

NAZIS RETREAT BEFORE MOSCOW, REDS SAY

Rail Union Officers Reject U. S. Pay Raise Proposals, Ask Strike

Top Executives, In Conference, May Set Date

Action Follows Roads' Acceptance Of Board Report

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Four hundred general chairman of the five big railway operating brotherhoods "flatly rejected" today the 7 1/2 per cent wage increase recommended by the President's Fact-Finding Board, and urged their chief executives to execute the strike order voted last September 5.

They reported there was universal dissatisfaction with the board's report among the 35,000 members of the union.

Chief executives of the brotherhoods returned immediately after receiving notice of the general chairman's action. They said they expected to have an important announcement to make shortly. There was speculation that this would mean the setting of a date for a strike.

Unofficially, labor spokesmen said that "shortly" might mean as late as Sunday.

The announcement from the operating group followed within a few hours' acceptance of the report by the 14 non-operating unions which meet here November 12 to formulate their policy and procedure.

The operating unions are the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and Railroad Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

Neutrality Vote Slated Tonight; Debate Curbed

Tydings Announces Opposition to Lifting War Zone Restrictions

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate agreed unanimously this afternoon to limit speeches on neutrality repeal to 10 minutes, starting at 5 p. m., and Majority Leader Barkley announced the chamber would remain in session until it had reached a vote.

When Senator Barkley submitted the time-limit agreement, Senator Tydings Democrat, of Maryland asked and was given assurance he would have an opportunity to deliver before 5 o'clock a speech he has prepared that would take an hour.

In his speech, Senator Tydings made a stinging attack on the administration for its handling of labor disputes in defense industries, and came out against lifting the neutrality restrictions to let merchant ships go through combat zones to belligerent ports.

Addressing his remarks directly to President Roosevelt, Senator Tydings declared:

"And I say to you, Mr. President, even though you sit in the White House and occupy the most important position on the face of the earth, don't send these men in the Army and Navy to their deaths ready to deal more firmly with these labor disputes so that there shall be no cessation in producing the things that our Army must have to win."

The Marylander, who had not revealed his attitude on the bill until he took the floor today, said he would vote to arm merchant ships in view of the sinking of the Robin Moor, "but I am not going to vote to send other men in 1941 to their death in the war zone so long as the leadership of the President and his administration are so steeped in policies that it refuses to give to those who will go to their death the complete devotion and support which their sacrifices should enlist from any government, democratic or otherwise."

"When this administration and this Congress," he continued, "show a disposition to give to these young men, who may soon be called upon to fill a soldier's or sailor's grave, the support which they are by all the laws of humanity and Christianity and ordinary decency entitled to, then and only then will I take another step such as that which is proposed now."

IRISH BACKS WARM UP FOR NAVY TILT—Notre Dame's football squad held its final practice at Griffith Stadium this afternoon for tomorrow's all-important game at Baltimore with Navy. This will be the 15th clash of an unbroken series that started in 1927. The Irish have won 11 and Navy 3. Here is Notre Dame's backfield running through a play. Navy and Irish Expect to Play In Ideal Weather

By the Associated Press.

The Weather Bureau today forecast ideal football weather for tomorrow's Navy-Notre Dame game at Baltimore. The forecast was for clearing skies late today and crisp and clear tomorrow.

Meanwhile, in Chicago the Weather Bureau predicted the coldest, most uncomfortable football weather of the season for the Midwest tomorrow. The forecasts for principal games:

Nebraska-Minnesota at Minneapolis—Partly cloudy, temperature about 32, northerly wind 16 to 22 miles an hour.

Indiana-Northwestern at Evansville—Cloudy, some snow flurries, 33, northwest, 25.

Germans Admit Drive on Capital Entirely Halted

By the Associated Press.

A slashing Russian counteroffensive was reported throughout the Germans back in two sectors northwest of Moscow late today, as the Germans admitted their drive on the capital had been entirely halted.

Other good news for the anti-Axis cause was reflected in Premier Joseph Stalin's declaration that "Germany is bleeding to death... facing disaster."

Confidently, Stalin predicted that within a few months, perhaps a year, the Reich would collapse under the weight of her own crimes. Simultaneously in England, Prime Minister Churchill told Britons "we have passed through the darkest and most perilous period of this struggle and are once more masters of our own destiny."

Leningrad Siege May Be Broken.

Informal quarters in London said the Russian counter-offensive was gathering momentum in the Volokolamsk sector, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and might soon completely reopen Moscow-Leningrad communications and relieve the siege of Leningrad.

In the other northwest sector, about Kalinin, 95 miles from Moscow, swift Red Army mechanized units were reported to be smashing hard at Nazi forward positions. Kalinin, the scene of bloody street fighting in recent days, lies on the main rail line between Moscow and Leningrad.

Carriers Would Accept Temporary Increases

John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, informed President Roosevelt today that the Nation's carriers will accept recommendations of the Emergency Board granting railroad labor about $270,000,000 in temporary annual pay increases.

The recommendation was made as a compromise intended to avert a Nation-wide railroad strike between the carriers and an estimated 1,150,000 employees. The dispute arose primarily over vacation and pay increases.

Ewing Pleads Innocent; Bail Decision Delayed

Denying the immediate release of Orman W. Ewing, former Democratic national committeeman from Utah, on bail after he pleaded innocent to a charge of criminal assault on a young woman, Justice James W. Morris in District Court today conferred with the Government concerning an early trial date.

The Government, represented by United States Attorney Edward M. Curran, and Assistant United States Attorney John W. Finelli, and Charles B. Murray, opposed the granting of bail, advising the court that the present policy of the district attorney's office is to deny bond in cases of this kind.

Justice Morris took under advisement the defense motion for bail.

Reuben James Sunk Trying to Aid Salinas, Ship Passengers Say

Navy Tanker, a Member Of Your Convoy, Attacked At Night, Witnesses Say
(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Passengers on the Icelandic steamer Godafoss said on arrival today that the American destroyer Reuben James was sunk by a submarine during a nighttime effort to aid the torpedoed American naval tanker Salinas.

The Godafoss, they said, was a member of a convoy attacked by submarines during a westward crossing of the North Atlantic.

It was in this attack, they said, that the Reuben James sank with a loss of 100 American lives as later announced by the Navy Department. The Salinas, badly damaged, reached port.

According to Godafoss witnesses, the Salinas was torpedoed on October 29. They said they heard 16 explosions of depth charges before a larger explosion which presumed to be the torpedoing of the Salinas. The next day, they said, the Godafoss radio reported the Reuben James was sunk in an effort to rescue the Salinas.

The night attack was not discernible, they continued, except for flares sent up by the stricken ships.

During the rest of the voyage, the Godafoss passengers and crew lived in lifeboats while the ship received constant warnings that she was being trailed by a pack of submarines.

On three occasions the 31 passengers were ordered to lifeboats.

Neil Sullivan, Pathe newsreel man, one of three Americans on the Godafoss, said the area between Iceland and Newfoundland was "alive with submarines."

He said they attacked only at night, traveling in packs and popping up in the middle of a convoy to fire through the group of ships.

Underdog Roosevelt Ties Unbeaten Central, 14-14

Roosevelt turned in a surprise this afternoon by holding a highly favored Central eleven to a 14-14 tie in an interhigh series football game this afternoon at Central Stadium. Roosevelt previously had not won a game in six starts while the Vikings were undefeated and untied. Central now must tie or defeat Western next week to claim the West Division championship.

Roosevelt scored the tying touchdown in the last two minutes of play on a 73-yard pass play from Carl Sturges to Blarney Garner, the latter shaking himself loose at midfield and outrunning a host of Central players.

Roosevelt threatened to win the game following the next kickoff when it marched to Central's 19-yard line, but three 15-yard penalties kept the Riders out of their final hope for an upset.

Central scored a safety on the second play of the game when Garner recovered a bad pass from Center Bernie Miller behind the Roosevelt goal.

The Vikings scored a touchdown in the second quarter on a 38-yard pass from Ward to Denikos, but Roosevelt came right back after the ensuing kickoff and marched 50 yards for its touchdown. The Riders' scoring play was a pass from Sturges to Irwin Luet, a lateral pass having put the ball on Central's 9-yard line. Sturges converted.

Windsors Take Plane For Return to Nassau

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 7.—After more than six weeks in the United States and Canada, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor today ended their first extended vacation since they fled France 18 months ago.

They left for Nassau, where the Duke will resume his duties as Governor of the Bahamas. They traveled in a chartered plane, piloted by Capt. Robert H. Fatt, chief pilot of Pan American Airways' eastern division.

House Unit Approves River-Power Program To Cost Billion

St. Lawrence Seaway And Florida Canal Included in Bill
(By the Associated Press.)

A navigation and power program estimated to cost nearly $1,000,000,000 was approved today by the House Rivers and Harbors Committee.

Chairman Mansfield said legislation to authorize the works would be introduced shortly.

The measure, carrying no appropriation, would authorize scores of projects, among them the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Florida Ship Canal, the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, the Alabama-Coosa waterway, the Weaver-Mahoning Canal in Ohio and Pennsylvania, the Umatilla Dam in Oregon and the Clarks Hill Reservoir in South Carolina.

While the Army engineers recommended construction of a ship canal across Florida, the committee would authorize them to build a less costly barge canal which could be deepened later. Representative Mansfield said the barge canal would cost many millions less than the proposed $197,000,000 ship canal.

Projects approved by the committee for inclusion in the bill include: Waterway on the coast of Virginia, $263,000; Oyster Channel, Va., $29,000; Tangier Channel and Sound, Va., $10,100; Cranes Creek, Va., $7,500; Totuskey Creek, Va., $44,000; Hoskins Creek, Va., $16,000; Umanova Creek, Va., $9,060; Whittings Creek, Va., $11,500; Broad Creek, Va., $20,500; Pamunkey River, Va., $10,000; Appomattox River, Va., $110,000; Hampton Creek, Va., $15,000; Norfolk Harbor, Va., $33,000; inland waterway from Norfolk, Va., to Beaufort Inlet, N. C., $39,000; Chowan River, N. C., and Black.

Anacostia clinched the east division championship in the interhigh football race this afternoon by playing a 0-0 tie with Woodrow Wilson at Wilson's field. It was the first time in the school's history the Indians have reached a championship-contending spot. They will meet the west division champion, as yet undecided, in the playoff Thanksgiving.

Anacostia's ground attack was stopped by Wilson's line and the Indians took to the air for most of their gains. Their most serious bid came in the second quarter when from their own 30-yard line they marched to Wilson's 30.

Features of this assault were Bob Nolte's pass to Elmer Leukhardt for 15 yards and John Penn's 19-yard gallop with a recovered fumble.

Otherwise Anacostia did not threaten and was outplayed by Wilson, especially in the second half, when the Tigers were constantly in Anacostia territory.

Wilson three times got inside Anacostia's 30-yard line. Charlie Voigt stood out for Wilson. Playing his first game of the season, having been ineligible previously, he passed and ran for a big majority of the Tiger yardage.

Sentences in W. P. A. Fraud Strip Lackawanna of Officials

(By the Associated Press.)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Lackawanna's 25,000 inhabitants were without a city government today after Mayor John F. Aszkier and six other officials received one-year suspended sentences and all but one was fined $500 for conspiracy to defraud the municipality by padding city W. P. A. payrolls.

The sentences were imposed by State Supreme Court Justice Almon W. Lytle. The seven were convicted June 30 after a four-week trial, but sentences were deferred until after Tuesday's election to permit payment of salary checks to municipal employees.

Political observers expect Gov. Herbert Lehman will appoint Mayor-elect Michael J. Hughes, Democrat, and the newly-elected Council to fill the vacancies for the remainder of the year so that business of Buffalo's neighboring "steel city" may be transacted.

Edward Sobolewski, corporation counsel, said the city charter fails to provide for successors and termed the situation "novel."

"There is no Mayor, no councilmen and no one in charge of the city government," he declared.

House Bloc Seeks to Oust Dollar-a-Year Executives

(By the Associated Press.)

Representative Coffee, Democrat, of Washington, chairman of the House liberal bloc, said in a statement today the bloc intended to "expose the connection of dollar-a-year men in defense agencies with big corporations," with a view to separating them from Government work.

"Some of the highest officers in the Office of Production Management, not dollar-a-year men in executive sessions of the liberal bloc have revealed such startling facts that we are determined to pursue a course to the end that no dollar-a-year men shall hereafter be on the Government payroll," Mr. Coffee said. "We should pay them a reasonable salary so their loyalty will be to the Government and not to some big corporation."

Mr. Coffee said Army and Navy contracts were concentrated in the hands of big corporations in a way that "will startle the world." He said the Army and Navy Ordnance Departments refuse to permit subletting of contracts.

"The brass hats obstinately insist that they have done business at the same old stand," Mr. Coffee said, "and say they are fearful of a change. It is a strange coincidence that they are cocktail drinking pals of the executives of the large corporations enjoying this exclusive business."

The bloc, he added, "was concerned about the amazing number of lesser officers of the Army and Navy who live on a scale in Washington wholly unjustified by salaries they receive in the Capital." He said those officers included colonels, majors and captains in the Army and captains, commanders, lieutenant commanders and lieutenants in the Navy.

All Critical Materials To Be Allocated Under New Government Plan

O. P. M. and S. P. A. B. Will Work Out Details; Vital Plants to Get Supplies
(By JAMES FREE.)

The Government this afternoon announced plans for direct allocation of all critical materials to American industry.

The program, to be worked out by the Office of Production Management and the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, would assure, for the first time in the emergency, minimum amount of materials needed to maintain essential industries.

The sweeping survey will cover defense as well as civilian production, "from washing machines to tanks," an S. P. A. B. spokesman said.

It is designed to give defense officials a clear overall picture of the Nation's total material requirements in relation to available supplies.

Needs to Be Studied Closely.

S. P. A. B. has authorized its executive director, Donald M. Nelson, to request O. P. M. to obtain detailed production programs by industry, for 1942. After synchronization with other programs by S. P. A. B., the various programs would be administered by the O. P. M.

In evolving the production programs, the joint O. P. M.-S. P. A. B. announcement declared, defense authorities will sample information to indicate the month-by-month requirements of critical materials needed for the production of military, industrial and civilian items, and essential public services.

Included in the programs also will be requirements for repair parts and such capital expenditures as defense plant expansion.

Time Will Be Required.

It was stressed that "a good deal of time will be required to get the entire program into effect." While the allocation system will not supplant the existing priorities program completely, defense officials said that as the months pass more and more materials will be distributed through allocations, with comparatively little remaining for those depending on priority ratings alone.

Some forms of expenditures already in effect covering aluminum, copper, nickel, synthetic rubber and cork. And on Saturday S. P. A. B. announced that it had asked O. P. M. to develop an allocation system for steel.

Map Charge Holds Chef For Jury at Honolulu

(By the Associated Press.)

HONOLULU, Nov. 7.—A 46-year-old World War veteran who worked as a chef at Midway Island the last year was held today for the Federal grand jury on a charge he had attempted to send maps showing vital defenses of the mid-Pacific outpost to his wife in San Francisco.

The man, Edward John Coquelle, testified before the United States commissioner yesterday that his nephew, Alfred Munson, had inadvertently put the maps in a suitcase while helping him pack.

Mr. Wendell F. Brooks of the Midway base said the maps, issued to Coquelle as a member of the Volunteer Fire Department, show complete details of the naval station as well as bomb sight locations, gasoline storage tanks, water wells and other details.

The maps were found in Coquelle's luggage when it arrived here two weeks ago. He was arrested on his arrival Tuesday.

Nine Soldiers Hurt as Truck Plunges Down Mountain

(By the Associated Press.)

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 7.—Unable to make a sharp turn on a completely rutted road, a transport truck of the 74th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft) Regiment, which had camped overnight in Lynchburg, went down a 200-foot embankment today, injuring nine of its ten occupants, one seriously.

The artillerymen hurt are all privates. They were brought to Lynchburg General Hospital in two Army ambulances. Edward Korzen of Buffalo, N. Y., who suffered lacerations of the head and a probable fracture of the spine, was the most seriously injured.

Other hurt, most of whom were cut and bruised, were John Fields, Baltimore; Robert Anderson, Buffalo; Norman Barr, Buffalo; Fred Gillette, Baltimore; Francis Lewandowski, Buffalo; Frederick Lafave of near Buffalo; John Flynn, Scranton, Pa.; and Virgil H. Carter of St. Charles, Va.

Pvt. Anderson was driving the truck in a convoy when the accident occurred. At the hospital the soldier said: "I just couldn't make the turn. I described how the truck rolled over and over on the mountainside and stopped when it hit a big log.

Some of the soldiers were thrown clear, receiving their injuries when they landed on the rough hillside amid the undergrowth.

Miller Leads G. U. Frosh To Victory Over Terps

The Georgetown University freshmen this afternoon defeated the Maryland freshmen, 18 to 0, in the first game played on the new Hill-top athletic field. Intercepted passes paved the way for all scores.

Charley Miller, speedy Hoya halfback, was the game's outstanding hero. Miller scored Georgetown's first two touchdowns, intercepting a pass and running it back 85 yards for the first score. In the second period he circled end for 19 yards and another touchdown after Lou Robustelli had intercepted a Terp pass on the 25-yard line. Al Kowalski ran 45 yards with another intercepted pass for the final touchdown.

Maryland was unable to penetrate Georgetown's line, but succeeded in running up a dozen first downs with passes. Werner was on the throw, and Billy Boyd usually receiving. Eddie Dove was Maryland's outstanding running back.

Twice in the third period, Maryland stood off Hoya drives within its own 10-yard line.

Russians Launch New Offensive Near Moscow; Halt Crimea Drive; U. S. May Recall Marines in China

Powerful Drive May Relieve Siege on Leningrad; Stalin Gives Hitler 'Maybe a Year'

A Russian counterattack on Volokolamsk appears to be developing into a powerful offensive which may completely reopen Moscow-Leningrad communications and relieve the siege on Leningrad, informed London sources said today.

These reports of a new Soviet drive followed an admission by Berlin that the German drive on Moscow had been halted entirely, and an address in the Soviet capital by Premier Joseph Stalin in which he predicted that within a few months, perhaps a year, the Reich "would burst under the weight of her own crimes."

The Germans, while admitting their Moscow offensive had been halted, asserted dive bombers and artillery had today begun their attempts to crack "the Sevastopol fortress area," but were having a tough time amid the Soviet steel and concrete mountain casements in the Crimea.

Around Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, southward of Kalinin, Red Army infantry, cavalry, artillery and planes were declared in dispatches relayed from Kuibyshev as having driven German armored forces out of position after position along a 3-mile route.

Soviet dispatches from the northern front said the Germans had attempted in vain to regain the initiative before Leningrad, with heavy losses on both sides. Actual capture of the city, under siege for many weeks, was declared out of the question without strong reinforcements.

More and more it appeared that the Germans were in for a bleak winter in the trenches both around Leningrad and Moscow.

Swift, mobile Russian units are hammering hard at the German forward positions northwest of Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, and already have reopened a secondary branch rail line in that area, London sources said, and thus are easing some of the pressure on Leningrad by blunting the northern claw of the Nazi prancers aimed at Moscow.

Kalinin is on the main line between Moscow and Leningrad. It was not made clear here whether a branch line actually had been opened clear through to Leningrad, however.

Reliable London sources said plans for a second fighting front—urged by Premier Stalin yesterday—were "ready to be put into effect when the time is considered opportune."

"It is felt that Stalin made it clear," said the highly-placed British Press Association, "that he appreciates that when a real opportunity arises—and that might be very near—where that front will be is something we do not propose to tell the enemy."

The Soviet Information Bureau said Soviet troops fought the invaders on all fronts yesterday and 34 aerial raiders were shot down near Moscow. The Russian air force was declared to have blown up three depots and three ammunition-laden trains and dispersed a German infantry regiment.

Russian airmen during October, the Information Bureau communique said, "destroyed about 305 enemy tanks, killed more than 12,000 enemy soldiers and officers and destroyed a large number of wagons and about 100 guns of various calibers."

U. S. and Cuba Sign Lease-Lend Agreement

Secretary of State Hull today announced the signing of a lease-lend agreement with Cuba, under which the United States will exchange war materials for Cuban supplies needed in this country.

The agreement, similar to those being worked out with a number of Latin American countries, was signed by Secretary Hull and Dr. Aurelio F. Conchoso, Cuban Ambassador here.

Mr. Hull declined to reveal any details of the agreement other than to say that supplies this country will receive from Cuba in payment for defense equipment will include such items as sugar, tobacco and manganese.

Most Perilous Side Of Struggle Is Past, Churchill Says

NEWCASTLE, England, Nov. 7.—Prime Minister Churchill, on an inspection tour of the Tyneside, declared today, "We have passed through the darkest and most perilous side of this struggle and are once more masters of our own destiny."

In a brief speech, Mr. Churchill said in reference to the eastern front, "The Russians are struggling and battling vigorously, with results which are particularly significant."

He added that on the other side of the Atlantic "our kin and kin are struggling to see that we get all we need, and we find ourselves in a goodly company."

"The British are moving and looking forward," however long the road," he said.

U. S. to Speed Arms To Reds After Billion Lease-Lend Loan

Congress Leaders, Taken
By Surprise, Express
Conflicting Views

(Soviet Aid Statement, Page A-13)

By the Associated Press.

The United States backed the hard-pressed armies of Russia with a billion-dollar lease-lend credit today.

President Roosevelt directed deliveries "to commence immediately and to be fulfilled in the largest possible amounts" until the huge stores of munitions represented by the credit are in Soviet hands.

This new assistance program posed for the Nation a stupendous task both in production and transportation if the supplies are to reach the Russian fronts in effective time, but Mr. Roosevelt indicated definite confidence that the job would be done.

The unheralded decision to extend lease-lend aid to Russia was announced late yesterday by the State Department. Whether by accident or design, the announcement was psychologically well-timed. It came on the eve of the Soviet's great national holiday—the 24th anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution. And it followed by a few hours the radio address of Premier Joseph Stalin, in which the Russian leader spoke of the "great importance" of the aid already being received from Britain and the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt sent a telegram of "felicitation and sincere good wishes" to Soviet Premier Mikhail Kalinin in connection with the anniversary. Describing Russia's "valiant and determined resistance" to German attacks as "embarrassing" to the people of the United States and to all forces which abhor aggression, the President said he was confident the struggle "will not have been in vain."

The credit announcement was in the form of an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Roosevelt and Stalin. In a letter dated October 30, Mr. Roosevelt wrote that the $1,000,000,000 credit was being made available without interest, and that Soviet repayment would not commence until five years after the war's end.

Replying on November 4, Stalin agreed to the credit terms and voiced the "sincere gratitude" of Russia for this "unusually substantial aid in its difficult and great struggle against our common enemy, bloodthirsty Hitlerism."

Taken somewhat unaware by the credit disclosure, congressional leaders reacted along expected lines. The staunch supporters of administration foreign policy law in the declaration.

Output of Big Bombers
Due Soon at 4 Plants

By the Associated Press.

Production of heavy bombers at the first of the Government's four new mass-production assembly plants probably will start in January, War Department officials said today.

The Fort Worth, Tex., plant, to be operated by Consolidated Aircraft Corp., is scheduled for completion December 31, and the assembly of four-motored bombers, from parts fabricated in large part by automobile manufacturers, is expected to begin soon after that date.

The article tells the German people "not to ask when victory will come, but rather to see to it that it comes."

Victory, Goebbels says, would require a "gigantic national effort" from which no one could be excused.

"We can be victorious and we will be victorious," he continued. "Just as a war which is won will benefit us all so a war which is lost would smash us all up. As always in the great hours of our life."

Withdrawals From 3 Cities Studied, President Says

By JOHN C. HENRY.

President Roosevelt announced unexpectedly today that the United States is considering withdrawal of all its Marines now stationed in the Chinese cities of Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai.

The first two cities are currently occupied by Japanese forces, while Shanghai is completely encircled, with the International Settlement being nominally free of invasion control.

The President said he did not know off-hand how many Marines were involved. The Navy Department said later that there are about 970 Marines in the three places mentioned by the President.

Mr. Roosevelt made his announcement by reading a formal statement and indicating plainly that he was averse to further discussion of the matter. His statement follows:

"The President said today that the Government of the United States is giving consideration to the question of withdrawal of the American Marine detachments now maintained ashore in China at Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai."

Speculation Aroused.

The abrupt disclosure set off an immediate train of press conference questions and subsequent speculation.

Included in the latter is the opinion of some that the action may be an immediate forerunner of Japanese-American conflict in the Pacific area.

In this connection it is known that the Navy Department for some time has felt very strongly that the presence of such a small marine detachment is of little value and of great risk to the personnel involved. In event of any Japanese determination to carry on hostilities with this country it was believed that the marine units involved would be in so vulnerable a position as to be quickly annihilated or captured.

The President pointed out that American civilians in most of the Far Eastern theater of war, including these three cities, have been

President Sidetracks Query on U-Boats Sunk by U. S. Navy

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt sidetracked a press conference question today about reports that American warships had accounted for some German submarines.

He was told that a "high naval authority" had said United States warships had disposed of 42 submarine raiders.

Mr. Roosevelt wanted to know who the authority was, and the reporter said that his office had not told him. That, the Chief Executive said, was a grand story.

The conference touched on international affairs at another point when the Chief Executive was asked whether he had any indication Finland might withdraw from the war in Europe. No, he responded, unless some report had come in during the night.

cautioned on more than one occasion that unless the need is imperative or unless they wish to do so at their own risk they should not remain in that area.

The President said he did not know how many civilians are at present within this danger zone. The last census of Americans still in China placed the figure at fewer than 5,000.

Another line of speculation was that the withdrawal bears on initial American assurances that the extrajurisdictional rights of other nations within China would be abandoned, at least as far as presence of armed forces is concerned.

To a question of whether today's announcement relates to this territorial issue, Mr. Roosevelt merely shrugged his shoulders and said he would not know.

A third question was whether the withdrawal could be considered a gesture of appeasement to the Japanese. The President did not pass on this inquiry directly but he said that the matter of the marines' presence had not figured in current Japanese-American conversations.

Consultation between the Tokyo and Washington governments has been under way quietly for several weeks, but both the exact subject

Japanese Nanking Leader Reported Arrested

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—Foreign reports said today that Cheng Wen-yuan, Vice Minister of War in the Japanese-sponsored Nanking regime, had been arrested by Nanking agents and Japanese police on a charge of espionage in behalf of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Several other high officials of the War Ministry were arrested simultaneously, it was said, as the result of discovery of an alleged plot to supply information to Chungking regarding movements of the Japanese and Wang Ching-wei, head of the Nanking regime.

Veto Reported Facing Price Bill Lacking Ceiling on Food Costs

By the Associated Press.

High administration officials said today President Roosevelt would veto the pending price control bill, which critics say would permit sharp increases in the cost of agricultural commodities, if it reached his desk in the form recommended by the House Banking Committee.

At his press conference earlier in the day, the Chief Executive did not answer questions concerning ceilings for farm prices, but it was learned authoritatively that the bill's restrictions against establishing ceilings for the 1919-29 average were objectionable to the President.

They have been criticized by members of the committee as an "invitation to inflation" on the ground that they would permit prices for some farm products, including cotton, lamb, sugar and corn, to rise 20 per cent or more.

Despite the President's reported opposition, there was no immediate indication that the committee would attempt to revise the bill before it reaches the House floor. It has not yet been formally reported to the House, although the Banking Committee approved it last Saturday, but Chairman Steagall said late last night he hoped to present it today and to call it up for House action.

U. S. Plea to Finns Called Move to Bar Tie-up With Nazis

Hull and Welles Issue
Memorandums on Talks
With Procope

United States efforts to induce Finland to cease offensive warfare in Russia are aimed solely at preventing the Finns from going so far as to make themselves allies of Hitler in the general war that threatens the safety of the United States and all other peaceful countries in the world, the State Department made clear today through publication of memorandums of conversations with the Finnish Minister here.

One memorandum was prepared by Undersecretary of State Welles immediately after he had told Finnish Minister Hjalmar J. Procope on August 18 that the Soviet government was prepared to negotiate a separate peace with Finland which would involve territorial concessions to the Finns.

In the other memorandum Secretary of State Hull related how he told Mr. Procope on October 3 that the governing question now in Finnish-American relations is whether Finland will carry on military operations in Russia so as to "project her on the side of Hitler into the general war."

Finns Deny Receiving Terms.

Publication of the memorandums followed denials by the Finnish news agency that Finland had received any Russian peace terms, in connection with the disclosure Monday that the Soviet was willing to discuss a separate peace with Finland.

Mr. Hull said at a press conference today that he still was awaiting an answer from Finland to this Government warning that the Finns would risk losing American friendship if they did not discontinue offensive warfare against Russia promptly.

Mr. Welles, in his memorandum of the August 18 conversation with Mr. Procope, made it clear that this Government was not prepared to discuss assurances of Finland against possible future Russian aggression until the Finnish government indicated willingness to explore peace possibilities.

"I said further," the Welles memorandum continued, "that it appeared to me that the question was a momentous one for the Finnish government to determine."

Nazi Victory Question Raised.

"I added that... I wondered what guarantees or assurances Finland thought she would have of retaining her own independence and autonomy if Germany succeeded in winning and were then the overlord of all Europe."

"I said that in such event Finland (See FINLAND, Page A-2.)

Rail Wage Proposals Of President's Board Accepted by Carriers

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Carriers' Conference Committees representing all Class 1 railroads in the United States announced today they had decided to accept the recommendation of President Roosevelt's fact-finding body for temporary wage increases for 1,250,000 railroad workers.

The committees issued the following statement:

"The Carriers' Conference Committees representing Eastern, Western and Southeastern railroads announced today that they are disappointed in the recommendations of the President's Emergency Board in their working rules, wages and vacation disputes, and despite the very heavy burden it imposes upon the railroads of the country, they have concluded to accept the board's recommendations with respect to these issues."

National Emergency Cited.

"A full and fair hearing was held before the President's Emergency Board as provided by law, and the committees feel that in this time of national emergency, in the interest of national defense and in keeping with the President's address to delegates to the International Labor Office, the board's recommendations should be accepted."

The board recommended wage increases of 7 1/2 per cent for the 250,000 operating employees who had demanded boosts of 30 per cent. The lowest paid of these now earns $5.06 a day.

For the 900,000 non-operating workers, the board proposed an average increase of 13 1/2 per cent. They had asked for 30 to 34 cents more an hour. They now receive 35 to 85 cents.

One-week vacations with pay were proposed for the non-operating employees, with the board also recommending wage increases of 7 1/2 cents an hour for 400,000 other employees of the Railway Express Co.

Railroad spokesmen estimated it would cost the lines at least $200,000,000 a year to put the board's recommendations into effect.

Disappointment Expressed.

Chiefs of the big operating brotherhoods expressed keen disappointment at the recommendations soon after they were made public, but spokesmen for the non-operating group decided to wait until November 12 before formulating their policy.

They have called a meeting of 1,554 general chairmen of their unions to consider the report on that date.

The President's speech yesterday, referred to in the carriers' statement, urged that the Nation be engaged in its defense efforts.

Railroad workers have authorized a strike to enforce their demands, but under provisions of the Railway Labor Act they are not permitted to walk out before December 5, 30 days after submission of the Fact-Finding Board's report.

More Japanese Troops Landed in Indo-China

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—Military sources said today that 12,000 Japanese troops, presumably from Canton, disembarked Wednesday at Haiphong, French Indo-China, bringing the total in Tonkin Province to 40,000.

Doubt was cast on the possibility of an attempted invasion of neighboring Yunnan, however, military men saying Japan would need at least 100,000 and possibly 200,000 for a successful thrust against that province through which runs the Burma road supply line.

German dispatches from Hanoi, the Indo-China capital, said Japanese were speeding the construction of military air fields and that Japanese officers had inspected the border and asked for extensive hospital accommodations from Hanoi authorities.

District Seeks 55 Million in 1943 Budget

Estimates Sent to Bureau Largest In City's History

BACKGROUND—

Washington's population growth in the past year, caused mostly by influx of workers due to national emergency, created huge new problems which inspired department executives to seek nearly $65,000,000 for next fiscal year. At recent public hearings on 1943 budget estimates numerous groups insisted the United States had great responsibility as to these extraordinary needs and that District budget should be held down to avoid tax rises.

By DON S. WARREN.

A balanced budget, calling for an outlay of $55,133,147 to finance District government operations and improvements in the fiscal year 1943—the greatest in the history of the Capital—was forwarded to the Budget Bureau today by the Commissioners.

This sum is nearly $1,000,000 above current appropriations, but this difference probably will be lessened by anticipated congressional approval of supplemental and deficiency requests for extra funds which would be added to this year's accounts.

The total was held down to the record $55,000,000 level only after the city heads asked nearly $10,000,000 from the original request of their department executives.

To Retain Tax Rate.

Despite the substantial boost over this year's costs, as already approved, it was made clear that the proposed 1943 budget would not entail any increase in the present real estate tax rate of 1.75 per cent of value, or in other levies. The Federal payment toward District expenses was restated at $6,000,000, this issue, as customary, being left for determination by Congress.

Some of the major improvement programs as outlined by department executives, as well as increased funds sought by the Health Department, were drastically slashed by the city heads to get the total within a figure not calling for a tax increase.

While the Commissioners did not so state, the limited amount of information they made public as to their 1943 budget proposals, indicated they had rejected the suggestion by Water Department officials for a very considerable increase in water rates as a means of financing proposed extraordinary outlays to enable the water service to keep pace with the Capital's extraordinary increase in population.

Highway Fund Reduced.

Also it was noted the Commissioners propose a decrease rather than an increase in expenditures under the highway fund. Their plan calls for an outlay next fiscal year of $5,845,083, a decrease of $365,041 from this year's presently approved expenditures. However, it was recalled that the District's share of the Congress the Whitehurst survey report proposing expenditure over a period of years of more than $44,000,000 for highway and bridge improvements, and a suggested 1 or 2 cent increase in the District gasoline tax.

If the District's gas tax is boosted, the Commissioners later will seek more funds to carry some of the suggested improvements into the construction stage during the next fiscal year.

One of the outstanding items in the Commissioners' budget is the proposed increase in Metropolitan police to enable the Metropolitan police to meet more adequately the increasing problems caused to a large degree by Washington's sudden mushroom growth of population. This would raise the Metropolitan police force from 1,100 men to 1,516 to 1,711. The additional men would be 185 privates, four lieutenants and six sergeants.

It was understood that this program for enlarging the police force was drafted and sent to the Budget Bureau without, for the moment, consideration of the separate question of employment of 100 additional policemen. Assuming that this separate bill is finally approved, it was expected Congress will be asked to determine whether these extra 100 men should be absorbed in the larger increase asked by the Commissioners for the next fiscal year.

$14,335,600 for Schools.

School authorities had requested an outlay for the next fiscal year of nearly $18,000,000, which would have represented an increase of $3,850,000 over this year's appropriation. The Commissioners reduced this request.

Notre Dame Squad Stops Here on Way To Game With Navy

35 Players Greeted By Cheering Fans; Hold Workout at Ball Park

A 35-man Notre Dame football squad arrived here early today, not enervated, but determined to give Navy a battle tomorrow in the Municipal Stadium at Baltimore. Cheering fans greeted the squad at the Catholic University railroad station where they detoured to attend mass and have breakfast in the Holy Cross College.

Frank W. Leahy, Notre Dame's head coach, said his team expected to make a good showing, "but we are facing one of the greatest teams in the country and certainly the best team Navy has had in many years. He added that "the boys all are in good condition."

An interesting sidelight developed at the station when a couple arrived early to greet the team. Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Heston, who live near Notre Dame in South Bend, explained the mass which the team attended at the Holy Cross College. They will spend the night at the Waldman Park Hotel and will leave by train at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow for the game.

Later this morning the team was taken on a sight-seeing tour by a workman at Griffith Stadium. They will spend the night at the Waldman Park Hotel and will leave by train at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow for the game.

The Rev. Henry Bolger officiated at the mass which the team attended. Actor Pat O'Brien, who played the part of Knute Rockne in a recent movie, also was present. Members of the President's cabinet, Senators and Representatives, Government officials and others will gather at 8 o'clock tonight in the Willard Hotel for a Navy-Notre Dame rally.

Ensign Lost on James Son of Silver Spring Couple

Ensign Craig Spowers, 24, one of the officers lost when the destroyer Reuben James was sunk by a submarine last week, was the son of Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. William H. Spowers, jr., of Silver Spring, Md. It was learned here today.

The address given today by the Navy Department was East Orange, N. J., the home of his parents before they moved to Silver Spring in August. Comdr. Spowers is on duty at the Navy Department in the Bureau of Ships. Their home is at 8000 East Orange, N. J. Spowers has been under a doctor's care since learning of the death of her son.

Ensign Spowers had not visited his parents' new home since he was assigned to sea duty after his graduation from the Naval Academy in February. He communicated with his parents last about two weeks ago by telephone from New York, while he was on leave. He was a torpedo officer on the lost destroyer. A brother, Gale M. Spowers, 25, is now with the 12th Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

'Unofficial Envoy' For Armenians Dies

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—Thomas H. Kullajian, 68, long an unofficial envoy-at-large for the Armenian peoples, died yesterday of a heart attack.

Escaping a Turkish massacre in 1895, he came to America and so deeply appreciated his freedom here that he eventually spent his fortune carrying a 100-year-old Oriental rug he valued at $100,000 to places where famous personages could walk on it.

This became known as the Peace Treaty Rug after the treaty of Versailles because it was under the treaty table and under the feet of statesmen who signed the document. President Roosevelt stood on it during his 1933 inaugural address. Others who have trod it include four former Presidents and several European royal personages.

Donelli Heads for West Coast, Quitting as Steelers' Coach

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—Aldo "Buff" Donelli headed to the West Coast by plane today, apparently going through with his decision to relinquish his job as coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers and rejoin the Duquesne University team as coach.

In one of a series of "on again, off again" moves yesterday, Donelli quit as coach of the National Professional League team in order to keep a promise to the Duquesne team that he would be on the bench for every Duquesne game.

A few hours later he said he might change his mind and stay with the Steelers because a snowstorm might prevent him from flying to the Coast to meet the Dukes at San Francisco for their game with St. Mary's Sunday, the same day.

Ford Assembly Line Shut Down by Strike Of Few Welders

C. I. O. Official Says They Must Answer to Union; 20,000 Idle

(Earlier strike story on Page A-8.)
By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Nov. 7.—A strike by a small group of welders who demanded wage adjustments closed the pressed steel division and final assembly line of the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge plant today, making 20,000 workers idle.

Richard T. Leonard, director of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) Ford department, said operations could have been resumed in 5 minutes except for what he called the "hasty action" of William Burnett, pressed steel division superintendent, in sending other workers home.

The assembly line was forced to suspend operations because of lack of material. Mr. Leonard said he did not attempt to excuse the action of the welders who, he said, "were responsible for an unauthorized strike." He added that they will have to answer to the union and their fellow union members for their action.

Mr. Leonard expressed belief both departments would resume operations Monday. They do not normally operate on Saturday.

Neither union nor company officials disclosed the wage demands of the welders or their current rates.

St. Lawrence Power Vital, President Says
By the Associated Press.
President Roosevelt asserted today he would like to see the St. Lawrence waterway project authorized and funds appropriated now because he said, its power development phases are vital to defense.

He made the statement during a press conference discussion of an omnibus rivers and harbors bill, which would authorize numerous projects, including the $285,000,000 St. Lawrence development proposal.

Development of the navigational feature of the project are desirable, but not as urgent from the defense standpoint, Mr. Roosevelt asserted. He reminded that the bill also would authorize resumption of the Florida canal project. Mr. Roosevelt said the canal was not as vital for defense as the St. Lawrence development, and probably should be given second priority rather than first.

If possible, the Chief Executive declared, he would like to see an immediate start on the St. Lawrence project.

Doing some questioning himself, the President got from reporters word that the omnibus bill merely would authorize river and harbor projects. He urged newspapermen to make it clear to the public that there is considerable difference between authorization and an appropriation, and that he was not generally realizing that.

An authorization does not actually get work started, the Chief Executive emphasized but must be followed by appropriation of the necessary funds. When a reporter remarked that it was the first step, the President objected that this was not necessarily true. He said there were essential authorizations totaling $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000, some dating back as far as the time of President John Quincy Adams.

Some of the projects were unworthy and some became outdated, he said, as, for instance, ones which authorized canals of only 6-foot depth.

Bluff and Browne Face 30-Year Terms And $30,000 Fines

Judge Says Conviction On Extortion Charges Will Benefit Labor

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A possible maximum penalty of 30 years in prison and $30,000 fines confront George E. Bluff and William Browne, convicted of extorting $550,000 from movie executives.

If a Federal court jury found the pair guilty on all three counts of an indictment after deliberating only two hours yesterday.

The verdict, climaxing a four-week trial that brought some of Hollywood's top executives to the witness stand, will let fresh air into a lot of homes in this country.

Mr. Turner, after a check of the company's 4,000 employees, identified Forrest Norton Leavitt, 32, and H. M. Kelley, 60, as the other killed in yesterday's blast.

The plant, largest of the multimillion dollar chemical industry in the Kanawha River Valley, suffered comparatively little damage in the localized explosion and the superintendent said operations would be resumed in two or three days.

The plant is situated on an island in the Kanawha River. Sections of the heavily guarded plant are producing national defense materials.

The blast occurred in the tank field where the company stores solvent used in making vinylite, a chemical plastic.

British Lift Ban on Visits To Coastal Sections
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 7.—Britain today lifted restrictions on visits to large parts of her southeast and east coasts, but authoritative sources were silent as to whether the action meant that the threat of invasion had lessened.

The Ministry of Home Security announced easing of the restrictions until February 2, 1942, on the east coast between the Wash and the Thames and along the southeast coast from Littlehampton to Hastings, inclusive.

The action opens once more such sections as Brighton and Great Yarmouth, but in the off season.

The war-imposed ban remains, however, on the Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, most of Kent and the portion of Sussex east of Hastings to the Kent boundary—the strip of England's coast nearest to German-occupied France.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 7.—Incoming thrilled a crowd of 10,000 here today when he captured the sixth running of the Sagamore Handicap, three-quarter-mile feature of a card staged over a heavy track.

Zoster, the early runner, finishing on the extreme outside, won driving. He paid $14.20. Trelawney took the place from First of All.

Incoming raced the distance in 1:15 1/2 and netted his owner $2,095 of the gross purse of $3,060. A claim of foul against the winner was disallowed.

Zoster, a favorite, raced 6 furlongs over a muddy track in 1:16 to land the first race. He paid $6. High Bud placed, with Moslem third.

No Ending outran 11 other platers throughout the mile and one-eighth of the second to pay $19.70. Fans coupling him with Zoster in the daily double collected $107.10. Sun Phantom raced to the place ahead of Dorothy Pump.

Doyle, the early runner, placed of the third. Handicapper, quartered with Rugged Rock third. The winner paid $16.20.

Baris graduated from the maiden ranks when he raced a mile and 70 yards in 1:50 1-5 to pay $6.00. Catan saved the place from Fur.

Chemical Plant Sabotage Doubled in Fatal Blast

By the Associated Press.
SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7.—Plant Supt. R. K. Turner disclosed "almost entirely" today the possibility of sabotage as Federal agents and State police investigated an explosion and fire which killed three men at the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp's huge plant.

H. K. Fox, 30-year-old painter, died early today of critical burns to increase the official toll to three.

Mr. Turner, after a check of the company's 4,000 employees, identified Forrest Norton Leavitt, 32, and H. M. Kelley, 60, as the other killed in yesterday's blast.

The plant, largest of the multimillion dollar chemical industry in the Kanawha River Valley, suffered comparatively little damage in the localized explosion and the superintendent said operations would be resumed in two or three days.

The plant is situated on an island in the Kanawha River. Sections of the heavily guarded plant are producing national defense materials.

The blast occurred in the tank field where the company stores solvent used in making vinylite, a chemical plastic.

British Lift Ban on Visits To Coastal Sections

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 7.—Britain today lifted restrictions on visits to large parts of her southeast and east coasts, but authoritative sources were silent as to whether the action meant that the threat of invasion had lessened.

The Ministry of Home Security announced easing of the restrictions until February 2, 1942, on the east coast between the Wash and the Thames and along the southeast coast from Littlehampton to Hastings, inclusive.

The action opens once more such sections as Brighton and Great Yarmouth, but in the off season.

The war-imposed ban remains, however, on the Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, most of Kent and the portion of Sussex east of Hastings to the Kent boundary—the strip of England's coast nearest to German-occupied France.

Rossy's Comment

Selections for a Good Track at Pimlico

BEST BET—LADY TOURIST.

FIFTH RACE—BEST SELLER.
BEAU BRANNON, WAR KEY.
BEST SELLER lost his first at the local strip by the shortest of margins and he won two straight previously. He may be able to master this good opposition. BEAU BRANNON won several colting good races in recent New York competition. WAR KEY is consistent and a sure contender.

SIXTH RACE—FILLISTEO.
SHOT PUT, RUSSIA.
FILLISTEO won the Exterminator Handicap earlier in the session and he turned back much the same caliber of opposition he faces in this affair. SHOT PUT is a distance runner of recognized ability and he may be hard to dislodge. RUSSIA has won four of his last five attempts.

SEVENTH RACE—DOLLAR BAY.
SON ALTESSE, ARMY SONG.
DOLLAR BAY just galloped along in front to win his last in easy fashion and right after that splendid showing the gelding is selected to turn in a repeat try. SON ALTESSE has good form to his credit and his works say he is fit and ready. ARMY SONG won three straight last month.

EIGHTH RACE—STRAIGHT LEAD.
BILL FARNSWORTH, AARON BURR.
STRAIGHT LEAD lost his last by the shortest of noses and his previous form says he should be able to repeat. BILL FARNSWORTH is consistent and the veteran can force the issue. AARON BURR has been raced into the pink of condition.

THIRD RACE—FLYING FALCON.
MILLRACE, DALMAC.
FLYING FALCON seldom runs a bad race and on his general good form the gelding appears to deserve the call over this evenly matched band of timber-toppers. MILLRACE was in grand form at Saratoga and Delaware and he has been holding well at this point. DALMAC could be in the picture.

FOURTH RACE—LADY TOURIST.
FIRST WATER DRESS BOOT.
LADY TOURIST has been second in four of her five starts and only bad racing luck has kept her from graduating. She has an excellent chance with these half-winners. FIRST WATER has been threatening and the filly could be the main threat. DRESS BOOT can and will better his last time.

SECOND RACE—S T A R.
CHANCE, IRON BAR, DING-MAN'S.
STAR CHANCE was out in his last at Laurel but all of his previous form was so good he just has to be accorded the post of honor. IRON BAR scored over fair opposition at Laurel and his best effort would have her in the thick of it. DING-MAN'S has been threatening to trim a field of this caliber.

THIRD RACE—FLYING FALCON.
MILLRACE, DALMAC.
FLYING FALCON seldom runs a bad race and on his general good form the gelding appears to deserve the call over this evenly matched band of timber-toppers. MILLRACE was in grand form at Saratoga and Delaware and he has been holding well at this point. DALMAC could be in the picture.

Kurusu Visit to U. S. Shows Desire to End Talks, Japanese Say

No Time Limit Set for Concluding Parleys, Spokesman Asserts

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—A government spokesman said today the dispatch of Saburo Kurusu as special envoy to Washington represented "Japan's earnest desire to bring the talks (with the United States) to a conclusion as early as possible."

The spokesman, Koh Ishii, of the Cabinet Information Bureau, said, however, he did not think any time limit had been set for ending the talks.

When his attention was called to frequent newspaper declarations that Japan's "final stand" already had been expressed to the United States, and the question was asked what tack Kurusu would pursue, Ishii said:

"Maybe he will repeat again and make more clear Japan's attitude."

Leaves Hong Kong.

Kurusu left Hong Kong early today for Washington via Manila and San Francisco by Clipper plane.

A dispatch from Manila reported Kurusu arrived there today and visited briefly with High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines.

He was a guest at a cocktail party and dinner given later by the Japanese consul general. He is scheduled to depart from Manila aboard the Clipper at dawn tomorrow.

Ishii said he was unable to reply to a question whether the envoy's flight resulted from some American initiative or was solely Japanese-inspired.

The newspaper declared editorially, however, that while it was not hopeless to try to solve Far Eastern problems peacefully, "it should be made clear that Japan won't pay any price" or give up her national ideals or program.

It was reported that Kurusu was carrying a letter from Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo to President Roosevelt, but there was nothing to indicate whether it was any more than a formal letter for presentation according to protocol.

Hopes Road Will Be Closed.

Lt. Col. Kunio Akiyama, Japanese Army spokesman, told a press conference that the army hopes the Burma road to China will be closed to traffic as it hoped supplies to Chungking would be halted by diplomatic measures, he said.

Chinese forces are massing inside the province frontier and Japanese will counterattack if they make any move, he asserted, although he admitted it would be difficult to maintain communications and supply lines.

He said the Japanese Army was invincible and there was no place in East Asia it could not go if the necessity arose. Asked if that included Siberia, Thailand and Burma, he replied, "I hope the necessity won't arise."

Chinese Favor Placing Road Under U. S. Control

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 7 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today China would be disposed to accept any suggestion for placing the Burma road—China's lifeline for war supplies—entirely under United States direction and control.

A group of American experts returned recently after making a survey of the strategic highway and submitted a report to Generalissimo Chang Kai-shek.

Chinese quarters said that Japanese severance of the Burma road would not finish the war but would have a crippling effect on continued Chinese resistance.

Syracuse Co-eds Lose to Boy Dress Designer

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Robert Shepherd has defeated 30 Syracuse University co-eds in a dress-designing competition, but the girls needn't expect any help from him in correcting their mistakes.

Shepherd's aim is to design clothes of very sophisticated design for the social register group. Co-eds, whom he classifies satirically as "Sloppy Joes," "won't be able to wear them," he says.

Shepherd, a 19-year-old sophomore from Richmond, Ky., is the only male student ever to take the Syracuse clothing construction course. His taste in women's clothes runs to the "fitted silhouette, low necklines and dresses of mid-calf length."

He won the Syracuse competition with a house dress designed for his mother. Last February he took a fashion magazine contest with a design for an evening gown.

LONDON.—COWARD FINED $6,400—Noel Coward (right), British playwright, talking with a bobble outside court yesterday after he was convicted on two charges of violating securities regulations and fined a total of $6,400. The Lord Mayor, in making the finding, said that Mr. Coward should have made it his business to see that any restrictions placed by the government on foreign securities were being obeyed by those acting for him. The playwright had pleaded innocent to the charges and was given a month to pay the fine. Last week he was fined $880 for violation of wartime finance regulations.

Helped by America, British Strengthen Forces in Iran

Fresh Troops Are Sent Along With U. S.-Made Tanks and Planes

By PRESTON GROVER.

Associated Press Foreign Correspondent.

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 6 (Delayed).—Britain was reported today to be steadily augmenting her military power in Iran, bordering the Russian Caucasus, with a stream of fresh troops drawn from the Empire and American-made tanks and planes and the help of two United States military missions to the Middle East.

The American delegations, each headed by a brigadier general, are expected to bolster not only the transportation organization but to manage the repair and supply for American-made planes.

The transportation and ship unloading situations at the head of the Persian Gulf, an intermediate link in the conveyor belt to Iraq, Iran, and the Caucasus, were said to have been vastly improved but were still far from satisfactory.

Steadily Building Strength.

Britain is steadily building up her strength both in Iran and adjacent Iraq, although details on the movement of forces into Iran, being secret, are lacking here at Ankara, perhaps the Middle East's best situated observation post.

The British Middle Eastern front presently reaches up to the Caucasus, now under direct German thrust, but the British preparations may be pointed in other directions besides junction with the Russians.

There is fresh word of German military preparations in Bulgaria, which is separated by Turkey from the British bastions in the Middle East.

The Russian air force will have "pools" of planes far behind the lines, including one in the Caucasus containing upward of 700 aircraft, according to a military observer arriving here from Kuibyshev.

Morale Declared Good.

The Russian Army, he said, has suffered tremendous losses, but retains good morale and has "huge masses" of forces yet in being.

He declared that the Russians were capable of carrying on a defensive fight far into the winter, but badly wanted tanks and heavy artillery for offensive action because, in their constant retreating, they had lost huge quantities of such equipment to the Germans.

Coupled with the reports of British activities in Iraq, Iran and Syria, there were renewed reports that the Germans steadily were preparing air bases and assembly points in Bulgaria for what one military authority called "a quick move in" if such a step were considered desirable either for military or political purposes.

There was a stream of reports from Bulgaria, some only moderately well confirmed, that the Germans were canvassing major towns and

Japan Seeks Support Of U. S. in Protest To Soviet on Sinking

Known Deaths Rise to 20 In Destruction of Steamer by Mine

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—Known deaths in the mine-sinking of the Japanese steamer Kehl Maru rose to 20 today and a Japanese spokesman sought Washington support of Tokyo's protest to Soviet Russia, declaring that floating explosives violated the freedom of the seas.

"America must support Japan's stand on this issue," said Koh Ishii, Cabinet Information Bureau spokesman.

A Domei dispatch from Keijo said reports to the Korean government general showed 281 rescued, 111 still missing and 20 dead from the passengers and crew of the Kehl Maru, a 4,520-ton vessel which was sunk Wednesday night about 130 miles off the coast of Japan and southeast of the minefields of the Russian port of Vladivostok.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch reporting that another Japanese steamer, the 3,275-ton Taku Maru, had gone down in the Sea of Japan off the west coast of Hokkaido, northernmost of the larger Japanese islands. The cause was not determined. Twenty-two of the crew of 46 were reported missing. Lloyd's Register does not list a Taku Maru, but does show a Takumu Maru of 3,276 tons.

Many Mines Found.

The Korean government announced 59 different mines of Soviet make had been swept from the Sea of Japan off Korea and the Japanese Navy said it had located 13 since August 29.

Five Japanese fishing craft were said to have struck mines in the last two months, killing 16 men and injuring three.

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo said the Foreign Office had made a raid and determined protest through Constantinian Smetanin, the Soviet Ambassador to Tokyo, on the Kehl Maru sinking.

This followed a protest September 18 on previous incidents involving loss of Japanese lives in explosions which were attributed to mines which broke from Vladivostok fields.

Awaits Instructions.

Ishii said Ambassador Smetanin, after receiving the protest on the Kehl Maru sinking, said he must obtain instructions from his government before replying.

The spokesman said Moscow had promised precautions before.

"The Soviets said they wish friendly relations with Japan," Ishii said, "but of whether they are sincere in taking precautions I am doubtful."

In the midst of this furor over Japanese-Russian relations the Soviet Embassy held a reception in celebration of the 24th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, dean of the Tokio diplomatic corps, and Charge d'Affaires Eugene Doonan were among those who attended.

history our people has its fate in its own hands.

"Did any one believe that the historic task of reorganizing the continent would fall into our laps easily and almost unearned?"

"History gives nothing away, it only offers. Whoever doesn't help himself and hold fast will lose everything."

Goebbels added that "although we have to bear the most important part of the burden of conducting the war, we still enjoy the highest standard of living among all European nations."

Picturing the future, he said "if we win the war then everything is won: Raw materials, freedom of foodstuffs supply, lebensraum (living space), foundation for the social rebuilding of our state, and the possibility of fulfilling the national destiny for the Axis powers."

He added that "if we lose it, then all that would be lost and even more: Namely, our national life in its entirety."

"No one would want to assume," he wrote, "that European problems would have been settled if Poland in the summer of 1939 had given up Danzig and a corridor through the corridor, or if England and France had agreed to the Fuehrer's offer of peace after a victorious conclusion of the Polish campaign."

He continued that the present war is actually a series of conflicts "which would have been due in a few years if they were not taken up now."

In a note of limitations which the war "has forced on Germans in every phase of life," Goebbels commented that "as difficult as it may be for the individual, he need only look to the side to discover some one who has it even harder."

"Taking it all," he declared, "is everything else except a way of passing time for soldiers. It is a hard, bitter, bloody necessity which entire nations face."

Nobody Is Hungry In Germany, Nazis Reply to Roosevelt

Reich Willing to Match Social Achievements With United States

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Authorized sources, commenting on President Roosevelt's speech before the International Labor Office yesterday, said today Germany was willing to match her social achievements against those of the United States.

The President said labor had become a "slave of the military state" under the Nazi system and that Berlin was "the principal slave market of the world."

"Nobody is hungry in Germany," a spokesman said.

"There are no multi-millionaires, but there is also no proletariat," he continued. "We're glad to be slave if thereby an older slavery is broken and the Reich is led into a period of liberty, comfort and plenty. America's social order is catastrophic."

Unprintable Tirade.

(At this point, the Associated Press was advised in New York, the German spokesman launched into a personal tirade against President Roosevelt, which American correspondents in Berlin agreed was so tactless and filthy as to be unprintable.)

"The Berlin radio likewise apparently omitted the most bitter phrases of the diatribe in its report of the press conference, but did indicate that at least part of the references were to the President's physical condition."

which actually is due to infantile paralysis, a fact with which the American public is thoroughly familiar.)

Turning to Joseph Stalin's speech yesterday, the same sources said it "revealed the spiritual decay of an Asiatic village despot."

Stalin Talk Called Laughable.

His speech was born of fear and terror and "he tried first to scare Germany and her allies, which is of course, laughable; second to encourage the Russian people by producing lying figures; and third, to bring pressure on England and indirectly on America to relieve him by creating an effective western front."

"Stalin said that if the Germans want a war of destruction they will get it, that 4,500,000 Germans had been killed, wounded or captured, and that the lack of a second European front was Russia's chief problem in the war of liberation against Germany."

German spokesmen accused Stalin of going over the head of Prime Minister Churchill and trying to evoke the aid of British listeners.

Further information indicated that the Germans were marking main highways with signs in German, in the same manner as they have throughout occupied sections of Europe. The signs show not only the direction and distances of certain towns, but also point out gasoline, ammunition and food depots, as well as repair centers.

These preparations were said to have been accompanied by the arrival of German technicians for air bases and other military operating centers.

Air Raid Turns Moscow Into Blazing Bedlam As U. S. Writers Watch From Hotel Balcony

(Eleventh of a Series.)

By RALPH INGERSOLL.

I felt that much of Moscow's system of air raid shelters was vulnerable to power plant failure—for not only these reservoirs but also the ventilation systems of their gas-proof shelters were dependent on electric power. The officials I talked with said they had made special provisions for this contingency, but apparently they considered them a military secret, for they would not explain further. The officials I talked with were the general in charge of the whole city and the chairman of one of the district Soviets.

The general was a stout, vigorous man of 40. He radiated confidence and good cheer. Whether it's a tradition of the Moscow city government I don't know, but he and his commanders were the best-dressed soldiers I met in Russia. Their uniforms were immaculate and carefully tailored, and the general's nails were manicured. He also was the busiest man I met. He broke the first four appointments we made and when he finally saw me a steady stream of people kept coming in and out of his office.

All interviews with Soviet officials in their offices have the same routine—and almost the same setting. In front of every Russian desk there is a small table, 2 feet wide and 3 feet long, set at right angles to it and covered with green baize. There are straight chairs on either side of this table and the visitor sits in one. It is very convenient. My interpreter always sat in the other and I could use the table on which to make notes.

Soda Pop Served.
The introductions are very formal when you come in and you are usually introduced and shake hands not only with the principal, but with every one in the outer as well as the inner office. The Russian bows and shakes hands very formally and, if he is a soldier, is more apt to click his heels than not. When every one is seated, cigarettes are produced and lit. After the conversation has gone on for a few minutes some one always appears with a tray, carrying mineral water or soda pop. This is put on the little table in front of the desk, the bottles are opened and every one has a drink.

On visits to a military establishment there will be not one but two men behind the desk—the military officer and his political opposite number. They are like Tweedie and Tweediedum. They are always the same rank and dress exactly alike, except that the political officer has little oval emblems sewn on both arms of his coat sleeve, midway between the elbow and the wrist. The emblem is a hammer and sickle, in gold embroidery on a red field. They are about 2½ by 3 inches in size.

All the political officers I met seemed to be the same age as the commanders to whom they were assigned. A foreigner is puzzled by their relationship to each other. In formal interviews the military is more apt to answer first, but often after a side glance at his partner.

On trips to military establishments, visits to batteries, etc., the military commander seems in charge, the political officer falls silent and usually walks a pace or two in the rear. But neither is supposed to rank the other. Seeking an explanation of his work, the best I could get was that the political officer functions as a combination chaplain, Y. M. C. A. leader, athletic instructor and professor. But even this description is inadequate. The political officer is also expected to set an example under fire.

Rehearsing the roles of political and military officers in battle, I found that more often than not the military officer was the man who made decisions and the political officer then proceeded to see that his orders were carried out. The military officer stayed in headquarters; the political officer went out to the lines from post to post, checking up on things. It didn't seem to be working out badly, although no officer in any other army I talked to is able to make head or tail of it.

Meets Woman Leader.
The general in charge of the air-raid precautions for Moscow is a military man. If there is a political general attached to him I did not see him.

The chairman of the District Soviet was not a general, but a pretty, buxom woman of 30. I was fascinated by her. She seemed a feminist's dream. She had great poise and took instant command of the conversation. I did not interview her, she interviewed me—for an hour—on the organization of shelters in London.

She made a graceful apology, saying I must understand how interested she was, and then gave me a very businesslike resume of how Moscow's organization differed from London's.

The Russians used the tubs as in London—but the Moscow subways are nowhere near as extensive as London's. They are available to a very small fraction of the people.

Taking shelter during an air raid is compulsory in Moscow. The Russians take their rules very seriously, and even the delegation of professional firemen from London who flew to Moscow to lend their assistance were required to retire to the shelters whenever the alarm sounded.

This was the joke of Moscow when I was there. The poor Englishmen, who had been through more air raids than the Russians could imagine, sat night after night on benches in the subway, missing the show they had come so far to see.

Experiences in Raid Told.
In the hotel, as soon as there was an alarm, officials went from door to door routing people out of bed and shepherding them down to the basement shelter. PM's Erskine Caldwell and Margaret Bourke-White—who is his wife and takes pictures for Life—had a wonderful corner suite in the National Hotel, looking out one way across the square to the Kremlin and up Gorki street the other. Miss Bourke-White's air raid pictures, which you have seen in Life, were made despite the authorities, not with their assistance. Like the firemen from London, they were both bundled off to the shelter—until they rebelled.

They rebelled first by hiding. There was an enormous white polar bear rug in their apartment, and the first night they crawled under this and pretended not to be there when the officials came to search the apartment. It was stuffy under the rug, so the next night they hid in the drapes. By the time I arrived they had decided that it was a little undignified to hide. We agreed we would just stay put and see what happened.

On my last night in Moscow the raid did not start until 2 o'clock. I had gone back to my room down the hall and was fast asleep when the sirens woke me. I went back to the Caldwell apartment. We put out all the lights and just sat until the warden came for us. Then we told him in a very determined voice that we were Americans and that we were working. We did not know how to say "we are working" in Russian, so we said "We are Americans and we do not understand Russian"—we knew how to say that—and the word gazetta, which means newspaper. This baffled the warden. He came back several times at intervals of 15 minutes to a half hour but finally gave up.

After that he never bothered us, and we used to order sandwiches and beer at dinner time and set them by in case there would be a raid. When there was a raid we all got together—Archie Steele of the Chicago Daily News usually joined us—and after Peggy had set her camera on the balcony with her shutters open, we all sat down and ate the sandwiches and drank the beer and waited for the planes. Sometimes we had raspberries and sour cream instead of sandwiches. Once the American Ambassador gave us a bottle of whisky, and we drank that. Every once in a while one of us would get up and go out on the balcony to see if we could see or hear the show starting.

Air Attack Described.
It would begin way out on the edge of the city—and sometimes the Chicago Daily News usually joined us—and after Peggy had set her camera on the balcony with her shutters open, we all sat down and ate the sandwiches and drank the beer and waited for the planes. Sometimes we had raspberries and sour cream instead of sandwiches. Once the American Ambassador gave us a bottle of whisky, and we drank that. Every once in a while one of us would get up and go out on the balcony to see if we could see or hear the show starting.

The barrage was very heavy. If a plane got in over the city the Russians seemed to let the whole thing go at once—guns on top of every building for miles. They fired so continuously that all the noises got mixed up—the crash of guns, the pop of the shells from the sky, the screech of the shells going up and the clatter of the shrapnel coming down, the echoes of all these sounds, and the rat-a-tat of the machine guns and the different sounds the different calibers of Zenith guns made.

It all blurred into a continuous roaring, and crashing and whirring and tinkling. The shrapnel would come down in such a rain that where it struck sparks from the pavement in the square it looked like fireflies. When a piece of shrapnel fell close to the balcony it made a noise like a bat flying through the air. Then you had to decide whether it was safe to stay on the balcony, even if you wore a special helmet the government had given Erskine. It had a wide steel skirt on it which protected one's shoulders. It was so heavy no one wanted to wear it for more than a few minutes. We saw no bombs drop.

Loud Speaker Gives Signal.
Sirens like those in London announce the alarm, but do not sound the all-clear. The all-clear comes over a city-wide loud speaker system and echoes through the deserted streets and squares. Moscow's air-raid precaution system has functioned smoothly since the first day of the war—except on that wonderful night when the all-clear came around midnight. People

Handweaving Contest Among Women of Americas Suggested

Other Proposals Made To Commission to Be Voted on Tomorrow

A handweaving contest between women of all the Americas was proposed today by Miss Mary N. Winslow, United States delegate to the Inter-American Commission of Women.

The contest should be limited to American wools, Miss Winslow told the commission at the Pan-American Union.
It will probably have a tendency to raise standards of living, she said.
The proposal was one of several made by commission members today, to be voted on by the entire body tomorrow. The recommendations will then be presented to the Governing Board of American States early in 1942 at Bogota, Colombia.
Standardization of high school and college curricula so students on both continents could exchange courses easily was advocated by Senora Maria Curra de Aya of Colombia. Senora de Aya is also urging that training of all American girls in child culture be required for graduation from high school and college.

Uniform extension of privileges to women in Latin American countries has been proposed for consideration by the commission by its chairman, Senora Ana Rosa de Martinez Guerrero. Women should not only be granted suffrage, she advocates, but the right to hold office in countries where it is denied them. They should be given posts on educational committees and in the diplomatic corps and on American conferences, said Senora de Martinez Guerrero.
Both Senora de Martinez Guerrero and Senora Angela Acuna de Chacon of Costa Rica are asking for establishment of juvenile courts in all countries and admittance of women to wide activity in them.

The delegates tomorrow will attend the national conference for women's organizations to be conducted by the Office of Civilian Defense at the Departmental Auditorium.
The commission yesterday accepted the invitation of Mrs. Eloise Davidson, assistant director of the defense office, to attend the conference. The delegates also sent a telegram thanking the President of the Dominican Republic for his part in changing the country's constitution as a step toward enfranchisement of women.
British Home Guards are being taught jiu-jitsu.

Witness for Langer Defends Bank Policy On County Bonds

Refused to Buy Only When There Was 'Good Reason,' He Says

By the Associated Press.

A former manager of the Bank of North Dakota, who served while Senator Langer, Republican, of North Dakota, was Governor of the State, expressed the opinion before the Senate Elections Committee today that the bank had refused to buy county refunding bonds only when there was "a sufficient good reason" for doing so.

Robert M. Stangler of Grand Forks, N. Dak., who served as manager and in a subordinate official capacity with the State-operated bank between 1933 and 1938, testified that the then Gov. Langer at no time gave him instructions which resulted in refusal to purchase bond issues offered by North Dakota counties.

"I hardly ever talked to Gov. Langer," asserted the witness, first to be called by Mr. Langer in committee hearings on his fitness to hold office.

Questioned by Attorney.

Mr. Stangler was questioned on the point by Francis Murphy, attorney for Senator Langer, who said earlier witnesses had alleged that certain western counties of the State had attempted in 1937 and 1938 to sell refunding bond issues to the State bank but were unable to do so and were compelled to pay a commission to the V. W. Brewer Co.

Mr. Stangler said he was appointed manager of the bank by former Gov. Langer in 1933, and served in that capacity until January, 1937. He continued to act in an official capacity with the bank for two more years, he added, and dealt with county officials seeking to sell bond issues, concurring in all the bank's refusals to buy.

The witness said that when he took charge of the bank "generally speaking, it wasn't a very healthy looking institution" and was "really in a very precarious condition, there isn't any doubt about that."

Hit By Drought.

The bank held large amounts of State, county and municipal securities, he said, and tax collections had been sharply reduced by the drought which hit the State in that period. The bulk of deposits came from public bodies and were subject to sharp fluctuations.

Mr. Murphy said that Senator Langer soon would take the stand himself to "cover every charge" contained in a subcommittee report which recommended the current hearings on allegations of moral turpitude by a group of petitioners.

Senator Langer, Mr. Strangler said, at once took the leadership in enactment of new taxes to meet State interest payments and in the following year the bank was able to borrow between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

"At any time," Mr. Murphy asked, "did Gov. Langer ever tell you what to do in the sense of making loans or not making loans or interfering in any way with your management of the bank?"

"I wouldn't want to answer just yes or no," was the reply.

"State the situation, then," Mr. Murphy told him.

"Gov. Langer's principal concern was to save the institution and to save the credit of the State," Mr. Stangler said. "He used to send city and State officials to me and asked me to do what I could to help them get along."

The petitioners completed their presentation of evidence late yesterday when Andrew B. Feist of Bismarck, N. Dak., testified that he gave false testimony at a coroner's inquest because he followed Senator Langer's instructions as to what to say.

Mr. Feist testified that he was the driver of Senator Langer's car when it overturned in 1940 with Senator Langer and Mrs. Heila Kolstad of Steele, N. Dak., in the back seat, with resultant fatal injury to Mrs. Kolstad.

His opinion was, he told the committee, that a broken steering gear caused the car to go out of control, but that upon instructions from Senator Langer he testified at the inquest that Senator Langer had distracted his attention, causing the accident.

Is Cross-Examined.

"You don't care anything about this insurance company," Mr. Feist said Senator Langer told him before the inquest, "and I'm taking the blame."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Murphy, the witness acknowledged that he had served nine months in jail for selling alcohol in North Dakota.

Richardson Going to Berlin

The United States is sending a new First Secretary to its Berlin Embassy, it was learned unofficially yesterday. He is Gardner Richardson of Hanover, N. H., until recently Commercial Attache at Ankara.

G. W. Johnson Renamed Head of Midway Group

George W. Johnson was re-elected for his fourth term as president of the Midway Civic Association last night at the Morgan School.

Other officers elected were Lawrence Larry, vice president; Malcolm T. Daniels, corresponding secretary; Miss Ursula Jackson, recording secretary; Miss Louise Walker, financial secretary; James Campbell, treasurer; Thornton Simmons, sergeant at arms, and George E. C. Hayes, legal adviser.

About 30 association members volunteered as block air raid wardens after hearing defense plans for the area discussed by Mr. Hayes, as a member of the permanent Civilian Defense Committee.

absence of a second front in Europe against the Germans considerably eases the position of the German Army," the completed version said. "But there also cannot be any doubt that the appearance of a second front on the continent of Europe—and such a front unquestionably must appear in the near future—will essentially ease the position of our armies and be to the disadvantage of the Germans."

Extends Congratulations.

Today's speech broadcast over the Moscow radio, was addressed to soldiers, workers, collective farmers and "brothers and sisters in the enemy rear who have temporarily fallen under the yoke of German brigands."

"Our glorious men and women guerrillas are disrupting the rear of the German invaders," he said.

"On behalf of the Soviet Government and our Bolshevik party, I am greeting and congratulating you on the 24th anniversary of the great Socialist October revolution."

Asserts Enemy Miscalculated.

He continued:

"Today we have to celebrate the anniversary in difficult conditions. . . ."

"We have temporarily lost a number of regions.

"The enemy has appeared before the gates of Leningrad and Moscow.

"The enemy calculated that after the very first blow our army would be dispersed, that our country would be forced to her knees.

"But the enemy badly miscalculated. Despite temporary reverses, our army and our navy are heroically beating off the enemy attacks along the whole front, inflicting heavy losses on him, while our country—our whole country—has organized itself as a single fighting camp in order jointly with our army and navy to rout the German invaders.

"There was a time when our country was in a still more difficult position.

"Remember the year 1918"

"At that time three-quarters of our country was in the hands of foreign interventionists. We had temporarily lost the Ukraine, the Caucasus, Central Asia, the Urals, Siberia and the Far East.

Achieved Victory.

"We had no allies, no Red Army—we had only just begun to create it—and we experienced a shortage of bread, a shortage of arms and a shortage of clothing.

"At that time 14 states were pressing against our country, but we were not despondent. . . ."

"In the midst of the conflagration of war we organized the Red Army and converted our country into a military camp. The spirit of the great Lenin inspired us for war against the interventionists—and what happened?"

"We defeated the interventionists, restored all the lost territories and achieved victory.

"Now our country is in a far better position than 23 years ago. Now our country is many times richer as regards industry, raw materials and food than 23 years ago.

"Now we have Allies, who jointly form a united front against the German invaders.

"Now we enjoy the sympathy and support of all peoples of Europe who have fallen under the yoke of Fascist tyranny.

"Now we have a splendid army and a splendid navy defending with their lives the freedom and independence of our country.

Whole Nation's Support.

"We experience no serious shortage either in foods, arms or clothing. Our whole country, all peoples of our country, are backing our army and navy, helping them to smash the predatory hordes of German Fascism.

"Our reserves of man power are inexhaustible. . . ."

"Is it possible then to doubt that we can and must win victory over the German invaders? The enemy is not as strong as certain terror-stricken, weak intellectuals picture him. The devil is not as terrible as he is painted. Who can deny that our army has more than once put the much lauded German troops to panicky flight?"

"If one judges by Germany's actual position and not by the boastful assertions of German propagandists, it will not be difficult to see that the German Fascist invaders are facing disaster.

"Hunger and impoverishment are now reigning in Germany. In four months of war Germany lost 4,500,000 soldiers. Germany is bleeding to death; her resources are giving out. The spirit of revolt is gaining possession not only of the nations of Europe who fell under the yoke of the German invaders, but of the German people themselves, who see no end of the war.

Straining Last Forces.

"The German invaders are straining their last forces. There is no doubt Germany cannot sustain such a strain for any long time. Another few months, another half year, one year maybe, and Hitlerite Germany must burst victorious banner of the great Lenin wave over your heads. Death to the German invaders, long live our glorious motherland, long freedom and independence. Under the banner of Lenin, onward to victory."

Two Kearny Crewmen Improving in Hospital

By the Associated Press.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Nov. 6 (delayed).—Leonard Frontakowski and Samuel R. Kurtz, two members of the crew seriously injured in the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny, are "coming along very well," according to Maj. Kincheon Bailey, commander of the American Army Hospital here.

Mr. Kurtz, a torpedoman, third class, who comes from Erie, Pa., still is on the "serious" list, but his condition "gives no cause for immediate alarm," Maj. Bailey said. The torpedoman's feet were smashed by the explosion.

Mr. Frontakowski, whose home is in Norfolk, Va., is recovering from a fractured arm and leg, injuries suffered when the torpedo's explosion blew a lifeboat on him.

All other injured members of the crew, most of them suffering from shock or temporary deafness, were discharged within five days after their arrival at the hospital on October 19.

O. P. M. to Ask A. F. L. To Permit Transfers

An administration source said today that one of the main objectives of the O. P. M. conference here November 17 with welders and A. F. L. metal trades leaders was to attempt to work out a plan that would enable members of any metal trade union to shift to another branch of the trade without having to pay new initiation fees or additional dues.

"This will be the first time, it was said, in which the Government will be a party to consideration of internal affairs of a labor union.

The change would be made through changes in regulations and rules of the various trade unions.

Why shop for Fall Clothes?

"Don't get me wrong. I'm getting a new suit this week, just like you. Only this time I'm not walking my legs down to the ankles, looking around. Why should I—when it's such a cinch to get what I want, at Bond's! Now I'm not easy to fit. But Bond's has never failed to show me at least a dozen suits built as though they were made for me. If you like firm worsteds, you've New England's best to pick from. If you go for tweeds or shetlands, you'll see away-from-the-ordinary weaves that'll make you think you're in a custom shop. Rochester-styled and tailored, too—and you know that's about tops for quality. Just take your time, then have 'em trot up that factory-trained fitting expert to add the finishing touches—and you'll be wearing clothes that'll have folks asking 'who is your tailor?' After all, more men wear Bond Clothes than any other clothes in America. There must be a reason. So why run all over town?"

Terrorist Suspects Seized in France in Hotz Assassination

Police Reported Close On Trail of Group In Reimers Attack

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Nov. 7.—The arrest of an alleged group of terrorist plotters said to have been responsible for the assassination of Lt. Col. Paul Friedrich Hotz, German commander at Nantes, was announced today by police.

They declared, too, that they were close on the trail of another group which planned the assassination of Dr. Hans Gottfried Reimers, German military lawyer, at Bordeaux October 21.

One hundred French hostages, half at Nantes and half at Bordeaux, were executed by German firing squads last month in reprisal for the killings, and 100 more were held.

Some of the arrests were said to have been made as far away as Paris, where police declared they found a cache of terrorist equipment during a house-to-house search.

A Jew arrested in the Nantes assassination was said by police to have been identified also as a member of "a real terrorist organization which is believed to have been behind the murder at Bordeaux."

Russian Loan

tion a wise move to bolster the Russian stand against Hitler and thus contribute to his eventual downfall.

Nye Assails Action.

A chorus of condemnation arose from the opposite camp. Mr. Roosevelt was charged with giving away the huge sum without the consent of the American taxpayers, who foot the bill. Senator Nye, Republican of North Dakota, commented acidly: "When we passed the lease-lend law, it was to aid democracies. Now it is to give Brother Joe 1,000,000,000 smackers with no ifs, no ands, no buts."

"I am deeply grateful that the United States has allocated $1,000,000,000 of lend-lease money to Russia," said Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in commenting on the loan. "Russia is amply able to repay us in due time."

"It is better to extend the aid ourselves than to do it through Great Britain. I want the brave Russian people to know that we are sympathizing and co-operating with them in their brave resistance against the invasion of their soil and the desecration of their homes and families."

"May they hurl the invading tyrant beyond their borders. May the Russian arm be strong and her arm be sharp."

McCarran Emphasizes U. S. Defense.

Other comment: Senator McCarran, Democrat of Nevada—"It is high time to apply American money to American defense if we are at all in danger. We should return to constitutional government and matters affecting the national welfare should be submitted to Congress. The money for Russia will come from the American taxpayers and before it was authorized it should have received the taxpayers' consent as expressed through Congress."

Representative Taber, Republican of New York, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee—"If the money is used to beat Hitler I don't want to criticize it."

Representative Short, Republican of Missouri—"I want to help them, truly I do, but I don't want to endorse them and I don't want to see us continue to vote to give billions away to other people. The people will begin to feel it next March. It is wicked and terrible and there will be a revulsion of feeling in this Nation. I wouldn't take sides with any gangster against another gangster, rushing in, at least until I was sufficiently armed myself to be stronger than either one or both of them."

The credit will come from the $5,985,000,000 second lease-lend appropriation which Congress recently enacted. When the measure was under consideration in the House and Senate, the administration forces balked opposition efforts to add a proviso specifically excluding Russia from all benefits paid for by the fund.

Litvinoff Named Ambassador.

Disclosure of the extension of lease-lend aid to Russia coincided with announcement from the wartime Soviet capital, Kuibyshev, of the appointment of Maxim Litvinoff as Ambassador to the United States. His predecessor, Constantine Onizhki, will join the management of Tass, official Soviet news agency.

Litvinoff, who vainly demanded collective action against Germany in pre-Munich days, was deposed as the Soviet's Commissar for Foreign Affairs in 1939 after London and Paris rejected his proposal for a British-French-Russian alliance.

The course of events that now finds Russia and Britain allied against Germany served to take him off the political shelf.

In Berlin, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Völkischer Beobachter, commented that Litvinoff was being sent to Washington "in expectation of increasing American help" which it described as consisting so far only "of golden words, friendly encouragement" and recognition of "non-existent Bolshevik successes."

The enormous bill of goods the new credit represents added a multiplicity of fresh production problems to those already confronting American industry, now struggling to meet the needs of national defense and lease-lend aid to Britain and China.

Delivery Big Problem.

Immediate interest, however, seemed to focus on the problem of delivery and the difficulties of opening and maintaining safe lines of communication.

The Navy recently has been playing an important role in insuring deliveries to Britain, and some thought it might also be used to protect the heavy shipments to the Soviet Union.

The question of delivery likewise spotlighted diplomatic discussions now in progress with Japan and Finland, since both those nations are in a position to menace major supply routes to Russia.

Japan has voiced strong opposition—chiefly through the Japanese press—to the American supply shipments which have been going to Vladivostok, the Soviet's only Pacific seaport.

A NEW SERIES FOR STUDENTS—The map of Brazil, above, was prepared by the National Geographic Society for use in classrooms in Washington's junior high schools for follow-up study of Brazil after a broadcast next Monday over Station WMAL by students of Stuart Junior High School. Next Monday's broadcast, which will be given at 2 p. m., is the first of a series of South American countries being arranged by The Evening Star in co-operation with the National Broadcasting Co. A different republic will serve as the subject for each succeeding broadcast and on each Friday The Star will print a map in connection with the ensuing Monday's broadcast. The broadcast has been so timed that it will occur during a free period at the junior high schools and the pupils will listen in their classrooms. A special lesson plan has been prepared by District school authorities for the follow-up study and the individual teachers will follow the outline in their classroom work. This map is to be cut out and saved by the pupil to aid in the study. It would serve ideally for inclusion in scrapbooks being prepared by those who are saving the articles and maps appearing each Sunday in The Star on strategic regions of the world. The Sunday maps and articles are also prepared by the National Geographic Society.

Mother Learns Flyer Is Safe Before Hearing He Had Fallen

R. A. F. Pilot Puzzles Parent Here With 'All's Well' Cable

A bit of red tape in London spared a Washington mother from knowing that her 24-year-old son, a bomber pilot, was missing until he himself cabled that he was "quite well but a bit shaky."

When that cable arrived from Shan Hugh Dunn, a Central High School graduate, Mrs. William H. Dunn, who lives at 3216 Cleveland avenue N.W., said today she didn't know what to think.

Here's what she found out when her son's letter, written September 30, finally arrived here this week: Young Dunn was piloting an English bomber on a raid over the Continent when his plane was crippled by anti-aircraft fire and crashed into the English Channel. When the plane failed to return to its base, relatives of the crew in England were notified but the cable for Mrs. Dunn went first to Canadian headquarters in London.

"There isn't much of a story behind all this," wrote the young man, "except that we probably got hit over the target and this eventually caused the engine to pick up. We then came down in the sea, fortunately near the coast and so were eventually picked up after a day and a half in the dinghy. I wasn't hurt seriously, but got a bit of a crack across the chest, when we crashed, causing an internal bruise which has practically healed."

with the Germans, has been waging a campaign to cut the railway linking besieged Leningrad with Murmansk, Northern Russian port which has been outside the Nazis' reach.

Hostilities in the Pacific involve Vladivostok and make it impossible for any American supplies to reach the Red Army through that port.

Warning to Japan Recalled.

The Soviet warned Japan on August 27 that it would regard as an "unfriendly act" any attempt to hinder trade between the United States and Vladivostok after the Japanese Ambassador to Moscow declared that shipments of American supplies created "an extremely delicate and difficult situation because these goods have to pass in the proximity of Japanese territory."

With the Finnish Army threatening the Murmansk Railway the United States cautioned Finland that unless it stopped hostilities, now that it had regained the territory lost in the first Finnish-Soviet war, it would forfeit the friendship of the American Nation and people.

While the State Department is awaiting an official reply to that declaration the Finnish radio has hinted at possible acquiescence with a statement that "military operations are drawing to a close as far as our country is concerned."

Other supply routes to the Soviet include a long, roundabout voyage through Arctic waters to Archangel, a Far Northern port utilized by Allied expeditionary forces in World War days, and another long—and as yet uncompleted—overland route through Iran (Persia).

The route through Iran, now under joint Anglo-Soviet control, would be a likely objective of any Nazi drive into the Near East.

1,000 Persons Landed From Seized Vichy Ships

By The Associated Press.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Nov. 7.—Nearly 1,000 persons, including army and navy officers and women and children, were landed at a South African port yesterday from the five Vichy French merchantmen seized last Sunday by the British Navy in the Indian Ocean.

They are classified as "prohibited immigrants" and as such are placed under proper control until they can be repatriated or other provision is made, authorities said.

Plans for Broadcasts Of Schools Furthered At Workshop Session

National Geographic Society to Supply Maps For 'The Americas' Series

More than 100 teachers representing the District Public School Radio Committee participated last night in the second of a series of joint workshop sessions designed to aid preparation of the projected student-participation broadcasts. Sponsored by The Star and the School Radio Committee with the co-operation of the National Broadcasting Co., the broadcast season, which will include four separate series, opens Monday over Station WMAL.

The group last evening heard a message from Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, praising the project and announcing that maps of other South American countries will be furnished by the society for publication in The Star on the Fridays prior to each program of the good-neighbor series. "The American series are Monday presentations of the junior high schools."

Program Commended.

Dr. Grosvenor's note, read by McFall Kerby, chief of school service for the National Geographic Society, commended the program's "great educational value to both teachers and students" and emphasized its "special importance at this time when world conditions make it imperative that we establish closer economic, social and political ties with our fellow Americans."

Wellbourne Kelley, script writer for such outstanding radio productions as the recent biographical "These Four Men" and the lighter "Basin Street Music Society," analyzed specific problems of script preparation, demonstrating with special transcriptions flown here from New York for the occasion.

Mrs. Lillian Evans, noted lyric soprano, who also spoke before the group, offered release of her latest composition, "Hymn to Pan-America," for use on the school broadcasts.

At the close of the joint meeting the respective Radio Committees divided into separate groups for discussion of production details. The Junior High Committee, presided over by Hugh Stewart Smith, completed its script schedule through November, while the elementary school body, headed by Mrs. Gertrude Howard, studied plans for the opening program, November 27, of its series "Science in Our Changing World."

The workshop was held in the Trans-Lux Building.

Mother Reports Son, 17, Struck by Hit-Run Car

Mrs. Frances Bannister, 1669 Columbia road N.W., told police early today that her son John, 17, was struck by a hit-and-run automobile early yesterday at Sixteenth and Lamont streets N.W.

Mrs. Bannister explained she had not reported the accident previously because John apparently had not required medical attention. The youth experienced discomfort last night, however, and the private physician who was summoned ordered him to Garfield Hospital for observation.

Thomas Duvall, 8, of Hyattsville, Md., injured yesterday in a traffic accident in Hyattsville, was in serious condition today at the Washington Sanitarium. Physicians said his skull was fractured.

5,000 Launch Drive For Government Unit's 40% Quota of Chest

Rally Speakers Stress Neighborliness Need In Nation's Capital

Five thousand volunteers in the Government Workers' Unit of the Community Chest today began their task of raising nearly $1,000,000 for Washington's needy after a "pep rally" at the Departmental Auditorium yesterday during which speakers wished them "goodspeed."

Nearly 3,000 workers of the unit, which has a quota of over 40 per cent of the city-wide goal of $2,000,000 this year, attended the rally and heard J. Clifford Folger, campaign chairman, predict that "there will be no disposition on the part of the people of Washington to pass on their taxes to the poor, the sick and the suffering."

"There is one thing that is important to me," Mr. Folger declared, "and that is whether or not we will reach our $2,000,000 goal." He said that advance indications were "good" and added:

"I am betting that the Government Unit goes over the top."

Sees Certain Frailties.

Mr. Folger described "certain frailties" of the Federal City which make it difficult to persons living here to develop a deep community spirit. In the small towns everybody knows every one else's troubles and they all chip in to alleviate them, he said.

Lacking these "neighborly" opportunities, he continued, the people of Washington have to resort to other means and he declared that "the way to do it is to pass the Community Chest hat and let competent persons spread the money around where it will do the most good."

A guest speaker, Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, told the workers he was "ignorant of the details but understanding of the underlying principles" of the Community Chest, which he declared, "are an essential part of all of us."

"It is about time we Americans became willing and anxious to tighten our belts so that those of us who can stand on our two feet can help those who can't," Admiral Land asserted, and added that "charity begins at home."

Washington "Folger Home."

He said because many people worked in Washington but considered other places their real homes was no reason for them to contribute to their local charity, insisting that "we should feel Washington is at least a part of our home if we draw our pay here."

Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz spoke of the founding of the Chest in 1929 and paid tribute to Miss Mabel Boardman, then a Commissioner, for her efforts in its behalf.

Gen. Kutz also decried those who insist that the work of Federal agencies such as W. P. A. leaves no room for private charity.

Coleman Jennings, Chest president, said it was the organization's "universality of appeal" that makes its leaders confident of achieving the goal this year.

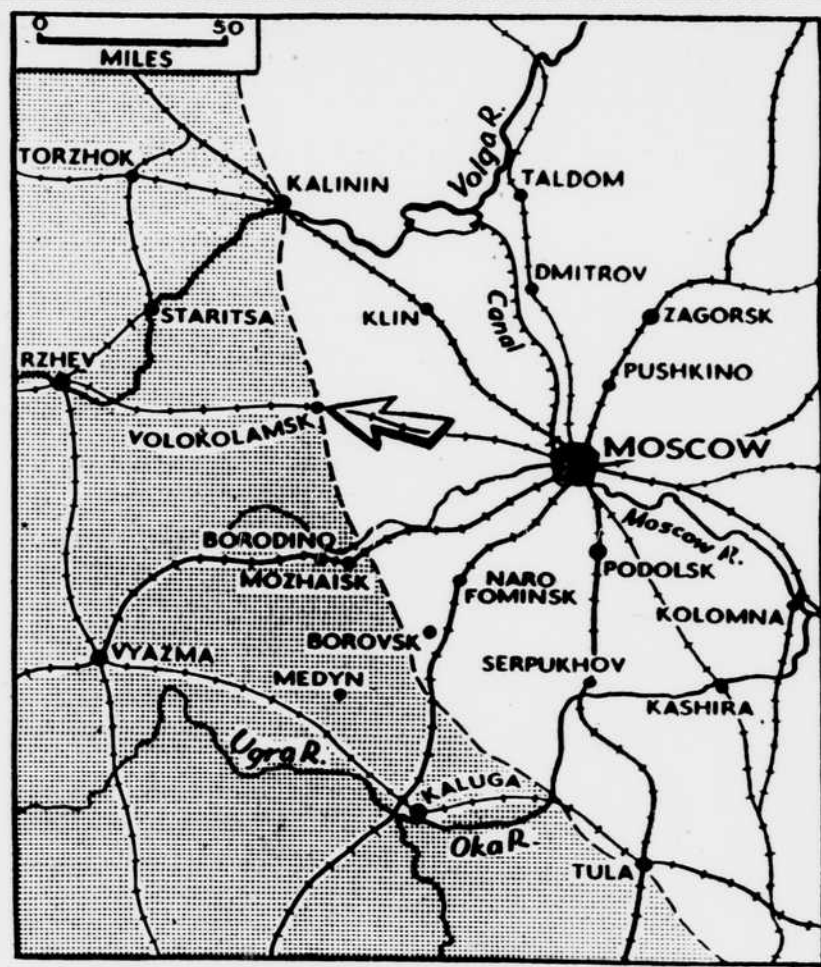

"We know we are working for people of every race, color, creed, age group and section of the city," Mr. Jennings said.

He urged the volunteers to "make their appeals so compelling so important and so vital that people will want to contribute."

Chest Director Speaks.

Herbert L. Willett, Jr., Chest director, told those present to remember that in contributing to its campaign fund "we are being generous to ourselves as well as others."

He explained that 2,600 Federal employees, many of them Chest contributors, had to resort to charities

RUSSIAN COUNTERATTACK REPORTED—Russian front-line dispatches reported today that counterattacking Soviet forces (arrow) were forcing German troops to retreat from positions in the Volokolamsk sector, 65 miles northwest of Moscow. A Berlin report said the head-on German drive against the Russian capital had been stopped by weather conditions. Shaded area represents territory held by German forces.

La Guardia Predicts Defeat of Hitler By Next November

Mayor Backs Legislation To Create Post-War Planning Agency

By the Associated Press.

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City predicted before a Senate Labor Subcommittee today that the European war would end in the defeat of Hitler by November, 1942.

Urging enactment of legislation to set up a post-war planning agency, Mayor La Guardia expressed belief that speedy action was needed to meet the disruption in industry that would follow the cessation of hostilities.

"I am firmly convinced," he testified, "that if we get defense production speeded up and there are no labor disturbances—if we get production for lease-lend purposes increased—I think this war in Europe will be over by November, 1942."

Urging enactment of legislation to set up a post-war planning agency, Mayor La Guardia expressed belief that speedy action was needed to meet the disruption in industry that would follow the cessation of hostilities.

"I think Hitler will go through this winter all right, but I can't think he can go through the next one."

Mayor La Guardia, noting that a large number of industrial plants of the country had been shifted to defense production, said there were certain to be dislocations of employment when the war ends.

The mayor said any money spent under the pending bill, for planning post-war employment-giving projects would be "saved 10 times over."

"People just won't starve any more," he told the committee. "The Government can't just shrug its shoulders when the war ends and say that the resulting depression is just a normal thing to be borne. People have learned that they must eat—that they are going to eat."

Mayor La Guardia, just re-elected for a third term, said he didn't know how expensive projects were going to be financed after the war or who was going to finance them.

Public Needs Discussed.

The Mayor said post-war planning should not be confined to proposed governmental projects, but should include railroads and other semi-public organizations.

Outlining public needs, Mayor La Guardia said planning should include sewage disposal plants, hospitals and schools, as well as roads, tunnels and other transportation facilities.

"If we were to build all the sewage disposal plants this country needs, the cost would run into billions," he said.

Many areas in the country, he continued, were "badly in need of hospitals."

Projects costing $2,000,000,000 to $2,500,000,000 could be fitted into a post-war program by "intelligent" planning," the mayor said. Unless such a work program is set up "a terrible period of depression and discouragement would result after the emergency."

Need to Act Now Stressed.

"Even now the severe economic dislocation has resulted in unemployment in many areas," he continued. "Just multiply that a thousand times and you will get a faint idea of what will occur when the thousands upon thousands of men in defense work are thrown out of jobs. It's a situation which we must take steps to meet."

Some effort should be made, he went on, to "bring order out of chaos in the tax system" or else the post-war period would present almost insurmountable difficulties on that score.

"War doesn't frighten me any more," he declared. "It's the after-war period that is frightening."

row night at the Elks' Home on Rhode Island avenue; the second, a bean dinner November 15; the third a program at the Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church November 23; and the last event will be a Middle Atlantic Regional Conference in January.

District Subway Urged As Air-Raid Shelter

A subway for the District today could provide an air-raid shelter tomorrow, Robert M. Sentman, national defense committee chairman of the Washington Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, declared in a radio address here last night.

"Certainly the Nation's Capital should be a model of preparedness and utility—a subway today could provide the air-raid shelter of tomorrow," he asserted in a broadcast over Station WJLA.

He said the federation endorsed and urged the immediate enactment of the rent-control bill for the District and added that "more housing must be made available in the District."

Your Eyes Are Priceless Insist on the Best

The making of modern lenses so efficient—

Still to be heard from are about 1,000 "big givers," or more than half the prospective contributors whom volunteer solicitors in the Advance Gifts Unit are now striving to reach.

The unit quota attained, however, stood at 63 per cent at the close of last Tuesday's report meeting. Money totals on that day were slightly above those of last year at the same period, but the number of gifts were lower, according to E. N. Lewis, Chest campaign director and secretary of the Advance Gifts Unit.

Under the leadership of Richard H. Wilmer, chairman, the unit volunteers are striving to complete their task before the Chest campaign proper opens on November 13. Numbered among the volunteer solicitors now devoting time and effort to the advance appeal are 150 leaders in social and business circles.

'Big Ten' Alumni Plan Fete

Alumni of "Big Ten" universities will hold a cocktail party at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Carlton Hotel. A "Big Ten" round-up dance will be held at Wardman Park Hotel November 29.

Advance Unit Meets

The Chest's Advance Gifts Unit was to meet at 12:30 today in the Willard Hotel, seeking to speed the pre-campaign collection of gifts from the city's wealthier inhabitants.

"For Their Tomorrow—" Tune In at 7:45 O'Clock Tonight on Station WMAL For a Dramatization of the Story Told in These Pictures

Where these overcoats go, people recognize the sleeve symbol— I. V. N. S. for Instructive Visiting Nurse Society. Before taking down their coats to begin the day, the nurses pack their kits, each a clinic in a black leather bag.

Maternity in a second-floor flat. Mother had her baby at home but the visiting nurse was there weeks ahead to help prepare for the coming baby—to explain to Jimmy and Gena and Mary about the new brother or sister. Nurse saw to it that Mother visited a pre-natal clinic, that she didn't work too hard, that she ate the right things. When the doctor arrived, everything was ready. After the baby was born, the mother returned. She arranged for a friend to come in and take care of the housework and the other children. Sometimes she can't find a friend or relative. Then the mother would be alone with the new baby if it weren't for the visiting nurse.

Eight times in the first 10 days of the baby's life, the nurse returns. In homes where there is little for a new baby, the nurse may prepare an orange crate or a deep bureau drawer as a crib, protect the infant's towel from dirt under a newspaper-covered hanger marked "baby." She keeps the mother from doing too much too soon. Besides weighing the baby every week for the first month, she shows how to feed and bathe it. Sometimes a new mother has questions. When will the baby smile? Should it have toys? How about its first teeth? Is it gaining enough? Vaccination? The nurse has the answers.

A child is sick in a houseboat on the Anacostia River. That's where the second nurse goes. When the tide is high and the wind strong, the houseboat veers from its moorings. The nurse has to jump to make the plank. Inside, the nurse must balance herself against the swaying of the boat, fetch water from a spigot up the road along the river bank. Visiting nurses go through snow to desolate huts, pump water from wells, venture into alleys, climb countless stairs, walk many miles carrying eight-pound bags that grow no lighter. They give diabetes injections, dress wounds, leave reports for doctors, arrange for isolating patients with communicable diseases, bring cheer to the aged and suffering, relief from worry to the fearful. Sometimes as they walk along, a call comes from a window. People stop them on the street. "Can you just step in a minute and look at my baby?" Once, called in off the street, the nurse found a child whose back already was curved with spinal meningitis.

The third nurse visits a woman who can walk only a few steps. The wheelchair, loaned by I. V. N. S. from among the half dozen it circulates, frees the invalid from her room. She can go to church, even visit a friend. The role that I. V. N. S. plays in the city's life will be dramatized tonight at 7:45 o'clock on Station WMAL. To maintain that role, I. V. N. S. must be supported by your Community Chest contribution because two-thirds of its service is free. Contributions are already being made to the Chest in Government departments and elsewhere in the city. This is the second of a series to be published in The Star. —Star Staff Photos.

Odlum Cites Need To Give Small Plants Defense Work

O. P. M. Official Becomes Ill After Speaking In Kansas City

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Nov. 7.—Spreading of defense work among smaller firms will accomplish two objectives, Floyd B. Odlum, director of O. P. M.'s contract distribution division, told a Nation-wide radio audience last night. "First, our defense effort is speeded up. A tank or an airplane now may be worth 10 to 20 years from now. In the second place, these factories are kept busy and are preserved for the soundness of our economic life." Illness today prevented Mr. Odlum from participating in the opening of a five-day Midwest defense clinic. Mrs. Odlum, the Jacqueline Cochran of aviation fame, said the illness, manifest by a badly swollen ankle, had not yet been diagnosed. The condition appeared yesterday and became worse last night after Mr. Odlum spoke. He remained in his hotel suite today. In his speech last night he said that "in the first phase of the defense goods were placed quite naturally with the established large producers whose ability duty to deliver was well known to the armed services. . . . "But all this must now change, all plants that cannot stay in civilian work and that have suitable machinery or tools should get into defense work, before they can be reached and converted to defense orders. We are working on that problem now in connection with other interested divisions of O. P. M., and we hope to find at least a partial solution. . . . "American industry, working together, can solve this problem. The solution is in the interests of big as well as little business. I am sure that at the conclusion of the present struggle the German leaders will be forced to say again, as they said in 1919, that American industry placed itself practically in the service of the country and that it understood war."

Rent Bill Changes

The Senate District Committee acted wisely in eliminating the highly objectionable Patman amendment before voting approval of the House-indorsed District rent-control bill. This amendment, hastily written into the bill on the floor of the House, would have had the effect of burdening the rent administrator, tenants and landlords with complicated procedures reminiscent of Washington's ill-starred rent-fixing experiences just after the first World War.

The Senate committee tentatively approved four amendments to the bill, at least two of which have merit. One of the latter amendments would require approval by the Commissioners of staff appointments made by the administrator. The other calls for semi-annual reports by the administrator. The necessity and desirability of two other tentative amendments are open to question, however. One would give the Senate veto power over any nomination made by the Commissioners for the post of administrator. There seems to be no precedent for such a course with respect to appointments by the Commissioner and the advisability of starting the practice now is yet to be shown.

And yet, if our war effort is to achieve its maximum efficiency, corrective action must come from one of the two sources. Mr. Roosevelt's admission against the danger of waiting—as did the French—until it is too late, does not apply to the ranks of labor alone.

Governor Sulzer

The vast majority of living Americans probably never heard of William Sulzer until the notice of his death yesterday was released to a careless world. The erstwhile Governor of New York impeached and removed from office twenty-eight years ago, might almost as well have perished with his reputation. He survived to his own discomfort. Strangers to Manhattan found him in the lobbies of obscure hotels, repeating his version of his troubles—a ghost which symbolized an era in American politics.

The time to which Mr. Sulzer belonged was that of the split in the Republican party and the rise of Tammany Hall to the ultimate heights of power in the Empire State. His career began on a farm in New Jersey, where he was born the second of the seven children of a German immigrant and his Irish wife. The family removing to New York, he grew up, as Al Smith later did, in the streets of the East Side. A voyage on a brig around Cape Horn convinced him that he did not wish to be a sailor. He became, instead, a clerk in a wholesale grocery house and attended night classes at Cooper Union for a while. By 1889 he was a member of the Assembly. In 1893 he was chosen Speaker. In 1894 he was elected to Congress. Exactly when the inner circle of Tammany bosses decided to halt his further advancement is not a matter of record. Neither has it ever been made clear why they determined to eliminate him. The fact is that he was "out of step" as early as 1898.

Mr. Sulzer's strength in his own district was a tribute to his personal qualities. He was popular with his constituents because he deserved to be. Upstate, however, his hold upon the voters was that of a professed reformer. He won support in normally Republican territory by promising correction of prevailing abuses. His nomination in 1912 was gained at the expense of Charles F. Murphy, Tammany dictator, who preferred that John Alden Dix should be named again. The "gang" did not forget its grievance when the candidate it hated was victorious. From the moment of his success, the winner was doomed. Only defeat could have saved him.

It cannot be denied that Mr. Sulzer was technically guilty of the misdemeanors with which he was charged. The High Court of Impeachment, consisting of fifty-one members of the State Senate and seven members of the Court of Appeals with the chief justice presiding, sustained the charges that he had filed a false statement of his receipts in his gubernatorial campaign, that in his statement he had committed perjury and that he had used threats to suppress evidence. He was ousted at the end of nine months of turbulence—as he probably deserved to be. Yet "the villain in the piece" was his opponent, the uncrowned czar of Tammany Hall. The national public realized that there would have been no difficulty if the Governor had submitted himself and the control of his office to "Boss" Murphy.

World's Slave Market

The President's message to the delegates attending the convention of the International Labor Organization clearly was an effort to warn American workers that they may look forward to a status bordering on slavery if the Germans are successful in their effort to conquer three-quarters of the world.

Berlin, as Mr. Roosevelt put it, is the principal slave market of the world. Not only has German labor been enslaved, but the Nazis have also imported some two million non-German workers and reduced them to a status approximating serfdom. This policy of conquest and enslavement is a cardinal point of the Nazi philosophy and there is no slightest doubt that it will be progressively implemented as the Reich's armies move from victory to victory. The final result, unless the plundering forces of aggression are checked, inevitably will be the collapse of the whole structure of free American labor, for, as the President said, the liberty of the workers and the very safety of the people of the United States cannot be assured in a world which is three-fourths slave and one-fourth free.

Whether this direct appeal to the rank and file of American labor will be heeded remains to be seen. In Mr. Roosevelt's judgment, the menace to our military production program lies in the selfish and short-sighted tactics of a small minority of industrialists and labor leaders—the few who "place their little victories over one another above triumph over Hitler." It may be that this estimate of the problem is correct—that the obstructionists are numerically unimportant. Probably the mass of American workmen would be willing to subordinate relatively unimportant things in the larger purpose of winning the war. But, so far as labor is concerned, there has been little evidence that a majority in the ranks is ready to disavow the leadership of an obstructionist minority, and there has been equally little evidence of any disposition on the part of the administration to insist that this minority fall into line.

And yet, if our war effort is to achieve its maximum efficiency, corrective action must come from one of the two sources. Mr. Roosevelt's admission against the danger of waiting—as did the French—until it is too late, does not apply to the ranks of labor alone.

Burma Stirs

Everybody has heard about the Burma road—the mountainous life line of Free China with the outer world. Most persons know that the road, up to the Chinese border, traverses British territory. But relatively few Americans realize that the long route from the busy port of Rangoon on the Indian Ocean to the rugged Chinese frontier runs through a country inhabited by a proud people which, like so many other Oriental races, is stirring with vigorous self-consciousness and aspires to nationhood.

The rising tide of Burmese nationalism is dramatized by the current visit to London of the Burmese Prime Minister, a gentleman with the unusual name of U Saw. He flew thither from his homeland a month ago to demand that the principle of self-determination for all peoples, announced at the close of the first World War and recently reaffirmed in the "Atlantic Charter" proclaimed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, be formally promised Burma, too. Mr. U Saw evidently has become impatient that the pledge he sought has not been forthcoming from the British government, for he has just issued a warning statement that Burma's attitude toward the war is dependent on its national prospects. Behind that statement lies an interesting story of a two-fold nationalistic agitation, directed against both Burma's connection with British India and its position within the British Empire.

The Burmese are the westernmost of a belt of peoples inhabiting the great southward projection of Asia which lies between China and India. All of them are of mixed Mongoloid and Malay blood. Equally composite are their cultures, derived from both Indian and Chinese sources, but they have a common bond in the Buddhist religion, which they all profess.

During the 19th century Burma was subdued by Britain in a series of wars, just as the Indo-Chinese peoples fell under French rule. Between them lay the Siamese or Thais, who managed to retain their independence and became a buffer state between the British and French colonial empires. Burma was a typical Oriental kingdom, loose-jointed and despotic. It was not a "nation" in the Western sense, and its people had no true national consciousness. Although Burma had never had any political connection with India, it was governed by the British Indian authorities for administrative convenience, and the Burmese did not object to this arrangement so long as India itself had no self-government. But the rise of a nationalist movement in India alarmed the Burmese, who do not like Indians and who objected to the influx of Hindu laborers, shopkeepers and money lenders in the wake of British rule. At the same time, the spectacle of Siam, or Thailand, successfully reorganizing itself on modern lines made the Burmese wish to free themselves from the Indian connection and also to obtain at least self-government within the British Empire, with independence as the ultimate goal.

Britain recognized that there was no reason why Burma should remain part of India, and political separation was granted in 1937, together with a measure of self-government, including a legislature with limited powers. This, however, has not satisfied the nationalists, and a growing agitation has troubled the country, with sporadic disorders and political demonstrations. The numerous Buddhist monks have done much to spread anti-British feeling, and Japanese agents have been busy for years fomenting unrest. The present war naturally has increased nationalist tension in Burma. It is a delicate situation which will test British statesmanship in its handling.

U. S. Promotion Plan

The promotion plan contemplated by the Ramspeck-Mead Act is brought closer to realization by President Roosevelt's request to Congress for funds to get it started. Designed when in full operation to benefit more than 650,000 men and women in the Federal and District Governments, the measure fills a long-recognized need for a program that will assure periodic advancement for competent workmen. In the classified service salary brackets below $3,800 annually, employees whose efficiency rating entitles them to recognition will get increases ranging from $60 to $100 every eighteen months. In the upper brackets, the increases will range from $200 to $250 but will be given at thirty-month intervals. Under this arrangement, it will be possible for the maximum in a grade to be reached in nine or ten years. Comparable raises will be given to those employees outside of the classified service who are paid under the so-called "emergency order" schedules.

The program was worked out by the Budget Bureau in response to a request from the House Appropriations Committee which noted in appropriation estimates a marked variance in the promotion policies among agencies. In many instances injustices have resulted. The plan not only will equalize conditions among the agencies themselves, but will make it possible for qualified workers to get promotions as a matter of right, instead, perhaps, of depending on the whim of an employing officer.

The President is asking for $3,236,327 for the program this year, and if it is carried out on the lines proposed, an appropriation for the purpose will be required annually hereafter. Over a term of years, however, sponsors are confident that the plan will return dividends in the shape of increased efficiency and lowered turnover.

Big Shot

One feature of the savage mind is its delight in exaggerated glory. Perak, for instance, is a little kingdom stuck away in the Malay Peninsula, but its ruler, the Sultan, does not let that fact dismay him. After reading his official title, which can be done in two deep breaths, one feels that he is wasting his talents in Perak, and should be given a suite at 10 Downing street, with Churchill as office boy. Here is his title: "King of kings, brought to earth by Adam; the god whose right eye is the sun, whose left eye is the moon; master of the bearded lance and armored beetle; owner of the sword made of steel and the talking saber which cries when sheathed and laughs when drawn; lord of the city of Rome; owner of the air; collector of taxes by the bushel basket; lord of the burning mountain who may slay without committing a crime; possessor of the tall coconut that requires ten years to climb; owner of the man of twelve-karat gold; possessor of the calawang wrapped in an unmade chinday; and master of the sea."

As Hitler has said in "Mein Kampf," if you pile it on thick enough some of it is bound to stick, and no doubt his title helps him to get those bushel baskets of taxes from awe-struck subjects. At least it puts them to the annoyance of disproving his claims, and one at least seems impossible to refute, namely, ownership of the calawang wrapped in the unmade chinday, neither of which presumably precious objects is listed in the dictionary.

There are a number of highly authoritative lists of the "ten greatest thinkers of history." An honorable eleventh place should always be reserved for that estimable guest who "thinks he will go home" and proceeds to do it.

"The Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave" we carol lustily about America. It also seems to be a country wherein members of the gentler sex bravely and freely throw eggs at the distinguished Ambassador of a friendly power.

In playing a twelve-inch record the needle of a talking machine travels no less than 730 feet. This gives a faint idea of the daily mileage of the tongue of a steady talker.

Lewis Compared With Other Labor Leaders

Writer Tells How Mitchell Called Strikes and Gompers Was 'a True Dictator'

By Bertram Benedict.

Is John L. Lewis riding for a fall? His hold upon his miners seems firm, but what the C. I. O. as a national organization thinks of him may be another story. For one thing, Lewis has been hurling invective in the direction of Sidney Hillman, who as associate director of O. P. M. directs the Government's policy toward labor, and many C. I. O. unions swear by Hillman as fervently as Lewis swears at him. The 1941 national convention of the C. I. O. opens on November 17.

What the future holds for Lewis, of course, cannot be foretold with any confidence, but the rise and fall of certain American labor leaders in the past may give some inkling of Lewis' future. There was, for instance, John Mitchell, who also was president of the United Mine Workers. In his day the miners called him the greatest labor leader America had ever seen. The bituminous miners finally turned against him, but the name of John Mitchell is still one to conjure with in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania.

John Mitchell became president of the miners' union in 1896. At that time the union was a sorry affair, weak, dispirited, rent by racial and religious differences. Mitchell did wonders in organizing. Then, in 1902, he called a strike in the anthracite mines which had the entire country by the ears for five months. If President Roosevelt, in the recent strike in the captive coal mines, had ordered the Army to take over the mines and operate them, he would have had a precedent. For in that great anthracite strike called by Mitchell in 1902, the President of the United States—another Roosevelt, by the way—was on the very point of taking over the mines. It was that threat which finally brought the operators to consent to arbitration.

By the terms of the arbitration, Mitchell got for his miners concessions from the employers almost unheard of thitherto. But several years later Mitchell called strikes which were less successful. Finally he was defeated for the presidency of the United Mine Workers in 1908, after 10 years in that office, and withdrew altogether from the ranks of labor.

In personality Mitchell was at the opposite pole from John L. Lewis, who so far has been the miners' president for 21 years. Where Lewis is domineering and uncompromising, Mitchell was suave and moderate. President Theodore Roosevelt said Mitchell was the only man who had acted like a gentleman, not excepting the President himself, in the White House conference which led to arbitration of the 1902 anthracite strike.

Some American labor leader of the past somewhat like John L. Lewis in personality was Daniel De Leon. Few persons today will even recognize the name, but in his heyday De Leon was the intellectual leader of the American radicals. He was graduated from the Columbia University law school, and afterwards held for six years a lectureship at Columbia on Latin-American problems. Lenin himself was to say years afterward, that De Leon's writings on labor were magnificent, and incorporated the germ of the Soviet system which Lenin had set up in Russia.

But De Leon squabbled with everybody. He got and retained control of the Socialist Labor party, but never could hold more than a handful of members within its ranks. Attacking the old-line unions, he led a secession movement out of the Knights of Labor, and founded a rival national labor body, only to have that fold up on his hands.

Some associates whom De Leon antagonized finally left him and formed in 1899 what soon became the Socialist Party of America. De Leon helped to organize the Industrial Workers of the World (I. W. W.) in 1905, but several years later that outfit disowned him, too.

The greatest American labor leader of all, Samuel Gompers, was not unlike John L. Lewis in bearing and personality. Gompers organized the A. F. of L. in 1886, and was its president for every year except one up to his death in 1924. Gompers, a true dictator, brooked no opposition. He behaved as ruthlessly in administering his personal machine in the A. F. of L. as does Lewis in administering the United Mine Workers today. Gompers completely dominated the hard-boiled leaders who made and make up the individual unions within the A. F. of L. When John L. Lewis as head of the U. M. W., then the largest single union in the A. F. of L., dared to run against Gompers for the A. F. of L. presidency in 1921, Gompers beat him hands down.

Gompers could be a fire-eater on occasion. In 1908 he defied a court injunction against a strike (the Bucks Stove and Range case), and was sentenced to jail for his pains. He was prepared to go to jail, too, as a labor martyr. Eventually the Supreme Court, probably recognizing that the situation was full of dynamite, found a way out by declaring Gompers protected by the statute of limitations.

Because his views and his program were essentially moderate, Gompers got by. His fight was for hours, wages and union organization, and he was glad to co-operate with any political party or leader who would co-operate with him. He incessantly fought the radicals in the labor movement, derided the Red intellectuals and theorists, waged ceaseless war against the Socialists and the I. W. W.

Gompers loyally supported the United States in the war against Germany in 1917-18 and thereby helped to put organized labor into a stronger position than ever before. He always could declare with much truth that if he were overthrown labor leadership would go to elements more revolutionary, more willing to upset the entire apple cart to gain labor's ends. Then there was Terence V. Powderly, the Gompers of his day. The predecessor, and for a time the Knight of Labor, and for all 14 years in which the Knights were really powerful, their leader was Powderly. But he led his organization badly, and before 1900 it had collapsed. Powderly, personally a gentle soul, lost out partly because other labor leaders, notably Gompers, were wiser than he, partly because he misread the times and the temper of the American people.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"LEGATION STREET. "Dear Sir: "Your championship of the sparrow must certainly be due in large part to change in his habits for the better in recent years and no doubt caused in no small measure by enforced departure from city streets where he was the complete bully in search of food.

"Nevertheless, he still retains more than a trace of his former characteristics as witness the following bird tragedy watched by a friend from the front porch of her house on a Montgomery County farm. "On the lawn atop a post she had a large martin box, in one cell of which a wren began to make a nest. In a tree some 30 or 40 feet away a pair of sparrows had made a nest in a bird box in a tree and were looking after a newly hatched brood.

"As soon as the sparrows discovered the wren attempting to nest in the martin box, they began a concerted effort to destroy her nest as fast as she built it, took straws and sticks away from her and persisted in destructive tactics. "After putting up with these annoyances for some days the wren was finally goaded to a desperate act. "She deliberately flew to the sparrows' nest when both parents were away, picked up one of the baby sparrows, flew out of the nest holding it in her bill and as deliberately dropped it, killing it.

"Was this act of the wren unique? At any rate, the performance of the sparrows would seem to indicate that there is still plenty of room for improvement in their behavior. "Yours very truly, M. F. K."

Nelie Blanchard writes: "However angelic the voice of the house wren, its temper can put to flight even the English sparrow. Need description go further? It must be admitted that Jenny is a sad shrew."

Alice E. Ball writes: "Wrens are valiant defenders of their nests, but have been driven away from favorite nesting places by quarrelsome English sparrows; consequently wrens are decreasing in numbers. Wren houses with openings about an inch in diameter, too small for sparrows to enter, may help somewhat to check the decrease of these valuable insect-eating birds."

From "Birds of America" we quote: "Dr. Eaton notices that house wrens pay frequent visits to the nests of yellow warblers, chipping sparrows, and other species which live near his home, and peck small holes in the eggs." "The National Geographic Society's 'The Book of Birds' states: "Although the house wren is an attractive, vivacious little midget, its presence is not always an unmixed blessing for its bird neighbors. On occasion it slips slyly into their nests and with its sharply pointed bill proceeds to puncture the eggs and so destroy them."

Letters to the Editor

Wants Consideration For Letter Carriers. To the Editor of The Star: In view of the publicity given the proposed salary increases for policemen and firemen in the District of Columbia, it is realized that these District employees are furnished "all of their wearing apparel" and, further, are given car and bus riding privileges?

Why not make similar concessions to our city letter carriers? They do not have car and bus riding privileges and are not given any part of their uniforms, though they are out in all kinds of weather and the wear and tear on their uniforms is great. Their hours of labor, exposed to the elements, far exceed that of either branch just mentioned. Their top pay is but $2,100 per annum.

Cannot their service be recognized for their letter to the general public? We depend on the carriers at least 313 days a year, at least two or three times a day, through rain, snow and sleet, and protest if there is a delay. EX-POSTAL EMPLOYEE.

Argues That the United States Has Been "Invaded" by Germany. To the Editor of The Star: Only a sacrifice of the United States Constitution to the predatory pretensions of a lawless military organization, a slavish submission to international banditry impossible to conceive, could imaginably postpone the inevitable reply of America to Germany's hostility.

The United States is invaded by Germany. Public vessels form a part of the territory of the nation whose flag they lawfully display and the Supreme Court in a solemn decision decreed that the political department of the Government, if America is invaded by a foreign force, besides possessing the power is bound to recognize the challenge and not delay for any special act of legislation.

The Government's duty is plainly defined. The Constitution entrusts the political department with exclusive power in deciding what degree of force a crisis of the sort requires, and the courts are governed completely by the acts and decisions of the Government in such determinations. The continuous intended violence of Germany against American public vessels is war against the United States and not "strained relations." Such violence is official recognition by Germany of the existence of a state of war.

By reason of the actual invasion, the Government's judgment may be final in respect of the measure of force to be employed against Germany. The sovereign possesses the right partially to suspend a state of war for reasons that are deemed to be adequate, and during a hostile period the sovereign power is exercised by the political department. However, the power seems to be exercised reasonably to avoid an official recognition of the existence of a condition of war, and the historians of this emergency probably will assert that "defense" was adopted by our Government as a euphemism for war that was intended to be confined within defined bounds pending less decisive action by Congress, which in turn must desire the people's indisputable sanction of war.

The legal fiction that a mercantile vessel is part of the territory of the craft's flag is insignificant in contrast to the extreme seriousness with which a war vessel universally is respected as

So it may be seen that no bird is an angel, but each acts, according to nature, in the way which is its own. Most species of birds now and then will attack the nests of other species. Grackles often kill the young of other birds in the nest. Blue jays are said to fly away with the eggs of robins and others. It must be remembered that birds have a difficult time of it, at nesting season, to find enough food for both themselves and their babies. Often the parents go hungry, in order to satisfy the needs of the youngsters. Hour after hour they must fly around, trying to find enough worms and insects to satisfy the hunger of the little ones. Practically all species are brought up on insects and small worms. These foods insure the young of plenty of necessary proteins for rapid growth. The baby birds know nothing about vitamin B-1, but they get it just the same. And they receive, in their daily diet, all the amino-acids, and the various minerals, and no doubt other vitamins, including the famous sunshine vitamin D. Nature takes care of all these matters for them.

But the process of finding the food is another matter. That is up to the parents. And they know, with the uncanny wisdom of natural creatures, that other nesting birds too close to them make the task almost impossible. Scientists tell us that the beautiful spring songs of the birds are not only love ballads, as mankind so likes to fancy, but also that they are in the nature of staking a claim to a certain amount of territory.

The loud songs notify other birds, and especially others of the same species, that nesting is going on, and that to build too close will mean a fight. It can be understood that not all birds are as belligerent as some. Cardinals, for instance, manage to carry on their nesting without much fighting. But last summer we watched a mother cardinal chase a blue jay scores of times, simply because he insisted on coming to a feeding station which was within 50 feet of the cardinal's nest.

We do not believe that the English sparrow is any worse than many other species—including the wren—when it comes to causing trouble at nesting time. Nor are we at all convinced that the decrease in numbers of the house wren is due entirely to quarrelsome English sparrows. Most bird species have decreased in numbers in recent years, especially in and near large cities. Maybe man, the terror of the ages, has something to do with it, too. As long as he insists on having a world war every 25 years, it ill behoves him to find fault with the sparrows.

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing The Evening Star Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. Please inclose stamp for reply.

Q. Who was the first Army officer to die in an airplane accident?—F. L. A. A. On September 17, 1908, Lt. Thomas E. Selfridge was killed when a plane piloted by Orville Wright crashed.

Q. Why is part of Illinois called Egypt?—C. J. D. A. Egypt is a colloquial term applied to the southernmost quarter of Illinois. Various traditions account for the origin of the term, but it probably resulted from the deltalike character of the Cairo region and the presence of several Egyptian place names.

Q. What are the warm and cold colors?—W. T. H. A. The warm colors are red, orange and yellow. The cold colors are green, blue and violet.

Q. What is the last paragraph of Patrick Henry's famous "Give me liberty or give me death" speech?—D. F. A. It is as follows: "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

Q. When did the immigration quota law go into effect?—S. L. A. A. Congressman Johnson of Washington introduced the Immigration Quota Bill in 1924. The act went into effect on July 1 of that year, assigning a temporary maximum limit of 160,000 to the number of immigrants admitted from Europe in any one year.

Japan Shows Desire for Accord

Frankless Alone Can Preserve Good Relations

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Frankless alone as between the Japanese and American peoples will preserve good relations. That's why the sending of Saburo Kurusu as a special commissioner to the United States can be taken as evidence of a desire to find a formula for peace.

David Lawrence.

The most important barrier is that Japan does not fully understand America's attitude toward a treaty and pledge once given. There is a school of thought in Japan which considers treaties and pledged words to be secondary to realistic considerations. What is difficult for the Japanese military party to understand, for example, is that there is not the slightest objection to Japanese commercial expansion but that there is every objection to violation of treaties and usurpation of territory or sovereignty by force.

"Demands" Unfortunate. The Japanese Times and Advertiser, which now reflects the viewpoint of the Japanese Foreign Office, did not aid Japan's cause in America by the publication of its series of "demands." To a Japanese, doubtless, some of these demands appear reasonable and some of them would appear so to an American, too, but when Japan issues demands stating what it wants and does not accompany them with a statement of what Japan is willing to do, the spirit of fair play and reciprocity is so conspicuously absent that the effect on American public opinion is distinctly negative.

What Japan needs to understand is that the American people are basically friendly to the Japanese and are sympathetic with the latter's desire for commercial expansion but at the moment the main question which interests the United States is whether Tokio is an ally of Nazi Germany. Unhappily, but nevertheless truthfully, the American Government must view any nation that has an agreement of the nature of the tripartite agreement as hardly as anxious to be friendly with the United States as with Nazi Germany. The policy of the United States in giving direct aid to China did not arise until after Tokio decided to cast her lot on Hitler's side.

Pact Stands in Way. To undo that situation and to achieve peace in the Far East, the first step is a willingness on the part of Japan to renounce her tripartite pact. This can be done because the treaty is not on a definite long-term basis but is founded on the expediency of the war emergency. The treaty, moreover, violates the famous Nine Power Pact and is in itself an impairment of relations between the United States and Japan.

The Japanese-American situation is tense but it is by no means unsolvable. The coming of Mr. Kurusu will be a welcome help to Admiral Nomura, Japanese Ambassador here, who has struggled sincerely to transmit to his government at Tokio the American viewpoint. There is reason to believe that what Tokio has lacked is an interpretation of American opinion. Washington, for instance, has not been persuaded that the rule of force should supplant the rule of reason in Far Eastern matters.

There are several bases for an understanding if both sides are sincerely willing. Until recently there was no naval group in America advising that America would be better off to challenge Japan now instead of later. But the appearance of such a group has come because of the repeated evidences of Japanese military operations.

Two Peace Factions. As explained here, there are two Japanese peace factions—one which is genuinely anxious for peace and one which would like to see peace parleys now merely because it will afford Japan an opportunity to pick a later time than the present for military or naval operations favorable to Nippon. A third group—the military enthusiasts—doesn't much care where present policy will lead so long as it is firm and aggressive and carries on the war of aggression.

Secretary Hull has labored long and patiently these last few months to keep the door open for an understanding between Japan and the United States. So have Ambassador Grew at Tokio and Admiral Nomura here in Washington. The answer to the unsettled condition of Japanese-American relations is to be found in Tokio, where some kind of dual policy seems to prevail that seeks to placate Hitler and the Nazis on one day while threatening the United States, and endeavors on another day to patch up differences with America and make gestures toward peaceful relations.

Some day the Japanese will discover that the American mind likes frankness and directness and that recognition of some of the more important Japanese commercial aims would be nearer attainment if the Japanese were to manifest a genuine desire to toss the Hitler alliance overboard.

On the Record

Questions of Political Strategy Concerning the War Are Raised

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

In the last column I said that the weakest spot in the whole German setup is the Hitler political regime, while the strongest is the German Army.

Yet, by point 8 in the Atlantic charter, which is at least Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Churchill's statement of peace aims, we united the German Army and the German people behind the Hitler regime more effectively than Hitler himself could have done.

We gave everybody in Germany a reason for fighting this war to its bitterest and total conclusion.

For point 8 says that "pending the establishment of a wider and more permanent system of general security, the disarmament of such nations (as threaten or may threaten aggression outside of their frontiers) is essential."

That means the unlimited disarmament of Germany. The war is, in that point, no longer addressed against the Nazis but against Germany. The proposal is utterly to destroy the German Army in a world seething with hatred.

Dictated Peace. I believe with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt that no peace can be negotiated with the Hitler regime and that it must be destroyed. No peace can be negotiated with a regime whose whole record is one of negotiated peace that have immediately been broken—those that have been useful springboards for more war.

But point 8 of the Atlantic charter means that no peace can be negotiated with any German government that would have the support of the German people or of the German Army.

It commits Britain and the United States to an attempt to defeat the German armies and the German people and impose a dictated peace. And it is a very great question whether this is possible and an even greater question whether it is desirable.

Victories Are Hollow. Germany's arms are imposing. The German armies are victorious from Marseille to the gates of Moscow, from the Baltic to the Black Sea. But the victories are hollow, because the peoples of Europe cannot be brought to terms with Hitler's new order. The conquests are a military triumph and a political fiasco, for Hitler's new order is not one in which any non-German people can live, except as slaves.

But the eight points of the Atlantic charter are also a political fiasco. Vaguely phrased and reminiscent of the Europe whose anarchy created Hitler, they present an order already repudiated by the people of Europe. The new order of Hitler is a political fiasco plus a triumph of arms, and the Atlantic charter is a political fiasco.

There is a tendency in the world, among the peoples, that must be recognized, with which one can move to victory for the peoples—all of them, including the German. It needs discussion.

fasco plus a grim and inadequate defense. And a stalemate in political bankruptcy is not a victory.

The greatest danger of this war is that it will fall into the nihilistic pattern of its originators, the Nazis, and become sheer aimless destruction that over years of unresolved struggle will produce disease, epidemics, famine, and such a madness of hatred and blindness as will leave Western civilization a rotting shambles.

This war has occurred out of the incapacity of governments—democratic or totalitarian—to organize an international political and economic system compatible with the world unification that modern science and technology, transport and mechanical energy have made imperative.

Nationalism as we have known it since the renaissance, is incompatible with the realities of modern life. It is like a proliferating cancer.

We shall have no peace by the revival of the doctrine of original sin by which one nation is to be made the scapegoat for all.

To assign exclusive guilt for this war is to begin to lie. There is an active guilt and a passive guilt, a guilt immediate and a guilt remote. Granted that the active guilt is the Nazis; the passive guilt is upon the whole world of western nations, who played each one, its role in creating Naziism: The arrogance of Britain; the grasping, narrow-minded middle-class spirit of France; the self-righteous and negative isolationism of America; the bigoted fanaticism of Russia; the petty egotism of the small states of Eastern Europe, and the terrifying inverted ego of the Germans.

Panic and Insecurity. Above all, the panic and the insecurity that have afflicted all peoples since 1918 is a root cause of the war; the subconscious realization telegraphing continually to the nerve ends of the man in the street everywhere that things couldn't go on like this—in booms and depressions, nihilistic revolutions, crushing taxes, and mounting anarchy.

The Atlantic charter is only another symptom of democratic inadequacy. It matters only for that reason. It will not be the charter of peace, for peace terms will not be made by two men, however well-intentioned and noble, meeting on a boat somewhere and issuing what has all the earmarks of an improvised statement. The mental and physical anguish of the last years will not be cured by eight pills.

But when V stands for Victory, we will be on our way to peace. This war against Hitler cannot be won for the things that produced Hitler. Its solution begins with an act of repentance.

There is a tendency in the world, among the peoples, that must be recognized, with which one can move to victory for the peoples—all of them, including the German. It needs discussion.

The Great Game of Politics

G. O. P. Backs Roosevelt When He's Wrong And Opposes Him When He's Right

By FRANK R. KENT.

If the Republicans in Congress had started out with the idea of making for themselves at this session as ignoble and unworthy a record as possible, they already would have achieved a considerable measure of success. For, certainly, it is true that in matters of strategy and statesmanship they have sunk to a very low level, indeed.

Frank R. Kent.

In fact, it is not easy to see how they can do much lower. The stupidity of their attitude on foreign policy is matched only by their stupidity on domestic policies. In the foreign field, where the President's course is approved by the people, they have resisted nearly every step, and almost produced a major disaster by party solidarity against the extension of the selective service. In the domestic field, where the President is remiss and unsound, they have supported his position and interfered with the effort to avert a threatened inflation. In brief, they oppose Mr. Roosevelt when he is right and support him when he is wrong.

And in both cases they clearly have been inspired not by principle but by the kind of small politics, bad enough in normal times but inexcusable in a crisis such as this. The latest example of the warped Republican intellect is the manner in which the party membership appears to be lining up in the House against inclusion in the price-control legislation of any power to regulate wages or food prices. There is every reason the Republicans should take the exact opposite position.

Lost Their Opportunity. In the first place, it is the right position. As well as Mr. Roosevelt and his administration politicians they know that there can be no effective price control unless a ceiling is put over wages and food costs. Canada's experience and example present the most recent and concrete proof of this. In the second place, it would be good politics. Here is a chance for the Republicans to reveal the administration economic incompetency and score heavily against Mr. Roosevelt as unwilling, until and unless forced, to make any real stand against labor and farm lobbies—no matter how costly his failure to do so may be.

Instead, the Republicans deliberately cast aside their opportunity. Apparently, they are bent upon openly exhibiting their own truckling to these bullying special interests rather than upon indicating the truckling of the administration. One result is that they have gone so far in the wrong direction that the farmer lobby leaders themselves are afraid of the reaction and the President is given the opening, which he promptly seizes, to urge restraint upon the very forces he has encouraged to be unrestrained.

Partially, at least, the Republican course will relieve the President and his Price Administration of the blame justly laid upon them for supine acquiescence in labor-farmer dictation. Also, it seems likely to insure the passage of an utterly inadequate bill, which will not keep prices down nor avert inflation.

Stupidly Political. The Republican attitude is bad from the standpoint of party politics, and it is worse from the standpoint of the national interests, which are much more important. From the first angle it is particularly stupid. For the Republicans should have learned by this time that they can't beat Mr. Roosevelt at this farmer-labor game, no matter how high they bid nor how far they go.

The policy the Republicans should have pursued seems so obvious that the surprise is they could keep away from it. Once the country, through passage of the lend-lease bill, became committed to the defeat of Hitler, the opposition cue was to support the administration foreign policy, but at the same time demand that the President straighten out the mess he has made of the defense organization, adopt the tested devices of the last war, put an end to defense strikes, stop playing farmer-labor New Deal politics and replace the incompetents.

Missed the Boat. Here they would have been on sound ground. It is undisputedly true that our foreign policy cannot be effective if our domestic affairs are botched. Administration incompetence in handling the latter has made the danger from the inside as great as those from the outside. That would have been an unassailable position for the Republicans. It would have paid good political dividends and been patriotic at the same time—in fact, an ideal position. But did they take it? They did not. In the main, they have gone in the opposite direction—pulling back on the foreign policy and now co-operating to make the domestic situation worse.

This Changing World

New Russian, French and British Envoys Coming Here to Bolster Ties With Americans

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Russia, France and Great Britain will send new representatives to Washington in the next few months.

Russia's Ambassador, Constantine A. Oumansky, has already been replaced by the former Soviet Foreign Minister, Maxim Litvinoff. Vichy's Ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, will soon be replaced by Francois Pietri, former French naval minister and at present Vichy France's representative at Madrid.

Finally, there is a persistent rumor that Britain's Ambassador, Viscount Halifax, may be replaced early next year by the former Prime Minister of Australia, Robert Gordon Menzies. All these changes are due to the desire of the respective governments to strengthen their ties with the people of the United States rather than with the American Government.

Oumansky, who left Washington about six weeks ago, was shelved by Premier Josef Stalin to utilize for Russia's benefit the excellent relations with the United States which he inherited from his predecessor, Alexander Trovansky. His G. P. U. mentality and his manner generally won him the dislike not only of high ranking Government officials in Washington but of many others with whom he came in contact. The once popular Soviet Embassy became a deserted place.

Henry-Haye is a French senator and as such is not supposed to remain out of his country for more than six months at a time. He failed completely in his mission to the United States because of his reputed pro-Axis tendencies. Marshal Petain extended his mission for another six months, however, after the first period expired, because M. Henry-Haye convinced him that it would be detrimental to the prestige of the Vichy government if its Ambassador were recalled under the pressure of public opinion in the United States.

Now, however, French Chief of State Petain has decided to send the smooth Pietri, an old hand in French politics, to represent the Vichy government in Washington.

Reports of the imminent recall of Lord Halifax have been numerous. London seriously considered it last summer, but the British Government treats its officials kindly, even when they fail. The custom is to boot them upstairs. Lord Halifax, a member of the House of Lords, already is high in the British official hierarchy, and there was little in the way of consolation that Prime Minister Churchill could offer him. Lord Halifax, however, wants to return to India as viceroy, a post he once held with some credit. Matters of high policy required, however, that the present viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, be maintained at his post for another year. But it is probable that Lord Halifax now will be given the post he covets.

"Westernized." Litvinoff appears to be an excellent choice for the post. He is not "insular" in his outlook. The fact that he has incurred the displeasure of the Communist party and at one time was under strict surveillance of the G. P. U. is likely to stand him in good stead in this country.

As Russia's representative at the now defunct League of Nations Litvinoff became "Westernized." He learned the tricks of international intrigue and came to excel in them. His moderate views on international affairs and his stubborn opposition to the Russian-German alliance, which made the invasion of Poland and the start of World War II possible, contributed to his downfall. But his political demise was due more than anything else to his English-born wife. She was typically bourgeois. At Geneva she conducted a political and social salon, dressed fashionably, spent good Soviet funds with Parisian courtesiers, drank cocktails instead of vodka and refused to heed the warnings of G. P. U. agents to act and behave like a good Communist. She was exiled to the interior of Russia by Stalin long before Litvinoff fell into disgrace.

McLemore—

Pushing a Button Won't Build Tanks

By HENRY McLEMORE.

Henry McLemore.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—One of America's favorite sports these days is taking a whack at the O. P. M. Not a nice, stand up whack, but a rabbit punch sort of whack from behind.

You know, a lick that catches Knudsen and his boys off guard. They have no defense for that sort of blow. They are standing up against the country with a Jim Flizg stance, fending off licks that come head on.

We are convinced that 99 per cent of the blows delivered against the defense effort are swung from ignorance. There is no telling how many we ourselves have thrown since June 1, the date when we quit reporting the activities of athletes and muscles and jumped into the field of mind and matter.

The city of Buffalo has been a revelation to us. From City Hall to suburb it is filled with capitalists and laborers who are doing their dead level best to get together and produce the things this country needs to become a military power.

Sitting in New York it was so easy to criticize what this combination accomplished. From a distance of 450 miles it was easy to pick flaws. But when you come face to face with the men who put up the money for buildings and machines, and with the men who run these machines; and talk to them about the problems, you get a new slant.

This country believes in itself too much. There is the feeling, as the emergency mobilization committee, that the United States can at any time want to start outproducing all the countries of the world. There is a feeling that with the simple pushing of a button or the issuing of a command, our factories will start turning out tanks, planes, guns, and all the other implements of war at a rate superior to any other country in the world.

We believe that feeling still exists. In the lack of confidence in the defense work up to now is based on the deep and abiding faith of Americans that at any given moment Pittsburgh, Buffalo, New York, Chicago, Birmingham, Detroit, Toledo, Alton and 10 other cities can just turn loose and swamp the world with anything from tanks to tin cans.

In Buffalo we have talked to men who had an answer for bottlenecks. In Buffalo we have talked to men who admitted that the United States would eventually challenge the world in production, but who pointed out that time was needed.

We talked to a man who manufactures engines for torpedo boats. All of a sudden the Government threw a tremendous order in his lap.

He is behind schedule. In the public eye he is a failure. He told us why he was behind. Reason No. 1: He can't turn out a motor without a crankshaft. There are two crankshaft companies in the country. No statesman was foresighted enough to order the enlargement of crankshaft companies several years ago.

Reason No. 2: His company barely struggled through the depression. No new machinery was added. The machinery used was old and almost worn out, but the men who operated it knew its weaknesses and how to handle it. Then, all of a sudden, the Government required that a second and third shift work the machinery. The new men couldn't work the old stuff.

Reason No. 3: During the years between 1932 and 1938 there was no need for manufacturers to build up a supply of skilled laborers. During the depression the business of teaching apprentices disappeared. So, now, there is no reserve of young workers to call on.

The man I talked to is head of only an ordinary sized company. There must be hundreds of companies the same size or larger handling defense orders. So the problem can be multiplied until you get tired of multiplying.

So don't fuss at the American defense effort. It is pretty good. A year from now, when we start throwing from the floor, there'll be no country, there'll be no combination of countries, able to tie our shoes when it comes to turning out weapons of war.

If you don't believe this just come to Buffalo and study what is going on here.

This is the No. 1 country in the world. Never forget it. But it is going to ask 365 days to prove it. (Distributed by McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

Seven From Capital Area Report at Navy Air Station

The Navy announced today that 250 newly appointed naval cadets, including seven from Washington and vicinity, have reported for advanced flight training at the three major naval air stations, at Pensacola and Jacksonville, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex. Sixty-nine of the total are graduates of the Civil Aeronautics Administration's secondary course and 189 are graduates of the Naval Reserve aviation base courses.

Those from this vicinity are Carl Adam Hechner, Jr., Riverdale, Md.; Norman Harold Himefarb, 908 Farragut street N.W.; Harry Carr McClougherty, Narrows, Va.; Marcel Henri Paul Van Hemert, 2448 Massachusetts avenue N.W.; Jacob Cecil Phares, Montrose, W. Va., and Edwin Briggs, Portsmouth, Va., all from the naval bases and James Andrew Chesson, Jr., 1419 Columbia road N.W., Civil Aeronautics graduate.

Soviet Aid Statement

Paraphrases of Roosevelt and Stalin Letters Are Made Public

The texts of the State Department statement yesterday on the exchange of letters between President Roosevelt and Joseph Stalin on aid to Russia follows:

"The following is the paraphrase of a text of a letter addressed by the President under date of October 30, 1941, to Mr. Josef Stalin:

"I have examined the record of the Moscow conference and the members of the mission have discussed the details with me. All of the military equipment and munitions items have been approved and I have ordered that as far as possible the delivery of raw materials be expedited.

"Deliveries have been directed to commence immediately and to be fulfilled in the largest possible amounts. In an effort to obviate any financial difficulties immediate arrangements are to be made so that supplies up to $1,000,000,000 in value may be effected under the Lend-Lease Act.

"If approved by the government of the U. S. S. R. I propose that the indebtedness thus incurred be subject to no interest and that the payments by the government of the U. S. S. R. do not commence until five years after the war's conclusion and be completed over a 10-year period thereafter.

"I hope that special efforts will be arranged by your government to sell us the available raw materials and commodities which the United States may need urgently under the arrangement that the proceeds thereof be credited to the Soviet government's account.

"At this opportunity I want to tell you of the appreciation of the United States Government for the expeditious handling by you and your associates of the Moscow supply conference and to send you assurances that we will carry out to the limit all the implications thereof. I hope that you will communicate with me directly without hesitation if you should so wish.

Paraphrase of Stalin Letter.

"The following is a paraphrase of the text of a letter by Mr. Josef Stalin under date of November 4, 1941, to the President of the United States.

"The American ambassador, Mr. Steinhardt, through Mr. Vyshinski

(Soviet vice-commissar of foreign affairs) presented to me on November 2, 1941, an aide memoire containing the contents of your message, the exact text of which I have not yet received.

"First of all I would like to express my sincere thanks for your appreciative remarks regarding the expeditious manner with which the conference was handled. Your assurance that the decisions of the conference will be carried out to the limit is deeply appreciated by the Soviet government.

"Your decision, Mr. President, to grant to the Soviet Union a loan in the amount of $1,000,000,000 subject to no interest charges and for the purpose of paying for armaments and raw materials for the Soviet Union is accepted with sincere gratitude by the Soviet government as unusually substantial aid in its difficult and great struggle against our common enemy, blood-thirsty Hitlerism.

Agrees to Conditions.

"I agree completely, on behalf of the government of the Soviet Union, with the conditions which you outlined for this loan to the Soviet Union, namely that payments on the loan shall begin five years after the end of the war and shall be completed during the following 10-year period.

"The government of the U. S. S. R. stands ready to expedite in every possible way the supplying of available raw materials and goods required by the United States.

"I am heartily in accord with your proposal, Mr. President, that we establish direct personal contact whenever circumstances warrant."

debate next Wednesday or Thursday.

Mr. Steagall conferred with Speaker Rayburn and House Majority Leader McCormack this morning, but the Senator said no conclusions were reached except that the bill would not come up for House consideration until after the Senate's Neutrality Act amendments are disposed of.

Representative Williams of Missouri, ranking majority member of the Banking Committee, said he thought the restrictive farm provisions should be eliminated from the bill and that a licensing provision should be restored.

The administration contended the licensing provision is essential to the enforcement of price ceilings. It would enable the administrator to license only firms dealing in commodities for which ceilings are established and to revoke the licenses of violators.

Mr. Williams challenged contentions that the latter provision would give the price administrator power to put firms out of business if they violated price ceilings.

He expressed doubt, however, that the committee would go back on its original recommendations, but said that the changes he suggested might be attempted on the House floor. He added that he was unalterably opposed to any attempt to substitute an overall price control bill, which would freeze all prices simultaneously, for the selective system of price control which the pending bill would authorize.

Informed Senate sources have said, however, that there was no chance of Senate passage of any price control bill which does not contain the so-called Brown amendment preventing the fixing of farm ceilings below the 1919-29 average.

Lack of raw materials and skilled labor have forced many factories in Japan to discontinue night shifts.

Police Raid Apartment; Hold One as Gambler

Steel-sheathed doors to an apartment in the 700 block of North Capitol street opened to admit a man yesterday. When he walked in, so did police.

They reported finding a quantity of numbers and race bet slips and a ringing telephone. Detective Sergt. John Sprague answered the telephone several times and "took" bets.

Seven persons were arrested. One, booked as William Edward Lutz, sr., 44, was charged with operation of a lottery and possession of lottery slips. The others were released.

U. S. Acts for Early Trial of Viereck in Nazi Investigation

Rearrangement Slated for Monday as Counsel Files Demurrer

Attorney General Biddle is seeking early trial of George Sylvester Viereck, registered German agent, on charges of failing to disclose completely his activities in this country, it was learned today.

Another step in this direction was taken in District Court yesterday when Justice James W. Morris set 2 p.m. Monday for rearrangement of Viereck on three counts in the indictment returned against him by the special grand jury investigating Nazi activities in the United States.

Mr. Viereck, one of the most prominent figures taken in the Justice Department's Nazi probe, recently changed his plea from not guilty in order to file a demurrer to the indictment. Justice Morris sustained the demurrer on two counts and overruled it on three counts.

Edward J. Hickey, jr., special assistant to the Attorney General, yesterday requested Justice Morris to set the Viereck case for rearrangement on the three counts Monday. This procedure is a necessary preliminary to the Government's move for an early trial of the case. Viereck is charged with violating the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

Hill Files Demurrer.
 There was action also yesterday on two other fronts in the grand jury probe. George Hill, second secretary to Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, filed in District Court a demurrer to the indictment charging Mr. Hill with perjury, and moved to be permitted to inspect the grand jury records. The grand jury completed for the time being its questioning of Miss Bessie Feagin, magazine promotion manager, and adjourned until next Wednesday, when it probably will hear two of her superiors, the editor and publisher of Scribner's Commentator.

Mr. Hill, through his counsel, John O'Connor of New York and William F. Cusick of this city, told the court in his demurrer that the indictment charging him with perjury was "bad in substance." There was no showing in the indictment, the demurrer said, that the alleged perjured testimony related to "material matter" within the meaning of the statute. It was charged the indictment was "vague and indefinite, and so filled with discussions and lacking in the allegation of ultimate facts as not properly to apprise the defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation against him."

Mr. Hill asked to see the complete transcript of his testimony before the grand jury. The indictment, he pointed out, quotes "only short, disconnected parts of his testimony, whereas, his entire testimony might well disclose facts contrary to the allegations in the indictment."

Indicted on Two Counts.
 Mr. Hill requested to see the transcript also because he charged that "attorneys for the prosecution made a statement in open court that the defendant allegedly received and could not account for $12,000, whereas no such allegation appears in the indictment, and," he added, "if such is the fact, the defendant should be permitted access to the record of the proceedings to prevent surprise at the trial." Mr. Hill was indicted on two counts of perjury. He is charged with denying he knew Mr. Viereck and denying he knew anything about certain mail bags containing material of alleged propaganda contained in Government franked envelopes.

The grand jury probe probably will go further into a master mailing list alleged to have been used for propaganda purposes. Prosecutors charge it was compiled by Scribner's Commentator, a magazine whose promotion manager, Miss Feagin, was before the grand jury again yesterday. It is understood that George T. Eggleston, editor, and Douglas M. Stewart, publisher of the magazine, may appear before the grand jury when it resumes sessions Wednesday.

Counsel Withdraws.
 The magazine's connection with the probe was aired in open court yesterday and Wednesday, when William Power Maloney, special assistant to the Attorney General, brought Miss Feagin before Justice Morris charging her with being a recalcitrant witness before the grand jury. After three different appearances before Justice Morris—Wednesday afternoon, yesterday morning and yesterday afternoon—she went back to the grand jury and was with it for a two-hour session. Her counsel, Nicholas Chiascione, had withdrawn from her case at the morning session of court, and she reported in the afternoon she had been "unable" to find other counsel. Justice Morris told her to search her recollection to answer more questions propounded by the grand jury.

Pennsylvania to Take Over Coal Production Control

By the Associated Press.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 7.—The State Department of Commerce prepared today to take over supervision of the anthracite industry's voluntary production control plan.

Secretary Mark S. James announced yesterday notices had gone out to the operators who are taking part in the self-imposed production restrictions that the State will assume control Monday. They represent 95 per cent of the State's output, he said.

The Commerce Department entered the field as the result of legislation adopted at the 1941 session. The operators, with State and union support, started the program in January, 1940. Lack of legal foundation for the co-operative effort led union and producers' representatives to campaign for the legislation.

The secretary said he contemplated no immediate changes in the method by which weekly production quotas are allocated to the operators by their own committee based on market needs.

'Withholding' Tax On Incomes of All Proposed by George

Action on Treasury's Suggestions for New Bill Is Delayed

By the Associated Press.
A "withholding" tax on all personal incomes was proposed by Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee today after congressional leaders had decided to delay action temporarily on Treasury suggestions for a new revenue bill.

Senator George took the position that sooner or later Congress would have to face the necessity of raising more taxes to offset in part expected expenditures of $3,000,000,000 a month in the next fiscal year. For that reason, he told reporters, he favored not only a pay-roll levy but a similar tax on all personal receipts.

The Treasury was reported to have suggested that upward of $4,800,000,000 in new revenues be added to the $3,500,000,000 piled on the Nation's tax bill when Congress enacted steeper levies last summer. One of the Treasury's suggestions was said to call for a 15 per cent pay roll tax, collected at the source. This amount, to be deducted from the worker's weekly or monthly pay check, would be in addition to whatever regular income tax he is now obliged to pay.

Senator George said that while he would have no objection to such procedure if it was worked out equitably, he did not think salaried persons should bear all of this additional tax burden.

"Before we went into the law revenue bill I recognized that we would have to come to a withholding tax in order to raise the money that we need," Senator George said, "but I don't want it on wages alone. It should apply to all personal income."

Experts recognized, however, that broadening of the pay roll tax principle to include personal income from investments, businesses and many other sources would involve great difficulties which some legislators said might be almost insurmountable.

Thus, they said, while employers might easily be required to withhold a certain amount from a pay check, as is now done with social security taxes, the various other sources of income were relatively harder to tap.

While Senator George said his committee probably would be willing to go to work on the Treasury's suggestions immediately, the House Ways and Means Committee, where all revenue legislation starts, decided late yesterday to delay action for the present.

Defense Savings Group Names D. H. G. Moulton

Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, has been named chairman of the Division on Education of the District Defense Savings Committee.

The appointment was announced by H. L. Rust, jr., chairman of the committee. Dr. Moulton has been active in civic affairs here for many years.

He has served as chairman of the Schools Unit of the Community Chest and undertaken other civic activities. His division of the District Savings Committee will direct the organization of groups to promote the purchase of Defense bonds and stamps by the faculties and students of local schools.

Lt. Col. Harmon Named To Armored Force Post

By the Associated Press.
The assignment of Lt. Col. Ernest N. Harmon to be chief of staff of the Army's armored force was reported today by War Department officials.

He was given temporary promotion to the grade of colonel, with two other lieutenant colonels, who also were given new assignments.

Col. John Herman Knuebel was made chief of staff of the 5th Army Corps and Col. William Claude McMahon assigned to be chief of staff of the 2d Army Corps.

How Well Do You Know The Mediterranean?

Can You Supply the Answers?

WHY WAS SEA POWER BORN THERE?
WHY ARE ITS BORDERING TREES WAXY-LEAVED?
WHY IS IT SO ADAPTED TO MARITIME PURSUITS?
WHY ARE FIGS, OLIVES AND GRAPES GROWN?

HOW LONG IS THE MEDITERRANEAN?
WHY ARE ITS WATERS CALM AND WARM?
WHAT INDUSTRIES DEPEND ON ITS PRODUCTS?
WHY IS IT CALLED THE HIGHWAY OF HISTORY?

The Sunday Star Will Help You Answer

The fifth in a series of articles and maps covering the strategic areas of the World, prepared for The Sunday Star by the National Geographic Society, will be published November 9th in The Star describing the probable location of the principal activities of the war this Winter. Hailed by educators in the public and private schools of the Washington area, this series is ideally prepared for use in scrap books which will be of both present and future value. Already the articles have played a big part in the supplemental reading in many classes and they are found on many class-room bulletin boards.

A Tribute From an Educator

Obviously, textbooks cannot keep up to the minute in their description of events. Educators are therefore turning more and more to the use of newspapers as supplementary aids.

Now with the appearance of the series on geography and history prepared by the National Geographic Society and printed in The Star, another step has been taken. These articles giving the geographic and historical background should be most helpful in aiding both teachers and students to understand the world we are in and its potentialities when the forces of aggression are finally banished.

J. W. STUDEBAKER,
Commissioner, United States Office of Education, Federal Security Agency.

Court Rejects Plan For Compromise in Closed Bank Case

150 Protest Proposal For Settlement of Interest Claim

Justice Oscar R. Lurhing in District Court today refused to approve a compromise settlement plan, previously agreed to by the Treasury Department, in the case of shareholders of the defunct United States Savings Bank.

In a memorandum opinion, he sustained objections to the plan after about 150 persons had protested. Frederick J. Young, as receiver, brought an equity action against the shareholders and later sought authority to approve the plan. The compromise concerned settlement of an interest claim, allegedly due depositors and creditors of the bank, and this prompted action by the receiver to enforce against shareholders the 100 per cent assessment, levied by the Controller of the Currency.

Publisher to Address Catholic Daughters

Frank J. Sheed, author, lecturer and publisher, will speak on "The Church in Present-Day Europe" at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Willard Hotel under auspices of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Mr. Sheed recently returned from a 10-month stay in Europe.

The meeting is announced as part of a mobilization of spiritual forces "to meet the needs of this critical hour."

Miss Florence Winter, national chairman of the Catholic Daughters of America, will preside and will be assisted by the Rev. Dr. John K. Cartwright, chaplain of Court No. 212; Miss Katherine Ruppert, grand regent, and Miss Augusta Uhl, territorial deputy. The Rev. Dr. A. J. Burggraf, C. S. P., spiritual director of the Convent League, will introduce Mr. Sheed.

Mrs. Estelle Hunt Dean, soprano, and Miss Mary Louise Sullivan, organist, will present a musical interlude before the lecture. A social hour will follow the talk. There is no admission charge.

Man Held on Charge Of Threat to President

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 7.—Secret Service agents filed a charge of threatening the President against a 38-year-old man arrested in the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway yards yesterday.

The man, who was not identified by Federal authorities, was brought before United States Commissioner Melvin Egenheimer and ordered bound over to the grand jury.

He was picked up on a charge of trespassing.

Defense Bond Quiz

Q. On what is the philosophy of the Treasury's defense savings program based?

A. On the willing participation of all the people in a united activity for the welfare of the whole Nation—saving by purchase of Defense savings bonds and stamps.

Q. What is one method used by labor groups to stimulate the purchase of Defense savings bonds?

A. Many have instituted "Buy-a-Bond-a-Month" clubs among their members.

Note—To buy Defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States in Washington. Also stamps are on sale at retail stores.

Agreed to Previously.

The plan before Justice Lurhing was one agreed to by the receiver and the Shareholders Committee and understood by them to mean that those depositors and creditors executing assignments would be paid 3 per cent and those failing or refusing to assign would be paid 12.55 per cent.

Justice Lurhing said the sole question for consideration is whether the objecting depositors and creditors understood that in executing the assignment they would receive the 3 per cent and those not executing would receive the full amount of 12.55 per cent.

"It was quite proper for any depositor or creditor, being fully advised, to waive his claim for interest in whole or in part, even if others similarly situated and who did not waive would be paid in full," declared Justice Lurhing in his opinion.

Letter Held Not Clear.

"But as we have pointed out, the letters sent to the depositors and creditors by the receiver and the Shareholders Committee, with respect to the plan of compromise and settlement, did not clearly explain that 12.55 per cent would be paid to those who failed or refused to execute the assignment."

"The court finds that those repudiating their assignment did not understand that those who did not assign would be paid in full; that they believed that all depositors and creditors would receive 3 per cent; that acting on that understanding they executed the assignments; and that they should be permitted to withdraw such assignments."

"It follows that the objections to the approval of the plan must be sustained."

9,000 Attend Dances For Defense Workers

More than 9,000 service men and defense workers have attended dances and open house at the Young Women's Christian Association in the last four months, it was reported to the Y. W. C. A. United Service Organization Committee yesterday.

Permission was given by the committee yesterday to Miss Mabel R. Cook, director of U. S. O. activities, to use a third dance floor in the roof garden to accommodate growing crowds at entertainments. Young women defense workers have also been welcomed at midweek parties.

Mrs. John Winslow, entertainment chairman of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, discussed emergency defense activities of her organization. Mrs. Wilson Compton, chairman, presided.

Use of Resources Now Idle Recommended To Insure Building

Realtors Are Told R. F. C. Aid Could Open Mines Not Producing

By JAMES Y. NEWTON, Star Staff Correspondent.
DETROIT, Nov. 7.—Through Government help, facilities now idle in this country could be used to produce materials which the O. P. M. has labeled "critical," by enabling the civilian home building industry to continue operation throughout the emergency period, the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards was told here today. This would permit thousands of small businesses to remain open and prevent loss of employment by hundreds of thousands of building mechanics.

Hugh Potter, Houston builder and former head of the national association, told the convention of an idle copper mine in California, which, with Government financial aid, could produce 6,000 tons of copper a year, sufficient to build 150,000 homes. This corporation is unable to operate under the price ceiling fixed by the Office of Price Administration. But if the price were raised 3 cents a pound or with R. F. C. backing could immediately go into full production, Mr. Potter said.

The convention also was told of potential copper producing centers in northern Michigan, which would be in operation with Government help. A return of production to the Michigan mines, it was said, not only would afford the defense industry and builders with large supplies of this critical metal, but would take some 18,000 persons off W. P. A. relief rolls.

To Seek Facts.

Other examples of how the production of critical materials may be increased were given. Copper was cited particularly because the O. P. M. ordered several weeks ago that no more sheet or screen copper could be used by industry not vital to defense. The order was changed this week and use of copper in civilian work will be permitted until January 1.

Meanwhile, the Home Builders' Institute of America, affiliate of the National Association, carried forward its plan for setting up in Washington a fact-finding agency which will investigate the shortage of building materials the O. P. M. alleges. This agency will represent all builders, as well as make a survey and take inventory of all materials stored and being produced in the country. As one builder said, "We don't want to use one ounce of critical defense materials. We just want to determine whether the supply of materials is as short as the Government says it is."

Fund Quickly Raised.

Funds for establishment of the agency and its operation for six months were raised in a few minutes yesterday by the Home Builders' Institute. The national association contributed $5,000, and mortgage loan interests gave a like amount. The builders called for contributions at their meeting and the remaining $15,000 needed was oversubscribed in 10 minutes. Washington builders pledged $1,000 of the amount. Charles C. Kooner, president of the Washington Real Estate Board, donated office space for the new agency in the board's headquarters, 1417 K street N.W.

Mr. Kooner was named to the Executive Committee of the national association. David B. Simpson of Portland, Oreg., was nominated to the presidency of the association, and, as this is tantamount to election, will be named to succeed Philip W. Kniskern of Philadelphia, as head of the realtors for the coming year. H. Clifford Bangs of Washington was named to the Board of Directors, and Paul O. Drury was placed on the governing council of the Institute of Real Estate Management, association affiliate.

Author to Speak Tonight

William Blake, author of "The Copperheads" and former editor of the Wall Street Journal, will speak at 8:15 tonight at the Washington Co-operative Bookshop, 916 Seventeenth street N.W. His topic will be "An American Looks at Wall Street."

Highest Percentage Of Occupancy Since World War Reported

Survey of Apartments Shows 99.9% Rented, Association Discloses

Figures purporting to show the highest percentage of occupancy in Washington rental units since the World War were released today by the Building Owners and Managers Association simultaneously with a statement from the Home Builders' Association of Metropolitan Washington that the O. P. M. building limit should not apply here. As of November 1, the figures showed, apartments surveyed were 99.9 per cent occupied, as compared with 96.29 per cent a year ago and 99.76 per cent a month ago.

The O. P. M. order limits private dwelling construction to a $6,000 cost and places a $50 a month ceiling on rental units. According to Rufus S. Lusk, association secretary, very few of the apartments surveyed rent for $50 a month or less.

Charles J. Harnett, vice president of the builders' association, said that the demand for homes here involved defense workers "in a higher income category than is the case in manufacturing centers."

"The tremendous influx of Government workers brought here to administer the defense program has created a shortage of suitable housing which necessitates immediate relief action by the O. P. M. if the demand is to be satisfied," Mr. Harnett declared.

R. P. Smith Appointed General Counsel for Shrine's Activities

Duties Will Include Legal Supervision Over 15 Hospitals for Children

Robert P. Smith of this city today was appointed general counsel of the Imperial Council, Ancient Accepted Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for North America and general counsel of the Shrine's Hospitals for Crippled Children, Inc.

The appointment was made by Thomas C. Law of Atlanta, imperial potentate of the Shrine. Mr. Smith succeeds Arthur H. Brown of Billings, Mont., who was killed recently in an airplane crash near Fargo, N. Dak. while en route to his home from a recent meeting of the hospital Board of Trustees at the Willard Hotel here.

Mr. Smith, prominent in civic and fraternal affairs in Washington, in his new capacity as general counsel for the Shrine, will have legal supervision over the far-flung activities of both the order and its 15 hospitals for crippled children, whose hospital property is valued at more than $16,000,000, with an operating cost of more than $1,000,000 a year. An increasing amount of funds comes to the hospitals through bequests, which Mr. Smith will handle.

Formerly with the Internal Revenue Bureau, Mr. Smith has been in the private practice of law for many years. He is chairman of the Committee on Labor of the District of Columbia Bar Association, past president of the Pennsylvania State Society, member of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade, member of the Board of Trustees of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club. He established the Robert P. Smith Vocational School at Yellow Creek, Pa., near his boyhood home and helps maintain the institution now attended by more than 800 children.

Perry Wilkinson Heads Eastern Shore Society

Perry Wilkinson of Salisbury was elected president of the Eastern Shore Society of Washington for 1941-42 at a recent meeting in the Kennedy-Warren.

Others elected were: Grover Blackstone, Pungoteague, vice president; Miss M. Virginia Dashiell, Taskin, secretary; Malcolm I. Roberts, Oxford, treasurer; R. Kelvin Shivers, Allen, chairman Membership Committee; Mrs. Richard H. Roberts, Cardova, chairman Entertainment Committee, and A. Hughlett Mason, Pungoteague, chairman Publicity Committee.

Two amendments were adopted to the by-laws. The first set the beginning of the fiscal year at the September meeting, with election and installation of officers at that time, while the second changed the date of meeting from the first Monday to the second Monday of the month.

Funeral Tomorrow For Mrs. McReynolds

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Church of the Transfiguration for Mrs. Mary Belle Wilson McReynolds, 93, who died Wednesday at her home, 1327 Gallatin street N.W. Burial will take place Monday at Delphi, Ind.

The Rev. John T. Queally will officiate at services here. Friends have been requested to omit flowers.

Mrs. McReynolds, widow of Lafayette E. McReynolds, Indiana lawyer, was the mother of Frederick Wilson McReynolds, chairman of the Board of Public Welfare. She lived here with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Morrison.

Services for Mrs. Gillan Set Tomorrow Afternoon

Funeral services for Mrs. Keturah Gillan, 53, who died Wednesday at her home, 1724 Wisconsin avenue N.W., will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Timothy Harlan funeral home, 641 H street N.E. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

She was the widow of Charles K. Gillan, associated with the Carnegie Illinois Steel Corp. Her son, John, at present is an engineer with that firm at Gary, Ind. Mrs. Gillan also is survived by a daughter, Miss Ruth Gillan of this city; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hampton, also of Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Donahue, Washington, and Mrs. Alice Hime, Huntington, Tenn.

Senators Hear Plan for Rail Commuter Line

Schmitt Contends None of Objections Is Insurmountable

By JAMES E. CHINN. Waldo I. Schmitt, champion of a speedy railroad commuter service from nearby Maryland and Virginia, today told the special Senate committee studying the District's traffic problem that none of the objections yet raised to the plan by the railroads is "insurmountable."

"I am wondering," he said, "if the railroads are not holding back waiting for Uncle Sam to put in a service they can use. I am not accusing them of that—I'm just wondering."

Mr. Schmitt is promoting a plan to have the railroads operate commuter trains over existing tracks to Twelfth street and Maryland avenue S.W., where they would connect with subsurface shuttle trains operating through the Mall area.

The hearing was marked by a brief verbal clash between the witness and Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst when Mr. Schmitt said he called on Capt. Whitehurst to discuss the plan with him and was told by the highway director he was not "interested."

Whitehurst Denies Claim. "That's untrue," shouted Capt. Whitehurst. "I told him subway lines across the Mall are thoroughly impractical, and I repeat that today."

"I'm sorry I let myself go," the witness said, coupling with the apology a request that the exchange be stricken from the record.

"If you don't want some of your statements in record, don't make them," advised Chairman Burton. Mr. Schmitt's request was granted, however.

John H. Connaughton, general counsel of the National Association of Homeowners, made a plea for approval of the bill providing for a 2-cent increase in the gasoline tax. He pointed out the revenue from the present 2-cent tax has never been sufficient, since it was levied in 1925, to finance all needed highway improvements.

Despite a large increase in population since 1925, Mr. Connaughton declared the expenditures on highway improvements are about the same as they were 16 years ago, with a resulting accumulation of needs.

Mrs. Lily O. Fletcher, 1837 Columbia road N.W., who introduced herself as "a representative of the traveling public trying to get into the District," decried abandonment of passenger service by the Washington & Old Dominion Railway from Rosslyn to points in Northern Virginia as far west as Purcellville.

Since railroads are "the most reliable and dependable" means of transportation, Mrs. Fletcher said, an express commuter service from Virginia into the District is urgently needed. She suggested that railroads be allowed use of Key Bridge to reach Georgetown and that motorists living in Virginia be compelled to come into the city over Chain, Memorial and Highway Bridges.

Mr. Schmitt began his testimony with a declaration that fringe parking lots would cause the razing of many buildings and destroy the beauty of Washington.

Mr. Schmitt pointed out that "a lot of people" could not be evacuated from Washington "in short order" in an emergency because of congestion at Union Station, a situation that would be relieved, he said, by a commuter service, because other stations would be located at different points near the Mall.

Results of a traffic check made by Mr. Schmitt during rush hours at various points near the Maryland-District boundary were placed in the record to show the number of suburbanites, now driving their own cars, who might use a commuter service.

At Wisconsin avenue and Somerset street he said he counted 1,115 cars bearing Maryland tags coming into the District in one hour. At Connecticut avenue and Bradley boulevard he counted 622 Maryland cars and at Bladensburg road and the District line, 1,160.

Whitehurst Disputes Schmitt. Capt. Whitehurst followed Mr. Schmitt on the witness stand and testified that representatives of three of the railroads running into Washington—Pennsylvania, B. & O. and R. P. & D.—had informed him at a recent conference that extension of their present commuter service is not justified.

"According to information received from the railroads we have a commuter service now," he said. "The commuters, however, have almost passed out of existence. They left the railroads. The railroads didn't leave them."

Capt. Whitehurst also declared that steam locomotives could not be brought into the Mall area and remarked that one of the troubles with mass transportation companies is they are giving too much "door-to-door service" and congestion results.

"Are the people of Washington ready for that type of service?" asked Capt. Whitehurst. "If they have a rapid transit system here there will be no more door-to-door service. Trains are not going to stop at every block. Stops will be placed four or five blocks apart."

Mr. Schmitt had told the committee that a subway running through the Mall to carry shuttle trains from Twelfth street and Virginia avenue through the Mall to Government buildings on Constitution avenue could be constructed for less than $10,000,000. "The high-way director said numerous studies of subway construction costs here showed the minimum for those containing two tracks would be $5,000,000 a mile."

Capt. Whitehurst's testimony wound up two weeks of hearings on the traffic situation. Another hearing is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Senate Committee Slates Final Action on Rent Bill Next Week

District Unit to Meet Monday on Changes Tentatively Approved

The Senate District Committee will take final action early next week on the House-approved rent control bill, Chairman McCarran announced today. A meeting for this purpose probably will be held Monday.

The measure was endorsed by the committee late yesterday, subject to ratification of a series of tentatively-approved changes which included elimination of the Patman amendment, tacked on in the House. These changes, to be considered further at the next meeting, would:

1. Require that the rent administrator appointed by the Commission be confirmed by the Senate, in the same manner as presidential nominations are handled.

2. Make appointments on the staff of the administrator conditioned upon approval of the Commission.

3. Authorize the administrator, in fixing hotel rates, to make allowance for increases or decreases in operating expenses since last January 1.

4. Direct the administrator to file a report with Congress semi-annually.

Action of the committee was taken at a brief executive session following a two-hour public hearing during which vigorous protests were made against the Patman amendment, which provided that rents be adjusted on the basis of the investment value of property.

The committee also rejected an amendment suggested at the hearing by Representative Dewey, Republican of Illinois, which would allow a 10 per cent increase in the January 1 apartment rent for houses or multiple apartments renting for $50 or less per month. Mr. Dewey explained such a provision would protect owners of low rental accommodations against losses from possible vacancies.

This suggested change was opposed by Karl Borders, chief of the rent section of O. P. M., and Mrs. Helen Drey Hoffman of the Washington Housing Association, both of whom pointed out that people in the lowest salary groups live in houses and apartments renting for $50 or less, and any increase in rentals would constitute a decided hardship on them.

The amendment relating to hotels was suggested by Joseph C. McGarragh, representing the Washington Hotel Association.

Opposed by Borders. Mr. Borders opposed the suggested amendment. He declared the administrator already had been given power in the bill "to do what the hotel men want done." He argued that the change would merely inject into the bill "special language and considerations."

Ask for tentatively approved amendment requiring that the rent administrator selected by the Commission meet the approval of the Senate was not revealed. It was said, however, that Senator McCarran will be advised there is no legal precedent for such a procedure, and there are indications the amendment will be removed.

Opponents of the Patman amendment included Mr. Borders, Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, E. Barrett Prettyman, representing organized real estate interests; Commissioner John Russell Young and Harry S. Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

Chaos Foreseen. Both Mr. Prettyman and Mr. Borders said the amendment would make the rent-control plan totally unworkable.

Final witnesses before the committee preceding the executive session were Arthur Waller, of the Federation of Civic Associations, and Edgar G. Brown, president of the United Federal Workers.

Sales Show of Art Will Open Tomorrow At Corcoran Gallery

Exhibition Is Designed To Distribute Works Of Merit at $50 or Less

An exhibition designed to point out that not all creditable works of art are by "big names" and that items of merit can be purchased for the home at $50 and less will be opened tomorrow by the Corcoran School of Art in the Corcoran Gallery.

It will be the annual sales show for the school's alumni and advanced students. During the display, scheduled for the works exhibited will be offered for sale at prices fixed by the artists, ranging from $125 for "Congressional Cloakroom," a small etching, to $750.

The more than 100 oil, water color, print, ceramic and wood works were chosen from among several times that number of entries by a jury composed of two Corcoran School alumni, two members of the faculty and two members of the Board of Trustees of the Corcoran Gallery.

Entrants were restricted to not more than three works in any one medium.

Christmas Buyers Wood. Officials of the school and gallery scheduled the sales exhibition in the fall with a view to interesting prospective Christmas buyers. In the past, an encouraging number of buyers has been among the visitors.

Many of the exhibitors are part-time artists who are obliged to earn their living in other fields. Richard Lahey, principal of the school, is particularly happy when one of these sells a work and finds that some small financial return has come for the creative effort.

One of the artists represented in the show has a part-time library position. Another teaches in the public elementary schools. In the past, a third supports himself partly through a night watchman job at the gallery.

A wide variety of subjects is in the exhibition array. Mary Jane S. Corr did a Washington street corner in water colors, re-located a nearby synagogue so its steeple would break the sky of her picture. She placed a price of $15 on it.

Two Oils From One Artist. Sania Biskin had two oils accepted by the judges—"Studio Table," a still life priced at $25, and "Tree and Red House," a landscape on sale at $20.

Ruth M. Kern asks $5 for her blue ceramic vase, while William T. Jamison prices "Hooked," a writhing fish in wood, at $50.

The judges picked Elizabeth Ogilby's "Circus Horses," a 10 lithograph, as well as "Men and Machine," small block print by John C. Rogers, who will part with it for $5.

Christine Westerstom and Betty Jorgensen have portraits in the show. They are not for sale, but are displayed with the thought persons liking the style of work will offer portrait commissions.

The gallery charges no commissions on sales.

603 Ambulances Arrive Safely in Allied Ports. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Safe delivery in Britain and Allied ports of 603 ambulances valued at $900,000 was announced today by the British-American Ambulance Corps.

William V. C. Ruxton, corps president, said 39 ambulance units, costing $58,000, had been lost at sea since shipments began in June, 1940, but that the loss was covered by insurance.

Single Physical Test to Decide D. C. Selectees

Pre-induction Plan To Go Into Effect By January 1

By THOMAS C. HARDMAN. Plans for establishment of pre-induction physical examinations for Washington selectees to avoid the inconveniences and hardships frequently brought about by rejections under the present system have been forwarded to Third Corps Area headquarters District selective service officials revealed today.

The new program, to be made effective by January 1, calls for a single Army physical examination for Washingtonians, to be conducted at Fort Myer, Va., replacing dual local board and induction examinations currently in effect for selectees.

Meanwhile, 9 of 22 selective service registrants were granted deferments in decisions of the District Board of Appeals announced today.

10 Days' Advance Notice. Under the pre-induction plan, a draft registrant would be examined and informed definitely whether he is to be taken into the Army a minimum of 10 days before he actually is called to leave for duty. The move would result in abandonment of induction centers at Richmond and Baltimore, selectees going directly to the Camp Lee (Va.) or Fort Meade (Md.) reception centers and taking the oath at those points.

One of the principal defects in the administration of the Selective Service Act has been the procedure whereby registrants are examined by local board physicians some time before a second official Army examination is taken into the Army. Many cases of selectees who have sold automobiles at a loss and otherwise taken financial losses in last-minute preparations for their tour of Army duty, only to be rejected before they ever reach camp have come to the attention of District draft officials.

Verdict Within 24 Hours. Under the new plan, the District of Columbia Medical Society would supply panels of doctors to serve at the Fort Myer examination quarters, this medical "board" to be headed by a regular Army officer. The examination would be final, except for the usual cursory examination given selectees when they report to their posts for duty, and the registrants would know whether or not they have passed within 24 hours after they were examined.

This system has been tried successfully in several States and national headquarters officials have asked that a similar plan be set up in all jurisdictions by the first of the year.

Five of the nine registrants succeeded in their appeals; this week were given Class 3 ratings because of dependents; three men were placed in Class 2 because of the essential nature of their occupations and one was granted a Class 1-B deferment due to a minor physical defect.

Those deferred to Class 3 were Charles D. Rice, 21, lithograph company employee; Frederick L. Tyler, 23, Navy launch room worker; Raymond I. Knott, 21, employee of a typewriter concern; Richard O. Quill, 26, Agriculture Department clerk, and Herbert E. Wilson, Jr., 21, Southern Railway employee.

Class II Deferments. Class II deferments were granted James Robert Goodwin, 21, Navy Yard worker; Bernard C. Tierney, 24, employee of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and John Thomas 22, also with the F. B. I. Ulrich S. Allers, 21, a student, was the registrant given a 1-B classification.

Those whose appeals were rejected were Arthur L. Appleton, 27; James C. Russell, 22; James Randolph Wathen, 23; Clairborne Washington, 22; William P. Link, 27; Kenneth D. Strauss, 21; Seymour D. Lieberman, 24; George Clarence Bright, 22; Gerald Stanley Goodman, 25; Webster Capps, 21; George Reim, 22; and Dante J. Perizoni, 21.

Deferments were granted in the cases of Mr. Russell, Mr. Link and Mr. Strauss, all of whom asked class III ratings, according to the opportunity of appealing personally to the White House if they wish.

Plan Will Save $500,000 In Collecting $5 Auto Tax

Master Index and Mailing System Also to Eliminate Hiring of 2,500

A plan decided upon by the Treasury for collecting the $5 use tax to be assessed against motor vehicle owners February 1 will save more than half a million dollars on the collection cost, which was estimated originally at $900,000, and at the same time avoid the necessity of hiring about 2,500 temporary employees to handle the work.

This was disclosed today in a decision by Controller General Lindsay C. Warren approving the Treasury program under which commercial concerns will compile a master index of vehicle owners in the United States and at the same time mail out applications to all persons on the list who will be required to get stickers or tags to affix to their cars—or boats—signifying that the tax has been paid.

The Treasury estimates that 28,000,000 owners of 32,000 motor vehicles must pay the tax, which was included in the defense revenue measure passed a few weeks ago. Facing difficulty in obtaining adequate registration records from State agencies, the Treasury advised the controller general that two concerns in Detroit and Chicago were compiling a national list, which, along with the mailing service, would be sold to the Government for $364,000. The job probably will go to these organizations, but the award can be made only after advertising, the controller general pointed out, in order to give any other concern that might desire to bid for the work a chance to do so.

A copy of the card index will be furnished each internal revenue collector to enable local offices to check up on delinquents and thereby facilitate collections in the respective districts. The applications are due to go to the taxpayer in January.

For the Treasury to have done the work which it is now proposed to let out on contract not only would have necessitated additional employment but also would have raised a space problem in many instances, the controller general was advised.

Employment Center Plans Night Hours

Because of the heavy demand for workers here, especially for women in retail department stores, the commercial and professional office of the District Employment Center, 808 E street N.W., will be open between 5 and 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning next week, it was announced today.

Edwin W. Jones, director of the center, said the arrangement was made for women who find it inconvenient to report for an interview during the regular office hours. The arrangement will remain in effect until December 16.

Mr. Jones said he anticipates a greater number of placements and job orders than at any time in the center's history.

War Sends Price of Canaries and Bird Seed Soaring

Canaries are going up, and so is the price of bird seed for that matter. It's all on account of the war.

The Harz Mountain breeders of Southern Germany are cut off by the British blockade from their most profitable market. Good male singing canaries, as a result, have jumped from $4.50 to $10 or $12 each in the United States.

The same situation prevails in the bird seed market, according to exhibitors at the National Capital Canary Club show, which opens at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Odd Fellows Temple, 419 Seventh street N.W.

The tinkest canary, or finch, the breeders said, will get away with at least 5 pounds of bird seed a year, and the seed has doubled in price. It's virtually impossible to get German rape, and French millet has jumped in price. There are few importations of bird seed from Turkey, Morocco or Spain.

New Argentine Seed. The breeders said there is a new seed on the market from Argentina. It has a low price, but the birds don't go for it much because of the tough shell.

Among approximately 500 birds being exhibited this year are many vari-colored finches and a scattering of rare songsters from all quarters of the world. All of the birds are going up in price because of war conditions and the difficulty of importing the feathered pets.

The birds on display include many highly-refined canary types bred in the United States for color, song and feather characteristics. There are also Pekin nightingales, butterfly finches, siskins, St. Helena waxbills, paradise whistlers from Australia with 14-inch tails and many others.

Nelson Pledges End of Confusion Over Priorities

Tells Construction Industry Materials Will Be Allocated

Donald M. Nelson, Federal priorities director, assured the construction industry today of the Government's intent to eliminate "confusion" associated with priorities by substituting a system of allocations on strategic defense materials.

Addressing the closing session of the Construction Industry Conference at the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Nelson said it was the aim of the Office of Production Management eventually "to put this thing on a basis so that we know how quickly the change could be made."

Under the closing session of the Construction Industry Conference at the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Nelson said it was the aim of the Office of Production Management eventually "to put this thing on a basis so that we know how quickly the change could be made."

Mr. Nelson, executive director of the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board, said he did not know how quickly the change could be made, warning against getting any "false hope" about the consequences to present-day business but declared that "we are at work on it."

Intent on Beating Hitler. Reviewing the need for restrictions of strategic materials under the "defense economy," Mr. Nelson said O. P. M.'s efforts have always been "in the interest of national defense, the health or safety of the people," adding that "it is our desire and earnest endeavor" to eliminate "the tremendous amount of confusion" that has resulted in the national economy.

"When the demand for materials becomes greater than the supply the whole method of priorities certification will be changed, because it won't necessarily get you the material," Mr. Nelson declared.

"Certainly a manufacturer, a contractor or anybody else can only do business on something he has, not on a piece of paper or promise," said Nelson, "but even in the distant future he may get it. That is why our whole thinking, in order to simplify the system, is to go straight to allocations."

He said the allocation system would include the Army and Navy as well as everybody else, but added that "there is nothing in this system that I or any others have anything to do with that will deny the Army and the Navy anything they need for national defense, or to be blunt, that may be needed anywhere to lick Mr. Hitler."

Panel Discussion Held. After Mr. Nelson's talk a panel discussion was held with five O. P. M. chiefs answering questions from the floor.

Preparation of a plan for transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy was urged by David C. Prince, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, at the conference's annual dinner at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

Expressing hope that the war will be ended by 1946, Mr. Prince asserted that such a plan "should contemplate progressively higher standards of living, brought about by full employment."

Richard J. Gray, acting president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, another speaker at the dinner, made a plea for "a full measure of co-operation" between labor and management in the building industry.

Mr. Gray pointed out that the 1,500 building craftsmen in the A. F. of L. had "given their pledges through their unions to make their utmost contribution to the Nation's defense."

W. M. Watson, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, told the conference yesterday afternoon that "the record of the industry on defense projects is a modern miracle, unequalled in the world's history."

Crestwood Rezoning Blocks $700,000 Apartment Project

Householders Win Fight; Builders to Lose $700,000, Attorney Testifies

Citizens in the Crestwood area today were granted their petition for rezoning of the area, which will block construction of a proposed $700,000 apartment at Sixteenth and Shepherd streets N.W.

After a closed session the Zoning Commission announced approval of the change in zoning of the area from 60-foot A residential to 40-foot A restricted. The matter had been considered at two previous commission sessions and action deferred pending further study. The citizens had asked the change at a public hearing October 8.

Scores of home owners in the area appeared to protest to the commission that construction of the apartment project would reduce land values in the section. Several members of Congress and a State Department officer supported their plea for rezoning in letters to the commission. The petitioners told the zoning authorities the apartment project, if permitted, would be the first such dwelling north of Piney Branch Bridge.

Testimony presented at the hearing by Attorney Louis Ottenberg on behalf of the builder, Harry Foretsky, was that granting of the rezoning would result in a loss of some $700,000 to the builder.

Mr. Foretsky, according to Mr. Ottenberg, made inquiry at the zoning office to establish the zoning of the area before he entered contract on the property.

Residents asserted the proposed structure would constitute a traffic hazard, but this was denied by Mr. Ottenberg.

It is understood the commission was not unanimous in consenting to the rezoning.

The commission also announced appointment of Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, Assistant Engineer, Commissioner to the Zoning Advisory Council, succeeding S. G. Lindholm, who is retiring. Col. Snow will represent the Zoning Commission on the council. Other members are Robert O. Clouser, representing the District Commissioners, and John Nolen, Jr., representing the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Road Policy Of Federation Is Questioned

County Maintenance Stand Explained in Talk by Carson

The advisability of returning to the old system of highway maintenance by the county as against the present setup in which the State Roads Commission repairs the highways was questioned last night by William A. Carson, chairman of the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners, in addressing the monthly meeting of the county Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The federation had just reiterated its stand on the issue by approving the motion of its Roads Committee chairman, John Ringles of the Seabrook Citizens' Association, calling for a return to the old system. Mr. Carson, whose talk began a series by county officials explaining problems in county government, pointed out that the county has no machinery for the repair of its highways and that two maintenance stations at opposite ends of the county requiring separate sets of machinery and forces of labor would be needed. He estimated the cost of such establishments at between $200,000 and $250,000. State Roads Commission supervision and its engineer would have to be employed, he added.

Complaints about the work done by the State Roads Commission, and particularly about the repairs it has failed to make, have been widespread in the county recently and have been frequently echoed in the meetings of the Board of Commissioners.

Backs Higher Home Limit.

The Office of Production Management will be asked by the federation to raise the $6,000 ceiling on new homes. Daniel Greene, delegate of the Queens Chapel Citizens' Association, introduced the motion. Mr. Greene's motion calls for a ceiling of $8,000 where land and labor costs are high.

The present system of road repairing was discussed at length by Mr. Carson. Last year, he said, the State Roads Commission was approximately $132,000, of which 50 per cent was retained by the State Commission to be added to the new roads construction fund. Of the remaining $65,000, $29,000 was rebated to the incorporated towns in the county, he said. The county has a total of about 591 miles of county roads and 191 miles of State roads, he added. All money used by the commissioners to repair roads must come from the gasoline tax rebate, he said.

The commissioners this year have asked for the full impounded fund, amounting to $78,000. Mr. Carson said, revealing that plans call for about 20 miles of roads during 1942 and 1943, at a cost of $39,000 each year.

Gives Praise to Orem.

Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, was praised by Mr. Carson, who said the school board under Mr. Orem had worked miracles. Mr. Carson called the school problem "acute" and pointed out the difficulties of educating county children without proper equipment. An application for Federal funds to provide additional school buildings and equipment has been rejected, Mr. Carson said he understood. Federal officials have decided, he said, that Government workers in the county are not defense workers within the meaning of the Lanham Act.

Luis Granados, chairman of the federation's County Affairs Committee, who introduced the speaker, led the informal discussion which followed Mr. Carson's talk.

New member associations in the federation will be credited on their 1942 dues if they join the federation now, it was voted on a motion by Mr. Greene.

The West Lanham Hills Citizens' Association and the Clearwood Citizens' Association were admitted to membership.

Second Youth Faces Court In Assault Murder

By the Associated Press.
LOVINGSTON, Va., Nov. 7.—A special Nelson County Circuit Court jury was impaneled here today for the trial of Charles T. Johnson, Jr., 19, colored, on a charge of murder of Gladys Mae Tyree, 18, Appomattox High School senior.

Johnson, brought here from the Lynchburg Jail, in an armored State police car, pleaded innocent when arraigned Saturday.

Evidence in the case of William Henry Diggs, colored, also 19, facing a charge of murder of the girl, was taken before Judge Edward Meeks here yesterday. He waived jury trial.

Attorneys' arguments in the Diggs case were deferred until after completion of the Johnson trial. Diggs pleaded innocent.

The body of Miss Tyree was found in woods near her home at Gladstone the morning of October 19. She had been strangled and criminally assaulted.

Diggs told the court that he helped Johnson drag the screaming girl into the woods, but denied any part in the attack.

Senate Group's Final Rent Bill Action Slated

Committee to Meet Monday to Consider Tentative Changes

By JAMES E. CHINN.
The Senate District Committee will take final action early next week on the House-approved rent control bill, Chairman McCarran announced today. A meeting for this purpose probably will be held Monday.

The measure was endorsed by the committee late yesterday, subject to ratification of a series of tentatively-approved changes which included elimination of the Patman amendment, tacked on in the House. These changes, to be considered further at the next meeting, would:

1. Require that the rent administrator appointed by the Commissioners be confirmed by the Senate in the same manner as presidential nominations are handled.
2. Make appointments on the staff of the administrator conditioned upon approval of the Commissioners.
3. Authorize the administrator, in fixing hotel rates, to make allowance for increases or decreases in operating expenses since last January 1.

Would Require Reports.

4. Direct the administrator to file a report with Congress semi-annually.

Action of the committee was taken at a brief executive session following a two-hour public hearing during which vigorous protests were made against the Patman amendment, which provided that rents be adjusted on the basis of the investment value of property.

The committee also rejected an amendment suggested at the hearing by Representative Dewey, Republican, of Illinois, which would allow a 10 per cent increase in the January 1 level of rents for houses or multiple apartments renting for $50 or less per month. Mr. Dewey explained such a provision would protect owners of low rental accommodations against losses from possible vacancies.

This suggested change was opposed by Karl Borders, chief of the rent section of O. P. M., and Mrs. Helen Dwyer Hoffman of the Washington Housing Association, both of whom pointed out that people in the lowest salary groups live in houses and apartments renting for $50 or less, and any increase in rentals would constitute a decided hardship on them.

The amendment relating to hotels was suggested by Joseph C. McGarraghy, representing the Washington Hotel Association.

Opposed by Borders.

Mr. Borders opposed the suggested amendment. He declared the administrator already had been given power in the bill to do what the hotel men want done. He argued that the change would merely inject into the bill "special language and consideration."

Author of the tentatively approved amendment requiring that the rent administrator selected by the Commissioners meet the approval of the Senate was not revealed. It was said, however, that Senator McCarran will be advised there is no legal precedent for such a procedure, and there are indications the amendment will be removed.

Residents Protest Zoning Change in Silver Spring Area

General Off-Street Parking Aim in Reclassification, Attorney Explains

Opposition to the application of Paul D. Taggart, attorney for Albert L. Rodgers, owner, asking for reclassification from residential A to commercial D of lots 13 and 14, block 2, E. Brooks Lee's subdivision in Silver Spring, was voiced by a number of residents of the area at a hearing yesterday at the County Building in Silver Spring.

William F. McKenna, attorney, acted as spokesman for the opponents. He challenged the propriety of the advertisement of the hearing, declaring the notice referred to streets which do not now exist.

Mr. McKenna said the property is in an area surrounded on all sides by residences and that covenants running with the land stipulate that it be used for homes exclusively. He presented a petition signed by 38 names asking the commissioners to deny the application.

Off-Street Parking Planned.

Others who spoke against the proposed rezoning were Mrs. Joseph Steckline, Robert Freund, Mrs. C. C. Jones and Mrs. L. C. Leasure.

Speaking in behalf of the rezoning, Mr. Taggart denied that the site is to be used for the parking of refuse trucks, but said it would be used for general off-street parking. He said that the old street names used in the advertisement are on the plat on record and still on the street corners.

Mr. Taggart contended the residential section in that area is surrounded almost entirely by apartment, industrial and commercial zoning, and eventually will all be in that classification.

Other Hearings Held.

The commissioners also held a hearing in Silver Spring on the application of Kenneth W. and Celia T. Simpson, owners, asking for reclassification from residential A to residential Z zone of a site on Mitchell street west of Pawcett street, in Kensington.

Although the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission had received a letter from the Kensington Town Council protesting the application, no opponents appeared at the hearing.

Ruling May Out 300 Families From Greenbelt

5 Soldiers Acquitted By Maryland Jury of Assault Charges

Men Returned to Camp; Upper Marlboro Panel Deliberates One Hour

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.
UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Nov. 7.—Five Fort Meade privates were acquitted here yesterday of charges of criminal assault after a jury had deliberated the case one hour.

The men, Thomas Amato, 21, of Cleveland; William Greenack, 23, of Philadelphia; Francis Bower, 32, of Philadelphia; Cyril Becht, 32, of Baltimore, and Lee Schroeder, 26, of Baltimore, were all indicted on three counts of criminal assault, and attempted criminal assault, and assault and battery on a 17-year-old Virginia girl near Berwyn late last August. The verdict was not guilty on all counts.

The men were released and returned to camp after spending almost three months in the county jail. Army officials were reported to have agreed to restore them to their organizations and ratings. They were represented by Brice Claggett and Frank Hall.

Testimony of the complaining witness and her girl companion, placed on the stand by State's Attorney Gwynn Bowie, agreed except for minor differences with the defendants on meeting in a tavern near Berwyn, and leaving at the request of the proprietor, Thomas Barkley, Mr. Barkley, called by the defense, told the court they were creating a scene by "bugging and kissing."

The girl testified that she was attacked by three of the men when they stopped along Baltimore boulevard after leaving the tavern. Her companion said she had run away when the car stopped and the men were not watching.

The men admitted stopping the car, owned by Schroeder, and did not deny making advances to the girl, but did deny assaulting her. They said she finally ran away and they returned to camp.

Maryland Seeks Skilled Labor From Other States

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—Maryland's shortage of skilled laborers is so serious the State Employment Service has called on other States "for several thousand additional workers."

"The Employment Service is interested in placing Maryland citizens in Maryland jobs before going out of the State to obtain workers," said D. L. B. Fringer, service director.

Economy Urged In Montgomery To Cut Debt

Dr. William P. Walker Speaks in Brookings Study Series

Warning that present debt figures for Montgomery County (Md.) "show the amber light of caution," Dr. William Paul Walker, University of Maryland economist, urged county officials to embark on a four-point economy program in order to approach a "real" pay-as-you-go basis.

His talk was the fourth in a series sponsored on Thursday night at the Rockville High School by a county-wide group organized to sponsor the study of the Brookings Institution report on the county government.

Although admitting that the size of the county debt must be a matter of serious concern if it were not for the "relatively high average income" of its residents, Dr. Walker said that the people of Montgomery County "might well heed the warning on the question of debt."

The wise course for the county commissioners during the next few years, he said, would be:

- "Fix a tax rate that will pay off all debt as it matures and meet all current expenses in full.
- "Be extremely conservative in authorizing any new public improvements that involve bond issues, especially long-time bond issues.
- "Make no further bond issues whose term exceeds the life of the improvement.

"Bring about all possible economies in government administration consistent with efficiency so that, if possible, taxes on property may be reduced within the next few years without resort to debt refunding or to the funding of deficits."

Failure of the county to assess property at its full valuation did much to pile up the county's indebtedness, the speaker emphasized.

While the direct debt of the county was increasing almost steadily from year to year, he said, "the assessed value of the real and personal property, until 1939, increased only a little."

Reassessment Favored.

In fact, Dr. Walker continued, a decrease occurred in the amount of taxes levied between 1932 and 1935, forcing the county to embark on a program of refunding its maturing obligations.

"If the county had systematically reassessed property and had levied taxes high enough to meet obligations as they matured, there would have been less need for refunding bonds," he declared.

"This failure to pay off maturing indebtedness, he emphasized, was an important factor in the county debt increase from $5,990,000 in 1930 to $11,720,000 in 1940.

He concluded by telling his audience that "citizens can profitably give serious consideration to the findings and suggestions of the Brookings Institution. . . . Time and study will play an important part in revealing the wisdom of such recommendation."

Dr. Campbell, former judge of the Orphan's Court in Rockville, presided at the meeting. Next Tuesday night Daniel T. Selko of the Brookings staff will discuss the county's revenue system.

The Rev. W. I. Campbell Rites Set Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Darnestown (Md.) Presbyterian Church for the Rev. George H. Bucher of Pittsburgh, who will deliver the sermon; the Rev. William T. Gover of Gaithersburg, Md.; the Rev. Gustavus G. Kundahl of Neelsville, Mo., and the Rev. James P. Kerr of Boyd, Md.

Dr. Campbell held two pastorates in the Washington Presbytery from 1913 to 1919 he was pastor of the Sherwood Church and returned in 1936 when he became pastor of the Darnestown Church. He twice held the office of moderator of the Washington City Presbytery, the last time in 1940, and was moderator of three other Presbyteries. His ministry extended over 43 years.

He attended the Columbian Law School, now George Washington University, as well as Princeton University and Theological Seminary. Following admission to the District bar, he practiced law here for several years and was granted several patents for inventions.

Busy Times Make Luncheon More Popular Than Ever For Capital Entertaining

M. Henry-Haye Host at Embassy; Mrs. Wade H. Ellis Hostess After Review at Sulgrave Club

No matter how busy all these defense workers are they have to stop for lunch—so most hosts and hostesses have taken advantage of this fact to make the luncheon hours more popular and entertaining than ever. The French Ambassador, M. Gaston Henry-Haye, had a dozen guests at the Embassy yesterday, and all but one couple had to hasten off soon as liquors were served in order to keep some business appointments. The Ambassador has completed an exchange of property on Sixteenth street which was owned by the French republic for a lot next door to the Embassy. The staff had often feared that their beautiful view might be ruined some day by erection of a building on this ground.

Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, wife of the former Assistant Attorney General, was hostess at luncheon today at the Sulgrave Club in honor of Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes and Mrs. O. W. McNeese. Unfortunately Mrs. Keyes is ill and was unable to attend the luncheon which followed the review of Mrs. Keyes' new book by Mrs. McNeese at her weekly review at the Sulgrave Club this morning.

Luncheon was served in the ballroom, where the table had low mounds of chrysanthemums in autumn shades mingled with autumn leaves which also were sprayed about the table. The flowers and leaves came from Rippon Lodge, the ancestral home of Mr. Ellis, overlooking the Potomac at Dumfries, Va.

Mrs. Harlan F. Stone Ranking Guest at Luncheon.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Chief Justice, was the ranking guest at the luncheon and others there were Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. Claude Pepper, the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey, Lady Chalkley, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. William D. Connor, Mrs. Floyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. James M. Beck, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. James E. Watson, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Emil Hurler, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. F. M. Dillard, Mrs. Parker W. West, Mrs. Emlin Knight Davies and her sister, Mrs. Rebekah Knight Cochran of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Edward Keating, Mrs. Charles H. March, Mrs. George C. Thorpe, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. William Jennings Price, Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. John McClure, Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton, Mrs. Mae Hamilton, Mrs. Robert Vedder Fleming, Mrs. William Livingston Crouse, Mrs. Thomas Reed, Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Eltona Tyrner, Mrs. John C. Runkle, Mrs. Woodson P. Houghton, Mrs. William E. Wood, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. R. R. Savers, Countess Cassini, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Mrs. Mitchell Carroll, Mrs. Clarence L. Miller, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Aiva B. Brewer, Mrs. Randolph Hopkins, Miss Janet Richards, Miss Grace Burton, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Miss Betty Hynes.

Miss Maud McDougall, Miss Jean Darling and Miss Luella Chase, sister of the hostess.

Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper had as their guests at luncheon yesterday Mr. and Mrs. John Fahs of Jacksonville, Fla., who are in Washington for a few days.

Senator and Mrs. Pepper will leave today for Florida to attend the Florida-Georgia football game tomorrow. They will remain in the South until the middle of the week, the Senator having several speaking engagements for Armistice Day.

Mrs. Philip Clancy Luncheon Hostess.

Mrs. Philip F. Clancy also was a luncheon hostess yesterday, entertaining in honor of Mrs. Marro Julia of Puerto Rico, who, with her family, is spending the winter in Washington and has an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Clancy gave her party in the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Tiller, and was assisted by Mrs. Tiller.

Other guests included Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Helen Moore, Mrs. Rena Taylor, Miss Pilar Revelo, Mrs. James Hammond, Mrs. Kenneth Romney, Mrs. Harry Holland of London, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tiller; Mrs. Hilda von Stockum Marlin, Mrs. Eugene O. Sykes, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith and Mrs. Randolph Hopkins.

Soviet Embassy To Mark Anniversary.

A highlight of today's social gatherings will be at the Soviet Embassy where the Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Gromyko will receive with Mme. Oumansky to celebrate the anniversary of the great October revolution. There are numerous parties on today's calendar, among them being the tea which Mrs. Roosevelt is giving this afternoon for the United States Committee of International Students' Service. There are several dinners on tonight's calendar, among them being that which Associate Justice William O. Douglas will give for a group of men. The former Second Secretary of the United States Legation in Guatemala and Mrs. John M. Cabot, who recently came here from Guatemala City, will entertain at dinner this evening in their house at 2339 S street, which they recently leased.

Brazilian Secretary Entertains Informally.

The Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Senhora de Gouthier were hosts late yesterday afternoon when they entertained informally in their home on Le Roy place.

The hostess wore a black frock embroidered with sequins which matched the collar of the dress. Senhora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, was among the guests, and others were Mr. Justice Frank Murphy, Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Frouke Dewey, Mrs. George Renard, Mme. Paulo Sampaio, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mr. Denis Smith, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Miss Elaine Darlington and many others from both official and residential circles.

By the Way—

Beth Blaine
New York is a thrilling place to be in just now, with the shop windows already brightly bursting with Christmas goodies, beautiful fur coats and brilliant jewels, sheer lacy and befringed lingerie, and toys so amazing and fascinating that even the grown-ups stop to stare and wonder. We arrived election night to find a crowded and excited city. Down several side streets we noticed great blazing bonfires, right in the middle of the streets! "What? we asked the taxi driver, "goes on?" "Oh, it's just an election night celebration," he answered. "The kids start those fires, but the fire department soon puts them out!" And soon is right! Those fire engines were everywhere at once—the fires of very short duration.

Yesterday lunching at the Louis XIV Restaurant we saw a lot of familiar faces. Mrs. Ormand Lawson-Johnson (whose daughter is Mrs. John Hamilton) was there. She looked pretty and fresh and piquant in her smart black frock with a mink jacket and a tiny mink hat to match. "We're going to stop and spend the night with the Hamiltons at their farm in Paoli," we told her. Also at lunch was Elinor Guthrie Neff, who used to live in Washington, went to school at the Warrenton Country School, and now has a very important job on Harper's Bazaar and only comes to Washington on little hurried trips when she dashes down to see her mother and step father, Gen. and Mrs. David Brainard. She looked like a picture right out of Harper's herself, in a black wool dress with her lovely black hair done up in front in softly curled bangs, her little red hat perched far back on her head and her gloves the same red as the hat.

Grover Whalen was there, too, with a party of friends, and so was Henry May—who always seems to be everywhere. The Kenneth Jenkins and the William Doellers were all lunching together—they came up for a few days of shopping and fun.

At cocktail time we saw Mrs. Lee Bouvier, who has so many friends in the Capital and is coming down this winter for a visit, she says. She's just moved from her old apartment on Grace Square to a new one on Eighty-sixth street. It's terribly attractive—duplex, with a huge open fireplace in the drawing room and a little entrance hall all its own with stairs leading to the bedrooms upstairs. Mrs. Francis Garvan is living in the apartment on Park avenue which Janet owns—having leased it now for several years. Which reminds us, that Hope and Pat Garvan have a little daughter. They're living out on Long Island and Hope's father, Robert Jackson, is with them, too. The baby, we hear, is a darling, and every one, including "Grandpa," is mad about her.

Coming back to the Hampshire House to change for dinner, who should we see but Mrs. Charles Parker Stone who was on her way to dine here. She looked very fine and chic and New Yorkish—with her hair in bangs, too.

Young Pauline Curtis is at the Hampshire House now, staying in her mother's apartment. Her mother (Mrs. John Gross) arrives tomorrow with Mr. Gross from Bethlehem—we hope, before we leave. Pauline has a very attractive friend, Sheila Page, staying with her until after Thanksgiving when she'll join her parents in Boca Grande, Fla.

Later on in the evening we ran into even more people we knew—Hugh Auchincloss and Mrs. Emery Sands and Mrs. Howell Howard, who used to live in Dayton and now has a heavenly home on Sutton place. She spent most of her summer in Wyoming, she said, on Hope Williams' ranch, which is just next to Mrs. Hendricks' Eustis'.

New York, it seems, is just as crowded as Washington—the theaters, the shops, the restaurants and most of all the night clubs—but such fun! We shall hate to leave it tomorrow, but we're looking forward to seeing the Hamiltons and their farm, which we hear is simply perfect.

Parties for Brides-to-Be

Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins will entertain at a buffet supper at her home tonight for Miss Margaret Lansdowne, her fiancée, Mr. John Conway Hunt, and their attendants. The party will follow a wedding rehearsal at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Yesterday Miss Kitty Hill entertained at tea for the engaged couple and they shared honors at the wienie and beer party given by Mrs. Clarence Norlon Goodwin for Miss Lana Jelke and Miss Carryl Casselberry of Lake Forest, Ill., who will be in Miss Lansdowne's bridal train tomorrow.

Miss Harriette Kenyon, another bride of tomorrow, was honor guest at a luncheon yesterday at the Army Navy Country Club, where Miss Matilda Boose was hostess. Miss Kenyon will be married to Lt. John Pegram Johnson, jr., of Richmond, Va.

She and her fiancée were honored last evening at a buffet supper by Mr. and Mrs. John Austin Latimer and Mr. and Mrs. Latimer, jr. Today Miss Betty Rodrick was hostess at luncheon for Miss Kenyon and her attendants. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kenyon, will entertain at a rehearsal dinner at the Shoreham and tomorrow morning Mrs. William P. Rierson will give a breakfast at Toll House Tavern for the couple and their attendants.

Miss Sarah Esther Dyer, whose wedding to Mr. Hugh Catron Greney will take place tomorrow evening, was honored at a tea given yesterday by Mrs. Thomas Perrin and Mrs. T. N. Stewart. Today the bride's sister, Miss Mary Dyer, entertained at luncheon for her at the Shoreham and tonight their parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Dyer will give the rehearsal dinner at their home. Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams will entertain at a Southern breakfast for the bride and groom and the out-of-town guests tomorrow morning.

Miss Jane Elias To Wed Mr. Rich

Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Elias of New York City announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Elias, to Mr. Herbert J. Rich, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Rich of this city.

Miss Elias attended Syracuse University and was graduated from New York University as well as the Tope-Coburn School for Fashion. Miss Elias is a member of the Alpha Epsilon Phi, national sorority, and Mu Kappa Tau, honorary advertising sorority.

Mr. Rich attended the University of Virginia and is a member of Phi Epsilon Pi and Psi Pi, national fraternities.

The couple expect to be married some time in the early spring and will make their home in Washington.

Mrs. Blair to Leave For South Soon

Mrs. Gist Blair and Miss Laura Blair, widow and daughter of Maj. Blair, will leave shortly for the South, where they will spend the winter. Mrs. Blair, however, will be back for frequent visits with her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr.

Mrs. Blair has leased her historic home at 1651 Pennsylvania avenue to the retiring United States Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Frederick Sterling. Mrs. Sterling was here for a few days and has returned to Newport to close her house there for the season.

Mr. Sterling will be succeeded as Minister to Sweden by Mr. Herschel V. Johnson.

Mrs. Hines Returns

Mrs. Charlotte White Hines of Lyon Village has returned from New York, where she spent several days at the Waldorf-Astoria.

MRS. FLORENCE ARMSTRONG. As department president of the women's auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mrs. Armstrong is giving much of her time to assure success to the annual Armistice Day Ball of the veterans. The ball will be given at the Shoreham Hotel, Tuesday evening, to raise funds to carry on relief work among disabled veterans and their families. Many prominent officials are sponsoring the event and will occupy boxes.

Weddings of Interest

Miss Lois Thornton Becomes Bride of Mr. Richard Finiels

St. Alban's Episcopal Church was the scene of the marriage last Saturday of Miss Lois Mansfield Thornton, daughter of Mrs. Robert Lee Thornton and the late Mr. Thornton, to Mr. Richard O'Brien Finiels, White chrysanthemums, palms and ferns decorated the church, and Mr. Walter Nash played the music for the ceremony, at which the Rev. Dr. Charles T. Warner officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John J. Thornton, and she wore a gown of white slipper satin with long sleeves, basque waist and full skirt which fell into a circular train. Her full-length veil of tulle was held by a Mary Stuart cap with a cluster of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a white prayer book from which she read a white erchid and shower of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Leiland C. McCallum, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a deep rose chiffon gown trimmed in gold sequins. Her Juliet cap was of gold sequins and she carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Arthur R. Boulanger was best man for Mr. Finiels and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth R. Wertman and Mr. Stephen S. Kowal.

A reception after the ceremony for the two families and a few close friends was held at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Finiels left later for New York, the bride wearing a soldier blue dress and tan coat with a rayon collar, diamond accessories and a corsage of white orchids. On their return they will make their home in Washington.

Miss Mary Bowling Wed To Mr. Louis T. Duncan.

The La Plata (Md.) Church was decorated with chrysanthemums and fern for the wedding Saturday of Miss Mary Aliene Bowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowling, jr., of Faulkner, Md., and Mr. Louis

Thomas Duncan of Washington. The Rev. H. H. Host officiated and the musical program was given by Mrs. Richard Bowling accompanied by Mrs. Hoyt.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a brown dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Herbert N. Redmond, the bride's sister, was matron of honor, wearing a blue dress, black accessories and pink roses.

Mr. Herbert N. Redmond was best man and the ushers were Mr. Louis Martin of Issue, Md.; Mr. George Bowling of Wicomico, Md., and Mr. Freddie Hardesty of Newburg, Md.

A reception for about 100 guests was held later at the home of the bride.

Canadian Legation Honors Visitor

The Canadian Minister and Mrs. McCarthy were hosts at an impromptu reception yesterday afternoon, entertaining in honor of the Canadian Minister of Labor, Mr. Norman L. McLarty, who headed the Canadian delegation to the International Labor Conference. The guests yesterday numbered about 200 and included members of other delegations to that conference.

Envoy Is Host

The Czechoslovak Minister, M. Vladimir Hurban, was host at dinner last evening to a company of men in honor of the Foreign Minister of the Czechoslovak government in London, M. Jan Masaryk, who was a delegate to the International Labor Conference. M. Masaryk will go to New York today for a short stay, but is expected to return here later in the month for another and perhaps a longer visit.

Rally Is Told Of Women's Defense Role
Home Economics And Dietetic Units Hear Speakers

Defense activities in which women are participating were discussed by four speakers at an "all-out for defense" program presented at a joint dinner meeting last night of the District Branch, American Home Economics Association, and the Dietetic Association of the District. Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross; Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, president of the Women's National Press Club; Miss Sybil Baker, director of community centers of the District, and Mrs. W. L. Smith, publicity director of Bundles for Britain, addressed the session, which was held at the Dodge Hotel.

Miss Harriet Elliott, associate administrator of the Office of Price Administration, was among the guests.

Miss Boardman Praises Response of Women.

Miss Boardman praised the response of American women to demands of the present emergency, declaring that so far as the production work of the Red Cross is concerned, chapters have been ready to knit, sew or wrap bandages as fast as material is available.

By the end of this month, she reported, 30,000 sweaters will be completed for soldiers of the United States in outlying posts and 40,000-900 surgical dressings will be available whenever they are needed.

She emphasized the need of more donors for the blood plasma being stored for Army, Navy and civilian use.

Mrs. Tufty reviewed pending legislation of consumer interest, including price control, and Miss Baker discussed recreational facilities organized to meet the weekly influx of soldiers here.

Mrs. Smith's address on Bundles for Britain was supplemented by a recording of a broadcast, entitled "Forty-four Coupons or What the English Woman is Not Wearing" to illustrate what happens when clothing is rationed.

Open-Toe Shoes Declared Of No Use to Civilians.

Although used clothing for civilians is a special need at present, Mrs. Smith, in answer to a query, reported that open-toe shoes are not acceptable. In debris-filled streets, she explained, it is not wise to have toes exposed to glass.

Miss Bernice Burns, chairman of the Home Economics Women in Business, a section of the Home Economics Association, presided at the meeting. The program was arranged by the H. E. W. I. B.

Miss Melva Bakker, chairman of the Home Economics Association, and Mrs. Wilfred Dagan, chairman of the Dietetic Association, were at the speakers' table with chairmen of sections in the former group. These included Miss Emma Byler, Mrs. George Pattison and Mrs. Elizabeth Grant.

Journalist to Speak At Reunion Banquet Of Holton-Arms

Joseph C. Harsch of the foreign staff of the Christian Science Monitor will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be given by the Holton-Arms Alumnae Association tomorrow evening at the Mayflower Hotel as a feature of its 40th annual reunion.

Other speakers will include Miss Mary Happer, secretary of the school, who will serve as toastmaster; Walter Chandler of Memphis, Tenn.; Brice Claggett, a trustee of the school; Miss Frederika Hodder, principal of the school; Mrs. Frederic C. Laurence of Brookline, Mass.; Miss Sallie Lurton of the English department and Mrs. W. W. Flood, Mrs. William Mackall and Mrs. John Silldell.

Out-of-town alumnae who will attend the reunion include Mrs. John Michael of Baltimore, Miss Janie May Stokely of Newport, Tenn.; Mrs. R. Parker Kuhn, Mrs. Burnham Pettengill and Mrs. Millard S. Banks of New York; Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Crenshaw of the faculty of Bryn Mawr College, Mrs. Wendell Phillip Raine and Mrs. Lyle V. Beck of Philadelphia, Miss Martha Lamb of Smith College, Mrs. Linton Massey of Keswick, Va.; Mrs. Lynn S. Hornor of Clarksville, Va.; Miss Maggie Belle Willshire of Lexington, Va.; Mrs. Frederick Williams of Bristol, R. I.; Miss Leslie C. Smith of Bronsville; Mrs. Julian Robertson of Salisbury, N. C.; Miss Jean Dickson of Kansas City; Mrs. Henry Sherrerd of Hadron Field, N. J., and the Misses Frances, Hilar and Mary White of Charlottesville, Va.

U. D. C. Unit to Hear Representative Priest

Representative J. Percy Priest of Nashville, Tenn., will be guest speaker at the 46th anniversary celebration of Stonewall Jackson Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy at 8:30 p.m. Monday at Confederate Memorial Hall, 1322 Vermont avenue N.W. Mr. Peter Pierre Smith has been invited as a special guest. Past presidents of the chapter will be introduced at a special business meeting at 7:45 p.m.

The program has been arranged by Mrs. Ada B. Holt, chapter president, assisted by Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, Mrs. Elizabeth Fred Miss Frances Shirley, Miss Estelle Morrison and Mrs. Lena Smith.

Alumnae to Honor Dr. Helen Bragdon

Dr. Helen D. Bragdon, new president of Lake Erie College for Women at Painesville, Ohio, will be guest of honor of the Washington Alumnae Association of the college at a tea tomorrow afternoon at the home of Miss Betsy Frost, 1945 Calvert street N.W.

Dr. Bragdon, who was recently installed, was formerly dean of women at Hood College, Frederick, Md. Her oath of office was administered by James A. Garfield, son of former President Garfield, who is president of the board of trustees.

Appleby to Speak

The "Food Situation in England" will be the subject of an address by Paul H. Appleby, Undersecretary of Agriculture, at a luncheon of the Woman's National Democratic Club at 12:30 p.m. Monday. Mr. Appleby has recently returned from England, where he went to investigate food conditions.

News of Activities In Residential Circles of Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Harold de Veau have had as their guest for several weeks the latter's mother, Mrs. Rebekah Knight Cochran of Madison, Wis., who came to make the acquaintance of her grandson, Arthur Harold de Veau, who was born Tuesday.

Mrs. Cochran now is visiting her sister, Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies, and will remain several weeks before returning to Madison. Mrs. de Veau formerly was Miss Elizabeth Cochran.

Mrs. Frederic Atherton, who has leased her house to the former Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, has gone to the Sulgrave Club to reside.

Mrs. Caleb C. Motz has as her guests, her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. Joel A. White, Medical Corps, U. S. N., and Mrs. White, who formerly resided here. They flew to Washington yesterday from Los Angeles to attend the funeral of their son, Lt. Joel White, Jr., who was killed in an airplane crash.

Comdr. and Mrs. Charles C. Windsor entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel, in honor of their house guests, Mme. Maurice Elzear and her daughter, Miss Mary Spunt. Afterward they took their guests to the Army Navy Country Club to the dinner dance.

Those in the company were Mrs. Tench Tilghman, her son, Mr. Tench Tilghman, Jr.; Comdr. and Mrs. James Madison Doyle, Capt. and Mrs. Clarence N. Hinkamp, Mr. and Mrs. George Bean, Col. and Mrs. Consuelo Stone, Col. and Mrs. Edward Warren Sturdevant, Comdr. and Mrs. George Jorris, Capt. H. C. Richardson, Mrs. E. Rawlings, Mr. Tilghman Bunch and Mr. Jack Dailey.

Mrs. Hal H. Draper entertained at tea yesterday afternoon in her attractive Georgetown home for the Minneapolis chapter of the American Red Cross. Her ranking guests were Senator and Mrs. Joseph Ball, Representative and Mrs. Melvin Maas and Judge and Mrs. Michael Doyle.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Jackson Boughner and Mrs. Richard Wilcox Deaver. The tea table was ornamented with Mrs. Ball's in the morning and gold of Minnesota.

Mrs. Draper's home, the oldest frame house in Georgetown, recently has been renovated.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Haley entertained at a buffet supper Wednesday evening for Miss Nina Elizabeth Coleman and her fiancé, Lt. Edward M. Jones, whose marriage will take place November 12. Guests included members of the bridal party and a few intimate friends.

Sorority to Meet

Mrs. William K. Phillips, educational director of Eta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi of Baltimore, will speak before members of the District Council of Beta Sigma Phi at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Town House.

Mrs. Harold H. Burton, District sponsor of the sorority, will be a guest.

bride's parents. Mrs. Bowling received with the bridal couple and wore a wine costume with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan will reside in Washington.

Miss Jacqueline Saffell Wed to Mr. W. J. Fountain.

The marriage of Miss Jacqueline Buckley Saffell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Saffell of Washington, to Mr. William Jennings Fountain of New York City and Tarboro, N. C., took place at noon Saturday, November 1, at St. James Episcopal Church in Warrenton, Va.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul Bowden, rector of St. James Church, with the bride's parents and members of the immediate family present.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a gray suit with brown accessories and a brown velvet hat and wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Robert Crocker of Arlington, Va., her matron of honor, wore a brown and blue ensemble with a corsage of orchids.

Mr. Fountain, who is a graduate of St. John's Law School, also attended the University of Tennessee, the University of North Carolina and the University of Tennessee Law School. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and is associated with a law firm in New York. Mr. Lawrence B. Fountain of Tarboro, N. C., acted as best man.

The bride was graduated from the Holy Cross Academy of Washington and the Scudder School of New York City.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents in Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Fountain left for a motor trip through the South to Sea Island, Ga., where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return to New York they will live at 425 East Fifty-first street.

British Journalist Tells Women's Unit Of R. A. F.'s Work

A dramatic account of "How the Royal Air Force Saved England From Invasion" during the 100-day battle of Britain was presented to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday by William Courtenay, British journalist, who served with the R. A. F. during the World War and in the balloon barrage defense of London in the summer of 1940.

Mr. Courtenay described the outcome of the battle as the first signal defeat for the Nazis because, he explained, it "smashed the legend of Nazi invincibility."

The speaker, who has been lecturing in this country since August, praised the activities of the women in the auxiliary air force, pointing out that they do much of the ground work necessary to keep the planes in the air.

In recognition of their gallantry, he continued, women now are receiving medals from the King on the same basis as men.

Mr. Courtenay expressed confidence in Britain's ultimate victory if she receives the supplies needed.

Mrs. Lawrence Martin, president of the club, introduced the speaker. The meeting, held at the Y. M. C. A., was followed by luncheon.

Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, defense chairman, made an appeal for donors for blood plasma being stored by the Red Cross for Army and Navy use.

Killed in Traffic Same Date Last Year—58

One of a Series of Factual Analyses of D. C. Traffic Fatalities

Diagram shows how a 13-year-old boy was killed when an automobile skidded on a wet street and crashed into a telephone pole beside which he was standing on the curbstone. The broken line behind the car traces the course of its skid. It came to rest with the pole imbedded in its rear as indicated above. The boy's body was knocked 43 feet to point "X."

The place: Bladensburg road near Eastern avenue.

The accident: A 13-year-old boy was killed when an automobile skidded, jumped the curb and crashed into a telephone pole beside which he stood. The car was going out of town on Bladensburg road. The driver lost control on the wet pavement and doesn't remember anything further. Neither he nor a man riding with him saw the boy who was killed. Police held the driver for the coroner's action.

The time: About 3:25 p.m., October 31.

The weather: Intermittent rain. The street: Wet, straight and level.

The vehicle: A 1939 two-door sedan, in good mechanical condition. The driver: A 28-year-old white man with several years' driving experience. Coroner's jury verdict: Driver held for police court action under the Negligent Homicide Act.

U. S. Aid to Russia Is One-Way Traffic, Harriman Declares

Opposition to Communism Isn't Compromised, He Tells Legion

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—W. Averell Harriman, chairman of President Roosevelt's special mission to Soviet Russia, told leaders of the American Legion last night that American aid to Russia in her fight against German invasion "in no way compromises our opposition to Communism."

"Our aid is one-way traffic," he said in an address over the Columbia Broadcasting System. "It is being given to the Russian soldier, to the Russian people, because they are fighting Hitler's war machine in the defense of their homes and their land. It bespeaks the power and determination of our democracy."

His speech was made in connection with a banquet of the Legion's National Executive Committee at Indianapolis, which he was unable to attend.

Praising the Legion's official declaration that "Our present national objective is the defeat of Hitler and what he stands for," Mr. Harriman asserted that "The President sent us to Russia to promote this objective."

All members of the mission were surprised at the moderation of Russian demands for materials and war supplies, Mr. Harriman said.

"I believe Stalin personally was responsible for the moderation of the requests," he declared. "He knows about the problems of supply of his armies. There is no doubt his is the brain directing the Russian armies." Turning to conditions in the United States, Mr. Harriman said: "I have been home twice now since last March and it comes as a shock to me to see how normal things still are."

"We can't have tanks with 'business as usual,'" he said. "We can't have airplanes with 'strikes as usual.' We can't defeat Hitler with 'life as usual.'"

C. E. Moberly Dies; Was Chief of Capitol Decorators 28 Years

Painter, 75, Retired In 1930; Services to Be Held Tomorrow

Charles Edward Moberly, for 28 years in charge of all decorating in the Capitol, died yesterday—just 10 days before his 76th birthday—at Frederick, Md., according to the Associated Press.

A painter and decorator of note, Mr. Moberly was for two years one of the principal decorators for the Library of Congress, after which he became foreman of Capitol decorators. He retired in 1930, but continued to live here until January, 1940, when he entered the Frederick City Hospital.

He did the decoration work on the panels in the Senate and House chambers more than two decades ago. He figured in the news stories of the five-alarm fire at the Capitol in 1930, when he was found suffering from the effects of smoke in a room on the third floor.

Mr. Moberly was well known in Frederick music circles as a young man. A trombonist of exceptional ability, he played with the old Frederick Cornet Band and the Philharmonic Orchestra. He moved here 55 years ago, finally giving up music for art work. He was particularly noted for his paintings.

His wife died in 1933. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Luther M. Harrison and Mrs. David E. Zimmerman, and a brother, Mehl F. Moberly.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the home of his brother in Frederick.

Pressure Chamber Reduces Gas Inflation In Human Organs

Mayo Clinic Discovery Aid to Surgery, Boston Session Is Told

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—An almost instant remedy for the well-known feeling of being swelled up like a poisoned pup has been discovered at the Mayo Clinic.

It is a compression chamber, where the air pressure is 45 pounds a square inch, three times that of normal sea level. Step into this chamber, and the inflations due to gas simply flatten out completely.

There is, however, no sensation of pressure, Dr. W. R. Lovelace of the Mayo Clinic told the American College of Surgeons today. The chamber feels just like any ordinary room.

Important medical possibilities, particularly in preparation for surgery, are involved, he said. Many troubles inflate human cavities with gas, and some of these make surgery risky.

Surgeons have been using hot packs, suction tubes and other treatments to relieve this internal pressure. But the distension itself hampers the relief. In the compression chamber the organs all shrink to normal and so respond to treatment.

The patient emerges with much of the trouble eliminated. Whether surgical operations can be performed to advantage in pressure chambers, Dr. Lovelace said, has not been investigated.

Aviation is responsible for the deflation discovery. In a steel chamber at the clinic where the conditions of rarefied air up to 45,000 feet are imitated, it was noted that body gases expanded painfully. This suggested that compression would do just the opposite. The 45 pounds squeeze the internal gas down to only one-third its original volume.

Another remarkable change occurs if pure oxygen is breathed in this pressure chamber. Ordinarily oxygen is carried by the red blood cells. But at high pressure the red cells just go round and round, carrying nothing. They don't need to, because the pressure puts so many oxygen bubbles in the blood that the tissues get all they need from this source.

Nature's Children Polyphemus Moth (Telega polyphemus)

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.

This is our common silk moth, and a very handsome insect, indeed. The coloring of this giant moth is very lovely. Tan wings are lightly dusted with ebony. The bands of black and pink cross the wings and two great eye-spots peer at you from the smaller wings below the large ones. The body is clothed in soft tan fur. The head has two feathery feelers and the legs have brown furry leggings. The body is plump, even for a moth, and when this insect waves its wings back and forth you are reminded of a smart young rooster getting all set to crow.

The cocoons are large and bulky affairs, and may be seen from now on swinging by a short silken cord, or on the ground beneath attached to a twig that failed to hold up under the weight of the portly caterpillar that inclosed itself within a large leaf. These leaf balls are usually seen on birch trees, and within a few feet from the ground. Thousands of people pass them by, thinking they are old leaves rolled into an oval shape, and with some sort of silk holding the edges together. Closer inspection brings to light the fact that a wise little caterpillar has used hundreds of stitches to sew these edges tight, and indeed, some of the silk threads are as much as 100 feet long when unraveled! When this winter residence has been made ready for privacy, it is made comfortable and waterproof by a liquid which the builder exudes for this purpose.

All winter long the occupant of this silk-lined tent will sway back and forth with the wind. When food is ready, the moth will proceed with precise and scientific methods known to this tribe for getting out of the sealed quarters. A secretion which has an acid in it is manufactured. This solution not only softens the strong silk threads, but separates the stiffened ones near the head of the worker, enabling it to step forth with the greatest of ease from the close quarters of winter.

At first the emerging creature seems to be rather forlorn and bedraggled. In a short time the sun and air have assisted greatly in the marvelous transformation that you may witness. The moth is soon ready to find a mate and a female will radio her message on whatever length wave has always been used by polyphemus moths for centuries. She does not have to wait long, for suitors answer the call in a remarkably short time after the first broadcast.

The eggs are laid in late June, and by the 8th of July the husky larvae will be seen gnawing their way to freedom. Any "greens" seem acceptable, for this moth is not very finicky. Green, tender leaves of any plant are enjoyed.

These caterpillars are great, handsome creatures, clad in blue-green, with brown heads, diagonal side-marks of pale yellow, orange spiracles and four rows of metallic tubercles that shine like polished gold in the sunlight.

Locate your cocoons this winter. If you bring them home, keep them

Council of B'nai B'rith Will Confer Monday

The annual meeting of the Women's Supreme Council of B'nai B'rith, the co-ordinating agency of the six women's grand lodges, will be held Monday and Tuesday at Wardman Park Hotel.

Plans for expanding membership through a national campaign, intensification of national defense activities and co-ordination of work will be discussed. The B'nai B'rith women will be represented at a conference of women's organizations tomorrow at the Office of Civilian Defense.

Mrs. Lenore D. Underwood of San Francisco will preside over the sessions of the Supreme Council.

Membership in the organization has nearly tripled in the last three years, it was announced, during

Army Trains Citizens To Report Accurately On Troop Movements

Charts Used in Carolina Maneuvers to Show Types of Vehicles

By the Associated Press.
CAMDEN, S. C., Nov. 7.—One of the Army's greatest problems is teaching soldiers to know what they see. Now it has the added job of teaching civilians to report accurately and to recognize the difference between a supply truck and a fighting vehicle.

The chances of error in differentiating among the great variety of military vehicles was a studied question before 1st Army officers today. Meantime, the 200,000 soldiers rested after completion of the last field exercise preliminary to the Army general headquarters war games beginning November 15.

Many Reports Inaccurate.
Time after time during the four-day field exercise Army intelligence headquarters had reports of "hundreds of tanks" in a certain sector. They had to be discounted, however, because if all reports were added there would have been three armored divisions in the problem instead of one. Too often, high Army officers said, soldiers taking only a hasty glance reported truck columns as tanks.

"We have to teach our observers to be exact," one staff officer said. "You can't send important anti-tank units running over the country side chasing what was reported as tanks when they were only personnel carriers with soldiers whose steel hats appeared like treads on a tank."

For the first time in any maneuver, the 1st Army has organized civilians in the Carolinas to report the presence of tanks and other fighting vehicles. They hurry to a telephone and by a "blitz call," that has priority over all others, transmit the information to a clearing center.

By charts, showing the silhouette of virtually every Army vehicle, the civilians can be trained to recognize them.

Preliminary tests of the "blitz-call" system have been successful, Maj. Gen. Sanderford Jarman, in charge of the organization, said. Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the 1st Army, is depending on this organization for an advantage in meeting the armored divisions during the Army general headquarters war games.

Maneuver Area Bristles With Anti-Aircraft Guns

COMPLETE FEMININE HYGIENE DEMANDS:

MUCH has been written, much said, about feminine hygiene. Too often, however, women overlook hygiene in the REAL sense of the word—underarm cleanliness and sweetness. You cannot be attractive and appealing with underarms moist, stained and smelly.

There is now a simple and safe way to prevent under-arm odor and keep your dresses free from perspiration stains and smell. It is Arrid, a new vanishing cream deodorant which safely stops perspiration from 1 to 3 days.

Arrid has 5 outstanding advantages:
1. Does not rot dresses, does not irritate skin.
2. No waiting to dry. Can be used right after shaving.
3. Instantly checks perspiration 1 to 3 days. Removes odor from perspiration, keeps armpits dry.
4. Arrid is a pure, white, greaseless, stainless vanishing cream.
5. Arrid has been awarded the Approval Seal of The American Institute of Laundering for being harmless to fabric. Women use more Arrid than any other deodorant. Try a jar today at any drug, department or ten cent store... 10¢, 50¢, and 50¢ size jars.

4th Army Corps maneuver area bristled today with anti-aircraft guns and heavy armored vehicles in preparation for the big war games the latter part of this month against the 1st Army, which has been maneuvering east of here since early October.

The latest units to rumble into the sector were those from the 34th Coast Artillery Brigade, fresh from a maneuver with the 3d Interceptor Command along the Carolinas coast, under command of Gen. Claude M. Thiele. Three regiments and the Brigade Headquarters Battery were the first to come.

The Headquarters Battery and the 67th and 75th Coast Artillery Regiments bivouaced overnight near Albermarle, N. C., and the 3d Regiment, the 77th Coast Artillery, is expected to arrive tonight after a one-day trip from Fort Bragg, N. C. The 101st Anti-Aircraft, a separate battalion, will augment the troops of the brigade by mid-November.

The total area of Alaska is 586,400 square miles, twice the size of Texas.

American Firm Using Secret Magnesium Extraction Process

Austrian Method Expected to Boost Store of Vital War Metal

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

Two years ago last August a gigantic explosion rocked the Austrian town of Radenthein. A mysterious war plant established there a few months before by the Reich had blown up, killing several of its workers.

Early this year it was rumored about Washington that an Austrian metallurgist named Fritz Hansgrig was in the United States with the secret of extracting from rock a metal for which the demand had risen 100-fold in a few years—the vital war material, magnesium.

The Radenthein plant had been set up to test out this process. After the wreck the works were abandoned, temporarily at least, for lack of structural steel.

Dr. Hansgrig, it is learned, now is at Permanente, Calif., where a plant to carry out essentially the same process has been erected by the Todd-California Shipbuilding Co., financed in part by the Reconstruction Finance Corp. as a public service.

Produced at Two Plants.

The Hansgrig process, it is expected, will increase enormously America's magnesium supply, especially with the improvements which have been made in it since the Austrian fiasco. Magnesium, like aluminum, to which it is closely related, is one of the most abundant metals in the earth's crust. But, also like aluminum, it never occurs in a natural state.

Up to the present the entire American supply, approximately 30,000,000 pounds in 1940, has been produced by one company, the Dow Chemical Co., in two plants. One, at Midland, Mich., has extracted the metal from brine wells. The other, set up last year at Freeport, Tex., extracts it from sea water, processing approximately 300,000,000 gallons of water a day. The entire output of both plants is devoted to national defense and the company is working in close cooperation with the Government.

But it so happens that sea water and brine are rather poor sources of magnesium. In the former it occurs in a concentration of about one-eighth of 1 per cent. In the latter of less than 3 per cent. Compared with these, there is a concentration of nearly 40 per cent in the mineral brucite, of which there are enormous deposits in Nevada, and of about 28 per cent in magnesite, of which there are large supplies in California, Washington and Nevada.

Electrolysis is Easier.

It is relatively easy, however, to extract it from a liquid medium by a process of electrolysis developed by the Dow Co. During the same process several valuable by-products are obtained from sea water, especially bromine. These make the operations practical.

The Hansgrig method, now being financed by the Government in the Permanente plant, is known as an electrothermic process and is based on an entirely different principle. It extracts magnesium alone and by the first of next year is expected to be producing about 24,000,000 pounds a year. Magnesite will be brought from Nevada. This must be vaporized in an electric furnace at a temperature of about 2,000 degrees.

centigrade and cooled immediately to about 200 degrees centigrade—so called "shock cooling."

This is where the difficulty and danger have been encountered in the past. The element is extremely reactive, especially with oxygen or its compounds, and the cooling process must be almost instantaneous or the reaction reverses and the end products are magnesium oxide and carbon. At the Austrian plant hydrogen gas was used to shock-cool the magnesium.

The United States Bureau of Mines has set up its own experimental pilot plant at Pullman, Wash., with a capacity of about one pound of metal per hour, where this shock-cooling is accomplished with a spray of some hydrocarbon oil. Largely as a public service, five other companies, it is learned, now are entering the field. These companies are going to use the electrolytic process, or variations of it, using either their own capital or money borrowed from the Government.

Judicial Circuit to Hold Parley Here Feb. 26-28

The annual Judicial Circuit Conference here, at which topics of interest to the bench and bar will be discussed, will be held February 26, 27 and 28 next.

This announcement was made yesterday by Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the United States Court of Appeals. Participating in the gathering will be the six jurists of the appellate tribunal, the 12 judges of District Court, delegates from the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, the Washington Bar Association, the Women's Bar Association, the Federal Bar Association and the American Patent Law Association.

Joseph W. Stewart, clerk of the Appellate Court, said that an advisory group is now at work mapping out the program for the conference.

Speakers Will Tell Of War's Effect on Churches in Britain

Three, Back After Tour Of Observation, to Give Talks at Luncheon

Three religious leaders, representing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, will address a luncheon at the Washington Hotel Tuesday under the sponsorship of the Washington Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The speakers, who recently returned by clipper from a tour of observation in England and Ireland, will be Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the conference; Father Vincent C. Donovan, national director of the Catholic Thought Association, and Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron.

Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce, will preside. Joseph D. Kaufman and Alfred A. McGaraghy, vice chairmen of the conference, and the Rev. A. W. Gottschall, director of the National Capital and Southern Region, will be guests at the speakers' table.

The mission which took the three religious leaders abroad was sponsored by the co-chairmen of the conference, Dr. Arthur Holly Compton of the University of Chicago and Prof. Carlton J. H. Hayes of Columbia University, and Roger W. Straus of New York.

The trip was made to obtain information of the war on all churches; to discover what developments are taking place in Great Britain in respect to co-operation among citizens of different religious faiths; to learn what English and Irish leaders think of the peace principles advanced by the Vatican; the Malvern Conference of English leaders and other groups.

Methodist Peace Body Asks U. S. to Avoid War Involvement

States Belief to Church Nation Should Join Others In Rebuilding World

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The Methodist World Peace Commission declared to the nearly 8,000,000 Methodists in the United States today its belief "that our Nation can best serve mankind by abstaining from further steps toward full participation in the present wars."

The statement was adopted at the annual meeting of the commission, which said it, "like the Nation, was not in complete agreement on the issue of the full involvement of the United States in the war."

Assent Not Unanimous. The large majority of the 20 members present, however, voted to send to the church the statement, including these points on which there was not unanimous agreement:

"Our Nation can best serve mankind by taking immediate steps toward creating a just and durable peace by employing its immense resources for the constructive ministry of healing and rehabilitation, and by associating itself with other nations at the earliest possible moment, in earnest efforts to rebuild the world" on a foundation of justice and co-operation for the good of all.

"As first steps to a genuine new order, worthy of civilized men, we urge that our Nation take steps immediately for the peaceful solution of the situation in the Far East, with justice for all peoples, and initiate a movement calling for the early cessation of armed hostilities in Europe."

Disclaims Authority. The Rev. Charles F. Boss, Jr., of Chicago, executive secretary of the commission, said the group did not claim the right to speak for every individual Methodist, and added:

"While its pronouncements are not the voice of the Methodist Church in the same sense that characterizes the statements of the General Conference speaking for the whole church, yet they are an expression of the mind of the church in the field of peace action."

The commission, representing all parts of the Nation, was elected by the Methodist General Conference of 1940.

The Christmas Store

Find all the radiance of Christmas in your children's eyes, when they

Shake Hands with Santa Claus

tomorrow—in that shining wonderland, the Christmas Toy Store

From the first rapturous moment when, "visions of sugarplums" dancing in their heads, your children stand on the enchanting threshold—you have all the wonderful, true-Christmas glow of playing fairy godparent. But, wait a moment, the grown-up you is suddenly almost as excited, almost as breathless, as lost in the land of never-grow-old as they.

Recapture the thrill—know just how marvelous the new heartbeat doll is ("girl stuff" but watch—is that Brother trying out the professional looking stethoscope, hearing the heartbeat thump-thump-thump). Go watch the engineers dispatching miniature electric trains—was there ever occupation more absorbing? See all the games—see the bright picture books—the constructive hobby kits—the armfuls of cuddly, huggable toys. Share "Son's" enthusiasm for all that military glory of airplanes, tanks, dress-up uniforms and the mechanized lead soldiers he can lead to victories.

Play your part by bringing your favorite child (your own or even adopted just-for-the-occasion) to share in all the glory—to shake hands with Santa Claus. He will be here, first thing tomorrow and way up until practically the last minute on Christmas Eve.

P. S. Toys are priced all the way from 10c to $50—so you may purchase carefully or lavishly, yet buy a fine large share of joy. But since, this year, some toys are limited in number, we advise coming early. Be triple-sure not to miss:

5 Soldiers Acquitted By Maryland Jury of Assault Charges

Men Returned to Camp;
Upper Marlboro Panel
Deliberates One Hour

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.
UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Nov. 7.—Five Fort Meade privates were acquitted here yesterday of charges of criminal assault after a jury had deliberated the case one hour.

The men, Thomas Amato, 21, of Cleveland; William Greenjack, 23, of Philadelphia; Francis Bower, 32, of Philadelphia; Cyril Becht, 32, of Philadelphia; and Lee Schroeder, 26, of Baltimore, were all indicted on three counts of criminal assault, attempted criminal assault, and assault and battery on a 17-year-old Virginia girl near Berwyn late last August. The verdict was not guilty on all counts.

The men were released and returned to camp after spending almost three months in the county jail. Army officials were reported to have agreed to restore them to their organizations and ratings. They were represented by Brice Clagett and Frank Hall.

Testimony of the complaining witness and her girl companion, placed on the stand by State's Attorney Gwynn Bowie, agreed except for minor differences with the defendants on meeting in a tavern near Berwyn, and leaving at the request of the proprietor, Thomas Barkley. Mr. Barkley, called by the defense, told the court they were creating a scene by "hugging and kissing."

The girl testified that she was attacked by three of the men when they stopped along Baltimore boulevard after leaving the tavern. Her companion said she had run away when the car stopped and the men were not watching.

The men admitted stopping the car, owned by Schroeder, and did not deny making advances to the girl, but did deny assaulting her. They said she finally ran away and they returned to camp.

Stenotypists to Meet

Berry H. Home, official reporter of the New York Supreme Court, will speak on "Training for Reporting" at the monthly meeting of the Washington branch of the Associated Stenotypists of America at the New Colonial Hotel at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Washington Highland Citizens Approve Bill

Legislation pending in Congress to grant the District 100 additional policemen was approved last night by the Washington Highland Citizens' Association. Letters announcing the action are to be sent to Senator Glass, Democrat, of Virginia; Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, and the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The association passed a resolution requesting the Fire Department to place an alarm box at First and Atlantic streets S.W. after Earnest Price pointed out that the nearest fire box to this area is located at Nichols avenue and Chesapeake streets, nearly half a mile away.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Curtis W. Ingalls, president, succeeding Walter E. Nair; Leonard E. Zimmerlund, first vice president; Mr. Price, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Haggerty, secretary; Alden Erickson, treasurer, and E. S. Wiseman and Mr. Nair, delegates to the Federation.

The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Woods, 3937 First street S.W. Acting Sgt. Philip Burton represented No. 11 police precinct at the meeting.

Connecticut Avenue Citizens Told About Physical Checkups

Stall Protests Financing Plan of Air-Raid Wardens Program in District

A program of voluntary physical examinations for all adults in the District, backed by the District of Columbia Medical Society, was presented last night to the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association by Dr. Harry A. Spiegel. This move is in accordance with President Roosevelt's recent statement in favor of medical examination of as many citizens as possible at regular intervals.

Dr. Spiegel, in speaking for the Medical Society, said that the deficiencies in American health had been clarified by the Army's selective-service program.

Harry N. Stall, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, said at the meeting that it was unfair to expect the civic groups of the District to stand the expense of the entire air raid warden program. Such items as office rents in various communities, typewriters, desks and other necessary equipment involved, he said, are a heavy load for the individual associations to carry.

Zoning Change Favored.
On a resolution proposed by Leon Pretzfelder, the group went on record as favoring the proposed amendment to the zoning regulations to permit a certificate of occupancy for lodging, rooming and boarding houses in all sections of the city. Its primary purpose would be to provide more suitable accommodations for the influx of defense workers.

By a vote of 30 to 2, the association advocated an amendment to existing legislation to forbid erection of any new buildings in the District unless adequate parking space is provided. A proposal by C. B. Whaley for establishment of municipal parking lots on the fringe of the downtown business section was tabled. A resolution opposing any increase in the gasoline tax of more than 1 cent was passed.

Committee Heads Named.
At the close of the business meeting, W. D. Searle gave an illustrated talk on his recent trip to Mexico.

Harris C. Grove, president of the ground, announced the following committee heads for the coming year: Mr. Pretzfelder, Law and Legislation Committee; A. J. Driscoll, publicity; Mr. Whaley, police; Mr. Searle, playgrounds; Miss Blanche Weaver, schools; Dr. Spiegel, public health; C. L. Curtiss, Jr., traffic; M. D. Clarke, zoning; Mrs. Isabel Dodie, public welfare; F. M. Leonard, auditing; Miss E. R. Groves, program and entertainment; W. D. Swan, lights and water; E. B. Sonneborn, public library; Mrs. J. D. Babbage, public utilities.

Georgetown U. Editors Are Prom Hosts Tonight

With campus editors as hosts, the annual homecoming prom of Georgetown University will be held at 9 o'clock tonight in the continental room of the Wardman Park Hotel.

Although the 1941 homecoming is to be one of the quietest in years, numerous alumni from nearby cities are coming for tomorrow's football game with Maryland University in Griffith Stadium. The usual law school smoker and rally that precedes the game is being omitted this year.

Sponsored by the staff of the Hoya, campus newspaper of which Frank S. Waters is editor, the prom will draw many girls from local schools and out of town. Officials of the university and members of the Athletic Board will be guests.

of the students. The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president, is having a number of personal friends as his guests at the game. A "pep" rally for the team, in which the university band took part, was held at the Hilltop last night.

Bill Seeks Pay Cut For Congress Members

By the Associated Press.
Representative Kennedy, Democrat, of New York proposed yesterday that members of Congress "set an example for the Nation" and take a reduction in pay.

He introduced a bill to pay members on the basis of $25 for each day Congress is in session instead of the present $10,000 annual salary.

Mr. Kennedy estimated his plan would reduce individual congressional salaries to about $5,000 a year.

Leaves from an Old
WASHINGTON DIARY

This diary was written by Elizabeth Lomax Lindsay, daughter of an officer in the Revolutionary War and widow of Mann Page Lomax, an Army major, who died of wounds received in fighting the Creeks and Seminoles. She spent the years just prior to the Civil War in Washington and the diary was written at that time.

CHAPTER VI.
Washington, D. C.

New Year's Day, January 1, 1857.
New Year's Day—very cold but clear.

We are not receiving today—Alice has been ill for the last 10 days with pneumonia. Dr. Hager and faithful nursing pulled her through a very severe illness. She is now sitting up, but it is a little shadow of her usual bright self.

Friends have been wonderfully kind, sending Alice all manner of delicacies, coming every day to make inquiries about the darling child. Their kindness helped me over a distressing period.

Tuesday, January 6, 1857.
Cloudy, looks as if it might snow.

Have just heard that Sinclair Cunningham received an appointment in the 10th Infantry. I am so glad for his sake and for the sake of his family.

Charlie Poor is staying with us. Capt. Tilton and Capt. Cunningham called to ask about Alice and remained to tea. Sinclair and Sydney Crawford also came to tea.

We played for us on the piano—at times she seemed inspired, one never has to say "play this or that," she drifts on from one lovely thing to another unconsciously of her audience until the mood is exhausted, then she is overcome with confusion for fear she may have bored others with her music. If she only knew what a delight it is to hear her play.

Wednesday, January 21, 1857.
It has been snowing steadily for two days, the outside world is very beautiful, but oh, so cold. No mails from north or south. No "Star" delivered yesterday evening.

The bill has passed for the relief of retired naval officers, which is good news.

Vic went with Chandler to Miss Brooke's soiree this evening. Her dress was pale blue taffeta with a voluminous skirt draped with garlands of tiny pink roses. She wore a pink rose in her hair—she looked very lovely.

Chandler said to me in an ardent whisper "Isn't she adorable?"

Tuesday, January 27, 1857.
Somewhat milder today.

The bill for increasing the pay of the Army passed the House—great rejoicing among our friends.

Have been anxious about my boy, read in "The Star" that the officers' quarters at Carlisle Barracks were entirely destroyed by fire.

Friday, January 30, 1857.
Raining.

Received a dispatch from Lindsay—he lost nothing in the Carlisle fire except some money and only burned his hands slightly.

Emily Page spent the day with us. She gave us a graphic description of her life at Fort Laramie, the journey across the plains, encounters with Indians and other unbelievable hardships for a woman, yet she looks well—an eventful life is far more stimulating than a monotonous one, unless one has many resources within one's self.

Thursday, February 5, 1857.
Delightful day.

Anne and Vic have gone to the wedding of Maria Cooper and Lieut. Wheaton.

Fitz Lee is here for a few days. It is always a pleasure to have dear Fitz with us, he is so light hearted and gay—he will never grow up.

Thursday, February 12, 1857.
Still pleasant weather.

My darling boy arrived today. He is on his way to Fort Leavenworth, the Headquarters of his regiment.

Capt. McIntosh, Fitz Lee and Lindsay are dining at Willard's Hotel this evening and going with the girls to a party at Mrs. George Riggs.

Friday, February 27, 1857.
Quite springlike today.

Vic left this morning on the early cars for Richmond where she will visit the Wyndham Robertsons. Bob Crawford escorted her as far as Alexandria and put her under the care of a reliable conductor.

Many friends came last evening to bid farewell to Vic. She is a great favorite.

Sunday, March 1, 1857.
Beautiful day.

Walked to St. John's this morning. We have had many guests today: Mr. Turner from Newport, Lieut. Griffith, Dick, Poor, Lieut. Mullen and many others.

We had an evening of sacred music but missed Vic's contribution of lovely music on the piano. The dear child is so gifted.

Thursday, March 5, 1857.
Windy but clear.

The inauguration of Mr. Buchanan passed off brilliantly, it was too crowded to be much pleasure—a great many strangers present.

No Cabinet yet known.

Saturday, March 7, 1857.
Very windy, but bright sunshine, a veritable March day.

Col. Davis and Lieut. Griffith came in for tea. Col. Davis was in the Mexican War and gave us interesting accounts of some of the campaigns.

Julia is going riding with Col. Davis tomorrow morning—will ride one of the horses of the Flying Artillery—I fear she will not have a pleasant time.

Allan Magruder came this evening and played on his guitar and sang delightfully.

Wednesday, April 1, 1857.
This month opens with gentle showers which will encourage the lovely spring flowers which are just beginning to bloom.

We heard today that Lindsay had been ordered out on the Plains against the Cheyenne Indians. I had a letter from him this morning, he made no mention of any such order—it may have been just a rumor.

Mrs. Kennon and Mrs. Pendergast called this afternoon and remained for tea. We are dining with Mrs. Kennon at Tudor place on Saturday evening.

Friday, May 1, 1857.
"Winter lingers in the lap of May."

It is cold enough for an open fire today.

Dick Poor is with us—he came from Norfolk yesterday.

He expected to be engaged on one of the wagon roads being constructed from the Mississippi to the Pacific Ocean. The position of chief engineer was offered to him, but with commendable modesty he declined so important a position and requested them to give him a more subordinate one.

A long letter from my dear boy. He has been made adjutant of Gen. Sedgewick's division.

Thursday, May 20, 1857.
Most extraordinary weather for this time of the year—vegetation of every kind is suffering from the cold.

The papers of today say that the Mormons are becoming troublesome and warlike, enlisting hostile Indians in their cause.

The Government will be compelled to enforce law and order if they continue to be unruly.

Thursday, May 7, 1857.
At last we have a genuine spring day and oh, how delightful it is!

Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Wickam and Mrs. Kennon called this afternoon. Mrs. Kennon wishes us to dine with her again at Tudor Place next Tuesday evening. I love to go there. Tudor Place is delightfully situated on the heights of Georgetown with a beautiful view of the Potomac and the hills of Virginia.

Monday, May 11, 1857.
Just such a beautiful May day 27 years ago I was married—what an eventful period of my life.

I cannot say that it was the happiest, though mutual love was the basis on which my darling Page and I built our new life, but I had yet to learn to relinquish self and live for another.

It has ever been my opinion that the first year of a woman's married life is one of trial. Traits of character hitherto lying dormant develop by the force of circumstances and create a phase almost akin to bewilderment. Deeply impressed upon my mind are some of the events of that year. I desire never to forget them. I cherish them with gratitude as a means of knowing myself and learning to weed my garden—even at the early age of 17.

For 22 years I possessed the tender and loyal love of my husband and my heart reciprocated every evidence of his devoted attachment. Six years of widowhood and I am not yet comforted. Many years ago an intimate friend of mine said to me: "Bright, beautiful sunshine makes me wretched." I thought at the time "what folly!" In those days I delighted to saunter forth with my children and charming husband for a walk on the beach at Newport, and felt at such moments that I was the most blessed of mortals; but now in sunshine and in storm I am desolate and live only for my dear children. Memory is not always a blessing, for the weakness and frailty of our human nature will always picture the shadows of the present while the sunbeams flit away unheeded.

Monday, June 1, 1857.
A beautiful June day. A letter from my precious son this morning from Topeka, Kan.

They had traveled 17 miles a day and had not yet reached their destination on the Plains, where I fear they will encounter hostile Indians.

Anne and I dined with Maj. and Mrs. Lindsay this evening. It was a large and distinguished party—the dinner served with much form and elegance and lovely music after dinner. Capt. Ritchie of the Navy came home with Anne and myself—it was after midnight but he came in for a glass of sherry and we had a pleasant talk over world events in general.

Saturday, June 13, 1857.
Lovely weather, flowers blooming in profusion.

A letter from my darling boy from Council Grove, on the outskirts of civilization—the last post office in that part of the world. He said not to expect another letter from him for some time.

Mrs. Gardiner from Newport came to see me this afternoon. It was a great pleasure to me—I shall never outgrow my love for Newport and our friends there.

A letter today from Judge Lea in regard to my father's estate—I answered it at once.

Marie Wheaton, who is at home on a visit, came in to tea this afternoon and gave me late accounts of my dear boy—she said he was well, loved his Army life and was a great favorite with his regiment.

Tuesday, June 16, 1857.
Bright, sweet morning, the air filled with the fragrance of honeysuckle.

Jane Turnbull brought me lovely roses this morning—our own roses are in bloom.

Anne Crawford was here this afternoon greatly distressed because their old servant, William the butler, had run away and no trace of him could be found. He had a good home. They were so fond of him, I am afraid the poor soul will find that he has not benefited by his act.

Sunday, June 21, 1857.
Warm and fair. June is an exquisite month.

I should like to go to a small country church today, with the windows open, bees buzzing on the outside and the perfume of honeysuckle drifting in—I know just such a little church near dear old Port Royal.

Thursday, June 25, 1857.
Rose early, the mornings are so beautiful that I cannot bear to miss them.

Vic returned today—a great joy to all of us.

This evening the Crawford boys, Chandler, Allan and other young people came to welcome Vic home. We had an evening of charming music—Allan sang all our favorite songs.

Wednesday, June 8, 1857.
Tremendous storm last night, cloudy and cool this morning.

Greatly disturbed by a paragraph in the "Baltimore Sun" saying a part of Colonel Sumner's command had been massacred by the Indians. The report is not credited here. Nevertheless I feel anxious.

Today is Lindsay Walker and Mary Elms' wedding day. God bless them. I hope they will come by to see us on their way to Boston.

Our kinsman and lifelong friend, Commodore Newton, was buried today with military honors. He will be greatly missed.

Remarks on Church Misinterpreted, Says Lowry Field Chief

Declares He Will Fight Any Agency That Seeks To Undermine Morale

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Nov. 7.—Col. Early E. W. Duncan, Lowry Field commander, said yesterday a mistaken interpretation had been placed on his remarks that he would class as out of bounds for soldiers any church whose pastor "continues to preach against true Americanism."

"I have issued no such order and I do not contemplate issuing it," Col. Duncan said.

"I might have to take some action if a church is used as a tool of political organizations or distributes subversive literature or ideas."

"I have had no trouble with Denver pastors and I do not expect any."

"All men at Lowry Field are encouraged to go to churches and I myself am and have always been deeply religious."

"My position is simply this: Any agency or organization which undermines the morale of our soldiers in this period of emergency is dangerous to our security and I shall do everything in my power to prevent such agencies or organizations from indoctrinating my men."

An order by Col. Duncan listing the America First Committee headquarters in Denver as out of bounds for 10,000 soldiers at Lowry Field and Fort Logan was made public Wednesday.

Notre Dame Teacher Assails Col. Duncan

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP).—Dr. John A. O'Brien, philosophy professor at the University of Notre Dame, protested to Secretary of War Stimson last night that Col. Early E. W. Duncan, commander of Lowry Field, Colo., was "presuming to dictate what churches soldiers under his command may attend."

Dr. O'Brien, in a telegram to Secretary Stimson, called Col. Duncan's statement an "amazing, thoroughly un-American order which destroys in our land the religious freedom we are asked to establish abroad."

"Are those churches of Jesus Christ where the ministers of the Prince of Peace implore their congregations to pray for peace and who preach that we ought to work for that for which we pray," the Notre Dame professor asked, "to be closed to the members of such churches who are in the Army and in the Navy?"

Four Isolationist Senators Criticize Colonel

The alleged attempt of an Army colonel to set up a "military censorship" over churches in Denver, Colo., was assailed here yesterday by four Senators opposed to revision of neutrality legislation.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, started the criticism after reading a news report that Col. Early E. W. Duncan had forbidden 10,000 soldiers stationed at Lowry Field to go to headquarters of the America First Committee, and threatened to ban them from churches whose pastor opposed the administration's foreign policy.

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, after listening to the account and Senator Wheeler's comments, jumped up to say that "this colonel ought to be tried at a general court-martial and thrown out of the Army."

Terming the order as "very unwise," Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts said it might keep soldiers from attending the church of their faith.

Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin said the report was a "dramatic review" of what might be expected if the neutrality bill was passed and "we try to establish the 'four freedoms' in the world and lose them here at home."

Senator Clark asked with irony whether the Army officer had ordered all clergymen, priests and rabbis to submit their sermons in advance for approval by the "military dictatorship."

"It's the most outrageous thing that's ever taken place in the history of the United States Army," Senator Clark continued.

Archibald MacLeish Wins Poetry Magazine Prize

The poet-librarian of Congress yesterday added another to his collection of awards with the announcement in Chicago that he had carried off the annual Levinson prize of the magazine Poetry.

The award, carrying with it the sum of $100, was made to Archibald MacLeish for his work, "Discovery of This Time," as well as for the merit of his contribution to American literature.

Mr. MacLeish, who became librarian of Congress in the fall of 1939, has written numerous poetic works including a book, "America Was Promised," in January, 1940. He is 40 years old and was educated at Yale and Harvard Law School. He fought in the World War, taught for a while, and then went abroad to travel and write.

Mr. MacLeish is a long-standing friend of President Roosevelt. His work, "Conquistador," won the Pulitzer poetry prize of $1,000 in 1932.

Detailing Particularly Good On Many Styles Which Also Pass for Dinner Dresses

By Helen Vogt

If anybody knows a social butterfly who could do well to have her wings clipped, we have just the right method of turning gad-about into stay at home. All you do, see, is buy the lady a housecoat or hostess gown of the 1941 variety, and unless we are very much mistaken, she'll take to home and fireside just for the joy of wearing it.

All of this means that we've spent some time recently looking at the newest creations for "at-home" wear, and it also indicates that they are all right for our money or anybody else's. Many of the new hostess gowns could easily be worn as dinner models, even out in public. They feature bright color this season and make use of two-tone combinations very frequently. Also likely to be encountered on your next shopping trip is the use of two materials, particularly in the negligee type of robe.

It doesn't matter, either, what type you are, for there are hostess gowns of all descriptions. Everthing from flame-colored crepe robes with matching maribou shawl collars, and slinky, zebra striped velvet gowns with accents of black, to the palest, sweetest pastel robes with deep starched lace collars are available. Lacy tea gowns look lady-like, but not too much so, and for boudoirish wear have a glaze at the new gown and robe combinations which are, as we always say, something. One recently and enviously seen is a soft tea rose shade, the robe of transparent velvet heavily embroidered across the shoulders in gold metal. The gown which matches is pleated sheer fabric with a fitted midriff banded in the velvet and gold. Mmmmm.

More practical, and equally attractive, are the gown and robe sets in bright, muted, some with quilted three-quarter-length robes. Full-length quilted robes and matching gowns are another good bet, if you're keeping your Christmas shopping in mind. Bedjackets also match gowns and there are "separates" of velvet, heavily quilted and embroidered, as well as many in silk, satin and maribou.

To get back to housecoats and the like, don't overlook the fashion significance to be found here. For instance, the long torso, fitted midriff line is a popular one, and there are such other style-right details of gold nailhead trim, beaded pockets and softly pleated skirts which give enough fullness for comfort, yet follow the season's slim line edict.

It's just as important to think about accessories for your housecoats as it is to watch them in street ensembles, so be sure that your slipcases, whether boudoir or evening ones, match or harmonize. Be careful of jewelry, too, and try the effect of good-looking earrings with your more sophisticated robes, or, if you prefer, such other style-right details of the slinky types. With more frilly robes, use a bow in the back of the hair, or trail along a large handkerchief to give you that ultra-feminine look. A little thought and ingenuity will make you a glamorous lady at home, and you can imagine how luxurious you'll feel.

Add a decorative touch to your party table with candles made of clear glass and filled with silver metal or sprays of flowers. Of course, these cannot be lighted, but they are attractive and most unusual.

Slenderizing House Dress Comfortable for Work

1453-B

By Barbara Bell

It does make a difference in your entire outlook on housework the kind of a dress you have. If your frock is attractive, fits comfortably and is flattering, somehow the tasks seem lighter and the routine of household chores is a pleasure. Pattern No. 1453-B is one of the clever house dress designs which produces a frock which is fun to wear—not just for the home, but for neighborhood shopping and calls!

The diagram tells you how very easy it is to make: simply dart those front and back sections, seam them together, insert the sleeves and add the buttons and buttonholes! Then you have a frock which slenderizes through the torso, has soft fullness through the bodice, smooth lines at the shoulder and a full skirt which permits every kind of household activity without binding at any point. Since you can make the frock in a jiff, you will no doubt have it in several materials—washable cottons, a pretty rayon print, a striped or

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Louman
The rule for gaining weight which I am giving you today is an extremely important one. It is difficult for many women to work into their routine, but here it is: Relax completely just before meals. Lie down in a room, all alone, close your eyes and truly relax. This may sound like an impossible dream of heaven, but I believe that most of you will be able to work it out in some form.

If you cook the meals for your family set the table and prepare things a little ahead of time, then rest before serving dinner. This may mean leaving the bridge game a little early or giving up a shopping tour, but do it for nine days. PLEASE.

If you work in an office take the rest before your evening meal anyway. Hardest of all, if you work and then come home to prepare the evening meal, do as much of it the night before as you can. This seemingly simple rule will aid appetite and assimilation greatly.

Many underweight women have a bust measurement which is too small for beauty. After you have gained your first 5 or 10 pounds do the following for an increase:
Lie on the floor. Bend the elbows and place one hand on each side of the bust. Curl the toes around toward the floor so you can push from them. Straighten the elbows and push from the toes and the hands, lifting the body from the floor. Keep a straight line from head to the heels with the hands and the feet supporting the weight. Lower body to floor. Repeat several times each day.

Sixth day's menus:
BREAKFAST: One-half Grapefruit Scrambled Eggs Sausage Toast and Coffee
LUNCHEON: Navy Bean Soup Cole Slaw Milk Muffins Fresh Fruit DINNER: Creamed Sweetbreads or Creamed Beef on Toast Macaroni and Cheese Salad of Raw Carrot, Tomato, Lettuce and French Dressing Chocolate Blanc Mange Milk before retiring (with cream)

Seventh day's menus:
BREAKFAST: Orange Slices Rolled Oats with Raisins Toast and Bacon Coffee
DINNER (Sunday): Chilled Tomato Juice Baked Ham with Dressing Gravy Corn Pudding Beets Salad of Grapefruit and Avocado with French Dressing Chocolate Nut Sundae ICE BOX SUPPER: Milk Cheese and Crackers Fresh Fruit Cold Chicken Celery Sliced Tomatoes Boiled Custard and Cakes

Eighth day's menus:
BREAKFAST: Grapefruit Two Poached Eggs on Toast Milk Coffee
LUNCHEON: Cauliflower Baked Apple Creamed Potatoes
DINNER: Steak Gravy Baked Sweet Potatoes Creamed Onions Spinach Graham or Wheat Muffins Boiled Custard and Cake

At the end of the nine-day gaining diet I would like very much to hear from you about the results you obtained. If you missed this series and wish to have it, send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Louman in care of this newspaper.

Franklin Stoves Still Are Obtainable for Good Use In Bedroom Fireplace

Oyster-White Walls and Blue Ceiling Carry Out a Simple Background in Old House

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: Do you know whether Franklin stoves still are made? I have a corner fireplace in my bedroom which has been closed up for some years. I remember when I was a child that we had a Franklin stove here, but it has now disappeared, and I would like to use it again if I could find just the same kind.

Answer—Franklin stoves are still made and may be purchased through some of the stove companies or through the specialty shops in town which handle fireplace equipment, andirons and such. You may get a very nice one with brass trim for between $40 and $50.

Dear Miss Nowell: I am remodeling an old house and will have my kitchen and dining room on the basement floor. I am trying to keep the whole effect of it simple and informal as a background for some early pine and maple furniture. The walls are plastered, as is the ceiling between the beams. What would you suggest for a floor covering, as the old floor is too far gone to work with? In what color shall I do the walls so that the kitchen and dining room will be light? I have some nice copper pans and blue and white china. What other colors may I use with this?—D. S.

Answer—Suggest you simulate the old white-washed walls by using oyster-white walls for both the kitchen and dining room. Paint the ceiling sky blue to set off the warm color of the wood beams. From a practical and comfort standpoint, I would suggest linoleum for the floors. You might use the one which looks like random-width pegged flooring, one of the tile effects, or just a plain, all-over color in the blue or wood tones. Place braided rugs or hooked rugs over this for a comfortable effect where necessary. Lemon yellow and clear bright red will be nice against this background. Red calico curtains or blue and white glazed chintz would give the right effect at the windows. Then create chair seats or small notes of the other tones. You may use plenty of color against this background.

Dear Miss Nowell: What can I do with my lovely old plates in a rented house that has no corner cupboards or shelves for their display?—J. H. B.

Answer—Hang them from wire plate hangers over your buffet, above the baywindow, over the doors or in panels on the wall.

Dear Miss Nowell: Can you suggest any way to make a plant window without going to the expense of the metal installation for glass shelves?—R. T.

Answer—Make a shallow box of plywood, paint it and place it at the window sill. Make another just like it and place above the window. Extend each beyond the window about 10 inches and place two small shelves between the boxes on the wall at the side of the window. Put small potted flowering plants in the lower box and trailing ones in the upper box, decorative containers

Twenty-third Psalm

The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: For Thou art with me: Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me, in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil: my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

By Baroness Piantoni

The world is sorely in need of the beautiful message of peace and good will contained in the 23d psalm. This most famous of all psalms has lived through the years in many homes and will continue to do so for many more years to come. A cross-stitch sampler presents the ideal way of keeping the inspiration of the 23d psalm before you. Not only will you be happy to have such a sampler, but you will find untold happiness in making it.

Dorothy Dix Says - - - Women Are Endangering Draftees' Morale With Whining Letters

Are American women becoming soft and mushy appeasers? Have they lost that fighting spirit, that dauntless courage that made their grandmothers tie their sunbonnets with a tighter knot under their chins and climb into the covered wagon without a backward look as they started forth with their husbands to face the hardships, the dangers and death in helping to carve out an empire in the wilderness? Does the modern mother, when his country is in danger, say to her son: "Let George defend it. You stay at home and take things easy," instead of emulating the Spartan mother who adjured her son to come back from battle with his shield or to get back to mother's apple pies and the Saturday night dance than it is to save freedom for the world.

If you should call these women traitors, they would bitterly resent it, but no fifth columnist ever betrayed his native land more thoroughly than they do when they take the heart out of the boys who are being trained to defend their country by making them believe that job isn't worth-while. Our danger is not from the brazen voice of the politician shouting to the boys in camp that they are being fooled and exploited by a tyrannical and idiotic Government that is making them throw away their good times and their chances of prospering in the grocery trade for nothing because dear, kind Mr. Hitler loves us and would be our benefactor if he took us over.

What we need to fear is the sobbing voices of the mothers and wives and sweethearts who moan out the back of a curtain, as the boys in camp that they have nobody to take them to the movies, and who tell them that their best girls are going out with other boys, and that Jim Jones and Sam Small have taken their places in the back. It is feeding a boy, day after day and week after week, on homemade blues that sends his spirits down to zero and makes him want to throw up his hands and quit.

The only excuse that can be offered for the women who write these degrading letters to their sons and husbands and sweethearts who are in training is that they do not realize how great is the crime they commit, not only against their own men, but against their country. For when you take away from a man his motive, you have paralyzed all of his incentive to action, and when you tear down the ideal he has lived by, you leave him nothing to worship—make duty, responsibility, freedom, patriotism nothing but mere words.

Women who write whining letters to their soldiers forget how much more impressive a letter is than speech. A boy may laugh off mother's tears when he knows she will be smiling at the antics of the cat the next minute. A man may make light of his wife's fears when he is at home because he knows she is a chronic worrier. He may not take seriously his girl's assertion that she dies of anxiety if he is 10 minutes late in keeping an appointment. But when mother writes to her boy that she lies awake and cries all night because he is in that horrid camp; when a man's wife writes that she does nothing but brood over his absence until the doctor thinks she is going into a decline, and when his girl screams at the symptoms of her broken heart over half a dozen pages of good white paper, he takes it seriously. It adds to his depression and is the final grief that breaks down his resistance.

No one will deny that it is hard for a family to be parted. No one will deny that the man who has been called from his play or his work to give a year or two of service to his country is making a genuine sacrifice. But the emergency has arisen and it is particularly a time when every man needs his woman-kind to give him a brace instead of weakening him by her tears. So I implore every woman who reads these lines to write no more weepy letters to the boys in camp. Make your letters full of cheer. Tell them only good news and the things they will enjoy hearing. And, above all, make them feel that they are heroes, not stooges. Make them feel that they are doing the finest, bravest, most worthwhile job on earth and that your heart swells with pride whenever you think of them. DOROTHY DIX.

with a collection of growing things on the little shelves. The window in the back. It is feeding a boy, day after day and week after week, on homemade blues that sends his spirits down to zero and makes him want to throw up his hands and quit.

Dear Miss Nowell: I am undecided between a glazed chintz or washable printed sateen for the draperies and a slip cover in my bedroom. They cost about the same and I would appreciate your advice.—L. J.

Answer—Some of the glazed chintzes are washable. You will find the "permanent" sign on the selvage. Also, either material should be vat dyed—to stand sun and washing. The only point to consider in this selection is that the sateen, being softer, will not crush or wrinkle as easily, and from the standpoint of the slip cover might be the one which would give least trouble and need pressing less frequently.

"Big Corners" Grow From Little Cornerstones

—AND MARK THE PATH TO PROGRESS

Charles B. Dulcan, Sr., vice president and general manager of The Hecht Co., setting the cornerstone of the E Street building on July 21st, 1941.

THE NEW and GREATER HECHT CO.

F STREET—7th STREET—E STREET

- We've set a lot of cornerstones since Eighteen-ninety-six . . .
- And with every one we've set new Goals and new Objectives . . .
- But our Fundamental Formula for doing business hasn't changed . . . and deep beneath the granite there is only One Ideal . . . Our Pledge of Service to the Washington community.
- That's why we put continued emphasis on Service . . . and seek at every opportunity to broaden our facilities to the public . . . to make our store more useful to families of Washington.
- That's why we have a Million-Dollar Service Building out on New York Avenue . . .
- That's why we built our Modern Parking Building, at the very threshold of the store . . .
- That's why we have a matchless escalator system, connecting every floor from basement to roof with easy-riding, comfortable Moving-Stairways . . .
- That's why our entire building is Air-Conditioned, for added health and comfort.
- That's why we've spent Two Million Dollars to increase our space, broaden the aisles, enlarge departments, and install the most modern store fixtures, lighting and equipment.
- That's why we feature scores and scores of America's Nationally-famous products . . . because they represent quality and value tested and proven, and hence of greater service to the public.
- As we near completion of our present building program, we cordially invite you to make full use of these new improved facilities.
- And yet they're only the beginning. We still have further Goals and greater Objectives for which to strive. But the Fundamental Formula remains. It hasn't changed a trifle.
- Our Ideals scrape the sky, but our feet are on the ground.

Bradbury Heights Votes to Wage War On Liquor Stores

Citizens' Association Is Told Covenants of Area Are Valid

A determined policy to rid their area of all liquor stores was voted last night by the Bradbury Heights Citizens' Association.

President Henry W. Austin revealed that a renewal had come up for an off-sale license in a neighboring grocery store, and it was immediately proposed that the renewal be protested.

All land deeds in the area contain a covenant prohibiting the use of the land for the manufacture or sale of liquor. W. A. Gibbon explained, adding that the issue will be fought through the courts if necessary. Frank P. Randolph, who stated he had studied the covenants carefully, vouched for their validity.

A change in the bus schedule for Bradbury Heights was announced by Roy A. Chew, representative of the Washington, Mariboro & Annapolis Motor Lines. The new Sunday schedule will go into effect next week, with buses running every half hour from 6 a. m. he said, adding that when several buses ordered last June arrive, weekday buses will run every 15 minutes from 5:30 a. m. until 11 p. m. Mr. Chew said delivery of the buses is expected about November 15.

Reporting on the proposed school in Bradbury Heights, Mr. Randolph said the land title had been received but that the contracts had not yet been let. W. D. Blount told the association that several other neighboring schools had received emergency priority ratings, and he urged that every possible effort be made to get similar assistance for their locality. A thorough investigation of the matter was ordered by Mr. Austin.

The mass meeting to select air raid wardens for Bradbury Heights will be held on November 18 at the Bradbury Heights Methodist Church. Special first-aid classes given by the Red Cross will be offered to the wardens, classes being three nights a week for four weeks. They will be held in the basement of the church, it was announced.

Attlee Calls on Murray; Will Confer With Press

Clement Richard Attlee of the British War Cabinet plans to hold a press conference at 3 p. m. today. He is making a short visit to Washington during his stay in the United States, prompted by the International Labor Conference in New York.

The busy round of appointments in Mr. Attlee's day began with a call on Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O. at United Mine Workers' headquarters. He saw William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday.

He called on Vice President Wallace at the Capitol and planned to see Sidney Hillman, co-director of the O. P. M., during the afternoon.

Two Young Artists Score in Recital

By ELENA de SAYN.

Two serious young artists, Constance Russell, pianist, and Juanita Claxon, soprano, combined to give one of the most pleasurable hours of music at the Arts Club last night. Both showed fine musicianship, excellent training and a natural appreciation of music per se, which found expression in interpretative values. The artists were rewarded by enthusiastic applause, floral tributes and several recalls after each individual group of numbers.

Miss Russell opened the program with four short compositions: Scarlatti's "Sonata in E Minor," Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," Daquin's "The Swallow" and Rameau-Godowsky's "Tambourin." Of these, the second and the last were most significant. The tone quality used in Bach's familiar number had vitality and a singing vibrancy, while the polyphony in Rameau's selection, modernized by Godowsky, gave her an opportunity to display a fine legato.

She showed less affinity with Chopin's style, whose "Ballade in G Minor" she essayed later. In this, leaning somewhat more toward the pedantic, her reading lacked that vital note and much of the artistic élan which characterized her first group and her performance of Debussy's "Suite," which concluded the program. Perfectly at home in the latter, she played the "Prelude," "Sarabande" and "Toccata" in an easy and flowing manner in sympathy with the best traditions, as handed down by his interpreters.

Supported by Theodore C. Schaefer at the piano, who appeared in a dual capacity of an artistic collaborator and composer, Miss Claxon's part of the recital was a decided departure from the conventional. The four songs of Eric Wolff, "Es ist alles wie ein wunderbarer Garten," "Knabe und Veilchen," "Alle Dinge haben Sprache" and "Ich bin so allein," proved to be exquisite tone-poems, worthy of many repeated hearings.

Miss Claxon has the making of a "lieder singer." Her poise and the quality of her work assure for her already a place of honor. In addition to a well-trained and responsive voice of lovely timbre, the artist displayed a perfect diction in all the three languages in which she chose to sing last night. Her emission is free and the artistic inflexion she gave each word and each phrase made her presentations distinctive.

"From Far" and "Shine," two songs by Mr. Schaefer, enlivened the program by their effectiveness. Short, but expressive, they lent color and contrast to Miss Claxon's offering and were enjoyed by those present. The composer acknowledged applause several times. Three arrangements by Joaquin Nin, "Granadina," "Montanese" and "Jota Tortosina" closed the singer's group, to which she added an encore.

Northeast Conference Re-Elects McLean As President

Action Follows Motion, Later Withdrawn, To Dissolve Unit

Marvin M. McLean, delegate of the Brookland Citizens' Association to the Northeast Conference, last night was elected conference president for a second consecutive term.

After an aroused group of citizens delegates to the conference had argued a motion by Michigan Park's John J. Hurley, calling for immediate dissolution of the conference for the alleged "futility" of its existence, members unanimously elected Mr. McLean to succeed himself.

Mr. Hurley's motion came at the start of the meeting and was seconded immediately. Delegates from the Metropolitan View, Dahlgren Terrace and National Gateway groups were quick to defend the efforts of the conference.

Discussion Suggested.

In answer to Mr. Hurley's charges that the conference had accomplished nothing for the past three years, John P. Cahill, delegate from Dahlgren Terrace, suggested a discussion of methods for reorganizing the conference. Vincent P. Boudren, representing the Metropolitan View group, said he was amazed at the "bitterness and jealousy" existing among the civic leaders of Washington. He added, "I am bitterly opposed to dissolution of this conference."

The Michigan Park president, declaring it had been his intention to spur it on to increased activity, withdrew his motion, following which the following officers were elected: Mr. McLean, president; Mr. Boudren, vice president, and Mrs. Boudren, secretary-treasurer.

Asks Agitation for School.

Taking over the chair, Mr. McLean urged immediate concentration of efforts for advancement of the civilian defense program. He also called for increased agitation with District authorities for construction of a proposed high school in the vicinity of Sixteenth street and Rhode Island avenue N.E. The conference had previously gone on record favoring construction of the school.

The conference meeting in No. 12 police precinct station, unanimously passed a resolution calling on the Public Utilities Commission of the District to give an immediate answer to a conference request for cross-town bus service from northeast to upper northwest.

Motorists Get Money Back Under New Collateral Scale

While Police Court attaches believe it may be several days before the full force of the higher collateral scale, inaugurated by the District Commissioners, is felt, several motorists who had deposited the higher collaterals were tried yesterday and got back a large part of their money.

Of those who had been required to deposit the higher collateral after the new scale went into effect at 8 a. m. Wednesday, three motorists each got back $17 of $20 deposited by them on charges of parking abreast. Judge John P. McMahon fined each of the three $3 and the balance of the collateral was returned.

A fourth motorist, who had deposited $20 collateral on a parking abreast charge elected to forfeit without going to court.

Of other cases that did not go to court, five elected to forfeit $10 each as parking too close to a corner. At least two others forfeited $10 each for parking on areas reserved for bus stops.

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.

(David Bruce Burnstone, Merwin D. Maier, Jacob You Schenken, and Howard Schenker, world's leading team-of-four inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in existence.)

Bridge Swindles—No. 71

Today's hand played in a team-of-four match was made at one table because the defense was normal, but was lost at the other table because of a brilliant swindle:

South dealer. East-West vulnerable.

Hand details: ♠ A 9, ♠ K Q 8 6, ♠ A Q J 6 5 4, ♠ A Q 10 9, ♠ N, ♠ K J 6 3, ♠ 5 3 2, ♠ K 2.

The bidding: South. West. North. East. 1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass 3♠ Pass 4♠ Pass

At both tables West opened a low trump, won by dummy's diamond eight. In the first room, declarer next laid down the club ace, ruffed a club, and led a spade.

In the other room the play went differently. As noted, dummy won the opening trump lead to lay down the club ace.

South looked at West suspiciously because he knew West was clever enough to drop the king even if it were not a singleton.

West, but the West played with the spades by leading dummy's singleton. West won the trick with the spade queen and led another trump.

South winning in order to ruff a spade in dummy. But South could not ruff out West's remaining three trumps with the dummy's second spade trick but a trump trick to West as well, since South found himself unable to keep control of the hand.

Yesterday you were Merwin Maier's partner and, with neither side vulnerable, you held:

Hand details: ♠ K J 9 4, ♠ 8 6, ♠ Q 7 5 2, ♠ 10 3.

The bidding: Maier Jacob You Schenken. 1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass 1NT Pass (2) Answer—Pass. You haven't quite enough to raise the no-trump contract, and one no-trump should seem a satisfactory spot.

Today you held the same hand, and the bidding continues: Maier Jacob You Schenken. 1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass 1NT Pass (2) Answer—Pass. You haven't quite enough to raise the no-trump contract, and one no-trump should seem a satisfactory spot.

What do you bid? (Answer tomorrow.)

About 80 years ago, an old chief of the Seneca tribe told what he knew of the history of corn in his tribe.

how the people stored corn "at the tops of their houses."

The Iroquois lived in a woodland region but, like other tribes, they knew how to clear fields without too much labor.

These Indians later set fire to dry grass, and to bushes at a season when the leaves were dead.

In this way the ground was left free for planting. If some of the tree trunks stood through the fire, they did not keep much of the sunlight away from the growing corn.

Iroquois men performed the work of "bush burning" and girdling the trees. The women and children did the planting, and brought in the harvest.

Several kinds of corn were raised by Iroquois Indians. These included white corn, red corn and purple corn.

In the midst of the cornfields they planted other things, chiefly beans and pumpkins.

Appellate Tribunals In Grievances Limited To Agency Members

Controller General's Ruling Holds Travel Allowances Permitted

Appellate tribunals created under the President's order of June 24, 1938, to hear employee grievances, must draw their membership entirely from the agency where the complaint originates, under a decision by Controller General Lindsay C. Warren.

The decision, made public yesterday, went to the Federal Security Agency which raised several questions in connection with the establishment of appeals procedure for grievances of a general nature, which is distinct from that provided for efficiency rating appeals.

The Controller General said also that employees seeking adjustment of grievances, and other principals in these cases, such as witnesses and employe representatives, are entitled to collect travel allowances from the Government, where travel is necessary. These allowances, however, are limited to persons from the agencies involved in each instance.

The Federal Security Agency at present sets up three-member hearing committees to adjust disputes, and under the regulations in effect outsiders may be brought in to serve. This, the Controller General said, is prohibited by a law enacted in 1909. For the same reason, travel allowances also are denied to other principals brought into a case from the outside.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better. Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people eliminate about 2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 48 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Injuries to Gyorgydeak and Bulvin Shorten Odds on Hoyas to Beat Terps

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

At the Parting of the Ways

There will be little weeping and mourning at Georgetown, the more familiar Hilltop, after the Maryland-Hoya game is closed tomorrow at Griffith Stadium.

As a matter of fact, Georgetown is too much for any of the other colleges around town these days. The Hoyas have been beaten three times this season, thereby making it a poor campaign, but they walloped Georgetown, 25 to 0, without drawing a deep breath, and they are expected to take the Terps in stride.

Georgetown isn't deploring the loss of the game for several reasons. In the first place it never has been a money-maker and, lately, it hasn't even been football. Georgetown won last year, 41-0, which should give an idea.

Underdog Maryland Team Rich in Backs

Maryland's move in pulling out of the Georgetown commitment is sensible. At the moment the College Park school isn't interested in big-time football.

The odds, however, are heavy in favor of Georgetown, which has won 10 and lost 3 against Maryland since 1899. When the Terps could score for six straight games the series was ended and the teams first went their separate ways, Georgetown taking the high road and Maryland the low.

Schwagel Wants to Keep G. W. Game

Since the breakup in 1907, however, Maryland grew from the old Maryland Agricultural College to a State university and its athletic teams grew a bit, too.

Redskins May Have Furnished Some Light

In the meantime, Schwagel promises surprises for 1943, by which time the schedules he inherited from Gabe Murphy will have been played and he will be free to announce those of his own making.

It may have taken the Redskins to prove, at least in part, that by going on the road for all except minor games Georgetown was making a costly mistake.

Hoyas Would Like to Sign 'Irish', Navy

Years later, Georgetown learned something of the potentialities here by booking Mississippi for its opener this season. The paying crowd was 22,000, indicating that the reason why games here with West Virginia and Bucknell weren't patronized is because the customers simply didn't give a hoot about seeing class B college ball.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—From what we hear, Minnesota's sleeper play against Northwestern is a comparatively simple maneuver compared with some.

Notre Dame Gridders Stop Here on Way to Baltimore

The Irish, led by the Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of the university, and Head Coach Frank Leahy, arrived at Brookland at 8 o'clock and went immediately to Holy Cross College on the Catholic University campus for mass and breakfast.

Maryland Pass Attack Feared

By Dubofsky

Eleven Well Coached, Has Plenty of Trick Stuff, He Declares

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

Georgetown should whine the woe out of Maryland tomorrow at Griffith Stadium in the eighth and final game for a time at least of their so-called "modern series," but don't put the rent money on it.

With Joe Gyorgydeak out of the starting line-up and possibly lost for the entire day, and the Hoyas' running attack will be curtailed sharply by the chunky, smooth-strung half-back had become a key man in the backfield and one of the squad's most consistent ground-gainers.

And there is a possibility Ben Bulvin may be unable to start—or finish, the way, he also is bothered by ailing ankle and if he fails to get into the game Georgetown's running attack will be something less than flashy.

But are the Terps so tough? Let Mush Dubofsky, Georgetown's line coach and an accredited critic, answer that one.

Praises Maryland's Passers.

"Maryland," says he, "has the best team I ever saw to lose so many games. It's got plenty of power in the backfield and the line is fairly strong. It appears to be well coached and has plenty of trick stuff, and that passing attack—man, oh man, I've never seen anything like it. Why they completed 9 out of 19 passes against Rutgers with a wet line in a driving rainstorm and they managed that ball as though it had handles. I'd like to see any team beat that."

So if it comes up rain Georgetown, with its notoriously weak pass defense, will be in trouble up over its neck. But, on the other hand, rain may give Bill McLaughlin a chance to do his stuff. On a field felloek deep in mud last week, Mac ran through the freshmen for four touchdowns in a practice scrimmage and was just about the only varsity man to investigate in the heavy going. Funny thing about him, he can't play well until he's sort of mused up, even on a dry field.

Tomorrow's game will be decided by long runs or passes, if it follows the pattern of the last two. "South" Sothoron evidently set the style for the series back in 1934, when he gathered in "Chubby" Parcell's pass deep in Maryland territory and ran it back 72 yards to the 2-yard mark. From where the Terps punned it over for the game's lone score after three tries.

Guckeyson Consistent Star.

Bill Guckeyson, one of Maryland's all-time greats, held the spotlight the next two years, particularly in 1935, when he romped 50 yards for the first time in a game, and kicked back the opening kickoff of the second half 90 yards for the clinching score. The following year he took a 20-yard pass from Charley Ellinger and sprinted 35 more for Maryland's touchdown. After that was the end of his varsity career. Mead's hands only to see him drop it in the end zone, and Georgetown later blocked a punt and kicked the extra point to squeeze out a 7-6 decision—its first of the series.

The '37 and '38 affairs were more or less orthodox, although Maryland's 12-2 victory in the former was somewhat unexpected. But the series got back into its long-striding, swinging in '39, when Lou Ghecas sprinted 40 yards for one touchdown and Julie Keschlap heaved a 27-yard pass to Mike Kopel for another. That was the year Bulvin, then a sophomore, was kicked on the head in the last period and drew a blank without giving himself away. He threw a touchdown pass to Art Lemke and in the dressing room after the game ascribed the victory to what was the visiting team's name?

Navy, Notre Dame Join for Rally

Head Coaches Swede Larson and Frank Leahy will address a joint rally here tonight of the Notre Dame Club and Naval Academy Alumni Association of Washington, at which Linda Darnell, movie star; Walter O'Keefe of radio, stage and screen, and Bill Stern, noted sportscaster, will be featured guests.

The gathering, at which Postmaster General Walker and Secretary of the Navy Knox will head a list of prominent Government officials, will take place at the Willard Hotel. Five hundred seats have been made available for the general public.

The rally will be broadcast over Station WMAL.

Air-Minded Irish Eye Sky on Eve of Navy Clash

Field-Slowing Rain Would Help Hefty Tars, Foe Varn

By WILLIAM O. VARN.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—The Irish of Notre Dame are on the way to meet the Navy, but they aren't looking for four-leaf clovers—they're looking toward the sky.

They're strictly air-minded, these men of Frank Leahy, with much of their football prowess hinges on the pitching arm of Angelo Bertelli and Bertelli's pitching ninging on the weather.

As for Navy, well, fair weather or foul, the Middles are looking only toward the Irish, determined to tuck tomorrow's battle into the bag for Swede Larson. They've never licked Notre Dame for him and this may be their last chance for Larson may be at another station as major of marines when they throw out the pigskin next fall.

Both in Fine Fettle.

Down at Annapolis the sailors are at full strength and over at Washington, where Notre Dame took in the sights and practiced a little, the Irish are in fine fettle.

There'll be 60,000 fans—a complete sell-out—jammed into Baltimore Stadium, where groundskeepers worked feverishly packing 10,000 square feet of new sod, still mussy from Thursday's rain that threatened to make the field slow, although the weather man indicated it would be clear and cool.

Hotels, rooming houses and even private homes will be filled with visitors, some already arriving, and eating places anticipated a land-office business.

For this 15th clash of an unbroken series that started in 1927—Notre Dame has won 11, Navy 3—the Middles are betting on the twinkling feet of their great all-around back, Barnabe Bill Busk, now recovered from Pennsylvania game injuries except for a skinned nose.

Busk's Record Impressive.

And well they might, for here's what Busk has done: Punted 24 times for a 42-yard average, picked up 367 yards in 76 tries rushing for 48 per try, completed 11 of 28 passes for 177 yards or 6.3 per completion. Passing and running, he's averaged 5.2 in gains. Besides these triple-threat chores he's found time to call signals, run mean interference, do some deadly tackling and pass defense and even go kickoffs over the opposition goal with ease.

To offset Bertelli's pitching the Navy stakes a record of allowing only 18 of 71 passes completed by six opponents for 228 yards or 33 per game. On the other hand, Busk and company have completed 16 of 48 passes for 225 yards.

The wise ones figure they've about even, but if you listen to Frank Leahy, those Navy reserves give him and Notre Dame a main in the head if not on the scoreboard.

Grid Tilt at Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 7.—A crowd of 2,500 to 3,000 persons is expected to witness the football game tonight at the stadium between Mount St. Mary's and Upsala. The Mounts are seeking revenge for a 14-0 licking last season.

Navy, Tulane, Stanford, Army, Minnesota, Texas, Fordham, Texas Ags Picked to Win

By HERB BARKER.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Without fear, and certainly without hope, here are this corner's guesses on the week's football program.

Navy-Notre Dame—Both undefeated though both have tied. Notre Dame has one very good team; Navy has two. The Tars have no passer as effective as Angelo Bertelli has been at various times this season and on a dry field that edge might be decisive. Still, it's a guess at best, and we'll take Navy.

Tulane-Alabama—No matter what the records may show, these two appear to be the Southeast's two most powerful arrays. Alabama's Jimmy Nelson has few, if any, superiors as an all-around threat, but Tulane, when it clicks, seems unstoppable. Extremely doubtful, Tulane.

Southern California-Stanford—No reason, on the records, to look farther than Frankie Albert and Stanford.

Baylor-Texas—Jack Wilson is one of the season's great backs, but football is no one-man game. It looks to be Texas by whatever score it chooses.

Crippled Gophers Favored.

Minnesota-Nebraska—The Huskers have gone way back. Crippled or not, Minnesota seems a sure thing.

Harvard-Army—Certainly the spot for an upset, but off its showing against Notre Dame, Army rates the nod.

Pitt-Fordham—Probably much closer than could have been expected earlier this season, but Fordham easily gets the call.

Texas A and M—Southern Methodist—Dangerous threat to the Aggies, but we'll string along with A. and M.

Davidson-Duke—Should be just a workout for Duke.

Ohio State-Wisconsin—The Badgers can score, but their defense appears porous. Taking Ohio State.

Northwestern-Indiana—No possible pick but Northwestern here.

Auburn-Mississippi State—Probably extremely close despite Mississippi State's undefeated status.

Louisiana State-Mississippi—Ole Miss looks good now and rates the nod in a close one.

Cornell-Yale—The Big Red's going through a shakeup but so what? Cornell.

Injury-Riddled Eagles Off to Grid Finale With Juniors

Game Will End Varsity Football Careers for Capt. Fox, Byham

American University's injury-riddled Eagles were to leave today for Huntington, Pa., where they end their 1941 season tomorrow in a game with Junonia.

Two regulars, Capt. Kenny Fox and "Bing" Byham, end their varsity careers in this game and they will bow out, appropriately enough, on home soil, both hailing from the Keystone State.

Bill Garland, first-string quarterback, will not see action because of a knee injury, but Russ Arnaud and Russ Atkinson are expected to carry the brunt of the attack.

American was to stop at Hagerstown, Md., this afternoon for a light workout before proceeding to Huntington.

Irish and Middles Pals After Game

By Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—You can bet there will be no love lost between Notre Dame and Navy in their football spectacle Saturday, but the scrap will end as soon as the players leave the field.

After the game the entire Notre Dame team will accompany the Midshipmen to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where the members of the two teams will have dinner together.

Star's Defense Bond Pin Tourney to Be Bonanza for Duffers, Say Authorities

From the PRESS BOX Best Bet Is Michigan To Beat Open Date

By JOHN LARDNER.
Special Correspondent of The Star.
NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (N.A.N.A.)— I will remember the time when the poet Milton, my running mate in the old Carlisle Indian backfield, told me that I had a duty to the public, a sacred trust.

"You whip out those football rhymes very lightly, Larkin, old man," he said, "but you suppose you pick wrong? Have you ever thought of the men and women who starve to death because of your misadventures?"

That was easy to answer. I merely reminded Milton that his own poem, "Il Penseroso," drove 167,800 people to suicide in the year 1790 alone. That stopped him. He had nothing more to say.

And now let us proceed with this week's surefire football winners. Although it's hard to figure out, and causes me to hesitate, I think that Michigan's about a touchdown better than open date.

On heavy seas the fleet rides high: The Irish founder in the ooze; But say the track is fast and dry— I doubt if Notre Dame will lose.

Gopher Hospitality To Kill Nebraska
The dope says Minnesota; yes, That's what the dope says (meaning me). Nebraska's team will more or less Be killed with hospitality.

To shed a tear for Ell Yale Is only proper, friends, for he'll Has got no fury, dark or pale. Like a woman scorned or a mad Cornell.

They're tough, those California Bears. They're on their way. They're hard to stop. They're rolling now. The world is theirs. (I figure Washington will cop).

Defying nature's solemn law, As well as Army's proud Cadets, I go on record this: A draw Will be the worst that Harvard gets.

Tulane, they claim, is hot and cold: Now tropical, now highly frigid. This week the frost has taken hold. And Alabam' will knock 'em rigid.

Stanford Tribe Ready To Scalp Trojans
I reckon Stanford's team to be A somewhat better team than Troy's. (And Troy, you know, means U. S. C.— A classical allusion, boys.)

This won't be one of Penn State's days: It's hard to cope with Syracuse; They have a center who displays Unto the foe man—his caboose.

I walked into a snare, says you. Last week when I selected Penn: A very foolish thing to do. No doubt, and here I go again.

The Mustang herd from S. M. U. Will trample Texas A. and M. An upset? Sure. That's very true.

I like upsets, I'm fond of them. You wouldn't call Wake Forest tame: She's full of beans, and tough and vicious. But Boston ought to win the game. For beans is one of Boston's dishes.

Wisconsin Opt to Jolt Excelsior
I like the feet Wisconsin crew: They score an awful lot of points. They'll scatter desolation through Ohio's more exclusive joints.

In connection with the annual starting poet's derby, to find a rhyme for Hofstra, I would like to report that one of the contestants says that Hofstra rhymes with caviar. Another says it rhymes with hotcha. All I can reply is that the boys will have to do better than that or they will not win the grand prize, the Lardner Memorial Trophy, consisting of one dollar ($1) in cash or merchandise.

Incidentally, Hofstra College, of Hempstead, Long Island, inspired to greater things by the fact that we are using her name in our contest, is cleaning up the football opposition right and left. She now deserves a rhyme.

Entries for this thrilling contest, which is open to men or beast, must be in by November 25.

Brookland Alley Pilot Marks Up Set of 391; Hecht Pinmen Stray

Russ Diehl, Brookland Recreation manager, had a banner night in the Brookland Merchants League with top game of 156 and a 391 set, but with all his urging Shadid's Restaurant dropped three games to University Delicatessen as Ray Watson led the winners with 153-370. Elmer Wesley sparked Diamond Club's sweep over Cannon's Restaurant with 403, while Bill Schotter hit for 143-393, as De Perini Delicatessen trimmed M. P. M. Market, 2-1.

Second-place Hecht bowlers fired two season records in the Department Store League at Hi-Skor when Dick Penton's 416 and a 637 featured a 2-1 win from Raleigh Haberdasher. Penton's 151 also was the best single of the evening. Posting 1,690, the leading Woodward & Lothrop pinmen took the odd-game skirmish from Joe Jeffers. Lansburgh's took over third place with a 2-1 victory over Credit Bureau.

Paced by Fred Murphy's 162-374 and Skeets Parks' 380, Red Circle Food Shop trimmed the first-place Jacobson's Flowers, 2-1 to cut their lead to one game in the National Capital League. Johnny Burger, who shot a city-wide season record game of 195 in the Takoma League the night before, came back with 131-380 to lead in Senate Beer's 2-1 decision over Station WINX.

Seven Tilts at Night Plenty for Tribe, Bradley Avers

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—The Cleveland Indians are serving notice right now that they don't want to play more than seven night games next season.

"I'm a seven-game man," says President Alva Bradley, commenting upon reports that some clubs would seek to increase the present maximum.

"Night baseball is a novelty. Give the fans too much of it, and the novelty would soon wear off. Why, I don't think I could stay up so late 14 nights in the season."

Snowstorm's Path May Decide Donelli's Course as Coach

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—Buff Donelli, who quit as coach of the Pittsburgh pro football Steelers yesterday to return to his first love—coaching the Duquesne University Dukes—still was pilot of the Steelers today. But whether he would remain so depended on the uncertain path of a snowstorm.

Donelli resigned the head coaching of Duquesne five weeks ago to take the pro job, but remained with the Dukes as an advisor. He first gave up the Steelers' yesterday when Elmer Laiden, commissioner of the National Professional Football League, ruled he could not hold the post and be on the bench with the Dukes for their game with St. Mary's at San Francisco Sunday, the day the Steelers play the Philadelphia Eagles.

More Record Smearing Due on Grid Tomorrow

By GRANTLAND RICE.
Special Correspondent of The Star.
Tomorrow is a day when more than one of the so-far unbeaten teams may have their scalps removed. Fordham, Duke, Texas and Minnesota are not on this list. Those that may be heading for trouble include Notre Dame, Navy, Army and Texas A. and M.

Navy-Notre Dame—In this Baltimore upheaval Notre Dame's first-class passing and running attack will be thrown against a strong Navy defense plus a good Navy offense. Navy has the better reserves. The edge goes to Navy in what should be one of the greatest of all Navy-Notre Dame meetings.

Army-Harvard—Two strong defensive teams with two strong, aggressive lines. A rough test for Army, but Army gets the call.

Texas A. and M.—Texas A. and M. meets a S. M. U. almost certain to come storming back after her massacre by Texas. Close to a standoff with Texas A. and M. having the edge.

Alabama-Tulane—When the Crimson Tide of Alabama meets the Green Wave of Tulane you can look for one of the big splashes of the year. Tulane seems to win every other Saturday. The Wave won last Saturday. This favors the Tide in the big game of the South.

Arizona-Tulane—When the Arizona Wildcats of Arizona meets the Green Wave of Tulane you can look for one of the big splashes of the year. Tulane seems to win every other Saturday. The Wave won last Saturday. This favors the Tide in the big game of the South.

Fordham-Pittsburgh—A Ram victory is due, but no romp.

Missouri-Southern California—Southern California whipped Oregon State, the team that beat Stanford. But Stanford is due for another step in the general direction of the Rose Bowl.

Texas A. and M. U. Picked Over S. M. U.

Texas A. and M. U.—Texas A. and M. meets a S. M. U. almost certain to come storming back after her massacre by Texas. Close to a standoff with Texas A. and M. having the edge.

Syracuse Looks Good Against Penn State

Syracuse-Penn State—Penn State is a first-class opponent with a chance, but Syracuse should win.

The Ivy League—Dartmouth over Princeton in a close contest. Pennsylvania has too many reserves for Columbia. Yale should find Cornell too strong, and Brown is picked over Holy Cross.

Missouri-N. Y. U.—Missouri's Tigers have entirely too many goals and fangs for N. Y. U. this season.

Mississippi entries—Mississippi State has suffered only one defeat in the state. Mississippi has suffered only one defeat plus one tie. The former is picked over Auburn and the latter over L. S. U.

Ohio State, Wisconsin Fought to Draw

Big Ten battles—Minnesota appears much too strong for Nebraska. Northwestern has too much all-around stuff for an improving Indiana squad. Purdue has a slight margin over Michigan State, Iowa is picked over Illinois, Ohio State and Wisconsin rate a draw.

Other nominations—Manhattan over Boston University, Texas over Baylor, Duke over Davidson, Georgia Tech over Kentucky, Duquesne over St. Mary's, Georgetown over Maryland, Boston College over Wake Forest, Detroit over Marquette, Washington over California, Oregon State over U. C. L. A., Washington State over Idaho, Virginia over W. and L. Vanderbilt over Sewanee, Oklahoma over Iowa State and Georgia over Florida.

Lions' Rally Earns Tie In Overtime Hockey At Indianapolis

Mantha, Drouin Get Puck In Capitals' Goalie In Torrid Tussle

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—The Indianapolis Capitals, trying for their fourth straight triumph of the American Hockey League campaign, encountered too much Bibeault here last night and had to settle for a 2-2 overtime tie with the Washington Lions, new member of the 10-team circuit.

Especially in the second period was Mr. Bibeault, the Lions' goalkeeper, the downfall of the Indianapolis skaters. The Caps showed him with rubber in this chapter and it seemed some of the more stizzing shots should have got by him. But the Washington goalie was all over the ice to stop everything that came his way until Kenny Kilrea managed to poke a short, quick rebound home.

That tied the score at 1-1, the visitors having counted at 15:22 of the opening period with Mantha flashing the red light on a short pass from Drouin.

The third period was a bruising affair. Lamoureux, injured in a crash into the boards, had to be helped from the ice after drawing a penalty and did not return to action.

While the Lions were short-handed, Joe Carveth scored for the Caps.

But while Hec Kilrea languished out a 2-minute sentence for interference, Drouin netted the tying counter for the Lions and the game was extended into a 10-minute overtime session.

Eagles to Trust Goal Job to Two Young American Lads

Carl Howell, jr., Just Signed, Shares Berth With Leith Dickie

Special Dispatch to The Star.
MONTREAL, Canada, Nov. 7.—Goal-tending duties for the Washington Eagles in the Eastern Hockey League will be entrusted to two American boys this season.

This was made certain yesterday when Coach Redvers Mackenzie announced the signing of Carl Howell, jr., of Muskegon, Mich., the 12th player definitely set on the Eagles' roster this season. He is a black-haired, broad-shouldered lad, standing 5 feet 10 inches and weighing 165. Already on the list as a net defender is Leith Dickie, Saranac Lake, N. Y., youngster. Both boys are 19 years old, which means, says Mackenzie, they have plenty of playing years ahead of them and that Washington doesn't have to worry about its goalies for some time.

Dickie, incidentally, almost was lost to the Washington team. In a rough practice drill yesterday he was hit on the head by a hard drive from Paul Courteau, who can put real zip behind his puck shots, but Dickie shook off the blow and showed no ill effects.

"Two more wingers and another center are needed by the Eagles and Mackenzie expects to sign them shortly. Luke Andrews and Roland Lessard, brother of the Eagles' Art Lessard, defenseman, are among those bidding for the jobs.

Sewanee Visits Vandy In South's Oldest Gridiron Series

By the Associated Press.
NASHVILLE, Nov. 7.—One of the oldest football series in the South—50 years without interruption—will be renewed here tomorrow between Vanderbilt and its nearby mountain neighbor—Little Sewanee.

And it will be a gala occasion—a sort of celebration marking the ancient and pleasant relationship between the schools.

Miss Johnnie Tucker of Sewanee, who sponsored the Tigers when they first played Vandy in Nashville a half century ago, will be there.

Seven members of each squad, who played in the original game of 1891, have been invited as special guests.

Full Handicaps Make Big Hit With Women, Avers Mrs. Lynn

Bill Wood Sees Victory For Mediocre Entrant In Vast Maple Party

By ROD THOMAS.
An average or mediocre bowler will win in both men's and women's division of the vast Evening Star Defense Bond Bowling Tournament, to open December 8 on maples throughout Metropolitan Washington, according to J. W. Wood, for many years one of the country's leading duckpin promoters.

"It's this way," said Wood, discussing the tournament today while laying plans for big fields at his Lucky Strike, Hi-Skor and King Pin: "The Class A bowlers have reached the peak of their games and in a great majority of cases will roll consistent games, whereas the average and mediocre bowler is more likely to shoot at least one big game, which, coupled with his fat handicap, will give him an advantage over the star."

Tourney Duffers' Bonanza.
Wood is borne out to some extent by the history of the 14-year-old tournament in which the men's title has been won on few occasions by crack pinners. The men's section has been essentially a duffer's bonanza, but the same cannot be said of the women's, oddly enough. Here the stars have been dominant. But not this time, we hear from Margaret Lynn, for years the nominal head of Washington's women pinners.

"Not only will the woman duffers share more of the prize money in the Defense Bond tournament," observed Mrs. Lynn, "but there will be a far greater proportion of the entries from women. Shaving the handicaps from two-thirds to full will have a tremendous effect upon them."

"Many women naturally shy from competition and in the case of The Star tournament, even though it has been of little expense, they have hesitated to enter because of the big reputations of the Gullis, Roses and others."

New Handicaps Enormous.
"Under the new system, however, any woman, no matter what her degree of skill, has a genuine chance to collect. The unskilled bowler is on an exactly even footing with the bright star."

Handicaps in the Defense Bond tournament will be enormous compared with those given in most duckpin events. Men's scratch will be 129 for league bowlers and 115 for non-league and the women's 120 and 100, with the full difference granted. For instance a man with an average of 85—and there are many—would receive 44 pins a game, or 132 for his three-game set. Formerly in The Star Tournament both men and women were limited in franked sticks, men to 75 and women to 60.

The tournament is causing more comment than any bowling affair in the city's history, according to Arville Ebersole, long secretary of the Washington City Duckpin Association and now executive secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

To what further interest, a rally of league officials and promoters will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Elks Club.

Legion Event at Silver Spring, Two Out-of-Town Tourneys Will Keep Bowlers Busy

With the fifth annual American Legion handicap carded at Silver Spring Sunday and two out-of-town attractions to lure them, another busy week end is on tap for Washington man and woman bowlers.

Lorraine Gull and Tony Santilli will be defending champions tomorrow in the American Classic at Baltimore's Charles Bowling Center, in which many of the Middle Atlantic's leading rollers of both sexes will compete. Last year Capital pinners cleaned up in the men's division, trailing Santilli who shot 977, were Ed Nash, Joe Freschi and Perce Wolfe in the next money places. Miss Gull, with 621, topped Ida Simmons of Norfolk by 11 pins to annex the women's title.

Roll at Hagerstown.
While flocks of man and woman rollers of all classes are competing in the American Legion five-game handicap affair sponsored by the Cissel-Saxon Post of Silver Spring, a host of leading bowlers from Washington's Metropolitan Area will trek to Hagerstown Sunday for the second annual Aristocrat Day mixed doubles staged by Gene Raney, a District bowler who has put the Maryland city on the duckpin map in no small way. Due to a Sunday law the Hagerstown event will be rolled from 1 to 6 in the afternoon. Starke Brown and Wilbur Robey of Baltimore are the defending title holders.

Out in front by only one game. Expense bowlers, winners of 16 out of 24 games, may have their hands full staying off the runner-up Statie Brown and Wilbur Robey of Baltimore are the defending title holders.

Major Robb of Optimist was a standout in the Civic Clubs League at the New Recreation with season records of 164-406. Kimanis rollers garnered team highs of 540-1,555.

Posting to scores of 569-1,632, Band swamped Charity in the Elks Club League at New Recreation. Al Davall's 150 and Leo Fox's 410 also were features.

Grid Game Between Gonzaga and St. John's Has Makings of Schoolboy Classic

Comparative Scores Disregarded, Clash Rated Tossup

Raba, Eagles' Brilliant Ball Toter, Is Offset By Cadets' Balance

By GEORGE HUBER.

Always a good game, this year's St. John's-Gonzaga clash at Griffith Stadium Sunday afternoon easily could be an affair chocked with excitement, color, punch and good football.

Both have teams rated among the District's best, the Johnnies with four wins in six games and the Eagles with five in eight starts. Both incidentally, sport three-game winning streaks and will go into the game with probably the most even rating ever given for this annual clash. Gonzaga last week topped Devitt, 29-6 while Devitt some time ago downed the Johnnies, 13-6, but St. John's has improved 100 per cent since then and is conceding nothing on the basis of these scores.

Raba Is Problem for Johnnies.

Main task for the Johnnies will be to stop Gonzaga's Elmer Raba. A glance at the scores doesn't indicate the big part Raba, one of the best backs Washington schoolboys ranks have produced for some time, has played for the Eagles. He has only two touchdowns to his credit in these eight games, but he's had a hand in practically every other point. He has passed for eight touchdowns and numerous long gains. A real triple-threat, he could have his choice of many colleges if he wanted to continue with football but he may elect to take up professional baseball.

Some of these college scouts can be mighty persuasive, however, and undoubtedly some of Sunday's spectators will be planning to lure Raba from baseball.

Raba isn't the only Eagle threat. There's Ronnie Waldron, Bernie Nolan and Reds Murphy. All gallop in the combined Notre Dame T system worked out this year by Coach Sam Richards, a former South Bend player under Rockne, who is tutoring the Eagles this season for the first time.

Concede Nothing to Eagles.

The Johnnies are conceding nothing to the Eagles in the way of backfield power. Their scoring is spread pretty evenly over the first-string backs. There is no one man the Eagles could stop and halt St. John's such as would be the case with Gonzaga if Raba was bottled up. That while it wouldn't necessarily stop the Eagles, would put a big crimp in their attack.

Buddy Speiss, slightly built but a speedy, shifty runner and capable passer, and the hefty Tom Chisari who does a lot of plunging, are the main Johnny threats, along with Harold Krug, another good plunger and blocker, and Billy Brogan. The Johnnies also boast a pair of smart, pass-catching ends in Hughes and McCarthy, with Hughes especially adept at snagging heaves for long gains. He also is a place-kicker of note and has booted five extra points this season.

The lines almost are on a par, with St. John's being aided for Sunday's clash by the return of Punched Wilson, guard, who was injured in the opening game.

If fair weather prevails, more than 10,000 spectators are expected at Griffith Stadium Sunday, with the game starting at 2:30 p. m. Adding color to the assembly will be a pre-game parade by the entire St. John's Cadet Corps with music to be furnished by the school band.

Yank Tennis Players All Are Victors at Buenos Aires

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 7.—Don McNeill and Dorothy May Bundy advanced to the second round in the national mixed doubles tennis championships here.

They defeated Marcelo Taverner of Chile and Diana Linton of Argentina, 6-1, 6-1.

In a first-round singles, Elwood Cooke defeated G. Bendlin of Paraguay, 6-0, 6-0, 6-1. Katherine Winthrop triumphed over Senora Denise Dezappa, 6-4, 6-4.

Jack Kramer teamed with Hector Etchart to turn back W. Armstrong and G. Bendlin, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2.

Sarah Palfrey Cooke and Maria Teresa Teran defeated Senora de Scanavino and Lila Ker, 6-3, 6-3. Cooke and McNeill defeated Alberto Zappa and Roberto Clutterbuck in men's doubles, 6-2, 7-5.

Freshman Teams Start Hoya-Terp Battles

Georgetown and Maryland freshmen were to usher in a week end of Hoya-Terp grid doings in their annual game this afternoon on Georgetown's new athletic field behind the medical school. The kickoff was scheduled at 2:15.

Temporary bleachers have been erected on the field, which will not be formally dedicated until next spring, and no admission was to be charged for the game.

Georgetown, boasting a 12-0 victory over George Washington, was a slight favorite.

Britons Aim to Show Rugby Is Tougher Than Football

Sports fans wanting to see for themselves if this game of rugby is a tougher and more exciting game than football—a claim put forth by English "rugger" enthusiasts—will help swell the crowd at next Wednesday night's contest at Griffith Stadium between crews of the Illustrous and Formidable, British aircraft carriers now docked in American ports.

Fans also are curious to look for similarities between the English and American sports, as rugby also has been called the father of American football. Historians claim that both games stem from a sport popular in England in the 11th century known as "kicking the Dane's head." English workmen of that period reportedly began it by kicking after an invasion by the Normans. The game is being sponsored by the American Legion for benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps, Bundles for Britain and the Community Chest.

Virginia Hot Favorite Over W. & L. as Old Feud Is Renewed

Cavaliers Out to Keep State Record Clear In Homecoming Tilt

Special Dispatch to The Star.

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va., Nov. 7.—Virginia and Washington and Lee will renew one of the State's oldest football rivalries here tomorrow in a colorful homecoming setting with the Cavaliers being favorites.

Nearly 15,000 spectators, including several thousand Virginia alumni hoping to see Bill Dudley and his able supporting cast at their best, are expected to be on hand for the 2:30 kickoff.

Virginia will be striving to keep its undefeated State record intact, and with one exception is at full strength.

Coach Murray was in some doubt about starting Eddie Bryant, fleet right halfback. Bryant developed a slight limp during the week and may give way to Ed Kreick, 180-pound sophomore.

This year's game is No. 27 in the series which started back in 1890. Supremacy passed to Virginia three years ago, ending Washington and Lee's seven-game winning streak, and the Cavaliers lead with 14 victories to 11 for the Generals. One was a tie.

Vulcan Bowl Contest Will Decide Negro Gridiron Title

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 7.—The Vulcan Bowl game, billed as deciding the Negro football championship of the Nation, will be played here on New Year Day.

The match, called the Steel Bowl classic when first it was held last year, will bring together the champion of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and the leading non-conference team of the country.

The S. I. A. C. bid recipient is expected to be chosen from Morris Brown, Florida A. and M. and Tuskegee, while leading non-conference elevens are Lanston, Kentucky State, Texas College, North Carolina State and Morgan.

AIMING FOR EAGLES—Buddy Speiss, one of the big guns in the attack Coach Gene Augusterfer of St. John's is readying for Sunday's game with Gonzaga at Griffith Stadium. Both a passing and running ace, Buddy's aeriels have gone for three touchdowns this season and he has scored three times himself.

Cardinals Seek Game

Cardinal A. C.'s 145-pound football team has a field for Sunday on which it would like to book a game. Dr. Reidy, phone Trinidad 7991, is the booker.

Cleveland Park Victor

Cleveland Park Y. M. C. A. football team won over Woodward School's 103-pound eleven, 32-6 yesterday with George Taylor counting two touchdowns for the winners.

Missouri Is Only Safe Bet Among Big Six Intersectionally

Conference Has Chance To Bolster Record in Contest Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 7.—The Big Six has a chance to pump its intersectional record full of victories tomorrow, but Missouri appears the only safe bet, if there is such a thing in football.

Kansas and Kansas State may trump up wins over their Southern opponents, but a hearty nod goes to the Glittering Gophers over Nebraska. Anything can happen, and it usually does against Nebraska.

In 13 sectional games, conference teams have won 6, lost 6 and tied one—that being K-State's scoreless date with Fort Hays.

South Carolina at Kansas State—the Gamecocks are heralding a sophomore streak, Stan Stasia, as every bit as good, or better, than State's Zippy Zelenak. The visitors are picked to win.

Nebraska at Minnesota—Bernie Bierman, Gopher coach, can find apprehension if he goes by comparative scores. The Bierman-Jones rivalry has produced two wins apiece with Minnesota scoring a total of 38 points and Nebraska 34. That's about as close a comparison as can be made.

Missouri at New York—The Tiers should catch their breath in this one. The Violets have faced out six times in eight games.

Iowa State at Oklahoma—The Sooner's home-coming appears okay as Iowa State is the only team which has failed to win a Big Six game.

Kansas at West Virginia—The favored Mountaineers of Morgantown will be playing before homecoming rosters, which means spirit plus for a triumph.

Georgetown Boy Teams Risk Perfect Slates

Two undefeated, untied and unscored upon football teams representing Georgetown Branch Boys' Club will be out to perfect their string in games tomorrow.

The 105-pounders meet Alexandria Boys' Club and the 120-pounders tackle Police Club No. 10, both games to be played on the Monument Lot.

Redskins Menaces, Despite Lot Of Injured Blockers, Dodgers Feel About Struggle Sunday

By BILL DISMER, Jr.

Jock Sutherland and his Brooklyn Dodgers, it is reported, refuse to be sympathetic with the plight of the Redskins who will go into battle against them with only 29 able-bodied players on Sunday.

Callous to the Redskins' advance publicity which wails about the loss of Wilbur Moore, Ed Justice, Bob Hoffman and Bill Young, Sutherland is said to have smiled sardonically and replied:

"They still have Baugh, Filchock, Farkas and Todd, haven't they? What coach could want for anything more?"

What the good doctor doesn't say, but knows, is that no runner, not even a Nagurski, can get very far without blocking—the quality in which the Redskins' four cripplers specialize. Farkas and Todd may be more than self-sufficient when they get beyond the scrimmage line, but they need assistance in reaching the secondary. And unless on-rushing ends and tackles are stopped from reaching Baugh and Filchock many a Redskin pass never may get started on its destination.

Expert Favors Dodgers.

However leery Sutherland may appear to be, at least one New York authority is optimistic over the Dodgers. Stanley Woodward, regarded as an expert, fearlessly picks the Giants to trim the Lions, the Bears to whip the Rams, the Eagles to beat the Steelers—and the Dodgers to down the Redskins.

But if Woodward is correct it will be only the fifth time in 19 since 1932 that the Dodgers have emerged victorious over the Tribe and only the second time in the last 15 meetings. Brooklyn has, however, fought the Redskins to a tie more than any other team in the league, having deadlocked three of the last 13 games. Two of them came in 1938, when the score was 16-16 here and 6-6 in the return game at Flatbush.

An interesting sidelight of Sunday's game should be the individual running and passing duels between Puc Manders and Filchock and Ace Parker and Baugh. Manders and Filchock currently are the first and second leading ground-gainers of the league, while Baugh and Parker are ranked as the fourth and seventh best passers, respectively.

Manders, having played in one more game than Filchock has a 36-yard advantage over the Redskins' biggest yard-eater, and a whole yard's superiority in average distance per rush. In 68 attempts, Manders has gained 325 yards, or an average of 4.9 per rush, while in 75 rushes, Filchock has covered 289 yards for a 3.9 percentage.

Baugh and Parker practically are even in their passing results to date. Each has completed 34 of his heaves, but Baugh—having attempted two less—has the better percentage. If he completes the next pass he throws, Baugh's average will be an even 500 for it is 493 now, with 34 out of 69. Parker's is 479, with 34 out of 71. Baugh has thrown three touchdown-passes and Parker two, while Baugh has had 10 of his intercepted and Parker only 4.

The Redskins leave for Brooklyn at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Half of an expected delegation of 2,000 Redskin rooters also is scheduled to depart for the big town tomorrow, with the remainder going up Sunday morning.

Parents, Boys, Girls To Vie in Unusual Program at 'Y'

Unusual competition is listed to-night when parents, sons and daughters compete in games in the second annual Parents' Club "Sports Night" program at the boys' department of the Central Y. M. C. A., 1732 G street N.W.

The program calls for two softball games, mothers to play against younger boys in the first and older boys to play against a team of fathers in the second game.

Likewise, two volley ball games are scheduled, with a team of mothers to play a team of fathers and a team of sisters to play a team of brothers.

The program is to conclude with a tug-of-war, with a team of mothers and sons competing against a team of fathers and daughters.

Things have changed a lot..

— and so have WHITE OWLS

SAY, MISTER—are you interested in improvements? Sure, but fashions for badminton aren't the only things that have improved... think of cars... think of cigars.

Lower tariffs on Havana leaf, new production methods all have made it possible for cigars to improve recently—and White Owl has taken advantage of these changes to bring you a filler of mild domestic tobacco—generously blended with rich Havana.

THE REAL TEST OF A CIGAR is how good it tastes today—not how much it used to cost. Now, we don't claim that White Owl is a "10¢ cigar for 5¢." True, White Owl, like many other cigars, once cost more... but the important thing is that it has been recently improved. Try a 1941 Blended-with-Havana White Owl—we think you'll agree that improvements really count—that it's tops in taste for 5¢.

Wensleydale Pilot Big National Show Favorite

Harness Horse Grabs Fancy of Fans Over Jumpers, Hunters

Cuneo Entry Is Seeking $1,000 Stake; Military Event Led by Peru

By SID FEDER.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—After a three-day rest among the chickens and the pigs back on the farm in Libertyville, Ill., Wensleydale Pilot picks up his six-month cross-country show tour today in Madison Square Garden, and not even his worst enemy would be willing to bet a nickel against him in big-league harness horse company.

He's just as sturdy and fancy stepping as ever, this lanky Irish campaigner who was brought over three years ago by John F. Cuneo, and instead of showing signs of wear and tear from a blue-ribbon-collecting grind that has taken him to Oregon and California the Pilot actually looks happy that his short holiday is over and he can start picking up the marbles in the current 58th national horse show here.

He begins this campaign this afternoon when he's favored to retire the prized Warham Whitney Memorial Challenge Trophy, which he's grabbed the past two years. After that he'll be on hand almost nightly for all the rich harness events, including the $1,000 championship stake he took last year.

The Pilot leads the way into the major events starting with the third session today.

Also on the card is the second half of the international low-score military team jumping trophy competition, the first section of which went last night to Peru's pair of captains, Armando Anderson and Lt. Hector Saetone. The United States duo of Capt. Frank Wing of Fort Bliss, Tex., and Capt. Marshall Frame of Fort Riley, Kans., used as their fourth mount Ben Knight, an experienced jumper, and he failed miserably, setting them back in second place, with Cuba third.

Among the hunters the first two days, Inky, Mrs. George Watts Hill's coal black mare from Rougemont, N. C., and Woodfield, crack campaigner from Patricia du Pont's Delaware stables, took the ones to beat for the final championship. They split a pair of blues yesterday.

Wensleydale Pilot, one of the few harness horses which can attract interest from the ordinary horse show spectator, comes from one of the biggest outfits of its kind in the country. Cuneo owns 11 miles of place under the name of the Hawthorn Farm, and it spreads over some 1,800 acres out there on the plains.

Although the well-regarded string of Mrs. M. E. Litz Whitney of Upperville, Va., failed to click among the blue-ribbon winners, Dixie entrants generally were well up all divisions of yesterday's sessions. One of the hits of the show turned up in little Jean McLean of Portsmouth, Va., a girl in a blue riding habit, who got a big hand from the crowd as she rode her Mighty Fine to victory in the class for amateur three-gaited saddle horses between 14.2 and 15.2 hands high, ridden by amateurs.

Mosconi, Rudolph Tilt For Crack at Crane For Cue Crown

Three Are Tied at Top As World Round-Robin Tournament Ends

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Two former titleholders and a Livonia, N. Y., cue welder who captured runner-up honors in his first big-time competition three years ago met today in the playoff for the 1941 world's pocket billiard championship.

They are Willie Mosconi, Philadelphia title-defender; Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, four-time former winner of the world championship; and Irving Crane, the New Yorker who finished second to Ralph Greenleaf when the latter won the title in 1938.

All finished the regulation round-robin tournament with eight victories and three losses. Rudolph topped Jimmy Caras of Wilmington, Del., 125 to 90, in a 14-inning final round last night, while Crane defeated Andrew Ponzi of New York, 125 to 123, in the winnow of the 66-game event. Mosconi, who topped contenders for the world title with 1,259 points and a high run of 113, will be matched against Rudolph in a playoff at 1 p. m., with the winner facing Crane for the world title at 8:30 p. m. Final standings:

Player	W	L	High Run	Total Grand
Mosconi	8	3	113	1,259
Rudolph	8	3	113	1,259
Crane	8	3	113	1,259
Greenleaf	5	6	56	1,121

Sunday Hunting Legal, Declares Snow Bethesda Ikes Hold Turkey Shoot

The big question in the minds of Virginia wildflowerers this week is—may one hunt in the Old Dominion on Sunday? The answer, according to the Game and Inland Fish Commission, there was considerable talk of Sunday shooting, and all indications pointed toward Virginia accepting the law in the future. Yet, for those who cannot hunt during the week and therefore are unable to enjoy the sport, there should be some provision.

Hunters who might accept Judge Snow's interpretation of the law in regard to ducks and geese, should note particularly that it does not apply to any other hunting. There is no question about Sunday hunting for upland game being illegal. Big game is covered by specific seasons and regulations.

Turkey Shoot a Treat.

The Bethesda Chapter of Ikes will hold the first of a series of turkey shoots tomorrow and Sunday in its East-West Highway grounds. In the way of comfort for shooters there will be seats, a fire, hot coffee and hot dogs, protective railings and even liability insurance.

If past shoots are a criterion there is going to be all the fun any one could wish for. These Bethesda-Chevy Chase folk really know how to keep the ball rolling. One doesn't need to be a member, or have a friend, to attend.

Ollie Atlas Solves Problem.

Licenses for Washingtonians fishing and shooting in Maryland always have been difficult to obtain. The same is true of licenses in Virginia. If the locale happens to be in a National Forest, there is that little item of a stamp. For island-fowling a Federal duck stamp is a most important part of the preparations. It means quite a little running around anyway you take it, but Ollie Atlas has solved the problem by having on hand forest stamps, duck stamps, non-resident Virginia and both resident and non-resident Maryland licenses.

Those who in the past have bought resident licenses on the strength of summer homes in Maryland might like to be reminded that the last Legislature passed a law requiring bond for residence.

Capital Horses Reach Touch-and-Out Final In Garden Event

Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., Margaret Cotter Score With Hi-Ho, Rocksie

By LARRY LAWRENCE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Margaret Cotter of Washington and Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr. of Fort Meade, Va., may smile today at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden here over the coincidence which marked the second day of the daily knock-down-and-out while Miss Cotter had the same experience that Mrs. Hughes had the night before.

Out of 41 superior open jumpers, only 4 rounded the course without fault to take part in the jump-off. It was a tricky course, with an in-and-out that was an obstacle insurmountable to most of the leapers. In the jump-off Le Dunbar, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Correll and ridden by Gordon Wright, went out on the last jump of the in-and-out, which was the final barrier on the course.

Hi-Rock, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Correll and ridden by Gordon Wright, went out on the last jump of the in-and-out, which was the final barrier on the course. Hi-Rock, ridden by Joe Green, and Rocksie, ridden by his owner, Miss Cotter, came to grief at the in of the in-and-out. But one horse remained to jump—My Play Girl—a little bay mare, 15.3 hands high and so old her age isn't given.

She was owned and ridden by Russell Stewart, a 15-year-old lad from Albany, N. Y., who has three great open jumpers, and Russell knows how to ride them.

Just at the hour of midnight, he placed his great little jumper, completely out of the in-and-out, which the others had failed. As Rocksie and Hi-Rock Pompo had tried for three places, they flipped a coin, and like Mrs. Hughes the night before, under the same conditions, Miss Cotter also lost. However, Rocksie, like Hi-Rock Pompo, is now in the finals.

In Touch-and-Out Final.

The Capital area will have two splendid champions competing for the coveted touch-and-out finals on Sunday. In the eliminations at yesterday morning's session, Mrs. Hughes and Miss Cotter placed their sensational open jumpers, Hi-Ho and Rocksie, among the select 10 who topped the entire race of the 30 other entries in the class.

Probably the most popular win of the show so far was the victory of that last-minute-formed team of Miss Cotter and Rocksie and Mrs. W. Hagin Perry's Hydroxyro, which today the pair of hunters glory in a double victory. The team made a shambles of the course until Rocksie and Hydroxyro entered the arena, and under the expert riding of those finished horsewomen, electrified the great assembly as they circled the difficult course in an unbeatable performance. Placing third in this event was a Virginia team, that good pair of the Greenhairs, Billy Do and Big Boy, ridden respectively by Ellie Leh and Susan Bolling.

Biggest Test of Career.

But his 10-round test with 27-year-old Pastor is far and away the biggest test of his young career. He not only will be facing a seasoned and smart campaigner, but also a fighter who has taken great delight in recent years in smearing the bright hopes of several promising fighters.

Art Sykes was the talk of Chicago in 1939, until Pastor gave him a solid pasting. The next year Pastor cooled off the hot streak of Bob Nestell. His most recent victim among the quick sensations was Turkey Thompson. Bob whipping the Californian twice in his own comeback career.

Booker, who was a versatile high school athlete in Gary, declined to forecast the fight's outcome. The fight, second of the indoor season at the stadium, is expected to draw about 13,000 spectators.

Pastor Picked in 7 Rounds.

Jimmy Johnson, Pastor's glib manager, says Becker will be knocked out within seven rounds. The older fighter had indicated he may elect to concentrate on a body attack in an effort to weaken the Negro for an eventual knockout.

Booker, who was a versatile high school athlete in Gary, declined to forecast the fight's outcome. The fight, second of the indoor season at the stadium, is expected to draw about 13,000 spectators.

Fair Rassling Champ Makes Short Shrift Of Carole Starr

Mildred Burke, red-haired and with the accompanying fiery temper, still rules as undisputed woman's world rassling champion of Washington.

In a rough, speedy match last night at Turner's Arena she disposed of Carole Starr in 11 minutes of the co-feature, using a cradle hold to earn the fall. In the main attraction, Nanjo Singh applied his cobra clutch to Paul Boesch in 28 minutes.

Exceptionally exciting was the Pat Fraley-Stanley Pinto engagement, won by Fraley, the people's choice. Adding variety to the program was a protest by a spectator to the referee who thought Fraley wasn't getting a fair deal. In other matches, George Koverly downed Fred Chrome and Maurice La Chapelle and Babe Caddock supplied the draw.

G. U.

Dornfeld were the Hoyas' firecrackers, but Maryland, with Ulman and Rigby leading the way, made a fight of it right down to the final whistle. The Terps simply couldn't cope with the power thrown at them and absorbed their worst beating of the series, but that was last year.

Who will be the stars tomorrow, Jack Wright, Meagle, Du Vall, Bernie Ulman, Elmer Rigby, John Cordy, Ben Reiges, Dornfeld, Doolan, McLaughlin, Eddie Agnes or some other unsung ball toter? Or will it be an obscure lineman, reaching out from beneath a tangled skein of arms, legs and woollens to grab a fumble and set the trappings for a touch-down, or possibly block a kick for a score, or run back an intercepted pass for the winning marker? We'd like to know.

20 Years Ago In The Star

Aldrich, Yale captain, is leading college scorers at football with 76 points, followed by Robertson, Dartmouth captain, with 67. Seven major college teams remain unbeaten.

Phil Robb, former Penn State star and now football coach at Catholic U., set the pace as the Washington pro football team topped Norfolk, 61-0, at American League Park.

Barnett, Chevy Chase Pro, Taking Florida Job for 4 Months

Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase Club pro golfer, is getting ready to make his annual trek to Miami Beach, Fla., for four months of golf in the salubrious and sometimes blaring atmosphere of that palm-fringed resort. Bob will leave Washington November 19, accompanied by Carroll Boggs, Cumberland Country Club pro, who will be his assistant at the Indian Creek Club Farm, near Ft. Pierce, Fla., and return to be back in Washington around April 1.

He is one of four local pros who won't be around Washington during the winter. Three more are planning the winter tour, or at least in service to his club members. Bob has just about given up serious tournament competition. That (the service angle) is one of the reasons he holds two of the finest club jobs in this country, at Chevy Chase and Indian Creek.

Beiner Gives Redskins Six for Tackle Jobs

Little playing is expected Sunday from Ed Beiner, newest member of the Redskins football team against the Brooklyn Dodgers, but thereafter he is expected to see plenty of action.

His chief value on Sunday probably will be in an advisory capacity since he played with the Cardinals, from whom the Redskins purchased the former Notre Dame tackle yesterday, when they upset the Dodgers three weeks ago.

Now the sixth tackle on the Redskins roster, Beiner stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 215 pounds.

Hockey Team Now Lions, May Become Ferocious

American League hockey follows in other cities no longer will be faced with the poser, "What's a Lion?" when Washington's puck-chasers take the ice. Mike Ulme has changed the name of his league entry to the Washington Lions. He hopes they'll become as ferocious as their namesakes. Patricia Ulme Hill, granddaughter of the team's owner, is designing an emblem for the Lions.

Army Draft Expected, Bogart, D. C. Champ, Quits Golf Play

Ralph Bogart, the last District amateur champ, has played plenty of golf during the season, but Ralph is taking a vacation from the game now. He hasn't swung a club in weeks. Ralph may enter George Washington University in February, if the Army draft doesn't take him before that time.

For a while George Washington seemed about to have the nucleus of quite a links team, for both Bogart and his pal, Earle Skinner, planned to matriculate at the G Street school. But Earle has gone into business for himself and won't continue his college career. The Columbia had also may have to curtail his tournament golf next year, if any tournament golf is played.

Every once in a while, Bobby Brownell, the top-ranking amateur linkswoman around town this year, has been able to come home and get in a round of golf. But Bobby's golf days around Washington are going to be few for a while to come. Bobby is about to be shipped by the Government to one of those mysterious destinations. At a guess, it would be somewhere in the Caribbean area. But that is purely a guess.

Congressional members are getting ready for their annual trip to Pineburg, where around two dozen members of the big club on Bradley boulevard have gone for the last three years. The trip usually is scheduled early in December, and again Wiffy Cox will be the hand-carrying and the man in charge of the tournament.

Congressional will hold its tournament dinner November 15, with Cox scheduled to be master of ceremonies. Bannockburn will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the clubhouse at Glen Echo November 14.

Deanna Still Cinderella With Old Charm Intact

'It Started With Eve' Merry Affair, With Charles Laughton Supplying Comedy as an Elderly Rogue

By JAY CARMODY.

Marriage may play those tricks with personality which are attributed to it by informed minds, but write Deanna Durbin down as an exception to the rule. In "It Started With Eve," her first picture since she became Mrs. Vaughan Paul, she is the same wistful, charming, and gifted Cinderella with whom everybody has been in love since "Three Smart Girls." If anything, she is even more appealing in this merry masquerade in which her leading man is Charles Laughton—of all people—playing the part of a roguish septuagenarian and playing it with such bland diablerie that Universal might well make them a team.

Jay Carmody.

Norman Krassna, whose sentimental attachment to life and for the living enables him to write with his engaging warmth, has created some pleasant people for dallying with in the new attraction at Keith's. None of the elements of his narrative will bowl you over with surprise. On the contrary, they will leave you with the comfortable feeling that you could have thought of them yourself but what would have been the use without Deanna, Laughton and the others to act it for you.

The Cinderella impersonated by Miss Durbin is quite as charming as her predecessors. She is a hotel hat check girl, with singing ambitions naturally, who is suddenly whisked to a rich old coo's death bed so he can catch a glimpse of his fiancée before he dies. Well, she isn't the right girl to be sure, but the right girl wasn't around and the son was desperate.

That is where the character of every one begins to show. The old man who apparently has the power of life and death, decides suddenly that he won't die so long as there is that much beauty in the world. It is a ruthless decision so far as the affairs of the young people are concerned and leads to enormous complications. The old man was always like that, however; self-centered, hilariously oblivious of the consideration he might cause others. A man like that is a fine asset to a comedy script which needs the interim embellishment of poignant, touching moments.

Miss Durbin is up against quite an actor in Laughton, but she has come along well enough in that department to hold her own. Her notion that she is just the girl for his vague, irresponsible son (Robert Cummings) and hers that he is just the sentimental paternal male to put her in touch with Leopold Stowkowski sets them for a number of alternately touching and giddily comic scenes.

Best of the later is a night club passage in which the old rogue, learns and dances a violent conga with the girl. It serves as a climax to the picture, properly far removed from the opening passage, when she sits on his bed and weeps that such a vital old personality should be dragged off to Heaven or wherever he is going.

The only moments when the script of "It Started With Eve" succeeds in blacking out Laughton in favor of his feminine star are those in which she sings. In the course of the picture Deanna sings five numbers, all quite standard and all handled with a sure voice, which shows she still is studying her music. Good neighborhood as hemispheric solidarity has brought two items of Latin flavor into the vocal program of the picture, "Clavelitos" and "Viene La Conga." The others are Tchakowsky's "Sleeping Beauty Waltz," "The Lord's Prayer" and Dvorak's "Going Home."

It makes a nicely balanced program, and Director Joseph Pasternak and the script writer have woven them very neatly into the movement of the story.

IT STARTED WITH EVE Universal production starring Deanna Durbin and Charles Laughton, directed by Joseph Pasternak, screen story by Norman Krassna and Leo Townsend, based upon an original by Hans Kraly.

The Cast. Deanna Durbin, Charles Laughton, Robert Cummings, Guy Kibbee, Gloria Pennington, Margaret Tallichet, Mrs. Pennington, Walter Catlett, Rev. Harvey, Leonard Elliott, Rev. Stebbins, Irving Bacon, Seven, Wade Boteler, Jackie, Dorothy Kent, Nurse.

gram, and Director Joseph Pasternak and the script writer have woven them very neatly into the movement of the story.

"It Started With Eve" is produced with that restrained lavishness which has earmarked all Durbin pictures. The tycoon's palace may be a bit on the double-rich side, but it fits him as a thriving saloon fits a villain in a western.

The subordinate cast is chosen with the same nice concern always shown for Deanna by Universal. It would be much too bad if their current phibbing marred a relationship which could produce such a beguiling picture as her latest.

NO TYPE-CASTING. THIS—Margaret Lockwood, who has been the popular heroine in a number of British photoplays, turns something of a shrew, untamed, to add to the troubles of the hero of "The Stars Look Down." The film version of Dr. A. J. Cronin's novel is the current attraction at the Little.

George Options a Script For Raft-Grable Film

But Before He Can Join His Bette In It, He Must Obtain Release From Warner Suspension

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

George Raft wasn't loafing all the time during his recent New York sojourn. While there he bought two more race horses and optioned a car and a prospective co-starring vehicle for himself and girl friend, Betty Grable.

If George can get a release from Warner Bros., which has him suspended at the moment, he'll try to peddle the story to 20th-Fox. "It's a great role for Betty," said George graciously, "but as for me, I've got me right back in the old groove—a sour-puss, woman-hating character that part of it."

A Raft-Grable picture has been talked for a year, or ever since the two's first meeting. But Raft's direct keeping company, but Raft's second move is the closest gesture yet toward that goal.

Everything considered, mainly the dancing ability of both—such a picture should prove a box-office natural.

Topical laughs are sprinkled through "Remember the Day," the new Claudette Colbert picture, which wanders up from 1910 to the present. One laugh goes slightly bitter when two characters discuss a presidential candidate of the period. "They say he has some notions about putting a tax on salaries," says one. "Preposterous!" declares the other with a chuckle. "Can you imagine the Government ever putting a tax on income?"

Half a dozen major league figures of past and present may play themselves in Sam Goldwyn's "The Life of Lou Gehrig." Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is here to discuss the screen play with Paul Gallico and will later make tests for a role. Another likely prospect is Walter Pipp, who preceded Gehrig on first base for the Yanks and who knew him better, perhaps, than any other player.

Just what the movie interests feared most in the wake of that Bluff racketeering case is now coming to pass: Small stockholders instituting suits against the various film companies, turning the payoffs to Bluff "improper" and seeking damages.

Strangest accident of the year: One Munson breaking her nose while being fitted to a facial cast for the role of Jimmy Cagney's mother in

Torrid Carmen Miranda Brightens New Musical

'Week End in Havana,' at Capitol, Is a Travel Brochure Enlivened By Her Saucy Latin Songs

By HARRY MACARTHUR.

If Mr. Darryl Zanuck is not crazy, and if a man who can afford polo ponies is crazy he is crazy like a fox, he will order the boys in the filmical division of his 20th Century-Fox photoplay factory to concentrate on Carmen Miranda. She was a too brief flash of flame in a dull item called "Down Argentine Way," when she made her debut for Mr. Zanuck, but it was a start. The pictures in which she appears get better and better as her roles grow larger. The way of progress is indicated clearly. All the boys need to do to improve their contributions to the travel brochure school of drama, which still can stand some improving, is to teach this torrid tangle from South America more and more broken English until she has a vocabulary larger than those of the other members of Mr. Zanuck's musical stock company.

Miss Miranda can recite entire sentences now, her admirers will be happy to hear, in an accent that is fetching and with blithe mispronunciations that are amusing even as you realize they were carefully planned in advance. Whether the Latin fireworks display knows what she is saying, or just has an ear for sound is beside the point; she now can use dialogue and this, naturally, reduces the amount of dialogue allotted to the other people in "Week End in Havana," the new picture at Loew's Capitol. The other people in "Week End in Havana"—Alice Faye, John Payne, Colina Wright, et al.—can't say words, at all, but the trouble is that the words do not say much. The picture really is rare fun only when the Miranda is setting fire to a song or exploding a wad of verbal argument in some one's teeth.

Still, "Week End in Havana" is one of those musicals which proves that a man's cad and a bully to snarl at the plot of a musical. An elaborate vacation folder recommending the beauties of Havana, its story is just that fable about the shopgirl who gets a handsome vacation and a rich and handsome husband in a very brief period of time, which may sound familiar to the more discerning scholars of tuncelms. But "Week End in Havana" does have its virtues. It doesn't take itself seriously, in the first place. Then it is both tuneful in the rumba, or maybe its the boasts a truly stellar cast. Topping it is Grace McDonald, the nimble and vivacious young dancer of the musical comedy stage and the motion pictures, a fetching lass who gets things under way in a lively manner. Then there is Gypsy Markoff, the smouldering accordionist, to add some exciting music. On the comedy side of the bill are Smith and Dale, with that daff and wonderful business in the restaurant kitchen, and Mata and Harl, whose dance burlesque of the antics of an Indian fakir is a splendidly comic moment.
