'Some' U-Boats Won't Return, Navy Intimates

Public Urged to Keep Sinkings or Captures Strictly Secret

By CLAUDE A. MAHONEY.
A Navy spokesman intimated today that United States patrols in the Atlantic have sunk or captured "some" submarines recently, but refused to give details until a time when such information will no longer be of value to the enemy.

"Some of the recent visitors to our territorial waters will never enjoy the return portion of their voyage," he said. "Furthermore, the percentage of one-way traffic is increasing, while that of two-way traffic is satisfactorily on the decline."

Discussing further the submarine activities that have sunk at least six ships and taken 75 lives in little more than a week, the spokesman said secrecy regarding our activities against the subs is a part of the psychological counter offensive of modern warfare.

He asked the public to join the press and radio in disciplining themselves in the matter of reporting incidents that have come to their attention.

Will Be Told Later.
"If you hear something, stop its circulation with you—don't pass it on," he said. "He asked citizens of the Nation to adhere to this silence even if they had seen a submarine captured or destroyed."

Whenever the time comes that the story can be told without giving aid or comfort to the enemy, it will be told, "frankly and officially," the spokesman said. The Navy had been besieged with inquiries about counter measures against the submarine menace that has stretched from Cape Hatteras to Far Northern points, and today's statement was an answer to those queries. Text of a prepared statement of a Navy spokesman follows:

"There are many rumors and unofficial reports about the capture or destruction of enemy submarines. "Some of the recent visitors to our territorial waters will never enjoy the return portion of their voyage." Furthermore, the percentage of one-way traffic is increasing, while that of two-way traffic is satisfactorily on the decline.

Psychological Warfare.
"But there will be no information given out about the fate of the enemy submarine excursions which don't get home until that information is no longer of aid and comfort to the enemy."

"This is a phase of the game of war, secreted into which every American should enter enthusiastically.

"It is a phase which is not only important from the purely military viewpoint of naval operations, but from the viewpoint of psychological counter-offensive as well.

"The Nazis think themselves pretty clever in the field of psychological warfare. Secrecy regarding the fate of their submarines is a counter-blow the American people can give them which may serve to shake some of their super confidence.

"It is a game in which every American can and should participate. The Navy will take care of enemy submarines, and the people can help the Navy and the country by keeping quiet about what they see or hear of the process or its results.

"The press and the radio have made a great, patriotic contribution by voluntarily disciplining themselves in the matter of reporting such incidents as may have come to their attention unofficially.

Let the Enemy Guess.
"All the people can make the same contribution. Even if you have seen a submarine captured or destroyed, keep it to yourself. Let the enemy guess what happened."

"Whispers and gossip give information of value or comfort to the enemy. If you know something, keep it to yourself. If you hear something, stop its circulation with you—don't pass it on."

"By this conduct every American can make his contribution to the Navy's world-wide effort to eliminate the enemy submarine menace.

"Then, as soon as the whole story can be told without giving aid or comfort to the enemy."

Specialists Called In to Treat Muscular Ailment of Quint

TORONTO, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today that the Ontario provincial government had called on Dr. John Laing McDonald, orthopedic specialist of Toronto, to study a muscular ailment—suspected atrophy—in the leg of Marie, one of the Dionne quintuplets.

Mr. Hepburn said an advance report on the little girl was "not alarming," but was such that the government had decided on a consultation and examination, to be held Sunday at the nursery in Callender.

The quintuplets, now 7 years old, are wards of the Crown and, as such, of the Ontario government.

Mr. Hepburn said the preliminary report on Marie's condition came from Dr. I. Joyal of North Bay, the Dionne family physician, whom the quintuplets' father, Oliva Dionne, had called in when he feared something was wrong.

Mr. Hepburn said the father acted "very properly" since Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, official physician to the little sisters, was absent at the time. Dr. Joyal's report suggested examination and consultation by specialists. He named a Dr. Amyot of Montreal as one consultant and the Ontario government named Dr. McDonald. Dr. Dafoe also will be present, it was learned here.

"There was no intention of slighting Dr. Dafoe," Mr. Hepburn said, "it is his privilege as the quintuplets' doctor to be present at the examination."

"I tried to get in touch with him when Dr. Joyal's report reached me and learned he was out of the country. He is back now and will, of course, be present if he wishes to be."

He temporized somewhat, however, when reporters who took this statement as a hint of immediate resignation questioned him after his speech. He said he still has to make up his mind whether he will quit the defense job, resign as Mayor or leave both posts and enter the Army.

Japs Lose 17 Of 60 Raiders Over Rangoon

American, British Flyers Smash Foe And Bombers Flee

(Earlier Story on Page A-4.)
By the Associated Press.
RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 23.—American and British flyers smashed mass air raids by more than 60 Japanese planes over the Rangoon area today and shot down about one-third of the attacking force.

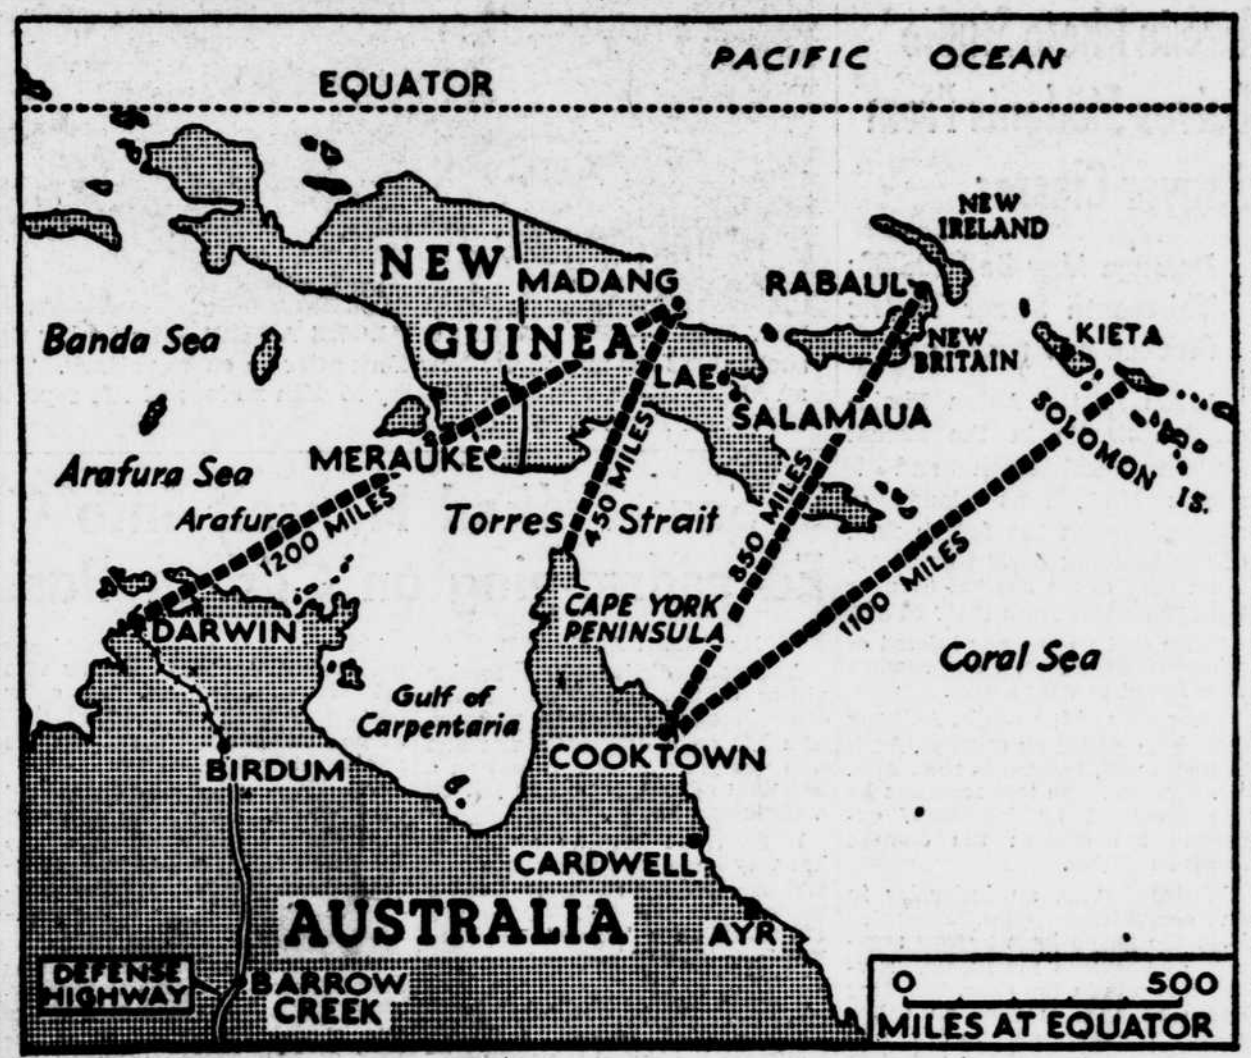

At the same time, an Army communique reported there was no change on the Moulmein land-fighting front, where at last report superior Japanese forces had moved to within 30 miles of the Gulf of Martaban post against withdrawing British units.

Today's air battle saw the Yankee volunteers go sailing into V-formations of enemy bombers—an action that brought the Japanese fighter plane escorts from their protecting cloudbanks into a dogfight in which the Japanese were believed to have lost at least 17 planes.

The bombers were forced to jettison their loads to escape the shark-finned, American-built Tomahawk (Curtiss) planes.

The official British military commentator said the withdrawal east of Moulmein was "taking place in very orderly fashion, with the troops in good heart."

"The withdrawals are not a stampede," he declared. "We had a very good fight with superior force. The main body of our troops is not being pressed by the enemy, although the enemy is advancing. This may mean he is trying to bypass us."

NEW JAP BASES MENACE ALLIED SHIPPING—Landing of sea-borne Japanese troops on New Guinea and the Solomon Islands, and probably on New Britain, provides bases from which Japan may now command Torres Strait between Australia and New Guinea, possibly forcing Allied shipping into a 3,000-mile detour south of Australia. Approximate airline miles from new Japanese bases to points in Australia are indicated.

District's Tire Quota For February Reduced

The District's tire quota for February will be 556 below the allotment for January, it was disclosed today with the release of next month's tire and inner tube allotments.

The tube quota will be 329 above this month's allotment, however.

The February quotas for the District are 461 tires for passenger cars and 505 for trucks. This month's District was allotted 572 passenger car tires and 1,350 truck tires. Tube quotas are 386 for passenger cars, as against 479 in January, and 1,551 for trucks, as compared to 1,129 this month.

Officials of the local Tire Rationing Board said they have doled out only about 175 of this month's allotment of 1,922 passenger car and truck tires, and about 100 of the 1,608 inner tubes apportioned to the District.

They pointed out, however, that none of the utility firms have yet filed application for tires or tubes. These are expected to be filed before the end of the month.

Former Gambling Barge Capsizes, Killing One Man

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 23.—The Star of Scotland, rendezvous of movie stars in the heyday of the offcoast gambling trade, capsized and sank today off the harbor breakwater, drowning one man. Eleventh Naval District headquarters, making the announcement, said no enemy action was involved.

Santa Monica police listed the victim as William Gillette, 56. Four other men aboard were rescued.

The 350-ton barge, 285 feet long, once carried sugar. It had been here since 1930, first as a fishing barge, later as the gambling ship Texas, and for the last three years since the Government halted the lucrative gambling trade paid the 3-mile limit—again as a fishing barge.

House Votes 12½ Billion Fund For 33,000 New Warplanes

Passage of Biggest Single Military Appropriation in History Is Ungimbus

By the Associated Press.
An unprecedented $12,500,000,000 appropriation for 33,000 new warplanes was approved by the House with little debate today and sent to the Senate. Passage was on a roll call vote announced as 389 to 0.

No opposition developed in debate to the huge fund, but argument over an additional $300,000,000 appropriation for the controversial Douglas power dam in the Tennessee Valley Authority delayed for a while passage of the omnibus measure.

About 75 per cent of the big appropriation would be spent on planes themselves and the rest would be allocated to plant expansion facilities, armor, ammunition and radio, explosive and incendiary supplies.

At the last minute, the House added $800,000 for State Department foreign service transportation costs.

Opening the brief debate on the unprecedented appropriation—the largest single military fund in the history of Congress—Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee told his colleagues:

"The whole issue of this war depends on talking and holding control of the air in every theater of the war.

"Until we have secured control over the Russian front, the Mediterranean and the Pacific we cannot begin our first step toward winning the war."

Representative Cannon said the fact that the measure was ready for debate only four days after President Roosevelt requested it indicated the "unity and unanimity of Congress and the American people in support of the administration and of the defense program."

He noted that the 33,000 planes to be provided would by no means achieve President Roosevelt's goal of 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943.

"This is not to carry out that part of the President's program," Mr. Cannon said. "The principal purpose is to continue production at the present rate. Unless this money is provided, we will reach a peak of production in August."

And he told of a serious dislocation of the housing facilities in the District.

The special legislation to permit a part of the $300,000,000 to be spent in the District is made necessary to the peculiar phrasing of the act, which has been interpreted to mean the appropriation shall be spent to provide homes for industrial workers at war plants.

Hearings on Knudsen Nomination to Army Ordered Tomorrow

Some Objections Filed Against Roosevelt Plan, Senator Reveals

By the Associated Press.
Chairman Chandler said today a Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee had ordered hearings tomorrow on President Roosevelt's nomination of William S. Knudsen, former O. P. M. chief, as a lieutenant general in the Army.

Senator Chandler said Senator Austin of Vermont, the assistant Republican leader, had asked that the hearing be held.

Senator Austin was not available immediately for comment, but Chairman Reynolds of the full committee said he had turned over to the subcommittee several telegrams of protest against the Knudsen appointment.

Senator Reynolds said most of these telegrams complained that the elevation of a civilian to the high military post would have an adverse effect on Army morale. The President named Mr. Knudsen a lieutenant general with authority to supervise Army procurement.

Committee attaches said the hearings would be held tomorrow morning with Assistant Secretary of War Robert F. Patterson and Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board as witnesses. Mr. Knudsen will not be called on to testify at that time, they added.

Atlantic Coast Cargo Insurance Rate Doubled

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Marine underwriters today increased the cargo war risk insurance rates on United States Atlantic coastwise shipments to 50 cents per $100 from 25 cents.

The doubled rate came on the heels of submarine activity that resulted in sinking or damaging of half a dozen vessels, mostly tankers.

The insurance men also lifted to 75 cents per $100 from 50 cents the rate between the United States Atlantic Coast and the West Indies, east coast of Central America, east coast of Mexico and the north coast of Eastern South America.

Free French Territory In Africa Is Bombed

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Free French headquarters announced tonight that an unidentified twin-engine aircraft bombed Fort Lamy, capital of the Chad territory in French Equatorial Africa, shortly after noon yesterday.

The French statement said 12 German-made bombs were dropped near the airfield, starting a fire and causing a few casualties.

"Considering the distance between Fort Lamy and the closest air base of the enemy in Libya," the statement continued, "the question arises whether the attacking aircraft did not have to refuel at an African airport controlled by the Vichy government."

Giant Bomber Takes Off From Superhighway

SOMERSET, Pa., Jan. 23.—A twin-motored Army bomber, forced down recently in a snowstorm near here, took off safely today from the broad double-lane Pennsylvania turnpike.

Piloted by Lt. Ogden Pratt, who was alone, the olive drab ship roared down a three-quarter mile level stretch, soared into the air and cleared by about 100 feet a highway overhead bridge 1,000 feet distant.

Headed west, Lt. Pratt climbed and circled, then came back low over the turnpike. He tipped his wings to a crowd that had watched the takeoff. Then he headed the plane toward the Middletown Airport.

Although light planes several times have used the Harrisburg-Pittsburgh superhighway for emergency landings and takeoffs, this was the first time it had been used by a large plane.

Von Reichenau Funeral Held in 'Hall of Glory'

BERLIN, Jan. 23 (Official Broadcast).—Field Marshal Walter von Reichenau, commander of an army group on the Ukraine front, who died of apoplexy while on his way back to Germany, was given a state funeral today.

The service took place in the "Hall of Glory" of Prussian-German history in the Armaments Museum. Field Marshal Herman Goering spoke in behalf of Adolf Hitler as Fuehrer and Field Marshal Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt represented Hitler in his capacity as commander in chief of the army.

Von Reichenau was buried in the Inaliden Cemetery.

17,000 Germans Killed In Push Flanking Smolensk, Reds Say

By the Associated Press.
The Red Army announced today the recapture of Kholm, only 120 miles short of the old Russian frontier at Latvia and 280 miles west and slightly north of Moscow, in a tremendous drive which appeared to have menaced the entire German position from Leningrad south to a point below the Soviet capital.

Kholm fell at the end of a 75-mile Soviet advance which previously had overrun the town of Ostashkov in the Valdai hills and, according to the Russians, cost the Nazis 17,000 dead aside from the wounded and captured.

The recapture of two additional strategic towns—Toropez, 48 miles southeast of Kholm, and Zapadnaya Dvina, 18 miles below Toropez—also was announced.

Kholm is on the Lovat River and is west of a north-south line running through Smolensk, the main headquarters of Adolf Hitler's forces on the central front.

In Position for Pioneer Move.
Andreapol, a district center in Pskov Province 30 miles east of Toropez, was still another point falling to the Red Army, the communique said.

Both Andreapol and Toropez are on a rail line connecting the main Moscow-Leningrad and the East-West lines from Smolensk to the Latvian border.

From Kholm the Russians are in a position to execute a vast double pincer against the Germans in either or both the Leningrad and Smolensk areas.

The Russians continued to advance elsewhere, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans in men and material, the midnight communique added.

"Attempts to hold back our troops with counterattacks failed," it added.

The Moscow radio, commenting on offensive operations so far on the northwestern front, said that 2,000 populated places had been liberated and that the Rzehev-Velikiy Luki Railway had been cut.

The Russians also reported sinking three German transports in the Barents Sea.

House Postpones Action On Price Bill Compromise

By the Associated Press.
The House today postponed until Monday consideration of the final compromise on price-control legislation.

Some members ascribed the postponement to the lateness of the hour after the House passed unanimously an unprecedented appropriation for Army planes.

Others said the temper of the House had been frayed by a parliamentary row over a T. V. A. Dam provision in the plane measure.

The Senate had waited in recess for more than two hours for the House to act on the price bill compromise report.

Japanese Invade Australian Isles; Land in New Guinea, Solomons; MacArthur Beats Off All Assaults

Dominion Orders Blackouts Of All Cities and Calls For Million Gas Masks

By the Associated Press.
Japan's march of conquest struck directly toward Australia today as sea-borne Japanese troops landed in New Guinea, the Solomon Islands and probably New Britain in a sweep jeopardizing not only the land "down under" but also United States routes to the Pacific war zone.

Deputy Prime Minister Francis Forde of Australia announced that the only confirmed Japanese landing in the Bismarck Archipelago was at Kieta, 250 miles southeast of Rabaul, the capital of New Britain.

The locale of the Japanese landing in New Guinea was not given, but presumably the invaders put ashore near oft-bombed Madang, on the northeast coast, 450 miles airline from Cape York, Australia, and 1,200 miles from Australia's great Port Darwin naval base.

At its nearest point, New Guinea is only 100 miles across the Torres Strait from Cape York, northernmost tip of Australia.

In general, the news was dark from fronts in the far Pacific conflict, relieved only by word from Washington that the United States was beginning to pour a stream of reinforcements into what has been, until now, a lopsided struggle.

Situation Critical in Malaya and Burma.
Critical hours again were at hand in the battles of Malaya and Burma.

Dispatches from Singapore said grim-fighting British, Australian and imperial Indian troops who had stemmed Japan's main invasion armies for three days now in Malaya are throwing their full weight into a terrific counteroffensive, with the battle raging on an 80-mile front across Johore state, less than 70 miles north of Singapore.

On the Burma front, north of Malaya, the situation was equally serious. A withdrawal of outnumbered British troops from mountain areas east of Moulmein, a Gulf of Martaban port menaced by a drive of Japanese and Thai troops into Burma, was officially acknowledged in Rangoon. The invaders were reported within 26 miles of Moulmein.

Dutch heavy bombers and fighters lashed out at the Mikado's invasion hordes swarming into the South Sea Islands, scoring 12 direct hits on eight Japanese warships and transports in the Strait of Macassar, between Dutch Borneo and Celebes Island.

Australia Invaded

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sea-borne Japanese troops have invaded Australian territory, landing presumably under cover of naval guns and carrier-based aircraft on New Guinea and in the northernmost Solomon Islands, 2,500 miles from Tokyo, it was announced officially today.

On the mainland of Australia, now within close bomber range of the Japanese landings, blackouts were ordered in all cities, militia manned the beaches, a million gas masks were ordered from Britain and the national holiday, Australia Day, January 26, was canceled under emergency defense regulations.

Further urgent representations were sent to Washington and London emphasizing the need for much stronger forces in the Pacific to meet the expanding Japanese attacks.

Landing Points Unrevealed.
Where the Japanese landed on half-Australian, half-Dutch New Guinea directly north of Australia was not disclosed immediately.

Deputy Prime Minister Francis Forde announced that the only confirmed landing in the Bismarck Archipelago east of New Guinea was at Kieta, principal city on Bougainville at the northern end of the Solomon Island chain.

Kieta is 250 miles southeast of Rabaul, capital of New Britain, where radio communications with Australia were broken yesterday when 11 Japanese ships were seen offshore.

A later message, however, indicated that the ships—five troop transports, three cruisers and other escort vessels—had not entered Rabaul Harbor up to 7 a. m. today (4 p. m. Eastern Standard time, Thursday). The ships first were sighted 45 miles offshore 18 hours earlier.

Japanese aerial activity was reported throughout the morning along the northeast coast of New Guinea. Bullo reported planes overhead at 9:20 a. m. and the radio station there went off the air. Gas-mata on the southeast coast also reported hearing planes overhead.

Mr. Forde declared Australia was facing "the most serious threat in her history," but said that with the help of her allies "we will clear the air."

Baltimore's Population Goes Above 1,000,000

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—A survey by postal authorities placed Baltimore's population today above the 1,000,000 mark.

Overflow of population from the Nation's Capital and a mighty influx of war industry workers, gave Baltimore and its metropolitan area 1,097,810 persons, the survey indicated. The 1940 census showed a population of 859,100 and made Baltimore seventh largest city in the country.

Auto Crash Kills Four 18-Year-Old Youths

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Four 18-year-old New Rochelle youths were killed early today when their automobile sidwiped another, careened off a tree and wrapped itself around a second tree.

The dead were James Bugle, Lucas Lowe, Dennis Devlin and Edward G. Mangels. William Morton McMahon, 20, driver of the other car, was unhurt.

Senate Approves Defense Probe Fund After $40,000 Cut

By the Associated Press.
The Senate voted $60,000 additional funds today to its Defense Investigating Committee, headed by Senator Truman, to continue inquiry into the war-production program.

Chairman Lucas said the Senate Audit Committee had cut the amount from the $100,000 previously requested by Senator Truman when the latter agreed the smaller amount would be sufficient for this year. The Truman group, which already had spent $40,000 recently, criticized the progress of the defense program in a report.

Dutch Bombers Score 12 Hits on 8 Enemy Warships, Transports

Jap Fleet in Macassar Strait Hints Attack
On Borneo East Coast

By the Associated Press.
BATAVIA, Netherlands Indies, Jan. 23.—Dutch heavy bombers and dive-bombers scored 12 direct hits on eight Japanese warships and transports in the Macassar Straits between the islands of Borneo and Celebes, it was announced officially today.

A communication released through the news agency Aneta said 660-pound bombs were dropped directly on a large warship, a heavy cruiser, a smaller cruiser and a large transport, while dive bombers scored with their 175-pound bombs on a destroyer and three transports.

The Dutch suffered no losses, it was announced.

(Such a force of Japanese warships in these waters indicated the Japanese might be sending a fleet of transports, perhaps to Balikpapan, on the east coast of Borneo, where the Dutch have destroyed valuable oil wells and oil stores.)

The Netherlands Indies command announced in its regular communication that Dutch aircraft yesterday attacked Kuching, Japanese-occupied capital of Sarawak, again bombing storage yards which were set on fire.

The Dutch also said 27 enemy fighters attacked the airdrome at Palembang, on the island of Sumatra, this morning and wounded two persons.

During a light bombardment at Sabang, an island off the northern tip of Sumatra, a small abandoned ship was sunk, the Dutch said. They added attempts to bomb two more ships failed.

Sixteen persons were injured and "some sheds and ships" were damaged in two Japanese air raids yesterday on the tobacco port of Belawan, near Medan in Sumatra, another Netherlands Indies communication said.

The high command report, issued through Aneta, said the first attack came in the morning, when six planes dropped about 60 bombs. These caused all the casualties.

Three planes returned four hours later, raiding the town and harbor and causing most of the material damage.

Concentrated Attack Made On Muenster by R. A. F.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 23.—Royal Air Force bombers carried out a concentrated attack on Muenster last night, the Air Ministry announced today. Large fires were left burning, a communication said.

Enemy airdromes in the Netherlands and docks at Dunkerque also were bombed while mines were laid in enemy waters, the announcement added.

The communication also reported attacks by British fighters on airdromes in Northern France and a patrol aircraft attack off the Frisian Islands in which a supply vessel was hit.

Two bombers were missing from the night's operations, the Air Ministry said, while a coastal command aircraft was missing from patrol operations yesterday.

Several persons were injured and others were trapped today when a German bomber made a daylight raid on a town in East Anglia. Homes fronting on three streets in a working-class district were destroyed.

Freighter Hit, Nazis Report.
BERLIN, Jan. 23 (Official Broadcast) (P)—German bombers damaged a large freighter and struck last night at harbors and military installations in East and South-eastern England, the high command said today.

"British bombers last night dropped high explosives and incendiary bombs on some places in Western Germany, including residential quarters and public buildings in Muenster," it also reported in a communication.

Three of the British aircraft were declared shot down.

Americans Inflict Heavy Losses on Foes in Luzon

By NELSON M. SHEPARD.
Gen. Douglas MacArthur's greatly outnumbered forces in the Bataan sector repulsed all Japanese attacks with heavy losses during the last 24 hours, the War Department reported today in a communique from the Philippines.

Reporting at 9:30 a. m., the communique stated that apparently the 14th Japanese Army has adopted "a policy of continual assaults, without regard to casualties, hoping by great superiority in numbers to crush the defending forces."

A further threat to the safety of the stout American and Philippine defense was seen today in the fact that a local military force of some 10,000 Japanese residents in the Davao area have been organized for combat to assist Japanese troops occupying the Mindanao city.

Fighting Extremely Heavy.
The all-out attack on the Bataan front line, smashing at different points simultaneously, was being repulsed by Dutch aircraft yesterday. The War Department has carefully refrained from announcing any estimate of Gen. MacArthur's defending forces, but it was reported in reliable quarters that he is outnumbered perhaps 10-to-1. No reports were received of any casualties in 48 hours of desperate fighting beyond the mere assertion that the Japanese have lost "heavily."

Gen. MacArthur's losses are not believed to be high, because of his defensive position.

Base Being Prepared.
Reports that the Japanese forces occupying Davao, organizing civilians into military units indicates further preparations for using this area as a base for operations against Singapore and other areas in the Southwest Pacific.

The concentration in Davao also, it was feared, indicated the Japanese would send reinforcements more swiftly to the Bataan sector.

While in the midst of battle, Gen. MacArthur was in receipt of a message from Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, supreme commander of the Allied forces in the Pacific southwest, warmly congratulating him and his command for their "magnificent defense" of the Philippines.

That defense, which has been continuing with increasing resistance in recent weeks, has served the Allied purpose of holding a huge Japanese force in Luzon which might otherwise be released for operations in the attack against Singapore.

Japs Using Every Resource.
While today's communique gave no details of the continuous assaults on the Bataan lines, officials informed that the Japanese were bringing every resource to bear in the effort to smash their way through at least in one vital point.

This would naturally include use of dive bombers and tanks, with which the Japanese are liberally supplied.

There was no indication that the American lines are yielding at any point. How long the defending forces could hold out in view of the vast superiority of the Japanese was a question no official here ventured to give an opinion. As long as no reports are received indicating that Gen. MacArthur's lines have been broken, the attitude is one of general optimism.

District Police Pay Bill Approved by Committee

Without debate, the House District Committee today approved a bill providing a maximum pay increase of $300 a year for District firemen and members of the Metropolitan Police and White House Police forces who have a rank of captain or less.

It also favorably reported a measure designed to end the so-called "baby broker" practice in Washington by setting up a new plan governing the placement of children in foster homes.

Action of the committee advanced the bill to the House calendar.

The bill provides for an increase in pay of $300 a year for District firemen and members of the Metropolitan Police and White House Police forces who have a rank of captain or less.

Data also was given the committee that the higher pay scale would add about $700,000 a year to the District budget and the municipal treasury is in no condition at this time to stand it.

Commissioner Young has bluntly said the District "cannot afford to give police and firemen an increase in pay.

Dr. Van Mook Says Japs' Goal Now Is Indies, Not Australia

Netherlands Governor, on Mission Here, Claims Antipodes Representatives Agree

By BLAIR BOLLES.
Dr. Hubertus Van Mook, Lieutenant Governor General of the Netherlands Indies, said today the Indies and not Australia are the primary objective of the Japanese drive, and added that Australian representatives with whom he had conferred during his visit here are in agreement.

In an interview at the Dutch Legation, Dr. Van Mook said his main task since he arrived here 10 days ago was to persuade everybody concerned that the real bases of operations against Japan are the two main Indies islands of Java and Sumatra, rather than Australia.

He said he thought the Japanese would be able to give direct assistance to Hitler by menacing Indian Ocean shipping to the Middle East if they were able to control the principal Indies strongholds.

He said he regarded the Japanese landings on the islands of New Britain, New Guinea and the Solomon Archipelago as aimed at setting up raiding bases for menacing the trans-Pacific supply lines from the United States to the Southwest Pacific area.

"Everything goes in the right direction," Dr. Van Mook said in response to a question as to whether American officials in Washington saw eye-to-eye with him

Only Subways Can End D. C. Transit Problem, House Group Told

Capt. Whitehurst Predicts
Tunnels for Streetcars
Will Have to Be Provided

Subways offer the only permanent solution to Washington's acute mass transportation problem, transit and municipal officials admitted before the House District Committee today.

At the same time it was revealed that plans already had been taken to revamp the transit system to provide more efficient service for a wartime city. The plans, it was intimated, contemplate greater use of streetcars and the rerouting of buses over less congested streets.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 23.—A high conference source said today that representatives of the American republics would decide on the severance of relations with the Axis this afternoon—either with or without Argentina.

The Argentine foreign minister, Dr. Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, conferred for half an hour with the heads of Brazilian and United States delegations a short time earlier, and it was reported on good authority that he had submitted his country's counter-proposals to the plan for rupture of relations.

Women may operate streetcars and buses here if the shortage of male labor for these jobs becomes acute.

The possibility was suggested today by E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., during a House District Committee hearing on local transportation problems.

"We have made a brief study of the situation," Mr. Merrill said, "and probably will have to give more thought to it. The use of women operators may become a necessity."

Cause of the fire was not established.

Chinese Raid on Japanese Isle Off Korea Reported

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The British radio relayed today a report that Chinese guerrillas had crossed the Yellow Sea and stormed Japanese naval headquarters on Yoko Island, off the coast of Korea. C. B. S. reported the B. E. C. broadcast.

The report seems to have come from Central News, an agency of the Chinese government, because the B. E. C. announcer added:

"The China Central News Agency reports that more than 300 Japanese were killed."

Yoko is not shown on available maps here, but there is a Ryukoo on the Korean island-studded coast about 250 miles across the Yellow Sea northeast of Shantung Peninsula.

Ryukoo is directly east of Port Arthur across the Korea Bay.

Revised Schedule For Staggered Hours To Begin on Monday

Private Employers
Asked to Co-operate in Relieving Traffic Rush

A revised plan for staggering the hours of Federal employment will go into effect Monday coincident with the establishment of the 44-hour week in virtually all Government departments, it was learned today.

Budget Bureau officials said details of the revamped system would not be made public generally until Federal departments and agencies have been notified of their new starting and quitting hours. Letters of notification are being sent out today and it was indicated a detailed announcement might be made tomorrow afternoon.

Only Subways Can End D. C. Transit Problem, House Group Told

Capt. Whitehurst Predicts
Tunnels for Streetcars
Will Have to Be Provided

The new plan has been worked out by the Budget Bureau in conferences with District Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and officials of the Capital Transit Co.

Mr. Van Duzer made public a chart prepared by his department, showing the starting and quitting hours by quarter hours of both Government and private business employees in the downtown area under the revised system.

The chart shows that the peak during the morning rush hours will be at 9 a. m. when 52,000 workers—27,000 of them Government employees, and 25,000 private industry employees—report for work. The afternoon peak will be at 5 p. m., the quitting hour of approximately 74,000 workers. This figure includes about 48,000 Federal workers and 26,000 private employees.

Meanwhile, the Board of Trade, which has been conducting a survey of the opening and closing hours of private establishments in the central business area, was taking steps to change the quitting hours of some of the private workers who now leave their offices at 5 p. m.

Roosevelt Plan For Labor Peace Is Accepted

C. I. O. and A. F. L. to Set Up Wartime
'Cabinet' of Six

By JOHN C. HENRY.
Peace between the A. F. L. and the C. I. O. moved nearer to realization today when it was learned that both organizations have accepted a White House formula for composing their differences during the war period.

The formula, simple in its structure, calls for creation of a joint six-man committee, three from each labor faction and three from President Roosevelt in the capacity of a labor cabinet.

For the A. F. L., it is believed that the representatives will be President William Green, Secretary-Treasurer George Meany and Vice President Daniel J. Tobin.

Possible C. I. O. Members.
The C. I. O. group is expected to be headed by Philip Murray. Although identity of other C. I. O. members has not been learned, it is probable that Thomas J. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of United Mine Workers, and President E. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers, will be designated.

It is believed that neither John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W., nor William Hutcheson, vice president of the A. F. L., will be included in the group.

Arrival at this emergency formula for establishing and maintaining wartime tranquility in the ranks of organized labor resulted from 48 hours of secretive White House consultations with officials of both organizations.

Although neither President Roosevelt nor White House spokesmen would confirm such meetings, it is known that Mr. Murray visited the Executive Mansion late Wednesday and that Mr. Green and Mr. Meany were in conference with the President late yesterday.

Proposed by Lewis.
Impulse for these developments, however, came from a public proposal on Saturday night by Mr. Lewis to the effect that standing committees of both factions should resume their efforts to effect a peace merger. It was subsequently reported that Mr. Lewis had discussed his plan with Mr. Hutcheson of the rival A. F. L., and there was a marked improvement in relations between both Mr. Murray and Mr. Green to the Lewis suggestion.

It is understood further that a condition among the consultants for acceptance of a compromise formula was that Mr. Lewis nor Mr. Hutcheson would be named to the six-man committee.

Although autonomous unions of both organizations might still depart from any commitments made by this six-man group, it is believed that the weight of public sentiment during the war period and the prestige of the men selected for this service will forestall any important violation of accords reached.

Main problem of such a committee, it is expected, will be that of making peace in the justifiable national disputes among rival unions in the same industries.

Would Have Broader Uses.
Actually, such a committee probably would have much broader uses and once its effective operation was established it could serve both the President and labor as a whole as an advisory and liaison group in the war effort.

It is known that membership of this proposed group was held to six to reduce the chances of disagreements and to prevent public disclosures as to its operations.

At a press conference today Mr. Roosevelt declined to enter any discussion of the pending peace efforts or even to confirm that he had talked to officials of both labor organizations. He had no news on the matter, he said, and would not "indulge in any 'guessing' about it."

Later in the day he was to confer with Chairman William H. Davis of the new War Labor Board and a discussion of interunion attitude in that matter was likely. It was understood that a main purpose of Mr. Davis' visit, however, was to speed the selection of alternates and special mediators for work with the board.

Lewis Invited to Council.
The Executive Committee of the C. I. O. met in closed session in New York, presumably to discuss peace efforts. The committee is composed of C. I. O. vice presidents.

The C. I. O. Executive Council—comprising 56 representatives of all C. I. O. unions—meets tomorrow and Mr. Murray advised Mr. Lewis last Monday that the latter's proposal would be submitted to the council. He also invited Mr. Lewis to attend and personally submit his views.

Mr. Smith said he did not believe

Georgetown Main Breaks; Water Cut Off 3 Hours

Homes in the middle section of Georgetown were out of water for about three hours today morning after a water main broke under P street between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets N.W.

The break in the 22-inch trunk main sent water gushing into the street, flooding streets in the vicinity, neighborhood drug store reported it had a run on distilled water but soon ran out of supplies and sent out bottles of spring water.

The break occurred shortly before 6 a. m., lowering water pressure in the entire area. Water Department crew shut off the valves for a section about five blocks long and water was supplied over other lines.

Homes again had water at about 9 a. m. The homes in the vicinity of the break were not affected since they are supplied over another line. It was said repairs of the break would be completed some time today.

Churchill Engaging Parliament in First Real Contest of Wits

Prime Minister Facing Rough Sailing in Row Over Criticism

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Winston Churchill and Parliament are now locked in the first real contest of wits and temperament which the Prime Minister has had to face since he assumed power in 1940.

With all the stubbornness of a brilliant and self-assured man, the favorite Mr. Churchill has made the mistake of balking at the criticism which he encountered in such plentiful doses on his return from the United States.

Plane Damaged in Fight, U. S. Pilot Bails Out, Then Slips Through Jap Lines to Safety

By DANIEL DELUCE. Associated Press War Correspondent. RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 21 (Delayed).—Georgie-born Pilot Officer R. G. Moss, American volunteer with the Chinese forces, came back safely today by river raft, bull cart and airplane, slipping through Japanese lines after he parachuted from his damaged plane.

REPORT TO THE NATION First Installment of Facts and Figures on War Accomplishments

On December 2 last President Roosevelt wrote Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures: "As you know, I am most anxious that the general public be fully informed concerning the scope and progress of the defense program."

We have been at war for more than a month. American soldiers and marines have fought at Wake Island, Guam, Midway and the Philippines. The Navy has gone into action in the Atlantic and over the broad stretches of the Pacific. There have been defeats. But this much our small forces on our island outposts have demonstrated: We have an Army and a Navy that can fight.

Total victory is our objective. Speaking for all of us, the President has expressed our common determination not to stop short of the destruction of Hitler and the certainty, so far as we can establish that certainty, that the world will never again suffer the disaster of Nazism.

No other nation in the world has ever undertaken or could ever undertake such a program. In 1942 alone we will produce nearly three times as many weapons and supplies of war as in all the 18 months since the fall of France.

The immensity of the production that we have set ourselves reflects the transformation that has been effected in the country. From a people reluctant to go about a business we hate—the business of war—we have been changed to a people determined to get the job over with as quickly as possible.

But the lines of offense pushed closer. By December, 1940, London had become our first line of security. We could not let Britain fall for want of food or guns, tanks or planes. The President announced our determination to serve as the arsenal of democracy. On January 10, 1941, the lend-lease bill was introduced into Congress.

As the lend-lease billions began to be spent, the size of the job we had undertaken became apparent to all. It was a job too big to be reconciled with "business as usual."

Then Hitler showed his hand and it held a sword made in Japan. To speed the mobilization of the Nation for total war, on January 13, the President announced the creation of a new War Production Board, with full and final authority over all American production given to one man, the chairman.

On July 1, 1940, with the tragedy of Dunkirk fresh before our eyes, we were spending for defense at an annual rate of $2,000,000,000. On January 1, 1941, on the eve of the lend-lease legislation, our defense spending had risen to the rate of 6.2 billions a year.

That means the mobilization of every available man, woman, dollar and thing—every plant, tool, machine and bit of material to contribute to our total war effort. Literally, our military strength will depend upon what we, the people, can do without.

II. The Navy

In 1922 the American Navy, honoring the promises made at the Washington Arms Conference, began to scrap and strip and sink more than a million tons of its own fighting ships.

Its aircraft carriers. Its new chain of overseas bases extended far into both oceans, and it had enrolled some 5,000 new-officers and more than 12 times as many men.

All this expansion of air and sea forces has led to a vast increase in naval shore establishments. American sailors and marines are now serving in Newfoundland; they are serving at Bermuda; they are serving at Great Exuma Island in the Bahamas; they are serving at Antigua, Jamaica, St. Lucia, and Trinidad in the Caribbean, and in British Guiana in South America.

For some time American ports have been shared by nations resisting Axis aggression. Ever since the lend-lease program got under way the men-of-war of Great Britain have been coming into American yards to repair the ravages of battles on distant seas.

The Navy's task today is twofold—it has the greatest battle of its life on its hands, and it also has a tremendous defensive patrolling job to carry out. The Navy, like the rest of us, is at war with Germany in the Atlantic, with Japan in the Pacific, with Italy in the Mediterranean.

Long before Pearl Harbor, the Navy's ability to give and take severe blows had been shown in the waters between America and Europe, in the months when it was obeying the President's command to shoot first.

President Roosevelt scheduled conferences today with Secretary of State Hull and W. Averell Harriman, Minister to England, and speculation arose that the latter might be named Ambassador to Soviet Russia.

Probably setting a record for shortage of news at a press conference, the President gave negative or non-committal answers to a variety of other questions.

He said he expected a report soon on the Japanese-American agreement at Pearl Harbor, but said he did not know whether the findings of the special investigating committee headed by Associate Justice Roberts would be made public.

Women Ask Part in Making Policies of War Program

A plea that women be included on policy-making staffs in the war production program as well as in the enforcement of policies, was included in one of several resolutions approved yesterday at the conclusion of a two-day conference sponsored by the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department.

Other recommendations approved included provision of training programs which would not stop with placement of women in war industries but also would give additional instruction leading to advancement, improvement of housing and recreational facilities for these new women workers.

Price Bill Agreement Reached; Final Vote Expected Today

Senator Sees Compromise Measure 'Less Popular Than New Taxes'

By the Associated Press.

An amendment-patched wartime price-control measure which some sponsors said "may prove more unpopular than new taxes" was ready for final congressional action today.

Weary Senate-House conferees agreed on its terms last night after nearly two weeks of legislative blanket pulling which ended in adjustment of wide differences between the two chambers of Congress and the White House.

Representative Steagall, Democrat of Alabama, who teamed with two Democratic colleagues to break the conference deadlock, predicted the House would accept the bill as amended in conference because "there were compromises on both sides."

Senate approval likewise was foreseen by Senators Brown, Democrat, of Michigan, and Bankhead, Democrat, of Alabama.

Food Cost Rise Predicted.

Senator Brown, who said the measure might prove even less popular than taxes, estimated that food costs might rise as much as 11 to 15 per cent under the compromise measure because of restrictions placed on farm price ceilings.

"Even so, I think this is a good workable bill," he said. "It has the mechanics for halting inflation and uncontrolled price rises."

Senator Bankhead, who sponsored the amendment to give the Secretary of Agriculture a virtual veto over price ceilings of farm products, was jubilant over conference acceptance of this provision. President Roosevelt openly opposed the restriction. Officials noted that the Chief Executive had an ace in the hole because both the Price Administration and the Secretary of Agriculture serve only at his pleasure.

Asked Last July.

Mr. Roosevelt asked for a price control law last July in a special message warning against the dangers of inflation and added costs to the armament program. The House passed a price control bill in November, before war broke out, and the Senate passed its widely different version three weeks ago.

The compromise set prices during the period October 1 to 15, 1941, as standards for the price ceilings with the exception of farm prices. In this field the price administrator could not fix ceilings or order reductions below the highest of these: Average farm prices on October 1 or December 15 of last year; average farm prices for the period of 1937 to 1941, as determined by the Agriculture Department.

Senator Brown predicted the last restriction would soon be the only one because parity price levels—intended to give a fair exchange value to farm products—rise as the costs of things the farmer buys increase. Parity prices in most cases are based on the ratio prevailing between prices of farm products and other goods in the year 1909-14.

O'Mahoney Plan Eliminated.

Eliminated from the compromise version was Senator O'Mahoney's, Democrat, of Wisconsin, proposal which would have tied farm parity prices to industrial wage levels. President Roosevelt protested that such a move would compel inflation.

Also eliminated was a house provision for a separate appeals board of five members with powers to review and supersede orders of the administrator. This left these broad powers in the hands of a single administrator, expected to be Leon Henderson, the present acting administrator.

The revised bill included a Senate provision for licensing business affected by price maximums—a stimulation previously rejected by the House—and broad powers for the Government to buy and sell commodities in order to stabilize price levels.

The compromise also included authority to fix rent maximums in "defense housing areas" defined as places where the war and defense efforts threaten to increase rents over the levels of or about April 1, 1941.

343 Chest Campaigns Average 99.7% of Goals

The 343 Community Chests in the United States which held campaigns this fall averaged 99.7 per cent of their combined goals, it was reported in the January issue of Community, the magazine of Community Chests and Councils, Inc.

Washington was one of 214 cities which exceeded 100 per cent of goal. Final audited figures as of December 31, 1941, reveal that 248,905 givers here pledged a total sum of $2,005,864.58, or 100.29 per cent of the $2,000,000 goal.

CLASS GOES "ALL OUT" FOR DEFENSE—This is the first 100 per cent class in The Star's "Salvage for Victory" paper-saving campaign. The children, the kindergarten class of the Ben W. Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott streets N.W., are shown as they arrived with arms laden with paper.

Murch School Is First To Report 100% Class In Salvage Campaign

Day's Collections There Exceed Ton; Several Big Gains Are Made

To the Ben W. Murch School at Thirty-sixth and Ellicott streets goes the honor of being the first school to report a 100 per cent class in The Evening Star-P.T.A. Salvage for Victory paper collection campaign. The kindergarten class arrived yesterday with every member carrying a bundle of paper.

The example set by this class served to stimulate the entire school and by the time the Student Committee had finished piling the paper there was well over a ton on hand. The best previous day at Murch resulted in collections of little more than 500 pounds.

However, inspired in part by a statement earlier in the week by Supt. of Schools Ballou and in part by the example of the youngest class in the school, the entire student body turned to with a will. Having found that the acquiring of a large amount of paper involved little individual effort, the Murch students intend to stay up among the leaders from now on.

Collector Under a Strain.

The very rapidly increasing flow of paper is putting somewhat of a strain on the collector and it is probable that by next week he may be forced to put three trucks in operation. Some indication of how great has been the increase is shown by the figures for Wednesday, December 3, when the first collections were made, a total of 1,878 pounds was recovered. Wednesday of this week showed a total of 27,149 pounds.

One school, Bancroft, collected more than a ton and a half Wednesday, the actual figure being 3,293 pounds. Other large yields came from Banneker with 2,182; Powell Junior, 1,960; Garrison, 1,950; Barnard, 1,874; Truesdell, 1,834; Garnet-Patterson Junior High, 1,585; Coolidge High, 1,578; Central, 1,482; Harrison, 1,283; Thompson, 1,276; Rudolph, 1,249; and West, 1,189.

Bancroft for the moment holds the city lead with 7,937 pounds, all of which but 460 pounds was collected in two weeks. Bancroft will be a tough customer for any other school which aspires to lead all the schools in this great defense effort.

Many Gains Made.

Many calls still come in from individuals who have paper and magazines which they would like to place in the program but have no children. When such is the case, a card or telephone call to the nearest school will bring a committee member out to pick up the offerings.

Wednesday's collections disclosed remarkable gains for some of the schools, most notable of which was that at Coolidge. Jumping from only 61 pounds the week before, Coolidge students after a pep talk by the principal, T. J. Holmes, made more than three-fourths of a ton.

West's 1,189 was nearly a half ton up from the previous week's 237. Garrison's 1,950 nearly three-fourths of a ton up from 555 pounds. The same holds true of Powell Junior's 1,960, which followed the previous 575 pounds.

seas and land of the Japanese menace.

"We are ready. We shall give battle to the best of our ability wherever we fight."

"At this moment," Mr. Forde added, "Japan's attacking bases are within bombing reach of Australia."

"She has achieved air strength powerful enough to devastate our cities and industrial centers unless opposed in the battle areas with adequate weapons, machines and tools."

U. S. Routes Imperilled.

Thus the war was brought to territory lying at its nearest point only 100 miles from the Australian mainland.

land, and a new link was forged in the chain of Japanese Pacific bases stretching south and east from Tokyo to the Solomon Island group.

Outlined as sharply as the threat to Australia herself, however, was the new danger to the United States supply lines for the Netherlands Indies, Singapore and Burma.

From bases on New Guinea and in the 750-mile-long Solomon chain to the east the Japanese could command the Torres Strait between Australia and New Guinea and force Allied shipping into a costly 3,000-mile detour south of the Australian mainland.

Japs Follow Previous Pattern.

The landings followed the pattern of other Japanese invasions, for they were preceded by days of concentrated air raids which culminated yesterday in attacks ranging from Rabaul east to Tulagi on Florida Island in the Solomons.

First warning of the threatened landings came in a radio message from Rabaul yesterday reporting 11 Japanese ships only 45 miles offshore. Half an hour later radio communication with Rabaul was broken.

Communications Reveals Landings.

The Australian communica- tion announcing the landings said: "During today Japanese landings have been reported in New Guinea and the Solomon Islands area."

"This morning active Japanese air reconnaissance was made over widely dispersed points in these areas."

"There are no reports of any damage."

At almost the same time Mr. Forde said it was reasonable to assume that the Japanese had landed at Rabaul after a withdrawing garrison had fired and dynamited dock installations when the fleet of Japanese vessels was sighted.

London Discours Peril To Australia Now

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Japanese landings on the Solomon Islands and New Guinea give them bases much nearer Australia, but likely will not mean a direct thrust against the land "down under" at this stage of the campaign, a British source said today.

The Japanese could launch nuisance raids against Darwin, where the Australians have built a naval base, and other points in Australia, but commitments elsewhere are likely to preclude that at present, he said.

This source added that the move would give the Japanese more outposts in their efforts to achieve sea and air control of the South Pacific and a possible peg for an alternate route in a broad plan of southward expansion.

Japan's immediate objective, however, is the oil and other resources of Malaysia and the Netherlands Indies, he said. Not until these are obtained is she likely to attempt a costly invasion of Australia, where the object would be the colonization of her excess population. It was stated.

Japan's grand plan now seems to be two thrusts southward—an eastern arm down the Philippines, Borneo, Celebes to Java; a western arm through French Indo-China, Thailand, Malaya to Sumatra, this source said.

Australia to Hear Roar Of Cannon, Air Minister Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Army Minister Francis Forde, Deputy Prime Minister of Australia, declared today in a speech broadcast from Canberra that "there can be no doubt that we shall hear the roar of cannon along the coast of this country."

In the broadcast, heard by N. B. C., Mr. Forde said:

"For the first time in history Australian territory (New Britain, New Guinea and the Solomon Islands) has been attacked, and foreign invaders are trying to gain a footing on our shores."

"The Australian militia is probably being in battle for the first time."

"The enemy intends to get bombing bases within reach of the Australian mainland."

"We can be certain that just as the day for the treacherous attack on Hawaii was marked down on Japanese plans, so is the planned attack on the Australian cities and towns."

"There can be no doubt that we shall hear the roar of cannon along the coast of this country."

rumors that Argentina might abandon the Rio negotiations and said such an attitude would be contrary to the country's clear-cut position as outlined by Acting President Castillo. He explained that the very importance of the Rio negotiations prompted the present differences among the delegates, but reaffirmed his hope a satisfactory solution might be found.

Dr. Ruiz Guinazu first talked with Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's Foreign Minister. They were joined by United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. The conference leaders were expected to meet immediately to consider the Argentine proposal, the provisions of which were not disclosed.

Move For Showdown Indicated.

Irked over repeated delays, a group of small nations—Honduras, Cuba, the Dominican Republic and Uruguay—had talked of drafting a "quit stalling" ultimatum to force action on the anti-Axis resolution which has tied up the conference of Pan-American foreign ministers.

The little fellows of the conference were openly critical of yesterday's proceedings which left them cooling their heels in committee rooms while the delegates of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico and the United States wrangled behind closed doors over the exact wording of the resolution calling for a diplomatic break with the Axis.

"We've had enough of hotel-room tactics," one delegate said, pointing out that conferees took it on themselves to redraft the resolution before it was ever discussed by the subcommittee of the Political Committee.

Differing Wording Sought.

The wording which the Argentines first accepted then was the statement in the resolution that the American republics "cannot continue" relations with the Axis. Now the Argentines are reported to be insisting that the resolution should be changed to read "may not be able to continue."

In Buenos Aires, Acting President Castillo declared last night that Argentina was "in solidarity with American nations, but we do not agree that an attack on one of the nations of the Americas signifies that all the others should take a position of belligerence."

"From outside it is easy to say 'let's go to war' but it is the responsibility of a government to view things in another manner, at least with greater responsibility."

The delay in a vote on the anti-Axis resolution, originally scheduled for yesterday, held up final action on economic resolutions before the conference.

British in Burma Withdraw East Of Moulmein

Japanese Are Within 26 Miles of Port on Gulf of Martaban

By the Associated Press.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 23.—British troops faced with superior Japanese forces are being withdrawn from the mountain areas east of Moulmein, Burma, it was announced today as the Japanese moved to within 26 miles of the Gulf of Martaban port.

Fighting with the Japanese are Thai troops.

The British were said to be moving their forces back to points where transport and communications were better.

Moulmein Raided.

Moulmein, the latest objective of troops driving westward from Thailand, was raided by Nipponese flyers yesterday. Seven civilians were killed.

The port of Burma panhandle is about 60 miles from the nearest point of the Thai border and is 170 miles north of Tavoy, which the Japanese captured early this week. Although advancing on Moulmein, the Japanese and Thais were said not to be exerting pressure.

Rangoon, capital of Burma, had two air raid warnings this morning, while an even larger than usual number of British and American volunteer corps fighters patrolled the skies.

Japanese-Thai invaders were using gun-toting elephants as wadding tanks.

Hanger and Hut Wrecked.

A sharp raid by 10 Japanese bombers and 16 fighters left one hanger and a store hut wrecked on the airport at Moulmein. One R. A. F. plane was damaged on the ground but there were no military casualties.

The R. A. F. struck in force at the Thai airport of Messarieng, some 100 miles northeast of Moulmein. Bombers and fighters returned to base without casualties.

The newest stab across the Burmese-Thai border was in the area of Poyataung, southeast of Moulmein and below Mayawaddi, where the first joint expedition poured through a pass in the Dawna Mountains. British patrols had contacted the new force.

The army said in an official commentary that with the aid of "most effective" R. A. F. support, "our troops have given a good account of themselves in the Kawkaurek positions east of Moulmein."

Civil Wars, Lacking Only Leaders, Brewing All Over Europe Among Hitler Haters

Is Germany headed for a gigantic collapse? If so, when and how will it come? An attempt to explain that riddle, which baffles many war-torn people, is presented in a new eyewitness series by David M. Nichol, just returned from 16 months in Central Europe. The Star herewith presents Mr. Nichol's third article.

By DAVID M. NICHOL.

A dozen civil wars are brewing within Europe in addition to the general revolt against Nazism which will boil over the moment Hitler's awful grip is weakened.

So far they are formless and leaderless. If Hitler wins the struggle never occur, for Hitler's gestapo is frantically building barriers against them, in France and Italy, in the Balkans and the Low Countries, in Scandinavia, wherever they have penetrated as allies or enemies, and the gestapo is one of the world's most efficient organizations in its line.

Should these civil wars take place they will have a common and related basis, however. They will be more than political upheavals in the limited sense. They will be savage attacks on a system that permitted, or at least took on positive measures, to avoid the fearful predicament in which the entire continent now finds itself. They will be economic and social.

It is too early to say with any certainty in what specific form these may appear. Despite Hitler's contentions that he is saving Europe from Bolshevism by fighting the Russians, I doubt very much if these revolts will be Communist. There has been a Communist Party in every country since World War I.

Some of these outbursts may seem on the surface to be paradoxical. It is entirely possible, for example, that the Spanish Bourbons may be restored and the Bulgarian house unseated in the wave that sweeps over Europe. Italy's throne may be shaken from its rotten foundations, and the puppet Duke of Spoleto, unable so far to visit his Croatian kingdom because of the dangers involved, may never see Zagreb.

The fate of the Darlans and Quislings and Mussertts needs scarcely any comment. They will be the first to disappear, perhaps even in upsets preliminary to the wider and deeper cataclysms into which Europe is heading.

The mislabeled "repressive" structures will certainly be revamped, and civil administrations, torn apart by the Nazis and their hirelings must be almost completely rebuilt.

Because of their size and strategic importance, France, the conquered, and Italy, the ally, represent for the Nazis the most delicate and dangerous areas. Reports of fatigue and unrest in Italy, of bitterness toward the Germans and toward the government which created the Axis ties are too persistent to be ignored. Under Nazi pressure "to do something" about these, the Italian government has reacted sensitively recently and has silenced some of the neutral sources from which they came.

It hasn't so far been able to do anything about the emotional Neopollitan who hisses under cover of darkness when the British bombers come. "He lives over there. Why don't you go to Rome?" and waves the R. A. F. to the north with a heartfelt signal the flyers never see.

Weak Spots in Sicily.

Sicily develops many administrative weak spots in that there has been a considerable transfer of officials between the island and the northern industrial regions. Italy's supplies of food and other goods have disappeared as thoroughly as those in any Nazi-conquered nation.

There are many indications that army and party circles themselves in Rome are unhappy about their allies and are veering toward a policy of passive collaboration like that of Vichy, a program vastly different from full-scale assistance. It is likewise confirmed on excellent authority that the Italians last fall continued their efforts to fortify their border with Germany—"the border of little faith" as the Italians refer to it.

The basis for revolt in France may be found in the opposition to the tiny segment of the French people who actually support Darlan's policies. It consists of industrialists, those who can still work for the Nazis; financial interests who ardently want peace before their economic structure is wrecked on the dual shoals of domestic ineptitude and Nazi bleeding, and political opportunists who have frankly elected for Nazism and will be wiped out if it falls. They are opposed by the bulk of the people.

Thinking Frenchmen in Vichy sense this uneasiness and are appalled at its possible consequences, but it is far more apparent in other parts of the country. The industrial suburbs of Lyon are seething with inchoate revolt while the factories in which they earned their living slow down and come to a halt. Parisians on leave in the unoccupied zone are amazingly indiscreet in their speech and actions.

Feelings Kept Guarded.

"Five out of 10 Frenchmen in Paris are opposed to collaboration," joked one of them when I met "and four of the others are trying to get permission of the Nazi authorities to cross the demarcation line." He did not need to add that this was sufficient reason for them to keep their feelings guarded.

To label these people as Communists, which the Nazis and their Vichy hirelings undertake, is the sheerest hypocrisy. They are patriots among whom the Communists represent only a small portion, with the advantage that they alone have any appreciable underground organization or leadership.

Spain, too, is fertile ground for rebellion. Bled white even before the Nazis loosed their continental upheaval, it now finds itself in the curious position where many of the warring factions want the same outcome for different reasons. Much of the army has remained monarchist throughout. Some of the Republicans—and they still exist in large numbers—believe a restoration offers the best means of ending the dictatorship and re-establishing constitutional government.

Japs Would Welcome China Peace Move, Tokio Premier Says Must Rectify Mistakes Of Attitude, However, Parliament Is Told

The following dispatch indicates that a Japanese peace offensive has been launched to detach China from the line-up of the United Nations. Dispatches of this type possess a strong propaganda element.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Jan. 23 (Official Broadcast).—Addressing Parliament this afternoon, Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo reiterated Japanese willingness to accept any Chungking overtures for peaceful reconciliation if that regime changes its attitude.

He declared that although Japan has been fighting Chungking for five years, she still regards China as a sister nation and has not changed her mind about receiving Chungking with open arms if she only rectifies her mistaken ideas.

"Japan is chastising a spoiled child who was pampered by Anglo-America," the Premier stated.

He asserted that past faults in China would vanish with the disappearance of Anglo-American influence.

"Now is the time for China's leaders to awaken and I take this occasion to urge them to do so."

China's Envoy in London Doubts Peace Rumors

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to London, told a press conference today he doubted "very much" the rumors that China might conclude a separate peace with Japan.

He said the "situation in Malaya and the South Seas in general gives us cause for anxiety," but that he knew the government and the people were "confident of the ultimate outcome of the struggle."

Even if a statement about a separate peace had been made, he declared, "it would not in any way reflect either the feelings, the sentiments or the determination of the Chinese government."

Two Women Storekeepers Are Held Up by Bandits

Two women proprietors were held up by bandits last night, although one of them suspected the holdup men carried a toy pistol.

Bella Wiener, proprietor of a liquor store at 2000 Georgia avenue N.W., was robbed of $30 in bills and change by two colored youths, one of whom, she believed carried a toy gun. She decided not to take a chance on the gun.

The other victim was Mrs. Ethel Cassidy, proprietor of a grocery store at 409 Tenth street S.W., who told police a colored bandit forced her into the rear of the store and took $25 in bills from the cash register.

equivalent of the S. S. whose influence was somewhat diluted when France opened its ranks to every Spaniard, probably would not oppose the return of the King, for its members feel it would be followed by a new collapse and would hoist the Nazi nucleus more firmly in the saddle.

Uneasy Throne for Boris

Bulgaria's King Boris has sat on an uneasy throne from the beginning of his government's dealings with the Germans. Bulgaria's people, by race and language, are closely akin to the Russians. They are naturally distrustful of the Germans, but they learned about Nazi plans through correspondents who were paid agents in many cases, through a press which carefully concealed the truth, and a government which gave them no inkling of its program.

Shortly before Bulgaria's adherence to the three-power pact, one of these "newspapermen" in Berlin spoke savagely about the "stupidity" of his countrymen who would not recognize the benefits of the new order but continued to look to Russia.

A few days later we were in Leipzig for the opening of the famous fair. The program of an official dinner was interrupted by the announcement that Nazi troops that morning—actually it was days earlier—had crossed the Balkan border. The Bulgarian correspondents led the cheering for their country's downfall. Boris, sensitive to his people's feelings, was reported several times prepared to abdicate before he agreed. So delicate has the situation remained ever since that Bulgarians, alone of the three-power adherents, never have participated in the Russian fighting.

These are but examples of a pattern that exists in all of Europe. The Danes, who believed they could make a deal with Hitler, have found it wouldn't work and wish passionately now that they had gone down fighting, no matter how briefly. Their resentment is certain to flare back against the government which made the tragic bargain.

Uneasiness in Balkans.

Yugoslavs already have overthrown one government that made a bargain. It cost them their country temporarily, but they are fighting today what in any other kind of a world would be a major war for its reconstituted. Rumania, Slovakia and Hungarian troops had to be sent home from the Russian front because they were sick of the war and the Germans who led them into it. No amount of censorship has been able to disguise the uneasiness in the Balkans.

The Czechs staged an economic revolt last fall which pushed Friedrich Neurath, one of the Nazis' "conservatives," into limbo. Before it could be checked it required the services of Himmler's No. 2 expert in terror, Reinhard Heydrich.

To date the Gestapo technique—establishment of a central police force, trained and controlled by them, elimination of all but the government party as in France and Holland, and the most ruthless suppression of any criticism or opposition—has succeeded in keeping most of these movements underground. They need leaders and they need arms. So far they have neither.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle has performed an invaluable service for the French, but he has failed to strike a spark to the tinder that waits only some modern Joan of Arc, some 20th century Garibaldi some new Patrick Henry and some wedge in the Nazi front to flash into violent fire over all Europe.

Cosmopolitans Honor Miss Boardman for Community Service

Red Cross Official Is Second Woman to Receive Club Medal

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national secretary of the American Red Cross and one of the founders of the District Chapter, was presented the Cosmopolitan Club's distinguished service medal yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel as the citizen performing the most outstanding service to the community during 1941.

She became the second woman to receive the award and citation since the club established the custom 13 years ago. The first woman recipient was Miss Mary Virginia Merrick, founder of the Christ Child Society.

Several hundred persons, including District and Federal Government officials, attended the presentation luncheon and heard Dr. J. Rozier Biggs, chairman of the club's Medal Committee, term Miss Boardman the "mainspring and inspiring genius of the District Chapter and the national organization as well." Cities Sacrifices.

In presenting the medal, Dr. Biggs declared: "Because of the numerous sacrifices of your time, energy and finances in promoting the welfare of the American Red Cross and your city, the Cosmopolitan Club designates you the citizen of Washington who performed the most outstanding unselfish service during the year 1941."

"As is always the case in time of war or disaster, this war finds the American Red Cross springing into instantaneous action, or rather continuation of the action that was launched in behalf of our Allies months ago," Dr. Biggs said. "We cannot mention the American Red Cross without naturally and inevitably bringing to mind the picture of Miss Boardman, mainspring and inspiring genius of the District Chapter and the national organization as well."

Miss Boardman, the speaker added, has "truly been a friend of all humanity."

Pays Tribute to Volunteers. Responding to the citation, Miss Boardman said that she "shone, like the moon, only in reflected glory," and that the thousands of Red Cross volunteers were the real power behind the organization.

"I glory in what our District Red Cross chapter has accomplished, what its loyal, self-sacrificing volunteers . . . have given for many years," Miss Boardman said. "I glory in the services our unpaid professional staff rendered and in those of our thousands of volunteers, and I glory in the confidence and support Washington has always given its chapter."

Six other recipients of the medal attended the luncheon. They were E. C. Graham, Robert V. Fleming, Thomas P. Littlepage, Ernest W. Brown, Coleman Jennings and James E. Colliflower. Two others, Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, and Theodore W. Noyes, editor of The Star, were unable to attend. In a letter to Dr. Biggs, Mr. Noyes praised Miss Boardman for chairman of the District chapter, and J. Tilghman Hendrick, former District Commissioner.

Herbert Woods, president of the Cosmopolitan Club, presided.

her "sound judgment, great energy and executive ability."

Invocation by Bishop Freeman. Bishop James E. Freeman gave the invocation and the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector of St. Thomas' Church, the benediction. George O'Connor led the company in the singing of the national anthem and "America." The program was broadcast over Station WMAL.

Only Subways Can End D. C. Transit Problem, House Group Told

Capt. Whitehurst Predicts Tunnels for Streetcars Will Have to Be Provided

tuting bus for street car service. One request, he said, will be to restore track curves at Fourteenth and U streets N.W., to effect general redistribution of street car operation.

"We understand," he said, "that some public officials now favor the use of streetcars in place of buses because of their greater passenger capacity."

Further staggering of the hours of Government workers as well as those in private employment was advocated by both Capt. Whitehurst and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Engineer Commissioner Kutz and Chairman Gregory Hankin of the Public Utility Commission both expressed the belief, in response to questions by Chairman Randolph, that a preliminary survey of the feasibility of a subway system should be made at this time. Gen. Kutz is a member of the commission.

Representative Randolph pointed out that the House directing Public Utilities Commission and the Commissioners to make such a survey, but that no action had been taken on it in the Senate.

434 Buses and Cars Added

Since June, 1940, at the beginning of the defense effort, Mr. Merrill said the transit company had added 434 buses and streetcars to its morning peak-hour service. The company now has on order 1,667 vehicles and has set on order which he expected to have delivered by September.

New equipment has been slower coming through than usual because of priorities, he testified. Hence the company is just beginning to receive cars and buses ordered in April. Normally, he explained, delivery takes about 90 days.

Representative Schulte, Democrat, of Indiana, long an advocate of subways here, said that Merrill, he did not think an underground transit system would provide more efficient service.

"You would still have to have the same number of cars to carry the people," he replied.

Mr. Merrill, however, said if the population here goes to 1,000,000 there should be some double-decked streets with short tunnels, perhaps 8 or 10 blocks long, in the downtown area and lesser grade separations to relieve street intersections in other parts of the District.

The transit company head admitted under questioning that a subway would be "desirable" if the population exceeds 1,000,000. Boston, he declared, is the only city with a population less than 1,000,000 with a subway system. The underground transit lines there, however, he explained, serve heavily congested contiguous areas.

"Door-to-Door" Service Rapped

Representative Schulte asked Mr. Merrill what he thought of the proposal for a so-called "jitney" service by private automobiles and taxicabs to augment streetcar and bus service. "I never liked the jitney idea," he replied. "It was tried and found wanting in the last war."

Capt. Whitehurst emphasized that greater distribution of mass transportation is one of Washington's most important needs. Further, he declared, "we have got to stop giving door-to-door service. Streetcars and buses have got to make fewer stops."

In this connection, he said, if Washington had a real underground rapid transit system like New York and Boston, stops would be made only every five or six blocks.

Firm Held Ready to Build Subway

At that point Representative Schulte said he had been informed that a New York organization is ready to build and operate an underground rapid transit system here. He revealed, but asked Capt. Whitehurst if he favored it.

"I wouldn't oppose anything that would improve traffic," the highway director answered.

Capt. Whitehurst, however, said it would take a long time to build a subway.

Mr. Schulte declared the New York firm could build the subway in one or two years.

Capt. Whitehurst also told the committee that further staggering of the hours of Government workers as well as those in private employment can do more immediately to relieve congestion than anything else.

Traffic Director Van Duzer explained that under the staggered hour plan, 35,000 persons can be "comfortably" removed from the congested area every 15 minutes, 15,000 of them in street cars and buses.

"Brother, you're a magician," Mr. Schulte said

Chairman Hankin of the Public Utilities Commission declared if the public needs a rapid transit subway service "by all means" it should get it.

Depressed Roads Planned

Capt. Whitehurst told the committee extensive planning now is in progress to improve traffic conditions and that he intended to ask Congress for money to study the problem more intensively.

Projects in mind, he declared, are more "extensive" than underpasses and overpasses at traffic bottlenecks, and include depressed highways in the Northwest and Northeast sections.

Projects are in the progress of making developments that are going to be helpful," Capt. Whitehurst declared.

Representative Randolph asked him if the permanent solution of transportation problem is subsurface transit lines.

"The time is rapidly coming when we will have to build tunnels for street cars. But that will cause a readjustment of the transportation system."

New Front is Added By Australians Along East Malayan Coast

Japanese Thrust South From Endau Extends Fighting Lines

By SERGT. IAN FITCHETT, Official Correspondent with the Australian Imperial Force.

WITH THE A. I. F. ON THE MALAYAN FRONT, Jan. 22 (Delayed). (Australian Associated Press to A.P.)—The enemy push south from Endau (on the Malayan eastern coast) brings Australian troops into action on yet another front.

Here our men have the advantage of knowing every inch of the ground. The have worked and planned over it for months.

A successful ambush of advanced Japanese elements was carried out with careful planning, minefields bringing the Japanese into a bottleneck where our troops waited.

This is one part of the front where the enemy will have to wait and lick his wounds without swinging to the flank. The impenetrable jungle is all he would have left if he tries any such move he will have to hack a path every inch of the way.

In the Bukit Payong area Victorian and New South Wales troops are fighting one of the hardest and most gallant actions of the war.

The A. I. F. is endeavoring to give the R. A. F. forces the fullest possible aid.

This is the most important sector in the battle for Malaya at present—a fight for control of the main road to Singapore—and the Japanese are being held.

"This program, supplemented by those that are to follow, also involves the greatest dislocation, re-adjustment and conversion of industrial production that the Nation has ever experienced," the committee observed.

Industry and Speed Assured.

It said the assurances had been given by high officials that the plane program could be prosecuted economically and speedily.

About $933,000,000 will be spent for plant expansion, mostly additions to present facilities and with new construction limited to bomber assembly plants and other facilities for production of explosives and incendiary materials.

The committee also included in the bill a separate appropriation of $30,000,000 for construction of the Douglas Dam on the French Broad River near Dandridge, Tenn., in the Tennessee Valley.

Disclosing that the pending appropriation would cover procurement of 23,000 combat planes and 10,000 training craft, Gen. Arnold testified that he could not agree with a report of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee which asserted that relatively few of the Nation's planes were on a par with Axis craft and that there had been too many production delays.

Replying directly to statements in that report, under questioning by committee members, Gen. Arnold said it was true that he had said that the P-40 type of plane was no longer regarded as better than a good pursuit trainer. But since the original P-40, he said the P-40 A, B, C, D, E, and F had been developed and had been found very effective.

The Truman (Senate Investigating) Committee talked about "piddling changes in carburetors," but that same piddling change in our carburetors was to correct something that probably caused a forced landing, with the death of eight or nine people," Gen. Arnold said.

Production of planes on existing orders will reach a peak next August, Gen. Arnold said, but there were indications in other testimony—all of which was carefully edited by War Department and congressional officials—that production on the $12,000,000,000 program would not be completed until late in 1943.

Gen. Arnold asserted that the Air Force and the air industry were seeking round-the-clock production schedules. At the same time, he added, the War Department has adopted a program of training pilots and mechanics and constructing bases, "all figured out so that they will all be available at the right time." He also said:

"When you are flying, and particularly when you are carrying out training, there comes a time when the air gets saturated with airplanes, beyond which you have the ent facilities may prepare for further production and that the new facilities may be expedited."

Testimony by Gen. Arnold and Bulk Goes for Planes. Other officials showed that $7,144,056,540 of the fund would go for complete airplanes. Another $1,547,948,529 had been allocated for armament, aircraft cannon, small arms ammunition, bombs and pyrotechnics.

Spare engines and parts will require almost $1,900,000,000, and the committee said that will be in production of the planes will take another $933,000,000. About $1,000,000,000 will be spent on supplies of the Signal Corps and Chemical Warfare Service.

In recommending speedy House action the Appropriations Committee made it clear that the program was a "preliminary step" toward President Roosevelt's goal of 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943, and that still more huge sums of money would have to be allocated.

The committee said in a report on the measure:

The funds in this bill will prevent a decline that would occur next August in airplane production due to the fact that existing orders would run out by that time, will fill up new capacity heretofore appropriated for that will be in production by that time and will increase the capacity for the production of bomber types."

Noting that there had been "great increases" in the unit cost of planes and plane parts, the committee recommended that the War Department give close attention to the problem of preventing further price rises.

"The financial burden of the program on the American people is oppressive and will become more so and every dollar borrowed or a dollar less to be borrowed or extracted by taxation," the committee asserted.

At the same time, the report said that the big appropriation was a part of the $56,000,000,000 war expenditure program for 1943 outlined by President Roosevelt in his budget message to Congress early this month.

That program, supplemented by those that are to follow, also involves the greatest dislocation, re-adjustment and conversion of industrial production that the Nation has ever experienced," the committee observed.

Industry and Speed Assured. It said the assurances had been given by high officials that the plane program could be prosecuted economically and speedily.

danger of collisions and a high accident rate.

"So, rather than go through any such unfortunate situation as that, we prefer to build new schools where we will not have that overlapping in the air."

Air fields, the chief said, are located mostly in the center of the country, but nevertheless are arranged so that "the necessary number of combat planes" could be quickly concentrated in the areas about Boston, New York, Washington, Charleston or elsewhere.

Enabling legislation recommended by President Roosevelt stipulated that $4,000,000,000 of the appropriation could be used under the Lease-Lend Act, but Gen. Arnold said he did not know whether that figure or twice that amount would be right.

"We don't know where the airplanes will go," he said. "We have to send them where they will do the most good."

Representative Ludlow, Democrat, of Indiana, inquired of the necessity of the $321,000,000 request for the Chemical Warfare Service, remarking that very little was being done in that field.

"Well," Gen. Arnold replied, "incendiary bombs are a part of chemical warfare and quite an essential part."

Chairman Cannon said at the outset of the one-day hearing on the appropriation that the request was the largest for war equipment made to "any committee or any Congress in the history of the world," and added:

"It involves the greatest dislocation, readjustment and conversion of industry that the country has ever seen."

Army Leaders Not Called. Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Lt. Gen. Arnold, Brig. Gen. O. P. Echols, in charge of Army procurement, and William S. Knudsen, head of the War Department production program, told the committee they neither appeared before the Truman Committee nor gave it information on which some of the charges purportedly were based.

"Neither Gen. Arnold nor any one else in charge of the aircraft program for the War Department, made any statement or was called on in any way to disclose or make any statement about the aircraft program," Mr. Patterson said.

Mr. Patterson said he did not know "the military expert" who advised the Truman Committee "on these alleged facts."

Ewing Assault Case Tentatively Slated For Trial Feb. 9

Laura Ingalls Scheduled To Appear in District Court on Same Day

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihely today announced the Government tentatively has set for February 9 the trial of Orman W. Ewing, former Democratic national committee man from Utah, indicted on a charge of criminally assaulting a 19-year-old Government clerk. The case is scheduled to be heard by Justice James W. Morris in District Court.

February 9 also was set at the trial date for Mrs. Laura H. Ingalls, widow, indicted on a charge of failing to register as an agent of a foreign government. The case also is scheduled for trial before Justice Morris.

Setting of more than one case for trial the same day is not an unusual procedure, as defendants frequently plead guilty, either when the trial is about to start or when it is in progress. To prevent a "breakdown" in the court calendar through guilty pleas, a number of cases are on assignment daily.

The Ingalls case was set first, so presumably, it would go to trial first. Associated with Mr. Fihely in prosecution of the Ewing case is Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray.

Jefferson's Birthday Set Tentatively for Dedication

The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission is considering dedicating the memorial April 13, provided presidential approval is given. The date marks the 199th anniversary of the third President's birth.

Francis F. Gillen, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks and supervisor of the project, pointed out that the date is tentative and final decision is up to the White House, since the President is expected to make the dedication speech.

The commission also plans to hold another ceremony next year when the statue will be dedicated. The statue is being completed by Rudolph Evans in his New York studio.

Kelly to Swear in 90 As Auxiliary Policemen

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, was to swear in 90 members of the Public Order Committee of the Washington Board of Trade as auxiliary policemen at 2:30 this afternoon in his office.

The men will be assigned to a special headquarters detail operating under the police head. Some of the group will be employed for general clerical and administrative duties at headquarters, according to Maj. Kelly.

West Point with regard to the P-40 planes "and it was supposed to be off the record and not to be repeated."

Mr. Knudsen said he had been "before so many committees" he could not be certain whether he was before the Truman committee, "but I do not think I was."

"As far as my ability to observe shortcomings is concerned," he added, "none of the things mentioned in the Truman report happened in O. P. M., so far as I know."

Brought out elsewhere in the hearings were the following disclosures:

New airplane and other production plants will be built in the interior rather than along the coasts where they might be subject to enemy attacks.

Soviet Troops Closing Trap on Germans Beyond Mozhaik

Also Launch Campaign To Outflank Enemy Before Leningrad

Red Army troops were reported today to have driven the German survivors of the battle of Mozhaik 23 miles along the Smolensk highway toward Vyazma, on which a flanking force was closing a lethal trap.

A dispatch from Moscow said the Russian attackers had established a rate of advance of from six to seven miles a day since Mozhaik was taken.

Borodino and Uvarovo were behind the Russian assault units and about 40 miles ahead Vyazma. 125 miles from Moscow, Russian pincer spearheads have been aiming at this city for a long time.

Moscow dispatches indicated the Red Army forces converging from the northeast had been assigned the ax work.

Launch New Drive

Coupled with their smashing triumph on the Moscow front, Russian troops advancing in a blinding snowstorm launched a drive to outflank the Nazi armies before Leningrad.

Dispatches said the Russians took the Germans by surprise in an attack on the 40-mile sector between Novgorod, just north of Lake Ilmen, and the Moscow-Leningrad railroad, resulting in "the most violent fighting of the New Year."

On the southern (Ukraine) front, a late bulletin reported that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's armies were continuing to advance along a 100-mile line between Kursk and Kharkov, Russia's "Pittsburgh."

To the north, Soviet troops were said to have recaptured 44 towns and villages in the Orel sector, 210 miles below Moscow, and it was reported that Orel itself, encircled for the past fortnight, may already have fallen.

Three Settlements Reclaimed. In addition to these developments, a Soviet Information Bureau communique reported the Germans lost 250 men with the recapture of three settlements in an unidentified sector.

The German high command in Berlin reported "further violent fighting" on the Russian front.

"In a counterattack on the central sector heavy casualties were once more inflicted on the enemy," the high command declared.

"Thirty-five guns and a number of heavy weapons fell into our hands," the German high command in Berlin reported. "The retreat of the Germans were still fighting stubbornly in many sectors.

Nazis Fighting Stubbornly. Front dispatches said that while there was alarm and confusion in the ranks of the retreating forces the Germans were still fighting stubbornly in many sectors.

At Borodino, a dozen miles west of Mozhaik, it was said, the Nazis burned the famous Napoleonic museum, destroying relics of the battle which Napoleon fought there.

Soviet guerrilla detachments were reported continuing effective operations in the Leningrad region. One unit was credited with ambushing a Nazi supply train and seizing 15 loaded carts.

Repeated Soviet claims to the edge in recent aerial fighting were developed in two reports.

End of Two-Pants Suits Urged as War Measure

The clothing industry recommended to the War Production Board yesterday that manufacture of two-trouser suits be stopped for the duration of the war.

Presenting the proposal as one of a series of measures which would save an estimated 25 or 30 per cent in cloth production, the industry representatives said that 40 per cent of the 25,000,000 suits made in the United States last year were two-trouser jobs.

As additional means of conserving wool, the industry has proposed elimination of vests on double-breasted suits, elimination of fluffs on trousers and elimination of patch pockets and trouser pleats. The recommendations also contemplate shortening the average length of overcoats about 3 inches and cutting about 1 inch off the average length of a suit coat.

O.P.M. Contract Division Field Offices Retained

By the Associated Press. Field offices of the old O. P. M. Contract Distribution Division, now merged under the Production Division of the War Production Board, will continue to function, W. P. B. officials said today.

Floyd B. Odlum, formerly head of the contract distribution organization and now special economic adviser to Donald M. Nelson, W. P. B. chairman, telegraphed each of the 107 field offices today that "your Washington relationships should continue just as usual."

Mr. Odlum recalled that he had recommended the merger some time ago and asserted he believed it would increase the effectiveness of the field operations. Contract distribution work under W. P. B. will be supervised by Walter Wheeler, Jr., formerly Mr. Odlum's deputy.

$60,000 Fire Destroys Big Granary at Easton

EASTON, Md., Jan. 23.—The 500,000-bushel granary of J. McKenney Willis & Son was destroyed early today by a spectacular fire which the owners estimated caused $60,000 damage.

Approximately 30,000 bushels of wheat and corn were lost in the blaze. Firemen said the granary had been burning for an hour or more when they answered the first alarm at 2:30 a.m. Tin covering the wooden building conceals the flames until they had gained considerable headway.

Boy Scout Pony Riders Offer Dispatch Service

DIGHTON, Mass., Jan. 23.—Taking a page from the early days of the West, the Boy Scout troop here has worked out a plan to do its bit in national defense.

Equipped with ponies, the troop has offered its services as dispatch riders to provide communication in the event telephone lines were destroyed in an air raid.

Boys in the troop range in age from 12 to 14.

Walker Turns In $226.20 And McNutt $564.10 At Campaign Broadcast

Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones was to speak in support of the Washington Mile o' Dimes campaign at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon at Fourteenth street and New York avenue N.W.

The first member of the President's cabinet to appear in a broadcast over Station WMAL was Postmaster General Frank Walker, who spoke yesterday afternoon from the Mile o' Dimes stand on Fourteenth street.

Passing over to campaign officials $226.20 collected from postal employees here, Postmaster Walker said he had a personal appreciation for the campaign as infantile paralysis had struck at one time among his close friends.

McNutt Turns in $564.10

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, also was on hand and left $564.10 donated by agency employees. The fight on the disease "is one of the important battlefronts of America," he declared and added that it was necessary to eradicate infantile paralysis to carry on more effectively in the fight against the Axis powers.

From the Office of Co-ordinator of Information came $53.05, presented by Thomas G. Early, executive officer of Col. William Donovan's office. Winifred Coughlin, 27, of 2460 Sixteenth street N.W., presented the campaign with $35.20 in dimes collected by students of Strayer Business College. A student there, Mr. Coughlin told how he had recovered from the disease when stricken at the age of 3.

Other Contributions Received.

Other contributions received through the day included $18 from Emanuel B. Schofield, special assistant to the Attorney General; $11.28, Junior Board of Commerce; $12.20, District of Columbia Employment Center; $3, American Battle Monuments Commission; $3.50, Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co.; $10, Connecticut Pie Co., and the auxiliary firemen of Engine Co. No. 30.

A representative of the Division of Defense Housing Co-ordination of the executive offices of the President will be heard over WMAL with Secretary Jones. Also scheduled to make contributions today are William T. McCloskey of the National Field Committee for Scouting in Catholic Parishes, and an official of the Southern Railway. Final arrangements have been made for a sidewalk broadcast Monday at 7:30 p.m., with two bands of the Washington Shriners and Howard P. Foley, newly installed potentate, participating.

Alibi Offered to Prove Boy Didn't Slay Woman, 83

MEDIA, Pa., Jan. 23.—Fifteen-year-old John Leeds' counsel today sought to make alibi for the youth's alibi for the night Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, 83, was slain.

Nearing the close of John's defense against a first-degree murder accusation it was indicated his attorneys would produce additional witnesses to testify that the boy could not have been in the vicinity of this quiet county seat the night of September 24, 1941, when Mrs. Watson and her sister, Miss Belle Geary, 80, were attacked and robbed as they walked home. Miss Geary recovered.

Three witnesses yesterday said they saw a boy they identified as John miles away from here at the time the attack occurred. Their testimony carried out in detail the route John said he followed after fleeing from State Reform School on September 24, a few hours before the two sisters were beaten.

The State has based its case on four signed statements in which the youth admitted the crime. He has officially repudiated them, saying the admission was forced from him.

Where They Are Fighting

From the National Geographic Society. The capture of Tavoy, set about halfway along the slim stem of Burmese territory in the wretched Malay Peninsula, provides Japan not only with a new and convenient base for attack but also with a considerable quantity of valuable raw materials of war.

Tavoy is less than an hour's bomber ride from the Burmese capital of Rangoon, especially valuable to the Allies as the gateway to China's "Burma road" and to overland routes leading into vast and populous India. Tavoy, which long had been a busy seaport for coastal trade in nearby waters, in addition was equipped with a commercial airfield.

Following the outbreak of the European war, the port and its environs had become especially noted abroad as a source of certain needed war materials. Tavoy's woolfram—the tungsten-producing mineral that is so valuable in the making of high-speed tool steels—was considered an important Burmese contribution to Britain's war effort. Much tin also normally is recovered in the neighborhood, and there is a spectacular "iron hill" nearby. Rubber is another valuable material of the district, the production of which had represented a growing industry in recent years.

Peacetime Tavoy had a population of more than 27,000 people. As the capital of the district of the same name, it was a court and customs house headquarters, and a number of pagodas and monasteries for sightseeing. Its wooden houses, palm-thatched and surrounded by gardens, presented a picturesque appearance. Besides its commercial and port activities, the city normally makes its living chiefly by silk weaving. There is some pottery manufacture and gold and silver metal work. A number of rice and lumber mills are found nearby along the banks of the Tavoy river, the result of a plentiful supply of timber and rice in this hot, moist land.

Tavoy is situated about 30 miles from the mouth of the river of the same name. Low lying for the most part, it is subject to flood at high tide.

Bus Lines Demand Increase in Tariffs To Match Railroads

Rise in Operating Costs Cited by Chairman of Traffic Association

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The National bus lines want a 10 per cent increase in passenger fares, too.

Chairman L. C. Markel of the National Bus Traffic Association, which he said represents 95 per cent of bus traffic, announced operators' proposals were similar to those approved for the railroads. The Interstate Commerce Commission on Wednesday authorized railroads to raise fares and Mr. Markel said the bus lines hoped to make their increases effective simultaneously.

Proposed changes, the chairman said, will not affect rates for military travel.

Mr. Markel said increased bus operating costs were "similar to if not in excess of increased costs of the railroads" and that officials of the bus industry agreed the relationship between railroad coach and bus fares should not be disturbed.

The chairman said he would apply to the I. C. C. for authority to publish new tariffs on 10 days' notice. Instead of the 30 days normally required. If this were approved, he said, the companies would file new tariffs which would become effective unless protests were filed.

Airport Defenders Head Churchill And Order Pikes

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Flight Lt. F. L. Raikes, Conservative, gave the House of Commons a laugh yesterday in referring to a speech in which Prime Minister Churchill had said British airdromes would be defended even if the defenders had to use pikes and other weapons of medieval warfare.

"One result came of that speech which would have been humorous if it had not shown a kindergarten mentality," said Lt. Raikes. "I know that at several air stations pikes at once were ordered."

Navy Takes Four Furnaces Ready for Delivery to Mini

DENVER, Jan. 23.—Even the mint can't beat priorities, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, mint director, disclosed yesterday.

On an inspection visit here, Mrs. Ross said that four electric furnaces about to be delivered to the Denver mint were taken over by the Navy.

"If it's a question of turning out coins or ships, of course we want the Navy to have the furnaces," she commented. "We simply will have to place another order for four more furnaces and hope to get them when conditions permit."

Canada Plans Election On Question of Draft For Overseas Service

Date Not Yet Fixed; Governor General Cites War's Spread

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—Canada yesterday announced a popular election of the bitterly-debated question of whether the Dominion will conscript troops for service overseas.

Warning solemnly that the war is "a world-wide conflict between irreconcilable forces," the Earl of Athlone, governor-general, announced the government "would seek, by means of a plebiscite, release from any obligation arising out of any past commitments of restricting the methods of raising men for military service."

The date was not set.

Six months before the war Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said that so long as his government was in power, there would be no conscription of Canadians for overseas service.

Reiterated Several Times.

He has reiterated that commitment on several occasions—as recently as last November 12—and as a result, Canadian forces overseas in more than two years of war have been limited to volunteers.

Yesterday the Earl of Athlone, making the speech from the throne in opening the third session of Canada's 19th Parliament, spoke of these commitments as having been made "prior to the spread of the war to all parts of the world," and urged that the government now "possess complete freedom to act in accordance with its judgment of the needs of the situation as they may arise."

The governor-general said plainly that Canadians must expect "an expansion of the establishment of the Canadian Army overseas" and that the Dominion must produce more munitions and foodstuffs.

Mobilization of Resources.

Selective service, he added, would be extended to meet the orderly and efficient employment of the men and women of Canada for the varied purposes of war, and there will be "as complete as possible mobilization of the material resources and manpower of the country."

Canadian troops who volunteered for overseas service fought valiantly at Hong Kong in December. There are more than 100,000 of them in the United Kingdom. Some of these participated in last September's expedition to Spitsbergen. Just before the fall of France a Canadian force reached the French coast, but it was withdrawn before it had a chance to meet the enemy. Some Canadians are at Gibraltar.

Large Food Surpluses Reported in Hawaii

HONOLULU, Jan. 23.—A. W. MacDonald, Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. representative administering a $35,000,000 Federal appropriation for food, said yesterday there were large surpluses now in Hawaii of potatoes, onions, rice, flour, cheese, canned milk, canned fruit and dried fruit.

Mr. MacDonald said lima and kidney bean seed also was available.

Food administration officers under Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, military governor and commander of the Army's Hawaiian Department, will handle price-control details.

Wyoming Industrialist, 85, Flies Here on War Business

A pioneer of the old West who as a boy met President Abraham Lincoln on his first trip to the Nation's Capital was back again in Washington today, this time to interest the Federal Government in development of magnesium deposits near Cody, Wyo.

He is George W. T. Beck, 85, of Thornton, Colo., a vigorous and robust for his 85 years, still working as an engineer and industrialist and on a titling a walking book of national and family history.

On the family side, he is a great-grandnephew of George Washington, son of late Senator Beck of Kentucky, who died in office here in 1892, cousin by marriage of former Senator Lee of Maryland, and father-in-law of United States

U. S. Pigs Called to Colors; Need for Brushes Acute

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 23.—American pigs got their call to the colors today. It came from a convention of painting contractors.

The homebred razorback was besought, in the interests of patriotism, to develop at least a respectable bristle, something that could be used, in the present pinch, for paint brushes.

Ernie Morck of San Francisco stated the situation:

"The paint brush industry in the United States has been dependent on the 5-inch bristles that hogs readily produce in Japan and China."

So, Mr. Morck suggested, the painter has no recourse but to appeal to the native razorback "in the name of patriotism" to do in an emergency what Japanese hogs do as routine.

Norse Reported Sent To Russia by Nazis

LONDON, Jan. 23.—German authorities in Norway have sent to the Russian front prominent Norwegians arrested in reprisal for British Commando raids on Norway, Norwegian sources in London said last night.

Among those arrested, it was said, were aides-de-camp to King Haakon and Crown Prince Olav, the son of the explorer Fridtjof Nansen, Sir Thomas Fearnley, shipping magnate, and Johan H. Andresen, a member of Parliament and president of one of Norway's largest tobacco firms.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 23.—Lest they have a look at Panama Canal defenses, more than 100 German and Italian diplomats and other nationals arriving by ship from Colombia en route to the United States, were taken across the Isthmus by train yesterday.

Usually such travelers make the transit aboard ship.

De Gaulle and Churchill Confer on St. Pierre

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Daily Express said today that Gen. Charles de Gaulle has conferred with Prime Minister Churchill regarding the Free French occupation of the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off Newfoundland.

The newspaper said Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who was present at the conference, had suggested a compromise but that the general did not find it satisfactory.

Uniforms Dot Church as 'Wren' Weds R. A. F. Squadron Leader

Shown at St. John's Church today after their marriage are R. A. F. Squadron Leader Stafford P. Coulson and the former Miss Phyllis Mary Webber, member of the Women's Royal Naval Service.

Surrounded by British men and women serving their country overseas, an R. A. F. squadron leader today took as his bride a member of the Women's Royal Naval Service.

Half the congregation gathered in St. John's Church at Lafayette Square were in the uniform of their services for the marriage of Squadron Leader Stafford P. Coulson, 25, and Miss Phyllis Mary Webber, 25-year-old "wren."

Since both families were on the other side of the Atlantic, the bride was given in marriage by Rear Admiral J. W. Durling.

The bride wore a rust-colored, street-length jersey dress with matching hat and a corsage of orchids. The groom was in the uniform of the R. A. F.

Met on Trip to America. Squadron Leader Coulson and Miss Webber met on a 10-day passage from England to America last June. Until last night, when the bridegroom arrived from the R. A. F. fighter pilot training station at Debert, Halifax, Nova Scotia, where he is stationed, the couple had seen each other only three times since the boat trip.

Although the families were not at the wedding, they have met. After the engagement was announced at Christmas time, his family at Wincanton, Somerset, visited with her family at Portsmouth, England.

The two ushers wear both commanders attached to the British Admiralty here. As they waited for the bride to arrive at the church, one advised the other:

"The bride goes up the port side and comes down the starboard side of the church."

Reception Is Held. After the wedding a reception was held at the home of Miss Webber, which she shares with three other "wrens" at 2627 O street N.W.

The bride and her pilot husband had been granted a fortnight's leave which they will spend in Virginia.

After that they are due for another separation, which they hope will be temporary. The bridegroom must go back to Debert while the bride returns to her naval communications job with the British Admiralty. They are hoping one will get a transfer to the other's station.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. John G. Magee, while Richard C. Griffiths of the British Admiralty delegation was best man and Miss Dorothy MacIlwaine, a wren, was maid of honor.

Pocketbook Snatcher Picks Wrong Spot

A 21-year-old Culpeper (Va.) man picked the wrong place to snatch a pocketbook last night.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, Policeman Percy G. Mangun, directing traffic at Fourteenth and F streets N.W., heard a commotion at the northeast corner of the intersection and saw a young man running across F street. The policeman grabbed him. Police said the youth had a pocketbook, containing $4.58, belonging to Edna E. Ramsey of Marietta, Pa.

W. P. B. Prohibits Use Of Rubber in Girdles, Many Other Articles

'Essential' Civilian Goods Containing Product Will Be Cut 75 Per Cent

The War Production Board today prohibited the use of crude rubber or latex after February 1 for the manufacture of girdles or other foundation garments, golf and tennis balls, erasers, bathing suits and caps, lawn and garden hose and hundreds of other common household items.

Extending already strict Government control over the rubber industry, the board made public a long list of "essential" products which may be manufactured; established production quotas for each class of products, and directed that use of crude rubber for a wide variety of "essential" civilian goods be reduced about 75 per cent below recent annual consumption.

Only Reclaimed Rubber. After February 1, the order stipulated, all products not on the list may be manufactured only from reclaimed rubber.

Reclaimed rubber, experts say, cannot be used satisfactorily in material which is subject to recurrent stretching, such as girdles. After a few stretches, it doesn't bounce back into shape.

Since last December 19, when the Government halted production of all non-essential goods pending a detailed study of the rubber shortage, the industry's output has been subject to general limitations. The new W. P. B. order tells the industry exactly what it can and can't make and how much of it.

Specific permission must be obtained from the board before crude rubber or latex can be used to make tires or tubes, retreading material, insulating compounds, jar rings and other items. Further, W. P. B. may at any time change specifications of all products on the approved list to reduce the amount of crude rubber used.

War Department Warns Walkout Would Imperil Vital War Production

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Jan. 23.—Busy buses and street cars carried war-job workers to factories as usual today with a strike threat by city employees wiped out, at least temporarily, by the War Department.

"Imperil production of planes, tanks and guns." Union officials said a referendum on a strike would be taken next week—depending on the outcome of further negotiations with city officials over the union's demand for a flat 15 per cent wage increase.

Members of the City Employees' Union (A. F. L.) voted at a meeting last night to postpone the strike, called for 4 a. m. today, on being warned by Undersecretary of War Patterson that a walkout would imperil production of planes, tanks and guns.

U. S. Air Chiefs Are Confident Of Superiority of Warplanes

Arnold and Echols Cite Performance In Combat to Substantiate Claims

By the Associated Press.

Army confidence in the performance and continuing development of American aircraft was reported to Congress today with the message that the Nation now is getting both quality and quantity plane production and need not "apologize to any one in the world."

Combat performances of American-built planes pitted against German Messerschmitts and Japanese fighters—in many cases against heavy odds—were cited by Lt. Gen. H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air, to back up that statement before the House Appropriations Committee.

In a transcript of that testimony made public by the committee, Gen. Arnold was quoted as saying that in plane research and development work this country was "equal to most nations and ahead of a lot of them."

Brig. Gen. O. P. Echols, in charge of procurement, added: "I think, from the best information we have, that I can say, without hesitation, we are up to the Germans, and I think, in certain respects, we are ahead of them. I think the new pursuit planes are the best airplanes in the world, and I think in our heavy bombers that we are ahead of them."

Gen. Arnold quoted the British as saying the P-40-D (Kittyhawk) pursuit was superior to all the other Royal Air Force planes in the Middle East, and said that one squadron of that type, "up against a superior number" had "knocked down 13 hostile planes, including two Messerschmitts 109-F. We lost only one plane."

"During the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7," Gen. Arnold continued, "Lt. Taylor and Lt. Welch, both flying airplanes similar to the British Tomahawk, attacked a formation of Japanese planes and each shot down two planes.

"A short time later, Lt. Welch engaged two Japanese planes and shot down both of them. Other airplanes of the same type engaged in victorious battle with the Japanese on that day. Every time they went up in combat, they acquitted themselves in excellent manner."

Chinese Records Cited.
The Army air chief quoted Chinese sources as saying that American volunteer aviators defending the Burma road and Rangoon, "many of whom use airplanes of the P-40 series, have bagged from 90 to 100 planes. That has been done since December 7, and it was done with the loss of only three planes."

"On the Russian front," he added, "early this month, four Tomahawks are reported in the news dispatches as having shot down eight Messerschmitts which were there in support of the German driven on Leningrad."

"On another occasion, he said, aviators in P-40s, outnumbered eight to one, destroyed 60 per cent of a German flight. He told the committee that the P-40s were operating in North Africa "when the Spitfires and the Hurricanes could not."

Malaya

the British positions appeared relatively unchanged, with the heaviest fighting under way in the Batu Pahat sector.

Based on the official British report today, the front ranging from 60 to 70 or more miles above Singapore, shaped up roughly as follows:

From the western anchor around Batu Pahat eastward to the Chahah area in the center, about 70 miles north of Singapore and some 25 miles northwest of Kuala Lumpur; thence northeastward to the Mersing area on the eastern coast, 65 miles north of Singapore.

Artillery Harasses Japs.

The Far East command said British artillery has been "actively harassing" the Japanese in the Mersing area.

Australians have studied every bit of the ground in the area between Mersing and Endau, 25 miles to the north of Mersing, and the Japanese push down the coast brought, those forces into play. To the west of Mersing lies a dense jungle through which correspondents at the front said the enemy would be forced to hack his way every step if he attempted a flanking movement on the east coast.

On the central front in the Chahah area, forward elements were in contact with the Japanese and fighting was in progress.

The Japanese were said to have stepped up their activity in the Batu Pahat section—and there the main battle was joined.

Aussies Heavily Engaged.
The Australians were especially heavily engaged in close quarter fighting above Batu Pahat, which Maj. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett, commander of the Australian Army in Malaya, described as "very confused."

(The Melbourne radio, heard by N. B. C. in New York, said Maj. Gen. Bennett in a message to Australia reported the situation in Malaya was, if anything, more serious than it was a few days ago.)

The Japanese were reported to have brought up additional troops on the Muar River front on the west coast and had turned an infiltration movement into an assault on the Allied flank. The British were helping the Australians in that Muar River sector.

British Defense Collapse Impending, Japs Claim

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP)—"Total collapse" of the British defense system in Johore state, in Malaya, "is impending," the Tokio radio broadcast last night, claiming the naval base at Singapore is "doomed."

Wartime Growing Pains

It is with a note of genuine regret, but with a philosophical sense of resignation to the seemingly inevitable, that residents of Washington watch the drastic and rapid transformation of their "city beautiful" into a thriving, bewildering center of accelerating wartime activity. Parks and recreation fields so carefully nurtured and so jealously guarded in time of peace are being converted daily into parking lots or sites for a multiplicity of temporary structures designed to accommodate the thousands upon thousands of additional workers expected to congregate here in the coming months. But this is war—war of the grimmest sort—and if it can be won on the playing fields of the National Capital, the citizens of Washington are glad to make the sacrifice.

Latest of the series of encroachments on park areas is to be found on the Mall and in Potomac Park. The famed Polo Field between the Potomac River and the Tidal Basin already has been paved with asphalt and marked out as an automobile parking lot for 1,300 Navy Department cars. Four temporary office buildings for the Navy are to be erected south of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool, in an area heretofore reserved for baseball and hockey enthusiasts. Other "temporaries," in the form of annexes to the Navy Department, already have been constructed on the other side of the pool, and a penthouse is being built atop one of the completed annexes. In other parts of the city similar changes are being made. The permanent new building for the General Accounting Office in the block bounded by Fourth, Fifth, G and H streets N.W. will be deferred so as to make way for two temporary buildings. On a site at the foot of East Capitol street, near the new Army, will be placed two more temporary structures. A service and maintenance building, to contain a cafeteria for 4,800 persons, is to rise at Seventh street and Independence avenue S.W.

Washingtonians would view this changing panorama with fewer misgivings if they could erase from their minds the picture of a post-World War I Washington, afflicted with a "temporary" hangover that threatened to become altogether too permanent. It was many years before most of the unsightly temporary buildings of that war period disappeared from the Mall, from Union Station Plaza and from other prominent areas. One or two of these frame firetraps persisted through two decades. Some of the so-called "temporary" buildings were of such permanent construction that no serious effort ever was made to demolish them. The Navy and Munitions Buildings on Constitution Avenue are prime examples.

All that Washington asks in all earnestness amid today's "growing pains" is that the temporary buildings which of necessity are being scattered throughout the city, without regard to long-view plans for the Capital, be temporary in construction as well as in name, so that when a better day comes, this presently scarred and dislocated city may be restored readily to at least some semblance of its original, carefully planned appearance.

Rail Rates Advance

As was to be expected, the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the passenger fare increase sought by the railroads to help meet the cost of the wage raise obtained by the brotherhoods. In consequence, the public shortly will be called upon to pay 10 per cent more for travel, or at the rate of $45,000,000 annually.

Still pending is the application of the carriers for a $312,000,000 boost in freight tariffs, and while the industry might not get all that it seeks, it virtually is a foregone conclusion that some concessions will be made. The higher wage scale calls for an annual expenditure of $331,700,000, and the commission tacitly admitted in its annual report that mounting operating costs would make it necessary for the railroads to get more for their services.

The rail wage increase, obtained under threat of a Nation-wide strike, is water over the dam, but that does not make it any more palatable to those who must foot the bill. It was granted in part against the better judgment of the Emergency Fact-Finding Board appointed by the President to compose the differences between management and labor which threatened to paralyze traffic. That it was not justified in view of the condition of the industry is demonstrated by the fact that the carriers were forced to raise rates despite the levels to which revenues have been elevated by war conditions. And it is to be doubted seriously that the higher rates can be maintained once the country gets back on a peace basis and competition has full play in transportation.

New Guinea Under Fire

The huge island of New Guinea is beginning to feel the fury of the Japanese onset. Almost continental in size, it extends just south of the Equator for nearly 1,300 miles and is a natural bulwark to Australia, from whose northern extremity it is separated by only 100 miles of island and reef-studded water—the celebrated Torres Strait. Indeed, this protecting shield is continued by a chain of islands extending southward another 1,500 miles. Those islands are all part of the British Empire except New Caledonia, near the end of the chain, which is Free French. The eastern half of New Guinea itself is British, the western half being part of the Netherlands Indies.

Intensely tropical, undeveloped except at a few coastal points, and inhabited by savage tribes, New Guinea is scantily defended and is thus a tempting prey for Japanese aggression. Already both ends of the island are under attack. For the past week the chief Dutch base on the island of Ambon has been steadily bombed by Japanese air squadrons, while the last few days have witnessed mass air attacks on the few towns and airfields on the British end, including the capital, Rabaul.

Great is Australia's alarm. Prime Minister John Curtin has announced that the Japanese threat to the commonwealth is "nearer, clearer, and deadlier" than ever before, adding: "Anybody in Australia who fails to perceive the immediate menace this attack constitutes for Australia must be lost to all reality." So grave is the situation that the sending of Australian reinforcements to other parts of the Empire reportedly has stopped, while the recall of crack Australian air squadrons and pilots from Britain, North Africa and the Near East is contemplated. The people of Australia did not need General Tojo's recent threat to crush them without mercy to make them realize that they were in deadly peril. Australia long has been a coveted prize for Japanese imperialists, who have made no secret of their desire to conquer that vast continent and fill it with their migrating millions.

Should New Guinea and its island dependencies, east and west, fall into Japanese hands, the position of Australia would be most serious. Its normal sea communications with both Britain and the United States would be severed, and its almost uninhabited northern coast would lie open to attack. Australia's hold upon this vast region centers in the naval and air base at Port Darwin. The only land route runs through more than 1,000 miles of semi-desert country between the tropical northern coast and the settled portions of Australia on the opposite sides of the continent. If the main sea route through Torres Strait should be cut, it would be almost impossible to send sufficient troops and supplies overland to cope with a Japanese invasion aimed at Port Darwin. And once that habitable strip was in Japanese hands to the northern edge of the central desert, no army of any size could move across those waterless wastes to drive the invaders out again. The reconquest of Northern Australia would have to be made by sea, which could not be done until New Guinea and the Netherlands Indies were freed from Japanese control.

Such considerations will show the importance of the latest phase of Japan's general offensive, which has now spread until it covers, actually or potentially, the whole South Pacific area. This is indeed a bid for empire which must, at all costs, be met before it becomes a dread reality.

Fall of Mozhaik

In retaking the key stronghold of Mozhaik after eighteen days of bitter fighting, the Russians have demonstrated beyond any possibility of successful contradiction that their counterattack is not a mere following up of a planned German withdrawal, but a full-fledged winter offensive which the Germans have been unable to stop.

With the fall of Mozhaik, the center of the German line has been smashed, yet it is obvious that Hitler had intended and had hoped to hold this position at all costs. Mozhaik had been converted by the Germans into a veritable fortress. An estimated 100,000 men had been thrown into its defense, behind a ring of land mines and formidable entrenchments. It had been stocked with provisions and equipment for a siege, and the tenacity of the defense is indicated by the fact that the streets were piled high with both German and Russian dead before the last of the Nazis had been driven out.

superior forces against him. At the moment it seems doubtful that a stand can be made by the Germans at Vyazma. The probability is that they will fall back on Smolensk, and that would mean the substantial nullification of all the Nazi successes gained during the past seven months at such fearful cost in human lives and military equipment.

Smolensk is 230 miles from Moscow, while the Germans, as long as they held Mozhaik, were but sixty miles from the Soviet capital. At the least, this means that Hitler, assuming him to be capable of mustering the men and equipment for a spring offensive, must come back the hard way, fighting a third time for a battleground that he won but could not hold.

Facts and Figures

The first report to the Nation by the Office of Facts and Figures, headed by Archibald MacLeish, is a well-rounded presentation of the progress this country has made toward preparing itself for total war, while strengthening the hand of its Allies.

By and large, the report deals with what has been and will be accomplished, not with what we have failed to accomplish. In the main, however, the picture it sketches is one filled with encouragement.

Mr. MacLeish begins with the assumption that in modern warfare it is "not stocks in reserve but production capacity in prospect which makes a nation powerful." Considered in this aspect, he declared, the country can take much satisfaction in the facts recorded in the report.

The brightest aspect of the document is the confident assertion that the United States, with British aid, can and will outbuild the Axis in planes and tanks, which are described as the two most important weapons in this war. Further, Mr. MacLeish stated, we now have "four times as many combat planes better than anything yet produced abroad, so far as is known." It was indicated, though not specifically stated, that this reference was to bombers, but at no point in the report was there any criticism of American pursuits. This is interesting and possibly significant in view of the Truman committee's recent adverse comment on the quality of our pursuit ships.

The report states without hesitation that our hope of victory lies in the future, yet there is no suggestion of anything but complete confidence on that score. The foundations for a total war effort, Mr. MacLeish states, have been laid, and, while they are good and strong, they are foundations only. "The President," he added, "has told us that we must face the fact of a hard war, a long war, a bloody war, a costly war." How hard a war, how long, how bloody, at how great a cost, depends on how quickly we can erect the necessary structure upon these vast foundations. The answer will be given by 132,000,000 Americans who, never having failed in any crisis, now face the gravest crisis in their history."

Archbishop Retires

When on March 31 the Most Reverend Cosmo Gordon Lang surrenders his office as Archbishop of Canterbury, the Church of England for a second time in a decade and a half will experience a change of leadership brought about by the voluntary decision of its head. His predecessor, Archbishop Davidson, resigned at the age of eighty in 1928.

"Responsibilities of leadership," Dr. Lang said, prompted his relinquishment of his high office. "The times," he explained, "demand . . . ardor, vigor and decisiveness of mind and spirit." At seventy-seven, though he was not conscious of any lessening of his physical or mental powers, he believed that he should step down in favor of a younger man. The war, to which he referred as "the greatest crisis which the country has had to meet in all its long history," unquestionably affected his action.

"Great tasks of reconstruction must await the church as well as the state" in the period to follow the restoration of peace, and the Archbishop elected to retire in advance of that event so that he who will take up the burden may prepare, beginning immediately, for the era of rebuilding.

Dr. Lang, of course, cannot name his successor. That privilege is the King's, and, if his majesty should nominate a man as old as the retiring incumbent, the church would not protest. In other words, the number of years that a man has spent in the world is not imperatively a matter of consequence in relation to appointment as primate of all England. The Archbishop, himself proceeding in line with the example of Dr. Davidson, merely suggests to his sovereign a policy predicated upon relative youth. That his desire will be respected is assured.

Closed Shop Issue Again to the Fore

Writer Says Unions Demand Further Concession Despite Congressional Opposition

By R. M. Beeckel.

The closed-shop issue, responsible for three major strikes at captive mines of the steel corporations in 1941, has been raised again in current negotiations for new labor contracts with independent steel producers. The Steel Workers' Organizing Committee has demanded company acceptance of union shop clauses in the new agreements.

A union shop in the captive mines of the steel companies was won by the United Mine Workers, with little public notice, on December 7, 1941—the day of the surprise Japanese bombing attack on Pearl Harbor. The captive mines were brought under the union-shop provision of the standard Appalachian agreement by the award of a three-man board of arbitration appointed by the President when John L. Lewis terminated a six-day strike on November 22. Ninety-five per cent of the 53,000 workers in the captive mines already held membership in the U. M. W.

The award of the arbitrators was not unanimous. Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corp., who served on the board with Lewis and John R. Steelman, protested the award on the ground that it violated the declaration of the President, November 17, when he said: "I tell you frankly that the Government of the United States will not order nor will Congress pass legislation ordering a closed shop. . . . The Government will never compel this 5 per cent to join the union by a Government decree; that would be too much like the Hitler methods toward labor." The union's closed-shop demand had previously been rejected by a 9-to-2 decision of the National Defense Mediation Board.

Mr. Fairless said the award would force a complete reversal of the opposition of the steel companies to any form of closed shop. It would reopen the closed-shop controversy in all sections of American industry and would cause "unnecessary labor unrest and agitation, with consequent curtailment of production of materials vitally needed for defense."

When the President's industry-labor conference met at Washington after the American declarations of war, the closed-shop issue again arose to obstruct full agreement. Finally the President accepted and put into effect on December 23 the three points upon which agreement had been reached—no strikes or lockouts during the war, settlement of all disputes by peaceful means, creation of a new war labor board. He disregarded a reservation by the employer group that the new board should have no jurisdiction over closed-shop controversies. The employers recommended that open-shop conditions be frozen for the duration of the war. The fact that mention of the closed shop was eliminated from the agreement raised some question whether the new War Labor Board, set up on January 12, would deal with closed-shop cases, but the consensus was that it would take jurisdiction if the controversy in question threatened to impede war production.

Just prior to the outbreak of war in the Pacific the House of Representatives had passed the drastic Smith anti-strike bill, December 3, which included a provision that there should be no change in open or closed shop relationships for two years, or until the end of the war emergency. On the same day the Senate Committee on Education and Labor had reported the Bill which, among other things, would make any new agreement for the closed shop during the emergency illegal.

And the Senate Judiciary Committee two days earlier, December 1, had reported the Connally bill to freeze conditions of employment in defense industries and set up Government boards to determine fair wages. None of these measures has yet been called up for action in the Senate, but there is strong support in both Houses for maintaining the open-shop status quo, as was done during the First World War, until peace is restored.

Discusses Need for Support Of Hospital Services.
 To the Editor of The Star:
 Residents of Greenbelt, Md., recently voted against an annual tax of $1 per family to help maintain Greenbelt Hospital. That, of course, is their privilege. But, being a nurse, I often wonder if people in general should be more "hospital conscious." Only those who work in hospitals realize the tremendous cost of their upkeep.

The wear and tear on linen and equipment is severe, due to daily hard usage, sterilization and laundering. Likewise, the enormous cost of central heating, hot water, gas and electricity, is something which many people would gasp at.

Then, the personnel must be paid their hard-earned salaries. And there are other expenses too numerous to mention necessary for the proper functioning of a hospital. It is true that most patients pay for treatment in a hospital. This is merely another reason why all people should be interested in their local hospital institutions.

With the co-operation of all citizens, hospitals could become objects of civic pride. They should be outstanding examples of the strictest hygiene and sanitation.

New hospitals could be erected when needed, to take the places of old, unsanitary buildings. Through the proper interest of all people, hospital standards would be so raised that even the shortage of personnel would be overcome, as more young persons would be attracted to the nursing profession.

Hospitals could become places where not only the body is brought back to health, but also where the heart and soul receive a moral boost to carry on the strenuous duties of these troubled times.

Thanks Mr. Willkie For Warning Against Complacency.
 To the Editor of The Star:
 Wendell Willkie was absolutely right when, at the Conference of Mayors January 13, he said: "Complacency is as deadly an enemy as Hitler himself. It is by no means sure that we will win this war, and the price of victory at best will be high."

I thank him for saying it.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

It was a bright afternoon, set off unforgettably by a strange cry coming from a locust tree.

It was a harsh, brassy cry, difficult to put into a written word.

It has been tried, many times, by bird lovers, and as near to it as they have come is "chad, chad," which isn't it at all.

If you like birds, you have guessed it. It was the tree call of the famous red-bellied woodpecker, which in some sections of the country is called the chad, on account of it; in others, the zebra bird, zebra back, shamshack and the ramshack.

This is such an unusual noise that it will be heard instantly as something strange by all persons interested in birds.

The suburban sections are the best for hearing it, but it will occur now and then in the city, too.

The red-bellied woodpecker—whose stomach is not so very red, after all—is one of the best of his family. He is about 10 inches long. His back and his wings resemble a Plymouth Rock.

The red extends from the back of his neck over the head down to where the bill begins.

The female of the species has the red of the head restricted to the back of the head, or neck, and the red of the abdomen is very pale, if there is any at all.

Many observers say they never see any red on the lower parts of the male, either, but it is there, although sometimes quite pale, and at others almost non-existent.

This is a nice bird, and a good one to have around, although farmers look askance at it, believing it eats much fruit.

It is true it eats fruit, but there are not many of these woodpeckers, after all. It is questionable whether as a group, they do very much damage.

It is said that they eat oranges in the South (this might be a tip to local bird lovers). Yet investigators, examining the stomachs of these birds down here, failed to find any evidence of orange pulp. Maybe it is too quickly digested to leave any traces.

Persons interested in bird life, who happen to have an orange to spare, some day, might try cutting it in half and putting it out for the birds, especially if there are woodpeckers in the neighborhood.

As we recall, no one of the many letters which have come to this column over the years has ever suggested trying this fruit for the birds.

Perhaps the slightly acid character would prevent most of the songsters which winter here from trying it, and yet cherries, favorites of many birds, including the robins in the springtime, are quite as acid in character.

If any one wishes to try this experiment, we would suggest some above-freezing afternoon. The cut orange could be placed in the grass, not too close to a feeding station, but not too far away, either.

Favors Allowing Mr. Henderson To Control Food Prices.

To the Editor of The Star:
 The Star is to be congratulated on Gould Lincoln's analysis of the difficulty confronting conferees of the House and Senate in reaching a final decision over the highly controversial issue of an agricultural "ceiling" in the price control bill. Shall plenary power to make final decisions in respect to food prices be vested in Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson or Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard? With objective clarity Mr. Lincoln indicates that under the smoke screen of equivocal debate over the "partly-index" control mechanism, two powerful administrative agencies are slugging it out for the investiture of final, plenary authority to dictate and regulate food prices for every category of consumer, producer and distributor. While it was intimated in previous editorials of The Star that the delegation of such plenary authority to Mr. Henderson would be in consistent conformity with our President's announced policy of single-man leadership and administrative control, nevertheless there has been a disposition on the part of certain determined legislators to supplant Mr. Henderson's impartial realism, with control by an agency traditionally responsive or sympathetic to political persuasions and expediency.

Ordinarily a failure on the part of Congress to make its enactments conform with strategy conceived by the President would be but a proper exercise of its political independence and sovereign prerogative, but with our Nation at total war against ruthless aggressors it would appear some reasonable concession could be made to the compulsions of the master plan of our Commander in Chief. When you bear in mind that the Department of Agriculture in the past, consistently has protected the vested interest of the farmer through such administrative agencies as the A. A. A., soil conservation programs, crop control and processing taxes, you honestly doubt if it possesses that judicial, non-partisan attitude, prerequisite to such a radical change of character and purpose, inherent in the effective administration of food price control. On the other hand while Mr. Henderson's tough-minded realism and economic prescience has been painful and disturbing, it has nevertheless had the merit of being dependable and reasonably accurate.

One other argument could be advanced, persuasive of the wisdom of conferring this plenary administrative authority in the hands of Mr. Henderson. We are now engaged in total war in the political, economic, military and ideological sense. Freedom from "want" is the third of the four freedoms the President has declared to be the goal and guarantee of democracy to all people, friend and enemy alike. That freedom from want is measured by the ability of the poorest continuously and dependably to obtain food, shelter, clothing and medical care. In the absence of a mechanism of complete socialization, this freedom from want can be implemented only by compelling the costs of vital necessities to keep within reach of all who through the contribution of their labor have earned valid title to its assured and continuous provision. To insure this involves the creation of an administrative

Most of the insects eaten by the red-bellied woodpecker are bad insects, from the human viewpoint.

This is a good score for the bird.

Some persons insist on calling the red-bellied bird a "sapsucker," which is all wrong, since the bird does not indulge in that taste.

Trees are safe from this woodpecker. Even the real sapsuckers do not do as great damage as is sometimes thought.

Yet it is probably a good thing to chase the genuine yellow-bellied sapsucker away from trees which it attacks, especially from the various maples, of which it is very fond.

Dr. Frank Chapman has the following to say of the cries of the red-bellied woodpecker: "It ascends a tree in a curious, jerky fashion, accompanying each upward move by a hoarse chu-chu. It also utters k-r-r-r-ring roll and, when mating, a whicker call like that of the flicker."

Farmers' Bulletin, No. 506, of the Biological Survey, says of the food habits of this bird:

"The red-bellied woodpecker ranges over the Eastern United States as far West as Central Texas and Eastern Colorado, and as far North as New York, Southern Ontario, Michigan and Southern Minnesota. It breeds throughout this range and appears to be irregularly migratory. It appears to go North of its breeding range sometimes to spend the winter."

Four stomachs, collected in November and December, were received from Canada, and in eight years' residence in Central Iowa the writer found the species abundant every winter, but never saw one in the breeding season. It is rather more of a forest bird than some of the other woodpeckers.

"Ants are a fairly constant article of diet. The most are taken during the warmer months. Evidently this bird does not dig all the ants which it eats from decaying wood, like the downy woodpecker, but, like the flickers, collects them from the ground and the bark of trees.

"In Florida, the bird has been observed to eat oranges to an injurious extent. It attacks the overripe fruit and pecks holes in it and sometimes completely devours it. The fruit selected is that which is dead ripe or partly decayed, so that it is not often that the damage is serious.

"The bird sometimes attacks the trunks of the orange trees as well as others and does some harm. The content of the stomachs, however, show that wild fruits are preferred, and probably only when these have been replaced by cultivated varieties is any mischief done."

The yellow-bellied sapsucker, previously mentioned, is larger than the downy woodpecker, but smaller than the red-bellied. Both birds are barred in somewhat the same fashion, but the head of the sapsucker, in addition to having red on it, also has broad black-and-white stripes, extending down to the neck.

Proposes Use of Steam Whistles To Warn City of Danger
 To the Editor of The Star:
 Back home in Baldwinville, Mass., when a fire or other disaster occurs, the local factories give warning by means of steam whistles. Certain numbers are chosen for the various signals, and the separate blasts that make up these signals easily are distinguished over a radius of 5 miles of hilly and timber-covered country.

A similar system could be set up here in Washington, using existing facilities. Each steam laundry, hotel and the many steam power plants throughout the city could be utilized.

An immediate criticism of this system is that simultaneous use would be impossible. The remedy to this is a signal light system for each whistle station, controlled from general headquarters. After the call to stations was given, when the red light call was given, each time the red light flashed, the whistle cord could be pulled.

One fault with the present system is that in a city where sirens are heard all day long it would be impossible for a person to be awakened in the middle of the night by the usual city sirens and be conscious that disaster was at hand.

 To avoid disappointment and loss of time for those interested in transferring to the Patent Office for removal to Richmond, I submit the following:

I was informed at the office of the chief clerk of the Patent Office that only stenographers are wanted and that there is a surplus of applications for those positions; in fact, so eager are clerks to transfer that some have accepted reduction from grade 4 to grade 2.

This latter statement apparently referred to relatives of present Patent Office employes.

Anyway, there are no openings in the Patent Office for persons desiring transfer to Richmond—rather the problem seems to be to dispose of the large number of clamoring applicants.

So it seems there isn't a dearth of Government clerks desiring to leave Washington, or just what is the explanation?

Railroads Do Titanic Defense Job

Feat of Moving 600,000 Troops Unparalleled

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Now it can be told. A high Government official has released the information that 600,000 troops were moved within the boundaries of the United States in less than seven weeks since Pearl Harbor. But accomplishment of that movement, a feat unparalleled in the Nation's history must be credited to the railroads of America, their executives and their workers.

Nearly all the railroads, involving more than 200,000 miles of track, were used. Seventy-five per cent of the soldiers actually had sleeping accommodations and the remainder travelled in day coaches, so not a single company had to be moved in freight cars, as was the case in the first World War.

This whole troop movement, which embraced travel from nearly every section of the country, was achieved with the loss of only one man—a colored cook who was killed in a minor collision.

For 18 months the War Department and the railroads have been studying this very contingency—what should be done if orders were suddenly issued for mobilization. Mistakes made in the last war had been surveyed for nearly 20 years. There were in the last few months opportunities to move large contingents of troops for maneuvers but the more recent troop movement was the biggest ever attempted on American soil. And it went off with a smoothness that seemed like a routine rehearsal of a long-laid plan.

Resources Pooled.
The colossal job is difficult to describe. It was a mammoth task in planning and administration. The Association of American Railroads, acting for all the railroads, sent out orders and worked on a 24-hour basis, pooling locomotives and cars and fitting in here and there special trains irrespective of whether the load was enough for a train. It was important to move the troops and get them to their destination and the wires of the railroads were so crowded that at times all forms of communication from telephone to relayed messages through various channels were utilized.

The odd part of it was that the public hardly noticed the movement because delays to civilian traffic were the exception rather than the rule. The American people co-operated. Travel just before Christmas was held down to a minimum. The railroads asked their own employees and families to refrain from using their passes. Here and there regular trains had to be put on sidings, but on the whole little time was lost.

What makes the performance of the American railroads even more remarkable is that along with the troops traveled freight cars which bore their supplies and equipment. The soldiers went fully equipped—ready for action. That means they had everything along. To carry this equipment—tanks, guns and ammunition—was a tremendous transportation job in itself. But it was done.

Feat Would Amaze Hitler.
How was such a large number fed? The Army carried its own food kitchens, which were set up in baggage or freight cars. It took an immense amount of planning, but everything went off without a hitch. The troops were moved—some 600,000 of them—and they arrived at appointed places on a schedule that would have amazed Hitler. For it is doubtful whether he has ever moved so many troops so fast as America did.

To the locomotive engineers, the trainmen, the conductors, the brakemen, the dispatchers and the hundreds of thousands of maintenance men who worked long hours and with a spirit of co-operation that was typical of their efficiency—for they have always been in the forefront of American labor—there is a tribute due, and it will doubtless be forthcoming from official quarters.

There was no confusion, no lost trains—every moment in the day the authorities could keep track of every contingent—and the important thing was that the orders issued immediately after Pearl Harbor were carried out.

Just where the troops were dispatched or what has happened since in the way of additional movements are still military secrets. The railroads get half fare for the troops and it probably cost them a great deal of passenger revenue, but when the Government called every thought except the military purpose was subordinated. It was a masterful achievement.

United Nations' Pact and Rio Conference Called Big Steps Toward Winning War

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

The diplomatic events overshadow the war news of the last weeks: The declaration of the United Nations, by which 26 governments agreed upon a common prosecution of the war, and the expected Western Hemisphere agreement, by which the 21 nations of Latin-America would be pledged to sever relations with the Axis.

Both events are great steps in the winning of the war, and arouse tremendous hopes for the future, after the war is over. For we see through such events the gradual emergence of a pattern for a new world, that degrades Hitler's "New Order" and Japan's "Co-prosperity sphere" to the gutter where they belong.

Characteristic of both is the establishment of the principle of equality of right, as between strong and weak nations; and characteristic of both is unity that is not coerced but arrived at mutually, through discussion.

Inasmuch as the chief aim of Axis political warfare has been to drive wedges between prospective victims, playing on all the antagonisms that normally exist between states, in order to separate them and progressively swallow one after the other, these two events, representing the solidarity of the entire non-Axis world, are a battle of annihilation in the field of political warfare—where we have been weakest from the beginning.

Power of U. S. Shown.
Through them both we see the immense political power of the United States; for six weeks after the entrance of this Nation into the war, there exist only six small neutral powers, Switzerland, Sweden, Ireland, Turkey, Spain and Portugal, and the effect of the Western Hemisphere agreement on the two latter will be prodigious.

Let us consider how the United States' power was used. We are overwhelmingly the most powerful Nation in this hemisphere.

Had we followed the Hitler example—or the Japanese—what would we have done? Beginning with Central America, we would have picked off one neighboring state after another, playing up in the process all the existing antagonisms between the states—between Peru and Ecuador, Bolivia and Paraguay, and creating dissensions where none existed, promising our aid to the one against the other.

Economically, we would have planned the complete de-industrialization of Latin America, either taking over all their industries for ourselves, or by ruining their currencies, or by actually incorporating them in our "Lebensraum."

Politically, we would have tried to divide them internally, using the race problems in their countries, stirring up labor conflicts and subsidizing revolutions.

And this, the pattern of Axis conquest, was the pattern designed for the conquest of South America, and the execution of it had begun. The Axis was behind interstate quarrels; it did attempt an economic domination; it did attempt to divide the national groups and the classes of society.

Now, whatever our own mistakes may have been in the past, these agreements now being concluded represent the beginning of a new world. And this new world is based on the conception that the welfare of one is the welfare of all, and the welfare of all the welfare of each.

The economic agreements proposed do not assume that it is to the interest of a great industrial nation like our own to deindustrialize its neighbors and reduce their standard of living, but rather to spread the sources of wealth and use them for mutual advantage.

The huge gold reserve that we have accumulated becomes an enormous asset, because we show ourselves willing to share it.

The proposed removal of tariffs between the American nations is of a sweeping grandeur and the beginning of an economic commonwealth. It presumes more modern and enlightened ways of disposing of surplus commodities—something on an international scale like Mr. Wallace's ever-normal granary scheme.

This point, to be sure, is restricted to the duration of the war. But who can believe that having once liberated the exchange of goods and labor, any nation will wish again to impoverish itself by economic nationalisms?

Higher Standard Expected.
The whole agreement implies the lifting of the standards of living for labor in Latin America, for you cannot freely exchange goods and labor without tending to equalize the standard, and the political consequences of this are quite inconceivable, and will be noted by the masses of the whole world.

There is no space here to go into the details of the whole program. But it has imagination, audacity and grandeur. Its tendency is gradually to lift the standard of the undeveloped countries to our own, and in the future to lift our own beyond what we can at present imagine.

And it raises the question: What could not be done with Europe and Africa, if they would follow this example? What becomes of the new order of domination as contrasted with the new order of co-operation? And what people in the world would hesitate to choose between them?

Let us tell the European nations about it, and we shall see that the most pacific and creative things, here in our hemisphere, are dynamite thrown into the iron apparatus of Gestapo rule and organized loot-economy of Hitler Europe and Japanese "Co-prosperity."

Freedom From Routine Business Details Urged To Preserve President's Health for War Effort

By FRANK E. KENT.

It is difficult to think of anything more important in this country today than the health of the President. Fortunately, despite the strain, it has been marvellously robust up to date, which is all the more reason it should be guarded and conserved.

One shrinks from contemplation of the effect of his illness on this time. Certainly—temporarily at least—it would intensify the chaotic conditions in Washington, give great aid and comfort to the enemy. If for no other reason than this, the recent reorganization of the war-production machinery is of very great advantage to the Nation.

The more the facts are considered the greater is the belief that, after 20 months of stubborn resistance to pressure, the President finally has brought himself to take the clearly logical and essential step. His refusal for so long to follow advice in this vital matter has made us pay a terrible price. It is not possible to estimate the full cost in lost production and time. But, in addition, the President had no right to subject the Nation to such a risk. Had, in the last 20 months, anything happened to him, as may happen to any man, our whole war effort would have bogged down. Everything revolved around himself. In his hands were all the strings. In him rested all the power. None had been delegated.

Absence Meant Confusion.
No important step could be taken except as he directed. No verdict could be rendered not authorized by him. If he were away for even a few days things piled up in indescribable confusion until his return. Instead of one boss there were a lot of little bosses, all pulling in different directions and with a complete lack of harmony. It was bad enough when the President was on the job; it was dreadful when he was not. At least, that danger is past. Mr. Nelson may or may not turn out to be "another Baruch," but, in any event, we will not be thrown wholly out of our stride should the President be compelled to take a vacation.

Even with the new setup he has more to do than any man can do without great strain. His continued good health is of paramount concern, which is why those who observe him daily are distressed to have him take on what seem to be totally unnecessary burdens and weigh himself down with details that could be handled by others or dispensed with altogether. For example, on January 5 he went to Congress and personally delivered his important message on the state of the Union. That easily might have been regarded as a day's work for any man. But not for Mr. Roosevelt. He returned to the White House and, after lunch, spent two hours, as has been his annual custom, in explaining the details of his 1942 budget to some 80-odd newspapermen. One writer, admiringly commenting upon this, said that the President patiently answered all questions, many of which were repetitive and unimportant. Instead of admiring the President for spending two hours at such a time doing such a thing, it would seem more sensible to be distressed that he should thus waste his time and strength.

Others Could Take Task.
That in so great a crisis, with so much depending upon him and with so many vital questions pending and on a day when already he had done enough to tax any ordinary man, the President should spend two hours explaining the details of his budget and answering repetitious questions just does not make sense. His friends, his physicians, his family, the newspapermen or somebody ought somehow to find a way to stop him from doing this kind of thing.

In the name of common sense, if the newspapermen could not understand the budget by themselves and had to have it explained to them, why could not the budget director do the explaining? That is his job; and if he can't explain it, he ought not to be budget director. Or, if the budget director were sick, there was the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau. Or an Assistant Secretary. Or the White House economist, Laughlin Currie. Or any of a dozen other men—any one except the President.

The President has no right to do that kind of thing. He cannot do that kind of thing and give the best that is in him to the great problems of war strategy and policy which press upon him. It isn't a thing to applaud; it is a thing to deplore.

In the national interests, some way should be found to make him avoid cluttering his mind up with unnecessary details and sapping his vitality with valueless conferences and unprofitable audiences. This man is the leader of the Nation in a great war. He terribly needs time for rest and reflection. It is absurd and worse than absurd—for him to be explaining details to anybody about anything.

Australia, Fearful of Jap Invasion, Looks to U. S. and Britain for Aid

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

A few months ago any suggestion that the Australians would have to gird themselves to fight the Japanese would have seemed as fantastic as invasion of the United States by the Martians. Today the threat is real and the Australian government is gravely concerned lest some section of the continent become the base of future operations of the little men from Nippon.

Prime Minister John Curtin has sounded the alarm ever since he came to office. While Prime Minister Churchill was in Washington, establishing the ment of material under the Lease-lend Act. Australia's potential military strength is about 600,000 men, but because of the lack of proper equipment it is doubtful whether more than half that number has been called to the colors. Of the trained fighters—who are among the best in the world—the great majority were sent to Egypt, Crete, the Near East and the Malay Peninsula. They suffered heavy casualties, but because the danger to their own country seemed so remote the Australians continued to send their best-equipped forces to help Britain.

Warned of Danger.
Some far-sighted public men in Australia warned of the potential danger from Japan. However, their warnings won for them only the adjectives "unconoperative" and "defeatist." They were told that in the event of a threat from the Nipponese Australia could depend on the entire military, naval and air power of the United States.

Tokio, Australia believed, was closer to the American naval and air bases than Canberra was to Japanese bases. It was inconceivable that Japanese transports and planes should be able to reach the outposts of the most important British dominion with impunity. And Singapore was only 2,500 miles from Port Darwin.

Now Japanese plane carriers and transports appear to be moving freely in waters neighboring Australia and the people of the island are frightened. The Australians are not disheartened, for they feel certain that the United States will come to their rescue if the Japs do establish a beachhead on the mainland. But they are alarmed and want to see this assistance materialize at once. They believe, like many others, that a few thousand troops here and

Major Factors Involved.
The future direction of Japanese moves depends on whether and how quickly they can occupy Singapore, whether they can take the Netherlands Indies and how large a naval and air force the United States and Great Britain send to the South Pacific to knife at the already thinned lines of the enemy's communications.

Until recently the Australians relied almost exclusively on war material manufactured in the industrial nations—the United States and Great Britain. But because of the Axis peril to the British Isles, the Near East and the Soviet Union, Australia has had to take third place in allotment of material under the Lease-lend Act. ## He Essays Column A la Saroyan

By HENRY McLEMORE.

DELRAY BEACH, Fla.—Off and on for 12 years I have promised myself that some day I would sit down at the typewriter and write a column about anything that came into my head, without bothering to try to turn phrases, attain continuity or puzzle over punctuation, a sort of low-grade William Saroyanish thing, in other words. Well, today's the day, and Henry McLemore, here goes!

Do school children still play baseball in the classroom at recess on rainy days, and do youngsters still put newly pulled-out teeth under their pillows in the hope that the good fairy will leave them a nickel or a dime?

There is nothing more uninteresting than to hear people at winter resorts tell how the sun affects their particular skins. Yet they all do it. As if they were letting you in on a vital fact, men and women make it a point to tell any one who'll listen that they get sunburned quickly, that they don't get sunburned quickly, that they peel first before getting a tan, that they blister, that they get brown as Indians in a week, or that no matter how much they're out in the sun they just get red like a lobster and stay that way.

I do myself. I'm always telling people that with my redeheaded complexion I can never get tanned. Who cares? Is it just my imagination or is it true that the Australian soldiers get the dirtiest jobs to do in every war? It seems to me that every time I pick up a paper the Aussies are being asked to make a counter-offensive in places where the going is toughest.

Wonder where the swell boys who made up the Australian Davis Cup team are today? The last time I saw them was at the Davis Cup challenge round in Philadelphia. Just before they went out to play they stood at attention around a radio in the clubhouse and heard the King declare war against Germany.

Something I haven't seen in a long time is a "no cut-outs allowed" sign on a highway.

Nothing looks so forlorn as a bird being washed in a wash-tub. They shake and they shiver and droop their heads like that Indian in "The End of the Trail."

It's amazing to me that this country achieves such national unity, even in time of war. To travel over its 48 States is to wonder that the stickman at a Las Vegas crap table sees eye-to-eye with a Back Bay Boston dwager, that a Kentucky mountaineer feels the same these days as a Philadelphia main line commuter, that a Texas rancher buys his Defense bonds in the same spirit as a Vermont storekeeper, that a backwoods Mississippian stands shoulder-to-shoulder with New Yorkers who never have been far enough away from Times Square not to be able to tell the time by the Paramount Building clock.

Why is it that when you are motoring through a strange town and ask directions from a native he automatically assumes that you know the town perfectly and always says, "Go right down to Elm street, follow it along to First street and then turn off on Ridgewood drive."

When you tell the native that you are a complete stranger and have no idea where Elm street is, he always gives you a look as if to say, "You don't know where Elm street is? Then you must be crazy."

If there is anything worse than trying to dry on a brand-new towel I don't know what it is. There should be a law requiring towel manufacturers to manufacture used towels, ones that have been washed a couple of times.

My cocker spaniel pup, Cindy, has her picture in the current issue of Look magazine. She is standing between Grantland Rice and me, and friends who know her ignore us and point out, "Why, that's Cindy." For some reason this pleases me tremendously.

Brunswick stew is the best eating in the world, but no one seems to have a recipe for the stuff. If you happen to know how to make it, please communicate with my secretary, Henry McLemore. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Moulmein Immediate Jap Goal In Sudden Drive Into Burma

Capture of City Would Give Enemy Base From Which to Attack Road and Rangoon

By LELAND STOWE, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

RANGOON, Jan. 23.—With their sudden incursion into Burma, now in its fifth day, Nippon's forces are embattled on fully half a dozen fronts in this part of the world. And the wonderment is that, regardless of that dispersal of strength, there seems to be no diminution of Japanese aggression in any theater.

Supported by dive-bombing and strafing planes, the Japanese have launched a two-pronged, full-strength drive to cut off Burma's southernmost, elongated finger and capture Moulmein, important seaport of 70,000 population. If the Nipponese forces can slash between two 3,000-foot peaks, Mount Lwekwha and Mount Thagya, and across a 60-mile strip from the Thai border, they will have, with the occupation of Moulmein, a strategic new advanced air base only 100 miles from Rangoon.

Moulmein's defense, therefore, is likely to be decided by the present battle for Suklo and Kawkarak.

The extraordinary thing about the Japanese offensive against Burma is that although the Nipponese armies have now opened up another front in the Pacific and South Sea areas, they are still maintaining aggressive activities.

Nevertheless, wherever they are striking the Japanese forces are showing great co-ordination and unquestionable drive and boldness.

It is possible that the latest thrust against Moulmein is dictated largely by the Japanese anxiety to clear up the long strip of British-held territory which extends down to the Malay Peninsula, and so constitutes a potential rear-guard menace while their forces are deeply involved in the siege of Singapore. On the other hand, Moulmein in Jap hands would be another forward position from which the Allied essential stronghold, which Burma really is, could be menaced continuously.

Necessary to Hold Line.
It would seem inevitable that the main British forces defending Burma be disposed of north of Moulmein. But should the Japanese capture Moulmein it would then be essential for the British to hold the line along the Salween River to be held with the greatest stubbornness in order to prevent an enemy breakthrough to the lowland Sittang River valley, where Rangoon and the Malay railroad are located.

The Japanese probably are equally anxious to get Moulmein in order to use its airport for aerial operations against Rangoon and the vital first section of the Burma road. If they could base fighter craft in Moulmein, their bombers could be strongly protected in raids on the Burma capital, its port and neighborhood.

For all these reasons, British resistance at the eastern end of the Myawadi-Moulmein road is unusually important for the next phase of the war throughout the Burma theater.

Renna was scheduled to die last Thursday when his estranged wife suddenly announced she had set the fire. Pending an investigation, Gov. Lehman granted Renna a reprieve.

Mrs. Renna later admitted the falsity of the statement, saying it was inspired by a final visit with her husband.

Miss Celentano and her niece died February 28, 1938, when the former's Bronx home burst into flames. The prosecution claimed Renna set the blaze in anger over the woman's rejection of his attentions.

Mrs. Renna later admitted the falsity of the statement, saying it was inspired by a final visit with her husband.

Fairbanks Engineer Urges Road to Alaska As Defense Measure

1,500-Mile Highway Could Be Built in a Year, Capital Visitor Claims

Donald MacDonald is going to get his Alaskan highway project approved or he's going to move the 21 members of his family from Fairbanks to the States, where there are more guns.

But if a 1,500-mile highway connected Prince George, in British Columbia, with Fairbanks, he'd have no worries. Mr. MacDonald, an exploratory engineer in Alaska for 28 years, is a member of the Alaskan-International Highway Commission, whose chairman is Representative Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington. He came here a couple of weeks ago to urge appropriation of $50,000,000 for the project, which he feels is necessary for the defense not only of the Northern territory, but even the United States itself.

Seen as Vulnerable Point. Alaska, he said, is just as vulnerable as any of our Pacific islands. "If the fleet can't protect our islands," he continued, "it can't protect Alaska."

He quoted the late Brig. Gen. William Mitchell as saying, however, that Alaska, if properly reinforced, would serve as a base "from which the whole world could be controlled."

Danger to shipping in the Pacific coastal waters has forced shipping rates up 45 per cent since the war began, he said, urging the overland route.

Some Rationing in Effect. Except for fish, Alaska must import nearly all its food, he continued, and already, some rationing has begun in Fairbanks.

The proposed highway, which he said could be constructed in one year, would be passable in all seasons, although about 10 high-speed rotary snow plows would be necessary to keep it clear in the winter. Besides providing a route for motor vehicles, it also would be valuable in establishment of auxiliary landing fields for airplanes, since the proposed road follows very closely the shortest air route. The road could be widened in places for emergency plane landings, Mr. MacDonald pointed out.

At his Tuesday's press conference, President Roosevelt said, in response to a question, that he was looking into details of the proposed route for the highway.

Elizalde Confident U. S. Aid On Way to Save Philippines

Commissioner Defends Manila's Mayor Against Claim He Has Accepted the 'New Order'

By W. H. SHIPPEN, Jr.
Philippine Commissioner J. M. Elizalde, like his fellow citizens, is confident United States aid is on the way to the invaded islands, whether direct or by assault on Japan.
So far as the commissioner has been able to learn, the faith and loyalty of the Filipinos has failed to crack under the strain of an invasion which threatens to overwhelm Gen. Douglas MacArthur's besieged and outnumbered forces. Corregidor and the nearby jungles and mountains of Batan Peninsula will be held for at least two months, Mr. Elizalde believes, even if fresh troops and supplies fail to arrive. He suggested that the advent of the typhoon season in April will handicap the landing of Japanese reinforcements by sea.

Says Planes Not Affected.
An attacking air force, the commissioner pointed out, could avoid the typhoons, which move slowly while leaving terrific seas and heavy rains in their wake. Typhoons prevalent among the 100 or more islands in April and May move at 12-mile-an-hour speeds while rotating at 60 to 100 miles, Mr. Elizalde said.
The commissioner told a press conference yesterday that the fall of the Philippines will delay the final defeat of Japan at least two years.

He emphasized the importance to morale of keeping the American flag flying over the few remaining bastions in the islands.
Mr. Elizalde, whose father and brothers are in the islands, and whose warehouses and water-front properties have been destroyed by Japanese bombs, took occasion to deny a Japanese report, circulated from Berlin, challenging the loyalty of Jorge Vargas, now Mayor of occupied Manila.

The Axis report said Mr. Vargas, secretary to President Manuel L. Quezon, had accepted the "new order" in the Far East and was co-operating in establishing Japanese rule of the Philippines.

Mr. Elizalde made inquiry of President Quezon, who left Manila with the American forces, and received a detailed reply.

Several days before the fall of Manila, President Quezon said, "I appointed Mr. Vargas Mayor of Greater Manila in line with Gen. MacArthur's plans to have him remain after I was evacuated from the city in order that he might exercise authority to prevent the looting of the civilian population."

"The high commissioner also left Dr. Claude Buss, his executive assistant, as executive assistant to Mr. Vargas. Prior to my departure from Manila, Gen. MacArthur expressed the opinion that officials of local governments could do useful work if allowed to remain in office by the army of occupation."

No Word From Vargas.
"I have received no communication from Mr. Vargas since the Japanese came, nor do I expect any now, but I feel certain he will do nothing contrary to his allegiance to the United States."

Mr. Vargas was described as an able executive with a vast knowledge of the Philippines and Filipinos. The commissioner here said he was certain Americans, Englishmen and other citizens of the United Nations will fare better in occupied areas with Mr. Vargas helping to look after their interests.
"Mr. Vargas has no opportunity to defend himself against the imputation that he is another Quisling," Mr. Elizalde said. "He probably has never heard he is being accused. He could not answer the charges in a message from Manila in any event."

Hanoi Is Identified As Indo-China Base Bombed by Chinese

15 American Volunteer Fighters Said to Have Taken Part in Raid

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Japanese base in French Indo-China which was attacked by Chinese bombers yesterday was Hanoi, the capital, Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Chungking.

Reuters said 15 fighter planes of the American volunteer group took part in the raid, carried out by 57 planes. The others were 27 Chinese bombers and 15 Chinese fighters.

Not a Japanese plane took off to offer resistance, the dispatch added, and all of the Chinese and American planes returned safely.

20 Tons of Explosives Dropped by Chinese

CHUNGKING, Jan. 23.—Chinese bombers cascaded 20 tons of explosives into a Japanese air base in French Indo-China yesterday in the first Chinese move against that neighboring territory.

The attack was regarded by some observers as possibly a prelude to land invasion into the Japanese-occupied colony from China's southwestern province of Yunnan.

The setup of the United Nations' supreme command in East Asia accorded to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek the direction of all operations which might be taken in Thailand or French Indo-China—this in addition to his continuing leadership of the Chinese armies in China.

The Vichy government made no public protest against this phase of the United Nations' war machinery, but angry, unofficial protests emanated from Vichy sources.

Urges Chinese Initiative.

The Chinese press has been urging consistently that the Chinese take the initiative against the Japanese in Indo-China, one of the enemy's great concentration centers for operations in Malaya and elsewhere in the Southwest Pacific.

A Chinese Army spokesman recently spurred this campaign by saying all Japanese troops had been withdrawn from Northern Indo-China, the region fronting on Yunnan. He said the northern area was garrisoned only by regular French and native troops supplemented by similar forces moved from Central Indo-China.

Central News, official agency of the Chinese government, said in a dispatch from a Chinese air base that the Chinese bombers took off into rough weather at 10:30 a.m. yesterday, emptied their racks over the Japanese base, causing heavy damage, and then returned safely home. The Japanese base was not precisely identified.

New York Model Badly Cut In Fall From Train Here

Severely cut and bruised, Miss Frieda Lund, 23, a pretty New York model who fell from a Florida-bound train last night, was recovering at Casualty Hospital today.

Physicians removed numerous splinters from her face and body, and one said he feared she might be permanently disfigured. Her condition was reported as fair.

Miss Lund said she was between the diner and the next car on the train when she suddenly found herself lying in the train tunnel. She stumbled to the exit at New Jersey avenue and D street S.E., where she was found by a sentry, Pvt. William Sisselberger, U. S. A. She was taken to Casualty in an Army scout car.

Seniors said they found bloodstains about 1,500 feet from the tunnel exit. Police said Miss Lund told them she had started toward her coach just as the train entered the tunnel, pulling out of Washington. She said clouds of smoke overcame her. She could not account for the fall.

British Rulers at Rites For Duke of Connaught

WINDSOR, England, Jan. 23.—The Duke of Connaught, 91, last surviving son of Queen Victoria and former Governor General of Canada, was buried today in historic St. George's Chapel of Windsor Castle.

He died January 16 at Bagshot Park, Surrey.

King George, in the uniform of a field marshal, and Queen Elizabeth attended the service.

Conservation of Paper

Every citizen is called upon to see that not a pound of paper is wasted. Demand from every clerk that any unnecessary wrapping of packages or unnecessary use of paper bags be dispensed with.

Waste paper for paperboard is vital to the packaging of a great quantity of war equipment.

Do not burn newspapers, but, when you have saved enough for a bundle, give them to the school children who are cooperating in the defense program with the parent-teacher organization in The Star's campaign for reclaiming old newspapers.

Gem Larceny Jurors Hear More Prominent Names Mentioned

Hopkins, Jones, Mayer Added to Prospect List Of Saleswoman

Names of more ranking Government officials have been mentioned in testimony at the trial of Mrs. Margaret Boyle, 49, of the 2400 block of Tracy place N.W., charged with the theft of $41,000 in jewelry from a New York jeweler, allegedly obtained on memorandum.

The jeweler, Jack Blauweiss, testified yesterday in New York that the defendant told him she expected to receive a $100,000 check from Louis B. Mayer-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc., executive, and James Roosevelt, son of the President, for the sale of jewelry, the Associated Press reported.

Harry L. Hopkins, confidential adviser to the President, and Secretary of Commerce Jones also were pictured as prospective purchasers of expensive jewelry in testimony at the grand larceny trial of Mrs. Boyle. The jeweler testified he never received any money from the defendant in connection with the $100,000 check she mentioned. However, he added, during the last year he received $33,505 from Mrs. Boyle and had turned over a large amount of jewelry to her.

Pausing Story Repeated.

Earlier, Mrs. Mildred C. Fleming, 2000 block of Wyoming avenue N.W., told the court Mrs. Boyle once told her she pawned the jewelry and had not sold it to those she had represented as likely purchasers.

She told of several meetings she and Mrs. Boyle had with Mr. Blauweiss, during which he pressed for payment. She added that at one time Mrs. Boyle turned over $7,000 to her here, this amount being telegraphed the jeweler told the first Mrs. Fleming here about 10 defendant and Mrs. Fleming was to handle the correspondence.

In later months, he said, he gave years ago and that when here last March 14 she introduced him to the defendant in the Brighton Hotel.

Mrs. Lewis Mentioned.

He testified that Mrs. Boyle told him she was a friend of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jones as well as Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, widow of the Illinois Senator. Mr. Blauweiss quoted her as saying Mrs. Lewis thought it was "a grand idea" for her to sell jewelry to divert her mind from her daughter's elopement.

He added that at Mrs. Boyle's suggestion he agreed to pay commissions on jewelry sold by the de-many pieces of jewelry to the defendant. He quoted her as saying last July 8 that if she failed to receive checks from persons to whom she had sold the jewelry she would pay him out of a personal trust fund.

Crew That Seized Jap Ship Greeted as Heroes in U. S. Port

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Jan. 23.—A mutinous crew that threw its officers into the brig to prevent their vessel from reaching Japan after the Pearl Harbor attack was given a welcome as heroes in a Pacific Ocean port today.

The crew of Russians and Dutch aboard the Russian-chartered freighter took it safely into an undisclosed port, authoritative sources reported, and turned the Japanese officers over to United States authorities.

The epic began when a Russian radio operator received reports of the attack on Pearl Harbor. The freighter was only 20 miles off the Japanese coast, en route to Yokohama with 4,000 tons of coal. Rather than go to the Japanese officers, he took the word to his fellow Rus-

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

The Old Fox Finds Another New Ally

It's going to seem strange to have the Yankees and Red Sox playing an American League game in the Polo Grounds, or the Cubs and Cardinals battling at Comiskey Park, but it may happen. In fact, President Ed Barrow of the Yankees is quoted as saying that if the fans back up President Roosevelt's suggestion that more night games be played, the world champions will rent the Giants' park, which is equipped with a lighting system.

This smacks of a bit of high-pressure salesmanship on the part of Uncle Clark Griffith of the Nats, who wants night ball at Griffith Stadium three months of the summer, for Mr. Barrow was, and remains, a foe of the arc lights. Griffith, however, interpreted the President's suggestion a week ago as a "command" and that precisely is the term Barrow used.

The next time Mr. Roosevelt runs for the presidency he is assured of at least the 16 votes of the major league club owners for what he did for baseball in his message to Judge Landis amounted to a favor without precedent. For a while, you may recall, there was some talk of turning off baseball lights to conserve power for defense needs. This was about the time Mr. Ickes was rationing gasoline, too, in eyedroppers. Irked by the pleas for reclassification on the part of some ball players, critics were mumbling that baseball was no essential industry and why should perfectly healthy, grown men be allowed to slide into bases and bat and run at fat salaries while bank clerks and salesmen and printers were joining the Army at $21 a month.

Griffith Justified in Taking His Stand

Had it not been for Mr. Roosevelt's message, Griffith's plan to increase night ball, he admits, would have been junked. At the last winter meeting, when the Old Fox proposed to at least double the limit of seven nocturnal engagements for each club, he was voted down even by the usually sympathetic Judge Landis.

But now the boss man of the Government has okayed the use of electric power. He has called baseball an aid to civilian morale. And he has given baseball an out for, had daytime business fallen off this year due to pressure of defense work, it would have been a lean year for the owners.

Griffith is justified in his concern over the increase of night baseball. Aside from purely patriotic reasons he has a sound selfish reason for wanting to keep the moths flying. In Washington, hub of the Allied war team, Griffith would be hit harder than any other clubowner. No longer are Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces prone to close their desks early and get to the ball game by 3:15. Not many will see their normal quota of daylight baseball.

Night Baseball Helped to Save Browns and Athletics

Griffith has a large investment in the Washington club. His is a private business, no different from a department store or a picture house or a factory. The old gentleman firmly is convinced that no entertainment can match baseball and in this he may be right. At least, he has a great and influential ally now at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue.

Night baseball began to return dividends last summer on Washington's $130,000 lighting system. It practically saved the Browns and Athletics and while heretofore not essential in cities like Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and New York it may well be of increased importance to these industrial centers, also lined up stronger than ever in war work. Because of sightseers, Broadway shows and night clubs, New York would seem to be the last to find artificial lights overlooking a diamond necessary. But with Mr. Barrow weakening it is obvious that he, too, foresees a possible pinch.

Boston may be the only major league city in which actual night ball may not be played. Neither the Red Sox nor the Bees have lit their parks. For one thing Boston is more or less geographically unfitted for much night baseball. It gets too chilly along the New England coast, even of summer evenings. But both Bob Quinn of the Bees and Eddie Collins of the Red Sox have hinted they may play twilight ball. At any rate, more light will be thrown on the subject at the forthcoming meeting in New York, when Griffith undoubtedly will open by firmly reminding his fellow clubowners that Mr. Roosevelt's words were, "... I hope that night games can be extended because it gives an opportunity to the day shift to see a game occasionally."

Lacing by Schaefer Blow to Cochran's Cue Title Chance

Might Have Won Crown In Struggle Tonight With Champ Hoppe

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—If it weren't for Jake Schaefer, Welker Cochran could have ended Willie Hoppe's two-year reign as king of three-cushion billiards by beating the champ tonight.

But all because of Jake, Cochran must down Hoppe not once but twice straight to wrench away his crown, and few in the cue experting business think that's apt to happen. Cochran's defeat by Schaefer last night prevented the San Francisco artist from maintaining a tie for first with the defending titlist, in which case tonight's Cochran-Hoppe match would have meant the crown for the winner.

Because of the Cleveland player's upset triumph, Hoppe can retain his championship by a victory tonight, while the best Cochran can do by winning will be to tie Willie in the final standings, forcing a playoff Monday.

Schaefer, runnerup to Hoppe in 1940 and 1941, raced away from Cochran at the start and after 25 innings was in front, 25-15. The final margin, reached in 37 innings, was 50 to 28, and only a cluster of seven by Cochran in his last turn at the table saved Welker from defeat by a far more humiliating score.

Willie kept his tournament record in order last night by defeating Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, 50 to 46, in 42 innings, thereby eliminating the Mexican from title consideration.

Today Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago faced Chamaco and Ralph Greenleaf of Monmouth, Ill., opposed Schaefer in the final matches for all four. The Hoppe-Cochran bout was the only one on the evening card.

Standings (* indicates completed schedule):

Name	W	L	H.R.	P.O.
Willie Hoppe	2	0	0	30
Welker Cochran	1	1	0	30
Joe Chamaco	1	1	0	30
Ralph Greenleaf	1	1	0	30
John Fitzpatrick	1	1	0	30
Artie Lowbush	1	1	0	30
Arthur Thurnblad	1	1	0	30
Jake Schaefer	1	1	0	30
Arthur Rubin	1	1	0	30

Long Tee Shots By Hogan Cut 7 Off Frisco Par

65 on Muddy Course Gets Him 3-Stroke Lead in Tourney

By RUSSELL NEWLAND,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Jan. 23.—Texas-born Benny Hogan, setting a pace comparable to a jack-rabbit in his native State, was out in front today as the field teed off in the second round of the 72-hole San Francisco Open Golf Tournament.

The 137-pound dynamite, leading pro golfer of the country the last two years and winner of the recent Los Angeles Open for a flying 1942 start, knocked par dizzy yesterday with a first-round 65.

It lopped seven strokes off standard figures for the California club course. Par for the 6,520-yard, heavily-wooded layout is a pair of 36. Hogan toyed with it to the tune of 32-33.

The round would have been sensational in any circumstances. But the Hershey (Pa.) entry compiled his score under adverse conditions. Fairways were soft and in some spots deep in mud. Water stood on the card. Low scores are not exactly new to slender Benny. He had 62 in the Oakland Open last year.

Hogan hits seven birdies. He hit such long tee shots that his ball was on the edge of all four of the par-5 holes. Each time he chipped up for putts of not more than 3 feet. Seven birdies were on the card. Low scores are not exactly new to slender Benny. He had 62 in the Oakland Open last year.

As the leader, Hogan enjoyed a three-shot advantage over his closest rival starting today's second round. Veteran Harry Cooper of Minneapolis came home with a 33-35-68. Another old-timer, Horton Smith of Pinehurst, N. C., crowded Cooper with a 35-34-69.

Breaking par were Harry Bassler, Los Altos, Calif., 35-35-70; Dick Metz, Oak Park, Ill., 33-37-70, and the following 71 shooters: Lawson Little, San Francisco, 35-36; Denny Shute, Chicago, 35-36; Ralph Hutchinson, Bethlehem, Pa., 35-36; and Lloyd Mangrum, 36-35.

Nelson Has Dismal 76. Half a dozen tied for second. Among those who fell back to rear-guard positions were such notables as Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, former U. S. Open and national P. G. A. champion. He had a 38-38-76.

A dismal showing after his 6-under-par 274 and victory in the Oakland Open last week, Nelson was shaky from tee to green much of the way. Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va.; Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, Long Island; Leonard Dodson, Kansas City, and Clayton Heffner, Charlotte, N. C., were grouped at 74. Heffner, who has his trouble in a tee. Two years ago in Oakland he had similar difficulty. This time it cost him two strokes. He batted at the ball, lodged 3 feet above the ground. It bounced up, and stuck, but he got it out on the fourth try and took a six on the hole.

Bulvin, Hoya Halfback Passed Up in Draft, Is Signed by Rams

Special Dispatch to The Star.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—Ben Bulvin, 182-pound, triple-threat halfback from Georgetown, is one of seven players passed up in the National Professional Football League draft who have been signed by the Cleveland Rams, it was learned today.

Four 220-pound tackles and a scattering of backs from various sections comprise the group that is expected to strengthen greatly the 1942 team. Other acquisitions are Jos Pasqua and J. R. Pawett, Southern Methodist tackle; Joe Jeter, Oklahoma City tackle; Bill Shoemaker, Texas Mines tackle; Forrest, Covin, 195-pound North Texas State end, and Jack Boone, 180-pound Elon College tackle.

St. Cecilia's Winner Catherine Tarleton set the pace with eight points as St. Cecilia's Academy basketball team defeated the Sacred Heart girls, 34-27, in a well played game.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Henry Mac Gregor Hunter shot a 74 at Riviera Country Club the other day over a course that is long and a true test of championship golf.

Just a year ago the Nation's leading professionals, including Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret and Porky Oliver, were shooting 74s over this same course in the Los Angeles Open, and were glad to get them.

But Henry Mac Gregor Hunter is just 12 years old. He weighs only 100 pounds, or less, and stands 5 feet 2 with the aid of the spikes in his shoes.

Schroeder Is Next Net Champion, Predicts Lyttleton-Rogers

Great Irish Tennis Ace Declares Play in U. S. Is as Good as Ever

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 23.—Towering George Lyttleton-Rogers, colorful Irish international tennis figure for nearly two decades, predicted today that hard-hitting Ted Schroeder of California would be the next United States singles champion—provided the Army doesn't get him first.

"Schroeder hits very hard, has a good, all-around game and is improving all the time," declared the 5-foot 7-inch Lyttleton-Rogers, who has won 15 Irish championships, a number of European titles and has been a member of 12 Irish Davis Cup teams.

"Furthermore," he asserted, "Schroeder's ability to play well on grass gives him an advantage over players like Frank Parker, Don McNeill and Jack Kramer, who also loom as strong contenders for the title vacated when Bobby Riggs turned professional."

Lyttleton-Rogers expressed belief, too, that the standard of amateur tennis in the United States is as high as ever.

"There are more good tennis amateurs today than ever before," he declared, "and a lot of them are grossly underrated. Schroeder and Kramer and several other young players now coming along probably will become as good as Budge or Perry, too, before they are finished."

The tendency is to compare every amateur who comes along with Bill Tilden. They forget that players like Tilden are the exception rather than the rule in any sport."

Lyttleton-Rogers, now following the Florida winter circuit, said he is making plans for "a super-tennis show which will play benefit matches for the Red Cross," but has not yet lined up all the contestants.

Riggs Goes Into Lead On Pro Tennis Tour

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—Bobby Riggs beat Don Budge, 6-2, 7-9, 6-4, before an estimated 1,200 on-lookers in Butler Fieldhouse last night to take the lead among touring professional tennis players. Fred Perry downed Lester Stoeft, 6-3, 6-4.

In the doubles, Riggs and Budge beat Perry and Stoeft, 12-14, 6-2, 6-3.

Vast Expansion Of Intramural Policy Is Due

Bigger Dixie Squads Planned, but Schools Will Cut Expenses

By ROMNEY WHEELER,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

ATLANTA, Jan. 23.—Intercollegiate athletics in the South may get down to the point of ham sandwiches and day coaches, but you can take it from the men in charge—sports will carry on.

"The impression we've got," says Veteran Coach Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, "is that the Government wants us to keep sports going. We're not interested in quality, now, but quantity. We're trying to get more boys out for the teams than ever before."

"Our teams may not travel in style. But we can still give 'em a ham sandwich on a day coach. The buses still run. You can get around, even though it may be necessary to re-arrange schedules. Until the Government tells us otherwise, we'll carry on."

Talk to any head coach or athletic director in the Southern or Southeastern Conferences and you'll get the same reply: No curtailment until it's absolutely necessary; expansion of athletics wherever possible.

Intramural Policy Expanded. Most colleges have had elaborate intramural programs for many years. All are continuing them with renewed emphasis.

At the University of Mississippi, where two years of physical education is compulsory, Head Coach Harry Mehre declared in favor of a full four years and said Mississippi would expand its program on those lines. South Carolina sounded a similar note.

In Virginia, William and Mary announced addition of several physical education classes; the University of Kentucky, with all physical equipment already in use, announced plans for additional classes. Stepped-up programs also were outlined by the Universities of Florida, Alabama, Tulane, Louisiana State, South Carolina, Clemson, Maryland and Georgia Tech.

Some colleges expressed apprehension for their minor sports. Transportation difficulties drew re-

Survey of Sports Goods Asked By Physical Fitness Leader

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—A request to survey the Nation's sporting goods needs for 1942 went forward today to manufacturers from John B. Kelly, national director of the physical fitness program, who said he had been assured that production of equipment considered vital for morale would be continued if at all possible.

Kelly said the results of the survey would be presented to the new War Production Board.

Kelly pointed out that England curtailed all sports activities shortly after entering the war, but later found this was a mistake because of its effect on civilian morale.

"In light of that experience, we do not want to make the same mistake," he said. "Sports activities are essential in schools, factories, Army camps and elsewhere, just as sports spectacles, like baseball, are necessary for relaxation and recreation."

Purdue Retains Elward As Grid Coach Only

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 23.—The board of trustees of Purdue has voted to relieve A. H. (Mal) Elward of his duties as athletic director, but retained him as head football coach until December 31, 1942.

There was no indication as to whether Elward would be retained after that date.

Noted Horsemen Snap Up Challenge Hurlled by The Star's Equestrienne Team

Spectacular Battle Of Riders Insured At Fort Myer

Horsewomen Are Defied By McClelland, Hughes, Wright and Bogley

By LARRY LAWRENCE. The challenge issued by The Star in behalf of its team of nationally famous horsewomen, Margaret Cotter, Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., Mrs. W. Haggin Perry and Sara Bosley, daring any four gentleman riders, including Army officers, to a match at the President's Birthday Horse Show at Fort Myer January 28-9, has been accepted so quickly by a quartet of top man riders that fifth-column activity on the part of some one in the know is suspected.

The Star has received the following letter from the horse show management:

"Respectfully yours, CHARLES B. McCLELLAND, Maj., Cav., U. S. Army."

So another battle of the century is on. It is a strong team that has the temerity to take up the gauntlet of the famous horsewomen and its members will need all their skill, daring and experience in the test ahead. Not only are the two Army officers and two civilians riders of marked distinction but they also will be mounted on four of the best horses in the land.

Maj. McClelland, captain of the team, is one of the most finished riders that ever graduated from the stars of the famous Fort Myer horse show team for the past four years and with his great gelding Smacko has won trophies and tri-colors in the leading show rings of the country.

As headline performers, this smooth combination twice has won the Scott Challenge Cup, the most important individual military trophy in competition at Madison Square Garden, and during the 1941 season Smacko, under the major's pilotage, won six open championships in eight shows.

Keen Jumping Metal Likely. Lt. Hughes and his great Black Caddy make up another threatening combination. The lieutenant, for several years before entering the cavalry, one of the outstanding riders of the country, and his great-hearted stallion have won one time or another taken the measure of every great open jumper on the show circuits.

Ex-Circuit Horse to Show. The selection of Sam Bogley as another member of the team brings into the contest and expert Maryland horseman and his ex-circuit horse, Ringmaster. This spectacular jumper has a consistent record of clean performances in the Fort Myer arena. Under the capable hands of his owner he is an unpleasant threat to the Star's team.

This group of sparkling riders and imposing horses is one of the strongest teams that could be organized in the country, but it takes on a colossal task next week.

Catchers' Post Is Best Ticket To Baseball Peak, Ruel Holds

Chisox Coach Says Youngsters' Aversion To Work Will Make Receivers Scarce

By The Associated Press. WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23.—Harold (Muddy) Ruel, Chicago White Sox battery coach and one-time catcher for the great Walter Johnson, says the squat spot behind the bat may prove the quickest ticket to the top for young players today.

Ruel thinks that baseball soon may face a shortage of catchers. The reason, he says, is that "young players today just don't seem to want to work hard."

"What's the matter with boys today?" he asked. "Don't they know that baseball teams still have catchers?"

The situation was brought forcibly to Ruel's attention at the opening of a baseball school of which he is head instructor. Nearly 50 boys reported, but not a single catcher was listed.

"The situation nationally is somewhat the same," the veteran backstop observed.

"I've seen young players come up to the majors after a little minor league experience and expect, once they were signed, to sit on the bench until time to play in a game. They don't realize that it takes continued practice."

"I don't believe catching is as hard as it was 10 or more years ago. Today's catchers don't have to handle so many pitches—no spitballs, for instance. There isn't quite as much danger to fingers. And there isn't as much work."

"Take a look at the number of assists of the catchers today, not nearly as many as in the days when there was more base-running. Power hitting accounts for that."

Ruel thinks that because of the situation the catcher's mitt might prove the quickest ticket to the top for a young player.

Public Wants, Needs Racing During War, Swope Declares

Sees Contentment Backed By Success of Florida Winter Meetings

By The Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—The success of two Florida meetings that began shortly after the outbreak of war demonstrated that the American public wants and needs racing, Chairman Herbert Bayard Swope of the New York commission said here today.

"The Tropical Park and Hialeah meetings have enjoyed moderate success even though they followed shortly after the Japanese 'sneak punch' at Pearl Harbor," Swope asserted in an address prepared for delivery to the National Association of State Racing Commissioners.

Feels Public Needs Racing. "When you consider the factors working against the success of these meetings—the temporary case of jitters that affected every one in mid-December, the increase in the Florida tax on wagering and the threat of much more severe fire rationing than actually has been imposed—I think that when the meetings succeeded it showed clearly that the public wants racing and needs it for recreation."

Swope said the first duty of racing and of all other sports is to "contribute as much as possible to the war program."

"I believe we can say truthfully that racing makes a real contribution to national morale," he added.

"I do not regard the word commercialism in connection with sports as a term of reproach," Swope declared. "It is a sport, but it also is a business—a big business. And racing men have long since learned that for racing to be a good business it must first be a good sport."

Betting Totals Misleading. He said the general public sometimes receives a mistaken impression from reading of big betting totals at the tracks.

"People sometimes think this means the track gets all that money, but that isn't the case," he explained. "Actually the fairs at the track are winning and losing that money from one another—it simply changes hands with a relatively small percentage deducted for taxes and for the track."

Banging out a season record of 140, Trudy Paul got the Redskins off to a winning start in their 2-1 triumph over the Alley-cats in the Ice Palace Ladies League. Her set of 340 was tops. The Cardinals sank the Vees with high scores of 497 and 1,461.

George Hoffman was the big shot in the Hyattsville Commercial League with 155-425 as R. E. A. Cleaners took the rubber game from Sandy's Esso. McNeely's 137-378 led Colonial Ice Creams 3-0 win from Rustic Cabineers.

OUTDOORS With BILL ACKERMAN. Few Miles of Unpolluted Streams Remain; Feather Law Meets Strong Opposition.

In every section of the country our waters, from tiny brooks to large rivers, are called upon by industry to carry off waste because it is the cheapest means of disposal.

Because every one, including large manufacturing concerns, is deemed innocent in our courts until proved otherwise, the practice has flourished until in some areas there are so few miles of unpolluted waters left one easily could find it possible to be abashed at man's handiwork to gain a greater profit.

It is said, on good authority, that the Potomac comparatively is free of pollution considering the load carried by many other rivers along the Eastern seaboard. However, the water is not pure enough to allow swimming, which is evidence enough fishing in some areas is out of place, although practiced to a considerable extent.

Here we build great monuments to perpetuate the names of famed Americans and continue to defile the sparkling waters from which came the very foundation of the country.

Southern City Criticized. Down in the Southland there is another large city, young in years but old in the manner in which it disposes of its wastes—the easy way, into the waters which supplied the motive to settle there, and which now often are unpleasant.

Close by is another city that came into existence because of the fecundity of the surrounding waters and whose health department has ruled that fish may not be cleaned at municipal docks.

Strange, indeed, are the ways of the lords of creation. Their rules are made to meet the need of the moment and with little thought to the future.

Feather Law Opposed. The feather law, which the Audubon Society was successful in having passed in New York State last year and hopes to introduce in the remaining 47 States and in our national Congress, is meeting with the opposition of sportsmen's organizations everywhere.

Outdoor writers have taken up the challenge. Outdoor Life for February comments: "We do not recall an instance, except in national case of the campaign for national prohibition, where there has been more hokey, hogwash and misrepresentation. But while the New York sportsmen were caught asleep those in other States see the danger and are beginning to talk vigorously and to the point. We believe that legislation similar to the New York law is going to have bumpy going in the other States. Fly fishermen want nothing to do with horsefeathers."

May Undo Lot of Good. The National Audubon Society, in the years since its inception, has stood four-square—for a good cause, and with every sportsman in the Nation in back of it. This feather controversy bids fair to undo all the good which has been accomplished, because it is the will of a few being imposed upon many without due regard for their rights. Without doubt it will divorce those who through the hard days stood shoulder to shoulder with the society for the advancement of a principle—a reasonable

Maryland Looks to Du Vall, About Ready Again, to Help Travis in Drive on Court

May Get Some Action Against G. W. Quint Tomorrow Night

Terp Boxers, in Twin Bill Final, Set for Terror; Cards Fight Lock Haven

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.
Mearle Du Vall, Maryland's lone court yet who has been playing nurse to a game game since before the season opened, may see some action tomorrow night when the Terps take on George Washington's winged Colonials in their first formal Southern Conference game at College Park.

Whether Du Vall, a heady strategist and sharpshooter, is sufficiently recovered to be of any help against G. W. is a moot question, but yesterday, scrimmaging for the first time since the removal of a cartilage in his knee, the blond Baltimorean seemed as good as the United States Constitution. He bagged four buckets before Coach Burt Shipley waved him to the showers, proving at least that he hasn't lost his scoring eye.

The problem now is getting him in physical condition for he was fagged and blowing like an asthmatic walrus at the end of five minutes in his initial trial run. Shipley thinks another week of hard work may have him ready for the invasion of Virginia a week from tomorrow when he will go far toward determining whether the Terps will qualify for the conference tournament.

Terp Boxers in Trim.
Maryland supporters view Du Vall's return optimistically, pointing out that if he only gets in for a few minutes against G. W. tomorrow night and gets a few shots at the hoop he may give the Terps the edge they need to whip Matt Zunic and his mates. As supporting artillery for Ernie Travis, the big gun of G. W. is prepared to spike, Du Vall will be the key figure. Then, again, he may not even play.

The Old Line biffing squad is in shape and ready for Western Maryland, especially with Jack Gilmore's eye completely healed and that worthy ready to resume his place in the line-up. The hard-luck champion of the year is a wily, formidable Carl Orzelski, the Terror's knockout ace, and will have his hands full, but Coach Bobby Goldstein thinks Gilmore has an excellent chance of winning on his boxing skill.

Western Maryland, which surprised by holding its Down-State rival to a tie last winter, is strongest in the heavier divisions, which leads Maryland supporters to look for a decisive Terp victory. Harry Baker, 175 pounds, and Sig Dense, heavyweight, are carded for a first-round fight with Herb Gunther, conference light-heavyweight champ, and Len Rodman, the heavyweight who has yet to find himself.

Lock Haven Invades C. U.
Lock Haven Teachers' ringmen were due at Brookland this afternoon for a twin-bill fight with preparation for tomorrow night's bouts with Catholic University, which mark the Cardinals' 1942 debut, and the Keystone State crew was supposed to be on par with the best, Eddie La Fond can muster.

Three boys and two girls in the year are coming back with Lock Haven, but the big box office attractions are reported to be a free-swinging 165-pounder by the name of Elmer Huggler and a rough-and-ready heavyweight, Don Blommen. Both are sophomores, but in the words of Coach Max Bossert are "wild and woolly" brawlers.

If either comes up to expectations there will be at least two knockdown, draught bottles, for Huggler will face Charley Riehl, a vastly improved fighter, and Blommen will collide with 240-pounder Snuggles. Snuggles, a heavy-handed puncher built like a baby tank with 16-mm. cannon.

Catholic will be no better than a lopsup against the visitors, who showed good form last week despite their loss to Bucknell.

Columbus' courtmen shift the scene of their activities to Eastern High school tonight—no Tech, remember—where they will meet Shepherd Teachers in a return game. The Explorers trounced Shepherd, 59-30, in their first game and should make it two in a row.

Columbus' boxing team, going to Indiana, Pa., tomorrow night for a match with the State Teachers' College of that place, will present a formidable array of talent headed by Co-Coats, 145; Bessie, 145; Ray Cromble, 155; Romeo Garza, 175, and Jim McAlear, heavyweight.

Garza, Cromble and Tytelman are newcomers to the squad, but have shown ability in training and Miller confidently looks to a successful season.

Callaudet will travel to Towson, Md., tonight for the first of two week end road basketball games, both in the season Dixon Conference. The Blues head back to Virginia tomorrow night, traveling to Bridgewater.

Georgetown, humiliated by Maryland a couple of nights ago, will leave this afternoon for West Point, where it meets Army in basket ball tomorrow. A victory over the Cadets, who bowed to G. W. last Wednesday, could be the shot-in-the-arm the Hoyas need, while a defeat might shatter their last remaining vestige of morale.

St. Albans Frosh Ahead
Although his quint was lipped in its first game by the St. Albans frosh, 17-19, Buddy Stein of Cleveland Park Y. M. C. A. was high scorer yesterday with 8 points in the St. Albans gym.

HAS HOT HAND—Ernie Travis, Maryland sophomore basket center, who has scored 157 points in 10 games this season. He's a product of Roosevelt High and a nephew of Cecil Travis, Washington baseball star now in the Army. Ernie will get a chance to keep up his streak when the Terps play George Washington at College Park tomorrow night.

High-Scoring Orioles To Test Sluggish Eagles Tonight

Rough Going Is Certain For D. C. Club, Beaten In Last Three Tilts

Possessors of a 3-game losing streak and getting nowhere rapidly in their effort to hoist themselves out of fourth place, the Washington Eagles will attempt to check their series of setbacks tonight when they battle the Baltimore Orioles at Riverside Stadium in an Eastern Hockey League game.

It was Baltimore that launched the Eagles' modest string of defeats last Sunday night, dealing Washington an 8-5 whipping. On Tuesday night the Eagles displayed their worst form of the season in dropping an 8-2 decision to River Vale and last night Coach Redvers Mackenzie virtually conceded defeat by leaving home four players as the team invaded Johnstown, Pa.

Johnstown capitalized on Washington's skeletonized squad by taking a 4-1 game. Players left behind due to varying injuries were Paul Coucou, Fred Weaver, Marty Madore and Len Burdage, but all are expected to perform tonight.

Baltimore will be importing the league's second leading scorer in Andy Chakowski and another in Ducky Skinner, who poured three goals past McClelland, Washington goalie, in the last collision of the clubs.

Little Ned Vitarelli again is with the Orioles. Vitarelli, who played with Baltimore for several seasons before shifting to Johnstown this season, recently rejoined the Orioles and has speeded the club's attack.

Washington will play its third game in three nights tomorrow night when it journeys to Boston to face the Olympics.

Bryant of Virginia May Play in 1942

By the Associated Press.
There is a strong possibility now that Eddie Bryant, Virginia's junior back who had been counted lost to Uncle Sam, will remain in school until he gets his degree and thereby become available for football next fall.

If Eddie does stay in Coach Frank Murray's fold for another season, those 1942 Cavaliers will be tough despite the loss of all-America Bill Dudley and the lack of talent on the upcoming frosh squad.

Bryant, who really skims over the ground when he tucks that ball under his arm, might be just the right spark to keep Virginia's T formation humming.

Army Navy Plans Links Change That New Road Will Demand

Part of Sixth Hole to Be Altered, No. 14 To Be Rebuilt; Play Won't Be Halted

By WALTER McCALLUM.
Plans have been prepared by the Greens Committee of the Army Navy Country Club to replace the holes which may have to be changed at some indefinite future time when a new road goes in across part of the golf course. There isn't and won't be, according to Club Pro Allan Burton, any radical change necessary, nor will there be serious encroachment on the present golf course, and any necessary changes can be made at once and practically without interruption to play.

Part of the present sixth hole, including the tee, and all of the 14th hole are involved in the area which is expected by club officials to be taken for the new road. But they have prepared plans for a new tee at the 340-yard sixth hole, shifting the tee to the west and preserving the hole as it is with little change.

Likewise plans have been drawn for a new fourteenth hole to be built in nearly the same area as the present hole, a few score yards to the west, and about the same length. The present 14th is a drive and pitch affair of about 360 yards, with a ditch crossing the fairway 250 yards from the tee. It has an interesting second shot to a plateau green. This feature will be retained in the new plans.

The road, under contemplation by the Virginia Highway Department, will be built to connect with a new road to Occoquan, and ultimately with No. 1 highway south to Richmond. It will parallel the 8th 13th and 14th holes of the Army

Tech Reserves Whip Devitt Five to End Five-Game Slump

With a five-game losing streak finally snapped, Tech High's basket team may come through with some of the promises made by early-season showings.

Some excellent defensive work was displayed yesterday when the Maroons swamped Devitt, 25-16, with reserves doing most of the playing in the second half.

Bob Brewer led the Tech attack that rolled up a 16-1 edge during the first half and took honors with 11 points.

White Is Made Regular Basket Loop Official

Curly White, 24-year-old employee of the Redskins' business office, has been appointed a full-time member of the staff of American Basket Ball League referees, it was announced today. White has served as an alternate official on the loop's staff for the past few years in addition to working various other games about town.

Identity of the Washington Brewers' next opponent will not be known until after the League meeting next week at which the second-half schedule will be announced. The Wilmington Blue Bombers backed into the first-half title last Sunday when the Brewers, their sole remaining contenders, lost to the Philadelphia Sphas.

Firemen Win Another

Manassas (Va.) Firemen won their seventh basket ball game of the season by turning back Company C, 30th Engineers' team from Fort Belvoir, 29-24. Herb Saunders rang up 11 points for Manassas.

Eastern Is in Stride Again, Victory Over W.-L. Five Hints

Win Is Second Straight For Team Losing Three After Fine Start

Two successive victories this week over nearby Virginia rivals have Eastern High's cagers back in the winning groove that earlier this season earned it the longest string of successes yet registered by scholastic basket ball players of this area.

The Ramblers captured seven straight contests before hitting a slump that gave them three setbacks in a row, but they proved themselves out of this by cleaning up over in Virginia this week against George Washington High on Monday and then against Washington-Lee yesterday, 37-33.

The Ramblers had a slim margin most of the way, leading 11-10, in the first period and 19-17 at the half. The Generals, with Courtney Owens leading the way, tied things at 27-27 going into the final period, but they never were ahead, and Mike Lieb and George Piggott of Eastern sank important baskets to give the Ramblers their 4-point margin.

Since that early December day the Chicago Maroons have been bumped into defeat 11 times in a row. Last night the victorious rival was the Great Lakes Naval Training Station quint, and the margin was 50 to 27. That makes seven straight the Maroons have dropped to a foe scoring 50 or more points.

The next Western Conference action will be tomorrow night, when Minnesota plays at Illinois, Indiana at Wisconsin and Ohio State at Michigan.

Montgomery Blair Five Takes 19-13 Contest

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—One of these days some one is going to look way back in the basket ball records and start an athletic investigation entitled "What's wrong with Illinois Tech?" For little Tech, hard to believe, lost a game on December 6, 1941, to the University of Chicago, and that's something.

Basket Ball Fame Finally Prevails

By the Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—When Pvt. Ulysses Brock tried for a position on his squadron's basket ball team at Jefferson Barracks, he was told there was no vacancy.

But that was before they discovered he was the Ulysses Brock. Basket ball record books list the Finger, Tenn., youth as the highest individual scorer in a single game. Brock—he's a regular now—racked up 83 points in 1940 when Fred-Hardeman won Mississippi Valley Conference game from Bethel College.

CHAPTER XV.
Elizabeth, never very strong, collapsed. The wedding of Bruce and Livia was postponed. And when Elizabeth protested, Livia said cheerfully:
"You are my only bridesmaid. A girl's got to have a bridesmaid, or it isn't a wedding."
Elizabeth smiled wanly—and relapsed into silence. She lay for hours without saying a word. Bruce sometimes wondered whether his cure had not been worse than the disease.

"You were right to expose Terry Davidson," Livia comforted him. "If only Elizabeth would get over it. Perhaps if she went home? But the suggestion brought the fever to the pale cheeks."
"I just can't go back there and explain to dad," she whispered. "Let me stay here—for a while anyway."
"Of course, darling—anything you say."

Sometimes, as Livia sat by Elizabeth's bedside, she wished impatiently that she would get better. Livia was nervous and restless. She had waited so long for Bruce, and this new obstacle to their marriage seemed ominous. But she was careful to keep these thoughts to herself.
One day Elizabeth said suddenly: "You're unhappy, Livia."
"Oh, no. What makes you think so?"
"I'm a nuisance, aren't I? You and Bruce would be married but for me—that's it, isn't it?"
"No, Livia tried to make her denials convincing. But it was true. And today she had an additional worry. Bruce was in a plane. His job was to stunt-dive low over the desert. Most of the old-timers in the business had refused the job—even though it paid $500.
"Why should we do it," they said, "we're doing all right."
The air in the sandy valleys between the mountains was treacherous. A plane diving could be sucked down suddenly and destroyed. Bruce had laughed at Livia's fears.

"If I start worrying about air pockets I might as well give up my job," he told her.
A Crisis Passes.
The telephone jangled in Livia's reverie. It was Bruce.
"How's Elizabeth?" he asked her.
"Fine. And you—how was it?"
"A cinch," Bruce said cheerfully. "The only mistake I made was doing it in one take."
"Bruce!" she protested.
He laughed. "I'll be back in two hours."
"I wish he had a safer job," Livia said to Elizabeth, who was watching her closely.
"You're not really happy," said Elizabeth suddenly. "I wish I knew why."
"You're getting fanciful, my child; it comes of being in bed thinking," Livia said briskly.
"Perhaps," said Elizabeth thoughtfully.
When Bruce arrived Elizabeth announced:
"I want to go home."
"Don't listen to her, Bruce. She has a nonsensical idea that she's interfering with our marriage," Bruce said down by Elizabeth.

"You're extremely rude," she said to MacDonald, who nodded absently as though in agreement. He studied Livia coolly, his eyes traveling swiftly over her face and body, finally resting appreciatively on her red-gold hair.
"Your face is too round—but we can fix that," he said absently. Livia's heart raced at double speed. But she said calmly:
"What are you trying to tell me?"
"How would you like to work at my studio?" Without letting Livia reply, he continued: "As a stock girl for $75 a week. You have a lot to learn, but I think you've got something."
"Sorry," said Livia with finality. "But you're six months too late. I'm getting married to Miss Nolan's brother." She introduced Elizabeth.
"Bruce Nolan?" She nodded. "You could do both—be married and have a career. This is 1941."
"I hate the movies," MacDonald was surprised at her sudden outburst.

"Okay," he said getting up. "I'll be in Colorado for a week. If you change your mind, you know where to find me." He wrote his address on the back of an envelope.
"It's a waste of time," she told him.
"Sure, sure, but keep it."
"All right—but don't hold your breath until you hear from me."
"I won't," he promised her, and Elizabeth the movie group.
Elizabeth's hand.
"Bruce will make you happy," she said.
"Of course he will. Why do you say that?" Livia's voice was high and sharp.

Elizabeth's Scheme.
They were coming down now. The plane bucked and thrashed like a harpooned whale. Elizabeth looked so pale that Livia thought she would faint. She was glad when the plane touched earth. And she was so occupied in looking after Elizabeth that she did not notice the departure of the movie people and Frank MacDonald. And she rarely thought of them during the first few days at Judge Nolan's ranch.
It was Elizabeth's idea that she should not be introduced to Judge Nolan as the future wife of his son. "I want him to know you first and love you as I do. Then we'll tell him."
So all he knew about Livia was that she was a friend of Elizabeth's. The judge was shocked when he realized how ill Elizabeth had been.

"Why didn't you tell me?" he stormed. "But that's the way with all the members of my family. I'm the last one they confide in. Do you know that obstinate son of mine—Bruce?" he suddenly asked Livia.
"Yes, I know him," Livia replied, "and I don't think he's obstinate." The judge looked at her. He opened his mouth to speak, but remained silent.

Later, when they were sitting on the wide veranda he thanked Livia for bringing Elizabeth home.
"Well, now you've found me," she said coldly.
"I saw your screen test," he continued. Livia shifted uneasily in her seat.
"Awful, wasn't it?"
"Pretty bad," he agreed. There was a slight pause broken by Elizabeth.
"You're extremely rude," she said to MacDonald, who nodded absently as though in agreement. He studied Livia coolly, his eyes traveling swiftly over her face and body, finally resting appreciatively on her red-gold hair.

"I wish I could—but I have to get back here," he said.
"What for?"
"I'm getting married," Livia said and winked at Elizabeth.
"Oh—is he an actor?" he demanded abruptly.
"In a way," Livia admitted.
"I'm going to bed," Elizabeth said. Livia jumped to her feet.
"I'll go with you," she said. She remained with Elizabeth until she fell asleep.

Livia Reaches Decision.
The next day Livia rode with the judge over the estate. She had been prepared to dislike him. But despite herself, she was drawn to the despotically old man. He was grateful to Livia for taking care of Elizabeth and he displayed his best manners. It would be nice to have a man like him for a father, Livia thought, and wondered what he'd say if he should meet Earl Dixon.
How strangely Dixon had disappeared. Was he dead? She shivered in the hot sunshine.
The next day Frank MacDonald telephoned her.
"You've reconsidered?" he said calmly.
"No," Livia replied vehemently. "Fine. I'll bring over the contract for you to sign."
"You can bring it, but I won't sign it," Livia slammed the receiver down and turned indignantly to Elizabeth, who was reading a book. She started to speak to Elizabeth, but changed her mind. It was useless to deceive herself further. She wanted to sign that contract. Perhaps if she explained to Bruce he would understand.
"I'm going back to Hollywood," she told Elizabeth.
"That contract—you're accepting it?"
"Yes." It was a relief to admit this at last. "I can't help myself," she said, looking away from Elizabeth's clear eyes. "Maybe I'll fall again. But if I do it will be my fault. But I've got to try again. I'd never forgive myself—or Bruce—if I let this opportunity slip by. Bruce will understand and we can be married just the same."
"And if he doesn't?" Elizabeth asked softly.
"Then I'll sign the contract anyway. You do understand, don't you? I love Bruce. But—"
"Don't be so unhappy about it. Go back to Hollywood and tell Bruce. Perhaps he'll see it your way."
"Perhaps he will," said Livia dubiously. They both knew he would not.

Stock Prices Follow Irregular Course in Dull Session

Most Gains, Losses Limited to Fractions at Day's Close

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The stock market opened today without the assistance of much outstanding news stimulation and leading issues shifted over a slightly irregular trail.

There were a few specialties that got up a point or so, but gains and losses for the most part were negligible fractions.

Apathy was pronounced throughout the day and with the ticker "stagnant," as the standstill transfers were around 400,000 shares.

Potential buyers inclined to keep commitments light because of possible international eventualities over the week end.

The business picture was more hopeful than otherwise, although the quietness still was a drawback.

Some Rail Bonds Up. Selected railway bonds joined Latin American issues in a robust rise in the bond market.

Toward the close gains of fractions to 2 or more points spotted the carrier and Southern Hemisphere securities of the list.

United States Governments, in light dealings, showed only negligible price changes.

Erie Board Orders Payments on Bonds And Preferred

January carloadings, the company said, were running about 10 per cent ahead of January, 1941.

Procter & Gamble Reports $6,040,701 Net in Quarter

Result Tops Previous Period, but Falls to Equal Year Ago

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Procter & Gamble Co. today reported for the quarter ended December 31 net profit of $6,040,701, equal to 92 cents a common share, compared with $5,200,035, or 76 cents on common, in the last quarter of 1940 and $6,974,603, or $1.06 on common, in the September quarter of 1941.

These figures excluded earnings, except income made available in this country in United States funds, of Procter & Gamble Defense Corp. and all other subsidiaries except the Cuban company.

The company's investment in the Philippine Islands, including undistributed surplus as of June 30, 1941, was $3,000,000. If present conditions in the Pacific continue, an announcement said, a maximum recovery of this amount would have to be provided at the close of the fiscal year on June 30.

American Hide.

American Hide & Leather Co. in the six months ended December 31 earned net profit of $522,527, equal to 68 cents a common share, compared with net loss of $25,953 in the last half of 1940. Earnings are in Lowell, Mass., and Ballston Spa, N. Y.

U. S. Pipe & Foundry.

The United States Pipe & Foundry Co. in a preliminary report today showed net income for the year ended December 31, 1941, was $2,614,586, equal to $3.76 a capital share, compared with $2,403,804, or $3.45 a share, in the preceding year.

Cook Paint.

Cook Paint & Varnish Co. for the fiscal year ended November 30 earned net profit of $669,227, equal after preferred dividends to $2.43 a share, compared with $581,607, or $2.93 a share, in the preceding year. Plants are in the Midwest.

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Congressional committee agreement on a price control bill limiting ceilings of grain prices to 110 per cent of 1937 prices generated enough buying to lift futures quotations here 1 to 3 cents a bushel to the highest general level since 1937. All grains are priced below parity and thus could advance substantially before ceilings would be effective.

After the initial uptick, however, the market reacted under pressure of profit taking and hedging sales, losing part of the gains. Soybeans, which touched $2 a bushel in the session, fell below the previous close.

Part of the selling of wheat and corn was associated with prospect of larger sales from Government and privately owned stocks.

Wheat, up as much as 1 1/2 cents early, closed 3/4 cent higher than yesterday, May, 1.32-1.32 1/4; July, 1.33 1/4-1/4. Corn gains of more than 2 cents in price to 110 per cent of the close, with May, 89 1/4-1/4; July, 91 1/4-1/4. Rye, up as much as 3 cents one, finished 1 1/4-1/4 higher, May, 88-88 1/4; Soybeans closed 1/4-1/4 lower and oats 3/4-3/4 higher.

Recreation Committee Backs Hunter Bill as Passed by House

Plans to Push Senate Action Without Changes

The President's Committee on Recreation for the District is unanimously back of the Hunter bill as it passed the House...

This was disclosed yesterday by Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission...

The House legislation provision is made to set up a seven-member recreation board representing the three agencies and four citizens...

Let's stop waiting for George to do it and do it ourselves," Mr. Wolter declared.

Hopes for better public understanding of the use of leisure time were expressed by Thomas J. Rickman, Jr., associate director in charge of National-wide defense recreation program for the Work Progress Administration.

Mr. Rickman cited his experiences in traveling to various military camps of the country, indicating that many morale and recreation officers are not giving the men what they want in the way of recreation.

He also said many recreation leaders were not providing the expected leadership in time of crisis. A resolution adopted by the session urged that recreation projects be classed as defense work...

Plans to develop volunteer leaders through special courses were announced among the committee reports.

Needs of recreation in Washington will be the subject of a panel discussion by the council at a luncheon February 9 at 12:15 p.m. at the Y. W. C. A.

D. C. Contests Interest on Blackout Loan

Decision on Whether Capital Will Pay Waits On Fowler's Brief

Whether the District should be required to pay interest on the $1,000,000 advanced under the blackout act for the defense of the Capital is being debated by Treasury and municipal officials...

Final decision is being withheld until District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler has time to prepare and submit a legal brief to Undersecretary of Treasury Daniel W. Bell.

Recently Mr. Bell wrote the Commissioners to say that if interest were paid July 1 the Treasury would accept interest at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent, but that if it were paid a year later the Treasury would expect a rate of 3 per cent. He sent along a proposed formal agreement.

The Commissioners promptly objected and sent Mr. Fowler and A. R. Pilkerton, District auditor, to argue the case with Mr. Bell. Decision was withheld until District arguments are submitted in the brief.

Mr. Fowler contends that acts of Congress authorizing Federal loans to the District state the interest rate or how they shall be determined—except in the case of the Blackout Act, which makes no mention either of interest or of repayment of the loan.

Mr. Fowler also argues it was the intent of Congress not to require the District to pay interest, since the million-dollar fund was provided for the defense of the city as the Nation's Capital.

Jury Fails to Reach Verdict in Traffic Death Case

After deliberating approximately three hours, a Police Court jury yesterday failed to reach a verdict in the case of Walter E. Bayse, 19, of Arlington, Va., accused of negligent homicide in connection with the traffic death of Miss Maria Herndon, 70-year-old colored woman.

The woman was injured fatally last May by an automobile operated by Bayse at Twenty-sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue N.W. while she was crossing from the north to the south curb of the avenue.

Policeman J. R. Milsted of the accident prevention unit testified the car skidded 105 feet, including the distance it traveled before and after the woman was struck. The defense claimed Miss Herndon had run into the side of the car.

The case was continued for reassignment after the jury failed to reach a verdict. Bayse had been held for grand jury action by a coroner's jury. The grand jury, however, did not indict him, but recommended trial on a charge of negligent homicide.

Holcomb Wins Rank Of Lieutenant General

The Navy Department announced last night that President Roosevelt had signed legislation raising the rank of Commandant Thomas Holcomb of the Marine Corps from major general to lieutenant general.

Gen. Holcomb thus becomes the highest ranking commandant in the history of the Marine Corps, whose chief, Samuel Nicholas, held the rank of major during the American Revolution.

The raise in rank was predicated on the increase in size of the Marine Corps.

Sale of Western Market Considered by Commissioners

Sale of Western Market, Twenty-first and K streets N.W., is being considered by the District Commissioners, it was revealed today.

While opposition is expected from market dealers there also some real estate interests have moved to other sections of the city. Methods of merchandising foods have undergone a radical change over a period of years, and consumers do not now go to Western Market to buy food, to any large extent.

Business Steadily Declining

A considerable percentage of the retail business done by dealers occupying market stands is transacted by telephone. Small dealers also find it difficult to compete with large concerns in prices. Large retail food distributors operating many stores have an advantage over market dealers because of ability to insert advertisements in newspapers and to use the device of price leaders to induce trade.

Business of dealers in Western Market has gradually declined, and few, if any, of the tenants in the market now are making more than a bare living.

The District received from the market operator $4,701 in 1940 in rents, and spent $6,507 to operate the market. During the past calendar year the District had a profit of $180, but this was due to an increase in rental charges. Once before the Commissioners planned to sell the property, and the move was induced by the Budget Bureau and the House Appropriations Committee, but when the legislation reached the Senate market tenants and customers presented protests and in the wintup Congress appropriated out of District funds $50,000 for repair and improvement of the market.

Senate Passage Sends Parking Bill to House

Changes in District Income Tax Law Also Approved

The off-street automobile parking bill, passed by the Senate yesterday, is slated to go to the House District Committee, which still has a similar measure under consideration.

A second bill passed by the Senate, making minor adjustments in the District income tax law, passed the House last October but goes back there for action on several Senate changes. It is designed to make the local law conform to the Federal statute in exempting certain organizations and non-profit groups from the corporation tax and substitutes an annual $10 license for the present $25 filing fee imposed on corporations subject to the income tax.

Land Purchase Approved. The Senate also passed a bill, which still requires House action, authorizing the purchase by the President of approximately 25 acres of land north of Arlington National Cemetery for eventual enlargement of the cemetery. During the war, however, it could be used for any other governmental purpose.

Senator Burton, Republican of Ohio told the Senate the off-street parking bill is intended to give the Commissioners the authority to solve in a comprehensive way one of the major problems in the local traffic situation.

The bill creates a seven-man Motor Vehicle Parking Agency to prepare for the Commissioners a program for the acquisition and establishment of fringe parking lots outside the congested area, where motorists could leave their cars and proceed downtown by mass transportation facilities.

Membership Outlined

The parking agency would consist of one representative of the Federal Works Agency, one from the National Park Service, one from the Department of Motor Vehicles and Traffic and four bona fide District residents to be chosen by the Commissioners.

The agency also would have authority to install more parking meters at the curb and to fix rates for the off-street parking lots. These rates would be calculated to cover maintenance and the amortization of the cost of establishing the lots but without seeking any profit or surplus revenue for the District.

Senator Burton, who became familiar with municipal traffic problems while Mayor of Cleveland, stressed the importance of solving the parking problem. He pointed out that the recent 1-cent increase in the local gasoline tax will, when augmented by Federal funds, help solve engineering phases of the District traffic problem, while this bill provides a solution for an equally important phase.

W. P. A. to Aid Workers Hit by War Program

Protection for those made jobless because civilian goods production has given way to the war program was assured today by the Work Projects Administration.

Commissioner Howard O. Hunter disclosed that the W. P. A. is co-operating with the Social Security Agency and will make jobs available to temporary victims of the conversion of factories for war production, in cases where the worker is ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

Effective Feb. 1, Federal employment offices will certify such workers to W. P. A. Mr. Hunter estimated his agency could take care of 100,000 and said if necessary he would ask Congress for additional funds.

NARROW ESCAPES—Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Needle and their 14-month-old daughter Frances composed one of two families awakened in time to escape asphyxiation early today after an intruder had extinguished gas stove pilot lights and turned on all burners.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton S. Williams and their 7-month-old daughter Patricia had a similar experience. An overcoat found outside a window of their first-floor apartment is being held by police as principal clue.

Intruder Turns on Gas in Apartments; 2 Families Imperiled

Suspect, Believed to Be Insane, Escapes From Pursuers Here

Two families narrowly escaped death by gas early today after a person believed by police to be insane entered their first-floor apartments and turned on all burners of the kitchen stove.

Shortly afterward a suspect was seized across the street from one of the homes but escaped. The intended victim were Mr. and Mrs. Carlton S. Williams, 1227 Eighteenth place N.E., and their 7-month-old daughter Patricia. Mrs. Williams told police she awakened about 3 a.m. and smelled gas. She roused her husband, a War Department employe, and the infant. The pilot lights of the kitchen stove and water heater were found to have been turned off. The intruder, who had opened an unlocked front window to enter, had turned on the four stove burners, but had been foiled in his attempt to turn on the main heater because of an automatic feature.

Only a set of automobile keys was reported to be missing from the apartment. The car was not taken. An overcoat, held by police as the principal clue, was discovered outside the apartment.

At about the same time Mrs. Phillip Needle, wife of a clothing store proprietor, was awakened in their apartment at 1018 Eighteenth street N.E.

Smelling gas, she aroused her husband. After throwing open windows they awakened their 15-month-old daughter, Frances. The pilot light of the kitchen stove had been extinguished, and gas was flowing from five burners. Entrance had been gained by removing a screen from a front window which had been open.

Mr. Needle, an auxiliary policeman, called his upstairs neighbor, Robert Smart, and they began scouring the neighborhood. About 4:30 a.m., as they returned, they noticed a young colored man, they noticed the man when they noticed him. Mr. Needle said he overtook the man, who was not wearing an overcoat, and struck him with a heavy flashlight. The suspect struck back and fled. The pursuers lost him four blocks away.

Nothing was missing from the Needle apartment. All of the adults felt dazed for a time after awakening but suffered no other apparent ill effects.

The incidents were similar to one in the same neighborhood November 21. Mrs. Helen Cleveland Hoffman, a Government stenographer living at 417 Eighteenth street N.E., reported to police she and her 9-year-old daughter Joan had been awakened about 4 a.m. and found a young colored man sitting on the kitchen window sill. Mrs. Hoffman said she found the gas stove burners had been turned on.

Gasoline Price Hiked Fraction of Cent Here and in 15 States

O. P. A. Authorizes Boost To Offset Increased Transportation Cost

The price of all grades of gasoline advanced three-tenths of a cent per gallon in the District and 15 Eastern and Southern States at midnight last night under an authorization by the Office of Price Administration.

The rise, it was said, is to offset increased transportation expenses caused by use of tank cars instead of tankers to bring oil to this section from the Southwest.

During the Eastern oil shortage last fall, brought on by the conversion of tankers to England, Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes and Leon Henderson, price administrator, assured oil companies they would be reimbursed for additional expenses incurred by hauling oil by rail, pipe line or barge.

In his order allowing the gasoline advance, Mr. Henderson said the O. P. A. reserves the right to place the increased costs on other products or to make any other means of adjustment to meet the added expenses.

Seized Americans Face Internment at Kobe

TOKIO, Jan. 23 (Official Broadcast)—A total of 134 United States civilians who arrived at Zentsu Shikoku Island with American prisoners of war from Guam will be interned soon in the Seamen's Mission at Kobe.

Conservation of Paper

Every citizen is called upon to see that not a pound of paper is wasted. Demand from every source for more efficient and economical wrapping of packages or unnecessary use of paper bags be dispensed with.

Waste paper for paperboard is vital to the packaging of a great quantity of war equipment. Do not burn newspapers, but when you have saved enough for a bundle, give them to the school children who are co-operating in the defense program with the parent-teacher organization in the Star's campaign for reclaiming old newspapers.

Club President Hits Attitude of U. S. Women

Federation Head Criticizes 'Selfish' Defense Efforts

Scolding the women of America for their attitude toward defense, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, told 500 members and officials of her organization today that the womanhood of the United States was "apathetic" before Pearl Harbor and since then has lost ability for "quiet, intelligent reasoning."

"In 20 years of activity in women's organizations I have never known women to quarrel so bitterly over supremacy of leadership" in defense work, she reported.

"The majority want to be generals, but few want to work without honor of some kind," Mrs. Whitehurst, a resident of Baltimore, told the group gathered at the Mayflower Hotel for a board meeting and defense forum. She is a member of the Advisory Council to the Women's Interest Section of the War Department and serves on the National Advisory Board of the Red Cross. She complains she has heard too often the questions:

"Who is to be boss?" "Will I head the division?" "May I wear a uniform?" "Will I receive a certificate?"

Selfishness Held Dominant. Selfishness is dominating our people today, she said in her presidential report. She pointed out that "Hitler has stated many times that we would fight among ourselves until we would weaken our defense mechanism. This is happening in our great country today."

Mrs. Whitehurst told her officials they should "organize" groups in each of the 16,000 communities which we have federated clubs and start an educational campaign to imbue our people with something more than materialistic thinking. Suggesting that Americans stop using such expressions as "slap the Japs" and "Fight the Hun" as developing a hate complex, the organization president demanded that we "send our boys into battle, if necessary, with the song, 'Onward Christian Soldiers.'"

Continuing her criticism, Mrs. Whitehurst declared that the introduction of politics in the "set-up" is retarding American preparedness. She protested however, that much criticism was unjustified and specifically mentioned that directed against Mrs. Roosevelt and Mayor La Guardia, director of civilian defense.

Other Work Just as Vital. She claimed this developed from undue impatience after Pearl Harbor and described the situation as follows:

"Thousands rushed to the Red Cross for first-aid courses. Requests came in for training for ambulance drivers, nurses and aviators. Women had lost their quiet, intelligent reasoning. You could not convince them that the housing, consumer, agricultural, and conservation programs were just as vital as the more spectacular activities."

"They did not realize that such programs probably would be needed long before first aid, ambulance driving, nursing, or aviation. The Red Cross needed nurses' training. This means hard work in the hospital and it did not have the same appeal."

"This excitement lasted about one week and then apathy again manifested itself," she declared. She reported that even after Pearl Harbor the Federation of Women's Clubs should not work on any defense plans. Following a tour she made of 15 States, Mrs. Whitehurst recalled receiving many letters "stating that she must be on the pay roll of Mr. Roosevelt, just to know."

"It may interest you to know," she said, "that a number of women wrote that they prayed for me each night because I could not seem to comprehend that all talk about defense was propaganda."

La Guardia, Secretary of Navy Knox, Brig. Gen. Frank E. Lowe and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Hinkley. Mrs. Roosevelt will preside at a civilian defense forum at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The convention, opening today, will continue through Monday.

Overton Opposes Locating New Buildings in Play Areas

Senator Overton, Democrat of Louisiana today expressed hope that the public building authorities would erect the necessary temporary office structures here without cutting into recreational space in the park areas.

The Senator, a member of the District Committee, said he felt sure there is enough ground in Washington, especially in slum areas, that could be obtained quickly for the buildings. He said that would be advisable even though other housing accommodations would have to be provided by the Alley Dwelling Authority for the families now living in those areas.

Senator Overton said he was not favoring taking Soldiers' Home grounds for building purposes against the will of the veterans, but believed there might be more ground there than is needed for the home and hoped some satisfactory arrangement could be worked out.

White House Press Corps Cancels Annual Dinner

The annual dinner of the White House Correspondents' Association has been canceled because the guest of honor, President Roosevelt, would have been unable to attend because of the war.

The dinner would have been held early in March, but a committee of correspondents informed the Chief Executive today that it was being called off and he agreed that was best.

Wysor Renamed To Road Board By Gov. Darden

Assembly Groups Begin Study of Three Measures

By the Associated Press.
RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 23.—Acting within 24 hours of the resignation of Lee Long of Dante, Gov. Darden today appointed J. Frank Wysor of Pulaski, to his old place on the Virginia State Highway Commission.

Mr. Long was appointed by former Gov. Price to succeed Mr. Wysor but resigned yesterday because he said it was clear his appointment would not be confirmed by the General Assembly. At Gov. Darden's request, Mr. Long made his resignation effective February 1.

Mr. Wysor was the third State official to return to his former post, after temporary displacement during Gov. Price's administration, since the present Governor was inaugurated.

Saunders and Combs Named.
Col. Peter Saunders was named executive secretary to the Governor again and E. R. Combs resumed his former post as chairman of the State Compensation Board.

Gov. Darden, however, late yesterday announced the reappointment of Dabney S. Lancaster as State superintendent of public instruction, to which he had been named by Mr. Price on the resignation of Dr. Sidney B. Hall a few months ago. The superintendent's term runs concurrently with that of the Governor.

The General Assembly, meanwhile, was rapidly swinging into stride. Sessions of both Houses beginning at noon were sandwiched between committee meetings, including another joint session of the House appropriations and Senate finance groups at 3 p. m. for further public hearings on the budget bill.

Senators William A. Wright of Essex and Aubrey G. Weaver of Warren offered a joint resolution today to put the Legislature on record for the defense of a constructive session as opposing diversion of highway revenues to purposes other than roads.

The declaration, similar to one adopted by the Assembly of 1940, would reiterate the position that all revenues derived from taxes on motor fuels and from motor vehicle registration fees and licenses, after deductions for refunds and other necessary expenses, should be "used solely and exclusively for the construction, reconstruction, maintenance and repair of public highways and bridges and for the necessary policing thereof."

A resolution introduced in 1940 calling for a constitutional amendment to prohibit road diversions was killed, but the resolution, expressing the view of the Assembly on the question went through easily.

Will Get Defense Plan Soon.
The Assembly will receive soon—possibly the first of next week—legislation carrying out Gov. Darden's plan to vest full authority for civilian defense in city and county officials.

The Governor himself will head the civilian defense organization, he explained at a press conference yesterday, with a capable liaison man to handle details with the officials of the 100 counties and 24 cities. He sketched for newspapermen his proposed setup to replace the State and regional defense councils established by Mr. Price.

Other major points he stressed were plans to relieve the Virginia protective force of guard duty on highways; stronger enforcement of traffic laws to reduce deaths on the highways; a maximum speed limit of 40 or 45 miles per hour; conviction and punishment—with no hope of pardons—of drunken drivers, and positive outlawing of slot machines.

In discussing the new defense setup, Gov. Darden said he would propose that the Arlington-Alexandria-Fairfax area be included in the District of Columbia defense area, provided the District of Columbia will assume responsibility.

At a conference with municipal and county officials yesterday Gov. Darden asked that committees named to consider the necessary legislation for the new setup have their bills ready Monday.

State Council Unlikely.
Meeting with approximately 30 representatives of Virginia cities to chart the future of the State's civilian defense machinery, the Governor specifically advised against a multiplicity of citizen councils and said he doubted "very seriously" if he would re-establish a State defense council.

City Attorney Horace H. Edwards of Richmond said cities were "afraid" that under the council setup the regional defense agencies would come in and tell city officials what to do with their fire departments, police departments and other personnel and equipment.

Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville yesterday offered a bill to repeal the State's 1940 alcoholic beverage taxes.

Mr. Moore said the State Tax Department estimated repeal of the 30 per cent sales tax on liquor and wine, and the 10 per cent tax on beer on beer selling for more than 10 cents a bottle would cut down the State's revenue, on the present basis, by approximately $2,700,000 a year.

Mr. Darden advocated repeal of the taxes in the interest of eliminating bootlegging.

Compensation Bill.
Delegates E. T. Humphries and James N. Garrett of Norfolk County offered a bill to carry out Gov. Darden's recommendation for extension of Workmen's Compensation Act coverage to employers of three or more persons, compared with the present 11 or more.

A second bill by Delegates Humphries, Garrett and William McL. Ferguson of Newport News would increase the maximum compensation under the act from $16 to $18 a week.

Another bill in line with the new Governor's program was introduced

Greenbelt Receives Grant of $400,000 To Construct Schools

Additional Allotment Of $13,575 Provided For Maintenance

The Federal Works Agency today announced a $400,000 grant for school construction at Greenbelt, bringing construction allotments for Prince Georges County to $920,000 this year.

An additional allotment of $13,575 has been granted by the F. W. A. to the County Board of Education for maintenance and operations of the Greenbelt schools during the coming year, according to word received today by County School Supt. Nicholas Orem.

The construction at Greenbelt will include a 16-room elementary school with a combination auditorium-gymnasium and auxiliary facilities, and a permanent 6-room addition and an auditorium to the present high school, the announcement stated.

The award was made at the request of the Farm Security Administration, which said present school facilities were inadequate for the large influx of school children resulting from the defense program. The Greenbelt project will augment another program of construction in the county, which will be financed by an allotment of $22,000 by the F. W. A. and $298,000 in county funds for new 7-room schools with libraries at Forestville, Latham, Wildercrest and Ager road in West Hyattsville, and 7-room additions with libraries to the existing schools at Suitland, Takoma Park and Bradbury Heights.

The grant of $13,575 by the F. W. A. will increase the County School Board's budget for unanticipated cost of training new students.

P.-T. A. Enters Fight Against Penny Arcades

Voicing objection to operation of penny arcades in Takoma Park and Silver Spring, Md., the Montgomery Blair Senior High School Parent-Teacher Association has voted to ask the Board of County Commissioners not to renew licenses or grant new licenses to establishments of this type.

Members of the association contend that the amusement places encourage gambling among children and, in some instances, children stay away from school to play the games. Letters will be written to all civic, service and parent-teacher associations in the area and the Takoma Park Town Council asking support in opposing the arcades.

Ministers of Silver Spring, in a letter to the county commissioners this week, branded arcades as "a contributing factor to juvenile delinquency." Signed by six clergymen, the communication urges refusal of licenses.

The Silver Spring Citizens' Association also has protested such enterprises, and is taking steps to have legislation drafted prohibiting penny arcades in the suburban area.

Traders' licenses expire May 1.

to reduce the legal interest rate chargeable by small loan companies from 3 1/2 to 2 per cent a month, or from 40 to 24 per cent a year. Gov. Darden suggested a reduction to 20 per cent a year.

House Approves Funds for Two Highways

Independent Offices Bill Increases Sum To Maintain Buildings

Appropriation of $200,000 for an improvement to the George Washington Memorial Parkway and $89,839 for the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway are contained in the independent offices appropriations bill approved by the House yesterday.

The parkway bill will be used to "acquire a strip along the Potomac River in Virginia between Spout Point, above Key Bridge, the present terminus of the parkway, and Chain Bridge," the House Appropriations Committee said in reporting the measure. The strip comprises about 2 1/2 miles of river front, approximately 400 feet wide, and contains some 145 acres of land.

The Mount Vernon highway expenditure would be used to acquire "such additional lands adjacent to the highway as may be necessary for the protection and preservation of the memorial character" of the highway, the committee stated.

An increase of almost $2,000,000 in the appropriations for administration, protection and maintenance of public buildings in the District and adjacent areas also was included. These additional funds will be used by the Federal Works Agency in providing guards, janitors and other custodial employees to operate buildings now being constructed or rented for the expanding defense program.

No Public Buildings Money.
No money was provided in the measure for construction of public buildings in the District. Last year the independent offices appropriation carried $34,720,000 for such construction.

A boost of $5,036,913 in the appropriations for the Civil Service Commission was provided. The commission's total allowance of $120,195,935 would include $105,258,000 for the civil service retirement disability fund and $146,908 for national defense activities. The retirement fund recommendations call for an increase of more than $4,000,000.

Appropriation provisions for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission also cut out a decrease of $400,000—while the Smithsonian Institution would be given an increase of $22,083. Of this amount $1,088 would be used for preservation of collections and $8,065 for libraries and expenses of the National Art Gallery. More than $7,000 of this increase would be for promotions under the Ranspact Act.

The bill earmarks $500,000 of the $4,875,000 appropriation for hospital care at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center. The Veterans' Administration for use in completing the hospital at Fort Howard, Md.

The Appropriations Committee disallowed an estimate of $2,000,000 for construction of the new General Services Office. Public Buildings Administration officials had informed the committee that, because of the emergency, the time schedule for construction of the G. A. O. Building had been disturbed and the estimate could be eliminated.

Site Appropriation Deleted.
The committee also cut out an estimate of $500,000 for acquisition of a site for the Army Medical Library and Museum and recommended that approval of this item be deferred until after the emergency.

The trust account appropriations the sum of $211,137,575 is carried for the civil service retirement and disability fund. This is an increase of $19,376,373. This appropriation was not included in the bill, since it comes from permanent trust funds previously enacted.

The committee report showed that John Ihler, executive officer of the Alley Dwelling Authority, testified at the committee's hearings regarding defense housing.

"In this work," he said, "the Alley Dwelling Authority has been appointed as the agent of the Federal Works Agency in the construction and management of 550 dwellings for national defense workers in the District of Columbia."

During the construction period, Mr. Ihler pointed out, the A. D. A. pays construction costs by means of funds held in a suballotment account of the Federal Works Agency. Mr. Ihler said the Authority was not seeking at this time any other funds than those regularly authorized by Congress. This amounts to $1,000,000 a year, beginning in 1939 and continuing for five years and to be borrowed from the Treasury.

Air-Raid Survivor Warns of Danger Of Falling Shrapnel

Apt to Cause Greater Casualties Than Bombs, Dr. Salzman Says

During an air raid shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns is much more dangerous to the man in the street than the bombs of enemy planes, according to Dr. Leon Salzman, recently appointed assistant Montgomery County health officer, who has been through several and almost became a casualty in one.

Dr. Salzman also recalls sleeping through an air raid, even though the hotel in which he was staying was on fire.

The instructions to get under cover during an air raid, even if you are driving your car, cannot be stressed too much, Dr. Salzman explained. Otherwise casualties from falling shrapnel will be greater than from enemy bombs.

Close Call in Bristol.
After graduating from City College of New York, Dr. Salzman attended the Medical College of the University of Glasgow, completing his course in June, 1940. As chairman of a committee to arrange for the return of approximately 125 medical students and other Americans in Great Britain, he visited various cities to confer with officials in Bristol he had his first close call during heavy German air raids.

Never having experienced a full scale raid, he walked some distance from the underground shelter to the distance and then the British anti-aircraft batteries opening up deafening barrage. Nothing happened for a few moments until he heard things striking the ground around him. It sounded a little like hail at first, he recalled. Just then somebody grabbed him by the arm and hustled him back to the shelter as the full force of the shrapnel fired at the enemy raiders began falling.

"A medium sized piece would have enough force to kill a person instantly," he said.

Slept Through Fire.
After several weeks of that, during which he never had a whole night's sleep, Dr. Salzman and a fellow student determined they would sleep in their London hotel room, rather than go through another night in a shelter. During the night incendiary bombs set the hotel afire and employees tried to awaken them.

"We were so tired that we could not even get out of bed and they finally let us alone," he said.

Dr. Salzman returned here in October, 1940, and after his internship at Metropolitan Hospital in New York, was appointed to the United States Public Health Service as assistant to County Health Officer V. L. Elliott at Rockville. He will join the health division of the county civilian defense organization headed by Dr. Dexter Bullard in addition to his county health duties.

Invocation by Bishop Freeman.

Senate Passage Sends Parking Bill to House

Changes in District Income Tax Law Also Approved

The off-street automobile parking bill, passed by the Senate yesterday, is slated to go to the House District Committee, which still has a similar measure under consideration.

A second bill passed by the Senate, making minor adjustments in the District income tax law, passed the House last October but goes back there for action on several Senate changes. It is designed to make the local law conform to the Federal statute in exempting certain organizations and non-profit groups from the corporation tax and substitutes an annual $10 license for the present $25 filing fee imposed on corporations subject to the income tax.

Land Purchase Approved.
The Senate also passed a bill, which still requires House action, authorizing the purchase by the President of approximately 25 acres of land north of Arlington National Cemetery for eventual enlargement of the cemetery. During the war, however, it could be used for any other governmental purpose.

Senator Burton, Republican of Ohio, told the Senate the off-street parking bill is intended to give the Commissioners the authority to solve in a comprehensive way one of the major problems in the local traffic situation.

The bill creates a seven-man Motor Vehicle Parking Agency to prepare for the Commissioners a program for the acquisition and establishment of fringe parking lots outside the congested area, where motorists could leave their cars and proceed downtown by mass transportation facilities.

Membership Outlined.
The parking agency would consist of one representative of the Federal Works Agency, one from the National Park Service, one from the Department of Motor Vehicles and Traffic and four bona fide District residents to be chosen by the Commissioners.

The agency also would have authority to install more parking meters at the curb and to fix rates for the off-street parking lots. These rates would be calculated to cover maintenance and the amortization of the cost of establishing the lots but without seeking any profit or surplus revenue for the District.

Senator Burton, who became familiar with municipal traffic problems while Mayor of Cleveland, stressed the importance of solving the parking problem. He pointed out that the recent 1-cent increase in the local gasoline tax will, when augmented by Federal funds, help solve engineering phases of the District traffic problem, while this bill will provide a solution for an equally important phase.

Virginians Hear Talk On Crop Needs for War

By the Associated Press.
STAUNTON, Va., Jan. 23.—Dr. T. B. Hutcheson of Blacksburg told the Virginia Crop Improvement Association yesterday that increased production in wheat, cotton and tobacco were not essential now but that the food requirements of the United States and her allies must be met.

Dr. Hutcheson, speaking on the program in place of his brother, Dr. John R. Hutcheson, extension director at V. P. I., who was unable to attend, said the Federal Government was trying to avoid some of the mistakes of World War I when wheat at $2.50 a bushel caused misuse of land which necessitated expensive soil-conservation work.

John S. Ward of Loudoun County, president, presided.

Conservation of Paper

Every citizen is called upon to see that not a pound of paper is wasted. Demand from every clerk that any unnecessary wrapping of packages or unnecessary use of paper bags be dispensed with.

Waste paper, for paperboard is vital to the packaging of a great quantity of war equipment.

Do not burn newspapers, but, when you have saved enough for a bundle, give them to the school children who are cooperating in the defense program with the parent-teacher organization in the Star's campaign for reclaiming old newspapers.

Two More Film Stars Are Coming Here for Birthday Ball

Gene Raymond and Carol Bruce to Take Part In Annual Event

Gene Raymond and Carol Bruce were added today to the list of Hollywood stars who plan to come here for the celebration of the President's birthday in the annual campaign for funds to aid in the Nation's fight against infantile paralysis.

Most of the stars will arrive on a special train Thursday and that evening will ride in a trolley during the Fort Myer Horse Show, addressing the audience from a mobile microphone.

Dorothy Lamour will ride in the coach class during the horse show and a white horse is being provided for Gene Autry, who is bringing his own saddle from Hollywood.

Miss Bruce here in show. Miss Bruce was last seen on the Washington stage as one of the singing stars of "Louisiana Purchase." It was during the run of that show in New York that movie scouts spotted her.

The National Theater announced yesterday that Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, and members of the British Embassy, staff had purchased all the stage boxes for the "command performance" of "Watch on the Rhine" Sunday night—the first event scheduled for the Diamond Jubilee Celebration.

The theater also announced that the performance was a sellout. The same announcement was made earlier by the Horse Show Committee. Both performances at Fort Myer January 28 and 29 are sold out. Edward Arnold, president of the

Crew Stayed Aboard Brazos Five Hours To Dump Cargo

Tons of Sugar Cast in Sea From Freighter That Sank After Crash

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The 35-man crew of the American freighter Brazos, sunk January 13 after a collision with an unidentified vessel in submarine-infested Atlantic coastal waters, spent five hours trying to jettison the cargo before taking to the lifeboats.

Survivors reaching here yesterday coincident with a Navy announcement that the 4,497-ton ship had been sunk and the entire crew saved said they abandoned the ship only after casting tons of sugar into the sea while their boat was foundering.

The Brazos, 43-year-old veteran of the New York-Charleston-Galveston trade was under lease to the New York-Puerto Rico Steamship Co. by the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Lines, and was the ninth American or Allied vessel to be sunk or damaged by torpedo or accident off the Atlantic coast in the last 10 days.

The crew, headed by Capt. Charles L. Stone of Staten Island, N. Y., was rescued by another vessel which the Navy did not identify and landed at Charleston, S. C. Francisco R. Pabon, one of two men injured, remained in a Charleston hospital, but 23 others arrived in New York by rail yesterday, nine more are expected today and the rest later.

The crash occurred 150 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras in the vicinity of where submarines torpedoed the tanker Allan Jackson Sunday and the steamer City of Atlanta Monday, both with heavy losses of life.

Last night the fifth naval district at Norfolk, Va., announced that the bodies of 10 seamen picked up at sea and presumed to have been victims of the City of Atlanta sinking had been brought to Norfolk.

War Board Clears Way For Auto Parts Production

The War Production Board yesterday cleared the way for immediate production of a huge stock pile of spare parts for future use in passenger cars and light trucks.

This step was taken, the board said, to get the problem of spare parts out of the way quickly so that the portion of the automobile industry devoted to parts could be more speedily converted to war production.

The new order would permit producers to make during the first half of this year three times the number of each of the replacement parts sold by them during the entire calendar year of 1941.

The board said it believed enough parts could be produced during the six months period to cover all demands this year and next.

The limitations after June 30 would not apply to parts made for military, naval, Government, lease-lend and foreign government use.

Two More Here Report Thefts of Spare Tires

The wave of tire stealing took in two more victims yesterday, according to their reports to police. Melvin Y. Jones, 1419 Monroe street N.W., said his spare tire, tube and wheel were removed while his car was parked at Irving street and Alabama avenue S.E.

Lester Burnett, 2044 Fort Davis drive S.E., reported that a tire, tube and wheel had been stolen from the trunk of his car.

Miss Clark Married to Mr. Wilson

Couple to Make Their Home in Washington

In a prettily arranged candlelight setting the wedding of Miss Winifred May Clark of Detroit, and Mr. Howard Douglas Wilson of College Heights, Md., took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Riverside (Md.) Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jefferson Clark of Detroit, and Mr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Robert Wilson, at whose home in College Heights a reception was held after the ceremony. Laurel leaves flanked by tall vases of gladioluses and snapdragons were placed in the reception rooms and a variety of colorful flowers were used effectively throughout the house.

Mrs. Andrew K. Bowie of University Park played the wedding music, and the Rev. W. Keith Custus performed the ceremony.

Mr. Clark gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was gowned in white satin, made on princess lines with a train. A coronet of orange blossoms held her finger-tip-length veil and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

Miss Frances Champlain of Detroit was maid of honor, wearing dusty rose sheer crepe, and carrying a bouquet of mixed flowers tied with blue ribbons. The bridesmaids were Miss Lucille Bussard of Alcoa, Pa.; Miss Gertrude Sherbert and Miss Nancy Opperman. Their dresses, in marked contrast to that of the maid of honor, were of light blue sheer crepe trimmed with gold, and their bouquets of mixed flowers were tied with pink ribbons. All of the attendants wore deep pink carnations in their hair.

Mr. J. C. Chapman of Washington was best man for the bridegroom, whose ushers included Mr. Robert D. Baldwin of Riverdale and Mr. Donald L. White. Mr. Alfredo Cachivio and Mr. Earl Fritchett of Washington.

Mrs. Clark, mother of the bride, wore a dress of cerise crepe with a corsage of gardenias, and the mother of the bridegroom was gowned in ice blue brocade satin, with a head-dress of camellias.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. H. A. Barrows, grandmother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Lloyd White of Washington, Mrs. V. G. Baldwin of Riverdale, Miss Lois A. White of Washington, Mrs. George Eisenacher of Forestville, Md., and Mrs. J. M. Snyder of University Park, Md.

Following a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home in Washington.

Librarians from the Latin American republics will come to Washington next month to attend the fifth convention of the Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association. The meetings will be held February 29 and 31 and the schedule includes a dinner the first evening and a luncheon the second day.

The visitors probably will be entertained by heads of diplomatic missions from their countries, so the week end of February 20 promises to be a gay one.

Dr. Mariano Picon Salas, director of the National Archives of Venezuela, will visit the United States next month and probably will time his arrival to attend some of the sessions of the library convention.

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, now in Rio de Janeiro attending the Pan-American Conference, is expected to plan some form of entertainment for the librarians, but nothing will be decided until his return to Washington.

Move to Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salmon have moved from Silver Spring and now are residing on Nevada avenue in Washington.

By the Way—

Both Blaine

Quite a few dinners are scheduled for tonight—preceding the last of the first series of the Friday Supper Club dances at the Sulgrave Club. Lt. and Mrs. George Strawbridge are having friends to dine and Mrs. Noyes Lewis will give a small party at her Georgetown house. Mrs. Sims Snow will give a dinner, as will George Williams. Mrs. John R. Williams also will have a few friends dining with her.

This afternoon Lt. and Mrs. John Mitchell have asked friends for cocktails. They are living in Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt's house on Q street until April 15. Meanwhile their "landlady," Mrs. Roosevelt, has moved next door to stay with her friend, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan. After the Mitchells leave she expects to move back to her own house and will have with her her son-in-law and daughter, the Reverend Wadsworths, and their small and completely beguiling little son—who is named after his maternal grandfather and is the apple of his grandmother's eye.

It was nice to see Billy Reyburn back in town again. Since he and Polly purchased a charming old house in Old Lyme, Conn., several years ago, Washington has seen very little of the popular Reyburns. Billy looks as though a simple country life has heartily agreed with him—and says he feels in the pink. He was here trying to find a place for himself in defense work, and while in town stayed at the Metropolitan Club. His son and daughter-in-law, the John Reyburns, have just bought one of the lovely old houses in Alexandria for themselves.

Also in town briefly was Maj. Harold Hinton, who flew up from his post in Tampa, Fla., on Army business. Eva, he tells us, soon will be coming to Washington, perhaps in a week or so, and while here will stay in a friend's apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue.

Admiral and Mrs. Luke McNamee have been back in town, too—but only for a short visit at the Mayflower. They've already gone back to New York.

The hard-working young women employees of the British Embassy will have a little well-earned fun tonight. Mrs. Hoyer Millar, wife of the Counselor, has been helping the attractive young English girls arrange a dance—which is to take place tonight at Pierce Hall. They'll have an opportunity to meet a lot of young American men, who comprise most of the guest list.

Quite to the contrary was British Embassy Secretary John Reed's cocktail party the other afternoon when almost all the guests were British. Practically the only Americans present were Mrs. Eldridge Jordan and her cousin, Mary Channing, and Peggy Wagner. The hors d'oeuvres must have been from both English and American recipes—there were so many different kinds—and all so good!

Lady Maureen Noel will have a dinner tomorrow night for some of her American and British friends.

One of the best-looking dinner gowns seen this winter was the severely simple black velvet—made with long tight sleeves and low neck—which Mrs. Benjamin Thaw wore at her small dinner at the 1925 F Street Club the other night. The party was for Mrs. Marcia Comstock, who is visiting Mrs. George Pettigill here—and lives quite near Conlie Thaw in Essex, Conn. Pen Turner told a very funny story that evening. It seems that a bachelor friend of his was giving a dinner and wanting everything to be especially nice he instructed his "domestic jewel" to be sure and serve very carefully—not to spill the soup, etc., as his guests were all important people.

"Deed, Boss, seems lak everybody's important now," replied Superbe, the maid. And indeed it does!

Pendleton Hogan (now a lieutenant in the U. S. Army) will be one of the author honor guests at the tea to be given at the National Library for the Blind on January 31. Two of "Pen's" books—"Bishop of Havana" and "Mortal be Proud," have been put in Braille and are in circulation at the library.

Any one who thinks that interest in the Republican party is at low ebb, ought to see the list of important Republicans from all over the country who plan to attend the Lincoln day dinner at the Mayflower Hotel February 11.

Brooks-Campbell Engagement

Of interest here, where the family of the bride-elect is well known, is the announcement by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edward Hale Brooks of Fort Knox, Ky., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Allen Brooks, to Lt. Raymond Potter Campbell, jr. Lt. Campbell is the son of Col. and Mrs. R. P. Campbell of Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J.

Miss Brooks was graduated from Arlington Hall Junior College in 1939. Her father has been stationed here twice, and the family left last November for his new post. While Gen. Brooks was on duty here he and his family resided in Edgemoor.

Lt. Campbell was graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy in 1936 and the United States Military Academy in 1941. The wedding will take place February 14 in the post chapel at Fort Knox.

Juniors to Dance

The next dance in a series given by the Junior Dance Association of the Chevy Chase Women's Club will be held from 9 p.m. until midnight Friday at the clubhouse. Mrs. Irving Zirpel is in charge of tickets.

Club Women Hear Review Of D. C. Bills

R. F. Camalier Stresses Need of Recreation Board

Criticizing legislation which is "nothing but a piecemeal attempt to care for something subject to change without notice," R. F. Camalier, counsel to the Senate District Committee, yesterday declared that "further divided and diversified authority must be outlawed in the District."

Mr. Camalier, who reviewed local legislation before the District Federation of Women's Clubs, advocated centralization of the government in Government hands.

The speaker urged especially the need of a recreational board for the District and predicted early passage of pending legislation establishing it.

"I am not an alarmist," he said, "but I view with apprehension and with foreboding the influx of all of the additional war workers without the provision of adequate recreational facilities."

Fears Crime in Air Raids

Mr. Camalier also advocated a "civilian offense" as well as "civilian defense" to deal with crime which he predicted would break out here in the event of an air raid.

A resolution urging Congress to formulate a program "which will insure that necessary sacrifices required of civilians be shared equally insofar as possible and that no group shall profit unreasonably from the war" was adopted at the business session.

Price ceilings "at reasonable levels" and rationing of articles whose production is being curtailed were suggested in the resolution which also called for adoption of a national policy regarding wage increases for labor based on the cost-of-living index.

An agricultural program "to fit our war-time economy" and establishment of price ceilings for agricultural commodities "at reasonable levels" also were advocated, as well as a tax bill "without loopholes stringently limiting war profits."

Home Nursing Classes Formed

Mrs. R. C. Hibben, home nursing chairman, enrolled a number of members for classes in home nursing to soon begin.

A contribution to the Woman's Army and Navy League was voted during the afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, federation president, was in charge of the meeting, held at 2600 Sixteenth street N.W.

Three Hunt Clubs To Serve in Raids As Paul Reverses

A messenger service on horseback will be organized by the Montgomery County (Md.) Civilian Defense Council with members of three county hunt clubs acting as modern Paul Reverses in case telephone service breaks down during an air raid, it was learned today.

Plans for the new service were announced by Albert E. Brautt, executive director of the council, after the Manor, Potomac and Redland Hunts had offered their facilities to the council.

Merton English, president of the Manor Hunt, said his club has about 50 horses and a similar number of trained riders ready to spring into action. Dr. James Greear, an official of the Potomac Hunt, said his club also had about 50 horses, while about 10 horses are available at the Redland Hunt stables, according to Thomas Mott, hunt master.

All three men pointed out that the horses at the respective hunt stables are experienced in cross-country running and their riders would have no difficulty in spreading the alarm during an air raid.

Mr. Brautt said that tentative plans call for the riders to report at strategic points throughout the county during an air-raid alarm. They would be used both to spread the alarm to county residents and to take messages from casualty stations to report centers if telephone service was disrupted.

G.O.P. Group Given Slogan For Victory

Mrs. Chris Carlson Speaks at Session Of League Women

"Victory depends on me" was suggested as a slogan for every individual American by Mrs. Chris Carlson, Republican national committee woman from Minnesota, who was guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon meeting of the League of Republican Women yesterday at its clubhouse.

Urging support of the civilian defense program and the American Red Cross, Mrs. Carlson expressed the belief that every one should assist in the national emergency. Women, however, should analyze their abilities before undertaking emergency work, she declared.

"Don't gum the works and don't be a square peg in a round hole," she advised. "Keep a level head and keep well poised. The enemy likes to demoralize and thereby weaken a nation."

Thomas S. Clark, president of the Republican Club of Queen's County, New York, also spoke, concluding his talk with an appeal for unity in war efforts.

Other guests included Mrs. Curtis Shears, Mrs. William N. Doak and Mrs. J. H. Bissell, who were guests of Mrs. E. E. Gann, league president. Mrs. Bissell, who is with the Red Cross speakers' bureau, discussed the work of the organization, and Mrs. Doak also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Walker Tuckerman entertained a large party including Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, Mrs. George Paddock, Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Baroness von Below, Baroness von Nagel, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, Mrs. J. M. Jenkins, Mrs. Arthur M. Chichester, Mrs. William Fitch Kelley and Mrs. McConey Werlich.

House Refuses Funds For Frankfurter Plan Of Selecting Lawyers

Rebuff to President Seen in Acceptance of Committee Suggestion

The so-called Frankfurter plan for selecting Government lawyers seemingly had been shelved today after the House refused yesterday to grant $100,000 to make it operative in the next fiscal year. At the same time the House approved a rider to the independent offices bill to prevent use of the civil service appropriation—or any other funds in the measure—to finance the program.

House action—considered a rebuff to President Roosevelt—conformed to the recommendation of its Appropriations Committee, and it was conceded today that the Senate probably would fall in line.

As a result, it was said, it would be necessary either to appoint lawyers to Government service by the same competitive process as other employees are chosen, or to take legal positions entirely outside of civil service, restoring the status they formerly had. There was no indication which course would be pursued by the President.

About 5,000 Involved.
Approximately 5,000 positions are involved.

The "Frankfurter Plan" developed out of the deliberations of the committee, headed by Associate Justice Reed of the Supreme Court, which the President named more than three years ago to work out a program of civil service reforms. It provided for a Board of Legal Examiners, headed by the solicitor general and composed of members from Government and private law circles, to direct recruiting, examination and selection of Government lawyers.

Only four members of the committee—Justices Reed, Frankfurter and Jackson (then Attorney General) and Gano Dunn, a New York engineer—approved the plan which was vigorously assailed by the four other members—Supreme Court Justice Murphy, William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to the President, Leonard D. White and Gen. Robert E. Wood. They said the program would lay itself open to favoritism.

The President, however, approved the program and made it effective by an executive order issued in connection with the expansion of the civil service under the Ranspuck Act. Prior to that time, the appointment of lawyers generally had rested with the employing agencies, although some were under competitive civil service.

Board Was Independent.
While the Board of Legal Examiners nominally was a part of the Civil Service Commission, it was entirely independent, but has been financed by that agency for the last several months after Congress refused to make an appropriation in a deficiency bill.

In denying the funds sought for the next year, however, the House made it certain that no money could be diverted to the board. Back of the House action is a long-smouldering resentment in Congress at the favoritism which it frequently has been charged has been shown in New Deal agencies in the appointment of lawyers. Critics have asserted that graduates of certain schools—notably Harvard—have received the best posts.

Two Sisters and Man Found Slain on Road Near Catonsville

Women Identified, but Male Victim Is Unknown; No Weapons Located

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—Two married sisters, one of them shot and the other stabbed, and an unidentified man, also shot, were found dead early today on a bush-lined roadside near Catonsville, Baltimore suburb.

Baltimore County police, reporting they found neither knife nor pistol near the scene, said it was possible the women and the man were slain elsewhere and their bodies dumped beside the road.

Sprawled about 50 feet apart at the end of the Johnnycake road, the bodies were discovered by Harry Souers, a neighbor of the husband of one of the women, who said he came upon them on his way home from work.

The women were identified as Mrs. Helen Johnson, 21, and her sister, Mrs. Irene Carter, 32. The man was not identified.

Leonard Johnson of Alberton, husband of Mrs. Johnson, made the identification, police said.

Dr. Kieffer said the man had a bullet wound in the chest. Mrs. Johnson was shot through the head and her sister was stabbed in the left breast and slashed about the throat. He ordered the bodies removed to the Baltimore City Morgue.

Catonsville police said Mr. Souers told them he came upon the bodies lying face upward, at 5:30 o'clock this morning, then drove to the nearest telephone and called police.

The bodies were found near Hollonfield, small community not far from Catonsville. The Johnny Cake road makes a sharp curve there and police quoted Mr. Souers as saying he did not see how any previous passerby could have overlooked the bodies.

D. C. Salvage Contract Awaits Legal Opinion

Award of a contract by the District Commissioners for salvage of tin cans and other materials from the dump at Twenty-first and C streets N.E. Four bids for the city dump is being delayed, it developed today, to make sure there will be no conflict with other salvage measures.

Recently, it was said, officials of O. P. M. requested the Commissioners to direct separation of various types of refuse before they were turned in to the District incinerators or deposited on the dump.

The Commissioners had called for bids from private operators for salvaging cans, rubber, paper or other materials from the dump at Twenty-first and C streets N.E. Four bids were received, ranging from $2,100 to $16,501.04. Fearing they might become involved in a dispute with the high bidder, if the contract were awarded and thereafter the District had some of the materials separated and not placed on the dump, the Commissioners have referred the whole matter to the office of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Only about 100 California condors are known to exist.

Jesse Lee Webb, 64, Noted Entomologist, Buried Here Today

Entered Department Of Agriculture at Beginning of Century

Jesse Lee Webb, veteran employee of the Department of Agriculture, who died Tuesday, was buried today in Rock Creek Cemetery, following services this morning at the Columbia Heights Christian Church.

Mr. Webb, active with the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine until his death, entered the department in 1901, with the Bureau of Forestry, now the Forest Service. In 1903 he did entomological work with the Insular Government in the Philippine Islands for three months, returning to the department to continue with the Bureau of Forestry.

Transferred to Bureau.
In 1904 he was transferred to the Bureau of Entomology doing miscellaneous investigations until 1909, when he was assigned to work on forest insects. In 1912 he was transferred to the Southern Field Crop Insect Investigations, and in 1928 was associated with investigations on insects affecting men and animals.

Mr. Webb was known for his ability in preparing scientific material for popular reading and contributed a number of publications to the literature of economic entomology.

Native of Illinois.

Mr. Webb was born in Bloomington, Ill., in April, 1878, attended public schools in Rippey, Iowa; received a B. S. degree from Washington State College in 1900, and an M. S. degree from West Virginia University in 1902. In 1904 he married Florence Evans, who survives him. He also leaves a son, Delmar Evans Webb.

He made his home at 1517 Allison street N.W.

Coal Dealers Cut Price
25c at O. P. A. Request

Washington coal dealers today voluntarily reduced the price of coal and coke 25 cents per ton to restore the price to the level of a week ago, when an increase was effected without the approval of the Office of Price Administration.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson promised his office will promptly study costs and margins to determine whether or not an increase in prices is justified at this time. Today's reduction is on all grades and sizes of coal and coke.

"This response on the part of Washington's retail coal dealers to our request," Mr. Henderson said, "is a fine example of patriotic co-operation in our effort to protect the people of this country from the evils of inflationary prices. It is the comparatively small price increase which may seem insignificant at the time, which paves the way for meeting threats against our war-time economy. The local coal dealers have made a notable contribution to our effort."

Japs Intern Bishop Ward,
9 Missionaries in China

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Japanese have interned Bishop Ralph A. Ward, head of the Methodist Church in Shanghai, China, and nine Methodist missionaries who were in Wuhu, China, at the outbreak of hostilities between the United States and Japan, the Methodist Church Board of Missions and Church Extension has announced.

Dr. Chester B. Rappe, missionary and superintendent in Chungking, West China, cabled that Bishop Ward had advised him that he and the missionaries were confined to the Wuhu General Hospital compound overlooking the Yangtze River and were treated courteously.

Dr. Rappe did not name the missionaries, but the board said it understood they included Miss Lillie Stephens, Farmer, Tenn.; Miss Beattie A. Hollows, Methuen, Mass.; the Rev. John C. Hawk, Blountville, Tenn., and Miss Pearl McCain, De Valls Bluff, Ark.

Measures to Protect Tire Users Backed By Citizen Group

Robson Tells Representation National Representation Is Due District

Price ceilings on retreaded automobile tires and doubled penalties for persons found guilty of stealing auto tires were endorsed last night by the Arkansas Avenue Community Association.

Representative Robson, Republican, of Kentucky, a guest speaker, said he favored granting national representation in Congress to residents of the District of Columbia and said he hoped to understand why citizens of other States should have this privilege if the citizens of Washington were unrepresented.

Oppose Decentralization. The association opposed further removals of Federal bureaus to other cities from Washington. Members said they opposed "temporary" transfers because they felt such transfers would become permanent.

Appropriation of Federal funds to aid in the work of civilian defense was requested. The association also requested that Federal and local officials be relegated to police public buildings here rather than have that duty performed by civilians.

The Commissioners, the Public Utilities Commission and the Capital Transit Co. were commended for the establishment of elevated loading platforms and safety zones at bus and streetcar stops.

Sector Wardens to Meet. Dr. Frank M. Schertz, deputy air-raid warden for the Arkansas avenue section of the Northwest area, announced a meeting of all sector wardens will be held at 8 p.m. next Tuesday in Roosevelt High School, the sector headquarters.

Joseph A. Walker, first vice commander of the Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion, asked members of the association to assist in his drive for members from veterans of the first World War who are not Legion members.

Following the regular meeting, held in the Denison School, four civilian defense units of the area—emergency feeding, emergency housing, first-aid and air-raid warden—gave demonstrations of their duties.

Bolles Tells Federal Bar Attack Must Meet Attack

"Only by attack can we meet and overcome attack—I don't like the term defense," Col. Lemuel Bolles, District civilian defense director, said yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Federal Bar Association at the Harrington Hotel.

"We should not put all our efforts into trying to save a life by hiding behind something," Col. Bolles asserted. "Washington is just as liable to attack as any United States military defense anywhere, he said, and every District resident must be ready to do his 'fighting part' to meet anything which may come."

"Growling and grumbling at things taken from us" was scored by Col. Bolles, who pointed out that sacrifices are indispensable to a final victory.

R. A. F. Officer Speaks Before Junior Board

Aerial warfare at sea was described by Wing Comdr. A. A. De Gruyther of the R. A. F. at a luncheon meeting of the Junior Board of Commerce yesterday at the Annapolis Hotel.

Comdr. De Gruyther related the tactics of keeping submarines from convoys and of general air war operations.

Ensign Lawrence S. Smith, former executive secretary of the group, also addressed the 150 members attending the luncheon. Lawrence E. Gichner, chairman of the Victory Book campaign, appealed for contributions to the drive.

Millard F. West, Jr., president, was chairman of the meeting.

'Keep It Dark,' Bolles Counsels, in Verse, Of Military Data

Civilian Defense Director Lemuel Bolles today is circulating among civilian workers a one-stanza jingle reminding the public to "keep it dark" if they have any military information which should not reach the enemy.

Printed on small cards, and under the title "Blackout," the jingle reads: "If you have news of our munitions—

Keep it dark. Ships or planes or troop positions—

Keep it dark. Lives are lost through conversation, So here's a tip for the duration, When you have private information—

Keep it dark."

Camp, N. Y. to Fort Benjamin Harrison; Reynolds, Lt. Col. Oscar W., from Camp Pike, La. to Fort Benjamin Harrison; Rupp, Lt. Col. Paul B., from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. to Fort Benjamin Harrison.

Hill Sentence Deferred Till Disposal of Motion

With a motion for a new trial pending in the case of George Hill, second secretary of Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, Justice F. Dickinson Letts of District Court will defer sentencing the defendant, who was convicted of perjury, until the legal move is disposed of.

Prospects today are that oral arguments on the motion will go forward next week before Justice Letts. Mr. Hill's defense counsel, the former New York Representative, John J. O'Connor, and William F. Cusick, contend that their client was prejudiced by the erroneous introduction of evidence and the alleged misconduct of the prosecutor, William Power Maloney, special assistant to the Attorney General.

Should Justice Letts rule unfavorably to the defendant and sustain the jury conviction, it is considered likely that he would sentence Mr. Hill immediately.

60,000 Gallons of Gasoline Destroyed by Fire

By the Associated Press.
READING, Pa., Jan. 23.—Investigators examined the smoldering ruins of three large storage tanks today in an effort to determine what set off the fire which destroyed more than 60,000 gallons of gasoline and caused damage estimated at about $150,000.

Firemen fought the blaze for five hours yesterday before bringing it under control. Two firemen were injured.

President Julius Stratmeyer of the Penn. Service Oil Co., which owns the storage depot near here, expressed the opinion that sabotage was not responsible. Assistant Fire Chief William Strouse of Reading said that backfire from a truck might have ignited escaping fumes from one of the 11 huge tanks which hold 20,000 gallons each. Three tanks were destroyed.

Silver Spring Women Asked to Give Blood

An appeal for women of the community to donate a half pint of blood to the blood bank being built up for the armed services was made yesterday by Mrs. C. W. Mitchell, Silver Spring chairman of the women's division of the Maryland Council of Defense.

Mrs. Mitchell also urged that persons having Army cots or blankets donate them for use in casualty stations which are being set up by the county Defense Council. Blood donors may call Mrs. Mitchell at Shepherd 3538. Transportation to Naval Hospital will be provided.

Rites Held for Virginian Found Shot at Home

By the Associated Press.
STAUNTON, Va., Jan. 23.—Funeral services were held yesterday for Preston Fridley, whose body was found at his home near Fordwick several hours after the wounding of two other persons in a shooting near Augusta Springs.

Augusta County Coroner C. P. Obenshain gave a verdict of suicide in the death of Mr. Fridley.

Attendants at King's Daughters Hospital here reported the condition of David Curry, one of the men wounded in the shooting, as critical. R. T. Fridley, a brother of Preston Fridley, was less seriously wounded.

Your Income Tax—No. 19—Who Is the Head of a Family?

For income-tax purposes there can only be one head of a family. In addition to being the chief financial support, the head of a family must be related by blood, marriage or adoption to his dependents, and he must have a legal or moral obligation to exercise family control over them and provide for their care. As such, he is entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person—that is, $1,500.

There are some unusual cases under this classification. A single person who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood, by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for them is based upon a legal or moral obligation, is the head of a family, and as such is entitled to the exemption allowed a married person—that is, $1,500. In addition, he may claim a credit of $400 for each of such individuals who is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, except if the taxpayer occupies the status of the head of a family solely by reason of the existence of one or more of such individuals, the credit of $400 for one of such individuals is not allowable.

Another example not so much out of the usual is this: A widower who supports in his household his aged mother and his child 17 years of age is the head of a family, and as such is entitled to an exemption of $1,500 and a credit of $400 for one dependent.

Maryland Counties to Get $300,000 Income Taxes

About $300,000 will be distributed to Baltimore and Maryland counties as their share of income tax installments paid by taxpayers July 15 and September 15, State Controller J. Millard Tawes said yesterday at Annapolis.

The counties get 25 per cent of the taxes paid by their resident individuals. One more installment will be made on the fourth and final installment, paid December 15, the Associated Press reported.

Among the payments listed from the second and third installments are $33,100 to Montgomery County, $7,100 to Prince Georges County and $300 to St. Marys County.

Whittier Pupils Tell Of New Plastic in Science Broadcast

'Housing and Household Equipment' Is Theme Of Radio Program

An imaginary visit to the "house of the future" was conducted by pupils of Whittier School in their broadcast yesterday of the "Science in Our Changing World" series, sponsored by The Star and the Elementary School Radio Committee through the facilities of Washington's Blue Network station.

Although headed by the general title of "Housing and Household Equipment," the program dealt mainly with the new plastic substance and its potential role in the manufacture of prefabricated housing and fixtures. It is a light, copper-like material made from such common ingredients as coal and crude oil, and under different processing can be made flexible or rigid, opaque, translucent and even transparent, the students told their audience.

The program was presented by the sixth-grade pupils of Mrs. Kathleen P. Deane and included Mary Lou Garner, Mary Lou Fitzgerald, Dolores Baker, Dorothy McKenney, Jules Reifkind, Henry Frankhauser and John Paradiso. Among studio observers were Miss Elsie Green, principal of Whittier; Mrs. Ruth Melroy of the third division science department; and Dr. Julia Hahn, supervising principal of the third division.

Conservation of Paper

Every citizen is called upon to see that not a pound of paper is wasted. Demand from every clerk that any unnecessary wrapping of packages or unnecessary use of paper bags be dispensed with.

Waste paper for paperboard is vital to the packaging of a great quantity of war equipment.

Do not burn newspapers, but when you have saved enough for a bundle, give them to the school children who are co-operating in the defense program with the parent-teacher organization in The Star's campaign for reclaiming old newspapers.

Exceptionally Good Values in Fur Coats Offered to Women This Season

Fitted and Boxy Styles Approved by Fashion; Pelts Well Varied

Follow Advice of Reputable Furrier in Order to Select Most Useful Garment

By Helen Vogt

People who make studies of such things and get paid for it, proudly report that women are asking questions about fur coats. Not, they will tell you, that it is unusual for the ladies to make inquiries about said articles, but in this case the type of question, rather than the question itself, is what has proved of interest to fashionists and the like.

The ladies, it seems, are not asking, "How can I get George to buy that snappy pseudo-seal skin at Max' Fourth Avenue?" Now it develops that they are asking the same sort of things they usually want to know about refrigerators and living room sofas, namely: Are the values good? Will the styles remain the same? Is it patriotic to put this much money into something? And, that eternal and strangely comforting feminine query—"What kind shall I buy?"

Silly though it may be to think that this small space will attract as much attention as a full-page ad, we'd still like to remind you that this is, indeed, the month of sales. Fur values are good—as they always are toward spring—and you'll find some really good-sized reductions. To quote the experts, there are even better values than usual, because a very warm autumn and mild winter has made many women decide to do without a fur coat this year. So, stocks are plentiful, too plentiful, we might add, for the comfort of the furriers who can look mournful and mark down prices all at the same time.

Because the fashion world is divided between the full and narrow silhouettes, a coat of either trend should be all right for some years. Most of the boxy types are in the longer haired furs such as lynx-dyed wolf, racoon or skunk. The more fitted models, as a rule, are in Alaska sealskin, mink or sable-dyed muskrat, Persian lamb and mink. Budget furs, such as mouton, the dyed muskrat pelts and others are plentiful and important from a fashion point of view, even though they're not as much in the nature of an investment as are the more luxurious and longer wearing types.

When you buy furs, remember these important things: First, and above all, go to a reputable furrier, because the average layman knows next to nothing about furs and must rely on the advice of the expert. Next, tell the furrier what you expect of a coat, whether you drive a car, how often you will wear the fur and how much of a "beating" it has to take. He'll know from your answers just which fur will be best suited to your needs and which will be the sensible and economical choice.

And remember, this year, that it's not being unpatriotic and wasteful to buy a coat. It's an investment for you, a part of your feminine duty to look your best and boost morale. You might also consider that there are so many workers who participate in the creation of your garment and depend on the work for a living, that you are doing your own little bit toward helping industry and, though indirectly, aiding the Government and defense.

Although it's not a "budget fur," Alaska sealskin is an excellent investment for this season and many to come. The brown furs are favored this year, and the deep tones of Matara brown in this pelt are exceptionally lovely. Choose a style which may be worn for both day and evening.

Babies Need Fresh Air And Sun

Mother Can Follow Approved Rules Confidently

By Lettice Lee Streett

While we all agree that the proper amount of good fresh air never hurt any average, healthy baby or small child, the subject of what is the proper amount for a baby, according to age, is a question about which many young mothers are in doubt. Therefore, I have made a list of a few approved rules for airing a baby.

1. The new baby's room, and all babies' rooms, should be aired at least twice a day while the baby is taken from the room. A good plan is to air the room every time the baby is out of it. During the day a regular temperature of 70 degrees F. should be maintained and the air kept fresh.

2. Until an infant is three months old the night temperature of the nursery should stay at about 65 degrees F. After three months it may be allowed to drop to 55 degrees F. if the weather is not damp.

3. A healthy, 1-month-old infant may be dressed warmly in coat, cap and little stockings, well covered and pushed up to an open, sunny window. Doors to the room should be closed to avoid draughts. The length of the indoor airing should begin with about 10 minutes and gradually be increased up to several hours, if desired.

4. In winter, babies who live in the North generally do not go out-of-doors for an airing until after the second month, and then only on dry, sunny days that are not windy. No little baby should go outside on damp, windy or bitterly cold days. In more Southern locations a baby three weeks old often may sleep safely out-of-doors in winter in the daytime.

5. The best hours for airing are from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

6. A baby's mother or nurse must also use her own judgment as to how long a baby should stay outside. This depends upon the section of the country, the weather, the temperature, the age of the baby and his reactions to the airing.

A fairly rich and stiff batter is necessary if you would have raisins distributed evenly throughout the cake. It is almost impossible to make the raisins stay throughout a cake made with a soft batter regardless of the way the raisins are treated.

To help keep a fruit pie crust from getting soggy, brush the bottom crust with white of egg.

New Styles for Old - - - Bulky Victorian Table Changed Into Useful Modern Furniture

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: I have a marble-topped Victorian table that is in perfect condition but just does not seem to go with anything I have. It is too high to be used as a lamp table and too large to be right against a wall. It has four curved legs with a centerpiece that is quite ornate. Is there anything to be done with this to make it usable with present-day furniture, or should it just be discarded?

Answer—It isn't smart to discard anything usable these days, and, depending on just how you prefer to use your table, you might take your choice of these two suggestions. This will make a very nice coffee table or tea table if it can be lowered to the desired height. This is best done by cutting the legs off where they join the table top, and resetting the top. Or, if a pair of console tables would be more useful, cut the table in half and attach the two halves to the wall with screws. To make these more effective, if your walls are dark in color, paint the tables white and use white lamps on them.

Dear Miss Nowell: What would you suggest as inexpensive rugs for a bedroom for two small boys? The furniture is maple in early American design, and the bedspread and upholstery are calico. I want something sturdy and long wearing, good in color and inexpensive. H. J. L.

Answer—The machine-made oval rag rugs that you may find in all the shops would be ideal from every angle. They come in gay colors and will stand plenty of hard wear.

Dear Miss Nowell: My bedroom is so unattractive that I hate to go into it. I would like to throw everything out and start all over new, but that is impossible. What do you think are the most important items to give it all a lift? I am limited to $25 for new purchases, and I am afraid that is not much. R. E. C.

Answer—Invest in the gayest material for new draperies and a bedspread that you can find. These two important points will give bigger results than any other. If you feel that the walls should be changed and are energetic enough to do the job yourself, it is a very simple thing to put casein paint on over old wall paper and make an entirely new-looking room. This would still come under the $25 if you put it on yourself.

Dear Miss Nowell—Can you tell me whether glazed chintz can be laundered successfully? I have heard contradictions on this, and as I would like to have chintz draperies in my bedroom if they can be washed or cleaned, I would like your opinion. S. A.

Answer—Chintz that is washable will be marked on the selvage to that effect. It is most satisfactory and I am sure you would be happy with it. If it is not marked washable you would have to make your own tests. Some of it cleans very well, by a reputable cleaner, and others not at all, so to be safe I would suggest that you buy only the guaranteed type.

Dear Miss Nowell: I wish to frame some hunting prints in a bright red frame. How wide do you think the frame should be, and should the pictures be framed up close or used with a mat? T. O.

Answer—If you plan a red frame it should be very narrow or it will overpower the picture it is to frame. Choose one not wider than 1/2 inch and narrower if possible. These are usually more effective with a white mat or one of grass cloth.

Just Looking, Thanks

Remove accumulated dust from folds and crevices of upholstered furniture with a small "sweeper" made of non-breakable plastic. It is very simple to use, requiring only a quick side stroke, and eliminating hard pressing because its own weight is sufficient to pick up dust particles. You'll be delighted to find that it is also easy to keep clean . . .

An adjustable cutting board is exceptionally useful when slicing meat, cheese or bread. It is equipped with metal side pieces which are used as guides, and all slices are cut evenly, although each can be made a different size . . .

Wipe no more, my lady, even while you're chopping onions! Just get a bowl especially designed to eliminate this uncomfortable situation. Made of glass and marked off in measurements of cups. Inserted through the metal top is a stainless steel tube with sharp propelling blades to make the chopping a "snap" . . .

Three cheers for the red, white and blue coasters now on the market. These "patriotic" cocktail accessories are knitted and fit the glasses so snugly that there is no danger of furniture and clothing being harmed by moisture. The conservative type will find these coasters in plain colors, too . . .

For walking the dog at night, be certain to have a flashlight that fits securely onto your wrist by means of an elastic bracelet, and affords you free use of both hands for holding leashes and lighting cigarettes. The flashlights are made of bakelite in red, green, khaki and other colors . . .

Adjustable slip bands are another of those amazing feminine necessities. If your slip is too long and you don't want to mar the material by sewing a tuck in it, put the band around your waist, "non-skid" side next to the slip, pull the slip up to the desired length, and there it stays . . .

Want the Adirondacks in your home? They spray your closets with a liquid that has a refreshing, pine odor. The fluid, which is much less expensive than a trip to the mountains, may be purchased in several sizes, and each bottle is equipped with a sprayer . . .

Painted glass flowers wired to form a pattern are placed in the center of a hand-carved teakwood frame making a plaque that can be placed almost anywhere in the home. Sizes, as well as types, are varied . . .

Tasty Snack For tea this delightful snack will be enjoyed: Mix equal parts of butter and light brown sugar, add a little vanilla, almond extract and grated orange peel. Spread on hot toast—reheat until bubbly on top. Serve at once.

Dorothy Dix Says - - - Women, More Than Men, Consider Marriage Their Full-Time Job

By Dorothy Murray

Irate women, with blood in their eyes and bay on their horns, are always asking me why I write more about wives trying to hold their husbands' affections than I do about husbands putting forth strenuous efforts to keep their wives fascinated and thinking they drew the big prize in the matrimonial lottery. Well, it is for the very good reason that it is for a man, a wife's happiness depends upon her husband loving her and giving her continual proofs of his devotion, and if he wearies of her and grows cold and indifferent it turns life into cinders, ashes and dust for her. But men are not so dependent on love as women are, and if a wife fails to give her husband the affection he craves it does not slay him. He still has his business, his career, his ambitions to take up his thoughts and make life interesting to him. Then, again, to a woman marriage means not only the satisfying of her heart's desire for love and companionship, but her career as well. When she marries she nearly always gives up whatever occupation she was following, or that she would have followed if she had not married, and devotes her time, her energy, her intelligence to the making of a home. Therefore, it is important to her from every angle, financial as well as sentimental, to make her marriage a success.

To do this she has to keep her husband interested in her and pleased with her, for if he gets tired of her or bored with her and falls in love with another woman and the marriage ends in divorce, it means not only the breaking of her heart, but the breaking of her home and the loss of all for which she has worked so hard.

If this occurs, as it so often does, after the lapse of a number of years when she is middle-aged, it is utterly disastrous. She is too old then to start life afresh, too old to compete with young girls, too softened by domesticity to be able to fight her way in the commercial world. No women are more pitiful than the elderly women who have lost their homes and husbands and who are turned out from the divorce court as bewildered and helpless as caged animals who are thrown out into the wild to fend for themselves.

Wives have to make more effort to keep their husbands than husbands do to keep their wives, because husbands are more apt to slip than wives are. Certainly the average middle-aged woman is as good-looking as the average middle-aged man. Also she is just as chummy and interesting. And there is no more reason why husbands should lose their tastes for their wives than why wives should lose their tastes for their husbands.

Mr. Jones at 40 has lost his boyish figure just as often as Mrs. J. has become a stylish stout. Mrs. J.'s grizzled hair is no harder on the eyes than Mr. J.'s bald spot. Nor is Mrs. J.'s gossip about the neighbors

Peasant Pictures

Few women can paint their own pictures, but these attractive peasant figures are simple enough for even a child to make. When they are completed, you have two very unusual pictures that are a delight to behold. You'll have many compliments on them, too. The figures are traced and colored with colored pencils, the skirt and boy's coat are cut away and fabric is pasted behind the picture for a colorful and unique effect. Real lace, wool for hair, beads, ribbons and a feather may be added for extra realism.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Often and often had Peter Rabbit wondered how Ol' Mistah Buzzard and all his other feathered friends...

Peter scratched his head in a funny way. "If you please, Winsome, how does he warm his toes?" Peter replied, "I never see him warming his toes when he is up here..."

Mother: "You may light the stove for me, Mary—but remember you never light it except when mother or father are standing right by you." Not This. Jean: "My mother says I'm not big enough to light the stove but I am and I know how to do it."

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.
David Bruce Burdette, Margia D. Blair, Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken...
Bridge Swindles—No. 82
Aces and kings are not always enough to fulfill a contract; almost invariably you need some low-card tricks in addition...

West opened the queen of clubs and South made his contract. "How did he get his ninth trick?" you may well ask. For there are four aces and four kings, yet neither hearts nor clubs can be established for a low-card trick...

Yesterday you were Howard Schenken's partner and, with neither side vulnerable, you held:
Q 9 5
K 3 2
A J 7 3 2

Obvously your partner wants to get to game and your hand is good enough for another bid. The heart raise will tell your partner that you have fair support for each of his suits and he will be able to go to four spades if he then prefers that suit.

'Priorities of 1942' Provides The Cinema With a Title

And It Starts Search for Script That May Produce a Musical; Heinie Manush Turns Gagster

By JAY CARMODY.

Hollywood's dreams even as yours and ours, are so much more fascinating than its realities. This very day, for example, Paramount is dreaming of a musical film which will live up to the title, "Priorities of 1942."

Imagine being assigned a title like that and asked to write a gay and tuneful tale that would bear it out, if not in every particular, at least enough to keep the thing from sounding ridiculous.

Folies are one thing to write a musical. They are another thing to write a film. Folly lends itself perfectly to the plot, always has, and probably always will. Priorities are something new and quite different. Making a priority a laughing, dancing thing is something that would make an advertising copy writer wince.

Memo to Francis Stan: Remember Heinie Manush? A short, squat chap who spent some hours of the twilight of his career in a Washington uniform, hitting baseballs around Griffith stadium and hoping there would be no outfielders immediately under them?

that the person gets in front of the camera and has his image transferred to the screen. It isn't quite like that in Heinie's case. It is rather one of his ideas, not Heinie himself, that is used in "Obliging Young Lady."

It seems that years ago, while he was with Detroit and before he became old enough to play with the Washington team, Heinie was making an over-night trip on which he found himself unable to sleep. While lying there listening to the clackety-clack of the Pullman's wheels, he suddenly discovered that his name, the four syllables of his name, synchronized perfectly with the noise.

"Heinie Manush" he said, every time the wheels said clackety-clack. Any one else with a four-syllable name might have said the same thing, of course. The point is that Heinie said it. He kept saying it all night, until the fascination of it—as contrasted with counting sheep—almost drove him crazy.

Instead of going crazy, however, it merely gave Heinie an idea, namely to tell all his teammates the story. He was pretty sure it would leave its impress on their minds and that they would get no sleep either the next time the team traveled.

Heinie, whom you may have thought of as a sort of gorilla in Clark Griffith's clothing, was absolutely right. It completely disorganized the whole team which, whatever happened to its win-lose percentage, was a grand gag. It got around, as such things do, eventually coming to the attention of a couple of fellows named Frank Ryan and Bert Granet, movie writers. They thought it was terrific, too, and as is the won't of screen writers they stored it in their minds against the day when it, or an adaptation thereof, might be usable in a movie.

'Sergeant York' Leading As the Stars Turn Critics

Some 700 Players Take Part This Year in Poll, Results of Which Often Hint at Academy Awards

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

HOLLYWOOD. First hundred ballots tabulated in The Star's annual "Stars Turn Critics" poll point to "Sergeant York" as one of the outstanding contenders, if not the winner, of the Academy's 1942 award for "Best Picture of 1941."

Some 700 stars, featured and small part players, are participating in this year's poll, the fourth conducted by this newspaper. The results, including the players' own choices for 10 best pictures of 1941, best actor and actress performance, best direction and outstanding "find" of the year will be announced in this column early in February.

In preceding years, the "Stars Turn Critics" poll, with one exception, has proved an accurate preview of the regular academy awards, which are not announced until several weeks later.

Players appear intensely interested in the balloting and with few exceptions are giving much time and thought to their selections. The more important the star, it seems, the more time he or she devoted to study of the ballot.

Spencer Tracy furnished his brow for a couple of hours in his dressing room, then carried his ballot along to the commissary for further deliberation while he lunched.

"There were at least 50 great pictures released last year," said Tracy. "In those 50 were a lot of fine performances. You can't use spot judgment in a case like this. I don't want to do anybody wrong."

Hedy Lamarr, out of duty at this time, drove all the way into the M-G-M studio to pick up her ballot. She sat at a stenographer's desk an hour, debating with herself before filling in the names. Joel McCrea couldn't remember day when it, or an adaptation thereof, might be usable in a movie. "Obliging Young Lady," now being made by R-K-O was the first opportunity to give it a trial.

We thought you might like to know that Heinie is being paid for the idea, proving that a ballplayer is not entirely through even after Griff dispenses with his services. And, perhaps you also would like to know that the cast of the picture never expects to ride comfortably up a Pullman again.

A card, that Heinie, wasn't he? This gentle pastoral scene took place for Madeleine's new picture, "My Favorite Blond," with Bob Hope.

Just as Hope's favorite blond was about to sink her teeth in the fruit, an assistant director rushed up in a panic.

"Don't eat that!" he cautioned. "It might make you sick. That's just a prop. We've fixed up cake to look like a slice of melon. And you can eat that when the time comes."

"Oh, no, I can't," replied Madeleine. "I'm on a diet."

Tank Replaces the Horse Much to Beery's Regret

But His Fans Probably Will Decide 'The Bugle Sounds' Is His Dish; Gerrits Tops Stage Program

By HARRY MACARTHUR.

Latest of the intimate movie glimpses of the military life to be sent along by Hollywood turns out to be an old friend, the one about the conflict between the cavalrymen who like horses and the cavalrymen who prefer more speed and fire-power. This time it is Wallace Beery who impersonates for us the gruff top sergeant of many years who has an almost psychopathic attachment for a horse named Cantigny and who considers tanks toys beneath the serious consideration of real men, a position untenable enough today to be downright silly.

The current retelling of this yarn is entitled "The Bugle Sounds," and it is to be found at the Capitol. Being very specific here about the details of "The Bugle Sounds" would be unfair for several reasons. In the first place, there is a certain amount of what the makers of the film probably looked upon fondly as suspense involved in the action. And in the second place the reading of any extended account of these various events would no doubt be as boring as we are sure the writing of it would be.

It all boils down to the fact that followers of the growl-and-wipe-the-face school of dramatic expression and admirers of its leading practitioner probably will find "The Bugle Sounds" is just their dish. Mr. Beery, in his customary fashion, lumbers about looking unkempt, blusters and growls at his fellow man, squints a paw across his face, whines "aw, Sudee" at his cinema paramour, Miss Marjorie Main, all the while wallowing happily in tearful hokum.

Now those who consider Mr. Beery not only a great comedian but a great tragedian in the very next scene, who may be legion for all we know, are likely to notice no dull spots in "The Bugle Sounds." But we can warn others that they are there all right, or maybe "omnipresent" would be a better word than "there." And there are some mighty soggy moments, too. Item: Mr. Beery nuzzling his horse's hand (or was it the other way around?) while comforting said horse against being replaced by tanks. Item: Mr. Beery's attenuated and lachrymose farewell to the horse after it has been injured so that he must shoot it.

Some of the subordinate people in the film perform in that workmanlike manner so often noted on the part of Hollywood featured players, who just do their work as best they can, no matter what the script may sound like. Lewis Stone, for instance, is as wise and able a colonel of cavalry as he is a judge of the Carve courts. Henry O'Neill, too, adds his customary dignity on occasion. And what a contrast dignity is to some of the top sergeant's antics.

Paul Gerrit, one of the more skilled vaudeville performers of the day, is back to headline the Capitol's stage bill. Whether performing that dimly business of a good skate getting under the clubs, juggling while skating, or skating on his ear. Mr. Gerrits is a top-notch entertainer. And he really does skate on his ear, or almost on it, which is a trick you probably won't want to try at the nearest rink. Also present are Cross and Dunn, the veteran vaudevilleans, whose specialty is tongue-twisting versions of more or less popular songs. And there are Hector and His Pals, the pals being some clever pups; the Coltons and Harry King and Ariens, all performing in front of the Capitol Orchestra, which is on stage for a ditty or two.
