Marine casualties in this engagement were two wounded, the communique added. Mambulo is a small village of huts, about 3 miles up the Matanikau River from the shore of the island.

Following Secretary Knox's statement of vesterday that the Marines appear to be firmly entrenched in Guadalcanal and will be difficult to dislodge, this is the second Navy communique about persistent action of our forces in their efforts to drive the Japs from the northwestern section of the island. Yesterday's communique, also dated as of November cerned, said that our forces continued limited advances west of the Matanikau. It also mentioned activities of the Japanese in the Mam-

Russian Drive Closes in on Nazis, German Losses Rise to 100,000; Axis Massing Air Power in Tunisia

Escape Corridor From Stalingrad Cut to 30 Miles

By EDDY GILMORE, MOSCOW, Nov. 25.—German losses in dead and captured alone had rocketed close to 100,-000, as the Russian counteroffensive gained momentum and squeezed the invaders' escape

corridor from Stalingrad down to a width of 30 miles, battle-front dispatches reported today. From the long-besieged city the Russians reported rolling back a Nazi wedge to the Volga, clearing another avenue for supply and reinforcement of the garrison, which already is lashing out from its defensive positions and beating back the Nazis street by street.

Northwest of the city the Russian offensive penetrated 80 miles into the depth of German defenses within the great Don bend, and to the southwest the Russians had stabbed 65 miles into the invaders' lines. The jaws of the nutcracker still were closing.

44,000 Killed in Six Days. A communique added 3,400 more German dead overnight to the toll in the Stalingrad-Don bend sector alone, raising the official count of the killed to 44,400 in six days, and battle-front dispatches said the tally when all reports were in would be close to 50,000.

The communique gave no specific figure on Germans captured overnight, but dispatches said the previous total of 36,000 now, too, was probably close to 50,000.

(No official figures were given on the number of Nazi wounded, but in London a Reuters dispatch from Moscow estimated by the traditional ratio of three wounded for every soldier killed that the wounded totaled Soviet communiques reported both rail supply lines to the siege forces cut early in the drive which started line dispatches indicated that only a narrow strip running through the Don River elbow north of Kalach and south of Trekhostrovskaya remained open to an estimated 300,000 Germans and their allies for moving supplies, or escaping.

More Cities Fall.

The fall of Kalach, on the Stalingrad-Kamensk railroad, was reported Sunday and Trekhostrovskava fell yesterday to forces pushing down from the north.

(The official communiques have not made clear the paths being followed by the several Russian offensive columns, but the location of the Germans' escape avenue north of Kalach would indicate that the same Red Army which cut the Stalingrad-Novorossisk railroad southwest Stalingrad swung part of its forces northwestward and captured Kalach, which lies about 50 miles due west of Stalingrad, and then swerved west to take Surovikhino, another 35 to 40 miles

(Earlier Russian communiques reported penetration to Chernyshevskaya, about 75 miles west of Trekhostrovskaya, and this gives the picture of a Germanheld corridor stretching some 120 miles west from Stalingrad within narrow confines before it spreads out into relative security for the invaders.)

Adding to the troubles being built up behind the Axis siege armies, the Russians reported yesterday that they had shoved a column down the Volga from the north to effect a function with Stalingrad's tough garrison in the northern part of the city and clear out a wedge that the invaders had driven between this sector and the main part of the Rail Line Menaced. Battlefront dispatches reporting gains of 25 more miles yesterday in the Chernyshevskaya area within the Don bend indicated that Russian advance in this sector was reaching menacingly close to the Nazi-held southern section of the main Moscow-to-Rostav rail line. The drive southwest of Stalingrad also continued, and it was indicated that the Russians were moving up into striking distance of Kotelnikovski, the rail station 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad from which the Germans launched the southern arm of their pincers attack on the Volga citadel last summer. South of the railway which runs (Continued on Page A-14, Column 1)

Heavy fighting was reported to have erupted again on the Gona end of the battle line. The Australians entered the village Monday and found 100 Japanese dead. Other dead and wounded Japanese were scattered along the beach near the community.

The Allied airmen made more than 100 sorties over the battle area yesterday, dropping hundreds of bombs and spraying many thousands of rounds of machine-gun bullets on positions of the trapped Japanese. The aerial action was particularly intense on a 6-mile stretch between Gona and Sanananda. No Japanese planes appeared to contest the air with the Allied flyers, it was

Piecemeal Plan Of War Effort Hit by Tolan

Californian, Kilgore And Truman Appear Before House Unit

By JESSE O. IRVIN.

Representative Tolan, Democrat, of California today told a Senate Labor Subcommittee that piecemeal reorganizations of the Government's procurement, production and manpower structures at this time "are no substitute for a comprehensive organization which takes into account all the related elements of war production."

The California, chairman of the House Defense Migration Investigating Committee, said that in placing the country on a war basis, "a footing which brings into the offensive every ounce of strength we have, we must be careful to keep each element of the job in its proper

He added that "the time has come to review the entire war effort on the home front."

With Mr. Tolan were Senators Kilgore, Democrat of West Virginia and Truman, Democrat of Missouri, who joined him in indorsing the Pepper-Tolan bill to create an overall war agency under civilian control to handle procurement, production and manpower problems. The bill, Mr. Tolan said, is in agreement with the people's wishes and the the clear intent of the

It was pointed out that the relationship between civilian authorities on materials flow and scheduling and the statements by military officials of their requirements are not clear. The witnesses agreed that the civilian authorities must have command of all non-military activities, which, they said, means production and scheduling of military materials.

They maintained that the Joint

By the Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25. -Philip Murray, president of the CIO United Steel Workers, disthe United States Steel Corp. that the union would submit to After Break for Freedom the War Labor Board the issue of company's Northern and Southern plants.

The union reported the basic wage rates, including a recent 512 cents an hour increase ordered by the WLB, are 78 cents an hour in U.S. Steel's northern mills and 601/2 cents an hour at Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., U. S. Steel subsidiary in Birmingham, Ala. Mr. Murray -called the differential "unjust."

At the time contracts were signed between the union and U. S. Steel subsidiaries on September 1, the union said, the conferees agreed that the differential question would be left for further negotiations and for final adjudication by the WLB. The union's contract with Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad incorporated the WLB's directives on wages but directives dealing with exclusive bargaining, maintenance of membership and the check-off of union dues were included in a supplemental, tentative agreement which was to become effective if the union is certified as bargaining agent at the company's plants. An election will be held December 2 by the National Labor Relations Board to determine the bargaining agency. Mr. Murray's telegram concerning submission of the wage differential issue was sent to officials of United States Steel and W. J. Kelly, direc-

Educational Program Urged at Conference To Cut Traffic Toll

Better Training Also Suggested for Bus Drivers and Motormen

Better education of the public and better training of streetcar and bus operators were agreed on today at a conference between the Commissioners and transportation and traffic officials as among the best available means of reducing Washington's

One suggestion was that police officers be authorized to board heavily loaded buses or streetcars when they note standees crowding at the front of the vehicle and to use "moral suasion" to get passengers to "move back." The city heads and other officials agreed this was a "good idea. but no instructions to police were issued, for the time being at

E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., blamed "war jitters" for some of the difficulties in handling streetcar and bus passengers and mishaps to mass transportation vehicles.

Mr. Merrill suggested that longer draft deferments should be granted for experienced streetcar and bus operators in order to give the company time for better training of new operators. Figures submitted to the conference indicated that 66 per eent of streetcar operators now in service have had less than two years experience with the company, "No Man's Lands" of Safety.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, charged that the District Public Utilities Commission was "encouraging jaywalking" by placing streetcar loading platforms in the middle of blocks, thereby creating "no man's lands" as to traffic safety.

Members of the PUC responded by saying the commission did not have sole jurisdiction, and that other District agencies played a part in the placing of platforms. However, James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman, promised that the agency would start a re-study of this problem at once. The conference had been told of some fatalities to pedestrians walking to loading platforms.

Coroner MacDonald also protested against "lack of uniformity" in the crosswalks and brought out that grass plots in the middle of Pennjurisdiction of the National Capital Parks Office, whereas most streets are under jurisdiction of the Commissioners.

A spokesman for the Office of the Petroleum Co-ordinator was less pessimistic, saying he believed predictions of a cut in home-heating rations at this time would be "slightly alarmist."

He said Ralph Davies, deputy pe troleum co-ordinator, has expressed belief that the East Coast will continue to receive about 75 per cent of normal consumption. Mr. Davies spoke, the OPC spokesman said, with the African campaign very much in mind.'

Lists of various types of consumers of fuel oil and other petroleum products now are being prepared, and proposals have been advanced that the less essential users such as amusement places, bowling alleys and the like be required to undergo reductions. Rationing officials believe that the recent cut in motorists' basic "A" card value from 4 gallons to 3 gallons a coupon has brought the level of gasoline rationing about as low as it can go.

Ruler Says AEF Can Expect Collaboration And Friendliness

President Roosevelt was assured today by the Sultan of Morocco that American troops there will find "only friends and collaborators." The message from Sidi Mohammed, native ruler of the French protectorate where the Allied expedition overcame early opposition came in reply to one from Mr. Roosevelt expressing his pleasure at the Moroccan spirit of co-operation.

The Sultan said that when American troops first arrived in Morocco "honor forced on us the duty of defending ourselves" to live up to agreements with the French, but that the people received the American troops as friends after the cessation of hostilities.

"The first contacts between peoples who do not know each other well enough are marked by hesitation and reticence," he added, "but progressively as reciprocal under-standing is established between them they are followed by esteem and friendship which creates a cooperative effort profitable for all. "Such has been the Franco-Moroccan collaboration which has been so rich in happy results for the prosperity and grandeur of Morocco We are sure that the same will result from contact with the United States of America, for whom we have always had the greatest sympathy and with whom we have for many years had important commer-

War Fund Workers Given 'Open City' to Raise Final $453,715

Will Solicit Anywhere In Two Weeks Added To Campaign

Community War Fund workers were turned loose today on an "open city," with freedom to solicit anybody, anywhere, in efforts to raise $453,715 more pledges within the next two weeks to send the campaign over the top by December 8.
Authority to throw the city "open" came at yesterday's report luncheon at the Willard Hotel, where Campaign Chairman Floyd D. Akers took this new move together with a two weeks' extension of the drive. During the next 14 days, it is hoped that enough pledges may be obtained, both from those who have not given so far and from additional pledges of former donors, to reach the $4,151,000 goal.

Bid for Independence

It is interesting to note that Mayor La Guardia of New York, a leader in the fight for unabridged union privileges so far as private industry is concerned, takes a different view of the matter when it is proposed to apply the same principles to public employes within his jurisdiction.

The Mayor is having trouble with the New York Transport Workers Union (CIO), which is trying to line up the National War Labor Board behind its demand for substantial wage increases for 32,000 city transit employes. The union's view of the matter is that maintenance of transportation in New York is essential to the prosecution of the war, and that it is entitled to call upon the War Labor Board to intervene if the employes are expected to refrain from a strike to enforce their demands. That is the way it would be handled in a private war industry, and the union spokesmen cannot see why a distinction should be made between public and private employment.

But Mayor La Guardia is not in sympathy with this point of view. "City employes," he says, "are Government employes and cannot leave their jobs any time they please. The right to strike against Government is not recognized in this city. That does not mean a city employe cannot quit when he wants to, but he quits and stays quit when he does. · · · We must run our own local government, and we cannot do it if we are hampered or hamstrung in any way. We cannot turn local government over to the War Labor Board."

The trend, however, is definitely away from the position that the Mayor has taken. Recently, garbage collectors in Newark, N. J., went on strike against the city. The War Labor Board has taken jurisdiction of the case, and a majority of the panel considering the matter has reported in favor of the strikers. With other things, the panel says that city employes have a right to strike, that the WLB has authority to intervene in a local governmental dispute, that it should require the city to reinstate certain of the employes who have been dismissed and that the city official who dealt with the strikers should be removed from office by the city, although he was elected by the voters.

This is indeed an extraordinary set of recommendations. Should the full board and the President support the panel, the authority of the Federal Government over the States and municipalities will, for practical purposes, be supreme and absolute. In all probability, the President and the full board will refuse to go along with all of the recommendations made by the panel, for that would sanction the right of Federal Government workers to strike-a right which the President has said does not exist. But the mere fact that such proposals are under consideration is indicative of the lengths to which we have gone in strengthening the hand of the central authority. Certainly, it cannot be said that Mayor La Guardia is seeing things under the bed.

"Streamlining" Education

A plan for merging the senior year of high school with the freshman year of college has been proposed by a commission representing the National Education Association as a necessary wartime measure. The purpose of the suggestion is one of adjustment of academic arrangements in line with legislation providing for the drafting of 18-year-old boys. Some "streamlining" of existing schedules is imperative in the interest of economy of teaching, more realistic curriculums and the most effective use of curtailed opportunities for study and research. High school courses must be abridged, college requirements must be lowered. These are the conclusions of a group including university presidents and deans, superintendents of public schools, instructors, officials of educational organizations and other authorities.

To what extent the plan can be made to work remains a question. It is stipulated by the commission that it is intended to apply only to the period of the prevailing national emergency. That means that it is recognized as an expedient to which the association probably would not be willing to lend its support under normal conditions. Proposals to "speed up" education hitherto have been looked upon with disfavor because undisturbed leisure generally has been appreciated as a prerequisite of cultural progress. The teach- | and by sympathetic or docile suboring profession opposes "cutting corners" unless compelling reason can be shown for the trimming.

Such a motive certainly is manifest now. The ever-increasing demand for human material in the current struggle is for the most part a demand for youth. If young people are to be educated at all, it is obvious that there must be practical concessions to the circumstances in which they find themselves. The civilization for which America is fighting is a civilization based on the democracy of learning. It must be preserved in that character, if it is to be preserved at all. Yet to that very end it would seem necessary to eliminate waste of every sort from the academic system. If the association plan is found faulty during the first few months of its trial, it can be altered or dispensed with entirely.

And Now Dakar

As a news item, the acceptance of Admiral Darlan's authority by the local colonial officials at Dakar comes as an anti-climax. But in the over-all strategic picture, its importance rivals that of French North Africa's shift to the side of the United Nations. Dakar is the administrative seat of all the French colonies in West Africa and the Sahara, colonies which have a combined territory of 1,800,000 square miles, 15,000,000 inhabitants, and vast natural resources. Its repudiation of direct control by the Axisdominated Vichy regime of Pierre Laval completes the secession of all France's colonial empire from that puppet government. Not an inch of territory outside France itself will henceforth obey the orders of Laval, the Axis stooge.

The submission of Dakar was accomplished without the firing of a single shot. It came about as an inevitable by-product of what had happened in North Africa. This is the supreme proof of how completely our strategy fooled the Axis. For months, the question of Dakar had been debated in America and Britain. Its obvious 'importance as a threat to South America and to the Allied sea lane around Africa was exhaustively discussed by a variety of commentators, many of whom urged its reduction at almost any price. Vichy responded by strengthening Dakar's defenses, massing forces estimated as high as 60,000 troops. with hundreds of airplanes and strong naval units. Strongly fortified and assailable only by sea, military experts were generally agreed that the capture of Dakar would have required an expeditionary force of at least 100,000 good soldiers, backed by a big fleet and operating under an aerial umbrella of major proportions. Had such an attack been made. the defenders, consisting mainly of black Senegalese who obey implicitly their white officers, probably would have put up stubborn resistance. Instead, the blow fell on North Africa, the heart of French colonial authority. Once that had yielded, Dakar was suddenly transformed from a spearhead of resistance into an isolated outpost which had become untenable.

Even if the local Dakar authorities had been secretly inclined to obey Vichy's order to resist, they had no choice. Admiral Darlan's clever tactics made the way easy for them. The admiral claims to be still acting as Marshal Petain's deputy under instructions given him before the Axis military occupation of Southern France. Asserting that Petain is now an Axis prisoner and is acting under duress, Darlan goes on the theory that any pronouncements now made by Petain are legally invalid and can be disregarded. Whatever the actual facts may be, colonial officials at Dakar and elsewhere have accepted Darlan's view at face value and have hopped gracefully on the

Count Berchtold

Among the peoples of the Englishspeaking nations Count Leopold Berchtold, whose death at 79 has been reported from Sopron in Hungary, long has been regarded as "the man who started the First World War" and thus indirectly was to blame for the second. This verdict on the Foreign Minister of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire from February 17, 1912, to January 13, 1915. probably is justified by consideration not so much of what he did but rather of what he did not do. One continental school of thought, represented by Prince Bernhard von Buelow, finds him guilty of "frivolous incapacity"; another, including Professor Alfred Francis Pribram of the University of Vienna, blames him for "weakness and indecision." These admittedly are "negative sins" which would be regarded as inconsequential in a character of less lofty position. In a diplomat, however, they were faults altogether deplorable. The fruitage of his failings is set forth by Professor Harry Elmer Barnes in "History and Social Intelligence" as follows: "In briefly summarizing the Austrian action and policy from June 28 to August 1, it is necessary to keep clearly in mind that though Berchtold, as Foreign Secretary, was formally responsible for the negotiations, he was but a figurehead. Szilassy, Kanner and Hotsendorf have made it most evident that he was . . generally dominated by the war party . . .

dinate officials in the Foreign Office. • • • Thoroughly at the mercy of the war party, and not reluctantly so, Berchtold drew up a letter to the Kaiser signed by the aged Austrian Emperor, Franz Josef, stressing the fact that unless vigorous action was taken against Serbia there was little hope that the Austrian Empire could be kept intact. This was delivered on July 5."

Of course, neither Count Berchtold

nor any other person of importance in Vienna desired a general European war. They simply did not realize that their proposed punitive expedition against the Serbs would involve Russia, Great Britain and eventually the United States in a universal conflict which would be renewed after 25 years. Dr. George Peabody Gooch of Cambridge in his "Recent Revelations on European Diplomacy" discusses the ultimatum to Serbia as "a gambler's throw" which the Austrians believed would "offer the best chance of escape from a terrible danger which was certain to increase and which challenged the existence of Austria as a great power."

Those who made that decision were mistaken and they paid for their error in terms of the destruction of their country, but it would be unfair to accuse them of willfully plotting a global catastrophe. Count Berchtold in 1919 epitomized his own case in the words: "I do not know why I have been held up as a sort of modern Machiavelli. I have a perfectly clear conscience. It is impossible to fix responsibility for the war on any particular person. It was the result of a variety of circumstances and conditions into which Europe had drifted."

Pensacola Admirals

As time and the tides of battle clarify some of our thoughts on the role of battleships, as well as air power, the "Pensacola Admirals" also are coming into their own. "Pensacola Admiral" is a term coined in derogation of the older officers who earned their wings at Pensacola merely as an added accomplishment. after service in other branches of the Navy. Those fine youngsters, the fighting pilots, scorning anything they see from a cockpit, were not always willing to admit "Pensacola Admirals" as blood brothers in an exclusive fraternity.

Admiral King is a "Pensacola Admiral" who won his wings at the ripe old age of 49. Now he has passed his sixty-fourth birthday, commander in chief of the Navy, too valuable a man in too valuable a spot to be retired by the calendar. And perhaps the title of "Pensacola Admiral" explains why he has become, and remains indefinitely, the Navy's top man. For before he learned to fly, he had learned most of the other things that a navy must do to win a war. He knows the business, from the use of submarines, destroyers, cruisers, battleships and striking task forces to logistics, tactics and strategy. He has been through the mill. Would he have been as well qualified for command had his experience been confined to aircraft alone?

Another "Pensacola Admiral" is the Navy's hero of the day-Vice Admiral William Frederick Halsey, jr., commanding the naval forces in the South Pacific. He earned his wings at Pensacola thirty years after graduating from the academy. Standing in the mud at Guadalcanal the other day, speaking warm words of praise for the Marines, he soliloquized on the part that battleships will play before the war is over in gaining naval supremacy. "The man who controls the sea will be the man who wins the war," he said. And he added, as if for emphasis, "And I'm an airman."

These "Pensacola Admirals" are airmen. But they are also sailors. And if our Navy is winning battles with "Pensacola Admirals" on the bridge, it is winning battles because as airmen the "Pensacola Admirals" understand the part that other Navy arms must play. The younger pilots, who have spent most of their Navy lives in the air. are being rapidly advanced to higher rank-as they deserve to be. The time may come in the Navy when no man can hope to be an admiral who cannot add "Pensacola" to his rank. For our admirals must know airships. But they must know other

Ungentlemanly and Illegal

November 9 was a field day for the Japanese radio in its attempt to break all records in the height of something or other. On that date a shocked Tokio protested to the world that the landing of American forces in Africa was illegal. It also regretted to state, more in sorrow than in anger, that General Eisenhower's appeal to Frenchmen to join up and resist the Axis was a most ungentlemanly act. These are some of the harshest words yet from the land of legality and gentility since its government discovered that it was legal to invade China and attack Pearl Harbor, with no declaration of war, and gentlemanly to torture and murder captives. Yet it is most kind of the Jap radio to call our attention to these deficiencies, and at least give us a chance to reform. Do we, perhaps, owe it to the legal gentlemen in Nippon to ask our own Supreme Court if we were correct in invading Africa, and to get out if the answer is "no"? Shall we put it up to Emily Post whether General Eisenhower was socially gauche in his appeal and recall him if he was? Or shall we just have a good laugh and call it

Expects Jap Attack On Australia

Military Writer Anticipates Drive Against Port Darwin As Diversion Tactic

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

It is sometimes useful to examine the military situation from the enemy's point of view, and this is particularly the case at present in the Pacific theater of war. The Japanese theory of war is offensive, as we have already learned to our cost. Our naval victory in the Solomon Islands has, however, made it very difficult for the Japanese to take the offensive in that particular area without a great deal of reorganization and preparation. It is not inconceivable that they may make another attempt to recover possession of Guadalcanal, but the factors of time and distance seem to be against them.

On the basis of normal calculation, it would seem far more probable that they must give up their garrison on Guadalcanal for lost and that they must likewise be prepared for the loss of the remainder of the Solomon Islands

The advantages which we have gained seem to preclude the possibility of the Japanese appearing in the Solomons in sufficient force and in time to prevent us from cashing in on our victory to this extent.

The Japanese situation in Papua also appears desperate, with their holdings reduced to a single heavily beset beachhead at Buna

Under these conditions a defensively minded high command unquestionably would be inclined to cut its losses in the whole Solomons-New Guinea area and would now be making preparations to retire not only from the Solomons and New Guinea but also from Rabaul, in New Britain Island, thus putting some 700 miles of water between the advancing Allied forces and the next nearest Japanese bases (those in the Caroline Islands).

It is not, however, by any means certain that the Japanese high command will think in these terms. They are much more likely to cast about in their minds for something they can do in the way of offensive operations to upset our plans. They can hardly consider a distant offensive, such as a blow in force at our Pacific communications, because of their heavy naval losses. They must do something which they can support with air power plus limited naval force. and preferably in an area where their air superiority can be so established that we will hesitate to risk the heavy naval units which gave us victory in the Solomons.

So considering, we begin to see the reason why Gen. MacArthur's bombers have been hammering away so steadily at the island of Timor. Timor lies north of Australia and west of New Guinea. It is only about 325 miles from Port Darwin, the most important port on the north coast of Australia and the only one with any satisfactory communications with the main centers of population and industry.

The Japanese may very well be planning a diversionary attack on Port Darwin from Timor, hoping thus to ease the pressure, particularly the air pressure, on their positions farther to the eastward, and to make it impossible for us to assemble a striking force to attack Rabaul. They might thus hope to gain time to build up a new offensive of their own to restore the Solomons-New Guinea situation, which they could hardly hope to do at all if they lose Rabaul now.

The Japanese will hardly hope to be able to conduct a major invasion of Australia from Port Darwin because it will be too hard for them to supply a large invading army at any distance from the coast; but there can be no doubt that an attack on Darwin would compel Gen. MacArthur to take very strong measures for its repulse, and the forces at his command are not so great that he could mount an attack on Rabaul at the same time that he was repelling an attack at Darwin. Timor has the advantage of well protected lines of communication-much better protected than those of Rabauland by way of Formosa, the Philippines, the Palau Islands and Amboina the Japanese can build up considerable air concentrations in the general area north of Darwin, where they also have occupied other small islands which should give them further bases for the operation of

One unknown factor in these calculations is the extent of the damage which our constant air attacks have done to the Japanese installations on Timor. The fact that the Japanese have been able to use Rabaul extensively despite all that our bombers could do leads to the supposition that they can use Timor just as effectively if they make up their minds to do so. At any rate, Port Darwin and, indeed, the whole northwest and west coasts of Australia are worth watching as possible scenes of Japanese diversionary offensives within the next few weeks.

Expresses Appreciation for Publicity Given Religious Meetings in Parks. To the Editor of The Star:

Sunday, the Catholic Evidence Guild of Washington, closed its eleventh season of open-air speaking in the public parks of the city of Washington. This letter is to thank the management of The Star for its courtesy during the past spring, summer and fall in carrying notices of our activities.

Our policy always has been never to attack others or "crack down" on any one, but rather to try to give an example of love of God, of our neighbor and of our country. This engenders a spirit of unity and builds up the morale so necessary in these times.

The publicity you have given our efforts makes you a sharer in our work, and God will bless you for it.

Our open air speaking programs always come to an end when the cool air of November makes it uncomfortable for folks to stand outside. But we hope to begin in 1943 on Good Friday. We hold training classes for our speakers every Thursday evening the year around.

At our open air meetings we take up no collections and our members pay no dues. The Catholic Evidence Guild is an investment in time and seal. What little funds our members are able to contribute go for pamphlets, which we give away to the poor who listen to our speakers out under the open sky.

"ARLINGTON, Va. 'Dear Sir: "I thought you and your readers might be interested in my recent experiments with a doughnut tied to a string as a combined gymnasium and food for the birds. "This was a cake doughnut. I believe the other sort is called a raised doughnut. This one I used was a regular old-fashioned doughnut, with a hole in the middle, sure enough, and it was through this that the string was tied. "Then I hung the affair on an old stake which had been left in some shrubs near the house. I was heeding your admonishment, you see, that the birds should be lured close to a window where an observer could see them easily.

"Well, the birds skirted that doughnut for days. Not a one would come near. They would fly over it, and beyond it, and almost drop down to touch it, but never once did a single one of them sample it. "Perhaps if we had a mockingbird in the neighborhood it would not have languished there on the stake so long. But one day a big bird alighted. It was a blue jay. "He perched right on top of the doughnut, and then jabbed his bill into it, taking out neat bites each time. After about ten jabs, he got enough, and flew away. There was quite a bit of bare doughnut showing, where the crust had been cleaned away.

"This, I thought, would attract other birds, but not a one came, although they continued to fly near at times.

"The next day the jay came back and hacked out another section. Still the smaller birds did not come, and I had about given them up, when two English sparrows flew down, looked the hanging doughnut over-and then flew away. "A chickadee came, to my great delight, but he, too, would have nothing to do with it. Maybe I bought the wrong

Cottage cheese, for instance, when placed in a feeding station, will often frighten the birds. They will not come near at all, although hungry and cold. We have tried this experiment several times, always with the same results. One of the best of these is the coconut shell, hollowed out, and strung through with a long wire. Wire is essential, because squirrels will bite through a cord or rope.

We would advise any one who wants a coconut feeder to secure a coconut at once, because the supply is none too good at this time. After the contents are removed, the opening is cut out so that there is a sort of bottom and top, the latter making a canopy over the bottom. This permits putting in quite a good amount of seed without it falling out.

Small birds can fly in bodily, and larger ones can stand on the edge. Squirrels can poke in their heads. The fun comes in placing the shell at the end of a wire at least 18 inches long.

and preferably well to one side of any supports. This puts the squirrels on their mettle in getting at the food. The various ways each squirrel solves this problem are something to watch. Another way of feeding birds is to string peanuts on a cord, and put it in a tree or shrub, so that the birds must pull them off. Another method is to hollow out a section of a branch, one about two inches in diameter, and fill it with melted suet in which seeds and grains have been poured. Then the stick is hung in a tree or shrub. Suet in any form is acceptable. It may be nailed to a tree, in the hunk, or ground up and placed with the seeds. Some persons prefer to put it in a wire or wicker basket. It must be remembered that wandering dogs often carry suet away if they can get at it.

Of all the tables for the autumn and winter birds, the best still remains the good earth. Food sprinkled on the ground is found and eaten by most birds. And this sort of feeding station costs nothing. Even a downtown sidewalk will do.

Tells of Appreciation Of Cartoon by Berryman II. To the Editor of The Star

I would like to say that in my opinion the cartoon by Jim Berryman which appears in The Evening Star for November 23 is one of the best which I have seen in a long while

The picture is well drawn, of course, but it is the caption which really makes this cartoon what it is. The paraphrasing of the current popular war song in the words, "Praise the Lordand pass some legislation," was a real inspiration.

If I knew how to go about nominating this cartoon for the Pulitzer Prize I would be glad to do so. C. F. BLANCHARD.

Defends Sociological Conception Of Function of Art. To the Editor of The Star

The write-up appearing in Sunday's Star on Jack Berkman's show now at the Whyte gallery is interesting in its lack of courage and its plaintive note of escape. The critic says: "The sordid subject matter makes such paintings unsuitable for decorations." We should prefer, it seems, to go in for color schemes and chintzes at the window in the midst of the most significant sociological upheaval the world has seen for some time. The picture "Watermelon Boats" is praised in the write-up. Perhaps the critic is an old Washingtonian who in a moment of understandable nostalgia has been overcome by the old Washington aspect of "Watermelon Boats," without in a realistic moment realizing that "Schotts Alley" is also an old Washington phenomenon.

The suggestion that a graphic medium might be better for the sociological pictures strikes a new high in naivete. To cite but one precedent, it would seem that Rembrandt used canvas and oils with a modicum of success as a medium for sociological phenomena. The critic hastens to add that color is Mr. Berkman's forte, which by a simple process of deduction leads one to believe that the critic is advising the artist to abandon his sociological subjects. It is doubtful that Mr. Berkman will abandon such subjects on the strength of such effete logic.

We can only hope that Mr. Berkman's work is an indication of a new wholeness in the artist's approach; the sanity to take the great implications of an upheaval and place them on canvas in a fearless manner. The question now seems to be whether or not the individual gallery goer can take it. There will always be the escapists who like best a bowl of fruit or a vase of flowers.

But there is a new kind of connoisseur of beauty who elbows his way in among the critics in our day; he dares to say that he sees beauty in the hope triumphant over disaster which rises like a nebulous veil from the overalled figure of "Okie." HELEN SWICK TEPPER.

Discusses Changes in Teaching

On Use of Alcohol, Etc. To the Editor of The Star:

I have been interested in The Star's fine and factual reporting on the subject of the change in the course of study on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and other narcotics. I am not a member of any of the citizens' organizations which have participated in the debate on this subject. I speak wholly for myself. I attended the public hearing and heard the various protests and recommendations on this course.

As I write this letter I have before me the original text, a copy of the first revision and a copy of the Federation of Churches Civic Affairs Committee's objections and recommendations, also a copy of the final draft which the Board of Education unanimously accepted at its meeting on November 19. I have made a study of all these documents and I find that The Star's article on November 19 gives the public the erroneous impression that Dr. Gannon has achieved what he set out to do, which was summed up in one of your earlier articles on September 15 wherein it was stated that "Dr. Gannon contends: 'A course on alcohol and narcotics that bends over backwards to be moralistic rather than scientific is dangerous. Students are apt to condemn the entire physical education program if they think parts of it are silly." Now, as a matter of fact, the original course was revised to conform to modern scientific ideas, as Dr. Gannon wished, and as your article rightly states. But it is also true that the first revision. which could be interpreted almost to encourage the moderate use of liquor and tobacco, met with such stormy protests that it had to be revised a second time to embody the suggestions made by certain interested groups and individuals. In short, the final accepted draft which, in my opinion, could be still further improved upon, nevertheless does embody most of the points as to the proper emphasis of the harmful physical, moral, mental and economic effects of alcohol and tobacco which were suggested by certain citizen groups, notably the Federation of Churches' Civic Affairs Committee. It must be admitted that the accepted version is a great improvement on the first revision.

Many readers of your paper, however, are very much confused and disappointed at what appears to be the outcome of this controversial matter. Their confusion and disappointment, it is evident, spring not from a falsification of the facts in the paper, but rather from not stating enough of the facts on your final report to make the issue clear and give credit

Q. What is the rank of General Marshall?-F. N. F.

A. The War Department says that General Marshall is a full general by virtue of his statutory appointment as Chief of Staff. He will hold that statutory rank for the length of his service as Chief of Staff and automatically will revert to his former rank of major general on the day he ceases to be Chief of Staff.

Check on Personal Revenue More Strict In United States

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Mrs. Roosevelt is the latest person to fall victim to the misleading statement that a person in Great Britain, no matter how wealthy, has only $21,000 left after paying taxes. Whoever gave her the information a pparently didn't know that many deductions for expenses in Britain are allowed which are not allowed in America, so that, in the final analysis, if s

$67,000 ceiling David Lawrence. on salaries, for instance, were placed in England, the British business executive would have far more left after paying taxes than anybody in the United States would have.

Thus, life insurance premiums are allowed as a full-rate tax deduction from gross income before taxes for all persons who earn more than $8,000 a year. The total allowance cannot exceed one-sixth of the policyholder's total income from all sources. Under the recent executive order limiting incomes to $25,000, no deductions of any kind are allowed on a $67,000 salary so as to bring the final amount remaining to $25,000.

Insurance premiums are not allowed as a deduction in the United States against gross income—not even term insurance which carries no cash or borrowing value and is taken out solely for protection, in many instances, by persons who have no estate but wish to protect their families against their sudden death.

Taxes Deductible.

Also in Britain all foreign income taxes and local taxes are deductible, so that when a man earns $67,000. for instance, he can reduce that sum considerably by the allowable deductions. In America no deductions from gross income for State taxes are allowed in complying with the recent executive order limiting net salaries to $25,000 a year.

It is true that insurance premiums are being given some credit as an offset in the United States against the victory tax, which starts in 1943, but, in figuring the $25,000 ceiling, no credit is given for any insurance deductions as against the total gross income.

In America, because of the taxes of the several States, the taxpayer the had had his salary limited to a gross of $67,000 by the recent executive order doesn't have $25,000 left but a very much diminished smount, because he still has to pay his State and city taxes out of his $25,000

Mrs. Roosevelt unfortunately was away when the executive order was issued. Judging by her comments when she came back, she would have preferred to bring about the reduction in big salaries by means of taxation. She evidently is under the impression that the salary ceiling was accomplished by law or by the tax method, for she says she was surprised to find that income from investment was not covered by the recent limitation on salaries and she added: "But I was assured we would tax that, too"

Mrs. Roosevelt apparently expected the Congress to do the limit- Thrills Sultan's Sons ing. Just how a reduction in pre-war salaries of America's most successful executives is a step to prevent inflation is was merely an excuse for an action prince replied in French:

that was taken for political reasons -namely, to placate labor. Not long ago James F. Byrnes, director of Economic Stabilization, feels the same as when I ride my said that only 3,000 persons were affected but that judging by the fury raised it seemed as if 3,000,000 were affected. If the Government suddenly cut by two-thirds the salaries Trainees Sought of all generals in the Army so as to level them off to a point nearer the scale of enlisted men, there might not be more than 500 persons affected. Maybe America's managers of war production plants aren't as impor- nator of vocational training for war tant as generals in the field, but, judging by the way America's management class is working day and night to get planes, ships and munitions into the hands of our men quickly, they might possibly be re- Friday, and the course is free to all garded as worth some consideration citizens of the United States over by their Government. force on this earth was accurate. It is also clear that in calling for a second front the Russians were not asking to be relieved of any share of the task of defeating Hitler. They were asking to have a situation created in which the defeat of Hitler by common action is certain.

Hitles Confused.

Against the agitation for a second front it was argued that by publicizing it the element of surprise would be eliminated. For creating the element of surprise there are two possibilities-to be absolutely silent, or to talk too much. Actually, the immense amount of talk created such a confusion that the Montgomery campaign, the Eisenhower campaign, and the Timoshenko offensive all came as complete surprises. For Hitler became crosseved trying to imagine where the next blow might fall.

The Russian front still remains the main front of the war. On this front the overwhelming bulk of Hitler's armies are tied up. And, as the Anglo-American forces have fulfilled their obligations to create a substantial diversion, the Russians have promptly responded. This weekend battle before Stalingrad is perhaps the decisive battle of the war in Russia. It is more important than the battle before Moscow a year ago, and it has been more brilliantly executed.

In the first three to four days of this battle, the German losses are exceptionally heavy, surpassing everything known up to now. They occur at a moment when the matter of reserves is of primary importance to Germany. As far as we can see now. two German armies are defeated. Out of 250,000 men, over 100,000 have been lost, killed, captured or wounded in action.

Battle Pattern Given. For the first time in the history of the Russian armies, they have been able to carry out a rapid maneuver in a small area, on the pattern of the classic German strategy, comparable to the battle of Tannenberg in the last war and of Sedan in this. This differs from the battle of Moscow a year ago which was on a wide front, without concentration and without encirclement.

The Russians may have two immediate aims: a limited onethe relief of Stalingrad and the Volga, and the attrition of the Germans, and/or a great maneuver aimed at Rostov, cutting off the whole German Caucasian army. Which of these the Russians are able to do cannot be foreseen. If the grand move is possible, 'the Germans will be 50 per cent defeated in Russia. In any case they have already accomplished what was the most optimistic forecast for the spring of 1943, and in this situation it is going to be utterly impossible for Hitler to send adequate reinforcements to North Africa.

Coming atop the speech of Goebbels at Wuppertal just one week ago, in which he continued to claim victories in Russia, the effect on German morale must be devastating.

Now, the Russians could not have accomplished this without our help, and because of their accomplishment many American boys will live who would not otherwise have done so. And even in Russia we helped them to do it. According to all the reports the Russians, for the first time, attacked in masses of British and American tanks. Three cheers for lease lend.

Hitler Faces Allied Strategy.

But Hitler had been forced not only to withdraw reserves but to transfer much of his Luftwaffe from Russia to the Mediterranean. For the first time, Hitler is the object of united Allied initiative. It is a two-front strategy taking him in a pincer, which further moves in other areas-for instance from the British Isles-unpredictable. What, under all these circumstances, can Hitler do? Hypothetically, he might try to take back the initiative and reestablish the communication lines with his almost encircled armies before Stalingrad. But that is hardly possible because the surprise was too great and the losses too high. More probable is that he will follow a second strategy, withdrawing and improvising a new line of defense. But then the question is: What about the German armies in the Caucasus, who will be bagged and enormously endangered? If he withdraws the Caucasian army, too, he admits the loss of the Caucasian campaign. If he maintains the fronts, he risks

Anglo-American might rising in the west. The greatest German strength is lined up between the Upper Don and the Caucasus. We trust the Italians are not expecting that it will move away to fight

This Changing World

Darlan's True Worth Declared Unappreciated; Observers Say He Gave Only Lip Service to Nazis

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

United States

Constantine Brown, tions it is asserted that Admiral Darlan has rendered us the greatest service any one could render any nation. His switch to the Allies from former Pro-

equivalent of a shift of at least

Dakar has been a thorn in our side ever since the collapse of France in 1940. Its strategic importance was fully understood by the British and the fighting French long before the United States entered the war. Gen. Charles de Gaulle ordered a weak force to capture the port in the fall of 1940. He relied principally on the prestige of his new-born movement and the consequences were disastrous. The British-Fighting French force was compelled to evacuate the territorial > it arrived. The American general staff even after Algeria and Morocco were occupied, believed the capture of Dakar by force would be a long and costly operation. The French guarding the region were well armed and prepared against any emergency. The Nazis who signed a protocol with the French authorities in North Africa did not deliver the war material they promised Gen. Auguste Nogues. But they did send large supplies of ammunition, oil and gasoline to Pierre Boisson, pro-Vichy governor general of Senegal. Admiral Darlan himself had to act gingerly in handling Gov. Boisson, but in the end he won waters of Senegal as speedily as Laval Dominates Petain.

Admiral Darlan's greatest argument with the French officials in North and West Africa, who are still imbued with lovalty for Marshal Petain, is that he went to Africa with the marshal's silent consent and that all the speeches Petain is making now from Vichy are dictated to him by Pierre Laval.

There is a great amount of wonder in military quarters over the indignation which prevails in certain circles over the acceptance of Admiral Darlan in the American ranks. It is fully understood how the public can express such a feeling, because for many months it had been told that Darlan was an enemy of the United Nations. But those highly placed civilians who started the campaign against the French admiral have been told all the facts in the case and are fully aware that Darlan is not as bad as he has been painted in the past. The admiral is as bitterly opposed to the Nazis as he is reputed to be opposed to the British. But he was in the hands of the Nazis and any false move on his part while he was Premier of France would have meant the return to power of arch cooperationists like Laval, Marcel Deat or Jacques Doriot. Those American officials who were with him for a long time at Vichy-before he was compelled by the Nazis to hand over the reins of power to Laval, say he was giving the enemy lip service. They declare he made strong anti-British and anti-American speeches to please the Germans and obtain increased rations for the starving French population. He also doubted that an Allied force could land in France and in North Africa. But some officials felt all along that he would not hesitate to throw his lot in with the enemies of France's conquerors when the proper time came. His Value Appreciated.

There was no possibility of even intimating that the bitter critic of the British might harbor such thoughts. Even a hint to that effect would have deprived us of the services of this man who has done us such a good turn. Laval had some suspicions and told Herr Otto Abetz, the Nazi high commissioner in France, to beware of the admiral. But there was nothing in his record to justify Laval's premonitions. American officials in Washington and in North Africa are perturbed by the flood of propaganda loosed against the admiral in America and Great Britain. While at first Darlan was able to understand the uproar over his joining the Allied cause, he cannot understand now why he continues to be attacked and belittled after he has proved himself loyal and truthful to the Allies. He has suspicions of the Nazis and he is said to have expressed the belief that the Nazi fifth column in the Allied countries is stronger than generally suspected. To a practical military mind it stands to reason that the only people who can benefit from tearing him down and belittling his work for the Allies are the dictators in Berlin and in Rome. Admiral Darlan saw France fall principally because of a "splendid inside job" and he wonders, according to reports, how strong the inside job in Britain and America may develop. The masses in both countries know about his past only from what they have heard or read. The commentators and reporters knew only what had been told them by their available sources. A true picture of Darlan could not be gathered in time of war in this manner. But inside the Government the highest authorities know that he is doing a priceless job for the Allies.

I have looked at so many printed forms (when my taste runs to more animated types of forms) that a few more "Fill in here-Do not fill in below-Print Clearly" instructions and I will be off to the neighborhood nuttery.

Just think of the forms we have filled out already. There was the first draft questionnaire. Then there was the second one. there was the form for sugar, gasoline and new tires. Soon there will be forms for lots of other things. Already I have shown the first symptoms of "fountain pen elbow" and the family physician says that! unless I hibernate to a cave I am almost certain to catch that new and dread disease "Leonhendersonia."

So here is everything I think the Government will ever want to know about me. I am 35 years old and my ears are about the size of bookends. My hair is red and there is just about enough of it left to fill a $1.35 gold-filled locket. At the rate it is, retreating, however, there won't be enough left a year from now to make the cross bars in a binocular.

My waistline and shoulders are exactly the same width and my walk is like that of a penguin with a rock in his shoe. The hardest word in the English language for me to: rite is "government." I still don't think there is an "n" after the "r."

I am a firm believer in two say-"Never trust a man who says he is not afraid of his wife, because he'll lie about other things, too." The second is: "I can resist everything but temptation." HOW TO COVER A WAR-FRONT STORY IN 3 EASY LESSONS CASPOTATE

"There are 2 kinds of correspondents who are completely useless to their newspapers", says crack reporter Allen Raymond. "One is a dead one; the second is a captured one."

Raymond, who's been tracking down big battles in 17 war-torn countries, tells why he's neither of these, in a thrilling article coming in the next issue of THIS WEEK Magazine.

If you want to know how these heroes of American journalism get their ringside-seat stories and photos to you—how they spot the big fights, get into the thick of them, yet get out in time—don't miss "We Cover The War" by Allen Raymond, Sunday in THIS WEEK Magazine.

Protestant Churches Of Japan Unified on Permanent Basis

Propaganda Observers In U. S. See Move as Part of Peace Offensive

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 .- The Tokio radio yesterday broadcast an announcement of the formation of a new Church of Christ of Japan, effecting "the unification of all Protestant denominations in the country on a permanent basis."

The new church, according to Domei news agency, differs from the National Christian Church established some six weeks before Pearl Harbor in that it includes the Episcopalians, who remained outside the previous unification, and also embraces such organizations as the YMCA, YWCA and WCTU.

The purpose of the new unification and of the broadcast announcement was not clear.

Observers of Japan's propaganda believe it may be part of a peace offensive which the Japanese may eventually address particularly to the churches and benevolent groups in this country.

Domei said the new church had supplanted the old concept of Japanese Christianity with a new one, but was not definite on this point.

Equity Warns Producers Stage Censorship Looms

Acting Group Advocates Voluntary Supervision With Juries for Plays

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

Actors' Equity Association has warned producers, "It looks like censorship again, unless-" the alternative being a voluntary readjustment of moral values through play juries.

This acting organization, which includes practically all of footlight workers in the professional theater, sees a trend toward a cleanup of the stage, and recognizes that the forces calling for censorship are too powerful to be ignored.

Parades Are Passed Up As Industry Prepares To Host Servicemen

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN. HOLLYWOOD.—Their not-too-personal affairs:

If screen folks decide to celebrate this Thanksgiving Day, it will have to be strictly on the gastronomical side. No Santa Claus parade, no sports events this year. Dimouts, gas rationing and concentration on the war effort have knocked out the 12th annual march of Santa and his picturesque floats along Hollywood boulevard, an event heretofore inaugurated on the eve of Thanksgiving and continued through Christmas eve. Studios will declare a holiday from shooting, but it will be the soberest in the colony's history. Arnold Is Optimistic.

Edward Arnold told a Los Angeles club, where he was the guest speaker, that America is awake to the war, contrary to what any one else says. He said that 80 or more Hollywood actresses and actors who have been touring the country-every city and hamlet—in the interests of War bond sales, should know what's going on and they report there is nothing wrong with the citizenry in general. As an example, Arnold said he was asked to stop at a tiny town, 350 population, to receive an envelope. He did so and found the envelope contained $2,700 in cash, for bonds. How MacMurray Made It. It's not in the least unusual for a Hollywood producer to send for the test of an actor or actress and, upon gazing at it, forget the original candidate and sign up the foil-usually a total unknown.

That's how Fred MacMurray got his first break. Same held true for William Holden. If Columbia had not looked at the test of a young actress under consideration for a role in a Frank Capra picture, Holden, an unknown who appeared in the test with the girl, wouldn't have been spotted and yanked into the title role of "Golden Boy."

Central Slight Choice Over Tech as Old Foes Meet in Colorful Title Clash

STEAMY STUFFING IN THE OLD BIRD

Win, Lose or Draw Defeated Rival,

Central-Tech Rivalry Hits 41-Year Mark

When Tech and Central meet in tomorrow's high school football championship playoff at Central Stadium it will be for the 42d time and not the 41st as the records would have us believe. Nor will it be the first time these traditional rivals have played two games the same year.

The extra game came in 1911, and Central won it, 12-0. The official score that year lists a scoreless tie and the two were declared co-champions because school regulations then, as they did until three years ago, did not permit a championship playoff. But that year Central had a really great team, one of the best in the school's history. It was undefeated and unscored upon for two years and in 1911 even moved into college ranks to defeat twice Maryland Agricultural College, the school that later was to become Maryland State College and eventually the University of Maryland.

The backfield was big and fast and made up of four of Bill Foley's track men. Fullback and captain for the third straight year was George Hamilton, who later was one of the marine heroes of World War I and was cited for bravery in action. Rudie Shoenfeld was quarterback and halfbacks were Fritz Reuter and George Van Dyne. Plenty of coaching talent also was around. In charge was John Thomas, but he also had lots of help from Phil King of Princeton, Dr. Edward Larkin of Cornell and Georgetown, and John Kelly, Central ace of a few seasons before.

Tech, on the other hand, was having a poor season. Coach Clarence Hecox recalls it as one of his weakest elevens. Only players of note were "Ecky" Eckendorf and "Country" Morris and Morris was known best for his tremendous kicks. So it was a surprised and bitterly disappointed Central team that was held to a scoreless tie.

Tech Founders in Lake Georgetown

Central, of course, wanted a playoff, athletic rules and regulations to the contrary. Tech was willing, so the schools seized upon the rather flimsy excuse of a benefit for the playground fund and then quickly outstanding play in the games since forgot about the charity angle as they prepared for the big game. There then and is expected to carry a came a week of November rains and when the teams finally met it was on a very soggy field in a game afterward referred to as the Battle of Lake Georgetown. This time Morris' kicks were to no avail. Hamilton scored one touchdown for Central on a 12-yard run and Reuter got the other on a pass interception for a 12-0 victory.

So Central really has won 19-not 18-games, to Tech's 16 and its point total should be 300-not 288-to Tech's 348. The other six games not accounted for ended in ties.

In the good old days, as fathers of today's schoolboys like to remember, the Tech-Central rivalry was the big thing around town. Central High School's oval always was packed to the gunwales and before that was built there always were big crowds of hot partisans at Georgetown Field and American League Park for the contests. The excitement began and Central was kept mostly behind weeks before the game. There would be the usual fights between its own 50-yard line as Tech made Central and Technical students when the old schools were located only three blocks apart on Seventh street and the day of the game was an occasion for practically no studies, as with banners flying and some sort of a band playing, the respective student bodies would march up Seventh street to the ball park.

In those days Tech's players were not known as the Maroons, but the Burly Blacksmiths. To carry out this motif, students made wooden sledge hammers and carried them to the game and it was not rare for Central students to receive an impolite knock or two from these hammers. Tech's students, with the school shops at their disposal, also used to make iron triangles and take them to the game as noise makers.

'Uncle' Lou's Oratory Set Blacksmiths Wild

"Uncle" Lou Mattern, a chemistry teacher at Tech from its founding until his death six or seven years ago, also will be remembered by Tech students as having an important part in the celebrations. He was the faculty's prize orator and would stand at the bottom of the stair well at the old school, his bald head shining like a beacon and with the students packed in tiers above him, and with many a fine-turned and humorous be handled by Dan O'Connell, and phrase whip up excitement for the game. He would recall Tech's past with Gray around to do the catchglories and make grand promises of even better things to come. He always ing he figures to complete more drew laughing cheers with remarks about those distant days, now happily past, before Tech ground Central into the dust and when Central's blue and white were the colors of a real school and not those of a female

The whole thing began in 1902 with Central winning, 23-6. A fellow named Paul Magoffin made the first touchdown for Central on a 50-yard capacity crowd of close to 8,000 is run. Dick Senior, the Technical captain, balanced this with a 105-yard expected. Admission is 55 cents. The punt return (the football field was 110 yards long in those days), but Magoffin was in there again with another touchdown on a 45-yard dash to put Central ahead, where it stayed. The name Magoffin may be familiar. He has refereed practically every Tech-Central game since 1913. Among some of the other numerous good names were:

1903-Tech, 10-0. Central again was the big favorite and it was with fear and trepidation that Tech's players approached the game. However, "Hercules" Deganne and "War Horse" Ballinger, sometimes known as "Tubby," scored touchdowns for Tech. The game was called after 24 minutes of the second half, instead of the usual 35, because (this is the Tech version) Central's coach complained his boys were being "killed."

Feeling Ran High in Early Tussles

1904-Tie, 6-6. A Tech player was tossed out of the game for fighting. 1906—Central, 11-4. Feeling ran high this year. Cy Macdonald, Central ace, was charged with professionalism (a mortal sin in those days) by Western and Tech. An official board of inquiry vindicated him in 20 seconds and he, almost single-handedly, defeated Tech 1907-Tech, 33-5; 1908-Tech, 12-0; 1909-Tech, 27-0. A lad named

"Cuppy" Farmer was playing for Tech.

1910-Central, 6-0. Here was a rough game as Central won its first clear football championship since 1902. It also won baseball, track, rifle shooting, debating and cadet drill that year. "Country" Morris of Tech was carried from the game with a dislocated shoulder and a Central player was tossed out for fighting. Fritz Reuter scored Central's touchdown on a 45-yard run.

1913—Tech, 3-0. Paul Magoffin, a Michigan football star after leaving Central, re-enters the scene as referee. He's been around ever since. 1914—Tech. 6-0. Percy Gibson scored first Tech touchdown against Central in five years. Central rooters had quite a time with his name. 1916, Central 7-0. Central's first year in its new building. Sam Gottlieb recovered a Tech fumble and ran 97 yards to score. 1919, Central 14-7. Over 1,000 persons of the big crowd had to stand 1922, Central 12-6. More passes were thrown in this game than in any previous big game in Washington. Central completed 15 of 28 and Tech 10 of 29, considered fair averages in those days. Jim Birthright of Central tossed touchdowns to Hall and Brinkman, 1923, Tech 16-0. A crowd of 10,000 was recorded. Tech had a new coach. Hap Hardell.

1927, Central 12-0. An upset. Central got first touchdown when wind blew a punt by Capt. Otts Kriemelmeyer of Tech back over his own goal and Everett Cross fell on it for a Central score. 1928, Tech 48-0. Biggest score of series

Last-Minute Central Pass Decisive in 1929

1929, Tech 12-6. Considered one of the best and most thrilling of the whole series. Larry Pinckney of Central virtually was unstoppable in first half, but Tech took over as Willis Benner scored two touchdowns in the last quarter. For one of them he took a fumble that popped from the arms of Sabatini and scampered 30 yards and got the other with a last-minute pass from Aubrev Spencer. 1930, Tech 18-0. Crowd of 10.000.

1933, Central 7-0. Frank Kocsis scored touchdown in waning minutes of last quarter, first time Tech was defeated in high school series since Central's 1927 victory. That was 24 straight victories under Hardell. Again feeling ran high. Night before the game, Central supporters tore up goal posts at Tech. After the game Tech's supporters reversed things by tearing up Central posts.

1935, Central 13-0. Little Billy Richardson scored two touchdowns

1939, Central 17-7. Benny Steiner won this one for Central. He kicked an early field goal and in the last quarter threw a fourth-down pass from midfield to Sam Di Blasi for a touchdown. Tradition with a capital T will spur these playoff rivals tomorrow

Both to Be Stronger Tomorrow Than in Previous Battle

By GEORGE HUBER.

All the old-time excitement and importance of the Tech-Central football game will be present tomorrow when these two rivals meet at Central Stadium in the Thanksgiving Day high school championship playoff. Central, defending chamption, represents the West Division with four victories in four starts, while Tech comes as standard bearer for the East Division with three wins and one setback.

Tech's lone defeat in title series play came earlier this year from Central, 12-7, and off that earlier triumph the Vikings rate as slight favorites for tomorrows encounter. All of Central's numerous stars in that game will be playing tomorrow. Mike Denikos, whose kicking and passing paved the way for both scores, has been continuing his big part of the Viking offensive.

Mess Brothers Big Help. Also counted on for much of Central's power tomorrow is Maurice Horton, a plunging fullback. In the quarterback slot is Bobby Mess, regarded as one of the city's best blockers and whose pass to his brother Jim, Central right end. earned one of the touchdowns against Tech.

In the second half of that game Tech's big line began to function numerous threats. If this sort of line play can be repeated tomorrow the Maroons may go places, but Coach Jan Jankowski of Central believes he has found the weak spots in his forward wall and Tech will be much stronger tomorrow than it was in the first game, with Monk Bauer, a 170pound, chunky plunging back, in the line-up, and with Bill Gray, a tall, fast end, also in service. Both were out with injuries last time.

Tech's Line Appears Better. In addition to the power supplied by Bauer, Tech can count on more of the same from Joe Flocker, Chris Pappas and Sonny Morrisette. The than he did last time.

Underdog Tars Bring Back Game After it Had Been Canceled

By SID FEDER,

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25 .-They're unfolding the vest-pocket edition of the Army-Navy football game in the Middies' compact ball park here Saturday, and if Army finishes on top-as it figures to dothe Cadets can thank the Navy for handing it to them on a platter. For, if it hadn't been for several Navy gold-braids, who wanted the game to be played, there just wouldn't have been any Army-Navy

What's more, if football continues during the war, there'll be no more service extravaganzas as the boys and girls have known them in the past, with all the rah-rah stuff, the hullabaloo of marching battalions and military bands and the crowds of 100,000 or so sitting in. Instead, it will be run just like any other football game

It will be a home-and-home affair for the duration, as plans now stand, with West Point playing host to the 1943 renewal before a crowd similar to the 15,000 or so residents of Annapolis, who are the only fans permitted to buy tickets for Saturday's shindig

Game Had Been Canceled. All this was learned from a source close to the Navy, along with the fact that before the President ordered this year's Army-Navy game transplanted from Philadelphia's municipal stadium to the Naval Academy's field, it had been wiped off the slate entirely. The War Department, it was learned, definitely had turned thumbs down on playing the tussle at all this year, principally because of the transportation problems involved and because of the rubber and gasoline that would have been wasted.

That's where the Navy men stepped in. Now, they must have known, from the way Coach Red Blaik had the Army guys rolling. that the Cadets figured to mow down the Middies this time. Yet, in spite of it all, the Navy biggies went all out in their argument to have the game played, regardless of consequences.

Put Up Convincing Argument. Several of them went to Washington to lay their case before the top authorities.

Well, they put up a convincing case before the judge and jury. Anyway, President Roosevelt gave it his blessing, and the boys will be out there winging Saturday against a crowd that could come close to fitting into the phone booths at Philly's spacious cement soup bowl, where it has been played for the last few years. So, they'll win or lose, but they're willing to go to the mat and rassle it out,

Lew Worsham Rated Big Chance to Go Places in Miami Open Golf Tournament

Young Burning Tree Pro Has Makings Of Great Star

Jamison, in U. S. Service, Expects to Leave D. C.; Bowers in New Job

By WALTER McCALLUM. The young man has tried the job before and come away with little more than enough cash to pay his caddie, but the impressions get around among his professional brethren that 25-year-old Lew Worsham, the Burning Tree pro, has a real chance to do all right in the Miami Open championship coming up next week. Lew will leave town Friday for Miami, to play in the $5,000 open affair that may toll the death knell of professional golf events in this country until Hitler events in this country until Hitler and Hirohito hold up their mitts and On Letting Baugh yell "Uncle."

Another tourney, the Pinehurst North and South Open, has been scheduled next March, but events in the interim may change the minds of the sponsors of the affair. The Miami tourney will go on, however, and will corral the best shotmakers of the land not already in uniform.

See Big Success for Lew. Worsham is the youngster who has been playing pro golf only six years. In 1936 he was a caddie at Kenwood. In the short time intervening he has managed to become the most-talked-of youngster in this territory, and a boy whom the nabobs of national golf are watching with growing interest as one they figure can go far in the game; another Snead or Hogan.

For Lew, of course, cancellation of a big part of the pro schedule is a real tragedy, but he isn't talking about that. He has a brother in the Navy, may be in service himself one day, and figures that every time he gets a chance to play golf he's so much better off. But for a youngster just getting ready to break more power and sparkle. into the big time of golf he hasn't had the best of breaks.

Barnett Sees Him Winner. Bob Barnett, his erstwhile boss, says Worsham has a great chance but at his best this role would be to win the Miami Open. Chill on Knox's Try For Comeback

Underrated, He Finishes Foe in Fourth Round With Body Wallop

Buddy Knox's attempted comeback ended where it began last night at Uline Arena with the barrel-chested Irishman stretched ingloriously on the canvas, a kayo victim of Buddy Walker. The fight lasted four rounds.

Knox knew he was in for a strenuous workout but thought he would return to his dressing room the winner. Somebody told him Walker had gone back, had slipped woefully in the last couple of months and that all Buddy needed to win was a good, stiff pat on the jaw. That, the Bolling Field soldier was told, would send Walker kicking.

But Walker, one of Joe Louis' numerous cousins suddenly cluttering up the fight game, wanted to catch the 11:40 train for Dayton, where he has another fight scheduled.

Outcome Obvious From Start. He didn't have much time and missing the 11:40 meant tacking on four hours to an arduous 14-hour train ride, so he came out with a

From the start it was obvious that Knox was a gone gosling. Walker boxed smartly, had more steam behind his punches and outfoxed his rival in the clinches. He had won every round up until the pay-off and Knox gave no indication of improving. The climactic punch was a right hand to the breadbasket. Knox walked squarely into it and try though he did to rise, his handlers couldn't have gotten him up with a derrick before 10. Defeat Costly to Knox.

The defeat cost Knox several lucrative shots in Baltimore and Philadelphia-or could that have been a fifth-columnist giving him an injection of softsoap and putting him in a dangerous frame of mind for a stiff puncher of Walker's caliber's Buddy said he recalled Walker from their first fight as a good hitter and catcher, a hard guy to beat, but he didn't dream of losing. Axis Armies on Defensive on Russian Front from Stalingrad through Kotelnikovski and into the Northern Caucasus, another Russian column was reported to have pushed 6 miles farther across the Kalmyck steppe without meeting any firm German resistance.

Red Star said it was impossible to count the spoils which fell to the advancing Russians as the Germans withdrew. Automobiles, tanks and even airplanes were left behind. Russian dispatches acclaim the surrounding and capture of three Nazi divisions in the Don bend southwest of Klets aya, and the elimination of a narrow wedge the Germans had driven to the Volga north of Stalingrad as the greatest of the new victories.

The clearing of the German wedge to the Volga banks put a Nazi-held airfield back in Russian hands and opened a new route for supply and reinforcement to the garrison of Stalingrad.

German forces arrayed before Stalingrad still were described as strong, and Russian dispatches said the Nazis showed no signs of falling back from their positions although their case grew more desperate hourly as the corridor behind them narrowed

Cheered by this direct and indirect relief, the hardy defenders of the war-torn city pushed ahead slowly in their own offensive, the regular midnight communique reporting the enemy cleared out of dozen blockhouses and blindages in the factory district with 900 invaders killed. A slight advance also was claimed for Red troops in the southern outskirts of the city. Today's midday communique reported continued advances overnight within Stalingrad as well as to the northwest and south of the city "in the same directions as pre-

Red Army soldiers were said to were given, and in the southern outkilled when Soviet troops occupied a number of fortified positions.

Nazi Regiment Wiped Out. One German regiment was declared wiped out in futile counterattacks northwest of the city and the Russians moved ahead, but no details were given on this advance. To the south 3,000 Germans were reported killed when the Russians occupied several towns, the names of which were not given. Local German attacks were said to have been repulsed in the Black Sea zone near Tuapse and in the Caucasus near Nalchik, while smallscale thrusts gained some ground for the Russians in the Leningrad

(Rzhev is about 130 miles northwest of the Soviet capital. however, that all Russian attacks between the Volga and the lower Don "were repulsed after violent fighting, with heavy losses for the enemy.")

It was on August 25 that the Axis armies, strong and confident after sweeping more than 350 miles eastward in about two months, arrived before Stalingrad and began trying to crack it in direct assault. They have torn it to shreds with shell and bomb and they've bought strips of its ruins by paying a price of untold tens of thousands of lives -the Russians estimated 100,000 besiegers were killed in the first 60 days-but today Hitler apparently was faced with a choice of withdrawing the estimated 300,000 men still at the bloody job or running the risk of having them encircled and annihilated.

A special communique last night and the regular midnight battle report did not make clear the exact strategy being followed by the Russians but they did tell an impressive story of mounting Axis losses and hinted significantly of deteriorating German morale.

the special communique indicated was launched November 19.

Indicative, perhaps, of weakening Nazi morale under the weight of the Russian attack and the cold of the Russian winter was the communi- tary denied there was any dispute ques' claim that the remnants of revolving around Mr. Nelson's three German divisions along with their three generals and the commanders' staffs had been captured Ketskaya. ironed out. The President said all of the officials concerned with production problems were supposed to agree. He added that if they failed to agree he would put them in a room and tell them to do so. He emphasized that complete harmony among the officials was necessary and, as an example, he said the types of war planes had changed greatly since last January, each one weighing a great deal more than its type a year ago, and each having more wingspread, more horsepower and each requiring more reaching a decision. The commis-

Raises Sights on Workmanship. The President added the Government was going to spend more on workmanship phase in 1943 than a year ago. He said this would be constantly stepped up to get much more out of each plane.

In other words, he said, the Nation was raising its sights on workmanship, but not on the total number of planes.

One of the problems, he continued, was to determine whether sufficient men would be available to man planes when they are completed. This is a chief of staff problem, he said, and all such things had to be worked out between the staff and production officials. Commenting on the selection of Charles E. Wilson, WPB vice chairman, to have charge of plane production, the President said that one of Mr. Wilson's tasks would be to co-ordinate the program that is to time production of parts to production of the skeleton plane itself. Wilson and Nelson today saw the President, and on leaving the White House they said, "You'll get the whole story later." Optimism Not Shared. The President's optimistic note

President Arroyo Receives Degree From G. W. U.

Ecuador's Executive Sees Universities as Links in Democracy

George Washington University yesterday conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws on President Carlos Alberto Arrovo del Rio of Ecuador in brief but impressive special convocation ceremonies at the United States Chamber of Com-

Praised by university officials as educator, lawyer and statesman, President Arroyo responded extemporaneously to declare universities of North and South America were like a "golden chain," uniting the Americas in ideals of democracy. The visiting chief of state was Colon Eloy Alfaro, more than two years ago had expressed the belief that "we were to suffer because of our philosophy of government." It was his belief, continued Dr. Marvin, "that we could only attain victory by the America's holding sincerity to our democratic philosophy of

"Since then," said Dr. Marvin, "the bases have become a reality on land of Ecuador. The spirit of the people who backed these statements can be readily understood if one knows the freedom of the intra-mountain valleys and the openness of the shore line of the nation which we are privileged to recognize." Referring to a "giving and taking of pledges" based on intimate understanding of a personal handclasp and a meeting of minds," Dr. Marvin characterized this as "the basis of Reason Guides Democracies. "For democracy," he continued, "is founded on faith in reason; the rule of reason in human affairs. To believe in democracy means that we have a knowledge and belief that human problems must be solve not by passion or force, but by reason alone. This, we, the Americas, are doing, and this way will show to the world that democratic ideals best, and democratic faith true.

"I know that the academic world as well as the world of friendship approves the recognition which we bestow. We are able to do it because your state and our state believe in liberty. Responding in Spanish, President Arroyo expressed "deep appreciation to the president of the university and the faculty for the great honor conferred on me." He emphasized, however, that he understood the honor was to be received not so much as a personal tribute to himself, as to his own country and to the "ideal of Americanism. Referring to honorary degrees conferred on him by universities in Bogota, Colombia, Mexico City, and in Washington, he likened the institutions to "a golden chain, a token, to unite the countries of America." He would endeavor, he said, to serve the "ideal of democracy," and to become a true "servant of democracy." He characterized the honor to himself as a "demonstration of friendship to my coun-

Dr. Arroyo praised George Washington University as "illustrious both in name and in personnel." Pointing to the words "Doctor of Laws," in Spanish as meaning "Dr. of Right," the visiting President declared that "right has a high place among us all," the nations of the Western Hemisphere." Music was by the United States Marine Band Orchestra. The faculty in caps and gowns entered the hall in processional march, taking reserved seats in the auditorium. The invocation was by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, who invoked divine blessing on the "co-operation of good neighbors." Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of university students, was marshal of the occasion. The cere-

Indicted in Morale Conspiracy, Arrested

Fugitive Faces Removal From Pittsburgh to Washington for Trial

The arrest of Howard Victor Bro-enstrup, who was indicted with 27 other persons by the District grand jury on July 23 on a charge of conspiracy to undermine the morale of the armed forces, was announced by the Justice Department late yesterday.

Broenstrup was seized by FBI agents and State police Monday near New Galilee, Pa., where he was occupying a cottage with a voman companion.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said that Broenstrup has long been known as a distributor of anti-Semitic and divisionist literature. With Edward J. Smythe, another of the 28 persons indicted on sedition charges, Broenstrup had founded the Protestant War Veterans of America, an organization which Mr. Hoover said "was later developed and used by Smythe for the dissemination of propaganda material."

Advised Pelley.

Broenstrup had also been closely ssociated with William Dudley Pel-

Pelley's legal adviser. Broenstrup, who was born in Ohio in 1886, made his home in New York City at an address which Mr. Hoover said "was a frequent meeting place of various alleged anti-Semitic and suspected Nazi propagandists."

Imposing Alias.

One of Broenstrup's many aliases was Lt. Gen. Count Victor Cherep-Spiridovich, the title and name of a Russian nobleman with whom, Mr. Hoover said, Broenstrup was associted "in an abortive attempt to create a world-wide organization of Slavic people for the purpose of combating Bolshevism."

Broenstrup has been a fugitive since his indictment here with 27 other persons on charges of conspiring to impair the loyalty, morale and discipline of the Nation's armed forces, and with seeking to cause insubordination, disloyalty and refusal of duty in the Army and Navy.

The Justice Department said that proceedings to remove Broenstrup to Washington for trial will be instituted at Pittsburgh.

they're equipped to move fast, wherever attack threatens.

Coast Artillery men operate giant searchlights to hunt down the night raiders. They use automatic weapons, so startling and so effective that they've made Hitler shake in his boots. They handle the big barrage balloons that form a spider web of defense about our vital areas.

Prayer, Work On Thanksgiving

Some U. S. Agencies To Have Holiday; Train Jam Expected

President Roosevelt will set the Nation's example for tomorrow's observance of Thanksgiving Day by taking just time enough from his job of directing the war effort to attend special services at the White House, but traffic experts look forward to another general exodus of the rank and file from the Capital.

Most Federal Government departments have announced that tomorrow will be just another workday, but railroad officials today were girding for an overflow of traffic expected to be well under way soon after nightfall, despite admonitions of Joseph B. Eastman, Office of Defense Transportation director In response to President Roosevelt's proclamation that this Thanksgiving be a day of prayer many churches of Washington will hold special services. Many churches will hold their

Holiday in Some Agencies. The War and Navy Departments will be on the job, as will the Commerce, Labor and Interior departments, the War Production Board and Civil Service Commission. The Agriculture Department, General Accounting Office and District government divisions will take a holiday and only skeleton forces will be on hand at the Justice. State and Post Office departments. Most employes of the Office of Price Administration are expected to be at their desks and the Veterans' Administration will take a half holiday. Many business establishments of the District will remain open and in other branches of employment the holiday is not expected to be as widely observed as in past years.

Nevertheless, officials of the major transportation facilities working through Washington freely predict that carriers will be jammed to the limit and warned prospective travelers not to be disappointed if their departure is delayed by the crush for accommodations.

To Enjoin WPB On Gas Heat Ban

River Terrace Group Goes to Court to Halt Conversion to Coal

Fifty-eight residents of the River Terrace development in Northeast Washington yesterday asked District Court for an injunction to prevent the development company from changing their heating plants from gas to coal, as is contemplated. The complaint was set down for hearing

War Production Board, from enforcing a WPB order prohibiting the delivery of gas to new houses whose construction was not in a certain state of progress on March 1, 1942. The board has ruled that the River Terrace units are not entitled to receive gas under

At the same time, the tenants asked for an order to make the Washington Gas Light Co. continue to deliver gas to their homes.

Lengthy Fight. The court action climaxes a long fight by the occupants to retain the gas units. The suit was filed by Elwood E. Stump, Andrew A. Casey Keith W. Johnson, Ralph R. The development company plans to build the necesary coal bins immediately and make the changeover in line with the WPB order, the court was told.

Priorities Granted. Tracing the history of the case, the plaintiffs said that priorities were granted by the WPB for installation of the gas units and that early in February "footings" for the houses were poured and the first shipments of the furnaces arrived on the job. On February 16 the order to curtail the consumption of gas was issued by the WPB, restricting its delivery to units installed prior to March 1, or in the case of new construction, to those houses whose foundations completed prior to March 1. The development company the plaintiffs said, believed that these houses met the requirements of this order and would be eligible for the gas. Installation of the units was

The tenants said that the houses are not constructed to be heated adequately with coal; that the heating system is supplied by a blower fan which would necessarily pick up and distribute coal dust throughout the house, and that the installation of coal furnaces would require that the present small cellars be converted largely for coal bins.

Meanwhile, residents of the city who have not yet contributed were urged to get in the scrap by participating in one or more of the Salvage Committee's phases. They include tin can salvage, which is continuing under the City Refuse Department donation of jalopies for the valuable scrap they contain, donation of old fences and iron railings about the city and collection of fats from kitchens. Titles Slow Jalopies.

The Salvage Committee pointed out yesterday that it had received more than 500 offers of old automobiles, but that only about 60 of these could be ordered picked up by junk dealers. It was explained that delay in taking over the other cars was due to lost titles or fact liens were outstanding against them.

Any jalopy accepted by the committee must be clear of liens and its title must accompany the offer to the committee, Mr. Walker said. Five persons, including a resident of Alexandria, offered old cars to the group yesterday. The committee also has received word from a resident of Silver Spring, Md., that he has a 50-foothigh windmill on his place which contains valuable scrap steel. Plans will be made to dismantle it and send the scrap to a processor, Mr. Walker reported. William A. Xanten, supervisor of city refuse, reminded householders that tin cans will be picked up on regular garbage collection days. Cans, of course, must be properly prepared, which includes washing. removing labels, cutting tops and bottoms and mashing the can flat.

Friede Maps System To Supplement OCD Phone Connections

Development of a wartime emergency radio service for this Metropolitan Area, to supplement telephonic connections used in the OCD communication control system, is under way, it was revealed today by Herbert A. Friede, communications controller.

Acting with the authority of the Commissioners, Mr. Friede appealed to the public to donate at once any and all unused or even "junked" radio receiving sets which will be torn down for parts to be used in building "a large number" of two-way radios to be employed in the supplemental system.

Donors are asked to take their sets to any of the District fire stations, from which they will be collected by volunteers who will build the sending and receiving sets.

"Hams" to Be Enlisted in Work. The work is to be performed by amateur radio operators on a voluntary basis. Mr. Friede said he hoped to enlist 200 or 300 amateurs or "hams" in this work. The plan here is a part of a naprogram, and it was announced that the Federal Communications Commission had approved the program and had provided for secret frequencies to be used by this special service, under the War Emergency Radio Service regulations District OCD officials have in mind the possibility that in case of an enemy attack on metropolitan areas, bombs may blast cables or buildings and disrupt telephone service. The District Police and Fire Departments already have two-way radio equipment, but a much broader coverage is planned. Mr. Friede said his organization planned to build as many of the two-way sets as possible, with the idea of setting up a supplemental necessary, could take over the entire

Bill to Aid Independent Tire Dealers Approved

Legislation which Senator Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana declared would help keep 200,000 independent tire dealers in business by making them official tire inspectors and giving them the exclusive right to sell and service tires and tubes, was approved by the Senate Banking Committee yesterday. Proponents said the purpose of the measure was to protect the small dealers from competition with the big rubber companies and mailorder houses in the limited retail trade caused by the war. They contend the larger firms have sufficient war business to keep them going.

The rubber director, William M. Jeffers, would be authorized to acquire by purchase or requisition, for the purpose of transferring it to independent dealers, any equipment for repairing, recapping or retreading tires installed since December 8, 1941, provided that he should find that such equipment is in excess of the requirements of the service area in which it is located.

Some U. S. Agencies To Have Holiday; Train Jam Expected

President Roosevelt will set the Nation's example for tomorrow's observance of Thanksgiving Day by taking just time enough from his job of directing the war effort to attend special services at the White House, but traffic experts look forward to another general exodus of the rank and file from the Capital.

Most Federal Government departments have announced that tomorrow will be just another workday, but railroad officials today were girding for an overflow of traffic expected to be well under way soon after nightfall, despite admonitions of Joseph B. Eastman, Office of Defense Transportation director. In response to President Roosevelt's proclamation that this Thanksgiving be a day of prayer, many churches of Washington will hold special services.

And in keeping with an all-out effort to win the war, industrial plants of the Nation in war pro-

Holiday in Some Agencies.
The War and Navy Departments will be on the job, as will the Commerce, Labor and Interior departments, the War Production Board and Civil Service Commission. The Agriculture Department, General Accounting Office and District government divisions will take a holiday and only skeleton forces will be on hand at the Justice, State and Post Office departments. Most employes of the Office of Price Administration are expected to be at their desks and the Veterans' Administration will take a half holiday.

Many business establishments of the District will remain open and in other branches of employment the holiday is not expected to be as widely observed as in past years.

Nevertheless, officials of the major transportation facilities working through Washington freely predict that carriers will be jammed to the limit and warned prospective travelers not to be disappointed if their departure is delayed by the crush for accommodations. The Pennsylvania Railroad announced that it will try to enforce as completely as possible a nosome infractions of this ruling.

Committee Members Hear Monthly Tax Payment Proposed

Payment of taxes in monthly intallments, an annual fiscal report to the taxpayers in language inteligible to the average citizen, and a scientific system of assesment, were among the suggestions before mem-bers of the Montgomery County Charter Committee today.

The recommendations were made by Chester E. Rightor of the Census Bureau, former Detroit controller, at the annual membership meeting of the committee last night in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. He was introduced by Mrs. James V. Bennett, chairman of the Speakers' Committee.

The importance of keeping the Charter Committee alive to collect funds to finance the charter movement, formulate public opinion and reorganizing workers for the charer fight in 1944 was stressed by Allen H. Gardner, president of the ommittee. Mrs. John Werner, executive director of the committee, gave credit for the victory of the charter movement at the last election to the mall precinct workers who "plugged away" at their job of getting petition signers.

"The big names on the committee usually got called out of town for an important conference when there was work to be done," Mr. Werner "But the little men and women in the precincts stuck to their jobs to the last minute."

Tait Claims Moral Victory For GOP in Maryland

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.-Republicans won a "moral victory" in Maryland in the November general elections, Galen L. Tait, State Central Committee chairman, told fellow party members last night at a birthday dinner for Theodore R. McKeldin, their defeated candidate for Governor. "Although we missed the bull'seye," Mr. Tait declared, "we hit the inner rings of the target.'

Election of J. Glenn Beall from Western Maryland and Daniel Ellison from Baltimore City gave the Republicans one-third of the delegation to Congress-a "decided congressional victory." Mr. Tait said. As a result of the election, he continued, the GOP in Maryland "is therefore now revived, restored, rejuvenated, happy and hopeful," and ready to do even more vigorous battle in the campaigns of the next

Priority Denial Dashes Hopes For New Streets

Prince Georges Board Gets WPB Reply on Riverdale Heights

Residents of special improvement districts in Prince Georges County. Md., who have petitioned the county commissioners for the construction of new concrete streets in their areas will have to get along with their present unimproved streets for the duration.

This appeared likely today as a result of the denial by the War Production Board of an application by the commissioners for prorities to construct two concrete streets in Riverdale Heights.

In a letter received yesterday by the commissioners, WPB pointed out that much of the material, labor and equipment which would be used in building the streets are also required not only in the manufacture of munitions but also for construction of facilities vital to the conduct of the war.

Indicate No Appeal.

"Since the proposed construction cannot be considered as vital to the war effort," the letter stated, "your application is denied.

sioners said the present streets in question in Riverdale Heights are almost impassable during bad weather and that practically all residents along the streets are Government employes and war workers. practical training. And though they made mistakes at first, they now have a thriving and smooth - running and extremely successful setup. The success is due in no small part to the efficient and dynamic little vice chairman, Mrs. William S. Masten. Since the committee was drawn up five years ago with Mr. Earl Nash as chairman, Mrs. Masten has been a tireless and able worker. As co-ordinator of public relations she sees that the three groups, radio, public speaking and newspaper, serve in complete accord. Judging from some of the telephone calls that come to the public relations desk, people seem to feel that ANY-THING comes under the heading of public relations. Once the Public Relations Bureau was even asked to find a missing chicken that had been sent a serviceman at camp! Nothing daunts Mrs. Masten. She loves the work. She gets on well with people. To look at Mrs. Masten one would never guess that she had two married daughters and one 16-year-old in school here. She is small and slight with a fresh pink and white complexion and short curly chestnut-brown hair. Her eyes are hazel color and sparkle with animation. When we saw her yesterday she wore the lemon yellow indoor uniform of the Red Cross staff assistant. (She has been a staff assistant for seven years.) She prefers her outdoor Red Cross uniform of powder blue, but one was at the cleaner's and the other one, she told us, was decorating the window of one of the downtown department stores for "Women in War Week."

She is a widow and comes from Pittsburgh. Ten years ago she decided to bring her three small daughters to Washington and put them in school and do a bit of educational sight-seeing in the Nation's Capital. She and

Mrs. Masten bought a lot and built herself a charming red brick Georgian house on Woodland drive. During the last war she was a student at the University of Pittsburgh, majoring in biology and doing research work. When the technician in the depart-that Mrs. Masten gets a chance to play golf-and only then. She used to play quite a lot, she says. She is still good at it but her war work keeps her from playing during the winter. Besides, it keeps her from doing a lot of the things she used to do, but like other right thinking women she feels that it will only be possible to go back to that pleasant, gracious way of life AFTER we win this war and that right now it's every one's duty to do what they can to make that victory as speedy as

LET US GIVE THANKS that we have homes and dear ones and a way of life worth fighting to keep.

'Washington's Innumerable Girls' To Receive Special Beauty Care

By Helen Vogt

In Washington's newest beauty salon which opened yesterday, the wig department has nothing to do with phony tresses.

Instead, it is a section set aside for white collar war workers in the Nation's Capital, a department in which they will receive special services at budget prices and in which they will learn to care for their appear-

Now it's time to do something about the thousands of unsung heroines who have come from all over the country to do their bit for the war effort." Dorothy Dix Says ...

Middle Age Offers Many Rewards To the Wise, Intelligent Woman

The one thing that women dread more than they do death itself is middle age. They can meet the 70s with philosophy and resignation, but the 40s panic them and send them rushing for the hair dye bottle and a slimming diet. And it is this fear of middle age that causes so many women to stay 39 for years and years, and that makes the youth repair business the second largest and most profitable industry in the country

Now if, her girlhood, a woman has been Miss American, it is easy to understand why acquiring the middle-age spread, having her complexion go off a bit and getting a few gray hairs is a tragedy. It must be a heartbreaking experience to see one's beauty fade, day by day, and be powerless to stop it. Probably no human being ever goes through a more agonizing moment than does the woman who has been the cynosure of all eyes, when, for the first tilme, she hears some one say behind her back: "You should have seen her 10 years ago. My, but she was a knockout then!" When the truth is told, however, the number of women who are entitled to wear mourning over the loss of their good looks is negligible. So far from having faces that would launch a thousand ships, the great majority of women haven't countenances that would even float a canoe. And they go out of their way to borrow trouble when they worry over getting middle-aged. Theirs is the case of blessed be nothing, for they can't lose what they never had, and, as a matter of fact, middle age is their friend and ally instead of being their deadly enemy. Many and many a homely, awkward girl blossoms out into a gorgeous middle-aged woman. Time chisels rough-hewn features into symmetry. White hair is often more becoming than the original shade. Intelligence lights the eyes into which Nature failed to put a sparkle. And so not infrequently the ugly duckling emerges as a swan in Another perquisite of middle age that women habitually overlook is that they can do business on half the capital that a young girl requires. We don't hand any bouquets to the debutante unless she deserves them. She has to deliver the goods and show that she possesses all the 57 different varieties of pulchritude before we give her the blue ribbon in a beauty contest. But any ordinarily personable middle-aged woman, who knows how to comb her hair and buy her clothes, can get a reputation for being hand some that will make her husband proud to show her off in public. If in 40 years a woman doesn't learn how to camouflage her bad points and bring out her good ones, there is something radically wrong with the inside, as well as the outside, of her head.

Women's dread of getting middleaged is based upon the fear of losing their youth and good looks, and they make frantic efforts to hold on to them by starving themselves into stringbean figures, plastering their faces with cosmetics and dyeing their hair colors that never were on land or sea. It is love's labor lost and money wasted. No matter how many times you lift mother's face nor how many tucks you take in it, she hasn't the tight skin of daughter. And nobody is fooled by dyed hair except the woman who

Far wiser would they be if women changed their technique and instead of trying to hold on to a vanishing attraction substituted a different one for it. They can't look like schoolgirls who, after all are of interest only to their families. but they can look like well-dressed, alert, intelligent, interesting women Another reason that women are afraid of middle age is because then, if ever, they are apt to lose their husbands to predatory ladies who are on the outlook for men who have made their fortunes. Wives invariably atttribute their husbands' roaming to their having gotten to be 40 plus, but it isn't their wives' birthdays that make men easy preys for the husband hunters. It is because their wives have slumped on their jobs and have let themselves get fat and frumpy and sloppy; or they have become naggers and bosses; or because they haven't read a book or had a new idea since Junior was born, and they are dull company. As long as a wife makes her husband a comfortable and cheerful home and jokes with him and jollies him, she is still "little girl" to him, and he doesn't even suspicion that she has gotten to be middle-aged.

So-o-o-o, ladies, dismiss your fear of middle age. Quit dreading it. Capitalize it and make yourself-more charming, more alluring than you have ever been before, because you have had time enough to learn so many things about how to make yourself attractive.

Bobby and his engaging small sister, Jane, were busily drawing pictures, their materials, suitable for young artists, scattered around them on the floor. Each had a pad of paper that Granny had given them. The little boy painstakingly drew an automobile of weird design, colored it gorgeously, and finally added a mass of lurid background so complicated and vivid that it would have claimed the instant attention of any devotee of modern art. But Jane dashed off one uncom pleted picture after another, extravagantly tossing the sheets aside as she started new drawings with an impatient flourish. Soon she was surrounded by a litter of half covered pages, and before long she had used up all of her pad. Bobby still had many sheets of paper left. Jane, eyeing Bobby's pad covetously, "My pad wasn't as big as yours, it's all gone."

Bobby did not answer. Jane, "Give me some of your Bobby, edging away, "Nope." Jane, lip quivering, "But I haven't any more! You're a big pig!" Granny watched this performance with a twinkling eye and when Jane appealed to her, she declared, "The pads were just the same size, Jane. There is no reason for Bobby to give you some of his.' Stooping, she gathered up the scattered sheets, and taking Jane into her lap said, "The reason you have no more paper left is because you wasted all these pages. See, some of them only have a few lines on them. If you would draw your pictures carefully, all over the page, and on both sides, you would have your pad for a long time."

Thus little Jane, through an actual life experience, saw the wastefulness of waste.

Most children are heedless and spendthrift, they are not concerned with the cost of any article, they do not understand that some one has had to work to make the money to buy it. They do not realize that waste means losing money because they do not even know what the word money signifies.

Wise parents try to teach their children to be thrifty at all times. but now it is their patriotic duty to do so. If the useless waste of countless children all over the country could be stopped, the saving would be appreciable. Pennies thrown away on cheap candy, flimsy toys and knick knacks; pencils, paper

For Easy Mailing . . .

For the convenience of people who must send Christmas gifts through the mails, a local store has heavy cardboard boxes designed especially for this service. When you purchase them, they are collapsed, but it is a very easy matter to put them together. Each box has an attached label sticker with space for name and address, as well as return address. You will save hours of time if you use these cartons, for they eliminate the necessity of hunting high and low for a heavy box or piece of corrugated paper, and they cut down on the struggle with wrappings, too. These come in four different sizes and are priced accordingly.

'Tote' for Victory . . .

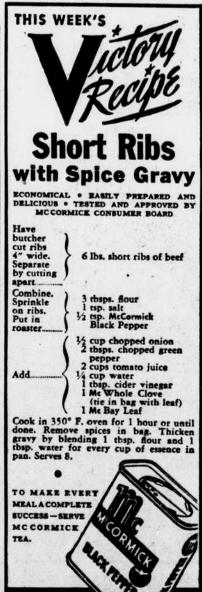

That excellent slogan which appeared this year in connection with Christmas shopping-"Don't Delay! But It Today! Carry It Away!" is being followed by patriotic purchasers. In past years very few would even think of "carrying it away," for efficient delivery was at their disposal, but this year it's a different story, so, to make shopping easier have a convenient carrying bag that will accommodate a great many packages. Among the several different styles is one made of heavy string that will stretch with the weight of packages. This type has a heavy cord pull, is equipped with leather straps and comes in red and white with blue trim. Another style highly recommended is made of sturdy denim material. This particular bag is washable, has a round bottom (which gives larger capacity), and two convenient handles. Of course, the old-fashioned heavy paper bags that Grandma used to carry can also be

Illegitimacy Encouraged in Campaign To Produce Germanic Warriors

(This is the third of a series disclosing for the first time in detail the fate of women in Nazi-occupied Europe, who serve the Fuehrer as spies, child bearers and common laborers.) By CHARLOTTE PAUL.

The prime duty of women in Hitler's Europe is to bear, either in or out of wedlock, a new "Germanic" warrior race powerful and ruthless enough to dominate the entire continent of Europe.

Of course, it is also women's duty to replace men in the factories and in all other civilian jobs they & are strong enough to handle. And birth of German babies are just as fanatical as those used to discourage terious ranks of the women's Gesthe birth of foreign babies. Women's tapo and to work in other Nazi organizations such as the League of function is to bear children for Hitler-but "pure German" children German Girls. But Hitler's labor minister decreed just before war began that "women must not, under any conditions, work so hard they are harmed in their natural profession as mothers." In war, as in peace, Hitler's women must bear children to man the gigantic Nazi machine.

Subsidies for Babies.

Whether the children are legitimate or illegitimate is unimporant—Hitler's only requirement is that they be "racially pure." Therefore, Nazi propaganda encourages wedlock and the Nazi treasury backs up the ballyhoo with "marriage subsidies" and state care for illegiti-

Hitler's program to increase the birthrate of "Germanic" children has another side—the organized campaign to kill off the birth of "non-Aryan" or "foreign" children. Toward this end Nazi authorities in all the occupied countries have taken certain definite steps which in many cases amount to deliberate murder.

One of the most effective methods of reducing the non-German birthrate is to refuse pregnant mothers proper food and medical care. Since the Nazis themselves have advertised Poland as the "model state," a glance at conditions there is a glance at conditions there is a glance at conditions there is a glance into the crystal ball for the rest of occupied Europe.

In Poland no medical care is allowed for Polish expectant mothers—according to law, this protection exists only for German women. Polish women are not allowed holidays with pay during pregnancy or confinement—if they take holidays without pay they may lose their jobs.

Food rations to Poles have been converted into homes for unmarried monasteries have been converted into homes for unmarried monasteries have been converted into homes for unmarried monasteries have been converted into homes for unmarried was the Mayor of Wattensceid, Prussia, who instituted a program by which unmarried women over 29 years of age were urged to bear illed in the crystal ball for the rest of occupied Europe.

cases grows, every month. Yet Polish women receive no extra milk, fat or eggs either during confinement or when they are feeding their children.

In the overcrowded maternity hospitals Polish and German mothers are kept in separate wards. Because they receive almost no medical assistance, an increasing number of Polish women die in childbirth. Those who, live are turned out of the hospital three days after their confinement.

Should the tiny babies become sick at home, it is almost impossible for Polish families to purchase medical supplies. And the Nazi attitude toward Jewish babies is clearly shown in a recent decree stating that in the Warsaw ghetto children under 5 years of age are forbidden medical attention.

Families Separated.

Throughout Nazi-occupied Europe the foreign birthrate is attacked by the simple means of separating married couples and breaking up families. Husbands are sent for forced labor to Germany or into concentration camps. Women are deported from their homes to industrial centers, where they are put to work in German-owned factories.

Another sword the Nazis hold over the heads of both rebellious Germans and non-Germans is sterilization. In cases of insanity, feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases, sterilization is decreed—and, of course, it's up to the Nazis to decide who is "feeble-mindedness or incurable hereditary diseases dummy's ace to win the trick. He returned a club from dummy, East played low. South played the king and West won with the ace.

West shifted to a low spade, East 12 played the queen and South won with the king. South then played the ace and deuce of spades, hoping 14 the jack would drop. But West won with the nine of spades, cashed the jack, then exited with a club. South managed to take the club queen and heart ace, but lost the rest for a two-trick set.

The hand may seem normal enough, but one of the players actually committed a bridge crime. Try to spot the crime and the criminal before you read on.

South was the criminal, and his crime took place on the very first trick. Correct play was to win the first heart trick with the ace. Then South could have established dummy's diamonds, with either the queen or ten of hearts as a sure entry to the rest of the diamonds. East and West would take a diamond, a heart and (if they were quick) two clubs, out South surely would make nine tricks fulfilling his game contract.

Take My Word for It By FRANK COLBY.

Surprise Word of the Week

The word THEATER is mispronounced "thee-AY-ter" by many of us, despite the fact that no modern dictionary gives it sanction. The Merriam-Webster's lists "thee-AY-ter" as obsolete and dialectal. Be sure to accent the first syllable. The "a" is obscured as in NATURE'S CHILDREN sofa. Say: THEE-uh-ter.

It's Hard to Believe. Duluth: What is the origin of the word SALVO, "a volley of cannon fire"?-E. N. D. Answer: The word has a curious origin indeed. It is the English form of the Italian salva, meaning "a salute." The Italian word came from the Latin salve (SAHL-vay), meaning "Hail!"-a greeting of friendship and well-wishing, from salvere, "to

However, when our warships hurl their furious salvos in the direction of Mr. Togo and his merry little men, we can be sure that they have something else in mind than playing pat-a-cake with and toasting the health of the Japs.

Bridge Again.

St. Louis: You recently said "The origin of the name of the card game bridge is its original name 'biritch.' Permit me to suggest that the game was called bridge because of the dealer's privilege of "bridging" or passing the declaration of trumps to his partner.-R. M. H.

Answer: I did not mention the "bridging" origin, as most authorities consider it to be dubious. The Encyclopedia Britannica says "Some very fantastic reasons have been given for it, but the transition from 'Biritch' to 'bridge' is such a natural one that it is surely unnecessary to look any further."
