Rages in Midst Churchill Tells Of U. S. Flyers' Pacific Exploits

LONDON, July 2.—Prime Minister Churchill, paying a glowing tribute to the feats of United States airmen against the Japanese, asserted today that from some of their attacks only one plane in 10 returned. Referring to the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway in his war review in the House of Commons

Mr. Churchill said: "These splendid American achievements have not received the attention they deserve in these (British) islands. Superb acts of miles west of Alexandria, with devotion were performed by Amerisuccessful attacks on Japanese aircraft carriers only one aircraft returned out of 10. Former Accused of Race Bias, Latter Charged With Being Impatient

The eight nominees for the bench of the reorganized lower courts of the District were inorsed by members of the District Bar Association before a Senate subcommittee today, but opposition from other sources developed against reappointment of Judges Nathan Cayton and Walter J. Casey.

Thurman L. Dodson, a former president of the Washington Bar Association, composed of colored lawyers, protested confirmation of Judge Casey to be a member of the merged Police and Municipal Courts on the charge that he shows prejudice against colored litigants in cases where white persons are on the other side.

The opposition to the elevation of Judge Cayton from the Municipal Court to the new Municipal Court of Appeals was registered by one member of the bar, Leonard J. Ganse, who complained that the judge is impatient of technicalities, that he has sought publicity and is not always impartial.

Colored Lawyers Disagree. As the hearing progressed, howfour hours' of testimony, recessed

House Passes Measure Affecting Employes Under $2,800 Level

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate Civil Service Committee may act today on the Ramspeck bill to raise the pay of 180,000 low-bracket Government employes. The measure passed the House late yesterday by a standing vote of 109 to 7.

The action of the House in striking out proposed revision of the classification rates in the higher up to the $9,000 level, probably will expedite Senate action. Representative Rees, Republican,

Henderson Asks Restoration of OPA Budget

Will Request Senate To Vote 86 Million Refused by House

By the Associated Press. Price Administrator Henderson stocked his vest pocket with cigars today and prepared to head for the Capitol to ask the Senate for the extra $86,000,000 the House refused him—the difference, he said, between rationing and anarchy in distribution. The session of the Senate Approoriations Subcommittee considering he supply bill which carries this fiscal year's funds for the Office of Price Administration was private but Mr. Henderson made his case public in advance with a statement that "price, rent and rationing controls are all placed in jeopardy" by the $75,000,000 budget which was all the House would give him. Mr. Henderson sought $161,000,000 for operations through next June and said that this estimate "was built on careful first-hand estimates of the requirements of the office." Unless the full amount is forthcoming, he said, the OPA may have to cancel rent control in 292 of the 367 projected areas and curtail other Staff Already Overworked.

The staff "is already overworked." he added, but even existing personnel would have to be reduced. There is an inadequate staff to administer the universal price ceiling, he continued, and none at all to administer the ceiling on consumer services. Moreover the OPA "believes that it faces at least 10 additional rationing programs durng the coming 12 months."

"Unless additional staff is available," Mr. Henderson's statement declared, "there will be utter disorganization and anarchy in the distribution of scarce commodities as supplies run out.'

Even if he succeeds in convincing the Senate committee, however, any increased appropriation probably would face opposition on the Senate floor, where members recently have voiced bitter criticism of the OPA's operations, particularly the gasoline professional and scientific grades, rationing and price increase in the East. And if the Senate boosted the appropriation, there would be a struggle to induce the House to reverse its stand.

As he appeared for more funds, Mr. Henderson also spotlighted two other disputes with Congress—the price concessions to farmers and the matter of subsidies to absorb losses

Senate Group O.K.'s Pay Hike Bill After Restricting Scope

Committee Scales Down Increases House Gave Some U. S. Employes

The Senate Civil Service Committee today ordered a favorable report on the bill passed by the House yesterday to raise the pay of 180,000 Government employes in the low brackets, after further restricting the scope of the Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York, in charge of the measure, announced the committee scaled down the amount of increase in the minimum rates of pay for grades 7 and 8 of the crafts and custodial service. In grade 7 the House voted to raise the minimum rate from $1,860 to $2.040, an increase of $180. The Senate group made the increase only $60, bringing it to $1,920.

In grade 8 the House voted a $200 increase to a new minimum of $2,200. The Senate committee also cut this increase to $60, making it Senator Mead estimated the Senate bill will cost several millions less than the original estimate of $15,768,000. The House already had reduced the original estimate by at least $1,000,000. The main features of the bill are: Raises the minimum for full-time service, and $1,020 in the sub-professional, to $1,200. Raises the entrance rate for building guards from $1,200 to $1,500. Senator Mead said the report on the bill will be filed in the Senate

Mines Bureau Will Build Two Sponge Iron Plants

Dr. R. R. Sayers, Bureau of Mines director, announced today the bureau would erect two pilot plants, costing a total of $500,000, to determine the best method of producing sponge iron, needed to relieve a shortage of scrap iron for the manufacture of steel.

The plants probably will be built near large or unused iron ore deposits, depending on suitable supplies of natural gas or coal. Definite locations have not been dein steel manufacture.

Dr. Savers said that as the war proceeds, the scrap shortage may become more acute and sponge iron can take its place. Experiments have shown the feasibility of reducing iron ore directly with reformed natural gas or coal. he explained and it is with these two processes that the initial work will be concerned in the emergency Sponge iron is the product of a process whereby iron is obtained directly from ore without going through the liquid stage such as that employed to produce pig iron in a blast furnace. With natural gas or coal as the educing agent, the oxygen is taken away from the ore at a temperature below the melting point of the iron or the iron oxide.

Floor Mats Will Help Rubber Drive, Boyd Insists

William R. Boyd, jr., chairman of the Petroleum Industtry War Counil, urged Americans today to "stop looking for excuses and alibis and keep dumping on Uncle Sam's growing stockpile every rubber mat you have.'

Answering charges that rubber loor mats were useless for the rubber stockpile as an aid to the war effort, Chairman Boyd said: "Rubber mats may not be useful for retreading a tire or making a tube, but they ought to be useful for making shock absorbers for gunsand they certainly can be used to make various pieces of rubber parts for use in airplanes, submarines, tanks and other pieces of vital military equipment. "And in the making of articles of nonmilitary character rubber mats may be the means of releasing better rubber for more vital needs. "Let's give up every unnecessary rubber article we have to keep our military machine at top efficiency. "I make an earnest plea to every American to soberly realize the terrible seriousness of our rubber "Don't forget, rubber mats will ick the Japs.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Six Army Nurses Get NYA to Take Over CCC Forestry Work

Fire-Prevention Program Of Liquidated Agency Draws Her Praise

Mrs. Roosevelt deplored the liquidation of the Civilian Conservation Corps to newspaperwomen at her press conference today and expressed hope its forest fire prevention program could be incorporated into the greatly curtailed, but still existing National Youth Adminis-

Danger of fire will be even greater during the next six months, she said. "I know of no other agency which really protects our forests,' Mrs. Roosevelt continued. She said she had hoped the CCC and NYA could be combined, giving the forboys mechanical training available under NYA. On the other hand, she contended, the "CCC got outdoor training that might be good for some of the NYA

She agrees with critics of both agencies that it is now possible to get jobs in private industry, but expressed hope the NYA would leave its training shops in localities where jobs are still scarce.

"It seems to me NYA shops provide better training for the actual factory work than can be done in the type of school building now being used for these programs." she said. Mrs. Roosevelt expressed great interest in the cost of the uniforms of the new Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. Blue Ribbons for Service at Bataan

Awards Are Presented At Ceremonies at Red Cross Office

Six American nurses have become part of the heroic tradition of the Minute Men of Lexington and the soldiers of the Alamo, Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy said yesterday at ceremonies awarding blue ribbon citations to the heroines of the Philippines.

The ceremony, which took place in the Delano Garden at Red Cross national headquarters and was broadcast over a Nation-wide hookup, honored not only the six Army nurses present, but also paid tribute to the nurses still in the Philippines.

Mrs. Roosevelt flew down from New York to pay tribute to the women to whom she expressed her "deepest appreciation and gratitude" and read a message saying: "The President has asked me to convey to you his tribute and the gratitude of the Nation. Your heroism has touched him deeply, as it has all Americans. To you present today he wishes me to say, 'God bless you for service well done.' To those left behind and held by the enemy he says, "Have faith, for the day of liberation will come." Bombings Described.

The military advantages of the flight strip program are threefold and after the war is over, when aviation is expected to expand on a scale comparable to the automobile after the First World War, the auxiliary landing fields will be of inestimable value to flying. That is the day to which Commissioner MacDonald is looking forward with confidence in the workability of the program.

The No. 1 strip is large enough to accommodate the flight operations of two squadrons. Instead of basing all planes at one large airfield, the groups could be scattered over a strategic area. There would be no large hangars and repair facilities to stand as targets for enemy bombers. Only a single wide strip of concrete with rights of way that could be utilized if the runway is damaged.

More Bases Provided.

For coastal defense, the flight strips also would be helpful to the Army Air Forces in supplementing facilities of regular air bases and airports. They will furnish interceptor bases to ward off possible attacks by enemy bombers and facilitate generally in coastal air patrol. Interceptors and bombers based at the strip fields could easily "git thar furstest" if an Axis submarine is sighted off the coast or sound detectors pick up an approaching raiding squadron. Air-minded officials who think in terms of present and future development, also stressed the value of the flight strips in connection with the glider program. They are admirably suited for glider landings and take-offs, with sufficient space for at least three gliders to operate at a time.

Great New Navy Base Northern Ireland

Large Burden of Convoy Problem Declared Already Lifted

By J. WES GALLAGHER, Associated Press War Correspondent.

UNITED STATES NAVAL BASE, Londonderry, Northern Ireland, July 2.—Here in far Northern Ireland, at the European end of the Allies' bridge of ships, this great new naval base has sprung into being in a year's time to guard the precious cargoes bound across the North Atlantic for Britain and Russia.

Its existence was announced publicly for the first time today, although it was commissioned last February 5 and, according to Commodore Ross Stewart, commander of the adjoining British base, "already has lifted a great burden off the convoy problem."

Soviet Agency Says

French Sea Routes Reported Used to Send Nazi Troops to Africa

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 2.—Tass, official Soviet news agency, said yesterday that the Vichy French government has played and is playing an important part in supplying war materials Rommel in Egypt.

The Tass account, dated Geneva, Switzerland, follows: "On the strength of information received from French colonial cireles, well-informed persons declare that the Vichy government played an important part in supplying Gen. Rommel's troops with war materials and war provisions.

"French sea routes were used for secret concentration of German forces in North Africa which pre-ceded Rommel's offensive. "Transportation of troops and war materials was carried out under the guise of regular trade traffic between French and North African ports. "According to the information available, German troops crossed on French ships, mainly to Bonne and Bizerte, from where they continued to Sfax and Gabes by railway. Further, they used the regular automobile line along the Tripolitanian coast.

early in June, large numbers of German soldiers and equipment for two motorized brigades, including light and medium tanks, were brought to Sfax by way of Bizerte.

French coastal ships along the five Federal Bureau of Investigation North African coast under control of German naval representatives in Oran, Algiers, Bougie, Philippeville and other ports. "According to latest reports, German troops, armament and provisions which are to be transported to Circnaica by water are being concentrated at Sfax. "For this operation a large number of French merchant ships and a much smaller number of Italian vessels have been gathered in Sfax. Complete Possession Of Sevastopol Base Claimed by Germans

Lines Are Straightened Preparatory to Second War Phase, Nazis Say

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), July 2.-Germany claimed full possession of Sevastopol today and military authorities declared Adolf Hitler's mainland armies had completed line-straightening operations preparatory to attack in a second great phase of the war against Soviet Russia. Mobilization for an all-out offengive was implied. German attacks on the southern and central sectors of the eastern front in Russia achieved great initial successes yesterday, the high command announced today. Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, said the Sevastopol campaign and other operations on the Russian front all "were initiating a new phase of the fight."

(German dispatches to neutral Switzerland indicated that every available weapon was being utilized in drives intended to consolidate invasion positions in Russia and the Mediterranean basin before the end of 1942 and before the institution of Allied action to which the Axis press refers as "the coming siege of Europe.")

Ready to Resume Drive. Germans pictured the Crimeastudded with potential air and sea bases for thrusts at the oil-rich Caucasus-as essentially cleared of organized resistance and DNB said mainland armies of the Reich and her Allies were aligned for a resumption of the drive to the east.

Survivors of Java Sea Battle Are in Batavia. Tokio Radio Says

Some of the crew of the cruiser Houston, which disappeared along with the Australian cruiser Perth in the battle of the Java Sea, were believed today to have been picked up by the Japanese and interned in the Netherlands Indies.

A Navy statement quoted a Japanese broadcast as saying that 1,000 survivors of the two vessels had been rescued by Japanese sailors and are now in Batavia.

"There appears to be no reason for the issuance of false information on this subject by the Japanese," the Navy said.

The Navy issued this statement: "A large number of the survivors of the U. S. S. Houston and H. M. A. S. Perth missing since the battle of the Java Sea are safe in an internment camp in Batavia along with American civilians, according to Tokio broadcasts over the Japanese-controlled Batavia radio.

Broadcast Quoted. "The broadcast declared that Nipponese sailors from a destroyer picked up some of the survivors and 'paid tribute to the wonderful fight put up by those vessels." "The broadcast further asserted 'that the Japanese arranged for the transfer, from Serang to Batavia on April 13, of 1,000 prisoners, mostly Americans and Australians. The prisoners were transferred to the Dutch barracks at Batavia, where they were warm'y welcomed by hundreds of their compatriates.'

"While all Americans will understand that broadcasts originating from enemy sources cannot be regarded as authentic, there appears to be no reason for the issuance of false information on this subject by

"The Navy Department at this time has no information about men missing from the cruiser Houston other than that coming from enemy sources. It is not desired to raise false hopes, but it should be pointed out that it is probable that some Navy personnel reported as missing have been picked up by enemy ships. Data Being Gathered.

"In view of the circumstances surrounding the loss of the U.S.S. Houston, it is possible that some survivors could have been picked up by enemy ships. Information will be gathered as soon as possible through the machinery functioning for that

The prosecution claimed the defendants, including former Republican Mayor John F. Aszkler, 41, conspired to cheat and defraud the municipality by loading the city pay rolls with unnecessary workers and allowing illegal use of the city's money, material and property.

The officials resigned after receiving suspended one-year sentences and $500 fines last November, and the city was left without government for a week until Gov. Lehman appointed a Mayor-elect and council-men-elect to serve to January 1.

I hope there will be no aspersions cast on the United States shipbuilding program. We are making considerable efforts at shipbuilding ourselves. We could only increase our output at the expense of other indispensable munitions and supplies. But the United States is building now, in the present time, about four are building and I am assured she will range between 8 and 10 times as much as we are building in the calendar year 1943. Ship losses have been heavy lately and the bulk has been upon the eastern shores of America. Utmost measures have been taken to curtail those losses and I do not doubt they will be substantially reduced as the mass of escort vessels now under construction come into service and as the convoy system and other methods of defense come into full and effective operation. These measures combined with the great shipbuilding efforts of the United States and the British Empire should result in a substantial gain in tonnage at the end of 1943 over and above that we now possess. This we shall owe largely to the prodigious exertions of the Government and people of the United States who share with us, and fully and freely according to our respective needs and duties, in this as in all other parts of our war program. Medical examination, Mr. Armour said, showed death was instantaneous. The accident apparently was due to the pilot's error in judgment in trying to take off with an overloaded plane from a rough field with insufficient runway, the cable report explained. Santiago Sanchez Elia, Mr. Zuberbuhler's brother-in-law, was in the plane and escaped death when thrown far from the plane by the impact. When their bodies were returned to Buenos Aires Mr. Armour and a large crowd of the couples friends were present.

The couple was married in St. Matthews' Cathedral here. The memorial mass tomorrow will be said by the Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. Last Opening Closed On Patuxent River Dam at Triadelphia

Reservoir Expected To Receive First Billion Gallons of Water Soon

Officials of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission yesterday closed the last opening in the commission's new dam on the Patuxent River at Triadelphia, Md., preparatory to impounding the reservoir's first billion gallons of water A delegation, including members of the commission and its engineering force, watched the closing, which was described by Harry R. Hall, chief engineer, as "just a step in the construction operation." The group included Perry Boswell, chairman of the commission; J. Donald Clagett and Frank B. Smith, commission members; T. Howard Duckett, general counsel to the commission, and Harry B. Shaw, deputy chief engineer.

Mr. Hall explained that the opening had been left in order to allow the stream to flow through during construction work to avoid damage to the incomplete structure.

He added that the dam is now approximately 60 per cent complete and will be finished some time in September. When completed, it will store six billion gallons of water. "We can now let the water rise and control its flow through the dam gates," he said. "We expect to impound the first billion gallons of water in several weeks-the exact time depends on the amount of

When complete, the new dam and reservoir will augment the existing water supply of the Washington Metropolitan Area, which has suffered water shortages during past summers. A pumping station is being constructed at Laurel in confunction with the dam.

Comdr. Leo Cromwell Thyson, naval medical officer, and Lt. Col. Luther A. Brown, U. S. M. C., both of the District of Columbia, are interned at Shanghai among 111 naval and marine personnel held prisoners of war, it was announced today by the War Department. The list includes 3 officers and Comdr. Thyson, 52, was born in the District of Columbia, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harmonus George Thyson. He was graduated from Western High School here and then obtained the degrees of pharmacy and medicine from George Washington University.

Appointed in 1917. Entering the service as an assistant naval surgeon in the Naval Reserve in December, 1916, he received his regular appointment as lieutenant, junior grade, in the Medical Corps of the Navy in April, 1917. Serving at many posts and on several ships in European waters during the previous World War, he was advanced to his present rank of commander in June, 1934.

He served for 10 years at the Naval Dispensary here. Other service was on the Kentucky, the U. S. S. Henderson, the Navy Yard at Portsmouth, Va., and the Naval Hospital at Bremerton, Wash. He was assigned to Peiping, China, October 30, 1940, with the marine detachment there.

Last word received from him by his family was from Peiping, China. The Navy list, however, shows his last service before being interned was at Tientsin, China.

Deserved Pay Increase

The bill passed by the House to raise the salary scale in the lower brackets of the classified service provides some urgently needed pay increases.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate for action, fixes a minimum of $1,200 annually for subprofessional and custodial workers who now receive $1,020 and $1,080 respectively, while charwomen and head charwomen are scheduled to go from fifty and fifty-five cents hourly to sixty-five and seventy. The minimum for building guards is raised from $1,200 to $1,500, and for building mechanics, from $1,680 to $1,860.

In the face of rising living costs, the inadequacy of the present rates is evident. It has developed also in House hearings that low wages are making it impossible for the Government to retain personnel.

The House made two important changes in the bill as it came from the Civil Service Committee, denying benefits to supervisory custodial employes above the $2,800 level, and voting down a revision of the higher brackets of the Classification Act suggested by the administration to provide new entrance salary steps in order to stimulate the recruiting of executives needed in the war effort. Chairman Ramspeck of the Civil Service Committee pointed out that the salary schedules of the custodial service will be thrown out of line by the new "ceiling", and in view of the fact that these workers are a relatively low-paid group, their case no doubt will commend itself to the Senate.

In the meantime, the larger question of war wages for Federal workers generally still remains to be dealt with, the administration effort to meet the situation in part by granting overtime in the departmental service having been complicated by demands for a flat raise for all personnel. Unless an early settlement of this issue is worked out, it may be that no one will benefit.

Significant Decision

Because of its great public importance, it is to be hoped that the ruling by the United States Court of Appeals for the District that charitable institutions are liable to suits for negligence will be carried to the Supreme Court for a final determination of the issues involved.

The case before the court involved a suit by a special nurse against a local hospital for injuries received through the negligence of a student nurse. The trial jury awarded the defendant damages in the sum of $20,000 and the appellate court's ruling affirms that award.

For local hospitals operating on a charitable or quasi-charitable basis, as well as all other charitable institutions, the decision has serious imwith the prospect of losing the immunity from taxation, supposedly foes. granted by law, which they have heretofore enjoyed. As a result of the court's ruling, however, all charitable institutions will be subject to the higher operating costs that go with liability to damage suits and the necessity of carrying insurance protection against them. Whether this will compel some institutions to discontinue operations is a moot question. The court, judging from the language of its opinion, thinks not, but experience may prove otherwise. Under the old doctrine of immunity to-suit, as the court pointed out, it was entirely possible that an innocent person might be injured through the negligence of an agent of a charitable institution. Yet, with the doctrine prevailing, the injured person would have no legal redress, although his expenses and other losses might be considerable. In these circumstances, is it more equitable to require the charity to assume responsibility for its own negligence, or to pass the burden on to the innocent victim? Certainly there is no easy answer in such a case, and it must be conceded that there is a great deal to support the reasoning of the court.

It is somewhat disturbing, however, to note one passage in the opinlon which acknowledges that charita- | ber 17, 1869, was about $100,000,000. ble institutions perform a "high service" in the community, but went | erate in comparison with similar | on to say: "In days when the state | charges elsewhere, yet earnings have | was less mindful of individual need | been considerable. Embattled Malta

A Navy Department release has disclosed that our 14,000-ton airplane carrier Wasp, apparently on several occasions, took a cargo of British fighter planes through the Western Mediterranean within flying range of Malta. Taking off from the Wasp's deck, those RAF fighters reached the sorely-beset island at the height of an Axis aerial offensive and aided notably in the defense.

These operations appear to have been held several weeks ago. Unfortunately, the aerial reinforcements were not sufficient to prevent the steady grinding down of Malta by ceaseless Axis air raids which by now have almost immobilized the island for offensive purposes. It is due to this fact that Malta has been unable to serve longer as a first-class British base for airplanes and submarines, which formerly took a high toll of Axis ships making the short run across the Mediterranean from Southern Italy and Sicily to Libya. That, in turn, is why Marshal Rommel was able to build up his strength for the present drive into Egypt. This is the military justification for the seemingly reckless way in which the Axis has been sacrificing planes over Malta

The aerial siege of Malta is unique in the annals of warfare. It began just over two years ago, when Italy entered the war on Germany's side. For the first year, attacks by Italian planes were annoying but not dangerous. Then the German Luftwaffe entered the picture, stepping up the campaign until, during recent months, it has become an infernal crescendo. To date, the island has suffered nearly 2,500 air attacks, with estimates of Axis losses which rise to almost 3,000 planes. Those figures give some idea of the punishment which Malta has undergone.

Malta is a relatively small island, some 17 miles long, with an area of 95 square miles. Together with two lesser islets and some uninhabited rocks, it lies in the narrowest part of the Mediterranean, between Sicily and African Tunis. Geologically, it is the remnant of a land bridge between Europe and Africa which once cut the Mediterranean basin in two.

Malta's strategic situation, together with the fine harbor of Valetta, the island capital, has made it a grand prize for sea powers since the dawn of history. Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Greeks, Romans, Arabs, and Sicilian Normans, all held it in turn. Those varied masters have molded the blood and culture of its population, which prides itself on its distinctive make-up and speaks a tongue that, while akin to Italian, may be classed as a separate language.

Down to its current ordeal, Malta's most glorious page was its successful defense against the Turks in the Sixteenth Century by the Knights of St. John, who had moved there after their expulsion by the Turks from the Island of Rhodes. The Knights' rule over Malta was extinguished by Napoleon, who captured the island on his way to Egypt in 1798. There followed another memorable siege by the British, who finally overcame the French garrison and have held Malta

The fate of Malta is bound up with that of Egypt. If that country falls to the Axis and British sea power is broken in the Mediterranean, it is hard to see how the island can hold out indefinitely. Recent convoy losses show how difficult is the task of supplying the island with reinforcements, munitions and foodstuffs, the island not being wholly self-feeding. Yet this key island, with its heroic garrison and devoted people, already plications. This is especially true of has covered itself with imperishhospitals, for they are already faced able glory. And it still stands, battered but defiant to its encircling

Suez in Danger

The battle of Egypt is, in effect, a struggle for the possession and control of the Suez Canal. It therefore is easy to comprehend the announced determination of the British to ruin the famous artificial waterway rather than to allow it to fall to the Germans and Italians undam-

To what extent the canal could be put out of order is, however, another question. It differs from contemporary maritime shortcuts in being merely "a lockless sand ditch connecting two landlocked seas and three lakes." Running from Port Said on the north to Port Tewfik on the south, its length is 1041/2 miles, while its width varies from 260 to 445 feet. Constant dredging has been required during more than 70 years to maintain an average depth of 36 feet for the accommodation of vessels drawing 28.

Some notion of the labor involved in the creation of the "ditch" may be had from the time required for it. The work began on April 25, 1859, and never has ceased since that date. An official estimate of the money cost of the entire enterprise up to the opening of the canal on Novem-Passage fees always have been mod-the functions of private charities? | convention signed at Constantinople Probably not, but the trend clearly is on October 29, 1888, the waterway in that direction and it is a trend must "always be free and open, in time of war as in time of peace, to every vessel of commerce or of war, without distinction of flag." But from 1914 to 1918 "the defense and direction of the canal-its enormous plant and its expert personnel" were in British hands. The Turks attempted an invasion of Egypt on February 3, 1915, only to withdraw after a few hours of fighting-never to return.

Much more seriously threatened now, the "hyphen 'twixt West and East" still is a channel of vast strategic importance to the United Nations. Both British and American ships are making use of it at the present moment. Nevertheless, if Marshal Rommel's advance continues unchecked, the canal undoubtedly will have to be put out of commission. Whether or not such destruction actually would accomplish its purpose is a matter upon which opinion is divided.

Employment Peak

That the industrial expansion caused by the war effort is breaking the back of unemployment in the United States seems clearly indicated in the Department of Labor's latest estimates of non-agricultural employment. In mid-May employment reached 41,201,000, a new all-time high, and an increase of nearly 2,300,000 over May, 1941. Though the gain of 1,135,000 in manufacturing was the principal factor in the expansion, many other fields reported substantial employment during the twelve-month period, and all but two States — Michigan and Delaware showed sizable gains over the year.

As a result of shortages of materials and layoffs in plants whose facilities are being converted to the manufacture of war materials, some industries, both durable and nondurable, have reported employment reductions. Gains in war industries. however, have more than offset these declines. Overall employment has continued to expand, with an increase of 327,000 from mid-April to mid-May. For the first time since last November, automobile plants, recently converted to war production, reported an employment gain in May-heartening evidence of expanding output.

The indexes of factory employment and payrolls reached the highest levels on record in May. The increase in the manufacturing payroll index, according to the Department of Labor, was nearly four times as great as the employment expansion. This was largely due, Secretary Perkins explained, "to increased working hours, overtime premiums and wagerate increases." These figures show that labor has shared in the Nation's rising income.

Current employment gains provide full justification for drastic reductions in public relief appropriations. During the past year, more than 1,356,000 persons have been dropped from work-relief rolls. Expanding employment in war and other industries may be expected to result in a further contraction of relief programs.

Sequel to Wake

The successful raid on Wake Island by land-based American Army bombers, presumably operating from Hawaii, provides Japan with a sample of what may be expected from our growing fleet of long-range bombers in the days to come. In their devastating attack on the island outpost which Japan seized after suffering heavy losses, United States flyers apparently covered more than 2,000 miles of ocean to reach their objective—or more than 4,000 miles for the round trip. Our planes carried substantial quantities of bombs, too, for the official report told of all surface installations being leveled by the attack. The Japanese high command is not likely to overlook the implications of this long-distance air raid. It is about the same distance from Wake to Tokio as from Hawaii to Wake. Looking farther northward on the map, the distance flown by the Wake attackers approximates that between Unalaska and Japan's fortified Kuriles, or that between the Western Aleutians and some of Japan's principal cities. While it is true that planes could fly either direction over these potential air invasion routes, the United States is believed to be better supplied with long-range bombers than either Japan or Germany. And mass production of these huge four-motored planes is proceeding apace.

Japan had intended using Wake as a stepping stone eastward. Repeated blows of the sort administered by our bombers a few days ago not only would render the island useless to Japan but would speed the day when Wake once more could be listed as an asset to us and a threat to the Japanese. Perhaps our bombers already have begun to write an American sequel to the epic of Wake.

We hear from many sources that the Germans are "desperate," even though apparently riding the wave of success. It must be so; the most authoritative confirmation is that 'Marshal Rommel even used Italians as combat troops."

It seems that the word "tire" is but will come soon when the rubber ring will resume its original dressy implication.

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

A new vitamin B scale for adults, in several cases notably higher than that proposed for the American people by the National Research Council, has been reported to the American Medical Association by Dr. Roger J. Williams, director of the Biochemical Institute of the University of Texas.

Dr. Williams is one of the world's foremost experts on the chemistry of vitamins. His scale is based on the amounts actually contained in diets on which men and dogs are known to thrive, and tends to support those who oppose fortifying many natural foods with synthetic vitamins.

The so-called vitamin B complex now is known to contain at least eight distinct substances. There is no positive evidence, but only a strong suspicion, that human beings actually need four of these, the exact functions of which are unknown-biotin, inositol, pyridotin and rolic acid. The fact that Dr. Williams finds appreciable amounts of them in his good natural diet indicates that the animal system requires them.

Among his surprising findings is that both birds and insects have far better diets, so far as vitamins are concerned, than men, dogs or rats.

Insects eat various fungi and pile up ritamins in their bodies. Birds eat the insects and get the benefit. First, Dr. Williams selected a diet on which human beings are known to thrive. He paid no attention to the vitamin content of the various foods. The first food essential is fuel. One eats to live.

The body burns food, much as a furnace burns coal, oil or gas. A fair estimate of the amount of fuel necessary is that which will produce 2,500 calories of heat a day. The test diet satisfied this requirement and also provided essential minerals. It is doubtful, he says, "if any diet could be selected which a priori would be known to be superior to the one chosen."

The "calories" were supplied by whole milk, whole wheat, beef, pork, liver, potatoes, butter, eggs, fresh peas, fresh carrots and orange juice.

After establishing that it was a good diet, regardless of the amounts of vitamins it contained, Dr. Williams then applied to each item refined methods of vitamin detection developed in his laboratory at the University of Texas. The total amounts, he concluded, were about what the average human being needs.

Then he took a commercial dog food, made up without any deliberate consideration of its vitamin content, upon which dogs are known to thrive. He found that it agreed essentially with the human diet in vitamin assay.

Then he assayed the carcass of a rat which had been a healthy animal during life. This also gave about the same vitamin content.

The next step was to analyze various commercial vitamin B preparations, sold at relatively high prices, and found that they contained about the same amounts of the vitamins as his selected diet-based on the average "adult dose"—and that from seven to 10 teaspoonfuls a day of one of the best of them would be required to supply all the body's needs.

"It is apparent," Dr. Williams says, that these preparations are, in general. wholly inadequate as sources of the vitamin B complex."

The good diet yielded the following vitamin content for 2,500 calories: B-1, or thiamin, the nerve vitamin,

.6 milligrams, compared with 1.5 in the National Research Council scale. Nicotinic acid, the pellagra preventative, 40.1 milligrams, compared with a proposed daily ration of 25.

Riboflavin, preventative of a pellagralike disease, 3.67 milligrams, compared with 2.5 recommended.

Pantothenic acid, 11.2 milligrams. No estimate of this requirement was made by the national committee, but Dr. Williams holds that the amount contained in his diet is probably about what is

* * * * There is a thick "gas" of space whose molecules are universes.

This has just been reported to the National Academy of Sciences by Dr. Fritz Zwicky of the California Institute of Technology.

The sun and the solar system belong to an aggregate of stars-probably 100,-000,000,000 or more-which centers in the Milky Way and is known as the Milky Way galaxy. Separated from it by voids which light, moving at 186,000 miles a second, crosses in millions of years are other aggregates just as big. There are millions of them. Some are old and stable and some, like the Milky Way galaxy, only middle-aged.

Dr. Zwicky has subjected to a rigid mathematical analysis one group of these which can be discerned in Mount Wilson's 100-inch telescope. It is the socalled "Hydra cluster." It is moving outward over the horizon of space itself at a speed of about 3,500 miles a second.

His analysis shows, Dr. Zwicky points out in his report to the National Academy, that at the center of this system the universes made up of billions of stars are grouped very close together so that approximately a million of them are inclosed in a cubic space which would be traversed by light in any direction in about 3,000,000,000,000,000,000 years.

In the neighborhood of the Milky Way galaxy there are only about 10 in the

The amazing side of his investigation, Dr. Zwicky reports, is that these titanic systems of stars seem to follow, in their distribution, the same laws of gravitational attraction for each other as are followed by the infinitesimally minute molecules and atoms in a sphere of gas They appear to be held together, he says, by the laws of attraction first promulgated by Sir Isaac Newton

The distribution and density in a gas an abbreviation of "attire." The time sphere has been a matter of mathenatical theory. The particles are too small for any actual observation.

"The peculiar possibility," he says, "that these giant clusters whose building stones are the nebulae themselves should provide the first quantitative test for results which were derived for gaseous spheres whose elementary building stones are atoms or molecules requires thorough investigation."

People wouldn't get tired of parrots if the persons who trained them were sweet voiced.

Usually, it seems, parrot trainers have shrill, harsh voices.

The only sweet-voiced parrot we ever heard lived in the next block to the north. Evidently it had been trained by a child, or at least by some woman with a gentle voice.

It was a parrot ahead of its day, for its repertoire consisted entirely of Army

* * * * We knew another parrot which was at least 75 years old.

This one had the typical parrot voice. He was very fond of coffee, which he drank black.

Sometimes he would insist on bathing in his coffee, rather than drinking it. At times he would not bathe at all and then the owner would park him on the lawn and turn the hose on him. In those days parrots were treated as if they were made of cast iron. One time this old bird had been placed on the limb of a tree.

He grew tired of his perch, and finally began to call, "Daddy, Polly wants in there." He called everybody Daddy. This was the first time, so far as was known, that he had ever used these words.

He was very fond of watching the which he did very acceptably. His singing was always a feature of prayer meetings held at the home.

Persons who listen to the radio may have heard recently a talking African parrot, whose trainer, a Filipino, spoke in broken English while the bird used the most correct English.

Just how the bird managed to speak so well when its trainer did not was something of a mystery to listeners. This bird seemed to make its answers after careful listening and thinking. In other words, it did not speak by rote, but evidently weighed fully what had been said to it, and spoke accordingly. Parrots require large cages and are subject to a long list of maladies. The mysterious parrot disease of recent years has deterred many persons from owning more pleasure to the average bird lover than a parrot. Perhaps one has to be of a special temperament, as our correspondent

Calls for "Ruthless" Justice For Spies Arrested by F. B. I. To the Editor of The Star.

The work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation may be at an end so far as the spies captured over the week end are concerned, but-the work of justice is just begun. They will be tried and probably given 10 to 15 years in prison, then released to prey upon our country once again.

Justice certainly is dead in these our United States if these men are allowed to escape so lightly. They were ruthless in their plans to destroy our American factories, and our courts of justice should certainly be just as ruthless in their decision in regard to their fate. JOHN Q. CITIZEN.

Tells Advantages of Motorcycles In Wartime Transportation. To the Editor of The Star.

People seem so busy condemning motorcycle riders that I would like to point out a few facts in their favor. A motorcycle wears out two tires where an auto wears out four. The motorcycle tires on an average have about half the rubber, tire for tire, that the auto tires have. Nevertheless, they wear about as long as auto tires. A motorcycle gives good gas mileage In a large machine this runs from about 35 to 60 miles a gallon, while in a small machine it may run over 100 miles a gallon.

A motorcycle causes little congestion in traffic, and takes about one-fourth the parking space. Despite this, a motorcycle easily and quickly can transport two workers to and from their jobs in an economical and efficient manner. A large proportion of private autos do not carry more than two persone to and from their work, even though much stress is being laid on this point.

A motorcycle may be made from about one-sixth the amount of material required for an auto, and could be produced more rapidly.

In spite of these important advantages which motorcycles possess over autos as a means of defense transportation, no encouragement is being given motorcycle riders by Government officials. A motorcylist must pay the same gas tax, same use tax, same excise tax. same license fee, same insurance rate as an autoist, and whereas at least some of these fees are supposed to go toward highway improvement, no thought seems ever to be given by highway officials to those road hazards which are of especial danger to motorcylists, such as gravel on sharp turns or loose boards on bridges. These factors were retraffic is somewhat higher than the development work. speed limit set for autos, and while this the record for autos. In fact, if one country.

were to exclude deaths involving motorcycle police killed while in pursuit, motorcyles are not nearly as hazardous a means of transportation as is often supposed.

It seems unreasonable to penalize the motorcyclist in the present gas rationing program. I believe the proposal is to allow him about 40 per cent as much gas as is allowed a Crossley, or similar light car, which probably gives the same gas mileage. I fail to see why wearing out two extra tires should license an operator to the extra amount THEODORE PERRINE.

Argues for Appropriations

In Aid of Inventions. To the Editor of The Star.

It was very discouraging to read, in a recent issue of The Star, a release from the War Department stating that a new anti-aircraft gun is now coming into production which is capable of shooting to a height of 30,000 feet and then to read an article in Reader's Digest stating that the German's are now using anti-aircraft guns capable of reaching 35,000

When this is coupled with the news that Germany's all-purpose 88-millimeter gun was largely responsible for their recent success in Libya, the inevitable conclusion seems to be that neither the United States nor Great Britain is spending enough money on research and the development of new weapons Congress has appropriated $200,000. 000,000 for defense and war but only an infinitessimal fraction of that sum for research and development. It refused to appropriate the sum asked for aeronautical research in spite of Col. Lindbergh's warning that Germany was spending many times that sum. Far from encouraging invention the New Deal has banished the Patent Office to Richmond and the bright boys working under Thurman Arnold are doing their best to discredit the entire patent system before the Senate Patents Committee. At the present time inventors are sending hundreds of inventions a day to the National Inventor's Council, composed of inventors who are donating their time and whose overworked staff obviously is incapable of thoroughly considering the merits of the inventions submitted. Apparently Congress considers that the work done by this agency is so unnecessary that it does not require an appropriation.

Both the Navy and the Army have billions to spend on the manufacture of outmoded equipment but practically nothing to spend on the development of new ideas and weapons. The so-called "Sea Otter" boat, which originally was turned down by the Navy because not submitted in perfect form, is only one among thousands of workable ideas which have been refused adequate consideration.

Most individual inventors do not have sponsible for 50 per cent of the deaths sufficient time or funds completely to due to motorcycle accidents in the Dis- develop their ideas or to build perfect trict in 1940. New Setup For Strategy Held Needed

High Command to Avoid 'Civilian' Decisions Urged

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

The disquieting news from Egypt has made an impression here that is difficult to describe. For Washington has had and still has a certain complacency about the war which takes bad news as a temporary currence to be followed in evitably by good news from somewhere.

There is a curious opportunism about the attitude here happening David Lawrence. abroad. One reason, of course, is that criticism of the President is almost never expressed because the whole tendency on the part of his political supporters is to cry out against critics as unpatriotic or sixth columnists. Hence the whole war effort suffers from a lack of frankness with the public, which does not mean necessarily that the war is going to be lost but that it will be unduly prolonged and that it will be costlier in lives than it should be.

Along with the hush-hush policy is a tendency to hold as unpatriotic those who criticize the British. Yet it is clear that there is something vitally wrong with the British high command and the whole organizing side of the war effort as operated from London.

Congress Passive.

Congress, which might be expected to represent the people of the United States in matters vitally affecting their interest, has been strangely acquiescent and passive this week. Here and there a few members have spoken out against the failures reflected in the war news but no group has had the temerity to ask questions concerning the general management of the war.

Such an interrogation doubtless would be frowned on by the administration as an effort to impair the unity of the country or be obscured by some other excuse that manages every now and then to keep the public from knowing the true responsibility for the mistakes made. All of the truth about Pearl Harbor has hever been disclosed and the reason given is that it would help the enemy. But it would appear that the public criticism of what happened at Pearl Harbor did result in some worth-while changes in the high command of our Army and Navy, insofar as joint operations are concerned.

Inquiry Might Aid. A similar inquiry into the management of the war, even if not granted now, might if merely discussed in Congress bring the responsible officials of both the British and American governments to the point where they might consider seriously a shake-up of another nature, namely, in the over-all management by Britain and America of the whole war strategy.

Few members of Congress know anything about what is happening behind the military scenes. Prime Minister Churchill gave them some reassuring words on Capitol Hill last week about Egypt, but the news from the desert front since seems not to have justified his optimism.

In 1918, we had a Supreme War Council sitting in Paris. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, former chief of staff, was our representative. He reported directly to President Wilson and not to either the chief of staff or the Secretary of War. When President Wilson saw the effects of separate commands and conflicts in viewpoint in the front line, he insisted that one man be made generalissimo and that Americans, British and French take orders from

Representative Casey of Massachusetts Seeks Senate Seat Held by Lodge

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Representative Casey, Democrat, of Massachusetts has cast his hat in the ring for his party's nomination to run against Senator Lodge, Republican incumbent, in the election next November. Mr. Casey's decision to make a bid for the Senate was reached after he had visited Massachusetts and conferred with Democratic leaders there and more recently in Congress.

If Mr. Casey wins the nomination in the September 15 primary, a real race for the Senate seat is in prospect. Attractive personally and almost as youthful as Senator Lodge, Mr. Casey not only makes a good speech, but has a reputation as a campaigner. He is 43 years old and a veteran of the World War, having served as a private. He was then only 20 years old. He was elected to the House eight years ago.

Senator Lodge is in active service, a major in the armored corps. Until recently he was an observer in Libya and is believed to be in Egypt now. The Senator has announced his candidacy for renomination

Mr. Casey's announcement follows the recent declaration by House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts that he had no intention of seeking the Senate seat, and that he would continue in his present important post in the House.

Isolationism Will Be Issue.

Several other Democrats in Massachusetts have been mentioned as possible contenders for the senatorial nomination, including Representative Eliot, an ardent New Dealer whose district was abolished in the redistricting of the State following the last census. Another is Police Commissioner Timilty of Boston. Massachusetts Democrats in Washington are predicting, however, that Mr. Casev will be a hard man to defeat in the primary. They go further and say that he will be able to defeat Senator Lodge in November. The last, however, is denied flatly by Republicans, who point to Senator Lodge's victory in 1936 by a wide margin over former Gov. Curley, while President Roosevelt was carrying the State. At that time, however, Mr. Curley was decidedly unpopular with a large segment of his own party in Massachusetts.

In making his campaign, should he be nominated, Mr. Cassey will lay emphasis on the fact that Senator Lodge opposed some of the national defense measures proposed by the President before December 7. He will charge that the Senator has been an isolationist—as his grandfather, also Senator Lodge, was before him when the League of Nations fight was waged in the Senate. He will insist that the selection of Senators at this time is of unusual importance, because that chamber will have an important part to play when the war ends, as any peace treaty must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate to become effective. Mr. Casey halls from Clinton, home town of Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts. A graduate of Boston University law school, he was admitted to practice in 1920.

In making the announcement of his candidacy, Mr. Casey pointed out that the redistricting had made his district, the third, more Democratic than ever, and that no candidate. Democrat or Republican, had appeared so far to challenge him for renomination. "Political safety," Mr. Casey said, "is not the consideration this year. Neither is usual partisan politics."

Then he used the argument which all Democratic candidates for congressional election are making this year: "Our Commander in Chief, leading the battle to preserve democracy, must receive wholehearted support, both in words and deeds. The war must be won. The war can be won or lost on all fronts in the Congress of the United States.

"I have consistently supported all of the measures which Pearl Harbor has shown us were necessary for our country's defense and welfare. A Senator who is elected next November will serve for a term of six years. The Senate during that period will or will not courageously and intelligently act for the vigorous and successful prosecution of the war and the achievement of complete victory. During that time the war must be won and the peace must be won. The Senate will or will not take a patriotic and far-sighted view to insure that the death and agony of war will never again visit American homes.'

Willkie Opposes Isolationism. The late Henry Cabot Lodge, who represented his State in the Senate for many years, was a leader in the senatorial fight waged in 1919 against the Covenant of the League of Nations to which President Woodrow Wilson at that time sought the adherence of the United States, and also against the ratification of the Versailles treaty. Both were defeated in the Senate and this country later made a separate peace with Germany. The Republican party from that time adopted the isolationist policy, for many years.

It is to wean the GOP permanently away from isolationism that Wendell L. Willkie, the party standard bearer in 1940, is now hard at work. He has already achieved a measure of success. The Republican National Committee, at his insistence and that of his friends, adopted a resolution at its recent Chicago meeting putting the party on record as favoring co-operation by the United States with other nations to maintain peace after

The Japanese say they have closed the gap between their eastern and way. As the Chinese have admitted that this gap was less than 100 miles wide, it seems very possible that for once the Japanese are telling the truth and that they may have whole of this railway in their possession. The Chinese say that extensive demolitions have been carried out along the line, particularly blowing up of bridges and culverts, destruction of switches and similar measures. It would, however be unwise to assume too readily that these steps will prevent Japanese use of the line for an extended period. In Malaya and in Burma the Japanese have shown an astonishing facility in repairing demoliporary expedients to take the place the Chinese commander than a of permanent structures.

The importance of this railway lies in the fact that it gives the Japanese a direct line from Shanghai through Hangchow to Nanchang. The latter town has been occupied for some time by the Japanese. Formerly it could be reached only by a branch-line railway running down from the Yangtze River.

Its garrison was therefore more or less isolated and was subject to attack by the Chinese from at least three directions. Because of difficulties of transport, the Japanese never were able to develop a serious offensive based on Nanchang. However, the opening of a direct rail connection with Shanghai, a main port of entry for troops and supplies from Japan, will convert Nanchang into a formidable advance base for operations directed westward along the railway of Changsha.

Peril to Changsha Grows. Changsha is the real objective of China. It is a railway junction of from Shanghai through Nanchang joins the main north-south trunk line of the Peiping-Hankow-Canton

The Japanese have made four Changsha, all of which have failed. These operations have been based at or near Hankow and have pressed southward along the mainline railway.

The Japanese are now in a position to renew these efforts from the direction of Hankow, and to accompany them by an equally powerful offensive from the east based on of vital importance. Nanchang. The peril to Changsha (Copyright, 1942, New York Tribune, Inc.)

A third direction of advance is western forces converging along the possible from the south, but here line of the Chekiang-Kiangsi Rail- the Japanese have not been able to make a great deal of progress and are hardly outside the suburbs of

It is hardly worth while to recapitulate the reasons why it is vitally important to the cause of the United Nations that the main remaining Chinese railways, and especially the vital center of Changsha, should not fall into the hands of the Japanese.

To put it in a single sentence, we are striking at Japanese sea power and sea communications and we cannot afford to allow them to substitute land communications in the meanwhile. In order to defend Changsha, the Chinese need munitions and equipment of all sortsfar more than we can send them. Strong Air Force Needed.

But there is one need which we might be able to fill, at least partially. In the defense of a central position such as Changsha, with a possibility of attack from three widely separated directions tion damage or in contriving tem- nothing could be of greater value to highly mobile reserve possessing a wide radius of action and great striking power. Considering the distances involved, the only force that could fill this requirement would be a strong air force.

We ought to recognize that there are great difficulties in getting air forces into China and maintaining them when they are there. The problems of supply and maintenance are very great; all gasoline, oil, bombs and spare parts must be brought in from outside. But the Flying Tigers have already demonstrated what a combination of American and Chinese ingenuity and resourcefulness can do with limited facilities.

If the difficulties cannot be wholly overcome, they can at least be partially overcome. Air transport from India can bring in some things; submarines can land supplies on the coast; a trickle of supply can be obtained by the long weary route from Russia; Chinese arsenals can learn to manufacture many little odds and the Japanese operations in South ends that now have to be brought from abroad. Planes and pilots can great importance. Here the line be flown in, as well as American ground personnel.

It must not be forgotten that the Japanese air force is growing weaker while its responsibilities are increasing. It is now widely scattered. separate attempts to capture Everywhere that pressure is exerted on it, Japanese planes and pilots must go to resist that pressure.

All of these considerations affect the situation in South China, where the need for a strong Chinese-American air force is acute. It is the one form of direct military support which we do have a chance to afford the Chinese Army, and it is

British Held Unlikely to Stop Rommel's Forces; Optimism Based on Fatique of Nazis Scouted

BY CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Although the British are making every effort to maintain themselves in Egypt, most military observers in Washington doubt that they will be able to stop the Axis forces for long.

The fact that the troops under Field Marshall Erwin Rommel have advanced at unbelievable speed indicates that the remnants of the British 8th Army are hardly in position to offer effective resistance. Nor have the units of the 9th Army, which were thrown into action Tuesday to relieve the weary 8th Army, been able to check the Nazi march toward Alexandria.

/ It is true that only advance units have been in contact with Marshal Rommel's forces, which by all the rules should be as worn out as the 8th Army. The rest of the army is awaiting reinforcements of Free French from Syria before engaging the enemy in a last ditch battle. But in the preliminary engagement success has not been on the side of the British

Reports from Egypt conflict. There is the inevitable note of official optimism, based mainly on the hope that Marshal Rommel cannot continue his rapid march much longer, and that he will soon be halted by the fatigue of his own men

For the time being Marshal Rommel's communication lines are good, but it is hoped in official circles that the British fleet in the Mediterranean, backed by American-British air forces, will be in position to interfere successfully with the transports being sent to him from Italy.

Wasp's Arrival Encouraging.

The Nazis wasted no time in sending him supplies from the very first day of the battle. British destroyers, light cruisers and submarines in the Mediterranean ought to be able to put a serious crimp in the line of Nazi supply ships which is flowing across The arrival of the U.S.S. Wasp, one of our new plane carriers, with several loads of planes at the British air forces on that island-fortress. In the last few gallantly and desperately there, but it was only defensive action. These rather slim considerations-Nazi fatigue and hopes to intercept Nazi reinforcementsare the basic reasons for the optimism that remains in British communiques.

It is not known whether the Nazis, taking advantage of the confusion which rules British ranks in Egypt, have been able to transport fresh troops in recent days to relieve the soldiers of the Afrika Korps, who have been marching and fighting for more than a week, virtually without interruption.

Bombings of Alexandria and other centers have caused panic among the populations, which are not used to active warfare. It is reported that in Alexandria, where fifth columnists have been particularly active, panic was indescribable after the first few Native Sabotage Feared.

The Egyptian and Levantine population of that port, one of the largest in the world, has been thoroughly frightened by rumors spread by Hitler's and Mussolini's agents. The rumors were backed by Axis raids and augmented by orders to evacuate individuals and some of the services established there.

There seems to be less confusion on the surface, at least, in Cairo. But this apparent calm may be short-lived. Preparations are reported to have been made to evacuate some foreigners from that city, too.

It is hoped that the Egyptian Army, which has not gone into action yet because Egypt has not declared war, will be able to preserve law and order and deal effectively with organized fifth columnists who are playing an active role in support of the invaders.

Some observers who are familiar with Egypt fear that the natives may interfere with British supply lines. This problem ordinarily would not be difficult to handle. But considering that the British already are shortbehind the front could be devastating.

Without using too much imaginaion we can reconstruct the effect on the campus of the news that the valedictorian of the 1942 graduating class, the salutatorian, the class prophet and five others were in the hands of the FBI and behind bars, The president of the school was the first to get the news.

"It cannot be true," he cried to the dean. "They were such good boys. There never was a slicker rascal on this campus than Edward' John Kerling, and, as for Herbert Haupt-what a fine lad! Remember how he got his scholarship to this school-by blowing up an orphans' home in Prague."

"He was a natural-born second-story worker. never will forget the time he played a joke on me, poisoning my dog by putting arsenic in his hamburger. He was a sly one, all right." News of the arrest of the graduates was not announced to the freshman class, but one of its members bribed the news from an upper classman, and the frosh were so depressed that they canceled their annual train-wrecking contest with the sophomores.

Old grads around town (working through the alumni association) immediately started a clamor for s change in administration and demanded the firing of the professor in charge of submarine landings. They staged an impromptu parade, the feature of which was the burnet ing in effigy of J. Edgar Hoover. Even the co-eds took a hand. They were cheered by Attorney General Biddle's statement that a "number of complicated legal factors are involved." The dean is said to have remarked that "the United States is such a nice, understanding nation, it will probably punish the men by taking us off the accredited list of colleges and let it go at that."

We think the dean is wrong. This time we believe the Government will crack down, will give the Nazi agents a dose of what they had planned to give our workers under the cover of night.

We trust the legal problems involved in their punishment will be boiled down to which is the legal manner of getting rid of themshooting or hanging.

Willkie Refuses to Run For Governor of New York

NEW YORK, July 2.-Wendell L Willkie has joined James A. Farley in eliminating himself as an entry in the New York governorship race, leaving Republican Thomas E. Dewey and Democrat John J. Bennett, jr., as chief contenders for the nominations.

Mr. Willkie's declaration yesterday that he was not a candidate and had "no intention of becoming one" served to strengthen Mr. Dewey's chances, although Mr. Willkie's formal statement was openly critical of the former district attorney's political views. The powerful American Labor party, which held the balance of power in the last State election and enabled Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to defeat Mr. Dewey, meanwhile complicated the Democratic picture when its State Executive Committee affirmed a resolution favoring either Lt. Gov. Charles Poletti or Senator Meade for Governor and opposing Mr. Bennett's candidacy. Mr. Farley removed himself Monday from among the Democratic dark horses and championed Mr. Bennett, who, like Mr. Dewey, has been pledged the support of a maority of delegates to the State con-

Testifying before the House Interstate Commerce Committee, Mr. Craven voiced many opinions directly in conflict with those given previously during three weeks of hearings by FCC Chairman James L. Fly, who generally had opposed the legislation.

Mr. Craven upheld the radio networks, expressed the view that newspapers should not be barred from operating radio stations and asserting that "in recent years the commission has operated under a plan of organization which in my opinion is basically unsound."

Urges Two Divisions. Urging separation of the sevenman commission into two divisions cause of a flaming Army transport as proposed by the pending legislation, Mr. Craven declared that "too yesterday. many matters which should have received careful attention have received too little attention or none at

The networks, he said, should be permitted to "work out their own economic destiny without interference by the commission." (Mr. Craven dissented from the recent FCC network regulations.) Combined Operations. He said it was "difficult to understand" why combined operations of radio stations and newspapers should be prohibited and warned that such a prohibition might result in "destruction of either or both the newspaper and the radio service.

The licensing of networks, he said, would "inevitably limit rather than encourage competition between networks." Since the networks "are in the last analysis program production and sales agencies," Mr. Craven continued, the power to license them would make the commission "become both their economic mentor and the judge of the propriety of their program material." the sick memories of the other war

On a Sunday morning, without warning, the peaceful little town is occupied and the defenders quickly defeated. The storekeeper, George Corell, has prepared the way for the invaders. He saw to it that the local troops—all 12 of them—were away in the hills. When they came hurrying back, six were killed and three wounded. After it is all over, old Mayor Orden receives Col. Lanser, commanding officer of the invaders. The colonel states that they want coal from the local mine and that they wish the townspeople to continue to work the mine. He urces the Mayor to co-operate and to order the people to submit, saying that resistance will mean bloodshed. The Mayor replies that the people must decide for themselves what they will do and that his attitude will be determined by theirs. Meanwhile, an indication of the town's attitude is given when the Mayor's cook throws boiling water on the colonel's guard of soldiers on the back porch.

CHAPTER IV.

Upstairs in the little palace of the Mayor the staff of Col. Lanser made its headquarters. There were five of them besides the colonel. There was Maj. Hunter, a haunted France 20 years before and he tried little man of figures, a little man not to think what he knew-that who, being a dependable unit, con- war is treachery and hatred, the sidered all other men either as de- muddling of incompetent generals. pendable units or as unfit to live. Maj. Hunter was an engineer and, and tiredness, until at last it is except in case of war, no one would over and nothing has changed have thought of giving him command of men. For Maj. Men might vary in height or weight or color, just as 6 is different from 8, but there was little other difference. He had been married several times and he did not know why his wi es became very nervous before they left him.

Capt. Bentick was a family man, a lover of dogs and pink children and Christmas. He was too old to be a captain, but a curious lack of ambition had kept him in that rank. Before the war he had admired the British country gentleman very much, wore English clothes, kept English dogs, smoked in an English pipe a special pipe mixture sent him from London and subscribed to those country magazines which extol gardening and continually argue about the relative merits of English and Gordon setters. Capt. Bentick spent all his holidays in Sussex and liked to be mistaken for an Englishman in Budapest or Paris.

The war changed all that outwardly, but he had sucked on a pipe too long, had carried a stick too long to give them up suddenly. Once, five years before, he had written a letter to the Times about grass dying in the Midlands and had signed it Edmund Twitchell, Esq., and, furthermore, the Times had printed it.

Contrasting Captains.

If Capt. Bentick was too old to be a captain, Capt. Loft was too young. Capt. Loft was as much a captain as one can imagine. He lived and breathed his captaincy. He had no unmilitary movements. A driving ambition forced him up through the grades. He rose like cream to the top of milk. He clicked his heels as perfectly as a dancer does. He knew every kind of military courtesy and insisted on using it all. Generals were afraid of him because he knew more about the de portment of a soldier than they did.

Capt. Loft thought and believed that a soldier is the highest development of animal life. If he considered God at all, he thought of Him as an old and honored general, retired and gray, living among remembered battles and putting wreaths on the graves of his lieutenants several times a year. Capt. Loft believed that all women fall in love with a uniform and he did not see how it could be otherwise. In the normal course of events he would be a brigadier general at 45 and have his picture in the illustrated papers, flanked by tall, pale, masculine women wearing lacy pic-imaginary dark women. He longed for death on the pattlefield, with weeping parents in the background, and the leader, brave but sad in the presence of the dying youth. He imagined his death very often, lighted by a fair setting sun which glinted on broken military equipment, his men standing silently around him, with heads sunk low, as View. These were the men of the staff, each one playing war as children play "Run, Sheep, Run." Maj. Hunter thought of war as an arithmetical job to be done so he could get back to his fireplace; Capt. Loft as the proper career of a properly brought-up young man, and Lts. Prackle and Tonder as a dream-like thing in which nothing was very real. The Arsenal in the Clover

THERE WAS THE PICTURE, three months ago. Strewn around millions of American farms was a wealth of scrap metal. From the steel mills came a constant cry for scrap. But the farm scrap didn't come in. It was scattered far and wide, hard to find, expensive to gather. No system existed to collect it.

So we went to the 8,500 Harvester dealers in rural communities, asking them to help get in the farm scrap. The whole field organization of our company tackled the job. Promotional and publicity campaigns were launched to carry the story to the farmers.

Civic committees were organized to help. Dealers hauled scrap in their trucks. They persuaded their farmer friends to bring along a load whenever they came to town. They provided a place to dump scrap. When a good big pile was ready, the nearest scrap dealer was called in to buy. The steel mills got that scrap. They will continue to get it!

RESULT: More than 1,350,000 tons of scrap iron and steel collected from the fields and barn yards of American farms and farm communities. And more coming every day.

That's 35,000 railroad carloads of scrap. Melted down, it's enough to build 30,000 medium tanks for the Army. Or 100 cargo vessels for the battle of ocean transport.

The farmers and businessmen of rural America have revealed an iron mine in the fence corner—an arsenal in the clover.

This job is being done as volunteer war work-done by men who ask no reward, done not only by Harvester dealers and personnel but by dealers of competing companies, by local merchants and organizations. Anyone who wants to help is welcome. And they do want to help.

Nobody in the farm equipment industry makes a dime on scrap. We don't. The farm equipment dealers don't. All money from scrap sales goes to the farmers who bring in the scrap. The work of organizing, collecting and marketing is free.

Now this plan of farm-scrap collection is being carried forward by the entire industry through the Farm Equipment Institute and dealers' associations, with everybody boosting the scrap along. It is closely coordinated with the salvage plans of the W. P. B. and the American Industries Salvage Committee.

THE POINT IS: The producers of America, men who know how to do things-farmers, operators of small businesses, representatives of large business-working together, are doing another good job to help win the war. They are licking one more problem that some said was difficult and some said was impossible.

In Tokyo, in Berlin and Rome, they're finding out what it means to war with a nation where people, like motors, are self-starting.

Old White House Set Used Again for 'Glory'

The southeast corner, upstairs room of the White House, which served as the President's study until the days of McKinley, was reproduced today for Paramount's "Great Without Glory," story of Dr. William Morton, the Boston dentist who discovered anaesthesia.

With Joel McCrea as Morton, Porter Hall enacts President Franklin Pierce, who withheld his signature from a congressional bill authorizing a $100,000 award to Morton for his discovery, until the latter should have established his claims and patents by bringing a test suit against the Navy. The suit turned out disastrously for Morton when it was ruled that his discovery was outside the patent realm.

The fireplace and mantelpiece in this White House room had been previously in "Wells Fargo," in which McCrea, as Ramsav MacKay, outlined the possibilities of the overland mail to Frank McGlynn, as Abraham Lincoln. Return of Enrollees To Homes Set as First CCC Liquidation Task

About 60,000 Involved; More Than 10,000 to Lose Jobs in Agency

Return of approximately 60,000 Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees to their homes is the first task in the corps' liquidation, Director James J. McEntee said today.

There are about 75 administrative employes in Washington who will lose their jobs. Many of these will be retained to assist the liquidation process, Mr. McEntee said. Approximately $100,000,000 worth of equipment is in process of being transferred or will be transferred to the War Department. This equipment was used at 360 camps and stored in 75 warehouses throughout the Nation.

Some 10,700 skilled workers, foremen and administrative personnel with Civil Service Commission ratings will be absorbed by other agencies, while a large number with technical training may find jobs in war industries, it was said.

Under War Department supervision, Mr. McEntee will be in charge of the liquidation of an agency which had its beginning in 1933. By congressional mandate, the time for liquidation is not to exceed 12

It was pointed out that 158 of the 360 camps functioning are located in the national forests and parks, as a nucleus of the Nation's forestprotection system, and that some other Government agency must assume that task.

The Arlington policemen include Frank Palmer, Leroy Barber, Walter Kadel and G. C. Harrell, new men on the force who replace A. E. Bay-liss, M. Serafin, William Fawver and W. W. Kelley. The latter four have joined the United States Coast Guard. Another officer, T. W. Frederick, also joined the Coast Guard,

Service Grid Teams May Steal Fall Show

Joe McCarthy, who hasn't had anything to worry about for years, now is having troubles of all kinds . . . First, his health; secondly, the slump of his Yankees, and thirdly, Bill Dickey's and Joe Gordon's insistance on flying planes . . . Both stars are avid air fans and both can take up and bring back small planes . . . And they fly at every opportunity.

Add vital findings: When a horseman is lifted by his mount over a 7-foot jump, as happened three times by as many different riders the other day at Meadowbrook, he goes as high in the air as Cornelius Warmerdam, the only 15-foot pole vaulter in the world . . . Figure it out for Joseph Cronin replaced his star yourself, remembering also that when Warmerdam comes down it's in a sawdust pit and there is no 1,400-pound horse to roll on top of him.

With the Army organizing two football teams and many camp elevens, and with the Navy looking forward to a top-notcher from the by beating the Chicago White Sox, Great Lakes Training Station and to other smaller outfits, it's almost a 7-2, on the seven-hit hurling of mortal cinch that service football will steal much of the play from the Lefty Al Smith. The Tribe scored colleges next fall . . . It happened in 1918, you know, when the United States Marine Corps defeated Camp Lewis in the Rose Bowl, 19-7, and ing Oral Grove before he could get in 1919, when the Naval Training Station whitewashed the Marine Barracks, 17-0, in the same bowl classic.

Nats Get 'Break' With Red Sox Invading

When the Nats come home to open a "stand" on Friday it may of Elden Auker, who thus became be an unprecedented appearance in at least one way. . . . They will play five games in 45 hours, tackling the Athletics tomorrow night in a single game, meeting them twice on Saturday, July 4, and finishing the stay with a double-header against the Red Sox on Sunday. . . . The worst calamity that could befall the Washington Ball Club would be a rainy July 5, for although the Griffmen are pretty sad their twin engagements with the Bostons, hottest club in the league, is almost certain St. Louis Cardinals shutting out the Add saddest-sights-you-ever-saw: Clark Griffith, biting his lips, reading the ticker tape scores when the Nats are on the road and blowing up in the last inning or so..

After carefully reading the selective service occupational questionnaire we are in a typically confused state of mind. . . . "For professional and scientific workers: Mark 'X' before any occupation below in which you have had experience, etc." There are 35, ranging from "accountant" to "veterinarian," and we don't belong anywhere. . . . There are 318 "X" boxes in the "list of selected occupations," and still no spot, and so we can see ourself cutting the eyes out of those spuds. . . . Which reminds us, whatever happened to Griff's plan to feed raw carrots to his hitters (laughter), so they could see better at night?

Third Place Struggle Official Scores In A. A. Really Hot; K. C. Holds Lead

A three-way race for third place in the American Association soon may engulf Milwaukee and turn the fight into a four-team second place scramble.

The situation went unchanged last night as both second place Milwaukee and third place Minneapolis split even in double headers. The standing of the four teams:

Portsmouth's Cubs, who have been setting a fast pace in the Piedmont League, were smarting from their first licking in seven games today. The Cubs, who lost a half game of their five-game lead over the idle Greensboro Red Sox, bowed last

For Time After Churchill Speech

Probability of Long Conflict Brings Short Market Rally

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, July 2 .- A brief miniature war boom steamed up specialized stocks in today's market as the pessimistic Churchill speech and other developments stressed the probability of a long conflict.

The list was somewhat hesitant at the start but rails, motors and steels began to move up when the British Prime Minister's address to the House of Commons tended to dim the near-peace talk which had been going the rounds in the past month or so. Russian and Egyptian news was cloudy

Activity speeded up for a while as marks were reduced in many instances and scattered minus signs were in evidence. Dealings dwindled toward the last, but transfers for the full proceedings approximated 350,000 shares, one of the largest turnovers since mid-June. Better share performers included Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard Oil (N. J.), Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, General Electric and United States Gypsum.

American Can revived after an initial stumble. Allied Chemical dropped 2 points on the opening sale.

Bond Prices Uneven. The Bond Market continued in an irregular price pattern with small gains and losses the General rule near the final hour. Heavy demand for several bonds of the New Haven Railroad, including the convertible 6s and General 4s featured late dealings.

Compared with the low levels made on June 9, the list was up fully $6.50 a bale. A broad scale commission house demand supplemented trade and mill buying.

Inflationary talk mounted with the upward revision in price ceilings for canned fruits and the admission by Price Administrator Leon Henderson that the slash in the OPA budget jeopardized controls. May Act Next Week. Some conferees were ready to bill's funds available for a month at least, but they could not get an agreement even on that.

There was a strong possibility that no action toward making the funds available would come before either chamber until next week unless basic differences are reconciled. Meanwhile, with both Senate and House preparing to clear their decks for a week-end holiday, Senator Russell, Democrat, of Georgia arranged to bring before the Senate a measure to raise Government loans on basic crops to 100 per cent of parity. The present figure is 85 per cent. A subcommittee begins hearings on a $1,800,000,000 supplemental appropriations bill, containing a reduced allotment for the Office of Price Administration. The House scheduled a routine session.

Month's Recess Possible. On the assumption the new $5, 900,000,000 tax bill would clear the House by July 20 and go before the Senate Finance Committee immediately, Democratic Leader Barkley suggested in the Senate yesterday the possibility of a month's congressional recess about that time. Even before Senator Barkley finished speaking, however, Senator Thomas, Republican, of Idaho arose to declare "I think we'll be severely criticized if we adjourn." The Kentuckian rejoined that "We'll be criticized whether we adjourn or not." Republican Leader McNary also questioned the propriety of taking a formal recess, but suggested it might be possible to recess for two or three days at a time, always keeping a quorum on hand for emer-

Senate Expected To Act Soon on Appointments

The Police and Municipal Courts of the District today had passed into oblivion, and in their places was a new tribunal, the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia-more powerful, modernized to meet changing conditions and with its govern ing authority more centralized. Although delay in appointment of its chief judge, who has been nominated but not confirmed, is hampering completion of its organization, the new court's civil and criminal divisions nevertheless are functioning smoothly, clerks reported.

Hearings on the nominations of the chief judge and new associate judges of the tribunal were to be held today by a Senate subcom-

The nominations include: William Ewen Richardson to be chief judge of the appellate court; Nathan Cayton and Andrew Mc-Caughrin Hood, to be associate judges of the appellate court.

George P. Barse, general counsel of the office of the controller of the currency, to be chief judge of the Municipal Court; Brice Clagett, Aubrey F. Fennell, Nathan Ross Margold and Walter J. Casey to be municipal judges.

Pending Cases Transferred. Pending actions in the old courts simply are being carried over into the new divisions and employes of the old courts are continuing to function as before, as provided in the act creating the new tribunal.

Already, a suit for $1,867.61 which heretofore would have been filed in District Court, has been filed with the new civil division. The old Municipal Court handled suits up to $1,000. The suit filed today was by the Anacostia Bank, 2000 Nichols avenue S.E., against Irving Lichtenberg, 417 Shepherd street N.W., the bank charging that the money was improperly drawn from an account. In the criminal branch, Walter F. Bramhall, clerk of the old Police Court, is now signing his papers rubber stamp bearing the name of the new court as his seal. Miss Blanche Neff, clerk of the old Municipal Court, said, however, that she is continuing to use her old metal seal-since only the word "of" is changed to "for" preceding the words "District of Columbia" in her case. It is possible to increase the limit slightly by attaching various service charges. It should prove interesting to discover how the Government will come out on these housing investments.

Fireworks displays of all kinds are definitely out. The War Department yesterday issued an order banning pyrotechnics all along the Eastern Seaboard. Army officials also officially discouraged patriotic programs which might attract large crowds of people. At least one mass celebration in the Washington area was scheduled for Saturday, however. At Langdon and Taft Parks, seven civic, fraternal and patriotic groups will sponsor programs to begin at 10 a.m.

Instead of the usual evening fireworks, however, a blackout demonstration is planned for 7:45 p.m. in exercises by Capt. John D. Price, Taft Park. Celebrants at Langdon Park will parade to the other grounds at 7 p.m.

Keen and Alert Police Officers Arlington Takes Over Guide Auxiliary Activities

Each Precinct Has One or More Regular Policemen to Help Volunteers

(Last of a Series.)

By CARTER BROOKE JONES. Washington's auxiliary police system has a GHQ on the fifth floor of the Municipal Center

There, under the direction of Maj Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of metropolitan police, and Inspector Harvey G. Callahan, assistant superintendent, the general outline of auxiliary activities is guided by the practiced hand of Sergt. John F. Ryan and a few aides.

Sergt. Ryan is such a busy man organizing the still expanding auxiliary force that he usually eats his lunch at his desk, but his good humor never flags and has smoothed over many a jagged situation. The sergeant came on the job fresh from the streets, and he has the point of view of a cop on the beat, which is what the rookie auxiliaries need. While details of organiza-Ugo Carusi, executive assistant to tion are left to the precinct commanders, general policies must be formed and carried out at police > headquarters. Each Auxiliary Indexed. If you want to know anything about auxiliaries, their qualifications, training and assignments, ask Sergt. Ryan. Only don't if you can help it. He's busy enough. A big map on the wall of his office shows precinct boundaries and emergency beats. There's a card index containing pertinent data on every one of the more than 4,000 auxiliary policemen, who are fingerprinted and investigated thoroughly before they are allowed to go on their unpaid jobs. On the headquarters auxiliary roster is a reserve force of more than 600. This detachment includes members of Congress and leading business and professional men of the city-many of them older men who are not expected to do routine police duty, but whose ability and experience would be valuable in an emergency. In an enemy attack or some comparable crisis, these reserves would assemble at headquarters to be sent where

More than 40,000 separate items went into equipping the auxiliary police, a job handed Inspector Milton D. Smith. Starting with an empty stockroom, Inspector Smith with the co-operation of Roland M Brennan of the District purchasing office and others, soon had the project under way, and the Commissioners allocated $72,950 to purchase uniforms and equipment. Arm bands, whistles, nightsticks and overseas caps and other equipment went out by the thousands. Later every auxiliary got a steel helmet.

Through Sergt. Ryan, day by day, goes the morning report which shows how many auxiliaries were on duty the previous day in each precinct, what time they put in. The report is consolidated and sent to Maj. Kelly. Citations for meritorious service-and there have been many-are placed on the permanent service records of auxiliaries. "The contest is designed to give special recognition to the fine work To Be Held Tonight being done by youngsters in President Roosevelt's scrap-rubber drive," of the District division of the AAA said yesterday.

"The 10-day extension of the rubber-collection campaign gives us an opportunity for rounding up every ounce of scrap in the Washington territory. The latest reports are that Washington is still far down on the list from the standpoint of per capita collections. We are looking to the children eligible to take part in this contest to provide strong impetus in bringing about a much better record for the Nation's Capital in the closing days of the drive.'

Meanwhile the search for unneeded rubber in public buildings spread to the Capitol where Chairman Byrd of the Senate Rules Committee announced that he had instructed Capitol Architect David Lynn to turn in all rubber mats in the Senate Office Building.

At Falls Church, more than 200 children attending the summer session of the Barney Neighborhood House began a competition to see which could bring in the most rubber. A "weighing in" will be held tomorrow.

Parties Enliven Social Picture In Capital Deweys Are Hosts

At Garden Fete; Others Entertain

Several delightful informal parties dotted the calendar yesterday afternoon, and despite darkened skies and the fitful splashing of rain, hosts and hostesses and their guests made merry out of doors as well as indoors. One of the especially interesting social events was given in the lovely old-fashioned garden of their equally old-fashioned home on Capitol Hill by Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey, who entertained at their annual party for the members of Congress from Illinois and the ladies of their families. One of the charms of the Dewey garden is the ornate iron furniture which is in keeping with the vintage of the house and makes complete the quaintness of the garden itself.

Practically the entire Illinois contingent in both Senate and House of Representatives enjoyed the party, the only guest not connected with the congressional delegation being Mr. Joseph Ryerson of Chicago. Mrs. Dewey will be leaving next week for a visit of several weeks in Chicago.

The Brazilian delegate to the Inter-American Economic Conference, Senor Francesco Alves dos Santos Filho, was the honor guest at the party given in their apartment at the Shoreham by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson. Mme. Santos also was a guest with the large group of Brazilian diplomats and others.

Mrs. Pierson was assisted by Mrs. Jesse Jones in receiving the guests. Mrs. Sydney Cloman was hostess at a combination farewell party for Mme. Grouitch and a welcome party for Mrs. Theodore Baldwin, who with Col. Baldwin has arrived for a visit with Miss Katherine Judge. Mme. Grouitch, wife of the former Minister of the Serbs, Croats and

Tribute Paid Party to Honor Anniversary Of 'Woman's Right' Meeting

The 94th anniversary of the first "woman's rights" meeting on record—the famous convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y .- will be observed by the National Woman's Party at a reception from 5 to 7:30 p.m. July 19.

Senator Hughes, Democrat, of Delaware will be honor guest at the party, to be held in the garden at historic Alva Belmont House, the party headquarters.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of the national organization, will assist Mrs. Mathilde Bahar, chairman of the District branch, in receiving. Also assisting will be Mrs. Amy C. Ransome, second vice president, who will arrive from California in time for the celebration, and Mrs. George Mesta, chairman of the Congressional Committee.

The Seneca Falls convention, held July 19-20, 1848, was launched by Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Martha C. Wright and Mary Ann Mc-Clintock.

The Descendants of '76 Chapter, DAR, is the latest group to provide a tip on how to "cut corners" in order to buy a bond or foster some other patriotic project. The tip: Do without a year book.

The chapter's governing board decided at a recent luncheon meeting to eliminate the annual in favor of a patriotic activity. The meeting was held at the home of the new regent, Mrs. Robert Black.

Other business included the appointment of Miss Helen Hamblin as recording secretary pro tem, succeeding Miss Doris Mc-

Destruction of Planes On Ground Is Taught Picked Army Flyers

Students Quickly Grow Expert in Strafing At Florida Field

By Wide World. EGLIN FIELD, Fla., July 2.-"Get 'em on the ground" is one of the precepts of modern airplane

Maj. Howard F. Nichols, commanding officer of the Army Air Forces Fixed Gunnery School here, says there probably are more airplanes destroyed on the ground by ground strafing than in aerial combat, and the most proficient students here get a crack at this extremely dangerous and precise form of fighting. Development of firepower and speed of aircraft has made it of extreme importance in cutting down the adversary before he can get into action. The Japanese gave the world an outstanding example of this at Hickman Field on Pearl Harbor Day.

Because it requires great skill and many weeks of dangerous training. only the most advanced students here are permitted to practice ground strafing. Others completing the 12-day course in gunnery leave for the combat areas.

Maj. Nichols says most laymen have no conception of the destructive power of a fighting plane's guns, which with one blast can destroy an unarmed vehicle, disperse foot troops, break up a motor convoy or cut a bomber in half.

Supply Train Easy Mark.

A supply train is helpless against strafing fighters unless it has sufficient air protection, and recent dispatches from the Pacific have indicated that a pair of American strafing planes immobilized a Japanese destroyer and perhaps destroyed it in the Coral Sea battle.

The low attack angle of strafers renders anti-aircraft weapons of large caliber useless, and their high speed presents an almost impossible target for lighter guns. Maj. Nichols says the surprise element also is of great advantage to a strafing plane since it demoralizes as well as demobilizes the enemy

Good strafers take advantage of all possible cover-woods, roads, valleys and other ground obstacles -to hide their approach. They also use low-hanging clouds and keep the sun at their backs until ready to pounce on their prey like some great armored eagle.

The fixed gunnery school here trains students for the entire Southeastern Army Air Forces Training Center.

Fighter pilots-some of them only a couple of weeks away from the big show—paint swastikas and ris ing suns on their targets here and go howling in for the kill.

Practice All-Important. In the global warfare they are training for, the practice they get here in 12 days may mean the difference between life and death less than a month hence in combat 300 thousands of miles away.

This is a finishing school for hundreds of fighter pilots weekly, the school where pilots who have learned to fly their planes then learn to fight with them by aiming the plane and its multiple guns at the sea or air target and diving at it with blazing speed.

Pilots coming back from their first battle are seasoned veterans, learning more in a few minutes of actual combat than they can in the 12-day course here, so Maj. Nichols says the school's sole objective is to teach the untried enough to get them through their first battle. After that they will know as much as or more than their instructors.

I went out with a squadron of cadets on several training mis-We were away at daylight, an instructor riding with each cadet. Our first objective was ground targets, small ones only 6 feet square with a range house to the rear where an observation range crew observes the firing and corrects errors by two-way radio to the pilot. Leader Opens Fire.

The squadron circled the range forming a prescribed pattern. Suddenly the leader went screaming down with machine guns rattling. Only a few yards over the target the cadet pulls out of the dive, and the second plane comes hurtling in for the second target. Back aloft the formation reforms and heads downstairs again. The maneuver is repeated until ammunition is exhausted.

After a few days the pilots can eat out the bull's-eye with a minimum of ammunition. After nearly a week on the ground range the cadet tackles the more difficult aerial gunnery. A plane took off ahead of us towing the target, a long piece of cheesecloth decorated with crude swastikas and flaming suns. Moving at several hundred miles an hour out over the Gulf of Mexico our planes closed in.

"Leading" his target sometimes as much as three lengths to compensate for speed factors, the pilots go crashing down. My pilot had a little too much lead and cut the tow-"Well, we shot down our objective at least," he said with a grin on landing. A week of chasing these elusive targets finds the cadet ready for graduation. His diploma awaits him at some distant rendezvous with the enemy.

as it were, of physiognomatic patches and gullies. Be that as it may, let us consider at this time a fine example of the minority in that 5 to 1 ratio cited above. She is a young lady (twentyish) who happens to be singing in the Victory Room with Georgia Auld's Orchestra. Her name is Savina.

that is downright frowzy, a medley,

Savina is one of those masterpieces of photogenics one seldom sees either here, in Hollywood or any other place you care to name offhand-the kind to whom your Brunos, Hurrells and Seymours would be hard pressed to do justice. In quick and hackneyed sum, Savina is a lass the movies might easily employ to decorate several hundreds of celluloid footage.

As things stand at present, however, this demure and vocally proficient songstress is quite content with the simple way of life: Doing a nightly stint on the bandstand, swimming and diving for recreation (sometimes painfully recreational), getting married (as she will Saturday to a wide-eyed guy in the band) and-yes-raising a family (something which she says must wait until after the war).

Savina is of strictly Italian descent. Genuinely blond, such hair being not at all unusual in northern sections of Italy. The name, furthermore, is as genuine as the hair, as the young lady pleadingly asks you to believe. And believe, you

Some cause for alarm may be found in an observation by Bob Seidell, an affiliate of Paul Kain's Spanish Ballroom Krew: More and more of the older group of dancers are taking to jitterbug antics.

And we thought that loud creaking out Glen Echo way was the airplane whirl attraction in action. But now that we know, we admonish, oldsters, 'ware the infectious jitterbug!

A busy lass is Miss Mary La Marr since she has become stationed in Hotel 2400's Lounge Riviera. Every night she may be seen hastening from table to microphone for a song-set during band intermissions, hastening to another mike during band sets, hastening from the same instrument to waggle the maracas for a Latin number, dashing on a bit of lip-rouge while she may. Composure, nevertheless, is a property of which she can still boast despite the excessive footwork.

After Dark

News and Comment of the Night Clubs. By the Spectator.

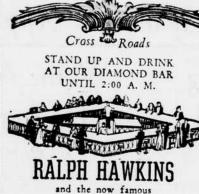

After laboring under the influence of such caverns of glamour as Hollywood and the night-lit recesses of Broadway, publicity photographers in the past decade have gained for themselves a ranking among the greatest idealists of all times. They are ladies and gentlemen who can take the weariest looking of subjects, seat them, tilt them, cover them with a hundred well-trained lights and shadows and, snapping the shutter of the camera, make them look like something fresh out of a wad of cellophane. To the people of this profession, the most extensive purple circle under the eyes is naught but a challenge to their moral and artistic fiber; wrinkles, but an incongruous miscue of dame nature to be corrected without second thought. Fats Salvage Campaign Planned For Nation in Near Future To Swell Glycerin Output

By Betsy Caswell, Women's News Editor.

Whether the Great and Glorious Fourth is to be a holiday for you, or whether you will be one of the workers that are going all-out to insure the liberty for which it stands, there'll be some point over the week end when you can take time out for a picnic—even in your own back yard or the cool park nearby. Keeping this possibility in mind, local markets have stocked up as in other, happier years, with all the good things that make alfresco lunching or dining a pleasure for the cook of the family, is well as for the rest of the group.

Hams, lunch meats, hot dogs, ground meat for hamburgers, chickens for broiling or frying, potato chips, buns, rolls, watermelons and sand-wich spreads are being featured at attractive prices. Many stores will have specials on pickles and relishes; there's corn on the cob to be roasted in the campfire ashes, good lemons for lemonade, eggs for hard cooking and deviling and juicy ripe tomatoes—the week's Victory Food Special to eat raw, with salt and a sprinkle of minced thyme or mint. Best Flavored Melons Picked At the Peak of Ripeness; Chill Before Serving

By the Bureau of Home Economics, USDA

School is out, the Fourth of July is just around the corner, and sultry summer days are here at last. With hot weather comes a need to revise the menu to include cool and refreshing foods, such as the cantaloupe now appearing in market displays. This melon, because of its widespread popularity, is almost always a good item to start or end any meal.

Because of a smaller acreage planted this year, cantaloupe supplies for the current season are indicated to be lighter than either last year or the average year, according to the Agricultural Marketing Administra-

However, although supplies are not likely to be heavy in general, they will be larger at certain times as the cantaloupe season advances. One such increase or "peak period" is practically here, as peak harvests in California, Arizona, Georgia and South Carolina reach the market. They will be followed by other like periods as later producing areas send their melons to market. Consumers can watch for these times and take advantage of them

THIS is the story of an amazing new I kind of white bread. Every mother should know about it. Every man, woman, and child should eat it. It is a bread that doctors have dreamed about for years-but only in the last few months has it at last come true!

It doesn't cost a penny extra! Yet-as no old-style white bread has ever doneit helps you naturally to a stronger body, new vital energy! More pep-and drive!

What It Is For years, science has pointed out that white, highly refined, unenriched flour was a "health thief." To make flour white, the process of "refining" stripped from good wheat much of its precious vitamins and minerals. The result was a chalk-white loaf. It had a delicate, lacy texture. A tender brown crust. But as doctors knew to their sorrow, most of its rich, body-building vitamins and minerals had beer "refined" away.

True . . . people could still get the full, generous bounty of Mother Nature in whole wheat bread. But as doctors know, only 3% of the people will eat whole wheat bread every day. The other 97% just don't like the taste of it.

A New Discovery

So for over 100 years, millers have sought a new way to make flour. A way to save the most precious part of the wheatand make a white bread that kept most of this discarded, precious richness. Their results ended in failure!

Not long ago came success! A remarkable new way to make flour was made possible by a great discovery which has created a sensation. For it was the richest white flour in human history! The bitter, worthless part of the wheat grain was discarded-AND MOST OF THE VITAMINS AND MINERALS RETAINED! An Amazing Bread The result is-a brand-new kind of white bread! It has the true creamy-white texture and color of finest old-fashioned white bread! It has a more tender brown crust! Wonderful moist freshness! But here is no "bankrupt" loaf. New Certified Double-Flavor Bread is rich with the flavor of the brimming, precious elements treasured by Mother Nature in the sunripened wheat.

You can taste the difference. Even more dramatic YOU CAN SEE IT! The soft creamy-white color of this new Certified Double-Flavor Bread is more natural. It is richer . . . not "chalk-white"... as in many out-of-date unenriched white breads.

And no wonder! This new bread has 50% more natural minerals. Double the precious Vitamin Bi! And a marvelous. rich flavor everyone prefers!

New creamy-white Certified Double-Flavor Bread is delicious! Fragrant! THERE IS NO OTHER WHITE BREAD LIKE IT-BECAUSE NO OTHER FLOUR IS MADE WITH THIS NEW PATENCED PROCESS 1

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people eliminate about 3 nints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheublood, it may cause nagging backache, rheu-matic pains, leg pains, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. At this point, South had only to draw trumps without loss to make his contract. He therefore laid down the ace of trump and followed with a small trump toward dummy When West played the ten of hearts South went into a long huddle Should he finesse or should he play the king? If South had really thought, he might have reflected that East had opened the bidding with only the king-jack-ten of clubs and the spade ace. Furthermore, he had raised spades. From East's point of view, which would make his hand look stronger, the doubleton queen of hearts or a singleton heart? Obviously, a singleton heart would encourage him more. And surely, without any real high-card strength, East should have had some distributional strength for his free raise in spades. With that line of reasoning, the finesse is a marked play.

Uncle Ray's Corner SUBURBAN HEIGHTS

By RAMON COFFMAN. Like the people of many other South Sea islands, the Fijians have a high regard for hogs, sows and little pigs. Before the coming of the whites, there were no cows or sheep on the islands, but there were swine. and the swine made up an important part of the food supply.

The Fiji islands are in the South Pacific, about 1,400 miles east of Australia. Eighty of the islands are homes of people, but most Fijians live on the island called "Viti Levu."

Scientists believe that the Fiji Islands arose from explosions of volcanoes, which threw out lava and cinders and formed mounds which at last reached above the ocean surface. Now there are mountain peaks from 3,000 to 4,500 feet above sea level. Springs containing water warmed by the hot rocks still exist. Now and then there is an earthquake

The Fijians like to decorate themselves, and for the purpose they use teeth obtained from sperm whales. These teeth are oiled and polished. Sometimes an extremely rich native has enough of them to use for a rowning his head, and with whale teeth around his neck, he is a sight to behold

Since the coming of the Christian faith, some natives have cut or shaved their hair, and have turned to ways which their ancestors did not know. Large fields are used for the growing of sugar cane. Much of the sugar crop is exported to New

Fiji men of the hills use bows and arrows, spears and slings, as weapons. In former times they were cannibals, but now they have given up the custom. From roots of the Yangona plant, they make a drink called "kava," and they use half-shells of coconuts as cups. They are fond of dancing, singing and telling stories.

The Piji islands were taken into the British empire. Only about two per cent of those who live on them are whites. There are large plantations where, in addition to native labor, thousands of workers brought from India work on the crops.

Pineapples and bananas, as well as sugar cane, are exported from the Fiji islands in normal times.

Waller Electrocuted At Richmond After Long Fight for Life

Workers' Defense League Makes Vain Attempt to Save Sharecropper

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., July 2.—Odell Waller, 25, colored, whose champions carried his case to the State and United States Supreme Courts and sought to reach President Roosevelt in a last-ditch appeal, died in the Virginia electric chair today for the murder of his employer, Oscar Davis, a white tenant farmer, nearly two years ago. Apparently resigned to his fate, Waller's 630-day wait in death row ended when he was led to the execution chamber at 8:35 a.m. Ten minutes later the prison physician, Dr. C. C. Chewning, jr., pronounced him dead.

Maj. Rice M. Youell, superintendent of the penitentiary, reported Waller said nothing after leaving his cell. The pastor of a Richmond Negro church, the Rev. E. H. Bouey, visited him before the execution. Shot Four Times.

Several of the 12 witnesses permitted by law were from Pittsylvania County, where Waller shot and mortally wounded Mr. Davis on the morning of July 15, 1940, after what Waller described as a dispute over division of a wheat crop. State witnesses testified at the trial, however. that Mr. Davis had agreed to send Waller his share of the crop and that the sharecropper shot the farmer four times as Davis turned to go to breakfast.

In a written statement on the eve of his execution, Waller said, "I have asked God to forgive me and I feel he has . .

Counsel for Waller contended that an error of his trial counsel was responsible for the failure of appellate courts to intervene, and champions of his cause enlisted the support of prominent individuals throughout the Nation.

The Workers' Defense League, whose counsel, John F. Finerty of New York, helped conduct the exhaustive court battle, circulated pamphlets on the case from coast to coast and appealed for funds for his defense.

Cited Poll Tax Law.

The defense error in the trial, it was claimed, was in not offering evidence to prove that non-poll taxpayers were barred from Virginia jury lists and that therefore Waller, who did not pay such taxes, did not have a fair trial. Gov. Darden, in denying executive clemency, declared he did not believe payment of the small tax of $1.50 a year had "the effect of dividing the people of the commonwealth into economic nce his conviction in the fall of 1940, Waller had been granted five reprieves. A sixth was refused by Gov. Darden yesterday after he had announced Tuesday night his decision against granting a commutation of the death sentence. The Governor heard testimony and arguments for some 12 hours the day

The request for a sixth reprieve was made by Mr. Finerty and representatives of the Workers Defense League, who said he needed time to apply to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari on "the refusal of the United States District Court and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to grant him (Waller) a cerificate of probable cause for an appeal from the dismissal of his petition for a writ of habeas corpus."
