By the Associated Press. BANDOENG, Netherlands Indies, Feb. 23.—Dutch and American air and naval forces destroyed and scattered the entire Japanese invasion fleet which attacked Bali last week, but some of the invaders have succeeded in getting ashore, overrunning airport at Denpasar, the Dutch offering strong support. announced today.

A communique of the Nether-lands Indies armed forces declared, however, that the Japanese, who had landed through a hail of bombs from American and Dutch air forces, were isolated now from supplies and reinforcements.

"Not a single warship or transport remained near Bali to give the Japanese troops support of supplies" after big formations of American four-motored bombers, dive bombers and fighters, and Dutch and American cruisers and destroyers attacked the Japanese armada, the communique said.

A statement issued by the Netherlands Indies government said "a single ship which succeeded in escaping destruction has fled."

(Imperial headquarters at Tokio reported capture of the town of Denpasar, but made no mention of the Japanese invasion fleet.)

A United Nations communique said Allied dive bombers set a Japanese merchantman of more than 10,000 tons afire with direct hits in the Strait of Bangka, off Sumatra, 250 miles northwest of Batavia, and machine gunned other large ships in that vicinity.

Among other widespread aerial operations, the communique said two reconnaissance planes escaped from 17 Japanese naval planes and "successfully completed their tasks."

Fighting Apparently Is Sweeping Over Wide Area Between Sittang and Bilin

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 23.—The battle for Burma raged in full fury today, with Japanese invading forces striking toward the Sittang River, the mouth of which is barely 70 miles from Rangoon and only 20 miles from the railway connecting this port with the Burma supply road to China.

The fighting apparently was sweep-* ing over a wide area between the Sittang and the Bilin River, some 30 miles to the east, which the Japanese succeeded in crossing at several points last week despite fierce resistance by British imperial troops. A communique issued yesterday from British headquarters indicated the imperial troops were falling back slowly on the Sittang, last natural line of defense protecting the Burma part of the island and seizing the road, but said Allied warplanes were

Tokio Accused of Attempts to 'Kill' Speech in Advance

By JOHN C. HENRY. President Roosevelt was applying finishing touches to a Nationwide radio address today as the White House officially accused the Japanese government of attempting by radio propaganda to destroy effect of the speech in advance.

Scheduled to be delivered at 10 o'clock tonight on all domestic radio networks and to be rebroadcast in nearly a score of foreign languages across the entire world, the address is expected to portray against a world-wide background the immediate war task of the United Nations in general and the United States in particular

The White House said the speech would run almost 4,000 words and require slightly more than a halfhour for delivery.

The charge made against Tokio

the Tokio government had initiated this morning its most intensive radio assault and that before 11 o'clock Washington time, there already had been four lengthy and bitterly worded broadcasts in English from the Japanese capital.

In summary, the broadcasts were said to have accused President Roosevelt personally for full responsibility for bringing the United States into the war against the Axis and represented him as dodging all pertinent war questions during his press conferences.

White House Secretary Stephen Early said that the Japanese brosscasts had included the following

"Good American citizens should know that the statements of President Roosevelt, including his popular fireside chats and the announce ments of the followers of Mr. Roosevelt, are all got-up stories or tricks cunningly set up by them in order to conceal the facts and the truth.' Gas on Stomach Bodies of 16 Sought After Ohio River

Most of Victims Asleep When Towing Vessel Hits Bridge Support

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 23.-Rivermen struggled today to recover the bodies of 16 persons from the splintered towboat G. W. McBride, smashed against a stone bridge pier in the swollen Ohio River before dawn Sunday.

The partly submerged wreckage lay near midstream, pinned to the pier by treacherous currents which caused the Ohio's worst tragedy in more than 20 years. The bridge connects Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky.

Most of the victims-believed to be 13 men and three women-were asleep in their crew bunks when the Ohio River Co.'s 170-foot boat crashed as it was towing four loaded coal barges and a fuel flat.

"She went down just about as fast as it takes you to climb from the first to the second floor," said Ernest Easter, 37-year-old deckman from Buena Vista, Ohio.

Only Five Rescued. He was one of five crewmen who scrambled atop the boat and were rescued after the McBride broke in half. The rescuers, Joe Haas and Bill Pierman, rowed to the scene in a johnboat from the Sounthern Ohio Yacht Club. Saved with Mr. Easter were George Harrison, 2, also of Buena Vista; Raleigh W. Hineman, 33, engineer, of Huntington, W. Va.; George Woomer, 30, engineer, of Henderson, W. Va., and John W. Cain, 18, deck hand, of North Kenova, Ohio. The McBride was backing off when she hit the pier broadside. Her master, Capt. Peter Oliver Lallance, 60, of Ashland, Ky., was at breakfast and the pilot, Capt. Roy Edginton of Augusta, Ky., was at the wheel. A few crewmen were breakfasting and two women cooks were in the kitchen.

First Crash Light. "The first crash was rather light." Mr. Hineman said, "then some one gave the distress whistle and the captain said: 'Boys, there is something wrong-this is serious,' and ran from the table. I ran from the kitchen and heard one of the Critics of those in authority in the Nation at present should be placed under restraint, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, said in an address at the Washington Cathedral yesterday.

Bishop Freeman used as his text 'Can America Be Sobered?" His talk was based on a quotation from Amos: "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion."

He charged that there is no concern among citizens today even with millions of men under arms, and said there should be a unity of purpose which will sober the people. "From every cathedral and church in the land America must be admonished," he added. "We must lay aside our indifferences and show more respect for those in authority. I'm satisfied with Gen. The American advance continued slowly throughout the day, and at 5 p.m. the combined pressure on three sides of the enemy caused a strong number of Japanese to attempt a break-through toward the rear of the American lines. The Japanese came running along a trail toward the 2d Battalion command post, where runners, radio men and telephone men all grabbed their rifles and sprayed fire until the Japanese were driven back. During the day, the Japanese had pressed the left flank of the 1st Battalion, which was commanded by

Then the enemy made the mistake of yelling and shooting simultaneously, thereby putting the defenders on the alert. The 31st stopped the attackers literally dead in their tracks with terrific bursts of small-arms fire.

The American artillery co-ordinated its fire beautifully, dropping shells within 500 yards of the 3st's front line, then shortening the intervening distance to 200 yards.

Enemy Attacks Again. After a half hour of this the Japanese retired, but they attacked again at 4:15 and 5:30 in the morning, apparently to enable them to remove their dead and wounded. But many of the enemy dead remained on the Amercian barbed wire, including 22 piled in front of a single machine-gun. On the following day entirely fresh Japanese troops appeared in front of the 31st with different uniforms and new equipment, and the Americans believed that the entire force which had participated in the night attacks, estimated at a battalion at least, had been completely exterminated. (Lee's note: "I was at the 31st Regiment's command post during the above attack, but was not permitted to write the details at the time.") During five hours of these attacks one company of the 31st alone fired The guns were in action incessantly and many soldiers blistered their light machine-guns. The Army's new Garand rifle more than proved its effectiveness and the soldiers praised it highly, especially the ease with which it could be reloaded.

During the night battles, Sergt. William H. Steward of Van Alstyne, Tex., was struck by a bit of a mortar shell and was stunned, but not wounded. He grabbed a rifle and ran to the firing line and helped repulse the attacks then and during the next two days, showing complete contempt for the enemy's bombing and shelling and "irrepressible optimism." For this, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Incessant Attacks. For the remainder of the day the 31st was pinned to its fox holes and trenches by incessant, accurate shell fire and innumerable dive bombing attacks.

Auto Racing Called Off For Duration

The American Automobile Association announced today that all official automobile racing activities under the sanction of the A. A. A. Contest Board would be postponed

The primary reason, the association said, was the fact that the war effort is vitally in need of both of rubber, fuel and strategic materials used in racing, and of the full-time efforts of the highly-skilled young manpower represented by the racing fraternity.

"The American Automobile Association will refuse its sanction for any race until world conditions permit a return to normal pursuits," the announcement said.

Labor Shortage Faced As Nation Speeds Big War Drive

20,000,000 to Wear Uniforms, Overalls By December

> By FRANK I. WELLER, Wide World News.

The first real labor shortage in modern America will occur between July 1, 1942, and July 1, 1943, if national mobilization of man power for war proceeds according to plan.

Those dates bracket the year in which President Roosevelt hopes to convert 50 per cent of American industry to war production and to spend more than $50,000,000,000 for fighting materiel.

By December of this year, the schedule calls for an additional 10,-000,000 of war production workers and 2,200,000 more men for the armed forces, and decreases of 10,-200,000 in the number of non-defense, agricultural, self-employed and unemployed workers.

No Washington source will estimate now where labor shortage may fall, but authorities forecast "not only complete mobilization of man power but also a real labor shortage." They say the scarcity will be much more marked than during the last war. This time Uncle Sam is arming his Allies as well as him-

Vast Readjustment Faced. For many it seems fantastic that

2,000,000 unemployed in its best years and saw idleness mount to 8,000,000 face a labor shortage.

Few fully realize yet the tremendous labor readjustment in store. The defense effort started 18 months ago with less than 500,000 men in uniform and only a few thousand persons employed in war factories. By next December, 4,200,000 will be in service and 15,000,000 employed at making war goods.

Approximately 20 per cent of all industrial plants joined early defense and lend-lease production. most of them without disturbing their commercial contracts. Now, suddenly, there is to be a 150 per cent increase in the number of war plants, and this time it is an all-

Incentives Planned.

The War Production Board tentatively plans to operate every machine tool 24 hours a day and perhaps offer bonuses and medals to men making the highest scores. It points dramatically to the British experience after Dunkirk when factory workers stayed on the job until they dropped from exhaustion. They now work a maximum of 101/2 hours a day.

Labor and farm organizations naturally wish to keep their men at present jobs, but the best guess here is that their effort will fall short. The younger age groups are so definitely needed for a 7,000,000-man armed force that few see much chance of deferment for farm and factory workers between 20 and 30 inclusive. They are the fibre of the fighting forces.

The British have found it far wiser to defer, where they must, the military service of men between 30 and at the Karlskrona fortifications and 40 in essential work and switch the younger ones back and forth from combat duty to factory production as the emergency demands.

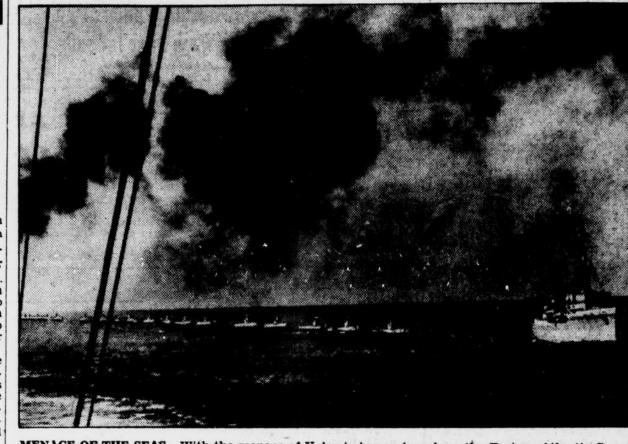

Modern mechanized warfare requires almost every man to be a sent to Germany for war industry mechanic of sorts, and the Agriculture Department is urging farmers to try carrying their added production burden with local help now available or to use older ex-farm hands and 'farmerettes" from whatever distance they may have to come.

Up to now the movement of labor to farm and factory war work has not exceeded 100 to 200 miles, average. Henceforth, the government may move and place workers whereever they are desperately needed. This will be done on a voluntary basis as far as possible.

For eight years, at least, Axis powers have prepared for this war by abrogating all personal liberty. The problem for the democracies is to preserve the fundamental freedoms and at the same time equal the enemy's high score of efficiency.

Far North Attack on Russians Believed Part Of Spring Campaign

By BLAIR BOLLES. Indicating that the Axis is making new plans for fighting in Europe's far North, the German government has asked Sweden to permit transit of Nazi troops from Norway to Finland across Sweden, but Stockhelm, which has maintained an attitude of stiff military and political neutrality toward Berlin, has turned down the request. That news has reached Washington in confidential diplomatic reports. How serious Allied officials consider its implications may be made apparent in President Roosevelt's speech tonight, when he discusses global grand strategy. Conquered Peoples Of Europe Expect U. S. to Free Them

Uncle Sam Is Viewed As Crushing Hitler in One Mighty Blow

By WES GALLAGHER,

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.-Europe's little people, trodden under by Nazi legions, look on the United States as sort of a mechanized 20th century Galahad capable of crushing Hitler's military might and relieving their suffering in one grandiose

The John Smiths of the occupied countries respect Britain's courage and Russia's victories, but look to America for liberation.

Peasants in Greece, barbers in Yugoslavia, streetcar conductors in Denmark and waiters in France have drawn for themselves a mental picture of the "great land across the

A picture based on movies, American-sponsored charity organizations, letters from cousins who have gone to the United States to make their fortunes and free-spending Americans whom they have seen touring their countries.

If a cartoonist were creating a symbolic composite drawing of these mental pictures, he might well show a giant streamlined tank with wings racing at high speed through Germany's demoralized armies spewing death before it, while a funnel in the rear pours out endless piles of butter, eggs, meat and bread for starving civilians.

It probably would be driven by President Roosevelt, for, despite ceaseless Nazi propaganda, his name is known with respect even in the remotest mountains of Albania where Hitler's is used to frighten naughty children.

No Long Campaign. These little people have watched the awesome German power butcher their armies, but they remain supremely confident that this same Nazi army will fall apart when America throws its military weight around on a big scale.

They expect no long-drawn-out campaign of bitter battles going first one way, then the other. They expect nothing less than a master stroke which will shatter Hitler's power overnight-perhaps through the use of some futuristic weapon.

Reason tells them that it is unlikely, but their desires, coupled with their exaggerated cinemagleamed ideas, bolster their beliefs. Many never have seen an American airplane, but even while the mighty German air force hurled death at them from the sky they said, "America builds them bigger and better."

They expect the United States to fill the sky with planes, cover the ground with tanks. In the cities, villages and remote mountain farms of the starving Balkins the question is: "When will America smash Hit-

Seventeen-year-old James A. Anderson of Sycamore Hills, Md., today faced grand jury action on a charge of criminally attacking a 36-yearold Government worker in her Sycamore Hills home near Glen Echo on

The victim of the attack yesterday identified Anderson as her assailant, picking him from a group of six persons of about his age, police said. Without hestitation, she walked up to him and said, "That is the man."

After questioning by Detective Lt. BARTLESVILLE, Ok Theodore Vollten and other members of the Detective Bureau, Lt. ager of production and Vollten said the youth signed a the board of directors for the Cities statement admitting the charge Service Oil Co., died yesterday.

In the statement, according to Lt Voliten, Anderson said that he had fired at Bethesda police who had arrived at his home at 34 Wissioming road after he had called them, saying that he was "going to do some shooting." One of the shots narrowly missed Policeman D. D. Padgett, who had remained in the police car while Corpl. Frank Soper and Policeman Whalen went to the door of the house. At this point, according to the statement, Anderson's mother threw herself in front of Corpl. Soper and cried, "Don't shoot him, officer. He's my son. He's only 17 years old. I'll take care of him and get the gun from him." In the confusion, Anderson forced a motorist who had just driven up to drive him from the scene. A few blocks down the road, the youth left the car and ran into the woods,

Park Police also questioned him concerning a shooting last week in Washington while Washington police want to question him about an armed holdup in the Chevy Chase section last week.

Anderson has been employed as a laborer on the new War Department Building in Arlington. He is well known to Washington police, having been arrested several times on suspicion of various crimes. Shaping a Policy

The decision of the War Labor Board in the Phelps Dodge case, taken with other current developments, gives reason to hope that a definite national policy with regard to the closed shop and wage issues will be laid down in the near future.

In the Phelps Dodge ruling the board refused to grant demands for a wage increase of $1 a day and a union shop, asserting that this latter question should be deferred until "an authoritative national policy is enunciated respecting the matter." This, of course, falls short of saying that such a policy will be enunciated, yet it seems to place the board squarely on record as desiring that one be formulated. Certainly a broad statement of policy on the closed shop issue should be announced. preferably by Congress, but otherwise by the President or the board itself.

The wage controversy is more difficult of adjustment, for while the closed shop question might be settled equitably by simply freezing the existing status for the duration of the war, all wages cannot be similarly frozen if the cost of food and some other prices are to continue their upward trend. It may be feasible, however, for the board to work out a policy against general wage advances while the problem of prices and availability of goods is tackled from another direction. This, at least, seems to be the essence of the proposal which the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. are reported to be preparing jointly for submission to the President this week.

This labor proposal, according to advance reports, will rest on the proposition that there should not be any freezing of wage levels in the absence of an effective method of holding down living costs and assuring an equitable distribution of available consumer goods. On its face this is a reasonable request, but it is important also to bear in mind that the prevention of general wage advances must be a condition precedent to any effective control of prices. In this connection Leon Henderson, price administrator, made some pertinent observations in a talk at Des Moines last week.

Mr. Henderson made it clear in the first place that his opposition runs to a general increase in basic wage rates, not to adjustments in individual instances where need for increases may be shown. Asserting that under existing conditions national buying power in 1942 will outrun the available supply of consumer goods by about $15,000,000,000, Mr. Henderson pointed out that further general wage increases would simply result in further widening this spread with inevitable inflationary consequences.

The price administrator stated bluntly that the diminishing output of consumer goods and services inevitably spells a decrease in our standard of living as a Nation. And this is a sacrifice that must be shared equitably by all, not evaded by minorities whose bargaining power is such that they might be able to secure special privileges. Evidence that this is being more and more widely recognized is a gratifying assurance that a real solution of the problem will be found.

New Archbishop

The appointment of the Archbishop of York to be Archbishop of Canterbury had been expected. Taking into account the stipulation of the Most Reverend Cosmo Gordon Lang that he was retiring "to make way for a younger man" as well as the undoubted qualifications of the Most Reverend William Temple, the King has nominated the obvious candidate—a great and notable preacher, a skilled and experienced administrator who is only sixty years

But something more than an alteration in the chief personnel of the Anglican Church is involved in His Majesty's nomination. Dr. Lang, it will be remembered, decided to give up his high office because he wished his successor to take over the duty of preparing for "after-the-war tasks." He was looking ahead and planning ahead, and the essence of ecclesiastical statesmanship is represented in such vision and forethought. The demands of the people of Britain upon their institutions of religion already are heavy. If in the months which lie between the present critical hour and tenance, the new Primate of All | those cited and, at the same time, is | considered.

England will rejoice in the circumstance.

Dr. Temple comes to his post of duty in his full maturity of physical and intellectual power-a big man in every proper sense of the phrase. His father was Archbishop of Canterbury from 1896 to 1902, and he himself, born in the episcopal palace in beautiful Exeter and educated at Rugby and at Oxford, was chaplain to Lord Davidson, who occupied the primatial throne from 1903 to 1928. He is intimately familar with the work and he will have the advantage of the counsel and advice of his predecessor. Also, he is a progressive interpreter of Christian doctrine. His sympathies are generous and kindly. He is at once a scholar and an active participant in the necessary labor of the world. That his obligation is heavy will please him. Should he fail, it will not be because of lack of devotion or zeal.

Japanese Roundup

In the light of recent disclosures regarding the existence of a potential Japanese fifth column on the West Coast, President Roosevelt has acted prudently in empowering the Army to order any and all persons from areas which it may see fit to designate as military zones. The presidential order will strengthen greatly the hand of our counterespionage forces, who heretofore have been handicapped in dealing with suspected spies and saboteurs hiding behind the cloak of American citizenship. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, with the aid of Army and Navy intelligence officers and local authorities, has succeeded in rounding up hundreds of Axis aliens in coastal and other vital areas, but it has been worried by the fact that some 65,000 American-born Japanese in California and thousands more in Washington and Oregon enjoy all the traditional rights of American citizenship, yet many of them are known to put loyalty to Japan above loyalty to the United States. Under the executive order it becomes possible to move American citizens as well as aliens from any danger spot.

The necessities of war require drastic and seemingly harsh measures that would be unthinkable in time of peace. Pearl Harbor showed the peril of being too solicitous of the privileges of nationals of countries which are sworn enemies of the democratic nations. The Roberts report disclosed that warnings from Washington against use of antisabotage measures that might "alarm" the populace, in addition to other restrictions, contributed to the disaster. A joint proposal by naval intelligence and the F. B. I. that Japanese consuls suspected of espionage be arrested as unregistered foreign agents was turned down as being too drastic, the report revealed. Now that we are at war, it is high time that the fifth column problem be handled without kid gloves. That the situation on the Pacific Coast is alarming was made plain by State Attorney General Earl Warren of California in testimony before the Tolan Migration Committee Saturday at San Francisco. He pointed out that some West Coast aircraft factories are entirely surrounded by Japanese-occupied land and that there has been a suspicious increase recently in Japanese "farming activity" on arid tracts in strategic locations. F. B. I. raids have uncovered stores of dynamite, guns, Japanese uniforms, radios, cameras, binoculars and other equipment.

The emergency warrants prompt and decisive action. Perhaps some injustices will be done-but Japanese who really are loyal to America will understand the necessity for moving citizens as well as aliens from restricted zones.

Federal Secrets Bill

Pending before the Senate Judiciary Committee is a bill which deserves the "close scrutiny" which Chairman Van Nuys has promised it will receive. This is the so-called "Government secrets" bill, proposed by Attorney General Biddle as a means of preventing divulgence of confidential Federal documents. It would make it a criminal offense for any one "willfully and knowingly" to 'furnish, communicate, divulge or publish to any person, in whole or in part, copies or the contents, substance, purport, effect or meaning of any file, instrument, letter, memorandum, book, pamphlet, paper, document, manuscript, map, picture, plan, record or other writing" which has been declared by law or by departmental ruling to be secret. Department of Justice officials explain that it was their sole intention, in asking for this legislation, to correct a statutory deficiency which at present precludes prosecution of a Federal employe or any other person who deliberately copies or divulges documents which he knows to be confidential. While existing law forbids theft or destruction of such documents, they point out, it is not unlawful for a Government employe, for example, to copy and give out to unauthorized persons private records of the Civil Service Commission (a recent case revealed the inadequacy of the law in this respect), or for a file clerk in the Department of Justice to do the same with secret investigation reports or criminal files, or for a stenographer to disclose vital data in a Federal prosecution. Undoubtedly, employes so unworthy of trust as to engage in such dangerous practices should be subject not only to dismissal but to criminal prosecu-

But the difficulty in meeting this problem lies in endeavoring to draw that of eventual victory they ask more and yet more of spiritual susto deal with such unusual cases as | Uruguay's current crisis should be red-blooded American—there can be no from depression to prosperity! It is a seated emotional feeling until the re-not so broad as to become a potential instrument of abuse in a Nation dedicated to principles of free speech and free press. Critics of the proposed bill fear that the wording is so all-inclusive as to permit its misuse by those who may wish to suppress publication of facts to which the public is entitled-facts, for instance, relating to official incompetency, corruption or plain stupidity.

The Department of Justice does not contend that the bill is a war measure; there are adequate espionage and wartime censorship laws on the books now to deal effectively with divulgence of war secrets. During the First World War Congress rejected an emergency provision against divulgence of "any information relating to the national defense," whether the information came from a Government agency or from sources outside the Federal establishment, it being held that such legislation would constitute an unconstitutional abridgment of the freedom of the press. While the current proposal is limited to Government documents, many persons believe that, as now phrased, it contains a similar threat to press freedom. Unless such a threat can be removed from the bill. it would seem wiser to risk an occasional evil of the sort which the bill was intended to eliminate, rather than incur the much graver risk of administrative abuses which might strike at the vitally important right of a free press to criticize the executive, legislative or judicial departments when criticism is needed.

Flare-up in Uruguay The virtual coup d'etat executed by President Alfredo Baldomir of Uruguay comes as a disturbing revelation of political instability in a country which has been counted on as one of the pillars of Pan-American solidarity. Nevertheless, it would be unwise to interpret this political crisis solely in terms of the world situation. Like other Latin American countries, Uruguayan politics are stormy and highly personal. Domestic issues having no logical connection with foreign affairs play an important part in the course of events. Unless we understand the relation of local to external policies, the situation cannot be properly

Geographically. Uruguay is one of the smaller nations of South America, especially when contrasted with its giant neighbors, Brazil and Argentina. Nevertheless. Uruguay, with an area slightly larger than the New England States and with a population somewhat over 2,000,000, has a diplomatic and strategic importance far exceeding its mere size. A pastoral land devoted chiefly to stock raising, Uruguayan politics are determined by the balance between a minority of Conservative landed proprietors owning extensive cattle ranches and a Liberal-Radical majority embracing both the rural and urban masses, the latter being found in Montevideo, the port city which is Uruguay's capital and metropolis. Though the population is basically of Spanish origin, there is a considerable Italian immigrant infusion, together with a smaller but influential German element. These, together with the recent Spanish immigrants. tend to align themselves with the native Conservatives. But that does not make the latter automatically "pro-Axis." The native line-up depands largely on political and personal antagonisms with deep historic

After a period of economic and political turbulence during the last World War, a new constitution was adopted in 1919, wherein elaborate precautions were taken to prevent the conversion of the presidency into a dictatorship, the executive power being divided between the President and a National Administrative Council on which the political opposition was assured proportional representation. But this constitutional setup proved too cumbersome during the economic crisis of the early 1930s, which afflicted an exporting country like Uruguay with especial severity. Accordingly, the President made a coup d'etat and eventually engineered a new constitution. Needing to consolidate his position, he assured the Conservative party onehalf the seats in the Senate and onethird the membership in his cabinet, though the lower house in Congress continued to be elected according to the popular vote.

It was this obviously artificial setup which the current President, Alfredo Baldomir, inherited when he took office in 1938. He had been elected by the Liberal-Radical majority, but the Conservative minority was headed by a strenuous personality named Herrera, who so dominated his party that his supporters are usually termed Herreristas. A strong personal antagonism seems to have existed from the first between Herrera and President Baldomir, which accounts in part for the strong opposition of the Conservatives to all the President's policies, foreign and domestic. Last year, Baldomir enraged the opposition by getting rid of their cabinet members. But he could not similarly recast the Senate without openly violating the constitution. When the Conservative Senators, by a trick vote, passed censure upon his foreign policies a few days ago, the President responded by his admittedly unconstitutional action, dissolving Congress, adjourning the elections scheduled for next month and proposing the revision of a constitution which he declared to have become unworkable. This is the po-

Calls on America To Rise for Victory

Writer Urges Realization Of Futility of Profits From Present Crisis

By W. H. Hord.

Wake up America! We are not fighting! We are not alarmed for the safety of democracy! We do not sense the weakening grasp with which we hold our liberties! We do not feel the tidal waves undermining the very foundations of our institutions! We do not sense the awful blackout of hope in the depths of the chasm just ahead! We have not begun to fight because we have not sensed our danger. We have not located our enemy. We have not come to the hour of decision. We do not fight to keep the sun rising, the seasons changing, the rain falling, the wind blowing and we have not distinguished these from democracy, freedom of worship, freedom of person, free enterprise and all the other freedoms and liberties that make this America!

But this type of mental blackout belies centuries of history and throws the infant of democracy helplessly and undefended into the struggle with the demons of oppression and human slavery which have survived through all the millenniums of time. My grandfather was born only 40 years after the death of George Washington. He talked with many people who had seen and known the Father of Our Country-the father of democracy! I was a grown man before my grandfather died and I am still a young man! But the institutions of slavery and human oppression are as old as time itself. It was only 166 years ago-less time than may be spanned by two human lives-that our Declaration of Independence was signed and it was 13 more years before a basis for our present democracy was finally established. Twenty-three years later our democracy had to be desperately defended once more against attack from without. Less than 50 years after this it barely escaped destruction from within. Only 25 years ago our will to defend free institutions was again put to the test. And today our democracy and the freedom upon which it stands is more seriously threatened than ever before. Democracy does not perpetuate men; men perpetuate democracy. Democracy does not live where men do not defend it, nurture it, cultivate it, groom it. It lives only in the hearts of men! It dies when cast

America wake up! Our dreams are not true! Our complacence is cowardly! Our sense of security is hypocritical! Our lust and greed and selfishness are insanity! We are still recovering from a depression when we ought to be fighting for our very lives! We are still straining for our 5 per cent, 10 per cent, 20 per cent profit-yea, as much profit as we can get-off the shells, the planes, the tanks, the guns, the ships, the uniforms, the food and all the other necessities with which the very life blood of democracy is being defended. We are gambling human lives for profits—profits that have no substance in reality! We cry for higher wages which burden the cost of defending America! We hike rents which handicap the defense centers throughout the land! We storm the halls of Congress for an extension of social security while our national existence is being threatened menacingly! We quibble over our hours of work as if it were a pleasant vacation for the flower of American young manhood to face death on the battlefield! We are working for profit when we ought to be fighting for life, for freedom, for our homes, and for a future that inspires hope and vision and courage!

Wake up America! We have not begun to fight! We are still trying to get rich! But what a delusion! If we were base enough to want profits from this murderous war we should be sane enough to recognize the impossibility. How can profits be derived from a conflagration in which the annual cost of producing the implements of war, not to mention the destruction which these implements will inflict, is more than one-half our greatest annual national income? How can profits be obtained from a struggle whose requirements at the outset are straining our national resources to the breaking point? How can profits be realized from an increasing avalanche of paper dollars that buy less and less as there becomes less and less to buy? There can be no profits from this war! There can be only losses! Our problem is not how to make profits, but how to distribute the costs of war. Our present obsession for making profits can only pyramid a fictitious mountain of dollar marks which will perpetuate for generations the problem which ultimately must be met-that of distributing the war losses. It is foolhardy to be deluded by the fantasy of war profits. This kind of thinking can only create circumstances to follow hard in the wake of the war which will be more devastating to our economic and social fabric than the war itself. Every dollar borrowed and thereby pyramided in the price structure is but an accumulation and postponement of the ultimate determination of the distribution of the wars recorded in history.

costs of this most destructive of all the Let's be honest and believe and act what we know in our hearts to be true. War profits are but a mirage which will fade and disappear before our very eyes. There can be no profit out of organized universal mass destruction. Every day we are being denied the very substance of which profits are made. First it was aluminum, then tires, then cars, then radios, then refrigerators, and sugar, and so on until if the war continues for a long period we, as is already true of millions of others, will do well even to subsist. Every day more and more of our wages are paid for making warplanes. warships, war tanks, war fuels, war uniforms, war munitions, war communications and the thousands of other supplies essential to modern warfare. These things are destroyed and to that same extent so is the purchasing power of our wages. The real substance of wages and profits is measured by what they produce. If their product is destroyed, so also are the wages and profits correspondingly reduced in value. The superficial structure of dollar signs is but a fog that clouds the eyes of men whose gullible passions refuse to be tempered by reality.

Wake up Americans and join the fight before our blindness causes us to lose the profits and the victory, too! And this | for victory at the earliest possible date! profits until after the war. Let's organ- | struggle for life itself!

New Dealers Are Assailed For Dinners

Party Held Playing Politics as Usual, Damaging Morale

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

They canceled all dinners and social events, they didn't even hold the Gridiron Club banquet that customarily criticizes the politicians.

All over the Capital there was a mood of deep respect for men dying in the Philippines, for American sailors and fivers coming to grips with death that American democracy might live. That has been the spirit of the rank and file of David Lawrence. America as reflected by folks in Washington. But White House leadership now has somewhat altered that mood by sanctioning political party dinners. The New Deal banquets from coast to coast Monday were arranged to pay off the financial debts of the thirdterm presidential campaign-approximately $600,000. At $100 a plate, it was figured that defense contractors - as individuals, of course-and office holders would voluntarily kick in with contributions and wipe out the party debt. Important to New Dealers.

It was evidently considered important to retire the debt quickly. The New Deal party showed no such solicitude from 1936 to 1940 about strengthening the Nation's credit structure through retirement of any of the $23,000,000,000 in national debt that had been added by the New Deal. If we had an Army or Navy or Air Force to show for that money, capable of fighting a twoocean war, there would be less concern today. It is important, however, to the New Dealers to get rid of Democratic party debt so they may start soon to collect funds for the congressional campaign this autumn, in connection with which Chairman Flynn has already asked the country to elect only Democrats because he fears Republicans can't be trusted in wartime. The President has said he wants candidates who are loyal elected, irrespective of party. But Mr. Flynn, visiting the White House afterwards, said he didn't believe that would change his election appeal, and Mr. Roosevelt seems to have done nothing to bring about the repudiation needed

The President, moreover, had plenty of other nights available in which to deliver his fireside chat, and even after his attention was called publicly to the fact that political dinners of his own party were being held throughout the country "coincidental" with his fireside chat, no move was made to meet public criticism.

Evidently, although food and gasoline is to be rationed, young men and middle-aged men are to be separated from their careers and their homes by the selective service law, even though prices are to be fixed, taxes are to be raised to unheard of heights and the public is expected to drop its business-asusual or selfishness-as-usual attitudes-all of which is desirable in order to win the war-the one thing that isn't going to be curtailed is selfish ambition to obtain and maintain political power.

Churchill's Hand Forced.

Political partisanship is evidently to be encouraged. The Republicans held their Lincoln day dinners recently and urged efficiency and an all-out war effort. Presumably now the Republicans will feel free constantly to call for efficiency in high places and will insist that America cannot win the war and keep the New Deal, too. Already-the Republicans will argue-America's production has been retarded by the administration's tolerance of slowdowns and sitdowns, by insistence on a 40-hour week, by inept handling of labor issues and by a refusal to understand that Germany and Britain have converted from peacetime to a wartime economy only by increasing the output a man without increasing by our huge percentage the cost to the Nation. Last week the British people compelled Prime Minister Churchill to make changes in his cabinet to get efficiency. The American people have less democracy in this respect than the British. But in the autumn elections this year-unless the administration uses public power, position and funds to discredit the opposition party - the American people can put into effect a corrective process that may compel the executive to pick the ablest men in the country to run the war instead of friends, New Deal brain trusters and political henchmen.

On the Record

Britons Don't Put Their Country in Peril by Fighting Each Other, by Refusing to Accept Political Changes

DOROTHY THOMPSON. When Winston Churchill sent Sir Stafford Cripps to Moscow he picked one of the best brains in British political life, though its owner's views are far removed from Mr. Churchhill's. Sir Stafford is a Socialist and an anti-imperialist. Stalin did not receive him for some time. But he was stubborn in his opinion and con- Derothy Thompson. sistent in his reports-Germany would make war on Russia, and he did not think the Russian Army would be a pushover.

Now, following Singapore, Sir Stafford becomes the second most important man in the cabinet. There is this to be said for the British system in contradiction to ours: Politics are not frozen. Mr. Churchill has been forced to make a change in his cabinet by the representatives of the nation. In this country, there is no way by which the people, through Congress or through the press and other instruments for influencing public opinion, can effect changes in the administration. They can only elect another President after four years.

Under a system like ours, it is therefore extremely important that the administration should be sensitive and responsive to public opinion. For otherwise the most well - meant and constructive public criticism encounters frustration and frustration deteriorates into bitterness. In England, the people know they can bring about changes. Therefore criticism is not sabotage. Here, the critic is likely to ask himself two questions: Can I say this without it having results I do not desire? Or, what is the use, anyway?

Amazing Demonstration of Unity. The new British cabinet is an amazing demonstration of what national unity really means. Mr. Churchill, who is a Tory, has made second in command a man of the extreme left and the nation applauds. Why does the nation applaud? It applauds first, because Sir Stafford has brains and the nation knows it. It applauds second, because the British people know that in this war the enemy is on the right, not on the left, a simple truth that does credit to the British political instinct. And Mr. Churchill also knows where the enemy is-externally and internally—the enemy, not of Mr. Churchill, not of the Tory party, but of Britain

Mr. Churchill is not afraid of British leftists because he knows they want Britain to win. Andhow amazing—the Tory Churchill wants even a left-oriented Britain to win. He would rather see Sir Stafford Cripps an the left wing of the labor party in Downing Street than see Hitler there.

We could learn something from it. As I move about the country I find some people want the United States to win provided winning doesn't promote the New Deal. Others want America to win provided the Republicans don't get any credit. And still others want American to win and turn into a Fascist state in the process. Their conception of victory is victory for them-victory for their side in the internal political struggle. Otherwise they want no victory. It is reminiscent of France.

French Wrecked France.

The French upper middle classes did not like the popular front government. So what did they do? They sabotaged France. They sent their capital abroad; they engineered a sit-down capital strike; they cut the very foundations of the state. The left, in its turn, did the same.

The British upper classes don't like Sir Stafford Cripps, I imagine, and neither did they like Ramsay MacDonald. But it is not in the British mind to destroy Britain for the sake of destroying a government. Therefore there is opposition in England, but not sabotage.

And there is another thing about Britain-expressed in Tennyson's great line, "The old order changeth, yielding place to new, and God fulfills himself in many ways lest one good custom should corrupt the world."

Basically the most conservative of nations, there is that in Britain which always knows when to change. That capacity for change, together with patience, has resulted in the fact that for 300 years Britain has known no drastic and bloody internal upheavals-in which she is unique among the nations of the world. If one watches the transition of the last two years-from Mr. Chamberlain through Mr. Churchill to Sir Stafford-the evolution is fantastic. Yet, is it not the same England?

Aren't Afraid of Anything. The deep civilization of the British mind reveals itself in the fact that people are never judged wholly by their ideas but by all the factors that make a personality - for instance, by whether they are honest men. I haven't a doubt that Mr. Churchill, if he were to speak intimately of Sir Stafford, would say, "Cripps? Very intelligent man; has a hobby, he's a Socialist." That Sir Stafford's hobby might considerably change the material way of life of some of Mr. Churchill's friends might annoy Mr. Churchill (or it mightn't; such things don't annoy him much), but he would know how to get on in that Britainsince it would still be Britain, peopled and ruled by Britons. It's like that—the British are not afraid of each other-and thing. For a nation like a person can face any eventuality with courage if its integrity is intact, if it can absorb its own internal experiences without shock or loss of equilibrium.

This has been evidenced by the frequent and violent tirades of recognized White House mouthpieces. The President, personally, never misses a chance to strike and it is accurate to say that for the last six years a continuous, though ineffectual, war against newspapers has been conducted. All of which makes particularly interesting the fact that presentation of the socalled "war secrets" bill, sponsored by Attorney General Biddle, has been accompanied by a series of editorials from left-wing administration organs, the gist of which is that the war sanctifies the President and any criticism now of any Roosevelt act is equivalent to treason. The combination of this bill and the editorials seems more than coinci-

Biggest Pork-Barrel Bill.

It is the press-and the press only which is now commenting on the unsoundness of exempting from the draft labor leaders and moving picture actors. No other medium save the press is pointing out that in order to get through his pet St. Lawrence seaways projects, the President has acquiesced in the committee scheme of putting it in the billion-dollar rivers and harbors bill, which also includes the discredited Florida ship canal, the Tombigbee-Tennessee River scheme and others equally questionable. This has been publicly denounced as the biggest pork-barrel bill in history.

Inclusion in it will make it impossible for Congress to consider the exceedingly dubious-even in peacetime-St. Lawrence project on its merits. With its White House support the chances of its going through are good. Without newspaper opposition they would be overwhelming. Some time ago, speaking to Gen. Knudsen, a friend said, "Bill, why on earth did you indorse that St. Lawrence thing?" The reported reply of the naive Mr. Knudsen was this: "They asked me." These opponents do not fully realize the implications and effects of their public statements and off-the-record declarations, which although less conspicuous than before the United States was forced into war, are nonetheless damaging to the national The Axis radio is at present engaged in as effective an action as its armed forces. The radio activities also are of great assistance to the progress of Axis armed forces, and anything the Axis can pick up to show the rest of the world that America, besides being unprepared for an offensive war, is also crumbling internally is of major assistance to the enemy governments. Nazi forces are fighting in Russia and may be fighting shortly in the Mediterranean and Near East. The whole of Europe -with a few minor exceptionsis under the German boot, but the subjected populations are attempting to shake off the Nazi yoke, and there is sporadic fighting in many sections of Europe. Hopes Are Increased.

The fact that the United States is now fighting the Axis has heightened the hope of the subjected nations of regaining their freedom. The reverses we have suffered so far have not undermined their confidence in us: they, like the great majority of people in this country, believe victory in the end will be on our side, regardless of what further setbacks we may suffer.

That attitude of the conquered peoples compels the Reich to maintain large armies of occupation. These could be reduced and used on other fronts if the subject nations gave up all hope in the United States. Hence, anything which might convince them that there is disunity in America makes the task of the Berlin government so much

The same thing applies to Japan, whose armed forces are still carrying the ball. But there is a feeling of uncertainty among many high-ranking Japanese, Washington understands by grape-vine telegraph from the Far East. The Japanese see many successes ahead, but they are not making the mistake of underestimating American war potential. If they can show the people of China-whose continued fight is so vital for a final Allied victory—that America is rotten with discord; that the people are not pulling together, and that internal dissension rather than lack of military power will bring us to our knees, they will have won a great victory.

U. S. Has Great Prestige. India presents a similar case. While the British are disliked by a large part of India's population. the United States continues to enjoy great prestige. To be able to undermine this prestige among the 350,000,000 Indians would be worth more than 40 armored divisions to the Japs. Axis short-wave stations are working effectively, and any little bits of information that may be picked up indicating lack of unity in the United States are magnifled and exaggerated by the Nazi and Japanese propaganda ex-

Thus, on February 14, the Tokio radio rebroadcast a Berlin radio story which quoted-and distorted-Senator Wheeler's "Ltold-you-so" speech made a few days earlier.

Tokio devoted two full broadcasts to this speech, making capital of some anti-British sentences it found in the address to indicate that the United Nations are not sincerely co-operating. It quoted-with usual Jap exaggerations-Senator Wheeler's remarks about the United States being unprepared to fight a war and the British not making full use of military supplies sent from this country.

Information Quickly Relayed.

In conclusion the Tokio broadcast-beamed to China-pointed out that American isolationists are quickly recovering strength, and that the political honeymoon which followed Pearl Harbor has come to an end, thanks to Japan's smashing blows. This isolationist group, the Japanese radio tells the world, is now prepared to take up a serious fight against any further shipment of supplies to Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

Axis undercover agents continue to operate throughout this country. Members of Congress and other persons who have been in Washington often give interviews to the press when they return home. Reporters of local papers naturally are anxious to learn all the "inside dope." As a rule they are given for publication only what can be printed safely, but it is reported that many interesting statements are made off the record.

Although the local newspapers may respect the off-the-record statements and refrain from publishing them, rumors about them spread rapidly, as is natural, and it is not difficult for enemy stooges to discover what was said. That is reported within 24 hours to Berlin-generally by way of Mexico-and provides superb material for Lord Haw Haw and other Axis broadcasters.

Calls Confidence Major U. S. Fault

DALLAS, Tex.-One of the major faults in this country right now is something that is usually considered a major virtue. It is confidence. From Portland, Me., to Portland, Oreg.; from San Diego to Savannah, there isn't a blessed soul who doesn't believe that no matter what happens, Uncle Sam will be at the head of the table when Henry McLemore. the peace terms of World War II are dictated.

I'm not knocking confidence or preaching defeatism, mind you, but the alarming aspect of this country's confidence is that apparently it is based on tradition and past performances and does not spring from the knowledge that every individual citizen is doing his utmost. Too many of us are counting on the other fellow's carrying the load. We overlook the fact that too many of the other fellows are counting on us to bear the burden. That's the vicious circle from which sprang the "let George do it" phrase.

To my mind, the President could not have done a better thing than when, in a press confidence, he warned that an enemy attack on New York or Detroit was entirely possible. We need to be aroused to the fact that ever since we joined this bloody business, we have enjoyed nothing but a sound kicking

Neither has Japan. We are not going to win this one by thumbing through the pages of history. The glorious deeds of our ancestors are not going to be enough to see us through unless they serve as an inspiration to make each and every one of us worthy of those This country's reaction so far to the setbacks we have suffered is remindful of the batter who returns to the bench after having struck out and says, "he ain't got nothing on the ball but the cover," or the fighter who has been carried back to his corner and who, when he comes to, says, "Dat bum can't hit hard enough to bust an egg." It's the attitude of the old champ who knows he used to be good, but is soft and out of condition, who still has contempt for the youngster who is hard as nails, mean as the devil, and just aching to knock somebody's head off.

Let's quit being smug, folks. Let's admit that we are up against the toughest, meanest, orneriest, bestconditioned fighters we have ever faced. Without losing any of our confidence, let's realize that the office and personally very close to fined and imprisoned for printing cials a power they clearly should Washington, where everything is best way to justify that confidence the President. Over Confidence Is Deadly.

When I say this country is too confident for its own good I know what I'm talking about. Since I started off on this transcontinental hop I've seen and heard things that would astound you. People turning off late war news to tune in on a dance band. People hoarding golf balls in fear they wouldn't have any to play with two or three years from now. People saying we could already have bombed and burned Tokio if we weren't too kindly and

I haven't heard any actual complaining by people of having to do without sugar and rubber and other vital commodities, but I'm telling you I haven't heard any who expressed a gladness in having to do without. Not until the danger we are in is fully realized by the citizens and they start wanting to sacrifice, is this country really going on the march.

Someone in high authority, one whose words carry weight, should start a campaign in this countrya campaign devoted to making us Americans stop underrating the enemy and overrating ourselves.

The next step after confidence is overconfidence, and that is deadly. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate. Inc.)

Defense Bond, Stamp Sales To Determine Miss Victory

Sales of Defense savings bonds and stamps will determine the winner of the Miss Victory contest sponsored by the Federal Employes' Council, A. C. Edwards, chairman, announced today.

The prize is a trip to St. Peters-burg, Fla., for the winner and a companion of her choice. The original plan was to make the award for the best suggestion on improving recreational opportunities here, but the entry of the country into war prompted the decision to use the contest to stimulate bond and stamp sales, Mr. Edwards explained. Nominations may be made by any Government agency, business organization, association or combination of groups representing at least 500 persons, provided the nominating unit has a payroll allotment or group agent Defense savings plan. Votes will be credited by a formula based on stamp and bond sales

OPPICE BUILD.

We'd set our goal for 97% occupancy we'd hurry and advertise in this newspaper and here are the sane sound profit reasons why.

It seems that men rent offices like they buy supplies, they rent their offices just like they buy any other thing that they buy . . . : clothes, dinners, guns, airplane tickets, golf balls, shoes ANYthing . . . from the man that they know and believe in and like, from the building that they know, believe in and like.

The formula is simple and it works as usual.

During the year or in the month or so previous to leasing, business men make up their minds:

Pride enters into the deal and can't be dislodged; economy busies itself and sits into all mental meetings; prestige gets its hearing; location is a powerful argument; convenience of the building to all the things that all the office employes enjoy or use is a great argument; any modern equipment, decorations, design . . . elevators, heating, ventilation, windows, hardware, corridor widths, lobby, façade these and things like these are tremendously important; transportation, good or bad, wins and loses leases; rental areas, if light and pleasant and airy, if they can be adapted to a variety of floor plans without undue waste space well, those are almost closing arguments; though square foot costs per year, these are closers, or losers, too, depending upon all other things, plus services, plus courtesies, plus other advantages we haven't even mentioned. SO, knowing what men want in their offices we'd list the principal good points of our building and we'd make the men and women of this town know them and understand them and believe them and WANT to rent space in our

space and to keep it rented.

We'd ADVERTISE :::: in THIS newspaper :::::

: and prove how business could make more money and live pleasanter day time lives if they'd lease offices in our building. We'd tell our good points and tell them and tell them and retell them in this newspaper. We'd tell them stubbornly, tenaciously, regularly, doggedly ... and, in time, we'd have our rooms and suites rented, profitably rented. We'd give our salesmen real help in their efforts to rent

Archbishop of York Named Archbishop Of Canterbury

Dr. William Temple, Outspoken Reformer, Succeeds Dr. Lang

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Arch-bishop of York, Dr. William Temple, was nominated by King George VI last night to succeed Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang as Arfchbishop of Centerbury, the highest clerical position in the Church of England. In replacing the 78-year-old Dr. Lang, who offered his resignation a month ago to yield to a younger man as primate of all England, Dr. Temple becomes the first son of an Archbishop of Canterbury to attain the same high place as his father. When the new 98th Archbishop of Canterbury was born 60 years ago his father was Bishop of Exeterbut Lambeth Palace, the medieval London home of the primate, now partly destroyed by Nazi bombs, will stir memories of his youth.

Served as Chaplain. It was his home during his fathers' lifetime and later he served his father's successor, Dr. Randall Davidson, as chaplain there.

Dr. Temple is one of the most progressive leaders of the church. A philosopher and outspoken social reformer, he has outlined his ideas in a new book, "Christianity and Social Order." A graduate of Ox-ford, he was headmaster of Repton School before he was 30 and later became the Bishop of Manchester. Two generations after his father crowned Edward VII, Dr. Temple created a church sensation by expressing his disapproval of that sovereign's grandson, Edward VIII-

Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. Successor Nominated. King George also named Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, Bishop of Winchester, to succeed Dr. Temple as Archbishop of York. Dr. Garbett, 66, is the son of a country parson and was Bishop of Southwark, the poor, densely-populated diocese in Greater London, for 13 years before going to Winchester in 1932. In his first curacy, in 1899, he was one of 23 assistants to the then young viear of Portsmouth; Cosmo Gordon Lang, and the retiring archbishop took a great liking to him. Besentially an organizer, the new

Civil Liberties Union Protests Military Areas

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.-The American Civil Liberties Union yesterday protested as "unprecedented and founded on no specific evidence of need" President Roosevelt's executive order establishing military areas from which citizens or aliens may be removed.

The objection was voiced in a telegram by Roger N. Baldwin, A. C. L. U. president, to A. C. L. U. offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles instructing them to "assist in protecting the civil rights of Japanese-American citizens" affected by the order.

They were told to co-operate with representatives of Japanese-American organizations in seeking court relief where "injustices appear to be

SHE'S BRINGING IT ON HERSELF...

Oh no, she's not trudging down the street under the weight of a laundry bag—just yet.

But every time she causes the laundry route man an unnecessary trip, she wears down his truck tires by just that much, and in just that measure hastens the day when laundries may be forced to cut deliveries down to a minimum more drastic than anything yet dreamed of.

Let's put it off as long as possible! You ... and you ... and YOU ... can cooperate by following three simple rules:

- Don't ask for special pick-up and delivery service.
- Don't tell the laundry route man to call, and then leave the house, forcing him to make a second trip.
- Send BOTH your laundry and dry cleaning at the same time—and then no oftener than once a week.

To "Keep 'em Flying," to keep the caissons rolling along, we must all save on tires, and whether you have a car of your own or not, you can do your share in conserving rubber by making your delivery requirements as reasonable as possible.

'Business Miler' Needed for 4-Minute Record

Some day somebody may run a 4-minute mile, but whoever does will have to be rather wealthy, free from the everyday worries of life and willing to concentrate on running to the exclusion of everything else, according to Dorsey Griffith, Catholic University track coach.

A fanatic on the bunion business who can reel off any track figures faster and more accurately than he can give you the time of day, Griffith currently is engaged in arrangements for the ninth annual Catholic U. indoor games at Riverside Stadium March 9. But, though he's up to his armpits in work, he's not too busy to talk track, and when the name of Les MacMitchell came up in the conversation the quitting whistle blew.

"Les is good," he agreed. "He may be the best miler in history before he hangs up his spikes, but neither he nor any other college man ever will run a 4-minute mile. I don't think it's humanly possible for anybody bothered with textbooks or earning a living. It'll be a long time before they write that one into the records and the man who does it will be a 'business miler,' somebody able to devote his entire time and mind to MacMitchell, finishing out his collegiate career at New York University under Emil Von Elling, is expected to be one of the stars in the Cardinal games and Mr. G. confidently expects to find a few scorched planks after Les passes by, but a 4-minute mile-no.

Movies Help Make New Track Marks

Another idea suggested by the Brookland coach which may encounter stubborn arguments is that the athletes make the coach, not vice versa, although that would make Dorsey a self-made man in the eyes of those who have watched the sports development at C. U. And teamed up with this idea is the movies' role in track, with emphasis on the West Coast, where they have plenty of celluloid, crank-grinders and yeararound good weather for outdoor training.

By taking movies of champions in action, studying them painstakingly for minute details of form which would escape the layman's eye and then trying the same form on their own men he believes coaches have improved greatly the present-day athlete's form and knocked seconds off the average time for all events. The records seem to bear out

Percy Beard, he points out, was the first hurdler to relax the upper torso as an aid to breathing, and to keep both arms out in front going over a barrier. Instead of dragging his body Beard pushed it, so to speak. Percy applied his theory and technique to Weems Baskin, who developed into a top-notch timber-topper. Baskin, in turn, brought out "Spec" Towns, no slouch going over the fences.

Hunt for Antiques Leads to Coaching Job

Griffith, an antique dealer when it doesn't interfere with track, got his start on the cinder path under the able tutelage of John D. Moore's Get Off. collecting bug.

He was on the trail of a missing chair in a rare set one day when he stumbled on an old Negro, identified only as "Peanuts," who had been his trainer at Georgetown. "Peanuts" had heard Catholic University wanted a track coach and that was all Dorsey had to hear. Griffith applied for the job and has been there since. That was 15 years ago, and while the lean years have outweighed the fat, he gets a bigger kick out sprint.

Griffith Has to Coax Boys to Join Squad

Frequently he has resorted to novel stunts to attract candidates for his teams. Last autumn, for example, he staged a "grab-bag meet," at which winners of the various events pulled their prizes out of a bag. Last month Catholic U. students awoke one morning to find the campus cluttered up with slogans designed to catch their interest. They dangled from trees, sign posts, classroom doors and from every conceivable nook

One of the best was "If You Could Walk at 4 You Can Run by Now." Another was "If You Can't Fight You Had Better Learn to Run." Still another was "Toil With Doyle, Come Out for Track." Doyle was Co-Capt. Johnny Doyle, who happens to be a miler.

As one may gather, track material at C. U. is not plentiful and few Cardinals have won outstanding recognition, but Griffith had a mile relay team in 1932 comprised of Pete Dranginis, Vince McDonald, John Hickey and Gayle McGuigan that stepped out with the best. It outran Princeton and Fordham at Philadelphia and also won its event in the

He thinks McGuigan, now practicing law in New York, was the greatest quarter-miler he ever turned out. Hickey was the first Catholic U. man to win the Rector's 1,000, blue ribbon event of the annual C. U. games, and Johnny Lyons, a pretty good sprinter, was the first Card to cop the Abbey Club 50, another featured attraction.

Track Meet Promotion Has Mr. G. Busy

These games, incidentally, keep Griffith on an 18-hour-a-day schedule although it isn't as bad as it used to be when they were staged in the school's home gym. Last year's meet was the first held off campus and proved to be a tremendous success. In previous years he had to rebuild the track for each meet, write the publicity, handle the entries, supervise 54-37. the tickets, assign the officials and get his team ready to run. You can see that it's practically a cinch now.

Griffith helped organize the Mason-Dixon Conference, an association of smaller schools in the South-Atlantic area, six years ago and his teams have won the last three conference championships. Whether a fourth will come his way this year is conjectural, but he's hoping.

With all his work in track, and it is work, Dorsey has gotten a lot of laughs out of the game. He remembers one of the earlier C. U. meets when an ambitious youngster rounded one of the sharp banks too fast and catapulted into the box occupied by Bishop James H. Ryan, then rector of the university, and other distinguished guests. The boy scrambled to his feet, ran through the surprised group, got back on the track and finished the race.

Violin Makes Up for Lack of Duck

"But one of the funniest things I ever saw," Griffith laughs, "happened in a Maryland-5th Regiment meet at Baltimore several years ago. A fellow from Oklahoma came East especially to run in the 2-mile race and went into the dressing room to relax before it was called. He relaxed so thoroughly he fell sound asleep and when he awoke the race Alfred Tapper, both of the "Y."

Some day Griffith thinks he would like to give up track-maybe-and settle down seriously to his antique business. He must know it inside and out, for when University of Maryland officials restored ancient Rossbourg Inn, a campus landmark, Griffith was commissioned to supply the furnishings. It now is one of the big showplaces in Washington, where showplaces are a dime a dozen.

Griffith also has a fine collection of violins, some rare and others merely old. He fixes 'em up himself and can whittle out a tune by ear.

A duck-hunting enthusiast, he has been known to take along a violin to entertain himself when gunning is light, although he categorically denies the charge.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23.-Ed Lyons, an 18-year-old second baseman who hit .270 with Charlotte of the Piedmont League last season, will report with the second batch of Nats here on March 1. President Clark Griffith rates him as one of Washington's most promising chattels.

Pitcher Early Wynn reported to the Nats in top condition. He came here from Key West, where he was aiding his brother as a commercial fisherman. Early was one of a crew of 10 that hauled in $8,000 worth of mullet and mackerel on one trip. Pitcher Bill Kennedy changed his mind, chucked his railroad job and reported here with Manager Bucky Harris yesterday. A former Capitol Theater usher, Kennedy thus becomes the Nats' lone southpaw.

The Nats' automatic pitching machine also is capable of firing flies to butfielders. A rubber band maximum of 220 miles an hour. The Nats finally have the item that's faster than Bob Feller, but it won't pitch any games.

Corps to Be Headed By Hudson, Leonard, Ex-Bosox Wilson

By BURTON HAWKINS,

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23.-What he gazes upon in the next few weeks may force a revision of mental blueprints, but currently Manager Bucky Harris of the Nats is calculating on Sid Hudson, Dutch Leonard, Jack Wilson, Early Wynn and Walter Masterson as starting pitchers this

"Naturally I'm starting with and open mind," said Bucky as a slim squad of Washington baseball players trotted on Tinker Field here today for the first spring training workout, "but I must operate with a goal in view and that's the set-up. "That will leave Steve Sundra, Alejandro Carrasquel, Bill Zuber and Arnold Anderson for relief work. Another relief pitcher must come from among Bill Kennedy, Bill Zinser, Hardin Cathey, Phil Mc-Cullough or Ray Scarborough. I'd love it if some of the boys force me to change those plans by showing, more than I anticipate."

Last Chance for Masterson. Bucky is creating a sliver of sur-or prise only in the naming of tall, bespectacled Masterson as a starter Masterson has been no ball of fire in three seasons with the Nats, winning only nine games and losing 18 over that span, but Harris still is willing to stake him to anothern-

"I'm tossing out past performances in the case of Masterson," confessed Bucky. "If I hadn't seen, the boy before I'd have to rate him as promising, so he's starting fresh with me. If he doesn't deliver thisyear I guess we'll have to admit a mistake, but I'm not ready to give up on him yet." Masterson was a four-game winner last season but in that respect he doesn't suffer by comparison with Wilson. Walter lost only three games, while the husky Wilson won . the Red Sox. In the knuckleballing Wilson, though Harris view sions a stocky right-hander capable

Steve is showing his pitches to rival coaches who relay them to batters, and until he detects the flaw and conquers the habit his value is questionable. Anderson, who will wear glasses this season, has signed, leaving Leonard, Catcher Al Evans and Infielder Jimmy Pofahl the only unsigned Nats. Evans is expected to report and sign on Wednesday, but Prexy Clark Griffith has received no word from Leonard since Saturday and that word was "No."

Leonard's holdout by now has become an anticipated annual event, but, as in the past two seasons, he is expected to pop into town at any moment, huddle with Griffith and sign shortly thereafter.

Guggino and Wright Promise Exciting Return Scrap

10-Rounder at Turner's Goes on Tonight After President's Speech

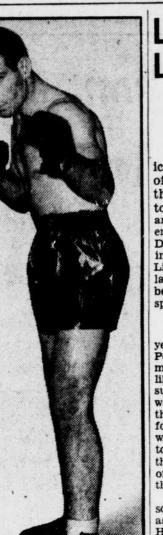

Return bouts usually are as dull as sitting through a movie a second time, but tonight's 10-round bout between Carl (Red) Guggino and Oscar Wright, which headlines the card at Turner's Arena, promises to be an exception.

The reason is Wright's presence in the ring, for the colored boy is short on science but long on stamina and permits no opponent to loaf under penalty of a sudden kayo. Wright is prototype of Henry Armstrong, whose buzz-saw tactics carried him to three simultaneous world titles, and while the District scrapper is no Armstrong at this writing he shows promise and is willing and Guggino, a veteran of the old chool of boxing, whose punch still carries a sharp sting, taught Wright a few tricks a couple of weeks ago in scraping out a close decision, now it remains to be seen how well Oscar learned them. If he was an adept pupil you can begin counting over Guggino now. If not, chalk up another win for Carl. The bout will not go on, incidentally, until after the President's speech at 10 o'clock, which will be heard at the Arena. Tonight's card also features the professional debut of another local amateur, Eddie Kane, who meets Pete Latzo of Fort Meade, in a 4rounder and the return of Gus Mirman, who will face "Powerhouse"

Diebolt Whips Handicap to Star on Track

Joins Sizable List of Plucky Cripples; May Run Here

No sport, perhaps, is as studded with characters who have achieved stardom and attained greatness despite physical handicaps, than track. Glenn Cunningham became the greatest miler the world has known because his fire-scarred legs needed exercise. Greg Rice, record-holding 2-miler, must wear a truss in all his races. Roland Locke, one of the Midwest's topnotch sprinters, had a short leg and John Paul Jones, Cornell's great miler, went out for track to build up a frail body.

Now we have Al Diebolt, jr., the Colgate cutter, who lowered the world's 500-yard indoor mark in the New York A. C. games last Saturday night, going the distance in 57.1, then coming back to anchor the Red Raiders' mile relay team in its victory over Villanova's previously unde-feated quartet, Diebolt had to overcome a minor handicap to reach the heights.

Early in life Diebolt suffered an accident that ripped a jagged gash in his face and would have left him permanently disfigured but for an expert bit of skingrafting. The skin was taken from his leg with no noticeable effect at the time. But when he earnest Al discovered the leg from which the skin had been grafted had a tendency to tighten up when he tried to put on a finishing kick. For a time it impeded his progress but, judging by Saturday's performance, he seems to have found a solution to the problem.

Diebolt and his Colgate mates have been invited to the Catholic University games at Riverside Stadium two weeks from tonight and it is hoped the Raiders may be paired against Georgetown. The Hoyas outran the New Yorkers, minus Diebolt, in the Millhose games, but with Al in the lineup it probably would be

Diebolt proved his courage and fleetness, incidentally, by catching Roy Cochrane with a great homestretch drive in the 500 and by spotting Villanova's anchorman a 4-yard lead and beating

Events Over Week End Buoy India's Hopes For Independence

Churchill Plans to Send Cabinet Representative To Work on Problem

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 23.-At least partial realization of India's long and often bloody demands for independence was predicted by British sources today after a rapid sequence of Saints, Sixteenth street and Coweek-end events which portended a lumbia road N.W., 8 o'clock toradical change in Britain's attitude night. toward her 400,000,000 subjects there. Two developments particularly buoyed India's hopes:

1. The farewell of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who has been visiting in India. Speaking presumably with the consent of Britain and the United States and apparently addressing himself to the British, he declared dramatically

"The vast majority of the world's opinion is in full sympathy with India's aspiration for freedom."

2. Informed British sources asserted yesterday that Prime Minister Churchill planned to enlarge India's powers of self-government and send a cabinet representative there to try to "put the India problem on a more satisfactory footing." Nehru May Get Post.

There was as yet no precise indications of how far Britain would go toward granting autonomy, but the government was said to be planning tentatively for an Indian national administration headed by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the National Congress party in which Mohandas K. Gandhi has been the guiding spirit.

Neither the Congress Party nor the All-India Moslem League, which represent the bulk of the politically literate in India's population, have formulated a stand on Gen. Chiang's message of hope to its masses.

The All-India Moslem League's Working Committee was called to a special meeting today, however, and a conference of Indian leaders outside the two great political parties yesterday voted support for Gen. Chiang.

Meeting under the noted liberal, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, they resolved to advocate immediate British measures to give India rank with other self-governing units of the commonwealth and reconstruction of the governor general's executive council as a national government during the war.

Non-Official Representatives. They asked also that India's representatives in the British war cabinet and on the Pacific war council be non-official and "representative Call a collector today. of the people." India was invited on February 12 to send representatives to those bodies.

"I hope and believe that Britain, without waiting for any demand on the part of the Indian people will, as speedily as possible, give them real political power," Gen. Chiang

The Indian press adopted a show-me attitude, exemplified by the editorial comment of the Bombay Chronicle: "Will Britain Respond? True settlement with the people of India is impossible unless, as Chiang Kai-shek points out, Britain gives them real political power."

Newspaper Confident.
The Calcutta Statesman asserted that the generalissimo, "having spoken so plainly to India," now "has not only the right but the urgent duty to speak plainly to the British." It expressed confidence that his advice would be taken, adding "there is no alternative."

The India issue has been a barrier to realization of the country's full war potential and British sources described Mr. Churchill's reported intentions as an effort to consolidate the empire front in Asia.

One source said Sir Stafford Cripps had made an agreement on India policy a condition for accepting a seat in the war cabinet and forecast that Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air, would be sent there as Britain's repre-

Colleagues See McNary Re-election Unopposed

Colleagues of Republican Leader McNary of the Senate expressed the belief yesterday that the Oregon veteran barring unforseen candidacies, probably would have no opposition in either party for renomination and re-election.

They based this on Saturday night's statement here of Willis Mahoney, Portland lawyer and Democrat, who came within 5,400 votes of defeating Senator McNary in 1936, that because of the Republican leader's constructive and wholesome type of opposition he would not be a candidate against him this Democratic leaders, however, re garded the Mahoney-McNary case as an isolated one and not as indicating that the administration who have been rather constant supporters of its preparedness program before and after Pearl Harbor.

Senator McNary, vice presidential candidate of his party in 1940, has differed with the administration on a few major occasions, but on the whole has voted for its preparedness program.

Determined to foil a holdup man, a cab driver last night jumped from his cab, allowing it to careen across the street and smash into the window of a drug store at Fourteenth street and Columbia road N.W. While his passenger jumped from another door and disappeared into the crowd, the driver watched his cab cross the street car tracks to the left side of the street and smash into the window. A policeman at the scene said it was a "miracle" that the driverless cab hadn't collided with another car or struck a pedestrian. A similar description of the holdup man was given by the other cab driver, Edward Cameron, 610 Irving street N.W., who was robbed of $1.50 by the same method that proved unsuccessful with Mr. Hooker. Daniels Takes Mrs. Roosevelt's Post in O. C. D.

Southern Editor Heads Division In Reorganization

Jonathan Daniels, Southern newspaper editor, replaces Mrs. Roose-velt as the head of the Volunteer Participation Division, which has been reorganized into the Civilian Mobilization Branch of the Office of Civilian Defense.

Mrs. Roosevelt disclosed this latest step in the reorganization of O. C. D. at her press conference today, during which she released a three-page memorandum principally to explain that the original executive order setting up the O. C. D. did include provisions for taking care of community problems. It was this phase of O. C. D. work which brought congressional charges of a "social experiment."

At the same time, she indicated that a new executive order would be issued, which she said was customary when a new director took over an agency, but she hinted that some changes would be made in the 'details" of the order.

Daniels' Aides Named. Mr. Daniels' aides will be Miss Mary Dublin, who will get information on communities, and Hugh Jackson, who will implement the program, with Mr. Daniels doing the program making.

Mrs. Roosevelt declared she had completely severed all ties with the completely severed all ties with the O. C. D. and would take no speaking engagements for it completely severed all ties with the $160,333 for District ing engagements for it or act in a consulting capacity, contrary to what Dean James M. Landis, O. C. D. director, indicated when he accepted her resignation Friday.

She said the only valid criticism of her taking the office, which made her the target for congressional criticism, was that the wife of a President cannot take a job in the Government and be accepted as an individual because it is so hard for people to disassociate her from the possible influence of her husband. This, however, will not deter her from holding public office in the fu-ture, she made clear.

Explains Statement. In releasing the statement on the civilian defense organization, she explained that it was only for background, that as far as she was concerned, she was through with the O. C. D., but she had written this statement and she thought the reporters would like to have it. The ease with which she answered questions today was in sharp contrast with her apparent nervousness and refusal to answer much that was asked her at her last press conference, at which she suggested that various members of Congress give her the opportunity to answer their criticisms. She said today she had had no such invitation. In announcing the organization of the Civilian Mobilization Branch to succeed the Volunteer Participation Division, she said in her statement that she felt confident it would "become a source of ever-increasing strength in our war effort until victory has been won and a just peace

Mrs. Roosevelt last night said she had resigned from the Office of Civilian Defense to spare a program from criticism arising from a renewal of "the age-old fight for the privileged few against the good of Assails Slurs on Dancer. Reiterating her defense of Dancer Mayris Chaney, who resigned her O. C. Mrs. Roosevelt said she suggested Miss Chaney for her $4,600 O. C. D. job "because I thought she was qualified to do the work on a program which she herself had worked out and thought might be of value. The fact that she is a friend of mine had no bearing on the de-

Loyalty Is Greatest Need, G. U. Rector Declares

Loyal citizenship was described as America's greatest need by the Rev Arthur A. O'Leary, rector of Georgetown University, in an address last night. He spoke at a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel climaxing a program that began during the afternoon with investment of a class of 100 members of the Washington General Assembly of Knights of Columbus with honors of the order's fourth degree.

"We need battleships, we need tanks, we need airplanes, but most of all we need loyal citizenship," he

He asserted that patriotism is not a whim, but is "something that is a part of our being, something for which we are accountable to God Himself."

The banquet was a testimonial to Father O'Leary. William H. Collins was toastmaster. A number of members from out of town, including a delegation from Raleigh, N.C., were present.

The fourth degree candidates were invested at the hotel during the afternoon as the Father O'Leary Class in honor of the Georgetown University rector, a past faithful friar of the assembly.

O'Conor Calls For Formation Of Home Guard

Stresses Defense Need as Maryland Is in 'Target Area'

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 23.-Gov. O'Conor, announcing creation of reserve militia units to bolster civilian defense, said today it "seems vitally important" that coastal States arm their citizens for protection in the event of enemy raids. The Governor said the State constitution empowered him to "prepare and call the militia to a reserve military status, in order to be ready for such service as our men can render in protection of the lives and properties of our citizens, and for the preservation of our State and national freedoms."

Voluntary Basis.

Enrollment and organization of the reserve militia units would be undertaken at the outset on a voluntary basis, the Governor said, adding that the plan had the approval of Federal and State military au-

"The reserve militia units could drill in the evenings and get rifle range training over week ends and on holidays, and thus not disrupt their regular work for defense or daily lives, unless a greater emergency developed, in which event their lives and work will necessarily be disorganized," the Governor said,

He compared the reserve militia units to the English Home Guard, organized in support of the British Army, with every able-bodied man not otherwise engaged in defense service "armed and determined to protect their homes and loved ones against enemy attack."

"In this plan I am entirely mindful that there are living in Maryland today thousands of men who had considerable military training, including actual combat experience, in 1917 and 1918," the Gov-

"They are still able and willing to join in organizing these reserve militia units and to stand in defense of their homes should that requirement develop.

Arms to Be Asked.

Gov. O'Conor said the War Department "will be asked to give us such arms and equipment as can be spared from the primary requirement of supplying the Army" and added an increasing amount of serviceable arms and equipment not considered sufficiently modern for overseas use would become available for the Reserves. "This is one of the times in American history when it seems vitally important and entirely appropriate that the coastal States should arm their citizens to the fullest extent that caution requires and that the means at hand allow," Gov. O'Conor

"Nothing will be left undone to afford necessary protection for our people, as the Federal officials have informed me of the dangers which confront the Maryland people, situated as we are in the 'target

And still they keep pouring into the Nation's Capital. Men and women from all over the country, here to do war work. (We aren't going to say defense anymore—the new words are WAR and VICTORY.) The housing problem for all these people is still very much of a problem despite everything the administration is doing to try to alleviate it. The parasites won't leave (none will really admit he is a parasite)-the workers can't. So there you are.

The Bill Ewings and the Dick Kimbells (both men are here for war work), whose attractive young wives are cousins, are trying to solve their own particular housing problem by sharing an apartment-but in relays-so to speak. Mr. Ewing's job requires that he be in Washington every week from Tuesday to Friday. Mr. Kimbell has to be here all the time and has been sharing a tiny apartment with his brother-in-law, Marshall Dodge, which, nice as it is, just isn't big enough to squeeze Mrs. Kimbell in when she comes down to week end with her husband. So-o-o the plan is that while the Ewings are week ending with their four small daughters in their home in Bediord Village, N. Y., or spending an occasional week end with their over-6-feet-tall young son at St. Paul's School, the Kimbells take over the Ewing apartment during the latter's absence. Sounds like a perfect solution to us. Anyhow it worked all right over the last week end, when the Kimbells moved in, settled themselves quite comfortably and even had people for tea Saturday afternoon. Dick Kimbell was Ellery Husted's partner in New York before the war, and Mrs. Kimbell, as you may know, is still doing a wonderful job running the famous "Young Books"

James Burden has been in town for the last few days, staying with the Howard Cushings. It's James' cousin, William Burden, who was responsible for getting Brazilian Paulo Sampaio up to the States to confer and work with him for the last four months in the aviation work Mr. Burden has been doing here. Senhor Sampaio brought his chic blond wife (she's Brazilian, too) with him, and they've been entertained by old friends like the Nelson Rockefellers, Hutchinson Robbins and the Burdens-all of whom knew them in Rio de Janeiro. Senhor Sampaio pilots his own plane in Brazil and is considered one of the outstanding experts on aviation in his country. Both he and his attractive wife speak perfect English-have done much to help along the good-neighbor policy during their stay here. Before returning to their two adorable children (left with "grandmother" in Rio) the Sampaios will take a short motor trip through Florida.

The Robert Gibbs have taken an apartment at the Anchorage while Mr. Gibb "does his bit" here. They've been staying in Mrs. Gibb's old and the 10-hour civilian protection home, Nordix, near Warrenton, but commuting with the new war time meant driving up in the dark-so the Gibbs now use Nordix only for relaxation over the week ends. Mrs. Gibb was, of course, the former Betty Willetts-so well known both here and in the Virginia hunt country. * * * *

Now that he's a lieutenant in the Army, Pen Hogan has leased his house-newly completed in Georgetown. It's all furnished entirely by Pen—and, we hear, very attractive. The Donald Hydes of New York headquarters, 2170 Florida avenue N.W. have taken it—are already settled there.

The Richard Southgates are off for Southern Pines for a few days Benefit Tea Dance of rest and golf and sunshine. Mrs. Southgate, it seems, has been working hard, too-doing a wonderful job of running the Red Cross telephone switchboard.

Little Difficulty Seen In Providing Officers For Merchant Fleet

Maritime Unit's Drive Enlists 800 in Midwest For Cadet Schools

By WILLIAM J. WHEATLEY. With 800 applications received in 10 days from young men of the Middle West seeking appointment as cadets in the United States Merchant Marine, Maritime Commission officials predicted today that they would have little difficulty in providing officers for the great merchant

The applications are considered significant in that they came from 12 Midwest States, a territory which heretofore has not been so productive of seafaring men as the East and West Coast areas.

If the results of the recruiting campaigns are as productive in the other States as they have been in the Midwest, the officials believe that they will be able to fill their greatly expanding schools and instruction facilities. These recruits have been obtained despite the competition of other services, including the Navy, for young men to become officers and seamen. However, the qualifications for young men to be licensed merchant marine officers are not as rigid as those for the naval establishment, but in the case of the merchant marine officers they will have licenses to operate ships after the war. A commission in the Naval Reserve does not carry the right to be a licensed officer on a merchantman.

Those who seek appointment as cadets in the merchant service must have at least 12 school credits, which means that they do not have to be high school graduates, the normal requirements for graduation being 15 credits. On the other hand, those seeking commissions in the Naval Reserve must have a college degree, and a good part of their course must have been in mathematics and science.

Campaign to be Widened. The campaign to obtain cadets is to be extended to other States, as well as being continued in the areas in which it was inaugurated. On appointment, the men are given the rating of cadets and receive a salary of $65 a month in addition to their subsistence. quarters, uniforms and books. They attend school for two months, then are assigned to merchant ships in regular runs for a period of 10 months, after which they return to school for another 10 months of

In addition to the schools for the cadets who come directly from civilian life, the commission has provided a means for seaman of the merchant service to become licensed officers. Those who have 18 months of sea experience, whether on deck or the engine room, are given four months of schooling ashore, during which they receive $99 a month and on completion they are eligible to take the regular examination for third mate and third engineer licenses. There are two such schools, one at New London, Conn., where 400 men can be accommodated, and one at San Francisco for 200.

In addition to enlarging facilities already available, the commission is taking over a number of private schools, keeping the same faculties, and at the same time assigning disciplinary personnel to the school. There are four State school ships, one each at Boston, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco. The commission plans to fill those to capacity with its cadets, where the facilities are not used by the States which conduct them.

Refresher Courses Taken.

The New York cadet school is being moved from Fort Schuyler to the Walter Chrysler estate at Great Neck, Long Island, where the Chrysler home is being taken over and additional buildings constructed for dormitories and class rooms. These facilities will increase the New York accommodations from 350 to 800 cadets. The New London school for seamen is being increased from 400 to 1,000 men. The cadet school at Los Angeles is being in-creased from 350 to 500; the St. Petersburg, Fla., school from 450 to 600, and the Hoffman Island school from 800 to 1,300. In addition numerous training ships are being placed in commission The seamen trainees get $21 a month while at school, and on completion of the course receive $72.50, a month, plus bonuses which are said to amount to as much as $200 a month. The course is six months. In addition to the influx of young men, the commission reports that many men who hold ocean-going and pilots licenses, but who went off to shore jobs are returning to take refresher courses with a view to going to sea again The program contemplates the training of a total of 20,000 officers from the Maritime Commission schools, the State nautical schools and the seamen schools. During this period the commission also expects to train 80,000 seamen. There also is great need for specialists, including radio operators, who have officer standing on ships, cooks and bakers. Union Electric Convicted In Slush Fund Case

By the Associated Press. ST. LOUIS, Feb. 23.-Union Electric Co. and its former president, Louis H. Egan, were convicted yesterday of violating the corrupt practices section of the Federal Utilities Holding Company Act. The Government charged that a fund of $591,000 was raised several years before 1938 for political con-ers and politicians. The defense contended that neither Egan nor the company knew of the fund, authorized it nor participated in its distribution. They said the blame rested on Frank J. Boehm and Albert C. Lawn, former vice presidents who testified for the Government.

Charles I. Chapman Had Escaped Prison Three Times Since 1931

MERIDIAN, Miss., Feb. 23.-The bullet-riddled body of Charles Irving Chapman, 43, lay in a morgue here today, marking the end of the crime trail of the one-time well-

Nazis Challenged By Dutch Preacher In Daring Speech

Clergyman Disregards Terrorism to Recall His Land's History

Special Dispatch to The Star and North

American Newspaper Alliance: NEW YORK, Feb. 23 .- One of the most fearless challenges ever thrown into the faces of the Nazi overlords by their victims in occupied Europe has just come to light. It is contained in a sermon delivered in Leyden by a Dutch elergyman on the occasion of the 367th anniversary of the raising of the siege of Leyden in the war against the

With supreme disregard of the German terrorism, the Dutch preacher told his audience that "now is the time to remember that God will have none of the arrogant pride of the tyrants who mold all to their will and that he did not desire a people living in servility in these Low Countries but that his wish was that a free people should Eulogizes Queen.

Flaunting every decree of the German authorities, he openly eulogized Queen Wilhelmina, ending his address with a prayer in which he begged the Lord "that in this great distress Thou wilt give her and her government the wisdom to do what there is to do and to endure what there is to endure, all to the real good of our people

The preacher exhorted his fellow countrymen to carry on the struggle by taking inspiration from the fight their ancestors waged against the Spanish tyranny three and a half centuries ago. He told of the handful of traitors who then, like now, tried to lure the patriots to surrender, and of the stubborn refusal of these patriots to walk into the trap once their eyes were opened to "the true nature of this tyranny." Ostensibly describing the Dutch struggle for freedom 350 years ago, he actually paints a clear picture of the hardships, dangers, and temptations of the present situation.

Assails "Sneaks."
"Would it not be better," he asks, to give up at last this arduous fight? Would it not be far better to surrender, or at least to negotiate with the enemy, who indeed reigned supremely? That was the temptation into which so many tried to lure the town. There were, for that matter, the sneaks. They represented only a very small group of the population; only, it was a group that was responsible for an immense uproarious tumult; a handful of meanspirited traitors, who, on the boundary line of two worlds, did not know their place and who willingly made themselves the ready tools of the enemy. Frequently the sneaks addressed the citizens with grandiloquent words, with cunningly devised letters and writings, just to blind them with their very lies. Well, then, so they wrote, is it not true that this prince of orange brought about only hunger and misery in this town, continuing, as he is, his resistance? Indeed, they wrote, these very Spaniards only came to liberate and to rescue." Thinking of the Present.

Still talking of the past but thinking of the present, he continued: "So cunningly the Spanish tyranny flattered and lied that it took years to open the eyes of the people to recognize the true nature of this tyranny. And yet, for a long time there were even some who did not want to see what could clearly be seen by everybody. But once the eyes of our people were opened, they knew: the fight against this has been decreed by God, the fight against this is worthy of every sacrifice and will never be allowed to be given up."

As if he had not yet made him-self clear, he reminded his hearers that everything he had said about the past applied equally to the present: "If ever we should gratefully remember this, then it is now the time to do so. For, once more our people is a people in distress. Again we live in the midst of overwhelming and terrible dangers. Once more our people finds itself involved in a decisive crisis of its history, as it seldom encountered

Spoiled Girls, Wayward Boys Remain the Same After Trek Up Aisle

Select Type of Partner You Want Instead of Trusting to Marriage To Alter His or Her Ways

By Dorothy Dix

The other day two kids only 15 years old got married and when asked what was their hurry about rushing into matrimony they replied that they did it to keep themselves off the streets, as they didn't think that it did them any good to play around so much and that they had better settle down. This naive reason for entering into the holy estate calls attention not only to the many curious motives which lead people to the altar, but to the child-like faith which makes them believe that marriage is a sort of nostrum that will cure anything that ails them and will turn life into whatever they want it to be. They regard it as a sovereign remedy for heartache, that empty gone feeling of loneliness, poverty, tyranny, work, uncongenial surroundings, a craving for pleasure and all the other ills to which human flesh is heir. And the fact that they never see it work on others doesn't shake their belief that it will take on them.

Every day I get letters from girls who tell me that they are tired of working, want to take life easy, have pretty clothes and good times, and so they are marrying boys who make $10 or $12 a week. Or they write me that they are marrying so that they can get away from mother's bossing and be free and independent and able to do as they like. Or they are marrying drunkards who they are sure will never take another nip after they are married. Or lazy, good-for-nothings who will become go-getters

Do Not Wash Baby Too Often

Eyes, Ears, Mouth And Nose Should Be Left Alone

By Lettice Lee Streett The mother with her first baby

may be so anxious to keep her darling clean and sweet that she overwashes him and she may even dis-regard the doctor's and nurse's instructions to leave her infant's eyes, ears, mouth and nose alone.

A baby's nose should not be cleaned except when it is needed or unless there is a noticeable condicumulation of dirt in the nostrils she may remove it by using two small twists of damp cotton, one for each nostril. Toothpicks wrapped in cotton should never be used, because a sudden turn of the baby's head or a slip of the mother's hand can result in a painful and harmful

The secretions within the nostrils keep the nose clean and moist. No drops of any sort should be used without a doctor's orders, as their unadvised or indiscriminate use may have an injurious effect upon the delicate mucous membranes and even upon the lungs.

There is but small danger that an infant will smother while sleeping in his crib if proper precautions are taken. What mother has not peered anxiously upon her softly sleeping babe as her imagination runs riot and she wonders fearfully if he is still breathing!

Common-sense precautions include not allowing the use of a pillow, seeing to it that the linen or cotton napkin under the baby's head is tautly pulled and securely pinned to the crib mattress at either side. Besides these covers should not be so long that they can be dragged up over the baby's head, and it is wise to be sure that the baby is warm, not only for his health and comfort, but also so that he will not burrow down under the blankets.

Even the tiniest baby will voluntarily shift the position of his head if he finds that he cannot breathe

At an early age a young child may be taught the proper way to blow his nose, whereby only one nostril is closed at a time. This is more important than it sounds, because if the nose is blown very hard with both nostrils closed, harmful, germladen mucous may be forced back into the eustachian tube or even into the middle ear. Little tots under 3 have been known to stuff small toys or objects, such as marbles, pennies, beads, safety pins and so on, up their noses It is running a great risk to allow a young child to play with any object that is small enough to swallow or to introduce into the nostril. In the event that a baby should do the latter his mother should try not to frighten him and to remain calm as she quietly persuades him to blow hard while she compresses the empty nostril. If this is not effectual a doctor should be summoned. Under no circumstances should she attempt to prod, pry or in any way make the effort to dislodge a foreign

Inferiority Complex Seems To Be a Normal Part of Most Personalities

This Handicap Can Be Turned Into an Invaluable Asset By Working on Defects

By Kay Caldwell and Alden Harrison

If you think you have an "inferiority complex," and have been worry ing about it, here's a nugget of knowledge which should make you feel better. Investigations of the psychologists show that 90 out of every 100 human beings suffer from the same trouble; or at least, they think they do. Some feeling of inferiority seems to be a normal part of most personalities. After all, you can't expect to be a ball of fire in every single thing you do! And even if you were, it wouldn't do you much good because you'd probably be impossible for others to live with. Having a sneaking suspicion that you suffer from certain short-comings isn't a bad thing for you, as long as you don't let it get out of hand.

Of course, it can be a handicap if it makes you overly sensitive or shy or self-conscious. It can be equally harmful if you try to compensate for it by becoming a boaster or a bully or a showoff. But it can also be one of the most potent forces for making you get up on your hind legs and strenuous reducing program should

Being painfully conscious of some erally have a metabolism test taken weakness, they were driven to work on that weakness until they had changed it into a strong point. In other cases, they compensated for the handicap by developing superiority in some entirely different line.

Short men often accomplish wonders simply because they try so hard to make up for their lack of physical distinction; Napoleon's small stature undoubtedly had a powerful influence on making him a conqueror.

From the standpoint of achievement, therefore, the weak point which you consider a handicap may actually turn out to be an asset to you. In the same way, a mere feeling of inferiority, even when it is unjustified, may spur you on to make ourself superior

However, all this doesn't make our inferiority complex a whole lot asier to live with. Most such feelings aren't powerful enough to make us famous; they are just sufficiently strong to make us uncomfortable and dissatisfied.

One of the reasons why it is so hard to follow a reducing program is the fact that when we have been eating large meals the stomach has stretched and when it is not filled it will show its resentment. This results in "that low feeling." The introduction of hot bouillon or tea between meals is a great help. The skimmed milk, which is part of the diet, may be used at this time in its own form or in unsweetened cocoa, to which a little vanilla will give flavor. The cocoa should not be strong. Georgetown University authorities have been advised by the War De-partment of the cancellation of the usual summer training camps for juniors in the R. O. T. C., it was announced yesterday.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Jumper the Hare was sitting under a low-growing hemlock tree deep in the Green Forest, where he could look out over the pond of Paddy the Beaver. Jumper was not feeling at all good that morning. No. sir; Jumper was feeling anything but good. In the first place, it was a long time since he had had a real good sleep. In the second place he couldn't rest easily a minute even with his eyes wide open. All the time he felt as if his heart might jump right up in his throat any minute. And it was all because Reddy Fox had set out to catch him, and gave him no peace night or day.

"Old Mother Nature certainly takes better care of some than she does of others," thought Jumper, ust a wee bit bitterly, as he watched Paddy the Beaver swimming about in his pond. "Now, there is Paddy, perfectly safe out there in the water, and here am I, not safe anywhere It isn't fair. It certainly isn't fair.'

Then Jumper looked and listened anxiously for the least sign of Reddy Fox. But all was quiet, and once more he began to thing about the unfairness of Old Mother Nature. Now, that isn't a bit like Jumper the Hare. Jumper is almost as nappy-go-lucky as Peter Rabbit and akes things just as they come. It wasn't long before he began to feel little ashamed of himself for naving such thoughts. He thought of those long legs Old Mother Naure had given him to take him quickly out of danger and then he emembered how Paddy the Beaver has to get his food on shore, or most of it, anyway, and how slow and clumsy Paddy is out of the water. The more he thought of this the nore ashamed he grew of the thoughts he had had of Old Mother Nature's seeming unfairness and pretty soon he knew right down in his heart that he wouldn't change places with Paddy the Beaver if he could, not even to get rid of Reddy

He was still thinking of this when stick snapped a little way from nim and his heart gave a great, rightened thump. You see, he had grown so anxious and nervous that whenever he heard a stick snap or leaf rustle he was sure it was Reddy Fox trying to steal up on him. Jumper held his breath and looked in the direction from which the sound had come. There, shuffling along and muttering to himself, was Buster Bear. Jumper grinned. It was a very great relief to see Buster Bear instead of Reddy Fox. You see, Jumper isn't the least bit afraid of Buster, because he knows he can keep out of his way. Buster knows it, too, and so he wastes no time trying to catch Jumper. So they are very good friends. You see, they understand each other per-

Jumper hopped out and sat up in front of Buster Bear. Buster sat up, too. Very funny they looked as they faced each other, one so very big and one so small, and both sitting the Beaver had to laugh as he looked

"Hello, Buster!" said Jumper. "How do you like the Green Forest?" Buster's little eyes twinkled as he GUATEMALA, 11:00—Concert of the First grinned down at Jumper. "Pretty vell, Jumper; pretty well, so far. Seems to me you are looking thin. Yes, sir, you are looking thin. That ought not to be in the beautiful springtime in such a nice place as the Green Forest." Buster shook his head as if he didn't understand it at all.

"It's all your fault!" cried Jumper Buster Bear looked puzzled. "How is it my fault?" he demanded.

Then Jumper told him the whole story, how he had been sent to invite Buster to meet the other little people of the Green Forest, how Reddy Fox had tried to catch him and then had been terriby fright-ened by the sudden appearance of Buster and had run, and then how he (Jumper) had run after him just for fun, and how all the little people were making fun of Reddy now, so that he was spending all his time trying to catch Jumper so as to get even. Buster's eyes twinkled more than ever as he listened.

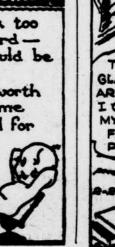

"Perhaps I can help you," said he. "Oh, will you? That would be perfectly splendid!" cried Jumper.

One of the characteristics of the expert's style of bidding is that he doesn't cry before he is hurt. The expert gets his share of problem hands to bid, and he has to make some decisions which are as much guesswork as skill. But he doesn't jump out of the frying pan into the fire. He has the courage to stay in the frying pan until somebody pushes him out.

That sort of courage enabled North to stand fast in today's hand, and netted him the rubber game.

tricks and could easily develop 15. three more before the enemy could 17. take five tricks. The interesting fea- 19 ture of the hand is North's bidding. 21 Many players would hesitate to open the bidding with only the 22. minor suits and only an ace and a queen aside from the blank kings. Having opened the bidding with a doubtful hand, many players would be reluctant to allow three no-trump to stand as the final contract. "Why," they would ask themselves. "should I let my partner play notrump when I have two singletons? This hand is bound to play better at a suit."

North didn't expect his partner to make the game at no-trump, but reflected that three no-trump had not been doubled. Why run to a minor suit contract which would be just as bad as three no-trump and which was likely to get doubled? So North stood fast and was rewarded when his partner showed up with the right cards to make the game at no-trump. Note, however that game at either minor suit would have been hopeless, and that East would have doubled to boot.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER Socrates Taught Pupils by Asking Questions

From time to time there lives on earth a man of fine and noble nature, and he sends a light down the course of history.

Such a man was Socrates. Twenty-four hundred years ago, he was a boy 11 or 12 years of age. Our records do not tell us just how he spent his time, except that he is known to have gone to a school where he studied reading, writing, geometry and astronomy,

There is much truth in the old saying, "The child is father to the man." If we use that as a guide, we may think of this boy in Athens, Greece, as a pupil who did more than learn his lessons. No doubt he asked many questions, and tried to find out things which his teachers could not explain.

In his young manhood it is believed that Socrates followed the profession of a sculptor. His father, strange kind of teacher. His way before him, had been a sculptor. was to ask questions, not to tell Five and a half centuries after people what was so. around Socrates did not worry about his appearance. They looked up to him as their master, as a man with a great brain. Among his pupils was Plato, the famous writer. Another was Xenophon, who became noted general.

We are told that Xantippe, the woman Socrates married, had a sharp temper. This may have been the case, but it is likely that Socrates kept his mind calm in his own household, instead of growing angry. Perhaps his simple questions made Xantippe see where she was wrong. Mr. Zukor, who started in the movies more than 30 years ago as an exhibitor in a tiny store building in Newark, N. J., is prouder of the industry today than at any time in its history. I do think, however, that some of those who are irreplaceable in their picture jobs, but are by no means irreplaceable in the service, would have contributed more by staying on their regular chores. Miss Russell's Partner

Rosalind's Maid Is Hazel, Inc., To Patrons of Her Swank Shop

By Sigrid Arne.

HOLLYWOOD. If you possess a fugitive $150, you can snare—at a nifty, new little shop in Beverly Hills called Hazel, Inc.—an alligator handbag I admire, but did not buy . . . just plain, with an ashes-of-rose suede lining, in awfully good taste.

So Hazel herself will inform you, Hazel being the petite Negro girl from Dallas who designs and sells-mostly to the Hollywood great-the leather goods the shop features. For the past seven years Hazel has been the personal maid of Cinema

Star Rosalind Russell, and before that she worked for Virginia Bruce, Ginger Rogers and Garbo. The "Inc." hides the name of Miss Russell, who is half-owner, and is
