Torpedoes Explode On Curacao Beach; Subs Are Hunted

WILLEMSTED, Curacao, Netherlands West Indies, Aug. 19.—Allied Navy and Army forces started search for enemy submarines off the south coast of Curacao today after two torpedoes exploded on the beach.

An official announcement said: "Late yesterday afternoon explosions were felt throughout the City of Willemstad and persons on the south shore of Curacao saw water geysers thrown into the air at spots where two enemy torpedoes struck the beach."

Appropriate action was taken immediately by naval and military authorities and within a few minutes depth charges had been dropped in the suspected areas.

Mileham Says 'Leak' On Blackout Came From White House

The White House itself was one source of the "leak" of advance information which made last night's "surprise" blackout considerably less than a surprise to many in Washington, Chief Air-Raid Warden William C. Mileham said today.

"I'm not going to give the names of individuals," he added, "but I have definite information that people there let the news out."

The White House was not the only source of the rumors of an air-raid test, which spread through the city yesterday, according to Mr. Mileham, "everybody in Washington knew about it except the warden service."

Plans for an air-raid test must be checked with the Army Air Forces Intercept Command in New York, Mr. Mileham said, and information must be passed on to the War and Navy Departments as well as the White House.

There have been past leaks in many places along these channels, he asserted.

Wardens do not have advance information, but learn of blackouts or raids only on receipt of the "yellow" signal, the chief warden pointed out.

"We had so little advance knowledge," he said, "that we were holding the regular two-weekly meeting of 66 deputy wardens when the alert was sounded."

The blackout was not completely unexpected by Mr. Mileham, however. Yesterday afternoon he received a telephone call from a representative of the Police Department, which is not supposed to have advance raid test information either, telling him "he'd probably need a car tonight and one would be available."

Norfolk Citizens Accused Of Aiding Propagandists

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 19.—Some of the people of Norfolk have been playing right into the hands of enemy propagandists by the spreading of idle gossip and rumors of impending race riots, City Manager Charles B. Borland asserted today.

He was referring to reports which have been current for several weeks that a racial disturbance was scheduled during last night's blackout.

COMMANDOS LAND—Seen from the interior of a landing craft, a British Commando unit starts ashore in maneuvers which trained them for raids such as today's attack on Dieppe, on the coast of Occupied France.

All Commandos Are Reported Back on Ships

Casualties Heavy On Both Sides in 9-Hour Battle

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Allied Commandos with tanks stormed through the German defenses of Dieppe on the shores of Northern France today in the first major attack on the continent by American, Canadian, British and Fighting French, and re-embartered this evening after nine hours of the fiercest sort of fighting.

The Allies were understood to have achieved all the principal objectives of the assault with clock-like precision.

Losses on both sides probably were heavy, a communiqué said tonight, but the attacking forces destroyed German shore artillery and anti-aircraft batteries, a radio location station and an ammunition dump, among other objectives.

Eighty-two German planes were destroyed and more than 100 probably destroyed or damaged as approximately 1,000 Allied planes, forming probably the greatest protective aerial canopy ever used, fought off the German air force. A total of 95 Allied planes were lost.

Some Tanks Lost Ashore.
Some Allied tanks, landed for the first time from new British tank-landing vessels, were lost ashore; others were, apparently, brought back home.

(The German news agency DNB asserted that the landing attempt had ended in a debacle and that since this afternoon there was "not a single armed British, American or Canadian left on the European continent.")

DNB asserted that more than 1,000 prisoners had been taken and that Allied losses in men and material were "very high." This is a standard Nazi claim.

DNB also said German coastal artillery participated in the Dieppe fighting and sank numerous British landing boats and that several transports turned back to sea without having accomplished their tasks.

Despite the unprecedented scope of the attack, the British repeatedly announced during the day the action was not an invasion intended to create a front in Western Europe but was only a raid.

Test Suggested.
The constant procession of hundreds of planes from British front-line airbases to the battle zone suggested that, at the least, the great assault might be a test to determine whether such an aerial "big top" could positively protect a true invasion force all day long.

The planes shuttled to the attack and back for reloading and refueling so quickly that the scene at British air bases recalled the Battle of Britain in the fall of 1940.

Starting at dawn, there never was a break in the procession. Despite the great concentration of planes, it was reported reliably that no parachutists were used.

The Americans, carefully chosen volunteers called the Rangers, were the first American fighting men to set foot on German-controlled soil in this war and the first to go into action in Europe since 1918.

Text of Communiqué.
"Despite the clear statement in our first American communiqué this morning and broadcast to the French at 6:15 about the raid on Dieppe, German propaganda, unable to make other capital out of the turn the operation has taken, is claiming the raid was an invasion attempt which they have frustrated."

"In point of fact, re-embarkation of the main forces engaged was begun six minutes after the time scheduled and has been completed nine hours after the initial landing, as planned."

"Some tanks have been lost during action ashore, and reports show that fighting has been very fierce and casualties are likely to have been heavy on both sides."

"A full report will not be available until our forces are back in England."

"In addition to destruction of a six-gun battery and ammunition dump reported in our earlier communiqué, a radio location station and a flank (anti-aircraft) battery, were destroyed."

Vital Experience Gained.
"Apart from losses inflicted on the enemy, vital experience has been gained in the employment of substantial numbers of troops in an assault and in transportation and use of heavy equipment during combined operations."

"Our new tank landing craft were in action today for the first time. There was intense activity by aircraft of all operational commands of the RAF in support of the landing of our troops against heavy enemy fire."

5,000 Attend Opening At Marlboro Despite Train and Bus Ban

Bets Fall Off Slightly In First Two Races; Double Pays $21.20

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 19.—An estimated crowd of 5,000 fans was on hand for the first race on today's inaugural program at Marlboro race track.

Joseph A. Farrell, general manager of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association, which operates the Bowie and Marlboro tracks, said he could not "see much difference" in today's opening crowd compared with last year's estimated 6,000.

The attendance figure today was chalked up despite the suspension of special bus and railroad service from Baltimore and Washington on order of the Office of Defense Transportation.

$33,423 Bet in Double.
Wagering on the first two races and daily double was $33,423 as against $35,980 last year. The daily double total of $6,860 surpassed last year's total of $6,828. The light falling off in the first two races was due to late arrivals being shut out on the first race.

Willie Balzaretto, second leading winning rider at Cumberland, opened this session by driving S. Maloney's Allentown home ahead of seven platers in the 6 1/2 furlongs sprint. The gelding paid $8.30. Johnnie Harrell, third leading rider.

Woman Says Men Attacked Her as Another Stood Guard

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—A young white woman victim charged from her hospital bed today that a Negro stood guard with a bare knife while other Negroes attacked her.

Ten have been charged with criminal assault in the case. Questioned at police line-up today, Earl Long, 16, one of the prisoners, said: "Sure, I attacked her."

Asked by Inspector Joseph Donovan how many other women he had criminally assaulted, he replied: "I couldn't begin to count them all."

Long accused Willie Brown, 20, of standing guard with the knife, as did the young woman when six of the newly arrested men were taken to Harlem Hospital today. She identified two others as her first assailants.

The victim was seized by a Negro gang on a Harlem tenement roof when she ran to aid her brother, who was being beaten after he had followed two youths who snatched her purse.

Carmody Says Higgins Could Have Fulfilled 200 Ship Contract

Maritime Commissioner Tells House Probers of Preliminary Inquiry

John M. Carmody, member of the Maritime Commission, told a House subcommittee today that he believed Andrew J. Higgins, New Orleans shipbuilder, could have fulfilled his original contract to build 200 Liberty ships if there had been no shortage of steel.

"I have no scruples about having voted to approve that contract," Mr. Carmody told the subcommittee after persistent questioning by Representative Bonner, Democrat of North Carolina, as to the amount of a preliminary investigation the commission had done before awarding the contract to Mr. Higgins.

The contract was subsequently revoked because of a shortage of steel, Mr. Carmody said.

$15,000,000 Spent.
He said that he had never heard of Mr. Higgins before the contract letting, but had received "very favorable reports" as to his ability in building small boats.

Mr. Higgins' plant was to have been an adaptation of the assembly line technique to shipbuilding and would have occupied an area of 1,200 acres 14 miles from New Orleans.

Approximately $15,000,000 had been spent at the site when work was stopped, said Representative Peterson, Democrat of Florida, chairman of the subcommittee of (See CARMODY, Page 2-X.)

Bahr's Suit 'Doped' With Secret Ink, FBI Agent Testifies

(Earlier Story on Page A-14.)
NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 19.—The Government won bits of cotton doped with material for secret ink today into the story by which it hopes to convict Herbert K. F. Bahr as a Nazi spy.

George T. Dillard, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, testified at Bahr's trial on an espionage conspiracy indictment that the former Buffalo resident had produced the material and identified it.

Bahr was being interviewed July 7, after his arrival from Europe on the diplomatic exchange ship Drottningholm. Mr. Dillard said, when the supposed refugee from Germany asked that his luggage be brought into the room. This was done and Bahr then sliced a piece from a bag and produced a bit of cotton with a yellow stain.

Bahr next cut the middle from his coat and disclosed more cloth with a similar stain. Both were usable in making invisible ink, Mr. Dillard said Bahr told him. The witness gave no explanation for Bahr's act.

Three copies of a statement Bahr is alleged to have written and signed in the FBI's New York office were identified by Mr. Dillard and introduced by Assistant United States Attorney Thorn Lord.

Defense Attorney 'Chagrined' at Role Played by Witness

Americans, British Raid France; Heavy Battle Rages Near Dieppe; Planes Aid Landings With Tanks

Nazi Battery and Ammunition Dump Destroyed; London Denies Second-Front Aim

LONDON, Aug. 19.—United States troops landed in France early today with tanks and heavy weapons, and more than nine hours later they and their Canadian, British and Fighting French Allies still were waging ferocious battle with the Germans around Dieppe in the greatest Commando assault of the war.

Overhead the United States Army Air Forces, the RAF and the Royal Canadian Air Force maintained a constant thick umbrella of bombing and fighting planes against bitter German aerial opposition. Indications were that more than 1,000 Allied planes were participating.

Escorted by British and Canadian fighters, two squadrons of the United States Army Air Force's big Flying Fortresses smashed at one base of Nazi aerial resistance in a high-level bombing of a German fighter station at Abbeville, 38 miles northeast of Dieppe, setting buildings afire and smashing runways.

From dawn on through late afternoon the constant shuddering roar of heavy explosions denoting the battle's continuance shook buildings on the English side of the Channel.

(Although the British repeatedly asserted the action was a Commando raid and not an invasion, the strength and continuing nature of the assault suggested that it was developing into a major operation with unpredictable possibilities.)

Even as the battle thundered on, first units of the Commando force who had speedily accomplished their mission, returned to a British port in gay spirits.

Force Is Mostly Canadian.

Canadians made up the majority of the strong force that drove across the Channel to Dieppe, 50-odd miles from Beachy Head, the nearest point in England, and 100 miles from Paris.

Announcements from the United States Army and Allied combined operations headquarters disclosed that the Americans, British special service troops and the Fighting French all were in action.

The Americans, specially chosen from a host of volunteers as the first American fighting men to set foot on the continent of an embattled Europe since 1918, proudly wore the title "Rangers"—after the famous Rogers Rangers whose bold exploits made history in the French and Indian War of American Colonial days 180 years ago.

Nazi Battery Destroyed.

First-announced fruits of the raid were destruction of a six-gun German battery and an ammunition dump by troops who landed on the right flank, accomplished their mission and were re-embarked on the British Navy, which ferried all the forces across to France.

On the left flank the Canadians first were repulsed by strong German opposition, but bounded back to carry the beach by assault while their comrades were pushing tanks ashore in the center for the main thrust, which a noon announcement said still was continuing.

The landings were accomplished at every point selected in advance in a carefully-planned, closely secret operation that American officers of all services helped to arrange.

Eagerness to front this a second front, a real invasion, was cooled by repeated BBC broadcasts stressing the "limited and temporary" character of the action and declaring "it had nothing to do with military decisions which have been taken in Moscow recently."

The Germans, however, made no attempt to belittle the scope of the assault, and claimed they had thrown even their naval forces into the bitter conflict.

For the Canadians, thirsting for a fight for months or years, it was the first real action against the enemy. For the Fighting French, whose Commando organization was disclosed only on Bastille Day last July 14, it was the first time they have set foot on the soil of their native land since the German conquest of 1940.

Observers on the British shore said there were more aircraft than ever before seen and heard over the Channel, as bombers and fighters shuttled across to assault or reload. Indicating the size of the present operation, it was recalled on at least one previous occasion 1,000 fighters participated in a sweep across the Channel.

The raid, first announced at 6:45 a. m. (1:45 a. m. Eastern War time), was still continuing at noon when issued. After that, as the mists burned away and a fine, fair day developed, persons on the British shore still could hear the heartening sounds of offensive battle.

Informed quarters captioned, however, that for all the broad participation of troops, tanks, naval guns and planes, the raiding forces would be withdrawn when they had achieved their objectives. "This was not a second front."

Their objectives obviously were extensive, since it was the first time landing parties have used tanks. The objectives appeared to be these: To test the enemy's defense organization and to test the Allied plans for landing and the RAF ability to cover a big landing force.

Additionally, it was found to disclose disposition of German troops and equipment in the cross-channel area that once was a vacation resort but now is a nest of Nazi fortifications.

The British radio urgently warned the French public that the raid—strongest of the numerous Commando smashes up and down the coasts of Nazi-ruled Europe since March, 1941—was not an invasion.

The French were cautioned not to be misled.

Flensburg, Nazi U-Boat Center, Is RAF Target

4 Raiders Missing After Second Night Raid in a Row

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Flensburg, the Nazi submarine and ship-building center almost at the Danish border, was the chief target of RAF bombers last night, their second night in a row over Northern Germany, the Air Ministry announced today.

A communiqué said four raiders were missing. The weight of the attack was not disclosed immediately.

A few German bombers were over England during the night. The Ministry of Home Security said bombs dropped in East Anglia caused some damage and slight casualties.

Attacks on Germany. Berlin broadcasts said Germany also was attacked from the east, where Russian planes were said to have bombed parts of East and West Prussia.

They named Norwich as a target of German raiders over England during the night.

U. S. Flyer Sinks Axis U-Boat Off Coast of Brazil

Country at 'Gates of War,' Rio Official Says

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19.—A United States pilot bombed and sank one of the Axis submarines lurking off the Brazilian coast after the sinking of five Brazilian ships brought this biggest South American republic to the "gates of war," an official announced today.

All Brazilian soldiers on leave were recalled urgently to duty and the navy forbade furloughs for regular reserves.

First official word of the Axis submarine came from Comdr. Ernani A. A. Amaral Peixoto, federal liaison officer of the State of Rio de Janeiro, who told a crowd gathered before the presidential palace that one of the undersea raiders had been destroyed.

Government press department and other accounts in Brazilian newspapers gave this version of the attack:

The submarine was sighted 50 miles off Brazil's coast by a United States plane piloted by Capt. Jack Lacey. The plane dived, machine-gunning the submarine and forcing it to the surface with bombs when it attempted to submerge.

Bomb Hit Finishes Craft. The Diario Carioca, quoting authorized sources, said the submarine was damaged in this first attack. The United States plane dived again, this time finishing the submarine with direct bomb hits.

At the same time, radio reports purportedly from British Guiana were heard here saying RAF planes, based on that British South American territory, attacked a second submarine off the Northeast coast of South America yesterday, and sighted a third.

These developments came as renewed anti-Axis demonstrations flared in the streets of principal cities throughout the country. Brazil's course could not yet be foretold.

Meanwhile, a naval spokesman said an Axis surface raider prowling the South Atlantic had been sighted near the Brazilian island of Trinidad, 1,000 miles off the coast, several days ago. (Presence of a surface raider in the South Atlantic was denied by the United States Navy today.)

Call for Revenge. Throughout the country, in fervent demonstrations, Brazilians called on the government to avenge the affront to Brazil's honor and the apparent loss of several hundred lives, including those of women and children, in the recent wave of ship losses.

At Co. Joo Pinto Paes, speaking for War Minister Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, told one crowd here that the country was at the "gates of war" and the army was "ready to obey the order of the chiefs who direct this nation."

Demonstrations against the Axis mounted so dangerously that the police here ordered all bars and cafes closed at 9 p. m. daily and advised residents to be in their homes by 10 p. m.

Official announcements showed only 185 persons known to be saved of the 836 listed as being aboard the ship, which was sunk. There was a report, however, that several lifeboats with survivors had landed on an isolated beach.

Both President Getulio Vargas and Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha violently denounced Axis "piracy" and gave hints the strong measures would be adopted.

"I can assure Brazilians that, forced by the brutality of aggression, we will offer a reaction which will serve as an example to peoples who seek to destroy contemporary civilization," Aranha said.

Newspapers unanimously echoed the popular cry for revenge. Radio stations scrapped light programs for martial music and almost continuous news announcements. Rio de Janeiro's three gay casinos closed last night in memory of the dead.

Nazi Surface Raider Sinks U. S. Vessel Off African Coast

15 of Crew Killed, 20 More Taken Prisoner; British Craft Sunk

By the Associated Press.

First confirmation of reports that a German surface raider was loose in the South Atlantic came today when the Navy released the stories of survivors of a medium-sized United States merchant vessel.

Sinking of a small British ship off the northern coast of South America by a submarine identified by survivors as Italian also was announced by the Navy today.

Survivors of the American ship said an Atlantic port that the German raider, obscured by the darkness, appeared to be a five-hatch cargo ship.

Maritime men in New York said this was the average number of hatches, or deck openings to the cargo hold, for about a 7,000-ton gross ship.

The second officer of the American ship, who said at least 15 of his crewmates were killed by shells or machine-gun fire, said about 20 other crew members were taken prisoner. He said the ship was probably steam-powered and left the scene at about 20 knots.

The captain, who like the second officer is a naturalized German-American, said he believed that the raider had at least six guns and that some of her armament was 8-inch caliber. He estimated the ship at 8,000 to 9,000 tons and suggested that it launched motor torpedo boats equipped with machine guns to make a simultaneous attack on the freighter from three points.

Survivors said that in addition to 10 salvos from the raider's guns, their ship also took three and possibly four torpedoes before it went down.

The attack took place in mid-July off the West Coast of Africa. Sinking of the small British merchant vessel off South America, brought the Associated Press tabulation of announced sinkings in the Western Atlantic to 436. The ship sunk by the raider was not included in the tabulation since the attack took place in the Eastern Atlantic.

At the moment, there is no such "break" in sight. Pleas by Mr. Roosevelt for harmony have been in vain. The demand of the President apparently has had no effect on Mr. Bennett's supporters.

This afternoon and tonight it is expected tremendous pressure will be exerted by the Mead forces to get the leaders and the rank and file of the delegates to swing to the support of the President's candidate. Unless he is able to break successfully into the big bloc of delegates pledged to Mr. Bennett, Senator Mead's chances are not so bright.

Mr. Farley told newspapermen today that the Bennett lines were holding firm. The Mead forces, however, still maintained that when the showdown came, Senator Mead will have a majority of the delegates. They insisted it was inconceivable that the convention would turn down Mr. Roosevelt.

A dramatic moment came in today's session when Mr. Farley was presented to the convention by Gov. Lehman, temporary chairman. The delegates rose and gave Mr. Farley the greatest ovation accorded to anyone.

OPA to Launch Drive to Halt Joy Riding in East

By the Associated Press.

To emphasize that joy riding is usual—or even just occasionally—is definitely out in the 17 Eastern States affected by gasoline rationing, the Office of Price Administration is going to search for gas "chiselers."

While declining to indicate when a campaign would start, OPA enforcement officials said yesterday spotters will cover beaches, amusement parks and other places outside cities where motorists drive for relaxation and entertainment in normal times.

Automobiles with extra rationing stickers or without stickers at all will be checked and repeaters, OPA indicated, will be requested to show cause why they should not be prosecuted for illegal use of gasoline allowed only for essential driving.

Democratic Parley Delays Candidate Choice Till Tomorrow

Farley Still Confident Of Bennett's Selection Despite Roosevelt Moves

By GOULD LINCOLN, Star Staff Correspondent.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The Democratic State Convention meeting in the St. George Hotel today concluded its organization of delegates under the direction of "Big Jim" Farley, State Democratic chairman. It then adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow, when it will fight out the contest over the nomination of a gubernatorial candidate.

Involved in this contest is the political fate of Mr. Farley, one-time political manager for President Roosevelt and a member of the cabinet, and also the political prestige of the President himself in his home State.

The delegates will be called on to decide between Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., backed by Mr. Farley, and Senator Mead, who is supported by Mr. Roosevelt, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and the New York State Democratic Party.

Delegates generally, unless one of the candidates is withdrawn, or both step aside to permit the name of a compromise candidate.

Army to Take Over Woods Machine Co. Plant at Boston

President Directs Action For Refusal to Comply With Contract Ruling

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt ordered Secretary of War Stimson today to take possession of the S. A. Woods Machine Co. plant at Boston, Mass., which has refused to comply with an order of the War Labor Board.

The plant has Army contracts for making munitions. Shortly after the order was issued, Robert P. Patterson, acting Secretary of War, directed Maj. Ralph F. Gow of the Boston Ordnance district to take possession of the plant.

In a statement explaining the action, Mr. Patterson said failure of the company's officials to obey the WLB order "has created a serious threat to the production of vital war material which it manufactures."

"No company and no labor organization can be permitted to defy the mandate of this impartial tribunal," Mr. Patterson asserted.

Action Was Expected. The President's action was expected. The direction to the Secretary of War was contained in an executive order timed 10:40 a. m. and calling immediate War Department action.

Wayne L. Morse, of the War Labor Board, referred the matter to the White House late yesterday after the 2 p. m. deadline set by the WLB passed without the company's compliance with the order. The WLB order, first issued 20 days ago, directed union maintenance and arbitration of labor disputes.

Four Requests Made. The War Labor Board sent H. B. Dodge, president of the company, four requests to comply with the order before Mr. Dodge notified the company that he would not comply.

The President's executive order said that "possession and operation shall be terminated by the President as soon as he determines that the plant of the S. A. Woods Machine Co. at South Boston, Mass., will be privately operated in a manner consistent with the war effort."

The company had sought to have the case settled in court. The President ordered seizure under authority vested in him "by the Constitution and laws of the United States, as President of the United States and commander in chief of the Army and Navy of the United States."

He made no reference to authority given him under the War Powers Act.

Action Second Within Week. It was the second time within a week and the seventh time during the current national emergency that the Government had exercised its power to take over a private industry.

Last Friday the President ordered the Navy to seize the plant of the General Cable Corp. at Bayonne, N. J., after the employees struck in protest against a labor board decision against their demands for a wage increase.

The War Labor Board's final request to the machine firm brought a reply reaffirming the company's previously expressed attitude.

"We regret that you are disposed to deny us a court test of your powers," said the company's statement. "Neither union maintenance nor compulsory arbitration have anything to do with production in our plant. Production in our plant is in no wise jeopardized by the management. If threatened it will be only as the result of your decision."

At the same time the firm told the board it would co-operate in production "to the fullest extent permitted us," whether or not the Government took over the plant.

Employees of the Cable Co. voted unanimously last night for a resolution pledging them not to interrupt production again "for any reason" during the war. They asked that the plant be returned to private management.

At Pittsburgh, committee of the CIO Aluminum Workers' Union gathered to discuss a report of their president that union members were urging a general strike in the essential aluminum industry. They were described by their leader as displeased with a WLB decision which denied them a wage increase

Jap Warship Is Sunk by Sub In Aleutians

Cruiser or Destroyer Sent Down in Fog, Navy Reports

A United States submarine has sunk a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the Western Aleutian area, the Navy announced today, bringing to 23 the total of enemy ships announced as sunk or damaged in that area.

Conditions, supposedly fog, made an exact identification of the ship impossible. The Navy said this sinking has not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique.

The location of the action reported today was given only as "the Western Aleutian area."

The Navy has announced previously that Japanese have made landings in Agattu, Attu and Kiska, rocky islands in the western part of the Aleutian chain.

The Navy has pointed out on several occasions that the hazards of fog have hampered operations throughout the entire Aleutians. On July 6, the Navy reported that two days before submarines had torpedoed four Japanese destroyers in the Aleutians, three at Kiska and the fourth at Agattu. On August 8, the Navy announced bombardment of Japanese ships and shore establishments at Kiska.

Text of the two-paragraph communique today, No. 108, of the war, follows:

"North Pacific area—
"1. A United States submarine has reported the sinking of a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the Western Aleutian area. Conditions made impossible an exact identification of the type of ship.
"2. This sinking has not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique."

Other American officials from Washington returning on the ship are:

Richard P. Buttrick, counselor; Miss Marion Arnold, clerk; Robert W. Burchell of the Agriculture Department; J. Holbrook Chapman, second secretary; Robert C. Coudray, vice consul; Charles H. Faust, translator; Donald W. Lamm, vice consul; Robert S. Ward, consul, and Kenneth Yearns, consul.

Twenty-six newspaper men also were listed on the Gripsholm. They included Joseph W. Alsop, Jr., former Washington columnist, and Otto D. Tolichuk, New York Times correspondent.

American nationals from this area returning home are:

Karl Herbert Beck, Frostburg, Md.; Cameron A. Carter, Washington; Rachel B. H. Craig, Congress Heights; Isabel Hemingway and Winifred Hemingway, both of Washington; George B. King, Washington; Charles Larsen and Mabelle M. Larsen, both of Takoma Park; Walter Kenneth LeCount, Arlington; J. Gordon MacIntyre, Paul Mallone, Malcolm D. Shuttles and Janet M. A. T. & T. to Pay Regular $2.25 Quarterly Dividend

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., with more than 600,000 stockholders, today declared a quarterly dividend of $2.25, a continuation of the rate of $9 paid annually for the past 21 years.

The annual rate was maintained in the face of recent dividend reductions by several of the parent company's subsidiaries from which much of its vast revenue is derived.

Whether American Telephone would cut its dividend had been one of the prime questions in the financial district since Walter S. Gifford, president, addressed the stockholders last April.

At that time he said that there were too many uncertainties for him to forecast the future trend.

The regular quarterly payment of $2.25 will contribute about $42,000,000 to the shareholders' group which is the largest body of security holders of any one issue, excepting the bonds of the United States.

The dividend is payable October 15 to stock of record September 15. Today's dividend constituted the 86th consecutive payment at the $2.25 rate.

Chinese Recapture Port of Wenchow

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, Aug. 19.—Chinese forces have recaptured Wenchow, important port on the southern coast of Chekiang, which the Japanese seized a month ago. The Chinese high command announced tonight.

Its communique, however, reported that Chinese defenders were compelled by heavy Japanese pressure to abandon Suichang, in Southwest China, the victory and defeat occurred the same day, last Saturday, the communique said.

COMMANDOS STRIKE AT DIEPPE—British Commandos (black arrow) stormed the German-occupied French coast at Dieppe early today and the attack apparently was continuing. Hundreds Are Killed In Commando Raid, Germans Claim

Several Transports Sunk Or Fired in Channel, Berlin Declares

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 19.—British Commando forces launched an attack on a broad front with tanks and heavy air support in the region of Dieppe on the French Channel early today and hundreds of the attacking Commandos already have been killed, DNB said.

The attack was "on a larger scale than previous landings and exceeds the usual proportions of so-called British Commando operations," the Germans said.

DNB reported that several transport ships were sunk or set afire before they reached the coast.

At 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern War time) DNB broadcast this dispatch:

"The German counterattack against the British troops which landed at Dieppe is taking a successful course. Advancing German troops repelled the enemy and hourly increased the British losses in men and material. A number of prisoners already have fallen into German hands."

The British attack was aimed at the town and harbor of Dieppe and developed on both sides of the town, it reported.

The broadcast several hours after the start of the raid said "whether there are still British troops in the town or harbor of Dieppe or whether they now are only on both sides of the town along the coast could not be ascertained here at this moment."

It added that "in previous cases German reports never mentioned that British armored fighting vehicles had been landed."

German artillery destroyed several of the British tanks, the German news agency said.

Nazi counter-measures were "being applied according to plan," it added.

British Torpedo Boats Battle Nazis in Channel

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 19.—An English Channel battle fought last night at 150 yards range between British torpedo boats and patrol boats escorting a German convoy was reported today by the high command.

It said two of the British craft were sunk and two others damaged heavily.

"The convoy reached its destination undamaged," the war bulletin reported.

Views of 2 Senators On Gasoline Rationing Criticized by Oil Man

Oklahoman Describes Statements by Byrd and Brewster as 'Amusing'

By the Associated Press. TULSA, Okla., Aug. 19.—Recent statements of two Eastern Senators calling for Nation-wide gasoline rationing were received with amusement by some members of the oil industry.

Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, declared that it was "grossly unfair and destructive to public morale" to ration gasoline in the Atlantic Coast States while citizens of the rest of the country could get all they needed.

Senator Brewster, Republican, of Maine, added that Easterners were not partisans "but patriots offering to our fellow Americans in the West an opportunity to share with us the sacrifices of this war."

East Asked to Give Up Seafood. One well-known observer of the petroleum industry, who says he hasn't yet heard any logical reason why gasoline should be rationed in the States where it is plentiful, declared:

"If we are willing to give up gasoline in the Southwest just because there is a shortage in the East, may we assume that Easterners would be willing to ration seafoods and stop bathing in the ocean in sympathy with the West?"

"We don't grow any lobsters out here and we don't have an ocean to swim in, so why should they be allowed to have them in the East?"

There has been some speculation that the requisitioning of railroad tank cars in other parts of the country for use in transporting petroleum products to the East might cause a shortage of such transportation in the Midwest and Southwest, thus necessitating the rationing of gasoline in these areas.

However, oil men say that 80 per cent of the field in the Southwest now is being transported by truck and the need for tank cars may soon be entirely removed.

Ample Fuel for East Seen. They point out, too, that approximately 68,000 tank cars now are being used in the Atlantic Coast service and with the addition of only a few hundred more the coast will be getting all the oil products it needs.

Meanwhile, the Oil and Gas Journal noted a continuation of the sharp decline in oil field activity and declared it was causing oil field workers to seek employment in other industries in ever-increasing numbers.

If the loss of manpower is not checked, the journal said, "the industry will be unable to meet a demand for crude oil which may arise in the next two years."

Widow of Lou Tellegen Holds Job in Aircraft Plant

By the Associated Press. PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 19.—The bright lights of a war production plant have replaced the spotlights of the movies for Mrs. Eve Tellegen, known as Eve Casanova to moviegoers of the silent film era.

The former actress, widow of Lou Tellegen, is employed now as a gear grinding machine operator at one of the Wright Aeronautical Corp. airplane engine plants here.

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, she took a four-week course at the Paterson Vocational School to prepare for her present role.

"I wish I could get in touch with the thousands of other men and women of the stage and screen and tell them to get jobs in war plants, too," she says.

Mule Power Solves Transport Problem On Burma Front

Thousands Being Used To Carry Food and Arms in Jungles

By DOUGLAS WILKIE. Correspondent of The Star and North American Newspaper Alliance.

ON THE BURMA FRONT, Aug. 19.—Among the many solutions to the problem of maintaining a big army in the field in this terrible climate and terrain, the most spectacular is the reversion to mule transport.

Many crack Indian regiments had no sooner completed motorization than they were ordered to abandon trucks and tractors and rely on mule power.

Touring the jungle tracks and the apogees for roads which are usually the sole supply lines along the slippery mountain slopes and rank for rank areas where five and often ten times New York's annual rainfall empties in three months, I have seen countless thousands of mules.

It is the mule which stumbles and slithers over the hill tracks laden with mountain batteries, plunges through under an ordeal never before faced by a modern army.

When mules cannot get through, it is a question of each man carrying his own weapon and rations or taking river boats. The Assam operations prove the mule cannot be replaced by anything else on wheels or on four legs. Most tracks are too narrow for trucks and too steep and slippery for motorcycles. Horses are too temperamental. Elephants, although plentiful, have been long abandoned by the army because they are too slow, difficult to feed and prone to stampede under gunfire.

The mules serving on the Burma front come from the Americas, Australia and Northern India. They are valued at over $320 each, far dearer than an officer's charger. Thousands of veteran muleteers demobilized under the mechanization program were recalled to the colors. Veterinary services were expanded and their third escape. Both are able to speak Japanese, one fluently.

When an escort arrived, the prisoners clicked their heels and marched along the jungle track smartly in step with a guard of Pathan sharpshooters.

Agar Resigns Editorship On Navy Duty Call

By the Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—Resignation of Herbert Agar as editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal was announced today by Mark Ehrhardt, general manager of the Courier-Journal and Times.

Mr. Agar, who has been on leave of absence, was called to active duty with the Navy last week.

Home Town Restores Lindbergh's Name On Water Tank

By the Associated Press. LITTLE FALLS, Minn., Aug. 19.—The city water tank is going to get a new paint job with the lettering "Little Falls, Lindbergh's Home Town," proclaiming that Little Falls has not forgotten its hero.

For a number of years after Charles A. Lindbergh became famous the tank bore his name. In 1936 the city had a local crew paint the tank, but no local sign painter was able to do that high and so the legend was left off.

During the last year the rumor that Little Falls deliberately painted out Mr. Lindbergh's name has been given national circulation. In letting a contract for a new paint job the city officials said that "Lindbergh" be restored to its high place.

WPB Restricts Aluminum Use by Army and Navy

By the Associated Press. The War Production Board today prohibited the use by the Army and Navy of aluminum in non-combat items, restricting use of the scarce metal to "essentials of war."

WPB officials said the order was intended to halt the use of aluminum in barracks and cantonment construction and equipment, and consisted, for the most part, of a formal statement of arrangements already made with the Army and Navy for revision of specifications on less essential military goods.

"Implementations of war" were defined as "combat end-products for field or combat use." This rules out any equipment required by the armed forces, whether or not used in combat, unless it is declared to be essential to the successful prosecution of the war by the Army and Navy Munitions Board.

The services were granted 90 days to meet the requirement that aluminum be used only according to the newest specifications in order to give time for contract holders to change over to plastics or less critical metals.

Officials said they could not estimate how much aluminum would be saved by the new restrictions.

Mount Rainier Aides Oppose More Traffic At Transit Terminal

Foresee Death a Week If Bigger Load Is Put On Suburban Depot

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—The Town Council and police chief of Mount Rainier said today increased use of the Mount Rainier terminal proposed by the Capital Transit Co. would create a traffic hazard.

Bert W. Sager, Mount Rainier counsel, and Eugene B. Plumer, police chief, testified at a hearing before the Public Service Commission in opposition to the proposed changes in Washington and Prince Georges County. The changes were requested by the transit company.

Mr. Sager said the traffic toll at the terminal at present was two deaths a year. "If this plan goes into effect," he said, "there will be one killed a week."

The company's petition embodied changes in routes, abandonment of certain bus lines and increased use of the terminal.

Dangerous Situation. Arthur L. Rystkiewicz, Greenbelt counsel, asked Mr. Plumer if the terminal could increase its load from 24 to 64 buses and streetcars as proposed.

Mr. Plumer said it would create a dangerous situation and "I don't see how they can get any more in than at present." He added that in his opinion the present load was maximum.

Roy Braden, Greenbelt town manager, told the board the proposed changes would add an average of 30 minutes in the running time between Greenbelt and Washington.

Mr. Braden testified at the resumption of a hearing on the company's petition to make changes in facilities between the District and communities in Prince Georges County. These include shifting certain lines, eliminating the Greenbelt bus line, and increased use of the Mount Rainier terminal.

Doesn't Duplicate Facilities. Answering a question by Commission Chairman Stewart Purcell, Mr. Braden said "certainly not less than 50 per cent of our citizens (at Greenbelt) are employed in war work. I believe this to be a conservative estimate."

Occupants of 1,000 new homes to be built at Greenbelt will be required to be war workers as a condition of tenancy, he added.

Mr. Braden held that the present bus line does not duplicate existing streetcar facilities and Mr. Rystkiewicz said "the burden is on the transit company to show they can absorb this load. So far they haven't proved it."

Counsel for the company contended there was no evidence to indicate the company's inability to handle the extra load and pointed to testimony of Dean J. Locke, chief engineer, that cars were available for that service.

Before the hearing was resumed the company submitted another petition to the PSC to change the Greenbelt bus line to avoid a grade crossing by use of a railroad overpass.

dirty business and * * * that the Government should hire such a man." Mr. Cole said that Father Pelypenko's motives for testifying were "mercenary" and because "he is under confinement by the Government."

Called "Sincere Nazi." Maintaining that the Government was "in a bind" or "falls" on the agreement, Mr. Coleman displayed the document before the jury, and contended:

"You won't find a word in this indictment about Pastor Molzahn liking Germany or being a Nazi."

A Government attorney yesterday accused Mr. Molzahn of being a "sincere Nazi," who "does not love and never loved the United States" and told the jurors it was their "duty" to convict him.

Texas Police Are Absolved In Shooting of Soldier

By the Associated Press. BEAUMONT, Tex., Aug. 19.—Four Beaumont police officers were absolved of criminal responsibility under the State laws in connection with the shooting of Charles J. Reco, colored soldier, in a no-bill reported by the Jefferson County grand jury today.

The officers included two whose Federal prosecution was ordered last week by Attorney General Biddle.

The no-bill named Clyde Brown and Billy Brown, whom Mr. Biddle seeks to have prosecuted, and B. B. White and L. M. Tully.

Pvt. Reco was shot while being arrested on complaint of creating a disturbance on a bus. He was charged in state court with using abusive language.

A draft of a criminal information alleging that Clyde Brown and Billy Brown violated Pvt. Reco's civil rights is being studied by Steve M. King, United States attorney for the eastern district of Texas. It was submitted by the criminal division of the Justice Department.

AFL, CIO Leaders Invited To Metal Parley Here

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) By the Associated Press. The War Production Board today invited officials of 18 AFL and CIO unions in metal-fabricating industries to a conference in Washington next Monday to discuss war materials.

Wendell Lund, director of the WPB Labor Production Division, called the meeting at the request of his division's labor policy committee, composed of AFL and CIO leaders.

The purpose of the conference, Mr. Lund said, "is to examine the problem faced by the unions and the Nation as a result of material shortages, and to canvass the means by which such shortages can be reduced and their impact eased." He added:

Shift in British Chiefs Puts New Emphasis On Near East Area

Developments Weighed With Some Optimism And Some Anxiety

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Aug. 19.—The infusion of new brains and new blood on Britain's precarious Near Eastern front, coupled with the close attention Prime Minister Churchill gave it on his way to Moscow, stamped that battle theater in many British minds today as a zone of impending major action.

North Africa has immense strategic potentialities. It might become the United Nations' second front. With only 80 miles separating his armies from Alexandria, on the other hand, Hitler scarcely could neglect that arm of his vast Near Eastern pincer if his goal is to master the trans-Caucasus by winter.

Britons, therefore, weighed these sudden developments with some optimism and some anxiety:

1. Mr. Churchill's stopover in Egypt en route to his talks with Joseph Stalin, during which he inspected the front at such close hand he came within earshot of the enemy and met virtually the whole "Who's Who" of the United Nations leadership in North Africa.

2. The announcement, swiftly following his visit, that Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander had been called to command in the Near East in place of Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck.

3. The arrival in Egypt of new United States contingents, including ground staffs for the American Army Air Forces, whose medium and heavy bombers already are in action and whose fighter planes have completed their last desert training.

Auchinleck's Future Uncertain. Although in Gen. Alexander the British have picked an advocate of attack and surprise to match wits with the Axis' wily Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, some of the misgivings arose over the fact that Britain once again had switched Near East command to a new commander.

The process of selection by trial and error already has proved far too costly, commented the Daily Mail.

One unanswered question was whether Gen. Auchinleck had resigned or was being given another post. No new assignment was announced for him, but the War Office offered no comment. Some unofficial British sources, however, said it was unlikely that a soldier of Gen. Auchinleck's standing and experience would be sent into retirement.

Silence concerning the replaced Middle East commander might mean that the British were keeping the enemy guessing. Gen. Auchinleck commanded the forces which took Narvik from the Germans in 1940 but when the Nazis invaded France soon after his arrival in Norway, he was ordered back to defend Britain. He later succeeded Gen. Sir Archibald F. Wavell in North Africa and the latest Nazi drive, stalled now at El Alamein, was stopped by Gen. Auchinleck personally took over.

Important Discussions. Among the leaders Mr. Churchill and Gen. Sir Alan Francis Brooke chief of the Imperial general staff met in "important discussions" an official announcement from Cairo disclosed last night, were:

Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister of South Africa; Maj. Gen. Russell Maxwell, United States commander in the Near East; Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Georges Catroux of the Fighting French, and King Farouk and Prime Minister Nahas Pasha of Egypt.

Among Britain's own top generals and diplomatic officials who sat in with Mr. Churchill were Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent secretary of state for foreign affairs, who accompanied the British to Moscow; Gen. Wavell, now commander in chief in India; Lt. Gen. Sir Pierre van Ryneveld, chief of the Imperial staff of the South African forces; Sir Henry Wilson, commander in chief of the 8th Army, and Gen. Bernard Freyberg, commander of New Zealand troops in the Near East.

Recalling Gen. Alexander's fondness for fierce attacks, many sources here believed there would shortly be extraordinary action in the western desert, particularly since the RAF has been reinforced by American men and planes.

It was also noted that the weather in the desert will soon be moderating, becoming more favorable for his scale activities. Gen. Alexander will not waste any opportunity to attack.

One military source here drew a parallel between Gen. Alexander and Gen. Wavell, whose Arras campaign in the last war was not particularly successful, but who won a brilliant campaign against the Turks after his transfer to the Near East.

Gen. Alexander, this source said, is likely to turn the trick for the Allies. His conduct at Dunkerque endeared him to many men in the British army and the brilliance of his Burmese retreat was widely praised.

He had been left in command at Dunkerque when Lord Gort was ordered back to England and he was the last man to leave the beach. The British tell of the night of June 2, 1940, when there were about 2,000 of the BEF left on the shore. Gen. Alexander, thinking there must be stragglers, left his staff and was rowed by a sailor up and down the beach, calling out in the darkness: "Any British soldiers there?" Sometimes one answered; sometimes bullets answered.

Since Dunkerque he has been known as an advocate of the infiltration method and as one of the originators of the battle training schools.

"We should not be content to sit behind concrete fortifications," he once said. "We should take every chance to hit back, especially when the enemy is least expecting us."

Burger and Dasch May Testify for U. S. In Treason Trials

Both Reported Ready To Give Evidence Against Aides of 8 Saboteurs

Ernest Peter Burger and George John Dasch, the two Nazi saboteurs who escaped the electric chair, may appear as witnesses when the Government presses treason charges against the confederates of the eight men convicted by the President's military commission, it was learned today.

Attorney General Biddle has ordered United States attorneys to seek immediate grand jury indictment, on charges of treason where the evidence warrants, of 12 of the 14 persons apprehended by the FBI as accomplices of the Nazi saboteurs. The grand jury proceedings will be held in Chicago, New York City and Brooklyn. Treason indictments will be asked against at least six of the group.

Because of their assistance to the Government, the commission recommended that the death sentences against Dasch and Burger be commuted to life imprisonment. The President accepted the recommendation for commutation, sentencing Burger to life imprisonment at hard labor, and Dasch to 30 years' imprisonment, also at hard labor.

Believed to Have Evidence. Under the Constitution, no person can be convicted of treason except on confession in open court, or on the testimony of two witnesses. If they talked freely, it is believed that Dasch and Burger have sufficient evidence to establish treasonable acts against several of the persons against whom the Government is preparing treason charges.

Though depositions could be used, the appearance of Dasch and Burger in court as witnesses against those facing treason charges would be far more effective, from the prosecution's point of view, it was pointed out today. Dasch and Burger are reported to be ready to continue to assist the Government, and if they appear in open court later, their testimony may throw light on some of the facts brought out in the historic trial behind barbed wire chambers of the Justice Department.

Protection and safeguarding of Dasch and Burger, if used as witnesses, would place a heavy responsibility on the Justice Department. The Army is expected shortly to turn over to the two prisoners—who have been held at the District Jail—to the Justice Department.

Though no announcement has been made as to the place in which the two men will serve their sentences, three Federal prisoners are reported under consideration—Atlanta, Leavenworth and Alcatraz. Their transfer to a Federal prison may await a decision by the Justice Department as to whether or not the two men will be used as witnesses against those charged with treason.

German Army Well Versed In Languages

By Air Mail to The Star. BELFAST, Northern Ireland.—When the American Army lands in Nazi Europe it won't have any trouble making itself understood by the locals.

The American force in Northern Ireland can go anywhere from Greece to Russia, without asking anybody to do any interpreting for it.

Lt. Karl Koenig, Wheaton, Ill., has looked over the army for linguistic talent and has found a mighty assortment. According to his statistics, he has 300 men who can speak Polish, 100 German, 25 Swedish, 15 Italian, six French, six Greek, and a large collection of men who can speak Dutch or Norwegian. In a pinch he could probably locate an interpreter in any other European language.

Lt. Koenig himself speaks German perfectly and is looking forward to the day when he will be able to use it in Berlin.

3 Officers Well Known Here Helped Plan Commando Raid

Truscott, Strauss And Fairbanks On Mountbatten Staff

Three American officers well known in Washington helped to prepare plans for the Commando raid on Dieppe, France, today in which United States troops participated. They are assigned to the staff of Lord Louis Mountbatten, British Commando Chief.

The men are: Brig. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., who was stationed at Fort Meyer, Va., for three years until 1934; Comdr. E. B. Strauss, naval adviser, and Navy Lt. Douglas Fairbanks, former movie actor who has been in the Cavalry frequently since he entered the Navy. Both Gen. Truscott and Comdr. Strauss maintain homes in Washington.

Gen. Truscott is remembered here for his tour of duty with the 3d Cavalry at Fort Meyer. He came to Fort Meyer in June, 1931, and remained until August, 1934.

During this period he went to Mexico—in March, 1934—as a member of the Army polo team. Gen. Truscott, 47 years old, was born in Chaffetz, Tex. He became a second lieutenant in the Cavalry Reserve on August 16, 1917, and entered the Regular Cavalry with the same rank in October of that year, after attending the officers' training camp at Fort Root, Ark. He was advanced steadily until his appointment as a temporary brigadier general last May 24.

In Hawaii Two Years. On completion of his officer's training course in 1917, Gen. Truscott was assigned to the 17th Cavalry at Douglas, Ariz., where he remained until March, 1919. Then he was transferred to Schofield Barracks in Hawaii. He remained in the Pacific outpost for more than two years, until he was placed on duty in San Francisco in October, 1921. Two months later he was sent to the 1st Machine Gun Squadron, Kansas. Gen. Truscott was transferred after another two months to the 1st Cavalry, also at Douglas.

In July, 1925, he was assigned to the 8th Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex., and in October he entered the cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kans. from which he was graduated in June, 1926. He remained to take advanced courses and in June, 1927, he became an instructor on the staff.

Gen. Truscott trained at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., following his stay at Fort Meyer. He entered the school in August, 1934, and completed his course in June, 1936. After a brief term at Fort Knox, Ky., he was sent to Fort Lewis, Wash., as assistant to the plans and training officer of the 9th Army Corps. Gen. Truscott remained in that post until his assignment as an adviser to the staff of Lord Mountbatten's staff.

Native of Washington. Comdr. Strauss, a native of Washington, is the son of Admiral Joseph Strauss, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Strauss. His wife and their three children live at 2208 Massachusetts avenue N.W. He is 39 years old. He was sent to London last year as a special naval observer.

Comdr. Strauss attended the Hotchkiss School before entering the Naval Academy, from which he was graduated in 1923. He held several sea commands before being appointed as a naval lieutenant in London in 1935. In 1937 he returned from London and went back as observer last year. He also had been a delegate to the third assembly of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics in Edinburgh in 1936. In Washington he is a member of the Chevy Chase Club and the Army Navy Club.

Before taking up his duties with the Navy, Lt. Fairbanks was vice chairman of the West Coast Division of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. He was in Washington a number of times during this period and conferred once with Secretary of State Hull to discuss aid to Britain.

Last year, President Roosevelt sent the screen star on a goodwill mission to South America. Soon after his return he took up his duties as a naval lieutenant in Washington. He soon requested that he be transferred to sea duty and later he was sent to London on the American naval staff and subsequently was assigned to Lord Mountbatten's staff.

Six Are Killed in Canada In Training Plane Crash

DUNNVILLE, Ontario, Aug. 19.—Six airmen were killed last night when a Royal Canadian Air Force training plane from No. 1 Bombing and Gunnery School at Jarvis crashed into Lake Erie.

The crash occurred off nearby Evans Point. Names of the victims have been withheld until next of kin have been notified.

Navy Cross Awarded To Seven Officers; One Gets D. F. C.

Former D. C. Resident Among 15 Others Cited For Heroism in Action

The Navy today announced award of the Navy Cross to seven naval officers, the Distinguished Flying Cross to one and letters of commendation to 15 officers, including Lt. Claud M. Fraleigh who formerly lived here at 2325 Fifteenth street N.E.

Lt. Fraleigh, a 33-year-old member of the dental corps was commended for "gallant conduct" in an army field hospital during the defense of Bataan peninsula against the Japanese. He is listed as missing in action.

Heroic Conduct in Flight. The Distinguished Flying Cross was awarded to Lt. (j. g.) James G. Daniels, 3d, 26, Cleveland, N. M., for heroic conduct in flight. He participated in successful bombing and strafing and then took photographs of the damage despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. Later he intercepted two enemy bombers, aiding in destruction of one and damage to the other.

The Navy Cross was awarded to Lt. Comdr. Richard S. Baron, 41, Westford, Mass., who was killed in the bombing of Cavite; Lt. (j. g.) Edward G. Binning, U. S. N. R., 27, New York; Lt. Comdr. Jacob E. Cooper, 40, Columbus, Ga.; Ensign George E. Cox, U. S. N. R., 27, Watertown, N. Y., one of the torpedo boat heroes of the Pacific engagements; Lt. Comdr. Edward N. Parker, 38, Bellefonte, Pa. (a gold star in lieu of a second Navy Cross); Comdr. Earl L. Sackett, 44, Honolulu; and Lt. Comdr. Willard A. Saunders, 37, New London, Conn. Others Commended.

Capitol Policeman Charged With Unlicensed Gun Deal

Felix Edward Martini, 34, a Capitol policeman, was arrested today by the Metropolitan Police and charged with unlicensed dealing in weapons.

According to investigators, Martini obtained a Federal license to buy guns June 10, but the license allowed only the purchase of weapons, not their sale. Police said he had been buying large quantities of guns in New York and Philadelphia and shipping them to a pawnbroker in Rosslyn. While the pawnbroker was said to have had a right to purchase the weapons, Martini's alleged sale of them was a violation of his license, police contended.

Martini's license was obtained for the Felix Martini Sales Co., with its place of business at 247 Eleventh street S.E., according to police.

From primary trainer planes flown by the Army and Navy are graduated to advanced trainer planes, larger and, in some cases, multiple motored. Advanced trainer planes for the Navy cost about $46,000.

Training in these larger planes is the last step before the pilot is skillful enough to handle the giant bombers and multi-motored torpedo planes. Our aviators must have the advantage of the best training equipment, for air superiority over our enemies is essential if we are to win this war. Your purchase of War bonds and stamps will give them this advantage. Invest at least 10 per cent of your income in War bonds every payday.

Rangers Hard-Hitting Fighters With Ruthlessness of Gangster

Men Named for Romantic Outfit Are Taught To Kill Enemy Expertly and Silently

By RICE YAHNER, Associated Press War Correspondent. AT THE UNITED STATES RANGERS BATTALION HEADQUARTERS, SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 19.—The United States Rangers, Uncle Sam's new brand of fighting men who joined Canadian, British and Fighting French Commandos today in the first AEP attack on Hitler's Europe, had been training secretly for weeks under the tutelage of their seasoned British partners.

Their mentors are men who toss hand grenades across the dinner table and casually jump 20-foot cliffs and their American pupils have been taught to kill with the cunning of the Indian and the ruthlessness of a gangster.

I was the first American newspaperman to visit one of their camps when they were putting the finishing touches on training for such ventures as today's raid on Dieppe. They have climbed 4,000-foot mountains through forests never before penetrated by man.

They have been on speed marches of 36 miles in half a day time and again. They have practiced beach landings while rifle and machine-gun fire boomed through the paddies of the men manning the boats. They have taken both their tactics and their name from Rogers' Rangers, one of America's most romantic fighting outfits who, under Robert Rogers, stalked Northern America in the French and Indian War.

Like them, the new American Rangers have been taught to kill expertly and silently with their knives and bare hands as well as with guns and grenades. They are as much at home on sea as on land.

Killed Deer With Knife. Just to show them what a trained Ranger is expected to do, their British instructors stalked a deer in the forest and when the stag was surrounded by a big Scot, they leaped on him and killed him with a knife. A sentry's throat can be slit in the same, silent way.

On my visit I rowed with them in a collapsible canvas boat to a landing on a beach where tracer bullets from a British gun were spewing so close to the gunwales you almost were able to reach out your hand to them.

Land mines and grenades splattered us with mud and water. Rifle tracer bullets sizzled by so close that one punctured a mess kit slung from a Ranger's belt. Another nicked the guard of a bayonet atop one soldier's pack.

Earlier in their training, a hand grenade had landed, fuse smoking, in one Ranger boat. Pvt. Clayton Schooley, 22, of Muncie, Mich., picked up the sizzling bomb and with a shout of "overboard!" Flung it into the water.

He didn't know its explosive charge had been extracted. Must Be in Condition. Wrestling (dark alley style) and jiu jitsu were among the pastimes at the camp I visited. A man out of condition was a candidate for the hospital if he joined the fun.

Often the boys ignored the stairway in the castle where they had their headquarters. They'd just grab a rope on the third floor and "abail down."

"Abailing" is the simple device of looping a rope around your leg

Anti-Aircraft Cruiser And Destroyer Lost By British in Battle

Convoy Attack Toll Is Raised to 4 Warships; Malta Gets Supplies

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Malta has received vital supplies brought by a convoy which made a hectic voyage under heavy attack to the Mediterranean stronghold at a cost of four British warships, the Admiralty announced today.

The anti-aircraft cruiser Cairo and the destroyer Foregait were sunk, in addition to the aircraft carrier Eagle and the cruiser Manchester, loss of which had been announced previously.

Swarms of Axis aircraft and many submarines attacked the convoy in a battle which started east of Gibraltar on August 11 and continued through August 13.

While British losses were considerable, the punishment inflicted on the enemy was high, the Admiralty said. It was announced that 66 enemy aircraft are known to have been destroyed and that it is extremely probable many others were lost.

There also were some loss of merchantmen in the convoy, but on this point the Admiralty said a large proportion of the convoy reached Malta.

The communique said the Admiralty would not divulge the number of ships which arrived at Malta because "the extent of reinforcement which has been received by the Fortress of Malta is obviously information of considerable importance to the enemy."

The Cairo, completed in 1919, was a 4,200-ton cruiser which had been rearmed in 1939 for anti-aircraft duty. She carried a normal crew of 400 men.

The Foresight, completed in 1935, was a 1,350-ton destroyer capable of better than 36 knots.

The Admiralty said it was natural that in such a hazardous operation "some losses were suffered in the convoy."

The fact that the loss of life and damage was not greater was due to the gallantry of the RAF crews and the seamanship of the sailors, the communique added.

The British lost eight aircraft, but four of the pilots were saved.

U. S. Bombs Dropped On Axis Made by Nazi Method, Farish Says

Standard Oil President Defends Pre-War Patent Pool With Germany

By the Associated Press. W. S. Farish, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, declared today that "half of the bombs we are dropping on Japs and Nazis" were made possible by the research growing out of his company's prewar patent relations with I. G. Farbenindustrie, German chemical trust.

"All of you know now the enormous advantages to the public of our contracts with I. G. Farbenindustrie of Germany," he told the Senate Patents Committee.

"The United States got far more from Germany than Germany ever received from us."

Mr. Farish read a 36-page statement before the committee replying to Justice Department criticisms of his firm's patent pooling arrangements with the German trust.

Misinterpretation Charged. He contended that statements made before the committee by representatives of the Justice Department were based on misinterpretation of the contracts, bolstered by selected material from his company's files.

The case which the witnesses attempted to build against Standard Oil Co. is a jerry-built house," he said. "And the foundation of sand upon which the whole thing rests is the assumption that the executives of one company—representing a typical corporation of America, some veterans of the last war, some now in the armed forces, some with sons now in our Pacific and Atlantic expeditionary forces—have for one single minute forgotten that the lifelong policy of every American is first, last, and always to put almighty America above any consideration of the almighty dollar."

"And that assumption hardly requires my challenge, since it is not true."

Mr. Farish had hardly launched into his statement before Chairman Bone heatedly objected to what he called an "inference" that the hearings into Standard's relations with I. G. Farbenindustrie had been "one-sided."

Bone Defends Committee. "I do not like it, sir, and it's a reflection on the committee," Senator Bone said, chewing his cigar fiercely. "I intend to defend Senate committees, if nobody else does."

"I'm not attacking your committee," Mr. Farish replied.

"You probably will in the newspapers," Senator Bone retorted. At the outset, Mr. Farish said "strangely enough, not one disinterested witness with competent technical knowledge" had appeared before the committee in the Standard case.

Creechmore Fath, the committee's counsel, interjected that "the Department of Justice witnesses were disinterested witnesses, appearing in the public interest."

Emphasizing that the Standard Oil-G.I.F. contracts were negotiated at a time, 1927-29, when democratic Germany was struggling toward a respected place among the family of nations, Mr. Farish listed eight of the industrial miracles which he said America derived from their relationship, and said:

"What do you think Hitler would give today to be able to keep America from using these discoveries and processes?"

Processes Derived From Germany. He enumerated them as follows:

- 1. The first process for producing 100-octane aviation gasoline, one thing which, he said, puts the planes of this country and the United Nations ahead of the Axis.
2. Synthetic talcum, the basic ingredient of TNT.
3. The most modern and efficient methods for the manufacture from natural gas of synthetic ammonia, the other ingredient of TNT.
4. Paratone, used in every fighting plane, tank, cannon and ship to improve hydraulic and recoil oils.
5. Paraflow, which freeze-proofs motor oil.

6. Buna rubber processes, which he describes as the foundation of the American synthetic rubber program.

7. Butyl rubber, potentially the most important of all synthetic rubbers.

8. Vistanex, one of the special types of German synthetics, which are better than natural rubber for certain strategic purposes.

"The I. G. contracts started us on the road which led to work on synthetic rubber," he said.

Mr. Farish declared Patrick A. Gibson, special assistant to the Attorney General, was entirely wrong when he testified that Standard would not have had control of butyl rubber under the contracts.

"Control automatically remained with us under the 1929 agreement," he said.

Foreign Interest Eliminated. When war broke out in Europe in 1939, he went on, the Germans still held the buna rubber process, Standard having only a minority interest.

"Our solution of this situation," he said, "was to eliminate I. G.'s interest in the buna process in the United States completely. We proceeded at once. . . . Within one month after Europe went to war, and more than two years before America went to war, we had eliminated all foreign interest in this process and were free to do with it whatever seemed necessary. . . ."

"It was not until the middle of 1941 that the Government itself undertook to do anything definite about buna rubber production. We gave the Government agencies all possible assistance and never suggested that our company should have any preferential position in the Government's manufacturing program. . . ."

"With the outbreak of war in the Pacific, the Government acted promptly to greatly expand its rubber program. . . . As you all know, the buna rubber program is the foundation of the entire synthetic rubber program of the Government. They expect to make, as far as we know, 700,000 tons a year of buna rubber."

Utility Policy Criticized. An attorney of the Justice Department told the Patents Committee yesterday that although the War and Navy Departments had blocked a Government anti-trust suit against the General Electric Co., they had done nothing to halt a General Electric suit against a competitor which supplies war factories with lamps. The attorney, John W. Walker, told the Patents Committee that both the Government's suit charging General Electric with a monopoly in the manufacture of incandescent lamps and General Electric's suit to restrain the Hygrade Sulvania Corp. from making fluorescent lamps came to trial this summer.

PRELUDE FOR ACTION AT DIEPPE—United States and British officers have been training hard all summer at a "battle school" in Northern Ireland in preparation for such action as the one at Dieppe, France, today. Here a group charges across a stream in the face of exploding "shells" for an added realism.

He said the former suit was stopped, presumably on the ground that it would hamper the war effort by requiring General Electric officials to devote time and attention to the case.

However, he introduced a letter from Lawrence Burns, Hygrade's patent attorney, to the effect that General Electric officials had spent several months in preparing the case against their competitor for alleged infringements of patents, and C. G. Found, director of lamp research, had attended the trial.

Patent Suit Concluded. "In other words," Chairman Bone said, "General Electric could use the courts against a competitor, but Government officials suppressed the Government's use of the courts against General Electric in a suit aimed at a monopoly that stifles production."

"I could understand it if General Electric had been advised by the Government to drop its suit against Hygrade."

Mr. Walker said the suit against Hygrade was concluded last week, but no decision has yet been announced. If General Electric won the suit, he said, Hygrade would not be able to continue making lamps for defense plants unless it took out General Electric licenses "and if it take out the licenses it will be restricted to a very small production."

The witness previously had testified that utility companies selling electricity had compelled General Electric and Westinghouse to refrain from promoting fluorescent lighting for general use because it might reduce the consumption of electricity to one-third, so much more efficient was fluorescent lighting in comparison to incandescent lamps.

The utilities, he said, had opposed the use of fluorescent lamps unless they were equipped with glass shields so that the lamps would give off less light.

Mr. Walker said General Electric filed its suit against Hygrade because of the latter's "aggressive promotion" of fluorescent lighting.

Agencies Urged to Submit New Civil Service Lists. The Civil Service Commission today warned Government agencies about the delay in submitting the names of employees who are due to get civil service status under the Ramspeck Act, pointing out that only 30 per cent of the cases presented for action out of a total of approximately 125,000 due to be filed.

The deadline is December 31 and employers for whom recommendations have not been made by that date will lose their classification status.

"No extension of the deadline is permissible," the commission emphasized.

The Ramspeck Act extended civil service coverage to positions previously exempt by law. The incumbents proposed for civil service status will qualify through non-competitive examinations conducted by the Civil Service Commission.

"The commission has advised Federal agencies of the need for prompt action and has urged that at least 20 per cent of the number of cases each agency expects to nominate for classification be submitted each month to the commission."

Pelley Will Be Brought To D. C. for Arraignment. William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts, who last week began a 15-year sentence for sedition, will be brought here tomorrow from the Federal Penitentiary in Terre Haute, Ind., for arraignment in District Court on charges of conspiring to undermine the morale of the armed forces.

Deputy United States marshals left the District yesterday to bring him back. Pelley recently was convicted in Indianapolis of sedition.

Three other alleged participants in the conspiracy also will be arraigned tomorrow, according to John T. M. Reddan, special assistant to the Attorney General. These are Hudson De Priest, Wichita (Kans.) writer; Court Asher, Muncie (Ind.) publisher of the magazine X-Ray; and Ralph Townsend, convicted agent of the Japanese government.

Sub Sinks Vessel Rescuing Survivors Of Brazilian Ship

Doctor, Picked Up Twice In Hour, Says Panic Gripped Passengers

By the Associated Press. BAHIA, Brazil, Aug. 19.—An Axis submarine which torpedoed one Brazilian passenger ship within sight of the coast waited an hour and then destroyed a second vessel, picking up survivors of the first ship, it was reported here today.

The story was told by Dr. Helo Veloso, first survivor of the steamship Itagiba to arrive here. The Itagiba was one of five torpedoed Brazilian ships, destruction of which has aroused nation-wide indignation and brought demands from many quarters for a declaration of war on the Axis.

Dr. Veloso, rescued twice within an hour, was brought ashore at Valença by a small sailing vessel.

"We were traveling calmly within sight of Sao Paulo hill when the Itagiba was struck by a torpedo," Dr. Veloso said.

"The explosion caused extensive damage and there was panic among the passengers. But the crew managed to get us into lifeboats and off the sinking vessel. Soon the steamer Arara appeared and most of the passengers and the crew of the Itagiba were transferred to it."

"The submarine waited, hidden until the transfer was completed. Then it torpedoed the Arara and we were forced to take to lifeboats again. The Arara sank rapidly."

"Within a short time the sailing boat Arapige appeared on the scene, rescuing as many as possible."

Dr. Veloso said at least 30 members of the crew of the Itagiba and 23 passengers and crew members of the Arara are missing.

Roosevelt Congratulates Quezon on 64th Birthday. President Roosevelt congratulated President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines on his 64th birthday today, in a message warmly praising Mr. Quezon's leadership and his people's fortitude.

Filipino under President Quezon's leadership during the past year have shown, the message said, "what heights human beings can reach when the love of freedom inspires and guides them."

Text of the President's message: "On the occasion of your birthday, I send you greetings of warm friendship. In the past year the Philippine people under your leadership have shown what heights human beings can reach when the love of freedom inspires and guides them."

"I know that I speak for the people of the United States when I say that we hope for you today a continuance of the strength, fortitude, and vision which enables you to serve your people in their greatest trial and which will enable you in the future to play your part in bringing liberty and abundance to your people."

Disregarded Danger. The citation revealed that Sgt. Lee "uninjured, was able to escape from the wreckage through a small door of the plane."

"Disregarding the danger of an explosion of the plane's gasoline supply," the citation continued, "Sergt. Lee re-entered the burning plane repeatedly, removing seven persons to places of safety."

"Sergt. Lee, though severely burned, then walked a distance of half a mile and firing his pistol, summoned aid. As a result of his efforts, the lives of two men were saved and Sergt. Lee himself suffered severe burns."

"Sergt. Lee's extraordinary heroism reflects great credit upon himself and the military service."

Strict Dimout on West Coast Ordered Into Effect Tonight

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Coastal dimout regulations which millions of Westerners have been observing voluntarily but haphazardly for several weeks became fully effective under military mandate at midnight tonight.

That is the hour set for enforcement of an Army proclamation creating a "zone of restricted lighting" in which, for as long as the war lasts, no street signs may be turned on at night, no intense ground illumination, such as in baseball parks, will be permitted and shielded so as to be invisible from other exterior lighting must be above.

Enforcement is in the hands of the regional civilian defense board of the Office of Civilian Defense. Thousands of air raid wardens and similar volunteer workers will help to see that the rules are observed.

Heavy penalties have been provided for violations—exclusion from the eight-State area of the Western Defense Command, a year's jail term or $5,000 fine.

Hero of Flaming Plane Tragedy Hopes 'to Live Up' to Citation

By the Associated Press. PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Sergt. Robert G. Lee quietly expressed the hope that he could "live up to this citation" yesterday as he received the Soldier's Medal for extraordinary heroism in carrying seven companions from a flaming Army plane in which 17 men died last Saturday night.

Smiling and speaking softly from his hospital bed, the 23-year-old Columbus, Ohio, youth thanked Brig. Gen. Elbridge G. Chapman for the honor so swiftly bestowed upon him.

"Thank you, sir," he said. "I hope that when I get back with the troops I can live up to this citation."

Then he asked a sergeant of his unit who had accompanied the general: "How are the boys?"

Further Honors Hinted. Gen. Chapman, who had flown from Washington with his staff to decorate Sergt. Lee, gave hint of further honors.

The Secretary of War would have come if he, the general told Sergt. Lee, adding that he hoped he would have the opportunity of honoring the soldier in a formal parade before his own comrades in the near future.

Gen. Chapman read the citation to the severely-burned sergeant whose efforts after the plane crashed on Peru Mountain saved the lives of two fellow soldiers—a citation for "extraordinary heroism which reflects credit upon himself and the military service."

As St. Luke's hospital surgeons briefly suggested an end to the gently ceremony, good news crowded in with word that Mrs. Hazel G. Lee of Mount Gilead, Ohio, was on her way to Pittsfield to remain with her son until he is out of danger.

Gen. Chapman and his staff went from Sergt. Lee's room to the House of Mercy Hospital nearby to visit Corp. Alonzo Pearson of Somerset County, Pa., and Pvt. James Fern of Abingdon, Va., the soldiers Sergt. Lee rescued.

DISREGARDING THE DANGER OF AN explosion of the plane's gasoline supply, the citation continued, "Sergt. Lee re-entered the burning plane repeatedly, removing seven persons to places of safety."

"Sergt. Lee, though severely burned, then walked a distance of half a mile and firing his pistol, summoned aid. As a result of his efforts, the lives of two men were saved and Sergt. Lee himself suffered severe burns."

Caterers' Union Proposes 'Meatless Tuesdays' in U.S.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—A proposal that American hotels, restaurants, clubs, institutions and homes be asked to observe voluntary "meatless Tuesdays" was made last night by the War Efforts Committee of the International Stewards and Caterers' Association.

Louis R. Golden, a spokesman, said if the association's 41st annual convention approves the resolution today, all eating establishments and housewives will be asked to forego the serving of meat, excluding poultry, for eight consecutive Tuesdays starting next week.

The action followed a report by Roy F. Hendrickson, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Administration, that a 3,000,000-pound meat shortage is in prospect for civilian consumption in the next year.

Tokio Warns Japs Of Further Attacks By American Forces

Nipponese Radio Changes Story on Solomon Isles; Marines Are Reinforced

By the Associated Press.
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEAD-QUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 19.—The final expulsion of Japan from the Solomon Islands apparently rested today on the completion of two tedious, difficult jobs—the mop-up ashore where the United States Marines have landed and the consolidation of naval mastery in that South Pacific zone.

This still was a triple-header operation of major magnitude, involving land, sea and air forces, but every indication in the absence of official fact and figure pointed to accumulating successes.

For one thing, the Japanese radio has begun changing its story on the battle and the only reference to it in the latest Tokyo broadcasts was a commentator's warning that the United States onslaught might lead to further attacks on Japanese-held territory "or even on Japan herself."

A report to Auckland from a New Zealand correspondent somewhere in the South Pacific said the United States had won "sufficient successes" at sea to reinforce and supply the assault troops for what may be weeks or months of "extremely bitter" fighting in the islands.

"Japanese units which were in the Solomons at the opening of operations either have been sunk or have fled to the Caroline Islands," said this dispatch to the New Zealand Press Association.

Still, however, the fleet of United States Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley and the land-based air forces of Gen. MacArthur scoured thousands of miles of the Pacific on the watch for enemy ships.

American naval forces were reported deployed in anticipation of a showdown battle with the Japanese for the seaways vital to holding, or broadening, the wedge already dug into the enemy's network of advance island bases.

Air patrols ranging far north among the islands above Australia, including one on which an airdrome at Kavling, New Ireland, was bombed, were reported in the MacArthur headquarters communique today.

But in a continuing operation on such a broad scope as this first Allied offensive in the Pacific, officials are keeping a strict cover of secrecy on blow-by-blow developments and Australian authorities are abiding steadfastly by a policy of non-interference with the United States Navy's running of its own show.

Truck Driver Risks Life To Avert Gas Blast Here

Raymond O'Connell, 50-year-old gas-truck driver, was credited by Fire Department officials today with averting a certain explosion of 800 gallons of gasoline yesterday when he risked his life to drive his flaming truck from a filling station at Twentieth and K streets N.W.

The driver for the American Oil Co. was unloading at the station when flames became ignited from an undetermined source. Flames leaped up along two hoses which were pouring the fuel into underground tanks and ignited the rear of the truck.

Realizing the truck and its cargo might explode at any moment, Mr. O'Connell jumped into the vehicle and drove it half a block down Twentieth street.

By throwing a lever in the cab of the truck as he drove off, he succeeded in cutting off all but one tank valve. One of the hoses which was inserted in the station tank thus was ripped off and a large quantity of fuel poured over the street and immediately ignited.

Safely away from the station, Mr. O'Connell leaped from his cab. Firemen from four truck companies and two engine companies fought the blazing gas and truck for nearly an hour.

Mr. O'Connell, who lives at 204 Q street N.W., has been employed by the oil company for 20 years.

Nassau Port Closes Nights

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 19 (AP).—The British vice consulate announced yesterday the port at Nassau, Bahamas, will be closed nightly to incoming ships. Vessels arriving after dark must anchor as directed by patrol craft or stand out to sea, he said.

RAINS DAMAGE HOUSING PROJECT—This hillside in the Knox Hill defense housing project in the Southeast was washed away by heavy rains, which also penetrated 30 houses in the development and caused engineers of the Federal Public Housing Administration to attempt to figure out some method of stopping the leaks. Broker Found Guilty Of Conspiring to Sell Nazi-Seized Diamonds

Ex-Reich Army Officer Accused of Plotting With German High Command

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Werner von Clemm, former German Army officer, was convicted late yesterday of conspiring to sell Nazi-seized diamonds from those two nations.

The Government charged Von Clemm had conspired with the German high command to split the profit of the sale of diamonds and that Nazi officials intended to use the American dollars in the furtherance of propaganda in the United States.

The Federal Court jury, which deliberated 90 minutes, also convicted the Pioneer Import Corp. of which Von Clemm is president.

Von Clemm, a Long Island socialite and diamond broker, is a naturalized citizen. He is a cousin of the wife of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister.

Faces Prison Sentence.
Von Clemm faces a possible maximum sentence of two years in prison and a fine of $10,000. The corporation faces a possible $10,000 fine. Sentencing was set for tomorrow.

Indicted with Von Clemm but fugitives from the court in Germany, are Carl Von Clemm, the convicted man's twin brother; Ernst Cremer, manager of the German diamond control office, and Carlos Hoepfner, European vice president of the company.

Named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, were "persons constituting the high command of the German Army"; members of the International Mortgage Corp., European purchasing agent for Von Clemm, and "persons constituting the diamond control office of the German Army in Antwerp."

The Government charged that arrangements for importation of the diamonds were made through the use of an elaborate code, and that Von Clemm made false statements to customs agents that the diamonds were of German origin and thus could be admitted to the country.

Called Economic Warfare.
When the 44-year-old Von Clemm was arrested, Treasury agents confiscated a total of $400,000 worth of precious stones.

In his summation, Mathias Correa, Federal district attorney, outlined the conspiracy and said: "I grant that is not espionage. This is a different kind of warfare—economic warfare. The proof here is that Von Clemm acted with and for the German government against our country."

Von Clemm testified in his own defense that "I certainly had only one thought, and that was to develop a legitimate business. It never occurred to me that the freezing order had anything to do with our business."

Knox Hill Housing Checked by Engineers To Remedy Leaks

Heavy Rains Are Found To Have Penetrated 30 Buildings

Engineers of the Federal Public Housing Administration were trying to figure out today how to stop rain from leaking into some of the defense housing units in the new development at Knox Hill, in the Southeastern section.

They inspected the faulty structures yesterday, made tests and took notes. They planned to treat walls which had proved porous with some impenetrable material.

All the trouble was experienced in the 30 brick buildings, which have four family units each—a total of 120 homes. Only certain of the houses, however, sprang leaks, and these occurred only during heavy, driving rains.

It was found that in some buildings, especially those at exposed corners, rains soaked in through the brick veneer and under the baseboards. Damage was reported slight, mostly to rugs and carpets.

During recent heavy rains gulleys below one section of the project washed away, exposing sewer pipes. The wooden buildings which house many of the families did not experience any leaks. Most of these have asbestos siding, and their inner walls have remained dry.

Knox Hill Dwellings was constructed by Navy Yard workers by the old United States Housing Administration. It was turned over to the Allee Dwelling Authority for administration, but funds for repairs and maintenance are supplied by the PHA. The development contains 250 units of varying size.

Bolivia's population is predominantly Indian and Chile's predominantly white.

Who's behind this Nazi SPY?

This man is one of the 8 saboteurs who tried recently to sneak into America from Nazi U-boats. But he's just a small part of a bigger organization that's been spying on America for years before the war began. Who runs this group? How do they get American citizens to work for them? Where are their headquarters, and their "sabotage schools"? Curt Riess, well-known authority on espionage, who predicted these U-boat landings months ago, tells the story of Hitler's secret organization, complete with names and addresses!

Four Life Trustees Elected to Board of Geographic Society

Rear Admiral Land, Juan Trippe, E. E. Norris, L. B. Wilson Honored

Election of four life trustees to the governing board of the National Geographic Society was announced yesterday by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society. Those honored are Rear Admiral E. S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission; Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan American Air Lines; Ernest E. Norris, president of Southern Railway System, and Lloyd B. Wilson, on leave of absence as president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to become executive vice chairman of the American Red Cross for the duration.

These prominent leaders, chosen at a meeting of the Board of Trustees at the society's headquarters here, will join a board of distinguished scientists, educators, lawyers, business executives, industrialists, Army and Navy officers and high Government officials in directing the 54-year-old society, whose world-wide membership now is more than 1,160,000.

Other trustees are: Charles Evans Hughes, former Chief Justice of the United States; Robert V. Fleming, president and chairman of the Board, Riggs National Bank; Gen. John J. Pershing; Walter S. Gifford, president, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Lt. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general, Army Air Forces; Charles F. Kettering, president, General Motors Research Corp.; Admiral William V. Pratt, U. S. N., retired; Leroy A. Lincoln, president, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; former Vice President Charles C. Dawes; Dr. Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Magazine; Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director, National Bureau of Standards; George Otis Smith, former director, United States Geological Survey; George B. Putnam, Commissioner of Light-houses, retired; Dr. David Fairchild, special agricultural explorer, Agriculture Department; Elisha Hanson, lawyer and naturalist; Theodore W. Noyes, editor of The Evening Star; Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, associate editor of the National Geographic Magazine; Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary, Smithsonian Institution; Rear Admiral L. O. Colbert, director, Coast and Geodetic Survey; and Dr. George W. Hutchinson, secretary of the National Geographic Society.

British Adopt New Program Of Granting Commissions

By Radio to The Star.
LONDON, Aug. 19.—The outlines of England's post-war army may be seen in the new program of granting regular commissions to men now holding temporary rank. The army will be flexible to the extreme of permitting the expansion or decrease of any arm, as circumstances require. Special emphasis will be given to those men with flying experience or those prepared to undertake instruction and to men interested in and capable of developing new weapons. No regular commissions have been granted since the war's beginning except to doctors, quartermasters and those cadets already enrolled at Sandhurst, England's equivalent of West Point, which has since been discontinued. Actually, a shortage of regular commissioned officers from the lower ranks existed then and has since become more acute as a result of promotions and casualties.

10,000 of Rommel's Men Reported Captured

By the Associated Press.
CAIRO, Aug. 19.—A farewell message to the British 8th Army from Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck disclosed today that in the last two months in Egypt Marshal Erwin Rommel had lost 10,000 of his Axis troops in prisoners alone. "In the last two weeks," the retreating Near East commander told his forces, "you have stopped the enemy and forced him on the defensive." The Egyptian battlefield remained quiet today as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander took up his new job as Britain's Near East commander and as newly-arrived United States troops bolstered the Allied reserves for the next phase of the fight. The first British communique since the announcement that Gen. Alexander had succeeded Gen. Auchinleck reported only "little air activity" yesterday and minor patrol actions Monday night.

Jobless Over 54 Increase During Last Two Years

By the Associated Press.
Despite increased hiring of workers of all ages as a result of the war, the proportion of persons over 54 in the ranks of the unemployed has increased during the last two years, the Work Projects Administration reported today. Persons in that age group constituted 20 per cent of the total number of jobless last May, against 14 per cent in May, 1940, the report said, although military inductions caused the recent large gains in employment to fall among workers under 20 or over 35. The report said that those under 25 years dropped from 36 per cent of the total unemployed in May, 1940, to 28 per cent last May, while those between 25 and 54 years remained a constant 21 per cent of the jobless in May of both 1941 and 1942.

Conversion to Coal Forecasts Problems in Ash Collections

Gone are the days of the "oil alley" gone to such an extent that the city's ash collectors may require more money from Congress to handle the 50 per cent increase expected in coal ashes in the District this winter.

In the recent past, the men in blue denim overalls could skip whole blocks of residences where there were only "oil alleys" and never a brimning barrel on the sidewalk. Now, according to City Refuse Supt. William A. Xanten, so many people are expected to convert from oil to coal heating, and so much coal is being ordered by regular consumers, that all the maps of District collection routes are having to be changed. Mr. Xanten fully expects the amount of ash for collection in the District to increase at least one third over its normal quota of 150,000 cubic yards a year. If it increases more than a third, Mr. Xanten said, he will have to ask Congress for more money for additional trucks and workers.

Coal dealers substantiate these expectations by estimates that 50 per cent more coal is being stored away by consumers than any other summer in the history of the industry. The regular customers, who used to order a ton of coal every July, are now ordering by the three tons. Dealers are busy keeping up with the demand.

So far, according to a survey of local coal and oil dealers, 120 burners, less than one-fifth of 1 per cent of the 60,000 oil burners in the District, have been converted to coal. This is smaller than Secretary of Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes' estimate of one half of 1 per cent conversion among the Eastern seaboard's 1,200,000 oil burners. But grim predictions by Mr. Ickes' office that oil may have to be rationed even if conversion and greater care cut consumption to the bone is expected to increase the number of conversions greatly within a few weeks.

Mr. Xanten estimates that he can handle 50,000 more cubic yards of coal ash here than his usual total of 150,000 cubic yards without calling for extra appropriations. But if the ash collections here soar over 200,000 cubic yards a year, he explained, he will have to ask Congress for additional collection funds.

The refuse collection budget is worked out flexibly for just such a contingency, Mr. Xanten declared. Small sums of money from other sources within the refuse division can be applied to the ash situation up to a total of 50,000 cubic yards extra.

The ash problem will be further intensified, according to coal experts, because the anthracite used almost exclusively by domestic consumers here leaves approximately 30 per cent more ash than bituminous coal.

Ash Residue Gauged. Customers in Washington tend to burn anthracite coal, it was explained, because smoke laws require that only the highest type of bituminous coal be burned. Any grade of the comparatively smokeless anthracite.

Maryland GOP Meets To Fill Ticket Vacancies

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—The Republican State Central Committee will meet here today to fill one congressional and two State vacancies on its ticket.

W. David Tilghman, jr., chairman, said all 168 members of the committee had been notified of the Baltimore meeting. The deadline for party committees to fill vacancies is Saturday.

The candidates to be nominated are for the offices of attorney general and controller and for representative from the 3d congressional district.

Ex-Italian Nobleman's Daughter Beaten in Home by Assailant

Attack on Girl Is Latest in Series of Assaults in Media (Pa.) Area

By the Associated Press.
MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 19.—An extensive manhunt was under way today following the brutal beating of the attractive 19-year-old daughter of an Americanized Italian nobleman.

The crime was the latest of a series of attacks on women in the Media area, including four slayings. Most of the cases have never been solved.

Miss Marise "Poppy" Saitto was struck in her fashionable home at nearby Bartonsdale yesterday afternoon by a man she described as "a roughly-clad giant."

Miss Saitto told police she caught the reflection of the intruder in a mirror as she left a bathroom. Alone in the house, she fled to her bedroom and tried to lock the door.

The prowler followed, forced his way into the room and demanded money. Miss Saitto said she pointed out a purse on a bureau from which the man took $4.75 after striking her several times across the face.

Breaking away, she ran down stairs to the living room, where her assailant caught her and tried to throw her on a divan. As she fought him, he again struck savagely at her face.

Escaping once more, she fled upstairs, where the attacker cornered her in her mother's room, hit her and tried to choke her. Finally he left when a hired man, hearing sounds of the struggle, knocked on a rear door.

Hyattstown Youth Held On Murder Charges

Ray McDonough, 21, residing near Hyattstown, Montgomery County, today was charged with the murder last night of Azie Ceppe Cox, 28, of Gambrills, Md. Detective Lt. Theodore Volten of the Montgomery County police said.

The shooting occurred in the back yard of the home of Vernon McDonough, father of the prisoner, Lt. Volten said. He quoted the prisoner as having said the shooting was the result of an argument that began while the two men were drinking wine. The police official quoted Ray McDonough as saying he shot Mr. Cox with a 22-caliber rifle after the latter had aimed a shotgun at him.

U. S. Tank Destroyer Battalions Organized For Offensive Action

Completely Mobile Units Work in Packs and 'Fight Like Jackals'

By the Associated Press.
A PACIFIC NORTHWEST ARMY CAMP, Aug. 19.—No other army in the world has anything like the newly-organized tank destroyer battalions of the United States fighting forces.
The tank destroyer troops and the lightning-like, self-propelled weapons operate like jackals chasing a herd of deer. At one moment they cut down the stragglers at the rear of the pack, the next moment they ambush at the flank.
"Keep them in mind about our tank destroyers," Battalion Comdr. Lt. Col. John Lemp emphasized today during a tank destroyer field exercise, "our mode of attack is purely aggressive. We hunt out the tanks, we don't sit and wait for them like anti-tank units of other armies."

Mobile Outfit.
Every man in a destroyer outfit rides. Every trooper carries a carbine. The outfit is completely mobile. The self-propelled weapons include the 75 mm. half-tracked armored trucks with tank-like treads, 37 mm. cannon and the deadly 50-caliber rapid-fire machine gun.
Col. Lemy admits the destroyer outfits do not meet tank forces face to face like the recent destructive tank vs. tank battles in Northern Africa.

"We get into battle fast, and before the tanks wheel around to get back at us, we are out of the area, worrying their rear or another flank. We work in packs—like jackals. And like jackals, we fight dirty."
New Plan of Tactics.
The War Department, in an aggressive sweep, changed all anti-tank battalions into tank destroyer units. With the new names, they also provided a new plan of tactics and a new set of mobile weapons.

"We lose our effectiveness if we go on the defense," explained the commander, "We must always take advantage of our superior fire power and our superior mobility."
During a field exercise, a group of officers stood on the brink of a hill overlooking a small valley. Dive bombers swooped down over their heads, dropping bombs containing fuel.

"The enemy tanks are on their way," explained Col. Lemp, "and, as usual, the enemy dive bombers are cleaning out the area first."
The roar of the tanks could be heard off to the northwest as they approached behind a slight rise in the ground.
Circling Action.
Just as the tanks appeared, the valley floor suddenly was overrun by small, scurrying vehicles. As they scooted from one clump of trees to another, their gun muzzles flashed continuously with black ammunition. The tanks wheeled angrily, trying to line up the jackals in their gun sights. The destroyers cut in and out of the brush, and popped up and down from the hollows. Around the outer circle of action, units of 50-caliber anti-aircraft guns chased back and forth, keeping aircraft at a safe altitude.
After about three minutes, the tanks (those not technically knocked out) limped away home and the jackals followed, tearing viciously at stragglers.
"That's the way it's going to be when we really get into action," said Col. Lemp. "Our battles won't last more than a few minutes."

Sanitary Commission To Buy U. S. Bonds

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday approved the purchase by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission of $100,000 worth of Treasury Department Bonds for the commission's sinking fund.
In view of the fact that the regularly scheduled meeting of the commissioners September 8 would conflict with the primary elections that day, the board decided to move the meeting up one day to September 9.
Three hearings scheduled for September 8 will be heard the following day. They are: A petition by residents of Section 4 of Clearwood for street lighting facilities; a request by residents of Villa Heights and Woodley Hills for creation of a special taxing district and a petition by residents of Section 4 of Riverdale Heights for street improvements.

Fred G. Ross, Manager For Lillian Russell, Dies

By the Associated Press.
AMITYVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Fred G. Ross, 82, actor who appeared with many stars of the American stage and later served as business manager for such headliners as Lillian Russell, Fritzi Schell and Henry Miller, died here yesterday.
Ross, a native of San Francisco, appeared on the stage with James O'Neill, Ada Cavendish, John T. Raymond, Mrs. John Drew and other topnotch performers of the past.

AUXILIARIES LEARN TO ACT QUICKLY—Like regular firemen, those in the auxiliary service must be alert, ready to hop on the wagon the moment an alarm comes in. Shown here demonstrating efficiency of movement just before grabbing a finger-hold on Truck No. 13 are J. A. Costello (sliding down the pole), Al Starke, getting into boots; Frank Dix, pulling on his coat, and Thomas Baber, dressed and ready to leave.

Auxiliary Firemen Motivated By 'Fun' and Will to Serve

Satisfy Long-Denied Longing With Tangible Contribution to Community Safety

(Fourth of a Series.)
By NORMAN A. KAHL.
It is easy to understand why Stephen O. Porter and Thomas K. Baber should have become auxiliary firemen. Mr. Porter is the son of S. T. Porter, chief engineer of the District Fire Department. Mr. Baber's father is Capt. Thomas S. Baber of Engine Company No. 15.

Mr. Porter lives at 1509 Kentucky street in Arlington, Va., but he comes into the District every sixth night to put in six hours of duty with Engine Company No. 9 at 1624 U street. Mr. Baber, who lives at 719 K street N.E., is one of those fellows who can't seem to get the glare of sirens out of his ears. He makes a living as a fireman at the Naval Air Base.
Usually, as soon as he is finished with his job, he hurries over to the station at 1342 Florida avenue N.E. and puts in an evening as an auxiliary. Mr. Baber estimates he spends at least 30 hours a week at the firehouse just because he wants to.
"I've been chasing fire engines for years," he explained. "I guess it's in my blood."

Thrill Stays With Him.
That explains why a great many of the 1,000 auxiliary firemen who are in training or have already completed their work have been practically every normal youngster, at one time or another, wants to be a fireman. Most of them turn out to be something else—doctors, plumbers, salesmen, mechanics, lawyers, clerks, teachers—but the tingle that crawls up their spine when they hear screeching sirens never really leaves them.
Ask any of the auxiliaries why he chose to become a civilian fire-fighter instead of an air-raid warden or an auxiliary policeman. "This is something I've always wanted to do. When the chance came I grabbed it."
Tangible Contribution.
But it isn't the whole answer. The rest of it is mixed up with an earnest desire to do something tangible, something direct, for a community that may at any moment be menaced by falling bombs. Many of the men can't always put the feeling they have about that into words, but it's there and it's very real.
When Edward Sonneborn was a boy he was like most other youngsters—he loved to run after the bright red wagons. But he had one advantage over most other fledgling fire fans—his father was chief of the volunteer fire department in the small Ohio town where the family lived, and the boy often was permitted to ride with his father.
Mr. Sonneborn never got the smell of smoke out of his nostrils. He is a dry cleaning executive now and lives at 2799 Twenty-eighth street N.W., a stone's throw from the firehouse at 3522 Connecticut avenue N.W. During the last two years firemen at the station got to know Mr. Sonneborn pretty well. At first he came only as an interested observer.

works in a dual capacity. The combination works out very well.

How far the lure of a fire engine can go is illustrated by the case of an auxiliary who used to be a member of a small-town fire department before he came to Washington. He is an automobile mechanic who puts in about 12 hours a week with his company. He is trying to become a regular fireman.
A little while ago he was offered a job in an aircraft plant. The pay would have been about twice as much as that of a rookie fireman. He thought it over carefully and turned it down. If he had accepted the aircraft job, he pointed out, he would have ruined his chances of becoming a full-fledged fireman.

J. A. Costello of 911 Fifth street N.E. is another fireman at the Naval Air Base. Most of his spare time is spent at Engine Company No. 10. Since he began riding the apparatus in May he has had about 30 runs. It was on one of these that his white helmet, which had been issued shortly before, saved him from serious injury.

Felled by Door.
He went out one night to a small fire on the Northeast side. A trash can inside a building had gone up in flames and was threatening other inflammable objects nearby. Mr. Costello was going through a steel door with a small line when something happened to the fittings on the door. Most of them were made of metal and Mr. Costello was thrown to the floor. He picked himself up and examined the helmet. It was nicked a good deal less than his head would have been.

Most of the auxiliaries have concluded that if there's any better way of doing their share to win the war short of being in the armed forces, they don't know it. Many of them have actually tried to enlist, but have been rejected for various reasons. Most of them are fire fans of long standing.
Two years ago, before anybody had thought about organizing an auxiliary fire service, a small group of "buffs" got together and organized the Friendship Fire Association. The name was taken from the famous fire company of which George Washington was a member. Its purpose was to keep its members in the lore of fire-fighting and to help the Fire Department in any way it could.
Small Beginning.
At that time none of the members seriously thought they would one day be helping the firemen in actually battling fires. But there were little things that could be done, like providing hot coffee for members of the department working at large fires. When the auxiliaries were organized, however, every member of the Friendship group joined up and began training. Most of them now are running members.

Their chief is Dr. Edward Gookin, an eye specialist; their deputy chief, Lester H. Steinem, a corporation attorney, and their chief secretary, Roy A. Wiseman, promotion director of the National Symphony Orchestra. They meet every Wednesday night in a corner of the firehouse at 1643 K street N.W. rigged up especially for them.
They have a new purpose in life now—doing everything they can to make the auxiliary fire service even better than it is. They are doing their job in the way you'd expect of dyed-in-the-wool "buffs."

Thieves Prove Deputy Right
POPULAR BLUFF, Mo. (P)—Deputy Sheriff Bill Brent was busy all day warning people not to leave valuables in unlocked automobiles—the circus was in town and he feared an influx of pickpockets.
He was so busy, in fact, he confessed to the sheriff, that he quite forgot to lock his own car—from which some one stole his new pants.

Greenway Hearings In Rent Case Delayed Until September 14

Counsel for Tenants Protest Halting of Evening Sessions

Hearings in the Greenway Apartments rent dispute, which have been held in the Anacostia High School auditorium, were adjourned last night until 9:30 a.m. September 14, at which time they will be resumed in the offices of Robert F. Cogswell, rent control administrator, at 1740 Massachusetts avenue N.W. Halting of evening sessions, after six nights of hearing testimony presented by Morris Cafritz, president of Greenway, Inc., and tenants at the development, was protested by counsel for the tenants, who contended any daytime meetings would impose a hardship.

Meanwhile Mr. Cogswell still had under advisement a letter from Attorney Richard A. Harman, objecting to presentation of the tenants' case by lawyers who are not members of the District bar. In another letter sent to the administrator yesterday by Mr. Harman the attorney said he hoped to avoid the filing of formal proceedings, but felt that some action should be taken promptly in order to avoid possible irreparable injury." Mr. Harman supplemented his second letter with judicial citations.

The four attorneys, all residents of Greenway, who are representing the tenants, are employed in Government agencies and are members of various State bars.
Witnesses testifying for the tenants last night attempted to show that increases in rent ceilings asked by Mr. Cafritz for a number of apartments are not justified in view of the location of Greenway.

Funds to supply veterinary needs to Russian Army horses have been started in South Africa.

Capt. Carr Shooting Laid to Quarrel Over Matrimonial Tangle

Herlihy Girl Bride Held As Slayer; Body Claimed By Wife in Alabama

By the Associated Press. DOUGLAS, ARIZ., Aug. 19.—Norman Herring, deputy county attorney, said last night a quarrel growing out of the tangled marital affairs of Capt. David D. Carr probably led his bride of two months to shoot him in the home of her father, a lieutenant colonel, last Saturday.

Mr. Herring said Capt. Carr had a wife in Alabama when he and 21-year-old Margaret Herlihy, were married in a midnight ceremony at Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico, last June 21. Even her parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. G. Herlihy did not know of the marriage until yesterday, the prosecutor added.

Miss Herlihy, charged with murder, remained in the county hospital undergoing treatment for bruises which she said Capt. Carr inflicted. Bond of $5,000 has been posted for her.

The Alabama wife came into the picture when Mrs. Ruth E. Carr of Phenix City, Ala., telegraphed to county authorities to claim the body. She said she and Capt. Carr were married last January. John F. Ross, acting county attorney, said her story checked with his information and that he knew of no evidence that Capt. Carr ever had sought a divorce.

Another claim for the slain officer's body was made by his father, Charles G. Carr of Omaha. Officers at Fort Huachuca, where the anti-tank unit officer had been stationed, said it had not been decided where the body would be sent.

Capt. Carr, 27, who was a newspaper reporter in New Orleans before beginning active Army duty as a Louisiana National Guardsman in 1940, was slain in the Herlihy home here. He and his red-haired bride had returned a few minutes previously from a trip across the border. The girl's mother witnessed the shooting. Her father was at Fort Huachuca, where he commands an infantry unit.

After the shooting officers first believed the couple quarreled over Capt. Carr's objection to the girl accompanying her parents to Fort Benning, Ga., where her father has been ordered. At that time it was generally believed they were engaged to be married in September. Later Col. Herlihy declared his daughter was fighting for her life when she shot Capt. Carr.

The Public Interest

In a statement issued after he had been ousted as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, Gregory Haskin said he had been warned that he would be removed from the chairmanship if he "continued to protect the public interest."

Obviously, this is a very serious charge for Mr. Haskin to bring against his fellow commissioners, since it tends to impair public confidence in the PUC, and it should not have been made unless there was ample evidence to support it.

But Mr. Haskin cited no such evidence in his statement, and none appears in the commission's records. In the light of these circumstances, how is the public interest being served?

This is not the first time Mr. Haskin has indulged in statements of this sort. Shortly after taking office he charged at a public meeting that he was being hampered in his work by the District Commissioners.

The principal basis for this complaint seems to have been that he was not satisfied with the office space allotted to him. Several months later, at another public meeting, he accused Commissioner Kutz of favoring utility interests.

It seems hardly necessary to point out that the repetition of such charges makes it difficult for any public agency to function satisfactorily, and if the accusations were generally believed the confidence of the public in their officials would be destroyed.

No one doubts that Mr. Haskin really wants to protect the interests of the people of Washington, but there is small chance of accomplishing much in this direction while he continues to work against his associates instead of with them.

Brazilian-American Ties

Those developments which have brought Brazil to the verge of war with the Axis powers have also had the effect of strengthening the traditional friendship between the largest country in South America and its principal neighbor to the North.

But it should be stressed that the accident of having identical enemies is not by any means the only tie between Brazil and the United States. The two countries would have enjoyed a mutual amity if no German submarine ever had been seen in the Atlantic.

Visitors to Rio de Janeiro are familiar with the monument to the memory of James Monroe erected in 1894 to testify to Brazilian-American support of the Doctrine enunciated on December 2, 1823, barring European interference in the Western Hemisphere.

The importance of that pronouncement is apparent when it is remembered that Brazil had declared its independence of Portugal as recently as September 7, 1822. If the United States did not actually guarantee the integrity of the Brazilian government, it at least expressed a constructive interest in its preservation.

So has it been ever since. Throughout the reign of Dom Pedro II—a period of half a century—there was steady growth of enduring bonds of commerce and culture from which the United States and Brazil alike benefited.

Persons still living recall seeing the Emperor at the opening of the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876. Even the tragedy of the American Civil War had the effect of drawing Brazil and the United States together.

Traces persist even now of families of Confederate expatriates, settled in the provinces of Parana, Sao Paulo and Para after the surrender of General Robert E. Lee at Appomattox Court House. There are Brazilian citizens whose ancestors were residents of Virginia and Georgia, South Carolina and Texas.

United States. Among the number must be mentioned Simon Bolivar who, in 1824, summoned the first congress of South American republics to ratify the Monroe Doctrine and provide for its translation from theory into fact; Henry Taylor Blow, Minister to Rio de Janeiro from 1869 to 1871; Thomas Larkin Thompson, Minister from 1893 to 1897; Edwin V. Morgan, Minister from 1912 to 1933; Hugh Gibson, Minister from 1933 to 1937, and others. Brazil broke off relations with Germany on April 11, 1917, following the torpedoing of the steamer Parana. Its "decree of neutrality" was revoked a few weeks later as a mark of "continental solidarity" and specifically in support of the United States. More ships were sunk by U-boats, and war finally was declared on October 28, 1917.

Moscow Conference

Winston Churchill's visit to Moscow is an event of manifold significance. In the first place, the mere fact that Britain's Prime Minister, accompanied by key British and American soldiers and officials, made the long and potentially perilous trip from his post to the Soviet capital at so critical a moment, reveals the urgency of the meeting.

This war has abundantly proven that, despite marvels of modern science such as the radio and the long-distance telephone, nothing can replace personal contacts between leaders where absolute secrecy is paramount and where a complete meeting of minds is imperative.

The Moscow visit is a logical sequel to Foreign Commissar Molotov's trips to London and Washington last June. Since then, Russia's situation has rapidly worsened, and the need for common action against the Axis offensive is acute. The Russian people are crying in anguished tones for the creation of that "second front," desirability of which was acknowledged at the Molotov conferences.

Axis propaganda has been busy trying to sow doubt and disillusionment in Russian minds. Nothing could be a better tonic for Russian popular psychology than the visit of Britain's Prime Minister and his distinguished colleagues to Moscow, with the emphasis on cordial solidarity and unflinching determination. Apart from specific decisions arrived at in four days of conferences, this psychological factor should not be underestimated.

While the discussions themselves are official secrets, there can be little doubt that the visitors eagerly sought more specific information as to Russia's military situation and prospects. Hitherto, Soviet secretiveness has been a handicap to Anglo-American plans for a second front.

So forthright a person as Winston Churchill would hardly let the opportunity slip to stress this in his talks with Joseph Stalin, and that archrealist could appreciate the point. It should be noted in this connection that, concurrently with the leaders' conversations, staff talks went on between the visiting British and American generals and their opposite numbers in the Soviet military hierarchy. The likelihood of a fuller understanding of the strategic problems involved is self-evident.

The presence of British and American commanders in the Near and Middle East, including General Sir Archibald Wavell, Britain's commander in chief in India, emphasized the scope of the conferences. However, the Far Eastern theater of war was, at least officially, excluded. The Russian communiqué states that "a number of decisions were reached covering the field of war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe."

This specifically exempts Japan, with whom Soviet Russia is still on technically normal terms. Diplomatic appearances are thus carefully preserved. A final sidelight on the Moscow Conference is that it is clearly part of a larger politico-strategic pattern. We know that Mr. Churchill stopped off at Cairo on his way to Moscow for consultations with General Smuts, the Premier of the South African Union, and other personalities. Furthermore, there are indications that he may have held still other conferences after leaving Moscow on a return journey whose conclusion has not been announced. Altogether, it is reasonably certain that this extensive tour was filled with activities, the results of which are bound to be translated into momentous actions.

The Wrong Target

It is easy to understand the motives which have prompted Representative Jarman of Alabama to enlist his colleagues of both parties in a movement to help representative Ramspeck of Georgia in his campaign for re-election this fall. And it is characteristic of Mr. Ramspeck to decline, with appreciation, this offer of outside aid.

As chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, which produced last winter's ill-fated "pension bill" to confer retirement benefits on members of Congress, Mr. Ramspeck sponsored the measure in the House. This obviously leaves him open to special attack by political opponents who would capitalize on the wave of criticism which swept the Nation after the law's enactment, and which resulted ultimately in its repeal. Mr. Ramspeck's opposition this year evidently is overlooking no bets.

But his colleagues in the House know that few members indeed could be more free of selfishly personal motives than Mr. Ramspeck. He has been a consistently sincere and effective champion of improvements in the civil service, an outspoken advocate of reforms which would serve,

In the long run, to eliminate political considerations in the selection and advancement of Government employees. To him, and to many of his colleagues, the so-called pension measure was in line with progressive extension of an orderly retirement system; in fact, the inclusion of members of Congress as beneficiaries was a small and relatively unimportant part of the widely praised retirement measure for which Mr. Ramspeck had been working, and which reflected such credit on himself.

There is no doubt that the "pensions for Congress" measure was in some degree misrepresented throughout the country. But aside from that, it served as a symbol which crystallized and gave definite form to the Nation's exasperation over a state of mind in Washington which seemed tardy in its recognition of the vital seriousness of the war—a state of mind by no means confined to Congress. It would be not only unfair but unfortunate for the country if Mr. Ramspeck should be a political victim of this sentiment. He is the sort of member who should be kept in Congress and the outsiders who know him and appreciate his value believe that a majority of his constituents will feel the same way.

American Bombers Attack

The "highly successful" attack upon the railroad yards at Rouen by a squadron of twelve Flying Fortresses, manned by American crews, would seem to provide at least a partial answer to British criticism of this country's four-engine bombers.

According to news reports, some British commentators have contended that their own big bombers—Lancasters, Halifaxes, Stirlings and Manchester—were more suitable for bombing attacks against continental targets because of their supposedly faster speed, better armor and greater bomb-carrying capacity. These critics would relegate the American ships, Flying Fortresses and Liberators, to secondary patrol duties, but this is a proposal which has found little favor in the eyes of either the American plane builders or the United States Bomber Command.

W. E. Beall, chief engineer of Boeing Aircraft, which makes the Fortresses, says the British plan would be a misuse of the American bombers and would fail to take advantage of the superior equipment in these planes. In fact, Mr. Beall even suggests that "political pressure" in England for the use of British planes is at the root of the controversy.

However that may be, it seems clear enough that the question of the relative merits of American and British bombers is not one that should be settled through any process of theorizing. If the American bombsight is not suited for use against first-class German defense equipment, as the British say, or if our planes are not capable of standing up against Nazi pursuit ships and anti-aircraft fire, these facts can be developed through experimental use of American bombers in actual attacks on the enemy. The real test of a plane, like the test of an army, comes in combat, and Major General Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Army Air Force in the European theater, is fully justified in seeking such a test now.

The attack on Rouen, where Joan of Arc died at the stake five centuries ago, was carried out in the face of enemy anti-aircraft fire and against some of the latest-model German fighters. The bombs, dropped from a great altitude, hit squarely on the target, and all of the participating bombers returned safely to their base.

This, as a preliminary test, seems to vindicate the confidence of Americans in their own bombers. They may not be so successful on their next mission, but to borrow an expression from the chief of the British Bomber Command, the chances are that "Yankee Doodle" will keep right on going to town.

Votes for Victory

The war will bring revolution in the United States, say some Fascist-minded gloomsters, with the bullet replacing the ballot. They may even cite with sadistic glee the actual ballot box shortage now existing in several Maryland counties. Sturdily constructed as they are, of copper and brass, now on the priority list, it is true that no new ones can be built; but let no one think that voting will cease in Maryland or anywhere else in America.

Baltimore, converted some time ago to voting machines, will dig out from dead storage its old ballot boxes and lend them to the counties. Later, it may happen that these boxes may be turned in for metal, and in effect drop a few votes for victory over Tokio, while rural Maryland puts up with the temporary inconvenience of using cracker barrels with slits cut in the top—a method, incidentally, which worked beautifully for years after the Declaration of Independence and elected just as many right, or wrong, candidates as were later secured by the use of copper, brass or machinery.

A "foolproof" system of predicting forest fires has been announced, depending on temperature, humidity and other weather data. It will hardly be foolproof, however, until it takes into account the fool who starts them by leaving campfires unattended.

The Tokio propaganda bureau, in view of its many claims of sinking the American Fleet, certainly cannot be accused of missing any boats.

Watching a Blackout From the Air

Washington Begins To Improve—With Exceptions

By Ben McKelway.

If the Germans or the Japs, whoever gets here first, will kindly allow about 12 minutes after the alarm sounds so that all the street lights can be turned out, they will find the city pretty well blacked out when they arrive. Then, they can follow the Mount Vernon Memorial Boulevard, whose custodians must believe in leaving the lights burning and undoubtedly are proud of the pretty string of brilliant jewels winding snake-like along the Potomac.

That, at least, was the general impression of those who rode in an Army plane over Washington during the blackout last night. We were well up and over the spangled city when the alarm sounded. We could not hear the sirens, of course, but one and then another pattern of darkness would form in the field of light below. Gradually these patterns spread like puddles of ink on a white cloth, running together until there was one large blob of blackness.

It seemed an interminable time before all of the street lights were out. Col. Lemuel Bolles, looking down on his handiwork with small enthusiasm, estimated it was 12 minutes—much too long. This turning out of the street lights is a responsibility of the police, and while some of the policemen must have been on time to the split second, others obviously were caught far away from where they were supposed to be. Up in the sky it was cool and dark but we could imagine the red-faced officers, puffing and blowing down below as they tardily reached their switches.

From up in the plane we sat in judgment on the good performers and the derelicts. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable during a blackout. It stands out like an emerald, lying on a cushion of black velvet, with faint touches here and there of ruby red. It may have been blacked out from the street—we in the sky cared little for mundane accomplishments—but looking down on it from above it presented a spectacle for which Secretary Morgenthau will have to blush. The situation along the Mount Vernon Memorial Boulevard seemed to us nothing short of scandalous, for which Secretary Ickes will have to blush.

But there were good performers, too. Griffith Stadium, Union Station (except for the exempt railroad yards) and all the other landmarks we looked for were prompt in hiding themselves in the dark. A bridge over the B. & O. at Hyattsville—at least it was identified as that bridge from the air—shone in somewhat solitary splendor. Here and there below were touches of red. Some of the owners of neon lights again had been caught unprepared. Some of Washington's military secrets blacked themselves out quickly and efficiently, just to show what they could do. Then they turned on the lights again because they had to get on with the war.

Easily the most numerous, if not the worst of the offenders, were the automobiles. Why is it necessary that so many of them must dash up and down the streets in a blackout, their lights casting long, searching fingers in front of them? And all through the city there seemed to be hundreds of automobiles standing with their dim lights burning—but not dim enough to conceal them from indignant critics in the plane.

Have you a skylight in your home? Have you looked into the matter of covering the skylights on the apartment house roof? There were scores of these soft, shadowy spots of light last night and each of them no doubt marked a roof beneath which some loyal family sat in the serene knowledge that no warden in the street would find a glimmer.

But after 20 minutes or so of slow circling (at 150 m.p.h.) above the city we began to swell slightly with pride. After all, busy Washington, all lit up, had within a remarkably short time gone almost entirely black. Tens of thousands of good citizens below were doing what they had been told to do. Two buttons popped from Col. Bolles' khaki shirt. Hadn't all this been accomplished practically from scratch? Wasn't it really remarkable, thinking about it all from up there in the plane, how the people down below were getting the hang of the thing and how anxious 99 out of every 100 of them were to do what was expected of them?

We could not hear the sirens sound the "all clear." To us in the air, the automobiles signaled the end of the blackout. All over the city their lights began to burn brightly. Impatiently they started away from where they had been stopped, and within a minute streams of gold were flowing through the streets again. Then the street lights came on, just as they had gone off—but this time marking out their patterns in glittering strings until all the city was ablaze again.

Then for the post-mortem, after we had landed, under the gentle probing of Gen. Cox, Capt. Woodrow Swanscott, our good pilot, had been over the city in each of the preceding blackouts. This, he said, was the best one yet. Col. Bolles beamed and Commissioner Mason smiled. A long way still to go, they all agreed, but we were getting there. Some more practice, better work by the police next time—and perhaps the Mount Vernon Memorial Boulevard would come along, too.

But why, some one asked, do we stick to lessons learned in England, where alarm signals were devised to meet a situation that does not prevail here? Why do we not devise our own alarms? Why do we not sound the alarm immediately, without so much preliminary business of the "yellow" and the "blue" if there is danger of a raid?

If there are planes heading this way, no matter how far away, the citizens want to know it. The alarm should be sounded then. Then we might be able to turn those street lights out by the time the planes arrive.

And if anybody has any ideas about what to do about the noisy and the Potomac River, please notify Col. Bolles.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

Do birds sense in advance the dangers of certain nesting places? Many of their friends will be sure of it. Various species, previously nesting in certain trees, some years fail to do so, and soon the reason is easily seen. Here is a pear tree, a favorite of many songsters. The family has watched the tree with delight for many years. This summer not a bird nested in that tree, and every one wondered why. As the pear crop ripened, the reason was easy to see. So loaded down with fruit were the branches that many of them broke off. The birds knew this in advance.

We recall the Baltimore orioles which made a nest in a locust tree. They selected, as they always do, the very tip of a long bough. This branch hung out directly over the middle of the yard. It was excellent for observation purposes. The wonderful nest, held securely to the end, was completed in record time. Then, just as everything seemed all right, the birds deserted it.

Several weeks went by, and nobody could figure out why the orioles had left. Then a great afternoon storm came up. The wind blew and the rain descended, and the long branch with the nest at the end of it broke off and fell to the ground. It would have been impossible for any one to convince the members of that family that the oriole pair did not know in advance exactly what was going to happen.

This is called "instinct," but perhaps instinct is often no more than divine common sense. It might have been that the orioles, used to nest-making, could tell by the very "feel" of that branch that it was not safe. The mother oriole, of course, is the nest builder. She it is who selects the site, and who binds the structure with cord in a way that human mechanical engineers might envy. If no strings or cords are put out for these birds, the female must make cords out of milkweed and other fibers. This is quite a job.

Many gardeners think they are playing smash when they put out great long pieces of string, but these are just the sort that should not be used, since the female oriole often gets entangled in them, and always has a difficult time in pecking them apart. The male oriole does nothing about building the nest, nor does he help incubate the eggs. Where he comes in is in the feeding. Few parents do a more consistent job of feeding than the male Baltimore oriole. He never stops.

Locust trees are seldom used by birds for nesting. Perhaps this is due to their knowledge of the brittle character of the limbs of these trees. Summer storms are always bringing down locust boughs. The knowledge of birds is part and parcel of every fiber of their being. It is not, as with us, something which we like to think of as residing in the brain. Yet every person who has suffered a fall without particular injury knows that the muscles have a sort of knowledge of their own. The accident happens so suddenly that there is, literally, no time for thinking. No time for thinking, that is, by the brain. What does happen is that the muscles act of themselves. Their co-ordination, we say, is perfect. The fall is made in just such a way that no injury results. The right arm stretches out, and acts as a buffer to take the shock of the fall. The more brittle bones are saved from the impact. Just how one does it is unknown, but the victim picks himself up, none the worse for a fall which might have killed him.

Two of our most beautiful songsters, the cardinals and the catbirds, do not seem to be very wise, especially some summers. We have often noticed that in summers where one species of bird makes a poor selection of a nesting site, other species will do the same thing. One summer a catbird nested in a shrub by a porch, not more than four feet off the ground. A cardinal put her nest on top of a fence, about the same distance. All the baby catbirds were killed by a marauder, and also all the cardinals. The latter were pecked to death by grackles as they sat on the fence for the first time. There will be few persons who have put out food for birds but who will not be willing to say that the songsters show a great deal of common sense in their acceptance. After they have been fed a little time at one place, they go directly to it, thereafter, and if supplies are not forthcoming they will fly impatiently over to the house, and sometimes even peck on the window to secure notice. This may seem elementary, in a way, but it is great wisdom, too. It is such good knowledge as is wholesome in itself and for the birds. Too much of man's knowledge is unwholesome, and terrifying to all creatures.

Letters to the Editor

Advocates "Gesture" to India To Win "Enthusiastic Co-Operation." To the Editor of The Star: The Star's editorial on the "Outlook in India" evades issues of significance to the United States by the current practice of emphasizing riots without explaining them and exaggerating Indian political differences along communal lines. It is high time that the people of the United States were awakened to the importance of their stake in India and were given the facts necessary to an understanding and evaluation of her current struggle.

Though India at present occupies a prominent place in newspapers and news broadcasts, neither are contributing in any substantial degree to public understanding of this problem, which, far from being a purely British affair, is vital to the United States. So far as our own material interests are concerned, we first should realize the urgency of an all-out war effort in India. A dozen or more Indian soldiers could be equipped for the cost of getting one American soldier to Asia. Moreover, India's tremendous resources are capable of producing war materials cheaply and close to battle areas. Neither of these advantages can be realized without the whole-hearted co-operation of the Indian people.

It therefore behooves us actively to court such enthusiastic co-operation rather than to concur by our silence in an attempt to enforce unwilling co-operation. Secondly, we should ask ourselves whether it is not both morally just and tactically expedient that the Allies make some gesture immediately to prove the sincerity of their announced aim of freedom for all. Where can this high principle be applied more appropriately than to our own ally? All Asia today is asking these questions, including our brave ally, China, already on record as favoring India's aspirations. Burma raises similar questions before making her recent unpoplar choice.

MINERVA F. DESING. Discusses "Wedge" To Break German Morale. To the Editor of The Star: Due to America's being the arsenal of freedom, whatever peace terms we insist upon are bound to have full weight in the United Nations council. For this reason, whatever "promise-warnings" we may radio to Germany are certain to receive attention from the German population. Therefore, let us make full use of these true weapons, promises and warnings. Let us not fire them merely in the general direction of Germany, but let us aim them as carefully as guns are aimed. For instance, if we issue terrible warnings concerning what we intend to do to the German nation as a whole—so many to be executed, so many to be imprisoned, etc.—and say nothing concerning what surrenders within say 12 months, rather than fighting 12 years, then the only real effect such warnings could possibly have upon the Germans would be that of making them fight all the more desperately. Fear can make men fight as surely as it can make men run. What we should do is to make such tremendous distinction between surrendering soon and surrendering only after, say another year of bloodshed, as must give pause to every German alive. We must so voice our "promise-warnings" as to make Germans use the last ounce of whatever freedom of will they still possess for peace. The distinction we may make between surrendering soon and surrendering much later is the greatest wedge we possess for splitting German morale. Let us see that this wedge is made as sharp as we can possibly make it. BOLLING SOMERVILLE. Wants Streetcar Operators Pursued by "Caps." To the Editor of The Star: I have crossed the Atlantic with but slight discomfort from seasickness, but it takes only a short ride on a Washington streetcar to make me thoroughly nauseated. Ninety per cent of the operators seem to have but one goal in mind: To make the car behave like a roller coaster or a bucking broncho. And their complete disregard of the safety and welfare of their passengers is only exceeded by their contempt for every other type of vehicle that crawls on the ground. Red and amber lights all look green to these roughriders, and a stop sign is merely a base from which attacks are made upon unsuspecting motorists who happen to have the right-of-way. You may be 100 or you may be only 10 feet away from the corner—they will pull right out in front of you regardless of whether you are able to stop in time to avoid a crash or not. Today I heard squealing of brakes at the corner of East Capitol and Second streets and a moment later a crash. Upon investigation I found one of these roughriders had made an attack upon a Navy station wagon in exactly the same manner as that described above. The sailor, coming from the right, on a through street, was challenged by the streetcar, coming from the left, on a stop street, and, unable to stop in time, barged right into the streetcar. The law plainly states that a vehicle shall proceed after halting at a stop sign only after through traffic has cleared the intersection. The streetcar operators just dart into traffic in plain violation of the law, knowing that auto drivers will rather burn up brakes and tires than risk a collision. The cops get after reckless motorists. Why not concentrate on some of these hard-riding streetcar operators for a change? H. C. R.

Tells of Observations of Traffic Troubles. To the Editor of The Star: The bus and car operators come in for a lot of criticism, some of which no doubt is justifiable. But I wish to call attention to one or two things which it is up to the police to stop. There is supposed to be a regulation against parking or standing on the right-hand side of certain streets and avenues between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. I leave Seventh and D streets S.W. every day about 5:30 p.m. and my bus has to get around cars standing along the north curb of E street N.W. several times in each block. On Twentieth street from I all the way north it is the same, and from Cathedral avenue to Porter street I counted 27 cars one day last week. If the police do not have enough pick-up trucks, there are any number of auto dealers who would love to earn $10 or $15 per tow. I leave home every morning at 7:30 on an L-7 bus and every trip the driver has to slam on his brakes two or three times to keep from hitting cars making right-hand turns from the center lane or taxis cutting across his bow to pick up fares. Haskin's Answers To Questions

By Frederic J. Haskin.

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing The Evening Star Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. Please inclose stamp for return postage. Q. What is the punishment for desertion from the Army in wartime?—R. E. H. A. In time of war the punishment for desertion from the United States Army is death or other punishment as the court-martial directs. Such (wartime) deserters will be forever incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States and will not be able to exercise any of the rights of citizenship.

Q. Which State has the most automobiles and which the least?—C. C. N. A. In 1941 California led in number of registrations with a total of 2,996,775 motor vehicles. Nevada had the least, the total being only 49,868. Q. What is the fiercest fish?—M. H. E. A. The piranha of South America. Though comparatively small it is noted for its ferocity. It will attack a human being and tear him to pieces.

Q. How long is it since the Hebrews existed as a nation?—T. E. A. The Kingdom of Israel was finally destroyed by Assyria in 722 B.C. and that of Judah by Babylon in 586 B.C. and thereafter the Hebrews ceased to exist as a nation. Q. What is the derivation of the word "clue"?—M. T. D. A. It comes from an old English "cluwe," meaning "a ball of thread." Its present-day meaning comes from the story of Theseus, the ancient Greek hero, who was guided through the labyrinth by the ball of thread held by Ariadne.

Q. When and where was Tchaikovsky's "Overture 1812" first performed?—J. C. J. A. This overture, commemorating Napoleon's disastrous invasion of Russia in 1812, was first performed in the public square before the Kremlin in Moscow in 1881. A huge orchestra was assembled, augmented by a brass band and cannons to be fired at certain dramatic moments. Q. Is it a fact that Pope Pius XI was buried in three coffins?—D. J. E. A. Three coffins were used, the first of cypress, the second of lead and the third of elm. Q. Was Paul Robeson, the Negro singer, a football player?—G. F. R. A. He was rated by Walter Camp as one of the all-America ends in football.

Q. What is the official language of Belgium?—T. T. A. Belgium is bi-lingual. Public documents and the like are required to appear both in French and Flemish. Q. If a billion dollar bills were stacked in a pile, how high would it be?—P. W. F. A. Aaron Bakst, in "Mathematics—Its Magic and Mastery," says that a billion one-dollar bills stacked in one column would be 59 3/10 miles high.

Q. What is the origin of wedding bells?—C. C. A. A. The custom originated in England, where in the Middle Ages church bells pealed as the bride entered the church and again as she left. Q. Which is the deepest fresh-water lake in the world?—T. R. A. Lake Baikal in Siberia, 5,350 feet deep. Lake Tanganyika in Africa, with a depth of 4,190 feet, ranks next.

Q. Who was the first Roman Catholic to be nominated for President?—J. B. C. A. Charles O'Connor of New York. He was nominated in 1872 by the Labor Reform branch of the Democratic party. Q. Under what conditions may an Arabian stallion be registered as a thoroughbred in the American Stud Book?—S. F. A. Native-bred Arabians are eligible only when their sire and dam are registered with the American Stud Book, imported Arabians only when accompanied by a stud book certificate of pure breeding, issued by Messrs. Weatherly & Sons of England, or the Minister of Agriculture of France.

ANOBEL ARMOUR.

Morale Boost Seen in Visit By Churchill

Observer Discredits Second Front as Prime Reason

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Premier Stalin would appear to be far more concerned with the cementing of relations between Russia and Britain and the whole cause of the United Nations than with the immediate opening of a second front.

David Lawrence.

It didn't need a visit by the British Prime Minister to assure the head of the Russian government that a second front would be opened. Nor did it need any explanation of how the second front would be operated for the very good reason that the strategy of such a move will depend on circumstances as they arise.

That there is to be a second front may be accepted as fact. The President announced this plan after the recent visit of Foreign Commissar Molotov. The only open questions have been when the front would be opened, where it would be opened and how it would be opened.

These are military matters dependent for their solution on questions of shipping, of transport, and of synchronization of effort as between the British and American Armies and Air Forces.

Mr. Stalin doubtless knew all this before Mr. Churchill came and has known it for some time. Then why did Mr. Churchill go to Moscow at this time? The plain inference is that the visit was decided on as a means, first, of quieting the public clamor in Britain for a second front; second, as consequence of the rather ambiguous statement issued when Mr. Molotov was here, and, finally, to demonstrate to Latin America and to the peoples of the occupied countries in Europe, as well as to the peoples of the United Nations, that even though the fortunes of battle seem to be going against Russia, there is no thought of a capitulation or of a separate peace.

Routes a Possible Topic.
If the sides of war finally go against Stalin this summer in Russia, it merely means that the whole war will be prolonged. As for the steady stream of supplies to Russia, they will be maintained and it is quite possible that one of the collateral reasons for the Churchill-Stalin conference was to determine on alternative routes of supply in case anything happens to the gateway in the Persian Gulf or in the event that Japan decides to make war in Siberian ports and waters.

Mr. Churchill doesn't make hazardous visits over enemy-patrolled areas by plane for propaganda purposes alone. Since he and President Roosevelt formulate the master strategy for this war, it can be inferred that certain decisions have to be made in advance to protect Russia, Britain and America against various contingencies that might arise in the event of a Japanese-Russian war.

Then there is also the possibility of intensified operations in the Near East this winter, either with or without Turkey's co-operation. The heads of the two governments naturally would canvass every possibility in a personal conference, because visits like these cannot be undertaken often during the critical periods of a war.

Apparently the British Prime Minister is anxious to make it clear that the reverses which Russia has suffered in the Caucasus, while damaging, are not catastrophic and that the Russian-British-Chinese-American unity for war purposes is not going to be broken because of what the Axis may accomplish this summer.

Second Front Promoted.
As for a second front, the public as well as Nazi observers could very well guess that, if a second front had been imminent all during the summer, the discussions in the press of the United Nations would not have been so extensive. In fact, for a while, these discussions seem to have been officially encouraged in London, possibly in the hope that Hitler would immobilize certain troop divisions in Western Europe which would have been as effective in part for diversion purposes as an actual attack on French-occupied territory.

The Nazis have excellent reconnaissance and it is doubtful whether they will be surprised by any second front operations. What they may not know is the time when such an event will begin or the successive steps thereafter. This enlarged commando raids with several thousands of men landed at widely separated points might be one method as distinguished from the making of a bridgehead by air power through which all forces would be landed.

Nobody who is in the know about the second front has disclosed a single iota of information. It is, as it should be, a well-kept secret but the broad plan for such a front is no secret and the mobilization of men and materials, ships and planes for the big push in whatever form it will be made is under way now.

That the Germans know it can be judged from the preparations they are taking to prevent civilian populations inside France or Norway from coming to the assistance of the invading armies.

On the Record

Lack of Dynamic Policy Charged to U. S. Propaganda Seeking to Woo Europe From Axis

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

Although our psychological warfare now is in a secret theater, from which the public is excluded as far as any official information is concerned, the over-curious can occasionally worm their way in.

Dorothy Thompson.

If one knows foreign languages, or has friends who do, one can occasionally catch a wave length on which we, Americans, speak to our enemies. (I hope there is no death penalty for listening to one's country's own broadcasts.)

Having indulged in this faintly seditious occupation on numerous occasions, I confess that I do not know what we are up to. Our news to Germany, for instance, is sometimes very dramatic, if drama consists in it being uttered by various voices in a drama-of-the-air technique. But if you ask me what is the political line, I do not know the answer.

Listening to our broadcasts to Italy I have been somewhat clearer, but not, I confess, happier. For it seems that as far as Italy is concerned, we are playing up the House of Savoy against Mussolini, and hoping for a revolt from the most reactionary and moribund elements in Italy. It would seem that the British and the Americans are the last people on this globe who place faith in Victor Emmanuel.

Morass Lies in Path.

In fact, we can fall into the most hopeless political morass through a lack of clear understanding of the real dynamics of social forces in Europe. If, for instance, we intend to outbid the Nazis in appeals to reactionary elements, we will certainly fail, for the Nazis are playing with far more active forces than tottering monarchies, decadent aristocracies and political groups that are out of power through their demonstrated weakness and incapacity.

Yet we are playing with them and apparently on the thesis that we should offer hope to all the disgruntled, regardless of who they are.

But effective propaganda cannot be made this way. The Axis knows it. It is true, for instance, that Japan tells a great many flabby contradictory stories and makes a great many contradictory promises. But she does not make contradictory promises to the same listeners. She says one thing to the Chinese, another to the Malaysians, another to the Dutch in the Netherlands East Indies and still another to the Australians. But she so beams her propaganda that the Australians cannot hear what she is saying to the Dutch and Chinese. Therefore the contradictions are not caught, except as the Allies catch them and retransmit them.

Everything we send to one European country can be heard by everybody in Europe—as far as the wave length reaches. And to whatever country we broadcast, our words must be such that they reach and reflect the mental tendencies of the broadest part of the population.

The Great Game of Politics

Henderson Declared Not Politically Strong Enough To Put Teeth Into Price Ceiling Program

By FRANK R. KENT.

Leon Henderson, the Price Administrator, and Donald Nelson, the WPB head, important Presidential aides, lunch together several times a week. They are intimate friends. The other day Mr. Henderson extolled Mr. Nelson, whose responsibility for the present shortages which are cramping war production is unquestioned, as one of the greatest men he knew. In return, Mr. Nelson tells one and all that "Leon" is one of the ablest men he ever met in his life.

Frank R. Kent.

They both may be right. Clearly, it is to their mutual advantage to paint that sort of portrait of each other and their publicity agents have rushed to proclaim it. They are in much of the same field, clothed with unaccustomed power and assigned to jobs for which they lack training and experience. Whatever the effect of journalistic boosting on the uninformed, no posted person really thinks either of these officials is as big as he is pictured by the other. That, as an old and shrewd political leader used to say, is the "phonous bolognism primus."

It measured by any yardstick other than the one they themselves employed, Messrs. Nelson and Henderson would check very short, indeed. Evidences of the Nelson lack of foresight are glossed over by those who hold that one must swallow without gagging whatever any man does or does not do, once he is installed as a Presidential aide. Possibly, this journalistic insistence will enable Mr. Nelson to get by with what Theodore Roosevelt used to call the "feeble-forceful" way in which he is managing the WPB.

Futile and Foolish.

So far as Mr. Henderson is concerned, if it were not for its tragic aspect, his situation would be ridiculous. Here is a man, with vast authority, charged with the duty of keeping down the cost of living and averting the major disaster of inflation. There is no sensible person who does not agree that success for such an undertaking is possible only if real stabilization of wages and food products is coupled with a taxation program that will drain off the vast purchasing power which has gone to the lowest income groups as a result of the immense war expenditures.

Intelligent enough to know this, Mr. Henderson is not politically strong enough to insist upon it. The excuse is that had he done so he would have lost his essential presidential support, because in the White House there is no disposition to stand firmly against the labor and farm lobbies which insist that their groups must not be restrained or restricted. As a result, Mr. Henderson's operations have been futile and foolish. No sooner has he established price ceilings than they have been busted by the upsurge of wages and farm prices. The whole price control effort has reached a silly stage.

Last week one of the great letters of America got the following letter—from one of the great beef-and-pork-packing firms of the country: "Gentlemen," it said, "confirming your order of August 11, we are extremely sorry we are unable to fill your order, due to unusual conditions now prevailing in our industry."

"With all our products frozen at March ceiling prices and no ceiling at all on livestock, which represents 84 cents of every dollar of sales, to continue business as we have done in the past will entail a tremendous loss. Consequently, we have materially reduced our hog and cattle kill, and, naturally, we have to discontinue selling many of our items."

Farm Products Are Different.
"We assure you that if relief is granted and we can again operate without loss, we shall be happy to take care of your requirements."

This hotel has been buying $20,000 of pork products annually from this concern. Now, it cannot buy anything. Why? The answer is that, forced to accept Mr. Henderson's ceilings on its manufactured product, with no ceiling at all for the raw product it has to purchase, bankruptcy would be inevitable if business were continued.

Prodded by numerous such cases, Mr. Henderson has "asked permission" of the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a price on livestock. He has not got the permission and he has not established the price. Nor will he. Under the present law, at any time he can slap a ceiling on any manufactured product. But when it comes to farm products that is different. Here no action can be taken until a most favorable level is reached—in most cases 110 per cent of "parity."

But, even then, permission from the Secretary of Agriculture must be obtained. The result, of course, is that no price ceiling on raw farm products is possible. Nevertheless, Mr. Henderson establishes ceilings on manufactured farm products and the Government expects these firms to carry on as usual. It just does not add up. It just does not make sense. It never will make sense until the man at the top makes his attitude conform with experience, sincerity and common sense.

This Changing World

Initial Success of Gormley in Solomons Area Likely to Be Followed by New Operations

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The Allies' first objective in the Pacific has been attained and the forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Vice Admiral Robert Lee Gormley are preparing to proceed with further operations in the Solomon Islands area.

It can be fairly assumed that superior United States-Australian naval forces are watching for a surprise attack by the Japanese navy based in the Carolines while necessary repairs and replacements for our forces are being rushed.

Unless political considerations—chiefly the commitments existing between the heads of the three principal United Nations—come into play again, it is safe to forecast that this initial success in Australian waters will be followed up as soon as possible.

In spite of speculations and hints which followed announcement of the Moscow conversations between Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt's representation, W. Averell Harriman, it is highly improbable that anything more than intensified air attacks against the Reich and the conquered territories will take place this year. Weather conditions in Western Europe will not permit major operations there after September 1.

At the same time, however, it is admitted in military and political quarters that continuation of the purely defensive strategy will only harm the morale of the United Nations. And since no offensive is possible in any other zone of operations outside the Pacific, it is expected that Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Gormley will be given the necessary reinforcements to enable them to continue operations which have been fully successful, if costly.

Australia in Less Peril.
Ever since the fall of Singapore and the Netherlands Indies, American and British strategists have been worried about Australia. It was obvious that the Japanese would attempt to remove that thorn in their side in order to make sure of their gains in the Southwest Pacific. The Japanese could not consider their victory complete until the Australian threat to their flanks was removed.

Occupation of the Bismarck and Solomon archipelagos and part of New Guinea was intended to prevent the United States from rushing supplies to Australia and making that continent impregnable against attack. The Japanese general staff could not risk an all-out attack against the continent until it had succeeded in severing the lines of communication between New Zealand, Australia and the West Coast. The Coral Sea and Midway battles had the same purpose; to intercept the lines of communication between Australia and North America.

Reoccupation of the principal Solomon Islands has considerably lessened the danger to Australia. To complete the picture it will be necessary for American-Australian forces to clean up the remaining Japanese in New Guinea, an operation which is expected to start shortly.

Reinforcements Vital.
If the ideas of most of our naval strategists are followed, it is likely that important sea, air and land operations will continue through Australia's summer, which officially begins next December, with the purpose of creating greater elbow room for our forces out there. In some quarters, which are not overimpressed by Japanese efficiency and power, it is believed that energetic prosecution of our offensive in the South Pacific might by the end of the year bring our forces back into control of areas they held last winter.

The paramount need to support continued operations in the Southwest Pacific is rapid reinforcements in men and materials. They must reach Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Gormley at the earliest moment. It is 6,000 miles from our West Coast to Australia. The distance seems enormous, but is only about half as great as the water route which must be followed between the United States and the Near East—that is, around the Cape of Good Hope.

Attacking the Japanese in the South Pacific, an operation which is more likely to yield important results than elsewhere, will require a much greater effort by the United States. It may mean the bulk of our production of war material—particularly planes—and the major portion of the United States Navy will have to be concentrated against the Japs in order to evict them from the territories they occupied in their quick drive a few months ago as well as to harass their communication lines.

It may mean that for the next few months we shall have to mark time as far as the Atlantic front is concerned. Whether this will be possible in view of the internal political situation remains to be seen. There is no doubt in the minds of our foremost strategists that the roots of a United Nations victory lie in the Pacific.

McLemore—Jap Communiques Put Goebbels to Shame

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK.—The buck-toothed Baron Munchausen in charge of Tokyo's war communiques are unwittingly building up Americans as the bravest people on the face of the earth.

Henry McLemore.

Since December 7 their victory claims have been so extravagant that even the most stupid Jap must wonder what is keeping the United States alive, and why Tojo and Hirohito haven't already taken a house in Washington and set up light housekeeping.

We haven't a complete file of the Japanese claims but a study of even a partial record reveals that they modestly admit to having sunk, crippled, or generally put out of commission, more boats and planes than we have ever had in the Pacific. Until the Tokio liars got into action the title of being the best all-around, pentathlon, decathlon, fencer, spearthrust, Joseph Goebbels and Virginia Gorda, the mouthpieces of Hitler and Mussolini.

But they were shown up as arch-conservatives, men who weighed every fact and figure before opening their mouths, by the Japanese propagandists. Where Goebbels and Gorda are content to claim a single battleship, two cruisers and a destroyer, the Japanese sit down to their typewriters and annihilate entire fleets.

Nothing that flies through the air or sails on the seas is as deadly as those typewriters in the Japanese War and Navy Offices. Without bothering to shift into capital letters they can fire a salvo of communiques guaranteed to sweep the seas clear of any and all enemy vessels.

It would be interesting to hide behind the kimono stand in the Japanese War Office and listen to the boys as they go about their work in the morning. You probably would hear something like this:

Chief of bureau: Men, we claimed only 83 vessels yesterday. What is the matter?

Chief clerk: So sorry, sir, but the mimeograph machine got stuck just when we were getting ready to sink an airplane carrier, two transports and three cruisers.

Second clerk: It won't happen again, sir.

Chief: See that it doesn't happen again. Also, I'd like to find out who around here is responsible for putting out the information that one of our boats was slightly damaged. Remember, get this straight: Nothing bad ever happens to one of our boats.

Third clerk: What American boats shall we sink today, sir?

Chief: Figure that out for yourself. I suggest that each man take a copy of Jane's Fighting Ships and pick out two or three boats with names that strike his fancy, and sink them.

Another clerk: We have done that already, sir, and there are no more boats left. We have sunk them all.

Chief: Oh, no we haven't. What about the rowboats in Central Park in New York. They are still intact, aren't they? And what about those property boats in Hollywood? Let them have a salvo.

If the Japanese people believe these communiques they must marvel at the tenacity and courage of the American fighting men. With no boats left, they still managed to beat the daylight out of the Japanese fleet in the Coral Sea and at Midway. With nothing left but life-preservers they managed to swim the Solomon Islands. Without benefit of battleships, cruisers, destroyers, carriers or transports, they still found a way to carry the battle to the enemy on the Aleutians. Unless the Japanese propagandists ease up a bit on their success stories, the Japanese public is likely to become convinced that its army and navy are up against a super race, and become disheartened.

The honesty of the United Nations' military communiques offers sound proof of the difference in the mettle and temper of the nations fighting this war. The Axis nations, despite the fact that the advantage has rested with them since they started, still don't dare to tell the truth about even the smallest setback. The United Nations, whose people have had almost nothing but straight rights to the jaw, still demand the truth.

They know they won't buckle, and so do their leaders. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

DR. SAMUEL E. WATKINS.

Dr. Samuel Watkins, Physician in Capital Since 1892, Dies

Dr. Samuel Evans Watkins, who had practiced medicine here since 1892, died early today at his residence, 1448 Harvard street N.W. Dr. Watkins was born February 11, 1871, in Washington, the son of Louis and Emily H. Watkins. He married Mary Campbell, daughter of Charles C. Campbell and Mary Kennedy Campbell, in 1905. He was graduated from Emerson Institute, Washington, in 1888; received his degree in medicine from Georgetown University School of Medicine in 1892, was graduated from the University of Maryland Medical School in 1893. From 1892 to 1896 he was demonstrator of dermatology and genito-urinary diseases at Georgetown University and Emergency Hospital. He was formerly senior warden at the Church of the Ascension and at the time of his death, was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church. He was also a member of the following organizations: Medical Society of the District of Columbia, Sons of the American Revolution, Academy of Sciences of the District of Columbia, Potomac Lodge No. 5, F. A. M., and the Royal Arcanum. He was for many years an examiner for both the Acaia Mutual Life Insurance Co. and the Royal Arcanum. He is survived by his widow, a son, Kennedy Campbell Watkins, an attorney in the Office of the Chief Counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue, and two sisters, Miss Catherine R. Watkins and Mrs. W. C. Prentiss. Funeral services will be held Friday at St. John's Church. Details of services will be announced later.

Homemade Bomb Used In Lucknow Outbreak. BOMBAY, Aug. 19.—The first use of a homemade bomb in the current disturbances in India was reported from Lucknow in north central India yesterday. A police corporal and several other persons were injured. At Bangalore police fired 32 rounds into a crowd, killing one person and wounding 38. Rioting, store closings and the burning of public buildings such as post offices were reported at Nagpur in Central India. Delhi in the north central part, Madras in the east, Calcutta in the northeast and Karachi in the west. The military killed 30 and wounded 14 from August 12 to August 15 in Nagpur, while police there reported killing two and wounding eight. The working committee of the Moslem League yesterday discussed a proposal to authorize the league president, Mohammed Ali Jinnah, to meet Mohandas K. Gandhi to seek approval of the league proposal for a settlement of the Indian difficulties. The proposal was to be voted on today. The league has proposed that the All-India Congress should accede to granting autonomy for the predominantly Moslem areas and has asked if the congress would be willing to form a provisional government for the furtherance of the war effort. If so, the league has agreed to negotiate with such a provisional government to establish Indian unity.

Army Airfield Salvage Nets $1,000 Monthly. WILLIAMS FIELD, Ariz., Aug. 19.—The Army, which spends money by the millions, knows how to save, too. This Air Forces training field's garbage alone is sold for $200 a month and the grease tallow and scrap meat from mess halls bring another $85. Another $100 is realized from the sale of tin cans, about half a carload, smashed flat and baled. Egg crates, glass jugs, oil barrels, scrap rubber, metal shavings, bits of brass from discarded electric light bulbs and dozens of other items sell the total of salvage back to $1,000 a month—which goes to the Federal Treasury.

Henderson Offers Plans to Alleviate Fuel Oil Shortage

WPB Head to Name Committee to Put Program Into Effect

By the Associated Press.
Price Administrator Leon Henderson presented to the War Production Board yesterday a half-dozen detailed proposals—including consumer rationing—to alleviate the fuel oil shortage on the Atlantic seaboard next winter.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson decided to appoint a small committee of WPB members with full power to make a choice among the Henderson proposals and order the program into effect as soon as possible. The committee probably will be named today.

"Rationing of fuel oil was one of several plans presented by Mr. Henderson, but that doesn't necessarily mean that it will be the one selected," said a spokesman for Mr. Nelson, who did not wish to be named. Mr. Nelson himself did not comment.

Alternative Indicated.
One of the alternatives, it was indicated, might be a limitation order curtailing deliveries of fuel oil to dealers and making them responsible for equitable distribution among householders.

Meanwhile, Solid Fuels Co-ordinator Ickes named a committee to tackle the critical manpower problem facing the Nation's coal mining industry.

The committee will confer with Chairman Paul V. McNutt, of the War Manpower Commission, and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, "in an effort to stop further loss of men from critical occupations in the coal mining industry to other industries and the armed forces."

Mr. Ickes acted on the recommendation of the Solid Fuels Advisory War Council which reported manpower losses were seriously affecting the ability of the coal mines to supply the amount of fuel needed for war industry and necessary civilian uses.

45,000 Employees Lost.
Mr. Ickes estimated a net loss of about 45,000 mine employees between January 1 and June 30, and said loss of men "already is limiting production in some areas" and threatens to become worse.

Coal producers report that a large number of men leaving the mines are experienced, key workmen, such as mine locomotive and machine operators, mechanics and electricians, often difficult to replace.

Members of the committee include: O. L. Alexander, New York; Charles O'Neill, New York; H. T. de Bardeleben, Birmingham, Ala.; Thomas H. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, United Mine Workers of America, and Thomas J. Thomas, office of solid fuels co-ordinator.

Three Pedestrians Injured When Struck by Streetcars

Killed in same period of 1941, 60
Toll for all of 1941..... 95

Three pedestrians were listed by police today as traffic victims in accidents involving streetcars here yesterday and last night. None of the injured was in serious condition.

Samuel Trepolsky, 52, of 2626 Monroe street N.E. was in Emergency Hospital with a possible fractured skull received when he was struck by a streetcar at Fourteenth and G streets N.W. yesterday afternoon.

Police said the car was operated by Robert Ledbetter, 43, of 314 Todd street N.E., who has had 13 years' experience.

Struck as she alighted from one streetcar and walked around it into the path of another coming in the opposite direction, Mrs. Sue Baldwin, 40, of Bethesda, Md., was treated at Casualty Hospital for head lacerations. The accident occurred at Michigan avenue and North Capitol street.

Samuel Trepolsky, 63, of Baltimore, was struck by a streetcar at Fourth and Upshur streets N.W. and was taken to Casualty Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations and bruises. The streetcar was operated by William A. Foley, 37, of Takoma Park, Md., motorman with three weeks' experience, police reported.

'Sir Galahad' Goes to War

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP).—Sir Galahad, a 20-ton bronze knight who has stood guard outside the portals of a biscuit company for two decades, goes forth to war shortly. It will be used in making death-dealing shells against the Axis, the company announced today.

Churchill Within Earshot of Foe During Inspection in Near East

By EDWARD KENNEDY, Associated Press War Correspondent.
WITH BRITISH FORCES ON THE EGYPTIAN FRONT, Aug. 19—A resolute civilian figure in sun helmet, gray suit and black bow tie trudged westward one day recently along the desert coast road to El Alamein, within hearing distance of heavy cannonading.

He held a walking stick and gloves in one hand, a fly whisk in the other. British army trucks passed and then stopped short.

"Blimey," exclaimed an amazed driver, "it's Winston."

Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, on an inspection trip breaking a flight to Moscow, then still commander of British forces in the Near East, he looked over anti-tank guns and watched tanks rumbling over the terrain.

Mr. Churchill had arrived in Egypt by plane at a desert air field at dawn one day, awaited by a small party to whom his plans were officially made known.

He stepped from the plane in the uniform of an air commodore. As he saluted Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Will Tedder, commander in chief of the RAF in the Near East, he smiled.

"How are you, young fellow?" Mr. Churchill asked. Mr. Churchill's arrival as an air commodore eliminated the formalities which would have been entailed if he had come as Prime Minister. In theory, Mr. Churchill entered Egypt simply as a member of his Britannic majesty's forces, who have the right to enter the country freely under the British-Egyptian treaty.

Later he drove to the Suez Canal area to inspect fresh troops and equipment which had arrived recently from Britain.

Denmark may reduce its ration of wood for motor fuel.

Two shirtless Australians digging a slit trench dropped their picks to look at him. "You've got a good suntan," the Aussie leader remarked.

Mr. Churchill spent most of the day among South African and Australian detachments which make up part of the forces aligned against the German and Italian divisions of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

He also encountered British, New Zealand and other Allied soldiers on special details and inspected RAF airfields.

The Prime Minister ate breakfast and luncheon at officers' messes, shooting flies away with the whisk.

While Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, then still commander of British forces in the Near East, he looked over anti-tank guns and watched tanks rumbling over the terrain.

Tons of Equipment for Soldiers Complicate Sea Transportation

Comfort of Men and Better Food Added To Shipping Problems of Last War

(No. Two of a Series.)

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

Between 5 and 12 tons of equipment must accompany every American soldier sent overseas.

The infantryman travels lightest, but even he requires close to 5 tons of "impediments" in order to function at top efficiency.

In addition, between a ton and three-quarters and 3 tons of food, clothing, etc., per month must be transported to maintain each man. The required supplies differ considerably with the station to which a soldier is sent. Naturally they are relatively light in Hawaii, very heavy in Greenland.

Besides all this, there must be a constant flow of ammunition. These supplies, together with the men themselves, must be packed into the Army's fleet of ships and kept moving. The Titanic burden is on the shoulders of the War Transportation Division of the newly organized Transportation Corps. It involves a daily succession of problems which are close to higher mathematics.

Balanced Load a Problem. A major complication, officers of the service explain, is the requirement for balanced loading. A great deal of military equipment constitutes what shipping officers call "balloon-type cargo." There is a disproportion of bulk to weight in such material as automobiles, boats and even guns. The ideal cargo should keep a ship "full and down"—that is, with enough light cargo to keep the ship full, including deck load, and enough heavy cargo to load the ship to the waterline. Even with the most careful planning this seldom is possible with a military cargo.

Ships usually have been built to match the types of commercial freight they were expected to carry. Consequently the special Army cargo has to be fitted in as best it can. Equipment and supplies are far more delicate and varied than those used in the last war. Many of the instruments must be packed and transported with the utmost care. They would be useless if they reached their destination with parts missing or broken. The Army fare calls for refrigeration of food supplies and for plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. All these must be gotten to the combat areas in such ships as are available, however ill-suited they may be to such cargoes.

Cargo Made up in Advance. The constant problem is to make up as well-balanced a cargo as possible to fit each individual ship and to have that precise cargo waiting on the docks when the boat makes port, so that she can be loaded at once. In the last war ocean transportation was largely a hit-or-miss affair. Goods were sent to ports and loaded almost indiscriminately on the first ship that happened to be come available.

The present procedure is to start assembling a cargo for a particular ship far in advance of her expected arrival—and sometimes this "back-up," as it is called, is for as long as 40 days. The usual time allowance is one-and-a-half the time allowed for a turn-about voyage.

Types are being transported, shipping officers explain, with provisions for their comfort almost unknown to the old AEF. In 1917-18, as millions remember, the trip to Europe often was a two-week nightmare. Now some of the finest boats afloat have been made over into troop ships. The Transportation Corps has a number of troop transports either in service or under construction which represent the latest word in this sort of craft.

Special Provision for Air. With the necessity of keeping portholes closed, air in sleeping quarters is often quite foul in the old ships. Today a system of blowers has been installed on every ship carrying troops which keeps up a constant circulation of fresh air from the outside in every compartment, approximately a third of the craft are air conditioned.

A notable contribution to the comfort of troops is afforded by the evaporating apparatus which assures a constant and plentiful supply of fresh water. In the last war all ships carried their water from port, and often it ran low towards the end of a voyage.

Every vessel used as a troop transport has an up-to-date and immaculate kitchen. The stand-up mess is being introduced as rapidly as possible. Troops evidently prefer to eat standing up to sitting down for the simple reason that they do not have to wait in line so long. It is possible to feed twice as many in the same time.

Army Honors 3 Navy Pilots for Greenland Rescue

By the Associated Press.

The Army announced yesterday the award of its Distinguished Flying Cross to three Navy officers who participated in the aerial rescue of Army flyers stranded on the ice-gap of interior Greenland after their heavy bomber was forced down last June.

Decorated for the rescue were Lt. Aram Y. Parunak of Pitman, N. J.; Ensign John C. Snyder, Jr., Memphis, Tenn., and Ensign Douglas G. McDonald, Mason, Mich.

The Navy flyers landed their seaplane in a small temporary lake formed by melting ice in the mountains of Greenland, bringing several of the crew of the Army bomber to safety. Two weeks later Lt. Parunak, who had discovered the grounded plane and dropped food and other supplies to its crew, went back and made a second landing, rescuing Col. Robert W. C. Wimsatt and an Army sergeant, the remaining member of the bomber's crew.

In each case, Col. Bernt Balchen shared in the rescue work, leading the marooned men over icefields and around glacier crevices to the lake where the Navy flying boat was waiting.

The citation awarding the DFC praised the Navy officers for their "courage, coolness and skill."

Tip on Bahr Given By State Department, FBI Agent Reveals

$1,500 Found Hidden
In Accused Spy's Cigar Box, Jury Is Told

By The Associated Press.
NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 19.—The Government today neared completion of its espionage conspiracy case against Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr, after disclosing that its tip on the defendant was furnished through the report of an American State Department official in Switzerland.

The actual report was barred from evidence on the grounds that certain parts of it were prejudicial. Judge William F. Smith said, however, that the report listed "suspicions" of Bahr, former Buffalo (N. Y.) resident who became an American through naturalization of his father.

George P. Dillard, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, testified that he questioned Bahr "upon information from the State Department that he (Bahr) had been apprehended by the Swiss police for illegal entry into that country."

Asked if he had been approached with a proposition to become a "courier or an espionage agent," Bahr said he had not, Mr. Dillard testified.

A story by Bahr of the execution of an associate in Germany and of his own escape into Switzerland while being shot at was related by H. M. Carblom, another FBI agent.

Escape Story Called False.
The Government has branded the escape story a fake to obtain for Bahr the status of a refugee and to facilitate his re-entry into the United States.

Bahr said he had worked for a German plant manufacturing bomb parts, for another plant producing airplane parts and had collaborated on research "confidential from the point of view of Germany," Mr. Carblom said. The FBI agent said Bahr also told him he had sold blueprints to two men, one identified as Mr. Damon, for $7,000 in American money, and that he had been told Damon later was executed and his wife banished.

Bahr declared the men who bought the blueprints were Jews, Mr. Carblom added.

The story of the discovery of a $1,000 bill and a $500 bill, both American currency, hidden in a cigar box, was outlined by witnesses.

Customs Agent Found Money.
John R. Carey, customs inspector, who uncovered the money, related how, when not satisfied by a preliminary interview, he cut away the label in the top of a cigar box in Bahr's suitcase and found the bills.

The box, with part of the paper lining of the lid cut away to show the two bills pasted underneath, was offered in evidence.

Mr. Carey said a further search of Bahr's belongings, his stateroom on the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm, and of Bahr himself failed to disclose anything else "of interest to the Government."

Bahr declared $264 and a sum of Portuguese money to the customs, Mr. Carey said.

The customs inspector testified that when he asked Bahr what he did with $7,000 obtained from the sale of blueprints, Bahr replied, "I had a good time in Portugal—women and gambling. The money just went."

Bahr's Wife Subpoenaed.
Mr. Carey also said Bahr told him some of the money was used to bribe Gestapo agents.

Ashley J. Nicholas, inspector of the Board of Review of Passports, said Bahr had told him he received $1,500 for the sale in Switzerland of a secret design for a steam turbine.

In Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Ruth Neeb Bahr, the defendant's wife, said she had been subpoenaed to appear as a defense witness and had been told she "must answer the subpoena."

She said she had not seen Bahr in four years.

Bahr is charged with conspiring with eight men in six countries—including Germany—to forward to Germany vital information on the American war effort.

Max Hirschfeld Dies; Pianist and Composer

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Max Hirschfeld, 80, pianist, composer and musical director who for more than 10 years conducted orchestras and operas in New York, died yesterday.

Mr. Hirschfeld, a native of Berlin who once toured the country with Mme. Schumann Heink, conducted grand opera in San Francisco, and was a musical director for Charles Dillingham, Florenz Ziegfeld and the Shubert brothers. He composed "Au Clair de la Lune," "Shal of India" and "Monarch of Millions."

OPA Warns Motorists To Display Gas Stickers

The Office of Price Administration reminded motorists today that rigid enforcement of the regulation requiring display of gasoline ration stickers on windshields will begin tomorrow.

Whitney Leary, District OPA director, re-emphasized that each motorist must carry on his windshield a sticker denoting the rank of the highest ration book in his possession. Only one sticker may be displayed.

Motorists disobeying this regulation, he warned, will be subject to "severe penalties." Stickers may be obtained at the 15 local rationing boards.

Actress Quits Husband, But He's Still Her Agent

By The Associated Press.
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—Movie agents always get their 10 per cent and Walter Kane is no exception. Kane is out as Screen Actress

Lynn Bari's husband, but not as her agent. He has a contract and it doesn't expire for quite a while. So Kane will continue to get a percentage of Lynn's salary, even though she has separated from him, and he will represent her in contract negotiations.

She announced yesterday she had moved from their Beverly Hills home and she would ask for a divorce. They have been married three years.

"16 to 1" your tires can go farther than you think!...

● Keeping cars on the road despite the acute rubber situation, is a vital problem. It is so vital that our entire sales and service organization is working day and night to equip and train Esso Dealers to render this remarkable new tire service. Thousands are ready now. Others are being added to the list every day. Ask the Esso Dealer in your neighborhood to explain this important new service.

This is the Tire Life Indicator—part of the new Esso Dealer Service. It gives your tires a new lease on life!

New Esso Dealer Tire Service helps you get amazing extra mileage

How would you like to discover that your present set of tires contains far more mileage than you may have thought possible even with the best of care?

This is not an idle question. Back of it is a new and scientific method of increasing tire life. Tests have already been made by a number of Esso Dealers. In 16 out of every 17 cases car owners were literally amazed at the extra mileage their present tires could deliver. The chances are that you can get a lot more mileage too. Soviet Ship Rescues 52 U. S. Sailors In Arctic Sinking

Picked Up in Danger Zone,
Men Stand Watch
With Russian Gunners

By YURI HERMAN,
Russian War Correspondent,
North American Newspaper Alliance.

SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN RUSSIA, Aug. 19.—Four of us—Capt. Pavlov, Capt. George Sullivan, Lt. Morton Wolfson and your correspondent—were seated at a table in a little restaurant in the far north. A band was playing. Dinner was nearly over and with it our painstaking labors.

We had pieced the whole story together, hour by hour. I had filled several pages with notes. It should be of interest to others to hear how a warm friendship sprang up between the two captains and crews of two ships out in the chill waters of the northern seas.

Imagine those chill and very distant waters. Imagine three little boats, three little cockleshells, tossed on the boundless watery wastes, cloaked in fog. Imagine half-frozen, exhausted American seamen, sailing in cold fog and storm. Ten out of the 52 men were in a terrible state. They no longer hoped for rescue.

Fog Lifts Gradually.

The fog gradually lifted—they heard a hoarse voice calling, "Hello, hello!" Now they could see the side of a big steamship, seamen's faces at the rail, the captain at the microphone on his bridge.

Capt. Sullivan started at the vessel as though he had never seen one before. It was well nigh incredible—the ship was actually slowing down its engines in a danger zone where enemy craft were darting hither and thither, where the vessel might be torpedoed at any moment.

The men aboard the steamship lowered ropes and a hoarse voice roared commands into the microphone. Capt. Sullivan was hauled aboard. Soviet Capt. Pavlov held out his big hand and Capt. Sullivan said, "Our ship was called the (censored)." On (censored) it happened. It's rather a dangerous spot.

"We'll have plenty of time to talk about everything afterwards," Capt. Pavlov said. "As for danger, that's what wars are for—so that things won't get too safe. You are welcome, captain. Everything will be all right now."

Sailors In Bad Shape.

Fog was thickening again over the seas. Those American seamen who were in bad shape were carried up the ship's ladder in Soviet sailors' arms. Ten were taken aboard that way. The weaker were put to bed and given hot coffee. Those who felt strong enough sat in a ward room at a good square meal, conversing through the international language of gesture.

Meantime, a council of war was being held in Capt. Pavlov's cabin, where Capt. Sullivan, balancing a cup of coffee, was recounting all he had experienced not far away. Lt. Wolfson was smoking tranquilly, thanks to the fact that he rescued his pipes from the sinking ship.

Lt. Wolfson asked permission to speak. Looking at Capt. Pavlov, he said: "Captain, my crew and I know that type of gun you have on deck very well. On behalf of my gunners, I ask you as a great honor to let us take the watches with your gunners."

So Capt. Pavlov's guests were given a post of honor at the gun. The rest of the crew was registered according to their special trades and in a few hours after their rescue many of the Americans were standing watch.

'International' Romance Climaxes Job Contest

An Irish colleen who finished second best to another aspirant for a job at the New Zealand Supply Mission will marry the New Zealander who won the place.

From countries on the opposite side of the world, John Keith Thwaites, 25, and Miss Taylor, 27, will be married in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church August 31.

Miss Taylor, a native of Dublin, was living in Canada last year when she heard about a communications job with the New Zealand Supply Mission. She applied for it and was on the verge of getting it when she was suddenly informed another person had been selected.

That person happened to be Mr. Thwaites, who has been in the United States since 1939, attending school in Springfield, Mass. He came to Washington in January with the supply mission.

Miss Taylor, meanwhile, came here to take another job. In March, however, she transferred to the very department she had sought to head. Mr. Thwaites proved an exceedingly likable boss, so much so, in fact, that they filed an application for a marriage license in District Court yesterday.

Miss Taylor lives at Scott's Hotel, while Mr. Thwaites at 1725 Twenty-third street N.W.

Irish Urge Roosevelt To Save Doomed Six

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Aug. 19.—A committee claiming to represent all sections of the Irish people said yesterday it had appealed to President Roosevelt to intervene to prevent the execution of six Irishmen sentenced to death at Belfast in the fatal shooting of Constable Patrick Murphy last Easter.

The oldest of the six is 21, the youngest, 18.

Bitter Floor Fight Seen as New York Democrats Fail To Nominate Bennett Backers Spurn Roosevelt 'Peace'

November—who ever it turns out to be—and it still looks like Mr. Bennett will have to run against Thomas E. Dewey, who will be nominated by the Republican Convention in Saratoga next week.

Permanent Chairman Named. The convention adjourned at 12:35 p.m. until 11 a.m. tomorrow, after electing David F. Lee of Norwich, a former justice of the State Supreme Court, as permanent chairman. Mr. Lee was the choice of the Farley-Bennett forces. He was unopposed by the Mead leaders.

For the first time in more than a score of years, the selection of a gubernatorial candidate failed to materialize at the traditional conference of Democratic leaders held last night in the Biltmore Hotel in New York at the call of Mr. Farley.

The feeling between the Farley-Bennett forces and those supporting Senator Mead intensified as a result of the meeting. Mr. Farley said at the close of the conference, which lasted four hours—until midnight—that the Bennett forces had rejected all suggestions of a compromise candidate. He added that the names of several proposed compromise candidates had been presented to the conference, three or four of them "seriously."

President's Suggestion Vain. A letter from President Roosevelt to Gov. Lehman, which the Governor read to the conference, suggesting "various methods" of dealing with the situation so as to bring about a peaceful agreement on a gubernatorial candidate, was without avail. Mr. Farley said that the Bennett forces "have the votes" and intend to nominate their man.

Mr. Farley said the decision not to have the candidates placed in nomination until tomorrow was made at the suggestion of Frank V. Kelly, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, who is supporting Mr. Bennett. Mr. Kelly urged that the selection of the gubernatorial candidate be made the second day of the convention to avoid criticism that might be made on the ground that a nomination of Mr. Bennett was being "railroaded" through the convention.

Number of Compromise Names. Among the names of those proposed as compromise candidates are those of Justice Albert Conway of the Court of Appeals, a resident of Brooklyn, and District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn, now a major in the Army. Others who have been in the talk of compromise are Lt. Gov. Philip S. Fox, secretary of War Robert Patterson and Justice Robert Jackson of the United States Supreme Court.

Governor Lehman, reached at his home in New York last night, was incensed that any publicity had been given to the fact that President Roosevelt had sent him a letter to be presented to the conference of leaders.

"It was a confidential letter and no one had any right to mention it," the Governor said. He would not reveal any of its contents, but it was interpreted as a criticism of Chairman Farley for having mentioned the letter, which was a two-page typed-written message.

Mr. Farley made it clear that the Bennett forces had rejected the best proposals outlined by the President. "There has been no change," Mr. Farley said emphatically. "Mr. Bennett has votes and he will be nominated."

21 Leaders Give Views. Speaking of the conference last night the State chairman said it had developed "an interesting discussion" at which every one of the 21 leaders present had expressed their views. Seven of those present were supporters of Senator Mead, including Gov. Lehman, National Chairman Flynn and Senator Wagner. The others were adherents of the Farley-Bennett forces.

"The conference ended," Mr. Farley continued, "with the Mead forces insisting upon taking the fight over to the floor. Those who favor Mr. Bennett, of course, decided on the same course of action." The keynote speech of convention was delivered by Gov. Lehman as soon as the convention organized today and elected the Governor temporary chairman.

Gov. Lehman, in his keynote address, made no mention of candidates. He praised the Roosevelt New Deal administration, its conduct of the war, and called upon the Democrats to rally to the President's support.

The President," said Gov. Lehman, "has become the world's symbol of fearlessness and militant support for democratic principles—the emblem of the world's faith for freedom."

Gov. Lehman confidently predicted the voters of New York would turn again to the Democratic party for a Governor to carry on the social gains of the New Deal and to aid in the conduct of the war.

Farley Claims 650 Votes. Mr. Farley claimed more than 650 votes in the convention for Mr. Bennett, many more than a majority of the 1014 total delegate strength. He said that Brooklyn Leader Kelly again had told him the Brooklyn delegation, 193 strong, was standing firm for Bennett. Only one of these delegates had announced he would vote for Senator Mead. Unless the Mead forces can win over a large number of the Brooklynites they have little chance of nominating their man.

The sweeps began early, one squadron tearing through a formation of Pocke-Wulf 190s and destroying a Heinkel 115 float plane and damaging two others.

Three British planes were missing from the day's operations. The Germans made a series of small-scale daylight raids on Britain, bombing towns in the southeast and southwest coasts. A number of fatalities was reported.

Communique Text of Announcement Of Dieppe Attack

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A communique from the Dieppe raid headquarters of combined operations in the European theater of operations said today:

Troops taking part in the raid on the Dieppe area have landed at all points selected. Heavy opposition was encountered in some places, and on the left flank one landing party was instantly repulsed but reformed and later carried the beach by assault.

Troops on the right flank having achieved their objective, which included complete destruction of a six-gun battery and ammunition dump, now have been re-embarked. In the center tanks were landed and heavy fighting is proceeding. The military force consists mainly of Canadian troops.

Also taking part are British special service troops, a detachment from a United States Ranger battalion and a small contingent of fighting French. This force was carried and escorted by units of the Royal Navy.

Air support, and protection on a large scale is being provided by bomber and fighter aircraft of the RAF in the face of considerable enemy resistance.

A further communique will be issued later. This means that whereas today a New York bank must put into a reserve $26 out of every demand deposit, tomorrow it need set aside only $24.

The remaining $76 is free for lending or investment. Most of the $76 already has been invested, but there will be $2 more free money for every $100 deposit than there was yesterday.

The banks probably will invest most of their newly-freed funds in Government securities, but board officials said this was not the purpose of the order.

The board acted under a new law which Congress specifically authorized reserve requirements for banks in New York and Chicago, without corresponding changes elsewhere.

Formerly, the board could change reserves only on a uniform percentage basis throughout the country.

The reduction reversed a policy the Federal Reserve Board has followed most of the time since 1936 of increasing reserve requirements for the specific purpose of keeping banks from having too much idle money on hand.

In 1936, the board got authority from Congress to double reserve requirements with bank deposits to an extent that might cause inflation.

The reserves were doubled in a series of steps until in 1938 they were reduced about 8 per cent in connection with the business recession. The defense program brought new fears of inflation and in 1941 the reserve requirements were put back at the top limit by law.

Except for New York and Chicago, the requirements are still at the legal limit. Federal Reserve officials have expressed informal opinion in the last year that the board ought to have power to double the reserve requirements again if conditions warrant.

Dieppe was busy with Channel passenger and freight traffic in peacetime, cross-Channel boats running to Newhaven, England, 80 miles away.

The Germans have set up long-range coastal batteries there to harass Channel shipping. The city is only 33 miles from Rouen, where United States Flying Fortresses attacked the railway yards Monday.

Inventories, based on reports of 235 houses, in all parts of the country were 4 per cent less, in June, 1942, than in June, 1941. The average inventory showed a decline of 5 per cent from May, 1942, to June of this year.

$400,000,000 Funds Of Federal Reserve Banks Released

New York and Chicago Units Are Permitted To Reduce Reserves

Because a partial shift of the Nation's money to war industry localities has cut the lending power of the Federal Reserve Bank, the Federal Reserve Board today released $400,000,000 of reserve funds in those two cities.

Unobligated funds for loans or investments in New York and Chicago had declined almost steadily from a peak of $3,500,000,000 in 1939 to about $150,000,000. Banks in all other cities are required to maintain a reserve of about $2,000,000,000 in idle money, technically called excess reserves.

Effective tomorrow, New York and Chicago banks are permitted to reduce their reserves on demand or "checking account" deposits from 26 per cent to 24 per cent.

Effective tomorrow, New York and Chicago banks are permitted to reduce their reserves on demand or "checking account" deposits from 26 per cent to 24 per cent. Time or savings accounts are not affected.

Aviation Corp.'s Net Soars, but Dividend Action Is Deferred

Goodrich Rubber Co.'s Profits Drop Sharply For Half Year

The Aviation Corp. yesterday reported net peaks in war production for the second quarter "with deliveries ahead of schedules and backlog of orders in the aggregate at all-time high levels."

After estimated Federal taxes of $3,100,000, net income for the six months ended May 31 was $2,478,291, or 43 cents a common share, compared to $662,234 net income, after $273,979 deducted for taxes, or 11 cents a share in the comparable 1941 period.

Victor Emanuel, president, said dividend action was deferred by directors pending action on new taxes, legislation involving renegotiation of contracts, proposals for price ceilings on materials and efforts toward wage stabilization in the aircraft industry.

"Splendid progress" in operations was reported by Mr. Emanuel. He announced that a new manufacturing unit, Northern Aircraft Products Division, was to be built in Ohio for the production of aircraft parts.

B. F. Goodrich Co., rubber products manufacturer, reported consolidated net profits for the first six months ended June 30 were $3,103,087, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.59 a common share.

For the corresponding period of 1941 the company had consolidated net profits of $6,646,033, or $4.31 a common share. Goodrich's report for the first half of 1942, however, was after provision of $4,068,000 for domestic and foreign quarterly reserve requirements, against $4,741,000 for those purposes in the 1941 period.

A contingency reserve of $1,000,000 was taken from each of the half-years. Consolidated net sales for the first quarter of 1942 were reported as $103,283,542 against $98,005,059 for the 1941 period.

Directors declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, payable September 15 to holders of record September 4, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the $5 cumulative preferred, payable September 30 to holders of record September 18.

Chesapeake & Ohio. The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, despite profit declines from a year ago, maintained its 75-cent dividend which will be paid to holders of the stock on October 1 to holders of September 8. This brought 1942 payments to $2.25.

At the same time, the road announced July net profit was $2,024,218 against $3,228,888 in the same month of 1941. Bringing seven months' net to $13,855,355 against $18,522,079 the same period last year, when taxes were less.

Merk & Co. Merk & Co. Inc. and subsidiaries, manufacturing chemists, reported net quarterly profit for the month ended June 30 of $1,086,373, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 83 cents a common share, compared with $1,591,073 or $1.45 a share in the first six months of 1941.

Hudson Motor Car Co. Hudson Motor Car Co. reported for the June quarter net profit of $318,838, equal to the amount reported on the capital stock, compared with $220,714, or 14 cents a share, in the June quarter of 1941.

Steel Centers Report Production Quotas Are Working Out

Iron Age Says Result Is Better Balance Of Distribution

The Iron Age reported today United States industry was turning out war weapons in quantities which seemed impossible six months ago.

"Production of steel continues to move to higher levels and the upturn over efficiency in the way it is being distributed to United States war plants does not hide the fact that the American war machine is growing into the biggest the world has yet seen," the Trade Journal said.

"Few days pass in which the performance of certain segments of United States industry, with relation to the war program, is not characterized as less than adequate," Iron Age said in its review of the week.

Quota System Working Out. "Sandwiched into the facts and opinion about how poorly industry is doing is the bright news which says industry's accomplishments will bring an early end to the war. It is this and not the 'production' of new news and back again that give industrial and other classes of readers the shakes and shivers."

"This week, like most, has its share of bright news. From steel manufacturing centers comes word that the recently adopted quota system for production of steel is working out. So far the quota plan seems to be enabling the mills to set up a schedule for each product and go ahead without too many product changes within the framework of the priority system. Better balance of war steel distribution and mill operation is said to be resulting."

Figures on Demand Confused. "Meanwhile, speculation over the steel shortage is confused because it appears there is a demand for 10,000,000 tons of finished steel monthly, whereas supply stands at 5.3 million tons. It is pointed out that this demand total represents to a great degree cumulative orders and is so inflated that no exact figure is available to show what the true demand is."

Zone difficulty seems to be that the armed services have no effective program for co-ordinating purchases and, consequently, sometimes find ships, planes, tanks and guns complete except for scarce items. Yet here too progress is being made.

Iron Age estimated steel production this week at 96 per cent of capacity, down slightly from the 96.6 per cent of last week.

Chicago Grain. BY FRANKLIN MULLIN. Associated Press Market Writer. CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The heavy Allied attack on the French coast today helped to touch off one of the steepest grain market rallies in weeks.

Wheat led the upturn, gaining as much as 2 cents a bushel at one stage, and other cereals pushed upward almost as far in some cases.

Wheat covers previous short sales accounted for much of the support, traders said, although some dealers also were understood to have reinstated lines sold out on the recent price retreat.

Utilities Board Won't Consider Gas Co. Value

Hankin Is Overruled In Move to Reduce Sliding Scale Base

By DON S. WARREN.

Again overriding Chairman Gregory Hankin, the Public Utilities Commission majority today ruled out of consideration at the current public hearing on annual adjustment of consumer rates the Washington Gas Light Co. a proposal by Mr. Hankin that the company's 1935 rate base be reduced by $1,055,000 by following a different method of land valuation.

The decision was made by Commissioners James H. Flanagan and Charles W. Kutz, who granted a motion made near the outset of the hearing yesterday by E. Barret Petyman, company counsel. Mr. Flanagan, who announced the decision, said the motion had been granted on the ground that the question raised was "beyond the scope of the present hearing."

Door Open for Investigation.

Presumably the wording of this decision left the door open for the commission, if it so elects, to order an investigation and a later hearing on the issue raised by Mr. Hankin. It appeared also that the commission majority had decided that a fundamental change in the company's sliding scale arrangement should not be considered in the present proceeding because the commission, in its rate hearing order issued last March 20, had not notified the company or the public that it proposed to consider this question at the present hearing.

Commission experts said that under the sliding scale plan the elimination of an item of $1,055,000 from the rate base would have reduced the company's "deficiency" in earnings during the past test year (ended June 30) by about $55,000.

According to a financial report supplied the commission by its staff, the company is entitled to a rate increase, beginning September 1, amounting to $323,488, assuming that the commission did not make any major change in charges to operating expenses or fundamental changes in the sliding-scale arrangement.

Hankin Dissents From Decision.

Mr. Hankin, who is serving his last weeks as chairman of the regulatory body, by reason of the vacation of Col. Kutz and Mr. Flanagan in voting to deprive him of the chairmanship, noted his dissent from the majority ruling and announced that he would cite authorities in a formal opinion which he would write.

The disputed item of $1,055,000 represents the difference of the appraised value placed by the commission in 1935 (when the gas company sliding-scale plan was adopted) on land purchases of the company and the original cost paid by the company for the purchase of land some of which dates as early as 1848.

Mr. Hankin insisted that the present hearing was in accord with the sliding-scale plan to determine what should be the rates charged the consumer in the coming year, and argued that the commission's decision would affect the rates paid by the consumers, and therefore he thought the land item question must necessarily be a part of the hearing. He added that there was a subsidiary question as to whether it was proper for the commission to examine into the rate base fixed by an earlier commission in 1935. He insisted that it was proper.

Subject to Modification.

The commission chairman said the PUC in adopting the sliding scale plan in 1930 had been careful to state the limits of its powers in accepting the plan and had noted that an administrative body cannot divest itself by legal jurisdiction, and he argued that the commission at all times had the duty to establish reasonable rates. He added that a commission in one year cannot "fetter" its commission in some later year and insisted that the sliding scale arrangement always was subject to modification in both substance and form.

Mr. Hankin referred to rulings by the United States Supreme Court in support of his contentions. In former years, he argued, there had been an impression that it was a constitutional necessity for utility regulatory bodies to establish a valuation or a rate base reflecting the "present" value of the properties of the companies, no matter what had been the original cost. More recently, he continued, the Supreme Court has given definite indication that it does not make that requirement and that in on, it is on the point, while it did not say that original cost must be the basis of utility rates, it had made clear that utility commissions were not required to follow the "present value" theory.

Sees No Need For Long Hearings.

Mr. Hankin, in discussing with company counsel, declared it would not be necessary that there be a protracted hearing on his land value question, since the company books were available and these showed the original cost of the land.

Harry R. Booth, utilities counsel for the Office of Price Administration, who was yesterday made a party to the case as an intervener, asked the commission whether the ruling on the Hankin question would mean that the OPA would be prevented from offering evidence of its position that the commission should consider the threatened boost in consumer gas rates in the light of the Government's efforts to prevent inflation.

Sales Manager Questioned.

The remainder of the morning was devoted to examination of Andrew J. Maloney, general sales manager of the company, in regard to Mr. Hankin's question as to whether all or only a part of a $216,000 ex-

James Cagney To Appear at Salvage Rally

James Cagney of the movies has accepted an invitation to appear in the entertainment program for the National Salvage Rally at Griffith Stadium at 8 p.m. Monday, it was announced today.

In accepting the invitation extended by Richmond B. Keach, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, Mr. Cagney said, "I shall be very glad to do my bit in inaugurating the national scrap drive." Mr. Cagney is also aiding the "Stars Over America" War bond tour.

Also scheduled to appear on the program are Lucy Monroe, soprano; "Sons of the South" quartet from Tuskegee Institute, and the Army Air Forces Band, under the direction of Lt. Alfred Helberg.

More than 1,000 posters have been distributed in the downtown area by the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, the Washington Boys' Club and the Boy Scouts through the courtesy of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways for the District.

A. & F. Bus Route Hearing Canceled On Counterproposal

Commission to Assign Staff to Examine Company's Suggestion

In deference to a counter-proposal made by the Arlington and Fairfax Motor Transportation Co. for a routing of its buses that would keep them south of Pennsylvania avenue, the District Public Utilities Commission today canceled its call for a public hearing at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the District Building on routing the A and F buses in the downtown area.

The commission did not fix the date for a later hearing, and it was understood its staff would be assigned to study the company's suggestion that buses be rerouted north on Fourteenth street N.W. to Pennsylvania avenue, then east on the avenue and south on Twelfth street to a terminal on the west side of this street near the Postoffice Building.

The commission recently ordered establishment of a large bus terminal on Pennsylvania avenue in front of the old Post Office Building, as a means of eliminating vehicular and pedestrian traffic jams now caused on Tenth street between D and E streets, where the A. & F. and the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington buses now have terminals.

Under present plans the A. B. & W. buses will use the new terminal in front of the old Post Office Building, where three loading platforms would be built in the street area outside of the main traffic area along Pennsylvania avenue.

Brazilian Sinkings Held Vital to Argentina

By The Associated Press.

The influential Argentine newspaper La Nacion said today that the sinking of five Brazilian ships concerned Argentina almost as vitally as Brazil.

"None of the sinkings of neutral or American ships up to now has had the same gravity for the nations in this part of the continent as those just suffered by Brazil," La Nacion said.

"With these, the war has drawn closer to our coasts in a form which obliges us to consider all the possibilities which pertain to the position taken by the Americas in the world struggle."

Lights Flash on Briefly.

Two clusters of lights in front of the main Post Office on Massachusetts avenue flashed on once in the midst of the blackout test, then quickly were turned off.

Within 15 minutes after the commencement of the test was announced at the Water Gate, the audience had left the scene, after seeing less than two acts of the four-act opera.

When the announcement was made from the barge, bright lights were turned on from the top of the amphitheater to permit quick and orderly exit. For a brief moment the audience appeared to be dazed, then quickly swung into motion.

'What Can I Do?'

Suggestions for Those Who Want Sincerely to Aid the War Program

"If it hadn't been for the Red Cross nurse's aides I don't know what I'd have done," said a patient recently released from a Washington hospital.

"I shiver to think of the position I would have been in if I had been helpless," he added. "There just weren't enough nurses.

"What people don't seem to realize," he went on, "is that its war-time in our hospitals right now. You don't have to wait for a bombing. The hospitals are filled up, and they're short of help."

The Red Cross is recruiting nurse's aides not for the future but for the present emergency. Every hour of work put in by a nurse's aide not only makes her more qualified to serve if air raids come but is a direct contribution to the helpless sick right now.

"On our floor," the former patient said, "there was one graduate nurse and 19 patients, many of whom were utterly helpless."

Officials Praise Improvement in Blackout Test

Many Places Ready After Receiving Tips On 'Surprise' Alarm

WASHINGTON'S BLACKOUT as it looked from the air—see Editorial Page.

Washington's second "surprise" blackout last night, though far less than a surprise in many quarters, was a considerable improvement over last week's test.

Commissioner Guy Mason and Col. Lemuel Bolles, civilian defense director, who viewed the blackout from an airplane, expressed satisfaction with the results of the test. Judged from the standpoint of perfection, however, last night's blackout was not satisfactory. Commissioner Mason said, but from a standpoint of improvement it was gratifying.

63 Violations Noted.

There were 63 violations of last night's blackout noted by police. They are to be presented to the corporation counsel for decision whether to prosecute.

More than 100 cases were listed by police during the August 10 test, but they were not prosecuted because of inadequate regulations. Street lights still are a big obstacle to completely and quickly blackening out Washington, the Commissioner said. Twelve minutes elapsed last night after the alarm before street lighting was extinguished, though even this, Commissioner Mason said, was an improvement over August 10, when 20 minutes elapsed.

It was indicated this would be one of the major matters discussed this afternoon when civilian defense officials were to hold a staff meeting.

Memorial Highway Lighted.

The Mount Vernon Memorial Highway was another brilliantly lighted flaw in the blackout. Commissioner Mason said, a perfect guidepost along the river pointing toward Washington.

An official of the Park Police, who are responsible for extinguishing the lights during tests or raids, said the lights had been turned off. He admitted, however, he had received a report that the lights had not been extinguished, but said a dependable man had been assigned the task.

News of the test had spread by rumor throughout the city long before the alert, but the Air-raid wardens and auxiliary police were patrolling streets in many sectors before they had been officially warned. Pedestrians were warning friends by 9 o'clock that they're going to be a blackout tonight.

At Union Station, where lights did not go off during the last test until Commissioner Guy Mason ordered them turned out some seven minutes after the signal had sounded, lights shone through the entrance of the building before last night's warning was sounded.

Water Gate Audience Dispersed.

At the Water Gate, a performance of "Aida" was halted at 9:30 and 5,000 persons in the audience were warned that a blackout was in the offing and were told to disperse, in accordance with orders of William J. Mileham, chief air-raid warden. There was divergence in the methods of handling large crowds, however. At Griffith Stadium, those watching the night baseball game remained in their seats in the stands, as ordered by United States Civilian Defense Director James M. Landis.

At Glen Echo Park, rides were halted as much as 15 minutes before the alarm.

Officials at the Capitol Theater, without giving the source of their information, said they knew yesterday afternoon that the test was coming and were prepared for it. No one saw a fire show at downtown theaters, however, as those caught outside by the alarm were herded into lobbies to await the all-clear.

The sirens sounded at 9:48 p.m. and the all clear did not come until 10:33.

Downtown store windows and signs normally lighted were darkened, street lights flicked off and traffic signals followed.

'Leak' Is Mystery.

Civilian defense officials today were in the dark as to the source of the "leak," which spread advance information about the blackout so widely in the city. Blackout plans, it was pointed out, must be made known in advance to the interceptor

Man Is Convicted Of Staying in Street During Blackout

Charles Lee Parker, 43, colon, was convicted in Municipal Court today on a charge of failing to stay out of the street during last night's blackout, the only case to come into court.

Judge John P. McMahon deferred sentencing until later in the day in order to study the regulation on such offenses. The maximum penalty is a fine of $300 or 90 days in jail or both. Parker also was charged with assaulting an air raid warden, Eugene T. Jackson, colored, of 641 1/2 L street N.W.

A spokesman for the local civilian defense headquarters said there was little possibility that his office could discover the source of the "leak," but added that particular pains will be taken to keep such information confidential in the future.

State-Wide Blackout in Virginia.

The blackout was State-wide in Virginia, between 8:30 p.m. and 1 a.m., with the exception of Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria, which co-operated with the "surprise" test in the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in nearby Maryland also joined in the District's test.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey faded into darkness for 25 minutes at 9:31 o'clock last night in what was described as this country's greatest practice blackout.

Residents had been warned the test was coming, but the day and hour were guarded as a surprise.

It was a dimout rather than a blackout at Union Station. Light, shaded only by the darkened portico, shone through entrances in front and at each end of the building.

Occasionally a train pulling into the station sent a bright shaft of illumination from its headlight through the waiting room. In the yards beyond the terminal, floodlight remained on, lights on the transformer tower were not extinguished and signal lamps shone brightly.

Lights Flash on Briefly.

Two clusters of lights in front of the main Post Office on Massachusetts avenue flashed on once in the midst of the blackout test, then quickly were turned off.

Wardens took their stations to warn spectators that total darkness would follow. Lt. H. T. Miskell of the United States Park Police and 10 or more policemen hustled the crowd into parked buses or steered them away from the scene. Several patrons asked H. D. Talbot, in charge of the performance, if the opera would be finished after the "all-clear" signal, or if their tickets would be honored another night. His answer in each case was "no."

The last bus to leave the Water Gate was on Constitution avenue in front of the Munitions Building when the sirens wailed. Passengers were ordered out and into the building, where they remained in darkness throughout the test, despite the fact that blackout curtains were noted on windows.

Guards on duty walked through the crowd with flashlights warning against smoking.

Glen Echo Prepared.

Leonard B. Schloss, vice president and general manager of Glen Echo, said he had heard a report in Washington in the afternoon that the test was "pretty definitely" scheduled for the evening. He declined to give the source of his tip.

Mr. Schloss was so certain that he ordered instructions on what the park patrons were to do in case of blackout read over a loudspeaker system in the center of the midway at 8:30 o'clock. They began by informing the patrons that there may be an "air-raid test tonight or this week or this month," and went on to say that every one was to seek shelter, not to light cigarettes, etc.

Immediately after these brief instructions were read, Mr. Schloss ordered his private siren in the park sounded. This was noise to the nine air-raid wardens to get ready for a "surprise" blackout. This came about 9:32.

Within five minutes after this sound, the operators of some of the rides were clearing them of passengers.

At 9:40 o'clock the announcement on what the patrons were to do "in case of a test tonight" was read over the loud-speaker system again.

Mr. Schloss said he got the "blue

Parley Called To Shape Tax Exemption Bill

Senate D. C. Unit To Meet Friday With City Officials

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The scope of a new tax exemption law for charitable, religious and educational institutions may begin to take shape at an executive session of the Senate District Committee with city officials, called by Chairman McCarran for 2 p.m. Friday.

Senator McCarran called the conference after bringing to a close yesterday afternoon several days of public hearings, at which a variety of amendments were suggested by witnesses who felt the pending bill does not bring all appropriately exempt institutions within its terms. Spokesmen for the Catholic archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington and for the National Catholic Welfare Conference appealed to the committee yesterday afternoon to clarify the definitions of religious and educational institutions. They urged the committee to bear in mind that legislation enacted by Congress for Washington may be used as a pattern by the States.

Scientific Groups Heard.

The committee also heard witnesses yesterday from the American Chemical Society, the National Institution of Washington and the Brookings Institution on the exemption status of such educational and scientific agencies.

Msgr. Joseph M. Nelligan told the committee the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, in the pending bill, both as Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington and as chancellor of Catholic University. Msgr. Nelligan was accompanied by Msgr. Michael J. Reedy, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, who presented several amendments and explained why the conference believes they are necessary to grant proper exemption to religious and educational institutions. The definition of charitable institutions was described as satisfactory.

Supporting earlier testimony that houses of study established by religious orders near Catholic University should be exempt, Msgr. Reedy said such study houses represent a university system in existence for centuries.

Cites Oxford, Cambridge.

"The various colleges that comprise the famous universities of the Old World, such as Oxford and Cambridge, each a hall or house of studies, many of them centuries old, are an instance in point," said Msgr. Reedy.

Declaring that the canon law of the church requires that they be set up by religious communities, Msgr. Reedy said such houses of study obviously belong around the modern university, and added:

"Their presence here in Washington has been extremely greatly in making Washington the site of one of the great universities of the United States and of the world."

Msgr. Reedy said there are two possible theories of approach to tax exemption. One holds that exemption has an entirely independent status in institutions because they perform a function the Government otherwise would have to perform. This is the theory he said local tax officials adhered to in many of their decisions.

"The other theory," he continued, "holds that the exemption constitutes a recognition of the separate and independent sphere in which religion, charity and education have the right under our philosophy of government to operate. We think that neither theory should disregard the scientific and educational philosophy of tax exemption would embrace both. It seems to us, however, that the second theory is essential to good and proper government."

Annual Report Plan Opposed.

The Catholic Welfare Conference also opposed the action proposing to file annually with the Commissioners a report showing the purposes for which the property was used during the year. Belief was expressed that such reports are not required by the Federal Income Tax Act. The educational character of the American Chemical Society has been recognized by Government agencies, Dr. Charles L. Parsons told the committee. Accompanied by Attorney Elisha Hanson, Dr. Parsons also outlined the scientific and educational character of the society's work and assistance it renders the Government.

The arguments for exemption of the National Academy of Sciences were presented by Frank D. Jewett, who pointed out its property on Constitution avenue was a gift of the Carnegie Foundation and that the bulk of its operating trust funds came from that source. The academy was created by an act of Congress, he said, and was designated to include in its work any surveys or investigations requested by Government agencies.

The work of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, which carries on scientific research here and in other parts of the country, was outlined to the committee by Dan-nebury Bush.

Harry S. Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, endorsed the principles of the bill, but explained the Federation has not passed on the details of the measure. Voicing his individual opinion, Mr. Wender said if wholly national organizations are to be exempt Congress should recognize that in fixing the Federal payment toward District expenses.

Catoe Gets Death Chair Stay, But Draft Is His Only Worry

Jarvis R. Catoe, accused of five murder-criminal assaults, came up in District Court today to get a stay of execution, but his real concern appeared to be over getting his occupational questionnaire returned to Local Board No. 9.

As Justice David A. Pine was postponing his execution from Friday to September 25, because the Court of Appeals has not ruled on his appeal, the 36-year-old colored man began anxiously pulling the coat sleeves of his attorney, George J. Boden.

"Here's something important," Catoe told him in a low voice. "Here's my occupational questionnaire, and I think it's overdue. Will you take it for me?"

On the questionnaire Catoe informed the Government he is fitted for the job of Diesel engine operator, waiter, embalmer, electrician, elevator operator, plasterer and personal manager. His present job is "in jail," he wrote.

Catoe was convicted last fall of the murder-criminal assault of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz in her apartment at 1901 Sixteenth street N.W. in March, 1941.

Catoe also is accused of the murder of Miss Jesse Elizabeth Strief, whose body was discovered June 16, 1941, in a garage in the rear of 1717 Q street N.W., and the murder of three colored women.

The execution of Bernard Lee Williams, 21, colored, convicted of criminally assaulting a 17-year-old colored girl, also was postponed by Justice Pine from Friday until September 25, because the appellate tribunal also has not ruled on his appeal.

Wardens took their stations to warn spectators that total darkness would follow. Lt. H. T. Miskell of the United States Park Police and 10 or more policemen hustled the crowd into parked buses or steered them away from the scene. Several patrons asked H. D. Talbot, in charge of the performance, if the opera would be finished after the "all-clear" signal, or if their tickets would be honored another night.

Acute Food Shortage
About End of 1943
Predicted by Fulmer

Says Nothing Is Being Done; WPB Group Urges Allocation of Meat

The United States and the other United Nations are headed straight for an acute food shortage. Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee said today, and nothing is being done about it. It will come about the end of 1943, the outspoken Carolina farmer predicted, and "the officials and bureaucrats handling the program now won't do anything about it until it smacks them right in the face."

Rep. Fulmer said he based his belief on a growing shortage of farm labor and what he described as an increasing tendency to disregard the problems of the farmer. Meanwhile, the War Production Board's Food Requirements Committee headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard recommended Government allocation of meats to butcher shops and other retail outlets to permit equitable distribution of limited supplies.

Fair Share Sought. The plan, the committee reported to WPB, would tend to give every area a fair share and prevent some sections such as those close to meat-producing centers and others with high price ceilings from obtaining larger portions.

The recommendation resulted from an unprecedented war demand for meats during a seasonal shortage that developed in several sections of the country, particularly in the East. Some packers claim that the Government policy of maintaining ceilings on prices of meats and none on livestock has contributed to the shortage. They explain that several packing plants

Wickard to Broadcast Tonight on Meat Price Ceiling

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard will make a radio address over the Blue Network at 10:30 o'clock tonight on the pressing issue of a price ceiling on live meat animals. Such a ceiling would affect the present upward price trend of meat bought in the retail market. Mr. Wickard's talk may be heard locally over Station WMAL.

The Secretary also will discuss the problem of the 100 per cent parity ceiling on farm products in the emergency price bill. Mr. Wickard's associates described the speech as "unusually frank."

have been forced to close due to financial losses. This claim is disputed by the Agriculture Department, which points to reports that marketings of livestock have been at a record level for this time of year.

The committee recommended giving each distributing agency a certain percentage of the meat sold in a similar past period.

The Office of Price Administration was advised by the committee to devise a consumer rationing plan for use if the allocations system and some readjustments in existing price ceilings on meats failed to accomplish an equitable distribution.

Labor Shortage Blamed. Representative Fulmer asserted that despite governmental pleas for bumper crops to furnish food for the United Nations, the war food program is falling down because farmers simply cannot get the labor they need to raise big crops. He attributes this condition to the draft and the attractive pay offered by industry.

The only solution he could see, he said, was to boost farmers' income to permit the payment of wages that could compete with off-the-farm pay. To this end, Mr. Fulmer said he planned to begin hearings soon on legislation to revise the parity formula designed to give farmers a purchasing power in proportion to that of other groups. "It is obvious," he asserted, "that the farmer is not getting a fair deal now. Farmers constitute about 30 per cent of the population but their share of the national income is about 12 1/2 per cent."

Distribution Costly. Upward revision of farm prices, Representative Fulmer said, need not necessarily bring about higher prices to the consuming public. "The farmer is not getting the money the consumer pays for farm products," he said. "Most of it goes into a costly and unnecessary marketing and distribution system which well could be done away with."

Representative Fulmer expressed the opinion Leon Henderson and the Office of Price Administration "are hell-bent and determined to destroy agriculture and the small independent business concerns and their employees."

Consul L. W. Franklin Vacationing in Virginia

*Diplomat and Family Attend Christening;
Miss Wrightson to Be Married Oct. 10*

Few diplomats of the United States can enjoy vacations—even briefly—in their homeland this year, but among those few fortunates are the United States Consul at Niagara Falls, Canada, Mr. Lynn W. Franklin. Being at a post rather close to his home, he and Mrs. Franklin with three of their children are enjoying this week at Fall Hill, their historic place near Fredericksburg, Va. They came down in time for the christening ceremony Sunday of Mrs. Franklin's little niece, who was baptized Jessie and is the daughter of Lt. Frederick Robinson, Jr., U. S. N., and Mrs. Robinson. The ceremony took place Sunday afternoon in St. George's Episcopal Church in Fredericksburg and was followed by tea at Fall Hill. Mrs. Frederick Robinson, grandmother of Jessie, was among those at the ceremony and acted as hostess at Fall Hill afterward.

Fall Hill is one of the very old estates in that section of Virginia, built for Betty Washington Thomson, aunt of Gen. George Washington, who went to live there as a bride. Mrs. Robinson, Sr., is a descendant of the Thomsons and the place descends in each generation to the child bearing the name of Butler. Mrs. Franklin before her marriage was Miss Butler Robinson and she will inherit the place from her mother.

Miss Appleby Engaged to Wed L. H. Finley

*Agriculture Bureau
Official's Daughter
To Become Bride*

The Undersecretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Paul H. Appleby have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Appleby, to Pvt. Lawrence Harris Finley, U. S. A., of Detroit. The announcement was made yesterday at the luncheon given by Mrs. James D. Le Cron, wife of the chief of the distribution branch of the Agricultural Marketing Administration. The luncheon was strictly an Agricultural Department party, with Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President and former Secretary of Agriculture, as the ranking guest. Also at the luncheon were Mrs. Claude R. Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and their daughter, Miss Betty Wickard, whose marriage to Ensign Harry Robert Bryant, U. S. N., will take place Saturday.

Miss Appleby and Pvt. Finley have no time set for their wedding, but it will be in the very near future. Miss Appleby recently joined her parents here, arriving from Honolulu, where she was teaching in the pre-school nursery of the University of Hawaii. She was graduated from Grinnell College and the Merrill-Palmer School. Pvt. Finley, whose parents live in Detroit but were formerly of Flint, Mich., took his bachelor's and his master's degrees at the University of Michigan.

Miss Potts and Mr. Correll are seniors in Michigan State College. The wedding will take place in September.

Miss Dora Rowe Wed to Lt. Digby

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dora Mae Rowe of Brentwood, Md., and Lt. Robert H. Digby of Lansing, Mich., the ceremony taking place August 13 in the Chevy Chase Methodist Church, with the Rev. W. Harold Snape officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Rowe of Brentwood and Lt. Digby is the son of Mr. Charles Digby of Lansing and the late Mrs. Digby. After the ceremony the couple left for an extended wedding trip.

MRS. WILLIAM NELSON SEAVER.
The former Miss Addie Louise Ward, daughter of Mrs. Allen Luther Bennett, and Mr. Seaver, recently married, are at home at 1908 First Street N.W. Mr. Seaver is formerly of Asheville, N. C. —Underwood & Underwood Photo.

Miss Glenna Potts Engaged to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chester Potts announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Glenna Irene Potts, to Mr. Melvin W. Correll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Correll of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Miss Potts and Mr. Correll are seniors in Michigan State College. The wedding will take place in September.

Guest in Capital

Mrs. Charles L. Tomlinson of High Point, N. C., has been the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buel Avery at their home on Loughborough road.

A woman who for 50 years was housekeeper for W. T. Stead, the famous editor, died recently in England.

Miss Mitchell to Wed T. R. Hollcroft, Jr.

Mrs. Charles Edward Mitchell of Washington announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Barbara Chatfield Mitchell, to Mr. Temple Rice Hollcroft, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollcroft of Aurora, N. Y.

Miss Mitchell is the daughter of the late Mr. Charles Edward Mitchell and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frederick Elmore Mitchell of Nashville, Tenn. She attended St. Mary's School in Raleigh, N. C., and Gunston Hall.

Mr. Hollcroft attended Phillips-Exeter Academy and Harvard University and before entering the armed services was an employe of The Evening Star. The wedding will take place later this month in Christ Church, Georgetown.

By the Way—

Beth Blaine

Perhaps you have been wanting to do something really big in the war effort. And everything you have read about and heard about seemed to require such long hours and so much study and work that you just don't see how you can manage it with your regular job or your home life if you have a husband and a baby and a house. Well, here's how!

MRS. J. MERRILL WRIGHT, JR.

The AWVS is giving a training course in fingerprinting. The entire course takes only six hours. And if you wonder whether fingerprinting is important or not, just consider how much time and effort the FBI spends on it! And listen to what Mrs. J. Merrill Wright, Jr., chairman of the fingerprinting department of the AWVS, has to say about it: "The urgent need for expert fingerprinters is little understood by most of us. We know babies are fingerprinted in the hospital—in case of trouble—and criminals are fingerprinted, so the idea has these connotations." Mrs. Wright went on, "Suppose there was a bombing—the next day there would be a hurry call for hundreds of fingerprinters to cope with the emergency. Suppose there were a hurried evacuation of schools on the threat of an air raid, and your child or mine were lost in the confusion, or hurt, how easily identity could be established by fingerprints.

"In case of disaster, women versed in fingerprinting may be called to go with ambulances to identify shocked or helpless persons who are unable to give an account of themselves. These things do happen—we hope they may not happen here, but we should be prepared for the emergency. If women knew how vital the need, hundreds would volunteer."

Mrs. Wright has in her files a letter from Maj. Edward J. Kelly, chief of police, expressing his "sincere thanks and deep appreciation for the efficient services rendered by members of your organization to the Bureau of Identification." Maj. Kelly also said in his letter: "I think, and it is my opinion, that there should be universal fingerprinting. This would prove to be of much value, help and assistance in many respects."

Even at present there is work waiting for every qualified worker in this job and the need would be increased a hundred-fold in case of emergency.

But, to get back to the practical facts of how you can learn fingerprinting. The first thing you have to do is to get yourself fingerprinted (as does every volunteer AWVS worker. You do this right at the AWVS headquarters, on Florida avenue. Then you take the course there and you get your practical training by helping with some of the actual work there, too. There are on call at the AWVS over 50 trained workers. Col. Lemuel Bolles and the fingerprinting department of the AWVS have highly commended the workers on their efficiency. Only recently these women were asked to fingerprint employes of the Mayflower Hotel. They also fingerprinted employes of the Eastman Kodak Co. Two copies of every fingerprint were made—one to go on file with the FBI, the other to go to Rochester to the company. In case of local concerns one copy goes, of course, to the FBI and the other to the Justice Department. The fingerprints of the AWVS workers (which are taken for the purpose of personal identification) are kept on file at the Police Department.

Before Mrs. Wright took over the chairmanship of the fingerprinting at the AWVS she took all the training and has had a good many hours of the practical work, too. She's a most attractive and executive woman. About a year and a half ago, just after her marriage, she came to Washington with her husband—who is with United States Steel—and she's been doing more than her share of war work.

On her committee she has such important women as Mrs. Coert De Bois, who has taken all the training courses and now gives instruction; Mrs. Clyde Ollis, who is in charge of scheduling the workers; Mrs. William D. Osgood, Mrs. George Paddock (wife of the Congressman), Mr. William Pierson, Mrs. Thornton Lewis, Mrs. Lewis Sanders—and loads of others.

Weddings of Interest To Washington Society

*Miss Sarah Byrd Allison Becomes Bride
Of Mr. John W. Unmack at St. Albans*

Mr. Arthur L. Hitchcock escorted Miss Sarah Byrd Allison to the altar in St. Alban's Episcopal Church early last evening for her marriage to Mr. John William Unmack, which took place at 7 o'clock, with the Rev. Cyril N. Sturup officiating. White gladioluses and palms decorated the altar for the ceremony and Mr. Walter Nash, organist of the church, played the wedding music. Miss Louise Hart sang solo selections. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Simpson Byrd Allison of Potosi, Mo., and the late Mr. Allison, and Mr. Unmack is the son of Mrs. Kaj Unmack of Washington and the late Mr. Unmack.

A gown of cream marquisette was worn by the bride, with an heirloom Brussels lace veil of finger-tip length. She was attended by her younger sister, Miss Margaret E. Allison of St. Louis, as maid of honor, who wore apple green marquisette and carried a bouquet of peach gladioluses.

The other attendants were Miss Louise Ewald of Washington and Mrs. W. Harvey Thirloway of Niagara Falls, N. Y. They were dressed in pink marquisette and carried lavender gladioluses.

Mr. Vincent Hellwig of Washington was the best man and Mr. Greenville Millard of Washington and Mr. Richard Curry of Oklahoma City served as ushers.

A reception after the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Allison receiving with the mother of the bridegroom and Mrs. Frank Jones of Rio de Janeiro, aunt of the bridegroom. On their return from a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Unmack will reside in Silver Spring.

The marriage of Miss Norma Gensberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin M. Gensberg, to Mr. Jake Fleishman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Fleishman, took place at 11:35 o'clock this morning in the Willard Hotel. The Rev. Henry Segal officiated. Mr. Gensberg gave his daughter (See WEDDINGS, Page B-4.)

6,000 Apartment Units Slated in Portland, Oreg.

By the Associated Press. Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, said yesterday the Maritime Commission had decided "to meet every demand for housing" in Portland, Oreg., and would start immediately construction of 6,000 apartment units in the city instead of 2,000 as originally agreed upon. The commission previously agreed to start construction of 2,000 units in August, 2,000 in September and 2,000 in October.

Club Plans Room Registry For Kin of Servicemen

By Frances Lide

A sort of room registry of reasonably priced accommodations available for mothers and wives visiting servicemen here is to be set up as a September project of the National Eleanor M. Brackenridge Club.

The group decided to make up the list after some of its members visiting sons or husbands stationed in other cities found it extremely difficult to locate suitable rooms within the reach of a serviceman's salary.

In order to estimate how many rooms will be needed, the club is inviting soldiers or sailors who plan to have their mothers or wives here during September to write Miss Estelle Howard at 1225 Talbert street S.E.

In the meantime, members are inquiring among their friends for possible vacancies. A good many accommodations already have been promised.

The room registry is the first of four gestures of friendship to the men in uniform which the club is planning for the month of September.

Aim of the group since its founding has been to carry out the principles of friendship as expounded by the late Miss Brackenridge, Texas educator and philanthropist for whom it was named and whose anniversary is observed as "friendship day" in the State of Texas.

Eager to have at least a small part in the war effort, District Children of the American Revolution have been doing a variety of odd jobs this summer—from bandage rolling to collecting old newspapers and other salvage. The State society also is making plans for its fall activities when regular meetings are resumed.

Major project will be the raising of funds for an ambulance—with an autumn style show scheduled as the first benefit.

The purchase of war bonds also is on the CAR war work program. Mrs. Frank Heller, who heads the District of Columbia CAR Chapter, is doing her bit at the District Red Cross Chapter House as a member of the Staff Assistants Corps.

Although several members of the Washington Soroptimist Club are on vacations this month, they expect to be back in town by September 2 for the opening of the fall program of weekly luncheons at the Willard Hotel.

Miss Estelle Zirklin, the president, is sending cards from New England, while the second vice president, Miss Edna Connolly, is enjoying a vacation in the Pocono Mountains. Friends also hear occasionally from Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis from her vacation lodge at The Glen in New York State.

Dr. Margaret E. Miller recently returned from Eaglesmere, Pa., and Mrs. Parkie Hyson from a vacation on the Great Lakes.

The club is in recess during July and August but Soroptimists find it difficult to give up the habit of getting together for Wednesday luncheons. So an informal group usually gathers at the Willard—with out-of-town members frequently included.

AAUW Group Plans Fete for Officers

A group of recent graduates who are members of the American Association of University Women will hold a dance Saturday at the AAUW club house for officers in the service and some of their friends.

Miss Ella Harlee is chairman of the group and Miss Riley Moore chairman of the dance. The committee in charge includes Miss Martha Pearson, Miss Katherine Housch, Miss Jewel Doran, Miss Louise Alexander and Miss Rosanne Doran.

Weddings

in marriage, and she wore a suit of light blue wool with a blue hat and a corsage of orchids. She was unattended and Mr. Abe Genderson served as best man for the bridegroom.

A wedding breakfast at the Willard followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fleishman left for a mountain trip. On their return they will make their home at 2826 Connecticut avenue N.W.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Elmslie in Takoma Park was the scene August 12 of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Antoinette Elmslie, to Mr. Samuel Andrew Yakush, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Andrew Yakush of Pittsburgh.

Cadet blue velvet was worn by the bride for the ceremony, at which the Rev. Charles S. Longacre officiated, and she was given in marriage by her father. Her hat and accessories were brown, and she wore a corsage of American beauty roses.

Mrs. William K. Dennis, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor, and Mr. Dennis was best man.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding and the small reception which followed included Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. McKay of New York and Miss Ruth Yakush of Pittsburgh, sisters and brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mr. Yakush is a junior in the theological department of the Washington Missionary College, and his bride also was a student at the college. After September 1, when they will return from Pittsburgh, they will be at home at 506 Tullip avenue, Takoma Park.

Another Book of Poems By Masters Is Published

By the Associated Press.

PRAIRIE CITY, Ill., Aug. 19—Here near the banks of the famed Spoon River a second book of Edgar Lee Masters' unpublished poems today rolled off the second-hand press of James A. Decker, who in three years built his tiny shop into a publishing house of national reputation.

The new volume—entirely hand-set—contains 35 poems about Illinois and the Middle West penned by the man who put the Spoon River and this region on the literary map. It is titled "Along the Illinois." Mr. Decker has published a previous volume of Masters' verse, "Illinois Poems," and several collections by lesser known authors. Although his 30-year-old press and his type cases occupy a space about 15 feet square in the back end of the drug store in this village of 574 inhabitants, Mr. Decker believes his shop is "the largest publishing house in America devoted exclusively to the printing of poetry."

Walker Denounces Personal Ambitions Which Slow Victory

Knights of Columbus Hear Postal Chief at Convention Banquet

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—The "contemptible spirit of personal and group dictatorships" is responsible for "confusions and stoppages which slow the onward rush of our overwhelming triumph," said Postmaster General Frank C. Walker in an address before the Knights of Columbus Supreme Council last night.
Speaking at the convention banquet, the Postmaster General bitterly attacked what he called "the utterly unpatriotic ambitions of persons or of groups, who with mingling words about national interests, foster their own designs while our people engage in a death struggle with foreign enemies."
The council called up as its first order of business today the election of a supreme treasurer and five members of its board of directors. The election for treasurer was made necessary by the death early this year of D. J. Callahan of Washington, D. C., who was succeeded by Francis J. Heazel of Asheville, N. C., as interim appointee.
Members of the board of directors whose terms expire this year are: William J. Guste of New Orleans, Francis Fauteux of Montreal, Ray T. Miller of Cleveland, Gervase T. Murphy of Calumet, Mich., and Michael F. Walsh of Brooklyn.
The council heard reports that its membership had a net gain of 9,871 during the last year, bringing the total to 424,823. Total assets of $52,461,533.84 were reported.
The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, extended the council last night the blessings of Pope Pius XII and told the members they "have carried high the flaming torches of the supreme loves of human life: Love of God, love of home, love of country."

Mrs. Caraway Sees Fight Over Presidential Powers

By the Associated Press.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 19.—Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas said last night there was a "bitter battle" in prospect when Congress attempted to regain wartime powers granted the executive branch.
The Nation's only woman Senator told the Arkansas Farmers' Union Convention that "many believe that when peace comes there will be an effort to retain these wartime controls."
"There is in the making a bitter battle over this situation and the inevitable effort by Congress to retain its power," she asserted.
"Congress cannot run this war. But it has done its duty. It has given the administration every law and dollar that it has asked."
"Congress has been subjected to much criticism. Some of it has been justified, and some of it has not. Some of the complaints against Congress have been based upon the belief that it is responsible for all errors of omission or commission in matters affecting our Nation. This is not true."

Objector Refusing to Take Army Oath Applies for Writ

By the Associated Press.
LEAVENWORTH, Kans., Aug. 19.—Alfred Goodwin Billings, 31, said "I do not" when fellow inductees responded with "I do" to the Army oath.
Now he's battling in Federal Court for the privilege of occupying a Federal penitentiary cell rather than the Army's prison.
The former University of Texas economics teacher and Phi Beta Kappa honor student told Judge Richard J. Hopkins yesterday he was a conscientious objector, but his Delphos, Kans., draft board didn't believe him.
He reported at Fort Leavenworth with other inductees, he told the court hearing his habeas corpus petition, and after medical and aptitude tests refused to take the oath of allegiance.
Army officers said he was in the Army anyhow. Billings refused to be fingerprinted and went to the guardhouse.
If the court rules he's not in the Army, his case could be presented to a Federal grand jury for possible prosecution as a draft evader. The judge gave attorneys three days to file briefs.
"If you know you are going to be punished, why do you want to get in the civil courts?" Judge Hopkins inquired.
"Sir, I am like Socrates drinking the hemlock."

Supper Date Delayed Year to Bag Jap Planes

By the Associated Press.
SAN DIEGO, Calif. — George (Dutch) Jaeger was late for supper—one year late—but all's forgiven because while his wife waited the 29-year-old airman bagged six Japanese planes.
Mr. Jaeger just returned from Burma where he helped the American Volunteer Group, the Flying Tigers, shoot down Nipponese war birds.
"The day he left San Diego to go to Burma," said Mrs. Jaeger, "he called me and said he'd be a little late for supper. It was a year before he arrived home for that meal."

Yeoman Killed by Plane

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19 (AP).—Evans T. Jones, 25, yeoman, third class, United States Navy, died in the United States Naval Hospital here yesterday an hour after he was struck by an airplane on a runway near the seaplane hangar at the naval aircraft factory. His home is at Oak Hill, Ohio.

Russians Place Nazi Losses in 3 Months At 1,250,000 Men

Enemy Reserve Strength Is Drained From West, Moscow Declares

MOSCOW, Aug. 19.—The Germans have lost 1,250,000 men in three months, 480,000 of them killed, and are draining reserve strength from all Western Europe to bolster the drive into Russia, the Soviet Information Bureau announced in a special communique last night.

The period for the announced casualties was between May 15 and August 15.

Soviet losses for the same period were given as 606,000 dead, wounded and missing.

The Germans were reported to have lost 3,300 tanks, 4,000 guns of various caliber and not less than 4,000 planes since May 15. Soviet losses were listed as 2,240 tanks, 3,152 guns and 2,198 planes.

The Russians announced last June that the Germans had lost 10,000,000 men in the first year of the war, of which 4,500,000 were killed.

Nazi Superiority Admitted.

But despite these losses the Germans were admitted to have "considerable superiority in troops and equipment on several sectors of the front," because of the transfer of 22 divisions from France, Belgium and Holland to the Russian front.

Another 70 divisions, the announcement said, were mobilized by the Germans for anti-Russian service in Italy, Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia. Compulsory mobilization also has been carried out in Nazi-occupied Poland and Czechoslovakia, the Russians said.

The Russians acknowledged severe industrial and territorial losses in the Don Basin and the Caucasus where the Germans have made great strides, but said this offensive was "at a much slower tempo than in the first period of the war."

In the north the Russians said they were conducting the offensive operations and "annihilating tens of thousands of Germans" on the Bryansk, Western Kalinin and northwestern fronts.

Considered Significant.

The Russian announcement was made after disclosure of the joint conversations between Premier Stalin of Russia and Britain's Prime Minister Churchill, and at a time when the official press urged both Britain and the United States to show their "power and energy" to aid Russia.

Because of this agitation for the Allies to open a second front in Western Europe, the announcement was considered significant, especially the passages dealing with the reported transfer of 22 Nazi divisions from Western Europe.

The announcement made no effort to estimate the number of Nazi divisions still in France and the other coastal countries.

"With this extra manpower, and having brought up all their main reserves," the announcement said, "the Germans have considerable superiority in troops and equipment on several sectors of the front."

They have succeeded in pressing back our troops to an important extent, and have captured a number of regions and towns of the Soviet Union.

Large Areas Captured.

"The German Fascist invaders have captured large territories and towns from an industrial point of view in the Don region and on the Kuban such as Voroshilovgrad, Novocheerkassk, Shakhty, Rostov, Armavir and Malkop.

"Although the greater part of the population of the occupied regions was evacuated as well as industrial equipment, and everything that could not be evacuated was destroyed, the Soviet Union has suffered serious losses.

"Despite the fact that the enemy has thrown into battle all his reserves of manpower and an enormous quantity of equipment, his offensive operations in the Voronezh and southern directions alone are at a much slower tempo than in the first period of the war.

"In the south alone the Germans at a cost of tremendous losses are able to advance to a considerable extent.

"As far as other fronts are concerned it is evident that the German troops not only were unable to develop offensive operations, but on the contrary active military operations in the Bryansk, Western Kalinin and northwestern directions are being conducted by Soviet troops who are annihilating tens of thousands of Germans.

Heavy Enemy Losses.

"During the past months in fierce battles on the Soviet-German front the Red Army inflicted enormous losses in manpower and military equipment upon the German, Italian, Rumanian and Hungarian invaders.

"During three months of active military operations this summer, from May 15 to August 15, the Germans have lost 1,250,000 men and officers. Of this number not less than 480,000 were killed. In addition they have lost 4,000 guns of various caliber and not less than 4,000 planes.

"Soviet losses during the same period are 606,000 men dead, wounded and missing; 2,240 tanks, 3,152 guns of various caliber and 2,198 planes."

The Germans announced August 12 that 57,000 Russian prisoners had been captured in the Don River bend to raise the total taken since January 1 to 1,044,741.

The Soviet announcement said this German figure was "a fantastic and ridiculous Fascist invention."

City Cowboy Finally Gets His Steers

CHICAGO.—For eight hours, police and truck drivers sought unsuccessfully to round up five steers that scampered from an overturned truck to a nearby prairie. The police came with a patrol wagon and the truck drivers tried to herd them into a hastily built corral of trucks.

Then some one sent for a cowboy, who arrived on a pinto pony and was bedecked in checkered shirt, 10-gallon hat, high boots and chaps. He lassoed those steers right pronto—one steer every 60 minutes.

Japs Believed Unable To Set Up Air Fields In Outer Aleutians

Some Think Nipponese May Have Run Into Unexpected Snag

By WILLIAM WORDEN, Associated Press War Correspondent.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 17 (Delayed).—Failure of American bomber pilots to encounter land-based aerial opposition in their raids on Kiska and other Japanese-held islands of the outer Aleutians led to belief today the enemy has been unable to establish landing fields in those islands.

An officer of the Army Air Force said the Japanese were using single-engine fighters based neither on carriers nor on land, but this apparently was the total extent of their air defense.

Reasons for the enemy's failure to create usable runways either on the Kiska beaches or in the rocky uplands are in doubt here, inasmuch as it is known the attempt has been made.

Army sources, however, believe the Japanese were surprised by the strength of United States bombing in the face of long distances, fogs, high winds and hazardous flying conditions.

No Bombing Since June.

The difficulties of such flights apparently are too much for seabased Japanese bombers, inasmuch as no effort has been made since early June to bomb or strafe American bases in the Aleutians.

American bombing planes, on the other hand, have been flying almost daily to drop tons of explosives on the Japanese as they labored to blast living quarters, ground defenses and runways from the inhospitable Kiska terrain.

Some persons familiar with the Aleutians' peculiar geological formations believe the Japs may have run into an unexpected snag.

These experts say the Kiska rock is extremely hard and glasslike and may have proved too much for excavating efforts, forcing the runway builders to fill in depressions in their projected airfields rather than knocking off the humps.

This would be a long and laborious process. It barely is possible the enemy never may be able under war conditions to create a runway long and smooth enough for use by bombers, even if he is able to hang on to the islands indefinitely.

The air force officer who reported the Japanese making emergency use of single float seaplanes said he believed it was the first attempt by a modern army to operate full speed fighter planes without either a land airfield or carrier deck as base.

He said the United States and other navies frequently have used patrol and scoutships on floats, such as the catapult planes carried by battleships and cruisers, but nothing with the firepower, maneuverability and speed of the planes which now are rising to meet the American bombers over Kiska.

New York Bridge Expert Held When Ranking Club Is Raided

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The Mayfair Bridge Club, gathering spot for some of the country's ranking players, was raided by police last night and its proprietor, Contract Expert Harry J. Fishbein, arrested on a charge of maintaining a place for gambling.

Detective Julius Jensen made the arrest in line with a current police investigation of all West Side bridge clubs following the recent fatal shooting of two betting commissioners at the White House Bridge Association.

Paroled in night court for a hearing today, Fishbein, who last April won the world masters' individual championship and whose team won the Vanderbilt contract bridge cup in 1936, is represented by Attorney Fred D. Kaplan, also a well-known bridge expert, who was on Fishbein's team in the Vanderbilt cup tournament six years ago.

Four players at the club were dispersed without charges being preferred against them.

Fishbein's only comment was that "as long as this investigation of bridge clubs goes on the good must suffer with the bad."

Argentina is demanding cash for wheat shipped to Spain this year.

Davis Urges Tax Bill Revision to Save Post-War Industry

Senator Declares Changes As Vital to Victory As Arms or Men

By the Associated Press. A warning that industry could not survive lean post-war years without drastic revision of business levies in the proposed new tax bill came today from Senator Davis, Republican, of Pennsylvania. He said the Senate Finance Committee, of which he is a member, must change the House approach or let the Nation "face defeat on this important front," as vital to victory as arms and men. Senator Davis's formal statement appeared as Chairman Clark called a finance subcommittee back into executive session to continue its study of the income tax withholding program in the House bill. Pay-As-You-Go Plan. Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy Co., Inc., and chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was asked to tell Senator Clark's group more about his pay-as-you-go income tax proposal which would put tax collections on a current basis by making next year's payments apply on 1943 instead of 1942 income. Under this plan, 1942 would be skipped. Senator Davis said Pennsylvania's steel, coal and oil industries, geared to full war production, feared the effects of the House bill on future lean years. "The graduated scale of 8, 7, 6 and 5 per cent of invested capital as a credit against excess profits net income is entirely too low to allow heavy industry to survive after the war," Senator Davis stated. "The 1941 rates of 8 and 7 per cent should be retained." The House bill, he declared, would allow heavy industry to earn only 3 or 3 1/2 per cent. "This 3 per cent earning results from computing excess profits net income before deducting normal and then by further levying the normal and surtax at 45 per cent," he continued. With maximum earnings limited thus drastically, average earnings would fall below 1 per cent," he declared, "and no industry can survive such an average rate of earnings." He assailed provisions denying all net capital losses and including buildings and improvements in capital assets, contending it was "an arbitrary restriction of valid deductions to deny the deduction of net capital losses while taxing net capital gains." Senator Davis said it was particularly onerous when buildings and other improvements to lands were included with capital losses. He said an arbitrary split of buildings from fixtures would cause endless litigation. Senator Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin counseled State and local governments today to hold down their tax bills so citizens could pay their Federal taxes "which will be enormous." Asserting in a formal statement that local rates should be reduced wherever "economically feasible," Senator Wiley said: "The cost of war is progressively increasing and to every far-seeing man the need of paying currently as much of the cost of the war as possible is very apparent. . . . A sharp restriction in State budgets and an increased yield in some important State sources of revenue should make it possible for most States to recommend reductions in the taxes on personal incomes."

Horse Meat Placed on Sale, But It's for Dogs and Cats

Evidence that Washingtonians, facing a growing scarcity of beef and pork, might be turning to horse meat was picked up today by the District Health Department. An inspector for the Bureau of Food Inspection came across a dodger advertising horse meat, put up by the Hill Packing Co. of Topeka, Kans. "U. S. inspected and passed by the Department of Agriculture," and distributed by Lerman Bros., Washington commission merchants at Eleventh and E streets S.W. In red letters, the poster pointed to the advantages of this "economical meat food," of which "choice cuts" were available. Nothing was said about whether the meat was intended for household pets or human beings and the absence of such a specification led Dr. Reid R. Ashworth, chief of the Bureau of Food Inspection, to wondering whether porterhouse a la Dobbins might not be an early piece de resistance here. But it was all a mistake, it seemed. Samuel Lerman of Lerman Bros. said the Hill Packing Co., in putting out the dodger for the benefit of Washington business, had neglected to say that it was only for dog and cat food—a purpose to which horse meat long has been put. This was made specific in the copy Lerman Bros. submitted, he said. "We deal in pet foods," Mr. Lerman explained. "And we have no intention of selling horse meat for human consumption."

Dutch Crews Tie Up Netherlands Shipping On Both U. S. Coasts

Union Denies 'Strike,' But Demands Wage Boost and Reserve Fund

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Dutch seamen and officers seeking improved working conditions and post-war social security have tied up Netherlands shipping on both the East and West Coasts after four months of fruitless negotiations with their government.

The action was disclosed yesterday when the International Transport Workers' Federation notified the Netherlands Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Shipping at its New York office that 500 Dutch mariners had voted Monday night to refuse to take their ships to sea until an agreement was reached.

Union spokesmen said the move should not be considered a strike, asserting that the affected vessels—the number of which was not announced—would be loaded, worked and serviced as heretofore and that nothing would be done to interfere with shifting them within American harbors.

A joint statement issued by the ITWF on behalf of the Netherlands Officers' Association and the Netherlands Central Transport Workers' Union said: "Our men are unprepared to take the ships out to the open sea and expose their precious cargoes and their own lives to sudden destruction until we have convincing proof that the Netherlands government is willing to sit down with the men in good faith and reach an understanding acceptable to all . . ."

Demands Specified.
Specific demands are for 60 and 20 per cent increases, respectively, on the present seamen's basic wage of $40 monthly and on $120 basic wages for first mates. Other demands call for an eight-hour working day, a 50 per cent boost in overtime pay, 42 days rest a year and the establishment of a merchant marine post-war reserve fund to protect the seamen from "the inevitable post-war slump."

A. B. Speekenbrink of the Netherlands Ministry of Shipping would not comment beyond saying he had referred the matter to his government.

Mr. Smile's Frown Turns Into Smile

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO.—Ollie Smile frowned as he telephoned police that all the door knobs, locks and hinges and towel racks vanished just as his workmen were preparing to install them in the house he was building.

On the suggestion of police, Mr. Smile's six workmen started taking a lie detector test. Two of them had passed successfully when the detector broke down.

Then three express packages arrived and brought a smile to Mr. Smile's face, for they contained the hardware. Police, checking the return address, found only a cemetery.

Totally Blind Man Accurate in Spotting Planes

By the Associated Press.
SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Aug. 19.—Although he has been totally blind for seven years, Julius Acosta, jr., is one of the most accurate plane spotters of the Civilian Defense Council's organization here.

Guided to a listening post near his home in nearby Montecito by his police dog, Partner, Acosta regularly serves his watches. Trained by friends to recognize types of planes and their altitude by the sound of their motors, he readily passed all tests as a volunteer spotter.

"I have seen so many of the things a man wants to remember, and the images of them are in my memory," said Acosta. "I think I am pretty lucky because if I had always been blind I would not be able to recall what things look like. My deepest gratitude goes to those who bore with me in helping me learn to identify airplanes."

Western Hop Growers Try New Tricks to Hire Pickers

By the Associated Press.
PORTLAND, Oreg., Aug. 19.—In the heart of the hop country, the harvest of that beer-essential product is moving into full stride.

From Sacramento, Calif., to Yakima, Wash., growers are lining up pickers, fearful of the general labor shortage, but hopeful that the highest wages in years will attract the needed workers.

In past years transient labor has been a heavy source of supply. This year the growers are crossing their fingers—and trying new tricks. Yakima yards will see an influx of Indians from British Columbia. At Independence, Oreg., heart of the Willamette Valley hop district, growers have assessed themselves 30 cents an acre for advertising, to be used when the shortage becomes acute at the September 1 peak. Only half crews are in sight for that time.

In California, where in the Sacramento area the peak is already nearing, pickers' pay ranges from 2½ to 3¼ cents a pound. Growers say a good picker can make from $12 to $13 a day at that scale. Last year California pickers were paid an average of 1½ cents a pound.

The crop in the three Pacific Coast States will be large this year. The Agriculture Department estimates the three-State production at 39,000,000 pounds, an increase of 5,000,000 pounds over the 1930-1939 average.

Canada Delays Power Cut For Paper Industry

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—No move will be made to curtail "or otherwise control" electrical power available to Canadian pulp and paper industries for at least a month or six weeks, it was indicated in informed circles last night.

This information came 24 hours after a delegation representing pulp and paper interests in the highly industrialized Niagara Peninsula area received assurances from Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service, that close attention would be given to the manpower situation before a decision is reached on possible measures to divert power from the pulp and paper industries.

The delegation presented briefs protesting any proposed policy of power diversion without full investigation and urged that power to "luxury industries" be restricted first. Mr. Little told the delegates an advisory committee had been formed to study "dislocations which might result if the paper mills were restricted, and this fact alone was taken to indicate that any restrictive action probably will be a matter of some weeks.

Women Doing Jobs Well in Plants, Says Labor Department

Miss Anderson Defends Majority of Workers Against Criticism

Stirred by an airplane manufacturer's plant that many women in his plant are too frivolous, the Women's Division of the Labor Department replied yesterday that the vast majority of woman workers are doing their bit seriously and efficiently.

The observations of H. Oliver West, executive vice president of the Boeing Aircraft Co. at Seattle, Wash., don't jibe with reports from his fellow airplane manufacturers on the West Coast and the East, the officials here said.

Mr. West said that although some of the women in his plant were doing fine work, a great many were there "for other than serious purposes." They appear to him as "youngsters in search of a good time," pursuing their social life in the factory workrooms and refusing to wear clothes proper for safety.

Martin Plant Satisfied. All this brought a big chuckle from Mary Anderson, who as head of the women's division in this war as in the last is charged with aiding the integration of womanpower into industry.

"It would seem Mr. West is one of those men who didn't want women in the plant in the first place," she smiled. "He is like a lot of foremen who never having worked with women are afraid of them. They complain: 'How can we work women? We can't talk 'em out.'"

Even as she talked a spokesman for the Glenn L. Martin Co. said that "maybe West Coast women are different," but as for the women workers at his company's Baltimore plant, "the majority feel they are contributing seriously to the Nation's war effort," and are doing a good job.

Employment Policy Cited. Of course, some women are frivolous, said Miss Anderson. "But all women shouldn't be penalized because a few are frivolous and probably flirting. That doesn't apply to women alone. There must be a man to flirt with. And who can tell who started the flirtation?"

She suggested that perhaps the beginning of the problem in Mr. West's plant "might be in the employment policy. There has been a tendency to hire girls right out of school, many of whom are not mature enough to take the work seriously."

She added she thought that employers had missed an opportunity in not hiring women over 36 years of age. Mature women of responsibility have as much understanding as men of the present serious conditions, she continued.

Nazis Reported Planning To Deport 500,000 Poles

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Polish government-in-exile said today the Germans planned to deport half a million Poles from Polish Pomerania to make way for Nazi colonists.

The plan to make that region a "rampart of Germanism," it said, was outlined in the Berliner Boersens Zeitung Monday.

"The time limit for this forced transfer has not been published yet," the Polish announcement added.

The Berlin newspaper was quoted as conceding that Germans represented only 43 per cent of the province's 2,300,000 population.

The Poles said those to be deported include 200,000 Pomeranians described by the newspaper as "incapable of Germanization" and 300,000 Poles who moved to Pomerania since 1919.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. As a result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can actually burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal daintiness. Yet Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Get Zonite at your drugstore today.

Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Frankly written booklet "Feminine Hygiene Today," mailed FREE, in plain wrapper. Write: Zonite, Dept. 323A, 370 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Fines Totaling $36,000 Are Imposed in Food Profiteering Plot

California Chain Stores
And Grocery Associations
Receive Penalties

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—
Thirty-one defendants accused of conspiring to mark up retail food prices in California were fined more than $36,000 yesterday by Federal Judge Michael J. Roche.

Individuals, including the heads of Safeway, two other chain stores and half a dozen grocery associations, were given alternate jail sentences in case they did not pay the fines.

Penalties ranged from $25 up to the $5,000 fines assessed against both Safeway and the California Retail Grocers and Merchants' Association.

The heaviest individual penalty was against Kenneth Hess of San Francisco, head of Safeway, who was ordered to pay a $3,500 fine or serve six months in jail.

Fines of $1,000 were levied against Hagstrom's Food Stores of Oakland and Purity Stores of San Francisco.

The three chain stores and five other defendants pleaded nolo contendere and did not go to trial. The others were convicted by the judge without juries under the Sherman anti-trust law.

OPA to Investigate Pleas For New Gasoline Books

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—The Maryland OPA will investigate what appears to be an "excessive" daily volume of appeals to local war price and rationing boards for new gasoline ration books to replace books reported lost by motorists.

State OPA Attorney Reuben Oppenheimer said State boards are receiving several such appeals daily, and "one reason for doubting the authenticity of some such cases is the relatively few reports of lost sugar books reaching the local boards, despite the fact that sugar books in the hands of customers are much more numerous.

"While many of these claims may be legitimate, there is evidence at least of extreme carelessness in the care of these books. A motorist should guard his gasoline ration book as he would his money. When we lose a $10 bill we do not expect the United States Treasury to replace it."

Gen. Olmstead Says War Still Heavily Favors Axis

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—Maj.
Gen. Dawson Olmstead, the Army's chief signal officer who recently returned from London, declared yesterday the scales of war still are "mighty heavy on the Axis side."

Speaking at a luncheon at which he received the Poor Richard Club's award of merit, Gen. Olmstead said that "Few of us fully realize how critical the situation in Britain was and still is."

"If we are ever tempted to become complacent," he added, "all we need to do is repeat a list like this: Poland,
Dunkirk, Greece, Crete, Singapore, Philippines, Bataan, Corregidor,
Java, Malaya, Burma, Sevastopol, Tobrukh and Caucasus. We cannot try to balance that with such glorious victories as Coral Sea, Midway and the bombing of Japan.

"Do not misunderstand me. The United Nations are going to win this war. But we will never succeed until we put blood and sweat into it . . ."

Gen. Olmstead was given the advertising club's award in recognition of his accomplishments in the development of Army communications.

Former French Deputy Arrives in England

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The fighting
French government announced yesterday that Felix Gouin, former member of the French Chamber of Deputies and "unswerving opponent of the Vichy government and of collaboration with Germany" has arrived in England.

The announcement gave no details of his trip, but declared he had come to give Gen. Charles de Gaulle
"a full account of the trend of opinion and latest developments in France."

Two Vincents Return From Brothers' Reunion
 Several members of a 10-brother family today are back from a reunion with their father last week end at Brownsville, Ky. Representative B. M. Vincent, Democrat, of Kentucky and his brother, Clyde E. Vincent, a Justice Department attorney, went from here to be with their brothers and father.
 The father is Gills Vincent, who was presiding officer at a meeting of the Ten Brothers Corp., a family real estate firm. Officers for the coming year are R. L. Vincent, Williamstown, Ky., president; E. P. Vincent, North Tonawanda, N. Y., vice president, and H. H. Vincent, Martin, Ky., secretary-treasurer. Other brothers attending were Roscoe, H. W. and C. L. Vincent.

Takoma Park Councilman To Quit Town Committees
 Councilman Joseph Martin of Takoma Park, Md., has announced his intention to resign from all committees to which he had been appointed by Mayor Oliver W. Youngblood.
 The committees are Civic Improvement and Education, Municipal Service, Social, Welfare and Health and Playground.

 Mr. Martin's action was precipitated by a clash with Maj. William F. Fischer, superintendent of public works of Takoma Park, at a recent meeting of the Town Council.
 During the argument Maj. Fischer objected to Mr. Martin's remarks and threatened to resign his office. He was persuaded from doing so, however, by Mayor Youngblood.
 Mr. Martin questioned the authority of Maj. Fischer and Town

Clerk J. Wilson Dodd to sign town papers. He asserted that this authority should be reserved for the Mayor and Town Council, particularly with regard to expenditures for street improvements and acceptance of land grants.
Red Cross Unit Formed
 Formation of a surgical dressing unit as part of the Red Cross work being done by women of Franconia, Va., was announced today. Five instructors have been named

Have Your House 'Fitted' To Your Requirements

Perfect Home Will Reflect Occupants' Personalities And Their Preferences

By Margaret Nowell

A home equipped for good, "all-round" living is as varied a place as the personalities and preferences of those who live in it. It is the sum of its parts, and each part differs from the other. Though its color scheme and particular period may form a link which holds the whole picture together, each room in it may be completely different from the other. In this way each individual cubicle forms a background for the person or the work which goes on there. With the door closed, each room becomes its own little sphere, and with it opened, it becomes a component part of the living demands. Thus, your home differs from a hotel or a public hall, where the whole setting is abstract enough to encompass any or all personalities. A hotel is the same throughout—you can see the whole picture at a glance, whether it is the second or the sixth floor. In a home you pass from one environment to another.

This one item of personal preference and habit is the thing which gives character to a home over a period of years. People should buy furniture and household equipment as they buy clothes. They should "fit" to their personalities and measurements. The memories of individual use which cling to these furnishings continue year after year. No matter if the home background is in New England, Florida, California or Kansas, certain characteristics of ownership are immediately recognized by friends and family and make any habitat "your home."

Think of all the houses of your friends and relatives. No two of them are alike, in spite of the fact that modern living demands a certain number of chairs and tables, lamps and sofas for comfort. You will remember one house for the thoughtful arrangement of chairs, sofas and lamps so that wherever you sit you are happy and comfortable in conversation. You will remember another because of the careful arrangement of pictures and mirrors in relation to wall space and the fact that they are at exactly the right eye level for enjoyment. Another will be distinctive in color which gives your spirit a lift each time you come in—and still another may have no distinctive feature that you remember—but you know because of your pleasure in going there that it must be "right."

On the other hand, there are many that you will remember for less pleasant reasons. You feel recurring irritation when you enter the home of a friend who has too much money to spend, who must always be "in fashion," so that her house is continually being redone with never time enough to settle down and become a home. Her idea of a "smart" house gives the impression of a suite of rooms in a better hotel and never has a chance to reflect any of the personality of the occupants. There is the too-careless housekeeper who permits broken springs, soiled upholstery and a cluttered appearance to mar the fine architecture of a good house, and the too-neat one who cannot give you a moment's relaxation because she must wipe off the table each time you place a glass on it or empty an ash tray every five minutes, while you perch precariously on the edge of a chair lest you mar or hurt some detail of the precise interior. Though these may be extremes, most of us have encountered them in one house or another. Between the extremes we may chart a course of good living, good decorating and good housekeeping which is nearer the heart's desire.

No one likes mussiness, but there is a certain comfort about having the mending basket, the knitting tray, your favorite magazines or books close beside your favorite chair, and they give to the family room that essence of your own personality which makes it unforgettable. Every one is made unhappy by the feeling that they must constantly leave each room as though it had never been occupied. Ash trays are easily emptied, tables can be covered with glass tops, furniture may be slip covered, but beyond that, household equipment is supposed to be used and a maximum of good manners and care combined with the right place to put things should solve this problem. A great deal of money is spent and plenty of furniture is not necessarily the secret of the successful house. It's very nice to have just what you want for each corner, but you are just as likely to remember grandmother's rocker with a cushion on the floor for Johnny or Mary to sit on as the best down-filled love seat the market offers. It is the way you use the things you have that makes your home.

If you don't like the way your house looks, change it about until you do. Don't permit it to remain static until the day when you can do it all over at once. Bring out the things you enjoy and use them to bring pleasure each daily to you. Keep the individuality of each member of your household and fit all their whims and fancies into a composite picture which they will remember as the years go on.

New Style Note in Hats

By Peggy Roberts

Quilting is an important style note in fall hats, so while you are economically making your own, be sure to add those attractive rows of stitching which give the hat important detailing and extra becomingness. The directions for making this lovely hat are simple enough for the inexperienced sewer. Trimming may be either a soft bow or a cluster of ribbon loops. Taffeta or any of the wool fabrics are suitable materials. Pattern envelope contains tissue pattern and full directions for making any design. Calm Assurance Of the Adult Aids Child

Protect Him From Fear by Keeping Him Occupied

By Angelo Patri

In wartime war is the way of life. We must adjust our thinking and our behavior to its demands. Much as we hate it, there is no way out but the acceptance of the hardships and annoyances and a firm resolve to make the best of a bad situation for the children's sake if not for our own.

We are burdened, harassed, worried to frazzles. Our families are scattered, the young people's careers are broken before they have begun; nothing is as we would have it. We have been forced out of our comfortable ways into new and strangely inconvenient ones and we are distressed.

Pleasant ways of life were wiped out in a gunflash at Pearl Harbor. There is one lump of sugar for our morning cup of coffee. There are no tires for the car. Living as usual is out of the question, because the usual has vanished.

People upon whom we depended are missing from their posts. The doctor has gone to the base hospital; the teacher has gone to the munitions works, the cook to the factory. The butcher boy is flying a plane in China and the grocery boy is driving an Army truck somewhere across the world. War and everything else is new. We must learn to do without.

We older ones can get along somehow, but the children have to be helped to live through the war in such a fashion as to lessen its evil effects as far as possible. Our duty is to give them confidence and to decide their attitudes. If we can be calm and assured, if we can face whatever comes courageously and confidently, they will be courageous and strong in their turn. That is our chief concern for the duration of the war, because if we are to lose this generation of children to illness, weakness and despair, we need not have fought it.

The children who suffer most during wartime are the adolescents. They are keenly alive to all that goes on about them. They miss nothing of the news, excitement and drama of the day. They are sensitive and eager to know all about the battles and the men who fight them. Many of them want to get into the service and share the adventures so gloriously depicted on the radio and in the news. Many, indeed most of them, are frightened and their excitement is hiding it even from themselves.

These children must be steadied by the quiet, strong assurance of their parents. Words alone will not accomplish this, but occupation that is useful will. Every other boy and girl should be kept busy at worth-while work for the duration at least. Busy children are happy, and happy children have a hold on health that even a war fails to loosen.

Plan to keep these children occupied at home, in school and in the community and protect them from the worst effect of the war-fear.

If you find it difficult to get your boy or girl to mind, the fault is probably yours. Send for Angelo Patri's booklet "Obedience," enclosing 10 cents in coin and 3-cent stamp. Address Angelo Patri, care of The Evening Star.

Brown Sugar

If brown sugar is too hard to measure, heat it in the oven, then measure it quickly while it is soft. Store it in the refrigerator or bread box, where it will remain soft.

Here's today's college girl, well groomed with a bright, fresh appearance that is the result of a sensible beauty routine. She wears her hair cut short or piled high atop her head and uses make-up carefully and sparingly, matching her lipstick and nail enamel colors. The pert young lady pictured holds a new kit shaped like a pitcher and containing nail enamel and oily remover. Later she'll use the interesting little container as a carry-all or possibly as an evening bag.

Dorothy Dix Says—

Wise Woman Prepares for the Day She Will Be 'Alone in the World'

Elderly widows are increasing out of all proportion to other age groups in our population and statisticians figure that there are twice as many mothers-in-law in America today as there were at the close of the Civil War. This is not only because the expectation of life for all of us has been extended for some 20 years or more, but because women seem to stand the wear and tear of marriage better than men do and so often outlive their husbands.

Heretofore we have regarded widows as an act of God, or a decree of the divorce court, and, anyway, as something that we couldn't do anything about that wouldn't happen to us, so there was no use in worrying about it. But the time has come when we can no longer take that casual view of the subject. We are confronted by the fact that every woman is a potential widow and every-in-law is likely to have a mother-in-law in it.

Nor can we longer ignore the fact that we have in our midst an army of women who are miserable and make other people miserable, simply because they have been thrown out of their occupations. They don't know where to go, nor what to do, and nobody wants them. And if that isn't a problem, let somebody ask a hard one.

There is no use in any mother befooling herself with the old hokey about her children wanting her to come and live with them when Father dies, and that they will spend their lives petting and adoring her, and believing that she will be perfectly happy with nothing to do except sit with folded hands. No matter how much her own children love her, their husbands and wives will consider her an enforced guest. There will be friction between her and the grandchildren. She will be bored to death with having nothing to do and no interests of her own. Every woman who goes to live with her children finds out that she either has to be a rubber stamp or a firebrand. And it is not a happy choice.

Nor are the children always to be trusted. John can't protect Mother against his wife's temper. Nor can Mary make her husband treat Mother with even common politeness. Often the family income is so small that even having one more mouth to feed is a hardship.

The remedy for this situation is for every woman to realize that, but for the grace of God she may some day be deprived of the strong arm on which she has leaned, and to fit herself to stand alone when that catastrophe occurs. She should lay up some treasures, spiritually and mentally as well as financially, so that she will not be dependent on others for an interest in life.

The women who boast that they are all wife and mother, never belong to clubs, or take part in causes, or even go to parties are poorer than any pauper, no matter how much money they have, when their children marry and leave them and their husbands.

They become parasites who fasten themselves on anybody who is good-natured enough to permit it, and if they are rich they forlornly wander from cruise ship to resort hotel boring everybody and becoming Public Nuisance No. 1. Worse still, if they are poor they fasten themselves on their children—although they know they are a source of discord between husband and wife—because they have no life outside of Johnny and Jane.

Every woman should fit herself to live alone if she has to. She should keep up her friendships, her reading, her interest in everything that goes on in the world so that she can be good company for herself if she has the misfortune of losing her companion. Also, I believe mothers would do their children a far kinder turn if they laid up a little nest egg for their old age that would render them independent than they do by spending it all in indulging their children and then being burdens upon them when Father dies.

Of course if a woman is an invalid, if she is old and feeble, she deserves all the care that her children can give her. But no woman who is strong and healthy and able-bodied, no matter what her age, should graft her living off others. In order that she may not do this she should always be preparing herself for the time when she may have to earn her own bread and butter. She should make a fine art of her domestic duties so that she can turn her skill into money if she needs it. There are never enough good cooks and seamstresses and baby-tenders to go around.

The reason so many mothers-in-law are so disagreeable and fault-finding and meddling is because they are idle and bored and dependent, and that would sour the disposition of an archangel. The solution of their problems is jobs, having their own pocketbooks, and their own homes.

White or Whole Wheat Bread With Honey

Proper Directions For Kneading It Also Offered

By Edith M. Barber

The sweet, homey fragrance of freshly made bread is in the air now. The taste of it clings to my palate, because almost as soon as it came out of the oven I committed what my mother thought an almost unforgivable sin—cut the loaf while it was warm.

I make rolls more often than I do yeast bread. A reader, however, asked me for a recipe for bread made with enriched flour and flavored with honey; also for directions for kneading the dough after it is mixed.

These are a little hard to put on paper, although easily demonstrated. The dough should be turned out on a floured surface, folded forward with fingers and then pressed down firmly with the palms of the hands. It should be turned a quarter of the way around, folded and pressed again with the palms of the hands. This should be repeated until the dough is elastic and will not stick to the surface. Kneading will take from two to five minutes. To test, cut the dough with a sharp knife and if there are no large bubbles kneading has been sufficient. The hands may be greased or floured if necessary. This depends largely upon the natural warmth of the hands.

WHITE BREAD.
1 cake compressed yeast.
2 cups milk, scalded.
4 tablespoons honey.
3 teaspoons salt.
3 tablespoons butter.
6 1/2 to 7 cups flour.

Crumble yeast into bowl, and slowly add scalded milk which has been cooled to lukewarm, stirring until yeast is dissolved. Stir in honey, salt, butter and one-half the flour. Beat until smooth. Add enough of the remaining flour to make a smooth dough. Turn out on floured board and knead until smooth. Place dough in greased bowl, brush with melted shortening, cover and set in a warm place and let rise until double in bulk. Knead and shape into two loaves, and place in two greased loaf pans and brush tops with melted shortening. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 425 degrees F., 15 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate, 375 degrees F., 30 to 35 minutes.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD.
Use preceding recipe for white bread, substituting three cups of unsifted whole wheat flour for three cups of white flour.

'Good Grooming' Keynote On the Campus Today

Thorough but Uncomplicated Beauty Routine Suggested To Modern College Girl

By Helen Vogt

Having spent the better part of this last week wearing our cardigan sweaters backward to get into the college spirit, we are now prepared to voice a few priceless truths about beauty on the campus. In recent columns we've ranted about clothes, the fads and fundamentals, the new trends and those old standbys that make up the correctly assembled college wardrobe. However, none of this will prove particularly valuable if correct grooming is neglected, for even the most mouth-watering tweeds are wasted on the girl whose hair is stringy and whose make-up looks as though it has been tossed on in the dark.

Don't think for a moment that we are suggesting an elaborate beauty routine for the college girl, or, for that matter, any other woman in these days. However, there are certain fundamental "dos" and "don'ts" which mean the difference between a well-turned-out college girl and the one who looks as though you resemble to a smart appearance is purely coincidental. So, when you take off for school this year, give as much thought to your beauty routine as to the appropriate choice of a stuffed animal to decorate the dormitory bed.

Select a Clever Announcement Of Adoption

First Word Should Come From the New Parents

By Emily Post

The card was not sent me, so I have nothing to go by further than the description from a reader: "My husband has brought home as a sample a printed, gilt-edge card which he found at a stationer's reading: 'I have come to make my home with... My eyes are... My hair is... My name is... Do you think these announcements would do to fill in and send for the adoption of our little girl?'"

Since this is obviously what the card is intended for, I must say that they would probably "do." But I think better wording than this could be found and very likely on a more appealing card. (There are such lovely greeting cards for every imaginable situation. There surely must be some for an adoption.) But if you choose to copy the wording on this card I should prefer to have the announcement made by the parents instead of the reader: "Her hair is... My name is... Do you think these announcements would do to fill in and send for the adoption of our little girl?"

Dear Mrs. Post: I am giving the rehearsal party the night before the wedding for my son and his bride-to-be. It will be a buffet supper and we want to have everything as friendly and as informal as possible. Am I to invite the wedding party or let my son do it, and may the invitations be given verbally in either case? Are there any others besides the wedding party to be invited to this supper?

Answer: Invitations given verbally by your son would be entirely proper. Usually none but those in the wedding party are invited, but your son and his bride may perfectly well ask other intimate friends of theirs if they want to.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are both doctors and are called Dr. John and Dr. Mary by our friends. In fact, it seems we are called these names by most people. When signing postcards and letters to friends, would it be improper to use our titles and write Dr. John and Dr. Mary?

Answer: If you put these names in quotation marks and send them only to those who call you by them, there could be no objection. But that seriously to sign your names Dr. John and Dr. Mary Blank would be just as bad as to sign them Mr. and Mrs. John Blank.

Dear Mrs. Post: It is necessary at an afternoon or evening wedding for the mothers of the bride and bridegroom to wear long dresses? They would have no use whatever for the long skirts afterward.

Answer: It is not necessary that they wear long skirts or that they get any clothes that will be useless afterward.

Letters from friends: "Full flavor when iced" "Once you refresh yourself with a tall glass of McCormick Iced Tea you'll instantly taste the difference. We'll serve it all summer long." —Glady's Bushong, Virginia Manners of the Moment I really don't understand folding chairs. Some people are good with them. They take to them like ducks take to water. But give me a folding chair and, invariably, if I get the thing to stand up on four legs at all, the arms stick out on the other side. The usual trick, for a woman in this predicament, is to turn to the man of the family and say, "You fix it." That would be fine if the man of the family always is around when you want to sit out in the garden... or if he is any better at folding chairs than you. He isn't always. The only answer is to give up chairs when you sit outdoors. Just roll out an old sheet, or lie on the grass. It's much less difficult. And, after all, what did our ancestors do? They didn't have to struggle with folding chairs. So why in the world should we? JEAN.

Popular Jumper Frock

1659-B

By Barbara Bell Ask any of the junior misses why they like jumpers. "Because they look so nice with contrasting blouses," will be the answer. Our jumper today is designed with two features juniors will particularly like; the scoop neckline to slight gathering of the skirt in front. You'll notice buttons are used in place of a zipper. Blouse included.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1659-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31) jumper requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch material, 2 3/4 yards 54-inch, 2 1/2 yards broad. Blouse, 1 1/2 yards 35 or 39-inch material.

All ages and all sizes will find interesting new patterns in the Fall Fashion Book, newly published. Send 15 cents for your copy today. Order it with a 15-cent pattern for 25 cents, plus 1 cent for postage.

Help the War Effort

BY TAKING CARE OF WHAT YOU HAVE BUYING ONLY WHAT YOU NEED

1 Do not disconnect your electrical appliances by pulling on the cord. Grasp the plug itself and remove with a firm, quick motion. Pull from wall outlet instead of from appliance. Simple care will add many hours of usefulness to your electric cords and appliances.

Never let cord become kinked or knotted. Keep over a rounded hook when not in use. With care your electric cords will last indefinitely.

Never immerse an electrical appliance in water. When cleaning your appliances, the heating element or motor should be kept dry and free from dust.

Keep appliances away from edge of table where they can be knocked over easily. Be careful to never drop any of your electrical appliances.

Moving parts and motor on appliances should be oiled regularly in accordance with instructions from the manufacturer. Do not over-oil.

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

When the Big Train Bucks the Sultan of Swat

If there was some way of getting to and into Yankee Stadium next Sunday there probably would be 20,000,000 Americans looking down upon a priceless bit of by-play between games of a Yankee-Senator double-header otherwise distinguished by the fact that proceeds are to be turned over to the Army and Navy relief funds.

It's a sight that never may be seen again—Babe Ruth in the batters' box facing Walter Johnson on the mound. Of Johnson's right to the throne as all-time king of pitchers there can be little argument. There have been many great pitchers but Walter was the best and the fastest.

As for Ruth, nobody has been reasonably close in long-distance hitting. "Ty Cobb was a better all-around ball-player than Ruth," says Uncle Clark Griffith, whose baseball background dates back to 1887, the year Johnson was born and seven years before Ruth joined the world.

"Ty was better," he repeated the other day. "But Ruth—well, there was only one Babe. When you talk about fellows like Johnson, Ruth and Cobb it seems like you are coughing up twenty-dollar gold pieces."

Crawford, Not Ruth, Hit Johnson Pretty Well

In playing up the Ruth vs. Johnson showdown the Yankee management, meaning President Ed Barrow, is making no mistake. The Dodgers and Giants will be playing a double-header in Brooklyn the same afternoon and, as far as the so-called pennant races are concerned, the National League offering is more attractive.

Unfortunately, there never was a deep animosity between Johnson and Ruth. As pitchers they faced each other from 1915 through 1919. Ruth was a good left-hander but Johnson was great. When the Yankees acquired Ruth from the Red Sox in 1920, and began playing him regularly in the outfield, a rivalry never to be forgotten sprang up.

It was the coaches of colleges in the smaller towns who were pessimistic. Bernie Moore of Louisiana State figured that gate receipts for the Tigers' home games would be off from 25 to 40 per cent because of Eaton Rouge's small size, plus the fire and gas situation.

But just in case their optimism might be of the morning glory variety many of the directors had made schedule shifts in hopes of insuring profitable gates. West Virginia, unable to get an attractive "breather" for its home field on October 3, agreed to play in Boston College's stadium.

Stanford will play Santa Clara and the University of Washington at San Francisco instead of at Palo Alto; Alabama moved two games from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham to look its game with Georgia to Memphis, and it is possible the Ole Miss-Vanderbilt tussle will be decided on the same field; Texas A. and M. collide at Houston instead of College Station in other site changes.

Play Saturday Nights Here. Georgetown and George Washington, both competing for the patronage in an expanded Washington, D. C., will try Saturday night frays while Michigan State and Pittsburgh hope to lure the day-shift workers with a 4 p. m. kickoff.

Syracuse, located in a medium-sized city, is starting a drive to keep "the home owners at home," while "share the car" clubs are being organized at Detroit to help transport the University of Michigan followers to Ann Arbor, 40 miles away.

A degree of uncertainty was uncovered in California, where crowds of more than 5,000 were prohibited until recently by Army officials. That rule was rescinded, but a general dinner order makes night games impossible.

The dimout also is expected to cut into the receipts of Miami and Tampa Universities, two Florida schools. Duke will play seven of its nine games in North Carolina, one more than a year ago, but North Carolina plays only 6 out of 9, against 8 for last season, and North Carolina State meets 7 out of 10 near home, instead of 8.

South Carolina, which played five of its nine games in that State last season, will appear before home folks only three in eight starts this year. George Washington plays five out of eight near home this year, against seven for nine in 1941.

Maryland plays its five "home" tilts in College Park, Washington and Baltimore. Virginia, not a member of the conference, plays eight of its nine games in the Old Dominion, an increase of one over 1941.

Diamond, manager of Gus Lesnevich, world light-heavyweight boxing champion, today announced he had been offered $20,000 by a Chicago promoter for Lesnevich to defend his title against Nate Bolden of Chicago next month.

Diamond said the offer came from Irving Schoenfeld, who has offered to turn over all profits to the Navy Relief Fund. Lesnevich is in the Coast Guard, but expects to obtain a furlough shortly.

The fall term begins Monday but no one's worried—football isn't played at the school. Two of the South's crack wing-backs may not play this season, Georgia Tech temporarily has lost Davey Eldredge due to scholastic difficulties and Georgia's Gus Letcher may be drafted before he has a chance to lug a football.

Optimism Rules As Many Tilts Are Shifted

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.

Games Taken to Fans; Saturday Night Play Is D. C. Innovation

Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Following the football game, the spectators instead of having the spectators move to the football games is the answer of the college athletic departments to the war-inspired travel restrictions.

Although virtually every coach and athletic director polled by the Associated Press expressed optimism regarding attendance and gate receipts for the coming season, many of them either had moved a large city or was contemplating such a move.

Even the staid Big Ten approved the transfer of the Ohio State-Illinois fracas from small Champaign, Ill., to much bigger Cleveland.

Cardinals Make Belated Threat In Flag Chase

Slice Three Games Off Dodger Lead in Hurry; Red Sox Keep Hot

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR. Associated Press Sports Writer. After nearly everybody except their relatives had given them up for lost, the St. Louis Cardinals are threatening at last to make a race out of the National League pennant drive.

They still trail the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers by six-and-one-half lengths, but they have knocked three full games off the Dodger lead in the last three days and apparently have gathered enough steam to make things hot the rest of the way down the stretch.

With Southpaw Max Lanier hurling seven-hit shutout ball, the Cards ran their latest winning streak to five in a row last night by beating the Chicago Cubs and Claude Pasquel, 6-1.

The Dodgers dropped into Philadelphia for a one-night stand and were jolted, 3-1, by the Phils, whom they had expected to roll over and play dead.

That defeat was the second straight for the Brooks, who have lost 5 of their last 10 games. The Cardinals have won 10 of their last 12.

Giants Are Dodger Problem. While the Dodgers can look for trouble in their remaining six meetings with the Cards, they also have a problem close to home in the surprising New York Giants.

The Giants, in third place and unwilling to vacate without a struggle, have won six and lost eight with the Dodgers and still have eight more battles scheduled with the Flatbush Flock.

Carl Hubbell pitched the Giants to a 10-2 triumph over the Boston Braves yesterday, scattering six hits as his boss, Mel Ott, chipped in with his 21st home run and took over the leadership of the league.

It was the sixth straight in the longest Giant winning streak of the year and the eighth in a row for Hubbell, whose victory string is the longest unbroken one among National League pitchers.

In beating Pasquel for the first time in three attempts this year, the Cardinals backed up Lanier's effective pitching with a nine-hit attack led by Terry Moore and Johnny Hopp. Lanier fanned eight and didn't issue a single base on balls.

It was Rube Melton, once the property of the Cards, who turned back the Dodgers for the Phils. Melton yielded only seven hits and collected two of his team's nine blows off Max Macon.

Red Sox Stretch Streak. The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Cincinnati five games behind the Cards by whitewashing the Reds, 3-0, on the six-hit hurling of Johnny Lanning in another night contest.

In the American League the Boston Red Sox ran their winning streak to five games by edging out the New York Yankees, 8-7, in 10 innings.

Johnny Peacock doubled off Red Sox pitcher Johnny Murphy in the tenth and scored the winning run on Dom Di Maggio's outfield fly, handing the veteran Yankee fireman his seventh straight defeat. The loss capped New York's lead to 11½ games.

Denise Galehouse turned in a seven-hit shutout in a night contest as the St. Louis Browns whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-0, and climbed to within a single game of the third-place Cleveland Indians, who were idle.

Jack Wade gave the Browns their first hit of the game in the sixth inning, but they buried him under a six-run assault in the seventh and continued their 11-hit attack on Joe Haynes.

Seeman, Former Packer, To Join Army Gridmen. By the Associated Press. WILLIAMS FIELD, Ariz., Aug. 19.—Lt. George M. Seeman, former Nebraska and Green Bay Packers end, was ordered yesterday to report to the Army football squad training at Camp Cook, Calif., for a game in Los Angeles August 30 against the professional Washington Redskins.

Seeman, a student officer in flight training at this twin-engine bombing field, is due to graduate next week, but officers said that because he has almost finished his required flying he would be allowed to leave in a day or two-wearing his wings.

Deep South Elevens Put Games Within Reach of Fans

Southern Loop, Though, Does More Traveling, Has Fewer Contests

By the Associated Press. ATLANTA, Aug. 19.—There'll be more college football for the home folks in the deep South this season, and where transportation difficulties threaten to prevent fans from coming to see the games, business managers are arranging to take their games to the fans.

Seventy-eight out of 119 contests scheduled by members of the Southeastern Conference will be played this season in their home States, or within walking distance of the State line. For those who like figures, that's 65 per cent, an increase of four per cent over 1941 when the Big Twelve played 70 out of 111 contests at home.

The trend in the Southern Conference is exactly opposite where fewer games have been scheduled and fewer played at home. There the 16 members and the University of Virginia have scheduled 107 out of 157 games locally, or 68 per cent, compared to 1941's high average of 71 per cent when 115 out of 159 games were played near home.

Tulane Has 6 Home Tilts. Tulane University, taking advantage of increased population, again plays six of its nine games this season in New Orleans, and a seventh at nearby Baton Rouge.

Alabama, again meeting only Southern teams, engages seven out of 10 opponents in its home State. Auburn plays seven out of 11 for the home folks. Tennessee plays eight out of nine games in Tennessee, and Georgia Tech meets seven out of 10 opponents in Georgia.

The Citadel Stays Home. In the Southern Conference, The Citadel leads the field with all eight games scheduled for Charleston or nearby points in South Carolina.

Duke will play seven of its nine games in North Carolina, one more than a year ago, but North Carolina plays only 6 out of 9, against 8 for last season, and North Carolina State meets 7 out of 10 near home, instead of 8.

South Carolina, which played five of its nine games in that State last season, will appear before home folks only three in eight starts this year. George Washington plays five out of eight near home this year, against seven for nine in 1941.

Maryland plays its five "home" tilts in College Park, Washington and Baltimore. Virginia, not a member of the conference, plays eight of its nine games in the Old Dominion, an increase of one over 1941.

Nats Certain to Avoid Cellar, Now Have Eyes on 6th Place

Help Cause as Carrasquel Subdues A's, 2-1; Hudson Slated to Face Mackmen Tonight

By BURTON HAWKINS. The current edition of the Washington baseball team won't have many pleasant memories of the 1942 season but it at least apparently has avoided the embarrassment of occupying the American League basement.

Only a complete collapse by the Nats, coupled with a sudden surge by the Athletics, could drop Washington into the cellar. With the season in its twilight stage the Nats have moved seven games ahead of the eighth-place Athletics, all of which means Washington could win only 18 of its remaining 42 games while Philadelphia was sweeping 20 of its 32 engagements and finish in no worse than a tie for seventh place.

The Nats will be accomplishing no miracle with a seventh-place finish, but they are inserted will represent a sort of moral triumph for Manager Bruce Harris. Sixth place, only three games away, would represent a highly successful season for the Nats in view of what has materialized this year.

Harris Has Tough Task. Harris has been operating without Pitcher Dutch Leonard since April 23. For weeks he has been forced to employ a raw second base combination. He saw the highly-touted Bob Repass crumble after performing brilliantly in exhibition games and Jake Early and Mickey Vernon, who promised to give the Nats a punch, haven't been able to stir anything more than a mild breeze with their bats.

Frankie Croucher, who was to have been the Nats' regular second baseman, has played one full game. Bucky has done all right, in a comparative sense, with the worst infield to decorate the American League in years. Sixth or seventh place would represent disaster to such outfits as the Yankees, Red Sox, Indians, etc., but no disgrace will be attached to the Nats finishing in either spot this year with the talent Harris has had at his command.

Washington's pitching has taken up some of the slack in recent weeks and last night it was the fine pitching of Alejandro Carrasquel that, however, and Carrasquel presented the Nats a 2-1 victory over the Athletics before 6,000 fans.

Two-Man Grappling Will Top Program At Show Tonight. Two-man team rassing, which proved the most popular attraction on last week's program at Turner's Arena, has been lifted to the feature match on Promoter Joe Turner's card tonight.

All parties concerned fall in the villain classification, with the brother combination of Ernie and Rudy Dusek meeting Michele Leone and Jim Austerl.

The semi-feature is a go between Tommy O'Toole and Paul Boesch, glamour boys.

Another popular singles performer will be Maurice LaChapelle, who usually is a two-man team competitor. He tackles John Vanski.

The opening battle at 9 o'clock lists Johnny Long against Eddie King.

Playing to Break Tie, Nines Stage 2-2 Tilt. The effort of Center Market and Heurich Brewers to fracture their second place tie in the Industrial Baseball League yesterday was futile as the clubs battled to a 2-0 tie in nine innings on the Ellipse.

The teams will try again tomorrow on the East Ellipse diamond at 5:30 o'clock.

Skins in Better Shape For Punters Than Ever Before

Seymour Gets Distance, Poillon and Perego Set to Aid Baugh

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON. Star Staff Correspondent. SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 19.—There'll be some kicks coming from the Redskins this season, good ones, too, if Coach Ray Flaherty is any judge of punting. Sammy Baugh, league leader the last two years, probably will be the team's No. 1 booter, especially on quick kicks, but Bob Seymour is driving the ball in practice, Dick Poillon has all the earmarks of a dependable punter, and another rookie, Carlton Perego, a left-footer, is no slouch.

"We're probably better fixed for kickers than we've ever been," Flaherty was saying today. "I expect Seymour to give Sammy some help and I'll let Poillon take his turn if he continues to boot the ball as well as he's doing in camp. Seymour didn't get started until the fog end of last season and it was a little too late to do us any good, but he showed he can handle the job when he's right."

And if this crew isn't enough to handle the punting chores, Flaherty still can call on George Smith, a center who boots 'em a mile, and Roy Zimmerman. But he doesn't think it will be necessary.

Baugh probably will welcome help. Last year he did more kicking than any other back in the circuit and hung up an average of 47.7 yards. His longest effort traveled 75 yards in the first game with the Giants.

Norm Standlee of the Bears bettered Sam's average by almost 15 yards but he only kicked twice and his best was a 70-yarder.

In practice, Poillon has shown a tendency to kick the ball straight down the middle and is trying to develop more of a soccer style to hit the corners without losing control. Baugh is a punting master at calling his shots and is especially good at angling his quick kicks, but the gent who has been dropping his kicks in the corner as accurately as though using a bomb sight is Zimmerman.

Both have been working with Poillon and the kid is smart enough to listen. Already he has gotten the hang of snapping a pass in approved Baugh style and it travels rather swiftly. If he improves his kicks as quickly, he'll be a genuine triple threat.

Boys and Girls Battle For Playground Tennis Titles. The District's smoothest playground racketeers were to launch play today at Turkey Thicket playground in an elimination series to determine junior and senior boys' and girls' championships.

The tourney culminates a series of intra and inter-area playoffs and brings together the winners and runners-up of meets in all sections of the city.

Joe Hossick of Edgewood playground was to start defense of his senior championship by meeting Jack Graham of Montrose at 2 o'clock.

Paul Haakon Gets That Job More Useful Than Dancing

For the Duration He Will Teach Others the Flying He Learned When There Was No War

By JAY CARMODY.

When he danced here in the spring Paul Haakon was troubled, as were all thinking men. Dancing had been his life and he had made a fine thing of it by becoming a dancer who could be compared with Nijinsky. It was a remarkable thing for one so young, and Mr. Haakon could be proud. But he was not proud, because dancing did not seem important any more. There was an irrelevance about it all of a sudden, as there had been an irrelevance about so many things that had their place in peace. Haakon was uncomfortable before audiences and he thought that he had better go away and find something he could regard as more useful.

The services had no particular use for ballet dancers as commissioned specialists and he thought that he should find something that would serve his country without doing a disservice to his family economically. He tried to get something related to the physical training program, but that seemed to have been taken care of otherwise. He was disappointed, but he did not stop there. He went on thinking and, for a while, he went on with his dancing. Two months he went on doing both and finally one night in St. Louis he came up with the idea.

In addition to his skill as a dancer he is quite a capable chap in handling an airplane. He thought that might be a field in which his dancing talent had not provided and, in looking about, he found that it was. There was a need for flight instructors for pre-service cadets, and into that Haakon found that he could fit and satisfy a need of doing something useful.

On June 1 he gave up dancing for the duration and went to school at Bloomsburg, Pa., a school which teaches flyers how to teach would-be flyers. His course is virtually finished now. It is the sort of thing that keeps a man fit. That makes Haakon happy. So happy that the fact it does not keep a man fit to write poetry with his body makes not the slightest difference to him. He will recondition himself for dancing after the war. He is sure he can. It will be hard work, but not nearly so hard as it would have been to keep himself mentally fit for dancing.

Jay Carmody.

ing with a war going on without him in it in some way. He never felt better, really.

It doesn't happen that way, but sometimes you think you can see the hand of the publicity department in the assignments handed out to film stars.

The case of Ronald Colman might make an example. Mr. Colman has established himself as the quintessence of dignity, suavity, an impregnable poise. All of his picture assignments have been devised to intensify this portrait of the man. All that is, but his latest one, "The Talk of the Town."

In that picture Colman gets a considerable ruffling and does some ruffling of his own. Cary Grant knocks him cold in one sequence, and Colman returns the compliment in one later on. Another time you see the unreluctant Colman dancing a bad rumba with an opportunistic blond manicurist. It is not the old Ronnie you knew, and there's a sacrilegious sound to it when she calls him Bud and tells him he "dances good."

It is not, as we say, true, but you think that maybe somewhere a disgruntled press agent might have said to his boss: "Chief, but there's no news in Colman. People are sick of reading about his suavity. Let's give 'em a new Colman, one with a torn shirt and a shiner."

Whether the press agent ever said it or not, they gave 'em that kind of Colman.

Aside to Mayor La Guardia: Now, maybe, Mr. Mayor, is the time to renew that invitation to Hollywood movie studios to come East, not to your town but to your State, at any rate.

The dim-out situation is responsible. One studio vitally affected by it is shopping for a parcel of suitable land about 280 miles over the mountains from Hollywood. It has to do night work, it insists, and since night work cannot be done on the Pacific Coast, it will move inland.

But not as far inland as New York State, no doubt, so maybe, Mr. Mayor, you had better forget the whole thing.

HEY WATSON, WHAT'S THIS—Basil Rathbone might be saying as Sherlock Holmes when he finds Nigel Bruce (Watson) snoozing away between shots of "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror."

New 'Meller' on Roof

"From Rags to Riches," another popular melodrama of the gay nineties, will open Tuesday in the Willard Roof Music Hall. The third presentation of the season, the show will have in its cast Jane Middleton, Ellen Love, Bettina Snyder, Lionel Ince, Lawrence Hayes, Wayne Locklin, Lee Sisk and Isham Keith. Richard Midgley again directs.

Yucona Cameron, former vaudeville partner of Al Trahan, heads the customary olio presentations between acts.

ATTENTION... Please

A number of outstanding pictures produced by Columbia were included in the selection of "The Ten Best" in a recent poll made by M G M in connection with a great picture, MRS. MINIVER.

Columbia takes pride in the fact that the lists included many of its pictures that have contributed so largely to public entertainment.

Columbia is fortunate to have produced, over the past several years:

- * IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT
- * THEODORA GOES WILD
- * ONE NIGHT OF LOVE
- * MR. DEEDS GOES TO TOWN
- * THE AWFUL TRUTH
- * LOST HORIZON
- * YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU
- * PENNY SERENADE
- * MR. SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON
- * HERE COMES MR. JORDAN

Realizing fully the greatness of all of these, Columbia now presents THE FINEST MOTION PICTURE TO COME OUT OF ITS STUDIO.

It's Company Mary Likes, And Company Likes Her

Miss Martin Draws Her Crowds Off the Screen as on It, And That's Her Pastime

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN. HOLLYWOOD.

Personality parade:
If Hollywood were to set up an opposite for Greta Garbo, the choice would most certainly fall to Mary Martin. Unlike Garbo, who comes from Sweden, Mary Martin, who comes from the great big State of Texas, doesn't "want to be alone."
She is never happier than when surrounded by people, almost any kind of people. On picture sets and around radio stations, she is always the center of a conversational group. She entertains a lot and her parties are real parties. They are carefully planned and every one always has a good time.
She plans these parties down to the most minute details. The other day she gave a shower for a bride-to-be who is moving from Hollywood to Washington. The cake was beautifully decorated with California oranges and orange blossoms on one side, and an arrow pointing to the other where Washington cherry blossoms and cherries were embossed. Few hostesses go to all that trouble, but Mary gets a kick out of it.

No Hollywood star is more ambitious. She is working all the time to improve her talents. When she left the studio last year to have a baby, she continued taking piano, voice and dramatic lessons six days a week until a few weeks before little Mary arrived.
Mary is not selfish, as are so many ambitious people. She is often helping others, particularly young singers and dancers trying to get a start. She loaned her own voice coach and her own arrangements to Virginia Dale when Miss Dale was trying out for an important

Promising Performance Cut Short by Blackout

'Aida' Progresses to Second Act When Audience Is Told to Clear Water Gate Immediately

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The surprise blackout, cutting short the San Carlo Opera Co. performance of "Aida" last night at the Water Gate, culminated the bad luck which, in the form of rainy weather, has twice caused the postponement of the presentation. Scheduled first for Saturday, August 9, and rained out that night, and again on last Saturday, it was to have brought the season of summer opera to a close last night.
In the first scene of the second act, while the dance of the Ethiopian slaves was in progress for the entertainment of the Egyptian Princess Amneris, an air-raid warning stepped that a blackout test would be staged in 15 minutes. Repeating the instructions for leaving the Water Gate, he told the audience how to depart without excitement. The lights were turned on and the people left to board the buses or to find their cars without hurry and in orderly manner leaving the Water Gate, he told the audience how to depart without excitement. The lights were turned on and the people left to board the buses or to find their cars without hurry and in orderly manner leaving the Water Gate, he told the audience how to depart without excitement.

Mr. Lindi has the robust tenor timbre and skillful delivery for the dramatic presentation of Rhadames which his voice in the high registers, the high notes being too open and wavering, to be pleasing. Miss Kaskas was regal as the Egyptian Princess and her voice is free and expressive, if not so deeply colored to form a contrast with that of Aida. Eleanor Knapp as the unseen Priestess provided one of the vocal delights of the evening with her beautiful singing of the short Kravitt and Mr. Kozakovich were ideally suited to their respective roles. In the small role of the messenger, Francesco Curci sang and acted splendidly.
The well trained ballet and Mr. Canaruto's authoritative directing contributed also to the excellence of the performance as far as it went.

Mr. Rabinovitch has joined the roster of United Artists producers, it was announced yesterday by Gradwell L. Sears, the company's vice president and general sales manager.
Mr. Rabinovitch's first Hollywood production will be "Russian Girl," to be based on the Soviet production, "The Girl From Leningrad," but using only the basic idea of the original story and expanding it to a much broader, dramatic tale of brave women under fire.
Director Elliott Nugent has recently solved a problem in Axis relations which has vexed many a cleverly titled film, "The Crystal Ball." The scene at a shooting gallery calls for Ray Milland to hit three targets placed in a row—Hitler, Mussolini, and Hirohito.

Blackout Interrupts Beethoven Recital

By ELENA DE SAYN.

The first air-raid practice to interrupt a concert was sounded last night when the University Trio played its second recital in the Beethoven series, given under the auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation at the Library of Congress.
A gentle breeze on the stage while the three artists, Antonio Brosa, violinist; C. Warwick Evans, cellist; and Gunnar Johansen, pianist, were in the midst of Trio in E Flat Major, Op. 1 No. 1, forewarned the listeners. A few seconds later, the chief of the Music Division, Dr. Harold Spivacke, appeared on the podium, tapped on Mr. Brosa's shoulder and the music suddenly came to a stop. He requested the audience to leave their seats immediately and to proceed toward the air-raid shelter.
Unhurriedly, chatting leisurely, the public sauntered into the halls, but before the majority could get near the shelter, lights went out. Time seemed long to all those who stood or sat on the floor lined against the walls in the darkness, relieved only at intervals by pocket flashlights and an occasional lantern carried by a solemn guard.

After the "all clear" sound, the concert was resumed where it broke off, the artists finishing the "Scherzo" and the finale of the trio and Mr. Brosa and Mr. Johansen retreating once more to conclude the program with the "Kreutzer" Sonata, Op. 47, in A Major. At least three-quarters of the original assembly remained to the very end to applaud the artists enthusiastically.
The opening number of the concert consisted of another early work of Beethoven, "Sonata for Cello and Piano, Op. 5, No. 1," which received a fine treatment in the hands of Mr. Evans and Mr. Johansen.

Winning Contract By The Four Aces. (David Bruce Burnstone, Oswald Jacoby, Howard Belanter, Theodore Lightner, world's leading team of four inventors of the system that beats every other system in existence.)

Crime Doesn't Pay! No. 115. "Why can't I ever win a finesse?" grumbled South. "If that one had worked, I'd have made six." As it was, South was set one trick at a contract of only four; but astute bridge detectives may find that South was a criminal rather than just a victim of misfortune. South dealer. Neither sides vulnerable.

The bidding: South West North East 1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 4♥ Pass 4♠ Pass. West opened a trump, and South promptly drew two more rounds, exhausting those held against him. He then cashed the diamond ace and finessed dummy's jack. East took the diamond queen, cashed the club ace, then shifted to spades to set the contract. Can you spot the crime in this story? Try it for yourself before you read on. South was a criminal for staking his contract on the diamond finesse. After drawing three rounds of trump, he should have led the club from the dummy. If East put up the ace, South would be able to discard three diamonds from dummy diamond finesse, and then dummy would have no diamond losers. If East ducked the club, South would win with one of his club honors, after which he could set up the diamonds. With no club losers, South could afford to lose a diamond and two spades to a thorough bridge detective will note that this plan would not work if West happened to hold the ace of clubs. But in that case the attempt would have cost nothing; the contract would still depend on the diamond finesse. It is a crime for South to ignore a line of play which could lose nothing and might give him his contract without any trouble.

Yesterday you were Theodore Lightner's partner, with neither side vulnerable, you held: ♠ K J 2 ♥ A 10 6 5 3 ♦ A 10 4 ♣ A 10. Lightner: Schenken You Jacoby 1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 4♥ Pass 4♠ Pass. Answer—Bid two no-trump. You have a well-balanced hand, and the equivalent of an opening bid, and a possible double stopper in the unbid suit. No other bid would describe your hand so accurately. Score 100 per cent for two no-trump, 20 per cent for three clubs. Question No. 1,155. Today you hold the same hand, but the bidding is different. Lightner: Schenken You Jacoby 1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 4♥ Pass 4♠ Pass. What do you bid? (Answer tomorrow.) (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Points for Parents By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE. Planning with children is more effective than fault-finding. Mother: "Son, will you help me plan some way we can carry some of the good camp routines over into our home life? What do you think about having inspection?"

Not This. Mother: "I don't see what good it did you to go to camp. You're just as careless and you don't pick up your clothes any better than you did before you went."

Sonnysayings. I'm feelin' better, but I'm still a little picky!

Uncle Ray's Corner

By RAMON COFFMAN. A visitor to Egypt may see the people following ancient customs. For example, they still use the "shadoof."

The Egypt of today is far from being the foremost nation of the earth. It still has mighty pyramids and treasures of olden kings, but they are from the past.

Yet of all the lands I have visited I have found Egypt the most interesting. Pyramids, sphinxes, huge statues of kings and walls of ancient temples are there to be seen and studied.

Some steps have been taken in Egypt to meet the needs of the modern world. Railways have been laid between the larger cities and they handle a large volume of freight and passenger traffic.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Of all the little meadow and forest people none is brighter-eyed, merrier or more beloved than Striped Chipmunk.

He keeps them, too. No one can keep a secret better than Striped Chipmunk. That is because he keeps it wholly to himself--doesn't tell even so many as one, which is the only way to keep a secret.

On this particular morning Striped Chipmunk was in the best of spirits. He whisked in and out between the stones of the old wall, raced along the top, chased his tail and did other foolish things, just to show how happy he felt.

Bless you, no! He only chuckled and laughed the more as he listened to his two angry cousins. "What are you laughing at and having such a good time about?" asked one of the Merry Little Breezes.

War Delays Wool Clip

Because so many men have joined the army, sheep growers of New South Wales, whose 50,000,000 sheep normally require 10,000 shearers and 10,000 shed hands in shearing time, must extend the season from three months to six this year.

Maryknoll Fathers Were Utterly Oblivious To Danger Throughout Hong Kong Siege

(Birth of a series by a Canadian who escaped from the Japs at Hong Kong.)

By BENJAMIN PROULX.

I have heard that the Japanese tortured the Maryknoll Missionary Fathers when they swarmed over Hong Kong. I do not know whether this is true.

I mean that I did not see the actual torturing with my own eyes. I hope it isn't true, because the Maryknoll Fathers were among the bravest of the brave men who stood up against the Japanese when they came in. I do not mean that they took guns and went into the front lines and shot it out against the Japs. They did things even braver than that. Here is what I mean:

I had an assignment a few days before the Christmas Day surrender to carry a dispatch case from the Aberdeen Naval Base to the British battle headquarters, about 6 miles across Hong Kong Island.

Map of Positions.

Another naval officer and myself volunteered for the job. We knew the case contained a map of our artillery positions which had been taken from a captured Japanese officer. The main gate of Aberdeen was covered by 3-inch Japanese guns and had other guns placed so they could rake any one who escaped the first fire for about 200 yards. We figured we had about a 50-50 chance of making it. We got into an English Vauxhall, which is about the equivalent of a Buick, and sped out of the gate.

The first shell hit 30 yards behind, the second 20 ahead of us. We rolled over on two wheels, tore off a mudguard and kept going. After that we plunged through two Japanese infantry patrols which took pot-shots at us with machine guns.

I am not trying to picture Brown or myself as brave and daring fellows. I am telling how it was going out. Because we knew it would be even worse going back to battle headquarters for the Japanese would be looking for us and we did not think we had even a 50-50 chance on the return trip. So while we were waiting for orders from battle headquarters I started to stroll around. I was feeling a little tense and I felt better moving than just sitting and waiting. This particular section of Hong Kong was under steady air bombardment by the Japanese. I had just left headquarters when the air-raid alarm sounded and the Japanese planes came over for about the 10th time that morning.

I started looking around for a likely place to duck into when I noticed one of the Maryknoll Missionary Fathers sitting under a tree. Most of the branches had been blown off by bomb fragments or concussion and it was more like a burnt wooden stake than a tree.

But the Maryknoll Father was sitting there quite calmly and smiling at me. He crooked his finger at me and I went over and sat down on the ground beside him.

"Would you like to receive holy communion?" he asked.

I am a Catholic and since the Japanese attacked I had not had a chance to go to confession or to receive holy communion. I knelt on my knees and made my confession. Even as he murmured the familiar words of absolution, I felt better. There were Japanese bombs heaving the ground beneath us, but his voice was calm and steady and when I shut my eyes it seemed different from the peaceful gloom of the confessional. All the strain and the tenseness and the feeling of death flowed out of me.

Then he drew from his hip pocket a small metal container which contained the Host and gave me holy communion. Then we sat in silence for a while under the tree and watched the planes wheeling high above us in the clear cold sunlight.

Then the all-clear sounded and I thanked him and said good-by and we went back through the Japanese gunfire to Aberdeen and that

War Plant Guards Made Subject to Army Rules

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—Guards at vital war industries throughout the Third Service Command are being sworn in under the articles of war as members of the Civilian Auxiliary Corps of the Internal Security Forces, Maj. Gen. Milton

War Plant Guards Made Subject to Army Rules

A. Reckord, Third Service Command chief, said yesterday. Under their new status, the guards will be subject to full Army regulations, including court martial, and cannot resign.

The move, part of a Nation-wide program under the direction of the protest marshal general, is in charge of specified industrial areas. Thousands of men in plants throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia will be affected.

A COMPLETE NEW NOVEL IN THE POST

Out today 10¢

SO DEEP MY LOVE

by a new Post author
H. K. BISHOP

► Ordinarily a novel this long would be split into several parts. Instead, you will find—complete in this week's Post—a story long enough to be published in book form.

So Deep My Love is a wartime romance. The story opens in a Cape Cod dance hall. A sailor on the loose. A deb who decides to go "democratic." And both smart enough to know the hazards of falling in love. This novel wraps together the drama of a submarine disaster and a love affair with two different endings. Complete in the new Post—out today.

Will typhus K.O. our soldiers?

Already the deadly germ is on the rampage in Europe. How is Uncle Sam protecting our boys from this scourge? And why can't Hitler match that protection? John Kobler reports a discovery that may alter the whole course of the war. Read Blitz Plague.

She was golf poison

The conceited club champ won by playing "rules"—not golf. Until a redheaded gal, consistently in the 70's, decided to take him on at his own game—and trot out a few rules not in the book! A short story, Golf Poison, by Charles Henry Hamilton.

Uncle Sam's new U-boat killers

Up the Mississippi, 2000 miles from New Orleans, yards that used to make river packets are cooking up a strange breed of sub chasers—building 'em upside down, launching 'em sideways, packing 'em full of hell. Read about our Catfish Navy. Color pix.

Where the monkeys have no tails

He was West Point, not Navy. The hitch-hike he got from a Navy MTB off Zamboanga was accidental. So was the meeting with the Jap destroyer. An adventure yarn by Leon Ware.

WHAT IS "ROUGH-ON-JAPS" DOOLITTLE REALLY LIKE?

What do his flying mates say about "Tokyo" Doolittle? Reporter Lewis B. Funke has collected some affectionate yarns about this chivalrous general which will leave you admiring him even more.

Those amazing softball gals!

Batter up, dearie! They play like men (125 games a season), even look like men (no shorts, no tight sweaters!). Why did their league draw 234,000 cash customers in one town last year? See Miss Casey at the Bat, by Robert M. Yoder.

Unsolved animal mysteries

Can U.S. train fliers enough?

What good are planes without pilots? How America's new ATC intends to train 2,000,000 high school boys—and girls—in the next 12 months, is told by Roscoe Drummond and Glen Perry in Wings for American Youth.
