

CONVERTED MERCHANTMAN JOINS CARRIER FLEET—These pictures released by the Navy Department today are the first made aboard the new U. S. S. Charger, a former merchantman now converted to an aircraft carrier. Above is a broadside view of the newest arm of Uncle Sam's fighting fleet.

All the converted carriers are equipped with derricks to retrieve seaplanes sent on reconnaissance flights after being launched by catapult from battleships and cruisers.

Hovering above the flight deck, a Navy dive bomber prepares to come aboard as another warms up to take off.

British Modify View, Favor Both Jet, Spray In Fighting Bombs

Hard Stream of Water Recommended Except In Certain Cases

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The jet-versus-spray issue over the best way to tackle a fire bomb—subject of recent controversy in the United States—has been settled in Britain with the decision favoring both methods, according to circumstances.

The British, who in three years have learned a thing or two about dealing with the infernal things, thus found good points in the jet of water, as espoused by Washington's Office of Civilian Defense in its latest order, and the spray, which was championed by New York's Mayor La Guardia, until a demonstration convinced him of the superiority of the jet.

Formerly the British official view was that the spray of a stirrup pump generally should be used on the incendiary itself, and the jet used only to deal with the surrounding fire caused by the bomb.

Labor Peace Talk Grows as Leaders Gather in Chicago

Possibilities of a reconciliation were revived yesterday when it was disclosed that Mr. Murray had written Mr. Green, informing him that a CIO Peace Committee of three had been appointed.

It was awaited with lively interest at the big CIO Convention, where Mr. Thomas said he knew of nothing that would prevent his union from joining with the AFL in a united labor front if a working basis could be agreed on.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Thomas both are members of the CIO Peace Committee, adding significance to the gathering of labor leaders here.

The agenda of the AFL executive conference included discussions of wage stabilization, manpower mobilization and anti-inflation problems.

Mr. Thomas already was here, attending a convention of CIO Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers, and Mr. Murray was expected early in the day.

Soviet Secrecy Obstructs Plans for Second Front, Eliot Says

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT.

The Russian press is clamoring for a second front in western Europe to relieve the German pressure on the Russian Army, and Russian officials in London and Washington are reported as pressing very strongly for some action in this direction.

It is easy to say that the Russians have in the past had some justification for this suspicious attitude toward the Western democracies.

In weighing the Russian position in the matter would be greatly strengthened if it were possible for Russian officers and officials of the highest rank to sit down with our chiefs of staff in London or Washington, put their cards on the table and concert with us a joint plan for the defeat of the common enemy.

The progress of the war in Russia, America and Britain are called upon to make vitally important military decisions which certainly will involve thousands of lives and enormous amounts of material.

We cannot afford to labor under the additional handicap of incomplete and defective knowledge regarding one of our major allies.

It would seem that the Russian position in the matter would be greatly strengthened if it were possible for Russian officers and officials of the highest rank to sit down with our chiefs of staff in London or Washington, put their cards on the table and concert with us a joint plan for the defeat of the common enemy.

Boat Found Submerged After Lone Survivor Swims Seven Miles

By The Associated Press.

STANDISH, Mich., Aug. 4.—A cabin cruiser which foundered Sunday in Saginaw Bay with 13 persons aboard was sighted submerged near Point Au Gres today, and coast guardsmen expressed belief that all but one known survivor had perished.

On Fishing Party. The cruiser, which had left early Sunday on a fishing party, foundered 8 1/2 miles southeast of Point Au Gres.

Regaining strength but still shaken, Mrs. Repke told of having set out with her husband and a second woman in an attempt to swim to shore after the 30-foot craft, a converted tug, presumably struck a rock in mid-bay.

At noon yesterday she awakened and walked three miles to a farm house.

When Mrs. Repke and her two companions began their swim, they were clinging to a portion of the cruiser's cabin which remained above water.

Early today Sheriff John Johannes said there was "little hope" that any in addition to the young woman had survived.

Missing were Mrs. Repke's husband, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baudour, Au Gres; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Saue and Mr. and Mrs. William Hatcher, Kawkawlin; Mr. and Mrs. John Zastzer, Linwood Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. Abe La Bean, Bay City.

Seattle Registers Its Women for Jobs in War Factories

100,000 Local Workers Are Needed Eventually; No Room for Migrants

By The Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Aug. 4.—Seattle began mobilizing its womanpower today to fill 100,000 war jobs in a hurry in shipyard and aircraft factories.

Every woman capable of doing any sort of work was asked to register during the next three days at the city's nine high schools and at schools throughout surrounding King County.

The Civilian War Commission and the United States Employment Service, which sponsored the registration, set a goal of 25,000 applicants immediately, but said four times that many war jobs would have to be filled here eventually this year.

Immediate employment was not guaranteed. The registration was planned to serve as a survey of potential employes who can be drawn into industrial, farm and other work as the demand arises.

Shore Patrol Protects As Well as Polices Sailors on Leave

It's Extra Duty for Men, So Chief Complaint Is Lack of Sleep

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 4.—Jack Tar, hungry for feminine companionship, asks the beer parlor waitress for a date.

Well, she has to work until midnight, but if Jack will buy a bottle of champagne ($7 per bottle) she'll meet him when the clock strikes 12.

Jack buys the bubbly (the girl gets a commission from the house) and settles himself in a booth.

The juke box swallows endless nickels and spews forth jive. Couples move about on the dance floor. Along the bar elbows bend as the bartenders serve up more suds. Hours pass.

Comes midnight.

Jack Tar leaves his booth and moves toward the waitress. Also moving toward her are six other Jack Tars. "Easy, Mac, she's my date."

"Your date? After I pay 7 bucks for champagne, she's your date?"

Two minutes later the seven sailors are tied up in a maelstrom of flying fists. (Waitress slips quietly through front door). Two more minutes and the shore patrol arrives to break up the scrap among the seven dateless sailors.

'Out of Bounds' Penalty.

The next night the beer parlor proprietor is pained to find two husky young men in uniform standing in front of his establishment and a total lack of patronage by sailors. And his pain is a nightly thing until he promises to break up the waitress-champagne-midnight date practice.

Making a place "out of bounds" for Navy men is only one of the multitudinous duties of the naval shore patrol, whose function is to "keep the boys out of trouble, preserve order and see that uniforms are worn correctly."

Drawn from shore establishments and ships in port, the petty officers used for shore patrol do an excellent job of policing and protecting the thousands of Navy men who throng the streets of Norfolk nightly.

Navy men are more amenable to discipline by the shore patrol than to discipline by civil police.

Civil police arrest some Navy men but turn them over to the patrol unless they are charged with serious offenses. Those charged with minor offenses, such as being drunk or disorderly, are turned over to the patrol, which in turn delivers them to their ships or stations for disciplinary action.

75 to 90 on Duty at Night.

During the day the shore patrol maintains a skeleton force, but from sundown until 1 a. m. (sometimes later) there are anywhere from 75 to 90 men on duty on the average week night. On week ends and paydays there'll be 140 or so, depending on the number of ships in port.

Shore patrol is extra duty for the men assigned to it. They perform their day's routine work then go on patrol and report to ship or station next day for usual assignments. A man is never given shore patrol duty as punishment.

Despite the fact that shore patrol is extra duty the men assigned to accept it more or less philosophically. "It's just another job," they say. There's one thing about it they don't like, however. "It makes us miss our sleep." Men drawn from shore stations serve on shore patrol for 30 days, men on ships get SP duty about once a month.

Patrol Travels in Pairs.

The shore patrol is easily spotted. Each man wears a belt, leggings and an armband with the letters "SP." Each carries a smooth stick similar to a policeman's night stick.

The shore patrol travels in pairs and each pair is assigned to a particular zone. Two men are assigned to each Norfolk-Portsmouth ferry between 9 p. m. and 2 a. m. Two more travel on the Norfolk-Baltimore passenger boats. Virginia Beach patrols are supplied by the Dam Neck Station. Portsmouth and Newport News are supplied by ships in port.

Augmenting the shore patrol on foot are a station wagon and a truck fitted out as an ambulance. The truck is used more or less as a black maria to answer emergency calls.

Police Co-operation Lauded.

Chief Quartermaster Neil Cooper asserted that "nowhere do the police co-operate with the Navy better than in Norfolk."

Drunkenness and fighting are the principal offenses by Navy men, Cooper explained. In cases of property damage the sailors are made to sign an agreement to pay for the damage they've done. One cop goes to the offender's commanding officer and the other to the merchant or householder whose property was damaged. "The boys always make good on the payments," Cooper said.

Enlisted men picked up by the shore patrol for being drunk are detained at headquarters until 5 a. m., then sent to their ship or station. When an officer is picked up shore patrol headquarters usually telephones his ship or station and has another officer come downtown and take him in tow.

Head of the shore patrol here is Lt. Col. J. M. Bain, U. S. M. C., a native of Norfolk, who received a commission in the Marine Corps in 1918, a year after his graduation from Virginia Military Institute. Retired in 1939, he was called back to active service 11 months later.

Battered, Bandaged, Bedridden, Joe Hopes Luck Will Change

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—There is one certain thing about the luck of Joe De Angelis—it is consistently bad.

Hard Luck Joe is a healthy, handsome chap, just 3 years old, but today he was handicapped by eight stitches in his left foot, seven in his right heel, seven in his right arm, his right arm was in a cast because of a compound fracture and his right leg, also broken, was in splints—all acquired in a matter of 10 days.

And that isn't all.

Joe still shows the effects of burns suffered eight months ago.

The lad's troubles began in December, 1941. Toddling about the kitchen of his Baltimore home, the tot overturned a pot of boiling mushrooms. More than 25 per cent of his body was scalded. During his four months in the hospital he needed skin grafts and eight blood transfusions.

That was only the beginning. His tough luck streak really got going last month.

On July 23 he was knocked down by an enthusiastic dog. His right leg was broken and the leg was so severely cut it needed seven stitches.

On July 28 his left leg got mixed up with a tricycle wheel. He had to have eight stitches in his left foot.

July 30 he fell off the table in the living room, suffered a compound fracture of the right arm.

July 31 he dropped a glass in the kitchen and stepped on the fragments. Seven stitches in his right heel.

The last one put Joe in bed, and in a way his parents aren't sorry. At least he doesn't have far to fall.

Going Somewhere?

WE'RE IN A WAR; a fact that is being brought home to us in many ways. No longer can we enjoy all the privileges to which we have become accustomed. Johnny can't use the car. Mother can't bake so many cakes.

Place the blame squarely where it belongs—in Berlin. The shadow that has darkened so much of the world has touched our shores. It could lengthen still farther; could bar our freedom of speech, press and worship; yes, even our right to travel when and where we choose. We can't let that happen.

What are we doing about it? Ask any Union Pacific Man. He'll tell you that he and thousands of other American railroad workers are exerting every effort to stop that creeping shadow; that they are doing a tremendous job of transporting armament and munitions as fast as our factories can turn them out. . . . of transporting troops in ever-increasing numbers. It's a job that must be done so that we Americans may always feel free to go wherever we please, unquestioned and without fear.

Goering Reported Looting Europe of Its Works of Art

Many U. S. Masterpieces Bought Before War Are in His Collection

By HELEN LOMBARD.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering is supposed to have the most important and the richest private art gallery in the world. Should it ever be thrown open to the public, visitors from Washington, New York and Philadelphia will find familiar items in Goering's Berlin residence, which was built as a monument to his former Swedish wife.

The Nazi charge d'affaires in Washington spent tens of thousands of dollars a year buying up fine pictures, tapestries and sculptured pieces in the auction rooms of the Capital and of other important cities. The cultured Hans Thomsen was known to Washington auctioneers as one of their most assiduous and discriminating customers. When something really fine appeared in a catalogue sale Thomsen would get it regardless of cost.

At a dinner at the Latvian Legation before that little country had been invaded, first by the Soviets, then by the Nazis, Thomsen was looking with an appraising eye at the fine pictures which had been collected by the Latvian Minister. When some of the legation things were sold at auction in 1941, the Nazi charge was an enthusiastic bidder.

Thomsen a Poor Man.

Thomsen was a poor man who lived in a modest house which he rented furnished. He left the United States with no effects other than his personal baggage, and it was known to a few of his buying sources that all of his art purchases had been shipped out of America, long before we broke off relations. They went to neutral countries and their ultimate destination was the private gallery of a high party official who had unlimited means at his disposal.

These American-owned treasures which have now found their way back to Europe will rub elbows with the finest European art works which, however, have not been acquired through purchase. An important French banker representing a world-famed firm with international connections has recently arrived in Washington. He reports that pieces from no less a gallery than the Louvre are now finding their way into the possession of the art-hungry Goering.

Gift for Goering.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for any one to obtain an exit permit from Vichy even for the most important reasons. The banker in question happened to be a friend of the French representative to German-occupied Paris, M. de Brinon. He went to the former capital of France to obtain De Brinon's help.

Their conversation was interrupted by a telephone call from

M. Laval who also wished to consult M. de Brinon on an urgent matter. The talk was lengthy and concerned the relative merits of different pieces of sculpture which used to abide in the Louvre Gallery and are now concealed in vaults throughout France. Goering's name was mentioned a number of times, and it finally became clear to the listener that the Vichyites were deciding which particular treasure of the former French republic—whether a modern Rodin or an ancient Praxiteles—would be the most acceptable present for the reichsmarshal on the occasion of one of the many celebrations in honor of his victories.

NEW PLAN SHOWS HOW TO SAVE THOUSANDS of TONS of RUBBER

B. F. GOODRICH offers services of tire engineers and perfected maintenance plan to America's truck fleets. Records show program extends tire life. Truck owners say plan saves more than it costs.

Here is a scientific plan for tire care and rubber conservation now being applied to the needs of truck fleets after 15 years of successful use on many of the country's biggest bus fleets. On the basis of actual records of this plan at work, we say that it can save America thousands of precious tons of rubber—and save fleet owners thousands of dollars!

Bus fleets cooperating have ordinarily received up to 50% more tire mileage—which means they use much less tire rubber. Now this same plan is being made available to truck fleets by B. F. Goodrich. Consider that truck tires often weigh 100 to 200 pounds apiece . . . consider the millions of trucks on the road today, and you will see how savings of rubber through widespread use of this perfected B. F. Goodrich personalized service program might easily mount up to thousands of tons.

Already some of the most important truck fleets in the country have signed up, and they tell us the service is worth far more than the fee!

Trained Engineers Take Charge

This is not just a "free tire conservation plan," good as they are. It is a complete point-by-point program under which B. F. Goodrich factory-trained engineers take over the complete supervision of tire care. One hundred tires or thousands . . . the care of each casing in a fleet is given the necessary supervision by the B. F. Goodrich engineers. Whatever is needed to get results is done by personal inspection.

Because the tire maintenance personnel we have is limited and our technical men must be specially and thoroughly trained for this work, we can offer this plan to only a limited number of fleets at present. This new plan, which will help you cooperate with the government's Truck Conservation Corps Program, is the first of its kind to be offered by any rubber company—another example of the leadership which has made B. F. Goodrich "First in Rubber" in war and peace. If you as a fleet owner wish to participate in our new tire conservation plan, write the

Works of Shostakovich And Schumann Presented

Tanglewood String Quartet, With Sanroma as Pianist, Meets Test In Taxing Meridian Hill Program

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

A work of Schumann and Shostakovich side by side on a program is enough to tax the artistry of any group, but the Tanglewood String Quartet, assisted by Jesus Maria Sanroma, pianist, came through the test with flying colors last night at Meridian Hill Park. A capacity audience responded with great enthusiasm to the many varying moods the splendid musicianship of the artists conjured up in these diversified compositions.

It is rather a coincidence that almost a century separated the birth dates of Schumann and Shostakovich and the first public performance of the quintets programmed yesterday. That space of time and all that happened between in musical composition is bridged, in a way, for the two composers on a common plane of genius. Schumann's is an expression of his own serene nature and the uncomplicated way of life of his era, while in the same way Shostakovich reflects his environment and the way of thinking of the present day.

Many Jews End Lives Fleeing Mass Arrests Ordered by Gestapo

27,000 Held in Paris In Wave of Terrorism Lasting 5 Days

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 4.—The French police, prodded by the German Gestapo, started mass arrests of Jews in Paris suddenly at 4 a.m. July 16 and touched off at least five days of terror during which many committed suicide rather than submit to arrest, according to a letter reprinted in the newspaper Berner Tagwacht yesterday.

In all, 27,000 were arrested and sent to concentration camps as previously reported in brief dispatches. Yesterday's letter, giving details of the roundup, was printed by the Tagwacht with the editorial comment that "we cannot keep silent."

The writer of the letter said that, although the arrests were continuing on the date of the writing, July 21, with Jews being picked up on the streets.

"We passed many terrible hours," the writer said, citing several instances of women who jumped out of windows with their children rather than submit to arrest.

Women were interned in the Paris Hippodrome, while girls and women without children were taken to Drancy to await final determination of their cases. Some deaths were reported among those arrested, along with many cases of scarlet fever and measles.

The Hippodrome was filled with so many people that there was room for them to sleep only in a sitting position.

The writer of the letter said that many Parisians extended sympathy to the Jews, warning them not to go to their apartments. Keys to cellars and vacant apartments were given Jews so that they could escape the Gestapo. Children left behind were quickly adopted.

There were a few cases of apartments left behind by Jews being plundered, the writer said, but he added that these were few.

Up to the time of writing no direct word had been received from the arrested Jews, the writer said. It has been reported that Jews first taken to Drancy since have been sent to Germany and Poland.

Harlow Gets 2 to 6 Years On Charges of Larceny

Marvin Richard Harlow, former cellmate of John Eugene Eklund and a Government witness at Eklund's recent murder trial, was sentenced in District Court yesterday to from two to six years on his plea of guilty to six charges of house-breaking and larceny.

Justice James W. Morris, who presided at the Eklund trial, imposed the sentence, saying he was taking into consideration Harlow's service to the Government. The jurist said he had given the defendant a jail term, however, in view of his lengthy criminal record.

The sentence provided that Harlow, who is a narcotics addict, be sent to an institution for treatment. The thefts from the drug stores consisted of narcotics.

Harlow testified at the Eklund trial that Eklund had confessed to him the fatal shooting of Hylan McClaine, colored. Eklund was sentenced to from 15 years to life imprisonment for the killing.

Assistant United States Attorney John L. Laskey handled the Harlow case.

Move for Registration Of Women Gains Impetus

By Susan B. Anthony II

Two significant developments show that registration of America's 42,000,000 women between the ages of 18 and 65 is being seriously considered to meet increasing shortages of male labor. One is the voluntary registration of women to take place in the Detroit area. This polling, which, according to Miss Thelma McKelvey of the War Manpower Commission, will occur in the next few weeks, will be sponsored regionally by the War Production Board, Manpower Commission, United States Employment Service, labor and management. It will ascertain numbers, skills and family responsibilities of the area's women labor reserves.

Second indication is the White House statement last week that a national war service bill calling for mobilization of all the Nation's manpower is being drafted. Registration of women is understood to be included among provisions under consideration.

One bill providing for registration of women under the selective service system was introduced by Representative Joseph C. Baldwin, Republican, of New York early in the spring. No action has been taken on it, however, other than to refer it to the House Military Affairs Committee. And as far back as December, 1941, Miss McKelvey, Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau, and Nelle Miles of the Bureau of Employment Security, who constituted a subcommittee on the utilization of women workers, urged a nationwide voluntary registration of women as the first step in mobilizing womanpower.

If and when a national registration is held of America's 42,000,000 women, it is not known whether it will be compulsory or voluntary.

Great Britain tried voluntary registration of women for many months. It finally was found that it failed to produce results—either of useful over-all information on the women, or of getting women to the field and factory bench.

In April, 1941, the English started compulsory registration so that today two-thirds of the entire English population between the ages of 14 and 64 are enrolled for war work. More than half of the entire population of 47,000,000 persons is engaged in war work directly or indirectly. America has more than 28,000,000 non-employed housewives, according to the 1940 cen-

U. S. Navy Is Biggest In World, Radio Forum Audience Is Told

Martin, McCormack and Rear Admiral Jacobs Heard in Broadcast

The American Navy "now is the biggest in the world," offering a "challenge of service to every patriotic American man who expects to fight for his country's freedom." So declared Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, majority leader of the House, who joined last night with Representative Martin, also of Massachusetts, House minority leader, in the National Radio Forum program in the interest of Navy recruiting. Sponsored by The Star, the program was heard over the Blue Network, including local station WMAL. A concluding appeal was made by Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Representative Martin, when asked how many men will be in the Navy, declared that figure was not given out by the Navy, but he added: "I think it's safe to say, though, that before this war is over and victory is won the American Navy will total a million men."

We Must Fight Now. Admitting that men joining the Navy "face danger," Representative McCormack declared, "We will face an ever greater danger in the future if we do not fight with everything in our power to remove this danger and remove it now."

Until the American victory in the battle of Midway, he said, "Japan could feel somewhat secure in the knowledge that she had superiority in sea power. The battle of Midway changed all that," he assured his hearers. "Today United States naval forces in the Pacific are equal or nearly equal to those of the Rising Sun, which will soon be a setting sun. There is even the possibility that American forces are superior in number to what remains of the Japanese fleet. In any case, Japan cannot possibly replace her severe losses with anything like the speed with which America is building ships and planes."

Referring to Massachusetts as a place where "much of America's early history was made," Representative Martin declared that men lining up at recruiting stations there show that "the spirit of '76 flames as brightly today as ever."

Advantages of Navy Cited. "Tonight the Navy stands in vital need of thousands of volunteers," he said, "thousands of men who will be needed and are now needed to man our vast and ever-growing fleets."

The speakers outlined many details of the advantages offered to young Americans to enlist in the Navy, including training and advancement in "49 different trades and vocations."

Under the new law recently enacted for allowances to dependents, Representative Martin pointed out that it would "ease the financial strain on all men who are in our armed forces." Under the law, he pointed out, apprentice seamen, second and first class and petty officers third class may contribute for their dependents $2 a month from their pay. To this amount, he explained, the Government will add $28 a month for a wife, plus $12 a month for the first child and $10 a month for each additional child. For other members of the family who are proved to be dependent, the Government will also contribute $15 a month for one parent, $25 a month for two parents and $5 for each other family dependent up to a total of $30. Promotions, he pointed out, increase both allowances and benefits.

Enlisted Man Is Backbone. Representative McCormack described the feat of Donald Francis Mason, who sent the famous message, "Sighted sub—sank same," as an "epic of heroism" on the part of an enlisted pilot.

Admiral Jacobs declared the "enlisted man is the backbone of the Navy." "He is a hard-working, hard-fighting man who is trained to do his job and do it well," added the speaker. "He knows that he will face danger. But he knows that his own efforts and his own ingenuity will receive a quick reward—a reward which can be counted in promotion, in increased pay and in the added respect of his fellow fighting men which is best summed in the Navy phrase, 'Well done.' Never in Navy history has there been a greater need for men who can fight hard, who can think straight and who can display the typical American courage born of devotion to our flag."

Russian War Relief Opens D. C. Drive For $100,000

Campaign Chairman Sees Aid as 'Investment' In Allied Cause

American dollars given to Russian War Relief, Inc., will buy more resistance to Hitlerism than any other monetary manner. Campaign Chairman Charles F. Horner said yesterday as the District drive for $100,000 got under way.

Mr. Horner said Russia's fight against Germany is exacting terrific casualties, adding that the Red Army can restore more than 60 per cent of its wounded fighters to battle zones if given medical and surgical supplies. Money raised in Washington will be applied for that purpose, he stated.

Headquarters Opened.

The local drive began yesterday with the public opening of headquarters offices at 1218 Connecticut avenue N.W. Attractive posters extolling Russia's contribution to the Allied Nations hung from the walls.

Mr. Horner, recalling President Roosevelt's statement that Russia is doing more to destroy our enemy's troops, tanks, guns and planes than all the other United Nations together, said current newspaper headlines tell the story of Russia's plight.

Sees 'Splendid Investment.'

"If our money can help restore wounded soldiers to the Red Army it will be a splendid American investment, not only in terms of actual military manpower, but also for the psychological advantage," Mr. Horner said. "It will let the Russian people know that, aside from lease-lend aid, America is helping to nurse fighting Russian men back to the battle zones."

The District drive for $100,000 will be waged during August. Government departments and agencies, Mr. Horner stated, are organized, and solicitations are being made with approval of Government officials. No elaborate city-wide campaign organization has been set up, Mr. Horner said, adding that his headquarters, after investigation, is approving groups which stage Russian benefits. Contributions also will be received at the Connecticut avenue headquarters offices.

Friendly Plane Causes Canal Zone Raid Alarm

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Panama Canal Zone, Aug. 4.—The Panama Canal Zone underwent a one-hour general air-raid alarm yesterday afternoon after a friendly plane not immediately identifiable had touched off the strategic waterway's elaborate defense system.

The plane first was spotted while heading toward Panama across the Gulf of Chiriqui at an estimated speed of 250 miles per hour. It soon was identified, but Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commander of the Caribbean defense zone, decided to prolong the alarm for a full test of the Canal's defenses.

The alarm was the first since shortly after the United States entered the war.

President Extends Soviet Trade Pact

President Roosevelt yesterday proclaimed the agreement reached last week with Soviet Russia to extend the Soviet-American commercial agreement of 1937 for another year. Now that it has been proclaimed by the President, the extension will formally take effect on ratification by the Council of People's Commissars of the U. S. S. R.

Reich Rail Terminals Vulnerable Points, Building Unit Is Told

Paul Wooton Declares Destruction May Raak With Blasting Factories

Terminating transportation the Achilles heel of Germany, Paul Wooton, Washington newspaper correspondent, yesterday said future developments may prove that destruction of German railway terminals is as important as destroying war factories in the Reich.

"The German railway situation was bad even in peacetime," he told members of the Washington Building Congress at a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower Hotel. "That's why Hitler built a system of highways."

Mr. Wooton contended the American people are not in a frame of mind that makes for all-out war, but "that will come when mounting casualty lists are of immediate concern to every home, and when domestic restrictions, such as lack of hot water, create nationwide anger against the Axis."

Sees No Separate Peace.

He also declared that Russia will not make a separate peace with Germany, because she has suffered too heavily. Driving the Germans out of Russia means recovery of lands; even Stalin, if personally disposed to make a separate peace, would have great difficulty in convincing local Soviet leaders that the war should be called off.

He told the Buildings Congress members that war materials are being moved from American ports to battle zones. Bottlenecks may exist at some factories, causing materials to be piled up there, he said, but the actual shipping bottlenecks have been broken, he asserted.

Sees Benefits in Publicity.

Mr. Wooton, who is secretary-treasurer of the White House Correspondents' Association and chairman of the board of the National Press Club, saw handicaps in too much secrecy in America's war effort, saying:

"Correspondents do not want to give the enemy even 5 per cent information. Unless there are compelling military reasons for secrecy, we feel that if war information is of 60 per cent value to Americans and 40 per cent to the enemy, the net gain in favor of America makes it desirable often to release such information to the American people."

The current war picture is blue from the standpoint of the United Nations, but "every one expected it to be just that this summer," he declared. As between pessimism and optimism, Mr. Wooton said he preferred to be optimistic over the long pull, and warned against excessive pessimism or optimism.

Three Killed in Panic During Montreal Fire

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—Panic following a small fire in the East End Ontario wrestling stadium resulted last night in three deaths and a score of men, women and children were injured, some seriously.

The dead: Mrs. Mathilda Cote, 63; Denise Wisart, 8, and an unidentified woman about 25.

All three were crushed in a rush at one of the exits.

They were in an audience of 2,000 persons watching an amateur night variety show in the semi-open stadium when a small fire broke out under the south wooden stands.

Use of Horses Brings Fine

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 4 (AP).—W. B. Furbert, liveryman and member of the Bermuda Assembly, was fined $25 in police court yesterday because he used his horses for a wedding when his rationing permit allowed him to use them only for drawing hearses.

Refused Aid for Getaway, Fugitive Kills Wife, Self

ROUNDUP, Mont., Aug. 4.—Angered because his wife refused him money to buy gasoline to make a getaway, Harvey Cline, an escaped convict, shot and killed her and committed suicide, Sheriff Jess Burns reported today.

The sheriff related: Leaving his hideout in the Bull Mountains, Cline, 41, went to the home of his mother-in-law in Melstone where his wife, Gwendolyn, 31, was staying. As Mrs. Cline cowered in the kitchen he fired two rifle shots into her body.

Outside, he shot away his jaw. Five hours later he died in a hospital. He had asked physicians to use chloroform for the operation on him and that he "not be permitted to get well."

The convict, serving a term for larceny, escaped from the State prison at Deer Lodge July 26. He turned up at the home and was refused the money for gasoline for a stolen truck. The refusal prompted him to slash at his wife with a knife. In that attack she suffered only a hand wound.

New Front 'Idle Dream,' Duce Tells Yugoslavs

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 4.—An unheralded speech by Premier Mussolini to warn against "idle dreams" about a second front was disclosed today.

Mussolini flew to Gorizia, in Northeast Italy near the border of Slovenia, July 31, and made one of his famous balcony speeches from the staff headquarters there after conferences with his officers on measures to keep order in the Italian-occupied area of Yugoslavia.

"The law in Italy will be applied in unrelenting manner against those who nourish idle dreams on this or that side of the frontier," dispatches to Switzerland quoted him as declaring.

"There will not be a second front here any more than elsewhere in the world. The Axis and the tripartite powers have in their hands the means for victory."

Gambler Confesses Slaying Two Partners For 'Double-Cross'

Broadway Bookmaker Says Pair Hedged Bets Of $350,000 on Willkie

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Old-fashioned gamblers' justice—revenge with bullets for a double-cross in dollars—was the motive given by Broadway bookmaker who admittedly slew two former associates as they sat playing cards.

Not since the notorious Arnold Rothstein paid with his life 14 years ago, apparently for welching on a bet, has New York had such a vengeful killing as that which yesterday left Robert B. Greene, 40, and Morris (Dimples) Wolenski, 54, dead, and Max Fox, 48-year-old convict, behind bars.

Masked Killer.
"They did me dirt," Fox was quoted by Assistant District Attorney Louis A. Pagnucco as saying in confessing he was the masked gunman who shot the pair in a midtown bridge club early Monday morning.

As Fox was booked on homicide charges, Mr. Pagnucco said the former bookmaker poured out a tale of how Greene and Wolenski had reduced him from a big-time bookie to a virtually destitute gambler with an office "in my hat."

It was on $350,000 of election wagers in the 1940 presidential campaign that Fox claimed Greene and Wolenski "double-crossed" him, their partner, by "hedging" bets without informing him and leaving him holding the bag.

Fox's story was that Greene had handled the placing of the election bets, announcing he was putting down $350,000 on Wendell Willkie at 3-to-1 odds against President Roosevelt. Fox said about $75,000 of this belonged to him personally.

Squeezed Out by Bet Shift.
But later, Fox went on, Greene must have decided that Willkie would lose, so he protected most of the bets by wagering on Mr. Roosevelt.

Fox said that after Mr. Willkie lost, Greene told him the firm was wiped out. But, Fox added, he later found that Greene had lied to him and had squeezed him out to continue in the business with Wolenski.

Fox, who in 1924 was sentenced to a 5-to-10-year Sing Sing Prison term for attempted robbery, said he had a wife and three children and that, being unable to make enough money as a lone gambler, had made his hatred of Greene and Wolenski rancid ever deeper.

Farm Operated by Five Women Without Any Aid From Men

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Minn., Aug. 4.—The wartime farm labor shortage poses no problems for the Rotter girls—they run their own farm.

Except at threshing time and to get the hay in the barn, when a neighbor comes over, a man hasn't worked on the place since old John Rotter, pioneer Southern Minnesota farmer, died in 1926 and left his farm to his widow and four girls.

The neighbors told the women to sell the place—they never could run a farm alone—but they sold the Rotter girls short.

Ide, Adelinde, Mathilda and Anna, the daughters, looked things over and decided they could do it. Sixteen years have passed since their father died and they are still on the farm.

16,246 Pleas for Extra Gas Are Considered
Local rationing boards have disposed of 16,246 applications for supplemental gasoline, it was announced last night by the OPA District office. There were no figures available to show how many applications had been rejected and how many approved.

Out of the total of 23,231 applications filed, only 6,985 remain to be acted on, officials stated. Post cards are being mailed out to notify applicants of the action of their local ration boards, it was explained.

Unaided, they raise about 120 hogs and 300 laying hens a year, milk 15 cows, care for 10 horses used in farm work, cultivate 45 acres of corn, 24 acres of barley, 60 acres of oats and besides do all the usual chores of farm women. Their 83-year-old mother helps with lighter house duties.

Besides that, they've built a new barn, chicken house, corn crib, windmill and well, hog house and machine shed since they took over.

Until four years ago they did all their work without a tractor. Incidentally, you never see machinery standing around in the open on their farm. They have a shed for it and keep it there. The rest of the place is just as orderly.

No sir, lack of men never is a problem at the Rotter farm.

Willkie Lists Three Principles to Take War Out of Politics

Urges Party Unity Until Aggression Is Halted Throughout World

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Three basic "unity" principles by which he said Republicans and Democrats could take the war objectives out of the congressional and State political campaigns are advanced by Wendell L. Willkie. With these proposals, he coupled bases of "constructive criticism" for Republican use.

At a press conference, Mr. Willkie urged both parties yesterday to incorporate in their convention platforms these principles:
"1.—America must fight this war in union with other countries until the last vestige of totalitarianism and aggression is destroyed throughout the world.

"2.—No matter how long and painful the road to complete victory, it must be pursued with no thought of appeasement.

"3.—When the war is over, we must set up institutions and methods of international political and economic co-operation to the end that excessive nationalistic ideas and military ambitions will find no spawning grounds."

Mr. Willkie listed these "constructive criticism" issues on which Republicans might campaign:
"The efficiency of the Government's war effort; its failures and delays in administration, its confused handling of the subtle and dangerous questions of inflation, etc.; its refusal to deal realistically with the need for a united command of our own armed forces and the development with our allies of a co-ordinate strategy; its waiting until after the election on the inevitable necessity of drafting men below the age of 21; and above all its tragic dulling of the American people's eager will to sacrifice by a multitude of ill-considered and conflicting directives."

Such a campaign, he said, "will not disunite but will strengthen America."

Borden Murders in Gay 90s Still Classed as 'Perfect Crime'

Widow of Col. Howe Disputes Story Suspect Became Recluse After Acquittal

By the Associated Press.

FAIR RIVER, Mass., Aug. 4.—"Lizzie Borden was the most kind-hearted and most charitable woman I ever knew. The time has come when she might well be allowed to rest in peace."

This on the 50th anniversary of the famed "Borden case"—unsolved Bay State murder mystery that was the Nation's No. 1 breakfast table topic in the gay 90s—was the central figure, the late Miss Lisbeth Borden, eulogized today by her cousin and friend, Mrs. Grace Howe. Mrs. Howe, Fair River postmaster and widow of Louis McIntyre Howe, former private secretary to President Roosevelt, is a member of that group which contends Lizzie was the target of much unfavorable—even vicious—publicity in the years following her trial and acquittal in the ax murder of her wealthy father and stepmother in the family residence.

Recluse Story Disputed.
In an interview, Mrs. Howe refuted the general impression that Lizzie became a disillusioned recluse after her acquittal.
"True, she did not mingle much with her people, but she maintained a keen interest in Fair River and did a large amount of anonymous charity work," Mrs. Howe said. "I know of several cases where she aided young people through college and she gave much money to animal shelters, including a large bequest in her will to the Animal Rescue League."

The judges, lawyers and witnesses—in fact, all participants in the famed trial—are long since dead but this has not caused a complete abatement of interest in the "perfect crime."

Numerous books and hundreds of magazine articles, even plays have been written about the macabre doings in the Borden home on the morning of August 4, 1892.

Poems Written About Case.
International criminologists have termed it the most interesting murder in American criminal history. Rhymsters even composed poems about the case that were intoned by school children.

Mandel Mark, 73, now owns the old residence and he told yesterday how many tourists including some from the Midwest, still approach him for permission to ramble through the old house and see the rooms where the murders were committed.

Miss Borden lived in this quiet mill city until her death on July 1, 1927, and she never discussed the case.

Italians Sour on War; Even Tobruk Capture Gets Scant Notice

Food Situation Is Bad, Minor Rows and Mutual Suspicion Abound

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN, Foreign Correspondent of The Star.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Italians are now so completely sour on the war that even the recent capture of Tobruk failed to arouse any enthusiasm in Rome, according to reports reaching your correspondent from the Italian capital.

According to these reports, the food situation is bad with a tendency to deteriorate, prices are sky-high and Rome is seething with minor political rows and mutual suspicion. Spaghetti is now almost black in color and oil—one of the basic items of the Italian diet—costs the pre-war equivalent of $5 a quart. "National shoes," with high tops, cost 150 lire a pair, roughly the equivalent of $8. Coffee, another dietary staple, is unavailable to civilians and 3 ounces of tea cost $6.

Torn By Friction.

Both the Fascist Party and the once tame Roman aristocracy are torn by friction. Il Duce, as usual, is entirely in the driver's seat. Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, who still is regarded as pro-British, has practically nothing to do with foreign affairs, and his former private secretary, Philippe Anfuso, does most of his former work.

Anfuso is having a high-powered romance with the wife of a German diplomat.

Maj. Ettore Muti, former secretary of the Fascist Party, who fell into disgrace, has not been seen since he went on an air raid over Malta some time ago. His former job is now in the hands of Aldo Vidussoli, a cocky young fellow of 26 whose principal qualification for high office seems to be that he recently married the sister of a friend of Il Duce.

The crowded Roman prisons are now dignified by the presence of many Roman aristocrats including representatives of such families as the Dorias, the Ruspolis and the Respiellosi. At the same time many harmless English people wander about freely.

U. S. Diplomat Blamed.

One victim of police wrath is the indiscretion of a young American diplomat for her plight. While American diplomats were awaiting repatriation, the diplomat in question eluded his guard and attended a party given by Countess Cini, sister of Senator Cini. Later, according to reports in Rome, he told his story in Lisbon with the result that both Countess Cini and the woman who took the American to the party were arrested and sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

According to these same reports, the Pope has refused to fill 25 vacant bishoprics in Spain on the ground that he will not have Phalangists in the posts. The impression in Rome is that Spain is definitely out of the war. During the recent visit to Rome of Francisco Franco's Foreign Minister, Ramon Serrano y Suner, Il Duce continued to bask in the sun at Rimini and the only honor given the Spanish Nazi was a reception by the King. Roman gossip is that Serrano Suner is about to resign and accept the appointment of Ambassador to Rome.

Administration Is Hit For War News Policy

By the Associated Press.

Representative Mason, Republican, of Illinois told the House yesterday that the administration had taken the attitude that "the American people did not have the courage or the stamina to receive bad news and stand up under the blows of adversity."

As a result, Representative Mason said, "many people have remained more or less complacent because the information given them by the propaganda agencies and press agencies of the bureaucracy at Washington has been such as to justify their complacency."

"This complacency," Representative Mason contended, "is the direct result of the administration's policy of applying the soft pedal to our war reverses and the loud pedal to our war successes, thereby creating a false impression of the war situation."

Doomed Woman Slayer Not Haunted by Victim

By ELLIOTT CHAZE, Wide World.

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 4.—Toni Jo Henry balanced her chair against the thick steel bars of her death cell and said she might as well "kick the lid off."

"Most folks wonder what goes on in the mind of a condemned person," she said. "All right, I'll tell you. Maybe it'll help some reader. Most of us must seem like crossword puzzles to readers, the way we're photographed behind these bars."

Toni Jo Henry is a 26-year-old, slim brunet sentenced to die here August 10 for the 1940 St. Valentine Day slaying of a Houston (Tex.) salesman. She appealed her case three times before it was dismissed by the State Supreme Court.

"In the first place, the victim doesn't return to haunt me. I never think of him. I've known all along it would be my life for his. I believe mine is worth as much to me as his was to him. I wonder though, sometimes, why it's legal now for some fellow to kill me."

Worried About Brother.

"Another thing: I have a brother going overseas with the Army any day now.

"I hope he gets off before I'm electrocuted. I think he might try to stop a bullet over there, and I wake up at night, you see, and my nerves yell and jerk at me; because he might try to stop a bullet."

She lighted a cigarette and fingered her lighter.

"That lighter is guaranteed for a lifetime," she laughed. "You know one person whose lifetime lighter lasted a lifetime. Funny, I never thought it would outlast me. Maybe I'll smash it August the 10th."

"And this is funny, too. I'm worried a little about 'Able's Irish Rose'."

"I never saw many stage plays, see. 'Able's Irish Rose' is a radio serial and every day I used to listen to it. Got the damndest laugh trying to reconcile a Jewish father and a mother as Irish as Paddy's cow. But they discontinued the serial until September. I won't be here in September. I'm scared to death because I don't know where I'll be in September and 'Able's Irish Rose' will go right on without me, laughing and fussing and making wonderful noises for everybody else."

Husband Is in Jail.

Toni Jo is a nimble conversationalist; speaks with a slight Spanish accent, a tricky hanger "from learning to talk Tex-Mex when I lived in Texas." She never finished grade school.

It was in San Antonio, Tex., in 1939 that she met Claude "Cowboy" penitentiary for the fatal shooting of a law officer.

Toni Jo has testified repeatedly that she and her accomplice Finnon Burks killed Joseph P. Callaway, 42, that they might use his car in robbing a bank. The money in turn, was to be employed in effecting "Cowboy" Henry's release from prison.

Late in July, after Gov. Sam Jones had signed her death warrant, officers cautiously confiscated Toni Jo's sewing implements.

Barring unexpected intervention by Gov. Jones, she will be the first white woman to die by electrocution in Louisiana, the second to suffer capital punishment.

The royal family planned to mark the day only with a luncheon.

American Ambulance Unit Evacuates Wounded At Daba Until Nazis Pound 12 Miles Away

The writer of this dispatch is serving as a driver with an American field service unit operating in Egypt. Mr. Hyatt's home is in Terre Haute, Ind.

By DAVE HYATT,
 By Air Mail to The Star and North American Newspaper Alliance.

WITH AN AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE UNIT IN EGYPT, July 12.—Credit for splendid work under fire in recent weeks goes in particular to two members of our ambulance company. Tor Torland, former NBC newscaster from Denver, who gave up his job to serve in the field, conducted a convoy of 40 ambulances from Daba to Ghabinyat under a barrage from Jerry night fighters. At the same time, with a German patrol only 12 miles away, Arthur Howe, Jr., ex-Yale man, supervised the work of the American field service in the evacuation of the wounded from Daba.

In the big retreat which began at Tobruk, under the leadership of Capt. King we moved back wounded all along the line from Tobruk to Matruh, from Matruh to Daba, from Daba to Ghabinyat, and from Ghabinyat to Alexandria. Howe in particular during these hectic weeks proved his value.

Found Suitable Route.
 Sent out on a reconnaissance job to find a track to Oxford Circus, a crossroad in the middle of the desert where a casualty clearing station had to be evacuated before Jerry moved in, Howe and his companions explored the terrain and finally found a suitable route. All along the way they ran into lost drivers in lorries without food, without water and without maps. They gave the men rations, water and supplies, and proper bearings to get back to the main road.

The first night Howe and his men spent in the desert, a continuous storm of enemy night fighters bombed and strafed the areas all about them. One pilot dove down on their vehicle, came within 15 feet of the ambulance roof, then apparently saw the red cross, respected it, stayed his trigger, and zoomed on to a point where destruction was considered more legal.

Late the next day Howe returned with a satisfactory route and early next morning our entire unit headed south into unmarked terrain and, by compass navigation, found the casualty station, cleared it of all patients and got them safely out before Jerry swung up through the same area to box in Matruh.

Camped on Beach.
 At Matruh, under the direction of Lt. Marsh of the AFS, we evacuated the South African casualty clearing station only three days before the position fell. We camped on the beach a few miles from town. Twice when not on runs, we had to dive into slit trenches when Jerry came over in broad daylight. The first time he came over, a load of a mile east of us, the second time he hit the vast petrol dump the west side of town. Our third night in the area he bombed the camp just across the road. After several hits, there was light enough to read but no one was reading; the anti-aircraft guns blazing all around us and over our heads were deafening. Next day we hauled patients back to Dara and valuable hospital equipment to the hospital train.

The days that followed were strangely filled with boredom except for a few hectic hours when our services were needed and needed at once. We got no news of what was going on except from the wounded and they only knew what had happened immediately about them.

We had to be on call at all times for further evacuations as Jerry's tremendous offensive continued. Because we were just behind the fighting, we also had to be ready at a moment's notice to move back ourselves. We sat in our ambulances and waited and then suddenly frantic rush orders would come—to clear out a casualty station before it got bombed, to clear out ourselves. In seven days we moved camp 10 times. Each time we had a run we would return to our headquarters nearer Alexandria. Our worst adventures thus far occurred when we got pushed back to Daba, only 100 miles from Alexandria.

Torland was chosen to lead a convoy of 20 Indian ambulances and 20 of ours to Ghabinyat. All was quiet in the western desert and it looked like a routine night and run, difficult with no lights, but no worse than usual, with a full moon to help light the way. The full moon proved the jinx. Jerry night fighters had chosen that night for heavy operations. All night they bombed and strafed the road. Half a dozen times, the convoy stopped and patients able to move were helped away from the vehicles. Drivers with stretcher cases had to stand by their ambulances.

One vehicle came back with machine gun bullets in it, but fortunately the sitting patients were 40 yards away when Jerry zoomed down. A quarter of the way down, a bomb burst but the plane disappeared. The convoy continued. They found two men on a Bren-gun carrier, one already dead, his chest a sieve, the other with a bullet through his throat. Sitting patients from one ambulance were doubled up in others, and Howard Terrill rushed the wounded man back to the casualty station.

Again the convoy continued, only to be strafed three more times. Three Indian drivers went hysterical. A RAF officer, with a wound in his leg, held a pistol behind me to keep him from driving pell-mell out into the desert. Tor joked, then threatened the two others with a knife and managed to keep them on the road.

Fled With Ambulance.
 Nevertheless, all went well until the outskirts of Ghabinyat. Another Jerry attack sent the Indian driver with the RAF officer wildly off into the wastelands. What happened to the officer and the three other unfortunate patients perhaps never will be known. They may have turned up after dawn broke, or it may have been kismet for all four. But except for one vehicle lost, through 10 hours on the road to cover considerably less than 100 miles, though attacked six times by night fighters, Torland led the convoy safely to the hospital.

Meanwhile Howe and I were just getting into our ambulance to head up forward in case more transport was needed when Jerry opened fire on our camp. For an hour he circled back and forth, dropping loads close by but hitting nothing. Then for 15 minutes he was quiet and we figured he'd gone home to bed. We no sooner got to the road than he opened up again. We dove into an old petrol dump 20 yards from our car, waited till he passed, then hit the road again. Twice on the road enemy planes forced us to get out of our car, but by 1 o'clock we reached the casualty station just this side of Daba and reported on call for night duty.

Howe Took Charge.
 At Daba we were attached to the 14th motor ambulance company. Howe, in the absence of our officers, took charge and worked directly with Maj. May.

"We're bound to retreat temporarily, but we'll stay here till we have to move back," the fighting Irish major grinned, "and if the field ambulances get taken we'll wait until the last possible moment and move out what wounded we can."

He was right about an inevitable retreat and we stayed till the last possible moment. Under Howe's able supervision, as fast as field ambulances and lorries brought in the wounded, our men and the Tommy MAC unit cleared them away. But the second night shelling thundered west and south of us, and we all began wondering where Jerry was. Next morning I went six miles up forward beyond Daba to get water for our gang. The road was ominously barren of vehicles. At the water point I found troops loading the well with Crocote and digging in machine gun nests all along the escarpment.

"Where's Jerry?" I asked a dispatch rider who had just come from headquarters at Daba. "He was just 12 miles away last night," he said, "and God knows where he is now."

We waited at the station for five more hours, till the road was solid with retreating vehicles; then, when it looked like no more patients were coming, the major gave orders to evacuate the entire station, and tents and stretchers and all medical equipment were hurriedly piled into lorries. Last man to leave the place was "our boy Howe," as he's kiddingly called by his friends.

Winning Contract By THE FOUR ACES.

Not a Real Misfit... The bidding: South West North East... The reason is that North would have made exactly the same bids with a real misfit.

Eleven tricks were made in the play, as well they might be. Who was responsible for missing the game? We think North was the timid one in this case.

Spies! Mines Attached to Vessels In Port Explode at Sea

The submarines knew when they were to sail and were waiting for them.

(Twenty-second of a Series.)

Every week some of our merchant ships are sunk, some by chance encounters with submarines, some because the submarines were waiting for them and knew when they were to sail, and some by sabotage. If you know anything about ship movements keep it to yourself.

However, if you are near the water front, look out for suspicious small boats, and report them. Remember, many mines and bombs are attached from the outside.

Devilish Device.
During World War I, our enemies developed a number of diabolically clever devices to sink our ships and those of our Allies. These caused U-boats to be credited with many ships which were never struck by a torpedo, but sunk by saboteurs who were never aboard the doomed ship, and who never left the water front.

Most ingenious of these devices was the rudder mine, depending on the fact that, as ships are usually started on their outward journey by a fleet of officious little tugs, the rudder seldom is called into violent action until a steamer is well at sea.

May Be Used Today.
Attached by divers from small boats to the ship's rudder, the mine was arranged so that any real use of the rudder brought the bomb's detonator into contact with the ship's hull. The resulting explosion, from the outside of the hull, produced results similar to those of a torpedo.

Time bombs attached to the ships hulls in a similar manner produced the same results.

Both of these devices were used. There is little doubt that some variant of them is in use today, because there can't be enough U-boats off our coast to account for all of the ships credited to them. So beware of the saboteur. Look out for unauthorized small boats prowling around ships, and report them. They might be innocent, but—!
