Renew Offensive

Germans Seek to Cut Rail Link Between Mascow and Rostov

BULLETIN. MOSCOW (Wednesday) (AP).

-The Germans have thrown six infantry divisions, aided by a "considerable superiority in planes and tanks," into an offensive on the Kerch Peninsula opposite the Western Caucasus, the Moscow radio announced today.

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 18.-Two German tank divisions, aided by strong Nazi squadrons of planes, were reported tonight to have renewed a drive from the Orel and Kursk regions, in the Donets Basin, in an attempt to cut Soviet rail communications between Moscow and Rostov, the Northern Caucasian gateway.

Russian airmen flying American and British made planes were said to have blunted considerably the striking force of the Nazis all along the front, but the Germans gathered their available aircraft in the south in the new stabs eastward.

Bad weather also had hampered Nazi aerial activity, but dispatches from Berlin and Russia indicated conditions now were more favorable for flying in those regions. Orel is about 200 miles south of about 150 miles east of the Orel-Kursk front and is vital for the Soviet armies battling in the south to keep the Germans from breaking through both at Rostov and the Caucasus opposite the Strait of Kerch, in the Crimea.

By the Associated Press TOKIO, Nov. 18.-Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo told Parliament today that Saburo Kuruso, Japan's special envoy to Washington, "carried no new instructions," but intimated that the outcome of his mission would determine Japan's interpretation of her obligations under her Axis alliance. Japanese Envoy Asks Why Press Is So Gloomy

The optimistic expression came from Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador, as he and Saburo Kurusu, Japan's special peace emissary, called on Secretary of State Hull to speed toward a conclusion the discussions which may determine the issue of peace or war in the Pacific

After preliminary talks in which President Roosevelt participated for more than an hour yesterday, it was presumed that Mr. Hull and the Japanese envoys would get down to "brass tacks" today in stating their proposals for reconciling the conflicting policies of the United States and Japan in the Far East.

Asks Reasons for Gloom.

"Why are the newspapers here so gloomy?" Mr. Nomura remarked to reporters at the State Department. We are very hopeful.

Continuing with a smile, the Ambassador remarked: "You Americans always are in a fighting moodwhy are you so war minded?" Mr. Kurusu interjected that Americans used to talk of "naval holidays." and suggested that a "press holiday" might facilitate the diplomatic discussions now, after being reminded that the Tokio press has had a warlike tone recently. The difficulty of agreeing on a peaceful adjustment of Japanese-

American relations was recognized by both sides. Mr. Hull said frankly yesterday that it was too early to tell whether the outlook was optimistic or pessimistic. Mr. Kurusu said, as he arrived here by airplane from Tokio Saturday, that he believed there was a "fighting chance" for success. There have been no developments

If Japan is willing to settle her undeclared war with China on a basis considered fair to the Chinese, give satisfactory evidence of foregoing further aggression and not hindering the fight against Hitler, this Government, it is understood, is ready to give Japan the whole-hearted economic co-operation she so desperately needs. While the Japanese minimum requirements as stated in an address to the Diet vesterday by Premier General Hideki Tojo appeared uncompromising, Ambassador Nomura remarked to reporters that "that's just your interpretation.'

The chief demands listed by the Premier called for an end to what he termed the "hostile" economic blockade and military encirclement of Japan, and for this country and Great Britain to keep hands off Japan's conflict with China, It appeared that the first two points would virtully solve themselves if some face-saving compromise could be worked out on the China affair and the Japanese position in the

Appeals Court Rules In Favor of Union Station Employes

Nearly $250,000 Involved In Award by Railway Adjustment Board

In an opinion upholding the constitutionality of the Railway Labor Act of 1934, establishing the National Railway Adjustment Board, the United States Court of Appeals here ruled today in favor of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen in a dispute with the Washington Terminal Co., operating Union Station. Nearly $250,000 was reported involved in the suit. The Court of Appeals sustained a ruling in District Court dismissing the complaint brought by the com-

The suit involved work at the Union Station, principally shifting empty passenger trains. The regular train crews employed by the railroads had been doing this work, but the enginemen and firemen contended they should do it under their contract with the company. They would have earned about $80,000 a year had they 'one the work.

The company rejected the unions claim. The unions were upheld by the National Railway Adjustment Board and the company carried the case into court.

The Court of Appeals opinion was written by Justice Wiley Rutledge. He asserted that Congress intended the advantages of the board's awards to railway employes to mean something and the purpose of the act was "to equalize the burden, financial and otherwise, of extended litigation as between employes and the carriers." Justice Harold M. Stephens handed down a minority opinion in which By the Associated Press he said the complaint of the company "states a case appropriate for the exercise of declaratory judgment jurisdiction of a United States Disthe Constitution, he added, the courts are open to all who present a controversy which is the proper subject of judicial action, and "the trial court should not have dismissed the

Nearly 300 Chapels Hit By Bombs in Southern England, Dr. Lewis Says

A virtual "blackout" of Baptist religious life on the continent of Europe was pictured here today by Dr. Walter O. Lewis, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, in an address before the 64th annual meeting of the District Baptist Convention in the Fifth Baptist Church.

AMITYVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 18 .-Six elderly patients—three men and three women-lost their lives early today in a fire which destroyed a building of a private sanitarium here. Thirty other persons, most of them bed-ridden, were rescued.

Dr. Convas L. Markham, superintendent of the institution, the Brunswick Home for the Care of Diabetic and Nervous Cases, said that while a majority of the patients were incurably incapacitated, so far as he could determine those rescued had suffered no ill effects other than shock.

Fire Chief Gardiner said the fire started in the kitchen of the build. ing. It was one of 15 structures housing 260 patients and a large number of employes.

Observers early at the scene said the horror of the fire was amplified by the mingled screams of the dying and those of patients at nearby Long Island Home and Louden Knickerbocker Hall, private institutions for the insane.

Nurses from the three institutions aided firemen in carrying bed-ridden patients from the burning building. Most of them were carried out on their mattresses-many of them nearly nude after rescuers had snatched burning nightgowns and

House Group Works On $6,687,000,000 Request for Army

President's Plea Believed To Presage Increase In Aid to Russia

By the Associated Press

A House Appropriations Subcommittee went swiftly to work today on President Roosevelt's request that another huge appropriation-$6,687,-000,000-be voted for the Army. Informed sources believed the new appropriation request presaged intensification of aid to Russia and a further expansion of the United States land forces. Less than 24 hours after the request was received, the subcommittee called Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, to explain the details and purposes behind it. If the new funds are voted, they will bring to slightly more than $66,000,000,000 the total of cash and contractual authority provided for defense and lease-lend purposes since Hitler inaded the Low Countries in the pring of 1940.

Removal of Limitation Asked. In addition to the funds, the President asked Congress, in effect, to remove the $1,300,000,000 limitation on the amount of Army and Navy equipment which could be transferred to other countries. This led some legislators to conjecture that increased aid to Russia was con-templated because administration officials testified when the second lease-lend appropriation, totaling $5.985.000,000, was presented a few weeks ago that they did not contemplate using any of those funds for aid to Russia. Removal of the $1,300,000,000 limitation, contained in the original Lease-Lend Act, would permit the War Department to pool all defense materials produced in this country and distribute them as military officials and the President deemed best, informed sources said. Earmarked for Ordnance.

Approximately $3,700,000,000 of the new fund was earmarked simply for ordnance and ordnance supplies" and some sources suggested a large part of that sum would go toward per, Magee. tremendous increase in the Nation's tank production. In that connection, it was immediately pointed out that the War Department recently let an $18,000,000 contact for doubling the productive capacity of the Army's tank arsenal, which is operated by the Chrysler Automooile Co.

Two other large automobile producers, General Motors and Ford. also have been negotiating with the Government, it was learned, for the diversion of at least part of their plants to tank and other munitions production.

Indication that the Army expected to have more troops to accommodate was seen in the request's $437,-820,000 provision for the construction at existing military posts. This amount represents approximately half the total spent in the Army's emergency camp construction program to date.

Latvians in America Mark Anniversary Of Independence

Minister Sees Hope Of Freedom Again in Atlantic Charter

"We are building all our hopes on the Atlantic Charter, the new addition to the Magna Charta. That is the basis of our celebration today."

Thus Dr. Alfreds Bilmanis, Latvian Minister to the United States, summed up the faith of his country as Latvians everywhere, except in their native land, today mark the 24th anniversary of their independence. 'No, there will be no celebrations in Latvia. The Nazis have seen to that," he remarked yesterday at the

Despite the fact his country has been invaded by two countries in little over a year and his people are being slowly starved, the Minister said he was confident "our flag will be free again." Senate Lacks Power To Bar Langer, Counsel Tells Elections Group

Statement Is Rebutted By Representative of Legislator's Opponents

By the Associated Press. An attorney-for Senator Langer. Republican, of North Dakota contended before the Senate Elections Committee today that the Senate had "no rightful power" to exclude Mr. Langer, while counsel for a group of North Dakota petitioners contended the chamber could set up "any qualification it sees fit" in passing on those seeking admission. Thomas W. Hardwick, former Georgia Senator, represented Mr. Langer and former Senator Edward Burke of Nebraska the petitioners, at arguments which followed 11 days hearings by the committee on

Mr. Langer's fitness to hold office. Mr. Hardwick took the position that Mr. Langer is already a Senator, that if the Senate took any action against him it would be a matter of expulsion with a twothirds vote required, and that a member cannot be expelled for acts nich occurred prior to his taking he oath as a Senator. Burke Takes Opposite View.

Mr. Burke argued, on the other hand, that Mr. Langer was permitted to take his seat "without prejudice" pending charges of moral turpitude brought by the petitioners; that the Senate had a right to consider his qualifications as though Mr. Langer had never taken the oath and could consider moral fitness in addition to the specific quali- has "let them down." fications of age, residence, citizenship and election set forth in the

The Roosevelt defense program got its first cenvention ciriticism yesterday when President Murray submitted a postscript to his president's report in which he charged the Government with permitting arms production to lag and defense unemployment to increase.

Statement Urges Respect For Authority of Civil Officials

The Catholic bishops of the United States yesterday announced their wholehearted support of "the adequate defense of our country" in a statement which also urged "respect and reverence for the authority of our civil officials which has its source in God.'

The Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, deputed by the bishops of the country to "express their minds on the crisis in Christianity" issued the pronouncement following the annual meeting of the bishops here

The statement opened with the declaration that "Christianity faces today its most serious crisis since the church came out of the catacombs."

Encyclicals Recalled. "However plausible their constitutions and their propaganda, the alarming reality is that neither system understands nor permits freedom in its true Christian sense. Both systems usurp arbitrary power over the lives and destinies of men; their dictators assume a power which belongs to God alone."

The statement pointed out that the late Pope Pius XI issued his epochal encyclicals on Nazi-ism and Communism within five days of each other while expressing his warm affection for the people of Germany and Russia.

"At no time," the statement declared, "can there be any possibility of compromising with an ideology that proclaims and acts upon the denial of a personal and omnipotent God, rejects contemptuously the Divine Saviour of the world, all Christian principles and Christian culture; ruthlessly persecutes religion and brutally murders its ministers. But, inasmuch as each of these the same subjects, and as one and the same thing, under different aspects but still remaining identiunder the jurisdiction and determination of both powers, God, who forsees all things and is author alike of these two powers, has marked out the course of each in correlation to the other. 'For the powers that are, are ordained of God' (Rom. xiii, i). Were this not so, deplorable contentions and conflicts would often arise, and not infrequently men, like travelers at the meeting of two roads, would hesitate in anxiety and doubt, not knowing what course to follow. Two powers would be commanding contrary things, and it would be a dereliction of duty to either of the two. But to judge thus of the wisdom and goodness of God would be most repugnant. One of the two has for its proximate and chief object the well-being of this mortal life: the other, the joys of Heaven. Whatever, therefore, in things human is of a sacred character, whatever belongs, either of its own nature or by reason of the end to which it is referred, to the salvation of souls or to the worship of God, is subject to the power and judgment of the church. Whatever is to be under the civil and political order is rightly subject to the civil authority. Taft Thinks Overturn Possible.

Taft predicted his party would make substantial House gains in the 1942 off-year elections. He added it was entirely possible that Republicans might capture control of the chamber. There now are 260 Democrats in the House and 168 Republicans. The remaining seven members belong to minor parties. In addition to the expeditionary force issue, Senator Taft said that Republicans should put forward a program of post-war rehabilitation.

Russian Aid Has Wide Support.

Back of the armed forces-in the popular dissatisfaction which ex-presses itself in the aid-to-Russia movement—is a sizable slug of the upper classes in England. These are patriotic men and women who are appalled by the record of the Tory party before the war and cannot resign themselves to the idea that it finally makes sense. This opposition from "the best people" shows up in the extraordinarily broad sponsorship of aid-to-Russia movements. In London you may hear a man damn Communism, sniff at Russians as foreigners—and then pound the table for all-out aid to Opposition from Labor starts with its traditional mistrust of the Conservatives, but it is compounded of other things. British workmen are anything but Communistic, but they do think of Russia as a country with working people and they associate themselves with the Russians on this ground. The army and the upper classes have no interest in Russia except as a factor The working class feels a real kinship with the Russians.

It is the combination of these opposition forces-labor, army and a segment of the upper classesthat gives the movement its great drive, makes it the only really serious threat to the Churchill cabinet since he took over. The best- comfort informed men I talked to in London felt that if the movement continued to grow it would upset that A really conclusive and identifiable Russian defeat would bring about an instantaneous up-

No Replacements.

The only explanation the British can give is that they have no men with whom to replace the ousted Tories. To back up this amazing statement they say that the Tory party has the only able politicians in the country. They shrug their shoulders at the mention of the Labor party. They regard Bevin as a Tory captive. It seemed to me that this feeling of helplessness was responsible for much of the ugly undertone to the present unrest. would even consider attacking his problem this way. At the time that a successor to the late Lord Lothian was being discussed, I tried to interest my British friends in a wholly competent and reliable London managing editor. I felt he was the kind of Englishman Americans would understand. He is highly regarded in London. But no Englishman I ever talked to thought I was anything but crazy to propose him. It simply would not do. There must be 100 men in England as sound and able as this man. But we got Lord Halifax just the same.

Churchill Impregnable. With all this talk of the possibility of the aid-to-Russia movement unseating the Churchill cabinet, what about Churchill himself? Perhaps the most significant fact of all is that none of this opposition directed at him. His position is absolutely unshaken. He is criticized freely for many things-particularly for keeping in his government men whom he had once denounced-but it is a friendly, and on-his-side kind of criticism. If they want to change his cabinet for him, it is to save him from his own faults, from his tendency to let party loyalty influence him against his better judgment. They would not replace Churchill-God forbid-they would simply replace his helpers.

As they did last year, the British want Churchill for their Prime Minister for the duration of the war. They feel he is indispensable-as an uncompromising fighter and a man what they feel. They are very proud of Churchill's speeches And there the aid-to-Russia move-

A year ago when I went to England the prime question in America Would the British sell out to was: make an appeasement peace with Hitler? It would be absolutely unthinkable to ask such a question now. Last fall when I asked it someone told me that they did not think even Churchill could keep his job if he suddenly advocated settlement with Hitler. Now, I am sure, the answer would be that if he even so much as suggested the possibility, he would not simply lose his job as Prime Minister; he would find himself in a concentration camp.

Social Workers Told Gift of Money Alone

Character Is Essential, Dr. Glenn Advises Defense Volunteers

Writingy our check and 'letting it go' is the lowest form of helping the poor," the Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, told a group of volunteer social welfare workers today at the first session of a lecture-discussion course in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

The gift of money, while important, is transcended by other gifts, principally that of good character, Dr. Glenn declared. The work of bringing good character to those not endowed with it by heredity and environment is discouraging, he warned, but sincere volunteers must be prepared to do their small parts the long-range effort. War Brings First Accredited Envoy to U. S. From India

Sir Girjh Shankar Bajpai Says Country Determined To See Hostilities Through

A new agency was added to the growing British Embassy staff here today as this country received the first accredited envoy from India-Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, agent general to the United States.

Sir Girja, who calls himself a 'quasi-diplomat," arrived here yesterday to assume duties as head of the Indian agency set up in the Embassy. He will carry the rank of Minister.

The Indian nobleman explained that he would serve both as the chief pelitical and commercial representative to promote common interests between his country and the United States. As such he becomes the first Indian statesman to represent his country outside the British Empire.

Attended Disarmament Parley.

This is Sir Girja's third visit to the United States and his second to Washington. Twenty years ago thi month he arrived here for the World Disarmament Conference, a gathering which sought to limit the arming of nations. He was the secretary to India at that conference. "I was still young then," he remarked a little wryly yesterday.

A graying little man of 50 with bushy black eyebrows, the Minister speaks fluent English. Yesterday at Union Station he even tried his hand at American slang, remarking to reporters at the beginning of their interview: "All right, fire away."

India, he asserted, was determined to see the war through, and added that his country's war effort, both from the standpoint of men in arms and industry in defense, was unprecedented.

"Today we have 1.000.000 men in uniform as compared with 170,000 at the beginning of the war." Sir Giria said. He also pointed out that munitions factories in India had almost doubled production in recent months. Bravery Cited.

"And we mustn't forget that the first officer to receive the Victoria Cross in the war in the East was an Indian." he added. "These men have performed bravely in this war." Questioned on India's future after the war, Sir Girja claims that India

A Momentous Conference

With the captive coal mine strike going into its second day, accompanied by sporadic "sympathy" walkouts in the commercial mines, it is not too much to say that the future of our democracy will turn on the decisions taken today at President Roosevelt's conference with his legislative leaders.

Any hope that John L. Lewis might decide at the last minute to place the national interest ahead of his narrow personal ambitions and call off the strike seems to have vanished into thin air. The mine workers' boss, from all indications, is digging in for a finish fight. In his report to the Policy Committee of the United Mine Workers, Mr. Lewis, absolving himself of all responsibility for the strike, charged that the steel operators had refused to yield to his demands because they believed that "the Army would march into the mining communities equipped with all their paraphernalia of war and undertake methodically and with systematic military strategy, through the utilization of artillery and machine guns, terrifying, intimidating and breaking the morale of the mine workers, to crush the strike, with accompanying bloodshed." That this statement is sheer demagoguery does not detract from the significance of the indication that Mr. Lewis has made up his mind to go the limit in maintaining the strike and is endeavoring to hold his lines in the coal fields by inflammatory and dangerous appeals to the emotions of the miners.

In the face of this attitude there is no room for further compromise. The President and Congress will have to meet the challenge squarely with appropriate legislative action, although, as Speaker Rayburn said yesterday, any action taken should be consistent with "proper consideration."

Presumably, the President's plans have been prepared. In whatever course he may take, provided only that it is adequate to deal with the situation, he has the assurance of overwhelming public support, for the people by and large have long since come to the conclusion that the threat to our national security from the reckless acts of irresponsible labor leaders at home is only slightly less grave than the menace from abroad. They ask only that their Government take appropriate action, and take it promptly.

First Japanese Mission

The arrival in Washington of the latest diplomatic representative of Japan prompts recollection of the coming of the earliest official mission from Nippon. Reference to the time-stained pages of The Star for Monday, May 14, 1860, prompts a the first Japanese embassy as viewed not merely by the Government of the -United States but also by the people of the Capital of the Union and their press. Six long columns of small hand-set type were required to report the arrival of the ambassadors.

At the very start of the story it was explained that: "Aside from interest and great commercial expectation, there is something fresh and novel in the interchange of civilities about to occur between the Mongols and Caucasians. The Empire of Japan is old, but only once since the days of Marco Polo has a Japanese ever visited any other than Asiatic shores." From 1585 until 1854, the introductory note continued, "the mysterious empire has been frivolous in its intercourse with the outside world." After the appearance of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry and his fleet at Yeddo, July 8, 1853, "the disposition of the Japanese * * * relaxed" and "treaties * * * succeded," but the covenants of mutual friendship remained unratified. Many efforts to persuade the authorities at Tokio to send an agent to America failed of the desired result. Finally, however, a party of seventy-one persons was commanded by the Emperor to make the voyage over the Pacific. The company went aboard the steamer Powhatan on January 16; it was at Honolulu on April 11, at Aspinwall on April 25 and at New York on May 9. For the last stages of their journey, the ambassadors and their attendants were passengers | had prepared his report to the C. in the steam-frigate Roanoke and I. reception. "After a pause of some minutes," the chronicler wrote, "the embassy disembarked in regular order, the chief ambassador first, and the next in rank after, and so on. The three principal ambassadors were escorted, one on either side by a naval officer in full uniform; and as soon as they had disembarked Commander (Franklin) Buchanan stepped forward from his suite, and, shaking hands with the illustrious prince and his principal officers, welcomed them to the Federal metropolis in * * * brief and happy style."

The name of the first envoy was given by The Star reporter as: Simme-Bujen-no Kami; that of the second as: Muragake-Awage-no-Kami. They were the original precursors of Saburo Kurusu, and as such deserve their place in the history of modern times.

Defense Economies

In addressing the New England Council last week, Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board. warned that it will be necessary to increase defense expenditures to $3,500,000,000 a month, or twice the amount currently devoted to armaments, if we are to win the war against Hitler "with reasonable speed and certainty." These figures serve as a pointed reminder of the vast cost of the preparedness effort. For at this rate, expenditures under the arms program will consume approximately 40 per cent of the national

In view of his familiarity with the production requirements of defense, Mr. Nelson's statement may be regarded as a fair estimate of the price of victory. With the country already carrying a heavy financial burden, soon to be increased, it has a right to expect that the huge sums voted for armaments be expended to the best advantage and without should explore possible economies in military, as well as civil appropria-

In times of emergency, such as the present, there is a temptation for public officials to seek a defense status for activities that have little. if any, relationship to the Nation's war needs. An illustration in point is the St. Lawrence seaway. Though its completion would require several years, and necessitate the diversion of money, men and materials from armament production, its backers he received permission from the of the project as a "defense" measure. To assure the American people | may mean one of several things, but | the maximum of protection for their | indicates some important motive. armament dollar, it is essential that Congress restrict military appropriations to agencies that really contribute to the arms program. The plea of "defense" should not be permitted to prevent justified economies, nor used to secure unwarranted increases in appropriations.

After the appropriations have been approved, every effort should be made to assure a wise spending of defense funds. A careful scrutiny of expenditures no doubt will reveal opportunities for sizable economies, thus releasing additional funds for military purposes. Since the arms program requires the expenditure of such astronomical sums, there is good reason to believe that a search for economies would result in savings as large as those accruing from the elimination of unessentials from the non-defense budget.

A Study in Words

The report by Phillip Murray, basis. president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, to that body's Executive Board is a truly remarkable document.

foreign policy and fully aware of the danger to this country and to organnew conception of the importance of | ized labor from the aggressive designs of Naziism.

"The workers," he said, "have been, are now and always will be in defeated and destroyed. Democracy can survive in no other way." And in another section of the report he added: "We are whole-heartedly and completely in support of the national defense program. We are determined that the program must be effectuated and fulfilled with all possible speed.'

Those are fine words-words which seem to mean but one thing. Yet they must mean something else, for Mr. Murray's ringing pledges are not being put into effect by energetic action in behalf of national defense. Instead, the C. I. O. has pledged its support to the mine workers' strikea strike which is calculated to wreck the defense program, endanger the survival of democracy and give a very great measure of aid and comfort to Adolf Hitler

The explanation, perhaps, is to be found in still another section of the report-that in which Mr. Murray voiced unstinted praise of the National Defense Mediation Board as one of the "few emergency defense agencies that has worked successfully." On its face this is an extraordinary assertion, because, five days earlier, Mr. Murray had resigned from the board in a huff, denouncing it as an agency in which it was impossible for labor to retain any confidence. Obviously, Mr. Murray's revised opinion of the board came after he came about simply because the Mediation Board, in one case, finally refused to give the C. I. O. precisely what it wanted.

There is no doubt that Mr. Murray believes in national defense. There is no reason to suppose that he is not in sympathy with the President's foreign policy. In fact, it is reasonable to assume that he even meant the nice things he had to say about the Mediation Board at the time he wrote his report. But there are other matters that loom more importantly in Mr. Murray's scheme of things, and one of them is the compulsory unionization of 2,500 non-union miners.

Because his hopes have been disappointed in this relatively trivial matter, all the fine words are forgotten. National defense, the preservation of democracy against aggression, aid to Britain, the Mediation Board-one and all are tossed into the discard because 2,500 miners won't join the union and because the Government won't compel them to

Truly, actions speak louder than

Spotlight on Turkey

Turkey is coming rapidly into the limelight of world interest once more. A series of diplomatic and propaganda maneuvers by the German government makes this clear, though precisely what Berlin has in mind has not yet been disclosed. But the evidence tends to show that the projected move is of prime importance.

Last week Franz von Papen, the archintriguer who holds the key post of Reich Ambassador at Ankara, the Turkish capital, gave an exclusive interview to the local correspondent of a leading Spanish newspaper. In that interview, Von Papen predicted that Germany would make a strong bid for peace with Britain, with Turkey as mediator, when the "decisive phase" of the campaign in needless waste. Congress, therefore, Russia had been concluded. He went on to say that Germany contemplates no aggression against Turkey, which Berlin regards as an essential "bastion of peace" in the Near East.

The curious part of this episode is that, when other foreign correspondents got wind of the interview and referred to it in their dispatches, the Spanish Embassy in Ankara expressed concern at the "leak" and forbade the interviewer to cable his story home for publication until is most unusual procedure, which

The plot thickens further with a long dispatch from Berlin sent by the leading resident staff writer of the Associated Press, Louis P. Lochner, recognized as being an exceptionally able and well-informed The frankness of this dispatch, and the degree of political speculation permitted and passed by the German censorship add to the significance of its contents.

Mr. Lochner points out in detail the elaborate propaganda "build-up" of Turkey in Germany which has been going on for some time. This ranges all the way from press and moving picture featuring of Turkish news and events to special articles by noted writers and commentators. He notes especially a recent editorial by Karl Megerle, known to be the mouthpiece of the Berlin foreign office, in which the fundamental identity of Turkish and German interests are placed on a "geopolitical"

From all this. Mr. Lochner deduces three possible explanations. It may mean either that Turkey has already decided to throw in her lot with Ger-Mr. Murray recorded himself as many, or that the Nazis are trying being in accord with the President's | to induce Turkey to become benevolently neutral, or that Berlin hopes to counteract British and American pressure on Turkey to veer away from strict neutrality toward the anti-Axis camp. That, indeed, is boxing the compass of diplomatic opposition to Hitlerism. It must be possibilities, and Mr. Lochner pruwhich reason he considers most probable.

However, he does give one bit of information which, on the surface, does not jibe with the emphasis on close Turko-German relations, but which, nevertheless, the German censorship let through. This relates to conversations he has had with soldiers on furlough, who have generally voiced the impression that they would soon be sent to the Turkish border.

These puzzling dispatches from Ankara, Berlin and other sources emphasize once more the complexity of the present politico-strategic situation, and the intense diplomatic activity that is going on under the surface. Alongside the titanic Russo-German struggle, other moves are in preparation which soon may give rise to momentous events.

President Murray of the C. I. O. declares the A. F. L. representatives on the Defense Mediation Board who voted against the mine workers on the captive mine issue are guilty of "treason." That is a mighty strong word, Mr. Murray, and may backfire unexpectedly.

A writer recently ascribed to General Forrest the pithy saying, "He what gets there fustest, with the mostest men, wins." He does the Confederate leader a distinct injustice. Nathan Bedford would never have used "He" for "Him."

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

The first archeological reconnaissance of a forgotten New World city, buried under jungle vines for nearly two centuries, has been carried out by Dr. Alfredo Metraux. Smithsonian Institution anthropologist.

The ruins are those of Basse Terre, on the island of Tortuga, about 10 miles off the north coast of Haiti, which in the late 17th and early 18th centuries was capital of the Kingdom of the Pirates. It was the headquarters of the French

-and to some extent of the Britishprivateers who preyed on the Spanish main

To Basse Terre, fortified city of thatch nouses, the cutthroats of the Caribbean returned after their raids. There they deposited their treasures. They were as bad a bunch of scoundrels as the world has known. Basse Terre was one of history's wickedest cities-scene of drinking orgies and gambling beyond description.

Yet, judging from old accounts found by Dr. Metraux and checked with some of the actual remains, life there had its softer side. Nearly every pirate had his home, where an Indian or colored wife and children awaited him. There were two churches-one Catholic and the other Protestant. Communicants of the rival faiths had bitter quarrels to while away the time between throat-cutting expeditions.

Today there is only a small native village on the site. The houses of the pirates have disappeared completely, but the ruins of their fortifications remain. They were apparently, Dr. Metraux says, masterpieces of military architecture. Seventeenth-century brass cannon are strewn around the site, buried in mud or covered with vines. Colored children play with the ancient cannon balls. Basse Terre was the armory of the pirates and their chief supply center.

British and French captured the town from each other nine times. It finally was razed by the French after they made peace with Spain, and nobody was allowed to live there. The present inhabitants have drifted in since. Wild descendants of the pigs of the piratessome of them were respectable householders with gardens and everything during their brief vacations from buccaneering-still roam the jungle.

Dr. Metraux's chief interest, however, was in the Indian sites. Tortuga was inhabited by Arawaks, relatives of the Indians who welcomed Columbus to the New World. It abounds, he found, in archeological material which hitherto has passed unnoticed. He found several are urging immediate construction Franco government at Madrid. That large caves filled with skeletons-all Indian. They presumably were Arawak burial caves, not places where the pirates stored the remains of their victims.

> Possible discovery of the remains of the fabled "Province of Quivira" of the Spanish conquistador Coronado has been reported by Dr. Waldo R. Wedel, Smithsonian Institution archeologist

This native kingdom, supposedly rich commentator on German affairs. in gold, was one of the dreams of the early Spanish explorers, together with the seven cities of Cibola and the fountain of perpetual youth. It lay, they believed, somewhere in the great plains which stretched northward from Mexico

Coronado sought it in the summer of 1541. Instead of a great and wealthy kingdom, the Spaniard found a land dotted with grass house villages whose inhabitants supported themselves by hunting and by cultivation of corn, beans and melons. The land, they reported, was "very fat and black." but there was no gold or silver.

The exact location of the province remained indefinite, but the name gradually shifted westward until it came to rest in Eastern New Mexico.

It now generally is believed, Dr. Wedel says, that the natives of Quivira were the Wichita Indians and that several large village sites near the great bend of the Arkansas River in Central Kansas are remains of the "province." Archeological verification has been lacking.

He reports excavations at one of these sites, locally termed "council circles" He found post holes, fireplaces, refuse and, in one case, disarticulated human bones. There was no certain evidence of house sites, but numerous large storage pits and refuse mounds indicated relatively permanent occupation. Charred corn and wild fruit pits, along with quantities of bison, antelope and other bones, show that subsistence was dently refrains from indicating based partly on hunting and partly on horticulture.

He found a distinctive type of pottery and abundant small, triangular flint arrowheads, as well as many stone and bone tools. Far-flung trade contacts were evidenced by obsidian from vellowstone or the Southwest, turquoise from New Mexico, and banded chert from Oklahoma. Glass, iron and similar evidence of trade with white men was very scanty. A badly rusted mass of interlocking iron rings, identified as chain mail, may be attributable to Spanish contact. "The investigations show," reports Dr. Wedel, "that in very early historic days Central Kansas was dominated by a semi-sedantary, partly horticultural people with comparatively uniform and somewhat distinctive material culture. The marked scarcity of European trade goods, coupled with rare but consistent occurrence of datable peblo shards, suggests that these sites may have been inhabited during the early period of Spanish exploration in the 16th and early 17th centuries. Further studies may strengthen the growing suspicion that they possibly represent some of the Quivira villages seen by Coronado."

E. WILLIAM GRANT.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"28th STREET.

"Dear Sir: "At one time, as I recall, you wrote s lot about aquarium fish, especially the sort that need heated water. I think you call them exotic. I never could get as exotic as that, in my liking for indoors fish, but now and then I take on a goldfish or two just for the fun of it. I like them much better than the smaller and, to me, colorless tropical fish you wrote about. Unless I am wrong, you also said, much the same thing, that is, that a goldfish is really a very good fish to keep.

"I like the goldfish, but after I have had one for a few weeks it sickens and dies, I never could find out the reason, unless I overfeed him, and it seems to me that I give him very little, I don't see how any little living thing could live on what I give him, but I suppose it ought to be less. Let me know about this, how much to give a goldfish. The last supply I had was six in a bowl. It wasn't a very big bowl, but the man said it was big enough. Forgive me all this rambling, but I hate to see them die, and enjoy them when they are healthy. "Let me know what I can do to save them, if anything, and believe me, "Yours very truly, L. P. S."

Overfeeding is it. More aquarium specimens, both cold and warm water sorts, die from too much food than all the other causes put to-

Maybe this is a tip to all of us, if conditions put us on shorter rations. The probability is that most living things eat too much, if they can get it.

There is little doubt, according to some observers, that the common cold, socalled, is the bane of modern civilization, at least what is left of it, and that fat tends to increase susceptibility to colds.

This is something we have noticed. In a public place, it is always the fat man who sneezes. Once an observer gets this idea in mind, it becomes a sort of obsession. It is possible for the astute observer to pick, in advance, the man who will sneeze.

Now the man who sneezes, in one sense, is a very bad man, since he threatens to "give" his cold to some unwary person whose resistance to his particular "bugs" is not as strong as his own. He can resist them, but maybe the newcomer cannot.

The point, in relation to fat and overfeeding, we believe, is simply that the slim animal, whether man or fish, has the greatest freedom from disease.

under certain conditions, that thinness is inimical. The slim horse for a long race, said the old proverb, and it might be applied to the goldfish, too, and to man.

Many persons have attempted to keep goldfishes, at some time or other, and many have been disappointed.

First one and then another of their large enough. The man, indeed, had even in a good cause.

told them that it would "hold" half a dozen, or even a dozen goldfishes.

The truth is that an average-sized goldfish of about 2 inches long needs at least two gallons of water all to himself. A five-gallon tank, which holds many times the amount held by the usual round glass bowl, will not do for more than two, or at most three, ordinary small goldfishes.

What usually happens, however, is that from 6 to 12 fishes are crowded into a gallon.

This means that they do not get enough oxygen and cannot get it. The water itself cannot provide it for them, and the surface of the water is not large enough to give it to them.

Few persons, whether elder or youngster, who take up goldfishes, stop to realize that the amount of oxygen the fishes get is intimately connected with the way the animals handle the food they receive.

It requires oxygen for them to digest their food, and if they could get plenty of "air" they would do much better, though overcrowded. When they get too little air, and too much food, the result is sickness and death.

So if you want to have goldfishes, bright and interesting hold down vour desire for "a lot of fishes

Content yourself with two or maybe three, and try to give them as much water as possible, with the largest water surface feasible. If you must use a bowl, do not fill it to the brim, where the surface is cut down in size by the converging sides, but fill only to the point in the vessel where the section of surface water is the largest. It must be remembered that this surface is more important, in some ways, than the actual amount of water present.

As for the food, select a good brand of manufactured food, preferably not the white wafer so often used, and do not give the fishes more than they can eat in 10 minutes a day. This means that all of it, positively every crumb, will be eaten in that time

Goldfishes can go for days without any food at all. On the other hand, they will not get, as so many persons suppose. any food from the water itself. This naive idea is sometimes taken as an excuse for not feeding them at all.

If goldfishes are fed properly and given enough air, they will live a long time, even in limited quarters. Our last goldfish was Tiddle, who died at the good age of 8 years. She passed away last It is only at certain times of life, and month and lies today beneath a lilac near the great Van Fleet rose on the west fence

We had fed her for eight years and thought we knew how, but at last overfed her. Maybe her time had come, who knows? These are perilous days, for goldfish or man; maybe the months to officers. come will show us that it is better to die from overfeeding, sometimes, overcharges died. The bowl, or tank, seemed | night, than to slowly starve to death,

Blames Administration For Favoring Labor.

To the Editor of The Star:

President Roosevelt at last has taken a stand against the "closed shop" in labor disputes, although he has done so rather tardily, timidly, and only, as he himself admits, under pressure. He says that the Government will never order a closed shop and will never compel any worker to ioin a labor union And yet the Government, under Mr. Roosevelt's leadership, virtually has been doing just that. In fact, the Government, under Mr. Roosevelt's leadership, has taken a very partial, one-sided stand on labor matters generally. Through its National Labor Relations Act, its hand-picked National Labor Relations Board and other agencies, it has helped the labor bosses to "organize" labor. It has helped to build up the power of these labor "leaders." It has helped to develop the present labor situation, and to create the Frankenstein monster which now menaces the security of the Nation itself.

What right has the Government, which should be a Government of all the people and for all of the people, to take sides in disputes between different factions, and to favor a particular faction? Yet that has been the New Deal policy all along. Even now the President is proceeding in a very gingerly manner, for, although he says he will not order a closed shop, he nevertheless asks the labor and the employer representatives in the coal dispute to continue their negotiations.

The Government should not merely take a negative stand on such questions as the closed shop, the "check-off," and "union maintenance"; it affirmatively should prohibit such things. The employer is prohibited by law from "interfering" with labor unions in his plant. Under the one-sided administration of law by the N. L. R. B., he cannot negotiate with his own employes directly, but must approach them through third parties. He hardly dares to speak to his employes less he be charged with attempts to "intimidate" them. He virtually has been deprived of his constitutional right of free speech. Yet, through such devices as the closed shop, the "check-off" and "union maintenance," all of which are not only countenanced but even encouraged by New Deal legislation and New Deal agencies, he is compelled to help support and maintain organizations which are aimed primarily against himself. Is that the American conception of justice and fair play? EDW. WOLESENSKY.

Calls Proposed Rent Centrel "Outrageous" in Application.

To the Editor of The Star:

In regard to the proposed rent-control legislation, it is pointed out that while it may be necessary to curb the rapacity of some landlords two wrongs do not make a right. It certainly is not an evidence of statesmanship to protect tenants from injustice by doing more fiagrant injustice to home owners who rent rooms. Of course, it is desirable to prevent profiteering but when in limiting rents owners are denied the right to eject objectionable persons from their ers, approve it if it forced them to keep objectionable persons in their homes? It may be said that the proposed bill provides relief for landlords. Well, so did the act effective in the first World War period, and I will cite just one experience. An elderly lady, trying to eke out a meager existence by renting a few rooms, was required to give tenant (who ceased paying rent) three 30-day notices to move, and during that time to furnish him heat, electricity, gas, etc., before she could eject him. Then he left owing her $90 rent. Did the Rent Commission make him pay it? They haven't yet.

If any of the owners of small rooming houses had the means to contest it the proposed act undoubtedly would be declared unconstitutional, as was the previous act after the damage was done. Lacking the means of redress. they would be justified in refusing to take any roomers. TAXPAYER.

Believes War Must Come From Axis Center.

To the Editor of The Star Senator Wheeler says that President Roosevelt "can't carry this country into war on a vote of 212 to 194." But Hitler can bring war to the United States providing he can whip England and Russia, though Congress votes unanimously for peace. 'The Senator seems to be badly confused with regard to the source of war for the United States. Just as Cuba, up to a generation ago, was the source of the terrible yellow fever epidemics that swept at intervals over great sections of this country, decimating cities and countrysides, just so the Axis is the sourcethe only source of war-for the United States. Hitler dominates the Axis nations. So Berlin, not Washington is the source of war for this country. It would appear that Senator Wheeler, his fellow isolationists and pacifists are "barking up the wrong tree.'

Union Power Displayed in Mine Crisis

Nation Awaiting Leadership of President

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Organized labor has shown its power to defy the President and interrupt the defense program. The United Mine Workers' Union, in defiance of existing contracts with employers in the commercial coal mines, where the closed shop has already been granted, has allowed its locals to go out on a sympathetic . strike. The purpose is to influence the owners of mines owned David Lawrence. by the steel companies which are not covered by the agreement. In Britain, sympathetic strikes are illegal. Congress is believed to be ready to pass similar legislation here.

But the manifestation of concerted power in defiance of the Government transcends all other aspects of the labor crisis. Will Congress sit by and see the plea of the President ignored and the Government rendered helpless to advance the defense program?

The whole country is watching Washington, where the New Deal has coddled labor unions to the point that some of their leaders exhibit no respect whatsoever for the administration that has given them more benefits and privileges than any administration in all American history. John L. Lewis has said he had no authority to agree to anything but the closed shop. Hence, before the conferences which were held over the week end, it was apparent that there could be no collective bargaining in good faith.

Webster Case Cited.

Curiously enough, the National Labor Relations Board, in an important decision in the so-called Webster case, said that the Wagner law holds an employer to be guilty of an unfair labor practice if he sends into a collective bargaining conference any one who isn't able to negotiate or whose hands are tied on pending demands before the conference starts. This is called failure to bargain in good faith.

Mr. Lewis, by his own public admission, did not bargain in good faith, as the term is used under the Wagner law rulings, but there is nothing in the statute to punish any labor leader or union which does not bargain in good faith. The Wagner law penalizes only the employer. The unions can commit any of the "unfair labor practices" listed in the law and go scot free, but the employers can be penalized for every one of them. There used to be a penalty against wildcat or outlaw strikes in the coal mines. But Mr. Lewis succeeded this year in getting all such penalties eliminated from the Appalachin agreement. Miners can now walk out "spontaneously," as they are doing in various commercial mines, and suffer no penalty. The National Defense Mediation Board passed that contract and the administration used plenty of pressure to have this penalty clause removed so that there would be no strike in the coal mines last spring. Today it is apparent that on labor policy generally, the President has been deceived and betrayed by his own friends in the labor movement. He has been urged and persuaded to appoint men who would be "friendly" to labor. He has allowed his whole administration to be permeated with men who would rule in favor of labor and now in time of a critical national emergency, labor union leaders in the C. I. O. have deserted the adminstration.

Congress Timid. The convention of the C. I. O. at Detroit is giving lip service to died. This year, when anti-strike national defense and is proclaiming legislation was on the calendar, that it is in favor of the President's foreign policy, but strikes are which threatened the Congressmen, coming from the C. The Political Mill

Lewis' Mines and Government Reach Point Beyond Which Issue Can Be Side-stepped

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America. has forced a showdown on the "closed shop" issue in industries essential to national defense. He has brought to a head the increasingly difficult problem of stoppages of work in mines and plants producing materials which this country must have in the face of the war threat hanging over it. It remains now for the United States Government to show what its policy is to benot on the foreign front-but on the labor front in this country. The President has said that the Government will not undertake to force a closed shop in the captive coal mines where the miners are now on strike. He has said also that the mines must and will be operated. Mr. Lewis' interpretation of the situation is different. He holds it is the owners of the captive coal mines, represented by the heads of the big steel companies, who have brought about the strike by refusing to agree to a closed shop in the mines. His contention is that the fight of the United Mine Workers is with these steel company heads, not with the Government. This is specious argument on the part of Mr. Lewis. It does not hold water. In the first place, the strike now tying up the coal mines which supply the steel companies with fuel was not called by the steel companies' heads. It would not continue for a day if Mr. Lewis and his union were not insisting that the status of the captive mines, so far as the closed shop is concerned, be changed forthwith.

Steel "on My Terms."

Secondly, the Government of the United States vitally needs the steel which the owners of the captive coal mines are producing. Mr. Lewis, by halting the production of coal in these mines, is saying to the Government, "You shall not have this steel except on my terms." Obviously, the contest is against the interests of the Government. That is the interpretation which millions of Americans are placing upon the fight which Mr. Lewis is

If Mr. Lewis had his way, every mine and factory in the country would be a "closed shop," a shop in which no man or woman could work unless he was a member of a union—and paid union dues. No man could work to produce arms and munitions for the defense of the Nation without first becoming a member of a union. Well, that is not new. As a matter of fact, many men have been compelled to join unions before they were allowed to work on the construction of camps for the new Army of the United States. Exorbitant fees were charged, scandslous conditions existed and nothing was done about it. Mr. Lewis, however, has brought to a head the issue which was allowed to slide in work for the Government. He has done it by the simple expedient of forcing a strike, a stoppage of production. It is something that the Government cannot side-step, whether it wishes to or not. This contest with the Government of the United States is something that both Mr. Lewis and the rank and file of the Mine Workers' Union cannot now side-step by asserting that their contest is alone with the steel companies which own the coal mines.

Not Ordinary Times. In ordinary times, this coal strike would be allowed to run on indefinitely—as other coal strikes have done in the pastuntil one side or the other gave in. But these are not ordinary times. The safety of the Nation demands steel and more steel. A Government which did not act in these circumstances would be

The excuse given is that the do with the gaining of the monopoly President and his lieutenants really didn't want restrictive legislation passed. How many of the coal miners affected by the strike will back Mr. Lewis? How many will listen to the call of the Governmentparticularly if the President takes over the mines and demands that they be operated? Presumably Mr. Lewis believes they will all stand by him. The showdown on this issue will come if and when the President, using the Army, takes the mines.

President Roosevelt has told the people of America that this is the time when all must make sacrifices, whether they be the men who are drafted for military service or civilians in all walks of life. What sacrifices has organized labor made to date? None. On the contrary, organized labor has made use of the emergency to seek gains all along the line—gains in pay, in unionization of plants and in the closed shop. It has not hesitated to tie up plants producing airplanes for the Army and Navy, and for the nations which are engaged in fighting Hitler. It has not hesitated to bring about strikes in shipbuilding yards, or in factories producing munitions, or the materials essential to such production. It has, by these strikes, seriously impeded the national defense program. It looks as though organized labor intended to make no sacrifices—as though it desired to be set apart from the rest of the country in this matter of patriotic sacrifice. The attitude it has assumed is not helping the cause of labor. Public opinion will not stand for this kind of sabotage of national Harsher Method Possible.

Some of the strongest friends of labor in Congress are thoroughly disgusted with the antics of Mr. Lewis and other labor leaders in this situation. They wish labor to have a fair deal, to receive adequate wages. They do not believe, however, that a fair deal cannot be had without stoppages of work in essential industries. They know that under the laws enacted by Congress, and as administered by a Government which has leaned over backward to favor organized labor, adjustments have been and will continue to be made without any stoppage of work whatever. Mr. Lewis is much mistaken if he believes that it is only the who are ready to take drastic action through congressional legislation to deal with strikes in defense industry. The President set up the National Defense Mediation Board as an instrument to deal fairly with labor in disputes arising between it and management in defense industries. Representatives of the great labor organizations were made members of the board. On the first occasion that the board decided against one of these organizations—in the captive coal mine case—the representatives of the C. I. O. who had been placed on the board deserted their posts. This has tied up the efforts of the board to settle other labor disputes in important industries. The President is faced now with the need of trying some other-and perhaps harsher-method of meeting the crisis which has arisen.

Well, of course the sending of ships into belligerent waters will increase our ship and must fight it out on that hazards of getting shot up, and consequently may hasten the day when we shall go all-out in a shooting

Big Question Arises. However, so far as this column can see we have been in the war for a long time, certainly since last March 11 when the lease-lend bill was signed. To say that we aren't in is just splitting hairs. The only question which now arises-and that is a big one-is how extensive our participation is going to be. The chief value of the Neutrality Act revision would seem to lie in the America lifting of the ban on sending ships into belligerent waters. Much time can be saved if deliveries of supplies can be made direct to ports in the British Isles, and perhaps even in the Mediterranean. Since we presumably shall convoy our merchant- Indies until their immigration to men, many British warships which other countries in the Western Hemihave been used in this work will be released for other efforts.

One important angle of the new situation is that the United States is now in position to ignore Japanese clined to let them land. Some had otests against sending ships into Vladivostok with supplies for the Russians, Naturally, that won't make so much difference if the present peace conference in Washington fails and Japan and the United States go to war.

So long as the two countries don't start gunning for each other, however, this greater freedom for merchantmen may be very useful in aiding the hard-pressed Bolshevists.

Ships Armed in World War. It will be interesting to see how much value there is in arming merchant ships. This was done during the World War and proved to be rather a mixed blessing in many cases, according to my observation, and I did a good deal of traveling on armed ships in those days. This Changing World U. S. Concerned Over Berlin Pressure

On Vichy for Full Adherence to Axis By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The American and British governments were more concerned yesterday over the trend of affairs at Vichy than the bombastic and threatening speech of Japan's Premier Hideki Tojo.

Premier Tojo's blast was fully expected. It was necessary, the Japanese apparently thought, to impress public opinion in America the speech of the Premier before Japan's special emissary, Saburo Kurusu, began his momentous negotiations with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State including the Japanese-imagine. Want Vichy as Active Ally.

The administration at Washington has now become accustomed to Japan's threats, and the speech of the premier before the Japanese Diet created less of an impression in Washington than if it had been made in a conciliatory tone.

The situation of France is, however, much more important and of greater concern. Briefly it is as follows: The Germans are preparing their Near East and Mediterranean campaign against the British. It is now that the co-operation of the French fleet - especially the French submarine force—is essential to them. Furthermore, French naval bases in the Western Mediterranean, both in North Africa and France proper, are of paramount importance for the operations of Axis submarines and warplanes.

As long as the Nazis were only toving with the idea of total war in the Mediterranean they were under no pressure to force Marshal Petain's government to adhere completely to the Axis. It was better for their own plans to give the impression that the Vichy government was in position to maintain an independent policy. But now that the time has come to strike in the Near and Middle East they want the Petain government to throw off its mask and join the Axis powers as a militant ally. Washington and London believe such an action would gravely jeopardize the chances of the British against the Axis on that future battle front

The State Department has followed a policy of conciliation toward the Vichy government. This policy was dictated by major considerations, the most important being that the administration believed Gen. Maxime Weygand, the North African proconsul, would refuse to co-operate with the Nazis. For these reasons the United States considered the Vichy regime as an actually independent government and sent a hand-picked Ambassador, Admiral William Leahy, to represent this Government at Vichy.

Hopes Pinned on Weygand. The State Department also accepted a full-fledged Ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, from Vichy. But while it was realized that Herr Otto Abetz, the Fuehrer's representative at Paris, was the actual ruler of Occupied and Unoccupied France, great hopes were built on Gen. Weygand's ability to resist demands that he co-operate fully with the Axis. It was argued that Gen. Weygand had an armed force of some 400,000 men in North Africa, and that if he wished he could disobey orders from Vichy, should such orders imply full military co-operation against Britain and the United States. The State Department knows the Weygand army lacks tanks, artillery and planes, but these could be supplied readily by the United States and Great Britain if the general should refuse to co-operate with the Reich.

A special American representative was sent to North Africa to keep in official contact with the French pro-consul, and it was hoped that when the hour for final decision came we would find Gen. Weygand ready to resist the Germans. This, by implication, meant siding with the British and American governments. We knew the Germans could force Marshal Petain's hand and occupy the rest of France in a few days. But the Mediterranean is difficult to cross, especially with the British fleet ready to sink every vessel in sight. The Germans, Washington military circles believe, would have an even more difficult task crossing the Mediterranean to invade French North Africa than crossing the Channel to invade

He's a "Petain Man."

Gen. Weygand never gave the United States a definite pledge that he would fight the Reich. When the American Government attempted to humor him by sending oil, gasoline, tobacco and other essentials for French African troops to Casablanca and Dakar, he indicated that North Africa would never submit to German domination. But he always added something about "Marshal Petain." This meant that the defense of Africa was predicated on orders from the marshal.

The role of the aged defender of Verdun is still obscure. Some believe he is trying to salvage what is left of France by playing a cagey game with Berlin. Others-and they are in a mafority these days-believe Marshal Petain is in full sympathy with the totalitarian ideas of Adolf Hitler and will sign just about anything that is put before him if he is convinced that the Germans can defeat the Marshal Petain agreed with Berlin that he should maintain an unyielding attitude as long as this was not contrary to the plans of the German general staff, but that when the battle of the Mediterranean began anew, he would throw in his lot with the Axis. Gen. Weygand is believed not to be in full sympathy with this policy, but he is a "Petain man" and will obey most any orders the marshal gives him.

There is a possibility, however, that he may be removed from his command because the Germans do not want to have an unreliable man in Africa, a man who might change his policies if the 85-year-old marshal passes

It is to be assumed that the four huntsmen brought back turkeys, and that is why I maintain they should be commended and remembered by all of us when we have fought our way to the best places at the table and settled down to making a one-day silo of ourselves. Suppose Gov. Bradford's hunters had run across a moose and decided that roast moose was the fitting and proper main course for the dinner? Tradition would have demanded, wouldn't it, that the only proper way for the families of 1941 to celebrate Thanksgiving would be with the serving of a moose?

Plymouth Rock way of telling the

* * * * It takes no housewife to picture the problems of purchasing, preparing and serving an 800-pound moose. I know of very few kitchens that have moose-roasters where the animal could be cooked and served whole. And think of the task of plucking and singeing a moose. And of stuffing a moose. Small objects like oysters or chestnuts wouldn't do at all. We would have to eat dressing composed of such tasty morsels as steamer trunks, sofa pillows, gateleg tables and wastepaper baskets. Shopping for a moose suitable for a family of four, six or eight wouldn't be easy, either. It's bad enough settling on the right weight turkey. (I have known families that have broken up over whether to buy a 12-pounder for taste or a 22-pounder for splendor.) What splendid arguments would rage over whether to get a 455-pound moose or shoot the works on one the size of Seabiscuit. But as tough as having the moose as our national Thanksgiving dish would be on the women of the Nation, it would be worse on the men.

Not from the standpoint of money, either, although a moose would run pretty high, but from the standpoint of having to have mocse in some form for a full six months after Thanksgiving had passed. It is amazing how long housewives can make the battered remnants of a turkey last. What they couldn't do with an animal as large as a moose. Let's see, there'd be cold sliced moose the first two or three days. Then would follow moose hash, moose soup, fricasse of moose, barbecued antlers, until the whole family would begin to take on the characteristics of the moose and start locking horns just for the fun of it.

Even if Gov. Bradford's hunters had not brought in moose, they might have decided on bear or chipmunk instead of turkey. While both would have been preferable to moose, somehow they just don't seem to fit into the Thanksgiving scene. Can you imagine asking friends away from home to come over on Thanksgiving and share a brown or cinnamon bear with you? Or walking into a restaurant and being greeted with a blue plate Thanksgiving special that featured roast young tom of muskrat?

So, the four men whose names have been lost in the march of the years deserve a special tribute on Thanksgiving day, no matter whether you observe the real one or the one that President Roosevelt cooked up one night when he didn't have anything else to do in the

They brought back turkey. Turkey that goes with cranberry sauce (and when I say cranberry sauce I mean the kind with the berries in it and not that fool smooth stuff that is a fugitive from a tooth paste jar); turkey that goes with squash and yams and turnips and pumpkin pie and bicarbonate of soda. to me day after tomorrow, I'll hoist a slab to the "fourmen on fowling" and thank them for their discrimination. And if the centuries hadn't made it impossible, I would slip them a bit of crisp skin, because that's the nicest part of the turkey. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Commissioner Guy Mason said the city heads told Justice Proctor they were sympathetic to the need for a new building, but simply had no money available or any prospect

The Commissioners previously had indorsed a bill calling for a $5,500, 000 new building to be paid for with Federal funds and constructed on the site of the old Pension Office at Fifth and F streets N.W. The Budget Bureau, however, declared the District ought to pay half the cost and half of the maintenance if it were to go through. The mat ter is still hanging at that point, it was stated.

At present District Court is so crowded that two members-Justices Bolitha Laws and T. Alan Goldsborough-have had to use facilities in the new Police Court Building for their work.

ONE STRANDED FAMILY...

Mrs. Henry Gichner will welcome Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, volunteer solicitor of the Metropolitan Unit of the Community Chest, when she calls for her gift, for she knows that:

Arriving penniless from a distant state, only to find relatives gone from the Capital, a family, despairing and bewildered, found help—prompt and understanding—with the organization best equipped to help them.

Mrs. Gichner has visited that organization and she remembers this family. And, like other Chest givers, she takes pride and comfort in knowing that some of the money she gives through the Community Chest is devoted to the relief of distress when difficulties beset whole families, whether newly arrived or old residents.

More than 13,000 families during the last 12 months were given personal service or financial assistance by the ten family-service agencies in Washington and in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties supported by the Community Chest.

For example, a Frenchman was talking to a dinner companion in a Paris restaurant one night not long ago. They were discussing the entrance of Japanese troops in French Indo-China.

"There goes our 'Prestone' Anti-Freeze!"

We believe this picture will tell you better than a thousand words why you may not be able to get your "Prestone" anti-freeze this winter.

After giving defense needs the "green light," we were still able to supply millions of gallons for non-defense use. We hope you get yours, but there simply will not be enough for all civilians.

If you were to look at a list of products which, due to Government requirements, are getting harder and harder to buy, you would see that they constitute a "roll of honor" of American industry-because the Government must have only the best for defense purposes. We know you are not surprised to find "Prestone" anti-freeze on that "roll of honor."

We are looking forward to, and working for the day when America's finest anti-freeze will again be available to every motorist.

High Jinks in the High Schools

In sharp contrast to the 1941 miseries of Washington's college elevens and the professional Redskins, who are both bloody and bowed, is the progress being made by Uncle Hardy Pearce's chillun. As you may know, Mr. Pearce is head of the District high school athletics. Being a little slow on the trigger, we haven't been aware of the way these scholastics are busting their britches.

The biggest and best schoolboy football season in years comes to a close this week when Central High and Anacostia play on Thanksgiving day for the inter-high series championship. The card itself-Central vs. Anacostia-gives you an idea. It always used to be Central vs. Eastern, or Tech vs. Western for the title. This is the first time in history that By the Associated Press. a school other than one of the old "Big Four" has gotten a crack at the

Whereas the colleges haven't been able to approach a collective .500 percentage—George Washington, Maryland and American University pulling down the average-Pearce's scholastics have acquitted themselves nobly. It's still against the law to play boys over 18 and fullbacks aren't special people in the classrooms but, despite these little pecularities on the part of the public school system, it's been a season wherein the caliber of play was good and the interest mounting.

Some Reasons for Revival Are Obvious

Some of the reasons for the revival are obvious. For one thing there are more schools, Wilson and Anacostia having joined the so-called "Big threatened. Only 52 points behind Four" and Roosevelt. This is because there are more 'teen-aged kids their aggregate of 993 is the allrunning around town. The more kids the more football players—and winning Duke combination, with the more fans. It's as simple as that.

But there are certain ripe overtones in connection with this revival. Not only is interest at Central, Western, Tech, Eastern and Roosevelt approximating the peak of 15 years ago, and before, but the newer schools are catching on fire. Not long ago Operative PDQ-7 breathlessly returned from the front-in this case a game between Western and the upstart from northwest Washington, Woodrow Wilson High-and gasped the Homer Norton's athletes, however, news that in the stands some faces had been punched and, horrors, even

With a smirk of satisfaction it was reported that Wilson's boys and girls had performed with honors in the crisis and that the young squirts | tian nicked the Longhorns and tumfrom the Alice Deal Junior High, who regard themselves as something of Wilson's lower form, also emerged with flying colors.

Wilson Is Foundry of Individual Champions

Now this is not to recommend or condone fighting on the part of teen-aged football spectators. It is mentioned purely as a means of slumping to 17th after holding a pointing out that Wilson's frosty young undergrads had thawed to the point of understanding a common bond. Perhaps it was because a few sprigs of ivy were beginning to climb the walls of the 6-year-old edifice. aren't influenced entirely by wins We wouldn't know for sure.

Up to the game with Western, natural rival of the Wilsons, the new school had displayed a monumental apathy toward its teams. Unlike students of the other schools, they almost to a boy and girl belonged Ohio State and Mississippi, each to substantial middleclass families. Perhaps they had more spending money in their pockets than the son of an immigrant delicatessen owner who went to Eastern or to Central. Many had their own cars, held junior country club memberships and were interested in sports other than Certainly Wilson didn't lack for standout athletes. Almost before 938; Michigan, 682; Duquesne, 580; the paint on the walls was dry Ralph Bogart and Earle Skinker began to Alabama, 415; Missouri, 238; Texas, win District golf titles and June Booth began to set backstroke records. 228; Northwestern, 204. And in their footsteps and wake followed such as Patsy Palmer, another swimming champion; Bert Williams, the former D. C. diving king, and a few stray tennis stars. With the restraint that was fashionable Wilson's students followed their heroes and heroines in individual competition but as far as team support was concerned it was negigible.

A Whimsical Principal Makes Two Speeches

But the school caught fire this year and, along these lines, it might be mentioned that on the eve of the Western game a monstrous bon fire was proposed. Word reached the alert but sympathetic ears of Principal Nelson, who called an assembly and suggested that it might not be a good idea to congregate that night and build a proposed bon-fire. "It might endanger public property," he explained. "Our property. This enthusiasm," he added, in effect, "is healthy and not misplaced, but let's

That night students congregated, anyway, and lit fires. They carefully were put out later. The next morning another assembly was called. We don't happen to have a stenographic report of Mr. Nelson's speech but it reportedly went something like this: "In response to yesterday's suggestion, it was heartening to learn how many of our students turned out to for the winter league, but they won't where Coach Bill Reinhart expected or he might have held off until next protect the building from any danger. Of course, they got cold while 'protecting' and built a fire but * * *." Mr. Nelson was certain, too, it

It was. It ended in a tie. The Wilson kids had been thawed. Some of the belligerent seniors were ripe at the moment to move upward and onward in life. They were almost ready for college, where one helps to tear down a goal-post while his roomie blocks out the nearest cop. mounted or on foot. Even the span of life wherein they are wageearners-bank clerks, Government executives, lawyers, doctors, etc.-was not too far distant. After all, what are those people made of who stick red feathers in their hats and gold badges on their coats when they travel around half the country in the wake of the Redskins? And where is there a better and more wholesome outlet for ebullience . . . or, bluntly, deviltry? Name it and you may have it.

Duke and Notre Dame Press for Runner-Up Football Honors

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—There is no argument among sportswriters in Minnesota's ranking as the Nation's top college football team, but the writers can't decide with finality on the runnerup to the Norsemen in the weekly Associated Press poll.

Alabama in Fine Spot If It Whips Vandy; Rams Not Out of It

By GRANTLAND RICE, Special Correspondent of The Star. NEW YORK, Nov. 18 .- The weird dance of the bowls now has taken on a strictly dervish aspect. It is even wilder than a Sioux or Comanche war dance. Stanford had barely fallen for the second time, when the cheering voices of Dick Andrade and Buddy Fogelson came over the long-distance phone from Cotton Bowl headquarters at Dallas. There was even louder cheering at New Orleans and Miami, for Stanford's downfall meant the Rose Bowl had to enter at least one twotime loser in place of an unbeaten Western defender. The bowl situation at this November spot might be classified as follows:

East-Duquesne, Fordham. South-Duke, Alabama, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Clemson, (The last four only once beaten. Southwest-Texas A. and M. Texas Christian. Big Six-Missouri

Far West-Oregon State, Stanford. Washington.

The bowl leaders are now Texas A. and M. Duke and Duguesne In the next group we find Fordham and Alabama, although 'Bama this week has a dangerous opponent in Red Sanders' Vanderbilt squad. If Vanderbilt can duck by Alabama and Tennessee the Commodore rankings will be high up. Missouri and Ole Miss are two other fine teams—crowd-pleasing teams-that are as close to the top as paper on the ceiling. Missouri has the edge here with a lone first-game defeat and only Kansas ahead. Looking back over this collection you can understand the feverish activity now taking place among bowl promoters 'to round up their New Year show.

Gophers' Defense Emphasized. Those who saw Michigan's blg. brilliant team take Columbia apart can now understand the power of a Minnesota defense that could keep Westfall and Kuzma away from the Gopher goal. Michigan also has a big, fast line in front of these star backs and that makes Minnesota's performance all the more remarkable. In these days of upsets, overthrows, ups and downs, Minnesota's ability to win 16 straight games against such terrific opposition is another startling addition to her record. Equally sensational along_consistent lines is Texas Aggies' mark of 28 victories in 29 starts. And Frank Leahy's remarkable sweep at Boston College and Notre Dame. Both Minnesota and Texas Aggies belong in two of football's toughest pastures, so far as winning in concerned. When you are meeting the picked teams of the Midwest and Texas Likely Lost Its Edge.

Taking no credit from Baylor of T. C. U., certainly not from the latter, meeting Texas at the Steers' full strength, there is only one reason to account for Texas U.'s sudden descent from the pinnacle to the deep. In her first six games Texas rolled up 230 points, an average count of 38 to the game. This indicates that Texas was well ahead of all opposition in condition and football readiness. A team as keen, as much on edge as Texas was on September 27 set too fast a pace for any one to hold through November. Texas is like a race horse in a mile test that set a killing pace from the start, picked up a 10length lead at the mile and quarter spot, and then suddenly found its wind and legs were not what they used to be.

The team that ran up 74 points against Rice and S. M. U. had worn away its old keen edge. Especially against a team as strong as T. C. U. is at this date.

New York Sports Broadcasters Organize; Coach Kerr Is Under Fire of Colgate Alumni

Babe Phelps, who figures the Dodgers will try to trade him to the Phillies this winter as punishment for quitting the club in midseason, claims he'll quit baseball before he will play with Philadelphia. Blozis Hopes Next Shotput Will Be 'on Level'

Amazed to Learn Supposed Record Was Downhill Toss

Maybe there is something to all those unkind remarks Clark Griffith makes about the National League. At least. Al Blozis, Georgetown's national shot-putting champion, is inclined to agree with him.

Al's heave of 56 feet 61 inches, made last June, was rejected by the National A. A. U. as a new record on the grounds that the shot did not weigh 16 pounds and was thrown downhill. The committee's decision was slightly amazing to the big fellow, who thought he had the record locked

"I guess it doesn't make much difference," he said today, "but I can't understand how they figured I threw the ball down hill. I made the throw on the baseball diamond at the Polo Grounds-right between first and second base and the ground seemed level enough to me. Maybe the diamond's laid out cock-

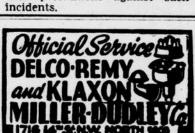

"As for the weight, I simply used the shot the games committee handed me. I thought it was necessary under the rules to weigh it before every meet. If it wasn't, well. I suppose it was a mistake and everybody makes them. But every time I put the shot I'm trying for the record and the ball seems to get heavier every time I pick it up. If it did weigh less than 16 pounds I didn't notice it.

"But it doesn't make much difference." he concluded. "I've still

Redskins, on Law of Averages, Figure to Beat Giants in New York Sunday

Breaks Also Overdue To Strike in Favor Of Capital Team

Dame Fortune Certainly Looked the Other Way In Chicago Contest

By BILL DISMER, Jr.

On the law of averages, if for none of the other probable reasons, the worm is overdue to turn in the Redskins' favor as they swing into the homestretch of their schedule with a do-or-die determination to retain their Eastern championship Consider, if you please, three factors which point to a Washington victory over New York when the Giants are tackled Sunday at the Polo Gdounds:

1. The Redskins hadn't lost two games in a row-until last Sundaysince the 1936 season, and only once in their nine-year history have they ever dropped more than a pair of successive games. That was in 1935 when the poorest Indian team of all, which won only 2 of its 11 league games, lost eight straight.

2. Not since 1937 (remember 49-14?) have the Redskins won a game at the Polo Grounds and the bitter memories of the '38, '39 and '40 setbacks are serving as much of a spur to the Indians as their desire for revenge against the Bears did last week. (And if they play like they did against the Bears they'll whip the Giants!)

3. Breaks, which started with the loss of three fine backs, were working overtime against the Redskins at Chicago, and if there is a Justice whose first name is not Ed the Indians are due to get some in their favor from now on. Luck All Against Skins.

This is no alibi, but it's possible to point out six different points in last Sunday's game which-if luck had gone the other way-the Redskins would have made three more touchdowns, had two other scoring opportunities and the Bears would have 7 points less.

On the kickoff following Chicago's first touchdown, big Bob Seymour inaugurated what was to be his finest showing in Redskin livery by dashing through his teammates' wedge and running to the Bears' 27-yard line before he could, be brought down. But a Redskin was detected clipping and his team penalized all the way back to Washington's 15. Break No. 1.

At the outset of the second quarter, Bob McChesney dropped a sure touchdown-pass from Sammy Baugh | ciation. which was right in his mits. It must be remembered that McChes- holder of the Maryland State Golf feminine golfer shown any indicaney's broken right thumb handicaps him no end but nine times out of 10 McChesney will catch 'em, broken of the year around the Capital, Mrs. thumb or broken hand. his finger tips. Breaks 2 and 3. Another penalty, the reason for which even the Redskins can't explain, cost them a chance to put the ball on Chicago's 30-yard line near the end of the third period. Baugh, rushed on a pass which was designed to go either to the strong left side or Rookie Lee Gentry, alone on the right sideline, completed one to the latter, only to hear the officials say something about Redskins do they not give par a licking but demonstrably easier Woodmont being "beyond the scrimmage line" and call the ball back to midfield. The offense wasn't called "offside." but "beyond the scrimmage line," whatever the difference is.

Break Goes for Tally.

An undeniable break allowed the Bears to score their fourth touchdown, for the vicious charge of the entire Redskin line made George McAfee fumble, only to have its efforts frustrated when G. W.'s Bob Nowaskey recovered for 6 points. "When you fumble and still score a touchdown, you're just d-n lucky,' the Redskins maintain.

New Steps Taken To Get Action On Rent Bill

Committee Members To Talk to Patman; Cox Shifts Stand

By JAMES E. CHINN.

Two new moves were made today to break the impasse delaying final legislative action on the District rent control bill.

First, three ranking members of the House District Committee ar ranged to meet at 9:30 a.m. ton row with Representative Patman, Democrat, of Texas, in an effort to get him to withdraw his objection to sending the measure to a joint conference of the House and Senate.

Second, Acting Chairman Cox of the Rules Committee suddenly reversed a former opinion that his group is not "interested" in the rent control legislation and indicated consideration would be given to an application for a rule designed to expedite final action if the conference between Mr. Patman and members of the District Committee fails.

While Mr. Patman was appearing before the Rules Committee, Representative Randolph issued a statement explaining he had conferred this morning with Representatives Patman. Supreme Tribunal Hears D. C. Aide Defend Levy

The Supreme Court today had under advisement the question as to whether Federal employes, who claim domicile in other States, could thereby escape payment of the District income tax. The issue is said to affect about 20,000 or more Government employes in Washington.

Arguments on the matter were concluded before the tribunal yesterday in the cases of two Federal employes, who contend their domiciles are in other States, and they therefore are not subject to the District income tax. They are Henry C. Murphy, assistant director of research and statistics in the Treasury Department, who claims his domicile is Detroit, and Paul M. De Hart of the War Department, who claims his domicile is Harrisburg, Pa.

The two cases were carried to the Supreme Court by the District government, which had lost its contention in the District Board of Tax Appeals and in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, that the men were taxable.

Intent Discussed.

Much of the argument before the high tribunal yesterday, taking more than two hours, revolved around the intent of Congress, and whether a Federal worker here could vote back home and still be subjected to the District income tax. Danger of double or triple taxation was debated.

Glenn Simmon, assistant corpora-tion counsel for the District, claimed the Court of Appeals had erred on at least four separate points. He said it was the real intent of Congress to allow Federal workers here to maintain a voting residence back in their home States and still be domiciled here, and pay an income tax to the District of Columbia.

Representing the Federal workers, Harry R. Turkel claimed that the legislative history of the District income tax bill pointed to the intention of Congress to exempt members of Congress and Federal employes who have been brought here to work for the Government.

Contending the two men were taxable, Mr. Simmon charged the Court of Appeals had erred in applying the so-called "rule of comp the cases, on the theory that individuals are compelled to reside where they do. Federal workers take their jobs on a voluntary basis in the civil branches of the Government, he contended.

Fish Testimony Is Possible as House Lifts Ban

Sumner's Defends Power to Protect Members

Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, had the permission of the House today to testify before the special District grand jury investigating alien activities, but he was away at Army maneuvers in South Carolina, and it was doubtful whether he would appear for 10

Some members of the House Judiciary Committee interpreted the House resolution passed yesterday, authorizing Mr. Fish to testify, as leaving it up to him whether he would honor the grand jury subpoena directing him to do so. Friends of Mr. Fish, however, said he had not tried to evade the summons, but merely had submitted it to the House to determine whether it was a violation of the privilege of members. While the resolution was approved without debate shortly after the House met yesterday, the discussion which was shut off at the time by Speaker Rayburn because of the parliamentary situation flared up later in the day and there was prolonged argument over the matter.

War Building Roads Doom 7-Million Hotel

Site in Arlington Slated for Use for Two Approaches

A proposed $7,000,000 apartment hotel near the new War Department Building and office building occupied by the Navy Department in Arlington County appeared today to be doomed by a Federal road plan which provides for two main traffic arteries passing through the site of the project. A Public Roads Administration official indicated today that the treatment of roads leading into the War Department area has been virtually agreed on by his agency and the War Department. A plan proposed by Arlington County officials which would permit construction of the apartment hotel has been rejected, the P. R. A. official said. Commenting on the P. R. A. decision, County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan declared, "I feel that this a most unfortunate situation, but I still have hopes that some agreement can be reached with the Public Roads Administration which would permit the hotel to be constructed.

"From the very beginning, the project as been plagued with a mysterious opposition. We have every confidence that the road plan submitted by the county is equal to if not superior to that which the Federal Government proposes. It appears there is a concerted effort to block a project which would not only be of immense benefit to our community, but would benefit Washington as well. Would Have 1.100 Units. A corporation headed by F. J. Ward of Washington had planned to erect the structure on a tract at Columbia pike and Arlington Ridge road. It would have contained approximately 1,100 units. An architect's drawing specified 14 stories on the east end which would have been on a slope overlooking Washington. Plans for the hotel were opposed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission because of height restrictions placed on this type of struc.

ture by county authorities. Alternate Plan Offered. County planners and the engialternate plan of road of treatment in which it was suggested that the two traffic arteries be moved farther south so as to make the apartment hotel site available. Although the P. R. A. and War Department have agreed to employ their own program in developing the highways, the P. R. A. official declared an attempt would be made to

Aims of Pontiff And Roosevelt Held Similar

The similarity of peace aims embodied in the Roosevelt-Churchill Eight-Point Program and those of Pope Pius the XII were pointed out in an address by the Rev. Joseph B. Code, former professor of history at Catholic University, at the "Infor-mation Hour" luncheon yesterday at he Woman's National Democratic Declaring that both the President and Pope Pius desired the restoration of world peace by restoring the natural rights to man of life, liberty and the right to property, Dr. Code said, "the strivings of two of the world's great leaders should be given the support of every rightminded man, for witnout the unity of the human race which they seek, death and suffering will continue until the civilization which has been built on centuries of effort will finally collapse."

A law based on moral and ethical principles rather than on the material is essential before peace can be permanent, the speaker declared. "The complicated, delicate modern world cannot afford to be ruled indefinitely by the standards of men but must return to a moral principle based on Almighty God," he con-

The spirit of an organization is more important than the functioning of its machinery, Dr. Code added, declaring that the Pope would not accept as valid any international constitution "without a foundation of elementary ethical principles, clearly stated and accepted by all."

Businesswomen Best Professionals At Spelling Bee

Business triumphed over the professions last night in a spelling bee featured at a carnival and card party of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Washington Club.

Led by Mrs. Sylvia Boylef, the team composed of six "business" members proved their ability to outspell six professionals captained by Anne Lewis Bledsoe, of the Civil Service Commission. Such words as "calliope," "pantomime" and "colander" proved difficult for individual members but the word that brought final defeat to the professional women was a plain oldfashioned "daguerreotype." Each member of the winning team received a Defense stamp as prize, and a dollar's worth of the stamps was awarded Mrs. Boylef.

A paper on the history of marionettes was read by Mrs. James Waldo Fawcett, who assisted by her daughter, Miss Claire Fawcett, later put on a marionette playlet entitled, "The Bridge."

About 25 tables of bridge were taken by members and friends, and refreshments, including cider and cookies, were served throughout the Defense stamps were awarded as bridge and other prizes.

Defense Production Unhalted by Strikes Held Vital to U. S.

Herring, in Forum, Says America Stands Where France Stood

Pearless and immediate steps to safeguard the Nation's defense industries against stoppage of work and interference with the defense program for any cause were urged by Senator Herring, Democrat, of Iowa in the National Radio Forum last night. The forum, arranged by The Star and broadcast over a National Broadcasting Co. network, was heard locally over Station WMAL.

The text of Senator Herring's address follows:

First, my thanks to the Washington Evening Star and the National Broadcasting Co. for the opportunity to make this broadcast tonight. I hope I may justify this courtesy by contributing something that will be helpful in what I believe to be the most crucial moment since America determined to defend itself against aggressors, from wherever they may come

Last Thursday I introduced into the Senate of the United States Senate Joint Resolution 114, desigated as the "National Defense Labor Act of 1941

The purpose of this proposed leg-Islation is to expedite the national defense program by providing a prevent strikes or stoppage of work individual worker in these organiza- wages, hours or working conditions, in such industries and to provide a lawful and orderly procedure for the settlement of disagreements between employers and employes in defense industry, to the end that our production of necessary materials shall proceed uninterruptedly. Events of the past few hours indicate the rapidly increasing necessity for such

No Choice for Selectees. Sleeping on the ground throughout many parts of the United States tonight are hundreds of thousands of fine young Americans, who are undergoing training maneuvers to prepare them to protect this country should it become necessary. These young men had no voice in their selection, no choice as to their service or compensation. They are entitled to the same unselfish service from defense industry as they are giving without complaint. It is a fundamental principle in this land of ours that no man shall be compelled to work against his will, and I believe it to be equally sound and fundamental that no man shall be compelled to pay tribute to any man or organization in order that he may be permitted to work.

The act which I have introduced is intended to apply only to those employed in defense industry and the measure expires by limitation upon the termination of the present emergency, declared by the President on May 27, 1941. I am not, by this act, denying any man the right to stop work, but this measure does make it unlawful for any labor organization or any officer or agent thereof to instigate, promote, further or in any way support a strike or organized stoppage of work by employes or any group thereof against any national defense industry unless: First, a plebiscite of such employes upon the question of whether or not they should strike has been held through secret ballot supervised by the Federal Government at a time not less than 30 days after the National Defense Mediation Board, created by executive order of March 19, 1941, has rendered a report and finding upon such labor dispute. This provides at least a 30-day socalled "cooling-off" period during which the Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor, the National Defense Mediation Board and, if desired, a national defense arbitration tribunal shall have opportunity to determine the rights of both contending parties.

Bars "Mob Picketing." The provisions against strikes and stoppage of work apply equally against lockouts. However, it should be understood that the Federal law already provides that industries owned by employers who do not cooperate in the defense program may be immediately taken over by the Federal Government. Because jurisdictional strikes place an intolerable burden upon the public, employers and employes, such strikes are discouraged. It is regrettable that stoppages of work in our defense pro-

If the minority view in the Congress had prevailed, the United States of America would today be without a land, air or naval force sufficient to our present needs, and we would still be floundering in a sea of doubt and fear as to what this Governments' policy should be with respect to adequate preparedness.

Markets Replete With All Kinds of Good Things for the Holiday Feast

More Small-Sized Turkeys Expected to Be Available This Year Than Last

Largest Specimens Snapped Up for Boys at Camps; New Stuffing Found

By Betsy Caswell,

There'll be plenty of turkeys of all kinds for the holiday feast, we are told, but there will be more of the medium sized birds available than there were last year, as the mammoth specimens have been snapped up for the boys in camp. This will be good news to those housewives who tried so hard to find small turkeys last year, and encountered such scarcity that they had to purchase much larger birds than they needed. For nonturkey individuals there will be plump ducks and geese to be had at reasonable prices-and, of course, plenty of good baking chickens.

Something new in the stuffing line comes in crumb form in cellophane bags, made from bread especially baked on a Connecticut farm from waterground flour. This is deliciously seasoned, and only needs the addition of water to make it ready for use. The same shop that sells it has joined the ranks of those firms that will cook your turkey for you, and deliver it, with stuffing and gravy to your door. They use chestnuts and sausage in the stuffing, too, and their turkeys average about 12 pounds.

If you like to make your own stuffing, there are plenty of chestnuts and oysters available-also nuts of all kinds. Big bundles of thyme and sage are seen in most markets, along with bright red cranberries for sauce Speaking of nuts, you can get the popular macadamias in the shells from Hawaii-they sell cheaper this way than when shelled and packed in

They would be a nice new ! of little lady apples about, together with prickly pears, pomegranates, forelle pears, cumquats and red bananas, to supplement the usual run

To come down out of the clouds, we recommend spinach, brusgood quality and fairly reasonable in price. Lima beans are coming from Cuba-and priced sky-high, but sweet potatoes are unusually inexpensive, so you may indulge in them to your heart's content.

Toastmaster Is Head Man At a Banquet or Dinner; Responsibility Is His

Introductions Must Be Short, Snappy and Very Pleasant; Don't Strain for Laughs

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison When a youngster, or even an inexperienced oldster, suddenly finds himself chosen as toastmaster for a dinner or banquet he is apt to suffer a fine attack of jitters. Carrots are particularly valuable for vitamin A, and cabbage, potatoes and green peppers are among the foods which provide liberal quan-tities of vitamin C. I read that many Americans are suffering from HIDDEN HUNGER (malnutrition) due to faulty diets. O.K.here's one American who's going to get in shape by eating more vitamin and mineral-rich foods. And I'm starting with MILK at every meal."

Inadequate diets . . . not enough mineral and vitamin-rich foods. That's the cause of HIDDEN HUNGER-a form of malnutrition that saps your vitality and health.

To combat HIDDEN HUNGER-and help make America strong-nutritionists advise diets that supply all the essential food elements in adequate amounts. In most of such diets, they recommend pure fresh MILK.

An ideal milk for this job is Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin "D" Milk. It contains all the important food elements of regular milk-as listed below-with 400 extra units per quart of precious Vitamin "D".

It has cream all through the milk-giving every drop its full share of nourishment-and a delightfully new creamy flavor. Don't delay starting your family on this better milk-a pint

One pint of regular milk supplies approximately the following proportions of an adult's daily requirements of these food elements: Calcium, 1/4; Vitamin "A", 1/4; Nicotinic Acid, 1/4; Vitamin "B1", 1/4; Vitamin "B2", 1/4; Protein, 1/4; Iron, 1/4; Calories, 1/4.

Guild Gives 'The Rivals' The Gay, Mad Treatment

Irreverent Production With Mary Boland, Clark and Hampden Comes Off As Startling Bit of Merriment

By JAY CARMODY,

Whether on the advice of its psychiatrist, or just in sheer reaction to its old solemnity, the Theater Guild has decided, by Heaven, it is going to have some fun. Accordingly, in a mood of arch irreverence, it has flicked the feather duster over its copy of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The Rivals," cast it with a pretty madness which reaches its peak in Mary Boland and Bobby Clark, and produced it with that fine careless rapture usually encountered only in & taprooms just before closing. The result is an evening of startling entertainment, the like of which the National Theater has not seen since the Lunts went berserk in "The Taming of the Shrew" a few seasons back. It comes off as a delightful revenge upon those of your old teachers-or your current lived lives of restrained rage Jay Carmody.

Big Sister

It was very mysterious. Yes, sir, it was very mysterious. Mr. Quack thought so, Mrs. Quack thought so. There, out on the Big River in the midst of the Black Shadows was something which looked like the branch of a tree. But instead of moving down the river as the branch of a tree would if it were floating, this was coming straight across the river as if it were swimming. But how could the branch of a tree swim? That was too much for Mr. Quack. It was too much for Mrs.

and not for a second did they take their eyes from that strange thing moving toward them. They were ready to spring into the air and trust to their swift wings the instant they should detect danger. But they did not want to fly unless they had to. Besides, they were curious. They were very curious, indeed. They wanted to find out what that mysterious thing moving through the water toward them was. So Mr. and Mrs. Quack watched that thing that looked like a swimming branch draw nearer and nearer, and the nearer it drew the more they were puzzled and the more curious they felt. If it had been the pond of Paddy the Beaver instead of the Big River, they would have thought it was Paddy swimming with a branch for his winter food pile. But Paddy the Beaver was way back, deep in the Green Forest in his own pond, and they knew it, for they had spent the day at that pond. So this thing became more and more of a mystery. The nearer it got the more nervous and anxious they became, and at the

It was just then that a funny little sound reached them. It was half snort, half cough, as if some one had got some water up his nose. A Boomerang Penalty

For every irregularity the laws of bridge prescribe an adequate penalty, but exacting a penalty from your opponents may turn out to be a boomerang. For example:

Pass When the bidding had ended, East led the queen of clubs. This was a lead out of turn, since it was really up to West to make the opening lead. South had a choice of penalties; he could treat the queen of clubs as a penalty card (meaning that East would have to play it at his first legal opportunity); or he could name the suit he wanted West to lead at the opening trick.

South thought he couldn't gain anything by treating the club queen as a penalty card, so decided to call for a lead from West. He was pretty sure dummy had the ace of trump, so thought it best to set up the diamonds at once. Then he could draw trumps and run the diamonds so as to discard his losers in clubs. Thinking a diamond lead up to his ace-jack would help set up the suit, South asked West to lead a diamond.

West blithely replied that he had 2. To guarantee. harness. no diamonds; and now the penalty 3. Negative. was satisfied. West, knowing his partner had the queen of clubs, led a low club. East was able to win with the 10 of clubs and return a diamond. West ruffed and led another low club, East winning with the queen. And East returned another diamond, West ruffing for the setting trick.

If South had called for a spade or a heart lead, he would have made all 13 tricks. And if there had been no penalty at all, West would probably have led the king of clubs and would have managed to get only one diamond ruff, if any.

Native Music Of Peru Is Heard

Mme. Chinareff. Pianist, Gives Interesting Program

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The exhibit of pre-Columbian art that opened yesterday at the Pan-American Union included a recital of native Peruvian music by Mme. Tatiana Chinareff, pianist. The Hall of the Americas held an interested audience that had viewed the water colors by Dr. Constantino Malinovsky, who explained the character of the ancient music of Peru. Speaking of the music of the pre-Columbian period, Dr. Malinovsky explained that it was the outgrowth of the quiet, contemplative life of the country and could be considered philosophical in character in contrast to the Inca music, which was more of a decorative art. The ancient music of Peru has been preserved by generations of natives who were forced to take refuge in the interior of the country at the advent of the conquistadors. The leading composers of Peru of today sought out the hidden Indian tribes in order to rescue and put into usable form the precious melodies. The program which Mme. Chinareff, who is herself an ardent student and interpreter of the original music, was made up of compositions on the ancient themes by modern Peruvian composers.

Three works by Theodoro Valcarcel, "Dances of the Llama Driv-"The Women Weavers" and "Ritual Dance," were the first numbers played. Explanations of the music were given by Paul Murphy. "Dances of the Llama Drivers" pictures the long mountain climb of a llama caravan, its slow progress and the meditative mood of the Indian drivers interrupted by the roar of a cataract, the wind in the canyon and the sound of rushing water in the brooks. A highly atmospheric color is reached in "The Women Weavers," introduced by the sound of the loom and shuttle and the voice of a woman singing reminiscently, and a contrast offered in the "Ritual Dance," which begins with a sonorous prayer and ends with a stately religious dance. Two other Peruvian composers were represented. Andro Sas by his

'Air and Dance" and Carlos Valderrama by "Unshed Tear." The gay character of the first was offset by the mourning quality of the second, wherein a young Indian girl tells of her sufferings. While rhythm is accentuated in all of these works. they are strongly individualistic, excellently written and highly descriptive.

In conclusion Mme. Chinareff, & brilliant exponent of the piano and endowed with a rich temperament. played her own impressions of Peruvian music in a work technically exacting and colorfully varied in mood. The artist, charmingly gowned in sheer black, was given a cordial reception and presented with flowers.
