Pickets Surround Coast Steel Plant

PITTSBURG, Calif. (A).-Mass picket lines, supporting wage demands of 218 foundry workers, today surrounded the Columbia Steel Co.'s Pittsburg plant, which has $5,000,000 in defense contracts. The C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, claiming 70 per cent of the 3,200 employes, voted, 2 to 1, to strike in support of the men in the finishing department. The finishers, seeking a 15 to 25 cents an hour raise, went on a sit-down strike Wednesday.

French and German Leaders Likely to Meet

NEW YORK (A).-Reliable advices reaching the Associated Press from Europe tonight said French and German leaders, possibly even Adolf Hitler and Marshal Petain, would meet in the near future. The informants said they believed that the outcome would be some new form of collaboration. Some persons even predicted France might make out-and-out capitulation and become a full-fledged member of the Axis.

Roosevelt Delays Action; Army Held 'On Alert' in South

(Earlier Stories on Page A-1.) Acting on threats of additional violence, Sheriff Charles T. Frock of Fayette County, Pa., late today telegraphed Gov. James at Harrisburg, requesting the aid of the Pennsylvania motor police in keeping order in the county where 10 men were shot early

The sheriff earlier had expressed fear that the situation-after two armed clashes between non-strikers and strikers at captive coal minesmight get "out of hand."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt indicated at his press conference he would take no further action in the mine strike until he could receive from John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, the reply of his Policy Committee to the Chief Executive's request to call off the strike and agree to arbitration. The President has stipulated that both the steel company owners of the mines and the union must agree in advance to accept whatever decision the arbitrators may reach.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement came as was learned that troops in four Southern Army camps were on the alert for possible immediate action in the coal fields, but officers would not comment on any orders they may have received from Washing-

Further Disorders Feared After Hour's Fight in Pennsylvania

By the Associated Press PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Guns blazed again today in the coal fields of Fayette County, wounding at least 10 men in the most serious flare-up of the 5-day-old United Mine Workers' strike for a union shop in the steel company-owned captive mines. Hundreds of shots were fired as the battle between pickets and nonstrikers raged for more than an hour along a valley road leading to the mine, 18 miles north of Uniontown, where three pickets were wounded in gunplay yesterday.

Three wounded men, who identified themselves as pickets, were treated at the Uniontown Hospital and seven at Brownsville. John Stepanik, 26, of Coal Center, one of those taken to the Uniontown Hospital, claimed the pickets were waylaid by non-union men. The U. M. Connally Assails 'Lewis Front' as Hearings on Plan Open

By J. A. O'LEARY.

Action by Congress to strengthen the President's existing power to take over defense plants tied up by labor disputes was indorsed today by both the War and Navy Departments.

Testifying at the opening of Senate subcommittee hearings on the Connally bill for that purpose, Undersecretary of War Patterson gave the Army's approval to the measure.

Forrestal, scheduled to testify early next week, told newspapermen the Navy also favors the bill. "We do not regard it as aimed at either capital or labor," said the naval official. "We regard it only as an exercise of the Government's power to insure production of vital defense articles."

In his testimony Mr. Patterson indorsed as "fair" the Connally bill giving legislative sanction to the President's power to take over plants, freezing all existing open or Steel Company Closes plants, freezing all existing open or closed shop agreements with workers and creating a three-man board to adjust wages.

> Chairman Connally of the subcommittee blamed labor trouble that has impeded defense preparation on "a few selfish labor leaders." The great majority of workers, he declared, are not in sympathy with the course of such leaders.

In opening the hearing, Senator Connally said there seems to be "a Lewis front" in this war as well as Russian, Italian and Japanese CRIUS just galloped to win his last with speed in reserve and right off that cracker-jack showing he appears to deserve the call as the best bet of the afternoon. CONNIE PLAUT has been with the leaders in recent tests and she rates consideration. MAE-ZACA raced well at New York.

FOURTH RACE-BLUE NOSE, ISLE DE PINE, IMPREG-

NABLE. BLUE NOSE has good recent form to her credit and her works have been all that could be asked. She may go to the front with the break and make every pole a winning one. ISLE DE PINE won her last at Pimlico and she is as good as the effort. IMPREG-NABLE might be hard to dispose

FIFTH RACE-WILD CHANCE, A ONE, CALCUTTA. WILD CHANCE was whipped two lengths in his only test and the improvement looked for in a first-time starter may have him home ahead of these non-winners. A ONE has clever Chicago form to his credit and he could be in the thick of the scramble CALCUTTA has worked well enough for a chance

SIXTH RACE-RODIN, ROSE-TOWN, RINGIE.

RODIN has copped his last two tries with something left at the end and he has as good a chance as anything else in this wide open feature race. ROSETOWN won her last in fair running time and she should be able to threaten here. RINGIE is near peak form and he rates a royal chance.

SEVENTH RACE-GERNEAUX. VALINA LEO, CHARMING

HEROD. GERNEAUX has won three straight races and his record entitles him to the call in this affair. A good ride could go a long . way in having him the winner. VALINA LEO disappointed in his last, but his previous form was very good. CHARMING HEROD won at Pimlico and at Jamaica.

EIGHTH RACE-NO SIR, STAR OF PADULA, DARBY DU.

NO SIR has been working very well over the Bowie footing and he may be the one to earn the honors in the nightcap. STAR OF PADULA copped his first at this strip and he could turn up 3 a repeater winner. DARBY DU has right good New York form to recommend him with this op-

President Approves Roads Bill, but Hits Its 'Pork' Sections

Accepts View Priorities Might Be Used to Block Non-Defense Jobs

By JOHN C. HENRY.

President Roosevelt today approved a $487,000,000 public highways authorization measure, but qualified his approval with a sharp criticism of "pork barrel" sections attached to the measure.

Speeded through Congress to clear the way for construction of essential defense highways and certain air- Stout-Quinn. craft flight strips, the measure also carried authorizations for $50,000,- neys. 000 in highway and bridge projects & Young; Auth. to be apportioned all over the country, for off-street parking facilities. for repair reimbursements to States and for use of Federal funds in building secondary or feeder roads. Announcing his reluctant approval of the omnibus bill, the President dispatched his criticism in identical letters to Senator McKellar of Tennessee and Representative Cartwright of Oklahoma, Democratic sponsors of the legislation in Con-

Savings Could Have Been Made. At a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt declared that passage of the authorization bill was a clear example of a case where emergency savings could have been made but were not. Provisions of the legislation are mandatory in their allocating requirements, he said, which prevents diversion of the funds from non-defense to defense projects

Reminded by a reporter that Government control over essential materials might provide a means for blocking the non-defense jobs, the President acknowledged that this is a worthwhile thought and advised an aide to take due note of it. The Chief Executive, in his letter to the congressional leaders, expressed a hope that the Congress might still eliminate from the legislation authorizations which do not represent immediate defense re quirements.

Some Roads Needed, Some Not. After noting that both the Secretary of War and Secretary of Navy had indorsed the urgent defense need for construction of access roads to military and naval reservations and defense industry sites, and for the construction of flight strips, the President added:

"As to the other authorizations H. Williams. in the bill, I am advised by the Secretaries of War and Navy that Thomas and Clayton Pina. they consider them of only secondary importance. I concur in the liams, George E. Thomas and Clay-Specifying the items to which he objected, Mr. Roosevelt wrote: Thomas and Clayton Pina. "The authorization of $50,000,-000 for the so-called strategic network of highways and bridges does not represent . . . an immediate defense need. Moreover, one-half of the amount authorized would be apportioned among all the States accordance with the distribution formula of the Federal Highway Act; a formula that disregards what United States vs. George Banter should be the sole objective of this and Willie Ritter. legislation, that of providing highway construction in those areas, and ardson. in those areas only, where there is immediate need of such construction Jordan. in the interest of our national de-

U. S. Must Provide 75 Per Cent.

"Not only does this authorization provide for the expenditure of $25,000,000 regardless of immediate defense needs, but it requires the Federal Government to contribute 75 per cent and the States 25 per cent of the cost of such highways and bridges, as against the existing Highway Act provisions for an well equal sharing of the cost of such construction.

"The authorization also permits field the expenditure on such highways and bridges-with the Federal Government paying 75 per cent of the cost-of any funds heretofore or hereafter made available for the Federal highway system, * * * * the amount of such funds at the present time being. I am advised, approxi-

"The remaining authorizations for off-street parking facilities, reimbursement to States for repairs to roads under certain operating conditions, and surveys and plans fail to find, I think, satisfactory justification for enactment upon any ground that they are immediately required in the interest of national

Although the legislation authorizes new appropriations of only $220,-000,000, the section permitting expenditures from an existing fund of $267,000,000 brings the gross total for the bill to $487,000,000

Wickard Says U. S. Can Avoid Post-War Depression

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Nov. 21. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard declared last night that in the postwar period the United States "need never again go through a period of economic depression.

"We can plan our national affairs so our workers can be as busily engaged in producing peacetime goods as for defense," he said in a radio

"If we succed in doing this, the day of peace will be a day of Thanksgiving for all nations, because they will realize that we, the victors, are going to insist on a peace founded on freedom, justice and abundance for citizens of every na-

Knox and Aides See 35,000-Ton Indiana Go Down Ways

No One Can Say When Foes Will Drag U. S. Into War, He Says

By CLAUDE A. MAHONEY, NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Nov. 21. No one can say when the actions of our "avowed enemies" may drag the United States into complete belligerency, Secretary of the Navy Knox told a crowd assembled here today for the launching of the new battleship, the 35,000-ton U.S. S. Indiana. The Indiana, completed six months ahead of schedule, cost $70,000,000.

Secretary Knox added. "And we have proclaimed our resolve that our is 34 feet. side shall win this struggle which shakes the world." If complete war comes, he continued, the new battleship will be a "tower of strength to our battle

Other notables present included Gov. Price of Virginia, Rear Admiral Herbert S. Howard, head of the design division of the Bureau of Ships; Capt. John L. McCrea of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations: Gov. Schricker, and a host of Indiana officials. A special train brought proud Hoosiers from their inland homes to celebrate the launching of the third naval vessels to bear the name of their State.

Secretary Knox reviewed the history of the ships to bear the name of Indiana, and complimented the Newport News, Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. on getting the new battleship into the water ahead of sched-

Pointing out that even the Germans admit the occurrence of two small descents (invasions from sea) slong the Axis coastline, Hoffman

"These descents were symbolic in character, but they showed the Faseists that the British fleet dominates the sea, and large descents will follow the small ones at the opportune moment. In reality the whole European coast, from the remotest north to the south, is quite accessible for landings not only from the air but by sea. French Delay Reply To Hull Declaration On Weygand Removal

Await Confirmation of U. S. Statement Blaming German Intervention

By the Associated Press.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Nov. 21.-The French government today awaited confirmation of Secretary of State Hull's declaration blaming German intervention for the removal of Gen. Maxime Weygand as pro-Consul in North Africa before making an official French reply.

The United States State Department had announced that Gen. Weygand was removed "at the express demand of Hitler." and said that, as a result, all plans for economic assistance by the United States to French North Africa had

Germans Seen Pressing To Get French Bases

LONDON, Nov. 21 (A).-A Free French spokesman said today he viewed the retirement of Gen. Maxime Weygand as Vichy's proconsul and commander-in-chief in French North Africa as evidence of "renewed German pressure" for use of Bizerte, Tunis and French territorial waters for troop movements in the North African campaign.

He added that the designation of Lt. Gen. Alfonse Juin as commander in chief of French North Africa "seemed to indicate German pressure toward French Morocco" where bases would be a help in the battle of the Atlantic. "We are not surprised at Wey-

U. S. Hints at Break With Vichy Over Weygand Removal

Aid to African Colonies Halted; Ouster Ordered By Hitler, Hull Says

By LLOYD A. LEHRBAS,

Associated Press Staff Writer. The United States suspended economic assistance to France's North African colonies yesterday, and broadly hinted that diplomatic relations with the Vichy government might be severed because of increasing Nazi domination of French affairs.

President Roosevelt declined however, to lend support to reports that diplomatic exchanges might be broken off.

Questioned at his press conference, the President would reply only that he had not heard of such a

The Chief Executive was even more uncommunicative on the subject of Japanese-American conversations. Asked if he felt optimistic, Mr. Roosevelt said that was too much like asking a man if he had stopped beating his wife.

Silent on Program. Asked then if he would say anything about progress of the conversations, he replied in the negative. In announcing yesterday that "American policy toward France is being reviewed," Secretary of State Hull made it clear that the attitude of the United States would be determined by France's future action toward Hitler's schemes "to take over by force or threat of force the sovereignty and control of the French Gen. Wavell Sees

His statement stemmed from the vichy government's action in removing Gen. Maxime Weygand as Near East as Great France's pro-consul in North Africa. This step, Secretary Hull said, was taken at "the express demand of 1942 Battlefield Hitler" and it was regarded here as conclusive evidence of "collaboration" between France and her Nazi conqueror to the detriment of American interests.

Hull Sees Japanese Envoys.

Secretary Hull yesterday conferred also with Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese Ambassador, and Saburo Kurusu, special peace envoy. In view of Secretary Hull's frequent reiteration that the situation in the Pacific was not an isolated diplomatic sector, but must be considered as closely tled up with Nazi schemes of world-wide conquest, the use of the phrase "international situation" was considered significant as indicating the wide scope of the conversations.

Churchill Indicates Stake.

The stake for which the British were undertaking their greatest offensive of the war, a drive outstripping even the campaign which drove the Italians halfway back to Tripoli last winter, was indicated by Mr. Churchill's own words. He declared that months of elabo-

He compared their battle to the decisive battles of Blenheim, where an English-Austrian army defeated the French and Bavarians in 1704, and Waterloo, where Napoleon's army met defeat in 1815.

His message was addressed to Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, the British commander in chief; Lt. Gen. Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham, the field commander; his brother, Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, the naval commander, Air Vice Marshal Arthur Coningham, and all the British forces.

Task Now to Organize Iraq and Iran Supply Lines, He Declares

The writer of this dispatch is prominent Indian journalist, London editor of the United Press of India. He was formerly secretary to Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader.

By T. A. RAMAN,

NEW DELHI, Nov. 21. - The Caucasus, Iran, Iraq and Syria may well prove to be the great battlefield of 1942," said Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander of British forces in India, in an interview here yes-

Conferring at Baghdad. Gen. Wavell pointed out that a Russian mission is conferring with the British command at Baghdad shile a British mission is conferring with the Rusisan command at Tiflis He said these talks provide the necessary machinery for co-ordination between the two commands.

British forces in India "work in constant contact with the Middle East command." he emphasized. "The main task now." Sir Archibald continued, "is the organization of supply lines through Iraq and Iran. The communique said British This obviously is work of the greatis now going on full speed. I am through Iran and so are American Russian troops some 30 years ago. "I always had the greatest admiration for the Russians as fighting men." he said. "They are excellent soldiers. Their performance today against an enemy considerably superior in resources is truly remarkable. I have no doubt that they will continue fighting to the end. There need be no fear of collapse of Russian resistance even if Moscow and Leningrad should fall. After all. Napoleon took Moscow and lost the campaign.

Deplores Crimean News. Gen. Wavell said news from the Crimea "does not sound good."

"The Germans seem to have got a great part of the peninsula," he said. But in this region that is not necessarily decisive. Even occupation of the entire Crimea would not give the Germans a clear run into the Caucasus or bring them much nearer to conquest of that area. To call Kerch 'the gateway to the Caucasus' is an exaggeration. It is one way but a very narrow and difficult one. The Russian Black Sea fleet would be in a rather more difficult position if the Crimea fell, but there are bases from which it could operate. Neither would conquest of the Crimea have any adverse effect on supplies to Russia.

Sir Archibald said his impressions of his recent Far Eastern tour were "excellent" and "entirely satis-

Holiday Broadcast Stresses Religion for Purposes of Freedom

Dr. A. J. McCartney And Rabbi Gerstenfeld Speak on Program

Religion for the purposes of human freedom was the theme of a Thanksgiving program arranged by the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital and broadcast from Stations WMAL and WRC of the National Broadcasting Co. network yesterday at noon.

In the opening address, the Rev. Dr. Albert McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, declared: "We celebrate Thanksgiving this year in the inspiring tradition of the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights from which we take our commission to sound again the note of freedom for religion and religion for free-

STUDENTS TO BROADCAST-The map above, prepared by the National Geographic Society, is for use in connection with the third of the Latin American broadcasts by students in Washington's junior high schools which have been arranged by The Evening Star in co-operation with the National Broadcasting Co. and officials of the school system. The program involving Nicaragua will be given Monday at 2 p.m. over Station WMAL by pupils of the Langley Junior High School. The hour of the broadcast falls at an open period in all junior high schedules and the children will listen in their classrooms. Following the program, teachers in the various schools will pursue the subject further, aided by a prospectus prepared by school officials. Grange Urges Policy To Assure Existence Of Democracy

'Grass Roots' Outline Demands Maintenance Of Pacific Status Quo

By the Associated Press.
WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 21.-The National Grange today adopted what it called a "grass-roots" foreign policy urging the administration to conduct its foreign relations so "that this Nation and democracy shall continue to exist in the world." The points of that policy, as approved by delegates from 37 States attending the closing session of the farm organization's annual convention, included:

Take "all necessary means" to supply goods and munitions to nations opposing aggression. Maintain defense zones "far enough beyond the territorial limits" of the Western Hemsphere to "give reasonable security against aerial and sea attack."

Maintain Pacific Status. Maintain the status quo in the Pacific because of its "necessity for the country's economic security." Maintain the Monroe Doctrine and the "good neighbor policy." The latter, however, should "not be maintained at the expense of American agriculture."

The Grange insisted that during the present international crisis the administration advise Congress and the people on the general aims of its foreign policy and that the principles of free speech, free press and free assembly be maintained, except that military secrets be not

The Grange also asked that all boards charged with the responsibility of mobilizing defense efforts provide for "actual and effective" representation for agriculture. It asked further that agriculture be given representation at the peace

Maneuver Area Expansion Would Oust Many Farmers

Several hundred families in Caroline and Essex Counties, Va., may be forced to move from their homes and farms within a few months, Army officials said today, if plans are carried out for extension of the A. P. Hill military reservation.

Funds to buy an additional 38,728 acres of land for the maneuver area within those counties are included in the $7,900,000 000 supplemental estimate sent to Congress Monday. It was said the sum of $1,206,000 has been earmarked tentatively for the purchase of the Virginia land.

Eventually it is expected to expand the reservation to about 110,000 acres. To date, about 45,000 acres have been taken over and the additional land now sought will bring the total to about 83,000 acres.

10,000 From C. C. C. Aid In Military Construction

A work force of 10,000 young men from C. C. C. companies are assisting the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in the construction of training fields and other essential mili-tary projects at 46 reservations, Director James J. McEntee announced

He has advised the Federal Security Agency that 28 more C. C. C. companies had been assigned to such work but had not as yet been transferred to the military posts. The 10,000 now at work come from 53

Special Dispatch to The Star. MANASSAS, Va., Nov. 21.-The Prince William County Selective Service Board has notified 10 men to report to local physicians for physical examinations. The registrants to be examined today by Dr. Stewart McBryde are Warren Kenneth Rector, Cleveland Herman Fisher, William Meridith Berryman, Manassas, and Robert Starkweather Reid, Hoadley. Monday, Dr. Mc-Bryde will examine William Preston George, Cherry Hill, and Frederick Jones, Manassas.

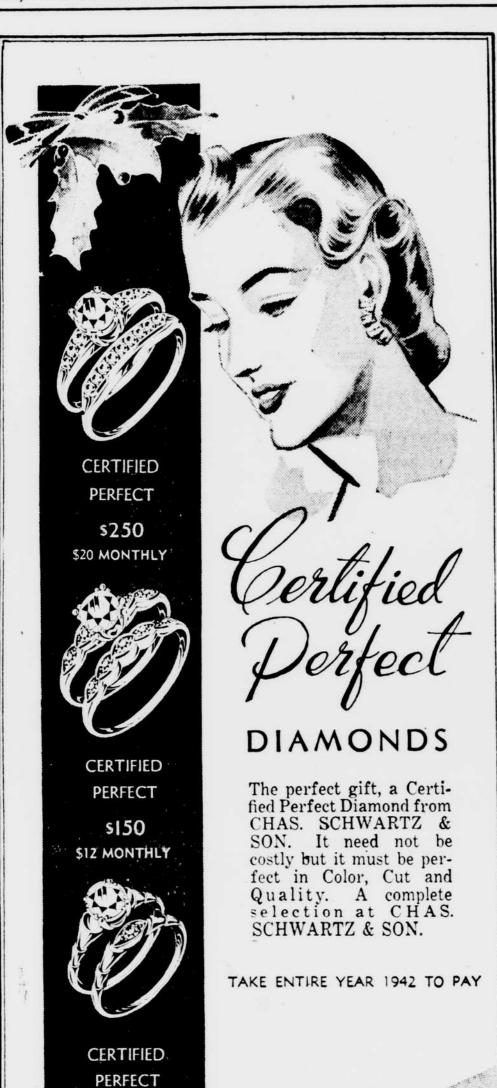

Tomorrow Dr. J. McIver Jackson has made appointments for Henry Clay Gossom, Haymarket; Clifton Charles Young, Gainesville; Thomas Henry Selecman, Occoquan, and Alfred Bolognese, Quantico.

Since 1900 American manufacturers have produced goods with a value, at factory, of over $15,000,-000,000,000, says the Census Bureau. It would take 50,000 men, working 300 days a year for 500 years, to duplicate the 40-year effort in United States factories.

Remember the time your pocket was brimming over with tees when you were out on the golf course. And you didn't give a hoot . . . yes, actually snubbed the ones that were lying just off the driving green left by the preceding foursome. Your pocket was full then.

But how about the time you were ready to drive off for the 14th hole? And you suddenly realized there wasn't a single tee in your pocket. And how you frantically searched for one in the nearby grass. Why, you even breathed a sigh of relief when you found a tee with the head half chipped off. And tried to balance your ball so it wouldn't roll off before you could straighten up and clout it down the fairway, Your pocket was empty then.

We're talking about golf tees, but could just as easily be talking about famous Sheldon Suits and Overcoats. Emergency Public Works

After getting off to a bad start, the bill to authorize the District of Columbia to receive up to $6,000,000 emergency public works is making favorable progress at the Capitol. Evidencing a realistic appreciation of the urgent need for Federal funds defense agencies for additional municipal services, the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee of the House District Committee has reported its approval of legislation to make the District eligible to share with the States in loans and grants from the $150,000,- 000 Lanham fund. When this bill first came up for hearings, representatives of the Federal Works Agency startled the subcommittee and the Commissioners by announcing that all of the $150,000,000 already had been allocated outside the District and that there was serious question as to the right of Washington to obtain any of the money, even if some were available. Later the F. W. A. modified its position, stating that some of the local projects were in the eligible category and that some $3,000,000 of surplus from previous allocations might be made available to finance them.

The Commissioners properly have continued to press for special legislation which would eliminate all elements of uncertainty as to Washington's status under the Lanham Act. The bill before the House District Committee not only would accord the District the right to accept loans and grants from the fund, but specifically would authorize the loan administrator to allot as much as $6,000,000 for such emergency projects as the installation of costly new filters and pumps at the Dalecarlia Reservoir, the laying of new water mains to military reservations, the provision of additional school facilities, the extension of sewers and the improvement of health services. There is pending a bill to appropriate another $150,000,000 for defense public works, and if sufficient money cannot be found in the original Lanham Act fund to take care of local needs, Congress should see to It that an adequate amount of the second appropriation is earmarked for the District. The bill approved by Chairman Hunter's subcommittee is designed to achieve that end, and Congress, in fairness to the National Capital, should pass it without delay.

Airplane Production

The disclosure Wednesday in an article in The Star that the combined British and American output of military aircraft in November will equal, if not exceed, that of Germany is heartening news, and will be welcomed as evidence that the democracies are overtaking the time lag that so far has operated to give the Nazis numerical superiority in the air. In 1934, five years before the start of the war, Germany began to equip its industry for mass production of military planes. To match Nazi air power, Great Britain and the United States, starting virtually | indorse. from scratch, thus were faced with the problem of increasing many times over the capacity of their existing industries, then ungeared for quantity output.

On the basis of the best information available, it is estimated that the Nazis can turn out 4,000 planes cipal argument advanced by labor a month. Since the German aviation industry is now retooling for new models, it is at present employing but half its capacity. Present output is placed at 2,300 planes a month. American production alone is expected to surpass this total next month, and by January the United States industry will be turning out airplanes at the rate of 25,000 annually, thus achieving the halfway mark in the President's program of 50,000 military airplanes a year.

Taken in conjunction with the recent statement of Prime Minister Churchill that Britain today has an air force equal in size to that of Germany, these figures are highly encouraging. They indicate that the aviation industry has eliminated two major bottlenecks, those of propellers and aircraft engines, and overcome other handicaps which it faced at the beginning of the defense program. The achievement is a sure uninterrupted production of notable one, and the industry merits | coal. high praise for its record of expand-from the skies requires a three-toone superiority. Despite the heavy losses suffered in the Russian campaign, Germany still has a powerful air fleet, and if capacity production is resumed in 1942 the Nazis will have at their disposal next year 48,000 new airplanes.

To give the United States and Great Britain a three-to-one lead over the Nazis-assuming the German industry in 1942 operates at capacity-will require 144,000 planes. reached its peak of 1,900 planes a forthcoming. month, or approximately 22,800 a year. On the basis of these figures. the United States must furnish more than 121,000 planes a year if the Nazi Luftwaffe is to be decisively defeated. A further expansion of the production program may thus be necessary over and beyond the goal originally set by the President.

'Crisis of Christianity'

One of the most notably important documents to come from any religious group in many years is the recent pronouncement of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in which the mind of the annual meeting of the Catholic bishops of the United States of Lanham Act appropriations for is expressed. The text of the declaration begins with a frank admission that "Christianity faces today its most serious crisis since the church came out of the catacombs." Equally to meet extraordinary demands of direct is acknowledgment of the source of the prevailing danger: "Two subversive forces, both in control of powerful governments, both bent on world dominance."

The board then castigates Naziism and Communism. "However plausible their constitutions and their propaganda," it says, "the alarming reality is that neither system understands or permits freedom in its true Christian sense. Both systems usurp arbitrary power over the lives and destinies of which belongs to God alone." Pope Piux XI, it is recalled, prophesied that Naziism "from the beginning had no other aim than a war of extermination." The same farvisioned pontiff joined with his precursors, Pope Pius IX and Pope Leo XIII, in condemning "the errors, the tactics, the satanic designs of Communism."

As to the future, the board explains: "We unite with our Holy Father in praying for the attainment of a peace that will be accepted by all right-thinking governments and individuals as permeated by justice and charity. We earnestly ask our tempest may soon be spent and that a just peace and orderly prosperity may be restored to a distracted world." Pope Pius XII is cited as calling for "five indispensable prerequisites for the right kind of a new order"-"the triumph over hate, over mistrust, over the spirit of ruthless selfishness, over the conflict in world economy, over the false principle that might makes right."

Meanwhile, the board announces: We support wholeheartedly the adequate defense of our country" and quotes Pope Leo XIII to the effect that civil authority has control over "human things" and "whatever is to be under the civil and political order is rightly subject to the civil authority." Specifically, it is set forth: "We urge and command respect and reverence for the authority of our civil officials which has its source in

In reference to economic dissensions, the board, while approving "unions for the workers," expresses the hope that "the leaders will be well advised for the welfare of the workers of the nation; that they will keep before them the common good of the country and will refrain from doing anything that is harmful to the general welfare, and that they will come forth from the emergency of national defense united in closer cooperation with all right-minded employers and deserving the commendation of the general public." Such sentiments represent a sane, a profound, a constructive philosophy which Americans of every faith can

Spreading Strike

The spread of the captive coal strike to the commercial fields, accompanied by increasingly serious outbreaks of violence, casts grave doubt over the validity of the prinspokesmen in behalf of the closed or union shop. These spokesmen say that the union shop, under which all employes covered by a contract are compelled to become union members. is essential to the maintenance of discipline by union leaders. Unless the union has control over all employes, it is contended, it is difficult if not impossible to compel respect for the contractual obligations assumed by the employes under the terms of their agreement with the employer. Thus, the so-called Appalachian agreement covering the miners in the commercial fields provides for a union shop and contains a clause to the effect that there shall be no strikes during the life of the contract. The employers granted the union shop in exchange for the nostrike clause, hoping thereby to in-

But this hope has not been realized. On the contrary, it is being mines, which have taken an esti-

Workers has evidenced the slightest desire to stop these walkouts, and, in fact, there is considerable reason to believe that they are being tacitly encouraged.

In these circumstances, the nostrike clause of the Appalachian agreement becomes an empty pledge and the principal argument advanced for the union shop loses all meaning. The record of bad faith which now is being made in the coal fields will not be forgotten when new Britain is believed already to have demands for the union shop are

Libyan Big Push

The attack launched at dawn on Tuesday by the British Imperial Army on the German and Italian forces along the frontier of Egypt and Libya is clearly a major military operation which London terms "a big-scale offensive." Sweeping westward along a 130-mile front extending all the way from the seacoast to the inland oasis of Giarabub. this British offensive seems to be much more formidable than the daring attack launched by General Wavell more than a year ago, and incomparably greater than the illfated assault last spring.

During the past few months the British armies in Egypt and the Near East have been reinforced to an estimated total of 750,000, well equipped by a constant stream of British and American materiel. On the other hand, the Axis forces in Libya have been handicapped by British naval attacks on their seaborne lines of communication with Italy, which have taken a heavy toll in ships, men and supplies. The fact that the British are strong enough to assail not merely the Axis coastal sector but also the inland highroads threatens the Axis defenders with encirclement.

Nevertheless, the strength of the Axis defense should not be underestimated. Its backbone consists of men; their dictators assume a power picked German troops commanded by General Erwin Rommel, one of the Reich's ace tank commanders, and he has had many months to prepare for just such an emergency. His rough handling of the British attempt last spring shows that he may be expected to put up a skillful and desperate resistance.

It is interesting to speculate how much this British offensive is motivated by political as well as by strategic considerations. For months, Soviet Russia has been pleading for a British opening up of a "second front." and Russian demands have been echoed by an increasingly disgruntled British public opinion. The priests and people to continue their British people will certainly be gratprayers that the violence of the war | ified by large-scale action, and if to commit enough of its Near Eastern armies to a North African campaign, the chances are that the Axis can be driven from Eastern Libya, much as Wavell did last autumn.

However, the long-range query arises whether even such a victory would radically change the general war situation, unless it could be followed up by an advance across the desert belt to Tripoli and the complete expulsion of the Axis from North Africa. The British high command will have to keep large forces on the line from Syria to Iran, to guard against both a contingent German attack on the Caucasus and a possible defection of Turkey to the Axis side. This means that the strength of the North African army is limited.

Furthermore, there is every indication that General Weygand's dismissal from his pro-consulship heralds an open alignment of the Vichy regime with the Axis, and a consequent passing of French North Africa under Axis control. That would, of course, render the expulsion of the Axis from North Africa a vastly more difficult undertaking and one which would tax British Near Eastern power to the full.

However, those remoter aspects need not be immediately considered unless and until the present British offensive has succeeded in smashing the Axis fortified lines in Eastern Libya and possibly has encircled a large portion of the defending forces there. The next few days may tell that story, and it then will be revealed what the British high command has in mind. The Libyan situation should always be considered as merely part of a much larger strategic whole.

Fletcher L. Bentley, erstwhile senior at Syracuse University, is one no longer. And are the university authorities' faces red! For three years his chum, Robert O. Bentley, filled out all necessary registration and class cards for Fletcher, who never paid any tuition or even attended a class.

Fletcher, it is true, did keep out of trouble. He was never called up before the dean for swiping a barber pole or putting chewing gum on the clapper of the university chapel bell, and he never flunked an examination. Bulgarian Envoy Replies to Critic

Minister Quotes Churchill And Grey Against Yugoslav Contention

To the Editor of The Star:

In your issue of October 15, there appeared an article by the Military Attache of the Yugoslav Legation here, in which it was stated that the comitadjis tried to "change" the Serbians into Bulgarians. In my letter to The Star, published on October 24, I refuted that incorrect assertion with all its implications by quoting impartial and competent authorities on the subject. The Yugoslav Minister in Washington in his letter to The Star of October 28 dealt with anything but the point under discussion, namely, the ethnic character of the population in Macedonia.

One is reminded by such a reply of a charming work by the philosopher, Arthur Schopenhauer, "The Art of Controversy," where ironical advice is given to disputants who have been worsted in a discussion. I quote part of stratagem No. 29 from the English translation by T. Bailey Saunders: "If you find that you are being worsted you can make a diversion, that is, you can suddenly begin to talk of something else, as though it had a bearing on the matter in dispute and afforded an argument against your opponent."

I will ignore as irrelevant the personal references. But unfortunately even the statements contained in this diversion need themselves rectification.

1. The events of April last are too close for an impartial judgment. History will pass its verdict. Nevertheless, I will recall that the treaty of 1937 was denounced and diplomatic relations between the two countries were severed, chiefly as a result of the established participation of members of the Yugoslav Legation in Sofia in activities aiming at the overthrow of the existing order in Bulgaria. On the other hand the war in Yugoslavia was over and its army had formally surrendered on April 18, before the Bulgarian authorities took over the administration and protection of Macedonia, inhabited by an overwhelming Bulgarian population.

2. Neither in 1913 nor in 1915 are there any acts which could warrant the sweeping and slanderous statement that the Bulgarian government chose to stab its neighbor in the back.

It is true unfortunately that in 1913 Bulgaria started the conflict. But the report of the International Commission set up by the Carnegie Endowment to inquire into the causes and conduct of the Balkan wars states that "while recognizing that Servia's violations (of the treaty of alliance between Bulgaria and Servia of March 13, 1912) made conflict inevitable, the responsibility of formal breach must lie with the Bulgarians." And there could not be any question of stabbing in the back, because the same report reveals that "there could be no surprise since the Servians and Greeks had regarded war as inevitable from the beginning of time. They were in fact in a much better state of preparations, from a military point of view, than the Bulgarians. The latter in beginning the war were without being aware of it playing the Servian's game as Mr. de Pennenrun well observes."

As to 1915, no other than the present Prime Minister of Great Britain. Winston Churchill, was amongst those who were urging that the great wrong done to Bulgaria by the treaty of Bucharest of 1913 should be rectified. In a secret memorandum of July 16, 1915, to the British cabinet, he insists upon securing the assistance of Bulgaria which could be done only by territorial concessions and affirms that: "Servia should cede the uncontested zone in Macedonia to the Bulgarians, to whom it belonged by race, by history, by treaty and until it was taken from them in the second Balkan war-by conquest . . Right and reason, the claims of justice and the most imperious calls of necessity alike, counseled the Servians to surrender at least the uncontested zone . There is nothing in Bulgaria's claims as now put forward which is not reasonable

This memorandum was made public after the war and is summarized in Mr. Churchill's book, "The World Crisis." How did Servia react? I will let Sir Edward Grey, afterward Lord Grev of Falloden, who at that time was Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speak. Sir Edward Grey in his book, "Twenty-five Years," observes: "Servia was quite intractable, my efforts were futile, and the only result of giving advice was the report that I and honorable."

When one speaks of traditions one must have a good and long memory. Yes, there was a stabbing in the back; but that occured in 1885. At that time the Principality of Bulgaria and the Province of Eastern Rumelia proclaimed their union. While the young and small Bulgarian Army was concentrated on the Turkish border in the east, expecting an attack by Turkey, Servia without justification invaded and attacked Bulassignment to such a task There never has been a more important question before the American people than the present strikes, nor has any important question been handled more incompetently. Any strong President whose only motive was the welfare of the country would have settled these strikes promptly by ordering troops to protect the people who want to work. The great majority of the workers, whether union or nonunion, want to remain on the job and will do so if protected from the racketeering and gangster elements of union labor. This is the only solution of the strike situation. It is unquestionable that the present muddled and disgraceful situation is due to the labor policies of the administration in the past and the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has an eye to the political future and therefore is unwilling to do anything he thinks may offend the labor vote. ALEXANDER S. LANIER.

Defends Patman Amendment

Against Editorial Criticism. To the Editor of The Star.

Your editorial, "The Patman Amendment," in The Star for November 19 gives a distorted picture of what the District rent control bill, now pending in Congress, would do.

In fact, the whole handling of the legislative history of the bill by the press gives the false impression that Representative Patman is engaged in capricious, obstructionist tactics in offering and insisting on his amendment. That is not true. The Patman amendment is essential if the bill really is intended to effect the kind of rent control required by the peculiar Washington sit-

Your editorial states, "tenants would have the right to petition for reduction of any frozen rents and the administrator would have full authority to reduce them below the frozen figure if circumstances should warrant." You then proceed to say that "if the tenant could show that his rent on January 1. 1940, which is the freezing date provided in the bill (actually the date is January 1, 1941) was unreasonably high, the administrator would have the right to adjust."

A reading of the bill actually shows no such general grant of power to the administrator. The bill specifically lists the causes for which the administrator may cause a downward adjustment to be made. They are (1) if taxes or maintenance costs decrease, (2) if the tenant is able to show that he is paying more than the prevailing rental for comparable quarters, or (3) if services are re-

None of these meets the injustice which the Patman amendment seeks to correct, namely, that on January 1, 1941, the freezing date, the general level of rents, the proportion of tenants' income

S. ROTTENBERG. Proposes Building Offices

In Training School Grounds. To the Bditor of The Star:

Why increase the confusion of already overcrowded streets and highways by constructing more Government office buildings in the downtown area?

You hear many complaints about the terrible traffic conditions of Washington, of the bottlenecks in our streets, the problem of parking in the downtown area, yet different departments are further complicating these conditions by adding hundreds of new employes to the congested areas every month. These new employes have to get to their work. Many of them drive their own cars. which only helps to make traffic conditions in the downtown area worse.

You hear reports of decentralizing some Government agencies by moving them to nearby Maryland and Virginia. but you also see reports that new temporery Government office buildings are to be erected in the Mall, which would only add to our traffic problems. Does any one believe it would be using good judgment by going into the Mall and erecting more buildings and tearing up the beautiful parks that have cost thousands of dollars to develop, and which add so much to the beauty of Washington, when there is plenty of land in Washington that could be used for building purposes?

For instance, consider the grounds of the National Training School for Boys. There is a large tract of land owned by the Federal Government. The training school occupies only a small part of this 400-acre tract of land. Why not build some of the new buildings on this site, instead of crowding everything in the downtown area? It certainly would be one step toward relieving the traffic congestion downtown. There is plenty of parking space in this area, convenient transportation, good wide streets, sewer and water already there, which makes an ideal location for Government office buildings. There would be no new streets or bridges to build, as would be necessary if the new buildings were erected in nearby Maryland and Virginia. As the land is already Government owned, the only cost would be the erection of the buildings. These buildings could be erected along Bladensburg road and would be some distance from the training school buildings.

'Union Shop' Phrase Held Misleading

Use of Wording Called C. I. O. Device To Cloud Meaning

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Although President Roosevelt used the term "closed shop" no less than five times in the text of his letter to John L. Lewis and the heads of the steel companies and never once employed the term "union shop" many of the news articles sent from Washington contained in their paragraphsofintroduction only the words "union shop," which is nology. One of the David Lawrence. leading Washington newspapers not only failed to mention the words "closed shop" anywhere in its news or editorial articles on the President's letter but spoke repeatedly of a "union shop" controversy. A prominent New York newspaper carried the phrase "closed shop" in large type in its headline but its special news dispatch thereunder uses the word "union shop" several times and never the word "closed shop" except in the text quoting the President.

The explanation is not to be found in the charge that most of the newspapermen, being themselves members of a C. I. O. union, might be tempted to formalize the C. I. O. terminology, but rather in the fact that the C. I. O. has put over on unwitting reporters a clever piece of euphemistic propaganda in order to keep from the public the true meaning of the "closed shop" evil.

To say that employers are refusing to grant a "union shop" means to the average man that the employers do not wish to recognize a union or deal with it. That's what the C. I. O. would like to have the press disseminate and the public believe. In fact, the United Mine Workers Journal, national organ of the miners union, told its hundreds of thousands of members last week that the "union shop" issue in the captive coal mines is a matter of "union recognition." The fact is the employers have already recognized the union, as required by the Wagner law whenever a majority of the workers are lawfully organized.

Camouflaged Wording.

The President doubtless in an effort to combat misleading impres- national, even when, like Wagsions arising from camouflaged ter- ner, they tried to become naminology wrote in his letter Wednesday which describes the agreements! "All great Frenchmen have been that the employers in the captive mines are willing to sign:

"Under these agreements, the Unted Mine Workers are recognized as the sole bargaining agent for all the workers in and about the mines. The agreements fix the highest basic wage and the highest tonnage rates paid miners anywhere in the world. They provide in many other ways for the security of the mine workers under union auspices.

"A single issue, that of the closed shop, remains in dispute, but this issue concerns only 5 per cent of the mine workers employed in the captive mines, which is one-half of 1 per cent-one worker out of every 200 of all the mine workers in the United States.'

Mr. Lewis promptly attempted to shift the argument, this time claiming that the President desires an "open shop" which, by the way, has often been used in labor controversies to mean that the employer had no objection to either union or non-union men but would not deal with the union as such. This is not what the President has advocated. Taking cognizance of the effort to mislead by technical phrases, the White House, through Secretary Early, said:

"Let's get this thing straight. There is no use to confuse the issue. Ninety-five per cent of the miners have selected the United Mine Workers' Union as their bargaining agent. That is a union shop, not an open shop."

Right to Work Denied.

The reason the labor leaders and particularly the C. I. O. chiefs like to get away from the words "closed shop" is because it tells every American who isn't particularly familiar with labor terms that employment is closed to certain workers. In other words, it means the constitutional right to work has been subtracted from the Bill of Rights.

In an official survey of the whole question of terms, the Department of Labor in a bulletin issued in October, 1939, described the various forms of "closed shop." It lists the type where all employes must belong to the union and new employes must be chosen from the union's own roster. It lists also the type which requires that all workers in a plant must be members but the employer can hire whom he pleases on condition that after 30 days or so, the new worker must join the union or forfeit his job.

For all practical purposes these various forms of "closed shop" mean that an American citizen either cannot get a job unless he promises to belong to a union or that once having joined a union he cannot change his mind and withdraw without losing his job. To close the door against American workers and to put a monopoly power in the hands of labor bosses by granting them the closed shop, no matter by what name it is called, is to restrict the freedom and the liberty of the individual citizen in his right to work. The Supreme Court of the United States has never been given a case to decide involving this point because labor union lawyers have cleverly avoided the issue.

Urge Toward 'Unity With Diversity' Called Key to European Situation

By DOROTHY THOMPSON,

In the last column I said that it was our duty to discern the track of history and get on that track in order to win the war, end the war and get a great peace. The spirit of the times is seldom to be discerned byreading the newspapers and listening to the speeches of politicians. The understanding of Europe evades

Dorothy Thompson. the "research men" who fill our public information services and, alas. State departments and evades the journalists, too, who are mostly concentrated on watching day-to-day events.

Nations and epochs are to be understood through their most representative figures-those who carry in themselves whole streams of culture; who produce new syntheses, new forms of consciousness that haunt the minds of their generation and the generations following them, until finally, ratified and modified by events and by the thoughts and experiences of others, they find expression in revolutionary No one, for instance, can even pretend to understand presentday Europe who does not have more than a superficial acquaintance with Richard Wagner, not only as a musician, but as an influence, and with Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche. Hitler is nothing except a grotesque caricature of these two titanic geniuses. Nietzsche is the spiritual grandparent of the whole Fascist movement, and Mussolini admits his indebtedness. Yet Nietzsche, were he alive, wourd certainly repudiate Hitler, as his most gifted pupil, Stefan George, lived to do. And Nietzsche but caught up what was in the spiritual and mental air of all Europe and transmitted it in iridescent brilliance.

Europe Desires to Unite.

The clue to the European situation lies in this-that the genius of every European nation is-European. It is not "German" or "French," except by coloration. Goethe, Byron, Wagner, Nietzsche, Stendhal, Mazzini, Heine, Rolland-to take a few great names at random, were suprationalists great Europeans. So have all great Germans. That is why Hitler is not a great German and why it is a sacrilege to mention him in the same breath with Napoleon, who was a great European until blinded by his own ambitions. Beethoven-a great European-recognized him as such and tore up the Eroica dedication when an idol demanded himself to wear the crown of domination, thus betraying Europe and himself.

What has this tordo with the war, you ask, and with the peace? Briefly: Everything. For we can discern one tendency that reveals the mind, yearnings and direction of Europe: The desire of Europe to unite; to be Europe.

Yet, the urge to unity in Europe is a different urge from the one toward unity in any single nation. For as deep as the urge to unity is the consciousness of nationality. Americans tend to think far too simply of Europe, and that is one reason why many of them see in Hitler some one who "any how will get all those quarreling nations together." But Europe—the strength of Europe, the immense creativeness of that tiny peninsula of Asia, arises out of the very tensions of that highly variegated society. Europe seeks unity with diversity. The blotting out of a single national strain depletes by that much the color and strength of the remarkable and incomparable structure that is Europe.

"Unity With Diversity." The Swiss, whose political organization is the soundest on the continent, realize most fully this "unity with diversity." for that tiny state grants extreme autonomy to every canton, and even recognizes Rhaeto-Romanic, the language of a mere handful of its citizens, as an official tongue Europe—the Europe that seeks unity with diversity, that recognizes the oneness: "Europe," and that yet cherishes nationalityhas had two enemies. Those enemies are modern Germany and Creat Britain Europe has feared modern Germany because it fears the will to dominate rather than to lead. Specifically, it has feared in Germany the Prussian military spirit which is without any integration in European thought, and which is native to the Eastern plains where Europe begins to die. This spirit, since its birth, has menaced the Europe that wishes unity with diversity, by the thread of putting the whole structure under a steel helmet. Hitler is only the 20th century version, in the most vulgar form vet of the spirit that all Europe

But, Europe also fears Britain. For, if Germany is the enemy of Europe's diversity, Britain has been the enemy of its unity. Britain, insular and never quite European, and the seat, furthermore, of a world-wide association of non-European states, has, for her own protection, tried to keep a balance of power in Europe, allying herself now with these continental states and now with those, but consistently following a policy of divide and rule.

Federation Is the Answer. Today Britain is in the mood to depart from that policy and prove herself in the truest sense the protector and not the divider of Europe. But, Britain cannot with safety depart from the policy of European alliances unless the United States is prepared to depart forever from its isolationism. Britain need have no fear of a united Europe, if the United States is prepared to guarantee, together with the united continent of Europe, the security of

If the banner of European unity is raised of unity with diversity. it will be the strongest possible political weapon against Hitler. Of course, federation. Not erland, where, again, the princi-Perhaps not one federation; exhaustion. rather probably a series of interlocking federations - Eastern, Germanic, Danubian, Latin, Atlantic. Exact equality for Germany in such a continental reconstruction.

Freedom for Europe from British continental alliances, and the most far-reaching collaboration with the New World, economically and for defense. This, of course, would mean more than unity with diversity for Europe; it would mean unity with diversity for the whole of Western civilization, old and new.

For such a program we would find allies among all Germans who are Europeans, and those are the best Germans. To such a program all Europe would repair. For it would cut clean across Hitler's political strategy by removing his greatest asset: the deep resistance to the British on the continent.

No ambiguous eight points that completely muff the desire of Europe to be one will ever furnish the plan with which this war can be won in the realm of ideas. And, unless it can be won in that realm, it will degenerate into aimless destruction.

The war will be won now by patches from the Russian front, in the side with the strongest will to the more literal-minded military win. Clearly, that is our side. We circles in Washington there is a will win the war because the British-American combination is now an unbeatable combination. That combination will grow steadily stronger as the months go by. That combination will steadily increase the pressure on Hitler and never let up the pounding of the Reich until the crack comes inside. In other words, it isn't necessary to land a great army in Europe to crush Hitler. He can be crushed by driving him from the sea, by pound ing him from the air, by rejecting every peace proposal until the inevitable crack comes. That it will come, as Mr. Churchill says, no man should doubt.

British Offensive in Libya Viewed Here As Bona Fide Effort Against Axis

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Whether the British drive in North Africa is a mere sop to the Russians, who have made repeated appeals for a new front against the Nazis, or whether it is a genuine offensive by the British high command designed to forestall an impending Nazi assault in the Mediterranean is not yet clear, but may be determined shortly

For the time being, American military observers incline to the belief that it is a major demonstration of British will to take the initiative in bringing about defeat of the Axis. Should the Axis lines in Libya prove to be soft the British are likely to press exploitation of their initial successes.

If resistance is stubborn, however, and the offensive proves to be hard going, the British high command is likely to be satisfied with mere improvement of its present positions and stabilize the front again along a new line. Four Panzer Units in Africa.

Accurate information has been lacking recently regarding the strength of Nazi forces in North Africa. The difficulty of estimating the size of these forces arises from the fact that Nazis withdrew certain motorized divisions from Libya last summer. How many of them have returned by way of Tunisia or other ports under control of the French is not known

As far as is known, however, the Germans have four panzer divisions in Africa, all of them equipped for desert operations. In addition, there are between three and four regular divisions.

The Italian force is considerably larger, but less important as a military force. According to intelligence reports, there are some 30 divisions, remnants of Marshal Graziani's forces which received such a drubbing from the army of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell about a year ago.

This force, placed under the command of the Nazi general staff in Africa, has been improved by German drill methods, but its value in action is still unknown. The easy-going Italians have taught to goose-step. The famous "passo Romano"-a mild imitation of the goose-step introduced in the army by Il Duce in 1938-was not very successful. German training methods are much more drastic and efficient.

How far German drill officers have succeeded in instilling Prussianism in the Italians is a question, but it is known that feelings between the Italians and Germans are not particularly friendly. Italian officers are said to resent the arrogant and superior manner of their Nazi colleagues, while Italian privates resent the harshness of German drill sergeants.

Against this combined Axis force consisting probably of about 500,000 men, indifferently equipped, the British have thrown an army of three-quarters of a million. The balance of the British imperial army must maintain a careful watch in the Near East. The size of all imperial forces in the Near East and North Africa is a military secret, but it probably does not exceed a million

Nazis May Get U. S. Oil. Axis forces have had time to strengthen their positions since the arrival of Nazi divisions, compelled the British Army to withdraw to Egypt. Nazi military engineers are reported to have taken advantage of every salient, every natural position to construct fortified positions which can be held by numerically inferior forces

Since the start of the Russo-German war the Germans probably have had to restrict their activities in North Africa to transportation of materials for fortifications along the newly built lines.

In some quarters in Washington it is feared that much of the gasoline and oil which was sent from the United States to Dakar and Casablanca as a token of our confidence in Gen. Maxime Weygand, Vichy's former proconsul in North Africa, may find its way through Tunisia to the Axis lines

Annapolis Graduation Slated Dec. 13-19 for New 3-Year Class

First Midshipmen To Complete Course In Speedier Setup

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 21.-Graduation week for the first class to finish its studies under the Naval Academy's new shortened three-year course will be held from December 13 through December 19, Rear Admiral Russell Willson, academy superintendent announced yesterday. A total of 570 seniors are in line for commissions as ensigns at commencement exercises December 19 in Dahlgren Hall. The graduation speaker has not yet been announced. It will be the third graduation here this year. A group of regular midshipmen was graduated last February and in May a Naval Reserve class—the first to attend the Academy in its history-received Reserve ensign commissions. Under the new stepped up schedule, which cut the academy course from four to three years last summer, the present senior class completes its scholastic work six months ahead of time. More than 600 members of the junior class, who will become seniors immediately after the commencement exercises, will be graduated in June, a full year ahead of schedule. The present sophomores and freshmen will not advance a class December 19 but will retain their present status until June. Consequently there will be no junior class from

December 19 until June. The high lights of the graduation week are the sermon to graduates December 14 in the chapel; the presentation of athletic and extra curricular awards and the superintendent's and commandant's reception to the graduates December 16 and the presentation of prizes and awards and the farewell ball December 18 The entire regiment of 3,110 midshipmen-the largest group ever to attend the academy-will witness the presentation of prizes and awards December 18 and the graduation the day following.

British Probe Barring Of Litvinoff on Plane

LONDON, Nov. 21.-Richard Law British Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, said yesterday that a slip-up which prevented Maxim Litvinoff. Soviet Ambassador to the United States, and his wife from obtaining seats on a British Overseas Airways plane from Teheran to Cairo was being investigated.

Litvinoff was told curtly at the Teheran Airport Wednesday that there were no seats available, and the plane roared off-leaving him astonished and angry.

"I have this morning received a report from the Minister at Teheran from which there appeared to be an result of which the departure of Litvinoff and his party was delayed," Mr. Law said.

"The exact circumstances are being investigated by the Minister who at once sent a personal apology to Litvinoff and the Soviet Ambassador at Teheran.

House Passes Revised Bill to Control Rents

Senate Recesses, Delaying Action on Conferees' Report

The revised District rent-control bill was approved swiftly by the House today, but final congressional action was delayed when the Senate met and decided to recess until

The House agreed to accept Senate changes and approved the controversial Patman amendment as redrafted by House and Senate conferees at a special conference yes-

Designed to strengthen the protection to be afforded tenants whose rents were too high on January 1. 1941, which generally would be frozen by the bill, the revised amendment provides that a tenant may petition the administrator to adjust the maximum rent applicable to his residence on the ground that the date picked for fixing the ceiling permits the charging of unduly high rents.

Following final action by the House, Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee announced the legislation would be sent to the Senate immediately, and voiced hope that it would be libider Urges Laws approved and forwarded to the White House by late Monday after-

President Calls For Program to Help Disabled

Asks Mobilization To Return Them to Productive Capacity

President Roosevelt today called on the Government and private rehabilitation agencies for a new program to help return physically handicapped men and women to

"productive capacity." In a message to the National Conference on Employment of the Disabled at the Wardman Park Hotel, the President asked the services represented by about 200 delegates to "mobilize" for the task. The letter from the Chief Executive was read to the group by Frederic G. Elton of New York City, chairman of the conference, who is a District supervisor of vocational rehabilitation for the New York State Education Department. In presenting the President's message, Mr. Elton outlined the aims and purposes of the conference and declared that this country nust be prepared to produce more and more war materials as "our only defense against suffering the fate of other nations at the hands of brutal mechanized power.' The conference, which will continue through tomorrow and Sunday, will be addressed by many speakers from both Government and private organizations concerned with rehabilitation. 2,000,000 More Available.

President Roosevelt said it was 'deeply gratifying" that delegates from all parts of the country were here "to make plans for the utilization of the productive capacity of that group of our citizenry who are "We all know," continued the Miller. assistant administrator of the Federal Security Agency, told the conference that "defense has awakened America to the realization that if it is to be strong, men must not be thrown unnecessarily onto the scrap pile. If we have at our command the skill and knowledge to rebuild men, to use medicine and education and personnel science to unlock the door of opportunity, it is to the interest of America that we unlock

"Rehabilitation on any level," declared Capt. Miller, former chairman of the National Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion "is not only a humanitarian enterprise. It is undertaken for the sound effect it may have upon national strength."

Presiding at the morning session was Claude M. Andrews of Florida, president of the National Rehabilitation Association. Talmage S. Wilcher of the Social Security Board was song leader. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Miss Virginia Working.

The afternoon session today was devoted to a discussion of the problems of private organization. Other representatives of Government agencies will be heard tomorrow morning. Sunday's session will be devoted to a discussion of physical restoration services, the conference closing Sunday afternoon.

Capitol Heights Policeman Dies In Crash Here

Alexandria Man Succumbs to Hurts In Hospital

A Capitol Heights (Md.) policeman was killed early today when an automobile he was driving crashed into a parked 10-ton trailer truck at Seventh street and Florida avenue N.E., and an Alexandria (Va.) man was fatally injured in an accident near Manassas, Va.

The District crash victim, Clyde A. Gainer, 30, was pinned in the automobile by the steering wheel and police experienced difficulty in extricating him. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hos-

Mr. Gainer's death was the 83d in traffic here this year as compared with 64 for the same period in 1940. Miss Myrtle Chaney, 22, also of Capitol Heights, listed by police as a passenger in the car, was admitted to the hospital for treatment of head and internal injuries. She was reported in serious condition.

Warning Smudge Placed. Police said Anthony M. Leroux, 31 of Toledo, Ohio, told them he was sitting in the stalled truck at the time of the accident, waiting for a repairman to arrive. Two of the greatest problems which show lack of unity, Bishop Freeman said, were those of labor versus management and the "grow ing race prejudice in our country.

"There is civil war now within the confines of the United States.' he declared. "How humiliating to the President of the United States. who has been so generous to labor, to be treated with such contempt in this time of emergency." He voiced the hope that Congress would take steps without delay and force labor and management to come to a quick and reasonable agreement.

Miss Marie D. Harte Bride Of Ensign Edward P. Stafford In Annapolis Ceremony

Grandson of Admiral Peary Married. Many Weddings in Capital Mark Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving is always a popular wedding day, and yesterday was no exception. One of the loveliest of the holiday weddings was that of Miss Marie Dolores Harte and Ensign Edward Peary Stafford, United States Naval Reserve, son of the "Snowbaby," Mrs. Edward Stafford, and Mr. Stafford of this city. The bridegroom's grandfather was Admiral Robert E. Peary, and his mother was born in the Far North during one of the admiral's exploratory trips to the North Pole.

Ceremony Is Performed in Chapel Of Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The chapel at the Naval Academy at Annapolis was the scene of the wedding and was decorated in palms, fern and white chrysanthemums. During the ceremony the Hanover winter song was played.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. John Bernard Harte of Bennington, Vt., and the late Mr. Harte, was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. Bernard Hart. The Rev. Joseph Hallissey, C. S. S. R., performed the

The bride's gown was of white slipper satin made with a fitted bodice, high neckline, collar of old heirloom lace trimmed with tiny seed pearls and a long, circular train. She wore a circular pin of pearls and sapphires given her by the bridegroom's parents. It was given to the "Snowbaby" by her husband at the time of their wedding in October, 1917. The bridal veil of imported French illusion was held by a pearl tiara, and the bride's bouquet was a shower arrangement of bouvardia with carnations, the birth-month flower of the bride.

Miss Eileen D. Harte

Miss Eileen Denise Harte, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of defense gold faille with darker velvet scroll trim and a matching velvet bonnet with ostrich Navy blue and gold theme.

The bride's other attendants included Miss Barbara Harte, another sister of the bride, in defense gold: Miss Frances Travisano of Newark, N. J., and Miss Mary Crowley of Troy, N. Y., in shell pink; Miss Alice Mamaux of South Orange, N. J., and Miss Gail Kinger of Glen Ridge, N. J., in gypsy rose color. the maid of honor, but their heartshaped hats were untrimmed.

Mr. Peary Diebitsch Stafford, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Hugh G. Corrigan and David S. Smith, both of Dartmouth, class of '42, as is the bridegroom; Ensign Malcolm Stearns, jr., U. S. N. R.; Midshipmen Frank H. O'Brien, William H. Crawford, jr., and Joseph B. Tully and Mr. Charles B. Railroad Conferees Meet With President On Wage Controversy

Labor and Management To Begin Negotiations This Afternoon

President Roosevelt met with representatives of railroad labor and management today in a continuing effort to avert a threatened Nationwide strike of the carriers, preliminary to resumption of wage negotia-

A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, one of the conferees in the rail dispute, told reporters as he left the White House that the meeting with the President had been "just a continuation of former discussions on the wage matter."

He said that both management and labor have agreed to undertake to work out in the negotiations here a settlement of their differences. but he declined to make any predictions of their possible success.

The labor and management discussions were to begin at the Transportation Building at 2 o'clock this

"I know labor does not want to embarrass the President," Mr. Whitney replied under further questioning of prospects in the resumed negotiations, which were requested by Mr. Roosevelt.

Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York, who was a railroad man before becoming a public official, and who has participated in preliminary efforts to settle the current dispute. also participated in the White House conference. Alvaney Johnston, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers, was the other labor spokesman meeting with the Pres-

Immediately after departure of Senator Mead and the railroad labor conferees, the President met briefly with John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads. Although Mr. Pelley is not a member of the Conference Committee which is conducting wage negotiations for the operators, he has participated in the previous White House conversations directed at avoiding the strike. As head of the railroad association, he is influential in formulating industry policy. Both the five operating brotherhoods and the 14 non-operating unions are to be represented here to-day. The former, having about 350,-000 members, already have voted a strike beginning December 7. Asking a 30 per cent wage increase, the operating employes are being offered 712 per cent on recommendation of a special presidential board. The nonoperating workers are being offered 1312 per cent, which they also have rejected, but this group has not actually voted a strike.

At an informal ceremony, in the presence of a small company of friends, Miss Frances Stone Davis, daughter of Mrs. George Samuel Davis of Fairfax County, Va., and the late Mr. Davis, was married to Lt. Charles Perry Hood the afternoon of November 4 in the newlycompleted chapel at Borinquen Field. Puerto Rico. The little chapel, in which Miss Davis was the first bride, was made more beatiful with palms, tropical plants and leaves and feathery white-blossomed vines entwined on the chancel rail. Mrs. Herbert E. Rice, wife of Maj. Rice, played a program of organ music preceding and during the ceremony, at which the post chaplain, Capt. Paul A.

Maddox, officiated at 3 o'clock. Wearing heaven blue organdy with a small halo hat of organdy petals, the bride was escorted by Lt. Col. Edward A. Hillery and given by him in marriage. Her dress was floor length and made bouffant style and her hat was held in place by a sapphire pin which had belonged to her father. Miss Rita O'Lone Wed To Mr. George F. Lynch.

A pretty wedding ceremony was celebrated Saturday morning at Holy Comforter Church here when Miss Rita A. O'Lone was married to Mr. George F. Lynch of Worcester, Mass. A nuptial mass was said by the Rev. Joseph Eckert. During the mass solos were sung by Miss Hazel Arth. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Joseph P. O'Lone, and was attended by her sister, Miss Grace O'Lone, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mildred Lynch, Miss Ulrica Donohoe and Miss Rita Hemmelberg. The ushers were Messrs. Thomas Kane and John Murray. The bride wore an ivory-color vel-

A reception at the home of the bride followed the wedding. In the receiving line with the bride and bridegroom were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Lynch, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. O'Lone, father of the bride; Miss Grace O'Lone, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids and ushers. Mr. Lynch is a member of the District bar, a graduate of Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass.; Clark College and of Georgetown law school. Mrs. Lynch is a graduate of St. Patrick's Academy. The young couple left later for a

Engineer Battalion, Camouflage Outfit, Has No Privates

r Each Enlisted Man Is Non-Com or Holds Specialist Rating

The 84th Engineer Battalion (camouflage) of Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum's 1st Army is one of the few outfits that has no basic privates among its 31 officers and 402 enlisted men. The officers are all engineers and each enlisted men is either a non-commissioned officer or holds a specialist rating.

The reason for the extra pay is that the battalion is entirely an organization of technical advisers, the only unit in the Army devoted solely to camouflage work. The camoufleurs advise and instruct units of the 1st Army on how best to camouflage their materiel and troops. To make the Army realize that it must keep itself covered or be blown to bits, the unit has been broken down into groups as small as two men, who work with regiments and never see each other for weeks. Each group puts on demonstrations of how concealment works, lectures at the spot on the subject, and then stands by to help out while the units go through their practice.

The fact that the camouflage work must be performed by the troops immediately concerned is stressed. since the man power of the camouflage units is insufficient to do more than supervisory work.

Disguise Chief Aim. The extensive use of shadows is the key to camouflaging as taught by the specialists of the 84th. Disguising the appearance of an object from the air rather than attempting its complete concealment is the aim of the camoufleurs. Though they use camouflage nets and artificial shrubbery when necessary to hide materiel or men, the camouflage engineers consider it better to disguise appearances by blending them with all surrounding objects

Thus, when they were camped one time in the midst of an automobile junk yard, they piled the available used parts in such a way as to make their camp appear like part of a "gravevard.

The battalion's base camp is filled with experimental and proved camouflage devices: Painted canvas tents, huge nets to cover gurz, stacks of chicken wire and a portable factory that is the pride of the outfit.

In one day the factory can turn out 20 miles of cloth cut into two strips, 2 inches wide and 5 inches long, painted one or more of 20 specially devised colors, and dried ready for use on the big camouflage nets. The factory, with its electric cutters, hand cranked presses and huge dyeing vat, was constructed by the personnel of the battalion.

Mat. Lincoln Originated Idea. The commander of the 84th, Maj. Ralph A. Lincoln, is the engineer idea of a camouflage unit, capable not only of preparation of camouflage materials, but also of going into the field to inspect and demon-strate to the troops the best methods of camouflage.

About a third of the men in the battalion are professional artists, another third are experienced carpenters, and the others come from backgrounds as varied as mechanics, financial writing, or the law.

The first 13 weeks they spent in the Army were devoted to infantry drill. Today they can bridge a river, throw up a barbed-wire fence, or use firearms if necessary.

U. S. Officials to Confer With R. A. F. Psychiatrist

Dr. Robert Dick Gillespie, psychiatric specialist and wing commander of the Royal Air Force, will open two days of conference with Government officials at 9 a.m. Monday in the Metropolitan Club.

He is expected to talk about the psychological effects of heavy warfare and make suggestions about the maintenance of civilian morale during time of stress.

Present at the Monday lecture will be executives of the Office of Civilian Defense, the Public Health Service, Veterans' Administration, Selective Service System, State Department, Federal Security Agency, Co-ordinator of Information and the National Research Council.

On Tuesday the conference will move to the War Department, where he will give information designed for the morale branch of the Army and others interested in the health of Army and Navy.

The British psychfatrist's flying visit to seven American cities is through co-operation of the British and American governments, it was said, and particularly of the Joint Army and Navy Committee on Welfare and Recreation.

Junior Hadassah Told Post-War Europe Will Offer No Security

Palestine 'Only Road to Jewish Rehabilitation, Dr. Weizman Says

BOSTON, Nov. 21.-Post-war Europe "will offer no secure future" to the Jewish people, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency

"Your and our immediate vital task." he said, "is insuring those political and economic conditions first, by convincing the great democracies, who after the victory will shape the new world order, of Palestine's capacity as the major solution of our most urgent problem; second by making very sure that our resources in men, money and land are fully adequate and fully organized so that no moment may be lost for lack of any of them when the hour of freedom strikes.

The Junior Hadassah has called on the British government to give Palestine unequivocal status as a Jewish commonwealth after the war and to permit immediate formation of a Jewish military force to fight under its own flag.

Plea Sent to Halifax. A petition sent by the Zionist young women's organization to Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, asserted the British government has "said nothing so far" about Jewish homelessness and that its rejection of a Jewish army was "shortsighted" and a "bitter disappointment to the Jewish

The petition, adopted yesterday by approximately 1.000 delegates from 42 States at the organization's 18th national convention, said:

"So grave and extensive will be the problem of an uprooted European Jewry after the war that only Palestine, reconstituted within its historic borders, having unequivocal status as a Jewish commonwealth, unrestricted as to Jew-Ish immigration and land acquisition, will solve the age-old problem of Jewish rights and Jewish home-lessness and will contribute thereby to the stabilization of Europe."

Separate Jewish Force. On the Army question the petition said that "In a situation in which Great Britain admittedly needs all the aid she can get, the British government has seen fit to refuse the offer of the Jewish agency for Palestine to organize a considerable like these are running through the on nearly all Russian railways. minds of those Britons and Americans who promised and are now seeking to implement maximum assistance to Russia, and with all possible speed. But the "ifs" on which these possibilities hang are numerous and formidable—stamina and morale of the Red Army, rigors of cold weather, stage of Russian industry, extent of Allied material aid, a companion British offensive. Weeks Gained at Rostov.

From the valley of the Doncoal mining and industrial prize of the first magnitude-comes new testimony of the grim effort of the Russians to remove or lay waste anything and everything which the Germans might be able to utilize as a means of strengthening their military economy. The stubborn stand of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies in that area is making possible the transference to the rear of many trousands of tons of vital equipment. But that which cannot be moved and lies in imminent danger of capture is being systematically wrecked. "We are leaving nothing for the invaders." writes a Russian correspondent. "Mines, factories, power stations and railway bridges are being blown up. When the Germans reached collieries they coveted, they found them blazing ruins." By stalling the Nazi Army outside industrialized Rostov-on-Don, the Russians have gained weeks instead of days in which to dismanue and transfer machine tools and other primary machinery which could not have been otherwise replaced for many months, if at all. This certainly is one of the most significant results, too, of the prolonged and continuing Soviet resistance at Moscow and Leningrad.

Time May Be Decisive Factor. For this reason alone, time now may prove in the long run to have been one of the decisive factors of the war. The great migration of factory equipment from the front to the deep rear proceeds unabatedly over every east-west railway and from all three sectors of the extended Russo-German battle area. Most of the stuff is going to the Urals and beyond, but there are stories about transplanted factories resuming work in the Volga Basin.

It is quite impossible to make even a good guess on the total quantity of equipment shifted from Western Russia to the interior. In point of tonnage, the figure must be Impressive. Whether, however, the amount moved represents a small or sizable percentage of the aggregate machinery formerly operating in the war areas, is very difficult to gav. It is obvious that much had to be left behind or be destroyed because of great bulk or lack of time.

But even if the percentage is a modest one, it must be assumed that the equipment transferred is of the most essential nature. Certainly defense machinery, such as machine tools, aircraft-manufacturing equipment, automobile works and munitions plants are getting precedence. Therefore, the importance of mass transplantation to Russia's war effort is considerably greater even than the volume indicates.

With military urgency accelerating the speed of removal, quite a number of the transferred plants already are functioning in their new locations. In some cases, no more than a few weeks have elapsed from the time of dismantling at the old sites to the resumption of operations at the new. Of course, such cases are exceptional.

Merged With Existing Plant. With good organization, close cooperation of the military, and highpressure labor, the job of tearing down and rebuilding can be pushed through at rapid speed, but the transport problem usually is the determining factor. It is a problem that is taxing the capacity of the Soviet railroads. Whenever feasible, uprooted factory equipment is merged with an existing plant of a similar nature deep in the rear,

Picture in Almanac Shows That Leopold Has Grown Thin

Belgians Quick to Note Change in King Since Troops Saw Him Last

By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, Occupied Belgium, Nov. 13 (Delayed).-An almanac cover picture of King Leopold of the Belgians showed today that the 40-year-old prisoner-monarch had grown noticeably thin since he last was seen with his troops. Belgians were quick to notice the change in the King's features when the first picture of him since he capitulated to the Germans last year was released.

The photograph, showing Leopold and his three children in the gardens of the Laeken Royal Palace, is on the cover of the 1942 almanac put on sale on behalf of charitable institutions.

A highly flavored turkey roll, incased in a flaky crust, is one of the nicest ways in which the Thanksgiving turkey may take an encore.

By Betsy Caswell,

By this time you should be able to face the holiday turkey without a shudder-even though yesterday you hoped never to see or hear of it again! Fortunately, turkey makes the best leftover dishes in the world. so you can plan now to really enjoy your noble bird to the bitter enda few suggestions that may help you to vary the more familiar "review of reviews"!

TURKEY ROLL. 2 cups sifted flour. 3 teaspoons baking powder. 3 teaspoon salt. 2 to 4 tablespoons shortening.

If a child is truly crying from fear and nervousness (and the mother can tell) it may help to soothe him if she will sit quietly, without speaking, by his bed, her hand upon his shoulder or on his mayonnaise and stiffly beaten egg little hand. A young child may develop the good habit of going to sleep or the bad one of crying. I suggest devoting an hour before bedtime to setting the scene for By Dorothy Murray the sandman. Rangoon Busiest City Of Far East Due to Burma Road Traffic

Tourist Mecca Now Immersed in Bustle Of Wartime Trade

By ROYAL ARCH GUNNISON, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and

North American Newspaper Alliance. RANGOON, Burma, Nov. 22 (By airmail).--When you fly into Rangoon-over a harbor so jam-packed with ships large and small of American, Panamanian, British, Norwegian and Dutch registry that the plane finds difficulty in picking a landing spot on the water-it isn't hard to understand why it is called "the busiest city in the entire Far East" today.

Originally a picturesque Burmese city with gold-tipped temple spires thrust skyward, a tourist mecca, today Rangoon is immersed in a grim wartime trade. Sandbags and bombproof dugouts are everywhere. Buildings, once white and pink, with graceful swirling decorations at 'he eaves and balconies, are now painted a dull gray. Their walls are buttressed against collapse from bomb concussion. Blackouts are a regular practice. The latest pursuit fighters of the R. A. F.-Americanmade Brewster Buffaloes-spin and scream overhead in aerobatics all day long. Tanks and armored cars rumble through the streets at night. Troops guard everywhere.

Burma Road Link.

The docks and "go-downs" (warehouses) are stuffed to overflowing with supply from America-supply destined for China, supply with a wallop designed to carry the offensive against the Japanese. For Rangoon is the port through which all the Burma road supply must pass. China and the "war against the Axis" are just up the road a few hundred miles. Japan is merely a whoop and a holler" across the Indo-China border to the northeast. And Thailand, presumably to fall into Japanese hands unless a revitalized British lion suddenly wakes up, is potted with good airfields. From there Japanese planes could give Rangoon, the rail line to Lashio (from which the Burma road strikes out across the mountains to Kunming) and the famed "Road to Mandalay" (over which newly assembled trucks bound for use along the Burma road travel daily) a bomb plastering that might be fatal.

The British, suddenly realizing the proximity of the Japanese to Ran-goon and the vulnerability of all the roads and transport lines running north into China, galvanized themselves into action to provide defenses. All the time they have hoped they would not be too late Now they are breathing easier. Now the "go-downs" and the wharves have defenses. Now the rail line to Lashio is protected as well as can be expected. Now there are airfields from which the R. A. F can operate to protect bomber squadrons heading toward Japanese lines; and there are bomber and fighter squadrons in Burma today with personnel who have fought in England and who have carried the battle across to Germany-men who know the air fighting game better than any one in the Far East.

Japan Misses Opportunity.

The British, with the job of helping supply Russia with war material to hold off the Nazis in Europe, have gradually awakened to the fact that Uncle Sam is doing the same thing for China to hold the Japanese in check in the Far East. And the British, for the last four months, have been giving allout assistance to China and America in this endeavor. But it has been only in the last two months that their own Burma defenses have taken any shape. At any time had the Japanese swept across Thailand they might have had Burma as well as Thailand before the United States Fleet, the Dutch or the British could have done more than shout Don't do that!" But again the Japanese have missed an opportunity. Although it is impossible to tell just how "loyal" the Burmese are to Britain, it is possible to distinguish their dislike for Japan and their fear of Japanese conquest of

Bedtime Stories By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Once more Lightfoot the Deer was playing hide and seek in the Green Forest. But it was a different game than the one he had played just a short time before. You remember that then it had been for his life that he had played-he was the one who had done all the hiding. Now he was "it," and some one else was doing the hiding. Instead of the dreadful fear which had filled him in that other game he was now filled with longing, longing to make friends with the beautiful stranger of whom he had just caught a glimpse, but of whom every day he found tracks.

At times Lightfoot would lose his temper. Yes, sir, Lightfoot would lose his temper. That was a foolish thing to do, but it seemed to him that he just couldn't help it. He would stamp his feet angrily and thrash the bushes with his great spreading antlers as if they were an enemy with whom he was fighting More than once when he did this a great pair of great, soft, gentle eyes were watching him, though he didn't know it. If he could have seen them and the look of admiration in them -Frazier Hunt | he would have been more eager than ever to find that beautiful stranger. At other times Lightfoot would steal about through the Green Forest as noiselessly as a shadow. He would peer into thickets and behind tangles of fallen trees and brush piles, hoping to surprise the one he sought. He would be very, very patient. Perhaps he would come to a thicket which he knew from the signs the stranger had left only a few moments before. Then his patience would vanish in impatience and he would dash ahead eager to catch up with the shy stranger. But always it was in vain. He had thought himself very clever, but this d Premiere stranger was proving herself more

Of course, it wasn't long before all the little people in the Green Forest knew what was going on. They knew all about that game of hide Fight for Freedom Billy Keaton's Show Claude Thornhill's Or. and seek just as they had known all about that other game of hide and seek with the hunters. But now instead of trying to help Lightfoot as they did then, they gave him no help at all. The fact is they were enjoying that game.

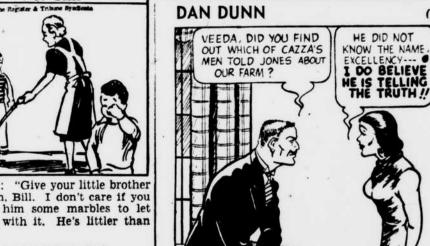

Mischievous Sammy went so far as to warn the stranger several times when Lightfoot was approaching. Of course, Lightfoot knew when Sammy did this, and each time he lost his temper. For the time being he quite forgot all that Sammy had done for him when he was the one being hunted. Once Lightfoot almost ran smack into Buster Bear, and was so provoked by his own carelessness that instead of bounding away he actually threatened to fight Buster. But when Buster grinned good-naturedly at him. Lightfoot thought better of it and bounded away to continue his search.

Then there were times when Lightfoot would sulk and would declare over and over to himself: "I don't care anything about that stranger. I won't spend another minute looking for her." And then within 5 minutes he would be watching, listening and seeking some sign that she was still in the Green

The bidding: West North East South Dbl. Pass 1 4 Pass Pass East and West could have made a game in either black suit, but South's fine jump to four hearts prevented them from getting together. West was afraid to show his clubs at the level of five and couldn't support spades with only jack-small. Even his decision to double was fairly close, and, as it turned out, a losing venture.

West opened the jack of spades, East played the queen to show complete control of the suit and South won with the ace. Apparently he was doomed to lose a spade, a heart and two diamonds. But South saw that he might be able to make the opponents guess badly.

At the second trick he led the king of hearts and West took the heart ace and returned his other spade. East won and continued spades, South ruffing high. South then led five rounds of trumps, discarding two diamonds from dummy as soon as possible. When South's next-to-last trump was led West was down to two clubs and three diamonds and had to choose another discard.

If he had given the matter intelligent consideration he would have seen that his partner's opening bid marked him with the ace of clubs and a club discard by West was therefore quite safe. But West had noted only that dummy had discarded diamonds as though that suit were quite unimportant. He therefore discarded another diamond himself.

That gave South his contract. He cashed the diamond ace and led another diamond, clearing the suit. That allowed him to win the last two tricks with the seven of diamonds and his last trump.

Win, Lose or Draw

What Are All-Americas Made Of?

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.-There is a pretty good chance that Alfred Blozis of Georgetown is the best college football tackle in the country and a better chance that he will not be named all-America. We suppose this is regrettable but it isn't the fault of Mr. Blozis. All he can do is play football. The rest is up to Yehoodi.

That's a good sport, say it. Well, Yehoodi is the Public Relations Counsel, molder of mass mind, space grabber, good will ambassador and press agent at Georgetown who isn't there. It's a strange absence. Not many big colleges in the land have as many good football players, basket ball phenoms, sprinters and shot putters as Georgetown has, or will have. Nor do they have finer coaches. But the Hoyas have nobody to tell the

Let's not kid ourselves about all-Americanism in football. It takes more than mere ability to make one of the teams. Sometimes the ability actually is secondary. There have been several instances of all-America turning into lemons when they tried pro football. The road to an all-America berth invariably, perhaps always, is hacked out and paved by some maestro of the tubs, who thumps until sports editors and selectors all over the country have heard tell of the boy who is blooming with such fragrance on shabby Tech's field each Saturday.

Jasper Star Admits Being Blozis-Shy

Offhand, we wouldn't know how many times in the last three years we have seen Blozis play football. At a guess lets say 15 games. He never played a better one than yesterday. After it was over, Ed Finkoski, Manhattan's star passer, visited the Georgetown dressing room to see the Hoyas Benny Bulvin. "Come over and meet Blozis," said Bulvin. "No," answered Finkoski. "I've had all the contact I want with him. In the second half every back on our club got Blozis-shy. We were all afraid he was going to hit us again." Blozis played before only 12,000 spectators, many of them deadheads, and there were none of the official all-America selectors in sight, a mathematical phenomena in itself. Besides, Manhattan is not to be confused with Minnesota. But the real reason Blozis probably won't get what probably should be coming to him, is lack of build-up. There has been nobody to flood newspaper offices with data showing that the young man while at Georgetown made 6,573 tackles, personally prevented the seering of 68 touchdowns by the enemy, yielded an average of minus 4 yards through his tackle post, etc. Georgetown men haven't precisely shunned any build-up of Blozis. Like all other schools, the Hoyas have employed some of the common methods, such as dusting off some fleshy alumnus who was an old-time star and having the gent contrive to meet Grantland Rice, for instance, "By the way, Granny, have you seen Blozis this year? Terrific. Positively terrific. Best linesman I've seen since Hefflefinger.'

Coaches Say Ostmato Topped Heralded Lio

It's an old story to selectors such as Rice. What he wants is something in black and white to help guide him, even if he must accept the probably elastic statistics of a press agent.

After many years Georgetown finally landed a player on an all-America team last year. He was Augie Lio, the place-kicking guard. Lio was a guard of exceptional ability and now is making good with the pro Detroit Lions. But it wasn't only his guard play that won the honor. He happened to kick a field goal against Boston while experts were look-Georgetown men were jubilant over his selection but when the voting two-year lapse while Western held the crown, and even at a school vas over Lio's coaches were very frank about it. They said that Mark where good elevens are the rule its supporters have plenty of rea-Ostmato, the other guard who only got his name in the agate line-ups was son to regard the current Viking edition as one of the best pro-

This is mentioned merely to point out how patently futile it is to attempt to select the 11 best players in the country, some never seen, when selectors and coaches cannot see eye to eye in choosing one of two guards on a single team. Lio was easier to spot from the stands and the press boxes. He had occasion to pull out of the trenches and put his foot into a ball under dramatic circumstances while Ostmato helped block for him. Lio was easier to photograph because he could kick. After all there seems to be only one pose a non-kicking guard can strike and ing standpoint, with Jan Jankowski, former Catholic U. player and day. that is to bare his teeth, extend the hammy hands and make motions

There Are Both Kinds of Propagandists

One may ask, especially if he is a native of Somaliland and is visiting, what difference does it make to a college if a player, especially a senior who won't be back, doesn't make the all-America? It makes plenty of difference. Right where it helps or hurts—in the region of the hip where the wallet is located. All-Americas are box office. The school that turns pound halfback, who had a hand in Central's usual passing combination them out is box office. Colleges like to make money; you can do so many all three Viking touchdowns, with things with the lovely stuff.

Earlier in this masterpiece of loose thought, we seemed to lament Horton and Bobby Mess-this lastthe absence of a Georgetown publicist. The tears were shed only for named responsible for some excelthe sake of the Hoyas, not necessarily because the newspapers of Washington, or the country, need any more press agents. There is enough indirection, skullduggery and hocus pocus now without asking for more

But, of course, there are propagandists and propagandists, just as outs-although it experienced diffithere are fresh eggs and the other kind. A wide-awake, thoughtful press culty in getting its attack startedagent like Johnny Busick of G. W. or Dinty Doyle of St. Mary's of California, or Stu Cameron of Miami Beach, or Bob Harron of Columbia, or Walt Hadlich of the Ice Follies, can do a lot of good for a college or a resert or an individual, and they can walk into a newspaper office without putting the inmates to flight from boredom. Sometimes a smoothie, 14 to 6, but it couldn't produce a well liked by newspapermen who are trained to view with suspicion all press agents, can do more to build good will between sports writers and tough line colleges than a graduate manager of athletics or a head coach or a

The good ones may come a little high, but in many cases they are worth the price. And Georgetown is committed to the biggest football program in the history of any Washington college.

Blozis' Line Play Steals Show as G. U. Nabs Fifth Victory in Eight Starts

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.-With their third straight victory and the fifth triumph in eight outings this year tucked away, Georgetown's Hoyas today were assured of a winning campaign regardless of what happens a week from Saturday, when they play oncebeaten Xavier in Cincinnati. It was not a spectacular season, as was the case in 1938, 1939 and 1940, but for a team that lost 20 mer Leukhardt to reach Central's senior letter winners the Hoyas have done all right.

Eagles Are Prepared For Johnstown in Clash Tonight

At Top Strength First Time, Hope to Prevent Rival Going to Top

At full strength for the first time this season, the Washington Eagles of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League will tangle with the undefeated Johnstown Bluebirds tonight at Riverside Stadium at 8:30 o'clock.

The Eagles will have an opportunity to prevent the Bluebirds from climbing into first place ahead of the idle Boston Olympics, who have won four straight games. The Bluebirds have won three games and tied another, two of their triumphs being 9-4 and 10-2 wins over the Eagles.

Bolstered by the addition of Les Hickey and Roland Bleau, a brace of desperately needed right wingers, and Don Durno, a 6-foot-2-inch 200pound defenseman, the Eagles are expected to produce their finest game of the infant season. After three successive defeats the Eagles walloped the River Vale Skeeters, 5-1, on Wednesday night.

Washington will be colliding with one of the league's strongest outfits in Johnstown, which will be importing familiar faces in six former Baltimore Orioles. Frank Ceryance, Ilio Marzo, Whitey Kowalski, Ned Vitarelli, Jack Dyte and George Boll played with the Baltimore team that finished second to the champion Eagles last season.

Pick Hines, who for several years turned out fine teams for the Orioles, is the business manager of the Bluebirds, who are coached by Jack McKinnon, former River Vale pilot. The mellowing McKinnon still is active as a player and is recognized as one of the Eastern League's leading Johnstown, new to the league this season, has scored 25 goals in four games while holding the opposition to 10. Washington has produced 14 goals in four engagements, permitting their foes to register 24.

Giants, Expecting to Battle 'One-Man' Team, in for Surprise, Redskins Believe

Tribe Banks on Aces Other Than Baugh For Tilt Sunday

Filchock, Hare, Seymour, Farkas Held Capable Of Making Trouble

By BILL DISMER, Jr.

That "one-man team" accusation hasn't been flung at the Redskins this season as last, but it appears as if that's what the Giants still think they are, judging from the tenor of a New York dispatch reaching here today.

"The Giants figure that if they stop Sammy Baugh, they will stop the Redskins." writes the New York observer, who goes on to say that perfecting of a defense for Baugh's feared passes has constituted the Giants' chief objective in daily drills this week.

"Steve Owen believes both teams will be about even, and that spirit and luck will decide the outcome of Sunday's battle," our informant continues, "but he readily concedes that Baugh will be the best passer on the field and that the Redskin attack is based upon passing.

on the ground, however, and intimates that George Franck, former Minnesota star who finally got going last Sunday against the Rams, will give Washington plenty of trouble Steve rates the opposing lines about the same, having great respect for the Redskin tackles, Jim Barber and Bill Wilkin, but giving his team a shade at the ends.

Giants Have Edge on Ground. Well, that analysis is all right with the Redskins, who would like to have Owen continue to believe that they will sink or swim with Baugh. Personally, they still have a lot of respect for Frank Filchock's passes, and they aren't willing to concede the Giants anything at ends with such flankmen of their own as Milner, McChesney, Masterson, Cifers,

Clair and Aguirre, As for the rivals' comparative running attacks-the Giants, on the record, do seem to have the edge with half a dozen runners having gained 80 yards or more while the Redskins have only three. But Filchock's 307 yards give him a 28-yard lead over Tuffy Leemans, the Giants' leading ground-gainer, and Andy Farkas' 140 is only 13 behind the New Yorkers' Len Eshmont and Andy Marefos, each of whom has accounted for 153. Both Bob Seymour of the Redskins and Ward Cuff of the Giants are credited with 83, but from there on the statistical edge is with the Giants. For Hank have gained more ground than Roy
Zimmerman, the Skins' fourth leading ground-gainer who hasn't done a lot of ball-carrying.

Baugh, Hare May Surprise.
But although the Giants hold the upper hand in quantity of yard-eat-Soar, Howie Yeager and Franck all upper hand in quantity of yard-eating backs, the Indians are consoled by the knowledge that all of the New York threats won't be in the game at one time and that they game at one time and that they (the Redskins)probably always will have as many high-stepping backs on the field as the Giants.

Unemphasized, too, are the infrequent ball-carrying bursts of Baugh and Ray Hare, who have proved more than adequate the few times they have been called upon to carry the mail. Hare, in fact, has the best average on the squad, having gained 32 yards in 8 attempts or an average of 4 yards per rush. He may prove one of the big surprises Sunday.

And with Seymour and Farkas all other offensive departments of showing unmistakable signs of giving Washington the ground punch it lacked the early part of the season and Filchock a dual threat carrying or throwing the ball, those Giant opinions-regarding a "one- even though the latter have played man team"-may be in for a few revisions, come Monday morn.

Terps' Win Puts Them Close to Expected Season Record

Defeat Generals, 6 to 0, In Closing Struggle; Du Vall, Mont Star

Ordinarily, a record of three victories as against five defeats and a tie is nothing to brag about, but you'll have to pardon Jack Faber today if he isn't exactly crying in one of his many laboratories on the College Park campus.

Faber's Maryland football team added that third victory to its 1941 schedule in its last game vesterday at Baltimore where, before some 4,500 fans, it whipped Washington and Lee, 6-0. The win gave the Terps their best record since the 1937 season

Also Meet Expectations. The peculiar and encouraging thing about Maryland's apparently disappointing record is that, with one exception, it did all right in its own class. The Terps opened the season by downing Hampden-Sydney, 18-0; surprised every one by beating Florida, 13-12. It was tied by Western Maryland, 6-6, but greatly outplayed the Terrors and nosed out W. and L. No one expected Maryland to give Duke or Penn any more than workouts, and it didn't. Georgetown's 26-0 margin was about what had been prepoints a game to the Redskins' 16 dicted, but Rutgers and V. M. Thereafter the Hoyas had several chances and muffed all. Early in the third period Blozis recovered a Manhattan fumble on the host team's 14. Georgetown drove to the 5 and was stopped. Early in the fourth period, with the ball on Man-Phillipson and Dave Legum. hattan's 23. Doolan passed to Bulvin, who ran to the 3. The play was called back because of a man in

Standing behind his own goal line a few minutes later, after Georgetown had lost many yards. Dornfeld kicked 83 yards from scrimmage and on the next play Vince Pesature of Mrs. Hall Golf Chairman the Jaspers fumbled and Stanley Jawrowski recovered on the 8. Again Georgetown was held and finally lost the ball when Johnny Barrett missed a field goal attempt

Despite the obvious superiority of the Hoyas, who had size, speed and statistics to back up this claim, the Jaspers might well have gained a 7-7 tie had not Doolan, the crack sprinter, been in Georgetown's backfield. Early in the second quarter, John Witkowski of Manhattan intercepted a pass by Dornfeld after the Hoyas had marched to his 27 and headed for a touchdown with a clear field ahead.

Probably only Doolan could have overhauled the Jasper quarterback and he did it on Georgetown's 35. Manhattan completed two successive passes, Finkoski heaving and Smolenksi receiving, to reach the Hilltoppers' 14, but another aerial was grabbed by Dornfeld in his end zone and that ended Manhattan's one serious scoring threat of the game.

'Suspicion' Is Gay Thriller In Best Hitchcock Style

Cary Grant-Joan Fontaine Screen Play At Keith's Is Perfect Mixture Of Merriment and Suspense

By JAY CARMODY.

When the year's best pictures are counted, which won't take very long, "Suspicion," which opened yesterday at Keith's, is sure to receive earnest consideration. In that one, starring Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine, Alfred Hitchcock has one of those mystery thriller tales which is a natural for the Hitchcock suspense technique, the one which keeps audiences bouncing between a laugh and a chill until the emotions are exhausted. It may drop rather to $- nothing at the end, or it may not, depending upon whether you read the book from which it was taken, "Before the Fact." To those who did not, which includes this commentator. Hitchcock's ending probably will look as logical as that of the original. A little on the soft side, but not illogical.

The question raised in the early portions of "Suspicion" is not so much whether the young bride some day will be murdered by her adoring mate as just when and how he is to accomplish it. Mr. Flynn's Gen. Custer Is an Original Portrait

'They Died With Their Boots On,' At Earle, Ignores Some History, But It Is Full of Action

Historians are not likely to be writing monographs in praise of the portrait of Gen. George Custer which Script Writers Wally Kline and Aeneas MacKenzie have tailored to Errol Flynn's measure in "They Died With Their Boots On." This is one case when that phrase "original screen play by" really means original. But devotees of the Western action drama will find plenty of what they want in the new film at the Earle-two whole hours.

'The Chocolate Soldier' Is a Melodious Treat

Capitol's Film, 'The Guardsman' Really, Stars Rise Stevens And a New Nelson Eddy

By HARRY MacARTHUR.

Before entering into any discussion of "The Chocolate Soldier," the new picture at Loew's Capitol, it probably is advisable to take note of a certain confusion advance announcements of the film have aroused. Curious as it has seemed to many admirers of George Bernard Shaw, who have chided drama departments for announcing the fact, "The Chocolate Soldier" is based on the Ferenc Molnar play called "The Guardsman" and has nothing to do with any !-

Shaw play called "Arms and the Man," which was the basis for the original operetta called "The Chocolate Soldier." M-G-M, you see, owned the Oscar Straus score and the title, "The Chocolate Soldier." It did not and does not own the right to film "Arms and the Man," with or without music. But, another Metro property is "The Guardsman," which it was free to use any time.

So now we have really a motion.

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1941.

So, now we have really a motion picture version of "The Guards- become an engaging cinema perman," in which an actress and her former when impersonating a mad husband are busy, between bouts of Russian, hiding behind a beard and jealous sparring, with an operetta an accent to lay siege to his wife's in which they sing the Straus music virtue, fearful the whole time that from "The Chocolate Soldier." he will win her away from him-There may be those among the self drama eugenics experts who would question the wisdom of this marriage of two disparate works of art, but they hardly will quibble after seeing the picture. The combination is brought off rather skillfully, Director Roy del Ruth having fashioned, from the material laid before him by Script Writers Leonard Lee and Keith Winter, a lively, colorful and melodious entertainment. It is in the old Nelson Eddy operetta tradition without being so long or so dull.

Mr. Eddy, who usually has been singing his songs to Jeanette Mac-Donald, has been given a new leading lady this time, and a thing of beauty she is-if not a joy forever, at least a joy for the duration of "The Chocolate Soldier." One of the Metropolitan's young American singers, her name is Rise Stevens, and she is not only beautiful, rare enough as that is in opera stars, but her graceful and charming acting is quite equal to the paces of a light charade about a wife whose husband does not trust her. That her voice is a delight is something you hardly need be told, though it might be added that she propels it with a most intriguing diaphragm There is a scene which music teach-THEY DIED WITH THEIR BOOTS ers will make a "must" for their pupils who try to sing with their tongues

The surprise of "The Chocolate Soldier" is Mr. Eddy, though his doting admirers will be quick to how! That it is no surprise at all Gene Lockhart that Mr. Eddy was made of wood that Mr. Eddy was made of wood, or at best was controlled by strings operated by a heavy-handed puppeteer off stage, are due for something that can only be called a surprise. Mr. Eddy even goes beyond

There have been minor changes, of course, from the Lunt-Fontanne version, the most important, perhaps, being that this time there is no doubt that the wife knows the identity of her suitor, a point which probably has kept the Hays office happier. But it is a minor point and detracts not a whit from a gay musical treat.
