Allied Flyers Strafe Japanese in Burma

RANGOON, Burma (P).—American and British flyers made strong offensive sorties against Japanese positions today, causing heavy casualties. The Americans shot down three Japanese fighters which attempted to interfere, the Rangoon radio said, with no American losses. The Allied forces strafed Japanese troops on the ground near the Bilin River front and attacked enemy transport columns and supply dumps.

Dunkerque at Toulon, Vichy Told

VICHY (P).-The French battleship Dunkerque, seriously damaged during the British attack at Mers-El-Kebir in 1940, has arrived at Toulon under her own power, Admiral Jean Darlan, Vice Premier and Navy Minister, told the cabinet today. The announcement was the first indication the powerful battleship had been repaired.

Japanese Hit Own Ship, British Say

NEW YORK (P).—The British radio said today that Japanese planes scored a direct hit on one of their own ships at Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor. The radio added that 700 Japanese bomber and fighter planes had been destroyed in the Southwest Pacific war so far.

Ewing Convicted 18 Survivors Of Assault, but Tell of Leaps Escapes Death

Hears Verdict Without Emotion After Jury Deliberates 21/2 Hours

By HORACE A. KNOWLES. A verdict of guilty, but without the death penalty, was returned today in District Court against Orman W. Ewing, former Democratic national committeeman from Utah, charged with criminally assaulting a 20-yearold Government worker.

The jury of 11 men and one woman, which deliberated two hours and 25 minutes, did not elect to add the supreme penalty to the verdict, as the law provides it may do. With this omission, the maximum sentence is 30 years imprisonment.

Ewing, ashen-faced and looking very tired, took the verdict without a show of emotion. He was dressed in the dark blue suit, blue shirt and dark tie as he has been attired throughout the trial. Just before he was led from the courtroom, he Massachusetts off the Atlantic blew a kiss toward members of his coast Thursday afternoon by an family who were sitting in the front row of the filled court room. Twenty Men Are Dead in Holocaust at Sea, But He's Going Back Quickly as He Can

By CAPT. ROBERT E. CHRISTY.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 21.—We went through three hours of hell out there and 20 fine men are dead in the sea, but I saw some real heroes on a rescue ship. I'm going back to the sea, as quickly as I can, out of respect for those who died and those who risked death to save us.

Two torpedoes exploded against♣ instantly we were a mass of flames amidship. We had 50,000 barrels of Union Shop Demand gasoline and another 50,000 barrels withheld news of their arrival and of the sinking until today, presumably of Diesel oil and kerosene aboard. Of C. I. O. I tried to get out of a porthole, but it was too small. I got some were heavily bandaged, and some heavy towels, wet them and wound them around my head, face their shoulders. "Don't jump overboard," I told them. "You'll burn to death." We talked the situation over, and got a heavy mooring line which we made fast and put the end over the bow. We waited until the bow was clear of flames, then slid down the line into the sea and swam hard to get away from the ship.

I thought there wasn't a chance for life. All our lifeboats burned. We had no idea any ship would brave a submarine attack on itself to come to our aid. But the men of that other ship came on. Ten or 15-foot seas were running.

The water was warm but a cold rain was falling. I was in the water about two hours before being pulled aboard a lifeboat. Dodge, my third officer, from Baltimore, had no lifebelt. He found his clothes dragging him under so he stripped in the water, he told me He said the rescue ship missed him although he shouted as loud as he could. It went on about two miles. He gave himself up as lost, and then two Navy planes passed over. Just after the planes passed the rescue ship turned, made directly for him, a line was thrown was pulled aboard. Dodge believes the Navy flyers directed his rescue, and I think he is right. Carini's experience was about the same as mine. The 20 men who were lost didn't have a chance.

Other Enemy Ships Pounded Off Bali In Allied Offensive

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) United States and Dutch warships, aided by dive bombers and fighting planes, smashed back at Japan's invasion hordes in a flaming sea battle off the island of Bali today, and by latest accounts had already blown up a Japanese cruiser, sunk two destroyers and inflicted damaging blows on one other cruiser, two destroyers and at least four transports. The United States Navy announced this afternoon that six American destroyers accompanied by Dutch warships sank two enemy destroyers off Bali with only slight damage to the United States vessels and minor loss of personnel. The War Department had announced earlier that American bombers in a series of attacks on Japanese warships and transports off Bali shot down four Japanese planes and scored direct hits on three enemy cruisers and four transports. The Dutch had announced at Batavia that United States and Dutch warships had blown up one Japanese cruiser and seriously damaged another cruiser and two destroyers in addition to transports.

Exact Count Waits. It was possible some of these reports, especially as to damaged ships, were overlapping, but it seemed certain that the toll was one enemy cruiser and two destroyers sunk and several other warships damaged. The Navy also reported that considerable equipment salvaged from the Cavite naval base in the Philippines and from other sources has been used to good advantage in the defense of Bataan Peninsula. Rear Admiral Francis W. Rockwell, the senior naval officer fighting with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, reported that the salvaged naval equipment included three and four-inch guns. Stores of gasoline, Diesel oil and lubricating oil were saved and are being used in field operations. There was no elaboration of the terse Navy announcement of the sinking of the Japanese destroyers. Four U. S. Planes Lost. Four American planes were lost, the Army reported, in the Allied attacks in the continuing action around Bali American dive bombers were reported in action for the first time there and the American planes involved in the action represented the largest number specifically mentioned thus far in a War Department communique. At least ten heavy bombers were in the fight off Bali and seven dive bombers were mentioned as being accompanied by 16 fighter planes. Heavy artillery firing continued on Bataan, Japanese siege guns resumed fire on Manila Bay forts, and enemy planes flying frequently across MacArthur's lines dropped incendiary bombs, the War Department report said. Filipinos Resist Conquerors. A rising tide of resistance to the Japanese invaders in the occupied areas of the Philippines also was reported late today by the War Department. A' communique said that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had reported that, despite harshness of Japanese military rule, "the spirit of the liberty-loving Filipinos remains undaunted." Many native informers have mysteriously disappeared, and a secret society known as "FFF" or 'Fighters for Freedom," has been formed to foster civilan resistance.

The announcement indicated a third Japanese cruiser might have been hit, and reported direct heavy bomb hits on an unspecified number of other vessels-probably mostly transports. There was no confirmation of a report that one Allied destroyer was lost after having been hit by a torpedo.

(The War Department in Washington announced that American bombers winging into the fight off Bali, just east of Java, shot down four Japanese planes and scored bomb hits on three Japanese cruisers and four transports. Four United States planes were lost.)

Thus there was developing in the waters east of closely guarded Java and invasion-struck Bali a naval battle potentially greater than the fight for Macassar Strait. A Dutch communique said the Allied striking force consisted of Netherlands cruisers and Netherlands and United States destroyers recently grouped under the command of the Dutch Vice Admiral C. E. L. Several hits were reported scored by dive bombers on four Japanese ships, "engaged in landing operations near Denpasar," arrfield and coastal town on Southeastern Bali. Here, again, the United Nations command said, Japanese fighters clashed with the allied planes. Three Japanese planes were shot down and two Allied planes were lost, the communique reported.

Orders Priority Classification of Federal Agencies

President Roosevelt today issued an executive order designed to speed the transfer of civilian employes of the Federal Government from non-defense to defense jobs.

The order contains two specific directives: First, that there shall be established a priority classification of Federal agencies in respect to their relative importance to the war program, and, second, that competent employes shall be transferred to the most important war

Arlington Board Acts To Rezone Site for 3,000 Defense Homes

Project Will Extend Into Fairfax County Near Lucky Run

The Arlington County Board today moved to resone another 25-acre tract along the west boundary of the county to permit construction of a 3,000-unit garden homes project by the Defense Homes Corp., subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Ronald R. Locke, county zoning administrator, explained that the D. H. C. wished to start work immediately on the project, which is for defense workers and will run over onto a 10-acre tract in Fairfax County. The Fairfax County portion already has been rezoned.

In accordance with an informal agreement with the Commissioners preliminary work will be undertaken at once without waiting for formal action by the board, which requires advertisement of the hearing and a 30-day waiting period. Site Near Lucky Run.

The tract is in the southwest portion of the county on Duke street extended, near Lucky Run. The site was agreed on at a conference several days ago between members of the County Board and D. H. C. offi-The County Board also was scheduled to consider a proposal that the District Alley Dwelling Authority be granted permission to erect about 1,700 prefabricated housing units in Arlington. John Ihlder, executive officer of the A. D. A., was to appear before the board to explain the County Manager Frank C. Hanra-

Rescue Squad Head Named. Mr. Hanrahan also named Mackall R. Bruin, captain of the Jefferson rescue squad, to head the defense rescue squad service. Dr. Hutchinson and Mr. Dickson served in similar capacities under the old setup named by former Gov. Price. The appointment of Mr. Bruin fills a new post which had not existed under the old organization.

Mr. Hanrahan said that work of the auxiliary police force is progressing rapidly and that class meetings to train volunteers are being held weekly. The auxiliary fire service is being organized now. A training course will be started next week, Chief Air-Raid Warden F. Free-

Salvage for Victory Parade Is Reviewed At Capitol Plaza

Army Units Join in Launching Campaign To Save Scrap Here

Army motorized units, bands, floats and junk trucks paraded by the Capitol this afternoon to publicize a "salvage for victory" campaign sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce and the District Salvage Committee. In the line of march, led by motorcycle policemen and the Police Boys' Club Band, were Army command cars, jeeps and transport trucks, along with some 30 decorated commercial trucks loaded with war salvage material. The parade started at the salvage depot of the Southwest Citizens' Association, 331 G street S.W., and moved by reviewing officials on the Capitol Plaza before disbanding in front of the Social Security Admin-istration Building. The parade was paced by two horse-drawn junk carts. Loaded with old tires, salvaged metals, paper and cloth, the vehicles bore such banners as "Make Weapons Out of Waste-Get in the Scrap,' and "Save, Give, Sell, Serve." A few spectators gathered along the curb in the high wind to cheer the procession. News photographers sent to help publicize the salvage campaign were stopped from taking pictures on the Capitol Plaza by Capitol policemen who said they were under orders to "clamp down" on the newsmen because of an "unfavorable" story about alleged "laxity" in a local daily. At the same time, amateur photographers took pictures at will. The ban against the newsmen, it was said, was part of new police restrictions.

Brazil Protests to Nazis On Sinking of Two Ships

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 21 .-Brazil has protested to Germany over the sinking of two Brazilian ships by Nazi U-boats, it was learned today, and the cabinet has been called to meet tonight to consider what action will be taken if Germany fails to reply or answers "unsatisfactorily.'

The protest was forwarded by way of the Portuguese Government which has represented Brazil's interests with the Axis powers since diplomatic relations were broken off in accord with the Rio De Janeiro American conference It was understood the measures which Brazil might consider include the arming of merchant ships, convoving of merchant ships and extension of Brazilian air and naval patrols along the coast.

Youth, 19, Accused Of Attacking Woman, Shooting at Police

Theft of Two Cars Also Reported in Wild Night In Sycamore Hills

A 36 - year - old Government worker was seized and criminally attacked early today in her Sycamore Hills (Md.) home near Glen Echo by a youth who then stole money and keys from her purse and fled in her automobile. A few hours earlier he had disappeared into woods nearby after shooting at Montgomery County police and stealing another car.

Subsequently, a youth booked as James Anderson, 19, was arrested in the attack victim's car at a "drive-in" restaurant in Arlington County, Va., at the south end of Highway Bridge. A target pistol and 1,000 rounds of ammunition were found in the automobile.

Capt. Mark H. Raspberry of the Park Police said the suspect made an oral admission of attacking the woman three times, of taking her money and car and of stealing the gun and ammunition at an earlier

Police said a check of his record showed he was on probation from District Court and had been arrested on numerous occasions here.

Police With Rifles Sent. The night's activities in the Sycamore Hills area, which included dispatch of a special police detail armed with rifles and tear gas, began at 11:42 p.m., when the Bethesda police station received a call from some one identifying himself

The prosecution's selection of June, 1936, as the month in which France should have started strengthening defenses drew fire from Blum, one of five leaders of responsibility for its fall before Adolf Hitler's legions in 1940. It was in 1936 that Blum's popu-

Blum, Assailing Trial, Mother Opposes Court Order For Amputation of Girl's Arm

SEATTLE, Feb. 21.—In face of a mother's opposition, Washington's highest court must deside whether a judge can order the amputation of an 11-year-old girl's arm.

Patricia Hudson, born with her left arm disproportionately large, is the pawn of the quarrel that has aligned her mother against her four brothers and five sisters.

The children brought the case before Judge William G. Long in Juvenile Court here. Patricia, wearing a cape to shield her left arm, supported their appeal for an amputation order. Seattle doctors to whom Judge Long submitted the case expressed the fear that death would be almost certain within a few years if the arm were not amputated. After arguments yesterday, which showed the arm to be 10 times the weight of the other, the court assigned the case for a written opinion. The mother, Mrs. Patricia Hudson, the old French republic accused of asked the Supreme Court to prohibit an order for an amputation. "I'm afraid the operation will kill her," the mother explained. "But and even sews. She doesn't run and even if I knew that she would come hide when people come to the door,

U. S. Could Launch 3 Warships a Day, Andrews Declares

Two Destroyers Slide Down Ways at Kearny And Two at Boston

By the Associated Press. KEARNY, N. J., Feb. 21.-Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the eastern sea frontier, forecast yesterday that three warships could be launched daily in the United States "if the need be." He spoke in connection with the launching of two more fighting ships for the Navy, the destroyers Lansdowne and Duncan. They glided down the ways into the Hackensack River at the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. 11 minutes apart. The keels were laid six months and 20 days ago.

Symbol of Reckoning. Admiral Andrews, who was unable to attend the ceremony, sent to Comdr. George A. Holderness, assistant supervisor of shipbuilding at the yard, a letter which hailed the twin launchings as "a powerful symbol of the day of reckoning for the enemies of this free country." Admiral Andrews wrote:

"Let us note here that this is information we are willing for enemies to have. Such is the will and mind of our aroused people that it is entirely possible for us to launch two warships every day in this country and if the need be we could gird ourselves to make it a daily triple event. • •

Mrs. Hunt Sponsors Landsdowne. "Let our enemies also note that they have yet to meet face to face the full might of the American Navy. Let them realize that when meeting face to face comes the war will be over because the Navy is going to destroy them."

The launchings were accomplished with war-time simplicity. The Duncan, sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Clark Thayer of Wellesley, Mass., was named for Comdr. Silas Duncan, a New Jersey native who fought in the War of 1812.

Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne Hunt of Washington was sponsor for the Lansdowne, named for her father, Lt. Comdr. Zachary Lansdowne, who died when the dirigible Shenandoah, which he commanded, crashed in Ohio on September 3, 1925.

Witness Says Viereck Called Nazis Here From Lundeen Office

Senator's Ex-Secretary Testifies Publicist Asked for Material

By CARTER BROOKE JONES. As the Government neared the close of its case against George Sylvester Viereck, charged in Dis-trict Court with concealing propaganda activities in his registration statements as a German agent, the record today bore testimony of two eyewitnesses who linked the late Senator Lundeen, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, closely with the accused publicist and author.

The trial was in recess today until Tuesday. The Government had not quite completed its evidence at adjournment yesterday, but Special Prosecutors William Power Maloney and Edward J. Hickey, jr., indicated they probably would close within an hour Tuesday.

Edward Corneaby, formerly secretary to Senator Lundern, testified late yesterday to watching Viereck telephone, the German Embassy.

Envelope Arrives.

On Monday, March 25, Mr. Corneaby said, he was in his office, and messenger arrived with a letter in an envelope bearing the return address of Hans Thomsen, then Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy. It was addressed to Viereck, but when the messenger was told Viereck was not there, the witness added, he agreed to leave it for the Senator. The Senator was out, said Mr. Corneaby, and he opened the envelope and found on thin paper material which later appeared as a speech by Senator Lundeen entitled "Lord Lothian Against Lord Lothian." (The late Lord Lothian was British Ambassador to the United States.) Mr. Corneaby said he clipped the envelope together and left it on Senator Lundeen's desk. The witness identified a passage in a later issue of the Congressional Record containing the material which he had read "and a great deal more." Prosecutor Maloney then showed the witness a booklet bearing the title, "Lord Lothian Against Lord Lothian," which, previous evidence had indicated, was printed by Flanders Hall, a publishing firm to which Viereck had advanced $22,-500, according to its books. Mr Corneaby said he had examined the booklet and it was substantially the speech Senator Lundeen gave in the Senate and it contained much of the material which originally came from the German Embassy. and in May returned to Washingseveral visits he made to Senator Lundeen's office, the witness said, he found Viereck there, and Viereck went into the Senator's private office, leaving a brief case behind. Mrs. Speilman said she did research work for some of the speeches and she described one manuscript she and the Senator had prepared and submitted to Viereck.

"When it came back it was changed all around," she added. Special Prosecutor Hickey also brought out from this witness that several times she got George Hill, formerly a clerk in the office of Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, on the phone and Senator Lundeen and then Viereck talked to him. She said she heard Viereck discussing with Hill over the phone a mailing list for the speech called "Six Men and War," which has been high lighted in the Government's case.

Corroborates Hill Testimony.

This corroborated, in part, the testimony of Hill, who said Senator Lundeen and Viereck arranged for him to use Mr. Fish's mailing list of 125,000 names to send out the speech under the Senator's frank. Hill is under sentence of two to six years for perjury before the grand

Anniversary Marked By Corcoran Cadet Corps Veterans

Members Recall Old Days; Honor Founder, Maj. Edwards, tomorrow

The Corcoran Cadet Corps Veterans' Association last night celebrated the 59th anniversary of the formation of the organization, which was one of the distinctively uniformed individual military organizations of the city which preceded the establishment of the organized National Guard. Meeting in Columbus Hall, 920 Tenth street N.W., warriors of former conflicts, and even one in the current conflict, reminisced of the early days of the unit, when athletics were as much a part of company activities as was military drill. The Corcoran Cadet basket ball team was said to be one of the only undefeated teams in the city at the time, but members laughingly admitted that some of the games were successful for them by such ruses as turning out the lights.

Lt. Col. Lockhead Speaks.

Lt. Col. Frank L. Lockhead, now in the Regular Army, arrived from Fort Benning, Ga., for the event, and recalling that early in the meeting the association had passed a resolution offering the services of its memthem that this is a young man's war. He said there are many civilian activities in which they might participate, among them the purchase of Defense bonds, and he urged them to get into these activities.

Col. Lockhead said the United States Army had a good organization, and he did not think it would be many more months before it will make its opponents realize that they are really in a war. He assured them that there was absolutely nothing to be afraid of, but every one would have to roll up his sleeves and get down to work, and that it would take time.

McDaniel Describes Brushes With Death bers in any capacity in which they might be useful in the conflict, told In Fleeing From Singapore to Batavia

C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press correspondent and last American reporter to leave Singapore before its fall, has arrived safely in Batavia after a series of breath-taking experiences. He tells his story in this dispatch, the first direct word from him since he filed his last cable from Singapore at 4:45 a.m., E. W. ary 16, we resumed our slow journey up-river. They were taking no chances on the surprise approach of an enemy patrol. Dawn found us on top of a volcanic range which forms the backby trees howled their morning hymn accompanied by a low fever. When on the northwestern, western filed in Circuit Court here by Attorney Louis B. Arnold of Washing.

A police report said that the civet cat crossed the road and we didn't break down.

At midafternoon we reached Northwest Sumatra. The hotels were full of refugees from Malaya and Southern Sumatra, but a good Dutch lady took us in and gave us wholesome food.

Officials held little hope of our getting out, but the next morning the indefatigable public relations officer rushed in with the news that there was a slim chance of getting away by warship if we immediately pushed on.

No taxi was available so we hired pony carts and drove to the railway station during a beating of tomtom -which are used to sound air raid

Half an hour later we disentrained at the port. The effects of an earlier bombing were visible everywhere Twice during the day an alert was sounded but no planes appeared. Later in the afternoon we saw the most beautiful sight I ever expect to see—a British destroyer hull down on the horizon steaming full speed toward the harbor

Half an hour later the destroyer was alongside, officers quickly and efficiently shepherded us aboard. There were allotted spaces for 176 men, women and children-British soldiers and sailors, American and Dutch men from Sumatran oil fields, rubber planters and six weary members of the last party from Singa-

Fewer Mortalities Seen With Advances In Obstetrics

Amnesia Methods Cited At Post-Graduate Clinic of G. W. U. Medical School

Notable advances in the science of obstetrics which may result in lower maternal mortality and fewer still births were described before the postgraduate clinic of George Washington University med-ical school here today by Dr. Clif-ford B. Lull of the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

Dr. Lull spoke specifically on the use of analgesic agents to reduce the pains of childbirth. In spite of claims to the contrary, he said, absolutely safe and painless labor still is impossible. But, he explained, at least a 90 per cent amnesis can be produced by the skilled obstretrician in the proper surround-ings. This means, he stressed, a hospital with a well-equipped obstetrical service: Use of painkilling drugs usually is not advis-

Proper Training Necessary. The drugs now generally used, Dr. Lull said, are the so-called parbiturates—sodium amytal, nembural and paradehyde. It is inadvisable even for the skilled obstetrician to use them, he insisted, until the process of labor is well advanced. Otherwise the physician purpose. The prospective mother falls asleep. Children's Museum To Be Opened for Public Tomorrow

Officials, Diplomats And Families Attend Preview of Activities

From the hammered tin sign tinkling in the wind outside to the 3-foot sombrero tacked high on the wall on the second floor, the new Children's Museum of Washington, at 4214 Massachusetts avenue N.W., is for children. A warning to parents that they must pretend for the moment at least that they are children, too, is pinned above one of the showcases in the dollroom. The public will be admitted to the museum from 2 to 5 p.m. tomorrow; the rest of the week, except Monday, from 3 to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The museum will be closed on Mondays.

The plan of the Museum Committee to keep it a children's affair was apparent yesterday and this morning as District officials, diplomats and their children were invited in among telephone men and the smell of paint for a preview. Miss Mildred Manter, director, and Mrs. Anne Olmstead Peet, exhibit director of the Boston Children's Museum, special helpers at the museum, followed their first small guests about to get their reactions to the paintings, dolls, stuffed South American condors and hammered

Anne, already attending art school, was fascinated by the paintings of "Nono," a 12-year-old native boy of Santo Domingo. His work, along with work done by school children of Boston and Cincinnati, is displayed in two rooms on the second floor.

Anne will be able to attend sketching classes at the museum, said Miss Matilda Young, museum secretary. If her work is good enough, it will go on exhibit. Slow Preparations

Although they came from different sources and were not intended to have any coincidental significance, two news items in Wednesday's Star deserved to be read in relation to each other. The first item was President Roosevelt's press conference warning that enemy attacks not only on coastal cities but on places as far inland as Detroit are possible. He said that New York City might be shelled and Detroit might be bombed by air, in discussing defensive preparations being taken against attack on our mainland.

The other item told of recommendations made by Civilian Defense Director Landis for improvement of the local air-raid protection system. Emphasizing Washington's proximity to the Atlantic Coast, Mr. Landis called for an effective control center (the present one is incomplete), for command post exercises to develop teamwork among various defense branches, for large-scale mobilization drills, for formulation of a definite blackout plan and for other

Thus, while the President directs attention to the possibility of enemy raids, it should interest our enemies to know—and they probably already do know-that the Capital of the United States, more than ten weeks after Pearl Harbor, still lacks an adequate air-raid defense system. The facts are that Washington still is awaiting installation of effective sirens, is still in the planning stage respecting blackouts and has yet to perfect its mobilization program. It | minority, organized in the All-India is true that commendable progress | Moslem League, fears Hindu dominahas been made, considering the many handicaps which have confronted the local organization, but it likewise stand on their hereditary is clear, too, that vastly greater strides must be taken if the city is to be spared confusion and chaos in any air raid which an inconsiderate enemy might launch before we are

South African Effort

One of the production miracles of the present conflict is that of the Union of South Africa. The portion of the British Commonwealth of Nations so designated has a population of only 2,250,000 people of European stock-English and Dutch-yet it has developed volunteer defense forces numbering 163,500 men and created an industrial organization which is furnishing needed supplies not only for its own army but likewise for imperial troops in several other parts of the globe.

Immediately following the declaration of war by the Parliament of the Union on September 4, 1939, Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts and his director general of war supplies, Dr. H. J. van der Bijl, undertook to "co-ordinate existing facilities for cooperative mass production of heavy goods never before turned out in the country and then to arrange for the construction of new plants as quickly as possible." The workshops of the gold mines, the explosive factories, the railway workshops, power generating plants of different types in different places, an iron and steel corporation and an electricity supply commission organized for the purpose were brought together in one single effective partnership. To indicate the success of the endeavor it is necessary merely to mention that iron and steel production has risen from 350,000 tons to almost 600,000 tons. This means that the capacity of a basic industry has been approximately doubled. Hence it has been feasible for South Africa to build armored cars at the rate of 200 a month. The motors come from North America, but the rubber tires for troop transport vehicles, supply wagons, ambulances, etc., are locally made. Coincidentally, howitzers and anti-aircraft guns are being assembled with speed undreamed a few months ago. A Transvaal concern is making gun sights for Britain while shops at the gold mines are machining heavy bombs and shells and constructing pontoons for use in the Middle East

As an illustration of the encouraging results of wise planning and enthusiastic performance, George H. Swingler, writing in Bulletins From Britain, cites shoe manufacturing. "In 1939," he says, "the absolute capacity of all factories in the Union was 4,000 pairs of army boots per week. In three months the volume increased to over 80,000 pairs a month. Still it rose until the British government was able to place an order for 1,750,000 pairs of this famous boot for use by the imperial forces from the Western Desert to fabricated. Contributions of agriculture and the dairy industry have included vastly increased quantities of sugar cane, wheat and other grains, vegetables, fruits, meats, butter and milk for export.

The motives which inspire the people of the Union-women and children as well as men-are summarized by General Smuts in words which are echoed, surely, in America: "We now go forward as crusaders. · · · to fight for freedom itself, the freedom of the human spirit, the free choice of the individual to shape his own life according to the light that God has given him. The world cause of freedom is also our cause and we shall wage this war for human freedom until God's victory crowns the end."

Imperiled India

With the Japanese invasion of Burma rolling steadily forward, with heavy Japanese naval units reported in the Bay of Bengal, and with British ports and naval bases as far south as Ceylon preparing for possible Japanese attacks. India comes into the spotlight as a potential theater of conflict. Therewith arises one of the most complex and difficult problems which has developed anywhere during the course of the pres-

Viewed on the map, this vast triangular peninsula of Asia, shut off from the rest of the continent by the mountain barrier of the Himalayas, has a basic geographical unity. But this appearance is deceptive, for India should be regarded as a subcontinent rather than a country. It is, in fact, a world in itself, inhabited by various races speaking different languages, and deeply divided by spiritual lines of caste and creed. Of its almost 400,000,000 inhabitants, two-thirds are Hindus and fully onefourth are Mohammedans, the balance being made up of other religious sects, including a small Christian minority. Though Britain controls the whole area, nearly one-third of India consists of native states governed by nearly 600 princes, great and small, under treaty rights with the British government.

For nearly half a century British rule, once unquestioned, has been challenged increasingly by a movement calling itself nationalist and demanding full self-government, culminating logically in complete independence. This movement is mainly Hindu and is politically represented by the Congress party, led until recently by Mahatma Gandhi but now directed by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. But the Mohammedan the ultraconservative native princes rights and further complicate the situation.

All this has confused and crosscut India's war effort. Yet this effort has been considerable. Since the start of the war the native Indian Army has been increased from some 250,000 to nearly 1,000,000. Many of the best units, however, are serving abroad, from North Africa to the Far East, while other good troops have to be held on the Northwest frontier to shield it from possible invasion by the wild tribes of Afghanistan, India's historic barbarian marauders. Though modern industry has developed in India to a considerable extent, heavy war equipment such as tanks and airplanes are not locally manufactured. Thus, the Indian defense forces within the country are not in the best position to resist a large-scale Japanese invasion.

Indeed, India is potentially threatened with invasion from both sides. Axis grand strategy is reported to be planning a gigantic pincer movement, with the Germans driving through the Near East and meeting their Japanese allies somewhere in India. Even three months ago, such an idea might have sounded fantastic. But the fall of Singapore and the threatened loss of Burma, India's eastern bulwark, has brought it within the bounds of possibility. The coming months may witness the most grandiose bid for empire which the predatory Axis powers have yet conceived.

Wartime Transportation

The understanding reached by Defense Transportation Director Eastman and Attorney General Biddle on the extent to which the transportation agencies of the country can act jointly to meet the demands imposed by war without running afoul of the anti-trust laws, should prove helpful to the carriers while at the same time making for better service to the public.

The carriers will not be able to undertake any new functions such as joint service, routings, diversions and the like, except at the order of the director, but they will be free to cooperate to the fullest extent in planning for the tasks that lie ahead, and at the specific suggestion of Mr. Eastman will be permitted to exercise some discretion in carrying out the general policies he may outline. With an eye to guarding against combinations that would tend unduly to restrain competition, the Justice Department is reserving the right to pass on any plans developing from these emergency measures, thereby following the course adopted with respect to other industries in which a certain amount of freedom from the ordinary restrictions of the Sherman Act has been granted in the interest of the defense program. It may be assumed safely, however, India." Thousands of steel helmets | that arrangements to facilitate the | that we can survive this blow; great- | But, Department of Agriculture spe- | from the ground. Thus there is no im- | tion is. will be approved by the Justice Department.

In urging more liberty of action for the industry on the Attorney General, Mr. Eastman took occasion to praise the showing that has been made in handling the war traffic burden, declaring that the efficient performance thus far gives no grounds for fears that Federal control again will be necessary. This is a highly encouraging note, particularly in the light of the experience with Government operation of the railroads in the First World War.

District Milk Price

Using the same arguments that won them a price advance last year, dairymen supplying milk for the District once again are asking the Agriculture Department for an increase in the price they receive for milk. And if this request of the producers should be granted now, there is no reason to suppose that they will not return a year hence with another request for a price advance, for the conditions which they cite in justification of their position may be expected to grow progressively more acute.

The farmers contend that as the population of their market area rises, the cost of milk production likewise increases. Yet it was conceded yesterday that the so-called basesurplus milk production plan of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association tends to discourage greater production by requiring the farmer to accept a lower-thannormal price for milk produced in excess of his quota. Thus, if there exists a surplus of milk or unused capacity for greater production, it would seem that the needs of a mounting population could be metand without increasing the costs of the producers—by the simple expedient of increasing the quota of milk which each farmer is permitted to dispose of at the normal price. If this be not the case, however, then it would seem that this is the time to give serious consideration to the advisability of opening the local market to milk produced outside the Washington milkshed.

The farmers who supply milk to the District already receive a price substantially higher than that paid producers for the Baltimore or New York markets, the common explanation being that the exceptionally high standards which the District Health Department has laid down for this market justify the greater price. In other areas, where prices are lower, the standards of the United States Public Health Service

Undoubtedly these latter standards in some respects are not as high as those prescribed for the District. Yet, neither can it be doubted that milk produced under United States Public Health Standards has long been used with satisfactory results in other communities, and if the present suppliers of the Washington market cannot satisfy the rising demand without exacting higher prices it well may be desirable to open this market to outside milk.

Maryland Taxes

The suggestion by Governor O'Conor of Maryland that real estate taxes levied by the State should be abolished is meeting with the popular response that might be expected, especially at this time. Both the Prince Georges County and the Worcester County Commissioners have indorsed the proposal and asked that it be brought before the State Legislature. Local boards naturally are pleased over the prospect of the State withdrawing from the field of real estate taxation in favor of counties and other small taxing Governor O'Conor already has taken a step in the direction of abolishing the State real estate levy by authorizing a cut of 40 per cent in the rate for 1942 and 1943. How much farther the State can go along that line after next year depends on numerous factors. The matter is closely allied with the State debt, for Maryland's State levy against real estate is used for debt service, just as the State gasoline tax is used for highways.

The State constitution provides that no debt shall be contracted by the General Assembly unless provision is made for taxes sufficient to discharge the principal in fifteen years. That means a real estate tax, or some other tax, unless the State debt is abolished altogether-a goal hardly likely to be realized in the near future. The O'Conor administration points with pride to a substantial reduction in the State debt. The debt was $48,157,000 in 1939. By September of next year it will have been cut to $31,725,000, a reduction of about 33 per cent. This, however, does not take into consideration toll bridge bonds which many consider a definite moral, if not a legal, obligation of the State. Regarding his tax elimination plan, Governor O'Conor has said he believes "it will be entirely possible to have the State function on a pay-asyou-go basis so that real estate taxation will not be necessary to meet carrying charges or for amortization.' The Governor is expected to be a candidate for re-election and some skeptics may regard such assertions as "campaign oratory." Perhaps that attitude is unjustified, but it seems rather evident that the O'Conor proposal should be regarded as a longrange ideal rather than a goal that can be attained in the near future.

There emanates the appalling news that ladies' hosiery will be restricted to four shades only. It is guessed

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

About 50 days are required to replace fully the pint of blood which thousands of Americans now are giving to the Red Cross for the Army and Navy.

For the average healthy individual there are no bad effects.

These conclusions have just been reported to the American Medical Association by Drs. Willis M. Fowler and Adelaide P. Berer of Iowa State University. They are based on tests with 200 blood donors, mostly robust young medical students. The doctors determined the rate of regeneration of hemoglobin, the ironcontaining red pigment in blood, which is the carrier of oxygen to the tissues.

It was found that the average healthy man regained the lost hemoglobin within 50 days without any treatment. Those whose blood was especially rich in the pigment recovered at about the same rate as the others. In other words, the experimenters say, there is no way of determining beforehand how soon a person will recover.

Subsequent blood donations, they say, "may be given with safety as soon as the hemoglobin has returned to its original level, regardless of the elapsed time. In the majority of donors an interval of two months will suffice, but about 25 per cent of our series required a longer period. We did not feel that the regeneration of hemoglobin became slower after multiple donations than it had been

"The administration of small amounts of iron had a surprising effect. The rate of regeneration was increased nearly 50 per cent and there was a drastic shortening of the recovery period, so that subsequent blood donations were possible after a much shorter interval. With this medication the blood hemoglobin content in 93.5 per cent of the subjects returned to normal by the end of eight weeks.

"The effect of the iron, however, was transient. The donor was benefited only for one or two recovery periods, so that continued administration did not maintain the rate of regeneration above the original. There was no evidence of the exhaustion of the bone marrow (where red blood cells are formed) while the subjects were under observation.

"The rate of regeneration was slightly less rapid in women than in men and the time necessary for recovery was somewhat longer. Female donors should be allowed longer intervals between

Dr. . Charles Ridley, director of the Singapore Botanical Gardens, in 1906 made one of the greatest discoveries in industrial history-the so-called "wound reaction" of the hitherto despised hevea

When the Brazilian rubber tree was tapped, a very small amount of latex the collector is a business man. would ooze from the wood, coagulate and close the wound. It was not considered a worth-while source of the material for which the world demand was increasing so rapidly

Dr. Ridley found that when the crust of latex was shaved off, after a day or two. the flow would increase. When the process was repeated several times there would result a constant flow far greater than that from any other rubber plants.

Naturally, extensive plantings were made in Malaya. But the charge that the British and Dutch deliberately plotted together to steal the New World rubber crop is hardly fair. It was a pure happenstance that the wound reaction was discovered in Singapore and that the leaf blight was unknown in that part of the world. Actually, the first plan was to develop the crop, with improved varieties from Wickham's seeds, in British and Dutch Guiana. Thousands of acres were planted. The leaf blight disease wiped out the plantations in a few years. The investors were ruined. Rubber producers turned rather reluctantly to the Far East again.

Brazil has been criticized for allowing what now is perhaps the world's most valuable crop to slip from her hands. Actually, she had no choice. Not ever the British or the Dutch could raise rubber in South America, in view of the primitive state of the science of plant breeding at the time.

It must always be remembered, Department of Agriculture rubber specialists say, that if it had not been for the Malayan plantations, with their freedom from leaf blight, development of the American automobile industry would have been impossible.

Breeders improved the yield. Heves was overplanted. The price of rubber fell below the possibility of profitable production. British and Dutch were forced to defend themselves against outside competition.

Before 1934 they had shared their scientific improvements freely with the world. An American tire company obtained all of their choicest varieties in 1933 and started plantations in the Philippines. The next year Great Britain, Holland, France and Siam concluded an agreement to allow no more seeds of seedlings to be exported.

Fortunately, a large stock of the best varieties up to 1934 was propagated in the Philippines. It is from this stock that millions of "clones"-bud-grafted seedlings-have been brought to South America in the past two years. The last large shipment arrived safely at San Francisco a few days after the Pearl Harbor disaster. The plants are the result of 30 years of extensive research. Some better ones have been reported from Malaya since 1934. The stock may have been destroyed during recent days. One tree, in particular, is reported to produce 50 pounds of rubber a year, against an average of about 15 pounds. It never has been grown on a commercial basis.

When the Ford company first went into Brazil, it made plantings of stock obtained from the neighborhood of Fordlandia. The leaf blight took a heavy toll. It so happened that this was very near the locality from which the first hevea seeds were gathered by the British botanist, Wickham.

Since then blight-free trees which have developed a natural resistance to the disease have been selected and the plantings have been increased with tested Malayan stock. They have remained remarkably free from the fungus and are beginning to give good yields.

Any book list is interesting to book lovers, even when upon a subject in which the reader is not particularly interested.

This is because a book, in itself, is an interesting thing. We know no more interesting thing to do in a friend's house than to examine his books. In many offices, rows of books are to be seen, and these offer entertainment to the visitor. Often while he is "cooling his heels" in the anteroom, he may

Old books look just as interesting as any, in these baskets where books for the soldiers are being collected. Stop to browse over these sometime, in one of your favorite stores. You may be surprised at some people's ideas of what would interest soldiers. Surely only an occasional soldier would be interested in "Mother Goose," a volume on top of one pile. Yet "Mother Goose" is good verse of its kind, and it is said to have had a political significance at the time of writing.

Argues for Reward Claims Of Panama Canal Builders.

Frank R. Kent, one of your writers, had this to say in The Star of February 9, 1942, regarding the passage of pension legislation: "For example, there is the proposal to pension all civilian workers or their widows—who were engaged in construction of the Panama Canal 28 years ago. This would add close to two million a year to the pension load. Through insistence of Senator Pepper of Florida it was jammed through the Senate and now goes to the House." I am sure that Mr. Kent did not understand the purpose of this legislation designed to reward the citizens who rendered service in the building of the Panama Canal. In the first place it is not a pension-it represents a reward for unusual, meritorious and dangerous service rendered by the Canal builders for our country. It was not jammed through the Senate by Senator Pepper, as Mr. Kent states; as it was sponsored jointly by Senators Pepper and Clark of Missouri and it had the unanimous approval of the Inter-oceanic Canals Committee of the 75th, 76th and 77th Congress. It was twice passed by the Senate. I will not debate the justice of this legislation but will refer to a statement by Senator Clark on the floor of the Senate on February 3, 1942: "All the pending bill would do would be to give to the diminishing number of survivors of those engaged in that very hazardous and heroic achievement, the construction of the Panama Canal, comparable treatment with that given others, who, in many cases, as I have said, did precisely the same kind of work during the construction period." The yearly cost of the legislation would not be close to $2,000,000 annually, as Mr. Kent intimates. From the most reliable information obtainable the cost for the first year would not exceed $750,000, which would decline rapidly until it was finally terminated in a few years because the average age of the beneficiaries is J. J. BRIDGES.

Thinks Americans Have Missed British "Joy and Confidence."

To the Editor of The Star:

Just as Americans traditionally have been known to be a lively and happy people with unbounded confidence in overcoming obstacles, just so have they always failed to find any joy in grim or serious things. It is characteristic of u not to understand the unsmiling British humor. Anything without a smile is dull.

Winston Churchill inspired joy and confidence in the English hearts by his famous "blood, sweat, and tears" phrase. I pictured them at that time with their mouths firmly set and radiance in their eyes. Have we come to know this joy? I am afraid not. We do not have it in the way our ancestors did when Thomas

Paine wrote: "These are the times that

Now, laughing at adversity is a fine trait, but when it defies realities it becomes the height of folly. Until we stop, as we did for a moment after Pearl Harbor, and face the issue squarely, and feel an inner glow of radiance for doing our particular job, large or small, until then we are asking things to get worse before they get better. Complains About Transfer System as Part Of Local Transportation Problem. To the Editor of The Star:

One of the major faults of the transportation system in Washington is the system of transfers. It seems to me that there are, in general, enough streetcars and enough buses, but their routes are planned for the greatest number of transfers. This condition obtains in all parts of the city.

About a year ago I wrote to the Capital Transit Co., suggesting changes which might be made in the routes, and I received a very courteous reply. They stated that my residence was in a newly developed part of the city and it was difficult to get good transportation to Last month I wrote, as an individual, to the Public Utilities Commission, expressing the same ideas, and also stating that some of the transfer points are very dangerous. The reply which I received was very badly written and almost insulting. It stated that it was an economy for the streetcars to have short runs and that since the Priorities Commission had demanded greater economy, if there were any changes, there would be more transfers rather than fewer. From its name, I would take it that the Public Utilities Commission is for the public interest, but the convenience of the public does not seem to be considered It certainly does not increase the morale of the people of Washington to have longer working hours and jaded nerves from such long tiresome hours on streetcars and buses.

Wants Men Put to Work Before Women Are Drafted. To the Editor of The Star:

The proposal to appropriate $300,000,000 for the benefit of those who have become unemployed due to the defense program is indefensible, considering the hue and cry-in which Mrs. Roosevelt joins-to register and employ women in the factory and on the farm. Before women are drafted to do farm

Victory Now Being Forged By Industry

U. S. Is Climbing to Peak in Aluminum And Magnesium

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Not all the war news is in the headlines about the actual fighting. The real war news of 1943 is being made now-almost every day-by the phenomenal record which American industry is achieving on the produc tion side. Of outstanding importance to those big fourengined bombers andthehuge quantities of incendiary bombs some day to be dropped on Japanese and Ger- David Lawrence. man military bases with devastating results are certain raw materials, among them aluminum and mag-

In both these all-important metals, America and Canada alone have not only passed the Axis powers in production, but toward the end of 1942 and early 1943 will have reached a production capacity far beyond the factories of our enemies.

Some idea of the magnitude of the expansion in aluminum may be derived when it is considered that in 1939 the annual consumption in America had reached about 440,000,-000 pounds, whereas today plans have been announced for approximately 3,000,000,000 pounds on the North American continent alone to be produced early next year.

Magnesium Output to Soar.

In magnesium, the 1939 production was 6,700,000 pounds and Germany had a long start with a production supposed to be somewhere near 300,000,000 pounds a year. Counting plants built and building, America by the end of 1942 will be producing not merely more magnesium than Germany, but a total far in excess. Exact figures cannot be disclosed, but it is possible to say that the expansion in the aluminum industry, which was about tenfold, may run in the case of magnesium to many times tenfold.

The man who has had direct charge of this expansion program, first for the O. P. M. and now for the War Production Board, is William Batt.

.He is an industrial engineer who left his business to become a dollara-year man here. His job was the presidency of SKF Roller Bearing Co. He brought to bear the principles and lessons of industrial engineering and assembled a staff of metallurgical experts familiar with the products needed in the defense

Mr. Batt was one of the first to ery out for an annual aluminum production of 1,400,000,000 pounds and now that this is in fair way to being realized and the Interior Department has announced that the electric power capacity to produce another 600,000,000 pounds will shortly be available, the immensity of the aluminum program can be understood.

While there is an abundance of aluminum planned for military purposes, this does not mean that either the Army or Navy can be permitted to waste aluminum by insisting on metal for things that can be made with substitute products. Mr. Batt is constantly urging conservation and economy and that's one reason why despite the huge amounts to be forthcoming, aluminum must nevertheless be allocated and its uses carefully

Several Processes Used.

In magnesium a truly fantastic result is being achieved. Dow Chemical Co., the pioneer in America is, of course, the mainstay of the program and the processes it has developed have been placed at the disposal of other companies and Government plants. America isn't depending on one process, however, and is also utilizing the processes adapted from European and Japanese users.

Along with the Dow Chemical the big magnesium job is being accomplished by Diamond Alkali Co., Matthieson Alkali Works, Union Potash Co., Permanente Metals Corp., all of whose plants are already in operation or nearly so. As for expansion, the Government has called in Union Carbide and Carbon Co., American Metals Co., New England Lime Co. and the Ford Motor Car Co. to prepare new plants or help in production with new proc-

Each of these companies will have played a vital part in the march to victory, provided their workers co-operate and their managements give every bit of skill and energy possible to the achievement of the big tasks that lie ahead. The War and Navy Departments have started a scheme for awarding flags of meritorious achievement in the making of ordnance materials or shipbuilding and the idea might well be extended to every raw material producer who either makes his schedule or succeeds in beating it. For that's where the war will be won-on the production line-and it's gratifying to be able from time to time to report the excellent progress that's being made. (Reproduction Rights Reserved.)

Vast Funds for War Are Funneled Through Hard-Working Committees Totaling 63 Men

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Forty men in the House and 23 in the Senate are bearing today the tremendous burden of sifting and passing on the items which go to make up the billions upon billions of dollars which Uncle Sam is pouring into national defense and the regular expenses of Government. They constitute the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. It is their job to take the estimates of appropriation and expenditure which are submitted to Congress by the President and the Budget Bureau and whip them into shape for legislative enactment. They are supposed to know the need for each and every dollar before they agree to place them in one of the appropriation bills. During the present week, the largest appropriation bill in the history of the country - the world-was presented to the House by the Appropriations Committee of that body. The "Fifth Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Bill for 1942" was its title. It carried the fantastic total of $32,170,901,900. Before it reached the floor of the House, this measure was handled by a subcommittee of 12 members of the Appropriations Committee, and then passed upon by the full committee, and finally reported by its chairman, Representative Cannon of Mis-

That is the regular procedure with appropriations bills, in both House and Senate. It makes for efficiency and speed to have these bills divided among subcommittees, for hearing and for final drafting before the full committee takes a whack at them.

Dwarfs Previous Record.

During the last World War, when this country entered upon a great military and naval program, the largest single appropriation bill enacted into law was for a total of $12,000,000,000. The hugeness of this measure was a nine-day wonder at the time. Today, it has been dwarfed.

The total national defense appropriations and authorizations for the three fiscal years beginning July 1, 1940, and ending June 30, 1943, have reached $142,-005 345 613. And the end is not vet in sight, for other appropriations for the war effort are to be made later in this year. Included in this total is approximately $7,-000,000,000 to complete the construction of the "two-ocean" Navy.

It is almost impossible to conceive of spending such vast sums of money. Yet those who handle these bills-the members of the committees-are authority for the statement that the program has been admirably presented-much better than during the First World War. True, it is an impossibility for the members of the committees to say that all of the items involved are wise-but they at least have a comprehensive view of the whole picture. They must rely, of course, on the advice of the military and naval authorities. Members of Congress are not in a position to know how many aircraft, how many tanks, how many guns and submarines are required for the job of bringing victory.

On the other nand, they are in a position to weigh the amounts matter of fact, the expenditures for national defense in the fiscal year 1941 amounted to about $6,-000,000,000, in the present fiscal year they are expected to amount to $24,000,000,000, and in the fiscal year 1943 to $53,000,000.000. This means that huge sums will still remain to be expended, for these expenditures total only $83,000,-

This does not seem to make sense, until the facts are brought out. The appropriation by Congress of great sums of money simply starts the wheels in motion. The money is not actually expended until a long time afterward. Not only must contracts be let but the materials must be produced. The accounts must be audited and finally the money is paid by the Treasury Department, and only then is money "expended." Sometimes the arms and munitions have been used, or even destroyed, long before the money for them has passed from the Treasury into the pockets of the producers.

Must Anticipate Needs.

However, appropriation must be made, and made early. It cannot wait until the actual need of certain arms and ships is felt. The plans for these great armaments must be made long in advance, and there must be a constant flow of production. True, production at some point-for all wars end-will outrun the need. There will be vast contracts under way and huge stores of material when the war comes to an end. It was so during the last war. When hostilities ceased in 1918 Congress was confronted with a salvaging task. It also had the job of repealing appropriations totaling $15,000,000,000. When the present war ends, it may be in a position to repeal even more billions of appropriations-appropriations for the expenditure of money which has not been begun, or only partly begun. Naturally, the taxpayer will hope that this will be the

These Appropriations Committee members work long and hard. Mr. Cannon heads the House committee and Senator Glass of all appropriations originate in the House, they must also be put through the Senate, and the Senate has the power to amend, either increasing or decreasing, the amounts, or striking out or adding items. In the end both houses must agree to the final draft. The importance of the work in these days of the Appropriations Committee is very great. For members of Congress as a whole must rely upon the judgment of these men-no women have yet been added to either of these committees-when they come to vote on these bills. In other words, the huge task of legislating these sums of money devolves in reality upon the com-

MacArthur's Soldier Code

Friends Are Sure General Would Resist Any Orders Recalling Him From Bataan

By COL. FREDERICK PALMER. down once for the count. He may A proposal which stirs the imagination is that Gen. Douglas MacArthur should be withdrawn from Bataan for supreme command in the tralia. There he is seen as building up a force which would one day recover all the ports and islands which the United Nations have lost. Once again the Filipinos would have their Philippines, and his defense of Aus-

flag would float over his old Col. Frederick Palmer, headquarters in Manila in just and poetic retribution.

But respect for his own soldier sense of duty and ethics is involved with the question of whether there is any means of transit by which he could be brought out.

I find that all who have been close to him through his career share my views about his attitude, and it happens that I have known him since he was a cadet at West Point. I knew his father, Gen. Arthur Mac-Arthur when he was fighting the rebel Filipinos whose sons are now Of Dr. Charles B. Foelsch led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in fighting side by side with our soldiers in a common cause.

Douglas' mother, fit mate for his father, was a soldier woman, tall, as s Douglas, who looks more like his mother than his father. Douglas is given to repeating that all he has become he owed to his father and mother, particularly his mother.

"My mother raised my father from a lieutenant's bar to a lieutenant general's three stars," I recall his saying when he was Chief of Staff. "She had a much earlier start with me than with him, and she had so improved with practice that she made me a full general with four stars."

In Role of Destiny. His soldier parents would revolt New Post for Capt. Lovette at the suggestion that he leave Bataan now. He is in the part which destiny set for him as a soldier, on the job the War Department assigned to him, his name tied to an immortal epic in our military history. Beyond the parental and Army inheritance, bred into him, is ant to the director, Rear Admiral the example for his little son Arthur.

now, his friends agree that he would occurred December 7. protest against it with all the appealing and forcible language of which he is master. Or he might turn a deaf ear to the radio message as England's great Admiral Nelson turned his blind eye on his superior's signal to draw off in the Battle of Copenhagen

It would be utterly antipathetic to "Doug" MacArthur's high-strung, sensitive nature, to leave his post in the midst of a campaign.

He is not thinking of himself as licked, or that he is going to be licked, nor allowing any man under him to have such an impression. He maintains the old classic "front of Jove," wholly engrossed in the mortal game he is skillfully playing. To change similes, he is not yet be forced against the ropes, but he is outhitting the enemy. There is not one of his men. American or Filipino, who has not at some time seen him and felt his presence. As they hold out in their hastily dug shelters under unceasing shell fire and bombing on that little patch of Bataan which is still theirs, they are conscious of the fortifying touch of his confident, directing hand.

If his soldiers heard a report that he was no longer with them they would not believe it at first, but if it were confirmed morale would crumble The personnal risk of transit would be incidental to him. A soldier fatalist holds to the old saying: "You get it when and where t comes to you, and that's that." Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, now at Batavia, probably will be transferred to Indian defense eventually. Then it may well be in order that Gen MacArthur will have the supreme command, once he has the planes, ships, arms and men at his disposal to organize and fight a swift succession of offensive battles.

Unrelenting Russian Drive May Break Up Nazi Plans for Mediterranean Offensive

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Nazi plans for an all-out offensive in the Mediterranean in the next few weeks may be thrown into complete confusion by the unrelenting drive of the Russians, who claim that they have penetrated White Russia, occupied by the Germans in the early stages

Although reports from the Russian front are sketchy, it seems certain that the Germans have not been able to stem the Russian advance, which, while not particularly important yet, as far as territorial gains are concerned, is of vital importance to the extent that it wears down the enemy.

The most reliable reports from the few remaining European neutrals indicate that the Germans have begun an important concentration of aviation on the shores of the Mediterranean and on the Greek and Italian islands in that area.

For the last four weeks daily raids have been made on Malta. the British stronghold midway between Gibraltar and Alexandria. These attacks are regarded as an indication of Nazi efforts to soften up the island before they send their gliders bearing parachutists in an attempt to take that British fortress.

Railway travel by civilians between Germany and Southern Europe has been at a halt since the middle of January. Mussolini has been ordered to muster his few remaining fighting divisions and send them to Southern Italy and Sicily. Italian men-ofwar, which have been hibernated since last November, are active again, making reconnaissance trips outside their mine and netprotected harbors. German air squadrons have reached Greece and Yugoslavia in recent weeks. All these indications, to which must be added the visit of Reichsmashal Hermann Goering to Rome, point to an early Axis offensive in the Mediterranean. But this new military move of the Germans, which military quarters in Washington supposed would be synchronized with Japanese victories in the South Pacific, may have to be delayed because of the situation on the Russian front.

The Nazi high command is said to have counted on stopping the Russian counteroffensive by the middle of January or the first of February. This hope is said to have been based on the general staff's calculation that the Russians would be exhausted by that time and in no position to continue their costly drive. The lull the Nazis expected on that front would have given them a chance to strengthen their forces therewithout haste-while their southern armies would have launched a blitz against the British in the Mediterranean. The Nazis are relying, it is said, on their overwhelming air superiority to make the Mediterranean blitz as successful as the Japanese operations in the South Pacific. The second offensive against the U.S.S.R. was due to begin a few weeks later.

Despite heavy losses and the difficulty of obtaining necessary supplies, the Russians have continued their drive beyond the time the Nazis expected them to stop, drawing heavily on their remaining reserves of aviation and other war material. During the winter campaign the Soviet relied more on the valor of the individual Red soldier than on mechanized equipment. Cavalry was used to a certain extent and achieved excellent results. Infantry was thrown against the German lines without large-scale tank or air support.

In every encounter the Russians came out victorious, mostly because the Germans were used to fighting with overwhelming protection from their air force and tanks. These could not operate in the subzero Russian weather.

Moscow Asks U. S. Aid.

The situation is likely to change, however, in the next few weeks, when the weather becomes a little less severe. Then the Russians will have reason to fear Nazi air and mechanized superiority again.

Soviet representatives in Washington and London are pointing out that their armies have performed miracles with relatively little support from American and British factories. They understand quite well that since December 7 we have had to build up our own forces in the United States and the Pacific. But they point out unhesitatingly that if we want them to stop the Nazis' spring offensive we will have to rush all the war material we promised them last fall when the British-American mission visited Moscow and Premier Stalin insisted he must have thousands of new planes and tanks.

CAN WE WIN THE WAR?

Let's Look the Situation Over

HOW DOES THE MAN POWER OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMPARE WITH THAT OF THE AXIS NATIONS?

HOW DOES PRODUCTION COMPARE? HOW IS EACH SIDE FIXED FOR RAW MATERIALS? WHAT ABOUT THE TIME FACTOR?

Richard L. Stokes, writing in the Editorial Feature Section of The Sunday Star, goes fully into the situation insofar as information and plans are available. You will find his article enlightening. Another article, by Felix Morley, will tell how the United States hopes to win the war with ships. Constantine Brown also writes on the war and Blair Bolles has prepared a review of the past week.

Warns Against Hearing Demand. At the same time, R. F. Camalier, counsel to the Senate District Committee, warned the group against trying high-pressure on Congress through demands for hearings in the name of civic, business or social organizations

Mr. Camalier suggested that better results could be obtained if Washingtonians went to Congress as individual residents, or as representatives of organized groups, and made their suggestions through District Committee members.

He added that members of Congress actually want assurance that Washingtonians are sincerely interested in their problems. He said if District problems were presented more through conversations and less through demands for hearings, more could be accomplished.

John M. Howard, chairman of the subcommittee which investigated school lighting needs, told the group $90,000 was needed to protect and preserve the evesight of students in the old buildings. He said his subcommittee had made a comprehensive survey covering many months and found lighting condi-

Count Edward Raczynski Honored at Reception At Polish Embassy

Representative Dewey Will Be Host at Dinner Tomorrow For Foreign Affairs Minister

The Minister of Foreign Affairs of Poland, Count Edward Raczynski, gave his radio address in the midst of the reception which the Ambassador and Mme. Clechanowska gave in his honor yesterday afternoon, but it was heard everywhere else but Washington. So the guests who had expected to hear him and meet him were disappointed. However, the speech was recorded and later will be reproduced for Washington listeners.

Count Raczynski will be the guest of honor at dinner tomorrow evening of Representative Charles S. Dewey, who was finance adviser to the Polish government some years ago. All of the guests will be men. The party will take place in the charming old house on First street S.E. which Representative and Mrs. Dewey recently purchased and restored.

The reception yesterday afternoon was delightfully informal in spite of the rank of the guests. All circles of official Washington were represented with the heads of missions of the Allied Nations and those who successfully have remained neutral. The Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska, so popular when they were here before and adding to their wide circle of friends each day, received in the small drawing room at the top of the stairs. A small improvised bar was in one corner. Across the hall the tea table was laid in the dining room. Mme. Small Parties

And Princess

Small and informal parties held much of Washington society's at-tention yesterday afternoon, with dinners and cocktail parties filling the late afternoon and evening hours. Some of the gatherings consisted of perhaps half a dozen guests, but all were gay and delightfully relaxing. The Crown Prince and Princess of Norway received 40 seamen of the Norwegian merchant marine yesterday at Pook's Hill, their home in the suburbs. The visitors came to Washington from an Eastern port and spent the day sight-seeing and called on their Crown Prince and Princess as well as on the Minister and Mme, Munthe de Morgenstierne. Escorting the young men to Pooks Hill as well as to the legation and Uplands were the Norwegian Minister of Public Works, M. Olaf Hindahl; Mme. Bryn, wife of the secretary of the legation, and Mme. Olav, wife of the press In the late afternoon Mrs. J

'Sweet 16' Knows Style

Young Ladies Keen for Bargains

By Helen Vogt

It's just more than any 16year-old woman can bear. We mean this business of being patted on top of the head by older women-old hags of 25 or 30 who always gush, "So THIS is little Mary Jane! My dear, I prints and checks, primarily, and you were only THAT high! And here you are almost a young lady. wearing long dresses and having honest-to-goodness dates! Why, it makes me feel positively ancient!"

It's a tribute to the manners and restraint of the younger generation that they don't sail into one of big sister's bridge parties furiously blinking false eyelashes and waving a feather boa. And it's also a stroke of genius that makes them gently veto adult ideas of cute little frilly dresses and select sane, sensible and infinitely becoming junior styles such as "all the other girls wear."

Any one who has put a foot into the junior dress departments recently is well aware that the fashion interest is as great, if not greater, than in more mature styles. Best of all, the 16ers have learned a trick that could be copied by more experienced ladies namely, that of making a few basic ensembles do the work of a flock of clothes. The suit fashion, for example, is not merely a question of wearing one skirt and jacket with the same accessories -an idea that women with more years and less ideas seem reluctant to abandon. "Little sister" knows the advantages of several tackets and skirts to be mixed and matched at will. With this idea in mind, she buys several separate items, all of which combine well together, and then has a "field day" trying out combinations. This year she approves the dressmaker suit as well as the man tailored and boyish types, and she's learned that several jackets at $10.95 each, a few skirts at anywhere from $4 to $8 apiece, a flock of colorful dickeys priced under a dollar, a couple of twin sweater sets to be useful with and without a jacket, and a blouse or two for more "dressed up" occasions give her the basis of an excellent wardrobe.

"date dresses," but not so frilly that they can't be worn for daytime activities such as teas and Saturday luncheons with "the girls." This season she's buying she still loves the flattery of the long torso line and the fitted midriff-both trends which show off her slimness to perfection. With less hestitation, naturally, than that shown by her elders, she's taking to color for spring, and, best of all, she's not afraid of using it generously and in good taste. She likes bright pocketbooks and gloves to accent . her simple suits and dresses, knows the value of wearable and comfortable pumps in polished leather, likes little hats, but not too silly because she's not sufficiently established as a fashion leader to "get away" with the ridiculous. (Besides, younger men have even less tact about feminine hats than do their nowdiscouraged elder brothers.)

To this she adds a couple of Stores report that the juniors are the ones buying evening clothes in spite of everythingand that is logical, of course. While more sophisticated women take to street length frocks for all but the most formal occasions. the youngsters refuse to admit that an occasion is "special" unless the gown worn to it touches the floor. The trend for spring, 1942, is toward the "old fashioned" type of evening dress, often in taffeta with a dainty print. In the departments, the young set is chattering of puffed sleeves and of corsages worn on the wrist, delicate single strands of pearls around the throat-all the little demure touches that look so well on 16-year-oldsand which are so highly approved by fashion this season.

Best of all, the youngsters buy with a wariness that would delight any budget-battler. They plan their needs, shop around for bargains and know, nonetheless, that they get only what they pay for. The high school set may cling to ice cream sodas and old jalopies, but when it comes to clothes their outlook is strictly Perfect background for the "junior miss" is her ultra-feminine bedroom with its charming scheme of decoration. Blue wall paper striped in white with pink roses provides a background for the dressing table with pink oilcloth skirt and white rope trim. Dainty white tarlatan curtains add still another "frilly note to the room, which so obviously reflects its dainty owner's youthful charm. Here is a "glamorous" setting for the 16-year-old as, gardenias in hand, she awaits the arrival of the very best beau.

In grim preparation for that which may now be inevitable, every Washington woman should read Silvia Brockway's unusual and impressive book, "Respectfully Yours, Annie," published today by E. P. Dutton & Co. of New York.

The volume is a collection of letters from Miss Brockway's cook, left behind in London to look after the master of the house when the author came to the United States the summer of 1939 to visit her parents here. The outbreak of war found her, and her two children who accompanied her, forced to set up a home in this country, and during these two years of exile Annie has been a faithful and graphic correspondent.

The impressiveness of the letters lie in their utter simplicity, in their expression of a homespun philosophy and dogged courage that should be an example to us all if a like situation is to befall us. Certainly no woman reading the weekly account of the trials and tribulations of wartime housekeeping, as well as noting between the lines of "British understatement" the indomitable and matter-offact bravery displayed by Annie in the face of very real and terrible danger, could feel other than ashamed if she weighed her own potentialities under similar circumstances, and found them ideas, and when a 16-year-old can create a room for herself for $16 who would "say her nay"? Youthful and practical as the pictured one is, it will make a perfect background for the life she leads. and satisfy her yearning for delicate color and gayety as well. Starting with the usual equipment of a small bedroom, she has made it definitely "her own" with color and personal touches. The wall paper is soft blue, striped in white with ladders of pale pink roses all around the room. The frilly, feminine curtains are a work of art made of white tarlatan (mosquito netting to you), which costs only 30 cents a yard and keeps its crisp effect in spite of everything. Then with youthful contrariness she changes from frills to complete practicality in dressing her "work bench" in pink oilcloth. This is not the shiny, "oily" kind, but the one that looks like taffeta. This old-fashioned material makes the slickest sort of modern dressing table, which stays neat and trim looking with constant use, yet is completely young and feminine. She has pleated it into neat folds and trimmed it with a garland of fat white cotton rope. The same frill and rope bow trims the mirror, the wastebasket and makes the tie-backs for the table, will sponge it all with warm water and soapsuds, dry it carefully and put it back in place. Her curtains are so sheer that they do not hold the dust and, by slipping them off the rods, shaking them and airing them occasionally they will stay fresh for some time. In this way the room in which this young damsel dwells may be just as perfectly groomed as its occupant dressed in her party frock and waiting for her "date."

In case all of this is an inspiration to you, here is the way the costs are broken down: The dressing table takes 12 yards pink oilcloth costing $4.50, and 10 yards rope, $2.50. The curtains, 16 yards tarlatan, $4.80; six yards oilcloth, $2.25, and seven yards rope, $1.75. Her wastebasket takes one yard oilcloth, 38 cents, and three yards rope, 75 cents, making a grand total of $16.93. "Glamour" is not a matter of elaborate settings and vast sums of money. Glamour is the interpretation of personality with telling effect. Youth "packs a wallop" when it stays in its own natural setting, and for this reason it can get away with simple and inexpensive fabrics which spell the younger set in capital letters. Calicoes, dimities and ginghams, dotted swiss and organdie are theirs by divine right, and by selecting these they make a background that is perfect. To aspire to elaborate materials such as taffetas, shiny satins and more sophisticated surfaces is like gilding the lily, and no matter how simply the effect is carried out it fails to have a youthful quality.

Breezy Young Frock for Spring

Here is a breezy young frock, in tune with the times! This spring, the nautical trend is stronger than ever and gob dresses lead the way in interpreting the military mode for women!

Like those "middy blouse" dresses your mother wore when she was a girl-navy serge for every day, spotless white for very best, with a white blouse and navy skirt for those "in-between" occasions-this costume will appear charmingly youthful and fresh at all times:

By Barbara Bell

So, lose no time in making yourself this very simple two-piece model presented in our Pattern No. 1551-B. A true sailor's collar outlined with two rows of braid gives a sea-going saltiness to the dart-fitted middy top. You can wear a typical sailor's tie, knotted in front or slipped through the loop in a neat effect. You can make the flaring skirt in a very short time.

Make this two-piecer now in navy blue serge, jersey or heavy cotton twill. Later you'll want it in the faded blue color which has made such a hit in Southern vacation spots. And it is the perfect white dress-trimmed with bright red or navy blue-good for poplin, pique, linen or sharkskin. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1551-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31), with short sleeves, requires 4% yards 35-inch material: 4 yards braid for trimming.

Nearly 700 Millions In Home Loans

Members of Federal System Report Big Volume in 1941

By EDWARD C. STONE.

Nearly $700,000,000 was advanced by member building and loan associations of the Federal Home Loan Bank System for construction and purchase of homes in defense areas during 1941, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Review.

These associations reported loans for all purposes in defense areas totaling $900,000,000. New construct tion loans aggregated $311,000,000 while an additional $370,000,000 was advanced for home purchases.

For the second consecutive year the Review said, new mortgage lending by all building and loan associations in the United States exceeded a billion dollars, reaching a peak of $1,378,000,000 for 1941. This was the highest volume in 12 years and represented an increase of 15 per cent

Meeting Called For All Housing Officials in D. C.

Ellender Sets Parley For Tuesday, Hopes To End Conflicts

Hearings for District Commissioners and all Government officials connected with defense housing in the District regarding ways the $50,000,-000 authorization in the Lanham bill can best be spent to meet the emergency were tentatively set today for Tuesday by Chairman Ellender of the Senate subcommittee.

The subcommittee will winnow out conflicting testimony before the bill is acted on by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor.

Senator Ellender said today he planned to bring together all housing heads for a round-table discussion at which they can cross-examine each other with the subcommittee acting as arbiter. Out of the discussion he hopes to obtain a definite statement on how the housing authorities believe the money can be best employed. The subcommittee will then act on such recommenda-

Senator Ellender said he particularly desired to hear from Brig. Gen Philip Fleming, Federal works administrator, and Charles F. Palmer of the Defense Housing Corp. He expressed the desire to learn how the various agencies have handled the housing program, and that includes, he said, the Alley Dwelling Authority. John Ihlder, executive officer of the A. D. A., will be invited

A. D. A. May Be Included.

"If we find that the Alley Dwelling Authority has done its job well, will be inclined to allocate to that authority some of the defense housing projected under the $50,-000,000 fund now being considered,' Senator Ellender said

Handling of the bill was referred to Senator Ellender's subcommittee yesterday after Chairman Thomas of the full committee closed two days of public hearings, which revealed varying opinions as to how much should be set aside for housing, for hospitals, schools and other needed facilities.

Shortly before the hearings ended Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, also reflected the desire to have the program clarified, by asserting:

"I am never going to consent to reporting this bill until somebody or everybody connected with the bill tells us what they are going to

Temporary Building Urged. When the bill passed the House, the general impression existed that $40,000,000 would be for housing and $10,000,000 for the related facilities, including hospitals and

Several more witnesses appeared vesterday afternoon to urge that Government housing for the war period be confined, as far as possible, to temporary construction, so that Washington would not be left overbuilt for a long time after the

M. C. Hines of the Alexandria Arlington, Fairfax Real Estate Board, said he was not opposed to the bill, but expressed the view that the Government should build only the housing needed for the emergency, over and above what private industry can provide. Waverly Taylor of the Home Builders' Association of Metropolitan Washington and a former head of the Washington Real Estate Board, also pictured problems likely to confront the private building industry after the war if the Government goes in extensively for permanent-type projects to house tempor-

Warner Gardner, solicitor for the Department of Labor, who was called in to give the committee information on the variation in wage scales in Washington on Government housing projects and on private developments financed with F. H. A. insurance, testified the gap between the two scales is steadily closing, with the lower private scale rising. Mr. Gardner said the situation is "rather complicated" here because there are several types of rates for class A, the highest rate scale paid on commercial buildings, such as office structures and hotels. Next he described the class B rate, from one-fourth to one-third lower, and said it was rarely applied to construction projects requiring all the trades. He said he understood it was set up a few years ago to organize the labor on small jobs. In addition he said, there is the nonunion rate, not fixed, but representing bargaining between contractors and their men. U. S. H. A. Rate Usually Higher.

He told the committee U. S. H. A. housing projects were considered analagous to the large type of private building, and are usually built by large contractors who have continuous agreements with the unions at the regular high scale. At the other extreme, he said, is the private job, financed with F. H. A. in-

Senator Ball, Republican, of Minnesota, suggested that the men working for a small builder, although getting a lower hourly rate, may earn as much in annual salary as the men receiving the high union rate on big projects, if they are kept steadily at work. Mr. Gardner agreed there is less disparity in total yearly income of the two groups than appears from the variation in hourly rates. Mr. Gardner also testified that recent statistics indicate the lower scale is called by Hobart H. Hobbs, deputy rising gradually toward the regular union scale. To illustrate, he said that on one private housing development of the F. H. A. insurance type, the scale for unskilled labor at the start was 45 cents an hour. For the latest work done the rate was 60 cents, and he said he had been informed that if the builders wanted to expand the project they would Of Army Combat Unit have to pay 75 cents, as compared with the class A rate of 85 cents.

At least one fact is firmly established: The structure now houses offices of an automobile company. But in this sketch by Helen Gatch Durston, one would not be surprised to see Gen. Washington step out on the stoop.

To Protect Youth

Calls for Play Streets, Home Playground Activity

The new Guild Traffic Safety Council, composed of District officials and civic-leaders, today is on record as backing a four-point program to improve protection of Washington children. Recommended by the Committee on Program Planning, under the direction of James Willey, ways and means of carrying out the proposals were referred back to the committee.

The program includes the closing of streets for play, home playground contests, city tours by the "gospel of safety" truck and the expansion of child safety councils in schools. Considerable debate preceded adoption of the street-closing suggestion. Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller asked for suggested spots and said he would be glad to pass them along to Traffic Director William H Van Duzer, who in turn could receive survey reports from precinct captains. However, he raised the question as to complaints about noise, proper street paving for roller skating, and automobile parking. The latter, he said, would have to be

Street Skating Opposed.

Harry C. English of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department opposed the closing of streets and suggested use of parks and school lots for skaters. The skating phase of closed streets for play was referred to the Facilities Committee for later reports.

Inspector Miller discussed the growing work of the schoolboy patrols and noted there are now 5,000 white and colored boys serving in the Metropolitan Area, of which 4,000 are in the city proper. He added there are 13 police officers assigned to giving safety talks, boy supervision and giving practical demonstrations.

During the meeting in the playground department's quarters, 3149 Sixteenth street N.W., Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the Education Committee, emphasized the need of having kindergarten teachers make safety a major activity during the first month of school.

He said he was convinced an air attack would be attempted, not only for this reason, but because, considering the character of our enemies, the Axis "take delight in destroying hospitals, churches and in machine-gunning women and children in the streets."

Planners Back Ickes in Fight On Mall Parking

Commission Contends Idea Would Add To Traffic Delays

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday joined forces with Secretary of the Interior Ickes in protesting the pro-posed use of the Mall area for automobile parking.

Aside from ruination of the Mall panel, the commission based its opposition mainly on the gound that confusion of traffic in the central area of the city during rush hours. Figures were presented by John Nolen, jr., director of planning, to show that an estimated 30,200 automobiles now park all day in the dowtown area, resulting in the worst traffic confusion and delays that Washington has experienced. With an estimated 5,000 cars allowed to park on the Mall panel and drives, the commission felt that such an additional load should be

Dirksen Claims Support.

The controversy over parking in the Mall threatened to arise in Congress. Representative Dirksen said at least 50 members of Congress had spoken favorably about his original suggestion. He said he was still in favor of the idea, especially if preference is given to the cars of Government employes. "All Congress needs to do is to be bombed, probably within the next pass a bill authorizing it," he added. The commission also opposed conversion of the Mall into parking lots on the ground that the plan conflicts with the fringe-parking act which President Roosevelt signed a few days ago. The new law provides for the creation of a board to acquire parking lots for automobiles on fringes of the central area. Shuttle buses would operate from these fringe areas to downtown locations and return the car owners in the late

The commission adopted as its own action the report on the Mall proposal recently made by Associate Director A. E. Demaray of the National Park Service. Secretary Ickes, in approving the report, directed Federal park officials to "vigorously

Before closing its February session late vesterday the commission approved final plans for laying out the grounds of the Friendship estate on Wisconsin avenue, recently acguired by the Government. A section along Arizona avenue will be reserved for park development and between eight and ten acres also will be used for school and playgrounds. Sites for the apartment buildings also were approved. The commission heard from Secretary Thomas S. Settle that the Virginia Legislature had authorized the construction of access roads from the new War Department Building in Arlington to Quantico. These roads would supplement the

$217,000,000 Budget Faces Virginia House

Assembly to Act On Many Major Bills Next Week

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 21.-Virginia's General Assembly, enjoying possibly the last free Saturday be-fore the 1942 session ends three weeks hence, looked forward today to consideration of its paramount problems next week.

The House of Delegates will take up the $217,000,000 biennial budget bill Tuesday as a special and continuing order of business, but first must take up as a special order on Monday a bill by Delegate Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington County and others to make far-reaching changes in the present law for licensing and taxing motor trucks.

Another matter pressing for consideration is the Massenburg bill to have trial justices' salaries fixed by the State Compensation Board instead of by county boards of supervisors. This measure advanced over opposition yesterday to third reading, ready for possible passage Mon-

The amendment was voted

Other bills on third reading for passage, as soon as disposition of the special orders permit, include a series of five by Delegate E. O. Mc-Cue and others, granting the Governor wartime with the Civilian Defense Act now in effect as emergency legislation.

The bill for redistricting House representation, considerably amended by the Privileges and Elections Committee, will take its place on the House calendar and may be reached before the week is out. The amendments leave undisturbed a provision giving Arlington County a second Delegate.

Small Loans Measures. Senator Charles W. Crowder's bill Lashing at Apathy

prohibiting financial statements of small loan applicants from being used against them in future court action may be passed Monday, while the House bill reducing small loan rates from 31/2 to 2 per cent a month will take its place on the calendar for action probably later in the week.

Meanwhile, the House received a bill prescribing drastic regulations for small loan companies operating in Virginia, under supervision of the State Banking Commissioner.

The new bill is sponsored by Delegate William J. Gibson, of Fredericksburg, who was author of the bill to cut interest rates.

The measure, in addition to giving the Commissioner of Banking full authority, provides that a borrower may recover both interest and principal as well as an attorney's fee if he discovers within a year that he has been charged more than the legal rate of interest. It also gives the Banking Commissioner authority to forbid misleading advertising, and provides that every company licensed must have available for operation at the location specified in the application liquid assets of at least $25,000.

Public Housing Bills.

Among other bills on third reading in the Senate will be three pubhe housing measures by Senators Hillard and Crowder. One would authorize regional housing authorities to build dwellings for lowincome farmers; another would make housing authority bonds legal investments for governmental subdivisions, banks and similar business, and fiduciaries, and the third would provide for slum clearance by municipalities.

Burnett Miller, jr., of Culpeper and others introduced a State personnel administration bill, embodying recommendations of the Virginia Advisory Council, but containing a proviso that State employes now in the armed forces would be considered as having been employed in accordance with requirements of the system.

Robert J. McCandlish of Fairfax County, offered a bill prohibiting annexation proceedings in counties adjoining the District of Columbia until 90 days after the next session

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—Only $24,-605 remains in Maryland's defense fund, and a special legislative session apparently is the only way by which the fund can be replenished, fiscal experts said today.

They estimated the money was scarcely enough to pay State defense council expenses for seven months, and said the fund would be used up much sooner if the State Guard incurred any expenses.

The State Guard, at first paid out of defense funds, recently was ordered paid from State Roads Comtrict Court of being an unregistered mission funds. Guardsmen are on highway and birdge patrol duty.

Realtors Ask Streamlining of War Housing

Urge Direction Be Established Under One Head

Declaring that the entire national defense housing effort is being seriously handicapped by a multiplicity of Federal housing agencies, standards and procedures, President Roosevelt today was urged to streamline housing by centralizing power in a single office in a com-munication from the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The production of housing during the war should be established under one head, similar to that directing production of war materials through the War Production Board the association said.

It was also stated that every possible means, including liberalizing amendments to the National Housing Act, should be used to enlist the resources of private enterprise to produce all housing which can reasonably be expected to be permanent in character and to find appropriate local use after the war. Will Remove Confusion.

That part of war housing built with public funds should be temporary in character with minimum facilities essential to a healthful life for war workers, the communication added. Such housing should be built on the basis that it shall be removed or disposed of in accordance with the wishes of the local In Home Fittings community as soon after the war

The letter, signed by Herbert U. Nelson, association secretary, ended: "We who are concerned with housing and with the home building industry throughout the Nation respectfully suggest that if executive action along this line is taken it will remove much existing confusion and doubt in various defense areas for the home building industry and among the public officials themselves. We believe, moreover, that it will be effective in accelerating the production of needed war housing and at the same time save materials and money.

The program was indorsed by both the Committee on Housing and Blighted Areas and the Home Builders' Emergency Committee of the National Association.

That the line of demarcation between city and country would gradually disappear after the war as a result of the great advances in airplane development was the thought carried back to their homes this week by delegates to the American Savings and Loan Institute Midwinter Conference in St. Paul. The speaker at the conference banquet, Dean Arthur M. Weimer of Indiana University's School of Business, pointed out that commuting 200, 300 and 400 miles to work could become a common occurrence in the post-war world, because of the great opportunity the war is affording the air travel industry. He visualized slums cleared away to make landing fields for planes and a wide variety of new opportunities for city and regional planning, as this new era develops

Dry Wall Products Come in Big Rolls of

Material Is Durable Plastic Composition Easy to Install

By LAWRENCE CROLIUS. Do you know what dry wall construction is? It's the latest thing in low-cost building methods, and if you haven't seen much of it used in residential construction in the past you will probably see plenty of it in the future, because it is not only inexpensive to install, but it will stand up just as well as its old-fashioned predecessors.

At least, that is what they tell us. Of course, there is nothing so very new about this idea, because we have all seen samples of it in a crude form in the interior finish of camps or summer cottages where Santmyers, 1410 H street N.W., desheets of plywood or composition board have been nailed up all

As you can tell by the name, no water is used in this form of construction. Hence the time and expense involved in putting up ordinary plaster walls is done away with. Instead, large sheets of wall surface are put in place right over the base wall material, and little or no work is required to make it a finished job. The type of wall surfacing material which can be installed may vary from relatively small panels separated by decorative moldings to large sheets, one or more of which cover the whole side of a will room. The surface of these sheets (See CROLIUS, Page B-3.)

Mortgage Banks Rally

To Aid Defense Setup

Mortgage bankers all over the Nation have rallied to the victory program and are making one of the most important contributions of any business or financial group

by facilitating and speeding up the financing of defense housing, Fred-erick P. Champ, president of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, declared today. His statecurtailment of new building might force an even sharper shutdown of normal mortgage activities, Mr. Champ declared that these fears have been exaggerated and that mortgage men generally can look

First Aid For the

hard on home owners, for few of them are on priority lists. For that reason it is necessary for them to take special care of the tires that they now have. It is certain that tire stealing will develop into a fine art and that detached garages will be preved upon. Garages of this be preyed upon. Garages of this type are usually lightly built and have indifferent locks. Locks should be replaced by others with greater strength. Windows are likely to be of the simplest variety and the one on the side away from the residence is especially vulnerable. If heavy wire for covering the inside is not available good protection is possible by screwing 1-inch boards, 3 inches or more wide, across the frame on the inside, too close together to permit entrance between them. Glass in the entrance door should be boarded up on the inside to prevent breakage and reaching through to the lock.

Defective Chimney.

Question: I had an outside chimney built for an ell kitchen. It did not draw, and I was advised to have it raised to the height of the main building. It is still as bad as it was before. We burn oil, and the smoke blows out into the room instead of going up the chimney. What do you think is the matter?

Answer: The top of a chimney should be at least two feet higher than the highest point of the roof, for otherwise wind currents will check the draft. Evidently the chimney is still not high enough. An oil burner that is correctly adjusted should not smoke. Yours seems to need a greater air supply. Clogged Sewer.

Question: I live downstairs in a three-flat building. When waste water runs from the top floor flat, it bubbles up in my sink. What do you think is at fault? Answer. The sewer outlet is clog-

red. Clearing it out should be undertaken by the owner, for the condition is unsanitary, and would be condemned by your local health laws. A good plumber should have no difficulty in locating the trouble and correcting it.

Falling Mortar.

osts of our front steps is crumbling. How can I renew it? Answer: Rake out the crumbling mortar; you will probably find that the mortar underneath is solid. Soak | ters. He does, however, offer readers the brickwork with water, then pack with a mixture of one part portland cement and three parts of clean building sand, with only enough water to make a workable mixture. Use a trowel with a sharp point. Antique Finish.

Question: In finishing a breakfast set in antique white, how should I mix and apply the paints? Answer. First, remove all the present finish to the bare wood, and smooth with sandpaper. Then apply a coat of enamel undercoater, and finish with one coat of enamel. After thorough drying, apply a thin coat of brown or grayish "glaze," which is a thin varnish. While the glaze is still wet, wipe it off with cheese-cloth, to leave a thin coat on the flat surfaces, but leaving the carvings and moldings more or less filled. You can get the idea by examining furniture of antique finish at a furniture store.

Poor Heating.

Question: My house is heated by not water with an oil burner. This loes not give the heat that I want. Could the system be changed to steam? Would it be advisable? Answer-The change would be expensive and difficult to make. It would be much better for you to add a "booster" pump to your pres-ent system, which would drive the hot water through the radiators. You can get full information on this from any heating contractor.

Insufficient Heat. Question: Our new house is heated by hot air, which has a fan in one of the cold air vents. Heating is poor. Even with a big, hot fire, and following all the instructions, heat in the morning comes up so slowly, it is hours before the house is warm. The outside of the furnace becomes very hot, and so does the smokepipe. Can you make any suggestions? Answer-The furnace may not have been correctly assembled; have it examined by a competent heating man. You can get information on the operation of the furnace from the Committee of Ten of the Heating Industries; get the address from the Chicago phone book.

Torn Painting. Question: On oil painting has a tear about an inch and a half long. How would you advise me to repair it. Could I do it myself? I should like to save the expense of having it done professionally.

Answer-The method is to cement a piece of canvas on the back. But before doing this the fuzzy edges of the tear must be clipped off or pushed through to the back with a needle, or something similar. With the fuzz disposed of, the edges are brought together as neatly as possible, and secured by the patch on the back. The painting is then touched up with the necessary colors. On a painting of any value the job should be done by a professional; for, without experience the result is Question: Mortar of the brick likely to be a blotch.

Thanks to the foresight of the builders of Rock Creek Forest, this is possible today. Their picturesque, forest-framed community on the rolling hillside of nearby Maryland was more than just a plan when restrictions on the use of building materials became effective. It was well under way, and the men and materials to complete the first 100 of its homes were ON THE JOB.

Approved by the Federal Housing Administration and financed under their long-term mortgage plan, the remaining homes in Rock Creek Forest represent an opportunity to buy that positively will not occur again for several years. Act quickly. They're priced from $8,450 to $11,500. Three bedrooms, one and two baths.

Coat Steps, Doorknobs And Light Switches With New Substance

By DOROTHY DUCAS and ELIZABETH GORDON.

If you fear stumbling in your home in blackouts, cover a few landmarks with luminous paint. The edges of steps, door treads and knobs, edges of swinging doors, lighting switches and the like can be coated with paint that shines in the dark. Luminous paint now on the market is non-poisonous, lacks phosphorus and has no radioactive elements. It can be purchased in quantities as small as a quarterpint for 87 cents or a three-quarterounce jar for 25 cents. You don't need much. A three-quarter-ounce jar covers about 4 square feet.

The paint comes in paste consistency, and is thinned with spar varnish. It should be used in places where the light strikes it in the day, or where electric light falls on it at night, as the paint has the property of absorbing light from the sun or from artificial illumination.

In the dark, objects coated with this paint give off a purplish-pink light. It is so faint that even if your windows are unshaded the light cannot be seen from outdoors. A doorknob is visible only across a room. A patch of wall measuring a foot square is visible for 100 yards. The luminous paint fails to glow if applied over lead paint. For such surfaces use first a neutral-base paint, a pint of which costs 72 cents and covers about 60 square feet.

"Easy-Pour" Paint Can.

The colors which come in this can may be used with all types of oilbase paints-flat wall, semi-gloss, enamel and house paint. There are 10 basic liquid colors, from which are produced 144 different tints and shades. An ingenious color card issued by the maker shows colors in full strength and alongside the same colors lightened with white in varying proportions.

Structural glass now comes in prefabricated panels for this purpose. It is mounted on plaster board and can be ordered in a panel the standard size for this purpose, 44 by 28 inches, or in larger sizes if you have an oversized kitchen cookstove. "In all new homes, savings effected in the use of 'critical' materials will permit greater expenditure for architectural features that lend distinction to home designs. In the aggregate, also, such savings in individual houses permit a wider spread of materials and thus enable more houses to be constructed with the limited amounts of iron, steel, zinc and copper that will be available to the building industry.

In a heating zone of 5,000 degree days, which is assumed to be the average of the location of designated defense areas where building will be concentrated, annual fuel savings through insulation of the 600,000 forthcoming houses at current prices would be approximately $13,480,000.

"Besides adding to the individual homeowner's cost burden, the effect of wasted fuel upon the national economy is of great importance in many fields. For instance, by insulation of the 600,000 contemplated houses the transportation system However, there is a line of tinting noted that the median valuation of moving 15,130 carloads of fuel could be relieved of the necessity annually.

Natural Finish for Pine With age, white pine takes on a mellow tone and for this reason many people prefer not to use a stain for finishing it. A natural finish may be obtained by mixing equal parts of orange and white shellac and adding about one-third alcohol to the mixture. Three coats are usually sufficient. Let each coat dry thoroughly and rub with fine

It is an easy matter to install this new material, since it is merely pasted into place over a rigid wall base made of gypsum board, fir plywood or one of the many insulating boards. While we are looking into some of the newer products on the building scene let's consider a clever new combination sash balance and weather-stripping arrangement. Not only does this new product eliminate the need for box frames, without weights, pulleys and cords, but in new construction you can do away entirely with the window frame. Sounds pretty revolutionary, doesn't it? The weather-stripping part of the business comes in as sort of dividend, since it is the housing for the balance spring which does the weather-stripping.
This new device is fitted with a sturdy spring specially equipped with felt washers spaced at intervals to absorb vibration. The spring is of proper length and tension to suit standard sash sizes. Two metal housings and side compression members are fastened on the window frame at each side, and the balancing springs are contained inside these housings. The sides of the window sash are grooved in a circular fashion so that the spring and its metal housing are inclosed in it. The side compression members hold the sash so that rattles are eliminated, and the windows are tightly sealed against the elements.

Translucent Strips Prevent Flying Glass

By HILSON MUNSEY.

One of the dangers of a bombing attack is the scattering of broken glass, particularly of large plateglass windows. To prevent the danger of it flying in all directions and doing serious harm to people in the vicinity some means has to be adopted to hold the glass in place even though it is broken. Material pasted on the glass will do this, but it also does away with the purpose of the window—to let in Another method is to put strips of adhesive tape on the glass at 6-inch intervals. This looks ugly and also retards the light coming through.

An improvement on this is suggested by the manufacturer of woven glass product that is used in decoration under ordinary peacetime conditions. It is used for curtains, for one thing. For glass protection under bombing, it now is made in strips of 1 inch in width and in lengths of 6 feet, although strips twice that length soon will be on the market.

The strips are fastened to the glass by an adhesive and, when the war is over, the strips can be removed easily. They act as reinforcement but will not prevent the breaking of the glass if the explosion is too near. It will, however, help the window to take up a great deal of shock breakage that might occur even at a distance from the actual explosion

The material is stronger than steel longitudinally, according to the manufacturer. As the glass fiber is translucent it admits a considerable amount of light into the room or store, and will not cast a shadow. It also lends itself to decorative treatment.

Still Available. There is a great deal of uncertainty about what can and cannot be bought on account of priorities, but here is something that will appeal to any one who needs a new warm-air furnace. It is made by one of the better-known boiler manufacturers. It is a one-piece heating unit made of copper, bearing steel welded in such a way that no gases or dust can pass from the combustion chamber into the warm air that passes into the rooms above. The regulator for this furnace is operated by hand and there is a damper in the fire door, for the regulation of the air into the firebox, that makes it possible to use either bituminous or anthracite coal and that may before long be a considerable advantage.

The jacket of the furnace is enameled and has a steel lining designed to maintain an insulating flow of air between the jacket and the liner that keeps the jacket cool. The furnace has an oversized motor and fan to make sure that there is extra large for ease in firing and removing the ashes. The fire pot is lined with ceramic liner that is proof against temperatures up to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

the cinnamon fern casts her mil-lions of children to the winds. Before this, the fertile fronds are a brilliant green. Overnight they turn a soft woodsy brown, and a mere touch from Grandfather Wind shakes down myriads of future cinnamon ferns, though very few of them will have an opportunity to grow. Those finding a place in which to settle will put out a wee foot, and some day a vast mat of hairy roots will be anchored in the soil. Cinnamon ferns are easily transplanted. They add much to the shady garden spot and they increase rapidly, too.

A Lesson for the Week An Early Precedent for Organization for Victory By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

"Organization" is the big word in the present war. The Germany practiced it first, on an unprecedented scale. Japan secretly did the same Belatedly, Great Britain and the United States followed; but only in recent weeks have they achieved a unity and a consolidated strategy that will assure ultimate victory. The valor and individual patriotism of soldiers is not enough: there must be a comprehensive and practical plan for the war.

Those 12 men who formed the if I needed urging!) and to give me earliest organization of Christianity were drafted men. The Master seected and called them. Their conscription involved the same personal problems that beset selectees in the present war-a break with their normal life; separation from their families; and uncertainty as to their future. > The Best of Training. In earlier days lawyers, physicians and clergymen were trained, not in special schools, but simply by association with mature men of the same calling. It was the apprentice system applied to the professions. That is the way Jesus trained the Twelve for the great work ahead of them. They were to be with Him, to imbibe His spirit, to learn His methods, to hear His teachings. As our present armed forces are developing new and unexpected qualities in ordinary young men, so that they will never be the same again, thus Jesus brought out undreamed-of capabilities in the Twelve, enabling them to become pioneers, leaders and organizers in the greatest movement of all time.

Surely, if the preachers who labor hectically in an "office," instead of reading and thinking and praying profoundly in a "study," were to Twelve they would learn deep truths | ing." about the significance of keeping close company with Jesus. The Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph Mc-Cartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, will begin next Thursday at 5:15 p.m. a series of special lenten services and meditate upon this calling of the addresses on "The Everlasting Long-

The subject is taken from the request of some Greeks who were pilgrims to the Great Feast at Jerusalem. "So, too," has stated Dr. Mc-Cartney, "the soul of the world longs today for a glimpse of God in the dark, for some tangible token that God is with us. The burden of these sermons will be to help troubled and anxious people to see God through Jesus Christ, who is the express image of the Father. He speaks to our time as he did

The weekly subjects are as follows: "In His Temptations," "In His Preaching," "In His Prayers," "In His Ministry of Healing," "In His Transfiguration," "In His Suffering and Death" and "In the Glory of His Resurrection."

Theodore Schaefer, minister of music, will present a 15-minute, organ recital preceding the service.

A Genuine Welcome to All.

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1942.

The joint statement enumerated all repressive measures taken against headquarters following the issue of an order requiring all Jews to reregister. Dressed in the full vest-ments of his office, he solemnly an-nounced that "I have come to regis-ter as a Jew." "My mother was a Jewess," he added. The gesture is reported to have had a sobering effect upon Parisians. Education Crusade Launched. Leaders of more than 40 denomin ations completed plans this week for the largest co-operative effort of Protestantism since the First World War. They officially launched the church-state struggle in Germany, United Christian Education Advance, a four-year plan of educational evangelism designed to bring religious instruction to 15,000,000 "spiritually illiterate" children and youth of this country who have no relationship to any church. More than 1,800 religious educators met in Chicago to launch the crusade. It was the largest annual interdenominational assemblage in America, the yearly meeting of the International Council of Religious Education. The delegates viewed the Christian education advance as the most important development in American Protestantism in a generation. Many of them, in fact, expressed the opinion that it may contribute to the complete merger of all Protestant interchurch agencies eight of them in all-since the convention voted its approval for the International Council to enter the proposed merger of these agencies. A series of 135 State and regional Wartime Platform Adopted. Major event at the Chicago meeting was the adoption of a "wartime" platform designed to guide the Christian education forces of North America through the period of national emergency. Urging the application of "spiritual priorities" to the whole field of religious education, the platform recommended:

NEW SERIES OF BIBLE LECTURES BY NOTED SPEAKER

Every Night Except Thursday and Saturday

JOHN FORD, Noted Bible Lecturer

Where and in What Form? Will people live again after death in another world? What will be their appearance? Can they recognize one another? What will be their occupation? Will little children who go there remain little children forever? Will death ever come to them again? Can they be happy if separated from loved ones?

John Ford will answer each of these questions in simple, concise and an understandable way. The exact location of heaven will be given.

Win, Lose or Draw Robinson's Shot

By GRANTLAND RICE,

Philosophy of Braves' Stengel Has Its Depths Baseball may have a better philosopher in its midst than

Casey Stengel, mandarin of the Boston Braves, but we doubt it. During the past few weeks we have put in considerable time hurdling the divots of leading stars with Casey in tow, or vice versa, along the western border of bunkerland, discovering each time new depths in the Stengel philosophy. A certain star would plunk one into a trap, squawking bitterly when he found a heel-

"Did he," asked Mr. Stengel, "expect to find the trap studded with a flock of wooden tees? Suppose some of these birds had to play from places I pick out from hole to hole?"

It was no difficult job to swing Casey back to baseball. "The draft," he said, "can make these two pennant races a big scramble. And I'm not referring to the Yankees. The main American League scramble will be to keep somewhere in sight of the Yankees. Any ball club that has Di Maggio, Gordon and Keller doesn't have to bother much. But there can be a big scramble for second and third places.

"We might find out, for one example, whether the loss of Ted Williams hurts the Red Sox more than Feller's absence hurts Cleveland. The Yankees suffer no such destruction. That's the way it is in life. The breaks usually swing to the top, not toward the bottom."

Feuding Should Be Fiercer in National League Casey looked for an even tighter race in the National League than 1941 had to show. "The Dodgers and Cardinals will be about as strong as they were s year ago. I believe the Reds can be better, with the pitching they are straight triumph and the 22d knocksure to get. Just a few more base hits can make this club a tough con- out since he turned professional less tender back of Walters, Riddle, Vander Meer and Derringer. will improve. Maybe the Giants. I hope we do. "We have some pretty fair kids coming along—if they are not taken away in the draft. This is where the scramble comes in. No one can say a shot at Red Cochrane's welterhow many more players will have to go by midsummer. And you'll find few weight title, but there was talk that ballplayers turned down physically. They are a pretty healthy lot. "One big trouble with baseball," Casey said, "is the little so many players seem to learn. They usually are big, fast and strong, and they appear to think that's all there is needed to make a ballplayer. "Oh, here and there you find a rookie who is keen to learn his trade, to improve himself. But you don't find this sort often. There are too many Berger lashed at his highly favored who either know it all or are too lazy to work at it in the hard way.

'Good baseball is a smart man's game. This is why many an old-timer | rights in the opening round as Ray still will hang on this season, and more kids will fall back. It should be sparred slowly in an apparent effort to set his sights for the salvo to a big year for the veterans. I could use a fellow in Los Angeles by the name of Jigger Statz, who is 43 years old. He still is one of the best outfielders in baseball and a pretty fair hitter."

People's Woes Seen Likely to Help Baseball

Philosopher and psychologist Stengel looked forward to a good base-

"The average human mind," he said, "can handle only so much trouble and brooding. It needs some form of release now and then. The entertainment and the amusement baseball brings to millions will be He took only the count of three, but badly needed. And this can in no way interfere with war work of any the referee decided he was in no

"Workers in war industries can use an hour or two here and there to rest their nerves and get needed relaxation. All those needed for war taken. They have been called in large numbers and they still will be called whenever and wherever wanted. But there will be others left-many others-including older men with families. Not so many of these will be taken, with so many unmarried younger men around.

'And stars keep coming along. I remember they once said nobody could take the place of Wagner and Lajoie. Then we had Cobb, Speaker and Jackson. Who could take their places? Then we had Ruth and Gehrig, Hornsby and others. Nobody could fill those gaps. But suddenly there were Di Maggio, Feller and Ted Williams. Also Pete Reiser, a great first-year man. And that Joe Gordon is no doormat around second base."

Germans, Japs to Finish Lower Than Phillies

"Yes, they keep coming along," Casey said. "The war will make a difference for a while. But there still are many, many years left when we'll have peace, after we've won this scrap. There won't be any peace worth while, unless we do. Even a dumbbell ought to know that.

"And I can tell you this-baseball has given Army and Navy and Air Force and Marines more than triple the number we gave in the last Air Force and Marines more than triple the number we gave in the last war. I'll bet there are a thousand good ballplayers in the service today. To Full Speed for against less than 125, years ago in the other war. I'd like to have a team today picked from the services—Bobby Feller, Ted Williams, Hank Greenberg, Cecil Travis, Sam Chapman, Buddy Lewis, Johnny Sturm and a great many more.

"We'll have new stars this next season, some of them now almost unknown, which will be unimportant as compared to winning the war. But it still will have its share in keeping a great American game going along, a game that will last a long time after we have mopped up the Germans and the Japs, who will finish far lower than the Phillies and the Browns ever dropped in their worst years. And they've had a few bad ones." At which point the seamy-faced Mr. Stengel bit roughly into an-

With a 34-30 basket victory over Maryland last night as an aperitif, North Carolina's White Bantams moved over to Annapolis today to battle the Midshipmen.

The Tarheels should be on edge for Maryland, trailing by a 23-13 margin in the first half, rallied strongly behind Ernie Travis in the second and made a fight for the bacon and succeeded in tying up matters at 29-all. But at this juncture Paine dropped in a field goal and a free shot, presenting Carolina with a lead it succeeded in holding by freezing the ball in the last minute of play.

The victory clinched a place on the Southern Conference tournament for North Carolina. Maryland long since has been out of the

Is Toughest Dodger Holdout

Slab Ace Worries Boss MacPhail; Walker Just Stubborn; Highe to Be Punished

By JUDSON BAILEY,

BROOKLYN, Feb. 21.—Larry MacPhail is having trouble getting a few of his Brooklyn Dodgers into camp at Havana, but the holdout that he says may be the hardest to handle is Whitlow Wyatt. and Pitcher Kirby Higbe has refused to go to Cuba because he can't signed his 1942 contract after the world series last fall. However, the only dispute involving a big difference in money is the one with Wyatt, the tall, affable Georgia farmer and right-handed League pennant. MacPhail said Wyatt had asked an exorbitant salary this year.

Wyatt Was Offered Raise. When Wyatt came to Brooklyn recently to discuss terms it was understood that he received approximately $11,000 last year and asked $20,000 for 1942. tion that Wyatt deserved a material increase in salary, and added that he had offered the pitcher what he considered a substantial raise, with provision for his getting an even bigger boost if the club fared well financially. Down on his Buchanan, Ga., farm Wyatt said he didn't wish to be "classed as a holdout," but he wanted "time to think things out." He said he made MacPhail a proposition when he visited Brooklyn and that nothing was said, but a contract, forwarded later, didn't suit him. He sent it back and received another the same day which lacked bonus clauses that had been in the first offer. That one went back, too. The chances of getting together soon are not good, MacPhail con-

Walker Won't Talk Terms. "Wyatt always wants to make his own rules," he asserted. "He always has been hard to get to training camp. I think he doesn't want to go to camp again this year and is asking a lot more money than we are willing to pay so he can delay

The difference with Walker, outfielder who has hit over .300 the last two years for the Dodgers, is a matter of principle, MacPhail explained rather than a dispute over salary. He said Walker had made a proposition which was not far from the club's offer, but that instead of coming around to talk things over. Dixie had declared the Dodgers could take it or leave it.

"The next move is up to Walker," he added. "I wouldn't be surprised

Highe to Be Disciplined MacPhail said proper disciplinary action would be taken against Higbe, but that its nature would depend on how long Higbe took to realize his position.

"It simply was impossible to arrange transportation for the players' wives to Havana," he said, "and it would obviously have been unfair to have made an exception for Highe.' He said Kraus, who pitched in the class B Piedmont League last year, had been offered double his 1941 salary with the promise of more if he stayed with Brooklyn all season.

Take Train for 11-Hour Trip After Hard Win Over St. Vincent

Columbus University's basketers are at Huntington, W. Va., for a game tonight with the fast-stepping Marshall College quint and if they win it will border on the miraculous. The Explorers hopped a day coach last night immediately after nosing out St. Vincent, 51-50, in a hot but remarkably clean game at Eastern High School gym, and the 11-hour trip wasn't calculated to invigorate them. Against Marshall they certainly won't get any rest, for the West Virginians proved one of the finest small college teams in the East when they played here against American U.

Columbus gained a 27-26 lead in the first half last night after the count had been tied nine times, and went ahead for keeps in the second after momentarily seeing the score evened again on Patsy Phillips' one-handed shot. Hungrily eyeing a Southern Conference tournament's berth and thirsting for revenge for an early season setback at the invader's hands, George Washington's courtmen will put out all the stops tonight in an effort to humble Duke at Riverside Stadium in the District's outstanding court classic of the season. The initial tipoff is set

It is the only item on the collegiate sports agenda here, but four other District quintets and Maryland's mittmen will be active on the road. Georgetown meets Yale, American U. plays Western Mary-land, Columbus tangles with Marshall and Gallaudet faces Susquehanna in basket ball. The Terp leather pushers have a date with North Carolina.

Colonial Quint Is Confident. Duke's superior reserve strength is expected to offset any advantage that might come to George Washington from playing on its home court, but Coach Bill Reinhart is confident the downtown aggregation will come through. The Colonials have pointed for this game like rifle experts drawing a bead on the middle spot and should be at their best. No games were scheduled this week in order to give the boys plenty of rest and they are on edge and anxious to get going.

"There is no question in my mind that Duke is the team to beat for the conference title," Reinhart was saying today, "but I believe my bunch is the one to do it. Eddie Cameron (Duke coach) has a smart, well drilled outfit and he handles his material superbly. I know they'll be fresh and smart all the way through and their ability to keep moving at top speed is our biggest worry. But we'll do the best we can with what we have and I think we'll come out on top."

Tigers Nail Champion Riders With Rally in Closing Quarter

Vikings Ahead All Way In Downing Western; Both Tilts Thrill

By GEORGE HUBER.

Central High, one of the city's basket ball powers of former days which hasn't won a title since 1933, and Woodrow Wilson, which never has snared a championship in anything, meet tonight at Tech gym to decide the 1942 District public high

Both were slight underdogs at the beginning of the playoff round last night, but both proved of championship caliber by the manner in which they advanced to tonight's final. Central led most of the way in upsetting Western, 33-28, while Wilson was forced to stage a big last-period rally to unseat Roosevelt, for two years the champion, 28-24. The two teams meet tonight at 8:30, with a preliminary at 7:30 between Coolidge and Eastern hold-

Karas and Cross Persistent. The Vikings couldn't subdue completely Jim Karas and Donny Cross, Western's potting aces, but they displayed enough close guarding and ability to snatch rebounds to gain a handy victory. The Red Raiders appeared in excellent shooting form when they stepped in front, 4-0, on shots by Karas and Charley Stephenson at the start, but thereafter the Vikings found the range and with left-handed Teddy Thomaides and tall Bob Hill dropping in a pair of buckets each they stepped ahead, 10-8, in the first period and held a margin of various sizes the rest of the way.

Central tallied only one field goal In the second period, but some fancy shooting from the foul line kept it in front, 18-13, at the half, and with Bill Kelly hitting a hot streak for four straight floor shots had a safe 29-20 edge going into the last eight minutes. Hank Lawler's pair of baskets was the total of Central's scoring in this final frame, but Central's margin and some close guarding was enough to stave off Western's desperate late play. Kelly's streak in the third period aided him in gathering individual honors with 10 points, same as tallied by Western's Karas. Six of Jim's points were charity markers.

Limiting the Tigers to a single foul shot by Freddy Vinson, the defending champions marched in front, 6-1, in the first period, and despite the three goals by John Coffey, Wilson forward, still had a 12-11 lead at the half. The two teams matched each other point for point in the third quarter and entered the last eight minutes with Roosevelt still in front, 17-16.

Then Donny Hillock, Wilson's eurly-haired All-High center last year, finally found the nets he had been shooting for all evening and swished through for four field goals. Vinson also got a floor shot, and two foul tosses by John Coffey and Stanley Patten gave the Tigers their Hillock's last-period spree gave him individual high scoring honors with 8 points, while Dick Koester led the Rough Riders with another 8.

Courteau in Hot Water Again; Both Hockey Teams Away

Eagle Doesn't Know if He's to Incur Fine For Ruckus in Victory Over Olympics

Both hockey teams of the town are due to play on foreign ice tonight, with the Lions, American Hockey League entry, scheduled to clash in Philadelphia with the Rockets in an attempt to boost further their two-game winning streak since Coach Ching Johnson was benched, while the Eagles of the Eastern Amateur League tangle at River Vale with the lowly Skeeters. The Eagles are sure of a place in the amateur league playoffs, while the Lions, only a point back of third place, can overhaul the Providence Reds by a victory in the Quaker City tonight.

Owner Uline promises a realignment tomorrow of the situation surrounding the benching of Coach Johnson last Wednesday night, The Wilson-Roosevelt thing was when the Lions return from their Baranowski's eye. They toted the road trip and prepare to tackle the league-leading Hershey outfit to-

Paul is in hot water again, but many of the 2,695 people who saw the ruckus last night at Riverside Stadium, where the Eagles trounced the skidding Boston Olympics, 6 to 3, in an overtime tiff, will testify that Pnching Paul has reformed. Paul didn't lift a finger to protect himself when rowdy Cy Beigler, Olympic wing, dropped his stick and swung lustily at the Frenchman. Out of the mixup came a misconduct penalty for Courteau, a 5-minute penalty for Beigler, and a statement by Referee John Wilkin that in justice to Courteau he wouldn't talk. Team Always Playing on Unfamiliar Court, One of the Hoya's Several Arguments

Defending Georgetown's basket ball team in the face of its indifferent success this winter, The Hoya, student publication, devotes one of its three editorials in the current issue to the problems confronting the squad and points to four disadvantages it has labored under. The major objection would seem to be too many road games judging by an accompanying cartoon which depicts the team

Jumper the Hare was growing thin. Yes, sir, he was growing thin. He never had been very fat, but now he was thinner than ever and get-Children's Scrapbook Stars Over Hollywood ting more so every day. What was making him? Why, just worry. That is all-just worry. Here is was the beautiful springtime and plenty to eat, yet Jumper was growing thin. Very few people have a good appetite when they are worried. It was that way with Jumper. He just couldn't eat much, and what was almost as bad, he couldn't sleep much. Now eating and sleeping are what make people fat, and whoever cannot eat and cannot sleep is bound to grow thin. And so Jumper grew thinner and thinner, while almost everybody else grew fat. News-Meadowbrook Mead'brook Matinee

It was all because of Reddy Fox Reddy had made up his mind that he was going to catch Jumper the Hare and Jumper knew it. Now Jumper can outrun Reddy Fox, and when it comes to a race he isn't the least bit afraid. But Reddy is sly, very sly. He knew better than to try to catch Jumper by chasing him. He knew that he would have to catch him by surprising him when he was asleep, or by hiding close to some place where Jumper was in the habit of eating.

Jumper knew that, too, of course. he did. He knew just as well as Reddy did that Reddy couldn't catch him in a race. He felt perfectly safe as long as he could see Reddy or knew exactly where he was. But at all other times he worried. You see, he didn't know but Reddy might jump out from behind any bush or tree, and so he had to be on watch every minute he was awake. That was bad enough, but what was worse was the fact that he didn't dare sleep. Of course, he had to sleep some, but it was in little naps from which the merest rustle of a leaf would waken him all ready to jump and run for his life. Now you know little naps like that give very little rest. And it is dreadful to close your eyes wondering if you will ever open them again. It was no wonder that Jumper grew thin.

And so he hunted by day or night, whenever he felt like it, and so, of course, poor Jumper never knew when he might safely sleep. He kept to the deepest part of the Green Forest, hoping that Reddy would not hunt for him there. You know Reddy is more fond of the edge of the Green Forest than he is of the deep, dark, lonesome parts. But he had made up his mind to catch Jumper, and so now he followed Jumper to his most lonely of the now-defunct Four Marx Brothers, is hiding places.

Pass West opened the nine of diamonds, East winning with the ace and returning the suit to allow West a ruff. West hesitated for a while, trying to choose between the club and a spade return. (A good defensive pair would have solved this problem easily, for East would have returned the ten of diamonds, using a high card to signal for a high suit-or spade-return.)

But West guessed wrong, choosing to return a club. South breathed again, but not too noticeably, for he was far from safe at his game contract. He won with the club ace. drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the diamond queen, entered dummy with the club king and discarded a spade on dummy's diamond king. Then he returned to his own hand with a third round of trump to make the crucial play.

That was the lead of the spade eight. West made the fatal blunder of playing the seven of spades, and dummy could safely duck the trick. Eas had to win with the ten of spades, and could not find a safe return. If he returned a spade, dummy's ace-queen would take both tricks, while any other return would allow South to ruff while dummy discarded the spade queen.

Note that this position would not have come about if West had played the nine of spades. That would have saved his partner from the end-play.

'Captains of the Clouds,' With Cagney, Is Vivid Technicolor Narrative Of Life Among Fighter Pilots

By JAY CARMODY.

Whether it is on your side or the other, on the ground or in the air, the military airplane is the most fascinating thing in the world today. The consequence is that the photoplay built around the fighting plane is a virtual must on every one's list. The man whose end or new beginning is almost certain to come from the air cannot fail to be entranced by the subject. Accordingly the movies, which are pretty smart that way, have shot the theme from every possible & angle and have found the shooting perfectly marvelous from the boxoffice stand-

Latest illustration of their wisdom is "Captains of the Clouds," the Earle's new attraction, which not only is super - saturated with airplanes. but also has the added attractions of technicolor and Jimmy Cagney. Those qualities alone Jay Carmody. make it something of an epic, one that is all the more engrossing for the fact that it has virtually no story structure and what little it does have being on the trivial side. But, bless the Warner Bros. souls. they have in it something that will keep you interested, say 79 minutes of its 113. The rest of the time you can watch Cagney and Brenda Marshall (whom we have stopped calling "Frazier") be nastily and somewhat sensually attracted to each other.

The story that is important about "Captains of the Clouds" is the literal one of life in the Royal Canadian Air Force. It is a sturdy enough narrative to stand up easily under the load of the romantic balderdash which has been superimposed upon it. It is enormously helped toward this end by the photography which not only is invariably beautiful but has more or less constantly to do with military airplanes of all types and looking inspiringly like what the hemisphere most desperately needs.

Cagney, Miss Marshall, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale, Reginald Gardiner and numerous other of Warner's sturdiest troopers are blended with the R. C. A. F. somewhat incidentally.

They represent "bush pilot" life, a group of pilots and a girl who have carried aviation-and been carried by it—to the fringes of civilization in the lake-pocketed wilderness of Northern Canada. It is a wild primitive, individualistic world in which they live and love and fight semi-murderously for what air freight and passenger business is

It is perhaps well to know when seeing them in this state that the moments, among them Don Arres, time fire in her eyes. "People in the point where they will all get Pepita and Lucia, who sing Latin wasn't fooling. how fighting pilots are made. The tacular routines. going and the photography are much better in these significant passages of the film. Even though it comes as no surprise, it is interesting to learn what the picture has to say of aviation psychology, medicine, flight training, discipline and the other things that enter into producing a fellow who can outfight his Axis equivalent.

Lively and colorful are two words that might be applied to the Earle's stage show. In fact they will be applied right now; it is a lively and colorful miniature revue Harry Anger has contrived in his "Samba Show." The samba being a Brazilian affair, all these doings are given the Latin-American touch, even Joe Lombardi and the orchestra looking beautiful in blouses.

It is a rather more quiet than usual Latin-American mood which prevails, however, nothing of the "bombshell" manner being on dis-play, unless it is the not exactly calm dance (not the samba) performed by some people named Marqueta and Pancho. The real samba, allegedly authentic, is a bright and sprightly affair as demonstrated by Helene y Gorge, accredited samba

Miss Charnstrom's Artistry Improves

"Music of the Americas," pre-sented at Pierce Hall last night by Christine Charnstrom, young Wash-ington pianist, proved a refreshing innovation in program-making, as well as a test for her artistic development in the last few years. Unspoiled by past success and having lost nothing of her natural, commanded attention by her maturer outlook on music as an art. Where heretofore she understood the latter in terms of so many notes she showed last night an intelligible appreciation of musical contents. The severest test in this direction was possibly MacDowell's "Keltic Sonata No. 4," which she played with the youthful enthusiasm of her newly acquired gift for self expression and a new confidence in her powers. Her tone gained in volume and brilliancy, her technique in freedom and agility. Something of a champion of a neglected work, Miss Charnstrom brought home that MacDowell's music is just as inter-esting as that of Schumann or

Schubert and perhaps more so because of its complexity and individuality of style. In addition to Griffes' "The Fountain of the Acqua Paola," "The White Peacock" and Sowerby's "Burnt Rock Pool" and "The Irish Washerwoman," the young pianist played a group by South American composers which consisted of Villa-Lobos' "The Clown," "Little Paper Doll," Guarnieri's "Brazilian Dance" and Ginastero's "Criolla." In these she showed once more the solidity of her technical equipment, and, while the Latin coloring may have been wanting in some of these numbers, Miss Charnstrom made up the deficiency by the quality of her
