Allies Hold Solomon Island Gains, Beating Off Japs' Counterattacks; Reds' Bases on Black Sea Periled

Fresh Supplies Are Received In Australia

By the Associated Press. 'We are holding our own. . . .

In five words, the United States received news today indicating American marines were beating off furious Japanese counterattacks in the 5-day-old battle of the Solomon Islands, 900 miles northeast of Australia, as Allied naval and air forces covered the long-range invasion. Australia's Prime Minister John Curtin, announcing at least an even break in the struggle that may mark a turning point of the Far Pacific conflict, said Allied gains so far apparently had greatly outweighed

At the same time, an Australian Government spokesman disclosed that shipments of supplies of the "highest possible value" which would revolutionize offensive operations in the north" had arrived in Aus-

The leading newspapers of the country-including The Evening Star-yesterday were the victims of overzealous Army pressagentry, and as a result, participated unwittingly in what now appears to be the great enemy air-marker hoax.

Both of these "markers" were removed after an investigation by the Army months ago after the pictures - published only yesterday - had been made.

A third picture in the lot, which was distributed to the press by Col. Dache M. So far as is Admiral King previously had said known, the field actually exists. The following memorandum on the matter was issued today by the

Blackout Test Violators Won't Be Prosecuted

No Basis Found For Officials to Take Court Action

Blackout violators responsible for the failure of last night's surprise test to come up to official expectations escaped prosecution today when it was discovered that no regulations had been issued to cover the unannounced test.

While police were preparing about 100 cases to take to court and officials were condemning the "exceedingly ragged and slow" extinguishing of lights, it was found that the District had no basis on which to prosecute.

Army-Navy 'E' Given Boeing Plant for Production Speed

Thousands of Workers Attend Ceremonies at Aircraft Factory

By ALFRED TOOMBS, Star Staff Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 11.-The Army-Navy "E" pennant flapped in the breeze today over the spot where this country is hatching the world's most formidable bomber-and the Axis thereby gained a 45-minute

All work stopped in the Boeing aircraft factory, where the Flying Fortress is made, for three-quarters of an hour yesterday while thousands of workers assembled outside the plant to receive their reward for a job well done.

It marked the first time the award -a sort of industrial Distinguished Service Medal-had been made to an airplane manufacturer. To those who know the record of the Flying Fortress in this war, the E-for-excellent rating seemed almost an

One of Rare Pauses.

This was only the second time since December 7 that work in the Boeing plant had stopped for even a minute. The other occasion was the visit of Capt. Hewitt T. Wheeless the Flying Fortress pilot who was mentioned by President Roosevelt in a report to the Nation some Capt. Wheeless was here yesterday, along with other American At Two Plane Parts flyers who have piloted the B-17 bombers against the enemy. They heard the workmen cheer and sing Plants in Cleveland as the red, white, blue and gold pennant was raised above the plant The award was made to the Boeing plant not alone for the high quality of its lethal product. P. G. Johnson, president of the company, told reporters that Boeing was capable of producing 40 per cent more planes than was originally contemplated. If materials could be obtained, he said that the production rate of Flying Fortresses would almost be doubled.

The war out here is a much grimmer business than in the East. They are conscious that the enemy is near off somewhere in the Pacific fog and perhaps not very far. The Boeing plants here are heavily guarded by soldiers who squint of strangers approach.

The Boeing workers, jam-packed around a bunting-draped stand, heard congratulatory remarks from Gov. Arthur B. Langlie and Col. Charles W. Steinmetz, who represented the Secretaries of the War

They cheered Col. Eugene L. Eubank, the Air Forces officer who terday. commanded our squadrons of Flying Fortresses in action in the Philippines, Java and points south. Then, when the pennant had been raised. they joined in singing the National

Some one started the four motors on a just-completed bomber outside the factory doors as the thousands of voices took up the first verse. The roar of the engines was probably the most fitting accompaniment the anthem could have had.

And as the men and women filed back to their work the huge bomber was hauled out onto the factory airfield-its guns loaded and its fuel tanks full-ready to take off for a theater of operations.

4,000 Quit Work

Production Virtually Halted by Walkout At Graphite Bronze Co.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11.-A walkout by members of the Independent Mechanics' Educational Society America today virtually halted production at the two plants of the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co., major producer of warplane parts.

William Bullock, union business agent, termed the work stoppage a "labor holiday" called in protest against "discriminatory discharges" and said idleness of 4,000 of the company's 5,000 employes "completely shut down" the plants.

A company spokesman confirmed speculatively down the barrels of that 4,000 were out and the plants machine guns when they see a group "virtually shut down" but said some employes remained at their jobs and others had returned to work.

The company reported there no picketing at either of its plants. In an effort to obtain early settlement of grievances, upon and company representatives agreed to meet later today.

The work stoppage is the third in less than two months at Graphite Bronze. A two-member War Labor Board panel had opened a hearing on union grievances here only yes-

Union officials said the principal issue was the recent discharge of 21 workers. The company declared the men were discharged for taking unauthorized time off, incompetence and reporting for work in an unfit condition, while the union contended they were fired for union activities.

Other grievances include a proposed shift from piecework to day rates and a revision of toolroom wage scales.

In order to segregate the Russians and prohibit their existence as racial and linguistic units, Dr. Rosenberg's program calls for the scientific mixing up of the Ukrainian and White Russian populations, with national groups imported from Western Europe as well as Germany. This is the beginning of the application of Hitler's "new order" to Germanoccupied Western Russia, and the Dutch have been selected for the first experiment.

Dr. Rosenberg's "German colonizers" recently created a special colonizing organization, called "The Eastern Company," at The Hague. It is designed for the mass transfer of Dutch into sections of White Russia and the Ukraine, and is described by the Nazi press as an opportunity for the Dutch to get compensation for their losses in the

War Undersecretary Cites Combat Needs

The question of an immediate construction program for cargocarrying airplanes was discussed on the National Radio Forum last night, with Senator Lee, Democrat, of Oklahoma, declaring that "seaborne freight is too slow a method of supplying blitzkrieg armies," and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson warning that cargo planes will never replace ships.

The forum, arranged by The Star, is heard weekly over the Blue Network, and originates in the studios of WMAL Warning of the high rate of shipping losses from submarine attacks, Senator Lee said "the convoy route by way of Norway to Murmansk has become a graveyard for convovs.

"This is a dark picture, but I challenge anybody to dispute these statements. Now we can either continue in a grim race with death to see if we can build ships faster than Hitler can sink them or we can divert the material which is going into these surface ships to the construction, first, of cargo-carrying aircraft which can fly over the submarines, and second, to the construction of cargo-carrying submarines which can dive under the enemy's torpedoes.

Both Plans Called Practical. "Both of these plans are proven; both are practical; neither one is experimental.

If we are to get more troops abroad, if we are to add to the supplies of our allies. Senator Lee said. we must increase our capacity for delivering weapons. He said that Hitler was spending much to gain control of the Caucasus oil fields with the knowledge that when he holds those fields. Allied oil must be shipped from America and the ships will be targets for his submarines. Ships with speeds of 10 miles an hour are not suitable companions for an Army Air Force with a striking force of 300 miles per hour,

Senator Lee said he agreed with Army and Navy officials that materials needed for construction of warplanes should not be diverted to cargo planes, but added that "I do not agree with the defeatist attitude that we cannot get any more materials for the construction of a great fleet of cargo planes.'

Most Effective in Landing Operations

Marines Declared

Low-Silhouetted Boats May Have Been Used In Solomons Attack

the Associated Press

Snub-nosed, low-slung landing boats, with twin machine guns jutting from their armored bows and 30 to 50 fully armed Leathernecks aboard, strike most effectively against resistance in landing attacks. Marine Corps officials said

Such boats have been built for the marines by the Higgins Shipyards in New Orleans. They may well have been used in the Solomon Islands landing battle, although there was no definite information on that point.

While old-stlye rubber landing boats are sometimes used in surprise stabs at enemy coasts, the new low-silhouetted craft strike better in pitched battles, the officials said. Carry Equipment in Boats.

They are piloted by a Navy man or Coast Guardsman. The marines climb down the side of the large Navy ships or transports into the landing boats, into which is lowered their full battle equipment, including light machine guns. Later the vessels are used to bring up the heavier guns and mortars.

After the landing boats are loaded and maneuvered into rendezvous, they approach the shore in waves with the men crouching behind the boat's armored bow and with the helmsman the only occupant visible from the shore

As the boats approach the shore the big guns of the fleet blast loose while Fleet Marine Force planes bomb and strafe from overhead.

At this stage the marines, as they jump ashore, become visible to the enemy for the first time, and the landing operation is maneuvered in a way to avoid, as far as possible, presenting a concentrated target to enemy guns. Nevertheless, casualties in the first wave necessarily run "pretty high," a corps spokesman While the men seize a toehold on the beach, new waves of landing boats arrive carrying light tanks and scout cars to force the enemy back. In addition to their fighting equipment, each marine carries a twodays' ration in case he should become separated from his fellows.

Tulagi's Deep Harbor Likely Chief Goal In U. S. Offensive

Island Is 890 Miles From Port Moresby; Chinese Exceed Whites 4 to 1

By the Associated Press. The United States offensive in the Bolomon Islands mainly is against Japanese-held Tulagi, which has a deep hurricane free anchorage which doubtless is important in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's scheme to reconquer the Southwest Pacific. Tulagi is in the Southeastern Solomons, and until the Japanese arrived it was the capital of a group of 10 large islands and innumerable smaller ones which stretch in a double chain 1,000 miles long. Two-mile-long Tulagi and the larger Florida Island nearby form an inner cover for Tulagi's placid 100-foot-deep harbor where United States forces almost annihilated a Japanese invasion fleet last spring just before the big Coral Sea naval Tulagi is 890 air miles due east of the Allied base at Port Moresby in New Guinea, and 1,800 miles north of Sydney, Australia. It has government offices, a wireless station, several trading companies, a hotel and its own "Chinatown." There are no roads. Traffic is by foot and boat. The Chinese population in peacetime exceeded the white population of 100 by 4 to 1.

Bougainville, an island 120 by 35 miles, is in northwestern part of the long chain of islands which are ruggedly beautiful. Thick-forested volcanic mountains rise as high as 10,000 feet. The Japanese also have a base on Bougainville, one of the first established in their southward

The 150,000 natives on the islands are nearly all fuzzy-haired ebonyblack people who mainly have resisted European civilization. Problem Made More Complex by Overworked Land Transport System to Keep Goods Flowing

The Swedish liner Gripsholm arrived at Rio de Janeiro for a 48-hour stop yesterday with 1,500 North and South Americans glad to be in the Western Hemisphere again after their experiences at the hands of Japanese jailers and police.

Some of them had spent years in Japan or the Far East, and many had spent about five months in prison following their internment on December 7. Among them were Associated Press correspondents.

Max Hill of Colorado Springs, Colo., chief of bureau in Tokio since 1940, reported that United States authorities were taking great precautions to prevent Japanese or Axis-planted spies from slipping into the United States aboard the Gripsholm. Vouchers of lovalty from five United States citizens were being required of passengers, and their fingerprints were being taken.

Relman Morin, former chief of bureau in Tokio, and later a correspondent in French Indo-China, here tells how Japan already has won her battle for oil self-sufficiency.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.- Lt. Comdr. Maurice N. A lot of industrial workers literally fell down on the job in 1941and their falls cost a lot of money as well as time and pain.

The 1942 edition of Accident Facts, the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, shows that falls of one kind or another accounted for 23 per cent of all compensation paid for accident cases in industry last year.

"Handling objects" resulted in a larger number of accident cases than falls-24 per cent of the total, against 18 per cent for falls but "handling objects" accidents were less severe and drew only 15 per cent of all compensation paid.

Falis and operations involving the martial officials who withheld use handling of objects of one kind or another, combined, caused 42 per cent of all compeensated occupational accidents and drew 38 per cent of all compensation paid. Machinery, vehicles, falling objects, hand tools and actions of "stepping on or striking against" each contributed smaller numbers of acciscribed in the manual Naval Courts dents and drew smaller fractions of the total compensation bill.

Historic Rebellion Of 1919 Recalled By Indian Crisis

Killing of 379 Persons By Troops Had Wide Repercussions Later

E) the Associated Press. The bloodshed and violence which have gripped parts of India must remind Mohandas K. Gandhi in his palace prison of another period of riotous upheaval which followed a challenge to British rule and a pledge to "follow the truth and refrain from violence to life, person or property."

This historic rebellion of 1919, in which Gandhi and other Nationalist leaders intended to disobey proposed anti-sedition bills of the government of India reached its climax when Brig. Gen. Reginald R. H. Dyer ordered his troops to open fire on a banned assemblage, killing 379 persons and wounding more than 1,000. The agitation against the government bills had reached a shrill stage when on March 30, 1919, Gandhi and his committee ordered the closing of all shops. Serious Disturbances.

The disturbances at Amritsar in the Punjab, Northern India, were most serious. After the expulsion of two leading lawyer agitators from the city on April 10, mobs formed and attacked the telegraph station. They were turned back only after police fired on them.

The National Bank was plundered and its agents murdered. Another bank, the town hall and the Indian Christian Church were attacked and various Europeans assaulted or killed. Telegraph and railroad lines were destroyed.

Other outbreaks took place in other Indian cities—at Ahmedabad, Bombay, Lahore and Viramgam among others.

On April 13 in Amritsar a large crowd turned up to attend a meeting which had been prohibited by the authorities. About 15,000 persons had gathered in the market place when Gen. Dyer, who had been commanded by the civil authorities to restore order, marched up with about 60 soldiers.

When the crowd made threatening gestures, Gen. Dyer ordered his men to fire. The market place was cleared in 10 minutes, but 379 Indians were killed and more than 1,000 wounded.

The incident had wide repercussions both in India and in England.

BOMBAY, Aug. 11. - Mohandas Gandhi, the frail generalissimo the Indian passive resistance drive, remained in such close custody in the Aga Khan's palace last night that he was reported deprived of newspapers, the radio, friends and the right to write letters.

A few Congress leaders who were not yet jailed expressed the opinion that such treatment-far more drastic than any in the peacetime past-might cause Gandhi to start another fast, although partisans had attempted to dissuade him from such action. Reports he already was fasting were denied.

Despite precautions, voice reached the outside. Circulated among his followers was a list of "instructions to the people of India" promising success of the campaign within two months. Congress adherents said these had

By BENJAMIN PROULX.

I had this plan to escape from the North Point Japanese prison camp on Hong Kong Island but I could not seem to find any one to make the break with me. I think the reason for this was that the rice diet had already weakened most of the men so that all they wanted to do was to move as little as possible.

Then one night I met two Dutch submarine officers. They told me of how their sub had been depth charged by the Japanese destroyers off Malaya. The sub had been badly crippled and they lay on the ocean floor for 30 hours without moving-as long as they could without renewing their oxygen supply.

When their oxygen ran out they had to surface and they had the bad luck to come up right alongside a Japanese destroyer. The destroyer plowed through the survivors who were trying to swim for it and killed eight. The two officers were the only ones the Japs bothered to pick up.

They heard me talking about my escape plan and wanted to know the details. I didn't think they'd be interested. I though they had gone through enough already. But they hadn't. They wanted more. "All that we want to do." one of them said, "is to get back to a subany kind of a sub-as soon as possible and get at those Japs." I went over the details of the escape plan with them. I cannot give the exact method of escape which we used. Other men who are still in the prison know about it and it is possible that they may still escape by it. All that I can say is that the way we got out was very unusual and I do not think

Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio. said today the new revenue bill approved by the House would permit $36,000,000,000 income earned in the lower pay brackets to go untaxed.

Senator Taft made this observation after Dr. Joseph J. Klein of New York City, former president of the New York State Society of Certifled Public Accountants, had urged the Senate Finance Committee to levy additional taxes on low income groups.

District Still Ranks Fourth in Deaths From Tuberculosis

Local Figure Drops To 76.9 Per 100,000 From Previous 89.1

Although the District's tuberculosis death rate dropped to 76.9 per 100,000 population last year from a previous 89.1 in 1940, it still ranked fourth from the top among all the States and Territories, it was reported today by the District Tuberculosis Association

The national mortality rate last year was 44 per 100,000, compared with 46 in 1940.

The number of deaths in the District due to tuberculosis declined only slightly-from 591 in 1940 to 577 last year-and the incidence of new cases actually rose from 1.637 to 1.986. The substantial drop in the rate, however, is accounted for in the great increase in the local population last year.

Arizona was listed by the asso ciation as having the heaviest death rate among all the States, with 171 persons among every 100,000 succumbing to tuberculosis. The fact that many tuberculosis patients go to Arizona in the hope of finding relief in the climate was given as the reason for this high rate.

Lowest rate in the country was listed in Utah with 11 per 100,000. Wyoming with 13 and Iowa and Nebraska with 15 were next in

Despite the drop in the national mortality rate, Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, warned that wartime conditions are likely to induce an increase in the rate as they have in Europe.

Voters in Five States Selecting Candidates In Primaries Today

Chief Interest Centered On Mead-Bennett and Fish Races in New York

By the Ameriated Press.

Primary balloting in five States today produces a test of presidential influence and pre-war foreign policies in New York's selection of congressional nominees and convention delegates who will pick candidates for Governor.

Voters determine congressional and gubernatorial candidates in Idaho, Ohio and Nebraska and decide a run-off between two senatorial aspirants in Arkansas. But chief political interest centered on the contest in President Roosevelt's home State.

New York's selection of delegates to the Democratic Convention, August 19, was expected to disclose the respective strength of the party's two governorship candidates, Senator Mead and State Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr.

The President has asserted he would support Senator Mead if he could vote in the convention. Mr. Roosevelt's former campaign manager, State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, is backing Mr. Bennett

To do the job, men are being taken from police and fire departments throughout the Nation, given ratings or commissions and sent to the Coast Guard training station at Fort McHenry. This school-within sight of the old fort which inspired the National Anthem—was established a few weeks ago to put Coast Guard touches on the men's practical foundation.

Some of the students, explained Comdr. George E. McCabe, know most of the answers in police and fire work. But some of them don't know the A B Cs of the seaman.

The saboteurs they'll have to spot will know the ways of the sea, he points out, and the port security men must fight them on even

Municipal Center Space

The Commissioners would not place themselves in the position of refusing, or attempting to refuse, office space in the new Municipal Center for essential war activities of the National Government. But they properly resent any assumption of jurisdiction over the space by the Federal Public Buildings Administration, which has asked the Commissioners to submit their officespace needs in order that the commission may determine whether they supersede in importance those of the National Government.

The issue arises in the case of the new East Administration Building of the Municipal Center, which has been occupied by War Department personnel since its completion. The space will become vacant with the transfer of the War Department to the Pentagon Building in Arlington about October 1, and the Federal Buildings Administration seems to take the position that it will determine who moves in when the War Department moves out.

As an isolated case the matter is not particularly important and a common-sense appraisal of relative priorities of need, local and national, should determine the next occupant. But there is an obvious disposition on the part of the Federal authorities to take what they want without any consideration of the local authorities, or of the equities involved, and unless the Commissioners are alert they will find themselves holding the short end of the stick every

The Commissioners, for instance, now find themselves actually committed to pay interest on money advanced to them by the Treasury, out of local revenues later to be collected, to meet the emergency expense of guarding the National Capital's water supply system, which is under | India. jurisdiction of the War Department.

The history of the Municipal Center lends an ironic touch to the present controversy over jurisdiction. During the twenties Congress, by the simple expedient of refusing to appropriate the money, forced the District to accumulate a large surplus of unexpended revenues. When the local authorities sought a modest building program to meet expanding municipal needs, Congress decided that a magnificent group of buildings, to be known as the Municipal Center, should be constructed on a scale of grandeur that would conform to the monumental style of architecture of the Capital. Most of the District's surplus revenues went into purchase of land for this undertaking, which was beyond the resources of a local community the size of Washington. A tacit agreement that the National Government would purchase the old Municipal Building from the District was never earried out. Original plans were scaled down during the depression and have been only partially completed, without the Federal aid which was implied in the beginning.

The Commissioners are right in insisting that the municipal government has some say now in allocation of this space, bought, but not yet used, by local taxpayers.

The Wrong Issue

The essential question confronting the Republican voters in New York's twenty-sixth congressional district today is whether Representative Hamilton Fish, on the basis of the record he has made, is the proper person to represent them in Congress during the critical period that lies

Clearly, the issue is Mr. Fish himself. His record has been made Prior to Pearl Harbor, standing as a non-interventionist, he made statements and did things which revealed a remarkable failure to comprehend the gravity of the threat to the United States that was implicit in Axis aggression. Since Pearl Harbor he has supported the war program in Congress, and he seeks re-election on the ground that his present attitude cancels out the blunders that he made before the

The issue has been and will continue to be Mr. Fish, and that is the ground on which his bid for renomination should be decided.

Harvest in India

The campaign of civil disobedience, which Gandhi told his followers to wage by passive means, has erupted. particularly at Bombay, in a setting of violence and bloodshed, as Gandhi must have known would be the case. This is not the first time that the 73-year-old leader of the Indian Nationalists has exhorted his followers to passive resistance. Nor is this the first time that these "peaceful" campaigns have lighted the fire of rioting and civil revolt. No one understands these things better than Gandhi, and he cannot escape what must have been the intended consequences of

It is too early as yet to tell whether these initial disorders will spread throughout India, since the police and the troops may be able to contain | $500 fine. them, although there certainly is little assurance that this will be the case. It is not too early, however, to re-examine the position of Gandhi and his principal aides in this affair.

What they have done, in the name of immediate freedom for India, is to put all freedom in jeopardy. When Gandhi, prating of his friendship for Britain, sets in motion the forces of revolution which operate to the advantage of the Axis, he is striking not only at Britain, but also at the people of this country, China, Russia and the rest of the United Nations. And Gandhi does this knowingly. It may be that he does not purposefully seek the defeat of the United Nations, but he is at least indifferent to that result as a probable consequence of what he is trying to do.

In these circumstances the government of India must choose between abdication and repressive measures stern enough to prevail against the frenzied mobs which have answered Gandhi's call. To abdicate would be to place India, in this time of imminent erisis, at the disposal of men who have abundantly demonstrated that they lack the capacity to govern their immediate followers, much less a nation of 390,000,000 people, seething with religious and caste hatreds. This would be the way to anarchy, not freedom, for

Thus, the only rational choice at this time is that upon which the government of India has embarkedthe suppression of force with superior force. At best, this is a regrettable and a dangerous expedient. There is no assurance that it will be successful. But, as matters stand, it must be tried. For the United Nations, no less than for the Indian Nationalists. this is the time when they must do

Solomons

The Solomon Islands to which American attention currently is directed may be described as a chain of half-submerged mountain tops stretching across the Pacific between the 154th and the 162d degrees of longitude. Approximately 1,000 miles northeast of the coast of Australia, the archipelago includes land areas which bear the names of Bougainville, Choiseul, Ysabal, Malaita, New Georgia, Guadalcanal and San Cristoval. The whole group adds up to a total of 16,950 square miles, but only a relatively small part of the surface is habitable.

High peaks, at least two active volcanos, numerous supposedly extinct craters, deep valleys through which move streams originating in hot springs hidden in impenetrable forests-these are the principal characteristics of the Solomons. The surrounding waters are dangerous because of coral reefs. Natural wealth undoubtedly abounds in the 'up country" jungles. The Spanish navigator Alvaro Mendana, who discovered them in 1567, desired his find to be kept secret lest it be exploited by rival nations. His purpose was so well fulfilled that the existence of the isles was not generally known until after Philip Carteret and Louis de Bougainville had visited them between 1767 and 1769. The earliest efforts at settlement by Europeans met with frustration. Practicing canabalism and polygamy, the Melanesian population was professionally savage. Skilled in boatbuilding, wood-carving and other arts as they unquestionably were, the natives nevertheless rejected every endeavor to civilize them. The leader of | the whole civilized world has turned a French Marist mission was murdered in 1845, other "strangers" were kidnaped and slaughtered as late as 1927. From this time onward the whole story of the war in the Pacific may be that of the slow conquest of one Nipponese outpost after another until at last the islands of Japan themselves are brought under attack.

New Sabotage Laws

The disclosure by Attorney General Biddle that the United States Government lacks adequate laws to deal effectively with sabotage in all its ramifications no doubt will come to the public as an unpleasant surprise that is tempered only by the ish rule in India are being harvested | prompt steps Mr. Biddle is taking to remedy this defect.

One weak spot in the present legal structure is the fact that while wartime sabotage can be punished under civil law by thirty years in prison and a fine of $10,000, conspiracy to commit sabotage is punishable only under the general conspiracy statute which carries a penalty of but two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine -certainly far less than this crime justifies.

Nor is there a special statute to deal with those who harbor or conceal persons who have committed sabotage, or who have guilty knowledge of such acts but fail to inform law enforcement officers. Such offenses must be tried as misprison of felony, for which the maximum penalty is three years in prison and

An example of the difficulty in dealing with enemies of the Government is evidenced in the case of the fourteen persons accused of aiding the eight Nazis whose trial was just concluded with the execution of six and imprisonment of the other two. At present, they are charged only as accessories after the fact of the commission of a crime-whose nature, by the way, is unspecified. It is possible that some may be charged with treason, as was Max Stephan, the condemned Detroit restaurant proprietor. To make a case of this sort, however, the Government would have to produce at least two witnesses willing to testify to overt acts. It follows that there is no certainty as to the course the Government will pursue with regard to any of the group.

This situation, which was only clearly developed by the trial of the eight saboteurs, cannot be permitted to continue. Government law officers fully expect further efforts by Axis disciples to interfere with the American war effort despite the stern justice meted out to those who have been caught, and it is to prepare for this eventuality that Attorney General Biddle will press for leg-

Rebuilding London

The British government is keeping secret the plans developed by architects and town designers for the rebuilding of London and other almost equally important cities. Something of what is contemplated, however, is known and already has been commented upon with enthu-

It is proposed to "disperse" the English metropolis rather than to permit it to remain concentrated as it was in the years before the Second World War started. The scheme, it is said, lacks nothing "in boldness, breadth of conception and imaginative grasp." It calls for a series of parallel arteries of travel connecting industrial and residential sections arranged in harmony with modern ideas of convenience. Small streets, previously characteristic of London, are to be eliminated. Parks will be introduced in strategic areas. Cultural institutions are to be placed in close proximity to dwelling centers to the end that they may be easy of Suggestions having in view the same objectives were offered by "dreamers" in Queen Victoria's time. John Ruskin and William Morris were but two of a number of reformers who anticipated the present program. Neither of them ever heard of Hitler, yet it is to his perverse genius that they owe the chance which now is offered to their successors.

Of course, other communities-Rotterdam, Coventry, Southampton, Odessa, Cologne, Essen and Luebeck included—also must be reconstructed when peace again returns. The opportunities for improvement are infinite. Let it be added that American cities cannot afford to be surpassed in their facilities. Townplanners in the United States will be well advised to keep their eyes open for innovations abroad. Even now the shape of interesting things to come is beginning to appear.

The word "axis" is supposed to have two meanings; a line around which an object revolves, and a coalition of powers. But now that on the Axis, there is little difference in the meaning.

By Thomas R. Henry. Hitherto unknown behavior of the human brain is being revealed by war wounds. One part, for example, acts like an automatic phonograph when injured, according to a report just received here from Dr. N. I. Propper Grashchenkov, director of the Soviet Institute of Nervous Diseases, where 90 soldier patients have been treated since last December. Perhaps the weirdest case is described as follows in a report given out by the Soviet Embassy here:

"A Tatar named Khusainov was wounded in the head by a mine splinter. A piece of metal penetrated deep into the cerebral mass, pulping the brain tissue and particularly the right temporal lobe. (The region of the brain just above the right ear)

"He was picked up unconscious on the field and taken to a mobile field hospital. For two days he was in a state of complete delirium. His ravings took on a unique form. Lying totally unconscious he would recite or sing songs in the Tatar language

"The explanation of this appears to be as follows: The left and right temporal lobes of the brain, above the left and right ears, respectively, are seats of sound memory. The left is connected primarily with speech and the right with music and songs. In the case of Khusainov it was the right lobe that constituted the irritated section during the first days after the wound had been inflicted. Part had been pulped and the rest, although uninjured by the splinter, was swollen and slightly inflamed. This led to a unique reproduction of the sound images that had been impressed in the temporal region and to automatic, unconscious reproduction of these images in the patient's delirium."

In the First World War the functions of various parts of the brain were localized as never before, largely by German brain specialists, due to study of the specific effects on behavior of destruction of various areas. Most of the victims, however, died. Brain surgery was in its infancy. In the interval between the two wars some of the most notable advances have been made by Russian surgeons so that today head injuries are much less serious. Few of the wounded have died, although their injuries have been much more severe. Some, of course, are crippled for life, due to injuries of motor areas of the brain. The worst effects, however, gradually may be overcome, Prof. Grashchenkov says.

The more accurate mapping of the brain, he reports, is enabling the Russian surgeons to circumvent some of the worst effects. In one case it was found that the removal of a bullet probably would destroy the speech centers in the brain of a young lieutenant so that he would be dumb for the rest of his life. This was prevented by cutting a hole through the forehead and taking out the bullet by a completely different path than that by which it had entered.

Some persons have antiseptic blood which acts mildly against various germs much as do the sulfa drugs. This discovery has just been announced by United States Public Health Service physicians following study of an outbreak of meningitis in a Federal reform school for boys.

This disease, until recently one of the most fatal which attacks human beings, may be due to a half dozen or more minute organisms, but most cases are caused by a bug known as the meningococcus which has a special affinity for the linings of the brain and spinal cord. Samples of blood were taken from boys in the school who had escaped the outbreak and various strains of the organism placed in them. All seemed to have a mild bacteria-killing action-probably developed in the course of human evolution to prevent the race being wiped out by this virulent and supposedly highly contagious malady. But in about half the cases this phenomenon was much more marked than in the others.

The feature of special interest to Drs. Sara E. Branham, Arthur P. Hitchens and Manly B. Root, who report the observations, was that the bacteria-killing potency was due to some unknown factor inherent in the blood itself. It is well known that the blood stream has its defense army-the white blood cells which rush to the site of an infection and try to devour the infinitesimally minute invaders. This happens with the meningococci, but it was found to be no more pronounced for those boys having highly bacteriacidal bloods.

It also is known that recovery from a bacterial disease produces in the blood specific antigens which attack their own particular kind of invaders. None of these boys, however, had had any infection.

The Public Health Service physicians are at a loss to explain the phenomenon which may depend on a protective function of the blood being built up over many generations in the progress of evolution-eventually to free the race from danger of this sort of disease. Whether the same applies to other bacterial maladies is unknown. It may be an explanation of the disappearance of some of the deadly epidemic diseases recorded in the past.

Joins in Complaint Against Profanity.

It seems to me that the Pentecostal case which arose recently in the WEB and which has been commented on by different persons deserves the attention of all Christians, especially the clergy. It is hoped that every minister in Washington, as well as all clergymen from the States, will be unanimous in demanding that Mrs. Hawthorn be at once reinstated, without the loss of pay and, further, that she be permitted, if she so desires, to bedeck herself from head

It is my belief that employes will find a sign such as the one which has provoked so much discussion less disconcerting, less demoralizing and far less degrading than having to sit in a room filled with tobacco smoke and profanity. Incidentally, it might be well for every member of the WEB's Public Relations Board to be brought before a jury.

Reports Personal "Survey" Of War Bond Sales Problem To the Editor of The Star:

I am neither banker nor economistand I am cognizant of only three ways that the Government can secure the means to function, viz: Taxation, borrowing and creation. And the desirability of the ways is in this respective order. In extraordinary or abnormal times taxation is not sufficient. However, in any times, taxation plus borrowing should suffice. To resort to creation, even limited, in any of its multitudinous forms may prove calamitous. Rather than employ this least desirable way, compulsory investments in Government securities should be effected. And now, in my opinion, is the time to replace voluntary investments with compulsory investments, if creation is to be averted.

The aforementioned hundred were either my friends or acquaintances, and all well able to invest 10 per cent. My method of eliciting the information was simple, and I believe it to be fairly accurate. Although various statements and questions were used, here is an example: I would say to a friend, "I understand that the Government is going to compel us to put 10 per cent of our earnings into War bonds. Damned if I can afford it." Invariably the person addressed would express his opinion pro or con on the subject, and in doing so divulge his own degree of participation. To the foregoing statement I would receive such replies as these: "I'll be lucky if I can pay my income tax this year, let alone give the Government another 10 per cent of what I make. I buy a bond occasionally but I couldn't live if they took 10 per cent." Or "I haven't bought a stamp yet, and I'm not going to unless they make me. Let them dig up all that gold buried out in Kentucky and use it." Or "I think it's a good idea. It's the only way I would ever save anything. If I have it, I spend it," I even heard comment from a supposedly intelligent man that Government bonds were issued for the sole purpose of providing safe, tax-free investments for the wealthy: that the Government could print all the money it needed, thereby saving the taxpayers billions of dollars in interest. The one man in a hundred who believed it his privilege and duty and was voluntarily investing his 10 per cent, gave me such a lecture that if I had not already been investing at least 10 per cent, I would have done so forthwith.

My conclusion is, that the only way to avert the creation of fiat money, in any of its vicious forms, is by compulsory War bond purchase plan now.

Tells of Gen. Pershing's Attitude Toward Mistakes in First World War. To the Editor of The Star

The report of the Office of War Information published August 8 merits attentive study by all patriotic citizens. The situation is serious. We may lose Mistakes have been made; more will be made. But in the end we must win, if more people will become more soberly earnest, a good deal less carelessly talkative and captiously critical.

In all our wars errors have been frequent. In spite of that we have been successful at the last.

The writer had an important command in 1918. He met General Pershing on an untidy street of a nodescript headquarters town in France in October. The general called out, "How are things going?" The reply was, "I'm spending a lot of time correcting my mistakes." His answer was, "Damned if I'm not doing the same."

Government Also Lags In War Job

Failure to Convert Peace Agencies to Times Is Charged

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

When Elmer Davis says America is only "ankle deep in war." he describes primarily our war activities, but if the eyes of scrutiny were to he turned on the Government itself, it would be found that it is hardly in the war at all. This is but another way of saying that the vast bureaus of the Government which could by this time have been converted to war activities are still pursuing

David Lawrence. their customary ways, while the much needed personnel for the war agencies now being sought outside of Washington can be found right here in the National Capital.

Senator Tydings, head of a subcommittee of the Committee of Appropriations, has issued a report which is far more revealing than anything else as to why America is only "ankle deep" in war, for it is a document that tells of the nonchalant spirit of the Budget Bureau and the indifference of heads of Government agencies toward converting their bureaus to wartime uses.

The American people are being asked to apply their savings to war bonds and they have a right to ask that the Government itself keep faith with them by cutting out nonessential spending and by making use of its existing personnel before wasting more funds on duplicating

Budget Bureau Failure Charged. Every now and then, some one blasts out against industry for not converting soon enough from peace to wartime, but the example set industry by the Federal Government is still woefully inadequate.

The Tydings report says that under our system of government, the President is responsible for executive management but that he naturally has to delegate it to others. But it is added, while the Budget Bureau, under a law of 1921 is responsible for making studies of Government agencies and assignments and the grouping and the regrouping of activities, the bureau has failed to do its job.

Then it is asked whether this is due to inadequate or inexperienced or unqualified staff and comes to the conclusion that the bureau "enjoys a most highly qualified and widely experienced staff and that it is inconceivable that any one could attack the bureau on these grounds."

The committee declares that the real fault lies in the fact that "the ideologies and the adherence to certain thories in regard to governmental fiscal policies impair, and, to an extent nullify, what might otherwise be obtained by the technical expertness it undoubtedly possesses. "Certain officials of the Budget Bureau and the National Resources

Planning Board have been and are yet carrying on very discreet but none the less pernicious propaganda to the effect that there must continue after the war even greater mounting deficit-spending on he part of the Federal Government than was followed during the decade preceding the defense and war expenditures. The merits of their theories will not here be discussed but they must be taken into consideration when endeavoring to analyze and reach a solution for the ever-growing bureaucracy in the civil branch of the Federal Govern-

It is difficult to see how the country is going to be impressed with the need for conserving manpower and even for urging women to take men's job when the Government itself shows such a poor record in putting its own house in order. The President cannot, of course, give time to the actual execution of the task of transition, but a firm word from him to the Budget Bureau and an insistence by him that the unnecessary personnel be transferred to war work would go a long ways toward putting the United States Government on a war basis. New York Primaries in Spotlight Today With Effort To Defeat Representatives Fish and Barry

By GOULD LINCOLN. Primary elections in four States and a run-off primary for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Arkansas help to keep the political mills grinding today. More interest centers in the outcome of the primaries in New Vork State than in the others because of the efforts of certain groups to defeat for renomination Representative Fish, Republican, in the 26th district, and Representative Barry, Democrat, in the 2nd district, both of whom bear the pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist label. The voters in Idaho, Nebraska and Ohio, too, will determine who are to be their congressional and gubernatorial candidates. In New York, delegates to the Republican and Democratic State conventtions will be elected, and these delegates, in convention, later will decide who will make the race for Governor next November. While the principal interest in the New York primary centers in the races which Mr. Fish and Mr. Barry are making for renomination, one of the co-called "purge" groups-Vote for Freedom-has called on the voters to defeat for renomination five other members of the House-Representative Pfeifer in the 3rd district.. He insisted that the renomination of Mr. Fish would weaken the Republican party in the general election campaign. The other two entries in the Republican primary are Prof. Emerson D. Fite of Vassar College and Edward J. (Doc) Bowen of Poughkeepsie. One other Republican isolationist, Representative Reed of the 43d district, also has opposition. His opponent is Nelson M. Fuller. The latter is running in all three primaries. He has the support of Mayor La Guardia, a member of the Labor party, whose protege he has been

Mrs. Caraway Indorses McClellan In Arkansas, Jack Holt, attornev general of the State, is running against former Representative McClellan in the Democratic runoff for the senatorial nomination. It may be a close race. Mrs. Caraway has indorsed Mr. McClellan, who formerly ran against her.

Senator Norris, Independent, of Nebraska, is not entered in the primary elections, although he is up for re-election this year if he wishes to run. He has made no announcement of his plans. However, after the nominations have been made by the Republicans and the Democrats, it is likely that Senator Norris' many friends in the State will strongly urge him to run again as an Independent, as he did in 1936. Many political observers and politicians in the State believe that the veteran Senator will consent to make the race.

Kenneth Wherry, Republican State chairman and selected by Chairman Martin of the Republican National Committee to have charge of the Western campaign this year, is expected to be the Republican Senatorial candidate. There are seven candidates for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Among them are Representative Coffee and Foster May, who has gained a large following as a radio commentator. The State turned again to the Republican ranks in the 1940 election. If Senator Norris should decide not to run again, the probabilities of a Republican victory in the senatorial campaign would be bright. Ohio has no senatorial election this year. However, Gov. Bricker, Republican, will be renominated. and the chances are he will be re-elected in the fall and thereby become a possible contender for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1944.

Battle for Solomons May Presage Opening Of Second Front and All-Out Attack on Japs

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The battle now raging around the Solomon Islands may presage the opening of our second front in this war and the beginning of an all-out attack against the Japanese-conquered territories in the South Pacific, well-informed quarters in Washington believe.

The final results of the battle which is being waged with unusual fury will not be known in the United States for several more days. The official communiques of the Japanese announcing "terrific American losses" are described in competent naval quarters as the usual fishing expeditions. The official communique of the Navy Department reporting the loss of one cruiser and damage to two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport, is so far the total loss of the fleet operating under Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormship of an unknown class. All our battleships are known and can be easily identified. The Japs also speak about sinking and damaging three of the Minneapolis class. These cruisers are so similar in outward appearance that it is impossible to say to which class they belong.

Unlike the operations of the Navy task force against the Gilbert Islands, in which the commander, Vice Admiral William Halsey, relied on surprise and lacked information as to the size of the Jap forces there, the present operations are being carried out with full knowledge of the Jap strength in the Solomons. Scout planes flew over frequently before the attack began and reported as accurately as possible the Japanese land, air and naval strength

Well-Planned Operation. The attack on the Solomon Islands is not a raid, it is emphatically stated in Washington, but a well-planned operation in which American and Australian land, sea and air forces are cooperating in an offensive for the first time in this war. While it would be premature to describe something more than a local engagement or mere clean-up *

Stiff Japanese resistance reported in a communique of the Navy Department is not surprising. The localities which are under attack at present, and particularly the Tulagi area, have been heavily fortified by the like beavers from the time they occupied them. Metal runways have been laid down, as was done in the Aleutian islands of Attu and Kiska, and strong garrisons have been established. While the Japs have neglected to prepare the Netherlands Indies and Borneo against surprise attack, because of their great distance from Australia, and have contented themselves with emptying these territories of all foodstuffs, the islands in the immediate vicinity of Australia have been transformed into strong defensive bases, with adequate numbers of planes, all types of anti-aircraft artillery and strong garrisons.

Attack Was Expected.

To dislodge the Japanese from these strongholds will require more serious losses than we suffered in the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway. The former was a purely naval and air battle opened by the American Navy for defensive purposes; the latter was a great surprise for the Japanese, who were on their way to attack Midway. Hence, our losses were slight compared with the enemy's

The battle for the Solomon Islands is completely different. We are meeting a determined foe who may have anticipated such an attack for several weeks and has left nothing to chance. Because of the necessity of embarking troops on transports in Australian harbors the Japanese may have obtained information from their scout planes about the operations which Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz were preparing. It is likely that they did not know what objective would be chosen by the American commanders But considering that the Allies scope was limited and that an attack against territories far from Australia was not likely the choice lay between the Solomon Islands and New Guinea. Both regions are well defended by the enemy

Officials in Washington are not inclined to predict the outcome of the battle. But an atmosphere of confidence prevails among those who are likely to have an inkling of what is going on in a combined air, sea and land offensive, the aid thus rendered to Russio would be direct and immediate for thereafter Allied convoys could move from Iceland or from Scotland to Murmansk and Archangel under almost complete immunity from attack, save by roving submarines operating far from their bases and trusting to luck to intercept a target.

The flow of supplies to Russia could be doubled, or perhaps even further increased. It is possible to give convoys in the open Atlantic almost complete protection, but this Arctic passage has been extremely difficult and full

One of the greatest advantages sought by the Germans in their Caucasian campaign would thus be offset, for the increased flow of supplies to Russia by this comparatively short route would more than compensate for the loss of supplies brought into the Persian Gulf by the long haul around the Cape of Good Hope.

Moreover, a successful combined operation in Northern Norway would have other very definite advantages. It would be directly adjacent to territory now held by the Russians, and would therefore be made a joint operation in which, almost for the first time, the Russian forces would acquire the feeling of being actually supported by a strong Allied force fighting in direct conjunction with

The Norwegian population would certainly give all the help it could, and the way might be opened for a change in Finnish policy which would be most acceptable to the majority of Finns.

The position of Sweden would be made easier, or alternatively the Germans might find themselves compelled to demand passage for their troops through Sweden and thus bring about a state of major hostilities in the north of Europe which could not but be to our ad-

North Atlantic would be anchored on the east: our present line extending from Canada to Greenland and Iceland would be extended to its logical conclusion. The amount of naval force now required for convoy duty and for the mere containing of an inferior German force operating under air cover from the Norwegian fjords would be greatly reduced. Many more warships of various types would become available for the Mediterranean or the Pacific. The sense of relief would be felt by United Nations naval dispositions everywhere.

That the Germans themselves are not unmindful of how profitable this Norwegian operation would be to the United Nations is suggested by their recent reconnaissance flights over Iceland. Naturally, these flights may prove to be a prelude to some German drive to forestall such an Allied thrust, but the Germans are also reported increasing the defenses

'Fashion' Goes on in Paris, Is News Lately Received

Word of That City Will Make American Women Grateful For Styles Offered Here

By Helen Vogt

Stop-complaining department: Any time you get it into your head to fuss about those lenient fashion regulations set down by WPB, you might read over the special report recently received by the New York Times. An airmail letter from a French girl, who escaped to London, says that Parisian women manage to look chic in spite of the fact that all their clothing is "ersatz." These women long known as the world's smartest, cling to their high heels-but now they're made of wood, as are the soles. Buttons are laboriously fashioned from acorns, and hats are made of Brie or Camembert cheese boxes decorated with flowers or pasted over with bird's feathers picked up in the park. That should answer those people who have scoffed at fashion as one of the most important contributions to feminine morale.

From Vichy, however, comes word that the Paris dress-making industry is one that has fared best since the armistice. Described as the "haute Couture." the principal fashion houses reportedly never have

A special assignment of fabrics, based on 60 per cent of the consumption of the firm in 1938, has been accorded them by German authority. It is said. though, that the growing seriousness of the textile industry, factories closing and materials becoming more and more rare, may make this prosperous setup vanish.

Meantime, the sky is the limit where prices are concerned. A tailored suit now sells in one of the big houses at from 6,000 to 8,000 francs. Wages have gone up, too, according to the report. Salesgirls now make 10,000 francs a month and mannequins are known to earn

The catch in the thing, however, is that that foreign exchange department we called the other day tells us that the last quotation from Occupied France listed the value of the franc at about 2 cents in our money. So figure it out for yourself. If that's prosperity, we'll take

Our friend Charles Armour, who's blessed with the gift of being a realist as well as a fashion designer and who is responsible for such beloved styles as "town cottons" and other practical modes, seems to have scored another hit. His new fall and winter collection introduces the "suit-dress" this year, a one-piece style that has the look of a suit at front and is cut like a one-piece dress at back. These well-tailored, comfortable models are presented in fabrics for all hours of the day, ranging from informal types in wool to tea-dance versions with metallic tops and velveteen skirts. Sounds like a trend that Washington women will applaud-even as they have applauded other smart ideas of "Uncle Charley."

First Enameled Utensils

Cooking utensils of porcelain enamel on iron, as a commercial project, were first made by the Bartelmes family in Bohemia about 1830. The base metal was cast iron and the enamel was applied only on the inside. In 1859 the Bartelmes family began the enameling of sheet iron, and it was from this development that the great porcelain enameling industry of today traces the beginning of its major growth. Cooking utensils of porcelain enamel on metal were first manufactured in the United States in the early part of the second half of the 19th century. Today there 1590-B are 17 major manufacturers of porcelain enameled hollow ware.

Now her fall and winter collection promises to be as well-received throughout the country. Valuable Presents To Be Returned, Is Consensus

There are many suggestions as to what a draftee should do with the him when he left for camp, and then was rejected by the medical examiners and sent home.

Many of my readers feel that he should return them all-just as brought about many changes, but wedding presents are returned if the marriage does not take place. Others think they should be kept, Washington will continue to at- since it is not unlikely that he will be taken into another branch of war service. But the consensus seems to be that items of value, particularly those of military use, such as field glasses or any sort of camp kit, should be returned. Personally chosen things such as handkerchiefs marked with his name, socks made for him, or special brand > of cigarettes should be kept. The idea of laying things out on a table and inviting the givers to come in and take back their own seems a little crude, but has found favor in a number of smaller circles.

Neither my parents nor my fiance's family approve of anything even weakly alcoholic, and vet I know that most of our guests are accustomed to having-and will expect-something more than plain lemonade when they go to a wedding. Isn't there some rule of etiquette requiring hosts to give first consideration to their guests that I can quote to my parents and win them over?

> Answer-First, I doubt whether you could succeed. Second, I do not think you should try. Although it is true that hosts are expected to think first of their guests, this does not apply when a question of moral principle is involved. Also I take it for granted that your friends know your parents never serve alcohol and will not expect it. Telltale Traces . . .

If you are one of the gals who persistently gets lipstick smears on your frocks as you pull them over your head, here's a tip for you. (You should learn better, but until then, we're willing to help.) There's a new stain remover that does wonders for lipstick traces, and is said to be practical for use on any type of material-even those that are difficult to clean in an ordinary way. It is easy to apply, and should solve the problem of getting stains off handkerchiefs and napkins before they are laundered, too.

Neat, but Not Gaudy ...

Uncluttered surfaces are The Thing in this streamlined day and age. Gone is the era when the glamour girls strove to outdo each other in the matter of making their dressing table tops look like bargain day at the perfume counter. To keep that smooth and "all clear" look we suggest a clock, atomizer and tray set of mirrored glass in a combination of clear tones and color. The tray is big enough to hold your brush, comb and hand mirror, and with a pair of harmonizing lamps would take care of all the vanity equipment you need on display.

Know Your Planes . . .

Air-minded boys and girls-and grown-ups, too-will find a new book containing heavy cutouts of American fighting planes right up their alley. The planes are easy to assemble by following the simple directions. There are 16 fine scale models, including 10 that will actually fly. You'll have plenty of fun with this book-but that's beside the point; it will teach you to know our country's planes, which is mighty important just now.

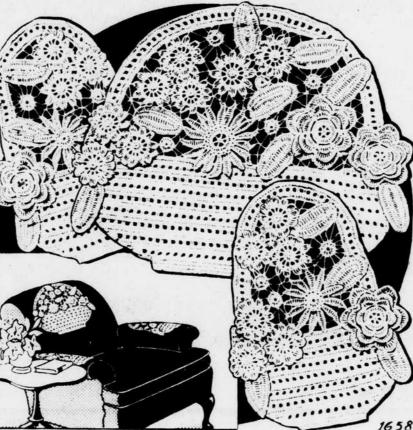

Hosiery Rejuvenation ...

If you don't use leg make-up, and still insist on wearing stockings, you probably have been going into tantrums at the way the best of them will fade from frequent washings. That old maestro, Science, has got that fixed, too. Enough tablets come in a box to rejuvenate six pairs of hose, and they will color rayon, cotton or that precious nylon with equal impartiality. There's a wide assortment of shades from which to choose.

Well, Well, Repeating Straws . . .

Plastic straws that can be sterilized and used over and over again are a welcome innovation. They can be bent at an angle that makes them easier for invalids and young children to handle by shaping them under hot water-they stay that way when cooled off. They're fine for "long, tall ones," too, because they won't wilt before the drink is finished.

As long as chair back sets are part of your housekeeping plans, they might as well add interest and beauty to your chairs. 'The Moon Is Down' Opens National Theater Season

Changes of Cast and Play Structure Have Given Steinbeck Drama No Increase in Vitality

By JAY CARMODY.

Since the play opened in Baltimere last March, Producer Oscar Serlin has been told by a huge majority of critics that "The Moon Is Down" is a woefully defective piece of drama to have come from the pen of John Steinbeck. And what has Mr. Serlin done about it? Well, inspired by the fabulous popularity of the basic novel, the play's purchase by the movies for $300,000 and the acrimonious debate it has evoked, he has kept the play alive - very bad play. rom the terse reporter who wrote so factually and with such dramatic force in "Of Mice and Men" and The Grapes of Wrath." Steinbeck has become a vague and verbose philosopher in "The Moon Is Down." What he has to say—that herdsmen win battles and freemen win warsevery citizen of democracy can hear with hope. His method of saying it, however, creates the indelible impression that he is no longer his old articulate self, that he is merely more playwright mumbling amid the confusion of the world. * * * *

Mr. Steinbeck, who could call a spade a spade with an almost unequaled forthrightness in his bright past, does not even identify the peoples of his play on this occasion. They are the representatives of two philospohies, one totalitarian, the other democratic. He cannot object, Lure of the Stage of course, if audiences identify them instantly as Germans and Norwegians, respectively.

And he certainly will not object If they find the people of "The Moon Is Down" attractive. They are that, that its people are warm and human in verbal dalliance.

There are many signs that Director Chester Erskine has sought to eliminate some of the defects of the play as it opened in the spring. Superficially, he has toughened up his Nazi officer, the colonel in command of the occupying army. The man resembles a Nazi c. o. more than when Otto Kruger played him in the spring, but he still bears a closer resemblance to a character escaped from "Journey's End" than a colonel indoctrinated by the par-anoiac of Berlin and Berchtesgaden. There has been an effort, too, to create an impression of movement, to more than intimate the events which stimulate the endless talk. but "The Moon Is Down" remains more debate than play. The au-

For its characterization of the Don Swann comedy, which concerns the life of six would-be players of the theater, three of each sex, who have banded together in one apartment "for economic reasons," the barn group has called upon the younger of its personnel. The practice might well be repeated. Chief among the tribulations of the hopeful six are a woeful lack of funds, and an equally woeful landlady, the luring to their rooms of a producer who resides in the apartment below them, and the presence of Mr. Coburn, father of the youngest of them. The bonds of convential Boston life, they think, would somewhat limit Mr. Coburn's understanding of his daughter Dottie's life in mixed company. So it is decided that in his presence there will appear only

Wayne Locklin distinguishes himself in the same lucid manner that has enabled him to dominate the few other scenes he has played at the Virginia barn this season. When George inadvertently saunters into the apartment, unaware of the presence of Mr. Coburn, and makes preparations for his bath, he is forced to assume the guise of an escaped lunatic, and the best scene of the comedy is provided. Ann Putnam also performs admirably in the role of the lovely, though not overly intelligent Dottie. The almost inevitability of romance resulting from the circumstances presented emerges in the secret marriage of Tony and Marge, and in the starry-eyed love of Dottie for Norman, who chiefly is responsible for what order exists in the life of

China Lifeline Subject for Film

Paramount will be the first to tell in screen form the heroic story of America's lifeline through the skies to China in "Night Plane From Chunking," which will star Ellen Drew, Robert Preston and Albert Dekker.

The story by Lester Cole will center about the brave pilots who transport tanks, huge guns, shells. medical supplies and food over the loftiest Himalayan peaks to supply our Chines allies. This will be Walter MacEwen's first production for Paramount. Ralph Murphy, who directed "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," will direct. Miss Drew's husband, Maj. Sy Bartlett, is aide to Maj. Gen. Carl W. Spaatz, head of American air forces in Europe, while Preston and Dekker recently gave performances in "Wake Island."

DIANA DECORATED-"Diana" being the newest generation of the Barrymores, and the decoration taking place as part of the action of "Eagle Squadron," which comes next to Keith's.

Producer Wellman HOLLYWOOD.

While Southern California is perspiring under its first really warm weather of the summer, a manufactured cool breeze is helping Director William Wellman keep a movie production on schedule.

The setting is Bridgers Wells, Nev., in the winter of 1885-background of Walter Van Tilburg Clark's dramatic story of a lynching party, "The Ox-Bow Incident." Situated on the back lot of the Huge cakes of ice were placed in front of the llors and the machines thereby gave Hollywood its first air-conditioned outdoor set.

Nats Hit by Loss of Cullenbine as They Strive to Climb in Philadelphia

Win, Lose or Draw Spiking He Gets

Notes to You . . .

Apropos the postponed Lee Savold-Tony Musto fight, at least two of the three District boxing commissioners admit they are looking beyond Savold's cold, "just in case . . ." The medical report on Savold went something like this: "He had a slight cold, with a loose cough. No temperature. Undoubtedly he could have fought. However, he maintained that he suffered 'blinding flashes' and 'weak knees' and, like any other patient, he must be given the benefit of the doubt." If the fight never comes off the chances are we'll brood a few months over missing this epic, but we may live to forget.

We see where the American Football League has "frozen its plans for 1942 because of a shortage of players and (get this) skepticism whether this was the time for organized football." . . . If this statement astonishing Nats, who are producby Joseph Rosentover, president of the league, was a crack at Elmer Layden's National League it wasn't particularly well timed, either, what with the Army and Navy going all out to organize football teams and and wheezing in an attempt to gain toughen the soldiers and sailors through this medium. . . . Why not admit ground. They've been burning up you can't get players, Mr. Rosentover, and that you never could get 'em, the league lately, but it's been akin with the exception of the National League throwaways-you know, the to sprinting on a treadmill. ones you can't get 2 cents for?

To date it looks as if our new Navy has taken a lead over our new Army in sports. . . . First competition was in that big skeet shoot and the Navy won by 5 points. . . . With it went the national championship. ... Did you know that skeet is excellent training for aerial gunners? they're 41/2 games behind sixth place

Don't Judge a Glover by His Look

Add Col. Heinie Miller on the late John Francis Kelly, the Roller to move up a notch they've crept Mill Man: "Kelly never told me wrong as long as he lived. Here's an within striking distance of fifth example. At Gibraltar in 1906 I boxed my first long fight-20 rounds. place, only five games away. The Opponent was a Briton named Jack Reardon from H. M. S. Story, on which vessel the bout took place.

"I was a green, 18-year-old kid. Reardon came in wearing a black Jap silk kimona with a great gold dragon embroidered on it. When he peeled off I got a look at a guy whose ears looked like golf balls that Walter McCallum had been smacking for a year. His nose was ingrown, he had one of those blue shaves. Thick neck, if any, and a bullet head. the task of taking over fifth place Big lion-and-crown tatooed across a hairy chest.

"Kelly noticed the profound effect the other fellow had on me and said, 'I wanted this to be impressive so you'd never forget. I didn't idea. Washington's clever pitching want you to see Reardon until bell time. You'll see plenty of fellows is offsetting glaring deficiencies in like him in boxing. Now remember always, as long as you're in this game, guys that look like that got that way from being hit. Go out there now and don't miss him because you can see that nobody else Nats captured a twilight-night dou-

"Kelly was right. I never forgot that lesson and have taught it to 9-3 and 1-0, at Griffith Stadium, others, often. You don't get that tough looking if you're good. You Early neatly picked Ted Williams don't get that way from flying a kite in the cellar."

Here's a Lad With a Real Idea

Headline: "Andy Farkas Due for Big Year" . . . If Andy comes Baseman Roy Cullenbine for sevthrough it won't make Redskin followers sore but local fans who hark eral games, however, for Roy reback a few years can't help but be reminded, by now, of the parallel ceived a nasty spike gash above between Farkas and Bobby Burke, the former Washington pitcher . . . Every year a headline was: "Burke Due for Big Year" . . . Poor Bobby had his streaks but never that big year.

Crowell Squire, District golfer, writes to tell this story: "Sunday afternoon at the Anacostia Public Golf Course a soldier joined two other ond game, but Williams promptly boys and myself at the first tee. As time wore on and we finished the altered the game's complexion when first 9 holes he was telling us this was an event for him, and said no more. he opened the inning with a double.

"Later, apologizing, he asked if I had an extra ball that he might borrow as he could not buy another. He had paid 50 cents to play, Masterson, Early and Cullenbine rented seven clubs and a bag for 80 cents, and bought a ball and a bag of tees for 60 cents more, or a total outlay of $1.90. This is too darn much for the boys in the service to pay. I'm asking your help in starting a club, tee and ball organization for the service boys at each of the three public courses. I'm sure the people around here have a ankle-length peg to Cullenbine. few clubs they will gladly give for this purpose. I will be only too happy Twice previously Roy had refused to repair them and see that they get to the course."

This sounds like a swell offer from a square guy. We'll help get Early, he later confessed, but when the contributions to the courses if you'll drop 'em at The Star Building.

That's It, Ford, Make 'Em Bleed

With men killing each other all over the world it remains for National League ball players to pick out this time to start throwing bean balls. . . . And what does President Ford Frick do? . . . He fines Pitcher Salvo of the Bees $50 and Pitcher Wyatt of the Dodgers $75 for their stupid exhibitions recently in Boston. . . . Wyatt got fined $25 extra for throwing a bat as well as the ball. . . . Being a patriotic soul, Frick probably donated his mailed fist to the salvage drive and these fines are the best he can do for the duration.

If any distinguished members of that hooligan set that follows boxing still are in town for the Savold-Musto fight that isn't coming season. off tonight, here's a tip: The boxing commission finally is good and sore, and the B. C. is awfully close to a police force that's getting bigger

There doesn't seem to be much the Boston Red Sox or anybody else can do to catch the New York Yankees, but the Red Sox get another chance today to slow them down and renew a few personal duels at the same time.

Although the Yankees divided a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday, they tacked a full game to their lead with the help of Washington, which swept a twi-night twin bill from the Red Sox, and the Chicago White Sox, who whipped Cleveland again.

White Sox Jump to Fifth. It was the ninth straight victory for the White Sox and it enabled them to step into fifth place ahead of the idle Detroit Tigers. One duel the customers will be looking for in the Yankee-Red Sox series is that between Ted Williams of Boston and Joe Gordon of New York for the batting crown which the Red Socker now wears. They are one-two among the hitters of the league, with Gordon only seven percentage points behind. Another interesting development should materialize in the meeting of two of the devastating Di Maggio brothers, Boston's Dominic and New York's Joe. Each has collected exactly 130 hits this season, but Joe has the edge in most of the other departments and is hitting .307 to Dom's .292. Joe has hit 16 homers to 11 for Dominic and leads in runs scored, 81 to 78.

Top Pitchers to Clash.

Today's battle also brings together two of the league's top three pitchers-Hank Borowy of the Yankees with 10 runs and 2 losses and Tex Hughson of the Red Sox with a record of 13 and 3.

At Chicago, the fast-traveling White Sox collected only five hits off Chubby Dean while the Tribe clipped Joe Humphries for 11, but the Sox won, 3-1. Dean walked in the run that put Chicago ahead to hibition game Friday night. Masterson in Fine Fettle.

Walter Masterson, who has won only five games this year, turned in a masterful pitching job in the night portion of yesterday's twin bill. He permitted the Red Sox only five hits in registering his fourth shutout of the season.

Joe Dobson, who hurled for Boston in that game, was no failure. He yielded four hits, but Stan Spence's single and Bruce Campbell's double in the first inning teamed to defeat him. Williams doubtless is no favorite fellow with Dobson today, for with two out and two men on in Boston's half of the first inning Ted was picked off first

Williams Tops Major Batters as Reiser

NEW YORK, August 11.-Pete Reiser returned to the Brooklyn Dodger lineup after a week's injury layoff last night and promptly relinquished the major league batting leadership to Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

Williams, who has collected 127 hits in 369 trips to the plate boosted his average to .344, seven points ahead of his nearest rival in the American League and four points better than Reiser, who tops the National League hitters. Reiser, however, enjoys a longer lead over the rest of his field as the two league batting kings of 1941 press on toward successful defense of their crowns.

War Sacrifices Spur Mrs. Mann In Western Golf

Spouse in Navy, She Musters Courage to Hit Record Medal

By DAVE HOFF.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 .-- Mrs. Russell Mann wants to win the Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament for the second straight year, and is gunning for victory in the current meet if for no other reason than to prove to her husband that she's not worrying too much that he's gone into the Navy.

The former Lucille Robinson, who won six Wisconsin titles and three Iowa championships, played on the Curtis Cup team in 1934 and won the Western Amateur in 1933 and 1941, saw her husband leave for San Diego, Calif., yesterday to go into training as a recruiting officer, and then drove out to Sunset Ridge to win medalist honors in the 1942

Ties Course Record. She explains it this way.

"Even though my husband has gone away and we've had to give up our home in Omaha, I feel in good trim and my golf game has responded accordingly.

The opening day's best match, however, promised to be between Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Iowa, and Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. Dak. Big Matches Scheduled.

Miss Otto was runnerup in the ecent women's Western Open and is the Iowa State champion, while Miss Tainter was the sensation of the Southern winter circuit and is in good stride now.

In other matches today involving top-flight players, Marjorie Row of Detroit, Michigan champion, was favored over Shirley Ann Johnson of Chicago; Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., was expected to take Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich.: Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., former two-time national champion and reigning Western Open titleholder, was favored over Rena Nelson of Chicago, and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., former Southern champion, was given a good chance of winning over Mrs. C. W. Matson of Chicago.

Rice Retains Net Crown At Army Navy Tourney

Austin Rice retained his Army Navy Country Club tennis championship by defeating Henry Sweeney, 6-1, 6-3, in the finals of the members' tournament. Teamed with Sweeney, he then captured the doubles over Cmdr. R. U. Dole and Comdr. C. H. Lyman, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. G. Davidson took the women's singles title with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 triumph over Mrs. J. Newton, jr. Women's doubles honors went to Mrs. A. W. McWillie and Mrs. L. D. York over Mrs. G. Davidson and Mrs. E. K. Young, 8-6, 6-4.

Thrills Bound to Pack Bear-All-Star Clash, Redskin-Army Tilt

Service Teams of East, West Look to Bitter Battle With Pros

By GRANTLAND RICE, Special Correspondent of The Star. Football, late this month, has a chance to set a new record. There will be two games played that together may reach the 200,000 count. One is in Chicago between the All-Stars and the Chicago Bears. The other is in Los Angeles between Wallace Wade's Army team and the Washington Redskins. Both are playing in plants that can seat over 100.000 spectators.

Both will be great football games. Neither can miss. And in addition both are played largely for the Army Emergency Relief. Here and there we have had football games that drew 100,000 or more spectators-Army and Navy in Philadelphia, Notre Dame and Southern California at Los Angeles.

But the prospect of having two games in August draw 100,000 each is something that never happened to football before.

Coast Game Needs Promotion. These are the two starters. There is no question but that the Chicago game will pass the 100,000 mark. This game will net the Army fund well over $100,000.

If the Los Angeles Army-Redskin game is properly promoted, this should be another capacity affair. It shouldn't miss.

The West Coast is one of football's high spots. A short while back the West Coast was badly worried over the thought that bigtime and bigcrowd football was over for the

At least one local chain of lunch rooms has discontinued selling the standard grade A milk which it sold for 5 cents a half pint, and is offering its customers a "de luxe" product selling at 10 cents per half pint. The Star learned today.

Sewer Odors Bring Study

Piney Branch

Diversion Tunnel Not Designed to Carry Maximum Rains

Obnoxious odors in Piney Branch Valley between Sixteenth street and Rock Creek following periods of heavy rainfall, despite completion of the $3,500,000 diversion tunnel that empties into the Potomac, caused engineers of the District government today to make a survey to determine what was wrong.

They declared their confience in the efficiency of the planning of the District public works program for freeing Rock Creek of pollution, but explained that the Piney Branch connection had not been designd to eliminate all sanitary draining through the branch at times of maximum rains. They said the maximum plan had not been adopted because of the great cost.

However, complaints of continued pollution of the atmosphere along the Piney Branch valley brought to light that studies are being made to determine whether the bed of the normally nearly dry branch should be smoothed to cleanse it further of repeated pollution.

Manhole Cover Blown. The studies are being stimulated by the fact that twice during recent rains the cast iron top on the great manhole over the Piney Branch end of the diversion tunnel on the east side of Rock Creek, had been blown off, apparently either by high water pressure or by air pressure. Geysers of water spurted from the manhole and washed sod and dirt down the practice work in District hospitals steep hillside. The principal difficulty involved Hyattsville Citizens Mrs. Rowan said that the three in the public works program was that a wide area in and near the Piney Branch valley east of Sixteenth street and north toward Takoma Park is a "combined" sewer Following Col. Bolles' address the system, that is, both sanitary sewage and storm water are carried in aides on the "stiff course" they forms, stepped up to the platform to the same mains. Engineers say the have just completed and reminded receive their caps and pins and to result is that in times of heavy of the more difficult work ahead of shake hands with Col. Bolles. When rains there is an overflow, with all had been capped they stood at storm water carrying some sanitary sewage with it

> It would cost "millions" to change this combined system into a dual system, engineers say, so the District and the Public Works Administration, in plans to free the Rock pollution, did not order a vert at Jefferson avenue and Thirtysystem for Piney Branch which ninth street, where 3-year-old Charwould meet the "rare" and "maxi- lotte Dunn was drowned during a mum" conditions. Large "Diversion Structure." Near Sixteenth street there now is large "diversion structure," which operates automatically to limit to about 1,200 cubic feet a second the flow into the new diversion sewer that pipes into the tunnel near the Park Road Bridge. If the flow at the "diversion structure" is more than this, gates open and the excess runs down Piney Branch and into Rock Creek. Engineers agree that this means some sanitary sewage at times goes into the branch, but they had no immediate answer as to why the oig manhole cap should have

The tunnel at the Piney Branch end has a 9-foot diameter and at the Potomac River end it is considerably larger. The new Piney Branch sewer connecting the Sixteenth street diversion structure with the head of the tunnel is 10 feet by 8 feet. Engineers say it was intended that the diversion tunnel should operate under pressure of the weight of the water pouring into the mains above. They said that by this means a tunnel could carry a heavier cubic footage per second, obviating a larger and more costlier tunnel which would operate without pressure.

Addressing the Women's Republican Club of Washington County, the Baltimore attorney, who will oppose W. Pinkney West, jr., for the gubernatorial nomination in the September primary, said it was "to aid this patriotic effort rather than to forward any personal ambition that I became candidate."

The prospects of Alexandria receiving an additional $20,000 of Federal funds for the 1942 school budget look brighter today, according to City Manager Carl Budwesky.

Mr. Budwesky and School Supt. r. C. Williams met yesterday with Henry J. Sullivan, Federal Works Agency regional engineer, to present their reasons why the city needs the money allocated under the Lanham Act to carry on its school program. According to Mr. Budwesky, the school budget figures and the city's financial statement were sufficient to convince officials that Alexandria is carrying a heavy burden due to the influx of war workers who use the facilities of the city but in most cases pay no taxes. Mr. Sullivan has requested a written statement of the facts presented at the meeting, but assured Mr. Budwesky that the city could expect the $20,000 allotment.

Alexandria already has received $10,000 in Federal funds for its 1942 school budget, but had been promised $30,000 and there was question as to whether or not the balance would be paid A further request for Federal funds is expected to be made by the city for recreational purposes.

D. C. Urged to Cease Use Of Needless Traffic Lights

A recommendation that all traffic lights no longer necessary to handle traffic be dispensed with for the duration has been made by the District of Columbia Division of the American Automobile Association.

Pointing out that the Highway Department estimates a reduction of 20 per cent in Washington traffic since last year, Washington I. Cleve-land, manager of the club, in a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young stressed the importance of dispensing with all traffic signals and stop signs no longer required by existing traffic conditions.

"Every unnecessary stop sign and every unnecessary traffic signal light involvs additional wear on automobile tires because of starting and stopping, in addition to the gasoline that is wasted while cars are waiting to proceed," Mr. Cleveland

"In light of the reduction in traffic which has taken place to date." he wrote, "it is earnestly requested that the District Commissioners authorize the making of a survey to determine what traffic signal lights and stop signs can be dispensed with in order that unnecessary waste of rubber and gasoline may be eliminated."

Admiral Ghormley Well Versed In Tactics of Both Oceans

58-Year-Old Veteran Has Seen Theory Put To Test in War

Supreme commander of United States and Allied sea, land and air forces in the South Pacific is Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghorm-ley. Here's a look at the commander who is leading the attack on the Solomon Islands.

By TRUDI McCULLOUGH,

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—He knows he Atlantic. He knows the Pacific. From recent tours of duty in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations and the War Plans Division, Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley knows naval strategy and tactics for both oceans.

From his own tours of sea duty and his assignment as naval ob-server to Britain during this war he has seen theory put to test.

Time and again he has been forced to say to newsmen that because he knew so much he refused to discuss the Navy. The ability to make that statement without being accused of wearing a size 40 cap is an ability peculiar to Admiral Ghormley.

It is also a keyhole view into the character of the officer who, in London, was as welcome socially as professionally. Said one acquaintance, "He had respect for the British Navy and gave it. He expected respect for himself and got it."

Enjoyed Social Life. There, when there was a recess from his professional duties as senior naval observer, Admiral Ghormley was a great "party man."

In repose, the face is heavy with authority and fearlessness, and the steady disbelieving eyes say you can't pull a fast one there.

A "Very Navy" Mind. Described as "very Navy" in his mind and demeanor, Admiral Ghormley doesn't have the same concentration of that quality in his appearance. Lightning Imparts Realism To Opera at Water Gate

Weather Holds Crowd Down as San Carlo Presents 'Il Trovatore' With Mobley Lushanya

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The San Carlo Opera Comany had its first opportunity last night to begin its season of opera at the Water Gate, and nearly all of Verdi's "Il Troyatore" was sung before the rain started. The storm clouds that gathered behind the accoustical shell and the lightning darting through the skies gave a realistic effect to some of the dramatic scenes and seemed thoroughly in keeping with the unfolding of the tragic story. In spite of the uncertainty of the weather a fair sized audience had assembled and remained faithfully to hear as Warnke Reaches Australia much of the popular work as pos-

The difficult music of the part of Azucena taxed her not at all and no matter how emotional the scene, her tones lost none of their beauty. They were vibrant, pure and rich. In her acting Miss Kaskas was less convincing and hardly looked the part of the old gypsy but one forgot the lack of histronic skill in listening to a voice rarely heard in this role.

Louis Raybaut, stage director, has managed to conform the small stage of the shell to the requirements of opera with scenery of colorful design that conveys the setting of the different acts of the opera sufficiently. Tonight Verdi's "Rigoletto" will be given, with Ivan Petroff in the totle role.

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES. (David Bruce Burnstone, Oswald Jacoby, Howard Schenken and Theodore A. Lightner, world's leading team-of-four, inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in existence.)

The Only Defense West's defense in today's hand was so brilliant that most players would not think of it even if they saw all the cards! We challenge

0 K 5 + Q.J 6 2 The bidding: West North East South Pass 34 Pass 44

Pass Pass Pass West led hearts and continued the suit. South ruffing the second round South got over to dummy with the diamond ace to return a low club. East played low, South put up the queen, and West won with the club

And there you are. Look at all the hands and see if you can find the best return for West. There's only one card that will set South! West must return the spade king

(And, when the hand was actually played, that's just what West did! Note that if West returns anything but a trump, dummy can ruff out all of South's club losers. South eventually gives up a trump in addition to the heart and club already lost, making his game contract.

If West returns the jack of trumps, North wins with the queen. South can then ruff out only two clubs, but makes up for it by losing no trump trick.

The return of the spade king, however, not only took away one of dummy's ruffs, but also preserved West's trump trick. South won with the trump ace and had Hobson's choice. If he ruffed two clubs dummy's trump queen would have to be used for ruffing, setting up West's jack. South would then have to lose a trump and a second club trick. And if South used dummy's trump queen to draw West's jack, dummy could ruff only one club; and then South would lose two additional club tricks.

Yesterday you were Oswald Jacoby's partner and, with neither side vulnerable, you held:

By RAMON COFFMAN. One of the two gases which make up water is the lightest of all known gases. It is far lighter than air. A quart of air is equal in weight to 14 and a third quarts of hydrogen. Hydrogen has been used as a gas for balloons and dirigibles. It has great lifting power, but it will burn when touched with a lighted match, and can be ignited by a spark. Explosions causing loss of life have followed the use of this gas. Helium has less lifting power but it is better because it is safer.

Oxygen is the other gas in water. It is a little heavier than air, but not much. Nine quarts of oxygen are equal in weight to 10 quarts of air, when the temperature and pressure are the same.

Oxygen can be turned into a liquid. When that is done, it becomes extremely cold-361 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Liquid oxygen is highly explosive and can be used in place of dynamite.

Oxygen gas is important for burning. No bonfire would burn without

When oxygen and hydrogen are put together in the right way, they become water. This has been done many times in the laboratories of scientists.

This brings us to a very strange point. A gas which will burn quickly is combined with a gas needed for a flame, and the result is a liquid which will put out fire!

From early times, men have used water to quench fires. The water smothers a flame. There are certain kinds of fires which water will not stop, but in general it is the easiest thing to use for the purpose. Nature does not give every part of the earth an equal supply of water. Great stretches of land are "deserts," because they have only a few inches of rain each year. Seeing the waste of land, we have worked out systems of irrigation in many places. Dams have been built to block rivers, and this has produced "man-made lakes." From such lakes, trenches can lead the water to soil which is thirsty for it. Sometimes an irrigation system takes water to land hundreds of miles distant.

Here and there-where rivers pose-deep wells have been drilled. We shall have more to say about wells in our next story.

Sabotage—Saboteur

The particularly odious kind of destruction known as sabotage originated long ago in France. Fearing that the introduction of machinery would deprive them of employment. workers wrecked many machines by casting their wooden shoes (sabots) into the working parts. Sabotage has two Anglicized pronunciations:

First choice, noun and verb: saboh-TAHZH.

Second choice, noun only: SAB-

How Did It Start?

Phoenix: What is the origin of flying a flag at HALF MAST?-W. Y. Answer: The custom is a survival of the days of the sailing ship. When a ship went into mourning, as for its captain, a commodore, a king or a president, the entire vessel presented a slovenly appearance—the flag at half mast, the yards (spars) "cockbilled" (disarranged), the rigging slacked off, and rope ends trailing. This is comparable to the "sackcloth and ashes" mourning of Biblical

Entirely New Series Of Steels Created On 10-Day Order

Metallurgists Complete Rush Job on Schedule At Request of WPB

B: the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The American Iron and Steel Institute today announced an entirely new series of war steels, created in 10 days.

A representative of the institute was staggered on a hot Wednesday afternoon in mid-July as the telephone voice of a War Production Board executive urgently made the request.

"We're holding a meeting here in Washington a week from this coming Saturday," said the war agency man, "to establish new steel specifications for (and here he named certain war products)—

"We'd like to have your Alloy Steel Committee present to that meeting a series of alloy steels which (1) can be made entirely from steel scrap, with almost no additions of virgin alloying elements, and (2) can be used in place of the steels now doing the job without any change in design of the parts. Can it be done?"

Research Work Parceled Out.
Still flabbergasted, the institute man managed to say: "You're asking the steel industry to develop an entirely new set of steels in 10 days. Well, the industry has licked some tough problems before; it can expin!"

The steel representative hastily telephoned, one after the other, top-flight metallurgists in five prominent steel-producing companies.

The metallurgists were told the problem and given certain technical information furnished by the WPB. The necessary research work was parceled among them to avoid duplication of effort.

Then the metallurgists went to work. They mobilized laboratory staffs for round-the-clock effort. They marshaled their forces to devise formulas, make sample heats of steel and to test them for chemical composition, strength and hardenability.

In the next 10 long days they consulted with each other by telephone, reported progress or failure, and exchanged advice.

Report Drafted at Breakfast.

And then came the day. The five metallurgists and the American Iron and Steel Institute man met early that Saturday morning at the Union Station in Washington. Over a breakfast table they consolidated into a report the results of their experiments and recommendations.

WPB officials, a few hours later, had before them full descriptions and characteristics of a brand-new set of steels.

The new steels have been officially approved for war use and are about to go into commercial production. The creations are designated as national emergency 9,400 series and the alloying elements used generally are small amounts of silicon, chromium, nickel and molybdenum, fortified by somewhat greater than normal amounts of manganese.

Short Line Railroads Wage Hearings Called R: the Associated Press.

30 short line railroads to hearings yesterday in an effort to settle disputes over wages and paid vacations.

The cases are carryovers from the general settlement of a threatened strike on class 1 railroads last year.

Wage boosts and vacations were granted in that dispute after extensive negotiations and hearings. Representatives of the 14 brotherhoods of non-operating personnel, such as maintenance and clerical employes, since have been conferring with individual short lines to obtain similar terms from them.

Chairman of the emergency board is Walter P. Stacey, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court. The other members are W. H. Spencer, dean of the University of Chicago Business School, and Edwin E. Witte, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin,

The torpedo that did this blasted its way right into your home

That torpedo did more than destroy a valuable ship—it took the precious lives of brave seamen.

This tragedy has been repeated many times. And it is affecting millions of people in the Eastern Seaboard states.

Already, you have been forced to drive less but the worst effects will be felt in the cold months ahead when there will not be sufficient fuel oil to keep homes warm.

On one trip, this tanker carried over 6,000,000 gallons of crude oil—150,000,000 gallons in a normal year. That's enough crude to provide gasoline to run 240,000 automobiles a whole year under present conditions—plus enough fuel oil to heat 25,000 homes all this winter—plus enough industrial fuel oil to keep thousands of machines producing vital weapons of war.

Multiply that loss by the many sinkings that have occurred and you will realize the extreme gravity of the situation. Substitute methods of transportation are doing a yeoman job but they are far from adequate.

Our government has told us that this is total war in which defeat means total destruction. Our war industries must have the petroleum they require to carry on. Therefore it becomes the solemn and personal duty of every civilian to do his part in conserving gasoline. Rationing alone is not the answer.

The entire engineering staff of Sun Oil Company's Automotive Research Division has been working night and day, for months, to find ways of conserving petroleum products. Through painstaking research, these engineers have evolved a plan which, in view of the seriousness of the situation, we feel we should report to you at this time.

Comprehensive tests have proved that it is practical to run most automobiles—and still obtain smooth, adequate and reasonably satisfactory transportation—by using only half the number of cylinders in the car and making simple, inexpensive motor and carburetor adjustments.

This will mean up to one-third less consumption of gasoline and, in many cars, up to 50% more mileage per gallon. Also by reducing the use of excessive power, the rate of tire wear is substantially decreased.

Sun Oil Company is now inviting the cooperation of manufacturers and will shortly advise you how this development can be applied to your car.

Remember... conservation is just as important as production

Oil is ammunition . . . use it wisely
