10 P. M. Curfew Urged for Girls Employed in U. S. Agencies Here

House Member Offers Plan to Aid Efficiency

Wilson Says Women Come to Work Sleepy, Without Make-up On
By JAMES E. CHINN.
A 10 p. m. curfew for women employed in Government agencies in Washington as a means of increasing efficiency in the Federal service was advocated today by Representative Wilson, Republican, of Indiana, at a hearing before the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.
A member of the committee, Mr. Wilson cited several alleged cases of inefficiency on the part of the Government's girl war workers.
"We ought to have a curfew at 10 p. m. for the girls in the Government agencies here so they can come to work in the morning with breakfast and their make-up on," he said. "I think that might help improve efficiency in the Government service. As it is now the girls come to work pretty sleepy, go to a rest room to put their make-up on. That takes an hour. Then it's soon time to go to lunch. When they get back they do about four hours work and go home."

Mme. Bey, Once Socialite Here, Dies; Ran Camp for Fighters

Mme. Bey at the ringside of her Summit (N. J.) training camp, where she offered her advice in no uncertain terms to famous fighters as well as lesser lights.
Her son, Rustem Bey, is police chief of Chatham Township. Her husband died a few years ago.
Suffered Relapse Tuesday.
Mme. Bey spent two weeks in the hospital last fall for treatment of the heart condition, but was released in two weeks. She suffered a relapse Tuesday.
Mme. Bey's training camp comprises a large frame house, crammed with overstuffed furniture and Turkish ornaments, and a modern gymnasium.
On the walls hang pictures of Washington society of other days. One shows a White House reception, with Mme. Bey standing beside President McKinley.
She was happy in her role of parent and disciplinarian to boxers. Often her mezzo-soprano rolled through the camp as she sang aria of operas she used to sing for concert audiences.
Never Bet on Fight.
Mme. Bey never bet on a fight. She confided that her one regret was that she never was able to make her trainers keep up their homework after she had buffed the rough edges during their stays at her camp.
Her father was Armenian and her mother, French.
The funeral will be Monday at the camp with the Rev. W. O. Kinsolving, pastor of Calvary Episcopal Church, officiating. Burial will be in Fairmount Cemetery, Newark.

Gen. MacArthur Ignores Demand For Surrender

A War Department communique reported today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the loyal Filipinos under him had spurned a Japanese offer to stop fighting on the Bataan front and surrender to avoid further needless bloodshed.
Propaganda leaflets signed by Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, commander in chief of the Japanese expeditionary forces, were dropped over the stoutly resisting American lines on January 10 and again today. An additional message to the Filipino soldiers, it was reported, appealed to them to surrender and build up a new Philippines. It added that "Gen. MacArthur has studiously refused our proposal."
Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his troops, the communique said, ignored this message of the enemy which reminded them that their "prestige and honor" had been upheld.

BENGASI CHANGES HANDS AGAIN—British soldiers raised the Union Jack over Bengasi on December 24 after recapturing the Libyan port. Today London acknowledged it had fallen before the Axis counteroffensive led by Gen. Rommel's tank forces. It is the fourth time the North African port has changed hands. (Story on Page A-2.) —A. P. ### U-Boats Placed Near Cape May, Atlantic City

Another Reported 180 Miles From Cape Charles, Va.
BULLETIN.
The tanker Rochester, owned by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., was torpedoed by an enemy submarine off the Atlantic Coast today, the Navy Department announced this afternoon. Survivors abandoned the craft five minutes after she was hit and are en route to Norfolk, Va., the Navy said.
This is the 16th ship attacked off the Atlantic coasts of the United States and Canada since the intensive coastal warfare began in coastal waters two weeks ago. Fourteen of the ships were sunk.
The Rochester was built in 1920 at Sparrows Point, Md. Her displacement was 6,556 gross tons.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Three and perhaps four Axis submarines were sighted today close to the Atlantic coast, the 3d Naval District headquarters announced. The announcement followed a naval warning to all ships and shore stations of the locations where the submarines might be found.
The areas given meant the undersea raiders were within sight of Atlantic City and Cape May, N. J. (At the same time in Washington the Navy announced that the 7,236-ton tanker Pan Maine, previously reported attacked by an enemy submarine, had reached an Atlantic port safely. The port was not named nor were any details of the attack given.)
One position announced today placed a U-boat at 35 miles east of Cape May, another about 20 miles off Atlantic City.
A third position put a submarine about 180 miles off Cape Charles, Va.
This section of the coast has been the graveyard for more than nine ships in Hitler's attempt to throttle British-American lifelines.
Naval officials said they could not comment on any action taken by these U-boats.
They said it could be assumed that strong counter-offensive measures were being taken.
The announcement followed a report from Los Angeles last night that Army planes had sighted and Navy planes attacked an enemy submarine without learning the result of the action.
On Wednesday Navy planes reportedly sighted at least one and possibly two submarines in the Gulf of Mexico near Port Arkansas, Tex.

Overstaffing Charged

Representative Wilson also charged that too many clerks are employed by the Government, and said that in one office he had been told there were more than 100 employed while six could do the work. These clerks, he declared, were ordered to let the work pile up so the office would appear to be busy and the "boss" would have a better chance of advancement.
A girl in the office of William S. Knudsen, Mr. Wilson said, had to rewrite a short letter for him three times because the first two were full of mistakes.
"Of course," he surmised, "she may have been a little woopy."
"Every girl who is out at night is out with some gentleman and some of these boys on Capitol Hill, don't forget that," Representative Hill, Republican, of Colorado, remarked.
Representative Manso, Democrat, of Alabama, another committee member, said he thought Government workers were wasting too much time playing horse races.
"They look over the scratch sheets every morning and then place a bet," he declared. "In the afternoon they call up to find out the results."
Civil Service Co-ordinator Quizend, Criticism of the Government clerks came while the committee was questioning Winston B. Stephens, co-ordinator and director of training of the Civil Service Commission.
He had been called before the committee which is considering legislation authorizing an appropriation of $50,000,000 to provide needed public works in the Metropolitan Area of the District and homes for Government war workers, a discussion report that temporary buildings might be erected near Union Station for the accommodation of persons coming here in search of Federal jobs.
Chairman Lanham held such a plan would add to the already existing congestion. He said the commission should interrogate and determine the qualification of prospective Government workers in the field and save them a trip to war-time crowded Washington.
Mr. Stephens told the committee the commission does not contemplate bringing any one to Washington who is not qualified to hold a Government job.
He said the Government is now recruiting Government workers throughout the country and had lowered entrance requirements for stenographers and typists to meet the shortage in Washington.
Stenographers in Demand.
"It is almost impossible to recruit enough stenographers and typists, stenographers, to meet the day-to-day demand," he said.
Mr. Stephens said the commission, in order to meet the demand, is experimenting with a preassignment training school in which persons are appointed to stenographic jobs who are not up to the normal level of requirements are given training.
Clerks assigned to the training school are on the Government payroll when brought here, he explained.
Mr. Stephens testified that 81,000 Government workers had been employed in the past 18 months, and that new ones are expected to come (See HOUSING, Page A-4.)

Left Capital for Farm

The Beys left the gay Washington social whirl to try farming. That failed, so they accepted an offer to take over the health farm. Mme. Bey knew nothing about sewing or cooking, but she studied both, and the training camp business flourished.
Foreign fighters felt at home in her place because she spoke six languages.
Among her "alumni" were Max Schmeling, Freddie Steele, Tommy Farr, Paul Berlenbach, Primo Carnera, Lou Ambers and Gene Tunney, whom she called her "polished emerald."
"It's a wonderful life, knowing these courageous boys, observing their moods and trying, unobtrusively, to mother them," she once said.

Senators Summon Wickard to Learn His Policy on Farm Prices

By J. A. O'LEARY.
While President Roosevelt was signing the price-control bill today the Senate Agriculture Committee announced it has called Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to a meeting at 11 a. m. tomorrow to find out what his policy will be in administering the four-point farm-price formula in the bill.
Today's developments at the Capitol indicated the controversy over farm prices that marked the final drafting of the bill in conference is not entirely over.
In announcing the invitation to Secretary Wickard to meet with the committee tomorrow in executive session, Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma said there was nothing antagonistic in the move, but "we simply want to find out what the farmer may expect the policy to be under the four price levels written into the bill."
Four Levels Set Up.
Indications at the Capitol are that members of the farm bloc have been prompted to reopen the discussion by recent statements of Secretary Wickard, which, one Senator said, would have the effect of holding farm prices down below the intent of the formula in the Price-Control Act.
After long deliberation, the bill finally set forth four price levels that should be reached before new ceilings would be applied under the Price Act.
They were: The average price as of October 15; the average of December 15; 110 per cent of parity, or the average price level for the period 1919-1929.
In his annual report a few days ago, Secretary Wickard cautioned farmers that a high price policy might reach a point that would hamper the war effort, and restated his belief in the adequacy of the parity goals in the 1938 Farm Act.
Farm Labor Loss Feared.
Senator Thomas said today the parity level would be 10 per cent less than one of the price floors written into the Price Control Act.
The Oklahoma Senator said men are being attracted away from the farms by the wage levels being paid in war industries. Declaring that the industrial workers know where they stand through the labor-standard laws and negotiated wage agreements, the Oklahoma Senator said the farmer is entitled to know where he will stand under the price-control program.
Unless the farmer's position is safeguarded, the Senator said, the movement of farm labor into industry may interfere with the flow of food supplies essential to the war effort.

President Wants 'Parasites' To Move Out of Washington

Declares Those Living Here for Social Purposes Should Make Room for War Workers
"Are you a parasite?" President Roosevelt asked the citizens of Washington today.
If you are, you are likely to be asked to move out of the overcrowded Capital, he explained during a press conference discussion of proposals that residents not essential to the war effort should be requested to leave.
For his measurement of whether individuals are parasites, the Chief Executive cited as examples persons who are living here for social purposes and devoting full time to their enjoyments.
Telling his press conference that he expected questioning on the subject, the President remarked first that if conditions are made uncomfortable for parasites, they are likely to leave anyhow. A good many parasites are living in the District of Columbia, he added at this point.
Reminded that there is a serious need to the problem of overtaxing District utilities and the ordinary facilities for civilian life, Mr. Roosevelt then suggested that a newspaper story be written with the headline and lead quoted above—"Are You a Parasite?"
During the first World War the President recalled that many men and women came to Washington simply to have a good time. In doing so they clogged ordinary living facilities and impeded the war effort, he continued.
Referring to the suggestion of such removals, first made by Defense Housing Co-ordinator Charles F. Palmer, before the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee yesterday, the President then emphasized that the persons meant were those fully unessential to the war work. It was then that he gave his examples of families living here for social purposes and others here for the purpose of keeping children in school. Some of these non-essential family groups could be found in 20-room houses on Massachusetts avenue, he added.
By contrast, the President cited as (See PARASITES, Page A-4.)

Henderson Says U. S. May Ration Coffee To Wholesalers

Expect No Change in Price Ceilings; Stock Survey Begun
Price Administrator Leon Henderson said late today that the Government may find it necessary to allocate wholesale coffee stocks and license imports in order to prevent "maldistribution" of this commodity.
Mr. Henderson made it clear that the O. P. A. does not contemplate any major changes in the coffee price ceiling, but he announced an amendment which would sanction the addition of freight increases and marine and war risk insurance rates to the maximum prices as these increases actually are incurred.
At the same time, however, decreases in overhead cost would be expected to be subtracted from ceiling prices, he said.
Mr. Henderson added that his office is preparing a questionnaire which will be sent to all branches of the coffee trade within the next few days to determine the volume of business handled by each firm and the stocks on hand. The data obtained in this survey, he said, may be used as the basis for possible import licensing and stock allocations later.
Sworn statements will be required to accompany the questionnaire when it is returned to the O. P. A. The inquiry, it was emphasized, is not to be confused with the stock census taken quarterly by the Census Bureau, but is specifically designed for O. P. A.'s confidential files.

C. I. O. Asks House Leaders To Dissolve Dies Group

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, today transmitted to House leaders the text of a resolution passed by the C. I. O. Executive Board urging discontinuance of the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities.
The resolution was passed unanimously at the recent C. I. O. board meeting in New York City.
Declaring the record of Chairman Dies has been one of the "most sordid and reprehensible in the annals of the American Congress," the resolution said the committee was used to attack and weaken bona fide labor unions, and to "interfere and harass the President of the United States in his conduct of foreign affairs and the establishment of co-operative relations with the Allies of this Nation."
If the House believes it in the national interests to continue an investigation of un-American activities, a new committee with "responsibility and fair-minded leadership" should be established, the resolution said.

Roosevelt

(Continued From First Page.) on his 60th birthday anniversary with a temperament and physique well suited by nature and by experience. It is a temperament that admits of no compromise without panic or loss of poise; it is a physique endowed by family heritage with hardihood.

Today, at the age when men like most to look forward to leisure, Mr. Roosevelt looks forward instead to his greatest cause and his hardest fight.

To give the chronology of a presidential day—even of a presidential birthday—is made difficult in these times by the fact that each span of 24 hours brings new momentous problems, emergencies which permit little planning in the routine sense of the word.

Generally speaking, Mr. Roosevelt awakens about 8 o'clock, to be confronted almost at once by breakfast, newspapers, telegrams, written reports and frequently personal conferences. For this purpose, his bedroom becomes a workshop and regardless of his movements through the remainder of the day he is seldom far from all the necessary facilities for receiving latest information and transmitting decisions.

For information on military and naval operations, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, military aide, and Capt. John McCrea, naval aide, serve as principal liaison officers to the President. Frequently, however, he talks either in person or by telephone to the ranking officers of the fighting services.

Gen. Watson, who doubles as the appointment secretary, and Stephen T. Early, his ranking adviser on public relations, meet with Mr. Roosevelt in his bedroom each morning to blueprint his day to whatever degree this can be done in advance. Marvin McIntire, another veteran secretary and adviser, frequently joins these "strategy" meetings.

Bengasi Withdrawal Followed Stubborn Defense, British Say

Heavy Frontal Attacks by Superior Forces Are Described

By the Associated Press. CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 30.—The sudden sweep of a strong Axis column around Bengasi, and heavy frontal attacks by "greatly superior" forces compelled the Indian defenders of the Libyan port to withdraw after putting up a stubborn fight, the British announced today.

The Near East command communique declared the conquering column by the superior Axis forces which included tanks, mechanized and the second British withdrawal from Bengasi in less than a year.

However, the Near East command said British patrols in the Maus area, 70 miles southeast of Bengasi, forced Axis patrols to withdraw after a brief brush.

An authoritative source in London declared all British forces were removed from Bengasi before it was occupied by the Axis army, and military quarters there said most British ammunition dumps and supplies were destroyed before the withdrawal.

The forces of Gen. Erwin Rommel which advanced on Bengasi from the south last Wednesday consisted of two strong columns, both including tanks, the Near East command said.

Deploying "greatly superior strength in this area," the British said, the Axis troops forced the 7th Indian Brigade to give ground despite its strong rearguard action.

"In the meantime, to the east of the escarpment, an even stronger enemy force, which on January 28 had reached Regima (16 miles east of Bengasi), also pressed on and by night itself crossed the coast road of Bengasi," the communique said.

"These converging attacks by greatly superior enemy forces made further withdrawal of our troops inevitable and the 4th Indian Division, which was covering Bengasi, now has been withdrawn northeast of the town."

Production Chief Donald M. Nelson demanded in a speech last night that American big business holding war contracts produce now without stopping to count the cost.

Churchill and King Felicitate Roosevelt On 60th Birthday

Dutch Queen and Ulster Prime Minister Also Send Congratulations

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 30.—Prime Minister Churchill sent President Roosevelt a birthday message and the United States executive's 60th anniversary was widely observed in Great Britain today.

Congratulations were dispatched to Washington by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands also sent a congratulatory message, as did Prime Minister John M. Andrews of Northern Ireland.

"Ulster has given a warm-hearted welcome to the American forces now among us," Andrews' message said. "Your courageous and far-seeing leadership will never be forgotten here."

Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, broadcast birthday greetings to the President in the name of the British people.

"Throughout this country and in lands overrun by a cruel enemy, hundreds of thousands of people have reason to thank God for the day on which you were born," Alexander said.

"I am especially grateful on behalf of the Royal Navy for the cooperation of the United States Navy in the war at sea. We rejoice in the magnificent defense of Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines and the heavy blows you and the gallant Dutch forces have struck in the Macassar Strait."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the birthday "concerns the whole of the free world and conquered millions," explaining: "Their fortune in President Roosevelt's 61st year and for many years to come will be moulded by this man's character, the work he has done and the forces he awakes."

Communiques Troops Remember President's Birthday

The text of War Department communique No. 44, outlining the military situation as of 9:30 a.m. today, follows:

1. Philippine theater: Fighting on the Batan Peninsula was light during the past 24 hours. There was practically no enemy air activity. The arrival of fresh Japanese troops at the front and movements behind the line indicate preparations by the enemy for the resumption of a large-scale offensive.

Gen. MacArthur today sent the following message to the President: "Today, January 30, the anniversary of your birth, smoke-grimed men, covered with the marks of battle, rise from the foxholes of Batan and the batteries of Corregidor to pray reverently that God may bless immeasurably the President of the United States."

2. There is nothing to report from other areas. The text of a Navy Department communique yesterday said: Central Pacific: Two enemy submarines appeared off Midway Island with the intention of shelling it. They were driven away by the artillery fire of our garrison. One hit was scored on one of the attacking submarines.

Atlantic Area: Enemy submarines continued to operate off the East Coast of the United States and are reported as far south as Florida. Countermeasures by our forces are increasingly effective. There is nothing to report from other areas.

Nelson Tells Industry To Produce Now and Count Costs Later

'Get the Stuff Moving' By Whatever Methods, He Exhorts Executives

Production Chief Donald M. Nelson demanded in a speech last night that American big business holding war contracts produce now without stopping to count the cost.

Mr. Nelson flew to New York last night to "lay it on the line" before more than 250 executives of railroads, heavy industry, and chemical and aviation companies at a closed meeting called by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"If any of you men have war contracts pending which are being held up while you negotiate over terms, or while your lawyers are ironing out details," Mr. Nelson said, "get in production now and settle the details later."

"To hell with stopping to count the cost. Start turning out the stuff and we can argue the terms at our leisure."

"Turn it out by inefficient methods, if necessary, and figure out better ones as you go along—but get the stuff moving whatever happens."

Mr. Nelson emphasized that 1942 is the crucial year in the war program and that the industrialists should concentrate on this year's production and not look ahead placidly to the big things they are going to do in 1943 and 1944.

The Government's production chief declared that one weapon today is worth two tomorrow and 10 next year. He reminded his audience that many of them probably have sons in the armed services and that every extra weapon they are able to turn out now will aid their spokesman to "lick the enemy."

A War Production Board spokesman said today that among Mr. Nelson's hearers were representatives of virtually every principal holder of war contracts for planes, tanks, guns, chemicals and other weapons.

Numerous British Prisoners Taken, Italians Declare

The following two dispatches were sent in releasing news are apt to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or allied sources.

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts) Jan. 30 (P).—Numerous British prisoners have been taken, along with considerable quantities of war supplies, in the recapture of Bengasi and pressure on British forces is maintained, the high command said today.

"During an attack on enemy positions in the jump of Eastern Tunisia," the communique said, "an entire Indian battalion surrendered to our troops." The Axis forces of Gen. Erwin Rommel were reported in a special communique yesterday to have regained Bengasi.

"I am especially grateful on behalf of the Royal Navy for the cooperation of the United States Navy in the war at sea. We rejoice in the magnificent defense of Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines and the heavy blows you and the gallant Dutch forces have struck in the Macassar Strait."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the birthday "concerns the whole of the free world and conquered millions," explaining: "Their fortune in President Roosevelt's 61st year and for many years to come will be moulded by this man's character, the work he has done and the forces he awakes."

The Times said the President had given to the masses in all countries "a clear idea not only of what they are fighting, but also of what they are fighting for and today their wishes go out to him in gratitude and hope."

The Senate, because it is to be in recess today, conveyed birthday greetings to Mr. Roosevelt.

Majority Leader Barkley told the chamber that he spoke for every Senator in wishing the Chief Executive continued strength and many years of "peace and happiness."

Senator McNary, the Republican leader, said he believed he spoke for Republicans in both houses of Congress in wishing "good health and happiness to the President now and in the years to come." And then, amid the chuckles of his colleagues, he added: "May he reign uninterruptedly from now to January, 1945."

Irish Fear A. E. F. Is Preliminary to Seizure of Bases

'So Keen on Peace We Will Fight for It; Says One; Blockade Not Feared'

DUBLIN, Eire, Jan. 30.—Official concern is felt here that the arrival of United States troops in neighboring Ulster may be preliminary to seizure of Eire's naval bases which the Allies need badly for the battle of the Atlantic, an informed source said today.

"We are so keen on peace," said one Irishman, "that we will fight like hell for it.

"Although I don't think it will come to that, any attack by Germany would not necessarily mean that we would call for help from anyone. Foreign troops would automatically walk in to fight beside Eire's army."

Neutrality Strongly Expressed. This neutrality of Eire is strongly expressed both by officials and by the man on Dublin's streets. The newspapers made only scant mention of the United States troops arriving, and consistent British press demands that Eire turn over bases to the Allies have seen little light in the censored press.

The whole partition question, of course, is the root of Eire's attitude, and many declare that if Britain would permit Northern Ireland to join Eire's government—something Ulster emphatically refuses to do—then Britain and a united Ireland could work out a mutual defense scheme.

Eire's 250,000 troops are not armed adequately, and the government attitude is that they should be equipped by Britain. One source said that the De Valera regime would be willing to pledge not to use such armament in its aim of uniting Ireland by force.

Ready to Face Blockade. When the question is raised of a possible British blockade against Eire to force the issue of obtaining naval bases, the Irishman quickly retorts "That would be considered a form of warfare against us."

"We have faced famine as a weapon before and we are prepared to face it again."

Officially, Eire feels no obligations to fight by the side of Britain even though she admittedly is dependent on Allied shipping.

"Britain making a profit from carrying our trade in peace years," one source argued, "so why shouldn't she continue to do so now?"

This Irishman saw no incongruity in Dublin's bright, colorful full shops at a time of blackouts and severe shortages in Britain on whose ships she depends for her supplies.

Housing

here at the rate of 1,000 a week for the next year.

Many of the new war workers, Mr. Stephens said, come to Washington alone with an idea of bringing their families here as soon as possible.

This situation, he pointed out, creates a potential increased load on Washington's population.

Chairman Lanham inquired if the people recruited for Government service are advised of living conditions and expenses.

"I'm not advised," Mr. Stephens replied. "I have heard a good deal of comment to the effect that not only are people refusing positions here, but that many turn around and go home as soon as they get here because they are not satisfactorily adjusted."

Lanham Suggests Plan. Representative Lanham suggested that perhaps the housing shortage could be alleviated by disregarding the civil service quota law and giving Government positions to all available persons in the District.

"Every effort has been made to use those who can qualify from the surrounding area," Mr. Stephens responded.

Representative Wilson said the only solution to Washington's housing shortage is the "wholesale" decentralization of Federal offices. The Department of Agriculture, he declared, should be moved nearer the farm center.

Chairman Lanham agreed that further decentralization of non-defense agencies is necessary. Washington, he said, "is reaching the saturation point."

Recreation Facilities. John Nolen, Jr., director of planning of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, expressed belief that one of the reasons it is difficult to get people to come to Washington to take Government positions is the inadequacy of recreation facilities.

He pointed out that demands on local recreational facilities have passed beyond the ability of existing facilities to meet them.

The committee will resume hearings on the $50,000,000 housing and public works authorization bills at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Chairman Lanham late yesterday deplored plans for establishment of a "reception center" for incoming Government workers.

War Writer to Learn to Swim Before Rejoining British Fleet

NEW YORK.—BEAT HIS STORY HOME—Larry Allen (left), Associated Press correspondent with the British Mediterranean Fleet in many of its major adventures, returned to the United States yesterday to discover a story he wrote on the sinking of the battleship Barham last November 25 had not yet cleared the censor. It arrived by cable a few hours after Allen got in. Here Allen, still wearing his British correspondent's cap, is interviewed by A. P. Reporter Seth Moseley.—A. P. Wirephoto.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Through all the hair-breadth escapes and hair-raising experiences that go with traveling nearly 100,000 miles aboard British battlewagons at war, Larry Allen, the Associated Press's most traveled seagoing correspondent, was painfully aware that he lacked one vital accomplishment.

He couldn't swim. But today, on furlough from reporting the British Mediterranean fleet's activities for readers back home in the U. S. A., Mr. Allen took a solemn pledge with the sole idea in mind that he would learn to swim before he returned to the sea.

"I'm going to try," he said, "to learn to swim."

For the war isn't over by a long shot, he added, and neither is his part in it.

Minimum of Three Years. "We'll be in this war for a long time," Mr. Allen predicted on his arrival here yesterday. "At a minimum three years, at a maximum five years. I expect to get back into it, and I want to."

He based his forecast on the belief that while the Italian navy had fallen in the Mediterranean, the Germans were still formidable—and the British as well.

"The morale of the British fleet is excellent," he said. "They are the most courageous people I have ever seen. They never count the potential loss when going into battle, of the chances they are taking. Neither do the Germans nor the Italians—especially the Italians—can match them at sea."

"The Italians have an excellent ship fleet, but they won't come out to fight. They have five battleships, 4 to 6 cruisers, 30 to 40 destroyers, 10 to 20 submarines, but most of them hug their ports. The British shoot straighter and think quicker."

Germans Still Confident. "German morale is still excellent. The German U-boat prisoners I have seen and talked to recently remain hearty and confident."

The Galatea sinking was his closest call; he struggled and choked in the oil-slicked water for nearly an hour, somehow managing to stay afloat until rescued by another warship.

While recovering in a hospital in Cairo, he wrote an epic story of his experiences on and off the Galatea, and he has written numerous other, exclusive stories detailing such ad-facilities not actually engaged in war work, and transfer another 10,000 or more Federal workers under the decentralization program by July 1.

Since the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee decided to resume hearings on the housing bill today, Chairman Randolph of the House Legislative Committee called off a scheduled meeting so his members may attend the session. Six members of his committee was present at the initial hearing yesterday.

Mr. Randolph said the program he arranged for his committee today would be carried out Monday. This included resumption of consideration of Washington's war time transportation problem and bills designed to limit the working hours of barbers and to give the Public Utilities Commission control over fees charged by garages and public parking lot operators.

Columbia U. Official Defends Newspapers' Radio Ownership

Operation No Different From Other Stations, F. C. C. Is Told

By the Associated Press. NEWSPAPER-affiliated radio stations and stations without newspaper connections do not differ materially in their operations, the Federal Communications Commission was told yesterday.

This was the conclusion of Dr. Paul Lazarsfeld, director of the office of radio research of Columbia University, who testified as a witness for the Newspaper-Radio Committee.

The commission is investigating newspaper-radio relationships with a view to determining its future policy. The Newspaper-Radio Committee is opposing any restrictions on acquisition of stations by newspaper interests.

Dr. Lazarsfeld presented numerous exhibits, most of them dealing with so-called "one-one communities," in which the only newspaper has an interest in the only broadcast station.

After he had finished explaining the exhibits, Sydney Kaye, counsel for the Newspaper-Radio Committee, asked the witness if newspaper-associated stations differed materially in operation from non-newspaper stations.

"I don't find anything to indicate any material difference," Dr. Lazarsfeld replied.

Dr. Lazarsfeld testified as to the extent of outside newspapers and broadcast service in the "one-one" cities.

In 74 cities where the only newspaper has an interest in the only radio station, he said, outside newspapers have a circulation of 35 to every 100 for the local paper.

In 26 cities where the only local newspaper owns control of the only broadcasting station, he added, newspaper circulation is only 12 per cent of the national total, while the power of the radio stations is only four-tenths of 1 per cent of the national total.

Arthur Garfield Hays, general counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union, was to testify today in behalf of the Newspaper-Radio Committee.

"The committee said Mr. Hays 'holds the viewpoint that there should be no rules or regulations of any sort limiting the complete freedom of the press.'"

Morris Ernst, associate counsel of the union, an earlier witness, urged divorcement of radio from the press.

43 Sinkings Off U. S. And Canada Credited To U-Boats by Nazis

Announcement by Fuehrer Adds $3 to Previously Claimed Total

By the Associated Press. (The following dispatch was sent from an enemy country whose motive in releasing news is apt to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or Allied sources.)

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 30.—A special communique, preceded on the German radio by a fanfare of trumpets, today reported that U-boats operating off the United States and Canada had sunk 43 ships totaling 302,000 tons since the beginning of the war with the United States.

The special announcement added 13 ships totaling 74,000 tons to the previous total claimed by the Germans.

The communique, introduced by the announcer as coming straight from the Fuehrer's headquarters, said:

"German submarines in continuing attacks on enemy supply shipping in American and Canadian territorial waters have sunk a further 13 ships with a tonnage of 74,000 registered tons.

"In these operations the submarine commanded by Lt. Kalk particularly distinguished itself.

"Since their first appearance off the American coast our U-boats have sunk 43 enemy merchant ships with a total tonnage of 302,000."

15 Pct. Pay Roll Tax Proposal Revived by Treasury Experts

But Congress Is Seen As Preferring Levy On Retail Sales

By the Associated Press. A 15 per cent pay roll tax on all salaries above $1,000 a year was reported under discussion in administration circles today as evidence developed that congressional and Treasury officials thus far had failed to agree on fundamental principles of the new revenue bill.

Treasury experts, faced with the necessity of raising $7,000,000,000 in general taxes if they are to meet President Roosevelt's request, were said to have renewed their suggestions of last year for a 15 per cent levy on pay rolls, withheld at the source.

They were understood to have won some influential converts to this proposal, despite what other legislators described as mounting sentiment in Congress for imposition of a retail sales tax. The House Ways and Means Committee informally rejected the withholding tax proposal last year and a substantial number of members indicated recently they favored, instead, a sales levy.

Sales Tax Preference Seen.

As evidence that this trend was spreading to the Senate, Senator Brown, Democrat, of Michigan said he was convinced a majority of the members of the Finance Committee would choose the sales tax, if they became convinced that one of the two must be voted in order to obtain sufficient funds.

He estimated that a 3 per cent levy on all retail sales, including food, clothing and other necessities, would raise approximately $2,000,000,000. He said no estimates had been given on the return from proposed pay roll taxes, although some legislators had figured that a 15 per cent levy would bring in approximately $4,000,000,000.

As outlined, the latter proposal would exempt the first $1,000 of any year's salary as necessary for living expenses, the tax being applied above that point.

State Bond Tax Proposal Expected.

Senator Brown said he looked for a proposal from the Treasury for the taxation of State and municipal bonds, although he did not believe that either the House or Senate would agree to make such a levy retroactive on securities already issued.

There seemed little disposition in Congress, the Michigan Senator said, to attempt to lower present individual income tax exemptions. He added that the boosting of rates on both individual and corporation incomes would have to be considered.

Both Senator Brown and Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, another member of the Senate Finance Committee, predicted changes in the present excess profits tax, although they differed on the method. Senator Brown foresaw possible increases in rates. Senator Taft urged that, instead, the direct tax be placed on all profits above a fixed percentage that was made on Government contracts.

Canadian Defenses Poor, M. P. Says at Ottawa

By the Associated Press. OTTAWA, Jan. 30. — Howard Green, member of Parliament from British Columbia, told the House of Commons last night that although enemy attacks on the British Columbia coast "will come sooner or later," some of the active army there have no rifles.

Mr. Green said Canada "is in deadly peril," and he said Canadians on the Pacific coast had great sympathy for Australia "because we see that Canada may soon be placed in the same position."

"Sooner or later attack will be made," said Mr. Green, a conservative member, "and our coast cities and hamlets will be bombed."

He declared that in seven years of war in the Pacific Japan has won control of that ocean. He said a crippled United States Navy in the Pacific was Canada's only protection from Japanese attack.

Mr. Green suggested the Japanese would attack the United States-owned Aleutian Islands bases off Alaska and then the British Columbia towns of Prince Rupert and Port Alberni to establish bases for air raids on shipyards and defense bases around Vancouver and neighboring United States ports.

"Canadian armed forces on the Pacific coast are hopelessly inadequate to deal with an attempted invasion," Mr. Green said.

Hitler's Words Today as Empty As Those of Earlier Speeches

B. B. C. Recalls Fuehrer's '39 Statement That He Believed in Long Peace

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The B. B. C., in preparation for Adolf Hitler's speech today played recordings of his utterances on earlier anniversaries of his accession to power in Germany.

After comparing the word with the deed, B. B. C. announced as its conclusion that "whatever he may say, within a year his words will have proved to be just as false, just as empty as his words on January 30, 1939, 1940 and 1941."

The high spots of the B. B. C. broadcast, as recorded here by C. B. S.:

"Year after year Hitler attempted on this day to give to the German people a picture of his efforts and of his plans. But all claims he made with such fanatical conviction were disproved again and again through his own actions.

"Listen to what Hitler said one, two, three years ago and judge for yourself:

January 30, 1939: "For the fifth time the anniversary of the non-aggression pact with Poland is approaching. All true friends of peace will today probably hardly disagree about the value of this agreement."

B. B. C. speaker: "The value of this agreement with Poland? We all know it today."

Hitler: "But I believe in a long peace."

B. B. C. speaker: "But I believe in a long peace, yet on that 30th day of January, 1939, the German divisions were already prepared to march into Prague, to attack Poland. Nevertheless Hitler spoke of peace."

War Risk Corporation Approved by Senators

By the Associated Press. The Senate Banking Committee approved unanimously yesterday legislation creating a $1,000,000,000 War Risk Insurance Corp., which would compensate American property owners for losses due to enemy action.

As amended by the committee, the legislation would insure all property holders against losses up to $15,000 without payment of premiums.

Those who wanted protection in excess of $15,000 would have to pay premiums at a rate to be established by the corporation.

Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, who will handle the bill on the Senate floor, said that Secretary of Commerce Jones had agreed to consult with private insurance companies on the question of their participating in the plan on a "reinsurance" basis.

Pvt. Crystal is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Va.

Navy Grid Captain in '39 Is Married in Honolulu

By the Associated Press. KANAKAEE, Ill., Jan. 30.—Ensign Allen Bernger of Kanakakee, the Navy's 1939 football captain who is now on duty with the Pacific Fleet, was married at Honolulu to Miss Jayne Clark of Joliet, Ill, parents announced yesterday.

It was a double wedding. Ensign Bernger's brother, Ensign Karl W. Bernger, was married to Miss Betty Stoebe of Miles City, Mont.

Hitler

(Continued From First Page.) the meanest warmongers. It is the same powers we fought then which we are fighting today."

Introduced by Goebbels. He was introduced by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, who complemented the Fuehrer for looking "so fresh and healthy."

Hitler declared that "at the time of the last war Germany was a monarchy and war was forced upon her."

"Today," he said, "Germany is not monarchy, but our same enemies say that it is the system that they are fighting."

"We have not wished to force our system upon others, and therefore we must ask what is the actual reason why our system is being fought."

"England, which claims to be a democracy, has forced her rule upon 380,000,000 Indians. England has disproved again and again through his own actions.

"Listen to what Hitler said one, two, three years ago and judge for yourself:

January 30, 1939: "For the fifth time the anniversary of the non-aggression pact with Poland is approaching. All true friends of peace will today probably hardly disagree about the value of this agreement."

B. B. C. speaker: "The value of this agreement with Poland? We all know it today."

Hitler: "But I believe in a long peace."

B. B. C. speaker: "But I believe in a long peace, yet on that 30th day of January, 1939, the German divisions were already prepared to march into Prague, to attack Poland. Nevertheless Hitler spoke of peace."

throughout the centuries subjected one people after another.

"Ever since it has been England's principal aim to maintain her rule by preventing any other nation in Europe from rising."

Charges Against Britain. Hitler declared England's aim had been to maintain the balance of power in Europe, and declared "they wanted a Europe divided against itself."

Saying the British had "conducted what they said was a war against war" because they wanted "to liberate Germany from militarism," the Fuehrer asserted.

"If they had really meant it they should have given up the fruits of their own wars . . ."

"They did not want any change in society. They said that those who were born poor should remain poor and those born rich should remain rich. We National Socialists, however, say that life cannot be sterilized . . . It is the essence of life that again and again the fittest will survive, and what is ripe for death should not be preserved."

Hitler said that "when the last war was over the conditions for war were not removed, nor were the instruments of war abolished."

The speech was relayed by all German radio stations as well as those throughout Italy, Finland, Rumania, Croatia and Manchukuo.

Also relayed was the introduction of Hitler in which Dr. Goebbels said "Victory was once for us a matter of faith—that is, of faith in your person. What at one time was a matter of faith is today for us a certainty."

Identified With Other War. Hitler said the present conflict was properly called a second World War.

"That means," he said, "that this war is identified with the other war in which I, myself, took part as a private. This is true not only because the war engulfs the whole globe, but also because it is being fought for the same purposes."

"The forces which caused the First World War are responsible for the present war also. Those forces are trying to attain the same goals which they sought to achieve in the last war . . . I am proud to say that the only countries which are an exception to this rule are today our allies—Italy, Japan and the others."

In the First World War, Hitler said, the Germans fought "gloriously" and the British "were almost on the point of breaking down when in the 11th hour traitors in Germany broke the German might."

"This," he declared, "was exclusively our own fault."

"At that time a man faced up who caused the greatest harm to the German people—Woodrow Wilson—the right hand of this man was the present President Roosevelt."

"The German people did not know that this American President (Wilson) in no way felt himself bound to keep to the truth. . . ."

Hitler told his audience that after the armistice Germany was stripped of her defenses and the German people lost all hope.

"Tells of His Faith. "It was a time when pacifism was preached; when it was a shame to be a German—and at this time I stepped on the political platform."

"The audience cheered as he continued."

"Many thought it was the decision of a madman. But I came to this decision because I knew my people. If I had not had this faith I would not stand before you today."

"Only Churchillian impudence accounts for his statement that England never was in a position to carry on war with Germany and Italy by her own resources," Hitler said.

world-wide dimensions." His speech ran well over an hour. Once he took direct cognizance of the many wounded in the hall and referred to them as "my dear wounded comrades."

Brazil Acts to Sever Slightest Ties to Axis Countries

Public Use of German, Italian and Japanese Languages Banned

By the Associated Press. RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—Brazil, the continent's largest nation, gave vivid evidence last night of putting into practice Pan-Americanism's avowed determination to wipe out the last vestiges of aid and comfort to the Axis.

As the great cannon of Fort Copacabana at the mouth of Rio's beautiful harbor boomed practice rounds, authorities of the federal district ordered a rigorous scrutiny of all social, cultural and recreational associations to determine whether they covered any anti-Brazilian activities. Porto Alegre authorities ordered imprisonment of all persons expressing sympathy with the aggressor nations.

Members of the German, Italian and Japanese Embassies here, who had been handed their passports Wednesday evening, burned documents in their kitchens last night. There are about 250 Axis diplomatic and consular representatives in the country.

Henceforth all societies in Brazil must be two-thirds Brazilian in membership and all political discussion therein is banned. The Porto Alegre police even prohibited public use of the German, Italian and Japanese languages. At Bahia and other points foreigners were ordered to register quickly.

Pan-American leaders hailed the accord between Peru and Ecuador on their century-old border trouble, which made possible successful conclusion of the conference, as a victory for American principles of conciliation.

Summer Welles, Undersecretary of State and head of the United States delegation to the Pan-American Conference, has left for Washington.

Influx of Axis Nationals Expected by Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 30 (AP)—Informed sources last night forecast a vast influx of Axis nationals and funds seeking sanctuary in Argentina as the result of other South American nations breaking diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

The stream already has started, and an especially heavy migration is expected from German colonies in southern Brazil.

It was reported from Rio de Janeiro, however, that the Argentine consulate there had been instructed not to grant visas to Axis diplomats obliged to leave Brazil.

Roberto Gache, Argentine under-secretary of foreign affairs, said all Argentine consulates had orders to consult the foreign office in cases involving visas for Axis diplomats.

D. C. Man Found Guilty

Harry P. May of Washington and L. B. Houf of Wichita, Kans., were convicted yesterday by a Federal jury in Albuquerque, N. Mex., of using the mails to defraud Florida purchasers in the sale of New Mexico oil and gas leases, the Associated Press reported.

Both defendants denied the charges. Judge Colin Neblett deferred sentence.

Earle and Bullitt Twice Escaped Death in Planes

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Two dramatic and narrow escapes marked the homeward flight of William C. Bullitt and George H. Earle, United States Minister to Bulgaria, Mr. Earle revealed today.

Arriving at his suburban home here from a New York landing, the former Pennsylvania Governor told how engines on the plane twice caught fire in mid-air.

"The first time, flying across Africa in a four-motored Army bomber, Mr. Earle and Mr. Bullitt, President Roosevelt's personal representative, and other passengers were ordered to sit on the bomb racks, ready to bail out, Mr. Earle related.

But the "last drop" of a fire extinguisher, worked by the co-pilot who had climbed onto the wing, put out the fire.

They flew the South Atlantic, and coming up from South America, Mr. Earle said an engine again caught fire. An emergency landing was made on a Caribbean island, and they later were picked up by a Pan American Clipper which brought the party to New York.

Henderson Studies List of Commodities He May Ration

Products Kept Secret To Avoid Defeat of Program's Purposes

By THOMAS C. HARDMAN.

The Office of Price Administration, now vested with full authority to take up a notch in the belts of all Americans, is surveying the retail commodities field to determine where next the rationing act must fall.

Specific rationing plans now in the making are confined to sugar and automobiles, but there are daily indications at the O. P. A. that as soon as these programs are completed, plans for consumer allocation of other products will be instituted.

What these products will be is kept a close secret by Price Administrator Henderson and his associates, who point out that premature publishing of items high on the rationing agenda will defeat the purpose of the program.

Some idea of the future program can be obtained, however, by taking a look at the list of products where shortages admittedly exist, or are foreseen. Among the possibilities are fats and oils, coffee, paper products, soaps and paints, and such household articles as refrigerators, radios and vacuum cleaners.

Each Item on Separate Basis.

No complete retail rationing plan is being contemplated. Every item which has to be rationed will be allocated on a separate basis. Some programs will be similar. For instance, the sugar plan conceivably could be adopted in most of its features for the rationing of another food product.

A refrigerator, however, could not be rationed on the same basis as sugar, just as the tire rationing program now in effect differs in virtually every detail from the pending sugar allocation program.

Names of boards set up to ration tires—and consequently tagged tire rationing boards—already have been changed simply to rationing boards, but some officials doubt whether these agencies, scattered in every community in the Nation, will have the job of rationing all products placed under the program in future.

It is assumed in official circles that these boards will have charge of automobile rationing as this function would be closely akin to their established duties. Some doubt has been expressed whether they will be called on to handle the sugar program, although the boards would be physically able to do so by vast expansion of personnel.

Few Details Disclosed.

Few details of the sugar rationing plan have leaked out. Officials have made it known that ration cards or books are being printed. Their use alone will be a distinct departure from the system used in the last war whereby grocers themselves saw to it that their own customers bought no more than the 3-pound per person monthly allotment. This ration later dropped to 2 pounds.

Who will get ration cards, how they will be distributed and what enforcement agencies are to be charged with responsibility for the program—these are a few of the details which have not come to light.

The per person ration of sugar when the pending program is adopted will be higher than that at the outset of the rationing program during the last war. Mr. Henderson has estimated that no more than three-fourths of a pound each week will be allowed an individual.

When Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief, gave full rationing authority to the O. P. A. this week, he made it clear that broadening of the consumer rationing program is inevitable. Critical shortages exist in many basic raw materials which are more important now in war production than in ordinary civilian channels.

Mr. Nelson, as well as Mr. Henderson, realizes the average American is in for rough going. Many luxuries even now taken for granted are going to be out for the duration. These officials have admitted privately that the outlook for the average citizen is much darker than it has been made to appear publicly.

The standard of living is bound to be lowered. A housewife won't be able to take her money to the corner store and come back with foods for a dinner-as-usual. Within three weeks she will have the Government looking over her shoulder when she buys her sugar—and she won't be able to get enough for the usual pies and cakes and candies. A vegetable will have to be knocked off the menu here and there, and even an occasional meat dish is going to be eliminated, price control or not.

Submarines

relaxed the rule of secrecy on anti-submarine successes and gave it to the country. They furnished no details.

Simultaneously with the pilot's report, the Navy issued a communique stating that "increasingly effective" countermeasures were being taken against the Atlantic raiders.

Any mention of operations inside the Gulf of Mexico—such as had been reported by naval officials at Port Arthur and Corpus Christi, Tex., Wednesday—was conspicuously lacking, and this was authoritatively interpreted as indicating that the Navy Department here was inclined to discount the validity of the Texas reports.

Sub Sighted off Los Angeles.

A Navy announcement at Los Angeles said an enemy submarine was sighted off the harbor there yesterday and was attacked by depth bombs without apparent result.

To date, the Atlantic U-boats are reported to have attacked 11 vessels off the United States East Coast and 4 off the Canadian coast, with casualties in dead and missing of more than 350. Of those 15, two have escaped sinking, including the tanker Pan Maine. Word that the 7,236-ton Pan Maine was "afloat and safe" came from a Navy spokesman last night, although information as to whether she had made port was withheld.

The communique covering naval activities in all theaters of operation, credited the marines on Midway Island with having repelled another Japanese attack, this time almost if not actually before it started.

"Two enemy submarines entered off Midway in the afternoon of December 7 and were destroyed by the Marines," the communique said. "They were driven away by the artillery of our garrison. One hit was scored on one of the attacking submarines. No damage was inflicted on the Midway garrison, and there were no injuries."

Two days ago the first report of the initial Japanese attack on the island on December 7 was given out and disclosed that marine garrison, with a loss of two men, had damaged and driven off by artillery fire a Japanese cruiser and destroyer which shelled the island.

Fredericksburg Police Quell 200 Soldiers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Jan. 30.—A. G. Kendall, city police superintendent, said today that he had last night in dispersing a crowd of about 200 colored soldiers who sought to prevent the removal by a police officer of their number from a colored hotel.

No one was injured seriously in the melee and the soldiers were loaded into Army trucks and returned to the A. P. Hill military reservation near here, the superintendent added.

Three policemen went to the hotel after receiving a call from the management, police reported, and the soldiers crowded about two of the policemen who went into the hotel.

When the men became unruly, the third officer, left in the cruiser car, put in a radio call to headquarters for help, and about 15 Fredericksburg and State police came to the scene.

Police reinforcements were armed with riot equipment, but officials said that other than tear gas, the officers used only night sticks. Several soldiers suffered bashed heads, but none required hospital treatment.

The soldiers came to Fredericksburg earlier in the night on brief leave from camp.

Col. Pedro L. Zanni, Argentine Air Chief, Dies After Car Crash

Former Attache Here Was Aviation Pioneer In South America

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 30.—Col. Pedro L. Zanni, 50, commander of the Argentine Air Force and a pioneer of South American aviation, died late last night of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

His car collided with a truck in the night with a truck just outside the Campo de Mayo military garrison 20 miles from Buenos Aires.

Col. Zanni had been commandant of military aviation since October 8, when Gen. Angel Zuloaga was relieved at his own request after discovery of an alleged subversive plot involving some junior officers.

Military air attaché in Washington from 1938 to last June, Col. Zanni had held similar posts in Tokio, Paris, London and Brussels. He gained fame in 1915 when he broke the American altitude record, reaching a height of 6,500 meters (more than 21,000 feet).

In 1920 he made one of the first two-way crossings of the Andes by air.

In 1924 he began an ambitious flight around the world from Amsterdam. His plane was wrecked in Hanoi, French Indo-China, but he finally continued with another shipper from Japan.

With it he got as far as Tokio, where he was held as a hero and decorated by the Japanese government. Technical and political difficulties finally caused him to abandon his projected flight across the Pacific, and he went home by steamer.

His later career was primarily as an officer and diplomat.

Argentine Embassy officials here were shocked by the news of the death of Col. Zanni, who was widely known and popular during his nearly three years' service in Washington. He was said to be survived by his widow and two children, a son, 10, and a daughter, 9.

Price Control

Made Honest Woman?

Smilingly, as he announced he had signed the bill, Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Henderson had remarked in recommending that it be signed, that it made an honest woman out of him. Mr. Roosevelt said he had told Mr. Henderson it also made an honest woman out of the Chief Executive.

The legislation, he went on, gives congressional authorization for certain things inherent in a war situation. Referring to a memorandum supplied him by Mr. Henderson, the President said the bill provided another valuable tool to use with others, such as savings, taxation and rationing, to control inflation. He did not explain how these supplementary tools were to be employed.

Mr. Roosevelt described the framework of the bill as good, since, he said, it fixes responsibility in one administrator and provides for a workable administrative procedure. He expressed approval of enforcement provisions including those providing for licensing of people subject to the act and permissive authority to resort to criminal proceedings and injunctions. He noted also that consumers might bring damage suits if they felt they were being gouged on prices.

Indorses Rent Section.

Mr. Roosevelt indorsed sections designed to allow the stabilizing of rents and also said that provisions permitting the Government to buy and sell farm commodities were useful.

The maximum price provisions, in relation to many commodities, are good, Mr. Roosevelt went on. In general, he said, the price of commodities will be based on prices prevailing in the first half of October, 1941, with some adjustments for various factors.

But, in criticizing the sections dealing with farm products, the President said it had been hoped the legislation would be in such form the Government could seek an average of parity.

The 110 per cent goal of the bill is a threat to living costs, he said, especially because parity is not a fixed amount but a relationship between non-agricultural and agricultural costs. As the cost of living goes up, he said, parity goes up, and so does the extra 10 per cent.

On Buying and Selling.

Mr. Roosevelt responded affirmatively to an inquiry whether the buying and selling provisions of the measure did not offer a fair way of combating the situation.

It depends on the particular case, he said in reply to another question, whether the Government would have to make it purchases at 110 per cent of parity.

Mr. Henderson said a provision forbidding buying and selling to control prices, a reporter wanted to know. The President referred the question to Mr. Henderson, who remarked there was no bar on operations of the Commodity Credit Corp. When he was asked whether a misunderstanding between Mr. Henderson and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard had been straightened out, Mr. Roosevelt said there was not so much controversy in that field. Mr. Henderson added that he expected to see Secretary Wickard today.

Other provisions of the bill: Maximum rents may be fixed for any defense housing area, with rents since April 1, 1941, serving as a standard. (Some areas, such as the District of Columbia, have their own rent terms and are not affected.)

Business affected by the price orders may be licensed and this license taken away in court for a second offense after warning on a first offense.

Heavy Penalties Provided.

Violations of price ceilings and regulations may bring penalties up to $5,000 fine and two years in jail. The price administrator may buy or sell commodities in order to influence prices for increased production.

Persons charged more than price ceilings may sue for triple damages or $50, whichever is larger.

Wages and salaries were exempted. Also exempted were newspapers and other periodicals, radio, motion pictures and theaters, railroads and other utilities, insurance and professional fees.

Appeals from price ceilings or regulations may be made first to the administrator, then to a special emergency court composed of Federal judges and finally to the Supreme Court.

Office of Price Administration officials said "nothing sweeping or radical" in the way of new price ceilings need be expected immediately.

The effect on the consumer will be negligible for the time being, they

Henderson Orders Inspection of Stock Of All Tire Firms

Rationing Violation Reported; Several Small Dealers Here Accused

For the first time since the Government froze their stocks last December the Nation's tire dealers today were faced with a strict accounting of the manner in which they have complied with the regulations of the tire-rationing program.

Price Administrator Henderson has ordered a Nation-wide inspection of the stocks and records of tire and tube dealers, large and small.

Mr. Henderson said "first attention" will be given to establishments or dealers against whom complaints have been received, either with the O. P. A. or State and local tire-rationing boards.

Several small Washington dealers have been reported to officials as violators, it was understood. One of the chief reported violations in the District was the practice of selling frozen tire stocks during the period immediately preceding the rationing program.

Mr. Henderson said a large investigative staff will be used in routine inspection of all dealers. It will include members of the O. P. A.'s Field Operations Division and some 500 inspectors of the Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division.

"If the inspection discloses any unauthorized transfers of new tires or tubes, the dealer will be required to explain," the O. P. A. announced late yesterday. "Cases of deliberate violation will be referred to the enforcement division of O. P. A."

Convoy on Way to Iceland Halts 12 Minutes to Bury Soldier

Leo Branham, Associated Press correspondent, who crossed the North Atlantic in a United States Army transport, has arrived in Iceland. His first dispatch from Reykjavik follows.

By LEO BRANHAM, Associated Press Correspondent.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Jan. 29 (Delayed).—The entire convoy, including its strong force of escorting warships, in which I recently came to this North Atlantic garrison drifted en route for 12 minutes while a soldier was buried at sea.

It was a risky but impressive tribute to a private in the United States Army—Francis E. Metras of Detroit. He is believed to be the first American soldier in this war given a formal burial at sea.

Metras got considerable notice about a year ago when he was drafted two months after completing a regular four-year "hitch" in the $615,000,000 additional for the Bureau of Ships, to bring its 1943 total to $958,979,935.

The Chief Executive also asked Congress to insert a provision in the huge bill granting him the right to transfer any ships to nations whose safety was deemed vital to the defense of the United States.

The immediate intent of this provision, containing phrases used in the "Lend-Lease" Act, was not clear, but congressional clerks said they believed it would remove previous congressional restrictions on the amount of this aid.

The provision was asked to apply on all Navy appropriations since March 11, 1941.

Calls for Supremacy.

Senator Overton, talking before the budget request arrived, said "without supremacy in the air, even the strongest navy and army forces are at a disadvantage."

Secretary of the Navy Knox told reporters he had asked no changes or increase in the bulky bill passed by the House, but Senator Overton said his proposal was the result of a questioning of Rear Admiral J. H. Towers, who followed Secretary Knox as a witness at yesterday's closed Senate hearings.

Secretary Knox said that as passed by the House the bill carried funds for 27,000 new Navy planes and Admiral Towers disclosed in previous testimony that the Navy program now was 1,500 planes monthly, or 18,000 a year.

Other Senators said the subcommittee would give speedy approval to the vast assortment of items already voted by the House for a powerful two-ocean Navy. Secretary Knox said this force would be able to claim supremacy everywhere when completed.

Most of the funds would go to completing production of ships, guns, munitions, airplanes and other supplies and recent increase in naval strength approved by Congress. The latter included 150,000 tons of combatant ships, 800,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, and 400 additional local defense vessels.

Navy officers testified that the man power of the Navy and Marines would nearly double during the fiscal year 1943.

The Senate yesterday passed and returned to the House for action on amendments legislation to authorize construction of 1,799 minor naval vessels at an estimated cost of $3,150,000,000.

The measure would also authorize expenditure of $750,000,000 for construction and ordnance facilities.

Chairman Walsh of the Senate Navy Affairs Committee said the new ships would be used for convoy and shore patrol work.

It also passed and returned to the House for concurrence in amendments legislation to authorize expenditure of $450,000,000 for naval public works.

One of the amendments would make temporary provision for relief of naval contractors and their employes for losses incurred as a direct result of enemy action.

A naval committee report said that allotments of pay of civilians captured at Guam and Wake by the Japanese would be made to dependents of the captives.

Food Sent to France Diverted to Germany, Officials Here Say

President Renews Plea For Continued Aid To Friendly Nations

Some food sent into unoccupied France has been diverted to Germany, it was disclosed today, as President Roosevelt urged that Americans continue contributions for relief to friendly countries when proper distribution is assured.

The disclosure of the diversion of relief supplies intended for the children and needy citizens in unoccupied France came from unimpeachable Government sources. It also was said that immense confusion surrounds the entire question of transportation of food and other commodities between the occupied and unoccupied zones of France, Germany and French North Africa.

Secretary of State Hull said, however, that he had no information that any of the supplies diverted to Germany was of American origin. The American Red Cross, which up until last June 30 sent $4,737,000 worth of relief shipments to unoccupied France, said its agent who supervised the distribution reported that not a single instance of diversion of this food had come to his attention.

Food Sent on to Germany.

This country's experience in sending food for relief of needy citizens and particularly children in unoccupied France has not been 100 per cent satisfactory, however, it was said on high authority.

This authority said that unfortunately some food which had been put on a train at Marseilles for distribution in the unoccupied zone kept right on going into Germany. A number of small instances of a similar nature was reported.

Red Cross officials said a report had come to their attention that a shipment of food being imported by the Vichy Government from French North Africa and intended for the civilian population of unoccupied France had been diverted to Germany after being unloaded at Marseilles. They said they could not verify for the truth of this report but that it probably was correct. It was said that this incident may have been the basis of the reports of diversion of supplies.

Meanwhile, the President told Congress in a report that the American Government has spent $30,732,048.46 for the relief of homeless civilians of the Nazi-occupied countries in Europe. The report said its W. P. A. program had cost the Nation $14,670,000,000 from its inauguration in 1935 to the end of last December.

The Government foreign relief funds were spent for food, medicine and clothing, which was turned over to the Red Cross for distribution abroad. Congress earmarked a fund of $50,000,000 for this purpose. The report said the American Red Cross with $906,165.80 for expenses involved in the distribution.

Many Nations Need Help.

The whole question of relief contributions for foreign countries came up at President Roosevelt's press conference. He said he felt that a shipment of food being imported by the Allied side need things which Americans can help supply for civilian uses and that present efforts to get such assistance to them should continue.

He mentioned particularly such items as worn clothing and food. While the war has increased needs here, the President said this did not mean that we ought to cut off help to other nations.

He pointed out that this country must keep up its own drives for such things as the fund to combat infantile paralysis and other charity programs, but that instead of cutting off anything, Americans should just give a little more. He emphasized, however, that contributions for use abroad should go only through authorized agencies.

Asked if this policy applied to unoccupied France, the President answered in the affirmative with the stipulation that relief may be sent to the Vichy-controlled areas only when we can be sure of getting the supplies in there and insure their proper distribution. This country cannot afford to send supplies to Germany now, it was pointed out.

Chiefly Medicine and Milk.

Red Cross shipments into unoccupied France, consisting mainly of medicine and milk for children, with some of them including infants' clothing and cereals, were resumed from beginning to end by American officials. The Red Cross representatives saw to it that the supplies they were handling went directly to the needy persons for whom they were intended, officials here said.

Richard Allen, Red Cross delegate to Europe, who recently returned after supervising distribution of Red Cross shipments to unoccupied France, reported to superiors that no instance of diversion had come to his attention.

Such shipments have been discontinued in France since last June, however. In response to desperate appeals for aid through the French Ambassador here, a ship was loaded at Baltimore late last fall with $30,000 worth of Red Cross medicines and milk for children, but the ship was unloaded before leaving for France in view of disquieting reports at that time about the extent of Vichy collaboration with Germany.

Last of 'Honest Bandits' In Corsica Dies at 75

By the Associated Press. VICHY, Unoccupied France, Jan. 30—Death of Felix Michael, described as the last of the famed "honest bandits" of Corsica, a Robin Hood of France's Mediterranean island, was reported yesterday in dispatches from Bastia, Corsica.

"Little Felix" aged 75, died in bed in his native village on the east coast between Portovechio and Bastia. He had retired some 15 years ago after a career which had made him an island-wide popular figure.

He was renowned for his patriotism and his obituary record that in 1914, when the French Army refused to take him because of his record as a bandit, he spent several months hunting down Corsican deserters and turning them over to military police. Later he disguised himself and got into the Foreign Legion in North Africa, where he served until wounded and recognized in a hospital. Discharged from the army, he returned to Corsica to resume his career as a beneficent bandit combined with a business in timber.

The timber business flourished and Felix became less and less a bandit and more a solid man of business. His fame was such that peasants took many disputes to him instead of the regular courts and "justice of the peace" was one of his nicknames.

Defense Sidelights

D. C. Building Trades Council Pledges Full Co-operation in Civilian Protection

A pledge of full co-operation with the metropolitan civilian defense organization was presented to a meeting of the heads of public works services of the District Defense Council by representatives of approximately 35,000 members of the Washington Building Trades Council yesterday.

Plumbers, riggers, dynamiters, and workers in every phase of building are being organized into squads to assist in emergency work. John Locher, secretary of the council and president of the Central Labor Union (A. F. L.) told Defense Council members.

In addition, A. F. L. locals have pledged more than $53,000 toward a civilian defense fund. The goal has been raised from $70,000 to $100,000, because contributions are much heavier than expected, Mr. Locher said.

P. Y. K. Howat, head of the public works division, president, Other labor representatives present were C. F. Freiler, president of the Building Trades Council, and Willy Arnheim, of the Laborers' District Council.

Office help is needed in Zone 8 headquarters of the Dupont Circle area. It was announced today by George E. Cox, zone warden. Zone offices are located at 1408 New Hampshire avenue N.W.

Boundaries of the zone are P street, Nineteenth street, M street, Twenty-first street, Newport street and Twenty-second street.

Mr. Cox also announced that sector wardens, building wardens and their assistants in the zone have been appointed. A mass meeting for every one in the zone will be held within 10 days, he said.

Volunteers for a decontamination (anti-poison-gas) squad are sought by the Civilian Volunteer Office, 501 Pennsylvania avenue N.W. The squad is to be composed of 250 trained volunteers, who will man 10 field stations. Men and women equipped for this work are asked to enroll at the office. Women with training in nursing or first aid are preferred.

Plans also are under way for 25 field units to patrol the city in case of a gas attack. These decontamination workers will be equipped with heavy clothing which protects them from gas, and with masks and helmets. Volunteers must be men in good physical condition.

Washington's Civilian Volunteer Defense Office gave information and advice this week to visitors from points far and near. Among them was Mrs. William MacDonald of Juneau, Alaska, who found out how Washington has organized civilian defense; Mrs. D. B. Sinclair, chairman of the Volunteer Bureau of Toronto, and Miss Elizabeth Taylor of the Little Rock (Ark.) Volunteer Office.

Thirty-one members of the first auxiliary police class today awaited results of a final written examination given them last night, based on 40 hours of instruction centered around six subjects. The test was given at No. 10 Precinct Station by Precinct Capt. Clarence H. Lutz and Auxiliary Capt. Graham F. Hutchison. Results are expected to be announced Sunday. Subjects the test covered included basic criminal law, law of arrest, relationship of police to the public, bomb and gas control and traffic duties. Those taking the examination were H. A. Dowling, Lono Johnson, William T. Campbell, William F. Donnelly, John K. Russell, A. J. Davison, Sam Kessler, Joseph Gordon, Otis E. Zinn, Norman Rosner, James L. Gordon, Charles A. Claxton, Wallace A. Jones, B. N. Deyerle, William P. Bardwell, Phillip Brownstein, G. E. Third Paper Salvage Area Produces 16 Tons in Week

Petworth School Sets Pace; Bancroft Holds Second Place for City

Undeterred by last Wednesday's bad weather, school children in the third collection area of The Evening Star-P. T. A. Salvage for Victory campaign turned in a record total of 32,518 pounds of newspapers, cardboard and magazines, exceeding by more than 5,000 pounds the best previous day's collection.

Faced by Petworth, which in one day doubled all previous collections at that school with a total Wednesday of 4,069 pounds of paper and 319 pounds of magazines, the pupils in the Northwest section north of Florida avenue and east of Sixteenth street poured 16 tons of paper into the rapidly increasing stream of defense salvage.

Bancroft School, consistently a big producer and at the moment ranking second in the city, also reported a big day with 2,772 pounds of newspapers and 369 pounds of magazines. Bancroft's total of all types of paper is 11,078 pounds, exceeded only by Jefferson Junior's 15,161.

Aid is coming to the schools from many sources. Paul Junior, for example, tripled its previous week's collection largely through the efforts of a filling station operator who sent his truck out to pick up five collections offered to the school by residents nearby who have no children.

In Bethesda the Columbia Specialty Co. permits the Bethesda Elementary School to use its paper baler to bale all scrap paper from the school. In addition the company puts all of its scrap in with the school's collection and then hauls the bale over to the school to be picked up by the collector when he gathers the newspapers, cardboard and magazines. An especially large collection was expected at the school this week.

The total for the campaign at the end of Wednesday's collection was 350,172 pounds. A big increase is anticipated when the figures for yesterday's collection are counted.

Volunteers for Course in Child Care Meet

Fifty volunteers for the child care aide training course opened this morning by the Council of Social Agencies heard Miss Christine Glass, director, discuss the relation of the nursery school to general child welfare.

Meeting at the National Education Association auditorium at 1201 Sixteenth street N.W., the group saw a motion picture on the nursery school and received instructions for field trips to nursery schools, settlement houses and clinics.

The course will last five weeks with three weeks of practice work in nursery schools. The council then expects the volunteers to take over groups of children selected from dozens of applications for group care made by employed parents.

Three sailors, two marines and four Jefferson Junior High School students loaded a consignment of 3,000 Victory books into trucks at Southwest Public Library Branch, Eighth and I streets S.W., this morning for delivery to the Navy Yard, Marine Barracks, Piney Point Barracks and Cheltenham Radio Base.

Miss Isabel Dubois, Navy librarian, supervised the loading. About 40 Jefferson Junior High School students have been busy for two days dividing the books into fiction and non-fiction groups.

Miss Dubois is still hopeful of getting encyclopedias, she said. Students at the Navy Yard need reference volumes, she explained. Formal thanks of the marines and sailors for the books was expressed

Most of the 19,000 books taken to the public libraries during the drive will be stored there until they are sent to the 3d Corps Area distributing station at Baltimore next week. The libraries of George Washington, Catholic and American Universities also are collecting books.

Jefferson Junior High School, in one wing of which the Southwest Library Branch is housed, featured the Victory book campaign in its graduation exercises last night.

Librarians from other branches and volunteers from the Central Volunteer Bureau have been assisting Miss Virginia T. McLaughlin and Miss Irene Fetti, Southwest Branch librarians, to sort the books stored there.

Spying on Spies

President Roosevelt has good reason to be deeply concerned over legal restrictions which handicap America's counterespionage agents in their vital task of spying on enemy spies. The Roberts report on Pearl Harbor clearly revealed the danger—and the absurdity—of leaving on the statute books a provision of the Federal Communications Act which, because of its broad wording, prohibits the Federal Bureau of Investigation and intelligence officers from "intercepting and divulging" wire and wireless messages passing between foreign spies or saboteurs.

The restrictions of which the Roberts Board complained can be removed only by legislative edict. It is gratifying to learn that Mr. Roosevelt will press for prompt action by Congress to permit tapping of wires and examination of cable or radio messages in cases where—as at Pearl Harbor—the national security is at stake. A bill which would grant this permission already has been introduced by Representative Celler of New York and similar legislation is being prepared on the Senate side. It is understood. Objections which were voiced against such legislation in the past no longer are valid, in the light of the startling disclosures of the Roberts report. Congress should move at once to abolish the restrictions which continue to hamper the Nation's battle against the Axis fifth column.

Export Currency

In view of the advantages which would result from the stabilization of foreign exchange rates in Western Hemisphere countries, the plan of Secretary Morgenthau for an export currency seems to merit careful consideration. A currency stabilization conference has been proposed in a resolution introduced at the Third Conference of Pan-American Foreign Ministers. This meeting would presumably discuss, among other matters, the suggestion for a hemisphere currency.

What Secretary Morgenthau has in mind is a unit common to all the American Republics and Canada, for use in international trade. To assure a fixed value for the proposed export currency, it would be backed by a stabilization fund. The broad objective would be to devise a method for the quick settlement of balances in hemisphere trade, through export currency of a definite and stable value, wherever used. There are various means through which such a medium of exchange might be created. As Secretary Morgenthau pointed out, this currency, if adopted by the Americas, could be extended elsewhere.

The principal purpose of the proposal is to assist in the restoration of peacetime trade. Stabilization of exchange rates would tend to increase the flow of goods between the American Republics and facilitate capital movements. By ending present delays and uncertainties as to exchange payments, stabilization would enable United States exporters to offer better credit terms to their Latin American customers, thus providing them with a wider market for their products.

According to reports reaching officials here, agents of the Axis have held out the promise that its clearance system would solve the post-war foreign exchange difficulties of Latin American countries. The Treasury plan, it is pointed out, would offer Latin America an alternative to the Axis program, and an agreement to stabilize exchange rates through the adoption of a hemisphere currency would therefore deal another blow to Hitler's hopes for economic conquests in the New World.

Latin American countries have their own currencies, and in normal times most of their economies are largely dependent, for their efficient functioning, on foreign trade. As a result of our heavy purchases of strategic and raw materials, many of them now enjoy a favorable balance of trade with the United States. This is reflected in a marked improvement in their foreign exchange positions. After the war, there may be a slackening in the demand for their products, resulting in a less favorable trade balance.

Unless a reasonable division is maintained between exports and imports, with a substantial interchange of goods and services, the scheme advanced by the Treasury can hardly be expected to hold foreign exchange rates at stable levels. As a supplement to other measures designed to increase the two-way flow of trade, currency and exchange stabilization should contribute much, however, to the closer economic integration of the Americas in the post-war period.

The Stakes in Burma

The grim struggles going on in the Philippines, the Dutch Indies, and around Singapore should not obscure the campaign in Burma. Here, too, the Japanese are conducting a vigorous offensive which, if successful, would have disastrous and far-reaching consequences for the Allied cause.

Every one knows Burma's importance as the starting point of the famous road which is China's sole link with the outer world. Over that vital highway must pass the artillery, tanks and other heavy equipment which China must get from abroad if she is to be in a position to stage a large-scale drive against the Japanese invaders. That is why considerable bodies of Chinese troops have entered Burma to bolster the British defense.

Reinforcements from any quarter are needed, for the steady progress of the Japanese is reaching a dangerous stage. Not only have they overrun the long panhandle of Burmese territory reaching southward down the Malay Peninsula; they have also forced the mountain passes farther north and appear to be almost within striking distance of Moulmein, the main British advance base guarding the shore road and railway leading to Rangoon, only 100 miles away. That great port city is the seagate to the Burma Road, and so must be held at all costs. The chief barrier to the Japanese advance is the wide and swift-flowing Salween River which runs down from the mountains and jungles farther north and empties into the sea at Moulmein. But the Japanese are reportedly approaching the Salween line at more than one point. And through the last fifty miles of its course, the Salween runs through fairly open country. So the British must hold the line in strength to prevent Japanese crossings.

An unfortunate aspect of the situation is the fact that Japan has got what seems to be the willing cooperation of the Thai Army, reported to number at least 60,000. Thailand and Burma have been hereditary enemies for centuries, and Tokyo has doubtless promised the Thais a good slice of Burmese territory. On the other hand, these Thai invaders should stir the Burmese to fight more strongly and to think less of their distaste for British rule.

The British are grayly handicapped in reinforcing Burma from India by the absence of any railway or high road along the coast. On the map, the distance between the two countries is short, but the mountains which under them from each other reach into the sea. So the British have found it easier to communicate by water. This sea-borne line of communications has already begun to be menaced by Japan. Recently, two British ships were reported sunk off the Burmese coast not far from Rangoon, though whether the sinkings were due to Japanese airplanes or submarines was not stated. It is easy to see how precarious the situation of the British forces in Burma would become if the Japanese Navy could have easy access to those waters, which would happen if Japan should get control of either the Strait of Malacca, now guarded by Singapore, or the Sunda Passage into the Indian Ocean, between the Dutch Islands of Sumatra and Java.

While a Japanese conquest of Burma would not enable them to invade India by land, for the reason already stated, it would give Japan air bases from which to launch wholesale raids on nearby Indian cities, especially the crowded population centers of the Calcutta region. What that would mean to those congested and inflammable human hives is easy to imagine. Yet the increasingly successful defense of the skies over Burma by British and American pilots is perhaps the most hopeful aspect of an otherwise critical situation. If the air can be held, Burma should be able to hold out until the turn of the tide.

Perry's Statue

The monument to Commodore Matthew C. Perry at Kurihama is to be destroyed. A radio broadcast from Berlin reports that "leading personages" in Tokyo have ordered the demolition of the statue of the man who introduced Japan to the community of nations. His effigy was erected by the Japanese American Association of Japan as a gesture of friendship to the United States. Now, however, after more than forty years, it symbolizes not amity but rather bitter strife. Perhaps it is just as well that it should perish with the sentiment by which it was inspired.

Perry's fame, of course, will be enhanced by the insult to his memory. The effect of any such spitefulness is bound to be paradoxical. His own countrymen, few of whom are familiar with the romance of his long career, may be stirred to inquire about the invaluable services he rendered to the world. The "most important diplomatic mission ever entrusted to an American naval officer" was but a single incident among many that are worthy of remembrance in connection with his name. Born at Newport, Rhode Island, April 10, 1794, Perry was a brother of the hero of the Battle of Lake Erie. He became a midshipman in 1809 and had his earliest experience in action in 1811. Cruises to Norway and to Holland, several voyages to Liberia with settlers for that colony, certain punitive expeditions against pirates in the West Indies, a tour of duty in the Mediterranean and an official trip to Russia kept him busy up to 1833, when he was appointed second officer at the New York Navy Yard and took up the work of establishing a new cultural background for the maritime branch of the national defense.

As one of the sponsors of the Naval Academy at Annapolis and the Naval Lyceum, Perry contributed immeasurably to the progress of the Navy at a time when advancement was imperative. He favored the use of steam, organized the first naval engineer corps, went to England and to France to study lighthouses and to collect information on ordnance, developed the first American naval school of gun practice and played an active part in the suppression of the African slave trade, the protection of the American fishing industry in the North Atlantic and the winning of the war with Mexico.

President Fillmore found Perry an obvious choice for the delicate business of approaching the "hermit kingdom" of Japan. It was in January, 1852, that the mission was decided upon. The squadron assembled by Perry arrived at Yedo on July 8, 1852. Two imperial princes received Perry himself on the shore where his monument was set up in 1901. A second voyage brought him back to Yokohama to sign a treaty, March 31, 1854, and it was the covenant then formulated that was broken when Japanese raiders attacked Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

Social Gains and War

In December of 1940—a year prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor—the Star published an editorial commenting on a statement by Secretary of Labor Perkins to the effect that there was no need to undermine wage and hour legislation or to lengthen the 40-hour week as our defense needs shaped up at that time. "Does Miss Perkins," the editorial asked, "subscribe to the fantastic belief that we should wait until the British are fallen before exerting a maximum effort to arm ourselves and to aid them? Miss Perkins and those who agree with her utterly fail to comprehend the importance of the time element in modern warfare."

Secretary Perkins, in a letter to The Star, took vigorous exception to the editorial. "May I say," she wrote, "that in recommending compliance with the wage-hour legislation I have always taken pains to say what I believe to be the truth—that the shorter hours will result in greater efficiency, greater per capita and plant production and can be relied on to speed up our defense program rather than to delay it." She then went on to say that every study of industrial efficiency and production in this country and England has shown increased production under shorter hours.

In this insistence upon maintenance of "social gains," including retention of the 40-hour week, Miss Perkins was merely giving expression to a point of view widely entertained at that time throughout the country. If one may judge from the statements of those holding to the viewpoint, it was assumed that our enemies would give us all the time that we desired; that they would not strike until we were fully armed and ready to fight. On the morning of last December 7, however, this illusion was rudely shattered and the United States was plunged into a two-ocean war for which, as subsequent events have shown, we were lamentably unprepared.

The defeat suffered by this Nation at the hands of Japan in the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor has not been an unmitigated disaster, however, for it has since become evident that the sense of national complacency symbolized by insistence upon the 40-hour week and the belief that we could superimpose the defense program on normal industry has been largely swept away. Among those who have undergone a change of heart in this respect, however belatedly, is Secretary Perkins, who recently called for a forty-eight-hour week in defense production and asked for a relaxation of State labor laws affecting war industries facing a shortage of workers. The Labor Secretary, it should be noted, remains of the opinion that an excessive work week would impair the efficiency of the workers, but it is gratifying that she no longer is disposed to insist upon a maximum of forty hours.

In this connection, it is to be hoped that sentiment in the country as a whole has reached a point where, for the duration of the war, emphasis no longer will be placed on the maintenance of social gains. The simple truth of the matter is that we cannot make the military effort demanded by this war while retaining our 40-hour week and our high standard of living. For the time being, the latter must go.

Many smiles have been applied to war, but the most up-to-date one seems to be that it is a good deal like getting across a creek by means of stepping stones; each one occupied proves a base for the approach to the next.

Who remembers 'way back to 1940, when, each day, we thought the news was pretty bad?

Validity of Warning By Ickes Shown

Destruction of Playgrounds Is Not Necessary In National Crisis

At the October meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Secretary of the Interior Ickes sounded a ringing warning against unplanned and unnecessary encroachments on Washington's parks and playgrounds. The following is quoted from his statement:

"We find ourselves in the throes of a national emergency and there is a strong tendency on the part of certain defense officials to achieve their objectives without regard for the general interest. They would ignore the plans of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Commission of Fine Arts and the National Park Service for the orderly development of the National Capital. . . . An outstanding example of this, as you are all well aware, is the sudden construction of another new War Department Building in Virginia with its upsetting influences involving shifting populations, traffic congestions and a general disturbance of the whole city pattern.

"This disregard of park and recreational values, built up through years of effort and expenditure, has been clearly demonstrated by the increase in size of the present War and Navy Department Buildings, and the demand for automobile parking areas in Potomac Park to accommodate the increased personnel.

"Temporary office buildings are being located in many downtown parks, despite the unhappy experience of the last war. Temporary buildings of the 1917 vintage, some of which still remain, gave Washington its worst scars and have defaced the National Capital for nearly two decades. Instead of being a shining example to other crowded areas in the country, our Capital City offers a bad example. We need more parks and not fewer parks. We need more playgrounds, swimming pools, tennis courts and golf courses. . . .

"Rock Creek and Potomac parkways have become main traffic arteries so that their preservation for park use and enjoyment is becoming increasingly difficult. Certain interests now propose to add bus traffic on these roads further to interfere with the intended use of the area. . . .

"We are thinking of the United States Capital not in terms of beauty, vista and adequate park areas, but of buildings crowded together and of overcrowded streets. People ought to be just as important as buildings and it should be realized that in urban communities the problem of the conservation of our human resources becomes increasingly more important in direct ratio to population growth. Recreation must be provided for this increasing population, and recreation for the great mass of the population means parks and playgrounds.

"The national conscience has been shocked by the number of young men offered for enrollment in the Army who are being rejected for physical reasons. Healthy bodies can neither be built up nor maintained in areas that are crowded to the point of unhealthiness. . . .

"At the rate we are going, the parks of Washington will soon be nothing but glorified boulevards. There will be no problem of playgrounds and recreation areas, but only of traffic arteries, overpasses, underpasses, clover-leaves, automobile parking lots and sites for schools and office buildings. . . .

"I am opposed to any further encroachment upon our inadequate park areas. I believe in long-time planning and in adherence to plans when carefully consummated; not in the grab-bag method of putting a road or a building on any bit of vacant land that can be discovered regardless of whether or not that is the best use for the land. . . .

"President Roosevelt recently said that he had been guilty of a crime against Washington over 20 years ago. He referred to the 'temporary' Navy and War buildings that have squatted on park lands since 1917.

"If necessity must, I would be the first to call for the destruction of our parks and even the demolition of the Washington Monument and the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials. I would be willing to pay this price and a greater one to save ourselves from Hitler. But none of these things is necessary. A little more imagination, a little more ingenuity and quite a bit more interest in Washington and its population would provide for our defense needs without destroying or marring the people's heritage."

Urges War-Time Use Of Substitutes For Sugar. To the Editor of The Star:

The people of the United States should realize that excessive purchase and consumption of sugar simply mean that they are sending out of this country huge sums for the enrichment of alien monopolies.

It appears to be the policy of shortsighted bureaucrats to aid and abet this large outflow of our money by asserting that sugar is needed in the making of alcohol for war purposes.

But it has been stated that it is not necessary to use sugar for such purposes when there are available here, produced within our own borders, huge quantities of products suitable for manufacture of alcohol.

It would be more helpful and patriotic, therefore, to use to the fullest extent the varied substitutes for sugar available, as was widely done during the First World War.

With sugar as with milk, it is not necessary to consume a fixed quantity per day; it may be acquired in combination with other foods.

The newspapers would be rendering outstanding service by directing attention of the people to the many substitutes for sugar and pointing out the best way to use them. JOSEPH W. CHEYNEY.

Expresses Faith In Irish People. To the Editor of The Star:

The protest of Premier De Valera at the landing of American troops in Northern Ireland was to be expected, considering the placement of his sympathies. It will be recalled that in 1916, when Britain was fighting with her back to the wall, a rebellion was staged in Ireland. Mr. De Valera is no more friendly to the Allied cause now than he was then.

I believe, though, that a majority of the Irish people realize that Ireland's fate is linked with England's in the present conflict and would help if given the chance. ALBERT S. BROWN.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

36th STREET.

"Dear Sir: "Is the titmouse seen only in migration? And if so, why should it be migrating at this time of year? "I ask this because yesterday was the first time I have seen a titmouse in our yard for months. "It was perched in a snowball bush, from which it was chattering at our big cat, which in turn paid not the slightest bit of attention to it. "I like this bird as well as any, or even better than most. In some ways I think it is a finer bird than the chickadee. "Sincerely yours, C. P. D."

The titmouse is a permanent resident. It is one of the birds which stay with us the year around. If at times it is not seen in a yard where feeding is carried on, it is simply because it has decided to go somewhere else for the time being.

We often have wondered over the steadfastness of most of the winter birds. Four pairs of cardinals, for instance, are in our own yard day after day. At times the score runs as high as 10 pairs. We have a pair of Carolina chickadees the year through. This, too, is a common permanent resident. It must not be confused with the "black-capped chickadee," which is regarded as a rare winter visitor here. Both species have black caps, of course. The chickadees seen here are exceptionally small.

The titmouse is a favorite of most persons. It is not often seen in the city, preferring to visit feeding stations in the suburban sections, which are nearer to its heart's desire.

The chickadee belongs to the titmouse family, rather than the other way around. Most of the birds of this group are not great singers, although classed as songbirds. This scientific classification refers to the song of vocal organs a bird possesses. It does not necessarily mean that a specimen really can sing. Thus the crow may be called a "songbird," although its cry is not regarded by some listeners as very musical. (Other listeners regard the crow very highly, claiming that it is intensely musical, especially when heard in the early morning.)

The tufted or crested titmouse is sometimes confused by newcomers to bird-land with the chickadee. The latter is the one with the black cap; the titmouse the bird with the crest.

The titmouse is 6 inches long, with its upper parts slate gray, its under parts white and reddish, often bordering on orange.

The bill is short and stout, the wings long and rounded, the tail shorter than the wings, also rounded.

The dainty crest is the distinguishing mark of the species.

The titmouse is rather on the slender side, and shows it by being able to do all sorts of acrobatic feats on branches.

Letters to the Editor

Praises President Roosevelt On His Sixtieth Birthday.

To the Editor of The Star: All America today honors the birthday of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Millions of American citizens voluntarily unite to commemorate the President's 60th anniversary by aiding, in his name, a noble and humanitarian project to which he has dedicated his heart—a mighty service for boys and girls crippled by infantile paralysis.

Was there ever a loftier expression of a Nation's devotion to its chosen leader? What are the triumphs of the classic ages compared with this unthought love and homage of a free and mighty people? Today's Nation-wide birthday testimonial is not alone a tribute to the President's official service, to his consecrated eloquence, to his matchless statesmanship.

Primarily it is a Nation's tribute to personal character. It is a solemn public testimonial to a life of exalted purity of purpose, devoted with commanding and full authority for such reasonable and necessary procedure. Those who profess concern for the preservation of civil liberties in this connection will be suspected of lack of concern for the preservation of democracy.

No honest citizen need fear injury from wire tapping by the Government. He can realize complete protection through the simple expedient of confining himself to lawful communications.

I hope The Star will keep up its campaign until the law is purged of its weakness in this respect. C. V. BURNSIDE.

Questions Members of Congress on Their Own Responsibility for Disaster.

To the Editor of The Star: Let Congress investigate Congress if it sincerely would learn what was wrong at Pearl Harbor. Who proclaimed that the United States would not be attacked? Did President Roosevelt? Did the cabinet members? Or was it the same wily gentlemen who now are so valuable in Congress in their search for a goat? Who voted not to fortify Guam? Who voted against giving the F. B. I. power to tap the Japanese spy wires? Who proclaimed to the Japanese and the Germans that America would not "meddle in their affairs" and so gave them carte blanche to strike where and when they would with the assurance that we would wait? And who, pray, lulled our admiral and our general into smug complacency and isolationist ineptitude? Is it imagined that our military men do not read the speeches of Representatives and Senators? And is there no responsibility, not even moral responsibility, attaching to these gentlemen on Capitol Hill? RALPH ALBERTSON.

Gives One Reason For Refusing Rides.

To the Editor of The Star: If some authoritative department would furnish stickers reading to the effect "rides accepted at own risk" drivers might be glad to fill their cars, but not when the following is possible: A woman asked to be included in a party of friends who were driving to a convention and then sued the car owner when the trip ended in an accident.

As long as drivers are liable for such "lites," I will continue to have four empty seats which I would gladly fill. CAUTIOUS DRIVER.

Shelter

A ragged flame leaped thin behind the log And raveled into tatters in the draft; Beneath, a chubby flare that reeled and laughed Sank gasping, in white ashes like a bog. The snow outside the windows made a fog Of whirling whiteness, dizzy-driven, draft As dervishes. The house, a solitary raft Of safety in the tempest, shook the dog Upon the hearth-rug, with each straining blow Of blizzard bludgeoning; but he, too wise With older storms, knew how tough timbers keep Strong faith and ward; and resting constant so, Flattened his nose to warmth and closed his eyes, And once again, went hunting in his sleep. ### Disaster Laid In Part to Secrecy

Contributing Cause Seen in Keeping Stern Note Quiet

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Secret diplomacy and the suppression of vital news of what the Japanese and American Governments were doing may have been a contributing cause of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Despite the fact that the American Government traditionally has been the champion of open diplomacy and despite the pledge publicly given by President Roosevelt that he would keep the leaders of both parties in Congress advised of critical moves in the international situation, it is now possible to state that no such communication was made relative to the all-important note of November 26 sent by the United States to Japan.

Senator Connolly, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when asked whether he or any other member of the committee knew of the firm note of November 26, stated in this correspondent that he did not know about it till he read it in the press just after Pearl Harbor was attacked.

There is nothing to indicate that the Senators would have disagreed with the policy of firmness in dealing with Japan or that they would have disapproved of the contents of the note, but it is interesting to consider what would have been the effect on the American people and hence on the entire Army and Navy, including those stationed at Hawaii and the Philippines, if the document had been given to the press November 26.

Historians May Ponder. Assuming that the Japanese ships were out to sea and waiting for orders to move closer to Pearl Harbor, would not the American military and naval forces have realized that America was on the verge of war after reading the note of November 26? This is the question which historians may be asking and which defenders of a policy of open dealing with the people of a democracy through the press, as contrasted with a hush-hush and suppression policy, may exhibit as an example of tragedy that came because the facts were withheld.

What would have been the public reaction if it had been revealed that the United States Government had formally demanded that Japan withdraw from China and recognize the Chungking government? This demand is believed to have aggravated an already tense situation and proof of this is to be found in the bitterly phrased note of the Japanese which was handed to the American Government on the very day of the attack on Pearl Harbor. The Roberts report says the Japanese government planned to sever diplomatic relations at 1 o'clock Washington time and attack simultaneously. The Japanese plan for synchronizing the steps apparently went wrong, but that Japan was smarting under the American note cannot be doubted from the following language of her reply:

"The proposal in question (America's suggestion that Japan withdraw from China and recognize the Chungking government) ignores Japan's sacrifices in the four years of the China affair, menaces the empire's existence and disparages its honor and prestige."

Could Have Alerted Command. Anybody familiar with Far Eastern affairs must have known that such a demand as America made on November 26 would make the Japanese angry. It will be argued that they deserved such a blunt statement but can it be argued that when such a serious decision was made it should have been kept secret and not given to the United States armed forces and the American people as well as the Japanese people? The policy of suppression played into the hands of the militaristic clique in Japan and deprived the American Army and Navy officers of information which would have impressed upon them the necessity for being on the alert during the 11 days that elapsed between November 26 and December 7.

It will be said that the note was withheld for fear of offending Japan. But the speeches made by American official spokesmen which were published in Japan during the last week in October were not inhibited by any such considerations of international etiquette or diplomatic restraint. The fact remains that America drifted into war without the influential leaders of either party in Congress or the American people knowing the contents of a

On the Record

Morale of U. S. Troops Cited as One Reason President Can Rejoice on His Birthday

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

There are many things for which the President can be thankful on his 60th birthday, today, in spite of the fact that seven weeks ago it looked as though it would be a very bad one for him.

Considering the disaster of the initial blow seven weeks ago, occurring when the public mind was unprepared and the Nation divided; considering the immediate stupefying effect of that blow, and the humiliation of it, and the way in which it disrupted all calculations, America is again showing her remarkable recuperative power.

If Pearl Harbor wrote a disgraceful chapter of American history, the investigation and the publication of the report, openly, for all the world to read, was an act of civil courage that contributes most to the morale of a free people than any whitewash job could ever do. At least, we didn't hear that Gen. Short had heart trouble or that Admiral Kimmel had apoplexy.

If Pearl Harbor was a morale debacle, representing all the worst aspects of the American mind—complacency, self-righteousness, lack of co-operative spirit and of thoroughness, and responsibility—the Philippine resistance will go down among the great epics of American history.

MacArthur, Hart Praised. There a great general, Douglas MacArthur, and a fine admiral, Thomas C. Hart, are encouraging brave men to stand where hardly more than a delaying action can be hoped for; buying with their heroism precious time for others; displaying that efficient co-ordination, swift energy and selfless devotion that were lacking at Pearl Harbor, and winning the eternal gratitude of the American Nation.

And they keep the spirit and tactics of the offensive, even against overwhelming odds, for wherever the enemy displays the slightest weakness they attack at that point.

There is the same co-ordination, efficiency and heroism in the Battle of the Macassar Strait. Three cheers for the Dutch, Mr. President, on your birthday. And three cheers for our forces at the Strait.

There, by wonderful co-ordination of the Dutch and American forces, of air forces coming from various bases, of fleet and aircraft, havoc has been wrought against the Japanese. The largest convoy of troop transports yet destroyed in this war has been accomplished in a difficult maneuver of timing and collaboration. This Battle of Macassar Strait is restoring confidence in the possibility of holding the Dutch East Indies and is bucking up Australia.

U. S. Flyers Aid China. And the small, isolated volunteer force of American flyers in Rangoon, Burma, is nothing for us to cry about. They are shooting the Japs out of the sky, like pigeons, and proving the immeasurable superiority of American planes and pilots over the Japs, given a vestige of a chance, protecting the lifeline of China—the Burma road—and giving the people of China a foretaste of what our help will be one of these days.

The landing of troops in Northern Ireland, with complete secrecy and without a single loss in a large convoy, is another evidence that the spirit of the Maginot Line evaporated in Hawaii. The accomplished fact, together with the President's announcement that we would send troops all over the world, is a moral and political victory that is making a tremendous impression in Europe.

The Germans are at pains to make light of it; they emphasize that in the last war American troops could be landed on the continent because there was a western front.

Of course, in the last war, when American troops landed there was no Eastern front; Russia had been knocked out of the war for keeps. Today there is an eastern front, an African front, and a western front in the making. And, at any rate, this isn't the last war—and this war has its own tricks, and all the tricks are not in the minds of the Axis.

Tribute to Our Troops. One thing stands out in all the accounts, even in the accounts of Pearl Harbor—the unexampled behavior of the American troops, the common soldiers.

On Wake Island, in Hawaii, in the Philippines, everywhere, they have showed guts, resourcefulness, superb bravery.

And nothing in any way is as important as this: The quality of spirit and behavior among the rank and file of the armed forces.

Everything else can be remedied except the morale of armed forces as a whole. For the bulk of the army is representative of the nation and expresses the spirit of the nation.

The spirit of this Nation is all right; all right in 1942 as it was all right in 1917, in 1812, in 1776—and as it will be all right in 1976 and 2076.

For America has just begun to fight, and America has just begun to live.

Happy birthday, Mr. President. And may your next be lots happier than this one.

The Great Game of Politics

Signs Point to Policy That New Dealers Will Lose Monopoly on Effort to Win the War

By FRANK R. KENT.

The great handicap to our war-production effort is the lack of raw materials. We talk a lot about the inexhaustible wealth and immense resources of this country. Yet, beside the rubber shortage which has paralyzed our largest industry, there is a shortage of aluminum, of manganese, of mica, of tungsten, of tin and of various other commodities absolutely essential to the manufacture of war equipment.

It is a very vital part of the job of Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, to find substitutes for these things; or to develop their production here; or to arrange, despite the difficulties, for their importation. Clearly, he is not going to be able to provide adequately for civilian as well as military needs. It will be a tremendous achievement if he succeeds in supplying the latter. Of course, it is true that these shortages should not exist. The reason they do exist is because until two weeks ago there had been no real head to our production machinery.

Though we were preparing for war, there was no competent direction. In consequence, the business of looking ahead was nobody's business. In consequence, there was no one to think of the future. In consequence, there was no one combining authority with intelligence to buy up and store these materials for governmental need. In consequence, the warning voices of B. M. Baruch and a few others, urging that we profit by the experience of the past, went unheeded. In consequence, there were 22 months of incompetency and confusion, and when the war finally came we were caught off balance.

Nelson Takes Hold. But there is no use dwelling on these undeniable facts now. Notwithstanding lost time and present handicaps the job has to be done.

Mr. Nelson appears to be grasping with it in an effective way. When he first took hold, the background of his associations created considerable fear lest he lend himself too completely to the advice and influence of the little group of "inside" New Dealers, sometimes known as the palace guard, among whom he had his strongest support. So far this fear has not been justified.

On the contrary, in the three weeks since his appointment, Mr. Nelson has demonstrated two things—first, that he is selecting his own men; second, that he listens to reason and is anxious to profit by the experience of the past. More than that—he appreciated very clearly that if, after that executive order, in which the President gave him complete power, he yielded an inch he would be ruined. Failure, even for a moment, to recognize that hesitation about acting as he thinks best, consulting whom he pleases and picking the men he wants, would be fatal. So far he has shown no such hesitation. So far he has resisted every effort to whittle him down and the whittlers appear somewhat discouraged.

encouraged. At least, that is the way it seems to those in best position to judge.

Another encouraging sign of the week was the appointment by the President of Lewis W. Douglas as assistant lease-lend administrator in London. Mr. Douglas has not been on friendly terms with Mr. Roosevelt since he resigned in his first term as budget director in protest against the economic unsoundness of New Deal fiscal policy. Although Mr. Douglas strongly supported the Roosevelt foreign policy from the start, he is the first man conspicuous in the campaign against the third term whom Mr. Roosevelt has named to any post of importance since the appointment of his first defense organization. At that time—and frequently since—he appealed very strongly for non-partisanship and national unity.

Outsiders Being Called. The point is made, however, that in the selection of key men for the defense machinery many of the ablest citizens in the country who opposed his election have not been called upon. It was said that what amounted to a blacklist existed in the White House and that the administration was determined to manage the war effort without calling upon any of those whom the President felt personally antagonized.

This means that some of the most competent, qualified and experienced of Americans were to be kept permanently on the outside. The Douglas appointment is an indication that this policy is beginning to disintegrate. It was originally pressed upon the President by some of the closest of his New Deal aides and has been one of the reasons for a great deal of discontent and resentment. Hope is expressed that he has become convinced that the Nation needs the help of every man capable of making a real contribution to the war effort, regardless of his personal taste or politics. There are some obvious men still on the outside with whose help he could replace incompetency with competency. There is no surer way to improve morale and to win the war.

This Changing World

Japs Force Prisoners of United Nations to Lose Face in Orient by Humiliating Work

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The Japanese are fighting the United Nations in the Pacific with their whole military power. But that is not all; they are also endeavoring to expel the entire white race from Asia with typical Oriental methods.

According to reliable reports which are filtering into Washington, American and British officers and men captured at Hong Kong, Wake Island, Malaya and those points in China from which American garrisons were not evacuated are being subjected to many humiliations which cannot be described exactly as cruelties but are intended to make the whites lose face with the natives.

The treatment of American and British soldiers on the Asiatic mainland contrasts with that accorded prisoners in Japan. At Shanghai, Tientsin and other places in China, American and British prisoners, regardless of whether they have commissioned rank, are forced to pull rickshaws, do road work, and clean streets and barracks under the eyes of the Chinese, who have been accustomed for decades to look up to these men in British and American uniforms.

Worse Than Death. It must be singularly impressive for the Chinese to see American and British officers whom they respected and knew well now pulling rickshaws alongside the poorest coolies. In these vehicles sit Japanese officers and privates. American missionaries, who over a long period of time had gained the highest respect of the Chinese, are compelled now to do menial work always performed by native servants.

Losing face in the Orient is worse than being killed. And the Japanese high command obviously is trying to undermine the prestige of the whites with the hundreds of millions of Orientals. News of the defeats of the British and Americans at the hands of the Japs is often discounted by the Chinese who live under Japanese domination. Furthermore, the natives do not consider military setbacks as particularly shameful; they are just change from day to day. Losing face is far worse than losing a battle.

The Japanese initiated such a policy as this as early as 1939, when they compelled British men and women living in Tientsin to undergo humiliating searches at the hands of Japanese sentries. Both men and women were undressed each time they moved from the British settlement into the native city, which the Japs had just taken over. Americans escaped many such humiliations at that time. Now the Japanese hope to break the confidence of Orientals in the prestige of the white race by treating white soldiers in the same way as—and sometimes worse than—they and the Chinese treat coolies.

Treated Fairly in Japan. The reports of Swiss diplomatic and consular representatives that American prisoners are treated fairly are correct as far as the Japanese islands is concerned. There they are kept in prison camps and enjoy the treatment agreed on by all nations in the Hague convention. But the Swiss have little opportunity to witness what happens to Americans and British outside Japan.

According to still unconfirmed reports, some American and British officers who distinguished themselves against the Japs have met with "accidental death."

The Japanese are not worried about what happens to their own men after they surrender. According to the Japanese code of honor, a soldier of the Emperor must not allow himself to be taken prisoner; he must die on the battlefield, regardless of conditions or circumstances.

Displeasing to Germans. The majority of Japanese fighters are peasants or lowly city workers who for centuries have been used to all kinds of humiliation from the upper classes. Ordinary treatment of war prisoners by western Nations means luxury for the ordinary Jap soldier.

The Germans are reported to be none too happy about the humiliations imposed on British and American prisoners. They see the writing on the wall. When this war is over, if the Japanese are not utterly defeated, Asia will be no place for either Germans or Italians.

German officers attached to Japanese forces—and there are a number of such men with every Japanese unit—have attempted to interfere. They do this not because of sympathy for Allied prisoners, but because they realize that the slapping of American and British faces now foreshadows the twilight of white influence in Asia.

The Germans know the Japanese are mistreating their prisoners because it is the policy of the Tokio government so to do. The influence of the Germans with Tokio, however, is limited to war plans and synchronization of strategies.

McLemore—

Hollywood Unshaken By 'Victory Suit'

By HENRY McLEMORE.

LOS ANGELES.— This movie capital took the news of the "victory suit" with admirable calm. There was little or no hysteria when word came in from New York that the tailors of the Nation have designed a streamlined, wartime, cloth-saving suit which will be minus vest, trousers cuffs, pleats, belt loops, or suspender buttons.

Male movie wardrobes are so extensive that hound's-tooth checks have to bark to get worn more than once a year. Took the news without a murmur. Even those who are accustomed to dressing like pages 23 to 46, inclusive, of Esquire Magazine, and who make a fashion plate look like a tramp in a dust storm, were not shaken.

When news of the "victory suit" reached Hollywood, I was playing golf at the Lakeside Golf Club with Bing Crosby and Johnny Weismuller. Instead of being depressed over the thought of having to sing a love song in a vestless suit, or climbing a tree in a cuffed pair of pants, Bing and Johnny were elated.

Of course, I didn't take their reactions as typical of all Hollywood, because Bing and Johnny are not noted as dressers. It is a known fact that Crosby has only four suits, all of which were given to him by his grandfather when he (Bing, not granpa) left home to seek his fame and fortune. He has never added to his wardrobe, although it is generally believed that he could easily do so by watching his pennies for a month or two.

Weismuller's Flight Worse. Weismuller isn't as well off as Bing, sartorially speaking, his grandfather having given him only three suits, and Johnny is rougher on clothes than Bing. It is much easier on the clothes to sing "Pennies from Heaven" than it is to throw a monkey on the ground and wrestle with him.

As soon as we finished the round, I hot-footed to the clubhouse to study the reactions of other stars to the coming of the "victory suit." There is no better place in Hollywood to study the stars than at Lakeside. Scores of them belong to the club.

I was particularly anxious to see how Adolf Menjou reacted to the possibility of having to wear a "victory suit." Mr. Menjou is not only the best-dressed man in the world but also has a first-10 rating on Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Pluto. The sighting begins that pull to a stop along the first fairway at Lakeside, in order to give the tourists an eyeful of the cinema celebrities, are equipped with smoked glasses to protect the eyes of the customers when Mr. Menjou strolls along the greenward, intent upon breaking 100. He looks like a rainbow with a poor backswing, the aurora borealis with a shaky putting stroke.

Menjou was not shaken by the announcement of the "victory suit." Standing before his lockers (he doesn't just have a locker, he has one for caps, of which there are two types, back nine and front nine caps; one for sweaters, one for shirts, one for scarfs, one for belts, etc., etc.), he patriotically said he would be glad to go vestless if it would help lick the Japs and Nazis.

Noble in Renunciation. "I have hundreds of cuffs and vests to give my country," he said, "and will even give my shirt if that will help."

Guy Kibbee was delighted to hear of the "victory suit." The man who plays "Scattergood Baines" says that he figures he has wasted 10,000 man-hours buttoning vests and that with the "victory suit" he will have just that much more time being lazy. He did regret the coming of the cuffless trousers, however, saying that the cuff has long been the best ash tray ever invented by man.

I didn't get to poll Errol Flynn. I was sorry about this, because I wanted to find out if Errol thought he could possibly be as brave wearing pants without suspenders as he has been in the past. More on this later.

Your Income Tax—

No. 26—Deductions for Professional Expenses

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel and telephone in his office, the hire of office assistants, and expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile, based upon the proportion of time it is used for professional purposes.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instance the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines and newspapers for the benefit of their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayer's own use is also a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deductible item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Depreciation may also be taken on office furniture and equipment. Insurance premiums on office or other professional equipment and liability insurance may be deducted. A premium paid for automobile liability insurance should be apportioned and that part of the premium attributable to business may be deducted as a business expense.

Trimble Recalls Role He Played In Kentucky's Goebel Case

House Clerk Was Then Speaker of Legislature

South Trimble, clerk of the House, at about the time 42 years ago today when he won a bitter political fight in Kentucky to have Gov.-elect William Goebel sworn in before he died from an assassin's bullet.

A fatal shot which launched one of the bitterest political feuds in the history of Kentucky was recalled today by Clerk of the House South Trimble on the 42d anniversary of the assassination of Gov.-elect William Goebel of Kentucky.

Mr. Trimble, who will be 78 next April, was then 36 years old and speaker of the Kentucky Legislature. He heard the rifle shot which killed the Democratic Governor-elect as he was about to enter the State Capitol in Frankfort to take the oath of office.

The victim of the sharpshooter lived for three days, and Mr. Trimble led the legislators in repeated dashes through the streets of Frankfort in an effort to meet and declare Mr. Goebel Governor before he died. These efforts were repeatedly balked by the bayonets of the militia and success came just before the Governor-elect expired.

State's Bitterest Fight
Mr. Goebel, of humble German parentage, was one of the most brilliant lawyers of his day in Kentucky. He led perhaps the bitterest contest in Kentucky's stormy political history against the Republican nominee, William S. Taylor, who had been attorney general.

Taylor received a plurality of 2,283 votes, but Goebel contested the election before the Legislature, which was strongly Democratic.

The contest committee of the Legislature announced it would declare its decision on January 30. Taylor immediately called the State militia to Frankfort, proclaimed an insurrection and ordered the Legislature adjourned to London, a Republican stronghold in the mountains.

Mr. Trimble counted noses, learned there were enough Democratic votes to make Goebel Governor and led the legislators to the Capitol, where they were met by the militia with drawn bayonets.

The lawmakers rushed to the Frankfort Opera House, also filled with troops, and then to the Capitol Hotel, where Goebel lay on his death bed. This meeting also was prevented, and Mr. Trimble announced he could lead the legislators to the State prison. The troops were sent to the prison, but Mr. Trimble had secretly summoned the legislators to return to the Capitol Hotel.

They finally held a session there and in five minutes decided the contest in favor of Goebel, who was sworn in on his death bed and expired the next day. The Lieutenant Governor, J. C. W. Beckham, was then sworn in as Governor.

Mr. Trimble later learned the true story of who shot Goebel from a State employe who said he had volunteered to do the job. Caleb Powers, who later was to be elected to Congress, was described as the brains of the conspiracy. He was sentenced to be hanged twice and at a third trial was given a life sentence. He served seven years in jail and was pardoned by a Republican Governor, Augustus E. Willson. He was elected to Congress in 1911 at the same time that Mr. Trimble became clerk of the House.

James Howard, a well-known mountain gunman, was brought to Frankfort to do the shooting. Mr. Trimble said. The employe secured several rifles and conducted the mountaineer to a State office, it was said, where he was given $1,900 remaining in the Republican campaign fund and two pardons—one for killing Goebel and the other for a previous murder of which he was accused.

The gunman was sentenced to life imprisonment and later was also pardoned by Gov. Willson.

Text of Price Bill Message

President Reviews Purposes of Act, Called Big Weapon Against Axis

The text of a statement by the President on signing the emergency price-control bill today follows:

The Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 is an important weapon in our armory against the onslaught of the Axis powers.

Nothing could better serve the purposes of our enemies than that we should become the victims of inflation. The total effort needed for victory means, of course, increasing sacrifices from each of us, as an ever larger portion of our goods and our labor is devoted to the production of ships, tanks, planes and guns. Effective price control will insure that these sacrifices are equitably distributed.

The act, taken all in all, is a workable one. It accomplishes the fundamental objectives of setting up a single administrator, and empowering him to establish maximum prices and rents over a broad field, to prohibit related speculative and manipulative practices, and to buy and sell commodities in order to obtain the maximum production. To make price and rent control effective, the administrator is given adequate powers to license persons subject to the act, to investigate and enforce attempted violations, and to bring about the commencement of criminal proceedings against violators. Civil suits for treble damages by private persons provide an additional enforcement tool.

But a price control measure must fall far short of being a democratic instrument if it fails to surround the individual with safeguards against ill-considered or arbitrary action. This act, while granting the administrator broad powers, imposes upon him a responsibility of equal breadth for fair play. He must, so far as is practicable, consult with industry members before issuing price regulations, and must accompany each such regulation by a statement of the considerations upon which it is based. The provisions for adjustment assure flexibility in administration. Persons adversely affected by an order have a speedy and effective remedy in the Emergency Court of Appeals. The administrator may proceed for the revocation of a license only through the courts. Finally, the administrator is required to transmit quarterly progress reports to the Congress.

The farm program, which has been developed since 1933, has set parity prices and income as a goal. There is nothing in this act to prevent farmers receiving parity or a fair return. But I feel that most farmers realize that when farm prices go much above parity, danger is ahead. One of the best ways of avoiding excessive price rises, of course, is abundant production. And I hope agricultural prices can be maintained at such level as to give farmers a fair return for increasing production.

In giving my approval to this legislation, I am acting with the understanding, confirmed by congressional leaders, that there is nothing contained therein which can be construed as a limitation upon the existing powers of governmental agencies, such as the Commodity Credit Corp., to make sales of agricultural commodities in the normal conduct of their operations. In my message to the Congress on August 25, 1941, I approved the bill H. R. 6369, which I pointed out the extreme disadvantages of any action designed to peg prices through the arbitrary withholding of Government-owned stocks from the normal channels of trade and commerce.

I further pointed out that the Commodity Credit Corp. should be free to dispose of commodities acquired under its programs in an orderly manner, for otherwise it will be impossible to maintain an ever-normal granary, to protect farmers against surpluses and consumers against scarcity; and that to restrict the authority of this corporation would greatly increase its losses, nullify the effectiveness of existing programs, and by breaking faith with the consumers be inconsistent with our present price control efforts.

I also should like to call attention to the fact that I am requesting the departments of the Government possessing commodities to make such commodities available to other departments in order to aid our war effort. This request, primarily, will affect the cotton stocks of the Commodity Credit Corp. and will permit such stocks to be utilized, directly or by exchange, in the production of war goods. Such transfers will be in addition to the quantities which are now available for sale. The request will also include grain and other commodities which may be needed by the departments concerned.

The enactment of price-control legislation does not mean that the battle against inflation has been won. I have doubts as to the wisdom and adequacy of certain sections of the act, and amendments to it may become necessary as we move ahead. Moreover, price-control legislation alone cannot successfully combat inflation. To do that an adequate tax and fiscal program, a broad savings program, a sound production program and an effective priorities and rationing program, are all needed.

Finally, all bulwarks against inflation must fall, unless all of us—the businessman, the worker, the farmer and the consumer—are determined to make those bulwarks hold fast. In the last analysis, as Woodrow Wilson said:

"The best form of efficiency is the spontaneous co-operation of a free people."

REPORT TO THE NATION

8th Installment of MacLeish Statement on War Efforts

The attack on Pearl Harbor brought us abruptly to total war, including prices.

Because the United States imports all but 3 per cent of its crude rubber from the embattled Far East, a tire rationing program went into effect January 5; more than 85 per cent of the Nation's motor vehicle users will be unable to buy new tires. In the past, 70 to 80 per cent of our crude rubber went into new tires. Only about a year's normal supply of rubber was on hand October 31.

War naturally means a tightening of the consumer's belt. The Director of Consumer Services of the O. P. A. is charged with seeing that the standard of living is maintained on the highest possible level consistent with military requirements. The consumer service has taken steps to create an aware buying public, by means of a field staff that aids consumers in understanding the effect of the war program on their daily lives, and by providing accurate information on good buys in food and clothing throughout the country. There is food enough to go around, but a people at war must eat the right food in the proper proportions.

While prices have been held down successfully in a large sector of the economy, the general price level has continued to advance. The Office of Price Administration warns that we face a disastrous inflationary spiral unless effective price-control legislation becomes the law of the land.

Food Is Plentiful.

Total war will require us to do without many things—but not food. Crop and livestock production for 1941 was the greatest in the history of the country. It was the second consecutive record year. Unless we experience droughts of unparalleled severity, or divert quantities of some specific product, such as sugar, into war uses, we are not likely to have to carry ration cards during this war. In this, we will be unique among all the warring nations of the world.

The abundance of 1941 was planned. In December 1940 the Secretary of Agriculture appealed to farmers to increase the 1941 spring pig crop. In response, one-seventh again as many pigs were farrowed. In April 1941 with Britain requiring vast quantities of animal protein foods and vitamin-rich and mineral-rich vegetables and fruits, the Secretary again appealed to the farmers. This time he asked for more milk, eggs, meats, tomatoes and dry beans. Six billion pounds more milk were produced, 276,000 more dozens of eggs, and 75,000,000 more pounds of meat.

Even greater production goals have been set for 1942. Last fall a program was drawn up for an over-all increase in agricultural production of 15 per cent, sufficient to leave us with a surplus for reserves against the future.

For such commodities as wheat and cotton, of which we have huge stocks, no increase was asked. Instead, farmers were urged to produce more milk, eggs, meats, vegetables. During October and November 125,000 farmer committeemen visited their neighbors in every county, reaching nine of every 10 farmers to invite them to sign up for increased production.

Our entry into the war compelled farmers and Government to revise these 1942 production goals—upward. Especially now do we need more fats and oils, which means more soybeans and peanuts and flaxseed. The 1942 farm goals now call for production 17 per cent above 1940.

Plan Against Air Raids.

To defeat the enemy's air raids by keeping him from achieving his major objectives—panic, unchecked fires, and the loss of production—is a task for private citizens as well as for the Army and Navy. The Office of Civilian Defense was established last May to mobilize the necessary forces from the civilian population. The O. C. D. has provided an organizational framework for volunteer efforts, with regional units under national supervision to assist State and local defense councils. It has assembled a staff of experts on air-raid protection. It has sent two missions to England to study and report on the English experience. It has drawn up plans for handling such emergencies as gas attacks and evacuations. It has published 58 pamphlets and handbooks on civilian protection, and of these it has distributed more than 5,000,000 copies. Thousands of instructors, who were trained before Pearl Harbor, now are holding classes daily for volunteer policemen, firemen and air-raid wardens.

A civil air patrol has been established, in which it is planned to enroll 90,000 certified pilots, besides other thousands in the ground personnel. By performing many non-military functions now assigned to the armed forces, these civilian volunteers will release Army and Navy flyers for combat duty.

The Emergency Medical Service of O. C. D. is carrying out a detailed plan for the emergency expansion of medical facilities. The American Red Cross has made all its services and equipment available. Co-operation between the Red Cross and O. C. D. will include programs for the collection of blood plasma, the enrollment of medical technologists and nurses, and the training of first-aid workers and volunteer nurses' aides.

The work of organizing local defense councils has gone ahead, beginning with the more critical areas near the two coasts and extending inland. Last May there were only 1,500 councils and many were inactive. By November 1 there were 5,549 councils with 753,000 persons enrolled. Late in December there were more than 6,000 councils and more than 3,500,000 volunteers had offered their services.

Sabotage Prevented.

On the first day of the last war when our alien population was twice as large as it is now, only 63 alien enemies were taken into custody. More than 1,000 were apprehended by midnight on December 8, 1941.

This time we were well prepared for dealing with the alien enemy problem. Registration of more than 5,000,000 aliens had been largely completed one year ago. To prevent the entry of undesirables or the departure of aliens without proper documents, our borders were practically closed. The size of the border patrol had been doubled.

The Voorhis Act of 1940 had made it possible for our Justice Department to survey and disclose the intent, good or evil, of certain organizations under foreign control and other groups, including spies from conquered countries and their sympathizers, who advocate the overthrow of governments. These precautions made unnecessary such a general roundup as took place in Great Britain in 1940 when some 80,000 aliens were picked up.

We know already how many aliens there are among us, who they are, where they are and what they are doing. We realize that 95 per cent of them are law-abiding and democracy-loving sojourners.

Since the fall of 1939, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has served as a single co-ordinating agency for the investigation of matters bearing upon our internal security. It directs the hourly vigilance of its own 2,800 agents, especially trained in modern techniques of counter-espionage.

Sabotage is most effectively met by preventive methods. More than two years ago a system of surveying and instituting protective facilities for defense industries and public utilities was set up. Detailed instructions for detecting possible sabotage at vulnerable spots have been distributed widely. There have been explosions and fires in plants making war materials. There will be others. Most of these mishaps are the result of industrial accidents. Compared to a similar period in the First World War, thus far, there has been only a negligible amount of sabotage.

Radio Channels Patrolled.

A 24-hour safeguard of our home front is the policing of the domestic ether to run down suspicious communications. Ninety-one Government monitoring stations, strategically placed throughout the United States and our possessions, patrol the entire radio spectrum. Since July, 1940, more than 2,000 cases of illegal or subversive use of radio have been investigated and 23 operator have been convicted. Also detected have been 75 radio circuits operating between Germany and its agents abroad, a German-Japanese radio circuit, and an active radio transmitter in the German Embassy in Washington.

Four particular listening posts intercept foreign broadcasts, note their contents and teletype summaries post-haste to interested Government agencies. No station is too weak to be caught by these foreign monitoring stations, and much information is gathered this way which is unavailable elsewhere.

Many months ago the Defense Communications Board, in collaboration with the communications industry and the Federal Communications Commission, began adjusting our peacetime communications system to the defense emergency. As a result, commercial services are being subjected to few restrictions. Radio stations must go off the air if staying on will make them beacons to guide enemy planes.

Fifty-five thousand amateurs were ordered off the air on December 8, and some of the wave lengths reserved for their use were diverted to military purposes. Commercial radio stations have granted military and defense agencies needed time on the air. Alternate facilities for all services have been arranged in case normal facilities break down or are destroyed.

The most effective control of information that might help the enemy is control at the source. Citizens must learn not to pass along facts or gossip which might eventually reach Berlin or Tokio.

Commissioned in Air Corps

Sergt. Kenneth Wilson-King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. King, 4710 Chevy Chase boulevard, Chevy Chase, Md., has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, it was announced today. Lt. King, a graduate of Central High School and National University, is a member of the District Bar.

Federal Bar Association Hears Talk by Col. Rigby

The English people go complacently about their daily life despite German bombing raids and nightly blackouts, Col. William Catron Rigby, Judge Advocate General's Department, United States Army, told members of the Federal Bar Association at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Harrington Hotel.

Col. Rigby, who returned recently from a two-month mission to England, in which he studied administration of military justice, spoke in place of Richard Connor, general counsel of the Federal Power Commission, who was unable to keep his speaking engagement before the association.

For two days Col. Rigby toured various sections of London. In the East End there was a neighborhood that had been rocked by German bombs the night before. The women, as usual, were cleaning the front steps and the windows, and one of them was rubbing the part of a window that remained after most of it had been blown out by a bomb.

He recalled the courage of an 8-year-old girl, a casualty of an air raid, who, as she was carried to a first aid station, exclaimed: "Hitler can't make me cry."

William E. Reese of the General Accounting Office, president of the association, presided at the meeting.

By the Associated Press. VICHY, Unoccupied France, Jan. 30.—Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the German navy, is visiting occupied France, making "a periodic inspection of the naval forces fighting on the Atlantic front," the Paris newspapers report. No details are given concerning the admiral's movements.

Booth Builder Gives Pay Back to Mile o' Dimes

By the Associated Press. ADA, Okla., Jan. 30.—A carpenter hired to build a Miles-O-Dimes booth in the infantile paralysis fund drive finished the job and was paid $3.

A short time later, after the booth was set up and decorated, he returned and contributed $3.

Accidents Took Toll Of 101,500 Lives In U. S. Last Year

9,300,000 Were Injured; 40,000 Traffic Deaths Set All-Time Record

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Accidents rolled up this toll in the United States last year:

Killed—101,500 (including 40,000 traffic deaths, an all-time high). Injured—9,300,000.

The cost—$3,750,000,000. The National Safety Council, which announced the figures today, gave this illustration of how they affect the Nation's war effort:

Fatalities in the 20-45 year selective service age bracket totalled 26,000—equal to the destruction of nearly two Army divisions.

Approximately 18,000 workers died in occupational accidents and another 29,000 were killed in off-the-job accidents—a loss of manpower sufficient to build 20 battleships, 200 destroyers and 7,000 heavy bombers.

Third Largest Toll. Traffic accident deaths alone were greater in each of nine months in 1941 than total casualties in the Pearl Harbor attack.

The death toll was the third largest on record and 5 per cent above the 96,885 deaths in 1940. There were 110,052 accidental deaths in 1936 and 105,205 in 1937.

"Increased activity in all fields—largely attributable to the ever-increasing tempo of national defense—was the key to the greater accident toll," the council said.

The record 40,000 deaths in motor vehicle accidents was 16 per cent above the 34,501 figure in 1940 and 357 above the previous high of 39,643 in 1937. Traffic accidents also resulted in approximately 1,400,000 non-fatal injuries, about 110,000 of which caused permanent disability. Direct economic loss was estimated at $1,800,000,000. With deaths from this cause up 16 per cent and travel only 11 per cent greater, the mileage death rate rose 4 per cent.

Occupational Deaths Rise. Occupational fatalities climbed 6 per cent from 17,000 in 1940 to 18,000. Home accident deaths dropped 3 per cent from 33,000 to 32,000 and public fatalities (excluding traffic) declined 3 per cent from 15,000 to 14,500.

The total of 9,300,000 injured in accidents was about 200,000 greater than in 1940 and meant that one of every 14 persons in the United States suffered a disabling injury.

Four fatal crashes in scheduled air lines caused 35 passenger and 9 plane crew deaths. The passenger death rate of 2.4 per 100,000,000 miles was 23 per cent below the 1940 rate of 3.1 and with the exception of the 1.2 rate in 1939, the lowest on record.

Conduit Road Area Well Prepared for Raids, Citizens Told

Association Hears Deputy Warden; Merrill Sees Some Transit Curtailment

Five Red Cross classes are in progress, emergency feeding and housing units have been established and 250 wardens designated to serve the Conduit road community. Deputy Air Raid Warden Walter D. Cunyus told members of the Conduit Road Citizens' Association last night. That such a raid will eventually be forthcoming Mr. Cunyus regards as highly probable. "It'll probably be a token raid, but we're going to get it sooner or later," he declared.

He predicted increased public interest in the work of citizens associations at the conclusion of the war, and called for the formation of permanent civilian defense clubs to preserve in future years the spirit of comradeship now being developed among volunteer defense workers.

Merrill outlines service. E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co. told the association of the great planning program undertaken by his company to meet the increased needs of an expanding population, and to anticipate the growing use of public vehicles by citizens who may no longer be able to maintain private cars.

From a total of 1,164 street cars and buses in operation June 1, 1940, Mr. Merrill said the company had last week reached a peak of 1,598 vehicles, and expected 2,000 would be available by July or August of this year. Aiding the company's efforts to provide maximum service were the increased average size of both street cars and buses, and the advantages derived from the staggered hours of Washington's working population.

Conservation of Paper

Every citizen is called upon to see that not a pound of paper is wasted. Demand from every clerk that any unnecessary wrapping of packages or unnecessary use of paper bags be dispensed with.

Waste paper for paperboard is vital to the packaging of a great quantity of war equipment.

Do not burn newspapers, but when you have saved enough for a bundle give them to the school children who are cooperating in the defense program with the parent-teacher organization in The Star's campaign for reclaiming old newspapers.

Capital Store Sales 66 Per Cent Ahead Of Year Ago

Four Weeks' Volume 25 Per Cent Above Same 1941 Period

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Department store sales in Washington for the week ended last Saturday, January 24, continued their astonishing 1942 start, running 66 per cent ahead of the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today.

Today's report states that sales in the fifth district last week were 47 per cent ahead of the like 1941 period, gained 32 per cent in Baltimore and 35 per cent in a group of other cities.

Sales in Washington were 8 per cent lower than in the previous week this year, 9 per cent lower in the fifth district, 11 per cent in Baltimore and 10 per cent in other cities.

In the four weeks ended last Saturday trade in the Capital was 25 per cent ahead of last week's 1941 volume in the fifth district and 23 per cent in Baltimore and other cities, the survey says.

Capital merchants today assigned two chief reasons for the buying rush. One is fear of a shortage of goods later and the other the growth of the city, which has greatly increased the number of shoppers.

Orders for Store Goods Soar

Merchants in Washington and the rest of the Federal Reserve Bank district expected a tremendous increase in department store sales early this year, judging by outstanding orders for merchandise.

Washington stores had 86 per cent more goods on order at the end of December than in December 31, 1940, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today.

Baltimore orders were up 84 per cent, Richmond 44, a group of other cities 79, while the fifth district average stood at 78 per cent, the report says.

Stocks of goods on hand in Washington department stores at the end of December were 31 per cent higher than a year ago, compared with 18.9 per cent in Baltimore in December, 24 in Baltimore and 28 in the group of other cities.

Washington collections were good in December, 30 per cent of bills due at the beginning of the month being paid. The average for the fifth district was 35 per cent, Richmond and Baltimore reporting the same percentage.

Trade in the Capital was up 17 per cent in December and 20 per cent in the full year.

C. & P. Net Off Sharply

Net income of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. in December disclosed a sharp drop, amounting to $1,859,929, compared with $3,829,829 in December 1940, a decrease of $1,970,000, according to the monthly report filed today with the Public Utilities Commission.

Operating revenues were higher, $1,498,272, comparing with $1,209,399 a year ago. However, operating expenses were higher, $1,218,641, compared with $1,049,593, leaving net operating revenues of $279,631 against $367,806 a year ago. Operating taxes required $61,077. Net operating income was much less than in 1940, while interest deductions required $90,934, against $67,741.

Net income for the full year 1941 amounted to $1,500,169, compared with $1,822,829 in 1940. Operating revenues were 18.88 per cent higher than in the like 1940 period, but expenses, including taxes, were 22.24 higher. Interest deductions also were considerably higher, while non-operating income was much lower.

There were 321,924 telephones in service at the end of December, which is an increase of 6,136 telephones over the previous month. Telephone users made 43,077,000 calls during the month, or 81,755,000 more than in December, 1940.

Telephone Outlay $17,000,000

Expenditures for telephone plant, $17,000,000, were authorized by the directors of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. at their meeting yesterday. C. A. Robinson, vice president and general manager, announced.

Indicative of the tremendous growth of Government telephone service, Mr. Robinson pointed out that about $936,000 will be spent to replace three private branch exchange systems of Federal agencies, and $285,000 will be spent on additions to the equipment in four Government systems.

The company spent on construction in the District of Columbia during 1941 more than $17,000,000 or 72 per cent more than in 1940.

Defense Bond Sale Stressed

In his recent annual report Corcoran Trust, president of the American Security & Trust Co., stressed the great importance to the national defense program of support by the banks and the public of the sale of savings bonds and stamps.

Mr. Thom said that the war and economic upheaval have made Washington one of the most important focal points in the world. In 1941 the trust company's growth was materially helped by the large increases in population and the number of corporations and organizations which moved here.

Turning to the increase in loans reported by many Washington banks during 1941, Mr. Thom told the stockholders that the total assets of the banks and discounts showed an increase of $2,221,715,922 in the 12 months.

In meeting the turnover in personnel due to the war the bank has added many women to the staff, as has been a release of defense work, Mr. Thom said.

Today's Trading on Exchange

In another busy session of the Washington Stock Exchange, 100 shares of Garfinkel common sold at 9 1/4, unchanged.

Stock Prices Follow Irregular Course; Trading Slow

Many Leaders Near Standstill in Slightly Lower Territory

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The buying urge almost was at zero in today's stock market and, while assorted favorites managed to post modest gains, numerous leaders virtually were at a standstill in slightly lower territory.

The trend route was cloudy at the start and, with frequent backslows along the way, price changes of fractions to a point or so in either direction made for a definitely irregular course.

It was another one of the most sluggish sessions since last October, transfers running in the neighborhood of 400,000 shares.

Wall Street seemed a bit pessimistic regarding the war news, the consensus being that the threat to Singapore and British reverses in Africa at least offset the success of American-Dutch forces in sinking a large number of Japanese ships in the far Pacific.

Scant inspiration was discerned in a big batch of company summaries for 1941 showing record business in many cases but stressing the impact of mounting taxes on ultimate profits.

Among better share actors were Union Pacific and Coca-Cola, which got up a point or so each at the extreme; Western Union, U. S. Gypsum and Phelps Dodge.

Bethlehem Steel was moderately resistant, as were Great Northern, International Harvester, Sears-Roebuck, Glenn Martin and Goodrich.

Slacking rising power were U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Cerro de Pasco, J. I. Case, American Can, General Electric, Texas Co., Standard Oil (N. J.), Douglas Aircraft, General Motors and Chrysler.

Bond Changes Small

The bond market hovered in a narrow range with the trend a trifle mixed near the final hour. Only a few issues, mostly among the less active, showed any movement more than a point either way.

Among these were Boston and Maine 4 1/2s, Reading-Jersey Central 4s and Seaboard Air Line 4s, on the upside, and Bangor and Arroostook convertible 4s and Pennsylvania, Ohio and Detroit 4 1/2s, on the downside.

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Grain and soybeans advanced early trading but then gave up much or all of the gains following the President's statement expressing dissatisfaction with the provisions of the new price control law which would permit farm prices to rise to 110 per cent of parity.

Early gains of 2 to 3 cents a bushel in the rice and soybeans pits and smaller advances in other cereals reflected upward revision of parity prices which are the basis upon which price ceilings would be figured. Some selling of wheat was attributed to uncertainty about the Commodity Credit Corp. selling price for the first half of February to be announced soon.

Wheat closed 1/2% higher than yesterday; May, $1.32 1/2; corn, 1/2% higher; July, 88 3/4; soybeans, 1/2% higher.

Soybeans, selling as high as $2.55 1/2 for July delivery early in the day, reached new all-time peaks.

Gasoline Consumption Declared Holding At High Levels

Oil Experts Report Estimates Indicate No January Drop

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Informed oil men said today that Americans apparently still were riding the Nation's highways in their close to pre-war numbers when there was no Government ban on purchase of new automobiles tires.

These sources, explaining actual figures might not be available before mid-February, said early estimates for January indicated no decrease in use of gasoline by motorists.

The ban on new tire purchases became effective shortly after America's entry into the war less than two months ago.

The supply of petroleum products on hand gasoline and fuel oil in the Eastern States, however, dropped slightly for the week ending January 24 below that of the previous week, an unseasonal decline.

The Petroleum Institute of America's figures showed 19,812,000 barrels of all petroleum products in the Eastern area for January 24, as compared with 20,360,000 for the week ending January 17.

Includes Coastal States. Included in the Eastern area are all coastal States from Maine to Florida, half of Pennsylvania and all of New York except the western edge.

Interior Secretary Ickes said yesterday the petroleum situation in the East, where rationing was imposed last summer, was "tight and getting tighter" as a result of ship tanker sinkings and diversion of such vessels to war service.

He noted tank car shipments of petroleum products to Eastern States showed an increase of 86 percent in the two weeks of January 10 and January 24, which included the period of the tanker sinkings, as a result of efforts to stimulate this method of transportation.

Some of this increase was reflected in the figures for the week ending January 17 the daily average shipment of all oil products into the Eastern area by rail was 77,400 barrels; for the week ending January 10 it was 57,275 barrels.

Rail Shipments Small. During last summer's Eastern States oil rationing period, the oil companies launched a rail shipment program which at peak was bringing oil into the Eastern States at the rate of 143,000 barrels daily.

This total, however, was a little less than one-tenth the daily demand in the Eastern States.

The rest of that demand was supplied largely by tankers, each one of which can carry oil equal to the combined capacity of about 200 tank cars.

Auto Makers End Civilian Production Of Cars Tomorrow

Industry Experts Warn Change to War Output Is Not Overnight Task

By DAVID J. WILKIE, Associated Press Staff Writer. DETROIT, Jan. 30.—The automotive industry today faced the end of most of its normal activities preparatory to adapting its entire productive capacity to the manufacture of war implements.

Officially, passenger car production stops tomorrow. A few companies, however, have been authorized to continue for more than 10 days to complete January quotas.

The 100 per cent conversion to war supplies production, industry heads warned, is not just an overnight task, and tanks and airplanes won't come off assembly lines at the same rate automobiles have been poured out in the past.

At the same time, experts assert, results expectable by early summer will be "surprising" to most persons.

Only Have Orders Now. In four decades the Nation's automobile factories have turned out more than 85,000,000 motor vehicles; what they can do in military implement manufacture in the year ahead rests in the co-ordination, now under way, of their men, machines and materials.

The nearest the industry has to a war production schedule at the moment is upwards of $8,000,000 in orders, more than twice the total of last year's automobile and armament output value.

"We're going to stop all peacetime activities shortly and get into a full 100 per cent arms production job as quickly as possible," said one leading industry figure. "This means stop the assembly lines that were engaged in car output, clear them out of plants and install in their place our arms-making tools."

Didn't Foresee Pearl Harbor. To criticism that the industry was slow getting under way, the same authority said:

"I have been said we insisted upon building new facilities, using existing facilities. We have done both, and moreover, nobody foresaw Pearl Harbor a year ago. The orders the motor industry had a year ago were just about enough to keep us going—certainly not enough to warrant a cessation at that time of all passenger car building."

"One major fact overlooked in many quarters is that in addition to avoiding the loss of many thousands of man hours of employment, we now have new plant facilities—tank plants turning out twice as many mobile fortresses as were expected—aviation engine facilities far ahead of output schedules—aircraft sub-assembly plants also in delivery and one of the largest bomber plant factories in the world that soon will be producing a day output far greater than any one ever dreamed of."

"From any viewpoint these facilities were needed and we now have them. They would not have been ready a day sooner had we stopped all normal activities last summer."

The survey said that next week will see several producers still operating on cleanup of their passenger car quotas for January. Thereafter production will be confined to truck output, mainly in medium and heavy-weight classifications.

Retail Trade Holes At Record Levels During Week

Some Slackening Seen In 'Scarcity' Lines; Buying Abnormal

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Nation's retailers reported this week new seasonal records in dollar volume of business but also noted signs of slackened demand in several "scarcity" lines, Dun & Bradstreet said today.

The stock-up buying movement had not yet spent its force, said the agency, although it was somewhat diminished from the peak of a week ago.

Compared with a year ago, the increase in total retail trade was estimated at between 18 and 22 per cent above last year.

"Multiple purchasing," the survey said, "still accounted for an abnormal volume of sales in articles which consumers had signaled out as being subject to shortages in the future, quality changes, or price increases."

"Retailers who tended to regard the trend as not only abnormal but unhealthy had suspended promotional activity on many items and in others had instituted informal rationing."

"Calls for winter clothing continued unusually heavy," the report stated, despite relatively mild weather in many sections. Worst clothing stocks especially were thinned out.

American Tobacco Co. Reported Planning Huge Financing

May Seek as Much As $100,000,000 in New Offering

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Financial circles heard today that officials of the American Tobacco Co. were considering raising a large amount of new funds, possibly as much as $100,000,000, to finance the company's growing inventory of raw tobacco.

Whether any public offering would be made and the type of obligations to be issued were yet to be decided upon, it was said.

Utility Offering Due. J. Wesley McAfee, president of the Union Electric Co. of Missouri, said today the corporation would register its common stock with the Securities and Exchange Commission within a few days as a step toward public sale.

Financial circles said the distribution of 2,895,000 shares now owned by the North American Co. would be the largest since passage of the 1933 Securities Act.

Union Electric, one of the Nation's biggest operating utilities, has formed a part of the North American Co. holdings since 1901.

The sale will be in conformance with integration proceedings against North American by the S. E. C. and will be conducted through a National-wide banking syndicate, headed by Dillon, Read & Co.

Virginia House Starts Work on Penal Reform

BNI to Establish Corrections Unit Due To Pass Today

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 30.—Penal reform, perennial subject of animated but fruitless maneuvering in recent sessions of the Virginia General Assembly, progressed through the legislative mill again today—this time with brighter prospect of passage because of Gov. Dienes' support.

The bill to establish a Department of Corrections—one of a related series of bills sponsored by the Legislative Advisory Council for accomplishing the broad objective—was on the House calendar ready for passage, with no opposition apparent.

This measure would create a five-member commission, headed by an appointee of the Governor drawing up to $7,500 a year, to take over all duties of the present Prison Board and similar penal administrators. The commission could establish regional prison farms and prescribe standards for local jails.

Other measures in committee. Other proposals composing the legislative framework for penal reform were reported likely to come before the Senate Finance Committee today, with the possibility that a strong movement might develop for extensive amendments.

The Finance Committee is keeping a watchful eye on proposed appropriations outside the budget bill. Chairman Aubrey G. Weaver joined yesterday with Chairman Frank Moore in the House Appropriations Committee in warning that a quarter-million-dollar operating deficit might develop during the 1943-44 biennium.

While the State will have an estimated $13,000,000 surplus next June 30, the budget contemplates holding about $11,000,000 of this in reserve for post-war emergency. This would leave only $2,000,000 of the estimated surplus, and the two chairmen said that only two of many proposed appropriations outside the budget—State aid to counties for school buildings and wartime "bonuses" for State employees—would devour the margin, if approved.

Liquor Tax Repealer. However, aside from the surplus, but allowing for a loss of $40,000 from expected repeal of the 12 per cent liquor-wine tax, estimated current revenues for the general fund aggregate $34,850,000, against budget appropriations of $64,541,428, or $29,691,428 excess of expenditures over revenues.

At the hearing by the House Finance Committee, however, which yesterday ended in a unanimously favorable report on the liquor tax repeal bill, Chairman Hunter Miller of the State Liquor Board said stimulation of sales resulting from the repeal would offset the actual loss in returns from the tax.

Committees of both houses received a flood of new bills. Five House members yesterday introduced a measure empowering the State Compensation Board to fix the salaries of county trial justices, as it does for other local officials. The State would bear the full cost of the trial justices' salaries, now paid in part by the counties, but in return the State would receive most of the fees these courts collect.

Administrative Agencies' Curbs. A group of five bills entered at the same time would carry out recommendations of the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia for curbing issuance of rules and regulations by various State Government agencies of the State government.

The bills would establish elaborate checks on such rules and regulations having the force and effect of law, partly by requiring publication of such rules in two proposed periodicals, the Virginia State Register and the Administrative Code of Virginia, and partly by establishment of a "Commission on Administrative Agencies," headed by the Speaker of the House and composed of 10 Delegates and five Senators. This commission would have to approve such rules and regulations, although the State Corporation Commission and the Liquor Control Board would be specifically exempted from this provision.

Another important new House bill, carrying out one of Gov. Darden's recommendations, would divorce the police and licensing functions of the Motor Vehicles Division.

Prince Georges Fears Loss of Half of Teachers

The rapid rate at which teachers are resigning from schools of Prince Georges County, Md., has been brought to the attention of the County Federation of Women's Clubs and the League of Women Voters.

It was pointed out by principals of schools throughout the county that by this time next year at least half of the experienced teachers will have gone into other jobs.

The two groups asked in a resolution adopted at a joint forum at the University of Maryland Wednesday night that something be done to retain Edward R. Updegraff, principal of the board with the most valuable work in instructing pupils and for the extra work he does for the school.

Dr. Sidney B. Hall of George Washington University addressed the groups.

Stanley Orr to Head Red Cross Aid Setup in Prince Georges

Mrs. James B. Bentley Announces Chairmen For $20,000 Drive

Appointment of Stanley Orr of Riverdale, Md., to head a greatly expanded first aid program of the Prince Georges County chapter of the American Red Cross, was announced yesterday by J. Raymond Fletcher, chairman.

At the same time, Mrs. James B. Bentley, general chairman of the county's Red Cross war fund drive, named 20 district chairmen who will work during the next three weeks to raise $20,000 in the county. Mr. Fletcher said it is hoped that in the county for a number of years, will direct a program which is currently about ten times as ambitious as that conducted last year. Mr. Fletcher explained, from September 1940 to September 1941, 212 persons received first aid instruction in the county. Today there are approximately 2,000 taking standard and advanced training courses. Mr. Fletcher added that nearly an equal number have applied and are now waiting to receive instruction.

Course to Furnish Teachers. Mr. Fletcher said it is hoped that a course for those desiring to become instructors, scheduled to open February 16, will provide enough qualified teachers to handle the enlarged program. Open only to students who have passed both the 20-hour standard and the 10-hour advanced courses, the class will include 15 hours of study in one week. It is to be taught by Luther Allison of Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, Mr. Fletcher said.

Officials of the chapter expect that the series of classes for prospective instructors will be attended by about 90 persons. They have not yet selected a meeting place. Mr. Fletcher praised the attitude of physicians in the county who have volunteered their services as first aid instructors for the courses now in progress. He said 12 physicians are at present engaged in this work.

District Chairmen Named. District chairmen named by Mrs. Bentley in connection with the county "war fund" drive are: Mrs. G. W. S. Musgrave, Laurel; B. K. Miller, Surratts; Mrs. M. E. Black, Aquasco; Mrs. Herndon Beach, Queen Anne; Mrs. Harriet Benjamin, Berywin; Mrs. Robert Cook, Lanham; Mrs. Perry Browning, Riverdale; Mrs. Delores Taxson, Seat Pleasant; Mrs. J. Enos Ray, Chillum; Mrs. Ralph Sheffer, Hyattsville; Mrs. T. Van Claget, Jr., Marlboro and Melwood; Mrs. Lee Van Horn, Bowie; Mrs. William Roberts, Kent; Mrs. Charles Jones, Oxon Hill; Mrs. Joseph H. Blandford, Jr., Brandwine; Mrs. Henry Fuchs Spauldings; Mrs. John L. Showell, Nottingham; Mrs. John S. White, Bladensburg; and Mrs. Ralph G. Schott, Vanville.

The committee hopes to reach its goal of $20,000 for the county within three weeks, but the drive will be extended as long as is necessary to reach the goal. About $3,000 will be turned back to the county by the Red Cross in the form of local war relief work.

$700 Given in Advance. Mrs. Bentley said approximately $700 has been collected in advance contributions to the drive. Donations were received, prior to the setting up of machinery for solicitation, at banks throughout the county and at chapter headquarters in Hyattsville. In addition, she said, the Red Cross has been given the proceeds of several benefit card parties and teas.

Mrs. Bentley said a tea for the benefit of the Red Cross is scheduled for 4 p. m. Sunday at the home of Mrs. Ray Chillum, chairman, and that the Hyattsville Women's Club will sponsor a benefit card party at 7:30 p. m. February 6 at the Hyattsville High School.

Birthday Ball Planned at Silver Spring Tonight

The Montgomery County County, American Legion, will sponsor its annual President's ball at the Silver Spring Army tonight beginning at 10 o'clock.

Fifty per cent of the money collected from the ball and the Mile o' Dimes is retained in the county for relief of crippled children.

Heavy Day Marks Eve of Closing of Mile o' Dimes

Thousands of Dollars Poured in on Stand By Many Groups

Washington's Mile o' Dimes campaign, scheduled to close tomorrow at 6 p. m., was assured of success today following one of the busiest days at the stand at Fourteenth street and New York avenue yesterday, during which two high-ranking Government officials together handed in contributions totaling $3,893.49.

Largest accumulated contribution came from Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator, who appeared in a broadcast late yesterday over Station WMAL. The total was $2,321.96. The second large sum came from Herbert E. Gaston, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who presented $1,571.53 contributed by Treasury employees.

Mr. Jones said $697 came from Commerce employees, $604.96 from loan agency workers and $1,020 sent him as a result of a recent national broadcast in support of the fight on infantile paralysis. Included in the last category was a large check from Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen, U. S. A.

More From Treasury Forecast. Shane McCarthy, administrative assistant in the Office of Production Administration, presented $677.13 volunteered by O. E. M. personnel. He described each dime contributed to the cause "a silver bullet in the battle against the dread disease." Mr. Gaston pointed out that additional funds were expected from Treasury employees.

Miss Patricia Morison, Paramount star, who will participate in the President's birthday observances here today, shared the microphone with the requesting officials and gave $1, representing to be placed in the California bottle.

Speaking at a preliminary here for the President's birthday celebrations made an appearance at the red, white and blue stand at a noontime broadcast over WMAL yesterday. She was Carol Bruce, Universal star, whose last picture was "Keep 'Em Flying." In dropping 13 dimes into the California bottle Miss Bruce explained that 13 was her lucky number.

Miss Bruce hardly lacked for police protection at the Mile o' Dimes stand, because appearing on the same program were all precinct captains and lieutenants, headquarters inspectors and detectives and Maj. Edward J. Kelly, police superintendent. Maj. Kelly turned over to officials $150.80 in dimes, which he said represented 100 per cent participation by the department.

$430 From Veterans' Administration. From employees of the Veterans' Administration came $430.44, presented by W. C. Black, chief clerk of the Government agency.

Five-year-old Bryan Dugan, who attends the Providence Day Nursery, operated by the Sisters of Charity, opened the noon broadcast by describing life at the nursery. At the end of his little speech he asked permission of Announcer Don Fischer to say one thing more. It was: "Happy birthday, Mr. President."

James H. Perry, vice president and general manager of the Potomac Electric Power Co., presented on behalf of the employees $133. Mrs. H. D. Adams, president of the Women's Club of Chevy Chase, turned in $35 which was collected at the last meeting of the group. From Mrs. Philip Latimer of 4614 Eighth street N.W. came $25.50, the proceeds of a benefit bridge party given recently in her neighborhood.

Other contributions received during the day were Casualty Hospital nurses, $16; Arthur Murray Studios, $15; Goodwill Industries, $5.30; Rich's Barber Shop, $5; Master Barbers of America, Local 356, $20; Washington Lions' Club, $10; Hotel Training School, $7.07; Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle, $5; Southwest Settlement House, $1; Ransdell, Inc., unlisted amount; Emergency Hospital nurses, $30; Jemer Club, $10, and Office of Registrar of Wills, $5.35.

Assembly Gets Retirement Bill For Arlington

Measure Affecting Alexandria Project Put on Calendar

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 30.—Two measures affecting Arlington County and Alexandria are awaiting action by the Virginia Legislature.

Delegate Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington introduced a bill to authorize establishment of a retirement system for county employees and payment of pensions from county funds, while the Baldwin-Louderback bill authorizing life insurance companies to finance housing developments was reported favorably by the Insurance and Banking Committee with amendments and placed on the House calendar.

Mr. Fenwick's bill was introduced at the request of the Arlington County Board, which recently went on record in favor of a retirement system for county employees, but took no action pending a thorough study of the cost involved. Board Member Leo Lloyd, who introduced the resolution for a study of the advisability of the system, explained that a pension setup could be instituted for policemen under present laws, but that authorizing legislation would be necessary in the case of firemen and employees of other departments.

The board voted to seek authorization from the Legislature so that the system could be established without further delay. The bill would be available during the next two years.

An amendment to the Baldwin-Louderback bill written by the Insurance and Banking Committee set a 2,500-family limit on units of any project, or group of projects, within a five-mile radius of cities of 100,000 or the District of Columbia. The committee over the protests of Delegate R. F. Baldwin, Jr., of Norfolk, struck out an emergency clause which would have made the bill effective on passage. Mr. Baldwin said the measure was designed to make possible immediate development of the $7,000,000 garden apartment project planned by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for Alexandria.

The amended bill received the support of Delegate Maurice Roseberry, of Alexandria, who reserved the right to change his position if amendments were adopted on the floor of the House materially altering the measure as it now stands.

Farmers Urged to Aid in Scrap Iron Salvage

Montgomery County farmers yesterday were urged by Assistant County Agricultural Agent Rufus King to cooperate in the scrap iron salvage campaign conducted by the County Agricultural War Board.

She was Carol Bruce, Universal star, whose last picture was "Keep 'Em Flying." In dropping 13 dimes into the California bottle Miss Bruce explained that 13 was her lucky number.

Survey Shows D. C. Gas Sale Falling as Autos Increase

Despite a jump in the number of autos registered in Washington, motorists are buying less gasoline from filling stations, according to dealers.

During the first two weeks of January sales were 5 or 6 per cent below those of 1941, it was revealed in a survey made by Harry Wainwright, research director of the Gasoline Retailers of Washington. Since that time no systematic calculations have been made, but Mr. Wainwright reports there is every indication that gas consumption has dropped still more.

The reason for the cut appears to be a "scare" that tires and automobiles cannot be replaced, it was indicated. Some dealers expect this to end when motorists discover that with careful driving and recapping of tires they can use their cars about as usual.

Mr. Wainwright believes gas sale reduction national, except in areas where workers must use cars to reach defense industries. In Baltimore, for instance, filling stations near plane plants are booming, while those in residential districts stand idle.

Registration of cars in the District for the car registration year ending April 1 now stands at 211,227. This compares with 211,089 for the entire 1940 fiscal year, a period more than two months longer.

Gov. Darden Appoints Morrissett as State Tax Commissioner

Bradford Is Named to Succeed Dr. Egger as Budget Director

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 30.—Gov. Darden announced yesterday the reappointment of C. H. Morrissett as State tax commissioner, a job he has held under four previous Governors.

Mr. Morrissett, who has been in State service since 1919, organized the State Tax Department after his appointment as the first tax commissioner in 1926 and has headed the department continuously since.

His new term, not subject to confirmation of the General Assembly, is at the pleasure of the Governor.

Bradford Budget Director. Earlier yesterday, Gov. Darden appointed J. H. Bradford, who likewise has been in employ of the State since 1919, as budget director, succeeding Dr. Rowland Egger, who resigned effective tomorrow.

Also like Mr. Morrissett, Mr. Bradford was first named budget director by Gov. Byrd in 1926 and was reappointed by Govs. Follmer and Jernigan. He was replaced in 1939 by Gov. Price, who named Dr. Egger budget director.

Mr. Bradford served under Dr. Egger as a section chief for two years, and then was made "legislative budget director," a new position created in 1940 by the General Assembly, which gave him a salary equal to Dr. Egger's.

Baltimore Income Tax Share $1,565,000

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—Baltimore city and the counties will receive approximately $1,565,000 as their share of the 1941 State income tax if the levy reaches its estimated yield of $8,440,000.

State Controller J. Millard Tawes said yesterday the share of the political subdivisions—25 per cent of the tax paid by their resident individuals—was expected to exceed the 1940 figure by $315,000.

The increase in the county's population during the last 20 years is illustrated by the fact that the number of motor vehicles assessed in 1941 exceeds the population of Montgomery County in 1920, which was 34,821. The county's present population is estimated to be in excess of 85,000.

Mr. Billheimer said that motor vehicle tax bills would be sent out at the same time that applications for 1942 automobile tags are issued by the State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles about February 15.

Lee Is Successor To Parran as Head of Tobacco Growers

Maryland Association Completes Building of 2 Packing Houses

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—Charles Carroll Lee, Anne Arundel County farm owner and businessman, has succeeded Thomas Parran of St. Leonard to the presidency of the Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association.

The 84-year-old former president resigned voluntarily after more than 20 years in office. Mr. Parran said he retired because he felt the "aggressive energy of a younger man."

On taking office Mr. Lee said the association has completed building two tobacco packing houses and farmers' supply stores at Wayson's Corner in Anne Arundel and at Waldorf, Charles County. He reported a third building under construction at The Oaks, near Mechanicsville, St. Marys County.

Arrangement for Service. Calvert, Anne Arundel and part of Prince Georges Counties will be served by the Wayson's Corner store, part of Prince Georges and Charles by the Waldorf building, while the third store will serve parts of Charles and St. Marys.

He announced this 1942 program for the association: To pack tobacco for members who may not be able to pack their own crops. Transfer buyers, shipping tobacco to the association, also may use the packing houses.

Sell tobacco exclusively on the Baltimore market, continuing a 20-year policy.

Carry Line of Supplies. Carry a full line of farmers' supplies in supply stores, thus giving Southern Maryland farmers an organized voice in national affairs if supplies eventually are rationed on a priority basis.

Other officers named included T. Newton Gibson, J. Bernard Goodwin and W. W. Bowling, vice presidents; Russell Gross, treasurer, and Thomas W. Jones, secretary.

Named to the Board of Directors to serve from the various counties were W. P. Harrison (Anne Arundel), A. W. Dowell and W. Oso Ward (Calvert), G. A. Carpenter and X. E. Garner (Charles), J. Clifton Abell and Stanley Wilburn (Prince Georges), Andrew Gresco and Ernest Lane (St. Marys) and M. O. Day and O. L. Riggs (Upper State).

Mr. Parran and Walter B. Posey were made honorary members of the board.

The first passenger picked up in the emergency service at all times to determine the first destination, and so on as to the succeeding passengers, except that a "later" passenger may be discharged earlier than his order if his destination lies in the direction of the destination of an "earlier" passenger, the order expires.

For a final determination of the plan, the commission has scheduled a formal public hearing at the District Building for March 5.

Van Houtens, Give Party 'After 6'

Number of Members Of Diplomatic Set Are in Attendance

By MONA DUGAS. It is unusual these days to find the homes of the members of the diplomatic corps whose lands have been overrun by the Nazis, furnished with their own belongings. Most of the diplomatic families of these lands have furniture stored in some warehouse in their homeland unable to get it out because of the German occupation. Fortunate exceptions to this rule are the First Secretary of the Netherlands Legation and Mme. H. R. van Houten. On the first of May, 1940, the van Houtens had their furniture shipped from Holland to the United States—and 10 days later the Germans invaded their country.

Now the beautiful Dutch pieces of carved woodwork and the dishes and ornaments from the Netherlands decorate the Van Houtens' home in Westmoreland Hills. Yesterday this attractive house was filled with friends of the popular diplomat and his wife, who entertained at cocktails "after 6." This later hour is more popular than ever with the diplomatic contingent, for few of the men in this group are able to leave their desks until early evening. Even so, there often are many women whose husbands find themselves unable to take time out for Others in the party included Mrs. A. K. Helm, wife of the Counselor of the British Embassy; Mrs. John MacCormac, Mrs. Charles Hurd, Mrs. Samuel Scribner, Mrs. D'Arcy McGreer and Mrs. Edmund Starling.

By the Way—

War-time New York isn't very different from war-time Washington. All the hotels and shops and restaurants are crowded. So are the night clubs. Every one is busy doing some sort of war work and many women are in uniform. At a standing-room-only performance of "Let's Face It," not more than a dozen people in the audience wore evening clothes. Later on at the smart St. Regis "La Maisonette," where New Yorkers flock nightly to hear the newest toast-of-the-town, Claude Alphonse, chant her little French songs, not more than a third of the women wore floor-length gowns—and those of the simplest cover-up type.

The shop windows are as alluring as ever with all the latest Spring numbers. But milady, it seems, is more interested than ever in getting her money's worth this spring. She demands good goods and a good conservative cut in her new spring coats and suits. She'd rather pay more—much more (and she has to)—because she knows that whatever she buys this year may have to last a long, long time. She may waste a few dollars on a silly little hat just for the sake of trying to look gay and courageous and jaunty—but she won't waste one penny on anything but the best in material and cut for her basic wardrobe.

As a result, both the manufacturers and the good retail shops are predicting that American women will be better dressed than ever—because they're giving more thought to the fundamentals of good dressing. They can't afford mistakes just now—so they don't make any. They're paying more attention to good health, too, because they're smart enough to know that health is a vital factor in winning a war. So they give up, perhaps the cocktail hour or the luncheon hour, to take some good revitalizing exercises that will make them look and feel fresh and glowing and fit for whatever may lie ahead.

Going up on the same train from Washington were Mrs. Kenneth Jenkins and her uncle, Edward Gardner. Mary Louise was staying at the Hampshire House, as we were—and we arrived to find that the Amory Carharts were also registered there, doing a little business and shopping before going South. Mrs. John Gross was expected to arrive late yesterday afternoon, but a little too late for us to see her, since we took an earlier train home. At the St. Regis, Mr. and Mrs. William Doeller are spending a few weeks—also prior to leaving for the South later in the month. Dropping in to call on them was quite like a Washington or Warrenton afternoon party. The Richard Wallachs were there with their Long Island hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Potter. Also the Warrenton Harry Pooles and Eddie Gardner again, Mary Louise Jenkins and Bob Stead, who is working in New York now—liking it very much, he says, but missing terribly his old Washington friends and his golf at Chevy Chase Club.

Mrs. Emory Sands told us she was working hard at her new job, which has to do with women's clothes. She hopes to get down here later on this month. Mrs. Charles Parker Stone has given up her job as personal shopper for one of the big New York department stores to take on an important executive position with the Judson Health Center. It's an amazing organization and she is tremendously interested in the work. As we left the theater, we saw the young Alex Hagners—also scrambling for a taxi. Alex, we hear, is about to be commissioned a captain in the United States Army beginning Monday, he'll be under Gen Robert Olds in the plane-ferrying division of the Army Air Corps.

BY THE WAY— Mrs. C. Mathew Dick has just called to say that the dance for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Club of Washington and the Belgian Prisoners of War, which she and other prominent society women are arranging, has been postponed from February 14 to Friday, February 27. It will still take place as originally planned at the Sulgrave Club—and there will be even more dinners than those already announced, to precede the party.

American Eagle

By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.

There is a determined and stern expression in the eye of our national bird. America adopted this majestic creature because it signified our own independence and dauntless courage. For centuries eagles have been used by various countries as their national emblem. Warriors and courts adopted them. A bird from 30 to 35 inches long with a wing spread of 6½ to 7½ feet is of kingly size. In flight or at rest the American or bald eagle is impressive. The snow-white head and tail add dignity to the imposing form.

Through an Indian lad in 1861 a bald eagle was introduced into Company C of the Eighth or Eagle Regiment under Capt. John E. Perkins. The eagle was "sworn in" by placing about his neck red, white and blue ribbons and a rosette of the same colors upon his breast. He was an impressive sight, and a soldier by the name of James McGinnis was appointed his keeper. A perch was made upon which the eagle could ride. Two women, seeing the bird, immediately donated two small flags, and between the fluttering symbols the eagle, later known as "Old Abe, the Soldier Bird," marched forward to the front. Old Abe enjoyed the war. He loved the music. He always marched at the front of his company beside the color-bearer. He whistled, screamed or lifted his mighty wings as the martial music floated on the air. He inspired the soldiers by his dauntless behavior. They came to believe they had special protection, for in battle Old

Abe somehow dodged the singing bullets, and his wild screams of rage and excitement seemed to put fear into the hearts of the enemy. This eagle learned to flatten himself out when the boys were told to lie flat upon the ground, resuming a most soldierly air when the bugle sounded and the company stood up. Because of his intelligence and marvelous vision he saved his company more than once. He kept the lookout when they rested or waited, and his scream of alarm was instantly obeyed. Eventually Abe was furloughed along with the veterans, but he continued to serve his country.

After a brilliant civil career Abe was spending the winter in the basement of the Capitol in Wisconsin. Fire broke out, choking the old soldier, and he sent forth the loudest shrieks ever heard in that building before or since. Watchmen raced to him and quenched the flames, which had started in some oil and paint cans. This experience was too much for the veteran, and on March 26, 1881, he passed to his reward.

Abe's family and friends range over the United States to Southern California and Northern Mexico. They love the shores of rivers and lakes, selecting the largest and tallest trees in which to establish the nurseries; sometimes the niches in rocky cliffs will be used. Their cradle is a bulky affair, constructed of twigs, roots, sticks, seaweed, etc. There are usually twins, rarely triplets. Eagles mate for life. Family cares are undertaken early in the spring. The infants are provided by mother nature with a soft, white, downy birthday garment. In three years they mature and are even larger than their parents, for the wing expanse is 1 foot or more. The food consists of rabbits, squirrels, mice and snakes. The eagle is the sanitary officer of the shores. Fresh fish is obtained from the expert fisherman, the osprey, from whom the eagle fitches the prize.

116 Students Finish Courses at Anacostia Junior-Senior High

Double Exercises Mark Graduations From Duplex School

In double exercises 116 students were graduated yesterday from the Anacostia Junior-Senior High School at final exercises there. The junior division graduates will attend the senior division next semester at the District's only combined high school.

The graduation program of the 66 in the junior division was based on the theme of the significance of liberty in America. Walter Bunyeva spoke on "Our Heritage of Freedom" and Vivian Armentrout on "The Meaning of Freedom Today." After a piano duet by Helen Owens and Louella Arnold, Mary Jean Burke discussed the liberties lost among the conquered peoples.

Class honors were read by Virginia Cowan, vice president, and the class gift was presented by Gloria Jarboe. Principal John Paul Collins announced citations, and awards and diplomas were presented by Dr. Carroll R. Reed, first assistant superintendent of schools.

Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers' College, addressed the 50 graduates of the senior division a few hours later.

The senior program theme was "Our South American Neighbors" and featured Beatrice Silver, Chester Finagin, Phloimia Sampogna and Deborah Judy. Principal Collins announced awards and honors.

CHAPTER XXII.

Jack Tennant in the publicity department had called Livia at 9:30. Two syndicate columnists wanted to interview her, and she was to lunch with one and have tea with the other. She was planning what she would say to them when Charles telephoned.

"Get your hat. We're going to the beach after all," he said. She told him of her two appointments. "You don't have to worry about them," he said grimly. She did not understand.

"They'll say I'm temperamental if I'm not here," she protested.

"I'll be with you in 10 minutes."

When Fordyce arrived, Livia said jubilantly, "You get everything you want. The office just called to cancel my interviews. That means I'm free to go."

"You certainly are free, lady," he said. Her smile faded at the tone of his voice. "You've been fired," he said, avoiding her eyes.

"It's not even a good joke," she replied.

"Come on. I'll explain in the car." The sky was a deep blue, and the trees, flashing by, were greenly fresh and wet from the rain the night before. Livia thought how lovely California was outside, but inside everything was rotten and soft. It was bad enough to be fired for giving a good performance. But Charles—the only person in Hollywood who had cared enough to give her a break—had lost his job because of her.

"Take me to Mr. Schneider," she begged him. "I must explain. Alice hated me before. I know she will turn back now and take me to the studio. I won't let this happen to you."

He continued driving toward Santa Barbara. Fordyce was not worried, merely angry. He was a good director and could work in any studio in Hollywood. He had never bothered to count up his investments, but he guessed he was worth about a million dollars. He would accept another job when he found a good story.

But what of Livia? He stopped the car along the Malibu highway and suddenly brought her body close against his and kissed her. Livia did not resist. She tried to obliterate Bruce from her mind.

Fordyce Is Pleased.

She had come around to him finally, thought Fordyce. They all did sooner or later. Few had held out as long as Livia.

Cars were passing in a steady non-ending rush. It was Saturday and everybody was going somewhere in cars driven by raucous high school students or hired negro chauffeurs—they were all going somewhere to have fun.

"And where am I going?" thought Livia, withdrawing a little from Charles' hard arms. But she was grateful. He had helped her, and was fired for his kindness. "I'll do anything he wants," she thought, and kissed him.

Some boys in a jalopy shouted at them. And they both laughed.

"We'll charge an admission fee," said Charles. "Ten cents to watch Fordyce and Clarkson in a world-record embrace."

She put back the hat that had fallen from her head and moved to her side of the car. He caught her fingers and kissed them.

"You're sweet," he said, and she smiled back, confidently. Well, it was something to have an important man like Charles in love with her. But did he want to marry her? She would be wife number five. This made it less exciting somehow.

Charles was thinking of the picnic lunch at Santa Barbara; then drive back. She had never seen his house. She would see it this evening.

They lunched at the Samarkand and afterward walked through the flower-filled gardens. Livia wanted to stay there. It was peaceful and the air was full of sweet scents and the salt of the sea. The heart-break and intrigue of Hollywood seemed continents away.

"From now on you are under personal contract to me," Charles said casually. "I'll pay you $150, as the studio did." It was quite usual in Hollywood for directors and agents to put promising players under personal contracts. But it was one more example of Charles' kindness to her and one more link binding her to him.

The sun warmed their backs as they drove along the coastal route to his house in Beverly Hills.

Bruce was having a showdown with the countess. In a trade paper that morning, on the same page reviewing Livia's picture, there was an announcement of the definite shelving of "Western Saga." He telephoned the countess—at the time Livia and Charles were lurching at the Samarkand.

"But I don't understand," Saskia said. She was vague and fluttering until Bruce said:

"I'm coming over to wring your little neck."

It was a long time since a man had called the Countess' neck little, or cared enough about it to want wring it. And a pleasurable thrill passed through her dumpy body.

She received Bruce in her pink-and-gray Louis Quinze boudoir. The blinds were carefully arranged to dim the yellow sunshine. The air was heavy with the perfume Countess Saskia used.

she had to approve the film before release.

"I guess I'm as bad a businessman as I am a picture producer," Bruce said slowly. He moved to the door. He would have gone, but Countess Saskia said hurriedly:

"I didn't mean that about the picture. It just needs some retouching. We'll release it. . . . Don't look at me like that." She tried to make him sit down. He rolled a cigarette, slowly puffed it, and left her standing in the middle of the room. For the first time since his college days, Bruce went to a bar with the deliberate intention of getting drunk.

It was dark when Livia and Charles drove up the circular driveway to his Colonial-fronted house. There were several telephone messages for Fordyce—reporters from the papers had been calling all day to get confirmation of his resignation from the studio. Fordyce smiled. There were no secrets in Hollywood.

The white-coated Filipino servant conducted Livia up the thin spiral staircase and into Charles' bedroom. She sat down before a large mirror over a mahogany chest of drawers, pulled off her hat and loosened her hair. She was tired.

She powdered her nose and put on "new" lips. Then she studied the pictures of two beautiful women whose faces smiled challengingly from the dressing-table top. "To Charles—I shall love you forever," Bernice was the inscription on one. Livia wondered whether Bernice was one of the wives or merely a passing infatuation.

The other portrait was of a young girl. "She can't be more than 16," thought Livia. There was no inscription on this.

There was another portrait by his low, wide bed. "This woman was much older than the others and like the young girl."

"One of his wives," concluded Livia. And, of course, she was the mother of the girl. How strange, it would be to be the stepmother of a girl who was only a few years younger. Livia had decided to accept Charles as a husband.

The adjoining bathroom was almost as big as the bedroom. It was green and cool, with silvered racks and taps. A silk dressing gown lay across a white leather armchair. She felt closer to Charles than at any time since they had known each other.

She went downstairs and found him in an oak-beamed room which had a long bar on one side, and a brass rail. The Filipino brought in a tray of fried shrimps. They were hot and delicious. Livia drank from the long tumbler containing rum, and "a few other things" Charles told her. She sat on a high stool facing him and felt sophisticated until the liquor caught at her throat and she coughed. He took the tumbler from her.

Not His Way.

"I'll weaken it," he said. She liked him for that. Fordyce was surprised himself. But he didn't make them drunk. That wasn't his way. The last time a girl had insisted on getting drunk he had her driven home by his chauffeur—greatly to her surprise.

They had dinner by the candlelight in a dining room of shadowy wood and gleaming silver. The Filipino was assisted by a twin, and the service was noiseless and swift. Later they returned to the room with the bar and were sitting on a wide red leather sofa.

Charles held her close and kissed her hair.

"I'm crazy about you," he whispered. "Do you love me—a little?"

"Yes, I do—a little," she said—and waited for him to say, "Will you marry me?" He kissed her again, passionately and possessively. Charles was unprepared for her sudden withdrawal.

"What's wrong?" he asked without getting up. There was nothing wrong.

"I'm a fool," she said. Her voice was hard.

"Livia!" his voice was gentle.

"I thought you were in love with me," she laughed.

"But I am," he protested. She really was sweet and her eyes were beautiful with tears. "Do you want me to marry you? Is that it?" he asked in a matter-of-fact voice. She was embarrassed.

"No," she answered hurriedly. "No, not that at all."

"Will you marry me?" he asked. She paused, then said:

"Yes, yes, I will."

Restaurateurs Charged Under License Law

Proprietors of at least eight Washington restaurants are scheduled to face charges of operating without licenses as a result of license renewals having been refused because of alleged failure to meet sanitary requirements of the Health Department.

In one such case before Judge Walter J. Casey in Police Court yesterday a fine totaling $25 was levied against Melvin Berkow and Nathan Harris as owners of a restaurant at 1536 Seventh street N.W. on the charge of operating without a license.

H. G. Jenkins, a Health Department inspector, was a Government witness. Trial in another case involving alleged operation without license was continued until February 12. An attachment was issued against the owner of a third restaurant, who failed to appear in court on a like charge.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Glen A. Wilkinson prosecuted yesterday's case. Assistant Corporation Counsel E. W. Thomas announced appearance of all defendants will be sought in court and that he will oppose their being allowed to forfeit $25 collateral required on the charge.

Relief Standards Here Scored by U. S. Aide In Note to Van Hyning

Low Welfare Budget Puts Capital Outside Food Stamp Class, It Is Held

District relief standards are denounced by an Agriculture Department agent in a letter in which he states the department cannot now, at least, approve inauguration of the food stamp plan here.

In their budget proposals for the next fiscal year, the District Commissioners already had planned to abandon arrangements for a stamp program, previously authorized by Congress but not yet put in effect.

Some District welfare officials still favor the system, as a means of extending increased aid to Washington's needy. However, Robert J. Graves, as a regional director, under the Agriculture Department service, wrote to District Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning:

"As you know, the food stamp plan of the Surplus Marketing Administration is a program designed to supplement the normal food expenditures of persons receiving relief so that surplus farm commodities will be moved by giving welfare families a more adequate diet. Our experience in administering this program during the past two and a half years indicates that it is successful only when there are sufficient funds available in the welfare department to insure adequate relief standards.

"From our analysis of the questionnaire submitted by your office, we are of the opinion that the welfare grants in your department are below what we consider standard, and feel that your welfare cases would have difficulty in purchasing the orange stamp requirements of our basis of issuance.

"We have observed from recent reports in the Washington newspapers that it is expected that the District welfare budget will be decreased in the next fiscal year. Such a decrease would make it all the more impossible for Washington to be considered as a stamp plan municipality. Would you please confirm for us the veracity of these newspaper reports."

Mr. Graves added that study of needy home groups during the Christmas season indicated a "good many" families in the District were in "dire need" mainly because some member of the family was employable. He concluded:

"It is my opinion that the madequacy of your welfare appropriation would preclude the possibility of extending the food stamp plan to the District at the present time. We shall keep your application in our pending file, however, and if the budgetary situation in your department improves for the next fiscal year, we shall be glad to reconsider the matter at a later date."

Remark to Dog Puts Hidden Thief to Flight

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 30.—A maid in the home of Howard J. Curtis was followed into the house by a small dog.

She turned to the animal and said: "What are you doing in here?"

"45 MILLION AMERICANS ARE VICTIMS OF VITAMIN STARVATION"

—OFFICIAL U. S. GOV'T ESTIMATE, 1940—

DID YOU KNOW

that 1/2 of all Army Draftees rejected, had Vitamin deficiency ailments... Official U. S. Health Department figures are astonishing—Actually millions of Americans, rich and poor, are tired, listless, run-down... losing their youth, buoyancy and vitality without even suspecting the cause!

"C" THE NEGLECTED VITAMIN!

It's so easy to be lacking in Vitamin "C". Only a few foods contain enough of it. Cooking with soda or boiling destroys it. Alcohol, overwork, colds or common infections rob your system of it. You may be rich or poor, or eat like a horse, and still be deficient in Vitamin "C".

WHY YOU NEED "C" DAILY

Your body does NOT store Vitamin "C". Unless you replace it daily—in sufficient quantities—your system is going to feel it!

WHEN NATURE WARNS YOU!

If you suffer from frequent colds, if your bones ache, if you bruise easily, if your gums are soft, if wounds and cuts don't heal quickly, if you feel "too old and tired"—then watch out! These are the "danger signals"—go see your doctor! You're probably very low in Vitamin "C".

FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT IS "LOADED" WITH VITAMIN "C"

There's no need to buy Vitamin "C" in pill form, delicious Florida Grapefruit will furnish ALL the Vitamin "C" you need every day. You get it FREE in the cost of your food—and you get it in natural form... along with B<sub>1</sub> and B<sub>2</sub> and valuable minerals and fruit sugars for extra energy. ### Germans, Wooing Vichy, Reported Minimizing Italians' Possible Post-War Claims

This is the seventh of a series of articles written by an American correspondent just returned from Europe.

By DAVID M. NICHOL, Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

One of the strangest business deals of the century is contributing mightily to the resentment and hatred of the Italians for their Nazi neighbors and allies.

When Mussolini's dreams of empire in Africa were smashed by the Australians and the other British forces, Italian interests were confiscated wherever they were found. The take included some 80,000,000 lire in Italian currency, and presented the English with the neat problem of how they could best dispose of it.

By design or otherwise, the whole lot found its way into the Swiss market where the Germans, never a people to pass up a good thing, bought it at bargain-basement prices.

The spree of purchasing which followed has rankled the Italians ever since. The "touring" Nazis, with money that cost them almost nothing, bought food and clothing until there was hardly any left. They bought art objects wherever they could find them, not from any intrinsic appreciation but because inflation is an ever-present threat. They bought jewelry until the Italian government was compelled to impose the most rigid restrictions on the export of any precious metals to any one, including their German allies.

Bought New Share of Hatred. More than all these, however, the Nazis bought a new share of hatred, a new measure of undependability, and added a new bruise to one of the most painful of the multiple sore spots which plague the new order.

Italy as an ally is almost useless, except for the geographical base it provides for the occupying German forces. "When in Rome do as the Germans do," runs the 20th century version of an ancient line.

Whenever it has served the Nazis' purpose they have placed the interests of the Italians secondary or even farther down the list. So eager are the Germans to make an arrangement with the French that they have assured Vichy the Italian claims on France will not be considered, except possibly for face-saving and otherwise unimportant concessions in Africa.

In November when reports were current that Petain and Mussolini would meet one French official scoffed at the rumor. "What, he asked, with elaborate gestures, would be the use."

"Mussolini would say, 'We want this and this and this.' The marshal would say, 'No—c'est fini.'"

The contempt with which the Germans treat their "allies" is colossal. Once when the Italians beat the Germans by a couple of hours to the announcement of a Hitler-Mussolini seance at the Brenner Pass, the Foreign Office spokesman was badgered about it at the daily press conference in the dingy, paneled Wilhelmstrasse room where Bismarck formerly met his cabinet.

Reply Coolly Polite. The reply was coolly polite. There had been a "misunderstanding."

But when the formal conference was ended, the Italians were herded into a smaller room and told what they would and would not do in the future in tones and terms that penetrated most of the building. German investive is peculiarly blunt.

How securely based are the ties between the Nazis and their Japanese allies is likewise dubious. When the then Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka visited Berlin last April, he spoke in the glowing and most general terms and promised nothing. He was a headache to his Axis hosts from the moment he began his journey until his return to Tokyo.

Dr. Leonard Named Dean of Women at C. U.

Dr. Eugenie Andrus Leonard, assistant professor in the department of education at Catholic University, has been appointed to the newly created post of dean of women at the school, the Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector, announced yesterday.

At the same time, Bishop Corrigan made known that Dr. Leonard will plan a considerable expansion of the teaching and advisory service in guidance.

Dr. Leonard, a field in which she specializes. The enlarged program will include additional academic courses in guidance, the setting up of a model psychometric laboratory and creation of a demonstration guidance library.

The advisory service will function principally in counseling other Catholic schools on their guidance programs, particularly in regard to tests, personnel records and new technique developed in the subject.

A graduate of the University of California and Columbia University, Dr. Leonard was dean of women at Syracuse University from 1930 to 1935, initiated a city-wide program of guidance in the high schools of Portland, Ore., in 1938, and a year later was a special research coordinator for the guidance and information service of the United States Office of Education.

guage until the war was ended. It provoked the explanation from the Foreign Office, which didn't see the humor of it at all, that the Nazis "would use the medium of the enemy whenever it served their needs." When Matsuoka signed a non-aggression pact with Russia on his way home, it surprised and enraged the Germans, whose plans for their Soviet venture already were far along.

In Rome Matsuoka ostentatiously telephoned an American diplomat while the Germans and Italians fumed and tried desperately to keep their tempers. There is at least ground for suspicion now that the literal-minded Japanese, urged by the Nazis to get into the war, got into it on a scale and with a vigor that far exceeded the German program, for in one brief afternoon their attack jarred America into unity and action as nothing else could have done—a circumstance the Nazis were most eager to avoid. ### Enemy Aliens in U. S. Ordered to Get Out of Vital Areas

Thousands Must Leave California Water Fronts and 27 Other Sectors

By the Associated Press. Mass movement of thousands of enemy aliens out of vital defense areas is being ordered by the Justice Department on recommendation of the Army and Navy.

The first such order, issued last night, forbids German, Japanese and Italian to remain in waterfront areas of Los Angeles and San Francisco after February 24. Several thousand aliens will be affected. Relatively fewer aliens live in 27 other sectors covered in orders being issued today, effective February 15. Other areas are to be designated from time to time.

A total of 1,100,000 Germans, Japanese and Italians are resident in the United States and must apply next month for certificates of identification. They will be required to answer questionnaires designed to show whether they might act against United States' interests through inclination or because of family ties.

Germans, Japanese and Italians in the eight States of the Western command—California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Montana, Utah, Arizona and Idaho—must apply for certificates of identification next Monday. Those residing elsewhere in the United States must apply between February 9 and February 28.

They will receive small booklets, similar to passports, which will bear their picture, a fingerprint, signature and description. These must be carried at all times. The certificates will be distributed by mail and must be delivered by postal carrier to the alien in person.

Roosevelt Asked to Make Defense Areas Dry

President Roosevelt has been asked as commander in chief of the armed forces to extend the ban on alcoholic liquor applied to Honolulu and vicinity to all areas of war and defense production.

The request was made in a resolution by the National Temperance and Prohibition Council which has concluded sessions at the Methodist Building.

The council, representing 26 leading church boards and national temperance organizations, commended the Government for its prompt action in banning liquor after the Pearl Harbor attack.

Declaring that "the American people are willing to make any sacrifices," the council asserted, however, that they are "unwilling to recognize alcoholic beverages as essentials in winning the war. The conservation of manhood is vital."

The council also appealed to the Federal Communications Commission and the National Broadcasters' Association to ban radio advertising of alcoholic beverages, commending newspapers and magazines that reject liquor advertising, declared social use of liquors a menace to national life and opposed the employment of women where alcoholic beverages are sold and the sale of such beverages in grocery stores.

The retiring president, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of New York City, was succeeded by Dr. John Coleman, head of the department of social science of Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa. Other officers elected were: Vice president, George W. Crabbe of Baltimore; Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Evanston, Ill.; Bishop A. R. Clippinger of Dayton, Ohio; secretary, Miss Elizabeth A. Smart of this city; treasurer, D. Leigh Colvin of New York.

D. C. Couple May Face Philippine Starvation

The heroic exploits of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fighters on the Batan Peninsula of Luzon have served to obscure the plight of two Washingtonians and several other Americans on the Philippine island of Cullion. It is, however, a critical one.

Cullion is the home of 6,000 lepers and several hundred physicians who are now reported facing starvation since the Japanese invasion has cut off contact with the outside world. The Washingtonians are Dr. and Mrs. John Harold Hanks, the former, a professor of bacteriology at George Washington University. They left for the leper colony in July, 1939. Dr. Hanks' task as an associate of the Leonard Wood Memorial Foundation, was to cultivate and study the minute micro-organism which causes leprosy.

The Red Cross, it was stated, has asked the Tokyo government through the Swiss government to permit a shipment of rice to Cullion.

Indians Believe Dance Brought on 'Air Raid'

By the Associated Press. ZUNI, N. Mex., Jan. 30.—Zuni Indians, whooping it up in a war dance, were afraid they had overcome things after a bomb-like object whistled out of the sky and landed nearby with terrific force. After a week of waiting, and no explosion, they've finally come to believe that it wasn't a bomb but a meteorite.

Fishing Colony Views Aliens' Expulsion as 'Cross of War'

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30.—Orders for all enemy aliens to leave water-front areas by February 24 came as another "cross of war" to Italians along colorful fishermen's wharf, where activity has been brought to a virtual standstill by Army and Navy restrictions.

"Maybe it's another rumor, who knows?" said Nino, as he patted the gleaming white belly of a big crab and pushed it into the boiling water. "Where they want us to go? Times not so good here, anyhow." Nino is an Italian. He cooks crabs and lobsters in a big pot on the sidewalk in San Francisco's famed fishermen's wharf. It has been his job for more years than he can remember, putting the live crabs into the salted water after it reaches the boiling point, cooking them for 20 minutes, and then selling them to tourists and San Franciscans. The Government already has refused permission for alien fishermen to take their boats into water they fished for years. Army signs marked "Detour—United States Army Traffic Only" have cut down on the number of cars that drive up to the sidewalk stands or park before the numerous fish grottos. As far as the new order is concerned there was no unanimity of opinion as to its possible effect. The Government said to move out all Italian, German and Japanese nationals along the entire water front from China Basin to the Presidio reservation boundary line. Some officials estimated it would rout approximately 1,400 Italians from the 2,000 men employed in San Francisco's $500,000-a-year fishing industry. Thousands Affected. The ruling may hit some 186,000 aliens in the Western States, including 76,000 Germans, 48,000 Japanese and 61,000 Italians. Nino thinks that about 300 fishermen were stopped from going out to fish by the Coast Guard when war was declared. The Coast Guard thinks that figure is high. Only some 25 boats went out yesterday to fish for crab and they belonged to citizens. Rails Declared Able To Increase Service. By the Associated Press. PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 30.—The railroads can handle 30 per cent more passengers with present equipment if the war should force abandonment of private automobile transportation. A. T. Mercier, president of the Southern Pacific Co., believes.

Castro Brings Latin Works Into Place of Prominence

Guest Conductor and Marisa Regules, Argentine Pianist, Score Highly in Symphony Orchestra's Concert

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The vivid personality of Juan Jose Castro as he directed the National Symphony Orchestra last evening at the Pan-American Union made this concert event unique in the annals of the Union. It linked the art of north and South America in the presence of the noted Argentinean conductor-organist in the presence of the Capital city's own orchestra and by a program which brought the finest works of Latin-American composers to a place of prominence besides those of Bach, Franck and the American Aaron Copland. This timely gesture of friendliness expressed in music took place in the Hall of the Americas where the hospitable atmosphere created by the Union has done so much for the better appreciation of the musical art of the neighbor republics.

The soloist of the program was the prominent Argentinean pianist, Marisa Regules, who was heard in Cesar Franck's "Symphonie Variations" for piano and orchestra. Miss Regules gave a brilliant performance of this exacting work in which her extremely facile and crystalline clear technique and full, sonorous tone made a profound impression. The diminutive pianist scored a pronounced success as was recalled repeatedly finally playing Castro's difficult "Danza" as encore.

Mr. Castro is a dynamo of musical energy. In his directing he fairly pictures the meaning and the effects he desires for the men who will produce them by the intensity of his feeling and by the minute care he bestows upon the smallest detail. The electrifying power of his authoritative beat, his fiery tempo and his expert play of color had the orchestra keyed to a high pitch and the result was music indelible and recalled. In spite of the ardor with which he drew from the musicians such whole-hearted response, he exercised restraint in the matter of volume, striving rather for finesse in the handling of the tonal palette and offsetting it only occasionally by full sonority of sound.

The transcription for orchestra of three chorals by Bach, which was the first programmed number, showed the individuality of his conception in these contrasting organ works. His emphasis on the wood-winds and the muted strings, which he favored, gave the music an elevated quality more spiritual in feeling. Its nobility was lifted from ponderous breadth to a more ethereal plane with a note of mystery overshadowing it. His gift for subtlety, for the creation of telling effects by the simplest means were also present in the "Arrabal" from his "Sinfonía Argentina." In his writing as in his conducting, he registered his biggest moments unobtrusively pointing them with a sudden dramatic outburst. "Arrabal" is a highly descriptive work with an emotional undercurrent strongly expressed.

Mr. Castro's reading of Aaron Copland's "An Outdoor Overture" was so clearly defined and so sympathetically of the character of the new and fresh stamp on the work. A follower of the modern school in his own composing, he is sensitively alive to hidden meanings and disclosed a wealth of beauty in the American composer's highly interesting work.

The program concluded with two numbers from the pen of Argentine composers, Aguirre's "La Huella" and "El Gato" in Ansermet's arrangement and Ginastera's "Suite" from the ballet "Panambi." The latter had four subdivisions—"Claro de luna sobre el Paraná," "Lamento de las doncellas," "Rosa de las doncellas" and "Danza de los guerreros." The imagination, skillful construction and beauty of thought evident in these works was again a revelation of the character of the talent of musicians in the Southern countries and our small acquaintance with it. Mr. Castro has been instrumental in making it known both by his own artistry and his choice of programs.

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

The Madman of G Street

It may be that some of the boys are worrying their pretty little heads needlessly when they cry out against the lack of stamina and the softness of modern youth. At least, it's a cinch they never saw Mad Matt Zunic.

Matt is a young man who is winding up his varsity basketball career at George Washington. It is a lead-pipe cinch that he will set a new scoring record for the downtown school. Zunic isn't playing on the best quint in the country but virtually every enemy coach who has seen him in action admits that Mat Matthew could make—and star on—anybody's team.

Zunic is 6 feet, 2 inches of skin and bones but he can play 40 minutes of the hardest, most fierce basketball you ever saw. He never stops. It's pound, pound, pound every minute. That's the main reason why he has scored 146 points in 10 games and why he leads in the Southern Conference in shooting.

That's the main reason because there are better floormen—not to be confused with floorwalkers—around these parts. There are better passers and, from afar, better shots. But Zunic outdigs the rest. He runs ragged the two and three men assigned to guard him a game. Some way, somehow, he fights to get his shots. It is significant that he is the perennial local leader in drawing foul shots.

Zunic Is a Bargain-Counter Courtman

We asked Publicist Johnny Busick to help explain this startling young man and Mr. Busick, an honest person at heart, was forced to admit that Zunic was sort of a bargain-counter courtman. A sort of an Alsab, so to speak. "He comes from New Kensington, Pa.," Mr. Busick relates. "George Washington was after a high school star named Pierre Hartman. When we landed him we were so elated we didn't pay any attention to Zunic, who came along, too. But Hartman flunked out of school in a hurry and Zunic... well, you know the rest."

How Mad Matthew generates that amazing stamina is beyond Mr. Busick and, to tell the truth, a constant source of wonderment to the other G. W. players. The way basketball is played today it's like running full-speed on a treadmill. There are no times out after goals. It's dig, dig, dig, and even the old graybeards, who always insist that rowing and the 440 are the toughest tests in sports, manifest growing admiration for modern basketball players.

It's pretty hard, you know, for a boy to attract unusual attention on the court at George Washington. This is because ever since Coach Bill Reinhart came here from Oregon in 1935 the Colonials have been in the national picture. And you don't build nationally ranked teams out of stumblebums. Reinhart's had some great players.

Reinhart Won't Make a Comparison

There were, for instance, Tommy O'Brien and Art Zahn and Jack Butterworth. There was Forrest Burgess, too, who goes back quite a few years. It is Burgess who is holding the scoring record of 544 points for three varsity years and who is about to be passed by Zunic, who has 539 already and is almost certain to wind up with 650 or more.

Zunic always has been a big point scorer. As a soph he scored 150. Last year he counted 243. But he isn't "shoot crazy," either. This can be proved when the G. W.'s licked Maryland last Saturday to win the local title. He shot only 13 times from the floor and dropped half a dozen.

Ernie Travis of Maryland, his chief rival, shot 23 times. Reinhart calls Zunic one of the best in the country, but he won't compare him with O'Brien, the Irish lad who captained the crack team of 1937-8. At that time Bill said that O'Brien was the best captain he had ever had in 16 years of coaching sports.

"You can't compare them very well," says Reinhart, "because they are entirely different types. O'Brien was the smart, cool, brainy leader—never ruffled or hurried. He was like another coach on the floor. Zunic has terrific competitive force. He's not the long-shot O'Brien was, but he's better, at close range. Zunic will go around you with his speed whereas O'Brien was more likely to fake or outsmart you."

Does Mad Matt Belong With All-Timers?

Over at George Washington they are saying that Zunic belongs on any all-time local team, in case anybody is thinking of organizing an all-time local team. We wouldn't know about this, but it seems safe to say that it will take a little digging to find five better players than Mad Matt.

Bode Berger, the Maryland all-anything, would almost have to be put on such a team. There wasn't anything Berger couldn't do with a basketball. For that matter there wasn't much he couldn't do with a football or a baseball except, in the latter case, hit a good professional pitcher's curve.

During our little span in sports there was a fellow we still remember. His name was Ray Foley of Catholic University, another of those all-anything guys. We couldn't imagine a better pair of guards than Berger and Foley in collegiate ranks.

Fred Rice was before our time, but they say he was something to see, too. And there were some pretty fair Johnny's at Georgetown, some more at G. W., and the Harveys, Longs, Ronkins and Chalmers of C. U. and Maryland. It's quite a job, weeding out the five best. Any suggestions?

Georgia Tainter Bids For Bigtime Fame in Miami Links Final

Gains Revenge Beating Louise Suggs, Takes On Dorothy Kirby

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 30.—Making her first real bid for national golfing fame, attractive Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. Dak., faced Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., today in the 36-hole final of the Miami Biltmore tournament.

Miss Tainter, whose best previous efforts were in the North Dakota State tournament, which she won twice, reached the final here the hard way. She met Louise Suggs, Southern champion, from Lithia Springs, Ga., in the semifinals and managed to reverse the decision the Georgian gained over her in the semifinals of the Punta Gorda tournament last week. She won 4 and 2, and had a 37 on the first nine.

Miss Tainter scored the first eagle of the tournament on the 415-yard eleventh, when she chipped in from the edge of the green for a 3.

But Miss Kirby, Georgia State champion at established star, was even more impressive in her semifinal match. She walloped Mrs. George Wilcox, Jr., of Miami, 7 and 6, with the help of a 36 on the front nine.

His last big assignment in the professional ring was in 1928 when he refereed Gene Tunney's farewell bout against Tom Heeney at Yankee Stadium.

Program Brings Practically All Into Pastimes

De-emphasis Step Seen As Real Solution for Smaller Institutions

By HENDRIX CHANDLER, Wide World Sports Writer.

CONWAY, Ark., Jan. 30.—Any college looking for a way to remodel its athletic program because Uncle Sam is getting its fleetest and brawniest can take a few pointers from Little Hendrix College, which de-emphasized intercollegiate sports experimentally a year ago.

With an enlarged intramural program, this Methodist institution of some 500 enrollment has increased student participation in sports from 52 to 93 per cent for men and from 30 to 86 per cent for women, while its sports deficit reached no more than the usual $200 a year.

And, war or no war, Athletic Director Ivan H. Grove believes the de-emphasis program was coming anyhow for the smaller colleges.

"The smallest colleges simply can't carry the load," said this veteran of 16 years' coaching experience at Hendrix.

"Nearly all the smaller schools have been losing money, and even some of the larger colleges and universities have been having a hard go of it. The intercollegiate sport simply is too expensive for the returns you get."

Football Loses $100

The Hendrix experiment involved dropping intercollegiate football, which lost something over $100 in 1940, although it produced $1,460 of the institution's sports revenue. Income from the grid sport came largely from a pro-rata share of student activity fees.

Measuring the returns from student participation in football alone, the figures are five to one in favor of intramurals. There were 27 men on the 1940 football squad, which played a 10-game intercollegiate schedule, while 120 were active in six-man intramural football in 1941-42.

And what was the reaction in a student body that annually steamed itself up over games with such grid mighties as the Universities of Mississippi and Arkansas?

Here's Grove's observation: "I believe there's really more enthusiasm and interest in sport on the part of the student body than before. I'd just like you to see the school get worked up over the annual freshman-sophomore football game and some of these intramural basketball games."

"I have heard over and over again this statement, 'You know, we don't miss football like I thought we would.' Another statement voiced by many is, 'I've really enjoyed Hendrix more this year because I feel that I'm more a part of the college than I was last year.'"

Research Precedes Change

Hendrix didn't rush into the de-emphasis program, Grove said the college undertook the change after three years of study and research on the part of the institution's Policy-Making Committee.

The purpose in adopting the new plan, said Hendrix President J. H. Reynolds, was to provide a more wholesome and stimulating program than the old spectator sports type, in which only a small number of men actively participate.

The intramural program is all-inclusive. Students are assigned to classes suited to their individual needs and interests, as shown in observations during a physical training program required during the first two years. In these courses, certain skills are taught for group and individual sports.

If a student is eliminated from active physical training classes by some deficiency, then remedial and corrective classes are provided.

Sports on the 1941-2 program include tennis, golf, six-man football, roller hockey, volleyball, table tennis, golf, tug-of-war, track, softball, ball casting, pocket billiards, wrestling, boxing, horsehoses, handball, touch football, tumbling, badminton and weight lifting.

"All in all, there are no regrets for abolishing intercollegiate football," Grove summed up. "The faculty is sold on the new plan, the value of the new program, the students definitely are making the most of it and the faculty respects the wisdom of the change and is co-operating wholeheartedly."

Defending Champions Head Record Field In U. S. Ice Meet

LA CROSSE, Wis., Jan. 30.—Ken Bartholomew and Carmella Landry, defending titleholders and favorites, headed a record field of speed skaters who worked out today over a soft and slushy ice track for the national championships which start tomorrow.

Bartholomew, the lean and lanky kid from Minneapolis, and Miss Landry, diminutive entry from Fitchburg, Mass., who is one of the most serious trainers in the sport, gave notice they were ready for a sturdy defense by turning in smashing victories in the North American championships at St. Paul last week.

Minnesota, winner of the 1941 team trophy, listed more than 50 contestants, only a few more than Chicago.

Little likelihood of new records over the Pettibone Park Regard oval was seen unless a sudden cold spell should improve conditions.

GETTING HIS REWARD—Lt. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., who won the jumper scurry event with Black Caddy in the final portion of the President's Birthday horse show at Fort Myer last night, is being presented with a trophy by Mrs. Arthur Godfrey.

NOTABLE ONLOOKERS—Gen. Albert Cox and Douglas Fairbanks, movie actor, who now is a lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Noted Horsewomen Are Losers As Prince Tex, Rocksie Falter

Men's Team Goes Faultless in Last Round Of Challenge Match at Fort Myer Show

By LARRY LAWRENCE.

The spirit of the riders was willing, but the horseflesh was weak. That, to a degree, explains the defeat of The Star's team of expert horsewomen by a quartet of noted horsemen at the final performance of the President's Birthday Horse Show at Fort Myer last night.

Before a capacity crowd of horse-show enthusiasts, but few movie celebrities, the gamut contestants that ever entered an arena—Margaret Cotter, Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., Mrs. W. Haggin Perry and Sara Bosley—tried all the arts of matchless equestriennes to encourage their mounts—the peerless Rocksie, the brilliant Hi Ho, the giant Thunder Boy and the dauntless Prince Tex—to rise to the occasion and surpass the best efforts of four gallant steeds ridden by opponents who had ability, luck and everything else that goes with a winning combination.

Men's Horses are Faultless. Entering the second night of the match but a half point back of their rivals and confident of turning the tables the women's team saw the captain of their adversaries, Maj. C. E. McClelland, ride his great Smacko to a faultless round. Up came "Thunder Boy," with Betty Perry aboard, to let his rider down with a refusal at the hog's back then finish the rest of the course with a clean performance.

Then came Sam Bogley" with Ringmaster. The ex-crus horse just can't seem to lose in the Fort Myer ring. Ringmaster rounded the course without fault. Hi Ho, with Mrs. Hughes up, came along and took all the barriers in stride.

When Lew Dunbar, the Eastern importation, ridden by Gordon Wright, also accomplished the circuit without fault, the best left for the women's team was a tie for the evening. Prince Tex, ridden by Miss Bosley, like a petulant child, refused to try, and Rocksie, with Margaret Cotter up, had four faults.

Women Score 7 Faults.

That was the end, a score for the evening of nothing for the men and seven for the women. Score for the two-day match was 13½ points for the men, 20½ for the women. The Defense bond presented by The Star to the low score holder of the women's team went to Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr.

Fencing cleanly over a course so tough that but few of the 38 entries could negotiate it, Lt. and Mrs. David Wagstaff's top-flight Enterprise, under the expert hand of her owner, won the featured open jumping class with one of the best single performances of the show.

For the second time in two nights the Hughes family, Lt. and Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, Jr., proved that they possessed about the fastest and handiest jumpers in this section. On Wednesday Mrs. Hughes, with her Hi Ho, won the exciting go-as-you-like class, an event in which time counted. Last night it was the lieutenant's turn and he made the best of his chance by racing his eccentric stallion, Black Caddy, over the intricate course of the scurry class in the remarkable fast time of 29½ seconds to score over Hi Ho.

Green Jumpers' Duel Is Keen. Two smart jumpers staged a duel in the green jumper class, Rumm Boogie, a good looking Government mount ridden by Capt. Wagstaff and Anita Mammelle's Caddy's Trump, one of Black Caddy's get, with Bobby Leutbecke aboard. The jumpers negotiated the tricky course without fault, something that 31 other horses in the class could not accomplish.

In the jump off, Rumm Boogie had the better round. The pair-of-hunters class proved one of the most popular events. Combined ownership was allowed in making up of the pairs and the team composed of Ruth O'Keefe's Hygio, ridden by Roland Ridgway, and the Springsbury Farm's Ginnco, ridden by Shirley Payne, showed the way to the others.

Entries of three of the top stables of Virginia had the road hack class with its 41 contestants pretty much to themselves. The class must have been a headache to the judges who finally decided that Mrs. M. E. Whitney's Cherry Bounce, ridden by (See HORSE SHOW, Page C-3)

Courageous Athlete's Award Given Hoppe By Philly Scribes

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Philadelphia sports writers feel that the veteran billiard champion, Willie Hoppe, is the Nation's most courageous athlete.

A plaque in recognition of his 1941 activities, which included a comeback from a sick-bed to win the three-cushion crown, was presented the cue artist at the annual banquet last night.

A special award for courage went to Army Flyer Capt. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., who gave his life to sink a Japanese battleship in the Philippines. "The outstanding athlete for 1941" award went to the New York Yankees' Joe Di Maggio.

It is to be a cash deal and the whole sum was not announced. The Journal said it was understood to be near $30,000.

Hockey Race Tied as Bruins, Bereft of 'Kraut Line,' Bow

By the Associated Press. The New York Rangers and the Boston Bruins were deadlocked at the top of the National Hockey League today and the Rangers owe the Brooklyn Americans and the Royal Canadian Air Force a vote of thanks.

While the Rangers were idle last night the sixth-place Americans snatched a 5-4 decision from the Bruins, who found the loss of their famous kraut line too much to shoulder.

Curb Stalling Batters, Hurlers To Speed Baseball, Zeller Asks

By WATSON SPOELSTRA, Associated Press Sports Writer. DETROIT, Jan. 30.—If baseball is to be fitted to a wartime pattern, General Manager Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers thinks streamlining of the battle of home plate would be a notable contribution.

Zeller has in mind the countless individual battles between pitchers and batters in the course of a major league season. By various time-consuming methods this endless feud has become primarily a war of nerves, and Zeller wonders if it isn't the customer who is greatly irritated.

"There's no reason why major league games should consume two or perhaps even three hours," said Zeller today as he prepared to leave for the special league meeting at New York for consideration of the game's war course.

In addition to having less time for baseball, the customers won't have the patience to sit out an exhibition of stalling by batter and pitcher," Zeller declared. "I think it's time to enforce the rules against delaying the game."

The rules specify that a balk may be called against the pitcher if he consumes more than 20 seconds under normal circumstances in delivering the pitch. There are various penalties for batsmen who fail to stick to business at the plate.

With league presidents instructing their umpires to give strict interpretation to the code, Zeller believes games may be curtailed to 90 minutes or perhaps an hour and three quarters. Then afternoon fans would get home to warm dinners, and operators of night ball would conserve the power supply.

"Twilight" Game Nothing New. Perhaps Zeller's ardor for less waste motion in baseball arises from his recent suggestion that the Detroit club try twilight ball to permit day-shift workers to attend games.

"Twilight ball?" several fans chorused. "Why, that's what you had last year with a midafternoon starting time."

Zeller believes that twilight ball, however, will change the players' notions on importance of the time element in baseball.

"Why, if the umpires tried to speed up the game in the past," he declared, "the dugout jockeys would complain, 'What's the matter, ump, get a heavy date?'"

Chance at Louis Spurs Pastor, Lesnevich

Winner Tonight Apt To Box Champ for Title in March

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Out at Camp Upton, where they make soldiers out of guys named Joe, Pvt. J. Louis Barrow is going to have a lot of fun tonight while Gus Lesnevich and Bob Pastor pound each other all over Madison Square Garden's ring.

For, there is a good chance that the winner of this 10-round tea party may be served up to Pvt. Barrow in a couple of months. And the only dish the private is fonder of than fresh fried chicken is a platter of hopeful heavyweight, served hot or cold.

The chief incentive for rapid Robert and rugged Russian from Jersey in the present proceedings is this chance for the winner to get his ears knocked off in March, when Pvt. Barrow comes back to the wars. Of course, there is a small matter of cutting up tonight's gate, which Promoter Mike Jacobs figures may touch $25,000. But both of the battle-scarred gladiators are more interested in the big shot that lies beyond.

Now there is no written guarantee that the fellow who walks out with all the marbles tonight is going to have a chance at Louie, since Pastor has a February date with Lem Franklin, who was no pushover when last heard from, and Gus is slated to defend his light-heavyweight championship in the not-too-distant future.

However, Promoter Mike has promised both that the winner will receive "first consideration" when it comes to picking the name of Joe's next victim out of the hat.

At this writing, the gambling guys figure that brave citizen will be Rapid Robert. In the better Forty-ninth street price-making parlors, they're laying 5 to 8 Pastor adds sturdy Gus to the list of fellows he took apart during 1941.

This corner casts its vote that way, too.

Maryland, Catholic to Swing for Kayoes in Boxing Virginia, Miami Tomorrow

Quick Endings Needed For Triumphs, Hosts' Ring Coaches Feel

Kyszewski-Cameron Go And Jones-Barnett Tilt Spice Two Programs

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.
Maryland and Catholic University pillow-punchers will swing from the heels and shoot for knockouts tomorrow night when they square off with Virginia and Miami, respectively, in the feature collegiate attractions of a lean sports week end.

"The best fight is the shortest in my book," Bobby Goldstein, Maryland mentor said today. "The sooner you get rid of 'em the less chance they have of tagging you with a lucky punch and the less chance the referee has of making a mistake on his scorecard. We'll take our time tomorrow, watch for an opening and let 'em have it."

At Catholic U. Coach Eddie LaFond echoed similar sentiments, although not sure which side will do most of the knocking out in his match.

"I suppose we'll be the underdogs and that suits me fine. We would like to catch them off guard and cocky, but I'm afraid Billy Regan (Miami coach) is too smart for that."

Dropping Close Ones Is Specialty With Episcopal Five

Coach Busk Male of Episcopal High's basket ball team wouldn't be a bit surprised to wake up some morning and find his blond hair had turned white. That might happen if the Maroons lose many more close games as they did in going down before Staunton Military Academy, 35-36, yesterday, especially when a close one such as that follows on the heels of a similar 1-point loss to St. Paul's.

Episcopal had a slim margin most of the way, leading at the half, 17-14, but a streak of hot scoring by Staunton's Jack Muse and Ted Tanner near the end put the visitors in front. Muse and Episcopal's Tom Hamill each earned 12 points to share individual scoring honors.

Angel Keeps Prestige With Rassling Win Over E. Dusek

Maurice Thillet, alias the "Angel," can twang his celestial harp content in the knowledge that he's still the No. 1 man on the blue network of the wrestling game.

Thillet, who resents the red network "angel" intrusion on his happy hunting grounds, tossed Ernie Dusek last night at Turner's Arena before a packed house to keep his rating as the No. 1 flocked attraction of the circuit. He flopped on Ernie after 34 minutes of work, finishing him with a body press.

In other matches Emil Dusek won from Pat Fraley when the latter withdrew after suffering a hand injury; Gino Garribaldi won over Cowboy Luttrell by disqualification, and Ace Freeman and Maurice La Chappelle took the two-man team match from Herbie Freeman and Stanley Pinto.

Basket Coach Orders Time Out to Catch His Breath; County Fair Tracks Operate on Coast

Wide World Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Future book notes: Sports scribes are speculating on the possibility that the major leagues will go back to the old schedule system of fewer interseasonal tours and longer series now that railroad fares are going up. Most traveling secretaries think they can get accommodations without much trouble, but higher costs are something else. Chances are the subject will be considered at next week's meetings. Wonder what kind of a ration card New Orleans will get for its Sugar Bowl?

G. W. and W.-L. Court Teams Promise Heated Struggle

Carry Similar Records Into Tilt Tonight; Presidents Tough Victims of Western

George Washington High of Alexandria and Washington-Lee of Ballston renew a heated athletic rivalry tonight at Alexandria in the first of their two basketball dates. The tilt figures to be close, with the rivals carrying nearly identical records in the game, scheduled for 8 o'clock. A lightweight contest is slated at 9:30 p.m.

The Generals have won seven and dropped five games and G. W.'s standing is six and four. Both play in the Virginia Class A Conference and tonight's clash will go a long way toward deciding the Northern Virginia leadership. Fairfax High also figures in the sectional conference, but both of tonight's principals have topped the Rebels.

The visiting Generals will depend upon proven performers, with Bob Phillips, Courtney Owen, and Jim McNally as the most consistent scorers. Others in the starting lineup probably will be big Buck Newsome and Maynard Tishart.

G. W. will be strengthened by the return of Johnny Shelton, last year's captain, who has been working at school until this week, but this is balanced by the loss of Marty Foltz, star forward, who received a leg injury in yesterday's game in which Western topped the Presidents, 23-17. An x-ray today will reveal if the leg is broken.

Trailing at the half, 8-12, G. W. staged a rally that tied the count at 16-16 in the third period, but Western, led by Swanson Moore, drove ahead with a last-period spurt. Moore took scoring honors with eight points while Paul O'Brien was best for G. W. with five.

Lindstrom was manager of the Knoxville, Tenn., franchise in the Southern Association last year.

St. John's 'Iron Men' Pile Up Lead Early To Nip Eastern

Two victories in 18 hours has St. John's "iron men" basket ball team once again ahead of the 500 mark in the athletic prospect of staying there for the rest of the season.

As in their victory over Gonzaga on Wednesday night, the Johnnies used only six men yesterday to nose out Eastern, 35-33. Again it was the same story of piling up enough early lead to withstand late rurs. The Johnnies led all the way, 16-6, in the first quarter, 26-13, at the half, and 27-21, hitting into the final eight minutes.

The Johnnies tallied only one point in the third quarter as Eastern earned eight to begin its closing drive, but they got 8 more in the final period, which proved just enough to head the Ramblers, who were in the game, faddy threatening to tie the game. Paddy McCreary of St. John's tied with 11 points, one better than Eastern's George Piggott.

CAVALIER LEADER—Kenneth Rathbun, captain of the Virginia boxing team, which will fight Maryland at College Park tomorrow. He's a versatile athlete, having also won his letter in track and football. ## Crown Ready to Defend Title In Burtner Pin Tournament

Arlington Star to Head Big Field at Hall; Chesapeake Beach Event Honors Shaffer

Arthur Crown, member of Arlington Bowling Center's pennant-contending District League team, will be the defending champion when the fifth annual Hap Burtner Handicap is staged Sunday at Convention Hall. With an approximate handicap of 70 pins based on his average in the all-star circuit, he carried a good chance of repeating.

Named for one of the city's leading bowlers of years ago who now presides over the hall's big span of drives, the 10-game tournament, one of the standout attractions on the local bowling calendar since its creation here in 1938, again promises to lure a record-breaking field of Washington and out-of-town contestants. O. Mowbray of Richmond was the runnerup in last year's field of 120. Bo Micciotto, King Pin star, was third; Norman Schroth of the Elks, fourth, and Frank Mischow, fifth.

Wootton Young, president of the Convention Hall Co., will sweeten the kitty with his usual $100 donation. Top prize will be $200 and the entrance fee, $6.50.

Bowlers will be allowed a two-third handicap with 128 scratch. A squad will start firing at 2 p.m. with a second shift scheduled for 4:30.

All tomorrow afternoon and night roads from here to Chesapeake Beach promise to be filled with bowlers on their way to and from the first Dutch Shaffer tournament which gets underway at 1 p.m. at the Calvert Bowling Center, summer-time duckpin rendezvous of numerous Washingtonians.

Shaffer has sponsored many men's and women's bowling teams in the last several years. A $100 prize will go to the winner of his tournament, a seven-game affair.

Assistant manager of Northeast Mall shepherds the dribblers to Key W. Va., for a tilt with Potomac State Teachers.

The Explorers knocked off Potomac by a 55-41 margin earlier in the year and should have no trouble, but the boxing team may find the going harder.

Columbus' pillow pushers were held to a draw by Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers in their debut last week, when Charles Cox, unable to make the trip, forfeited the 165-pound bout. But Jack Golumb, Lou Taub, Bernie Jackson and Roy Crombie, all of whom won, were impressive, and Miller looks for improvement in future engagements.

Nutmeg State's Largest Delegation Competes At Hall Tomorrow

Schoolboy Fives Risk Streaks in Tilt at Charlotte Hall

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE STAR.
CHARLOTTE HALL, Md., Jan. 30.—Two of the longest winning streaks in Southern high or prep school basket ball will be matched tonight when Charlotte Hall, sometimes known as Frank Cady A. C., puts its string of 12 games against the 18 owned by Colonial Beach High.

The Cadets, led by Cady, a Washington boy, have rung up 448 points during their victory streak, with Cady alone responsible for 158 in the 10 games in which he has played. Aiding Cady is Al Ruh, a pint-sized guard from Lexington, Ky., who has a 117 total, and together they are rated by Maj. W. A. Stephens, Cadet coach, as the best scoring combination he ever has seen.

Goal Heads Urged to Restore City Title Tourney, Open It to Public Linksmen

Pay-as-You-Play Performers Declared Unjustly Ignored

District Association, Meeting Next Week, May Increase Executive Committee

By WALTER McCALLUM.

Final golf association annual meeting of the winter season will be held Tuesday night at the University Club on 16th street, with the solons of the District Golf Association scheduled to settle the much discussed question of the District links championship. Due to come up at the meeting is another matter that may make the District association more completely representative of local golf. This is a proposal to enlarge the Executive Committee by choosing one man from each of the 14 member clubs. Dr. Thomas Uitz of Indian Spring is to be elected president of the District organization. He has served a year as vice president.

Not long ago the Executive Committee adopted a recommendation to the annual meeting that the local amateur title tourney be cancelled this year. This action came despite the fact that neighboring links bodies—the Middle Atlantic and Maryland associations—have a k'd normal golf schedules this year.

Not Popular Action.

The action of the District solons hardly can be said to be popular with the rank and file of men who compete in the tournaments. Many of them can see no reason for cancellation of the District championship at this time, suggesting that it should be scheduled, and that later if conditions warrant cancellation that step can be taken.

The proposed cancellation does not sit well with many of the men who play in these tournaments. Many of them have told us that inasmuch as they have played in the District championship for years they feel they should have a voice in settling the question of its fate in this year. But by and large the tournament competitors do not attend the annual meeting of the association. They have no vote in the decisions that affect them. The decisions are made by men who in the main do not play tournament golf.

In the middle of the winter a tournament of the following caliber seems a long way off, and inconsequential when viewed against the backdrop of bigger things that are happening. And the District tournament isn't a major affair. It is only a city championship, and perhaps not even a true city chamampionship at that. But it should be carried on just the same.

Should Invite Public Links Boys.

To make it a true District of Columbia championship the solons of the association would do a good job to invite the winner and runner-up in the public links championship of this year to compete in the District title tourney, if they change their minds and hold the event. It isn't likely a public links lad would win the tournament. Dick Jennings, the reigning public links champ, has not yet proven that he can win tournaments against the best of the private club group. And Dick is (or was in 1941) the best of the boys playing public links golf.

The point is that the public links lads should have a shot at the District title. They've been denied that shot a long time. There have been vague questions as to "what will happen to our championship cup if a public links player wins it?" and so on. The championship cup of a public links golfer won it, wouldn't have to go to East Potomac Park or Rock Creek Park or anywhere else. It could be held by the secretary of the association.

Public links golfers, by and large, play the pay-as-you-play courses because they cannot stand the expense of golf at a private club. But that does not mean they are any less golfers or good sportsmen. We know of many men who play public links golf who can well afford to belong to country clubs, and some who play the public layouts who do belong to private clubs.

But generally the boys who use those courses do so because the "put" of country club golf is a little high for slim purses. That, in our book, doesn't make them pariahs, or men not worthy of playing in the District championship. They should get a boost up the ladder. And how they would appreciate the chance to play in the title tournament!

Early Gridiron Drill At L. S. U. May Help Men for Service

Draftees Would Be Set Physically, Declares Head Coach Moore

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 30.—Coach Bernie Moore already has called his 1942 L. S. U. football team together for "spring" practice, and if some of the boys are drafted before fall—well, they'll be in condition to fight, anyhow.

Serious work will start Monday and end March 18—three days before spring actually arrives.

"We have a coaching staff capable of handling the present squad so we plan to go ahead as usual," said Moore. "If we lose some men after we get started it won't be a waste of time because we'll have conditioned these men for Army and Navy life."

Already the Army has taken L. S. U.'s trainer, C. F. Striplin, and George Schwab, manager of the fieldhouse, who were first lieutenants in the Reserve.

Even without the draft, Bernie will have to do some patching to make up a team. About seven of his 1941 regulars graduate.

However, an outstanding freshman crew will furnish some excellent material.

Successor Earns Phelan's Praise

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Jimmy Phelan, former head football coach at the University of Washington, today voiced his approval of selection of Ralph (Pete) Welch as his successor.

"The guy is the salt of the earth," Phelan said.

"Sixteen years with Phelan should make him smart," Phelan predicted, the 35-year-old former Purdue halfback, Phelan's assistant for 12 years, would make good in a big way. He played four years under Phelan at Purdue.

20 Years Ago In The Star

Clark Griffith ended speculation about the price of Shortstop Roger Peckinpaugh, who recently came to Washington from the Red Sox, by reporting he cost $50,000 cash, in addition to three players, Frank O'Rourke, Jose Acosta and Bing Miller.

Charles Paddock, known as the world's fastest human, declared he is through with track competition and will not run for Southern California this spring. He holds numerous records, including the 100-yard dash mark of 9 3-5 seconds.

Eliot, New Illinois Grid Coach, Quickly on Job, Optimistic

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 30.—In vast Memorial Stadium, built during the pre-Orange era of Bob Zuppke-coached Illinois football team, Zuppke pupil named Ray Eliot will direct the University of Illinois griders next fall.

With spring football drills scheduled to begin shortly, Eliot today plunged into his new duties with the declaration:

"We will start right away to get things in shape for next fall. We have a great bunch of kids who love to play football, and it's going to be our job to mold them into a real team."

Just 6 years old when Zuppke began his 29-season reign here in 1913, Eliot held the position of line coach when his appointment was announced yesterday.

There was elation on the campus at the sudden announcement, for presumably it meant the end of a four-year period of athletic wrangling. The 72-day coach hunt came to a conclusion when members of the Athletic Board agreed on Eliot.

In some corners both Illini and non-Illini inquired: "Who's Eliot?" Part of the explanation for his relative obscurity is the fact he went through school as Ray Nusspickel, adopting the name Eliot only a few years ago.

Many Illinois graduates recalled the Ray Nusspickel, who, despite the handicap of glasses, played on the football teams of 1930 and 1931 and was a catcher on the baseball team. Eliot has been intensely popular with members of the football team. On several occasions players had demanded that the Athletic Board elevate the line coach, who served at Illinois College for five years before he came here in September, 1937.

Humbling of Hershey Dims Bruin Hopes For New Talent

By the Associated Press.

If Manager Art Ross of the Boston Bruins is planning on getting any help from the Hershey Bears of the American League now that his famous "kraut line" is gone, maybe he'd better not look at today's papers.

Last night the league-leading Bears suffered one of their worst defeats of the season when they dropped a 7-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Hornets, last-place club in the Western Division.

The setback ended Hershey's undefeated streak on home ice at 15 games.

In the only other game the Providence Reds continued their mastery over the Buffalo Bisons by pounding out a 4-1 decision.

His Golf Luster Gone, Guldhall Gets Poor Rating in Crosby

Ex-Open Champion Plays in Lower Group Today; Stars Start Tomorrow

By ROBERT MYERS.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif., Jan. 30.—Golf's cycle of luck has an odd way of turning. That's why Ralph Guldhall leads an array of less renowned players into the first round of the $5,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament today.

The overcrowded entry list was split, the first division playing its 18 holes today and the second half going out tomorrow in this sixth annual links battle.

Saturday being a better day for attendance, the name players, including Defending Champion Sam Snead, Benny Hogan, Byron Nelson and company, swing into action tomorrow.

Sill Out to Regain Stride.

Guldhall goes today, but whirl that cycle of luck back to 1937 and 1938 and you'd find the National Open champion of those consecutive years a star-studded regiment in the special attraction class.

The tall, slope-shouldered fellow from Texas has shown but infrequent flashes of the Guldhall of Oakmont Country Club in Michigan in 1937, and it's been many months since he's looked the same in perfection, who plodded to a repeat Open triumph at Denver's Cherry Hills.

He labored years in obscurity before reaching that peak, however, and there is no reason to believe he won't regain his stride.

He could do it in this tournament, because he's playing over a course he adopted two years ago when he bought a home in Rancho Santa Fe. Whether his cycle is ready to spin remains to be seen, however.

Snead 3-Time Winner.

Snead won the tournament for the third time last year with a 36-hole score of 67-69-136, and Craig Wood finished with 69-68-137. Hogan, sensation of the California winter tour, had rounds of 69-70-139, tying Nelson, Jimmy Demaret and others in tied bracket. Guldhall had a pair of 73s.

Snead plays with the tournament host, Crosby, and Hogan and Comedian Bob Hope round out the featured foursome of pros and amateur partners tomorrow.

His Back Healed, Herman Signs Dodger Contract for $18,000

Veteran Thinks Training Trip to Havana This Year Would Prove Interesting

By JUDSON BAILEY.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 30.—Billy Herman, streamlined by 8 pounds during the winter, but still looking plump, has recovered from the back injury that took him out of the World Series and is ready to resume at second base for the Brooklyn Dodgers any time—and any place.

The 32-year-old star infielder arrived yesterday from his home at New Albany, Ind., and in a short confab with President Larry MacPhail signed a new contract.

He was the first player to take advantage of the club's invitation to some of its higher salaried Dodgers to come to Brooklyn to discuss salary terms and he was believed to have signed for approximately $18,000, the same as he received last year.

"I did about as well as I expected," he commented.

Herman said he had heard of the recovery over whether the Dodgers should train again in Cuba, but added he was not worried by any thought of danger.

"I like it in Havana. I don't care whether we go by boat or by plane and in fact the boat trip might be more interesting right now," he said. "I weigh 183 pounds with my ice skating and playing basket ball around here."

Herman twisted his back in the fourth game of the World Series and his absence from the lineup in the last game gave the Dodgers an added handicap in their final stand against the Yankees.

His home is near Louisville and he reported that Shortstop Peeewe Reese is just as "enthusiased" as he is for the start of the baseball season. Reese is expected in Brooklyn in a couple of weeks.

Pitchers Hugh Casey and Kirby Higbe and Outfielders Pete Reiser and Tom Tatum previously have come to terms.

OUTDOORS With BILL ACKERMAN

D. C. Anglers Luckless in Miami Tournament; Largest Sail in Derby Weighs 83 Pounds

During the opening weeks of the 1941 Miami fishing tournament, Washington anglers had nearly a dozen entries on the board. Three were in top place for as many different species, while the balance were runners-up or in the show position. This year we fall to note a single Capital entry. The same is true of entries in the Palm Beach Derby.

Because Washington fishermen aren't in the running it doesn't matter if they are not there and trying.

Alan M. Ferguson, fishing with Capt. Dee Sanderson out of Palm Beach, hooked and fought an even 30 sailfish. The average size was just about normal, the largest approximately 80 pounds, but 13 were fought on six-thread line and 17 on nine-thread.

We'll bet our last good rod Alan had far more fun than if he had hooked a large fish on the regular 18-thread line used almost universally for sailfishing, and particularly in competitive fishing where they aren't given the chance to break off. He ate his piscatorial cake and kept it, too, for every last one of the sails were released.

Largest Weighs 83 Pounds.

Largest sailfish of the derby is an 83-pounder, just 19 ounces less than the leader in the Miami tourney, which also is the leader in the 1942 Ruppert contest, if it isn't called off. The Palm Beach fish will be in second place.

There is an exceptional run of kingfish along the coast. It's best, from reports, from Hobe Sound to Palm Beach, but Miami fishermen aren't doing so badly, either, from the boats or piers.

Eagles Hope to Rout Jinx as They Face Johnstown Club

Bluebirds Have Beaten Capital Hockey Team In 5 of 7 Contests

One day a bum and the next day a hero is the way Washington's hockey colony is rating Goalie Craig McClelland of the Eagles. On the receiving end of loud boos only last Tuesday when the Eagles went down before the New York Rovers, 11-3, McClelland the next night found all was forgiven when he turned in the whole Eastern League over which the Baltimore Orioles, 4-1.

He gets a chance tonight to continue as a hero when he takes his post in the nets against the Johnstown Bluebirds, a club with a real jinx for the Eagles, at Riverside Stadium. This is the only team in the Eastern League rating currently above the Baltimore Orioles, 4-1.

One ended in a tie.

Tonight's game easily could be a battle of goalies because the Bluebirds carry with them one of the real Eastern League stars in Goalie Frank Ceryance, who has an especial knack of stopping Washington drives. Even with the Baltimore Orioles two seasons ago he was a special pain to the Eagles and is responsible more than anything else for the third-place rating currently enjoyed by Johnstown.

Aside from Ceryance, Hank Dyck, Johnstown forward, also figures to be in the Eagles' way tonight and rates third among the league's scoring leaders.

If we were bread bakers

We'd ADVERTISE... APPETIZINGLY... FRAGRANTLY... STUBBORNLY... CONSTANTLY...

..... and we'd tell the readers of THIS newspaper, in their HOMES, the things they'd want to know about the BREAD we bake.

We know that they buy bread because it is a universal food certain to satisfy HUNGER; because it is one of the great foods that people can eat three times daily, for a lifetime, without tiring of it; because it is certain to give them vitality and strength; certain to build up a fighting resistance to the wear and tear of working; satisfying, delicious, to old and young, to living men, to those in sedentary occupations; and finally, because it is within the means of all.

So, we'd make a better loaf of bread, a richer, bigger loaf; we'd make it weigh the limit; we'd make it the finest we could make.

Then, we'd tell our world around here what we had done. 'I would be of no use to do it unless they knew it, believed it, liked it.

We'd use ADVERTISING in THIS newspaper, we'd keep it constantly, and in one year from now, or two at most, we'd be leaders. Is that so much to pay, too long to wait? Isn't it exactly opposite, astonishing, short, in time?

We'd set our sails to make them think favorably of our brand whenever they thought of bread. We'd cease stubborn, impregnable preference for our breads, a belief in everything we'd say or do.

To do that... we'd tell at intervals that we were immaculately clean... we'd make every person know that all the flour and salt and milk and sugar and butter, all the leavenings, all fruits and jellies and nuts or all of anything that we use... were of highest quality and no need to give a second thought.

We'd stop at intervals to tell of our scientific, smarter, modern ways to mix and blend and stir and bake... till all the things we made made hungry folks our friends, forever.

We'd tell how concerned we were about the health of those who ate our bakery goods... how we added the energy, the vitamins... and the fragrant, appetizing tastes... to satisfy... small racing children, growing romping sturdy teen-age youngsters, men in business, folks not wholly well, laboring men, folks on diet; everybody... and we'd tell the ways we'd supply a full complement of vitamins, and foods and calories... for almost every need... :

For it is what a man or woman thinks, and believes, that makes her call her grocer and name this brand of bread or that brand of bread; it is what she thinks that makes her reach in the market unerringly for the brand of bread she prefers; and it is what she thinks that makes one or two or three great brands the leaders among all the rest.

..... and we'd sell because we'd make whole families everywhere know us, and like us, and believe in us; we'd make them PREFER the brand of breads WE sold... :

..... if WE were BREAD MAKERS in THIS man's town.

To Save Precious Fabrics, Women to Don Uniforms Only if Job Requires It

Remember 'Victory Fashions' As a Term Which Describes Our Patriotic Clothes

By Helen Vogt

Six months ago, any one who said to this department, "Have you heard about 'Victory fashions'?" would have been cheerfully attacked by said department with paste-jar, bookends or any other handy, heavy object. But that, as we have said, was six months ago, when the "V for Victory" slogan was being put to some mighty poor uses. Now when the term is applied, as it was so aptly the other day, we are likely to perk up our ears and ask to hear more, for fashions are going to undergo a change, not only because of increased emphasis on functional styles, but also because many of our beloved fabrics and accessories are needed for the armed forces.

Recently interviewed on the air by Meredith Smith, Mrs. Alice Perkins of Women's Wear Daily spoke logically and informatively about these "Victory fashions"—a term, we might add, for whose origin Mrs. Perkins deserves full credit. Fortunately, these fashions are not the extreme, useless sort of things that the name once might have implied.

For example, manufacturers now are working on "victory foundation garments" which contain little or no elastic. There is no reason why efficient and practical garments cannot be made without using precious, much-needed rubber which could help us on to victory. Stockings come under the same heading. Rayon, cotton and silk and plain cotton ones are arriving in the stores now, many of them good looking and all of them far more "patriotic" than either silk or nylon. Also expected to come into its own is the use of unbleached muslin for summer frocks, and there's even some talk of fabric conservation through the revival of patchwork. As Mrs. Perkins points out, a beach coat or play dress of patchwork would be as smart as it would be patriotic. And why not?

But most important of all is the problem of uniforms for women doing defense work. Except in cases where women hold full-time, important jobs, it seems unnecessary to put them into uniforms. Of course, where it is necessary for a woman to be identified with her defense job—as in a case where she works with great numbers of civilians—uniforms are important and necessary. However, the business of every office worker going into uniform is going to cut down on fabrics that might be put to better use in clothes for soldiers and sailors and others in all branches of the service. So, if you've found that you can't get a snappy defense office uniform or you feel that you can't afford it, remember that you're doing your duty by appearing at your work in a smart little suit or well-tailored dress, thus releasing the fabric for those who really must have it.

tinguished ladies. The pin, which is a symbol as it is good looking, is an enameled gadget with the flags of the 21 republics waving above an inscription, "Amigos Siempre"—"Friends Forever," to you. Royalties from the sales of these pins go directly into a scholarship fund for exchange students, and the label gadgets will be on sale in stores here and in South and Central America.

Regret Dept.: Sorry, too, that we couldn't dash up to New York for the opening of the Latin American Fair at one of Manhattan's best known department stores. Here in some 60,000 square feet of space in the store have been re-created buildings, shops, houses and general atmosphere from the Latin American countries, and here will be sold merchandise typical of these "good neighbor" lands. The opening at which Mrs. Roosevelt was present, was, we understand, a gala affair. What with a special train to New York, orchids flown up from Venezuela and police escorts to take the party from their hotel to the store, it couldn't avoid the gala atmosphere.

But why, oh why, do we always have to be somewhere else?

Among the women who really will find uniforms necessary for their part in civilian defense are the hospital aides, whose attire is a crisp, starched white apron over a blue and white striped chambray dress. For these ladies, who insist upon being as feminine as they are efficient, one firm has designed a clean, crisp quality that's appealing without being "overdone" or super-sophisticated.

Teach Child Not to Be A Gossip

Take Firm Stand When Tendency First Appears

By Lettice Lee Street

Seven-year-old Sue came home from school a very sulky small miss. She pouted and drooped around the house until her mother asked, "What is the matter, child? Why don't you go next door and play with Jane?"

Sue switched her brief skirts and answered petulantly, "I won't play with Jane any more."

Her surprised mother asked, "Why?"

"Oh, I don't know," pouted Sue, "but Jane takes all my new paper dolls and she won't play the games we like at school and nobody likes her any more and she copies the other kids' arithmetic pages and do you know what?"

Sue's mother's eyes snapped, but she controlled herself and did not allow her irritation to creep into her tone. This is what she said to Sue:

"If these things are true they are of no interest to me and they should not be to you. If Jane takes your paper dolls you should ask her to return them. Right over there on the sofa is a doll of Jane's, perhaps she thinks that you have taken it from her."

"It is very unkind to repeat to any one an unpleasant thing that some one else has said."

"If you cannot say nice things about your friends, do not say anything at all."

"If you are going to be a tattletale the children at school will soon find out and then they will not play with you."

"Whether you want to or not, I shall not allow you to play with Jane for a week, nor can you go to her birthday party."

Sue was so absolutely amazed that she did not start to cry for a moment or so. Then the storm burst, she protested that she was sorry, she begged to be allowed to go over to see Jane, but her mother remained adamant.

Now I hear that this was the first and last attempt on Sue's part to be a tattletale.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Today's title—"Debunking My Readers."

There are certain beliefs about health and reducing which are without foundation. Here are some of them.

1. That lemon juice taken after a heavy meal lessens the fattening effect of said food. It has no effect at all.

2. That vinegar taken daily will reduce one. The only way this could act as a slimmer-downer is to affect the digestive system detrimentally to the point of loss of appetite. This certainly is not to be recommended if you value your health.

3. That it is hard on the heart to sleep on the left side—Due to the protection of the ribs and muscles, it makes no difference which side you sleep on.

4. There is a prevalent idea that certain foods do not mix, thus causing abdominal distress and nausea or indigestion.—If a food agrees with you by itself, it will agree with you in any combination. If you have an illness, don't attribute it to food mixture but to some internal condition in yourself or to food that was not as fresh as it should have been.

5. That green apples give one a stomach ache.—The stomach is just as capable of digesting a green apple as a ripe one, the main difficulty being that the tart, unpalatable flavor of green apples causes us to chew them less than ripe ones. They must be mixed with saliva to be properly digested. (Authority—Dr. August A. Thomen).

6. That one can reduce by excessive perspiration. You do lose temporarily, due to loss of water, but you can gain it all back by drinking water.

It Is Essential for Girls to Learn How to Support Themselves

If I could say one word more earnest than any other to teen-age girls, it would be to urge them while they are still in high school to decide on some trade or profession by which they can support themselves and to begin to prepare themselves for it. I would implore them not to think of their future in terms of romance and roses and millionaires who will marry them and bear them off to live in palaces, but as a hard proposition which will be harder still if they are not prepared.

It would like to make these little cuties realize that the best happiness insurance that any woman can take out is to be able to earn her own bread and butter and cake, for it is only the woman who can stand it on her own feet who is not crushed by the trials of life. The incompetent woman, the helpless woman, goes down under misfortune and is ground into powder. So I would say to these girls: Daughter, if you want to be happy, if you want to be successful, get busy and get busy more than in vague yearnings after the whistness of the what. Get down to brass tacks and try to decide what you really want to do in life and, more particularly, what you have the ability to do. Then get going. Don't let chance decide your fate. Don't let a stenographer because Mary Jane is doing it. Don't go behind a counter just because Uncle Tom offers you a place as a saleswoman. Study your aptitudes and see what Nature cut you out for, and follow the wise old dander's plan.

The things you like to do are the straws which show which way the winds of success will blow for you. Did you always stand at the head of the spelling class? Then stenography is your dish. Have you personality and a gift line of talk? Salesmanship is for you. Have you magic in your fingers and an eye for color? Somebody is waiting to pay you big money as a milliner and dressmaker.

Choose your job to your liking and then perfect yourself in it. You will have to work just as hard and just as long hours for a small job as you will for a big one. The difference in your pay envelope will depend upon your skill. A poor cook gets a few dollars a week. A famous chef hundreds. Make up your mind which you want to be. It is up to you.

Prepare yourself for whatever work you undertake as if you knew you were going to do it the balance of your life. The reason so many women fail in business is because they regard their jobs as just a bridge between the schoolroom and the altar, so what's the use in bothering to do a thing well that they only expect to do a short time?

But the catch in this is that you never can tell about marriage. Maybe you will get a husband who can't support you. Maybe you won't get a husband at all. Maybe your husband will fall ill and you will have to be the breadwinner. Maybe he will die and leave you with a household of little children to care for. Many a widow, many a married woman has far more need of knowing how to make money than a single one has. And many an old maid finds a fat pocketbook a good substitute for a poor husband.

Naturally, daughter, you look forward to getting married and living happily ever after. Good! Then begin in the schoolroom to study domestic science. Make yourself a crackerjack cook. Learn how to juggle a budget. Beauty will fade, wit will pass, but a man's appetite never grows old. "Feed the brute" is still the best recipe ever given for retaining a husband's love. Also being an expert cook and housekeeper gives a woman a trade by which she can always make a living if the necessity comes upon her. The women have made fortunes out of boarding houses than ever did in being movie stars or writing best sellers.

And finally, daughter, having a good trade which you can cash in on is the best protection you can have if you are unfortunate enough to marry a brute. The helpless, dependent woman has to endure whatever treatment the man she is married to accords her. Not so the woman who is self-supporting. She can put on her hat and walk out if her husband fails to treat her as politely as she would his secretary.

Think over what I have written here, girls, and begin to plan your future life. It is not a day too soon.

Disposable tissue dusters are practical and economical. They come in a cardboard box, are cedar treated and as soft as silk. You will find them excellent for polishing furniture, silver, woodwork and even your automobile. . . .

A wire basket containing two bath towels, two guest towels and two washcloths is an ideal gift for the bride-to-be. Lovely velvet ribbon in two contrasting colors is wound around the basket to make it a pretty offering as well. . . .

In place of your present door bell button install one which lights the house number and name plate, operates any bell or chime and consumes very little current. This article is ideal for the homes of professional people such as doctors and dentists. . . .

A new fruit and vegetable slicer is very handy, for there is no waste and the variety of designs is unlimited. The surface of the slicer is fluted, which prevents the fruit or vegetables from sticking together, and the gadget is made of unfinished wood and metal. . . .

A large collection of Chinese curios is on display in a local shop. The collection includes such articles as metal incense burners, wooden chop sticks, miniature paper and ink stones, salad spoon and fork sets, cinnamon containers for cigarettes and many other items. All are inexpensive. . . .

Key chains made of vinylite come in clear, brown and blue to match the smart-looking belts of the same material. . . .

While they are still available, purchase a supply of lucite closet accessories. There are specially designed hangers for men's suits, ladies' coats and skirts, and ones for evening frocks. Also included in the assortment are hangers for fur neckpieces. These are particularly nice as they eliminate the damage of the scarf being cut. . . .

French baking shells in medium size are excellent to use when preparing deviled crabs. They are hard-wearing and are comparatively inexpensive. . . .

Crochet a Simple Doily

By Baroness Piantoni

This pattern really offers the opportunity to make two sizes and two types of lace mats. The larger size, as you see it shown above, has an unusually pretty border crocheted around a starlike center. In size 20 cotton, it measures 14 inches in diameter. The star center alone, finished with a dainty picot edging, is considerably smaller and just about the right measurement for use on cake or bread plates.

Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for the above. Send 15 cents for pattern No. 1389 to the Needlework Editor of The Evening Star.

Patriotic Note

NEW YORK (AP).—The women have made names for themselves in the history of America as to become names in fashion.

A silk mill has issued its spring color card, with each shade named for an American woman famous in our history. Examples: You may soon be wearing a dress of "Pocahontas pink," "Molly Pitcher yellow," "Virginia Dare gold," "Clara Barton red," "Betsy Ross blue" or "Martha Washington purple."

For Sweater Girls

The wearing of sweaters usually limited to sportswear now extends into the evening hours. One manufacturer recommends a style of very soft yarn in pastel colors. It's a bare midriff sweater, similar to those you've seen with slacks and shorts.

Omelet

When making an omelet, allow 3 eggs for two servings. Add 1 teaspoon cold water or milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper for each egg.

Delicious Apples

Apples baked in pineapple juice are delicious. Peel and core the apples, cover them with juice and bake until soft.

Time Saver

It will save to save time, dry scallops with a cloth, roll in meal and let them set in the refrigerator for a few hours before cooking.

Take Contractor's Advice

Correct Trouble at the Source When Rain Seepage Is Serious

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: We have a house which is just two years old. The basement never has dried out properly and every time it rains, water runs down the walls and forms pools on the floor. I had hoped to use a waterproof paint on the inside to prevent this but I understand from a contractor that the waterproofing must be done from the outside. Is this correct? How will we go about this job?

Answer—The advice of the contractor undoubtedly is right. Leakage as serious as this must be corrected. Washington is not complete at the inside walls of the house. It will be necessary to excavate down to the foundation line all around the house. The foundation walls are then waterproofed with a mixture which looks like thick tar, drainage is installed to carry the water away from the foundation and then the dirt is backfilled. This is a troublesome job but I am sure you will never enjoy a dry basement until this is done.

Dear Miss Nowell: Do you think blue walls on a north and west living room will be too cool? I would like to get a rose rug to go on the floor. What color could be used for wall paper in an adjoining room with a brown rug on the floor?

Answer—I think a better arrangement would be the other way around, with soft rose, plain walls in the living room and the blue rug on the floor. In this way you will not get quite so much blue. Then use a figured, matching wall paper in rose shades in the adjoining room, which will be very nice with the plain brown rug and you may repeat the blue at the windows there.

Dear Miss Nowell: Would you suggest some way to "pep up" some very dull cream-colored calomined walls which form the complete interior of my apartment? R. C. A.

Answer—Wall paper borders will help a lot. Also among the newest tricks are stenciled borders and swags. These are especially lovely where an over-door and over-window design is incorporated with a narrow border which continues all around the doors and windows. "The sky is the limit" on what you can do with this idea if you are energetic. You may buy stencil patterns or design your own.

Dear Miss Nowell: I have heard that there is a solution, in which materials may be washed that will render them non-inflammable. Do you know what the chemical is and if it may be purchased for home use? H. G.

Answer—Ammonium sulfamate "CM" type is the chemical used, but information on the method of preparation and its availability in

Bob Taylor De-Emphasized In Capitol's New Picture

'Johnny Eager' Finds Novel Passages In Its Presentation of Lana Turner as A Student of Sociology

By JAY CARMODY.

M-G-M's program of de-emphasizing Robert Taylor's profile by putting him in tough roles moves along 10 or 12 reels in "Johnny Eager," at the Capitol Theater this week. It moves only semi-entertainingly, we regret to report, but the studio was capriciously inspired to take your mind off that—if you have that kind of mind—by casting Lana Turner in the same picture as a sociology student.

Miss Turner is virtually the last girl you would expect to find in the sociology course and it is most amazing how much her presence there increases her fascination. It is rather like finding Herbert Hoover in a football picture which stars Jack Oakie.

Even with freedom in its present precarious condition, of course, Miss Turner is entitled to take up sociology, or even become an astro-physicist if she had the whim.

The arresting thing about it is that it somehow seems a waste, or misuse, of talents. Sociology always seemed to be getting along without Miss Turner, whose aptitudes, at a rough guess, would seem to lie in other directions. Moreover, it is a bit terrifying to find girls like her taking over sociology, which was one of the few things left to the girls with long hair and horn-rimmed spectacles.

All of this by no means is to imply that Miss Turner moves through "Johnny Eager," morbidly jotting down notes on social conditions. Metro did not waste her that far, you can bet. She happens to be a kind of sociology student who goes in for field work, in this instance the fertile field in which Taylor is operating as a handsome, cold, cruel criminal, whose bitterness against the world leaves him almost speechless.

The first glimpse they have of each other virtually demolishes both of them. The difference between them is that she recognizes it as love while he, disillusioned fellow, does not believe in even that. This difference in verbiage naturally is not enough to separate them, or modify their combined explosive powers.

It is not to the merit of "Johnny Eager" that its story moves in the standard groove of gangster pictures. The lawless elements are always fighting each other, pulling those coldly daring bluffs with guns in their ribs, and when they are not doing that they are fighting the law itself. It invariably has the appearance of being something that you saw just the other day, although not with Miss Turner and Taylor necessarily. You know just how all the strands of the story are going to fit together down to a final scene in which the tough guy, his heart breaking, socks the girl and throws her into the rich boy's Duesenberg.

Carole Lombard's Film To Be Shown Soon

But Producers Are Discouraging Revival of Her Older Pictures; Deanna Just Misses

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

Carrying a tasteful foreword by Director Ernst Lubitsch, Carole Lombard's last picture will be released in about two weeks. Meanwhile, United Artists artists are considering a number of titles, with the prospect that "To Be or Not to Be" may be replaced by something less grimly ironical and more in keeping with the rollicking nature of the story.

There are no fears of fan apathy toward the film. On the contrary, it is looked upon as a potentially great moneymaker. Dating back to the death of Rudolph Valentino, posthumously released movies have attracted exceptional business.

The Producers' Association, together with theater groups throughout the country, are attempting to discourage the revival of Carole Lombard's older pictures. A stampede along that line set in immediately after her death and the industry officially went on record as opposing attempts to capitalize on an event that saddened not alone the film business but the entire Nation.

More tough luck for Deanna Durbin. What many consider the best movie of her career, "It Started With Eve," released last October, was shut out of a Hollywood showing until too late to qualify for academy award consideration. It has been shown in almost every other leading center of the country and already has found a spot on most "10 best" lists.
