'Whole Truth' On War News Asked by Byrd

Virginia Senator Hits Censorship Policy as 'Foolish, Unwise'

By the Associated Press. NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27 .- The people of the United States should be told the whole truth about the war, the good and the bad, except when the truth would be of aid to the enemy Senator Byrd said this afternoon in a Navy Day address at the Norfolk Navy Yard. The junior Senator from Virginia a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, criticized phases of Government censorship which he described as "very foolish and unwise.'

"The people at home are just as much interested in winning the war as their leaders, and the Government owes it to them to tell the truth, although not giving away military secrets. Often the facts have not been told," the Senator stated referring briefly to the latest repor on Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle's raid on Tokio which were in conflict with information released when news of the attack was first given the

"The casualty lists should be published, too," the speaker added. Armchair strategists and House members and Senators should not take it upon themselves to try to direct or criticize military leaders' actions, Senator Byrd said further, "and that applies to Wendell Wilkie, too," he said. Mr. Wilkie, the speaker added, can do a great deal of good by reporting his observations to the American people, but he should not "try to make political issues of war tactics.'

Senator Byrd also criticized the call for a second front by persons having no knowledge of military strategy, and stated that only the so far-reaching as instigation of for opportunities that might 'second or third fronts."

Decisive Battle Rages in Solomons, Outcome Not Clear, Knox Says; Scoffs at Jap Claims of Big Toll

After Sinking of Carrier Wasp

By the Associated Press.

The battle of the Solomons has erupted in a thunderous and possibly decisive clash of ships, planes and artillery over the watery grave of the United States aircraft carrier Waspvictim of three torpedoes.

All indications today were that the Japanese, goaded by continual bombing and a realization that their march of conquest had stalled, were throwing everything they have into a frenzied drive to crack the Allied front in the Southwest Pacific. Both the Japanese and German radios today reported Tokio claims of having sunk six United States warships, including four aircraft carriers and a battleship north of Santa Cruz Islands, and imperial Tokio headquarters asserted that 28 American warships had been sunk or damaged in the Solomons from August 25 to October 25, against Japanese losses of 17 warships and transports. The Japanese acknowledged the loss of 135 planes.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, at a press conference this morning, branded the Japanese claims as "another of their fishing expeditions" in quest of information

Full-Scale Attack. Loss of the 14,709-ton, $20,737,000 Wasp on September 15 was disclosed by the navy last night shortly before it was announced that a full-scale attack was roaring around the American defenders of Guadalcanal by land, sea and air.

Both announcements followed an extraordinary White House conference between President Roosevelt and the naval high command.

Capt. Forrest P. Sherman, commander of the Wasp, disclosed at Pearl Harbor last night that the carrier was making a turn when hit and if the torpedoes had been fired a few minutes later they would have | ing of six United States warships, missed. As it was, the first three including four aircraft carriers, hit near the bow and the fourth went one battleship and another ship

The battle now in progress already has resulted in severe damage to another United States carrier, the sinking of the destroyer Porter and lesser damage to an unspecified number of other ships.

But the fighting, which assumed major proportions Sunday after a series of tank, artillery and aerial attacks on Guadalcanal, has not all been one-sided. The Japanese have suffered damage to two carriers, two heavy cruisers and one light cruiser since Sunday. Twenty-two of their planes have been knocked out of the skies, including 17 fighters and five bomb-

Gather at Tidal Basin Monument to Honor Hero of Revolution

(Earlier Story on Page A-9.) "It is by the sea today that we must move to free the oppressed people of Europe and Asia from the heel of Germany and Japan."

This determination was expressed by Admiral Wilfred R. Patterson of the British Naval Commission to the United States, as some 300 representatives of the Navy, veterans and patriotic organizations of the District gathered at noon today for a Navy Day tribute at the John Paul

And this seemed to be the conviction of the men and women, of the service and from civilian ranks, who lined the banks of the Tidal Basin at Seventeenth street to place wreathes at the base of the monument erected to the memory of the "man who breathed into that newborn body-the United States Navy -the breath of vibrant life and undying loyalty and patriotism which is today our assurance of the preservation of our liberty and our fortunes and the safety of our loved ones and our homes.

Calls Set Anglo-U. S. Bond. The sea, said Admiral Patterson, who substituted for Admiral Sir Andrew B. Cunningham, chief of the British Naval Commission, called from Washington on official business, is an everlasting bond between this country and the British.

The war, he said, has welded a new understanding between the sea forces of the United Nations-one that will bring eventual victory. "That spirit of mutual trust and confidence and comradeship, which is so natural at sea, is what we must all have within and between the services, and within and between the people of the United Nations," Admiral Patterson declared. This Nation's Navy has suffered great losses and has scored great victories, he observed. "You may have more losses, but even greater successes. Your men at sea are doing a splendid job and you and we are proud of them."

Lauds Work of Men on Shore. But due credit, he continued, must be paid the "seaman ashore, the staff who work out the plans, who organize the convoys, the trade protection, the administration, the building of ships." These men, he added, build the foundation upon which the men at sea score their victories.

He concluded: "The foundations of your Navy were well and truly laid by John Paul Jones. He was a great seaman and he was a great man with a fine sense of duty. You will remember his action with the British frigate Serapis, and his words as he stood on the quarterdeck of the 'Bonnehomme Richard' shattered and sinking: 'Sir, I have not yet. which fills us all today, and that is the spirit which, overcoming all difficulties, will lead us to victory."

It is a "discouraging and disturbng picture" but the plain truth, Mr. McCarthy said, is that the Allies "are dealing with maniacs who have infected their nations with a mass psychosis and that psychosis must somehow be cured before we can hope for anything better than an armed and troubled peace after this war.'

"We are beginning to understand that the survival of China and the survival of America may be inseparable," he said, "that the defense of Egypt is also the defense of Stalingrad, and that the two are just as truly a combined operation as the joint drive that the Americans and Canadians have been making in the Aleutians.

"The Americans, the British and the Canadians at Dieppe were not three separate parties fighting for says?" three different countries. They were one united force storming that bit of coast on behalf of all the United The action of any one of the

. . If we lose sight of that point, if we drift back to the idea that we can hold ourselves aloof from each other's problems, there will be no security in the years ahead but, instead, the definite certainty of another devastation." Briefly reviewing the course of the war, Mr. McCarthy, who sits in the Washington Pacific War Council as Canada's representative, said: "I think we may take heart. * * * We have been forced to yield ground in some places, but in others we have recovered ground. And nowhere

Lodge and Saltonstall Victories Likely, But Margin May Be Slim

Isolationism Is Issue in Senate Race; Party Lines Expected to Fall

Mr. Lincoln is taking a preelection swing around the country. This is another in a series articles on election prospects.

By GOULD LINCOLN, Star Staff Writer,

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—Despite a veritable maze of cross currents running in the Massachusetts political campaign today, it looks as though Senator Lodge and Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, both Republicans, would be re-elected November 3, though the margin of victory may be slim. In addition, the Republicans probably will elect 10 Representatives in the House to four for the Democrats.

Representative Casey, the Democratic candidate for Senator, has made an active campaign against Senator Lodge, and his chances have improved. With a week still to go, it does not appear he has yet topped Lodge. Just as Senator Lodge is counting on Democratic and independent votes, plus the Republicans, to put him across in this election, so Representative Casey is relying, on Republican votes, independent, and the great majority of Democratic votes.

This seeming political paradox grows out of the old pre-Pearl Harbor isolationism issue and the conditions developing from the war. The Republican opposition to Senator Lodge is based on the isolationism issue. While Senator Lodge was one of the first men in Congress to advocate the Selective Service Act, supported all military and naval appropriations, and voted for the Lease-Lend Act, he was a noninterventionist when many of the Republicans in this State were going along with Wendell L. Willkie and President Roosevelt on foreign Recall League Fight.

There is a group of Republicans in the State who strongly favored the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations after the close of the last war-and they remember that Senator Lodge's grandfather, the first Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, did a complete wrecking job on the League covenant Casey was opposed by Former Mayor when that document was before the Senate. They visualize Lodge the younger in a similar role, when the war has been won. Also, although Senator Lodge voted for the lease-lend bill on its final is going to be sadly disappointed passage, he delivered a bitter speech against it when the debate opened in that body.

So some of Massachusetts' lead-Republicans have turned thumbs out for Mr. Casey.

The effort to dislodge Senator Lodge, however, proved a dud. The vote in the primary stood 176,000 for Senator Lodge and 22,000 for Mr. Crocker. It is these interventionist, anti-isolationist Republicans to whom Mr. Casey looks for aid on election day. It is possible to get a considerable list of these anti-Lodge Republicans, among them members of the intellectual group, bankers and prominent busi-

Irish-American Support.

It should be remembered, however, that the largest racial group in Boston, which is a Democratic stronghold, is Irish-American. In that group the stand taken by Senator Lodge before Pearl Harbor is regarded with a good deal of sympathy. From that group the Senator hopes to get as many or more votes than he will lose in Republican defections.

These issues of isolationism and non-interventionism are having their effects on other racial groups, it is said, notably the Italian, the Polish, the Canadian and the Jewish groups, all of which are large. Not by any means all or any of these groups are going to be guided purely by these issues in voting on the senatorship, but it is likely that appreciable numbers will be af-

It is a far cry from the war issue to birth control. However, a birth-control referendum is on the ballot in Massachusetts this year, placed there by means of the Initiative and Referendum Act.

The Catholic Church is conducting a campaign against the amendment. From every Catholic pulpit the word has gone forth to defeat the amendment. Special efforts have been made to register Catholic men and women so that they may vote. Democratic Catholic.

May Swing Ticket.

the Catholics to vote in the election will bring an unusually heavy Democratic vote to the polls, and that while these voters are plunking against birth control, they will vote the straight Democratic ticket. No one knows for certain just how effective this campaign will be, but it is one of those currents which sometimes swing elections.

Senator Lodge on the ground that he has tried to carry water on both shoulders—as when he spoke against the Lease-Lend Act and voted for it. He has sought to ridicule Senator Lodge's Army service in Libya last summer, calling it a "cook's tour," and made vigorous criticism of Secretary of War Stimson's letter to Senator Lodge, ordering Mr. Lodge off active Army duty so that he might remain in the Senate. Senator Lodge, on his part, has characterized Mr. Casey as a New Deal rubber stamp member of Congress.

In the gubernatorial race two Massachusetts "blue bloods" are fighting each other-Gov. Saltonstall, the Republican, and Roger L. Putnam, Mayor of Springfield, Democrat. Mr. Putnam is a descendant of Gen. Israel Putnam of Revolutionary War fame. He is also a nephew of A. Lawrence Lowell. president emeritus of Harvard.

Both candidates are graduates of Harvard. Mr. Putnam is a wealthy manufacturer. As a "Yankee" he balances the Democratic ticket with Irish Representative Casey.

Old Union Party Votes.

Six years ago Senator Lodge was elected to the Senate over former Gov. "Jim" Curley. His plurality was 140,000 over Mr. Curley. A third candidate, running on the Union party ticket, received approximately 118,000 votes. But even if this vote had been added to Mr. Curley's, Mr. Lodge would still have won by about 11,000 votes.

The hope of the Casey backers is that much of this Union party of 1936 vote this year will go for Mr. Casey, and probably much of it will. President Roosevelt carried Massachusetts in 1936 by 174.000 votes, and in 1940 by 136,000, while Gov. Saltonstall was being re-elected. This year Mr. Roosevelt is not

Former Mayor and Governor, Mr. Curley is staging a comeback into political life, running for the House in the 11th congressional district. The Republican Legislature has so redistricted Massachusetts that the Democrats stand to win in only four districts. One of these is the Curley district. Mr. Curley is making payments to the city as result of a civil suit brought to compel him to make restitution. It never went to the criminal courts.

If the Republicans win in 10 congressional districts and the Democrats in only four, as now seems likely, the GOP will have increased its present representation from 9 Representative Casey has attacked to 10, and the Democrats will have contracted theirs from six to four. ### Three Major Issues Shelved as Congress Turns to Campaigns

'Informal Recess' Delays Action on Draft, Poll Tax and Manpower

Three major legislative proposals were placed on the "don'ton political campaigns back

The measures were: To lower the draft age from 20 To abolish State poll taxes in Federal elections. To mobilize the Nation's manpower in an all-out war effort. The House decided not to act on Senate revisions in the 'teenage draft bill until a quorum was present, though Senator Gurney, Republican, of South Dakota, cosponsor of the measure, expressed hope an agreement could be reached in conference late next week. The bottleneck holding up the legislation consisted of two Senate amendments. One would require at least 12 months training for teen-age conscripts before sending them to combat, a provision opposed by the War Department. The other, less controversial, would defer from the draft men whose work is essential to farming.

The poll tax measure, previously passed by the House, came out of the Senate Judiciary Committee with a 13-to-5 vote of approval that left it enmeshed in a parliamentary

Senator Says Navy In Pacific 'Almost Out of Commission

Willis Declares People Fear Censorship Has Hidden More Losses

BEDFORD, Ind., Oct. 27.—Declaring that "people feel they haven't been given the facts of the war, Senator Willis, Republican, of Indiana, said last night that "our Navy is almost out of commission in the Pacific" and that only one American plane escaped after Brig. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's raid on Tokio last

"Convoys to Russia have been at great losses and all the disasters of the Pacific have not yet been ad-mitted," Senator Willis said in addressing a Republican rally, "We will not have confidence until we are frank with the people. Gives No Sources,

The Senator gave no source for his information on the outcome of the Tokio bombing, but asserted that "all but the plane that landed in Russia were destroyed.'

He did not amplify his remark concerning the Navy in the Pacific. However, he said of the convoys that a sailor aboard a supply group sailing from Iceland for Russia in June told him the convoy "was almost literally cut to pieces." Of the 40 ships in the convoy, Senator Willis said, "only 10 per cent arrived to be effective in the war."

He added that part of the group was lost when "a British warship left the convoy to hunt subs."

"Censorship as practiced by the Government has created a distrust e the rescuing crews. Chapman said in the people and the people are fearful that even greater losses have, been concealed." Senator Willis de-"We should demand that censorship be restricted only to those happenings necessary for the success of the war program."

Douglas MacArthur should be placed at the head of such a command. Discussing the monopoly suit by the Department of Justice. Senator Willis charged that "the administration is trying to control the freedom of the press."

Wasp's Last Moments Were Like '40 Hells,' Survivor Relates

Captain's 'Swift Action' Saved Many When Oil Caught Fire on Sea

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.-A fighter plane had come to rest on the broad, flat top of the Wasp and a group of other fighters and bombers just had taken off.

"We were busier than you ever could imagine. Suddenly as if something were biting through the waters of the Pacific there were three white streaks of foam. Every one knew what was coming. The skipper made one fine effort to save the ship by turning her at a critical moment while we were handling planes on deck—but boom! A minute or so probably would have Thus, Harry I. Penrod of Balti-more, aviation chief ordnance officer, described the moments preceding the aircraft carrier's doom. "It was like 40 hells, what hap-

"Nearby were destroyers which couldn't get close because of the continuing explosions shaking the inside of the Wasp. clated Press War Correspo PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 27.-The harp cry of "torpedoes!" was the first warning the crew of the aircraft carrier Wasp, sunk in the Solomon Islands September 15, had of impending disaster.

Capt. Forrest P. Sherman, the carrier's commander now safe at Pearl Harbor, said in an interview that three torpedoes fired by a sub-marine exploded against the fore part of the Wasp in rapid succession as she was changing course. A fourth torpedo missed. A few minutes later, he said, and all the torpedoes might have missed.

Rescue destroyers paused now and then, he related, to shoot sharks that approached swimmers in the water.

$45,000 Payment for Ship Sold in 1936 For $6,605.95 Is Aired

Details of a transaction by which the Coast Guard cutter Seneca was sold in 1936 by the Coast Guard for $6,605 and repurchased in 1941 by the Maritime Commission for $45,000 were laid before Congress today by Chairman Bland of the House Merchant Marine Commit-

The vessel, now the Keystone State, is in service as the training vessel of the Pennsylvania State Nautical School.

After the transaction was criticized in Congress early this year by Representative Jones, Republican, of Ohio, Mr. Bland investigated the circumstances and today submitted his correspondence with Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission for the record.

Further Investigation Planned. Mr. Bland said the transaction would be subject to further investi-

Admiral Land, in a letter to Mr. Bland, explained that the Coast Guard sold the ship to the Boston Iron & Metal Co. of Baltimore in September, 1936, for $6,605. A month later the company sold the Seneca and two other vessels to the Texas Refrigerator Steamship Lines, Inc., of New York for $52,500. In the meantime the Boston company had spent $168.61 for maintenance of the Seneca, making its net cost

Shortly thereafter Texas Lines went into bankruptcy, Admiral Land said, and foreclosure proceedings were instituted by the Boston company, which repossessed the Seneca April 7, 1937, at United States marshal's sale, for $10,200. Other expenses, including crew's wages, towing, incidental repairs, legal and travel costs amounted to $7,477.81, Admiral Land said. Price Rise Cited.

"When consideration is given," Admiral Land wrote, "to the repairs made to the vessel while in the possession of the Texas Refrigerator Steamship Lines, Inc., totaling an estimated $15,800, the total net costs incurred for the Seneca between the date of September, 1936, when the Boston Iron & Metal Co. purchased the vessel from the Coast Guard, and January, 1941, when she was sold to the commission, amounted to $37,418.08."

In February, 1941, Admiral Land said, the commission was faced with gram. the "immediate necessity" of finding a training vessel for the Pennsylvania State Nautical School, and had to go to the open market to der way today plans went forward find a suitable ship.

It was right after Munich, and Vera Weisskopf and her school-mates in the little high school in Brno, Czechoslovakia, were studying their geography lesson. They didn't feel much like it, but there wasn't anything else to do, really, except to go on pretending that nothing had happened as long as they could. When they first heard the rumble of motors in the distance, they fidgeted nervously in their seats. But when the roar grew louder and they heard the rumble and clank of armored cars and trucks outside their windows, they stopped studying and walked over to the windows and watched the Nazis roll by, their guns perched menacingly.

But nothing happened. Weisskopf and her classmates went back to their seats after awhile and studied their geography lesson.

Nearby Virginians and Marylanders Included Among Casualties

One District officer, previously listed missing, and two enlisted men are counted dead in the Navy's casualty list No. 15, released for publication today. One enlisted man was listed as wounded.

The list also includes Richard (Duke) Alexander, former University of Maryland football and track star, who was reported killed in action with the Marines in the Solomon Islands.

Ensign Kenneth Gordon Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lee, 3130 Wisconsin avenue, reported missing on July 3, now is put in the list of

Lt. Edwin Robson Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Nelson, 3024 Porter street N.W., is listed as missing in the new list. The two enlisted men reported

Services Face Shortage

By JESSE O. IRVIN.

Paul V. McNutt, Manpower Commission chairman, said his agency planned to issue a public statement concerning a farm decision tomor-

The Selective Service Administration's manpower chief, Col. Lewis Sanders, asserted that the labor power drain on war factories from the induction of men into the Army is "approaching a crisis." He predicted that it would be reached between December and February. Sanders Offers Secret Data.

In this connection Col. Sanders intimated to the Senate Military Affairs Committee that uneconomically small dairy herds were marked for discard. He said a program which will "revolutionize American farming" has been made "inevitable" by the manpower crisis, and he offered to supply the committee with secret data which would bear out his contention that "we have got to produce more in agriculture with less people."

Col. Sanders noted that "21 per cent of our military manpower" is power and womanpower. "All availemployed in agricultural pursuits able workers, both men and women, "under normal conditions" and only 33 per cent in manufacturing.

He advocated compulsory changes in the dairy industry's two-price system and cotton raising in the South and predicted that the Nation is going to have to "spread crop sea-sons." Present cultivation and harvesting methods are too wasteful in terms of manpower to be supported in the manpower crisis that war conditions will create, he declared.

Green Opposes "Freezing." While Mr. McNutt was telling newspaper men that the administration's draft bill for universal service would be available whenever the President requested it, William Green, president of the AFL, said his organization was opposed to the enactment of "job freezing" tion at this time. Senator La Follette, Progresive, of such action is imperative." He said

Wisconsin, said problems dealing his organization regarded the prowith manpower, small business enterprises and allocation of critical materials must be solved before the country can achieve maximum production on the implements of war. Discussing the manpower situation, the Senator said:

"The manpower muddle is what I call it. It seems incredible, but at this late date there has been involved no overall or master plan for distribution and control of manpower. The result is that essential workers are being drained from agriculture and industry to a point where I believe production in both is declining.

He said Federal officials might well study a system of categorical deferments now in practice in England by which men with necessary skills are kept at their trades. Mr McNutt informed newsmen that occupational deferments was being studied by his commission. Mr. Green said that an occupational deferment commission should be appointed for the purpose of deferring skilled manpower.

Meantime, the Agriculture Department said farm wage rates on October 1, were the second highest before he was rescued by a deon record, and the farm labor supply was the smallest on record. The farm wage rate represents an 18point rise since the last quarterly report on July 1. The department said usually there is no change from July to October. The wage index year's time," it was stated. Mr. McNutt refused to discuss the details of the farm decision. However, as it was forecast a week ago the decision is reported to call for the issuance of a directive to selective service for deferment of trained workers on dairy, poultry and livestock farms having a minimum of 12 cows or chickens, which would require work equivalent to keeping 12 cows. Farms having eight cows would be allowed time to increase their herds to 12.

Inforced sources said the directive would not constitute a "job freeze." Workers will be permitted to leave essential farms, but if they go to unessential farms or to work in essential or pon-essential factories they will first have to clear with their draft boards and their defernewspaper a debt of thanks for the ments will be revoked. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said yesterday that high wage scales in war industry have been the major factor in depleting the farms of trained men. The directive will not include crop

Canada to Allocate Tonnage To Newsprint Factories 'Deep in the Heart of Texas" sung

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.-All manufacturers of newsprint in Canada are required to operate under permit after November 1, R. L. Weldon, newsprint administrator for the Prices Board, announced today.

He said the move was aimed to facilitate control in allocating newsprint tonnage among the various manufacturers. The order applies to export as well as domestic production Copies of the new order, together with permits to manufacturers, were mailed to all newsprint companies last night.

"To meet the rapidly-growing need for electrical power and manpower in war industry and to facilitate control arising out of these needs, it has become necessary to allocate newsprint tonnage to the various newsprint manufacturers," said today's Prices Board statement.

P. was organized, and such competition has been fostered rather than hindered by the very provisions of A. P.'s by-laws which the Government now challenges as constituting an undue and unreasonable restraint of trade.

Chief among such provisions are the requirements (1) that applicants to membership only by the affirmative vote of not less than a majority of the members voting on the application, and (2) that regular members of A. P. furnish the news of their respective localities only to A. P., and that A. P. serve no newspapers other than those owned by its members. The by-laws of A. P. have contained such provisions for the past 42 years.

P. had monopolized or attempted to monopolize the collection or distribution of news, or that A. P. had in any way violated the anti-trust statutes of the United States.

3. In December, 1941, one Marshall Field commenced publication Chicago, Ill., of a newspaper called the Chicago Sun. At the annual meeting of the members of A. Qualities Praised by Government. 6. A. P. was organized in 1900 and for 42 years has been furnishing to members a news service which the Government itself characterizes as embodying the highest standards of accurate non-partisan and comprehensive news reporting. The nature of the service furnished by A. P. and the resulting contribution which A. P. has made to the dissemination of complete and unbiased information of world events man Perry, E. Lansing Ray, Edward and conditions are not fortuitous but stem from the very character of A. P.'s organization. This in turn reflects the experience gained in a long-continued struggle by newspapers to obtain effective co-operative control over the news gathering and distributing facilities upon which they depend.

7. Prior to the formation in 1892 of the Associated Press of Illinois, the collection and distribution of the news of the world had been largely restricted to agencies which were privately owned by small groups of in the same locality served by an averments contained in the said newspapers. They dealt at arm's length with other newspapers to membership in A. P. only by vote which they sold news at such profit as might be secured.

10. The basic reason why A. P., in the language of the complaint (Par. "ranks in the forefront in public reputation and esteem" is that "the character of the organization of the Associated Press—a membership corporation composed of persons representing every shade of economic, political and religious opinion and every section of the country-is an invaluable guarantee that the promise and claim made by each news agency—that it presents the news without any political or sectional bias-will in fact be fulfilled." The good will which A. P. now enjoys results, again in the language of the complaint (Par. 66), "from 4. 13. If the news gathered through the co-operative facilities of A.P. nembers were required to be made available to every one, whether a member or not, the incentive of each member to contribute his time, effort and money to the upbuilding of an organization for the mutual benefit of himself and of others making a like contribution would disappear.

No matter how great the contribution of the member had been, or over how long a period it had been made, he would enjoy no competitive advantage over others who had not thus ventured their time and resources. Under such circumstances, the loyalty so essential to the efficient and successful operation of a mutual enterprise could not survive.

Value Created. Through their continued loyalty to the enterprise, members have created something of value to each, the benefits of which others should not be able to appropriate without bution to the mutual co-operative undertaking. Automatic admission to membership, without a commensurate contribution and without the assent of a reasonable proportion of the members, would destroy the co-operative character of the enterprise.

15. The continuance of A. P. as a mutual co-operative enterprise eninterest of its members is of far greater importance to local newspapers in small communities than it is to large metropolitan newspapers. One reason for this is that local newspapers in small communities must place greater reliance upon a news agency for adequate news coverage; another reason is that such ewspapers usually lack the financial resources with which to come against a newspaper which is launched by a powerful individual group of individuals for the particular purpose of accomplishing ome selfish end.

16. However serious to each individual member the loss of his proprietary interest in A. P. and such resulting competitive advantage as he may enjoy, the loss to the public would be incomparably greater. Rivals Established Later. 17. When A. P. was organized in 1900, there were no other news agencies of comparable size or impor tance. In 1907, the present United Associations (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "U. P.") Service (hereinafter sometimes refurnishes news to approximately 900 A. P. now renders. newspapers, as against 1,246 in the United States presently served by in the third sentence of paragraph A. P.; and that I. N. S. similarly serves approximately 325 newspapers. A. P. has never monopolized or attempted to monopolize the collection or distribution of news. 18. The growth of competing news agencies has been fostered instead of hampered by A. P. through the restriction of A. P.'s service to its own members. Were A. P. obliged to admit to membership every newspaper which was prepared to pay its pro rata share of the cost of gathering and distributing the news, A. P. would not only become a commercial news agency but, in view of the good will attaching to its name over a long period of years, it might well become the only news agency furnishing complete news coverage. The presently unfounded charge of monopoly in the collection and distribution of news might then be substantiated in fact. 19. There can be no monopoly with respect to the sources of news which are open to any one willing to expend the effort and money required to report them. Neither can there be a monopoly of the facilities A. P. have been, freely open to every one on the same terms. 20. Deny the averments contained obstacles erected by Field and by representatievs of the Anti-Trust

The first obstacle was the fact that Field, coincident with his so-called application for membership, charged that A. P. was engaged in a conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws. In substance, Field's action was a threat of litigation and not a bona fide application for membership

The second obstacle was the fact that Field admitted that he had not acquired any newspaper plant or press with which to publish the Chicago Sun. There was no assurance, therefore, that he intended to continue with reasonable permanence the publication of a newspaper after the exigencles of a particular political controversy should have ceased

The third obstacle was the fact that, between the time when Field filed his application and the date of the annual meeting of A. P. at which action thereon was taken, many members of A. P. were interrogated by agents of the Anti-Trust Division of the Department of Justice concerning their attitude toward the application of Field. Advisory Committee Meets With Nelson To Discuss Problems

The Newspaper Industry Advisory ommittee was told today by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of War Production Board, that curtailments in the newspaper industry are absoperiod. The committee, composed of 25 prominent newspaper executives. held its first meeting with Mr. Nelson at the WPB offices. An all-day session was planned to discuss the wartime problems of the country's papers. The only Washington newspaper executive on the committee is Fleming Newbold, vice president and business manager of The Evening Star.

Mr. Nelson was not specific about the curtailments he believes must be made in the industry, but said he accept them willingly when they know the facts.

"We have got to tighten up on domestic economy because we have got a war to fight," declared Mr. Nelson. "We can't do the job and carry on as usual."

He emphasized that the printed word is important in a democracy because it involves some of the things for which this Nation is the right to determine what news fighting, including freedom of speech and freedom of the press. 'This Above All' Author, Native of England, Takes Oath Here

Capt. Eric Knight, known to millions of Americans for his novel, "This Above All," the best-selling war epic, and for "The Flying Yorkshireman" and other Sam Small stories, yesterday took his oath in District Court as a citizen of the United States during a special military naturalization ceremony.

Capt. Knight was the only officer who, with 10 enlisted men, became a full-fledged citizen of the country in whih he has made his home for the past 30 years. He came to this country in 1912, and, although he has spent considerable time in his native England since then, he has always considered the United States

The grim, realistic story that attracted almost universal attention when it was published two years ago was developed from a story started by Capt. ### Little Chance Seen For Any Increase In Coffee Ration

OPA Spokesmen Say Widespread Use Prohibits Adjustment of Supply

Office of Price Administration spokesmen offered little hope today that the announced coffee ration of one pound every five weeks for could be liberalized in the

The ration, effective after midnight November 28, was fixed only after careful consideration of the imports expectable from future shipments, spokesmen said. Little margin was left between supply and anticipated demand, the officials said, since it has been ascertained that about 92 per cent of all American families are coffee users. This appeared to leave little leeway for any subsequent adjustments based on failure of demand to absorb available supplies. Some coffee merchandising circles reported that 35 to 40 cups could be obtained from each pound of coffee. Luther Reid, chief of rationing information, estimated 45, but even that figured out at less than 1½ cups a day for every person over 15.

Meanwhile, another OPA official pointed out today that restaurants and hotels were going to be brough under the coffee rationing plan, but that OPA had not yet determined to what extent these places would be affected.

It is believed OPA will establish a base period for a portion of last year and that a certain percentage of coffee purchased then will be al lowed these users. A WPB limiting order issued this summer cut hotels and restaurants to 65 per cent of purchases for a base period last year, but the OPA AS Housewives Rush official said this percentage "may be increased or decreased, depending on surveys now being made." The rationing was expected to spur a search for substitute beverages which already is under way These probably will not include tea or cocoa since black tea sales have been cut 50 per cent, Green tea is virtually unobtainable and 40 per cent.

There's plenty of Anthracite

-but don't ask for more unless you really need it

The Anthracite Industry produces 52 weeks a year . . . but it cannot supply the demand when it comes all at one time!

IN addition to the six million homeowners who regularly use Anthracite, the Industry has taken on a huge, new war job since Pearl Harbor. It must now supply Anthracite for the hundreds of thousands of people who cannot get other fuels.

Does this mean there will be a shortage of Anthracite?

In the six-month period from April 1st to October 1st of this year, the Industry produced three million more tons of Anthracite than were produced in the same months of 1941.

In the next six months (October 1st to March 31st, 1943) the Industry expects to produce at least four-anda-half million more tons than it did in the corresponding period last year. (Coal mines do not shut down when cold weather comes—they just keep right on turning out coal!)

Then what is the problem? Simply this:

So many patriotic citizens responded to the Government's campaign urging people to buy a year's supply of Anthracite, that now the Government has asked Anthracite dealers to discontinue immediate deliveries except to those people who have little or no coal. If you ask your Anthracite dealer to break with these instructions, you will be asking him to take coal away now from some family that really needs it!

Are Maine potatoes better than Idaho's? Are Southern girls prettier than Northern girls? Is ple better for breakfast than grapefruit?

Should Americans put aside all such disputes for the duration? Definitely . . . NO!

For the competitive spirit that inspires such arguments is the very spirit of America . . . the love of keen competition and the desire to out-do each other that is inherent in the American character.

Men who join the armed forces quickly find themselves shoulder to shoulder with men of different accents and opinions. And sectional pride and sectional disputes become a lively part of camp recreation with Yank and Texan, Hoosier and Cracker each loudly asserting the supremacy of his own part of the country and the pathetic shortcomings of every other section.

But through such experience, through a certain amount of wholesome disagreement, each really gets to know the others, and the result is teamwork, in which men of many different types merge their varying qualities into doing the one big job.

One of LIFE's functions is introducing the Vermonter and the Californian to each other . . . showing Texans how folks live up in Michigan, and helping the city man to understand the farmer, and the laboring man to understand the whitecollar desk sitter.

Of course, LIFE cannot do as the army does and let the Los Angeles shopkeeper meet the Vermont farmer in person, but LIFE can, and does, through its graphic picture-story technique, show the Californian that the Vermonter is not a hide-bound, unprogressive provincial, but a very human citizen, supplying other states with soldiers and food and clothing . . . even though he may like pie and doughnuts with his morning ham and eggs.

At the same time, LIFE shows the Vermonter that the Californian is not a blustering, boastful fellow surrounded only by amazingly beautiful scenery and fabulously beautiful movie stars, but is a hard-working American with the same admirable traits the Vermonter somehow thought were peculiar to "Down East Yankees."

To the farmer, East, North, South, and West, LIFE brings an understanding and respect for the white-collar worker in Washington, D.C., shows him how the "city feller" works long hours in crowded offices and sleeps wherever he can find six feet of unoccupied space.

And when LIFE takes the city man back to the soil, shows him the North Dakota farmer and his family, daughters included, harrowing far into the night by the light of burning headlights, the city dweller must gain a deeper respect for agriculture and a better understanding of its wartime problems and importance.

Thus LIFE serves as a force for creating better understanding between widely separated, variously occupied people. As Americans are sacrificing their lives, millions are coming to understand that Americans can keep their individual idiosyncrasies, their sectional prides, their varying opinions about potatoes and politics, and still present a united Psychological Front in the common war for freedom.

More than 4 million copies sold each week! Read by more than 23 million people! Bought by more people, read by more people than any other weekly magazine in the history of publishing!

The millions of LIFE readers who live in big cities are constantly finding sympathetic realization of the importance of "hick towns" to our war-effort pattern as LIFE time and again takes them to places like Neosho, Missouri (pop. 5000). The ardent, all-out-for-war attitude of Neosho citizens is explained by 70-year old Glenn Wolfender, local newspaper editor. "It's a moral conviction, and when you got that you ain't got anything stronger in this world. Maybe it's something you city people could use. No offense,

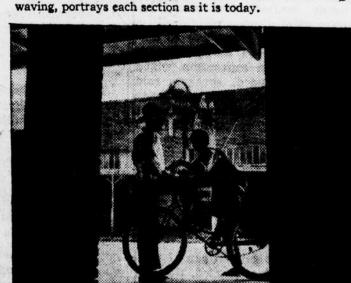

It is very evident that the leaders of our armed forces find there is an advantage in having units made up of men from widely separated parts of the country. These members of heroic Torpedo Squadron 8, whose story was told in LIFE, exemplify the kind of teamwork that knows no state boun-

eight different states: Lt. Commander Waldron, Fort Pierre, S.D.; Lt. Owens, Los Angeles, California; Lt. Moore, Petersburg, Virginia; Ensign Teats, Sheridan, Oregon; Ensign Evans, Indianapolis, Indiana; Ensign Abercrombie, Kansas City, Missouri; Ensign Ellison, from upper New

These days when it is important for people to understand and respect all sections of their fighting nation, LIFE presents the many groups-takes its readers, for example, to D'Lo, Mississippi, a town whose streets are emptied of all but very old and very young men, since 61 of D'Lo's 400 population have enlisted in the armed forces. If the rest of the country had done as well in proportion to population, the U.S. would have 20,000,000 men in uniform right now. In such stories as "The Fighting South," LIFE, with no flag waving, portrays each section as it is today.

War Fund Appeal

The Community War Fund campaign now opening represents the most comprehensive effort of its kind ever attempted in the Nation's Capital. Its objective is the raising of $4,141,000 for the maintenance of necessary social agencies serving many war relief purposes as well as all the home front organizations required for the welfare of such a great metropolitan center as Washington has become in recent years. The money will be solicited by 15,000 volunteer workers, a number of whom are newcomers to the District of Columbia but for that very reason are concerned to help in the solution of problems evolving from the endeavor toward victory.

For these "beginners" the sincere co-operation of older residents is particularly invited. The War Fund drive will be an enterprise in which the essential neighborliness of all classes and groups of people can be demonstrated. Already there is evidence to show that a more constructive solidarity is developing in Washington under the impact of the prevailing emergency. In the Community Chest campaigns of the past individual members of important labor unions took part, but this year the unions themselves are pledging their aid. Government employes likewise are sharing in the solicitation on this occasion to a degree hitherto unapproached.

The explanation of the magnetism of the War Fund effort probably may be found in the fact that the average individual man or woman appreciates its significance as a factor in the struggle to save democratic civilization from destruction by the Axis aggressors. It is not necessary to argue with an American in behalf of the preservation of national morale. The boys who are fighting on thirty different foreign fronts expect their friends at home to fend off the ancient foes of human health and happiness. It is the special duty and privilege of civilians to contribute toward the winning of the strife with disease, poverty, ignorance and crime.

Of course, the drive must succeed. Any failure would be a concession to the enemy. Every penny given to the War Fund is a penny devoted to the gaining of the victory for which the whole American community is toiling-not merely the imperative triumph of the United Nations over the Axis powers but also the fulfillment of the ideal of the earth set free from unnecessary sorrow and pain. To that ultimate goal, then, every resident of Washington is summoned today.

Truck Speed Curb The 35-mile speed limit imposed on highway transportation to conserve rubber, as the result of the Baruch Committee recommendations, is creating a problem for truck and bus lines. Such ponderous freight and passenger vehicles are geared to cruising speeds higher than that now permitted, and practical difficulties are encountered when considering measures to make their operations conform to the new Federal regulations. In consequence, the American Trucking Association and the National Association of Motor Bus Operators, representing the carriers, are urging modification of the speed order which was promulgated by the Office of Defense Transportation at the request of Rubber Administrator Jeffers.

Truckmen contend that the freight haulers cannot be operated successfully under forty miles an future. hour — that lower speed causes increased fuel consumption and greater engine strain. Assuming that new differentials could be installed in the trucks-and this is said to be out of the question—they argue further that a thirty-five-mile schedule would necessitate rearrangement of division points, with a probable loss of labor, due to employes refusing to move. At the truck association convention, which was just concluded, speakers said the restriction was cutting mileage 18 per cent. This, of course, means a corresponding reduction in tonnage. An interesting development of that meeting, as reported in the official organ of the association, was the statement of a War Department spokesman opposing the speed limit as a hindrance to the movement of supplies, and urging the truckers to riers, however, call for attention. Transportation officials properly could be expected to be chary of any move designed to weaken the regulations or set an undesirable precedent, but such objections hardly could be advanced in this instance. If the modification is justified, it must be because the rubber saving represented by the difference in speed does not offset the operating handicaps cited in behalf of the industry.

Mr. Willkie Reports

Wendell Willkie conveyed an impression of deep sincerity in his report to the Nation last night. He has traveled 31,000 miles through countries that were old when our side of the world was an uncharted wilderness. He has talked with the leaders and the plain men and women of peoples who have suffered for centuries at the hands of conquerors and plunderers. And he has come home profoundly troubledsensing that the old order in the East is crumbling and that we of the Western World are not prepared to keep pace with the social and economic revolution which is already in the making.

In detail, there were some things in his report to which exception might be taken. He dwelt at length, for example, with the problem of India, treating it as a symbol of what has been wrong with the relations between the white race and the peoples of the East. Mr. Willkie had no solution of his own for the Indian problem, but he was critical of our tacit acquiescense in how it is being met. He seemed almost to suggest that we should have forced the hand of the British; that it would have been better to have risked impairment of our relations with Britain rather than accept the present state of affairs. Perhaps he is right, but there will be many to doubt the wisdom of such a course.

Referring again to our attitude toward India, he said that the people of the East "cannot tell from our vague and vacillating talk whether or not we really do stand for freedom, or what we mean by freedom." If this was a literal statement, which probably it was not, one wonders why the people of the East think we are in this war. Had we not stood for freedom we might have avoided a collision with the Japanese and the Germans. They were not anxious to fight us, but they realized that their pattern of conquest could never be secure while the United States remained a free Nation, devoted to the ideal of freedom. For that reason they attacked us, and it is difficult to believe that anything we might have done about India could have given greater assurance of our genuine devotion to freedom than the sacrifices now being made by Americans all around the world. No doubt India aspires to freedom, but many Americans have been disturbed by the attitude of India. Our people believe that freedom is worth fighting for, and they find it difficult to comprehend the point of view that there is little to choose between the Axist on the one hand and the United Nations on the other. It is somewhat irrelevant, perhaps, but it might be said of them that they cannot tell from the vague and vacillating talk of the Indian leaders whether they really do stand for freedom, or what they mean by freedom. If the question basically is one of good faith, it is difficult to accept the view that only the British and the Americans have failed to It would be easy to miss the real importance of what Mr. Willkie had to say, however, by paying undue attention to certain of the details. Some of his specific criticisms and suggestions may have been unwarranted, but he was right in his major premise that we must find some formula for satisfying the legitimate aspirations of those millions of people who are demanding that freedom shall mean equality for them. Somehow, this has to be done. The first step, as Mr. Willkie suggested, should be to place the facts before our own people so that they may form an intelligent opinion as to whether we are measuring up adequately to the task of fighting the war, which lies immediately before us. This is the first thing to be done, and if the enunciation of a "Pacific Charter" is desirable to that end at this time, as Mr. Willkie seems to believe, we should not shrink from taking the step. But we should never lose sight of the fact that there will be no peace to win if the war is lost. The desperate urgency of the immediate task must be kept in mind as we seek a solution of those problems which, re'atively speaking, belong to the

OWI Explanation The assumption by the Office of War Information of joint responsibility with the War Department for the policy of secrecy and, in a sense, deception which has been followed with respect to the capture of American airmen by the Japanese should serve to silence the criticism which this incident aroused in some

The OWI statement was issued by Elmer Davis, director, and Paul C. Smith, his military information deputy. They make the flat statement that, in their judgment, secrecy was highly desirable in the hope of saving the lives and securing the freedom of certain crew members who crash landed in areas controlled by the enemy.

This statement, to be sure, does not reveal any specific considerations upon which this judgment was based. To make such an explanation at Caesar's chant of victory, Mr. Arnold endanger lives of great value to the American cause.

The effect of these assertions is to give the whole matter a decidedly mysterious aspect. But Mr. Davis and Mr. Smith both command respect for their known devotion to the ideal of revealing all of the truth that properly can be told. Because of the record they have made in this respect, their present statement should be accepted at its face value. As they have suggested, the correctness or error of their position in this instance can be appraised when all of the facts become available. Meanwhile, it would be well to refrain from hasty judgments.

Navy Day

It was our custom in days of peace to devote this one day, out of the year's three hundred and sixty-five. to speeches and ceremonies which would give a fillip to the public's interest in our Navy as a first line of defense and to compare the cost of naval appropriations with the economical foresight of keeping fully paid the annual premiums on an insurance policy.

We need no such Navy Day this year, unless it be for solemn reflection on the extent of the illusions under which we lived in the past and at what cost they were maintained. The Navy's guns, and not the prepared speeches of its admirals, are telling us today of what we owe to the Navy. The death of gallant ships on the other side of the world is proving, day after day, how thin is our first line of defense.

If any Navy Day is needed this year, it might be utilized for rigid self-examination as to how well we, at home, are measuring up to the standards of courage and devotion of the men of the Navy who are fighting our battles. They are our battles, not the Navy's battles. The Navy is doing its job. We must stand as ready to do our own.

Rail Seizures

In view of the severe restrictions imposed on motor transportation by the war, the Office of Defense Transportation and War Production Board have adopted a reasonable course in deciding hereafter to give more extended consideration to those cases in which it is proposed to abandon a railroad line to obtain rail for military posts and war plants. Because of the urgent need of rails for relocating tracks, the WPB for several months has been requisitioning lines which the ODT certified were not essential to the war effort, without affording an opportunity for hearing to interests thus deprived of rail service. With one exception, the railroads themselves had petitioned the Interstate Commission for abandonment because of declining revenues, but on several occasions the commission had not reached a decision when the WPB acted, and in at least one case a commission examiner had recommended against a part of the contemplated abandonment.

Such summary procedure was bound to result in hardship, especially since the country is becoming more and more dependent on the railroads because of the gasoline and rubber shortage. It could be justified, of course, on the grounds of need, but at the same time it did not permit of an appraisal of protests that might be well founded, and brought about a situation that has resulted in a Senate inquiry.

Under the new arrangements, sufficient notice will be given of proposed abandonment to let any protestants be heard. The ODT will weigh the merits, but the proceedings will not be allowed to drag. All in all, this would seem to be a reasonable change of policy.

No Innocent Abroad She was making a speech when an air-raid alert sounded. She went right along without missing a syllable, as if she had been talking through air-raid alerts all her life. In England four days, she has visited and talked to a group of twenty-two American girl ferry pilots, visited an air base and talked to the personnel, visited the Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill for an overnight stay, inspected an antiaircraft gun site staffed by women, made a speech to a crowd at the American Red Cross Washington Club in London and has found out that the American soldiers in England need "thicker socks, right away" and

No one from the United States, visiting our soldiers abroad, can make them feel more at home by bringing so much of the atmosphere of home along with her. No one can visit our soldiers overseas whose opinion about how they are getting along will be more anxiously awaited by their mothers. No envoy extraordinary or minister plenipotentiary, dispatched to our British cousins, can take more good will along with her or leave more of it behind her.

But a friendly word of caution to our Allies: If the lights come on again after a blackout and some lonely plane-spotter finds a lady standing beside him who was not there before; if some RAF pilot, having dumped his load of bombs on Genoa or Hamburg, starts home again and discovers beside him a lady who certainly was not there when he started; if some begrimed Welch miner, climbing from the pit, meets a lady coming down-one might as well be casual about it and waste no time with introductions or explanations. The lady, being Mrs. Roosevelt, will not expect any.

Notebook of Science Progress In Laboratory, Field And Study

By Thomas R. Henry.

A green miasma of malaria shrouds the rubber trees of the Amazon jungles. To make possible the tapping of these trees by native workers, millions of tablets of atabrine, the synthetic substitute for quining and 15 complete medical dispensaries have been flown to the rubber-producing areas.

Otherwise the mosquitoes which gather around the jungle vegetation would be more deadly than the Jap machine guns which guard the plantations of the East

The protective program is being handled by the Office of Inter-American Affairs and is under the direct supervision of Dr. Kenneth C. Waddell, pioneer authority on sanitation measures for rubber development in the Amezon Previously he organized the health measures which have been largely responsible for the success of the Ford plantation in Brazil.

Despite the rapidly developing synthetic program, the need for South American rubber hardly can be overestimated. The Amazon country is about the only remaining source of natural rubber, a certain amount of which must be mixed with nearly all the synthetics proposed in order to produce efficient tires. A relatively small amount, such as can be expected for the present from this source, will go a long

Thousands of additional rubber gatherers now are being sent into the jungles. They must remain for days, hunting out and tapping trees scattered four or five to the acre. Most of these men have little resistance to the scourge of malaria and are not inured to conditions of life in the deep jungles.

On the request of 11 countries with rubber-producing areas, parties of tropical medicine specialists, sanitary engineers and administrative officers have been assigned to posts in Central and South America. The revived New World rubber production, it is expected, will be permanent. Regardless of the success of the synthetic industries there is no way in sight to dispense entirely with natural rubber and it will be necessary to keep a constant reservoir of it reasonably safe from any enemy conquest.

A major problem now being handled by the Office of Inter-American Affairs is that of rubber transportation. This is the second big boom in South American rubber. The first was before the last war, when tires were coming into general use. The chief avenue of travel to the interior of the Amazon basin was by the river itself and its tributaries. This necessarily was slow and uncertain, and the boom faded rapidly when plantations with excellent transportation facilities were developed by the Dutch and British in the Far East.

Consequently little further attention was given to the problem of rubber transportation in South America. But between the two wars the cargo plane has been developed and it vitally changes the situation. In spite of the shortage of planes, exploratory flights now are being conducted to rubber-gathering bases near the Amazon headwaters where the borders of Brazil, Bolivia and Peru meet. If these prove successful, and the vital need for raw rubber increases, it is likely that the jungles will be covered with a network of airways, with landing fields in the midst of some of the most inaccessible regions on Air routes also will be necessary for bringing the raw rubber to the United States for processing. The major problem, officials of the Office of Inter-American Affairs point out, is how to get transport planes, in view of the Army and Navy priorities. * * * *

Pneumonia, which until a few years ago was one of the worst killers of the human race, primarily is a poor man's disease

It was more than twice as frequent a few years ago among families on relief as among those with incomes of $5,000 or more.

This probably is an understatement and the chasm would be much greater if the number of cases among the poor which never are reported to physicians were known.

Such are the findings of Rollo H. Britten, senior statistician of the United States Public Health Service on the basis of the national health survey conducted by the Public Health Service during 1934, 1935 and 1936, in which a census of the physical ills of nearly a million families in 18 States was taken. Pneumonia is a germ disease and the germs are everywhere. Theoretically, it should be no respecter of wealth. But the figures are unmistakable, Dr. Britten says. The difference is present at all ages up to 75, but is most marked among infants and very young children. The frequency of the malady, the survey shows, is much greater with crowded living conditions. It ranges, for example, from 6.7 cases per 1,000 per year among persons with more than one person per room to four per 1,000 when there is one person or less per room.

A similar difference is apparent, he says when the group on relief is compared with families not on relief, but whose income was less than $1,000 a year.

Praises Article By Mr. Lawrence. To the Editor of The Star:

The David Lawrence article in The Star of October 26 should be read by every loyal American citizen. It exhibits a keen appreciation of the situation in the Solomon Islands and of the military problems.

As Mr. Lawrence rightly says: "Since the main job at the moment is naval, it is fitting that a high naval officer should be in command of Army, air and sea forces." Few seem to appreciate this fact.

I am sure Gen. MacArthur would agree 100 per cent with Mr. Lawrence. He and The Star are performing a real service in calling the attention of Star readers to the proper relations between appropriate Army and Navy tasks.

As strange as it may seem, goldfishes have been frozen solid without undue harm. Sometimes a fish will die, under this trial, and at other times it will live. The difference is supposed to be due to the heart.

Experiments tend to show that unless the heart is frozen, the fish will survive. It is said that if at least 15 inches of

By Charles E. Tracewell.

This procedure, however, is open to question. A better way is to keep the surface of the pool from entirely frees-ing by agitating it, now and then. If this is too much trouble, or cannot be done, for some reason, the best thing is to bring the fishes indoors. Goldfishes as long as 6 inches are pretty good sized fish, and need plenty of water per fish.

The average sized "bowl" or small tank would not do for half a dozen fishes 5 inches or more in length.

Nothing less than a 10-gallon tank should be used, and this probably will not give the goldfish enough air. A tub of some sort is best. Put it in the basement, and do not keep the water too close to the top. In this the fishes may be wintered very nicely, with some attention paid to feeding now and then. If the water is 50 degrees or less, the fishes practically need no feeding, but if it is around 70 degrees, they may be fed a little prepared food every other day. September is the best month to take them indoors, but October or November is not too late, provided they are given indoors at first exactly the same temperature water they had outdoors. Cold water has more oxygen in it. If the fishes are transferred from water at 50 degrees to water at 65 or 70 degrees, they will suffer severely.

Death among fishes transferred from outdoor pools to indoor aquariums is usually very high. The main reasons are overcrowding, deficiency of oxygen, and too sudden change in temperature. In nature, even in a small pool, there are no sudden changes. The water cools off slowly, or grows warmer more slowly than the air. Every one has experienced this at the seashore.

For best results in an indoor tub, not more than eight goldfishes about 5 inches long should be kept in 50 gallons of water.

This is the theoretical standard. In actual practice, probably not as much water is needed. The more surface there is, the better off the inmates will be.

Tubs used may be either of wood or galvanized metal, but both should be seasoned for at least a week by permitting water to remain in them. This should be drained off several times. The tub should be refilled with fresh water just before the fishes are brought in. The temperature of this water should be exactly that of the water in the pool. There can be no doubt about ordinary goldfishes being intelligent animals. They at least have more sense than the young men who ate them alive several years ago.

In outdoor pools they help mankind by destroying mosquito larvae in large numbers.

sees Danger to All Law If Prohibition Returns. To the Editor of The Star:

Can it be possible that prohibition would dare rear its ugly head again after the Nation-wide chaos it caused before the sane majority had it repealed? Surely, that unwise law did away with the salcons. It did accomplish that, but something far worse took their place. Just before the law became effective everybody madly rushed out and purchased case after case of liquor. Among these were people who normally did not care for intoxicating beverages and who previously had no liquor in their homes. And so it continued throughout the era of prohibition. Speakeasies sprang up practically in every block; moonshining became an art; gangsters blossomed forth by the hundreds; people died or became invalids from the effects of bad liquor: and men, women and children, innocent and guilty alike, were killed and murdered in cold blood as a result of this law.

The saddest thing of all, however, was to see young boys and girls, mostly of 'teen age, participating in this catastrophe largely because they saw their mothers and fathers breaking the prohibition law. Unfortunately, it did not stop there. These children, some of temperance parents, utterly disregarded other laws of the land. Why shouldn't they? If one law were broken, why not others?

The most important issue before the people today is the World War. Every waking thoughtful breath of every person in this country should be focused on the idea of winning. Prohibition failed once and it would fail again. The practical majority mustn't be hoodwinked a second time. G. A. KELLER.

Applauds Transportation System In Wartime Washington. To the Editor of The Star:

Having read the article on transportation by Hugh P. Cash, may I put in my 2 cents' worth?

I took my daughter to Washington in September to work for the Civil Service. We both were strangers in the city-in fact, it was our first trip East. Well. thanks to the bus and trolley operators, I never before enjoyed nine such grand days.

You cannot get lost in Washington, for all its straight streets and those intersecting avenues. No, sir-not as long as you are able to speak and ask a bus or trolley operator. I think they are grand! You stand on a corner. where there is a bus stop and the bus pulls in and stops. You ask the operator if this bus will take you to such and such a street. He either very politely says "yes" or "no" and, if the latter, he tells you the name of the bus which will and which corner to stand on to wait for it.

Mr. Cash says when you have to stand. and in a very crowded bus or trolley. it is impossible to tell where your street is. At first, when we boarded a bus or trolley, I always asked the operator if he would please call out such and such a street, and thanked him. We would ride for blocks and blocks and far be it from me to know where we were or if the operator had forgotten the street I asked him to call. But no-he called the street and there we were.

sign, where we had to change. But then, I never was a lucky gambler. So. after riding for miles, I would begin to get uneasy. It was impossible to get up to the operator then. Besides, you are not supposed to talk to them while they are driving. A sign over their heads says so. And in a packed bus like that I lacked the nerve to shout to the driver and ask him if we were near our street or had we passed it. So I would look over the people who were sitting in front or back of the pole I was clinging to, take a chance and lean down and politely ask if we were near such and such streets. Lucky me, the persons I asked always knew, and then they would remember to tell me when we were to stop there or have me pull the cord. I never saw an operator slam the door in any one's face. In fact, many times I watched people get off a trolley and race for the bus pulled up to the corner. And the driver waited for them. Never saw one lose his temper, though I often wondered how they could have so much The only thing I wished while I rode the buses and trolleys was that I had been in the Navy for years. You simply have to have "sea legs" to do it well when you have to stand. Mr. Cash should live in Illinois. Here it is every one for himself. I thoroughly enjoyed my nine days in Washington. And I left my daughter there, knowing that if she would just use her tongue she never would get lost. MRS. GLENN CROSS. Arcola, Ill.

Secrecy May Have Aided Raid Flyer

U. S. Defended on Statement That Implied Safety

By DAVID LAWRENCE. The public often wonders why military news is withheld so long. The comment is often heard that the enemy knows it already. But the explanation of why secrecy is necessary would in itself give away important information. A case in point is the raid made by Brig. Gen. Doolittle on Tokio. The official announcement said that all the planes flew David Lawrence. safely over Japan and reached "destination." Until a few days ago the American public interpreted this to mean that all the flyers reached their ultimate base safely and that nobody was lost.

The Japanese, until a few days ago, made no announcement about capturing any prisoners. The question will be asked why the Japanese didn't dispute alleged American claims earlier. It may relate to our own game of strategic supression. It will be noted that, according to a letter made public this week, Gen. Doolittle as early as May 22 wrote the father of one of the members of his expedition that the son was missing, that the latter had landed on Japanese-occupied territory and that in all probability the son had been taken prisoner by the Japanese, but Gen. Doolittle asked that the letter be "kept in the strictest confidence as the information is of military significance."

Another Case Confided. This correspondent learned on July 7, indirectly, from the mother of another member of the expedition that he had been taken prisoner by the Japanese and, of course, did not make that fact public or the fact that any flyers were missing.

Why was the secrecy necessary? For one reason, the missing members of the expedition landed on the coast of China. Their destination, of course, was the China coast and with the exception of the one plane and crew which landed in Russia and which was announced at the time, the words of the first official announcement were correct as far as they went.

What happened after the flyers reached China was a separate chapter and might have been made public except for one very important reason. The Japanese, after the bombing of Tokio, were desperately trying to find out how the raid was accomplished. Did our planes come from one of our aircraft carriers off the Japanese coast? Did we have any carriers that could launch such large-sized bombers? Did they come from some secret base in islands 1,000 to 2,000 miles away? protect our means of attack. Did they come from anywhere in China itself? The answers to these questions anese high command. How could they find out? One important source of military information in war is to question prisoners and even torture them to force secrets out of them. If public announcement had been made that there were some missing flyers, the Japanese would have been made aware immediately of that fact and would have been searching the China coast. It was necessary to gain

Might Have Given Alibi.

There was a possibility, moreover, that the missing flyers, even though caught by the Japanese in Japanese-occupied territory in China, crashed. They might have told a story of being lost as a result of an air trip from some point in interior China. Indeed, it might have been some time before the Japanese in Tokio associated the missing flyers with the Tokio raid at all.

Anyway, our military people thought it was a chance worth tak-

By JAY G. HAYDEN.

If President Roosevelt had any thought of issuing a last-minute appeal for election of a Democratic Congress to uphold his war position he must have abandoned this purpose after the vote in the Senate on the teen-age military draft bill Saturday. On the crucial roll call which adopted the prohibition against assignment of any draftee under 20 to combat duty

Jay G. Hayden. abroad "until after he has at least one year's military training," 25 Democratic Senators voted "aye" and 17 more were recorded as absent. Of the total Democratic membership of 65, just 23 lined up with their party leadership in support of the President's position.

Proportionately, the Republican division was much the same. Thirteen members of that party voted for the restrictive amendment, eight were against it and eight absent.

Before the proposed draft extention was launched there was heated argument in the administration circle as to whether it should be brought up before or after the November 3 election. Army draft officials demanded immediate action, but Democratic congressional leaders pleaded that it would be unfair to put their members on the hot political spot, which the proposal to draft 18 and 19 year-olds obviously constituted, on the very eve of election.

Strategy of Quick Action. The thing that caused President Roosevelt to cast the die in favor of the Army's position apparently was his success in compelling an unwilling Congress to repeal the 110 per cent of parity restriction on control of farm prices. Closeness of the election, he argued, had contributed to this accomplishment and it would work the same way on the draft

This judgment seemed to have been confirmed when the House. under a gag rule restricting the offering of amendments from the floor, passed the bill by a topheavy vote of 345 to 16. In the Senate, however, the strategy of quick action did not work so well. The bill was passed finally in that body, 58 to 5, but this after adoption, 39 to 31, of the oneyear training amendment, which War Department officials say will seriously tangle their plans

if it remains in the law. The political fright which the issue engendered is best indicated by the record on the latter pro-

Japanese Attack on New Hebrides Base Feared as Part of Solomons Campaign

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The pot which has been simmering in the South Pacific for the last three weeks has now boiled over and the main battle between the American and Japanese forces is on in full swing.

Two-thirds of the entire Jap fleet is believed to be concentrated in the South Pacific, and Japanese forces have spread farther south than Guadalcanal. It appears that a Japanese task force is now near Espiritu Santo, an important American air base in the New Hebrides situated halfway between the Solomons and New Caledonia, our main supply center for the operating

A Jap submarine was reported last week to have appeared in the neighborhood of that American-held island and shelled our positions. This was only a minor incident, but it indicated the Japs were feeling their way. In some military quarters it is believed the enemy might attempt a landing in Espiritu Santo in an effort to capture the airdromes which have been established there and thus interfere with the aerial support the Americans have been giving to the besieged Solomons.

Espiritu Santo is not more than 600 miles from Guadalcanal and about the same distance from Noumca, the capital of New Caledonia, which has been occupied by an American Army

"Tag Game" Must End.

According to available information, it appears that the Japanese high command figures that the "tag game" it has been playing with the United States naval and air forces must now come to an end. In spite of the heroic resistance of the marine and Army forces at Guadalcanal and in spite of heavy losses, the enemy garrisons on the island have been substantially increased.

But it must be remembered that the Japanese forces in that area are so strong that a simultaneous attack against our bases in the New Hebrides must not be overlooked. And the question arises as to whether we have sufficient naval and air power in that area to meet a twofold attack in both the Solomons and the New Hebrides.

If the Japanese succeeded in establishing themselves in the New Hebrides the situation in the Solomons immediately would become very precarious and at the same time the main base in New Caledonia might become endangered.

The Japs are not reckless, but seem to care little about their losses provided they obtain their objectives. The losses they suffered in the landing operations on Guadalcanal have been described as very heavy. Yet they have come back again and again. They have landed tanks and heavy artillery. They still lack an airfield, but their carriers and the beaches they are able to use in the neighborhoring islands make up for that gap.

Situation Is Critical.

On the whole, our position in the South Pacific is described by competent observers as gloomy. The arrival of Vice Admiral William Halsey to replace Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley as commander in chief of our operating forces cannot change the situation materially. Admiral Ghormley was detached chiefly because his health has not been good for some time and the strain of the continuous battle and the heavy responsibility of operating with "too little" have been telling on him.

Admiral Halsey, who has always been a "hitting admiral," had been ashore for some time recovering from over-fatigue due to continuous operations at sea since Pearl Harbor. The task force under his command has been hitting the Japanese hard since the action in the Gilbert Islands. There is no question that Admiral Halsey will do the utmost with the forces he has at his disposal.

The strength of the American forces is, of course, a military secret. We know from official communiques that we have suffered severe losses since August. when we attacked and captured a portion of the Solomons. But the extent to which these losses have been replaced and what additional units have been added to meet the Japanese fleet must remain undisclosed.

There is no question, however, that the situation is critical and the results of the battle do not depend so much on the brayery. skill and resourcefulness of our commanders and our men as to the extent we have been able to equalize the Japanese forces sent against us.

Battle of Egypt Fails to Arouse Man in Street

By DeWITT MACKENZIE. LONDON, Oct. 27.-Wendell Willkie's address to the Nation is receiving much attention in the London press, and it is significant of the trend of a considerable section of public opinion here that the reiteration of his demand for a second front in Europe gets a special dis-

That is to say, the opening of the great Allied offensive in Africa does not seem to have dimmed the belief in the necessity of action in Western Europe to meet the call of Russia.

Undoubtedly, the reason is that the man in the street is aware that only this direct assault on the continent can force Hitler to withdraw great strength from the Eastern

The offensive against the Axis in Egypt is a most heartening exhibition of Allied initiative. Moreover, it represents one of the vital battles of the war. Control of the Mediterranean and the Middle East are

Attacks on Germany Needed. The battle of Egypt, however, presents a curious anomaly, Hitler might win the war by gaining control of this strategic Mediterranean area. But the Allies can't win the war solely by retaining control. They must, in addition, strike directly at the heart of Germany. That is not a matter of argument. The Allied high command recognizes the necessity of hitting Hitler through Europe and has promised a second front there as soon as feasible. The decision must be made by the high command, but public interest is centered on when the feasibility is likely to arise.

Now there is to my mind only one answer to that. There can be no major invasion with a land army until the American and British Air Forces based in Britain have prepared the way by bombing Hitler's war industries and communications into such a state of devastation that he will be close to impotence.

This point was emphasized in previous articles, but it is of such vast importance that it cannot be overworked.

It would mean a mass slaughter of Allied troops for us to try to land a great army before our combined air froces had ironed out the continent. It would be inviting a disaster which might hand the war to Hitler on a platter.

Bigger Raids Needed. However, this preparatory work can be done rapidly if we get on with the job immediately. Obviously, the arrival of the time when it will be feasible to open this great second front must depend on how soon our bomber fleets get into They have been doing some wonderful work lately, but they must have additional planes if 1,000-bomber raids are to become regular.

Those heavy raids which can vittually wipe out a city at one blow are the kind which will take us to our goal fast. Britain should be able to provide part of the increase in the bomber force, but undoubtedly great dependence must be placed on America's resources. If we can get these fresh forces into action in the near future we may be able to nail Hitler's hide on the barn door by next autumn. The partial destruction of the great industrial city of Cologne provides an excellent example of what can be done with 1,000-bomber raids. It is well known that 40 per cent of the city was wiped out and probably. another 25 per cent was partly de-

Brereton Praises Work Of U. S. Flyers in Desert

By the Associated Press. CAIRO, Oct. 27.-United States pilots fighting against Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in the Western desert are "doing an excellent job," Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton. commander of the United States Middle East Air Force, said yesterday.

Gen. Brereton said he was "extremely proud" of what American fighter pilots and medium bomber combat crews have done in supporting the British 8th Army attack. 'Veterans of two years and more of desert aerial warfare are praising the work of our fighter pilots," he said. "Those who were not seasoned combat flyers when the present fighting started are operating like veterans now. They go out on every mission with determination to find and destroy the enemy and they are doing an excellent job of it.

"Combat crews of our B-25s are doing fine work too and their determination to destroy the enemy is no less than that of the fighter pilots. I am extremely proud of Modest decoration of homes and stores for Christmas is all right as ong as no new equipment or wiring is bought, dimout regulations are conformed with and the lights are controlled, Director James M. Landis of the Office of Civilian Defense said today.

The OCD announced it frowned on the use of elaborate or potentially dangerous types of Christmas lighting and of any extra outdoor lighting in coastal areas. Director Landis said OCD took this position not only because of the danger of enemy attack, but also because of the critical materials and electric power involved and the hazard of fire at a time when any waste is sabotage. While Christmas lighting in the streets should be prohibited in the

What everybody knows is that bread is a major source of energy-millions of people rely upon their daily bread for 35% of their energy. But what you may not know is that, according to present scientific findings, you must have Vitamin B1 to efficiently transform the bread you eat into the energy you need every day.

This brings up the question-do you get enough Vitamin B, naturally from the food you eat—the way Nature intended? According to U. S. Government Health Officials-3 out of every

* Estimate for Last May Shows Over 5% Gain In Maryland, Virginia

Though the total civilian population of continental United States remained practically unchanged beween April 1, 1940 and May 1, 1942, with more than half of the States suffering losses, the civilian populaion of the District scored a gain of 163,680, or 24.9 per cent during this lar income tax. period, the Census Bureau reported

1, according to the bureau's esti-mates, totalled 821,299, as compared with an estimated civilian population of 657,619 at the taking of the last decennial census. Maryland, Virginia and two other States reported gains of more than 5 per cent during the 25-month period.

Maryland Increase, 94,537. The civilian population of Mary-land increased 94,537, or 5.2 per cent, an dthat of Virginia 167,812, or 6.4 per cent. The suburban areas around Washington accounted for a substantial part of the population gains of these two States, the bureau

The civilian population of conti-nental United States on May 1, 1942, totalled 131,315.000, compared with about 131,323,000 at the last census. The excess of births over deaths and the net immigration of civilians, the Census Bureau explained, were approximately cancelled by inductions into the armed forces.

The bureau's population estimates were based mainly on the number of registrants for sugar rationing during the first week of May. The number of registrants for sugar rationing in the District-approximately 737,000—was so much lower than the civilian population indicated by other sources that the bureau substituted a special estimate for the District, based principally on city directory listings.

Vast Movements Within Us. The fact that the number of registrants for sugar rationing in the District is so much smaller than the civilian population is probably due to the large proportion of District residents who "eat out" in restaurants, it was explained.

Since the 1940 census there have been vast movements of civilian population with the United States, the bureau said. More than half of the States lost population while the District and a few States made substantial gains.

In addition to Maryland and Virginia two other States reported gains of more than 5 per cent; Nevada, 17 per cent, and Michigan, contributions are excluded. Credit Claims Explained. But then he'll come to the matter

Credits. The Treasury is just "borrowing" part of the money involved in the victory tax. A single person will be able to claim a credit of 25 per cent (up to a limit of $500) and a married man 40 per cent (up to a limit of $1,000)—plus-2 per cent for each dependent (limit $100 each)-of the tax.

These credits fall into two classes: 1. Current credit. You'll be able to deduct the credit from the amount you pay in 1944 on your regular 1943 income tax if (note this "if") you have paid out an equivalent amount in 1943 for life insurance premiums (provided the insuran e was in force on September 1, 1942), for payments as $31.17 in life insurance premiums

$60-z-Week Example. Let's take some specific examples: Oscar Zilch, married, no children, earns $60 a week. To figure out how much he'll find deducted from his annual wages he first subtracts

$624 from the yearly total of $3,120—leaving $2,496 taxable. Five per cent of this figure is $124.80, to be withheld by his employer in weekly amounts of $2.40. Actually there may be a slight difference in the weekly deduction if the employer uses a scale prepared by the Treasury to simplify calculations-but in the final accounting the sum owed Uncle Sam will be $124.80.)

Now, Oscar's 40 per cent credit as a married man will be $49.92but the Treasury, in effect, simply borrowed that amount. When will he get it back?

N the bridge of a U.S. warship an officer watches the skies.

"Jap dive bombers, sir," comes a voice from the speaking tube.

Overhead the dive-bombers circle, so high their movements seem almost lazy and sluggish. Then a wasplike shape peels off, swoops down. The ship's antiaircraft open up with a roar-steel swarming skyward to meet the attacker, bright orange bursts of flak, mushrooming puffs of smoke, filling the sky.

"Jap bombers diving, sir," comes a voice from the tube.

The officer waits calmly still another moment. Then he acts. "Hard left rudder," he calls.

Under full speed the ship swings, her decks slanting like a destroyer's in a heavy sea. 1500 feet up a bomb suddenly separates itself from the diving bomber, seems to swell, growing larger and larger as it slants downward toward the racing, zigzagging target. Then off the starboard bow, there is a short-lived spout of bubbling water as the bomb falls harmlessly into the sea.

This is the kind of game that officers and men aboard U.S. naval ships play with death as they push a convoy through, attack with a task force, patrol the seven seas. In this deadly work they frequently rely upon General Electric steering-gear controls, gun-fire controls, and turbines and propulsion gears, for the maneuverability, accuracy of antiaircraft fire, and speed which mean the difference between life and death when "not a second can be lost." The idea, as we say, sounds wonderful, and we, for one, are starting right now to polish the desk and pick the cigarette butts off the floor. This visitation may never come again, and we want to make the best of a historic moment.

When "The Music of Yesterday and Today Styled the Blue Barron Way" (Blue Barron's Orchestra) comes to the Grand Ballroom of the Willard on Halloween, celebrants will notice the band has a girl singer. On the face of it this circumstance might be labeled a commonplace, despite the fact that Gardner to dodge the issue simply the songstress concerned is Judy by remaining seated in his custo-Ellington. Well, with Mr. Bapron's organization such a view cannot be other day to see for themselves and justified, because Miss Ellington will be the first songstress ever to appear with the Barron. In the band's long career on radio, stage and ing his men, weaving and bowing records all vocalizing has been done back and forth as he puffed into by one or any combination of the his sax, communicating to the band five gentleman vocalists who also each little wish for strategic nublow horns for a living. Precedents ances by word of eye, by gesture sometimes are hard to detect.

And now, let us discuss Miss Ellington a bit. She is the girl who got her start with Bill Strickland at the Lotus several years ago, and who, in the interim, has appeared with such bands as Rudy Vallee's, Charlie Barnet's, Russ Morgan's and Buddy Rogers'. She has been busy, and following Saturday's onenighter in the Willard she will remain busy here in town at a place the management of which prefers to play suspenseful.

But lou-speakers are employed regularly in the front lines and German prisoners often speak to the men in their own companies or regiments. The prisoners are frequently anxious to do this. They have been warned for so long that the Russians take no prisoners that they jump at the chance to assure their company mates that they are unharmed and ask them to send word to their families at home.

The Russians even have German language news sheets which they send across the lines. One of these is called, "Die Wahrheit" (Truth) and another, "What Is Happening in Germany." The latter, for instance, has a lead article on a bad harvest in Germany and also publishes a letter from a German soldier's mother complaining about the terrible food they are getting at

Investment Dealers Oppose New Rule Proposed by SEC

National Association Seeks to Continue Self-Regulation

By EDWARD C. STONE. Washington members of the National Association of Securities Dealers have joined in a protest made by the Board of Governors against a new rule proposed by the Securities and Exchange Commission which calls for the "Disclosure of market price" of securities sold by investment houses. The rule seeks "to protect the investor by preventing the purchase from or sale to him of an unlisted security at a price bearing no reasonable relationship to the price at which the security could be bought or sold at the same time in the open market." -Wallace Fulton, executive director of the national association, has forwarded to the Securities Commission the views of investment dealers all over the country and registered vigorous opposition to the proposed measure. The governors declare that the national association is making splendid progress in bringing about self-regulation of the securities industry and add the belief that no further restrictive rules and regulations are needed. Would Mar Association Work. The governors declare that adoption of the rule would mean the end of the National Association of Securities Dealers. The association has been giving practically all its time and funds to working for fair practices among dealers, having carried out extensive examinations of the various offices by accounting specialists. The new rule, the letter to the SEC says, would obviate the need for these examinations and render the work of the association of very little value. The investment dealers consider the rule unworkable. In 17 months 2,500 members of the association have been examined; fair profits policies have been studied: disciplinary action taken when needed, and 170 complaints filed against members. The communication adds that the great majority of securities dealers are members of the association and can be reached through these channels.

James Parker Nolan and Harold C. Patterson are the Washington members of the committee which has made a special study of the proposed SEC plan. Western Maryland's Net Up.

Cooper, Cards' Hurling Ace, Is Voted National League's Most Valuable Player

Win, Lose or Draw Mort Is Ranked

The No. 1 Guy of the No. 1 Team

Morton Cooper has been voted by a committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America as the most valuable player in the National League for 1942 and with this selection little fault can be National League for 1942 and with this selection little fault can be found. The big pitching ace of the world champion Cardinals won 22 games—as many as any other hurler. He lost only 7 times and he pitched 10 shutouts. Every time the Cards ran into a tough situation Manager Billy Southworth unhesitatingly called upon

It was Cooper's pitching that won the pennant for the Cardinals, but Mort had nothing to do with the Red Birds' winning of the World Series from the New York Yankees. Of all the Cardinal pitchers to perform in the series, only Cooper and Mop-Up Man Harry Gumbert were embarrassingly mistreated by the Bronx Bombers.

The selection of Cooper as the No. 1 man in the National League only verifies the suspicion that Southworth was managing a great ball club. A lesser team might well have folded when its ace was knocked out of the box in the opening game. The Cards didn't fold. A lesser club might have become discouraged when Cooper, trying a second time, today. again was chased from the box. The Cards didn't get discouraged.

When Camilli Flopped in the Dodger Series

The fact that Cooper twice was kayoed in the series and was run out of the Polo Grounds in one inning last July, when he started for the in the balloting, as well as being the National League against the American League in the All-Star game, only only player whose name appeared serves to make the Cardinals look better.

When Cooper failed, the Cards bounced back with young Johnny Beazley, a 23-year-old rookie who finished no better than 14th in the valuable player poll. They took the lead with Ernie White, who didn't fielder, who edged out Manager Mel eyen get a vote in the balloting. When Cooper failed again they charged Ott of the New York Giants for secback with Max Lanier, another of the voteless, and they clinched the ond honors, 200 points to 190 and title with Beazley in a second appearance.

It is a story that is not new. In 1941 the National League's most valuable player was First Baseman Dolph Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the only home-run hitter the Brooks had to pit against Di Maggio, Henrich, Keller & Co. He deserved his crown, Camilli did, but in the World Series he was a horrible flop . . . the strikeout king. Had not Mickey Owen lost that third strike on Henrich the chances are that Camilli would have been the undisputed goat of the Yankee-Dodger series.

Kurowski, Title Clincher, Was Only Twenty-sixth

But whereas Camilli's repeated strike-outs seemed to affect the Dodgers, Cooper's two failures apparently didn't disturb the Cards. They took the beatings in stride and hitched their wagon to Beazley, White and Lanier. That was the mark of a good ball club.

In a World Series the most valuable players, as recognized for their work over the 154-game schedule, aren't always the standouts. In the last | 1 series, on the winning side, the heroes were Beazley, Capt. Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter and Third Baseman George Kurowski, a rookie.

Only Slaughter placed high in the most valuable player voting. He was second to Teammate Mort Cooper. Kurowski, whose home run broke up the championship test, was voted No. 26. Moore, a timely hitter and a remarkable fielder all during the series, placed only 18th,

Three of a Kind—Cooper, Bonham and Gordon

Cooper wasn't the only high-ranker to fail in the series. If there is a better all-around ballplayer in the game than Joe Gordon, second baseman of the Yankees, he hasn't been making his presence felt. Yet solely on the basis of the regular pears stronger each time it takes the Gordon couldn't buy a base hit, and the usually alert, quick-witted Gor- season. Cooper's unfortunate exdon was the fellow who was picked off second base to kill a Yankee rally perience in being knocked out of that promised to keep the faltering world champions in the running and

Nor were Cooper and Gordon the only stars to fail miserably in the final test; there was Ernie Bonham, who probably will finish high in the voting when the American League votes on its most valuable players.

Bonham was a swell pitcher during the Yankees' championship campaign, but he had little with which to fool the Cardinals. The fact that able recovery by Cooper from an elhe couldn't win in the series doesn't make him a bum pitcher. There bow operation in the middle of the in first place on 58 ballots and were times when a scout at the series wouldn't have given a plugged 1941 season. Last year he won 13 nickel for Cooper. Over the long stretch Cooper, Gordon and Bonham, games and lost 9, even though to name only three, are fine ballplayers. All this voting business proves out of action during a sizable poris that the World Series distance is a trifle too short for real talent to tion of the campaign. This was the reveal itself unless the men with the talent get off to good starts. And there is, too, the luck angle. It can't be overlooked,

Head of Vast Program Holds Them Essential To Physical Fitness

By the Associated Press. DALLAS, Oct. 27.—Everything else s being rationed, why not sports? R. J. Kidd, athletic director of the Texas Interscholastic League, poses the question. G. W. Gloomy Over Game With Kentucky; Hillton Aces Injury-Ridden

By BURTON HAWKINS.

If Maryland's football forces require any inspiration to go out and win a game for somebody they might dedicate Saturday afternoon to winning one for Duke Alexander, who won that Florida engagement for them last year. Alexander, who enlisted in the Marines, recently was killed in action in the Solomons.

It was Alexander, a 6-foot 2-inch sophomore end who was more noted for his all-around track ability, who came off the bench and booted the point after Maryland's first touchdown that ultimately provided the Old Liners a 13-12 upset triumph over Florida.

Voted the best sophomore line-man in the State last season, Alexander joined the Marines and was sent to Parris Island for training. When the Marines closed in on the Japs at Solomons, Alexander was

Invisible Punch Kayo | Alexandria Flyer Of Johnson Starts

Another of those invisible punch kayoes was to be investigated to-day by the District Boxing Commission, which is curious to know why Powerhouse Johnson, a local heavyweight, went down without being hit in his bout with Buddy Komar last night at Turner's Arena.

If the "fix" was in on the scrap the guilty parties will be hauled on the carpet and suspended indefi-nitely, but if Johnson is found guilty merely of trying to duck out early he'll be the only one penalized. Powerhouse didn't get paid for his appearance. His purse was ordered held up pending an investigation, and if he did take the water route the money, the whole $25, will be turned over to the injured fighters' relief fund.

Night Parking Ban Debated By Traffic Men

Trade Board Unit Hears Proposal Called Untimely

A proposal to ban all-night parking and to require holders of A gasoline ration cards to be the first to surrender this privilege was vigorously opposed by Whitney Leary at a luncheon meeting sponsored yesterday by the Board of Trade's Traffic Committee. Mr. Leary is District OPA director as well as chairman of the Commisioners' Advisory Traffic Council.

"When A card holders are allowed to use a car less than ever before, it would be a hardship for them to pay more for less received." Mr. Leary said. "Aside from the cost of building a garage, manpower and materials are needed for the war effort. Personally, I would favor starting with a C card holder, whose larger gas allotment gives greater value received, if it becomes necessary to clear our streets at night. The subject is not new, but now is not the time to put such a plan

Sharing Mr. Leary's view was Police Inspector Arthur Miller, who said there is not enough garage space in some areas here and that space in some areas here, and that heavily increased taxes prohibit new garage construction for the average car owner.

Some Restrictions Favored.

Favoring some restrictions were William A. Van Duzer, District director of traffic; Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter; Leonard L. Tucker, president of the District Civilian Defense Council; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District Highway Department director, and F. W. Lovejoy, executive secretary, D. C. Highway Traffic Advisory Council.

P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the Board of Trade's Traffic Committee, said recommendations would be made by his committee later to the Trade Board's governing body.

Washington is the only large city in the country with no night parka.m. and 6 a.m., he said. responding to emergency calls. A he said, enables firemen to carry floor and basement fires, and ladder ning. equipment is able to bridge parked cars in battling flames on upper floors. The downtown business district, he added, might be made a prohibited parking zone.

Capt. Whitehurst emphasized that arterial highways should be kept clear at night in the interest of safety and movement of traffic, such as troops, in an emergency. Night parking in residential areas surrounding the business district, he said, is the primary cause of daytime traffic congestion. Night parking on both sides of narrow streets. he added, is a genuine fire hazard. "Lay plans now for ultmiate. progressive elimination of night parking, but the time for its application is not now," Capt. Whitehurst emphasized. Mr. Tucker said "triple parking during blackouts" constituted a grave risk to civilian defense workers. Citing the success of the metal scrap drive here, he thought an appeal to the owners of automobiles might elicit a similar favorable response. Saying he personnally believed Washington would be bombed and that "Hitler, with the kick of a dying mule, hopes one of the bombs would fall on the White House.' Looking ahead to the war's end, John Nolen, planning director of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission, said the advent of peace would wheness a thinning out of present overcongrested areas to outlying new developments, and that this "element of competition will compel apartment owners to provide parking space off the streets for their tenants." He said the Washington community has achieved progress by (1) zoning amendments requiring private parking facilities for new construction permits, and (2) estab-lishment of the District Auto Parking Authority.

In making these adjustments, it is important that the essential elements of a sound preparation for professional nursing be maintained. The responsibilities that are being placed on nurses were greater and, according to all indications, these will be greatly increased in the post-war period.

Mason Urges Relaxing Rules. There are some who do not feel that too much attention should be given to the profession's future at a time when there is dire emergency. ### Night Parking Ban Debated By Traffic Men

Trade Board Unit Hears Proposal Called Untimely

A proposal to ban all-night parking and to require holders of A gasoline ration cards to be the first to surrender this privilege was vigorously opposed by Whitney Leary at a luncheon meeting sponsored yesterday by the Board of Trade's Traffic Committee. Mr. Leary is District OPA director as well as chairman of the Commisioners' Advisory Traffic Council.

When A card holders are allowed to use a car less than ever before, it would be a hardship for them to pay more for less received," Mr. Leary said. "Aside from the cost of building a garage, manpower and materials are needed for the war effort. Personally, I would favor starting with a C card holder, whose larger gas allotment gives greater value received, if it becomes necessary to clear our streets at night. Seat Pleasant-D. C. New Plans to Speed Solution not the time to put such a plan into effect."

Sharing Mr. Leary's view was Police Inspector Arthur Miller, who said there is not enough garage space in some areas here, and that Raised to 15 Cents heavily increased taxes prohibit new garage construction for the average car owner.

Some Restrictions Favored. Favoring some restrictions were William A. Van Duzer, District director of traffic; Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter; Leonard L. Tucker, president of the District Civilian Defense Council; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District Highway Department director, and F. W. Lovejoy, executive secretary, D. C. Highway Traffic Advisory Council.

P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the Board of Trade's Traffic Committee, made by his committee later to the Trade Board's governing body. Mr. Van Duzer touched off an nimated discussion by saying Washington is the only large city in the country with no night parking limitations. A survey showed their own garages instead of the public streets. Night parking, he added, interferes with early morning street cleaning, impedes the troop movements.

Downtown Ban Suggested. Chief Porter said "the ideal is to have our streets clear at night," but he warned that firemen, policemen and civilian defense workers find their own automobiles the only source of quick transportation when responding to emergency calls. A hose through when fighting first floor and basement fires, and ladder equipment is able to bridge parked cars in battling flames on upper floors. The downtown business district, he added, might be made a prohibited parking zone. Capt. Whitehurst emphasized that arterial highways should be kept clear at night in the interest of safety and movement of traffic, such as troops, in an emergency. Night parking in residential areas surrounding the business district, he said, is the primary cause of daytime traffic congestion. Night parking on both sides of narrow streets, he added, is a genuine fire hazard. "Lay plans now for ultmiate progressive elimination of night parking, but the time for its application is not now," Capt. Whitehurst emphasized. Mr. Tucker said "triple parking during blackouts" constituted a grave risk to civilian defense workers. Citing the success of the metal scrap drive here, he thought an appeal to the owners of automobiles might elicit a similar favorable response. Saying he personnally believed Washington would be bombed and that "Hitler, with the kick of a dying mule, hopes one of the bombs would fall on the White House." Mr. Tucker asserted Washington streets should be reasonably free of congestion.

Restricted Areas Urged. Night parking in target areas such as the Navy Yard and downtown spots" should be restricted, it was contended by Mr. Lovejoy. He believed, too, there should be more orderly parking to permit car removals from parking lots in case of emergency without having to yank out a whole line of machines. Looking ahead to the war's end, the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission, said the adpeace would witness a thinning out of present overcongrested areas to outlying new developments, and that this "element of competition will compel apartment owners to provide parking space off the streets for their tenants." He said the Washington community has achieved progress by (1) zoning amendments requiring private parking facilities for new construction permits, and (2) estab-

Ruling in Murder Case Alleged Confession Due

The first-degree murder trial Woodrow McCants, 24, colored, of the 600 block of Columbia road N.W. continued in District Court today with Justice James M. Proctor expected to rule on whether an alleged confession to the crime shall be admitted in evidence. McCants is accused of murdering Wallace B. Hulse, 60, in the latter's home at 318 Eleventh street S.W. on July 11.

Assistant United States Attorney Dennis McCarthy in his opening statement told the jury yesterday that Hulse's skull was fractured with an adding machine wielded by McCants. After he was struck a rope was used to strangle him to death, the prosecutor said.

Hulse was a numbers operator, Mr. McCarthy said, adding that McCants had made several bets with him. The motive for the crime was robbery, the jury was told.

Several police officers testified out of the presence of the jury yesterday that McCants made a voluntary confession to the killing. Justice John Nolen, planning director of Proctor will rule today on whether these officers will be permitted to testify before the jury.

By PAT JONES.

Proposal that the Nurses' Examining Board take further steps to put its requirements on a wartime basis as one means of overcoming the nurse shortage in Washington already is under consideration and may soon lead to definite action, it was learned today.

A committee recently appointed at a meeting of representatives from the Examining Board and nursing profession is expected to submit within a few days additional recommendations leading toward a specific policy in the present emer-

One of the most important proposals calls for reduction of the nursing curriculum from three years to 30 months, thus possibly releasing the students six months ahead of schedule for supervised practice in hospitals wherever needed. Also suggested is an accelerated program of training, where State laws permit, that will admit students with two to four years of approved college preparation, making it possible for them to be graduates in 24 to 28 months.

In offering its proposals, the league warned that care to protect the profession must be observed. in the post-war period. Mason Urges Relaxing Rules. There are some who do not feel that too much attention should be given to the profession's future at a time when there is dire emergency. Commissioner Guy Mason, who has taken both a personal and an executive interest in the local hospital situation, said he would suggest that the Examining Board "relax its rules even to the point of getting in midwives if necessary.

"This is a war and not a peace time period." he warned. The Public Health Committee of the Board of Trade also urged after a recent study of the situation that Examining Board requirements be placed on a wartime basis.

Against the proposal for a general relaxation of rules, however, Miss M. Cordelia Cowan, executive secretary of the Examining Board cites the experience since 1917. "We relaxed our requirements during the last war and have been suffering from it ever since," she pointed out. "First of all, it brought in a large number of undesirables, people who were not of the caliber

Schools Seek Volunteers for Lunch Project

Reclassification of 222 Workers for War Jobs Upsets System

An appeal for volunteer workers to serve 8,500 lunches daily in nearly 70 District schools was broadcast by school officials today as the Works Project Administration announced that 222 employes who now serve the lunches are to be reclassified into war jobs or training for war jobs.

According to Paul Rogers, District WPA administrator, "We can keep on preparing the lunches as long as there is personnel in the Wisconsin avenue kitchen.'

The difficulty, he said, will be in handling the lunches after they leave the kitchen around 10 o'clock every morning.

The WPA, he said, will need some assistance in delivering the lunches to the schools and complete assistance in serving it. According to A. K. Savoy, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, volunteers for this service should report to school officials before the WPA personnel is withdrawn in two weeks so that proper training of the substitutes can be given.

Volunteers Needed Daily. "If we can get sufficient volunteers," said Mr. Savoy, "not necessarily the same ones every day, but enough so we can cover the five lunches a week, we can keep go-

Dr. Dodds, However, Wants Protection For That Part Of Plant Not Mobilized

Special Dispatch to The Star. PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.— President Harold W. Dodds of Princeton University said today in his annual report to the university's Board of Trustees that the Government is "duty bound to do all it can" to see that conversion of colleges and universities to war needs "shall not mean a death sentence to that part of the educational plant not needed in the war effort." Dining halls and other existing college buildings should be utilized for special training units of the Army and Navy and every effort should be made to place faculty members where they can be of greatest use in the total national effort, he declared.

Dr. Dodds expressed the belief from the hazards of war. also that colleges "can be very important agencies in the process of young men "as rapidly as possible demobilization after the war," and while there can be greater assur-

"The simple truth is that the war has reached a stage at which the tional shortages in the armed forces necessities of battle will not permit healthy young men to remain in college to pursue the long-term values of a college education," he said.

Debutantes to Bow At Victory Cotillion

Miss Cynthia Tuckerman to Be Among Those Presented at New York Benefit

The New York debutante has not completely abandoned making a bow to society this winter. A happy medium has been reached, one that will brighten the war-dimmed social season as well as aid two worthy causes. One hundred of the socially prominent young women who in normal times would be the center of a gay whirl of festivity have decided on a mass coming-out party. The dance, which will be called the Victory Debutante Cotillion, will assure assistance to the war effort, and to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children as well as providing one of the few large parties of the winter.

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip of the New York Infirmary is assisting in the arrangements for the function, which will be staged at the Ritz Carlton December 21. The parents of each debutante will purchase War bonds for her in an amount equal to the cost of a private party and the

Miss Cynthia Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tuckerman, will be among the debutantes bowing at the cotillion. She is a niece of Mrs. Jerauld Wright, who with her little daughter Marian is spending the winter in Washington while Capt. Wright, U. S. N., is on foreign duty. Miss Tuckerman was her aunt's attendant at her wedding, which took place in New York several years ago.

Among others who will be in the g.oup making their bows in this novel wartime fashion will be Miss Katherine Van Ingen Downey, pola; Miss Lucy Aldrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich: Miss Cynthia Cary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fair-fax Cary; Miss Julie Dierks, daughter of Mrs. Campbell Dierks; Miss Edith Gilbert Fincke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fincke; Miss Kate Helena Belcher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold S. #### Barbara Green Is Married to Robert Almony

Chevy Chase Home Of Bride's Parents Is Scene of Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lester Green in Chevy Chase was the scene of the wedding Friday evening of their daughter. Miss Barbara Ann Green, who was married before an improvised altar to Mr. Robert Allen Almony of Baltimore and Washington.

Autumn leaves and pronze and yellow chrysanthemums formed the decorations at the fireplace, which served as a background for the altar, and the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills officiated. Mr. Godfrey Wills played the wedding music, and solos were sung by Miss Jane Laidlaw.

Mr. Green gave his daughter in marriage. She was attired informally in a beige dress, with which she wore an antique brooch and bracelet of Venetian garnets that belonged to her great-great-grandmother. Her bouquet was a cascade of talisman rosec.

Miss Rebecca Warthen was the maid of honor, and Nancy Green, sister of the bride, served as flower girl. Mr. Letcher I ofgren was best

Lauds Role Played By Filipinos During Attack on Manila

By Gretchen Smith.

Several months have passed since Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, wife of the High Commissioner to the Philippines, witnessed the tragedy of the Japanese invasion, but those terrible days were relived by many yes-terday as she told the story of her experiences before the Woman's National Democratic Club.

Commencing with the first report of Pearl Harbor which she and the High Commissioner received following the Japanese attack on Hawaii, Mrs. Sayre described her two weeks in Manila under constant bombardment before her evacuation to Cor-

Highest praise was paid by the Commissioner's wife to the Filipinos, who she declared gave constant and repeated proof of their loyalty to the United States under numerous circumstances. She told of the young Filipino teacher who was shot for refusing to lower the American and Philippine flags, of the faithful chauffeur who overcame innumerable obstacles to drive his employer's car from Manila to Mariveles over the Bataan Peninsula and of the Filipino women continuing their works of mercy as bombs dropped on the buildings in which they were working.

"America has left a deep impression upon the Filipinos after 40 years in their country," she said, "and what happens in Asia will be greatly influenced by this bond between the Filipinos and the Americans."

Mrs. Sayre told of the courage and bravery of the American doctors and nurses, who worked day and night during the bombardment of Corregidor to save the lives of

"After what I have seen nothing can ever make me believe that Americans are soft," she concluded. "The story of battered Bataan and Corregidor will go down in history with the Alamo, Bunker Hill and Custer's last fight. Registration of Dealers Postponed as Forms Fail to Arrive

Fuel oil coupons in the 30-State area of the East and Middle West, including the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia, will have a unit value of 10 gallons, unless adjusted upward or downward, the Office of Price Administration announced last night. Meanwhile, snags in getting the rationing procedure under way promptly developed here and nearby, as forms for dealer registration failed to arrive. In Maryland and Virginia counties it was expected that some time would elapse before rationing boards could act on applications of individual consumers, who have been asked to file them by November 1. It was pointed out that fuel oil will be given those who need it on the promise that they will surrender the proper coupons to dealers when they finally are made available.

English co-operatives have served notice on the British government that while they are behind the war of goods. Thus, he pointed out, effort 100 per cent "our boys must return to a better world following food to provide for their customers. this war."

Mr. Beaton, who recently attended the 13th biennial congress of the the World War and is working well Co-operative League of the United again. States in Minneapolis, said that the 1,200 co-operative societies in Great Britain are determined to make successful the war effort of their government, and that they also are determined that a more lasting peace shall follow this conflict. "We cannot afford recurrent wars every 20 years," Mr. Beaton said, "and our societies, which now represent 9,000,000 consumers in the British Isles, are going to demand that we be represented at the peace conference."

Commenting on America's rationing program, Mr. Beaton said:
"For my first breakfast in the United States "I consumed two eggs, the equivalent of six weeks' ration in England, and a two weeks' ration

Comparing rationing in the United States and England, Mr. Beaton said that Englishmen, instead of being given ration cards and allowed to "shop around" at different stores, in turn, sends the ration slips to the wholesaler in order to obtain a stock shopkeepers may stock only enough Mr. Beaton said the English ra-

Gas Rationing Forms Being Distributed by OPA

The Office of Price Administration began today distribution of forms which America's 27,000,000 motorists will use in applying basic rations under Nation-wide gasoline rationing which begins November 22.

The blanks, consisting of a tire record and an application for basic rations, will be available to the public through service stations, garages and other places designated by local rationing boards as soon as distribution is completed.

In the areas not now under rationing the basic mileage applications will be presented to schoolhouse registrars during the rationing period beginning November 9. In the Eastern rationed area the form must be filed with a local board as a condition for retaining the gasoline ration book already issued.

Like the "A" application forms filled out by Easterners last summer, the new blank is brief. All information needed, except for tire serial numbers, will be found on the owner's registration card.

Car owners listing more than five tires for each car will be told they must dispose of the excess tires before receiving a gasoline ration. Each car owner must certify that he will not drive more than 35 miles an hour.

Fair Practice Group Wins Jurisdictional Battle With McNutt

MacLean Committee, Not WMC, to Set Policy in All Discrimination Cases

Fair Employment Practice today won a victory over Paul V. Mc-Nutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, in their controversy as to which section of the commission would handle questions relating to discrimination based on race, creed, color, national origin or alienage.

Mr. McNutt announced that an agreement had been reached between his office and Dr. Malcolm S. Mac-Lean, committee chairman and president of Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., that the committee would handle "all policies relating to the enforcement and effectuation" dealing with discrimination, and "such policies shall be binding" on the

The decision virtually wipes out two divisions of the commission—the Negro Manpower Service and the University Park Area Minority Group Service. The Manpower Service is headed by Dr. Rob- Dedicates Raid Siren ert C. Weaver and the minority branch is in charge of Dr. Will Alexander, former Farm Security administrator and a vice president of the Rosenwald Fund.

Both Dr. Weaver and Dr. Alexander are widely known for their activities in their respective fields. ated, but it is planned later to have It is probable that these officials will be transferred to other divisions of

The Manpower Commission chief said it was further agreed that all field personnel of the commission dealing with the problem of discrimination would be combined with and become part of the committee's life back Aches field staff.

Dr. MacLean manifested satisfaction with the agreements and expressed the conviction that President Roosevelt's intention to strengthen the committee and maintain it as an organization entity "has been fully met." The committee was set up last year by the President to develop. better racial relations in the war effort. In July it was transferred from under the White House direction to the War Manpower Com-mission. "The soil right here in Gloucester is perfect for coffee raising,' said the 56-year-old soda water concessionaire. "It's just what folks around here never tried to raise coffee beans before."

Sure, Mr. Capillo said, two years ago he bought some unroasted coffee imported from Mexico and, as an experiment, planted it in his back yard in the spring. By September, he said, the plants had yielded 20 pounds of beans.

"They looked like string-bean vines," he said. "I picked the beans, shelled them, and had them roasted. Got seven pounds of the best coffee I ever tasted." Milton C. Allen of the State Ag-

Resort Clothes This Year Have New Significance

Southern Jaunts May Be Out, But These Styles Prophesy High Lights for Spring

By Helen Vogt

Although it seems slightly doubtful that many women will have either the time or inclination for vacations in the South this year, this fact has left the sportswear fashion designers singularly unimpressed Nor are they daunted by the fact that unnecessary traveling has been discouraged, or the knowledge that many of their favorite resorts have a military, rather than a millionaire, appeal this season.

Of course, the reason for their seemingly unaware attitude is not because they expect to overcome all these difficulties and proceed with "business as usual." The resort collections currently being displayed in New York and soon to be shown to Washington are, more than ever, the forerunners of spring styles. Southern wear usually reaches its peak in late November or December, but this year it would not surprise us too much to find the clothes being bought even earlier. It is certain, too, that a glimpse of these collections will give a fairly accurate picture of what we may expect in the months to come. That is, what we may expect barring very severe clothing

What's New in Town?

By Dorothy Murray

The smart young feminine set of Washington is going "quite mad" over the latest lapel pin gadgets. Made of bits of fur and leather in the forms of various animals, these are appropriate to wear not only on tailored suits, but on fur coats for added smartness. The fur used in these pins includes pieces of pony, kidskin, clipped caracul and "bunny." They are well padded and backed with leather to make them appear even fuller. Among the collection are bulls' heads, lions, elephants, monkeys and even chow dogs. Gray and brown are the outstanding colors.

Hostess' Delight . . .

A new series of dress colors in woolens designed by Kurt Forstmann derives its inspiration from a century-old book of color prints of clothes worn by natives of provinces in old Russia. Although the dresses themselves are "typically American" in their Fancies in Fur . . .

Card table covers made of washable corduroy bound in gold braid are a joy to the hostess who entertains her bridge club frequently. Rich winter colors such as blue, green and red are represented in the supply and are claimed to be fast in both color and pile. Easy to wash, too, for all one has to do is use lukewarm water and soap flakes, squeezing the suds through the material. Then roll it in towel, knead out moisture, dry quickly and press on wrong side. If directions are carefully followed, the covers will look "like new."

From 'Down Under' . . .

An adorable toy for very young ladies, as well as for some of the "big girls," is a kangeroo made of white plush and red corduroy materials. A baby kangeroo peeks out of mama's pouch. Though it's recommended for children as a "cuddle toy," the grown-up miss will approve it as decoration for the chaise longue or bed. The bright colors of the kangeroo will lend cheer to the room, and the appealing quality of the team is not to be resisted.

For the 'Little Woman' . . .

To help the busy housewife be more efficient in keeping an account of bills and correspondence there is a folder made of simulated leather containing four separate compartments, for answered and unanswered letters, paid and unpaid bills. This folder could be kept on top of a table or desk without in any way detracting from the appearance of the room.

English Women Call 'Time' on Long, Chatty Telephone Conversations

Too often purely chatty conversations of interminable length are indulged in, even in these busy times. Long-drawn-out "Well, she told me" and "Then I said"-dialogues use up precious time, and keep wires from more important calls. In the past this method of visiting by tele-

Our Celebration Of Halloween Ancient One

gay harvest songs as the grain was reaped and the corn spirit died annually. Records show that the worker who cut the last sheaf was felt to be responsible for this death and was given the same penalty. Later he was merely subjected to rough handling, and from this probably developed the practical jokes which are still typical of Halloween. As old as the rites just described are engaged in war production. The was the custom of bringing the first willingness of the housewife to fruits of the harvest as an offering launder the extra garments which to the medicine man or chief of the tribe, who was considered a repre-

Reservoir of Good Will Toward United States Is Leaking Dangerously Through 'Thousand' Holes of Our Own Making, Willkie Declares

circling trip follows:

Several months ago it occurred to me that perhaps I could make a contribution to the war by visiting the world's people who have a stake in it. I wanted to see them. I wanted to talk to them at thier fighting fronts. I also wanted frank discussion with both leaders and people in countries which have not yet decided on their course of ac-

Naturally, in time of war, it is impossible to leave this country without permission. So I applied to the President for permission to visit the Middle East, Russia and China. I wanted to go as a private citizen, as I had gone to England when she alone was so courageously holding the free world's battle line against Hitler. The President agreed to my trip, and asked that I perform certain specific tasks for him, which I was happy to undertake.

Went as Free Agent.

It was clearly understood between him and me that apart from the specific matters handled for him, I should go as a free agent. I was at liberty to express my opinion while abroad and equally so when I returned. I have talked to literally hundreds and hundreds of people around the world in the last two months. Everywhere I made it crystal clear that I was present as fast. #### Reports to Citizens.

I make these points clear because the citizens of a democracy have the right to know them. And late. Also they are impressed by tonight I am reporting to you, and summarizing my conclusions, as an American, interested only in the trelfare of my country and proud tion project, some harbor or factory, that I am accountable only to my which has been built by Americans.

The new world that has been opened up by modern inventions was never more vividly illustrated I think, than on our last lap home. We left Chengtu on October 9, traveled almost 1,000 miles in China, crossed the vast expanse of the Gobi Desert and the Mongolian Republic, crossed thousands of miles of Siberia, crossed the Bering Sea, the full length of Alaska and the full width of Canada and arrived in the United States four days later on October 13.

Thinking Must Be Global.

I say to you: There are no distant points in the world any longer. The myriad millions of human beings of the Far East are as close by the fastest railroad trains. I cannot escape the conviction that must concern us, almost as much as the problems of the people of California concern the people of New York.

Our thinking and planning in the future must be global.

One of these ideas, and one which I can report without hesitation, has tremendous significance for us in America; it is the mixture of respect and hope with which the world looks to this country.

Whether I was talking to a resiene toting his burden on his head king in Egypt, or a veiled woman in punched by us. himself, or the enchanting wife of fulfilled? the great Generalissimo of China, whether I was talking to any of mon bond, and that is their deep friendship for the United States.

Reservoir of Good Will. They, each and every one, turn to the United States with a friendliness which is often akin to genuine affection. I bring back to you this clear and significant fact: That there exists in the world today a gigantic reservoir of good will toward you, the American people.

Many things have created this enormous reservoir. At the top of the list go the hospitals, schools and colleges which Americans-many of them missionaries—have founded in the far corners of the world. Many of the new leaders of old countriesmen who are today running Iraq, or Turkey or China-have studied under American teachers whose only interest has been to spread knowledge. Now, in our time of crisis, we owe a great debt to these men and women who have made friends for

We must believe these simple this war, the strength and the confidence in each other which we will need to win the peace.

There will be lots of tough probems. And they will differ in different mandates; different colonies. Not all the peoples of the world are ready for freedom, or can defend it, the day after tomorrow. But today they all want some date to work toward, some guarantee that the date will be kept.

For the future, they do not ask that we solve their problems for them. They are neither so foolish nor so faint-hearted. They ask only for the chance to solve their own problems with economic as well as political co-operation. For the peoples of the world intend to be free not only for their political satisfaction, but also for their economic advancement.

There are other holes that we are blindly punching in our reservoir of good-will which can be more easily repaired. One of them is the halfignorant, half-patronizing way in which we have grown accustomed to treating many of the peoples in easttern Europe and Asia.

Want U. S. as Partner.

Our Western world and our presumed supremacy are now on trial. Our boasting and our big talk leave Asia cold. Men and women in Russia and China and in the Middle East are conscious now of their own potential strength. They are coming to know that many of the decisions about the future of the world lie in their hands. And they intend that these decisions shall leave the peoples of each nation free from foreign domination, free for economic, social and spiritual growth. Finally, when I say that this world demands the full participation of a self-confident America, I am only be one of their partners in this grand adventure. They want us to join them in creating a new society, global in scope, free alike of the economic injustices of the West and the political malpractices of the East. #### Aid From the Enemy

When you are considering the bidding of a slam, energetic defensive bidding by the opponents is likely to discourage you. If the opponents have enough strength to make several bids they may have enough strength to defeat a slam. But sometimes their bids help your side by making cue-bids possible and by indicating the probable distribution. In today's hand, for example, the East-West bidding convinced South that he had a sound play for a grand slam.

Pass Pass The East-West bidding made it possible for South to show no diamond losers and for North to show no club losers. Had the opponents never bid, North and South still might have rue-bid the minor suits, but there might have been some doubt about the meanings of the bids But among experts, there is sometimes a slight doubt as to whether a bid shows control or a real suit. When the suit has been bid by the enemy there can be no doubt.

But the enemy's bidding told South a little more. Consider South's bidding problem immediately after North's cue-bid of five clubs. Obviously a small slam must be ice-cold. But should he bid a grand slam?

North's cue-bid showed no losing clubs, and South's diamond void made it evident that no diamonds would be lost. What about trumps? Certainly North had an ace to cooperate so enthusiastically with South's slam try of three diamonds. If he had the diamond ace he would realize that it merely duplicated South's void. Only if he held the heart ace would he be encouraged to try for a slam. Also he would surely hold at least three small hearts with the ace, in which case the heart suit was solid. (It didn't seem likely that West would hold Q-10-X of hearts, since he had overcalled in diamonds and raised clubs.) Finally, the chance of a spade loser was quite remote. It was possible only if North had five small spades with the suit breaking badly and no squeeze working. * * * *

Fantastic 'Mr. Sycamore' Flimsy Dramatic Fare

Theater Guild Offering At National Theater Fails In Absorbing Movement

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

In its quest for the unhackneyed in theme and treatment the Theater Guild came upon the fantasy of Ketti Frings called "Mr. Sycamore," and it opened at the National Theater last night as the second attraction of the American Theater Society.

Originally a short story, expanded for the purpose of the footlights into a full-length drama, this whimsical conception of a letter carrier's dream remains nugget size for the conventional theater evening. One can readily imagine that John Gwilt, a small town postman, could find the daily trudge as Uncle Sam's courier trying upon his feet, and monotonous for one with fine sensibilities. In his rounds he became the repository of much of the town's secrets and gossip, and a mite wearied of humdrum existence. Andrew R. Kelley. As one of the small people of the world who had read his history and medieval legend. Mr. Gwilt wished for the peace, contentment, dignity and passive contemplation that must be the life of a tree. Somewhere, he had read that by concentrated wishfulness this miracle of transformation had been accomplished, and who could say it would not happen

Experiment With Nature. This ambition to root in the soil and become part of Mother Nature. Mr. Gwilt encouraged sufficiently to plant his feet in the good earth and pray for fulfillment. The experiment is tried in his front yard but before Mr. Gwilt develops a trunk and begins to leaf, the interlude is trying upon the audience.

In the transition from reality to the full-blown sycamore tree there are many minutes to be filled with explanation and conversation, and most of this is dull and uninspired. Whatever substance "Mr. Syca-whatever substance "Mr. Syca-more" may have had in magazine Dr. Ley Goes to Rome pages has vanished in the expansion, and the Frings script as viewed last night possesses hardly more than the flimsy structure for a one-act play. It lacks the imagination and the dramatic devices of "On Borrowed Time." which it suggests, and apart from the short postman's dream is devoid of action. Audiences saturated with war news are eager for elements of escape. There is a warm and affectionate feeling for those who sense an instinct for kindness and peace which they cannot quite understand, but which searches for an outlet. Fantasies which inhabit the realm of pure art may supply this demand, but "Mr. Sycamore" gropes and stumbles without finding the

Mrs. Gwilt, who finds it difficult to adjust herself to this unusual experiment leaping from cold reality to the cosmos. Claiborne Foster as the town gossip and poet made the most of a character which seemed underwritten. Leona Powers, Harry Townes, Franklyn Fox, John Philliber, Harry Sheppard and Russell Collins give excellent support in the other dominant roles.

In this simple statement of yearning for peace the settings designed by Samuel Leve-particularly the tree in embryo and in majestic growth—are aids to what illusion "Mr. Sycamore" offers.

Budapest Quartet Concert Honors Music Teachers

Unity, Beauty and Depth Mark Playing

Of String Group By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The members of the Washington Music Teachers' Association were guests of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation last night in the Library of Congress, where a concert was given in their honor by the Budapest String Quartet. Coolidge Auditorium and the Whittall Pavilion were taxed to capacity by the crowd which expressed its appreciation of the finely performed program in enthusiastic manner. The quartet has been heard many times in many varied programs, yet seldom has it surpassed in beauty of nuances and depth of expression its playing last night. The remarkable unity which this group has attained is so firmly established that the result resembles one instrument and one intelligence. Individually the members have become familiar as artists of their medium, yet it would be impossible to select one as responsible for the polish of the whole or as more outstanding musically than the others. Quite appropriately the program opened with Beethoven's "Quartet in G Major, Op. 18, No. 2" which is known as the "Compliment" quartet. Its graceful elegance formed a charming greeting and the smooth execution of the artists brought out its freshness and brightness in every Permeating the work is the delight of the composer in the new medium on which he but lately embarked and his pleasure in the skill that came so quickly to him. It was balanced in the concluding number by the lovely "Quartet in B Flat Major, Op. 67" by Brahms, in which a spiritual affinity with Beethoven is recognizable and in which his own particular type of gay humor has full play. The mood of the evening was bright and spirited except for the Andante of the Brahms quartet and the "Music for Four String Instruments" by Charles Martin Loeffer. The latter is dedicated to the memory of Victor Chapman and as such has the shadow of melancholy in it. The composer has expressed his thought within a limited tonal range and without any desire for dramatic effect producing thereby a gentle veiled sadness. Loeffler's writing is remarkably compact and the fabric of his work is rich in luxurious harmonies of sound. The varied color of the instruments is interwoven closely and even when permitted a tonal flight. maintain the same related form. A mystic quality pervades throughout, with delicate touches indicating sentiment without definite or compelling statements. The facile employment of a wealth of musical ideas to a shadowy mood is accomplished with original means and with extraordinary skill. For a work tone of the Budapest Quartet is especially well adapted.

When I first went to Paramount as a publicity man, I immediately inaugurated a series of "searches." We searched for practically everything and found a lot of space in the papers doing it.

These searches included the one for the panther woman; for the lion man: for "Alice" in "Alice in Wonderland," and the "search for beauty," during which we brought 12 people to Hollywood from every point on the globe, including British South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, etc.

The search for the "panther woman" resulted in bringing not one, but four "panther women" to Hollywood. The only one that is still prominent is Gail Patrick, originally Margaret Fitzpatrick from Birmingham, Ala. The other three included Kathleen Burke of Chicago. who played the "panther woman" role in the picture, "Island of Lost Souls." Dick Arlen was the star. Now Dick Arlen is starring in Pine-Thomas productions. Then there was Lona Andre, originally Luana Anderson of Nashville, Tenn., and Verna Hillie of Detroit.

For the "lion man" we found 'Buster' Crabbe, the swimming star.
