Chairman Randolph of the District Committee introduced a bill designed to provide additional housing facilities here. It would, in effect, circumvent the zoning law by allowing dwellings in certain restricted areas to open their doors to roomers and boarders.

Supreme Court Declares Ship Strike a Mutiny

5-to-4 Decision Sets Aside Labor Board Reinstatement Order

Sit-down strikes on vessels docked in United States ports were outlawed by the Supreme Court today in a 5-to-4 decision which said that "a rebellion by seamen against their officers on board a vessel anywhere within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States is to be punished as mutiny."

Justice Byrnes delivered the opinion which, through the court's application of the Federal mutiny statute, set aside a Labor Board order directing the Southern Steamship Co. of Philadelphia to reinstate seamen who went on strike July 18, 1938, aboard the vessel City of Fort Worth at Houston.

Justice Byrnes asserted that the reinstatement order could not be applied because the seamen, by engaging in the sitdown strike had violated the mutiny statute.

Board's Contention Overruled. The majority opinion overruled the Labor Board's contention that the Wagner Labor Act permitted a reinstatement order even though the men had engaged in a sitdown

Another provision of the board's order, directing the company to bargain collectively with the C. I. O. National Maritime Union, was up-

Justice Byrnes said that Congress in the anti-mutiny legislation, had outlawed such a strike and "if this mandate is to be changed it must be changed by Congress and not by the courts." "Ever since men have gone to

The maintenance of authority hinges upon a delicate complex of human factors, and Congress may very sensibly have concluded that a master whose orders are subject to the crew's veto in port cannot enforce them at sea." The damage to the Normandie at New York was cited by Justice Byrnes as "grim enough proof tha the hazard of fire is ever present' and that a sitdown strike might result in injury to a vessel."

Unlawful From Inception. "We cannot ignore the fact that this strike was unlawful from its very inception," Justice Byrnes said. and "directly contravened the policy

> The Dissenting Opinion. In the dissenting opinion, Justice Reed said that the court had held previously that employes guilty of 'criminal acts" in connection with a sitdown strike were not eligible for reinstatement under the Wagner

"Nothing approaching such disorder occurred here," the dissenting opinion added. "The seamen's conduct did not affect the safety of the vessel. The only evidence of violation of the statutes is that the orders to load were ignored.

Any person violating this provision shall upon conviction be punished by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding $1,000."

Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee came out this afternoon against the effort to write a schedule of war-profit limitations into a pending appropriation bill as the Senate prepared to fight out the issue tomorrow.

Senator George based his opposition on the ground that "the only effective way to deal with the profit question is through taxation." The fact that he is chairman of the committee that will soon be drafting a new tax law adds weight to name or symbol of the Red Cross by his stand against the pending profitcontrol rider.

American-Filipino Troops Are Resisting Assaults Stubbornly

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) Japanese assault troops, in repeated attacks on the American forces on Bataan, have "made some gains" at a heavy cost in casualties, the War Department said in a communique late today.

The third day of virtually continuous enemy hammering saw the Japanese shelling the American-Filipino beach defenses with artillery mounted on barges, and sending dive-bombers in to support the surge of their picked infantry against the defending ground forces. The War Department communione admitted that the Bataan stone-wall defense was beginning to wear somewhat, but stated that our troops were "resisting stubbornly." One Plane Downed. The Corregidor fortress was left alone today by Japanese bomberswhose pilots have learned by bitter experience to respect the marksmanship of American anti-aircraft gunners. One Japanese plane was shot down by ground fire elsewhere,

The Japanese attacks in the last two days of heavy fighting have been concentrated on the right center of the American line and it was presumed that it was in this sector that the gains had been made. The attempt to shell the beach defenses from barges was not highly successful, the communique stated. Most of the shells, fired at the east coast defenses, fell short. Landing Attempts Broken Up. Japanese attempts to land troops from barges over the week end had been broken up, a communique issued earlier in the day said and it was apparent that the accuracy of American light artillery emplacements along the beaches was keep-

"The board found in each instance that the discharges were not for disobeying orders but for striking, for peacefully, albeit unlawfully, resorting to self-help in retaliation against denial of their rights. On the basis of these findings, suported by substantial evidence, the board exercised its discretion to reinstate these men.

Selections for a Fast Track at Bowie

FIRST RACE - DIRECTION, ZOUAVE, VERY QUAINT. DIRECTION raced well enough in Florida to be given preference over the maidens he opposes in this four-furlong affair. ZOUAVE is well liked by the clockers and may get the place money. VERY QUAINT was scratched today and must be given a stout chance.

SECOND RACE-SUN TRIAD, OLD ROSEBUSH, TOY FOOT. The Sun Meadow gelding, SUN TRIAD, has worked well enough to qualify in the second sprint. OLD ROSEBUSH drops down the ladder and among this sort must be given an excellent money chance. TOY FOOT is reported ready and, with only 102 to carry, may surprise.

THIRD RACE-RADIO WAVE, DRUCO SYSKA, TANGAN-YIKA:

The Pilate mare, RADIO WAVE, is far down on the list Nor did it include appropriations but should prove a powerful factor if she can break in. DRUCO SYSKA should have a lot to say with an alert break. The gelding will be coming fast when they hit the stretch turn. TANGANYIKA may upset the dope.

> FOURTH RACE-NEDDIE BOY, FREE TRADER, MARVAL. NEDDIE BOY, a war refugee from the West Coast, appears well placed and may make every post a winning one. FREE TRADER should improve off that outing on opening day and be up in time for place. MARVAL is well liked in some quarters,

> FIFTH RACE-MISS I. Q., FLY-ING REIGH, PETE'S BET. The Head Play filly, MISS I. Q., has been burning up the track in the early morning and may be ready for a hard effort. The field is a tough one, so the price will generous. FLYING REIGH was fairly consistent last year and should be close. PETE'S BET is a possibility

SIXTH RACE-NIGHT GLOW, MOON MAIDEN, CHARM BRACELET.

NIGHT GLOW, from the barn of Gus Ring, may prove the right one in the Charlotte Hall Purse. The filly worked well in Florida and apparently is in tip-top MOON MAIDEN is a highly regarded filly and is strictly the one to beat. CHARM BRACELET was not out of the money in 11 starts in 1941.

Churches of Capital Filled to Capacity For Easter Services

Many Congregations Forced to Duplicate Morning Meetings

A serious, wartime Washington population yesterday gathered by the thousands in its churches and other places of worship to reaffirm faith in life after death as confirmed by Christ's resurrection,

Led by ranking Government officials, diplomats, members of Congress and high church members, the city emphasized religion to the fullest during this time of emer-

Most pastors used as their theme variations of faith as means toward carrying the Nation through the war to victory. Nearly all recalled the trials of Jesus and His flock as illustrations of the tribulations which must be endured in the struggle of life.

As Anacostia churches held their annual sunrise program in the Anacostia Methodist Church, the Rev Dr. Worth M. Tippy told the combined congregations during the union service that faith in the resurrection was never more necessary than today. Dr. Tippy is ex-ecutive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Single cherry blossoms opened to the sun around the Tidal Basin, but the crowds who came to view them were nothing compared to former years. Park police said perhaps 15,000 cars crossed the inlet at the basin where they made their count, ho more than 25,000 individuals strolled among the trees.

This figure contrasted to the 300,-000 people of last year and a park policeman thought it might be the tire shortage combined with the warning to would-be tourists to stay

Maybe It's a Boycott. "Maybe they're boycotting the trees because they're Japanese," he ventured.

Hotel men couldn't recall an Easter week end with fewer visitors than were here yesterday. The tourist could have had his pick of hotel rooms.

A compilation by the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade showed there were 442 vacant hotel rooms on Saturday night and 885 vacancies last night. Pretty young war workers in their new spring suits and veiled hats did most of the sight-seeing. They stood before the figure of Lincoln and strolled on the Monument

Not even the war could keep the paraders off Connecticut avenue, where bright reds—the color of the season—contrasted with flowering purples, but people didn't just stroll. They were on their way to church or home from church.

The fashions were tempered to the times. Suits were more conservative. hats less hysterical. Women apparently had shopped with an eye to the future, figuring that perhaps next Easter they would be wearing the same suits.

'Scorched Earth' Policy Held Needing Natives' Aid By the Associated Press.

The "scorched-earth" method of mpeding Japan's war effort can be effective only if the co-operation of the peoples of Southeast Asia is obtained by guarantee of the independence they seek, the Foreign Policy Association said yesterday. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 6 .-Unable to furnish bond, William Dudley Pelley, chief of the Silver Shirts, remained in the Marion County Jail today awaiting grand jury action in an amdavit charging him with sedition in connection with articles published in his magazine, the Galilean.

The silver-goateed publisher of anti-Semitic magazines said he would plead innocent to any indictnot definitely known, however, as to when his case would be presented to the grand jury.

Pelley was unable to obtain his freedom last night, although United States Marshal Julius Wichser of the Southern Indiana district altrict allowed him several hours to post a $15,000 bond before ordering him to jail. Reading a paper on "Command of the Air" delivered by Admiral Peary in Philadelphia in July, 1916. before the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Admiral Moreell quoted the naval officer as saying:

"No nation can win respect or exert influence unless it stands for forcefulness and strength. In no way can we, as a Nation, stand so effectively for forcefulness, for strength and for world influence as by command of the air.

"To touch upon only one of the directions in which that world influence will act, I note our position as the most influential member of ooccupying the entire Western Hemisphere, seated upon two continents, reaching from Pole to Pole. In that coming world influence, the one great dominant thing that will overshadow all else will be air superiority and power.

Senate Group Plans To Force Action on Longer Work Week

Lee and Pepper Seek Republican Support For Labor Measure

A new move was afoot in the Senate today to force action on a bill suspending the 40-hour week and restricting labor activities in war industries despite administration op-

At the same time, Chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee, declared Congress would suspend the 40-hour law in a moment if President Roosevelt would give the word. In Dallas for Easter, Representative Sumners was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that "there is no question but that Congress would give any additional legislation within reason which the President might request to deal with the labor situation.'

The Senate group which is planning action is headed by Senators Lee of Oklahoma and Pepper of Florida, Democrats. Members said they hoped to bring to the floor within two weeks a measure indorsed by a relatively large number of Democrats and Republicans. Hope to Avoid Committee.

They would attempt, it was explained, to by-pass the Senate Education and Labor Committee. Chairman Thomas of Utah has opposed enactment at this time of any labor legislation. Senator Thomas has been supported in this stand by Majority Leader Barkley.

Despite this opposition, members of the group said they felt that if they could get an appreciable number of Senators to agree on the general principles of a labor measure. they would have a fighting chance of getting it passed.

An opportunity to get such a bill April 20, when the chamber will consider a motion to take up a bill by Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, authorizing the Government to operate strike-bound war plants. The Connally measure would breeze working conditions—including union contracts—in those plants, but would permit adjustment of wages by a special board.

Voluntary Agreements. There have been clear indications that the administration hopes to fight the Connally bill with voluntary agreements reached soon between labor and management on lengthening of the work week, either to 44 or 48 hours at regular pay with overtime to be paid thereafter. The wage-hour law now requires time and one-half pay for work in excess of 40 hours weekly.

Newspapers pointed out the Japanese aim was to destroy harbors and suggested that India's great ports-which are of paramount importance to the United Nationsmay rogically be the next targets.

The newspapers, while expressing delight over the hot reception given the Colombo raiders, declared that if political problems were settled and India got down to the job behind a national government there was no reason why the Indian people should not meet the Japanese threat as well as did the residents

Some London sources expressed belief the final outcome of the negotiations would come from deliberations today of the British war cabinet on suggested changes in Britain's terms, offered originally on an all-or-nothing basis.

The core of the difficulty, evidently, was the insistence of Indians, particularly the All-India Congress party, that India control her own defenses.

British sources said the government would consider any responsible suggestion. One possibility, mentioned by the London News Chronicle, was that an Indian would become defense member of the Executive Council and that Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief for India, would succeed Lord Linlithgow as Viceroy to insure full co-ordination of all defense

Vitamins for Gray Hair

A hope or a promise?

Recent articles in the press have raised the hopes of millions of men and women to the possibility of banishing gray hair by taking certain vitamins.

The most immediate interest in this subject centers on the report recently published in a well-known household magazine. This is by two scientists who conducted experiments on 25 men and women with a vitamin factor known as calcium pantothenate. Each of these people took a dose of this vitamin every day for 6 months. At the end of that time it was found that a few gray hairs on the heads of 22 of them showed a little color near

It may be properly questioned whether even this negligible showing was the result of vitamin treatment. For it so happens that a number of other scientists have also been experimenting on humans with this same vitamin and they have not reported any case where the color of the hair was even partially

In all fairness, it should be noted here that in the magazine article of the two scientists above referred to, no claim was made of success in recoloring even a single head of gray hair. In the light of these facts it may be asked - Is it possible to color hair with vitamins? In a letter published in a recent issue of this Country's leading medical

Discarded Articles of All Kinds Sought For Reclamation

W. P. B. Is in Market For Anything That Can Be Used in War Effort

Spring housecleaning may be a neadache to a husband, but it's the housewife's opportunity to make a direct contribution to the war effort.

That's the word from the War Production Board's Bureau of Industrial Conservation which is in the market for practically everything you don't want.

W. P. B. doesn't want you to hand over to it the things you can still get some use from, but it believes that attics, basements, backyards and garages are full of the metals and materials that make the war effort go.

W. P. B. Can Use Metal Toys. The metal toys your children are too big for, that pair of galoshes with the hole in them that you've been clinging to, the wedding present Aunt Minnie gave you 25 years ago that's got more metal than decorative value—those are the things W. P. B. wants.

Old metal ornaments, plumbing and heating equipment, broken tools can be turned into parts for planes and tanks.

Aged tires and inner tubes, hot water bottles and worn-down rubber heels can go into the production of reclaimed rubber.

Old rags can be used as wiping rags in war plants and waste paper can be converted into cartons for shipment of munitions and canned foods to the men in the field. Watch for These Articles.

Here are some of the things to watch for when you wrap a bandanna around your head, send the family into exile and start poking through the attic and basement: Metal beds, extension cords, toasters, irons, heaters, fans, doorknobs, hinges, keys, kitchen utensils, rubber overshoes, rubber heels, lamps and lighting fixtures of brass, copper or iron; metal toys, statues and vases, metal porch and garden furniture, scissors, sleds, roller skates, vacuum cleaners, stoves, andirons and grates, pipes and other plumbing fixtures, radiators, refrigerator parts, tools, license plates, chains, hose, bicycles, automobile parts and anything else that looks ▶ Eighteen months before Pearl Harbor, hundreds of patriotic corporations Pepsl-Cola Bottler, Hot Springs, Ark. : : : and car owners were making road tests with a new kind of tire. It bore the famous Silvertown name. But more than half its rubber was synthetic... B. F. Goodrich Ameripol.

Since that time synthetic rubber has leaped to new importance. A large part of our war effort depends upon America's ability to produce good tires from synthetic rubber. The tires we will drive upon after the war may well be synthetic.

Hence the question, "How good will these new tires be?" is a vital one. There are Petroleum Machine Company, Seminole, several ways to answer it. Too Many Cooks

Before we entered the war there was definite intent on the part of at least some administration advisers to avoid, in case of war, the sort of high-powered propaganda that George Creel developed in 1917-18. In those days of peace the reasons for wishing to avoid it sounded rather compelling. A people deliberately whipped up in their emotions to the fevers of war hate would be unable to consider calmly the problems of making a wise peace, solution of which might avoid another early conflagration.

Regardless of the merits of such a theory, Pearl Harbor caught us with no definite policy on propaganda and war news. Lacking the guidance of such policy, the Government's propaganda and publicity machine, already large, grew like Topsy. Hundreds of mediocre press agents were added to inflated payrolls, publicity agencies now are overmanned and overlapping and there results a sadly botched job of public relations between the Government and the people.

It is, therefore, encouraging to note that study is being given to formulation of permanent policy on war news and Government publicity and that the authorities are seeking some one to head a reorganized publicity maconsidered policy. The man so chosen will have a tough assignment, and the President's most difficult the right man. The wrong man will bungle the job disastrously.

By way of illustration, the Office of Censorship, which has the unpleasant duty of suppressing news and which by tradition should be the butt of ridicule and the source of unending dissatisfaction, thus far has functioned smoothly and efficiently, without serious complaint from anybody. The explanation lies in acceptance by the press of the idea of intelligent military censorship and in the caliber of men selected to exercise it. They all are men who made a success of their jobs before being called to Washington and they know their business. While censoring news, they are themselves sincere advocates of a free press and they entertain no freakish notions of suppressing opinion by putting editors in jail. On the other hand, the legions of press agents who infest the Government establishments, including the new propaganda agencies, are the subject of continued criticism and complaint. Many of them are wholly unqualified for their jobs. Some of them presume to exercise judgment over what is fit to print, not merely military information but any information. Some of them demonstrate an infantile conception of the function of the press by threatening non-conforming reporters and editors with incarceration. And many of them, being unjustly held to account by their superiors for what the newspapers print, attempt to have printed only that which pleases their superiors. There are far too many press agents, too many incompetent press agents and too little understanding of their function, which is to facilitate the gathering of facts by the press. Half of them could be let out without loss and those retained should be taught that they are not responsible for molding public opinion, a process which is best left to an intelligent public which will form its

Anniversary

Twenty-five years ago today the United States entered the first World War. It was the expressed purpose of the American people at that time to preserve and to maintain the democratic way of life for themselves and for their friendly neighbors. Under the leadership of President Woodrow Wilson, they labored and fought until the enemy, beaten in the field, applied for an armistice on November 11, 1918. No fewer than 50,510 soldiers paid for the achievement "the last full measure of devotion." They died that others might be free. And their sacrifice was not in vain. It proved the spiritual idealism of a nation pledged to the sacred integrity of the individual in the face of aggression.

Now the United States once more is engaged in the ancient struggle for liberty and peace. Day by day since December 7 last there has grown in the hearts of millions of Americans the instinct of a great crucede. The unfinished work of a protest firsthand on behalf of the commission and c promised themselves to complete in such manner as will be final and conclusive. Certainly, the price will be high. That grim reality is appreciated without reservation. But simply because the cost must be so great the popular determination is firm. Not boasting, not hoping for easy gains, not anticipating anything but savage resistance, the armies and fleets required for the task already are in movement toward their ultimate goal. In the language employed by President Roosevelt on December 11, "rapid and united effort of all of the peoples of the world who are determined to remain free will insure a world victory of the forces of justice and of righteousness over the forces of savagery and barbarism."

Progress Report

Donald Nelson's report to the Military Order of the World War on progress being made in the war production program serves both as an answer to critics of the program and as a source of encouragement to the American people.

In a recent statement the Truman Committee complained of bottlenecks which it said were disrupting plane production. Mr. Nelson has not denied that bottlenecks are present-undoubtedly they are and always will be-but he has given the highly gratifying assurance that the plane production schedule was exceeded in February and met in March. This is a truly remarkable achievement, for it must be remembered that the schedule calls for the production of 60,000 planes in 1942. This seems an almost fantastic goal, and its announcement was greeted with derision by our enemies. Yet, judging from what Mr. Nelson and others have said, there is a reasonable prospect that these planes will roll off the assembly lines this year. One circumstance, however, should be taken into account. Calling attention to the fact that the problem of aircraft production is constantly affected by changes in the strategic situation, Mr. Nelson said that a little while ago it became necessary to put "much greater emphasis" on the long-range four-engine bomber. Presumably this change in emphasis came after the President's goal of 60,000 planes was set, and if it is going to be necessary to increase greatly the production of fourengine bombers, which use vast quantities of materials and require a great deal more labor, it will be inchine and to administer a carefully | finitely more difficult over the year to produce the original total of all types of planes. Thus, we may fall short of 60,000 planes, but if this is task, in this connection, is to select | the result of producing more fourengine bombers, the effectiveness of our air arm, under existing conditions, will not have been impaired. It is well to bear in mind Mr. Nelson's warning that this is not a time for undiluted optimism. But, thinking in terms of production and having in mind his word of encouragement with regard to the output of planes, guns, tanks and ships, neither is it time for unrelieved pessimism.

Arlington Dispute

It is extremely unfortunate that a controversy should have arisen between Arlington County authorities and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in connection with proposed private construction across the river. With Arlington in the midst of an era of unprecedented public and private development, there is need as never before for wholehearted co-operation between Federal and Virginia planning offi-

The dispute, which has been smoldering for some months, seems to have had its origin in a disagreement between the commission and county agencies over plans for erection of a large hotel near Arlington National Cemetery. The commission expressed disapproval of a project calling for a hotel 110 feet high on land which the planning body wished to preserve for future extension of Arlington Cemetery. The commission objected not only to the location, but to the height of the proposed structure. When county officials agreed to lower the building to 90 feet, Chairman Delano of the Park and Planning Commission wrote a long letter explaining why the commission felt that building heights in the Arlington area adjacent to Federal building and parkway developments should be kept to the 60-foot maximum which prevails in most of the county. Arlington officials have accused the commission of interfering arbitrarily with growth of the county, not only by opposing what the officials contend are proper and desirable private building activities, but by using its influence to prevent the granting of priorities for such construction. It was implied that the commission had no authority to extend its planning operations into Virginia. There can be no doubt, however, of the commission's authority to acquire and develop park lands in Virginia and Maryland and to exercise advisory planning functions there, for such powers have been specifically conferred upon it by act of Congress. Nor can it be denied that the Federal Government, by reason of its expansion into Arlington—and particularly since the erection of great Federal office buildings in the county-has an understandable and tangible interest in protecting its investment. As for the disagreement over zoning and building regulations, Mr. Delano's letter is said to have given the commission's side of the question. The Arlington County board quarter century past they have board. It is to be hoped that this face-to-face conference will end in an amicable adjustment of this deplorable controversy.

Prevailing Wages'

As a matter of policy the building trades unions of the American Federation of Labor have pushed wage scales upward as the traffic permitted. But as a matter of realistic recognition of competition in prewar years with non-union labor and ability-to-pay on the part of private builders, formation of "B" unions was countenanced, the rates of pay in these "B" unions being substantially lower than the "A," or union, scale. In past years the majority of private or speculative builders, as distinct from Government contractors, have been employing non-union labor or "B" union labor at rates considerably below the union scales, and it is estimated that about 89 per cent of private housing in this area has been constructed at these lower rates.

An anomalous situation was created which found most of the private and some Government housing constructed at the "B" rates and other Government housing built at the "A" rates, with the Department of Labor recognizing both "A" and "B" scales as "prevailing." Under the Bacon-Davis Act the minimum wage to be paid on Government work shall be the wage found to be prevailing on 'projects of a character similar to the general contract work."

News articles in The Star revealing this fact were followed by hearings to determine the "prevailing" rates to be paid for public housing, a matter which assumed extraordinary importance because of the large amount of such housing soon to be constructed here. The matter was hotly debated by representatives of labor and private contractors. The decision just handed down is a distinct victory for the unions, that decision being that the high union rates are the prevailing wages for public housing. The difference in construction cost of public housing between the low and high rates is estimated by counsel for contractors as amounting to about $20,000,000 for some 22,000 defense housing units to be built in this area. The taxpayers will pay that difference and public housing, as an economic undertaking measured in terms of return on invested capital, is possible only when the taxpayers put up the money and write off the capital investment. Private builders cannot compete and "low cost" housing is merely a figure

The Department of Labor's ruling undoubtedly was governed by expediency, for the Department was dealing with a condition and not a theory. That condition is one which finds public housing about the only type of housing that war priorities will permit; it is housing that calls for construction by union labor only. and the reaching of any other decision would have resulted in a substantial reduction in union scales. The shortage of labor and materials now existing makes this out of the

Welcome Visitor

No one could be a more welcome visitor to Washington than Ezequiel Padilla, Mexico's Foreign Minister and one of our best "Good Neighbors," who is here on an official visit to this country. The formal entertainment extended him by officials of this Government during his stay is only a token of the deep appreciation shared by the peoples of all the Americas for his invaluable services in the cause of inter-American soli-

Generally recognized as one of the greatest orators in the Spanish language and as one of the most effective exponents of practical co-operation among the Americas for the good of all, Dr. Padilla virtually 'stole the show" at the January conference of American Foreign Ministers in Rio de Janeiro by his reasoned, yet impassioned appeals for hemisphere unity. He was one of the leaders in achieving a unanimous agreement recommending the severance of diplomatic relations with the Axis. He amply demonstrated during that conference that he has both the vision to see the desperate need for unified action to preserve freedom in the Western Hemisphere, and the genius for giving expression to that vision in moving words.

While Dr. Padilla has not entered into detailed public discussion of the purposes of his mission here, he has made it clear that he hopes to find a solution for outstanding problems in the way of the most effective cooperation between Mexico and the United States in their joint war and defense effort. Certainly no stone should be left unturned in efforts to intensify such co-operation. This country needs in its war program the benefits of increased production of strategic materials in Mexico, and Mexico needs our economic assistance in developing such production to the fullest. In this and other fields, agreements may be reached as a result of Dr. Padilla's visit here

Gravelly Airport Center of Conflict

Writer Says Giving Vote To District Would Solve One Part of Problem

By John W. Thompson, Jr. The long, flat runways of the National Airport at Gravelly Point and its modern terminal facilities are the center of a hot jurisdictional battle which has resulted in the introduction of no less than three separate bills in Congress. The question, of course, is whether the District or the State of Virginia has jurisdiction over the $16,000,000 landing terminal on the south side of the Potomac. The three bills are one by Representative Randolph of West Virginia, placing the air port in Virginia; one by Representative Nichols of Oklahoma, placing it in the District, and one by Senator McCarran of Nevada to restore to the District all Virginia territory retroceded to the State by Congress in 1846, which would include the airport. The two House bills are before the House Committee. Despite the apparent complexity of the problem, any practical investigation would seem to show that the District has little to win or lose and the Commissioners are sitting tight and, generally speaking, playing both sides. Interwoven in the airport issue is the entire problem of the District-Virginia boundary, which has come down through more than 100 years without solution. Actually, the bills before Congress are boundary bills. The Randolph measure sets the present high-water mark of the Potomac on the Virginia side as the boundary, thus automatically putting the airport in Virginia. The Nichols bill simply amends the Randolph bill to put the airport in the District. The McCarran proposal in one form or another had been argued back and forth before the airport was even thought of. The Commissioners have approved the Randolph bill but are not opposed to the Nichols bill. They are known to feel that the airport probably would be more of a liability than an asset—that any revenue arising from licensing and taxing would be far below the cost of providing fire and police protection, coroner service and other municipal services. On the other hand they will not complain if the jurisdiction is finally accorded them. But they don't want to antagonize the powerful Virginia congressional contingent by fighting for something that might be a "white elephant" any-

As between the two House bills, the line-up at the moment appears to be as follows:

For Virginia jurisdiction—The State of Virginia and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

For District jurisdiction-The Civil Aeronautics Authority, which runs the airport; the airlines using the airport; the Washington Board of Trade, and the Federation of Citizens' Associations. In Relation to Helpless Millions Both sides claim the support of the Bureau of the Budget, whose only interest in the bills, however, is whether or not they conform to the White House fiscal policy. Virginia clearly expects to make some money out of the airport and is more than willing to take the chance it will not be a losing venture. It was hinted it may be willing to make some tax concessions which supporters of the Nichols bill have indicated may not be legally possible. The contention is that the Virginia Legislature has not the authority to delegate to the State executive branch the authority to waive general tax statutes for certain parties. Whatever the ultimate determination of these questions. Virginia reasonably may expect that its State and county businesses will profit by the location of the airport within the State in the same way they will benefit by having the new War Department and Navy buildings in

The Park and Planning Commission is looking at the problem mainly from the boundary point of view and takes the position that the present high-water mark of the Potomac on the Virginia side is the "common sense" line between Virginia and the District. The commission further objects to District jurisdiction over a relatively small and isolated parcel of land on the other side of the

There is little doubt that the highwater mark at any given time is the simplest boundary but it is argued that there is no more reason to set the 1942 high-water mark as the line-thus putting the airport in Virginia—than the 1938 high-water mark-under which the filled-in section of the airport including the runways, would be classed as in the

As a matter of fact, airline attorneys studying the history of boundary claims and counter claims feel that, if anything, the boundary runs right through the airport. The C. A. A. takes the position that since much of it was under water when the project started, the filled section is clearly in the District.

It must be conceded, as the Board of Trade points out, somewhat illogical to have an airport located in one jurisdiction and serving another. Estimates indicate 90 per cent of the airport traffic is on Washington business and, during the war, this is probably a conservative figure. New York and Philadelphia, the board says, were once in the double jurisdiction problem and were compelled to get their own airfields. Until the issue is decided, one way or another, however, nobody really suffers except the airlines and the concessionaries at the airport. In the interim both the District and Virginia have slapped on taxes and licenses and have reached a makeshift agreement on the liquor license issue where State procedures differ.

At the moment the airport is paying unemployment compensation levies both to the District and Virginia and gasoline tax to both jurisdictions. Officials say the problem of income tax to both is now arising. Since the District does not tax aviation gasoline, the local gas take is refunded, but Virginia does not refund all of hers. In any event, the compulsion to pay both taxes requires bookkeeping. No police jurisdiction has yet been established. Recently a fight at the airport resulted in the calling of the District police, who reported no jurisdiction; of the Virginia police, who reported no

He refused them all. At the same time, he seemed to be looking around for something more. Cake we did not have, so could not put

Once he flew down to the pile of meat. He looked at it, then flew out, and sat all huddled up on a branch of a lilac which had been bent double to the

Several times during the storm we saw him, looking very hungry and miserable. Once he went over to the food again, but this time some starlings there drove

At any rate, there they lay, with little chance of any one doing anything about it until the thaw came naturally.

It was a sad sight, so many shrubs down in such summary fashion, and so many great branches of trees down, too. At first the birds seemed bewildered at the lack of branches.

Soon, however, they got their bearings, and took to perching on snow as if they had always done it.

Letters to the Editor

Discusses Effect of Overtime Pay To the Editor of The Star:

Many advocates of the 40-hour week are patriots. So are many who oppose them. But many on each side feel that the others are unfair. Such a situation calls for common counsel, not coercion. We need reason, with less of dogmatic demands and denunciations.

Some 40-hour-weekers have proposed an argument which opens a road to discussion. Repealing time and a half, they say, means diminishing pay, and that is wrong in a time of higher prices.

True on paper, this reasoning nevertheless is thoroughly mistaken in reality. The reason is very simple. Before the war, time and a half seldom was paid. It was not intended to be. The very object of the legislation was to diminish hours of work, and this meant diminishing pay. It follows that the workman who works 48 hours at only basic pay is getting 20 per cent more than was normal three years ago and still better than that if he is one of the large number whose basic rate has been raised. An appreciable portion of this great gain, in the form of higher prices, is laid as a burden on the unfortunate, helpless, unprivileged millions who cannot raise their pay rate a cent.

Isn't 30, 40 or even only 20 per cent gain enough? Do the privileged labor union workers really demand more, partly at the cost of the unprivileged? It hardly seems possible, unless they are too unintelligent to realize what they are doing. WALTER P. WHITE.

Urges General Display of Flag As Stimulus to Public Morale.

There is something that should be done to stimulate the morale of visitors to Washington and quicken the spirit of the teeming thousands who are working here long hours to help win the war. And if it is done the idea will spread like magic over the whole country.

More than parades of soldiers or bands of music, Washington needs to fly an adequate number of national flags. At present the show of bunting is woefully deficient. Sunday visitors have to look for the flag to find it, and are likely to be disappointed if they look where it would seem most reasonable for it to be. The State Department Building, for example, displays no flag on Sundays. And so with the magnificent white marble palaces devoted to national and international organizations of the highest character nearby. On Sundays, when the greatest number of visitors come to Washington, these buildings stand without the noble colors which are so full of meaning to the mind and heart of every American. On weekdays there are more flags flown from private buildings than there were before we entered the war, but, judging from of course, provides an automatic answer to the airport issue by contemplating the return to the District of that part of the original District which Congress returned to Virginia in 1846. This would include the airport.

my observation, the same cannot be said of Government buildings.

On the day when we declared war. was there a great display of the national standard? There was not. If we should win a great and decisive battle, would Washington fling to the breeze every flag that could be found? Probably not.

The national emblem is supposed to be raised on every occupied public building on weekdays and a special exhibit of many is made on various anniversaries throughout the year. There are printed rules to control the flying of flags on Government buildings, and the execution of them is in the hands of uniformed guards. But the regulations are for peacetimes and we are now at war. The rules should be revised in the light of the profound awakening of this great Nation. We all should become aware that our country's life is at hazard, that it is in need of the fullest expression of national love and devotion and sacrifice of which the human soul is capable. To kindle and support this sentiment and to weld it into a greater and more united effort is the message which every American flag carries to every American who sees it.

We need an intelligent consideration of the whole question of the use of the national emblem in the Nation's Capital. now that we are at war. How and when the flag should be shown on private property must and should be left to individual initiative. Recommendations from a qualified authority would be helpful. But every detail of the use of the national standard in connection with public buildings every day and under all circumstances should be decided by a board of high competence. GEORGE A. SOPER.

Proposes Use of River Boat As Temporary Home for Soldiers. To the Editor of The Star:

Why should a great boat remain untenanted over the crowded week ends with men sleeping on floors, station benches and who knows where? Look at the water front. The Potomac River boat lies there with her 150 or more empty bunks. Why can't she be used temporarily? All these men ask for is a mattress and pillow. They would even forego the comfort of sheets. It could be done.

Arnold Seen Emerging as 'Key Man

Moves to Call Off 'Trust' Inquiries Are in Vain

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Thurman Arnold, whose enforcement of the anti-trust laws has been more extensive than that of any "trust-buster" since the Sherman law was enacted in 1890, has just emerged as a key figure in the Roosevelt administration. For several months a campaign has been waged from the inside - by the Army and Navy, by defense officials, by cabinet officers, by busi-

David Lawrence. ness interests engaged in war work-to call off Mr. Arnold's probe into American business methods and practices. But to no avail. The President has just issued a memorandum requiring that anti-trust prosecutions be postponed only if they interfere with the war effort and only if the Secretaries of War or Navy certify formally to that effect. But Mr. Arnold is given the right to recommend to the President that their judgement be disregarded. It is believed improbable, therefore, that either Mr. Stimson or Mr. Knox or even War Production Chief Nelson will venture to match swords publicly with Mr. Arnold on any anti-trust case he has started or decides to start in the future.

Such a powerful influence by a civilian official is almost unparalleled in wartime, but it is due to the crusading force of the Arnold philosophy when poured into New Deal ears and to the support which he has been able to muster lately

American industry, management and labor have not credited the Arnold doctrine with political strength and have been inclined to by-pass it, but the President's unwillingness to circumscribe very much the efforts of the Assistant Attorney General, even in wartime. may well lead to the belief that his proposed cure for most of our commercial ills, national and international, by means of unrestricted competition will eventually become a paramount administration policy

Arnold's Views Discussed.

Mr. Arnold wants to continue to use the criminal and civil penalties of the anti-trust laws, not only to break up combinations at home, but to prevent a division of world markets through foreign cartels. He wants unrestricted competition, too, in the labor market and is opposed to monopolistic demands for the closed shop. He is against labor union efforts to kill off the use of labor-saving machinery or their efforts to restrict production or fix prices by collusion with employers.

He thinks the Supreme Court made a mistake in immunizing labor unions from prosecution under the anti-trust laws, that the A. A. A. tax returns which are accepted as and N. R. A. were both mistakes and that restriction of output whether on the farm or in the factory is an

Mr. Arnold doesn't appear to be disturbed when his superior-Attornev General Biddle-tells his press conference that his assistant was guilty of "bad timing" when he appeared recently before a congressional committee and denounced certain labor union practices.

The Assistant Attorney General who might have been made Attorney General except for labor union opposition goes his own way regardless of the brickbats thrown at him inside the administration. Some of his friends say that if he is crossed, he will resign and tell the world what goes on in Washington and it might not be pleasant reading to those in officialdom who have been trying to thwart him.

He Is 'Let Alone.'

So the disposition of the administration is to let Mr. Arnold alone in his bailiwick, war or no war. The Assistant Attorney General says. however, that he is always willing to put aside anti-trust prosecutions that really interfere with the war program but that he doesn't think the lawyers or the legal departments of most companies are needed to produce war weapons and he believes they are the principal ones whose time would be absorbed in

Nor does Mr. Arnold feel that agreements and war contracts necessarily made in haste by defense agencies or the Army and Navy should be immune from check-up and possible prosecution later. He says it's a good deal like income

Reduce Washington Office Population 50 Per Cent And War Effort Would Move Faster, Observer Holds

My friends ask me why I don't spend more time in Washington, getting "oriented," as they say. Well, there are several reasons. One is that it's impossible to find anywhere to stay in Washington unless you park yourself on your friends, and maybe some one is parked there already. Another is that in Washington it is difficult to see the woods Dorothy Thompson. for the trees. The third is that there is an atmosphere of strain over every office, a hectic, almost frantic busyness that is depressing and enervating. And another is that whenever I go to Washington I get mad because some one tells me that the country is too complacent; some one asks anxiously whether the morale of the country is strong enough.

I don't have any such feeling if I go to an airplane factory. There I see quiet men in their shirt sleeves, doing perfectly gigantic things without any atmosphere of strain whatsoever. The reason is that these men have made a decision about a specific piece of work, that however daring its scope, it is within the compass of their known abilities; that the men who are planning, managing, and working on that job understand it, and if they have never before done exactly this particular job of work, it is related to what they have been doing all their lives; that somewhere in every factory there is authority - authority for the carrying through of the whole project and responsibility for the accomplishment of its various parts, and so men work together, and the whole assembly line functions with quiet steadiness and strength.

Now compare this with Washington. The free agencies are increasing like guinea pigs. They have been set up without knowing exactly what they were set up for. It would appear that the main reason for setting up many of these agencies was to take the job away from somebody else who ought to have been doing it, but didn't seem able to. Instead of reorganizing the cabinet, and fixing responsibility in the cabinet, a hundred suppleup. Instead of fixing a few authorities, scores of agencies are warring with each other in a jungle of red tape. So each of them is at cross purposes inside itself, and the major purpose has become minor. The major purpose is to accomplish a task which will contribute to winning the war, but the minor purpose, of maintaining and perpetuating itself, has taken precedence over this major aim, and each is wearing itself out trying to prove presumably correct but the Government reserves the right to prosecute years afterward on fraud charges. So Mr. Arnold wants to keep on looking into the private files of corporations and determine whether misrepresentations have been made in presenting figures or claims for price ceilings or priorities or in setting up costs or other claims in negotiating contracts with the War and Navy Departments. He wants to make sure also that if corporation executives do any pooling or collaborating they do so under specific and written governmental direction. Mr. Arnold's power of veto is almost as great today as that of anybody in the administration.

that this or that belongs to it and not to the other fellow.

We have these agencies—and how are they staffed? Why many of the people in Washington should be in the responsible places they are remains a complete mystery to me, for their qualifications for the particular job are conspicuously absent.

The various information departments are in a complete tangle and anything may come out of them except information, directed to the sources that want it and could make it available to the public through long-established instruments. Instead of this they turn out pamphlets, leaflets and mimeographed sheets enough to fill warehouses, while calling on the public to save

Moreover, all these agencies are afraid of the public. They are afraid of congressional investigations and of columnists. Their anxiety neurosis takes two forms: They hastily enlarge their staffs in order to prove that they are very big and important; they hire press agents to tell the world so-which is one form of "information," I suppose. At the same time, they become increasingly timid in taking long-range and important decisions, because if they "stick their necks out" some one may chop at them. So we have a proliferation of timidity and indecision. There are very good people in these agencies, but they are lost in the impenetrable forest of Washington overorganization. seems to think that 200 people with 400 telephones and acres of office space, can accomplish more than one person in a quiet room with one telephone. Washington is wrong. In a household, every servant above a certain minimum adds to the work of the existing staff, until finally all of them are serving or quarreling with each other instead of getting the work done. If the office population of Washington were reduced tomorrow 50 per cent, we would get on a lot faster with

Faces in Washington are haggard with strain. Lights burn half the night. An irritable attitude assumes that Washington is working while the rest of the country is loafing. But when you try to find out what all this business and strain is about, you find it is concentrated on getting the final 20th initial on a memorandum proposing something that is never going to be

Now this is a fault at the top. What is needed are a very few people of penetrating intelligence, impeccable character and thorough competence who are given full authority to carry out tasks in carefully defined areas. Republicans Not in Favorable Position In Coming Election, Despite Optimism

This Changing World

United States Expected to Send Food to France Soon, but Relations Are On Day-to-Day Basis

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. Consignments of essentials for the civilian population of French North Africa and France will be sent from this country as soon as French ships are available.

After long deliberation and consultation with the British government, the State Department has obtained President Roosevelt's approval to send relatively small quantities of goods to relieve French civilians, and especially starving children.

Some 8.000 tons of powdered milk are available at Baltimore for the children of France. Cotton goods, tea and tobacco are the principal commodities which will be sent for adults. It is emphasized in the State Department that neither oil nor gasoline will be included in the shipments, regardless of how much French authorities contend they are needed. The argument put forward by Vichy in asking for oil and gasoline is that farmers in Morocco. Algeria and Tunisia have been educated to use tractors and cannot change back to mules and camels-the ancient means of tilling the soil—because few draft animals are available.

Fear Nazi Seizure. Vichy requested that oil and gasoline be included in the first consignments, lest there be a crop failure in North Africa this fall, with disastrous results for population of European France itself. Vichy's request was turned down, however, because, in spite of strict control by American consular agents, Red Cross workers and other relief workers. there can be no definite assurance that this vital material will not pass into the hands of the Nazis and Italians

The policy of sending supplies to France will be on a day-to-day basis. This is necessary, since the entire Vichy policy in regard to the Axis and the "new order" in Europe is on such a basis. At present, since the Nazis and Fascists have not started an offensive either against the British in the Mediterranean or against the Russians, the Vichy government can still play friends with the United States What the attitude of that shaky government toward the United States may be when the Axis begins an offensive against the Allies is unpredictable. Trained observers maintain, however, that the Vichy government, regardless of what the French people feel, will play Berlin's tune as soon as Hitler decides to force the issue.

Marshal Petain may be well disposed toward the United States. There seems to be little doubt of that in the minds of American officials now that he has reiterated his avowals of friendship toward the United States. But the same feelings do not exist among the other officers of his cabinet.

Jockeying For Position. Admiral Darlan, vice premier at Vichy, might be friendly toward this country if we were not tied up with Great Britain. Every one around the aged mashal is jockeying for position and the fact that the former vice premier, Pierre Laval, has been brought into the picture recently adds to the confusion. In some quarters it is said that Marshal Petain has agreed to discuss with Laval the possibility of his re-entering the cabinet in order to turn Admiral Darlan against yielding the French fleet to the Nazis. Admiral Darlan is preoccupied with his own position and Marshal Petain is reported to have assured him that he is in line to succeed him as the head of state when he dies.

But Admiral Darlan also has played Berlin's game ever since he was elevated to the position of No. 2 man in unoccupied France. Laval is entitled to succeed Marshal Petain, since this was provided in writing when the marshal became chief of the new French state. The personal rivalry between Admiral Darlan and Laval has been great and has increased in recent months. Out of that rivalry Marshal Petain hopes to obtain stronger support from Admiral Darlan in pursuing his present policy of procrastina-

Laval Is Shrewd. This theory, which is enthusiastically accepted by most wishful thinkers, is questioned by more experienced observers. Laval is a shrewd politician and is unlikely to fall into any trap devised by the aged marshal. He has thrown in his lot completely and unreservedly with the Nazis. Unlike Admiral Darlan, who is under suspicion in certain German quarters, especially those around Hitler's key man in France, Otto Abetz, Laval has the full confidence and co-operation of the Germans. His conversasaid to have been dictated by Berlin and the idea of Laval once more entering the French cabinet is believed to have emanated from the German capital as preparation for a demand that France whole-heartedly join the Axis and the "new order" in Europe.

These observers believe that the day the French chief of state asks Laval to resume his old seat in the Vichy cabinet complete co-operation between France and the Axis will be a fact.

As a matter of fact, I thought it would be easier, and theoretically 4t should be. The politician is a public servant, to begin with. He has to bare his soul during elections. and his life is supposed to be an open book once he gets a seat on the gravy train. And don't overlook this: When he is out for election or re-election he spends half his time bellowing about how he represents nothing but the people, and that he hopes and prays that his people will guide him during his term of office. He implies that nothing could make him happier than to have every voter give him the benefit of his opinion so that he, the servant of the people, will be better able to labor in their behalf.

But once the votes are counted, and he makes his reservations for Washington, he changes like a chameleon on a yard of plaid. He wants no advice from any one, unless it be the State chairman of his

During these trying times our politicians are getting a pretty good going-over from the people and the press, and do you think they like it? No, they don't. They are dismayed and many of them are brazen enough to question the patriotism of men and women who question their deeds, past and present, or criticize the way they are running the country in a very grave hour. It seems to me that a good half of the politicians in Washington should be downright anxious for advice. Take the boys who voted against fortifying Guam (Well take them anyway, even if you don't want them.) Now, these boys should be shouting for advice from the top of the Washington Monument. They should hire another secretary or two to root through the mail to make certain that not one shred of a suggestion from the outside has missed their attention,

The same is true of those farseeing politicians who maintained that Japan was a round-heeled pushover and that our shores were as safe from attack as Hollywood is from a golden wedding. These men should spend an hour each day at the dead-letter office opening anything in sight, including post cards, on the chance that they might run across a little bit of free advice.

servants who, not many months ago, fought against the arming of our merchant ships? They should band together with those deathless statesmen who came within a vote or two of killing the extension of the draft and beat the highways and the byways for some one to counsel them. No matter what counsel they got, it couldn't be any worse than if they depended on their own.

Baseball umpires have long had the reputation of having the world's softest job. As one once said, "The pay isn't bad and you can't beat the

I am beginning to believe that politicians have it even easier than what Ring Lardner termed the "men in blue." Politics is the only career a man can follow without having to fear that his mistakes will cost him his job. Let a banker make bad investments and he is not only through, he is branded as a crook. Let a doctor make a few wrong diagnoses and he can throw away his thermometer. But, politicians apparently can get by with anything. They can make mistakes concerning the very life of their country and what happens? Nothing. They still stay in office and go right ahead directing the policy of the Government.

Whenever a politician complains about criticism, he should take a look around and ask himself how in the world the world's richest Nation, the world's greatest industrial Nation, ever got into the shape it is

Birth Certificates Issued by U. S. Proposed in Bill

Approximately 44,000,000 Americans who were born in States where birth records were not kept would be able to apply for Federal birth certificates under legislation now before the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Chairman Reynolds, who introduced the measure, said it was urgently needed for two reasons: First, to certify the citizenship of Americans who have been barred from jobs in restricted war industries because they were unable to produce birth certificates; second, to combat a racket which he said was springing up in the charging of exorbitant fees for establishing Amerocan birth.

Under his proposal, which Senator Reynolds said had the support of the Army and the Commerce Department, application could be made at any post office for a "certified birth record" to be issued by the director of the census. The fee would would be $1.

Win, Lose or Draw Curiosity Makes

Two Aces and Only One Lead to Make

"My gracious, what now?" That's what Bucky Harris must be murmuring to himself, possibly with more picturesque words, as he contemplates the opening game of the baseball season only nine days off. Is it going to be Bobo Newsom or Dutch Leonard?

On the face of it the whole business seems even less important and earth-shaking than it really is. "What difference does it make?" you may ask. "There will be 153 other games and unless they are sold, traded or injured, Bobo and Dutch will get some 35 or 40 chances to pitch.'

Well, it could make a big difference in the fate of the Washington Ball Club. As far as Bobo is concerned, failing to pitch the opening game of a season, or the first game of a World Series, is the worst calamity that ean befall him and something he may never get over. Knowing this whimsical little trait in Newsom, managers usually give him his way.

On the other hand there is room for argument in behalf of Mr. Leonard, and Dutch can be a very adamant and outspoken fellow, himself. He can't talk as loudly as Bobo but sometimes he has more to say and it isn't all Pollyanna prattle, either. Whereas Bobo flits from club to club. alternately pitching brilliantly and horribly, Leonard now is something of an old-servant-in-the-family as far as the Nats are concerned. For the last four years he has been Washington's best pitcher and, for the last future Kiefer challenger. three seasons, the opening game pitcher.

Off Past Record, Leonard Is Logical Choice

This wouldn't cut any ice, as they say, with Newsom. Ballplayers invariably are looking out for themselves, reasoning their time is comparatively short and the way to get it is while the gittin's good. That sensational six-inning stretch that Bobo hurled the other day against the Phils in his first spring start probably was born of inspiration. Having missed most of the training season due to his holdout against the Tigers. Bobo very likely figured he had to look good in a hurry to clinch his proper place as the bellcow and opening game pitcher.

It could be a very ticklish decision for Harris to make. Leonard's own annual holdout this year was long and bitter. For the first time in years Griffith publicly burned a ballplayer in hot, verbal oil, even issuing a statement in which he vowed that Leonard was offered $15,000, plus a bonus based on attendance, and adding that since this was not accepted Leonard could jump in the nearest lake

Leonard finally signed. He had won 18 games for a seventh-place club and 20 games in 1939 for a sixth-place team and he thought he was entitled to all he could get. Then, hardly had he reported and whipped himself into shape, Griffith bought Newsom and reportedly gave this fellow, who only won five games last year for a better team than Washington, a $20,000 contract, complete with a bonus clause.

It's a cinch that Leonard entertained some dark thoughts after this squeeze play and will play host to some more if, on April 14, he doesn't get the assignment befitting the Nats' biggest winner. Harris, rated one of the best free-style card players in baseball, had better play his cards right

Ford Frick Keeps His Feet on the Ground

Speaking of the opening game, this may be one that President Roosevelt will miss. The tip is out that the Secret Service isn't anxious to see the Chief. Executive on hand as the curtain rises on the sport he so National League President Ford Frick, ever a realist, is quoted by Whitney Martin as saying that baseball's status probably won't change until the big Army of draftees starts to fight, if it changes at all.

"For more than a year after our entry in World War I," he said, "we had comparatively few men in action, and casualties weren't unusually heavy. But when we really went into action on a big scale—around July 4. 1918, wasn't it?—and the casualty lists mounted, what happened? Baseball lasted less than two months.

'Now so far in this war we haven't been so conscious of casualties. Sure, there have been many, particularly in the Navy. But it's when the big Army of draftees starts to fight that the war will be brought home

Frick says there is no way of telling how American people will react but that baseball is not going to try to influence policy. "The game has been criticized unjustly," he said. "There have been some nasty stories about baseball and its relation to the war effort. We feel the best thing with 59 points in which none of the is to ignore such attacks. It's odd, but the greatest figures in our defense effort, from President Roosevelt on down, are the best boosters for baseball at this time. The criticism comes from others. We're going along as best we can, and if a time comes when we have to close shop I know we can do it with a smile, and await better days." Sorta makes sense, doesn't it?

Kiefer Hustle to Tank Record

Wanted to Know How Hot Was Michigan's Touted Holiday

By LOU BLACK.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 6.-If any swimmer hopes to beat handsome Adolph Kiefer, the greatest backstroke star of all time, he'd better not arouse the Chicagoan's

A highly touted University of Michican freshman, Harold Holiday, innocently did it, and what happened should be a lesson to any Getting an idea that Holiday might be a serious threat to his long reign as the dorsal champion the 1936 Olympic and meet titleholder climaxed Saturday's closing sessions of the three-day national A. A. U. championships by twice smashing his own world record over the 150-yard distance, the second time with a sensational 1:30.5 effort, more than 2 seconds better than his 1936 standard.

Only Kiefer Not Surprised.

Several hours earlier, the 23-yearold veteran of 21 A. A. U. title triumphs had slashed 3/10 of a second off his 1:32.7 and hardly anybody expected another titantic performance from him: that is, anybody but Kiefer, himself, who, it seems, has quite a curiosity.

Even before the championships, he had been anxious to learn something about Holiday, a great schoolbey star at Mercersburg Academy last year but couldn't get very far. When Kiefer learned that Coach Matt Mann thought so much of Holiday that he was entering him as powerful Michigan's sole representative in the meet, the champion hardly could contain himself.

So it was with a great deal of curiosity that Kiefer asked Holiday about his time trials when finally they met, only to be told by the Wolverine cub that, "it's a secret."

Holliday Does All Right. Kiefer, masking his feelings, smiled and drawled, "yup, and it'll be a secret after the final is over." wasn't quite, for the husky darkhorse from Ann Arbor really is good. He trailed the champion by 4 yards in 1:332 and bad at all.

So good was Kiefer's feat that it overshadowed a stunning 51 seconds, 100-yard sprint by Bill Prew of Detroit, an aviation cadet on a furlough, which equaled the world's record held by Johnny Weismuller and Peter Fick, and virtually everything else in this spectacular meet.

Other highlights, briefly, included mighty Yale's winning the team title 30-odd other squads were even close; the crowning of 10 new champions; doubles by Kiefer and Kiyoshi Nakama, Ohio State freshman from Hawaii and the smashing of various records in six of the nine races, including a couple of relays.

The Nats have authored astonishing pitching during their condi- and given the works generally, but tioning campaign in Florida, but Wilson's performances have merited particular attention from Manager Bucky Harris because he long has suspected that Wilson is capable of becoming a winning hurler.

On that suspicion the Nats nabbed Wilson in a deal with the Boston Red Sox and thus far Washington has no reason to regret it. On the surface the Nats didn't appear to be getting any the better of a trade that exchanged Wilson and Outfielder Stan Spence for Outfielder Johnny Welaj and Pitcher Ken Chase, but spring developments indicate the Griffs may have grabbed an amazing article.

It would be on the surprising side merely if Wilson wins more games than he loses this season because nothing he accomplished last year could be indexed as terrific. He captured only 4 games and dropped 13 with the Red Sox. Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox frequently has been labeled an inept handler of pitchers, but Wilson doesn't rush to condemn Cronin for his own poor pitching last for Wilson. When Jack reported to the Nats in February, Bucky's comment was, "He's a good pitcher he'll help us." It is significant though, that Bucky has concen-

Campbell's Single Vital. Wilson became the first Washington pitcher to travel as far as eight innings yesterday at Orlando as the Nats dealt the Phils a 7-1 defeat. It may be illustrative that Jack got more impressive as he progressed. Washington mustered four runs in the first inning off the ancient Si Johnson. Bruce Campbell's single with the bases crammed delivered two runs and the Phils obligingly chipped in with a brace of errors to increase their deficit.

The Nats fashioned another run in the fourth when Bobby Estalella was safe on Shortstop Bob Bragan's fumble, took second on Frank Croucher's scratch single and scored on Wilson's single to center. Their final two runs were produced off Paul Masterson in the sixth on Campbell's double, a walk to Jake Early, Bob Repass' single and Croucher's infield out.

Anacostia High has the busiest coach and the busiest group of athletes in the city. Coach Rolland Lund is the only man in the physical education department and handles all sports. Because of Anacostia's small enrollment compared with other District schools he finds almost the same crowd of athletically minded boys turning out each season

Six lettermen are returning for what should be a better than average baseball team, and it is no coincidence that the same six lads played regularly on his football and hasket hall teams. Anacostia has no track team because there is no one to coach it.

The six Indian baseball lettermen are Johnny Penn, Elmer Leukhardt, Jim Flaherty, Jim Henry, Paul Blaine and Bob Nolte. They are remembered from the football and basket ball seasons. With the Indian diamonders, Penn is the outstanding pitcher, Leukhardt plays the outfield, shortstop, first base and even may be called on for a mite of hurling: Flaherty is the regular first sacker, Henry plays in the outfield, Blaine is on third and Nolte occupies second.

Kuhl Best of Newcomers.

Fitting in with the experienced players are several other capables. Best of the newcomers appears to be Charles Kuhl, a transfer from Roosevelt who plays the outfield. A good hitter, he is leadoff man and is a fast, smart base runner. This is the line-up Lund used against Episcopal last Saturday in the opener, but some changes may be made before the championship series. Series Scoring Mark Set as Caps Garner Calder Hockey Cup

Keating, Douglas Make 21 Points Each; Hershey Battles to-Finish

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, April 6.—The Calder Cup, emblematic of the American Hockey League championship, was the prized possession

The league championship came to the Capitals for the first time last night when they skated off the Fairgrounds Coliseum Rink with an 8-to-3 victory over the Hershey Bears. A home town crowd of 8,000 at the fifth and last game of the final playoffs didn't have much to worry about as the Caps never were on the short end of the score. The title came to the Caps, however, the hard way. They fought Springfield in five games in the first ound to gain the final playoffs and then played out the string with the Bears before deciding the issue.

Jack Keating and Les Douglas were the Caps' shock troopers in the playoff drive and became co-holders of a new scoring record for the final series. Each collected enough goals and assists for 21 points, besting the old mark of 12 points made by Billy Taylor of Pittsburgh in the 1940

The Caps took command in the first period last night, scoring three goals in 51 seconds. Keating got the first one at 8:33, John Ross poked in another at 9 and Joe Fisher tallied the third 24 seconds later. Basket Ball Hits Big-Money Class

KANSAS CITY, April 6 .- Some football fans might not suspect it, but basket ball is in the money class, too.

Redwings' Spirit Tells As Toronto Bows in Stanley Hockey

TORONTO, April 6.—Inability of on Detroit's penalties was one of weaknesses in the first game of the Stanley Cup final Saturday.

And according to the Detroit players, it wasn't even tough keeping Toronto players away from Goalie Johnny Mowers during those short-hand periods.

One Detroit player, discussing a Jimmy Orlando in the third period, said: "It was one of the softest penalties we've had all winter." Later in the third period the Wings lost Eddie Bush for a minor penalty. Again the Leafs couldn't get within range. Detroit deserved its 3-2 victory on those penaltykilling plays alone.

Toronto officials deplored the type of play with which the Leafs were beaten. Maj. Conn Smythe, former general manager of the Toronto Club, now on active service, said "We were up against the gashouse "That wasn't hockey out there; it was a fair display of hoodlumism." But those remarks couldn't sour the taste for victory for Jack Adams, the Detroit manager.

Steels Assume Lead; Few Blue Chips Gain More Than $2

By VICTOR EUBANK,

Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, April 6 .- Aided by the law of averages and a marked tapering of selling, the stock market today extended its Easter week rise by fractions to a point or more for most leaders.

The advance attained no great momentum at any time because the bidding was marked by the familiar restraints. There were signs, however, that market followers in slightly greater number were willing to chance commitments on the theory prices were due for a turn after several months of almost steady decline.

Steels supplied the necessary leadership after some wavering in early proceedings. A few of the blue chips and specialties carried gains of 2 or more points to the close. Transactions were approximately

The moves were attributed to reports that sugar supplies might be augmented by increased use of grain in place of sugar for manufacture of indus-

Rails and utilities drew interest and were up fractions to around a point on the bond market while industrials were slightly depressed near the final hour.

United States Governments improved moderately as investors were called upon to absorb the Treasury's $1,500,000,000 in .5 per cent certificates to mature November 1. Announcement of the offering was made last night in Washington. Late in the afternoon a canvass of the larger banks and bond houses disclosed the Treasury offering was attracting wide attention, especially among the large number of medium-sized corporations throughout the country.

By THOMAS R. HENRY, Star Staff Corresponden

A UNITED STATES ARMY ORD-NANCE ARSENAL, April 6.-Torrential showers of steel and brass jacketed death pour from the assembly lines all day long.

Here is produced about 10 per cent of the rifle and machine gun ammunition used by United States forces. The life of a soldier, the accuracy of the best marksman with the best weapon that can be provided for him, depend on differences as small as a thousandth of an inch in the bullets and cartridges provided for him. Making them is a fine ordnance art.

Here, in an Army Ordnance plant that looks deceptively like a peaceful college campus with co-eds strolling arm in arm along paths lined with leafless, dinosaur-like ginkho trees, the art has been preserved and improved through a quarter-century of peace. It has been kept ready for the torrential outpour today, whereas otherwise it would have been forgotten as the artisans of the first World War went to their graves.

Millions of Bullets Needed.

Now the output is many-fold greater. This is a war of small arms ammunition. Production figures cannot be revealed but the Ordnance Department colonel in charge of the mass production output cites a theoretical case.

"Assume," he says, "a force of 80,000 planes, each plane carrying eight machine guns, and each machine gun in action firing 1,000 shots a minute. How many millions of .50-caliber bullets would be needed to keep this force in action for a single minute?

Through the years of peace the Ordnance officers here have calculated on a production problem roughly comparable to this and as the need arose they were able to expand the manufacturing capacity to meet their own calculations. This arsenal is run on the business basis of any mass production industry It serves as a pilot plant for other factories which have taken up the

Customers Are "Fussiest."

"But," says the colonel, "we have the world's fussiest customers. The men who use our products are all privates and non-commissioned officers of the United States Army. any one of them has the slightest cause to kick about the materials we furnish him he should kick-and he does. He's the fellow whose life is at stake.

During the years of peace the Ordnance Department research men have been hard at work with the result that the ammunition furnished the American soldier today is by far the best the world has ever known. That provided during the last World War was crude in comparison. The details of some of the differences are, of course, military secrets. But, for one thing, the bullets provided today move a lot faster due to the quality of the propellant explosives.

In 1918 a 50-caliber machine gun bullet traveled at about 2,500 feet a second and a bullet from a Springfield about 2,700 feet a second, both muzzle velocity. Relatively, this was the horse-and-buggy age of bullet speeds, and a hundredth of a second may make a lot of difference in fire

Small Bullets Pierce Armor.

In 1918 the idea of armor-piercing small arms ammunition would have been fantastic. Here today are being manufactured machine gun bullets which can pierce armor-a development due largely to certain new metallurgical compounds, as well as more powerful propellants. Perhaps the most important ordnance development of all has been a metallurgical one-an open-hearth method of making steel which has improved the quality and at the same time cut the cost of the metal and the time of the machining process in half.

Money still means something to the Ordnance Department. They are producing today for 21/2 cents what would cost 10 cents if the methods and material used in World War One days were still in vogue. The actual cost of a round, however, is not much cheaper. Both material and labor were lower a quarter century ago.

Gun Aimed Like Hose. One of the biggest advances made at this ordnance arsenal is in tracer ammunition for airplanes. It enables "a machine gun to be aimed like a garden hose." The improvement is a closely guarded military secret. The ammunition, however, is now on a mass-production basis and is so efficient, says the colonel,

THIS ANSWERS YOUR QUESTION-

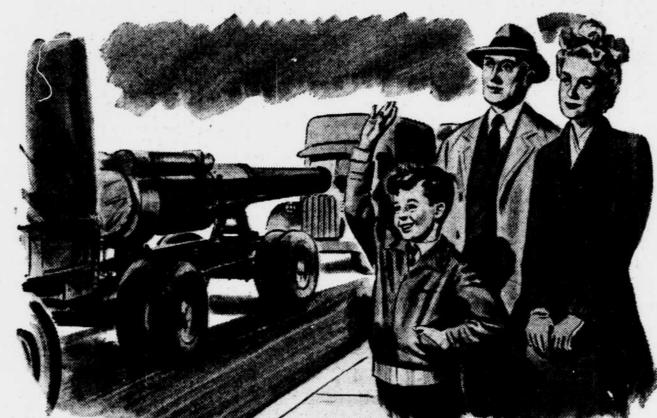

"WHAT CAN I DO TO HELP FIGHT THE WAR?"

Employees in our own company have asked us : : : people outside have inquired: "What can I do to help America fight this war?"

On this page is part of the answer. Read it carefully. There is much to be done-and much that you must do-to help bring Victory.

Each one of us must realize that right now the United Nations are fighting for their existence—and that we can lose the ultimate decision. Each one of us must realize that Victory can't be won by the armed forces alone, nor by the factories that are turning out war equipment for them. This war can be won only if every American pitches in and does his or her part. And this means you who are reading this newspaper!

You-man or woman-young or old-you can help win this war. The list below will tell you how to begin. Read it now, then tear it out and paste it up in your home or office as a constant reminder of what you can and should do!

1: ENROLL IN THE CITIZENS DEFENSE CORPS

Visit your Civilian Defense Volunteer Office. Find out which of the civilian services you are best fitted for. Sign up for training.

Men are needed for Auxiliary Police and Fire duty, Rescue and Decontamination Squads, Demolition and Clearance Crews, Fire Watchers, Air Raid Wardens, and other services. Age is not over-important in many types of work.

Women may enroll in the Drivers' Corps, the Emergency Food and Housing Corps, the Nurse's Aide Corps, the Medical Corps, and various other branches of Civilian Defense. Women, too, can be particularly useful as Air Raid Wardens.

Even boys and girls of 15 years or over may enroll as Messengers and perform valuable service in their

2. SALVAGE PRECIOUS RUBBER, METALS,

RAGS, PAPER Save paper

Save waste paper-don't burn it! Wrapping paper, cardboard cartons, paper bags, newspapers, magazines -even the letters you ordinarily throw away-are needed to make new paperboard to pack foods, airplane and tank parts, shells and ammunition. (1 ton of waste paper wraps 667,000 30-cal. bullets.)

Cast-off shirts, underwear, suits, and other clothing, burlap bags, draperies, mattresses, pillows, carpets are urgently needed in war factories.

Save scrap metals

Save your worn-out garden tools, metal beds, stoves, railings, tire chains, pots and pans, picture frames, clothes hangers, pipes and hardware, batteries and anything else made of metal. Save your toothpaste and shaving cream tubes and turn them in at any drugstore.

Save old rubber

Save discarded auto tires and tubes, rubbers, overshoes, garden hose. All are vitally needed. They can be reclaimed for important military uses-and to make new tires and tubes.

How to save

Flatten out cartons, boxes. Tie in neat bundles; keep dry and clean. Pile newspapers separately, and tie in separate bundles. Keep rags, metals, and rubber separately-in cartons or bags, if possible.

How to dispose of it Sell to a junk dealer. He will see that it goes to the right processor. (You'll find his name in the classified advertising section of your newspaper or phone book.) Or give it to the Salvation Army or other local charity.

In any case, wait till your collection is sizable before having it picked up-paper, for example, should amount to 100 lbs., or a pile five feet high.

This is official information supplied by the Office of Emergency Management.

3. SERVE THROUGH YOUR LOCAL RED CROSS

The most merciful work in the world is yours now if you want it-helping the Red Cross in its work for the armed forces and for civilian defense. There are many things you can do. Here are some of them:

Blood Donor Service

The Red Cross is building a vast reserve of blood plasma, at the request of the Army and Navy, for vitally needed transfusions. Contribute to this reserve. There is no pain and no danger involved. If you live in any one of the cities listed, call your American Red Cross Blood Donor Center today, Republic 8300, extension 212.

LOS ANGELES, Cal. MILWAUKEE, Wisc. NEW YORK, N. Y. PHILADELPHIA, Pa. PITTSBURGH, Pa. ROCHESTER, N. Y. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. ST. LOUIS, Missouri WASHINGTON, D. C.

Learn First Aid or Home Nursing

Your local chapter of the Red Cross will give you a comprehensive course in First Aid or Home Nursing. The knowledge and training you get from this course can be of inestimable aid to your community and your own family.

Join Nurse's Aide Corps

A shortage of trained nurses is threatened in this country. You can help relieve this shortage by volunteering as a Nurse's Aide—thus freeing a trained nurse for more specialized duties. You will be given a short hospital course which will qualify you to take over many of the duties now performed by registered nurses.

Volunteer For The Production Corps

Even if you can devote but a fraction of your time, the Red Cross will welcome your services in making surgical dressings and other articles required by the Army

There is a local chapter of the American Red Cross in your community. Besides those listed above, they have many other activities you may be able to take part in. Why not offer your services today?

This information is approved by the Red Cross.

4. HERE ARE OTHER WAYS YOU CAN AID

For Women:

CHILD CARE-In many localities local day nurseries for the children of defense workers, and other services for children, need volunteer help. Community health and welfare programs may also need such assistance. Call your Civilian Defense Volunteer Office and offer your aid. RECREATION-No home is too rich or too poor to help or workers in war production. This is especially important in localities near camps, naval bases, and war plants. Call the Recreation Committee of your Local Defense Council and learn what you can do.

For Men and Women:

INVENTORS - Have you a practical idea for a new war weapon or for a defense against an old one? The "National Inventors' Council", headed by several of America's greatest scientists and engineers, has been established by the Government. If you feel that your idea or plan, however untried it may be, would aid American Victory, submit it in writing to "National Inventors' Council, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C."

For Everybody:

NO GOSSIPI - Enemy sympathizers, spies, and foreign agents in America are eager for every precious bit of information they can use against us. Careless statements on any phase of war activities may cost the life of an American soldier. Unconfirmed rumors should not be passed along. Don't give currency to scare stuff. Don't gossip.

5. BUY DEFENSE STAMPS AND BONDS War costs run into billions. A big bomber costs $220,000; a fast fighter, $70,000; a light tank, $20,000. Millions of dollars more are needed for ships and guns and trucks

Your dimes, quarters, and dollars, invested in defense stamps and bonds now will make it possible for American fighting forces to out-fly, out-shoot, and outbomb the best the enemy can offer. You can't let

Buy bonds and stamps at banks, post offices, retailers, or other authorized agencies - or better still, ask your employer to do what thousands of companies have done: arrange for weekly or monthly payroll deductions. It's the convenient way. Remember, in ten years, Uncle Sam repays you $25.00 for the $18.75 you lend him today.

cruisers, or 448 medium bombers or 3,200 light tanks.

No matter what job is yours today-work harder and accomplish more than you ever have before! Whether you are an employee of an office or factory, or the person responsible for the running of a home, you can do your bit toward winning this war by being diligent and careful at any job you undertake!

> An overflow throng attending the services at Arlington heard an Episcopal prelate, father of a flyer killed in England, summon the Nation to win the war in behalf of the brotherhood of man.

Preaching to an audience of more than 10,000, that included Vice President Wallace, at exercises sponsored by the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, Bishop James M. Maxon of the Episcopal Diocese of Tennessee said the anniversary of Christ's resurrection demanded deeds rather than lip service to Christian ideals.

"Let no one feel his part in this terrible war is insignificant." he "Those in obscure places as bear witness for God and Nation by living the Christian life. On the rock of the brotherhood of man we built our homes, our institutions, our Nation, our all, and on that rock we dedicate our all.'

Scene Is Colorful One. Asserting that science and education have not saved the world, the bishop said "the only hope for unity in a war-torn world lies in the unity of the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ.'

Ideal weather marked the occasion. Swords carried by the Tempvited to join Maryland officials on lars flashed against the rising sun at the command of their leader. Music was furnished by the United States Marine Band, and enlisted men from Fort Myer served as a guard of honor within and without the amphitheater. Revielle was sounded by six Army buglers at 7 a.m., the uniformed procession began filing in at 7:15, and the services started at 7:30 o'clock.

Immediately after the inspiring service, Vice President Wallace placed a cross of Easter lilies on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Carrying the floral tribute were John D. McDuffie and Rixey F. Gray of the Orient Commandery No. 5, District of Columbia

Bishop Maxon, asserting that his son was one of eight persons killed a Wellington bomber crash in England because a mechanic failed to tighten a few screws, urged his audience to leave nothing undone in aiding our war effort . . not cause men to lose their lives for us because of our carelessness, our neglect, our failure to do what needs to be done. Taking as his text the words of St. Paul to the Corinthians, "as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly," Dr. Maxon scorned a philosophy of despair and emphasized that immortality is not a nebulous thing.

Speaking of the Knights Templar, Bishop Maxon, a member of the order, said:

end of the war. "We should all demand that Government spend no more money on matters not related to the conduct of the war than is absolutely necessary," the Senator added. "We want to save that money for the time when we are going to need it, when the war is over, 100 times more than

Other guests were the Charles Winns, who have Mrs. Waggaman Pulver's house this year; John Allen, who's here for war work; Spottswood White, and British Embassy Angus Malcolm. Mr. Winn is taking a week's vacation from his job here and he and his pretty wife are off today for New York.

Atlantic Rendezvous By Raider and Sub Related by German

Men From U-Boat Taken Aboard Kormoran Despite Rough Sea, Writer Says

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), April 6.-An unexpected meeting with a German submarine in the Atlantic was described by War Reporter Dr. Fritz List from aboard the German auxiliary cruiser Kormoran which some time ago had sunk the Australian cruiser Sydney. He wired:

"Some time ago we were lying side by side with a German heavily armored giant which likewise had done most serious harm to British shipping. And now we met some submarine. The sea was rough but nevertheless we managed to get

"The submarine commander asked us to loan him a few torpedoes since he had already fired all his ammunition and did not want to leave this good hunting ground.

"The rough sea, however, prevented this for the time being. Therefore, we sailed on for a long while, side by side, waiting for better specific situations. weather. All we could do now, although with great difficulty, was to supply the submarine comrades with

This Beteta Is Appointed was gladly accepted. In a long rubber boat they came across. The use of our swimming bath was point No. 1 on their program. Point No. 2 was a shower bath and the use of soap, followed by an inspection of the auxiliary cruiser and by a big dinner.

"But soon the weather improved and we could replenish the empty ammunition chamber of the U-boat with our torpedoes. Our two crews were able to catch a big shark. but the submarine crew was unable to wait until our cook had sharkfin soup ready which we had to eat without our comrades."

A German auxiliary might well be ranging the Atlantic with the Tirpitz, sister ship of the ill-fated Bismarck, as suggested by Dr. List.

The Tirpitz was last reported on March 20 at Trondheim, a huge steel net spread over her anchorage against a high cliff so British bombers could not get at her. This was after her sally along the Norwegian coast March 9 in an effort to cut Russia's Arctic supply line when she was unsuccessfully attacked by British torpedo planes.

If the British have knowledge of her whereabouts since March 20 they have given no hint. They have announced, however, that they were reatly strengthening their patrols and convoy protection in

Known to the British and Australians as the Steiermark and also as Raider No. 41, the Kormoran had used yet other names, flags and disguises from time to time.

Said by British naval authorities to be armed with six 5.9-inch guns, equipped with two aircraft and torpedo tubes both on deck and under water, manned by a crew of about 400 and capable of 18 knots, she was the most successful German surface raider of the war

Marine quarters in New York said December 2, when her sinking was announced, that she had been reported in the company of a German pocket battleship on some of her depredations and that it might have been one of these 10,000-ton warships with 11-inch guns which sank the Sydney instead of the Kormoran. There also was the possibility that she was in the company of submarines which may have accounted for the Sydney.

These quarters considered it doubtful that the 6,830-ton, 33-knot Sydney, armed with eight 6-inch guns and manned by a veteran crew which had participated in many a sea action from the Mediterranean to the Indian Ocean could have been sunk by the lighter-armed Kormoran.

President Reports Progress On War Work for Negroes

By the Associated Press. A letter from President Roosevelt to the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches saying that the Committee on Fair Employment Practice is "making vigorous efforts to eliminate discrimination based on race, creed, color or national origin" was made public yesterday by the National Negro Congress.

The letter, written in reply to one from the council, said the committee, appointed by a presidential order in June, had held public hearings "which have sharply brought to the notice of war contractors their obligation to eliminate evidences of discrimination in employment."

Mr. Roosevelt also said: "There has been considerable progress in opening training and working opportunities for Negroes in war industries. I look for an acceleration of this improvement as the demand for labor in our war industries increases and as the Committee on Fair Employment Practice develops its means for meeting

"At my direction the armed services have taken numerous steps to open opportunities for Negroes in the armed forces of our country and they are giving active consideration to other plans which will

'One-Man' Salvage Committee positions as member of the State Does Big D. C. Defense Job

"Jimmie" Lockhead is shown standing beside the truck in which he has collected over 27,500 pounds of salvage.

By GEORGE BEVERIDGE.

Washington's "one-man" Salvage Committee is contributing his full time to defense these days.

B. J. Lockhead was a zone warden in the Southwest area, but felt there was more he should be doing for civilian defense. The campaign for salvage, lagging in his area, interested him, and he arranged to have himself appointed assistant deputy warden in charge of salvage.

The District Salvage Committee, meanwhile, had found that more than 50 per cent of the calls for collection of salvage from the Southwest area were too small to warrant notifying the charities and junk dealers that collect only large ac-

The problem was then referred to His first problem was a means of collecting materials from homes. After conferring with defense officials of the area, he formulated a plan for the purchase of a small truck, which would pay for itself with funds realized from the sale

Since February 4, when Mr. Lockhead paid the first installment on his truck, he has collected over 27,500 pounds of materials, enough to pay two-thirds of the cost of the vehicle. When payments are completed, all funds accumulated, exvehicle, will be turned over to the Southwest Civilian Defense Com-

The majority of his collections result from the calls to Mr. Walker's office to get small amounts of sal-vage material. The number of calls varies from 5 to 25 a day. His largest problems are the "false alarms" he encounters.

"On some days," he said, "I may travel all the way to Alexandria and find only a basket of trash absolutely worthless

"But in all cases the attitude of housewives, from whom most of the calls come, is wonderful." They are all trying to help. If only they all realized more completely what materials are salvageable."

The living room of the Lockhead home, 494 G street S.W., has been converted into an office, where Mr. Lockhead keeps files of collection and funds expended.

Mr. Lockhead's only co-worker is his wife, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving. Often in the evening they travel together in quest of paper, rags and metal.

Mattingly Calls Plan "Wonderful." Judge Robert E. Mattingly, veteran jurist of the present Municipal Court, declared the bill for the consolidation "is a wonderful thing." He said it will bring the combined courts up to date in trial of all cases, as well as relieve the higher District Court of some of its burden by extending the jurisdiction of Municipal Court from a maximum of $1,000 in civil cases to $3,000. Likewise, Judge Mattingly felt it would relieve the United States Court of Appeals of Judge Mattingly to Retire. Judge Mattingly, a veteran of 22 years' service as jurist and who has been appointed by five different Presidents, intends to retire, he said yesterday, when his successor is named. Allowing for the expected reappointment of Judge Casey, this leaves a total of six other judges to be appointed, three to the Municipal Court of Appeals. as Judge Mattingly's successor. In the present Municipal Court, it was pointed out by attaches, cases generally are up to date. The jury cases there, it was said, have presented no problem by piling up like they have in Police Court. Housing Problem Created.

In the Police Court Building there is a courtroom and office space for one judge which is not being used, in addition to four courtrooms which are being utilized.

In the present Municipal Court there are seven courtrooms which have been used by five judges and additional space that could be con-verted into courtrooms. The new Municipal Court of Appeals will need only one courtroom.

Edward P. Brooke, superintendent of the District Building and a member of the Commissioners' Committee on Space for District Agencies, has looked over the buildings to determine what should be done. Mr. Brooks said final decision would rest with the Commissioners.

The new setup may mean moving the offices of T. Gillespie Walsh, chairman of the Commission on Mental Health, as well as the office of Albert F. Jordan, superintendent of insurance, both of whom occupy space on the third floor of the present Municipal Court.

Teamwork Instead of 'Dictatorship' Will Bring More Happiness in Marriage

Couples Should Endeavor To Introduce a Little Democracy in Home

Too Often the Conquered One Becomes Sullen in Slavery And Breaks for Freedom

While we are all so steamed up and ready to fight, bleed and die to establish democracy in the world, what's the matter with introducing a little democracy in the home? Nobody seems to have thought of that; or, if they did, they realized that it would precipitate such a civil war that they lacked the nerve to tackle it. Yet, when all is said, domestic freedom is just as necessary to our happiness and well-being as is political freedom. As it now exists, the average home is an autocracy, established much along the lines that Hitler used in setting up his alleged benevolent despotisms over the countries he conquered, and it is ruled with an ironhanded tyranny that even the Fuehrer has never surpassed. Although it is not romantic to speak of it, it is true that the beginning of virtually every marriage is a struggle between a husband and wife for supremacy, and to this may be attributed most of the discord in families. For the conquered seldom give in gracefully and accept the theory that they are being ruled for their own good. They grow sullen and peevish in their slavery, and if their spirits have not been entirely crushed they are likely to make a break for freedom that lands them in the divorce court.

What Price Easter Pets?

Proper Care Essential to Life Of Baby Rabbit or Duckling

en's News Editor.

With the world-wide holocaust shaking our very bones this Eastertide it would seem a minor matter what happens to those little live playthings that delight our children every Easter morning. But the fact remains that these baby animals and birds have a right to life—have a right to happiness and comfort and care and to the intelligent affection of their young owners, just as much now as they have in the more peaceful past. "Even the least of these" has only one life—and it is as precious to him as ours is to us.

Girls Can Not Scintillate For Extended Periods And Not Be Boring

who are likely to date her.

Bright, sparkling chatter is fine stuff for a party or a dance, but the girl who has no other weapon in her conversational arsenal will soon learn that you don't bag much big game with a popgun.

Emilie is the envy of all her feminine friends because her pert little tongue snaps out one cute remark after another. No matter what line a cutter-inner uses, Emilie is there with a comeback. Her babble is vastly amusing for once or twice around the floor, and as she never has the same partner for much longer than that, the dancing boys all think she's a very entertaining miss.

But a couple of them have made the mistake of spending an entire evening with Emilie, and they discovered that three hours of her chatter left them limp. Federal Prison Given Army Order to Make Aerial Bomb Parts

Director Bennett Reveals How Institutions Aid War Production

An Army ordnance contract for the manufacture of metal fins for aerial bombs has been awarded to the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., the Justice Department has announced.

Inmates at Lewisburg for many years have been making sheet metal products for use by Government agencies. Priorities are now making it difficult to secure steel for nondefense purposes, the Justice Department said, with the result that the Lewisburg plant faced a possible shut-down.

The Army contract for bomb fins makes sufficient metal available to continue operations, and production will begin as soon as necessary dies and jigs are installed.

Other Institutions Used.

Industries in other Federal penal institutions are also being converted to war production, James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, pointed out today. Under the impetus of the defense program, nearly all prison industries have stepped up production and many institutions are working two or three shifts a day turning out goods for the armed services, he said.

As evidence of the expansion, he cited the 190 per cent increase in the manufacture of beds, and increases of nearly 180 per cent in the production of heavy textiles and steel shelving during the four months ended February 28 over the output for the corresponding period last year.

The production record of the textile factory in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta provides a further illustration of the current speedup in prison industries, Mr. Bennett declared. When the full production of the mill was diverted to military uses a year ago, the inmates requested Warden Joseph W. Sanford to lengthen their work week from 36 to 48 hours. Not only was this done, but additional shifts were authorized to keep the machines running an average of 16 hours a Atlanta Prison Doubles Output. Production, as a result, has been more than doubled, and two carloads of finished textile products are being shipped out of Atlanta daily to Army and Navy posts in various parts of the country.

Federal prisons are a small but an important reservoir of skilled workers for war industries, Mr. Bennett said. Through job training programs, they are trying to fit many, of their inmates for work in war plants, following their release or parole.

One of the outstanding training programs, he pointed out, is maintained for aircraft mechanics by the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio. The Army Air Service provides the equipment, and about 300 enrollees are in training. Graduates of the course are rated junior aircraft mechanics by the Civil Service Commission for placement in factories having war contracts, or in the civilian maintenance unit of the Air Forces.

$100 Gamecocks Served To County Jail Inmates

By the Associated Press.
FREEHOLD, N. J.—Inmates of the Monmouth County jail had chicken for dinner and they said it was delicious, but owners of the birds that supplied the main course didn't feel so good.

The fowls were 35 game cocks seized when police and F. B. I. agents raided a cockfight at Long Branch. The birds were said to be valued at $100 to $150 each.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

It isn't very often that Chatterer the Red Squirrel knows fear. That is one reason that he is so often impudent and saucy. But once in a while a great fear takes possession of him, as when he knows that Shadow the Weasel is looking for him. You see, he knows that Shadow can go wherever he can go. There are very few of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows who do not know fear at some time or other, but it comes to Chatterer as seldom as to any one because he is very sure of himself and his ability to hide or run away from danger.

But now, as he clung to a little branch near the top of a tall pine tree in the Green Forest and looked down at the big, sharp teeth of Buster Bear drawing nearer and nearer, and listening to the deep, angry growls that made his hair stand on end, Chatterer was too frightened to think. If only he had kept his tongue still instead of saying hateful things to Buster Bear! If only he had known that Buster could climb a tree! If only he had chosen a tree near enough to other trees for him to jump across! But he had said hateful things; he had chosen to sit in a tree which stood quite by itself, and Buster Bear could climb. Chatterer was in the worst kind of trouble and there was no one to blame but himself. That is usually the case with those who get into trouble.

Nearer and nearer came Buster Bear and deeper and angrier sounded his voice. Chatterer gave a little frightened gasp and looked this way and looked that way. What should he do? What could he do? The ground seemed such a terrible distance below. If only he had wings like Sammy Jay! But he hadn't. "Gr-r-r-r!" growled Buster Bear "I'll teach you manners! I'll teach you to treat your betters with respect! I'll swallow you whole, that's what I'll do. Gr-r-r-r-!"

"Oh!" cried Chatterer. "Gr-r-r-r! I'll eat you all up to the last hair on your tail! growled Buster, scrambling a little

"Oh! Oh!" cried Chatterer and ran out to the very tip of the little branch to which he had been clinging. Now if Chatterer had only known it Buster Bear couldn't reach him way up there because the tree was too small at the top for such a big fellow as Buster. But Chatterer didn't think of that. He gave one more frightened look down at those big teeth, then he shut his eyes and jumped—jumped straight out for the faraway ground!

It was a long, long, long way down to the ground and it certainly looked as if such a little fellow as Chatterer must be killed by such a jump. But Chatterer had learned from Old Mother Nature that she had given him certain things to help him at just such times and one of them is the power to spread himself very flat. He did it now. He spread his arms and legs out just as far as he could and that kept him from falling as fast and as hard as he otherwise would have, because being spread out so flat that way the air held him up a little. And then there was his tail, that funny little tail he is so fond of jerking when he scolds. This helped him, too. It helped him keep his balance MOSCOW, 6:15-News in English: RKE, and keep from turning over and

Down, down, down he sailed and landed on his feet. But it was only for a second and then he was scurrying off as fast as a frightened squirrel could. Buster Bear watched him and

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES.

Standing Fast

The player who hasn't the nerve to stand fast in the pinches can be swindled out of many a game contract. West's otherwise inexplicable double was an attempt to drive North and South out of a sound game contract to a contract of four clubs which they would be allowed to play undoubled. But both North and South were old hands at the game and both stood by their guns. North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

West was disappointed at the failure of his stratagem, but was even more disappointed when he opened the king of hearts and found the queen and jack in dummy. South won with the heart ace and planned from the outset to win 12 tricks and teach West a lesson.

The first step was to lead the queen of diamonds for a finesse. West ducked, and South let the queen ride. South then rattled off all the clubs, discarding all four remaining diamonds from his hand. That left three spades, the heart queen and the diamond ace in dummy, while poor East tried to reduce down to five cards without sacrificing a trick.

East finally hit upon three spades and two hearts, but when dummy led the ace of diamonds nothing could be done. If he discarded a heart, South would discard a spade, cash the high heart and lead a spade from dummy. East finally decided to part with a spade, whereupon South discarded a heart from his own hand, following with a spade returned from dummy. East put up the ace and returned a heart, but then the spade king felled both the queen and jack, setting up South's spade ten as the 12th trick. * * * *

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

There is a word which means a great deal to the human race, and that word is "bread." It stands for food, and without food we could not Usually, however, when we speak of bread, we mean a special kind of food. It is made from flour or meal which has been moistened, kneaded and baked. The loaves we obtain are commonly from 10 to 16 inches long, but that is not the case in all countries. In France I saw loaves of bread which were 3 or 4 feet long, and only about 4 inches in diameter. No one knows when bread was first made, but its history certainly goes back many thousands of years. Remains of the things used by Swiss Lake Dwellers prove that they had

Bits of the Lake Dweller bread were burned on the outside. Because they were charrd, they lasted were first to place a "leaven" in until people in recent times dug up the dough. known. The Egyptians used to knead the bread dough with their feet. This custom we know about from pictures which have been saved through the ages. The Egyptians had certain ideas of keeping clean; it is likely that they washed their feet before they kneaded the dough.

Knowledge of the way to make rising bread spread to Southern Europe. Loaves were baked by the Greeks and Romans, also by people of Western Europe during the Middle Ages.

The Brazilians before whom he danced made him feel very good neighborly by being very enthusiastic about his and Miss Bowman's

"Of course," he says modestly, "they like dancing. They are a dancing people down there and like not merely their native dances but

Mr. Haakon's dances, which distinctly are not native, but are of his own Scandinavian-American choreographic bent, were something of a musical problem to the three orchestras of the Copacabana in Rio.

"Naturally," he says, "they didn't fit into the conventional rhythm. Latin-American orchestras run to a manana tempo. But they worked hard and loyally on our music. There was an American band which was supposed to play for us, but its leader somehow did not seem to be in the mood. So we worked mostly with the native musicians."

A club with three orchestras presents something of a problem as Haakon explains it.

"We never knew," he says, "which band we would be working with at a given program. So we had to rehearse with all three. And, considering that we had to use a larger repertory than usual—they like dancing enough to demand it-it made considerable work for us and for the musicians."

Copacabana club audiences reminded Haakon and Miss Bowman award. very much more of Washington than any others they have danced before. That was because they had a diplomatic-international character.

But Haakon would be willing to leave them, and all other audiences for a while to take a whirl at being some kind of military man.
