Stalin Makes Plea for New Front; Places Nazi Losses at 4,500,000; Red Gains in 2 Sectors Reported

No British or U. S. Forces in Europe, Premier Explains

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Joseph Stalin laid Russia's reverses in her war against Germany to "lack of a second front in Europe" and to the fact that no British or American armies are fighting on the continent in an address broadcast today by the Moscow radio.

"What is the cause of the temporary lack of success of the Red Army?" the Soviet chief asked. "One of the causes is definite lack of a second front in Europe against the German Fascists."

"The matter is that at the present time on the European continent there are no armies to Great Britain or the United States conducting war against the German Fascist armies."

"Aid to Russia Growing."
"This enables the Germans to send all their forces and the forces of their European allies to the east against the Soviet Union."

Nevertheless, Stalin said, the assistance given by Great Britain and the United States is of great importance and growing continually.

German losses since the invasion of Russia last June 22 have reached 4,500,000 men, dead, wounded and captured, Stalin said, and "if the Germans want a war on destruction, they will certainly get it."

Stalin said Soviet losses were 350,000 killed and 1,358,000 wounded or missing.

Policy Is to Destroy Every Nazi.
Speaking on the eve of the 24th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, Stalin said slaughter and plunder were the Hitler policy and, therefore, "the policy of the Red Army is to destroy the Germans to the very last man."

Mentioning in passing that the French government had sold out to Hitler for fear of a revolution, Stalin said: "Only the Hitlerite madmen can think they can build a new order under the present conditions in Europe."

"The new order is ready to collapse at any moment and bury Hitler in its ruins."

He said the Soviet rear never had been so strong as at this moment, and that Red Army morale was infinitely higher than that of the German Army.

Cities New Nazi Bases.
The German Army has been forced to construct new bases on unfriendly territory, whereas "our army is fighting on its own territory, with our people exerting every effort to keep it supplied," the Russian Premier asserted.

"It is unnecessary to add that the blitzkrieg has failed."
"Our country is carrying on a war of liberation alone against the Germans, Hungarians and Italians."

He declared that "another reason for the temporary Red Army setbacks is the shortage of tanks."

Praises Industry.
"It cannot be said that our tank industry is not working well; it is working very well for its size, but the Germans can throw in more tanks, as they have not only their own factories, but also the factories of Czechoslovakia, France and the countries of Europe which they occupy."

"Our aviation is superior in quality; our pilots have proved themselves. We have fewer planes, but the quality of our tanks and planes is superior."

He called Hitlerism "the replica of reactionary regimes which have shown themselves to be incapable of liberating Europe from the yoke of German rule."

"Hitler's instructions to his people are: If we can only achieve our aim by killing and plunder we will kill and plunder. No moral reasons restrain Hitler."

Stalin said: "This is a just war which should be supported by all freedom-loving peoples."
"We do not aim at conquering other territory. Our first aim is to free our own territory."

Wants to Free Enslaved.
"Our second aim is to free the enslaved peoples of Europe and then allow them to decide their own fate without any outside interference in their internal affairs."

MAXIM LITVINOFF.

Litvinoff Appointed New Soviet Envoy, Succeeding Oumansky

Present Ambassador Returned to Homeland Five Weeks Ago

Maxim Litvinoff, who came to Washington in 1933 to negotiate the treaty of American recognition of the Soviet Union, will succeed Constantine Oumansky as Russian Ambassador to the United States, the Associated Press reported today.

Mr. Oumansky left here five weeks ago for Russia to be there for the arrival of the Anglo-American Russian-aid mission.

Authoritative reports of Litvinoff's selection come as the climax of a series of rumors that the American and Russian governments both have been dissatisfied with Mr. Oumansky's diplomatic methods since the outbreak of the German-Russian war. He has kept quiet and his Embassy has repelled efforts to penetrate its atmosphere of secrecy.

This attitude apparently was considered sound by Moscow so long as the United States was distracted by the Berlin 1939 pact, but it has been looked on as wasting Russia's present opportunity to gain the full friendship of the United States.

Youngest Ambassador.
Mr. Oumansky is 39, the youngest man who ever held the rank of Ambassador in Washington. He succeeded Alexander Troyanovsky June 6, 1939.

Mme. Oumansky is at the Embassy and will be hostess at the reception there tomorrow in honor of the 24th anniversary of the revolution that brought the Bolsheviks into power in Russia. The hosts will be Andrei A. Gromyko, counselor and charge d'affaires.

Mr. Litvinoff in 1917 received a commission as first Soviet Ambassador to the United States, but this country refused him a visa. No Ambassador was accepted until after Soviet recognition in 1933.

The re-emergence of Mr. Litvinoff as holder of a major Russian post would put the seal on the Soviet switch-back to its old role of political collaborator with the Western European countries. Mr. Litvinoff was the evangelist of collective security and co-operation with France and England. He lost his post of Foreign Minister to Vyacheslav Molotov May 4, 1939.

Once Reported Liquidated.
The change was the signal for the revolution in Russian strategy which resulted in the signature of the treaty with Germany. Subsequently the usual stories appeared that he had been liquidated. He was publicly scolded last February.

August 24 last The Star printed reports stating that Mr. Litvinoff (See LITVINOFF, Page A-10.)

Gift Panda to Be Flown
To Bronx Zoo from China

By the Associated Press.
CHUNGKING, Nov. 6.—An interested crowd of Chinese and foreigners surged today around two pandas, a female for the Bronx (N. Y.) Zoo, and a male which arrived from Chengtu by plane in a wooden crate.

The male, 8 to 10 months old, weighed 60 pounds when caught by a tribesman who tracked it up a mountain and seized it with his bare hands.

The female, 5 months old, weighed 42 pounds and was described as comical and affectionate. Although a little cranky from too much attention, it has been presented to the United China Relief by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and her sister, Mme. H. H. Kung, and will be taken to the United States by airplane.

Highland bamboo, on which the panda feeds, also will be taken to the United States for planting.

The pandas were the thirteenth and fourteenth recorded captured and the female will be the eighth to leave China.

Germans Declared Yielding Goals For Winter

Adolf Hitler's boast that German victory would attend the drive on Moscow in the "last great, decisive battle of this year" has been exploded by tenacious Soviet resistance, informed London quarters said today, declaring that the Fuehrer has now abandoned hope of capturing either Moscow or Leningrad this winter.

On the fighting front, masses of Russian reserves were reported to have broken through Nazi siege lines before the U. S. S. R. capital, while on the southern (Ukraine) front, Soviet dispatches said, the Germans were retreating from a corpse-strewn zone of the Donets River Basin.

London said the German air force was withdrawing most of its planes from the Moscow, Leningrad and Far North fronts, leaving land forces to carry on a "defensive" winter campaign.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the Germans had fallen back with heavy losses at several points around Moscow.

Series of Soviet Attacks.
There was no immediate indication whether the Russians had launched a major counteroffensive, but Tass reported that Red cavalry and infantry had made a series of attacks and that German forces at a point identified only as "KH" had been encircled.

"On the left flank of the western (Moscow) front, the Red Army is continuing to push the enemy back for the fourth day and continues to annihilate its rearward without mercy," Tass said.

In the Moshaisk sector, 57 miles west of Moscow, Tass reported that a mass assault by Nazi tanks had been repelled by Red artillery fire.

Another, the picture was among the brightest yet painted for Russia's defense armies.

Even in the Crimea, latest advices reaching London indicated that the Germans had made little progress toward the great Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol since last Sunday, when they were reported only 20 miles away.

Long Siege Forecast.
A British military observer went so far as to declare Sevastopol might withstand siege indefinitely, reporting that the city of 80,000 was defended by well-supplied troops manning "very strongly fortified positions."

He said the stronghold could be "another Odessa, perhaps with not the long defense of the Ukraine mainland port against German and Rumanian siege armies. Odessa finally surrendered in mid-October."

Hitler's field headquarters declared that pursuit of "the beaten enemy" was continuing, and that the entire Crimean front and asserted that Soviet resistance had been broken in the mountains east of Sevastopol.

Nazis Reiterate Claim.
Reiterating yesterday's claim of a break-through to the Black Sea, the high command said German and Rumanian troops defeated isolated Red Army units in the Yaila Mountains and "pushed through a broad front" to the coastal region between Yaila and Feodistiya.

Authoritative London quarters said the 36-day-old German drive on Moscow was now "very definitely held."

German newsreels from the front significantly stressed the hazards and difficulties of assaulting the U. S. capital, displaying diagrams and pictures of Moscow's five-pronged defense system—successive barriers of flame-thrusters, tank traps and barbed-wire entanglements, and finally bunkers.

Rumor II Duce Is Shot
Has No Confirmation

The Associated Press has found no confirmation of a rumor that Premier Mussolini has been slightly wounded in an assassination attempt in which two pistol shots were fired.

In Rome the rumor was authoritatively denied and called "an invention." It was stated in Rome that a similar report was denied two days ago and that since then the premier has received several persons at his office.

The rumor was published in London by Exchange Telegraph, which quoted the Moscow radio as its source.

Nine Convicts Isolated
In Alcatraz 'Strike'

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Nine Alcatraz convicts were locked in isolation today and 20 others were under special guard for refusing to work in the prison laundry, Warden James Johnston reported.

Mr. Johnston said most of the strikers were recent arrivals in the Federal penitentiary, including some of the glenglanders of a recent strike and 1,400 convicts at Leavenworth Penitentiary in Kansas.

U. S. Committed To Free World, Roosevelt Says

Will Join 'Common Defense,' He Tells Labor Office Group

By JOHN C. HENRY.
The American people have made "an unlimited commitment that there shall be a free world," President Roosevelt told 250 delegates of the International Labor Office in the White House this afternoon, and they will "insist upon their right to join in the common defense" of this freedom.

As the first choice facing the Nation in joining this defense, Mr. Roosevelt outlined two alternatives: the one of realism, which implies fullest possible productive effort immediately, and that of the blind and the deluded, which implies doing business with Hitler.

"The choice we have to make is this," he said. "Shall we make our full sacrifice now, produce to the limit, and deliver our products today and every day to the battle fronts of the entire world? Or shall we remain satisfied with our present rate of armament output, postponing the day of real sacrifice—as did the French—until it is too late?"

Attuning his address to the theme of the privileges and responsibilities of labor throughout the world, and in the United States in particular, the Chief Executive repudiated the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt is an industrialist and leader of labor who place personal advantage above the welfare of the Nation.

Some Still Exist, He Says.
"There are still a few," he explained, "who are still little victories over one another above trillions over Hitler. There are still some who place the profits they may make from civilian orders above their obligation to the national defense of America. Mr. Roosevelt asserted confidently that "no individual or group shall prevail" against the Nation's commitment to defend a free world.

Reminding his audience—the address was being broadcast nationally on all radio channels—that "we have not yet made any substantial gains in the United States," the President pictured the despoiling of both labor and industry under the Nazi-Fascist totalitarianism.

Berlin a "Slave Market."
"Labor under the Nazi system has become the slave of the military state," he said. "They have changed" (See WAR BUILDING, Page A-2.)

Attlee Arrives Here
For Labor Conference

Clement Richard Attlee, a member of Mr. Churchill's war cabinet, and leader of the Labor party in Great Britain, arrived in Washington today to attend the International Labor Office Conference at the State Department.

During the morning Mr. Attlee called on Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone and went to the State Department to talk with Secretary of State Hull and Undersecretary Welles.

He was scheduled to be a guest at a luncheon at the British Embassy before going to the White House this afternoon.

O. P. M. Trains Guns on Metal
In New War Building

By JAMES FREE.
Some of the present specifications for the War Department's $31,000,000 office building in Arlington, Va., may puzzle the private citizen in view of the Government's drastic curtailment of civilian uses of copper.

The words "present specifications" are used advisedly, since the O. P. M. has announced it will hold conferences with Army officials in an effort to reduce the amount of critical materials in the structure. But it will perhaps surprise citizens, who were told by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board nearly two months ago that they must eliminate use of sheet, strip and screen copper alloys in non-defense building, to know that War Department plans, as of today, call for well over 400,000 pounds of copper for ornamental purposes.

Two hundred tons of copper, in ordinary times, would be a comparatively small quantity. Many smaller buildings have used more. But, in an all-out defense program, 400,000 pounds of copper would require vital plumbing and other copper alloy products for thousands of small residences needed by defense workers.

Or, in terms closer to the military mind, 200 tons of copper would make

American Navy's Help Enabling Britain to Blockade Vichy

More Active Steps in Pacific Seen as Result of Aid

LONDON, Nov. 6.—An authoritative source declared today that the naval aid the United States now is giving Britain would make possible an intensification of the British Navy's blockade against Axis and Vichy French shipping.

Likewise, he said, Britain henceforth should be able to operate more actively in the Pacific Ocean.

Cites Seizure of Ships.
Commenting on the British Navy's seizure of five Vichy merchantmen off the east coast of South Africa last Sunday, this informant said that in future the British would be "more diligent and cast our net more widely" in enforcement of the sea blockade.

Declaring that the French had been shipping large amounts of contraband to Marseille, with 80 per cent of it finding its way to Germany, the informant said that an "intent" to deal with the situation had always existed, "but we didn't have the means."

Calls Vichy Berlin Branch.
Now, he went on, Britain has "given up trying to get along with Vichy, which we regard as merely a branch of Berlin." He expressed the opinion that Washington also was becoming impatient with Vichy.

The British, he said, could make use both of Vichy cargoes and ships and "besides we have an account to settle with Vichy which is holding some seven of our ships."

Noel Coward Assessed New Fine of $6,400

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 6.—Noel Coward, the British playwright, was convicted today on two charges of violating securities regulations and was fined a total of £1,600 ($6,400).

The Lord Mayor, in making the finding, said that Mr. Coward should have made it his business to see that any restrictions placed by the government on foreign securities were being obeyed by those acting for him.

Mr. Coward, who had pleaded innocent to these charges earlier today, was given a month to pay the fine. Last week he was fined the equivalent of $880 for violation of wartime finance regulations.

According to the prosecution to which he might have totaled £22,358 ($89,500).

D. C. Area Due to Get Big Part of 25 Million
Voted for Road Jobs

Conference Report
On Defense Highway
Fund Adopted in House

The Capital defense area is expected to get a large share of a $25,000,000 allotment for "critical deficiencies in the strategic highway network." The allotment is an amendment to the $487,000,000 construction of roads for defense, approved by the House today and is strictly at the disposal of the President.

The House approved promptly by a voice vote the conference report on this item. It now goes to the Senate for approval of the conference report.

From the $25,000,000 are expected funds for highways and bridge approaches to the new War Department Building in Arlington and other defense projects here and in Maryland and Virginia.

The bill carries $267,000,000 for the strategic highway system, $150,000,000 for access roads, $10,000,000 for flight strips along important highways, $10,000,000 for surveys, another $25,000,000 for strategic highways under a Senate amendment and the $25,000,000 of "free" money for the President.

In addition to sharing in the $25,000,000 under allocation by the President, the District, Maryland and Virginia are expected to receive very large allocations from the $267,000,000 fund for the strategic highway system and the $150,000,000 for access roads.

Petain Lauds Frenchmen
Fighting for Germany

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Nov. 6.—Marshal Petain said today in a message to a French unit which has joined the German Army in the war against Soviet Russia that it was defending France and French military honor in a German-led "crusade."

"You hold a part of our military honor," the chief of state told the French volunteers, adding that it was "useful" to give our country back its confidence in its own qualities, but you will also serve France in even more direct fashion by participating in this crusade in which Germany has taken leadership."

"Meriting the appreciation of the world," he said, "you thereby also contribute to saving the hope of a reconciled Europe in keeping the Bolshevik peril away from us."

"It is your country you thereby are protecting."

Vichy Prohibits Jews
From Making Profits

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Nov. 6.—The Petain government, in what observers believed to be the first of a new series of measures against Jews, decreed today that they may no longer acquire any profit from businesses they own in most cities.

Penalties for violations range up to five years' imprisonment and a fine of 200,000 gold francs ($86,000). The arrangements already have been "Aryanized."

Straus Sees Crisis In Defense Housing; Asks U.S.H.A. Control

Multiple Agencies Make Confusion, Administrator
Tells Clay Institute

In a strongly worded criticism of what he termed a reversion to the kind of Washington-dominated and centralized housing program which has failed in the past, Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, today warned that there is now a crisis in the Nation's defense housing program.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Structural Clay Products Institute at the Mayflower Hotel, Mr. Straus declared that confusion has resulted from division of the defense housing program among conflicting agencies and urged that the U. S. H. A. be given the entire public defense housing job.

"Due to the mistakes that I sought to avert and now seek to reveal," he said, "there is now a crisis in defense housing."

Problem Not Solved.
"The lack of rearing efficiency with democracy came to the fore as soon as the defense emergency gave rise to the tremendous need for defense housing. That problem has not been solved. It must be solved."

Meanwhile members of the Construction Industry Conference which is being held simultaneously at the United States Chamber of Commerce heard W. Ray Skirvin, Cincinnati banker, oppose rent control as unnecessary and economically unsound.

Charging the Government with planning, through the Elliott Consumers' Committee, to foist on the States a permanent rent-control law, Mr. Skirvin said such a statute had been drawn up with a view of offering it to the States Legislatures.

He criticized as unsound and contrary to established law the provision for rent control contained in the price control bill pending in Congress. This would apply to all defense areas, including the District of Columbia, though a separate measure to curb rents in the District has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Policy in Finland Criticized.
Senators Wheeler and Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan also criticized the State Department today for trying to persuade Finland to support the war in Russia.

Senator Vandenberg said the Finns are more than ever entitled to sympathy today because they are confronted by "British-American pressure on one hand, by German pressure on another, and by their traditional enemy, Russia, on still another."

The Michigan Senator said he still thinks Finland is "one of the greatest democratic nations on earth," and that if this country undertakes to direct its course of action, it should be ready to offer Finland (See NEUTRALITY, Page A-10.)

Wheeler Claims British Ships Get Repair, Not U. S.

Reuben James Sailed
Out of Condition,
Montanan Asserts

BACKGROUND—
Before outbreak of present European war United States passed Neutrality Act to prevent "involvement." Arms embargo was repealed in 1939. Further steps were taken last year, when Lend-Lease Act allowed country to become "arsenal for democracy." Now Congress has before it bill to permit ships to travel, armed, through combat zones to belligerent ports.

By J. A. O'LEARY.
Charges that the sunken United States destroyer Reuben James went to sea in need of repair because American navy yards are busy working on damaged British warships were made by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, today as he continued his attack on revision of the neutrality law.

The isolationist leader based the charge on reports from Boston, Thacka, N. Y., and Glen Ridge, N. J., quoting relatives of sailors as having been told of the alleged condition of the destroyer.

"So, we are sending our boys out to sea in destroyers out of repair because our navy yards are filled up repairing British battleships and destroyers," Senator Wheeler asserted, after reading the clipping to the Senate.

Wheeler Threatens Party Bolt.
Senator Wheeler intimated during his address that he may leave the Democratic party if the administration enters the war. He said they undoubtedly were some who would like to "read" him out of the party. Then, turning toward his own side of the Senate aisle, he added:

"If you're going to take this country into war after the promises that have been made to the people, you must have a vote to take me out or throw me out."

In 1924 Senator Wheeler became the vice presidential candidate with the late Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, on a Progressive ticket. He had run against Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis.

As the second week of debate drew to a close, administration leaders were hoping to reach a vote late tomorrow, and still confident they have a majority to pass the bill.

Sailor's Mother Intervened.
The star Senator Wheeler read from Boston was an interview with a Mrs. John J. Ryan, mother of a sailor on the Reuben James, in which she said her son told her the Reuben James was badly in need of repairs. The story alleged the ship had gone out on one or two occasions without repairs because all available workmen were busy on the British ships and that the Reuben James was scheduled to come in for repairs after December 1.

The star Senator New Jersey quoted the father of another sailor comparing the James to a "tin can" that would sink like a ton of brick if hit by a machine gun.

Senator Wheeler also read today newspaper accounts of it. American reported lost in the Atlantic while en route to England to join the technical staff of the R. A. F. The Senator said that, while the nationality of the ship they were on was not revealed, he inferred it was British and said this constituted another evasion of the neutrality law.

Policy in Finland Criticized.
Senators Wheeler and Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan also criticized the State Department today for trying to persuade Finland to support the war in Russia.

Senator Vandenberg said the Finns are more than ever entitled to sympathy today because they are confronted by "British-American pressure on one hand, by German pressure on another, and by their traditional enemy, Russia, on still another."

Navy Reveals Seven Transfers, Changing James Death List

One Name Eliminated From Those Rescued; 98 Now Feared Lost

The Navy Department published seven corrections in its list of men reported lost on the torpedoed destroyer Reuben James raising from 97 to 98 today the total of deaths in the sinking of that vessel the night of October 30-31.

As a result of recheck of the list of those originally reported on board, the Navy announced the names of seven enlisted men who previously had not been reported on the destroyer and declared that they all had been lost.

At the same time, the Navy eliminated six names from the list of the men who were reported as having been rescued from the ship.

Of those erroneously reported on board, six had been listed as lost and one—Vincent C. Lane—was saved.

The changes substituted seven men not previously reported on board for seven men who had been erroneously reported so that the total of the ship's company, 142 officers and men, was not changed.

The increase in the number of dead raised to 123 the members of the crew and crew members thus far reported as having been killed.

Of those erroneously reported as having been killed, 123 were named by the Navy as:

- Peter Anderson, Sumner, Wash., on duty at the receiving ship, Boston.
Frederick Arthur Bishop, Bayonet, N. J., now on duty at naval operating base, Norfolk, Va.
Jack Austin Campbell, Greensboro, N. C., now on duty at the receiving ship at Philadelphia.
Vernon Everett Howell, Thornville, Ohio, now on duty at the receiving ship at Norfolk, Va.
Herbert R. Buel, seaman, second class, Cleveland.
William Harding Newton, seaman, third class, Roanoke, Va.
Gerald Edward Mills, seaman, second class, Detroit.

The seven men originally reported on board the ship but located elsewhere by a check of the original list were named by the Navy as:

- Peter Anderson, Sumner, Wash., on duty at the receiving ship, Boston.
Frederick Arthur Bishop, Bayonet, N. J., now on duty at naval operating base, Norfolk, Va.
Jack Austin Campbell, Greensboro, N. C., now on duty at the receiving ship at Philadelphia.
Vernon Everett Howell, Thornville, Ohio, now on duty at the receiving ship at Norfolk, Va.
Herbert R. Buel, seaman, second class, Cleveland.
William Harding Newton, seaman, third class, Roanoke, Va.
Gerald Edward Mills, seaman, second class, Detroit.

Pennsylvania Newspaper Closes After Strike Call

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—A strike called by the C. I. O. Newspaper Guild today resulted in suspension of the Aliquippa Gazette, this Beaver County community's only daily newspaper.

The union is demanding a Guild sheet a five-day week and pay increases.

L. J. Tilton, publisher, said 8 of 44 employees were on strike.

Mr. Tilton said he had offered wage increases of $2.50 to $5 weekly in salaries ranging from $15 to $45 weekly, but he said the union had been unable to reach an agreement on other demands during a month's negotiation.

Employees have been working, he said, six eight-hour days weekly, with time-and-a-half pay for overtime.

Charles Whipple, Guild organizer, charged reporters' salaries were as low as $12 a week, but Mr. Tilton ascribed the $12 reporter was a part-time correspondent employed in another community. Some employees worked 60 hours a week and the Guild wanted "adequate" pay raises.

Donelli Quits as Coach Of Pittsburgh Steelers

By the Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Art Rooney co-owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Professional Football League, said today that Aldo (Buff) Donelli had resigned as coach to return as mentor of the Duquesne University team, a job he held when he joined the Steelers five weeks ago.

Donelli's resignation from the pro job, Rooney said, was precipitated by the refusal of Elmer Layden, commissioner of the pro league, to allow Donelli to accompany Duquesne to the West Coast for its game with St. Mary's Sunday.

The Steelers play the Philadelphia Eagles in a league game the same day and Layden informed Rooney that Donelli must resign his job if he accompanied the Duquesne to the West Coast.

Rooney said he was not making a mistake, he thought Donelli is making a mistake, Rooney said, adding that Walt Kiesling, assistant coach, would direct the Steelers for the remainder of the season.

Youthful Traffic Offenders Sent To Visit Victims

By the Associated Press. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—A voluntary visit to an accident victim's bedside is being made convincing to a fine for youthful traffic violator, says 28-year-old City Judge Joe Brown Cummings.

"I figure there isn't much to gain by fining youths and then having their parents pay the fine. But once they see the sad story behind each accident, that's something else," he explained.

The judge asks boys and girls between 16 and 18 to visit the City Hospital to see the condition of traffic victims. This visit replaces a fine and the judge said he believes the method is bringing results.

Those who have visited the hospital, not one has faced my court on a second offense."

The boys and girls who earn their money and work, are subject to fines, because, the judge said, they know the value of a dollar and losing several of them hurts.

Travel Allowances Approved for U. S. Grievance Cases

Attorney General Rules Hearing on Appeals Is Official Business

In a decision that has an important bearing on the appeals procedure authorized in the executive agencies by President Roosevelt's executive order of August 1938, Attorney General Lindsay C. Warren today held that employees presenting grievances for adjustment and certain other principals in such cases are entitled to collect a travel allowance from the Government when necessary.

At the same time, however, the Controller General sharply limited the make-up of the appellate tribunals hearing complaints, holding that they must be confined to members drawn from the establishments in which the complaints originate. Nor can principals in these cases—the witnesses for example—coming from outside agencies collect the travel allowance that otherwise would be granted.

Leaders Defer Study Of $5,000,000,000 Anti-Inflation Bill

Ways and Means Group Putting Price Control Ahead of New Tax Move

Chairman Doughton announced today the House Ways and Means Committee had voted to defer temporarily its consideration of a Treasury request for immediate study of an anti-inflation tax program designed to raise in the neighborhood of $5,000,000,000.

Mr. Doughton said the desire of the committee is what happened regarding the pending price-control bill "might have had something to do" with the deferral of the new tax program.

The chairman declined to hazard a guess as to when the tax matter might be taken up again.

Pay Roll Deductions Proposed. It appeared unlikely, however, that Congress would complete action on it by the first of next year.

The Treasury had been desirous, Mr. Doughton said, of making the new measure effective as of January 1, 1942, and it was understood this was for the purpose of beginning collection then of new pay roll taxes including higher levies for Social Security purposes.

Some committee members said that in addition to higher security taxes for both workers and employers, the Treasury's proposal called for higher income taxes which probably would be deducted from pay rolls by the employers.

The Treasury contends, it was learned, that the defense program has created between $5,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 of excess purchasing power which will not be reached even by the $3,500,000,000 tax program imposed by Congress last summer and which thus constitutes a grave threat to inflation.

Purpose Still Speculative. There was conjecture in congressional circles as to whether the latest tax program had been advanced at this time in an effort to stimulate sentiment for an even stronger price control than the one enacted last Saturday by the House Banking Committee.

There was some talk that the threat of the unprecedented new tax plan would convince Congress of the need for a universal price control plan under which not only commodities but also services, investments and all other phases of the economic structure would be regulated.

Under the bill recommended by the Banking Committee, the Government would have authority to fix prices of all commodities and services produced or processed in the United States.

The bill would prohibit from establishing ceilings for farm products below either 110 per cent of their parity price, below the market price on October 1 or below the average price from 1911 to 1929, whichever was highest.

Larger Holdings Sold For $56,800 Valued At Only $5,718.46

Senate Committee Calls Own Appraisers At Investigation

The Senate Elections Committee heard its own appraisers testify today that property for which a dealer in North Dakota public securities had been appraised at $56,800 in 1937 and 1938 was worth $5,718.46.

This testimony was given by the committee by Ersel Walley of Fort Wayne, Ind., and corroborated by Trud D. Moore, St. Louis. Both were employed by the committee to appraise the 1938 value of North Dakota lands and mortgages which Gregory Brunk, Des Moines attorney and partner in a bond brokerage firm, testified he bought from Mr. Langer while the latter was Governor of North Dakota.

Mr. Walley said that $5,718.46 was the maximum 1938 fair cash market value of the fair in the lands and the appraised value of the mortgages which Mr. Brunk said he bought from Mr. Langer on a "sight unseen" basis.

A third appraiser, E. B. Southworth of Minneapolis, testified that the computation of cash value took into account a total of $9,946 in taxes due on all the property. Taxes due on the property were $9,946, which Mr. Brunk testified he intended to keep Mr. Southworth said, amounted to $6,842.46.

A change in the bill to give the Senate authority to appoint the administrator was urged by Mr. Brown. He also requested that a provision be written into the measure requiring that all appointments to the rent-control agency be made without discrimination as to race, creed or color.

Mr. Brown declared that colored persons—generally are the greatest sufferers from high rents.

14-Rail Unions to Act On Wage Compromise At Chicago Nov. 12

Leaders of the 14 non-operating railroad unions issued a call today for all general chairmen to meet in Chicago November 12 to consider an Emergency Board's recommendation for temporary wage increases which fell short of their demands.

Bert M. Jewell, president of the A. F. L.'s railway employees' department, announced the policy and procedure of the 14 organizations would be formulated at this meeting. No official comment will be made thereupon until after it has been thoroughly discussed by the general chairmen, he added.

Mr. Jewell's group represents approximately 900,000 workers. They have authorized a strike if necessary to enforce their demands, but the National Railway Act prohibits them from actually walking out until 30 days after all conciliatory processes of the act have run their course.

The five big operating brotherhoods, with a membership of about 850,000, also have voted to strike if necessary.

Both groups of unions would be free to walk out after December 5, Cleveland Plants Closed.

Rival A. F. L. and C. I. O. boys both walked out today at the two Cleveland plants of the Cleveland Container Co., whose 450 employees have been producing shell containers for the Government's Ravenna (Ohio) arsenal.

Labor contractors reported an A. F. L. of Federal Union first called the members of the plants, and that the C. I. O. Paper, Toy and Novelty Workers followed. Neither union has a contract with the contractor, target of a recent C. I. O. strike.

High E. Sperry, National Labor Board regional director, said the A. F. L. has petitioned for an election and that C. I. O. leaders declare the company refused to live up to an agreement reached after the previous charges of unfair labor practice.

Mr. Olive Storch, president of the C. I. O. union, said his group walked out to await developments after the A. F. L. unionists struck.

Welders Accuse Boiler-makers. At Los Angeles boiler-makers charged they were being locked out from returning to work at the California shipyard—which has contracts for 55 Maritime Commission cargo vessels at $1,500,000 each—by a group of boiler-makers.

The boiler-makers, who are represented by the International Brotherhood of Shipyard Workers, returned to work in the Seattle area today after a 10-day walkout, while aircraft welders claimed additional inroads into employment lists at three Southern California plants in a day-old strike.

The affected plane companies said production was not suffering.

At Miami, Fla., thousands hitchhiked to work today when all bus service inside the city was halted by a strike of 287 drivers demanding wage increases.

The strike kept 194 regular and rush-hour buses locked in garages. It affected the Miami Transit Co., but did not reach into Miami Beach, Coral Gables or South Miami.

Truck Line Strike. A truck strike today at Kingsport, Tenn., threatened today to shut operations of the Mason Dixon Truck Lines, which its president, E. W. King, said is handling approximately 30,000,000 pounds of freight a month between the Northeast and the Southeast.

W. D. Anderson, Richmond, Va., business manager of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers (A. F. L.), which called the strike, said about 300 of a total of 400 drivers and gone out. Mechanics were not affected.

Mr. King said the company trucks would be kept idle until an agreement was reached and that the union had declined to give special clearance to a shipment of airplane radio parts from the Vultee plant at Nashville, which he paid her $70,000, valued at $50,000.

The president of Alabama Newspaper Employees, Inc., independent organization of employees of the strike-closed Birmingham Post, and its attorney refused today to produce records of his group's income and a National Labor Relations Board attorney was instructed to begin contempt proceedings against them.

Fred Rucker, president of A. N. E. D., charged with working the old pocketbook game on Mrs. Margaret Duffin, called, 1242 Columbia road, N.W., widow, and fleeing her $70,000 of $670, both were found guilty after the evidence was heard.

Prosecuting was Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, Jr., who introduced evidence to show Mrs. Duffin withdrew $600 from the bank and also gave the pair her $70,000 vacation money after she was approached by the two defendants and they had "found" a pocketbook but that money would have to be put up to satisfy the true owner if he showed up.

The Government's evidence was that $669 was recovered from Land. He insisted that this was not part of the stolen taken from Mrs. Duffin, but was won in a gambling game down South. Justice Lettis declined to designate the owner of the money, saying that was a civil matter. The pair is expected to be sentenced a week from Friday.

Charleston, 5 miles from the scene, by a private motorist, he said.

Doubts Any Survived. More seriously injured was L. F. Fox, 30, who was taken to Duane Hospital suffering from severe burns about the face, neck and chest.

L. W. Edwards, 29, of Hurricane, was taken to another hospital, where he was reported to be suffering from an injured shoulder and undetermined hurts.

The fourth injured man was Darrell Cook, about 22, of Charleston, suffering from shock, bruised right shoulder and thigh.

Fire Chief James Barrett of South Charleston declared that none of the men in the three-story distillation plant, reportedly part of the vinyl-chloride department, could have survived the shock, but he said he did not say how many men.

He said that the explosion was caused by a gas leak from a pipe in the distillation plant, which was under repair.

The explosion occurred on a Kanawha River island which houses a large portion of the plant, but damaged to other buildings was confined largely to broken windows.

Fire Chief Barrett said the explosion probably involved sulphuric acid. He said he saw signs of that chemical about the explosion scene.

A member of the medical staff at one Charleston hospital where an explosion casualty was taken said he was told the "heat was so intense in the vinylite department of the plant that it was impossible to get near it."

Vinylite, a resin plastic, is one of the chief products of the chemical plant.

State Police Sgt. John W. Bosworth, who took charge of the entire company he assigned to guard the plant, implied there were more than two killed.

When the two deaths were mentioned, he said that "you know there were more killed than that." He declined to say how many men.

Selections for a Slow Track at Pimlico

BEST BET—JACSTEAL. FIFTH RACE—COLCHIS, FIRST OF ALL, INCOMING. COLCHIS is the class of this race and if he is sent back he will have to be given the call. This juvenile, dead-headed, Aish, as Havre de Grace, FIRST OF ALL, has copped his last at Laurel and a bit of improvement could have him with the leaders. INCOMING manages to win his share when matched with his own sort.

SIXTH RACE—JACSTEAL, RODIN, JAMERICA. JACSTEAL has won two straight and accomplished the task with speed in reserve. Let's make the gelding the best bet of the afternoon. RODIN was far back in his last but he won twice at Laurel and he is very dangerous here. JAMERICA won twice at Belmont and he could be hard to trim.

Rail Union Heads Meet To Map Next Move in Pay Raise Demands

Strike Threat Grows As Leaders Refuse to Back Board's Proposals

The threat of a railroad strike hung over the Nation today as the leaders of organized railroad workers, disappointed over a recommendation for wage increases far short of their demands, called a conference in Chicago to map their next move—possibly the announcement of a strike date.

Reporting at the White House yesterday, the President's Emergency Fact-Finding Board for settling the dispute proposed temporary increases approximating $270,000,000—much less than the figure set by the unions, whose demands have been estimated by the carriers to entail expenditures of $900,000,000 annually. Chiefs of the five operating brotherhoods said the proposals were "most disappointing" and that they could not recommend them to the rank and file of union membership.

The 14 non-operating brotherhoods still are to be heard from, but a like reaction from that quarter is considered unlikely. Under the railroad mediation law, however, no strike can be called for 30 days.

Increased Rail Rates.

Spokesmen for the carriers also voiced disappointment at the recommendations, committees of Eastern Western and Southeastern lines saying the burden would be too great. Railroad bonds, however, advanced on the stock market.

The recommendations, which included vacations for the 900,000 members of the non-operating unions, were advanced, the board said, on the assumption that the roads could obtain permission to increase their freight and passenger rates to meet the added expense. Average rates would be 5 per cent over the increased cost, the board figured.

The operating unions, with 350,000 members, had asked wage increases of about 30 per cent from an estimated present minimum of $5.06 a day. The board recommended increases of 7 1/2 per cent.

The non-operating groups wanted 30 to 40 cents an hour more than the 38c to $1.21 an hour they now receive. The board suggested an additional 10 cents an hour, or an average increase of 12 1/2 per cent.

The board also proposed that the 40,000 or more employees of the Railway Express Co. be granted increases of 7 1/2 cents an hour over unannounced present scales.

Retrospective to September.

All wage recommendations as proposed by the carriers would be retrospective to September 1, 1941, and terminate automatically on December 31, 1942, unless an extension was agreed on. This was suggested, the board said, because the "many uncertainties besetting any analysis of the economy" would be met by the existing national emergency make it unwise to recommend changes in basic wage rates at this time, except for certain minimum rates which the board proposed.

It was suggested that the wage structure of the railroads be defined as of December 31, 1942, "in light of existing economic conditions" of the industry and the country.

The board also recommended: 1. One-week vacations effective January 1, for the employee members of the 14 non-operating unions.

2. A permanent basic minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for employees of short-line roads, and a permanent basic minimum wage of 45 cents an hour for employees of class A roads and the railway express agency.

3. That a dispute between the unions and the roads over working rules be resubmitted for further consideration under the Railway Labor Act.

Labor Deserves Pay Raise.

"The board is satisfied," the report said, "that the wage increases recommended are fair and reasonable, and that, if the financial conditions of the railroads do not make it possible for them to make sufficient profits on the basis of present traffic rates and still pay such wage increases, then traffic rates should be increased. The public could not be justified in expecting railroad labor to continue to work on the basis of its present wage rates in light of the present wage trends in industry generally, the rising cost of living, and the importance of the services performed by railroad labor in this time of national emergency."

The five members of the board presented their report in person to the President. They are Chairman Wayne L. Morse, dean of law at the University of Oregon; Thomas R. Powell, Harvard law professor; James C. Bonbright, Columbia University; Joseph H. Williams, of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York; and Huston Thompson, Washington attorney.

The board was named under the anti-strike machinery of the Mediation Act after the National Railway Mediation Board had failed to adjust the differences between the roads and the unions. The workers voted to strike if their demands were not met.

Back-to-Work Move Gains Among Welders

A back-to-work movement gained momentum today among striking West Coast welders after those at Los Angeles accepted an O. P. M. proposal that they go back to their jobs pending a hearing on their grievances. Their fellow craftsmen in the Seattle area, however, remained out.

The welders want a charter from the A. F. L. for a separate union. Under present conditions, they say, they must pay dues to some other union in order to ply their trade. The welders claim their walkout affected some 20,000 men, but the O. P. M. estimates the figure at not over 5,000.

In San Diego, a strike of A. F. L. building tradesmen to enforce undisclosed wage demands halted work on a $5,000,000 expansion program at a naval training station and marine camp.

In Cleveland, approximately 600 C. I. O. employees struck at the Triplex Screw Co., halting production of bolts and nuts used by the White Motor Co. in manufacturing mobile units for the Army. William Donovan, district director of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, called it a "wildcat" strike and told the men to go back to work.

Text of Roosevelt's Address to I. L. O.

The text of President Roosevelt's address at the White House this afternoon before the International Labor Organization follows:

Taking part in a conference of the I. L. O. is not a new experience for me. It was exactly at this time of the year, in 1919, that the I. L. O. had its first conference in Washington. Apparently some one had fallen down on the job of making the necessary physical arrangements for the conference. Finally, some one picked on the then Assistant Secretary of the Navy to help. I had to find office space in the Navy Building, as well as supplies and typewriters to get the machinery organized.

In those days the I. L. O. was still a dream. To many it was a wild dream. Who had ever heard of governments getting together to raise the standards of labor on an international plane? Wilder still was the idea that the people themselves who were directly affected—these workers and the people of the various countries—should have a hand with government in determining these labor standards.

Now 22 years have passed. The I. L. O. has been tried and tested. Through those extravagant years of the 20s it kept doggedly at its task of shortening the hours of labor, protecting women and children in agriculture and industry, making life more bearable for the merchant seaman, and keeping the factories and mines safe for the life and health of human beings to work in.

Worked Through Depression.

Then through the long years of depression it sought to bring about a measure of security to all workers by the establishment of unemployment and old-age insurance systems; and again to set the wheels of industry in motion through the establishment of international public works, rational policies of migration of workers, and the opening of the channels of world trade.

Now for more than two years you have weathered the vicissitudes of a world at war. Though Hitler's juggernaut has crowded your permanent staff out of its home at Geneva, here in the New World, thanks in large part to the efforts of our friend, John Winant, your armament output, postponing the day of real sacrifice—as did the French—until it is too late?

The Choice of Realism.

The first is the choice of realism—realism in terms of three shifts a day; the fullest use of every vital machine every minute of every day; every night; realism in terms of staying on the job and getting things made, and trusting industrial grievances to the established machinery of collective bargaining—the machinery set up by a free people.

The second choice is the approach of the blind and the deluded, who think that perhaps we could do business with Hitler. For them there is still "plenty of time." To be sure, many of these misled individuals honestly believe that if we should later find that we can't do business with Hitler, we will roll up our sleeves later—later—later. And their tombs would bear the legend, "Too late."

In the process of working and fighting for victory, however, we must never permit ourselves to forget the goal which is beyond victory. The defeat of Hitlerism is necessary so that there may be freedom; but this war, like the last war, will produce nothing but destruction unless we prepare for the future now. We plan now for the better world we aim to build.

If that world is to be one in which peace is to prevail, there must be more abundant life for the masses of the people of all countries. In the words of the Atlantic Charter, we "desire to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labor standards, economic advancement and social security."

There are so many millions of people in this world who have never been adequately fed and clothed and housed. By undertaking to provide a decent standard of living for the world, we can furnish employment to every man and woman who seeks a job.

Looking to Post-War Needs.

We are already engaged in surveying the immediate post-war requirements of a world whose economies have been disrupted by war. We are planning not to provide temporary remedies for the ills of a stricken world; we are planning to achieve permanent cures—to help establish a sounder life.

To attain these goals will be no easy task. Yes, their fulfillment will require "the fullest co-operation between all nations in the economic field." We have learned too well that social problems and economic problems are not separate water-tight compartments in the international sphere. In international, as in national affairs, economic policy can no longer be an end in itself. It is merely a means for achieving social objectives.

There must be no place in the post-war world for special privileges for either individuals or nations. Again in the words of the Atlantic Charter: "All states, great or small, victor or vanquished" must have "access, on equal terms, to the trade and the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity."

In the planning of such international action the I. L. O. with its representation of labor and management, its technical knowledge and experience, will be an invaluable instrument for peace. Your organization will have an essential part to play in building up a stable international system of social justice for all peoples everywhere. As part of you, the people of the United States are determined to stand with you in the opportunity and challenge of this historic responsibility, so well exemplified at this historic meeting in this historic home of an ancient democracy.

the occupied countries into great slave areas for the Nazi rulers. "Berlin is the principal slave market of the world."

Developing his reference to the alternatives of realism and blindness which face this country, Mr. Roosevelt defined the first as "realism in terms of three shifts a day; the fullest use of every vital machine every minute of every day and every night; realism in terms of staying on the job and getting things made, and entrusting industrial grievances to the established machinery of collective bargaining."

The President made this reference as the National Defense Mediation Board was striving desperately to avert a threatened strike in the captive coal mines which supply much of the Nation's steel, manganese, and railroad labor and manufacturing considered Government recommendations for forestalling a possible strike tieup of the entire railroad system.

Recalling the declaration issued by himself and Britain's Prime Minister Churchill in their Atlantic conference, the President said that economic surveys of post-war requirements already are being made and that international co-operation in applying the remedies is being guaranteed.

Raw Materials for All.

"There must be no place in the post-war world for special privileges for either individuals or nations," Mr. Roosevelt asserted. "Again in the words of the Atlantic Charter: 'All states, great or small, victor or vanquished,' must have 'access, on equal terms, to the trade and the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity.'"

Representatives of 35 countries, including the United States, were received by the President and were seated in the east room of the White House during his address.

Secretary of Labor Perkins and Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle headed the American delegation and assisted at presenting the foreign delegates to the President. Among the latter was Maj. Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Prime Minister of Great Britain.

In allocation of vital metals—no more and no less.

The War Department, through Maj. Clarence Renshaw, construction quartermaster, today said that statements to the effect that 200 tons of copper are called for in the projected building are in error. He explained that the term "present specifications" cannot be applied to the structure as it is being planned virtually on a day-to-day basis.

War Department spokesmen declared that the new building is being planned in accordance with orders of the quartermaster general on August 4, 1941, that in all of its construction projects the Army must take all steps possible to eliminate use of critical materials. Similar conservation steps were put in effect, it was said, in all Army purchase and procurement on July 16, 1941.

British Planes Attack German Convoy Off Frisian Islands

One Ship Is Seen Ablaze; Vessels Off Dutch Coast Also Bombed

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Smashing at German shipping last night on a broad sea front, the R. A. F. was reported officially to have bombed several ships in a well-defended convoy off the Frisian Islands and one was seen ablaze. The raids cost the British eight planes, according to the Air Ministry.

Aircraft of the coastal command also attacked German shipping off the Dutch Mainland. The British losses were evenly divided between the bomber and coastal commands.

The operations were carried out from the continental Channel ports, the Air Ministry said, and mines were sown by low-flying planes.

The government reported that only a single hostile plane dropped bombs in Southwest England early last night. There was slight damage and there were no casualties, it was said.

11 British Warplanes Reported Brought Down

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The British Royal Air Force lost 11 planes yesterday and last night in operations over the English Channel region and coastal areas of the North Sea, informed Germans said today.

Four were reported to have been shot down in the afternoon and seven in night flights.

The sources emphasized that no bombing raids had been made on German cities in the period.

The high command, in its regular daily communiqué, repeated that seven British bombers were brought down last night in attacks by "weak formations" over German coastal regions.

It reported that between October 29 and November 4 the Royal Air Force lost 37 planes while during the same period in attacks on Great Britain the Germans lost only seven.

The high command said the German Air Force bombed harbor installations at Falmouth, Southwest-English port, last night.

100,000 Red Troops From China Reported Ready to Join Soviet

500,000 Russian Soldiers Move Up From Siberia, Hsinking Radio Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The radio at Hsinking, capital of Japanese-dominated Manchukuo, declared today that nearly 500,000 Russian soldiers had been transferred from Siberia to the European theater of war and that one of China's Red Army was about to contribute 100,000 troops to the battle with Germany.

Hsinking is headquarters of Japan's Kwantung Army, which guards the Manchukuo-Siberia border. As reported by N. B. C., the Hsinking radio said:

"The Soviet Union has already transferred over 425,000 military equipment from Siberia to the European theater of war.

"Fifteen Red divisions totaling over 225,000 men are already thrown into the battle on the eastern front.

"One hundred thousand Polish troops mustered from among Polish residents of Far Eastern Russia are now in transit and contingents of them have already arrived on the central front fighting near Kalinin.

"In addition, 100,000 Chinese troops have been promised to the Russian government by the high command of the 18th Chinese (Communist) Field Army and are about to be transported westward."

Norwegians Escaping By Hundreds to Fight, Says Morgenstierne

Minister Points to Need for Early End of War to Save Nation

Hundreds of young men are escaping from Norway every month to join the armed forces which will some day launch a counter-offensive to reclaim their homeland from the Nazis, Wilhelm M. de Morgenstierne, Norwegian Minister to the United States, said here yesterday.

Mr. Morgenstierne, just returned to Washington after five weeks in London, told reporters of the progress of Norway's fight against the invaders. He described the Norwegian field and air forces in the British Empire and the army of sailors who man Norway's merchant vessels.

Speaking of the young recruits for these forces, Mr. Morgenstierne said: "They come out by the most extraordinary ways. They come by the hundreds. That was one of the most heartening experiences of my trip."

Resistance Stronger.

"All of these young people had the same story to tell. The spirit of resistance was stronger than ever and nothing would ever break it. Ninety-nine per cent of the Norwegian people were standing up against the Nazis and against the handful of traitors."

The German forces in Norway have been reduced from a strength of 300,000 or 400,000 troops last winter to a garrison of only 100,000 now, he had heard, and the young troops of the garrison had recently been replaced by older men.

"The Norwegian people have been robbed of their food, their fuel has been taken away and now they are taking the blankets from the poor people," the Minister said. The spirit of resistance, in spite of this, is strong now—but the Minister said, "The Norwegians are grateful to this country and anything that is done to increase aid will win the eternal gratitude of our people."

Merchant Fleet Busy

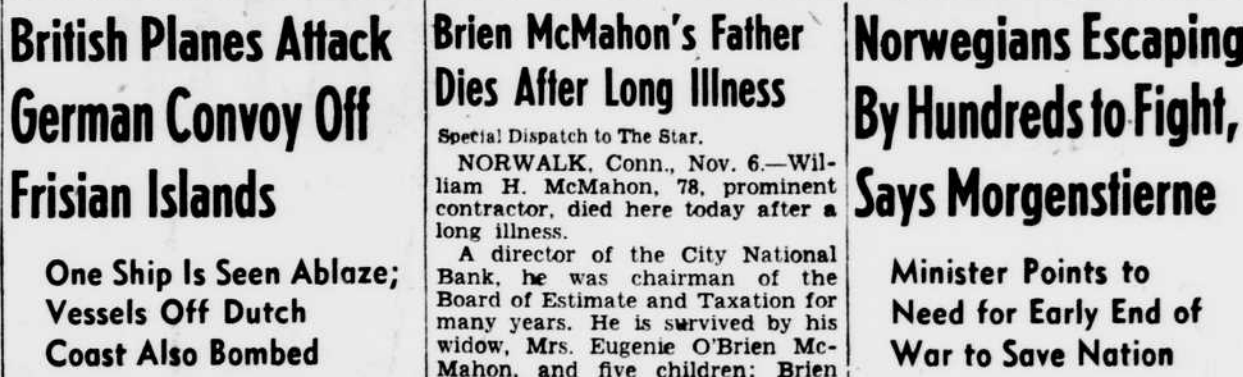

"The length of the war depends upon what this country does," the Norwegian government in London is directing the operation of several million tons of Norwegian merchant shipping and the 25,000 sailors who man this fleet are "worth a million men, the British say."

The Minister said that many Norwegian boats are forced to travel without protection and that sailors have been exposed to nerve-racking dangers for months. Plans are being worked out now to give some of the Norwegians a rest, by assigning them to ship routes outside the North Atlantic war zone.

"I want to stress how important it is for those men to get a rest and change," he said.

The Minister had long talks with officials of his government and said he was impressed with how efficiently it operates. The Norwegians have a gold reserve, are earning money with the operations of their merchant fleet and are now beginning to get lease-land aid.

"And we are still paying our way everywhere," he said.

Brookstreet

You'll find more and more men wearing Brookstreet suits. Why? Because they're interested in that certain distinctive appearance and custom-character that Brookstreet imparts. Tailored of fine fabrics that proclaim its quality to the touch as well as the eye. It is famed for its "soft construction" and an attention to little details that reflect a real sense of quality. It's no wonder why so many men accustomed to made-to-measure clothing find in this custom-type suit the fit, suave appearance and long service they demand of custom-made clothing.

Sweden Declares Its Allegiance to Finland in This War

Premier Says Relations With Britain Will Suffer If English Declare War

By HENRY J. TAYLOR.
Correspondent of The Star and the North American Newspaper Alliance.
STOCKHOLM, Nov. 6 (by cable).—On the basis of an interview with Prime Minister Per Albin Hansson and an exclusive statement from the Swedish Foreign Office, your correspondent can state that there is absolutely no doubt that further pressure from Moscow on London to declare war on Finland would immediately react against England in Sweden and directly affect Anglo-Swedish relations.

ROCK HILL, S. C.—ARMY SHOWS NEW TANK PONTOONS—New M-3, 30-ton medium tanks of the 69th Armored Regiment proceeding over the latest type interlocking tread pontoon ferry laid down by the 16th Engineer Battalion. The 69th and 16th are units of the 1st Armored Division, members of which are here from Fort Knox, Ky., for the extensive Army maneuvers. Prime Minister Hansson struck a courageous note in our discussion at the chancellery. A large man, stolid and firm, he spoke plainly and to the point after I had remarked that Sweden's policy now, in the face of England's consideration of a possible declaration of war on Finland is one of the principal political and military questions in Europe.

With the Prime Minister's consent, I proposed to the Foreign Office that if Sweden's official attitude in the face of this situation had already crystallized, the Swedish government could do its part constructively by declaring its position at once.

Sweden's official declaration was dictated to me in the following direct words of the Foreign Office spokesman:

"You can say we have never been strictly neutral when it concerns Finland. During Finland's 1939-40 war (against Russia) in addition to the great material and humanitarian assistance we gave Finland, we also exported war materials to Finland and some of our best young men joined up as volunteers.

"While in Finland's present war we have had to give consideration to the fact that our stores of materials and foodstuffs were greatly depleted, we have been as helpful as we could.

"In this help, however, such things as we have exported have always excluded any imports of other materials we obtained from America and, of course, from Great Britain.

"As any help has been exclusively to Finland and to no one else, we ask England to remember that Sweden has been united with the people of Finland by economic, cultural and religious bonds and by our way of life for nearly 800 years.

"Therefore, any isolation of Finland from the great democratic nations naturally has a direct effect on Sweden and makes it doubly difficult to carry out our program of independence and national security."

Finns' Objective Fixed, Premier Says

By HENRY J. TAYLOR.
Correspondent of The Star and N. A. N. A.
HELSINKI, Nov. 4 (Delayed).—The Finnish government has fixed the strategic and defensible line at which they can and will safely stop their advance into Russia, Premier Jukka Rangell told me.

This is a settled matter, he said, determined independently by the Finnish government and Marshal Mannerheim and solely in Finland's defensive interests of security.

Premier Rangell pointed out it is easy to understand why the location of this line must remain a military secret at present. If the Russians knew where the line was they would know what to do with their troops. The Russians also would know how to plan their defenses of Leningrad if they knew whether the Finns were going to occupy Leningrad when they could and thus create an historic sensation among the Finnish people, or whether the Finns were going further to display to the world, by not going into Leningrad, that their interest is solely and unqualifiedly Finland's defense against an ancient enemy and entirely outside every detail of the European war as a whole.

The Finns believe that the Russian fighting is about over. The Russians no longer are able to counterattack with any force whatever or with any persistence, even in local areas. They cannot form their lines or communicate effectively between isolated groups. Russian aviation is haphazard and its co-ordination has disappeared. This much the Finnish people realize. I was in an air raid Thursday night, the first since the beginning of October, and I saw the Russian planes dump their bomb load in the open water of the gulf, turn back and run as soon as the first fighters came up to meet them.

Labor Council Probes Workers' Accidents At New War Building

Trade Paper Calls Structure Death Trap; Conference Sought

Reports of an "alarming" accident rate among workers on the new War Department building in Arlington have led to the appointment of a special committee of the Building Trades Council Executive Committee to confer with Quartermaster Corps officers and determine if safety codes are being complied with.

John Locher, secretary of the council and a member of the special committee, said today the group will seek an audience with Army construction chiefs "within several days." He said the group also would seek to determine whether the building actually is located in the District or Virginia.

Important questions of unemployment and accident compensation as well as travel-time pay hinge on this determination, Mr. Locher said.

"The Quartermaster Corps has a very good safety code," Mr. Locher asserted, "and it will be the purpose of our committee to see that it is applied."

The Trades Unionist, a publication edited by Fred S. Walker, another member of the special committee, said in its Saturday issue that working conditions on the huge $31,000,000 project were "most hazardous." The article was headed "Workers Being Killed in Alarming Numbers: War Building a Death Trap."

Mr. Walker said today he did not write the article and could not say how many deaths had occurred. The Quartermaster Corps said there had been one workman killed during the early stages of the work.

Approximately 3,000 laborers are working three shifts a day as the Army seeks to complete the building early in 1942. The completion schedule specifies 14 months from the beginning of work, September 25.

Mr. Skirvin commented, "that they intend rent control to apply only to defense areas. I say it is a permanent thing they propose. Or else, why have they drawn up model State acts which they hope every Legislature will approve?"

Minister Straus told the conference at the Mayflower that problems of public housing are essentially local and can best be solved by local planning and administration. This plan is possible, he added, through the U. S. H. A. local authority program, which he described as the best means of pro-

Good Diet Essential To Curb Tuberculosis Rate, Doctor Says

Number of Cases Goes Up in Times of Stress, G. W. U. Society Told

A high level of nutrition is essential to prevent an increase in the tuberculosis rate during the war, Dr. Esmond R. Long of the University of Pennsylvania told the Smith-Wood Russell Society of the George Washington Medical School yesterday afternoon.

The rate is known to go up in times of national stress, he said, and it is known that an effective curb is a national diet with plenty of proteins and vitamins A and C.

With the new, cheap X-ray technique for discovering tuberculosis lesions in the lungs, Dr. Long said, it may soon be possible to examine a greater part of the American population and thus discover the majority of sources of infection. In Germany at present, he said, there are unverified reports that entire cities are being examined in this fashion.

There are two elements of the population likely to escape such mass examinations, he stressed—the vagabonding school leaver who is not employed, otherwise great masses can be reached through the schools and the factories.

In order to stamp out the disease, he stressed, it is essential that every active case be sequestered, possibly in sanatoria, so that there will be no sources of infection.

Formerly a disease almost exclusively of youth, he said, tuberculosis is now becoming a disease of late life. This is due in part to the fact that new methods of treatment have prolonged life so that persons even with severe cases may live into old age.

The vagabond population with its low standard of living and constant exposure to the elements, he said, is one of the most important reservoirs of infection.

Hit-Run Suspect Held in Death of Six-Year-Old Boy

Driver Surrenders After Allegedly Leaving Scene Of Fatal Accident

Police today were holding a 25-year-old man as a suspect in the hit-and-run traffic death of Marvin Marshall, 6, colored, who was struck in front of his home at 70 Myrtle street N.E. yesterday.

The man arrested is George Bowmes, colored, of the 1700 block of Fourth street N.W. He was charged at No. 1 precinct station last night with leaving after colliding and held for retention of the coroner.

Police said he appeared at No. 11 precinct station last night and said he understood he was being sought. He was released to Pvt. A. D. Clarke of the Accident Investigation Unit, who took him to No. 1 for booking.

Pvt. Clarke said the suspect at first denied knowledge of the accident, but later admitted in a statement that he was the driver wanted.

Running to Mother.

Witnesses told police the child was hit as he was running across the street to his home after being called by his mother, Mrs. Ruth Marshall. She screamed a warning when she saw the oncoming car, but it was too late. Witnesses said the boy was carried about 40 feet on the bumper of the striking vehicle, after which he fell to the ground and was run over by the car.

The victim was rushed to Freedmen's Hospital in another automobile and was pronounced dead on arrival. His was the 80th Washington traffic death of the year.

The driver of the striking car ignored a chorus of shouts to stop, according to witnesses, and turned left into First street without halting at a boulevard "stop" sign. He then turned into K street, failing to stop at another sign, police were told.

Knocked From Bicycle.

Paul Duhamel, 13, of 5305 Connecticut avenue N.W. was knocked from his bicycle late yesterday by a truck turning into a parking lot in the 4400 block of Connecticut avenue N.W., police reported.

The boy was taken to Emergency Hospital, where it was said he had suffered a fractured right leg and possibly a fractured right leg. He also received cuts and bruises.

Florence Dove, 51, colored, of Haiti, who lives near Rockville, Md., died yesterday in the Rockville Rescue Squad ambulance on the way to the Montgomery County General Hospital after an accident on highway No. 240 about a mile north of Rockville. She was struck by a car while walking along the highway, receiving broken legs and other injuries. Montgomery County police listed her as being struck by a car while walking along the highway, receiving broken legs and other injuries. Montgomery County police listed her as being struck by a car while walking along the highway, receiving broken legs and other injuries.

Wilson Smith, 26, of Herndon, Va., suffered a punctured lung, broken clavicle and broken rib today when the automobile he was driving skidded on a wet road near his home and plunged into a culvert.

He was brought to Doctors' Hospital, where his physician said his condition was satisfactory.

Driver Held in Fatal Halloween Accident

Charles J. Di Virgilio, 28-year-old defense laborer, today faced Police Court action in the Halloween traffic death of Allen Mitchell Kennedy, 13, of 2434 Franklin street N.E.

A coroner's jury ordered Mr. Di Virgilio held for the count under the Negligent Homicide Act yesterday after an inquest brought out details of the tragedy, which occurred on Bladensburg road near Eastern avenue.

The jury was told Mr. Di Virgilio's automobile, going northeast on Bladensburg road, skidded out of control, jumped the curb and crashed into a telephone pole beside which the victim was standing, knocking him 43 feet into a vacant lot.

The Kennedy boy's body, dressed in a cowboy suit, lay at the morgue 19 hours before being identified.

Attorney Represents Parents. Besides the police, only two witnesses appeared at the inquest, and the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Madison Kennedy, were represented by an attorney.

Mr. Di Virgilio did not take the stand, Herbert Weidlin, Jr., 22, who was riding with him at the time of the accident, told the jury the two had finished their work as plumbers on a defense housing project in Southeast Washington shortly before and were driving to Wilmington, Del., where Mr. Weidlin lives.

Witness Estimate of Speed. "We were riding along and all of a sudden the car started to skid," Mr. Weidlin said. He estimated the automobile's speed at 30 to 35 miles per hour.

Lt. William J. Liverman of the homicide squad testified that neither Mr. Di Virgilio nor Mr. Weidlin knew the speed limit on Bladensburg road and said Mr. Weidlin had told him earlier that they were going 40 or 45 miles per hour.

Queried on this point by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, Mr. Weidlin said it was true, but said he wished to amend his estimate of the speed in view of the fact that he was "nervous and upset" after the accident.

Hopkins in Hospital For Rest and Checkup

Harry Hopkins, lease-lend administrator, is in the Naval Hospital for a "checkup," physicians there said today.

Mr. Hopkins is "getting some rest" and probably will remain a patient over the next week end, it was said. He entered the hospital yesterday after returning from a visit with President Roosevelt in Hyde Park, N. Y.

BOY BICYCLIST INJURED—Thirteen-year-old Paul Duhamel of 5305 Connecticut avenue N.W. grimaces with pain as he lies covered with a blanket while awaiting removal to Emergency Hospital from a traffic accident in the 4400 block of Connecticut avenue N.W. Police said Paul was knocked from his bicycle by a truck turning into a parking lot. He suffered one broken leg and possibly a fracture of the other. Photograph was taken by Adolph L. More, a printer with The Star, who happened to be passing.

Japanese Hint Move To Cut Off American Supplies to China

Press Sees Possibility Of Overland Expedition To Check Burma Flow

(See Also Story on Page A-14.)

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—The Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Foreign Office, hinted strongly tonight that Japan's next military move might be an overland expedition to cut off the Burma road and force the United States to stem its flow of supplies to China.

Cutting the Burma route, it asserted, might "force America to abandon what is tantamount to direct military operations against Japan at the expense of the American people."

The Times and Advertiser said "there is always the possibility, even the probability, of a direct march on the Burma road" and even hinted by what route the attack might be made—via French Indo-China, now under Japanese domination.

In an editorial stressing the strength of Japan's "central position" in the oriental trouble zone, the paper said "this country is able to move in a number of directions, which requires its potential enemies to be prepared at many places, distributing and decentralizing their strength."

This hint was dropped as the Japanese press appraised the trip of Saburo Kurosu to the United States as Japan's diplomatic effort to improve Pacific relations by removing a deadlock in conferences at Washington.

"There is every hope that force will not be necessary," the Times and Advertiser said, adding: "But Japan is prepared for any eventualities."

Step Seen Solving Problem. If Japan undertook a Burma campaign, the newspaper said, "America's choice between letting Chungking down or keeping Chungking up would be solved automatically, for it could not assist Chiang Kai-shek's party if the sole remaining major avenue of supply were cut."

The newspaper said traffic over the Burma supply route already had been hampered by air raids, but declared "the permanent solution would be Japanese occupation of the road."

"Perhaps it would be appreciated by peace groups in the United States," the Times and Advertiser said, "if Japan were to block the Burma road, putting an end to American large-scale intervention in China, Chungking then could not blame the United States for abandonment of lease-lend aid so far as the Chiang party is concerned."

Of Kurosu's trip to the United States the Times and Advertiser said, "This is the last opportunity (for the United States) to make amends for aggression and restore the occasion for an amicable settlement."

Kurosu, 55-year-old diplomat, who holds ambassadorial rank without being accredited to any particular nation, rested overnight at Takao, Formosa, on his aerial journey from Tokyo.

Will Board Clipper. He planned to take off this morning for Hong Kong, to board a clipper held two days so that he could make trans-Pacific connections immediately.

Dornel said Kurosu was expected to confer with High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines at Manila, where he was Japanese consul general from 1919 to 1922.

The news agency asserted dispatch of Kurosu as a special envoy

Britain Exporting Toys of Vital Metal, Wheeler Charges

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, charged the Senate yesterday a half-dozen toy soldiers, cannon and searchlights he said were manufactured in Great Britain out of lead, copper and brass and shipped to the United States for sale.

Asserting that American manufacturers were being denied these materials because they were needed for defense production, he asked his listeners why it was necessary for American cargo vessels to ply the waters of the war zones if Britain had shipping space for toys.

proposed Japan's peaceful intentions amid tension it said was caused by the United States' economic blockade of Japan and aid to the Chungking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The Japan Times and Advertiser said developments were up to Washington.

The cabinet of Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo was declared to have "gone to the last limit seeking to persuade America from the path of intolerance."

Observers professed to see some connection between the Kurosu mission and a session of the Japanese Diet opening November 15, which perhaps will serve as a sounding board to back up his proposals.

The newspaper Chugai Shogyo said fast developments were to be expected in Washington conversations after Kurosu's arrival about November 18, but warned the Japanese against over-optimism.

"The aggressive attitude of the United States toward Japan has been strengthened daily from every angle," the newspaper charged, "and a group of other nations is following the American lead, strengthening their united front against this country."

Asahi said Kurosu's diplomatic ability would be a great aid to Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Ambassador to the United States.

Mrs. G. H. Earle, Jr., Dies; Mother of U. S. Envoy

VENTNOR, N. J., Nov. 6.—Mrs. George H. Earle, jr., mother of George H. Earle, 3d, former Pennsylvania Governor and now Minister to Bulgaria, died of pneumonia at her home here late last night. Mrs. Earle, who was in her 80s, received a cabled message only yesterday from her son at Sofia and he was subsequently cabled word of her death.

Mrs. Earle was the former Catharine Hensell French and prominent in Philadelphia society. She was married in 1881 to George H. Earle, Jr., Philadelphia financier and attorney, who died in 1928.

Four of the 10 children of the marriage survive. In addition to the former Governor they are: Ralph, president of the Finance Co. of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Gilbert Mather and Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, both of Philadelphia.

Gen. Magruder Leaves Chungking for Kunming

CHUNGKING, Nov. 6.—Brig. Gen. John Magruder, head of a United States military mission to China, left this provisional capital by plane today for Kunming.

Although the purpose of the trip was not disclosed, some sources expressed the belief Gen. Magruder intended to investigate the possibilities of effective Chinese resistance if Yunnan Province were invaded.

Imperial Japanese Peace Plan Reported Mission of Kurosu

Special Envoy May Also Bring Personal Message From Tojo to Roosevelt

By LLOYD LEHRBAS, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Saburo Kurosu, the special Japanese envoy en route here on a Pacific clipper, was reported today to be bearing an imperially-approved formula for a peaceful settlement of Japanese-American problems.

Kurosu's dispatch case, diplomatic circles here said, also may inclose a personal message from Premier Hideki Tojo to President Roosevelt presenting the Japanese government's view of the tense Far-Eastern situation and proposals designed to assure what Japan considers an amicable solution.

A personal message from former Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye to the President last August opened the way for "exploratory talks" on the problems—talks which still continue intermittently between Secretary Hull and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador.

Entire Field Explored. Secretary Hull and other State Department officials profess, however, to have no authoritative information of Mr. Kurosu's mission, or what proposals he may be bringing from the Japanese government.

Since the entire field of Japanese-American relations has been explored in nearly a hundred discussions, here and in Tokyo, there was little optimism in diplomatic quarters that Mr. Kurosu's mission would break the deadlock resulting from sharply divergent policies pursued by the United States and Japan in the Far East.

The President, Secretary Hull, and other American officials have given no indication that the United States would modify its policy against aggression in the Orient, and appease Japan.

Aid Efforts Redoubled. On the contrary, it was pointed out, the United States has redoubled efforts to provide Soviet Russia and China with all possible assistance in their respective struggles against German and Japanese invasion.

Mr. Kurosu, designated as special adviser to Ambassador Nomura, is fresh from consultations with Japanese government leaders. A former Ambassador to Berlin, where he signed the Axis pact for Japan, he is the second high-ranking Japanese envoy to come to Washington on a special mission linked with settlement of Japanese-American problems.

Poet-Teacher Dies

CAMDEN, Me., Nov. 6 (AP).—Job Herrick Montgomery, 90, dean of Maine attorneys, who as a high school teacher encouraged Edna St. Vincent Millay in writing poetry when she was a girl in this town, died yesterday. Real Shortage of Oil Faced, Ickes and Aide Tell Petroleum Body

More Tankers May Go And Production Will Fall Short of Needs, They Warn

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Automobile drivers may yet feel the impact of war on their driving habits. Dr. John W. Frey, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, impressed that possibility on the American Petroleum Institute today.

His warning followed one by Federal Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes yesterday that the United States not only may have to supply Britain with many more oil tankers than have been loaned in the past, but that it may be confronted with a shortage of domestic and aviation gasoline.

Motorists may not merely run into gasoline shortages, Dr. Frey asserted. They may have to press longer on the starter to get the engine going, they may have to shift sooner on hills, they may have to keep oil in the crankcase more than the traditional 1,000 miles.

Ickes sees shortage. Although some of the 50 tankers originally loaned have been returned and the projected release of others has been announced, this country's commitments, Mr. Ickes said, require the furnishing of additional oil boats in case England asks for more.

"I suspect," he added, "that the tanker situation will be a troublesome one" for the duration of the emergency.

Mr. Ickes stated that even if the American oil industry doubled its 100-octane aviation gasoline production by January 1, 1943, bringing the output to about 100,000 barrels daily, the supply would still be far short of the needs of the United States, Britain, Russia and China.

"We are not even sure," he continued, "that we have sufficient capacity for producing all of the ordinary gasoline that we will need. Our refiners of motor fuel are now pretty close to 100 per cent capacity and the demand continues to rise."

Disclaiming any desire to impose governmental control on the industry, Mr. Ickes warned the oil men that unless wasteful practices were eliminated, some form of Federal regulation was certain.

Picture of the Future. Looking ahead along the highway Mr. Motorist will travel, this is what he foresaw:

Increased production of aviation gasoline will take more butane—the stuff that makes gasoline more volatile, helping kick-starting of motors. The need for butane, he said, is likely to push so-called bottled gas distributors to replace butane with propane, affecting households using the tanked gas for heating and cooking.

Aviation gasoline will take more tetraethyl lead. Lead is already scarce. And Army equipment requires premium grade gasoline. When the military needs are met, there will not be enough left to keep up the octane ratings of motor fuels sold to the motorist. So his motor will knock on grades he used to skim over with engine purring.

Pennsylvania lubricating oil marketers, Dr. Frey forecast, may have a hard time maintaining their automobile trade. Aviation will take heavy hauls on supplies.

"I would not be surprised to see considerable changes in lubricating oil specifications," he ventured, "at least for the duration of the emergency."

"Before we get much further along it probably will be found that lubricating oils will have to last longer than they did a year ago. Serious reconsideration of the 1,000-mile lubricating program may be desirable."

It will be the job of the marketer of oil products to explain these and many other problems to his customers, Dr. Frey said.

Draft Minimum of 18 May Be Necessary, Hershey Warns

Heavy Rejection Rate May Force Rerests On Lower Limit

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, said yesterday a shortage of man power may force the Government either to lower the minimum draft age from 21 to 18 or end deferments to older men.

Gen. Hershey told Wharton School students at the University of Pennsylvania that he formerly opposed lowering the age minimum but was forced by circumstances to change his stand.

"We have been compelled to reject over 50 per cent of the individuals who have been called up for examination so far—150,000 of them because they have not reached the fourth-grade educational level," he asserted.

An additional 1,700,000 men of draft age will be registered for possible service next July 1, Gen. Hershey told the students. Unless the draft age is lowered, he declared, however, the Army's man power shortage will make it necessary to cancel many deferments to men 21 to 28 and re-examine men previously rejected because of minor physical disabilities.

In an interview yesterday Gen. Hershey said local draft boards are not authorized to institute on their own initiative a blanket reclassification of strikers in defense industries.

"Each case must be dealt with separately," he said. "There can be no such thing as a blanket reclassification under the act."

Tirpitz, at Danzig, Reported Damaged by Russian Planes

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Germany's largest warship, the Tirpitz, one of three battleships remaining to the Reich after her sister ship, the Bismarck, was sunk by the British last May, was damaged in a Russian air raid on Danzig last Monday night, according to a British press report from Stockholm.

The B. B. C. broadcast the report, which came in a dispatch of the London Daily Telegraph's Stockholm correspondent, but authoritative circles refrained from comment.

The whereabouts of the Tirpitz was regarded as more important than the claim that she had been hit. Such a modern battleship is supposed to carry such heavy deck armor that bombs could not do much harm. Danzig is now one of Eastern Germany's Baltic ports.

When the Bismarck was sunk to even the score after her destruction of the 42,100-ton British battle cruiser Hood, Germany was left with two 26,000-ton battleships, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, besides the heavier Tirpitz.

In naval manuals, the Tirpitz and Bismarck are credited with standard displacements of 35,000 tons, but after the Bismarck was sunk the British said that she displaced nearer 50,000 tons.

Dry East, Wet West Caused by Blocked
'Bermuda High'

Movement of Great Mass of Air Needed
For Normal Rainfall

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

A blocked Bermuda high—a mass of relatively cool, dry air about 1,000 miles in diameter and 5 miles or more high—is the cause of most of the queer weather the United States has experienced this fall.

It promises to be the second driest autumn of record in the East and perhaps the wettest of record in much of the region between the Mississippi and the Rockies. This autumn has seen the ordinarily arid Kansas get 25 per cent more rainfall than the ordinarily wet Virginia.

The Bermuda high is a constant feature on weather maps. Its center ordinarily lies somewhere over Bermuda, but it drifts eastward and westward and increases and diminishes in normal years. This fall it has been wedged westward and remained for almost three months without any change in size.

Barrier to Moist Winds.

Rainfall is due mostly to tongues of warm, moist air which flow northward from the Gulf of Mexico. They bump into the Bermuda high as though it were a great, icy mountain standing in their path. They either must climb over it or go around it and, if it is very high, the course of least resistance is to go around. The path always is in a clockwise direction from west to east.

The high ordinarily does not rest over the southern Appalachians for more than a few days. It drifts eastward and the moist air tongues rush up over the Atlantic Coast States, bringing rain. This fall they persistently have been turned westward, so that all their moisture has been dumped on the Mississippi Valley and the Great Plains.

"It is," said Dr. J. J. Kincer, chief of the Division of Climatology of the United States Weather Bureau, "as if a big moving van was broken down at a busy corner, tying up all the traffic for blocks around."

Blocking Mystifies Experts.
Why the Bermuda high gets blocked from time to time weather experts do not understand. Every now and then this happens and a titanic, unpredictable atmospheric explosion of some sort is necessary to break it loose. The last time it remained blocked for so long was in the fall of 1930, the driest of record for the East.

Ordinarily, the longer the high persists the harder it is to break up, and the longer the wet tongues from the Gulf move over a given path, the steadier the rainfall.

Some idea of what has happened the first two months of this fall is gleaned from Mr. Kincer's statistics. Baltimore has had 1.18 inches of rainfall against a normal of 6.46. Washington has had 1.81, compared to a 6.08 normal. The figures for Greenville, S. C., are 2.45, compared to 6.80 for an ordinary year. Nashville has had 2.72 inches, while the normal is 5.91. Albany has experienced about half its normal fall precipitation.

On the other hand, Topeka, Kans., has had 10.65 inches, compared to a normal of 2.42; Keokuk, Iowa, 16 inches, compared to a normal of 3.10, and Springfield, Ill., 20.36 inches, against an average of 6.10.

East's Storage Drops.
Fortunately, Mr. Kincer points out, neither the dry nor the wet weather is of much importance so far as this year's crops are concerned. The storage of ground water in the East, however, is nearly depleted. It is ordinarily stored in the late winter and early spring, summer and fall precipitation just compensating for the drain of crops on the supply. Wells, of course, are dry everywhere and city reservoirs are running low.

If the year follows expectations, there is little likelihood of the supply being restored until next February in the Southeast and March or April in the North. The frozen ground prevents absorption of water by the soil.

How long the stagnation of the Bermuda high will persist, Mr. Kincer explains, is unpredictable. It would not be expected to last all winter.

Retired Coast Guardsmen Here Recalls Event

John T. Daniels, who took the picture of the Wright brothers' first flight and who claims the dubious distinction of being the first airplane casualty, is in town today.

At 68 he has white hair and clear, sharp eyes. A retired Coast Guardsman, he is at Mount Alto Hospital for a routine checkup. His home is at Manteo, on the North Carolina coast only a few miles from famous Kill Devil Hill, where man first flew in a power-driven airplane.

JOHN T. DANIELS.

"I was at the Kill Devil Coast Guard Station, within sight of the Wrights' camp, and we used to go over and help them nearly every afternoon," he recalled in an interview in the recreation hall at the hospital. "When they first arrived we didn't know what to think. They were studying the flight of the birds around there and we used to watch them from the Coast Guard station running up and down the beach with their arms outstretched, tilting from side to side like a gliding bird."

Flew Flag When Ready.
"They made glider flights for two years before they finished their little aluminum motor and were ready for the power trial. As we had arranged, they hoisted a little red flag over the camp the morning they were ready."

"We went over and helped them pull the plane out of the shed and put it on the tracks they had built. The plane rested on a little truck that had bicycle sprockets for wheels. The Wrights were bicycle manufacturers in Dayton, you know. I have in my garage at home the frame of a bicycle they brought down there and which we wore out riding on the sandy beach."

"As I was saying, we put the plane on the little truck, corresponding to today's landing gear. Rather, this was the taking-off gear, since the truck stayed on the track."

"Then we were all set to go."

A far-away look in his eyes, Mr. Daniels edged forward on his chair.

Orville won the toss.

"Orville and Wilbur flipped a coin to see who would be the first. Orville won. Then Wilbur took me over to where a little camera was rigged up. "John," he said, "do you think you can press this bulb the very instant the plane comes in view in this little glass?" I told him, "I guess I can."

"It was about 10:30 a.m. on the 17th of December, 1903. The plane came shooting down the track. 'Cheer him! Cheer him, men!' shouted Wilbur. And we did! As loud as we could yell!"

"But I was watching out for him to come in front of the camera. And I pressed the bulb at just the right time. If I had been an instant off, there would have been no picture of the first flight. The plane stayed up several seconds, but only a few feet off the ground, of course."

"How about the time you got hurt?" he was asked.

Got a Few Bruises.
Mr. Daniels smiled. "I wasn't hurt much—just a few bruises—but I did split sand for about three days afterward."

"It was right after the second flight, made by Wilbur, when the plane's tail got pulled off on a little sand dune. We had hauled the plane back to the shed and were preparing to put it in when a high wind came along. I was right near the motor in the fender and got caught in a strut. The wind blew the plane about 35 feet high, and when it was coming down—about 10 feet from the ground—I fell off and buried my head in the sand."

"The plane went to pieces and there were no more flights at the hill. The Wrights returned to Dayton."

Realtors to Gather Facts for Fight on Home Building Curb

Tide of Revolt Against Priorities Rises in Detroit Session

By JAMES Y. NEWTON, Star Staff Correspondent.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—A rising tide of revolt against priorities forcing a shutdown of private building activities led home builders attending the National Association of Real Estate Boards' Convention here today to set in motion machinery for a fact-finding agency to investigate the materials situation to determine if the shortage actually exists. Many builders were openly skeptical of the O. P. M. claim of a lack of so-called critical materials. It was compared by these builders to the recent scare over the oil shortage in the East, a situation which now has been straightened out. The builders said there must be vast supplies on hand of steel, copper and other metals manufactured especially for construction, which would be unfit for armament building. They say wise use of information is necessary to enable them to remain in business who now are faced with losing means of livelihood.

From the attitude of the builders, it is obvious that they will be hard to convince that drastic measures being taken by priority officials are necessary in the present state of national emergency. Many feel their operations should not be so drastically restricted except in case of actual declaration of war.

Data Not Available. In asking that an agency be established to survey the materials situation, John McC. Mowbray of Baltimore said: "Nobody knows how many houses are being built in the United States and what the inventory of building materials actually is and who holds this inventory. Until accurate information about actual material supply is available, neither the Government nor the home building industry itself is able to speak for the home building situation. There is great need that home builders be represented by a committee to collect information, especially about the materials supply, the inventory on hand and who holds it, and to make these data available to groups most concerned. The Home Builders' Institute of America is proposing to set up such a committee, equipped with funds for fact gathering and for the distribution of essential information in regard to the home building industry."

"From the basis of accurate facts and figures, home builders may be able to convince the governmental agencies concerned that it takes no more of critical materials to build an $8,000 house for a defense worker in a city such as Washington than it does to build a $6,000 house in a defense area where building costs are lower. We believe that in order to meet the need for conservation of critical materials, that emphasis might be better placed on a quantitative limitation of actual critical materials used rather than on limiting the price of a house."

Must Work to Present Case. "There will be no more business as usual for home building or for anything else. The only way for home builders to save their business is to give adequate support to a committee which can represent them by gathering the facts. To present the case of our business in Washington, we need research and hard work."

Funds for the builders' fact-finding agency will be appropriated by the national association and its affiliated body, the Home Builders' Institute. The agency will have offices in Washington.

A fear is apparent among builders here that the Government may restrict them in supplying housing for defense as well as for the civilian population not engaged in emergency work. One prominent builder said he expected the Government to take over most defense building and to provide it by direct subsidy. He said that unless this situation is cleared up immediately by the Government it will have the effect of restricting greatly efforts of private industry in supplying badly needed housing.

A dark picture of the future, both as to increasing living costs and taxation, was painted by Harold G. Moulton of Washington, president of the Brookings Institution. He said it appears certain that rates will again be increased in the next tax bill, with perhaps lower levels of exemption. The purchasing power of some 40,000,000 people having incomes from $3,000 to $10,000 a year will be reduced by 25 per cent in the coming year, he predicted.

Sees Spiraling Costs. With regard to increased cost of living, Dr. Moulton said: "We are now definitely on the spiral of rising prices, rising costs, and again rising prices. It should be noted in this connection that next spring the farmer will have to pay substantially higher prices for everything that he buys thereby making it necessary to raise agricultural prices still more in the ensuing year. Since price parity involves a relationship between the prices of the things which farmers buy and the prices of the crops which they sell, we shall be in the process of chasing ourselves round and round—an escalator, as it were. That is to say, this will be the case unless the present farm policy is modified."

The Home Builders' Institute is asking that increased building costs be reflected more equitably than is at present the case in P. R. allocations. Curt C. Mack, Washington, P. H. A. director of underwriting, indicated that the primary issue with his agency is how long present increased costs may be expected to hold. The consistent policy of P. H. A. he said, has been and is that its valuations for mortgage loan insurance will not reflect increased construction costs unless such costs are clearly stabilized. P. H. A. has a long term position, he said, and must consider probable future cost and value trends in the emergency increases in costs, therefore, cannot be carried over into valuations, he added.

Hugh Potter of Houston, former national association head, urged that the entire housing effort of the Nation in the emergency period be put in charge of one man with authority to act. He pointed out that divided authority of Government housing agencies in Washington is causing the defense housing program to move too slowly.

School Radio Committees To Hear Script Writer

Welbourn Kelly, author and head of the Radio Script Division of the Navy Department, tonight will address the second joint workshop of the District Public School Radio Committees at 7 o'clock in the Trans-Lux Building. The workshop meetings, designed to assist teachers in the preparation of the school broadcasts, the first of which will be presented next Monday, are sponsored by The Star and the school radio groups with the cooperation of the National Broadcasting Co.

Mr. Kelly, who has supplied scripts for such outstanding radio programs as the recent biographical series, "These Four Men" and the perennial favorite, "Basin Street Music Society," will discuss script preparation and will demonstrate with transcribed broadcasts shown here from New York for the purpose.

Judge Catches a Pass And Five Boys Go Free

A football few back and forth in Police Court yesterday, and nobody was thrown for a loss for belittling the court's dignity.

In fact, Judge George D. Nelson invited what took place when he asked five boys charged with playing in the street to show him what they were using.

One of the boys replied by firing the ball—but not the ball—at the judge, who deftly caught it and after looking it over tossed it back. Judge Nelson then warned the boys of the danger to themselves and the traffic hazard caused by playing in the street. Subsequently he dismissed the charges, after expressing the view the ball-playing was an expression of exuberance of youth and that he did not feel the five should go down on records as having been convicted.

Client 'No Extortioner,' Bluff Lawyer Tells Jury
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—William Bluff, West Coast labor leader, was pictured in Federal Court yesterday as a pawn in some mysterious big money game played by movie magnates as his attorney summed up the case against the theatrical unionist on trial for extortion.
Concluding his four and one-half hours' summation, George M. Breslin told the jury, "I am mystified as to what really happened, but I am convinced, as I am sure you are, that Bluff is no extortioner."
Bluff is on trial with George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees (A. F. L.), on charges of extorting $550,000 from the movie industry as the price of labor peace. Bluff denied the accusation from the stand. Browne did not testify.
Arguing that Bluff's alleged victims were willing victims who turned over large sums of money to him with little or no protest, Mr. Breslin said that the evidence pointed not to extortion, but to a deal arranged by Nicholas Schenck, president of Loew's, and others.

Mass U-Boat Attacks May Force Breakup Of Convoy System

17 American Civilian Technicians Feared Lost On Way to England

By the Associated Press.

The menace of German submarine raids in the North Atlantic raised speculation in naval circles today that a complete turnabout in strategy, subordinating the use of convoys, might prove the eventual answer to the U-boat wolf pack technique.

The central theory in the various methods being explored was that mass submarine attacks would be rendered largely ineffective if armed merchantmen traveled singly instead of being bunched in convoys.

The discussions accompanied two fresh developments in the battle of the Atlantic—the announcement that 17 American civilian technicians had been lost en route to England and the disclosure that U-boats have been operating close to Newfoundland.

Civilian Technicians Lost. The latest American casualties were men who had enlisted in the British Civilian Technical Corps for non-combatant duty abroad. Their loss was made public last night by the British Press Service on behalf of the Royal Air Force delegation here.

The ship which carried the technicians "is presumed to have been sunk," the British said, and "telegrams have been sent to the next of kin." The name of the ship and the approximate date of the sinking were not disclosed.

Added to other recent casualties in the armed services and merchant marine, the new losses increased to 140 the known toll of American lives in the last three months.

The names of the American technicians lost, as given by the British Press Service, follow: W. J. Ash, Weehawken, N. J.; J. A. Blain, Brooklyn, N. Y.; D. C. Blossom, Oklahoma City, Okla.

A. L. Crosby, San Jose, Calif.; J. F. Courtney, Elkhart, Ind.; G. Easton, Absecon, N. J.; R. E. Folk, Palo, Ill.; F. Gilford, Brooklyn, N. Y.; E. Geoffrey, Savitille, N. Y.; M. McNulty, South Orange, N. J.; J. Price, White Plains, N. Y.; H. P. Simons, Brooklyn, N. Y.; T. C. Sines, Sarasota, Fla.; C. Singer, Jamaica, Long Island; J. C. Spear, Vallejo, Calif.; C. L. Stinson, Woodland, Wash.; A. Templeton, Beecher City, Ill.

The Canadians lost were: W. C. Andrews, Sarnia, Ontario; J. D. Barter, Calgary, Alberta.

World Arm Shipment. Exponents of the single-vessel strategy to outmaneuver U-boat packs said that its logical application called for a minimum use of convoys, the routing of ships over a wide variety of constantly changing sea lanes and giving them guns to fight attackers.

That, it was said, would free a large number of naval vessels to patrol the areas north and southwest of the British Isles in search of submarines plying between European bases and their Atlantic hunting grounds.

In addition, the United States Navy increased its effective patrol range beyond Icelandic waters by developing bases on the British Isles, the Germans might find their North Atlantic raids much less profitable.

World War Development. The convoy system, naval men say, was developed to a high point of perfection in 1917 and 1918. Its success depended on the submarine's great risk in attacking a group of ships protected by destroyers.

The record of the United States Atlantic Fleet so far in the present war, however, generally is taken here as indicating that to some extent at least the submarines of today no longer take such great risks.

Guided by highly sensitive sound detection equipment and operating in groups with the aid of very efficient radio communication, they attack under protection of night and avoid the dangers of open encounter with surface vessels by daylight.

Skilled Men Recruited Here. The 17 Americans who, along with two Canadians, were reported lost by the British presumably were skilled radio men, technicians or mechanics. Britain has been seeking to enlist several thousand such specialists here to help in the manufacture, maintenance and repair of important equipment used by the British armed forces.

The recruiting has had general Government approval here on the ground that those who sign up for the Civilian Technical Corps, as the service is called, will not only help the British war effort but also acquire experience of value to the United States if this country becomes a belligerent.

Volunteers are given draft deferment, if they are in that age bracket, and are permitted to travel on ships of a belligerent nation. Such travel is prohibited by the Neutrality Act, save for a few exceptions.

Students Pick Lana Turner as 'Air Raid Siren'

The men of American University have selected Lana Turner as the girl with whom they would most like to share an air raid shelter, the editors of the American University Eagle announced today.

It was hinted that immediate steps would be taken to construct some air raid shelters on the campus, just in case, and Miss Turner was notified immediately. The choice was made in a vote conducted by the student newspaper.

A wire to Miss Turner from the exuberant editors stated: "American University men have chosen your favorite air raid siren. College newspaper poll shows you most desirable air raid shelter companion. Falling bombs will seem like manna as long as A. U. has its Lana."

Litvinoff

star was beginning to rise again in Russia.

Maxim Maximovitch Litvinoff is 65 years old, short, blunt-spoken, round-faced. Until he left the Foreign Office in 1929, he was men major factor in the development of Russian foreign policy for 20 years. He was last seen here in November, 1933, when he negotiated the treaty that brought United States recognition of the Soviet Union.

The treaty recognition was the fruit of Mr. Litvinoff's display of his extraordinary diplomatic ability at the London Economic Conference held the previous June. There he supported the American program presented by Secretary of State Hull, who sought the lowering of internal tariff barriers by scaling down tariffs and abolishing the quota system.

Married to English Woman. He moves dramatically, swift, sure and brilliantly. Until he was 41 he devoted himself to the revolutionary ideal, writing and plotting for the overthrow of Czarism. When the revolution came on October 25, 1917, he was in exile in London and the next day he received a telegram from the new Bolshevik government appointing him "first Ambassador to Great Britain."

The British government would not accept him, but he remained in London. He was married to an English woman, daughter of Sir Sydney Low. When he returned to Russia from England, Mr. Litvinoff was sent as Minister to Stockholm. He received the commission as Ambassador to the United States, but never served. In 1919 he returned to Moscow and entered the Foreign Office.

From 1921 to 1928 he was assistant foreign commissar. In 1928, when Commissar Georges Tchitcherine fell ill, Mr. Litvinoff became acting commissar and in 1930 he got the title as well as the job. Both of them he kept until May, 1939.

Harlan Ballot Guard Killed in Courthouse

HARLAN, Ky., Nov. 6.—Bill Lewis, 67, of the men, died of a gunshot wound in the courthouse on Tuesday's general election, was shot to death by an unknown assailant early today in the corridor of the Harlan County courthouse.

John McKinney, deputy coroner, said Lewis was shot from the abdomen and chest as he entered the courthouse on returning from a restaurant across the street about 1:40 a.m.

As Lewis stepped into the corridor some one fired on him from the basement, McKinney said. He fell dead about 30 feet from the county clerk's office, where other guards were watching the ballot boxes.

The shooting of Lewis was the first reported violence in connection with Tuesday's general election in the State.

In 1933 five men were killed in Harlan County in election disorders.

O. P. M. Considers Stay In Carolina Power Cut

ATLANTA, Nov. 6.—Federal power engineers today considered deferment of a 5 per cent electrical energy curtailment in non-defense industries in the Carolinas while an "almost complete" compliance with an O. P. M. blackout order was reported in seven Southeastern States.

Savings in electrical energy were ordered in Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, North West Florida and Eastern Mississippi because of drought-depleted hydro-electric reservoirs.

The request for deferment in the Carolinas was made by Carolina power companies at a conference between E. M. West power company engineers in Charlotte yesterday. Possible means for averting the curtailment were discussed, and Barkley J. Sicler, O. P. M. Washington official, said an announcement of conference findings would be made probable today at the O. P. M.'s Atlanta office.

Smith Stirs Langer Case Row by Saying His Mind Is Made Up

Lucas and Hatch Object To South Carolinian's Statement at Hearing

By the Associated Press.

Senator Smith, Democrat of South Carolina, presented a controversy in the Senate Elections Committee today by bluntly announcing that he had his "mind made up" on the question of seating Senator Langer, Republican of North Dakota, whose fitness to hold office has been challenged by a fomented delay of work in defense industries, is ready to put off its consideration until later to avoid complicating the foreign policy situation. He is understood to have been impressed by the administration suggestion yesterday that a clear-cut vote be had on neutrality revision, leaving labor problems for consideration in the price-control bill, which comes up next, or as separate legislation.

The Senate's only woman member, Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, took the floor late yesterday to support the bill, calling the Neutrality Act a "superpeacemaking job" that has only invited attack.

The mother of two sons who are in the Army, Senator Caraway asserted that when Congress passed the Neutrality Act "we begged Hitler not to fight us, that if he would not we would surrender our rights on the seas."

"I feel deeply in this matter," she said. "I have two sons wearing the uniform of their country. I am sure this is the only way out of the Senate. I have voted for the other preparedness measures with full knowledge of the responsibility which I assumed. I cast those votes believing it to be to the best interests of not only my sons, but those of the other fathers and mothers of America believing it to be right. I can see no other way except to cast my vote for the pending measure."

In passing the Neutrality Act, Mrs. Caraway said, "a proud Nation abjectly surrendered its rights to the freedom of the seas, in defense of which Americans gave their lives in the World War."

"We were not true to their memory when we gave up that for which they fought," Senator Caraway added.

Replying to the opposition argument that American merchant ships have no business in the war zones, Mrs. Caraway asked "what authority has Adolf Hitler to tell us that he has marked off certain areas upon which we cannot travel?"

Senator Smith, Democrat of South Carolina returned to the Capitol yesterday, announcing his withdrawal against neutrality revision. He said he had been in Canada recently and heard less war talk there than in the United States.

Senator Van Nuys, Democrat of Indiana, who is opposing the bill, did not place the opening strength on passage at more than 40 votes.

Speaking on the radio last night, Senator Ball, Republican of Minnesota, who already had made a strong plea for neutrality repeal in Senate debate, declared that the most urgent reason for taking that step is that the present cumbersome method of delivering aid to the nations fighting Hitler "is virtually certain to break down when our production of these munitions begins to increase as rapidly as I am confident it will increase in the next few months."

"We in America are not and have not been neutral either in thought or action for more than two years," said Senator Ball. "We would be more honest with ourselves and the world to abandon the pretense of this law."

British Reinforcements Landed in Singapore

SINGAPORE, Nov. 6.—A troopship convoy from the United Kingdom arrived today in Singapore, bringing reinforcements—several thousands strong—for Britain's Far Eastern command.

The arrivals included numerous men for the Royal Air Force, infantry, anti-aircraft and searchlight units, and reinforcements for auxiliary services.

Recent studies indicate that highway transportation furnishes employment to 6,700,000.

Neutrality

"total protection" from the consequences of such action.

Senator Wheeler told the Senate the force trying to get this country into the war is a "combination of Wall Street and Communists—Wendell Wilkie and the Communists tied up together."

Wallace Is Reported Leader in Attempt To Cut Farm Parity

Some Support Enlisted In Congress for Level Of 1909-14 Period

By the Associated Press.

Vice President Wallace was reported today to be taking a leading role in attempts to convince farm State legislators that they ought to accept 100 per cent parity as the ceiling for agricultural commodities in pending price control legislation.

Mr. Wallace was said to have enlisted the support of some conservative farm State members of Congress for pegging farm prices at the 1909-1914 purchasing power level established as parity for major crops.

The Vice President was represented as contending that farmers should not be placed in the position of appearing to be grabbing for all they could get.

The pending price control bill, approved by the House Banking Committee, would ban any farm price below 110 per cent of parity, the market price on October 1 or the average price in the 1919-1929 period, which ever was the highest.

Wickard Shares View. Mr. Wallace's reported contention that 100 per cent of parity would give farmers a fair return, if other prices were controlled, was shared by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard. Mr. Wallace's successor in that post. But there still was no indication that President Roosevelt had expressed a view on the subject, even privately.

Senate Republican Leader McNary was said to be lending his support to a move looking toward revision of the bill along the lines championed by Mr. Wallace.

The question of wage controls, avoided by the House bill, also was under discussion in many quarters. But Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio said this presented an even more complex problem.

Senator Taft has proposed a substitute measure which would direct government agencies to attempt to stabilize pay rolls on a level comparable with other prices, but he expressed the opinion that it would be almost impossible to fix a definite ceiling on wages.

Price Freezing Solution. A price freezing solution has been offered, however, in a bill by Representative Gore, Democrat of Tennessee. Mr. Gore pointed to yesterday's decision of the President's Special Fact-finding Board which recommended wage increases for railway brotherhoods as bearing out his theory that the only way to prevent inflation was to freeze all prices as of a specific date.

The fact-finding board, recommending wage increases from 7 1/2 to 13 1/2 per cent, said that carefully coordinated control of prices, wages, profits, taxes, credit, investments and priorities was needed if inflation was to be avoided.

Mr. Gore, who has called the pending House bill "an engraved invitation to inflation," said he was convinced the only effective way to obtain such controls was through price freezing legislation.

Advertising 'Hokum' Should Be Cleaned Up, Arnold Tells Ad Club

Anti-Trust Unit Concerned With Conspiracies in Trade Restraint, He Says

By the Associated Press.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, in charge of the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department, told the Advertising Club of Washington yesterday that "advertisers would do well to clean their own house of 'hokum' in advertising."

Speaking at a luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel, Mr. Arnold said it would be "impossible for the Government to censor" hokum from advertising because "we all can't agree just what is hokum and what is not."

"Clearing out this hokum is primarily a task of organizations like yours," he said.

Concerned With 'Conspiracy.' Mr. Arnold said his division was not interested in prosecuting advertising as such, but only when it was involved in some conspiracy looking toward restraint of trade. He mentioned "full line forcing," where a manufacturer might force a retailer to carry not only an advertised product, but all his brands, and a "joint advertising of fixed prices by a number of people," which may be an unreasonable combination in restraint of trade.

He scored editorial attacks on his division and said most of them were "to curry favor with some big advertiser."

These attacks usually are more numerous after prosecution of big interests, he said, adding that he is accused of prosecuting "advertising" when in reality, he declared, he is prosecuting persons engaging in restraint of trade who happen to be big advertisers sometime.

"Some advertising," he said, is "wasteful," but pointed out that in the competitive system this is soon eliminated or else "you're going to go broke." That advertising which is "untruthful or unfair" is the problem of the Federal Trade Commission, he said.

Price Freezing Solution. A price freezing solution has been offered, however, in a bill by Representative Gore, Democrat of Tennessee. Mr. Gore pointed to yesterday's decision of the President's Special Fact-finding Board which recommended wage increases for railway brotherhoods as bearing out his theory that the only way to prevent inflation was to freeze all prices as of a specific date.

The fact-finding board, recommending wage increases from 7 1/2 to 13 1/2 per cent, said that carefully coordinated control of prices, wages, profits, taxes, credit, investments and priorities was needed if inflation was to be avoided.

Mr. Gore, who has called the pending House bill "an engraved invitation to inflation," said he was convinced the only effective way to obtain such controls was through price freezing legislation.

Wallace Is Reported Leader in Attempt To Cut Farm Parity

By the Associated Press.

Vice President Wallace was reported today to be taking a leading role in attempts to convince farm State legislators that they ought to accept 100 per cent parity as the ceiling for agricultural commodities in pending price control legislation.

Mr. Wallace was said to have enlisted the support of some conservative farm State members of Congress for pegging farm prices at the 1909-1914 purchasing power level established as parity for major crops.

The Vice President was represented as contending that farmers should not be placed in the position of appearing to be grabbing for all they could get.

The pending price control bill, approved by the House Banking Committee, would ban any farm price below 110 per cent of parity, the market price on October 1 or the average price in the 1919-1929 period, which ever was the highest.

Wickard Shares View. Mr. Wallace's reported contention that 100 per cent of parity would give farmers a fair return, if other prices were controlled, was shared by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard. Mr. Wallace's successor in that post. But there still was no indication that President Roosevelt had expressed a view on the subject, even privately.

Senate Republican Leader McNary was said to be lending his support to a move looking toward revision of the bill along the lines championed by Mr. Wallace.

The question of wage controls, avoided by the House bill, also was under discussion in many quarters. But Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio said this presented an even more complex problem.

Senator Taft has proposed a substitute measure which would direct government agencies to attempt to stabilize pay rolls on a level comparable with other prices, but he expressed the opinion that it would be almost impossible to fix a definite ceiling on wages.

Brookings Head Thinks Inflation Can Be Curbed

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, Washington, said today, "There is still reason for believing that the present inflation movement can be held within much narrower bounds than was the case during World War I."

In an address to the eighth annual convention of the American Finance Conference, Dr. Moulton said the current steady rise in prices had no compensating advantages from the standpoint of the national economy as a whole.

"During the war period," he said, "it results in profound shifts in the income of the various groups in society. For example, the farmers as a whole will have their incomes narrowed this coming season by nearly a third; on the other hand, at least as many city families living on fixed incomes and salaries, including clerical workers, school teachers, Government employees, Federal, State and local, will find their incomes shrinking by at least 20 per cent."

"Many groups of wage earners—unorganized, or not strategically situated with respect to the defense program—will

Parking Restrictions

The Board of Trade's opposition to a blanket ban on parking of automobiles in the central business section, as expressed yesterday before a special Senate subcommittee studying District parking problems, is based on the understandable belief of its members that such a drastic step should not be taken until adequate off-street parking facilities are available for motorists.

While there is merit to be found in these contentions, the plain fact remains that public highways primarily are designed to accommodate moving traffic, not for use as parking terminals; that moving traffic is being seriously handicapped in its rightful use of the highways by lines of cars parked at the curb, and that accident hazards have been multiplied by this condition.

Certainly the problem will not be solved by the inadvisable expedient of transferring parked automobiles from streets to the Mall or other areas dedicated for park or recreational purposes.

Samara

The Marxist variant of Samara is Kubyshev, but the older and more colorful name still clings to the city which is to be the temporary capital of the Soviet Union.

Samara probably was a "cross roads" settlement centuries ago, but the modern community dates back no further than 1886. It was "made to order" by command of the Emperor, Theodore I, or of his much more famous regent, Boris Godunov, an ardent colonizer, destined himself to succeed to the imperial dignity by election in 1598.

Rail Pay Decision

As was to be expected, the President's Emergency Fact-Finding Board has advanced a compromise proposal for settling the rail wage dispute. The unions demanded increases estimated by the carriers at $900,000,000 annually.

In defense of its recommendations, the board says: "The public would not be justified in expecting railroad labor to continue to work on the basis of its present wage rates in light of the wage increase trends in industry generally, the rising cost of living, and the importance of the services performed by railroad labor in this time of national emergency."

It is equally emphatic, however, in expressing belief that an increase now should be only a temporary addition to pay and not an advance in the basic wage rates "in view of the many uncertainties in national outlook." A time limit should be applied, the board continues, and the rail wage structure re-examined next year "in light of the existing economic conditions of the railroad industry and of the country."

In reporting to the President, the board proposes a 7 1/2 per cent increase for the five operating brotherhoods as compared to 30 per cent demanded; a nine-cent-per-hour increase, approximating 13 1/2 per cent, for the fourteen non-operating brotherhoods who want 30 cents more hourly, and one-week vacations for this latter group instead of the two weeks sought.

Comments Star Series on Geography and History.

Not since the World War he so many names of strange places cropped up in our newspapers and magazines and on the radio—Dakar, Rejavia, Karkov, Chungking, Trinidad, Tobruk and I am certain that this is a trend that will continue.

In this connection the newspapers have rendered a great service to education by printing maps, pictures and articles which help students understand world developments. Obviously, textbooks cannot keep up to minute in their description of events. Educators are therefore turning more and more to the use of newspapers as supplementary aids.

Now with the appearance of the series on geography and history prepared by the National Geographic Society and printed in The Star, another step has been taken. These articles giving the geographic and historical background should be most helpful in understanding both teachers and students to understand the world we are in and its possibilities when the forces of aggression are finally banished.

The position of the board outlined in its report, was taken for the following reasons: 1. Under the priorities law a hospital may be erected at this time but not a new home. This hospital is the most urgent need for improvement of the institution. Its erection, as urged by the board 10 or 12 years ago but failed of acceptance by the authorities.

2. The extensive repairs recommended will give a tolerable condition for the present. The hospital, by being away 200 of the inmates require the most attention, will relieve to a considerable extent the crowded condition at the home, which is one of its features.

3. With regard to "boarded up" inmates, the board intends to board up only those who will be more comfortable and happier with their families or intimate friends and who do not require much medical care and attention.

By the time the new hospital is erected and those inmates whose condition will be improved by removal have been placed with their families or friends, we will know the approximate size of the home required for this institution and will then make an intelligent recommendation as to the size and location of such a home.

The Board of Public Welfare has always been aware of the shortcomings of this institution and the needs show that every year since the organization of the board it has made recommendations for repairs and improvements which have failed to meet the approval of either the Commissioner or the Budget

Pact to Ban Closed-Shop Strikes Urged

2-Point Solution To Captive Mine Troubles Offered

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

The most important controversy in the history of labor unions is to be decided here this week by a tribunal of 11 men set up by the President.

The issue is the "closed shop." The collateral questions are many: Shall American workers be compelled to join unions? Shall they be forced to obey their union officers and pay dues or be dismissed by the union's order which hereafter would be imposed on the employer? Shall membership in a union supersede fitness for a job as a means of hiring or firing workers? Shall every union be given a monopoly so that no rival union can ever be chosen to represent the wishes of the workers?

David Lawrence.

The issue of "open shop" or "closed shop" has long been a source of trouble in American industry. In normal times, strikes and threats of strikes are used to attain the closed shop. Submitting to economic pressure, employers in some industries have accepted the closed shop, but it has yet to be proved that the system is as efficient with respect to individual performance as a system which depends wholly on the right of the employer to hire and fire whomever he considers efficient.

There are various kinds of closed shops. All closed shops, however, have this in common—the employer is given the burden of keeping the union intact. This is a strange contradiction because for years the employers were accused of dominating unions. Now it seems to be all right provided the employer becomes a party to the monopoly system which keeps the national unions and their locals in power.

Avoided in Last War.

The National Defense Mediation Board need not, of course, have tackled the problem. The National War Labor Board in the last war stepped in by refusing to let the national emergency be used to exploit closed shops or open shops. A system of freezing the status quo was introduced.

The present Defense Mediation Board has yielded to union pressure and has looked sympathetically on the idea of forcing employers to maintain the rolls of union memberships. For refusing to accept such a system, the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. recently had its plant at Kearney, N. J., seized by order of President Roosevelt.

Today the Mediation Board is face to face with a much more far-reaching aspect of the closed shop. John Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, wants the steel companies which own coal mines to accept the closed shop. He argues that all coal mines are on the closed shop. It was, of course, not obtained voluntarily but as a result of a series of strikes and threats of strikes.

The steel men realize that even in their own so-called captive mines, 95 per cent of the workers are members of Mr. Lewis' union. But to agree to the closed shop in one branch of the steel industry merely means opening the whole subject to strife in the rest of the industry.

Solution Suggested. When the Defense Mediation Board refused to make recommendations, Mr. Lewis ordered a strike. The President pleaded with Mr. Lewis to let the Mediation Board try again. It is now deliberating once more. It is officially admitted that the renewed hearings have not changed basic positions. Yet the controversy must be settled somehow.

This correspondent, after a study of all the issues, believes that there is only one way to settle the controversy on a basis which will conform to the national defense situation's requirements and yet avoid giving either labor or management a humiliating position. That method is as follows:

1. Since the miners in the steel company mines are 95 per cent unionized, the closed shop could be granted for all coal mines only.

2. The award would be made on the condition that both the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. agree in a statement to the President that neither organization will sanction another strike or threat of a strike during the present national emergency if the strike has for its object the attainment of the closed shop.

Peace Dubious Otherwise. The National Defense Mediation Board may develop such a formula. If it rejected the closed shop, it would not mean peace among labor unions. If it granted the closed shops unconditionally, the morals of the employers would be seriously impaired and labor difficulties would not diminish. Disunity would be intensified.

Would Mr. John Lewis accept the conditions set forth above? If the board made such a recommendation and the President concurred, it would not take five days for the Senate and House to write the board's recommendation into law stating that on and after a certain date no more closed shops would be permitted. The plan would remove the issue from the defense situation and narrow all disputes hereafter to matters of wages and working conditions, most all of which are amenable to conciliation, mediation or arbitration. New York State Democrats Still Intact For 1942 Elections Despite O'Dwyer Defeat

By GOULD LINCOLN.

New York Democrats in Congress are making the best of the situation arising out of the reelection of Mayor La Guardia for a third term, over their candidate, District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn. As some of them see it, the party is left intact for the congressional and gubernatorial campaign next year, notwithstanding Mr. O'Dwyer's defeat on Tuesday. All of the Democratic leaders in the State, with the exception of President Roosevelt, backed Mr. O'Dwyer. They acted wholly together, and should be in shape to go to battle for a gubernatorial candidate next year. Presumably the candidate will be in sympathy with the President's foreign and domestic policies. The President will back the candidate so selected. This will bring the whole party as strongly together as it was in 1938, when Gov. Lehman was re-elected. That election took place the year following a La Guardia victory in New York City under much the same circumstances as the election just completed.

What will be the attitude of Mayor La Guardia? For example, will he support, and endeavor to have the American-Labor Party support, Gov. Lehman if he runs for another term in Albany? Gov. Lehman took a prominent part in the effort to defeat Mr. La Guardia. It was the Governor to whom the Mayor referred in the hot moments of the campaign now closed as a double-crosser and a "goniff," a low thief in Jewish language. The Governor, replying, declared that Mr. La Guardia had shown himself unfit to be Mayor of New York by his charge against him and the Court of Appeals, of which Irving Lehman, the Governor's brother, is chief judge.

Hope La Guardia Will Help Out.

The Democrats hope Mr. La Guardia will see the light and support their gubernatorial candidate—particularly if he should be a firm friend of the President and his policies, as Gov. Lehman surely is. It was recalled that Mr. La Guardia did not go to the aid of Thomas E. Dewey, his own running mate in the city election of 1937, when Mr. Dewey made his race for Governor against Gov. Lehman in 1938. The American Labor Party lined up for Gov. Lehman that year, too.

Gov. Lehman may or may not be a candidate to succeed himself. If he is not, then what Democrats here hope for is the nomination of another liberal Democrat, in hearty sympathy with the President's policies. The Governor is believed to have an ambition to come to the Senate. In fact, he had that desire in 1938, and would have been pleased with the senatorial nomination which he himself stood for re-election as Governor. Gov. Lehman was regarded as the strongest possible candidate the Democrats could put forward that year against Mr. Dewey, and every effort was made to persuade him to run. He won from Mr. Dewey by less than 60,000 votes.

There will be no senatorial vacancy for Gov. Lehman to aspire to next year. Senator Wagner does not come up for re-election until 1944, and Senator Mead in 1946. Senator Wagner has been in ill health for months. He has shown much improvement, however, and there is no indication whatever he will retire from the Upper House. Senator Mead, although some of his friends would like to see him run for Governor, wants to remain in the Senate. It looks, therefore, as if Gov. Lehman, if he is to be a candidate for public office, must run again for his present post. He might decline to do so, and retire to private life. In that event the Democrats would be looking around for a candidate for Governor.

Farley Still Boomed.

Talk crops up now and then about "Jim" Farley for Governor. He has told friends he has no desire to be a candidate for Governor, that he prefers to stay in business where he is getting along well. He is still Democratic State chairman. Incidentally, he was most outspoken against Mayor La Guardia in the recent bitter mayoralty campaign. What he said about the Mayor was almost as bad as what the Mayor said about his opponents. If Mr. Farley had the gubernatorial nomination it would make no hit with Mr. La Guardia, and it would sit even less well with President Roosevelt. The President has yet to forgive Mr. Farley for what he did in the 1940 Democratic National Convention, when Mr. Farley insisted upon having his name placed in nomination for President—against Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Farley is no believer in third terms.

National Chairman "Ed" Flynn, the boss of the Bronx, will stick to his post, despite the fact that he went all-out for the election of Mr. O'Dwyer, and the President came out for Mr. La Guardia. Mr. Flynn believes in the two-party system for this country, and the President's way of tapping independent candidates on the back—as he did for Mr. La Guardia in New York, Mr. La Follette in Wisconsin, Senator Norris in Nebraska and Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota, does not appeal to Mr. Flynn. However, Mr. Flynn also believes in the Democratic party. Mr. Roosevelt is very largely the Democratic party of today. So Mr. Flynn will stick. He had hoped the President would see his way clear to remaining silent in the New York mayoralty campaign. As it happened, if the President had remained silent, the comparatively narrow margin of Mr. La Guardia's victory might have been considerably less, or even wiped out.

Interesting Also in 1944.

This New York Democratic situation will continue to be interesting, not only in 1942 but also in 1944. The New York delegation to Democratic National Conventions has always been potent. Even now there is talk about President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

There is grave disappointment among New York City Democrats in Congress over the defeat of Mr. O'Dwyer for Mayor. After eight long years of the La Guardia administration, the patronage in city government has been mighty slim, in fact nonexistent. They had hoped to take over control of the city, and all the jobs. That they came so near and yet failed, does not tend to make them feel any better toward Mr. Roosevelt and those New Dealers who went to the aid of Mr. La Guardia. But they, like Mr. Flynn, will have to take it.

Soviet Fleet Faces Action

Nazis Likely to Meet Russian Naval Resistance In Attempt to Force Black Sea Passage

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT.

The German operations in the Crimea seem directed toward two principal objectives: First, the capture or neutralization of the main Russian naval base at Sevastopol, and second, an advance along the Isthmus of Kerch with a possible view to forcing a passage of the Kerch Strait over to the mainland of the North Caucasian area.

The results Maj. G. Fielding Eliot, expected from the first objective are concerned with the naval command of the Black Sea.

It is possible, though not certain, that the Germans can, once in possession of the Crimea, proceed from the air convoy proceeding to ports on the Sea of Azov, some of which are now in their possession. They would, however, need to hold both sides of the narrow Kerch Strait for this purpose.

It is to be expected that the Russians will make a strong defense on the narrow Kerch peninsula. Their position there will have a narrow front which ordinarily they might expect to hold for some time, however, since the Germans are already on the north shore of the Sea of Azov, it is probable that they have assembled small craft sufficient to enable them to attack the Russians in flank, and barring very strong Russian air defense, they may be able to turn the Russian position on the Kerch peninsula. Their next task would be to force their way across the Kerch Strait to the mainland on the farther side.

This will doubtless, if attempted, prove a much more formidable operation. The Russian fleet will come into play, operating from Novorossiisk, about 85 miles away; the Russian air force should be able to give the ships sufficient air support so that the losses of Crete will not be repeated. Marshall Semeon Timoshenko is reported massing strong defense forces on the mainland side of the strait, for a determined defense. The Germans, for their part, will doubtless try to use parachutists and air-borne infantry, as well as their small craft on the Sea of Azov, to effect a foothold on the farther shore.

Novorossiisk Is Objective.

Their ultimate objective here would be the port of Novorossiisk itself. This port if they can get it, would form an enormously valuable supply base for Russian operations in the North Caucasian area, and once the Germans establish themselves firmly at Novorossiisk they will be in position to turn the Russian position along the Don at Rostov and to assail the defenders of that city from the rear. By building up a great advance depot at Novorossiisk they will, if they can continue to supply that port by sea, have a base from which they can develop offensives directed against the North Caucasian oil fields at Malkop and Grosny, and against the passes of the Caucasus mountains farther south. Their supply difficulties, now the most hampering factor in their eastward progress along the shore of the Black Sea, would be largely solved.

For all of these reasons, a determined defense of the Kerch Strait is to be expected, and there are many factors which operate in favor of the Russians as long as they can keep their fleet active in the area, and can maintain anything like equality in the air. Their greatest difficulty will probably be their inability to effect proper repairs to injured warships; the Germans may be expected to concentrate everything they have in the way of submarine and motor-torpedo-boats in the area, with instructions to damage the heavy Russian ships at all costs.

Not Yet Lost.

Of course, Sevastopol is not yet lost. The German communiques, which assert that the Russian forces have been split into two parts and driven toward the sea, merely indicate that the Russians have done exactly what might have been expected once the Percep lines were forced; the part of their Crimean army destined for the immediate defense of Sevastopol fell back toward that fortress, the rest retraced southward to take up new defense lines on the Kerch peninsula. How long the naval base can be protected against German heavy artillery is merely a question of how long the Russian defenders can prevent the Germans from gaining battery positions within comfortable range of the dockyard. This may perhaps already have been accomplished, as the Germans claim. German claims of a new Dunkerque seem oddly familiar.

But one rather wonders at this German fondness for that particular comparison. If this writer were a German, the name of Dunkerque would begin to have rather an ominous ring. It would suggest that somewhere, somehow, every German offensive comes at last to the sea—and there stops dead. There was once a conqueror of Europe named Napoleon Bonaparte who faced a similar situation—and when he crossed the sea at last it was to St. Helena.

This Changing World

Kurusu Expected to Make 'Realistic' Offers To U. S. in Final Effort at Peace

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The State Department is praying, fervently that the Russian armies not only hold their lines intact during the next few weeks, but that they also win a few victories against the Nazis and their allies. Some kind of Soviet success would be of paramount importance in the forthcoming direct negotiations between the United States and Japan.

Japan's special ambassador to the United States, Saburo Kurusu, is on his way to discuss "practical" matters of Japanese-American relations with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull. Kurusu is one of Japan's outstanding diplomats, and came into the limelight when he negotiated the treaty with Germany and Italy which brought Japan into the Axis in September, 1940. Because of this he is regarded by many as an ardent admirer of Adolf Hitler and the system which the Fuehrer plans for the world. This is not entirely true, however. Those who know Kurusu regard him as merely a 100 per cent Japanese with no more admiration for totalitarianism than for democracy. If he leans at all toward totalitarianism it is because he believes it is the best system for winning a war, and Japan has been at war in China for more than 10 years.

But for peacetime Kurusu leans equally toward democracy. His chief interest is the advancement and prosperity of his own country, and he favors whichever system, in peace or war, that serves to advance Japan. He is reported to have bluntly told a prominent Nazi in Berlin that he would compromise with the devil himself if he could help Japan become what every Japanese wants her to be.

Tokio Taking Long View. Unquestionably the future attitude of the statesmen in Tokio will depend almost wholly on the success or failure of the Nazi armies. The consensus in Washington is that the Japanese do not put too much stock in the momentary spectacular Nazi victories, but take a long view based on careful analysis of Hitler's chances of ultimate victory. The Japanese high command is watching the Russian-German war from two angles: How badly beaten the Russians now are, and how great are the chances of final Allied victory. If Japan were convinced that the armed forces of the U. S. S. R. are hopelessly defeated it would go into Siberia immediately to round out the Japanese Empire in Northern Asia. Some Japanese policymakers believe this could be done without entangling in a war with the United States, and Kurusu will carefully explore this possibility during his 10-day stay in Washington.

Japanese concern over the chances of the western democracies finally winning the war is connected with the possibility of the democracies accepting a lulling peace. A final military victory for the Axis depends largely on how quickly the Reich can release its striking forces from Russia to hurl them against the Near East. Should Russia collapse in the next few weeks things will look bad for the Allies, for Hitler would not have to worry about the new army which the Soviet is organizing for the defense of Moscow and Rostov. He will leave a "curtain" on an established front in the Soviet Union and throw everything he has against the British in the Near East and North Africa.

Fear U. S. in Pacific.

The Japanese don't know yet what to make of the war situation. Some high-ranking military men believe the Nazis cannot be defeated, but even these extremists have approved the mission of Kurusu—even if such a mission does no more than gain time for Japan. Other admirals and generals are inclined to believe Britain will not be able to hold out, but they think the United States is too powerful in the Pacific to be defeated by Japan. Hence it would be risky for Nippon to engage this country in war. They believe America wants to avoid a clash in the Pacific. Hence, if by diplomatic negotiations the American Government could be induced to adopt a non-committal attitude toward an eventual invasion of Siberia this would work to the advantage of Japan. Washington diplomatic circles believe Kurusu will offer some cold-blooded "trading" suggestions as a basis for improving Japanese-American relations. He was not empowered to sign anything, but was given wide powers for negotiation. He is reported to be authorized by Gen. Hideki Tojo, the Japanese Premier, to present to the administration some "realistic" offers—the last Japan will make in this country. The State Department is willing to receive Japan's special envoy with all the regard due a peace emissary. Secretary Hull and Kurusu will explore all possibilities for an understanding between the two countries, but the negotiations will depend largely on power politics, and the battles being fought thousands of miles from Washington will have a determining influence on whether there is going to be a shooting war in the Pacific or whether there will be peace.

WASO GERMAN WAR? KURUSU'S MESSAGE

McLemore

Wishes Hitler Could See Defense Industry

By HENRY McLEMORE. BUFFALO, N. Y.—This is my first day in Buffalo and already I wish Adolf Hitler were with me. He wouldn't like any part of Buffalo.

Henry McLemore.

It is a city that would make him completely miserable. It throbs with defense activity. The smoke you see to your right comes from chimneys of a plant turning out machine guns. The stream of cars moving to your left is carrying night-shift workers to an airplane factory. The flares you see against the sky in the north come from steel mills, turning out the plate for tanks and guns.

Within the space of a few months Buffalo's industries have been geared to production for the battlefields. A shock absorber plant now deals in guns. A windshield wiper factory turns out instruments to guide pilots home after bombings of the invasion coast of France.

I wished particularly for Hitler and Mussolini when I visited the Curtiss Wright Co. Last April men and machines moved onto a mud-soaked field and started the construction of a building whose blueprints called for 1,196,000 square feet in working space. Exactly 193 days later that vast building was completed and the manufacture of fighter ships was begun.

I saw the plant in operation today. With commendable showmanship a Curtiss Wright official led me through ordinary office building halls and without any words of buildup, opened a heavy door and walked me straight onto a balcony. The sight that greeted me was terrific.

It had the impact of a Louis fist on the chin. Below us on a working floor that spread four acres was the gigantic cradle of the Curtiss Wright P-40, one of the finest fighting ships in the world. The din was overpowering. Automatic hammers sang their support of the woodpecker. Drills screamed. Seven thousand men—the day shift—moved efficiently through the inferno. Fountains sprayed paint. As far as the eye could see there were airplanes and parts of airplanes. The strange camouflage of the British blended with the olive drab of the U. S. Army paint job. Row after row of fuselages and engines and wings. Some with the circle insignia of the British. Some with the star of this country's air force. In this corner old and knowing men worked at complicated machines, turning out precision tools for the use of the workmen a few aisles away. Across the way from the old and knowing men youngsters were going to school to learn how to become master craftsmen.

Overhead giant cranes rolled on noiseless tracks to pick up finished jobs and carry them to the testing hangars. Test pilots strolled about, parachutes strapped to their backs. One this line machine guns were fitted into wings. On another line propellers were fitted to the noses of planes and on still another gasoline tanks were slipped into place, instrument panels fastened, and armor plate bolted down.

I walked down from the balcony and wandered about the unbelievably vast plant. Overhead fluorescent lights, which are never turned out, cast their weird glare. Twenty-four hours a day workmen come and go. And off the lines roll machines that will fly the skies of Europe and challenge the might of the dictators.

One hears so much of the efficiency of the dictator nations. A democracy, where men are free, has no chance to compete on an equal footing. Propaganda, pure and simple. Here in Buffalo, a city that next to New York must be the nearest thing to a melting pot of the world, free men have answered the challenge of the slave labor that must work without expression.

In seven years of planning, Germany never produced a factory more efficient than the Curtiss Wright plant in Buffalo. Everything that goes into a fighting ship is at the finger tips of the workmen. Everything for the comfort of the workmen is at the finger tips, too. A complete hospital. Two cafeterias. A sports program. Locker rooms which provide a locker (equipped with combination lock) for every worker.

And—this above all—the American flag flying above every one of the assembly lines. The flags were not bought by the company officials, nor were they hung on orders from the Government. The flags were bought by money voluntarily contributed by workmen—nickels, dimes and quarters from the men who are keeping 'em rolling.

Hitler and Mussolini said we came in too late. My first day in Buffalo has convinced me they spoke too soon. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Kurusu Mission Seen As Effort to Prevent U. S. War in Pacific

Special Envoy Believed Bringing Terms for Withdrawal From China

The significance of Tokio's action in sending Saburo Kurusu as a special envoy here is discussed by a distinguished Japanese author and journalist, who has lived in the United States since 1910.

By K. K. KAWAKAMI. The appointment of Saburo Kurusu as a special Japanese envoy to Washington at this time is of considerable significance.

As Ambassador to Germany a year ago, Mr. Kurusu signed Japan's alliance treaty with the Axis, but it is common knowledge that he had taken little part in the preceding negotiations and the unpalatable instrument was forced down his unwilling throat.

The nature of Mr. Kurusu's mission to Washington can only be surmised. When Prince Fumimaro Kono resigned the premiership a month ago he virtually said to the Japanese militarists: "I have done my best to improve our relations with America. If you think you can do better try it."

But Prince Kono's sense of responsibility did not permit him to surrender the premiership to the military extremists. Instead he saw to it that a comparatively moderate militarist was chosen as his successor. The new Premier, Gen. Hideki Tojo, is no reckless adventurer. There is little doubt that he will strive to forestall war in the Pacific, but he has said that Japan cannot indefinitely endure the present unsatisfactory relations with America and that there must be a time limit to negotiations between Tokio and Washington.

It is quite possible that Ambassador Kurusu is coming to Washington with instructions specifying Japan's possible maximum concessions and envisaging consummation of conversations with American authorities within a reasonable time on the basis of such concessions.

What concessions Japan is prepared to make is anybody's guess. The chief obstacle to Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura's protracted talks with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull has been the Chinese situation. Japan, including the army itself, is weary of the four-year-old war with China and is anxious to liquidate the affair even at considerable sacrifice. But the sacrifice she can make must be one which will not cause serious internal repercussions.

If, for instance, Japan were to carry out an immediate unconditional evacuation of China, no stable Japanese cabinet could withstand the discontent which such precipitate action would cause among the populace, who have been told about Japan's military successes.

Might Cease Fighting. If, on the contrary, military evacuation is to be a gradual process depending upon negotiations among Tokio, Chungking and Nanking, then Japan will probably not only countenance it, but pending negotiations, may even cease military operations throughout China, providing Chiang Kai-shek will do likewise.

The key to such negotiations is America. If the United States

WOMEN'S PART IN DEFENSE To Be Discussed Here. The question of how women can do their part in national defense will be up for discussion at a conference here Saturday. Presidents of leading women's national organizations and women members of State defense councils have been invited to meet with Miss Eloise Davidson, assistant director in charge of women's activities in the Office of Civilian Defense. The meetings will be held in rooms adjacent to the Departmental Auditorium. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant civilian defense director, will address the group. Mrs. Roosevelt recently said that women volunteer their services in the O. C. D.'s program would do so as individuals rather than as members of an organization. Mrs. Roosevelt holds that it is the job of the group to stimulate the interest of the organizations' members in civilian defense. How this is to be accomplished will probably be discussed from the floor. In the afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt will receive the group at tea at the White House.

Nazi Probe Witness Advised to Testify; Asks to See Counsel

Scribner's Magazine Official Gets New Lawyer After First One Quits

Advised by Justice James W. Morris to return to the grand jury investigating Nazi activities and search her memory for the answers to more questions, Miss Bessie Feagin, magazine promotion manager, in a surprise move today asked the court for more time to confer with new counsel and was ordered to return to court later in the day.

Miss Feagin is charged by Federal Prosecutor William Power Maloney of the Justice Department with being evasive in her answers to the grand jury. She appeared in court yesterday and was given until today to confer with counsel.

Her counsel, Nicholas Chiascione, withdrew after reporting she had conferred at length with his client and advised her concerning all the laws involved.

Justice Morris spent several minutes outlining to Miss Feagin the duties of a grand jury witness, then advised her to go back to continue her testimony. She insisted she wanted more time and was given until 2 p.m.

Prosecutor Maloney charged that Miss Feagin had failed to recall when questioned about a certain mailing list furnished to Scribner's Commentator, of which she was promotion manager. The names had been supplied to Scribner's, Mr. Maloney said, by former Senator Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia; Charles A. Lindbergh, Representative Fish, Republican, of New York; the Social Justice Organization of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana; the America First Committee, and other sources.

The official reporter for the grand jury was called to the witness stand, and read extensively from Miss Feagin's testimony.

Her testimony revealed that George T. Eggleston, editor, and Douglas M. Stewart, publisher of the magazine, had come here and conferred with her about her testimony.

It is understood Mr. Eggleston and Mr. Stewart may be questioned by the grand jury.

The mailing list was said by the prosecution to contain about 200,000 names. The magazine, according to Government contention, cannot be purchased on newsstands, but is mailed directly to subscribers.

Children Sleep Through Party On Barney House Anniversary

Hundreds of Visitors Inspect Facilities And Watch Women Volunteers at Work

Seventeen children of cradle age slept yesterday on the second floor of the Barney Neighborhood House through the biggest celebration the Community Chest-supported agency has had in 40 years.

They were the charges who daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. are tended there while their mothers go out to work for a living. There could be three or four times as many if the house were large enough.

While these youngsters lay silently side by side in their afternoon siesta, hundreds of persons passed through adjoining rooms on open-house tours arranged as part of the program for the 40th anniversary observance of the Neighborhood House. In the ancient quarters, built at 470 N. street S.W. in 1795, they saw many things to indicate the industry of a settlement dedicated to the idea that people are happiest when their hands are busiest.

They saw items of clay, paper and metal prepared by children from 9 to 14 years of age under the direction of Miss Ruth De Lanoy.

Girls, Too, Learn Carpentry.

They saw the carpenter shop where B. Rost, director, has found that many of the 22 young girls who make up his classes have almost as much of a knack for using their hands as the 55 boys.

They saw the rooms in which are taught sewing, block printing, music, dancing and weaving. "Neighborhood House is very proud of its weaving," explains Miss Margaret B. Merrill, head resident.

They saw looms on which worked the first Girl Scouts in the Nation to earn merit badges for weaving. One of them a loom built during the 17th century and renovated after it had been found in a chicken yard in West Virginia.

They saw the dining room in which the youngsters asleep in the next room are fed a balanced diet. Yesterday it was a luncheon of broiled liver and bacon, creamed carrots, stew, bread, butter, baked apples, cookies and milk.

They saw at work many of the women volunteers who daily do everything from sewing to tending infants and without whom Miss Merrill frankly declares "we couldn't carry on our work." The registry at Neighborhood House lists as many as 1,000 names.

Some few went to the neighborhood center's newest service, the

Chrysanthemum Exhibit Now Open at Night

As long as the blooms last, the show will be open from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily, except Saturday and Sunday, when the doors will close at 4 p.m.

The night opening was arranged by William A. Frederick, landscape architect of the Capitol Grounds, so that Government workers might have an opportunity to see the blooms.

There are more than 8,000 plants in the show, in more than 350 varieties.

Moscow Air Raid Shelters Are Well Planned But Can't Accommodate Entire Population

 By RALPH INGERSOLL.
 When I was in Moscow the people were not using their shelters much. There were only four air raids in three weeks and I saw no bombs dropped. Maybe the effectiveness of the air-raid shelters in Moscow will still remain an academic subject. Because while the Germans say they are bombing Moscow daily now I am not sure I believe them. They reported the city in flames when I was there and yet I never saw even a fire bomb dropped. But if the blitz has really begun Moscow's shelters are worth thinking about.
 I spent a day going through them. They were much more orderly than London's. I doubt if they were much safer. The foundations in Moscow are not deep. And the characteristic shelter is in a shallow basement with its ceiling several feet above the street level, so that there are windows high up in one wall through which one could look at the feet of the people passing on the street.
 In what the Moscow Soviet calls its "bombproof" shelters these windows are sandbagged. There are three kinds of shelters in Moscow—the "bombproof" ones, trench shelters in parks and gasproofs are also in basements. In gasproof shelters the little windows are fitted with steel hatches which can be removed by day to air the shelter.

Began Before War.
 Work on making the city safe against air raids began long before the war. With characteristic thoroughness and attention to detail, Soviet officials studied the problem in London and drew up specifications for an ambitious program. It was recognized that the entire city could not be put far underground but almost everything else was provided for on paper.
 In the shelters I inspected these plans had been carried out with extraordinary thoroughness. The only fault I could find was with sleeping accommodations. There were none except in the basements under hospitals. If the raids are long the people of Moscow will find it hard to get enough sleep. They must sit packed together on wooden benches, as the Chinese sit in the shelters in Chungking.
 I spent eight hours a day in such shelters in Chungking and it was an exhausting experience. The reason the Moscow Soviet has not provided beds is probably that there is no space for them.
 I never saw Moscow's shelters when they were full because, although I kept getting the necessary special permission, the Germans would never come on the nights when I had the right papers.

Discount Soviet Claims.
 But it doesn't take a very brilliant mathematician to figure how jammed they must be for above these basements rise five and six story buildings, in which every room houses at least one family—the average I think is one family and a third. It is on such reasoning that neutral observers discount the Moscow Soviet's claims that it can shelter 100 per cent of its population. The shallowness of their cellars and lack of space in them are the natural limitations which the authorities have to work with. Given their problem, they have done amazingly well with it.
 These were the complaints about the first shelters used in London—before things were in hand.
 That they had inadequate toilet facilities or none.
 That they lacked running water. That they were badly ventilated.
 That they lacked first-aid facilities.
 That they were too often cold and damp.
 That the people had to lie or sit on the floor.
 That in many shelters nothing had been done to reinforce the ceilings and much could have been done with special shoring, sandbagging, etc.

Found Well Ventilated.
 The Moscow shelters I saw get a clean bill of health on all these counts. I found them immaculately clean, well ventilated, universally provided with toilet facilities and running water, with much new reinforcing evident.
 The most distinctive feature of the Moscow shelter system is the gasproof shelter I have mentioned above. If gas comes to London, the British will rely on their masks. If gas comes to Moscow—and most Soviet officials think it will—the Muscovites plan to rely on mass shelter from gas. That is, individuals are not equipped with masks; the administration's energies go into building shelters in which whole groups will be hermetically sealed and supplied with carefully filtered air. These gasproof shelters differ from the other "bombproof" in their heavy, close-fitting doors. The seal is accomplished by strips of rubber countersunk in the door where it fits against the jamb. All cracks are stopped up and the windows, as I have said, are covered with steel hatches.
Built in 1939.
 The gas filters are about as big as a General Electric oil-burning furnace. They are made of cast iron and a pump sucks air into the filter boiler and discharges the purified air through overhead ducts. They are manufactured in a factory near Moscow and I noted on one that it was built in 1939. The Soviet authorities admit that there are not enough of them to go around, but said they were getting deliveries of new equipment daily.
 The British experts I have talked to since tell me that they considered mass protection against gas and passed it up as not practical. They do not think the Soviet filters will work against all kinds of gases. There is also, of course, the risk that minor bomb damage will break the hermetic sealing. But the Moscow Soviet is very confident.

 After this calendar year the superintendent of schools may not have his pay check made out to "F. W. Ballou," he told the Board of Education yesterday. In the interest of more complete identification District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton wants it "Frank W. Ballou."
 Dr. Ballou said the change was being made in the name records of all school employees at Mr. Pilkerton's request.

Indecent Exposure Case Brings Fines of $1,250

Thurston L. Brooks, 27, colored, 1200 block of Thirty-third street N.W., yesterday was sentenced by Judge George D. Neilson in Police Court to pay fines totaling $1,250 or serve a total of five years as the result of his conviction on five indecent exposure charges.
 Judge Neilson imposed the maximum penalty of a $250 fine in each of the five cases. In default of the fine in each case, the sentence called for a year in jail.
 A police report in the hands of Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton D. Korman, who prosecuted the cases against Brooks, showed the defendant had been convicted here twice before on indecent exposure charges and that he also had been found guilty twice in North Carolina as a peeping tom.

 Combine Spry, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream well. (My, but Spry creams quick and easy!) Add eggs singly, beating well after each addition. Sift baking powder with flour 3 times. Add to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, mixing after each addition until smooth.
 Divide batter into two parts. Add chocolate and water to 1/2 of batter. Add orange rind to remaining 1/2 of batter. Drop by tablespoons in 10 x 10 x 2-inch Sprycoted pan, alternating orange and chocolate batters. Run spatula through the batter several times to marble. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Spread Golden Frosting on top and sides of cake.
Golden Frosting
 2 tablespoons Spry 2 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
 1 tablespoon butter 1/2 cup milk
 1/4 teaspoon salt 4 tablespoons scalded milk (about)
 Blend Spry, butter, orange rind and salt. Beat in 1/4 cup sugar. Add hot milk, alternately with remaining sugar, beating well after each addition. Add only enough milk to make a nice spreading consistency. See how Spry lets you get the FULL, rich, fruity orange flavor—how creamy-smooth it makes the frosting.

Now Another Cronin Novel Becomes a Superb Movie

'The Stars Look Down' a Dramatic, Suspense-Filled Item Produced By a Superb English Cast

By JAY CARMODY.

It was a fortunate day for the movies when Dr. A. J. Cronin angrily flung aside his stethoscope and picked up his typewriter to condemn flaws in the social setup. Out of the doctor's ducegen has come some of the most dramatic, profoundly human material the movies ever laid a lens on. It has happened again, and to splendid effect in the case of the latest Cronin best-seller, "The Stars Look Down." Directed by the sensational Carol Reed and with a cast headed by Margaret Lockwood, Michael Redgrave and Emlyn Williams, it opened at the Little Theater last night for what seems safely predictable. Otherwise those who clamor for better movies will have been guilty of betraying both themselves and those who collaborated in this English production of "The Stars Look Down."

Director Reed, the fellow who put the suspense in "Night Train," manages to make that quality a profound element of the entertainment in his latest film despite a very different theme.

In "The Stars Look Down," director and author are considering humanity in terms of the struggle between those who have and the have-nots. Their hero (Redgrave) is a young miner, descendant of a line of men who found not merely a livelihood in their craft, but also a source of pride in accomplishment and a source of wisdom. It is the young man's notion that the lives of his kind are worthy of greater protection, a wider understanding. To achieve it for them, he seeks an education at Oxford, the better to equip himself for a career in politics where he can work for the betterment of working conditions and the relations between employer and employe.

The accent of the story is upon the young man, the social significance of his personal drama made secondary. The honesty of Dr. Cronin is reflected in the circumstance that both his hero and the subordinate characters are always people of human proportions. His hero can be guilty of serious lapses, one villain eventually dies a heroic death. Both are distinctly to the advantage of "The Stars Look Down."

The conflict in which these dramatic humans are involved, centers in the safety of Scupper's Flats, the shaft in which the young miners father, brother and neighbors find their livelihood. The mine owner says there is no hazard, the young miner and his father know that one day a blast of dynamite will unleash a torrent of water that will flood the labyrinthian shaft.

The race between them, a taut and suspenseful thing, is to see whether the mine owner can get out all the coal before the flood or the young miner can get his ex-fellow workers out before it.

Reed's direction manages to get the full sense of terror out of the contest, and make a fine, terrifying spectacle of its climax.

Redgrave, a reformed newspaperman-playwright, gives a splendid performance in the role of the earnest young man who is strong enough to set himself to high social, selfless goal and yet weak enough to be diverted from it by a scheming little wench who should have married a race track tout instead of a gentle idealist. It is rather odd to find Miss Lockwood, usually the gentle, lovely heroine, playing the latter part but she is versatile enough actress to make it a thing of high and constant conviction.

The lesser characters are equally well turned. Standing out among them is the Emlyn Williams portrait of a moralless young man on the make for money and its attendant evils; of Edward Rigby as the gentle, determined, philosophic father of the hero; of Allan Jeaves as the tormented mine owner torn between a lust for money and a sense of decency which makes him fear for the lives of his employe; of Nancy Price as the proud, frozen faced mother of the mining Fenwicks. Each makes his role a memorable segment of a deeply moving, tense screen drama.

Saroyan note, culled from Variety in the form of a Saroyan telegram to a long ignored letter writer: "Sorry to make you wait. Have been busy working on seven new plays. They're all four star. It sort of gives a critic that unnecessary feeling."

Civic Group Stages Play By Ardrey

His 'Thunder Rock' Continues Season At Wardman Park

By HARRY MACARTHUR.

Most dramatists driven to their typewriters by the explosion of the major influence on life today, the second world war, have discovered themselves beating faint and futile drums. Either their fabricated drama has been overwhelmed by the real drama it has suggested or their arguments have lacked in force.

Being called mere reiteration by those in agreement and just so much propaganda by those in disagreement. This is one reason to thank the Washington Civic Theater for bringing us Robert Ardrey's "Thunder Rock," a brief and moving drama which the group is acting excellently the remainder of this week and the latter half of the two weeks to follow, at the Wardman Park Theater.

Mr. Ardrey, in "Thunder Rock," has a point to make about life today and he makes it. The point he makes, of course, is one that might be said to be made in any crisis of civilization: it was true when Christian martyrs faced the Roman arenas and it will be true when mankind is fighting its battle against some future scourge arisen in the path of hope and progress. Mr. Ardrey's "Thunder Rock," you see, is about today but it is not anti-Nazi in defense of democracy; rather it is anti-escapist, in defense of hope for the future.

The central figure of "Thunder Rock" is a disillusioned newspaperman, who has watched from the sidelines the turmoil piled up in the world, until it is coming that the end of civilization is near, if not immediately at hand. To prove him wrong, Mr. Ardrey has sent his Charleston to a deserted lighthouse in Lake Michigan to let him meet there, in his mind, of course, a handful of the ghosts of travelers shipwrecked in 1849.

They, too, are disillusioned, expecting the end of progress, of hope. The high point in man's hope, and it has been declining ever since, was 1849 years ago, says one. The last great hope, says another, was the hope in 1827, he says. A doctor, he has abandoned his search for an anaesthesia as pointless.

This all is fanciful, the conjuring up of spirits from the past in the stone-walled parlor of a Lake Michigan lighthouse, but it is effectively dramatic. The past teaches its lesson for the future and Mr. Ardrey's escapist returns to the battle.

The cast Director Leon Askin has guided through the paces of "Thunder Rock" is an admirably capable one. Marvin Beers is excellent in the leading role and no lesser word can be applied to the performances of Cort Steen, Charles Shoemaker, Lawrence Beckerman, Mary Jo Day, Geneva Helm and Gail Benedict. And Henry C. Pearson's one set is as simply effective as any setting you ever saw.

Hollywood Saves Money By Still Another Racket

This One Provides Studio Publicity Departments With Professional Models at Cut Rates

By IRA WOLFERT. HOLLYWOOD.

The inside, also the low-down on various and sundry oddments and oddments connected with movie-making:

From a well-known director: "There's a whole flood of beautiful models out here, signed up by different studios on $50-a-week and $75-a-week contracts. It's a racket."

"Every time a girl gets up into the big leagues in the model racket in New York where she makes $150 or $200 a week, a studio offers her a chance to break into the movies at $50 a week. If she's smart she holds out and gets $75 a week."

"Then she comes out here and is used in leg art for publicity, cutting turkeys for Thanksgiving, standing under Christmas trees for Christmas, rub-a-dub-dubbing a tub for National Laundry Week and so forth. What this means is that the studio publicity department is getting a $200 model to work for $50 a week. Ask any girl and she'll tell you. It's a racket."

We asked two—Jinx Falkenburg and Kay Aldridge. They said, "Yes, but, if we click in pictures, the $200 we used to get in New York will just pay for the buttons on our fur coat of the week."

From a promotion department specialist: "We have to have a playboy on our pay roll. Every studio has to have one or two playboys working for it—a guy who runs around the night clubs and knows the leading role and no lesser word can be applied to the performances of Cort Steen, Charles Shoemaker, Lawrence Beckerman, Mary Jo Day, Geneva Helm and Gail Benedict. And Henry C. Pearson's one set is as simply effective as any setting you ever saw."

From Britain

Terry Carr, managing director of United Artists in England, cables that the first print of "Ships With Wings" will arrive in the United States within the next few weeks. Produced at the Ealing Studios by Michael Balcon and directed by Sergei Nolbandov, "Ships With Wings" tells the romantic story of a number of young people against the background of Britain's wartime aviation.

John Clements and Leslie Banks are starred in the production, with a featured cast that is headed by Jane Baxter, Ann Todd, Basil Sydney and Edward Chapman. Much of the production was filmed around and aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal.

Others in the cast are Hugh Williams, Frank Pettingell, Michael Wilding, Michael Rennie, Cecil Parker, John Stuart, Frank Cellier, Roland Gratham, Charles Victor, Hugh Burden, Betty Marsden, George Merritt, John Laurie and Charles Stuart.

The screenplay of "Ships With Wings" is by Patrick Kirwan, Austin Melford, Diana Morgan and Sergei Nolbandov.

Wheel Turns, Rooney Pal Arrives

At Last Dick Quine Is Recognized by Hollywood

By the Associated Press.

Freckle-faced Mickey Rooney is enjoying a real life drama right now which is probably as dramatic as any screen role he has played. He's making "Babes on Broadway."

In the cast is young Richard Quine. "Dick" to Mickey. Dick is the reason for the off-the-set drama.

The story starts 12 years ago when Mickey and Dick were 9. They were buddies and they were both headed for the movies. The movie-going world knows that Mickey went there fast, and in a big way.

But have you heard about Dick? He played "brat" parts here for a while. When he grew too big for them no Hollywood gate swung open for him so he went to New York to try his luck in the theater. Mickey worried about him, but Dick wouldn't write.

Mickey phoned Dick every time he hit New York. But Dick didn't phone back. So Mickey went to see him. He suggested steak dinners. Dick's quarters looked very dingy but he refused steak dinners and instead went out to buy bread and salami with a true Vanderbilt dignity. The two youngsters would sit on the floor and eat their dry sandwiches. Mickey just didn't have the nerve to suggest he could help Dick in Hollywood.

But last year Dick's wheel began to turn. He signed for a lead in "My Sister Eileen." And at the same time he was seen by a talent scout.

Now he's here, and the very first picture in which he is cast is "Babes on Broadway," starring his old pal, Mickey. The two are inseparable on the set: Talking over "business," helping on make-up, lunching together—two veterans of 21.

And Mickey says, "So now Dick is buying me dinner."

period of years, making the victims shy about girls.

"So, what they do now when they want to play it to a night club owned by a guy they trust because they have enough on him to keep a civil tongue in his mouth and play the regular show ends at 2 o'clock and the regular customers go home then. But the big league movie boys stay on after that and get discreet bills in the morning: Breakage of glass... $100; spilling wine on tablecloths... $100. It makes it pleasant for everybody."

"You know, really it is very bad to be a producer, a producer like me, at least. I go around and every time I hear anybody good, a good singer or good piano player or good dancer or good raconteur, I want to hire her or him. I think everybody good ought to have a good job. But the trouble is, there are too many people who are good in this world and if I hired them all or even one-tenth of them I'd break my studio or myself. That's the truth. There is good talent everywhere you go in the world and I listen to it and, when I get drunk cry over it and want to hire it. That, more than anything else, is what has made me suffer in this world—to see fine talent and know you are not able to hire it, although the talent believes you are and thinks you have labelled them lousy by not hiring them."

Score by Berlin

To the 14 new songs Irving Berlin wrote for "Holiday Inn" Paramount has added two of the tunesmith's old favorites to complete the musical score of the Bing Crosby-Fred Astaire picture. They are "Easter Parade" and "Lazy," and will, of course, be crooned by Bing, who will also sing most of the new numbers in the production.

Savings Bond Sales By Capital Banks Rise Further

$14,657,975 Volume Handled From May 1 To October 15

By EDWARD C. STONE. Further substantial sales of United States savings bonds by Washington banks were reported in the financial district today.

From May 1, when the bonds were first placed on the market, to and including October 15, sales by the 21 member banks in the District Bankers' Association totaled $14,657,975, a gain since August 15 of $3,662,622. The bonds were sold to approximately 22,526 individuals, an increase of 7,926 in the last two months.

The detailed summary discloses that series E bonds totaled $5,867,875, from May 1 to 20, 1941; sales of series F bonds amounted to $2,113,900 to 318 individuals, and sales of series G bonds reached $6,676,200 to approximately 74 individuals.

The series E bonds are known as the "Peoples Bonds," are limited to individuals and only $5,000 can be bought by one person in one year. The F and G bonds can be bought by individuals, associations and estates up to $50,000 in one year.

It was also learned today that sales of series A tax anticipation notes, up to October 15, by the same banks amounted to $309,260 to 714 individuals, while sales of series B tax anticipation notes to 84 individuals totaled $1,267,900. This is the first report since the tax notes were offered the public as a method of arranging in advance for the heavier income tax payments.

Equitable Officers Elected. Shareholders of the Equitable Cooperative Building Association met yesterday for the annual election of officers and directors and to review the results of the 62d year of operation. The report of W. S. Pratt, Jr., president, revealed that the assets of the association increased over $375,000 during the year, rising to a new high of $5,754,843.

The Equitable is one of the oldest home loan groups in Washington. Established in 1879 by W. S. Pratt, Jr., the late John Jay Edson, the association's growth has been marked by consistent gains year after year.

Officers re-elected were: Walter S. Pratt, Jr., president; Harry G. Meem, vice president; Edward L. McLeer, secretary and J. Harold McDowell, assistant secretary.

Financiers Push Red Cross. T. Stanley Holland, president of the District of Columbia Bankers' Association, who served as chairman of the financial group, 1941 Red Cross Roll Call, stated today that the group secured excellent results, having surpassed the figures of the 1940 and 1939 campaigns. Over 5,000 members were enrolled and a total of approximately $6,500 taken in.

A Scott Offutt, second vice president of the Bankers' Association, was chairman of the banks and trust companies group. Col. Lawrence C. Crawford served as division chairman for the insurance and companies and agencies group. Col. Crawford is affiliated with the Travelers' Insurance Co.

William L. King of Boss & Phelps served as division chairman for the real estate group. Fred A. Smith of Floyd E. Davis Co. was division chairman for the building and loan associations group, and George M. Ferris of Ferris, Exnicios & Co. served as division chairman for the investment bankers and brokers group.

Association Re-elects Slout. Richard H. Stout of Washington, president of the Morris Plan Bankers' Association, was re-elected to the same position at the annual convention which ended yesterday at Sea Camp, Virginia. Slout has been prominent in the organization for several years.

Willard G. Barker, president of the Mortgage Plan Bankers' Association, was elected a member of the Board of Governors, according to R. H. Stout, an Associated Press dispatch.

Of Fractions to $2 On Stock Market

Mild Recoveries Shown In Some Cases, but Pace Slackens

By VICTOR EUBANK. Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The speeding rails of Wednesday developed a hotbox in today's stock market and many leaders jumped the recovery track for losses of fractions to around 2 points.

The list ended unconvincingly to extend the rallying trend at the start. While individual issues managed to tack on modest advances, the general direction was downward after the first few minutes. Dealings, moderately active in the forenoon, slackened after noon. Most combs were in evidence, and there at the close. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Profit selling in the carriers was blamed mainly on indications the wage boost recommended by the President's fact-finding board was unsatisfactory to the Brotherhood, which had asked for a much broader pay increase.

There were some good earnings statements and pleasing dividends, but these were offset to a considerable extent by announcement the Treasury would use new taxes running to several billions on personal incomes. International happenings provided nothing much in the way of speculative inspiration for bullish forces.

Stocks touching new low territory for the year included United Pacific, New York Central, United Gas Improvement, Public Service, North American, United States of New Jersey and American Can.

Rail Bonds Down. Reversing Wednesday's trend, rail loans declined in the bond market to lower territory.

The market was around the lowest levels near the final hour, with losses in corporates ranging from fractions to a point or more.

A trading feature was the transfer of $440,000 face value Goodrich 4 1/2s in a single transaction at a price showing little change from the previous closing.

United States Governments were firm near the final of the previous session. Foreign issues were mixed.

All Help at Banquets Attended by President Now Are Fingerprinted
 Several 'Interesting' Records Already Found By Secret Service

By JACK STINNETT.
 The Secret Service is slowly tightening the net of protection around President Roosevelt as America becomes more and more involved in the tragic world situation.
 The latest development is the fingerprinting of all those hired help at every banquet or public gathering the President attends. First hint of the new order came when the President made his Navy Day speech at the Mayflower Hotel. A week before, Col. Edmund W. Starling, chief of the White House Secret Service detail, and his staff moved in to give the employes a thorough going over, including questioning and fingerprinting.
 This not only applied to the hotel's regular help but all the "specials" called in for the big banquet. A week later, when the President accepted his annual invitation to the National Press Club President's dinner, the Secret Service showed up immediately to fingerprint the entire staff and make arrangements to have all extra waiters, bus-boys and captains appear for the routine several days before the party comes off.

Willard Submits, Too.
 The Willard Hotel, which houses several floors of the British Purchasing Commission and frequently takes care of distinguished visitors, had been through the ordeal before the Mayflower or the Press Club. The secrecy with which the fingerprinting is being done prevented the story from leaking out.
 Even now, the Secret Service will not discuss this latest development in guarding the President, but it is known that, among themselves, they are pretty pleased with the results. In the first place, the Capital's wholesale fingerprinting has turned up several persons with "interesting" records and at least three whose records put them definitely under suspicion as possible "subversive individuals." These, of course, are weeded out before the President makes his appearance.
 In a world at war, the business of guarding the President has become one of the most harrowing assignments in Washington—not entirely because of increasing threats of danger—but because President Roosevelt is one of the most informal Presidents of modern times. He abhors the idea of being a prisoner of the Secret Service. He likes to come and go as he pleases, to see whomever he wishes and without having his callers subjected to a thorough going over before they are admitted to his office.

He Likes to Go Out.
 Since the Secret Service is charged specifically by law, with seeing that no harm comes to the President, his informality is to them a hardship. The close guard maintained at the White House is now pretty much routine. The doormen, guards, Secret Service and White House police know their duties and it's a thousand to one that no One-Eyed Connally is going to crash his way into 1600 Pennsylvania avenue—but when the President goes out, and he often does, it's another story.
 Those many week ends when the President goes to Hyde Park for the only rest and relaxation he gets these days; those occasional junkets to defense centers, and even the across-town trips to banquets call for elaborate preparations. It isn't that any one really fears that some attack might be made on the President or that some embarrassing situation might arise. It's just that precautions have to be taken to see that such things are practically impossible.

U. S. Must Share Leaders Oppose New Road Costs, Citizens Insist Patman Plan of Rent Control

Government Given Blame for Present Traffic Problems

By JAMES E. CHINN. Demands were made today before the special Senate subcommittee studying District traffic problems that the Federal Government be required to pay at least 50 per cent of the cost of all new highway projects...

Amendment Would Base Rates on Property Value

A vigorous protest against the Patman amendment to the House District rent-control bill was made today before the Senate District Committee as it opened hearings on the legislation.

Two civic leaders, Harry S. Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Frank T. Shull of the Conduit Road Citizens Association, bluntly declared it would be unfair to the taxpayers and motorists of Washington to force them to pay the entire cost of the proposed new bridge across the Anacostia River...

The attack on the amendment was led by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, who was supported by Commissioner John Russell Young, E. Barrett Prettyman, representing organized real estate interests, and Harry H. Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Mr. Wender testified the District is 10 years behind in keeping up with its traffic problems, and offered several suggestions for improving existing conditions.

Mr. Prettyman declared the amendment would make the legislation "totally unworkable," and led to the chaos that existed in Washington during the rent-control era following the last World War.

He complained about congestion on F street between Seventh and Fifteenth streets last Saturday afternoon, and described the jam along that thoroughfare as the worst he had ever seen anywhere.

Supreme Court Hears D. C. Tax Cases Nov. 17

2 Federal Employees File Briefs in Fight On Income Levy

By J. A. FOX.

The right of Federal employees on duty here to be exempt from the District income tax when they claim permanent homes elsewhere—an issue that affects upward of 20,000 local residents—will be argued in the Supreme Court November 17.

A resident here since 1914, Mr. De Hart, a divisional chief clerk in the National Guard Bureau, claimed domicile in Harrisburg, Pa., and paid under protest a tax of $16.38 for 1939.

In support of the argument that Congress intended the Comptroller exemption to apply, the two Federal workers recite the history of the tax. According to the report of the House conferees, it is explained, the House originally intended to tax "all residents" and incorporated a provision allowing credits for taxes paid in other jurisdictions.

Contending that this clearly establishes the fact that Congress did not intend to impose double taxation, the litigants point out that the question of whether it was intended that Federal employees should pay taxes here or in the States, on this point, they quote Senator Overton, Democrat of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate management committee on the exemption bill.

Rent Hearings In Arlington To Be Closed

Committee Sets First Session For Nov. 18

The first hearing scheduled by the Arlington County Fair Rent Committee will be held in the courthouse November 18, and will be closed to the public...

Mr. Buchanan said the committee decided Tuesday night to hold closed hearings. He added, however, this did not mean all hearings would be closed.

Mr. Johnson said he believed the hearing, as a general rule, should be made public and that all interested parties, subject to the committee's rules and regulations, should be heard.

Procedure Discussed. The present procedure of the committee provides that after a complaint concerning an increase in rent has been filed and a preliminary consideration thereof given, the committee may invite the landlord and tenant to appear at a place designated by the committee for a hearing in order to determine whether such increase is or is not justified.

Supreme Court Hears D. C. Tax Cases Nov. 17

2 Federal Employees File Briefs in Fight On Income Levy

The right of Federal employees on duty here to be exempt from the District income tax when they claim permanent homes elsewhere—an issue that affects upward of 20,000 local residents—will be argued in the Supreme Court November 17.

The date was made known today after Paul M. De Hart of the War Department and Henry T. Murphy, a Treasury employee, who are fighting the tax on domiciliary grounds, filed briefs telling the court that Congress did not intend the tax to apply to Federal employees unless they had abandoned their domiciles in the States.

A resident here since 1914, Mr. De Hart, a divisional chief clerk in the National Guard Bureau claimed domicile in Harrisburg, Pa. and paid, under protest, a tax of $16.36 for 1939.

Police today were holding a 25-year-old man as a suspect in the hit-and-run traffic death of Marvin Marshall, 6 colored, who was struck in front of his home at 70 Myrtle street N.E. yesterday.

The man arrested is George Bowens, colored, of the 1700 block of Fourth street N.W. He was charged at No. 1 precinct station last night with leaving after colliding and held for action of the coroner.

Witnesses told police the child was hit as he was running across the street in his home after being called by his mother, Mrs. Ruth Marshall. She screamed a warning when she saw the oncoming car, but it was too late.

Containing this clearly establishes the fact that Congress did not intend to impose double taxation, the litigants next go further into the question of whether it was intended that Federal employees should pay taxes here or in the States. On this point, they quote Senator Overton, Democrat, of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate managers, as saying that the domiciliary exemption would apply to the President, cabinet members, members of Congress and employees generally.

The briefs also argue that individuals may not be domiciled "in more than one place," and that a Federal employee is domiciled here or there, depending on where he would receive his income. Neither State has an income tax.

The litigation will be heard by seven justices, Chief Justice Stone and Justice Roberts taking no part in the case. As is usual, no reason was assigned for their withdrawal.

Brilliant Concert Audience Hears Interesting Program

Albert Spalding, Samuel Barber's Concerta and Weinberger's 'Czech Rhapsody' Presented

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

A brilliant audience assembled in Constitution Hall last evening for the first midweek concert of the season by the National Symphony Orchestra. Since this series is a subscription one, an innovation adopted for the first time in the orchestra's existence, the size and character of the audience presaged success of the venture. The program which Dr. Kindler had chosen was in itself a drawing card, for it presented reception left no doubt of his popularity as one of the leading American artists; the world premiere of a work by the Czech composer, Weinberger, and the first performance in Washington of Samuel Barber's violin concerto.

In this country, where artists of all nations gather, the public has grown to associate certain types with certain nationalities. We are in the process of evolving such a type here and have already an ideal in the person of Mr. Spalding. His suave, courteous manner and elegant bearing are allied fittingly to a superb talent and a deep musical nature. Beauty and expressiveness of tone and a fleet, secure technique are his to employ in the thoughtful, understanding presentation of the music he plays.

All this combined to make his reading of the Mozart "Concerto in A Major" a work of art. Thoroughly cognizant of the grace and delicacy of Mozart's style, he added to it a vitality that many artists overlook as essential to a complete picture of the composer's genius. The flowing phrases, the placing of accents and the personal sympathy which he brought to his performance was a constant source of pleasure. The audience felt it and was rapturous in its applause, calling out the artist many times and renewing its plaudits after a hush, in the hope of an encore.

Barber Concerto Masterly.

Mr. Spalding did not comply with this evident desire, however, for he had still the Barber concerto to play. Much interest centered in this work as the composer has won success in several forms besides that of composition. One of these, that of singer, is reflected in the many singing passages for the violin in this concerto. The work is masterly in an individual fashion, with well-defined moods in each of the three movements and richly orchestrated. Mr. Barber respects the solo instrument and gives it every opportunity to display its prime qualities without any abuse of tone. Of the three movements, the last is least impressive, both from its character, which is of today, and because of its evident intentional writing. Many taxing measures were invented for the violin with a background of complicated modern harmonies for the orchestra. While Mr. Barber believes in the classic line, the first two movements are somewhat in the nature of a poem and here his originality shines. The broad, free tone of the first movement is so conceived as to blend with the tenuous, romantic atmosphere of the second, both with a heart-directing inspiration that guides the young composer with sureness throughout.

Mr. Spalding, acclaimed for his performance of the concerto, which was presented with deep regard for its innate beauty, passed over the reception to the composer, whom he brought on the stage. The modest drawing out the individual elements of his works. The most interesting quality about the "First Symphony" is its revelation of a dawning new method in symphonic treatment, side by side with an open adherence to the old. It is strange that Sibelius, who could write the disturbing "Finlandia" could also follow in the melodic footsteps of Tchaikowsky, with his thoroughly Russian stamp. The influence of the latter is marked, yet, except for its familiarity, less striking than the somber powerful note that is distinctly the composer's own. With it he places before one, at one sweep, the bold, unquenchable spirit of his country with its underlying surging feeling. Dr. Kindler's performance of it was forceful and finely analyzed, making a fitting climax to an unusually interesting program.

demeanor of Mr. Barber, just turned the three-decade mark, impressed the public and he was recalled several times, together with Mr. Spalding, taking the final bow alone. The concerto is a contribution to the violin literature as well as representative of the finest type of music produced by American composers.

Czech Rhapsody Vigorous.

Weinberger's "Czech Rhapsody," played for the first time yesterday, is a delightful work, glowing with vigor and rich in sentiment. It might almost be considered a looking back at loved and gone things of the homeland, so lovingly are projected the native melodies and so fiery is again the rhythm of native dances. While a touch of sadness is present, in the main it has the irresistible swing, the healthy gaiety and the invigorating harmonic richness that has made his "Schwanda" Polka and Fugue so popular. The spontaneity that is a characteristic of this composer's writings is again present and will undoubtedly help to make his new work much sought for orchestra programs.

Besides Mr. Weinberger's work, the orchestral part of the program included Handel's "Prelude and Fugue in D Minor" and Sibelius' "First Symphony." The wide contrast offered by these two works was easily grasped by the orchestra, which gave an admirable reading of the Handel, the purity of line carefully preserved and with nobility of tone, and reached superb heights in the Sibelius. Dr. Kindler has a kindred feeling for the Finnish composer and never fails in

Women Urge Legislators To Work for Price Control

A Nation-wide drive to check the rising cost of living was initiated here yesterday with the visit of two groups of women to urge members of Congress and Government departments to work for price control and against profiteering.

Representative Lesinski said the women represented auxiliaries of the C. I. O. and came from all parts of the State. He added that he had assured them he would seek early action on legislation to freeze prices for groceries, rents and other necessities. The other delegation was from the United Automobile Workers' Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Fay Stephenson of Cleveland, international president.

Many married women take unnecessary risks with their nerves, health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Budget Bureau Aides Testify in Behalf of New Salary Funds

$3,236,327 Sought By President Will Include Back Pay

Representatives of the Budget Bureau testified today before the House Subcommittee on Deficiency Appropriations in support of President Roosevelt's request for $3,236,327 to put into effect the uniform system of regular salary increases for Government employes as provided in the Ranspock-Meade Act. Those testifying for the bureau were Leo C. Martin, assistant director in charge of estimates, and Frederick J. Lawton, administrative assistant to the director. They told the committee that on the basis of a full fiscal year their estimate showed that $18,030,897 would be required for the salary increase program, but that since the salary increases are retroactive only to October 1, and then only for a relatively small number of eligibles, the estimate for the balance of the present fiscal year is $11,712,894. Of this amount $8,376,567 is to be absorbed out of appropriations previously made to the various units of the Federal service, leaving only $3,236,327 for which a supplemental appropriation must be made. Representatives of the Federal Security Agency also testified regarding deficiency and supplemental appropriations required for this administration.

G-Men Refuse To Find Girl's Phone Number

By the Associated Press.
 One man's faith in G-men was shattered today. He telephoned the laboratory at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He wanted some work done. Sorry, the F. B. I. could not handle cases for individuals. But, listen, mister, this is awfully important. It developed that the man had noted down his girl friend's phone number, erased it in a moment of pique. And now he had changed his mind—he wanted that number back again, badly. Didn't the laboratory have ways of bringing back writing that had been erased? Yes, the laboratory did have methods, but—"Sorry," etc.

Motor Corps To Be Formed

A women's motor corps, limited to 50 members, will be sponsored by the Women's Safety Committee of the American Automobile Association. It was announced yesterday by Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the committee, at a meeting at the Sulgrave Club. The new unit will be composed of women between the ages of 21 and 45. Mrs. Thorpe explained, who will have had approximately 50 hours' training in night driving, blackout driving, motor mechanics, map reading, first aid and chemical warfare. Members must own and operate their own cars, she added, as well as supply uniforms. Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the Committee of Volunteer Service, District Council of Defense, reported that many qualified for motor service had registered during a census taken last June. Burton Marsh of the American Automobile Association spoke on the traffic improvement program for the District which was offered by the American Automobile Association to Congress last January. The program includes recommendations for an increase of personnel and motorcycle equipment for the police force; a separate Traffic Court with a judge assigned exclusively for traffic violation hearings, and a Traffic Violations Bureau to handle minor traffic cases. Mr. Marsh also advocated limiting the number of persons to whom diplomatic immunity is extended. Mr. Marsh said one difficulty in obtaining qualified engineers for District traffic work is the small salary appropriated for such service. No qualified engineer would be willing to work for the $1,425 annual salary the Government allows, he declared. A luncheon following the meeting. Guest speaker was Richard Eaton, news analyst and radio commentator, who discussed the world situation abroad.

William Sulzer Dies; Once New York Governor
 By the Associated Press.
 NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—William Sulzer, 78, former Governor of New York, died at his home in Washington place today after a long illness. Mr. Sulzer, a lawyer, was the first and only Governor of the State to be removed from office on charges of misconduct. Elected in 1912, he was impeached in August, 1913, on charges of diverting campaign contributions to his private use and swearing falsely to campaign receipts.

D. C. Medical Society Approves Plans for Regular Health Tests

Proposal Fixes $5 Fee for Periodic Physical Checkup

A new plan for periodic health examinations in the District in line with President Roosevelt's recent proposal was adopted last night by the District Medical Society. With a view to raising the health standards of the Nation, which have been disclosed by recent medical examinations of selectees to a surprising amount of defects, the program would provide for periodic examinations. Persons able to pay would be charged $5 and the indigent would receive the examinations free.

The indigent program would be worked out through co-operation of the Health Security Administration, the privately operated agency which acts as a clearing house between the city's health agencies and those who are unable to pay the full cost of medical care. Indigents certified by H. S. A. would receive free examinations by seniors in medical schools here.

Why Must They Die? No. 79 Killed in Traffic Same Date Last Year—58
One of a Series of Factual Analyses of D. C. Traffic Fatalities

The place: In front of 1533 Fourth street N.W.
The accident: A 35-year-old colored man was injured fatally when he stepped from the east curb of Fourth street apparently to cross the street. The automobile was going north from P to Q street. The driver said he did not see the pedestrian. He said he heard the "thud" of something striking the automobile but thought it was a Halloween prank. Police called the case hit-and-run as neither the driver nor his two companions reported the accident until hours later after the driver had reported he said he would "tell the truth." None of the three boys in the car admitted seeing the man before or when he was hit. They came back to mingle with the crowd to view the body. The victim was reported dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.
The time: About 7:20 p.m., October 31.
The weather: Had been raining most of the day, continuing into the night.
The street: Wet, straight and level.
The vehicle: A 1935 Ford coupe that met all the requirements of the law.
The driver: An 18-year-old colored boy with one month's driving experience.
Coroner's jury verdict: Driver ordered held for action of the grand jury.

Diagram shows how a 35-year-old man was injured fatally when struck by an automobile as he stepped from the curb to cross the street where there was no cross walk. Dot marks the approximate place where the body was picked up. Wet streets made it impossible to ascertain exact place where the man was struck.

Oldest Inhabitants Oppose Increase in District Gas Tax

Association Also Backs Principle of Bill for Fringe Parking Lots

Legislation for a 2-cent increase in the District gasoline tax was opposed in the resolution adopted unanimously by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at its regular monthly meeting last night at the Old Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H streets N.W.

Disapproval of the pending bill was based mainly on the belief that the District would lose millions of dollars in revenue if the price of gasoline were carried to a level at which motorists could buy it as cheap or cheaper in neighboring States.

Charles H. Bates opposed the increase as unreasonable, explaining that a 10 per cent tax on gasoline already is in effect and that such a percentage is ample.

The resolution's opponents argued that the move for the tax had already had gained headway and had received support of some of the most important officials concerned.

Approve Parking Lots

The association voted unanimously to send a letter to committees of Congress approving in principle the Senate bill to authorize the District government to set up and operate downtown fringe parking lots.

With Acting President John Clagett Proctor presiding, members discussed briefly plans for their annual banquet to be held next month. The chairman announced that December 6, one day before the anniversary on which the organization was founded in 1865, tentatively had been set as the date for the event.

A meeting of the Executive and Entertainment Committees to work out further details will be held at 8:30 p.m. next Friday at the home of Theodore W. Noyes, president.

Tribute to Deceased

In connection with plans for the banquet, Secretary John B. Dickman, Sr., announced that the association will be able to report at that time its best year in a number of years from the standpoint of new members. During the meeting Mr. George L. Evans, 422 Shepherd street N.W., was accepted to membership by a unanimous vote.

Juke Box Data Is Surrendered To Public

The cloak of military secrecy was lifted from the juke box metals situation today, well within five days after a reporter began seeking information on the subject. Officials of the Division of Civilian Supply of O. P. M., taking due care that the data flowed through proper channels, revealed to the world that in the year ending June 30, 1941, the juke box manufacturer in the country used 8,900 tons of critical materials in making automatic music machines. Most of this material, 5,000 tons, was steel. The remainder was aluminum, copper, zinc and the like.

Nature's Children
Toy Bull Terrier

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.

Toy dogs are the small editions not quite capable of holding their own against the elements and need the care and protection which has made them beloved household pets. They are called apartment dwellers and they fit very nicely into this existence of small compass. They are pampered and usually take on considerable weight, which tends to make them sluggish in habit and disposition. But if they are kept on a balanced diet and given the proper amount of exercise, what they lack in size and vigor they make up in being very alert and ready to defend their home with all the courage and strength they possess.

The toy terrier belongs to a tribe of diggers in the earth. Their name is derived from terra and these animals, as we all know, have the greatest fun in chasing creatures taking refuge in the soil. Possessed of keen scent, wonderful intelligence and adaptability, the terrier, when it finds itself in a situation that offers no possible facilities for digging, wisely forgets this exercise and healthy pleasure and adapts itself to the less exciting life offered in town homes, whether a house or cramped quarters in an apartment or single room.

Toy dogs, destined to spend their lives in hotels, trains or traveling about in automobiles, soon learn to be fastidious. True they must be carefully trained and taught valuable lessons. Regular hours for attending to food and other habits must be instilled in the wee puppy. But he learns fast and does not forget. The important lessons of perfect cleanliness may require weeks for him to learn, but he loves to be praised and given some token as a prize to assure him you appreciate his efforts to obey your instructions. He must also be chastised for misbehavior and he should know that he is a bad doggie that has to be punished or the little animal is merely hurt and does not understand.

The present-day all-white toy bull terrier is clean of limb and has a short hair coat easily cleaned and also easily soiled. His small, close eyes are obliquely set and triangularly shaped. This tends to give the dog an amused expression. The neck is long, the shoulders are muscular, the backline very straight and the chest deep. The ears are large, appearing alert in their upright attitude. The short hair coat does not afford much protection from the cold. It is not unusual to see

My Swan Day
By Gracie ("Well, I Swan!") Allen

Dream! I had to bathe a hundred and thirty-nine babies but it was no trouble at all on account of because—along came a pure white Swan and it was as mild as imported castile and it turned into a BIG cake of soap and guess what the soap was? SWAN!

Bought 8 cakes of SWAN at the store on account of SWAN is 8 ways better . . . so 8 times 8 are . . . well, anyhow, why don't you buy 8 bars and do your own arithmetic!

Wrote a poem. It goes like this:
I love sugar, I love spice,
I love smells like SWAN SOAP
Because they smell so nice.

What fun I have now, doing dishes, what with SWAN laugh-laugh-laughing at hard water. Nothing stops Swan from kicking up wonderful suds.

Woke up late—but was all showered and dressed in half the time, because SWAN lathers twice as fast as old-style floaties.

Two convenient sizes—Large and Regular

Georgie said the only thing harder than my head is Swan Soap. He just talks like that because Swan is harder than old-time floaties.

GET SWAN SOAP!

See why it's 8 ways better than old-style floating soaps!

Be sure to listen to GRACIE ALLEN

New Sources of Scrap Needed if Steel Output Is to Maintain Peak

Exports Increase Despite Shortage, Article Declares

If production of steel is to be continued at its present peak levels, new sources of steel scrap must be uncovered, the Commerce Department warned today. In an article on the current iron and steel situation, Domestic Commerce Weekly pointed out that near capacity output of steel in recent months has virtually exhausted the national supply of scrap.

"Scrap in abundance is believed to be available," the article said. "The problem at the moment is one of collection, how to get scrap from the household, the barnyard, and out-of-the-way places to open-hearth furnaces.

"The situation continues critical. Stocks of scrap at steel mills represent less than a month's supply on the average. Since current consumption exceeds receipts, stocks are steadily declining—declining at a time when in anticipation of a seasonal reduction in deliveries, they would normally be building up."

Despite shortages of scrap in the United States, exports of scrap amounted to 79,000 tons in August, an increase of 21,000 tons over July, the article stated.

As an example of the effects of labor troubles on steel production, the article cited the recent strike of 39 soaking pit crane operators at Gary, Ind. This strike, it estimated, was responsible for a cut of 9.5 points during the second week of October in the operating rate of the industry in the Chicago district, and a cut of 1.5 points in the national rate.

Leaves from an Old WASHINGTON DIARY

This diary was written by Elizabeth Lomax Lindsay, daughter of an officer in the Revolutionary War and widow of Mann Page Lomax, an Army major, who died in wounds received in fighting the Creeks and Seminoles. She spent the years just prior to the Civil War in Washington and the diary was written at that time.

CHAPTER V.
Thursday, August 21, 1856.
The extra session of Congress meets today.
The House insists on the "Kansas rider" to the Army bill.
Mrs. Kearney (wife of Gen. Phil Kearney) called and told me Mr. French had been appointed professor of ethics at West Point.
Friday, September 5, 1856.
Lindsay received his orders this morning to report at Carlisle Barracks on the 30th of this month. That is infinitely better than far away Texas.
Fielding Lewis and his family are at the National Hotel. I shall go to see them tomorrow.
Chandler brought me Bulwer Lytton's last novel. I am saving it to read tonight.
Tuesday, September 9, 1856.
Gloomy day.
This morning when I returned the volume which I had just finished to the War Department, instead of receiving another one, I had a note from the chief clerk saying my time had expired, which was quite a blow. I immediately inclosed it to President Pierce and wrote him a note asking him to remedy the evil.
Thursday, September 11, 1856.
A warm day, but very beautiful.
As I had no reply to my note to the President I called at the White House this afternoon. The President was not at home, but was expected shortly. I then drove to the Post Office where I found several letters. Then returned to the White House. The President received me cordially, but said he was unprepared to give me an answer. This may be the last I shall ever hear of it. The chief clerk said the Government is obliged to retrench as a contingent fund is not sufficient.
Sprigg Carroll called this afternoon to give me an answer. This was with them tomorrow evening.
Monday, September 25, 1856.
My boy left us today for Carlisle Barracks.
Oh, what a blank.
Sunday, October 28, 1856.
An autumn day, very bracing.
Miss Emily Mason (an authoress and widely known in Washington) was here this afternoon, she said the reason I lost my writing was because the Government was obliged to reduce expenses and diminish the number of clerks, but Mr. Claxton was here also and said he was present when the President said to Mr. McClellan that he must give me more writing to do.
I hope and pray that it may be true.
Bob Crawford and Virginia Lang and Chandler spent the evening. Anne played for them on the harp. Invitation to the Adjutant General's Friday evening.
Thursday, October 30, 1856.
Miss Ranall married to Mr. Webb this evening.

to return some of the courtesies shown to us. All of those invited came and stayed until the "wee sma' hours," dancing, singing, being as merry as only young hearts can be. I do love to see my children happy.
Wednesday, December 31, 1856.
Very cold. The last day of the year.
Upon a review of the past year I have cause to be very thankful—we have enjoyed good health, my dear son has graduated from West Point, taking a high stand in his profession, our money affairs in the past year have improved, the Lord has been gracious to us and my heart is filled with gratitude.

Navy Places Contracts For 100 Picket Boats
Acting through its newly-acquired Coast Guard arm, the Navy yesterday placed contracts for 100 cabin picket boats to be delivered within three months. The urgent need for speedy delivery was emphasized and accordingly the award was divided among five shipyards, each of which will construct 20 boats at a total cost of approximately $808,540.
The cabin picket boats are moderately high speed craft designed for inshore patrol and for a great variety of duties in large ports. They have an over-all length of 38 feet, a beam of 10 feet, a draft of 3 feet and a displacement of approximately 8 tons. The following shipyards shared in the contracts at the prices named:

Stephens Bros., Stockton, Calif., $6,875 per boat; Richardson Boat Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., $8,250 per boat; James E. Graves, Inc., Marblehead, Mass., $8,370 per boat; Henry R. Hinckley, Southwest Harbor, Me., $8,400 per boat, and Palmer Scott Co., New Bedford, Mass., $8,532 per boat.
Parks Office to Conduct Tour of Historic Forts
Fort Foote and Fort Washington will be visited Sunday by a group inspecting historical sites under the guidance of a National Capital

Parks naturalist. The party will meet at Fort Foote at 2 p.m. Saturday the parks office will guide the second of a series of nature hikes through Rock Creek Park. The trip will include a visit to Fort DeRussy and will end with a wienie roast. The group is to meet at Sixteenth and Madison streets N.W. at 2:30 p.m.

Rabbits Are Appearing in Many Markets; Selling at Reasonable Prices

Good Supply of Wild Rice And Whole Hominy Is On Hand for Game Season

Snapper Soup Comes in Tins; Some Quarts of Imported Olive Oil Are Available

By Betsy Caswell

The first rabbits of the season are appearing in some of the downtown markets and by the end of the week supplies should be even more plentiful. Those of you who like rabbit pie and rabbit stew will welcome this news, especially as the plump rabbits are selling at very reasonable prices. Other meats show little change over last week, although a number of large markets are making a special feature of the various cheaper cuts. Now is the time to invest in a luscious pot roast, or a stuffed shoulder of lamb, or corn beef and cabbage! There's plenty of cabbage, by the way, of all kinds—Savoy, celery, red, green and white.

String beans have been of somewhat doubtful quality recently, but broccoli and cauliflower have been unusually fine. Peas, too, are highly recommended. Those big "Spanish" chestnuts from California continue to arrive in good quantities, as do cranberries, so you should have no trouble getting both for that Thanksgiving dinner that is not so far away as you may think. Oranges and grapefruit from Florida have improved tremendously in the last few days, and are sweet and full of juice. Extra fine Bartlett pears from California are seen in many fruit markets, along with the best Seckel pears found this year. There is still a good supply of melons available, and mammoth quinces from California offer a new item for preserving.

Dried Fruits Improving Steadily

Modern Methods of Preparation Held Responsible

In these days there is, of course, no season for dried fruits, but when the new fall crop arrives each year, they always seem more tempting. We are likely to make greater use of them when the summer fruits are either off the market entirely or expensive out of season.

Older housekeepers appreciate the great improvement in quality which we find in our dried fruits. Young housekeepers take for granted that they should be perfect in contour and clean. This was not always the case before modern methods were applied to their preparation for market. Only a casual picking over and washing is necessary to make most dried fruits ready for cooking. The de luxe products do not even need this.

In preparing fruit, only a short soaking time is necessary. If time is lacking you may omit soaking and start with hot water over a very low flame. Do not use a large amount of water and always keep the fruit covered during cooking. Sugar should not be added until fruit is tender. Prunes will need no sugar if cooked by the above method and allowed to remain covered while cooking. You will be surprised what a thick sirup results.

Rub stewed fruit through a strainer. Beat the egg whites until stiff, add sugar and lemon juice and mix well. Fold in strained fruit, mix and chill well before serving. Serve with whipped cream or custard. Yield, six servings.

Culinary Quiz

Do you know that the daily amount of vitamin B needed by an average adult could be picked up on the point of a penknife? Yet if this amount is reduced to any extent, inertia, fatigue and more serious deficiency diseases may result.

Do you know that in Arabia a man can be legally sued for cruelty by his wife if he doesn't keep her supplied with coffee?

Do you know that arrowroot is a starch obtained from the roots of a small tropical plant? Because it can be powdered so finely it is easy to digest and dietitians prefer it for infant and invalid feeding. Arrowroot is also used in popular prepared puddings.

Do you know that the terms "orange pekoe" and "pekoe" are not brand names but refer to the size of the tea leaves on the plant? Orange pekoe is the smallest and tenderest leaf, picked at the top of the branch. Pekoe is the next in size and the largest is called "souchong."

Neat-Looking Taffy

When taffy has been pulled enough pull it into a long string about one-half inch wide. Cut off pieces with scissors, well buttered. These make neat-looking pieces.

That ecstatic-looking cow isn't the only one to be thrilled at the prospect of a party for the very younger set. The children will relish the smooth, delicately flavored ice cream, chocolate-frosted cake and iced chocolate—and mother will appreciate the short cuts used in producing such refreshments quickly and inexpensively.

When you give the first party of the season for the juvenile set, there's no need to dent your budget or your leisure. Ice cream flanked by frosted cake or cookies spells "party" to any youngster, and you can make the ice cream by a thrifty short-cut recipe calling for condensed milk in less than 10 minutes' kitchen duty. There's no cooking, and the automatic refrigerator does the work. You can get six big servings out of one small can of condensed milk and the ice cream needs only one stirring while freezing.

Serve the ice cream with chocolate frosted cake if you want to give the juveniles a special treat. Here's a five-minute recipe for chocolate frosting that's magically failure-proof. It is never grainy and it always goes on in luscious, smooth swirls. If you are in a hurry you can spread the frosting on squares of store sponge cake and have a low cost glamour dessert in jig time.

A few cents' worth of balloons or snapping crackers give the party a gala air. One of the inexpensive

General Indications Show Real Rise in National Favor

People are always talking about typical dishes. They mention fried chicken and steak, apple pie and ice cream, corned-beef hash and ham and eggs. Observation has made me decide that one prime favorite is seldom mentioned. When I go out to dinner with a man he usually looks over the menu meticulously—and then he orders shrimp cocktail as an opening course. Many women do the same thing.

I haven't any figures but it looks to me as if shrimp headed the list of America's favorite shellfish. While we get some fresh shrimps throughout the country there is large dependence upon the canned product. It is so convenient to keep a few cans of shrimp on hand and there are so many luncheons and supper dishes besides the cocktails and salads into which they fit.

There's omelet with creamed shrimps. A little minced celery or green pepper will add a special touch. In any case, the sauce should have a few dashes of Worcestershire and is the better for the addition of lemon juice. Combined with soft buttered bread crumbs, shrimps may be scalloped and will need only 10 to 15 minutes for baking. Many persons like a tomato sauce with shrimps. When you use a sauce of this sort you may call the dish "Creole."

SHRIMPS EN BROCHETTE.
6 slices bacon, cut in pieces.
Arrange cleaned shrimps alternately with pieces of bacon on six metal skewers. Broil about 3 inches from heat for five minutes until bacon is crisp, turning occasionally. Serve on platter, garnishing with lemon quarters. Yield: Six servings.

SHRIMPS AU GRATIN.
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
½ cup thin cream
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pound cooked or canned shrimps
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Melt butter, stir in flour, salt and pepper. When well blended, add milk and cream slowly, stirring constantly over heat until mixture thickens and boils. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice and cleaned shrimps. Pour in greased baking dish and sprinkle with the crumbs which have been mixed with the butter. Bake in moderately hot oven 15 minutes until golden brown. Yield: Six servings.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD.
1 cup boiling water.
¼ cup sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup milk.
¾ cup mayonnaise.
1 No. 2 can (1½ cups) fruit salad, cut in small pieces.
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add sugar and salt and chill until begins to thicken. Add milk; mix well and fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into refrigerator freezing tray and freeze quickly 3 to 4 hours. Cut in squares and garnish with lettuce and mayonnaise. This amount makes 10 servings.

For lunch or supper—steaming bowls of luscious and heartening cream soup, and piping hot cranberry muffins to go with them. Fresh cranberries in the market inspire all sorts of new dishes to add variety to the menu.

Shining red cranberries which are to be seen everywhere in market seem to be earlier than usual because the summer which we did not have when we expected it has been trying to make up to us for its bad behavior. Of course, warm weather has nothing to do with our enjoyment of cranberries. When we can't find them in fresh form we buy canned cranberry jelly to serve with our roast chicken or turkey. And have you tried cranberry

CRANBERRY TAPIOCA.
¾ cup quick-cooking tapioca.
1½ teaspoon salt.
¾ cups boiling water.
Cook cranberries in the ¼ cup water in covered saucepan until skins burst, about six minutes, and remove from heat. Stir in sugar. Add tapioca and salt to boiling water and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until tapioca is clear, about five minutes. Add cranberries and cook two minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour in serving dish. Chill. Unmold and serve with whipped cream.

Frozen Fruit Salad Always Welcome

Seeking a substitute for the healthful fresh fruits gone with the summer season? Make canned fruits pinch-hit till spring. In something-special dishes the whole family will love. Begin with frozen fruit salad, just right for Indian summer.

CRANBERRY MUFFINS.
¼ cup sugar.
2 cups sifted flour.
1½ teaspoon salt.
1½ teaspoon soda.
1 egg.
¾ cup sour milk or buttermilk.
Combine cranberries and sugar. Sift flour, salt and soda together. Add cranberries. Combine beaten egg, sour milk and melted shortening and add to flour mixture, stirring only enough to moisten flour. Fill greased muffin pans ¾ full. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes.

Fashion Drawing Is Explained

Because this reviewer is one of those people who must say, "I don't know anything about art, but..." it would be impossible for us to give a technical review on Francis Marshall's new book, "Fashion Drawing." We do know, however, that we have long admired Mr. Marshall's work in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar and that he is well qualified to give advice on this particular subject. "Fashion Drawing" is No. 30 in a series of books called "How to Do It," presented by the Studio Publications, Inc., and others range from hints on soap carving to notes on making pottery.

Mr. Marshall's book is not a confusingly technical volume, sound though it is. He discusses the changes in style in fashion drawing and gives, in a friendly fashion, some worthwhile information on proper materials and technique. His experience in work for magazines and advertising seems particularly valuable and his discussion on this subject helpful.

Receptionist Must Please Both Employer and Those Who Seek His Services

Tact and Reserve Essential To Making Real Success of Such a Chosen Career

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

The girl who works for a doctor, a lawyer or a dentist has a double problem and a double responsibility. She must please her employer, just as must any office worker, but she must also learn to deal tactfully with his patients or clients.

And we're not breaking any startling news when we announce that plenty of receptionists and secretaries to professional men are falling lamentably to fulfill the latter requirement.

We know of one dentist's assistant who calls every feminine patient "dearie," a habit that is calculated to drive plenty of people elsewhere for their bridgework. We know of a physician's receptionist who actually told two waiting patients all about how "the doctor" had lost another patient that morning. Now, every one understands that some patients of every physician are bound to die while undergoing treatment, but it's hardly encouraging to hear all about it while you're waiting for treatment yourself.

In still another case, a lawyer's secretary discussed with a new client her employer's adventures with the Treasury Department, which was on his trail for some dubious entries on his income tax return. That was certainly a fine indiscretion for her employer, both concerning his honesty and his legal ability.

Another physician's receptionist somehow manages to make every one who enters the office feel like an interloper. She has a "snooty" attitude, implying that she is doing a kindness and a dimwit, and that the doctor's time shouldn't be taken up with such petty annoyances.

Offsetting these sad examples, of course, there are plenty of girls who do a grand job for their employer, who please his patients and clients, and who are probably worth their entire salaries in the good will they create, and the confidence they inspire.

It shouldn't be difficult for a girl with common sense and tact to fit into a job such as this. Her first duty, of course, is to do exactly what her employer requires of her as far as assisting him or doing office work is concerned. She should also follow his instructions in handling patients or clients; but unfortunately, too many professional men apparently never give this side of their training a thought. So they leave it up to her, and the results aren't always ideal.

The secretary or receptionist employed by a professional man should realize that hers is a position of responsibility, and that both her employer's affairs, and those of his patrons, are to be kept in absolute confidence. No gossiping with one patient about another's ailments. No whispering of "inside dope" on an interesting case which her boss now has in court.

Toward visitors to the office her attitude should be friendly and cordial, but not familiar. Ordinarily her conversation will be confined to necessary business details, and to seeing that the visitor is comfortably seated and has something to drink. However, as she gets to know those patients or clients who return again and again, she can chat a bit with them now and then, as she might with any casual acquaintance.

But she certainly will avoid long discussions of their symptoms or their legal difficulties. And she'll have nothing to say about her employer's methods of treating mastoids, extracting molars or settling estates. That sort of loose talk will discredit both her and her employer, even in the eyes of the patients or clients who engage in it with her.

You Ask—We Answer
Q. I've been invited to a rush party by one of the good sororities in my high school. It is a buffet supper. Should I wear pumps or saddle shoes, skirt and sweater, or what?

A. I don't know many of the girls at the party, but I should think you should give my name to those who greet me, or not?

ALMA A.
A. For a buffet supper we'd suggest a not-too-dressy dress and pumps, rather than a sweater and skirt with saddle shoes. The somewhat more formal costume couldn't miss, whereas the sweater and skirt might give the impression that you didn't consider the occasion particularly important.

A girl who knows you may call for you in advance, or meet you at the door when you arrive for the buffet supper. In either case, she will make the introductions. If you are greeted by a stranger, tell her who you are, so that she can introduce you.

Knowing how to act properly around an office will go a long way toward insuring your success on your job. And our "Being a Business Asset" booklet will teach you the rules you should know. Get it by sending 5 cents in stamps or coin to Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison, in care of The Evening Star.

Smart Daytime Frock Panel Skirt Achieves Slenderizing Effect Ideal for Large Women

By Barbara Bell

A major need in every winter wardrobe—a soft dress for daytime which can be worn mornings, afternoons and evenings. Just such a dress is Pattern No. 1494-B, so simply detailed that it will serve more than creditably for every occasion when you want to be smartly dressed.

A narrow panel down the front of the skirt achieves a remarkably slim silhouette for the richness cut through the back and the molded smoothness of the skirt over the hipline. Near the face is the flattering expanse of your own light skin allowed by the deep-throated V, itself made more becoming by its frothy edge of white or skin-toned ruffing. Yokes at the shoulders have gathered below them allowing the fullness through the bodice which is one of the most satisfactory features of this distinguished model.

You'll find this carefully planned style a joy to cut and sew and you will be tempted to make it over and over in your favorite materials and colors. It makes the perfect all-black dress which can be worn often, for, by simple change-abouts of accessories, it can be made to look quite different for each appearance.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1494-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5 1/2 yards 35-inch material. Before you start winter sewing, send 15 cents for our Fashion Book, showing a wide variety of styles in all sizes!

Don't Judge Children's Contrast

Praise Individuals For Particular Achievement

By Angelo Patri

Brother, aged 18, is all that sister, aged 15, is not. He is a sober, reliable, dutiful young man well on his way through college. He is almost self-supporting. His work is highly commended by the professors. He is the staff of his home life.

"John never gave us an hour's worry since he was born." That's just wonderful. A good son is something so precious, so priceless, that only those who have such a blessing and joy can understand. To God be thanks for all such. Parents know that their share in his creation was small compared to what God gave him and them.

Sister is not like brother. She is gay where he is sober; her feet dance where his move firmly and steadily in their way. Her laughter comes easily where his comes in slow smiles, at long intervals. Her duties lie lightly upon her where his are the foremost consideration. She gets Cs with a few Bs sprinkled lightly through them. His marks are honor marks. He is praised wherever he goes, and deserves to be. She is loved and sighed over, and deserves that, too.

The contrast between the two children troubles their parents. If only Bobby would be a little more serious; if only she would work a little harder; if only she was more like John. By and by Bobby feels that John gets all the love, all the good words, all the petting, while she gets only blame.

If she begins to dislike John, to couple that dislike with the performance of her duty, she will make him the excuse for all her failures and let them go at that, which will do her great injury.

A white sheep in the family is a proud achievement, but one must be careful to make certain that his shining whiteness will not make the others' gray coats look black by contrast.

Many a girl with all Babby's failures gets by because she is not contrasted with anybody but herself. That is the best way to measure any child.

John gets 100 per cent. That is his standard and it seems easy for him to reach it. John is John. He could not do any less than he does and feel happy about it. But Babby is Babby, and, like John, she must live and work within her limitations.

If B is her high mark that must be accepted. The important thing is that she reaches to her highest self and gets as close to it as possible. If B is 100 per cent for her it must be accepted and she is to be praised for achieving it.

Children have a hard enough time trying to grow up without adding the extra burden of competition with their brothers and neighbors to their already heavy task. First make certain they are doing their best. Praise them for that and let them know they are loved for themselves, that one likes them as they are.

When one does his best that is all one can do. Most of us would hate to be measured against the masters in our field.

EVERYONE LIKES A STEW

... and how thrifty it is to make

To make a Super Meat Stew, ask your meat-man for 2 lbs. of beef, lamb or veal stewing meat cut into 2-inch cubes.

Now try this recipe: Brown meat in a hot, dry pan. Add a No. 2 or 2 1/2 can of tomatoes, one-inch pieces of celery, small carrots, salt, pepper, bay leaf and cloves. Cover and simmer one hour, or until meat is tender. Add partially cooked onions and slices of green pepper. Cook 20 minutes more.

Cooked potatoes, cauliflower or Lima beans may be added (cook 10 minutes longer). Serves six.

"A Likely Spot" said Grandpa Hecht

So, We Built Here, And We're Still Building!

- Grandpa came to town in "Ninety-Six" and set up a shop on Seventh street ... near F.
- He built a tiny building, but he dreamed about a Skyline ... about the day when Washington would come into its own, and take its rightful place among the cities of the world.
- Grandpa wasn't much on fancy trappings, and he didn't care a hang for frills and furbelows. But he had a keen appraisal of civic growth, and abundant faith in the future. He knew that people would marry and have children... that ground then fallow would someday come into its own ... and plain arithmetic told him that where two roads crossed someday there would be four big corners.
- A sensible, honest, logical sort was Grandpa. He liked folks, and liked to serve them ... and built his business on the solid rock of public faith and confidence.
- And so the tiny one-room store grew up, and mushroomed into half a dozen. New services ... new goods ... new lines ... were added ... with labels that you read about in magazines ... and prices that were always fair and moderate.
- We learned a lot from Grandpa.
- We learned that growing isn't just confined to things that live and breathe ... but a vital part of business evolution. And healthy institutions undergo all sorts of change, before they drop their pin-feathers, and finally sprout their wings.
- And so we've grown and grown ... and built and built ... since Grandpa's day ... until our store has stretched across from F to E Street ... and all the way from 7th down to 6th.
- We're grateful for the friendliness that Washington gave to Grandpa ... and for the goodwill and the patronage we own today ... and the limitless public confidence that has made The Hecht Co. more than just a store ... a National institution.

Roosevelt in Sweet Spot to Score Upset Against Undefeated Central Eleven

Rough Rider Gridmen Are Long Overdue For Good Game

Anacostia Out to Cinch Eastern Division Title In Tilt With Wilson

By GEORGE HUBER.

Consider the balance in the high school football series. Aside from the opening Central-Wilson game, when Wilson gave away a couple of touchdowns, there hasn't been more than three touchdowns separating winner and loser in any game this season, and that happened only in the Tech-Central game.

In one other game the margin was 12 points, another had 8 points, four were decided by 7 points in the two differences was 6 and one ended in a tie.

These narrow scores may mean that even a not-so-good team could, on its best day, beat the best team or at least make an excellent showing. Here is Anacostia with a not-so-good team, or better say a not-so-good record, going against the high-flying Central Vikings tomorrow. Coach Artie Boyd had hopes this season of winning at least four games with the Rough Riders. They haven't won one so far and now Artie will settle for that one victory if it is against Central tomorrow.

Happened Last Year.

It could be done. It happened last year when an inspired Rider eleven defeated a heavily-favored Viking crew and in the circumstances are very similar. Rider hasn't had a good day yet and one certainly is due, and Central very easily could have a letdown after building up for Tech last week, the Washington-Lee game the previous week. Anacostia the week before that and so on back to the first game on their undefeated list. Add to that the fact that tomorrow's game means little to the Vikings aside from protecting their record. Win or lose they still have to defeat Western or at least tie it to win the division championship, and there's a spot for an upset.

Coach Jan Jankowski hasn't announced his plans for tomorrow, but it is likely his second-stringers will see a lot of action. Aside from the last period against Tech and the same period against Eastern, his reserves haven't been in the game much because the scores have been close and the games tough. Any experience they receive will be of use not only against Western next week, but next year when these reserves will be ready to play. Chacos, Bryan Heller and Gene Dunn, for example, are promising backs, but they need experience, and Jan may aim to give them a lot of playing time tomorrow.

More important is tomorrow's game between Wilson and Anacostia, which needs to be won by the East division crown, but it may have a tough time taking it from Carl Heintzel's Tigers, who tied Western and beat Tech. If Wilson does win and if Eastern beats Tech on Saturday, Anacostia and Eastern will be tied for the East division crown, meaning a playoff before the championship game.

Victor Over Cardozo, Armstrong Covets Football Crown

Armstrong High's undefeated football team will attempt to clinch the local colored scholastic crown Tuesday when it battles Dunbar at Griffith Stadium at 1:30 a.m.

Terry Day sparked Armstrong to a 12-6 triumph over favored Cardozo yesterday at Griffith Stadium, flipping touchdown passes to Kenny Freeman and William Ross, while Windy Wallace's long pass to Lanky Scott gave Cardozo its touchdown in the second period and a 6-6 half-time tie.

Voigt's Return Aids Wilson.

Wilson expects to be aided by the return of Charley Voigt, its ace back last year, who has been ineligible up to now. Charley is something of a passer and punter, an item Wilson has lacked so far. The Tigers have depended a great deal on fancy stuff—spinners and "T" formation plays—for their gains, and a good aerial and line assault adds immeasurably to its chances. It doesn't have quite the reserve power to equal Anacostia's two-team system, but the Tigers hardly can be considered underdogs in any game they play now.

Western has an open date this week and everything is rosy for its big game next week against Central. No injuries hinder the squad and Coach Fred Mulvey has all this time to drill his players in stopping the Notre Dame assault offered by the Vikings. Bill Marlowe does happen to be on the repair list, but he hasn't been used much anyway and isn't counted on for much playing the rest of the season.

Tomorrow's two games in the inter-high series are promising of much action, but consider some of the other schoolboy clashes this week end.

London plays at St. Albans tomorrow, an annual affair between two good little schools which this time means leadership in the Interstate Academic Conference.

On Saturday Eastern and Tech play at Central Stadium and on Sunday comes the big affair between St. John's and Gonzaga at Griffith Stadium. Plenty of excitement is expected all around.

Attacks of Power And Speed Clash

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 6.—The William and Mary-V. M. I. football game at Williamsburg Saturday, one of the most important on the Southern Conference's schedule for the week end, should offer some sparkling brands of both power and broken field backfield work.

William and Mary has in 200-pound Harvey Johnson a consistently excellent back whose work this year has been chiefly in the edges of the spotlight thrown on Cavalier Bill Dudley. A real "power" back, he kicked the field goal which gave the Tribe the 3-0 victory over Dartmouth.

Against him, V. M. I. offers another Virginia all-star in Joe Maha. In the lightweight divisions there will be William and Mary's sophomore Jackie Freeman and V. M. I.'s Bosh Pritchard, both definitely dangerous men in broken-field running.

Cards to Play Mounts December 9 to Open Heavy Court List

19-Game Card Includes Contest With Navy; Pirro Will Coach

Catholic University's basketball team will open a pretentious schedule on December 8, battling Mount St. Mary's in touching off a slate that includes Navy among its 19 games.

Coached by Carmen Pirro, the Cards will play such teams as American University, Loyola of Baltimore, Gallaudet, Western Maryland, Washington College and Bridgewater.

Pirro will depend heavily on Capt. Mike Chierello, Bill Mulvey and Joe Le Marca, senior lettermen. Bob Ketcher, Fred Rice, Jr., Archie Pagnano, Joe Corrado and Dick Scanton are other promising performers.

The schedule:

December 8, Mount St. Mary's; 9, Galilee; 10, Maryland State Teachers; 11, Edgewater; 12, Bridgewater; 13, Mount St. Mary's; 14, Washington College; 15, Hopkins; 16, Loyola; 17, Western Maryland; 18, Washington College; 19, Gallaudet; 20, Maryland State Teachers; 21, American; 22, Western Maryland; 23, Washington College; 24, Chester; 25, Edgewater; 26, American.

Pledge to Duquesne Apt to Cost Donelli Job With Steelers

Must Quit as Pro Coach If He Takes Trip With Dukes, Layden Says

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Buff Donelli disclosed today he may be forced to quit as coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Professional Football League to keep a pledge made to Duquesne University's gridmen when he resigned as their tutor to join the pros.

Donelli's dilemma, he told friends, stems from the refusal of Elmer Layden, the pro league commissioner, to permit him to accompany the dukes to San Francisco where they meet St. Mary's on Sunday, the same day the Steelers engage the Philadelphia Eagles in Philadelphia.

Layden told Steeler owners Bert Bell and Art Rooney that if Donelli went to the coast instead of Philadelphia, he must resign as coach, Donelli explained.

Donelli wanted to direct both the Steelers and the collegians when he assumed the pro job five weeks ago, but Layden ruled he must quit one or the other. He chose the pros, but before returning from Duquesne, Donelli promised his college charges that he would sit on their bench at all remaining games.

Thus far he has done so, serving in an advisory capacity to Acting Coach Steve Sinko.

Duquesne has notched six straight victories under the arrangement.

Grid Scorer to Decide Name for Coach's Son

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—More than yardage and scoring will rest on the shoulders of Bedford High School's signal caller against Mayfield in tomorrow's football game. It isn't often that a quarterback can appoint a godfather, too.

Bedford's coach, Tom Welbaum, said he'd name his baby son in the first of his players to score in the game.

Terrors and Dickinson Expected to Thrill

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 6.—A spectacular gridiron battle should result Saturday when the Dickinson Red Devils clash with Western Maryland's Green Terrors here.

Both teams only sporadically effective defensively this year, have regularly produced sensational passing.

Little Hoyas Top Saints In Lightweight Tilt

Jim Wills and Tommy Harell produced touchdowns as Georgetown Prep's 125-pound football team defeated the St. Albans' lightweight, 14-6, yesterday at Garrett Park.

Georgetown Prep got both scores in the final period for its fourth victory in five starts.

Undefeated Boys' Elevens Battle

Two undefeated elevens of the Georgetown branch of the Boys' Club of Washington face threats to their perfect records this week end in games on the Monument gridirons.

Paul Cassassa's 105-pounders, who still are undefeated on as well as undefeated and untied, will meet the Alexandria Boys' Club at 11 o'clock Saturday morning while his 120-pounders, also undefeated, will meet the Police Boys' Club, No. 10, in an outside game.

At 3 o'clock Saturday the 135-pounders meet the Eastern branch of the club in a game in which the Georgetown team can gain top honors by winning.

Towel Boy Plays Telling Role In Muddy Big Six Contests

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 6.—They are thinking seriously of making water-wings standard football equipment in the Big Six, selecting backs on ability as swimmers instead of passers and reserving a position in all-conference teams for a towel boy.

The towel boy has to keep the pigskins wiped clean. Under the new rule which allows the use of three towels in case of a wet field, a change being made after each down, these guys are the hardest workers out there this season.

The Nation's best testing ground for this new regulation has been in the Big Six. Only two week ends have been blessed with sun. The

Marred Grid Repaired For Battle Between Navy, Notre Dame

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6.—Workmen from the Baltimore City Park Board labored into the early hours today resurfacing approximately 10,000 square feet—or about one-fifth of the gridiron proper—in the Municipal Stadium, scene of Saturday's football clash between Notre Dame and Navy.

Chairman C. Markland Kelley of the board's Stadium Committee inspected the turf yesterday and found workmen covering bare spots with topsoil to level the trodden areas. He ordered immediate removal of the top sod, and new turf was taken from non-playing areas at the south end of the stadium and rolled into place on the gridiron.

Gen. Frank A. Hancock, stadium director, said that if no rain falls the field will be in shape for the game. A major tarpaulin was placed over the resodded area.

Most football comment has favored Notre Dame on a dry field because of the Irish passing game, with Navy given any advantage that might accrue from a rain-soaked, muddy gridiron, because of the Midshipmen's effective running attack.

Park Board officials said rollers would be used on the newly sodded area almost until game time.

Seymour, Starring in Practice As Wingback, Boosts Spirit Of Injury-Riddled Skins

By BILL DISMER, Jr.

Bob Seymour, a big personable Redskin who never has had much of an opportunity to show what he can do, is looking "very good" as a wingback in Sammy Baugh's backfield and may prove more than a satisfactory replacement for the injured Ed Justice.

That was the latest dope out of the Redskins' wigwag today from Chief Ray Flaherty, who had a twinkle in his eye after watching Seymour as a running mate with Andy Parks and Ray Hare in the week's early practice.

"Bob's a good, hard-running back with plenty of spirit," Flaherty says, "and he may prove the answer to one of our biggest problems. He can block and he can snag passes and if we ever needed him to do it, he can kick that ball a long way."

Yanking from 10 to 15 pounds more than he did last year when he proved the spearhead of the Redskins' 1940 all-rounder backfield, Seymour now is up to 205.

Endowed with nearly as much driving force as Andy Parks at his best, Oklahoma's star back of the 1939 season has various ways of advancing the leather. For Bob is big enough to plow through a line, fast enough to circle an end and his off-tackle slants have netted him gains consistently.

If Seymour does show up as well as Flaherty has visions of him doing against the Dodgers in Brooklyn Sunday, the Redskins' worries may be over, barring further injuries.

For Justice is expected to be ready to face the Bears a week from Sunday and if he is he can revert to his old position in Baugh's backfield, with Seymour shifting over to Frank Filchock's quarter.

At present, Roy Zimmerman—a sophomore like Seymour—is holding down the No. 2 back in Filchock's corps. Zimmerman hasn't got the weight or the drive of Seymour, but he's no strapping at 194 and his 6-foot-2 stature should make him pretty good protection on pass-defense. "Zim" also is a kicker and, last year, did quite a bit of passing. So far this season all of the Redskins' passing has been done by Baugh and Filchock.

Redskins' Spirit High.

To their credit the Redskins are showing little sign of discouragement over the siege of injuries and illness which has removed such stalwarts as Bill Young, Bob Hoffman, Ed Justice and Wilbur Moore from their ranks during the past fortnight and—if spirit will do it—they'll wallop the daylight out of the Dodgers three days hence. To a man, they believe they're much more

Missouri to See D. C. As Three in Big Six Tour This Week

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 6.—Big Six teams may not improve their football reputations a heap this week end, but they will see a lot of pretty country.

Missouri's Tigers were off today on a long jaunt to New York. They'll sandwich a ball game with New York University's tilted Violets in between sightseeing trips to Manhattan and Washington.

The Governor of West Virginia said last week he was getting sick and tired of his football team getting beat every Saturday. So Kansas is going up there to play day after tomorrow.

The hapless Huskers minicstep into the presence of mighty Minnesota and Nebraska never will get a better opportunity to run its three-game losing streak to four.

Kansas State, all hepped up after its upset victory over the Huskers last week, entertain South Carolina.

National Capital Girls Start Well in Rifle Crown Defense

Scoring 1,190 out of a possible 1,200 points, the National Capital Rifle Club No. 1 team led off a great start in defense of its championship of the District of Columbia Women's Rifle League.

The 1940 champs fired that score last night in opening Bureau of Engraving and Printing No. 2 team during an exercise which saw the United States Agave outside Maritime Commission, N. R. A. down G. P. O. and National Capital's No. 2 team defeat Bureau of Engraving No. 1 team.

McAfee's 56-Yard Run Is Pros' Best After Pass Interception

Bear Barely Beats Old Record; Redskins' Todd, Baugh High in Marks

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—George McAfee of the Chicago Bears, credited with the longest kickoff return of the National League season for his 97-yard runback against Cleveland October 5, now gets his name set down for the longest return of an intercepted pass in the pros.

His 56-yard dash with an intercepted Cleveland pass Sunday puts him at the front of the class, the best previous return having been 55 yards by Joe Stovall of the Bears against Detroit October 19.

McAfee has made three interceptions this season, but Arthur Jones and Dick Eftle of Pittsburgh lead in the total started with four each.

Brown "Whizzer" White of the Detroit Lions will lead in the total number of punts and kickoff returns. He has averaged 97 yards in returning 13 punts and 238 yards in returning 10 kickoffs. Next best on punt returns are Dick Todd of Washington, 12 for a 175-yard average, and Lou Brock of Green Bay also 12 for a 166-yard average. Training White in kickoff returns are Dick Bromberg of Pittsburgh, 9 for 216 yards a try, and Danie McManis, Cleveland, 7 returns averaging 37.6 yards.

The leading punters are unchanged from last week. Norman Standlee of the Chicago Bears averaged 62 yards for two hours and Sam Sontag of Washington 52.9 yards for 17 kicks.

Defense Bond Setup of Star's Duckpin Tourney Wins Spontaneous Enthusiasm

Leaders Say Most Of City Bowlers Will Compete

Movement Begun Here Promises to Sweep Entire Country

By ROD THOMAS.

Like a snowball starting downhill, the campaign for entries in the Star's city-wide Defense Bond Bowling Tournament for men and women was on its way today with prospects of producing a sensational field. Bowling alleys throughout the Metropolitan area were abuzz last night with the new setup of the 14-year-old event in which Defense bonds and stamps will be the prizes, at least $4,000 worth of them.

Following the opening announcement in yesterday's Star, bowling leaders of both sexes pronounced the new scheme of the tournament a striking "natural."

With full handicaps affording equal opportunity, large and numerous prizes offering incentive and an entry fee of only $1 putting it within reach of all duckpin authorities were unanimous in the opinion that to open December 8 at every Metropolitan Washington maple plant, should gather in unique competition a majority of the Capital's army of bowlers.

Plan May Sweep Country.

So attractive the event and worthy its nature, the plan today was being picked up in other cities and before long Defense tournaments are expected to be arranged in cities from Maine to Florida, where the duckpin game flourishes. The National Defense Savings organization, headed by Eugene Sloan, plans to adopt the Star's setup also to ten-pin and the movement promises to sweep from coast to coast.

Among its keenly interested supporters is Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau who yesterday beamed his approval when a copy of the Star's setting forth the tournament plans was placed before him. Like thousands of others, the Secretary smiled broadly at sight of the caricature of Uncle Sam bowling, drawn by Gibson Crockett of the Star staff as the centerpiece of a large poster that will advertise the event in all bowling plants here and other vantage spots and, altered to local detail, be employed in the national defense bowling drive.

A single step behind the Star is the influential Hartford Times, which seized upon the plan when shown a photostat of the poster and the circular letter Washington bowling league officials are receiving from the management of the Star tournament. Said Arthur Ebersole, executive secretary of the National Duckpin Congress, who displayed the photostat at a meeting of the Connecticut bowling promoters, and explained the Defense bond scheme here. "I never have seen a duckpin tournament plan received with such spontaneous welcome. We'll have no trouble selling the idea throughout our territory."

Ebersole to Head Rally.

Ebersole will be one of the speakers at a rally of District bowling league officials and other leaders next Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Elks Club, 919 H street N.W., when details of the tournament will be set forth. With its magnitude, the event will require a lot of handling, and not only league officers but alley managers and their assistants are urged to attend.

The scratch figures set for handicaps met last night with general approval. Men's handicaps will be based upon a scratch of 129 and women's 120, if they have league averages, and if not the men's will be computed on the basis of 115 and the women's on 100.

Delivery of the posters and 35,000 entry blanks was promised by the busy Government Printing Office before the week is out and promptly will be distributed. The entry blank bears the message from H. L. Rust, Jr., chairman of the District Committee on Defense Savings:

"Here is an excellent opportunity to advance the defense program of your Government and profit by so doing."

He could have said nothing more apt, generally it is agreed. As to profit, first prize for men will be a $1,000 Defense bond and for women one of $500. With an initial prize fund of $4,000 guaranteed, an increase would depend upon the number of contestants whose entry fees would swell the amount.

HELPS KEEP 'EM ROLLIN'—As chairman of the District Committee on National Defense Savings, H. L. Rust, Jr., real estate man, keeps plenty busy but welcomed into his sphere of operations The Star's city-wide Defense bond bowling tournament, to which he plans to give considerable attention. The entry blank bears his message to Washington bowlers: "Here is an excellent opportunity to advance the defense program of your Government and profit by so doing."—Harris & Ewing Photo.

Ice Palace Advances To Second-Place Tie In District League

Chevy Chase Ladies Move Within Game of Leading Rosslyn Center Outfit

Chevy Chase Ice Palace, by virtue of a 2-1 triumph over Clarendon Bowling Center, today had tied with Brookland Recreation for second place and moved within a game of the leading Rosslyn Bowling Center to intensify the Ladies District League pennant battle.

Topping the Ice Palace win last night with 380, Capt. Lucile Young jumped her third-high average in the city's leading women's loop to 114. Helen De Blunder was high for the losers with 343.

Both Rosslyn and Brookland lost ground when King Pin beat the former, 2-1, and Arlington, led by Thelma Simmers' 330, grabbed the odd one from the latter.

Annette Behan started with top set of 338 as Rendezvous sank Anacostia Spillway with top team score of 1,707. Mrs. Behan's heavy counting boosted her season's average to 112. Mabelle Hering turned in a lousy 366 for the losers.

Led by Julie Young's 354, Red Circle Food Shop whitewashed Del Ray. Lillian Copeland's 333 was high as Lafayette Bowling Center whipped Convention Hall, 2-1. Catherine Lewis' 331 was best for the losers.

With Hendry's 133 and Mike Micklick's 353 tops, Commerce swept Social Security with a season record of 563 and 1,561 set in Office of Building Management at King Pin.

Sinkwich Outgains Rival Grid Teams

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 6.—Fireball Frankie Sinkwich, backfield ace, will go into the Florida game Saturday with one of the greatest records ever made by a Georgia player.

In six games this season Sinkwich not only has overshadowed the ball carriers of the rival teams, but personally outgained the entire Alabama, South Carolina, Columbia and Mercer elevens on the ground.

Almost Passed Up, He's Scoring Ace

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Halfback Clarence Mackey of U. C. L. A. is so small he almost was overlooked when the uniforms were passed out last September. He is only 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs less than 150 pounds.

He was about to be left out when Track Coach Harry Trotter pointed to him and said: "Say, that boy's fast; better give him a trial!"

Now Mackey is the scoring leader of the U. C. L. A. squad, having produced three of the Bruins' seven touchdowns.

Through as Boxer, Armstrong Decides After Auto Mishap

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—Because he was the only one hurt in an automobile accident, Hammering Henry Armstrong of the triple crown has given up all thought of returning to the ring in which he won nearly 300 fights.

"I sort of took it as a warning," said the only man who ever has held three world boxing titles at once. "I've been appearing in some exhibitions and thought if I felt all right in those bouts I'd try a comeback."

"But a month ago in Oklahoma our auto turned over. I broke my finger and nobody else was hurt. My finger's all right, but that incident decided me. For the first time, I say definitely I'm not going to fight any more."

"I don't want to tear down with one poor fight the reputation I built up in 12 years."

Three-Way Tie Sure In World Pocket Billiard Event

Deadlocked Runners-up To Mosconi to Clash; Greenleaf Humbled

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—Willie Mosconi of Philadelphia, the defending champion, will wind up the regular play in the 1941 world pocket billiards championship tourney tonight in a triple tie with Jimmy Caras or Erwin Rudolph and Irving Crane or Andrew Ponzl. A playoff will be held Friday.

Mosconi assured himself of the tie for first place by overwhelming Ralph Greenleaf, 17-time former champion, 125 to minus 11 in eight innings last night. The champion ran 113, the high run of the tourney, to hand Greenleaf one of the worst defeats he ever has received. It was Greenleaf's fifth setback in his last six matches.

Caras, a Wilmington (Del.) youth, is pitted against Rudolph, Cleveland veteran, in the first of two matches tonight. Crane, Livonia (N. Y.) "dark horse," and Ponzl, New York veteran, clash in the last match. Each has won seven and lost three. The winners will dead-lock Mosconi at eight victories and three setbacks while the losers will finish in a triple tie with George Kelly, Philadelphia, for fourth.

Kelly finished his 11 matches in the round-robin $10,000 cue classic by beating Joe Procita, Groversville, N. Y., 125 to 105 in 27 innings last night.

Convention Hall and Rosslyn Spurt to Third-Place Tie in District League Pin Race

Boasting six-game winning streaks, Convention Hall and Rosslyn Bowling Center pummen today had spurted to a third-place tie with Anacostia Spillway and Penetration, while Arlington Bowling Center also fired new interest in the District League flag chase by cutting the pace-setting Lucky Strike's lead to two games.

Far down the ladder less than a month ago, both Convention Hall and Rosslyn fairly smothered their opposition last night in their march to pennant-contending positions in the all-star circuit. Tony Santini's 142-409 and Dave Singer's 149-388 featured scores of 632-1,884 as the invading Halmen romped over Lafayette, while Billy Stalcup's 148-395 and Brad Mandley's 147-383 were the winning blows as Rosslyn whitewashed the visiting Chevy Chase Ice Palace.

Featured by Nick Rinaldi's 185 and 455, Clarendon Bowling Center snatched a second place flash of brilliance by trimming Brookland Recreation, 2-1, with top scores of 717-1,915. Nick's whopper was the second highest single posted in the loop this season.

After dropping the first game to Roger Peacock's Bethesda team, 619 to 524, the leading Lucky Strike's vented their spleen with winning 617 and 700 scores in the final two games. Hoke Smith, Lucky Strike ace, missing with his fifth 400-set in the league this season by two pins, also sliced four sticks off his 134-19 top average. Dave Burrows' 159 and 380 were timely pokes for the winners.

Handing the erstwhile third-place Georgetown Recreations a stinging 3-0 lacing, Penn Recreation moved back into the flag chase. Abe Weinberg's 144-401 and Ray Roberts' 141-386 were big factors in sinking the Westenders.

The brother combination of Joe and Ouncie Harrison gave Spillway a 2-1 victory over the visiting King Pins as the former boosted his average to 125 with 156-396 and the latter marked up 133-362 in winning scores of 643 and 1,794.

Zooming his average past the 126 mark, Capt. Fred Murphy with 157-392 started as Arcadia took the odd game from Del Ray. Buck McDonald's 150-384 and Bert Lynn's 152-383 were high for the invading Virginians.

Warren Johnson, who earlier in the season gained prominence with his all-time league record game of 193, was a howitzer with 147-415 as Hyattsville Recreation jolted Hiskor, 2-1. Howard Rutchies' 148-376 also were helpful.

Black Hawks Tackle Americans to Open League Campaign

By the Associated Press.

National League hockey still in the first week of the new season, moves into Chicago tonight with the Black Hawks opening their schedule against the New York Americans.

The Americans pulled one of the season's first surprises by coming up with a 3-3 tie with the Detroit Red Wings last Sunday.

Tonight's outing is the only one of the National League scheduled and the fourth of the 1941-2 season. Previous matches, in addition to the American-Red Wing tie, were Detroit's 3-2 victory over the Canadians at Montreal and a 4-3 decision for the New York Rangers at Toronto—both on last Saturday night's opening program.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

Junior Golf Promotion Urged by Mrs. W. L. Weible, Again to Lead Linkswomen

Drive for U. S. Meet Here Is on Program Of W. D. G. A. Head

Nominations for Offices Keep Three in Posts With D. C. Organization

By WALTER McCALLUM.
Objectives of the holdover administration in feminine golf around Washington for 1942 will be the same as they have been this year.

Mrs. Walter L. Weible of Kenwood and Army Navy nominated again for president.

The Women's District Golf Association with a unanimous vote of confidence, says her aims for 1942 will be:

(1) A continued effort to have one of the larger clubs around Washington go after the national women's championship.

(2) Closer co-operation in every regard with the United States Golf Association, and extension of U. S. G. A. regulations to every phase of feminine golf around town.

(3) A move to inaugurate class lessons for junior feminine golfers, designed to bring out the latent talent among the younger players.

Two new officers were added to the renominated group of three, as the Nominating Committee met at the home of Chairman Mrs. Theodore Peyer, and unanimously gave the 1941 officers a vote of confidence by choosing those who wished to hold office again.

Mrs. H. J. Cooper of Kenwood resigned as secretary, and Mrs. P. J. Winkler retired as treasurer.

Here is the slate of 1942 officers, with nomination tantamount to election: President, Mrs. Walter L. Weible, Kenwood; Army Navy; first vice president, Mrs. Frank H. Kramer, Manor; second vice president, Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts, Chevy Chase; secretary, Mrs. Gorham Preer, Washington; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Swingle, Congressional.

Blaise Chouinard, chairman.

The slate was chosen by the chairman of women's golf activities, together with Mrs. Peyer. Attending the meeting were the following:

Mrs. W. F. Stadler, Army Navy; Mrs. Edward W. Dimerer, Arlyle; Mrs. E. B. Helmer, Beaver Dam; Mrs. Allan Laing, Bannockburn; Mrs. L. B. Platt, Chevy Chase; Mrs. William E. Hall, Columbia; Mrs. F. G. Awall, Congressional; Mrs. W. F. Patterson, Indian Springs; Mrs. Judson C. Dale, Kenwood; Mrs. W. M. Baker, Manor; Mrs. R. E. Hotze, Washington; Mrs. Theodore Peyer, Woodmont.

On the first plank of her 1942 platform Mrs. Weible has had little support from the clubs. She announced a year ago that she would make it her aim to bring the women's national championship to Washington. So far there have been no nibbles by the clubs around town.

Her second objective, to have been attained in part, but she claims all the golf courses should be remeasured to bring them closer to the real women's par as outlined by the United States Golf Association.

Her third objective, to promote feminine junior golf, will be inaugurated next year. She hopes to augment the sympathy of the pro golfers around town toward giving free class lessons to younger women golfers, particularly those attending college.

All Ready for 1942.

So all is sweetness and light among the women golfers. There's that vexing business of proper handicaps, arrived at in the right way, but they hope to straighten that out.

"We were very happy to give the administration a vote of confidence," Mrs. Peyer said. The annual meeting and installation of 1942 officers will be held at Kenwood December 4. Meanwhile the women can look back on their most successful year in the financial sense of the world.

GETS HIGH AWARD—Capt. Frank Wing (right) of the U. S. U. S. Army Horsemen Outclass Invaders In National Show

Capt. Wing Bright Star As Team Scores Five Perfect Rides in Six

By SID FEDER.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The morale buildup which is supposed to be behind the football drive of Army and Navy this fall, has hit the horse show.

The silk studded off ermines and sables and silk toppers to usher in New York's society season, as usual, with the start of the 58th national show last night, and Uncle Sam's military boys stole the show.

From a dozen models who paraded around the place displaying the new fall fashions.

There wasn't a uniform in the house that didn't have its chest stuck out just a little bit farther after Capt. Frank Wing from Fort Bliss, Tex., and three other Army horsemen from Fort Riley, Kan., finished showing up teams from Peru, Cuba and the Military Academy at West Point.

The four Regular Army men rode a total of six horses—Capt. Wing and Frank Henry had two apiece—and in the half-dozen trips around a tough 11-jump course they turned in five perfect rides.

Capt. Wing, who was shifted from Fort Riley to Fort Bliss only a few months ago, ran away with the individual honors on a time basis by piloting Ethel D., a little chestnut mare, over the bars and hedges in 32 3/4 seconds. The old-timers said this was the fastest job since Lt. C. W. Raguse, the Fort Riley ace of several years back, flashed around on Ugly in 1933. Anyway, it easily gave Capt. Wing the prized Bowman Challenge Cup for individual performance.

Capt. Wing also grabbed third place with the veteran brown leaper, Democrat, in 35.3 seconds, while second place went to Maj. J. L. Hines, Jr., and three other Army officers, who skinned around the course on Olympic Don in 34.6.

The best the invaders could do was a fourth-place tie by Peru's Capt. Armando Anderson, who brought Rimac around in 36 seconds and equal Maj. Henry A. Lueberman of Fort Riley.

In harness horse competitions, Glenholme Farms of Washington, Conn., owned by Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Van Sinderen, took two blues, and a double was scored in the preliminary hunter events by hopefuls from the stable of Joe Hale of Greenwich, Conn.

Tommygun silenced—As a practice novelty, Coach Cliff Olson of Pacific Lutheran College staged a game between the line-men and the backs. The "Mules" ran all their plays over Marvin "Tommygun" Tommervik, the halfback who made the little all-America last year, and earned a 6-6 tie. Hoisting himself out of the dirt at the finish, all Tommervik could say was "brute" to play in the line.

Service Dept.—Cergt. Raymond F. Gooch, who used to play football for Reltz Memorial High of Evansville, Ind., and now plays tackle for the 38th Division Cyclones, has been awarded a Carnegie medal for heroism. He saved three pals from drowning in the Ohio River last year.

Pitcher Mickey Harris, first of the Boston Red Sox to be drafted, now is stationed at Fort Eustis, Va. They're really going in for football in a big way in the Southern Army camps.

The 34th Division at Camp Claiborne, La., has nine regimental teams and more company touch football teams than you can count. Eight sailors from the battleship North Carolina entered the Metropolitan A. A. U. Boxing Tournament. Private Gordon Woods of Camp Croft, S. C., is the sculptor who designed the new trophy for the best steeplechase horse of the year.

Last Laugh—For the week's worst gag, we offer the observation of the guy who saw where John (Wrong Down) Getchell was the referee involved in that Northwestern—Minnesota argument and remarked: "Every time that guy works a game somebody's sure to getch 'em."

Illinois and Iowa 'Rest' in Opposing

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Neither Illinois nor Iowa could be blamed for beaming at Saturday's clash between their football teams, for after that the worst is yet to come.

Illinois still has Ohio State and Northwestern, two of the conference's titans, on its schedule. Iowa will go home from Champlain to battle Minnesota, the Big Ten leader. This week's clash of the Illinois and Hawkeyes almost takes on the aspect of a tea party, except that it'll probably be a real scrap.

For once Bob Zuppke's lads will be taking on a conference foe more of their own stature, being outweighed only 10 pounds to the man.

Mrs. Fred Hughes Wins Fans, D. C., Maryland and Virginia Horses Score in National

By LARRY LAWRENCE.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Completely satisfied with their splendid showing, the owners of District, Maryland and Virginia stables today are totaling the winnings of their star performers at the opening of the 58th Annual National Horse Show here yesterday. Out of six important hunting classes on yesterday's card, Southern exhibitors won three blues and placed second three times. One of their number, by a fine performance, was one of the 12 selected from a field of 28 in the eliminations for the handy final on Sunday, and a third place in the knock-down-and-out.

Sixteen thousand people can't be wrong and if the uproarious applause that greeted Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., and her little half-bred, wonder horse, Hi-Ho meant anything, the Army's popular horsewoman has won a place in the hearts of the blue New Yorkers and is one of the most highly favored riders to display equestrian ability in the land.

In the 12 selected from a field of 28 in the eliminations for the handy final on Sunday, and a third place in the knock-down-and-out.

Another Virginia horse, Uncle Whiskers by Secret Agent, one of the remount's favored sires, out of Beton, placed second in the lightweight hunter. Uncle Whiskers was bred in Aldie, Va., by Clarence and Marvin Crouch and sold to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hale of Greenwich, Conn., who showed the good looking 4-year-old for the first time this summer, winning three championships. Later in the lightweight green hunters, Uncle Whiskers placed second to Pappy.

U. S. Army steeds made a near clean sweep in the contest for the Bowman Challenge Cup, winning the first three places and only sharing fourth with a Peruvian Army entry. The Bowman is one of the most coveted prizes competed for by the international military teams, National Guard and Reserve officers and State troopers. Since its first presentation 11 years ago, it has been won by some of the greatest international jumpers in the world, officers of the United States, France, the Irish Free State, Chile and Mexico. Last year it was carried away by Enterprise, a magnificent jumping horse owned and ridden by Capt. David Wasstaff of the Fort Myer Horse Show team.

When Mrs. Douglas Prime on Warren purchased Pappy after the 3-year-old chestnut gelding had won the Virginia 3-year-old championship for his former owner, North Plater, she probably expected the son of Red Bug-Mildred C. to take ribbons at the Garden and her expectations were amply fulfilled for the sensational youngster started his metropolitan career by placing second in the 3-year-olds suitable to become hunters the first time this summer, winning three championships. Later in the lightweight green hunters, Uncle Whiskers placed second to Pappy.

Cooper in Good Trim For Return to Golf Wars in Winter

Hard-Luck Pro Visiting Here Heavier Than When He Lost in U. S. Open

Harry Cooper, the bald-headed British-born pro, who almost won several national championships during his brilliant career, visited Wiffy Cox at Congressional. Harry did not play. He hasn't swung a club for several weeks, he said, but will compete at Pinehurst next week in the four-day tourney to be staged at the Carolina resort.

Harry is putting on a little weight, and isn't the finely-drawn golfer who should have won the 1938 open championship with a better break from fate and the luck of the draw that put highly-strung Harry behind a slow twosome in front.

"We'll always think that if Harry could have gone up and smacked his second shot to the 17th green without fussing around while Paul Runyan putted out, he would have won the championship. As it was, Harry, waiting 10 minutes for the bunker ahead, fussed himself out of the second shot, hooking into a pair, and winding up the easy par-5 hole with a par. Most of the boys were getting 4's there. He also took 5 at the home hole, finishing with 284.

A few minutes later in came Tony Manero with a blazing finish of 67 and a total of 282. Harry never has claimed he might have won, but plenty of people who saw that finish think he would have won with a better break.

Fair Grapplers Sharing Turner Bill Tonight With Mere Men

Mildred Burke, who claims the women's world lightweight wrestling championship, will toss Carole Starr for the umpteenth time tonight at Turner's Arena or the customers will swoon in surprise.

Miss Burke says she is undefeated in more than 300 matches and Miss Starr is expected to conduct herself accordingly in one of the double-feature mat affairs. Carole will out-weight Mildred, but her advantage ceases there.

Nanjo Singh, who advertises his cobra clutch as matdom's most horrible bug will squirm and moan with Paul Boesch. Singh was disqualified last week in a match with Pat Fraley when Referee Casey Berger detected something sinister in the clutch.

Fraley will meet Gino Garibaldi, while other matches list Babe Cadock facing Maurice La Chappelle and Fred Chromy tangling with George Koverly, returning here after a refreshing four-year absence.

The first match will get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

SPOT YOUR PLANE

—By Hubert Mathieu

NOTE THE CHARACTERISTIC SQUARE-TIPPED WINGS... THE 3 EYE-VIEWS AND THE CLOSE-UP SHOW YOU A STRONG ARM OF OUR FLEET.

CONSOLIDATED PATROL BOMBERS KNOWN IN THE NAVY AS THE 'PBY' SERIES. RECOGNITION POINTS ARE THE SAME FOR ALL, EXCEPT THE PBY-4 HAS A SQUARE-CUT TAIL FIN AND A MACHINE-GUN 'BLISTER' ON THE FUSELAGE.

FLAPS..FINS..AILERONS..ELEVATORS..

THE DIAGRAM BELOW SHOWS THE MAJOR PARTS OF A MODERN AIRPLANE... ALTHOUGH THE BASIC PRINCIPLE IS THE SAME AS OLDER PLANES, THERE HAVE BEEN IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS... A RETRACTABLE LANDING-GEAR FOLDS INTO WINGS OR FUSELAGE... WING FLAPS ACT AS A BRAKE IN POWER DIVES OR LANDING... A CONTROLLABLE PITCH PROPELLOR, LIKE THE GEAR-SHIFT OF A CAR, ADJUSTS THE PULL OF THE PROPELLOR TO THE POWER OF THE MOTOR AND THE LOAD, SPEED OR CLIMB...

WHEN THE ENGINE IS STOPPED AND THE PROPELLOR'S 'EDGE' IS TURNED TO THE WIND, IT STOPS TURNING... IN HIGH SPEED PLANES THIS IS IMPORTANT, FOR THE OLD 'FIXED' PROPELLOR WOULD TURN LIKE A WINDMILL IN THE RUSH OF AIR, AND GREAT DAMAGE MIGHT BE DONE.

This Week's Slip of the Tongue

Wrong: "The only clue to be found were the robber's fingerprints." No. "The only clue were—? Absurd. Better say: The only clue to be found was the robber's fingerprints.

Wrong: "No one, not even his closest friends, know about it." No. "No one know—? Better say: No one, not even his closest friends, knows about it.

Wrong: "The secret of her charms is her kindness and tact." Right: The secret of her charms is her kindness and tact.

Wrong: "The woman, as well as her three children, were injured." Right: The woman, as well as her three children, was injured.

A Paradox

Beverly Hills: I have never been able to get through my head nor an exception can "prove" a rule. Please explain.—V. D.

Answer: The adage, "The exception proves the rule," has long been a puzzler because of the two opposite meanings of the word "prove." The primary meaning of prove is: "to try or test by experiment."

The literal meaning of the adage is: "The exception tests via a test of the rule."

Special Announcement

In response to many requests, I have reprinted my pamphlet which gives a simple, non-technical key to the use of SIT and SET, one of the most popular pamphlets to be offered here. It explains SIT and SET so simply that even a child will understand. It also settles the age-old question, "Does a hen SIT or SET?" It's free. Send a stamped (3-cent), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of The Evening Star. Ask for SIT-SET Pamphlet. Requests cannot be filled unless self-addressed envelopes bear correct amount of postage.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

—Union Brought Better Times for Iroquois

An old saying declares: "In union there is strength."

Most of us think those words are true, but the world has been slow in making full use of them. To this day nations fight against one another instead of forming a union to bring about justice, peace and good will.

The Iroquois Indians of New York proved something of the strength they could gain by union.

For a long time five separate tribes lived on lands stretching from Lake Champlain most of the way westward to Lake Erie. Those five tribes were not always at peace. They fought against one another time and again. Loss of their warriors was heavy; if it had gone on, the tribes might at last have fallen to pieces.

Instead there came the union of which we spoke yesterday. The date when the union was started is not known but it probably took place about the year 1470. The great and good Hiawatha is honored as the man who did most to bring it about.

After they joined together, the five tribes found things better. When they had questions to settle, their chiefs met together and talked them over.

It would be a mistake to suppose that each tribe had only one chief. There were many Iroquois chiefs. In times of peace 50 of them were in the custom of meeting together each year for a great council.

There also were war chiefs. These were chosen because of their skill and bravery in battle. When a war broke out, they took charge of the armed forces. To the east of Iroquois lived the Erie Indians. A war was carried on against them and they were beaten. Then the Iroquois spread their power to the eastern end of Lake Erie, and around the southern side. Much of the present State of Ohio came under Iroquois rule.
