A system of daily progress reports whereby "bottlenecks" in the war production program can be detected at a glance has been adopted by the War Production Board, Chairman Donald M. Nelson disclosed today.

Described by Mr. Nelson as "one of the most important steps we have yet taken in the entire war program," the system will keep up-todate records on each of some 300 principal military items being produced by American war industries. It was devised by Stacy May, chief of the W. P. B. Progress Reporting

Senate Sends Giant Navy Bill To Conference

Unanimous Vote Approves 261/2 Billions For Planes and Ships

(Earlier Story on Page A-2.) By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate this afternoon passed unanimously without a roll call the biggest appropriation bill in history, giving the Navy $26,495,265,474 to speed the building of planes and ships for its war on the Axis.

Action came after two hours of ebate, during which only one minor change was made in the details as reported from committee by Senator Overton, Democrat, of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee. Senate approval of the big Navy bill came less than a week after Congress sent to President Roosevelt a $12,500,000,000 supplemental Army bill, most of which was for 33,000 planes. The vast Navy supply bill now goes to conference with the House on the $6,500,000 added by the Senate, largely for planes. As it now stands the bill provides for 25,063 planes, of which 1,709 were in the House bill and 23,354 were added by the Senate. Counting ordnance to arm the planes, the total for aviation in the bill is $8,000,000,000.

Eight Billion for Ships. For continuing work on surface approximately $8,000,000,000.

The bill covers the 17-month period ending in June, 1943, and contains some contract authorizations beyond that date. The Senate appointed the following conferees to meet with a like group from the House on changes: Senators Overton, Glass of Virginia, Thomas of Oklahoma, Green of Rhode Island, Walsh of Massachusetts, Lodge of Massachusetts and Holman of Oregon. Pointing out that this one bill for the Navy exceeds the total public debt at the close of the first World War, Secretary LaFollette. Progressive, of Wisconsin, said this comparison gives some idea of the cost of this war. In opening the debate, however,

Senator Overton said that in considering the size of the bill Senators should bear in mind that the nation is engaged "in total war-in a fight. to the finish—against resourceful and cunning opponents," and that half-way measures will not suffice.

Senator Overton added that the fleet action against Japanese bases on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands was only the "opening gun of the American Navy in the great battle in which we are now engaged." Lifts Limit on Admirals.

Over Senator Overton's opposition, Senator Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland won approval of an amendment removing the limit of nine on the number of flight admirals who could receive extra compensation for flying. Senator Tydings argued that Congress has placed no limit on the number of flight generals in the Army with extra pay and that the Navy should not be required to divide its flight admirals

Senator Overton objected to the port on tanks. The latter will show whole system of extra pay for flying production of tank hulls, motors, officers, said he would give serious consideration in a later bill to abolishing the practice, and contended the Tydings motion merely multiplies an existing error. Corregidor Attack Smashed. The War Department announced yesterday that Gen. MacArthur's embattled Army had discovered and smashed extensive Japanese preparations to capture Corregidor fortress, in Manila Bay, by a great

U. S. Fleet Attack Hints Full-Scale Pacific Offensive

By the Associated Press.

A slashing sea and air attack by the United States on the mid-Pacific flank of Japan's broad hop-skip-jump offensive raised today the probability of a fullfledged American offensive in the enemy's vulnerable island man-"Our planes," the second officer dates timed to ease the siege of Singapore and check the pressure on the Netherlands Indies and Australia.

By the attack on Japanese bases in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands the Pacific Fleet was believed to have recovered a considerable measure of the striking power lost at Pearl Harbor December 7.

It was, so far as has been reported. the first time American bombs have fallen on Japanese territory. Amid fierce fighting United States surface and aircraft sank or severely damaged many enemy fleet, auxiliaries, shelled and bombed vital shore installations and destroyed numerous enemy planes-all at a cost of 11 American aircraft missing, two surface vessels slightly damaged and personnel losses which were officially estimated to have been light.

No Big Enemy Combat Ships Found. The only disappointment for the American forces was indicated in the Navy's statement yesterday that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific Fleet, had reported that "no large enemy combatant vessels were found.

How much the Pacific Fleet must step up its flank attacks to ease the imminent threats to Singapore Java and Australia was a major question in secret Pacific strategy, but all signs were that the attempt was The official Japanese account of the Gilbert-Marshall attack said United States aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers made up the American planes were shot down. The Japanese belittled the results of the attack, declaring the only damage suffered was to a small blasted three small enemy craft tween occupied Moulmein and Japanese auxiliary vessel, and which appeared yesterday in the the railroad city of Martaban to claimed the firing of a United States cruiser and damage to other ships. Fierce Aerial Fighting. The Navy communique reflected fierce aerial fighting over the Pacific islands, the Japanese apparently putting up a stiffer defense with pursuit planes and anti-aircraft guns than they did with warships or coastal batteries. The United States Navy includes in its classification of auxiliaries such vessels as destroyer, submarine and aircraft tenders, repair ships, storeships, colliers and tankers, ammunition ships and

The Japanese bases which were attacked were on the Islands of Jaluit, Wotje, Kwajaleim, Roi and Taroa, in the Marshall group, and the Makin Island in the Gilbert group. Japan obtained the Marshalls under a League of Nations mandate in 1920. They formerly belonged to Germany. Among them, the principal Japanese fortification west of Pearl Harbor and 635 miles south of Wake Island. The Gilbert Islands lie south and slightly west of the Marshall group. As Price Administrator They belong to Great Britain, but Makin, the northernmost, was occupied by the Japanese December 7. British Fall Back 100 Miles Farther East of Bengasi

Forces of Axis Attack In Great Strength, Cairo Command Says

CAIRO, Feb. 2. - The British have fallen back about 100 miles from Bengasi under attacks by Axis forces "in considerable strength," the Near East communique acknowledged today.

The war bulletin mentioned fighting at Maraua, 85 miles east of Bengasi, and in the Slonta area, which is about 19 miles still farther north-

(Maraua, roughly midway between Bengasi and Derna on the hump of Circulatea, lies east of Barce. which Axis communiques reported today also has fallen to German Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel's troops.)

At Maraua, however, the British said, the 11th Infantry Brigade carried out a successful counterattack "in which many casualties were inflicted on the enemy" and counterattacked also to check the enemy in the Slonta area.

The communique said the 7th Indian Infantry Brigade, which had held Bengasi, fought its way "almost intact" through Axis territory to reach eastern bases, but that engineer and other units left behind to demolish installations in the lost port probably had been captured. Half Billion Loan For China Asked To Curb Inflation

THREE CENTS.

Congress Move to Fulfill Request Expected Today

By BLAIR BOLLES. President Roosevelt today asked Congress to approve a $500,000,-000 loan to China in order to bolster the United Nations' war against the Axis in the Far East. Mr. Roosevelt wrote letters to

Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn asking for swift action, and it was understood a resolution for the loan would be placed before the House and Senate this afternoon. Democratic and Republican leaders from the Capitol, meeting Saturday with Secretary of the Treas-

The administratilon plans to use the $500,000,000 for direct assistance to China in bolstering the internal Chinese economy, which has been severely shaken by the war during the past four years, it was learned. The decision to make the money available was based on reports sent

Decision Sets Aside Decree Exempting Illinois Dairy

The Supreme Court today broadened the scope of the milk price-fixing provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act by holding that milk produced and distributed entirely within a State is subject to the law when it comes into competition with milk that has moved in interstate commerce. The 8-to-0 decision of the court was read by Justice Stone.

The decision set aside a ruling of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals which held that the Wrightwood Dairy Co. of Chicago was exempt from the milk marketing regulations because all of its operations were confined to the State of Illinois -despite the fact that some of its milk came into competition with milk handled interstate. The company had obtained an injunction in Federal District Court freeing it from regulations set up by the Chicago-milk marketing area, which takes in part of Illinois and In-

If, as all reports indicate, the Allies have not enough fighters of the right type to deal with Japanese bombers and their escorts then, in the opinion of most competent experts, the defense of Singapore over an extended period of time is hopeless. Assuming the reports to be true, people here are wondering how such a situation exactly who is responsible.

The Buffalos are excellent planes at low altitudes but do not have the performance Hitler forces inside Germany are of Hurricanes at higher levels, becoming bolder in their efforts to where much of the fighting is bound undermine the Nazi machine, the to occur. Now pilots of Hurrican squadrons which have been in action over Singapore indicate that they are badly handicapped by sheer lack 6 Parisians Executed, of numbers. Today's London Times prints a dispatch from Singapore stating that the "need of reinforcements, especially of fighters, is urgent. More fighters are needed, and needed quickly, to join in fighting over the island." This same dispatch indicates that all the present fighter force is able to do is to "exert a certain deterrent effect." This situation might result in egitimate miscalculation and bad timing if it had not been for experience in the battle of Flanders where for a time four squadrons of Hurricanes were called on to face practically the entire Luftwaffe.

Unevenness of Battle Stressed. Great publicity has been given the unevenness of that battle and it was assumed that the same situation would not be allowed to arise again. Now it has and people are demanding with increasing insistence to know why.

Failure to produce enough fighters of the right type at the right time is also blamed largely for the currangements were made today for rent reverse in Libya. So-called sale of a New York Stock Exchange tank-busters, fighters equipped with seat at $22,000, an increase of $1,000 cannon, are needed to deal with tank advances in open country and range of seats so far this year has in the case of Russia have proved highly effective. Experts have been pointing to this lesson for several months now. Yet the Royal Air Force still lacks equipment of this kind. Before the Allies again attempt to deal with Axis Panzer forces, such machines will have to be produced and it is the common White Sulphur Springs or Hot hope, though not necessarily the general conviction, that the job has been begun.

One of the chief features of the invention, he said, was that it could be folded compactly for storage in the truck or station wagon when not in use, thereby allowing the vehicles to go about their everyday business and still be ready for emergencies.

Navy Having Trouble Keeping Shipyards Going 24 Hours a Day

Senate May Act Today On $26,000,000,000 Appropriation Bill

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Navy is having great difficulty finding enough mechanics to man the night shifts in shipyards building warships, Secretary Knox told the Senate Appropriations Committee in hearings made public today on the $26,500,000,000 naval supply bill. The Secretary called this the "greatest naval war any nation ever faced" and described what the department is doing to speed completion of two-ocean navy.

The testimony was made public as the Senate prepared to act this afternoon on the bill, the largest in history. The Senate Committee has added $6,500,000,000 since the House passed it. In its present form it contains $8,000,000,000 for naval aviation and an equal amount for continuing work on surface vessels. $944,000,000 to Repair British Ships. A $944,000,000 item was asked by the Navy, it was disclosed, to cover requests of the British Repair Mission.
Admiral Alexander H. Van Keu-

ren of the Bureau of Ships testified that a "big item" in American naval yards was the repair of British ships, an expense covered in the past under lease-lend authorization. "That item is the most appre-ciated act that this Government has done for Great Britain," Admiral Van Keuren said.

The admiral said the Navy had investigated the sources of supply and found it could supply British needs without dislocations of its own ship program.

Although the Navy is trying to keep the work shops going 24 hours a day, Mr. Knox testified, the available force of workers is distributed as follows: 60 per cent on the day shift, 30 per cent on the evening shift, and 10 per cent on the late night force.

Third Shift Is the Thorn. "There is great difficulty in getting men to work on that third shift," said the Secretary, "and we are racking our brains for methods and possible plans under which we can enlarge the second and third shifts so as to make for a 24-hour use of all machine tools and facilities. It is not an easy thing to do. It is particularly difficult because of lack of supervisory force (foremen if experience) for the third

In explaining how the manpower supply is spread out, he said if a plant has 1,000 men available, 600 are on the day force, 300 on the early night crew and 100 on the remaining

Navy Has "Stupendous Task." "So that when you come to divide up this one-ocean Navy over all of the oceans of the earth and with all of these problems of adequate protection, you can understand the stupendous size of our Admiral J. H. Towers, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, told of the Navy's goal of producing 18,000 planes this year.

"For the calendar year 1943," he said, "the President's program calls for a total of 120,000 planes, 21,000 of which are scheduled to be Navy While Secretary Knox was picturing the problems of getting fighting equipment to the distant war theaters, he said the difficult problem is to transport the fighter planes that protect the bombers. Large aircraft can be flown to any theater, he said, but fighters cannot be flown "and you cannot convey them. set up, except very extravagantly.' The only practical way to ship them in adequate quantities is to ship them knocked down, he said.

Communiques Japs Lose Heavily In Philippine Thrusts

War Department communique No

88, issued at 9:30 a.m. today, follows 1. Philippine theater.

During the past 24 hours the enemy attacked on the right and left of our troops in Batan. These attacks were repulsed with heavy Japanese losses. This action was a continuance of the fighting which has been in progress during the past few days.

Attacks were launched on the east and west sectors by the 16th and 65th Japanese Divisions, under command of Lt. Gen. Nara. These assaults were co-ordinated and timed to take place simultaneously. Headlong thrusts were made on the west coast, aimed at what the enemy mistakenly thought to be our flank and rear. Picked troops known as Tatori executed simultaneous attacks at points along the coast line, like the fingers of a clawing hand. Captured aerial maps showed the Japanese plan and the urgent character of the mission. There was savage fighting in the underbrush. Our infantry, supported by artillery and mortar fire, forced the invaders back to the coast. Those who drowned. The others were destroyed or captured. In the east sector the Japanese 65th Division attempted a frontal attack and an envelopment in the Pilar area. The frontal attack was made by the 142d Japanese Infantry. A simultaneous attempt at envelopment was made by the Japanese 141st and 122d Regiments of Infantry. The frontal attack was stopped by our artillery fire before it got well under way. The envelopment was repulsed with heavy losses to the Japanese.

All enemy thrusts on the west coast have now been completely mastered. The enemy troops employed in this desperate venture were his best. They were shock units especially trained and selected. They have now been entirely destroyed. They resisted with the courage which is characteristic of Japanese troops, but at the end were glad to surrender. They are being treated with the respect and consideration which their gallantry so well merits.

1. Philippine theater: Several strong enemy thrusts at our lines on the Batan Peninsula during the past 24 hours were repelled. A night attack on our center was thrown back. The fighting was heavy, but all our positions were firmly held. Enemy losses were relatively large. Artillery activity on both sides was heavy throughout the day. An enemy force assembled at Ternate on the south side of Manila Bay, opposite Corregidor, apparently with the object of attempting a landing on our island fortifications. Numerous launches and barges were col-

Says Girls "Misunderstood." As for the potential curfew, that's only a part of the plan to promote efficiency, Mr. Wilson explained. It may or may not be necessary, he said, and certainly is aimed only at the girls who arrive at the office half asleep and bedraggled. "A lot of girls seem to have misunderstood me," he added. "I'm not trying to stop all their dates or recreation. If a girl does not have to work next day, she certainly wouldn't be included in the curfew. And if her work is efficient, I would American lives are at stake is inleave her out. I would apply it only to the girls who are not producing." How such a system could be worked out is a matter that Mr. Mrs. Roosevelt Frowns Wilson apparently has not yet considered. Idle Seattle and Tacoma Workers Are Called To Start Picketing

By the Associated TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 2.-Independent welders were called to picket duty today in their spreading walkout against busy Seattle and Tacoma shipyards, but work proceeded on ships vital to America's war effort. More than 1,000 welders were be-

A. F. L. contract which specifies missal of all men not in good union standing. The welders have protested that they are forced to pay dues to a number of A. F. L. unions as they move from one welding job to another. Shelly Knudsen, new executive secretary of the Seattle local of the United Weldors and Burners' Union. said arrangements were made for picketing several Seattle shipyards today.

Week-end developments included: Thomas Crowe, international representative of the Boilermakers' Union, emerged from a meeting of 3,500 union members here late yesterday with the declaration that "we are getting offers by wire and mail all the time from welders,' and 50 to 300 new men were ready to step into the vacated jobs. All are coming here at their own expense, he added.

2. In Seattle, a meeting of 500 welders voted unanimously to ask Government operation of the shipvards "to protect the welders and insure production." Dave Basor resigned as their executive secretary and James O'Brien as president of the local, declaring they wished to free welders of any charges of personal domination by them.

3. Paul R. Porter, chairman of the Ship Stabilization Committee of the War Production Board, telegraphed Mr. Basor that "a strike in the shipyards while our Nation is at war and

By THOMAS R. HENRY,

DETROIT. Feb. 2.—The last Chevrolet rolled off the line late one gray afternoon last week. The fading light of the winter sun through the grimy windows seemed to the few score workers gathered about to be falling on the closing scene of an epoch in human history. It may be a long, long time before another shining green car,

For the last decade these cars-filled with gas, oil and Veteran engineers and machinists water and all ready to be driven were sad when they watched the products which were the pride of their lives tossed out like so much wherever the long roads beckon-have been coming to the end of the production line at a constant rate junk. The Chevrolet was the product of hundreds of highly specialized machines. Lathes, drills, presses and all the rest have been designed through the years, each for one job and one only—that necessary to produce a part for a Chevrolet. A lathe, for example, was not the sort of lathe one would find in a machine shop or even in a small industry. It was a lathe designed to cut just so much, perhaps a few thousands of an inch, off the top of an engine block, at just the right time in just the right place. For the lathe made to exact specifications for shaving a thousandth of an inch off a block of steel a foot wide and 2 feet long cannot be changed to shave a five-hundredth of an inch off a block 14 inches wide and 3 feet

This is hardly an exaggeration. The machines in the Chevrolet factory were designed to make parts for Chevrolets—parts so exact in dimensions that any one of them made at any time can be fitted into any Chevrolet anywhere in the world. Such a part is absolutely useless for any other purpose. It couldn't possibly be made to fit a

Several Purse Snatchings And Housebreakings Keep Police Busy

Robbery in a church during ervices in which the minister delivered a sermon on "The Importance of Spiritual Values Over Material Values," and a series of purse-snatchings and housebreakings kept police busy yesterday. The church robber entered the first floor kitchen in the rear of the Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut avenue and Jocelyn streets N.W., and departed with the pocketbooks of seven choir members who used the kitchen as a dressing room.

The victimized choir singers were Doris Little, 4701 Connecticut avewatch and $3 in change; Marcia Roberts, an employe of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, $51: Mrs. Gertrude Bucknell, 3900 Harrison street N.W., a pocketbook with her eyeglasses and $1 in change: Mary McCallum, 3622 Ordway street N.W. $1.25: Mrs. Ferne E Phillips 5435 Connecticut avenue N.W., $8; Mary A. Everett, 5409 Thirty-ninth street N.W., $15, and Nancy Jenifer street N.W., $7. Miss Wise is the daughter of the pastor, the Rev. Clarence E. Wise.

Two Boys Held. In another church robbery reported to police, William O. Cooley, 5517 Thirty-ninth street N.W., lost an overcoat valued at $25 from the cloakroom of the Presbyterian Church at Chevy Chase Circle and

Patterson street N.W. Police were holding two boys suspected of participating in a pursesnatching early yesterday at Seventh street and Independence avenue S.W. Catherine Cross, 1701 Sixteenth street N.W., victim of the purse-snatching, said the pocketbook contained $12 in bills and a wrist watch valued at $40. Police later found the purse and the watch in a yard in the 200 block of Eighth

Another Woman Robbed. Another victim of purse-snatching was Mrs. Mary A. Eckard, 2222 I street N.W., who told police the snatching occurred early yesterday while she was walking near her home. The handbag contained $25 in bills, some change and a railroad

Two men were robbed early yesterday by strong-arm methods. Samuel Lutsky, 32 V street N.W. reported that he was waiting for a bus at Seventh street and Rhode Island avenue N.W. when a colored man struck him behind the ear and took his wallet containing $36. William B. Price, 161 U street N.W., said three colored men strongarmed him at North Capitol street and Rhode Island avenue N.W. and robbed him of $23. Ann Vargo, 1234 Massachusetts avenue N.W., reported to police that $70 in bills was taken from her room early yesterday. Her empty purse was found in the bathtub. Also victimized at the same address were Roy Woolbright and Robert Appleton, whoses losses totaled $63.

Democratic Dinners To Be Held Feb. 23, Flynn Announces

Proceeds to Be Applied To $600,000 Party Debt; Main Feast in Capital

By the Associated Press Democratic leaders turned today to the problem of financing the 1942 election campaigns in a Nation preoccupied with war.

Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, announced yesterday that the annual fund-raising dinners heretofore held on January 8 would be staged February 23, the night when President Roosevelt makes his next radio report to the Nation.

Chairman Flynn said the party still owed $600,000 from the 1940 presidential campaign and wanted to wipe this out "in order that we may enter the coming congressional campaign unhampered and able to function effectively, for it is perhaps the most important congressional election in our country's history."

The deficit problem was particularly urgent this year, he explained, because under the Hatch Act the party no longer could follow its former practice of borrowing from banks and repaying the loans from subsequent contributions.

Mr. Flynn did not disclose what would be charged at the dinners. In other years the price has been $100 a plate at the parent gathering in Washington, with more modest figures at those elsewhere in the country. Hitherto the affairs have been called Jackson Day dinners and their early January date has been the anniversary of Andrew Jackson's victory in the battle of New Orleans

The White House announced last week that Mr. Roosevelt would broadcast an address about February 22, Washington's Birthday, to "dissipate poisonous and troublesome rumors" and to give the Nation a better understanding of what the war involves.

Mr. Flynn said that since the birth anniversary fell on Sunday. the broadcast and dinners were set for the following day.

Dispute Disrupts Chicago Electric Rail Service

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.-Service on the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Electric Railroad was disrupted yesterday as union employes of Chicago's elevated lines refused to throw switches for the North Shore trains on the elevated tracks in a jurisdictional dispute.

While through service between Chicago, the North Shore suburbs and Milwaukee was inconvenienced, it was not broken as passengers were carried over the elevated lines to the northern terminals of its trackage and then transferred to waiting North Shore trains.

An estimated 25,000 persons will be affected on business days, officials of the Chicago Rapid Transit Co., operator of the elevated lines, Union officials have declared that they will not interfere with any movements of troops or defense workers. Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station are served by the line.

Priority Problem Created by U. S. Pact With Indians

Priority regulations will have to be stretched a bit to keep America's treaties in good standing. Budget Director Harold D Smith disclosed yesterday that the treaty of 1825 required the Government to provide $320 worth of iron and steel every year to the Choctaw Indians in Oklahoma. He said, as far as the Budget Bureau was concerned, he had approved this payment, along with other annual treaty payments of $1,200 to the Choctaws for other purposes, $4,500 worth of cloth to the six nations of of New York and $30,000 to the Pawnees of Oklahoma.

Gen. Anami, 55, Is Said To Have Ended Life At Hankow January 20

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 2 .-Two defeats at Changsha-in which the Chinese claim 100,000 Japanese fell-have proved too much for the Japanese commander, Gen. Korechika Anami, Chinese reports said yesterday, and the sword-rattling little general has killed himself. Whether he committed true harakiri in the traditional manner of Japanese noblemen and warlords or chose some less conventional manner is not certain. Gen. Anami commanded the in vaders in the second and third battles for Changsha, which turned into debacles. The Chinese said 56,944 Japanese were killed or wounded after the invaders were chased from the central Hunan province city last month. Another 41,150 casualties were claimed in an earlier battle which ended in a Japanese withdrawal last October 1.

Death on Jan. 20 Reported. The 55-year-old general was said to have died at Hankow January 20. He had served at the head of the 11th Japanese Division. Before taking the field, he was director of personnel in the war office at Tokio. To have fulfilled to the letter the tradition of formal suicide, Emperor Hirohito would have sent the general a jeweled dagger with a message couched in gracious terms, suggesting that he die. A ceremonial dias would have been built 3 to 4 inches higher than the floor of his abode, covered with a rug of rich red felt. Then dressed in a special ceremonial dress, the general, with his second, would have taken his place on the dais, surrounded by a semicircle of friends and officials. When the weapon was handed him, the general would have made many obeisances to the Emperor, and then would have plunged the dagger into his left side below the waist, drawing it slowly across to the

The bloody dagger then would have been taken to the Mikado as proof of the general's atonement. None knows though—the genera may have shot himself. Drive New Spearhead.

High Commissioner Early Nailed Japs' False Friendship

By FRANK I. WELLER, Wide World News Service. Washington pauses long at the name of Francis Bowes Sayre, kindly scholar, when it ponders the fortune of Americans trapped in the Philippine Islands.

At present, the United States high commissioner is safe, so far as the State Department knows, or is permitted to disclose. His whereabouts necessarily are secret. Friends say the Japanese, whose false friend-ship he nailed the moment he set foot on the islands, would consider him a prime prisoner. Officials here allow one to assume that Mr. Sayre and Philippine President Quezon were rushed to comparative safety by the military command when it declared Manila an open city. Both dropped out of constantly assuring deliverance and breaking up Japanese broadcasts.

Adjutant General Courses Are Begun At Fort Washington

School Is Transferred From Arlington; 375 Officers Enrolled

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. FORT WASHINGTON, Md., Feb. 2.-Brought here from Arlington Cantonment, the Adjutant General School opened its ninth session today after talks by officers in the Adjutant General's department.

Those who addressed the 375 student officers enrolled for the course included Maj. Gen. Emory S. Adams, the adjutant general; Brig. Gen. James A. Ulio, assistant to the adjutant general and chief of the personnel bureau of the War Department; Brig. Gen. William C. Rose assistant to the adjutant general and Col. H. C. Increase in Volume of Business Felt Already, House Committee Told

By the Associated Press.

Some time next year Uncle Sam's Postal Service, a billion-dollar-ayear business, may be operating at a profit after years of being in the

The estimated $17,414,220 operating deficit for the current fiscal year which ended June 30 may be replaced in the next fiscal year by a profit of $848,000, if no hitches develop, Postmaster General Walker told the House Appropriations Committee in hearings reported today.

Last fiscal year the deficit was $26,963,681 and in the preceding year it reached the high of $41,-

Mr. Walker told the committee the general increase in business volume due to the defense activities already has been felt by the Post Office Department, which, through its 50,500 main offices and branches, handled 28,000,000,000 pieces of mail hast year.

First-Class Mail Pays Way. First-class mail has been handsomely paying its way for years, yielding a profit of $146,815,578 last fiscal year, but other types of service have more than offset the gain. The largest losing item last year was second-class mail, which cost $83.519.756 more than the revenue it brought in.

Of the three types of first-class mail, only air mail now operates in the red, and the $6,961,373 deficit shown in that item last year is expected by postal authorities to be overcome completely by the end of this year due to a steady growth in air mail use.

The hearings showed one of the Post Office Department's biggest current headaches is the increasing use of the mails for operation of endless-chain schemes.

Chain Letters Revived. Chain letters centering around Defense bond sales are the latest development, postal officials disclosed. "They hold out to the persons joining the chain that individually they will receive about 10 or 20 times what they contribute to the chain," Assistant Solicitor Walter E. Kelly explained. "It ultimately results in a fraud because when the chain spreads it comes to the point where the later participants preparations for a last-ditch stand. It was presumed the Japanese would require a few days to reorganize after their long push down the proceeding on the theory the invaders might launch their attack at any hour.

Keep Up Sporadic Fire.

Along the 35-mile front formed by the mile-wide strait which lies like a moat between the mainland and Singapore Island, the British artillery kept up a sporadic fire designed to break the Japanese assault preparations.

From trenches, foxholes and more permanent fortifications machineguns were trained on the narrow strip of water, ready to loose a withering crossfire. Special precautions were taken to guard against surprise attack by Japanese para- wells.

All civilians were withdrawn from the northern part of the island to clear the way for the movements of defense forces; and in Singapore itself military authorities enforced of Britain, Russia and China. His confidence was echoed by King George VI, who sent a message of sympathy and good cheer to Sir Shenton and his people. "While the forces of the empire are fighting so valiantly against an Japs Bringing Up Men enemy greatly superior in numbers, I know all on the island will acquit themselves with the same resolution," the manarch said. "I wish good luck to you all."

A tour of the island yesterday disclosed no signs of panic or despair among the populace, despite the loss of the entire Malay Peninsula to the invaders. On the contrary, morale appeared to be high, and propaganda leaflets dropped by Japanese airmen suggesting that resistance was useless

The withdrawal of civilians from a mile-wide strip on the north shore of Singapore Island was accomplished during the week end with little commotion. Driving their livestock before them and carrying their household goods, Chinese and Malay residents of the area moved quietly to districts farther south.

Some civilians already have left the island, which has a peacetime population of about 750,000 scattered over its 220 square miles. Gov. Thomas said yesterday that as many women and children as desired to go would be removed regardless of race, as long as transportation facilities

To Victory Drive Section 101 Repeats Its.

World War Achievement, Leading Other Rooms

With a rivalry between sections which was based on the records of each classroom in the first World War book drive, Western High School students this morning contributed nearly 7,000 books, the largest gift made to the District Victory Book Campaign.

In one week the 1,200 pupils collected 6,892 volumes. Section 101, with 34 students, collected nearly 1,100 books after Principal Elmer S Newton spurred on the campaign last week by recalling that two decades ago section 101 had led the school in the campaign.

At an assembly last week Dr Newton showed pictures taken at Western High School during the World War and saved by Miss Margaret R. Wallace, physics teacher. One photograph showed students standing on the lawn with piles of books for soldiers in their arms.

When members of section 101 heard that their class had won the campaign in 1918, they resorted to strategy to keep the rest of the school from knowing they intended

Meanwhile boxes, barrels, even a wheelbarrow were used to smuggle 101's books into the basement. When the hundreds of books they had collected in secret were piled by swaggering members of sec-tion 101 on the stage this morning, the average for each of the 34 pupils was 32 books. All of the books could not be placed on the stage.

The nearest section in achievement to 101 had amassed 23 books per student. About 30 of the books brought by students bore "War Service" stickers inside, indicating that they had been given to soldiers of the First World War also.

As soon as the assembly was over books were piled into trucks and taken to the Southwest Public Library branch, Eighth and I streets S.W. There they will be sorted and port of Endau where they were then shipped to Baltimore for distribution to soldiers, sailors and marines through the 3d Corps Area headquarters there.

"I am so thrilled and grateful I hardly know what to say," she declared, "except thank you so much." Ten students from Sidwell Friend's School descended on George Washington University Librarian John Russell Mason this morning, bringing 160 books as their contribution to the campaign here. The District total is now nearly 41,000 books.

Australia Takes Steps To Put New Defense Measures Into Effect

Bombers Lash Out Again At Japanese Forces on New Britain Island

by the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 2. The Australian government moved swiftly today to put into effect secret defense measures decided on yesterday as Australian bombers lashed out again at Japanese forces battling to extend their foothold on New Britain Island in the Bismark archipelago.

A communique said Australian airmen had twice attacked Japanese shipping in the harbor of Rabaul, capital of New Britain, but the results were not immediately disclosed.

The Australian Air Force rethat Japanese scouting planes had dropped bombs in the vicinity of Tulagi, in the Britishmandated section of the Solomon Islands, some 600 miles southwest of Rabaul, but said there were no casualties or serious damage.

Three-Hour Cabinet Session. Disclosure of the adoption of the secret measures to strengthen Australia's defenses against invasion was made by War Minister Francis Forde after a three-hour cabinet session yesterday attended by chiefs Chileans Hail Rios, of the Commonwealth's army, navy and air forces.

The advisory war council was summoned to another meeting today at which it was expected to make further important decisions regarding northern defenses. Indicating the gravity with which he viewed the situation, Prime Minister John Curtin, who had just returned from Perth, canceled plans to go to Canberra for a session of state premiers so that he might attend the advisory council meeting.

Mr. Curtin announced that arrangements had been made to step up Australia's warplane production immediately. He said a program had been decided on to increase production of Beaufort bombers and of a new type of bomber of Australian

Axis agents expelled from Brazil are filtering into Argentina, it was charged yesterday in Buenos Aires, as Mexico rounded up a number of Japanese and the Axis made conciliatory overtures to Argentina.

The Axis representatives sent out of Brazil are entering Argentina through the border province of Misiones, Juan Antonio Solari, member of an Argentine congress committee which investigated subversive activities, declared yesterday.

Addressing a Socialist party rally, Solari urged that the government take speedy measures to control German and Italian aliens making their exit from Brazil as a result of that country's break with the

The Battle for 'Face'

Behind and above the bloody battles now raging from the islanddotted South Pacific to the marshes or India, another battle is going on. This parallel conflict is located in the realm of ideas. It is being fought with the written and spoken word rather than with shot, and shell. But it is none the less important for that. Indeed, the outcome of this intangible struggle will determine the shape of the future quite as much as material clashes between troops, ships and planes.

Those bold gamblers who have mortgaged Japan's destiny in a supreme bid for empire are out for more than provinces or raw materials. They seek to conquer the minds of countless Asiatic millions and bend them to their imperious Being themselves Asiatics, these Japanese leaders know the traditional Oriental formula for conquest, expressed in the one word "face." Our English word needs to be put in quotation marks, because it very imperfectly renders the Eastern meaning which is a blend of three concepts: "Prestige," "dignity," and, above all, "power."

To all Asiatics, high or low, "face" is supremely important. To gain much "face" is more precious than gold or silver; to lose "face" utterly is deemed worse than death itself. In the Orient, the authority of government rests far more upon "face" than upon material force. When the adventurous white men in their tall ships reached the Orient, four centuries and a half ago, their oceangoing galleons, thunderous cannon and masterful qualities so impressed the Asiatics that they soon gained enormous "face." Upon that psychic foundation, vast colonial empires were founded with amazingly small numbers and a ridiculously disproportionate expenditure of actual force. It is that psychic basis which Japan is today resolved to destroy. Japan it was who delivered the first blow at Western "face" by its successful challenge to Czarist Russia in the year 1904. The victory of an Asiatic people over a major Occidental power sent a questioning thrill throughout Asia and even Africa. Western "face" was further damaged by the World War of a generation ago, when the white nations humiliated each other in the East and called Orientals wholesale to their aid. Simultaneously, Western inventions, methods and ideas naturalized in the Orient awakened widespread desires for independence of Occidental authority. Japanese agents have long stirred those discontents, though with the secret plan of substituting their own domination. Still, in most of the East, the foundations of Western "face" had not been fatally undermined.

This was especially true of British "face." The majesty of the Indian Empire, the might of Singapore, the splendor of Hong Kong, the bustling prosperity of Shanghai; these and a hundred other aspects made British power and dignity respected in Oriental minds. Yet today the incredible has happened! In two short months Hong Kong is gone; Singapore and Burma may be going. British "face" is in jeopardy.

In striking contrast, the chief upholders of Western "face" in the Orient today are the Americans. The amazing record of our volunteer aviators in Chinese service is but the prologue of glorious deeds daily done on Batan Peninsula by General MacArthur and his band of heroes hurling back Japanese assailants outnumbering them ten to one. When the Japanese general on Luzon notified MacArthur that he and his men could afford to surrender because their honor was unalterably vindicated, the "face" of America was magnificently re-established. Dutch "face" has been similarly vindicated. The psychological battle is thus far from lost. It needs only material reinforcements arriving in time to shatter not merely Japan's material offensive but its psychic drive as well.

Alexandria Park

The proposal to create a $2,500,000 park and recreation project near the north limits of Alexandria deserves careful consideration by the City Council. Farm Prices

There is an ironical touch to the seeming consternation with which certain farm bloc Senators have learned that Secretary of Agriculture Wickard proposes to hold basic farm prices to about the parity level.

When the price control bill was in the Senate, farm leaders worked out various devices intended to permit agricultural prices to rise well above the parity figure. One of these was an amendment which had the effect of dividing authority to administer the act by vesting in Secretary Wickard a veto power over any farm price ceiling which might be set by Price Administrator Henderson. Since the latter, under the terms of the bill, could not interfere with farm prices in any event until they had advanced far beyond parity, it would seem that the veto amendment was adopted in the hope that in some instances at least farm prices would be permitted to rise above any ceilings that Mr. Henderson might impose.

Senators entertaining such a hope underwent a sad disillusionment last week, however, for Mr. Wickard, in an appearance before the Senate Agriculture Committee, is said to have made it plain that he not only has no intention of overriding price ceilings properly fixed under the law, but that he is opposed in the main to any price advance beyond the parity level. This seems to have come as something of a shock to certain committee members, yet it should have occasioned no surprise, for Mr. Wickard set forth his views on the parity question rather extensively in a National Radio Forum address last November. In that address he pointed to the importance of food as a war weapon and warned that farmers could not be expected to expand their production to the extent necessary unless assured of fair prices. He added, however, that, generally speaking, by fair prices he meant parity prices. Farmers, he said, fear inflation and remember the disastrous consequences to them of the price spree during the First World War. For these reasons, he added, "I don't believe the average farmer wants his prices to go much above parity. * * * If they try to gouge the public now, farmers will have to pay dearly for it later on. Most farmers know that and want to conduct themselves accordingly."

To accomplish this objective of maintaining prices around parity, Mr. Wickard has directed the Department of Agriculture to sell Government-owned surplus stocks of corn and wheat, and has said that he intends to sell warehouse cotton to manufacturers of Army and Navy uniforms. These moves have aroused the ire of some farm spokesmen, who seem to believe it is proper for the Government to take over these surpluses in bad times to bolster prices, but that it is a sin of the first magnitude for the Government ever to dispose of the stocks thus acquired. From the consumer's viewpoint, however, there is a distinct ray of hope in the attitude of the Secretary of Agriculture. It is too early in the game for unrestrained optimism, but the trend seems clearly in the right direction.

So often have Americans heard the reproachful phrase "war-mongers" that now it gives them a good deal of satisfaction, in a way, to think that they are really going to "mong" a little. And how!

Among the miscellaneous lot of civilian furs collected in Germany for the army in Russia were several muffs. They seem very appropriate symbols for the campaign against

Says Smithsonian Should Remain Here

Secretary Abbot Explains Museums' and Galleries' Role In Capital During War

Some have suggested that the Smithsonian group of buildings should be taken over for war purposes, removing the collections to places inland. Several lines of considerations oppose this The United States accepted the bequest of the whole fortune of James Smithson in 1837 "to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." Though our enemy nations regard and treat their promises as "scraps of paper," the United States ought not to violate the trust of Smithson by removal from the location he selected and this Government agreed to.

The old brown stone building was erected by Smithson's money, the Freer Gallery of Art by Charles Freer's and the National Gallery of Art by Andrew Mellon's. It would surely be unethical for our Government as trustee to accept these great buildings, and then divert them from the purposes for which they were given, which it is intrusted to pro-

Apart from consideration of good faith are other important reasons why the Smithsonian group of buildings should continue their normal functions in wartime. In Washington and in nearby camps there are nearly a million people keyed up to unusually demanding tasks, many of them required to put in much overtime, living in crowded quarters and their minds loaded with preying anxieties. Besides these, millions more pass by this way on journeys of anxiety during each year. The National Museum, the Freer and National Art Galeries and the National Zoological Park furnish for these people a welcome and wholesome relaxation of the mind from the cares which perpetually assail them.

In England the tendency at the opening of war was to close museums to the public for the duration. But it was found almost at once that this was a mistake. Now the English strive, despite reduced staffs and diminished financial support, to increase rather than decrease these public ministrations.

To quote from the address of Assistant Secretary Alexander Wetmore at the University of Kansas: "Support of our great defense program is paramount and essential, but with it let us not forget that in cultural and esthetic pursuits there are not only improvement for the mind and training for the future, but also momentary escape for the individual from the troubles that beset him. In the halls of our museums, our art galleries and our libraries throughout our great Nation there is found enjoyment and recreation for the public to be encountered nowhere else. The contemplation of nature and its laws, and of the individual objects that exemplify these, brings a relief and a peace not elsewhere possible. Public morale, of maximum importance under the grim threats of war, is fostered by such mental relaxation. These are facts to be remembered in periods of stress, that the small financial support for such activities be not denied. Let us consider this as a contribution to the defense armament of the mind and of the soul."

The Association of Art Museum Directors at their New York meeting of December 20-21, 1941, adopted these resolutions: "* * * Our Allies, Great Britain and her dominions, under the destructive impact of total war have already shown that art as an expression of the higher values of life is an undeniable factor in a free people's resistance. Never before has museum attendance been so great in Canada, or in England wherever museums can still function. Never has the public responded so eagerly to the creative life of today and to the meaning of the art of the past; never have the museums of those countries been so determined to serve.

"Therefore be it resolved: (1) That American museums are prepared to do their utmost in the service of the people of this country during the present conflict; (2) that they will continue to keep open their doors to all who seek refreshment of spirit; (3) that they will with the sustained financial help of their communities broaden the scope and variety of their work; (4) that they will be sources of inspiration illuminating the past and vivifying the present; that they will fortify the spirit on which victory

Edgar C. Shenck, director of the Honolulu Academy of Arts, has this to say only a few weeks after December 7, 1941: We in Hawaii have rediscovered three things this Christmas—that surface details of living no longer matter—that, aside from the actual business of defense, nothing is important now save the essential spirit of life—and that the spirit, so superbly maintained during the first days of the attack and so magnificiently preserved throughout Christmas, cannot be allowed to ebb away in the cheerlessness of the nightly blackout or the monotony of a new routine. It must be nourished if it is to sustain us throughout this emergency. "It was as a source of supply for spiritual sustenance that the Honolulu Academy of Arts opened the second day following the attack. It was with this in mind that the Board of Trustees decided to keep the building open and continue as many of its activities as possible. The galleries are open to all who come to them for spiritual strength. The courts are filled with great music of the world for all who put their trust in its refreshing and healing power.

"Two years of war in England have proven the value of the arts in a time of crisis. The English museums, concert halls and theaters have found their task as builders of morale so important that government subsidies have kept them open when private means failed."

The collections cared for under the Smithsonian Institution have an enormous intrinsic value, but from another point of view they are invaluable since for no sum of money can they be replaced. Among nearly a score of millions of objects they include hundreds of thousands of exceedingly rare specimens, many of them types of basic importance in the development of industry and agriculture. The public sees no more than a twentieth part of the colries of fortifications which successfully defied Charles X of Sweden in 1658 and 1659 and the united

"OAK LANE.

"Dear Sir: "I recently established a feeding station, and have received a great deal of delight out of it, but a friend of mine spoils all the fun by telling me that when the robins come they will chase all the other birds away.

"Is this true? I do not know much about birds, and so could not refute his claim of harm from the robins, but I like the robins and do not like to think of them as mean birds.

"Kindly let me know if, in your opinion, the robins will chase away my other birds. They would have quite a time of it with the jays, I am sure, for those big babies are not going to be chased by anything. A hawk came in our yard last week, but when it saw the jays and heard the yelping they put up, it flew sway as if the very devil were after it.

"I cannot bring myself to believe that the robins will be able to do much with the jays, even if they are as belligerent as my friend says, but still they might run away the chickadees and titmice and the other small birds.

"I would appreciate your authoritative statement about this matter. "Sincerely yours, E. K. M."

* * * * If our correspondent never has anything to worry about more than the possibilities of robins chasing other birds away from feeding stations he will be a most fortunate person.

Robins are soft-billed birds, and do not come near bird-feeding stations. Even if they did, they would not chase any of the other species.

Robins are among our finest birds They will be here shortly, now. Sometimes the earliest arrivals come in Feb-FUATV.

As a matter of fact, this has been such "nutty" season, meteorologically speaking (there's a mouthful for you) that we would not be surprised to see the early robins come in almost any day, now.

We suspect that our correspondent's friend was merely trying to "kid" him, when he said robins would chase other birds away.

There are few finer birds than America's robin, with its fine upstanding habits, its merry warble and its all-around good conduct, including minding its own business. No other songster has anything to fear from the robins. In eating habits, particularly, the robins have ways of their own, which seldom conflict with other birds.

They eat fruits and angleworms, and do not go in much for seeds or grains. The construction of their bills precludes them eating hard foods of any robin food, and they may be tried; most of the birds prefer the seeded raisins. Usually the seeded types are larger and fuicer. If the raisins one has are hard, they should be steamed before being put out for the birds. It goes without saying that they should be brought down to a

All of these foods and the pan of water are best placed on the lawn at a fairly good distance from the feeding stations.

Not that the robins will harm the other birds, or chase them away from their food, but simply because there will not be as much chance that these others will try to take the food put out for the early robin. A "robin pudding" may be tried. This pudding is composed of equal parts of ground suet and beef. This mixture also will appeal to star-

Coconut cake, in case any one is curious, is the one best bet to serve a robin. Last year this column was presented with a fine coconut cake by an appreciative reader. Now it happens we do not like coconut cake. So our share went to the birds.

It happened that just that morning a robin has flown in from the South. The bird had sat around all day, without a thing to eat.

No sooner had we put out the alice of cake, than the robin flew over and went to work on it. He ate every crumb, coconut and all.

Insists "Plenty" of Metals

Still Is Available.

To the Editor of The Star: The report of the special Senate Committee investigating the defense program released January 15, mentioned the following existing conditions: "The actual production of the three metals (lead, copper and zinc) has been most disappointing." "The possibility of using Western iron ores for steel should be very carefully surveyed."

I maintain there is no need for the lack of lead, zinc and iron ores in our country. We have more than plenty.

We have the mines, even if many of them are flooded or caved in. There is plenty of ore in them that can be milled by modern methods. The oldtimers did not know what to do with their low-grade commercial ores. These ores are in the mines blocked out in many cases. There are also plenty of ores on the dumps which can be milled immediately by latest chemical and milling operations. While this is being done the old mines can be reopened and the workings be put in shape for operation. We may not have the bonanza ore, like they had in the early days, but there is more than plenty of lead, zinc and iron ores still in our mines and in their JAMES E. LINDE. stopes.

Praises President for Qualities Deserving Public Confidence. To the Editor of The Star:

One used to think there was no such strong man as Kipling describes in his "If." but measure President Roosevelt by the following lines and he will not be found wanting: "If you can keep your head when all

Plans are being worked out to safeguard a certain small fraction of the collections, the cream of the whole, against the possible air raids which the future may bring. Even this, as it has to be done by specialists, with great care to avoid damage, is a long and anxious proceeding.

Another objection to removing the Smithsonian Institution from Washington is that the Institution is a defense agency. It is being frequently called on for expert advice, for loan of objects,

When Mr. Roosevelt has taken the oath as President, his fingers rested, by no accident, on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians-"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not charity I am become as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." His deeds as well as his words indicate such a creed-without which, with all the ability in the world we could not trust him as we do. It is this power that makes possible such a thing as the recent South American Conference, to mention one of innumerable accomplishments.

The present era must close in great good to mankind or great disaster, largely depending on how the people of the United States follow their great President, easily the leader of most importance in world affairs today. A VIRGINIA WOMAN.

Wants Private Business and Professions To Make Room for Defense Agencies. To the Editor of The Star: Many articles have appeared in the newspapers with reference to nondefense agencies of the Government being moved from Washington, involving many thousands of workers and their families. This primarily is due to the lack of available space for the many defense agencies necessary for the prosecution of this Nation's war effort.

Several articles, quoting Government officials, show that they are of the belief that private business in this area has failed to co-operate to that end. I am in accord with them for the following reasons:

1. Private business, including professional men, occupy many thousands of square feet of floor space immediately adjacent to the Government bureaus and agencies, which space could meet the emergency requirements.

2. There is no reason why private business and professional men would not find suitable space for the conduct of their endeavors in the outlying districts and suburbs. By so doing, they would maintain their business and the clients they have, in addition to the possibility of increasing their business due to the additional population.

If the various business associations of this city would support such a movement, this important problem would be solved immediately.

The name means "Little Peter" and was given to the bird in reference to its habit of skimming over the surface and dipping its feet in the water as though walking, as St. Peter is recorded to have done in Matthew xiv.29.

Q. Please tell me why brown sugar is more expensive than granulated sugar.-

A. Originally brown sugar was cheaper than white sugar because it represented a much lower state of refinement. Now by far the greatest amount of all sugar produced in this country is white, so it is more involved and expensive to halt the process of refinement for brown sugar than to complete the process for white sugar.

Honey and Some of Its Uses— Honey is an almost perfect substitute for sugar and also has unique physical and chemical properties. Because honey is composed so largely of simple sugars it can be assimilated by the body with ease. This booklet includes recipes for confections, cakes, quick breads, and tells ways of using uncooked honey and how to cook with honey. The sugar rationing will not be a problem if you learn to use substitutes. Another View On Capital 'Parasites'

Little Has Been Done To Convert Federal Units to War Work

come to Washington for social David Lawrence. reasons have money enough of their own. It is not they who are crowding Washington. The congestion comes because hundreds of thousands of political employes were brought here during the last eight years under the New Deal concept that the Government owes everybody a living.

The Federal pay roll long before total war broke out in Europe in 1940 had reached the highest in American history. Despite the boasts in the campaign of 1940 that the New Deal had brought prosperity, the number of parasites living on the patronage of the political system and at the expense of the taxpayer had risen to incredible heights. No Cut in Expenses.

Even now when the American people are being asked with all the emotion that a war background can command to buy Defense stamps, give up automobiles and sugar and whatnot, the Federal Government has not made any appreciable cut in non-defense expenditures. The reason is that the political patronage idea is too firmly fixed in the mind of almost everybody here from the President down. To lop off office holders might offend this or that political group and nothing must be done, of course, to offend the political groups. It's much easier to make the public believe that Washington is full of do-nothing rich. It makes the headlines and diverts attention from the real trouble in the National Capital. For several weeks now the administration and some of its parasite press agents have been issuing innuendoes about the automobile industry declaring that it has failed to convert its facilities to wartime use. Failure to convert the auto industry has become the political alibi for delay in the defense program. Yet what has been done in Washington to convert peacetime governmental agencies to wartime uses? Has anybody of the Donald Nelson type been appointed to the task of conversion of personnel and office space utilized by the Government for less important purposes than war?

Priorities for Civilians Only.

In these dispatches time and again since the war emergency broke out more than a year ago, attention has been directed to the fact that priorities are being applied to the civilian population but not within the Government itself. few Government agencies out of Washington but this in itself is not people are being deprived of so essential a function as automobile manufacturing, it is certainly within the realm of possibility for the American people to do without a

Unable to Get Complete Text of Hitler Speech, Miss Thompson Is Forced to Postpone Her Analysis

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. It was my desire to comment on Hitler's speech delivered in Berlin Friday, from 10 to 12 a.m. American Eastern standard time.

Obviously, this speech is of the greatest importance in revealing what man people and the world. It is the first he has delivered since October 2 - the first he has made since the reverses in Russia, and the entrance of the United States into the war. It is also his first speech since the shake-up among the generals and the dismissal of Brauchitsch. Time and again this column has received enlightenment from careful study of Hitler's speeches, constantly asking the questions,

Derothy Thomp

"Why does he say just that, and why does he fail to mention this We have very little news from Germany, and we have to analyze every scrap of authentic information. Hitler's speeches are immensely important-not because he tells the truth, but because he is always responsibe to the feelings in the German nation. He never makes a policy to fit his propaganda, but a propaganda to fit the situation. So, from his speeches one can see whether he is tacking right or left, whether he is playing to conservatives or radicals: whether the German nation is enthusiastic or depressed.

And all his speeches reveal the line of propagarida for his agents throughout the world.

Hitler Studies Foes' Weaknesses. Now we are at war, and that war must be waged not only at the front, but in the political and psychological sphere. Hitler is a master of this form of warfare. An immense staff of expert workers, with pedantic thoroughness and perfect timing, assist him to know all about his enemies.

Goebbels answers instantaneously every speech of Mr. Churchill or Mr. Roosevelt.

Not an editorial adverse to the policy or personality of Mr. Roosevelt but finds its way to the point where it can be used. (And how effectively used we have seen in the United States.) For Hitler studies the internal political and social structure of the countries of his enemies, and looks for the weak po his breakthroughs.

The moment war was declared, it seemed obvious that we would launch a brilliant psychological warfare. The American press, and especially those members of it who had spent years following most carefully the developments in Germany, studying the inner structure of the Nazi party. and the divergencies in policy between the various tendencies in the movement and the Nation would be able to contribute, in a co-ordinated way, to turning Hitler's weapons back upon himself.

Since I have studied Hitler for nearly 20 years, I should like now to have contributed to the understanding of his situation now. But I cannot comment on the Hitler speech, for I cannot find out what he said. Fantastic as it may seem, there is not, in the entire city of New York a complete German or translated transcript of this speech. And editorials have been written and comments made on what the writer thinks he said-and sometimes on what he did not say.

The broadcasting companies took down the "high lights" by rapid translators at listening posts. It is absolutely impossible to do this accurately. Mrs. Mc-Cormick, in the Times, presumably commented on the C. B. S. version—a version that I received myself. In that version a startling statement appeared, "President Roosevelt will be spoken of as the creator of the greatest empire"—which Mrs. Mc-Cormick noted. I doubted that statement and so went to C. B. S. and had the ediphone recording (very difficult for any one not entirely expert to follow) played back. Hitler never said anything Versions Mistranslated. The Associated Press carried the Transocean version, the one put out by the German government. A Great Dislocation.

Failure to prepare for the adjustment after the war will involve a very much greater dislocation than that. Failure to prepare for this adjustment is to risk a social revolution that easily might plunge the country into chaos and from which an America, utterly different from the America we have known, would emerge. Warnings of this possibility have been sounded from time to time by various persons but they seem to have made little impression. Up to now, no concrete step toward preparing has been taken. Yet no reflective man will dispute the vital necessity of preparation.

This is why the just published report of the so-called National Resources Planning Board of which Mr. Frederic A. Delano, uncle of the President, is chairman, is of more than usual interest. This document was written by Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, special adviser to the Federal Reserve Board and a great friend of Vice President Wallace.

Vague and Voluminous.

It is a vague, voluminous affair, which makes a great many recom mendations without suggesting any practical way of translating them into realities. The fact most worth noting about the report is that it is the fourth distinct pronouncement on the subject. The other three were a little less in length and slightly more concrete. But, in the main, all four are in complete accord on the basic facts. And, up to now, they are identical in that not one has made the least progress. First, there was Assistant Secre-

United Nations, Rushing Troops to South Pacific, May Attack Japanese Rear in Malaya

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

With the British withdrawn from Malaya into the Island of Singapore, Washington official quarters anxiously are asking whether the beleaguered fortress can hold out against Japanese land assault. The consensus of American and British military experts appears to be that the great British base can hold out for a while, but not long. Unless substantial assistance is sent immediately it is bound to suffer the fate of Hong Kong.

Singapore would have been impregnable if the Japanese had not penetrated through the Malayan jungle and besieged the island from the mainland. It could have resisted indefinitely assaults from the sea.

As was the case at Hong Kong, the question of water supply is of paramount importance. Besides the garrison, Singapore has a population of some 650,000. The main water supply comes from the mainland, across the Strait of Johore. The Singapore River was dammed some years back and contributes a certain amount of water, but the dam could be bombed and destroyed by Japanese planes. Should this happen, it is doubtful whether the defenders could hold out more than a few weeks.

Obviously, it is a matter in which No Civilian Problem. there must be co-operation between Military quarters are confident the Government and industry. It that less expensive Corregidor isn't a job which either can do by Island will hold out longer than itself. It is a job that must be done together.

Is it not time that this co-operative planning should begin? Is it not time that conferences, instead of being talked about, should be held? When four men such as Mr. Berle, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Young and Dr. Hansen are in accord about the presence of danger and the need for action, it is reasonable to assume that they can get action.

It is quite clear that unless they do more than write books, magazine articles and reports there will be no action because no one in authority is considering taking the initial steps. Just as a start, a conference between the Messrs. Berle, Wilson, Young and Hansen would seem to be indicated. Instead of expressing their views separately, they should get together and act collectively. Somebody ought to make a move.

Tortillas, made of thin round corn bread, cannot be shipped from Mexico except by government per-

Whether and what steps now are being taken for such an operation is naturally a deep military secret. Both Washington and London have made known that forces are being rushed to the points of greatest enemy menace. Churchill Made Promise

Furthermore, Prime Minister Churchill has stated emphatically on several occasions that Singapore will be saved. There is no reason to believe that the British Prime Minister was merely whistling in the dark. When he made this statement in Washington and later in London he must have had a plan of military action in mind.

Mr. Churchill knew then, as every one in Washington knew, that the Japs would make an extreme effort to win Singapore. He also knew what was no secret to anyone in Washington, that reinforcements would not reach the Malay Peninsula in time to strengthen the troops who were fighting only a delaying action with the limited means at their disposal.

Many in well-informed quarters here believe that large forces sent to the South Pacific from the United States, India and Britain may still surprise the Japanese. Military men believe the danger to Australia has diminished since the dispatch of reinforcements from the United States and Britain. Developments Expected.

The Japanese have taken some islands near Australia to be used as jumping-off places for an offensive against the Dominion

Singapore and in the Philippines have accomplished their task and are freed for other theaters of operations. Hence, if there is accuracy in various official statements that the strategy board in Washington is taking care of the situation, we may look for some unexpected developments in Australasia.

The Malay Peninsula may once more figure prominently in the headlines. It all depends on what strategy the United Nations have adopted and whether a German attack in force else-

ish Imperial forces would be able to make a landing in force in an where will force a change of plans and divert the United Naattempt to clear at least a portion of Malayan territory occutions forces from their present

Hollywood Is Helping

For years the Hollywood art directors have been film-flamming the

> movie public. They staged the Battle of Trafalgar in a pool of water no bigger than a bath tub, but did it so realistically that the loge customers were seasick before it was over. blizzard scenes

They produced that, despite the Henry McLemore. fact that the snow was untoasted cornflakes, were were frost-bitten. Remember that scene in "Sergeant York" where the sergeant, accompanied by his faithful dogs. climbs on a peak in the Big Smoky Mountains and meditates? Well, that scene was shot on an indoors stage. There is hardly a college halfback worth his subsidization who couldn't have run over any of the mountains and knocked them so real that patrons seated as far from the screen as the tenth row

Did you see "Ladies in Retirement?" You know, the horror thriller laid along the marshes of the Thames River? Well, those marshes were as phoney as a $3 bill and were created from such odds and ends as roosters' combs, old lace, tap water, rubber heels, no-parking signs, and plain California. It was all a matter of magicthe sort of magic that Hollywood's art directors have been working on the public since John Bunny was the Clark Gable of his day.

Now that trickery has come to the aid of the Government. The art directors and the lesser magicians who work under them in creating film-flam for the movies are welded into a motion picture camouflage unit. It was only a few hours after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor (an attack, by the way, that proved the vulnerability of uncamouflaged targets), that the Hollywood masters of confusion volunteered their services. Their services were eagerly accepted by the United States Army Engineers. Today more than 400 men, representing six major studios, are devoting much of their time in concealing key defense works.

The projects are outlined by the art directors, and the work carried out by sketch artists, model makers and draftsmen. These babies are the same ones who design and create the sets for the Hollywood pictures. You have seen enough movies to know how skillful they are. In talking to Lionel Banks of the Columbia Studios, who is in charge of the camouflage unit, I discovered fust what a bit of this, a bit of that, and a knowledge of shadows and colors and perspective can do. All of the Washington scenes of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" were done right in Hollywood. The entire shot showing the Lincoln Memorial and the vast sweep of the Reflection Pool was done on a stage. In "Only Angels Have Wings" the ocean and an airport were shot on a medium-sized indoor stage. You can imagine what these fellows are able to do in the way of disguising defense projects. Mr. Banks naturally did not say what projects his unit had undertaken, but, say it was an airplane factory. By the time his boys get through with it, the Japanese bombers, when and if they come to this coast, won't be able to tell it from a bobsled run, a skating rink, a sanctuary for widowed bison, or George Raft's swimming pool. * * * *

They'll come over to knock out a factory, say, and wind up wasting precious bombs on nothing more substantial than a bunch of netting, paint, leaves and optical illusions. The Germans have given camouflage a full try. The R. A. F. released pictures showing what the Nazis did in an effort to protect the railroad station at Hamburg, which was easily spotted from the air by its proximity to a lake. The Germans covered the lake with planks and painted them to look like build-

The Hollywood artists would never stop with just making a lake look like a suburban settlement. They would cut loose and have the boarded-over lake looking like an African jungle, the main street is Nome, Alaska, or Canal street in New Orleans. This would so confuse an enemy pilot that he would be likely to set down his plane and wire home for a fresh set of road (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Children to Denmark

HELSINKI, Finland (From German Broadcasts), Feb. 2.—About 1,200 children have been taken to Denmark from Finland since November because of the present food shortage, and an additional 1,000 will go soon. They probably will stay until the end of the war.

Wrapping Contest Sponsored by Star Evokes Interest

Bond and Stamp Prizes Of $145 to Be Awarded Thursday Evening

Indications of great interest in the bundle-wrapping contest to be held Thursday evening, February 5, in the auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce under the auspices of The Evening Star are growing in the various stores which intend to enter wrappers and packers. Many of the experts are preparing to compete for the prizes which will total $145 in defense bonds and savings stamps. Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs and Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers Association will act as judges of the contest.

The prizes in each of the three classes of wrapping competition will be a $25 Defense bond for first place, $10 in savings stamps for second and $5 in savings stamps for third. These prizes will be awarded by The Evening Star. An additional prize of one $25 Defense bond will be awarded to the wrapper or packer judged to have given the best allaround performance. This prize will be awarded by the Murray & Heister Paper Box Co.

In addition to the three contests

there will be an entertainment program including moving pictures The auditorium will be open to the public throughout the contest and the entertainment which will follow. The purpose of the demonstration is to bring about improvement in wrapping to meet in part the problem of the growing shortage of wrapping material, especially kraft paper. It will serve, also, to educate the buying public to receive goods already amply packed at the factory in the original covering without the addition of wrapping paper or paper bags at the store where purchased.

Paul Knabenshue, U.S. Minister To Iraq, Dies

By the Associated Press. BAGHDAD, Iraq., Feb. 2.—Paul Knabenshue, United States Minister to Iraq since 1932, died yesterday of tetanus after a minor operation. The 59-year-old envoy figured in the news during the Iraq outbreak last May when he sheltered some 500 Britions at the American Legation, defying threats by Rashid Ali Al Gailani's insurgents to bomb the British "wherever they are found."

A career diplomat, Mr. Knabenshue entered the foreign service in 1906 as a vice consul at Belfast. He subsequently served in Cairo, Beirut and Jerusalem before coming to Baghdad, where he was elevated to ministerial rank.

He was born at Toledo, Ohio. His home address was Los Angeles.

Mr. Knabenshue is survived by a brother, Roy Knabenshue of the National Parks Service, who lives in Colonial Village. He also leaves his widow, a son and daughter and two other brothers, Col. F. G. Knabenshue, retired, of New York State, and Leigh Knabenshue of Los Angeles.

His brother Roy was the first American to fly a dirigible airship and was the first business manager for the Wright brothers when the airplane was developed. Their father was editor of the Toledo Blade for 25 years.

Greeks Harboring Ever-Increasing Hatred for Nazis

Italians Are Not Included, However, in Resentment At Severe Famine

y Radio to The Star. SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE, Feb. -Among the numerous atrocity stories that this war already has produced, the Greek famine holds top place. Travelers from Athens depict the ever-increasing hatred of the Greeks for the German occupiers Millard of Livingston, N. J., and who are responsible for the hunger of Nathan of Washington, and two sis-Greece. Strangely the Italian troops are not included in this hatred.

The Germans' former tolerance changed when the Greeks remained adamant under the blandishments of the new order. Their attitude is now described as one of "massive requisitions" striking at wealthy Greeks and indirectly at the poorer classes. No country estate has escaped occupation, all agricultural products grown being reserved by the Ger-

Greeks Tighten Belts. Every house in Athens' wealthy quarter lodges up to three German or Italian officers. German officers can be seen at the Zonar, Athens' high-hat restaurant, while the Greeks tighten their belts and eat watery cabbages and potatoes.

The Germans declared that Greece was Italy's lebensraum but they still boss Athens and as a result the odium of occupation falls on them. The Italians let the Greeks have relief. During the worst weeks of December, when 2,000 died daily from lack of food in Athens and Piraeus, Italy sent a shipload of wheat. The shipment lasted barely a week but was enough to make the Greeks think the Italians preferable to the Germans both as adversaries and occupiers. Prices have risen sky-high lately, making subsistence impossible for Prices have risen sky-high lately, the poorer classes. One ocke of potatoes (about 21/4 lbs.) cost 800 drachmas (about $5.). An ocke of cheese, the main nourishment of the Greeks, is 4,000 drachmas ($25), an ocke of meat 2.000 ($12.50).

Pay Has Not Kept Pace. Needless to say the salaries of the workers have not increased in proportion to the living costs. Only factories working for the Germans are open, the others closed down and the owners drawing on their reserves in order to keep their workers on the payroll. Employers have organized what the Greeks call the "syssition" (soup kitchen) system, meaning that they guarantee their famished workers one meal daily. The average loss of weight in Greece since the occupation is almost 34 pounds a person. There is no epidemic in Greece so far. This is attributed to the extremely cold winter. "Our epidemic," your correspondent was told. "is hunger." Copyright 1942 by Chicago Daily News.

Auto Firms' Stocks Held Major U. S. War Factor

DETROIT, Feb. 2.-Asserting that the automobile industry has been attack in Atlantic City where he abolished "for the duration," W. J. had been for six months, the Asso-ciated Press reported. Cameron of the Ford Motor Co. said here last night that the stocks it has assembled in the United States and the supply sources it established are "major elements in America's material power today." The real problem behind conversion, Mr. Cameron said, is to change the factory to fit the job. Citing the experience of the Ford organization, he said:

"War work means almost complete retooling. When we undertook Besides Mrs. Pugh he leaves his to make airplane engnies we had to install 90 per cent of new ma-chinery for that job; for airplanes, 85 per cent; for tanks about 50 per cent. And that takes time; it takes time even in peacetime."

Mr. Cameron said he was not presenting "an alibi for delay," be-cause "there has been no delay." He said months had been saved by anticipating some important needs and "that before the Government gave the word the work alread had begun."

Salvage Campaign to Pass 400,000-Pound Total Today

Figures to Soar With Collections Delayed by Exams

Due to pass the 400,000-pound mark oday, Washington school children are entering the eighth week in The Evening Star-P.-T. A. salvage for victory campaign with the problems of graduation or promotion out of the way.

With belated returns from last week added to the previous total the grand total for the seven weeks of the campaign is 389,264 pounds. Nearly a third of this great total was collected last week, indicating the acceleration of the collections.

The Grant School on G street between Twenty-first and Twentysecond streets N.W., is due for a boost this week because of the interest shown by the occupant of a nearby apartment house. Organizing the entire seventh floor on which she lives, she has obtained not just a temporary drive, but one 100 per cent co-operation, and in due to last as long as the war lasts, every apartment on that floor there is a collection awaiting the arrival looking to the time when all immeof children from the school to pick diate needs at the schools will have

up. Many calls have been received from people anxious to help in the program, but who have no children. In every case, volunteers at the nearest school have gone to pick up the contributions.

The benefit of the program, of course, is two-fold. There is the aid to national defense, on the one hand, and the solving of the budget problems of the P.-T. A. groups, on is a continuing program, purchasing will start.

The following is the schedule for paper collection tomorrow in The Evening Star-P.-T. A. Salvage for Victory program with the five leaders in the second district and their poundage to been met. Some are considering when that point is reached to invest the income in Defense bonds for the P.-T. A. to provide an endowment which will be available in future years when after-war conditions may make the raising of rev-

TURKISH-SYRIAN FRONTIER, Feb. 2.-Northern Syria lies blanketed in snow and many of its roads are impassable in the coldest, stormiest winter this region has experienced in a quarter of a century,

Across the frontier rise Turkey's Taurus Mountains, great glaciers whose passes are so full of snow that all traffic except by rail is blocked and even train service frequently

The Sicilian gate through which Alexander the Great and other conquerors entered Syria will be snowbound many weeks more, and when the snow melts there will be mud to make movement almost impossible for more weeks.

Nature Provides Wall.

Thus while the bulk of British forces are occupied in the Libyan desert, nature has for the time being provided a supposedly impregnable wall here in the North. Every one here agrees that no army, however strong, could cross Anatolia before May, and the most reliable information on German activities in Bulgaria makes the British believe Hitler can not launch an attack on Turkey before June. German troops at present in Bulpart on the Allied side. Flow of Materials.

With the present flow of materials into the Mid-East, the British will have much more here with which to meet any offensive.

Syria is held mainly by Australian troops, veterans of last winter's campaign across Cyrenaica, of Greece, Crete, of the Syrian campaign and the defense of Tobruk. These form the backbone of the 9th Army in Syria. There are also Free French and British here. Farther east in Irak and Iran the Middle East's 1,000 miles of northern frontier is held by British and Indian troops.

Build New Defenses.

The Australians have not been idle during their well-earned rest period. They've been building tank traps, concrete pill boxes and other projects to strengthen the Middle East's northern defenses. They've also been training for the type of warfare this region calls for. Ski troops and mountain detachments have been formed.

To the big, husky soldiers who form the Australian battalions, the Most of them had never seen snow

When Aleppo had a snowstorm for the first time in 20 years, the Aussies stationed there rushed out with glee, somewhat surprised to find snow was just what they had imagined it to be. They built snow men and there was a snowball battle with the Spahis and also a few friendly duels with townsfolk.

Drop Food to Outposts.

Snow was less romantic, however, to those in small mountain stations. many so isolated it has been necessary to drop food and mail to them by plane. Others have been reached by ski patrols.

Mother's Sympathy Toward Sons Sometimes Brings About Their Ruin

May Make Weaklings Of Otherwise Strong And Capable Men

If Your Boys Are Called to Colors Give Them Encouragement They So Richly Deserve

Ly Dorothy Dix

From time immemorial mothers' tears and mothers' sympathy have been glorified by sentimentalists, but, in reality, they are one of the most baneful and demoralizing influences in the world. They are responsible for more failures in life, they have made more quitters and cowards and shirkers, and been at the bottom of more divorces than all other causes

This would seem a hard saying to the women who believe that mothers should be a mush of pity and that they should dissolve in brine and "poor darling" their youngsters whenever they get any of the bumps of existence, but for all of that it is true. No mother does her children such a wrong as the one who brings them up to be softles who cannot endure hardships, when what they are going to need in life is the grit to stand up and take whatever comes without flinching.

And it is mother who decides, while her children are still in the cradle, whether they are going to grow up into weaklings or strong men and women. If, when little Johnny falls and bumps his nose, mother runs and picks him up, beats the bad floor for hurting her precious baby and lets him sob himself to sleep on her breast, you know perfectly well he is going to grow up into a self-pittier who will never get anywhere in the world, because he will always give up every undertaking as soon as the

This war-coiffure seems to respond better to a hairbrush than to a comb because brush bristles encourage a curl exactly where you want it—at the very ends.

A good brush to use is one which has a unique, wavelike cut to its widely spaced bristles (the product of a strictly American firm of old New England). The longer bristles in each tuft seem to catch a curl strand and as you twist the brush with a wrist movement the strands are converted into cluffy ringlets. One Day When Milan Wouldn't Listen to Griff

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 .- As these lines were written Judge Kene-NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—As these lines were written Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the frosty old gentleman who holds the whip over the major baseball leagues was making no statement as reover the major baseball leagues, was making no statement as regards the so-called national pastime and World War II. It is within Landis' power to order 154 games of night ball a season for each club and within his jurisdiction to order all lighting systems scuttled and the steel, aluminum and copper melted down to make more bicycles for Leon Henderson to ride for the benefit of photographers.

But so far Landis has not committed himself, and on the way here to a rare baseball "war meeting" President Clark Griffith of the Washington ball club was admitting that the judge's silence was beginning to wear down even his (Griff's) own robust nerves. "And I'm healthy, by What's happening to the New Haven sin," boasted the 72-year-old boss of the Nats. "Think what it's doing club of the American Hockey League

All of which reminded Griffith how potent is the weapon of silence. "I've used it myself, many times," he was telling Secretary Edward B. ice heroes have been spending their Eynon, jr., and Spencer Abbott, one of his farm team managers, on the spare time walking under ladders. train from Washington. "Let me tell you about the time I clashed with Clyde Milan." (Milan since has served as Griffith's manager and cur- ous sport's all-time hard-luck team, rently is one of his coaches.)

The Old Fox Held Pre-Game Meetings

Griff pulled out one of his two-for-a-nickel cigars, peeled it and these nights? struck a match. "This happened back in 1912," he began. "It was my first year as manager in Washington and the first time I had been in knows that this melange of speed, the American League for quite some time. Before every game, when I flying skates and sticks and vicious managed, a meeting was called. We'd talk over the enemy hitters and lay plans. I always had my say, but I'd also invite the players to speak tune concentrate on New Haven?

"Anyway, we were opening a series with the White Sox and Jacques only hope their supply roster lasts. Fournier was playing first base for them. I was going to pitch Walter Johnson this day and so I told the fellows how I thought they should play Fournier. I told Milan, for instance, that with a fast-ball pitcher like Johnson working the center fielder should play deep and shade Fournier to left center. Fournier, of course, was a left-handed hitter."

Griff took a long puff and cackled as he recalled the episode. "Milan," apolis and may be out of the game he continued, "was at his peak. He and Cobb were the best base stealers forever. in the game. Clyde was a good ball hawk, he was hitting well and he had some ideas of his own. 'Listen,' he said to me, 'you just came in this lost for almost a month when he league. I've been playing Fournier for quite some time. I know how to play him and it ain't left-center. It's right-center.'

"I asked the players for an expression of sentiment," said Griff, "and left ankle in Pittsburgh and has been there was a lot of arguing. So I said, 'Well, most of you seem to agree on the shelf for five weeks; now at with Milan so we'll play his way today and see.' After all, I had been his home in Joyceville, Ontario, he's out of the American League for some time."

Fournier's Two Home Runs Beat the Nats

There was no bleacher section in left or center field at the time, and so when Fournier drove on a line to left-center in the seventh inning, while a runner was on base, it went for a home run after Milan barely missed a catch. A 1-0 Washington lead was wiped out and the Sox were in front, 2-1. But the Nats came back with a couple of runs and, going into the ninth, they held the margin until Fournier again came to bat a month with a severely bruised with a mate on the paths.

"In spite of the home run," Griff was saying, "Milan never changed position. And again Fournier hit to the same spot for a second home run. beating us, 4-3.

"I went to the dressing room and I began peeling off my uniform. I never said a word to anybody. I kept away from Milan, but I could see reports to Kitchener, Ontario, for him in front of his locker, still wearing his suit, and he had a funny look duty in the Canadian Army by on his face. Finally I got undressed and went for the shower, but, before | February 5. I got there. Milan ran across the room and shouted:

"'For God's sake, aren't you going to say anything? I can't stand it Griff took another drag from his cigar. "Even then I didn't say a the pace of the runnerup Providence word." he said. "Milan did a lot of suffering but he never challenged my Reds, and virtually assured of makjudgment again. Now," he added, "I know how Clyde felt. I suppose the ing the playoffs. rest of my colleagues feel the same way. Judge Landis is the boss and what he says will go. But it's tough waiting for him to say something."

The Time Shanks Loafed—and Got Yanked

As the big league club owners opened their meeting today Griffith was asking for the unprecedented total of 34 night games in Washington. explaining that the Nation's Capital must rely on nocturnal entertainexplaining that the Nation's Capital must rely on nocturnal entertainment almost 100 per cent because of war work by day. Up to now the Vets of Work maximum number of night games permitted by Judge Landis has been seven. If Griff loses his request for 34 games and again is held to seven, it is estimated that it will cost the old gent no less than $250,000 in gate

One word from Landis and Griff can kiss that quarter of a million good-by. But the Old Fox can take it. Last December he almost had a bit of legislation passed doubling the night games but Landis broke an American-National League stalemate by blackballing the recommendation of his old friend, Griffith.

"I didn't squawk then and I won't this time," Griff said today. "Landis against me?" he repeated. "By sin, I should say not! If he thinks I'm wrong he says so. But he's not against me and that reminds had scant resemblance to the Orange me of the story of Howard Shanks, who played for Washington while I Bowl Champions. was managing. Howard wasn't quite a good enough hitter to be a regular but he stuck around for a long while, and one day I had him in America Frankie Sinkwich, Lamar left field. A ball was hit over his head. He couldn't possibly catch it but he loafed while chasing it and it made the team look so bad I sent a substitute out right away to relieve him.

"Howard came to the bench and he was mad. He wanted to know what was the big idea. I told him. 'Well,' he said, 'you never did like last year piloted the Bulldogs to the me, anyway. You always had it in for me.'

"Listen, Shanks." I told him, "you've been on this club for nine juniors were being excused for two years and you're just as bad a ballplayer now as you were when you or three weeks because they carried came. I must love you to have kept you.

"Now," concluded Griff, "you see what I mean when I say that Landis hasn't got it in for me personally."

Here's a suggestion for the big league bosses to consider at their meetings today and tomorrow. George Carens of the Boston Traveler proposes that one day in July should be set aside at each park for an infantile paralysis fund benefit. It would be a fair enough acknowledgment of President Roosevelt's indorsement of baseball. We heartily second the motion but doubt that it will come up. If the two leagues finish today's meetings on schedule it will keep the arguments on the straight and narrow path. From what we hear, they could keep

Gartrell, Fourth in Burtner Event, Sets Record With Seven Straight Strikes

Score of 216 Makes Him First to Beat 200 For Third Time

Megaw Wins Tournament With 60-1,394 Tally; Shea Runs Second

Bill Gartrell, standing well over 6 feet but weighing a scant 130 pounds, finished only fourth in the annual Hap Burtner Duckpin Handicap at Convention Hall last night, but the Takoma Recreation manager today had to his credit one of the most amazing bowling feats on record.

In the second of his 10 games in the tournament—won by Red Megaw with Johnny Shea the runnerup-Gartrell fired seven consecutive strikes for what is believed to be an official hardwood duckpin record. The feat was accomplished a dozen years ago by Sam Del Vecchio but not under championship conditions. Gartrell struck in the last six boxes with a double in the tenth to pile up a score of 216 and thus became probably the only man in the game's history to beat 200 a third time. A while back he rolled 247 in an informal game and two seasons ago shot 210 in the Sanico League to tie the existing city Misses Record by a Pin. His 216 was one pin under the current high mark for Washington, marked up two years ago by Wendell Moyer in the B. Y. P. U. League. The stringbeanish Gartrell, who appears awkward on the mapleways and rolls a ball with apparently "nothing on it," curving slightly into the left pocket, holds the unofficial national record with 247, rolled last fall at Takoma. He topped by seven pins the previous mark achieved by Del Vecchio at the Queen Pin when a high school lad. Sam's 240 included his string of seven strikes.

In last night's whopper Gartrell had only 44 pins in the fourth frame having spared in the third. In the roll-off of his last-box strike, he counted 10 then cut a deuce through the side when a pocket hit would have given him an all-time District record for official competition. Shoots Set of 676.

Because of the spreading of interclub team matches throughout the entire season, and for another reason, the gals won't start their competition until weeks after the normal starting time of other years. Last year the Keeler Cup tourney was played at Washington on April their old stamping grounds in the 21, and the team matches started four days later. But the team tourington Brewers still are leading the neys, which were cleaned up last year in two months, will run for more than four months this year,

Last year the Keeler and Keefer Cup tourneys, at Washington and Chevy Chase, were played in April, under winter rules. Probably three woman-pro tourneys will be played this year, with several groups of women rated according to handicaps, competing with the professionals. Bob Barnett has suggested the change, in view of the wish of the women to play in these tourneys. He has proposed that women in the 1-12 handicap group play in one prowoman tourney; those in the 13-18 group in another and those with higher handicaps in another. In at least one group, the non sporting, there was a distinct reversal of judgment. The local chow rersal of judgment. The local chow chow was placed fourth in the regular group. The best of breed bulldog did not place at all. In the local group, a locally owned bulldog which was defeated for best of breed, placed best local non sporting dog. over the chow chow. To make the story more interesting, the same bulldog was picked by Joseph P. Sims, best in show judge, as best local dog in show. He is a very attractive, very sound, fawn colored dog named Springlake King John and is owned by Carey Lindsey of corporated in licensed show pro-

Owens Mills, Md. The non-sporting group saw Harvey J. Brown's little, black schip-

Katinka; Mrs. Justine Ward's puppy, Advance of Dorick, which took first in a large class, and Keith Merrill's Dinky. In German shepherds, Edmund Parry's Eden of Parrylin was winner's dog and best of winners, while his Eve of Parrylin was reserve winner's bitch. Dr. William Compton's Mark of Clarandall made his debut in the conformatiton classes by taking reserve winner's dog, and capped that by qualifying for his third leg on the Companion Dog title, and scoring first in the novice B class. Al Gardiner's Airedale. Kav's Princess of Renidrag, was winner's bitch in that breed. Mrs. Martha Hall's Irish setter, ch. Ahtram Moon Prince, was best of breed. In cocker spaniels, always the most hotly contested competition, winner's bitch, parti-colors, went to Dr. Charles R. Davis' Boban's Victoria. First in the puppy dog class black, was Harry Lustine's Forest

Manor Top Hat. Belinda Is Winner. In bulldogs, Dr. John Elvin's Be linda, the beautiful model, was first in the open class. James Allen's Bona Dea was reserve winner's bitch. R. W. Lyon's Lonarch Tugson was second in the open class. Mrs. Richard Birney's Boston terrier, Aspin Hill Honey Dew Boots was reserve winner's bitch. Ribbon winners in collies from the Washington area were James L. Flaherty's puppy, Tokalon Black Fury; Mrs. Andrew Charter's Blaze, Beech Tree Farm's Beech Tree Trail Blazer. The same kennel's Shetland sheepdog, Michael of Beech Tree, was reserve winner's dog in that breed. Morris Bassford's Doberman Pinscher, Rex of Northwind, took a ribbon in the open class. In a very large novice A obedience class Mary Edith Gregory's toy poodle, Bo Peep, carried off first Mrs. Cheever Porter's red setter, prize and a cup bigger than her-boxer, ch. Overture of Mazelaine.

For the first time at any show, the newly inaugurated groups and best in show for local dogs was tried out. This is a proceeding that will have to have many wrinkles ironed out before it can be successfully incorporated in licensed characteristics.

Washington Dogs Do Well.

Washington-owned dogs were among the important winners at the Baltimore dog show. In boxers, particularly, Washington seems to be forging to the front. Winner's dog and best of winners in this breed went to Frank Adams' Veteran of Mazelaine, while winner's bitch went to Keith Merrill's Southdown's Vous. In the various classes in this breed ribbons went to Mrs. Jouett Shouse's puppy, American Flyer of Wolf Trap; Gordon Barton's bitch, Baloran Bravenhartz Katinka; Mrs. Justine Ward's

TRANSACTIONS ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE Selected Stocks Up

Small Gains Scattered

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer NEW YORK, Feb. 2.-Selective demand kept the stock market on its feet today, but real progressive power was lacking.

Slightly irregular tendencies prevailed at the opening. Trends steadied later and, while many leaders were unchanged or a trifle in arrears, small advances were well distributed at the close.

Buying was just about as timid as selling, however, and transfers of around 300,000 shares for the full proceedings were among the smallest since June last year. Wall Street was cheered by word the United States Fleet had blasted Japanese bases in mid-Pacific and that MacArthur still was standing off the invaders in the Pacific. The speculative and investment urge, at the same time, was restrained by fears for Singapore and British reverses in Africa.

A few good business items were overshadowed, as in the past month or so, by the thought of taxes and industrial dislocations due to war economy. Labor problems began to crop up here and there as clouds on sentiment.

MORENCI, Ariz., Feb. 2.-Phelps Dodge Corp.'s $35,000,000 open-pit copper mine was in operation today after 41/2 years of preparation. Two ball mills in the big concentrator were working and other units will be placed in operation as soon as possible, reported G. C. Davis, general manager. The plant has a capacity of 25,000 tons of ore a day.

When operating at capacity the mine will produce approximately 75,000 tons of copper a year. The defense plant corporation has proposed a $28,000,000 expansion for the mine to increase its output 80 per cent. Phelps Dodge began development of the low-grade ore body in 1937. A mountain was uncapped to expose the 230,000,000-ton ore body. It was necessary to remove 40,000,000 tons

Rival Groups Debate Missourt Pacific Reorganization

I. C. C. Plan Defended By Stedman, Attacked By Alleghany Head

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.-John W. Stedman, spokesman for one group of Missouri Pacific Railroad bondholders, and Robert R. Young, chairman of Alleghany Corp., which owns another series, in opposing statements today argued the road's reorganization plan, now before security owners.

Mr .Stedman, chairman of the protective committee for the road's first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds and a supporter of the present plan, attacked a Youngsponsored alternative as having "no likelihood of success." He said it offered "an undisclosed dilution of bondholders security by the issue of approximately $90,000,000 additional bonds * * * and an undisclosed grant to Alleghany Corp. of additional new securities."

Young, whose proposal seeks to avoid profits taxes by adding income bonds to the suggested capital structure, said the Interstate Commerce Commission plan Stedman favors was "insupportable on its merits under existing facts and recent developments."

Young's Alleghany Corp. once had common stock control of Missouri Pacific but lost it in the reorganization although the directors it selected still hold office. Alleghany has left $11.152,000 of 51/2 per cent convertible bonds, which would be traded for a minority of new common stock under the I. C. C. pro-

The Alleghany plan would give the corporation income bonds plus common stock. A spokesman said the I. C. C. apparently was opposed to including income bonds in the new Bondholder balloting on the I. C. C. proposal is scheduled to end on February 17.

Egg Quotations. Down Sharply At Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Egg prices broke % to 2% cents a dozen in the wholesale market today as traders expressed uncertainty over the Government's purchasing program on shell eggs packed for export. First graded eggs sold at 31 cents a dozen, down 1½ cents. Largest loss was recorded by "checks," a lower grade, which brought 281/2 cents against 30 cents Saturday. Futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange

Trade circles said a major factor in the decline was doubt over future Government buying for export, which at present is comparatively light. This might mean that the Government had sufficient stocks on hand at the present time and was holding back until these stocks were reduced, they added.

Higher Patient Costs Seen in Hospital Tax

Policy of Default Is Suggested as Showdown on Issue

(This is the second of three articles discussing the taxation of Washington hospitals. The third will appear tomorrow.)

"We can't survive if we are obliged to carry a new tax burden." An official of one of Washington's voluntary hospitals made that statement when asked about possible effects of restoring hospital properties to the realty tax rolls. His view was shared by a number of fellow executives. The remainder would not predict flatly their institutions could not shoulder such an additional financial load but said higher charges for services would be inevitable and might produce unforseen reactions.

the District authorities responsible for re-examination of tax-exempt lists or even challenged Midnight Deadline vigorously their new interpretation of the pertinent statuatory provisions. Most merely confessed bewilderment and anxiety at an aboutface from a point of view upon which hospitals had relied for many years in working out their economic problems. They cannot hope to make satisfactory adjustments without some type of outside assistance, it was agreed.

Default Policy Advanced. One hospital official said he intended to recommend to his board that it default on tax bills if the time comes for actual demand for payment. He said he also planned to suggest joint action along this line to those occupying simliar capacities in other institutions. The official explained this would serve as a last resort for forcing the issue and determining whether the municipality would take over the properties and put them up for sale or seek positive relief for voluntary hospitals from Congress.

Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital quoted from the report of the Real Estate Tax Exemption Board and declared:

"Your committee seems to base its conclusion that the hospital is not providing needy persons gratuitously with medical care and treatment and with medicines' on the fact that 'the corporation is paid for all services rendered.' Every charitable or welfare agency which supplies gratuitous service of any sort to needy persons necessarily must receive from some source the funds which make such service possible.'

View of G. W. Presented. George Washington University pointed out it had enjoyed exemption for the property of its medical school and adjacent hospital under a code provision relating to "property that is used for educational purposes that is not used for private gain," advising:

"The medical school (teaching) hospital, an integral part of the organization and equipment of the teaching hospital."

Casualty Hospital sent a brief letter of protest over signature of its welcomed. president, Samuel H. Rogers, pointitself "an eleemosynary institution," itself eligible for exemption because

Commissioner Young Promises Assistance As Work Increases

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, moved swiftly today to cope with the congestion facing the police identification bureau shortly after midnight Saturday because renewal of most of the District's liquor licenses requires finger printing of some 15,000 liquor dealers and their employes.

He was the second recent Commissioners' regulations. At the District Building, Commissioner Young said that if Maj. Kelly needed help, he would try to assist him in getting it. Fingerprinting Scope Increases In recent months, the identification bureau has been charged with fingerprinting not only the usual criminal group, but also special and auxiliary police and others under the civilian defense program.

Under recent ruling of the Commissioners, holders of certain types of District licenses also are required to have their prints taken when their permit comes up for renewal and all persons obtaining such licenses for the first time must likewise be fingerprinted.

Groups included under the regulation are liquor licensees, operators of p.m. Wednesday at Gawler's fu- massage, pool and billiard establishneral parlor, 1765 Pennsylvania ments; private detectives, junk dealers, auctioneers and dealers in second-hand personal property. Renewals for virtually all of the liquor licenses were issued as of yesterday, thus placing the operators and their employes under obligation to be fingerprinted. An Alcoholic Beverage Control Board official estimated the number at about 15,000. Many of the other types of licenses covered in the regulation do not come up for renewal until November.

Fringe Parking Approved by House Group

Passage by Lower Chamber Will Send Bill to President

The Senate-approved bill authorizing the Commissioners to establish municipally-owned automobile parking lots on the fringe of Washington's congested business section was unanimously indorsed today by the House District Committee.

This move advanced the legislation to the House calendar. Only House approval is now needed to complete legislative action on the bill and send it to President Roosevelt for signature.

The committee favorably reported the bill after brief discussion of the parking situation.

After action on the fringe-parking bill, numerous suggestions were made to the committee for alleviating traffic conditions, including construction of subways or depressed rights of way for streetcars and

Home Guards Urged.

Col. Kutz, Engineer Commissioner, suggested organization of uniformed home guards like those in Maryland and Virginia to relieve regular policemen of guard duty at bridges, public buildings and utility plants. His suggestion followed a statement that 300 Metropolitan policemen are now being used for guard duty.

Representative Schulte, Democrat, of Indiana, whose Subcommittee on Streets and Traffic, held a series of public hearings on the parking bill several months ago, said off-street parking facilities are needed more acutely in the downtown area than on its fringe. He suggested that the Commissioners construct garages and establish parking lots in the business section to operate in competition with those privately owned. Commercial parking lot and garage owners, he charged, have taken advantage of the shortage of parking ccommodations in the congested area by "jacking up prices."

Higher Patient Costs Seen in Hospital Tax

Policy of Default . Is Suggested as Showdown on Issue

(This is the second of three ar-Mcles discussing the taxation of Washington hospitals. The third will appear tomorrow.)

We can't survive if we are obliged to carry a new tax burden." An official of one of Washing-ton's voluntary hospitals made that ton's voluntary hospitals made that statement when asked about possible Without Tax Stamps effects of restoring hospital properties to the realty tax rolls. His view was shared by a number of fellow executives. The remainder would not predict flatly their institutions could not shoulder such an additional financial load but said higher charges for services would be inevitable and might produce unforseen reactions. Few private hospital executives openly expressed bitterness toward District authorities responsible for re-examination of taxexempt lists or even challenged vigorously their new interpretation of the pertinent statuatory pro-Most merely confessed bewilderment and anxiety at an aboutface from a point of view upon which hospitals had relied for many years in working out their economic problems. Default Policy Advanced. One hospital official said he intended to recommend to his board that it default on tax bills if the time comes for actual demand for payment. He said he also planned to suggest joint action along this line to those occupying simliar capacities in other institutions. The official explained this would serve as a last resort for forcing the issue and determining whether the municipality would take over the properties and put them up for sale or seek positive relief for voluntary hospitals from Congress.

In appealing to the Commissioners, the institutions have offered data on the extent of charity work done and contended Congress in-Hospital quoted from the report of the Real Estate Tax Exemption Board and declared:

"Your committee seems to base its conclusion that the hospital is not providing needy persons gratuitously with medical care and treatment and with medicines' on the fact that 'the corporation is paid for all services rendered.' Every charitable or welfare agency which supplies gratuitous service of any sort to needy persons necessarily must receive from some source the funds which make such service possible."

View of G. W. Presented. George Washington University pointed out it had enjoyed exemption for the property of its medical school and adjacent hospital under a code provision relating to "property that is used for educational purposes that is not used for private gain," advising:

"The medical school (teaching) hospital, an integral part of the Expanded F. S. A. Program organization and equipment of the medical school, continues to be used daily by the medical school as a teaching hospital."

Virginia House Gets Bill to End State Liquor Tax

Budget Committees To Study Possible $240,000 Deficit

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2.-The Moore bill to repeal the 10 per cent State liquor-wine tax comes before the House of Delegates today as the House and Senate start a week in which committees will consider some major controversial measures.

The liquor-wine tax repeal bill, with Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville as its chief patron, was reported unanimously last week by he House Finance Committee. Mr. Moore has contended that the additional taxes, imposed in 1940 on the ecommendation of former Gov. Price, have handicapped control phases of the State liquor monopoly and that schools should not be partly dependent on alcoholic beverages for support.

$240,000 Deficit Seen. The bill does not call for repeal of the half-cent additional tax imposed in 1940 on 15-cent beer. Gov. Darden, who recommended the liquor-wine tax repeal, will meet tomorrow night with the General Assembly Budget Committee to distax and other problems in connection with making the budget. The Budget Committees saw prospects of tween appropriations recommended by the outgoing Governor and anticipated current revenues in the Legislation designed to eliminate inequalities of imposing license taxes on commercial motor vehicles. the result of a two-year study by a commission headed by Delegate Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington County, has been introduced in the Virginia General Assembly, Bearing the name of Mr. Fenwick as chief patron, the bill would give the State Highway Commission discretion to vary the load limit on certain highways and would estabiish a commission to negotiate reciprocity agreements with other States on taxation and operation of motor carriers.

By substituting a gross weight basis for licensing in place of present manufacturer's rated capacity. it is estimated about 85 per cent of all registered trucks would be benefited while the heavier groups, such as tractor-trailers, would pay substantially more than now. Mr. Fenwick said the present scale of licensing creates "a condition whereby the large tractor-trailer combination enjoys a distinct adsingle-unit truck."

Supply Units Prove Mettle in Providing For Army in Iceland

Quartermaster Corps Must Bring In Everything Soldier in Field Uses

By DREW MIDDLETON. Wide World News.

WITH THE U. S. QUARTER-MASTER CORPS IN THE FIELD, ICELAND. - Pilots, tank crews, doughboys and gunners get the cheers but the Quartermaster Corps —the diligent, largely anonymous army without banners-has won a signal victory in its fight to supply and maintain the American Army in Iceland.

Today and every day, despite snow, cold, wind, rain and gloom of night, the Quartermaster Corps sends 25 pounds of supplies, including fuel, to each soldier on the island. That may not sound like much, but figure it on terms of 1,000 men. That's 12½ tons. Figure it on a basis of poor roads, insufficient docking facilities, and a supply line 3,000 miles long.

The task has been great, not so much because of the number of men involved, but because of Iceland itself. In 1917, when the United States Army went to France, there were British and French supplies at hand, there were adequate docking facilities in three large ports. In China, Hawaii, the Philippines there were permanent garrisons which lived in some measure off the country they guarded.

Must Bring Everything.

But everything must be brought to Iceland . . . everything. There was no lumber, no coal, no excess food. The British had little enough of their own. There was one port, Reykjavik, through which the Quartermaster Corps could unload. The roads were horrible.

Somehow the Quartermaster Corps, which includes port arrange-ment in its myriad assignments, did

Every soldier must be a fighting soldier in modern warfare, where the rear areas are as open to attack by bombers, parachutists or air infantry as the front. The Quartermaster Corps is trained to fight as infantry, to act as reserve battalions for the fighting troops. Gen. Gort's dispatches from France and Flanders singled out "a mobile bath unit" which took part in the defense of St. Pol near Arras. There are similar reports of fighting done by cooks and cobblers in other Want Crack at Enemy.

The Quartermaster Corps troops

here are as eager for a crack at the enemy as the infantry, artillery or marines. Which is plenty eager. "If you want anything done, call the quartermaster" is an Army proverb. A trip through the multiple shops and depots of the corps shows it is true no matter how much sweating doughboys envy the life of ease which they firmly believe the corps leads.

The versatility of the corps is attested by the names of some of the units in Iceland. There are, among others, the following units: motor repair, shoe repair, laundry, refrigerator, depot company, light maintenance, aviation supply, bak-

Four Morticians in Unit. Then, too, there are the cooks and the men who run the "PX's," the post exchanges where soldiers flock to buy everything from beer to razors. Some other quartermaster units, such as grave registration, are not here although there are four morticians in the units.

The Quartermaster Corps handles all supplies exclusive of ammunition and technical equipment for special services.

Seventy-five items are listed as "major items" by the Quartermaster Corps. The list begins with "animals." which are non-existent in this motorized command, although some of the corps old timers have cast envious eyes on the stout Icelandic ponies for pack transport, and ends with "vegetables—dehydrated."

Only Miss Two Items. Between this alpha and omega are such articles as "seals, official, War Department," 13 types of machines from "horses, clipping" to "coffee, grinding." There are hundreds of minor items ranging from matches to mosquito netting.

Black Was First Passenger.

This first pioneering flight was followed three years later by anenough of itself to accept a paswith his valet, was flown from Amsevery flight.

As a result of these successful experiments, a regular Amsterdam-Batavia service was established in 1930. At that time the trip with the relatively slow-flying Fokker machines still took around two weeks. Five years later this had been reduced five and a half days and the frequency of the service had been increased to twice weekly.

As early as 1934, K. L. M., fully aware of the necessity of speed, and unimpeded by narrow considerations of national pride, decided to switch from the Holland-built Fokker machines to American-built Douglas planes. The Dutch had realized the value of these American planes in the hazardous Melbourne race from England to Australia, when Dutch flyers came in second with a large Douglas transport, beating any number of competitors who had joined in the race with much faster speed planes.

Pilots Became Holland's Heroes.

New commercial aifdromes sprung up all over Holland, while the focal point of the Dutch air lines, the Schiphol airdrome at Amsterdam, became one of the best equipped in the world, far outranking both Croydon and Le Bourget of those days. Private flying clubs multiplied and in all parts of the Netherlands, in the Far East and in Holland's West Indian possessions, sub-idiaries of the K. L. M. were established until at last all these territories had not only their own network of air services but were also connected with each other by Dutch air liners. The great pilots of the K. L. M., like Mol and Parmentier-not to mention a host of others-became the national heroes of modern Holland.

Then came May 10, 1940. In two days of fighting, Holland's small military air force, which at that time did not count more than a couple of hundred first line planes, went down fighting, though not until Dutch airmen and anti-aircraft gunners had shot down close to 150 Nazi machines. Meanwhile, pilots in a number of civil and military training planes managed to escape to England. On that last fateful day, May 14, scores of Dutch apprentice pilots managed somehow to fly their old trainers to England. Before then a number of men of the K. L. M. had succeeded in flying their commercial transports out of Holland.

Steal Planes Under Nazis' Noses. Even after German mastery of Holland was completed, a number of Dutch airmen, clipped as their wings might me, succeeded in taking to the air again and landing their machines on the other side of the Channel. Some stole planes from under the Germans' noses, so that the Germans were forced to issue an order instructing their own flyers to unscrew their propellers every night. Other Dutch airmen employed more elaborate strategems to follow their comrades. Thus in Amsterdam a small group of K. L. M. pilots who had to go on working for the Germans, in order to eat, paraded themselves as Dutch Nazis until they had won the confidence of their German masters to such a degree that they were allowed to take up the German machines for test flights with a big enough load of gasoline to enable them to fly to England, which they did. It was not long, therefore, before the Netherlands government in England was able to form the nu-cleus of a new Dutch air force operating in conjunction with the R. A. F. At the same time a number of trained Dutch pilots were sent to the East Indies. What is more, even during these critical times, when the demand for flying personnel has grown by leaps and bounds, Holland's civil aviation, embodied in the K. L. M., managed to keep its machines flying. Dutch commercial planes operate a service on the vital route from London to Lisbon. Dutch commercial planes still maintain contact with the East Indies by a regular service from Batavia to the new western terminus at Lydda, Palestine. Dutch planes still operate in the West Indies, and, finally, Dutch commercial pilots regularly main-

Civilian Defense Job Soon

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.-Without naming a specific date, Mayor La Guardia says he expects to relinquish his duties as director of civilian defense.

The Mayor, announcing his decision yesterday during his weekly radio address on the status of the city's civilian defense, indicated he would quit the Federal post shortly. "The organization work of the civilian defense activities throughout the country has been rather difficult and exacting." he said, "but it is now about completed.

"I still have a few things-some odds and ends-to do to complete the organization, at which time I expect to relinquish my duties as United States director of civilian defense.

Luoma Stars Program

Pianist Draws · Great Applause From Audience

The National Symphony Orchestra's concert yesterday afternoon was distinguished by the appearance of Charles O'Connell as guest conductor and of Reino Luoma, young Finnish-American planist, as soloist. Furthermore, the program was an all-Tschaikowsky one with three of his most popular works listed, the "Symphony No. 5," the plane "Concerto No. 1" and the symphonic poem, "Romeo and Juliet." This alone would guarantee two hours of musical pleasure, but with the presence of another director and his personal viewpoint and a young artist on his way up the ladder of fame, there was an added piquancy to the presentation of these familiar works.

Mr. Luoma has been heard with the symphony before but the ovation which he received after his playing of the concerto was not due to a friendly feeling but a real appreciation of his excellent performance. The young artist is superbly equipped for his profession with a dazzling type of technique that makes light of every difficulty. The poise and assurance of his playing. the beautiful ease and fluency of his passage work and his musical approach evident in nicely rounded phrases and a feeling for their individual climaxes brought a storm of applause that broke out again when, after many returns, he had possibly thought his reception was Artistic Surety. From the first massive chords, Mr. Luoma maintained the inimitable flow of the lovely melodies with artistic surety. In the matter of tonal color, of clear emotional projection and greater breadth of line, he has yet to perfect himself so as to discover new beauties for the listener as the concerto progresses. When this is gained, added to the particular flair for brilliancy which he now commands, he will have rounded out his artistic personality. His playing of the allegro con fuoco, the freest in idea and execution, gave the best impression of his present ability and his future

Tschaikowsky's symphony is the kind of music that seems to play of its own volition and that a conductor has not much more to do than follow the composer's indications. But Mr. O'Connell found something more to do with it in the further emphasis of its drama. Held in Restraint.

The sombre beginning was carefully held in restraint for greater contrast with the fire and abandon that comes later and this same thought for clearly defined extremes was to be found often in the succeeding movements. At the same time there were times when Mr. O'Connell was content to let the music play and others when he lacked a feeling for the interplay of orchestral voices. Several lovely and important bits by the woodwinds were lost in the prominence of unimportant portions by the violins. The performance was uneven, new and satisfying at one moment and too academic at another.

That Mr. O'Connell is highly regarded by the audience from his several guest appearances and that it enjoyed what he gave yesterday could be deducted from the very cordial welcome he received and the subsequent applause.

The opera presented was Bizet's "Carmen," featuring Coe Glade in the title role, Sidney Rayner as Don Jose and Mostyn Thomas as Escamillo. These three artists are especially well equipped for the roles with excellent voices and outstanding histrionic ability. Surrounded by singers who not only know their parts thoroughly but who put their heart and soul into their delineation, and directed by Carlo Peroni, who is a master of effects, they gave one of the best performances of the opera that this

Heavy Snow Slows Russian Advance, But Drive Continues

Germans Remain in Warm Houses in Fear Of Guerrillas

By EUGENE PETROV, North American Newspaper Alliance. MOSCOW, Feb. 2 (By Wireless) .-The cold, heavy blanket known in

Russia as "The Epiphany Frost" has settled over the western front. In the early morning a frosty fog of pale pink hue hangs over cities, towns, forests and the front lines. An immense sun rises in the east and the whole day long one can look at

It directly without squinting. Thick, heavy smoke, like clots of cotton, rises from the chimneys of dugouts and small houses which survived in the front area. The transformation of gaseous and liquid substances into solids takes place practically before the eyes.

Breath forms an icy crust along the edge of turned-up collars on sneepskin coats. Those unfortunates who wear mustaches are adorned with two rather beautiful but heavy icicles hanging under their noses.

War in such weather is difficult. The Germans complain of the frost. They always complain about something when matters are not to their liking. Formerly they complained that the Russian population was unwilling to understand them; that they could find no traitors; then they complained about the guerrillas who stood in their way and then about the Russian troops who did not surrender but for some reason con-

Red Army Well Equipped.

The Russians do not complain about the weather although it is no warmer on their side of the front than on the German side. The Red Army is well equipped for winter. But one must bear in mind that titanic efforts are required to turn German centers of resistance. That means to advance, not along highways, but across fields and forests waist-deep and sometimes breastdeep in snow, carrying automatic rifles and a heavy pack; to make very long marches and then go into action without a rest.

One should bear in mind that very often the men cannot even make a fire because the smoke or flames would reveal their presence.

The Germans have it much easier. They are on the defensive and have warm peasant houses. It is very difficult to dislodge them, not so much because of their stanchness as because of their fear to leave their warm houses for the cold fields.

In a village west of Mozhaisk, a woman told me that the Germans billeted in her house burnt her furniture in the stove rather than go to the forest to get firewood. They were afraid of guerrillas.

Offensive Continues The offensive which started with the routing of the Germans near Moscow is still going on. As far as I can remember, history knows of n other instance of such a long and continuous offensive-it has been going on close to two months. And yet an offensive at this time means operating in heavy frost and very stubborn resistance. Strange as it may seem after the loud German complaints, this frost hinders the advancing Russians much more than the retreating Germans. The roads are mined and protected by centers of resistance and off the roads deep snow slows

There is no place to get warm and still men are advancing. Their liberation impulse is so great that no words adequately can describe it. In faraway America it might seem that the Russian offensive is somewhat slow, although it is steady. This is a perfectly natural delusion based on a lack of familiarity with the Russian theater of war in winter. In truth, however, the speed of the offensive under the circumstances is dazzling. Only here in Moscow and at the front can one correctly apraise what it means to cover 200 kilometers (125 miles) in woods and fields covered with deep

The last time I visited the front I traveled along the Minsk highway, which resembles in width a good American road. While we were passing the rear areas, the road was swept perfectly clean. Snowsweepers rolled back and forth day and night. Road signs were fault-

Were it not for the frost and a few German planes in the sky, it would have been a pleasant promenade. But things change when you come to a village where the front line was just a few days ago. Beyond it is no-man's-land. It has been no-man's-land for three whole months. Here you could not ride and we continued on foot. Walking keeps you warm in this bit-

Quisling delivered an oblique criticism of neighboring Sweden. He said he wished as soon as possible to change the "state of affairs in which Sweden represents Norwegian citizens on behalf of the emigrant (Norwegian) government in countries with whom England is at war, even in the case of Germany."

French Demarcation Line Is Called Secret As Germany's Puppet Of Hitler's Hold on People Who Hate Him

Automatic Devices To Give Raid Alarms By Radio Studied

'Alerts' Could Be Attached To Regular Broadcasting Systems, Backers Claim

WHEATLEY. mobilization of civilian defense forces or for warning the general department of the Federal Com- the deduction for any loss from the were sold. munications Commission and the Office of Civilian Defense. O. C. D. officials said, however, it would take some time to determine whether the device is practical, and if finally approved, whether the public will be permitted to use it.

Two working models of the apparatus have been demonstrated to F. C. C. and O. C. D. officials. One of the radio alerts can be attached to regular broadcast re-ceiving sets. It will give warning even if the circuit is broken, its backers claim. The alerts will turn on radios automatically and would be useful in awakening sleeping persons in event of a raid, it was said. The apparatus will permit con-trol stations to hold radios from regular programs as long as necessary, to reassure civilians during an air raid, or to give instructions to On the question of the alerts' practicality when regular broadcast stations are ordered off the air, its proponents claim the control station need use the device from one to five seconds to give warning, and that the controlling frequencies may range from the extremely low subaudibles to the highest super-audibles it is possible to broadcast. Plyers need more than five seconds to get a "fix" on their positions from cross-bearings of radio beams, those favoring the alerts declare. There are several other systems under consideration, one of which uses regular electric transmission lines for warning signals sent to receiving apparatus in homes or air-raid wardens' offices. This system would not work where electric transmission lines were damaged, it be so endangered. Materials Are Question. Officials are seeking to determine whether manufacture of the alerts would take materials needed to supply the services with radio apparatus. In the case of the radio transmission device, it was said broadcast stations could install it without great pressure on material stock piles. The receiving apparatus in practically all of the devices uses the regular tubes and coils that are manufactured in great volume. Production of the sets, it was explained, is largely an assembly job and there are many plants now idle with former employes tobless which could mer employes jobless, which could

Pay Boost Averts Strike Of Omaha School Workers

OMAHA, Feb. 2.—A strike of custodians and engineers at Omaha public schools, set for today, was averted last night when union and School Board officials agreed to a compromise wage increase of 121/2 per cent.

The A. F. L. union employes had demanded restoration of eight-yearold pay cuts approximating 25 per

The compromise, as outlined in a School Board statement, calls for a special city election in an effort to increase school revenue by boosting the tax levy. If the levy boost is approved, the temporary wage increase will continue until September 1, when a general wage increase of about 181/2 per cent will be ordered for all school employes, including teachers.

If the election plan is rejected, the temporary 12½ per cent increase will be canceled.

Bedtime Stories By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

After Jimmy Skunk had pulled over the big piece of bark and found Old Mr. Toad under it instead of the fat beetles he had expected he had started on down the Crooked Little Path and as he ambled along slowly he chuckled. You see, he was thinking of what a hurry Mr. Toad had been in as soon as he had heard that Mh. Blacksnake had waked from his long winter's sleep and had asked after Mr. Toad. It had been funny, indeed, to see Mr. Toad try to hurry.

Suddenly Jimmy stopped chuckling. Then he stopped ambling along the Crooked Little Path. He turned around and looked back and as he did so he scratched his head thoughtfully. He had just happened to think that Old Mr. Toad had gone up the Crooked Lit-tle Path when he had left in such a hurry, and it was up the Crooked Little Path that Mr. Blacksnake had shown himself that morning. "If he's still up there," thought Jimmy, "Old Mr. Toad is hopping right straight into trouble, the very worse kind of trouble. How stupid of him not to have asked me where Mr. Blacksnake was! Well, it's none of my business. I guess I'll go on.' But he had gone on down the Crooked Little Path only a few steps when he stopped again. You see, Jimmy is really a very kind-hearted little fellow and somehow he didn't like to think of what might happen

"I hate to go way back there," he grumbled, for you know he is naturally rather lazy. "Still the Green Meadows wouldn't be quite the same without Old Mr. Toad. I should miss him if anything happened to him. I suppose it would be partly my fault, too, for if I hadn't pulled over that piece of bark he probably would have stayed there the rest of the day and been to Old Mr. Toad.

"Maybe he won't meet Mr. Blacksnake," said a little voice inside of Jimmy.

"And maybe he will," said Jimmy right out loud. And with that he started back up the Crocked Little that Jimmy Skunk hurries for anything or any one.

He had just reached a turn in the Crooked Little Path when who should run right plump into him but poor Old Mr. Toad! He gave a frightened squeal and fell right over auguration of a nightly serial dealing with a on his back and kicked foolishly as he tried to get back on his feet again. But he was all out of breath roundup of hit tunes which have struck dencer's and so frightened and tired that all he could do was to kick and kick. He hadn't seen Jimmy at all for he had been looking behind him, and he didn't even know who it was he had run into.

Right behind him came Mr. Blacksnake. Of course he saw Jimmy, and he stopped short and hissed angrily.

"What are you going to do to Mr. Toad?" demanded Jimmy. "None of your business!" hissed Mr. Blacksnake. "Get out of my way or you'll be sorry."

Jimmy Skunk just laughed and stepped in front of poor Old Mr. Toad. Mr. Blacksnake coiled himself up in the path and darted his tongue out at Jimmy in the most impudent way. He tried to make himself look very fierce. Then he MOSCOW, 9:15 Broadcast in English: RKE Jumped straight at Jimmy Skunk with his mouth wide open, but he took great care not to jump far Peruvian Music: 0AX-4Z, 6.08 meg., 49.3 m.

GUATEMALA, 11:00—News: TGWA, 9.68

But Jimmy didn't scare. He suddenly gritted his teeth in a way not at all pleasant to hear and started for Mr. Blacksnake. Mr. Blacksnake didn't wait. No, sir, he didn't wait. He suddenly turned and glided back up the Crooked Little Path, hissing angrily. Jimmy followed him a little way and he kept right on going.

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES. (David Bruce Burnstone, Merwin D. Maier, Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken, world's leading team-of-four, inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in avistence.)

A True Story

"The most remarkable hand I ever encountered was dealt in a tournament a few years ago," began our friend, Walter Malowan, well-known New York expert, as we sat around swapping stories recently. "The dealer opened the bidding with two hearts, my partner bid two spades, the next player bid three diamonds, and I passed."

"That's a good beginning," one of us murmured. You don't often see a two-bid to which the partner can respond affirmatively and against which an opponent can bid soundly.

"That was just a beginning," continued Mr. Malowan. "The dealer continued with three hearts, and my partner went to three spades. After two passes, the dealer bid four hearts; my partner, four spades. Five hearts, five spades. Six hearts, double. How do you like that for bidding?"

"How did it turn out?" we all wanted to know, after admitting that the bidding was unusual enough to satisfy the most jaded taste.

"Well, my partner-who did all the bidding and doubling-didn't take a trick. I, who had passed throughout, took five tricks. And, to top it all, the slam could have been made."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER—London Was Once 'Fort by Lagoon'

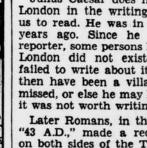

London has been bombed dozens and dozens of times. People have been killed, buildings have been wrecked and big fires have been started. Yet London still stands. Millions of people still live there, and the worst efforts of the foreign foe probably will not destroy the city's life. Of that great city I wish to tell this week-of its beginning, of some of its great buildings, and of parts of its history. The last story will speak of its importance in the modern world. No one knows just when London was started. The best we can do is to say that it appears to have been a settled place when the Romans

Julius Caesar does not tell about London in the writings he left for us to read. He was in Britain 1,998 years ago. Since he was a good reporter, some persons have thought London did not exist then if he failed to write about it. Yet it may then have been a village which he missed, or else he may have thought it was not worth writing about. Later Romans, in the year called 43 A.D.," made a record of forts on both sides of the Thames River. After a time they built a wall around one of the forts and the houses near it. They called the place Londinium.

The Roman wall closed in only small part of what we now call "Greater London." It had a length of about 3 miles. It was from 20 to 25 feet high, and was 9 feet thick.
