"The dying captain of a battleship displayed the outstanding individual heroism of the day. As he emerged from the conning tower to the bridge, the better to fight his ship, his stomach was laid completely open by a shrapnel burst. He fell to the deck. Refusing to be carried to safety, he continued to direct the action. When the bridge became a blazing inferno two officers attempted to remove him. But he ordered them to abandon him and save themselves. The latter found themselves blocked by the flames. Only the heroic efforts of a third officer enabled them to escape. With the ship already on fire from repeated high altitude attacks, her anti-aircraft batteries downed a plane which crashed in flames on deck. At this moment her captain observed the shadow of an enemy two-man submarine approaching within a few yards of the vessel. It was placed under fire. Hits were scored immediately and the submarine exposed her conning-tower. At that instant a destroyer stood down channel, passed directly over the submarine, and sank it with depth charges. The Secretary said United States forces were not on the alert against a surprise attack and this fact called for a formal investigation by President Roosevelt. The investigation will be started immediately, Mr. Knox

Mr. Knox disclosed there had been no changes in the command

Mr. Knox said the Japs apparently had mistaken the Utah for an aircraft carrier, since she was berthed at a dock ordinarily used for vessels of this type.

He said the Arizona was destroyed by a lucky hit of a bomb which was said to have passed down its funnel, He also said the Japanese were aided by the "most effective" fifth column work done in this war, with the possible exception of that which preceded the German invasion of Norway. Secretary Knox would not go into details on Army losses, but he said losses in aircraft and in some hangars was serious. Replacements have arrived or are on the way, he added.

For the Army, Lt. Col. Francis V. Fitzgerald of the War Department said losses had nearly all been announced. The announced Army total was fewer than 160. Seeking Contact With Enemy.

Mr. Knox, after enumerating the losses, said the entire balance of the Pacific Fleet, with its battleships, heavy cruisers, light cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers and submarines are uninjured and "are all at sea seeking contact with the enemy." Two of the submarines, one of which was captured, were said to be a new and small two-man type. The other was of normal The Secretary made the disclosures at a press conference this afternoon at the Navy Department after his return last night from Honolulu. He reported to President Roosevelt at the White House this morning, and was to return for further talks with the President later today.

Wait not for RAIN to CO SAID an ancient philosopher in a far country, urging mankind to prepare for the rainy days of life before the dark clouds gathered.

In our own land life insurance, based on thrift, provides "cloaks" against their rainy days for 65 million policyholders. And each "cloak," through the service of life insurance agents, is carefully woven to give its owner the particular kind of protection he needs.

YEAR BY YEAR, for a century, the "cloaks" of life insurance have become stronger and more dependable. This year they will make easier the troubles of six million men and women and children, who will receive benefits because someone to whom they were dear practiced thrift and did not wait for rain to weave a cloak.

Control of Wages And Rents Urged In Senate Hearing

N. A. M. Spokesman Asks Wide Action To Avoid Inflation

By the Associated Press

A spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers urged today enactment of legislation to control prices of all commodities, rents and wages as a means of preventing inflation.

'The immediate and post war dangers of inflation are so great," C. Donald Dallas of New York, president of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., told the Senate Banking Committee, "that price control legislation is unfortunately necessary in order to guard against serious inflation."

Amendment Urged.

He asked amendment of the bill passed by the House to make price administration "sufficiently flexible to take care of changing costs,' provide for hearings on price changes and removal of what he termed an "unjust discrimination' in the limitation of farm price ceilings without equivalant limitation on industrial price ceilings.

"There can be no effective or fair control of finished goods prices," Mr. Dallas declared, "unless all principal elements of cost are included. This should specifically include either prior or simultaneous control of rents, interest rates, farm prices and wages

Declared Sound Procedure. "If it is legal and moral and sound for the Government to put a floor under wages as it did in the Fair Labor Standards Act when it is in the interests of the working man and the public to do so, then it is equally sound and legal and moral to do so when it is in the interest of the working man and was any dereliction of duty prior to the public to put a ceiling on wages. "It is unfair and unrealistic to control perhaps 10 per cent of all prices and leave 90 per cent alone, especially when the 90 per cent enter into the cost of the 10 per cent. We can not stop inflation if only 10 per cent of the prices are controlled or curbed. Inflation will not be defeated or curbed if the entire problem is not faced realistically and I am afraid this (House)

Advances by Japanese In Northern Malaya Admitted by British

Jungle Fighting Raging; Japs Land on East Side Of Kra Isthmus

Jungle fighting raged on two fronts in Northern Malaya today, with the British acknowledging that the Japanese have gained ground in the Kedah area of Northern Malaya despite heavy losses, the Associated Press reported.

A British officials in London, admitting a "slight withdrawal" in the Kedah area, said "very heavy fighting" was progressing there and that casualties on both sides may be

He said the Japanese had landed on the east side of the Kra Isthmus and had crossed it to enter Burma. Their success in cutting the Malay Peninsula, he acknowledged, would affect air communications between Burma and Singapore because of airfields involved.

"Throughout this course and program of Japanese aggression the Government of the United States consistently endeavored to persuade the government of Japan that Japan's best interests would lie in maintaining and cultivating friendly relations with the United States and with all other countries that believe in orderly and peaceful processes."

Mr. Roosevelt recalled that Japan 'scorned" a conference called at Brussels in October, 1937 by the 19 countries which have interests in the Far East to consider the Asiatic question in conformity with the nine-power treaty, of which Japan was a signatory.

The President made the point that the Japanese policy is aimed at the "enrichment not of all Asia. not even of the common people of Japan, but of the war lords who seized control of the Japanese state." Mr. Roosevelt said this was in keeping "with the Nazi pattern."

During those early years the United States used every influence it could exert to protect Japan in her transi-

With respect to the entire Pacific area, the United States has consistently urged, as it has for all other parts of the globe, the fundamental importance to world peace of fair and equal treatment among nations. Accordingly, whenever there has been a tendency on the part of any other nation to encroach upon the independence and sovereignty of countries of the Far East, the United States has tried to discourage such tendency wherever possible. There was a period when this American attitude was especially important to Japan. At all times it has been important to China and to other countries of the Far East. At the end of the 19th century the sovereignty of the Philippine Islands passed from Spain to this country. The United States pledged itself to a policy toward the Philippines designed to equip them to become a free and independent nation. That pledge and that policy we have consistently carried out.

"Open Door" Policy

Laid Down for China. At that time there was going on In China what has been called the "scramble for concessions." There was even talk about a possible partitioning of China. It was then that the principle of the "open door" in China was laid down. In 1900 the American Government declared that its policy was to "seek a solution which may bring about permanent safety and peace to China * * * protect all rights guaranteed to friendly powers by treaty and international law and safeguard for the world the principle of equal and impartial parts of the Chinese

Ever since that day we have consistently and unfailingly advocated the principles of the open door policy throughout the Far East.

In the year 1908 the Government of the United States and the government of Japan concluded an agreement by an exchange of notes. In that agreement the two governments jointly declared that they were determined to support "by all pacific means at their disposal the independence and integrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry it was "the wish of the two governments to encourage the free and peaceful development of their commerce on the Pacific Ocean"; and tenance of the existing status quo" ly practiced the principles enunciated in that agreement.

which have devastated Europe. Therefore, in this year of 1941, in an endeavor to end this process by peaceful means while there seemed still to be a chance, the United States entered into discussions with nomic principles provided for in this statement.

Several Formulas Offered While Japan Went Way. The various proposals of the Japanese government and the attitude taken by this Government are set forth in a document which the Secretary of State handed to the Japanese Ambassador on October 2, 1941. Thereafter, several formulas were offered and discussed. But the Japanese government continued upon its course of war and conquest. Finally, on November 20, 1941, the Japanese government presented a new and narrow proposal, which called for supplying by the United States to Japan of as much oil as Japan might require, for suspension of freezing measures, and for discontinuance by the United States of aid to China. It contained however no provision for abandonment by Japan of her warlike operations

Such a proposal obviously offered no basis for a peaceful settlement or even for a temporary adjustment. The American Government, in order to clarify the issues, presented to the Japanese government on November 26, a clear-cut plan for a broad but simple settlement.

The outline of the proposed plan for agreement between the United States and Japan was divided into two parts: In section one there was outlined a mutual declaration of policy containing affirmations that the national policies of the two countries were directed toward peace throughout the Pacific area, that the two countries had no territorial designs or aggressive intentions in that area and that they would give active support to certain fundamental principles of peace upon which their relations with each other and all other nations would be based. There was provision for mutual pledges to support and apply in their economic relations with each other and with other nations and peoples liberal economic principles, which were enumerated, based upon the general principle of equality of commercial opportunity and treatment. The news was withheld from pubication until yesterday to safeguard all concerned in the operation.

The pilots, employed by the China Hitler's Secret Weapon National Aviation Corp., which is operated jointly by the Chinese government and Pan-American Airways, made 16 flights out of Hong Kong, landing most of their passengers at a point about 200 miles inland from the British crown colony. Some planes flew all the way to Chungking

Among those rescued were H. H. Kung, Chinese Finance Minister; Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic: American and British members of the Chinese Currency Stabilization Board, and C. P. Chen, head of the board, and the staff and families of the China National Aviation Corp., with the exception of Schafer Paas, district traffic agent, who volunteered to supervise arrangements at the Hong Kong end.

Five Planes Are Saved.

The pilots also managed to save turnout to aid war sufferers of her which were at the Hong Kong airdrome when war broke out. One of these, forced down at an inland airfield by engine trouble Wednesday, was machine-gunned and destroyed by Japanese planes. Several rescue planes again headed for Hong Kong Wednesday night, but were warned off by British military authorities and forced to The rescued passengers hailed the

Launchings Lose Fanfare To Save Money and Time

By the Associated Press. Because of the war, the Maritime Commission has decreed that henceforth merchant ships will be launched without fanfare.

"Although there may be the tra-ditional christening of vessels," the commission said in an announcement, "they will be simple and in-formal and no reimbursement will be allowed shipbuilders for any expense incurred in connection with launchings."

Recently the commission limited to $500 launching ceremony costs for ships built for it. "Due to the war situation," it said today, "even that small expenditure has been ordered eliminated. Every hour must be directed toward expedited construction. Former ceremonies often have taken several hours and tended to delay work in shipyards."

The Bill of Rights

A fair expression of the totalitarian concept of the relation of the citizen to the state may be found in the Nazi doctrine which argues that "the needs of the commonwealth take precedence of those of the individual." Dr. Franz Gurtner, Reich minister of justice, discussing judicial procedure in Germany, has said: "The protection enjoyed by individuals is not based on the assumption that their particular rights are sacrosanct and inviolable, but rather on the fact that all of them are regarded as valuable members of the national community and therefore deserve protection."

Such a philosophy, however plausible it may seem at first glance, would be tolerable only to abject slaves. It is based on a dogma of paternalism which might be applied with better logic to helpless domestic animals. Among men possessed of consciousness of the elemental integrity of the human soul the theory of serfdom revealed by Dr. Gurtner's words must be altogether abhorrent. Its implications of spiritual bondage are rejected by the heirs of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln.

How fortunate it is that the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights should occur at a time when the whole tremendous impact of contemporary events serves to give significance to the occasion! The sesquicentenary of the first ten Amendments of the Constitution might have come on a date lacking in any but purely academic importance. Instead, December 15 this year is a day for a grateful demonstration of the essential character of American democracy. The Axis dictators by their crimes against humanity have educated the people of the United States to a nobler appreciation of their sacred charter of freedom

Americans have learned, for example, that the rights which they demanded for themselves in 1791 were rights which their ancestors had found necessary to honorable living in a realistic world. It was experience that prompted insistence upon recognition of freedom of religion, speech and press, assembly and petition. Four autocrats of the House of Stuart had instructed them in the need to require security of the home and of property, the rights of due process of law, "speedy and public" trial by jury and exemption from "cruel and unusual nunishments." The sufferings of millions of "non-conformists" under a dynasty of bigoted tyrants imperatively suggested the stipulations respecting rights and powers not delegated to the Federal Government.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, speaking from the knowledge which he has of conditions abroad, has asked his countrymen to remember that the principles of the ten primary Amendments are "treason" in vast areas of the earth. Death is the penalty for advocating them in the lands momentarily dominated by Hitler and his partners in aggression. Only in neighborhoods still free are they "our salvation, * * * a heritage of our own, to be cherished and preserved in their entirety and to be handed down by us to our posterity, unabridged and unimpaired."

Upon the responsibility thus put into language America does battle for the Lord.

Make Them Uniform

Congress may complete action today on the bill which gives the Commissioners authority to decree blackouts and to enforce emergency air-raid regulations, and which also provides funds to meet extraordinary expenses in connection with civilian | man power. The Nation no longer defense.

With the final enactment of the legislation it is to be hoped the District defense authorities will have coordinated their plans for uniform blackout and air-raid alarms and procedure with those issued by the Office for Civilian Defense and that the temporary confusion resulting from lack of such co-ordination will be permanently ended. With the signing of this bill by the President, the Commissioners of plans for a series of early test blackouts and daylight raid alarms, each of which could be of brief durashould be an agreed-upon set of signals for alarms, thoroughly publicized in advance, so that they will be easily understood. Until today the lations on experience abroad, while proposed local regulations have emanated from half a dozen different sources. It would be better if the local authorities followed national headquarters in such matters. Uniformity of procedure throughout the Nation, and especially between contiguous communities, is desirable and there is no reason why it should not be obtained.

Philippine Bastion

A single week of the great Pacific war has sufficed to reveal its fundamental strategic pattern. And on it, the Philippines emerge as Japan's chief immediate objective. They are not her ultimate goal. That is the vast tropical empire of the Netherlands Indies, with its illimitable wealth of natural resources, especially oil and rubber, so vitally desired for Nippon's meager economy. But the resources of the Indies cannot be drawn upon effectively until the Philippines are first subdued.

A glance at the map will show why this is so. The Philippines are an irregular archipelago of islands extending roughly north and south for fully 900 miles. That is approximately the distance between Chicago and Mobile, Alabama-from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico. The aggregate size of the Philippine archipelago is 114,000 square milesas large as the combined areas of the New England States, New York and New Jersey. With a wealth of natural resources and a population exceeding 16,000,000, the Philippines are in themselves a rich prize, over and above their strategic importance as stepping stones to Japan's larger imperial goals.

Japanese designs on the Philippines have long been recognized, and the plan for their defense has been an outstanding problem of our Army and Navy staffs. So long as it was a question of an isolated war between Japan and the United States, the problem was a serious one. The direct route from America to the Philippines is blocked by the immense parallelogram of the Japanese mandated islands which spread east and west over 3,000 miles of ocean between Hawaii and Manila. Our isolated and unfortified link of Guam already has fallen into Japanese hands. Thus, for the time being, aid to the Philippines must come either from our British and Dutch allies or from America through roundabout routes under Allied control. How much of such aid will be sent is problematical. Therefore, the present ability of Philippine defense to beat off Japanese attacks is the vital

During the past few years the Philippine Commonwealth has bestirred itself with a preparedness program of its own, with American assistance under the skilled leadership of one of our best soldiers, Lieutenant General Douglas Mac-Arthur. This program began functioning in 1935, and the new Filipino Army is supposed to consist of some 40,000 troops with the colors, plus an even larger number of reserves. The number of American troops in the islands is a military secret, but it is supposed considerably to exceed the 10,000 men which were in garrison on the average in preceding years. The air force is known to have been greatly expanded during recent months, while the Asiatic fleet is a well-balanced force, including a strong squadron of submarines.

Thus far, the defense has been brilliantly conducted. The only serious threat to Manila, a Japanese landing on the Lingayen Gulf, has been annihilated. But landings on Northern Luzon have been locally successful. Those mountain-girt bits of coast could never serve as starting points for an overland invasion. Their purpose is to acquire air bases for closer bombing raids on vital defense points. Meanwhile, our air force has heavily punished Japanese covering naval forces. These operations are presumably mere preliminaries of larger attacks yet to come. The chief long-run handicap to successful Philippine defense is limited equipment and munitions. They might not suffice to wage intensive large-scale warfare for an indefinite period. That is where aid from our allies or American aid via Allied-controlled routes may play a decisive role.

'Victory Draft'

As Secretary of War Stimson and Brigadier General Louis B. Hershey, director of selective service, advised Congress Saturday, no time should be lost in preparing for a new and broader registration of America's faces the mere threat of war; it is actually engaged in a war of survival with a combination of formidable, treacherous enemies. There is no use blinking the fact that to win this grim struggle will require more than defensive action. We must strike back at our enemies, perhaps on many fronts-by air, by sea and, if need be, by land. Congress, by lifting restrictions on use of selectees outside this hemisphere, already has recognized the necessity for waging should be ready with announcement | all-out offensive warfare beyond our shores. viously has based its proposed regu- Army of 1,600,000 men is composed of selectees. The War Department has asked Congress to provide full equipment for an Army of 2,000,000 men and "critical supplies" for one of 3,200,000. The department is sponsoring a bill to widen the registration age limits to include all men between the ages of eighteen and sixty-four, inclusive, but with a provision that only those between nineteen and forty-four, inclusive, be eligible for actual combat service. The others would be available for various home defense activities. Such a registration would bring in some 41,000,000 men, it is estimated, of which perhaps 7,500,000 could be trained for fighting. The fact that facilities for training and equipping so large a force are not available today should not stand in the way of prudent preparations for counting heads now and getting organized with a view to swinging into action with the least possible confusion and delay when the need for additional man power becomes pressing. The American people stand united as never before. They will support whatever measures and make whatever sacrifices are deemed necessary by our naval and military experts to insure complete victory. Congress, reflecting that will to win, may be expected to approve promptly the War Department's request for a new "victory draft" law.

Russia's Position

Since the beginning of war in Europe more than two years ago this Government's policies with respect to the conflict have been shaped in accordance with what were deemed to be the best interests of the United States. It was to serve these interests that the arms embargo was repealed, that fifty destroyers were traded to Britain for bases on this side of the Atlantic, that the various lease-lend programs were put into effect. The dominant consideration underlying all of these moves was not a pro-British sentiment, as so often has been charged, but rather the recognition that Hitler and the things that he represented were inimical to us, and that it was to our selfish advantage to bring about his defeat, if possible, on the far side of the Atlantic rather than wait until such time as we might have to fight him in the Western Hemisphere.

A proper appreciation of these recent facts of American history should make it easier for the people of the United States to understand the attitude of the Russian government toward the fighting in the Far East, a war which certainly is but a phase of the whole conflict. In many quarters here it is being urged that Russia should attack Japan from Siberia, or, at the least, that she should open her air bases there to American bombing squadrons. But Russia, through her Ambassador to Washington. Maxim Litvinoff, has indicated that neither of these things will be done at this time. Russia, like the United States, always has sought to avoid war on two fronts. Our policy of placating Japan, which remained in effect virtually up to the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor, was designed to prevent war in the Pacific while we were giving our undivided attention to supporting the struggle against Hitler. Russia, heavily engaged with the Nazis, also has sought to avoid an open clash with Japan, and it is not surprising that she continues to refrain from initiating a fight on her Siberian front.

This, it may be assumed, is a policy dictated primarily by a regard for Russia's own interests, by the desire to avoid anything that might divert Russian energies from the all-important job of holding and, if possible, smashing the German Army on the European front. Happily, this is a strategy which is not only best for Russia, but which is also most advantageous from the British and American viewpoint. We have always regarded Hitler, with Germany's great industrial power behind him, as the principal enemy. Nothing has occurred which requires a revision of that judgment. If the Nazis are smashed, or rendered militarily ineffective, Japan and Italy need give no one serious concern. They are the satellites which might be crushed without causing the downfall of Hitler, but if he is brought to his knees they cease to exist as a serious military threat.

For these reasons, the American people should not pass hasty judgment on Russia's refusal to make war upon Japan. It is possible, of course, that subsequent developments may compel a drastic revision of this estimate of the situation, but until such necessity materializes there is no reason to suppose that Russia will not be making her full contribution to the common effort by continuing to engage the major German strength. Our policy should not be to demand more, but to give her every possible assistance in the remarkable stand that she is making.

Representative Jeanette Rankin, in casting her solitary negative vote against war, declared, "The situation looks the same to me that it did in 1917." Some of her constituents ought to give her the name and address of a good oculist.

These declarations of war, real and technical, remind us of the recent gridiron season. The Allies seem to have the larger squad numerically. but sometimes it seems as though the Axis people have the heavier players.

National Bill of Rights Restricted in Wartime

Writer Tells How 'Guaranties' Were Suspended in Periods When America Was 'Invaded'

By Bertram Benedict. The Bill of Rights, which became a part of the Constitution 150 years ago today, accentuates the issues at stake in the present war. It proclaims the essential British-American credo of government, that the individual possesses certain inherent rights which the state may not abridge, whereas the core of the Nazi-Fascist credo is that no individual right may stand in the way of the aggrandizement of the state. The authors of the Constitution failed to insert in it a bill of rights simply because they believed one unnecessarymuch as it would have been needless to specify that the President, the members of Congress and the judges should not be scoundrels. Hamilton wrote in No. 84 of the Federalist that such "aphorisms" as bills of rights "would sound much better in a treatise of ethics than in a constitution." But the people preferred that assurance be made doubly sure, and the Constitution was ratified only with the understanding that it would be augmented by a Bill of Rights as soon as the first Congress could act.

The Bill of Rights was based on bills of rights previously adopted by Virginia (largely the work of George Mason) and other States. These State bills of rights. in turn, went back to the Declaration of Rights adopted by Parliament in 1689 in the English Revolution, to the Petition of Right proclaimed in 1628 by Parliament (sitting as the high court and thus binding judges), and, further back, to Magna Carta itself. It is to be noted that only the first 8 of the 10 amendments to the Constitution which make up the Bill of Rights are statements of what Congress may and may not do. The ninth provides additional insurance by stipulating that when certain rights retained by the people were specified, this did not mean that the people did not enjoy others not specified. The tenth amendment reaffirmed the fundamental character of the Federal Union by declaring that the States or the people, as the case might be, "reserved" the powers not delegated to the United States nor prohibited by the Constitution to the

How far war properly may restrict the Bill of Rights would seem to depend on the character of the war. For instance, in the Civil War, when the very soil of the United States was under invasion or threat of invasion, the Supreme Court allowed almost all the central guaranties of the Bill of Rights to be suspended. But in the first World War, when there was no danger of invasion, the Supreme Court allowed less stringent suspension of the Bill of Rights. Justices Holmes and Brandeis submitted many minority opinions demanding stricter observance of the Bill of Rights than the majority desired. It may be presumed that the majority of the court today will follow the Holmes-Brandeis philosophy of civil liberties during the last war.

Justice Brandels for a unanimous court. laid down the proper wartime criterion in the Schenck case of 1919. Some actions legitimate in peace properly could be prevented in time of war, but only if they created a "clear and present" danger to the war effort. Such a danger was presented by an anti-war speech of the Socialist, Eugene V. Debs, which might well discourage enlistments. Justices Brandeis and Holmes disagreed with their brethren when these held that a clear and present danger was presented also by distribution of anti-war or anti-Government pamphlets or by publication of a German-language anti-war news-

Part of the Espionage Act of 1917-18 now is operative. It forbids, in time of war, false statements intended to hinder the war effort, and wilful attempts to cause insubordination in the armed forces or to obstruct recruiting. And the mails are forbidden to any matter which violates the above provisions, or which urges treason or forcible resistance to the law. In 1917-18 some of the severest limitations on civil liberties were imposed by State action under State antisedition laws, many of which still are on the statute books.

Wants Children Kept in Schools If Air Raids Occur.

To the Editor of The Star: May I, as a mother of two small school children, protest against the ineptitude of those in charge of civilian defense? At a meeting called for parents with children in public schools it seriously was proposed that in the dreadful event of an air raid the children would be sent home or to hospitable homes within five minutes of the school. The very small children are to be put in charge of children in the "upper" grades, i. e., from 8 to 10 years old! Elaborate questionaires are being filled out to suggest which

home a parent prefers to send his children and which "older" child is to accompany them. If there never had been air raids over cities there might be some excuse for this suicidal nonsense, but there is an unfortunate wealth of experience which indicates what happens when even grown people are permitted to wander around the streets during air raids, and even the master minds of Washington's civilian defense should be able to imagine the possible tragedies ensuing from a mass dismissal of children, small and large, from the city's schools, without adult supervision, and under the strain of terrifying excitement. It is assumed that the schools would be given one Invents Phrase for Application To Attack Upon Pearl Harbor.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"Dear Sir: "This morning I went across Adams binoculars Mill road and into the Zoo Park (Adams Mill road entrance) for a walk. I saw titmice, chickadees, nuthatches, two downy woodpeckers, three mockingbirds, frolicking or fighting-I could not tell which-and above all, a bluebird. I was much amazed to see the bluebird. He lit on a branch above me where I could not see him well, but I got up and moved for a better view; then he flew-and he was a beauty; as blue as blue. Is it not unusual to see a bluebird here at this time of the year?

"You recently spoke about black squirrels. There are plenty of them in the Zoo woods near the administration house; I see them every day and feed them. Some are coal black; some are not so black and have a reddish tinge to their undersides. One old fellow rears up on his hind legs, for a peanut, until he seems to stand 14 inches high, and he looks for all like a miniature black bear. He always makes me think of Kipling's 'The Bear That Walked Like a Man.'

"Very truly yours, E. C."

Twenty-five years ago there was a young man walking through the National Zoological Park. He had lived in the city all his life. When he came to the Zoo, he came to study the animals in the cages, and the people who watched them.

He didn't know which interested him the most, the animals in the cages, or the reactions of the people who looked at them.

How superior the people thought themselves! You could tell it by the way they laughed and joked. An animal in a cage was an animal in a cage, something to laugh at.

A human being was a lordly creature who walked outside.

He, alone, could think. The four-legged things behind the bars-they had no brains, they were only fit to be laughed at. The crowd showed this best at the monkey cage. They fairly roared their heads off, there; and the young man, watching them even more than he did the monkeys, thought that, actually, they had neither the dignity of lions nor the honest good humor of the monks. * * * *

That young man saw neither squirrel nor bird in the park.

These were things outside his ken. Many people are that way. City life tends to take them away from the small four-legged creatures, the squirrels, and the two-legged birds. Birds are just things which fly around, but are of no particular interest. Squirrels, in city parks are amusing, now and then.

At the Zoo, they didn't even exist. But he saw a bright red bird on the grass and it was the first time he had ever seen such a bird.

"Can you tell me what bird that is?"

he asked a man carrying a pair of "Why, that bird," said the man, looking rather oddly at the questioner, "is the cardinal, the redbird." "I never saw one before," said the young man. "I have heard it, though.

We could hear its song from our apartment porch, up there.' He waved toward the South. "We didn't know what it was, so we called it the cheer bird, from its song, which seems to say cheer-cheer-cheer-Today, that same person has learned to love all the birds. Many birds and beasts are at the local Zoo, but often persons who go there to see those in cages fail to notice the ones running around loose.

Yet these are among the most interesting "exhibits." There are scores of varieties of birds, probably as many as 100 in summer and certainly 20 or more in winter. There are chipmunks and squirrels, and rats and mice, too, although the visitor probably will not see the latter, since they mostly come out at night to feast on the left-overs of the animals caged in the open air.

It is always a wise thing, in visiting the Zoo, to spend part of the time in the more secluded places.

There the animal and bird life is practically wild.

You will meet no bears, but may run into a chipmunk or two. These are the bright-eyed, striped little fellows which love the rocky work to be found at various places. The Adams Mill road entrance is noted for these rodents.

They dart in and out as one goes down the long winding rocky steps past the exhibits. Visitors who do not see these, too, are missing something, no matter how many grand and magnificent animals they see in the buildings. Yes, there are always bluebirds in Washington in winter, but not many. There is a section which roughly runs across Wesley Heights, in which many bluebirds live the year around. Most of us will not have bluebirds in winter, and often do not have them in spring or summer, either. Gardeners who welcome this beauty are fortunate. To most of us, the bluebird remains a legend which we may see, now and then, but not often.

It is always a good thing, when visiting our Zoo, to have a bag of peanuts with you. The authorities there do not like you to feed the caged animals, but they do not mind if you give them to the squirrels which come up the path to

Since these rodents have become accustomed to sightseers, they are very tame, and will always come close to get something to eat.

Sees Change in Methods Of Modern Offense and Defense.

To the Editor of The Star:

Japan's foul acts on December 7 have brought forth waves of criticism of the defenders of Pearl Harbor. This is but natural but before complaining we should weigh all the known circumstances leading up to the catastrophe. It must be recognized that the ruthless and criminal methods of warfare adopted by the totalitarian governments were not anticipated three, or even two, years ago and, furthermore, that those methods in conjunction with their unparalleled preparation of mechanized war equipment have caused an overnight change in war strategy. Our Congress has been lamentably apathetic and tardy in recognizing this state of affairs and in providing by legislation the adequate personnel and equipment of defense. Reviewing recent happenings at Pearl Harbor and elsewhere in the Pacific, it appears that no floating craft of the Japanese Navy was involved in the action except an unknown number of aircraft carriers. This being true, it places the responsibility for local defense on harbor aircraft and anti-aircraft guns, leaving it the duty of the naval crews to search for the Japanese plane carriers somewhere in the trackless Pacific.

We are, and always have been, proud of our Army and Navy. But now it is doubtful whether our floating naval craft still constitutes our first line of defense. In besieging coastal enemy cities our capital ships in themselves have but a meager chance against the combined shore artillery, submarines and dive bombers. Our battleships and cruisers still may engage enemy craft of the same and smaller classes in the open sea and hunt down and destroy commerce raiders. But it would seem to be folly to employ capital ships with their large personnels of highly trained men to escort convoys of commercial ships, in which their powerful guns would have no targets save the almost invisible specks in the sky and the totally invisible enemy submarines.

The answer to the German submarine menace in the congested waters 400 or 500 miles from the British and Irish coasts should be the assembling of several large mosquito fleet squadrons, each vessel adequately armed and high in speed. The destroyers would continue their present duties WILBUR S. MAYERS.

Believes "All" Are to Blame

For Japanese Attack on Hawaii. To the Editor of The Star: Following the news of heavy losses to

United States forces from Japan's dastardly and treacherous attack last Sunday, there has been suggestion of a congressional investigation to place responsibility for that tragic setback. Was it, as some who supported the proposal implied, that the Army and Navy had been asleep or does the responsibility go back much farther than that?

If a searching inquiry really were to be made to determine where the blame should rest, should it not go back to those who assiduously sought to lull the people into a false sense of security? Should it not go back to the misguided efforts of appeasers who endeavored to purchase immunity by paying tribute to international bandits, trusting that they EUGENE H. WELLS. | should it go still farther back to the

Considers "Right to Work" A Neglected Freedom.

To the Editor of The Star: December 15 has been announced by the President as "Bill of Rights Day," when we should remember with gratitude the rights secured to us by the founding fathers in the 10 amendments to the Constitution adopted 150 years ago: towit, freedom of religion, of speech, of the press, of assembly and of petition, One right, even more important for the laboring man than some of these, seems to have been forgotten. It is the right to work. This right was given by God to Adam and to his descendants, under the guise of a curse, when he was expelled from the Garden of Eden. Evidently no one dreamed 150 years ago that one day it would be denied to honest and independent workers unless they should wear the collar of a self-rake-offs. We hear much of the freedoms today, but the right to work seems to have few upholders and none in the Department of Labor, where the unbossed workman naturally should expect to find a friend. A VIRGINIAN.

Discusses Confusion

We face strenuous, even dangerous, days ahead. Because of the danger from air raids, I think we should consider the problem objectively and practically. For instance, the papers during the past few days have carried air raid signals, and each paper has published a different set of signals for the "alert" and "all clear." Why not follow the code set forth in the official "Handbook for Air Raid Wardens," published by the Office of Civilian Defense? Hawaii Attack Held Jap Blunder

Nation Unified By Assault, Says Observer

By DAVID LAWRENCE. It was a stiff price to pay-but unity came that way. Thus some day the historians of the present epoch will speak of last week's events. For it is difficult to realize what a profound change the Japanese attack on Hawaii has made in American policy and American attitude toward things outside the United States. Suddenly the interest has shifted to every out- David Lawrence. post, whether American or British or Russian or Dutch or Chinese-a whole theater of war is envisaged and not merely America's part in the great conflict

What happened December 7 at Hawaii will be told and retold by those who witnessed it and by official reports. Nobody will deny that the American fleet suffered a major defeat, but what is going to prove more important is just how the United States Navy reacted to the blow and the things that have been occurring since December 7.

The public has been impatient to know the extent of the damage done. The administration is criticized for not telling all. But the public doesn't yet perceive how important it is to conceal from the enemy exactly what did happen. It is no answer to assume the Japanese know just what battleships were affected. The fact is they do not know. They may see a ship go down, but they may not be sure which one. And it makes a great deal of difference whether a battleship of the 1915 class or one of the 1939

What Japs Want to Know. When a ship is damaged it is important for the enemy to know exactly how extensive are the injuries and particularly how long it may take to make repairs. The Japanese naval command would like to know, too, just how long it will be before the ships are restored and if a ship of a certain type is damaged then it is obvious what the placements must be.

Thus, undoubtedly, too, some big capital ships were ordered from the Atlantic to the Pacific the moment the naval command here realized what had happened. It is important for the Japanese to know which ships and how many and where they are going. These are secrets which it is vital to withhold and that's why illogical impatience or curiosity to force the American naval command to tell what happened at Hawaii is not in the public interest. It is urged that the British told promptly about the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse. But this has not always happened. The British, for reasons of their own, have often postponed announcement of naval losses in the past.

Certainly there is no purpose in concealment except strategic. The facts ultimately become known anyhow, but there may be great military advantage in waiting a few days or even a month sometimes so as to confound the enemy strategists. Knox Got Facts.

The theory that a dive bomber can make a direct hit and see what is happening and report back to his base may be true of a sinking but it is not necessarily true of a severe damaging.

The President sent Secretary Knox to Hawaii to get the facts. It was essential that something like this be done because undoubtedly the public wanted a more thorough examination of civilian and military and naval losses than could be given in the normal process of official reporting. Mr. Knox has come back with the facts.

Russians' Exploit Called Most Heroic of War And Turns Hitler's Propaganda Against Him

led by the least European of European leaders-Hitler. Hitler began by de-Europeanizing Germany and turning it into a tartar horde issuing hoarse cries from de-humanized throats. Now he whimpers to "Europe"-to a prostrate blood-stained, broken and dismembered Europe, a Europe with her walls caved in and the wind whistling through—to rise with him against the "Eastern menace." of the Russians, the while he lets loose those great Aryans and Europeans the Japanese against the New World! But Russia stands at Moscow, and, hurling back the invaders in the most heroic exploit of this war, offsets the disaster at Pearl Harbor and confounds his plans.

A New Axis. This is one war. There is a new Axis: London-Moscow-Chungking-Washington. All Asia except the Island Terror on our side. All the New World. And Europe - waiting. No matter what the leaders say, Europe waiting.

So Pearl Harbor and the initial retreats are only a repetition of an experience common to all. While the Japs were sinking ships before confused and unbelieving eyes, the Russians were reversing the tide on another

A military victory-and a political victory: The announcement that Russia will make peace when Britain and the United States make peace.

The great strategist, with his peasant shrewdness, really plays a very little game. It is apparent that as he hoped temporarily to appease the Anglo-Saxon powers by his attack on Russiasending Hess as the tempter to appease Russia through the attack on America.

For this man with the onetrack mind can never believe that he cannot infinitely repeat a once-successful pattern. But the mold of that pattern is broken. The world has caught on.

Hitler's speech is the weakest in his career. He is really chewing the carpet. For nothing has happened as he planned it. The Japanese were to come in as Moscow fell. But great enterprises must click. They didn't. Too late to call back the Japanese ships-he can only recall Gen. Field Marshal Fedor von Propaganda Turns Against Him. In such a moment, his whole propaganda has turned against him. It was clever of him to declare war first-it was not clever of us to let him do it. But events decide who is clever. In the midst of the debacle before Moscow, the official German spokesman found it well to deny that his Fuehrer had declared war on America. No, he had just taken cognizance of an existing fact.

Why this moral retreat? The answer is obvious. The German people remember that last June Hitler declared war on Russia, promising a swift victory. But the victory is not there and many more than a million young Germans are dead, and the armies of the Nazis are retreating. Now, in this moment, he declares another war! And the German people must be saying, "Is he insane?"

Our War Not Won. Not that it will be easy. The war of the totalitarians is lost as surely as I sit typing these lines. But our war is not won, and still undecided is how much we must pay for it in sweat, blood and tears.

I am for paying the least possible-in the long run-by paying the most immediately. Never in world history will an effort made now pay so much interest to us tomorrow.

We have the alliance of the world but we have not organized it for total war. The Axis has and have worked themselves into the best strategical positions. We must shoot them out.

What is organization for total war? It is common strategy, common plans for production, and a common mobilization of all the spiritual and moral forces in all our nations.

And of these, the most important is the last. It is the essence. as the Chinese and the Russians know, and as the British learned after Dunkerque.

Pearl Harbor Blow Discounted Some; Pacific Fleet Held Able to Meet the Japanese Any Time

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The drawn, pessimistic expressions on the faces of Government officials in the first few days of the war have changed; some smiles are noticeable now.

As a clearer picture reaches here from the Pacific war theater it becomes increasingly evident that the Japanese blitz at Pearl Harbor was not a fatal blow to our naval forces.

It can be gathered from hints and guarded statements that the Japanese exaggerated the number of American ships their dive bombers sank in order to shake America's morale and bolster their own. This does not mean that we have not suffered heavy damage, but it is of such character that it can be repaired over a period of months

These indications appear to be correct, because Washington officialdom is engaging in no pep talks at the present moment. Quite the contrary. The sullen silence which has prevailed in official quarters since the outbreak of war led most observers to believe that the Jap communiques were approximately correct. Could Meet Jap Fleet Any Time.

As far as is known the bulk of the Pacific fleet is in good enough shape to meet the Japanese in battle formation at any time. This is not likely to happen, however, if the little brown men can help it. They will utilize their aerial preponderance in the South Pacific to the utmost, but will not risk their heavy combat ships in a real naval engagement.

This belief of many naval observers is borne out by the reports from Admiral Thomas C. Hart, who commands the United States Asiatic Fleet. He has not yet been able to contact the Japanese high seas fleet, despite the reported inferiority of his forces.

There is no question that the Japanese are fighting with courage: they know that their entire existence as a nation depends on their defeating America. Their general staff is well trained and their patriotism has been whipped to a frenzy. A race of people with a tremendous inferiority complex, they feel themselves elevated to high rank by matching their strength with that of America, the nation they respected and feared most.

The real fight will occur around Singapore and the Netherlands Indies, for these are the two key positions in the Pacific. Singapore is a fortress which bars an enemy fleet from the Indian Ocean. The Netherlands Indies contains all the raw materials which would enable the Japanese to avoid a war of attrition. No one quite knows how much oil, rubber and metals needed for war industries are stored in Japan; but the estimate most optimistic from the Japanese point of view is that supplies are sufficient for 18 months of intense warfare.

If the Japanese succeed in occupying Java, Sumatra and Borneo they can prolong the fight for a long time. They have the manpower and the patriotism required for an indefinite fight, but their efforts to conquer the key points are foiled, the determination of her associated robber nations cannot prevent a final disaster.

Whatever successes Japan scores against our possessions in the South Pacific will, in all likelihood, be of a spectacular nature. From the strategic point of view the Philippines are intended to be merely an advance post. Their defense-again from the strategic standpoint-is intended to cause heavy losses to the enemy, to impair Japan's effort against Malay and to permit a further concentration of forces in that area.

The entire war effort in the Pacific-regardless of any diversions the Japanese may attempt in the next few weeks-will be concentrated on defense of Singapore and the Netherlands

No one here knows-or if he knew could disclose-what preparations are being made at this very moment in the waters between the Philippines and the British and Dutch possessions in the South Pacific and Indian Oceans.

All some authorities are willing to assert is that the United States' naval power has not been impaired by even 10 per cent.

On the other hand, there is the chance Hirohito, taking his cue from the Japanese bombers who sneaked up on Honolulu, let his ancestors in on the declaration of war in this fashion:

Defense

Q. How is the Defense savings program for the sale of bonds and stamps carried on nationally?

A. Through volunteer Defense savings committees set up in the States to enlist the co-operation of business, industrial, agricultural, labor, social and other groups in stimulating continuous and systematic saving by everybody through purchase of Defense savings bonds and stamps for national defense.

Q. What is one important reason why the Government borrows money from the people through the sale of Defense savings bonds?

A. The Government wants ours to be a truly national defense endeavor in which everybody participates voluntarily, and the Defense savings program makes it possible for all to share in the task of protecting American liberties.

Win, Lose or Draw Duke Suggests

The Lonesome Lad Named Lou

Lou Boudreau is a slight, handsome fellow, despite a mouthful of gold teeth and, as you may know, he also is the new manager of the Cleveland Indians. At the tender age of 24 he is the youngest pilot in the history of major league baseball. When news of his appointment broke recently a good many theorists figured that since Alva Bradley discovered that he owns a group of cry babies he decided to string along with the nursery motif when it came time to appoint the annual new leader.

Boy managers have been appointed in the past and strangely, since the odds are all against them, have done well. Notable have been the By cases of Bucky Harris and Joe Cronin. When he was made manager of the Washington club in 1924 at the age of 27, Harris won the first pennant and the only world championship in the history of the Nation's Capital.

The next year he repeated in the American League race. In 1933, East-West games—hunted temporary when President Clark Griffith decided it was time to press his luck again, Cronin became a 26-year-old manager and promptly won Washington's third pennant. But this piece is chiefly about Boudreau. What has his boss done for him so far except put him on the spot?

Winter Meeting No Help to the Indians

The executives of no ball club were followed more closely at the winter meeting last week in Chicago than President Bradley, General Manager Roger Peckinpaugh and young Boudreau of the Indians, who the orphaned sports spectacles. had a job ahead of them. Crammed with inept, temperamental and dissatisfied ballplayers, Cleveland obviously needed a face-lifting job.

This, of course, is nothing new. For years the Tribe has been breaking first from the barrier and folding as soon as some other club, usually the Yankees or Tigers, jockeyed into a position where it could look at the Indians eye to eye. But last year, even with the great Bob Feller, they finished something like 24 games behind the Yankees, who won a pennant with nothing that resembled the mighty New York teams of 1927 and 1936, '37 and '38.

So what did the Indian chieftains do at the meeting? While the Giants, Nats, Dodgers, Tigers, White Sox and A's were busy making trades the Cleveland Club added one player-Pitcher Vernon Kennedy, who wasn't good enough for the sixth-place Washingtons. In effect, Bradley heaved one of those paper matches at the drowning Boudreau and yelled, "Hang on, my boy!" A copy of "Mother Goose" would have helped wise."

Griff Dug In Pocketbook for Harris

It may develop that before next April the Indians will make wholesale changes and at least give the young man a club more temperamentally suited. If so, penalize this corner 5 yards for being offside. But when Griffith daringly appointed Harris and, later, Cronin, he did not keep his "boy wonders" in suspense.

Harris fell heir to a pretty good ball club, headed by the incomparable Walter Johnson. When Griffith saw, however, that it wasn't quite good enough to go all the way, he bought for $50,000 a sore-armed minor league pected today. outfielder named Earl McNeely. In those days $50,000 was big money in baseball. Still is, for that matter. And for Griffith to spend it was some- only be estimated. Based on last thing that startled the critics of the time, for up to that point the Old year's figure. Duke would have re-Fox had specialized in bargain-counter buying and doing very well, too.

At any rate the purchase of McNeely proved how eager Griffith was to support his boy. Of course, he also wanted to win the pennant. But a team nipped at the wire sometimes can make more money than a flag-winner and a time-honored way out for a frustrated club owner is to ceived $7,500 each. The association,

Bucky, Cronin Got Backgrounds Early

Cronin literally was led by the hand to the 1932 winter meeting by Griffith. The young man had never attended one of the corny wakes and it seems safe to say that he has not since attended one so busy for him. Not even when Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox was spending hundreds of dollars buying up Connie Mack's stars. Griffith turned over to Cronin a mediocre team and the Old Fox recognized it as such. But by some of the shrewdest trading of his and other preliminary work, will career, Griffith made it a pennant winner almost overnight. He obtained foot the stamp bill. such as Fred Schulte, Earl Whitehill, Luke Sewell, Walter Stewart, Heine Manush and Goose Goslin and said, "Now, son, let's see if these old fellows have one more good year left in their systems." Happily, they did. It is almost certain that Boudreau will have a harder time than either Harris or Cronin. For one thing, Feller is gone. This is tantamount to Harris' having lost Johnson in 1924. For another thing, Bradley is not the East-West game, have been sold practical, experienced baseball man that is Griffith. And lastly, Boudreau Purchasers will be reimbursed in True, Harris and Cronin weren't much older but they had much more experience. Unlike Boudreau, who only four years ago was playing basket played will assure the Crippled ball for Illinois, they had no college background but, instead, courses at Hard Knocks Tech where they majored in baseball. They toured the minors and knew many of the answers. Undoubtedly they knew more about ball players than Boudreau. But Lou will learn. He's young and healthy enough to stand the strain.

Chicago's Wrigley Field. The Giants knew they were one of the finalists a couple of weeks ago, but the Bears only yesterday captured the Western section honors by humbling the Green Bay Packers, 33 to 14, in a playoff.

Giants Sit in on Rout.

The Giants were among the 43,325 fans at yesterday's third Bear-Packer clash. They learned what some of the league's other clubs discovered by the trial and error method this year-that the Bears often are vulnerable, sometimes for 10 minutes, sometimes for one or even two periods, and once this season for the whole 60 minutes (the Packers beat them, 16-14, on November 2).

Yesterday the Bears were open to attack for a full 15 minutes, during which time the Packers slipped over a surprise touchdown and then held on tight for a 7-6 lead at the end of the first period.

Then the Bears passed out the lumps in rapid order; first a field goal, then a touchdown and point, a second touchdown and point, a third touchdown and point. And at halftime, the Packers were wobbling under a 30-7 handicap from which they never recovered.

Packers Rally Too Late.

As a visiting writer put it, "They didn't need that sudden-death overtime period-the sudden death was passed out right there in the second

True, the Packers held their heads up in the second half, producing their famed passing game for a 60minute total of 222 yards gained via aerials. And they made a lot more headway on Bear penalties, the Chicagoans marching backward 128 yards as a result of 12 cases of misbehavior.

So for the second straight year the Bears are the Western entry in the league's championship game, and a couple of others with high and will seek their second consecutive title in the game against the well-groomed Giants.

having marred records. Heading the list of winners to date are Wisconsin and Minnesota, each with three victories. The Gophers have scored 152 points in winning over Millikin, South Dakota and North Dakota State, while their foes tallied 76. The Badgers have beaten Carroll, Marquette and Notre Dame, compiling 134 points to opponents' 104.

Northwestern, Ohio State and Purdue have won two games apiece, while Michigan and Iowa have been victorious in their only starts.

Hoyas' Reserve Is Ordinary.

With Bornheimer out of the game, as he well might be because of fouls, or without Buddy O'Grady, the play-maker Georgetown will be in distress this winter. The supply of reserves is meager and run-ofthe-mine stuff. Last year Rip had Rizzi to hold the club together with O'Grady able to step in and relieve him with no noticeable let-down, but the situation is different now. Georgetown will feel the pinch in games to come

Scanlon, Catholic's huskiest player, and Byham, one of American's burliest, are handy men to have around for scrimmages under the backboard. They can get the ball, have good scoring eyes, and seem to have a zest for the game that distinguishes a good player from an average one. Byham has an A-1 running mate in Bart Fugler, a good floorman and capable passer, but "Bing's" scoring eye is brighter and keener and he is no slouch in a passing or defensive role. Off the early season form, Georgetown seems to have the edge on its downtown rival, with Maryland a dangerous dark horse. The Terp rookies may develop into a first rate outfit, although the odds against them are high. American U., Catholic and Gallaudet bring up the rear.

Colleges Are Urged to Amplify, Intensify Competitive Athletics During War

N. C. A. A. Feels

Draft May Force Some Schools to Modify Their Programs

By LAWRENCE PERRY,

Special Correspondent of The Star. NEW YORK, Dec. 15.-Rather than curtailing competitive athletics in this year of national emergency, the National Collegiate Athletic Association will try to intensify and amplify them.

Such policy, says Prof. Philip O. Badger of New York University and president of the N. C. A. A., was involved in instructions to members of this body formulated at the annual convention, December 19 last year, in line with general preparations for national de-

"We not only urged intensification and expansion upon our members," said Prof. Badger, "but we asked them so to widen athletic and recreation activities as to provide facilities for public indulgence

"Also we were very definite about urging the co-operation of colleges with the armed services of the Government in the conduct of service sports. We suggested that college coaches lend their aid to Army and Navy teams in preparing them for contest and this was done.

"Harvard co-operated splendidly with Camp Devens and Princeton with Fort Dix. Besides, many colleges arranged contests in various sports with camp, fort and base outfits. Not much could be done about football, but, as to that, many "B" teams and freshman elevens played games against service teams."

Help to Public Morale. Prof. Badger said that both the Army and the Navy had the highest appreciation of the effects of competitive sport and general physical exercise, not only in their effects upon participants, but upon public morale in time of mental

"But," he said, "it must be definitely understood that the problem of conducting intercollegiate sports differs at various major institutions, and minor ones, too, for that matter. Here, at New York University, our 1941 football prospects were wrecked by the withdrawal of key players under the selective service. A small minority have been plastering the coach with criticism, a man who did the best he could with what the Government

"Well" Prof. Badger went on to say, "that is one of the problems our colleges will have to meet in carrying on athletics, as of course they will do. This is to say they will proceed as at present until arising conditions necessitate changes.

"Obviously, in any conference certain colleges will suffer from players inducted into service more than rival colleges. There can, of course, be no even balance in this

May Have to Retrench.

"Then, too, the draft is not at all unlikely to have an adverse effect upon student enrollment at our educational institutions, and coupled to this the interest of boys in well-paid defense jobs, rather than in pursuing higher education, is going to cause a serious administrative problem related only in part to athletics."

Prof. Badger foresees an adverse effect upon intercollegiate athletics in losses colleges and universities will incur from reduced income from tuition charges. "Retrenchments may be necessary," he said, "and such policy will apply to athletics, as well as to other institutional branches. It probably will be no surprise to those who follow college sports closely that income from intercollegiate sport, including football, is by no means an asset in many colleges and universities throughout the country. "With a comparatively few exceptions throughout the country sports are maintained at a loss or at best with budgets just balanced and no more. Losses from tuition fees, reduced gate receipts because of teams lacking drawing power,

Extension of Duck Hunting Day by Hour Seen Way to Curb Crippling of Fowl

Several weeks back, we expressed our personal opinion on several of the present waterfowl regulations. The 4 o'clock closing hour was judged by Arthur Forbush. foremost, because with normal November weather the birds will not fly

This regulation was aimed at the destructive shooting at dusk at which time the birds will fly, but hunters then are unable to judge the distance correctly and therefore cripple many ducks they never retrieve.

Given a 5 o'clock closing hour, most sportsmen religiously would stop shooting on the dot which they aren't doing now in any area where it is possible to get away with the violation. There would be fewer cripples through knowing this good shooting was sure to come and there would be no need to shoot at long range during the day.

Best of Breeds.

Sporting breeds—Chesapeake retriever.

Mrs. G. Hoes' Daisy: English setter. R. E. Wolford's Blue Knight; Irish setter. G. W. Hennessy's Shaun Stanmore; cocker spaniel. J. B. Kime's Roderic; springer spaniel. Clarence Swanson's Bonny; best sporting. Irish setter.

Hound breed—Afshan. E. R. Hick's Vishun: Borzoi, H. W. Gross' Pete; dachshund. Dr. Louis Cornet's Janet: whippet. Betty Lee Hinks' Heel Work; best hound, dachshund.

We believe long-range shooting is responsible for more cripples than

We believe long-range shooting is responsible for more cripples than any other single circumstance.

At 5, even on the shortest December day, there is enough light to enable hunters to gauge distance correctly. Any later shooting, however, would take us back to the dusking which at this time isn't to be consequently.

Boxers. Gordon Barton's Bravenharta Baloran Katinka: briard. Mrs. R. Currie's Bri. colles. R. B. Rogers' Lassie: Doberton Morris Bassford's Rex. German shepherd. J. L. Harrison's Tailor of the Nats swept honors in base stealing with 33 thefts, but his sums sidered. Rightfully, it never should be permitted again.

Sheldon Defends Early Hour. The response of wildfowlers to the 5 o'clock idea has been surprising. One letter in particular-from Col. H. P. Sheldon in the Fish and Wildlife Service and a wildfowler of 40 years' experience—is interesting because it is constructive, even though its writer is not convinced that the additional hour would reduce the number of cripples. He writes:

"No one hung a bigger wreath on the tomb of "dusk shooting" than I did when it became necessary to prohibit the practice in order to give the birds opportunity to rest and feed unmolested from sunset to dawn. I still think dusking was the most fascinating form of wildfowling. To sit with the nose of your skiff against a bog or buried in a stand of wild rice watching the birds coming in against the afterglow was worth all the floundering around in the mud after the cripples. For, in the uncertain light, we did a good deal of crippling of birds well within range and I'm inclined to think that for this reason later shooting as a means to reduce such losses would not accomplish that purpose.

Col. Sheldon also pointed out that the late shooting "burned out" the birds, which in the old days mattered little for then we had some 77,000,000 more acres of wildfowl habitat than we now have. Today it would be a serious matter.

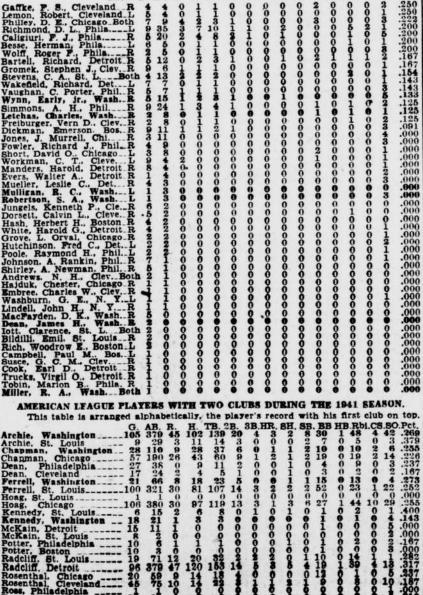

Loss in Cripples Heavy.

He estimates the annual legal kill between 10 and 12 million birds and the loss through cripples at nearly a fourth more. We believe this a conservative estimate—our figures for cripples are nearly a third of Believing that if the individual hunter would decide to quit trying the long doubtful shots there would be at least 2,000,000 more ducks to go back north each spring, Col. Sheldon asks: "Can you think of any way by which to improve our shooting more effectively or in a shorter space? I think we should talk about crippling, think about crippling and preach crippling until careless shooting at game birds comes to be regarded as the abuse it really is."

We still believe an additional hour in the evening would help. Wildlife officials are doing a swell job, but if they could get closer to the sportsmen, by council or otherwise and lay the cold facts on the board, closer co-operation and less feeling of frustration might result. There should be education for those who cannot understand the relation of the demand against the supply. Last, those poor shots should practice at a closeby skeet or trap club so that they may go into a blind better pre-

There is a January season to be talked over as well as baiting. Our ideas are personal, those of Col. Sheldon unofficial. If any wildfowler cares to send his in, let it come so long as the idea is unselfish, constructive and for the good of the game.

Steel Rate Estimated At 97.9 Per Cent For This Week

Increasing Shortage Of Scrap Stressed in Institute Report

By the Associated Press NEW YORK, Dec. 15 .- The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today that the Nation's steel producers would operate this week at 97.9 per cent of capacity, an increase of 0.4 of 1 per cent from last Am General (.15g)_ week's rate of 97.5.

A month ago the rate was 97 per cent of capacity and a year ago

Commenting on the failure of Am Superpur pf. in some quarters for threats of declining output, was becoming more acute, particularly in Midwest steel- Ark Nat Gas Price Ceilings Fixed.

Price ceilings at the level of April 16 were imposed today on resales of iron and steel products by jobbers, dealers and distributors.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 .- An active trade and Wall Street demand moved cotton futures sharply higher today before local selling and hedging cut into the advance. The volume of trade was small.

Prospects of increased consumption as a result of large Government Childs pf 50s purchases of textiles and the absence of adverse war news contributed to the advance. Traders' attention was still focused on price- Clev Tractor 4 control hearings in Washington and offerings were light.

Boost in Cottonseed Ceiling Is Sought

Hope for a readjustment of the 1212-cents-per-pound price fixed on cotton seed, so that producers could receive at least the heretofore prevailing market quotation of 14 cents, was expressed today by Senator Maybank, Democrat of South Caro-

He said he had protested to the office of price administration after elec P & L war _____

Maybank described as unfair and unjust the fixing of a price below Equity Corp the figure producers had been getting. He said he had received hundreds of communications from growers protesting the O. P. A. order. "Price administration officials are now reconsidering the matter."

Government Bonds Steady in Face of War Outbreak

Performance Very Good Considering Gravity

impressively steady performance. One of the principal authorities on the market for the Federal issues said he regarded the way the 9% 638 bales of lint and 576,966 of lint- price picture had shaped up as "gratifying" and added that, "con-24 460,523 on October 31 this year and sidering the gravity of the news, the 71% 1,684,018 and 453,586 on November 30 performance was even better than might have been expected." 3½ In public storage and at com-bit presses, 13,964,018 bales of lint and ica's money is tied up in the bonds

95.903 of linters, compared with 13.- and notes of its Federal Government and the record of the week which this year and 14.726,496 and 70,278 brought hostilities with Japan, Germany and Italy seemed to most Wall 134 Pur Sd Pulp (2) ___ 1 144 144 144 Imports of foreign cotton during Street men a real score in the eco-November were not available. Im- nomic tally of this gigantic world struggle for power. Some Support Necessary.

True, United States Government bond prices felt the hammer-blow of the surprise Japanese attack and even some official support of prices by the Treasury was undertaken on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, the second and third days of the war. But, Government bond dealers reported, this support buying was infinitesimal in comparison with the huge total Governments in the hands of the public and, as the week closed, prices were on the uptrend. Primarily responsible for the steady behavior of the key securities market, it was reported, was the decision of the big institutional holders, commercial and savings banks, insurance companies and the like, not to toss their portfolios on the market.

Three Factors Important. In this decision, Wall Street men said, three factors were predominant

1. Institutional investment lists already hold $30,000,000,000 or upward of the Federal Government's loans. To sell would be to break down the value of this huge investment. 2. The general feeling of confidence that the war can be won and the debt structure preserved without major dislocation. 3. Widespread recognition that centralized controls, especially in the Treasury and the Federal Reserve System, exist to a greater degree than ever before and appear strong enough to keep the Government market in hand, almost regardless of international developments. New Issue Down.

Principal difficulty which devel-ped in the market after the shock of war was in the new taxable 21 per cent bonds due in 1970-72, which got down to par-$1,000 per bondoff about 11/2 points-$15 per bondfrom their best price before the war broke out This issue still was what Wal

Wheat rose almost a cent, rye more than a cent and other grains fractionally early in the session, but later turned lower, largely in sympathy with the collapse of bean prices. Some hedging sales were reported in the wheat pit.

This was the second session in a row that beans have tumbled the maximum permitted in one day. Weakness was attributed principally to a sharp drop in quotations of soybean oil following imposition of ceil-

This issue still was what Wall Street calls "undigested." A good many individuals and institutions had bought it at par in anticipation of the "free ride" to higher prices which seemed sure and which did occur.

It was in this issue that the Treasury centered its support, buying, it was understood, only when the price threatened to slip below the $1,000-mark.

Special Dispatch to The Star. NEW YORK, Dec. 15.-The paper box industry has felt the impact of expanding war output and increased industrial and business activity generally as the demand for packaging and shipping containers for the ever-increasing flow of commodities has reached new highs The chief problem facing box manufacturers is to maintain operations at an accelerated rate in the face of growing stringency in paperboard supplies reported Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., in a recent survey. In October production of paperboard, most important material in the manufacture of paper boxes, was 23 per cent above last year's levels. Despite record-breaking activity at mills, however, a backlog of orders over three times larger

WASHINGTON, D. C., MONDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1941.

And Evacuation Bill Passed

City Heads Given Broad Powers for Defense of D. C.

Without debate, the House this afternoon completed legislative action on the Randolph emergency defense bill authorizing the Commissioners, with approval of the Secretary of War, to order blackouts in the District and evacuate the city in event of hostile attacks. It now goes to the White House for the President's signature.

The measure, which also gives the Commissioners broad powers to command a civilian defense program, was first passed by the House Friday. It came back for concurrence in several amendments adopted by the Senate when it approved the bill the same day.

In final approved form, the legislation authorizes the Commissioners to borrow $1,000,000 from the Federal Treasury to carry out the civilian defense program, and stipulates that all expenses in conection with an evacuation of the District shall be borne by the United States.

Snow Clearance Parking Ban Goes Into Effect

The city's annual snow clearance parking ban went into effect at midnight last night on 85 miles of District streets, principally arterial or the street clearance program would be seriously hampered. William Xanten, supervisor of the City Refuse Department and in charge of the snow removal program, said the city is better equipped this year than previously to meet a snow emergency. British Army Officer Alertness' for All

Lack of Front Line Puts Responsibility on Every Person, He Warns U. S.

A high-ranking British military officer who played an important part in organizing England's home defense warned Americans in an interview here today that the present war is one in which every individ- is on the alert. ual should maintain an air of "suspicious alertness."

There is no front line now as there minded, explaining that the possibility of an attack in any area at any time placed an individual responsibility on every one. The officer described the home guard as one of the most important phases of home defense. The more thoroughly it is organized over a country, he said, the more the strength of the enemy is weakened. Home guard service in England is voluntary, he said. Members of units in most instances are skilled workers who have been exempted from regular military service because of their value to production.

They serve in a dual capacity—part time at their regular work and part by the government while actually on guard duty. Home defense units, as distinguished from the home guard, are conscripted and serve full time. Their members consist almost altogether of men who are too old or otherwise unfit for strenuous field service, although they are eligible to be called on for any type of military duty if necessary. In case of an air raid alarm in England, the officer said, civilians are given a simple and straightforward order-"stay where you are." Air raid shelters should be widely dispersed and every individual should have a gas mask, he

You and an Air Raid

How Washington Will Be Warned In Event of Coming Plane Attack

(No. 1 of a Series.)

Your country is at war, a modern war not confined to the soldiers at the front. Against the chance that enemy planes may one day shower death on Washington from the sky, you must know what to do and what will be done for you to protect your family and your home

To make that knowledge as specific as possible. The Star, beginning today, will picture a hypothetical air raid, from the time enemy planes are first sighted until they are driven off by our defenders.

Off the coast are our Navy and Coast Guard patrols. Scattered at five-mile intervals along the coast and throughout the country are airplane spotters. These observation posts are manned by civilians under direction of the Army Air Forces

A squadron of planes is sighted as it sweeps over the coast. The spotter rushes to a telephone, tells the operator: "Army flash." He is immediately connected with the nearest filter center. He reports the height, speed, direction and the number of the enemy planes. This information is put on a large map. A teller watching the map telephones to the regional information center, where the information is put on a large operations map. Watching the operations map is the commanding officer for the region, who keeps track of the course of the invading bombers and orders different squadrons into the air to intercept them. With him is the civil air raid warning officer, who flashes a yellow light warning to the communities in the path of the In Washington a yellow light blinks on the Control Center's communications board. Under favorable conditions (that is, unless they slip through the network of observers) the first warning comes to Washington when the planes are as much as 15 minutes away On the yellow light, the alert will go out from communications headquarters to such points as hospitals, fire and police stations, first-aid posts, public utilities, ranking civilian defense officials and air raid wardens at their warden posts. Police will be notified by teletype; fire stations by 10 clangs of their regular alarm system. A simultaneous telephone hookup will carry the alert to the heads of the far-flung civilian defense setup. This first alert has not ye reached the general public. It is only for those who guard the city. They go to their posts knowing only that unidentified planes have been sighted.

Hundreds of Alexandrians and motorists passing the Portner Playground site two blocks south of the traffic circle at the north city limits yesterday visited the shelter constructed by the Alexandria Defense Council's Air Raid Shelter Committee with a $200 appropriation from the city.

Designed to accommodate six persons without crowding, it is 8 feet square and 612 feet high in the center. It is a type planned by the War Department from designs used in England and will hold eight adults and several children in an emergency. In an impromptu test yesterday Vice Mayor Eugene Simpson counted 15 children in the shelter at one time.

The structure was built in the city garage and consists of sheets of steel welded to form an arch. It is sunk George H. Lanhardt. Surviving are two feet into the ground and the camouflage and sand bags were piled

Shipyards to Recruit 1,000,000 Workers Before End of 1942

Of Personnel Needs Doubled by Officials

By WILLIAM J. WHEATLEY.

Nearly a million skilled and ures compiled before we entered the war had indicated that half a million workers would be needed to carry out the accelerated shipbuilding and naval construction program.

In addition to the normal construction forces, men will be needed acres. for repair work on vessels which may be damaged in warfare.

In recruiting workers, the shipbuilders will be in competition to some extent with the demands of men for the military service for the increasing Army and naval operations, but it was explained that from the shipbuilding standpoint, the standardizing of the work, particularly on the freight ships and tankers, will permit rapid training of new men. This is particularly true in the non-combatant ship construction field, where welders are the great part of the force. Those needed for naval construction are mostly in the field of skilled machinists. Welding has become such an industry in the last few years that it is expected there will be little trouble in obtaining sufficient trained men to fill all of the openings. But officials pointed out that while cargo ship and tanker construction technique has been materially accelerated, the work of assembly cannot be pushed any faster than the plants behind the yards produce the time Commission already had been stepped up to a six-day, two-shift basis. Consideration now is being given to ordering a seven-day, three-shift operation, which will materially increase the demand for personnel

One of the big jobs expected to go into some yard is that of con-verting the French liner Normandie Recent 'Pre-War' Estimate into either a troop transport or plane carrier. This job, it is estimated, will require six months, at the least.

Yuletide Spirit Pervades First Sunday Parties Since War's Outbreak

Mrs. Tomas Cajigas Welcomes Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Grady With Buffet Supper

"We need the Christmas spirit more than ever, now," decided gracious Mrs. Tomas Cajigas on Saturday. So, for the buffet supper party that she gave last evening to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Grady back to the Capital, she decorated the house in Christmas style. In the hall a prettily arranged creche placed on the table was reflected in the large mirror back of it. A wrought-iron Christmas tree, holding red and white candles, centered the dining room table, and at the four corners stood lovely little angels to carry out the yule design.

Hostess in Orchid Lame, Her Daughter in Black.

Mrs. Cajigas chose a striking gown of orchid lame, made with a jacket and elbow-length sleeves. Her daughter, Miss Anita Cajigas, assisted during the evening, wearing a long-sleeved black crepe dress which was brightened by her necklace of pearls and matching bracelet and earrings.

Also assisting the hostess were Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the Federal Security Administrator; Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward of the Social Security Board, Mrs. Helen Moran Drury and Mrs. John J. Shugrue.

Among the 60 guests present were the Cuban Military and Air Attache and Senora de Munilla, and the party, besides welcoming the Gradys back to the Capital for Christmas, turned out to be a farewell for Senora de Munilla, who is to leave soon to spend the holidays with her family in

By the Way—

Even with the Three Dances called off, dinners originally planned to precede the first of the series Saturday night went right ahead. Hostesses who only 10 days ago had scoured the town for extra men suddenly found that with the cancellation of the Gridiron dinner they were deluged with all the masculine brains and charm of the country! Even the "big shots" were allotted a lovely lady only on one side . . there just were not enough women to go 'round

Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey's dinner at her Massachusetts avenue house was buffet, so there wasn't any seating problem. Mrs. Gore Auchincloss had a smaller dinner at her new Georgetown house-but with loads of extra men. The Thomas Clagetts had a party, which included Mrs. Clagett's mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, and an attractive group of their young married friends. Peggy Wagner had a young people's dinner at Mrs. Eldridge Jordan's, where she's spending the winter. Mrs. Randall Hagner gave a dinner, too, and the John Grosses of Bethlehem stayed in Washington just long enough to ask a few old friends to dine with them at the 1925 F Street Club. All in all, it was a good, gay evering. The war news was encouraging. The men looked devastating in their "spick-and-span" new uniforms and the ladies were their best and most becoming gowns and made it very clear to every one that they were not downhearted . . . and didn't intend to be, ever.

Mrs. Emory Sands, down from New York for the week end, told the best story of the evening . . . and a true one. It seems that the popular and vivacious Mrs. Sands boarded the train in New York, found that some old friends of her's were going as far as Philadelphia and promptly joined them in their drawing room. Soon they, in turn, were joined by a nice and rather shy young man who worked for the Maritime Commission. One of Marianna's old friends quietly whispered that the young man, while in New York, had been besieged by some rather trate North Caroilnians who wanted to know why a South Carolinian had been chosen to sponsor a newly christened ship launched in North Carolina. Marianna, who can turn on a Southern accent and all the "Southern-belle" charm at the drop of a hat, suddenly became a helpless and rather annoyed lady from North Carolina. "Why," said she to the young man, "did you choose a South Carolinian to christen that ship, when we have so many perfectly lovely people right in North Carolina?" The young man stammered his apologies and explained that he, personally, had nothing to do with it-it was up to Admiral Land.

"You mean Jerry Land?" simpered the Southern belle-alias Marianna.

"Do you know him?" trembled the frightened young man. "Why, honey, he's my very best friend," said Mrs. Sands. "Is all this his fault?" "Well, no, I suppose it was really up to Capt. Macauley," hedged the

"You don't mean Eddie Macauley?" said the lady who came from North Carolina, "'cause he's my next bes' friend!" By this time the young man remembered that he had to see about some baggage in another car . . . hastily got off the train in Baltimore. No one enjoyed this story more than Admiral Land, to whom Marianna told it at the Grosses'

Glee Club Concert.

The Catholic University Glee Club under the direction of Dr. Leo Behrend will present its annual Christmas concert at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of Mc-Mahon Hall. Christmas numbers will sound the keynote of the concert, with the last half devoted entirely to Christmas carols. Other numbers will include the popular "Soldiers' Chorus," from Gounod's "Faust."

The guest artist will be Glenn Carow, prominent Washington pianist, who made his last appearance with the Glee Club at its Christmas concert two years ago. This concert has always been one of the outstanding features of the university activities. All friends of the university are invited to attend.

Defense Courses Listed. Completing eight weeks of intensive training in the special defense engineering courses now in progress at Catholic University, 22 students have just finished their studies in materials testing, according to an announcement made yesterday by Prof. Thomas J. Mac-Kavanagh, chairman of the University Defense Training Committee. A new course in this subject will begin early in January.

The defense courses are sponsored by the office of education and offer free studies to students who have previously had two years of work in engineering colleges or the equivalent. Graduates usually are immediately placed in engineering positions with industries having defense contracts.

Other courses which are nearing completion are: Metallurgy of iron and steel, electrical engineering, elementary structures, elementary mechanics, engineering mathematics and intermediate machine design.

With a program featuring Christmas music, the Catholic University Band will give its initial concert of the school year in the gymnasium at 8 o'clock tonight. Under the leadership of Director Paul D. Leman, the 40 musicians will play eight numbers appropriate to the a junior in the college of arts and sciences, will serve as master of ceremonies. The chief soloist will be John Jarbo.

Pacific Co-ordinator Job For Leahy Predicted

The Army and Navy Register, a service journal, said in an editorial in the current issue that "it would surprise no one" if Admiral William D. Leahy, Ambassador to Vichy, was given the job of co-ordinating all military and naval commands in the mid-Pacific.

The editorial declared that no judgment should be passed on the Pearl Harbor incident until all the facts were known.

"Whether or not there is a shake-up of the Hawaiian high commands," the Register said, "there are indications of measures to be taken to co-ordinate all of the mid-Pacific commands, both military and naval, under one head.

The magazine recalled that Admiral Leahy had urged that the Navy "be permitted to settle the Japanese business forthwith," when the Japanese sank the United States gunboat Panay in the Yangtze river on December 12, 1937.

Gen. Truesdell Sent To Caribbean Command

Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, com-mander of the 6th Army Corps, has been ordered to report immedi-ately for duty with the Caribbean Defense Command which is a part of the Panama Canal department. His new duties there were not stated.

At Providence, R. I., headquarters of the 6th Army Corps, he has been replaced by Maj. Gen. George Grunert, who recently was commander of the Philippine depart-

Two other general officers also have been reassigned. Brig. Gen. Arthur C. Campbell, commander of the 2d Coast Artillery District, Fort Hamilton, N. Y., will exchange commands with Brig. Gen. Ralph E. Haines, who commands the Har-bor Defense of Narragansett Bay, Fort Adams, R. I.

Arnold Named to Be Lieutenant General; 14 Others Promoted

Col. Theodore Roosevelt To Be Brigadier; Two Picked as Major Generals

President Roosevelt sent to the Senate today a list of 25 nominations for temporary appointment as general officers in the United States Army, including that of Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air and chief of the Army air forces, to be a lieutenant gen-eral. Gen. Arnold is stationed at the War Department.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the former President, now in command of the 26th Infantry, 1st Division, was promoted to the rank of brigadier general. This is the regiment in which Col. Roosevelt, a Reserve officer, served brilliantly in the first World War. He is a former governor general of the Philip-

War Department officials said that Gen. Arnold would be the only deputy chief of staff with the temporary rank of lieutenant general. Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, who commands the headquarters combat group, will be a subordinate to him.

Two New Major Generals. Two newly created major generals on the list are Brig. Gen. Horace H. Fuller, commanding the 41st Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash.,

John Haynes Holmes, Pacifist, Offers to Quit Pastorate

Noted New York Cleric Says He Can't 'Bless Or Support War'

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 15.-Effective "at such time in the uncertain future as my retirement may preserve this beloved church from embarrassment, odium or peril," the Rev John Haynes Holmes has offered his resignation as minister of the Community Church, which he founded 35

Thus the noted 62-year-old cleric repeated a move taken in the last World War in an announcement yes-U. S. Ready to Seize terday before his congregation at Town Hall, explaining he could not use his ministry "to bless, sanction One Billion in Assets or support war.'

Board to Reject Offer. The resignation — undated — was handed to Dominick F. Pachella, chairman of the church's board of trustees, which refused to accept it in 1918, and which, according to Mr. Pachella's view, would not accept it this time.

Dr. Holmes, a director of the American Civil Liberties Union and active in civic and philanthropic affairs, asserted that the American people were not guiltless in a war which he described as "the final outrage" to the will of God, and added:

"I thought through my pacifism more than a quarter of a century ago and have lived by it ever since It was tried as by fire in the last war, and again in the more dreadful fire of this present war. Now that the flames of this war have spread to our own shores, it must be tried even more terribly again.

Says U. S. Must Share Guilt. "We have our share of guilt in this disaster," he declared in another part of his sermon. "Ours is a war world, to which we have consented and in which we have participated, and this is what happens in such a world. War is the quintessence of evil. It is the greatest of all evils, because it contains all other evils within itself. It is violence, hatred, lust, pride, enmity, falsehood, deceit, and the rest of the complete catalogue of crime. From such evil can come no good thing, but only disaster and doom immeasurable." Neither as clergyman nor citizen, he said, would he participate "in the erty custodian in the first World War, who handled $669,000,000 worth armed hostilities of this hour" but of foreign assets. neither would he "oppose, obstruct, or interfere with officials, soldiers, or citizens in the performance of what they regard as their patriotic duty."

ing over 500,000 tons. Mrs. Harriman, who was on duty in Oslo when Norway was invaded April 9, 1940, said that December 7, 1941, the day of the Japanese attack on Hawaii, "was essentially a repetition of April 9, 1940, and in this sense it means that we Americans can now better understand what happened in your country last year."

Ickes Sees Nation's Natural Resources Mobilized for War

Some Developed Years Ahead of Schedule, He Tells President

Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today the Nation's natural resources were mobilized and ready -some developed years ahead of original schedules-to meet unprecedented war demands for materials. Reporting to President Roosevelt on activities of his department during the last year, Mr. Ickes said:

"The struggle abroad has opened our eyes, as never before, to the extent and the possibilities of America's resources. We have been enabled to turn to our natural heritage, and in the wealth of minerals, water power, grazing land, and timber find the vital necessities for constructing our physical defenses."

Long-time conservation programs conceived for peace-time requirements were pushed during the year, the Secretary said, to enable the United States to fulfill its function as the arsenal of democracy and more lately to enable it to wage war against the Axis powers.

Water Power Enlarged.

"We have hastened," Mr. Ickes said. the development of hydro-electric power in the West. We have never lost sight of more and greater power production as an inevitable objective for a progressive age, but with the quickened tempo of defense needs, we stepped up, by years, the schedules originally set for these great projects.'

He said the department also had hastened its work of locating and evaluating deposits of strategic and critical minerals.

"Studies of the Bureau of Mines vindicate that we may, in an emergency, produce our own supply of ferromanganese. The production of helium gas in the world's only helium plant was increased until it soon will be producing nearly 36,-000,000 cubic feet annually. The bureau's experiments in producing gasoline from coal advanced nota-

The report said there was no immediate need for the United States to obtain gasoline in this fashion, but pointed out that the hydrogenation of coal, which has been confined so far to tests on a semi-commercial scale, could be started commercially "at any time . . natural resources show signs of depletion.'

Months Ahead of Schedule.

In his report on the progress of hydroelectric power, the secretary

"The initial production of power at Grand Coulee Dam was months ahead of schedule. The Bonneville Power Administration power sales alone made possible the manufacture of enough aluminum pig metal to build one out of every four planes. Other plants produced additional power as the mobilization of democracy made it possible for us to compress into mere months the construction and power-installation schedules of years.'

At the close of the last fiscal year, 28 power plants were in operation at 17 projects under the department's supervision. Mr. Ickes said these plants had a total installed capacity of 953,962 kilowatts-exceeding that of all plants on the Pacific Coast in 1912.

The report said the demand for construction of multiple-purpose projects—for power and irrigation continued unabated. He said there was no dearth of projects. Water for Irrigation.

"Estimates are that there is sufficient water available in the West to irrigate an additional 22,000,000 acres, and provide suppemental supplies for 11,700,000 acres. Potential power developments, in connection with irrigation developments, would doubtless provide as much as 30,000,-000 kilowatts of electric capacity, more than three times the existing installed capacity.' Mr. Ickes said his department had provided valuable data needed in finding water supplies for defense plants and industries and military training camps. He said it also had helped provide land for military training operations.

Research by the Fish and Wildlife Service indicates, he said, the possipility of increasing, under wartime emergency, fish food supplied from 4.443,000,000 to 6,200,000,000 pounds annually. The Bituminous Coal Division, he added, had brought stability to bituminous coal markets by the establishment of minimum prices and marketing rules.

Other achievements of the department were listed as follows: Improvement of liquid-oxygen explosives to render them virtually immune to ignition from fire or Location of a domestic source of

3,000 Join in Prayer For Victory, Peace At Union Service

Services at Cathedral Led by Bishop Freeman; Four Clergymen Speak

By JAMES WALDO FAWCETT.

America's acceptance of the spir-Itual challenge of the second World War was demonstrated at Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon. when more than 3,000 members of different religious groups united in a service of prayer for victory and

The congregation included scores of men in uniform as well as mothers. sisters and wives of men who already have left for the fighting front.

Beginning with the hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," sung as a processional, the sacred program arranged by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, included opening sentences spoken by the Rev. Dr. Theodore O. Wedel chancellor of the Cathedral, and the 91st Psalm, read by the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the Covenant - First Presbyterian Church. The lesson, chosen from the 40th chapter of Isaiah, was recited by the Very Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips, newly installed Cathedral

Four Speakers Are Heard.

Four speakers addressed the congregation during the portion of the service ordinarily reserved for the sermon. The Rev. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, president of the Washington Federation of Churches, appealed to his hearers to cultivate courage without hate. "We have come to this hallowed place," he said, "to translate into action the faith which we express on our coins, 'In God We Trust'."

A similar note was struck by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, minister of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, who urged a return to the ethical principles of the ancient fathers and declared: "Because our cause is just, it is our steadfast faith that the God whose outstretched arm led us out of bondage into freedom in ages past will help us now to vanquish the hard-hearted of our own time; but if our cause is to remain just it is also our sacred pledge to the generations still unborn that the victory shall not be our's but rather God's, that it must be the victory of God's righteousness for the people of this

The Right Rev. George Algernon West, bishop of Rangoon in Burma, a visitor to the Cathedral, asserted: "These times can be mightily used by God. In quietness and in confidence shall be our strength. The spirit of unity grows in mo-ments like these. When the viceroy of India asked all the people to turn to God in prayer, they did so. Thus we strangers discover the spirit of neighborliness much as men in the front line of battle do. Isn't this crisis the chance of church of Jesus Christ?"

Slain Flyer's Sonnet Quoted. Bishop Freeman's address centered in the quoting of a sonnet written by John G. Magee, jr., a pilot officer in the Canadian Air Force who was reported killed in active service on Thursday. Explaining that the poet's father, assistant rector of St. John's Church, was present in the Cathedral, he urged that America adopt the example of "this 19-year-old boy who put out his hand and touched the

The bishop's voice broke when he attempted to quote the verses printed in The Star Saturday. With malice toward none and charity for all." he insisted, "we must win the war not with mere physical agents, but with an awakened spiritual power. There is one light in the world that all the forces of hell could not put out, and by its beams we must be guided. It is a duty for us to be unified before Him who has made and preserved us a Nation. Please, I beg of you, never think of this house again except as a house of prayer for all people. In the name of Him who gave Himself that men might live, I ask that the God of Peace may fill your hearts, uniting all races and all classes that His kingdom may come."

Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace had seats in the great choir during the service. Others attending included many Government officials, members of Congress, representatives of universities and colleges, members of the diplomatic corps, visiting clergy and laity representing all branches of religion in Washington,

New Gains Reported, British Forces Seek Showdown in Libya

Two Counterattacks by Gen. Rommel's Troops Declared Repulsed

By the Associated Press. CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 15 .- Further British gains southwest of Gazala were announced by British headquarters today as the Libyan campaign apparently turned into a race by the imperial forces to compel the Axis armies to fight a decisive battle before they can fall back on new and favorable positions.

British and Indian troops twice were counter-attacked by German tanks and truck-borne infantry during the advance, the communique said, "but both attacks were repulsed, 16 German tanks being destroyed and 20 officers and 350 other ranks being captured."

It said more than 700 Axis prisoners, many of them German, were taken yesterday. Heavy new material blows dealt Gen. Erwin Rommel's forces were listed as the capture of seven guns, three tanks and a supply dump containing 70,000 gallons of fuel and the destruction of six Axis planes by British ground

Gen. Rommel is employing heavy forces as a rearguard, frontline dispatches said, in a desperate effort to fend off a full-scale clash with the British 8th Army. Despite confusion attending the German and Italian retreat along a 40-mile front, the British said Gen. Rommel still was in full control of his forces and that their westward movement was orderly.

The British said they virtually had encircled Gazala, which is some 100 miles west of the Egyptian border, but that they did not know just how many Axis troops were trapped there. The main centers of resistance were said to be there and to the southwest.

Italians Admit Loss Of Two Light Cruisers

ROME, Dec. 15 (Official Radio) (A).-The Italian high command today acknowledged the loss of two light cruisers in the Central Medi-

The war communique said Italians at Gazala, 40 miles west of Tobruk, were resisting vigorously against continued British pressure.

The communique said 20 British planes were shot down in the North African fighting, 13 by Italian and German fighter planes and 7 by anti-aircraft gunners. The Italians admitted losing two planes.

British raids against Derna and Cirene also were acknowledged, with two persons killed but no damage The communique said the two

It asserted that all crew members were saved. (Previously the British had announced the sinking of three Italian cruisers in the Mediterranean during the week end.) The high command also asserted that an Italian submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Dutch destroyer while a second submarine torpedoed a British cruiser in the Central Mediterranean.

Indian Troops Reported Repulsing Nazi Forces

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP).-Indian troops, fighting with Britain's North African Army, were reported today to have repulsed two Axis counterattacks south of Gazala and destroyed 16 of the 40 tanks participating. The Indians captured 21 Axis officers and 350 men, advices from the Libvan war front said.5 These dispatches declared the German-Italian front at Gazala, reported yesterday to be about 40 miles wide, had been narrowed to 25 miles under continued British pressure.

Mopping-up operations in the area between Gazala and the Egyptian frontier were said to be progressing, with the number of German and Italian prisoners steadily mounting. It was acknowledged, however, that Axis troops still were holding out at Bardia and Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass, which is on the Egyptian side of the border.

The barracks at Salum were reported in British hands, with part of the village being held by the

No Woman Need Be Bored When Philanthropic Organizations Need Helpers

They Should Fill Idle Hours Doing Work That Is Useful

Don't Wait to Be Asked to Join Club: Volunteer to Become A Worthwhile Member

By Dorothy Dix

Now when the whole world is crying for help it does not seem as if any one should need to be told how to kill time. Nevertheless, there isn't a day that I don't get letters from idle and bored women asking how they can fill in their useless hours and find something interesting to do. Sometimes the writers are rich women, fed up with social gayeties, who feel that they would scream if they had to go to one more night club. Sometimes the letters are from college girl graduates who do not know what to do with themselves now that they are emancipated from school routine. Sometimes they are from brides, who have been competent business women, who find that running a two-by-four flat is like putting a hundred horsepower Diesel engine to pulling a one-horse load, and who want to find an outlet for their surplus energy. Sometimes they are from women who have moved into the strange cities where they have no friends or acquaintances or church or club connections, as they had back home, and who are aching to get back into the sewing society and the ladies' aid. And often they are from husky, able-bodied, middle-aged women who have gone to live with their children since their husbands died and who have to sit on their hands to keep from poking their fingers into Sally's

Suitable Toys For Tots

Suggestions Given Will Help Solve Your Problem

By Lettice Lee Streett

In case you are not quite sure about the selection of a toy for a child of your acquaintance and fear the possibility of choosing a play-thing that is not suitable to the child's age, I have made a list here which may be a help. In selecting Christmas toys it is well to reject hose that appeal to you because they are pretty or quaint, and to try to put yourself in the child's mood. Then ask yourself these questions: Is the toy in the right age group? Is it practical for the child's home? Will it stimulate his imagination? Is it gay and pleasing to the eye? Will it encourage any skill or increase manual dexterity? Is it dur-

Toyland is so crowded in the stores with the varied and colorful merchandise from Santa Claus' workshops that there is no room here to list even one-half of the playthings on parade, but these few suggestions that follow are toys that have always proved favorites.

Things the 3 to 4 year old child will love to have:

Dolls big enough to dress and undress and to take care of. Small dolls, animals, furniture and dishes to be used in playing house or making barnyards, etc. Wagons, sleds. sand pile, canvas wading pool for next summer, pails and shovels, garden tools, house-cleaning sets, dishes, books with lots of big colored pictures, musical toys like cymbals, horns, drums, triangles and music boxes, victrola with well-chosen records, peg boards, trains, boats, tri-cycles, swings, slides. For the 4 to 5 year old: About the same selection with crayons and coloring books added, roller skates with wooden wheels, simple jig-saw puzzles, toy guns and soldiers, easy games such as rubber horse shoes, jack straws, tiddlywinks will please the 4 to 5 year old. From 5 to 7 years: Paints and coloring books, clay sets, sand painting, bead stringing with small beads to make bracelets and necklaces, jig-saw puzzles, dress-up clothes, costumes such as Indian, policemen, cowboy, baseball, balls, tops, baseball bats, football helmets, tricycles, real roller skates, jumping ropes, doll carriage and any furniture for dolls, bigger wagons and sleds, books will be a happy choice for the 5 to 7 year old child.

Little girls this age dote on pocketbooks, scarf and glove sets, raincoats and parasols; pretty hair rib-bons, manicure and sewing sets with their initials on them, pencil sets and school boxes and bags with names or initials on them. Sample sizes of cosmetics such as cold cream, face powder, cologne and any such grown-up articles that are fun to use in playing "lady" are always welcomed by the small miss. The hardware stores offer many gadgets that are of interest to older boys, hinges, screws, nails, saws, any kind of tool that is easy to use and not dangerous to handle; electric trains, boats that may be wound up and printing and carving sets are all fascinting to the boy who is old enough to tinker with them and has acquired enough skill with his hands so that he may play with them safely and with pleasure.

Neutrality Pledged By Turkey; Rumania At War With U. S.

Ankara Stand Regarded As Diplomatic Victory For Anti-Axis Nations

A pledge of neutrality by Turkey in the "new conflict" and a declaration of war by Rumania against the United States were on record at the State Department today.

Formal notification of Turkey's neutrality was delivered yesterday by Turkish Ambassador M. M. Ertegun in a note addressed to Secretary

The department announced that the Rumanian foreign office had informed the American Legation in Bucharest Friday that Rumania "is in a state of war" with the United States because of her Axis obliga-

Text of Turkish Note. Turkish Ambassador's note

"I have the honor to inform your excellency that in a telegram dated Ankara, December 19, 1941, but received in Washiington only this morning, I am directed by my government to notify the Government of the United States of America that the government of the republic has decided to extend the neutrality of Turkey to the new conflict which has just broken out.

"Please accept, Mr. Secretary of State, the assurance of my highest consideration."

Turkey has remained neutral in the European war despite diplomatic efforts by Germany and Britain to secure her as an active ally.

Great Britain in October, 1939, extended credits of £40,000,000 to the Turkish Government to stabilize Turkish currency and to provide approximately $100,000,000 for the mechanization and modernization of the Turkish Army and the strengthening of fortifications in the Dardanelles, the strategic strait be-tween the Black Sea and the Medi-

Given Lend-Lease Aid. The United States only recently revealed that lease-lend aid had been extended Turkey, through the British, since last May.

This transfer arrangement was to enable the British Government to make good its commitments under the Anglo-Turkish pact. Great Britain had pledged itself to deliver to the Turks specific arms and munitions, including planes, anti-aircraft guns, tanks and other weapons and supplies. But because of the rapid extension of the conflict on many fronts, the British were unable to deliver, and turned to the United States for assistance. The Anglo-Turkish pact provided also that Turkey, in return for the assistance from Great Britain, would maintain a benevolent neutrality toward Britain, and would not permit the Germans or any other military force to utilize Turkish territory against Britain or permit the passage of troops or military equip-ment through Turkish territory, in what might be hostile acts against

Able to Remain Neutral. The declaration of Turkey's neutrality was interpreted here, in the light of those facts, as meaning that the delivery of American supplies to Britain for final delivery to the Turks had made it possible for the Turkish government to maintain its neutral stand and not be forced to join the Axis under threat of invasion by the Nazis. For that reason, Turkey's declaration of neutrality was considered in some quarters a diplomatic victory for the nations opposed to Axis

Nine Italian Plotters Sentenced to Death

By the Associated Press.
BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 15.— Nine of 60 persons accused of conspiring against the Italian state have been sentenced to death after a trial at Trieste, the Swiss Tele-graph Agency reported last night in a dispatch from Rome.

Forty-eight others were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 3 to 30 years, while the remaining three were acquitted, the dispatch said. The defendants had been accused of plotting to blow up bridges, participating in the sabotage of munitions plants, planning subversive acts with Yugoslav elements and conspiring to assassinate Premier Mus-

One of the first is sure to be that if a bomber is overhead, his bomb load won't drop on you. The fact is that if there's a bomb addressed to you, it will arrive at approximately the same time as the bomber.

To Be Calm, Keep Busy.

"The people who are really frightened by the air raids are the people with nothing better to do than to think about them. If you won't be calm-keep busy.

"The worst part of an air raid is the noise-and it's useful to remember that the greater part of the noise is created by your own antiaircraft guns.

"If you're in a modern reinforced concrete building with three floors above you, you're as safe as you can be anywhere. Raids on Britain have proved it is more difficult to destroy numan life than bricks and mortar If a bomb drops on the building in which you are sitting, the chances are heavily in your favor that you won't be seriously injured-and probably not injured at all. And I know what I am talking about . . because on no less than four occasions the bombs have burst over me. Certainly, it is safer to be in a building than on the streets. The total number of road accidents exceeded by a confortable margin to total number of air raid casualties last year in England.

"The greatest danger — flying glass—has been responsible for no less than 75 per cent of air raid casualties. So keep away from windows. Pasting strips of paper over glass reduces the danger slightlybut the protection is not really sufficient

C. C. C. Personnel To Help Red Cross In Emergencies

Camps, Equipment Also To Be Available in Event Of Mass Evacuations

Civilian Conservation Corps personnel, camps and equipment throughout the Nation will be available for emergency use in the event of mass evacuation caused by enemy action in any part of the country, it was announced yesterday in a joint agreement between the Amercan Red Cross and the C. C. C.

The agreement calls for certain C. C. C. personnel to be trained immediately in Red Cross disaster techniques and for the designation of C. C. C. camps as Red Cross evacuation centers. It was signed by Chairman Norman H. Davis of the Red Cross and Director James

J. McEntee of the C. C. C. Mr. Davis explained that the new arrangement is in line with those between the Red Cross and the Army, Navy and other Federal agencies which furnish the Red Cross with equipment, supplies and personnel in case of emergency. After the training is completed, C. C. personnel will carry out assignments as components of the Red Cross disaster relief setup.

A detailed plan, including maps and charts, will be worked out for the guidance of personnel of both organizations.

The Civilian Conservation Corps has 45,000 pieces of automotive equipment, a majority of it ambulances and trucks which can be converted quickly into emergency ambulances, officials reported. Its enrolled personnel, numbering 200,000 during the 1941 fiscal year, has been trained in the standard Red Cross first-aid course of 20 hours.

Mouth-watering is the word for our alliance of nuts, citron, currants and raisins, candied fruit peel, spices—blended smoothly with fresh eggs and table butter, just as you would make it yourself. Flavored with rum. and sherry. We make it here in our own kitchensto save you the trouble and time of making it in yours. Festively wrapped, so you may make a Christmas gift of it, too.

leafed neighbors in the Mississippi River bottoms and in the Cumberland Mountains. When this tree grows in the forest where space is limited it may grow as high as 50 feet clear of branches.

In May or June, when the baby leaves are developing, the male and female flowers appear at the base of new shoots. The two to five pistillate blossoms, one-third of an inch long, are protected by a rusty, woolly growth. The staminate blossoms are in drooping spikes four to six inches long. The winds scatter the rich abundant pollen from these catkins to the female flowers. Here, in the early summer, you will see the green semi-spherical fruits onefourth to two and a half inches in diameter maturing. The kernel is well protected. The thick outer husk covers the thin-shelled nut. When it is ripe the cuter husk separates into quarters and the nut tumbles to the ground after the frost comes along. The compound leaves arranged alternately on the stem have five or seven leaflets whose narrow base is firmly attached directly to the leaf stalk. In early autumn they turn a beautiful yellow. At one time the fruit of this tree was in demand. Today we have other nuts we can obtain with less trouble, though the kernel is sweet and well

It is the wood of this tree that is so important to us. No other commercial wood is said to have the combination of toughness, strength, elasticity and, when needed, stiffness, so that we do not have

Big Sister

Jerry Muskrat was puzzled. He was very much puzzled. When he discovered that the stranger had left pieces of carrot and apple at some of Jerry's favorite eating places he had guessed at once that a trap had been set in each one of those places. So for a whole day he had kept away from them. Then curiosity had been too much for him. He just had to go over to see if those delicious tidbits were still

The first place he visited was an old log partly under water. On the part above water were several pieces of carrot. Jerry swam along both sides of that log and made sure that there was no trap under water. Then he crawled up on the bank beside that log and looked carefully for signs of a trap. He could find none. There certainly was no trap where those pieces of carrot lay in plain sight on that log.

It seemed to Jerry that he simply must have those pieces of carrot. He tried to turn his back on them and go away, but he couldn't. He knew he was foolish, but he finally, very, very cautiously, crept up on that log until he could reach out one paw and knock a piece of carrot off. Nothing happened. Jerry jumped down and ate that piece of carrot with relish. Then he climbed back and did the same thing to another piece of carrot. Finally he had eaten the last piece of carrot and nothing had happened. Then Jerry visited, in turn, the other places where the stranger had left good things to eat. At each place temptation proved too much for him. and he ventured to take those good things. He ate until his stomach was full and then he carried what was left over to his house. At none of those places could be find the least sign of a trap.

Raymond Scott's Or. The stranger came the next day and left more good things, and that night Jerry had another feast. The eopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orfollowing day the stranger did not come, but the day after he did. As WOL, 11:15—The annual occasion when before, he left good things to eat, and, as before, Jerry got them to the last scrap.

But all the time Jerry was puzzled He couldn't understand why that stranger was bringing him all those good things to eat. At the same time, Jerry was growing careless. He no longer used his eyes and nose so carefully when he approached the meg., 25.4 m.; DZD, 10:54 meg., 28.4 m.; places where those good things were left. In fact, sometimes he was in meg., 31.3 m.; GSD, 11.75 meg., 25.5 m.; didn't look at all, but just scrambled up where the good things were. You see, not once had he found a single thing wrong. He was beginning to doubt that the stranger was a trapper at all. In fact, he was beginning to look on the stranger as a very good friend, indeed.

KING ARTHUR ABOUT

THOSE AMAZONS --

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES. (David Bruce Burnstone, Merwin D. Maier, Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken. world's leading team-of-four, inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in existence.)

Inviting Trouble

When your partner cannot respond to your opening bid, he shows a hand which is most unlikely to win more than one trick and which may be completely devoid of winning cards. If, in such a situation, the opponents re-open the bidding, the best thing you can do is to retire discreetly from the auction. Not one hand in a thousand is strong enough to go it alone, so a rebid simply offers the opponents their choice between doubling you and going on with their own bidding.

South overlooked the principle just pointed out. She thought her hand was strong enough for a second bid; but that idea cost her an 800point penalty:

South dealer, North-South vulnerable.

The bidding: North East South West Pass Pass Pass Dbl. Pass West opened the king of hearts, holding the trick, and continued with the jack, South ruffing. South knew better than to lead trumps, so laid down the ace and another diamond, hoping for a 2-2 split in that West won with the queen of diamonds and led another heart, South ruffing again. Declarer led a third round of diamonds, and West took the king and shifted to the ace and a low club. East took the second round of clubs with his king and led a fourth round of hearts. After some thought, South ruffed with the ace, while West discarded his remaining club. Now South led her last diamond, and West ruffed with the three of spades. Had he been allowed to hold this trick, he would have had to lead the queen of spades next. South would have ducked, and won the next two trumps with the king and ten. But East was on his toes. so overruffed with the five of spades and led the jack of clubs through South. Now West was bound to make two trump tricks.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Scotland is a land where ice forms over rivers and lakes at an early date in the winter. As we might expect, the Scots take much interest in ice sports.

Perhaps most important of the Scottish ice games is the one called "curling." It has been played in Scotland for about 500 years and ranks as a national sport. Scotsmen carried the game to Canada more than a century ago. It also found favor in England and is played in a few parts of the United States. An old Scotch verse goes like

"So long as winter brings us cauld, And hauds the ice togither,

The brawny curler will aye receive A welcome frae a brither." Notice the odd spelling of some of the words. If we changed the words which are odd to us, the verse toward the mark, which has large circles around it. One stone is likely to bump another, and often this is done on purpose. The idea is to get the stones of your side close to the center of the circles. In some contests the players use irons instead of stones. The irons are heavier, having a weight of about 60 pounds.

Each player slides two stones

Most curler players are men, but women can take part if they have strong muscles. People who watch the game, especially those in Scotland, become as excited over it as those who watch a hockey match or football game.

G. and S. Lovers in Debt Always to D'Oyly Carte

Temperamental Team Needed Him to Make Peace During 20 Very Troubled Years; No Lights on Palace Premiere

D'Oyly Carte, you might think off-hand, had nothing to do with the fact that a Gilbert and Sullivan company under the auspices of the Shuberts will open a week at the National Theater tonight. The fact remains, however, that if D'Oyly Carte had not been a contemporary of the operetta team, and a brilliantly diplomatic Irishman, there might never have been a Gilbert and Sullivan collaboration.

The unfortunate truth behind the perfection of their work is that the English librettist and his Irish com-made D'Oyly Carte sad, then angry and finally determined to bring them together again if it were humanly possible. His determination was based upon the inescapable intuition that, in spite of that first failure, the big Englishman and the tiny Irish composer were a naturally great combination. In 1875, he succeeded in selling them the idea, not very happily nor even hopefully, but eventually they composed their differences long enough to write "Trial by Jury," which was an overnight success and left neither a sound argument as to the inferiority of the other. Natural differences of temperament remained and produced constant estrangement, but it was not beyond the management of the astute and tactful D'Oyly Carte. In 1877, they remained harmonious long enough other as wide a berth as the area to write "The Sorcerer," the follow-

Therefore, even if the D'Oyly Carte company has nothing to do with the latest presentation of the operettas, those who love them are deeply in his debt. In spite of that name, he was that rare Irishman who spent a lifetime preventing a fight.

Local Drama Groups

'Knight of the Burning Pestle' Has Been Here Before, Too

By HARRY MacARTHUR.

The next theater group which wants us to announce a "first local production" of anything had better present documents and affidavits in support of the contention and have the press release duly attested before a notary public. That's that. Last week this corner seems to have saved itself only by the thin qualification when it reported that the Catholic University Harlequins' production of "The Knight of the Burning Pestle" probably was the first one in Wash-
