Destroyer and Cruiser Are Sent Down; Earlier Sinking Of Battleship Confirmed

The United States Navy announced today that a and inefficiency" in the Navy Japanese light cruiser and a destroyer had been sunk in the last 48 hours during four unsuccessful Japanese in the Japanese attack on the attacks on the American outpost of Wake Island. Previously the Navy had reported the sinking by Army bombers of the 29,000-ton Japanese battleship Haruna in Philippine waters.

Almost at the same time a sharply favorable turn in American fortunes in the Philippines was indicated by unofficial but reliable reports from Manila that had been disclosed by President the hotly contested region of Aparri, in Northern Luzon, had been recaptured and that the invaders were being thrown back toward the seacoast.

Wake, it was disclosed, is being held by United States Marines. Their only reported loss in beating back four assaults was an unstated number of planes.

An attempt at a Japanese landing—other attacks having been limited to air and sea-was expected momentarily. Wake Island is one of a chain of island stepping stones to the Far East originally developed principally for trans-Pacific Clipper flights.

Churchill Expects U. S. Losses to Cut Help for Britain

Admits Libyan Reverses, But Predicts Ultimate Victory Against Axis

LONDON. Dec. 11 .-- Prime Minister Churchill spoke gravely today of United States and British naval losses in the Pacific and the Far East, declared Adolf Hitler committed a colossal blunder in attacking Soviet Russia, and predicted ultimate British victory in North Africa despite unexpected reverses.

"It may well be," he declared in a sweeping review of the broadened war, "that we shall have to suffer considerable punishment, but we shall defend ourselves everywhere with the utmost vigor and in close co-operation with the United States and Netherlands Navy.

"No one can underrate the gravity of losses inflicted on the United States nor underrate the length of time it will take to marshal the great forces necessary in the Far East for absolute victory."

Speaking seriously and appearing tired. Mr. Churchill nevertheless deelared confidently that the naval might of Britain and the United States "was very greatly superior and still is largely superior to the combined forces of the three Axis

He said bluntly that because of American naval losses Britain must expect that United States naval aid in the Atlantic and the volume of American supplies for Britain to be reduced, but added

"I cannot doubt now that the 130,000,000 people of the United States have bound themselves to this war and once they get settled down to it. * * that the flow of munitions and aid of every kind will vastly exceed anything that could have been expected up to the pres-

SECOND RACE — OWALLER, RIPPLING ON, MR. JIM. OWALLER has raced very consistently this fall and her best effort should be good enough to master the sort she hooks up

FOURTH RACE - RISKABIT, CAMPMEETING, HEARTS

RISKABIT hasn't shown much since his winning performance at Havre but the Bold Venture filly is reported training very well and she could come to life and score. CAMPMEETING won his last at this oval and he is as good as the race. HEARTS EN-TWINE won at Bowie and she

Italian and German Embassies Are Calm At War Declaration

'Figuratively Speaking,' Papers Have Been Lifted, Nazi Envoy Says

While radios blared and wires hummed today with news of Germany and Italy's declarations of war on the United States the German and Italian Embassies were about the quietest spots in the Capital.

When reporters rang the bell at the Italian Embassy shortly after Italy declared war, an aproned man servant appeared after a long interval with the announcement:

"The boss is still in bed." At the German Embassy, the Charge d'Affaires, Hans Thomsen, had only a brief statement to make at 10:25 o'clock on his return from the State Department. He declared that "figuratively speaking" the State Department had taken away his credentials today and he was "no longer an accredited diplomat."

Baron Comes and Goes Freely. Baron Ulrich von Gienanth, Second Secretary of the German Embassy, stopped to chat with reporters on one of several trips in and out of the Embassy this morning. He said that so far as he knew, he was under no restrictions and could go where he wished.

forces north of Luzon. This battleship is believed to be the 29,000-Haruna, or a vessel of the Haruna class.

"Continued attempts by strong Japanese forces to establish themselves along the northern coast of Luzon were reported. Determined resistance has confined this action to the vicinity of Aparri, at the extreme northern tip of Luzon, where the Japanese attempted to establish a beachhead yesterday. Air activity continued in the vicinity of Manila with intermittent attacks on airfields at Cavite and Nichols Field throughout the day."

Discussing this territory where the Japanese attempted to establish themselves, Secretary Stimson said he was familiar with the territory, since he had known it vell when he was the Governor dropped from the rolls. General of the Philippines.

Small Landing Place on Island.

"I know almost every foot of the vicinity of Aparri," he said.

"It is a small landing place on the northern tip of the island of Luzon and is practically shut off by the large mountain area of the mountain province on its south. If the Japanese tried to transport an army through that mountain province it will be a slow job for them." The Secretary made public a telegram of congratulations he had just sent to Lt. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commanding general of the Far Eastern command. He commended the general and his forces for their defense against the Japanese and declared that the soldiers, both American and Philippine, were fulfilling every tradition of their country. The Secretary said he still did not know all of the details of the fight at Hawaii last Sunday.

"We are now engaged," he said, "in strengthening our defense everywhere in Hawaii and everywhere else."

Apparently referring to discussions in Congress critical of the Hawaiian command, the Secretary said, "I do not deem this a time for recriminations-still less accusing accusations of blame. That is a sign of immature government and immature people. This is not even the moment for an investigation."

"That will come later."

Refers to Surprise Attack.

Referring to the surprise met by the contingent of Army bombers making a ferry flight to Hawaii when they landed in the middle of a fight, the Secretary explained that after the first one was shot down, all the others had therefore only a few seconds' warning. * Rosslyn, Va. Legal Complexities Make Job More Difficult Than Rounding Up Aliens

The Justice Department today turned attention to Americans of questionable loyalty as an offshoot of the roundup of alien enemies.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was understood to be scrutinizing particularly those persons suspected of "fifth column" activities, and those who have been propagandizing on the Axis' behalf.

Estimates of the number of suspects were unavailable, and officials took a cautious attitude toward this phase of the Government's work because of the legal complexities involved. It was explained that while and German, Italian or Japanese of questionable background may be picked up as an enemy alien. without formality, no American citizen may be arrested except on a charge violating the law.

In the initial sweep which netted 2,303 Axis nationals the Government agents took into custody the Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe, the Hungarian commoner who married royalty, and who in recent weeks has been living in Alexandria, it was reported last night by the Associated Press.

Princess Was Ordered Deported.

The princess, nearing 50 and once the reputed friend of high Nazi officials, was ordered deported in San Francisco in May, as an alien whose presence was considered "inimical" to the best interests of this country. She was in the country on a Hungarian passport.

The Government encountered the same trouble in her case, however, as in those of several thousand other aliens, no country being willing to receive her. Eventually the proceedings were abandoned, and she came to the Capital, registering in a hotel at M. de Stepessy and later taking up residence in the 600 block of Beverly drive, Alexandria, with her mother and a youth whom neighbors assumed to be her

Neighbors said this morning that there had been no signs of life around the house for two weeks. The princess last night was lodged in the immigration detention station at Gloucester, N. J., near Philadelphia, with a group of 65 aliens reportedly apprehended in Eastern

The department emphasized that this arrangement was made on a "strictly reciprocal basis"-assuring similar treatment for American diplomatic officials in Japan.

No Outside Contacts. No move has been made, however to permit outside contacts by those confined at the Embassy, these restraints applying also to employes

The State Department also an nounced that it had informed the German Embassy, in response to inquiries, that a number of German correspondents in this country had been held "for investigation," the list including Kurt Sell, for many years correspondent here for D. Then the fires, on opposite sides of the highway, appeared to resemble arrows, one pointing in the general direction of the Bremerton Navy Yard, the other toward Seattle. The patrolmen extinguished them.

At Port Angeles, Sheriff Charles Kemp said the fires were in brush which had been piled in windrows, 100 yards or more in length. He reported fires were set again yesterday in the same vicinity but later were extinguished on Army orders. Sheriff's officers and firemen at Port Angeles were skeptical about the fires having any significance.

U. S. Moves Swiftly To Launch Capacity Arms Production

Steps Taken to Defend Atlantic Coast From Surprise Attack

With the war against America spread to both oceans and vast new potential fronts by the German and Italian war declarations today, official Washington moved swiftly to broaden its naval and military plans to meet fresh menaces and to steam up production to its utmost capacity.

Alive to the danger of a surprise attack in the East, similar to the Japanese assault on Hawaii Sunday, the Government was taking immediate steps to intensify defense measures along the entire Atlantic

The War Department, in a communique last night, had announced the instant tightening of the ring of men and steel protecting the whole North American continent. Production plans for munitions and other necessities of war similarly were being pushed feverishly.

O. P. M., at the same time, jumped the monthly production goal of fourmotored bombers from 500 to 1,000 and announced a program for the construction of still more heavy bomber plants deep in the interior.

A virtual blank check in priority power was offered the Army and Navy by Priorities Director Donald Mr. Nelson indicated he would abolish the swollen "priorities critical list," specifying and delimiting the items which the armed services could order with automatic preference over other buyers, and let the naval and military authorities cope with shortages whenever and wherever they might occur Food Will Be Included.

GUARD FREEDOM OF THE SEAS. From gun turrets to propeller shafts, from mastheads to keel, in each of the Navy's new battleships there are more than 160,000 pounds of rubber.

SAVE THIS MAN'S LIFE. Life preservers now have inserts of a new type of cellular rubber, developed by rubber engineers, which is twice as light as cork, will never absorb enough water to sink.

AT WAR-THE STRIKING POWER OF NAVY GUNS AND SHIPS AND PLANES GREATLY DEPENDS ON RUBBER. Thus, the course of every American is clearly charted: Each of us must guard jealously and conserve frugally our own and our country's rubber resources... each must limit purchases of rubber goods to necessities...each must take care of them to the very utmost of his ability. In that way, we will make sure there will be rubber enough for guns and ships and planes . . . and victory.

INSURE FREEDOM OF THE SKIES. Supplied with current by rubber insulated electrical wires and cables, Navy searchlights probe the sky, find targets for Navy guns.

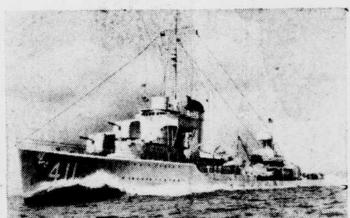

BUILD MORE SELF-SEALING TANKS. Navy fighting planes are equipped with self-sealing rubber gas tanks and self-sealing fuel hose which can be punctured but not set afire.

KEEP THE CREW OF THIS SUB SAFE. Submarines with rubber separators; on rubber air and oil hose; on rubber gaskets and expansion joints. U ships to prevent pitting and corrosion.

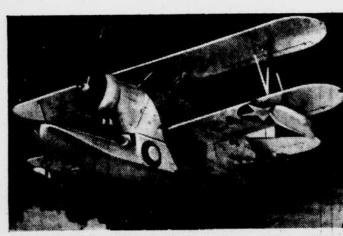

GIVE THIS BOMBER GAS AND OIL. Navy patrol. bombers, fighters and destroyers, cruisers and battleships are fueled through flexible rubber hose with inner tubes of synthetic rubber.

CONTROL COMMUNICATIONS. Nerves of the Navy are its radio, telephone, blinker, annunciator and control systems which depend upon rubber U insulated electrical wires and cables.

KEEP THIS PLANE ALOFT. Ship-based amphibian fighter planes are equipped with rubber tires, rubber self-sealing gasoline tanks and self-sealing rubber fuel hose.

INCREASE THIS GUN'S ACCURACY. Rubber mountings perfected for thousands of automotive and industrial applications damp out vibration in the U Navy's fast-firing guns.

EQUIP THIS AIRCRAFT CARRIER. U. S. S. Hornet, newest of the Navy's great fleet of floating airports, depends on thousands of rubber products for ship, crew and planes.

LAUNCH MORE SHIPS. In shipyards, long-wearing rubber air and steam hose drives rivets and furnishes power to complete ships, gets

A Time for Courage

As the strategic picture in the Ear East changes from bad to worse, as the enemy piles new success upon success, a deeper and fuller meaning is being given to the President's assertion that "this Government will put its trust in the stamina of the American people."

Upon our people-all of them-this imposes a solemn obligation. Their stamina and their courage are to be tested as never before.

It would be better not to expect good news from the Pacific for a long time. Too many people are exhausting themselves in these early days of the war by battling the disappointment that comes from expecting British and American successes comparable to the blows which have been struck by Japan. They would be wiser to anticipate news of graver reverses than those yet reported and to await it with that calm courage which looks beyond immediate setbacks, knowing that wars of this character are won over the years and not in the first few days.

As yet we do not know the extent of the damage suffered at Pearl Harbor. But we should be prepared for losses heavier than would seem indicated by some of the early reports. The eventual loss of the Philippines should not come as a shock to us. The islands will be defended valorously, but it is not in the cards of war for that outpost to be held indefinitely by the defensive forces available if the enemy is prepared to pay a sufficiently heavy price for its reduction.

The loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse are stunning blows. But the British people will bear them without flinching, and so must we. The American people should not permit the fact that Germany and Italy have declared war on us to distract them. For all practical purposes we have been at war with them for a long time and the military aspects are not changed by the fact that war formally has been declared. The German and Italian governments no doubt hoped that their action would have an adverse psychological effect in this country. The American people must frustrate that hope.

It would be well for all of us to keep in mind the fact that overwhelming disaster at the hands of aggressors has seemed to threaten the democracies before. It has been a year and a half since the fall of France sent a British army reeling out of Dunkerque with all of its equipment lost. It seemed then that the British Isles were lost, that Hitler was on the verge of realizing his cherished dream of world domination.

But that calamity has not come to pass. Britain is far stronger today than she was in the summer and fall of 1940. Her defenses still are intact. They have not fallen because the British people-all of them-possessed the stamina and the courage to face adversity in their darkest hour. If a similar test should be in the offing for the people of the United States, they, too, will meet it with fortitude. Meanwhile, they should not uselessly dissipate strength and energy which will be needed in the long pull that lies ahead.

Ships Lost

Perhaps nothing else in human experience is more tragic to witness than the death of a ship. No man who ever has watched a fine, brave vessel disappear beneath the waves is likely to forget the spectacle. Even to read of such a disaster stirs profound emotions in the average human breast. The news of the latest casualties of the British fleet, following immediately upon advance reports of the bombing of an undisclosed number of units of the American Navy at Pearl Harbor on Sunday, has saddened multitudes of people. Laid down on New Year Day, 1937, the Prince of Wales was one of five battleships of the King George V class, representing the most modern conception of what a floating fortress should be. Her' displacement was 35,000 tons; she was 739 feet in length, with a beam of 103 feet, and mounted ten new-model fourteeninch guns. In reference to her planning, it was officially declared that her design would embrace enhanced defense against air attack, including an improved distribution of deck and side armor, more elaborate subdivision and an improved system of underwater protection.

Older but still a remarkably good dated 1916. Bearing a full load, she safety from aerial attack. weighed 36,800 tons. Her dimensions Visitors to the scene never have rattlesnake gives warning.

were 787 feet by 102 feet, and she carried six fifteen-inch guns with "range only limited by maximum visibility." Refitted with stouter sheeting, she was younger and in every way more competent than her average contemporary.

Both ships were sacrificed to the protection of Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies and Australia. But it likewise must be mentioned that they constitute an earnest of the British Empire's support of the United States in the conflict with Japan. As to exactly how they were destroyed and what personnel has died in them, nothing final or definitive can be said at this time. What is plain and clear is the necessity for the speedy replacement of all such vessels as may be lost.

Germany's Winter Alibi

Nothing better illustrates the relativity of news than the way startling developments in the Russo-German war have been crowded off the front pages of our papers by the even more sensational happenings of the American-Japanese war. Were we still at peace, dispatches from Berlin and Moscow would win streaming headlines and extensive comment.

The first of these impressive dispatches is a declaration from the Berlin military spokesman that winter has stopped the German armies short of Moscow and that the capture of the Soviet capital is not expected before next spring. In similar vein, Helsinki, the capital of Finland, reports a climatic stalemate before Leningrad. All up and down the 2,000-mile front from the Arctic to the Black Sea, the Axis forces are described by their own spokesmen as "digging in" to spare their troops from weather so severe that "the oil freezes in motorized vehicles, while officers and soldiers trying to take cover simply freeze to the ground." The inference is that even the projected campaign to retake Rostov and invade the relatively mild Caucasus with its precious oil fields has been abandoned for the winter season.

Are we to take such statements at their face value? And, if so, what does it mean in other theaters of war? Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's newly arrived Ambassador in Washington, is inclined to be skeptical, saying in a recent interview: "You cannot trust anything coming from Berlin. It may be a trick." However, the Russians do not seem to be disposed to go into winter quarters. They are officially reported, not only as having launched vigorous counteroffensives around Moscow, but also to have recrossed the Straits of Kerch in the Eastern Crimea at the very moment when the garrison of besieged Sevastopol, at the western end of that same peninsula, is making a similar attack on the German lines. In both cases they are said to have found the German forces depleted, presumably to bolster the threatened German retreat from nearby Taganrog, which is still being pressed by Timoshenko's tanks and massed cavalry.

All this opens up a fascinating field for speculation. If the Wehrmacht has really called a winter halt in Russia, it is unthinkable that Germany's military power will not be used elsewhere during the winter months ahead; because the German high command knows that it has no time to waste. Will the Wehrmacht deliver powerful blows in the Mediterranean, at Turkey for a dash at Syria and the Near East, or perhaps into North Africa both to relieve Libya and to occupy Dakar in connection with war with America, which now is a fact? Any or all these alternatives may soon come to Equally intriguing are Russia's possible moves. Assuming that Germany has abandoned its great offensive until spring, will the Soviet high command play the same game? If it does, and if a winter stalemate descends upon its European front, will Russia join the A. B. C. D. powers in waging vigorous war against Japan? Thus far, the Soviet Government has made no sign, and the non-aggression treaty with Japan continues in full effect. Logically, it would seem a golden opportunity for Russia to help clean up its potential menace in the Far East. Yet it may be that recent Russian victories in Europe have been gained only by depleting its Siberian armies below the danger point against a Japanese assault. Until the situation clarifles, therefore, it will remain one of tantalizing speculation.

Objective Singapore The target of Japan's present campaign in the Southwest Pacific includes the British naval base at Singapore. Nothing else in that portion of the world that they might take would be secure to the Nipponese so long as the "Gibraltar of the East" remained unreduced. The mighty fortress which has been raised from the Malay jungle and swamp since 1923 was intended at first primarily as a dockyard equal to the needs of capital ships of modern size. Original plans were expanded as the threat to the chief sea route to Europe, India and Africa

A glance at a map will suffice to show the strategic significance of the citadel as it exists today. The Straits of Singapore offer the only convenient passage between the Pacific and the Indian Oceans. A channel only three-quarters of a mile wide separates the Malay peninsula from the island occupied by the base. Defensive works are not closely battle cruiser was the Repulse, the affiliated. Rather, they have been been encouraged, and little therefore is known concerning the details of the facilities available in the neighborhood. Some idea of the strength of Singapore, however, may be obtained from its cost. In 1936 the sum of $75,000,000 was mentioned as the total investment contemplated. Since that date more undoubtedly has been spent. Equipment is known to include the largest drydock ever built anywhere and the largest floating drydock ever constructed. The largest batteries of 18-inch guns are supposed to be among the instruments of protection ready for action against any foe.

In 1940 Major George Fielding Eliot

anticipated "an assault on Singapore by the army under protection of the fleet." Formosa, he wrote, "would be the assembly point. It is 1,800 miles from Formosa to Singapore. or a matter of a week's steaming for a fleet of transports at ten or twelve knots. This fleet would have to pass between Hong Kong and Manila, only 640 miles apart and both containing submarines and long-range naval flying boats. Approaching Singapore, it would come within the radius of action of aircraft based there while still two and one-half to three days' steaming time away. By this time it would be under heavy attack from Dutch and Australian aircraft and Dutch submarines operating from Borneo. In order to avoid concerted attack by British, American and Dutch cruisers and destroyers, it would have to be escorted by armored ships, meaning that Japan would have to risk the whole of her armored fleet * * * in the South China Sea, 1,800 miles from the nearest Japanese-defended harbor and 2,400 miles from the nearest Japanese drydock which can take a capital ship." This picture, certainly, has changed in the past few days but up to the beginning of hostilities it still was reasonably accurate.

Presumably it was to avoid the peril sketched by Major Eliot that the Nipponese war lords decided to move upon Singapore through French Indo-China and Thailand. The success of their maneuver has not yet been demonstrated, and there is reason to hope that it will be prevented by operations on the part of Britain and her allies long since prepared for such an emergency.

A Serious Business The rebuke administered by Lt. Gen. John L. De Witt to apathetic citizens of San Francisco who refused to heed recent air raid warnings and blackout orders should be taken to heart by the public generally. The actual sighting of hostile airplanes along the West Coast, where they resumably were engaged in reconnaissance operations from a carrier at sea, clearly demonstrates that "it can happen here"-however fantastic the idea of an enemy bombing raid on our mainland may seem to many persons. These are truly fantastic times and the developments to date in Hawaii, the Philippines and Malaya are convincing evidence that this is a fantastic war, in which we must be prepared not only for expected but for wholly unexpected

Because the threat of aerial raids suddenly has become more than imaginary, the time has passed when air raid precautions and home guard activities can be taken lightly by any citizen. This has become a serious business, requiring expert, full-time leadership from top to bottom, particularly at the top. Mayor La Guardia and Mrs. Roosevelt, who have given as much as their time to directing the program as their multitudinous other duties will permit, obviously are unable to render the type of wartime generalship which now is essential to success of the civilian defense effort. It is only fair to them and to the program to relieve them of this additional task and place it in the hands of experienced authorities, capable of whipping the whole organization into shape for effective community action and obtaining unstinted public cooperation.

Thousands of patriotic citizens already have enlisted for this emergency service and, with expert guidance and instruction, they can render valuable service to their country in hour of peril. Many local organizations have made commendable progress, despite discouraging handicaps -including public indifference of the sort criticized by General De Witt and lack of funds and equipment. The District has begun to make progress, after initial confusion and delay. Colonel Lemuel L. Bolles, executive director of civilian defense, has announced that test blackouts will be held as soon as organizational work has been completed. He tentatively suggested six weeks hence as the date. Unless our enemies agree to wait so long, six weeks is too far away. The tests should be begun as soon as necessary advance notice and instructions can be given to the public, so as to avoid hysteria, confusion and street accidents. Such tests should be of short durationperhaps not more than half an hour in length. And they should be taken seriously by every one. Incredible as it may seem today, the lessons learned from these rehearsals may save lives and property in some grim tomorrow that may not be as long as six weeks hence.

Well, from now on for a while we will not have to listen to tales of how really infinitesimal a portion of time has been lost in defense industries from strikes.

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

The influenza situation this fall, as revealed by the latest statistics gathered by the United States Public Health Service, is the most curious on record.

should rise in any normal year for the country as a whole. It is rising at the rate of a hundred or more cases a week and there are more than double as many reported as at the same time last year. But approximately half of all the cases still, as was the situation in early autumn, are confined to the single State of Texas and primarily to the civilian population. The great concentrations of troops in that State apparently have not affected the rate at all. Very few cases have been reported from Army camps.

This is a crucial time when the rate

The sicknesses to date have been relatively mild. At any time, the Government doctors have expected, influenza would break across the Texas borders but this has not happened.

There have been dire predictions of an epidemic comparable to 1918-19. These are based on what the Public Health physicians believe to be a false assumption-that flu in the United States runs in approximately 20-year-cycles. They are also based on the fear that the Texas epidemic is a holdover from that which gripped the State early last winter and that the virus has gained in virulence instead of "burning out," as has happened with other recent epidemics.

Week after week the Texas rate jumps. For the past week, with three States not reporting, there were 2,338 cases in the entire United States. Texas supplied 1.295 of them. The week before the Lone Star State accounted for 1,085 cases out of 2,372. The Northern States were almost entirely free. Only Oklahoma, South Carolina, Virginia and Arkansas reported more than 100 cases.

The reports, admittedly, are far from complete and are relied on only to reveal trends. Influenza is difficult to diagnose and many physicians will not report mild cases. They always are justified, for only laboratory tests would establish a bad cold accompanied by fever as actually "flu." The Public Health Service is making no predictions. Says Dr. James P. Leake. Public Health Service epidemiologist:

"Influenza is not like measles, epidemics of which can be predicted with reasonable assurance. There are too many variables. At present I see no reason for predicting more flu than usual this winter."

A series of "severity of climate yardsticks" is being issued by the United States Weather Bureau.

Based on records in some cases covering more than 75 years, these maps prepared by Dr. J. B. Kincer, chief of the Division of Climatology, show the expectancy of days with minimum temperature at freezing or lower during the normal temperature recession from fall to midwinter.

For an average fall day when the minimum temperature drops below freezing in the early morning, Mr. Kincer points out, there is usually a rather rapid warming up during the forenoon with afternoon readings considerably above freezing. As the season advances, however, colder days during which the thermometer remains continually below the freezing point become more frequent in much of the United States. The number of these days is an index of climate severity by which different areas can be compared.

Take, for instance, the probability that November 1 will be continuously below freezing. Mr. Kincer's maps show that this can be expected one year in 10 in south Central Minnesota and North Central South Dakota. South of the Central Ohio Valley the expectancy is less than 1 in 25.

On September 15, Mr. Kincer points out, freezing weather may be expected to occur 1 year in 10 in a considerable Northern Rocky Mountain area, the interior of the Northeast, and locally in the extreme Central-Northern portion of the country. On October 15 there will be freezing temperatures 1 year in 10 as far south as West Virginia in the mountain sections of the East and in the Midwest to Southeastern Iowa and Central Oklahoma. The November 15 line runs well into the Southern States. to Central Georgia and Alabama, and North Central Texas. A month later the Gulf districts are approached.

On January 15, chosen as a typical midwinter day, freezing temperatures may be expected south of Central Tennessee in less than half the years. By mid-October freezing temperatures may be expected on more than 40 per cent of the days in the Northern and Northwestern Great Plains.

Eventually Mr. Kincer expects to have the entire country mapped for typical days through the fall and winter. This, he believes, will provide householders and such concerns as fuel and power companies a hitherto unavailable kind of data on which to base their calculations. It also will settle many weather arguments.

In the past communities have boasted of "average temperatures." These, Mr. Kincer holds, may have little practical meaning unless one knows the variations to which they are subject from day to day!

Quotes Kenya Correspondent In Appreciation of American Leaders.

To the Editor of The Star: The following is what one of my relatives, holding an important position in Mombasa, Kenya Colony, British East Africa (no. he is not an Englishman) has written to me about our president and Wendell Willkie: "That F. D. R. of yours is magnificent, and will go down in history as one of the greatest statesmen that ever lived. But Willkie should share the glory. Who ever saw a defeated candidate acting so splendidly in double harness with his vanquisher? He is on a par with our own Gen. Smuts . . Truly great minds."

I thought that perhaps your readers would be interested to know what admiration and appreciation these men are receiving thousands of miles from here. It certainly makes us Americans feel doubly proud and grateful and

"BERWYN, Md.

"Dear Sir: "The other morning, one of those cold ones, I was busy in the dining room, when my attention was attracted to the living room window by the loud screeches of a bird apparently in great distress. Thinking some cat probably had caught a bird. I rushed to the window and looked through the thin glass curtains. There on the rim of the bird's bath a large, beautiful jay was trying to get a drink by pecking at the solid mass of frozen ice. After each peck, he would twist his body around in a position facing the window at which I was standing (I am sure he couldn't see me) and screech his loudest. The thought occurred to me that probably he was asking for a drink. So I took water out to the bird bath. Of course, he flew away as soon as I opened the door. Then I went back to the window to see if that jay would return. Before I finished counting 20 he flew down and drank his fill, he then twisted his body around, faced the window behind whose curtains I was watching, and flew away without making a sound. "Would you call this an unusual incident? I was so surprised, it really looked as if the bird was asking for water. "I like your column and read it a lot. "Sincerely, H. W. McN."

There can be little doubt that the jay asked for water

Most species of birds send committees to the house to ask for more seed when the supply has run out.

English sparrows, which are lazy birds, in a sense, specialize in doing this.

If the householder is in the front yard, a half dozen sparrows will fly to the There, perched on some shrubs, they will chirp away with unusual violence until the worker goes to the back yard to fill up the bird-feeding station. These sparrows are lazy only in the sense they prefer to get their food without too much endeavor, a failing in which humanity may sympathize. The cardinals refuse to be lured by the full dinner pail. (Who remembers when that was a political slogan?) Redbirds hunt for their food in fall and winter, as well as summer. While they patronize well-stocked feeding stations, they do so only at times, especially during the last hour of daylight. Most of the time, the cardinals are finding natural foods, such as seeds and berries.

The English sparrows, on the other wing, much prefer to keep close to a supply of cracked grains put out by some person who enjoys feeding them. They are lazy, in a sense, but only in a sense. Otherwise, they are as active and as full of pep as most birds.

Mocking birds often come to a window and indicate as plainly as they can that they would like something to eat.

By Charles E. Tracewell.

This is particularly true when the bird has reason to feel that a supply will be forthcoming if it asks for it.

Concepts of asking and getting are scarcely in the bird's mind, it must be admitted, but still it has some way of understanding that the house has something to do with its desire to eat.

Fishes in the home aquarium similarly understand the relation of the hand to their own hunger.

It does not take a fish long to find out that when the hand appears over the surface of the water, it is there to help it, not harm it.

In nature, any shadow over the water is a sign for a fish to go down. This first of the submarines understands perfectly that it may be a kingfisher or some other flyer seeking it as prey.

Nature has made most species of fishes dark on the back and light on the stomach, so that they will blend with the water and the sky, according to the direction in which the enemy looks. If a bird looks down, the fish is dark, even as the water is dark. If a larger fish looks up, the small fish is lighter underneath, and so blends with the light from the sky. In each case, the possible prey is more or less invisible.

The blue jay is one of the few birds which seems to have a sense of humor. Whether this helps a bird, as it does human being, is a question. A sense of humor, among men, often carries one through dark hours. Just what help it gives a bird, we do not know, but it is certainly true that a jay seems to have it. He is always twisting around, poking out his head, looking this way and that, for all the world as if he were trying to attract attention. In attracting it, however, he does not want sheer attention so much as he does sympathy with what he is doing.

Sympathy, after all, is the basic quality in a sense of humor. The person with this sense is very likely to be a kind person, without any of the crafty malice which often masks as wit. We believe it is much the same with the jay, and with its four-legged pal, the squirrel. Each of these understands what is funny, much as a human being does. Mark Twain's tale about the jay trying to fill a deserted cabin with acorns via the chimney is a classic. The other jays peered down the chimney, looked into the window and then screamed with jayish laughter at the impossible task the lone bird had set for itself. The point is not that this story may or may not be true, but that the author realized the potentialities of the blue jay as a humorist.

He sensed, what all of us can know who watch the birds, that America's blue jay will do some of the confoundest things, at times, and do them with a flair which sets him apart from any other bird.

Asks Why Americans Fail to Sing Beautiful National Anthem.

To the Editor of The Star

Why does not the American public sing its national hymn? Whenever the orchestra starts to play the stirring song of this great republic, people stand up, perhaps listen, perhaps applaud, then

Two years ago, I traveled all over Europe. In Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Switzerland, France, yes in Italy and Germany, the people enthusiastically sang the sacred melodies of their respective nationalities. While on a British steamer, in the middle of the Atlantic, an English lord and a British sailor, middle-class and servants, prayerfully sang "God Save the King." Why are we, alone, so indifferent to our patriotic anthem? If this anathy of the American public does not cease, we, foreign-born but proud adopted citizens alone will sing the words of that beautiful "Star Spangled Banner." Our heavy foreign accent perhaps will not harmonize with the accent of Francis Key Smith, but our BLAISE HOSPODAR. spirit does.

Anticipates Justice for All When Peace Has Been Restored. To the Editor of The Star:

Now that the unbelievable horror and shock of reality has surpassed weirdest expectation or prophesy, our minds and wills resolutely orient themselves for the grim ordeal that lies ahead. First there is a surge of prayerful gratitude that our President and commander in chief displayed such wise and determined foresight and that this hour of cold-blooded and dastardly treachery does not find us heipless and totally unprepared. Had the counsels of those who so bitterly opposed him in the proper performance of his sworn duty prevailed, this also would be our hour of supreme tragedy and humiliation. We would have been completely at the mercy of ruthless foes. Now those who charged our President with unworthy motives do not even have the consolation of saying: "He took us into war against his promise." Whatever may be his conceded faults, our President stands vindicated in the judgment of history. He has demonstrated his right to lead us, as a reunited Nation, to the victory that hope tells us must

But the mind gropes beyond the needs and compulsions of the present tragic hour and the heart once more sobs the bitter wail of those whose dream and hope was for a better world. How did we fail? Why must we who risked our lives a few short years ago now send our sons into the maw of death to find the peace we sought and thought we had won for evermore? Unless this time we can find the Holy Grail, our sons too will join the endlessly marching hosts of those who have died in vain. This time the peace all lovers of justice and right vainly have sought through the sorrowful ages must be won and lost no more. No price is too great to pay because it is for our children that we seek it.

What is the price? It ever has been the same: To give social justice even to those too weak to demand it or too miserable and ignorant to expect it. Sends Thanks for Editorial And Weekly Bible Class News.

To the Editor of The Star:

May I express the appreciation of this association and its 193 member Bible classes for the timely editorial which appeared in The Sunday Star for December 7 on "Bible Week"? The events that followed a few hours after your editorial appeared made it all the more timely. Our association observed Bible Week with a great meeting on December 8 that filled a rather large auditorium to more than capacity. Day by day it is necessary that our "spiritual defense keep step with our military preparedness."

May I again thank you on behalf of our association for the weekly column on "News of the Bible Classes"? I do not know of any one thing that has contributed so much to the remarkable growth of this association and has stimulated the work of our local Bible classes as this column which The Star so generously publishes each Saturday.

"I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown. and he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than a light and safer than a known way." There is a blessed assurance to be found in those words, so humbly spoken by His Majesty.

Long-Range View Needed In Jap War

Capacity to Produce And Strike Rests With America

By DAVID LAWRENCE. The morale of the Nation, and especially its shock over the first defeats suffered by the United States Navy, needs bolstering at the moment but the a d m i nistration is so preoccupied with the thousand and one requirements of total war that the mood of the country is not yet a subject of paramount consideration for officialdon. President Roosevelt by his superb address David Lawrence. over the radio set forth the essentials of the international situation and the need for calmness in the face of rumor. But the Nation is suffering not so much from lack of information as from a hastily developed case of apprehension and lack of confidence in the Navy and its air auxiliary.

What must be taken into consideration is that the fortunes of air battle are fluctuating and that the true test of the clash of air power and sea power has come again and again in European waters only to be scoffed at by the naval experts. The importance of air power has been conceded but never to the point of admitting that the air arm by itself might be important enough to be developed in size and quality to an equal rank with the Army and Navy. On paper air power is given high rank but in actual operations it is still a new and, from our standpoint, an untried force.

Long-Rrange View Necessary.

This may mean defeats and reverses at the outset but it is the long-range view which American public opinion must adopt at the present time. Defeats are hard to bear and they destroy confidence and spread fear but in the final analysis the airplane and the modern ship are products of a mechanized age, and that nation or group of nations will win this war which has the steel and the aluminum and the mass production capacity to put engines and airplanes and ships into commission fastest and in greatest quantity.

Japan has a steel capacity of 8.000,000 tons as against a capacity here of more than 10 times that amount. America's factories can produce a limitless quantity of engines of destruction. It will take time but in the end the might of America will be mobilized. Lives will be lost and these are not replaceable, but the battleships and the airplanes lost by the United States can be and will be replaced without difficulty.

It is a serious question how valuable capital ships really will be in the future. Present construction will be completed but the need of America is for more and more air

America perhaps will be on the defensive in the Pacific for several weeks and not soon be able to strike serious blows on the offense. But as time elapses, week by week and month by month, the Japanese will be the ones to grow apprehensive. They may take strategic islands now and even parts of the Philippines, yet they cannot hold them indefinitely as British and American and Dutch sea power as well as air power is combined for action. One fact overlooked generally is that the British-Dutch-American fleet never has had a chance to function as a unit and it will take some time to develop the necsary co-ordination of movement and strategy between them. Japan knew this and struck first, but it is at best a temporary advantage. The

Failure to Inform Public Fully on Pearl Harbor Attack Shows Caution, Not Attempt to Whitewash

Americans want to know what happened at Pearl Harbor last Sunday morning. Many of them with relatives or friends on naval vessels there, or in the air services or the Army are desperately anxious to know whether they are among the casualities. But above these desires comes the safety of Nation and of the naval and military forces now in the Pacific. It is all important that information which might be seriously harmful to both be not given to the enemy. This is the impelling reason for reticence now on the part of the President and the naval and military authorities.

By GOULD LINCOLN.

If there was negligence or bad judgment-if the authorities were "asleep"—and the result was disastrous loss of life, of ships and planes and other material, those things are known or will be known to the President Commander-in-Chief of all the forces. And eventually they will be known to the American people. They in themselves constitute no good reason for silence. Indeed, they should be aired. There is no information, however in the hands of Congress or the general public on which to form judgment.

Three days, during which there was at first wide demand for full information about any probable or possible losses, have brought a more reasonable attitude on the part of members of Congress. Demands for courtmartial of commanding officers at Honolulu, both naval and military, were voiced and one member of the House, Representative Dingell, Democrat, of Michigan gave them immediate and public pronouncement. The House Naval Affairs Committee invited Secretary of the Navy Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, to come before it yesterday to obtain from them the details of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Secretary Knox was on his way to the Pacific Coast and Admiral Stark was too busy with important duties to appear before the committee.

Physical Fitness Vouched For. One witness the Naval Affairs Committee did have before it, the surgeon general of the Navy, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire. Representative Vincent of Kentucky wanted to question him about the physical fitness of high ranking officers, whether they are fit for war service. The surgeon general told the committee that these officers are subject to physical examination. Had such examination proved them unfit for such duty, they would not have been in their present posts.

The American people have great faith and pride in their Navy, in its Air Corps and in the Marines. If the naval forces have met a reverse, due to a longplanned and treacherous attack while this country and Japan were not only still at peace but while negotiations between the two governments were still continuing, there is still no reason for Americans to lose faith. The American Navy has never let the people down. Now that a war is actually on, it will not let them down. This war is just be-

The members of the Senate and House who are in position to know what has happened at Pearl Harbor are foremost in the determination today that no information shall be given to the public which might find its way to Japan and to other potential enemies of this country, and which might prove detrimental. This is no effort at cover-up or white-wash. It is just common

British Situation Different. In some quarters the speed with which Winston Churchill announced the sinking of two of Britain's great capital ships after they had met disaster in combat with Japan's air forces has been compared unfavorably with the reticence of this Government's report on the Pearl Harbor attack. These vessels were sunk in full view of the Japanese forces. There was no reason for withholding the information. This is a different situation. The hurried hit and run attack of the Japanese air forces on Pearl Harbor did not give opportunity for them to know how much or how little damage they were able to do. To put the enemy now in full command of this information would only be an aid to

So far as the casualty lists are concerned, the Navy handles them as speedily as possible. The first of kin of any men who are lost will be notified as soon as the Bureau of Navigation has the names. Such information is invariably so transmitted before it is given out for publication If it needed further demonstration, the value of aircraft in naval warfare has been clearly shown again in the war in the Pacific. The theory that modern battleships are not sinkable by air attack apparently has been exploded. The loss of the British battleship Prince of Wales, has again demonstrated the power of air attack, and so has the attack on Pearl Harbor. And yet as an offensive weapon, the battleship cannot be discarded by the American Navy or any other. In a naval battle at sea, with supporting naval surface and undersea craft and air forces, the fleet with the strongest battleships has the upper hand. It is reassuring to hear from William Knudsen. head of O. P. M., that production of heavy air bombers is to be 1.000 a month

This Country has been at war only four days. It is wise for the present to suspend judgment, particularly until the real facts are available upon which to base a judgment. Certainly it is no time for hysterical condemnation.

Japanese Will Have Hard Time in Islands As Long as Gen. MacArthur Commands

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The official report that the United States air force has smashed at Japanese transports on their way to land in the Philippines was the first cheerful news of four gloomy days of war. Otherwise the fourth day of the war with Japan announced itself in even worse fashion than its predecessors: Spectacular successes of the Japanese air force against the Allies.

The sinking of the best and newest units of the British fleet in the Far East is a staggering blow. They fought valiantly, but went down under the attack of the Japanese planes.

In the days before planes became the most important weapons in sea or land battles a naval force going into battle had its capital ships protected by cruisers, destroyers and submarines. Capital ships have a tremendous fire power with their 14, 15 or 16 inch guns.

In modern battles, however, these sea fortresses must be protected against mass attack of enemy planes by planes either from a nearby base or from aircraft carriers. The British ships did not have such protection. They had been rushed to the Pacific when it became obvious that war there was inevitable. But the British carriers were kept in the European waters to help the fleet against the Nazis.

We Can 'Take It.'

Britain evidently counted on American aircraft carriers to protect its fleet. It is logical to conclude that some plans for joint operations had been devised by the British and the American high commands whereby each would contribute a certain type of naval force in the vital battle for Singapore.

The reason American carriers were not available is a military secret which eventually will be explained by those who possess the answer to all the events which have occurred since Sunday morning.

The paramount quality of the American people is that they can "take it" when confronted with an adverse situation. The worse things are the more determined the people of this country become to see it through. And there is no question that we have many lean months, if not years, ahead

We have underestimated the Japanese aviation. It is true that they don't possess more than 5.000 army planes. But these are quite close to the scene of operations. They have their bases in Formosa and in the seven or eight military airdromes in Indo-China. A number of their carriers-they are known to possess eight, but it is likely that two more may have been built in the course of the last two yearsare in operation in the South Under these circumstances they appear to have the advantage in the air over their

MacArthur Has Hard Road.

We must expect to see hardhitting Lt. Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur making a splendid showing in the Philippines. Gen. Mac-Arthur is a real soldier who is used to fighting against difficult odds. He is capable of inspiring the men under his command to

So far the American-Philippine force has given an excellent account of itself and this will continue regardless of circumstances. The Japanese will have a hard task landing in the islands as long as Gen. MacArthur has one man and one gun available. But while we must not become disheartened at the successes of the Japanese, we must also not exaggerate our own successes.

Gen. MacArthur has a hard road ahead of him. Unless the South Pacific Fleet can be immediately reinforced-and it is possible that we may hear some surprising and pleasant news in the near future—we must remember that as long as the Japanese control the seas in that area, it will be difficult for the garrison in the Philippines to receive reinforcements or supplies. Whatever is on hand now must last for a long time and the commanding general of a defensive force cannot be sparing with war material.

Singapore Situation Serious.

The situation at Singaporesince we had better put all the bad news together—is precarious.

The "Gibraltar of the Far East" is well-defended and garrisoned by excellent metropolitan Australian and Indian troops. The defection of Thailand and the loss of the most powerful British naval units which were intended to defend the approaches to the Peninsula have rendered the situation of the defending force dif-

The Japanese are reported to have concentrated between Formosa and Singapore the bulk of their navy, consisting of at least 10 battleships and the usual auxiliaries-light and heavy cruisers, destrovers, submarines and probably half their carriers. With this naval force available they will continue to pound at the gates of the British fortress in an effort to bring a decision in as short a time as possible. They will spare neither men nor material in order to achieve their purpose. To Japan the possession of Singapore means control of the South Pacific and occupation of the Netherlands Indies with their enormous supplies of war materials for the continuation of the

Damage in Pacific Greater Than Nazis Inflicted in 2 Years

By JAY G. HAYDEN.

Of all the world-shaking developments of the last few days the most astounding is that Japanese air power, despised by all American and British experts before the event. has done more damage to heavy naval craft in this brief period than the German air force has accomplished in the whole war. The proudest boast of the British Admiralty before last Sunday was that Jay G. Hayden. not a single British battleship had been sunk by air attack, and this statement has been echoed over and over again by American admirals, arguing that events all had confirmed the impregnability of battleships to air assault. So far as has been reported no

German capital ship has been sunk by air attack. The Bismarck was crippled and slowed down by torpedo planes, but it was the big guns of the Prince of Wales and other British naval vessels that finally sent her to the bottom.

It was officially announced from London yesterday that the Prince of Wales, newest and largest of British naval vessels, and the battle cruiser Repulse, almost as large. but completed during the World War, had been sunk by Japanese bombs, fired from the air.

U. S. Losses Severe. Details as to American naval losses in the bombing of the fleet at Pearl Harbor still are officially withheld, but information given to Senators from an authoritative naval source has left no doubt that the damage done to our battleships substantially exceeds the British loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse.

The strict secrecy respecting their rmed forces, which the Japanese long have maintained, has prevented foreigners from obtaining much information about them from within Japan, but American and British intelligence officers have kept close track of Japanese air operations over China. The conclusion from reports so derived had been that Japan's air equipment of all sorts was obsolete as compared with German. British and American types: that Japan had few heavy bombers and none that could fly at great heights; that Japanese marksmanship from the air was decidedly bad; and that their pilots, although daring to the last degree, were insufficiently trained.

All of these deductions have been completely swept out of the window by this week's engagements. Reports from Hawaii, the Philippine Islands and Singapore all declare that the Japanese not only are using heavy bombing planes, flying so high that they are not discernible with the naked eye, but their marksmanship, particularly against surface warships, has been phenomenally good.

It is said to have been definitely established that the planes attacking Pearl Harbor were of the four-motor type, which it is not possible to launch from an aircraft carrier. This leads to the conclusion that they must have flown from land bases, the nearest of which in Japanese territory are in the mandated Marshall Islands, approximately 2.000 miles from Honolulu. This means that the Japanese planes must have flown non-stop, coming and going, about 4,000 miles, an extremely long distance for any previously known bombing aircraft. Use of German Planes Doubted.

One frequently heard conjecture is that the planes the Japanese are using were supplied from Germany and that they also may be manned in whole or in part by German pilots and gunners. A degree of support for this idea was supplied by a dispatch from Singapore, Wednesday, saying that it was reported, without official conformation, that German pilots had been found in Japanese planes shot down there. American airmen, however are unable to figure how German planes in formidable numbers could have been delivered to Japan since the European war began in September, 1939. Since that date all overseas connection between Germany and Japan has been cut off by the British blockade. This leaves the possibility that German planes might have been flown to Japan, but that also would seem to be an extremely difficult feat.

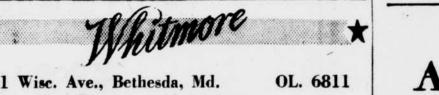

The distance from the most easterly point in Germany to Japan is about 5,500 miles-too far for a nonstop flight. Approximately half of the route is over Russia and the other half over Russia and Manchukuo or China

That the Chungking government of China would have supplied such bases for planes destined for its enemy, Japan, is out of the question, and Japanese-occupied sections of China are too far eastward to serve this purpose.

It is conceivable that in the period between the invasion of Poland and June, 1941, while Russia was more or less allied with Germany, the Soviet might have permitted use of its Siberian bases for German planes bound for Japan.

The one thing that is undisputed is that the Japanese supposedly weak in the air, have turned up with an ample supply of bombers, so based as to play havoc with the naval and air forces which Great Britain and the United States so far have sent against them.

Japs Sank Repulse With Fierce, Daring Attack, Eyewitness Says

Cecil Brown, C. B. S. Correspondent, Reports

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.-The Brit- sion. ish battle cruiser Repu'se went down in the South China Sea under the fiercest Japanese attack pressed home with daring like that of the British in their raid at Taranto, Italy, Cecil Brown, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent in Singapore, reported today.

Mr. Brown was aboard the Re-pulse and cabled the following story of her last moment to his home

"I was aboard the battle cruiser Repulse when she was sent to the bottom under the fiercest Japanese attack in the South China Sea far off the Malaya coast.

"As I was swimming in thick oil water I also saw the Prince of Wales go to the bottom a half mile away in the greatest British naval

Unrecorded Capital Entering U. S. Set at $1,800,000,000

Concealed Axis Funds Included in Figure For 16-Month Influx

By OLIVER McKEE. During the first 16 months of the war, the movement of foreign capital to the United States exceeded by approximately $1,800,000,000 the amount reported by banks and other agencies to the Treasury, the Commerce Department estimated today.

This estimate was contained in a report on the 1940 balance of international payments of the United States, prepared under the direction of Hal B. Lary and Paul D. Dickens. The flight of private capital "under conditions that, by accident, or design, excluded the funds from foreign-owned balances as reported by American banks to the Treasury' was a major factor in the vast unreported inflow of foreign capital in the United States, according to the

Much in Axis Funds. In addition to the unrecorded flow of private capital, there has also been a large concealed moveemnt of funds to this country by the Axis since the beginning of the war, the report disclosed. "Such funds have doubtless been remitted, possibly via some neutral country, to domestic agents of the governments concerned," it was ex-

"Old accounts previously estab-lished here could also have been shifted to domestic parties, and hel in cash for purposes of concealment. Such transfers probably have been made on a substantial scale by the Axis powers because of this country's increasing opposition to Axis

No estimate was given of the volume of the undercover transfer of Axis funds to the United States. In recent years, many of the European refugees coming to this country had taken steps, previous to their arrival, to build up bank balances in the United States, the report pointed out. "Upon the arrival of the owners, these accounts were changed from foreign to do-mestic addresses," it said.

"Many other individuals who have not taken personal refuge in this country have nevertheless attempted to find a safe haven here for their fortunes, both large and small. For purposes of concealment from exchange control authorities, or for other reasons, these holdings have been placed under domestic names in many instances, or have otherwise lost their foreign identity."

Continental Europe accounted for about half the unreported capital inflow of $1,800,000,000, and the Far East and Latin America, most of the other half, according to Commerce Department estimates.

Exhumation Ordered in Suit On Wealthy Widow's Will By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—Acting on orders of the district attorney, authorities prepared today to exhume the body of Mrs. Mary Williams, wealthy widow of a State Su-preme Court justice, in an effort to determine if there was anything suspicious about her death.

District Attorney John H. Maurer directed the inquest on the request of Dr. John D. Reese, at whose home Mrs. Williams died, and Felix Maguire, her financial adviser.

A codicil to her will, signed three weeks before she died, bequeathed both men $150,000 each from her $700,000 estate. Her will originally had directed the bulk of the estate be turned over to the Philadelphia Free Masons Memorial Home at Elizabethtown, Pa.

The Masons contested the codicil and Orphans Court Judge Charles Klein, who said he found evidence of some suspicion during lengthy hearings, directed that the protest be determined by a jury. It will open next month.

A Short-Armed Clerk Not so very long ago saleswomen customarily measured dry goods from nose to forefinger. It wasn't a good way. Getting your money's worth depended too much on whether the saleswoman's arm was long or short. So a more accurate method replaced the saleswoman's arm: Brass tacks were hammered into the counter—an EXACT, measured yard apart. (It may be interesting to note in passing that from this improvement.

this improvement comes our phrase, "Get down to brass tacks." In other words, quit Here at Safeway the practice of selling fruits and vegetables by the "piece" or "bunch" bothered us. It wasn't an accurate way of determining values. But, it was one of those things like Topsy, it simply growed. We found that some were really large and others weren't our idea of large at all. In all it was very confusing and very difficult to make any estimate

We found "Large" grapefruit at prices from 5c each to 3 for

"Small," etc., had little meaning. Each one was some individual's idea of what is large or small.

After carefully studing the whole picture, talking to women's clubs and housewives, Safeway came to the conclusion that selling fruits and vegetables by the pound was a better way to serve its customers and the plan was adopted. And we believe that if every housewife were familiar with all the advantages of buying by the pound—and the disadvantages of trying to buy intelligently by the piece—she would insist that her merchant price his fruits and vegetables by the pound. Workers Complete Craft In 63 Days, Far Ahead Of Former Mark

QUINCY, Mass., Dec. 11.-Workers in one of the Nation's largest shipyards are claiming a new world's The ship, the 12.700-deadweightton tanker Sinclair H-C, is schedplant Saturday night-only 75 calendar days, 63 working days, after the laying of her keel.

Old Record Smashed. Bethlehem officials said the best previous time for a ship of this type was 119 calendar days, also William H. Collins, the yard's general manager, said the workmen utilized the ship's hull number "1491" for a slogan, "91 in 90 days," -a slogan they had printed on huge bottons they wore proudly on their overalls.

Men Underestimated Selves. But they underestimated their own capabilities, he said, and the launching date twice was advanced, clipping 14 days from time first goal.

Steels, Aircrafts and Coppers Take Lead In Market Rally

By VICTOR EUBANK,

Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Dec. 11.-Financial markets swung upward today as the Nazi-Italian coalition declared war on the United States and Congress quickly called the bet with a unanimous vote to smash the Axis by air, land and sea.

Stocks extended Wednesday's late recovery at the start by fractions to 2 points or so in fairly fast dealings. There was a subsequent let-down in activity and prices, but another bulge got under way in the final hour and gains of 1 to better than 3 points were posted for favored steels, coppers, aircrafts and specialties. Cashing in on the run-up reduced peak quotations in some cases 2112 at the close, although many climbers finished at or near the top.

The bond market gave convincing evidence that the war declarations by Germany and Italy had been thoroughly discounted. Going into the final hour there were approxi mately as many gains as lose among the corporate groups; Unit States Governments held decline around 1, point and, except in s cial situations, the foreign dollar dopartment was little affected.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of United States District Court will retire on January 1 after serving nearly 13 years on the District bench. In laying aside his judicial robes, Chief Justice Wheat will terminate a career in education and the law in the District of Columbia that goes back more than half a century. Born in Nashua, N. H., June 13, 1867, he received his A. B. at Dartmouth at 22, and two years later, in 1891, obtained an LL. B. from old Columbian College, now George Washington University. While a student of law he obtained a position on the faculty of Central High School, being assigned to teach a business course. With Allan Davis, long prominent in the District public school system, he organized and built up Central's business course, and this course developed into a

Pre-Induction Plan Will Avoid Inconvenient Trips for the Rejected

The District was ordered today to call up from 1,300 to 1,500 men for pre-induction physical examinations to be given for the first time locally at Fort Myer beginning January 21.

The pre-induction examination plan will eliminate inconveniences imposed on hundreds of selectees who formerly were taken to induction stations only to be turned down by Army doctors after their local board physicians had declared them fit for service. The new examinations will be given some time in advance of the actual inductions of the registrants. Regular Army doctors will be assisted by District civilians in making the Fort Myer examinations.

Orders received from Third Corps Area headquarters today call for examination of approximately 200 District white men a day on January traffic into the bridges crossing the 21, 22, 23, 26 and 27, and a like Potomac. Emergency Bill On D. C. Defense Introduced

Commissioners Could Borrow Million for Blackouts, Evacuation

By JAMES E. CHINN.

An emergency bill giving the Commissioners authority to order blackouts, provide for evacuation of the District in times of emergency and borrow $1,000,000 from any source for such purposes was introduced today by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

An extraordinary joint meeting of the Senate and House District Committees was called for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to consider the legis-

Shortly after his return from the West this morning, Chairman Mc-Carran of the Senate District Committee got in touch with Chairman Randolph and suggested the action. A Senate appropriations subcommittee is to act late today or tomorrow on the latest $8,244,000,000 defense supply bill, and it was Senator McCarran's thought that if any emergency funds are needed immediately to protect the Capital, they could be placed in that bill.

Asked by Commissioners. The Commissioners and Col. Lemuel Bolles, civilian defense director, were invited to the joint meeting of the committees. A special invita-

Chairman Randolph introduced the bill at the request of the Commissioners after a conference with Representative Hunter, Democrat, of Ohio, head of the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee of the District Committee, and Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Mr. Keech said the Commissioners regarded the legislation as essential at this time.

Nearby Areas Co-ordinating Defense Plans

Montgomery to Put In Central Alarm System for Suburbs

Progress was reported today in the co-ordination of protective measures in the nearby Maryland and Virginia areas as civilian defense officials announced new orders for volunteer workers and issued instructions to the public.

Mrs. Alma Ramsay, executive secretary of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council, with headquarters at Alexandria, reported to State defense officials at Richmond yesterday that protective measures in the District of Columbia and the Arlington-Fairfax-Alexandria area were in need of better co-ordination. She told the Executive Committee of the State Defense Council requests were broadcast by radio from Washington for a test blackout Tuesday night, but that no communications were handled through the Regional Defense Council and consequently there was no co-ordination. However, the blackout rehearsal later was called off. Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the city of Alexandria, she explained, come under the Washington co-ordinator in matters pertaining to protection, although they remain a part of the Virginia Regional Council's administrative area.

Prince Georges Plans Rushed Gov. Price said he would have a State representative look into the situation, the Associated Press reported.

Prince Georges County, which likewise would work with the Washington Metropolitan Area through liaison wardens, rapidly is approaching the stage of complete preparedness, Col. Henry S. Barrett, Maryland chief air-raid warden said.

While no Maryland communities will be asked to stage a blackout rehearsal until its civilian defense organization is set up and trained properly, the Virginia defense organization said that any trial black-outs should be preceded by ample notice to avoid situations of public confusion such as developed in the New York and New England area Tuesday with the reported approach of enemy planes from over the Atlantic Ocean.

It was expected, however, that despite the policies of the two nearby States as a whole, the Metropolitan Areas in these State cide on a plan which closely follows regulations in the District.

Central Alarm Proposed. Fire departments in the eastern and western suburban areas of Montgomery County today pushed plans for the installation of central alarm system so that air-raid signals can be given without delay to each department.

Operators will answer the telephones as usual and will be given the signal, "air raid," whereupon the operator at the firehouse will stand by for the two-minute interval. The clear signal will be given with one blast on the siren at each fire-

That report urged a February start on the bridge approaches and completing them before the end of 1942, to handle the traffic load to and from the huge new War Department Building in Arlington County. As outlined in the traffic and highway program, the bridge approaches, when completed, would include: A grade separation project at Fourteenth street and Maine avenue S.W., leading to Highway Bridge; a connection with Key Bridge from an elevated K street highway over Rock Creek, extension of Independence avenue from Fourteenth street to Memorial Bridge and the widening of Twenty-third street N.W., including a grade separation approach to Memorial Bridge. A proposed increase in the local gas tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon is awaiting action by the Senate District Committee to help finance these these and other highway improvements over a 10-year period.

D. C. Blackout Trials Urged On Capitol Hill

Representatives Back Proposal Randolph Made Last Spring

Experimental blackouts, not dimouts, were urged today by members of Congress to rehearse the people of Washington properly for possible enemy air raids.

Numerous Informal Teas And Dinner Parties Mark Capital Social Calendar

Elizabeth Howry Is Hostess; Mrs. Vandenberg Honored; Peppers Give Luncheon

Numerous parties were on the social calendar yesterday though the majority were small with guests asked informally for tea or dinner. Probably the largest of the afternoon festivities was the tea given by Miss Elizabeth Howry in honor of the former Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze and Mme. Sze. The honor guests have many friends in Washington where the diplomat has held several offices with his country's mission. Dr. Sze attended school here as a boy, and after graduating from Cornell University he entered the diplomatic service. His first post here was as an attache of the then Legation, about 15 years ago. In February, 1933, he was again assigned to the Legation, this time as Minister. and two years later when the Legation was raised to an embassy Dr. Sze was made Ambassador. He held

Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Told Air Raid Defense Situation Serious

Speaking before a meeting of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens' Association, the District civilian defense director declared that "after the Hawaiian experience great distances have proven no airtight insurance against bombing attacks. We don't know what is liable to happen to us overnight; we don't want to say that 'it can't happen And as far as we in the District are concerned, our air raid defense situation is serious."

Must Fit into Pattern.

Col. Bolles added: While my intent is not to alarm. these facts must be realized. Every resident of Washington must contribute wholeheartedly to that defense by learning what job he, as an individual, can and will fulfill, and, having learned that job, pass the information on to another."

Col. Bolles restated Commissioner John Russell Young's precautions for citizens against air raid eventualities: To keep off the streets at night, cut down night driving, keep auto lights dim, and to burn as few lights in the home as possible.

'These are reasonable requests," Col. Bolles said, "and it will only be with the special co-operation of our populace that any emergency can be met with promptness and efficiency. The people of Washington are already spiritually prepared to fight this war through. We must see to it that we are equally prepared physically.

Preparation Before Blackout. Col. Bolles also declared in his talk that there will be no blackout

The more modern and easily digested which is an important fact, so we place this fruit on our market list and know stock into small wedge-shaped we are acting wisely.

Few who purchase this nourishing fruit realize that it was first imported into this country in 1804. It is said that Capt. John N.

Chester of the schooner Reynard brought to the United States about 30 bunches and, in 1830, the schoonor Harriet Smith chartered by John Pearsall, brought in the first full cargo of bananas, which was 1,500 bunches, to be delivered to

Though the banana is now one of the most popular fruits in North America, there is little cultivation of the fruit in this country, since the frostless zone is so limited and the fruit can be grown so much more cheaply in Central America and the West Indies. There are small plantations in Florida, Southern Louisiana and southwestward to the Pacific coast. The plant can recover from a frost of 5 to 6 degrees which kills the leaves and new foliage will appear and fruit may form. If the top is killed, new suckers will spring up and bear fruit the following year.

The banana plant is a giant perennial herb which grows to be 10, or even 30 feet, high. This great stalk will produce a bunch of fruit and die. In the meantime sturdy suckers have been sent up by the rootstock to take the place of the spent stem.

The peculiar habit of the flower always attracts attention. The giant bud is a purplish hue and is first an elongated bud with large, tightly overlapping bracts or scales. As they open the flowers below them expand, the bracts fall and the blossoms soon shed their envelopes. Insect guests arrive to visit the ripe flowers, tiny green bananas soon appear and begin to mature into neat rows of fruit known as

Gen. Perceval Gave Up Job as Clerk When He Was 27 to Enter Army

LONDON, Dec. 11.-Gen. Arthur Ernest Perceval, now in command of the British and Empire troops at Malaya, began his military career as a private at the outbreak of the

He was 27 when he gave up his civilian job as a city clerk to become Pvt. Arthur Ernest Perceval. Promotions were swift and he was still under 30 when he commanded a battalion in active service.

At the outbreak of World War II, Gen. Perceval was a brigadier on the General Staff at Aldershot. He secured command of the troops in Malaya in April when Lt. Gen. L. V. Bond returned to take up an English appointment. Gen Perceval had previously served in Malaya as staff officer from 1936 to 1939.

Gen. Perceval's reputation as an imaginative tactician was emphasized last month when he directed maneuvers based on the supposition that the Japanese were aerially attacking Singapore.

He won the Order of the British Empire in 1921 for his outstanding services in Ireland, the truce with the Sinn Feiners being attributable to his advice. It was Winston Churchill, then war minister, who called Gen. Perceval to a conference in Inverness to report on the situation in Ireland

Gen. Perceval has been described as resembling, "an ascetic univer-sity professor," but his active interest in polo, tennis, cricket, hockey and squash would belie the word

Born at Aspendon, Hereforshire, he was educated at Rugby. He graduated with distinction at the Army and Navy Staff Colleges and the Imperial Defence College.

Gen. Perceval was twice wounded in the last war and won the Distinguished Service Order, the Military Cross and Croix de Guerre. gaining the bar to the D. S. O. in North Russia in 1919.

A few minutes later they suddenly became soldiers instead of kids. They didn't hit any of the heavy multi-motored raiders, but they did answer to their own satisfaction the

Buy as You Always Have, But Pay Even Greater Attention to Value

Duty of Every Homemaker to Provide Families With Health-Giving Diet

By Betsy Caswell, Woman's News Editor.

Remembering the outbreak of heavy buying on certain commodities in markets and food stores throughout the country that followed immediately upon the announcement of the war in Europe in 1939, I was really pleased to find that relatively few incidents of such purchases for hoarding have been noted in Washington markets since Sunday. Dealers report that what little such buying has been noted was not much greater than has been going on for the last few months, and in nearly every case was done calmly and with no sign of hysteria or panic.

It is greatly to the credit of the Washington housewife that she has thus kept her head, and refused to be stampeded by rumors and forebodings from uninformed sources. It is of paramount importance at this time that every one of us should keep absolutely steady; that we should turn deaf ears to all the wild tales that spring to life overnight, and study the facts vouched for and presented to us by those whose business it is to know and understand the food situation from A to Z.

These authorities assure us that there is no need whatsoever for panic. The President himself stressed this point in his speech Tuesday night. There is plenty of food in the United States for every one, and there is no reason why supplies should be laid in in quantity. Prices may continue to rise somewhat, but serious heights are not anticipated. Buy as you always have done, with perhaps greater attention to the

Also, be careful of waste, using every bit of your foodstuffs to the best possible advantage. This will save you money, and also give you the habit of thrift-which you should have had long ago! Watch your vitamins and proteins and mineral contents with an eagle eye, to make every scrap you feed your family furnish them with an all-out nutritive diet. You have had these facts dinned into your ears for months-now is the time to start putting your knowledge to work in good earnest

Majority of Spices Still Plentiful

Modern Kitchens Not Yet Affected By Shortage

By Dorothy Murray

The housewife spending an average of only 70 cents annually for spice, may never realize there is a spice shortage because it extends mainly to spices less familiar to the ordinary supply shelf. For instance, there is no difficulty in obtaining ginger, cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg, pepper, mace, allspice, chili powder and even the more "exclusive" spices such as gumbo file and oregano which is technically Mex-

The buyer will undoubtedly notice that the packages are slightly smaller than before and selling for the same price. The spice experts point out that this will be a culinary benefit, rather than a loss, as spices should be fresh to have flavor and by being packaged in small boxes they will not be kept on the shelf long enough for the flavor to become dead. It is best to renew ground spices at least every six months for the best results.

Pepper accounts for 40 per cent of our spice imports and we have enough of it on hand to last three years should all Zanzibar and Netherlands Indies supplies be shut off. The reason for this stock on hand is the fact that pepper has always been a popular trading commodity and that New York is now the pepper trading center of the entire

You might have noticed a rise in price of cinnamon. In this country we do not use true cinnamon as the flavor is too sweet. Instead we use the cassia bark from a botanically different plant. If necessary, we could raise every known herb and spice in the Westand marjoram.

Prices for formerly premium Netherland spices such as cloves, nutmeg and mace, have declined because the Dutch have lost their mace and paprika come from our own West Indies. The United States consumes more mustard both dried and prepared than any other spice except, of course, pepper. Mustard seed used to come from Denmark, Holland, Germany, France and England, and virtually no imports are now coming in. This, however, is not serious because 10 years ago a few foresighted growers began raising American mustard in our own Southwest and last year we produced more mustard seed in the United States than ever was imported.

Give Positive Instruction To a Child

He Can't Take in Long Speeches; Stick to Point

By Angelo Patri

Good teaching practice calls for positive instruction. That does not mean dictation of every seep, but it does mean a positive direction when one is given, "Do this" in-stead of "Don't do that."

A class of children who are given a set of don'ts before they begin work are confused. If they are primary children they are lost because words fatigue their minds early in the lesson, especially words of warning:

"Remember, keep your margin Don't begin on the edge of the paper. Don't put your pen too far down in the well. Don't put your hands on your paper. Don't forget to begin with a capital letter. Don't make a mistake in spelling. Don't write your name on the skin lines. Begin." By the time the positive direction comes the children are swamped. Make the directions "Look at the few and positive: copy. On behalf of the hard-pressed young boys and girls whose mothers make them write thank you notes after Christmas to all their uncles right side of the sheet. Don't and aunts, I'd like to make a pre-Christmas suggestion. I'd like to offer the idea that uncles and aunts might inclose a stamped, selfaddressed postal card in the present, which would say on it something like this: "Dear Aunt Mandy, I do . . . don't . . . thank you for my Christmas present." It would make life so much easier for the younger generation. Of course I don't want to run down the excellent training that these youngsters get in being polite about gifts. Naturally I think it is something they should all know about. But it does seem rather hard on them (and it's no doubt equally "Don't bother me," is a frequent hard on their parents) that prac-The bothering child tically all of life's early thank-you notes should come during the week

The Strangest Meeting of Them All

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.-Now that war has been declared, what about baseball? Will new draft ages wipe out the low minor leagues? Will power conservation, if it comes, snap off the lights? Will the major leagues be able to survive the national emergency as well as they did in 1917?

One thing is almost certain and that is that the big leagues are headed toward a period during which the caliber of baseball will be lower than any time since World War I. If, as is likely, America's new Army becomes a giant twice or thrice the size of the 1917 fighting forces, the caliber of ball undoubtedly will be even lower than it was 24 years ago.

Only now is baseball really feeling the emergency. Although it wrecked the Detroit Tigers, the drafting of Hank Greenberg was not felt acutely throughout the American League last summer. There were too many other stars left. But now Greenberg not only is going back in the Army, presumably for the duration, but the list of baseball's contributions to national defense is growing.

Bob Feller belongs to the Navy, Buddy Lewis is in the Army and there are scores of other major league stars who will be eligible for immediate service when Uncle Sam decides to expand his armed forces. Never in history has baseball been threatened so seriously with a whole- to a close. sale loss of players, from the ranking stars to 18-year-old Class D In a frenzy of last-minute pre-

Not Many of the Stars Remain

Not only does baseball figure and fully expect to lose many of its stars to the service, but it is resigned to a cruel break at the hands of fate. Coincidental with the emergency is the journey's end for some of the biggest names in the game. Lefty Grove, after more than 20 years is finished as a pitcher. Gabby Hartnett, one of the greatest catchers of all times, is out of the majors. Carl Hubbell and Jimmy Foxx are well over the hill.

From a box office standpoint, it is a staggering casualty list. Not until today to think over the deal. many of the real stars remain. There are Joe Di Maggio, Ted Williams As a matter of fact, Zeller was waitand one or two others, but some of these are potential soldiers and sailors. The real sufferers in baseball, however, are likely to be the Minor League clubs. If electric power is ordered conserved, the lights may have to be turned off. This would be a terrific blow. And when the draft age limit is expanded to include 18-year-olds, many of the smaller leagues undoubtedly will have to fold.

There will be left, of course, many hundreds of ball players but, for the most part, they will be over draft age.

Kennedy Bought to Replace Bob Feller

The current meeting of the clubowners probably has been the strangest of all times. No longer are managers and owners vitally interested in stealing from their colleague promising youngsters who have been touted by their scouts. A 20-year-old shortstop who batted 350 in the three-cornered affair among a Class AA and who fields in a style reminiscent of Wagner interests Washington, Detroit and Boston nobody unless, of course, he happened to marry very early in life and has probably would fall flat. several mouths to feed and parents and in-laws to support.

In normal times, the sale or trade of Feller would command long columns. The other day, when he was inducted into the Navy, he was given a couple of paragraphs in most of the local papers. On the other hand, these same papers devoted thousands of words to Bruce Campbell, Wally Moses and other mediocre players approaching middle age and it is known definitely that Outpromising little more than daily appearances at their respective club- fielder Roger Cramer, Second Base-

Weird values have been placed on journeyman players. Vernon Kennedy, for years no puzzle to enemy Harris drew up several combinabatsmen, won a game last year for Washington. Clark Griffith was ready to give him away last August and in September he was willing to pay a reasonable fee to somebody who would take him away. Today he sold others. In the end Harris received Kennedy to Cleveland for $7,000. Cleveland bought Kennedy to replace, of the official okay on all of them.

Magnates Link Game With Morale

In spite of all of their problems, however, baseball men remain uniformly optimistic. The magnates, we mean. Others, like scouts whose ington is interested in Campbell cuty it is to beat the bushes and track down promising youngsters, are not and Buck Newsom of the Tigers and so optimistic. This is understandable. When the market has been re- in Pitcher Jack Wilson of the Red moved scouts cease to be important figures.

But the magnates feel that baseball remains more or less vital to the American way of life. They may be right, too. It's still America's national pastime and as a morale builder-upper it has unquestioned value. As one club owner put it, "There'll always be baseball. Try and name a better place for Americans to let off steam than a ball park." The brand of ball that will be presented in the major leagues next an offer. season may not match that of the 1920s and the 1930s, but it still will be baseball and that's the main thing.

Maroons Nip Hyattsville 27 to 23 After Scare During Final Half

Great improvement coupled with good breaks are the only things that will put Tech in the high school basket ball championship playoffs again, in the opinion of Coach Dutch Usilaner. After viewing his team in its first game of the season yesterday, Dutch has a long list of items to be corrected.

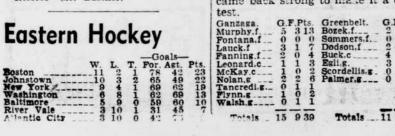

Tech began by running up a 13-7 first-half edge that withstood a late Hyattsville assault for a 27-23 victory, but near the end, the Maroons were very much in danger with Hyattsville trailing by only 2 points late in the last period. Hvattsville. inexperienced but scrappy, took the play away from Tech during the second half with downcourt dashes and close guarding that threatened Richard Montgomery at Bethesdato upset Tech.

Some good shooting by Lawrence Pizzi, who took individual honors with 10 points, helped keep Tech in front. Bus Sithens and Clive Thompson also scored at opportune moments to aid the Maroons. Hyattsville's assault was led by Ray Mulnix and Roland Kidwell, each of whom tallied twice from the floor.

As viewed by Coach Usilaner, Tech must improve its pot shots Gonzaga Defeats Good from outside and also its defensive play. Swap, if Made, Would Give Griffs Four New Men; Kennedy Sold

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.-Stymied on every side so far at the annual winter baseball meeting, Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris professed to be ready to play a trump card today as the three-day confab drew parations, Harris and Griffith admitted they had worked out a deal involving the Detroit Tigers and the Boston Red Sox and if the threecornered trade is effected, the 1942 Nationals probably will present four new players in regular positions. Harris had hoped to complete the trade last night but there developed a hitch. With the Red Sox preagreeable, General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers asked

Have Baseball's Leaders Busy Owners Also Wrangle

Wartime Plans

Over Changes Asked In Minor Pact

By JUDSON BAILEY,

Associated Press Sports Writer. CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Baseball had its ear tuned for today's joint meeting of the major leagues as the possible sounding board for a statement of the sport's war aims. The National and American Leagues have been in separate and secret sessions for two days, and much of the discussion of the owners has been concerning problems created by the war.

Trading Calms Down. Up till now Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has remained virtually silent about baseball's place in the national effort, but it was believed the joint meeting would produce some expression from organized baseball as to its plans.

Trading calmed down overnightthe only new deal being the Cleveland Indians' purchase of Pitcher Vernon Kennedy from the Washington club The absence of trades helped turn the full spotlight on the business sessions of the leagues. The owners wrangled all day long about the amendment to the major-minor rules, which the minors adopted unanimously in an attempt to loosen the restrictions on the movement of players within farm sys-

Ruling Is Up to Landis. A joint steering committee appointed from the two leagues was unable to agree on the amendment, and it was understood the magnates read no fewer than four different meanings into the rule. As a last device it was planned to have Landis interpret the rule today before it came up for a vote in the joint There was a chance some final trades might be rushed through before the owners and managers left town, but no new indications were to be seen, and the best tip continued to be the New York Yankees Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Belloise Lacks Steam In Blows but Gets Nod Over Furr

Bout Disappoints 1,171 As Phil Looks Good In Only One Round

Steve Belloise won the nod over Phil Furr in their 10-round engagement last night at Uline Arena, but the 1,171 customers who parted with $1.871 to see the scrap were visibly disappointed. The sailor plainly has lost the punch that took him to the very threshold of the middleweight Furr didn't look good either. After the second round in which he belted Belloise briskly on the whiskers. knocking him into the ropes and threatening to ice him down for keeps, Phil was just in there on a pass and making very little trouble Steve recovered quickly from the effects of the second-round punch and was smart enough to box the veteran from that juncture, piling up a comfortable margin on points. Maybe Steve Mamakos would be good opponent for Belloise, but Matchmaker Johnny Attell isn't breaking any legs to sign the bout. Pirst of all, war may prevent Belloise from accepting any outside engagements for a spell, and, secondly, he has too much left hand, too much foot and too much ring generalship for the durable Greek. Belloise certainly wouldn't kayo Mamakos. He teed off on Furr's chin with all the dynamite in his 155-pound frame, and didn't feaze the old guy. Once, in the fifth round, he pulled a Japanese attack -you know, sneak punches-and caught Phillip snoring soundly. But Furr neither backed up, nor was he badly hurt. He moved in with both hands pumping to the body and In Game Today forced Belloise to take cover.

Furr forced the issue the entire distance, but couldn't solve Belloise's defense, and his punches generally were ineffective. Steve, on the other hand, used a left hook and jab to advantage, and was a busy fellow on the inside with both mittens.

In other bouts Lou Bass outpointed Jim Hill; Peewee Lewis scored a t.k.o. over Norman Fleming; Ivy Proctor outpointed Buddy Thomas -with the aid of two knockdownsand Oscar Wright won a t.k.o. from somebody calling himself Whistlin' Willie Roach, L. F. A.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Bobby Coon had been so frightened when he had sprung that trap there by the Laughing Brook that probably he would have run clear back to his home in the Green Forest had he not found Billy Mink waiting for him at the old log where they had met earlier in the evening. Billy was grinning. "What are you running for?" he demanded. "I thought you were not afraid." Bobby Coon stopped. "It-tried to catch me!" he panted. "It jumped right at me!" Billy Mink chuckled. "But I see it didn't catch you," said he. "Didn't I tell you it wouldn't hurt you if you put your paw under it? That kind of a trap is perfectly harm-less as long as you do not step in it. I'm glad you sprung it. sprung the one on the other side of the Laughing Brook the same way. Now, both of these traps are perfectly harmless. They will be until the trapper sets them again. "We can go up and down the aughing Brook through the openings in those little fences with nothing to fear as long as those traps are in plain sight. That trapper will probably come around tomorrow, but for the remainder of tonight there is nothing for us to worry about. Let's go down the Laughing Brook to the Smiling

The idea of going down to the Smiling Pool was too much for Bobby Coon to resist. So he followed Billy Mink down the bank of the Laughing Brook. When they reached the trap which Bobby had sprung Billy Mink kicked it aside as he passed. It was plain to see that Billy had known what he had been talking about when he had said that now that trap was per-fectly harmless. Then, without hesitating Billy slipped through the little opening in that fence the trapper had built. That proved there was nothing to fear there now, so Bobby followed. He had to make the opening big enough to get through, but he did this by pulling up a couple of the sticks. When they reached the Smiling Pool they saw Little Joe Otter sitting on the Big Rock. Jerry Muskrat was swimming over toward his house. "Hi, you fellows!" called Billy Mink. "Come over here. We've LONDON, 5:55—News Analysis: GSC, 9.58 something to tell you." Little Joe Otter dived into the Smiling Pool, and he and Jerry Muskrat had a race over to the place where Billy Mink and Bobby Coon were waiting. "What is it you have to tell us?" demanded Little Joe. "I don't believe it's anything important."

"That depends on how you look GSC, 9.58 meg., 31.3 m.; GSD, 11.75 meg., at it," retorted Billy Mink. "Somebody has been setting traps along the Laughing Brook. I've found three of them, and Bobby Coon and I have sprung two of them. We thought we'd just come down here and give you fellows warning." Then Bobby and Billy told Little Joe and BUDAPEST, 8:00—News in English: HAT4, Jerry all about those traps.

"North asserted that South should have doubled one club to show his strength. Having failed to double. North continues, South should have bid a second time. It didn't matter whether South's second bid was three diamonds or three hearts; North said he would have gone to four hearts the moment South showed he had rebid values.

"Who is right?" Both are partly right, but North is much more at fault than South. While South might have bid three diamonds or three hearts on the second round, he cannot be severely criticised for his conservatism. Furthermore, his overcall of one heart was quite proper, since his hand was not well suited to a takeout double.

The crux of the matter is that it shouldn't have been necessary for South to double or bid twice to show that he had good value for his bid. The mere fact that he overcalled when vulnerable showed he had strength-perhaps not as much strength in high cards as the normal opening bid (although in this case he had that much), but certainly more playing strength than most opening bids. If South had opened the bidding with one heart, North would have raised to three hearts without hesitation. His reaction to South's vulnerable overcall should have been the same. Of course, if North had raised to three hearts. South would have bid game.
