CARDINALS TRIP YANKS IN SECOND GAME, 4-3

Roosevelt Returns From Secret Inspection Tour of U. S. War Areas

8,754-Mile Trip Details Will Be Revealed Today

'Successful' Visit Made to Plants And Bases

President Roosevelt returned to Washington early this afternoon from what the White House described as "a most successful two-week inspection tour of the country."

A brief announcement of the President's return is the first news about his movements which has been authorized for publication under the censorship code since he left on the extended trip two weeks ago today.

The announcement said Mr. Roosevelt would hold a press conference later in the day to release to newspapermen "the story of his trip."

White House Announcement. The text of the announcement follows:

"The White House announces the return of the President to Washington after a most successful two-week inspection tour of the country."

"The President left Washington Thursday evening, September 17, and returned shortly after noon today, completing a trip of 8,754 miles, during which he inspected Army and Navy bases, ship yards, tank, airplane and shell producing plants, Army, Navy and Marine training centers, supply depots and embarkation ports."

"The President traveled from Washington through Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, on west through North Dakota, Montana and Idaho to Washington, down the length of the Pacific coast and returned through the Southwest, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas to Louisiana and then to Washington, stopping at Army cantonments in Mississippi and South Carolina."

"Upon his return to the White House, the President announced he would hold a press conference later today for the purpose of giving the Washington correspondents the story of his trip, accompanied by members of the inspection tour."

Way Is Cleared For Final Action On Price Bill

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee said today farm leaders in the House would accept the Senate version of farm-price control, thereby apparently clearing the way for completion tomorrow of congressional action on anti-inflation legislation.

"We will do this in the interest of speedy action," Mr. Fulmer said. "We want to stop inflation, and at the same time help the farmer produce the necessary food for war-times." He added.

"In making this statement, we assume that the bill will be properly administered. The Senate bill is practically in line with the House, but not nearly as strong."

At the same time he said House farm leaders would insist that the final draft of the legislation include a provision, now in the House bill, for continuation of a floor under farm prices for three years after the war.

70 Million Cost Of War Building, Engel Declares

House Told Total Will Be Double Estimates; Secrecy Assailed

Estimating that the actual cost of the War Department's newly completed Pentagon Building in Arlington will be "in excess of $70,000,000," or twice the figure given earlier by War Department officials, Representative Engel, Republican, of Michigan charged today in the House that "censorship has been established concerning figures which have no relation to military secrecy."

"The figures thus concealed," Mr. Engel added, "disclose the failure of Government officials to carry out the mandate of Congress concerning this building."

Terminating the project an example of "waste and extravagance," Mr. Engel placed responsibility "for the shameful squandering of the taxpayers' money and the bond buyers' dollars" on the "Chief Executive as Commander in Chief of the armed forces."

First Building Too Small. Mr. Engel pointed out that the War Department's first new building on Virginia avenue was scarcely completed at a cost of $9,500,000 when it was found to be too small.

He said the department then asked Congress to appropriate another $6,500,000 for temporary office space and that later department officials (See PENTAGON, Page 2-X.)

Connally Warns Congress On 'Dangerous' Speeches

By the Associated Press. A call by Senator Connally, Democrat, of New York for immediate occupation of "all French possessions within the American sphere of civilization" brought a sharp warning today from Chairman Connally, Democrat, of Texas of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee against "dangerous references" in Congress to "delicate" matters of war policy.

At the same time, Senator Connally said he thought it was "most unfortunate" that Wendell Willkie had been "so free with his comments while he was in Russia."

Senator Connally obviously referred to Mr. Willkie's recent suggestion that military leaders might need "prodding" to establish a "second front" on the European Continent.

Senator Mead asserted that this Government's relations with the "depraved" Laval regime had about "reached the breaking point," and that stern measures should follow the "seizure of American citizens in France."

Mr. arch-depraver, and his collaborators, slaves to Hitler, have shocked the sensibilities of the world by the mass deportation of Jews and the exchange of labor for Germany's release of French war prisoners," Senator Mead declared.

"The New York Senator declared that Great Britain's recent action in Madagascar sets a precedent for us to follow" in occupying French possessions in the Caribbean Sea and even Dakar, strategic African naval base.

23 Held For Robbery Quiz

In a series of raids during the night Detective Sergeants Irving Lubore and Robert Maghan picked up 23 colored men for questioning in connection with recent robberies. All of the raids were made in the First and Second Precincts. No charges were placed against the men, police said.

Henderson Rejects First 4 Rent Ceiling Appeals to Reach Him

Act Wasn't Intended To Assure All Landlords 'Fair' Return, He Says

By the Associated Press. Price Administrator Leon Henderson, rejecting the first four protests against rent ceilings to reach him, today held in one case that the act under which rents were frozen was not intended to see to it that every landlord was receiving an "adequate" or "fair" return on his investment.

Theresa E. Reimel of Philadelphia had asked that the rent regulation in that area be amended to permit her to charge $60 instead of $45 a month for her property, on grounds that the freezing of rents at levels of last March did not enable her to obtain a fair and reasonable income from the property.

Mr. Henderson said Congress had chosen the freeze system of rent control in order that rents would be stabilized "at the level which landlords and tenants had worked out for themselves by free bargaining in a competitive market which had (See RENTS, Page 2-X.)

Gunner Who Bailed Out of Haugland Plane Safe After 47 Days in New Guinea Jungle

By DEAN SCHEDLER. Associated Press War Correspondent. SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA. Friday, Oct. 2.—Another amazing story of an American who was dropped unprepared from the skies into the wilderness of this island's jungles and survived came to light today when 20-year-old Sgt. Thomas Riley of Old Landing, Ky., walked into a United States base.

The rain-drenched youth said he parachuted on August 7 from the same plane in which Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, was a passenger. Mr. Haugland now is in a hospital at Port Moresby recovering from the effects of last March did not enable her to obtain a fair and reasonable income from the property.

"Riding the tail I noticed it was getting darker and I didn't recognize any of the country we were flying over," Sgt. Riley related. "I didn't think anything was unusual, but when the pilot called for me to bail out, I jumped and prepared to bail out. I wasted no time."

As with all the others, it was Sgt. Riley's first jump, but he said he really enjoyed it. "Falling through the clouds and semi-darkness, I had no fear except what I was going to hit on the ground," he said.

"I landed on top of a tree easily, but couldn't see how far from the ground I was, so, monkey-like, I hung suspended from the tree limbs the night long."

"I discovered the next morning I was only about 6 feet from the ground and felt silly spending a fitful, uncomfortable night when the ground was so near."

Sgt. Riley said he spent 10 days walking without food except for the few berries he found. Although streams with clear water were plentiful, he said hunger forced him often to rest.

His shoes wore out after three days, he said. He found shoe prints the second day and believed he had come upon some flying companion, but his shouts were unanswered and he plodded on.

Some time later he reached the native village and from there was eventually delivered to a nearby base, and then trudged the last few miles to operations headquarters trying to find out where his organization was and how to send a message home.

Senate Restaurant Hikes Prices On Most of a la Carte Orders

Senators who spent the last week debating the need for new price and wage controls, had the problem brought home to them today, when the Senate restaurant put out a new menu showing increases on most of the a la carte orders.

The regular prepared lunches were not raised in price, but on the contrary, were enlarged by the addition of an appetizer, soup and a wider choice of vegetables.

Some of the special items, however, went up as follows: Planked tenderloin steak, from $1 to $1.50; lobster with potatoes and salad, from $1 to $1.25; chef's salad with shrimp and sardines, from 40 cents to 60 cents. A number of other dishes went up 10 or 15 cents and a few had 5 cents added.

Special Train Ban May Create Problem For Yanks and Cards

By the Associated Press. EASTMAN, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Circuit Judge William B. Ardrey today in a charge to the Franklin County grand jury said the liquor industry "has been captured by people of foreign blood in its entirety" and they operate it strictly for profits.

The judge made his criticism of the industry in ordering the grand jurors to investigate charges that distilleries along the Kentucky River and Elkhorn Creek near here were dumping waste material into the streams and killed large quantities of fish.

Judge Ardrey urged the jurors not to pay attention to the distilleries' "patriotic plea" and hurry up production of alcohol was partly responsible for putting waste in the streams.

He said the streams "belong to the people and no one has a right to impair them, make them impure."

The profit motive, Judge Ardrey said, was behind the "pollution" of these streams, adding that the distilleries "have participated in pollitions" and this participation has "paid good dividends."

Beazley Goes Route to Win For St. Louis

New Yorkers Tie Score in Eighth On Keller's Homer

By FRANCIS E. STAN, Star Staff Correspondent. ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—The fighting St. Louis Cardinals lost a 3-0 lead to the Yankees in the eighth inning of a wild World Series ball game here today, but the National Leaguers charged back and won a 4-to-3 victory before 35,000 spectators.

Johnny Beazley, a 23-year-old "right-hander in his first season in the majors, lasted the route although in trouble in all except two innings—the sixth and seventh. He gave 10 hits but splendid control and great support enabled him to win the game that ties up the series at one decision apiece.

Only six hits were given the Cards by big Ernie Bonham but the Red Birds used them well. Only one was wasted. The winning run came in the Cards' half of the eighth when, with two down Outfielder Ernie Slaughter doubled sharply to right.

As Slaughter slid into second base, Shortstop Phil Rizzuto let the throw get away from him for an error, and Slaughter raced to third. Here young Stan Musial, another rookie, banged his first hit of the series over second base and Slaughter scored to make it 4-3.

The Yanks made a desperate bid in the ninth but again Slaughter saved the Cards. With Pinch-Runner Tuck Stainback on first base with nobody out, Buddy Hassett singled to right. Slaughter threw a strike on the fly to Third Baseman George Kurovski and nailed Stainback. Beazley took care of the next two hitters.

FIRST INNING. NEW YORK—Rizzuto walked on five pitched balls. Rolfe flied to Moore. Rizzuto stole second. Cullenbine fanned. Kurovski threw out Di Maggio. No runs; no hits; one left.

ST. LOUIS—Brown walked. Moore bunted and both runners were safe when Bonham threw too late at second base to catch Brown. Slaughter flied to Keller. Musial flied to Hassett. W. Cooper doubled to right-center, scoring Brown and Moore. Hopp hit to Di Maggio. Two runs; one hit; one left.

SECOND INNING. NEW YORK—Keller flied to Moore. Gordon lined a drive into left field and the Yankee bench fell while fielding the ball. It went for a double. Dickey grounded out to Hopp. Gordon moving to third. Brown threw out Hassett. No runs, no hits, one left.

ST. LOUIS—Rizzuto threw out Kurovski. Marion fouled to Dickey. Beazley took a third strike. Nothing across.

ST. LOUIS—Brown flied to Di Maggio. Moore fouled to Dickey. Rizzuto threw out Slaughter. Nothing across.

FOURTH INNING. NEW YORK—Di Maggio flied to Hopp near the Yankee bench. Keller singled through left field. Gordon lined to Kurovski and Keller barely got back to first base in time to escape being doubled. Dickey singled to right, but Slaughter's fine throw held Keller on second. Hassett flied to Keller. Nothing across.

Reds at Stalingrad, Attacking On Stalin Order, Score Gains; Advance on Don Also Reported

City Facing 'Most Decisive Moment,' Russians Report

By EDDY GILMORE, Associated Press War Correspondent.
MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—Backed up by a stream of reinforcements from across the Volga and barges from the riving guns of the Volga flotilla, Russian infantrymen under fresh, telephoned orders from Joseph Stalin to yield no more were reported crunching forward today northwest and southwest of Stalingrad.

Dispatches to Red Star from Stalin's namesake city frankly pictured it as in the "most decisive moment" of its trial as an increasing weight of Axis troops and machines was thrown into the fight.

(A Reuters dispatch to London from Stockholm said today that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces, battling to relieve Stalingrad, had broken through the German defensive position at some points along the Don northwest of Stalingrad.)

(In Berlin the German high command said that several more wedges had been driven into the northern section of Stalingrad and reported the destruction of 98 tanks which led a strong Soviet counterthrust farther north.)

Key counteroffensive strokes on the wings of the constricted front evidently were designed to wipe out or offset a new wedge driven into the northwestern flank by a fresh German tank division, as reported in the Kremlin's midnight communiqué.

Even with the arrival of that panzer division and two fresh infantry divisions, the Germans seemed unable to deal the decisive blow. At the same time Volga boatmen were keeping communications open across the river, bringing up Russian reserves under fierce German air attacks.

Red Star said that from 600 to 1,000 planes had been bombing Stalingrad each day, piling debris on debris.

Hundreds of civilians clinging to the tumbled walls of their homes and factories were reported to have died under the continued bombings. Schools, hospitals, the public library, the University and Palace of Physical Culture were said to have been destroyed.

Three Settlements Retaken.
Today's midday communiqué said the enemy had been dislodged from one village at the southwestern outskirts of Stalingrad, and Red Star said that in that southern sector three settlements had been recaptured, with Rumanian troops thrown into panic in one place.

Another height was seized in the Russian relief offensive northwest of Stalingrad, where several Axis divisions were reported massing in support of the drive already estimated to be employing as many as 500,000 of Adolf Hitler's troops.

Australian Forces Pursue Japs Up Mountains in New Guinea

Troops Are Pressing On After Recapture Of Nauro in 10-Mile Advance

By the Associated Press.
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 1.—Australian troops were reported driving steadily up the southern slopes of New Guinea's Owen Stanley Mountains today in pursuit of retreating Japanese forces after recapturing Nauro yesterday in a swift 10-mile advance from Ioribaiwa Ridge.

An Allied communiqué announcing the advance said the Japanese were abandoning additional supplies and equipment as they fell back and an Allied spokesman declared there was no doubt their withdrawal was hurried.

Strong formations of Allied attack bombers, escorted by fighters, were reported harrying the enemy supply lines in the vicinity of Menapi, about 4 miles north of Nauro, where it was believed the Japanese might attempt to make a stand along a ridge offering defensive possibilities.

Little Opposition.
The latest Allied advance apparently was negotiated with comparatively little opposition, for the communiqué said there had been no contact with the retreating main body of the enemy forces. It was the first time Allied headquarters had used the phrase "main body" in referring to the Japanese retreat.

An Allied spokesman said the Japanese had made no attempt to fortify their positions at Nauro as they did at Ioribaiwa Ridge, high-water mark of the enemy advance. The ridge was recaptured Tuesday.

Nauro is about 42 miles airline northwest of Port Moresby, but is about 60 miles from that vital Allied base by trail.

Bombers Pound Buna.
Allied heavy bombers continued to pound Buna, main Japanese coastal base 78 miles northeast of Nauro, and the intermediate depot of Kokoda.

Heavy demolition bombs also were dropped on both ends of Wairopi Bridge, spanning the deep gorge of the Kumasi River on the enemy's vital supply line. The bridge, a repeated target of aerial attack, was left sagging and badly damaged, the communiqué said.

Other Allied air formations attacked Japanese bases in the Northern Solomons, scoring many direct hits on the Buin airbase on Bougainville Island and bombing the airfield and supply dumps on nearby Buka.

September Arms Output 'Spotty,' Nelson Declares

Gains Over August Few and Still Short Of Fixed Goals

By JAMES Y. NEWTON.
War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson declared today that September production of munitions was still "spotty," indicating some gains had been made over August, but that the output of war goods still was short of previously fixed goals.

Mr. Nelson in a press conference did not elaborate on this statement concerning last month's arms output. He announced yesterday that August production was up 8 per cent over July, though 14 per cent short of forecasts—a performance that is "nothing for us to brag about."

The production chief said he hadn't made up his mind whether to name a labor representative as a vice chairman of the War Production Board.

Will Announce Policy Committee.
He added that he would announce shortly the membership of a labor-management policy committee for WPB, composed of two representatives of labor, two from industry and an impartial chairman.

He said all had been decided on with the exception of one industry man.

Mr. Nelson added that labor also might be given representation in WPB's steel branch and on the staffs of Vice Chairman Ferdinand Eberstadt and Charles E. Wilson, who handle scheduling of programs and production for WPB.

On the question as to whether he would follow the priority or the allocation plan for dividing war materials, Mr. Nelson said a combination of both would be used.

He implied that from 25 to 30 per cent of raw materials would continue to be handled through the priority system and the remainder through a plan of direct allocations.

Materials for more important military items—tanks, guns and airplanes—will be allocated directly to manufacturers.

Mr. Nelson was asked how long it would be before the cuts of materials in the fourth quarter of the year for civilian use would be reflected in consumer goods for sale. He replied that it would probably come within four or five months.

Doubts Food Shortage.
Mr. Nelson said he had not been close enough to the food situation to tell just what it was. He added that crops this year were unusually good and that he did not think there would be any particular shortage.

Now if They Can Only Get Together

Conditions Confuse Small Businessman, Davis Tells Senators

'Even Break for All' Will Keep Morale Up, OWI Chief Says

Eimer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, today told Senators investigating the plight of war-distressed small businessmen that national morale would take care of itself "if everybody gets an even break."

Further, he told the Senate Small Business Committee, the people should be told, within the limitations of military security, "where we are going, how we are doing in this war and the general objectives of the struggle."

The American public, he noted, was vitally interested in seeing that sacrifices "are distributed equitably" and knowing why sacrifices are necessary.

Small businessmen seem ready to make their share of sacrifices, but are critical of the Government methods involved in the imposition upon them of those sacrifices," Mr. Davis testified. "It is the mode of application of Government policies requiring sacrifice rather than the implied sacrifice itself which causes complaint among many small businessmen."

The small manufacturer has been slow to adjust himself to war conditions, disinclined to give up civilian trade for war production, confused and, in his confusion, he has preferred to let the other fellow do it," Mr. Davis continued.

"Such attempts as he has made to obtain war contracts have frequently been uninforming and sporadic," Mr. Davis declared.

Mr. Davis presented details of a comprehensive survey of small business in war prepared by OWI through studies in the field, and with the co-operation of a number of Government agencies and the staff of the Senate Committee.

Hits OPA.
Mr. Davis praised the office of Price Administration, stating that the retail merchant while believing that price control is necessary in many instances had not been sufficiently informed of the regulations. He quoted a retail association official on the subject as follows:

ODT Freezes Rail Schedules, Bans Football, Racing Trains

Eastman Bars All but Regular Service To Clear Tracks for War Requirements

Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman today issued an order "freezing" as of September 26 all railroad passenger schedules in the United States and formally ruled out the operation of special trains to races, football games and other sporting events.

The order, effective October 4, prohibits railroads, with some exceptions, from running special passenger trains or adding new trains to existing schedules. It further prohibits extra sections to regular trains, unless the extra sections have been run at least 20 per cent of the time during the last 90 days to handle normal flow of business.

Mr. Eastman's order further stated that no railroad may operate a passenger train which includes a car "chartered" to, or the use of which by prior arrangement is restricted to, an individual or group of persons traveling together.

200 Men Employed On War Project at Beltsville Strike

Protest Difference in Pay for Same Work at Camp Springs Airport

Two hundred men employed on a new war installation project at Beltsville, Md., went on strike today in protest over reported differences between their wages and those paid for similar work at the new Camp Springs Airport, several miles away.

About 700 men are employed on the new project, and the contractor, the Beltsville Aircraft Plant, said AFL tractor operators and grading machine operators walked out yesterday and the remainder of the 200, mostly truck drivers, followed in sympathy today, he said.

Outliers Get Higher Pay.
Union officials said the walkout was decided on when men were brought in from New York to work on the Camp Springs project at a higher pay rate than that paid for comparable work at Camp Springs, the Beltsville installation.

House to Delay Inflation Action Until Tomorrow

Rayburn Says Time Will Be Given for Study of Senate Bill

By the Associated Press.
Speaker Rayburn said today House action on the Senate version of anti-inflation legislation would be delayed until tomorrow to give members time to consider its provisions, then the legislation probably would be sent to a joint House-Senate committee to compose differences.

The Senate bill embraces less rigid stipulations than the House bill on the inclusion of farm labor costs in the establishment of agricultural price ceilings.

Today was the deadline set by Mr. Roosevelt in his September 7 you-do-it-or-I-will message on cost of living controls.

Backed by an 82-10-0 vote in the Senate, administration leaders sought to obtain an agreement by House members to the major features of a compromise Senate version directing the President to stabilize prices, wages and salaries at September 15 levels, so far as practical.

Senator Brown Satisfied.
That would entail a reversal of the House vote to alter the basis of computing farm parity standards and acceptance of an administration-sponsored amendment inserted by the Senate directing the President to raise price ceilings where they did not reflect the increase in labor and other costs since January 1, 1941.

Senate approval of this latter provision by an 86-10-4 vote yesterday ended an eight-day controversy between administration and farm bloc members over the conditions under which price ceilings would be placed on farm products.

Senator Brown, Democrat, of Michigan, floor manager for the measure, told reporters he and others of like views were satisfied with the compromise because they believed it reposed in the President discretionary authority which would have been denied to him if the farm bloc had prevailed.

"I am satisfied we have a bill that is substantially the kind of a bill we were trying to get when we started," Senator Brown said.

Thomas Claims Victory.
On the other hand, Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, claimed the compromise was a victory for the farm bloc. There is little difference, he said, in the effect of the amendment finally adopted and a proposal which he offered and the Senate once accepted, only to throw out later, for an upward revision in parity standards to include the cost of farm labor.

"Everything depends on how this compromise is administered," Senator Thomas declared. "It is essential that the spirit of the law be followed if the farmers are to have sufficient money to meet the cost of producing the necessary food."

His words were echoed by the leaders of four national farm organizations who had been fighting for the inclusion of labor costs in the legislation.

British Shoot Down Three Axis Bombers at Matruh

Axis Bombers at Matruh

By the Associated Press.
CAIRO, Oct. 1.—Two long-range British fighters plunged into a formation of Axis bombers over Matruh yesterday, shot down three and returned safely to their base, a British communiqué reported today.

The dogfight took place, the bulletin said, during an increase in enemy aerial activity, which included attacks by dive bombers and fighter bombers. British bombers also were active. Two planes failed to return from the day's operations.

Allied planes also attacked the Axis airdrome at Sidi Haneish and the enemy bases of Tobruk, Salum and Bardia Tuesday night.

Operations on the land front yesterday were said to have been confined to artillery exchanges.

The communiqué did not confirm an Italian report that Axis forces had repulsed a tank-supported British attack on the southern end of the El Alamein front, inflicting sharp losses and taking 200 prisoners.

British Troops Assault Flank.
ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), Oct. 1 (AP)—British infantry, supported by tanks, launched an assault on the southern flank of the Egyptian battlefield yesterday, but was thrown back by Axis forces with rather heavy losses, the Italian high command reported today.

Two Killed in Explosion In Small-Arms Plant
By the Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—Two men were killed, one instantly, by an explosion today in a drying unit at the Small Arms Ammunition plant.

The dead are Francis S. Rakowski, 19, and John Stanley Manucus, 23, both of St. Louis.

The explosion jarred the residential area in the immediate vicinity of the plant. A plant spokesman said no other persons were injured.

There was no damage to the building in which the men were working and production continued uninterrupted, he said.

Death Toll in Bombing Of Boys' School Now 29

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 1.—The death toll at a boys' school in Southern England which was demolished by a heavy German bomb Tuesday had risen today to 29.

Unfavorable weather over the continent which has held up the RAF bombing offensive on Germany for the past week kept the British bombers grounded again last night.

Thus the hammering of the enemy which started September 22, followed by attacks during the first four nights of the month tapered away to a seven-night lull at the end of the month.

Famed Nazi Air Fighter Killed in North Africa

Killed in North Africa

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Capt. Hans Joachim Marseille, Nazi fighter pilot for whom the German high command has made extravagant claims, has been killed on the North African front, a communiqué announced today.

The communiqué indicated his death was occurring while observing that he died "unconquered by the enemy."

The announcement credited Marseille with having shot down 158 "British adversaries in aerial combat."

Hitler Speech Is Seen As Hint of One Final Blow at Stalingrad

British Observer Believes Nazi Withdrawals to Aid Rommel Has Started

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Competent observers closely following developments on Germany's eastern front today interpreted Adolf Hitler's speech of yesterday as meaning that the Germans would make one more all-out attempt to take Stalingrad and the Grozny oilfields and then stabilize the front for the winter.

These observers, whose anonymity is required, expressed a belief that Hitler already had started withdrawing troops from inactive zones of the east to reinforce Marshal Erwin Rommel in Africa and the forces holding Italy, France and Norway against the prospect of an Allied second front.

One observer said Hitler's speech at the Berlin Sportsplatz, an annual fixture at the start of the German winter relief campaign, "was the closest thing to a sane military report he has ever made."

"In contrast to the usual rabble-rousing talk, he gave a statement more like a sober report from conservative military men."

The Hitler passage which particularly evoked the interpretation of a reversion to a general holding action follows:

"For this year we have drafted a very simple program. First, hold in all circumstances what must be held; that is, let the enemy run against us wherever we do not intend to advance and let him storm as long as he wants to, hold adamantly and wait to see who tires out first. Second, absolutely attack in all circumstances where attack is necessary."

(In the United States the Hitler speech evoked a mere ripple of interest. Press comment ranged from the tack taken by the London observers—that Hitler might be truly announcing a winter policy of general defensive action—to the conviction that no matter what the Fuehrer had to say, his past performances had established the futility of interpretation.)

(German propaganda, of course took up the Fuehrer's themes like the strains of a symphony.)

Divisions Being Replaced.

Apart from supposed German withdrawals in inactive areas of the eastern front, observers here believe that divisions heavily mauled in the Stalingrad fighting also are being replaced and withdrawn to Germany for refitting, rebuilding and rest, thence to be sent to France, Norway and Italy instead of back to Russia.

"Winter conditions on the Leningrad and Moscow fronts are rapidly reaching the point where troops can be withdrawn from these sectors as well," one source added.

Some military men stated that the reduction of Stalingrad now has become a matter of prestige rather than of any great military significance.

"The Germans have already reached the Volga at other points, making use of the river impossible," one explained.

Stalingrad is under fire from artillery and bombing planes and cannot be used by the Russians as a port or manufacturing center, and even if the Germans succeed in driving the Red Army out, street by street, by the time the city is overrun it will be battered as to be of no use even as a winter garrison for troops."

Move on Oil Fields Seen.

The other big effort expected of Hitler before he goes on the winter defensive, it was said, is likely to be an attempt to take the Grozny oil fields in the deep Caucasus and to establish air bases along the Caspian Sea from which German aviation can threaten Russian shipping during the winter.

"The sober tone of Hitler's statements and references to holding what the Germans have leads to a belief that they are going on the defensive this winter, except perhaps in Egypt, and to wait and see where the Allies strike," an observer elaborated.

Both British and American airmen said Hitler's reference to prospective heavy air attacks on Britain was "only what could be expected, as the Luftwaffe cannot be expected to stand by and let the Allies gather supplies and strength on this island."

Britain, Unmoved by Speech, Reconciled to New Air Blows

Considerable Doubt Expressed That Hitler Will Be Able to Carry Out His Boasts

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Here Hitler's boastful promise to his people yesterday that he will retaliate against Britain for the bombing raids on Germany finds John Bull quite unmoved and stoically reconciled to renewal of the Nazi war from the air.

However, while there can be no question of Der Fuehrer's intention to resume his aerial hymn of hate, there is considerable doubt how far he will be able to carry out his plans. He no longer is the mighty man he was before he tangled with the unconquerable Bolsheviks.

He can't just say, as of old, "Let Britain be bombed," and know that his genie had done the job.

Hitler's ability to conduct further wholesale bombings of Britain is contingent on several important things. One of them is whether the Allies open up that second front about which he has shown by deed and word that he is worried.

His declaration yesterday that he is ready to meet such an offensive is at least partly true, for his defensive preparations in Western Europe have been obvious. Should such an Allied operation eventuate the all-highest might find himself far too busy meeting it to permit of bombing Britain.

Fully Preoccupied Now. At the moment, of course, he is fully preoccupied with his thus far unsuccessful effort to annihilate the Russian army of the south.

For months now the German efforts against Britain have been confined largely to nuisance raids. These have included such ignominious forays as that of Tuesday, when a second front is marching, watch out, and turn back (from Russia)," Hitler said.

"We, however, did not watch out and did not turn back, but pursued our way and marched on."

"Thereby I do not get ready for a second front. When Mr. Churchill says 'Now we want to leave that to the Germans to think over in their fear where and when we shall open the second front,' I can only say: Mr. Churchill, I have never been afraid of you."

"You are right by saying that we are compelled to think things over, for if I had an opponent of military distinction I might be able to calculate where he will attack."

270,000 Checks Being Sent Today to Soldiers' Kin

Approximately 270,000 October checks totaling $19,500,000 were to be mailed from the War Department today in payment of family allowances to eligible relatives and dependents of soldiers, as the law requires.

As time goes on, the allowance payments will increase steadily in volume each month as more and more applications are made. The number of checks now being mailed is about twice the number mailed in September and it is expected that it will require 10 days to send out the last check. Of the total number, 135,363 were said to be first payments authorized for October. The remainder represents the October payment of allowances which were authorized and on which payments were made last month.

Several thousand clerks are engaged night and day in the task of getting the allowances approved and paid as rapidly as possible. The applications first must be reviewed and passed on by the Adjutant General's Office, while the Allotment Division of the Finance Department issues the checks.

Italian-Born Youth Held For War Plant Damage

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—A 17-year-old Italian-born apprentice machinist admitted in Federal Court yesterday that he put screws and nails in naval engines at a war plant where he formerly was employed, but he insisted "I didn't mean to do it. I just got mad."

A Federal agent told the court damage may have been done to motors already installed in vessels now at sea and "we may hear of some of the boats blowing up."

The boy, Michele Perretti, was committed to a Federal institution until 21.

300,000 Newsboys Give Up Outings to Sell War Stamps

Approximately 300,000 newsboys will forego their annual outings Saturday to put on a special $5,000,000 War stamp selling drive.

Word reached the Treasury that carriers for 900 newspapers throughout the country have canceled usual events for "Newsboys Day" to conduct the campaign.

These boys already have sold more than $50,000,000 worth of stamps, mostly in 10-cent transactions. Meanwhile sales of War bonds in September showed signs of meeting a national quota.

Knox Sees Navy Day Most Vital in History

Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that Navy Day, to be celebrated October 27, would mean more this year "than at any time in our history."

He called on the men of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard to "keep up the good work" and said that "every American is proud" of the men of the fleet.

Mr. Knox is in South America, but the statement was issued through his office here.

He called the day one "on which we can rededicate our best efforts to our common cause, as we pay just tribute to the brave men of our fleet for taking the battle to the enemy."

25 Steel Concerns Accused of Violating Ceilings on Prices

OPA Gets Temporary Injunction Following Sterling Firm Inquiry

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—The Office of Price Administration yesterday accused 25 steel concerns of violating Federal price ceilings and obtained a temporary injunction against them.

The petition said the defendants "participated in a steel market completely outside the pricing regulations of the OPA . . . did each, other's washing—buying and selling through various companies, largely by paper transactions, and stacking on a layer of profits and commissions with each resale transaction."

James C. Gruener, OPA regional attorney, asserted "the whole scheme, resolved about" the Sterling Steel Products Co. of Cleveland.

Defendants in addition to Sterling are: The Kulka Co., Youngstown, Ohio; Briggs & Turivas, Blue Island, Ill.; N. R. Cerf and the Wrought-Washer Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee; Columbia Steel Tank Co., Kansas City; Eastern Steel and Metal Co., New Haven, Conn.; Empire State Novelty Co., Fisher Brothers Steel Corp., Northeastern Steel Corp., Standard Sales Steel Co., Inc., and Steel Rolling Co., Inc., all of New York.

Also the Parkside Sheet Metal Works, Inc., Chicago; Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., North Chicago; Pittsburgh Steel Foundry Corp., Pittsburgh; Riverside Steel Co., Wheeling, W. Va.; Whiting & Davis Co., Plainville, Mass.; L. E. Zurbach Steel Co., East Somerville, Mass.; Armor-Bronze, Inc., Taunton, Mass.; Evans Case Co., North Attleboro, Mass.; Gate City Iron Works, Omaha, Neb.; Peerless Steel Products, Inc., Detroit; Lorenson-Matthews Manufacturing Co., Dickson City, Pa.; D. Loveman & Son Iron and Steel Co., and the Republic Structural Iron Works, Cleveland.

Also named was an individual, "L. Louis" of Detroit, whose identity has not been fully established, an affidavit said. It charged Louis made over-selling commissions of $17,790. OPA said it had traced 32,000,000 pounds of steel on the Sterling Co.'s books, and "much of it went into non-essential industries."

Global Maps Are 'Very Useful' In History Class, Teacher Says

Fifth and sixth grade students at Lafayette Elementary School, Broad Branch road and Northampton street N.W., are using their global maps at least twice a day, according to Miss Margaret R. Pepper, principal.

Miss Pepper explained that the students use The Star's global maps first for their morning news discussions. Later in the day the maps are employed for history and instruction.

"We have found them very useful," commented Miss Pepper. One sixth-grade class, she added, has been using the maps even more than the other classes because its students concentrate on the study of transportation and what trade routes mean to the family wardrobe and dinner table.

Many of the Lafayette pupils, according to Miss Pepper, like the maps so well that they have sent for the more durable copies available on heavy white paper.

A total of 8,071 of the more durable maps have been sold over The Star counter. These cost 10 cents if purchased at the counter and 15 cents if delivered by mail.

More Wedges Driven In North Stalingrad, Germans Declare

98 Tanks, Mostly British And U.S. Made, Destroyed, High Command Says

By the Associated Press. BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Oct. 1.—The high command today said that several more wedges had been driven into the northern section of Stalingrad and reported the destruction of 98 tanks, mostly British and American made, which led a strong Soviet counterthrust farther north.

"In the Caucasus district," a communique said, "embittered fighting for fortified heights is being continued. In Stalingrad, attacking troops, supported by tanks, have driven several wedges further into the northern part of the city."

"Soviet Attacks Repulsed." Of the Russian counterthrust against the German holding front north of the city the communique reported:

"Strong Soviet infantry and tank formations attacking the barrier erected by German troops in the north were repulsed in a counter-attack with heavy casualties inflicted on the Soviets."

"Ninety-eight Soviet tanks, mostly of British and American origin, were destroyed."

A Transocean dispatch quoted military sources as saying 100 tanks led the attack and suffered 98 per cent destruction.

A broadcast quoting the Transocean account cited the destruction of 98 tanks as "further proof of the extraordinary efficiency of German defense arms, and also as evidence of the quality of tank production in Britain and the United States."

"Further along the propaganda line of attempting to discount the British and American tanks—not identified as to type—the Transocean account added that 'similar experience with American tanks already has been obtained by the Germans on the African front.'"

The high command said a German armored corps "by rapid advance from the Don to the Volga, had cut traffic on the (Volga) river and severed the communications of Stalingrad toward the northwest" during the last part of August, thus making the attack on Stalingrad possible.

Barrier Position Held. "In heavy defense fighting lasting several weeks," the war bulletin said, "this German panzer corps has held an important barrier position in the face of the attack of highly superior enemy forces."

The Russians were said to have lost 25 tanks in continued attacks in the Voronezh battle zone, northwest of Stalingrad; and at Rzhnev, northwest of Moscow, the Germans said they made local improvements in their positions despite stubborn Soviet resistance.

"In difficult, woody terrain in the rear of the central sector of the eastern front strong Soviet bands were encircled and wiped out by German and Hungarian units," the communique added.

"The Soviets in these operations lost 1,026 dead, and 1,218 prisoners as well as a number of heavy and light arms, German and Hungarian losses were small."

Farther to the north the Germans said they encircled other strong Russian forces and repulsed Red Army counterattacks.

Bill in Australia Seeks To Broaden Constitution

By the Associated Press. CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 1.—H. V. Evatt, attorney general and minister of external affairs, introduced in the House of Representatives today a bill designed to broaden the Australian constitution to permit post-war reconstruction in keeping with the four freedoms of the Atlantic Charter.

Mr. Evatt declared the present constitution, adopted in 1901, was too inflexible to permit attainment of the ideals of the United Nations with respect to freedom of expression, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

The Legislature, he said, must be endowed with power to put into effect the objectives which Australia is pledged as one of the adherents of the Atlantic Charter.

"Surely," he added, "those ideals for which our fellow countrymen have sought and died are worth embodying in the fundamental law of our constitution."

His bill provides in part that "Parliament shall have full powers to make laws for peace and order and the good government of the commonwealth for the purpose of carrying into effect the war aims and objectives of Australia as one of the United Nations, including the attainment of economic security, and social justice in the post-war world and for the purpose of post-war reconstruction generally."

Three Ringling Agents Hurt in Auto Crash

By the Associated Press. LEEDS, Ala., Oct. 1.—Three billing agents of Ringling Bros. Circus were injured, two seriously, yesterday when the advertising automobile in which they were riding left the highway 3 miles west of here and plunged into a sign board.

Arthur Outten of Winston-Salem, N. C., suffered fractures of both legs and a rib; William Brownell of Miami received a fracture of the left arm and a broken jaw, and Harold Barrows of Worcester, Mass., was treated for cuts and bruises at a Birmingham hospital and dismissed. Brownell and Outten were taken to a Birmingham hospital.

Youths 19 and Aliens Face Call in Canada

By the Associated Press. OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 1.—Youths 19 years of age and aliens who are within all callable age groups are made liable for compulsory military service in a proclamation announced yesterday by War Services Minister J. T. Thompson.

These extensions of the scope of the calls issued under the National Resources Mobilization Act of 1940 will tap a group of about 107,000 men in the 19-year-old class and about 20,000 aliens in the various age groups subject to call.

War Appropriations To Reach 140 Billion Before End of Year

New 7-Billion-Dollar Deficiency Bill Is Due To Be Passed Shortly

By the Associated Press. An unofficial recapitulation of war appropriations since the attack on Pearl Harbor showed today that the total will reach approximately $140,000,000,000 before the end of the first year.

A new deficiency bill, amounting to nearly $7,000,000,000 and carrying more than $5,500,000,000 for the Navy alone, will emerge from the House Appropriations Committee within a few days to be added to approximately $133,000,000,000 previously approved.

The staggering allotments—with others even larger in 1943 deemed a certainty in congressional circles—already represent an amount four times the size of this Nation's bill for the first World War.

Congressional anticipation of even greater demands next year gained additional substance from War Production Chief Donald Nelson's announcement Tuesday that the value of this Nation's munitions output in August alone reached $4,700,000,000.

And Mr. Nelson emphasized that the output was below the WPB's first-of-the-month forecast, that the accomplishment was "not one that we can brag about"—in itself a broad indication that the war spending rate would accelerate in coming months.

Appropriations voted by Congress do not represent actual expenditures, but constitute authority for administrative officials to commit the Government for definite purposes. Thus, an appropriation for a ship construction program might not actually be spent until next year or 1944.

Of the approximately $133,000,000,000 already voted, about $96,000,000,000 was earmarked for the War Department.

U. S. Forces in London To Get New Canteen

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Oct. 1.—Plans for a London recreational center for the United States armed forces on the lines of the Stage Door Canteen in New York were announced today by Harvey D. Gibson, American Red Cross commissioner in Britain.

The center, to be known as "The Rainbow Corner" and to open soon, will be located just off Piccadilly Circus and will accommodate 400 persons.

Entertainment is to be provided by a committee of American and British movie, stage and radio performers with Noel Coward as chairman.

Willkie Is Not Overdue, Chungking Declares

By the Associated Press. CHUNGKING, Oct. 1.—Authorities said last night that Wendell L. Willkie's trip from Russia to China was taking longer than had been expected, but that he was not overdue in any degree that might imply anxiety.

His movements, they said, were known, but his route from Kuibyshev, which he left Monday, was not being disclosed in order to spare towns along the way from Japanese bombardment.

It was not expected here that any word would be made public until Mr. Willkie, traveling as special representative of President Roosevelt, arrives in Chungking, where a flower-decked welcome has been prepared.

Japanese reconnaissance planes were seen scouting near the capital Tuesday and again yesterday, strengthening the Chinese belief that the Japanese wanted to put a dampener on the Willkie celebration when he arrives.

Bitter Winter Arrives At Aleutian Islands

By the Associated Press. TOKIO (From Japanese Broadcasts), Oct. 1.—Bitter winter already has come to the Aleutian Islands, a Domei correspondent reported yesterday from Kiska, Japanese-occupied base at the western end of the chain.

The first snow of the season has blanketed the whole island, the correspondent reported, and biting winds are sweeping the unsheltered Japanese camps, which are almost continuously enveloped in dense fog.

Winter Nearing, Workers Pile Wood in Streets of Moscow

Women Help Capital's 'Labor Front' Gather Stores From Surrounding Forests

By HENRY C. CASSIDY, Associated Press War Correspondent. MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—Barricades of a new kind are rising in the streets of Moscow.

They are not the steel rails and earthworks which were put up a year ago against a German advance pressing close to the capital. Instead they are piled logs to be used as fuel against the cold of the coming winter.

Huge woodpiles are being stacked in the streets and squares by workers—mostly women—who are busy on the capital's "labor front."

They are none too early; already there is frost in the night air and winter soon will be on the city.

The labor front was recruited under a decree last February 13 authorizing the government to mobilize able-bodied men and women with no children less than 8 years old for war industry services. These include supplying fuel.

Thousands mobilized last April 17 called up men between 14 and 55 and women from 14 to 50 for farm work. Thousands more were mobilized to cut and haul wood.

As a result there was a tremendous exodus to the country of city residents carrying knapsacks, saws and axes.

In forests for 200 miles about Moscow these recruits were assigned to cut two cubic meters of wood a day during the periods of mobilization, running up to four months. A cord of wood is 3.8 cubic meters.

Altogether perhaps 100,000 housewives, students and others not engaged in war work joined the labor front. A like number left jobs where they could be spared in factories, offices, schools and hospitals to work on the woodpiles, collecting fuel to be used in their own buildings when the cold comes. As many as 20,000 others gave up their Sunday free days to work along the Moscow river unloading barges bringing wood in from the forests.

Lack of New Front Calls for Extra Effort, Russian Declares

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—Yemelian Yaroslavsky, member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, said in a long article in Pravda today that the absence of a second front in Europe calls for double and triple efforts from the Russians.

However, he added that "today the USSR is not alone; together with Great Britain and the United States it is joined by a large part of the world in the fight on Hitlerite Germany."

House Unit to Hear McNutt on Training of Disabled Persons

Civilians Would Be Aided As Well as Veterans Under Pending Bill

By the Associated Press. Capitol Hill expected to hear today the administration's views on a proposal to provide vocational training for the Nation's physically handicapped—both disabled war veterans and civilians.

Paul V. McNutt, war manpower commissioner, was slated to appear before a House subcommittee which yesterday heard Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, declare that legislation was needed immediately for the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers.

Gen. Hines said there already were disabled veterans of this war awaiting the opportunities of vocational training to equip themselves for self-support again in civilian life.

Not only would the legislation provide rehabilitation for veterans with service-connected disabilities, but its author, Representative Barden, Democrat, of North Carolina, said it would expand and co-ordinate Federal efforts toward the re-training of persons in civilian life, regardless of whether their physical handicaps had any war connection.

Purpose of the legislation, Mr. Barden said, was to make the physically handicapped self-supporting.

The measure would provide that the Federal Government pay all the costs of vocational training for disabled war veterans, and add $1 to each 50 cents contributed by the States for the rehabilitation of civilians. The Government, through the Federal security program, now has a system of dollar-for-dollar matching of State funds for such work.

Bitter Winter Arrives At Aleutian Islands

By the Associated Press. TOKIO (From Japanese Broadcasts), Oct. 1.—Bitter winter already has come to the Aleutian Islands, a Domei correspondent reported yesterday from Kiska, Japanese-occupied base at the western end of the chain.

The first snow of the season has blanketed the whole island, the correspondent reported, and biting winds are sweeping the unsheltered Japanese camps, which are almost continuously enveloped in dense fog.

Mrs. Roosevelt Chats With War Wounded At Coast Hospital

Hears Action Stories Of Marines, Sailors Back From Front

By the Associated Press. SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt chatted here yesterday with war-wounded sailors and marines convalescing in the Naval Hospital. She congratulated them on their devotion to duty and expressed wishes for their speedy recovery.

As she strolled through the hospital wards, Mrs. Roosevelt occasionally stopped at beds to hear the combat experiences of the patients. She was accompanied by Mrs. James Roosevelt, wife of Maj. Roosevelt, U. S. M. C.; Mrs. Raiston S. Holmes, wife of the 11th Naval District commandant, and Navy medical officers.

Lauds Marines' Gallantry. Pvt. J. D. Caswell, U. S. M. C., of St. Louis, veteran of the Solomon Islands action, grinned as Mrs. Roosevelt praised the marines for their gallantry in action.

In the surgical ward she spoke with Sgt. Theodore J. Fallon, U. S. M. C., of Philadelphia, wounded in action at Palmyra Island.

Later Mrs. Roosevelt spoke in behalf of a $1,200,000 foundation fund for Bethune-Cookman College for Negroes at Daytona Beach, Fla., asserting that "other nations can believe in our sincerity only as we show them by example, not in lofty talk, how a democratic and Christian country deals with minority races."

Honorary chairman of the Campaign Committee, she shared the program at a Methodist church with Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the college.

Urges Youth Leadership. "One reason I am interested in this school," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "is because it is building youth leadership that should be a mighty force in combating any harmful leadership that might try to attract a following among Negroes."

She urged "all Americans to realize the time is here when each must ask himself: What rights should every citizen have in a democracy?"

"Do we believe that members of a minority race should have equality under the law?" she asked. "Do we believe all men and women have equal rights to jobs, provided they are capable of holding them, that each man has an equal right to the opportunities of education, to participation in government?"

These are basic steps, Mrs. Roosevelt asserted, "in putting our house in order."

Biddle Asks Delay in Chemical Trial Until After War

By the Associated Press.
 Attorney General Biddle announced today that he had asked the United States District Court at South Bend, Ind., to postpone until after the war the trial of anti-trust charges against 21 chemical companies and 65 of their officials. A Justice Department representative presented the request to Judge Thomas W. Slick of the court this morning, and Judge Slick took the request under advisement, with a promise of a decision Monday.

Mr. Biddle explained that the postponement was requested by the Army and the Navy, which filed letters with him saying that "the trial of these cases at this time would seriously impair the war effort."

Charged With Price Fixing.
 The companies and their officials have been charged with illegal fixing of prices, restrictions on production and control of distribution of various important chemicals such as formic acid, sulphuric acid, oxalic acid, oxalic acid, chromic acid, muriatic acid and bichromates of soda and potash.

At the time charges were filed against the companies on June 26, the Justice Department took the position that the importance of these chemicals to the war effort made it necessary to proceed with the prosecution in order to help war industries get needed chemicals at their prices.

Makes No Comment.
 Quoting the requests of the Army and Navy, Mr. Biddle made no further comment on the decision to seek a postponement.

Companies named in the indictment were: E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Victor Chemical Co., General Chemical Co., Innis, Spelden & Co., American Cyanamid & Chemical Corp., Monsanto Chemical Co., Dow Chemical Co., Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Prior Chemical Corp., Davison Chemical Co., Atlas Co., Mutual Chemical Co., Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., Southern Agricultural Chemical Corp., F. Detroit Train Speed Placed at 45 M.P.H. In Dickerson Wreck

Engineer Admits Failure To Observe Caution Light; Collapses at Hearing

The Ambassador from Detroit was running 45 miles an hour when it rammed the Cleveland Night Express, according to testimony given Baltimore & Ohio officials, investigating the triple train crash at Dickerson last Thursday which is believed to have cost 18 lives.

After Engineer Rufus McClelland of the Ambassador had testified yesterday that he failed to see a yellow caution signal warning of the train ahead, Supt. P. K. Partridge of the Baltimore division, questioning him about speed, said:

"Your train ran by signal E-36-14 (which showed red a few yards from the accident scene) at approximately 50 miles per hour and struck Train 18 (the Night Express) at approximately 45 miles per hour. 'I guess I got a little confused up there in the fog before I thought where I was,' the engineer responded, according to an Associated Press report from Baltimore, where the hearing is being held.

Engineer Collapses.
 Mr. McClelland, who has been charged with involuntary manslaughter by Montgomery County authorities, collapsed while on the stand after admitting that he had not seen the yellow signal "which was at the entrance to the block above that in which the collision took place—or, roughly, a distance of a mile and a half away. He previously had testified to seeing the signal, which indicated the presence of the train ahead, and said that he had reduced speed by half, as the rules required. The collision struck the night express just inside the block where the signal showed red and hurled a crowded sleeping car into a passing freight train.

Mr. McClelland's admission about his failure to see the yellow signal came during examination by F. H. Haskins, general manager of the B. & O.

The engineer commented that the accident would not have happened if he had had an experienced fireman with him because the fireman "would have seen the yellow signal."

"Then you did not see the yellow signal as you had previously testified?" Mr. Haskins asked.

Mr. McClelland turned pale as he answered "No," and slumped forward in his chair.

Speed Tape Introduced.
 Officials immediately cleared the hearing room and called a physician. State's Attorney Ben F. Wilkinson of Montgomery County said afterward the engineer had fainted. The hearing was then suspended until today.

Supt. Partridge introduced in evidence the record speed tape of the Ambassador Diesel, which showed, he said, a speed of 67 miles per hour when Mr. McClelland passed the yellow signal.

The superintendent added that the indicator showed speed of the Ambassador began to drop gradually from a point one-quarter of a mile west of the bridge across the Monocacy River to the eastern end of the bridge, where it was approximately 62 miles an hour.

"It then gradually reduced to a point where the torpedoes were struck, when it registered 56 miles per hour," Mr. Partridge continued. "It passed the fuses at 54 miles per hour. (The fuses and torpedoes had been put out by the Cleveland train.) Mr. Partridge then fixed the speed at the time of the accident.

Fireman Inexperienced.
 John P. McCurdy, 34, Diesel electric supervisor on the Ambassador, said the windshield wipers on the front of the locomotive were not working at the time and that the train was running through patches of fog.

Paul V. Bowman, fireman on the Ambassador, said he was regulating the motors of the locomotive when the engineer began to make an emergency stop.

Mr. Bowman related that he heard the explosion of torpedoes "two or three seconds later" and "I put my head out the window and saw the reflection of the fuses, the red signal and the back of the Cleveland train. I pulled my head in and yelled to the mechanic to duck as it looks like Mac has got him."

Wilson H. Stevens, road foreman of engines for the Baltimore division, testified that Mr. Bowman had made only three previous runs on Diesel engines and never had received more than preliminary examination.

Using Younger Men.
 Before the war, Mr. Stevens explained, firemen were required to serve one year on the freight trains before they could qualify for passenger service. Because of the manpower shortage, he added, the rail-

French to Evacuate Women and Children From Port of Dakar

Vichy Explains Move Is Precautionary; Census to Be Taken

By the Associated Press.
 VICHY, Oct. 1.—An official source said today that Pierre Boisson, Governor of Dakar, had decided to evacuate European women and children from the French West African port.

The announcement said Boisson issued an order September 29 for a census to be taken among women and children of civilian and military families living in the Dakar region.

(A similar announcement over the Vichy radio was heard in London Tuesday, but another broadcast shortly after canceled it without explanation.)

(Axis and Vichy French propaganda recently have pumped rumors about Dakar, apparently to plant the idea that an Allied offensive against the tactically important African port is impending. The evacuation plan may be part of the buildup.)

Together with the announcement of the census, it was stated that "the Governor General has just decided to prepare methodically for the evacuation of European women and children in excess at Dakar."

It was explained as "precautionary," although French sources stressed it as an opportunity to decongest the city of its overcrowded European population.

French ship movements, presumably in preparation for an evacuation, were reported off Dakar and the announcement said the order was received calmly.

It was issued in the midst of sessions of the first "Economic Conference of Dark Africa" at Dakar, attended by representatives from all over French West Africa, including Senegal, the Ivory Coast, French Guinea, Dahomey and the interior, under Boisson's chairmanship.

road was forced to use "younger and less experienced men."

Mr. Bowman said he was hired by the B. & O. in March, 1942.

A locomotive expert testified today that the engineer of the Ambassador had "adequate" distance to stop his train after sighting a warning fuse.

Harlon D. Clark, supervisor of locomotive operations for the railroad, based his testimony on tests which he ran with a train of the same length and same weight as the Ambassador—the train which rammed the Cleveland Night Express, tossing one of its Pullmans into the side of a freight train.

Mr. Clark declared that even if the Ambassador had been "going 70 miles an hour when the engineer sighted the fuse, he could have stopped the train much short of the Cleveland Express."

Britain Takes Drastic Action to Collect All Scrap Metal

Situation Is Serious; Voluntary Drive Nets 1,400,000 Tons

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Oct. 1.—The British government, urgently needing heavy steel scrap and aware that the United States has no extra supplies for export, has invoked drastic measures to clean up waste metal within the country.

All occupants of premises in which there are 3 tons or more of metal suitable for scrap are ordered to disclose the amount to the Works and Planning Ministry. Heavy penalties are provided for non-compliance.

Britain's metal situation is serious, explained George Hicks, joint parliamentary secretary to the Works and Planning Ministry. "We have a little light scrap in hand, but we are behind with our heavy scrap. We want heavier scrap to supplement the lighter stuff we have collected so that the rate of production can be maintained."

During the last 14 months Britain's voluntary salvage drive realized 1,400,000 tons of scrap. Railings have been taken from about 2,000,000 homes, parks and other areas. Almost 95 per cent of the metal from bombed buildings has been salvaged. But there is a pressing demand for more.

No drive will be made immediately, however, to salvage pedestrian crossing beacons, lamp standards and streetcar tracks, as has been suggested in various quarters. The labor involved in removal and repair of roads or sidewalks afterward is considered too great for the amount of metal obtained.

"We want to take all genuine scrap before we start on things in current use or materials which will take a large labor force to make available," Mr. Hicks said.

Germany has gone much further than we have and has even requisitioned oil stoves for scrap. We don't propose to do that, but people must realize it is a solemn and legal duty to give every bit of scrap to the war effort."

Get in the Scrap

Scrap Dealers Point to Need Of Steady Flow Through Winter

Yards Busy Now With Material Yielded In Superdrives; Labor Proves Problem

District junk dealers today were busier than the proverbial one-armed paper hanger and at four wholesale yards the output of scrap metal, stimulated by the recent Sunday superdrives, was limited.

Wholesalers' estimates of how long it will take to eliminate current stock piles varied from three weeks to months, but it was pointed out that the stimulation of scrap must be a continuing process in order to keep steel mills operating through the critical winter months.

A survey of wholesale yards by a Star photographer and reporter touched the following points:

David Taxin & Son, 18 M street S.E. Hyatt Iron & Metal Co., 1335 First street S.E. Joseph Smith & Sons, 3619 Benning road N.E. J. Brenner & Son, 801 Hamlin street N.E.

Lack of Labor Handicap. All four dealers, handicapped by a shortage of labor, were operating processing machines at capacity and said they could clear away the scrap for shipment to mills at a much faster rate were they able to obtain additional help.

Mr. Taxin, who handled 257,070 pounds of scrap coming out of the first Sunday drive September 20, observed that he had enough work to last him a month, but he added that the following qualification: "Another superdrive would swamp us, but the regular collection of scrap through the dealers, which will insure a steady rather than a fast, large collection, will help us later in sending an orderly flow to the mills."

Mr. Taxin could not estimate how much of the September 27 drive of scrap metal he will shear and load.

Still Rolling In. "Judging from the figures," he said, "we may get more than we got the first Sunday, since the second collection is said to be larger. The stuff is still rolling in."

Hyman Hyatt pointed proudly to his yard full of scrap metal which included not only several huge mounds of the vitally needed salvageable items, also featured a train carload of sheared scrap ready for shipment to the mill.

Mr. Hyatt said his production figure had jumped 100 per cent during September as the result of the mammoth District drive.

He also observed that the Emergency Salvage Committee's two Sunday drives netted collections far in excess of the estimated 5,000,000-pound totals.

"That's just my guess," he added. 500-Ton Mound. Philip Smith, one of the operators of Joseph Smith & Sons plants, the largest wholesale yard in the District and said to be one of the largest in the eastern part of the United States, pointed to a mound of scrap extending approximately 40 feet high and weighing roughly 500 tons, or 1,000,000 pounds.

"That's all Sunday superdrive scrap," he said, "and there's more to come."

Olin Hartenstein was operating a crane which was transferring the pile. In huge mouthfuls, nearer to Mr. Smith's scrap baling press, an awesome mechanical device which compresses huge, jagged hunks of metal into neat 800-pound cubes.

"In three or four weeks," said Mr. Smith, "that pile will be gone. Ordinarily, it would take us about two weeks to eliminate it, but there's more coming from the second Sunday pickups."

Mr. Smith said the greatest benefit of the two Sunday whirlwind drives was the result they will have in the long run in making people scrap conscious.

Surprised by Amount. "People were aroused to the importance of scrap," he said. "I admit the 5,000,000-pound collection staggered me. It was a great record."

Prosecutor Turns In Murder Weapons For Scrap Metal

By the Associated Press. NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 1.—Knives, hatchets, iron bars and other metal implements used in murders and assaults in Essex County were turned over to the Nation's scrap pile yesterday by Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld.

Among the collection were two iron sashweights used in a murder in 1930.

Fairfax Collects 238 Tons Of Scrap; Drive Extended

Special Dispatch to The Star. FAIRFAX, Va., Oct. 1.—A total of 238 tons of scrap has been collected in Fairfax County during the two-week drive, Robert B. Walker, county defense co-ordinator, said today. The drive is under the direction of the County Salvage Committee, headed by Mrs. Douglass Murray of Fairfax.

The material collected includes 214 tons of iron and steel, 14 tons of non-ferrous metal and 10 tons of scrap rubber. All of the material has been collected by trucks direct from homes, and none of the collections received by the deposit stations has been taken up yet.

Mr. Walker said that the committee expects to collect a like amount from the deposit stations, located in communities throughout the county. Due to the success of the drive, it is planned to continue it another week.

Havre de Grace Bridge To Become Metal Scrap

By the Associated Press. ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Maryland's Public Works Board decided yesterday to scrap the old highway bridge spanning the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace in the interests of national defense.

Reporting the board's action, Gov. O'Connor said the War Production Board would be advised that it could proceed at once with demolition work.

W.P.B. has estimated that the bridge contains 3,120 "long tons" of iron and steel, the Governor said.

Gov. O'Connor also reported that although the value of the scrap metal which would be obtained from the bridge amounted to only $58,000, W.P.B. has estimated its demolition costs at about $140,000.

"This should indicate to every citizen that the intrinsic value of metal is much greater than its worth in dollars and cents," Gov. O'Connor said.

Why should your Uncle Sam have to dun anybody to buy a War bond to help preserve the democratic way of living? Buy a bond as your own expression of willingness to help.

Mr. Walker said that the committee expects to collect a like amount from the deposit stations, located in communities throughout the county. Due to the success of the drive, it is planned to continue it another week.

Derby Winners' Shoes Join Stills in Kentucky Scrap Pile

By the Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, Oct. 1.—Everything from the shoes of Kentucky Derby winners to "moonshine" stills became metal junk today in the patriotic fervor gripping Kentucky in its scrap collection campaign.

Gov. Keen Johnson urged the State to set the pace in salvage, pointing out that Kentucky led the Nation in percentage of men who enlisted voluntarily for military service and was fourth in percentage of war bond purchases.

A great deal of Kentucky lore will be devoured by the hungry steel furnaces before the campaign, in all States, led by the Nation's newspapers, is completed.

A mounted exhibit of the horse shoes from Kentucky Derby winners of the last 13 years was donated. So was a pair of "moonshine" stills from the hills.

The old Federal building, a Louisville landmark, is coming down and its metal will swell the total. This will be the first Government-owned building to be demolished in the salvage campaign.

Iron fences, once familiar sights in these parts, are now "out of style" and acetylene torch workers go from residence to residence, securing the scrap.

Metal railings in civic chambers also are being donated.

The AFL has proposed a victory Sunday, uniting all workers in the State in a day of concentrated collection. Truck drivers are volunteering their services, as are acetylene welders, and the miners have been organized into teams to comb abandoned mine shafts and premises for metal.

Every one else is working, too. Business firms have donated fleets of trucks for pickups and the farmers, farm women, women's club school children and Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are helping.

Drive Begun to Collect 'Dormant Scrap' at Plants

By the Associated Press. The War Production Board yesterday started a Nation-wide "dormant scrap drive," asking 75,000 industrial executives to get out the materials.

Dormant scrap is defined as obsolete machinery, tools, equipment and fixtures which can no longer be used in the war effort.

The drive is under the direction of Lessing J. Rosenwald, director of the WPB Conservation Division.

The top executives of the plants were urged to instruct their salvage executives to take inventories of all plants, quickly mark all dormant scrap for identification and arrange immediate disposal through scrap-dealer channels.

Chevy Chase Unit Collects 7,200 Pounds of Scrap

Collections of scrap in section 4, Chevy Chase, amounted to 7,200 pounds, it was announced today by George V. Menke, chairman of the Montgomery County Salvage Committee.

The piles had lain on the sidewalks and curbs until yesterday when trucks were found to collect them. Mr. Menke said that collections are being made as fast as trucks are made available but that private operators could not be expected to contribute use of trucks extensively in view of tire and gasoline rationing.

At the same time, Mr. Menke praised the activities of the Boy Scouts of the Bethesda area, who, he said, have collected more than 31,000 pounds of scrap, not including paper and rubber.

Clark Lee Says Jap Navy Men Are Good, Daring Gunners

U. S. Strategy in Pacific Shifting To Offensive Against Strong Force

(Clark Lee has been out on the Pacific battle front since the first bombs fell. He was in Manila at the time, en route home for a vacation. Since then, he has seen the fury of war roll through the Philippines, down across the Pacific to Australia. He spent eight weeks on a United States aircraft carrier and, from his observations there and during the Solomons battle, he here gives an impression of the Japanese Navy and its strategy.)

By CLARK LEE, Wide World.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Prior to December 7 if you had asked an American Naval officer his opinion of the Japanese Navy you probably would have been told:

"Their discipline and ship handling are good but their gunnery is poor and their strategy is lacking in imagination and daring."

That opinion was shared by such outstanding American naval men as Admiral Harry Yarnell, former commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet. It was based partly on the fact that each year when the United States Asiatic Fleet was summering at Chefoo, Tsingtao and other points on the North China coast, the Japanese would stage nearby gunnery practice, and they missed their targets badly.

It is evident now that this was deception. The fact is that the Japanese Navy is good in everything, especially in gunnery and willingness to take long chances, as was the case at Pearl Harbor and frequently since.

Only Two Seafronts. So far in this Pacific War there have been only two seafronts in the traditional style—between surface ships without planes. The Japanese won both—the Battle of Macassar Strait in January and the Battle of the Java Sea in February.

The Macassar battle was a series of running engagements in which our original claims to have sunk and damaged some 60 Japanese ships were whittled down by a later check to four enemy ships damaged. In the Java Sea the Japanese sank the majority of an Allied force consisting of Dutch, British and United States destroyers and cruisers. The Japanese outnumbered us and outshot us. In addition, two Dutch cruisers were sunk through a tragic miscalculation, apparently by running into their own minefields.

Even so, the Java Sea battle was to my mind one of the most gallant fights of the war. The Dutch rear admiral, K. W. F. M. Doorman, led the Allied force out to a fight to the finish, to win or lose, to sink or be sunk.

Some of our naval men think that Doorman was foolhardy and should have saved his ships by running for Australia. But for Doorman to have done that would have been the equivalent of our Navy retiring to South America if the enemy fleet approached San Francisco.

Example of Jap Daring. Doorman's withdrawal would have left the Netherlands East Indies open to invasion whereas fighting meant a long slim chance that the Japanese would be turned back. So he fought.

In the Solomons battle of August 7 we outnumbered the Japanese but they outguessed and outgunned us. Our losses were the Australian cruiser Canberra sunk and one American cruiser damaged. We do not claim that any Japanese ships were damaged.

That action was a good example of Japanese daring and they have given further demonstrations by sending cruisers and destroyers into the narrow waters between Tulagi and Guadalcanal to shell our Marines.

However, in the near future, if not already, our defenses in the Solomons should be sufficiently well rounded to prevent the Japanese from making such forays with impunity and also to prevent their landing troops on Guadalcanal.

Our seizure of Guadalcanal and Tulagi was a start on a policy under which all our operations in the Pacific will be offensive. This was definitely promised by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, in a speech recently in which he said:

"We will win this war only by fighting. All the Nation's productive output will be to no avail unless we come to grips with the enemy. . . . Our tactics must be such that our objectives will be gunned, bombed or torpedoes to destruction."

Cautious Attitude Reversed. Those words undoubtedly will go far toward reversing the cautious attitude which has governed the actions of many high-ranking naval men. Many of them carried into wartime the old concept of the Navy as the "first line of defense" and the peacetime bugaboo under which an officer who lost his ship wrote fins to his career.

Some of them were stunned by Pearl Harbor and confused by the emergence of the airplane as the dominant weapon. Their reaction was to adopt the defensive and that attitude cost us the chance to save Wake Island and to do in the first weeks of the war what we did later at Midway.

Of course, a certain amount of caution was necessary because we couldn't afford to lose Hawaii and even today we still are not sitting too pretty so far as naval strength goes. This condition will be corrected by new ships and by sufficient fighters, dive bombers and torpedo planes at our island bases. Planes alone in sufficient numbers can defend those bases and we will be able to risk carriers in further offensive actions.

Nimitz's orders to the Navy to "get in and fight" were not aimed at the rank and file of the boys who fly the planes and shoot the guns. En route to and during the Solomons action, I spent more than eight weeks with them aboard a carrier and their fighting spirit is superb. So is their training. Their equipment, while good, could be still better and they hope shortly to be furnished with the best available.

Breaks Play Big Part. But even with the best men and the best equipment, you have to have the breaks to win in this new style of sea-air war which the Pacific fighting has developed. The breaks include not only such factors as having a pretty good idea of what your enemy intends to do but also many elements of chance.

These breaks might be such long shots as coming upon an enemy carrier while her planes are on deck refueling or surprising his carriers while they are launching or landing planes and therefore steaming directly into the wind—perfect targets—or having your fighters intercept the enemy's main attacking force of planes while it is still far from your ship.

Midway is our one clear-cut victory to date and the loss of the carrier Yorktown was more than compensated for by the number of Japanese carriers sunk. In the Coral Sea we sank more Japanese ships than we lost, but so far as carriers go we swapped our biggest, the Lexington, for a medium-sized Japanese carrier. In the carrier battle off the Solomons on August 24 we had a decided edge, probably sinking one Japanese carrier and several other ships and damaging many more. So the Solomons can be classed as a victory.

But these carrier battles are tough and go. Midway, for instance, might have gone the other way. In future offensive operations we will face what the Japanese did at Midway—we will have to carry a tremendous force of carriers, warships and transports and attack land bases strongly defended by airbases. We may suffer defeats as severe as the Japanese met at Midway. It is still far from clear sailing in the Pacific.

Why should your Uncle Sam have to dun anybody to buy a War bond to help preserve the democratic way of living? Buy a bond as your own expression of willingness to help.

FBI Holds 19 in New York As 'Dangerous Aliens'

By The Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Arrest as "dangerous aliens" of 19 persons—including a German who had photographs of the Brooklyn Navy Yard and New York Harbor—was announced yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A principal distributor of Italian propaganda films in the United States also was among those held, F. E. Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, said. No names were announced.

The 19 included 16 Germans, two Japanese and one Italian, Mr. Foxworth revealed. Five of the Germans were women. All were interned at Ellis Island pending hearings.

Mr. Foxworth said one of the German aliens had been a worker on the Siegfried Line fortifications and that another said his father served on a German submarine in the World War and is on another U-boat in this one.

The German who had photographs of the navy yard and harbor, Mr. Foxworth declared, had been employed in this country by a power company as a draftsman.

"There isn't any food product we handle that is more strongly guaranteed by the makers than Enriched Washington Flour. They don't make any exceptions—it is an ALL-OUT GUARANTEE—that every sack shall give you better satisfaction than any other Flour you have ever used—or we are REFUND YOUR MONEY. But we never have a complaint. Instead we overhear customers in the store talking—neighbor telling neighbor of the success she has had with Enriched Washington Flour. That's the sort of reputation that keeps sales growing as they do with."

Enriched Washington FLOUR
Plain and Self-Rising

Did you hear Mary Mason on the air this morning in her "Home Forum" broadcast on WRC? She paid a tribute to Enriched Washington Flour, based on experience with it. Here's what she said. Quote:

As one housekeeper to another—if you are not using Enriched Washington Flour in all your baking you are doing it the hard way—for Enriched Washington Flour not only adds maximum nutrition to your baking—but you just can't get into the difficulties so common to ordinary flour, that isn't suited to your kitchen equipment. The supercharging of Washington Flour with those vital food elements hasn't changed its character in any way, except to give it ALL the nutrition you get in whole wheat. Bakes perfectly, because it is kitchen-bred. Enriched Plain Washington Flour bakes everything. Enriched Self-Rising Washington Flour makes delicious biscuits, waffles, shortcakes, etc. "in a jiffy" with no bother of mixing with, or expense for, baking powder. End quote.

We Guarantee Every Sack to give YOU better satisfaction than any other Flour YOU have ever used—or MONEY BACK. No other Flour is guaranteed in equal terms.

Plain Washington Flour is the all-purpose Flour—baking everything to perfection.
Self-Rising Washington Flour makes biscuits, waffles, shortcakes, etc., without baking powder.
Your dealer sells both Plain and Self-Rising ENRICHED Washington Flour.

Branch of Palais Royal Is Opened in Bethesda
The formal opening of the Bethesda (Md.) branch of the Palais Royal Department Store yesterday attracted hundreds of shoppers and friends of the firm. Representatives of several nationally known manufacturing concerns attended.
The branch, at 7201 Wisconsin avenue, carries a full line of merchandise for men, women and children as well as household articles. One of the features is a lending library.
The store is centrally situated and was established to meet the needs of the Bethesda community in wearing apparel and other department store items. William F. Hilsey is manager of the branch. For the formal advent the establishment was open from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

U. S. Will Be Hated Nation After War, Lapham Says
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The United States will come out of the war "probably the worst hated nation in the world," Roger Lapham, employer member of the National War Labor Board, predicts.
"We'll be on top, with most in our pockets," he told the manpower and war labor problems conference of the American Management Association and Librarian in the Light Artillery School. Mr. Barnes was transferred to headquarters of the Army here in 1901 and appointed to the clerical force of the office of chief of staff when it was organized.

Mr. Lapham said the people of the United States are "not yet aware of what the war is really about," and added:
"Let's not fool ourselves. If we want to win this war, we've all got to get into uniform—man, woman and child. Let's do it quickly. We've been kidding ourselves long enough."

Passage of Tax Bill Before Election Day Is Urged by George

Hopes to Have Measure Before Conference Group Week of October 12

By the Associated Press. Calling for speed and more speed in the race against inflation, Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee today urged final passage of the new tax bill before the November elections.

The revised text, now in the hands of printers, will receive a final inspection by the committee tomorrow. Senator George said it would be called up for action in the Senate Monday, or Tuesday at the latest. He foresaw only two or three days of debate and said he hoped to have it in the hands of a joint Senate-House conference committee the week of October 12.

The Georgian saw the elections as an aid rather than a deterrent to quick congressional approval. He pointed out that virtually all House members and a third of the Senators were up for re-election and would welcome a chance to go home a week or so ahead of the balloting.

Compulsory Saving Foreseen. Senator George warned that Congress and the country must prepare for yet another anti-inflationary move—compulsory savings at the rate of about $1,000,000,000 a month. He estimated roundly that the new tax bill would bring in an additional $8,000,000 over a full year's operation, raising the total of Federal revenue to approximately $25,000,000,000.

He foresaw a certain amount of inflation as inevitable, even though compulsory savings are coupled with the heaviest tax load in the Nation's history. This, he said, was likely because of the phenomenal rise in purchasing power occasioned by the wartime industrial spurt and because of rapidly dwindling stocks of consumer goods.

Those and other factors make it difficult to estimate the exact yield of the new taxes, Senator George said.

Excess Profits May Fall. He pointed out that the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission, by renegotiating contracts for war goods, may trim armament makers' profits to such an extent that the yield from the excess profits levy could drop precipitously. While asserting that the end result was desirable, Senator George added it was another complicating factor in trying to compute the national income in advance.

He said that lack of raw materials needed in the war effort was apt to reduce the manufacture of civilian goods by 50 or 60 per cent next year, with a consequent decline in taxes paid by companies which manufacture for the consumers' market.

Senator George said the whole battle against inflation must have as its first objective the damping up of a surging flood of new consumer purchasing power.

Wild Barrage Balloon Recovered on Coast

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—A barrage balloon which broke from its moorings at a San Francisco Bay area war plant was recovered yesterday near Mather Field, east of Sacramento, the Western Defense Command reported.

Cables dangled from the balloon during its day-long, 70-mile flight, but there was no report of damage.

38 in Pro-Japanese Sect Indicted in Draft Case

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Thirty-eight colored persons, all members of the Temple of Islam, were indicted yesterday on charges of violating the Selective Service Act. United States Attorney J. Albert Woll said the temple was a pro-Japanese sect with members in many cities throughout the United States. "Members of this organization state that they will not register under selective service inasmuch as they are registered with Allah," he reported. "They say that although they were born in the United States they are not citizens, but citizens of Asia."

"The organization also teaches that the colored race was the first race and that the Japanese are descended from them and therefore they are blood brothers of the Japanese. A large number of these Moslems have stated that they hope Japan wins the war because it will be better for the colored people." Those indicted, all Chicagoans, were among 82 colored persons rounded up here by police and FBI agents in a series of raids September 20.

Disaster Committee Members to Register

Special Dispatch to The Star. FAIRFAX, Va., Oct. 1.—A special registration will be held at Fairfax

County Red-Cross Chapter headquarters, Falls Church, from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. October 7, for all members of the Red Cross Disaster Committee, Mrs. Robert O. Lord, chairman of the Red Cross Disaster and Relief Committee, announced today.

The members will be properly certified, fingerprinted and furnished with identification cards issued to Citizens Defense Corps personnel. This special registration is required of all members of the Motor Corps, Canteen Corps, Staff Assistance Corps, Home Service and the chapter's Executive Committee.

Farm Bloc Victory

Assuming that it will be accepted in the House, the price control bill which finally has passed the Senate by unanimous vote has the apparent merit of avoiding an open break between the President and Congress. As passed by the Senate, the bill carries the so-called administration compromise of the farm price issue, and it has been indicated that this will be accepted by Mr. Roosevelt.

In his message to Congress last month the President requested legislation to permit ceilings on farm prices at parity or at the level of recent prices, whichever was higher. At the least, that language contemplated the stabilization of farm prices at current levels. But under the Senate bill it is estimated that these prices will have to rise at least 4 per cent before ceilings can be imposed.

This was accomplished by "directing" the President to give "adequate weighting" to increases in farm labor costs since January 1, 1941. The farm bloc had wanted to revise the parity formula to include all farm labor costs as an element of parity, but the President announced that he was "unalterably opposed" to this proposal.

During the Senate debate, it was contended that the farmer must have higher prices because his labor costs have increased. There is no doubt that the farm labor question is a serious one. The migration away from the farms to highly-paid industrial jobs has been heavy and the prospects for next year are genuinely disturbing.

It seems all wrong to cut out hairpins for the duration, as has been suggested. Naval strategists, and women, know how important it is to rule the waves.

History vs. 'Social Studies'

Joining in a debate which already has been raging with growing intensity for several months, Professor Samuel McKee, Jr., of Columbia University, declares: "A drastic revision in the type and quality of United States history courses now offered on the secondary level throughout the country is needed."

Professor McKee is frank in his criticism. "Social studies," he charges, "began by taking over the history courses in our high schools. It has ended by eliminating history altogether." To bring about a correction of the prevailing evil, "a complete overhauling and restoration of American history in the secondary schools" is demanded. A "good history course of at least one year's duration should be required in every high school."

As a minimum, Professor McKee argues, "the high school graduate should know the events and developments—political, economic, cultural and social—that have been influential in creating the United States of today. They should know something of the leading figures—writers, authors, statesmen, inventors—who have left their imprint on American life and culture."

Hitler Speaks

Adolf Hitler broke an unwanted five-months' silence yesterday in a public address lasting somewhat over an hour. It was delivered in Berlin's gigantic Sports Palace, the German equivalent of Madison Square Garden. The ostensible occasion was the climax of the annual charity drive for Winter Help.

Hitler spoke with his customary mixture of shouting invective and pointed sarcasm. Axis successes on the Eastern Front during the summer were carefully enumerated. The strategic importance of a foothold on the Volga was emphasized, and the capture of Stalingrad was pledged as a certainty.

That is a far cry from his Winter Help speech of a year ago. Then, speaking in the flush of recent victories in the field, Hitler enumerated prodigious captures of Russian prisoners and equipment, asserting roundly: "Now it can be declared that the enemy already is broken and can never rise again."

Hitler vented his sharpest sarcasm on the matter of the "second front." He assured his listeners that, wherever it might be attempted, a second Dieppe would be the outcome. Venting his customary spleen on Winston Churchill, he explained his inability to guess where such an attempt might be made by saying: "If I had an enemy of greater military caliber, I could figure out where he might try to attack, but as I have to deal with an enemy who is a military idiot, one cannot say where the invasion attempt will be made."

The speech also contained digs at President Roosevelt's "headlong dive into war," at the Atlantic Charter, and other Hitlerian bugbears. But, by and large, it was a mediocre performance, containing little that was either interesting or unexpected.

It seems all wrong to cut out hairpins for the duration, as has been suggested. Naval strategists, and women, know how important it is to rule the waves.

Beginning at midnight on the twenty-fifth instant, the FCC has banned the transmission of that extraordinary invention along the line of missives—the singing telegram. No longer will the lads and lassies of the wire take a deep breath, strike a keynote and chant "Happy birthday, dear Susie; happy birthday to you."

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

The world must be an economic unit after the war. That is the conclusion of geologists who have made intensive studies of the distribution of mineral resources, allegedly one of the potent causes of the present war.

In a sense the nations are equal. Some seem richer than others because they have been peopled with more energetic races. But even so, they cannot live to themselves alone, explained Prof. Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard University in an address before the American Philosophical Society.

Said Prof. Mather: "There are extensive areas of pre-Cambrian rock in every continent and no large unit of these rocks has so far failed, when adequately prospected, to be the source of essential minerals. The Canadian shield surrounding Hudson Bay in North America is matched by the Scandinavian shield of Northwestern Europe and the Angara shield of North-Central Siberia in Asia."

The second group of rocks in this very loose classification includes the sedimentary formations of Cambrian and post-Cambrian age. These may be flat-lying beds beneath the plains and in the plateaus or they may be wrinkled into mountains like the Appalachians. It is from these that the world's resources of coal and petroleum are secured, as well as some of the iron, here, too, it should be noted, every continent has its share.

The third broad type of geologic structure is that resulting from and associated with volcanic activity. Here the geologist has in mind not only the outpoured lavas and erupted cinders, ash and bombs of volcanic cones and plateaus. He thinks also of the intruded masses of igneous rock. It is in association with such rocks that some of the world's most important reserves of precious metals, of copper, lead and zinc, and of such metals as tungsten, vanadium, molybdenum and manganese, essential in the production of modern steel alloys, are found.

The fact is that every continent displays almost the entire gamut of possible geological structures and may be expected to retain extensive deposits of almost every kind of mineral resource useful today or likely to be useful in the future as raw materials for industry. The United States alone thus far has produced more than two-thirds of the world's entire production of petroleum. This is because Americans have been more successful than any other people in finding and using this type of fuel.

Similarly, to date continental Europe, the United States, Great Britain and Russia have produced over 80 per cent of the world's steel. This means that the inhabitants of these regions have been most ingenious and efficient in discovering and utilizing the iron ore deposits they possessed. The iron ores of Australia, Asia, Africa and South America for the most part await future development.

"Outstanding among the exceptions is tin. Nature has played a strange trick in making tin ores scarce in the highly industrialized regions where the tin can be an essential item. There are practically none in all North America. The puny deposits of the metal in all Europe are of European. Much the same can be said about nickel and radium. These are found in only a few rare localities and in only two or three of the six continents."

But the distribution of the resources of the continents leads unerringly to the conclusion that man's political, social and economic organization must be on a planetary rather than a continental basis. Each continent has sufficient stores to place it on an equality with every other continent. From the geological point of view there is no basis for rating any continent as inferior to any other.

But no continent can provide sufficient amounts of every ingredient of modern civilization. Calls Attention to Invention Resulting from Terra Cotta Wreck. THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"RENO ROAD." "Dear Sir: Sooner or later I imagine every reader of The Star has occasion to write you about birds or what not, and when I counted 19 robins in my back yard recently, I realized my turn had come."

"A little over a week ago, my wife and I noticed a large congregation of robins in the yard and counting them found there were 15. I thought this must be something of a record but two days later there were 19, and again a few days ago 19. On several of the intervening days when we have been at home at the right time there have been 12 to 15."

"The lot is an average-size city one, 60 feet in width, and while we have had anywhere from one to five or six robins in the past five years we have been here, we have never seen anything like 19."

"They come just before, or should I say at, dusk, generally from 7 to dark. "Near the house there is a terrace a few feet higher than the rest of the yard and on the terrace is a bird bath flat on the ground. Anywhere from one to six birds gather around the bath and I have seen three in it at once. The other birds seem to find worms and insects in the lawn but many just wander around, so to speak. The amount of feeding is not intensive and I do not believe they come for that."

"Some one suggested that they were on their way South for the winter. Would that be the case? If so, are the same robins coming each evening or are they different ones? If different, how do they all happen to come here this year for the first time? "Very truly yours, G. D. W., Jr."

"One's first sight of a band of migrating robins always comes as a surprise, because the average person is used to watching them singly on the lawn. It is only in the spring and fall that they gather together in bands. Usually their visit to an individual yard is merely "happenstance." They fly about 100 miles, then drop down for food, rest and water. It may be realized that the chance of getting one of these bands is rather small. Usually the birds go in groups from a dozen to 50 robins."

We watched robins for many years before we saw this sight. The reason for this in most cases is that the bird lover is not at home at the right time. The appointed time for our lawn for several years was between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This is the usual time in the fall. In the spring these visitations are earlier, around 2 p.m. Mostly the robins remain but for a little while. They deploy out over the Stresses Need for 'Leadership' In Religion of Jesus. To the Editor of The Star: Recently you printed in your columns an article over the name of John H. Phillips, assistant minister of the Foundry Methodist Church, in which he expressed his conviction that: "The pulpit is the place above all places where the profound issues of this war should be preached"—a position directly opposite that of a godly elderly minister who, motivated by the Holy Spirit, maintained that the pulpit should remain silent on war issues."

Mr. Phillips says his provocation to write is not because of his desire to oppose the one cleric who chose to take the stand that the pulpit remain silent on war issues, but because an alarming number of the ministers and even official bodies of denominations have been in accord with the one cleric who differs with. Could they all be wrong, and he right?

True, as Mr. Phillips states, millions of people in this country look to their ministers for guidance and help when their minds are troubled by the problems which this war has thrust upon them. These are days when family ties are strengthened, wives think more of husbands, brothers think more of sisters and parents think more of sons. Those who are compelled to make these sacrifices of loved ones want consolation and peace of soul—not an answer to a cause that makes the sacrifice worth while, for in the sacrificing one there is no cause that justifies the loss of a single mother's son."

Mr. Phillips writes and I quote, "something is lacking." He calls it spiritual leadership. Spiritual leadership is correct, but we must have that and just that and only that in the pulpit. Our Nation, in common with others, is in a difficult state of lawlessness and crime; morals are at a low ebb. Most of our schools are evolutionary, pagan—where Christ is crucified anew. Alcohol leaves in its devastating course the wreckage of broken lives, hearts and homes. Our churches in general are losing influence. God, heaven and hell are laughed at. The Holy Bible lies unopened in most of our homes. Why? Jesus gave us a very simple and scientific law of life: "By their fruits ye shall know them."

France surrendered the Bible and embraced atheism, her soul was drenched with blood. Historians agree that the Wesleyan revival saved England from a like fate. May God now undertake for us and save America. God give us some stalwarts—men who believe God and earnestly contend for the faith, men who will preach the whole Bible with a passion for souls in the power of the Holy Spirit; men who will preach Jesus Christ, crucified, risen and coming again. October

October moonlight chilled the countryside, The thin leaves shivered in the biting air. Last night, Frost rode the night's onrush of wind His touch, the warning touch of winter death. Today, the leaves look to new shades of gold. The jewel coloring now deepens with These last exciting hours. The nodding leaves Talk eagerly. They dance and faunt, their joy On twirling slender stems. They know no fear Of the strange beyond. But swaying breathlessly The year their joy like brilliant banners flying. Pay Order Permits New Bargaining

Unions Are Told Entire Problem Can Be Opened Up

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Although the CIO has sent word to its national and international unions not to expect any "exceptions" by the Secretary of Labor to the President's decree on overtime and premium pay, the same communication notifies the locals that they can negotiate for some compensatory advantages at the price of their support of the executive order.

Employers will be expected to comply or they'll be hauled before the War Labor Board.

The general counsel's office of the CIO after noting that there now have been two executive orders covering overtime pay, says:

"Provisions of any outstanding collective bargaining agreements which are inconsistent with the executive order cannot be observed as long as the executive order applies. However, it is important to note that where this occurs the union has the right to negotiate the entire problem raised and in the absence of an agreement between the union and the employer the dispute could be certified to the National War Labor Board for disposition."

This will be news to the public and, in particular, to employers, who are being told by the roundabout manner of CIO pronouncements just what the President evidently has agreed to separately with the CIO or perhaps also with the AFL. No word of these separate arrangements has come out of the Government itself.

David Lawrence.

Coercion "Warned."

In further confirmation of the fact that the labor unions didn't give up their existing contracts covering overtime on Saturdays and Sundays and holidays when the hours do not exceed 40 a week, there is a letter from the general secretary of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, another CIO national union. This tells all general vice presidents, international representatives and field organizers that they had, in effect, better bludgeon the employer into agreeing in advance to the retention of the contracts even where they conflict with President Roosevelt's executive order, because if both the employer and the union agree, it is assumed that Secretary Perkins or the War Labor Board may make an exemption from the President's order and permit overtime and double time where the order prohibits it.

Coercion of the employer is to be accomplished by the following warning contained in the same letter to field representatives and organizers:

"If our companies desire to avoid confusion, disruption and dissatisfaction among our people, and if they desire to maintain production at the highest possible level, the amendment to the executive order affords them an opportunity to show their good faith in joining in with the respective local union in requesting that the existing agreements, voluntarily entered into by the company and the local union, shall be maintained.

"If they refuse to do this, it should then be clear that these companies seek to take selfish advantage of the provisions of the executive order even though an amendment to this executive order permits reasonable management to act in a manner that will be of great assistance to the war effort.

"This point of view should be made very clear by the local unions to the companies. Before any company undertakes to place the blame on the Government for issuing the executive order, they must assume full responsibility for their refusal to join with the union under the amendment to the executive order."

Two Exceptions Made.

In other words, the President states on September 9 in an executive order that he wants to attain uniformity on the subject of overtime pay and premium pay, and then he amends it on September 17 and says the Secretary of Labor is empowered to make exceptions where the employers and unions agree. Now, if they don't agree, the unions plan to accuse them of bad faith and refusing to assist war production.

This is a peculiar way to carry out an executive order and is but one of a number of things that have made the employers of America wonder if there is ever to be a uniform rule applying to all citizens where laws or executive orders are concerned or whether special privilege is to be continued throughout the war as it was practiced during peacetime under the present administration.

The Secretary of Labor has just announced two major exceptions to the President's Executive Order of September 9. These exceptions take both the construction and building trades and the shipbuilding workers out of the mandate of the original order. Hereafter time-and-a-half will be paid in those industries for Saturdays and Sundays and holidays irrespective of whether they fall on the sixth or seventh day and even if they come in a work-week of less than 40 hours.

November Elections to Be Decided Largely By Women Who Remain at Home

By GOULD LINCOLN.

When the men are away, will more women vote? And in how much larger numbers than in past elections? These are questions which are exercising the managers of both the Democratic and Republican parties. And both are doing their best to get the women to come out in large numbers and vote for their own particular candidates.

Millions of men voters are in the armed forces, many of whom will not have a chance to vote, because it will be impossible to get absentee ballots to them in time. Others won't bother with voting when they are giving all their thoughts and labor to the war effort. Many men have gone from one State to another, or into strange districts in their own States, to work in the war plants, and will be unable to vote.

Here is a chance for the women to take over, and to determine whether the Democrats are to retain control of the House, for example, and whether Governors elected in the various States shall be Democrat or Republican.

According to the figures of the Census Bureau, there are 39,752,016 women 21 years of age and over in this country, citizens by birth or naturalization, who are potential voters. The number of men potential voters are 40,111,435. This makes a grand total of 79,863,451 potential voters.

In the last presidential election in 1940, the total vote cast was 48,815,312. In other words, there are some 30,000,000 potential voters who did not, for one reason or another, cast ballots in that election.

The census has not broken down the voters according to sex. However, there are estimates made by political committees that the vote of the women runs up as high as 47 or even 51 per cent of the total, depending on the States. In some of the States the percentage of women voters has been less.

Special Attention on Women.

This year, however, it is estimated that women will cast 62 per cent of the vote in the coming election in Illinois. In New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts it is estimated that the percentage of women voters will equal or probably outnumber the men voters. Obviously it behooves the political managers to give all the attention they can to organizing and getting out the woman vote this year.

The woman's division of the Republican National Committee is headed by Miss Marian E. Martin of Bangor, Me. The Democratic National Committee has as the head of a similar division Mrs. Theodore Tillitt of North Carolina. Both are capable organizers and have been at this job of rounding up the women for some time.

This year not only do the party leaders have to rely on the votes of the women, but they are also relying on women workers to get out the vote.

Despite the fact that the whole trend of the elections—Republican or Democratic—seems to lie in the hands of the women voters, there has been no appreciable increase in the number of women candidates for public office this year. Certainly this is true so far as the congressional candidates are concerned. Neither of the major political parties has a woman candidate for Governor of a State.

Eight Women in House.

In the present House are eight women Representatives, five Republicans and three Democrats. In the Senate there is a lone woman Senator, Mrs. Caraway of Arkansas, a Democrat. One of the women members of the House, Mrs. Margaret Smith of Maine, Republican, already has been re-elected. Among the others, Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts, another Republican, is regarded as sure to be re-elected.

Probably not more than 12 or 15 women are contending as the nominees of the major parties for the House. A new figure, however, is Mrs. Claire Boothe Luce who has won the Republican nomination in the 4th congressional district of Connecticut. She is believed to have a good chance of election, and if she wins, her quick wit and ready tongue are likely to make themselves felt in the House.

Mrs. Dorothy Kemp Roosevelt, who was the wife of the late Hall Roosevelt, brother of the President's wife, is a Democratic candidate for the House.

The vote in the primary elections this year was light due in large part to the interest of the people in the war to the exclusion of politics, and also to the fact that so many of the men voters were in the service or away on other kinds of work.

It is estimated that the vote in the primaries did not total more than 20,000,000, and the vote which will be cast in the general elections on November 3, including the vote of Maine already taken, will approximate 30,000,000. Whether or not this figure will be reached or surpassed is largely, it is said, up to the women.

I'd Rather Be Right

Time Nullifies Effect of Scorched-Earth Policy, Giving Hitler Ukrainian Wheat, Rumanian Oil

By SAMUEL GRAFON.

THE scorched earth does not stay scorched. Green grass grows over it. New oil wells are dug where old ones were burnt.

I have lived 5 months with the thought that the Japanese would not be able to use the oil resources of the South Seas, because these had been blasted and burnt by our side in its retreat.

Lay a sprig of lavender on that theory. Martin Agronsky, returned radio correspondent, reported a heavy oil slick in Sumatran coastal waters, indicating a run of waste oil, indicating Japanese petroleum operations. He reports also that sometimes a torpedoed, beleaguered merchant is torpedeed, heles of beautiful crude rubber spill from it into the sea. If you think profoundly about that, you might come to the conclusion that rubber operations are probably going on.

These are indications of how old the war is getting to be. The earth heals itself. We may scorch it, here and there, but there is no such thing as a permanent scorch.

In July, 1941, the Russians were supposed to have destroyed Rumania's oil wells, in the Ploesti section, from the air. Maybe they did, maybe they didn't. Anyhow, Allied bombers have had to go back to Rumania these last few weeks, setting great new "oil fires" in the Ploesti region. The new raids are an admission that Rumania's oil fields are producing again. Where there is fire, there is oil.

Since we can no longer depend on the cold fires of yesterday to keep oil and rubber from the enemy today, one wonders how long we can depend on the scorching of the Ukraine to keep food from him.

How long does an earth-scorch last? Remember that much of the Ukraine was scorched summer before this one. That was good. That helped make Hitler a prisoner of the following winter. Does it work for a second winter, too? Surely not for three. What happens if we let a second winter go by, and a third summer come, before we have finished with the monster?

Wheat hides scars of scorching. We applauded when the Russians scorched the earth. That should have been the most instant of calls for action. You have to use a scorch while it is hot. When the green wheat grows over it again, it is as if it had not been.

The war is becoming old. The evil things did not happen only yesterday, though they seem to have. It was longer ago. France has been lost for three Bastille Days. Her next summer will be her fourth summer (is it unbelievable?) under the conqueror. Next summer will be Germany's third summer in large sections of the Ukraine. This is Germany's fourth autumn in Poland.

British Grow Food in Every Available Corner.

How long does the earth stay scorched? I learn from J. B. Priestley's new book, "Britain at War," that the English are growing food even in bomb craters, even in the moat of the Tower of London.

The English had 12,000,000 acres in cultivation before the war; they have increased this to 18,000,000, doing at least part of this work under bomb-fire. They have labored magnificently; 3,000,000 of their new food-and-fodder acres are reclaimed land, formerly worthless; they used to have 2,000,000 acres in wheat, they now have 5,500,000; each acre produces 4.5 bushels more than before the war. They have done the job after withdrawing many hundreds of thousands of men from the fields.

What are we to suppose Hitler has been doing all this time, with a contentment of slaves to send into wide and empty plains?

Yes, these plains were scorched. But the war goes on. Are we sure time is on our side? Or isn't it true that the quicker the second front, the more sure we shall make useful the sacrifices of those simple men and women of Europe who burn their homes to catch Hitler in the trap of instant hunger?

OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, husband of Princess Juliana, arrived here yesterday afternoon by plane from Great Britain.

The Prince's trip was termed unofficial and primarily to visit his wife and two daughters, who have lived here for two years. He was expected to remain several weeks and perhaps visit the United States during that time.

Maj. Gen. H. J. Phaff, an aide to Queen Wilhelmina and inspector of the Netherlands Brigade in Great Britain, accompanied him.

This Changing World

Epic Stalingrad Defense Believed Near End; Nazis Already Shifting Planes to Other Areas

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

By consolidating the communications from Berlin and Moscow and unofficial reports from Kubyshev and London, authoritative Washington sources have come to the conclusion that the epic defense of Stalingrad is drawing to a close.

The key industrial city of Southern Russia has been defended with stubbornness and heroism which can be likened only to that with which the French defended Verdun. The fight put up by the Russians has cost the enemy at least twice as many lives as were lost by the German crown prince's forces in the battle which lasted during the major part of 1942.

The principal indication that Stalingrad may be able to hold out only a few more days comes from the fact that the Nazis have taken into consideration that the marshes which separate Astrakhan from Stalingrad may be frozen by the time the Nazis begin to attack the city.

The next few weeks will undoubtedly see much spectacular fighting in the Caucasian area. But from the strategic point of view it will have only relative bearing on the general situation on that front for the rest of the year.

Regardless of whether Stalingrad is taken, the main pipelines and oil fields in the northern Caucasus are already in Nazi hands. Hence, the Russian planes, tanks and motorized units will suffer. There will be a serious food shortage in the Russian Army, but that is less consequential, since the Russian peasant and worker can live and fight on an extremely meager diet.

The Nazis, too, will have a difficult time supplying their forces in the heart of Russia. Regardless of weather and other conditions they will be ceaselessly harassed by the Soviet forces. There is no food of any kind either in the Ukraine or between the Don and the Volga, where the inhabitants have destroyed everything which might be of use to the enemy, even at the risk of starving themselves.

Difficulties Facing Nazis.

Every ounce of food every piece of clothing must be brought to the Nazis from Poland—more than 1,000 miles away—over impassable roads and through the habitat of a thoroughly hostile population, which is willing to sacrifice life itself in order to destroy Nazi transports.

How difficult it is to fight guerrillas—to say nothing of the regular army, which has not been pulverized as Hitler hoped—can be seen from the experiences of the Axis forces in Yugoslavia, where Hungarian, Bulgarian, Italian and Nazi regiments are being decimated by the Serbian Chetniks, under Gen. Draja Mihailovic. The difficulties which confront the Nazis in Russia are a hundredfold greater than in Yugoslavia.

So far the Nazis have succeeded in avoiding a second front in Western Europe. Last winter they undertook no startling action there while they were parrying Soviet offensives. This situation will change this year, in the opinion of qualified military authorities. The Germans must strike in the Mediterranean basin, and there are indications that the blow will come within four or five weeks. They will be met in Egypt and the rest of the Near East by much more formidable opposition than would have been the case last year.

While the Germans' effort in that area must be powerful, they will have to maintain an equally important military force on the Russian front. And all this, regardless of the eventual fate of Stalingrad, presages little good for the Axis in 1943.

already begun to transfer some important detachments of the Luftwaffe to "other sections" and that some of the divisions of the reserve pool have also been reported on the way to Southern Europe.

Nazi Plans for Winter.

In most military quarters it is believed the Nazis intend to establish winter quarters within the next few weeks on a line extending from Stalingrad to the Caucasian Mountains. It is probable they may attempt to reach Astrakhan, principal Russian port on the Caspian Sea, this month or next in order to break the Allied line of communications from Bandar Shah, the principal port in Iran, to the Russian terminal at the northern tip of the Caspian.

This will leave Russia only two ports to receive war materials and other supplies from the United States and Great Britain—Archangel, which is frozen for several months each year, and Murmansk. Whether the Nazis succeed in this operation depends on how well the positions before Astrakhan have been strengthened.

The Russian high command has been preparing Stalingrad for any eventuality for years. The fortifications around that city, aided by the favorable terrain, have been made as nearly impregnable as any can be made. While less time and money has been spent on them than on the Maginot Line, they have proved far more resistant, because the soldiers who man them are retreating ground by the inch, yielding only when overwhelmed.

Caucasian Battle Likely.

The consensus in competent quarters is that the Russians who leave nothing to chance, already have begun to fortify their Caspian seaport. They must have

McLemore—

Reynolds Replies To British 'Knockers'

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK.—This big fellow was working on a steak this big and that wide. I couldn't find it in me to bother him. But when he ordered a second

I walked over and a Q and S A I, "Quent, give me a column. I gotta get one out tonight, and you must have an idea."

He did. Quent Reynolds always has an idea.

He should. A man can't see and taste as much of this war as Quent has without storing a few story ideas in the back of his head.

The big fellow is here resting from the shaking up he got on the Commando raid at Dieppe. He came over on a Clipper and he slept all the way.

"Tucked my head down when we took off, and we were almost to New York before I woke up," he said. "But you want a column idea. Okay, here's one. Every time I come back to the United States I hear knockers against the English. You've heard them, haven't you?"

I said that I had. I said, and truthfully, that no matter where I went I always wound up listening to Americans putting the blame on the English. The anti-British talk always followed along these lines:

The Americans are a stary-eyed people. The British are cold-eyed people. "Well, win this war for them, just as we won the last one for them."

"Well, get nothing out of it. The British will wind up with all their far-flung possessions. They'll tell us we came in only when the toughest part of the going was over."

London vs. New York.

"That's right," Quent said. "That's about what I hear, too. All right, you write this. The two greatest cities in the world are London and New York. They are the capitals of the two major countries of the United Nations group. They have the same enemy, do London and New York. The German and the Jap are just as eager to get hold of New York as they are to walk the streets of London. Are the two cities responding to this death challenge in a like manner? Is New York keyed to the same pitch as London?"

"No, Henry, the two cities are as different as night and day. London—and I left it only a few days ago—is all out. It is a war town. It is a town where every man, woman and child is conscious of the Axis threat. Food is scarce and hard to get. I have had more meat in three days in New York than I could get in London in three months, four months or five months."

When night falls in London the lights go out. Three weeks ago I flew over London at 5,000 feet and there was not even a flicker of light to be seen. There are no cabs—at least, you never can get one—and hotels are grim places. They don't have floor shows and bellhops to open your windows and turn down your beds."

"New York—well, if it were not for the uniforms on the street, a man wouldn't know this country was at war. Where is the change? You eat all you want. You drink all you want. You dance all you want. You have baseball games, tennis matches, overflowing theater crowds, and money, money, money. The shops have everything. There is no sacrifice at all."

"We'll Arrive the Hard Way."

Quent bit into a side of beef, and sighed.

"We'll come to it," he resumed. "We'll come to it the hard way, but we'll arrive. But it makes me a little sore to have Americans knock the British. When an air-raid siren sounds over there, it isn't for practice, it means that someone is going to get a bomb. They wear shabby clothes because that's all they have. They look hungry because most of them are hungry. But they never quit. They never yielded a foot when hell came from all sides and out of the sky. So, when you hear an American knock an Englishman, just ask him this: Have you given as much, suffered as much, for decency in the world?"

"That makes a lot of sense. Let's forget about the British as they used to be, and think about the British as they are today. Today they stand as the people who looked the monster of Europe in the eye and, with no weapons to fight him, defied him to do his worst."

Let's never forget that when this country was still shipping scrap to Japan, England was fighting. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Attempt Made to Kill Nephew of Antonescu

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—A Tass dispatch from Cairo reported yesterday that an attempt was made on the life of Mihail Antonescu, deputy chief of state of Rumania, as he returned to Bucharest last week from a visit to Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

Antonescu, nephew of Gen. Ion Antonescu, was said to have been out by broken glass when shots were fired at his car. Fifteen persons were arrested, Tass reported.

34 Days Adrift on an 8x4 Raft on the Pacific

This epic of war in the South Pacific was told to Robert Trumbull by Harold F. Dixon, bombardier and aviation chief mechanic's mate, U. S. N., in the current best seller, "The Raft," which is now being brought to you in serial form, of which this is a chapter. Dixon—with Gene Adrich, aviation radioman and gunner, and Tony Pastula, aviation ordnance man—was forced to land a scout bomber in the ocean when its gas gave out on the evening of January 16, 1942. The craft sank almost immediately, but they managed to escape on an 8x4-foot rubber raft. They were without provisions and with scant equipment. Yet this heroic United States Navy trio managed to survive, battling an inferno of seas and weather for 34 days over a course that covered about a thousand miles until they finally reached safety on an obscure atoll. The nerve-racking details of this extraordinary experience are being related here as told to Robert Trumbull.

CHAPTER FIVE.
A serious lack was head covering; the sun's rays came down like red-hot corkscrews and cooked our brains. The days were horribly hot. Tony had his dungaree jacket, so I took his shirt and tore out the two front panels. With these I fashioned a sort of bonnet which gave the top of our heads some protection from the tropical sun. Occasionally we dunked these rags in the sea, so that the wind, striking them, would keep our heads cool.

There was no way to protect our faces. From mid-morning to late afternoon the whole sky was a blue glare of heat which the sea threw back, intensified. At times, when the sea was calm, the rubber raft became unbearably hot to the touch. Our only relief was to keep kicking sea water on it and ourselves.

We wet our clothes almost constantly. Within 15 minutes after a good dousing they would be thoroughly dry again. After we had soaked our clothes three or four times they would be stiff as boards from the salt which added no little to our discomfort. Then we would have to take our garments off and rinse them in the sea to get out some of the salt. It was a tiresome, never-ending chore.

Nights, especially when the sea was rough, we had opposite problems. Then our wet garments were clammy and cold. The two of us who were not on watch would huddle together to conserve our bodily heat. We spared our energy as much as possible. These discomforts, which we had to bear without food, water or sleep, soon began to fray our dispositions, but we all realized our predicament, and we knew that losing our tempers would be of no possible benefit. We kept forcibly choking back our growing irritability with each other. This was at times an almost heroic feat.

Couldn't Hit Bird.
On the first day I shot off a whole clip of ammunition—about half our supply—trying to kill a bird. We thought it was going to be easy to shoot a bird; because the curious creature flocked around us by the hundreds, coming so close to inspect our strange craft that we were almost under the illusion that we could reach up and grab one. Actually, they came down within 5 or 6 feet of us.

I held the pistol until a bird was directly overhead, then I would aim and let go. These birds were fearless, and we soon had to admit that they were in little danger from us. The boat bobbed like a cork, and this seemed to throw off my aim every time. The best I could do was knock feathers from a few, so I finally gave up.

We were very much interested in the birds and the various tropical fishes. The boat, being orange-yellow in color, was a great attraction to the fish, and they all came up and looked at it as if it were some strange animal.

Evidently the birds had the same idea. All day they coasted slowly over our heads, always approaching upwind, and peering curiously down at this odd-appearing floating object that had invaded their exclusive world of wind and water. There was one kind, a snow-white little fellow, which seemed to ignore us completely. There were always two or three of these in company. First one would let out a sort of croaking chirp, then another would answer. They had short, rounded, bullet-shaped bodies which appeared to be about the size of that of a bobwhite quail. They had three tail feathers about two feet long, which hung out behind them like streamers, giving a very graceful effect to their flight.

They would climb up to two or three hundred feet altitude and look around for their prey on the water. When they sighted it they would make a vertical dive, shooting straight down and making a headlong plunge into the water, looking for all the world like a dive bomber launching a bomb at the enemy. I sometimes wondered why the little fellows didn't pup wide open when they hit the water, but it didn't seem to faze them.

Watching these birds, the albatrosses and terns of all kinds, banqueting liberally all day long from this unfriendly sea that was so barren for us, whetted our appetites and made us angry with ourselves that we were helpless to obtain food where less reasoning creatures plundered and gorged.

Aldrich showed at once that he was interested in fishing, so he looked around for something to use for a line. In the tool pocket there was a three-strand cotton cord perhaps 15 feet long. This I unraveled into three thinner pieces of line, and cut them off to about 10 feet. Tony had a red bandanna handkerchief, so Gene tied a piece of this to the end of the string for bait, as we had heard that tropical fish would bite at anything of bright color.

Fishermen's Luck.
Gene stood over the side and flung his line into the water. It was over for only a couple of minutes when he discovered that the bait was gone—bitten clean off. We then rigged a piece of wire as a leader, put on another piece of rag, and attached a piece of the broken pliers to weight it down.

I broke the pliers trying to make a fishhook from a spring in the ammunition clip. As I took hold of the wire and clamped down, the bolt that holds the two sections of pliers together gave way, having crystallized. However, the piece of broken plier made a good sinker. With this rig Gene fished for hours, but never had another bite. He tried all kinds of schemes, discouraging the while on his expedient fishing back home, near the Mississippi River.

Tony, not to be outdone as a conversationalist, chimed in, whenever the subject was remotely appropriate, with reminiscences of the work he had done at home helping his father as a landscape gardener. This particular theme was always welcomed by me on its frequent recurrences, for I could ring in something about my avocado ranch (Galena, 1 1/2 acres) at La Mesa, near San Diego. That was about the nearest we came to having common conversational interests, except when we talked about coffee.

The three of us were almost constant coffee drinkers, like practically all men-o-war. While we missed our cigarettes at first, we were now missing our coffee badly and as time went on we were to long for it constantly. We eventually got over our craving for cigarettes to some extent, but I missed my daily ration of six to eight cups of coffee—and I mean coffee. There is no better zip-giver in the world than a good cup of coffee with sugar and cream when you are low.

Joked About Food.
We made a game of our hardships as time went on. Talking about food and cigarettes and coffee of course accentuated our longings, but paradoxically we seemed to derive some comfort from thus torturing ourselves. We talked about food, particularly, for hours, often wistfully, but sometimes making a jest of it.

Tony, who had a sense of humor, soon devised a favorite way to start or end all conversation. He would turn suddenly to Gene (whom he called Henry, after his favorite radio character), and order with a mischievous grin: "Come on, Henry—time to put on the pot!" "Henry" and I never failed to enter into the spirit of the game, with elaborate suggestions for the making and pouring of the coffee. We frequently adopted ludicrously exaggerated drawing-room tones and gestures for this ritual, broadly burlesquing what we fondly believed was the true Park Avenue manner. Later, I think, it must have been this continual practice of deliberate idiosyncrasy that kept us from going really insane in our exposure, starvation and thirst.

Blind, Paralyzed Recluse Lives In Decaying Family Mansion

Son of Once-Prominent New York Doctor Is Attended by Elderly Brother

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Blind and paralyzed Homer L. Collyer still lives in his family's old mansion on upper Fifth avenue, now deep in the heart of Harlem, it was revealed yesterday by Police Sgt. John Collins, one of the few outsiders who has been inside the gloomy and decaying Collyer home in the last decade.

Rumors have been afloat in Harlem for years that the shuttered and run-down old mansion which Homer and his brother Langley inherited from their doctor father sheltered Homer's unburied corpse.

Sgt. Collins said yesterday that it was to investigate these rumors that he entered the Collyer home last spring, and found the crippled old man lying on a cot in a dark basement room, attended by his elderly brother Langley.

"The room was dark as pitch," the sergeant said. "I turned on my flashlight and there was Homer sitting up like a mummy on a cot, a burlap bag beneath him and an old coat over the foot of the cot."

"I am Homer L. Collyer, lawyer," the old man says. "I want the number of your shield and your name. I'm not dead. I'm paralyzed and blind."

Sgt. Collins said he asked the old man why he and his brother did not call a doctor, and Homer replied that he and Langley knew enough about medicine from their father not to need a doctor.

"Whatever they knew, Homer was in a pitiful state," Sgt. Collins commented. He said there was neither light nor heat in the house, which was littered with piles of ancient rubbish and debris, ghostly in the gloom.

He was cautioned by Langley, he said, not to trip over many tin beer cans, nailed down on all the steps and through the dark halls, as a home-made burglar alarm.

Before he left the house, Sgt. Collins said, Langley showed him the 17 pianos which are a topic of endless interest to the neighbors, and said he won them playing in concerts. He also showed him 15,000 books in a room on the top floor, which he said contained among other things, the history of the Collyers, an old and once prominent New York family.

The house is now owned by the Bowers Savings Bank, which recently foreclosed the mortgage.

The bank is currently engaged in a dispute with the eccentric old recluse on the tidying up of the littered house and yard, and won its first round Tuesday with a health and building department order to have the yard cleaned up.

Homer has not been seen outside the house for two years and Langley has been seen rarely and only at night.

Preparation Urged For World Communion
Washington churchmen were called on today to prepare themselves spiritually for the observance Sunday of world-wide communion. The plea was issued by Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, new executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

"All over the Christian world, in camps, on board ships and wherever Christian services will be held, the Lord's Supper will be celebrated this Sunday," an announcement by Dr. Reissig said. "In preparation for this spiritual feast," he added, "Christians are called upon to prepare their hearts and minds by the act of confession of their sins and seeking God's forgiveness."

"As a few men gathered around Christ in the upper room in the first century, so will millions gather in churches of the world this Sunday to receive Him spiritually."

Capacity attendance at all churches was predicted by Dr. Reissig, who said that in many cases churches had sent visitors to call on members of the congregation to insure their being at church.

Not everybody with a dollar to spare can shoot a gun straight—but everybody can shoot straight to the bank and buy a War bond.

Miss Johnston to Retire;
42 Years in Federal Work

Miss Augusta F. Johnston, personnel director for the Public Roads Administration of the Federal Works Agency, will retire today after 42 years in Government service.

As personnel director since 1914, Miss Johnston has taken a prominent part in building up the personnel of the agency's field offices through which Federal financial aid was extended to States for construction of approximately 234,000 miles of highways.

Miss Johnston, who is from Cheyenne, Wyo., came to Washington in 1900. At that time she was assigned to the office of the late Elwood Meade, then director of irrigation and drainage investigations for the Agriculture Department. Miss Johnston is author of "The Development of Underground Water Supplies," one of the early Government bulletins on irrigation.

Miss Johnston whose residence is at 2038 New Hampshire avenue N.W., plans to visit her brothers in Michigan and Colorado after her retirement.

troops have noted that the men appear to be somewhat older than the men in the thoroughly trained divisions which were organized 18 months or more ago. In other words, the average age has commenced to go up, and it will continue going up so long as the law remains as it is.

No one of us will cast any aspersions upon the character and patriotism taken in part by the pay of the soldier himself and in part from the Federal Treasury. They leave, in many instances, business obligations, perhaps a mortgage home, perhaps a little business which may go to pieces during their absence. Quite naturally they are apt to worry about these things.

Older Men Break Down.

It is pretty tough on the soldier to have to worry about what is going on at home. Here we have a combination of the domestic, economic and the sentimental, all operating against that soldier's peace of mind. But there is another and much more important thing to consider, especially when we estimate the military efficiency of the Army as a whole.

It is this: Men in their 30s and early 40s, with very rare exceptions, cannot endure the terrific physical nervous strain of long campaigns nearly as well as younger men—men, we will say, 10 or 15 years younger. In a muscular development they may be strong, they may be able to lift heavy weights. But when it comes to living under the terrible conditions imposed by desperate war most of them are apt to break down. They can't help it, try as they may.

By contrast, men between the ages of 18 and 25, we will say, the group whom we denominate as youth, make the better and more enduring soldiers. Very, very few of them have in the back of their minds the worries of the older men. But more important still, they possess a certain marvelous resiliency which enables them to stand up under heavy punishment through long campaigns.

Officers Prefer Youth.

I have yet to meet a veteran Army officer, in or out of the War Department, who does not testify to the amazing qualities of endurance exhibited by youthful soldiers, to their ability to learn quickly, to their ingenuity, to their daring. I have yet to meet a veteran combat officer who does not hope for a liberal sprinkling of youth in his unit. Those youths, steadied by the presence and example of some older men, sergeants and corporals, contribute not only endurance, but punch.

All history shows that great wars have been won by youth. For example, some people are amazed to find out that the Union Army in 1865, at the time of Appomattox, averaged but 20 years and 6 months of age. The Confederate Army was a little younger. This, in turn, means, of course, that thousands upon thousands of these soldiers were less than 19 years of age.

Would we say that the men who fought under Grant and Lee were not good soldiers? Indeed, it was youth that survived in both armies. Most of the older men had dropped out before the war came to the end.

Nor can it be said that the experience of the youngsters in those two armies brutalized them or made them unfit to be good citizens after the war was over, for the fact is that the veterans of both armies proved later to be the very best of citizens. And so as we look ahead to the strains which we shall endure in the war in which we are now engaged, as we look ahead to the intensity of the struggle, lasting, it may be, for several years, can we escape the conclusion that it were wise to introduce more of youth into our Army—yes, men of 18 and 19 years of age.

Recruits Soundly Trained.

From their standpoint and from the standpoint of the country it is not wise for us to see to it that those young men get long and thorough training before our participation in this war reaches a maximum of intensity? Fortunately, the policy of the War Department with respect to training is sound. Unless some terrible military crisis overtakes us we are not going to make the mistake we have so often made before—sending untrained men into action.

We are giving, and we shall continue to give, all our recruits thorough basic training before they are assigned to a unit. And then after they are assigned and become members, as it were, of a team, their training continues literally for months, to the end that they shall be thoroughly seasoned physically, taught how to take care of themselves, taught to understand their responsibilities, the necessity for adequate discipline, how to obey the signals and how to reach their objectives with a minimum loss of life. And it is generally conceded that it takes just about one whole year, perhaps a little more, to form, equip and train a division. Once hardened and instructed, these youngsters, inducted originally after they have passed the age of 18 years, will make the very best kind of soldiers. They will bring into the Army the aggressive spirit of youth; they will endure and grow stronger as they endure. The Army as a whole will be more efficient for their presence and we shall win the war the more quickly.

GO ON CONVENTION

YOU GET ALMOST 3 TIMES AS MUCH BEER IN 1 BOTTLE

THAT'S WHY one GUNTHER CROWN NOW DOES THE WAR WORK OF three

The little Gunther beer crowns... are marching off to war! So to make sure you can still get all the bottled Gunther's you want... Gunther has put one beer cap to do the work of three!

It's a new large size bottle that makes it possible. It gives you almost 3 times as much beer... under the one cap! You can serve 5 full glasses from this one bottle!

So... in spite of war rationing of caps... you don't have to take a substitute beer for the famous dry beer-y Gunther's. Just ask for your Gunther's in the "new, BIG size bottle."

400 Stage-Screen Stars Have Assisted Treasury

Carlton Duffus Reports All Have Answered "Yes" To War Bond Appeals

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.
 Spreading the gospel and value of War savings bonds has been the special task of the Division of Motion Pictures and Special Events of the United States Treasury Department, from modest headquarters on Twelfth street N.W.

Carlton Duffus, director of this essential task of raising the revenues to fight global war through bond sales, has been in the closest touch with Hollywood and Broadway.

If he was an autograph collector he would have the most precious collection of signatures in captivity, for he has personally contacted and arranged the tours for 400 movie and stage celebrities since he took up this assignment in March, 1941. He has never had a star say "No" to a Treasury request.

His annual report, just issued, shows some interesting data summarizing the activities of the division in dealing with glamour, and the public choices on stage and screen.

Every 30 minutes, on an average, an appeal for the purchase of War bonds and stamps is made from the motion picture screens of 15,000 theaters in America.

Each week, 86,000,000 picture fans learn the "gospel" of war savings via the silver screen and can purchase War bonds and stamps at the 15,000 theater sales outlets.

 Mr. Duffus brought to his Treasury job a soft and genial manner in addition to promotion and exploitation experience covering 44 States. As a cymbal beater for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer he was recommended for this post by Howard Dietz, special consultant of Secretary Morgenthau, and the United States campaigns have been carried through with dignity and planned efficiency for this important war effort.

Director Duffus has surrounded himself with some capable showmen and professional tub thumpers, who sometimes are inclined to the spectacular, but are restrained by a policy which emphasizes America is solid and substantial and there must be intrinsic worth in the salesmanship.

Uncle Sam has rounded up some able word manipulators and sales soothsayers for the Duffus staff. There is Robert Harper, chief of special events, whose background includes experience as sports editor, drama critic, cartoonist and columnist. He comes from Louisiana, where he was public relations director for the American Road Builders' Association when he was called into Government service. Burton Davis, chief of the motion picture division, has had 14 years of experience in the Fourth Estate, two years of it as a Broadway drama critic. Author of four books and three feature motion pictures, Author Davis may be said to be prolific. There are many others including Jim Moran, who once sold ice boxes to Esquimaux and found a needle in a haystack, but whose Treasury work as tour manager for stars is more circumspect in reaching the headlines.

House to Delay Action on Price Bill Until Tomorrow

Business

Upturn in Retail Sales Reported for August

By the Associated Press. The Commerce Department said yesterday retail sales turned upward in August after declining for five consecutive months. August sales were higher in July in all branches except filling stations, where gasoline rationing, and price reductions caused a decline in dollar volume. The department estimated that August sales, as a whole, were 6 per cent larger than July, although 1 per cent less than in the same month last year. The upturn made August retail trade the second highest of any month since production makes it more and more difficult to get merchandise to sell. Another Commerce Department study indicated retailers were preparing, as best they could, for their inventory. This report estimated that retailers increased their stocks of merchandise by nearly $900,000,000 in the first seven months of 1942. In the same period, manufacturers' inventories gained $1,600,000,000, but wholesalers' inventories declined $200,000,000.

Coal Dealers Allowed to Pass on Recent Cost Increases

OPA Ruling Provides Relief for Concerns Caught in Squeeze. By the Associated Press. Dealers whose costs for individual kinds and sizes of coal and other solid fuels have risen recently may, within certain limitations, pass on the increases under a regulation issued yesterday by the Office of Price Administration. The OPA said the regulation would provide relief for wholesale and retail dealers caught in a squeeze between costs and fixed ceilings on resale prices. They said however:

- 1. The price adjustment permitted will have little effect on prices to consumers generally since the items affected are mostly commercial sizes of fuel. 2. Adjustments are not allowed on solid fuels generally, and a dealer handling a dozen or more kinds and sizes will be permitted to adjust prices of only the kinds and sizes affected by increases in the price he pays for that particular fuel. 3. No adjustments will be necessary on many kinds and sizes used by individual consumers because the dealers' costs of such fuels have not increased. 4. In cases where some slight price adjustments on particular kinds and sizes are allowed, the increases often will result in continued flow of supplies which otherwise might be cut off.

Bituminous Output Reported Unchanged

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loadings from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended September 26 as about 11,300,000 net tons. Production in the corresponding week of 1941 was 11,386,000 tons; thus the week ending September 26 shows a decrease of 0.8 per cent under the comparable week of last year. The report of the Bituminous Coal Division of the Department of the Interior shows production of 10,465,000 net tons for the week ended September 12 and 11,300,000 tons for the week ended September 19. Production January 1 through September 26, about 421,983,000 tons; 1941, 362,626,000 tons; an increase of 16.4 per cent.

New Diesels Ordered by Lehigh Valley

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The Lehigh Valley Railroad has ordered ten 1,000-horsepower Diesel electric switching engines at a cost of approximately $750,000, President R. W. Brown announced after a board meeting yesterday. The American Locomotive Co. was awarded orders for half of the engines and the Electro-Motive Corp. the other five. Brown estimated net income for September at $625,000. This would compare with $488,736 for the same month last year.

Maryland Employment and Payrolls Climb

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—The State Labor Department reported that 687 Maryland manufacturing establishments paid $4,416,657 to 232,517 employees during August, an increase of 49.1 per cent in payrolls and 23 per cent in employees over the corresponding month last year. The average weekly salary amounted to $40.50 for 44 hours. In non-manufacturing industries, figures showed 1,073 firms employing 51,191 workers who received $1,535,000 in payrolls.

Wholesale Food Index At New 22-Year Peak

Special Dispatch to The Star. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Continued strength in foods and farm products was reflected in another 2-cent rise in the Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week. This brought the September 29 figure to $3.86, an advance of 15.6 per cent over the comparative 1941 index of $3.34, and a new high level for the past 22 years. Commodities moving upward during the period were oats, beans, butter, cheese, eggs, potatoes, steers and wheat, while declines included flour, wheat, corn, rye, barley and lamb.

Edmund Fitzgerald, vice president of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., was elected a vice president.

Servel, Inc., Reports $36,026 Loss for Three Months

Result Contrasts With $1,432,298 Profit in Same 1941 Period. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Servel, Inc., refrigerator makers, reported for the quarter ended July 31 net loss of $36,026, compared with a profit of $1,432,298, or 80 cents a share on the capital stock, in the comparable period of 1941. The loss in the quarter was attributed to the suspension of normal activities of the company and its conversion to war work.

Cotton Cloth Output Expected to Set New Record This Year

Sharp Rise Accomplished Despite Decrease in Mill Facilities. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—W. Ray Bell, president of the cotton textile merchants of New York, today estimated that 1942 production of woven cotton cloth would reach a record level at approximately 12,500,000,000 square yards. "Such volume," he said, "will exceed by more than a billion square yards the War Production Board's estimate for last year (11,328,000,000 square yards). It is 4,000,000,000 square yards more than the average annual pre-war output from 1935 to 1939, inclusive."

Vast Canadian War Expansion Is Pictured

SENIOR CLUB, Quebec, Oct. 1. (Canadian Press)—H. K. Thompson of Ottawa, director general of the Canadian War Relocation Department of Munitions and Supply, presented a financial picture of Canada's expanding war program when yesterday he addressed the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here. He gave comparative values of war production last year and this. Here they are:

Advertising Leader Praises Helvering Tax Report

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Paul B. West, president of the Association of National Advertisers, yesterday praised the statement by Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, concerning advertising expenditures deductible from income tax returns. Helvering said Tuesday that advertising bills of businesses would continue to be deductible from income tax returns as long as they were ordinary and necessary and bear a reasonable relation to the enterprise's activities in which the enterprise is engaged. This statement, Helvering said, was issued in response to numerous inquiries about Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr.'s notice to Congress May 28 that the bureau was examining corporate advertising with a view to disallowing excessive deductions of various kinds, including advertising.

Meat Record Broken

CHICAGO, Oct. 1 (AP)—Meat production last month reached an all-time high for September, the American Meat Institute reported today. Output was estimated as 20 per cent above September, 1941, and from 50 to 100 per cent higher than the 1929-1933 average.

Rail Loadings Decline

The Association of American Railroads reported today that 897,714 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday. This was a decrease of 5.38 per cent, or 0.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 22,000 cars, or 2.0 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 75,280 cars, or 9.2 per cent, compared with 1940.

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—A grain market advance based on Senate passage of an anti-inflation legislation which would raise commodity loans granted by the Government to producers was short-lived today and late profit taking reduced or erased the gains. Wheat touched highest prices since early summer before the reaction occurred. Late selling was blamed partly on uncertainty as to whether higher loan rates for basic crops were mandatory and whether they will apply to 1942 production.

September Construction Holds 39 Pct. Above 1941

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—September engineering construction volume of $712,709,000 compared with $513,077,000 in the corresponding month of 1941, according to a report reported today. Highest September value ever reported by the trade magazine, the total topped the like 1941 period by 39 per cent, but was 12 per cent below the 1937-1940 Federal construction account for 91 per cent of the volume and rose 78 per cent above a year ago.

Bank Clearings Dip Slightly in Week; Top Year Ago

Total for 23 Cities 16.4 Per Cent Ahead of 1941 Period. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Bank clearings in the 23 leading cities in the week ended Wednesday fell only slightly under the record volume in the preceding week and were 16.4 per cent above the total of a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet announced today. The aggregate was $7,834,443,000, compared with $6,814,006,000 in the like period of 1941, and only $204,446,000 below the year's top established in the previous week. Some of the large outside gains over the 1941 volume were: Seattle, 50.2 per cent; Portland, Ore., 33.3; Denver, 32.2; Omaha, 29.4, and Pittsburgh, 25.1.

D. C. Bank Clearings Gain $111,915,481 In Nine Months

September Also Scores New All-Time Peak On $447,445 Rise

By EDWARD C. STONE.

In the first nine months of this year, Washington bank clearings scored a gain of $111,915,481 over the like 1941 period, reaching a new all-time peak and clearly indicating that all former business records were shattered.

Canceled checks amounted to $17,379,539,617, compared with $1,237,623,132.12 in the nine months a year ago, according to George H. Bright, manager of the Clearing House Association.

September clearings in the Capital totaled $147,414,674.55, compared with $146,967,121.95 in September, 1941, an increase of $447,445.50.

While this is a new record for September, the figures indicate that business is leveling off.

Smaller Gains Forecast. Except for last year, the September total was the highest since 1929, when clearings amounted to $114,986,939.61.

The Capital's unprecedented war boom is vividly pictured by the monthly comparison of bank clearings in 1942 with the corresponding months in 1941.

Airlines Also Improve, Profit Taking Cuts Some Advances

By VICTOR EUBANK. Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Bullish travelers took one-way tickets on the rails in today's stock market and steam-road issues, on average, speeded up to new high territory for the day.

Byington stepped into airlines and selected industrials, with activity expanding on the swing. The revival came after a slightly uneven opening. Gains running to 2 or more points for favorites generally were well maintained near the close, although volume dwindled and quotations were reduced here and there by profit taking.

Wall Streeters still were more or less inflation-minded notwithstanding the wage-price bill passed by the Senate and this, as much as anything else, apparently served as a prop for sentiment.

There was little in war developments to disturb speculative or investment confidence. Word that Congress was about to whip the tax bill into shape helped restrain sentiment to a moderate degree.

Prominent advances included Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Railway preferred which reached best levels since 1937.

Among others in the "new high" division for 1942 or longer were Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Great Northern, and Illinois Northern Utilities Co.

Support was given American Airlines, Douglas Aircraft, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, and Knott's Cattle, Roebuck, Boeing, Southern Railway common, Great Northern, New York Central and Allied Chemical.

Reduction in Chicago Gas Rates Approved

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The Illinois Commerce Commission approved yesterday a rate reduction through which 285,000 gas consumers in the Chicago metropolitan area will share a $487,000 annual saving.

The bulk of the saving, the commission said, will go to residential users served by the Public Utility Co. of Northern Illinois, Western United Gas & Electric Co. and the Illinois Northern Utilities Co.

The rates will go into effect within 20 days.

ABC Censorship Plan Arouses Sharp Debate

Kronheim Attacked For Renewal of Price Ban Proposal

Questions of Americanism, free expression and what makes a man drink too much were raised today at a hearing before the District Commissioners on a long series of proposed changes in liquor rules and regulations.

Opposing factions engaged in verbal fireworks over a change which would empower the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to censor local beverage advertising, including newspaper ads and radio script.

The proposed new regulation would forbid any licensee either directly or indirectly to advertise his wares by radio, newspaper, periodical or other publication, printed matter, sign or placard, unless he had first submitted the same to the ABC board for examination and filed with it a photograph, illustration, sketch or description of such sign, placard or display, with all wording thereon, and a copy of any advertisement or radio broadcast, and unless the board has approved in writing the same as in compliance with the provisions of the act and regulations.

Those in Favor. Lined up for adoption of such a rule were Mrs. Tille C. Brown, a retailer; Max Kossov, a dealer, and Martin F. O'Donoghue, speaking for the District Retail Liquor Dealers' Association.

Vigorous opposition came from Earl Baker, business manager of the Washington Daily News; Rudolph Yeaman, representing the Washington Times-Herald; W. Cameron Burton, representing wholesalers and manufacturers of distributors of beer, and Leo A. Rover, former United States attorney, who represented Clark's, Inc.

Kronheim Enters Discussion. Milton S. Kronheim, sr., wholesale liquor dealer and head of the Beverage Industry Committee, told the Commissioners he was in favor of the ABC board being swamped with work if the censorship plan was adopted, but that he was strongly opposed to "flagrant and offensive" advertising.

Mr. Kronheim said he doubted whether the proposed plan was the right "cure," but said "a straight-out ban on price advertising would be a sure way of treating the evil."

His suggestion of a ban on price advertising, which has been sought unsuccessfully by a group led by Mr. Kronheim for two years or more, touched off loud debate.

Mr. Rover declared that censorship was both "unnecessary and un-American" and he termed the plan a "radical proposal." He declared the ABC board was "derelict" in its duty if the described evils prevailed, since it had power already to call a licensee before it and tell him "stop this or we will stop your business."

Hasn't Been Derelict. But the ABC board has not been derelict in its duty, Mr. Rover declared.

Mr. Rover then leveled an attack at Mr. Kronheim declaring that the same group that had tried to persuade the ABC board and the Commissioners and Congress unsuccessfully in the past to ban liquor price advertising, today were trying to do the same thing by "an indirect method."

Mr. Rover said: "I disagree with Mr. Kronheim but I admire him for his frankness—he is in favor of a prohibition on price advertising."

Yule Greetings Delivered Here 14 Years Late

Christmas greetings came this week to Henry B. Deane, 6908 Eighth street N.W.—not three months too early but 14 years too late.

Seven Christmas cards of last generation's vintage were delivered at the Deane residence with the post office's gross understatement that the "mail matters" were apparently mishandled by a temporary employee during the Christmas period of 1929.

Three of the senders are now dead. "Seems like a voice from the grave," was Mr. Deane's comment.

All of the letters were mailed in Washington and now may be regarded as a monument to growing efficiency at the postoffice.

Anti-Inflation Action By Senate Is Seen as Bar to Gas Rate Hike

Norris Amendment Would Permit Utility Increases Only on President O. K.

Prospects of an effective bar to any increase in rates of the Washington Gas Light Co.—now threatened in the current sliding-scale case before the District Public Utilities Commission—were seen today in the action of the Senate in adopting an amendment to the new wage and price control law, at the instance of Senator Norris, Independent, of Nebraska.

The Norris amendment, applicable to all States and the District, provides that no public utility, carrier or other public utility on September 15, 1942, shall not be increased without the consent of the President; provided further, that nothing in this section shall be construed as affecting the power of any Federal, State or municipal authority or agency to reduce prices, rates or charges subject to its jurisdiction, or to equalize the rates or charges of common carriers.

House Yet to Act. Rates of regulated utilities now are exempt from control by Price Administrator, Leon H. Johnson, under the wording of the present Federal Price Control Act.

The Norris amendment to the new Federal price control measure was adopted by a voice vote. House action on the bill is expected.

Apparently, the Norris amendment takes the place of the separate measure he presented a few days ago to empower the President (probably through the OPA) to veto rate increases in utilities which may be approved by regulatory bodies of the States or the District.

Particular local interest attaches to this provision adopted by the Senate since an increase in the consumer rates of the Washington Gas Light Co. of between $326,000 and $383,000 is threatened under operation of the sliding scale rate adjustment plan.

At the closing of the hearing yesterday—reopened for the day to hear the views of spokesmen for two civic groups—the PUC denied a last-minute petition by Hardy R. Booth as OPA representative that the hearing again be reopened to consider evidence on the need to review the case in the light of "changed economic conditions" and a change in the sliding scale plan to accord to such conditions.

Jobs in District Drop Slightly To 498,000

Employment in the District in August totaled 498,000, a decrease of 1,000 from the July figure, but 89,000 more than in August, 1941, the Labor Department reported yesterday.

Non-agricultural employment in Virginia totaled 751,000, a gain of 19,000 during the month and 77,000 greater than in August, 1941. Non-agricultural employment in Maryland amounted to 735,000, an increase of 31,000 over July and 93,000 more than in August, 1941.

Non-agricultural employment throughout the country in August reached an all-time high of 37,780,000, or 555,000 more than in July and an increase of 2,332,000 over August, 1941.

Up Nearly 4,700,000. The rise of 337,000 in factory employment continued the virtually unbroken series of increases reported since June, 1940, and brought to nearly 4,700,000 the number of workers added to factory employment since the start of the defense program.

The increase of 1,641,000 in factory employment over the year interval accounts for a major portion of the gain of more than 2,300,000 in non-agricultural establishments, Secretary Perkins said.

"Employment in the Federal, State and local Government services was greater than in August, 1941. Smaller gains were shown in the transportation and public utility and the finance, service and miscellaneous groups."

"Among the three major groups reporting fewer workers in August, 1942, than in August, 1941, the decline in the retail trade was the most outstanding—406,000. The losses in mining and contract construction amounted to 61,000 and 42,000, respectively."

Factory employment and payroll index reached new highs in August—145.3 and 214.4, respectively, of the 1923-1925 average. The factory employment index was 9.2 per cent and the payroll index 35.6 per cent higher than the corresponding indexes a year ago.

Payroll Gain Heavier. Increase in number of hours worked, overtime premiums, and increases in basic wage rates, Secretary Perkins pointed out, were chiefly responsible for the fact that payroll gains exceeded those of employment over the year interval.

In addition to the District, nine States reported employment decreases in August—New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Employment in the Federal electric service in August totaled 2,572,000, an increase of 194,000 during the month, according to the Labor Department's figures. Inside the District, the increase amounted to less than 1,000, while outside the District the increase, according to preliminary reports, amounted to 193,500.

Payrolls for the executive service in August amounted to $422,262,000, or $35,239,000 greater than in July, and $204,490,000 more than a year ago.

Voteless League Calls For District Suffrage, Congress Delegate

Board O. K.'s Principle Of Paddock Bill, but Dissents From Form

Reaffirming its stand in favor of national representation and District suffrage, the executive board of the Voteless District League of Women Voters has endorsed the principle of the Paddock bill, which would provide a voteless delegate for the District.

Support of the Paddock bill in its present form, however, was withheld pending alteration to "strengthen certain existing weaknesses."

A resolution recommending support of a bill embodying the principle of a voteless delegate to Congress as a "measure useful in coping with the problems of Washington in wartime," was adopted by the board yesterday, following a report from a subcommittee which has made a study of the Paddock proposal.

Insists on Suffrage. The resolution made it clear, however, that "no substitute for District suffrage can be accepted by the league."

Points which the board believes to be "inadequacies" in the Paddock measure were stated as follows: "1. Time of residence for delegate is too brief."

"2. A definition of voting qualifications is necessary. What does 'actual residence' mean?"

"3. The mechanism for setting up precincts is inadequate."

"4. There is no provision for a runoff between the candidates to avoid minority control."

"A fact-finding mechanism should be attached to the office of delegate."

New Physical Fitness Plan Finds Enthusiasm at Wilson

Nutrition Studies for Boys, Calisthenics For Girls Included in Expanded Program

According to the students of Woodrow Wilson High School, nothing has been so popular in years as the new expanded physical fitness program.

An increase from two to five periods a week of physical education went in effect in all Washington high schools this year to prepare students to do their best in the war effort.

"I like the classes better with so many more girls in them," said pretty Cordelia Foreman, 15, as she bounced a basketball against the gymnasium wall.

"I'm sure I'm going to be able to do both the cadets and the physical fitness program at once," said Mary O. Spangler, who teaches gym at Wilson.

Enthusiasm Buys Teachers. The program still has a mass of details to be ironed out, according to Miss Belle Myers, physical education director for girls at Wilson.

But the enthusiasm of the students has been a boost for the teachers. For girls especially, she said, the task of reorganizing the course has been tremendous. The girls had little calisthenics before.

Those who were seriously interested in physical education look that as their major subject and were never included in the routine classes.

Now every girl in the school takes three periods of physical activity a week instead of two and in addition has two periods of lectures.

The number of medical excuses submitted has dropped sharply, Miss Myers said, because of the new interest the students are taking in the "full course."

Woman Is Fined $250 For Eviction Violating Rent-Control Terms

Court Criticizes Operator Of Rooming House For Trying to Boost Price

Criticized by the court for trying to "jack up rents" by "taking advantage of crowded living conditions in the Capital," Mrs. Anna Leah Davidson, operator of a rooming house at 3423 Sixteenth street N.W., was fined $250 in Municipal Court yesterday for violating the rent control law in connection with the eviction of a tenant.

Judge George D. Nelson imposed the penalty. He issued a statement today warning that "other similar violations will be dealt with in my court just as firmly."

Failed to Give Notice. Mrs. Davidson specifically was convicted of failing to give the District rent administrator five days' notice in writing of her intention to evict a roomer.

Loretta Gent, a former War Department stenographer who has since been transferred to Chicago. The law requires landlords to give all details of the case, so that the administrator may intervene if he sees fit.

Miss Gent was occupying a room at the house with another young woman who decided to take a trip home. It was not certain that the latter would return to Washington, but she and Miss Gent had paid their rent in advance.

Before expiration of their paid-up time, Miss Gent came home one afternoon to find that two other girls had moved into her room. Miss Gent testified that the two said they had been assigned to occupy the room with her.

Scuffle Followed. Miss Gent, however, told them that she and her roommate, who was away, were the only ones entitled to occupy the room, since they had paid the rent in advance.

Officials at the rent administrator's office said several other similar cases are pending.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman prosecuted the case, which was the first of its kind under the new District rent control law.

Germany to Force Norse To Pay for Raid Damage

LONDON, Oct. 1.—A Stockholm dispatch to Reuters last night reported Norwegian patriots would be required to pay for damage done by the RAF mosquito plane raid last Friday on the Oslo Gestapo headquarters when a meeting of Vidkun Quisling's party was in progress.

Washing Equipment Sought for Servicemen

Washing machines, a dentist chair and a barber chair are among the articles needed by nearby Army posts, according to Otto S. Lund, manager of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Recently the District Chapter secured four washing machines for anti-aircraft units stationed out of reach of laundry trucks.

Plans to observe November 9 to 15 as education week in line with the observance planned by the National Education Association and the Office of Education also were made by the league.

An education luncheon will be held November 10 when District and congressional speakers will be presented.

A night meeting also will be held for business and professional members.

Alexandria May Put Judge's Pay in Budget

Inclusion of a regular salary for an associate judge of Alexandria Civil and Police Court in the 1943 budget is expected as a result of a meeting of City Council with court officials Tuesday night, City Manager Carl Budensky said today.

The meeting was called at the request of Judge James R. Duncan to adjust the compensation of Associate Judge Harry F. Kennedy.

The Council will be made of a regular salary for a full-time associate judge before the 1943 budget is set.

Warden and Watcher Party in Manor Park

A warden-watcher social for night and day crews of the air raid wardens and fire watchers of Zone 2, Manor Park area, will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday at 318 Rittenhouse street N.W.

The party will be a tribute to the Rev. Howard Arnold, deputy warden.

50-Gallon Tanks May Keep Oil From Alexandria Project Homes

At least 200 families of war workers living in the Government-built Cameron Valley housing project in Alexandria face a heatless winter because they have only 50-gallon fuel oil tanks for their homes.

Francis N. Fannon, member of the oil firm which serviced the project last year but has discontinued deliveries, summed up the situation this way: "It is all traceable to the engineer who put 50-gallon tanks in there and made it necessary for delivery men to carry a 100-foot hose through living rooms and dining rooms."

Officer Schools Foundation Of Army, Gen. McNair Says

Officer candidate schools, turning out 200 new lieutenants each month, are producing the foundation on which the Army is being built, Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding the Army Ground Forces, told a graduating class of 440 officers yesterday at the Engineer Officer School, Fort Belvoir, Va.

In presenting diplomas to the officers, Gen. McNair said their new duties would demand quick thinking and action. He said modern warfare has developed "seemingly insurmountable problems, but the rash impulses of the moment are being replaced by the sober judgment of the engineers."

Love of Fishing Leads to Arrest Of Man, 77, Fugitive 16 Years

A 77-year-old colored man whose penchant for fishing disclosed that he had escaped from the District Workhouse at Occoquan 16 years ago, surrendered to police today.

The man is George William Cammack, 1026 Twenty-ninth street N.W., who since his escape, October 17, 1926, has lived the "life of a respectable citizen, a good husband and father," police reported.

A short time ago Mr. Cammack, now a labor foreman with supervision over 42 men, applied for a Coast Guard permit necessary to fish in certain waters.

McCarran Urges 'Crackdown' on Vice in D. C.

'Hard-Boiled' Drive And Use of Padlock Laws Demanded

Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee today called on law enforcement agencies here to "crack down" on vice conditions by using the padlock provision of the Webb-Kenyon Act.

"Any one who listened to yesterday's hearing on the subject in the District Committee, or who reads the record, must come to one conclusion, and that is that enforcement of the law is being administered too softly," Senator McCarran declared.

"A crack-down method, a hard-boiled administration should come into operation promptly," the Army officer who attended the hearing disclosed that his records quite definitely showed the areas in the city where vice is carried on. It is his judgment there is ample provision in existing laws to make the practice less prevalent, but if enforcement of the law is not forthcoming, the statutes will be forthcoming."

Kelly Cites Difficulties. Police officials, including Supt. Edward J. Kelly, told the committee the law against soliciting prostitution on the street is not broad enough to deal with the problem. Kelly also recommended an amendment. They said also they have legal difficulty in proceeding against "call houses," where telephone messages are received for persons to go to a place to have sex.

Senator McCarran said that in all wars "there have been epidemics of more or less loose morals and lax enforcement of law, but in the Capital of this Nation at war something must be done to protect the law. It is the duty of the Government to live up to its obligations to its citizens and to its people."

Says Marines Could Clean Up. The Nevada Senator said he does not believe it will be necessary to add to the law enforcement facilities of the District, but a few companies of Marines would probably clean this thing up rather rapidly.

"What we need," he concluded, "is a more hard-boiled police, and the law is needed to give it sense and perhaps a few padlocks."

Detective Serg. Roy Blick of the vice squad testified yesterday the difficulty of making cases against "call houses" is the fact that investigating officers must know who answers the phone.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, said the District is sharing in the Federal program to combat venereal disease. He pointed out it is difficult to determine accurately the size of the problem in the District because the District has had an increase.

Wants Law Tested. In the health clinics 6,000 cases of syphilis are being treated, plus about 2,500 cases under private treatment, he continued. The clinics are treating 2,500 cases of gonorrhea, which, he said, is undoubtedly under the actual number.

Dr. Ruhland said it should be emphasized that a mere diagnosis of venereal disease is no stigma on an individual, because there are a good many innocent cases. He suggested that a pre-natal examination law would be helpful.

District Attorney Edward Curran said his office is ready to prosecute "to a forceful conclusion" when cases of commercialized vice are presented.

Relief Group to Hold Tea

The Junior Jewish Consumptive's Relief Society of Denver will hold its first rush tea of the season at Colonia Willard, 815 Wilson boulevard, Arlington, Va., at 2 p.m. tomorrow. A series of the teas will be held during the month.

War Powers Bill Is Last Waiting Assembly Vote

Special Session In Virginia Likely To End Today

BULLETIN.
RICHMOND, Va., (AP)—A Senate bill to give sweeping wartime emergency powers to the Governor was quickly killed by unanimous vote today of the House of Delegates of the Virginia Legislature, after it had received an unfavorable report from a subcommittee.

Legislators sought a decision today on wartime emergency powers to be given Gov. Darden as the last item of importance on the agenda of the special legislative session. The Senate-approved bill was in the hands of the House of Delegates, which named a subcommittee to iron out differences over the sweeping war powers bill which would give the Governor the authority to call out the National Guard and to suspend the writ of habeas corpus.

Adjustment of the special session sometime today, the third day since it convened, was seen when the two houses yesterday put the finishing touches on the Governor's program for offsetting the entire State debt by purchasing Federal securities maturing at the same time as Virginia obligations.

Senator Aubrey Weaver offered and both houses passed unanimously yesterday a bill appropriating $150,000 of highway funds into the highway sinking fund to provide money enough to retire the highway indebtedness of approximately $3,428,000.

Earlier in the day the Assembly had passed unanimously the bill appropriating $10,000,000 to permit the State to transfer the State's stock, Frederick and Potomac Railroad stock to the State treasury from the sinking fund. This left in the sinking fund about $20,000,000 enough to provide retirement of principal and interest on the entire State debt. The stock, worth about $1,750,000, becomes a surplus item in the treasury.

Also passed unanimously was the administration-back bill to permit the State treasurer and the Governor, acting jointly, to invest State funds not needed for current expenditures in short-term Federal securities. Not on the Governor's program, but likewise passed, was a Senate bill to permit counties to buy Federal war bonds during the war against the Axis.

Assemblymen prided themselves not only on the fact that they had provided for retirement of the 100-year-old debt, but that Virginia was going to pass something like $15,000,000 worth of ammunition to Uncle Sam for use on the firing line in the immediate future.

Other Bills Are Passed.
The enrolling room was working at top speed to have the completed legislation ready for signature of the presiding officers today. Bills passed yesterday and sent to the enrolling room included:

Correcting an "oversight" in the last amendment of the motor vehicle code which would have cost the State $200,000. The bill restores the $1 title fee omitted in the 1942 code revision.
The Senate bill tightening the law dealing with prostitution and the examining of persons who may be affected with venereal disease, the bill providing that no person convicted of such a crime should be admitted to bail until pronounced not dangerous because of disease, was amended by the House to require that medical examination be started within three days after arrest.

Bill making the maximum speed limit on the highways 35 miles per hour and giving the Governor power to lower this to 30 if deemed necessary. The bill, which expires June 30, 1944, exempts vehicles of the armed forces being operated in line of duty.

Alexandria May Put Judge's Pay in Budget

Inclusion of a regular salary for an associate judge of Alexandria City and Police Court in the 1943 budget is expected as a result of a meeting of City Council with court officials Tuesday night. City Manager Carl Budge was called to the meeting by Judge James R. Duncan to discuss the compensation of Associate Judge Harry F. Kennedy.

The Council voted to pay Judge Kennedy $4,142 for his services this year and to consider the matter of regular salary for a full-time associate judge before the 1943 budget is set.

Laws Deficient For War on Vice, D. C. Unit Told

U. S., District Officials Give McCarran Views on Problem

Police officials told the Senate District Committee late yesterday existing laws are inadequate to cope with the phases of commercialized vice, including solicitation in taverns, dance halls or similar public places.

They said they have difficulty also in curbing what they termed "call houses," where only telephone messages are received.
Their testimony was given during a round-table discussion arranged by Chairman McCarran to find out if all possible steps are being taken to protect the health of the community from venereal disease.

Detective Sergt. Roy Bliek of the Police Department of the United States Public Health Service, District Health Department, United States Attorney's office, the Army, Navy, Federal Security Agency and local social agencies joined in the exchange of views.
Kelly Urges Broader Authority.
Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, said existing regulations against solicitation on the streets is not broad enough and said he would like to see it amended to include taverns, dance halls and similar places.

Kelly said the vice squad had tested earlier on the difficulty of making a case against "call houses" because, he explained, the investigating officers must know who answered the phone.
Senator McCarran stressed the importance of doing everything possible to protect the health of the community from the spread of social disease and pointed out that the curbing of commercialized vice is necessarily related to the health problem.

Senator McCarran expressed the belief that educating the boys who are still in school to the dangers involved in the social disease problem would go a long way toward saving the youth themselves and improving the health situation.
Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, said the District is cooperating with the Federal program to combat venereal disease and pointed out it is difficult to determine accurately the size of the problem but said it is presumed the District has had an increase.

Wants Law Tended

In the health clinics 6,000 cases of syphilis are being treated, plus about 2,500 cases under private treatment, he estimated. He said the clinics are treating 2,500 cases of gonorrhea, which, he said, is undoubtedly under the actual number. Dr. Ruhland said he would like to see a court test made of the existing communicable disease law to settle the question of how the city may go in making treatment compulsory.

Dr. Ruhland said it should be emphasized that a mere diagnosis of venereal disease is not stigma on an individual, because there are a number of innocent cases. He suggested that a pre-marital examination law would be helpful.
District Attorney Edward Curran said his office is ready to prosecute "to a forceful conclusion" when cases of commercialized vice are reported to the police.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken of the Police Women's Bureau, testified "we do have certain legal difficulties and we might as well face them." She referred to the difficulty of dealing with "call houses" and certain types of disorderly houses. She suggested it is an inadequacy of the law or differences of opinion as to the amount of evidence required.
Senator McCarran inquired if some padlocking proceedings under the Webb-Kenyon case would be helpful. Maj. Kelly said his men were at work and hoping to get sufficient evidence for that purpose on a number of places.

Among others who testified were Elliott Ness of the Defense Health Service of the Federal Security Agency, James S. Owens of the Division of Social Protection of the Federal Security Agency, Mrs. O. W. Swinney of the Civilian Defense Council and Edward L. Ackerman of the Council of Social Agencies.
Mr. Ackerman submitted a list of recommendations for improving the local situation which were discussed last week at meetings of the Washington Institute on Social Protection. Mr. Ness stressed the advisability of arranging a conference of Municipal Court judges, the police vice squad and the health authorities for a combined approach to the two problems of disease control and vice suppression.

Dr. H. J. Crosson of the District Medical Society told the committee that human nature cannot be changed by legislation. The unfortunate women who become involved in vice are subnormal, he contended, and should be given an indeterminate sentence and be sent to a farm established for the treatment of venereal disease.
The fourth group consists of seniors placed on full-time jobs any time after February 1 that school authorities feel they are qualified to take a job. Although they do not attend school after they are employed on outside jobs, they will graduate in June with their class.
"Despite the effort involved in setting up a work experience program," Mr. Douglas declared, "such a program offers one means of tapping the great unused reservoir of youthful power, energy and ingenuity now being unused or misused because of the youth of our high schools have not been given tasks worthy of their abilities."

Sophomores Do Manual Labor

The third group consists of sophomores. Their work closely resembles that of the Civilian Conservation Corps. They build steps and walls needed on the school grounds, cut bushes, clean up the grounds and make play courts.
Unless there is economic need, these students are not placed in paying jobs, Mr. Douglas explained.

County Minute Men To Meet Tomorrow

Members of Company 708, 7th Battalion, Montgomery County Minute Men, will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow to elect a company chaplain and a physician. The meeting will be held in the Glen Echo Fire House.
A membership drive will be conducted by the company during October. Men between 18 and 65 years of age living in the territory between River road and Bradley boulevard and the Kenwood and Congressional Clubs are eligible for membership. Applicants are to get in touch with Company Clerk E. T. Dunlap.

Warden and Watcher Party in Manor Park

A warden-watcher party for night and day crews of the air raid wardens and fire watchers of Zone 2, Manor Park area, will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday at 318 Rittenhouse street N.W.

The party will be a tribute to the Rev. Howard Arnold, deputy warden, and to the fact that every member of the zone has recently passed the written defense examination prescribed by the OGD. Refreshments will be served.

Students Free Men For Urgent War Duty By Work Programs

Montgomery Schools Institute Program in Job Experience

Hundreds of Montgomery County (Md.) students are making immediate material contributions to the war effort through work experience programs sponsored by county high schools.

The work they do ranges from apple picking and general farm duties to serving as filling station attendants and drug store clerks, and releases men needed for more urgent war work.
Even before the Government appeal to send high school students to relieve the acute labor shortage, work experience programs designed to fit students for almost any conceivable type of job after graduation had been set up in all of the high schools in Montgomery County.
At Montgomery Blair High School at Silver Spring, for example, where the program was in full swing last year, 248 sophomores, juniors and seniors participated in the program during 1941-42 and earned during school time approximately $15,000.

Show Better Grades

In addition, physical examinations, increased emphasis on maintaining health and nutritional information in schools, as well as regular health reports from the students, were made an integral part of the program.
Not only did every student taking the work experience program receive specific training in a job which would enable him or her to earn a living, but in almost every case, the student made better grades than non-participating students, despite periodic absence from regular classes, according to E. M. Douglas, Montgomery Blair principal.
Labor union officials co-operated in the program by not requiring full union membership, even on closed shops, and by allowing the student entered in the Montgomery Blair program to be divided into four groups: the first, the retail selling group, is operated on Saturdays.
Members of this group are employed in the community a half day and attend school during the other half. While in school they study English, techniques of selling and job problems.
The second group consists of academic students, also only in the senior class, who are permitted to take a partial school program and are placed in part-time jobs.
The third group consists of sophomores. Their work closely resembles that of the Civilian Conservation Corps. They build steps and walls needed on the school grounds, cut bushes, clean up the grounds and make play courts.
Unless there is economic need, these students are not placed in paying jobs, Mr. Douglas explained.

Dr. H. J. Crosson, of the District Medical Society, said he is not sure if the program is worth the cost. He said that the program is a means of tapping the great unused reservoir of youthful power, energy and ingenuity now being unused or misused because of the youth of our high schools have not been given tasks worthy of their abilities.
The program in all of the high schools has meant hiring of many new physical education teachers. At Wilson the new woman teacher is Mrs. Mary C. Spangler, who teaches home nursing to the girls and nutrition to both the boys and girls.
"This nutrition course is going to make a difference in what I order when I go out to dinner," said Allen Johnson. "I guess maybe I can give my mother a hint or two." Senior boys and girls get two periods a week of "basic nutrition."

The lectures on traffic safety, home safety, hygiene, mental health, anatomy, physiology, alcohol and narcotics, which used to be given briefly during a period of a year, have been expanded to cover two periods a week each during the better part of a semester. The students have bought regular physical education notebooks now and take examinations on the lectures just as they do in other full time courses.
As far as the boys are concerned, according to Mr. Heintzel, their activity has only increased, not changed to any great extent. There are more calisthenics, he said, and perhaps later there will be an obstacle course.
For the girls, however, "skill tests" like what to be held all this week at Woodrow Wilson High School, nothing has been so popular in years as the new expanded physical fitness program.
An increase from two to five periods a week of physical education went into effect in all Washington high schools this year to prepare students to do their best in the war effort. Yesterday the students at Wilson told The Star how they liked the program at their school.

"I like the classes better with so many more girls in them," said pretty Cordella Foresman, 15, as she bounced a basketball against the gymnasium wall. "Calisthenics do both the cadets and the physical fitness program at once," said George Cooper, 15. Cadets used to be excused from physical education but now have to take it along with non-cadets.
"I like studying nutrition," said Martin Wolfe, 15. "It's interesting."

Enthusiasm Buys Teachers

The program still has a mass of details to be ironed out, according to Miss Betty Myers, physical education director for girls at Wilson, but the enthusiasm of the students has been a boost for the teachers. For girls especially, she said, the task of reorganizing the course has been tremendous. The girls had little calisthenics before. Those who were seriously interested in physical education took that as their major subject and were never included in the routine classes.
Now every girl in the school takes three periods of physical activity a week and the physical education has two periods of lectures. The number of medical excuses submitted has dropped sharply, Miss Myers said, because of the new interest the students are taking in the course.
Deeds can no longer excuse a student outright from physical education but must instead stipulate what he can do. The list grades down in activity to "complete rest." No one so far at Wilson has applied for permission to lie down during the activity period.
According to Carl Heintzel, director for Wilson boys, his reorganization was not so sweeping. The boys have always had a certain amount of calisthenics and are used to working in larger groups than the girls.
The numbers of the classes for boys have greatly increased, Mr. Heintzel said, because of the new regulation that cadets have to take physical education, too. The school store ran out of running pants, he said, and many of the students new to the course have to wait for shipments of uniforms.

Court Decides Driver Needn't Wear Glasses

By The Associated Press.
HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 1.—Master Judge Martin V. Bostetter held yesterday there is no violation of law involved in operating a motor vehicle without glasses on a restricted permit which says they must be worn.
The officer said that if the driver is wearing glasses on a restricted permit, the driver is not required to wear glasses to drive.
The driver was arrested last week by a local officer on a charge of operating without a driver's license. The officer held that if the permit was valid only when its owner wore glasses, he was operating without a license when he took them off.
Attorney General William C. Walsh said he had never examined the question and would only do so if requested by the magistrate or Motor Vehicles Commissioner W. Lee Egan.

10 Draft Delinquents Reported in Arlington

Ten registrants at Local Selective Service Board No. 1, 3004 Lee highway, Arlington, Va., are delinquent in complying with draft regulations and their names have been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, it was announced today by P. H. Eastman, board chairman.
Delinquencies, it was pointed out, include failure to return questionnaires, failure to report for induction and failure to take physical examinations at appointed hours.
Mr. Eastman requests persons who have information regarding the present whereabouts of the men to forward it immediately to Local Board No. 1.

Charles County Fair Set For Opening Tomorrow

By The Associated Press.
LA PLATA, Md., Oct. 1.—Final plans were made today for the annual Charles County Fair tomorrow and Saturday.
The fair this year will be designed along a war pattern, with an array of farm products scheduled for display.
To maintain the succession of the tobacco royalty of Southern Maryland, each paid admission to the fair will be good for one vote for Queen Nicotiana IX. Coronation ceremonies will be held at the fair dance at Chapel Point Saturday.
As a conservation measure, the fair board has announced that it is offering prizes in War Savings stamps to drivers transporting the largest number of persons to the fair.

Students Free Men For Urgent War Duty By Work Programs

Montgomery Schools Institute Program in Job Experience

Hundreds of Montgomery County (Md.) students are making immediate material contributions to the war effort through work experience programs sponsored by county high schools.
The work they do ranges from apple picking and general farm duties to serving as filling station attendants and drug store clerks, and releases men needed for more urgent war work.
Even before the Government appeal to send high school students to relieve the acute labor shortage, work experience programs designed to fit students for almost any conceivable type of job after graduation had been set up in all of the high schools in Montgomery County.
At Montgomery Blair High School at Silver Spring, for example, where the program was in full swing last year, 248 sophomores, juniors and seniors participated in the program during 1941-42 and earned during school time approximately $15,000.

Show Better Grades

In addition, physical examinations, increased emphasis on maintaining health and nutritional information in schools, as well as regular health reports from the students, were made an integral part of the program.
Not only did every student taking the work experience program receive specific training in a job which would enable him or her to earn a living, but in almost every case, the student made better grades than non-participating students, despite periodic absence from regular classes, according to E. M. Douglas, Montgomery Blair principal.
Labor union officials co-operated in the program by not requiring full union membership, even on closed shops, and by allowing the student entered in the Montgomery Blair program to be divided into four groups: the first, the retail selling group, is operated on Saturdays.

New Physical Fitness Plan Finds Enthusiasm at Wilson

Consolidation of 13 Prince Georges Towns Urged by Duckett

Tells Women Voters Plan Would Cut Costs And Reduce Confusion

Consolidation of the 13 incorporated towns in Prince Georges County, Md., would co-ordinate municipal functions, reduce expenses and "eliminate confusion," T. Howard Duckett yesterday told the County League of Women Voters at the College Park Elementary School.
Mr. Duckett, who is land purchasing agent for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, also stressed the desirability of "going ahead" with the floating of the county commission's of a $500,000 bond issue for public improvement in the metropolitan area of the city.

Cities Arlington System.
Declaring that there is now little or no co-ordination among the incorporated towns in the county adjacent to Washington, Mr. Duckett advocated placing them under a general metropolitan government to be administered along the lines of either Arlington or Montgomery County.
The area to be included in the proposed setup would extend as far as Beltsville and would include Hyattsville, Riverdale, Capitol Heights, Cheverly, Seal Fawns, Edmonston, College Park, Bladensburg, Bradley Heights, Boulevard Heights, Dupont Heights, Mount Rainier and Brentwood.
He predicted that a bill looking toward ultimate consolidation of the area would be introduced at the coming session of the State Legislature.

City Manager Possibility

The next step, he added, would be to elect members of the Board of County Commissioners from the various election districts so they could devote all their time to looking after their own particular area, as is the case in Montgomery County, or to elect a city manager for the consolidated area, as in Arlington County.
The $500,000 bond issue was approved by the county commission in July. It is the balance of $800,000 worth of bonds which the Legislature authorized the commissioners to issue during 1941 and 1942.
In approving the bond issue, William A. Carson, chairman of the board, said that actual construction work would not begin until after the war.
The Advisory Board to the commissioners also has urged immediate action, pointing out that floating of the bond issue would create a public works program that would aid in post-war adjustment.

Maryland 4-H Members To Celebrate Victory Day

Hundreds of 4-H Club members throughout Maryland will celebrate victory day Saturday at the University of Maryland.
The one-day rally is being held in place of the usual 4-H Club week held in August, because of the gas and tire shortage. It is designed to celebrate the achievements of members of the organization.
Special recognition, in the form of 12 awards, will be given 4-H Club leaders attending the rally, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service at the university. Each award will consist of $1 victory stamps donated by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.
Declaring that thousands of volunteer leaders interested in young people are serving throughout the State and Nation as 4-H Club leaders, Dr. Symons said they are "contributing immeasurably to the molding of the characters of the future leaders of America."
Included among those to receive awards are: Allie Messer of Montgomery County; Kenneth Fry of Washington County; John Hardinger, Allegheny County; L. W. Wideman, Shepherd, Anne Arundel County; Emanuel Ritter, Baltimore County; and John Lippincott, Cecil County.

Alexandria Blackout Violations Total 11

A final checkup of air-raid wardens' reports shows 11 blackout violations were reported during Monday night's test, Capt. Edgar Sims, Alexandria police chief, announced today.
A special session of Police Court will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow so that the wardens can make their complaints in person to Judge James R. Duncan.
Capt. Sims said that warrants are being issued for the violators. Of the 11 violations 8 were in homes, 2 in business places and 1 in a school.

Grand Jury Condemns Annapolis Liquor Code

By The Associated Press.
ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Filing a supplemental report with Judge Rigley F. Melvin of the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, the county grand jury declared yesterday that Annapolis' alcoholic beverage code is very loosely drawn and that "such is its nature, it is not enforced."
Signed by John Baldwin Rich, foreman of the jury during the April term, the report also said that while the rules of the County Board of Liquor License Commissioners "are being fairly well enforced, there is a tendency on the part of the board to construe them rather loosely and to allow persons of questionable character to continue to dispense liquor under the cloak of a corporation."
In regard to the Annapolis charges, the report said, that "there was evidence to this grand jury no desire on the part of the mayor, counselor and Aldermen of the city . . . to require strict adherence to its own rules and . . . these rules have been so loosely and broadly drawn that this grand jury find itself helpless to proceed further."

Speed of Train In B. & O. Crash Was 45 M.P.H.

The Ambassador from Detroit was running 45 miles an hour when it rammed the Cleveland Night Express, according to testimony given Baltimore & Ohio officials, investigating the triple train crash at Dickerson last Thursday which is believed to have cost 18 lives.
Engineer Rufus McClelland of the Ambassador had testified yesterday that he failed to see a yellow caution signal warning of the train ahead, Supt. P. K. Pardee of the Baltimore division, questioning him about speed, said:
"You'd train run by sign 36-14 (which showed red) a few yards from the accident scene) at approximately 50 miles per hour and struck Train 18 (the Night Express) at approximately 45 miles per hour."
"I guess I got a little confused up there in the fog before I thought where I was," the engineer responded.

Engineer Collapses

Mr. McClelland, who has been charged with involuntary manslaughter by Montgomery County authorities, collapsed while on the stand after admitting that he had not seen the yellow signal "which was at the entrance to the block above that in which the collision took place—or, roughly, a distance of a mile and a half away. He previously had testified to seeing the signal, which indicated the presence of a passing freight train.
Mr. McClelland's admission about his failure to see the yellow signal came during examination by F. H. Haskins, general manager of the B. & O.
The engineer commented that the accident would not have happened if he had had an experienced fireman with him because the fireman "would have seen the yellow signal."
"Then you did not see the yellow signal as you had previously testified?" Mr. Haskins asked.
Mr. McClelland turned pale as he answered "No," and slumped forward in his chair.

Speed Tape Introduced

Officials immediately cleared the hearing room and called a physician. State's Attorney Ben F. Wilkinson of Montgomery County said afterward the engineer had fainted. The hearing was then suspended until today.
Supt. Pardee introduced in evidence the record speed tape of the Ambassador Diesel, which showed, he said, a speed of 67 miles per hour when Mr. McClelland passed the yellow signal.
The superintendent added that the Ambassador began to drop gradually from a point one-quarter of a mile west of the bridge across the Monocacy River to the eastern end of the bridge. There it was approximately 62 miles an hour, as "It then gradually reduced to a point where the torpedoes were struck, when it registered 56 miles per hour." Mr. Pardee continued.
It passed the fuses at 54 miles per hour at the time that it struck the train. Mr. Pardee then fixed the speed at the time of the accident.
Fireman Inexplicated.
John P. McCurdy, 34, Diesel electric supervisor on the Ambassador said the windshield wipers were not working at the time and that the train was running through patches of fog.
Paul V. Bowman, fireman on the Ambassador, said he was regulating the motors of the locomotive when emergency power began to make an emergency stop.
Mr. Bowman related that he heard the explosion of torpedoes "two or three seconds later" and "I put my head out the window and saw the reflection of the fuses, the red signal and the back of the Cleveland train. I pulled my head in and yelled to the mechanic to duck as it 'looks like Mac has got him.'"
Wilson H. Stevens, road foreman of engines for the Baltimore division, testified that Mr. Bowman was the only fireman assigned on Diesel engines and never had received more than preliminary examination.
Before the war, Mr. Stevens explained, firemen were required to serve one year on the freight trains before they could qualify for passenger service. Because of the power shortage, he added, the railroad was forced to use "younger and less experienced men."
Mr. Bowman said he was hired by the B. & O. in March, 1942.

Officer Schools Foundation Of Army, Gen. McNair Says

Officer candidate schools, turning out 12,000 officers each month, are producing the only force on which the Army is being built, Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding the Army Ground Forces, told a graduating class of 440 officers yesterday at the Engineer Officer School, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Three soldiers were injured early today when their jeep sideswiped three parked automobiles, careened into a tree box and then turned over on Good Hope road near Twenty-fourth street S.E. police reported.

A wheel, tire and tube knocked off the Army car by the impact were missing.

Frank K. Long, 24, attached to the 176th Infantry at Anacostia, one of the three injured soldiers, is in Walter Reed Hospital with a possible skull fracture and head and face cuts. His condition is reported not serious.

Driver of Jeep Injured. David Bennis, 24, of the 71st Coast Artillery, Alexandria, Va., driver of the jeep, was treated at Casualty Hospital for face cuts and concussion, and Francis P. McGeever, 32, of the 176th Infantry, received treatment at the same hospital for face and leg cuts and possible concussion.

Police reported the jeep was going west on Good Hope road when it struck the three cars, climbed over the curb, struck the tree box and turned over. The three men were taken to the hospital in a Casualty ambulance and later Long was transferred to Walter Reed Hospital.

Jack Freshour, 34, of 24 Wilson boulevard, Arlington, Va., was in Casualty Hospital today suffering from head injuries received when, according to police, he walked into the path of a street car late yesterday in the 200 block of G street N.W. Leon Wayne, 34, of 1428 A street S.E., was the operator of the car.

Struck by Laundry Truck. Victoria Russell, 42, of 1100 Twenty-fifth street N.W., received head and internal injuries when struck by a laundry truck yesterday while crossing Pennsylvania avenue between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets N.W. She is in Emergency Hospital.

Police said the truck was operated by Joe E. Baker, 25, of the 100 block of E street N.E. He was charged with reckless driving.

Motorcycle Policeman John E. Sobolewski, 33, of 3050 Q street S.E., attached to the Traffic Division, suffered cuts and bruises of the legs when his motorcycle rammed the rear of a bus at Sixteenth and Oak streets N.W. last night. Policeman Sobolewski reported that he was watching a speeding motorist and failed to see the bus that had stopped to pick up passengers. He was treated at Garfield Hospital.

A 30-minute traffic jam occurred on the Anacostia Bridge during yesterday's rush hour when a police accident investigation automobile was struck by an automobile driven by Neil V. Pyle, 45, of 1321 Maryland avenue N.E., police reported.

The police car, operated by Thomas B. Shipman, 30, of 5029 MacArthur boulevard N.W., was waiting for traffic to move when the accident occurred. The impact drove the police car into three other vehicles.

Income Tax Exemption Urged for Some Soldiers

Congressional action to relieve men in the armed forces of their Federal income tax obligations if their ability to pay is "materially affected" by military service was urged yesterday by Representative Weiss, Democrat, of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Weiss told the House that, under present statutes, "if a soldier is killed in battle and owes $100 income tax, you can rest assured that the collector of internal revenue will file a tax lien against his estate to be paid by the soldiers' aged parents, his beneficiaries or his widow."

FHA Official Urges Cities to Wipe Out Blighted Districts

Plans for Redevelopment Are Outlined at Meeting of Mortgage Bankers

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Plans for developing the blighted and decayed areas in the Nation's large cities were outlined today by Earle S. Draper, deputy commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, in an address at the annual business meeting of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America.

In an address at the association's conference, Mr. Draper said the two most immediate problems to be solved were: How to assemble large tracts of land through a more broadened legal construction of the powers of the condemnation proceeding and how to get the land and not pay excessive prices.

To halt the rapid growth of the urban blighted areas, Mr. Draper suggested that each city affected prepare a "master plan of development into which can be fitted plans for redevelopment of blighted areas."

He said city planning commissions had the power and were the agencies to make the plan and city realty corporations could be set up to acquire and manage lands for redevelopment and other purposes. The latter would be vested with broadened powers of condemnation. He suggested that privately financed and privately managed development corporations should design, build and manage redevelopment projects to rebuild the blighted areas in conformity with the cities' over-all plan.

He said that blighted and decayed city areas "offer a challenge to our public bodies, investment groups, the building industry and others, second only to the successful prosecution of the war itself."

To Resign State Post

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1 (AP)—Harold E. West, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, has announced he would resign as administrative assistant and examiner for the commission.

Mr. West, who is 76, said he was retiring in order to participate in the State Employees' Retiring Act. His home is in Anne Arundel County.

War Department Shifts Public Relations Staff

Reorganization of the War Department's Bureau of Public Relations has been completed, the department announced last night, to consolidate public relations activities and reduce the number of officers assigned to public relations work.

Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles remains bureau director. Col. Stanley J. Grogan, former chief of the press branch, has been named deputy director.

Three assistants to the director were named—Col. Arthur I. Ennis for the Air Forces, Col. Falker Heard for the Ground Forces and Lt. Col. Armand S. Miller for the Services of Supply.

Four operating divisions were established as follows: News division, under Col. R. Ernest Dupuy; war intelligence division, under Col. Francis V. Fitzgerald; executive division, under Col. Virgil F. Shaw, and an industrial service division, under Col. A. Robert Ginsburgh.

Army Mails 19 Million in Allotment Checks

Distribution of $19,500,000 in family allowance payments to dependents of servicemen will be made in 275,000 checks which the Army will start mailing today, the War Department announced.

Of the total, 135,361 checks represent first payments and the others second payments to families who received their initial allotment checks last month.

Impact of War Just Being Felt, Women Told

Argo Lodge Hears Nathan of WPB and Walker, Salvage Aide

We are just barely beginning to feel the impact of war production on our economic system, our standard of living and our everyday habits. As of June 30 we had only accomplished one-fifth of the total war production set for us by Congress, and we must still produce more than four times as much.

That was the message brought to members of the Women's Auxiliary of Argo Lodge, B'nai B'rith, yesterday by Robert Nathan, chairman of the Planning Committee of the War Production Board, who spoke at a meeting of the group in the Jewish Community Center.

"By June 30, three months ago today, Congress had appropriated 225 billion dollars with which to procure guns, ammunition, airplanes and clothing for our armed forces and those of our allies," he said. "By that time only 40 billion dollars' worth of goods had been manufactured. Four-fifths of the job is still ahead of us. What we have done today is merely a drop in the bucket! Our impact on the fighting front has barely begun to be felt."

"Compared to the future, the present impact of war production on our industry has been practically nil," Mr. Nathan continued. "From here on it is not going to be easy. We are already crowding up against the utmost capacity of our railroad system. Still we are just beginning to feel the impact of war on our economic system, on our standard of living and our everyday habits."

"What have you sacrificed? What have you really given up?" Mr. Nathan continued. "Relatively speaking, we have given up very little compared with the soldier who daily risks his life on the front. What have we given up compared with people who have just come back from Britain and who tell me of the real deprivation there."

"Translate your patriotism into action!" he urged his listeners. "Participate in the war effort. Help by really conserving goods and materials. Keep consumption down to the limit. Winning this war will be tremendously costly, both in terms of manpower and money. Successful conclusion of the war will depend on the kind of participation you make. Don't wait until you are forced to do this—do it today, willingly!"

Horace Walker, secretary of the District Salvage Committee, spoke on collection of scrap metal.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Irving Blau, new president, Mrs. Nathan Hurwitz, war service chairman, reported that the auxiliary has turned over to the Treasury Department $175,000 received for War bonds and stamps sold by the club. She also reported on the accomplishments of the surgical dressing unit, the Russian Relief unit and the Red Cross unit. Mrs. Birdie Krupshaw, chairman of the committee supplying cookies at the Bolling Field recreation rooms, solicited pledges, and Mrs. George Jacobson, chairman of knitting, explained her distribution and collection plans.

Recent Members Of Silver Spring Club Feted at Tea

Members of the Silver Spring Woman's Club who have joined during the past year were special guests at a tea for the club given by the Executive Board yesterday at the home of the president, Mrs. C. Russell Shetterly.

Among those assisting were Mrs. W. H. Whitney, Mrs. John C. Keele, Mrs. S. M. Deffenbaugh and Mrs. Leroy C. Leasure.

Officers of the club were in the receiving line with Mrs. Shetterly. They include: Mrs. Richard Palmer, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Krueger, jr., second vice president; Mrs. J. Franklin Yeager, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. Harris White, treasurer, and Mrs. Grover Poole, federation director.

Assisting in the arrangements were Mrs. G. Harris White, Mrs. Harry Falk and Mrs. J. Roy Seidel. The new members honored were Mrs. Harry M. Atherton, Mrs. Ray G. Bergstrom, Mrs. James E. Daly, Mrs. James W. Doherty, Mrs. Fred C. Drummetter, Mrs. George W. Eastment, jr., Mrs. John K. Edwards, Mrs. Charles W. Forni, Mrs. Harrison B. French, Mrs. John W. Gannaway, Mrs. W. B. Mehring, Mrs. Ronald L. Mignell, Mrs. Edward M. Nevils, Mrs. Vincent D. Nicholson, Mrs. John T. Ross, Mrs. Robert C. Steele and Mrs. Gerald J. Sullivan.

The club's opening monthly meeting of the season will be held Wednesday at the Jessup Blair Community House, with an address by Morgan Beatty, radio commentator. Mrs. Matilda Kolb Bartlett will speak in the afternoon on flower arrangements.

Dance for Officers

Members of the American Association of University Women who are recent graduates are in charge of the second of a series of dances for officers in the United States and Allied armed services at 8 p.m. Saturday at the club house, 1634 I street N.W. Miss Katherine Hoesh and Miss Joan Crawford will be hostesses.

Notice to Our Patrons

After October 1, 1942, except to fill priority orders of A-3 or higher, the use of silver for various purposes, including electro-plating, is unlawful. W. P. B. order M 199 restricts civilian uses and directs supplies of silver into essential production. Silver is an essential war metal, replacing both tin and copper for a variety of uses. Paragraph G of this order permits repairing of silverware, also we may continue repairing and refinishing ornamental metal articles, silver, bronze, etc. There are no restrictions yet on gold plating. With proper priority certification we are prepared to do plating of many metals including silver, nickel, chromium, copper, tin, zinc, cadmium, etc.

Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesch, commandant of the Coast Guard, accepts a surgical and medical field kit from Mrs. A. Magruder MacDonald, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the District Medical Society which has donated the kit for use in a combat area. The presentation took place yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, where the auxiliary operates a sales booth under auspices of the Medical and Surgical Relief Committee. —Star Staff Photo.

Medical Society Auxiliary Fetes Wives of Envoys

Making Pan-American co-operation their theme, members of the Women's Auxiliary of the District Medical Society yesterday entertained wives of the chiefs of missions of Latin-American countries for the first time.

Honor guests at luncheon at the Sulgrave Club were Senora De Conchoso, wife of the Cuban Ambassador; Senora de Blanco, wife of the Ambassador of Uruguay; Senora Guachalla, wife of the Ambassador of Bolivia; Senora De Castro, wife of the Minister of El Salvador; Senora de Caceres, wife of the Minister of Honduras, and Senora de Pernandez, wife of the Minister of Costa Rica. Mrs. A. Magruder MacDonald presided at the buffet luncheon which was attended by 105 auxiliary members and their guests.

Explaining the aims of the Medical and Surgical Relief Committee, Dr. William J. Mallory stated in his address to the women that the committee, a national organization originally founded to supply the British, to date has collected and donated more than $500,000 worth of drugs and medical instruments and supplies. These goods are distributed to civilian physicians operating in the vicinity of outlying Army and Navy posts.

In a brief ceremony during the forenoon at the Mayflower Hotel, where the District Medical Society is holding its 14th annual scientific assembly, Mrs. MacDonald presented an emergency medical field kit donated by the auxiliary to Vice Admiral Russell Waesch, commandant of the United States Coast Guard.

Funds for purchase of the kit have been collected by the auxiliary through the facilities of the Medical and Surgical Relief Committee of America. Auxiliary members staff the Relief Committee's sales booth at the scientific assembly. The kit will be used by Coast Guard physicians in combat areas. Among war projects sponsored by the auxiliary are attendance at a home nursing course; Red Cross sewing and collection of bundles for children in impoverished homes. Mrs. Charles McEnerney is chairman of a group of physicians' wives working every Thursday at the Red Cross.

Bethesda Club Unit Plans Bridge Party

The social group of the Woman's Club of Bethesda will sponsor its monthly bridge party at 12:30 p.m. Monday at the club house.

Mrs. John Mader, chairman of the Social Group, is being assisted by Mrs. Lawrence Ring, co-chairman, and Mrs. F. P. DiBlasi and Mrs. Frank A. Bennett.

A surgical dressings group meets at the club at 10 a.m. each Monday under the direction of Mrs. Vernon Lohr, Red Cross chairman. Friends and neighbors are invited to work with the group.

Bolling Field to Mark 25th Anniversary of Founding Tomorrow

Officers and Soldiers To Have Half Holiday And Entertainments

Bolling Field, one of the first military airports in the Nation, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its founding tomorrow.

A half holiday has been declared for officers and enlisted men stationed at the field, Col. Lewis R. Parker, commanding officer, said today.

Since its inception as an Army airfield October 2, 1917, Bolling Field has been a major center in a world dominated by the might of aviation.

Given to Aviation Section. The land was under the supervision of the Army Engineers until 1917, when they turned it over to the aviation section of the Army Signal Corps for the development of an "airplane field."

The field was named for Col. Royal C. Bolling, a prominent New York attorney, who entered the Army as a captain in the World War, and was one of the first American officers killed in the war.

Center for Celebrities. Col. Parker assumed command of the field on July 4, 1942, after serving as operations officer. He is the oldest officer stationed at the field in the point of continuous service.

Because of its location, Bolling Field has been host to more celebrities than any other airport in the Nation. It also was a pioneer port in the transportation of air mail.

Recently the field was in the spotlight when Brig. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, hero of the air raid on Tokyo, pinned Distinguished Flying Cross medals on 25 officers and enlisted men who participated in the raid at ceremonies at the hangars.

Banish Icy Toes

By Peggy Roberts

There's nothing like a pair of warm-as-toast bed socks to banish icy feet. Crawl into bed this winter secure in the knowledge that frozen toes cannot keep you awake. Attractive crocheted stitches and bright contrasting colored yarns make these foot-warmers ideal gift items, too. You don't have to worry about their popularity. Any one, even the hard-to-please college girl, would welcome a pair of woolly bed socks. One or two evening's work will complete a pair.

Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for the above.

Red Cross Appoints Committee on Home Accident Prevention

D. C. Chapter Will Give Courses on Averting Home Mishaps

Ralph McCabe, 6124 Thirty-third street N.W., has been named head of the Home Accident Prevention Committee of the District Red Cross, Brig. Gen. Frank R. Keefer, chairman of the District Chapter, announced yesterday.

The committee will give instruction courses in cause and prevention of home accidents, which annually cause more deaths than traffic accidents and many permanent injuries.

Members of the Home Accident Prevention Committee are: Stanley Abercrombie of the Washington Safety Council, William Armstrong, National Capital Area Commissioner of Health and Safety of the Boy Scouts; Sibil Baker of the Recreation Department; J. F. Blank, War Department safety engineer; Gertrude Bowling, executive director of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society; John P. Broughter, chairman of the Junior Red Cross; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle of the Board of Education; Mrs. F. C. Ellett, president of the Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations; Edward B. Grannis, associate manager of the National Bureau for Industrial Protection.

Dr. E. W. Harris, president of the Federation of Civic Associations; F. W. Hoover, general manager of the Welfare and Recreational Association; Bernard J. Nees, president of the Junior Board of Commerce; H. V. Schreiber, safety engineer for the Capital Transit Co.; Mrs. Edward Sturdevant, District Girl Scout commissioner; Mrs. Frank M. Stuart, safety chairman for the Federation of Women's Clubs; Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association; Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the Women's Safety Committee; Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; and Douglas N. West of the District Health Department.

Portsmouth (Va.) Man Slain With Flairon As Family Sleeps

Body Then Cremated In Car of Victim, Detective Reports

By The Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Oct. 1.—William I. Tulin, 66-year-old wine merchant, was bludgeoned to death with a flairon in the bedroom of his home, investigators said yesterday. The assailant then dragged

Mr. Tulin's body from the house, placed it in the victim's automobile, drove to a lonely side road and cremated it by setting fire to the car, they reported.

Detective Harry Eden of the Portsmouth department said a blood-stained flairon was found in the hall outside the bedroom in which members of the family said they last saw Mr. Tulin at 9:30 p.m. Monday. The wine merchant's blazing automobile was seen early Tuesday by a colored woman who reported she saw a man running from the scene.

Mr. Eden said he had no theory as to how Mr. Tulin could have been killed and his body removed from the house without disturbing others in the family, which included an invalid wife, who slept in another room, a daughter and an invalid son.

The mattress of Mr. Tulin's bed was soaked with blood, and there were indications that a struggle had taken place in the bedroom. A trail of blood led from the bedroom to the cellar and outside the semi-bungalow for a distance of 5 feet across a concrete walk.

Mr. Tulin's body was found on the rear seat of the destroyed automobile.

Bill to Give Governor Wide Power Killed by Virginia House Unit

Action Clears Way For Adjournment of Special Session

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1.—A Senate bill to give sweeping wartime emergency powers to the Governor was quickly killed by unanimous vote today of the House of Delegates of the Virginia House of Delegates after it had received an unfavorable report from a subcommittee.

Members of the subcommittee expressed the view that the Norris measure, passed unanimously by the Senate, contained obnoxious features and that it was too late in the special session to attempt to preserve good features. They also said there was no pressing need for the bill since the Governor was empowered to act in a war emergency.

Session Ready to Adjourn.

The action of the committee, taken after a brief discussion among members, disposed of the last item of importance on the agenda of the 1942 special session and cleared the way for speedy windup of the session.

Delegate L. Preston Collins of Smyth said the subcommittee had conferred with Gov. Darden, who told the members he did not particularly want the bill.

Adjournment of the special session was speeded when the two houses yesterday put the finishing touches on the Governor's program for offsetting the entire State debt by purchasing Federal securities maturing at the same time as Virginia obligations.

Funds Appropriated.

Senator Aubrey Weaver offered and both houses passed unanimously yesterday a bill appropriating $150,000 of highway funds into the highway sinking fund to provide money enough to retire the highway indebtedness of approximately $3,428,000.

Earlier in the day the Assembly had passed unanimously the bill appropriating $10,000,000 of State surplus to the sinking fund and transferring the State's Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad stock to the State treasury from the sinking fund. This left in the sinking fund about $20,000,000—enough to provide for retirement of principal and interest on the entire State debt. The stock, worth about $1,750,000, becomes a surplus item in the treasury.

Also passed unanimously was the administration-backed bill to permit the State treasurer and the Governor, acting jointly, to invest State funds not needed for current expenditures in short-term Federal securities. Not on the Governor's program, but likewise passed, was a Senate bill to permit counties to buy Federal War Bonds during the war against the Axis.

Assemblymen prided themselves not only on the fact that they had provided for retirement of the 100-year-old debt, but that Virginia was going to pass something like $15,000,000 worth of ammunition to Uncle Sam for use on the firing line in the immediate future.

Other Bills Are Passed.

The enrolling room was working all day to have the completed legislation ready for signature of the presiding officers today. Bills passed yesterday and sent to the enrolling room included:

Correcting an "oversight" in the last amendment of the motor vehicle code which would have cost the State $200,000. The bill restores the $1 title fee omitted in the 1942 code revision.

The Senate bill tightening the law dealing with prostitution and the examining of persons who may be affected with venereal disease. The bill, providing that no person, whether convicted or not, shall be admitted to bail until pronounced not dangerous because of disease, was amended by the House to require that medical examination be started within three days after arrest.

A bill making the maximum speed limit on the highways 35 miles per hour and giving the Governor power to lower this to 30 if deemed necessary. The bill, which expires June 30, 1944, exempts vehicles of the armed forces being operated in line of duty.

Justice Speeded By War Lack Of Jurors

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 1.—A big handicap has turned into an unexpected blessing, so far as America's State and Federal courts are concerned.

For as a result of a wartime shortage of jurors, judges agree, a goal of many years—speedier justice—is being attained at last.

Judge Albert A. Ridge of the Circuit (State) Court cites his own experience in recent weeks as a fair sample of a Nation-wide trend.

Last week he drew a panel of 550 names for use as jurors—but the sheriff has failed to locate more than 200, and already 50 of them have sent in pleas to be excused, chiefly because of war work.

To meet the emergency the courts will show very little patience with lawyers who dilly-dally, seek continuances and otherwise fritter away the time of waiting jurors.

Judge Albert L. Reeves of United States District Court said the increasing scarcity of jurymen "seems a hardship in a way, but it may be an ill wind that will blow some real good. I think it will speed up courts generally all over the country."

Building Trades Exempt From Overtime Pay Ban

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Labor Perkins yesterday exempted the building and construction trades stabilization agreement from an executive order banning premium pay for Saturday and Sunday work.

She said the Board of Review of the War Production Board had reported that the existing agreement was satisfactory and the building trades unions had joined in requesting the exemption.

The agreement, she said, abolished all double time, but provided for time and one-half for Saturday and Sunday.

The Secretary also announced a 60-day stay of the order so far as it affects shipbuilding stabilization agreements to permit adjustment of overtime practices in ship repair work to terms of the order.

War Duties Come First, Churchill Tells Party

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Prime Minister Churchill advised the Central Council of the Conservative Party today to pay strict attention to urgent war duties, but said Britain must not "be taken unawares when victory on the field of battle has at length been won."

"It is right and desirable," he wrote, "that informed forethought should be given to the complex problems of rehabilitation and reconstruction that will await solution when the perils that now threaten us daily are over and past."

The Prime Minister was unable to attend the council meeting. He said the government was constantly considering post-war problems, but the Conservative Party—of which he is the leader—should contribute to their solution.

Mayor in Army Still Mayor, Court Declares

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The Mayor of Garfield is Lt. John M.

Gabriel, regardless of his Army duties, Supreme Court Justice Joseph L. Bodine ruled yesterday. "I will tolerate no back-biting or sniping at men who are in the service of the United States of America," Justice Bodine remarked in ordering removal from the general election ballot of the name of Councilman John Frank, who had filed as a candidate for Mayor. Justice Bodine held that no vacancy existed although Lt. Gabriel L. on active duty at Fort Eustis, Va., from where he often votes on city matters by airmail.

ANTHRACITE USERS

WINTER'S COAL SUPPLY

Despite the fact that thousands of oil-burning furnaces have been converted to use Anthracite and thousands of new customers have been acquired, the supply of Anthracite will be adequate to meet all heating requirements, provided it is equitably distributed.

Millions of tons of Anthracite, usually purchased during the fall and winter months, have been stored in consumer coal bins in patriotic response to the Government's appeal to "Buy coal now." With this huge stock bought in advance, a large portion of the winter's requirements of Anthracite has already been supplied.

Secretary Ickes, Coordinator of Solid Fuels, said to all Anthracite dealers on September 25th: "Withhold delivery of additional domestic Anthracite to consumers who already have enough fuel to meet early winter requirements until all other users have been supplied with enough fuel for immediate needs. Make delivery until further notice on the basis of limiting each consumer to not more than the amount of coal necessary for early winter requirements."

At times there may be a temporary delay in securing certain sizes of Anthracite—but this need cause no alarm, since tests have proved that any of the "home sizes," egg, stove, chestnut and pea, may often be interchanged with complete satisfaction. Consult your dealer about this.

Cooperate with your coal dealer—he wants to supply everyone—he can supply everyone IF you help him. Don't demand in excess of your present requirements, and allow as much time as possible for delivery.

Coal is a war material—vital to victory . . . conserve it!

Used Tires and Tubes, Frozen by OPA Order, To Be Rationed Soon

Conservation Sought Of Carcasses for Use In Recapping Program

By the Associated Press.

The Office of Price Administration has frozen the sale of used tires and tubes and revealed that used tires soon would be rationed to provide for all essential uses in conformity with the War Relocation Authority's recommendation.

The order was issued to freeze the present supply of used tires pending completion of the new rationing program, which will govern the use of these tires just as present rationing regulations control the use of new and recapped tires, OPA said.

It added that when used-tire rationing is initiated, the freeze order will be lifted to the extent necessary to permit sale to certificate holders. OPA said it was "important to have available for rationing not only the mileage that is represented by used tires with good tread thickness still remaining, but also the supply of recappable carcasses which are the starting point of any successful recapping program."

Shortage of recappable carcasses already has hampered recapping under the present rationing program, OPA explained, saying there has been a growing volume of complaints that car operators who get recapping certificates are unable to use them because their own carcasses are not fit for recapping, and there is no well-organized market where they can buy suitable casings.

The freeze order granted exceptions with regard to transfers by consumer and dealer. The OPA said it would permit sale to a consumer of an automobile equipped with used tires and now an automobile dealer to shift mounted used tires among his cars.

However, OPA said, used tires that were part of a dealer's unmounted stock may not be mounted on the dealer's cars during the freeze period. Although sale of unmounted used tires or tubes by one consumer to another, or by consumer to a dealer, is forbidden, the order permits the transfers necessary between a recapper and a consumer in getting a tire recapped or between a dealer and the consumer in getting it prepared.

Provision also was made for transfers from dealers to recappers.

Medical Society Told Of New Sulfa Uses In Time of War

Ointment for Burns May Be Answer to One of Most Serious Problems

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
A new sulfa drug ointment for burns, perhaps the most serious medical problem of the present war, which is far more effective in preventing infection and promoting healing than the treatments now generally used, has been produced after extensive experiments by Navy surgeons.
It was described to the District Medical Society at its annual scientific assembly today by Comdr. E. H. Cushing.
The production problem is such, however, that general distribution is unlikely for several months and Comdr. Cushing warned his brother medical officers not to spread the report too enthusiastically.
The essential ingredient of the ointment is the newest of the sulfa drugs to come into general use—sulfadiazine. The great problem to overcome, Comdr. Cushing said, was that of a proper base with which this could be used—something which would remain of the same consistency under all climatic conditions of naval service. A mixture finally has been produced, he said, which is of the same consistency at 40 degrees below zero in the Arctic and at the highest temperature in the Tropics.

Burned Area Tanned.
Once the problem of shock has been met in severe burns, he said, a major treatment has been to put some coating over the burned area which will prevent the escape of fluids from the body. This has been accomplished by various methods of "tanning"—covering the surface with tannic acid, silver nitrate, gentian violet or something of the sort.
This temporarily serves the functions of the damaged skin. It remains the best treatment for general practice until the new ointment can be produced in quantities, Comdr. Cushing said, but it has serious drawbacks. First, it is difficult to detect the start of infection under the "tanned" surface. When one of the tanning agents is used over face burns it acts like an "iron mask" and the patient is extremely uncomfortable. Also, in cases of question as to whether a burn is second or third degree it is impossible to determine whether skin has started to grow again until the coating is removed.

Burn injuries are not well adapted to sprinkling with sulfa drugs because of the tendency of these to cake. A standard practice has been to cover them with grease, such as lard or butter, at once after cleaning. The new ointment preserves this treatment and at the same time has a definite antiseptic value. As it approaches, he said, the ideal of preventing infection with the least damage to tissue.
New data on the use of sulfonamides in treatment of wounds was presented by Comdr. J. R. Fulton of the Naval Hospital staff.

It is becoming more clear, he said, that sulfanilamide, first of these drugs to come into general practice, is the best substance for applying locally to wounds. It is 10 times more potent for this purpose than sulfathiazine and 80 times more than sulfadiazol and also it has 80 times the potency around the wound itself than when taken by mouth.
As an illustration of its value in military surgery he cited that while there was an 80 per cent mortality of persons with abdominal wounds with perforation of the viscera in the last war, at Pearl Harbor there was not a single death from this type of injury. If the patient left the operating room alive. This was due in large part to the sulfa treatment which prevented development of infection.
At the same, he stressed, sulfadiazine by mouth is extremely valuable. Every man entering combat, he said, should be provided with a single heavy dose to take when wounded. It was first proposed to issue sulfanilamide, but this is more toxic than the diazine and is likely to produce weakness and confusion when a wounded man must be in possession of all his faculties to save himself.
The virtues and defects of sulfa drugs were discussed yesterday by a panel conducted by Dr. Harrison F. Plippin of the University of Pennsylvania.
These drugs, discovery of which has perhaps been the single most significant event in modern medicine, now have been in medical practice about six years, since sulfanilamide was introduced from Europe in 1936 for the treatment of streptococcal infections.

Produce Quality Continues Poor; Market Carefully for Items

By Betsy Caswell,
Women's News Editor.

It may not be a matter of "the higher the fewer" in Washington markets just now, but certainly in the case of vegetables and fruits it has become "the higher the poorer." Quality in most produce items has been noticeably inferior of late, with prices, in the majority of instances up in the luxury brackets. This, we gather, is due to labor troubles, inclement weather, hurried transportation, and so many of the fresh fruits and vegetables, or for canning, drying and preserving for further use.

The boys deserve the best there is, so we shouldn't fuss. We must learn to buy carefully, and with an eye to picking out each item ourselves to be sure it is the best we can obtain. There's no economy in inferior fruits and vegetables, for they don't keep, and too much has to be thrown away. More than ever women must do their own marketing, to make sure that both the budget and the family's health profit.

In general, the produce picture is about the same as last week—with the same supplies seen on the stands.

Meat Casseroles Include Apples

Two new casseroles for fall dinners include apples among their important ingredients. In one pork is featured, and in the other lamb forms the meat background. Inexpensive cuts may be used.

APPLE-LAMB CASSEROLE.
6 lamb shoulder chops
6 small apples, peeled and cored
6 small tomatoes, peeled
6 small onions, peeled
18 raw potato balls
Boiling water
Lightly brown lamb chops in lard. Place chops, apples, tomatoes, onions and potato balls in casserole. Add water, cover, and bake at 350 degrees F. about 45 minutes.

FRUITED SPARERIBS.
Put 1½ pounds spareribs in casserole, salt, cover with one-half pound of soaked, pitted prunes and 4 apples sliced, and top with 1½ pounds spareribs. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 1½ to 2 hours. Remove cover last half hour to brown.

Slight Increase in Pork Supplies

Several markets report that they have received slightly larger supplies of pork this week, although they are still "way below the usual quota held at this time of year. Beef is said to be very scarce in most markets, while lamb and mutton and glandular meats are still plentiful.

Turkeys again make the big news of the week—I am told that they have been selling like hot cakes all this fall—better than ever before. From what our dealer says, it seems that whenever the man of the house, who is serving with the armed forces, gets home on leave, celebration takes place in the form of a large, plump turkey dinner. There will be baking chickens and fryers, as well as some stewing fowl, reasonably priced, too, for the week end. Ducks are especially good just now, and if you want to go glamorous at your next dinner party, jumbo squab won't be out of the question!

Eggs Higher Again; Fish Plentiful

Washingtonians may well thank their stars or whatever they consider responsible for their luck in life, that we have such a good supply of sea food available here. Other parts of the country are having a rough time with the fish situation, as the fishing industry has been crippled by war, and transportation facilities are so overtaxed.

But here, from the river and the bay we have all the fish we need—a little higher in price than it has been in other years, but still within the budgets of most of us. Shop around for your fish, too, and you can select the best and least expensive for yourself.

Notes From Here And There:

The Wheat Flour Institute of Chicago has issued a nice little booklet bound in red, white and blue, containing recipes for "Baking on Your Sugar Ration." Very helpful in these times. . . . Late Government estimates show that there won't be many cans of salmon, sardines or pilchards coming the way of civilians from the 1942 fish pack. Sixty per cent of the salmon production alone will be taken for Government distribution, including lease-lend. The remaining 40 per cent will be retained by the canner until it is determined whether the Government will need all or any part of it. So-o-o, it looks like 20 per cent for civilian consumption. About the same holds true of the other sorts of production. Tuna will be even scarcer. The brush industry needs more bristles. Cans in imports have given domestic hogs an even greater value, for there is a demand for all the bristles that can possibly be produced. The Army and Navy need vast quantities for all sorts of production. Could be "Por want of a bristle the battle was lost." . . . Reports are that all sparkling wines have been banned in Italy, because the alcohol produced by fermentation is needed for war. That includes vermouth, too. The Department of Agriculture urges you to keep your meat consumption down to 2½ pounds per person per week—and don't count the baby in just to get the extra pounds. Conserve all you can, and be patriotic. There should be enough for every one if no one is grabby. . . . There's enough tea to keep you reasonably well supplied with the cup that cheers, but there won't be if you try any hoarding tricks. You can get some kind of tea in nearly every store, although you can't always get a particular brand. The same holds true of coffee—some kind is usually available, but your pet variety may be temporarily out of the picture. . . . You'll be able to get pineapple, too, according to latest advice, but probably not as much as you want. Although Hawaii has carried through with this year's pineapple pack, in spite of everything, the Government will take about one out of every three cans of pineapple and one out of every four cans of juice for our armed forces. So plan to use pineapple sparingly, and alternate it freely with other fruits more easily obtained.

After game, on a chilly day, serve ski-balls to your guests. Put a little sugar, a thick slice of lemon stuck with cloves, and a cinnamon stick for a muddler into a tall glass or beaker; pour over this hot, strong tea. Serve at once. And to go with the ski-ball, make cheese straws out of scraps of leftover pastry. Roll scraps into a smooth piece of pastry, spread half with grated cheese, a little mustard and paprika; fold over the other half of the pastry and roll again lightly. Cut into short strips and bake 5 to 8 minutes in a moderate oven.

"Country" pork sausage, in bulk and links, is arriving for the fall season. A fine Sunday breakfast or supper dish consists of sausage combined with hominy grits. Cook grits according to directions on the package, ahead of time, and chill in a deep, dampened pan. Make bulk sausage into patties, season to taste, and put in a cold pan with the links. Cook at slow heat until browned and cooked through. Remove to brown paper, and drain in a warm place. Slice the cooled grits and cook the slices in the sausage fat in the pan until lightly browned. Serve with the sausages, and a cream gravy made with remaining fat.

Wage Real Blitz on Waste In Pantry and Kitchen

By the Bureau of Home Economics, USDA

Wage a real "blitz" attack on food waste in your kitchen cupboards and other storage places this autumn. As war goes on, there is greater need to be alert against insects, mold, dampness, mice and all the other saboteurs of the pantry.

One effective way to get all the good from food is to store it well until used, point out home economists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Put each type of food in the place it will keep best—in the right, and correctly cared for, cupboard, cooler, can or jar. Then check once in a while to make sure the food is ready for table duty when needed.

Sugar and spice are doubly precious these days. To store well, these foods need clean, tight containers that keep out dust, moisture, insects and mice. Spices, coffee and tea need containers tight enough to keep in prized flavors. When you open your cupboard door and get a spicy whiff of cinnamon or cloves—watch out. You can lose taste along with fragrance on the kitchen air. Keep spices in a cool place.

The best place to store flour is in a tight can, jar or bin—to keep out light as well as moisture, mice, bugs and dust. Clean these containers thoroughly before putting in new supplies of flour.

Bread will stay fresh longer, keep from molding in humid weather, if you wrap it in moisture-proof paper and put it in the refrigerator. Otherwise, put your bread in a ventilated box. Cool home-baked bread before storing.

Cake, also, ought to be thoroughly cooled before you put it away. It needs its own well-covered box, ventilated if in a humid climate. Both bread and cake containers must be spotlessly clean to keep away mold. They need scalding, airing and sunning regularly.

Crackers and crisp cookies soften if you store them with bread or cake. To keep them in the best condition, put these foods by themselves in clean, air-tight tins or boxes. And if you have a cookie jar, make sure it has a tight-fitting top. According to a recent survey, American homemakers planned to:

What About Tripe?

Time That More Attention Was Paid To This Too-Of-Forgotten Dish

By A. H. Deute

Great injustice has been done to an ancient and noteworthy dish, namely and to wit—tripe. And in this brief space I shall contribute my little fish-cake's worth to see if it is possible to do a bit of justice. I make only this one reservation: Right now tripe is reasonable in price because it is not "fashionable." I remember when liver used to be another one of those plebian dishes. In my little home town in Oregon, when I was a small boy, the butcher saved us the calves' livers and, so help me, gave them to us—the whole liver, mind you—for 10 cents. Now—well, what you can buy for 10 cents you can put into your right eye, as the saying goes. That's because liver became fashionable. I hope I can put in a good word for tripe and lead some poor benighted wight to a grand dish, without tipping the hotel lads off to the prices they might charge. However, as one might say, let's get back to our mutton, or, rather, to our tripe.

I really don't know where to begin on the subject of tripe. There are countless ways to prepare and serve it. A few years ago I sat down for dinner and inspected the menu card of the Chesley House at Keene, N. H., and they listed, as a permanent feature, some 15 or more ways in which they served tripe. I tried several ways—and all very good.

It is a shame the way grand foods are belittled by thoughtless souls and as a result millions of other souls are deprived of one of the good things of life. For instance, some years ago the word got around that English people ate generally poorly prepared food and all French people had wonderful food. Well, I have eaten some of the most sadly prepared meals in France and some of the most satisfying meals in England, all of which goes to show. I often wonder what suffering is caused by such casual injustices. It's like the tradition of "Southern cooking"—supposed to be wonderful—but don't get me started.

I got off on the subject of English food, though, with good intent, because it was in an English tavern where I first saw and enjoyed tripe and onions with a couple of wonderfully well boiled potatoes.

So I'm going to make up a lot of mimeographed copies of all the tripe recipes I have and if you'll just drop me a post card, care of The Evening Star, I'll be glad to mail you a set.

To help you maintain your friendly attitude toward tripe let me, in closing, quote from our old friend Pepps, who wrote, way back on October 24, 1662: "Dined with my wife upon a most excellent dish of tripe with mustard, as I have heretofore seen them done at my Lord Crew's, of which I made a very good meal."

This tripe and onion dish is a man's dish and I am going to suggest that the good wife go to the movies or something while friend husband does this culinary masterpiece. A nice, rainy Sunday is a well chosen day—because, properly done, it takes the better part of a day.

First off, you have provided yourself with 2 pounds of fresh honey-comb tripe, a big bag of onions, milk, salt and pepper, plus a stick of butter. Slice the tripe in pieces about 2 inches wide, put into a kettle with plenty of water, bring to a boil, skim several times, then simmer on a low fire for 4 hours. By then it should be most tender. Now, have ready at least six onions, cut up not too fine. (Somehow the use of the word of recipes never provide for enough onions.) Add the onions to the tripe and continue the cooking until the onions are almost tender—not too done, though. At this point, pour the water off the tripe and onions and save it.

Now pour milk over the tripe and onions, to cover, and cook either in a kettle or casserole until the onions are done. Take flour and some of the broth you saved, make a smooth paste (about three-quarters of a cup of flour is about right) and run the thickening into the tripe and onions, cooking easily and stirring steadily until you have a nice, creamy sauce. Now the dish is about ready. So take half a stick of butter, break it up and stir it in, then season well with salt and plenty of pepper. Serve in a deep dish or casserole and include nice, mealy, boiled potatoes.

This in itself is a noble dish. But your tripe expert will say "Yes, but what about tripe à la Caen?" and the answer is "It is sublime!" And how about tripe massaged in mus-

Yes, You Can Have Steak!

But You Must Go Meatless a While, Order Ahead and Pay the Price

By "The Victory Chef"

Well, ladies and gentlemen, friends (I hope) of your victory chef, I am now in possession of my first letter of complaint. A lady writes to me, to wit and as follows: "I don't care much for what you chefs call 'relieves' and 'entrees.' In my language, learned on the plains of Western Kansas, those things are just 'steaks' or 'hashes,' or both. What I dole upon are steaks—an inch or more thick, fried not more than 10 to 12 minutes. Now, you show me how to turn out such a steak with things as they are and you'll have won a victory!"

Well, in reply, I would state that we should do first things first. And the first thing is getting this war won. As for me, I don't like this war one bit. But I feel toward it as I feel toward a poisonous snake—nothing for it but to go to work and beat it to death. And the sooner my friend from Western Kansas and you and I get in and win this war and get it over with, the sooner I can hie me to the plains of Western Kansas and cook you 1, 2, yes, 3 inch steaks.

But in the meantime, my dear lady, all is not lost. For a party of four a 3-pound strip sirloin is indeed a joy. And it is still to be found, especially if you place the order several days in advance. While you are awaiting the third day and its arrival, go for two days without meat, and put all your eggs in one basket, or more correctly, all your steak into one platter.

When I cook a strip sirloin I message it well with olive oil first. Then I have the broiler as hot as I can get it. And in goes the steak. With a heavy cooking fork I keep it from sticking to the bottom. The first problem is to sear it so quickly that all the juice is sealed in. Then about eight minutes on each side and you have a rare steak. If you must have it well done that's your business. Lower the heat and let it dry itself out to your heart's content. But it's a shame and disgrace.

How to serve a steak well done. With such a steak your chef would indicate a few hashed in cream potatoes and French fried onions. French fried onions are made by cutting large onions into slices and separating into rings. Then drop the onion rings into a light batter and cook in deep fat. For an added vegetable it is hard to beat plain sliced tomatoes. The idea is to keep the steak well out in front, so far as gastronomic interest goes.

For bread to eat with the steak and dab into the juice fresh, buttered toast is fine. Or French bread, split down the middle, covered with butter and chopped garlic and then toasted, is good—in fact, very good. When all these "ducks are in a row" place some lumps of butter on top of the steak (still in the broiler), let the butter partly melt down and then move the steak off to a hot platter. Then put on the salt and pepper. Many folks give me an argument on this. Have it your way, but I salt and pepper last. And the best pepper comes out of your little old French imported hand pepper mill full of whole peppers.

Now, carving this steak is important. Steak of this type, like good Swiss cheese, is nicest when cut thin. I cut mine only about three-eighths of an inch thick in slices starting at one end. Some people must have the slices thicker—bad cess to them. If I have my way I place each slice of this steak onto a thin slice of fresh-made toast.

If your guests insist upon a hundred and one kinds of sauce and condiments with a steak, then next time buy a hamburger or plain round steak. Obliterating the flavor of such a steak by covering each mouthful with mustard, catsup, "steak sauce," and so on, is as great a crime as immersing an oyster in a cup of "cocktail sauce," which, as my old friend Baron Fougner used to say, is a "criminal crime." But that's another story.

Now, what one drinks with this steak is of prime importance. There are two proper liquids—beer or ale and sound, dry red wine. Personally, I like carefully chosen beer, and not too cold (about 40 degrees), and poured with a good foamy head. But red wine, correctly chosen, is very, very interesting to many.

There are now being sold several worthwhile dry red wines, all of them, so far as I know, from California. My personal choice is one or another of the wines from black pinot grapes from Napa or Sonoma County, Calif., about 1934, '35 or '36. Every good wine monger will have at least one brand.

And then one moves logically into cheese, bread, more beer or wine, and then some black coffee. While the great names among imported cheeses are rather missing, that need not worry one. Offhand, there are no finer cheeses in the world than Canadian Oka (which one doesn't import), Vermont (which one doesn't import), Vermont Cheddar (as snappy as you want it), and then the truly important, Liederkranz.

S. S. Save up all the leftover bits, and especially any juices and fats from the pan. We'll do penance with them in a day or two.

Cooking Cauliflower
When cooking cauliflower, place it in a wire frying basket. It then can be lifted out without being broken. Do not cover when cooking, as covering may turn it dark.

You will make some saving in any type of stove by planning to make your oven bake several things at one time. There is no reason why potatoes cannot be placed on the rack around your roasting meat if you wish to serve them in baked form. Par-boiled potatoes can brown in the roasting pan itself. Winter squash can be baked with meat. If two racks are used canned tomatoes may be scalloped. If you plan a desert such as ginger cake or a fruit cobbler, you may bake it when your meat comes out of the oven and while the latter is still hot.

Cabbage, Present Victory Food Special, May Be Served in Interesting Ways

The humble cabbage becomes a decorative and epicurean dish when hollowed out, steamed gently until tender, and then served filled with luscious tomato sauce.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things; of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings."

The Walrus in "Through the Looking Glass" had plenty of sense. He knew what he was talking about when he said the time has come to talk of "cabbages." Of course, that was a long time ago, but this healthful, leafy green vegetable deserves more than ever to be talked about. In fact, the Government is talking about it!

Housewives too often overlook cabbage on their shopping lists. Perhaps because it has no snob appeal. Or do you protest... it smells up the kitchen... my husband and children won't like it. Actually less than two people out of a hundred really dislike it. And if you cook cabbage properly it can be a secret to the neighbors and a surprise to the family. You can even achieve dramatic heights with a stuffed whole cabbage.

The war is steadily creeping into our kitchens, and the Government's latest plea is "Eat cabbage, the present victory food special!" In normal years Americans have eaten a greater amount of canned vegetables at the time when fresh vegetables were in greatest abundance. This has always been bad economy, but today with the difficulties confronting canners and the necessity of sending food abroad, it is sabotage to allow good fresh foods to rot.

Cabbage is a vegetable that is always possible to eat fresh. It's on the vegetable stand all year round. It's high in food value and low in cost. Rich in vitamin C.

When you have gone far for an old-fashioned dish of corned beef and cabbage, there are many ways of cooking this vegetable to give it new and imaginative taste. Ever give cabbage true distinction by putting a few caraway or poppy seeds in the water? Or cook it as the Belgians do with onion and apples? Hungarians and Italians have their own way with cabbage, while our native chefs added to this vegetable give it a truly American personality.

When you cook cabbage, cook it covered and use very little water. If you own some copper-clad stainless steel ware use it as the perfect utensil for cabbage and other strong smelling vegetables. With a low flame and tightly fitting cover, you will then prepare fresh vegetables as they should be—the "waterless" way.

Here's a recipe we have tried for glorifying a whole head of cabbage—a way of stuffing and serving it so this humble vegetable becomes a dramatic feature.

WHOLE STUFFED CABBAGE.
Take a good sized head of cabbage and scald it until the leaves become soft enough to handle easily. Open the leaves, starting with the outer ones and working toward the center of the head. You merely loosen the cabbage petals, leaving the head intact, so you can fill the spaces with the following stuffing:

- 1 cup of cooked rice
- 2 cups of minced cooked ham
- 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley.

Blend and add enough meat stock or cabbage water to make a filling. Beginning with the inside leaves, place tablespoonfuls of the mixture between the cabbage leaves, folding the leaves over the stuffing. When the cabbage is full, bind it into shape or tie up with a cloth and place in boiling water. Cook for an hour, untie, drain and remove to a large, hot platter. Serve surrounded with a well seasoned tomato sauce.

CABBAGE WITH TOMATO SAUCE.
Take a cabbage and hollow it out at the top—the hollow should be about 3 inches in diameter and scooped out to within an inch of the bottom of the cabbage. Plunge into boiling salted water and boil for 20-30 minutes, or until tender. Remove from cooking water and let drain. Serve whole with the tomato sauce served in the hollow at the top of the cabbage.

TOMATO SAUCE:
2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
1 can condensed tomato soup.
1/2 teaspoon horse radish.
2 teaspoons vinegar.
2 tablespoons water.

Melt the butter in a saucepan, add onion and cook it until soft and yellow. Then add the condensed tomato soup, vinegar and water and heat at least five minutes to blend the flavors. Pour sauce in the top of the cabbage. Serves 6.

Bouillon Cubes Pinch-Hit for Meat Stock

May Be Used as Base of Several Heavy Soups

When there's a nip in the evening air, nothing tastes so good as a steaming hot soup—especially one that has plenty of good "beefy" goodness and authority about it.

But in these days when mother is weighed down with war work of one kind or another—in addition to carrying on at home—how is one to achieve a beautiful "soup of the evening"? How can one simmer soup all day? Who can afford the expensive luxury of homemade soup? And haven't you heard that soup in cans is practically a memory with the grocer?

Don't despair! The happy solution lies in the ever-useful and versatile little bouillon cube, veteran of several wars and "lifesaver" on hundreds of kitchen occasions.

For those who prefer to add a few extra calories to their beef bouillon, there are some quick tricks that are almost magic. Not only does this technique give you heartier, heavier soups in double-quick time, but it saves you money and solves the ever-current leftover problem.

With an instant "base" or soup "stock" made with bouillon cubes, you can quickly make the following favorite thick soups:

QUICK ONION SOUP.
4 tablespoons butter.
4 bouillon cubes.
1 quart boiling water.
Salt and pepper.
4 rounds crisp toast.
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Saute onions in butter over low heat until lightly browned. Dissolve

So it's easy? Let's have this soup often!

Almost no work for you! And I predict your husband will be simply crazy about the soup. Real home-cooked soup, you know.

Delightful seasonings—and all those fresh vegetable flavors! The vegetables come in flake form, "dehydrated" (this process of removing moisture, while the vegetables are fresh, retains garden flavors). Then, too, you cook the vegetables for the first time yourself. They're not pre-cooked. So delicious tasting.

All this in every package. Seven choice vegetables: tomatoes, carrots, celery, onions, sweet bell peppers, spinach, parsley. Also seasonings, and rich egg noodles made from Gold Medal Durum Flour.

Thrifty, too! Six large bowls from every package. My staff and I recommend this product. Do try it.

Failure to Beat Ruffing Leaves Cards in Tough Spot, With Yank Aces to Face

Win, Lose or Draw

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

With Two Down in the Ninth at Sportsman's Park

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—For seven innings Old Charley (The Red) Ruffing turned back the Cardinals without anything resembling a hit and when the eighth inning opened and the first two hitters went out in easy fashion, a man sitting just behind the press box got up and made for an exit, muttering, "I came 300 miles to see this series. I thought the Cardinals had something. Why, they couldn't hit me."

Once upon a time not very many teams could hit the fellow, because Earl Whitehill was an A-1 southpaw. The only Washington hurler, for instance, to beat the Giants in the 1933 series. But Earl hasn't pitched for years and when he meant the Cards couldn't hit his stuff he meant now. So he walked down the ramp and disappeared.

Then the score was 5-0 and when the Yankees increased their lead to 7-0 in the ninth inning, the sell-out crowd of 35,000 began to file silently out of Sportsman's Park. True, Ruffing's no-hitter had vanished after seven and two-thirds innings, when Capt. Terry Moore finally singled. But the Cards were a thoroughly beaten club and it began to look as if Ruffing not only was a cinch to become the only pitcher in history to win seven series games, but also to share with Ed Reulbach (Cubs of 1906) the distinction of having hurled a 1-hitter.

Ruffing Had Two Strikes on Sanders

But with one out in the ninth, Catcher Walker Cooper slammed a single off Third Baseman Rolfe's glove. Working deliberately, Ruffing got the next man and slipped two strikes past Pinch-Hitter George Sanders. Then he lost control and walked Sanders. The crowd uttered a faint cheer, almost derisive. The Cards had reached second base.

Great Rally Sends Fans Away Happy

And then came a rally that crammed all derision down the crowd's collective throats and which threw panic into the Yankees. Martin Marion tripled. . . . Pinch Batter Ken O'Dea singled. . . . Jimmy Brown singled.

A suddenly tired Ruffing was withdrawn and Spud Chandler, the big ex-Georgia football player, relieved. Capt. Moore singled again. Enos Slaughter banged a hit off Shortstop Rizzuto's chest. Four runs across and the bases loaded. A homer by Stan Musial would win the game.

When Only a Double Would Have Tied It

It wasn't in the books, but hardly anything the Cards do is orthodox. To win their right in the series, for example, they overcame a 10-game lead which Brooklyn held as late as August 6. Now they were making another late charge.

Two more Yankee pitchers were warming up in a hurry. For the first, the crowd sat on the edges of their chairs, hearts pounding. Already it was a grand rally. A long double would tie, a home run would win. Musial couldn't do it. He rolled out and the game was over. But St. Louis rosters left the park as happy as they could be in defeat. The Redbirds hadn't let them down, after all. They still had some fight in them. They still were in the battle.

That Futile Rally Might Mean Much

That rally could have been just the tonic the young Cards needed. Only time will tell, but it's not unreasonable. The Cards made many mistakes. Morton Cooper, their pitching ace, was terrific in spots, especially when he used his screwball. But too often Mort abandoned the screwball when he had two strikes or men like Di Maggio, Dickey, Rolfe and Hasset, and when he shifted to his fast ball the Yankees whacked him.

Against Ruffing, meanwhile, the Cards kept looking for curves which Ruffing rarely threw. Ruffing wasn't very fast but he outguessed the Redbirds until the very end.

Then, too, the Cards were loose in the field. Of the seven New York runs, only three were earned. Few teams can give four runs to the Yankees and win.

Ex-National Leaguers No Drawbacks to Yanks

But that was water over the dam, and from a Cardinal viewpoint there was hope today. The National Leaguers had thrown some terror into the Yanks. They were only a long base hit from tying or winning, and this after doing it the hard way.

Even in victory, the Yankees looked like no super-team. They are not the Yanks that murdered the Cards in 1928. Where the mighty Ruth batted, in the No. 3 spot, a beach-comber named Cullenbine is hitting. At first base, where the late Gehrig held forth, there is only another journeyman named Buddy Hasset.

Strangely, Cullenbine and Hasset did most of the damage yesterday. They are both ex-National Leaguers and the Cards had no particular trouble with them in the past. Perhaps they can find some solace in the thought that if the Yanks had to be saved by the likes of Cullenbine and Hasset, they (the Cards) aren't traveling in company too swift.

Bierman's Seahawks Menace Grid Mark He Helped Create

Out to End Minnesota's 18-Game Streak; Indiana Invades Ohio State

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Western Conference football will have lots to offer this week—also something hard to take.

The man in the middle will be Bernie Bierman, former Minnesota coach on leave of absence and now directing the powerful naval pre-flight school eleven at Iowa City.

On Saturday his undefeated Seahawks will be out to smash Minnesota's 18-game victory string extending over three seasons—a string Bierman helped create.

The game is one of a number of Saturday's top-notch Big Ten attractions which include the first conference clash of the season (Indiana at Ohio State), two inter-sectional contests (Texas at Northwestern; Purdue at Vanderbilt) and renewal of the intra-State rivalries (Michigan State at Michigan; Marquette at Wisconsin).

Not since the second to last game of the 1939 season, when Iowa won 13-9, has Minnesota suffered defeat. Notre Dame also entertains Georgia Tech, a team that upset favored Auburn last week.

May Have Won Confidence in Keen Finish

Chandler's Use to Save Red Jolts McCarthy's Pitching Schedule

By FRANCIS E. STAN.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 1.—Angles were a dime a gross today as the Yankees and Cardinals prepared to renew their World Series battle before shifting locale to New York. In it and it began to look as if Ruffing in the opener some of the theories advanced are:

1. If the Cards couldn't beat the Yanks with 38-year-old Red Ruffing in the box they can't beat them when Manager Joe McCarthy's ace, such as Ernie Bonham, Atley Donald and Hank Borowy, are pitching.

2. The youthful Redbirds were outmanned for eight innings by Ruffing. But they made Rufus work so hard he won't be good for another series appearance unless the struggle goes a distance. And when and if they face him again, Ruffing won't be such a puzzle.

3. The Cards' ninth-inning rally, in which they scored all their runs, may have touched off the spark and rid them of stage fright, evidenced by the fact that four of the ten Yank runs were given to them.

4. The use of Spud Chandler as a relief for Ruffing upset McCarthy's pitching plans, whereas neither of the Cards' relief hurlers (Gumbert and Lanier) were considered as starters.

Hasset's Hit Really Hurt

The anglemonsters still were busy as the two teams readied themselves for the second jolt today. Even in victory, it was pointed out, the Yanks were not impressive. True, the Cards seemed to have no antidote for Joe Di Maggio, who banged out three singles, but his blows more or less were meaningless, whereas the unexpected power of Roy Cullenbine and Buddy Hasset really hurt.

Of the three earned Yankee runs, two were driven across by Hasset, whose slicing double in the fourth inning scored Di Maggio for a 1-0 lead, and whose eighth-inning single again scored Giuseppe to launch a three-run frame. Cullenbine scored a run and his fifth-inning double put Red Rolfe in position to get home on a fielder's choice and make it 4-0.

On the other hand, the Yanks got no help whatsoever from Charley Keller and Joe Gordon, and they are not players who can be trotted indefinitely.

Kayped Red Sets Record

The Cards were a pitiful crew except in the final rounds. For 7½ innings Ruffing had a no-hitter, sending the historians scurrying for record books. There never has been a no-hitter in a series, closest being Ed Reulbach's one-hitter against Cap Anson's Colts in 1906 in behalf of the Cubs.

Terry Moore ended the dream of a no-hitter with an innocuous single in the eighth, but in the ninth the Cards ended all of Ruffing's hopes by driving him from the box. Saved by Relief Hurler Chandler, the veteran 19 seasons represented the key distinction of becoming the first pitcher in history to have won seven series games. He's worked eight games, but in 1936 he lost to Carl Hubbell.

The Cards are not a powerhouse team but against National League pitching, at least, they hit more consistently than yesterday. Rookie George Kuroski, the third baseman credited with winning the flag for the Redbirds, fanned on each of his three trips to the plate. Johnny Hopp and Stan Musial could give no assistance, either.

Cards New to Stadium

With Bonham and Johnny Beazley scheduled to work today the teams were matching aces, for Bonham was a 21-game winner and Beazley, a freshman, had won 21 also. To many minds this represented the key game, meaning that if Bonham triumphed the Yankees would be in a position to hurl Borowy, Donald and Chandler, perhaps in that order, and have Ruffing and Bonham ready again in case.

One thing is obvious, and that is that the Card's cause was hurt badly by yesterday's setback. Although their No. 1 pitcher, Mort Cooper, fanned seven Yanks, he also was well hit. In addition, losing their own park was in the nature of a disaster because when the Cards move into Yankee Stadium Saturday they will be away by the triple-decker edifice, with its awesome size and tricky shadows.

The Cards are new to World Series competition. They've never played in Yankee Stadium. On the other hand, 22 of the Yanks have been tempered by championship play, and, of course, they know Sportsman's Park almost as well as (See STAN, page 2-C.)

Pro Grid Rookies Set Pace in Running Back Kickoffs

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Two rookies are showing the National Professional Football League a thing or two about punts and kickoff returns.

One is Jack Jacobs, Indian half-back from Oklahoma, who in three games with the Cleveland Rams has averaged 45.7 yards to lead the league's punters. The other is Bill Dudley, former Virginia star, with Pittsburgh Steelers, who in returning five kickoffs has averaged 31 yards a try.

Parker Hall, Cleveland veteran, is first among punt handlers, statistics showing he was carried back 7 for a total of 114 yards or a better than 16-yard average.

Bulldog Turner, Chicago Bears center, leads in forward pass interceptions at this early date with two.

Braves Purchase Hurler

BOSTON, Oct. 1 (AP)—Charley Barrett, big right-handed pitcher of the Syracuse club, who is in draft classification 3-A with a wife and two children, has been purchased by the Boston Braves.

Milwaukee Adds Peaches

MACON, Ga., Oct. 1 (AP)—First Baseman Ed Hartness and Shortstop Tommy Nelson of the Macon Peaches have been sold to Milwaukee.

TAKE VICTORY IN STRIDE—Outfielder Joe Di Maggio, big gun of the Yanks 7-4 triumph in St. Louis yesterday; Gardener Roy Cullenbine, former National, new to the classic, and Third Sacker Red Rolfe seemed only mildly elated as they prepared to take their shower. Di Maggio made three hits and scored twice, Rolfe got two hits and a pair of tallies and Cullenbine smacked out a two-bagger.

Shadow of War Hangs Heavily Over Series

Fans Frequently Silent; Yanks and Cardinals Somber After Game

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—Thirty-five thousand persons paid $150,000 to see a baseball game that wasn't being played for them at all.

The spectators at the World Series opener between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday seemed to sense they weren't the fans for whom the teams were performing.

The game had all the normal trappings and pageantry—the band, the puffoon and the bustle—but little of the usual tumult and shouting. The crowd frequently was silent and even its cheers lacked a full-throated, booming roar. There was almost a feeling of why all this fuss over a ball game when a war is being fought.

If nothing else, a little sign told why.

BBC Sign Significant

High on a radio booth under the eaves of the grandstand roof it read simply, "BBC British Broadcasting Corporation."

The sign's message was plain, even without the sight of two Army bombers winging low over the field. It said, in effect: This game is being played for American forces in the British Isles, for the Navy on the seven seas, for the bulletin board "Gazette" of the helmet-clad marines on Guadalcanal Island.

In their dressing rooms after the little war they're fighting, the Yankees were serious, the Cardinals somber.

J. Roy Stockton of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch sports staff described the situation graphically not so long ago.

"Next year many of the players will be fighting in the big war," he wrote.

Should Be Good Soldiers

"Some leader on a field of battle will have reason for satisfaction if he gets some of the men who are fighting so gallantly in their baseball war."

"They are ready to go when called from dugout to foxhole. They are doing their job well, as they will do it when they are carrying a different kind of war to a different kind of enemy."

There are reports the great Yankee ball club will be broken up after this season, with many of the players joining Tommy Henrich in the armed forces. Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals already has enlisted as an Army aviation cadet and other players on the team undoubtedly will follow him into service.

Facts About Series

Memory of Comeback in 1926 Classic Cheers Card Fans

Whipped Yanks After Losing First Battle; Cooper Keeps Indian Sign on Gordon

By FRANK HOOD.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—The never-say-die St. Louis fans will be recalling the second game of the 1926 World Series as they file into Sportsman's Park today.

That was the year Herb Pennock pitched the Yankees to a 3-to-2 win in the first game with the Cardinals. The next day, with the aging Grover Alexander hurling, and Rightfielder Billy Southworth, the present Card manager, smashing out a timely home run, St. Louis evened the count and then went on to win the series.

A victory in today's game is a must in the books of the record-minded Card fans. These followers point to the series history book which shows that no team ever lost the first two games of a seven-game series and then came back to win the world championship. The Giants dropped a pair to the Yanks at the start of the 1921 series and finally won, but that was in the days of nine-game engagements.

Much of the sorrow over the St. Louis defeat is evinced by the ever-present scalping gentry. Six-dollar tickets which were peddled yesterday for as high as $20, are on the market today for $10 or less.

Today's best parlay: The name of the winning pitcher will begin with the letter "B" and the victory will be his 22d of the year. Rookie John Beazley of the Cards and the Yank's Ernie Bonham are scheduled to do the mound chores and both have been credited with 21 wins.

About an hour before the first game started, newspaper cameramen asked the early customers to give out with cheers for a crowd picture. The fans obliged so willing that people waiting to get into the park yelled frantically—believing the game actually had started.

Two of the hardest workers during the first game were Harry Gumbert, Redbird reliever, and Manager Southworth, and both were rewarded. Gumbert started warming up in the first inning, and kept it up until he finally got his chance in the eighth. He retired the only man to pinch him and then gave way to a face hitter. Southworth wore a small trench in the third-base coaching box as he paced back and forth waiting for one of his charges to get in scoring position. When he entered the clubhouse after the game President Sam Breadon presented him with a new contract.

Double plays: Most writers believe this will be the last series until peacetime. St. Louis then would have held both the first and last of the classics. The original inter-league contests were held here in 1885 with the Browns meeting Pop Anson's Chicago Colts. The guys who perennially insist the Yanks be broken up will get their wish. No less than a dozen of the Bombers are in or plan to join the services.

The grassless Cardinal infield brought plenty of complaints from the visiting team. "Looks more like a seashore than a ball park," muttered Manager McCarthy during infield practice. Women, generally taboo in the press section, were plentiful yesterday. They were working as telegraphers—replacing men who have gone to war.

Gordon a Cousin for Cooper

Force-outs: Mort Cooper's only consolation was the knowledge that he had hit Joe Gordon's number. The Yank second-sacker was whiffed twice by Cooper in both the All-Star game and the first contest of the current series. A good chunk of the fans missed the thrilling last-minute Card rally. Many started for the exits as early as the eighth frame when the Yanks seemingly had a shutout. The third person in the bleacher queue was Rev. Sloan Jobe, a Methodist minister from Fayetteville, Tenn. "The wait was worth it," he admitted, "but sure would like to see old Dizzy Lindy pitching that first one." Hotel rooms were at more of a premium than usual. Four previously scheduled conventions have brought an influx of almost 5,000 delegates from out of town.

Armstrong Stops Turner To Enhance Comeback

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 1.—Henry Armstrong, former triple boxing champion, lengthened his comeback victory string last night by knocking out Joe Turner, the eighth round, Calif., welterweight prospect, in the fourth round.

The bout drew approximately $20,000.

Chisox Sending Smith, Hard Luck Hurler, Against Cubs

American Leaguers Win City Series Starter As Lyons Shines

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Eddie Smith, the Chicago White Sox hard luck southpaw, was to see how his fortune ran against National League opposition today as the Sox sought their second straight victory over their city rivals, the Cubs.

The Sox, who have not lost a city series since 1930, got away to a flying start in the 1942 opener yesterday at Wrigley Field behind Ted Lyons' masterful three-hit shutout victory. The 41-year-old Lyons, who will report for duty with the Marines soon after the city series, did not permit a Cub to reach base until the fifth inning and finished with a 3-0 victory.

It was Lyons' sixth straight win over the Cubs in their fall meetings. Bill Lee, the Cub hurler, gave only six hits, but two of these came in the first inning with a base on balls to give the Sox a quick 2-0 lead.

Smith was to be opposed today by Lon Warneke, returning to Cub city series duty after having spent the last five years with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Figures on yesterday's game were: attendance, 4,751; receipts, $4,750; commissioner's share, $712.50; players' share, $2,422.50; club's share, $807.50.

How to Stop Richmond Passes Is Problem for G. W. Coach

Baker Dissatisfied With Colonial Backs' Aerial Defense; Chronis Is Lone Casualty

Time is running out, and Coach Johnny Baker still is expressing dissatisfaction with the manner in which George Washington University's secondary trails pass receivers. When the Colonials tangle with Richmond Saturday night at Griffith Stadium they're certain to see plenty of passing, and Baker says they're not prepared.

Reports from Richmond are disturbing Baker, too, for yesterday it was 150-pound Bay Jacobs who sparked the Spiders. Running well from his left halfback position, Jacobs also contributed two nifty pass receptions.

Coach Johnny Fenlon of Richmond reports Sophomore Jack Wilbourne, his No. 1 punter, still is nursing an injured ankle, but that he probably will be ready to go against the Colonials.

Baker reveals Jack Mahon, 6-foot end who missed action in G. W.'s 20-0 victory over Western Maryland last week, will be at one of the flanks against the Spiders. Mahon has been bothered with a shoulder injury.

Baker is hoping to construct a more potent aerial attack for the Richmond engagement. Against Western Maryland the Colonials were slightly less than terrific in that department, completing only 4 of 14 passes.

Alex Chronis, the only member of the G. W. squad not participating in heavy toil, may not be able to play against Richmond. He is hampered by pulled tendons in his leg.

Wife of WAAC, Hero Of Diamond Cooks

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Ernie Padgett was a shortstop when he made his famous triple play unassisted for the Boston Braves back in 1923—but he's spending his time around home plate now.

His wife, Edith, has joined the WAACS and before reporting for duty she's teaching him to cook.

Padgett, now a factory foreman, got into baseball record books when he caught a fly, tagged second and then caught a runner who had been on first.

"Much easier," he says, "than making soufflé."

Stars and Stripes to Give Overseas Men Grid Scores

Mixing Soldiers of Various Rank in Army Football Builds Morale, Col. Neyland Declares

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr. With U.S. Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Stars and Stripes, which aims to give soldiers overseas what they want, announces it will carry scores of all the major football games. The Iowa Navy pre-flight school has formed a cross-country team with Ensign Walter Mehl, the old Wisconsin star, as coach.

The "Keep 'em Swinging" drive for the golf range at Camp Croft, S. C., has turned up more than 1,000 golf balls. Largest single donation was 584 from Harry McMill, Toledo pro.

Col. Bob Neyland figures the Army football teams were a great thing for morale because of the way privates, sergeants, lieutenants, etc., worked together without thinking of their rank.

Club Golf Champions Loom as Repeaters in Women's Tourneys Around Capital

Keenest Crown Fight Now Being Staged At Washington

Title Defender Reaches Columbia Final; Men's Events Under Way

By WALTER McCALLUM.
On what has happened so far in the three women's links championships being played around town there doesn't seem to be any change from the 1941 line-up of titleholders. Mrs. Landra B. Platt of Chevy Chase, Mrs. Thomas O. Brandon at Columbia, and Mrs. Charles F. Lynch at Washington all have gone along serenely, as champions should do. That is, they've gone along so far, with tougher sledding ahead, particularly at Washington, where the semifinal in the club tourney was on today.

Columbia's final round was being played today, with Mrs. Thomas O. Brandon arrayed against Mrs. W. Marion Falls for the title. At Washington the semifinal round was being played, with Mrs. Charles F. Lynch, the titleholder, arrayed against Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, winner of a couple of smaller events this year, while in the other bracket Mrs. Virgil Rule, one of the favorites, matched shots with Mrs. G. H. Bailey, Jr., winner of the Corby Cup at Columbia last month.

One Match at Chevy Chase.
The Chevy Chase championship is proceeding at a slower pace than the other affairs, with only two matches played so far. The single match played yesterday found the Baroness de Gruyten beating Mrs. Albert W. Walker 3 and 1.

Yesterday's results in the other events:

At Washington, first flight—Mrs. G. H. Bailey, Jr., defeated Mrs. C. C. Hopkins 4 and 3; Mrs. Virgil Rule defeated Mrs. R. H. Hilde, 7 and 6; Mrs. G. H. Bailey, Jr. defeated Mrs. Lloyd Dennis, 4 and 3; Mrs. L. Franklin defeated Mrs. R. Y. Yous, 8 and 6.
Second flight—Mrs. Howard Hopkins defeated Mrs. J. N. Miller by default; Mrs. T. F. Bank defeated Mrs. H. H. Goodman, 5 and 4; Mrs. R. E. Nicholson defeated Mrs. W. W. Southworth, 5 and 4; Mrs. H. B. Willy defeated Mrs. J. E. McCall, 3 and 1.
Third flight—Mrs. R. W. Avers defeated Mrs. J. E. Hutcheon, 3 and 2; Mrs. Charles Olmstead defeated Mrs. S. A. Hauser, 8 and 7.
Consolation—Mrs. J. R. Hogan defeated Mrs. Gerald O'Neal, 4 and 3; Mrs. T. S. O'Halloran defeated Mrs. M. M. Alexander, 8 and 6.
Fourth flight—Mrs. John De Lashmitt drew a bye; Mrs. W. E. Niles defeated Mrs. W. H. Dieren, 3 and 2; Consolation—Mrs. W. C. Horner defeated Mrs. F. S. Duerksen, 9 and 8; Mrs. Phelms Adams drew a bye.
At Columbia, first flight—Mrs. Brandon defeated Mrs. M. M. Maxwell, 3 and 2; Mrs. Falls defeated Mrs. W. E. Hall, 3 up; Consolation—Mrs. J. J. Darby defeated Mrs. W. C. Gleason, 1 up; Mrs. W. E. Hall, 3 up; Mrs. N. B. Frost defeated Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, 7 and 6.
Second flight—Mrs. M. McCord defeated Mrs. F. M. Towers, 2 up; Mrs. W. B. Jarvis defeated Mrs. Harry Kane, 3 and 2; Consolation—Mrs. H. M. Porter defeated Mrs. E. A. Lacey, 1 up; Mrs. W. L. Woodward defeated Mrs. H. B. Bialler, 3 and 1.

Other Tourneys Later.
Other feminine championships will be decided next week. The title tourneys at Kenwood, Congressional and Woodmont have not been played, while championship events at Argyle, Bannockburn and Prince Georges are being played on week ends.

Biggest club title tourney of the year for men is on at Columbia this week under a new schedule calling for four weeks of play, with one round slated each week. Qualification rounds for the crown now worn by tall Ray Swearingen are being played this week, to end Sunday. Swearingen, stroking the ball perfectly and missing several scoring chances, has safely qualified with a 76, despite a brace of 6s on par-4 holes, and a finish of 5, 6. Next to him is C. H. (Pete) Pardoe.

Pittman Tourney Favorite.
At Congressional Gene Pittman remains the solid man to retain his club title, although Gene hasn't made the bet he made last year, when with two matches to go he took a small wager he'd win. Gene has a brace of potent opponents in Parker Nolan, runner-up for the District championship the last two years and a former club champion, and Dr. Howard L. Smith, medalist in the current tourney.

At Woodmont, where the boys play their matches over week ends, Howard Nordlinger is the favorite, but Howard has been licked before and may be again. A tall, long-hitting youngster named Buddy Brylawski, who was the mainstay of the St. Albans team in the interscholastic series last spring, is playing well and may be the dark horse. Eddie Ault, favorite in the Indian Spring Club championship, has won his way to the semifinal by licking Ted Burrows, former public links champ. Harold Gordon also has won a second-round match. Ault became the favorite when Volney Burnett, 1941 titleholder, was licked in the first round.

Long Beaten on Mat But Gives Promise Of Showmanship

Last night's hair-pulling at Turner's Arena may have produced no outstanding stars for future bookings, but Promoter Joe Turner believes he came up with a pretty good side attraction in Johnny Long, who claims to be an ex-fighter, and substantiated the claim to some extent in a losing match with Angelo Savoldi.

Disqualified by Referee Buddy Litchfield, Long showed his displeasure by punting the arbiter out of bounds on the 5-yard line and pummeling the astonished Savoldi in the midsection. In the dressing room he resumed operations on the referee and at last reports was winding up for a second crack at Savoldi, who had beat a hasty retreat.

Ernie Dusek slammed Paul Boesch in the feature match, winning in 37 minutes in a rough duel.

Army Football Tickets Permit Sightseeing

By the Associated Press.

In addition to admitting their holders to the games here, they will be honored as passes to the unrestricted parts of the Military Academy reservation.

Plebes Made Varsity Eligibles At West Point for Duration

By the Associated Press.
WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, has announced that fourth classmen, called "plebes," will be eligible for varsity athletics for the duration of the war.

Athletics will be restricted to three years' competition as in the past, however. Congress recently passed legislation reducing the West Point course to three years.

The academy's decision follows similar action by many Eastern institutions, including the Naval Academy.

The superintendent pointed out that the military academy's training schedule, including an Air Corps training program, had materially reduced the time available for athletics.

Lead in Ladies' District League Nabbed by Lafayette Rollers

With a 2-1 triumph over Brookland, Lafayette bowlers gained first place in the Ladies' District League. Inez Bryan's 125-348 and Jessie Sacrey's 125-331 gave the winners their edge.

Hi-Skor jolted Arlington, 2-1, as Caroline Hiser banged out 167 and 374. Ellen Brown's season record of 382 helped Chevy Chase Ice Palace swamp Takoma, Rendezvous, led by Irene Scott's 124-327, sweep Arcadia. Madge Lewis' 361 aided Clarendon's 2-1 win over Red Circle.

Mary Magnotto's 155 and 355 helped Anacostia Spillway beat Rosslyn. King Pin nipped Bethesda in the rubber game with Barbara Lynch's 124 and Betty Halvorsen's 330.

The regular weekly mixed handicap is scheduled tonight at Bethesda Bowling Center. Scratch for men the women will be 125, with a two-thirds handicap allowed. The three-game event will start at 8.

Lou Hoover and his St. Paul's mates monopolized the Lutheran Church League rolling at Arcadia as his counts of 145 and 371 paced team scores of 640 and 1741.

Warren Fleming of Dive Bombers with 147 and Andy Fillman of Five Aces with 368 divided top honors in Greenway Bowl American League.

Stimmie Hart's 340 was high as Takoma Transfer tallied 557 and 1489 in Takoma Ladies' League. Celia Loving of Friedman's garnered top single of 125.

New Mexico Gridders Will Quit if Loyola Game Is Dropped

By the Associated Press.
ALBUQUERQUE, N. Mex., Oct. 1.—If New Mexico University athletic authorities go ahead with plans to change the football schedule, they may find themselves without a football team.

Thirty-five of the players yesterday served notice they would walk out if the school dropped the November 21 game with Loyola of Los Angeles and substituted a rematch with the Albuquerque Army Air Base.

New Mexico opened its season with a 7-6 victory over the Army eleven. The players said the school had nothing to gain by a return game.

YOU ARE INVITED TO ATTEND THE MACK CONSERVATION MEETING TOMORROW 8 P.M. U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AUDITORIUM 1615 H Street N.W. Washington, D. C.
The next Mack Conservation Meetings in this territory will be held as follows:
Camden, N. J.—October 6th
Philadelphia, Pa.—October 9th

Several hundred truck and bus men at a recent Mack meeting; shown taking the official U. S. Conservation pledge at the end of the meetings

AMERICA'S TRANSPORTATION SITUATION is already serious. The government has recognized this fact by placing all trucks under strict regulation, starting November 15th.

Mack is joining with the Office of Defense Transportation by holding truck and bus conservation meetings throughout the country. At these meetings attended by owners, drivers, and mechanics, Mack engineers bring home to each man what he can do to make his vehicle go farther. Actual parts ruined by neglect or carelessness illustrate the points.

Men are told in detail where the extra miles can be found and how to get them. After each meeting many operators have written to express their appreciation of the practical helpfulness of the program.

You are cordially invited to attend this meeting. Two hours now can add months and even years to the lives of vehicles you now operate.

Practically all of Mack's manufacturing facilities are now devoted to the Armed Forces. Mack is also helping to keep America's vital trucks and buses on the road—until victory is won.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

—By Ramon Coffman

Collies are among the better-looking dogs. Often they are called "Scotch" collies, because they won their chief fame as shepherd dogs in Scotland.

In the chill highlands of Scotland many dogs would suffer from the cold, but the collie is protected by two coats of hair. The outer coat is dense, straight and rather stiff. The under coat is dense and soft.

Another advantage of the collie is that it is a good runner. Strongly built and about the size of an Eskimo dog, it is able to move swiftly and to herd the flock for the shepherd. If a wolf comes near this strong, bold dog is able to drive it away.

Sometimes a collie is used to herd cattle as well as sheep. It is a "smart" dog in this respect, but in another respect it is not so bright. Often it shows a jealous nature.

In the past year I spent a summer vacation on a farm where there were two dogs, a collie and a bound.

The farmer and his family liked the collie better, but the collie did not seem willing to have even a little attention given to the hound. The best way to get the collie to come to us was to call the other dog. That is an example of the collie's jealousy.

Another fairly large dog is the Labrador retriever. It usually has a black coat of hair and weighs from 50 to 70 pounds.

An early account of the Labrador retriever tells of its keen sense of smell and adds, "In finding wounded game there is not a living equal in the canine race."

The Newfoundland breed of dogs was started on the island of the same name. Its ancestors are believed to have been brought across the Atlantic by French fisherman and early French settlers.

There is no very clear record to show what the ancestors were like, but it seems plain that Newfoundlands were in the first place a mixed breed of large, strong dogs. After the Newfoundland type came to be known some of the dogs were taken to England and further breeding was carried on there, the dogs being entered in shows.

Newfoundlands are among the very large members of the dog tribe. Sometimes they are 2½ feet high at the shoulders and weigh 150 pounds or more. They have heavy, shaggy hair and a great deal of strength. Time and again they have saved human beings from drowning.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE.

What some parents call unselfishness might more truthfully be called unintelligence.

This

Mother—There is more work here than one person can do—therefore, we must all help.

Father—We have only so much money a month, and we must use it fairly for all of us.

Not This

Mother—One fault I'm sure I don't have is selfishness. I go without new clothes to dress Mary well, and I very seldom ask the children to help with the housework.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them.

Take My Word for It By FRANK COLBY. Logical Word Order

A lack of coherence is responsible for much bad writing. Many sentences that are above reproach grammatically may still be vague, ambiguous or misleading.

LOUIS ABRAHAMS Established 1896 3233 Rhode Island Avenue N. E.

She took 4 NAZIS for a ride!

Agna Jorgensen had waited months for the chance to get her little boy away from Norway and the hated invaders.

Then suddenly, out of the frozen night, 4 Nazis appeared. How she outwitted them makes one of this war's most breath-taking stories.

Winning Contract By THE FOUR ACES.

Bold Play Rewarded If there were such a thing as poetic justice at the bridge table, South would have been set at his ambitious slam contract.

The bidding: South. West. North. East. Pass. Pass. Pass. Pass.

After some thought, he played low from dummy and dropped his queen when East won with the king.

Yesterday you were Theodore Lightner's partner and, with 60 on score and both sides vulnerable, you held:

The bidding: Schenken. You. Jacoby. Lightner. Pass. 10. Pass. INT. Pass. Pass. 24. Dbl.

Answer—Pass. The chances are that you won't take this contract for any big "ride" but even if it's made the odds aren't in your favor.

Question No. 1192. Today you hold the same hand, but the bidding is different.

NATURE'S CHILDREN —By Lillian Cox Athey

HERRING GULLS (Larus argentatus) Along the Atlantic Coast the herring gull is the most abundant of the gulls. It is often referred to as the harbor gull, sea gull or lake gull, and it is the species that is seen following the coastwise ships.

When not obtaining their food in this fashion, the gulls gather in great numbers at low tide and search the exposed mud flats and bars for food.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME —By Thornton W. Burgess

Everybody is happy! Everybody is sad! Nobody is sorry! Nobody is sad! Isn't it a pity that the whole world cannot be just that way all the time? Of course it is. And if each one of us would just try never to make anybody else unhappy it would be that way. It was that way on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest and around the Smiling Pool. Everybody was happy.

MITZI MARTIN,

After Dark

Don't believe it. Miss Knight is sporting a sort of honey-colored hair. But stand by!

The Restaurant 400 has engaged the former personal violinist to the late President Kemal Ataturk of Turkey. Irwin Polk is his name, and he will open tomorrow evening. One of his specialties is a miniature violin (about 10 inches long; value $5,000) on which he can actually play a tune.

New attraction in the Anchor Room is not exactly a new one. Fellow named Matt Winslow, who will appear with a bona fide "new" songstress, name as yet unannounced.

Arthur Blake, impersonator, and Owen and Parker, comedians with a piano, have been held over in Paul Young's.

The four Hazel Mangan girls currently featured in the Shoreham Blue Room establish clearly that they are a whimsical lot by presenting (1) a Gay Nineties version of a strip tease a la Minsky, (2) a Gay Nineties version of an acrobatic-dance routine, which, at that, couldn't be much different from those of our own Follies.

While Teddy and the rest of the Mayflower Lounge staff collectively draw in a deep breath in preparation for this year's edition of the "Champagne and Orchids" affair, scheduled for Friday, the 9th. On this occasion the champagne flow and the orchid shower will be entirely for the benefit of the Washington Stage Door Canteen, soon to open. Thus, in addition to the presence of Arthur O'Keefe (the "Broadway Hillbilly," "Ma on the Flying Trapeze," etc.), a dance team, Bernice Byres, Dick Koons and the boys, there will be a large group of entertainment stars scattered among the patrons through the courtesy of the canteen.

Did somebody scream "Gala"?

Committee Meets Today On Women in War Work

The first meeting of the Woman's Policy Committee, appointed last month by Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commission chairman, to advise on utilization of women in the war effort, is taking place today at the Social Security Building on Independence avenue.

Miss Margaret Hickey, chairman of the Advisory Committee, is presiding at the morning and afternoon sessions. Mr. McNutt will address the group.

Miss Sara Southall, newly appointed consultant on woman power to Brig. Gen. Frank McSherry in the Division of Operations at the WMC, and Miss Thelma McKelvey of the WMC will attend the sessions.

The committee will learn what steps have already been taken for the utilization of women in war work, and will consider what must be done.
