Canners Must Keep Part of 1942 Pack For War Needs

Production Board Official Discloses Priority Program

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.-A War Production Board official announced today that the Government would require canners of fruits and vegetables to keep part of their 1942 production off the market to meet Army, Navy and lend-lease needs.

John L. Baxter, chief of the Canned Foods Section of the W. P. B food supply branch, said the W. P. B. was preparing "a general preference order directing producers to withhold from sale a stated percentage of each listed product which they expect to pack in 1942."

Mr. Baxter, who spoke at the opening session of the National Canners' Association Convention, said that within 15 days after the completion of his pack the canner would be required to report his production on forms which would be furnished by the W. P. B.

"The primary purpose of this general preference order," he said, "is to promote the defense of the United States by assuring that sufficient supplies of certain canned fruits and vegetables for the needs of the various Government agencies are set aside by the producers of these

Expense Is No Barrier. In terms of German industry it means that the entire machine has been devoted to the army's needs. It still is producing vigorously. What once went into civil existence in terms of material and labor has been transferred to the military. Substitutes have been discovered for most of the important commodities the Germans do not have. That they are expensive in ingredients and processing has little bearing. Their quantity and serviceability are the sole criteria.

Before the workers of an armament plant Hitler boasted, about a year ago, that his supplies of munitions were so extensive there was no longer sufficient storage space. I thought it was solely for domestic consumption, a prop to lagging morale, but I learned later it was literally true.

At the time he spoke Hitler had stores enough of certain munitions to last two and a half years, of others enough for four at the peak rate of expenditure during the French campaign. Six months of war in Russia have altered this picture, but there has been another year of production in the interval Nor did production cease in 1941. Hitler was throwing his Luftwaffe recklessly into the eastern campaign. At the same time he needed the olive oil and fruits, the mercury and copper of Spain. And Hitler paid for his imports with 100,000 airplanes, among other things. It is a curious footnote to the era of international double cross

Day after day we looked for damage. Windows are shattered, a branch of the subway was put out of order, a house was smashed, a wing of a factory burned, but in a city of 4.000,000 it altered the appearance

> Once, when the British announced that they had "Coventryized" Duesseldorf, one of the Rhineland's great producing centers. I flew there on a hastily organized trip and for 45 minutes cruised less than 500 feet over the city, the river and its surroundings. We could see occasional bomb pits but no general damage. The most remarkable feature was the size of my place toward the rear of the Junkers transport. It was Goering's seat in the reichmarshal's private plane-almost a Pullman

A steelmaker from Bochum, whose mitted privately that a direct hit had reduced its capacity 5 per cent but said it could be repaired. Certainly there has been far more havoc in the northern coastal cities. One German officer assigned in a technical capacity to Wilhelmshaven spent a busy month.

"I helped put out 120 incendiaries in that period," he said. Bombings can and do disrupt railroad yards, tie up entire factories, weary the workmen and deal damaging blows to civilian morale. The heavy cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau can be kept at bay in Brest. But Germany is far from fatally crippled yet. German Army's strength should need little comment. The world has seen some graphic demonstrations. Russia's stand has been magnificent, but it is too early vet to attach exaggerated importance to the retreat from Moscow. Hitler unquestionably wanted desperately to take Leningrad and Mos-

C. I. O. Board Urges Unions to Demand Increases in Wages

Suggests Workers Need Better Pay to Offset Taxes and Living Costs

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 .- The C. I. O. Executive Board today adopted a resolution recommending to affiliated C. I. O. unions that a demand be made in current wage negotiations for a "substantial wage increase."

The Executive Board, at a closed meeting, decided that higher wages should be sought to offset increases in the cost of living and higher taxes. The text of the resolution, released by President Philip Murray, said in part that "the most effective prosecution of the war demands that the living standards of the workers be maintained and constantly im-proved, and that the continued existence and growth of lawful unions be guaranteed.'

It added that "the living standards of the workers of the Nation are being seriously threatened, as a result of the spiraling of the cost of living and the inequitably increased taxes upon the low income

The resolution concluded that: "1. The Executive Board recommends to its amiliated unions that there be incorporated among the demands in current or anticipated col-lective bargaining wage conferences one for a substantial increase and union security; and

"2. The fulfillment of this policy will assure workers that their unions are guaranteed the right to live free from attack and that they will receive a fair share of the national income, which conviction will unleash the unmeasured energy of the workers for maximum war produc-

Mr. Murray declined comment on the resolution.

are Hitler's disciples, but there is only the smallest of organized opposition. For those who show the slightest tendency to transfer their allegiance there is that other strength of National Socialism, its complete and utter ruthlessness, and so far it has kept them in line. Broadcasters did not return to the air until 10:30 a.m., after the unidentified craft had left the area, and reliable commander who has and the interceptor command gave the all-clear signal. Hershey Says Plants Must Triple Man Power

By the Associated Press INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 26.-Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, asserted last night America's industrial manpower must be tripled in the next 12 months to keep pace with demands for equipment of the expanding military forces.

If the war is long, he told the annual secretaries' conference of the Indiana State Medical Association, it might be necessary for partly disabled and older men to take over industrial jobs of young men called to military service.

British Line Holds Against Japanese East of Moulmein

American Air Volunteers Add to Laurels in Fight Near Rangoon

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 26 .-The British command today reported "no change of the situation on the Tenasserim front." indicating that British lines east of Moulmein were holding firm against the Japanese invasion from Thailand.

American volunteer airmen with the Chinese air force added to their already long string of laurels on this Asiatic front by flying their Tomahawks into a Japanese fighter force over the Rangoon area. Unofficial reports said-they shot down three Japanese raiders, probably destroyed two others and damaged another. One American flyer failed to get

It was officially announced that 87 Japanese aircraft were destroyed in attacks on Burma and in the Allied air atacks on enemy-occupied country since start of the Pacific war.

The announcement said the Japanese lost 56 planes, with 18 others considered probably destroyed, in daylight raids over Rangoon and Mingaladon, near Rangoon. Thirty-one Japanese planes were definitely destroyed, three more probably destroyed and nine seriously damaged in Allied attacks on Japanese-occupied territory and in air combats over Burma and the Thai frontier. The total Allied losses were put at nine planes.

A Domei, Japanese news agency dispatch from Bangkok said Thailand declared war against Britain and the United States yesterday and had ordered 100,000 Thai troops massed along the Burma border to advance into that British territory in co-operation with the Japanese. There was no mention of the fact that Thai troops already were aiding Japanese invasion of Burma in the Moulmein area. A Berlin announcement said the reason for the Thai declaration was that the country had been attacked by Britain and the United States "30 times by air and 38 imes on land." Thailand, in a military agreement after surrendering to the Jap-anese invasion at the outset of the war in the Pacific, promptly became a major base for Japanese operations against the Allies.

District Tribunal Finding Affirmed; Records and Privacy Safeguarded

The right of the Federal Com-munications Commission to investigate newspaper ownership of radio stations within certain limitations was upheld here today by the Court of Appeals, but the agency was warned that it had no legal right to engage in a "fishing expedition" in its inquiry.

Certain very definite limitations on the scope of the F. C. C. investigation were established by the court, in rendering its decision on an appeal made by James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, and former president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. Mr. Stahlman had been ordered by the F. C. C. to appear before that group in connection with the inquiry into joint newspaper-radio ownership. He had refused and the commission appealed to the District Court to force his appearance. That court held that he had to appear. District Court Upheld. The appellate court today upheld the decision of the District Court on the grounds that the act which established the commission gave it the right to make inquiry into certain aspects of the ownership and operation of radio stations.

The "idea men" of the new War Production Board, who will be entrusted with the all-important job of discovering potential snags in the Nation's war-production effort before they actually are encountered, probably will be named by Chairman Donald M. Nelson before the end of the week, sources close to his office said today. These men will comprise Mr. Nelson's planning division and will represent a function completely lacking heretofore in the war-production setup. In announcing his reorganization, Mr. Nelson said this division would be of utmost importance in the W. P. B.

Together, these three agencies represent the nucleus of Mr. Nelson's organization. What is done by the other divisions materials, production, industry operations, civilian' supply, purchases and labor—will depend largely on reports made by them to the W. P. B. chairman.

The planning division will be made up of five or six members, it was understood. Who they will be was not indicated at the W. P. B. today, but it was considered unlikely that the membership would be drawn from existing agencies under Mr.

Nelson's direction. Although they will have no administrative functions, the planners will be expected to make definite recommendations to Mr. Nelson as to production program alterations that should be made to avoid pitfalls.

Other Officials Named. As head of the progress reporting division, Mr. Nelson already has named Stacy May, director of the Bureau of Research and Statistics: This agency will observe closely steps taken by the various divisions to stimulate war production and report periodically to Mr. Nelson him-

Despite this maneuver, House leaders counted on approval of the conference report after three hours of debate-an approval which would send it to the Senate where farm bloc members were expected to bemoan the elimination of some of the special provisions originally made to govern the prices fixed for farm products.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley predicted speedy approval of the measure, however, and turned his attention to another pressing problem presented by a Democratic attack on a provision of a pending war powers bill which would excuse dollar-a-year men and others serving without compensation from the operations of the Hatch Anti-Politics Act.

Farmers Will Meet War Needs, Wickard Assures Roosevelt

Secretary Predicts Crops This Year Will Exceed Record 1941 Yield

America's farm productive machinery has been shifted from low to high gear, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said today, to assure a maximum supply of food and fiber for those fighting the "world battle for democracy and civiliza-

This accomplishment, he said, was no small one, considering that farmers as well as agricultural officials had for years "been saturated with thoughts of crop surplus problems.' In his annual report to President Roosevelt the cabinet officer said agriculture's speedup program brought about a record production of farm products in 1941 and predicted an even greater output this year to meet an expanding demand at home and from this country's Allies abroad.

Labor Is Scarce.

Secretary Wickard said farmers faced this year's increased production goals with a growing shortage of farm labor, machinery and other means of production

"Despite the handicaps," the Secretary said, "we are ready for the ordeal. Foresight and statesmanship have given us an ever-normal granary, stored with feeds that can be converted into foods. Foresight and statesmanship have provided us a Nation-wide farm adjustment system, which functions as well in high as in low gear and which is capable of mobilizing the resources of almost every farm."

It is the duty, he said, of the Agriculture Department and of farmers to make fullest use of these facilities, with "national safety rather than agricultural advantage as the goal.'

Mr. Wickard asked farmers to view war problems from the national rather than from their group interest. Sharply increased production of food, for example, involves some risks for agriculture, he

World War I Recalled.

"Many farmers remember the surpluses that followed World War I and fear a similar aftermath again, he continued. "In vital respects, however, the situation is different now. In the first place, the danger to our Nation is greater. If Germany wins it will either throttle our export trade altogether or will take our goods merely as preparation for an attack upon us. "In the second place, our farm program, forged out of the problems left by the last World War, is strong enough to meet the strains of the new post-war period, and to keep the production program well in hand. More important still, victory for democracy will postpone the need for readjustments downward in our own farm production. It will give us a transition market and will acilitate gradual changes peacetime basis.

Mr. Wickard also cautioned farmers against a "high-price" policy declaring that advances beyond a certain point might hamper the war program. He re-asserted his belief in the adequacy of parity price goals set up in the 1938 Farm Act. These goals have been reached for most commodities, he said.

"Efforts to push farm prices above parity may endanger the parity principle itself," he said. "The national farm program, with its commodity loans and its parity and conservation payments, has had full support up to now of the general public and of consumers. This is because it has been fair. Attempts to raise farm prices out of line with other prices; and to bolster them with artificial scarcity, might prove disastrous.

Trade Treaties Defended.

The Secretary asked also that farmers take a national view of this country's efforts to improve trade relations with Latin and South America through trade agreements. While conceding that such agreements often "rub sore spots on agriculture's skin and stir old prejudices," Mr. Wickard denied that they were harmful to American farmers He argued that they opened up new markets for all types of American "Farmers should remember," he declared, "that the agreements have more than an economic justification. They are the pillars in our hemisphere defense - vital safeguards against Nazi penetration, both commercial and military."

Looking to the day of victory the Secretary said the United States must be prepared to send large quantities of food and agricultural supplies to Europe, or be prepared to wrestle with new forces of destruc-

It will pay the United States to help, if we have the assurance that the result will be a long peace rather than new civil or international war. he said. "Under our lend-lease program now we are providing foods and munitions to repel aggression. The same logic will suggest the use of foods to guard against a repetition of the danger of revolutionary upheavals in Europe

Warns Against Price Inflation. Payment for such help, he said, may not be immediately in goods or gold, but simply collaboration in world healing.

"As such," he said, "it might be highly acceptable."

Mr. Wickard's report warned against price inflation, and of its possible effects on agriculture. He expressed the opinion that it could be checked and possibly stopped by a combination of price controls and Government fiscal policy.

"Actually, most farmers oppose inflated prices; for themselves they want only fair prices-now and later," he said. "As long as the parity principle works they have that benefit. Parity prices of course must rise with other prices; but if other prices rise too fast, as in the end they do in inflationary situations, maintenance of parity is difficult or impossible. Farmers consequently have reason to approve action that will curb speculation and prevent run-away prices, even if it means putting a ceiling on

REPORT TO THE NATION

Fourth Installment of MacLeish Statement on War Effort

V. The Battle of Economics

While our sea, land and air fighters are meeting the Axis throughout the world, action has been joined on still another front. This silent and stubborn battle may well be the most decisive of all. It is the battle of economics. It is a war of commerce and shipping, of barter and buying, of loans and agreements, of blacklist and blockade. It is starvation for our enemies and food for our friends.

The term "economic warfare," with all its exciting, if vague, connotations, has become familiar to the average citizen in recent months. Just what does it mean? It means fighting the Messerschmitt before it is a Messerschmitt, fighting the tank before it is a tank, smashing the submarine before it can go to sea. It means preventing the manufacture of Axis weapons of war by preventing the Axis from getting raw materials. It means getting raw materials for our own production.

In the days of the Napoleonic wars, indeed of our own Civil War, the technical equipment of armies was relatively modest, and a belligerent nation could furnish its own metal and supply. To prosecute war successfully today -to build planes, ships, armaments-raw materials must be brought from every corner of the earth.

Metal Needed for War Tools.

The production of the tools of war is an endless adventure into chemistry and metallurgy. Armor plate for battleships and tanks requires not only steel but manganese, nickel, chromite, tungsten and Vanadium-coming from Latin America, Canada, Turkey, Africa and China. Armor-piercing bullets and highspeed tools depend upon tungsten that comes from China, Bolivia and the Argentine. Platinum is needed in the manufacture of smokeless powder. Platinum comes from Colombia, Canada, South Africa and the Soviet Union. South America's bauxite becomes aluminum for airplanes.

For more than 18 months a host of Government agencies, each working in its own specialized field, has been laying the battle lines to see that we get these necessities, and that the Axis doesn't.

One of our most important moves in this battle of economies has been to counter the enemy's attacks upon us. He has worked for many years to wearen our military potential. Through patent controls, and cartel agreements he succeeded in limiting American production and export of many vital materials. He kept the prices of these materials up and the output down. He was waging war, and he did his work well, decoying important American companies into agreements, the purpose of which they did not sense. Our businessmen were peaceful traders. The enemy's businessmen were and are, all over the world, agents of aggres-

The list of materials affected is long-beryllium, optical instruments, magnesium, tungsten carbide, pharmaceuticals, hormones, dyes and many more. When you match each product with its military use, the significance of the attack becomes clear, Beryllium is a vital element for alloys that make shell springs; magnesium makes airplanes and incendiary bombs; tungsten carbide is essential for precision machine

Enemy Long Unchecked.

Concealed behind dummy corporations, the enemy went unchecked for years, using our own legal machinery to hamstring us. In the summer of 1938 our Government began to fight back. Investigation, exposure, antitrust indictments and decrees have broken up many of the agreements that bound us. Each product listed above is now free from restrictions.

Our Government also has worked to break cartel arrangements under which certain of our products were shut off from South America and other markets of the world.

Not all our action on the economic front has been defensive. Since April of 1940 we also have carried the economic battle to the enemy.

More than $7,000,000,000 of assets of 33 foreign countries have been frozen in the United States." Such action automatically severs normal economic relations between the United States and these countries.

Foreign funds control helps our friends and harms our enemies. When Germany invaded Denmark and Norway, the President by executive order, froze Danish and Norwegian assets in this country. Thus, the assets of these countries are prevented from falling into Axis hands. As other nations were invaded or dominated, the control was extended successively to the Netherlands. Belgium, France, and the Balkan Axis' Assets Frozen.

In June, 1941, the assets of Germany, Italy and their satellites were frozen and, shortly afterward, the assets of Japan. The control now embraces all of continental Europe except Turkey. After the fall of Manila the assets of the Philippines were frozen to thwart the Japanese. Blocked assets include bank deposits, earchandise, patents, business enterprises, and other forms of property. These things, in themselves, are the tools of economic warfare. The freezing of assets paralyzed German and Italian efforts to acquire vital and strategic materials in the Western Hemisphere. The Axis was using American dollars and American banking facilities to underwrite sabotage, spying and a propaganda campaign in both North and South America. The blocking of Axis assets abruptly choked this poisonous stream.

Against Japan, the blow was even more telling. Japan's economy is heavily dependent on imports. So is her war machine. Japan's purchases of mercuryvital in certain explosives-increased 240 times in 1940 over the amounts acquired in 1938. Her purchases of zinc increased 60 times. In a 21/2-year period she bought 4,350,000 tons of scrap iron and steel here. This accumulation of stocks for the war that is now a reality ended on July 26, when the United States, Great Britain and the Dutch simultaneously applied freezing control.

License Control Applied.

Approximately 2,500 business enterprises with varying degrees of foreign domination now are operating under licenses granted by the Foreign Funds Control. Each firm is required to file an affidavit giving the organization of the corporation, officers and directors, nature of operations, and its principal customers. Periodic reports must also be filed. As a result of this, plus the first comprehensive census ever made of foreign-held property in the United States, the Treasury Department now has in its files strategic information on the structure, activities and background of Axis-owned and Axisdominated concerns.

All security accounts of foreigners have been frozen. The unlicensed importation of securities from any foreign country has been prohibited. This struck against the Axis, which has attempted to dump into the American market a wealth of securities looted from fallen coun-

Another powerful weapon in fighting Axis influence has been the blacklist or, to give it its legal name, the proclaimed list of certain blocked nationals. First-used against Axis agents in this hemisphere, the blacklist has now been extended to cover the neutral nations of Europe.

The blacklist is, in effect, a roll call of individuals and firms with which Americans must not trade. There are now approximately 5,600 names on the list. They represent billions in Axis investment. In one small Central American country alone German firms did an annual business of between $75,000,000 and $100,-000.000

The names on the blacklist-a Who's Who of Axis undercover agents and their dummies-represent months of investigation and intelligence work by the Office of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs, the Department of Justice, Treasury, the Department of Commerce. and State Department's diplomatic missions in the various countries.

Dislocations Prevented.

Particular effort has been made to prevent dislocation of the economy of the democracies of the Americas, as a result of the eradication of Axis influences. Guatemala is an example. The Germans there owned 50 per cent of the coffee industry. To have barred this German-grown coffee from the United States would have created a desperate financial crisis in Guatemala. Treasury and State Department representatives arranged for the Guatemalan government to take over the coffee crop and clear it to this country through a central bank in Guatemala City. The blacklist has effectively ended, except for small quantity smuggling, all direct trade with Axis firms. The problem now is to deal with firms serving as cloaks for enemy trading. The profits from dealing in contraband are enormous. Some companies have been offered as much as 75 per cent of the value of an export cargo merely for the use of their names as the shippers. It is now accurate to say that Hitler and his partners will find no further economic aid or comfort in the republics of the Amer-

Directing our campaign in this battle of trade, the Board of Economic Warfare aids the military in the establishment of blockades. It also is empowered to control exports under a licensing system and to requisition and seize commodities whose export is forbidden under emer-

Recently 590,000 pounds of tin plate were seized in a New York warehouse. Purchased a year ago and kept in storage, the tin plate was consigned to an industrial concern in a nation now dominated by the Axis. Thousands of tons of aluminum and iron and steel products originally billed for similar destinations have been found in warehouses and in railroad yards. The Government is taking over and using these goods.

Axis Air Lines Curbed. Control of exports and the blacklist are inseparable. The shipment of many non-vital commodities to South America and the British Empire is freely perlicenses, but such licenses are not granted until the blacklist has been consulted. Issuing of licenses has been greatly speeded so that legitimate industry does not suffer. Some 3,000 applications are being handled a day. In most instances a decision is made within two days.

The elimination of Axis-controlled air lines in South America is another excellent example of successful economic warfare. The shipment of high-octane gasoline to suspect companies was cut off. Most of the republics wanted to buy out foreign owners, but lacked the means. An $8,000,000 lending fund was set up to facilitate these purchases. In September of 1939 there were 4,109 miles of Axis-dominated lines in Bolivia; now there are none. There were 5,494 miles in Colombia, 594 miles in Ecuador. 1,210 miles in Peru. Now there are none. The job is virtually complete in other countries.

Not content to block the export of products from the United States to the Axis, we have worked to prevent the Axis from getting strategic materials from any country. We have contracted for the purchase of materials which might otherwise be sold to enemy agents.

Before the end of 1940 agreements had been signed which assured us substantially the entire copper production of Chile. Mexico and Peru. In November, 1940, we agreed to buy almost all Bolivian tin not earmarked for Great Britain. A few months later, in the face of higher Japanese bids, an agreement was made to purchase Bolivia's entire tungsten output. Under the 1941 agreements with Brazil, Mexico and Peru, we are taking the entire exportable surplus of almost all their strategic materials. We have made similar arrangements for the control of Colombian platinum and Cuban sugar.

Reserve Supplies Guarded.

Choking off the enemy's sources of materials fitted naturally into our broader efforts to obtain our own stocks. The Government's stock-piling program—to build up reserves of imported war materials which might be cut off in time of war-began in the summer of 1939, but feebly. It was stepped up after the fall of France. These reserves will continue to be bolstered, but their exact size will be kept secret. As users of tires and golf balls are now aware, supplies of some materials are not sufficient to meet both our fighting needs and our civilian desires.

Special studies have uncovered processes for treating low-grade domestic ores, providing new sources of strategic metals. Agriculture research men are working to develop substitutes for materials which we have imported from the Far East. New uses have been found for some of our own most common products.

In the case of rubber, we are supplementing our stock pile by building synthetic rubber plants, by increasing the reclaiming of rubber, by stimulating rubber production in South America, and by preparing the way for increased production of guayule rubber which comes from a shrub we can grow in our own South-

Our dependence on the democracies of the Americas for strategic materials carries with it an obligation to send in return the manufactured goods they can get nowhere else. It is a part of our economic policy to continue sumcient exports to our neighbors to satisfy their minimum essential requirements, treating their civilian needs as we would our own. Special consideration has been given to supply them with machinery needed for their part in the productive effort. We have granted export licenses for tin plate to maintain the canning industry of South America. We have given high priority ratings for railroad equipment to Brazil. Financing Explained.

The allocation of supplies is worked out, so far as possible, in co-operation with the other American governments.

To aid in the financing of these purchases and to develop new, untouched resources the Export-Import Bank has granted loans and credits to 18 American republics. For example, credit was extended to Brazil for the erection of a steel plant. Costa Rica, Ecuador, Nicaragua, El Salvador, and Panama have received loans for highway improvements; Haiti for rubber production. Outstanding loans and undisbursed commitments now total approximately $290,000,000.

Beyond today's objective, to defeat the Axis in the war, lies the peace of tomorrow. The economic highways we have picneered in war will still be there. If we have pioneered well, the blows struck in economic warfare will be blows struck for our future freedom and prosperity, and the freedom and prosperity of all friendly nations, large and small, everywhere.

Educational Project Due To Run Two Years May Points to Change in Continue Indefinitely

By JOSEPH A. RAWLINGS,

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.-Music is singing a song of Pan-American unity. Through its medium, innumerable staunch friendships between the peoples of North and South America American shipping for moving raw are being built in steadily growing materials to this country and war peoples of North and South America

These observations were made today by C. V. Buttelman, executive secretary of the Music Educators a privately funded organization. National Conference, in an interview. He surveyed the effects of 000 tons of shipping would be needed more than a year of work on a to supply an American expeditionary music - for - uniting - the - Americas movement, and announced the project, originally planned for at least two years, probably would be carried on indefinitely.

Curiosity Opening Wedge. Since the movement—one of several phases of a general American unity through music program-got under way a year ago last October,

Mr. Buttelman said he noted: 1. A sharp rise in the Latin American folk lore music being used in the music departments of the schools throughout the United States, as well as a steadily increasing spread of the popular or "Tin-Pan-Alley" types in other places, including the radio-and a corresponding advance in the popularity of North American music in the other new world republics. 2. The springing up of a legion of natural friendships between North and South Americans as a result of visits to North American schools by professors, teachers and students of music from the other American republics.

Mr. Buttelman attributed the rapid growth of friendships through music to the "natural curiosity that one musician has for another's work"-a curiosity which becomes the opening and unforced wedge to mutual understandings in other in-

"Because the curiosity is not forced," he said, "it becomes much easier to integrate interests through culture than through commerce. A salesman may be suspect, but when one musician visits another musician -just for a visit, with nothing to sell—their mutual curiosity leads to understandings of other problems and results in lasting friendships. The original contact is all that is needed to establish these very fine understandings.

Sympathetic Attitude. "Something that happened to me illustrates the point. After I had met Luiz Heitor Correa de Azevedo, a musicologist from the University Brazil, at the Pan-American Union in Washington, I learned so much about Brazil that for the first time in my life I found myself anxious to go to Rio. "Until then South America had seemed as far away to me as Asia. Literally hundreds of other persons making a musical contact with this one man, have exactly the same feeling that I have. It would be hard for me now to have anything but a sympathetic attitude toward all of South America, particularly Brazil. The Music Educators' Conference is a department of the National Education Association. Approximately 90 different musical organizations. including more than a score of State associations of music teachers representing instructors from kindergartens to universities, are affiliated with the conference. When the conference's Board of Directors adopted its general American unity through music program in October of 1940 the plan was submitted to the heads of the organization's units for execution. The results were so gratifying that Mr. Buttelman ventured his prediction would be carried on indefinitely. In addition to the music for uniting the Americas phase, the general program was designed to stimulate music as a morale builder during the defense emergency, promote the consistent use of patriotic and national songs in the schools and colleges and extend the general knowledge and appreciation for American folk and pioneer tunes.

Federal Agencies Co-operate.

The unity for the Americas activities have the support and co-operation of the Pan-American Union the Institute of International Education and two Government agencies, the Office of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs and the Music Advisory Committee of the State Department.

"While our group is taking the leadership in this movement," Mr. EDUCATIONAL.

Any substantial American expeditionary force will have to be carried by United States merchant ships instead of by British vessels, as in the last war, the Foreign Policy Association said yesterday.

The heavy demand on British and goods to the anti-Axis countries has changed the picture since the World War, said a report by the association, The report estimated that 7,000,- association added, "an expeditionary force of this size would engage the great bulk of American tomage that has until now been employed in maintaining a steady flow of raw materials coming into and war sup-plies going out of the United States." The magnitude of this problem, the report said, was contemplated by President Roosevelt when he asked Congress on January 6 to provide for the building of 8,000,000 deadweight tons of shipping in 1942 and 10,000,-000 tons the following year. Buttelman said, "we are getting help from our neighbor organizations,

Mr. Reuther, author of the Reuther plan for conversion of the automobile industry to war production, told an audience of 2,500 here yesterday that unless a rong-range industrial program is developed, the country will go into "another eco-nomic tailspin" after the war.

New Tax Field Sought To Yield Bulk of 9-Billion Increase

Sales and Withholding Levies Are Mentioned By Senator George

A month's intensive study has convinced most congressional fiscal experts that the bulk of a proposed $9.000,000,000 addition to Federal revenues will have to be raised by some new form of taxation, Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee said today.

"The great problem," he declared, "is to determine whether this would be a sales tax, a withholding tax on pay rolls or some other system. There has been no definite decision made on that point.

Senator George told reporters, however, that "satisfactory progress" toward the formation of a new tax program was being made in daily conferences between the Treasury officials and representatives of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue.

The chief problem now, Senator George said, is to find a form of new taxation which would yield a substantial share of the $7,000.-000,000 in general taxes called for in President Roosevelt's budget. Helsinki Minister Says Grain Is Assured Until Next Crop

A dispatch from Helsinki announces that Finnish Minister of Supplies Ramsay has returned home after a visit to Berlin where he contacted Reichsminister of Agriculture Walther Darre. Ramsay's declarations to the Finnish press yesterday indicated that the results of the Berlin conversations were satisfactory, stating that Finland's grain supplies were "assured" until the next crop. No figures on the amount of grain promised by Germany has been disclosed.

Two Conditions for Help. To what extent German help will keep Finland at war depends mainly on two conditions:

(1) How long the Finnish troops will be able to keep up their resistance on the front. Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short were relieved of their commands a few days after the Pearl Harbor attack. Another officer, Maj. Gen. Frederick L. Martin, was relieved of command of the Hawaiian air forces. The commission report did not mention him.

In view of the fact that the investigating board made no reference to Gen. Martin, there was speculation that he might be returned to active command.

BERLIN, Jan. 26 (Official Broadcast) (A).-The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokio announcement last night that all British aircraft in Malaya at the outbreak of war have been destroyed, but it acknowledged that "a large number of additional planes seems to have arrived at Singapore between January 15-23." The announcement, attributed to apanese imperial headquarters, said these reinforcements came from In-

Arms Being Delivered Now Were Sent Before Pacific War Began

By A. T. STEELE, Correspondent of The Star and

Chicago Daily News. MOSCOW, Jan. 27. - American war materials promised to Russia during the three-power conference here are at last beginning to arrive in the Soviet Union in quantities that count. Deliveries were slow in starting, but have reached sizable volume in the past couple of weeks. However, most of the stuff now being delivered was shipped from the United States prior to the beginning of the Pacific war. It is naturally expected that the Pacific conflict will temporarily affect the flow of American munitions to this country, especially in certain categories required for the American war effort. Nevertheless. the Russians have been given to understand that despite modified delivery schedules, the United States has no intention of reducing the total amounts pledged to Russia over the long run. If anything, the quantities will be augmented when American production and shipping capacity ultimately makes that feasible, it is understood.

So far American and British material has not reached sufficient volume seriously to influence the course of the war in Russia. But it is a growing factor and by spring or summer should be making itself felt in an important way

We Must Act Now!

Sunday a week ago Budget Director Smith, representing the executive agencies, outlined in broad strokes the physical proportions of the problem to be created in Washington by the prospective influx of 250,000 persons, drawn here in the next twelve months by the war program.

Yesterday, a week later. District Budget Officer Fowler, representing the municipal government, furnished a statement of estimated increases in Capital City expenses to result from this extraordinary population, added to an already overcrowded

Thus we have two sides of a triangular problem. The third sideor the base-is represented in the steps to be taken by the exclusivelycontrolling Congress in enacting necessary legislation and appropriating the money enabling the municipality to meet the load which the Nation's war needs will impose on the Capital

Obviously, extraordinary steps must be taken to meet an extraordinary situation. Obviously, it cannot be met in unrelated, piecemeal steps without careful co-ordination between the three agencies of Government involved-the executive and legislative branches and the municipal government, the latter serving both legislative and executive branches in administration of District of Columbia affairs.

District estimates for fiscal 1943 were drawn and in effect approved by the President before Pearl Harbor. Pearl Harbor knocked them outditions. Why not withdraw these estimates, before hearings on them begin, and start over again in an attempt to plan in some orderly fashion to deal with the unprecedented realities of the situation now facing the District? Either that should be done or an emergency war budget should be superimposed on the normal budget and dealt with separately.

We can no longer hope for desirable results by depending on the normal-but now obsolete-process of local budget making, involving the practically independent functioning of the Commissioners, the Budget Bureau and at least four subcommittees and four full committees of Congress, in addition to House and Senate.

The situation calls for basic decisions to be reached jointly by representatives of the Budget Bureau, the Commissioners, the District legislative and appropriations committees of Congress. These decisions should be based on the Budget Bureau's best estimates of the load to be imposed on the Capital by the war, the Commissioners' best estimates of the new capital outlays and increased maintenance funds necessary to meet the load and a congressional plan for some equitable and practical method in apportioning the expense between the National Government and the local community. Decisions thus arrived at should be strengthened by the prestige of presidential approval. Can we not act now, before it is too late? Can there not be agreement on a sensible conception of the Capital's problem and an equally sensible method of meeting it? Certainly we cannot permit, in the Nation's Capital, repetition in another form of the disgraceful tragedy of Pearl Harbor-a tragedy which would have been averted by proper co-ordination of responsibility and action in the face of adequate warning.

Labor Armistice

The acceptance by the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations of the President's proposal for the appointment of three-man committees representing each organization to consult with him on questions relating to labor's participation in the war effort constitutes what might be called a labor armistice, but falls far short of a rapprochement between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

In effect, the two wings of labor have agreed to call off their interorganizational war for the duration of the greater hostilities in which the Nation is involved. What is to follow after that is any man's guess.

The President's proposal was advanced as an alternative to the call from John L. Lewis for a resumption of negotiations looking toward a fullfledged peace settlement between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. Since the two labor groups already had subscribed to a no-strike agreement while the shooting war lasts, Mr.

that his committee proposal would cers and enlisted men . . demonprove adequate to adjust any labor problems that might arise without incurring the risk of inflaming old hatreds and possibly engendering new ones which might attend a renewal of outright peace negotiations. As far as it goes, this is probably valid reasoning, but it can hardly disguise the fact that the real barrier to the Lewis peace offensive was the old one of clashing personalities and mutual distrust within the labor movement. For some reason Mr. Lewis advanced his proposal without consulting Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., who first learned of it through the newspapers. That, as events have proved, was a tactical blunder of the first magnitude, and has served only to widen the breach between these two erstwhile friends. In the present state of affairs, the C. I. O. Executive Board stands squarely behind Mr. Murray, and Mr. Lewis has been rather roughly shouldered out of the picture.

It remains to be seen what the latter's next move will be, but it is merely stating the obvious to say that Mr. Lewis' star as a labor leader -outside the confines of his own United Mine Workers-is definitely on the wane. In three major clashes -first with A. F. of L. President William Green, then with Mr. Roosevelt, and, finally, with Mr. Murray-he has emerged second best. For him, as in the case of other former champions, the comeback trail will prove long and hard.

Russo-German Climax

Momentous changes in the military situation during the past week indicate that the supreme test of the winter campaign in Russia may be at hand. It is now nearly two months since the Red Armies began their general counteroffensive, nicely timed when the last German offensive had fought itself to a standstill amid the early rigors of the Russian winter, which caught the Germans exhausted, ill clad, with dangerously extended salients and with congested Paced by crack Siberian corps. fresh and splendidly equipped, the Russian offensive gained initial successes which imperiled the German pincer arms and caused them heavy losses. However, the German high command straightened their lines with the obvious intention of retreating slowly to a defensible front which they could hold until spring. For a solid month the Russians hammered the slowly retiring Germans, doing them much damage, yet nowhere breaking down the stubborn defense.

Then, just a week ago, the scene changed sharply in the Russians' rendered them virtually without favor. The pivotal German strongmeaning in respect to changed con- hold of Mozhaisk, within striking distance of Moscow, fell before a tremendous frontal attack combined with pincer movements against what had become an exposed salient. The survivors of the 100,000 defenders are now retreating along the law enforcement officers by wiremain railroad and highway to Viazma and Smolensk.

This, in itself, is not a disaster. What imperils the entire German central front is the first real Russian break-through to the northward, which, despite deep snow and 40 - below - zero cold, has already driven 70 miles. Here the Russian advance guards stand far to the west of Smolensk and due south of Leningrad, at a point where they claim to have cut the main north-south railway line from Leningrad to the Ukraine, which is the chief German lateral communication line. Furthermore, the Russians here are only 50 miles from the other trunk railway which supplies their northern armies besieging Leningrad. This Russian break-through not only imperils the German northern and central army groups, but has been made in conjunction with a second Russian advance south of Mozhaisk which threatens to grip the German Viazma-Smolensk line in a gigantic pincers movement. Unless the Germans can check both these sweeping Russian advances, their entire eastern front, as now constituted, will be in jeopardy and a general retreat under terrible climatic handicaps can alone save them from repeated encirclements and destruction in detail. The Russian winter is now approaching its peak of cold, while the heaviest snowfall comes in February and early March. The Germans must face at least two months when their handicaps on both men and equipment will be most severe. This is the grim ordeal they must weather against an enemy flushed with success and determined to make the most of every advantage.

Constructive Lesson

A second reading of the Roberts report suggests one thought that may be worthy of mention. It is this: That nothing discovered by the investigating commission represents proof that Japan enjoys any distinctive inherent advantage which the United States has been shown to lack. The success of the raid on Pearl Harbor may be attributed to complacency on the part of American commanders who simply could not imagine an air attack upon Hawaii.

American plans for the defense of Pearl Harbor were "adequate." There were deficiences in men and weapons, but the major fault was that of human errors of judgment, "a lack of appreciation" of danger. As to the Roosevelt is understood to have felt | rank and file, the report says: "Offi- | wire-tapping legislation.

strated excellent training and high morale." The Japanese paid for their "victory" a heavier price than the world at first supposed. At least 30 of their "estimated force of from 150 to 200 fighting, bombing and torpedo planes" were brought down. More important, however, has been the result of the incident in the United States. The assault upon Hawaii united the American people as perhaps nothing else could have brought them together. It also taught them that nothing ever again needlessly may be left to chance. From now on they should be prepared for the most surprising developments conceivable. They have learned that it is wise to anticipate disaster-and thus to prevent it. Machines and supplies, they understand, must be provided in unlimited quantities-planes, tanks, guns of every modern sort, ships of every useful kind, munitions for every defensive and offensive purpose, materiel of every necessary variety.

In terms of potential production, the United States is superior. The Nation's genius of invention, mechanical skill, willingness to sacrifice, essential strength and stalwartness of character are required to the end that life may be tolerable in the years ahead. "Force." as Woodrow Wilson expressed it, "force to the utmost" and the highest creative intelligence of which "we, the people" of this good free land, may be capable are demanded for the survival of our civilization. Justice Roberts and his fellow members of the board of inquiry have shocked America into a new comprehension of both the peril in which the Republic and its Allies stand and the promise of triumph to which by processes of blood and sweat they may attain.

Protecting the Spies

The Roberts Board of Inquiry lists high among "causes contributory to the success of the Japanese attack" which prevented effective counterespionage." These restrictions, the report explains, prevented the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Army and Navy intelligence services from resorting to "certain methods of obtaining the content of messages transmitted by telephone or radiotelegraph over the commercial lines operating between Oahu and Japan." Had the F. B. I. and intelligence officers been permitted to intercept these messages, the report asserted, they might have obtained "valuable information."

The restrictions to which the board referred were threefold—legislative judicial and administrative. The statutory prohibition is a clause in the Federal Communications Act of 1934 forbidding any person to "intercept any communications and divulge or publish" them. The Supreme outlawing any evidence obtained by | of the standard of living. tapping or any other means of intercepting messages sent by wire or wireless. The Pearl Harbor report discloses that the War Department reinforced these statutory and judicial restrictions with an implied warning-and an obviously logical one—against use of any "illegal measures" in combating espionage and sabotage in Hawaii. From this it is reasonable to infer that by employing illegal measures our counterespionage agents in Hawaii might have been able to obtain information which would have prevented Pearl Harbor from being caught off guard on December 7 last. This natural assumption prompts the question: Why was this dangerous and absurd legal restriction on "effective counterespionage" permitted to continue in a time of great national emergency?

That is a long, sad and, in view of what has happened in the Pacific, a tragic story. It is a story of too great concern in some congressional quarters over possible "abuses" of wiretapping and too little concern over the potential perils involved in what Justice Jackson, as Attorney General, described as "guaranteeing" to spies and criminals "the safe use of the channels of wire and wireless." That is exactly what the present F. C. C. Act, in effect, does. Director Hoover of the F. B. I., Mr. Jackson. Attorney General Biddle and President Roosevelt are among those who foresaw the dangers of such a guaranty. All of them have urged enactment of special legislation to permit the F. B. I. and the Army and Navy intelligence officers to listen in on the wire and wireless messages of spies and saboteurs and to use information thus obtained as evidence in court. The House passed a bill of this nature in August, 1940, but Chairman Wheeler of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, who dislikes wire-tapping in any form, allowed the bill to die in a committee pigeonhole. Representative Hobbs of Alabama sponsored a second bill last year, but it was defeated in the House by a close vote, after opponents had raised the old cry against "invading privacy of the home." But, as The Star pointed out at the time, "the only privacy which the bill sought to invade was that of espionage agents, saboteurs and kidnapers."

So, fantastic as it may seem, our counterespionage agents in Hawaii were compelled by law to stand by helplessly while known spies were using the wires and radio to plot our destruction. What is even more incredible is that this situation continues to exist there and elsewhere to this day, although we are actually at war. And it will continue to exist until Congress awakens to its grave responsibility and quickly rectifies its errors of judgment with respect to

Forced Savings Held Necessary

Writer Sees Security Of Family Imperiled By Heavy Costs of War

By S. H. De Vault. There has been a great deal of discussion of the increase in the national income and the amount of money that is available for taxes and savings. Little consideration has been given to the effect of the increased living costs on the amount of money available for taxes and savings.

Normally, the percentages of the total income that go for cost of living are as follows: Rent, 25 per cent; food, 30 per cent; insurance, 8 per cent; automobile, 10 per cent; household items, 12 per cent; savings and taxes, 15 per cent. On the basis of these figures, it is apparent that the cost of living consumes about 85 per cent of the total national income, leaving 15 per cent for taxes and savings. Certain personal taxes are included in the 85 per cent of the income which goes for family living.

In 1940 the total national income was 76 billions of dollars. Assuming that 85 per cent of this went for items of family living, this would give a total of 64.6 billions of dollars. The 15 per cent of the national income would be equivalent to 11.4 billions of dollars available for taxes and savings.

From August, 1939, to December, 1941. the cost of living rose 12 per cent. The national income in 1941 has been estimated at 92 billions of dollars. Therefore the amount of money available for family living was 78.2 billions of dollars; the amount available for taxes and savings was 13.8 billions of dollars. If the amount available for living is deflated by 12 per cent, the equivalent of the rise in the cost of living, there is left 68.8 billions of dollars as the real cost of living. When this is added to the 13.8 billions of dollars for taxes and savings. it gives a total of 82.6 billions of dollars on Pearl Harbor certain "restrictions of real income. Had not the cost of living risen 12 per cent in 1941, there would have been available an additional 9.4 billions of dollars for savings and taxes or for improvement of the standard of living. This means that the increase in the gross national income cannot all be syphoned off in the form of additional taxes without affecting adversely the standard of living. The national income for 1942 is estimated at about 110 billions of dollars, of which cost of living will consume 93.5 billions of dollars, leaving 16.5 billions of dollars for savings and taxes. However, the cost of living will probably rise to 20 per cent above the August, 1939, figure by the middle of 1942. When the 93.5 billions of dollars is deflated by 20 per cent, there is left 74.8 billions of dollars as the real cost of living. Adding this to the 16.5 billions of dollars gives 91.3 billions of dollars as the real income. Had the cost of living not risen 20 per cent above the August, 1939. figure, there would have been available an additional 18.7 billions of dollars for Court has interpreted this phrase as savings and taxes or for improvement

Federal taxes in 1940 amounted to $6.829,000,000, leaving $4.571,000,000 as savings. Federal taxes in 1941 are estimated at 13 billions of dollars. The money available for taxes and savings in 1941 was 13.8 billions of dollars, leaving 0.8 of a billion dollars for savings in addition to the items of savings included in the cost of living, such as equity in property, life insurance, etc. These figures are on a calendar year basis and do not indicate the true situation. For example, certain taxes, such as income taxes levied against 1941 incomes, are not collected until 1942 and the real burden of these taxes will not be felt until about March 15, 1942.

The amount of money available in 1942 for taxes and savings is 16.5 billions of dollars. As the rate of increase in national income exceeds the rate of increase in cost of living, more of the total national income is available for savings or taxes.

The Federal Government expects to collect in taxes in 1942, 22 billions of dollars, or 9 billions of dollars in excess of the 1941 collections. It is apparent then that if taxes absorb 22 billions of dollars in 1942 nothing will be left for savings if an adequate standard of living is maintained. Increased war production, however, substantially will reduce the quantity of goods available for civilian use, which may reduce somewhat that proportion of the national income going to family living. It should be kept in mind that these figures are general and apply to all occupational or income groups. Persons with fixed salaries will be at a decided disadvantage because a 20 per cent rise in the cost of living is equivalent to almost a 20 per cent reduction in salaries or wages. Likewise, the businesses engaged in the manufacture or sale of certain civilian goods or in the manufacture or sale of goods now needed for defense purposes will be affected adversely. This applies specifically to businesses such as tire dealers, automobile dealers, concerns engaged in the selling of certain manufactured articles, such as washing machines, vacuum eleaners, radios, etc.

The savings of most people in the low and medium income brackets go into the accumulation of equity in their mortgaged property and into life insurance savings. These items alone may take as much as 35 or 40 per cent of the family gross income. Families with these fixed obligations may find it difficult to pay taxes and may be either forced to borrow money to pay their taxes or to forego ownership of property or life insurance. Those workers whose incomes are not fixed but increase with the rise in the cost of living will be relatively better off. The purchasing power of persons engaged in manufacturing businesses has increased as fast as or faster than the increase in the cost of living. In other words, they can pay their taxes and still have more left as savings than in former years, when their wages were considerably lower. As much of the expenses of the war as economically feasible should be financed through taxes, but if the increased taxes are so much as to affect materially family living and savings, this might jeopardize the economic security of the family. Some plan of forced savings should be inaugurated. Through forced

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"LEESBURG, VA.

"Dear Sir: "Can you assist me in identifying these birds from the following rather inadequate description? I believe them to be titmice-but am not sure. "The head, neck and back a greenish sulphur color; breast shading into a light yellow-almost white. "The wings are distinctly barred black and white, or dark green and white. "The little fellows are smaller than an English sparrow, are very quick in movement, and sprightly, hanging and feeding head down on the house vines. "They do not seem to care for the bird seed and suet that is put out.

"Yours very truly, G. R. P." Our correspondent has given a very good description of the goldfinch in its winter dress.

This is the famous "wild canary," as it is called in some parts of the country. Other popular names for this fine species are yellow bird, thistle bird, catnip bird, lettuce bird, shiner, salad bird, beet bird and American goldfinch. Wild canary is the most common, perhaps.

· Certainly it well describes this bird especially in the summer dress, when the male is a pure lemon or canary yellow.

The feeding habits of this bird are interesting. Hereabouts the goldfinch eats dandelion seeds and chickweed. They light on such light stalks that they bend under them, and this often puts the little consumers heads down. Both male and female are more greenish in winter.

A good account of the feeding habits is contained in "Birds of America." from which we quote: "In winter this goldfinch feeds largely on weed seeds, the seeds of birches and those of the buttonbush.

"In summer it subsists to a large extent on weed seeds, but destroys many noxious insects, such as cankerworms plant lice, small grasshoppers and beetles.

"The habit of feeding on thistles, which has given the species the common name of 'thistle bird," is well exemplified by the following field note: A thistle on which a goldfinch had been feeding was examined and on its leaves and the ground beneath 67 seeds were counted.

"They appeared perfect, but close inspection showed a slit through which the meaty kernal had been deftly re-

"Dr. S. D. Judd reports having been able to approach within 10 feet of four goldfinches, who were feeding on ragweed. Often they would alight on the same plant at once, then they would wrench off the seeds, extract the meat and drop the shell, their actions resembling those of a canary at its seed "In one instance three alighted on a very small plant, which under their weight bent to the ground. Nothing downward, until they touched the earth, long as agriculture exists.

then shifting their position so as to hold the stems under their feet, went on with their meal."

* * * * A reader of this column, while visiting friends in the spring, watched goldfinches feasting away on something in the lawn.

Examining this patch later, he discovered that it was chickweed they were after.

Perhaps this is one good reason why too much bother is made over chickweed by many persons who like a good lawn. While it is true that chickweed is a nuisance, and ought to be got rid of, somehow, maybe it is just as well to give the goldfinches a chance at it. In this way the nusiance may be much mitigated, while at the same time some of the best of our birds will be given a favorite food. It is a question whether many lawn makers do not do too much pawing around over their grass. A good lawn ought not to be such a difficult matter as it often seems. Perhaps by using plenty of seed, and trying to outsmart the various weeds simply by smothering them with the best types of grass plants. we might have fairly good lawns without perpetually trying to uproot all the crabgrass and chickweed. Between these two, a lawn will look bare the year around, if too much time is spent on trying to oust them. The grass seed, both in the spring and fall.

secret may lie-we are not sure-in planting two or three times as much as one commonly thinks enough. In this way, at least in theory, (and we hope in practice), the unwanted weeds are forced out through sheer luxuriance of desirable grasses. If such a scheme is tried, care must be taken to keep the newly planted lawn well watered at all times, not just a sprinkle, but a good soaking, every other day.

The finch family is the largest of all the bird families. More than a thousand species exist the world around. The United States has about 200 species, including some of the finest of all the birds, the various buntings, grossbeaks, the cardinal, the beautiful purple finch the goldfinch, snow bunting, and all the sparrows.

The towhee, a favorite hereabouts also is a finch.

The indigo bunting, often seen in suburban communities, belongs to the Ornithologists have estimated that the finches save more than $100,000,000 year for the farmers of the country.

In this desirable result the humble English sparrow has a part, although some persons would not be willing to admit it.

Young sparrows of all species, exclusively insectivorous until August, at that time take to eating weed seeds, which have just ripened.

In this way, the finches put America in daunted, they clung to the sprays, heads | their debt, and will centinue to do so as

Letters to the Editor

Denies That League Failed Because of American Fault. To the Editor of The Star

I have read with interest Melvin Hildreth's letter dealing with the League of Nations. Mr. Hildreth seems to feel that there is a general misconception as to the present status of the League and stoutly denies its failure or demise.

The ideal for which this great international agency stood certainly has not died. Even its critics recognized the League as an instrument of great potentional value and power-which in impartial hands might have prevented the present cataclysm and guided the destinies of nations for generations to come.

There is a tendency, however, to make the United States a scapegoat for the failure of the League to function. But the League did not fail because America was not a member. Nor did the League fail because of any defect in the admirable machinery established in Geneva. The League of Nations failed. and lost the confidence of the world, because of the hands behind the machine which set its devious course.

That it could not succeed was evident from the first to those who were able to watch it function at close hand. This also was obvious to that most astute observer of international affairs, the late Frank Simonds, who stated in the columns of The Star: "What few American champions of the League have recognized is that Geneva for all practical purposes has become no more than an instrument in the hands of the status quo powers of the European continent."

The attempt of its exponents to place its failure on other grounds must be abandoned and the truth admitted if the Geneva group still entertains the hope that public confidence will be sufficiently restored for the nations to salvage the League and place in its hands for solution the incredible problems that the world must face on the termination of the present conflict. It is obvious that some such international instrument must be secured. But the wrecking of the great experiment in Geneva will make nations hold back until they can be assured of a non-political agency of unimpeachable integrity. GENEVA OBSERVER.

But why were they not smiling? "War nerves," you will say. If so, is that good for us? Some one has said that if you want to pick a man to whip, never select one who smiles while he fights.

In that two-mile walk I found just seven persons smiling out of perhaps two thousand. One girl was smiling to herself as she walked along. A boy and a girl smiled at each other. Further down the street, I overtook three colored persons-a man and two women-and they were laughing out loud and it sounded good to hear them. Later a lady who operates an elevator in one of the agriculture buildings said "Good morning" as I entered and she smiled. I smiled, too, and she remarked, "Well, I'm glad to see some one who can

In C. H. Hill's letter appearing in The Star for January 22, he refers to our custom of calling ourselves Americans as "egotistical" and as assuming a "superior attitude." But why should we not call ourselves Americans? Are we not Americans and proud of it? Our South American friends are also Americans and I am sure we do not question their right to call themselves so. Canadians, however, whom I have met and traveled with, did not wish to be called Americans. When, hearing them refer to us as Americans as distinguished from Canadians, I asked "Are you not also Americans?" the reply invariably was, "No. we are British." V. M. T.

Challenges Complaint About Scarcity of Rooms To the Editor of The Star

Will R. M. Karet, whose letter regarding the housing shortage appeared in The Star of January 21, kindly explain his statement that "many business executives have to spend the night in Baltimore, returning to Washington the next morning": also that "hundreds of persons have to stay in hotel rooms temporarily because they can find no rooms in Washington," when there are five to six entire columns of "rooms for rent" ads in every Sunday's Star. and in the very paper in which his letter appeared there was a column and a half of advertisements of rooms for rent, and also when the Defense Housing Agency of the District of Columbia states that it has listed with them between 3,000 and 4,000 rooms for rent? Pearl Harbor Accusations Analyzed

Our System Held 'Indicted By Implication

By DAVID LAWRENCE. While the Roberts report on the Pearl Harbor tragedy primarily accuses Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short, it really, on careful reading, goes much further. The recital of sensational facts and circumstances indicts a system. And that system involves, by implication, the officials in Washington as well as the commanders in the field at Harbor. For the report David Lawrence. reveals that despite telegraphic warnings issued by Washington to the Hawaiian commanders in ample time, there was no follow-up, no check and double check by high officials in Washington to see if the orders to take proper measures of protection were actually being complied with at Hawaii,

From November 26 to December 7-the day of the Japanese attack-11 whole days elapsed. On the former date it was known to the President and his cabinet that a stiff note had just been sent to Japan by the United States Government demanding, in effect, that Japan should virtually surrender in her war with China.

It was a serious message to send to a first-class naval power and a serious decision. Unfortunately the contents of the note were withheld from the American people and the press until December 7 but the Roberts report shows that Washington for some time had been sending grave warnings and on November 27 and thereafter actually advised the commanders at Hawaii of impending

And yet nobody high up in Washington during those 11 days took the trouble to decide whether Hawaii should be placed under "alert number one" or "alert number two" or "alert number three" or to find out just what form of alert was being ordered in Hawaii.

Indifference Charged.

Nobody in Washington took the trouble to ascertain whether the mechanical detection apparatus which warns of approaching airplanes was being operated in Hawaii for a few hours a day or for 24 hours a day and nobody took the trouble to check up and see whether the Army and Navy commanders were in joint consultation daily on measures of adequate protection for Hawaii against surprise attacks.

This was Washington's job as it would be in any general headquarters responsible for operations in the field where excellent communication facilities exist, including the overseas telephone.

Why also were the cable and radio circuits out of Hawaii to Japan unwatched or still unrestricted after the critical decision of international policy was made on November 26?

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is under the Attorney General who reports to the President. The Navy intelligence officer wanted the F. B. I. to arrest the 200 Japanese spies, but the Army commander in Hawaii intervened and prevented it. Why did no high official in Washington protest against this and by whom were the "restrictions" against counterespionage imposed and why didn't some one in the War or Navy Departments in Washington insist that the President remove such restrictions after November 26?

Above all, why was it that even if Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short did not expect a surprise attack by air, nobody among the senior officers of either the Army or Navy in Hawaii argued for measures of greater protection against such a possibility?

Extra Clerk Hire Criticized. Let the record answer the questions. On December 12 the Senate, by a vote of 53 to 30, inserted in an appropriation bill provision giving each Senator an additional $4,500-ayear clerk. This was done despite pleas of various Senators that it was a shameless and inexcusable thing to do at this time and under these circumstances. Australia Viewed as Likely Rallying Point For United Nations in Southwest Pacific

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Australian authorities have less reason for apprehension today than they had last week, when the Japanese invaded their territory with landings in New Guinea and the Solomon Islands. The situation continues to be threatening, but they are confident that Australia and New Zealand will become rallying points for the United Nations in the Southwest

For the next few weeks the Australians will have to get along as best they can with what men and materials are now at their disposal plus some small assistance from their allies. But while Japan's operations in Australia's vicinity are impressive, they are really not on a large scale.

For the time being the bulk of Japan's force-aviation, mechanized units and infantry—is still engaged in the desperate struggle north of Singapore, in the Netherlands Indies and in the Philip-

The main part of Japan's navy -the battle force-is covering the North Pacific, either because it wants to avoid a surprise American attack or because it plans to renew operations around Alaska or Hawaii. Only a portion of the nine or ten aircraft carriers Japan is supposed to have in commission are operating in the South Pacific.

Moves Are Preliminary.

This general picture serves to indicate that the operations Japan has undertaken around Australia are only preliminaries. The Japs want to establish bases from which to strike in force after Singapore and the Philippines have fallen. But until that happens it is doubtful whether they will throw any important forces against the Australian mainland. In the light of this ultimate Japanese menace to Australia the defenders of the Philippines are selling their lives dearly. Only by some unforeseen miracle could Gen. Douglas MacArthur's army be relieved, but his composite force of Americans and Filipinos is pinning down no less than 15 Jap divisions and part of Japan's light naval forces.

The losses, such as yesterday's. which the "sacrifice divisions" in Luzon are inflicting on the Japanese are such that even if their resistance ends in a few weeks it would take some time before Nipponese forces could be reor-"We just can't pay until we earn ganized and sent to other scenes that they are paying heavily for every inch of ground they are conquering. May Last Another Month. Some of the 20 divisions they reportedly have thrown into that battle have already been wiped out. The remainder, if successful in taking Singapore, will be so shaken and disorganized it will require some time to get them in condition for battle again.

A certain number of Japanese divisions is in reserve in the homeland, and it is logical to assume that these could be sent to Australia at the proper moment. But until both Singapore and the Philippines have ceased to resist—and both fronts appear to be good for probably another month-no large scale operations against Australia can be under-The Australians became gravely concerned over the situation in recent days for two reasons: (1) They were under the impression that the United Nations Board of Strategy in Washington continued to look to Europe and North Africa as the principal theaters of operations; and (2) the vast majority of trained Australian fighters are in Africa, Malaya and the Near East.

Of these two factors the second was the most serious because it was least amenable to remedy. Very few regular troops remain on Australian home territory; they are just sufficient to train raw recruits, and that is all. These, together with the militia, are hardly adequate to offer prolonged resistance to the wouldbe invader.

Strategists Warned. The Canberra government was forced to pull up sharply the daydreamers on the board of strategy in Washington, drawing their attention to the imminent peril to Australia and the consequences of a Japanese invasion of the continent

Canberra's remonstrances received immediate attention in London and Washington, and the Australian government now feels that it may not be compelled to withdraw its troops from key positions where they are fighting. Their equivalent in quantity and quality is on the way to take up battle station in Australia.

suggested measures effective." But Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short continued to scoff at the idea of Japanese air attack on Hawaii. even in the week preceding December 7. Relating that these commanders met during that week to discuss replacement of Marine air forces in Wake and Midway islands with Army airmen, the Roberts report says:

"Admiral Kimmel inquired of his war plans officer, Capt. McMorris, who was present, concerning the probability of a surprise attack on Oahu (the island where Pearl Harbor is located). According to Gen. Short, Capt. McMorris replied there was no probability of such an attack and, according to Capt. Mc-Morris, his reply was that the Japanese would never so attack. · · · Admiral Kimmel and Gen. Short did not discuss means or measures for Hawaiian defense in light of the messages.'

To the contrary the report declares that Gen. Short, instead of dispersing his air force to defensive positions, deliberately concentrated them "to guard against possible sabotage." Even so the planes were not manned, since the prevailing orders required them to be in readiness only after four hours' notice. The report revealingly says: "At least three fighter pilots, in total disregard of their own safety. attempted to take off in the face of greatly superior forces then attacking their airdrome, but lost their lives in the attempt. A few fighter planes parked on an outlying gunnery training field, which was not attacked, took the air."

Main Forces Missed Action.

Plainly the main air forces, either Army or Navy, never got into action at all. Destruction and demoralization of the force on the ground was so great that only a scattered few naval planes, engaged in exercises at sea, were able to go in pursuit of the Japanese, following the at-

The conclusion is inescapable that the Japanese not only knew the American unpreparedness for air defense in every detail and the mental unpreparedness of American commanders, but deliberately banked on these conditions.

The Japanese did the whole job with 150 to 200 fighting, bombing and torpedo planes (there were several times more American planes in and around Hawaii) launched from three or four Japanese carriers.

The Japanese plainly had been getting ready for just this thing for a long, long time and the whole scheme functioned like clockwork. (Released by North American Newspaper

In Memoriam

She is gone, but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year.
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of her are always near.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss her,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss her
In our home that is lonesome today.

The More Dollars You Save in Defense Bonds... The More "Axis-Crushers" Our Army Will Have

AMERICA must produce 45,000 tanks this year! 60,000 planes! 20,000 antiaircraft guns! Altogether, 56 billion dollars worth of fighting equipment to smash the military maniacs attacking us.

That's why billions of fighting dollars—your dollars saved for Defense Bonds and Stamps—are needed and needed now!

That's why every American man, woman, and child must put every dime and dollar not into auto tires but into automatic rifles—not into luxuries, but into tanks—not into spending for the pursuit of happiness, but into Defense Bonds for the relentless pursuit of our enemies.

An important part of America's job, your job, this year is to spend less and save more—to invest in safety with perfect safety! Not only does the U. S Government guarantee your money, it guarantees to give you $4 for every $3 you save in Defense Bonds when you hold the Bonds to maturity! In fact, $18.75 brings you $25 with absolutely no effort or work on your part!

Make up your mind right now to save for Defense Bonds—regularly. Set aside as much as you can. Make every pay day Bond day! Remember, you can start saving for a Bond by getting Defense Stamps for as little as 10 cents. But start now by filling out the coupon below!

You Get a $2500 Bond for Only $1875

Facts About Defense Bonds. Series E

$75.00 . . $100.00 $375.00 . $500.00 $750.00 $1,000.00 When is maturity? Ten years from the time you buy the Bond. If you need the money before then, you can cash the bonds at any time after 60 days from their issue date. A table of cash-in values is printed on each Bond. Naturally, the longer you hold the Bond, up to 10 years, the more money you'll get back. But you'll never get less than you put in.

What's the interest rate? When held to maturity, the Bonds yield 2.9% per year on your investment, compounded semiannually—you get back $4 for every $3 you save in Defense Bonds.

Where do I go to buy a Bond? To your local Bank, Post Office, Savings and Loan Association, or other Defense Bond Agency.

What about Defense Stamps? Buying Defense Stamps is a convenient way of saving money with which to buy a real Defense Bond. Stamps are sold for as little as 10¢.

When should I huy a Bond? Start now; buy regularly. If your company has a Defense Savings Pay-Roll Allotment Plan, take advantage of it NOW. INVEST IN SAFETY—WITH PERFECT SAFETY!

Girls Who Only Have One Date Per Man Should Do Some Self-Analysis

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., MONDAY, JANUARY 26, 1942,

Any Number of Causes May Be Basic Reason For This Sad State

Guard Against Outstanding Errors Such as Boredom Or Overenthusiasm

By Dorothy Dix

The one-date girl is one of the social mysteries. She has apparently all that it takes to make her popular. She is pretty, well dressed, well educated. She is a good dancer and men are attracted to her at first sight, but they never play a return engagement. Most of the girls who find themselves taken up and dropped with a suddenness that leaves them gasping for breath explain their lack of holding power by the fact that they refuse to pet. Undoubtedly this is true in many cases, but it is difficult to believe that all men are of such an amatory nature that they have no interest in a girl unless she is a free kisser. There must be many boys who have no insatiable appetite for lipstick and who would find it a relief not to have to cap an evening's entertainment by throwing in a lot of caresses, so we have to find some other reason than her moral code that makes little Jane's escort drop her at her front door after their first date and never return.

Now, just what it takes to make a girl a success or a failure with men no one knows, since there is no definite line of charms for which all men fall. Sometimes a girl is born without the come-hither look in her eyes and with no allure for the opposite sex. Her case is hopeless. But if after having once awakened a man's interest in herself a girl lets him slip through her fingers and loses him, it is because of her bungling handling, and she should do something.

1 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon sugar 4 tablespoons shortening

14 to 14 cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut in shortening.

Combine beaten eggs and milk and add to flour mixture, stirring only enough to make dough hold together. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead one-half minute Roll out to 14-inch thickness and cut into strips (1x4 inches). Place a prune on each strip and roll up. Seal ends. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: About 20 small rolls.

Why Grow Old?

Here are a few aids for the woman who is on a reducing diet. First, rethe scalp out to the very ends, thus member that you do not need food just because you are hungry. If you are overweight you have lots

Answer-The best excuse for candles at midday is that the room is dark. In other words, while they do not belong on a midday table, if they are needed it is only sensible to put them on and light them. If your room is neither dark nor yet light enough to be cheerful, I think you might use candles.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever improper for a girl who is marrying the first time to have a big wedding and bridesmaids and wedding finery when it is the bridegroom's second venture?

Answer—Ordinarily it is quite proper that the bride have as big a wedding as she pleases. However, if he is marrying only a short time after the death of his first wife, wedding might be criticized. But even so, not seriously. On the other hand, if he is a divorce and there was a scandal in connection with the divorce, it would be wiser to attract as little attention as possible to this marriage.

Don't Spank A Small Child

Harsh Treatment Will Help Upset His Emotions

By Lettice Lee Streett Dear Mrs. Streett: I have a baby girl, my first, who is 17 months old. My problem concerning the baby is that she seems very nervous, and is getting a very bad temper. She smacks every one who comes into the house, and when she is angry she throws her dolls on the floor. I smack her hand very hard every time she does this, and people tell me that she is too small to be getting a spanking. Perhaps my smacking her is making her nervous, I do not know. I wish you would publish an answer to my problem, and tell me if I am doing right in trying to conquer her emper while she is young.

Your column has been a wonderful help to me; I will continue to read it as I have a lot to learn yet. Sincerely,

Answer-It is at least encouraging. Mrs. H. B., for you to admit that you have "a lot to learn," because this reveals that you have an open mind. However, you are woefully lacking in knowledge and understanding of the care of a baby. I say this not in criticism, but because I want to help you both.

As I see it, the seed of your problem is not in your tiny daughter, but in you, yourself. You must educate yourself in infant care before you can hope to correct the beginnings of this unsocial behavior in your little girl.

Previous announcements by offieials in London and in Washington have made clear a strong desire to concentrate on the Axis in Europe and Africa. Strong arguments were advanced, however, to impress the fight-in-the-West proponents that a naval power like Japan must be halted and pushed back if it is to be kept from rendering positive assistance to the European Axis nations by naval action in the Indian Ocean. The Netherlands Indies, Australia and China brought to Washington their urgent petitioning for a reorientation of Allied thinking with regard to the Far East. London was disposed to pull the other way. The final form of the decision makes plain what has been growing here more obvious daily, that Washington, in the short time since the United States went to war, has become the capital of the anti-Axis

The paramount position of Washington as the great force in the world is brought again and again to the inescapable attention of the newspapermen whose day-to-day assignment is reporting the news he obtains from the men and women who come here from abroad, as diplomats, refugees or simple visitors.

These people regard Washington as the center of the universe, and they have great trust that Washington will see to it for them that their hopes for their beleaguered homelands will be expressed in accomplishment. secondary considerations. A third reason is the influence of Washington in Latin America. When the war is done, Europe will require first of all economic resuscitation. Elementary needs like food will be great. The new life-stirring will depend on a flow of vital, fundamental goods from abroad, from a region whose own capacities for production of goods have not been erased by bombs.

That region is the New World, from Cape Horn to Hudson's Bay. The course of events at Rio de Janeiro have proved to all that Washington does not dictate policies in the Western Hemisphere. Rio, and previous events, have demonstrated, however, that we are paramount in the New World and in the best position to lead the Americas in the organization of their economies for the relief of Europe.

It was realization that Washington is the world's balance wheel that brought Winston Churchill here. The same realization spurred Huber-tus van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the Netherlands Indies, to leave Java at this critical time and visit the city of the Potomac. It was realization that Washington in time could be the world's capital that sent the King and Queen of

So the Supply Council in Washington is an organization of importance almost equal to that of a branch of government

Washington now is a city of many anguages, spoken by many outside its diplomatic missions. Basket Ball Remains in Midseason Slump While Players Wrestle With Exams

By GRANTLAND RICE,

Southpaw Hitters Top Righthanders Only in Baseball

ball's Hall of Fame brings up once more an ancient argument. Who have been the greater hitters—the right-handers or those who have been the greater hitters-the right-handers or those who swing from the left side?

The left-handed swingers offer you Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, George Sisler, Lou Gehrig, Joe Jackson, Tris Speaker and Ted Williams for a starting line-up. This is quite a colection of talent to move against. The right-handers counter with Rogers Hornsby, Hans Wagner, Napoleon Lajoie, Ed Delahanty, Harry Heilmann and Joe Di Maggio-also a pretty

The left-hander, being closer to first base, has more than a full stride's advantage. I'd say the left-handed hitting side had a slight edge, but nothing to rave about. For Hornsby, Wagner, Lajoie, Delahanty and Di Maggio also could lean against the leather.

Don't forget that Hornsby averaged above .400 for four consecutive years, taking in his average for that time, which is something.

Only in Baseball Do Lefthand Hitters Star

Baseball happens to be the one game in which the left-handed hitter takes a high place in any all-time ranking.

In golf, no left-hander ever has won a big championship. No lefthander ever has won the United States open or the British open, the United States amateur or the British amateur crown. In fact, no lefthander even has come close to any major golf event.

There have been good left-handed golfers. But no great ones-no Jones, Vardon, Hagen, Hogan or Nelson. The portside entries can play in the low 70s, they can break 70 here and there, but they are lost in major

In golf there are no such left-handed stars as Cobb, Ruth, Jackson, Speaker and many others. Just why this is no scientist seems to know. If so many people can handle a baseball bat so effectively as left-handers, why not golfers?

Tennis Has Seen Some Southpaws, but Few Champs

The same is true in tennis. There have been good left-handed tennis players, but few champions. Norman Brookes was one. The Australian was a star. R. L. Murray was another.

But the crushing preponderence is all on the other side-Bill Tilden, Bill Johnston, Rene Lacoste, Ellsworth Vines, Don Budge, Maurice Mc-Loughlin, Bill Larned, Fred Perry, Anthony Wilding, Norris Williams, on he had no idea how the council through the present generation. The star right-handers in tennis out- would vote. number the star left-handers by 10 to 1.

The same is true in polo. All great polo players have been righthanded swingers—Devereux Milburn, Tommy Hitchcock, Cecil Smith, Luis Lacey. I can't recall any left-handed polo players. Maybe there are none. In games where you pick up some form of a bat to hit the ball, baseball is the only sport that can show you a line of top-notch lefthanded

Scientists Will Have to Figure Out the Mystery

Rogers Hornsby more than deserves his place in any hall of baseball ization would oppose total abolition. fame.

and a winning manager. He also is one of the best instructors that baseball ever has known. For some unknown reason baseball never has been too hot on the instruction side. In this respect it has been far below golf, football and tennis.

In baseball you are supposed to be either a good natural hitter, or you are a bad hitter. I've had 50 major league stars tell me that hitting son without a fumble. can't be taught. Hornsby has proved they are wrong. I've seen him correct faults in players that made a big difference.

Baseball Possesses Many Faults Known to Golf

Baseball, for example, has many of the faults known to golf. One of these is trying to swing or trying to hit too quickly. In both games there must be a feeling of delay-of not rushing the swing.

The main idea in baseball is to swing the bat on a line, not up or down. I've seen Hornsby correct this fault more than once. If baseball ever had the training and the teaching that golf gets the improvement

I was talking about this with Casey Stengel, one of the smartest of them all. He was on the subject of the annual rookie crop. "How little they know," he said. "They are young and strong and fast. But they haven't any idea what any of the answers are where baseball is concerned."

School May Abandon Game Due to Deficit, Says Losing Coach

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 26.-New York University's none too robust football team, winner of but four games in its last 18 starts, cost the school $65,-000 the last two seasons.

Dr. Mal Stevens, the former Yale coach, who took over the N. Y. U. job in 1934, told newsmen it was this deficit that might prompt the 32man university council to drop the sport at its regular monthly meeting late today.

"Football hasn't shown a profit at New York University since 1939 and that year we profited by only $4,000. In 1940 we lost $30,000 and in 1941 the deficit was $35,000. Under those conditions continuing the sport would be difficult," Stevens ex-

Foe's Steaks Aided His Team to Big Tally, Says West Texas Coach

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.-While the athlete students are busy with their examinations again this week, coaches will have time to reflect on hints that sometimes it is incidents far from the gym that mean a victory.

West Texas State twice has crushed a foe by sending more than 100 points through the net in 40 minutes. The first time Eastern New Mexico State was the victim, 111 to 22. Saturday night the Buffalo (N. Y.) Teachers felt the sting, 105 to 41. Coach Al Baggett of the enormous Texans says it wasn't his tutoring that brought the lopsided triumph in the Southwest but rather the mistake of a waiter who served the Texans' pre-game steak dinner to the New Mexicans and the latters' tea and toast to the world's tallest team. The New Mexicans dined a half hour before the Texans. But coaching pays the most dividends in the long run. Doug Mills, Illinois' young court professor, has nursed a team with four sophomores in its line-up to the Big Ten lead with six straight league wins. Purdue Plays Minnesota. The Illini are bookworms until February 7 so Purdue, curent runnerup, entertains powerful Minnesota at Lafavette tonight in the circuit's No. 1 game of the week. The Boilermakers are at Ohio State and Minnesota is at Michigan Saturday.

Duke and William and Mary continue to set the pace in the Southern Conference with the Blue Devils host to North Carolina State Saturday. Furman, also without a league loss, challenges South Carolina in its own gym Friday and goes to the Citadel Saturday.

Oklahoma, second in the Big Six now that both Kansas and Iowa State have been defeated, will have the famed Gerry Tucker back for the remainder of the year after tonight's brush with Iowa State. Kansas is in its customary spot at the head of the parade, but the Cyclones' first loss of the year to Missouri Saturday tumbled them to third place.

Virtually the only action in the somnolent Southern half brings the University of California at Los Angeles to Stanford for two games Friday and Saturday. Stanford is the division leader.

Activity is resumed in the Missouri Valley circuit Saturday after an 11-day lull, with Creighton, still at the top of the standings, host to Drake and St. Louis at Oklahoma A. & M.

Colorado downed Wyoming, defending Big Seven king, Saturday, 59 to 53, and goes after its 10th consecutive win against the Denver American Legion in a charity game Wednesday. Pros Estimate New U. S. Workers Will Increase Golf Ranks by 10,000

War will have a decided impact on golf throughout the land, with the golfball situation the darkest spot, but the pro golfers around Washington see only bright prospects for 1942.
All of them believe Washington is in for one of its biggest years in terms of rounds of golf played, even though they don't see the situation in terms of added revenue to them, for here again the golf ball matter hits them hard. If you don't have golf balls to sell you don't make a profit on 'em.

Here's the way Al Houghton fig-ures it: "A great many new work-ers are coming to Washington this year. Travel figures into the city show the influx has been going on for weeks. Possibly 100,000 new workers will come to the city and around 300,000 new people in all will come in. Many will be golfers.

Clubs Will Fill Lists. "Maybe they won't have a lot of time to play, for they will be working hard. But they will have some time and daylight saving will bring a longer play day. In the long days of summer they can leave their desks at 5 o'clock and get in 18 holes of golf before darkness, around 8:30, daylight time.

"The public courses will absorb much of this added play, but the private clubs will get their quota, too. Many of the clubs here have full memberships and some have waiting lists, but I believe those which are not crowded now will have full membership lists by the middle of summer.'

Houghton's estimate is shared by most of the pros, but it will not be possible for applicants to get into some of the clubs. Chevy Chase, Columbia and Army Navy have long waiting lists. Washington, Manor, are nearing the point where they will have waiting lists. Prince Georges, Congressional and Bannockburn have vacancies which may be filled in a few months. It may not be easy to get into a country club if the expected flock of applications materializes.

Will Tax All Facilities.

So, if these estimates are correct and the expected big golf year works may be greater than ever. But the pros won't be able to get golf balls. They aren't moaning-yet. But in today.

Rails, Steels, Sugars And Tobaccos Among Leaders in Rise

By VICTOR EUBANK,

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.-The stock market took the offensive on the recovery front today and selected rails, steels, sugars, tobaccos and assorted specialties scored gains of fractions to more than 3 points.

While extreme advances wer shaded in some cases at the close and minus signs continued to cling to a number of issues, the trend generally was upward. The list displayed improved inclinations at the shares. The war news was mostly on the side of bullish forces, with American-Dutch bombers and submarines smashing at Japanese ships in the far Pacific and the Reds swarming over the Nazis in Russia. Brokers credited the largest portion of the day's bidding, however, to individual earnings prospects and the growing belief the market had retreated far enough to dig in for a good rally if developments half-way warranted. A drop of 0.4 of a point in this week's estimated steel output, due principally to the lack of scrap supplies, left the steels undisturbed.

Dealings quickened at intervals and, notwithstanding slowdowns after midday, transfers for the full proceedings approximated 600,000

Hopes were seen for a nearby solution of this problem. The buying movement in rail loans spread to a number of hitherto inactive issues in which advances ranged to as much as 2 points. Meanwhile, several of the carrier bonds prominent on last week's rise sold off moderately under profit selling.

New York City bonds were under pressure. Utility and industrial liens were steady.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Highest prices since 1937 were posted in the grain and soybean futures pits here today as the market continued its war-inspired upward push. Beans were the highest on record, oats the highest in 14 years.

Soybeans, up as much as 4 cents to above $2.04, led the advance. Corn and rye were up about 2 cents at times, wheat a cent and oats fractions. The upturn in wheat was restricted by large receipts of grain at terminals, including some that has been stored under Government loans. modities as soybeans, corn and rye, due to requirements for oil, sugar. starch and alcohol, was an important bullish force in the market. Processors of beans and corn were reported working at or near capacity to meet requirements. change of regulations permitting greater inventories of fats and oils was a factor in the soybean pit. 94% Strength of cotton, oil from which is a competiting item, and higher soybean oil prices also attracted

Sugar Is Doled To Restaurant Customers

Most District Places Give One Spoonful To Cup of Coffee

Many Washington restaurants began rationing sugar to patrons today as Federal officials worked on details of a Nation-wide program to become effective early next

He hinted that some attempt would be made to recover stocks held by hoarders, saying "consumers who are in possession of abnormalthat they will not be permitted to by special train today, the local comgain an advantage from their supposed foresight."

Industrial sugar consumption, which averaged 40 pounds a person in 1941, will be cut to 27 pounds. Mr. Henderson said sugar supplies from all sources this year probably will total 5,300,000 short tons, compared with 7,989,000 in 1941. In normal times the United States obtains 2.000,000 tons a year from the Philippines, whose exports are cut off entirely, and Hawaii, whose output will be cut in half. The R. F. C. has purchased Cuba's entire crop to offset these losses as far as possible, but much of the Cuban sugar will go to the Allies and domestic producers of alcohol for war uses.

Hearing Called On Cafe Health Regulations

Proposed Sanitary Requirements Will Be Argued February 10

The Commissioners today called a public hearing at 10 a.m. February 10 in the board room of the District Building on proposed regulations governing the maintenance of boarding houses, restaurants, delicatessens and catering establishments. The proposed rules, which lay down sanitary requirements, were submitted to the Commissioners today by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech and mimeographed copies will be made available to-

Would Require Examinations. The rules are the outgrowth of a recent hearing of the House District Committee in which members deplored sanitary conditions in Washington restaurants and urged Health Officer George C. Ruhland to "get tough." Principal feature of the regulations is the requirement that all boarding house and restaurant managers take an examination to demonstrate their knowledge of sanitation. Another Health Department proposal. which is expected to be brought up at the public hearing, is the suggested requirement that all food handlers in boarding houses or restaurants be compelled to obtain health certificates.

Penalties Up to $800 Fine.

In line with the admonition of several members of the House District Committee "to clean up or close up," the rules for both boarding houses and food establishments call for revocation of license for violations. In addition, violators of the boarding house regulations are subject, on conviction, to a fine of not more than $300 as compared with an $800 maximum fine in the case of food establishments.

Dr. R. R. Ashworth, director of the Health Department's sanitary inspection, said that in general the requirements for boarding houses were less drastic than those for the other eating establishments. In general they establish standards for floors, ceilings, walls, lighting, ventilation, doors, windows, water supply. lavatory facilities, kitchen construction and dish-washing facilities. storage and refrigeration.

$555,545 Increase Asked For Bellevue Laboratory

The House Appropriations Com-mittee today recommended an increase of $555,545 in the 1943 budget for operation of the Naval Research Laboratory at Bellevue, D. C., largely to prevent a threatened disruption of its war-time force of highlyskilled specialists. Fear was expressed that these specialists, now working under contract but having civil service status, might leave the laboratory for permanent appointments in other Federal departments. In a report to the House the committee said in part:

"This laboratory, in the commit-tee's judgment, is of inestimable value to national defense. The scientists there employed, and there are a number of them without peer in their fields, have contributed in very large part to the great strides that have been made in the employment of radio by the armed forces on the land, in the air, and on and under the sea. Gilliam was charged with murder on the police docket. Baltimore County Police Chief

Oscar Grimes said Gilliam told him he killed the three in self-defense when they attacked him. Chief Grimes quoted Gilliam as saying they tried to rob him.

Police said a knife was found on Gilliam when he was arrested. No gun yet has been found.

Pocketbooks identified by police as those of the three victims were recovered from a sewer near Gilliam's home. They were found by three boys seeking a scooter wheel that had rolled into the sewer.

All money had been taken from the pocketbooks, officers said, adding that this gave a "new angle" to the

Communicable Diseases

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26 .- A preliminary report issued today by Dr. R. H. Riley showed a marked indiseases reported in Maryland during 1941 in comparison to 1940.

The director of the State Health Department said there were nearly 59.500 cases of communicable diseases last year. There were 37,026 cases reported in 1940 under State regulations requiring that all communicable diseases be reported to the nearest State health officer.

"The flare-up in 1941 was largely due to increases in the venereal diseases, tuberculosis and in measles and so-called children's diseases, Dr. Riley said

He attributed the increase in venereal cases from 13,500 to 16,600 to the care with which such diseases were checked in selective service examinations.

Assembly Gets Bill to Unify Virginia Defense

Measure Provides Unusual Powers For Governor

By the Associated Press RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 26.-A bill to reorganize the State's civilian defense machinery was ready today for introduction in the General Assembly,

The measure, drafted by a committee of city and county officials and members of the Legislature, would give the Governor extraordinary powers and would fix responsibility and power on existing government agencies under his control. The bill also would provide for designation of a local director of defense in each county, city and town, would allow for setting up local and regional councils of defense, and would appropriate a sum to be used by the Governor in carrying out the act. The proposed penalty for failure to obey rules and regulations established by authorities under the act would be a fine of not more than $300 or 90 days in jail, or both.

Provisions of Bill. The portion of the bill dealing with emergency powers for the Governor sets forth that "so long as a State of war exists between the United States and any foreign power, and so long as the resulting emergency in this Commonwealth continues to exist, and whenever in his judgment it is, because of the war emergency, necessary to the defense and protection of the public peace, safety, health, morals or general welfare, the Governor of the Commonwealth s hereby authorized and directed: "(a) To proclaim and publish such rules and regulations, and to issue such executive orders, either oral or in writing, governing and directing the conduct of persons and the use of property within the Commonwealth, as may in his judgment be necessary or appropriate to protect and defend the public peace, safety, health, morals or general welfare from the dangers of the war emergency, which rules, regulations and orders shall have the force and effect of the law. "(b) To employ such persons, to provide such equipment, material and supplies, and otherwise to expend such sums as may be appropriated by the General Assembly for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, as in his judgmen may seem best." Recommendation on Directors One section provides that the local director of defense in each county, city and town shall be the city or town manager in localities having such officials, or the Mayor; the county manager or executive in counties having them, or the chairman of the county board of supervisors or commissioners where

The House Appropriations and Senate Finance Committees planned another public hearing at 3 clock this afternoon on the $217,-500,000 budget bill. Time was allotted mainly to State educational agencies and institutions. The two committees are seeking to end this week, if possible, the public hear-measure on the House floor by February 10. Gov. Darden conferred on State defense matters Saturday with Col. John A. Cutchins, representing Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Third Corps Area. The Governor, in a statement issued after the conference, said it was imperative for Virginia's defense groups to be in a position for immediate action. This can be accomplished, he said, only if the leaders know to whom they must ook for orders and direction. For that reason, he added, "I have felt that the councils should, in most instances, give way to single individuals with power to act and act at once when the emergency

Police Will Charge Gas Suspect Today, Barrett Declares

Man Held in Attempts At Asphyxiation Soon To Be Brought to Court

Assistant Chief of Detectives Robert J. Barrett announced today police would place multiple charges of assault with intent to kill, as 24-year-old colored man who was identified in a line-up yesterday as the intruder who came near causing deaths in at least three families last week by sneaking in homes and turning on gas stove jets. A conference with the United States attorney's office was sched-

Those reported as identifying the suspect were Mrs. Helen C. Hoffman. who was awakened early on November 4 in time to save herself and 6year-old daughter from gas which filled her apartment, 417 Eighteenth street N.E.; and Phillip Needle and Robert Smart, both living in apartments at 1018 Eighteenth street N.E. Mrs. Hoffman said she saw a man under a street lamp as she glanced from her window. Last Friday Mr. Needle and Mr. Smart chased a suspicious man they found outside the Needle apartment, which had been flooded with gas, threatening huswell as housebreaking, against a band, wife and 14-month-old daughter. The two men struggled with the fugitive in a muddy lot, but he escaped. Police said analysis would be made of soil taken from their shoes and those of the suspect. Earlier Friday gas filled the apartment of Carlton Williams, 1227 Eighteenth place N.E. A coat was found outside an apartment window, uled for today to arrange speedy and police traced this to the residence of the suspect, making their arrest the same day.

Goodman's 'Swing' Thrills Audience at Concert Here

National Symphony Orchestra Plays Well But Clarinet Maestro Takes Honors; Miska Merson Gives Recital

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

tra has never before had a rival on its followers to the swing maestro its own program and in spite of its and his musicians? good performance last evening it practically was forgotten when Benny Goodman and his band took the stage at Constitution Hall for the second half of the concert.

Of course the forgetting was done by the Goodman fans and it may be where a small but warmly apprecithat the regular symphony patrons ative audience gathered to welcome clung the more desperately to the the artist in this charming hall sweet sounds they had just heard where chamber music has taken which were obliterated when the precedence over solo recitals swingsters got into their stride. The staid recesses of the D. A. The very skilled musicing whom Mr. Goodman has assembled realized their opportunity and the importance of it and gave their "all." Body, and presumably soul, united in as wholehearted a performance as the most exacting devotee of swing could wish for and the when music releases the vitality of audience was not backward in doing its part. Arms and bodies swayed to the rhythm, hands began to clap to the beat while cheers and thunderous applause tore at the rafters as each favorite number was an-When Melvin Powell settled down to the piano and Cootie Williams took the middle of the stage to quiver his soul out with his trumpet and dance a few steps so that the rhythm would not be lost and Peggy Lee sang her deepvoiced songs you knew that these artists had a following that Heifetz

Goodman's Playing Praised.

Occasionally Mr. Goodman, responsible for all this glittering music. took a few measures for his clarinet and played them deftly, but then Mr. Goodman had had his special ovation in that remote first part of the program where the National Symphony ruled supreme. It was an-Goodman who played the Mozart "Clarinet Concerto" and as encore the Debussy "Rhapsody" for clarinet and orchestra, a sedate Goodman who handled his instrument in restrained, classic style.

A thought intrudes at this moment. Do the classics minimize one's personality and does swing bring it out? In Mr. Goodman's case the answer to both questions is "Yes." As a player of classics and of Debussy, his work was artistically conceived and presented in clean, flowing manner. But give him a bit of swing and he blooms and radiates and scintillates into the hero he is to his followers.

The National Symphony played exceptionally well. It may be simply our imagination, but the influence of Mr. Goodman and his band extra verve the orchestra put into Frescobaldi's "Toccata." for it had more of a 1942 tinge than anything the 17th century approved of. Just to prove to the Goodmanites what symphony orchestra can produce in massed sound, Dr. Kindler programmed his interesting arrangement of excerpts from "Boris Godounov" and the orchestra's per-formance was one of those to which the minority of serious music lovers present clung. Everybody seemed to like it, however, and gave Dr. Kindler and the orchestra standing with him a real ovation.

This was a good moment to bridge the distance between the first and second half of the program and Dr. Kindler did it skillfully by playing the voodoo dance, "Batuque," by the Brazilian composer, Fernandez, which was given its local premiere Wednesday night. The program, the orchestra's performance and Dr. Kindler's directing made a deep impression on the crowded hall and it was not only the symphony patrons who gave the resounding applause. The question now is, did the orchestra win over adherents Miska Merson in Recital.

Miksa Merson began his series of piano recitals yesterday afternoon with a program featuring Haydn, Mozart and Schumann. The con-cert was held at Phillips Gallery,

The most outstanding characterwas formerly his custom. For that reason his reading of the Haydn "Sonata in E Flat" and Schumann's "Phantasie' 'and "Toccata" had a particular aliveness and buoyancy that nevertheless was never allowed to become obtrusive As is almost inevitable, however, an artist, the feeling for color suffers. Mr. Merson, while adhering to the editor's notations carefully, did not quite visualize the full extent to which he might go in realizing the effects he wished to attain. Both in nuance of tone and in variation of tempi, he limited himself to but a few changes, noticeable chiefly in the Adagio cantabile of the Haydn Sonata and in parts of the Schumann "Phantassie." Where resonating volume and crisp, ringing passage work were needed, he had an individual quality that belongs to the grand school.

The program concluded with the Mozart "Sonata in C Major" and

Young Dr. Malone

Bobby Coon, curled up in his warm house in the hollow chestnut --- W.SV; 1,500k. -tree in the Green Forest, opened his eyes and yawned. Bobby had been asleep a long time, a very long time. In fact, he had slept most of the winter. Once or twice he had waked and crawled out to stretch his legs on warm days, but there had been very few warm days, and so Bobby had been content to sleep and sleep and sleep. Now, as he lay there yawning and looking up at a sunbeam which had crept in at his open door, he wondered if it was worth while to crawl out to have a look about. "I suppose it's just another warm day in the middle of winter, and if I crawl out I'll just be uncomfortable and shivery," he thought. "I might | as well stay right where I am and keep comfortable.

You see, Bobby Coon had slept so much that he didn't have any idea how time had been flying. So now he just closed his eyes again and tried to go to sleep. But somehow he couldn't get to sleep. That sunbeam seemed to be trying to tell him that it was time to be up and out. "Go away!" said Bobby crossly, and rolled over so as not to see that warm, bright, merry little sunbeam But then something else began to tell him that it was time to get up. It was his stomach. Yes, sir, his stomach began to tell him that it was time to get up, and he just had to listen. Shutting his eyes and rolling over wouldn't keep his stomach No. indeed! The truth is. Nineties-Elmer Davis there isn't anything that will keep an empty stomach still.

Now, when Bobby Coon had begun his long sleep he had been very very fat. All through the fall, when there was plenty of food and to spare, Bobby had stuffed and stuffed himself until he was so fat that he could hardly run at all. He didn't know why he had stuffed so. except that everything tasted so good, but if he had taken the trouble to ask Old Mother Nature about it she would have told him that she had given him that great appetite so that he would get fat and that while he slept through the cold, cold weather that fat would Federal keep him warm and would take the Administrator, discusses defense place of food, because while he was asleep, of course, he couldn't eat. 10:45-President's Birthday: Sec-And that is just the way it all happened.

But now that fat had been used up, just exactly how, nobody knows, for that is one of Old Mother Nature's secrets. But it had, and this is why Bobby's stomach would give him no peace. Of course, this was Old Mother Nature's way of telling Bobby that it was time to get up, that she had taken care of him all winter, and now he had to get out and take care of himself. But Booby didn't know this. All he knew was that he was dreadfully hungry and at the same time he hated to think of going out into the cold to hunt for food and he just knew would be hard to find. So, he twisted and turned and rolled over uneasily, trying to forget that inviting little sunbeam and to think that he wasn't dread-LONDON, 8:00—The News: GSC, 9.58 meg., fully hungry. He muttered and grumbled to himself and was as uncomfortable as could be. And then quite suddenly he muttering and grumbling and lay WISV, 9:00—Radio Theater: Mr. DeMille GSC, 9.58 meg., 31.3 m.; GSL, 6.11 meg., perfectly still, with both little ears cocked wide open. He had heard something. At least he thought he had, and he wanted to make sure. So he lay and listened and listened, and after a little while he heard it again-the softest, sweetest whistle.

"Winsome Bluebird!" cried Bobby LONDON, 11:15—Democracy Marches: GSC, Coon. "It is time to get up after all, for Mistress Spring is almost here!

He kicked off his bedclothes of leaves and scrambled up to his doorway. A dozen warm, merry little sunbeams shone straight in his face and made him blink so that at first he could hardly see at all. "Hello, old lazybones! It's time you were up. Don't you know that Mistress Spring is almost here?" Bobby looked down. There at the foot of the big chestnut tree sat Peter Rabbit grinning up at him. And while he looked he heard again that soft, sweet whistle. And then Booby knew for sure that the long, cold winter was over and that Peter Rabbit was right-it was time high time, to get up.

A Slam Try

One of the unfortunate misconceptions shared by most players is that any jump to game is a command to stop bidding. There are one or two situations in which you jump to game in a suit to shut the enemy out rather than show great strength, and then you want your partner to refrain from further bidding unless he has a real whale of a hand. But in most cases, the jump indicates a strong hand and invites partner to continue.

Consider today's hand, for example: North dealer. Both sides vulnerable. ▲ A K 9 4

South easily made 13 tricks and regretted only that he had stopped at a small slam, but we venture to 13. say that most players would have stopped at game. For most players 14. would have misunderstood North's 15. jump to four spades as a command 16. to stop bidding.

But how illogical that would be! Each opponent has had a chance to bid, and each has passed; hence what advantage would there be in shutting them out of further bidding? Furthermore, remember that if North bids only three spades, he risks a pass by South. Such a jump | 5. Deposits of is not a forcing bid; it is only highly invitational, unlike the jump raise of an opening bid.

In this case. North could see a good play for game even if South 7. Elongated had only four or five spades to the queen. Therefore, he took no chance of missing a game, but bid four spades at once. And South, with considerably more than his spade strength, properly explored slam possibilities, jumping right to slam the moment he discovered that diamonds were not wide open.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER -Egyptians Said Phoenix Rose From Own Ashes

Hand-written books of the Middle Ages often contain queer pictures. One such picture was found in the university library at Cambridge, England. It shows a "phoenix." and the bird is supposed to be "burning itself in its nest of spices.' The name "phoenix" is pronounced "FEE-nicks." There never was a real bird such as the one I shall describe, but people of Egypt used to believe there was. Here is a story of the phoenix as it might have been told to you if you had lived in ancient Egypt: The phoenix is a holy bird with red and gold feathers. It makes its home in Arabia but comes to Egypt once every 500 years. "Being 500 years of age, it is old and ready to die. So it makes a nest of sweet-smelling myrrh and gets inside. Then it flaps its golden wings and sets the nest afire.

"The holy bird burns up, but from the ashes comes a new life, a new "the young phoenix wrapped the old phoenix! This bird sings a beautiful song to greet the rising sun. the ball to the Temple of the Sun. Then it flies away to Arabia and stays away for 500 years.'

With the Russians spectacularly

on our side now, no motion picture of their activities, especially war activities, could be uninteresting.

What do they look like, sound like,

dress like and act like, these people whose moral might tripped Hitler's

These questions are answered to a degree in "Girl From Leningrad," Artkino film now at the Pix. Because they are, one forgets that the picture has several faults, the worst the sad lack of a connected story.

Its lack of continuity gives it the effect of a newsreel, but fortunately one which shows how Russia's women are fighting in the front lines, how both its men and women are mustering those forces of character which have turned defeat into victory. It is simple, realistic and spottily so high with suspense that the long moments when it is undeniably dull and confused are more forgivable than they would be in a film dealing with another subject.

"Girl From Leningrad," whose star is pretty and talented Zoya

Fyodorova, is a starkly factual narrative of the experiences of a volunteer nursing group at the front.

It shows them as young women from all walks of life setting forth in a spirit of adventure from Mos-that one) and follows them to an end which finds them crawling through the snow, guns in hand. replacing the men who are beyond

Never perhaps has the drama reached higher expression in Washington than at last night's command performance of "Watch on the Rhine" at the National Theater before an audience which included

Rhine" profited by an excellent performance by a cast that might excusably have had the jitters in the presence of the most eloquent of anti-Nazi spokesmen. Save for a touch of stridency resultant from its overnight change from an intimate to a large theater, its performance was perfect.

That Miss Hellman's play, the obviously finest dramatic work of last season from the moment of its premiere last winter in Baltimore, was to find drama beyond itself was evident long before the curtain went up. There had been no announcement that the President was coming. But the crowd knew it was his practice to make the command performance his theater night and the presence of a large precautionary force of agents and police could only confirm certainty of his attendance. In contrast with the usual straggling, especially when the lobby is ajam with celebrities, seats were filled early. Every eye was turned toward the President's box before the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" to herald his arrival and start the show.

What might have been an effort to minimize awareness of his presence was the immediacy with which the orchestra struck up the National Anthem after the audience's warm, brief reception. At once the lights went down, the curtain was raised and the play went on.

Apart from the long tumultous applause for members of the cast, especially Paul Lukas, Mady Christians and Lucille Watson, the closing ceremonies were equally simple and brief. The President waited until the end of the curtain calls, left by a side door and returned immediately to the White House where he acted as host at supper to the entire company and executives of the National.

Miss Hellman's play, which has exhausted the powers of this department to grant it further praiseand those of a lot of other drama departments-will not be seen here again this season. The new courses, which will be open for the first time to special tudents without college degrees, are designed to give thorough instruction in all phases of the drama. They include a general introduction to the theater, primary and adscript writing, stage design and organization and acting technique. Classes will be held Monday through Friday, beginning at 7:10 p.m.

Decision to expand the school is counted upon to provide the department with a considerably larger producing group. The degree to which it does so will determine the number of plays which will be presented during the remainder of the present school year and the summer term. It is the hope of Father Hartke that registrations will be sufficient, and the talent, adequate, to operate weekly, Wednesday through Sunday, Two or three week runs are envisaged for a group of productions which will include Henri Gheen's "The Comedian," Marlow's "Dr. Faustus," Walter Kerr's satiric comedy, "Art and Prudence," Leo Brady's juvenile comedy, "One Punch Judy," this year's new revue, "Ticketyboo," and the revival of the musical biography of Joe Cook, "Cook Book."
