service by the Tribune."

Exclusive Contract Denied.
 The Tribune, however, did not have an exclusive contract, Mr. Williams said, adding: "We could and still can serve WBAE at any time."

The F. C. C. counsel also brought out from the witness that James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, threatened to drop the United Press news report from his paper if the organization signed a contract for radio news with WSM, owned by an insurance company. The WSM deal failed, Mr. Williams said, but that was because "we were never able to convince them that they should sign a standard form of contract."

The U. P. executive testified that the Columbia (S. C.) State turned off its United Press printer machines and quit paying for the news service after the association began serving Columbia's Station WIS with news. After that, he said, the station's contract, which had not been satisfactory, was canceled, and the station, as well as the newspaper, wanted to end the service under the conditions then existing. The newspaper then resumed its U. P. report, the witness said.

Again Receiving Service.
 But at present, he added, WIS again receives United Press news under a new contract, one acceptable to the press association, and the Columbia State, after fulfilling its United Press contract, has dropped the service.

Belin Granted Charter For Airport at Fairfax

Peter Belin, son of a former Ambassador to Poland and one of the survivors of the German airship Hindenburg which burned in landing at Lakehurst, N. J., in May, 1937, was listed as president of a corporation chartered to establish a private airport at Fairfax, Va., in a charter issued in Richmond yesterday.

Mr. Belin, son of Ferdinand Lamot Belin, Ambassador to Poland during the Hoover administration, said the corporation has an option on a 150-acre tract in Pleasant Valley, on highway 50 about 12 miles west of Fairfax, where an airport for private flyers will be set up, largely because of the shortage of facilities for small planes at the commercial airports in and around Washington, he said.

A lieutenant, junior grade, in the Naval Reserve, Mr. Belin is now on active duty in the Navy Department here. He is an amateur pilot and has been flying his own plane for several years. Associated with him in the project is W. N. Offley of Fairfax, secretary-treasurer of the new Fairfax Airport, Inc., which will have a maximum capital of $50,000.

Mr. Belin was in the forward cabin of the Hindenburg on its last flight and jumped 30 feet to the ground when it caught fire and exploded. His home is at 3132 O street N.W.

The Evening Star

WASHINGTON, D. C. FRIDAY, October 10, 1941. The Evening Star Newspaper Company. Main Office: 11th St. and Pennsylvania Ave. N. W. Washington, D. C. 20004. Delivered by Carrier—City and Suburban.

A Legal Fiction. The President's request for revision of the Neutrality Act, so far as it goes, is beyond the reach of any valid criticism.

In his message to Congress, Mr. Roosevelt asked specifically for amendment of the law to permit the arming of American merchant ships. This, he said, must be done now.

To put it another way, this Nation, despite the utter gravity of the hour, has not yet reached the point where it is willing to cast off the paralyzing effects of an invalid policy.

The Neutrality Act was predicated on two assumptions, both of which were unsound. We believed, in the first place, that a formal legislative proclamation of American neutrality in advance of hostilities would tend to discourage the making of war by others.

But the invalidity of these beliefs soon became self-evident. There can be no small doubt that the effort to isolate the United States from the rest of the world actually gave aid and comfort to the war makers.

As Hitler's ambitious plans for world conquest began to take shape we were compelled by the fundamental motive of self-preservation to reform our policy. Step by step, we have progressed from the repeal of the arms embargo down through the enactment of the lease-lend legislation, until now it is idle to talk of American neutrality.

In this new role, we are committed by formal congressional action and by express pronouncements of the President to a policy of "all out" aid to Britain and her allies. But we have not yet reached the point where we are willing to call upon every resource at our command to implement that policy.

The war which is sweeping to a climax on the continent of Europe, however, is not going to wait upon American indecision and hesitation. Time, if we would but make full use of it, operates now in our favor.

Timely Celebration. The current celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the American Bill of Rights is particularly timely and deserving of more than passing interest.

The rapidity with which these fundamental principles of democracy have been lost in certain foreign countries has startled America. The Nation's momentous defense program to safeguard those principles in the remaining "free" countries and to restore them elsewhere will be futile unless Americans are alert to prevent movements which eventually may destroy our own Bill of Rights. If millions on the continent of Europe, hungry, poor and enslaved, could for the asking have anything they want, it is a safe guess that, once their physical needs were met, high on the list of their requests would be the opportunity to celebrate the signing of a Bill of Rights such as ours.

The Drive Rolls On

When Adolf Hitler spoke a five months' silence by his speech at the Berlin Sportsplatz, some of his words made military students throughout the world prick up their ears. After stating that Russia "is already broken," he went on to say that his armies had launched a new offensive "of gigantic proportions" and that these operations already had begun two days before.

In the week that has elapsed, the picture is becoming fairly clear. There can be little doubt that the chief offensive is on the extensive middle front, where the army group of Marshal Timoshenko is massed to defend the approaches to Moscow, the Soviet capital. This army group is supposed to be the strongest and best equipped force which remains in being, after the terrific hammerings of Marshal Budenny's armies in the south and the locking up of so much of Marshal Voroshilov's forces in besieged Leningrad.

Even if one discounts the sweeping claims made by Otto Dietrich, the Nazi press chief, and other official statements, the new German drive seems to have acquired tremendous momentum, especially on its right wing. There the Russians admit the loss of the important railway junction of Orel, a city nearly 100 miles east of the former Russian battlefront.

As a result of undoubted breaks through the Soviet defense to Orel and Viazma, the Germans claim large Soviet forces trapped in pincer movements and doomed to destruction. To a degree, this probably is true. London takes a dark view of the situation, fearing that communications between Timoshenko and Budenny soon will be cut. Incidentally, Budenny is being hammered by the vigorous German thrust along the northern shore of the Sea of Azov, aimed at the key port city of Rostov-on-Don.

Even Moscow is beginning to admit the gravity of the situation. Pravda, the official newspaper, urges all Soviet citizens to rally wholeheartedly against the supreme peril, while Red Fleet, the official navy organ, adjures Britain to relieve the pressure by an invasion of the continent. Yet Britain evidently does not feel able to embark on such an undertaking, not only because of contingent losses in men and equipment, but also because of the shipping which would have to be earmarked for so great an expeditionary force. In this supreme German bid for victory on the eastern front, therefore, the Russian armies seemingly must rely primarily on their own efforts.

Union Tavern

The last vestiges of what once was the Waldorf-Astoria of the Nation's Capital have been removed. Probably none of the workmen who demolished the remnants of the west wing of the old Union Tavern realized that they were wrecking a famous landmark. Yet time was when the hostelry which stood at the north-east corner of Thirtieth and M (or Bridge) streets Northwest was the latest word in professional hospitality.

Under the terms of the contract agreed to by the promoters, the entire property was to be offered at auction when it was ready for occupancy. The date of the sale was the first Monday in May, 1800, and the successful bidder was one John Suter, who managed the place as long as he lived and set an example which was followed by his widow after his death.

Freedom of Seas An Historic Issue

Writer Discusses Obligation To Defend Rights of Trade In Time of War. "Let's get back to freedom of the seas," the advocates of changing the Neutrality Act are demanding. In so doing they are following the lead of the President himself. As early as May 16, he pointed out, significantly enough, that the United States already had fought two naval wars, without actually declaring war, in defense of freedom of the seas.

The quiet and "constitutional" coup d'etat by which the government of Panama has changed almost overnight from one which has evidenced pro-Nazi leanings to one avowedly democratic and friendly to the United States is certain to relieve the official tension which has prevailed in Washington since the inauguration as President a year ago of Dr. Arnulfo Arias, Harvard-educated physician and political opportunist.

The American Government has been deeply concerned over the Panamanian situation, and rightly so, for under several agreements, the latest ratified in 1939, the United States has assumed a sort of protectorate over the canal-straddling Central American republic. Although Panama, under these agreements, has pledged co-operation in plans for military defense of the canal, officials failed to obtain from the Arias regime the type of wholehearted cooperation which had been envisioned in the 1939 pact.

A second restriction, even under freedom of the seas, upon neutral vessels trading with a belligerent depends upon the kind of cargo they are carrying. If that is contraband and is destined for the enemy the vessels and the cargo alike may be confiscated. This properly may occur anywhere on the high seas. Only the capturing warship has no right to sink the neutral vessels at sight, even if they are carrying contraband.

Cat Tale

At Rye, N. Y., a valuable pearl necklace was lost, and a $500 reward posted for its return. With this stimulus, a necklace hunt was on. Going through the Rye became a popular pastime, but to no avail. A careful search of all pig pens in the vicinity showed that the pearls had not been cast before swine, and all other likely spots proved equally barren. Probably the necklace had been stolen.

When hope was almost abandoned, a humble pussy cat found it and brought it to her mistress. No doubt she had observed that women liked these gewgaws, and hoped to swap it for milk or mice, in a trade profitable to both parties. Her mistress turned it over, and the insurance company, glad to get off so cheaply, paid the reward.

Daniel Tobin has just discovered and announced that racketeer-caused labor unions are detrimental to the cause of labor. This scoops every one else by about minus ten years.

THIS AND THAT

A sure-fire attraction for the goldfinch is the trumpet vine. They will sooner pick it off the heads, or off the ground. If goldfinches are prevalent in the neighborhood, it is a good idea to plant sunflowers for them, leaving the plants to ripen for the birds. Practically all species will come to this feast, but the goldfinches surely.

Goldfinches also eat insects, but mostly they are vegetarians, seed eaters in the best sense of the term. Observations have shown that they eat, successively, the seeds of the dandelions, the field daisies, the purple asters, the wild carrots, the various thistles, the wild lettuce, the ragweeds, the plants which bear the famous "beeger's lice," and the trumpet vine.

Our goldfinch is not the same as the European goldfinch, which is slightly larger, and has red on its head. Many attempts have been made to transplant the European goldfinch. It has been brought to Hoboken, Cincinnati, and to New York City, mostly by Germans, who are great bird lovers.

keeping open their larger stores until 9 o'clock one night each week so as to give to the working girl an opportunity to shop leisurely and advantageously at least once in awhile.

In Boston, the experiment was received enthusiastically and both the customer and the merchant were highly pleased with results. Here in Washington, there are a great many well-paid Government workers whose working-hour schedule makes it difficult for them to shop even for necessary commodities, and they, I feel sure, would welcome and appreciate an opportunity to shop in a less hectic manner.

Calls Attention to Inconsistencies in "Last" Speech of Mr. Lindbergh. Nobody is going to take Charles A. Lindbergh's liberty of speaking away from him. If he stops making public addresses, it will be because he is afraid that some honest-to-goodness American will lose patience while listening to his nonsense.

Reminds Senator Mead Of Persecution in Russia. This is to be called to the attention of Senator James M. Mead of New York, who a few days ago, on the floor of the Senate, deplored the Nazis' "plundering and destroying" the Catholic Church in Germany, that such unholy treatment of the Catholic Church has been going on for more than five years.

Proposes Keeping Stores Open One Evening Each Week. I would like to call attention to the custom recently inaugurated in Boston, Mass., and in New York City—that of escape the war in 1807-1812 nor in 1914-1917 by surrendering rights under freedom of the seas. It remains to be seen if we shall have any better luck in the similar attempt of 1939-1941.

Offers Suggestions for Improvements in Washington Traffic Conditions. On account of my daily experience driving about Washington since 1925, I would like to offer a few suggestions on the traffic situation: The timing of traffic lights should be reduced by half. This keeps a steady flow of traffic from all directions. As it is, it takes half the forenoon to drive across town. When the motorist is forced to wait so long for the "go" signal, he loses his temper, and when he does get the green, it is a race to the next light.

As a result of undoubted breaks through the Soviet defense to Orel and Viazma, the Germans claim large Soviet forces trapped in pincer movements and doomed to destruction. To a degree, this probably is true. London takes a dark view of the situation, fearing that communications between Timoshenko and Budenny soon will be cut.

As Hitler's ambitious plans for world conquest began to take shape we were compelled by the fundamental motive of self-preservation to reform our policy. Step by step, we have progressed from the repeal of the arms embargo down through the enactment of the lease-lend legislation, until now it is idle to talk of American neutrality.

The Neutrality Act was predicated on two assumptions, both of which were unsound. We believed, in the first place, that a formal legislative proclamation of American neutrality in advance of hostilities would tend to discourage the making of war by others.

But the invalidity of these beliefs soon became self-evident. There can be no small doubt that the effort to isolate the United States from the rest of the world actually gave aid and comfort to the war makers.

Gloomy News Expected to Stiffen U. S.

But Hitler May Be Crowing Too Soon of Victory

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

News from Russia again has sent shivers of pessimism into the war situation. Will the effect be the same as heretofore, when developments unfavorable to democracy's cause have occurred?

David Lawrence.

On each occasion in the past, the policy of the United States has become more positive and more belligerent when Britain's fortunes have become dark. Now, in the midst of what appears to be a huge reverse for Russia, President Roosevelt is asking for power to arm America's merchant ships. This direct challenge to Hitler no doubt will stiffen Britain's morale and keep the people of occupied countries expectant with respect to more and more American aid.

The question of whether Congress will be more or less receptive to warlike measures remains to be decided. In the past, every time Britain's fleet has seemed to be in peril or England herself has seemed to be in danger of being effectively blockaded, the President has moved nearer and nearer to convoys and actual sea war.

Mr. Roosevelt today has given Congress a blunt reminder that the period of drifting, which has embraced the last three months, is about over and that America is confronted once more with the realities. As long as Russia seemed to be holding her own, there has been a disposition here to take things easy and to imagine that plenty of time was available for the fulfillment of our defense program.

Congress took a vacation this summer and the tempo of the whole defense program, while somewhat accelerated, was by no means stepped up as would have been the case if America had faced a real crisis.

Might Picture Victory. Now things have grown bleak again. If Russia's resistance is weakened, will Britain face a desperate maneuver by Germany to invade the islands?

There is a feeling here that Hitler is doing a lot of wishful thinking when he proclaims for propaganda purposes that Russia has been "crushed." The capacity of Russia to keep Hitler's armies busy for the next year or so is conceded here. Rather, it is apparent that Hitler would like to dig in for the winter and stand still while turning his energies toward England once more.

Just the other day the Japanese press, inspired by Berlin, significantly exhorted Hitler not to penetrate too far into Russia. Hitler himself, by announcing a huge victory, can now argue to his own people that his objectives had been attained.

It is plain that Hitler has not enjoyed exposure of his western front to air attack by the British and he feels he must now divert his air strength to Western Europe. How, then, could he leave the eastern front except with some kind of a victory. Possession of Moscow would afford him the opportunity to limit his invasion. But it would not end Russian resistance. It would, on the other hand, curtail the big casualty lists that have lowered the morale of the German people and it would spare the German cities some of the destruction which has been wrought against them due to weakened defenses in the air.

Japanese Case Cited. While there is no tendency here to minimize the scope of Hitler's advancing operations in Russia, there is nevertheless a confidence that Hitler has no more succeeded in liquidating Russia by seizing key cities than Japan has in liquidating China, even though she holds all seaports.

There is reason to believe that the Russians have taken account of possible far-reaching successes by the Nazis and that sufficient supply factories and mobilization points have been arranged behind the Moscow-Leningrad line. At this moment there is not the slightest lessening of determination in Washington to keep the back door to Russia open by every sea or land route in Asia. The war will be a long one. Knocking out a few Russian cities will not end the conflict. That is the fact which has to be kept in mind as the fortunes of war fluctuate. The effect on America is problematical. But it seems, judging by the past, that aid to Britain will be intensified.

Fairfax Man, Despondent Over Army Life, Is Suicide

Special Dispatch to The Star. FAIRFAX, Va., Oct. 10.—Herbert Wilfred Dove, 33, of Burke, who was inducted into the Army in March, was found dead in the living room of his mother's home yesterday, a wound in his chest and a shotgun nearby. Dr. T. B. McCord, Fairfax County coroner, issued a verdict of suicide.

According to police, Mr. Dove had been despondent over Army life and shortly before he was found had told his mother he would rather die than go back to camp. He was stationed at Fort Pendleton. Mr. Dove's mother heard the shot.

Russian Morale Holds

Continued Resistance Bolsters Hope Reds Can Survive Even More Reverses

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

A fresh surge of Nazi attacks today has thrust the Russian line back at several points along the bitterly contested front opposite Moscow, but whether this has produced any vital change in the position isn't yet evident from the meager advices at hand.

In the far south, too, the Germans are reported to be forging ahead along the shore of the Sea of Azov toward the gateway to the Caucasus.

The Reds are defending their positions fiercely. Moscow declares the Nazi gains are being made "over mountains of German corpses." This is gruesome, but not surprising, for the German high command always has depended largely on the weight of massed attack for results, and I myself saw many similar sacrifices of life in the World War.

Grim danger continues to press heavily on the Russian fighting lines. From the Allied standpoint, however, the fact that in the crucial central sector the Reds seem to be resisting so strongly is in itself a hopeful sign, though it naturally isn't conclusive. Every hour that the Bolsheviks can continue to hold the Hitlerian avalanche is a golden one for the defense, since the fury of the great German drive probably has reached its peak.

That battle along the bloody highway to the capital is one of the most amazing conflicts of history. The German soldiers—youths who have been trained to the fine edge of athletes—are flinging themselves into the pit of death with that courage which always has characterized the way. The perfection of the invading war machine is amazing.

Civilians Also Fighting. Even more amazing is the fact that it can be stopped. And the manner of its present holding is an epic, for we find civilians now fighting side by side with their soldiers in defense of country and the soil they love.

The Germans assert that the Russian war is virtually over—that the Reds already are crushed. It may be, indeed, that the Muscovites have been so weakened that they are on the verge of collapse. Only time will demonstrate that.

I do not believe, however, that the Reds are beaten. They likely will suffer further reverses. Moscow may fall, and the whole Russian line may be driven back even behind the mighty defenses of the Ural Mountain chain.

But the only thing that can knock them clear out of the war, as this column has emphasized before, is a collapse of morale. It would be difficult to find any signs of weakening morale in a Red fighting front in which civilians—humble folk who know nothing of the art of war and never have been far from the little farms where they were born—are facing death-dealing horrors which are hard even for the professional soldier to face.

The Russians report they are drawing on their great reserve in man power to ease the position on the central front. These troops cannot be expected to have the weight of the fully trained veterans already in the line, but they will ease the Red situation considerably.

Millions More Left.

There are millions more where they come from, as the Soviets recently called up the military class of 1922-19-year-olds—for military service. At the same time there was inaugurated the universal compulsory military training program which contemplates the largest peoples' army in history, involving all men from 16 to 50.

This doesn't sound as though the Russians were finished. As a matter of fact, the Germans themselves appear to have doubts, since an authoritative source in Berlin last night acknowledged that the Reds might be able to set up new forces during the winter. That would mean a two-front war for Hitler.

It is important not to overlook that the Japanese are watching the German progress intently. There can be small doubt that Hitler is doing his utmost in showmanship and diplomacy and strong-arm pressure to bring the Nipponese into conflict with Britain, America or Russia. Tokio doesn't want to warm up to the idea of war with the U. S. A. or England, but collapse of the Russian front might easily result in a Japanese attack on Siberia.

By the way—The Japanese long have been playing about with the idea that Uncle Sam might blink at an assault on Russia, even if he has turned thumbs down on any further move by Nippon to the south. This strikes me as being a very dangerous speculation for Tokio to indulge in, for unless one mistakes the signs of the times our Uncle Sam is in no mood to see anybody jump on Russia's back at this critical juncture.

The physical rejections, the President said, that larger number of cases had been based on dental defects, numbering about 188,000 individuals, or 20.9 per cent of the total. Defective eyes accounted for 123,000, or 13.7 per cent.

Gen. Hershey's report showed that other physical rejections were distributed as follows: Cardiovascular diseases, 96,000 10.6; Musculo-skeletal defects, 61,000 6.8; Venereal diseases, 57,000 6.3; Mental and Nervous diseases, 57,000 6.3; Hernia, 56,000 6.2; Defects of ears, 41,000 4.6; Defects of feet, 36,000 4.0.

Defective lungs, including tuberculosis, 26,000 2.9; Miscellaneous, 159,000 17.7. The President explained that most of the dental cases can be fully rehabilitated. The same is true, he went on, with the venereal cases, and men found to be suffering from these diseases will be ordered to take the available treatments and prepare themselves for Army service.

In cardiac and muscular cases, questionable men will be designated by local draft boards, with Army examiners finally whether rehabilitation should be attempted.

The Chief Executive said that it is expected that about one-quarter of the registered hernia cases can be corrected, but he acknowledged that relatively few rehabilitations may be achieved among the mental cases or those suffering from ear, feet or lung defects.

Several times Mr. Roosevelt emphasized the gravity of this situation for the country as a whole, and its reflection on general health conditions. Actually, he went on, the problem is a long-range one, with the real objective being an improved race of American people rather than merely an immediate addition to the defense personnel.

Remembering that State and local co-operation will be essential, Mr. Roosevelt then pointed out that it may be the prerogative of local government to determine why individuals are in bad health and to direct them to take corrective measures. He admitted jokingly that under the Constitution a person has a right to die at an early age.

Asked by what authority the Government might compel rehabilitation treatment, the President pointed out that men falling within the selective service registration age limits should be subject to orders from the Selective Service Administration on presentation for induction by their local board.

The Great Game of Politics

Observers Profess to See in Mrs. Roosevelt Signs Of Wage Spirals and No Legislation Curbing Strikes

By FRANK R. KENT.

For a long time some of the closest observers of national affairs have been convinced that as good an idea of the administration direction can be had through careful attention to the written and spoken words of Mrs. Roosevelt as in any other way.

Frank R. Kent.

There is rather sound foundation for the belief that, generally, she not only knows what her husband's attitude is going to be, but, despite her modest and deprecatory manner, not infrequently has considerable to do with the shaping of that attitude. For these reasons the conclusion has been reached by the discerning that, notwithstanding the feeling of various administration officials and the almost unanimous view of detached economists that some regulation of wages is essential if the price structure is not to reach a dangerous level, there will be no regulation, because the effort will have no presidential support.

See Labor Handled Softly.

In addition, there is a very strong conviction that, though the defense strikes continue week after week, with resulting loss of millions of man hours on Army and Navy contracts, the White House will neither sanction nor support any form of compulsory arbitration legislation. Nor will it take—or permit to be taken—any firm step to put an end to the calculated delays which are part of the labor leaders' campaign to use the present crisis to rivet the closed shop upon the industry of the country.

In brief, there will be no stiffening of administration attitude toward labor, and the National Mediation Board will continue its custom of settling all strikes certified to it by the simple process of granting either all or most of the strikers' demands. Neither the President's appeal to the A. F. of L. convention in Seattle for unity, nor the exhortation of Secretary Perkins for "self-discipline," nor the breast-beating pledges of full support and co-operation from William Green changes the situation. They have all said the same things before.

Denies 'Freeing' of Wages. Last Sunday Mrs. Roosevelt gave her views on half a dozen different topics, including religious freedom in Russia and the high cost of living. Concerning the latter, she declared that wages had not kept pace with the rise in living costs and then explained that Mr. Baruch's plan of a ceiling over wages was not designed to freeze wages absolutely, which is what he himself had said. The only possible interpretation of her own remarks was that she felt wages must go higher in order to meet living costs. She did not, however, point out that further rises in wages make inevitable further elevation of the cost of living, which, in turn, would make necessary still another rise in wages, and in turn again, that would force living costs still higher. In brief, there would be created the "vicious spiral" against which every economist warns and which nullifies any rise in wages, no matter how high.

The other happening concerning Mrs. Roosevelt which increases belief that no effort to stabilize wages and thus keep prices down will be made was announcement of the testimonial dinner to be given her in New York on November 9. At this dinner Philip Murray of the C. I. O. and Mr. Green of the A. F. L., both of whom are violently against any form of wage regulation, will speak in eulogy of Mrs. Roosevelt, testifying to the great help she has been to the cause of organized labor.

Theme Settled.

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, declared the dinner would not only serve as a tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt, but also as an opportunity for labor "to express appreciation and to pay tribute to our President for the gains recorded by labor during his administration and for his great contribution to the cause of all humanity." There is not likely to be any mention at the dinner of the millions of man days lost on defense work through strikes in the past eight months.

Realistic persons no longer look for a firm grappling with the price-control problems. Mostly, they feel that all that can be expected is an ineffectual piecemeal effort by the highly publicized Mr. Henderson in which labor will be treated as a favored class. From the disastrous result of this policy, however, labor will by no means be exempt. Of course, it is possible that Congress may be galvanized into intelligent action in this vital matter but, without presidential support, it seems unlikely.

This Changing World

Experts Pessimistic Over Russian Outlook; Tokio War Party Likely to Win Upper Hand

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

President Roosevelt's message to Congress, asking revision of the neutrality law to allow the arming of merchantmen, was sent at the same time as the shattering news that the German offensive was progressing in such a manner that soon the Leningrad-Moscow-Azov line might be only a memory.

Washington military and diplomatic quarters have been aware of the major German offensive since October 3, but it was only Tuesday that they realized its seriousness. Hence it is considered possible in certain quarters that the President delayed his message until the first results of the German advance were fully known and the Nation was aware of the great stakes now being played on the Eastern front.

American military quarters warned the President confidentially that all was not so rosy in Russia as official reports from Moscow indicated. Their apparent official optimism regarding the outlook in the U. S. S. R. was caused by a desire to dovetail with opinions from London and Moscow. Military analysts have never ceased worrying over the possibility of a complete Russian collapse when the final push occurred. Pulverization of Russian war material, especially tanks and airplanes, formed the main basis of concern by American military men. Replacements arriving at Archangel are hardly sufficient to replace the losses suffered by one division while the Russians need equipment for entire armies.

Military and naval quarters are frankly pessimistic over the present Russian outlook. They maintain that even if a substantial number of Russian soldiers are saved the rearming of them would be one of the most difficult problems this country ever undertook.

Japan's Attitude Vital.

The port of Archangel will remain available for a few more weeks, but if Moscow falls its facilities will be useless. Supplying Russia through the Caucasus will be equally impossible from Mement because the Rostov rail junction is occupied by the Germans. Facilities offered by the trans-Siberian route depend exclusively on how long Japan maintains her present attitude.

Should Soviet forces suffer such defeat as to compel them to withdraw not only behind Volga but also behind Urals it is likely that the Tokio war party, which is quiet at present will in the upper hand and force the issue with the United States by forbidding passage of armed American merchantmen through waters adjacent to the Japanese islands. Japan's present neutral attitude is considered most elastic by State Department observers. Japan is cautious while this seems unfavorable to Germany, but becomes vociferous and exacting as soon as things appear to turn in Germany's favor. Inspired Japanese spokesmen and the press are again warning about the dangers to the fatherland from Great Britain and the United States. These statements are considered the best barometer of storm weather ahead in the Pacific.

According to reports here, there is a diplomatic battle in Tokio between the Allies and the Axis with Japan's neutrality or intervention in the war the principal prize. German representatives, it is said, have promised Japan large slices of Siberia once the resistance of the Soviets is crushed. This promise is considered by the Japanese leaders as a mere bonus compared with other gains Japan may achieve on its own initiative in the Southern Pacific.

London Alarmed Over Reds.

The British government and general staff is greatly alarmed over the turn of events in Russia. While they are not prepared to believe that the defeat of the Soviets is as complete as described by German official communiques, they cannot conceal the fact that the tragedy may become even greater than anticipated last week.

The only ray of sunshine is that a Soviet force is still available in the Caucasus where natural defenses offered by a chain of high mountains would make German access to the oil fields of Azerbaijan difficult. It is believed in usually well informed quarters that Gen. Archibald Wavell's army in Iran and Iraq is ready to cross the border and go to the rescue of the Russians in the event Gen. von Rundstedt's southern army reaches Novorossik and begins marching toward the mountains protecting the oil fields.

The British seem to think that if the Germans can be prevented from reaching the principal sources of oil the Reich cannot take full advantage of her military victories.

Time Capsule Offers Cure for the Blues

By HENRY McLEMORE.

When the cares of the world get you down and you feel like Gainsborough's original Blue Boy, let me recommend a trip to New York's Flushing Meadows.

Henry McLemore.

Now and a quiet contemplation of the shaft that marks the site of the time capsule. Sunk in the earth beneath the shaft, in a sort of stainless steel overcoat that will defy time for at least 5,000 years, is a record of our present-day civilization. There are books and plays and newspapers and phonograph records and speeches and no end of things to enlighten the citizens of 5,000 years from now on how we in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and way points lived in what then will be antiquity.

There is even a code in the capsule to help the finders interpret the English language. Those who profess to know about such things say that the chances are the men and women of that day will have just as much difficulty reading English as we of today have making sense out of those childish scrawlings of the cavernmen.

What a comforting thought that is! How soothing it is to know that time heals all wounds and that there will come a day when people will wonder how on earth we of the year 1941 ever got so hot and bothered over the petty troubles that beset us.

It is so comforting that at least once a week I get in my car and drive to the time capsule shaft. I take a picnic lunch and a camp chair and settle down comfortably beside it.

For your guidance this is the lunch I take. It is wholesome but inexpensive. Two bananas, one of which is always a little over ripe and one a bit green. Two deviled eggs, wrapped in tissue paper, preferably tissue paper from a shoebox, as shoebox tissue paper is always partly absorbed by the eggs and makes them delightfully chewy. A glass of two of lemonade in a leaky thermos complete the lunch.

The first thing I think about when I fasten my gaze on the time capsule is Hitler. It makes a fellow feel good all over to know that there will come a time when the mad house painter will be just a name on a yellowed paper; a name that strikes no more terror than Attila, another Hun, does today. It makes me happy to know that when the capsule is unearthed (and wouldn't you like to be around to see what the folks dig it up look like?) Hitler will have been good and dead for centuries.

My mind moves from Hitler to taxes. Sure they are tough, and enough to make a man wonder if he shouldn't quit the business he is in and turn to counterfeiting in order to face next March 15 with a light heart and enough money in the bank to settle up with Uncle Sam. But it rests the soul to consider that the citizens of the year 6941 will be more interested in listening to one of the Benny Goodman records they'll yank out of the capsule than the taxes we had to bear.

After taxes I let my mind wander. The gasoline shortage. The missing tank cars. Armed merchant ships. Neutrality. Strikes. Production. Lease-lend. Price control. S. P. A. B. S. P. A. M. W. H. A. M. O. P. M. New Deal. The Dodgers. Fourth term. Interventionists, isolationists, fifth columnists, and a thousand other things that seem so darned important today.

Then I picture that day when some expedition stumbles across the time capsule. "Wootinell is this?" the leader of the expedition will say in a strange tongue. Out will come the junk we of today so carefully laid away.

The papers of the day will carry stories of the discovery, probably on page two, and the historians will try to recall who Roosevelt, Mussolini, Ickes, Stalin and the champion wrestlers were. There will be learned discussions on who "the bums" were, and it will probably be agreed that "the bums" were a conquering horde that finally stopped the Nazis.

Let's make a date to meet there in the Flushing Meadows next Tuesday around four in the afternoon and be sure to bring your own lunch. (Distributed by McLemore Syndicate, Inc.)

Fox Will Be Sentenced; Davis, Kaufman Trials Off

The Justice Department announced today that William Fox, one-time powerful movie magnate, will be called for sentencing on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States, but named no date. Fox, a resident of Atlantic City, pleaded guilty to the charges after being named at Philadelphia in a Federal court indictment along with J. Warren Davis, retired judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Morgan S. Kaufman of Scranton, former bankruptcy referee. Attorney General Biddle announced yesterday that the Government will not seek a third trial for Judge Davis and Kaufman. Juries disagreed in each of two trials earlier this year. Fox was a prominent witness for the prosecution at the two trials.

Adolph J. Pavenstedt, Linked to World War Nazi Spy Deal, Dies

Figured in Von Bernstorff's Transfer of $1,700,000 To Bolo Pasha

By The Associated Press. SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Adolph John Pavenstedt, 87, former German and American banker who was linked during the World War with a deal in which Count Johann von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, transferred $1,700,000 to Bolo Pasha, notorious spy, died yesterday.

Mr. Pavenstedt, who retired after being released from an internment camp when the World War ended, was an American citizen. Born in Hamburg, he came to America about 60 years ago and when the World War began he was senior member of Gustav Amisnek & Co., Wall Street bankers and commission merchants with interests here and in Germany. Testimony given by him at inquiries conducted by the Government and by Merton E. Lewis, then New York State Attorney General, showed that Franz von Papen and Karl Boy-Ed, Von Bernstorff aides, went to the Amisnek offices to open an espionage and propaganda campaign for which they were subsequently deported.

He had testified that he had been unaware of what Bolo Pasha, whom he met in Cuba before the war, intended to do with the $1,700,000. Bolo was shot for treason in France in 1918.

Mr. Pavenstedt was instrumental in getting the release of money that had been in the Deutsches Bank in New York and had been shifted, step by step, until it reached the personal credit of Bolo.

It developed during the hearings that Bolo meant to use the money to corrupt France's press into starting a campaign that would end with a separate peace between France and Germany.

Elementary Schools' Science Broadcast Series Mapped

Role in Living Standards And Defense to Be Theme for 1941-42

Preliminary plans for the 1941-42 series of weekly school science broadcasts yesterday were drafted by the Elementary School Radio Committee which held its first meeting of the season in the Trans-Lux Building. The broadcasts, sponsored by The Star and the District elementary schools with the assistance of the National Broadcasting Co., will be entitled "Science in Our Changing World," and are scheduled to begin in the latter part of November. The committee decided to place emphasis this year on the role of science in maintaining high standards of living conditions in the United States and its correlative aid to national defense. Mrs. Gertrude Howard, chairman of the elementary group, pointed out that programs of this nature would be of particular interest and benefit to school children surrounded by the many revolutionary developments of science today. Assignment of subjects for the individual programs were designated as follows: "Plastics," Mrs. Elizabeth Cavood; "Synthetic Materials," O. Eldridge Turner; "Public Health," Miss June R. Grant; "Petroleum," Mrs. Eva McC. Carey; "Lafayette," Mrs. E. M. Hessey; "Meteorology," Miss E. M. Hessey; "Highlands," "Foods," Mrs. Lydia Morris; "Metals," Miss Anita Gant; "Birney," Miss Lydia Morris; "Textiles," will be assigned later. A special committee, comprised of Mrs. Howard, Miss Elizabeth Newsum, Miss Anita H. Gant and Mrs. Elsie N. Hogan, was appointed to prepare a general bibliography to aid in program research. The group also decided to participate in the radio workshop session to be held October 21. The following teachers attended yesterday's meeting: Miss Edith A. Lyons, Lincoln; Mrs. Lydia W. Morris, Cleveland; Miss Gant,

Birney; Mrs. Hogan, Giddings; Miss Pauline Shoemaker, Division 5; Alfred P. Brent, Berret; Miss Maude J. Hawkins, Berret; Miss June R. Grant, Bruce; O. Eldridge Turner, Thomson; Miss Beulah A. Nine Polio Cases Reported Here So Far This Month

Nine cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to the District Health Department so far this month and three cases have been brought to District hospitals for treatment from nearby counties. The total this year, it was said, is now 59 District cases and 60 cases brought here for treatment, or 119 altogether. In 1935, the city's worst polio year, the total for a similar period was 74. While this year's total is numerically greater, in relation to the population of the city it is still a better record than 1935, the department said. In 1935 the rate was 11 cases per 100,000 persons, while this year to date it is eight cases per 100,000. Department officials were reluctant to identify cases by areas, saying they were scattered rather than concentrated in any localities. Non-resident cases are not counted as cases in District records when they are brought here for treatment, it was explained, because these are recorded in the county of origin.

Government Threat
Made to Operate
Bendix Plane Plant

Steel Strike Halted in Alabama; Buffalo
Forge Mill Reopened

By the Associated Press.
A giant Alabama steel mill and a forge plant at Buffalo, N. Y., were back in production today following labor disputes, but the Bendix, N. J., plant of Air Associates, Inc., faced the possibility of seizure by the Government unless Mediation Board recommendations for settlement of a C. I. O. strike are accepted.
All major units of the Fairfield Steel Works at Birmingham, Ala., were put back into operation last night and the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. declared the mills, largest in the South, would be kept open. C. I. O. steel workers passed through the picket lines of A. F. of L. machinists and electricians who struck yesterday.
The A. F. of L. men said they walked out in protest to card inspections by the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee—an action which the A. F. of L. pickets declared was a "C. I. O. wildcat lockout."

Predictions Conflict.
The Fairfield mills normally employ about 11,000. There was no official statement of the number now at work, but a C. I. O. spokesman predicted operations would be at a normal level by tonight. In contrast, an A. F. of L. leader predicted that "the whole T. C. I. operation in Birmingham will be down by Saturday night."

There also was the threat of a strike in T. C. I.'s iron ore mines. An A. F. L. source predicted the ore mines would be closed during the day by a walkout of electricians, at the same time declaring that operations at the Fairfield plant were far below normal.
The iron mines employ about 3,800 men, and a work stoppage of any real duration would close all T. C. I. manufacturing operations. The mines produce about 5,000,000 tons a year and supply all the iron ore used by T. C. I.

Eight hundred production workers were expected back on the job today after a one-day strike at the Buffalo Forge Co., which has $13,000,000 in defense orders. The company agreed to rehire three discharged employees and meet with C. I. O. representatives to discuss other grievances. The union also is demanding a 10-cent rise in the present wage scale of 44 to 50 cents, but the wage issue was not discussed at the conference which produced the back-to-work agreement.

Charges Failure to Co-operate.
The possibility of Government seizure of the Air Associates plant at Bendix was brought up yesterday by Frank P. Graham, chairman of a panel of the National Defense Mediation Board, who charged that company officials had failed to co-operate with the board or union in efforts to settle the latest C. I. O. strike there, in progress since September 30.

Mr. Graham asserted that F. Leroy Hill, president of the firm, and Walter Chalaire, attorney, had walked out of hearings held in Washington Wednesday on the case. Mr. Hill said he was amazed at the statement, and denied that he and Mr. Chalaire had walked out on the meeting.

"We left with the understanding that the meeting was at an end and that they would hand down recommendations," Mr. Hill said.
The board has recommended that the strike be called off immediately, that strikers be returned to their jobs without discrimination and that the union and management hold further conferences aimed at a collective bargaining contract. The union's grievances include the discharge of five workers, and demands for a new wage agreement. The company has continued operations at the plant and has filled the jobs of many of the strikers.

Mr. Graham declared that if the company rejected or ignored the board's recommendations the case would be sent to the Office of Production Management for further action which, he added, might include Federal seizure of the plant. Air Associates holds $5,000,000 in contracts for airplane parts.
Counting of union members' ballots was to begin today at the San Diego, Calif., bomber plant of the Consolidated Aircraft Corp. An estimated 10,000 members of the A. F. L. Machinists Union voted on a compromise wage proposal designed to avert a strike. Two high union officials predicted that the plan would be accepted.

Under the proposal, the beginners' scale would be set at from 55-65 cents an hour to 60-75 cents. Workers receiving more than 65 cents an hour would get a 13-cent blanket boost.

Other labor disputes interrupted work on a $2,500,000 defense housing project in Seattle and on an Army barracks in Nueva Ecija Province in the Philippines.

The Seattle strike resulted from a jurisdictional conflict between the teamsters and electrical workers' unions. The teamsters struck because electrical workers were operating equipment used to hoist poles into place.

Both unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, whose president, William Green, has appealed for workers on defense projects to stay on the job.

Twelve hundred workers on the barracks project struck, charging there had been a delay in wage payments. They said two Filipino officers were responsible, but the officers said all had been paid except those working for private contractors.

150 Stage Walkout.
An A. F. L. walkout, which a union leader said was not a strike, continued for the second day at the defense-busy Hammond & Irving Steel Co. at Auburn, N. Y. Stephen M. Estey, organizer for the International Association of Machine Workers, said 150 union members walked off in protest against "illegal action of the company in discharging a worker for union activity."

In addition, however, a union meeting endorsed these demands against the company: Recognition of the union as sole bargaining agent, no discrimination for union activity, restoration of all employees as of October 2, dismissal of employees engaged since October 8 and a company conference to negotiate a wage agreement.

A Federal conciliator was endeavoring at a conference to bring agreement between the Wickwire Bros. Steel Co. and C. I. O. steel workers at Cortland, N. Y., where 1,000 unionists struck Monday, demanding a union shop and a 50 cents an hour minimum. The union says the present minimum is 32 cents, but the company contends that amount is paid only to beginners.

Belgrade Is Scene Of Fresh Outbreaks Against Germans

12 Reported Slain in Clashes; 74th Person Executed in France

By the Associated Press.

Reports of fresh outbreaks in Belgrade, old capital of Yugoslavia, and German announcement in Paris that the seventy-fourth person had been shot as reprisal for attacks against German occupying forces in France, high lighted seething unrest in the Nazi-occupied countries of Europe.

D.N.B., German news agency, reported from Belgrade that 12 Communists had been killed and 30 captured in clashes with authorities during disorders in conquered Yugoslavia's capital.

Executed for Having Firearms.

The Paris announcement said Gaston Pinot, of Courmelles, in Aisne Department, was shot today. He was condemned to death last Tuesday for illegal possessions of firearms.

It was said also that 15 militant Communists had been interned at Amiens on orders of the prefect of Somme Department. This raised to 45 the number of Communists sent to concentration camps in that department in the last several days.

Meanwhile, Greece's exiled government charged that the German Army had burned three Crete villages and executed non-combatants to quell opposition on the occupied land.

The accusation, made by War Minister M. Dimitrakakis in Cairo, was read in London by Andrea Behalopoulos, Minister of Information, who said active resistance to the Germans has flared up throughout Greece.

Revolt Against Bulgars.

He said the Greek government in London also had a message telling of resistance to "the tyranny of Bulgarian invaders" of Eastern Macedonia, in the Serres-Drame district.

Bulgarian military authorities sent an armored force to suppress the revolt, he charged, "and indiscriminately murdered over 3,000 civilians."

A. T. Addick, Amsterdam Dutchman, was reported by the newspaper Deutsche Zeitung in den Niederlanden to have been executed on charges of attacking a German policeman and possessing forbidden weapons.

Philippine Maneuvers Begun by Two Armies

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 10.—Two opposing armies went into action before dawn today in the Philippine Islands' first major war games under the command of Lt. Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur.

The 45th United States Infantry, after spending the night near the town of Las Pinas, began moving toward the Pasig and Mariguina Rivers near the town of Pasig to attempt a crossing. The 31st Infantry of the rival army made ready to defend the approaches to the streams after having advanced under cover of darkness to the battle area.

About 15,000 soldiers are engaged in the mimic warfare which is scheduled to continue six days.

D. C. to Seek Higher Limit On Cost of Automobiles

An appeal to Congress to raise the limit of cost on purchase of new vehicles for District government agencies was approved today by the Commissioners when they found that not only was the District unable to buy cars for routine District service, under the present congressional rule, but also that they were unable to buy 25 police cars, including radio scout cars needed by the Police Department.

Opening of bids on 15 passenger vehicles for various District services showed the lowest bids were about $150 per car higher than the present congressional limit of cost of $650. The city has been informed by District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan that bids for police cars had been delayed to see the result of bids on the other vehicles.

Commissioner Guy Mason said an appeal would be made to Congress to raise the limit of cost to $800. The excess bids were attributed to rising costs related to the national emergency situation.

U. S. Workers to Hear British Leader Tonight

Brown, general secretary of the Civil Service Clerical Association of Great Britain, who will speak at a mass meeting of Federal workers in the Departmental Auditorium, Labor Department, at 8 o'clock tonight, will tell the story of how government workers in England have functioned during the war and how they have won full collective bargaining rights, according to an announcement of the meeting by the C. I. O. United Federal Workers, under whose auspices it is being held.

The union which Mr. Brown represents is the largest among British government employees. On the program with him will be Howard Hunter, W. P. A. administrator; Oscar Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior; Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, and Abram Flaxer, president of the C. I. O. State, County and Municipal Workers.

HOW TO write YOUR Newspaper ADVERTISEMENTS

Some random notes

Write your advertising to give your company, and the things you sell, a personality.

Write to make people think something special and different about you.

With good advertising, planned advertising, with good copy, you can create and maintain what no competitor can take from you.

It is what shoppers think that controls your sales!

Then why not write to control their thinking.

You'll find your profitable sales in people's minds AND hearts . . . rarely in their pocketbooks.

If your sales are lagging, today . . . what of tomorrow?

You can write to get MORE than your money's worth from your advertising.

Don't let your customers, shoppers, prospects, forget the pleasant advantages and values that they can get from you.

Don't give them reason to flirt with your competitors.

Whether your advertisements are large or small, write them so that they are terribly in earnest.

Write to tell people what they want to know about the things you sell.

Write a headline that STOPS them!

Show pictures and name the prices and make your signature important.

Don't stop there!

Write copy! Get as much showmanship into your writing as into your advertising illustrations. Write so that it races and sings. Write so that it kicks and shoulders and yells. Give it a burr in its voice or honey on its lips, as needed. If needed, write copy with the crust and authority to put right forefingers on fat stomachs, and get attention, and keep it, while you tell, unforgettably, the things such buyers want to know. Or, write it to whisper to her. However you write it, make it tug at sleeves, and hold attention, until you've told your story.

It is what they THINK, of you, of the things you sell, that governs where and what they buy.

Advertising is HALF of modern business; the ADVERTISEMENT is the most important thing in advertising; and COPY is the most important thing in the advertisement.

What you write is so important, WORK at it HARD.

Chinese Commemorate Birth of Republic

The 30th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Republic will be celebrated here today with presentation to President Roosevelt of a scroll signed by 10,000 Chinese students and teachers expressing Sino-American friendship.

Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese Ambassador, and James G. Blaine, chairman of United China Relief, were to present the message. The signers are connected with colleges supported by the Associated Boards for Christian Colleges in China, one of the member agencies participating in the $5,000,000 United China Relief campaign.

The President was to hand the Ambassador a personal message of congratulation to President Lin Sen and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of the republic for their leadership during the war with Japan.

The Embassy will celebrate China's "independence day" with a reception for the Chinese colony at 4 p.m. The Ambassador was scheduled to speak over radio stations WJWS at 3:15 p.m. and WOL at 6 p.m.

The observance marks the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty and establishment of the republic under the leadership of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first President.

Rain Checks Drought; Cool Weather Due To Continue Here

First Fall in Month Not a Heavy One; 50 Degrees Predicted

Cool breezes will continue to sweep Washington tonight and tomorrow, according to Weather Bureau predictions, but the first good rain the city has seen in more than a month will no longer be with us.

The observatory at Washington National Airport reported that rain beginning at 1:52 a.m. had by 8 o'clock this morning precipitated 29 hundredths of an inch of water. This was "not a heavy rainfall," it emphasized, but "compared favorably with the total of 93 hundredths of an inch which fell during all of September. The last shower which approached it was slightly smaller, on September 6.

Highest temperature today will be about 70 degrees, it was reported, but with 74 yesterday. Enough blankets will be needed tonight to meet 50 degrees. The low last night was 60.

Despite the rain, drought-stricken Prince Georges County, Md., is still using today a 1,000-gallon tank mounted on a truck to transport drinking water to seven schools. Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, said the tank was designed for permanent installation at Mitchellville School, but it was decided to turn it into a mobile unit for the emergency. It now serves Mitchellville, Mullikan, Sutherland, Camp Springs, Forestville, Bowie and Highland Park Schools, each of which receives water in a 20-gallon container. Teachers rank distribution during recess periods.

Milk Shortage Averted.
The drenching and cooler temperatures now make unlikely the prospect that this area might go on reduced rations of milk, the office of the Federal milk marketing administrator reported today. Previously reported had been worried.

It was pointed out that the Capital's milk supply area is given considerable leeway by regulations which permit "class 3" milk, usually turned into ice cream, to be used instead for home consumption as cream and milk. Ice cream production can, in the meantime, be sustained by imports from other milk areas.

The level of water beneath the ground has sunk so during the drought that one rain cannot quickly raise it, it was reported. In Winchester city water figures indicated that three big springs which furnish the entire local supply were not yielding as much as expected. Consumers were urged to be sparing.

The situation at Front Royal has become so serious that Shenandoah River water was being pumped into the town reservoir.

P. T. A. Adopts $250 Budget

The Takoma-Silver Spring (Md.) Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association has adopted a budget of $250, of which $150 provides for clinic care for the pupils. The remainder of the budget will be used for janitor service.

Plans Made to Merge Alexandria Gas Co. With Rosslyn Concern

Expansion in Building Leads to Proposal, General Manager Says

Plans for a merger of the Rosslyn Gas Co. and the Alexandria Gas Co. were disclosed at a meeting of the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission last night.

Mrs. Alma Ramsay, commission chairman, reported on the contemplated merger, which she said she had learned about from Ray C. Brehaut, general manager of the two companies.

The two utilities, both subsidiaries of the Washington Gas Light Co., have combined assets of about $3,000,000, Mr. Brehaut said.

The Public Utilities Commission will study the plan to determine whether Arlington would be affected adversely, Mrs. Ramsay announced. Confirming the proposed merger, Mr. Brehaut said "The great residential building brought about by the growth of defense activities and Government construction in that area is causing numerous interconnections of gas distribution facilities between the Alexandria Gas Co. and the Rosslyn Gas Co. A corporate merger is the most practicable way of providing for the increased utility facilities which the situation requires."

"Plans are still in the formative state, but it is not contemplated that any change in gas rates or conditions of service to existing consumers, or in the number of employees or working conditions would result from the merger."

The commission last night also received a petition from residents near Lee highway complaining about a recently inaugurated "skip-stop" system placed into effect by bus companies to conserve gasoline. The petition cited alleged dangers to passengers who are required to walk along the congested highway where no sidewalks exist. Elsworth Miner and J. Maynard Magruder were appointed by Mrs. Ramsay to study the question as it affects the entire county.

40,000 Volunteers At Posts Today as Air Raid Observers

Army Reasonably Well Pleased With Early Results of Tests

More than 40,000 volunteer observers were at their posts along the Eastern seaboard today, ready for an intensification of the Army's mock air raids, which began yesterday.

Warning filter centers in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk and network units in other cities, including Baltimore and Richmond, received warnings from time to time yesterday, and Army officials were reasonably well pleased with the results.

However, Maryland received a dressing down from authorities for being the only State participating to turn in poor observer reports.

According to the Associated Press,

Maj. Gordon Saville, executive officer of the 1st Interceptor Command at Mitchel Field, N. Y., told the Baltimore Sun last night that Maryland's reports were so widely scattered from the observer posts that they did not provide a complete enough picture for interceptor (plane) operations. The officer said he did not intend to be critical, in that Maryland observers probably were misinformed about hours of duty and other work.

Many Unnecessary Calls.

Such probably was the case as the Baltimore filter branch reported little activity other than merely ringing out the faults in the intricate warning system. The wires were kept hot with many unexpected and unnecessary telephone calls. Observer posts reported which hadn't been listed in action, and enthusiastic citizens, attached to no posts, called in unwanted, unneeded information.

The Baltimore nerve center is a unit within a unit. It is an outpost of the region command in Philadelphia, but at the same time, is equipped to take the place of Philadelphia if that important center is put out of commission. Philadelphia also can take over Baltimore's work if Baltimore is knocked out of action—as it will be in theory at least once during the simulated raids.

Richmond was attacked 13 times yesterday, but officially the city was raided only three times, the number of raid signals flashed in from the Norfolk center. All agencies due to be notified had been warned by the raid warden within four minutes after the first alarm was given—except the Red Cross, whose telephone was busy.

Air Raid

whether police or fire protection, first-aid workers or ambulances, debris removal squads or repair men for public utility services.

'Attackers' May Return.

Additional raids may or may not be aimed at the Capital between now and 6 o'clock tonight. Meanwhile, a skeleton force was on the alert to swing into action if "enemy bombers" should appear. Most of the civilian spotters were posted at a considerable distance from Washington to warn the Capital well in advance. The present speed of modern military aircraft is so great that they might be reported on the outskirts of a big city and be striking at the heart of their objective before a telephone warning could reach central headquarters from nearby points.

Detailed instructions as to local procedure were received before today's raid from Col. Clifton Lisle of Baltimore, acting chief of the third defense area, and liaison officer between the Army and the civilian defense organizations.

The local "air raid" is part of a vast operation designed to test military and civilian defenses of vital population and industrial centers along the Eastern Seaboard from Boston to Savannah and lasting, in the Southern phase of the maneuver, through October 25, according to an announcement today by Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commander of the Air Force Combat Command.

Airacobras of the 40th Pursuit Squadron of Selfridge Field, Mich., were to be the planes used in the "raid." They were to operate from a base at Bolling Field.

Patrol Wide Area.

In flights of three the pursuit ships from Bolling have been patrolling an area extending roughly between Washington, the Virginia Capes and Richmond. Civilian observers in these areas are charged with reporting the altitude, type, number, speed and direction of the "enemy bombers."

Monday heavy bombers will enter the general operations and the pursuit ships at Bolling will act as interceptors in an attempt to defend Washington and the surrounding area. This phase of the maneuvers, it was said, will continue for about three days.

Heavy Bombers to Take Part.

Heavy bomber squadrons will take off from Bolling Field and from other Air Corps bases on Long Island and in New England to test military as well as civilian defense. The bombers may take long sweeps to sea, returning over the coast at some unannounced point to determine the efficiency of the warning system.

Searchlight and anti-aircraft batteries will be brought into play. The pursuit squadron will be on call during the entire period, ready to get ships into the air at a moment's notice to contact the bombers and drive them away from their objectives.

Mrs. Emma Castell, Former P.-T. A. Head In District, Dies

Her Activities Included Work for Many Civic And Women's Groups

Mrs. Emma Nelson McLean Castell, 56, of 4531 Forty-fifth street N.W., former president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, died yesterday at Doctors' Hospital.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at her home, with burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Castell was the daughter of the late Richard A. McLean, member of the composing room force of The Star for many years, and sister of the late William H. McLean, also of the Star's composing room, as was her grandfather, William R. McLean. All three were at one time in charge of the composing room.

Mrs. Castell, who served as president of the Congress of Parents and Teachers in 1936, was a pioneer worker for milk and hot lunches for school children. She was on the board of the P.-T. A.'s Hannah Berliner Sanders Memorial Library, founded at her suggestion in memory of a past vice president.

She was a former recording secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness and a member of the Board of Directors at the time of her death and also was a member of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, the Ladies' Medical Auxiliary and the Columbian Women.

Mrs. Castell is survived by her husband, Dr. Louis B. Castell; a son, Dr. Richard A. Castell; her mother, a sister, Miss Richie McLean, and a brother, Perrie McLean, all of this city, and two half-sisters, Mrs. Mary Marshall of Sanford, Pa., and Mrs. Arthur Thomas of Washington.

War Building

quarters that the Army did not intend, at the end of the emergency, to relinquish its occupancy of the new buildings so that it can be turned into a repository for Government records, according to the wishes of the President. Gen. Somervell denied this.

He said it will be a "dandy" records building, but added:

"Let's get through the emergency first."

Limestone Facing.

He said it was decided at today's White House conference that the exterior of the building will be faced with Indiana limestone and the interior with concrete.

Gen. Somervell said the building was scheduled for completion 14 months from this past September 25, the day the first section of its foundation was laid. He said he hoped to have 500,000 of the building's ultimate 2,500,000 square feet of office space ready for occupancy within eight months.

Accompanying the general was George E. Berzstrom, architect attached to the War Department, who designed the building.

Until today the War Department had maintained a policy of secrecy regarding the exact proportions of its new building. Nothing could be learned about the plans between the time, early in September, when the President ordered the building reduced in size, and last Tuesday, when the War Department issued a press release on the structure.

The release contained no figures as to the building's size. Subsequent efforts of reporters to learn the dimensions—how they compared with those of the originally proposed building—met with little success until today.

Called "Ridiculous."

Gen. Somervell branded as "utterly ridiculous" information given The Star by an architect close to the War Department purporting to show that while the original plans for the building contained provisions for 40,000 workers and the revised plans, as released recently by the Army, provide for only 20,000, the net effect will be the same.

This architect, who declined to have his name used, pointed out that the supposed reduction in the building's size amounted in reality only to giving twice as much floor space to each employe so that the outside dimensions of the structure will be reduced only slightly, if at all. He backed up his inference by calling attention to the building's cost, approximately $31,000,000.

The originally proposed building, which was ordered reduced in size and resituated by President Roosevelt, was to have cost $35,000,000. The architect advanced the theory that "extra expenses" incurred during the process of the work would make up the $4,000,000 difference in the end.

Cites President's Orders.

Informed of the architect's attitude early today, Gen. Somervell declared he did not intend to answer "anonymous" critics, but added:

"Do you think any Government official in his right mind would fail to conform to the President's orders?"

Congressional testimony on the original building placed its size in terms of square feet at 4,000,000. Earlier in the week, an Army press agent told The Star it was as yet impossible to determine the actual size of the building in terms of square feet because the plans were not fully complete. He said the War Department was in such a hurry to get on with the building that as fast as the design for a basement was worked out the contractors were being put on that one phase of the construction.

Announced as Surprise.

Another theory advanced by a local architect was that the building never would revert at the end of the national emergency to a records building, the ultimate purpose the President ordered it designed for.

This critic wanted to know why it was that a building intended for storage was to have an air-conditioning plant costing about $350,000. The War Department project originally was sprung as a surprise on the public generally last July, when the funds for its erection came to light as an item in a big appropriation bill. The fight to move it from in front of the cemetery and reduce its size, taken up by civic groups and individuals, was led by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the National Commission of Fine Arts until the President intervened.

1,500 Deep Wells Found

Nearly 1,500 deep wells, some of them Roman, yielding 40,000,000 gallons of water daily, have been discovered in Manchester and Salford, England, and will be used for fire fighting.

War

between 60 and 70 Russian divisions had been surrounded, citing the staggering size of offensive forces necessary to carry out such a colossal encirclement.

Normally, 60 to 70 divisions would mean about 1,000,000 men, but the Germans said only several hundreds of men remain in some Red Army divisions.

Although the German snipers appeared to have been pinned shut on some Russian forces in the center of the long eastern front, the Russians were said to be fighting furiously to try to slash their way out.

Fighting on an immense scale is continuing in the vicinity of Bryansk and Vyazma, they said, and the German drive eastward from captured Poltava toward Kharkov, the center of the industrial Donets River basin area in the Eastern Ukraine, still is meeting "extremely stubborn resistance and is making only slow progress."

Russians Ignore Melitopol.

Significantly, the Soviet high command dropped all mention of Melitopol in its latest communique, although earlier bulletins described it as a scene of the heaviest fighting.

The Red air force was said in Moscow to be hitting hard to break up the German offensive. Two squadrons alone were credited with destroying 100 German tanks, 41 fuel depots and 300 trucks—180 of them loaded with troops—in three days.

Wave after wave of Soviet dive bombers, including the newest Soviet model, have been bombing incessantly the German armored and mechanized columns concentrated in the Vyazma and Bryansk sectors, the Russians said.

Victory Chorus in Papers.

The Nazi press blared a victory chorus and Hitler's own newspaper proclaimed that seven short autumn days in the Moscow offensive had sufficed to "deliver the death blow to the most monstrous war machine of all times from which it will never recover."

The high command said also that it was established the Germans had rounded up 12,531 prisoners, taken 161 guns and several tanks in recent fighting for the islands of Muhu and Oesel, at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland off Estonia.

"A total of 2,660 mines had to be made harmless during the operations," a communique said.

The German air force, backing up ground offensives, was reported to have attacked airdromes on Crimea, railways in Southern and Central Russia and important military railway installations in Leningrad.

The first word in days from the siege-gird Black Sea port of Odessa reported that German forces and their allies were attempting to storm the city behind almost endless shelling, but that they had no success.

On the northern front, the Russians said Leningrad's defense armies were stubbornly pushing out against the German siege forces.

The German radio said German fighter planes yesterday damaged two Soviet transports of 15,000 and 8,000 tons in port at Odessa; two transports of 800 tons each and two smaller ships on Lake Ladoga, and a 2,000-ton merchantman in the Baltic.

Portrait of a G-Man

We are spy-conscious now as a result of the great defense program and the arrests which have marked investigation of espionage. You will find some comfort in an article by Don Eddy about Ed Sackett, G-Man in charge of those who guard the National nerve center in New York City. It will give you insight into the eternal vigilance of the Federal agents fighting spies.

AN AMBASSADOR OF GOOD WILL

Relationships between the United States and Japan have been subjected to tremendous strain from time to time since the invasion of Manchuria. The sinking of the Panay, the mishandling of American citizens, bombs which fell perilously close to American establishments all have at one time or another brought about crisis of great seriousness. But standing guard at Tokio, calm, friendly, intelligent and firm has been one of the outstanding career diplomats, Joseph C. Grew. Enjoying the confidence of the Japanese government even as of his own, Mr. Grew has put on a little pressure here and relaxed a little there as the situation demanded and, by his diplomacy, has prevented any rupture of relations. Be sure to read Leon Wolf's article on Mr. Grew in the Editorial Feature Section.

DID YOU LIKE THE WOOKEY?

William Hazlett Brennan's play set in bomb-wrecked London has been one of the outstanding productions of recent years, receiving especially commendatory reviews. Mr. Brennan feels strongly about the war. He has written an inspired editorial for This Week, one in which he will tell you why he believes with an abiding faith that liberty again will rule the world, rising Phoenix-like out of the ashes of Europe's destruction. You will find his editorial filled with hope and strong determination.

Betty Hayes, who has danced with hundreds of soldiers in our citizens' army, gives an excellent insight into what manner of man wears the uniform of Uncle Sam's training camps. Nazis to Be Cut Off From Southeast Asia Supplies, Grady Says

Officials Give Assurances Of Expedited Deliveries To U. S., He Reports

By the Associated Press.
MANILA, Oct. 10.—Henry F. Grady, President Roosevelt's special economic representative, said today he had received assurances during a comprehensive tour of Southeastern Asia that the Axis would be shut off completely from the world's largest storehouse of war materials. He told a press conference that officials of the Philippines, China, Malaya, the Netherlands Indies, India, Burma and Ceylon had pledged their efforts for increased production and expedited deliveries to the United States and Britain of several strategic materials.

China to Get Air Force.
Mr. Grady also reported:
1. The United States probably will increase supplies of industrial machinery and war equipment to Southeastern Asia while guaranteeing the absorption of any increase in production that may result.

2. China within a few weeks will have an "effective" air force composed entirely of American planes.
3. Throughout Southeastern Asia, excluding Thailand, there is no indication of appeasement toward Japan.

4. Japan will be unable to put the Burma road out of commission without a land invasion, which is improbable.
Mr. Grady, who arrived by clipper plane from Hong Kong, said the United States and Southeastern Asia were establishing a vast economic pool which the Axis could penetrate only through military force.

Thai Stiffening Attitude.
This also means the collapse of any peaceful prospect of Japan's "co-prosperity" sphere, he added, as well as Anglo-American victory in the year-old economic war with Tokio in Southeast Asia.

Mr. Grady said Japan was obtaining at present an unimportant amount of rubber and tin from Thailand, but that Thai officials were stiffening their attitude toward Nippon.

He said he was amazed at the extent of military preparations in the area he covered, and intimated the United States was increasing the diversion of war equipment to China and the Netherlands Indies in order to assist in building up a parallel economic military front.

Transportation Problem.
Problems to be met in the establishment of an economic pool are chiefly those of transportation, Mr. Grady said, adding that the United States Maritime Commission was dealing with these effectively.

The new Chinese air force, which Mr. Grady mentioned without elaborating, would control the Japanese military threat to the Burma road, he said.

Mr. Grady expected to leave for the United States Sunday, arriving in Washington between October 18 and 20. He will report immediately to President Roosevelt.

How Building Ban Works

Wide Discretion Allowed Nelson In Granting Priorities for Materials

By the Associated Press.
The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board established controls yesterday permitting it to stop all non-essential building construction which would use up "critical materials" needed for national defense.

Here are some questions and answers on its policy decision:
Q. How will non-essential building be halted?

A. Through refusal of the Office of Production Management to grant priorities preference ratings which would enable the prospective builder to get the materials he needed.
Q. What type of building is affected?

A. The O. P. M. can deny "critical materials" for any kind of construction—residences, power projects, installations for flood control, apartment buildings, factories, hotels, warehouses, lofts, office buildings, public utility projects, river and harbor improvements.

Q. Is it aimed particularly at home building?

A. No. Unofficially and somewhat guardedly, some defense sources indicate that it was aimed in large part at what they called "pork barrel" public works projects which have negligible defense significance or little public health and safety importance.

Could Override Congress.
Q. Could it halt projects authorized by act of Congress?

A. Yes.
Q. Who will guide the program?
A. Donald M. Nelson, former Sears-Roebuck vice president, now director of the priorities division of O. P. M. and executive secretary of S. P. A. B., the new defense super-ing fire brick, cork and some others.

Q. Does the ban completely halt the use of such materials?

A. No. It affects only projects which use an "appreciable amount" of a critical material.

Decisions Up to Nelson.
Q. Who decides what is an "appreciable amount"?

A. Mr. Nelson and his priorities staff. Some materials are more "critical" than others and would be harder to get. An "appreciable amount" of steel would be a greater tonnage, certainly, than an "appreciable amount" of copper. Defense people said the supply situation at the time the material is wanted might be a guiding factor, as well as the rise or fall of defense demands for a certain material.

Q. What are "critical materials"?

A. They are the scarce materials which appear on the so-called "priorities critical list" drawn up by the Army and Navy Joint Munitions Board. The list takes in virtually all metals, including many widely used in the building industry, such as steel, copper, brass, bronze and aluminum. It includes also asbestos roofing and pipe coverings, insulat-started and a substantial portion has been completed.

Q. If I were building a 10-story building and had four stories built, could I get materials to finish?

A. Very likely yes.
Q. If only an excavation existed?

A. A toss-up.
Q. If I had only blueprints

A. No, probably.
Q. If I had blueprints and had ordered materials?

A. Delivery might be stopped on your materials.
Q. What could I do if I felt I had to erect a new building?

Could Use Substitutes.
A. You could use your ingenuity to substitute non-critical materials.

Q. What materials, for instance?

A. S. P. A. B. says: "In many types of public works and buildings the use of steel can be almost entirely eliminated. Reinforced concrete pipes can be used in place of steel for water mains. Buildings erected for emergency use can be built to less stringent specifications than those designed for permanent use, and hence can be built with less steel".

Q. Will construction of private homes be stopped in "defense housing priority areas" where housing is needed because of an influx of defense plant workers?

A. Presumably not. Priorities officials note that the division on September 19 approved priority assistance for these communities in almost all the States and several Territories.

Q. Will contemplated erection of schools in such areas, to care for the children of defense workers, have to be abandoned?

A. Again, most likely not, in the opinion of qualified officials.

Traffic Council Asks Surveys by 4 Organizations

Claim That City Heads Ignore Body Is Heard In Lively Debate

Proposals that Washington traffic surveys be made by at least four nationally known organizations were advanced by the Commissioners' Traffic Council last night after a heated debate during which charges were made that the city heads had been ignoring the council.

At the conclusion of a session that lasted until midnight, the advisory group urged the Commissioners to invite the National Safety Council, the American Automobile Association, the Keystone Automobile Club and the National Conservation Bureau, an insurance organization, to delve into the Washington traffic problem and make a series of recommendations made by the council—in a session which had been made tense by earlier threats of a "mass walkout" unless the Commissioners attended—was that the Commissioners, Interior Secretary Ickes and other affected officials be urged to make Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway available to use by buses during rush hours.

Another adopted proposal called for a ban on left turns by motorists leaving or entering certain parking lots or garages in the downtown congested area.

No Resignations Announced. Not a single announcement that any member or group of members were resigning from the council was heard at last night's meeting, although a council "spokesman" had made such a prediction following a recent meeting of the body's Committee on Legislation and Enforcement, headed by Harry S. Wender. There was, however, extended discussion of the agency's proper position in the traffic situation and a resolution finally was adopted providing that a select committee bring in an agenda of subjects in answer to the Wender Committee question as to how the Commissioners could best use their Traffic Advisory Council.

Decision to invite the four specified groups to make traffic analyses was reached following an executive session, late in the evening. When public session was resumed shortly before midnight, Council Chairman Whitney Leary announced that the Executive Committee had approved a proposal by W. T. Cameron that the Commissioners invite the National Safety Council to make a survey and report on Washington's traffic situation, without cost to the District government.

At this point Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District Motor Club of the A. A. A., moved that the plan be broadened to request the A. A. A. to have one of its engineers make a traffic analysis. This was followed by a move by Howard M. Stirling, 1031 Wisconsin, to have the agency phrase some of the factors, E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., arose to demand whether the vote was serious or not. By this time, vote on one of the amendments had been taken and after some discussion the vote was cast 10-4 in favor of the colloquy, however, Mr. Cleveland asked that his amendment be withdrawn, but objection was raised and finally the council voted to ask that surveys or studies be made by all four groups.

Charges that the Commissioners had been ignoring the council, particularly during periods of traffic crises, were outlined principally by Mr. Wender, Col. Lawrence C. Crawford, Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Stirling, all members of the Legislation and Enforcement committee convening this morning.

George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Club, during this discussion, declared that perhaps the council members themselves had been at fault in not going to the new members of the Board of Commissioners to say in a letter that they would like to see the council to do "what you want your Traffic Advisory Council to do."

Reporting that he had invited the Commissioners to attend the council's meeting, Mr. Wender said he had received a letter from Commissioner John Russell Young saying he could not attend because of a previous engagement. Mr. Wender complained the committee had been "given a good going over" by the council's Executive Committee after his committee had invited the Commissioners to attend last night's meeting if it wanted the council to continue to serve. He declared his committee had been "unjustly criticized."

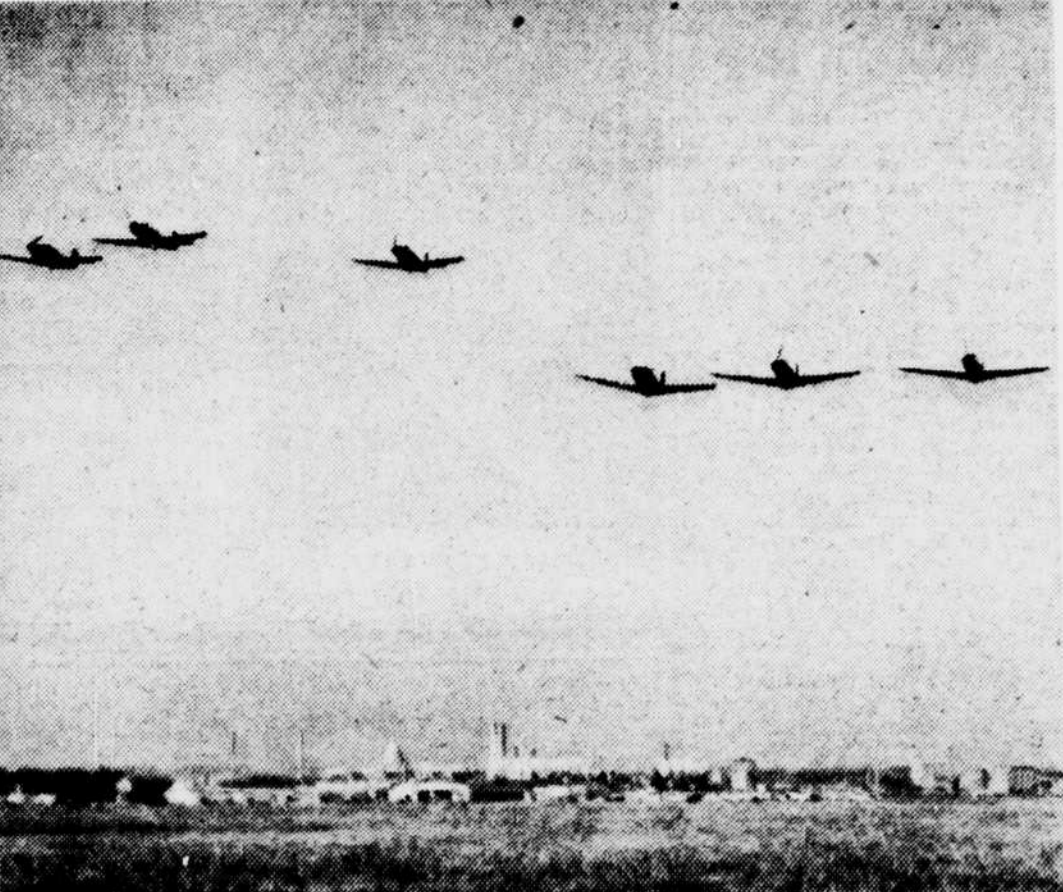

Col. Crawford said he had no objection to criticizing the Commissioners or their predecessors, but added: "The fact remains, however, that during the past several years the council has been largely ignored when traffic crises have occurred."

Lindsey Is Sentenced To Electric Chair For Criminal Attack

Verdict Is Debated For 45 Minutes; Appeal Is Planned

Roland J. Lindsey, 22-year-old colored man, was sentenced to the electric chair by a District Court jury yesterday for criminal assault. Lindsey became the seventh man to be convicted of a capital crime here since early summer. An all-man jury, which had heard the story of his assault upon an 18-year-old white girl and his attack on her soldier-companion, debated the verdict for only 45 minutes.

The jury brushed aside the defense advanced by Lindsey's counsel—that he was an imbecile and was, in addition, insane. The jurors found him guilty of the criminal attack and in addition demanded the extreme penalty.

Psychiatrists Heard. District Attorney Edward M. Curran had spent the week in court, prosecuting the case personally. It was the third death penalty voted in the court in an assault case since he launched a drive for stiffer punishment during the recent wave of sex attacks.

The jury had no trouble in reaching a verdict, in spite of the mass of evidence which had been presented during the four days of the trial. The last two days of the proceedings had seen a parade of experts march to the witness stand to testify on Lindsey's sanity.

The testimony of two Government psychiatrists—and the surprise statement of one psychiatrist called by the defense—that Lindsey was not an imbecile and was not insane was accepted by the jury. Defense experts had testified that the defendant was subnormal mentally—they set his intellectual age at less than 7 years—and suffering from psychosis.

In his final argument, United States Attorney Curran charged that Lindsey was "an imbecile, like a fox is an imbecile." Mr. Curran told the jury that "this type of crime must cease."

Jury Foreman Hesitates. The jury, after getting instructions from presiding Justice Jesse C. Adkins, retired at 4:40 p.m. At 5:25 p.m. they knocked on the door of the jury room and announced they had reached a verdict.

Ten minutes later all the principals in the case gathered in the courtroom. The clerk asked the jury its verdict on the first of the two indictments on which Lindsey was tried—charging him with assault with intent to kill Pvt. Lawrence E. McCullough.

"Guilty as indicted," replied the foreman. Then the clerk asked about the indictment charging Lindsey with criminal assault on the girl.

"Guilty as indicted," was the reply. The jury foreman hesitated, then added, "With the death penalty."

Defense Attorney George Tyson said that he would ask for a new trial and would appeal the case. Both of the defense attorneys were assigned to the case by the court. Assistant United States Attorney Dennis McCarthy assisted in the prosecution.

The attack occurred on July 19 when the accused happened upon the soldier and his girl in a wooded section in Northeast Washington.

Committee Report Calls for Changes in Courts of District

D. C. Unit of House Sees Need to Correct Lack of Management

"Legislation is badly needed to improve the administration of justice" in the Police and Municipal Courts "and to correct many evils caused either by bad management or lack of management within both of these trial courts," the House District Committee said in a report filed late yesterday on the court consolidation bill, which is scheduled to be called up next Monday.

Action was taken by the committee last Monday, when Representative Dirksen, ranking minority member, said it was the most important measure before the committee in years, and it was ordered reported even before a revised bill was introduced. This legislation, the House report said, "originated in the Department of Justice which at the direction of the Attorney General had ordered a study of the situation and had called into conference all the judges of both courts together with representatives of the Bar Association and officials of the District Government."

Purpose Explained. The purpose as explained in the report is "to provide more efficient management for both branches of the consolidated court; a more flexible arrangement for the assignment of judges and clerks; to require regular meetings of the judges; to relieve the United States District Court of a substantial part of its burden by increasing the jurisdiction of the new court in certain cases and provide expedient trials in cases involving $3,000 or less; to simplify procedure by making it conform to the new Federal rules of civil procedure; to relieve congestion in the trial and jury branches of the Police Court and to prevent congestion from arising in the future in any branch of the new court."

Emphasis is placed on the fact that there has been no increase in the number of judges in the Municipal Court since its organization in 1909 and that there has been no increase in judges in the Police Court since 1925.

Raises Jurisdiction to $2,000. The jurisdiction of the Police Court is unchanged in the pending bill. It increases the jurisdiction of the Municipal Court to cases up to $2,000. The House committee was told that 75 per cent of all settlements effected in the United States District Court have been for amounts less than $1,000, and the change is designed to relieve the higher court from handling so many small cases. The bill provides for appointment by the President of an additional judge and chief judge of the consolidated court.

Rising Costs Prohibit New Receiving Home On Present Funds

D. C. Heads Will Ask New Appropriation For Children's Structure

Ill luck is still pursuing the Districts who are housed in the makeshift Receiving Home for Children at 816 Potomac avenue S.E., the Commissioners found today, when they decided they would have to appeal to Congress for more money before construction can be started on a long-planned modern new receiving home.

Rising costs are believed principally responsible for the fact that when bids for the new plant were opened recently there was but one offer from a contractor, it being $25,500 more than the estimate. The Commissioners today decided it would be unwise to reduce the size of the new building to bring its cost within existing appropriation limits. They rejected the bid and announced they would ask Congress at once to approve a deficiency appropriation in order to build a home adequate to care for the present average daily population.

After long agitation Congress this year appropriated $121,300 for a new institution to be erected on a site between Sherman and Georgia avenues, Girard and Fairmont streets N.W.

Bids were opened September 18 with the sole bid coming from T. Calvin Owens of Bethesda, Md., the price being $128,500, whereas the Commissioners had allocated but $103,000 for the remainder being reserved for engineering inspection, furniture, landscaping, fences and up to $8,800 for repairs to the Potomac avenue home, which is rented and which was built for use as an apartment house. The Commissioners had to decide whether to build only two of the projected three stories and to seek money later for the completion of the building or to call again for bids, perhaps revising plans, or to reject the bid and apply to Congress for more money. The latter course was adopted since a two-story building would cut the maximum capacity to 25 children, whereas the present average daily population ranges between 35 and 40.

Alexandria Radio License Sought

The Federal Communications Commission today announced receipt of an application for a construction permit to erect a new radio station at Alexandria, Va. The application was filed by Percy C. Klein, automobile dealer of the city, whose address is given as 1063 Wisconsin avenue. Mr. Klein asked for the frequency of 740 kilocycles with one-kilowatt power and daytime operation only.

Crowded Alexandria Gives Up Convention City Fame

By ALEXANDER R. PRESTON, Star Staff Correspondent. ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 10.—The "S. R. O." sign hangs over this city today as it finds itself no longer occupying a position it has long held as one of the Old Dominion's principal convention cities.

Because its hotels are crowded and because there are no banquet and ballroom facilities for large convention crowds, Alexandria is for the time being, at least, no longer "going after any" conventions, Martin E. Greene, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, says. The only hotel of any size in Alexandria which is regarded suitable for convention purposes is the George Mason, where, for the last several weeks, its 100 rooms have been occupied about 80 per cent every night by transient guests.

The only other hotel regarded as suitable for conventions is the Richmond, which usually conducts its business gatherings in the Elks' Hall. Even in these instances, the business manager admitted, hotel accommodations would present a problem for a gathering of any size. Alexandria, steeped in the history of the Nation's great, and because of its proximity to Washington, has long been one of the select convention cities of the State.

Foreign Policy Unity Pleas Go to Capitol

Warned that America must forge her weapons before it is too late, delegates here for the "Continental Congress for Freedom" today visited their Senators and Representatives to urge immediate action on repeal of the Neutrality Act and support of the Roosevelt foreign policy.

The warning came from Douglas Miller, author of "You Can't Do Business With Hitler," who spoke before nearly 400 delegates from all over the United States assembled at a banquet at the Washington Hotel last night.

"If Hitler controls the ocean," Mr. Miller cautioned, "no American lives or property would be safe outside of gunshot of our shores."

Lindbergh Kin Present. Mrs. Dwight Morrow, wife of the late diplomat and mother-in-law of Charles A. Lindbergh, and Augustus F. Lindbergh, a relative of the flyer, were among those attending the dinner. Both disagree with the flyer's isolationist views on foreign policy. Augustus Lindbergh, a Birmingham Ala. resident, advocated repeal of the neutrality laws at an earlier session yesterday.

Similar appeals for all-out action and repeal of the Neutrality Act were heard during the evening from John Green, president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, and Senator Lister Hill, Democrat, of Alabama.

In his talk, Mr. Miller pointed out that Europe under Nazi rule, cannot settle down because it would be dangerous for Hitler to demobilize his armed forces and release his soldiers from their iron discipline. He said the whole plan of the totalitarians is to swallow up private business and to make Europe as self-sufficient and as blockade-proof as possible.

The author said it has been necessary for the American people to make a fateful decision—to appease or oppose Hitler, to resist or surrender. He added that there is no middle ground and that it is easier to say no to Hitler at the very beginning than it ever would be again.

Labor's Lost Cited. Mr. Green told the assembly that workers in the shipbuilding industry are behind the administration's foreign policy because "they know in their hearts that unless we stop this spread of Nazi-ism, they are going to be engulfed by it all, and the workers will be the first and last to suffer."

He also said that if the Neutrality Act stands in the way (adding quickly that he thought it did) it should be wiped from the statute book.

"Let no one think that our sole purpose is one of destruction," he said. "Our aim must be not only to defeat Hitler but to lay the foundations for a new world to replace the one which is now in the agonies of a suicidal struggle."

Reviewing the advance of Nazism during the last few months, Senator Hill, majority whip of the United States Senate, observed that if this Nation is involved in war "it will be because of what we shall fall to do rather than what we shall do, for Hitler will attempt to conquer whenever he thinks he is strong enough."

Sees No Compromise Possible. He said there can be no more compromise between the United States and Nazi-ism than there can be between freedom and slavery.

The convention, sponsored by the Fight for Freedom Committee, will gather on the Mall at the west side of the Capitol at noon today to give a new pledge to freedom and to hear talks by Sergt. Alvin C. York, World War hero, and Max Singer, national commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars. The delegates later will assemble at the Washington Hotel for their final session. Speakers at the closing meeting will be Claude Paul Smith, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle; the Very Rev. Frederick Beckman, former dean of the American Cathedral in Paris; Merle Miller, former Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Record; and Claude B. Johnson, president of the International Typographical Union.

Bishop Leonard and Wife Honored on Anniversary

Clergy and laymen of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church and their wives gave a dinner in Silver Spring last night in honor of the 40th wedding anniversary of resident Bishop Adna Wright Leonard and Mrs. Leonard. The informal affair was held at the Toll House Tavern. Guests included former Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, now Protestant co-chairman of the Washington Roundtable of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and Mrs. Roper; Dr. John E. Edwards, West Washington District superintendent, and Mrs. Edwards; Dr. Horace E. Cromer, East Washington District superintendent, and Mrs. Cromer; Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University, and his wife; Dr. J. L. Morgan of the Baltimore Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service; Dr. Benjamin Meek, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Church of Frederick, Md.; and Mrs. Meek; and Mrs. G. Ellis Williams, widow of the former West Washington district superintendent, and Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, and Mrs. Rustin.

Free Parking on Lot Offered With Dr. Wilkinson's Sermon

Lack of parking space for the motoring parishioners of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church means empty pews on Sunday morning. But the Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector, thinks—and hopes—he has the solution for this phase of the District's parking problem. This Sunday Dr. Wilkinson's congregation will be invited to leave their cars on a regular parking lot at 1855 Connecticut avenue N.W., which is just a nice walk from the church at Eighteenth and Church streets. It won't cost them a dime, because the rector will see to that. Those who take advantage of the offer will be given a slip at the lot and Dr. Wilkinson or his head usher will stamp them. When the bill comes around Dr. Wilkinson will settle up. Dr. Wilkinson said yesterday he had made a "deal" with the parking lot operator. Business is slow for the lot on Sunday morning anyhow and the rector was able to make terms for "job parking." The offer applies to those attending the 11 a.m. services, at which Dr. Wilkinson will deliver a sermon on "A Profane Man."

Prince Georges Association Elects Russell

Municipal Group Holds Meeting At Hyattsville

Mayor James L. Russell of Brentwood last night was elected president of the Prince Georges Municipal Association at a meeting in the Hyattsville (Md.) town hall.

Other officers chosen were Mayor John N. Torvestad of Colmar Manor, first vice president; Councilman H. Wilson Spicknall of Hyattsville, second vice president; and Town Commissioner Joseph P. Kohler of District Heights, secretary-treasurer.

Bird H. Dolby, retiring president, who has served three years, was thanked formally for his work in carrying on the association's program.

A proposal to have the Hyattsville Police Court hold sessions every Monday night instead of the first and third Mondays as at present, in order to avoid long night sessions, was referred to a committee for study. Sessions frequently last until midnight under the present system, it was pointed out.

The association expressed regret that little of the $80,000 bond issue for road improvements and beautification of Prince Georges County was earmarked for use in incorporated areas.

A meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Hyattsville Council chambers to discuss the problem of transportation of Washington employees from Prince Georges County by railroad. One suggestion to be presented will be shuttle service requiring about 20 minutes to reach Washington. Some bus schedules take from 45 minutes to an hour, it was said.

Bus Line Will Present Extension Plea Nov. 7

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 10.—Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. will present evidence before the State Corporation Commission November 7 on its application for authority to extend its bus routes in Arlington County.

The company seeks permission to operate from the intersection of Columbia pike and Barton street to Sixteenth street and Vermont avenue via Barton street, Thirteenth street, Edgewood street, Sixteenth street and Glebe road; from the intersection of Columbia pike and Taylor street back to Columbia pike via Taylor, Fourth, Wakefield, Eighth and Buchanan streets; between the intersection of United States route 1 and Twenty-third street and between the intersection of South Glebe road and Army and Navy drive to the intersection of South Glebe road and United States route 1.

Company officials explained extensions were needed to serve new housing developments in the areas mentioned, mostly large apartment projects.

Prince Georges Raises Fund to Pay Teachers

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Oct. 10.—Nicholas Orem, superintendent of Prince Georges County schools, announced here today that a deficit of $15,000 needed to pay the salaries of 29 new teachers has been met.

Mr. Orem said that $10,000 which had been appropriated to build National Youth Administration shops in high schools was not used for that purpose, since N. Y. A. was unable to supply labor. The county commissioners this week authorized Mr. Orem to use $5,000 of it on the teachers' salaries. The rest of the fund will be used to purchase land at Cheverly, Md., to build an addition to the white elementary school there.

Gov. O'Connor has allotted Prince Georges County an additional $10,000, which Mr. Orem said will be used to complete the fund needed for new teachers' salaries. The 29 new teachers are more than twice the number the School Board had expected to appoint this year, due to the unusually large increase in school attendance, Mr. Orem said.

Naval Academy Marks Its 96th Anniversary

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 10.—The United States Naval Academy—a $40,000,000 institution training more than 3,100 midshipmen this year—today marked the 96th anniversary of its opening.

On October 10, 1845, the academy had but 40 midshipmen, a few buildings and 16 civilian employees, most of them laborers.

Four times this Nation has gone to war in the 96 years, with academy graduates seeing service. Rear Admiral Russell Wilson, superintendent, said last night in a radio broadcast commemorating the anniversary.

Today world-wide wars have moved our country to its depths," Admiral Wilson said. "The wars have brought a year of unequaled change at Annapolis. There are now over 3,100 midshipmen—more than the total number of graduates before 1907."

A plan for schools for the Nation's armed forces was prepared in 1800, and West Point was established in 1802. The Naval Academy was delayed 43 years more because of belief that the place to train midshipmen was at sea.

Rain Checks Drought; Cool Weather Due To Continue Here

First Fall in Month Not a Heavy One; 50 Degrees Predicted

Cool breezes will continue to sweep Washington tonight and tomorrow, according to Weather Bureau predictions, but the first good rain the city has seen in more than a month will no longer be with us.

The observatory at Washington National Airport reported that rain beginning at 1:52 a.m. had by 8 o'clock this morning precipitated 29 hundredths of an inch of water. This was "not a heavy rainfall," it was emphasized, but compared favorably with the total of 93 hundredths of an inch which fell during all of September. The last shower which approached it was slightly smaller, on September 6.

Highest temperature today will be about 70 degrees, it was reported, compared with 74 yesterday. Enough blankets will be needed tonight to meet 50 degrees. The low last night was 60.

Despite the rain, drought-stricken Prince Georges County, Md., was still using today a 1,000-gallon tank mounted on a truck to transport drinking water to seven schools.

Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of supplies, said the tank was designed for permanent installation at Mitchellville School, but it was decided to turn it into a mobile unit for the emergency. It now serves Mitchellville, Mullikan, Sulland, Camp Springs, Forestville, Bowie and Highland Park Schools, each of which receives water in a 20-gallon container. Teachers ration distribution during recess periods.

Milk Shortage Averted. The drenching and cooler temperatures are unlikely to make the prospect that this area might go on reduced rations of milk, the office of the Federal milk marketing administrator reported today. Previously experts had been worried.

It was pointed out that the Capital's milk supply area is given considerable leeway by regulations which permit "closs 3" milk, usually turned into ice cream, to be used instead for home consumption as cream and milk. Ice cream production can, in the meantime, be sustained by imports from other parts of the country.

"The level of water beneath the ground has sunk so during the drought that one rain cannot quickly raise it, it was reported. In Winchester city water gages indicated that three big springs which furnish the entire local supply were not yielding as much as expected. Consumers were urged to be sparing.

The situation at Front Royal has become so serious that Shenandoah River water was being pumped into the town reservoir.

Expansion in Building Leads to Proposal, General Manager Says

Plans for a merger of the Rosslyn Gas Co. and the Alexandria Gas Co. were disclosed at a meeting of the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission last night.

Mrs. Alma Ramsay, commission chairman, reported on the contemplated merger, which she said she had learned about from Ray C. Brehaut, general manager of the two companies.

The two utilities, both subsidiaries of the Washington Gas Light Co., have combined assets of about $3,000,000, Mr. Brehaut said.

The Public Utilities Commission will study the plan to determine whether Arlington would be affected adversely, Mrs. Ramsay announced.

Confirming the proposed merger, Mr. Brehaut said "The great residential building brought about by the growth of defense activities and Government construction in that area is causing numerous interconnections of gas distribution facilities between the Alexandria Gas Co. and the Rosslyn Gas Co. A corporate merger is the most practicable way of providing for the increased utility facilities which the situation requires."

"Plans are still in the formative state, but it is not contemplated that any change in gas rates or conditions of service to existing consumers, or in the number of employees or working conditions would result from the merger."

The commission last night also received a petition from residents near Lee highway complaining about a recently inaugurated "skip-stop" system placed into effect by bus companies to conserve gasoline. The petition cited alleged dangers to passengers who are required to wait along the congested highway where no sidewalks exist. Elsworth Miner and J. Maynard Magruder were appointed by Mrs. Ramsay to study the question as it affects the entire county.

Crowded Alexandria Sacrifices Convention City Fame

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 10.—The "S. R. O." sign hangs over this city today as it finds itself no longer occupying a position it has long held as one of the Old Dominion's principal convention cities.

Because its hotels are crowded nearly to capacity every night and because there are no banquet and ballroom facilities for large convention crowds, Alexandria is for the time being, at least, no longer "going after any" conventions, Martin E. Greene, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, says.

The only hotel of any size in Alexandria which is regarded suitable for convention purposes is the George Mason, where, for the last several weeks, its 100 rooms have been occupied about 80 per cent every night by transient guests.

The only other hotel regarded as suitable for conventions is the Penn Daw, with 50 rooms, on U. S. Route 1 about 2 miles south of Alexandria. Here the occupancy each night has reached about 90 per cent, S. Cooper Dawson, sr., owner, declared.

Mr. Greene recently went to Richmond to cancel a convention of Virginia chambers of commerce executives which was to be held here later this month, because, he explained, there are not sufficient convention facilities available.

The George Mason Hotel dining room and the Lee room, directly beneath the first floor, have been leased by the Virginia Public Service Co. The utility firm will move some of its files and records into the hotel from its offices directly across the street.

Even the service clubs and other local organizations are finding it a problem to locate adequate meeting places. Some of the organizations go to the Penn Daw, which has a dining room that can accommodate from 50 to 150 people, Mr. Dawson said. The Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs now meet in the Westminster Building, whereas they formerly met at the George Mason.

Mr. Greene said Alexandria could possibly handle State conventions of Masons and the Elks because the former organization would meet in the George Washington Masonic Memorial Temple for some 20 years. She was the wife of E. Q. Garner, Washington pharmacist.

Besides her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Franklin J. Calk of Washington, Mrs. G. L. Ashby and Mrs. L. J. Burns, both of Maryland, and a son, H. T. Garner of Greenbelt.

Mrs. Garner was to be buried in Port Lincoln Cemetery.

Levant, Keen-Edged Jester, Puts Wit in Learnable Class
'Information Please' Music Master Here For 'Pop' Concert
Wit is no laughing matter to Oscar Levant. The man who is as famous for his wit as for his musical knowledge on "Information Please" was talking about it yesterday when he came here for a few hours to rehearse with the National Symphony Orchestra for his solo appearance at the final pop concert tomorrow night.
"Wit gets to be a pattern," he complained, "and then you're not funny any more. Then, if once in a while somebody tells you you're funny, you start to press."
He doesn't know exactly what wit is—maybe it's just when you say something funny—but he's sure it's something that can be acquired.
When he does say something he thinks is funny, he's not the last to laugh—that half apologetic chuckle that comes over the radio.
Doesn't Know Next Words.
Usually, he has something to apologize for. Some of his funniest remarks are calculated to take the pomposity out of the pompous.
But just being insulting, he says, is not being funny. At least, he doesn't do it for that reason.
"Unfortunately," he said, "I never know what I'm going to say next."
There is one censor, however, on his words—an unconscious and genuine respect for accomplishment. For instance, he didn't like "Porgy and Bess" when the opera opened in New York. He didn't tell that to George Gershwin, the composer, however, because "you don't always say what you think to people with creative talent. You have too much respect for their talent."
His respect for some pianists amounts to worship.
"When I hear Horowitz, I get a pain in my elbow—jealous paralysis."
Then there's the other side of Mr. Levant. He was asked if he knew a certain composer.
"I know him well enough for him not to talk to me."
The Levant malice doesn't stop with other people. He uses it on himself.
Self-Applied Malice.
"I asked Rubenstein how he gets that fat, juicy tone. He tells me he just takes command of the piano. I go home and take command of the piano. So I break an arm. Nothing happens."
As he talked he drummed constantly on a chair, a book—anything his fingers could move over. He smoked one cigarette after the other. Stood up to make a point. Sat down to stretch his arms over an imaginary piano to show how Horowitz does it. He talked readily and he talked fast.
Whether his wit is conscious or not, he knows a good curtain speech.
"There was this violinist playing for George V of England. The Duke of Windsor was very young then and he came into the command performance with a big dog. Well, the dog barked and whined or whatever a dog does. Finally, the violinist stopped playing and delivered one of those pronouncements. Either I go or the dog goes. The dog stayed. I don't know the end of the story."
With that, Mr. Levant went off to rehearsal.

Pre-Trial of Civil Cases Starts Soon In District Court Justice Proctor Prepares For Innovation Designed As Time Saver
An innovation is to be started shortly in District Court in the pre-trial of civil cases—designed to strip them down to their essentials to save the time of court, jury, witnesses and counsel—by having strictly private and entirely informal round-table discussions, with only the judge, the lawyers and their clients present.
Justice James M. Proctor, who is the new pre-trial and assignment justice, will begin the new procedure as soon as necessary consultation rooms are constructed in the rear of his regular courtroom, it was learned today.
Heretofore the plan has been for the jurist presiding in pre-trial court to hold the meetings in the open courtroom or to request counsel and their clients to adjourn to an anteroom to endeavor to thrash out the controversy and settle the case without the need of going to trial. Pre-trials are held a week or 10 days before a civil case is scheduled to go on trial.
Under the new plan, Justice Proctor himself will join in the round-table discussion in an atmosphere of informality. In open court, Justice Proctor will dispose of formal motions in conjunction with the pre-trial work.
Meanwhile, Justice Proctor is holding pre-trial court in the courtroom next to the clerk's office at District Court.

Invitations Are Issued For Exhibition Of Silverware

Dr. Rowe and Dr. de Alba To Be Hosts Tuesday at Pan-American Union

By KATHARINE BROOKS.

Society in Washington is developing more and more a keen interest in the arts. Evidence of this interest will be shown Tuesday when the late afternoon will be divided between the Pan-American Union and the Corcoran Gallery of Art. The Director General of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, and the Assistant Director, Dr. Pedro de Alba, have issued invitations for the opening of a special exhibit of Latin American silver. The formal opening is set for Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock and many will attend this showing as well as those at the Corcoran Gallery, where the works of Senhora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, who is a gifted sculptress, will be exhibited. The hours of the latter opening are from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Latin American Silver Exhibit Assembled by Mrs. Greenwood.

The exhibit of Latin American silver has been assembled by Mrs. Hugo A. Greenwood, widow of Dr. Greenwood, a physician who practiced for many years in Central and South American countries. During their residence in Latin America, Mrs. Greenwood became deeply interested in the beauties and characteristics of the silverware of these countries. She has an interesting collection herself, which has been in storage for some years, and the exhibit next week will include several of her pieces.

Many of the silver pieces in the exhibit are from the collection of the former United States Ambassador to the Argentine and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and include numerous items of archaeological interest. Also loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Bliss for this occasion are examples of 18th century Latin American silver, including Mate cups, some of which are of gold.

Some of the very small pieces are three-quarters of an inch high and were placed in mummy cases for use of the deceased in the other world. The miniature pieces were sewed to the mummy cloth in which the body was wrapped and were placed there to show rank or social standing. Many of these examples came from Peru. There, also, is a case of modern Latin American silverware showing the skill of the workers of today.

Ancient pieces of silver from the Marie D. Gorgas collection will be on view, the late Mrs. Gorgas having gathered a large number of goblets, plates, platters and pitchers during her days in Latin America. Mrs. Gorgas was the wife of Gen. William Crawford Gorgas, who gained fame as the chief sanitary officer of the Canal Zone during the building of the canal. This collection has never been shown in its entirety, but various pieces have been on view in other cities.

Mrs. Greenwood will receive the several hundred guests Tuesday, standing near the entrance where Dr. Rowe always greets visitors to parties in the Pan-American Union. Arranged as a background for the silver and gold are vestments of the period of the ecclesiastical vessels. Textiles of the pre-Columbus period also will be on view.

Party Forms Style Show's Aftermath

Goodwins Hosts to Models; Tea Held By Mrs. Caldwell

Yesterday's date books were filled with parties, and each turned out to be a gem in its own way.

There was the beer and hot dog party given by Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin in their Shoreham apartment following the fashion show for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps. Then there was the tea at which Mrs. Irene Caldwell was hostess to members of her junior committee for the military ball next Wednesday.

Dinners on yesterday's schedule included that given by Mrs. Lionel Atwill to honor Brig. Gen. and Mrs. T. Bentley Mott, and the dove dinner given at the Columbia Country Club by Mrs. F. R. Maguire to honor Miss Janet Hartz, whose wedding to Mr. Walter Gallagher takes place tomorrow.

Show Models are Guests At Party of Goodwins. The models at the benefit fashion show were guests of honor at the party held by Judge and Mrs. Goodwin. Their son, Macdonald Goodwin, also was present, still in the Scottish kilts he wore as an usher at the show.

Others seen at the party included Lady Chalkley, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy; Mrs. George T. Pettengill, Mr. Clarence Hewes with his niece, Mrs. Oliver Hammonds, and Mr. Hammonds; Mrs. Davies Walker, Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn, Mrs. Patrick Hill, Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Miss Peter Norris, Miss Sita Finkensstaedt, Misses Laura and Ruth MRS. LEROY W. HASKINS. Formerly Miss Mary E. Fister, her recent marriage took place in Our Lady of Victory rectory. Her mother is Mrs. G. A. Veitch of Arlington, Va.

Tuckerman, daughters of Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who was chairman of the fashion show; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey, Mrs. Julian Chetwynd, Miss Sheila Broderick, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Miss Elaine Darlington and Miss Suzanne Slingsluff. There were dozens of others.

Guests Gather With Junior Ball Chairman. Mrs. Caldwell's party, held at her Wesley Heights home, was most informal, her young guests gathering to meet with their new chairman, Miss Sybilla Clayton, for the first time. The men of the party were officers of the Army and Navy.

Guests at Mrs. Atwill's dinner included Senator Joseph Guffey, Senator Theodore F. Green, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Danford, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Miss Janet Fish, Mrs. Emory Smith, Miss Margaret Connell and the hostess' brother, Mr. James H. R. Cromwell. The dinner party for Miss Hartz was held at the same time her fiancé was entertaining at his bachelor dinner at the Carlton.

Weddings Add Luster To Fall Social Events

Miss Virginia Astryke Becomes Bride of Mr. W. L. Johnson, Jr., In Alexandria Church

White chrysanthemums decorated the altar and masses of the same flowers against banks of palms and fern filled the chancel for an especially picturesque wedding in Grace Episcopal Church in Alexandria, Va., last evening when Miss Virginia Ray Astryke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Astryke, became the bride of Mr. W. Lynn Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lynn Johnson.

Tall lighted tapers in cathedral candelabra illumined the church for the 8 o'clock ceremony, at which the Rev. Robert C. Masterton officiated. A program of appropriate music was played by Mrs. Robert F. Gooding and Mrs. Arnold Alexander Garthoff sang "Because" and "Perfect Love" preceding the entrance of the bridal party and the processional march to the altar to the strains of the traditional Lohengrin wedding music.

Bride Is Escorted by Father; Mildred Astryke Is Attendant.

The bride, who was escorted by her father and given by him in marriage, was lovely in a gown of white tulle and satin fashioned on princess lines with a yoke of seed flare skirt ending in a long circular train of shirred illusion, trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms, held her full-length illusion veil, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mildred Astryke was maid of honor for her sister, and she wore a costume of bronze-green tissue taffeta made on bouffant lines and carried a large bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Ellen Hunter and Miss Genevieve Carne were the bridesmaids, and they were dressed in rambler rose tissue taffeta fashioned like the costume of the maid of honor, and they carried large bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

The flower girls were Margaret Hunter and Lois Foote, who wore gowns of copper penny tissue taffeta, and Nita Kay Lyles, who wore gold tissue taffeta. Their dresses were fashioned like those of the other attendants and they carried nosegays of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Johnson served his son as best man and the ushers were Mr. Richard Johnson, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Garland Rainey.

Reception is Held at Home Of Bride's Parents. A reception after the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents at 203 Masonic View avenue, Alexandria, which was attended by nearly 200 guests. Autumn flowers and lighted candles were attractively arranged throughout the rooms and tall white candles in silver candelabra flanked the tiered wedding cake which centered the bride's table in the dining room.

The bridegroom, formerly of Richmond, Va., was graduated from George Washington High School in Alexandria and from Benjamin Franklin University in Washington. (See WEDDINGS, Page B-4.)

By the Way—

Beth Blaine

The Charles Deweys (he is the Representative from Illinois) live over on Capitol Hill in a small house that is a jewel. It is situated just a stone's throw from some of the most beautiful buildings in Washington—the Capitol and the Supreme Court Building—and when some one asked quick-witted Mrs. Dewey who her neighbors were she quietly replied "Brains!" "Imagine," says she, "if you like books" (as Mrs. Dewey does), "having the Library of Congress almost at your doorstep!"

We went there for cocktails the other afternoon—a party arranged to celebrate Peter Dewey's 25th birthday anniversary—and it was then that we first saw the house. The drawing room is painted Williamsburg blue and furnished with the most exquisite Old English furniture (one lovely desk was her grandfather's, Mrs. Dewey said) and the long French windows that overlook the high-walled side garden are curtained in flowered chintz. There's a small sitting room on this floor, too, which is used as a bar for parties, and down on the ground floor there is a huge dining room opening into the garden. This also is furnished with beautiful English things. For the party the large, highly polished table was filled with delicious things to eat—Smithfield ham and tiny hot biscuits, smoked turkey and all kinds of mysterious little "goodies." Our hostess, you know, is an authority on food. Remember the book she wrote some years ago on French cooking? Well, she still knows what's in it.

There were all sorts of attractive and interesting people at the party. From Lake Forest were Mr. and Mrs. William Clow, and from Chicago Mrs. Potter Palmer and her two daughters, Mrs. Oakley Thorne and Bertha Palmer. Also Representative Richard Gale of Minnesota and his chic young wife. That day she was wearing bright green wool with her hair in a pompadour under her small calot. Also Mr. and Mrs. John Toop—he used to be a professor at St. Paul's School and is now in the State Department—and Mrs. Rex Benson, whose husband is in post here at the British Embassy. Then, too, there were the Ralph Hills, Orme Wilson, Thomas Finletter—he is special assistant to Secretary Hull—and his lovely wife, who is a daughter of Walter Damrosch. David Edward Finley came without Marjorie, who has a cold, and from Honolulu were the Atherton Richards.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph Bard and Mrs. Bard were there, too, and Mrs. Arthur Krock, Mrs. John R. Williams and Sam Campiche of the Swiss Legation. Also lovely looking Mme. Lombard, Mrs. McCony Verlich and William Clark, who is a brother-in-law of Nelson Rockefeller, and the Lawrence Houghtlings and Mrs. Lionel Atwill, with Clarence Hewes, and the John Ides, and loads more.

That same evening we dined with Col. Robert Olds at his house on Reno road. It was a small party, arranged for some of Bob's aviator friends and couldn't have been nicer or more amusing. The aviators were Maj. Harold Willis, who was a former member of the Lafayette Escadrille now on duty here, Maj. Sargent of Boston, who also is on duty here; Col. C. V. Haynes, newly returned from the world record flight to Egypt and Baghdad, and Capt. Carlos Cochran and Maj. Curtis Lemay, co-pilots of the same thrilling flight. Also Lt. Crocker Snow of Boston, who is control officer for the State of Maine, and Lt. Felix Dupont, Jr., who is living with Bob while on duty here. His pretty blond wife came up from the Dupont house in Middleburg for the party. Washington lovelies asked to meet the gentlemen were Mrs. Frouke Dewey, Mrs. Northam Griggs and Mrs. Gore Auchincloss. Also from the home town, Jimmy Beck and Charles Hume.

We had cocktails on the porch overlooking the park—dinner inside at small tables and as you can imagine, much exciting conversation. Afterward Jimmy Beck played the piano and so did Mrs. Sargent, and as we left, Col. Olds was still firmly declining to play or to sing!

Navy Ready to Arm Merchant Ships When Congress Gives Word

Gun Shortage Overcome, Work Awaits Action On Neutrality Act

By the Associated Press.
Merchantmen plying the Atlantic danger zones can be armed just as soon as Congress gives the word, administration leaders disclosed today, because the Navy has sufficiently overcome the serious shortage of proper weapons which existed earlier this year.

"There will be enough guns for the ships in the Atlantic as soon as the necessary revision of the Neutrality Act is accomplished," an informed administration source said.

Although the Navy is known to have a great many guns in reserve which were adequate to protect ships against submarines, there was a shortage of anti-aircraft weapons.

Enough Ready for 900 Ships.
Last April 5, however, Congress made $75,888,820 available to correct that situation and shortly thereafter the Navy began getting deliveries of those guns in substantial numbers. The April estimate had expected production at about 100 a month.

The money provided was for the purchase of 1,445 guns and 1,344 mounts.

Naval officials testified that those weapons together with those already available would provide for the arming of 900 ships, mostly private merchantmen, and said they estimated that would be the number of vessels which would have to be armed in the event of war.

Chairman Land of the Maritime Commission told Congress last week that the number of American-flag ships which would be needed to transport lease-lend supplies to Britain ultimately would number about 185, and that an additional 135 would be needed for the Red Sea run.

Those figures did not include, however, the ships which would be necessary to carry supplies to island bases from Iceland to Antigua.

Air Attack Peril Greater.
Navy Department spokesmen said at the time the $75,888,820 was provided that it would take about 14 months to manufacture the total number of guns required, but assuming that deliveries have been at the rate of 100 a month it was pointed out the Navy now would have enough for a substantial number of ships.

Because of the greatly increased danger created by aerial attacks on shipping, merchant ships now require many more guns than during the last war.

In addition to the 1,445 anti-aircraft guns, which cost $14,100 apiece complete with housings, plus $18,000 apiece for the mounts, the Navy ordered $31,062,400 worth of powder charges and $6,667,920 worth of projectiles for the weapons. Optical equipment for the guns' sights cost an additional $2,840,000.

A. U. League Fetes New Members

Members of the League of Women Voters at American University yesterday entertained at tea for new members in the women's dormitory.

A brief talk on the general background and policies of the league was given by Mrs. Harold Stone, chairman of the department of government and operation of the District of Columbia Voteless League of Women Voters. The program also included two skits written and acted by University League members, one presenting two original songs and the other a mock radio broadcast. "The Untruthful Politician," Marion Berman was in charge of the program. Virginia Goodwin, president of the University League was assisted by Jane Sattler, vice president, and Mary Janet Kenyon, secretary. Mrs. Edward Harding presided at the tea table.

Mason Gives Talk On D. C. Traffic To Club Section

District traffic problems and some of the obstacles impeding their quick solution were discussed by Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday in a "question and answer" talk at a luncheon meeting of the civics-education section of the Twentieth Century Club.

Pointing out that Washington streets were built originally for horses and buggies, the Commissioner suggested that the engineering necessary to "underpass, bypass and overpass" streets to take care of automobile traffic would require many millions of dollars.

Mr. Mason expressed the wish that citizens' associations would consider themselves a common council in regard to traffic problems and added that the Commissioners welcomed advice of a constructive nature.

Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, chairman of the section, presided and introduced the speaker.

Announcement was made of the appointment of Mrs. Henry de R. Ralph as vice chairman of the section. The Executive Committee will include Mrs. Paul Everhardt, Mrs. Sydney Jacobs, Mrs. Samuel O. Herrick, Mrs. W. Hayes Yeager, Mrs. Francis Goodwin, Mrs. Thomas West and Mrs. James Barnes.

Mrs. L. H. Macomber was named chairman of the Clean City Committee; Mrs. Prentiss Willson was chosen delegate to meetings of the Council of Social Agencies, and Mrs. Ryland Bryant was named representative to the District of Columbia Motion Picture Council.

Mrs. Frank A. Linsel, president of the council, and Mrs. Charles Kutz, wife of the Engineer Commissioner, were guests at the luncheon.

A. U. Park Citizens Vote Co-Operation in Air Raid Warden Plan

Names of Winners in Annual Garden Club
Contest Announced

Complete co-operation with the city's contemplated volunteer air-raid warden and civilian mock air-raid practice program was voted last night by members of the American University Park Citizens' Association.

The association, on the motion of H. L. Colman, offered to hold a mass meeting of residents of the area for organization of an air-raid alarm system among civilians. No date was set.

Crowded Hospitals Cited.
Dr. E. W. Higgins warned members of the civic group of what he termed a "ticklish" situation here with regard to the shortage of hospitals and hospital beds. He said the situation would become even more acute, predicting that 35,000 new residents would come to Washington during the next 30 days. He said he did not believe there were 15 vacant beds in private hospitals today.

M. R. Wilkes, president, asked members of the association to write to members of Congress they might know calling on them to take some action to remedy the hospital situation.

Garden Winners Named.
Names of winners in the annual garden club contest, held by the American University Park Garden Club, were presented following the regular meeting. W. H. Youngman, garden expert of The Star, was judge in the contest finals.

Names of winners and their awards are as follows:
Master gardeners—W. H. T. Pence, William H. Matthews, Jr., Ernest R. Taylor, James D. Bligh, Miss Constance E. Philpitt, Lester E. Comerford, J. J. Gorman, Robert L. Westcott, Edward S. Morgan, Howard S. Reid.

Honorable mention—Dr. Bernard L. Jarman, Mrs. Myra W. Collins, Henry B. Blumet, A. Ralph Snyder, Dr. Charles P. Ryland, Mrs. Ora G. Visel, Miss Minnie E. Hicks, Sydney D. Smith, Roland M. Brown, Ralph Hilsley.

Curiosity Led to the Discovery of This Great New Benefit to Your Family!

Here now is that utterly new and revolutionary kind of bread—many scientists believe may influence profoundly the lives of millions. Because of its power to improve their physical and mental processes of life amazingly.

For this new bread brings the treasure-trove of life-sustaining elements, the rich hoard of vitamins and minerals with all the wealth of flavor Mother Nature amassed in each bursting grain of sun-ripened wheat. And NONE of its bad, bitter, indigestible, splintery "skin"!

Better Than Ordinary White,
"Enriched" and Whole Wheat
Never before have you tasted bread like this. Good bread fresh as the sight

A Mining Engineer
Solves The Problem

Then, in the "flotation" process, which separates the dross from the gold of the hills, Theodore Earle, mining engineer and inventive genius, at last found the clue toward separating the bad from the gold of the plains.

Next, university scientists set out to prove the new health values; milling and proving experts spent 6 months testing formulas; the Continental Baking Company spent $340,000 for new facilities to perfect Staff.

No Other Bread
In The World Like Staff

For, of its Vitamin B Complex, Staff contains 4 times more natural Vitamin B₁.
—all the natural Vitamin B Complex of wheat and twice the natural minerals of many ordinary white breads. The only bread made under the Earle patents, you can tell Staff is a natural wheat bread by its golden wheat color.

Get fresh Staff today—and "Eat Staff For Life." Note the amazing difference the good flavor of sun-ripened wheat makes. You'll rave about Staff!

Spending D. C. Funds For Outside Advice On Traffic Opposed

The Washingtonians Hold Van Duzer Has Ability To Cope With Problem

Complete confidence in the ability of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer to cope with the District traffic tangle was expressed by the Washingtonians last night as they passed a resolution opposing the spending of District funds for bringing in outside experts.
 This action followed the announcement of District officials that Lewis J. Valentine, police commissioner of New York City, and Cornelius O'Leary, deputy commissioner, would arrive next month to tackle Washington traffic problems.
Ask 350 More Policemen.
 The resolution, made by Miss Etta L. Taggart, president of the citizens' group, asked more co-operation and less criticism of the present traffic department. The association also asked that 350 men be added to the Police Department.
 Retirement pay for local judges at the end of 20 years' service was opposed, and it was recommended that 10 years' residence be necessary before a man could be appointed to the District courts. The motion was made by Mrs. Viola Fellows.
 Any increase in water rates was opposed, on motion of John B. Dickman, and the Federal Government was asked to pay its share of the District water bill.
40 Per. U. S. Share Urged.
 Other resolutions passed included opposition to public showing of motion pictures of sexual education in the District, approval of 1-cent milk for all needy school children and a request that Congress return to the old system of providing 40 per cent of District expenditures in place of the present lump-sum appropriation.
 Miss Taggart was re-elected president of the association for the coming year. Others elected were: First vice president, Mrs. Olive Madden; second vice president, Herbert Adams; third vice president, Miss Anna Campbell; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Edwin Field; treasurer, Mrs. Henry Sawtelle; delegates to the Federation of Citizens' Associations, Miss Taggart and Holmes M. Howard; parliamentarian, Mr. Dickman; historian, Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan.
 The meeting was held at the Highlands Apartment.

Defense Bond Quiz

Q Why is the Defense savings program truly national in scope?

A Because it was devised to make possible participation by every individual—whether he buys one 10-cent savings stamp or a $10,000 bond. Also it provides for enlistment in the program of every business enterprise and every kind of organization, great and small, all combined in a mass patriotic movement to save for national defense.

Q How can an individual consumer help to prevent a rise in prices leading to an increased cost of living?

A He should avoid buying goods that are scarce, and manufactured in competition with products needed for defense, buying instead things that are plentiful. Also he should purchase Defense savings bonds and stamps on a regular, systematic and continuing basis.

Note—To buy Defense bonds and stamps go to the nearest post office, bank or savings and loan association, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington. Also stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

U. S. Should Sponsor Health Insurance, Owen D. Young Says

Tells A. Y. C. Session Other Leading Nations Back Such Programs

The entire social insurance program is weakened by the Federal Government's failure to assume responsibility for stimulating nationwide medical care and health insurance, Owen D. Young, chairman of the American Youth Commission, declared yesterday at a commission meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

Any adequate social insurance program, Mr. Young said in commenting on the recent proposal to extend the existing social security benefits to approximately 40,000,000 more Americans, should include workmen's compensation, unemployment and old age benefit payments, provision for dependents and health insurance.

Adopted by Other Nations. He pointed out that the United States is the only advanced nation which has not adopted universal health insurance.

While stressing the importance of adequate medical care for youth, he said the problem affects all ages and is important at all times.

"It should not have to wait for the emergency of war to bring it to public attention," he declared.

That there is a demand for universal health insurance in the United States is shown, he said, by the large number of private health insurance plans, "never adequate and generally unsatisfactory," which find eager customers.

He suggested that cash payments to beneficiaries in lieu of wages lost might be assimilated to the present unemployment insurance system, by adding unemployment due to illness as an insurable risk and making a separate charge for it.

Advocates Other Programs. He also listed additional health education and "public health engineering," or preventive and protective measures administered by public health authorities, as national programs which must be strengthened to improve health of the whole population.

He urged that the school lunch program be put in every elementary and secondary school, with Federal assistance to extend the program from 4,000,000 to 27,000,000 children. Speaking for the commission, he also approved the surplus food stamp plan, and recommended that it be expanded as rapidly as possible until its benefits are available throughout the country.

Army Airman Killed As Plane Dives in River

By the Associated Press. DONORA, Pa., Oct. 10.—An Army pursuit plane crashed into the Monongahela River near here yesterday, killing the pilot and barely missing the towboat "Donora." The aviator was identified by the tag on a parachute as Lt. J. P. Lyons of the 59th Pursuit Squadron, en route from Patterson Field near Dayton, Ohio, to Harsburg.

The tragedy occurred opposite the little community of Courtney, about 25 miles south of Pittsburgh.

NATIONAL WINE WEEK
October 12-19

Now—as the nation joins in observing National Wine Week—try out this pleasant custom of serving wine.

Come dinnertime, for instance, choose a light California red or white table wine—such as Claret or Chablis. Pour out medium size glasses for everyone as the main course comes to table. You'll find the flavor of wine sharpens appetites, helps make even a simple meal seem like a feast.

Try, too, offering guests small servings of nutty-flavored, amber Sherry at the appetizer hour.

You'll find California wines sound, well-developed and reasonable in price.

Murder at Runymede

by Ellen Tower

The story thus far: Felicity Nevgate, governess to Hilary and Elaine Hemingway, brings the two children from war-torn England to visit their aunt and uncle, Shirley and Henry Tarrington, at the latter's New York estate, Runymede. A few days after their arrival, Shirley, who has expressed fear of her husband, is sent to a sanitarium, and Henry advises Felicity to ask no questions, but simply mind the children. One night Felicity is awakened by a noise downstairs and, investigating, finds Tarrington murdered in his study. Capt. Franklin of the police department arrives shortly and, after him, Tom Barnes, young Federal agent with whom Felicity fell in love on the boat. Tom's interest in the case concerns Eric Strasson, a friend of Tarrington's. Franklin discovers that Shirley escaped from the sanitarium during the night.

CHAPTER VI

Felicity raised her eyes to Capt. Franklin. "Then she's all right?" she asked. "Nothing has happened to her? At the nursing home, I mean?" "Why? Were you afraid something had happened to her?"

The tenseness of the atmosphere registered with Felicity. She was about to answer the detective when she caught Mrs. Fowler's eyes in her inscrutable face steadily intent on Felicity's face. They burned with a message. "Don't."

The English girl hesitated. "Well, no, I can't say I was afraid. Only we didn't know where she was."

"I mean," she said. "The appalling possibilities came home to Felicity. Perhaps her adored Shirley had escaped and come home to end the threat over her life. For that Felicity knew there had been. She realized now that in voicing she would be giving Shirley a motive for killing Tarrington. Mrs. Fowler had warned her just in time. But where did Mrs. Fowler fit in? That made her a friend of Shirley's, and surely..."

Suddenly Felicity was aware that Tom Barnes was speaking to her. She looked up at him. His dark eyes were probing hers, his narrow face sober.

"I asked you, Felicity, whether you noticed anything about the room last night?"

"I wasn't in the room, Tom, until I found Tarrington."

"That's what I mean. When you found Tarrington did you notice anything about the room?"

"I'm not sure I know what you mean. Everything seemed in order except the desk."

"You didn't touch anything?"

"Oh, no. That is, I switched on the light and shut the door that was banging."

Franklin pulled himself out of his chair. "Let's have another look at that room. Tom, before the men take the body away."

Finds a Clue.

Tom and he worked out the small box that Felicity could have seen from the stairs had she tried. "Well, it's a cinch that girl or any one else couldn't see Tarrington's chair from the stairs nor any one standing near him."

The men surveyed the library. It was a long, narrow room with apple green walls and deep green carpet and draperies. Pale fingers of light streaked the east windows and mingled uncertainly with the glowing lamplight. At the end of the room opposite to the hall were two long French doors and along the wall opposite the fireplace were two banks of windows between which stood a broad desk heaped with papers. In front of the fireplace was a wing chair with the back to the door.

"Interesting," mused Tom. "You can't see even a hand of Tarrington from here. No wonder Felicity got such a scare."

"Those windows down there must have been where she went."

Franklin passed the wing chair without a glance, but he paused at the small love seat directly facing the chair on the other side of the fireplace. He stooped down and studied it without touching it. "Looks to me as if some one sat here for some time."

"The night has been any one any time yesterday?"

"No, I don't think so."

"Why not?"

Franklin shrugged. "House is well staffed with servants. The whole place is as neat as a pin, morning room, hall, here. Good, servants plump up pillows and cushions, you know."

Then he ran his hands carefully between the cushions and pulled out a woman's wadded handkerchief with a large S embroidered in green. Franklin stuffed it into his pocket.

The Inquiry Continues.

Tom went to the doors and opened one. "Sort of terrace out here. Wonder whose room is just above." He stepped outside and examined the walls. "Nice stout trellis out there. Must look into that."

Tom went back into the library and with Franklin made a silent inspection of the room. Tarrington sat far back in his chair, with his head resting against the chair back. "Looks just as if he'd looked up when some one spoke to him, doesn't he?"

"Yes, see, he'd been reading the paper! Hold on! Tom's voice was sharp. "I can read the paper, here in front of him. The society page! He couldn't read it the way he's holding it."

"You mean the way it's in his lap; notice he's not holding it."

Franklin, apparently forgetting the paper, started down at the contents of the table beside Tarrington.

"One compact, one whisky glass, one ash tray with a pipe in it. Wonder where the tobacco pouch is? Maybe in his pocket."

long have you been with Mr. Tarrington, Miss Trowbridge?"

Jane sat down her coffee cup before answering, and she flashed her brilliant smile at Franklin before she said, "About 18 months."

"I thought Tarrington had been in the East only six months."

"He lived out West until last winter. But I took care of his New York office for him."

Again Franklin pondered. Felicity thought surely she would be asked a question next, but Franklin ignored her.

"How long have you been with the Tarringtons, Mrs. Fowler?"

"I have been with Mr. Tarrington for five years. I was employed by him to care for his ranch house after his first wife died."

Barnes nodded to Franklin. "They were married only a year or so. Queer accident. She fell off a cliff and died as a result of injuries."

"You never worked for her, Mrs. Fowler?"

"No."

"And the present Mrs. Tarrington? How was she as a mistress?"

For the first time, Marian Fowler's deep eyes caught and held Franklin's. "She was a lady far above her husband in every way."

"Would you say she was, well—"

"Same?" Mrs. Fowler cut in. "Perfectly."

"Would you, Miss Trowbridge?"

"Why, yes, I guess so." Jane said flippantly. "But Mr. Tarrington evidently didn't think so."

Franklin took out the handkerchief he had found in the library. "Do you recognize this?"

The detective watched the three women. Felicity, her eyes round and knowing, shook her head. He looked at Mrs. Fowler, watching her pick up the scattered crumbs of coffee cake and deposit them on her saucer.

Only Jane answered. "There's an S on it, isn't there? It's probably Shirley's."

YES, it's a Family Affair in more ways than one! The Hahn Family . . . three generations of Hahns . . . have carried on the shoe business that in sixty-five years has grown to be one of the largest independently-owned retail shoe businesses in America. We're mighty proud of that . . . but we're especially proud to point to the thousands of families that season after season . . . year after year . . . get their shoes at Hahn's. And we just beam all over when someone says to us, "You know, my Grandma brought me to Hahn's for my first pair of shoes . . . every pair of shoes I've ever worn has come from Hahn's . . . and now here I am starting my own grandson off right in Hahn Shoes." There must be a reason for this loyalty of our customers, who make their shoe-buying a Family Affair at Hahn's . . . and the reason, simply stated, seems to be this:— Our customers like Hahn Shoes . . . they like Hahn Reliability . . . they like Hahn Service . . . they like Hahn Value!

35 Transit Company Emploees Trained for Mobile First Aid

Equipment for Service
In Wartime Placed
In Emergency Vehicles

Robert H. Duncan, director of instruction for the District Red Cross, announced yesterday that 35 Capital Transit Co. employes, mostly foremen, have completed three months of training in wartime first aid.

Nearly all these men are operators of 22 emergency autos and trucks equipped with two-way radio, on 24-hour duty. The emergency vehicles have now been equipped with first aid implements and materials needed in wartime, at the transit company's expense, Mr. Duncan reported.

First Mobile Unit.

Yesterday the Red Cross officially denominated the 22 vehicles and their operators as Washington's first Mobile Unit—and awarded identification plates to be put on the vehicles. The plates are red, white and blue, bearing a red cross and the words "Emergency First Aid."

Washington thus becomes the first city in the Nation with a transportation service prepared to meet a heavy bombardment, Mr. Duncan said. The Red Cross will at once begin an effort to train transportation employes in every other East Coast city within 300 miles of the Atlantic, he said.

The principal instructor here was Woodrow W. Nealey. Twenty-two of his students will now rank as instructors and it is the aim to train virtually every employe of the transit company.

Has Peacetime Uses.

While the training was based on war needs, it was claimed that it may prove valuable when traffic accident victims are in need of help.

Among those completing the course were S. E. Emmons, assistant to the general manager of the company, and E. E. Boyd, superintendent of transportation. It was suggested that during an emergency these men might act as officers of the Mobile Unit, swung into action as a flying first-aid corps.

Board Asks Chartered Bus Take Selectees to Myer

A Staff Correspondent of The Star. ALEXANDRIA Va., Oct. 10.—The local selective service board has recommended that selectees be sent by chartered bus to Fort Myer for their preinduction medical examinations by Army doctors, it was announced today by Clerk Addison Slaymaker of the board.

National selective service headquarters has announced a plan whereby it expects to have all selectees examined by Army doctors instead of by private examining physicians throughout the Nation on or before January 1, 1942.

Col. W. W. La Prode, State procurement officer, at Richmond, asked the local board to determine the best means of transporting prospective selectees to Fort Myer for the medical tests. The board has informed the State office that because of no direct bus connection between Fort Myer and Alexandria, it is believed to be more practicable to charter buses and send the young men to Army doctors on specified examination dates.

Meanwhile, the names of seven Alexandria colored men who are to be inducted October 17 were made public. They are John C. Smith, James Young, Aaron L. Whitehead, Louis E. Douglass, Chester J. Reid, Ozzie Beam and William Parks.

The board has been called on to supply nine colored men on November 3 and 10 white men on November 15, it was announced.

Seven Ask $140,000 For Collision Damages

Seven persons filed a $140,000 damage suit in District Court yesterday against the Carry Ice Cream Co., 1337 D street S.E., and Arch Harrison Doolin, 1445 Girard street N.W., claiming injuries as the result of a traffic accident in which a company car allegedly collided head on with their machine on August 14 at Largo, Md. Mr. Doolin was named as driver of the firm's car.

The plaintiffs are Harvey A. Egan, 1224 C street N.E., who claims concussion of the brain; Mrs. Roberta H. Bleam, his wife, who says she received fractured ribs and lacerations of the face; Harvey C. Bleam, same address, multiple fractures of the wrist, arms, foot and toes; Gwendie Bennie, 648 A street N.E., spinal injuries and lacerations of the face and scalp; Bessie Davis of Detroit, Mich., fracture of the arm, pelvis and lacerations of the face; Mrs. Eliza Davis of Mauch Chunk, Pa., concussion of the brain and multiple fractures of the jaw, severe lacerations of the scalp, and her husband, Lewis Davis, who told the court that his wife was permanently crippled. Mr. Davis was not in the car.

Win, Lose or Draw

Storm Warnings Along the Fistic Front

Lou Nova was one of the luckiest heavyweight contenders of all time. He picked up a good hunk of change for doing practically nothing and he was spared the scathing criticism and ridicule that befell Johnny Paycheck, King Levinsky, Max Baer and other so-called challengers who froze in their dressing rooms when the knock came at the door and a voice said "You're on now."

Nova was spared much embarrassment because almost as soon as he and Joe Louis left the ring the beloved Bums of Brooklyn and the New York Yankees took over the spotlight. And while they were finishing, Ohio State trampled Southern California and Navy threatened to have an unbeaten team and so much has been happening that Nova the Yoga was able to fold his tent and steal silently away.

As a matter of fact, had it not been for the New York Boxing Commission the other day, Nova might have pulled a Judge Crater. The commissioners suspended Nova's manager, Ray Carlen, for six months. They set down Ray Arcel, his trainer, for two months. The charges were alike. . . . Carlen and Arcel advised Nova not to behave bravely against the Brown Bomber.

Nor did the commission stop there. The manager of Welterweight Champion Freddy Cochrane was suspended for six months for not permitting his boy to knock out Lew Jenkins, so-called lightweight ruler, last week.

So the Blast Is Put on the Ring Pappies

The wind aftermath to this flourish by an iron fist is that in New York the fashion is to laugh at the commission's decision to suggest that Nova or any other fighter be so brave as to actually fight his opponent. Fighters, managers and newspapermen are condemning the boxing commission for its stand.

This poses a question: What is boxing coming to, anyway? Here is Nova. He is over 6 feet tall, weighs over 200 pounds and is in superb physical condition. For a year he had been talking a great fight against Louis. He pouted when asked if he feared the Bomber. "Why doesn't somebody feel sorry for him?" asked Nova a few days before the fight.

He took up yoga, or at least feigned to have become a follower. He spouted at length of a cosmic punch, a dynamic stance and a singular immunity to pain. He got a million dollars worth of publicity through these medicine man angles. Nearly $600,000 was paid by customers to see him face Louis and ringiders were buying at $30 per copy.

And what did Nova do? When the bell rang he started to run. He never made a lead. He half-swanned every time Louis feinted. The best thing Lou did was get caught by Louis in the sixth round. As long as it wasn't sweet it was short.

Nova and Jenkins Were Well Overpaid

Jenkins blamed a recent motorcycle accident for his failure to make any kind of a fight against Cochrane, a homey plodder at best. Maybe he had a motorcycle accident, but it wasn't the first time Jenkins showed up for a bout in no condition to justify the outlay by the public. As far as John Q. Public is concerned, Jenkins only made one first-class showing and that was the night he knocked out Lou Ambers to win his title. That was more than a year ago and the victory was not so remarkable that Jenkins can expect to live on it indefinitely.

Why should any boxing commission or any individual condone, by a fighter or a manager, a policy of run-away-and-I'll-fight-another-day? They don't pull on their gloves for nothing. Fighters get big pay. . . . sometimes too much pay, as in the cases of Nova and Jenkins. If they don't want to fight, there must be something else for them to do.

What the New York Boxing Commission did was what Judge Landis would do, although in sterner measure, if the Brooklynites and the Yankees were found stalling and prolonging the series to swag games. You can hear the old judge saying, "All right, you're trying to balk the public. Well, from now on find some other ways of doing it. You're all finished." Do you think other ballplayers, managers, club owners and baseball writers would howl against Landis? They would not.

World Series Showed Up Jacobs' Fights

If the New York ring solons made a big mistake it was in letting off Nova and Jenkins scot free. Nova got into the ring with Louis through the back door, in the first place. Who did he ever lick to establish himself as a $30-per-seat contender? Well, they are three and sell for a dime a dozen. . . . Max Baer, Jim Robinson and Pat Comiskey. If Jenkins was a race horse he would be ruled off all first-class tracks. He wouldn't last an inning with a major league ball club, even a tail-ender. Horses and ballplayers don't always have to win, but they have to be trying and in passable condition.

Coming as they did, just before the World Series, and at the end of the Nova-Louis and Jenkins-Cochrane fights did nothing to help boxing. They were pale, weak and cheap entertainments alongside the bitter, hard-fighting and sometimes spectacular baseball carnival. At the same time, the series helped. It swept away the bilge-water backwash of the Nova episode and left most of the customers indifferent to the Jenkins-Cochrane thing.

Pacific Lutheran, With Mere 200 Males, Leads in Offense, Has Two Little-School Aces

SEATTLE, Oct. 10.—Pacific Lutheran, a small college near Tacoma, Wash., with a mere 200 male students in its meager student body, boasts the best minor college total offensive team and two of the best little-school backs in the Nation.

Among minor schools playing two or more games, the Lutheran aerial circus averaged 407.5 yards a game by rushing and passing in licking Gonzaga, 26-13, and Eastern Washington College, 27-0. The figures were compiled by the American Football Statistical Bureau.

Tommervik, Harshman Aces.

The two spearheads of the Lutheran attack are Marvin "Tommy Gun" Tommervik, 171-pound Associated Press Little All-America halfback in 1940, and 206-pound Marvel Harshman, fullback. They turned in these performances:

Tommervik gained 552 yards in 56 ball-handling attempts, to lead the minors in total offense gains—rushing and passing. In the air he's completed 23 out of 24 attempts for 429 yards, with no interceptions.

Harshman, the fullback, leads the minor colleges in pass receiving with 12 catches from Tommervik good for 159 yards.

Second in team total offense is Willamette University of Salem, Ore., which has rolled up 399 yards a game. Third is Dayton, 384; fourth, New Hampshire, 381, and fifth, West Texas State, 362.5. Dayton with 346 yards is the top rushing team; the Lutherans' 365 yards is the top air figure.

Among the individuals in total offense, second is Harold Hall of New Hampshire, who collected 499 yards in 76 attempts in two games. Ben Collins of West Texas State is third with 410 yards in 62 tries. Bill Shatzler of North Central (Ill.) College is fourth with 355 yards in only 25 attempts, and "Pompon" Complanio of Bergen (N. J.) College in one game gained 314 yards in 10 attempts. Bobby Gilmore of

Odd Bout Sanctioned By New York Board; Jenkins Censured

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—It was "here we go again, boys," from Gus Q. Fan today as he climbed back on the merry-go-round to contemplate the latest in the screwiest set of fistic developments in years.

As though it wasn't enough in that 72 hours for the State Athletic Commission (1) to suspend a couple of managers for giving their boxers honest instructions and (2) to offer no more than a figurative slap on the wrist to a fighter who failed to fight, this new bit of confusion amounted to the proposal for a no-title bout for the world welterweight championship.

Not since Max Schmeling went into training for his fight with a phantom has a series of happenings had the business of bashing, beaks running around in circles like it has been this week.

The latest announcement is for a 10-round match in Madison Square Garden October 31 between Welterweight Champion Red Cochrane and the hard-hitting Harlem Negro, Ray Robinson, a fight that figures on paper to be a pretty fair country brawl. Up to now Robinson has been knocking the ears off lightweight exclusively, but with the Cochrane fight, his manager, Curt Hornman, says he will move up into the welterweight wars for keeps.

Rated as "Handicap Match." This October 31 shindig was announced by Promoter Mike Jacobs as a "handicap match," with Cochrane forced to make 145 pounds. Such being the case, both fighters would come under the 147-pound welterweight limit. Since New York rules say no fight under 15 rounds may be considered a championship set-together, the commission would okay the 10-round route for this one as a non-title tilt.

Now, just for laughs, suppose Robinson, one of the hardest-hitting youngsters to come down the pike in a long time, should walk out there and flatten Cochrane in, say, five or six rounds. Since both are under the welterweight limit, can you imagine Robinson's manager refusing to claim the crown in that case? And what's more, can you imagine how much double talk will stream from the august commission trying to prove why the skinny swatter wouldn't be head man?

At that, no one is quite sure just what the Jersey redhead will do about this tea party. He says he won't fight again in New York until his manager, Willie Gilzenberg, is reinstated. So, if Red stays by that announcement, the commission would have to do a fantastic flim-flo to get the matter straightened out.

Jenkins Posts Forefit. Willie was one of the pilots suspended by the deep-thinking fistic fathers Tuesday. The other was Ray Carlen, manager of Lou Nova. They were sentenced to six months each for instructions to their fighters who they believe take any chance with the respective punching dynamic of Lightweight Champ Lew Jenkins and Heavyweight King Joe Louis.

The October 31 date was to have been occupied by Jenkins and Sammy Angott, both lightweight title claimants. But the commission, whose physicians okayed Jenkins for Monday's farcical showing with Cochrane, discovered yesterday he had a rib fracture, so that the bout was set back tentatively to December 19.

The commission forced Jenkins to put up $1,500. If he does not pass a physical examination on November 7, this forfeit will be split down the middle between Angott and Promoter Jacobs and Texas Lew will be relieved of his New York blessing as champion. If you don't quite get the drift of all this, don't worry. The commission does.

Gopher-Illini Grid Fete Minnesota and Illinois football fans are holding a party this afternoon at Hotel 2400 to listen to a broadcast of the football game between teams of the two universities. The broadcast begins at 2:30 and will be followed by dancing.

Revamped Team Will Take Field For Colonials

Even Chance Is Seen For Hosts in Tilt With Generals

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

Still looking for their first good break of the season, George Washington's gridden bump heads with a durable Washington and Lee eleven tonight at Griffith Stadium in the District school's initial Southern Conference appearance. The kickoff is set for 8:15.

A simple, but appropriate, ceremony will mark the downtown squad's conference debut. Before the game, A. H. Hobbs, president of the organization, will greet Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin of G. W., welcoming the Colonials into the circuit. It will be no elaborate demonstration with a fanfare of trumpets and rolling of drums, but merely a warm hand-clasp in the spirit of fellowship and good sportsmanship.

Mrs. Hobbs, who will sit in Dr. Marvin's box with the official party, will be presented a bouquet by Anne Blackstone, president of the George Washington Student Council, and the brief ceremony will be over.

Although Washington and Lee rates a slight edge over Bill Reinhardt's crew on the strength of its 7-0 stand against Kentucky last week, the Colonials have at least an even chance tonight. Injuries and a further reduction in personnel because of the draft have caused a drastic reshuffling of the starting line-up, but the squad is keyed to a high pitch and determined to make a successful start.

G. W. to Start Three Sophs. Bill Bess, one of three sophomores slated to start, replaces Paul Nugent in the only backfield change. His running mates will be Walt Fedora, old faithful of the ball carriers; "Stub" Martinson and "Slick" Gudmundson. It is a well balanced quartet with a lot of driving power and enough speed to go places. Whether it does depends largely on the line.

Two sops appear on the left side of the line in Pat Del Vecchio, a promising end, and Walter Murphy, a tackle. They may be the key to the Colonials' hopes for if they stand up under the pounding of the huskier W. and L. forwards George Washington will do all right. If they collapse the rest of the team may go down with them.

Johnny Pico, probably Reinhardt's best end, will see the game from the bench because of an injured knee. With him will be Dan Snyder, a regular tackle, who is nursing a game leg.

Upset by Sewanee in its first game of the campaign, Washington and Lee showed no improvement against Kentucky, and confidently expects to win first prize tonight. Coached by Riley Smith, former Alabama All-America and later a professional star, the Generals reportedly have one of their best teams in recent years.

Attack Built Around Pinck. The Colonials' line is headed by Capt. Bobby Pinck, triple-threat fullback, who does everything but rush the waterbucket. Also dangerous is Ted Ciesla, 150-pound scabbie, who is rated one of the best broken field runners in Virginia.

Last year's hockey team won the Virginia Vale interscholastic championship with only 1 defeat in 11 games and the baseball nine was almost as successful.

Washington and Lee will be spurred on by the memory of last year's hectic duel between the teams which almost ended in a riot when Referee "Dutch" Eberts disallowed a W. and L. touchdown in the last few seconds of play that would have given the Generals at least a 20-20 tie. Another game like that will be hard on the blood pressure.

Fine Record as Coach Brought by Boyson To Landon School

Walter Boyson, for 19 years coach of football, baseball and other sports at Carteret School, West Orange, N. J., is coming here to take over the post of sports coach at Landon School.

He will succeed Paul Banfield, who has taken those duties in addition to being headmaster of the school since Bob MacCartee went on active duty with the Army this summer.

Boyson was well known in New Jersey for his ability to turn out championship teams with limited material. In his first eight years at Carteret his teams won 122 contests, lost 44 and tied 5. His 1924 baseball team was undefeated. Carteret football teams were State Group 3 prep school runner-up in 1929 and 1934. Boyson introduced hockey at Carteret and his teams won State championships in 1927, 1929 and 1930. From 1928 through 1930 the sextets won 50 of 54 games with high prep school and college freshmen teams.

Last year's hockey team won the Virginia Vale interscholastic championship with only 1 defeat in 11 games and the baseball nine was almost as successful.

Gridders Just Getting Hot, Basket Fever Rises in Gotham

Twice Fooled by Hoyas, Critic Picks Temple; Carolinas Stage Bowl Game

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—You can't keep up with the sports seasons. Here we thought football was just warming up and we find Ned Irish working overtime on his basket ball bookkeeping. Ned hasn't announced his first college show at the Garden yet. It will be December 13, but he has so many applications for season tickets he doesn't know how he will manage to hold out enough choice seats for the colleges.

What's this we hear about Duquesne threatening to quit football? Story is the Dukes can't compete with Pitt at the gate and Pitt won't compete with Duquesne on the field. Phil Rizzuto has promised to be one of the umpires when Fort Niagara, baseball champion of the 2nd Army Corps Area, plays Fort Adams, 1st Corps Area camp, at Brooklyn's Dexter Park tomorrow.

Playing safe on this week's football selections, we'll continue to string along with Minnesota and Stanford although they may have tough going against Illinois and Oregon State. In fact, if this is the time Bob Zuppke wants to win just to show up the guys who are trying to get him fired, we wouldn't be a bit surprised to see Illinois upset the Gophers. Other picks are Boston College over Clemson—because it isn't as hot in Boston as it was at New Haven—and because our Clemson scout admits: "I don't think we're as good as Tulane." Colgate over Dartmouth—because we don't think Andy Kerr has showed his hand yet, although reports from New England say Dartmouth has a really good team. Notre Dame over Georgia Tech and Fordham over North Carolina—because we think they're a lot better. For tonight, Temple to beat Georgetown, which fooled us twice, and Mississippi to beat Georgia—because Frankie Sinkwich won't be at his best with a broken jaw.

Today's guest star—Dan Desmond, Sioux City (Iowa) Journal: "I can't admit the Yankees were lucky any more than Louis was a darling of the gods when he whistled that right to Nova's whiskers. I will admit that simple moral justice should have installed Brooklyn's bravos as champions. Trouble is, the only place where good triumphs over evil is in the rassling ring." Latest addition to the "bowl" games is the Carolinas Bowl, which will send 22 North Carolina players against 22 from South Carolina for the Greenville (S. C.) Lions' Club charity fund, December 6. The assumption is the Governors will be there to make their famous remarks. Sam Taub, the fight broadcaster, will turn actor October 15 on the "Meet Mr. Meek" program. He has been cast as a fight announcer. Len Will, who almost played fullback for Columbia this season, and Dave Alverdie, Princeton's 1940 passing ace, will listen to the Lions-Tigers game together tomorrow down at Chickasha, Okla., where the Air Corps sent them both. Joe Louis' next opponent may be Corpl. John Pivovar of Fort Sheridan, Ill., who is being urged to tackle the champ during Louis' exhibition tour. John's pals say he couldn't do any worse than Lou Nova. Alexis Thompson, who invested some of his spare cash in the Philly Eagles instead of polo ponies, still figures it was a wise move. Pro football players, he argues, weigh just as much as polo ponies, cost more to feed, but don't take as much stable room.

Neither Coach Admits He Has Chance for Win Tomorrow

Georgetown Prep Opens With Charlotte Hall As Visiting Rival

By GEORGE HUBER.

Devitt and St. John's, playing tomorrow afternoon at Central Stadium, present a genuine natural that promises a lot of excitement for high school football fans with both coaches denying in advance that they have any chance of winning.

Both have announced changed line-ups with key players missing because of injuries, but it is likely that most of the absentees will find themselves in condition to play. Billy Brogan, St. John's quarterback, has a trick knee and Coach Gene Augusterfer plans to start Steve Burns in the No. 1 slot. Also nursing a bad knee is Albert Wilson, guard. Football injuries are many and varied, but it has taken a St. John's player, End George Hughes, to come up with a new one. He got a long splinter in his left leg while playing basket ball several years ago, and now this splinter has worked its way to the surface and is protruding. An operation may be necessary and meanwhile he isn't in the best of shape. George happens to be a big cog in the Johnny machine. His kicking last week against Washington-Lee kept the team out of trouble several times.

Ends Are Pass Hawks.

Hughes also is a clever pass receiver, as is Jim Collins, the other end, and from indications in this week's practice sessions the Johnnies will do a lot of passing. Buddy Speiss so far has done most of the team's passing in the two games played, but developing rapidly is Charley Wilson, who in this week's drills has been getting off some exceptional tosses.

Also on tomorrow's schoolboy program is Georgetown Prep's opener against Charlotte Hall, to be played at Garrett Park. Several out-of-town trips are carded. One of the most important being Episcopal's visit to St. Christopher's at Richmond. The Virginia prep school title isn't at stake yet, but the winner will have a good start. Episcopal is much improved over last year, with successive wins against Eastern and Tech attesting its strength.

Eastern Record Misleading.

Eastern, playing at Roosevelt today, will seek its first victory of the season. Episcopal and John Marshall. The Ramblers have a much better team than those two defeats would indicate and last week they more than held their own against the powerful John Marshall team until well into the third period. One reason Eastern kept the Justices in check for so long was that Coach Mike Kelley threw the old Notre Dame defense at them with a seven-man line. Apparently John Marshall never had seen more than six men in the line and it required some time to wear down that number.

In addition to the regular Eastern players who are coming through as expected, Kelley has come up with a capable center. Almost every school in Washington had trouble filling that spot this year, but at Eastern the hole loomed particularly big because of the loss of Paul De Meglio's excellence last year. Taking over in grand style, however, is Charles Kemp, a 165-pounder who is backing up the line with the best of them on defense and has yet to make anything resembling a bad pass.

Purdue held Pittsburgh scoreless, and Michigan should be able to do as well and meanwhile push over a pair of touchdowns. We like Texas Christian to whip Indiana in a close game and Notre Dame to outscore Georgia Tech in a wide-open battle.

Purdue, Ohio State and Iowa are idle until October 18.

Olivet Rolls 166-416 On Big Evening in Brookland Loop

Pins were piled up by the cord last night in the Brookland Merchants' League, with top honors going to Bruno Olivetti with 166-416 as Pioneer Laundry overwhelmed Shadid Restaurant. Joe La Grippa's 165 and Ralph Bates' 403 were the heaviest wallops as Rod Willis Esso blanked University Delicatessen, with top team scores of 634-1,794. Cliff Hollis hit for 399 as De Perini Delicatessen swamped Brookland Bakery. Bill Martin's 162-387 was the deciding factor as the Tavern pinner posted a 2-1 win over Modern Way Movers. Ed Hutchinson's 399 gave Hite's Shell a 2-1 decision over Rudy's Tavern.

Eager to Get on Grid Again, Harmer Will Try Pro Game

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 10.—All-America Tom Harmer is going to take one more "crack" at the game that lifted him to fame.

The former University of Michigan halfback, who turned a dear eye to pro gridiron offers after hanging up his tugs, will trot out into the field October 19 in New York to play with the New York Americans against Columbus.

Harmer, who has been no nearer a football field than the radio booth and sidelines this season, says that "ever since I've been watching the boys out on the field this fall I've had the urge to play again."

"I think I'll take a crack at this one and see how it turns out," said Harmer. "It's the only thing definite that I have in mind right now."

Precedent Is Against Fordham Piling Up Points on N. C.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 10.—There's one consolation down here on the North Carolina campus as the underdog Tarheels get ready to tangle with Fordham's battering Rams.

Incidentally, credit Tub-Thumper Bob with the nickname "Eight Horsemen" for the big collection of good backs Fordham boasts this year under Coach Jim Crowley—who, you may recall, was one of the original Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

Del Ray Underdog in Pin Match With Baltimore's Franklins; Red Circles Gain Lead

By the Associated Press.

DEL RIO, Tex., Oct. 10.—Taking the measure of the powerful Franklin Bowling Center combination of Baltimore is the order of the day for the Del Rio team. The Del Rio team, composed of Lou Jenkins, El Geb, Andy Gleason, Buck McDonald and Bill King is tough on its home drives, it will swing into battle with Franklin underdog.

The Del Rio discovered the Del Rio's excellence several days ago when the Cavaliers scored a clean sweep in team, doubles and singles over them.

Stands have been erected to accommodate several hundred spectators. There will be an admission fee of two bits, the proceeds to go to the U. S. O.

Featured by Russell Parks' 144-414, Red Circle Food Shop swept the erstwhile leading Jalepes Restaurant quit to take over first place in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. The veteran Joe McGorkick with 135-381 made a gallant effort to stem the onslaught.

Led by Karl Goehnenor's top counts of 161-418 and Marty Alexander's 152-404, Station WINX pinner rode roughshod over King Pin with 626-1,829. The victory gave the radiomen a tie for second place with Perruso Cafe. An oddity in the match was the winner's consistent first game scores—three 132s and two 115s.

153-405 as Try Me trimmed Senate Beer, 2-1 with top scores of 641-1,833. Yellow Cab, led by Sam Shreve's 637, was a 2-1 winner from Del Rio. Al Cisse's 142 gave Jacobson's Flowers a 2-1 edge over Johnny Pappas' Restaurant.

Joe Tucci's top 350 aided the champion Lido Club pinner to trim Silver Spring Lions, 2-1, with highs of 581-1,653 in the Civic Clubs League at the New Recreation.

With 130-363, Al Bauer led St. Francis Xavier No. 1 to a sweep over St. Joseph's in Section D of the Washington Catholic League at Queen Pin. The winner also posted highs of 595-1,678. Ev Robertson of St. Peter's No. 1 grabbed top game honors with 135.

Jasper Team Dominant.

Sergt. Jasper pinner dominated the rolling in the American Legion League at Lucky Strike, when Bill Whelan fired 147-384 to top Bill scores of 571-1,677.

Machinists' Clerks stole the show in the newly organized Ladies Federation League at King Pin, as Mary Anderson's 118 and Margaret Carleton's 318 led highs of 491-1,424 that trimmed A. F. of L. No. 6 by 2-1. The 10-club loop consists of fair employees of unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Rams to Be Without Hall and Smith for Game With Lions

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Here's good news for Detroit Lions—Parker Hall, the Cleveland Rams' ace passer, won't be able to play in the National Professional Football League clash Sunday.

Hall hasn't been able to throw a football since his shoulder was bruised and wrenched in the second period of the Rams' losing battle last Sunday against the Chicago Bears.

Also out of the clash is Fullback Gaylon Smith, still limping from injuries received in the Green Bay game September 20.

Nebraska-Kansas Tilt Is Week-End Treat For Big Six Fans

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—The eyes of Texas probably will be on the gridiron struggle between Texas and Oklahoma at Dallas tomorrow; but the eyes of Big Six Conference devotees will be watching the goings-on between Nebraska and Kansas at Lincoln and Kansas State and Missouri at Columbia.

Iowa State will have a day off Saturday after their 14 to 0 shellacking last week end from Nebraska. Wisecars have indicated a favorable leaning toward Nebraska over Kansas and Missouri over Kansas State.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 10.—It will be a double-header battle here October 25. The Irish and Illinois will tangle in a battle of football and the 175-piece Illini band will take on the Notre Dame brasses in a battle of notes.

Vengeful Spirit Spurs South's Grid Teams This Week End

Georgia, L. S. U., Florida, Vandy Are in Group Out to Get Even

By ROMNEY WHEELER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ATLANTA, Oct. 10.—If it's true that revenge is sweet, Southern football ought to produce more than its share of heavy sugar this year.

Take Tulane, for instance—the Big Green Wave that spent a great part of last season on the debit side of the ledger. Coach Dawson's boys squared things up to a "T" with Boston College, beating the Eagles, 21-7, in the season's opener. A year ago B. C. won, 27-7. Then the Waves made it a double helping of revenge by rolling over hapless Auburn, 32-0, last Saturday—payment with interest on that 20-14 defeat suffered in 1940.

Holy Cross, whipped by Louisiana State a year ago, 25-0, came down to the bayou country and returned the compliment September 27 by the identical score. Duke also paid off, and with interest, when Tennessee came to Durham last Saturday. The Vols, who had beaten Duke, 13-0, in 1940, took a 19-0 lacing from Wallace Wade's Blue Devils. Tennessee's first defeat in 35 regular-season starts.

Georgia Guns for Ole Miss.

There'll be other old scores up for settlement this week end.

Georgia, apparently one of the power teams of the Southeastern Conference this season, meets Mississippi at Athens tonight with high hopes of reversing the 28-14 decision gained by Mississippi a year ago. The following week Georgia goes to New York in quest of a similar settlement with Columbia.

Louisiana State, loser to Mississippi State last season, 7-22, will try to trip the conqueror of Alabama tomorrow at Baton Rouge, while underdog Rice Institute, beaten last year by Tulane, 15-6, undertakes to drown the Greenies' Sugar Bowl aspirations.

Clemson is due for an argument with Boston College in the Eagles' home stadium—a continuation of the rivalry which started when Clemson beat B. C., 6-3, in the 1940 Cotton Bowl.

In Atlanta, Georgia Tech meets Notre Dame tomorrow—hoping for the Engineers' first win in four starts of the present series and the second in 12 since the teams began playing in 1922.

Florida Would Even Score.

Florida, which dropped a narrow 6-0 decision to Mississippi State in the season's opener, tries for revenge against Villanova's Wildcats, last year winner over the Commodores.

Undeclared Vanderbilt and Kentucky renew a football feud, 28-0, years' standing when they clash at Lexington, Ky., tomorrow afternoon in the first conference test for each club.

Since the off-and-on series started in 1896 Al Kirwan has been the first Kentucky coach to pilot the Wildcats to victory over the Commodores. Kentucky won, 21-13, in 1939. The teams battled to a 7-7 tie last year.

Kirwan, whose Wildcats hold victories this season over Virginia Tech and Washington and Lee, promised to "shoot the works" against the Commodores.

Hats, Scarfs or Muffs of Fur With Untrimmed Costumes Among Many Suggestions

By Helen Vogt

Armed with copious notes, back issues of fashion magazines and a box of headache tablets, this department sat down yesterday to look over the fashion situation for the fall and winter season. More than that, it came to some weighty decisions about the style picture in general, and finally, after hours of deliberation, this writer, who knows no more about it than anybody else, came up triumphantly approving the following suggestions. In other words, why don't you—

—Buy a hat with a snood or wimple? They're very much in the picture, glamorous with earrings and a sophisticated expression, and lifesavers if your hair needs a bit of doing and you're off to an important date.

—Try a cloche? Looks like they're coming in, so you might just as well see how you're going to look in them. App be tolerant when you're trying them. Takes a while to get used to the change.

—Get some earrings? You'll need them with your sophisticated hairdo and hats.

—Try a new make-up as a change from that same old color? New clothes require a different facial color scheme and there are some wonderful ones making their bows at the moment.

—Realize the value of dickerkeys to give a simple dress countless personalities? Have an monogrammed for added charm.

—Splurge on a set of furs? Then drape them casually over your arm, wrapping them around twice, or making an entrance trailing them on the floor behind you. Wear your furs with untrimmed coats and suits, as well as with wool dresses now.

—Investigate the possibilities of getting a fur hat and muff for your untrimmed outfits? Take silver fox, beaver, mink or even muskrat in one of the various dyes such as mink or sable.

—Buy an embroidered or sequin trimmed wool jacket to wear with dressy afternoon frocks or with a simple long skirt for evening?

—Look for a suit with the new dolman sleeves, long torso and not too exaggerated shoulders? This too will be a startling change at first glance, but it screams newness and chic.

—Go in for variety in your gloves? You'll be amazed to find the changes you can make with brightly colored ones, matching them to your blouse, bag, hat or even to a bright handkerchief peeking out of a suit pocket.

—Wear a huge ring on the outside of your glove?

—Try a pair of medium-heeled shoes for comparatively dressy occasions? The styles are wonderful and the trend to lower heels is important.

Manners of the Moment

When a mother is struggling with her own child's behavior it is very difficult for her to appreciate her friends' remarks about how beautifully behaved one child or another are. I know one girl who invariably starts telling about her adorable and polite little niece in Idaho when she is visiting a New York friend who has a recalcitrant child. She picks the moment when her New York friend's child is at his worst, and when the mother is doing her best to smooth over a difficult moment in child rearing, to bring up those darned nieces. Needless to say, the New York mother gets sore.

The mother probably wouldn't mind in the least hearing about the Idaho dolls during the times when her baby is behaving like a little gentleman. In fact she'd probably rather enjoy exchanging gossip about the actions of children. But when her baby is yelling his head off, she says she does wish people would keep quiet about babies who don't ever seem to yell in public.

Make This Lovely Frock For Party or School

By Barbara Bell

A tempting dress for the tender ages of 4 to 12 is presented in Pattern No. 1439-B. It is scooped in at the waist, flared in the skirt and wide at the shoulders, and therefore, "does things" for the growing figures of little girls. It brings out slimmness and grace in those inclined to be chubby, and it gives poise and charm to the "spindle-legged." You can make this a winner as a party dress in velvet, velvet, taffeta or silk crepe by edging the sweetheart neckline and the scallops down the front with a narrow lace—in black velvet with white lace, for instance, it will look like a frock for a princess.

The same pattern may be just as successfully used for a school frock in any of your little girl's favorite cottons—calico, gingham, percale, chambray, broadcloth. Brighten the frock with rick-rack edging and a set of matching buttons. It is a

All the Newest Trends Spectacular Fashions Are Shown At Display Offered Yesterday

Impressive may be a slightly over-worked word, but it seems the most logical one to use in describing yesterday's fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel. Held in the new ballroom, it was attended by several hundred well-groomed women who were there to see the brilliant display of clothes and to give their support to the British-American Ambulance Corps, for whose benefit the showing was presented.

Nor were they disappointed in the fashions offered for their approval. A collection of dresses, suits and coats by Molyneux was featured first, followed by a group of styles from the most famous of our American designers. The clothes were shown to best advantage, too, entering the ballroom by means of a circular staircase and parading up a long runway for close inspection. Miss Marshall Adams' comments were most enlightening and entertaining as she described these styles from a local store and pointed out their fashion significance.

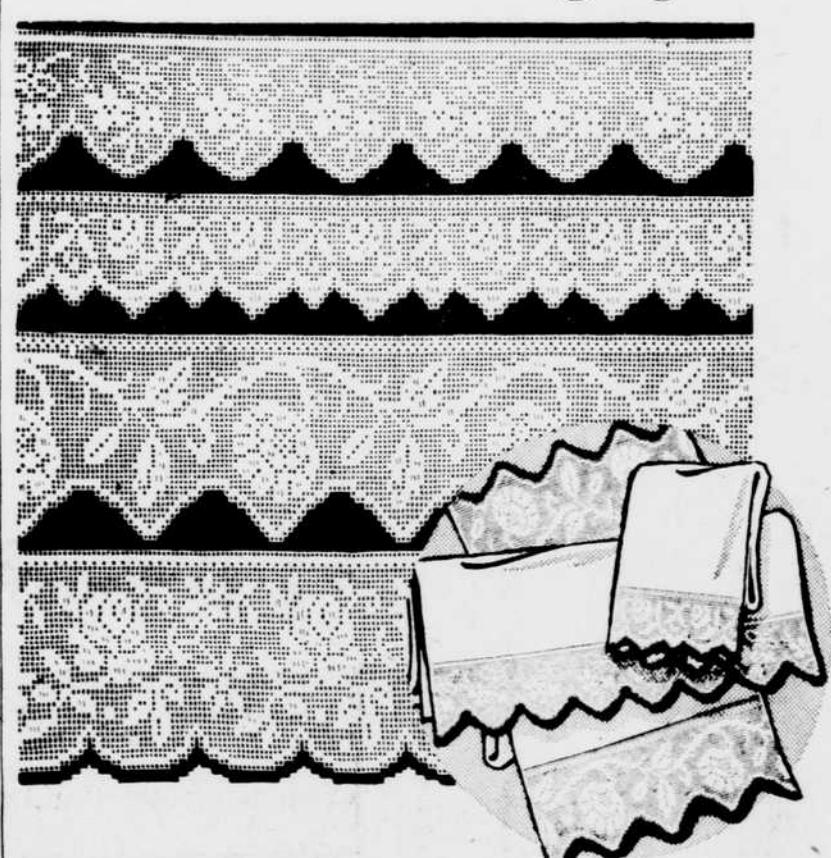

High lights of the presentation, which featured all the current trends, included many costumes of black, always a favorite of Capt. Molyneux and downright refreshing in a season almost overdone with color. This designer makes lavish use of sealskin, too, using it in quaint little collars on suits and as trimming for simple black wool coats worn over flame-colored dresses. Such news-making items as jeweled butterfly pins on the sleeve or a crepe gown and again on the shoulder were seen, and were unusual accessories such as matching fuchsia belt and gloves of dyed calfskin. Dinner dresses were slender and sirenish in feeling, many of them with slit skirts lined with brilliant color to flash as the model walked.

Throughout the showing the "dinner dress," usually of black adorned with sequins, appeared

Modern Furniture Interesting, But Choice of 18th Century Pieces Likely to Be Wider

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: I would like your advice on whether to use wall paper or paint in my new house, for I am puzzled when I go to the wall paper stores, there are so many patterns. Also, I think with small children in the house painted walls which can be scrubbed are more practical. However, I do not want to be practical to the extent of making my house uninteresting and I would appreciate your opinion.

J. V. S.

Answer—I have a living room and a library on the first floor and a bedroom and a bathroom upstairs. Use answer in your plan room and bedroom. Generally speaking, it is wise to do the two alike, with the woodwork in the same color as the shade or two lighter. Then use a wall paper above the chair rail in the dining room. The dado, where the children's hands may rest, is of paint, but the paper gives wall decoration in a room that seldom has wall decoration other than mirrors or wall light fixtures. If there is a library on the first floor a paper combined with paneling of paint is nice here also. The children's rooms and the bathroom upstairs may be painted and the guestroom and your own papered, if you please. Generally speaking, don't buy wall paper just as a wall covering. Paint is better if that is what you want. Buy wall paper for its exquisite colors, fine design and decorative quality. Let this make the room for you. Invest enough to get the design and quality that you want, or else use a painted wall.

Dear Miss Nowell: I have been married 18 years and as my children are now grown up I would like to get some new furniture for my house. The things I have are useful but nondescript, and I have always planned to return to my whole house in the same period. I have been watching furniture for the last two years and I am wondering what would be the best to buy. I first thought I wanted 18th century things, but I am more and more interested in modern furniture. What do you think will be the future of it? Do you think the designs are simple enough now so that they will not go out of style? Should I buy now or wait a few more years? MRS. E. S.

Answer—I agree that "modern" is becoming more and more interesting. Only the fact of the war and the slowing up of the presentation of new designs has held it back this year, and it is especially adapted to the busy, active life that goes with our times. On the other hand, if your pleasure is going to be in the care of your house, you cannot go wrong in selecting the fine designs of the 18th century. They have been good for 200 years, and they probably will continue to be good for your times. Hand-made table decorations from California are making a hit this season. They are designed from native woods and gourds, gaily painted to add color to your table and may be used on many occasions to save expense. . . .

Don't rest your broom against the corner wall, for it will, as you no doubt know, become crooked and unsightly. Purchase an inexpensive hard rubber cap equipped with a loop on the top which will enable you to hang the broom neatly over a hook. The caps fit snugly and also can be attached to dusters and mops. . . .

Jars of salad vinegar come equipped with a tube spray. This is a nice feature, for the vinegar can be spread evenly over the dish, eliminating the danger of over-seasoning. . . .

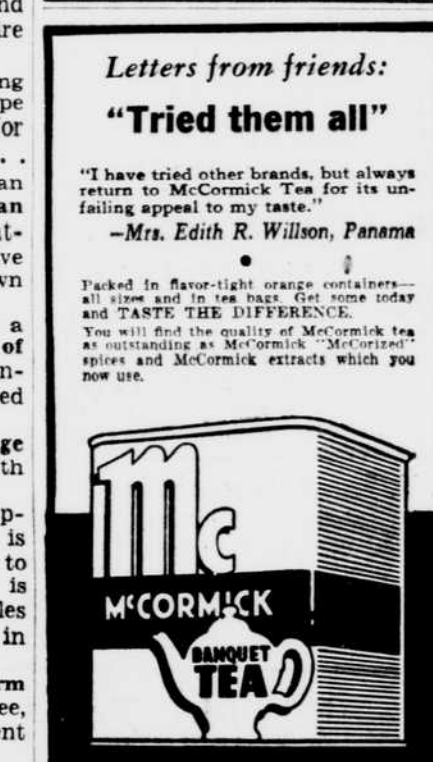

Unusually shaped jars made of seafoam glass containing game sauce, seafood sauce, French dressing and mint sauce are placed in a wire rack for easy handling. . . .

A square crystal clock, matching the metal parts of the tools in a pair of kerosene for the rust darts. This will loosen all the fast and scale so that they may be polished to a new surface with heavy steel wool. When this is finished, dip them in hot lard oil to renew them. With new handles, your tools will be ready for work again. Some of the smaller pieces like pliers and cutters may have lost their plating.

Girl Mother Often Lacks Confidence

Responsibility of Caring for Baby Frightening

By Lettice Lee Street

Many a young mother at first feels swamped with the tremendous responsibility that has suddenly been placed in her inexperienced arms; the management and care of a precious human life all the more wonderful because it belongs to her. She may feel a tremendous uncertainty as to her ability to cope with so serious a task. It is quite natural for her to feel this way. She should be given time to adjust herself and plenty of encouragement to help her gain confidence. If she has the right stuff in her, she will make a real effort to behave, logically, as a woman, and not as a helpless child.

Girl mothers who lack faith in their ability to take care of their babies, or to run their households, are very apt to allow others, such as their mothers or their mothers-in-law, to rule them and to even order their lives in a manner that is distasteful to them. Or they may swing to the other extreme and assume a belligerent attitude and haughtily discard any offer of help or council. When the girl mother is underassertive and overcompliant, she is just blindly refusing to grow up and weakly traveling the easy road. When she takes the latter course, she is only revealing her lack of confidence in herself and is using her baby as proof that she is grown-up and able to manage alone, thank you very much!

Actually, none of us like or wish to manage alone. It is very pitiful when a young mother must raise her child or children without the devoted interest of a husband, or at least of one or more members of her family.

'Honky Tonk,' at Palace, Is Lusty, Stormy Affair, Set on Frontier; Vehicle Ideal for Its Stars

By JAY CARMODY.

Let's say you want to make a motion picture for the people, a picture surcharged with passion and action and about as subtle as a baked apple. Your choice of locale, naturally, would be the old frontier on which the Last Chance saloon served as the civic center. Your choice of male star would be Clark Gable, just as naturally, and for your leading lady you would either select Lana Turner or have people whispering that you were a psychopathic mess.

By an almost weird coincidence, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer decided to make such a picture, choosing precisely the ingredients mentioned. "Honky Tonk" is its name and it throbs furiously 12 hours daily on the screen of Loew's Palace. You can throw with it, at no advance in prices, and the chances are that you will. Such unmasked turbulence usually is its own box office reward; a rich reward.

It is so frankly, unabashedly, unapologetically itself that "Honky Tonk" earns your admiration, makes you forget that it is another lusty, lavish Western. It was directed by John Conway, whose way with such items last was demonstrated in "Boom Town," a swift and noisy affair that created a box office stampede.

Gable is introduced in "Honky Tonk" as a gusty, quick-talking confidence man who will steal your purse or your girl with equal readiness and somehow make the gesture seem altogether an agreeable experience. As glib with a gun as he is with his vocal chords, he is even more glib and successful with a leer which turns frontier females into whimpering idiots. He is doing right well for himself, society until he encounters Miss Turner. She represents a snag, a beautiful blond snag whose every curve belies (and bewilders Mr. Gable) a certain frigidity of manner which derives from a New England upbringing. The conflict is set right there and it is destined to rage furiously for reel after reel.

That it should not end too soon, the authors of the script provided Gable with what might be called an avocation, that of trying to wrest control of the town from the petty racketeers who are running it.

He is motivated in this enterprise by no moral sense. On the contrary, he desires to turn the rascals out on the theory that when it comes to exploiting a community, they are fellows with cheap and weasel imaginations. He wants to show them how the thing should be done. He does, of course.

The emphasis of "Honky Tonk" naturally is laid upon the romance. It deals chiefly with Gable's wretchedness—which becomes violent at times—that Miss Turner came from New England and brought with her a reverence for matrimony which strikes him as acutely provincial. He has met no one so proud and stubborn since Scarlett O'Hara and the spectacle is quite as arresting as the script writers thought it would be.

In spite of his frustration on the matrimonial point, "Honky Tonk" is Gable's picture. He stalks through it with an unflinching bravado, shooting villains, breaking hearts, charming the widow of the town's late pastor, building a mission house as a mask for his unregenerate conduct and practicing bossism with an ingratiating despotism that completely deceives the people. They are the things he has done a dozen times before, but he goes about them with a zest that is altogether impressive.

Miss Turner is type cast—smouldering fire type—in "Honky Tonk" and her success in the part is such as to leave the impression that she will take care of that department for M-G-M regularly hereafter. Her reading of lines may not create the impression of professional development of a high degree, but that is only one kind of development. Moreover, her dialogue never is likely to be the kind that requires subtlety of inflection.

Of the others in the cast, words are due Albert Decker as the unloved villain, Claire Trevor, who trips through a black lace stocking version of other woman; Marjorie Main as a blunt-spoken comic female, who can call a spade a spade without a tremor, and Frank Morgan, who plays a besotted old judicial tool of any outfit which will pay his price. Big and fast it is.

Happy Birthday

Putting an idea into any one's head is farthest from the thoughts of the drama department, but if the National Theater's audience tonight wants to make a curtain speech to Helen Hayes at the conclusion of "Candle in the Wind," it can do worse than sing "Happy Birthday." For today the popular star is marking the first birthday anniversary she has marked in her home town since she was a child here.

Major Van Dyke Returns To a Familiar Script

But He Makes 'The Feminine Touch,' At Capitol, Amusing Enough; Hartmans Top Stage Bill

By HARRY MACARTHUR.

Maj. W. S. Van Dyke 2d, lately a deserter of the Hollywood scene devoting his energies to the militant affairs of the Marine Corps, has returned to the land of fun and frolic and his former glories. Camp life seems neither to have hardened his outlook nor to have changed his mood, for once again he is engaged, as the director of "The Feminine Touch," now at the Capitol, in pointing out that a large number of slightly hilarious troubles can enter the lives of happily married persons. In "The Feminine Touch," Maj. Van Dyke, a trio of wise-cracking if none too inventive scriptwriters and a cast of players at home in slick comedy, tell us once again what a sad life it is for a girl when her husband trusts her so thoroughly that he won't become jealous to prove his love. The approach is less that of a scampering Scotty worrying a new toy than it is that of a lumbering Newfoundland playfully pawing some old and beloved trinket it has kept about the kennel for long time.

This is to be expected, of course, for this story about the husband who didn't believe in jealousy and the wife who considered it one of the better human emotions, in which the husband does finally take a poke at a fancied intruder on his marriage, has been kept around the Hollywood kennels for a long time. It also is to be expected that Maj. Van Dyke, having been over all this ground before, might come forth with something reasonably amusing, which is what he has done.

Actually the only important fault of "The Feminine Touch" is that familiar cinema shortcoming, overlength, great size being a virtue only in elephants, juleps, Shubert show-girls and other extraordinary manifestations of nature. Gay, mad fun is notoriously shortwinded and can't be kept at top speed for too long a time, else it gasps its last before the very eyes of the audience. The attempted cure, by the pause-for-breath method, just means there will be dull patches of tired script. There are those here, all right. But there also are any number of bright moments and the whole thing is made at least palatable by the cast. Miss Rosalind Russell again proves that she is one of the great and wonderful comedienne of the screen, pacing this business in a lively fashion. Miss Kay Francis demonstrates that she is a somewhat delectable and highly capable actress when given the proper part to play. Mr. Van Heflin indicates that Hollywood may at last be on the verge of discovering a talent which those who remember his stage work knew

As in the instance of the second week this advertisement also was prepared and insertion ordered in the newspapers on this date prior to the opening of "The Little Foxes" on Wednesday, September 24th.

TODAY'S TOURIST—Iona Massey, the lovely singing star of the screen, is in town today seeing the sights, with Husband Alan Curtis, motion picture leading man. The two will make an appearance tonight at the 9 o'clock show on the Capitol stage. Miss Massey's latest picture, "International Lady," arrives at the Capitol next Thursday.

CHARLES BOYER says:

"I am a man of many loves!"

"I am a man of many loves in 'Hold Back The Dawn'—a sort of international 'heel'—a man who lives by his wits and his way with women..."

"Frankly, I was worried about playing a role which could be compared to my Pepe le Moko in 'Algiers.' But when Mitchell Leisen told me the entire story... how the rogue, Georges, who has known many loves, is at last taught the meaning of true love by the sweet, unsophisticated Emmy... then I knew that the role promised to be one of the best I have ever had. I was sure of it when Mr. Leisen cast lovely Olivia de Havilland as Emmy... and the fiery Paulette Goddard to play the role of Anita, the dancer who plays such an important part in Georges' life."

"HOLD BACK THE DAWN" is finished now... and I am proud to have had a part in its making, for Paramount feels that this is one of the greatest emotional dramas ever to be put on the screen."

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.

Bridge Swindles—No. 67

East's deceptive play in today's hand was worth as much as an extra ace to the defense:

East dealer. North-South vulnerable. ♠ 864, ♥ A95, ♦ KQJ, ♣ 10864.

The bidding: East. South. West. North. 1♣ Pass 2♥ Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass

West opened the queen of clubs, holding the trick, and continued with the deuce of clubs.

It was quite apparent that West was out of clubs. South could gain nothing by discarding, for, besides having no worthless card to discard, South did not relish the prospect of a fourth club lead by East.

The only possible course was a high ruff in the hope that West would be unable to overruff. So South ruffed with the jack, and was well pleased to find that West had to discard.

At this stage, South had lost two tricks and was sure sooner or later to lose the spade ace. His contract therefore depended on losing no trump trick. With the jack of hearts already played, there was no longer a chance to finesse in trumps.

To take care of this slim possibility, South laid down the king of hearts—and East dropped the heart queen! Now it seemed that West still held the 10-8, so South led a low heart and finessed dummy's nine. He looked very foolish when East won with the ten!

Yesterday you were David Bruce Burnstone's partner and, with both sides vulnerable, you held:

♠ A J 7 5 3, ♥ 9 6 2, ♦ J 6 5, ♣ Q 4

The bidding: Schenken, Burnstone, Jacoby. You. 1♣ Pass 2♠ Pass 3♠ Pass 4♠ Pass

Partner—Bid four spades. Your partner's double and jump raise show an exceptionally powerful hand with very strong support for spades. The game should be a complete lay-down.

Score 100 per cent for four spades, nothing for any other bid.

Question No. 887. Today you hold the same hand, but the bidding is different: Schenken, Burnstone, Jacoby. You. 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 3♠ Pass 4♠ Pass

What do you bid? (Answer tomorrow.)

The Four Aces will be pleased to answer letters from readers if a stamped (cent), self-addressed envelope is enclosed with each communication addressed to The Four Aces, care of The Evening Star, a stamped (cent), self-addressed, large-size envelope and you will receive an outline without any charge.

THE LEGEND OF ICARUS.

THE GREEK MYTHOLOGICAL SCULPTOR, DAEDALUS, WAS IMPRISONED BY KING MINOS ON THE ISLAND OF CRETE. "MINOS CAN CONTROL THE LAND AND SEA, BUT NOT THE AIR," HE SAID, SO HE FASHIONED WINGS FOR HIMSELF AND HIS SON ICARUS FROM FEATHERS HELD TOGETHER WITH WAX AND TAUGHT THE BOY TO FLY, THAT THEY MIGHT ESCAPE. ALL WENT WELL UNTIL ICARUS, SO DELIGHTED WITH HIS NEW-FOUND POWER THAT HE FORGOT HIS FATHER'S WARNING, FLEW SO HIGH THAT THE SUN'S HEAT MELTED THE WAX THAT HELD HIS WINGS TOGETHER. HE FELL INTO THE SEA AND WAS DROWNED. DAEDALUS, HEARTBROKEN, SAW THE FEATHERS FLOATING ON THE WATER, AND KNOWING NOTHING COULD BE DONE, FLEW ON TO SICILY.

ALTHOUGH THIS IS A FABLE, IT POINTS A TRUTH AND A CAUTION: IT'S NEVER WISE TO DEMAND TOO MUCH OF A MACHINE; IT IS ALWAYS WISE TO KNOW AND KEEP WITHIN ITS SAFETY LIMIT.

Take My Word for It

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

By FRANK COLBY.

Kiddy Stuff

From St. Joseph: On behalf of the small boys and girls of America I urge you to start a movement to purge from our vocabulary for all time to come the hateful word "kiddy."—Mrs. M. B.

Answer—Crusader Colby buckles on his armor and sends the youth of America this Rhym-o-gram:

Arise, O children, in your wrath: Come, gather 'neath the banner Of revolution, wild and red! Rebel against the manner In which the grownup simpleton (The adle-brained and giddy, With idiotic smile refers To each of you as "kiddy.")

Discard the ball and paper doll; Throw down the toy and rattle. Come, girl your loins with rubber pants; March on, infants, to battle! Who calls you "kiddy," smite him down. Bite, claw, scratch, gouge and kick; And pound into his silly pate That "kiddy" makes you sick!

We'll organize a panzer troop Of tricycles and scooters. A regiment of yearlings will Let fly with spit-ball shooters. And in three-cornered uniforms We'll blitz, O chinkabidies, The half-wit, drooling enemy Who speaks of us as "kiddies"!

Get rough, get tough, bambino. Eat Your spinach; quaff your milk. And tear them limb from limb, the dolls! Who purr, as smooth as silk: "Dear itty bitty kiddies!" Faugh! We've had enough of that. This be your ultimatum: "Die, Or learn to call me BRAT!"

Want to Be a Writer? Let me send you my pamphlet that contains many helpful pointers, especially valuable to students, teachers, business and professional people, housewives, stenographers, ministers and creative writers. Send a stamped (2-cent), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of The Evening Star. Ask for "Hints to Writers" pamphlet. It is free, but requests cannot be filled unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER—Rat Kangaroo Uses Tail as a Hand

When some one speaks of a kangaroo, we are likely to think of a large animal with great jumping power. That idea is quite right in regard to many kangaroos, but there are others which are not at all large. The smallest member of the whole family is the "rat kangaroo." The rat kangaroo, when full grown, is only the size of a rabbit. It can jump fairly well, but does not make nearly such long leaps as the larger kangaroos. Rat kangaroos are found on low hills of Australia and on the island of Tasmania. They build their nests out of grass, and have the odd habit of using their tails as hands. The tail can be twisted so it holds a tuft of grass; in that way grass is carried to the nest. Large-sized kangaroos cannot use their tails in that way, but they are interesting for other reasons. Sometimes you may see as many as 100 together. During hot summer weather, they enjoy spending their time in a small, damp valley, well grown with bushes and saplings. There they bask in the sun, half dogs, as often happens, it is likely to catch up a dog with the forelegs and cause deep wounds by scratching with the claws of the hind legs. Such wounds have killed many a dog. The hind legs give the kangaroo its leaping power. It bounds across the ground at a swift rate, and some of the leaps measure from 25 to 30 feet. Kangaroos are born blind, as are puppies. Even the young of the largest ones are hardly an inch in length when they come into the world. Australians call young kangaroos "joeys." A female is called a "flying doe" and a male, well along in years, is known as an "old man." The "old men" sometimes leave the group and go away to live by themselves for months at a time. Nature's Children

Tobacco Moth

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.

Giant hawkmoths are conspicuous as they fly over the tobacco fields. They are searching for places, such as fine green tobacco leaves, upon which to fasten their eggs, for their offspring are great tobacco users.

The moths are large and are often called the five-spotted hawkmoths. In comparison with the body, the wings are very small. The front wings are long in proportion to their width and the costal veins are always strongly developed. The are large with a few eyelashes. The flight of this moth is said to resemble that of our hawks, and thus they were given the name.

The caterpillars are husky creatures, green in color, of course, since they are full to the brim with green tobacco juice. They are cylindrical in shape and have a rounded head. The anal horn curves downward and appears to be an instrument that could inflict pain. But it is a show-piece pure and simply. The prevailing colors of these tobacco addicts are shades of green and the segments, from four to 11 inclusive, are marked on the sides with white diagonal stripes.

At first the young worm is quite small. He gradually takes on girth, for his steady supply of tobacco juice from tender leaves has a way of increasing his size rapidly. This means a change of skin. Each new one is more rosy and often a more beautiful shade of green. As a rule, the shade matches the leaves closely. A novice walking beside the plant might even pass the culprit without being aware of his presence.

At last these days come to an end and the worm shows signs of restlessness. It refuses to take another drink and is seen making its way slowly toward the ground.

Gradually the odd pupaform is assumed. The strange tongue-case is free, curved and almost touches the pectus. Many who have found this peculiar looking shifty brown object have not the least idea they are holding in their hand a future tobacco moth.

During the winter months this mummy-like covering will protect the transforming moth within. Not until it is time for the tobacco leaves will there be any indication that the case is occupied by a living creature.

In the South, this moth is known as the "tobacco fly" and its numerous offspring feeds upon host plants belonging to the Solanaceae group, but it is particularly destructive to young tobacco plants which means a loss of money to the planter. This calls for special concoctions that will cause fatalities among them. Spray-
