Congress Asked to Keep D. C. Rent Act in Effect

Washington Board of Trade today passed a resolution asking Congress to keep the present District rent control act in effect.

The action followed expression of an opinion Saturday by Richmond B. Keech, corporation counsel, that the act would be repealed by passage of the Federal rent stabilization as it is now worded. The Federal act, which passed the House last week and is due for consideration early this week in the Senate, says that any previous legislation which conflicts with the new law shall be repealed.

The Board of Trade pointed out that repeal of the act "would most certainly result in confusion and controversy" and asks that the new law be amended to state definitely that the present District law is to continue in effect as now adminis-

Specifically, the document said. 1. Senate to Act Thursday on Draft Bill

Vandenberg Offers Proposal to Lower Voting Age to 18

The administration agreed today to delay until Thursday Senate debate on legislation to subject 18 and 19 year old men to

High Court Upholds Power Company in Dispute With FPC

Affirms Right to Trial Before Acceptance of Regulatory License

The Supreme Court today denied Justice Department request that the Appalachian Electric Power Co. be required, without a trial in the Western Virginia Federal District Court, to accept a 1942 license from the Federal Power Commission to regulate operation of a hydroelectric project on New River, near Rad-ford, Va.

The Justice Department con-tended a trial would interfere with waging the war.

In a decision December 16, 1940, the Supreme Court ruled that the project was subject to regulation by the Federal Power Commission. The Federal District Court was directed to enjoin the company from operating the project except under a license 'substantially in the form" tendered by the Federal Commission in 1931. Company Refuses License.

The new litigation resulted from the refusal of the company to accept a license tendered by the commission this year. The company contended the new license differed considerably from the one offered in 1931, while the commission asserted that they were substantially the same

Asking the Supreme Court to construe its 1940 decision to require the acceptance of the new license, Solicitor General Charles Fahy contended that a trial would "impose a substantial burden" on the Government and impede the war effort.

"A large part of the Federal Power Commission's staff of engineers. Mr. Fahy said, "has been assigned to duties directly related to the war effort and a substantial number of the engineers so assigned are required to prepare for trial."

In other decisions handed down today, the court agreed to review a case instituted by the Wage-Hour Administrator to force a Jacksonville (Fla.), paper company to abide by provisions of the Federal act and refused to consider issues involved in a case instituted by Florida officials to enforce a law governing licensing of beauticians.

Goods Brought Into State. In the former case, the court agreed to study a Circuit Court decision which ruled that the Wage-Hour Act does not apply to employes of a wholesaler handling products obtained from other States, but which "come to rest in the hands of the importer" before distribution in the State in which he conducts his business.

The latter case involved an attempt by Florida officials to force women demonstrating cosmetics in the hope of making a sale to take Court Refuses Review out State licenses as beauticians. Lower courts had upheld the State officials in requiring the license.

House Votes Minor Change In Jobless Benefit Act

The House this afternoon passed minor amendment to the District Unemployment Compensation Act, and a bill authorizing the Sinclair Refining Co. to make oil pipe line extensions into the District. Both measures require Senate action.

The amendment merely postpones, until July 1, 1944, the requirement in the original compensation law that the board classify employers according to their employment records by July 1, 1943, in order to apply a graduated rate of tax.

At present all employers are taxed at 2.7 per cent of payroll and there is pending in the House committee a bill t orewrite the compensation law because this tax rate has led to the accumulation of a $30,000,000 reserve, whereas the board believes a $10,000.000 reserve would be adequate. Although classifying employers according to their records might reduce the sliding scale tax for some at this time, it would require a higher rate up to 4 per cent for others in order to keep the average at 2.7 per cent. In postponing the sliding scale feature for another year, it is hoped the act can be revised in the meantime to halt the mounting reserve fund.

The oil pipe lines authorized by the other bill would pass under the Federal park area known as Fort Drive, near Fort Totten.

Legislative Command Urged Creation of a congressional high command to aid Congress in considering matters related to the war was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Dirksen, Republican, of Illinois.

The committee would be composed of 21 Senators and 21 Representatives chosen from the Appropriations. Naval and Military Com-

Today he returned to the board and gave back the book in which there were still 10 coupons. He said he had gotten as far as Fredericksburg and was forced to turn back on account of the flood.

Of William Fox Case

By the Associated Press

William Fox, one-time movie magnate, failed today to obtain a Supreme Court review of a decision which refused to permit him to withdraw a plea of guilty to charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. He had been sentenced on the charges to serve a year and a day in a Federal penitentiary and had been fined

Fox contended through attorneys that the Attorney General had agreed to the withdrawal of his guilty plea and that charges had been dropped against two alleged co-conspirators.

The indictment charged that Fox conspired with Federal Circuit Judge Warren Davis of Philadelphia and Morgan S. Kaufman, bankruptcy referee to obstruct justice and to defraud the United States in connection with Fox's bankruptcy proceedings.

The Government accused Judge Davis of receiving money in unsecured loans from Fox in return for avorable judicial decisions on bankruptcy cases in 1936. Judge Davis said he never received any money from Fox and Kaufman denied charges that he acted as go-between. Fox pleaded guilty and testified for the Government in the prosecution of Judge Davis and Kaufman.

pany to charge rates higher than those in effect September 15, is violative both of the letter and the spirit of the Act of October 2. "To deny the director of economic stabilization an opportunity to intervene prior to the entry of an order is effectively to destroy his ability to demonstrate why a proposed increase in utility rates may conflict with the program of the National Government to prevent further increases in the cost of living. My legal staff has been directed to take appropriate measures to have this order rescinded."

Byrnes Joins in Request. Mr. Henderson emphasized in his letter that Director Byrnes joined in the request of OPA to reopen the gas rate proceedings. The OPA director pointed out also that the PUC order made the rate increase retroactive to September 1

whereas an amendment to the Price Control Act forbade such increases without a 30-day notice to the President or his authorized representatives

The petition filed by the OPA attorneys said: "The issuance of said order of October 13, without notice to the director of economic stabilization or his designee and without permitting ceeding is invalid and constitutes a denial to the director of his right

Republicans Expect To Gain at Least 4 Ohio House Seats

Bender Is Believed to Have Edge on Young in Statewide Race

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Star Staff Correspondent. COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 19 .-Ohio, with its big House delegation of 23, is a prize worth fighting for in the coming election. In the present Congress, the Republicans have 12 Representatives and the Democrats 12. The State has lost one House seat. however, under reapportionment. Two of the Ohio members were elected as Representatives-atlarge. So evenly did the State divide in these congressional elections two years ago that the Republicans elected one Representative-at-large and the Democrats one.

In this election these two Representatives-at-large are fighting for one seat between them. Representative Bender, Republican, is expected to defeat Representative Young, Democrat. It is a Statewide contest, and with Gov. Bricker, Republican, holding a decided edge in the gubernatorial race over his Democratic opponent, John Mc-Sweeney, it looks as though Representative Bender is also a safe bet. Indeed, both sides admit that the results in a number of the congressional races will be influenced to a considerable degree by what happens in the gubernatorial contest.

Evidence of Republican Trend. Ohio again is giving evidence of a Republican trend. The GOP is likely to take from four to six of the congressional districts now represented by Democrats. On the other hand, there is one Republican district, the 13th, which is shaky, and which the Democrats may wrench away.

Representative Baumhart, Republican, who was elected in this district in 1940, has resigned to enter the armed forces. The Republicans have nominated Alvin F. Weichel. He is a veteran of the World War, a former Sandusky prosecuting attorney and has served as special assistant to the attorney general. His political strength is an unknown quantity. The Republicans have by no means given up hope of carrying the district, which they took two years ago by a margin of 22,000 votes.

There are 10 districts regarded as safe, or reasonably safe, for the Republicans. They are the 1st, 2d, 4th, 5th, 8th, 10th, 12th, 17th and 22d and all have GOP incumbents. Districts in which the Republicans have chances to unseat Democrats are the 3d, 6th, 9th, 15th, 18th and Entire Economic Life 50th Anniversary

Certain for Democrats. certain to hold the 11th, 14th, 16th,

20th and 21st. The 3d district includes Dayton. Confrol, Japs Say It has been Democratic and a tough district for the GOP. However, the Republicans feel that their candidate, Harry Jeffrey, has at least a 50-50 chance to win. The 6th district was lost by the Republicans in 1940 by about 600 votes. The GOP candidate is E. O. McCowen, a former school superintendent. They believe Mr. McCowen will win. In the 9th district, the Republicans have nominated Homer A. Ramey, a former Toledo Municipal Court chance against Representative Hunter, Democrat.

Representative Secrest, Democrat, also has resigned for military service. This takes a strong Democratic candidate from the 15th district and gives the Republican nominee, P. F. Griffiths, a chance to win. Mr. Secrest carried the district two years ago by 17,000. Lewis Expected to Win.

Former Representative Earl R. Lewis, Republican, who served in the 76th Congress, is expected to win in the 18th district. In the 19th district, former Representative "Jim" Begg, who years ago represented the 13th district and was Republican whip of the House when Nicholas Longworth was speaker, is running Democratic two years ago. The three Cuyahoga (Cleveland) districts probably will divide as they are today, with Democrats winning in the 20th and 21st, and Mrs. Bolton, Republican, carrying the 22nd district again.

There is little doubt that in 1940, with President Roosevelt on the Democratic congressional candidates did much better than classrooms today after a six-week they would have otherwise. In Ohio vacation-if you call picking 187,500 the Democrats recaptured half a pounds of cotton a holiday. dozen House seats they lost in 1938. This is another "off-year" election. The vote may be light, particularly in some of the industrial districts. Although the Democrats are seeking to make Mr. Roosevelt an issue in the congressional races, the fact that he is not actually on the ticket will make itself felt.

The Democrats are counting on the fact that they have no serious party dissentions this year as they did in 1938 and 1940, when the Martin L. Davey faction was aligned strongly against that headed by Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman. Mr. Davey, a former Governor, ran against Gov. Bricker in 1940, and Mr. Sawyer ran against Gov. Bricker in 1938. Gov. Bricker won in 1938 by 118,000 votes, and in 1940 by the record plurality

Mass for Children Of Parish Led by Father Spence

Outlining the spiritual and educational value of the church parish, the Rev. John S. Spence led a solemn mass for children this morning at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Twelfth and Monroe streets N.E.

The service was a continuation of the celebration marking the 50th annivesary of the parish's founding, which will end with a solemn requiem for deceased members of the parish at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

The Rev. J. P. Grace sang at the service this morning, while the Rev. John L. Bailey and the Rev. John J. Dressel served as deacon and subdeacon, respectively. The Rev. John J. Coady, rector of St. Anthony's, assisted with the service.

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock there will be a parish gathering. Entertain-ment will be furnished by George O'Connor's Irish Minstrels, after which there will be dancing.

Moore, professor of psychiatry at Catholic University, and Dr. Nolan D. C. Lewis, former clinical director of St. Elizabeth's, declared that the effects might be devastating.

Statistics Said Favorable. Yesterday's joint statement was ssued by Dr. C. Charles Burlingame of the Neuropsychiatric Institute of Hartford, on behalf of the group.

The statement: So much has been said and so much implied about the desirability of drafting 18 and 19-year-old men for military service from the viewpoint of emotional stability that it seems that in the public interests that a simple, direct statement should be made on this question. Speaking as individuals, we wish to assure the public and parents no grounds for apprehension as to these younger men as distinguished over.' from the older men. Such statistics as are available indicate that the incidence of mental breakdowns is no greater in the 18 and ess. It would seem to us that the proposal now before the Ameror of the Nation.

Germany Has Been Forced

BERLIN (From German Broad casts), Oct. 19.—Propaganda Min-ister Joseph Goebbels declared in a speech at Munich yesterday that the coming year was Germany's "last but at the same time biggest chance" for victory.

"This year," he said, "we must take he last but at the same time biggest chance in our national history. We are fighting for our very existence. We will never have a more favorable opportunity than we have today." He said that time was working for the Axis powers, that Germany had not been forced into a defensive position, and that exploitation of victories against Russia would require only time and patience.

In order to obtain this, Nazi propagandists appeal to the most fundamental of all human instincts-fear.

The fear of a "second, harder Versailles" alone, it seems from Dr. Goebbels' words, can spur new efforts on the part of a Germany which has seen the immense conquests of the Wehrmacht lead, until now, to nothing more tangible than a few extra ounces of bread and meat while, on the other side, are the rising confidence of its enemies, the increasing horrors of Allied bombings and the hatred of conquered peoples

The subject of discussion among certain foreign neutral circles here is whether and how the Allies will counteract this new line of Nazi propaganda. The popular belief is that amplification of the Atlantic Charter may be expected in the near future. (Copyright, 1942, Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes arlier expressed concern over a sharp decrease in industrial fuel oil conversions on the Atlantic Sea-

The 40,000,000barrel goal is not an arbitrary one. It is based on a survey made by OPC of all residual fuel oil consumers on the East Coast.

"Only 25,000,000 barrels of this volume has been converted to date, and the most of these conversions were completed last summer and early this fall. Very few conversions have been made in recent weeks."

While describing the co-operation of East Coast industries as "very encouraging" at the start of the conversion campaign, Mr. Ickes said 'much of the job is still to be done.'

Air Attacks on Britain May Be Intensified, Churchill Warns

Word of Caution Follows Report Nazi Forces Are Being Regrouped

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Oct. 19.-Prime Miniser Churchill warned the British people yesterday that German air action against the British Isles this winter "may be heavy and menacing enough to call for everything that civil defense can produce to defeat it.' His statement was considerably ess optimistic in tone than his observation in his address at Edinburgh October 10 that the Germans possibly would attempt "a very small return" in retaliation for the battering given the Reich by the RAF.

The Prime Minister's warning was ead by Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, in the course of an address to civil defense workers.

Nazi Air Force Regrouped.

The word of caution came after receipt of reports from the continent which told of the regrouping of the German Air Force by Reichsmarshal Goering for the primary purpose of meeting bold daylight sallies by heavily-gunned American and British bombers.

But the possibility remained that such regrouping also might increase the effectiveness of the Nazi Air Force for bombing of Great Britain. "Undoubtedly the Allies are overtaking the Germans in air power," the Prime Minister's statement said. "But none of us must rest upon his laurels or remain unthinkingly content with the methods of 1940-41. "We cannot know with certainty the total weight of the attack which the Germans may be able to may decide to bring to bear upon any particular city.

"It may well be heavy and menacing enough to call for everything civil defense can produce in order to defeat it. It is our duty to be prepared every day and at all points. This is an assumption which national interest demands we make."

May Change Attack Methods. Mr. Morrison gave emphasis to the Prime Minister's warning, and said the RAF's successful tactics might lead to changes in the German method of attack. "We may have to face fresh kinds of assault, bringing unfamiliar problems and calling for renewed displays of initiative and power to improvise," he said.

He added that the British must avoid being "stampeded by any panicky theorizing into needless tactical gambles" because there is no assurance that Britain can count on the German attack following the 1940-41 pattern, or the form of the RAF Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Mor-

These experts suggested that if such raids started defense should be limited to buildings essential to carrying out the war effort, and that citizens should not be exposed to danger to preserve buildings not vitally essential.

Virginia Road Damage In Flood Estimated Af Near $1,000,000

Priorities to Delay Replacement of Lost Steel Bridge Spans

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 19.-Brig. Gen. James A. Anderson, State highway commissioner, estimated today that the damage to Virginia highways from the floods of last week would be about $1,000,000.

He said it would be weeks before repairs could be made, particularly because of difficulty in getting steel to replace bridges.

Albemarle County was the hardest hit in damage to bridges with a total of 928 feet of steel spans washing away. Three sizable steel bridges were carried away in Shenandoah County.

Only three of the State's principal highways remained blocked today. These were: Route 2, between Richmond and Fredericksburg, which was covered by 2 feet of water at the Mattaponi River; Route 15, heavily-traveled North-South route, still blocked south of Culpeper, and Route 33, blocked between Harrisonburg and Gordonsville.

In addition, the State Highway Department reported that at least 15 less-used highways were still impassable, but it was expected most of them would be open some time

Gen. Anderson said efforts would be made to rush the repairs through as quickly as possible on the vital roads and that convict labor would be transferred to work on the damaged sections.

The block on route 15 south of Culpeper was caused by washout of a 300-foot fill at the Robinson River. Route 33 across the Blue Ridge was washed in some places to a depth of

The Albemarle County loss included 12 bridges on secondary routes. The steel trusses destroyed in Shenandoah included one on route 720, another on route 675, and a third on route 648.

Axis Keeps Up Assault Two U. S. Officers Reach Australia Safely Using Up to 90 Planes

Five Separate Attacks Made as Second Week Of Clash Opens

CAIRO, Oct. 19.-The Germans and Italians opened their second week of mass assaults on Malta yesterday with five separate raids, including one in which 90 Axis fighters participated, and the island defenders downed two of the raiders to boost their total to 116 in eight

The RAF lost one Spitfire fighter, but the pilot was saved, making a total of 28 British craft lost in the current large-scale clashes. Stung by its losses, the Axis has switched tactics and now is using more fighters and fighter-bombers and fewer of the big, slower Junkers bombers, the British reported.

Spitfire pilots, tangling with the raiders out to sea, were credited with breaking up many of the enemy formations before they could reach the island fortress. As a result a joint headquarters-RAF communique said today "very little of the point they had set as their damage" was inflicted by the enemy over the week end.

The Axis lost one out of every 13 planes hurled against Malta last week and scores more were so severely damaged they had little or no hope of getting home, the British said in an official recapitulation of the RAF's record bag in defense of

French Flyer Victim Of U. S. Plane Over Africa, Nazis Say

Berlin Radio Quotes Vichy On Reported Fight South of Dakar

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 .- A Vichy dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said yesterday that Lt. Comdr. Bailliere, French officer killed in an air fight off the African west coast October 11, was hit while flying as an observer in a French plane which was attacked by a United States pursuit ship.

The French officer, according to the dispatch, had been ordered to make a reconnaissance flight south of Dakar "to obtain reliable information about the strength of United States reinforcements landed at Freetown recently."

Freetown is on the coast of the British West African colony of Sierre Leone, and the Vichy account indicated the air fight started over or very near British territory.

Interested in U. S. Landing. The French machine was hit by a single bullet, which killed the officer, but the pilot brought the plane to Konakry in French Guinea, the Vichy account said. The report was one of several broadcast from Berlin indicating that the Germans were showing the liveliest interest in a message from London Saturday, not officially confirmed, that United States troops had landed in the Negro republic of

There was no comment from German sources, but the Berlin radio said Spain was deeply concerned by the possibility that her African possessions might be involved in military operations. Madrid "political and diplomatic observers" were quoted as saying that American and British forces are landing on the African west coast because convoys have difficulty reaching the war zones by way of Northern Russian ports or through the Mediterranean

Consequently, in Spanish opinion, it was said, a supply and troop transport route from Brazil, the United States and Great Britain to various West African ports was being organized despite the submarine menace off the coast.

Bathurst Mentioned as Base. The Madrid newspaper ABC was quoted as saying the United Nations would not need French Dakar even if large bases were established on the African west coast. It was con-tended that Bathurst, in the British crown colony of Gambia, a little more than 100 miles south of Dakar, would serve the military needs of the United Nations.

Another Vichy dispatch broadcast by Berlin said that "American agents" were intensifying propaganda among natives along the African west coast, a favorite means of "incitation" against the Axis being a charge that the shortage of tea, sugar and rum is due to military operations of Germany and Italy.

U. S. Planes Reported In Dakar Air Force

LONDON, Oct. 19 (A).-Dakar's air force was reported by a Fighting French officer yesterday to include American-made planes which were still in packing cases in French Morocco when France signed the armistice with Germany.

The Union Pacific Railroad president arrived by Army bomber Satleave today for Washington to resume "the job of keeping the country on rubber.

"People who don't have to travel should stay home," Mr. Jeffers said. "Of course, it is going to hurt. Some people and some areas are going to be hurt more than others. But a lot of boys are going away right now and some of them aren't coming back. Maybe a little sacrifice the whole country would be a

Asked how long the country is going to have to get along without imported rubber, Mr. Jeffers replied: "I got a letter from a lady in Texas asking several questions. On the bottom was a P. S.: 'When will the war be over?' I wrote, answering her questions, then added a P. S.: 'When we win it.'"

Newspapers Ready To Speed Drive for Industrial Scrap

Kansas Leads States in General 21-Day Metal Salvage Campaign

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 .- The Nation's newspapers-fresh from leading the countrywide metal salvage drive which ended in most States Saturday-turned today to plans for helping the Government gather heavy industrial scrap.

Kansas, with an estimated total collection so far of 87,372 tons for an average of 97 pounds per person, led the 44 reporting States which already have announced combined salvage of 2,753,675 tons for a person average of 46.9 pounds.

But these figures will be revised upward in the days ahead for several reasons and may change some standings of the States.

While the general drive was a 21day effort which began September 28, in some States it started earlier and in some later and returns still were pouring in here at the office of the newspapers' United Scrap Metal Drive Committee.

Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief who late last week described the newspaper drive as a "wonderful job," stressed the con-tinued need for industrial scrap, and Committee Chairman Richard W. "Mr. Nelson * * * asked the newspapers to help the War Production Board in its own intensive drive for industrial scrap. Plans for effective aid in that drive are now being formulated."

The plans may be announced this

While such a tremendous job, to be done in a hurry, needed strong Nation-wide leadership which the newspapers supplied, the success achieved would not have been possible without the spontaneous rallying of the people of the country under that newspaper leadership.

ENLIST NOW-BE READY TO MAKE HISTORY!

A new and glorious chapter of American history is being written. It is a chapter of adventure—the supreme adventure of all time for young Americans.

On its pages will be the names of millions of young men who now accept the challenge thrown in our free American faces by Hitler, Mussolini and Tojo - accept it and ram it back down their cruel throats!

There's a place on those pages for your name, and the glorious achievements for which you will be honored all the balance of your days.

THE War Department has announced new enlistment opportunities for men of 18 and 19. You can now select and serve in any of 13 different branches of the Army.

There's a good reason why you young men and only you are given that privilege. Men of your age make first-class fighting men. You learn fast. You think and act fast-and in battle that saves lives.

Pick out the branch of service that appeals to you most. You may choose the Army Air Forces (including Aviation Cadets), Armored Force, Cavalry, Chemical Warfare Service, Coast Artillery (Harbor Defense or Antiaircraft), Corps of Engineers, Corps of Military Police, Field Artillery, Infantry, Medical Department, Ordnance Department, Quartermaster Corps or Signal Corps.

You'll get action and adventure in every one of them. You'll be thoroughly trained, and you'll learn technical skills that will be valuable to you all your life. The Army encourages qualified men of your age to apply for Officer Candidate Schools, where many have already won their commissions.

The sooner you enlist the better prepared you will be, and the faster you will advance. Get full information about the branch in which you wish to serve at the nearest Army Recruiting and Induction Station. Talk it over with your parents and your friends. When you step out in the world's most honored uniform you'll know the thrill of saying, "This is my battle, and nobody else is going to fight it for me!"

Manpower Control Problem May Be Solved This Week

McNutt to Testify at Senate Hearing on Law To Freeze Men on Jobs

By the Associated Press.

Some answer to knotty problems involved in any compulsory manpower legislation, including questions of pay scales and the individual rights of workers and management, may be forthcoming this week.

Fowler Harper, deputy chairman of the War Manpower Commission, said yesterday that members of the Management-Labor Committee, which advises the commission on policy, would issue their initial statement before the middle of the week. In addition, Chairman Paul V.

McNutt, who has declared legislation empowering the Government to assign and confine workers to wartime tasks inevitable, is to testify before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, which opens hearings Wednesday on at least four bills for manpower control.

Policy of Hiring Women. At the recommendation of the Women's Advisory Committee of the Manpower Commission, Mr. McNutt cautioned yesterday against unrestricted hiring of women.

In a statement of policy, Mr. Mc-Nutt urged that "special efforts" to put women with young children in jobs "be deferred until all other sources of local labor supply have been exhausted.

The recommendation was made, he said, "in order that established family life will not be unnecessarily

At the same time, Mr. McNutt cautioned women not to leave their home towns to seek work or jobtraining without first registering of 2 Jap Destroyers with their nearest United States with their nearest United States Employment Offices to ascertain where work or training was avail-

Voluntary Workers Preferred. He called, however, for intensified recruiting and training of acceptable woman workers on a voluntary basis in all phases of war production and essential civilian activities where the need has been shown.

The policy statement included among the "basic national standards" for induction of women into the labor market these comments: Women should be admitted on a basis of equality with men to all forms of training and to employment in any occupations in which "they are or can be fitted." and should have "free access of foremen's supervisory and technical

Women should not work more

Foremost Problems Listed.

Officials of the commission, one of the groups immediately concerned with framing legislation for submission to Congress, listed these problems-on which they said no agreement had been reached—as among the foremost:

If the Government is given authority to place each worker in the job where he can do most for the war effort, and if it shifts a man to a lower-pay job, should his pay be cut to that of the new job? If workers have to be transported to new jobs, who is to make the arrangements and pay the bill, and what is to be done about families of the workers? If union workers are shifted from a closed shop to an open shop, or non-union workers are shifted from an open shop to a closed shop, what is to be done about unionization? Hiring and Firing Rights. What hiring and firing rights are to be left to the employer? If a man is shifted to a new job, what about his rights in his old job when he returns to it?

Union officials said labor would call for more positive use of present Government powers, more co-ordination of military and civilian manpower authority, before adoption of compulsory job-freezing legislation. They argued that the President and various agencies already have authority to handle the problems by

Farm State members of Congress and farm organizations contend that the manpower problem is even more pressing for Agriculture than for industry in view of the draft and the loss of farm labor to higher-paying

A tentative agreement was reached under which draft boards would classify workers on dairy and livestock farms as essential. The basis for such deferment would be that one worker is required for every eight cows or the equivalent in other

A proposal for granting Federal subsidies to farm owners to help them counter the higher wage bids of industry also was considered. Economic Director James F. Byrnes granted Mr. Wickard board authority Friday to regulate wages. The question in agriculture is not one of excessive pay but of bringing farm wages nearer to the level of factory pay and therefore involves possible subsidy. Many steps already have been taken to meet the manpower problem, which the President recently said was one of having "the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time."

Hoover Urges Voters To Show Axis 'Spirit Of Democracy Lives'

Declares Ballot Will Preserve Liberties of Civilians in Wartime

By the Associated Press. Former President Herbert Hoover urges all American voters to go to the polls November 3 as one means of notifying the totalitarian powers "that the spirit of democracy still lives within us."

Mr. Hoover said exercise of the franchise would result in preserva- R. Seal, 3363 Eighteenth street N.W. tion of individual liberties necessarily yielded to the Government in wartime. The former President's statement was published in the current issue of Pathfinder Magazine, released yesterday.

Total war, he said, "requires the total direction of civilian energies by the Government," but "the profound essential today is that we preserve the instruments" for safeguarding individual liberties after

'Never was it more necessary to keep alive our safeguards than today, for never before was it necessary to yield so much of liberty. And we owe it to our boys who are fighting this war that they find these foundations of freedom intact when

"Therefore every citizen irrespective of how he votes should go to the polls the third day of November. It will be notice to the totalitarian world that the spirit of democracy still lives within us."

In other overnight developments bearing on the forthcoming election, Frank Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, charged-and provoked an immediate denial—that the Agriculture Department was "using or permitting the use of an official poster to further the candidacy "of Lewis J. Murphy, Democratic congressional nominee, against Representative Grant, Republican, in the 3d Indiana

Philip Murray, CIO president, called on labor to vote for members and then noticed for the first time of Congress who have supported the that the planes on the Astoria were President's war effort, and against burning. those who, he said, have attempted to "sabotage" the war program. In a signed editorial in the CIO News. Mr. Murray described the November elections as "the most crucial in American history." Members of Congress who have campaigned for "repressive laws aimed at labor" were his particular targets.

In his attack on the Agriculture Department, Mr. Gannett cited a Government poster urgin farmers to contribute scrap. At the bottom of the poster was a campaign appeal for Mr. Murphy, followed by the line, "Sponsored at the request of the United States Department of

Mr. Gannett's statement termed this "one of the most flagrant and reprehensible abuses of governmental power and authority ever to be injected into a congressional campaign" and said it was "pertinent to inquire whether the de-partment is confining its poster campaign to this one district.

The Agriculture Department later issued a statement saying the poster was printed by a private concern and that its only connection with it consisted of advising the printer, when consulted by telephone, that "the copy seemed to present cor-rectly the message of the Government scrap iron salvage campaign.' A week later copies of the poster were received here, the department continued, and it immediately notified the printers "that the lines claiming Department of Agriculture sponsorship for the poster should be removed as this department does not take part in advertising enterprises of the sort."

Lt. Seal Describes Bravery of Crew Of Lost Cruiser

By CLAUDE A. MAHONEY. A Washington naval lieutenant who simply walked down the 45degree angle of the side of the cruiser Quincy into the sea as she floundered in the South Pacific is back home this week preparing to enter new work-naval aviation. The trim young officer who did not realize at first that the ship was sinking is Lt. John Douglas Seal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward He will leave shortly to begin naval air training at New Orleans. If he completes the training in time to go back to the Pacific as a flyer he may get a different type of crack at a Jap Zero fighter—a ship he describes as making "a beautiful glow when you hit her. As a division officer on the Quincy, Lt Seal knows something of the signt of falling Zeros, for he was in the thick of the fight that brought down a flock of them before the sinking of the Quincy, Vincennes "The greatest of all these safe- and the Astoria the night of Au-

Quincy's loss. In this action Capt, Samuel N. Moore, 51, of Alexandria was mortally wounded on the bridge and died mourning his inability to fight his ship longer. Also lost was an unnamed officer who shoved an enlisted man ahead of him and missed by just that much his own chance to be saved.

"I had the midwatch-12 to 4." said Lt. Seal. "We got the report of planes in the air, and at about 1:30 we suddenly saw gunfire. I thought I saw flares astern of the third ship,

The Navy has already described in general how the Japs came on the convoy in the darkness and an action resulted that was "fought with guns and torpedoes."

Lt. Seal noticed the leading ship in the column turning to port, and then soon a shell blew up one turret of the Quincy

"There was a big sheet of flame over the fore part of the ship," he said. "I admit I thought my number was up. I saw men milling around on the deck, and I could hardly hear anybody talk for the hissing of steam. Then I saw some people going over the side. A Good Start

The fact that Senator Burton will head the subcommittee appointed by Senator McCarran to look into transportation problems in the Metropolitan Area is assurance in itself of a study which should produce helpful results. The Senator's emphasis on the fact that he is to begin his investigation with a series of "conferences-not hearings" is in itself indicative of a sound approach. For if there are to be any beneficial results they will not be hastened by headline hunting or berating officials or the transportation people.

Of course, all transportation agenare taxed beyond any normal capacity. There are inevitable inconvenience, crowding and delay that will last as long as Washington is overpopulated. Under the circumstances, the transportation agencies are doing a good job with the means at their disposal.

But there seems to have been a general failure to attempt to deal with transportation in the Metropol-Itan Area as a whole, instead of as a series of localized conditions needing remedy. Sites outside of Washington were chosen and Government buildings erected with no comprehensive attempt to improve accessibility by cheap and accessible transportation. The rubber shortage, of course, was an unanticipated complication which may very well have upset previous calculations. But today we are faced with a problem which grows more complex as more Government employes are forced to rely on public transportation to reach their offices outside the District. And it is time now to begin the sort of search for a remedy that Senator Burton proposes

It is inevitable that in time the utilities and other agencies serving the Metropolitan Area must be amenable to some sort of overall regulatory agency that can cross boundary lines. The same sort of situation, with respect to other problems, has been dealt with in New York by various authorities. In London some years ago it became necessary to reorganize the transportation system for the metropolitan area, under a single authority. It is unthinkable that the transportation problem in the District of Columbia should continue to be regarded as ending at the District line, and that half a dozen unrelated agencies, with strictly limited jurisdictional powers, should continue to deal independently with the individual problems of competing companies.

Senator McCarran announced that he was not seeking to set up a new regulatory agency at this time. That may be a problem for future rather than immediate consideration. But certainly it is time to look for a solution to the difficulties which are characteristic of a trend-the relatively excessive fares charged for transportation to and from the Pentagon Building and other Government buildings in Maryland and Virginia. Senator Burton's sensible approach to the matter undoubtedly will find the transportation agencies themselves as anxious as any one for a satisfactory answer.

Heroes of the Sea

Two American seamen now hold the Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal, an award bestowed for heroism "above and beyond the call of duty." The first recipient was Quartermaster Edward F. Cheney, jr., who received his medal from the hand of President Roosevelt, and the other was Second Officer Frank A. Santina, who was decorated in New York last week by Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, war shipping administrator.

But the story of the heroes of the sea cannot be confined to those whose conspicuous acts of bravery win them special recognition, for all of the men who sail the merchant ships carry their lives in their hands. Day after day they are stalked by the enemy's submarines and bombers. and hundreds have gone to their deaths. But those who remain have kept the ships moving-through the ice-clogged seas around North Cape to Murmansk, over the North Atlantic lifeline, through the Mediterranean, where they must fight for every mile of progress, and across the longer reaches of the Pacific, where death also lurks in the blue waters. Many strikes and other labor disturbances in the pre-war days have virtually danger and greater personal hardstuck steadfastly to their posts, setwhich should be a constant source of great American. inspiration to the rest of the country. When the war is over, and the full story told, there will be no brighter chapter than that which is now being written by these brave men of the sea.

THE A THE RESERVE OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

Wildcat Strikes

The decision of the War Labor Board to press more energetically for a reduction in the number of "wildcat" strikes—those called in violation of the no-strike agreement-will be favorably received throughout the country. And there will also be gratification at the board's frank recognition that the attempt to minimize the importance of these strikes by discussing them in percentages of total time worked tends to conceal the real extent of the harm that strikes do to the war program.

"The whole of the bad effect of these strikes on war production," the board said, "cannot be measured by man-days alone. Shortage of production at one point in the war production program interrupts the flow and causes shortages at other points." Heretofore, the tendency in official quarters has been to ignore this incidental production loss from strikes. and, since it has not been reflected in official strike figures, there is no way now of determining its full extent. But there is no doubt that it has been an appreciable loss, even when measured against the whole of the production picture. It is gratifying, therefore, that the board has taken official cognizance of this full extent of the strike evil, and is clearcies serving the Metropolitan Area ing the atmosphere of half-truths which only make the solution of the problem more difficult by obscuring some of the facts.

As outlined in the board's statement, this new attempt to curb strikes will be confined at the outset to collecting information and preparing recommendations concerning all work stoppages. The board's investigators have been instructed to report to the board on the relation of local and international union officers to strikes and to submit the facts on the efforts of these union officials to prevent their occurrence. These investigators also have been told to report on the relation of management to strikes, particularly with reference to whether management has made a real effort to settle grievances in a prompt and orderly fashion. Then, with this information | sion as a whole. at its disposal, the board presumably positive action on its part to discourage all strikes.

It may be wondered whether the board, in restricting its factual survey to the activities of union officers, has gone far enough. This seems to imply that in no case are individual workers responsible for unauthorized strikes, an assumption which certainly would not be justified by facts already known to the board. But, whatever the explanation of this, the important thing is that a real start seems to have been made in the direction of enforcing the no-strike pledge. Because of the great importance of attaining maximum production, the board should have the unstinted support of all interested parties.

Edwin Willard Deming

The life of Edwin Willard Deming was crowded with activity. He was not merely a painter and sculptor. a traveler, explorer and ethnographist, a writer and public speaker. His interests were universal in their scope and legion in their number. There was nothing that he deemed unworthy of his concern. No man of his generation worked with more zeal or devotion. He loved his labor, gloried in the power to do things, found a marvelous joy in the privilege of achieving results commensurate with his effort.

Born at Ashland, Ohio, August 26. 1860, Mr. Deming from his infancy onward was associated with the Indians of the prairies. They appealed to his artistic instinct. He realized even as a boy that they were themes for creative interpretation. In search of the technical skill he required, he attended the Art Students League in New York, then went to Paris to study under Boulanger and Le Favre at Julian's. By 1885 he was home again, wandering with the Apaches in the Southwest, the Umatillas in Oregon, the Crows in the Little Big Horn Valley and the Sioux in the Dakotas. He "soaked himself," as he later said, in Indian manners and customs, folk-lore, tradition and experience. His notebooks and, more important, his memory were inexhaustible storehouses of impressions which he spent the remainder of his days developing. Meticulous care in the treatment of his subjects and materials was a principle with him. The miracle of his success is all the more remarkable because it was accomplished in comparative poverty. He was too idealistic to be "a money maker," and he had a family of six children to feed and clothe and keep happy.

Mr. Deming, however, never complained. The bargain he arranged with fate gave him the rewards he wanted. He had his freedom, his easel and his paints and his brushes, his faithful and always encouraging wife, his growing sons and daughters. and his dreams. Recognition came in time. His pictures are in the Metropolitan Museum, the American of these men have had ships sunk | Museum of Natural History, the Nabeneath them, only to go back again | tional Museum, the Brooklyn Museum

Mental Casualties

As the legislation to lower the minimum draft age nears passage, it is reassuring to learn that ten eminent psychiatrists disagree with a group of their colleagues who expressed the belief last week that it would be a serious blunder to induct these younger men into the Army.

The first statement, also indorsed by ten psychiatrists, took the position that the induction of men in the 18 and 19 year old groups should be deferred as long as possible because they are emotionally less developed than older men, and therefore more likely to "crack up" under the stress of Army life. The drafting of these men now, their statement said, "would be fraught with serious hazards to the Army, to the youths themselves and to the future welfare of the country."

The answer of the dissenting group of ten, which included Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital here, did not share these apprehensions. Speaking as individuals, they said. 'we wish to assure the public and the parents of this age group (18 and 19) that there are no grounds for apprehension as to the effect of military service on these younger men as distinguished from the older men. Such statistics as are available indicate that the incidence of mental breakdowns is no greater in the 18 and 19 year age group than in the older group. If anything, it is somewhat less. With the Government realizing and properly assuming this increased responsibility, we indorse favorable action on the proposal to include men of 18 and 19 years under the Selective Service Act."

Obviously, neither of these statements can dispose of the question. At best, they merely show that there is no agreement, even among the most eminent psychiatrists, on the question of the relationship-if there is any-between the age of an individual and his ability to endure the experience of war without going to pieces mentally. In view of the disturbing character of the original statement, however, there is some comfort to be derived from the fact that the fears of the former group are by no means representative of the sentiment of the medical profes-

Charles V is credited with having declared: "A man is worth as many men as he knows languages." The great Emperor wrote in the sixteenth century, but his observation applies with ever stronger force to the present fateful period of human experience. America especially, because of long neglect of the study of the manners of speech of other nations, now has compelling need of linguists skilled in the use of foreign dictions.

Howard W. Blakeslee, science editor of the Wide World Service, calls attention to the demand reflected in a survey conducted by Mortimer Graves, administrative secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies. A year before Pearl Harbor, it is disclosed, only fifty persons "in all American educational institutions" were studying Japanese. With respect to Mandarin Chinese a considerably larger number of citizens of the United States were available to aid their country, but experts in the dialects of China were lacking. "Not one American was a recognized scholar in Malay or equipped to teach the tongue. * * * The vernaculars of India, such as Bengali, Punjabi and Hindustani, are as little known as Malay and Thai. So, too, are most of the Balkan languages, the tongues spoken around Dakar, Korean and almost all the languages of Central Asia." The difficulty thus appraised undoubtedly has developed in part from the fact that the people of the United States commonly have believed that the English language rapidly was becoming a universal medium of communication. Taking into account the unquestioned spread of the American variant of Shakespeare's tongue through press, movies and radio, they felt, not without reason, that the time was approaching when they would be understood everywhere on earth. Such a hope was justified, but its fulfillment has been delayed. Meanwhile, an imperative requirement of the Government, Army and Navy is for men and women who can assist in this vital field of operation. Mr. Graves explains: "Whether we like it or not, we are in for a new era of mutual world-awareness. * * * We are as thoroughly unprepared to live in this kind of world in peace as we have been to fight in it in a totalitarian war."

If 300,000 small businesses go to the wall this coming year they will feel it most of all, but Uncle Sam will be a close second. If he would take away or adjust certain taxes, relieve them from filling out 1.001 different reports and stop insisting that they conform to twice as many silly regulations a good many of these could keep well away from the wall.

It is curious how disturbed so many persons seem to be at the prospect of houses whose temperature will be between 55 and 65 degrees, when they habitually pay hundreds of dollars and travel hun-

Sees Nazi Retreat From Stalingrad

Military Writer Believes Germans Must Fall Back Unless They Win City Now

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. The history of sieges conducted at the ends of long lines of communications is not without its grains of comfort for the gallant defenders of Stalingrad. Barring those cases in which fortified places have been reduced in early stages of the operations, usually by the application of overwhelming numerical superiority, supply and communications have in the end been decisive in most

The siege of Sevastopol during the Crimean War (1854-1856) is a case in point, for it was actually possible for the British and French to send supplies and reinforcements by sea from their home ports to the Crimea in a shorter time than the Russians could send them from Moscow by the bad roads which then were almost the only internal communications of Russia. Here the attackers were successful in the end. The successful defense of Gibraltar during the long siege of 1779-1783 was largely due to the fact that the British sea communications were superior to the French and Spanish land communications; the British fleet threw major supplies into the fortress no less than three times, besides innumerable smaller ventures. Port Arthur was taken by the Japanese in the war of 1904-1905 because it was possible for them to cut off the fortress from all outside communications, and the Russian Baltic fleet did not arrive in time to upset these conditions, even had it been strong enough to do so. But the great siege of Verdun in the last war ended in failure because the Germans could not stop the French traffic on the famous road from Bar-le-Duc and in this war Tobruk was successfully defended for seven months because no Axis effort could completely cut the communications of that fortress.

At Stalingrad the Germans are making a really tremendous effort at the end of a very long and arduous line of communications, while they have not been able to isolate the city. The Russian line of communications is much shorter than the German and the communications of the Russian relieving forces are even better than those with the garrison. Under these conditions it is not surprising that the German attacks, having failed to carry the city in the first phases of the operations, are now intermittent, with considerable breathing spaces between each effort, the renewal of the attacks coming each time that it becomes possible to build up a fresh assault echelon of troops and weapons and to renew the supplies in the advance

Each such attack seems to gain a little ground, for a tremendous price, but none has been decisive, and the spirit of the Russian defenders remains unwill consider recommendations for Language Students Wanted broken. It must be pointed out that the Russian counterattack northwest of the city seems to have bogged down, but for this also the Germans are paying a price in the diversion of important elements of German troops. They have discovered that they cannot leave the defense of their vital left flank to the Italians Under these conditions it is always possible that each German attack may prove to be the last. In other words after each faliure to gain a decision the German high command must review the situation, asking itself with increasing seriousness whether it is worth while to continue. The damage to German prestige from a withdrawal to the line of the Don would be enormous and this is a consideration which cannot be ignored: on the other hand, unless the military are reasonably confident that by keeping up their attacks they can win in the end, they must represent to their political superiors that eventual failure will be the more damaging in the moral sense the longer the attacks are con-From the strictly military point of view, Stalingrad is of great importance as possible winter quarters. No matter how ruined its condition, it will afford more shelter than the open steppe. If the Germans are to remain on the Volga this winter, they must have Stalingrad. Otherwise, as previously remarked, a retirement to the Don and probably to the Manych farther south is about the best they can hope for: It will be some time yet before winter will begin to check the German attacks on Stalingrad itself; but if it is now a question of establishing a winter line, the Germans must allow some time for digging in and providing shelter. They must have already made up their minds as to what they are going to do; if they have not their condition will be bordering on the disastrous should they continue the attacks on Stalingrad too long and still fail to take the place in the end. Should the Stalingrad operations end in failure, it may be expected that the Germans may try-as they did on one or two occasions last year-a "prestige" attack on some other sector of the Russian front. Leningrad would seem a likely location for such an operation, and there are some reports of a shift of German forces and siege materials in that direction. The present time of year, when ice impedes the Russian supply traffic on Lake Ladoga, but is not yet strong enough to bear traffic itself, is favorable for a German attack on Leningrad from the supply viewpoint. But the season is growing very short for large-scale operations in that part of Russia. (Copyright, 1942, the New York Tribune.)

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"Dear Sir: "An amazing number of persons seem never to have walked in their lives. Certainly not since childhood, if I am to believe the women I hear. Maybe they are just putting on airs, but from what they say, walking must be a really novel experience for them.

"Perhaps these innocents need some good advice on how to walk, and how to get the most out of it. You might give it to them sometime. "Walking is just as good fun as it is exercise. From my experience with a great many Government people, I am inclined to believe that many, both men and women, do not know what sheer fun walking can be.

"Yet I know many men, especially, in Government circles, who have walked to and from their work for many years. There is one old gentleman who lives in nearby Maryland, and despite his white hair, he walks at least part of the way

"Traffic has ruined city walking for many. Something can still be done with it, however, if the walker allows himself enough time, and observes all the traffic lights and regulations scrupulously.

"Regulations are made as much for pedestrians as for motorists. With the decline in the number of cars, and the gradual increase in walking, there will come about a situation in which the traffic rules will be more for pedestrians than for any other class.

"I repeat, walking is good fun, and I hope your readers know it. "Sincerely yours, P. J. H."

The basic need in walking is carefree feet.

At bottom, it means comfortable shoes. Good shoes and happy feet go together, but some persons do not realize this until they take up walking in a large way. Large, that is, for them. Gasoline and tire restrictions are foreing many persons to walk who have not done it for years. Maybe they took a Sunday afternoon stroll, now and then, but now they are discovering that there is a real difference between strolling and walking to get somewhere. Members of hiking clubs know that feet free from blemishes and hurts may be attained by care and perseverence. and then may be kept that way by vigilance in wearing the proper socks and

Stoutness, and plenty of room for the toes, are requisites in hiking shoes. Socks should be too thick rather than too thin. Feet are extremely sensitive breathing organs, as well as mechanical means for getting the body over the ground. The care of the feet requires constant bathing, and even more careful

Hence they often fail in really getting the spaces between the toes dry. Even persons who realize this need often fail to achieve such dryness, because they are in too great a hurry. If you want to walk easily and happily, Spread a dry bath towel on the bed and lie on the back after all the usual drying has been completed. Take another dry towel, a big one, and go after the toes. Go over and over them, many times, especially between them. It will be discovered that these spaces are extremely difficult to get dry, and no wonder, seeing how each toe locks next to the other.

Take one foot, and then the other, and go over each toe by toe.

Once a new pedestrian has good dry feet, he can step out with the best of them, provided he has on well-fitting shoes.

From now on, shoes will be difficult to get, so every care must be given those one has; new heels and soles should be fitted, as the need arises, without permitting the heels to run over too far. This preliminary care of the feet and shoes amounts to the absolutely basic requirement for good walking, either in or out of the city.

Our correspondent gives some good advice on city walking.

There is no reason why walking in the city cannot be as healthful as walking in suburbs or country. The two requirements are, in addition to comfortable feet and shoes, attention to traffic regulations and a good lively pace.

The latter is essential, both to get somewhere, and to get any real exercise. Physicians call walking—which they recommend almost to a man-a constitutional exercise. That is, it whips up the circulation of the blood, at the same time it exercises some of the largest muscles of the body. The breathing is increased, and usually some perspiration

Care must be taken, then, to get dry afterwards. Much can be done in an ordinary washroom, but not as much as at home; therefore many pedestrians find it best to walk on the way home, rather than the other way.

We note that Government authorities say that any child in ordinary health ought to be able to walk two miles to

A two-mile walk is a good one for the average sedentary adult. No longer walk should be taken at first. There is a certain joy to getting out in the open which no doubt all too many "soft Americans" have forgotten. One is free from waiting, above all. You just start going and keep going. It is elementary, but it is good. What America needs now are basic and elemental things.

Reports on Yom Kippur In the Mid-Pacific.

To the Editor of The Star: From many mountain fastnesses, from isolated positions, from innumerable uncharted places on an island of the Hawaiian group, a veritable multitude of Jewish soldiers wended their way to a centrally located chapel where Chaplain Harry R. Richmond was to officiate at Yom Kippur services. For many it would be the first time they had attended these sacred services away from home: for others it would be the first time they ever had attended services. Cantor Rubins, a corporal in the Air Corps, ably assisted by a servicemen's choir, began Sunday evening's service by chanting the soul-inspiring "Kol Nidrai." The religious ritual continued and was completed just one minute before blackout time. Since the chaplain as yet had not delivered his sermon, he asked the members of the congregation to remain seated after the lights had been extinguished so that he might speak

Quiet reigned in the darkened chapel as the chaplain delivered his address. Planes zooming overhead, returning from never-ending patrols over the far reaches of the Pacific, added reality to services already replete in atonement and thanksgiving. The text of the sermon was unimportant at that time because every one was busy with his own thoughts. Officers and men wept unashamedly-not because of the sins for which they were atoning, but because something that they long had taken for granted now was being really appreciated. That something is a right that is denied to the subjected peoples of Europe and Asia-freedom of religion Here was that concept in its most beautiful form. The men were relieved from military duty to attend religious services in a chapel that abounded in crucifixes and accoutrements of religions differing from that of Judaism. Many offered a silent prayer, "Thanks, God, for America." This was probably the only Day of

in a complete blackout. It did happen in Hawaii, but it could not happen in Germany.

Protests Against Drafting Teen-Age Boys for Service. To the Editor of The Star: With the greatest dismay I see that swift steps are being taken to indorse the drafting of 18 and 19 year old boys. Many of us have tried in good faith to follow our leadership during this time of world crisis. We have come a long way because we believed that by doing so we should be able to preserve the way of life we believe in. We have been willing to do anything which would contribute toward that preservation.

But now we are asked to send boys to fight the war for us on the theory, if I understand correctly, that it can be fought successfully only by having in the ranks a larger percentage of daring and tough young men. We cannot accept that proposition without searching out its justification.

what is at stake. They have lived less of this free life, not more, than those that are older. If they are better fighters it is not because, knowing better that for which they fight, they are more willing to die for it. It is the older men who should be willing to go out and fight and be the better fighters on that basis. We are to send the young boys, not because they understand better, but because they understand less. Unknowing, they are more daring; young, they are more hopeful; brave, they will risk. It is on the carelessness and daredevil spirit of boys that the success of the war depends, then.

I protest. If this war is what we think it is, up to the beginning of decreptitude, we should every one of us be the better fighters for the years we have lived.

Until every man of 20 has been taken I protest the sending to war of teenage boys.

Why is it that we cannot put arms into the hands of those who wait for them? The Chinese, the Russians, the Indians? Why is it that, knowing that India is our front line now, we can do nothing to help resolve the Indian impasse? Why is it that we withhold arms and planes and send men who can never be as well prepared to fight there as the men accustomed to conditions strange to every American?

GRACE S. YAUKEY. Finds War Workers

Avoid the Suburbs. To the Editor of The Star:

In The Star for October 15 John B Blandford says that the Government may have to commandeer private housing facilities for war workers, but it seems to me that householders are bearing more than their share of the blame for the housing shortage.

The war workers need a good stiff lecture. They are too set in their ideas about where they will or will not live. The idea of riding the bus to work is objectionable to the majority of war workers. They insist on crowding into old buildings in the downtown area rather than come to the roomier, more attractive suburban area.

Maybe most of these new Government workers are from small towns or the country. That would account for their peculiar fixation in regard to being within walking distance of their jobs.

I believe the Government housing authorities should educate their workers to the advantages of moving into residential areas beyond the business district. There would be less of a health menace of overcrowding if they would. Also they would have a chance to become real participants in the community life of us "old-time" residents, and that should result in fewer of them getting and again so that soldiers and supand the Herron Gallery in Indianand the Herron Gallery in Indianapolis. Q. How many employes had the State Department when it moved to Washington?-H. S.

A. In 1800, when the Government moved to Washington, the State Department had only seven employes, who were quartered in the Treasury Building. At present the number is 6,984. Q. Why is a vicuna coat so expensive?

-L. B. D. A. The fibers of the vicuna are the finest of any known animal. The amount of fine hair that can be obtained from a single animal is about a quarter of a pound, which means that pure vicuna cloth requires the hair of no less than 40 animals to make enough cloth for a coat.

Q. What are the four extreme points of Europe?-A. J. W. A. Cape Nordkyn is the most northern point, Cape Tarifa in Spain the most southern, Cap da Roca in Portugal the most western, and a spot near the north end of the Ural Mountains (60 degrees 20 minutes E.) the most eastern.

Q. Is it possible for an aviator to fly upside down without knowing it?-A. A. C.

A. The Army Air Corps says that it is possible. It can happen during night flying, or when coming out of a spin, or when there is something wrong with the instruments.

Q. How old is Atlantic City, N. J.?-B. R.

A. The little fishing settlement which later became known as Atlantic City dates from 1780. In 1854, the Camden & Atlantic Railroad was completed to this point and in that same year it was incorporated under the name Atlantic City.

Q. What per cent of the American people are left-handed?-K. H. S.

A. Tests indicate that 15 per cent are definitely left-handed, 65 per cent are right-handed and the remaining 20 per cent, ambidextrous.

Q. What is the name of the bird that lives on a raft?—D. F. J.

A. Grebes are hatched on a floating nest and learn to swim and dive with remarkable skill, being able to swim long distances under water. The young birds when tired ride on the mother's back among her wing feathers.

What is a monkey-bread tree?-

A. The baobab tree of West Africa is called the monkey-bread tree by the natives. It bears gourd-like fruit, the pulp of which has an agreeable, tart flavor. This is eaten by the natives and is also a favorite food of the monkeys.

Q. What can be done to restore a raincoat that has become tacky?-B. E. A. If the tackiness has not progressed too far, the coat might be made service-

Salary Limit Order Called Unjust

President Usurps Power, Observer Declares

By DAVID LAWRENCE. One fundamental rule of courthouse law in America has been that citizens shall be treated alike. The Supreme Court has as its motto across the front of the building: "Equal justice under law." If a penal statute is passed or a tax rate is applied, it usually means that no group of citizens shall be affected while another group is exemp. If there's an income tax law passed, it usually David Lawrence. has meant that while the rates might be different, based on capacity to pay, a person in one particular kind of a job should not be taxed more or less heavily than some one in another kind of money-producing position.

Now comes the Roosevelt administration, and without specific authority from Congress, not only insists on cutting down salaries fixed long before the outbreak of war but it grants an exemption to the idle rich and the coupon clippers who live on inherited wealth.

The man who has risen by his own toil from the bottom of the ladder may not now earn in excess of $25,000 net income, while the man who gets his income from dividends or interest can earn $100,000 or $1,000,000 a year and be subjected to a less burdensome tax rate than the salaried man who earns in excess of $25,000 net income per year. Even as between salaried men the executive order creates inequalities and gross inequities. The thrifty man, who has paid his debts and is free of encumbrances, is prohibited from collecting from his employer more than $25,000, while another man who has "fixed obligations" and debts can earn far more than $25,000 a year.

Sees No Equality.

The language of the executive order says all this is necessary so as "to provide for greater equality in contributing to the war effort," though just how it promotes equality to penalize the successful and hardworking citizen while rewarding those who were born with a silver spoon and who inherited wealth is not easy to understand.

Congress did not bestow on the Chief Executive the right to fix salaries at $25,000 or anywhere else for the good reason that if the President can today select the $25,-000 level he can tomorrow select the $3,000 level. As a matter of fact, there would be far more logic in fixing all salaries and wages in America at somewhere around $3,-000 a year because after all there are only 40,000 persons out of 130,-000,000 who are in the $25,000 class. It certainly would fit the "greater equality" idea better if the $3,000 level were chosen than the $25,000. Congress, however, has refused to fix any maximum. Indeed it refused specifically to adopt the proposal made by the Treasury Department earlier this year in behalf of the President to limit salaries to $25,000 by means of inflation. When Congress passed the anti-inflation law it was really seeking to eliminate increases in wages and salaries and it gave the President certain power to "adjust wages or salaries to the dispatch reporting the Turkish apextent that he finds it necessary pellate court had quashed 20-year in any case to correct gross inequities and also aid in the effective convicted of implication in a bomb-prosecution of the war.' Says Reference Is Plain. But this plainly refers to correction of abuses that have arisen in war contracts or in salary payments over and above what has been the for all four defendants. recipient's pay for many years. By no stretch of the phraseology of either the preamble or the main provisions of the law and by no rule of fairness can the language of Congress now be honestly made to mean that pre-war salaries must be reduced. Can a $25,000 limit be justified as a "gross inequity"? Congress prescribed no standard and the Supreme Court has said this must be done if legislative power is delegated to the Executive. What proof is there that a $26,000 salary net income constitutes a "gross inequity" and a $24,000 salary does not?

The anti-inflation law is not a revenue bill such as would be valid under the 16th Amendment to the Constitution which provides for an income tax. It is a piece of war legislation justifiable only as a measure to prevent increases in purchasing power. But when it seeks to bring about deflation of certain individual incomes and to use the machinery of the revenue laws to accomplish a punitive purpose, the courts some day may hold it unconstitutional. Employers may then find themselves with law suits filed by employes demanding payment of sums in excess of $25,000 due on past

The $25,000 net income limit, however, is a far greater danger to the man in the $3,000 class than any piece of governmental restriction ever promulgated, for it means Congress no longer regulates anybody's income, but the Executive has in effect usurped power to confiscate 100 per cent of all individual incomes over and above any level he

Agriculture Extension Service Urged As Agency to Mobilize Youth for Farms

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. In the President's last speech he emphasized the need of mobilizing high school students for vacation work on farms. This is a small segment of the total manpower problem, but it is, at least. a problem that can be met, creating a source of extra labor in a most distressed area of our economy, provided action is taken now, months in advance Derothy Thompson. of the time when this youthful labor will be available. In this field I have something more than a journalist's knowledge, because I have been associated before and during the last vacation period with an attempt to find a solution for this problem under something approaching laboratory conditions -taking a certain number of carefully recruited city high school students and placing them on farms in a limited number of rural counties, under supervision, and with a careful checking of the results. I refer to the work done in Vermont and a bit of New Hampshire by the Volunteer Land Corps.

Like every problem involving the lives and work of human beings, the problem of putting adolescents to work in an environment strange to them is much more complicated than it seems at first sight. Unless the whole matter is handled with intelligence, sympathy, understanding of youth and understanding of farmers; unless provision is made for adjustment of human relations; unless an esprit de corps is created amongst the recruits; unless both farmer and recruit are mentally conditioned for the new relationship; unless provision is made for insurance; unless communities are organized to welcome the recruits and brought into collaboration with them in such problems as recreation-unless these and many, many more problems are foreseen and provided for, the maladjustments and the turnover as a result of such maladjustments can render the program useless.

Hard to "Ration" People. For people are not things. It is easy to talk of "rationing" manpower, but it is infinitely harder to ration people than it is to ration sugar or machine tools. People, as it happens, have lives of their own-tastes, wills, capacities, ideals, demands, desires and all sorts of other fleshblood-mind attributes which resist "rationing." Adolescent youth is no exception. Yet if the schools would cooperate by shortening the school year, as has been suggested by the President, and if the organization of 16 and 17 year olds is properly conceived and executed, the exodus of such youths to farms can not only supply the Nation with millions of man

Furthermore, there is an already established agency of government with long and deep experience which could take over this problem and solve it in a great constructive way. To my mind, and after intimate experience with the problem last summer, there is only one such Federal agency. That is the Extension Service of the Agriculture Department.

Has Classified Leadership. This agency has all that it takes to handle this problem: Inspired and imaginative leadership under Director M. L. Wilson, experience with the organization of youth—the Four H Clubs; techniques of integration with educational institutions through the land grant colleges, understanding of decentralization -integration between Federal and State agencies; long-established contacts with every rural community in the Nation through the county agents, and, finally, an elastic administration that understands the nature of drawing in and working with voluntary committees. All these integrations, together with a long experience, make it an ideal agency to handle this problem. No new bureaucracy, starting from scratch, and making every conceivable error out of sheer inexperience, is necessary. In this field duplication of effort-the curse of our new war bureaucracies - can be avoided, because the Extension Service already is intimately connected with the Federal Employment Service and the Office of Education, the collaboration of both of which is essential to the solution of this problem.

Should Not Wait. All that would be needed to start the mobilization of high school students in city and country for vacation work is a green light to the Extension Service and an adequate appropriation from Congress. And this should be done immediately.

For if we wait until next spring, when the shortage of farm labor will be very serious, it will be too late to handle the problem properly. It will be too late to have mobilized and selected or rejected recruits, either on a compulsory or voluntary basis. It will be too late to have set the necessary standards for youth and farmers; it will be too late to have provided the necessary physical and spiritual conditioning for the work; it will be too late to have organized the rural communities for the reception of recruits and provided the machinery for adjustments. In the spring there will be a problem velling for solution and again we will dash in with halfbaked measures where angels fear to tread-unless we start right now, and put the matter in the hands of those equipped to

The Great Game of Politics

Not long ago, Harry Hopkins de- clearly ought to be there. clared that in the coming elections, now hardly two weeks off, it is unimportant whether Republicans are chosen for Congress so long as they are good

Aside from his announced support of Mr. Bennett for Governor of New York, which was inevitable, the President has made a plea to the people to vote. That is all that reasonably can be expected from him.

An appeal for a Democratic Congress would be resented by the voters, as it was during the last war when made by President Wilson. And an appeal along the Hopkins' acter and independence, then the lines would clash with the Demo- national interests will be promoted cratic Committee's campaign and by his election. If the improvement seem unfair to Democratic candi- is not clear then there is no point dates who follow the President as in voting against the sitting member the titular party leader.

Gives Voters Free Choice. Yet, Mr. Hopkins is undoubtedly right when he says it makes no difference whether Republicans or Democrats are chosen so long as they are good men. One assumes that all candidates want to win the war and since, prodded by Mr. Willkie, the Republican party has now shaken off its isolationist ties and is committed not only to the Roosevelt foreign policy but to postwar international co-operation, there seems no way by which the result could give aid or comfort to the enemy or seem a repudiation of the President.

This is a fortunate thing. It will enable voters to register against the presidential rubber stamps and against both Democrats and Republicans who have been subservient to the farm and labor lobbies without fear of damaging the national interests or lessening the power of the President to conduct a successful war. On the contrary, the replacement of such members with men of greater independence and intelligence ought to help him in that direction.

No greater boon could come to the country now than a Congress that will resist the demands of pressure groups for special consideration and insist upon greater competency upon the part of the executive.

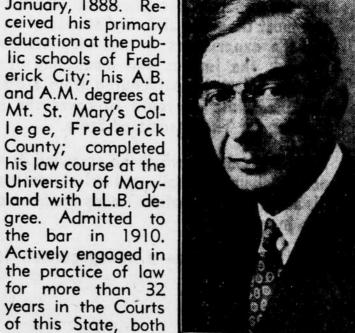

Need Vigilant Congress.

What the Nation needs is a Congress that will uphold the President on every proposal for increasing our war management is saturated-a Congress that will probe, prod and constantly keep its finger on the weak spots; that will expose ineffiblacklists and prejudices which keep

This Changing World

President Now Holds Most Complete Picture Possible of Situation on Russian Front

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. As complete a picture as is possible of the Russian military, economic and political situation is now in the hands of President

Wendell L. Willkie, just returned from his world-circling flight, has given his views, and Admiral William Standley, United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union, has supplied information which the President will weigh seriously. How the pictures tally will remain for a while a confidential matter.

But from less secret sources it appears that the Germans' drawing to a close. Whether the entire city of Stalingrad will fall into the hands of the Nazis or whether the Russians hold on to their present positions is regarded in many competent quarters as relatively immaterial. The Germans may withdraw in the event they are not able to push the Russians farther eastward. Hitler's forces have failed utterly in what is believed to have been their strategic objectivethe destruction of Soviet Field Marshal Timoshenko's armies. They have succeeded, however, according to these same sources. in their endeavor to destroy the productive power of one of Russia's greatest industrial centers, which is now in ruins and will not return to its former glory until the enemy has been pushed from the Volga to the west.

Attain One Major Objective.

The Germans also have succeeded in one major objectivethe capture of Russian regions which serve as the terminal of the principal pipe lines from the Caucasian oil fields. The Germans won't get the oil from these fields, because they are and likely will remain in the hands of our associates. This is an advantage for the United Nations. But the fact that the Russians also will be unable to get oil from Caspian Sea area will be a severe blow, because about 75 per cent of the fuel for Soviet tanks and planes formerly came from that region. The remaining oil mitting prosecution of the war until sources are not adequate for an complete victory has been achieved army the size of Russia's.

The Soviet's generals do not believe in defensive warfare. When their situation seems most hopeless they still find ways and means to press an offensive in some region even if such a drive does not make any material change in the battle lines. Its great importance is that it keeps the spirit and morale of the troops high. There is nothing more depressing to an army than to be kept on the defensive all the time. The lack of the necessary fuellittle is known of the Russian reserve stocks of oil and gasolinemay prevent Field Marshal Shaposhnikov, who is believed to be now directing the strategy on all fronts, to follow the advice contained in the late Marshal Foch's historic statement, "My right is crushed. My left is in retreat. I am attacking with my center."

Professionals Take Over.

In Russia as in Germany, the matter of conducting the war has been placed exclusively in the hands of the professionals. It is no longer a secret that Hitler makes no decisions unless they are recommended by his general staff. He is, in other words, the superlative rubber stamp serving the military leaders. Until last December, when he ordered an offensive against Moscow in an effort to give the Russian capital to the German people as a Christmas present, Hitler took an active and decisive part in the formulation of all war plans.

The Moscow offensive was taken against the better judgment of Hitler's generals. It was a complete flop and resulted in the Germans being pushed back hundreds of miles in Southern Russia. The territory subsequently was reconquered last summer at a fantastic price, but this reputedly cured the Fuehrer In Russia until very recently from dictating strategy. Stalin, while less active in formulating strategy, had the last say in military operations. He also had his civilian political commissars with the army and they were able to break any military man who might be even vaguely political doctrines of the party. Not that they did much breaking. but they did butt in occasionally, impairing local operations. At the representations of the general staff these men have been placed in the ranks and are just other members of the fighting forces.

It appears that, despite denials, Stalin has intrusted the main task of drafting the strategy of the war to Marshal Shaposhnikov. probably the most brilliant military mind in the Soviet.

All Servicemen By HENRY McLEMORE. If I weren't a patriot (my full name is Patrick Henry McLemore, you know) I'd sell this idea to the Army and Navy. It is worth a lot of come tax next Here is the idea: Make it compulsory for the women in the armed forces to play poker with the men in Henry McLemore. the armed forces. Once a week, say, make it bligatory for the WAACS and the WAVES to sit down to a poker session with the soldiers, the sailors and the marines. This comes close to being the alltime suggestion for morale building among our fighting men. If carried out, it would do more good than 100 USO huts, 200 assorted canteens, 1,000 song fests and double portions of chicken on Sunday.

Why? Because it would make our soldiers, sailors and marines wealthy, extremely wealthy. The poorest poker player among them would move through the WAACS and the WAVES like a shearer through sheep. I don't know what the total payroll of the women is, but whatever it is, that sum would pass into the pockets of the men. They would never lack for spending money. They would all jingle. jingle, jingle like a coin purse as they marched.

* * * * The idea came to me the other day when I kibitzed a women's poker game. That is, they said it was a poker game. To a man accustomed to stud and draw it was like dropping in on some strange ritual of an obscure jungle tribe. As a matter of fact, I had been kibitzing for a full half hour before a chance remark dropped by one of the "players" tipped me off that it was poker that was being played.

The only thing standard about this "poker" was the cards. It was a regulation 52-card pack, but what the girls did with this deck ranks right alongside of what happened to Custer at Little Big Horn as a

It was dealer's choice, and some of the choices were astounding. "Secret six coming up," one woman declared as she started parceling out the cards.

I won't attempt to describe "secret six" to you in full. There aren't enough keys on this typewriter to paint fully the horrors of it. The same goes for some of the other concoctions other dealers chose, such as the flery furnace," "the poverty miseries" and "howling John."

In "secret six," the first three cards dealt are wild. Or, maybe it's the first four cards. Come to think of it (and I don't like to) I believe the first five cards are wild. They are all dealt face downward, with only the sixth and final card exposed. Now the peeking at the hole cards begins. That is followed by giggling, and then by the betting.

I took a quick glance at the hidden cards of one of the players and suggested she raise.

"Raise? On 'hat?" she demanded.

"Six kings," I whispered, that being a strong enough hand in my poker league.

don't know this game," she said, resignedly folding her cards. She was right. Six kings would

"And lose my shirt? No, sir. You have gotten her nowhere. The pos was won by a gilded lily of a hand called a "super royal straight flush." Only if she had declared for low with her "weak" hand of six kings would she have shared in the pot that tied for low. "The fiery furnace" is aptly named. Not even Shadrach and his chums would dare sit in on this one. In "the fiery furnace" (and I saw this with my own eyes and heard it with my own ears) all black cards are wild and all red cards are half wild. Honest, cross my heart Apparently the dealer deals cards until she is tried and then, with the betting finished, the players start figuring up what they have, in fractions, too.

Investigation revealed that I didn't chance in on any unusual women's poker game; that women poker players everywhere indulge in such brainstorm variations of an honorable and ancient sport. Now it is easy to see what the WAVES and the WAACS, raised on such games, would do in a real poker game with their brothers-in-arms. It would be murder, men. How would you like to get in a game where two or three of the players wouldn't stay on anything as weak as a full house? Or when they only had four of a kind? Medical Supplies Sent To Russia 'Excellent'

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.-Two American officials said yesterday after an inspection of United States medical supplies sent to the Soviet Union that "the quality is excellent; all they need is more."

At the invitation of the Soviet Red Cross and Red Crescent Socie-ties, Capt. John F. Waldron, physi-cian attached to the United States supply mission, and Robert Scovell, Red Cross representative, went to a Red Army base hospital to look over materials in service.

The equipment included surgical instruments, drugs, blankets and hospital garments.

"The Russians seemed pleased with everything," the Americans said.

Newspaperman to the Limit!

An American war correspondent may be down, but he's never out.

The world learned that when AP reporter Vern Haugland returned alive after being lost in the jungles of New Guinea. As a tribute to Haugland's "devotion and fortitude," General Douglas MacArthur in an unprecedented action pinned the U. S. Army's Silver Star award on the correspondent, now recovering in a New Guinea hospital.

"I can't tell you how much we have been inspired by your getting back after such trials and hardships," said MacArthur.

"Vern Haugland's saga of his fight for survival during six weeks in one of the wildest spots on earth has gripped thousands of newspaper readers," writes the Helena, Mont., Independent, echoing the praise of press and public.

"Back from the land of the dead, this courageous reporter has given the world one of the most dramatic and vivid stories of an individual's experiences in war-his wanderings through the jungles and mountains of New Guinea where he parachuted from a disabled airplane while en route to cover the island fighting for The Associated Press."

Haugland's story, which he scrawled in a tiny note book until he collapsed at last unconscious, "is an epic of journalism," adds the Shreveport, La., Journal.

Nation's Food Habits By Army Menus

Sectional Preferences Expected to Give Way To Balanced Diets

DETROIT, Oct. 19 .- Out of the war the Nation's people may develop a "cosmopolitan appetite" that tle Creek, Mich., food consultant to the Secretary of War, said today. "The people who have to plan the meals for the Army are having their problems with regional likes and dislikes in foods," said Miss Barber, a member of the subsistence division of the quartermaster general's office, in an interview at the opening of the American Dietetic Association's convention here.

"Boys from the South like homing grits and Northern boys don't. Eastern boys like sea food, but many Western boys dislike it-especially fried oysters.

"But," said Miss Barber, "while the Army attempts to cater to local whims to a certain degree, the chief aim is a furnish an adequate, well-balanced diet, and I believe that we are beginning to develop among the men a cosmopolitan appetite that will affect the food habits of the Nation for generations to come."

"Furthermore," she said, "when regulations in the Western Defense these men find out that they can get along without certain foods and learn to like others—and realize that it is the well-balanced meal that counts—they are going to carry that knowledge home with them after the war and demand from their wives a kind of 'universal diet.' "It therefore behooves the women of the Nation to take advantage of courses in well-balanced nutrition that are being offered, particularly since it is likely that thousands of men, through experience in working in Army messes, will be able to take over themselves at the cook stove." Miss Barber said that the "most fisliked food" in the Army was spinach, with oysters, no less, close second.

"We haven't yet reached the age group of boys who, as children, were rought up on spinach," she smiled. Mothers at home need have no lears about the way the boys are being fed, she declared. "Army food surpasses the national yardstick for adequate nutrition. We give double the protein recommended for civilians, because of the arduous life of the soldiers, and the Army diet is well above the requiremen

"Everybody said Danny was headed for the penitentiary. He couldn't seem to keep out of trouble. He'd be all right for a few months and then we'd get a call from the police. You know the other kids. We haven't been into the Juvenile Court with one of them for five years. But Danny * * * he'd be caught shooting dice in the alley or mixed up in a street fight. After a scrape like that he wouldn't come into the club for awhile.

"But sooner or later he always came back to his drawing board. Sometimes, after he'd been away from the club, he'd show up looking thinner and drawn. The clinic was right next door to the painting class so I could usually persuade him to go in for an examination. The nurse would talk to him about getting more sleep. We tried to keep him healthy, even if we couldn't always keep him out of trouble."

It was taken years ago at a kid basket ball game. Danny was seven when he first came to the club. He trailed in after some bigger boys, a skinny kid with big black eyes. When he found we had a drawing class he kept coming back. All he wanted to do was draw, but occasionally he got into a basket ball game. He was scrappy but good."

Those Hockey Eagles Are Gone, but Not Forgotten

The withdrawal of the Washington Eagles from the local sports scene has prompted little daubing of damp eyes or possibly even more than a stray "So what?" from the bulk of the Capital's populace. To some 2,000 more or less steady Riverside Stadium customers, though, the absence of the Eagles from ice hockey warfare this season will be taken with a tinge of genuine regret.

Washington still will have its ice hockey as presented by the more polished Lions of the American League at Uline Arena, but when Boss Severine Leoffler decided transportation and player problems didn't justify the risk of sponsoring the Eagles through another season in the Eastern "Amateur" League the village lost a bizarre touch.

In the loosely-operated Eastern "Amateur" League there were no amateurs. They played for that weekly pay check, but nobody denied they earned it and the league's younger, more aggressive players seemed to get more fun out of it than the smoother skaters in better leagues.

Had Faculty of Getting Close to the Customers

The Eagles, comehow, got close to the customers. When they came on the ice, for instance, they were forced to pass through the crowd at the main entrance. If, en route to the ice, they spotted a girl of kindergarten age they were likely to pause and pat her on the head. If the girl wore lipstick, though, and her date wasn't looking the Eagles weren't above conducting their own date bureau.

After home games the Eagles arrived at a nearby tavern en masse. Frequently they lingered too long and consumed too much, but if the customers wanted to rub elbows with hockey players—and a lot of them did-they never were further from them than an invitation to a drink. By comparison the Lions have been coldly commercial, gliding on Uline Arena's ice from a catacomb, seldom injecting the human touch the Eagles owned. They play better hockey, those Lions, but the Eagles played it rougher and the customers loved it. In the second of their three seasons here the Eagles had their crowdpleasing squad. For goal scoring they had the league leader in Norman Burns. For starting fights they had Paul Courteau, a fiery little French-Canadian with an uncontrollable temper. For finishing those fights they owned Bill Davies, Gordon Pranschke and Ross Knipfel.

The Eagles won the championship that 1940-41 season. They had queror of Purdue by 26-0 in a Big Len Burrage for slick defensive maneuvering, several huskies whose idea Ten game, will tangle with Northof defense was a bone-bending body check and a shifty, talented goalie in Gordie Hemming, now in the Canadian Navy. And, when the games were over, the Eagles had some players who saw the team's social status maintained.

Six times that season the Eagles drew more than 4,000 fans to Riverside, mainly because Publicist Joe Holman's dream of developing Wisconsin tripped Great Lakes Naa feud between the Eagles and Baltimore Orioles came true. Four times that year the Oroles and Eagles packed the Potomac plant and usually Pitt, 19-7, Saturday. the crowd got a harmless riot for its money.

Holman capitalized on local sports writers' ignorance of ice hockey. At weekly luncheons Coach Red Mackenzie would explain developments, clarify rules and instill some of his own enthusiasm into those writers. Presiding at those luncheons, incidentally, was Eddy Gilmore, the Assocated Press writer who has a Moscow byline these days.

Few took the Eagles seriously, but it was fun watching them. The Eagles and the Eastern Amateur Hockey League couldn't be taken sectional affair. seriously. When the Eagles won the Eastern League championship they then entered the United States Amateur Hockey Association championship tournament. It was high-sounding stuff, but the only teams entered | Cross, meets Cornell, and Brown, still were Eastern League teams.

Current Transportation Difficulties Are Just a Laugh

The Eagles and Atlantic City Sea Gulls tied for that U. S. A. H. A. crown and a play-off was ordered, but somehow they never got around few weeks. It merely was another delightfully daffy chapter in the Carolina pre-flight 7-6, stakes its Steuber, senior halfback at the Unibrief history of the Eagles.

The Eagles weren't much worse in that respect, though, than their higher paid puck-pursuing colleagues. The National League, only major league of ice hockey, plays all season to eliminate one team from the play-offs and the American League, last year a 10-club loop, eliminated only four teams from its play-offs.

Those Eagles would laugh at the football team complaining of current transportation difficulties. We took one trip with them and it was enough. They chartered a bus to Atlantic City, arrived in time to little danger, but Alabama, the club grab dinner, hop into their outfits and play the Sea Gulls. After the game they had a hasty meal, climbed aboard that bus and returned to Washington at 6 a.m. That night they played the Orioles in Baltimore.

Ice hockey as played by the Eagles possibly was insignificant, unpolished and rowdy. But it was good for a laugh and those that laughed with them will miss them.

Completion of 10 Out of 10 Passes One Of His Feats Against Washington U.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 19.—Lanky Glenn Dobbs cut some nifty figures for the statisticians as the University of Tulsa's Golden Hurricane continued a high-scoring pace that so far this season totals Tulsa 215, opponents 0.

The six-foot-3-inch Dobbs quarterbacked Tulsa to a 40-0 victory over Washington University of St. Louis Saturday night and turned in great performances in passing, punting and running. Against Washington, Dobbs threw the ball 10 times, completing all 10 of the passes for 107 yards. Three them were touchdown shots of 9, 27 and 16 yards. He Gobbles Yardage. He carried the ball four times, gaining 73 yards and losing none.

One of his runs was for 50 yards and a touchdown. He punted twice for 129 yards, one of them a 64-yard quick kick from his own goal line. His second boot was for 65 vards. He returned two punts for 41 yards.

Dobbs, a senior, specializes in great accuracy and speed. After the game Coach Tom (Kitty) Gorman of Washington declared:

"Dobbs is ready for a top job with the pros right now. He can step right from the college gridiron to a pro team at $10,000 a year." Dobbs, however, is in the Air Force Reserve and probably will be called to active service upon his graduation next June.

On the first play each team scored 6 points as each player produced a hidden ball and galloped for a touchdown.

A strip-teaser popped from a leading men's huddle, the comedians chased her, and the leading men scored. Leon Errol, who "gets drunk on rye bread," wobbled all over the

Redskins Apparently Safe Bet to Land in Playoff, but Fight Overconfidence

Face Dangerous Foe Sunday in Romping Pittsburgh Club

Baugh, Seymour, Todd Supply Punch in 21-10 Win From Dodgers

By LEWIS ATCHISON. Lodged more securely in the upper-crust society of first place in the National Football League's Eastern bracket following their 21-10 victory over the Dodgers in Brooklyn yesterday, the Redskins are almost a lock bet to be in the championship play-off in December. But there are a few formalities to be disposed of before cutting up the melon. First on the list is next Sunday's game with an oven-hot Pittsburgh eleven that is raising the merry Ned with its rivals after a slow beginning, and after that come the Eagles, Chicago Cardinals, Giants, Dodgers again and Detroit. Nothing super-super like the Bears, but well-starched teams that can be troublesome

Coach Ray Flaherty concedes his men may lose another game, possibly more, and, if the worst happens, even get lost in an eleventhhour scramble for the play-off. He isn't planning any losses, of course, but it's possible, and Raymond is taking a long view of the situation. This week, for example, the Steelers should be all smoked up after blanking Philadelphia, 14-0, for their third straight win. For the first time since pro football was introduced in the Smoky City the team is a genuine contender for something other than the booby prize. There are some astute observers who think the Rooney-Bell Corp. can snatch the pennant from before the Redskins' very eyes and do it the hard way by beating Washington.

Steelers Gain Confidence. Flaherty thinks his men can bring Bill Dudley and his mates to a grinding halt again, but the Skins earned no respect from Pittsburgh in town feeling they had thrown away the game and, indeed, until Ki Aldrich blocked Armand Niccolai's attempted placement and recovered for a touchdown, matters were going badly for Washington.

The new confidence Pittsburgh must have, born of three consecutive victories, isn't calculated to help the Redskins. They'll be talking to a sturdy outfit that has outgrown its stovepipe pants days and may have to shout to make themselves known. After all, here is Pittsturgh's golden opportunity to lift itself above the strata of football society and it is a break worth fighting for.

The Redskins are in a precarious position, blessed with confidence and cursed with a taint of overconfidence. The coach wants them to have a degree of confidence to guard against an inferiority complex, but he doesn't want them infected with the mistaken notion that press clippings win games.

Baugh's Passes Click. There was nothing wrong with the Redskins' conduct yesterday as they spanked the Dodgers, who before yesterday were thought to be Washington's only serious rival for Eastern honors. Baugh pitched three touchdown strikes at the enemy, completing 10 of 22 for his day's work, and Bob Seymour and Dick Todd threw in a fancy brand of leg work to round out the performance

Baugh may have been guilty of poor field generalship early in the game when Washington got the ball on Brooklyn's 7-yard line after Cece Hare blocked Dean McAdam's punt Sammy went into the air on the third down, after Andy Farkas had moved the pigskin 3 yards in two tries, and Brooklyn broke up both passes to stop the attack.

That offensive failure kept the Brooks in the ball game. It made them cocky and after an exchange of punts, on which McAdams uncorked a boot that sailed 80 yards on a fly, McAdams, Merle Condit and Pug Manders engineered a 59yard march that all but netted a touchdown. Hal McCullough tossed a pass to Wendy Butcher on the goal line and he let it get away from him.

Condit's 60-yard gallop through a wide hole in the right side of the Redskins' line, opened up when Dick Farman was mouse-trapped, featured Erooklyn's second march, culminating in a touchdown. Baugh played his safety position superbly on the run, feinting three interferers to get Condit with a bear hug that temporarily staved off the score.

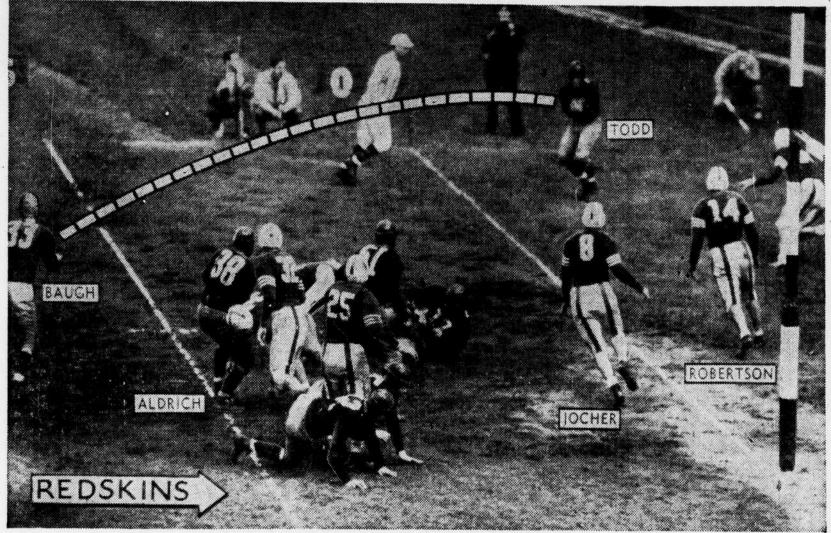

Condit Kicks Field Goal.

Brooklyn's second tally, a field goal, was credited to Condit later in the period when he kicked a clean placement from the 15-yard mark. Thereafter the Dodgers were no threat. Bob Seymour's 37-yard return of McAdams' punt planted the ball on Washington's 47-yard line and touched off its first goalward march. Sammy alternately ran the ball with Todd and Seymour and threw passes to Ed Cifers and Todd before tossing the payoff aerial to the latter. Dick went 28 yards to Last-Second Grid Play pay dirt, with Bcb Masterson blocking out McAdams to clear the way. Brooklyn's field goal, which followed almost immediately, was set up by a "sucker" pass from Mc-Adams to Condit that netted 56 yards and put the ball on the 14yard line, where Todd nailed the

Dick made up for it by running back the kickoff 41 yards to Brooklyn's 46, where Robertson and Mc-Adams nabbed him just before he got into the clear. Four passes from Baugh to Todd, with a sprinkling of running plays interspersed to keep the Brooks guessing, netted the score. Todd took the touchdown Pro Football pass standing all alone in a corner of the end zone while the Dodgers were bunched closely in the line to repulse another thrust by Ray Hare. who had just been stopped for no The Tribe went 60 yards for its final score, with Baugh's passes again featuring. One to Bob McChesney was good for 19 yards and the next to Farkas gained 26. Brooklyn lost 5 yards on a penalty before Baugh rifled his next shot to Johnny Kovatch, who made an unbelievable catch with three Dodgers looking over his shoulder, and an equally unbelievable escape from them to Step off the 10 remaining yards.

Flaherty, of course, points out the good plays and miscues during the screening and that means more time. But the Skins don't object so much to this as they do listening to the lengthy and painstakingly detailed scout notes. They feel that Flaherty, Assistant Coach Turk Edwards and Bergman could go into a huddle and pick out the significant sections of the report and that Flaherty could pass it on

Then there is the record of a 4-Isbell to Don Hutson, which may be the shortest in football. It seems the ball was only skin-deep away from the goal line and the Rams had banked their defense anticipating the customary plunge.

The pigskin was snapped to Isbell and the two lines jammed in the middle. But Hutson wasn't in the mixup. He simply stood alone and neglected on the goal line, 4 inches across the line of scrimmage, and Isbell shot him the ball.

In all, Isbell successfully passed 13 times to his partner, two for touchdowns, which raised Hutson's tally to seven scoring catches for the season. Dante Magnani's running and Parker Hall's passing accounted for 21 points for the Rams in the second period.

Victory in Baltimore Gives Lorraine Gulli Jump in Rivalry With Lucy Rose

Rolls 10-Game Score Of 1,218 to Capture Forest Park Open

Makes Garrison Finish For 9-Maple Margin; Madge Lewis 4th

Lorraine Gulli, once the country's No. 1 woman duckpinner, who has been playing second fiddle to Lucy Rose for the last several years in Capital competition, got the jump on her rival yesterday when she won the third annual Forest Park Open in Baltimore with a score of 1,218 coming from behind in the final game to nip Mrs. Rose by a 9-pin Pacesetter in the first 5-game block with a count of 659, Miss Gulli, despite games of 99 and 83 to start her second round, held gamely to her lead until the fourth string of final block, when Mrs. Rose fired 151 to forge ahead by a 5-pin margin. A final game of 117 gave Miss Gulli her victory when Mrs. Rose counted only 103. Miss Gulli capped her score with 559 set, while Mrs. Rose tallied 574 and 635 for her five-game blocks. The winner received $100 and the runner-up $50.

Madge Lewis Is Fourth. Gertrude Vitkoski of Baltimore was third with 600-599 for 1,199. Madge Lewis of Clarendon Bowling Center, one of the Capital's upand-coming bowlers, flashed a 633 final to finish fourth with 1,192. Baltimore women won the next three places with Myrtle Liphard fifth with 1,182 and Ethel Brewer and Toots Barder tied for the sixth spot at 1,179.

Ken Stribling, local colored fighter, runs into a tough assignment tonight in his first headline show, going against Al Davis in the main eight-rounder on the boxing card at Turner's Arena.

Stribling will be an underdog figures at least to give Davis a tough Izzy Jannazzo in a 10-rounder good argument. Davis fought here two weeks ago and knocked out Manuel Rosa of Baltimore in seven heats. He had plenty of trouble before silencing Rosa, with his manager, Lew Burston, explaining it by saying that Al had yet to reach real fighting trim for his comeback

Davis tonight will weigh about 150 pounds, with 147 his best weight when he was fighting regularly about a year ago and taking two shots at Zivic and the welterweight fights, one of them a six-round decision over this same Rosa. Others on his list here are Tommy Hoover, Jimmy Hill, Powerhouse Johnson, Roy Dunn and Billy Washington. The Dunn affair was a 48-second knockout in the first round. None of these was more than six rounds and so it will be a real test for Stribling tonight to go the eight-round

The preliminary card of five bouts again is featuring local boxers, among them Nick Latsios, Alexandria Greek who is rated as a comer, and Danny Petro, who has won all seven of his pro starts by knockouts. Six-rounders tonight are: Nick Latsios, vs. Oakie Greer, Jacksonville; Danny Petro vs. John Bashara, Wilmington, and Roy Lewis, Muncie, Ind., vs. Kid Louis, New York. Four-rounders are: Bernie Cady. Jannazzo has demonstrated he knows how to jab. He fought Johnny Walker in his last Philadelphia appearance and jabbed his way to victory. Walker, who packs a punch as vicious as Robinson's, never got close enough to do any damage. Jannazzo just kept jabning away at long range.

Trouble for Central Likely in Grid Game With Roosevelt

Tussle Heads Schoolboy Program Carried Over From Last Friday

With all traces of over confidence one, Central was a slight favorite today to top Roosevelt in the feature of the two high school series football games postponed from last Friday.

The Vikings have real respect for the Rough Riders. Roosevelt, for the last two years, has caused plenty of trouble, winning in 1940, 7-6, and taking a 14-14 tie last year, both times with a team not rated in the same class with the present combination. More backfield talent and experience is expected to give Central the edge today, although the still soft condition of Roosevelt's playing field will work to Roosevelt's advantage in that it figures to hamper some of Central's classy backs.

The other half of the series schedule has Coolidge playing at Western, with Western given the edge here despite its unexpected setback from Roosevelt a week ago.

One other schoolboy tilt postponed from Friday was reset for today, Wilson at Georgetown Prep. The St. John's-Eastern game, also called off last Friday, has been postponed indefinitely.

Losses Will Rise. In this connection, however, a note of warning against over-optimism was sounded.

"In this war the United States has just begun to fight," the report "In the months to come, battles may be lost and crushing efeats suffered. It seems certain that as our offensive activity is tepped up, casualties will increase Against the Japanese our offensive has only barely begun."

Navy Had Old Planes.

Amplifying, the report continues: "The Navy went into the war with considerable quantities of aircraft that were not of the latest type, and unquestionably suffered losses that could have been avoided had the latest equipment been available. "Yet the public should be warned," OWI said, "(a) that neither plane is the complete answer to the fighter problem (probably no plane ever will be) and (b) that neither has been tested adequately in battle." While contending that battle reports have established the supremacy, within their own fields, of the four-engined Flying Fortress and Liberator bombers, the OWI disputed claims of superiority sometimes made for the four-motored Lancaster bomber of the British RAF. The Lancaster, OWI said, can carry a heavier load of bombs only because it is designed to fly much lower and carry less gasoline on shorter missions. Stripped to do the same kind of job, the American planes could easily increase their bomb load, the report claimed.

Steel Mills to Set Still Higher Record In Current Week

Scrap Drive Praised As Operations Rise To 101 Per Cent

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 19.-American steel mills will set a new record output of 1,727,800 tons of steel this week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today. The operating rate was estimated at 101.0

This was an increase of 0.8 of 1 per cent over last week's operations A month ago the operating rate were 97.8 per cent and 1,615,000 tons. Reiterating views expressed last week when the steel production level topped 100 per cent of rated capacity for the first time since our entry The figures, Mr. Lyall added, did into the war, steelmen said the latest rise in output probably resulted in part from success of the scrap metal drive directed by the country's newspapers.

Newspapers Praised. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19 (AP) .-The scrap drive sponsored by the Nation's newspapers has been so successful "there is no evidence now of any steel mills closing down, says Lessing J. Rosenwald, conserva-& Dock Co. are merging their tion chief of the War Production

"The newspapers did a marvelous job," Rosenwald told newsmen yesterday while here to accept on behalf of the Government a contribution of war relics from veterans posts in Philadelphia.

Several steel mills already had curtailed production when the newspaper drive was launched a month ago and others had less than two weeks' supply on hand. The salvage chief cautioned against a "let-down" now that the newspaper drive has ended, saying scrap collection is a "continuing problem and will be with us as long as we are at war." "The need for scrap metal will become acute again during the winter months," he said.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.-Losses ranging from fractions to about a cent Last. 18.22-23 a bushel were posted in the grain and soybeans futures trade at times today, but the market showed enough recovery power to check the decline and permit small rallies frequently. Hedging sales accounted for some of the weakness, particularly in corn, which was affected by expanding harvest operations. Soybeans reflected lack of elevator or merchandise buying interest in view of the Government price guarantee and the embargo on shipments to this market. Failure of flour business to revive accounted for continued lagging trade in wheat, with uncertainty regarding the flour ceiling an unsettling market factor.

Unsettling market lactor.

Sluggishness Attributed Partly to Uncertain War Prospects

By VICTOR EUBANK,

Associated Press Financial Writer NEW YORK, Oct. 19. - Stocks moved haltingly in a narrow and uneven range today as trading activity slowed down appreciably from recent levels.

The market's sluggishness was attributed in part to greater caution on the part of bidders, who were influenced by reports of Nazi gains at Stalingrad and the Navy's expectation of a full-scale Japanese attack on Guadalcanal. On the other hand, selling was not much of a factor and stocks on the loss side showed only minor recessions.

Acting a trifle better than the general run in the final hour were utilities, aircrafts, rails and an assortment of industrial specialties. Steels and motors did little either way. Transfers amounted to around 450,000 shares, smallest in a month

Steadiness of the utilities was associated with the tax bill provision permitting such companies (including communication concerns) to deduct preferred stock dividends in computing surtaxes. Steels were unresponsive to the American Iron & Steel Institute's estimate that this week's production would reach a new record high at 101 per cent of the industry's rated capacity.

Dupont moved up more than a point and fractional progress was made by Air Reduction, Glenn Martin, Sperry, American Can, Owens-Illinois, Sears-Roebuck, American Telephone, Westen Union and Public Service of New Jersey.

Erie, most active of the rails, registered a new top for the year; also improved were Santa Fe. Southern Railway and Chesapeake & Ohio. Eastman Kodak dropped more than a point in the early proceedings.

Drop Due in Municipal And Housing Offerings By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.-New bonds scheduled for sale by municipalities and housing authorities this week will aggregate $22,071,341 compared with $82,852,775 in the previous period and a weekly average for the year to date of $23,594,837, the Daily Bond Buyer announced.

Housing authorities account for the greater part of the new funds to be raised in the week. On Wednesday 13 such bodies will come into the market for $17,297,000 of temporary loan advances, all paper to be dated November 4 and maturing from May 4 to November 17,

War Financing Given Major Attention at IBA Conclave

A Disastrous and Dishonest Tax Bill

(An Editorial)

By BASIL BREWER, Publisher The New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times

The Congress is in the process of passing the most dishonest and the most disastrous tax bill in history. It will take money directly from 43,000,000 people and, directly or indirectly, from 130,000,000.

It is not understood in the least by the people who are to pay and, with certain exceptions, NOT AT ALL by the members of Congress who are passing it.

It is, as Senator La Follette says, the "worst tax bill in history"—and HE, La Follette, has helped to make it so.

It levies taxes against "rich" which they cannot pay, and against millions of "poor" which they cannot pay.

It will make thousands of people tax-delinquents, honest people who pride themselves on paying their debts.

It will compel thousands of working people to stop paying installments on War bonds—or default on their taxes.

It takes "all" of certain income today—to guarantee there will be no such income to tax tomorrow.

It is a hydra-headed monster, half tax and half "reform," which will dry up future revenue—by destroying incentive.
It impinges on initiative and the freedoms, for which we fight this war—

BUT IT WILL NOT PAY FOR THE WAR.

For the bill, drastic and unwise as it is, does not produce enough revenue to pay the PORTION of the war bill necessary to avoid the threat of bankruptcy.

In a country at war for existence, the basis of this bill is class warfare and not war revenue.

THIS TAX BILL DOES NOT PAY FOR THE WAR—

THIS TAX BILL DOES NOT PAY FOR THE WARBUT IT MAY LOSE THE WAR.

VICIOUS PERSONAL TAX SPIRAL

The proposed bill creates 43,000,000 Federal taxpayers, 28,000,000 of whom never before have paid Federal taxes.

The tax, in lower brackets, ranges from $65, on an income of $1,500, to $860, on an income of $5,000. (Married man, no dependents—not including State income tax.)

Thousands in these brackets cannot pay these taxes which they have not expected nor prepared to pay.

Thousands of others, including the so-called rich, cannot pay except from income expected in 1943. To make THE NECESSARY DENT on the pending war bill, tax rates on 1943 income will have to be greater than the high rates of the current bill.

Thus rich and poor face a vicious spiral—HARDER

WORK to produce MORE income to pay PAST tax, with ever HEAVIER TAX DUE on CURRENT income, with which the past tax is paid.

Thus each year the taxpayer, large and small MORT-GAGES FOR THE NEXT YEAR'S TAXES the income with which he pays the tax of the year previous.

The Treasury has for years encouraged the policy of paying taxes in installments in the year following.

in the pantry of the poor, in the payroll deduction plan of the Treasury's bond sales—and in privation and prostration of people AT WAR

tion of people AT WAR.

A stark analogy of this vicious tax spiral occurs in ancient penal torture, the "water cure."

In the "water cure" the incorrigible prisoner was placed in a tank with water rising.

To keep from drowning the prisoner must pump until exhausted.

The tax spiral goes the water cure one better.

For under the proposed system, the harder the taxpayer "pumps" to get the money for the past year's tax—

THE MORE HE OWES FOR THE CURRENT YEAR.

Inevitably there comes a year when the income will not pay the past year's tax.

THIS VICIOUS TAX SPIRAL WILL END IN COM-PLETE EXHAUSTION AND DESPAIR—

UNLESS PROMPTLY RECOGNIZED AND REMEDIED.

"EXCESS PROFITS" TAXES

We have said the tax bill is a dishonest tax bill.

The public taxpayer, Federal or State, is the financial support of the state in peace or war.

He is not a "public enemy."

Whether a person or a corporation, he is entitled to fair and honest treatment.

HE SHOULD NOT BE LIED TO.

NOR SHOULD THE LAW "LIE" TO THE PUBLIC ABOUT THE TAXPAYER.

Legitimate "excess profit," when the term is truthfully used, is a term dating from the First World War.

It designated the profit which a company earned, beyond its pre-war profit rate—the profit due in theory TO WAR.

In arriving at the excess profit, the "normal profit" was deducted from the profit of the war years.

What remained was "excess," properly taxable at higher rate than "normal profit."

But in the pending bill, and in the 1941 bill, a trick device was pulled out of the hat.

"Profit" of corporations and partnerships was, in effect, declared to be that which was earned BEFORE Federal taxes were deducted.

"Excess profit" was that amount by which a company's income, BEFORE FEDERAL TAXES WERE DEDUCTED, exceeded pre-war years.

Thus, in effect, the bigger the REGULAR FEDERAL TAX (normal and surtax), the greater the "excess profit"

Under this tax trick, many companies and partnerships, making far less profit than in pre-war years, are paying "excess profits" taxes.

Most of these companies are those never engaged, and not now engaged, in production of war materials.

They are the backbone of the Nation's industry in time.

They are the backbone of the Nation's industry in time of peace.

But even a "lying tax" might be justified in war—if it produced revenue.

The 90 per cent so-called "excess profits" tax, of the pending bill, will not produce revenue.

For no corporation can afford to produce income of which 90 per cent is taken for taxes.

By destroying the incentive to earn, the earnings are destroyed.

It is simple arithmetic that whatever destroys corporate earnings in any form increases the tax burden of wage earner and small taxpayer.

SENATE TRICK 215, HOUSE 210

It was not enough to make a lying definition of "excess profit" and to tax accordingly.

A new attack on business has crept into, and remains in current House and Senate bills, Senate Section 215, House 210.

It provides that if a corporation buys or holds the controlling stock of another, it shall be PENALIZED in taxes.

Such concern shall have deducted from its "earnings credit" for "excess profits" purposes 6 per cent of the "cost" of the stock purchased or held.

The effect, of course, is to increase already heavy taxes—and to prevent purchase or sale in many instances.

IT IN NO SENSE PRODUCES REVENUE FOR WAR— IT LENDS ITSELF TO FREEZING OF BUSINESS IN WAR.

THE $25,000 CLASS

This spring the CIO in Detroit demanded limitation of income of individuals to $25,000 per year.

It was a plank of class warfare, which the A. F. of L. de-

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt supported the CIO plank.

But neither the President nor the CIO told the public if all individual income over $25,000 were confiscated ONLY 184 MILLIONS OF REVENUE WOULD BE SECURED.

This is less than enough to pay the cost of one day of war.

AND THIS AMOUNT WOULD BE SECURED FOR ONLY

ONE TAX YEAR.
To limit ANY ONE'S income, whether to $25,000 or to $500, soon freezes the income at that figure.

For there is no INCENTIVE TO PRODUCE.

A GREATER TAX BURDEN FALLS AUTOMATICALLY

ON BUSINESS AND THOSE IN LOWER BRACKETS.

The $25,000 limitation is a class warfare phoney and makes a sucker of whoever swallows it.

This "$25,000 income limit" is not in the current bill; the tax rates, however, as Chairman George states, amount to the same.

A ONE-CENT INCENTIVE

In a system of private enterprise, a democratic system, for which we are fighting this war, there are inevitable inequalities of income.

Opportunity means incentive, when incentive goes opportunity goes.

Let us see what happens, in an extreme illustration, to the dollar of one of the so-called rich.

Assume this "rich" person is controlling owner of a corporation which is in the "excess profits" class.

The "excess profits" tax takes 90 per cent, leaving the corporation 10 cents per $1.00.

The corporation pays out the 10 cents in dividends to the controlling stockholder who is in the "higher tax brackets."

Of the 10 cents paid to the controlling stockholder, his personal Federal tax, in the highest bracket, may well run 90 per cent.

The controlling stockholder then is left 1 cent or less of a dollar of the "excess profit" of the corporation he controls. Yet even this tax policy, confiscatory and dishonest as it is, would be justifiable if IT WOULD HELP TO PAY FOR

AND WIN THE WAR.

But it will and does have the opposite effect—IT DRIES

UP "EXCESS PROFITS" AS A SOURCE OF REVENUE.

No system of private enterprise CAN EXIST on incentive of ONE CENT per dollar of profit.

THIS PORTION OF CORPORATIONS' AND INDI-VIDUALS' INCOME JUST FADES OUT OF THE PICTURE.

And here again the wage earner must carry a portion of the extra tax load the "25,000 dollar" bracket should be encouraged to carry.

This is well known to those who sing the class hate songs.

They are well aware their attacks on the taxpayer of the upper brackets do not help, but throw a greater burden, on the lower income groups.

But their purposes are political, not revenue for war.

THE "TWO WARS"

Are business and the people, rich and poor, unable to pay for the WAR?

NO, they are ABLE and WILLING to pay—WANT to pay.
They are willing to pay FAR MORE than the present bill asks.

They are willing to pay WHATEVER THEY HAVE TO —AND CAN—to pay for and win the war.

BUT THE ADMINISTRATION, and a Washington coterie, are trying to FIGHT TWO WARS at the same time.

One, the war for existence against the AXIS, the other THE CLASS WAR, THE HATE WAR, which divided—and divides—America as it never before was divided.

BOTH WARS, OF COURSE, CANNOT BE WON.

The class warfare sets class against class—for political effect.

Its weapon is propaganda—it knows nothing about PRODUCTION either of WEAPONS or REVENUE.

It understands neither the "freedom" about which it talks, nor private enterprise in democracy, which it taxes.

IN SUCH CONFUSED AND CONTRADICTORY HANDS the tax pendulum swings—

FROM CONFISCATION OF INCOME OF BUSINESS, which destroys the income—
TO SUDDEN LOADING OF TAX ON THE PEOPLE WHICH THEY CANNOT PAY.

FOR HIGHER—NOT LOWER TAXES

THIS IS NOT AN APPEAL FOR LOWER TAXES.
THIS IS AN APPEAL FOR HIGHER TAXES—for corporations and workers—FOR ALL THE PEOPLE, rich or poor—

For taxes as high as the country, corporations, workers and ALL people can stand—as high as humanly possible.

But it is a plea for HONESTY in taxes.

IT'S A PLEA FOR TAXES FOR REVENUE ONLY—NOT FOR POLITICS OR CLASS WARFARE.

TO WIN THIS WAR WE MUST PAY FOR IT.
WE CAN'T FIGHT THE CLASS WAR—AND THE AXIS

AT THE SAME TIME.

We can't tax business or people dishonestly and expect them to produce willingly.

We can't confiscate INCOME in democracy without confiscating and destroying those PRODUCERS of income —INITIATIVE and REWARD.

IMPENDING FINANCIAL DISASTER

The Federal debt at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1942, was 72½ billion.

Apply the revenue of the present proposed bill to the money already projected for war and otherwise, and the debt at June 30, 1943, will stand at approximately 136 billion.

No one can project the increase in Federal debt for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944.

Expenditures already planned and appropriated stand to exceed by far the 80 billion to be spent in the current fiscal year.

Even with the increased revenue of 6 billion the Treasury asks, over the bill now pending, 1944 Federal deficit will exceed 1943 deficit of 63 billion.

Federal 1944 deficit may well exceed 100 billion, to make the total Federal debt 250 billion.

A CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE WOULD PLACE 1944
FEDERAL DEBT (June 30, 1944) at 225 to 250 BILLION DOLLARS.

TOTAL NATIONAL WEALTH, including public property and not deducting for State and local government debt, was estimated at 350 billion dollars in 1940.

Thus the FEDERAL debt stands to be on June 30, 1944, 65 to 70 per cent of the total national wealth of 1940.

Seldom, if ever, in the history of the world has a nation, large or small, ever contended with such a debt in proportion to total wealth.

Great Britain, in three years of war, has spent for war 40 billion dollars.

In three years of war, the United States may well spend, under present plans, 200 to 300 billion dollars.

THERE ARE NO YARDSTICKS TO INDICATE WHETHER OR NOT SUCH A DEBT AS THE ONE WE FACE CAN BE PAID.

Nor can we know the war will end with the Federal fiscal year of June 30, 1944.

VERILY THIS IS NO TIME FOR ANY MOVE WHAT-EVER—FOR REVENUE OR OTHERWISE—

NOT DIRECTED SOLELY AND SINGLY TO WINNING THE WAR.

A TAX PLAN TO FIGHT AND WIN THE WAR

To win this war we must have a tax bill FOR REVENUE ONLY—

A bill which will encourage every corporation, business and individual—to PRODUCE TAXABLE INCOME—NOT DISCOURAGE IT.

It must eliminate dishonest tax labels and phoney formulae, which insult the taxpayer's intelligence and his honor in the war.

THE PEOPLE MUST BE TOLD THE TRUTH about what they have to pay in "sweat" (they know already about the blood and tears) TO WIN THIS WAR.

If, in addition to all other taxes, this means a "SALES" or "PURCHASE" TAX, ADOPT IT—

BY WHATEVER NAME, TO THE TREASURY.

"SMELLS THE SWEETER."

Increase the normal and surtax rates on corporations, but make the "excess profits tax" an honest—not a phoney

LAR SOURCE of revenue, not a device to stifle revenue and fool the people.

Make the tax on the higher personal brackets such as

Thus the "excess profits" tax is made a bona fide REGU-will leave an INCENTIVE to PRODUCE HIGH BRACKET INCOME TAXES.

Eliminate all such trick schemes as No. 215, in the current Senate bill, which penalize, in the name of taxing, legitimate expansion efforts of corporations or persons.

Tax the big union war chests like any other corporation's income, relaxing THE PRESSURE these big chests are exerting on a Government at war.

Eliminate the "horse trading" in Congress which creates such scandals as the "depletion allowances" in the present bill.

Let Senate, House, and the President realize the MEANING of this war of survival and rise to the full stature of the country's total crisis—in tax and all legislation.

FINALLY, make immediate transition TO A PAY AS

WE GO Federal tax plan on all personal taxes, effective for the entire year 1943.

This only can be done by "forgiving" a year of tax charges—to gain A SOLVENT TAX-PAYING NATION.

Do this for the small taxpayer, to enable him to pay

Potomac Falls To Normal After Record Flood

Bridges and Roads Open; Loss Estimate Ranges to 5 Million

With unofficial estimates of property damage caused by last week's flood ranging between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000, an accurate report was expected today from Supt. of Police Edward J. Kelly. Loses were expected to be considerably less than results from the 1923 flood, author-

The Weather Bureau announced this morning that the river, which rose to an all-time high of 17.56 feet above mean low water early Saturday, had returned to normal today after dropping 10 feet in a 36-hour period ending last night. The Wisconsin avenue gauge in Georgetown read 4.6 feet above mean low today at 8:15 a.m. Shortly before 8 p.m. yesterday the river had fallen below flood stage at that point, where 7 feet above mean low is considered flood stage.

Three Precincts Report. Incomplete reports from three precincts this morning placed the damage in Georgetown, along portions of the Anacostia River and along the Potomac between Rock Creek Park and Fifteenth street N.W. at $388,300. The seventh precinct estimated property damage at more than $376,000 between the river area from Chain Bridge to Rock Creek Park. Included in this figure was the washout of the B. & O. roadbed along the C. & O. Canal, where two freight cars were thrown into the swirling Potomac. While the harbor precinct had not completed its survey, an officer said damage was slight along the Washington Channel water front. The third precinct reported the major damage suffered in its area was to the Washington Gas Light Co. pumping station at Twenty-sixth and G streets N.W., which was completely surrounded by water at the height of the flood Saturday.

Only a few roadways in the vicinity of the Water Gate and East Potomac Park remained closed this morning, while in Maryland and Virginia virtually all main and secondary routes were reopened. The Highway Bridge was reopened about noon yesterday when the Potomac short time later Memorial highway between Highway Bridge and Alexandria was opened to traffic.

Debris Moved From Road. National Capital Parks employes abored through the forenoon clearing masses of logs, crate and other debris from Memorial highway. Home owners along the C. & O. Canal were busy through the day digging out from under tons of mud and debris left in the wake of the flood. Many had removed part of their belongings to higher ground. At the Sycamore Island Club most of the property had been moved to second floors where it was above flood level. Canoes there and at of mud left behind in the upper Potomac area ranged from 6 inches to a foot. Park Police reported only minor washouts along roads which had

Residents Are Returning For the Winter Season

Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr Opens Her House: Has Mrs. Lawrence Townsend as Guest

Many Washington residents, those who have been prominent in official circles during other administrations, are returning to the Capital for the winter season. Some of the larger homes in fashionable neighborhoods have been closed, but many others have been kept open throughout the summer because of one or more members of the family staying home to continue their war efforts.

Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr closed her house immediately after the death of Mr. Carr, former United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, early in the summer. She has been in the North through the hot weather and came back to Washington 10 days ago and opened her house for the winter. She has with her for a few days Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, who is en route from her summer home on Schroon Lake to her winter place in Florids. Mr. Townsend is making the trip South by motor and will not stop in Washington. Mrs. Townsend was here in the spring for a week or 10 days during her migration northward and during these few days, as then, her wide circle of friends are entertaining her, very

If you happen to have been in Washington back in the early Twenties, you'll remember with nostalgia that the gayest parties of that now almost fabulous era were given in the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts avenue. The late Mrs. Thomas Walsh, mother of Mrs. Edward B. McLean, was chatelaine then. Bejeweled and hospitable and fun loving, she gave her guests the best in food, wines, good music and good company that an opulent city had to offer. Her tea dances were the high light of many a gay winter's afternoon. The appointments of her dinner table were the talk of a luxuryloving and discerning society. She was then not a young woman, but she still loved to dance-and did with considerable grace and dignity. However, she felt very strongly that she did not want her gentlemen guests to have the feeling that for the sake of good manners they must dance with their hostess at least once during each party. So she politely declined ever to dance with a guest—and hired herself a dancing master with whom she danced at every party . . . A far cry from those parties is the present busy setup of the Walsh mansion. It's now occupied by the District Chapter of the American Red Cross. That resplendent Aubusson - covered gilt furniture, the lush carpets, the brocade hangings all have been replaced by sterner stuff. Office desks and businesslike chairs fill the downstairs rooms. Typewriters click busily where before a soft-shaded lamp or a bowl of fragrant flowers occupied the same space. Only the background remains intact. The same silken brocade—now faded—covers the walls. The same ornate golden cupids decorate the side lighting fixtures—and the same rococo wood carvings festoon the cornices of those high-ceilinged rooms. The same elevator plods its way to the slowly as ever.

On the second floor, in the suite of rooms that Mrs. Walsh herself once occupied are now held the lecture courses and practice in nursing procedure for the Red Cross Nurses' Aide course. Stern hospital beds, baby cribs and hospital equipment make rather an incongruous picture against that background of things now past. But the class of nurses' aides probably never even think of this. They are far too interested and far too busy with what they're doing to care whether the walls are of brocade or whitewash. The rooms are clean and roomy and adequate for what they're trying to learn.

And the Red Cross isn't going to put out any good money that can be used for far more vital needs to make a perfectly good house look more like a hospitaljust for practice. When we interviewed Mrs. Hugh W. Rowan (who is chairman of the Red Cross Volunteer Nurses' Aides) in these very rooms—we made some

Because of the transportation problem there's a crying need for nurses' aides in the Southeast sectionand Mrs. Rowan says that very soon the Red Cross hopes to have a classroom for instruction and training there to staff those hospitals. This work is entirely voluntary.

and before you

After the course is completed you are required to give at least 150 hours' service a year. You can choose the hospital most convenient to you-provided they need nurses' aides-and you must pay for your own uniforms-the total outlay of which (exclusive of shoes) is approximately $10. And if you become a nurses' aide you'll be filling one of the most urgent and important needs of the entire war front-and you will have gained a vital knowledge of human care that can never be taken from you. Mrs. Rowan herself seems the perfect example of a good nurses' aide. She's neat and pretty and efficient. Her voice is low and pleasing. She's the daughter of an Army officer, and the wife of one, too. Her husband, a colonel in the Chemical Warfare Service, is now overseas and she and her two children are making their present home with her parents, Maj. Gen. W. A. Bethel and Mrs. Bethel, in Chevy Chase. It's right near the Chevy Chase Club and on these fine autumn afternoons she misses those tennis games she used to play with her husband at the club. She's a good tennis player and won several tournaments at the club, but she hasn't much time for that now. Whenever she does, she finds Daughter Frances (who goes to Potomac School here) a pretty good opponent. She loves Chevy Chase but she's finding transportation difficult just now-so like every one else in Washingtonshe's apartment hunting in town.

The baby birth rate for the District of Columbia, based on the Vital Statistics bulletin of the Census Bureau shows that the District birth rate increased from 17.8 in 1935 to 23.1 in 1940 . . . and the scale is still rising. In the Census Year, 1940, Washington had the highest birth rate of the 12 largest cities in the United States. Think of it! Hundreds of brand-new, beautiful babies utterly unconcerned about government edicts or fashions, ready to say "GOO" to the whole War Production Board!

They're smart, these babies! Cuffless trousers and short skirts don't worry them a bit. They know they'll all be able to find dashing outfits at the Esther Shop, because we are experts in baby fashions that observe all the government restrictions and still manage to keep within the most exacting budget. Our production line on clothes is keeping right up with the babies.

Soviets Dictate Terms Of Battle Along Rzhev Front

Nazis Use Up Reserves In Order to Cling to Hammered Positions

(Sixth of a Series.)

By LELAND STOWE, War Correspondent of The Star and

Chicago Daily News. WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE RZHEV FRONT.—The battle for Rzhev, which has been going on for more than six weeks now, is a battle of attrition. The Russians hold the initiative almost everywhere and the Germans hold very strongly fortified positions in the city itself. The Nazis are being compelled frequently to bring in new reserves in order to cling to their incessantly hammered positions and their troops, according to the testimony of new captured prisoners with whom I have talked, are of surprise in this assault with great

Yet it illus-shambles of bombed and burned trates the strategy and imposes of the battle for Rzhev and the saw fires which Russian bombers dictates the strategy and imposes the terms of battle most of the time. Because they are attacking highly fortified positions with Rzhev itself in the heart of the line, the Russians are not rushing head-on like a bull. They are simply continually gnashing and gnawing at German positions around Rzhev, biting off a piece here and then biting off another piece there perhaps many miles farther along on the arc of this front. Russians Smash Sector.

When the Germans have another full division knocked out, it hurts them at this stage of the war. The end of September, by a series of perfectly executed maneuvers, the Russian troops completely smashed the Germans' 87th sector on the northern bank of the Volga above Rzhev. The Germans lost nearly 6,000 men in casualties and a large number of soldiers taken prisoner. Previous to the Russian attack the 87th Division had recently been reinforced by 3,000 fresh troops. In some respects Rzhev is another caught part of a German division success; so much so that the Soviets

Nevertheless, Rzhev is almost Unique thus far in this war because this is one place on the 2000 mile in the Soviet press. Vet it illust the standard makes Rzhev a very hard nut to crack yet the Russians keep wearing down the Germans bit by bit in one story and the another.

Ring Is Closing. In Rzhev and along this front the Germans still enjoy numerical superiority in both planes and tanks and that greatly complicates the problem for the Russian offensive. Probably it makes an all-out, sustained general offensive impossible at present.

But the Red Army generals know their terrain and their forces and give every indication of knowing exactly what they can or cannot do with the forces at their disposal. So the Germans' positions are being hitten off systematically and the steel ring closes slowly but ever tighter around Rzhev.

On October 2, the Germans tried to recapture the offensive in one sector of this front at the moment we were visiting it. They had used their bombers repeatedly and attacked with great vigor. But in one sector alone this cost them 700 men and 20 tanks and their troops were driven back without gain.

This means that the Germans in Rzhev are getting a big mouthful of what they have administered to other cities and with their only railroad feedline from Vyasma now severed, the Nazis are certain to have an increasingly unhappy time trying to hold on to what they have still got of Rzhev.

Today the war along the Rzhev front impresses you as remarkably like what the war of the western front in the First World War was for several years. This too is a front where the defenders are strongly entrenched, where every natural position is fortified to the and where the opposing forces still are so nearly equal in strength that a major break-through can hardly be expected. But this attrition process of the next few weeks or months will be the bitterest kind of medicine for the Germans to take.

To Invoke Divine Aid

The Rev. Louis O'Leary Compares Physicians To Mission of Church

Prayers for doctors in the military service who "share all the heartaches, all the suffering and dangers of our fighting men at home and abroad" were offered at Georgetown University yesterday morning by alumni of the school of medi-

The occasion was the university's observance of the feast day of St. Luke, patron saint of physicians, at which the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, pontificated at the solemn celebration of a gold mass in Dahlgreen Chapel. Nurses from Georgetown Hospital, as well as medical men of the armed services, attended the mass.

The Rev. David V. McCauley, S. J., dean of medicine, arranged the first Georgetown observance of this kind last year, the country then being threatened by the war in Europe. Now with the United States engaged in hostilities, yesterday's mass served as a means to invoke divine protection and assistance in behalf of medical men serving and seeking to serve their Government. At the conclusion of the mass, the apostolic blessing was imparted on the assemblage. Officers of Mass.

Assisting priest at the mass was the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, B. J., president and rector of Georgetown University. The honorary dea-cons were the Very Rev. Vincent Keelan, S. J., vice provincial of the New York-Maryland province of the Jesuit order, and the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of the university.

Officers of the mass were the Rev Charles A. Foley, S. J., deacon; the Rev. Daniel O'C. McFadden, S. J., subdeacon, and the master of ceremonies was the Very Rev. Msgr. Leo Binz of the Apostolic Delega-

In his sermon, the Rev. Louis O'Leary, O. P., of Catholic University, preached from the text of St. Paul's letter to the Ephesians: "For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of this world of darkness, against the spirit of wickedness in high places." Emulates True Apostle.

Dr. O'Leary, who is professor of homiletics at Catholic University drew a close comparison between the crusading spirit and mission of the church and the medical profession. "As the physician struggles with the enigma of human misery," he said, "giving of his knowledge, time and life itself, with no thought or complaint about the sacrifices he makes, he certainly emulates the spirit of a true apostle. "These are the marks of character the doctor needs and perfects in a normal lifetime. But today," he warned, "principalities and powers and the spirits of wickedness in high places have combined to undermine the whole of human life.

"Thus today the doctor particularly must be apostolic in his zeal to avert disaster for his fellowmen. He must be catholic in his willingness to accept any task that will aid the cause of his beleaguered nation. He must be holy as every warrior is holy who fights bravely and cleanly in defending what he believes to be a just cause. And he must be one with all physicianswith all Americans who sincerely give their credo to the truth that right must conquer might, that godliness must triumph over godless-

Allied Bombers Build For 24-Hour Raids On Nazi Territory

Hammering of Germany Shared by Eight Types Of Heavy Planes

By PETER MASEFIELD.

Aeroplane." LONDON, Oct. 19 (N.A.N.A.) .-Great progress has been made in bomber development by Great Britain and the United States during the last two years. This is manifest in the great night raids on Germany by the bomber command and in the fine daylight attacks by the Boeing and Consolidated bombers of the United States Army Eighth Air Force against targets in France.

By means of varying developments in the design of bombers which specially suit them for night or day bombing the United Nations are building up a 24-hour offensive against the enemy. Much remains to be done but the foundation is being truly laid. Eight types of bombers share the hammering of Germany by day and by night, and although their functions to some extent are interchangeable they are divisible generally into those designed primarily for night bombing and those designed chiefly for daylight bombing. The categories are:

Night bombers: Lancaster, Halitress. B-24 Liberator, A-20 Boston and the Mosquito.

Speed and Capacity.

The Avro-Lancaster is possibly the most formidable all-around heavy bomber in the world today. With four of the famous Rolls-Royce nearly 1,300 horsepower, it has a top speed of nearly 300 miles per hour at 21,000 feet with a full load, which can be up to 15,800 pounds of bombs, including the new 8,000turrets protect the Lancaster, in the qualities to pierce the enemy's de- long range and can outpace Gerneath. Although they do not house ing from England, and called by the tude. We shall hear much more the heavy half-inch guns which make the American bombers so deadly, nevertheless the 10 0.303s of the Lancaster have many victories over German fighters to their credit.

The Lancaster combines speed with a heavy load capacity and is the easiest bomber to build which has yet been produced.

The Handley-Page Halifax is only a few miles an hour slower than the Lancaster and can carry a total of 13,000 pounds of bombs, also including the 8,000-pounders. An outstanding feature is the great variety of bombs which can be carried in its wide fuselage and in the bomb compartments in the wings. Almost any combination of bombs can be stowed, from light incendiaries to the biggest made. The Halifax's robust construction led to its selection for service in the Middle East as well as England.

The Short Stirling is the biggest bomber at present operating in any Its loaded weight is 71,000 pounds and its bomb load, up to 17,000 pounds, is the greatest

Has Deadly Aim.
Although its bomb load is small compared with the British "heavies," the 5,000 pounds of bombs carried the B-17F can be aimed with deadly effect.

Newer than the Boeing, the Consolidated B-23D, known to the British as the Liberator, has much the same qualities. Turbo-superchargers enable it to be flown at great heights. It carries a bomb load of 6,000 pounds, is heavily defended by 0.5-inch guns, and plenty of them.

Operations by B-17s and B-24s beyond fighter escort range over Germany itself are awaited breathless interest by air tacticians throughout the world. The often cloudy skies of Europe are not so suitable for the most advantageous up to 17,000 pounds, is the greatest yet appearing in action.

Schools Must Train Leaders in Wartime, G. W. Students Told

British Embassy Official Tells of His Country's Experience at Meeting

Universities have an important b to do in wartime, M. E. sathurst, second secretary of the British Embassy and legal adviser to the British Information Services, told students of George Washington University yesterday at a meeting in the Hall of Government, sponsored by the Jewish Student Foundation.

A former law professor at Cambridge University and the University of Chicago, Mr. Bathurst said of citizenship and develop powers it is the duty of universities to train technicians and leaders, to establish the habit of intelligent thinking, and to develop critical

Reviews Britain's Experience. The Embassy secretary reviewed the experience of Britain. Seven out of every 10 boys and girls be-tween the ages of 14 and 17 are doing war work in Britain, he declared. Two out of every three persons between the ages of 14 and 65 are working full time in the armed forces, civil defense or war industry. This is equivalent, he estimated, to mobilization of 60,000,-000 people in the United States. In addition, large numbers of voluntary war workers are running canteens and nurseries or billeting war workers. Despite this total mobilization universities in England have been repeatedly encouraged by the government to continue their work, Mr. Bathurst pointed out.

More than a quarter of Britain's the armed forces or industry since the war began and enrollment has dropped from 50,000 students in 1937 to about 36,000 today, but the universities of England, Scotland and Wales are carrying on, he said. Utilitarian teaching is the rule at all universities now, Mr. Bathurst

"Young men and women now no longer go to the university to serve purposes of their own but in order that their learning may serve the national effort." "Philosophy, literature and his-tory have given way to physics, chemistry, mechanics and engineering, which are now called 'scarcity subjects' because knowledge of them is necessary to the war effort and there are not enough men up in them.

Mr. Bathurst called the training of leaders "as important a task as the training of technical experts." "It follows," he said, "that the university student must clearly un-derstand all the duties and rights of judgment in the great moral issues which always lie behind political controversies and decisions.

"If, as is the claim, the fate of the future lies in the power of youth, it is vital that youth should be fully equipped and inspired to deal with that future."

34 Days Adrift on a Raft

This epic of war in the South Pacific was told to Robert Trumbull by Harold F. Dixon, bomberpilot and aviation chief mechanic's mate, U.S. N., in the current best seller, "The Raft," which is now being brought to you in serial form, of which this is a chapter. Dixon-with Gene Aldrich, aviation radioman and gunner, and Tony Pastula. aviation ordnance man - was forced to land a scout bomber in the ocean when its gas gave out on the evening of January 16, 1942. The craft sank almost immediately, but they managed to escape on an 8x4-foot rubber raft. They were without provisions and with scant equipment. Yet this heroic United States Navy trio managed to survive, battling an inferno of seas and weather for 34 days over a course that covered about a thousand miles until they finally reached safety on an obscure atoll. The nervetingling details of this extraordinary experience are being related here as told to Robert Trumbull.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Evening of the 32d day we got a shift of wind to the north. Night fell ominously. The sky was dark and threatening; the sea turned from gray to black. As we tumbled along uneasily our way was lit by jagged streaks of lightning, each flash followed by a rolling thunder clap like cannon fire. The air was heavy and stirred sluggishhad lost their frenzy but still rose high in powerful surges of slowly expanding force.

In the weird twilight the sky was an awesome spectacle, foreboding ill. I called it to the attention of the boys.

There were several layers of clouds, and each layer seemed to be traveling in a different direction. This was beyond the experience of any of us, and we could not imagine what it portended.

We suffered from lack of circulation. We suffered from lack of circulation. We had so little flesh that our veins an arm. were drawn across our bones. When we sat up, our blood would move, but this exposed us to the wind and spray. We chilled easily, so that after a moment we would be forced to lie down again in search of warmth.

Thus we passed the night. It

With morning, we saw that the sky was almost solidly overcast. We waited in vain for the sun to come out and warm us. Everything was gray, except our yellow raft. Its giddy color on the muttering, gloomy sea accentuated its incongruity.

The wind now had shifted to the northeast again, and was driving us along at a lively clip. This was more to our desire, but we couldn't be sure where we were, and couldn't have done anything about it if we my temples. I couldn't breathe had known. The waves in the last tip-over, so we took off all our clothes, mopped the bottom of the boat and wrung over the side, like dead men except for their loud repeating until the raft was dry.

> Worries About Clothes. As we finished this tiresome chore the sun appeared, for the first time that day. In our chilled condition the rays felt good. "Let's take a sun bath before we put our clothes on," I suggested. The boys assented readily, and we lay against sides to rest, for we were tired as well as cold. We "Whatever it means," Tony said, stretched our clothes across the thwarts to dry. After a while Tony spoke nervously. "Don't you think we'd better put on our clothes?"

I wasn't looking forward to it. They were damp. "Well, it's pretty rough, you know," Tony argued. "The boat's liable to go over on us again." The wind had risen and the waves was cold, and we squeezed ourselves were coming to a boil. The raft was bobbling like an orange rind. Meeting of Thursday Night Club Held at Home of Peggy and Leonard Great Success

As Reported by Arthur H. Deute

The "cook's night out" dinners which are the Club De Jeudi's right exist, are moving into their first fall season with enthusiasm steadily on the upgrade. In case one doesn't know about this interesting club, here is the story: What with the high cost of entertaining and with the shortage on gasoline making riding about really out of the question, the four young married couples which make up the club's membership worked out the plan of meeting, turn about, at the homes of the members—four of them. And at these dinner meetings, held on Thursday nights, first one and then another of the masculine members of the club is the chef, while the fond and affectionate wife serves.

Last Thursday night the company assembled at the home of Peggy nd Leonard. And this time there was a genuine and prolonged surprise. is the guests sat down to dinner, first one and then another noted that n laying the table Peggy had overlooked placing the silverware. The best punishment is removal from the presence of other children. Make the separation long enough to allow the loneliness to sink in so it will be remembered as an unpleasant experience. Half an hour won't help much. Make it a halfday, and if that does not help make it the whole day, and don't try to make the isolation pleasant

But punishment is not cure. We must consider what makes him so belligerent. What makes him want to push and poke and punch? Study his health first. Is he oversize? That might mean trouble. A thorough examination of such a child often discloses the reason for his feeling so put-on that he must fight

Look at the conditions of home. During these hard years many famllies are crowded. to other people makes children and grown people irritable. Too many people telling a child what to do, or telling his mother what to do about him, makes a child pugnacious. If such conditions press upon the child try having him out of the house as much as possible under the care of some understanding person. Sometimes there is a helpful relative or neighbor, or an older child who can help in this.

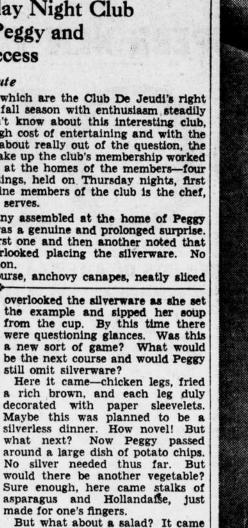

A tired child is always irritable. If this fighting spirit is one who does not get enough sleep, enough quiet, enough food of the right kind, he is uncomfortable in body and consequently in mind and he tries to relieve himself by punching it out.

Usually a healthy child, well cared for, gets over this stage early. The occasional one holds on to it and makes trouble for himself and his

When you have had the specialist see the child, after you have done all you can do by isolating him talking to him, allowing him to feel the inconvenience of his behavior, give him a chance to pound out his driving energy on something that does not suffer in consequence. Some little boys have more enrgy than they can use in a day that energy is not used in hard day, chores and the like, it will drive itself out by forcing the child act, using his muscles. That is thy he punches and pushes and okes other children.

Dr. Johnston of Vineland Training School, the wisest teacher of disturbed children we have, gives such children a mallet or a hammer. big block, like the stump of an ak, or a butcher's block, and lets Him thump and pound it until he feels he has had enough. He gives him broad-headed tacks if he is a Iftle boy, nails if he is bigger.

The point is: Use the driving energy purposefully if possible; if ot, use it in pounding, hammering, kicking a football. But use it.

Well, now, that was cunning. What would the dessert dish be? Had Peggy and Leonard worked out an appropriate dessert? Of course it could be nuts and raisins-prob-

Canning Apples

Canning apples for this winfold advantage just now-it aids in assuring a well-stocked pantry at a time when food supplies for the civilian are a real problem: it releases the commercially canned stocks to our armed forces and Allies, and it prevents food wastage, since because of emergency cold-storage conditions many apples will waste this fall unless used up

"In the fall (October and November) it is advantageous to buy apples by the bushel. Fresh from the trees, they keep well with ordinary care as to temperature and moisture." says 'Apples: Their Home Use." Apples packed raw tend to

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

There was a family in Boston which had known the meaning of Alcott, they waited for him to speak being poor. The father, Amos Alcott, of his success. At length little Abby, was a kindly man and was well the youngest, asked, "Did people versed in books, but he had failed pay you?" as a "money-maker." He had taught school and had given lectures, but had earned barely enough to feed and house his family—and the food supply often had been too small. The Alcott family was made up of four children, besides the father and mother. All the children were girls, and their names were Anna,

Louisa, Elizabeth and Abby. Excitement ran high in the household one night. Answering a knock visited the household. Now and at the door, Mrs. Alcott found that her husband had come home from Louisa May Alcott and sometimes a long trip to the west. He had she went to his home to see him. gone away to give lectures, and it was expected that he would bring home a good sum of money. The four girls heard the knocking, and tumbled out of bed to follow their mother to the door. Aside from their happiness over seeing their father again, they were anx-ious to know how much money he Read Uncle Ray in The Junior Star Every Sunday.

Names in the News

Although the WAVES have been highly publicized since the first authorized women's corps in the United States Navy was organized in July, 1942, many readers continue to ask for the origin of the name: "Are they called WAVES because they are being trained for sea duty?" The officers and enlisted women of the WAVES will not go to sea. They will serve only in the United

Navy men for combat duty. WAVES is the appropriate name formed from the initials of Women Appointed for Volunteer Emergency

The great island of

The new Raft film is concerned with what is possibly now the least known war front. The continuing battle for Norway is the dramatic content of "Edge of Darkness." featuring Ann Sheridan and Errol "Air Force," made under general supervision of officers of the American Air Forces covers the entire American effort in the Far East. "Mrs. Minerver," from M-G-M, was primarily a story of England's citizenry in war. It is currently leading all Hollywood products at the box office and doubtless will go down as 1942's highest grosser.

Columbia made excellent use of Canada's part in the world conflict with "The Invaders." "Mission to Moscow," soon to be filmed by Warners from Ambassador Davies' best-selling diary, will undertake to tell graphically and truthfully of the great Russian contribution to the Film Foreign Locales. Far-away Iceland received attention in "Atlantic Convoy," with John Beal in the leading role, and the war of shipping against raiding U-boats is being daringly screened in "action in the North Atlantic." Humphrey Bogart takes over the leading role in that one.

The fifth column in various countries also has come in for much attention on production charts 'Across the Pacific," with Bogart Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet practically the same cast of "The Maltese Falcon," memorable hit of last season, resuming their old association, is one such picture that is doing big business these days. Soon will come "Watch on the Rhine," also in the espionage category, with Bette Davis featured and Paul Lukas repeating the role he played in the stage version.

Subversive forces that have wrecked many nations in recent months are used to telling advantage in "Edge of Darkness" and in the soon - to - be - released "Casaplanca," which shows its audiences war from the comparative security of the Moroccan coast of North Africa, far from where Rommel, the Fox, has his lair. "The Immortal Sergeant," featuring Henry Fonda, Thomas Mitchell and Maureen O'Hara in leading roles, is concerned primarily with war in the Libvan desert.

No phase or locate of the big conflict is being neglected, it would seem. "Air Force" has sequences in the Hawaiian Islands, at Wake, in the Philippines and on the Australian mainland. In "So Proudly We Hail," Paramount will record the heroism of American forces at Bataan, with Claudette Colbert as the lady in distress.

Paramount also plans a picture called "Five Graves to Cairo." which will cover the desert war front, while Loretta Young, Alan Ladd and William Bendix will be seen soon at this same studio in "China," story of the Flying Tigers and their remarkable achievements in the

HOLLYWOOD'S YOUNGEST RECRUITS TAKEN IN HAND-Getting their first opportunity at screen fame are two Chinese tots whom Deanna Durbin must "mother" in her new Universal thrilling tale of present-day China, "Forever Yours." The children are Richard Wong and Mae Louie, two of a group of Chinese youngsters recruited by Producer Bruce Manning for authenticity's sake. Deanna sings, but this time her assignment is primarily dramatic. Among her songs is the world-known "Rock-a-Bye, Baby," which Deanna does in Chinese lyrics, and these are two of the little players to whom she sings in the role
