Prompt Action By Roosevelt Is Expected

Measure Provides 25 Billion Increase In Annual Collections

BULLETIN.

President Roosevelt hopes to take action on the new tax bill before tomorrow midnight so that the increased excise taxes it calls for may go into effect November 1, he told a press conference late today.

By the Associated Press. Congress completed 10 months' work on a gigantic new wartime tax bill today and sent it to President Roosevelt for his expected prompt approval. report which previously had been House. Senate action was on a voice vote, with no opposition ex-

As it went to the President, the bill contained stiff increases in the rates of the regular income taxes on both individuals and corporations plus a new 5 per cent victory levy against all personal income above $624 yearly.

Boost Taxes 25 Billion Yearly. Geared to produce new revenue estimated at $6.881,000,000 by the Treasury and $7,900,000,000 by Congressional committees, the new hill would boost collections of direct taxes close to $25,000,000,000 yearly. In addition, about $1,750,000,000 would be taken from taxpayers and returned to them in the form of current credits for debt payments or in post-war rebate. Imposition of the victory impost on the regular income levies would make about 43,000,000 persons subject to direct Federal taxation, as compared with the previous high water mark of 24,000,000 filing income tax returns

The normal income tax rates on individuals would be increased from 4 to 6 per cent and the present surtax schedule of 6 to 77 per cent raised to range from 13 to 82 per cent, the maximum starting at $200,000. Exemptions would be cut from $750 to $500 for single persons. $1,500 to $1,200 for married couples and the credit for dependents reduced from $400 to $350. Corporations Feel Increase.

Corporations would feel the weight of a 9 per cent increase, from 31 to 40 per cent, in their taxes on normal and surtax income, with the levy on excess profits boosted from a graduated scale of 35 to 60 per cent to a flat rate of 90 per cent. A 10 per cent postwar rebate provision was attached to the latter rate.

Miscellaneous actions would freeze Social Security payroll taxes at their present levels for 1943, place a 3 per cent levy on express and freight shipments and boost excise taxes on liquor, beer, wines, eigarettes, cigars, lubricating oil, slot machines, photographic apparatus and train, bus and plane fares. The two who stood in opposition to the bill in the House were Representatives Hinshow, Republican, of California, and Robsion, Republican, of Kentucky. Representative Hinshaw said later that he was opposed to the 5 per cent "victory tax" embodied in the measure, while Representative Robsion expressed belief that there were "several matters" in the bill which should be changed.

Closed Shop Contract Voided by NLRB on Conspiracy Grounds

First Opinion of Kind Holds Employer, Union Schemed to Oust Help

By the Associated Press.

The National Labor Relations Board set aside a closed shop contract today, for the first time, on grounds of fraud and conspiracy.

The board found that employes who had sought the protection of the union lost their jobs after the contract was signed, and the union then provided men to replace them.

Harry Feinberg, reconditioner and packager of wines in New York, the employer, was ordered to reinstate and pay back wages to eight workers and to offer reinstatement to two others after their discharge from military service.

Applied for Union Status.

The employes, in February, 1941, signed application cards of Local No. 1, AFL Distillery, Rectifying and Wine Workers International Union. The local's business manager, Benjamin Press, then obtained a closedshop contract with Mr. Feinberg.

After questioning some of his employes, Mr. Feinberg paid them off and told them, one employe testified. if he had to "tie up with the union" and "pay union wages," he would "rather have union help" than his present employes.

The employes never were actually admitted to the union. Instead, the union provided others to replace

The board said the closed shop proviso of the act normally would empower the union to enter a contract when the employes had signed the cards, and that such conditions would operate as a defense for Mr. Feinberg.

Union Held in Bad Faith.

"But," said the board, "the proviso was not intended, nor may be construed, to legalize a conspiracy between the designated agent and the employer fraudulently to deprive of employment all the employes, including those upon whose designations the agent's authority depends.'

The board added that the employes had been assured by the union they were "as good as in," but it was evident "that when the parties executed the agreement it was not intended that the employes should be admitted to membership in Local No. 1 and that the purport of the agreement was to close the shop against them and to distribute their jobs to non-employe members communications officials decided not

General in Command Of Each Responsible Directly to Hitler

LONDON, Oct. 20 (AP).-Germany now has four army groups operating in Russia, each commanded by a general who is directly responsible to Adolf Hitler, as a result of his military reorganization, a British source said today.

The four army groups and their commanders were listed as: North (Leningrad)—Field shal Georg von Kuechler. Center (Moscow)-Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge. South (Stalingrad)—Col. Gen.

Hermann von Hoth. Caucasus-Field Marshal Siegmund Wilhelm von List. These commanders have emerged from the various changes made by Hitler since he took over the su-nearly a year ago. Last winter Field Marshal Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb was removed from the north command and from the center Field Marshal Fedor von Bock was moved to the south, where he replaced Field Marshal Karl Rudolf von Rundstedt. This summer Von Bock was replaced by Von Hoth in the south train near El Daba and the landing and the command was split, with the Caucasus section going to Von

Gen. Hershey, in a letter made public by Senator Norris' office today, said:

"Because of the rapidly increasing demands of armed forces for manpower and because of restraints of the law prohibiting group deferments, it is obviously necessary that agricultural workers continue to be considered for induction.

"In order to minimize to the greatest possible degree the impact of such inductions upon the agricultural situation, we are working in closest co-operation with the Department of Agriculture to the end that qualifications of a man necessary to the agricultural program can be defined and essential activities within agriculture be specified

"It is expected that complete preliminary information will soon be provided by the Agriculture Department relative to agricultural products of critical importance, as well as to localities in which pronounced labor shortages are known to exist. "Under existing law ample authority exists for deferment of 'necessary men' engaged in agricultural pursuits"

West Virginia Trend Indicates GOP Will Pick Up House Seat

Only a Political Miracle Could Defeat Neely, Representative Randolph

Mr. Lincoln is taking a preelection swing around the country. This is another in a series of articles on election prospects.

> By GOULD LINCOLN, Star Staff Writer.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 20 .- West Virginia, one of the "border States," is experiencing in some measure the Republican "trend," found farther west and north. That this trend will be of a sweeping nature here, even Republican leaders do not expect. The most they really hope for is to wrest one seat in the House delegation from the Democrats. the seat which is now held by Representative Ramsay. It was held in the previous Congress by former Representative A. C. Schiffler, Republican, who is again a candidate against Mr. Henderson Attacked Ramsay this year.

Of course, should this "trend" toward the GOP really go places, As Enemy of Farmer there might be a chance for the Republicans to pick up two more congressional districts, the 2nd and 4th. The 3d, 5th and 6th districts are rated too strongly Democratic to be shaken from their present

Gov. Matthew M. Neely, a dominant figure in West Virginia Democratic politics for years, decided two years ago to leave the United States Senate and return to West Virginia as a gubernatorial candidate. As a political factor, he is out of the picture in this State. Mr. Lewis, who hates the New Deal administration and its head, is suspected of being lukewarm toward such ardent New Dealers as Gov. Some Republicans hope that the desperate fights which have gone on between the Democratic factions in recent years will militate against Gov. Neely in the coming election. They also believe that many Democrats and independents will be revolted by the Governor's thirst for political power, which has led him to jump from the Senate to the Governor's chair and then back to the Senate in a two-year space.

Charges Face Kadens

Cook County Grand Jury Expected to Handle Cases at Once

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The State of llinois chose two charges of armed robbery and one of criminal assault today to start its prosecution of Irwin Kadens, the Army deserter whose spectacular criminal career ended with an unsuccessful holdup esterday.

Assistant State's Attorney Francis McCurrie said he would ask the Cook County grand jury to vote indictments on these charges today or tomorrow. He explained that although the State was proceeding with these charges first it did not necessarily mean that Kadens would be tried on them first. The Federal Government is still

Acid Indigestion 24 Bundists Convicted Of Urging Youths to ass brings comfort in a Resist Draft Law

Face Possible Sentence Of 5 Years in Prison And $10,000 Fine

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Twenty-four erstwhile German-American Bund leaders, who Assistant United States Attorney Harold F. Corcoran said preferred the German fatherland to this country, have been convicted of conspiring to advise resistance to selective service.

The 24 men, each of whom may be sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000, appeared calm in Federal Court last night as a Manhattan housewife, Mrs. Marguerite Casey, chairman of a sixman, six-woman jury that deliberated nearly six hours, announced the guilty verdict.

Kunze, Willumeit Convicted. Another defendant, Ferdinand Callsen, 57-year-old deaf proprietor of a South Bend (Ind.) grocery and a former bund unit secretary, was acquitted. Among those convicted were former National Bund Chief Gerard Wilhelm Kunze of Camden, N. J., and Dr. Otto Willumeit, both of whom previously were indicted in Hartford, Conn., on charges of conspiring to send military data to Germany and Japan. Kunze had pleaded guilty to the charge and Willumeit had been convicted. Gustav Hildebrand, former secretary-treasurer of the St. Paul (Minn.) unit, who was not defendant, testified for the Government.

The indictment also had been brought against these three, who pleaded guilty: William Luedtke of Saddle River Township, N. J., former bund national secretary, who was the Government's main witness; Karl A. Bachmann of Buffalo N. Y., and John August Grill,

War Fund Campaign Leaders Voice Hope Of Reaching Goal

Donations Equaling Those Given in Separate Drives Last Year Urged

Subscribers to the Metropolitan War Fund goal of $4,141,000 to maintain Community Chest agencies, national organizations like the USO and foreign relief organizations, will be urged to give a lump sum at least equaling the total contributions made by them to separate drives last year.

This theme was emphasized yesterday afternoon by several speakers at a meeting of volunteer work- salvage representative of WPB. ers assigned to the business section of the Metropolitan Unit of the War Fund. The meeting was held in the Board of Trade rooms. Confidence that the goal would be attained was expressed by Floyd D.

Akers, general campaign chairman; William Power, Chevrolet Motor Co. executive from New York here this week for a series of talks to war fund workers, and Herbert Willett, executive director of the war fund drive. Hard work will be needed to obtain a minimum of 400,000 donors, Mr. Akers said, adding that 165,000 additional Government workers coming here since last year would have opportunity along with permanent residents to help the war effort by aiding the war fund. Invited to See Fair.

Bruce Allen, arranging the War Fair at Uline Arena, called on all fund workers to attend the free entertainment and educational exhibits Thursday night. While this meeting will be for workers only, the public will be admitted free of charge each day from October 23 through October 30, from 2 to 11 p.m. Mr. Allen said the entertainment talent would be outstanding, and that the exhibits showing how money given local agencies is spent will be very educational. Manpower Saving Cited. Mr. Akers struck a keynote when he remarked that "the White House has asked Washington to do a better fund job than usual." Mr. Power pointed out that Washington's greatest payroll pros-perity is linked with the city's greatest human needs. He said subest human needs. He said sub-scribers have 120 good reasons to Soldiers on Ferry give, because there are 120 agencies sharing in the war fund. If the fund is intelligently presented, little sales resistance should be encountered, he emphasized.

Seen as Selling Job. "It is a selling job, and each worker on leaving a prospect should ask himself, Who sold who? Did I sell him or did the prospect sell me?" Mr. Power added. This year's fund, he said, is a new model, for it includes not only the Community Chest agencies of other years, but also eight foreign relief groups and national organizations. Lee Butler, Metropolitan Unit chairman, declared the business section would be covered thoroughly, with volunteer workers calling at each room in each building. New residents are enjoying the city's cultural advantages and police, fire, health and other protective services and should give to the war fund, Mr. Akers emphasized. He said failure by the Nation's Capital to achieve its human goals would give "Herr Goebbels propaganda for dissemination among Germans," but he quickly added, "Washington is not going to fail." Selling the war fund is easy, he grants transit rights for sealed said, when the volunteer workers understand what they are selling.

Must "Translate" Money." Mr. Willett said the outlook for a favorable reception for war-fund workers is encouraging. "What would 1943 be if we had no united drive now to care for next year's needs?" he asked. "It would mean 27 major drives next year. Already we have 10 applications for participation in the contingency fund." Money is no good to people in conquered territories unless money is translated in terms of food for starving Greeks, medicine and food for Russians and packages for men in prison camps, Mr. Willett stressed J. P. Hayes, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, said the orchestra, in co-operation with the Daughters of the American Revolution, will give a concert November 4 in Constitution Hall to supplement the war-fund receipts. It will not be a substitute for normal gifts to the war fund but will offer cultural entertainment to music lovers, he stressed. Mr. Hayes said the D. A. R. is permitting use of Constitution Hall rent free, and that the entire proceeds would go to the war fund, inasmuch as the Symphony Orchestra's budget for the 1942-43 season already has been raised. The greatest tribute paid the District drive to date came in the form of an announcement yesterday from Horace Walker, executive secretary of the District Salvage Committee, raising the quota for the Nation's Capital from 34,000,000 to 50,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Walker pointed out that hes took the quota-raising responsibility on himself, though the original figure was set by the War Production Board. Mr. Walker is the District "Indications are," said Mr. Walker, "that the District already has achieved its original quota of 34,000,-

Bill Passed by House Defers Classification For Jobless Tax Act

Another Gives Authority To Extend Pipe Line Under Park Area

Two local bills passed by the House yesterday—making a minor change in the Unemployment Compensation Act and authorizing an oil line extension in the Districtare on their way to the Senate District Committee today for consideration within the next few weeks.

The compensation amendment merely postpones for another year, until July 1, 1944, the requirement that the board classify employers according to their employment records for the purpose of applying a graduated tax rate.

At present all employers pay a uniform pay roll tax rate of 2.7, which has resulted in building up a reserve of approximately $30,000,-000, whereas officials believe a $10,-000,000 reserve would be adequate. There is pending in the House District Committee now a proposed new Unemployment Compensation Act to check this mounting reserve fund. If the board proceeded now to classify employers according to their records, some would get a reduction in the 2.7 rate, but others would have their tax rates increased, possibly to 4 per cent, since the board would have to keep the average rate of tax at 2.7 per cent. By postponing the application of the graduated rate plan in the present law for another year, it is hoped the more complete revision of the

The pipe line bill empowers the Interior Department to grant authority to the Sinclair Refining Co. to make pipe line extensions under the Fort Drive park area, near Fort Totten. The House District Committee explained in its report that, because of the urgency of the oil distribution situation, the Interior Department last June authorized the construction of one pipe line across a portion of the parkway under a revocable permit.

WATCH OUT FOR

SYNTHETIC RUBBER PROGRESS DATES FROM 1927

SYNTHETIC rubber is not new. The first quantity production was the crude form made by the Germans during World War I when the Allied blockade cut off all natural rubber supplies.

This first German synthetic lacked many of rubber's attributes. But it showed enough promise to induce Goodyear chemists, after the war, to begin their own experiments along independent lines.

After several years of research, the Goodyear laboratories developed a synthetic having a globular structure and physical properties very similar to natural rubber.

This was in 1927. Patents were granted to Goodyear in both the United States and Great Britain covering this improved method of production, which is the basic principle underlying all important synthetic rubber manufacture today. By the Goodyear method, simple hydrocarbon molecules are polymerized (linked together) by an emulsification process that closely resembles nature's way of creating latex in the sap of the rubber tree. This process with qualities definitely superior to natural rubber for many purposes. It can be made more resistant to wear and abrasion-more impermeable to oil, gasoline and solvents-more stable at extremely high and low temperatures.

Long before Pearl Harbor Goodyear built the first complete plant in this country for synthesizing rubbers of this type, and began the manufacture of Chemigum products for industrial uses where natural rubber is not satisfactory.

Today facilities are being rapidly expanded in conjunction with the government program to break the rubber bottleneck. From experience we are gaining in building synthetic tires and other urgencies for the fighting forces, a new low-cost mass-production technique is being evolved that promises to make

Hershey's Office Lists 92 Communications Groups for Deferral

Local Draft Boards Get Approved Tabulations For Their Guidance

By the Associated Press. Ninety-two occupations in communication services are regarded by national selective service officials as essential to the war effort. The list was issued last night as a guide to local boards in classifying registrants for deferment and is confined to occupations requiring six months or more of training. The services include telephone, telegraph, newspaper, radio broadcasting, newsreel and television and repair of facilities.

Last July the War Manpower Commission referred to selective service headquarters 34 "essential" activities, including communica-tions. Since then, selective service explained, the commission has been breaking these activities down into critical occupations, the lists being transmitted in turn to local draft

Selective service pointed out the list issued yesterday was merely for guidance of boards, as selective service could not direct the deferment of any special groups of men. Must Satisfy Board.

To obtain deferment the registrant would have to prove to the local board his activity was essential to support of the war efforts, that his job was essential to the functioning of the activity and that he was not replaceable at the time. The deferment then might be granted so the employer could train another employe, but the deferment would not exceed six months at one time. The deferment might be renewed if necessary. The list of "critical" occupations in the communications services fol-

Minister Here Says

Course of War Forces Increase of Trade in Other Supplies, However

Sweden has been compelled by circumstances to increase her trade with Germany, but is not sending that country the tools to win the war, Swedish Minister Wollmar Bostrom told newspapermen here last night.

Commenting at a press conference on trade figures released by his government in Stockholm, the Minister said that while his country now sold to Germany certain materials formerly exported to England or other countries, "no implements of war or ammunition have been exported to Germany since the outbreak of the war."

The main increase in exports to Germany, he said, has been under the headings of lumber, paper and pulp. Iron exports actually have decreased, indicating that Germany now "is able to cover its requirements of iron ore more conveniently from Axis-controlled sources."

Sweden's policy at the beginning of the war, the Minister explained. at 13, working 12 hours a day in a was to limit exports to any belligerent country to the average prewar quantities. This worked for a while, but in 1940 "Great Britain lost control of the sea approaches to Scandinavia and an effective blockade of the Swedish outlets to the Atlantic followed as a matter of course." Sweden accordingly had to readjust her trade to conform with the new situation. She was dependent entirely on imports for coal and oil and in pre-war days obtained nine-tenths of her coal supply from Great Britain and Poland. With Poland in German hands and Britain cut off by blockade the Swedes had to look elsewhere for coal and various other essential imports, such as artificial fertilizers of the House during the World War and textiles, the Minister said. Barely enough coal to keep Swedish industry alive has been obtained from Germany, he added. Other imports from that source, besides fertilizers, have included certain chemicals, machinery, iron and steel products and textiles

This was necessary, Mr. Hensley said, because many people confuse the Sixteenth Street Highland Citizens' Association with the Heights group. A proposal was made to change the title to Shep-

Riding thus tied on the back of a mad billygoat across the flat, desolate marshlands, and if we hadn't had two cars at it was like a crazy motor venture this stage we would never have kept inching along. Sometimes Maj. Araphov's car pulled out ours. Sometimes Ivan the Terrible managed to keep our car on the road long enough to pull the major's out.

It seemed like this road was made of an endless series of holes, ently inexhaustible reserves of pabogs and ditches with pine logs thrown in or buried haphazardly and the whole thing was an obstacle course designed to ruin the springs. axles, tires and human dispositions with a maximum of certitude and front-zone roads, we saw bogged minimum of time consumed. Sometimes, Ivan the Terrible, in the headlights' dim glow, would stumble around with his head down like a bewildered bull, his prizefighter's mug screwed up into a formidable knot while he tried to figure out which quagmire might offer the least chance of getting bogged-in indefinitely.

Then we would leave the mud behind for a while and go bucking, jostling and jumping forward with the road bottom under us at half a dozen different levels most of the time. The back seat of our car had long ago sacrificed its springs to Russia's war effort and every time we crashed down toward the bowels of the earth, our resumed contact with terra firma registered itself sharply and mightily upon the base of my spine.

Usually it seemed we were moving up and down and sideways quite as much as we were moving ahead and my innards felt and behaved and then, in fact, my outraged stomach would take a headlong leap at my tonsile—and there were times when I concluded it had got tangled up there and would never return to its normal

Heart-Breaking Roads.

This is a perfectly literal report and perhaps by this time you'll pardon me for saying that roads near the central Russian front are positively the worst roads I have ever encountered anywhere in the World War. The roads in the Greek and Albanian mountains and the Burma Road's 1,500 miles into Kunming. China, were certainly ghastly at times and certainly the most dangerous motoring I have ever experienced. Even so, you could call them roads most of the time.

Once, trying to get down to the front, north of Trondheim, in Norway, I became intimately acquainted with the most hopeless, most abominable stretch of alleged roadway I had ever seen or cared to see. But that was in late April with 3 feet of melting snow sending high rivulets of water down every rut and ditch. Here in Russia, behind and up to the Rzhev front, there still is no snow and the long summer has intervened, yet even without the recent rains these roads would break both your heart and your spinal cord.

That second night we averaged less than 10 miles an hour for 12 interminable hours. But in the succeeding days and nights we drove from one sector to another and along lateral country roads and lanes. All had been chewed and masticated and slashed by the ruthless machines of war. Sometimes the ruts were so deep and the ridges of Only drivers of the greatest patience and skill can get supplies up to the front over morasses, quagmires and shellholes such as these Yet the Russians, with their appartience, somehow keep their trucks and ambulances moving most of the time. In fact, it was amazing how few vehicles, during nine days and over something like 500 miles of down or broken down for good. I cannot even remember one truck that had been permanently abandoned.

It was extraordinary, too, that there never seemed to be a rush of traffic to the front or along lateral

Local Rent Control

It is not at all clear that in passing the bill to give the Office of Price Administration authority to control rents over the Nation the House intended-to do away with the District of Columbia Rent Control Act. But the bill that passed the House, and which is now under study by a Senate committee, seems to do just that. Would it not be wise before this legislation is enacted to clear up the confusion which so plainly exists

If Congress wishes the national act to supersede or otherwise to repeal the local rent act, such a decision seems eminently unwise to those familiar with the background and the effectiveness of the local act. Debate in the House indicated no such intent. But unless the final version of the bill is more specific, local rent control will be made much more difficult.

The District's rent-control act represented a very earnest attempt to reach substantial agreement on the part of landlord and tenant interests on the most effective methods of rent control, avoiding mistakes of the past. The OPA took part in its preparation and it received Mr. Henderson's blessing. Certainly it seems to have produced desired results. In February of this year the Bureau of Labor Statistics, commenting on a decrease in local rent levels, remarked that the decrease "reflected the enforcement of the new rentcontrol bill," and again, in March, the bureau observed that "the stability of rents in Washington is due to the rent-control bill in that citylimiting and restoring rentals in Washington to the level of January

1, 1941." The success of local rent-control administration, moreover, is demonstrated by the fact that of some 7,000 cases disposed of, only seventeen were appealed to the Municipal Court, which has revised its rules and procedure to handle such appeals. In none of the appeals does the amount involved exceed $10 a month. About 2,000 cases are awaiting hearing now and the rent commission is receiving some 100 telephone and personal inquiries a day. If the local act is repealed, the impression of some House members was that the OPA would merely designate the personnel of the rent commission to enforce provisions of the national act. But the national act is chiefly a delegation of power to the OPA, lacking the specific provisions and designations of jurisdiction which have facilitated administration of the District law. It is feared that repeal of the local law would raise innumerable questions of validity, procedures, etc., which would place in jeopardy much of the control already gained by the rent commission over the local rent level. During the hiatus between repeal of one law and establishment of machinery for administration of another, the situation here might get out of hand. A sensible arrangement would be to retain the local law and for the OPA to designate the rent commission as the administrative agency for such added provisions of the national act as control of office rentals.

of their stubborn resistance to cooperation. "Let us believe," he says, "that out of a universal catastrophe of blood and destruction something better than the world has ever known is to issue. * * * The cause of Christian unity has never been more pressing or urgent than it is today. If this day of visitation passes and the Christian church remains unresponsive to the mighty appeal of its freshly crucified Lord, stiff and unyielding to His demands, it may suffer such a paralysis of its energies and its influence as it has not known in its proud history. It is the unity of Christendom that is the bright hope of a distracted and confused world. May we have the grace and humility to give it a new and glorious interpretation." Those, certainly, are words of challenge to every Christian of whatever sort. If they were to go unheeded the loss would be an injury to the chances of the church's survival. The divergences of the past unquestionably have weakened it. On that all students of the problem are agreed. Bishop Freeman's logic. therefore, is proven. He calls for unity in the interest of religious strength and integrity and of the power of a living God in an earth in tragic and bitter need of providential intervention.

Candor in Government

When he congratulated the people of Canada on the "candor and common sense" with which their government announced the news of the heavy Canadian losses at Dieppe. Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, may or may not have intended his words to be read as a criticism of the policies of our own Government in dealing with the news of military reverses. But, whatever his intent, there is no escaping the fact that our own official handling of war news has failed to measure up to the standards Mr. Davis laid down in his Montreal

"A free people," Mr. Davis said, "wants to know, and has a right to know, how the battle is going, and will fight all the harder if it realizes how hard it must fight for victory. Here in Canada you have lately given us a convincing demonstration of that faith in your handling of the news of the Dieppe raid. * * * In that operation the casualties were proportionately very heavy. But prompt announcement of those casualties was proof that your government had faith in the strength of the Canadian spirit. And that incident set an example which every free people in this war should remember and profitably follow."

It is clear enough, however, that the Canadian example has not been followed and is not being followed in this country.

The American people have not been told the whole truth of the disaster at Pearl Harbor. It is possible that military considerations still justify the withholding of some of the facts, although this is doubtful, and certainly there is no excuse for refusing to release much of the story that has not been told. Neither has a candid picture been presented of the early days of fighting in the Philippines. although there is much there that should be known. In at least two instances-the sinking of the Yorktown and the loss of our cruisers in the Solomons-the official announcements have been worded with a view to deliberate deception. Presumably the Navy has its reasons for wanting to deceive the enemy in such cases, but when the American people learn-belatedly-that they, too, have been deceived, it may be wondered whether in the long run such a policy is not more harmful than beneficial.

Since the start of the war, this Government has never been prompt and forthright in its announcement of bad news. There has been too much evidence of what appears to be a studied purpose to soften the impact of defeats and losses by announcing them a little bit at a time, often with items of good news interspersed to dull the effect of the bad.

In the long run this is not sound policy. It has a tendency to undermine public confidence in everything that the Government says, and it can hardly be doubted that much of the uneasiness which prevails today concerning the situation on Guadalcanal springs from uncertainty as to whether the Government has given out all of the facts that properly might be released. Judging from his comments at Montreal, Mr. Davis is not in sympathy with these tactics. Apparently he is doing what he can to substitute candor for concealment in the handling of war news, and it that a lay observer is not likely to is to be hoped that he is successful

Our Combat Planes

The Office of War Information has done a thoroughly commendable job in its report to the people on the quality of American combat planes. In preparing the report its author has not sought primarily to criticize or on Sunday afternoon merits the defend this country's planes, but only to present the facts and to let them speak for themselves. For that reason it is an extremely good report. To obtain the best picture of the status of our planes in relation to suggestion that two great branches | those of our Allies and our enemies, of the universal church should join | the full report should be read. It is the benefit of the sacred idealism | and generalities based on it are apt

If there is one broad inference to be drawn from the report it is this: There is no justification for the pessimism that has prevailed in some quarters regarding the quality of our own planes. Mistakes were made and in some important respects we had fallen dangerously behind the procession in engine and plane design. But none of our planes was as bad as some of our more pessimistic commentators had led the people to believe. On the other hand, they probably are not as good as some of their more enthusiastic champions have pictured them. Statistics showing enemy losses out of all proportion to our own losses in particular clashes are factually correct, but they are misleading in that they fail to give the whole picture. The probability is that these striking successes have been due to local tactical or other factors which favored our units, and which may not always be present. These abnormally favorable statistics should not be permitted to give rise to unduly optimistic expectations, which may be dashed in the future. In the matter of our planes, as in other things pertaining to the war, we may expect bad news as well as good, and every effort should be made to steer a balanced mental course between the extremes of wishful thinking and unwarranted pessimism.

West African Front?

The landing of large American forces in Liberia, reported from London and embellished by Berlin, though not yet officially confirmed from Washington, is merely one of a series of recent news items which indicate that West Africa may soon make the front page. For some time it has been known that American supply and technical units have been establishing bases in the equatorial regions of Africa, to facilitate the transport of planes and equipment across the Dark Continent from its Atlantic coasts to the Near and Middle East. Heretofore these bases have been in the British colonies, together with the Belgian Congo and the French possessions controlled by the Fighting French regime of General de Gaulle. That Liberia should be added to the list is not surprising. This Negro republic, established ninety-five years ago through the backing of an American philanthropic society by groups of freed slaves from our Southern States, has always retained our benevolent interest and in recent years has been economically developed by the rubber plantations established by the Firestone corporation. With a frontage of nearly 300 miles along the southern end of the bulge of Africa opposite Brazil, and adjoining the British colony of Sierra Leone, Liberia is an important addition to the strategic steppingstones of the United Nations which extend from British Gambia, only 100 miles from Dakar, to the Belgian Congo. Under American control, it will facilitate protective measures against the Axis U-boat campaign which is being waged on Allied shipping off West Africa, and will furnish additional

The intriguing question is whether these United Nations' footholds are merely defensive in character or whether they denote measures against Vichy French rule in West Africa. It should be remembered that Britain's West African colonies and Liberia are mere enclaves set against a solid block of French territory which not only occupies the entire hinterland but reaches the sea between them. Gambia, for instance, though situated hear Dakar. the seat of French colonial power in West Africa, is a mere ribbon of land surrounded on all sides by French soil. Presumably, in case of hostilities, it could be quickly overrun. Sierra Leone, farther south, is probably large enough to withstand a sudden attack. The British Gold Coast is larger still, while Nigeria, in the bend of the Gulf of Guinea, is a miniature empire in itself, and is likewise a bulwark between Vichy territory and the Fighting French colonies of Equatorial Africa. Axis radio stations are insistent that the United Nations meditate a stroke at Dakar, and Vichy proclaims loudly that any such attack would be strenuously resisted by the large French garrison and fleet there assembled for its defense. The current visit to London of General Smuts, Prime Minister of the South African Union, has quickened speculation on both sides of the English Channel. General Smuts is known to be a proponent of vigorous action throughout Africa, and the British press is commenting pointedly on the significance of his conferences with Winston Churchill. The London Sunday Express goes so far as to say: "Africa is uneasy, the lull is not likely to last, and when at any moment the fight flares into violence, one of the decisive battles of history may begin. Africa, north and west, may clearly become the stage of tremendous issues." Of course, as above indicated, developments in West Africa are closely tied up with the North African situation. The week-old bombing of Malta by the Axis is a sure indication that heavy Axis convoys are crossing the Mediterranean to reenforce Marshal Rommel, who still stands on the Egyptian border. Autumn is the ideal fighting season in North Africa. If it starts there. West Africa may well be involved.

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

Five kinds of "drunks." only two of which should be acceptable in the Army, are appearing before draft-induction boards.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Abraham Myerson, research director of the Boston State Hospital, after a study of the draftees examined in the 1st Corps Area. In the First World War, Dr. Myerson reports, he himself as a medical officer tried to have thrown out of the Army, at the request of the man's commanding officer, a rather persistent drunk and troublemaker who turned out later to be one of the outstanding heroes of the AEF. He has been cautious ever since.

Now he classifies his alcoholics as follows: Saturday night drinkers, party drinkers, spree drinkers, social neurosis drinkers and sots.

The record of the first type shows that he often gets roaring drunk over week ends and may get into fights, but always is able to show up for work Monday morning. Such men usually belong to the truck driver-roustabout class. They may give M. P.'s a lot of trouble, Dr. Myerson says, but also often make first-class fighting men. They are apt to reform entirely in the Army.

The second type usually is a college graduate or white-collar worker who may get drunk at social gatherings two or three times a week, but seldom drinks between parties. Such individuals, he believes, rarely show only physical damage because of their drinking. If they keep it up long enough, they may become chronic alcoholics, but often the physical exertion of Army life reforms them altogether. They are good material, Dr. Myerson declares.

There are three quite well-defined types of alcoholics, he insists, on whom the Army cannot afford to take a chance. One is the "spree drinker." Such a man goes on protracted drunks which seem impossible to stop until they have run their course. He may be a sufferer from recurrent depressions for which alcohol is the only relief. Still others have some physiological peculiarity, so that after taking one drink they cannot stop until their money is exhausted, or they end in a hospital or in jail.

Another of Dr. Myerson's types is the "social neurosis drinker"-one who cannot be at ease with other people unless under the influence of alcohol. Army life with its intimate contacts can only make him worse. The fifth type is the "sot"—the chronic alcoholic who lives only to drink. He elsewhere, to get liquor and probably making their own compost. no reform is possible. He is the one It many cases, if rains and frost have type that easily can be detected by a physical examination. In spite of the well-nigh universal drinking, Dr. Myerson says, the few alcoholics who are appearing before draft boards is astonishing, and examining psychiatrists get a high impression of the general clean living of young Americans.

This is especially true, he explains, for the men between 20 and 30. Between 30 and 45 the rate goes up rather sharply but this is likely to give a false impression. The men in this age group who appear at an induction center are, for the most part, unmarried. The unmarried element of the adult population tends to be the most neurotic, and hence the most susceptible to drink.

The organism responsible for a serious, epidemic eye disease which has been sweeping through the shipyards of the country has been isolated, it has been reported by the American Medical Known as "karatoconjunctivitis." if s caused, according to a report by Dr. Murray Saunders of New York, by a filterable virus. The first outbreak was in Hawaii about 18 months ago. It then appeared on the Pacific Coast and in a few months had crossed the continent. Like other filterable viruses this organism can be preserved and transmitted by inoculating mice with smears from the eyes of infected persons and then forming tissue cultures from the ani-

Human volunteers, who have received drops of this tissue culture in their eyes, have developed the malady, Dr. Saunders reports. There is some evidence, not as yet conclusive, that anti-bodies against this specific organism are built up in the blood of victims.

Sulfa drugs may be potent against another group of rare but highly fatal human maladies-those due to fungi. Drs. R. Wallace Teed and Mark Marshall of the University of Michigan have reported to the American Medical Association the complete recovery of a child suffering from inflammation of the brain caused by one of these fungi, the torula. Cases of this sort in the past almost invariably have been fatal.

Hitherto the sulfa drugs have proved effective chiefly against bacteria, and their value against other types of disease-producing organisms, while reported from time to time, has been open to question.

Objects to Drafting Of Junior Citizens. To the Editor of The Star.

As an enlisted veteran of the First World War, may I have space in your valuable paper to protest the drafting of 18 and 19 year old boys in the Army, unless the million or more married men without children are first called into service; also most of those who are being deferred by draft boards at the request of industry?

I claim that there are not more than a dozen men in any industry who cannot be replaced in a very short time by older men, or women

"Dear Sir:

"To the grown-up, an autumn leaf is something to admire on the trees. "To some persons autumn leaves are just a nuisance, to be swept up.

will be among them. "All persons who are able ought to rake up leaves and pile them together. Usually some lime is mixed in, and the whole left to weather in the rain and cold until spring. "Leaves are so many things to so many persons that I am sure all of us ought to think about them as they are falling down.

"Very truly yours, V. C." * * * *

The compost pile is something which many householders intend to make. That they do not do it is due to a variety of reasons.

One of these is doubt that the product will be worthwhile. Compost is good if it is made properly, but almost worthless if it is not.

As our correspondent points out, every one with a small plot of ground ought to think seriously about this matter this

Commercial fertilizers will be increasingly difficult to get, if they are available at all. Organic fertilizers have been hard to get in recent years, and will be more so from now on, owing to transportation difficulties.

Do you know, by the way, that wood for the fireplace and kindling are almost impossible to find?

Autumn leaves are in such abundance that only a small part of them can be put into compost heaps.

Yet if every one made as large a pile as possible, a vast amount of good fertilizng material would be available next spring and summer.

Time is the essential element in this work. It is impossible to hurry a compost pile. Something may be done, it is true, with special chemicals sold for the purpose-if they are available. Lime is good, mixed in between layers of leaves, but it takes longer. Yet at best a compost pile is no hurry-up affair. Probably that is the real reason will go to any length, in the Army or | few suburban dwellers try their hands at

To the Editor of The Star:

Then it has to go over until the next. This all seems too, too weary a process for the small gardener who wants results in a hurry. He cannot wait. He demands quick results. A well constructed compost heap needs plenty of leaves, plenty of water, plenty of time and, above all, plenty of patience. It is best put in some out-of-the-way That corner behind the garage, where the old rusty wheelbarrow-which should go to the victory dump-is reposing, is just the place for the compost pile. If for some reason it cannot be dug into the ground, some arrangement will have to be made of old chicken wire, so that the leaves cannot blow away.

Alternate layers of leaves, earth and lime will take care of this, in most instances. Soaking the leaves with water. when they are first put it, starts the decomposing process, and at the same time helps to prevent the material from blowing away.

Great sodden piles of all sorts of garden trash are not wanted. Long stalks of old annuals do not make good compost material. They would require several years to rot away, even with the aid of chemicals.

The finer the material, to begin with, the shorter the process.

This sort of compost, even when "ripe," is not a quick fertilizer, in any sense, but depends upon its ability to lighten up the soil. It also is a good organic material for many kinds of plants and shrubs.

It will not, however, give quick growth, and the user should not look to it for

Probably more mistakes are made in nome gardening through failure to lighten up the soil than from any other

The hardest clay soils become almost perfect growing mediums when sand, ashes or good compost are incorporated. Roses grow to perfection in such soil.

Old worn-out farm lands, such as found in many suburban sections, will do very nicely, once they are well mixed with suitable compost material, or with some sand, or even coal ashes.

All of these materials do good because they permit the plants to get what fertility is still left in the ground. That is their real service. Ashes and sand, however, are not "nice" materials to use. They lack the "feel" of a good compost made of the leaves which householders so recklessly burn every autumn. The action of frost on the compost pile is one of the essential "ingredients," and this may be helped by stirring the pile, from time to time, and watering it in dry weather.

Oak leaves are best left out, since they are too acid for anything except rhododendrons and other shade-loving plants. Cutting leaves into as small pieces not been right, the resulting "brew" is as possible before incorporation is a good

U.S. Strategy In Solomons Defended

Misunderstanding of Problems Is Held Basis of Criticism

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

The United States Navy is up against one of the toughest tasks in all its history—the effort to make secure the landing of Marines in the Solomons. But the difficulties involved have been foreseen from the very beginning, and the one thing that causes Navy men concern is the inability of the public apparently to understand the real nature of the job and the reasons for the way news David Lawrence.

has to be handled from the Pacific

Thus a criticism made on Capitol Hill, to the effect that the Army forces in Australia under Gen. Mac-Arhtur were not being utilized to help the Marines, is a misunderstanding of the nature of the opera-

The high command in America today consists of Gen. Marshall, Admiral King and Admiral Leahy, who comprise what is known as the United States Chiefs of Staff. All three men have a voice in the decisions and in the making of strategy. To assume that the Army forces in Australia or anywhere else have not been permitted to do somethnig they ought to do is to say that Gen. Marshall does not have an opportunity to express himself or to influence the strategy that is finally adopted. This, of course, is unfounded, because it is well known that there has been substantial agreement right along between the members of the high command.

The President, of course, as Commander in Chief, makes the broad policy, but the tactics and detailed operations are left to the United States Chiefs of Staff and it is a safe assumption that if the Army should have participated any sooner than it has in the Solomon Islands operationse this would have been done.

Transportation Big Problem.

What is not generally realized is that every gallon of octane gas for the airplanes and every barrel of fuel for the surface ships has to be transported across 7.000 miles or more of distance and that there is only a limited amount of tonnage available for the job of fueling the fleet and transporting troops. It may be more important that the seas be first dominated by air and surface fighting ships than that troops be transported from distant Tire Destruction Brings bases. In another instance, we may have already replaced in secret a certain type of vessel, and it may be desired to let the enemy believe that no replacement could possibly have arrived within a certain interval.

Deception on Losses.

Deception as to losses is practiced by all the navies of the world as an integral part of strategy, and policies differ with the situations that arise. In one instance, it may be revealed that deception caused the Japanese completely to underestimate our strength in the Battle of Midway. When the story of the Solomon Islands operations is disclosed some day to the students of naval history, it will be discovered that the reasons, good or bad, which caused a withholding of the news about the three cruisers were directly related to naval strategy.

One thing can be stated positively. The high command of the Army and Navy is not holding back news because of any relationship to the problem of morale on the home front. The reasons are strategic, and the American people must trust the high command. It is a military and naval group which knows what it is doing. It is interested only in victory-and not in politics or morale problems away from the fighting fronts. There is unity of command and purpose today in the United States Chiefs of

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT.

The Japanese attack on Guadalcanal must be considered against the background of the war situation in the whole Pacific theater. Very great issues may depend on the outcome of the fight for possession of the airfield on that one small island of the archipelago.

If the Japanese are successful in retaking Guadalcanal they will reap great advantages. In the first place, they will regain a considerable degree of freedom of action in the immediate area, of which the Solomons are the center, for we will then have to go back to Espiritu Santo Island, in the New Hebrides, which is 450 miles to the southeastward. This is the nearest air base to Guadalcanal which we now hold.

The Japanese operations on New Guinea would be aided by their ability to concentrate larger forces there. We should remember that in all the southern islands the Japanese total force is very limited; they probably do not have more than 60,000 men all told in the whole area from Sumatra clear over to the Solomons.

Their military responsibilities on the continent of Asia are such that they cannot easily find reinforcements for these troops, and shipping is an even more crucial problem with the Japanese than with us.

Hence it has taken them a long time to concentrate for this attack on the Solomons and if it is defeated, they may have to go back to a pure defensive in New Guinea and New Britain, while if it is successful they will be able greatly to improve their conditions there.

Furthermore, if our threatening advance from the Solomons can be thrown back, the Japanese may then be able to detach naval and air forces for pressure against other parts of our great trans-Pacific line of communications, on which the security of Australia very largely depends.

For instance, the Japanese have established themselves in the Gilbert Islands, which lie between their strongholds in the Marshalls and our intermediate base at Samoa. If the Japanese had greater freedom of action, they might easily launch surprise attacks from the Gilberts toward Howland, Baker and Canton Islands, which are isolated points of support in the communications chain between Hawall and Samo

A Japanese success in those islands, in turn, would directly menace Samoa itself. In other

Japs Appear to Be Throwing Bulk of Fleet Into Solomons in Hope of Decisive Result

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. All military actions on other fronts are overshadowed today by the suspense over the battle in the Solomon Islands where the situation still can be described as "nip and tuck."

Neither the White House nor the War or Navy Departments has yet received a clear picture of the course of this most momentous battle. It is assumed that the naval forces under the command of Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley are now in action; consequently, it is doubtful whether they can communicate with Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief in the Pacific, who supervises the strategy from Honolulu.

The only reports which may be available to the high command in Washington probably from the thick of the engagements to refuel at the various bases. But their observations are not always reliable since it is difficult to obtain a good picture of what is going on over a large expanse of the ocean from a high altitude.

Most military and naval men in Washington are keeping their fingers crossed. They know that the Japanese have planned this operation-which will be decisive -for a long time and have left nothing to chance.

All Eggs in One Basket.

The Japs have concentrated in the Mandated Islands, with Truk as their principal base, a very large amphibious force, consisting of the bulk of their fleet. presumably all their remaining carriers, a substantial aviation group and, it is believed, at least 65,000 men packed in all kind of steamers. They have at their disposal some smaller islands whose beaches are being used by the naval aviation as take-off and landing bases for planes from carriers.

The Japanese information services must have been good since the planes appear to be operating from areas not covered by the American fleet.

Following their usual tactics. the Japs appear to have put all their eggs in one basket. Since they are fighting on only one front the Japs can afford to throw the bulk of their fleet in an important operation in the hope that they may compel us to forces too much. The success or failure of the Japanese strategy depends entirely on what naval and air forces we have in the South Pacific. It seems questionable whether we shall be able to land more forces during the battle at Guadalcanal. But this, at present, is only of secondary importance. The main things is whether our naval forces have been sufficiently strengthened after the loss of the three cruisers in August. "Sufficient" means not only replacing the lost units but also adding a sufficient force to permit Admiral Ghormley to hit the enemy with tremendous power in the thick of the engagement. MacArthur Co-operating.

There is no question that the Marine and Army units now at Gualakanal can hold out for a while against any superior Japanese force provided, however, that outside the island itself there are American naval and air forces sufficiently strong to make the Japs' position uncomfortable and force them to abandon the offensive. The next few days will tell the story. The Pacific area does not have a supreme command, since the area containing the Solomons and New Zeland is commanded by Admiral Ghormley while Australia and New Guinea are under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but this division has not interfered in the least with the operations. Both leaders have seen eve to eye from the very beginning and have been willing to help each other just as if there had been a unified command. The Flying Fortresses at the disposal of Gen. MacArthur have been co-operating wholeheartedly with Admiral Ghormley from the moment the Japanese appeared in strength before Gualalcanal. It is believed that the task fleet which has been placed at the disposal of Gen. MacArthur has been co-operating with the forces under Admiral Ghormley and at no time has.

there been any bickering. Gen. MacArthur is fully aware of the danger to Australia and the entire South Pacific if the Japanese win this long-awaited battle and he has not hesitated to give all the required support to the hard-pressed forces of Admiral tires to be allowed each car in the country. He made a mistake in allowing us keep that fifth, or spare, tire. Forgetting for moment what

Henry McLemore. the spare would make, let us consider what a race of Lionel Strongforts we would become if, after November 22, we did not have any spares to fall back on when we had a puncture. Demountable rims and demountable wheels have not been with us so long that millions of Americans can't remember (with an ache in their backs, too) the era when changing a tire meant just thatchanging a tire.

In those days, when a man had a puncture, he stepped out of the car, now sagging periously to one side, and faced an enemy worthy of his steel.

He couldn't just jack up the car on a ball-bearing jack, twist a few bolts and screws, lift off the wheel, and replace it with another that was tucked in the luggage compartment. No, sir, he had to contend first with a jack that was as spindly as a stalk of celery. Sometimes it took upward of an hour to get this jack under the axle, and another hour to crank it up. Then, like as not, it sagged under the weight of the machine and slid ingloriously to one side, leaving the repairer just where he started. * * * *

But even when the car was securely hoisted into the air on one side, the trouble had just begun. There was the tire, hugging the rim like a bear cub does its mother. and with its affectionate embrace cemented by rust and long months of proximity. The tire had to be removed, and it was a task calling for the full play of all the muscles in the body, the cunning of a trapper, and the patience of a Madison Square Garden full of jobs. All sorts of tools ill-fitted for the task of removing a tire came along with a car in those days. ' Great slabs of steel with beveled edges. Ice-tong sort of hooks with which to grab a loosened portion of the tire. Mighty hammers, and a various assortment of odds and ends which, when spread out alongside the road, always managed to creep into the grass and get lost. There was an established technique to be followed in getting off a tire. It was as set as how to swing a golf club or how to ride a horse. The changer sat near the bottom or flat part. Then he grasped the upper part of the tire and started tugging. It was magnificent exercise, better than all the patented rowing devices, stretching machines. horizontal bars, and the like.

An hour was usually required to remove the tire. This was just step 2 in fixing a puncture, with many steps to follow.

The tube had to be repaired. Equipment for this bit of magic also came along with the car, and consisted of a minature coconut grater, some funny smelling sticky stuff, and a half dozen or so little

Long days of traveling together had made all of these items suspicious of one another, and unwilling to co-operate. The little grater wouldn't roughen the tube, the sticky stuff wouldn't maintain its stickiness for more than a quarter of a second. And, even when it did the little patch refused to let it be a lasting go-between between the tube and itself.

Once the tube had been grated. the sticky stuff applied, and the patch pasted over the puncture. there came a period of waiting. No two motorists ever agreed on how long it was necessary for the patch to "take." Some said five minutes, while extremists insisted on grasping the patch firmly between their hands and holding it in the sun for as long as an hour. It was amateur, and inefficient, vulcanizing.

With the tube repaired, all that was left to do was to get the tire back on the rim and pump it up. If getting the tire off was devilish. getting it back on was tough with all the trimmings. Either the rim was too big for the tire or the tire too small for the rim. One or the other had to be hammered into subjection.

The pumping process - with a wheezy little pump that was built for nothing more difficult than inflating toy balloons-completed the exercise.

Speaking of pumping up tiresyou know, the pictures of Mr. Henderson indicate that his chassis could stand a little of that sort of work. It's getting tough to tell where Mr. Henderson's cigar leaves off and Mr. Henderson begins.

From Gloom of Hollywood May Come Better Stories

Manpower Loss Forcing Producer Emphasis on Choicer Screen Fiction

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

Purely personal opinion: Opening the daily mail from Hollywood one can discern a note of despair over the demands made by global war on

The laments begin over the drafting of potent box office names for the armed services, the loss of skilled technicians, cover the restrictions on studio production imposed by the War Production Board. It seems to one seasoned reviewer * that if the emergency compels producers to place more emphasis on the quality of screen fiction, the public will be the beneficiary of war's hardships. From the standpoint of receipts the champion picture of 1942 will be "Mrs. Miniver," a feature without the of names which were marquee dynamite, but which had a

Brian Donlevy and Monte Woolley, the dominant characters in these latter screen stories are not listed as stars, are merely featured players. Some Weak Moments.

A conglomeration of star names does not automatically roll a picture into the rank of screen immortals. If it did, "Tales of Manhattan" would have been assured of greater grosses than "Mrs. Miniver," something it will not achieve. In at least one of the episodes of "Tales," both script writers and actors wasted abundant talent on mediocre fiction. This indictment refers specifically to the adventure engaging Charles Laughton which had a cultured musical audience acting boorishly over a minor mishap, the ripping of seams in a tail coat—until the whole scene became an interlude of overacted nonsense.

Both time and talent were expended extravagantly on "Panama Hattie," a hit Broadway musical which lost, in the process of studio deodorizing, all of the dynamic quality which won stage reviewers. Red Skelton would find it hard to survive as a top-flight comic if again left as bereft of visible material as this screen musical provided. Hollywood paid $300,000 for the

The tone of at least two of the reigning Broadway hits is distinctly low and ribald. Yet Hollywood producers are eyeing them fondly, and one may expect to hear that they have been acquired for the screen, though the office of Will H. Havs may raise its hands in horror. Some studio numskull once paid $76,000 for the rights to "Sailor Beware." which became a C picture after the blue pencil had been worked on half a dozen studio treatments to make it presentable.

Carole Landis Really Likes Entertaining Our Soldiers

Star Finds Servicemen Appreciate Little Things More Than Big Display

Screen's foremost entertainer of soldiers stationed in California describes her wartime hobby and why she likes it in a guest column for the vacationing Harold Heffernan.

By CAROLE LANDIS,

HOLLYWOOD.—The biggest thing a girl can do nowadays is war work, and you can take it from me_it's the littlest things that count. I don't mean to sound cryptic. What I've found out about my particular phase of war work isn't a paradox. I entertain soldiers—amuse them, take them dancing, tour the sets of Hollywood with them, listen to their troubles, try to cure their homesickness, get them homes over week ends-do everything I'd like some *other girl, in New York, say, to do ments from soldier-entertaining to

Boxing Board Wants to Do Right by Our Joe

Hold those huzzahs for the District Boxing Commission, men, until we see the final outcome of the squabble between Joe Turner and Goldie Ahearn for preference on the preferred Monday night dates. Turner is ahead on the points, but, hold on, is the honored and respected commission doing right by the professor? See next Messrs. Owen, Agnew and Morgan started well enough by rejecting Ahearn's bid for Mondays on the ground that Turner enjoyed a privilege akin to squatter's rights. He's been operating so many years on the second day of the week it has come to be recognized as somewhat of an unofficial privilege. So when Goldie came waddling into the commission's well swept offices, puffing and panting in quest of a permit to operate on Monday nights, the honored mitten moguls threw up a forbidding hand.

And rightly so. Would we have had boxing these last couple of lean years—and several before—if Turner had not carried on when more fainthearted competitors fell by the wayside? No boxing, no commission, of course, so the men in the front office really owe Uncle Joe a vote of appreciation for giving them something to regulate.

Monday Night Is When Box Office Thrives

But here's the gnat in the coffee. On top of its refusal to let Goldie muscle in on Turner's day the commission handed Ahearn a permit to operate the following night. It was trying to be fair, no doubt, but the effect of this move will be to kill both shows from a box-office viewpoint and confuse the publicity to such an extent some of the customers are certain to wonder who is fighting where.

Why the scramble for Monday night? Simply because the swivelchair generals of the local fight mob long ago came to the conclusion that Monday shows got better breaks in publicity over the week end, resulting in a brisker business at the turnstiles. Their judgment in that respect was 100 per cent correct. Mike Jacobs or any other big-time promoter V. M. I. yearlings, 8-0, last week, (if there is any others) can afford to go on Friday night or Thursday or any night he chooses, but not Washington promoters. They don't always starting line-up, and numerous othhave top-line attractions that can stand up through the week and command banner-line notices. Over the week ends, Washington sports editors are generous toward local shows.

But the commission went a step farther, a commendable step that ton Athey of Cumberland were the bolsters their case for fair play. After recognizing Turner's services to starters. boxing, it decreed that whenever Ahearn, now at the helm of an organization calling itself the Liberty Athletic Club, had an outstanding attraction and Turner some run-of-the-mine card, Ahearn would be given the preference. That is a four-square verdict, one that Turner himself will yards in two plays to produce the approve. He would want it that way in his own case. And when the shows stack up about the same Turner will get the right of way.

Ahearn Always Could 'Talk' Good Card

There may be some difficulty determining when Ahearn's shows out- Potee of Glen Burnie were among rank Turner's, but we feel confident the commission will be able to over- the reserves. Wolfe and Potee, income this obstacle with the aid and experience of Secretary Dick O'Brien. After all, a genuine four-star card certainly will include a ranking fighter of some description and class and the commission may ascertain his proper merit by the simple expedient of looking up the rankings.

Turner deserves some measure of protection, in our opinion. As long emy of Pennsylvania and Back as Goldie is able to promote a buck or two he'll have a finger in boxing, Melville Fuller formerly starred for but Turner is the pillar to which the game owes its life in Washington. Joe has gone to the extreme of mortgaging his home and hocking his life insurance on different occasions to meet his obligations. When things were darkest and he didn't know where the money to pay his personal gas bill was coming from he had faith enough in boxing to stick to the iob. He's been up and down and in the final balance boxing probably owes him more than it has given.

Ahearn is an incurable boxing bug, smitten long ago when he donned timore this Saturday. After taking his first pair of mittens as a slender featherweight. He has been charged successive beatings from George e bad matches, as they were, but we doubt if Goldie ever Washington and put in a fight he didn't think would top anything ever seen for action. He is blessed, or cursed, with a superabundance of enthusiasm and in his eagerness to sell it to the press, and ultimately to the public, frequently was carried away on the wings of his own blurbs.

Turner Lets Public Pass Judgment

Turner's honesty is unquestioned, but he has been the victim of poor, if well meant advice, in many instances with resulting uninteresting shows. Joe does not have Ahearn's fiair for publicity nor is he willing to concoct in the Auburn encounter and has "angles" for the sake of a line or two in the paper. Joe has followed a been hospitalized. policy of making the best matches possible and letting the public pass judgment on them. Goldie forever is trying to convince the patrons they'll be missing something if they don't see his show.

We wouldn't be surprised if Goldie's distorted sense of publicity values was responsible for his effort to stir up an argument about dates with his old friend and onetime partner. There is plenty of room in Washington for a couple of boxing clubs, even though worthwhile talent | paying particular attention to Tipis getting scarcer by the minute, but they'll have to be properly and fairly py supervised by the commission.

And if the powers that be don't recognize Turner's long service to the game and give him at least a fair shake it may as well sell its desks and toss its brass hats on the scrap heap, because there just ain't gonna

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 .-- Ohio State, with a record of four straight victories this season, remains the choice of the football experts as the country's No. 1 team in the second of the Associated Press' weekly polls. Fifty-eight of the 119 sports writers gave the Buckeyes, who blanked Purdue while getting 26 points for themselves in their latest outing. first place on their ballots, but 38 others decided the honor belonged to Georgia, a 40-to-0 winner over Tulane last Saturday.

The Dixie Bulldogs, second a week ago, held onto the runnerup position, 1,030 votes to 973, but Alabama, which stopped Tennessee, 8 to 0, exchanged places with Michigan and occupied third place, while the Wolverines skidded to fourth despite their 34-to-16 win over North-

Western Looms as Sectional Barrier to Hard-Pressed Central Grid Champions

Vikings Down Riders By Only 7 to 0 on Pass Interception

Raiders, on Other Hand. Score 13-to-0 Victory Over Coolidge Eleven

By GEORGE HUBER.

Central is running into all sorts of trouble defending its high school football championship, but the Vikings are coming through in the pinch and with two straight, although unconvincing, victories lead the Western Division. They removed the Roosevelt jinx, 7-0, yesterday in a hard game at Roosevelt, while Western got back in the picture by topping Coolidge, 13-0, at Western.

For the second straight week it was Mike Denikos who supplied Central's climax punch. He broke away for the only touchdown against Wilson, and yesterday he again registered 6 points with a pass interception and 55-yard dash. The 140-pound Greek played a whale of a game with his punting, passing and running.

Outstanding as was Denikos, it was Roosevelt's End Charlie Howard who stole the show with a brilliant individual performance. The Vikings just couldn't get enough blockers in the way to remove him, and time and again he spilled plays around his end when it seemed he was snowed under. His punting also got the Rough Riders out of several holes, although he was handicapped in his kicking by the way Central's line poured through or

Central made all the scoring threats, but these weren't serious and the Vikings weren't inside Roosevelt's 20 until the decisive pass interception in the third period. It came at a good time, too, with Roosevelt on the march with two first downs from inside its own territory to across the midfield stripe. Quarterback Irv Kolker of the Riders sent a flat pass across the line and Denikos gathered it in and streaked for the sidelines with such speed that Roosevelt's stunned defenses had no time to form. Forwards' Power Doesn't Awe Gophers; Irish Now Held Good as Ever CHICAGO, Oct. 20.-Michigan, becoming the most talked-of football team in the Western Conference, has received its best verbal pat on the back from Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach.

Skins Confident They'll Curb Dudley 34 Days Adrift on a Raft

Improved Pittsburgh Respected, but Not Feared by Tribe

Victory Sunday Depends On Halting Foe's Ace, Capital Pros Feel

It probably will be Bill Dudley vs Sammy Baugh in a running-pitching duel Sunday when the Redskins invade Pittsburgh to answer the Steelers' challenge for the Eastern division leadership of the National Football League. Dudley, although assisted by a couple of fair country ball players by the names of Dick Riffle and Curtis Sandig, has been the sparkplug of the Steelers' attack, proving himself as good as his press notices. Baugh, of course, has been the motor in the Redskin machine and bulks even more importantly in the club's future hopes and plans

Stop Dudley and you'll probably stop Pittsburgh. Stop Baugh and everything in Washington comes to a halt but congressional debates. Steelers Will Be Tough.

Coach Ray Flaherty feels certain the Tribe will hold Pittsburgh, knock the pins out from under it and establish Washington's superiority in this rivalry beyond all shadow of doubt. The Steelers will need convincing, though, because Washington had a tough time trimming Walt Kiesling's outfit in their first game and Pittsburgh since then has built up scads of new confidence in itself.

This game will be played from scratch, with the Skins regarded as just another football team and not the best in the East.

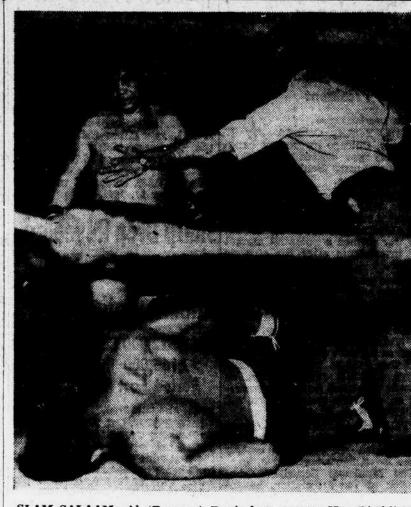

With a 13-10 win over New York 7-0 shutout of Brooklyn and 14-0 in its last three games, Pittsburgh now appears to be the team to beat for sectional honors. Brooklyn's one good team doesn't have the stamina to halt Washington and the other two don't have the polish.

Those three games represent the difference between the Steelers as we saw them last month when they came here to help launch the 1942 title race and the smooth-functioning team Kiesling has made of them they easily can be knocked off.

Pacific was told to Robert Trumbull by Harold F. Dixon, bomberpilot and aviation chief me-chanic's mate, U. S. N., in the current best seller, "The Raft," which is now being brought to you in serial form, of which this is a chapter. Dixon—with Gene Aldrich, aviation radioman and gunner, and Tony Pastula, aviation ordnance man - was forced to land a scout bomber in the ocean when its gas gave out on the evening of January 16, 1942. The craft sank almost immediately, but they managed to escape on an 8x4-joot rubber raft. They were without provisions and with scant equipment. Yet this heroic United States Navy trio managed to survive, battling an inferno of seas and weather for 34 days over a course that covered about a thousand miles until they finally reached safety on an obscure atoll. The nervetingling details of this extraordinary experience are being related here as told to Robert Trumbull.

CHAPTER XXIV. Now on this day our thirty-third in the raft, our position was desper-Since we had lost even my last inadequate makeshift sea anchor, we had no means whatever of controlling our progress. From now on we would go where the wind sent us, and that might mean that we finally rotted and burst. We had lost all our rags, so had no way of catching drinking water beyond what might lie in the bottom of the raft. We had nothing for bailing except our hands. We had one shoepaddle left, two wallets which had somehow become wedged in the front of the raft, and my police whistle. I did not see how we could make any use of these The worst blow of all was the loss of all our clothes, and the piece of fabric we had been using to shade our heads. From now on we were entirely unprotected against the equatorial sun, and it was midsummer. We knew, too well, what the surf was going to do to us. "Back in '98, in the Spanish-American War," reminisces little Old-Timer 2414, "20 cars was an averagelength freight train. By World War I, we'd upped our Santa Fe freights to an average 35.9 cars. Not bad railroadin', that."

"Not bad is right," answers the big new freight Diesel, "but not good enough for World War II. Now we've stretched 'em out another 41%, to 50.9 cars, and those cars are bigger, loaded heavier, and rolling farther and faster."

"Good work, son," says Old-Timer. "Yours is the BIG war job. Keep 'em rollin'-or else!"

KEEP 'EM ROLLIN'-OR ELSE * No nation that does not possess efficient mass transportation can hope to win a modern war. In America that mass transportation job is squarely up to her railroads.

If they fail, we lose.

Neither battle gallantry nor industrial wizardry alone will turn the tide. To meet this tremendous responsibility, we ask for every possible consideration in the allocation of materials for vitally essential repairs, maintenance and new equipment.

DAILY THE LOAD INCREASES

To date, the railroads have met 100% the staggering demands born of this global war. Many have helped make that record possible—the War Department, the Office of Defense Transportation, civilian shippers and travelers everywhere.

In the first six months of 1942, with 25% fewer locomotives, the Santa Fe moved 94% more freight tonmiles and 27% more military and civilian passenger miles than in the first six months of 1918, in World

The army newspaper Red Star said the adverse weather compelled flyers of both sides to restrict operations, the outnumbered Russian pilots as well as the invaders. Previously the German flyers had made as many as 1,500 flights in day over a single Russian sector. Stripped of aerial support, the Nazi ground troops found harder going.

Heavy Fighting Reported. The midnight communique said the fighting was particularly heavy in the area of a factory. This presumably was the Red Barricade gun works or the converted industrial plant, Red October, in the northern suburbs. The communique did not specify. "Our troops in the course of the day beat off all enemy attacks here, destroyed eight tanks and wiped out two battalions of enemy infantry, t was announced.

Eighteen Nazi tanks were declared destroyed and 400 men killed elsewhere in defense of the explosivescarred city. Local fighting persisted to the northwest. While losses in men and machines

Chicago and Philadelphia Reserve Banks Make First Reductions

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 20.-Some financial quarters expressed the belief yesterday a Nation-wide move was underway designed to encourage banks to participate more heavily in financing the war effort by lowering the cost of borrowing at Federal Reserve banks.

Directors of the Federal Reserve banks at Philadelphia and Chicago cut the discount rate from 1 to 1/2 per cent on advances to member banks secured by Government obligations maturing in a year or less. New York Cotton

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Cotton prices lacked a decisive trend today.
Pending concrete developments on price ceilings for farm products, traders kept to the sidelines. Alternate flurries of trade price fixing and hedge selling held prices a few points on either side of the previous close.

Transferring of December contract to the later positions accounted for a fair part of the day's volume.
Commission houses and trade interests were credited with transferring long commitments forward, while spot houses did the reverse.

Late afternoon values were 15 cents a bale higher.

Nelson Warns Strict Inventory Control To Start Soon

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, notified all wholesalers, retailers and manufacturers today that their inventories of finished consumers' goods will be placed under strict control

Hospital Expansion Held Useless Unless Help Is Available

HSA Aide Says Staffs Are Lacking Even for Present Facilities

The problem of the critical shortage of medical facilities in the District cannot be solved with the completion of the hospital expansion program, Willard C. Smith, administrator of the Health Security Administration told members of the health division of the Council of Social Agencies at a luncheon meet-

Speaking of the shortage of nurses and physicians, he said. "If you can't even staff the wards and beds you already have," it will do little good to increase the present facili-

Asks More Volunteers. In an urgent plea for more enlistees in the Volunteer Nurse's Aide program, Mrs. Walter Lippman, assistant national director of the Volunteer Special Services of the American Red Cross and guest speaker at the luncheon, said that when the program first began, hospitals were skeptical about taking volunteers in but "now we are being sought all over the country. Mrs. Lippman was a nurses's aide in France during the World War.

Compared with the 19 chapters of Nurses' Aide Corps with 400 members in 1941, she said that today there are 810 chapters with 48,000 members, 32,000 of which have completed their training. The chief worries today, she added, are that there are not enough recruits and many of the aides are being asked to do work they are not really trained to do because of the shortage of nurses and internes.

However, she declared, the trained aides are ready to do whatever they are asked to do.

No Shortage of Grit. Mrs. Lippman recently returned from an official visit to England on the invitation of the British Ministry of Information. In discussing the "critical shortages" and how they are being met in England, she said the British are "short of everything but grit and determination and a sense 📂 humor.' The shortage of food in the British Isles. Mrs. Lippman said, has been greatly alleviated with their "farsighted agricultural policy" by which 65 per cent of the needed food is produced at home, mostly by Land Army Girls, who work from 4 a.m. until dark seven days a week, sometimes even do their plowing at night

No Rationing Complaints. Although by using "subversive" methods, the Red Cross director tried to discover the complaints of the people in respect to their general rationing, there were no complaints to be found: "They believe that the work, clothing and food are fairly distributed," she said. Even with the rationing of food she added, the general health is much better than it was before the rationing, for today a "greater number" of people are getting an adequate diet. For those people who can never eat at restaurants the Government has created a chain of "British restaurants" where the laboring classes are able to get a substantial meal for a small price.

However, there is a rising rate of tuberculosis which is due in part to the overcrowded conditions of industrial areas, the long working hours and the lack of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The manpower situation is critical, she declared. All men and women between the ages of 19 and 45 are required to register for drafting. However, women with children under 14 are not required to leave their homes but must do some sort of work where they are. Some of the women in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, which is similar to the WAACS in this country, even help man the battery guns "and are proud to do it.' Other speakers at the luncheor meeting which was held at the YWCA, Seventeenth and K streets N.W., included Dr. Russell Fields vice chairman of the Health Division, who spoke on the shortage of available physicians, and Miss Esther Beattie, head of the Registry of Nurses, who made an urgent plea for all women who have had nursing training and who are not in active duty to return to the job.

Miss Gertrude H. Bowling, chairman of the Health Division, introduced Mrs. Lippman.

Lutherans Would Defer > Boys Aiming at Ministry

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20 .- The United Lutheran Church in America, in convention here, urged in a resolution adopted yesterday that local draft boards be given permission to defer youths of 18 and above who intend to enter the ministry. The resolution, addressed to the selective service system, said young men in this category should be required to "produce certificates from recognized church authorities to the effect that they are pursuing their academic studies . . . and also certificates from recognized theological schools" stating they will will be accepted upon completion of such

Dr. Gould Wickey of Washing ton, executive secretary of the Church Board, told delegates that "President Roosevelt's 'four freedoms' are not enough to satisfy the soul of man in his search for free-

"We shall never have the fruits of freedom without the roots of freedom," he said, "and these roots are in the Christian faith."

This means that if District tokens are used the present fare by way of Lincoln Memorial amounts to 1313 cents, and on the downtown Virginia bus lines 1813 cents. It was explained, however, that the downtown Virginia buses also go to the Navy annex building as well as the Pentagon.

PUC Considers Call to Rescind Gas Increase

Petition by Byrnes And OPA Prompts Parley With Keech

Petition by Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes and Price Administrator Leon Henderson that the Public Utilities Commission rescind its order of last week granting a $200,000 rate increase to the Washington Gas Light Co. was being considered today by

After receiving the petition, filed by Harry R. Booth and David Ginsburg, PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said he had no comment except that he would consult with Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech for legal advice before any further PUC step was taken.

Something of an air of mystery was thrown about the case yesterday when announcement of the petition was withheld two and onehalf hours after it was filed with the PUC by agents of the OPA and Mr. Byrnes.

Delay Not Explained. The document was filed shortly after noon and reporters had been told an announcement would be made for the OPA by the Office of War Information. This was not forthcoming until 2:45 p.m. and it was not until this time that the PUC revealed its copies of the petition. Just why this delay occurred was not clearly explained.

In a letter covering the OPA petition yesterday, Mr. Henderson said: "It is my judgment that the action of the commission in issuing an order, without prior notice by the company to the director of economic stabilization, authorizing the company to charge rates higher than those in effect on September 15, is violative of both the letter and the spirit of the act of October 2. "To deny the director of economic stabilization an opportunity to intervene to the entry of such an order is effectively to destroy his ability to demonstrate why a proposed increase in utility rates may conflict with the program of the National Government to prevent further increases in the cost of living. Wired Wireless May Have Wide Use, OCD Says

Power Line Message System Seen as Defense Aid

Possibilities of national application of "wired wireless," a means of radio communication over power ines developed by Perry E. Wightman of Hyattsville in connection with the Prince Georges County defense setup, appeared today following the recent inspection of Mr. Wightman's network by OCD comunications officials.

Following a demonstration of the Prince Georges network, OCD officials said the system, so far as they knew, was the first application of wired radio communication to local defense, and added that the principle opened a field which may solve the problem of how to get information to civilians during an air attack when telephones and the regular radio channels are out of "National application of Mr. Wightman's system of communication," OCD spokesmen said, "naturally will depend upon civilian defense groups in the various localities who may set up networks of their own. As a centralized Nation-wide communication system, wired radio would not prove effective, but could solve numerous problems of communication now confronting the

Prisoners Freed To Work Farms Don't All Stay

Five out of approximately 20 To Induction Center prisoners released by Judge James R. Duncan of Alexandria Police Court to go to work on farms have returned to the city and have been arrested again.

Judge Duncan said he was not at all discouraged by this percentage as he expected it to be even higher He said that if a third of the shortterm offenders released actually went to work on the farms he would consider the experiment a success. Most of the men whose sentences vere supended about six weeks ago were serving terms for drunkenness or vagrancy. Traffic Council To Survey Auto Inspecting Firms

Group to Recommend Stations to Augment District's Own

Facilities in the District for tire inspection under the OPA program will be surveyed by the District Traffic Advisory Council to augment the two municipal inspection stations, it was decided last night. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and Whitney Leary, District OPA administrator, agreed at conference yesterday afternoon that the advisory group should study existing facilities, since the city motor vehicle inspection stations would not be able to handle the whole job. On the basis of the council's recommendations, the OPA administrator will then select the stations. Urging that the District Government's inspection stations be used to the fullest extent in carrying out OPA regulations, the Council named a study committee of five, B. A. Stone, chairman; Stanley Horner, Washington I. Cleveland, Richard Murphy and Lester Powell, to report recommendations at a special meeting of the Araffic Council at 8 p.m. Monday in Mr. Van Duzer's office. After several council members had expressed the view that not more than 50 Washington automobile service stations are equipped properly to inspect steering wheels, tires and brakes-all part of the tire inspection-disapproval of the proposed OPA inspection formula was Howard Starling said OPA "has wallowed the Baruch report recommendations and will impose hardships not only on car owners but on the dwindling number of automobile mechanics.

Trucks Least Affected.

Director Van Duzer pointed out hat under the proposed regulations for Nationwide observance, passenger cars would have to be inspected after each 961 miles of travel on a basis of gasoline rationing, whereas trucks and other commercial vehicles would be permitted 5,000 miles travel before being inspected. B. A. Stone said a "grand gouging by unscrupulous auto repair and inspection stations" might result, in-District Government inspection stations to inspect 73,000 passenger cars holding A cards three times a year, and 50,000 B and C card holders six times a year. Fees would be charged by private inspection stations, whereas the District inspection cost is included in the annual license fee. Three automobile inspections here year, as proposed by OPA as a national policy, would require more than 350 inspection stations, it was said. The first step necessary in formulating definite recommendations, it was agreed, is to ascertain the number of stations equipped to

The Traffic Council approved Director Van Duzer's recommendation that all persons apparently at fault in traffic accidents investigated by the accident investigation unit of the Metropolitan Police be required to submit to eye examinations to determine what part defective vision may have played in such accidents. Then, after a period of 90 days, if results indicate that re-examination might result in reduction of traffic accidents, the council's Regulation Committee would again consider the advisability of requiring re-examination of eyesight of all operators once every three years. No legislation is needed for adoption of such a policy, it was said. Await Data on Pedestrians.

The council requested the Comnissioners to withhold action amending the pedestrian control regulations until the council has completed its study and obtained further information from other large cities. The committee studying the matter is expected to submit recommendations at the regular November meeting. At its September meeting the council rescinded July action to the effect that "no pedestrian shall cross any roadway between intersections, except at regular cross walks or at those especially designated or

Referred to the Law Enforcement Committee for further study was a proposal that motorists turn in one of their two District license plates and thus make an estimated 35 tons of steel available for production of war material. Director Van Duzer said he agreed with the Police Department that enforcement would be difficult where a car bears only one license plate, although he admitted New York this year abandoned two plates in favor of a single plate. Referred to the Regulations Committee was a suggestion that automobile owners surrender steel bumpers and substitute wooden bumpers, to help provide steel mills with scrap. It was stated that three agencies-OPA, ODT and OCD-are seeking to ascertain public opinion on the question, although the Bureau of Standards has advised against adoption of the suggestion on the basis of the safety angle, the cost of processing this type of steel and the fact that replacements would require critical materials also Harry Wender reported that the Commissioners had accepted the council's recommendations with respect to continuing the work of the Accident Investigation Unit of the Police Department. It showed, he said, that the Commissioners are broad-minded and that the council members are "not rubber stamps or stooges for any group."

Park Areas Damage In Flood $200,000, Official Reports

Titanic Memorial Suffers: Work on 2 Underpasses Set Back Two Weeks

Flood damage to the Washington park areas, including the old C. & O. canal in Georgetown, was set at $200,000 today by Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, who announced that surveys were continuing on the work to be done in the wake of the recordbreaking inundation here last week.

Estimates of damage to the canal towpath and embankment, hardest hit of any section in the city, ran as high as $180,000. Mr. Root said there was little damage to the locks or equipment of the canal. The $200,000 figure does not include damage suffered by the B. & O. Railroad whose freight roadbed was washed out for several hundred feet. Mr. Root said several hundred dolway when flagstone walks and landworkmen were busy cleaning up Rock Creek Park roads and bridle paths which had been covered in places with landslides.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director, said today that work on the new roadway and overpasses at Fourteenth street and Maine avenue and at Independence avenue and the Tidal Basin would be delayed two weeks because of the heavy rainfall. The Maine avenue overpass leading to the Highway Bridge and Virginia was scheduled to be completed December 1.

Virginia Losses Heavy.

Virginia State officials estimated today following surveys through areas stricken by floods that damage to highways and bridges would total $1,000,000 and that the State's apple crop would suffer to the extent of $500,000. These figures did not include the high loss suffered at Fredericksburg, where life was returning slowly to normal.

State Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson reported a total of 928 feet in steelwork was ripped from 12 Albemarle County bridges alone, and three large spans were carried away in Shenandoah County. He reported three principual State highways still blocked; Route 2 between Fredericksburg and Richmond, Route 15 south of Culpeper. and Route 33 across the Blue Ridge between Harrisonburg and Gordons-

Approximately 750,000 bushels of pples dropped to the ground in Virginia orchards during last week's heavy rains, W. S. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia State Horticultural Society, estimated yesterday. Apple pickers resumed work yesterday, salvaging much of the fruit for use by by-product plants, he said.

6,000 Inoculated.

Gasoline and fuel oil which exploded and threatened the Fredericksburg water front over the week end was valued at $300,000. Approximately 6,000 of the city's 10,000 population have been given typhoid inoculation as the city warned the water supply was contaminated.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad said the break in its main line tracks on Afton Mountain in Virginia might be mended so as to permit resumption of traffic today. C. & O. trains have been rerouted between Charlottesville and Clifton Forge by way of Lynchburg.

Mr. Bischoff escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage to Mr. Major, who, with his brother, Mr. Stanley Major, awaited them at the altar. The bride's gown was of white bridal satin made with yoke, wide belt and inserts on the long sleeves of lace. The long skirt, which fell into a train at the back, also had lace insets and was covered by her full-length veil, which was edged with lace and held by a coronet of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a string of pearls and she carried white chrysanthemum with a shower of baby pompons.

Miss Virginia Clark of Chicago was maid of honor and the bride's other attendants were Miss Helen Major, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Robert L. Lewis. Autumn Brides Continue To Hold Social Stage

Miss Betty Boschen Weds Ensign Callaghan; Miss Hickman Marries Mr. B. L. Mills

Weddings continue to hold the center of the social stage, with attractive autumn colors in the decorations and in the gowns of the bridal attendants. Many of the weddings are hurriedly arranged because of military orders, among the latter being that of Miss Betty Vida Boschen, daughter of the late Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Boschen, U. S. A., retired, and the late Mrs. Boschen, who became the bride of Ensign John Beecher Callaghan, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Callaghan of Los Angeles. The bride came by plane from San Francisco, where she has continued to make her home since the death of her father. Gen. Boschen was retired several years ago when he completed a tour of duty in the Capital and with his daughter went to San Francisco to make their home, where he died shortly after. Needy Are Being Held To Too Low a Standard, Civic Group Is Told Conrad Van Hyning, director of the District Board of Public Welfare, last night urged a lifting of ceilings on monthly payments to persons and families in need of public assistance here.

The District official spoke at the first meeting of the season of the Monday Evening Club in the YWCA, Seventeenth and K streets

He termed the present relief ceilings "strangely undemocratic," and asserted that needy persons were being "held down to a standard of living too low for Washington.' Specifically, he cited the $42 a month given a mother with three children. A single person, he pointed out, receives but $25

Deploring the lack of representation in the District, Mr. Van Hyning, who is also head of civilian mobilization under metropolitan civilian defense, pointed out that only the voice of a sufficiently large group of people can have considerable effect in getting what we need." Such groups as the Monday Evening Club, he said, can band together in this respect.

The speaker then outlined the work of the civilian mobilization division and called on club members to assist in its program. On a motion of John Ihlder, head of the Alley Dwelling Authority, the membership voted that its primary object for the year would be Its assistance in the maintenance of civilian morale in Washington. In addition to going into problems of housing, recreation, health and child welfare here, the membership agreed to take up war-related matters not now covered by the activities of existing agencies.

A number of members volunteered to serve on a special committee which will work out a specific program leading to the appointment of other committees. The membership agreed, however, to keep the number of committees to a minimum, with emphasis more on quality than quantity.

Harald H. Lund, executive secretary of the District Tuberculosis Association, presided at the meeting, which was preceded by a dinner

Charges Against Toolmen Taken Under Advisement

District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws today had under advisement a demurrer to an indictment charging two dismissed War Production Board officials and three machine tool dealers with conspiracy to keep needed machine tools from being allocated to war contractors.

Defendants in the case are Robert B. Rhoads and Ralph L. Glaser, former chief and assistant chief, respectively, of the Available Used Tool Section of the Tools Branch of the WPB, and Louis E. Emerman and Clarence J. and Frank L. O'Brien, all machine tool dealers. The five are accused of conspiring to keep 71 tools out of production

Arthur B. Caldwell and George M. Fay, special assistant to the Attorney General, answering arguments of the defense, denied that any question of the constitutionality of the War Powers Act is involved. The WPB was set up by virtue of this act, and the defense claims that the act is unconstitutional and therefore any of its employes' acts were illegal.

Mr. Caldwell contended that it is unnecessary to defend the con-stitutionality of the statute, declaring that if the Government has been defrauded of the services of the two WPB men because of an alleged conspiracy, then the law forbidding such a conspiracy has been violated.

Limit Is 125,000; Iowa Training Center 3 Months Old Today

The WAAC training center in Fort Des Moines is three months old today. There are 3,500 officer candiexpected to reach the 10,000 mark by the end of this week,

The last exact figures available are as of October 12, when 4,027 WAACS had been enrolled and sent to the training center and 4,392 additional enrolled WAACS had been placed on the reserve lists pending expansion at the training center making it possible to admit these

The Women's Auxiliary Army Corps enrolls an average of 800 women a week, which by the end of this week should swell the total to 10,000! The President's executive order directing the establishment of the corps ordered the initial training of 25,000 WAACS, which goal the War Department expects to reach next spring. The bill establishing the women's corps limited the group to 125,000.

New Buildings Going Up.

Large new buildings are under construction at the old Army cavalry post in Iowa which is the training center, and enrolled women placed in the "reserve pool" shortly will be called to active duty at Fort Des Moines. The brief waiting time covers the period needed by most persons to resign from current employment and put their personal affairs in order before joining the armed forces.

When new buildings now under way are completed the school's total capacity will be 7,200 auxiliaries and officer candidates in training at any one given time. It is expected that this level will be reached in December.

At the outset the WAACS inducted officer candidates in order to build up the inner structure of the organization. This phase is now completed, and only auxiliaries, as the "buck privates" are called, are enrolled today. Those who qualify by scholastic background or by practical experience as executives or administrators may apply for appointment as officer candidates. If accepted they will receive eight weeks' additional training.

Number of Roles to Fill.

Auxiliaries are trained in administrative procedure, in transport work and as bakers and cooks.

The purpose of the women's corps is to replace men in non-combatant duties so that they may join the fighting fronts. On completion of training, WAAC officers and auxiliaries are organized into post headquarters companies averaging 150 ply sergeant, company clerk, other administrative personnel and bakers and cooks; the clerical platoon, composed of typists and stenog. raphers; a service platoon of motor transport personnel, a communications platoon for telephonic service and finally a miscellaneous platoon with theater, service club and library sections Post headquarters companies may vary in size and types of platoons according to requirements of the command requisitioning them. Each is tailor-made for efficiency and is an autonomous, self-sustaining unit.

Supervisory Authority.

Officers and non-commissioned officers of the Army under whom individuals or groups or units of the WAAC are assigned for work tasks have supervisory authority as they would have with civilian employes generally, but have no disciplinary authority. Derelictions of duty must be reported to the commanding

The comparative overall figure for the WAVES, naval counterpart of the WAACS, is 2,640 officers, probationary officers, officer candidates and enlisted personnel "on active duty," which means they have finished their training or are now receiving instruction at WAVE trainng centers at Smith College and at three Midwestern colleges.

Managers' Annual Report Discloses New Emphasis On Fitness Program

Special groups of officers of the armed forces are being given physall physical recreation facilties.

Reporting on the membership drive, A. D. Willard, campaign chairman and manager of Radio Station WJSV, said that 170 new members had been enrolled toward the goal of 1,300. Total membership, he said, now stands at 889, including boys from eight years of age.

The letter is to be sent constituent bodies for a survey of the situation. This suggestion will also be brought to the attention of the War Manpower Commission. Because of the many traffic accidents and deaths recently the situation is to be 'viewed with alarm and growing concern," according to Dr. Victor Myers, president of the organization. The announcement of the plan was made by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, chairman of the Emergency Feeding and Housing Corps, who said it had been decided that a Girl Scout troop should register at each emergency feeding and housing billet post and discuss with appropriate officials what services might be rendered from day to day. Mrs. Pinchot also announced that a training director for emergency feeding and housing had been appointed for each civilian defense area. These training directors are assistant deputy vardens named by Z. Alvin Biggs, director of wardens' training schools.

OCD officials also announced that approximately 200 Hampshire Heights air-raid wardens, who have completed the prescribed OCD training course, are to be presented graduation certificates at Roosevelt High School at 8 o'clock tonight by Dr. Paul Douglass, director of civilian

'Crystal-Gazing' Designers Foretell Fashion Future

Lipstick Cases and Compacts Make Excellent Salyage; 'Beauty Drive' Success

By Helen Vogt

If you've been wondering "whither are we drifting," you'll be interested in the fashion predictions of leading designers, as shown in a recent New York promenade. Their ideas about clothes to be worn during the next few years indicate that tomorrow's fashions will be much more interesting than today's. For instance, Helen Cookman thinks we'll be tired of short skirts when the war is over and decide to wear them a little longer. "We'll design with a luxury touch," she says, introducing a dress with dolman sleeve, floating panel at the back of a longer skirt, and a wrappy coat of "milk fur," a fleecy fabric dyed to match the dress

Kiviette feels that women are going to do everything possible to enhance their feminine charm. She designs a full skirted, strapless evening gown of cordura, a fiber now being used only for military purposes. Claire McCardell thinks we're going to have more leisure and do more traveling-in the stratosphere. Her idea to fit this need is a ski suit of redwood bark, as slim and figure hugging as the costume of Mephistopheles. Air-minded, too, is Popovers Prove Vera Maxwell, who can visualize two-week vacations in Egypt. For Favorite With week-end jaunts, her design is in celanese material, warm enough for the Everyone tropics. It's a four-piece outfit, including long coat, short jacket suit and play suit with matching parachute umbrella!

How good as guessers these designers are, we cannot say. All we know is that they've done nicely in the past, managing to anticipate the desire of women with clothes that also set the pace for the fashion world. So it wouldn't surprise us too much to find their predictions for not put popovers at the top or near the future come true.

What's New in Town?

By Dorothy Murray

Exit Cold Feet . . .

The whole town is discussing those new electric blankets controlled by a thermostat. Your bed is cozily warm when you crawl in and it automatically stays the same temperature all night, no matter how cold the weather gets toward morning. There is absolutely no need for an additional blanket, thus eliminating the extra weight that often causes you to awaken more tired than when you went to bed. Made by a well-known manufacturer, it is said to be very safe and the blanket can even be laundered. Comes in blue, green, cedar or gold color, or if you prefer something more "elegant," there's a quilted satin covered model.

'Strictly Personal' . . .

Personalized handkerchiefs make excellent "little gifts" for distant members of the family and casual acquaintances. They may be offered as "thank you" gifts or as a token of rememberance. If you are planning to give presents of this type for Christmas. we'd like to warn you that orders should be placed now. The reason for this is that to embroider the name of the person on each handkerchief does take some time. The handkerchiefs are made of lovely linen in white with either red and blue borders or gray with maroon borders. They come in sets of three, but only one name to a set is permitted.

Fireside Chat . . .

If you are one of those people who like to change the appearance of the living room every now and then, you might consider the addition of a portable mantel. You could make this the focal point in the room, grouping two comfortable chairs near it, and you will be surprised how "lived in" the room will look. These items are constructed to fit in with any period room and the shade will blend with your particular color scheme. The mantels have oyster white and black and white marblized face and jet-black hearth. Fireplace equipment does not, however, go with the mantel.

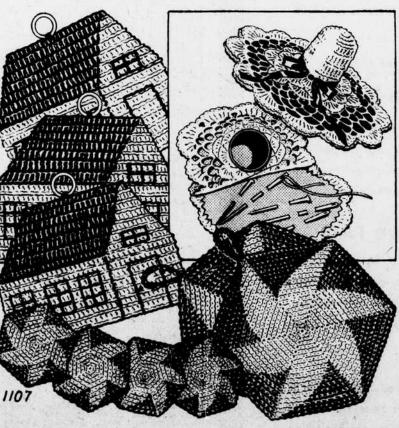

Fair and Warmer . . .

Wear a snuggle vest under your winter coat for extra warmth. These are made of quilted rayon satin and are reversible so you can have a "change of scenery." They would be particularly smart and practical for "around the house wear" on very cold days when 65 or 70 degrees of heat are just not enough. Each side of the vest is a different color and there is a wide assortment of shades.

Neatest Trick . . .

Here's a gift suggestion for some smart young lady. A set of nail polish and protective coating is nicely packaged in a leather case with foldover flap closing. The polish comes in the latest winter shades and the nicest part of the whole set-up is the fact that the case can be used later on to hold a package of cigarettes. It is comparatively inexpensive, too.

Whimsy in Crochet

By Peggy Roberts

At this time of year our thoughts naturally turn to gifts and Christ-mas. We know that this year most women are going to want to make their own Christmas gifts. These little crocheted articles will fill your need for inexpensive items and yet will seem adequate as gifts and church bazear novelties. The white house with red roof is an extra heavy potholder. A row of them should be hung above the stove. The two-toned pinwheels are coasters and mat or potholders, depending upon the size you make them. The lacy hat is a handy needle case.

Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for the above. Send 11 cents for pattern No. 1107 to Washington Star, Needle Arts Dept., P. O. Box, 172, Station D, New York, N. Y.

To Prevent Fatigue

Must Take Periods Of Relaxation to Guard Health

"Monnie, set the table, will you?"

"Just wait until I finish this chapter, mother." Monnie wiggled closer to the window to catch the last ray of the ight and read on and on. Granny entered the room, looked at her granddaughter and was amazed to see tears streaming down her face. She peeked to see the title of the book, a story of a distressed heroine who suffered much for goodness' sake. Shaking her head, granny went along and set the table, helped mother with the finishing touches and lit the lamps. Father had come home. Of course, there has been some basis for past differentiation because of variance in the consistency of lipsticks and rouge. However, this has been overcome and there are great advantages in the newer plan. In using the lip-rouge stick you can be certain that you have the same color on both cheeks and lips. Then too, in these days when it is patriotic and economical to conserve on our cosmetics this vogue is of particular interest.

Winning Contract

By THE FOUR ACES. (David Bruce Burnstone, Oswald Jacoby, Howard Schenken and Theodore A. Lightner, world's leading team-of-four, inventors of the system that has beaten every other system in existence.)

Cutting Communications

The great variety of plays at contract bridge is partly due to the partnership factor. Certain plays cannot be made from your own hand, and the enemy certainly won't make them; but your partner can and will. To counteract such partnership plays, it is sometimes necessary to cut the line of communications between the two opponents. For example:

West opened the king of dia monds, then studied the dumm rather carefully. He could reason ably expect to win two diamond and his spade king, but where wa the setting trick? The chance of making a heart trick was very re mote; but his partner might have a club trick, or it might be possible to get a club ruff. Hence West shifted to his singleton club.

South saw the purpose of this play and knew that West was a fine and resourceful player. If he gained the lead with the king of spades, he would underlead his top diamonds to give the lead to East; and then East would return a club to give West a ruff. How could the plan be blocked?

After some thought, he won the club shift with dummy's king and led the jack of spades from dummy. East played low, and South went up with the ace. He was pretty sure the finesse would lose anyway because of West's opening bid. If West had only one small spade, a club ruff with the spade king would do him no good. Then he led the jack of hearts.

West properly played low, and the jack held the trick. South continued with the low heart, dummy winning a finesse with the 10. On dummy's heart ace, South discarded a diamond. And then dummy led the heart queen, and South discarded his last diamond.

That discard made it impossible for East ever to gain the lead; and South had no trouble from that tinuing through the 21st, nuts will be a "Victory Food Special." Roy F. Hendrickson, agricultural marketing administrator, has been asked by nut producers to call to the attention of consumers the value of nature's most concentrated foods -nut meats. Nuts are rich in fat.

The almond contains 50 per cent fat. There is a near-record of unshelled nuts for us this coming season-300 million pounds! English walnuts represent more than onehalf of the total supply of domestic tree nuts, followed by pecans, almonds and filberts. from time immemorial and is be-lieved to be a native of the Mediterranean basin. The flowers are very peachlike and beautiful, and the almond nut of commerce is the stone of a peachlike fruit; the fleshy part is thin and hard and splits when the fruit is ripe. There are two general tribes of almonds, the bitter and the sweet.

The bitter is used in the making of flavoring extracts and prussic acid. This almond is mostly grown in Mediterranean countries. The sweet and edible almonds are in two classes, the hard and the soft shell. The former is of little value as a nut and is not grown to any great extent; the soft-shell type produces the edible almond of commerce with which the consumer is acquainted.

Almond trees are temperamental -they demand growing territories where extreme heat and cold are present. They have been known to be in bloom when snow was on the ground in late February, some as early as January. Some of the trees will have a loose-branching habit, while others will be vaselike. The pollen from the edible almonds is mingled with that of the hardshell. Insects play an impor-tant part in the transportation of vital pollen grains. The nuts are knocked from the tree by slight shaking or pushed off by light poles. They fall on canvas sheets which are drawn from one tree to another until each one holds its quota. The nuts are then poured into containers in which they wil be taken to the hulling depot. After being hulled, the nuts arrive at the packing houses to be sorted according to size and variety and STARBSERON AL spread on wooden trays to dry. Then they are treated to a steam bath in airtight booths made of concrete. This opens the pores of the
