ALLIES TIGHTEN RING AROUND AXIS IN AFRICA

Ickes Granted Wider Powers In Oil Shake-up

Secretary Continues at Post of Petroleum Administrator for War

President Roosevelt today made Secretary of the Interior Ickes petroleum administrator for war, with broad authority to co-ordinate all Government policies and actions relating to oil, in consultation with other Federal agencies concerned.

The President's executive order specifically provided that powers of the War Production Board, the Office of Defense Transportation, the War and Navy Departments and other agencies relating to various phases of the oil problem were not restricted by the authority given Mr. Ickes. In establishing the new Office of Petroleum Administrator, the order abolished the Office of Petroleum Co-ordination which had been headed by Mr. Ickes, but appeared generally to clarify and redefine its functions under the new name without making any drastic changes.

Mr. Ickes was not designated by name as petroleum administrator, the order merely providing that "the Secretary of Interior shall serve ex-officio" in that capacity.

It was pointed out in some quarters that this did not necessarily eliminate the possibility of a cabinet shift making Mr. Ickes Secretary of Labor and director of the forthcoming new Federal manpower program, although the President said yesterday there was nothing on the fire in this connection.

The fact that Mr. Ickes had been discussed for the manpower position was confirmed today openly for the first time by AFL President William Green, who conferred on what he said was a "personal" matter with Mr. Roosevelt soon after the executive order making Mr. Ickes petroleum administrator was issued. Mr. Green expressed surprise at this move.

Asked specifically if he and Philip Murray, president of the Congress for Industrial Organization, acquiesced to Mr. Ickes as manpower director in a conference with the President last week, Mr. Green said, "I don't think we went quite so far as to discuss it in a definite way."

But Mr. Ickes' name was discussed as the manpower man? a reporter asked.

"Naturally—that was discussed all over town," Mr. Green replied.

35 of 174 Injured Fight Pneumonia in Hospital; Army, Navy Plan Probe

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—The toll of dead in the Saturday night Coconut Grove night club fire crept close to 500 today, according to a Boston Public Safety Committee tabulation, while the State, city, Army and Navy moved to investigate the causes of the tragedy and a Suffolk County grand jury convened.

After a final re-census of all its lists, the Public Safety Committee announced that the dead had reached 490—with only three bodies still unidentified—while 174 lay injured or burned in hospitals. Of the injured, at least 35 had developed pneumonia as a result of inhalation of smoke and heat during the holocaust.

Meanwhile, throughout Boston and in many other communities funerals carried victims to their graves. In some, two or three members of the same family were laid to rest.

Army and Navy Plan Probe.

Boston Army and Navy headquarters both revealed that they would conduct their own inquiries into the catastrophe because military personnel had perished in the fire, although the Army indicated that it would not consider the civil aspects of the affair.

While licensing agencies investigated safety conditions in 52 closed night clubs and temporarily banned entertainment in any of the city's 1,161 eating and drinking places, city officials summoned additional witnesses before an inquest into the disaster.

One, Theodore Eldricher, an inspector assigned to supervise alterations at the night club in February of this year, said that he had observed that a fire door was being installed between two parts of the club.

Labor Arbitration Plan Reported Agreed On In AFL-CIO Parley

Naming of Presidents To Arbitration Board Under Discussion

BULLETIN.

Peace committees of the AFL and the CIO agreed today to establish a joint committee to resolve all differences between them, with the provision that unsettled issues shall be referred to arbitration.

Leading support to the report that some understanding was imminent was the response of one committee member to a query today when the conferees recessed for luncheon.

Asked whether they planned a meeting tomorrow, William L. Hutchison, AFL member, replied: "We hope to get through today." There was no other statement.

One proposal under consideration, it was learned from an authoritative source, is the creation of a board composed of the two presidents, William Green of the AFL, and Philip Murray of the CIO and an impartial chairman. A number of possibilities as impartial chairman also have been discussed, including members of the War Labor Board and Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States Conciliation Service.

Big Attack Repulsed At Bizerte, Escape To Tripoli Is Cut Off

LONDON, Dec. 2.—British and American shock troops today withstood and repulsed the heaviest German counter-attack in the campaign for Tunisia, beating the Nazis back south of Bizerte while other Allied forces closed the ring tighter around that port and Tunis and stood astride the road of escape or supply from Tripolitania.

A spokesman at the Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Germans suffered heavy losses in their counter-attack against Allied advance positions north of Tebourba, a road juncture 20 miles west of Tunis and 35 miles south of Bizerte.

London newspapers reported that Lt. Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson's advance units had captured part of the highway linking Tunis and Bizerte, severing the last land communications between the two Axis strongholds. This report was attributed to the Morocco radio, but hours later there had been no confirmation from other quarters.

This gain would isolate the enemy penned up in Bizerte and leave him only one way of escape—by sea.

Allied troops, the Berlin radio reported without elaboration, "have reached Axis defense lines before Tunis and Bizerte."

The Morocco radio also said Allied troops were battling the main Axis force between Gabes and Sfax. American and French troops previously had been reported to have crossed the Tunisian coastal road north of Gabes, cutting off the enemy in Tunisia by land from his Libyan base at Tripoli.

Allied bombers continued an around-the-clock bombing of Bizerte, Tunis and Tripoli, with the heaviest hit in aerial warfare said to be approaching a scale unequalled since the battle of Britain in the autumn of 1940.

American P-38 fighters and British Spitfires ranging widely over Tunisia shot down eight German planes with a loss of one during the last 24 hours.

Crop Workers Leave New Jersey for South

BRIDGETON, N. J., Dec. 2.—Their work here finished, 175 experienced farm workers left yesterday by train for the South, where they will help Southern farmers with their crops.

They were part of a group of 1,000 workers transported to Bridgeton, where the FSA maintains a labor supply center.

Mr. Wood said Northern farmers "are begging to have them brought back next spring."

U. S. Public Debt Tops 100 Billion For First Time

Political Problems Must Wait, Hull's Reply to Darlan Critics

Secretary of State Hull made clear today that the United States is too busy winning the war in North Africa to worry about the report on the Morocco radio that Admiral Jean Darlan has taken over authority as chief of state in the area.

Mr. Hull told his press conference that the United States at present is absorbed in the task of driving Axis forces out of Africa.

This government, he added, had no time to sit down and talk politics with various groups interested in the future status of personalities there. The time will come later, he said, when the people themselves will decide. The Fighting French have expressed bitter opposition to recognition of Darlan, former Vichy leader.

Outlook Best Since '39, Knox Says; Jap Casualties Five Times U. S. Toll; Axis Cut Off From Tripoli by Land

Secretary Asserts Navy Now Exceeds Pre-War Peak

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Viewing the war outlook as the brightest in three years, Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed today that Japanese casualties are believed five times greater than America's and that the United States Navy is larger and more powerful than "the day before Pearl Harbor."

Balancing the Nation's books of war near the end of a year of fighting, Secretary Knox told the National Association of Manufacturers convention:

"We have expended a lot of precious ships and material, but we have exacted a toll the enemy can ill afford."

The Navy Secretary asserted that while Japanese casualty figures could not be trusted even "if they were published," United States intelligence officers estimate that since December 7, 1941, to November 25, "the Japanese in all theaters have lost in killed or permanently injured roughly 250,000 men."

Jap Navy Loss 10 Per Cent.
Approximately 37,000, he said, are naval casualties or about 10 per cent of the estimated Japanese naval personnel. United States naval losses, he said, are about 1 per cent of the personnel strength, and estimates of comparative loss and damage of ships and planes is "equally encouraging."

"We have a larger and more powerful Navy, measured in tonnage, air power or anything else," he added, "than the day before Pearl Harbor. Production records have been broken on almost every type of craft, and I might add that the Navy uses more than 150 different types."

"I think you would like to know that the private companies and Government yards which are building combat ships are setting records equal to anything now being achieved in the production of merchant ships."

Turning to criticism of the war effort, Secretary Knox commented in a departure from his prepared text:

"The typewriter strategists inaccuracy an all-time high for incoherence when one commission charged the Navy with having prevented a second front in Europe by taking the offensive in the Solomons, on the very day our great armada was in mid-ocean on the way to North Africa. And that was after months of careful, patient preparation."

Lists Virtues and Faults.
Acknowledging that in the war effort America has displayed "unity, hesitancy, inefficiency, confusion, waste and all the other things the critics say," Secretary Knox declared that in contrast:

"We have converted the greatest peaceful industrial plant into the greatest arsenal of all time."

"We have maintained our freedom and our solvency at home."

By the Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Herbert H. Lehman, relinquishing the New York governorship today to become director of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation, announced he will discuss his new duties tomorrow with Herbert Hoover, who administered relief to European nations after the World War.

Gov. Lehman and the former President will confer at a luncheon meeting in New York City.

Democratic Lt. Gov. Charles P. Lott succeeds Mr. Lehman as Governor with the latter's assurance the State is financially and otherwise, "in excellent condition." In a vaudeville accounting of his 10-year governorship last night Gov. Lehman said the State surplus may exceed $75,000,000 by the fiscal year end June 30.

Duce Hits Churchill Warning, Minimizes Italian Peace Cry

If Country Quit It Would Give Up Dream
Of Being Great Nation, Premier Asserts

(Text of Mussolini Speech on Page A-3.)

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 2.—Premier Mussolini delivered his longest speech of the war today, coughing and breathing heavily with the intensity of his effort to whip up fighting spirit among the Italian people, whom he advised to learn to hate and to cease spreading "silly stories and gossip."

His 81-minute address was short of his old-time boasts by the grim turn of the war for his Fascist regime, and in place of his usual lavish promises he complained bitterly that "nobody ever really understood Italy" and that had she stayed out of the war both her interests would have been maintained.

In one breath, Mr. Duce minimized the cry for peace in Italy; in another he sought to coax back the spirit of resistance by declaring that if the Italian nation gave up it would renounce forever its dream of being a great nation."

Reading extracts from Prime Minister Churchill's speech warning that Italy would be placed under "prolonged, scientific and shattering air attack," Mussolini said Mr. Churchill "has been captured and were interned in Sicily, and that other prisoners included 4,003 other officers and 69,167 men."

He said that RAF bombings of Italy and naval bombardments of her coast had killed 1,876 and injured 1,876 men.

Stalingrad Defenders Roll Back Weakening German Siege Lines

Two Soviet Offensives
Are Aided by New Aerial Activity

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Dec. 2.—Stalingrad's defenders, rolling back the Nazis' weakening siege lines, have recaptured Yuzhaya Hill, dominating the southern side of the city, and have pushed out from two to five miles farther from Stalingrad, the Army newspaper Red Star reported today.

An enemy division was beaten in a two-day battle for the hill, Red Star reported.

This gain, further undermining the siege to which the Germans laid the Volga River port just 100 days ago, came to the Nazi high command was reported pulling some of the besiegers back to meet the threats of Red Army offensives driving successfully west of Stalingrad and on the central front with the help of new Soviet air activity.

Hill Dominated Part of City.
Yuzhaya is one of a famous pair of hills which rise from the banks of the Volga and look down on Stalingrad. Kurgan Hill to the north was recaptured previously by the crack guard troops of Maj. Gen. Alexei Rodintsev.

The recapture of Yuzhaya, Red Star said, thrust the Germans back into the steppes on the southern side of Stalingrad.

The enemy had held the hill since early in the battle of Stalingrad and its heights had given him a clear view of the city and a dominating part of the city and cover for troop movements inside.

The army newspaper said the hill was recaptured by artillery, tank and infantry attacks from several sides. Bad weather prevented the air force from supporting the uphill charge.

Seven counterattacks were made by the Nazis, who threw as many as 70 tanks and 20 regiments of infantry into the struggle in a desperate effort to regain the hill, Red Star said.

Nazis Fall Despite Air Support.
Sometimes holding a 3-to-1 numerical advantage, the Germans were able to give their forces air support in the last stages of the fight, but still failed to retake the hill.

Russian forces were reported to have slipped beyond their rewon positions to disperse 1,000 enemy infantrymen moving toward the hill and thus to have secured the position.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, reported that a full Nazi division made up of units moved out of Stalingrad and supported a fleet of 75 tanks counterattacked at a hill occupied by the Russians. Despite a local superiority in numbers, the Germans were repulsed, Pravda said.

The Russian position on the fortified hill covered a railroad station and a village, and it was reported that it gave the Russians access to the rear of the German forces immediately before Stalingrad.

The exact location of the hill was not specified.

The Russians were reported deep inside the original German lines northwest of the city, however, Pravda said, holding newly won positions and pressing fresh assaults.

Red Army forces battling their way down the east bank of the Don were reported to have reached strong German defenses.

More Fresh Troops Rushed by Hitler To Tunisia

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—American and French troops were reported today to have crossed the Tunisian coastal road north of Gabes, denying to Axis troops access by land to the Libyan base at Tripoli, as British and American planes poured a devastating flood of bombs on the main Axis strongholds of Bizerte and Tunisia.

Adolf Hitler was rushing troops to Tunisia by sea and air in a desperate effort to stem the rolling Allied offensive to drive his forces into the Mediterranean, dispatches from North Africa said, and tremendous air battles clouded the sky over North Tunisia.

An Allied headquarters spokesman said that despite evident setbacks to the German air force and Hitler's apparent failure to build up his ground strength by any substantial reinforcements, "both the German land and air forces are still fighting hard and making no effort to pull out."

Italians Report Clashes.
The Italian high command vaguely reported Axis gains in armored force clashes in Tunisia, but its mention of "some dozens" of Allied prisoners captured indicated only minor, local encounters.

The German communique similarly reported that the Allies had been thrown back by Axis counterattacks at several points. It said nine tanks were destroyed, eight British planes shot down and Allied parachutists dispersed. Neither, however, located these actions and gave no evidence that they were on any major scale.

In Libya, meanwhile, both sides indicated that preparations were afoot by the 8th Army to try to crash through the Nazis' El Agheila position. A British communique reported patrol activity against enemy positions in that area. The German radio said the British had moved up reinforcements, including a tank division and more air fighter protection for the 8th Army.

Break-Through Reported.
The Morocco radio reported the break-through to the coast in the south was somewhere between Sfax and Gabes, both places still in Axis hands.

Sfax is 160 miles south of Tunis and Gabes is 80 miles farther south toward the east. Tripoli is about 200 miles farther to the southeast along the coast. The radio report did not say where the road had been broken above Gabes, but the most likely spot would be the junction of the coast road with a small road leading to Gafsa, about 20 miles above Gabes.

Both Sfax and Gabes have been subjected to daylight aerial attacks and the fighting apparently has reached a scope and intensity not previously matched in Tunisia.

British and American troops were reported still driving a wedge between Tunis and Bizerte in the north against the heavy resistance of German tanks and infantry, and the Morocco radio said the British 1st Army apparently was in contact with "the nucleus of enemy resistance."

Allied forces were approaching Tunis along the coast and were within artillery range north of the city. The heaviest fighting for Bizerte apparently was centered on the 28-mile road from Mateur leading into the great French naval base.

Allied forces have been in possession of Medjel El Bab, 30 miles southwest of Tunis, since Friday, delayed dispatches reported. Other Allied troops, driving a wedge between the Axis troops in Tunis and Bizerte, were exerting great pressure on the Axis position at Djeida, a rail center already in Allied hands.

As the fighting raged toward a climax, Admiral Jean Darlan, former Vichy defense head now cooperating with the Allies, assumed the powers of chief of state in French Africa "as the representative of Marshal Petain, who at present is a prisoner," the Morocco radio announced last night.

Confers With Two Leaders.
Admiral Darlan's action came after he had conferred with Gen. Auguste Nogues, Governor General in French Morocco, and Pierre Boisson, Governor General in French West Africa.

Fighting French quarters here, having watched Admiral Darlan's activities in North Africa with suspicion, said the former Vichy official apparently was attempting to effect a political restoration.

In an American air raid on Gabes yesterday airdromes and railroad yards were reported heavily damaged and Sfax also was attacked.

U. S. Confers With Boisson About Dakar, Eden Says

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that United States authorities in Algiers are conferring with Pierre Boisson, Governor General of French West Africa on the use to be made of port and other facilities in West Africa, including Dakar.

Mr. Eden said nothing beyond the fact that the discussions are now in progress.

Later an authoritative informant said the United Nations undoubtedly would obtain use of Dakar but it was not yet disclosed to what extent or for what purposes.

House Group Blocks Attempt to Shelve War Powers Bill

Redrafted Measure

By the Associated Press.

By a margin of nearly 2 to 1, the House Ways and Means Committee blocked today an attempt to pigeonhole for the balance of the year a measure granting President Roosevelt wartime powers to suspend tariff regulations.

Instead, the committee directed Chairman Doughton to introduce "as the basis for future consideration" a modified measure drafted by a subcommittee which would grant the Chief Executive the tariff powers, but not his request for authority to override immigration barriers.

To Hold Public Hearings.
Simultaneously, the committee decided to hold public hearings on the measure, probably beginning tomorrow. Representative Jenkins, Republican, of Ohio, one of the members, said, however, that it had been agreed that the hearings would be continued "long enough to give people from the far corners of the country an opportunity to get here to present their views."

Mr. Jenkins declared there was rapidly mounting opposition throughout the country—particularly from agricultural sections—to any broad grant of authority to suspend tariff regulations.

Mr. Doughton made it clear that the bill that he would introduce at the committee's request was not to be considered a "committee measure"—that is, a bill having the support of a majority of the committee.

Sees Further Redraft.
His emphasis on that point indicated the possibility that the legislation still may be further rewritten by the full committee after the public hearings.

It appeared uncertain whether enough time remains for the public hearings, admission of the bill by the Rules Committee, debate on the House floor, more hearings before a Senate committee, their Senate action before adjournment of the 77th Congress January 3.

There were expressions of dissatisfaction by members who felt that the compromise form of the measure still went too far.

"I want to go into it a lot further before I will be in favor of this bill," said Representative Woodruff, Republican of Michigan, one of the subcommittee which toned down the bill.

Earlier, there had been expressions of fear in some quarters that the power to suspend tariffs might result in the duty-free importation of commodities which normally compete with those produced here, such as Argentine beef.

Five Killed, 20 Injured In Georgia Tornado

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLNTON, Ga., Dec. 2.—A tornado swirling over this section killed five colored persons, injured at least 20 other persons and leveled several homes late yesterday.

The dead were residents of Lincoln, in Southwest Georgia. Property damage also was reported in Millen and Washington, Ga. Telephone communication here was cut off by the storm and had not been restored this morning.

Two members of the Georgia State Patrol, H. C. Langston and W. T. Beauchamp, were injured while on a call.

The residential section of Lincolnton received the brunt of the damage, but a furniture store was demolished and other business houses were damaged.

Blackout Shields Gary Cooper From D. C. Movie Fans

Gary Cooper, the film star, had a novel experience for a Hollywood celebrity last night—standing for a half hour in a crowd and being left strictly alone.

Arriving from New York at Union Station with his wife, the former Sandra Shaw, Mr. Cooper walked smack into the surprise blackout.

For the next 30 minutes he stood quietly in the darkness, unrecognized by anyone.

Spotted by a reporter, Mr. Cooper indicated that the blackout was no annoyance at all, just one of the things that come with war.

"We have blackouts in Hollywood, too," he drawled. "Was no different from the rest of the country, you know."

The actor said he would be in Washington for a few days "on business." He and Mrs. Cooper are staying with friends.

U. S. Steel Production Will Top All Records, WPB Executive Says

Monthly Output Will Rise
To 8,250,000 Tons,
Manufacturers Told

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—This Nation's steel production will rise to a record-shattering 8,250,000 tons monthly, the chief of the War Production Board's iron and steel branch said today.

Hiland G. Batcheller, the WPB executive, said in an address at the National Association of Manufacturers' Convention, which opened today.

"At the time of Pearl Harbor production amounted to 7,150,000 tons monthly. In October this year an all-time record was established when 7,884,000 tons were produced. Now under construction monthly production will approximate 8,250,000 tons."

Mr. Batcheller said "I think we can reasonably be more optimistic about a balanced supply in the future" of raw steel materials to the manufacturers of war products. For this he gave two reasons:

Cutting down on non-essential civilian items, a process which took months to achieve, and the new controlled materials plan under which "each of the great procurement agencies is henceforward to be given a specific allotment of steel, copper and aluminum."

He reminded the industrialists of their responsibility to provide the steel mills with raw materials in the form of scrap to fill their increasing requirements.

Chesapeake City Ferry Dredging Near Completion

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Dredging operations for construction of a free ferry service across the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal at Chesapeake City, Md., will be completed in about two weeks, Army engineers announced today.

The $260,000 service will replace a bridge wrecked by an oil tanker last July 28. One man was killed and the accident.

E. N. Taylor, senior engineer in the Philadelphia office, said dredging operations were begun two weeks ago. He said he did not know when actual construction would get under way.

35 Survivors of Fire Battle Pneumonia In Boston Hospital

Night Club Entertainers
Banned in 1,161 Places
As Grand Jury Convenes

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Thirty-five survivors of the Cocoanut Grove holocaust battled pneumonia, in addition to burns, today as demands were heard for an overhauling of night club safety precautions along the lines of theater regulations prompted by the Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago in 1903.

Dr. Charles Lund said at City Hospital that every survivor was X-rayed for pneumonia and treated with the finest known sulfa preparation, but that the pneumonia was induced by smoke and heat inhaled during the inferno.

The 35 cases developed yesterday, and other cases may appear, he added, as the Boston Committee on Public Safety set the disaster deaths at 490, with all but two bodies identified.

Grand Jury Convenes.
Twin investigations of the fire proceeded apace, one by the city and one by the State, as the Suffolk County grand jury convened in regular session today. State investigators emphasized they would follow through the evidence to "the last grain of sand," after District Attorney William J. Foley declared that "any evidence of crime disclosed by the investigation will be presented to the grand jury," which will continue in session for about a fortnight.

The most sweeping move toward tighter control over night club safety conditions was taken in Boston, where police last night closed 51 night clubs and other dine-dance-drink places pending a complete re-check of the premises by building inspectors.

Their action came shortly after the Boston License Commission had banned all entertainment and dancing in the city's 1,161 licensed night clubs, hotels and restaurants at the behest of Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, for similar re-checks.

Act first and let some one question your authority later," the Governor told the board. The board earlier had pointed out that it had no inspectors and was dependent on fire, police and other city departments for information on which to act.

Other Cities Act.
While scores of funerals were being held for the victims of Saturday night's disaster, officials in a number of cities studied their building codes and the possible fire hazard of night spots. Work was speeded on a revised building code for Boston.

In Providence, R. I., the Bureau of Police and Fire prohibited the sale of alcoholic beverages in any room below street level.

New Aircraft Carrier To Be the Belleau Wood

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 2.—The New York Shipbuilding Corp. will launch its third aircraft carrier in 15 weeks here Sunday, the day before the Pearl Harbor anniversary, the 4th Naval District announced today.

The ship will be christened the Belleau Wood in honor of marines who fought in the Belleau Wood battle of the World War and of marine heroes of this war, the Navy said.

Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, wife of Lt. Gen. Holcomb, Marine Corps commandant, will act as sponsor.

New York Ship launched the carrier Princeton on August 22 and the carrier Princeton on November 9 at its Delaware River yards here.

Nelson Retains Control Over War Production

Compromise Reached With Somervell on Output Supervision

By JAMES Y. NEWTON.

The battle for control of production was ended today with the War Production Board reported by authoritative sources as maintaining over-all supervision of scheduling and the military retaining the right to carry out the work.

This agreement, somewhat of a compromise between Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, and Lt. Gen. Brenton B. Somervell, chief of the Army Services of Supply, was hailed by WPB officials as a victory. It ended a two-week controversy which was touched off when Mr. Nelson announced that he was placing WPB Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson, former General Electric Co. president, in charge of all production, with special powers to handle the aircraft.

What the agreement between WPB and the armed services means, it was said, is that WPB actually will shoulder all responsibility for seeing that production programs are met. The Army officials will continue to see what munitions and supplies they want and when they want them. Actual work of scheduling production will remain with the hundreds of thousands of supply and production officers now in the field, but under a delegation of authority from Mr. Wilson.

Military-WPB Dispute Settled.
President Roosevelt disclosed late yesterday that the military-WPB dispute had been ended by negotiation, though he refused to give details. Mr. Roosevelt minimized the dispute, saying that he had not terminated the fringes between WPB and military supervision of production. He reminded reporters that he had previously told them how the problem would be settled—by the two agencies working together in a room and not until agreement had been reached. He said that had been done.

Mr. Roosevelt said that while there wasn't much of a story in the controversy, the big news was that it had been settled without slowing munitions production. The problem was settled before it reached the factories, he added.

Some people, the President continued, endeavored to raise the controversy into a star of the first magnitude. He evidently referred to reports that the production dispute was the start of a battle between the military and civilian for control of the Nation's economy. He indicated that he had never considered it a question of great importance.

Knudsen May Join Board.
Meanwhile, it was learned that Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen, former General Motors head who preceded Mr. Nelson as director of production, might be added to membership of the new aircraft board. Mr. Wilson was expected to announce the board's personnel within a few days, as well as officially make public details of the scheduling agreement.

Plans already are underway, it was understood, to call a first meeting of the group which will have over-all charge of aircraft production.

While authority for maintaining production of all munitions will be centered in Mr. Wilson, it was said that WPB does not plan to set up "high commands" similar to the Aircraft Board for such items as tanks, ships and guns. Aircraft is treated independently, it was said, because of its importance in the war and because schedules of airplane production had become more out of balance than the other programs.

Concentrates on Planes.
Mr. Wilson is expected to devote more of his attention immediately to aircraft than any other program. An official pointed out, however, that since tanks, guns, ships and planes all compete for the same materials it would be impossible for Mr. Wilson "to do a job" of seeing that schedules are met for one without having control of all.

The executive order establishing WPB gave Mr. Nelson control over both procurement and scheduling. He delegated these powers to the military in March. It was the reluctance of the services to turn back scheduling powers which started the dispute. The official said WPB does not wish to run procurement or the actual operation of scheduling. He pointed out that these are tremendous tasks which require the efforts of hundreds of thousands of officers.

"With WPB directing scheduling operations, we will get a really well-knit armament program," the official said. This agreement clears away a lot of smoke and will enable us to really do a good job. We have shed much of the blame in the past for the lagging production program without having the responsibility. If production is poor from now on, it will be definitely WPB's fault—Mr. Wilson's fault."

Balances War Program.
The agreement will enable WPB, the Army and Navy to work more closely together than ever before, the official declared, adding that it was absolutely necessary for WPB to have supervisory scheduling powers in order to obtain a balanced war program, because "you can't expect to have a balanced war program."

Cramer Sentenced To 45 Years in Prison For Aiding Saboteurs

Mechanic, Convicted of Treason in New York, Will Appeal Case

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Anthony Cramer, 42, Yorkville mechanic, convicted of treasonously aiding two of the eight Nazi saboteurs landed by submarine in the United States last June, was sentenced today to serve 45 years in prison and fined $10,000.

After sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, Defense Counsel Harold Medina said he would appeal.

At the trial of Cramer, who was convicted November 18, the Government charged he gave aid and comfort to Werner Thiel and Edward J. Kerling after they landed by submarine on the Florida coast, intent on destroying units of the Nation's aluminum industry.

Cramer was accused of meeting the two saboteurs in New York, and of giving false information to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in an attempt to conceal Thiel's mission and identity.

Faced Possible Death Penalty. Both Thiel and Kerling, together with four of their companions, later were put to death after trial by a military court in Washington.

Cramer had faced a possible maximum penalty of death.

Judge Goddard said he would not impose the death penalty, as recommended by United States Attorney Mathias Correa, because "it does not appear that Cramer was aware that Kerling and the others were in possession of explosives or intended to destroy factories."

"It appears to me," the court said, "that he had no guilty knowledge of the subversive mission of Kerling and Thiel except that he had a vague idea that they came here to satiate and spread German propaganda."

"If there were any real proof that he had confided in him, or that he knew of their real purpose for coming here, I would not hesitate to impose the death penalty."

In presenting his case against him, the Government charged he met Thiel on June 22, less than a week after the saboteurs landed in the United States, and had arranged several rendezvous with them.

One of the Nazi experts in destruction, Ernest Peter Burger, whose life was spared by the military court which condemned six of his comrades, testified against Cramer.

Cramer's defense was that he did not know Thiel was here on a mission of sabotage.

Cramer was the third trial in Federal Court of persons accused of treason in aiding one or more of the saboteurs. Three men were condemned to death in Chicago November 24 and their wives, who had been tried with them, were sentenced to 25 years in prison and fined $10,000 each.

Guarder Freed Monday. Helmut Leiner, Astoria gardener, was freed of a treason charge Monday, when a judge in Federal Court here directed a verdict of acquittal on grounds that the Government, in presenting its case, failed to produce at least two witnesses to testify to each overt act.

Leiner also was accused of aiding Kerling. Following his acquittal, he was interned for the duration as a dangerous enemy alien.

In the Nation's only other conviction for treason in 146 years—since the so-called whisky rebellion of 1794—Max Stephan of Detroit was sentenced to death last August for sheltering and aiding the flight of a German aviator who escaped from a Canadian prison camp.

Mr. Correa, in asking for the death penalty, told the court: "All people of his kind should be made to realize that swift retribution awaits them. A prison term does not act as a deterrent to persons of this kind. They are possessed with a fanaticism. I suppose that this is due to their devotion to the new order or whatever you may call it."

"This country is asking millions of men to risk their lives and some to give them. This sentence is not asked as punishment but only as a stern warning."

Miss Hedwig Engemann, 34, Brooklyn waitress who pleaded guilty three weeks ago to a charge of misprision of treason, was sentenced to three years imprisonment by Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox.

Mr. Correa, in asking for a five-year sentence, told the court that Miss Engemann's concealment of Leiner's activities, as well as her concealment of the knowledge that her former sweetheart, Kerling, had arrived in this country in a Nazi submarine, "menaced our national security."

Silver Sale Bill Approved By Senate Banking Group

By the Associated Press. The Senate Banking Committee gave formal approval today to a bill which would permit the sale or lease of unpledged Government securities for consumptive uses in industry "in furtherance of the war effort."

Senator Murdock, Democrat, of Utah, was the only member recorded against the bill. He is one of a group of Senators from Silver States who have strongly opposed every move which they think might tend to cheapen silver as a monetary metal.

To become law, the bill still would have to be approved by both the Senate and House, and only one month of the present session remains.

The Government-owned metal could be sold by the Secretary of the Treasury only on the recommendation of the chairman of the War Production Board. The average sale price would have to be at least 50 cents per fine Troy ounce.

Argentine Talks Begin

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 2 (AP)—Experts representing the United States and Argentine governments began talks today looking toward an agreement on oil. The talks are to be held under which Argentina would obtain oil in return for the contribution of Argentina's tankers to an American tanker pool. Argentina was understood to have accepted the proposal in principle.

HERO'S PARENTS RECEIVE AWARD FOR THEIR SON—President Roosevelt is shown presenting to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pease, Jr., of Plymouth, N. H., the Congressional Medal of Honor awarded to their son, Capt. City Pay Raise Ruling By Roosevelt Called Blow at Constitution

States' Rights Invaded By WLB Provision, Says Baltimore Solicitor

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Any justification of the Federal Government's attempt to control municipal salaries and wages would "result in a hopeless emancipation of the Constitution," F. Murray Benson, city solicitor of Baltimore, told the opening session of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers today.

Mr. Benson declared that the recent executive order forbidding wage increases unless authorized by the War Labor Board was a violation of the sovereign rights of States "to handle the local problems that arise between these political subdivisions and their employees."

"We hold that the invasion of this right above all others," Mr. Benson said, "cannot be justified under the Constitution, except by a showing of State and local emergency."

He added that the problem was complicated by the fact that it was "shrouded in the cloak of war necessity."

Mr. Benson asserted the executive order directly contradicted the 10th amendment, which excluded regulation of State and local salaries from powers delegated to the Federal Government.

"The Federal Government," Mr. Benson declared, "and the President in particular, have no power not conferred by the Constitution, and that one of the women was screaming for her baby. She must have been one of the entertainers," but she added, it was a man who carried out the child.

Morris Sidney Guerin of Brooklyn, a waiter at the club, testified the lights went out about four or five minutes after the fire started. Just before the club was plunged into darkness, he said, he saw another waiter grab Mrs. Katherine Sweet, the cashier, by the hand and attempt to drag her out. She refused to go, saying she had to guard the cash drawer. Mrs. Sweet died in the fire.

"Acid in Smoke," Says Witness. Fire Commissioner William A. Reilly asked him whether there was anything "strange about the smoke?" "There was acid in the smoke," Walter Guerin replied.

"How would you tell there was acid in the smoke?" he asked.

"I choked a person quickly," he replied. "I held my handkerchief around my nose, but could feel the smoke coming through it. It was either acid or something like burned kerosene."

He said the smoke had no ill effects on his eyes or nose, but added, "My mouth and throat became congested."

Meanwhile, the city of Lowell today closed all below-street-level eating and drinking places, banned the use of revolving doors in all licensed places and prohibited the use of artificial decorations of all kinds.

Called Political Reward. "It is charged that on the last day of the fiscal year in 1939, the corporation made a payment to that city of over half a million dollars to increase its cash surplus."

"It is charged that this was done as a political reward for the Mayor of that city (Frank Hague, a vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee).

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Dec. 2.—Roy C. Munson, 28-year-old farmer from Halsey, Oreg., who piloted Wellington bombers for the RAF on 27 raids over Germany and Italy and always brought his planes home despite damage, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross by King George.

On 13 of his trips, Munson's ships were badly damaged, but he brought his plane back safely each time.

Oil Industry Heads Asked for Views on Midwest Fuel Supply

Truman Committee Told Petroleum Sufficient For Heating Demands

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2.—Heads of the oil industry were asked today by Senator Truman's War-time Investigating Committee to give their versions of the fuel oil supply situation in the Middle West.

"If the witnesses will talk freely," Senator Truman said, "we will be able to obtain facts upon which to base a recommendation."

Oil Supply Sufficient. Already the committee, investigating the justification for fuel oil rationing in this area, had a report from a group of Mayors in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska that there was enough fuel-oil in the area to supply its heating needs, to ship to other areas all the railroads could carry and to build up a surplus at the same time.

What the Senate War-time Investigating Committee is seeking to learn on the last day of its two-day hearing, Senator Truman said, is verification of that information from the oilmen for his records.

Thomas J. Thomas, deputy coordinator of solid fuels, testified yesterday that the coal shortage in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas can be cut to 500,000 tons annually, if—Contingencies Cited.

1. Consumers order in advance so mines can operate in slack seasons. 2. Mine operators can get priorities to repair machinery. 3. Miners will agree to a six-day instead of a five-day week.

Operators can operate profitably on a six-day basis, or if OPA will permit increases in coal prices. 5. Selective Service defers miners. Mayor John B. Gage of Kansas City earlier told the committee that Secretary Ickes previously had estimated a 2,000,000-ton shortage of coal in this area as a result of oil rationing. The figure now has been reduced by the inclusion of small-mine production, Mr. Thomas testified.

Mayor Gage reiterated that the area has sufficient oil to meet its own fuel needs and ships eastward all that transportation facilities can handle.

Two Drivers Deny Homicide Charges

Pleading not guilty to charges of violating the Negligent Homicide Act, two drivers involved in traffic accidents today demanded jury trials before Judge John P. McMahon in Municipal Court.

Poster Lee Jones, 24, a cab driver of the 400 block of Kentucky avenue S.E., was charged with negligent homicide in the death Sunday of Mrs. Lolla Fletcher, 48, of 333 C street S.E., at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue S.E. Bond was set at $1,000 and the trial was set for December 9.

Kean Asks Inquiry Into FDIC Activity in Hague's Jersey City

Urges Probe of Report Half Million Paid As Political Reward

By the Associated Press. Declaring that "serious charges" had been made against the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in its handling of properties in Jersey City, Representative Kean, Republican, of New Jersey today called for an inquiry by the House Banking Committee into the corporation's affairs in Jersey City.

Mr. Kean said he based his action on articles appearing in the Newark Evening News. He offered a resolution which would direct the investigation.

Jealousy Charged. Mr. Kean, a member of the Banking Committee, told the House: "The members of the Banking and Currency Committee have been jealous of the reputation of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Now serious charges have been made by responsible sources against its integrity."

"It is charged that the corporation took over many properties in Jersey City, which had been written off as worthless by banking institutions, in order to produce tax revenues for that city."

"It is charged that the corporation has made no attempt to reduce the assessed valuation of these properties to figures comparable to other neighboring properties."

Called Political Reward. "It is charged that on the last day of the fiscal year in 1939, the corporation made a payment to that city of over half a million dollars to increase its cash surplus."

"It is charged that this was done as a political reward for the Mayor of that city (Frank Hague, a vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee).

"If these charges are untrue, they must be disproved. If they are true, some one must be punished."

Johnson and Nye Balk At U. S. Gift to Panama

By the Associated Press. Two dissenting members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee blocked objections today to the "seeming purchase" of Panama's friendship, neighborhood and co-operation with a proposed gift of certain United States properties.

In a minority report, Senators Johnson of California and Nye of North Dakota, Republicans, asked that the most serious objection to the transfer of the properties in Panama to the government of that republic be returned to the State Department for renegotiation in the form of a treaty.

The Senate plans to take up the resolution tomorrow, with a recommendation by a majority of the Foreign Relations Committee that it be adopted.

The minority report contended, however, that it would set a dangerous precedent, since it "would seem to very definitely set a price upon friendship, neighborhood and co-operation and make these splendid purposes seemingly subject, at least in some degree to purchase."

Col. John R. Francis Awarded Purple Heart

By the Associated Press. Col. John R. Francis, an Army infantry officer, who was "largely responsible" for creation of the air ferrying service across the Himalayan Mountains to China, was presented the Purple Heart Award this afternoon in ceremonies at the Army War College.

The presentation, a mark of honor, high Army officials and friends of Col. Francis was made by Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding general, Army Ground Forces.

Col. Francis now is assigned to the ground plan section of the General Staff. He lives at the War College.

Col. Francis served as executive officer of the India-China Ferrying Command, an assignment, according to the official citation, normally held by an air force officer. He was in the middle of the intensive air organization following Japanese occupation of Thailand and Burma.

Attending the ceremonies were Gen. Malin Craig, former Army Chief of Staff; Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, Maj. Gen. William D. Styer, Mrs. Floyd L. Parks, wife of the Chief of Staff, Army Ground Forces, and chiefs of sections of the ground, general and special staffs of the Army Ground Force headquarters.

Big Response Reported On New Victory Loan

By the Associated Press. Treasury officials reported last night that the new Victory Loan bonds were meeting with "tremendous enthusiasm" from the public.

"Reports from the field are highly favorable," a Treasury official said, "and the sale is well advanced."

The largest individual sale reported to the Treasury was in Cleveland, where one individual bought $11,000,000 worth of bonds, $10,000,000 of them Victory bonds.

No figures were available on total bond sales so far. The Treasury's goal is to sell upward of $9,000,000,000 of new Government securities.

June Havoc Wins Divorce

Prisoner Who Died In Navy Test Given Posthumous Pardon

Gov. Saltonstall Lauds Young Volunteer for Secret Experiments

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Voting a posthumous pardon to Arthur St. Germain, 27, of Haverhill, the Massachusetts Executive Council revealed today that the young man, while serving a long term at the Norfolk State Prison Colony, had given his life in secret Navy tests which may result in the saving of thousands of lives.

In a tribute to St. Germain, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall declared that he, with 39 other prisoners at the colony, had submitted voluntarily to tests which "involved the possible savings of thousands of lives, not only on the battlefield, but amid society itself."

To most Mrs. Germain, Beulah St. Germain, Correction Commissioner Lyman wrote: "I am not at liberty at the present moment to say to you, I do want you to know that in my opinion your son gave his life for those in the armed services who for members of his country, who is on a destroyer, would if he were to lose his life fighting the enemy. I saw Arthur and spoke to him the afternoon before he died at the battlefront, showing steady improvement and was in relatively good spirits."

New Risks Involved. In submitting the pardon to the State Executive Council, Gov. Saltonstall said: "Arthur St. Germain, with all knowledge and understanding of possible dangers and risks involved, voluntarily submitted to a vitally important research test that involved the possible saving of thousands of lives not only on the battlefield, but amid society itself."

"Now, therefore, as Arthur St. Germain died that other might live, I hereby grant him a full and complete pardon of all offenses."

U. S. and Canada Plan Diplomatic Talks on Postwar Co-operation

International Commerce Development Pledged in Note Exchange

The United States and Canada propose to give the world "concrete evidence" of how two friendly, neighboring countries may promote their "mutual interests" and benefit other nations as well by co-operative action to expand their production and trade.

This will be one of the objectives of diplomatic conversations to be undertaken soon to work out means of putting in effect the principles of post-war economic co-operation contained in an agreement announced by the State Department last night.

The agreement, embodied in an exchange of notes between Secretary of State Hull and Canadian Minister Leighton McCarthy, pledged the United States and Canada to work with "all other countries of like mind" to develop a post-war program designed to:

Expand production, employment and the exchange and consumption of goods "which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples."

Cut in Trade Barriers. Eliminate "all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce," and reduce tariffs and other trade barriers.

Generally attain the economic objectives of the Atlantic Charter. The language of this phase of the agreement was similar to that employed in so-called "master" lease-lend agreements with Great Britain, China, Russia and several other of the United Nations.

Canada thus was put on record as in agreement with the principal other United Nations that "post-war settlements must be such as to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations."

The notes exchanged by Secretary Hull and Mr. McCarthy emphasized, however, the "similar interests" of Canada and the United States in post-war economic policy and pledged the two countries to undertake early conversations to determine the best means of attaining the agreed objectives.

Furnish Example to World. In these conversations the two governments stipulated, the two governments "will seek to furnish to the world concrete evidence of the ways in which two neighboring countries that have a long experience of friendly relations and a high degree of economic interdependence can share the convictions that such reciprocally beneficial relations must form part of a general system, may promote by agreed action their mutual interests to the benefit of themselves and their countries."

The text of Mr. Hull's note to Mr. McCarthy follows:

"I have the honor to set forth below my understanding of the conclusions reached in conversations which have taken place from time to time during the past year between representatives of the Government of the United States and the Government of Canada with regard to post-war economic settlements.

Agree on Mutual Aid. "Our two governments are engaged in a co-operative undertaking, together with every other nation or people of like mind, in laying the bases of a just and enduring world peace securing order under law to themselves and all nations. They have agreed to provide mutual aid both in defense and in economic matters through the Lend-Lease and War Relocation Administration and subsequent arrangements. They are in agreement that post-war settlements must be such as to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations."

"To that end the governments of the United States of America and of Canada are prepared to co-operate in formulating a program of agreed action, open to participation by all other countries of like mind, directed to the expansion by appropriate international and domestic measures, of production, employment and the exchange and consumption of goods, which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples; to the elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce and to the reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers; and, in general, to the attainment of all the economic objectives set forth in the joint declaration made on August 14, 1941, by the President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom.

Example to World. "Our governments have in large measure similar interests in post-war international economic policy. They undertake to enter at an early convenient date into conversations between themselves and with representatives of other United Nations with a view to determining, in the light of governing economic conditions, the best means of attaining the above-stated objectives by agreed action on the part of our two governments and other like-minded governments.

"In the conversations to be undertaken between the governments of the United States of America and of Canada they will seek to furnish to the world concrete evidence of the ways in which two neighboring countries that have a long experience of friendly relations and a high degree of economic interdependence, and that share the conviction that such reciprocally beneficial relations must form part of a general system, may promote by agreed action their mutual interests to the benefit of themselves and their countries.

"If the government of Canada concurs in the foregoing statement of conclusions, I would suggest that to that effect should be regarded as placing on record the understanding of our two governments in this matter.

"Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration."

HITTING THE AXIS WHERE IT HURTS MOST—Supply lines to Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating forces in North Africa have been under constant bombardment by American flyers with devastating effect since the drive to oust the Axis began. The accuracy with which they found their targets is shown here as Allied bombers rained destruction on an Axis transport column trying to get supplies to Marshal Rommel's forces in the desert.

Sunken shipping lies half submerged beside broken quays in the harbor at Tobruk after an Allied attack—evidence of supplies that never reached Marshal Rommel. Stones in the foreground are all that remain of store buildings which held supplies for the Axis. —Army Photos.

Allies Must Prevent Post-War Aggression, Eden Tells Commons

Legislation to Deal With Reconstruction To Be Introduced

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The great military might of the United States, Britain and Soviet Russia must be used in peace to prevent any repetition of aggression, Anthony Eden told the House of Commons amid cheers today.

The Foreign Secretary, who also is government spokesman, informed the House that legislation to deal with post-war reconstruction problems would be introduced.

"Our aim must be to insure that the co-operation achieved among the Allies during the war is continued in the years of peace, and it is not going to be easy because we are going to get an inevitable reaction," Mr. Eden declared.

Europe's first need, he said, is to build up an enduring system against the possibility of renewed German aggression, and he added, "We are prepared to make our contribution to that system."

Labor Party Motion Withdrawn. Mr. Eden said the government did not accept the idea that ideological differences between Britain and Russia make post-war co-operation impossible and explained that the British House had pledged Britain to 20 years of co-operation after the war.

His statement was made during debate on a Labor party motion calling for prompt government action to prepare a post-war program and the motion was withdrawn when his statement of the government's intentions.

"We are determined to do what we can within our power to help in the immediate relief of post-war Europe, even though it means expense and sacrifice to ourselves," Mr. Eden said.

Beveridge to Defend Plan. Sir William Beveridge today prepared to carry the defense of his "freedom from want" social security plan into the strongest of his severest opposition—a powerful Conservative party committee in the House of Commons.

With full knowledge that strong private insurance and benefit societies would oppose his revolutionary blueprint for post-war society because they felt it threatened their extinction, Sir William prepared for arguments before the so-called "1922 Committee" in what was scheduled as a secret meeting.

Champions of the insurance companies and government whips were expected to attend the session as searching inquiries were put to the head of the commission that drafted the 300,000-word report given to Commons yesterday after being 17 months in the making.

Conservatives Organize Opposition. The parliamentary Labor party already had set up a number of committees to study the report and other political parties shaped their studies in anticipation of Commons debate expected early in 1943.

Even before the plan was made public, the Conservatives had begun to organize opposition, chiefly to the greatly increased government expenditures that would for a cost of $2,780,000,000 in its first year. Of that the government would provide $1,404,000,000 toward the post-war plan of aiding every Briton from the cradle to the grave.

Dr. G. H. Richardson, First President of Civic Federation, Dies

D. C. Educator's Efforts On Behalf of Colored Race Widely Known

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Dr. George H. Richardson, 88, one of the founders and first president of the Federation of Civic Associations, died today at his home, 309 Eleventh street N.E.

Prominently identified for many years with efforts in behalf of the colored race, Dr. Richardson was believed to be the only surviving member of the first graduating class of Howard University. He graduated from both the law and medical schools of Howard.

His contribution to magazines describing the educational conditions for the colored in the South caused widespread comment, and his articles led Julius Rosenwald to begin a study and to aid in the establishment of better school facilities for the colored in the South.

Dr. Richardson was appointed to the District Board of Education in the late 1890s and assembling statistics and arguments for opening the normal school to all qualified students rather than limiting entrance to 20 students. Appointed to the Citizens' Advisory Council in 1925, he served as its vice president.

Honored Colored School. Dr. Richardson, born in Cleveland, opened one of the first two colored schools in Prince William County, Va. Later he passed a competitive examination for Government service and received a clerkship in the Treasury Department, eventually being elevated to the highest classification under the civil service at that time.

For two years Dr. Richardson was confidential secretary to a member of the House from Cleveland and became acquainted with many high Government officials. He spent much of his time helping the members of his race, both inside and outside the Government.

At various times Dr. Richardson was contributor to the New South, Washington Bee, a former editor of the People's Advocate, Washington Eagle and the Washington Sentinel.

Practiced Law, Medicine. After graduating from Howard University law school, he practiced law here for some years and then, following his graduation from the medical school, engaged in the practice of medicine.

For 20 years he was president of the Civic Association of Northeast Washington and served as president of the Civic Federation for 12 years. When he retired as president voluntarily, he was named president emeritus. He was also a member and contributor to the Bethel Literary and Historical Association and a member of the Philomathean Society.

His late wife, Mrs. Ida G. Richardson, was one of the first colored teachers in the District and was the first colored attendance officer. She was a founder of the Sterling Relief Association, which was formed to provide shoes for needy school children.

Surviving Dr. Richardson are three children, Mrs. F. Erma West and Mrs. Virginia R. McGuire, both of this city, and George H. Richardson, Jr., of Los Angeles. Mrs. McGuire is a former member of the District Board of Education.

BUCHANAN, Va., Dec. 2.—More than 200 men renewed a search today for Dr. D. E. Murray, pastor of the Baptist Church here, who disappeared yesterday while hunting on Purgatory Mountain, seven miles north of Buchanan.

Finding Dr. Murray missing Mr. Thompson returned to the mountain and searched with the Buchanan Protective Force and about 50 more citizens joined the hunt.

Army Doctors Probe Causes of Pentagon Food Poisoning

11 Persons in Hospital, 50 or More Treated After 'Hash' Luncheon

A special group of Army doctors was busy today on an investigation of the cause of scores of cases of food poisoning which occurred among Army men and civilian employees at the Pentagon Building yesterday afternoon.

The exact number of persons affected could not be determined. Some estimates placed the figure at more than 50, but it was known that many workers received private treatment or were not seriously enough affected to report their illness.

A War Department spokesman said none of the cases was serious. Eleven persons admitted to Emergency Hospital still were confined there today and attendants said they probably would be required to remain there for a day or two longer. Others were treated in the infirmaries at the Pentagon Building, at the Fort Myer infirmary, at Walter Reed Hospital and at nearby civilian hospitals.

Food To Be Analyzed. All patients questioned, the spokesman said, reported that they had eaten corned beef at the cafeteria in the building. Exact blame is expected to be fixed by the investigation, a report of which probably will not be available before tomorrow or later. Portions of food from the cafeteria have been impounded for chemical analysis, it was reported.

When complaints reached mass proportions, War Department officials quickly set up facilities for treatment and placed guards around the cafeteria. Other guards were sent to offices of the building to check on missing employees to be sure no one had collapsed behind desks or in places where they would not be noticed.

Ambulances from Fort Myer, Walter Reed and other local hospitals were called to take the most severe cases to places where they could receive more careful attention. A number of first-aid nurses and two civilian doctors on duty in the office of the Secretary of War assisted in attending the patients at their place of work.

The following were still confined at Emergency today: Mary Elizabeth O'Connor, 1337 Ingraham street N.W.; Anne Flanders, 616 South Carolina avenue S.E.; Bartholomew Williams, 1814 Rosedale street N.E.; Lee Coleman, 2029 P street N.W.; Sally Bombs, 1632 Nicholson street N.W.; John Redd, 418 South Lee avenue, Alexandria; Ruth Petrusella, 628 Lamont street N.W.; Ruth Kuiken, 637 Otis place N.W.; John Clausen, 5721 Eleventh street North, Arlington; John Bailey, 2707 Upsur street, Mount Rainier, Md.; and Francis Caulfield, 1614 Holbrook street, Baltimore, Md.

Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy took personal charge of facilities set up for the care of the sufferers. At times during the late afternoon, many persons waited outside the emergency rooms of the Pentagon Building to learn whether friends or relatives were among the afflicted.

The six cafeterias and four food bars in the building have been the cause of a jurisdictional dispute between the Army and the Federal Work Agency that recently resulted in public attention. In this fight, the FWA claimed that commitments had been made to have the restaurants operated by the Welfare and Recreational Association and that the Army had let a contract to a private firm.

The Army recently ended the dispute for the moment by taking charge of the cafeterias and by placing them under the management of Walter P. McFarland, who held the original contract for their operation.

Flyers Go Deep Into Axis Area To Save Crew Forced Down

ALGERIA, Dec. 1 (Delayed).—A coalition of American and British fighters and the courageous two-man crew of a light bomber saved six members of a United States medium bomber's crew, forced down yesterday deep in Axis territory near Gabes, Tunisia, after their plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire.

The medium bomber, piloted by Second Lt. David L. Floeter of Houston, Tex., was in a group which bombed an airfield, barracks and railroad yards at Gabes. Several planes were hit by the intense anti-aircraft fire.

Lt. Floeter's plane received a hit in the engine and was forced to land several miles from Gabes. Circling above, Lt. E. F. Humphrey of Flint, Mich., saw the crash and watched the six crewmen walk away unhurt. He spotted the location carefully and then flew back to his base.

Lt. Leo Havel, Jr., Seattle, volunteered to attempt a rescue in a light United States bomber, accompanied by Bombardier Lt. Frank H. Donnelly, Jersey City, N. J. Lt. Humphrey and Capt. M. J. Mourne, La Grange, Ill., flew escorting P-38s.

Lt. Havel landed his light bomber on a rough field and took on the six marooned flyers and then faced the problem of getting his overloaded plane into the air again despite the bad terrain and approaching darkness. One important need was a marker at the end of the field to show the end of the improvised runway.

A white-robed Arab agreed to stand there as a beacon and a few minutes later the six happy men were being congratulated at their home field.

Those rescued in addition to Lt. Floeter were Second Lt. Allan L. Houser, Jr., co-pilot; Second Lt. Vernon C. Scogin, Wilmar, Ark.; Sgt. George F. Doran, Muscatine, Iowa; Sgt. Ray Davila, Houston, and Sgt. Herbert L. Fleischman, Canby, Ore.

Sgt. J. H. Cox, Natchitoches, La., waist gunner in another medium bomber, had a narrow escape on the same raid. The tail gunner in his plane was killed and shell fragments penetrated his trousers, one piece coming to rest against his leg. But he was not harmed.

'Can't Be Long Now,' Say British, Eager To Fight in Burma

Soldiers Expect to Push Advance on Every Route That Can Be Opened

By HARRY A. STANDISH. War Correspondent of The Star and North American Newspaper Alliance. SOMEWHERE IN ASSAM, Nov. 28 (Delayed).—With British troops and political officers I have just returned from a short patrol into Burma. We traveled on one of several routes along which it is reasonable to expect that Gen. Archibald P. Wavell's troops will push before long to squeeze out the Jap from strategic centers he has been holding in the interior.

No one knows just when or how an attack will be made but they all say, "It can't be long now." No soldier here envisages a single vast assault column marching into Burma. They think that when we start our troops will pour in on as many routes as are available. The troops are saying, "The Jap is getting hammered in New Guinea and the Solomons and he knows the time is near to crack him here. We've got a big bone to pick with him over Burma."

Country is Rugged. This country can be bracketed with New Guinea as perhaps the most difficult campaigning area in the world. Where our maps show one apparently clear mountain range, it is a tangle of ranges spaced over fever-ridden valleys and rivers that overnight become unbridgeable torrents more than a thousand yards wide. A trip that, according to the distance, should take only a few days will take weeks.

Most roads are only mountainside tracks fit for only pack mules. In the wet seasons the motor roads are liable to be washed away in dozens of places every mile. We traveled eastward across the border on a hair-raising sequence of conveyances. "We'll lay it on for you, old man," they said at headquarters. They did.

When I traveled in a Doodle-Bug, then in its little brother, the Jeep; then on pony, and lastly, on foot. Had there been time we could have gone on into deep Burma by elephants. The Doodle-Bug carried us while there was a practicable road. Then the Jeep, a powerful little miracle of a car, scuttled for miles over a path that was an old trade mark across the mountain tops. We rounded hairpin bends by the simple process of driving on two wheels. This requires steel nerves and skillful driving when the whole maneuver takes place on grades so steep that the car is practically standing on its side and an extra yard or side-slip would mean a 1,000-foot drop.

Premier Mussolini's Speech Italian People Will Not Be Bombed Out of War, He Declares

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Dec. 2.—A partial text of Premier Mussolini's speech, as recorded from Axis broadcasts, follows: The war has spread through all space and will be similarly long in time. The less one says in wartime the better. The Italian people do not need a lot of propaganda. Nevertheless, after 18 months' silence I have the vague impression that the Italian people want to hear me. This is not a speech but rather a military statement. I am going to review the first 30 months' war with statistics. The most important events of the last 18 months are: 1. The war against Russia. 2. Japan's entry into the war. 3. The Allied landing in North Africa.

In 1933 an Italian military mission went to Russia. After receiving its report I was convinced there was a great military state there in the east, with very different armaments from those it had in 1920. Different Red Army. The Red Army is something much different from what it was. When I saw a film of a parade of Soviet military power before the Kremlin, I realized there was a menace in the east. If we had waited, events might have shaped differently. It is significant that Russia never wanted British or American soldiers in her country.

Axis armies which withstood the last Russian winter demonstrated their mettle and ability. The Russian soldier has fought well, but the Germans fought better, because they have beaten the Russians. Only the German army, supported by the Italian expeditionary corps, could have overcome the hardships of last winter. In the end, victory cannot fail to come to the Axis. There is not the slightest doubt as to the end of this gigantic struggle.

Japan did not wait before striking shattering blows at America. Japan's intervention is an absolute guarantee of Axis victory. Japan is invincible. First, there were any one in the world who wished for war, that man is Roosevelt. Japan could not stand by and let the United States fire the first shot. America expected to annihilate Japan in two or three weeks. Not Surprised by Invasion. I was not surprised by the invasion of North Africa. There was much information of intrigues between the North Americans and high French officers. There was nothing glorious in the landing. All countermeasures were instantly taken in conjunction with Berlin.

The British bombed civilian and residential quarters. The only victory Britain can boast is at El Alamein. Here are exact figures on casualties from the bombing of Italy to deny exaggerated reports: Italian casualties from enemy air raids and sea bombardments are 1,876 killed and 3,321 injured. We Fascists have a cult of truth. We leave lies to the British and Americans. In Milan 30 houses were destroyed children who crawled there for their last drink. By the road are dozens of expensive cars, abandoned when owners moved on by foot, and almost every car contains bones of poor wretches who died there after crawling inside to get out of the rain.

Thousands Lay Down and Died. For some distance we traveled on one of the many roads used by hundreds of thousands of refugees who streamed from Burma in the first half of this year. It shows a pitiful evidence of thousands of Indians who failed to get within a few miles of safety. Worn out by starvation and thirst and disease, they just lay down beside the road and died. Hundreds of bodies were buried or burned, but hundreds of skeletons still line the track. Every spring and water course has its quota of scrambled heaps of human bones, pitiful evidence of men, women and in a most solemn way: "Forever until we have achieved complete victory. If I had listened to that hyena Roosevelt, he would have thought me a "chump." Churchill says my empire has gone. I reply that the last word has not yet been spoken. (Here Mussolini read a passage from Mr. Churchill's speech dealing with the Axis occupation of Nice and Savoy.) Our German comrades recognize the heroism of Italian soldiers. The Italian people never has been happy. Nobody has ever really understood Italy. Italy never really had enough bread. Every time we asked for something we found obstacles put in our path. Despite what Churchill says, the English-speaking public has never had any tender feelings toward Italy.

When Italy attacked France nobody believed France would suddenly collapse. France's Alpine army was still intact. But this is the France which for centuries has been stabbing Italy in the back. Let us admit we stabbed France in the back—but this only one stab in the back compared to the hundred of stabs France has made on Italy in history. France always has been arrogant. Hyenas? England's history in the last 300 years is one long list of acts worthy of hyenas. The English are universal pirates. Their Nelson disgracefully hanged Neapolitan Admiral Caracciolo. Some heroes of the Italian Risorgimento were killed only because the British government censored Mazzini's letter and informed the Bourbon government.

Stresses Hatred. You Italians must not forget these English horrors. We must hate. You cannot fight without hating. We must act with utmost energy against those who would appease the spirit of Italians. People say Italians are not now so enthusiastic for war. No people continues to be enthusiastic from morning until night. That would be sign of weakness. There has never been any act of sabotage or any protest against the war. This war is not only necessary, it is a sacred cause. We are proud to participate in this battle of giants which will transform the world. We do not like to forecast the future; today the question is "to be or not to be" in this most formidable struggle in human history. We shall march side by side with

Denounces Churchill. When did the British Prime Minister ever ask the British people if they wanted war? These English are revealing themselves beneath their hypocritical varnish and biblical piety. Churchill calls me a hyena. The same Churchill claimed to be a gentleman of English descent. I, Mussolini, when I read these insults, rate myself a thousand times more a gentleman than this man Churchill—intoxicated with alcohol and tobacco. I am proud to be considered an antagonist of the British Empire. There would have been great misery in Italy had she remained neutral because neither of the two belligerents would have come to her aid. Churchill asks Italians, "How long will this last?" I, Mussolini, answer

Former Florida OPA Head Hits U. S. Payroll Waste

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 2.—Walter C. Sherman, former Florida director of the OPA, declared yesterday that he resigned because "I refused to become a party to a raid on the Federal Treasury."

Mr. Sherman, re-elected president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, said in his report at the annual meeting that Government payrolls had become burdened with drones. "There are untold thousands of people working on these payrolls who boast that they do not do anything and others who say they are ashamed to take the money," he asserted.

Draft Violation Cases Against Sect Deferred

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Peace-loving members of the Wenger Mennonite sect may escape prosecution for failure to comply with terms of the Selective Service Act, Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Kallick indicated in Federal Court yesterday.

Mr. Kallick asked that the trial of a dozen pending cases be deferred until Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey defines "essential" agricultural pursuits. Persons engaged in such pursuits now are entitled to deferment and almost all members of the Wenger Mennonite sect are farmers.

Mr. Kallick said his petition to postpone the trials was filed at the request of Attorney General Biddle who, he said, is having conferences with Gen. Hershey on the status of Mennonites and others in farming classifications.

District Welcomes Lt. March, Air Hero, Home From Pacific

Former Tennis Champion Bagged Two Jap Planes In Guadalcanal Battle

Home from the Southeastern Pacific battle zone where he bagged two Jap planes in aerial action over Guadalcanal, Lt. (j. g.) Harry March, Jr., well known District athlete, received a hearty official welcome today from Commissioners Guy Mason and Charles W. Kutz in a brief ceremony at the District Building.

Naturally lean and fringed a deep tan from his sojourn in the Pacific, Lt. March already has spent two weeks of a 30-day furlough in Washington, more than happy for the brief respite from his official chores. At the expiration of his leave he will report to the West Coast for further orders.

District junior tennis champion in 1937, when he ousted Davey Johnson, reigning men's singles, titleholder, and a crack netman and trackman at the University of North Carolina, Lt. March enlisted in the Navy immediately after his graduation last year and was assigned to Anastosia for temporary duty. Successive steps led him to Jacksonville and then Miami, where he won his wings.

Bagged Torpedo Plane First. The rigid training of his cadet days stood him in good stead the morning he took his Grumman Wildcat fighter aloft for a snap at the Japs. He picked out a torpedo plane first and aced it with a shot right down the middle. The next after a fat bomber and brought it down.

"What were you thinking of during the fight?" he was asked. "Mostly wishing I was back home," he said with a grin. "But in a situation of that kind you don't have time to think about more than scoring a hit. We're trained to do certain things in certain emergencies and I just followed the book. The instructions were pretty good, too."

Lt. March encountered several other men well known in sports circles during his tour of duty, among them Harold and Royce Jennings from North Carolina, Fred Bishop, a softball player and brother of Hazel Bishop, ranking local woman tennis star, and Lou Ennis, former football star at the University of Maryland.

Lt. March is as well known on Maryland's campus as at North Carolina and almost enrolled at College Park. But once established in the "hot" field camp he proceeded to keep Maryland out of the Southern Conference track championship two consecutive years by his individual prowess in the broad jump and high jump events.

A. A. U. Pentathlon Champ. Later, competing under the Washington A. A. banner, Lt. March won a National AAU pentathlon championship in a test that included the 200 and 1,500 meters runs, javelin and discus throws, and broad jump.

Lt. March was accompanied by his wife, the former, Mrs. W. W. and Richard S. Tennyson, assistant supervisor of District playgrounds, in charge of men's activities, who was Lt. March's supervisor the summer he served as director of the Burroughs Schools. Lt. March also instructed aspiring young tennis players in the finer arts of the game during that time.

Navy Seeks Clue to Fate Of Missing Ensign

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—First naval district headquarters last night issued an appeal for assistance in attempting to trace Ensign John Bowley Bauer, 27, of Pittsburgh, who was with two other Harvard University naval student officers who perished in the Coconut Grove fire.

The Navy said that despite a thorough search no clue to the fate of Ensign Bauer has been found.

Ensign Bauer was a son of Alfred G. Bauer of Pittsburgh and a brother of Navy Lt. Alfred G. Bauer, both of whom are here assisting in the search.

The Navy expressed hope that there would be "every effort to determine that there has been no misidentification of other dead, and said Ensign Bauer's dental records were available.

He was described as being 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 175 pounds, having blue eyes, rather curly hair between blond and brown in color, cut short in Navy style. Most of his Navy clothing was purchased from the Meyers Military Shop, Washington, and bore its label.

Youth Doomed for Assault Is Granted New Trial

Roland J. Lindsey, 20-year-old colored youth who was slated to be executed January 8 for criminal assault on a white girl in July of last year, yesterday was granted a new trial by the United States Court of Appeals for the District, which reversed his District Court conviction.

Lindsey, now in District Jail, was convicted by a jury in October of last year of criminal assault on the 18-year-old girl and assault with intent to kill her 31-year-old escort. The appellate court held that both convictions should be reversed because of the "denial of the appellant's right of cross-examination, and because of erroneous instructions."

Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens, in writing the majority opinion, suggested that the appellate court should certify to the Supreme Court the question of the constitutionality of the District code relative to the right of a jury to recommend the death penalty in criminal assault cases.

Associate Justice Wiley Rutledge concurred with Justice Stephens, but Associate Justice Henry W. Edgerton dissented. Both jurists, however, disagreed with the recommendation that the Supreme Court consider the District law.

Negotiations Reported Under Way for New Cabinet Under Laval

Direct Military Aid To Nazis Among Aims of Plan

By the Associated Press. BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 2.—Negotiations are under way in Vichy and Paris to create a new cabinet under Pierre Laval which would be the instrument to carry out Germany's plans for Continental France, sources in close touch with Vichy said today.

A new army of accepted Nazi tenets and direct military collaboration in the campaign against the Allies in North Africa are fundamental points in these plans, it was said, with Germany expecting to gain the advantages of more direct access to French armament, food production and a greater measure of security for Axis troops in France.

More Out-and-Out Nazis. These informants gave this general outline of the new plan: The personnel of the new cabinet would not in itself be of great importance, except that it would include more out-and-out Nazis than before, and their names may not be announced immediately.

Hitler's November 27 letter to Marshal Petain and subsequent German declarations of mistrust for Vichy made it clear that decisions of vital importance would be made through Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, whom Hitler has placed in command of all France.

Hopes to Maintain Calm. It is of considerable importance that Berlin expects both Petain and Laval to continue in the proposed expanded program of collaboration regardless of whether the government eventually moves to Paris, or continues at Vichy. Thus the Germans and collaborationist French may argue there had been no basic change in the regime, and there could be no question of creating a new administration which could be called "Quisling."

Axis and French collaborators count on this presentation of affairs to have the effect of maintaining calm among the population. The presence of Marshal Petain would be portrayed, as before, as the symbol of government, and even anti-Axis Frenchmen believe that so long

Laval and Petain Said To Oppose Moving Capital

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A German demand that the Vichy government be transferred to Paris has met with opposition from Chief of Government Laval and Marshal Petain, advices from reliable sources in Europe said today.

The Germans were said to have coupled the transfer with a proposal that Laval reconstruct his government into a committee of public safety, with its chief task to maintain order in the country and with Jacques Doriot and Marcel Deat, pro-Nazi agitators, as prominent figures.

Marshal Petain was said to have rejected the German scheme point-blank. Laval was described as willing at first to agree to the move to Paris, but opposed to elevating Doriot, an old-time political opponent, to power.

French observers were reported as believing a compromise might be reached, since the Germans have been disinclined to alienate Laval.

The Office of War Information in Washington said last night the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter had received this report from its Vichy correspondent: "Since the German occupation of the unoccupied zone of the Hotel du Parc (residence of Marshal Petain) has been inaccessible for the French people and is guarded by a chain of sentries, Petain, who previously was seen daily, for the last 10 days has been quite as unseemly as Laval."

The correspondent said the automobiles of diplomats had vanished from before the hotel and had been replaced by those of the German Army, while "hotel after hotel is occupied by Germans."

Haverford College Plans Air Cadet Course

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Dr. Felix Morley, president of Haverford College, said yesterday that the college, a Society of Friends institution, will start a training course for Army Air Forces cadets on February 1.

Dr. Morley said the course would consist of pre-meteorological training. He and other Friends' educators visited Washington last week to seek governmental approval of a plan to train students for war reconstruction work, rather than admit military students.

House Bill Shifts U. S. Air Conditioning Units to Arms Plants

Measure Would Transfer Machinery From Federal Buildings to Factories

The House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee today favorably reported a bill, requested by President Roosevelt, to permit him, during the war, to authorize sale to defense plants of any mechanical equipment owned by the Government which is "urgently needed in the conduct of the war and cannot otherwise be provided."

The War Production Board earlier asked the committee to approve a bill in order to permit sale of air conditioning equipment in Federal buildings to war plants.

John Jex, Jr., director of the WPB's air conditioning branch, told the committee that WPB believed Government workers in the air-conditioned buildings would be willing to sacrifice the comfort of cool offices in the hot and humid days of Washington's summer so that war production could be increased.

Not to Keep Plants Cool. Mr. Jex explained that the equipment the WPB wants to sell to the war industries would not be used to keep workers cool, but would add to the efficiency of the machinery turning out aircraft, steel and synthetic rubber.

He said only the refrigerating units—not the distribution systems—would be disturbed if Congress passes the legislation. The distribution units, he added, would remain intact and be attached to a new refrigerating unit after the war.

The Social Security Buildings which house the WPB, the Office of War Information and other Federal agencies probably would be the first to lose its air conditioning plant. The building has seven refrigerating units, and Mr. Jex declared five of them tentatively been allocated to an aircraft plant in the Middle West. The two remaining units, he added, would be sufficient to keep the basement and first floors of the building cool in the summer.

Only Large Units to Be Taken. There are certain buildings in Washington such as the Archives and the Mellon Art Gallery, Mr. Jex said, which are windowless and cannot give up their air-conditioning equipment. He told the committee there are 600,000 horsepower units of air conditioning in the Government buildings here, but WPB did not plan to remove any unit less than 100 h.p.

No plants have been made to remove the refrigerating units of the $3,000,000 plant which air conditions the Capitol and the House and Senate Office Buildings, but committee members of Congress would not want to be put in a "pre-fert class" if air-conditioning equipment in other Government buildings goes to war.

Mr. Jex also urged approval of the bill because it would allow transfer of 600,000 typewriters he said the armed forces are seeking.

Chairman Lanham remarked that many of the typewriters in the Government departments are used "very little" and some employees had complained that they did not have enough work to do. He said he believed the transfer of the little-used typewriters to the armed services would be a good idea and at the same time relieve the Government payroll of unneeded typists.

Representative Bell, Democrat of Missouri, added, however, that if 600,000 typewriters are turned over to the armed forces "there would be no one left to fight."

Indian Army Patrols Score Over Japs in Two Burma Clashes

Airdromes at Toungoo And Akyab Attacked By RAF Bombers

By the Associated Press. NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 2.—Indian Army jungle patrols, combating the marshy Burmese coast near the Indian frontier, were reported victors today in two small but fierce clashes with the Japanese.

A headquarters communique said Japanese forces in Burma had been trying persistently to terrorize the native population of areas adjacent to the Indian border in order to create a no-man's land where reconnaissance patrols could operate more easily.

Indian troops, especially trained in the tactics of jungle warfare, were reported, however, to have wiped out two enemy units in this no-man's land.

Jap Truck Ambushed. In a surprise attack on a Japanese outpost, about 3 miles northeast of Maungdaw on the Bay of Bengal and 30 miles from Indian soil, at least 20 of the enemy were believed killed and three machine guns put out of action, the communique said.

A small patrol of the same Indian battalion ambushed two days later a large truck carrying 16 Japanese soldiers along the narrow road between Maungdaw and Butthidaung. Only three of the enemy escaped when the truck crashed off the road into the jungle, the communique reported.

Jap Airdromes Attacked. Japanese airdromes at Toungoo, in Central Burma, and Akyab on the coast were attacked last night by

Charles M'Arthur, Playwright, Enters Army as Major

His Soldierly Ambition Impels Helen Hayes To Return to Stage

By LAWRENCE PERRY. North American Newspaper Alliance. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Charles MacArthur, author, playwright and husband of Helen Hayes, the actress, has gone on active duty with the Army as a major.

His entrance into the armed forces was one of the impelling reasons for the decision of Helen Hayes to return to the stage, after six months of quiet domesticity, in a play about Harriet Beecher Stowe by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements.

"With Charles in the Army," Miss Hayes said, "there are now economic as well as professional reasons why I shall do the play."

Charles MacArthur had been trying for the Army ever since the United States entered the war. But it was not until he had undergone treatment for eyes and a sinus condition that he was able to get by the Army medical board.

"I guess," he said to this writer recently, "soldiering is in my blood." His record bears out this conjecture. Back in 1916, when we were having trouble with Mexico, he served as a private outside of El Paso with the 1st Illinois Cavalry and in the World War, from 1917 to 1919, he was overseas as a private in the 149th Field Artillery, "Rainbow" Division.

"At one time in that war," he said, "I served, curiously enough, under Gen. MacArthur, and before this show is ended maybe I can do it again."

But it was as a writer, rather than a soldier, that he won his fame. With Ben Hecht he wrote "The Front Page," and with Edward Sheldon another hit, "Lulu Belle." He also collaborated with Ben Hecht and Nunnally Johnson in several other plays while doing numerous film plays by himself.

CHARLES MACARTHUR.

America May Supply Reborn French Army, Eberstadt Tells NAM

Witherow Hits $25,000 Salary Limit as Plank Of Communist Party

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The United States may be called on to supply a "rejuvenated" French army, the vice chairman of the War Production Board said today, while one of the Nation's leading industrialists asserted he was "not fighting for a quart of milk for every Hotentot."

Ferdinand Eberstadt, the WPB executive, in a speech at the opening of the 4th convention of the National Association of Manufacturers said:

"You must not forget that war is a matter of change and hazard, and that what is true today may not be true tomorrow."

"We may, for example, it is to be hoped, have the privilege of supplying a rejuvenated French army which, although it would cause a change in our calculation, would be a very agreeable burden indeed."

Capital Should Help Rebuild, NAM President W. P. Witherow, who is also president of the Blaw-Knox Co., suggested that private capital be encouraged to provide the motive power for post-war reconstruction and added:

"Personally, I am not interested in any other form of government or form of economy than our own. I admire beyond expression the stand the Russians have made. They are fighting nobly for Russia and Soviet ideals. We're fighting for America and American ideals."

"I am not making guns or tanks to win a 'people's revolution.' I am making armament to help our boys save America. I don't want any 'modified' free enterprise or bill of rightsless democracy."

"Immediately after the war, Government aid to war-torn countries is a foregone conclusion. But the rehabilitation of their economies or the reforming of their lives, I am not fighting for a quart of milk for every Hotentot, or for a TVA on the Danube, or for governmental handouts of free Utopia."

Mr. Eberstadt said this country's war production volume had fallen short to some extent and in some fields of the "inspiring goals which our President very wisely set for us."

He told the Nation's top-ranking industrialists gathered for the convention that:

"You, of all people, should be content in your judgment of the degree of confusion, intricate regulations, and conflicting instructions which must necessarily have accompanied the creation in so short a time of a war business exceeding $100,000,000,000."

This was the first meeting of the NAM since the United States entered the war, a year in which business and businessmen underwent the most drastic regulations in the Nation's history. Among some of the speakers from industry's ranks were:

The $25,000 limitation on salaries, the law empowering the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission to renegotiate war contracts, the National War Labor Board's rulings on labor problems which have affected industry.

Mr. Witherow dwelt on some of them. He described rationing, renegotiation, shortages, investigations, indictments, questionnaires, anti-trust suits, conflict, overlapping, red tape and confusion. The National Labor Relations Board, WLB and other administrative slow-downs that took the time of management, as so many things in the knapsack industrialists have to carry.

Enterprise Must Return. "American industry knows that in total war some extensive controls are necessary. But we must know also that our sacrifices are temporary. Any suspension of free enterprise should be for the duration only," he said.

He suggested production of war material, manpower problems, war financing and other major undertakings should have "single-headed representation" in a war cabinet.

Asserting the idea of a $25,000 limitation on salaries was "unblushing" borrowed from the public platform of the Communist party in 1928," Mr. Witherow said:

"It constitutes open, recognizable and unmistakable surrender to those who desire to change our form of society and government. It is a ceiling on initiative."

Commenting on the post-war reconstruction period, the industrialist said:

"If Government undertakes a share-the-wealth plan on an international scale, it may benefit those in foreign lands, but only by the impoverishment of the American people."

Pew Attacks New Deal. J. Howard Pew, president of the Sun Oil Co., another convention speaker, said the Government would fail if the industry of this country cannot be run from Washington. This war cannot be won in Washington. But it can be lost there.

Asserting that this is "no time for business reform," Mr. Pew continued:

"Unfortunately, the socialistic planners of the New Deal are receiving encouragement from many men whose faith in the worth of the American system is beyond challenge. Against their better judgment they are willing to accept mild doses of regimentation on the ground that by so doing we shall be spared more drastic restrictions."

"Keep restrictive policies to the minimum of absolute necessity. Cut away the ropes of bureaucratic red tape now hamstringing industry. Give management and labor a chance to exercise initiative by reopening the door of opportunity. Do these things and the output of war materials will soar to heights that even today would be called fantastic. Fail to do them and we lose initiative, production, the war, our freedom and become German and Japanese slaves."

Mr. Pew said the proposed draft of manpower for industry affects

Meat Rationing to Initiate Citizens Into Point System

Coupon Values of 8, 5, 2 and 1 to Determine How Much of What Each May Buy

By ALFRED TOOMBS.

The latest hazard of war—a little plan known as the point system of rationing—was introduced informally to the American people today by the Office of Price Administration.

It's something like a new form of currency and sounds pretty complicated at first. But the OPA swears that it's simple, once you get used to the idea.

And you might as well start getting used to the idea—either that or become a vegetarian. For the OPA stated that, after the first of the year, meat is going to be rationed on the point system. So are some other unspecified things.

The point system of rationing will be applied following issuance of War Ration Book No. 2 sometime early next month. This ration book will be different from the War Ration Book No. 1, with which citizens are buying sugar and coffee.

How It Works. Here's how the new system is going to work. The new rationing book will contain four pages of blue stamps and four pages of red stamps. These stamps will be lettered and numbered. The numbers will indicate the point value of the stamp. The numbers are 8, 5, 2 and 1.

When rationing begins under the new system, point values will be assigned to various products. The public will be allowed to buy a certain number of points' worth of a rationed product per ration period.

In the meat rationing program, for instance, certain meats will be very scarce and others reasonably plentiful. It will take more points to buy the scarce meats than it will to buy the plentiful meats.

Cereal Serves as Illustration. The OPA, in explaining the system, carefully used using meat as an example. It was explained that the point value of various meats had not been assigned. The agency didn't want to get people confused by giving fictitious values to a product which is to be rationed.

Instead, the OPA illustrated by using cereal—a product which is not on the list of potentially short foods. Suppose, the OPA said, that it became desirable to ration cereal.

Point values would be assigned to different types of cereal. For instance, if corn flakes were plentiful, they might be given a point value of 1. If bran flakes were scarce, they would be given a value of 11 points. Other cereals might be valued this way: Wheat flakes, 2 points; oatmeal, 4 points; grits, 8 points.

When you went to buy cereal for the month you could use up all points on one of the pages in your book as you saw fit. You could buy the scarce bran flakes four times and have 4 points left over to spend on other types of cereal. Or you could buy the plentiful corn flakes 48 from a "bureaucratic desire for a short-cut through coercion that in the end will be proving going the long way around."

He added that "compelling men to work where they do not desire would strip the worker of his dignity as an individual and reduce him to the status of a serf."

Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway System, said: "Eighty-five per cent of the increase in the Nation's total freight traffic since Pearl Harbor has been handled by the railroads. The remaining 15 per cent of this increase has been divided between the highway, waterway, airway and pipeline carriers."

Paying tribute to Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, Mr. Norris said "has the sincere respect and confidence of every railroad officer I know."

"The resulting teamwork between the ODT and the railroads has been a major factor in the latter's contribution to the war effort," he added.

But Mr. Norris warned that unless the railroads could get the cars, locomotives, rails and maintenance materials they need, "we may encounter difficulties in moving all of next year's traffic efficiently and promptly."

G. W. Smoker Hears Willkie's Kin Praise U. S. Way of Life

Capt. Paul Pihl Tells Football Banquet of 'Round-World Trip

After a 31,000-mile trip around the war-torn globe, the "American way of life" took on a "new and greater significance," Capt. Paul E. Pihl, naval officer who accompanied Wendell Willkie, his brother-in-law, on his recent flight, told more than 400 students and alumni of George Washington University last night at the annual presentation of monograms and numerals to varsity and freshmen football teams.

"After observing the dirt, disease, hunger and poverty common to such a large portion of the globe," Capt. Pihl said, "I was impressed upon my return to America with the fact that we are singularly blessed under a system of free enterprise, conducted under a democratic form of government."

"The Allies," he continued, "cannot afford to ease up on the job we have ahead of us until it is finished. The Russians have placed before us a challenge in the intensity, seriousness and magnitude of their fight against Hitler."

Pacific Battle Described. Capt. Charles W. Fox, recently returned from naval action in the Pacific, also spoke to the gathering at the Wardman Park Hotel, where the Tuffy Leemans Trophy, awarded to the football team's outstanding player, was presented to Albert Romasco, senior end from Monesson, Pa.

The trophy, presented for the first time last year, was donated by J. Foster Hagan in memory of his daughter, Mary Ann Massey Hagan, who, until her death at the age of 7, was a devoted follower of the Colman team and an admirer of Tuffy Leemans, former G. W. football star.

Capt. Fox, who served as a procurement officer and also was in charge of decoding on one of the Navy's aircraft carriers during the battle of the Solomon, gave a descriptive account of his task force from the time it left its base until after its engagement with the Japanese near Guadalcanal Island.

Reports on Survey. Speaking before the Alexandria Rotary Club, Mr. Scott reported that a recent survey by a Government committee on distribution of supplies revealed that this area will consume between November 1 of this year and next May 1 about 71,000,000 gallons of gasoline, 6,000,000 gallons of kerosene, 94,000,000 gallons of light fuel oil and 24,000,000 gallons of heavy fuel oil.

Mr. Scott reported that the Alexandria terminal of the Sinclair pipe line is expected to be ready by January and will bring in 19,000,000 gallons of oil a month. Other oil may be shipped by barge from Richmond as soon as the Plantation pipe line to that point is completed, he added.

Urges Central Agency. Discussing other phases of the oil situation, Mr. Scott said that one difficulty results from the fact that there is no central Government agency to handle fuel problems and that Petroleum Co-ordinator Jones has no actual power to act, being permitted only to make suggestions on which the agencies may act.

Mr. Scott described as other disturbing factors the ruling of the Office of Defense Transportation banning use of tankcars for distances of less than 200 miles and the Maritime Commission order forbidding the use of barges to transport oil south.

Complications of the oil-rationing system and the amount of detail work involved in handling of coupons by drivers is likely to slow up delivery further, Mr. Scott said.

The oil-rationing system was explained at the meeting by Dr. D. Kirk, fuel oil co-ordinator for the Alexandria War Price and Rationing Board.

Bulk Oil Terminals Urged to Simplify Distribution Here

Heating Expert Reports On Needs for Area at Alexandria Meeting

A plan for the use in the Washington area of bulk terminals, centralized points from which fuel could more easily be transported to distributors, was described today as a possible hope for improving the local oil shortage by Lester Scott, director of the heating division of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association and co-ordinator for about 100 local fuel oil dealers.

One of the difficulties with the present oil situation, he pointed out, is not so much that there is not enough oil in the East, but transport facilities are needed to get it to the distributors.

Reports on Survey. Speaking before the Alexandria Rotary Club, Mr. Scott reported that a recent survey by a Government committee on distribution of supplies revealed that this area will consume between November 1 of this year and next May 1 about 71,000,000 gallons of gasoline, 6,000,000 gallons of kerosene, 94,000,000 gallons of light fuel oil and 24,000,000 gallons of heavy fuel oil.

Single-Day Holiday In Prospect for U. S. Agencies Christmas

Millions of Dollars From Savings Ready As Sales Boom Although Government workers will get a holiday Christmas, there will be no extra time off either for Christmas eve on Thursday, nor Saturday, the day after Christmas, according to reliable indications today.

High officials, it is understood, have reached the conclusion that there should be a Christmas vacation for one day, Friday. But on account of the war, activities of the big Government headquarters here, it is believed, should not be stilled either on Thursday preceding, nor Saturday after Christmas. Formal notification to Government workers to this effect may be expected shortly.

A cheerful development today was the distribution by 22 banks in Washington and vicinity of about $5,000,000 in Christmas savings money to about 70,000 people. Much of this probably will find its way into the already mounting Christmas trade, as people do their gift buying as soon as possible after getting the cash in hand.

Travel restrictions this year apparently were being tightened on Washingtonians day by day, as additional Government departments and agencies placed a ban on travel by public conveyances between December 15 and January 15. Most of the big agencies, it was learned, have issued orders forbidding their employees to travel by train or bus during that period.

On the other hand there probably will be an influx of men from the armed forces coming home for the holidays here. Secretary of War Stimson recently ordered that more than 10 per cent of the men of any post could be let off on leave by public conveyances between December 15 and January 15. Most of the big agencies, it was learned, have issued orders forbidding their employees to travel by train or bus during that period.

People who expect to have their presents delivered on time to their boys in camps and naval establishments in this country should hurry and mail immediately. Formerly, he pointed out, the date for final mailing here to insure delivery was December 20, but he said, it would be "absolutely futile" to wait this year until December 20 and expect packages to be delivered in time for Christmas.

There has been some evidence of an increase in November over November last year, but it is still not enough. Revenues in November, he pointed out, were far ahead of last November. Out-of-door lighting, which has been a feature of past Christmases not only in the downtown section but also in certain residential business districts, will be greatly curtailed this year, a survey showed.

The Potomac Electric Power Co. and the big department stores all have agreed to forgo their elaborate building front electrical displays, it was learned. Decorations for the most part will be confined to window displays and indoor presentation of merchandise and appropriate trimmings. All this is in line with requests from the Office of Civilian Defense. No final decision had been arrived at today as to the traditional outdoor Christmas tree celebration, where in the past the President of the United States has turned on the lights, signaling Christmas eve for the Nation. President Roosevelt himself has interposed no personal objection.

Christmas trade at department stores has been on a substantial increase for several weeks, according to reports of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond on local stores. With the increase in the population here due to the traditional outdoor Christmas tree celebration, where in the past the President of the United States has turned on the lights, signaling Christmas eve for the Nation. President Roosevelt himself has interposed no personal objection.

Gov. Saltonstall was called upon to appoint a three-man committee of a similar to the Senate Rubber Committee to study the question of public safety in buildings. The request, prompted by the nightclub fire, came from the Executive Committee of the Boston Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Massachusetts Association of Architects.

Stork Defies Blackout To Visit Home of Arlington Woman

The Arlington County Fire Co. No. 4 had an emergency call to the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Dumm, Jr., 1762 North Troy street, during the blackout last night. Mrs. Dumm was about to become a mother. Just as the ambulance arrived, however, the lights went on, and Mr. Dumm took his wife to a hospital himself.

Two Arlington County drivers, Robert J. Burns, 2601 South Sixteenth street, and H. N. Pemberton, 3012 Columbia road, each were fined $5 and costs for leaving their cars parked with lights on. Both sentences were suspended.

Walter McDorman, a brakeman on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, suffered a possible hip fracture when he fell from a freight car during the alarm. He was taken to Alexandria Hospital.

A housewife solves a problem. An Alexandria housewife, alone in her home during the blackout and prohibited by her physician from using the stairs, neatly solved the problem of extinguishing lights left burning on another floor of her home.

She tied the front door key to a string, and when the block warden passed by, lowered the key from a front bedroom window. The warden found the key in the dark, entered the house and turned out the lights.

Some confusion was caused in Belle Haven in Fairfax County when a siren stuck and residents mistook it for the all-clear signal. Traffic Stream Criticized. The constant stream of traffic entering Alexandria from Fairfax County drew censure from Chief Air Raid Warden Bernard Padgett of Alexandria.

Mr. Padgett said the cars, which he was not stopped until they reached the Alexandria City limits, would have been an "excellent" way of drawing the attention of enemy planes to the city. In Montgomery County, the Silver Spring police failed to turn off the street lights immediately. However, they were turned off before the all-clear sounded.

Eighteen girls, comprising the new operations staff of the county council, were about to be sworn in when the blackout started. They immediately took their posts and the ceremonies were resumed when the alarm ended. The girls were trained under the supervision of Fred W. Tuemmler, technical adviser to the County Civilian Defense Council.

J. Robert Sherwood, Prince Georges County civilian defense director, said the blackout was "very much of a surprise." There were very few violations, Mr. Sherwood said, with warrants being issued in only one or two cases.

Henderson Clarifies Statement Against Gas Rationing Critics OPA Chief Denies He Called Opponents 'Ignorant, Traitorous'

Price Administrator Henderson has denied he called opponents of gasoline rationing "ignorant or traitorous." Mr. Henderson said yesterday that his deep regret "the firm impression he had created, that he made the remark in a recent radio speech. "That impression is incorrect," he said in a statement, "but since it came from my own words I owe and sincerely offer my apology to all honest opponents."

The facts are these: In my radio talk last Thursday I said a Government survey showed certain organized groups were misleading the American people. All through the broadcast my remarks were directed at this group and not toward local individuals and members of Congress. A reading of the radio script will satisfy anybody on this. Moreover, I had knowledge that Nazi propaganda, broadcast over short-wave by a traitorous American, had sought to influence representation to rationing."

Representative Hebert, Democrat of Louisiana, commenting on Mr. Henderson's statement, said: "Mr. Henderson's statement indicates clearly that the American public has been misled by his office. In this instance he has demonstrated once again that he is not worthy of the confidence of the American public or the job which he holds."

I have carefully read his radio script which he now explains away. It is one of the most clever and most adroit pieces of vicious propaganda that has been perpetrated on the American public and as far as I am concerned there is one answer to it—resign."

51 Servicemen, 2 WAVES Killed in Night Club Fire BOSTON, Dec. 2.—The Coconut Grove Night Club fire Saturday night cost the lives of at least 51 servicemen and 2 WAVES, a compilation showed today.

Among the victims were 26 naval officers and men, 17 Army officers and men, 5 coast guardsmen and 3 marines. The WAVES were Helen V. Brooks of Winthrop and Grace E. Brown of Waltham, both recently inducted and scheduled to report for active duty in January.

In addition, an undetermined number of servicemen suffered injuries. The figures were released through the Army's 1st Service Command and the Chelsea Naval Hospital.

CIO-AFL Peace Plan Ready for Study by Joint Committee

Spokesmen of Murray Union Not Sanguine About Acceptance The outline of a peace plan, based on immediate merger of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and American Federation of Labor, has been drafted by the former and is ready for consideration by the joint committee from the two groups which once more is studying the possibility of a joint labor movement.

The existence of the tentative plan became known as the peace negotiations were reopened here yesterday after a three-year lapse, but whether the proposal actually was advanced and discussed was not certain. Informed CIO members were not sanguine about AFL acceptance of the arrangement, which would provide for the preservation of the entity of the constituent unions of each group, at least temporarily.

CIO Has Alternate Plan. They would have proportional representation on the executive board, and jurisdictional disputes would be worked out within the united organization. As an alternative, the CIO was reported ready to suggest continued negotiations, with the establishment, meanwhile, of a committee to mediate jurisdictional disputes, which were not adjusted by the joint committee would be arbitrated by the War Labor Board.

The joint committee is meeting at the White House. The conferees reported that the opening session was harmonious. Harry C. Bates, president of the Bricklayers' Union and chairman of the AFL Peace Committee, made this one-sentence announcement to newsmen at the end of a two-and-one-half-hour session yesterday: "We had a very harmonious meeting this afternoon and we will hold another tomorrow at 10."

Philip Murray, CIO president, added: "I subscribe." The conferees, apparently in an amiable frame of mind but dodging interrogation, left immediately. Daniel J. Tobin, general president of the AFL Teamsters' Union, dropped the casual comment that "we may have some news for you tomorrow," but whether he was indicating significant developments was purely speculative.

Scene of 1937 Party. The meeting was held on the neutral ground where the first peace negotiations were conducted in 1937, two years after the AFL-CIO split. Conversations got under way in a small uncarpeted parlor furnished only with essentials, a narrow table equipped with blotters, pads and pencils, and a few straight-backed chairs.

Representing the AFL, with Mr. Bates and Mr. Tobin, was William L. Hitchcock, president of the Carpenters. With Mr. Murray were R. J. Thomas, president of the Automobile Workers, and Julius Emspack of the Electrical Workers.

Parents Feared Klakring Lost Until Told of Sub Hero's Record

First News They Had Was of Son's Citation In Sinking Jap Ships Mr. Klakring's parents were as proud as punch of their son's record, but they refused to pose for photographs because: "This is his day. We don't want to take anything away from him."

They were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie S. Klakring, parents of Lt. Comdr. Thomas Burton Klakring, whose name rang through America as the skipper of a United States submarine that sank eight Japanese cargo ships and damaged four others off Japan's shores.

The 37-year-old sub commander, born and educated here, returned to sea last June, and until they received word of his feat and the news that he had been cited for the Navy Cross, his parents had been worried about him.

Letters Two Weeks Late. "We hadn't heard from him in some time," his mother said. "I usually can tell by the tone of his letters when he is going on patrol and according to my guess' of the time of his last departure, I thought we should have heard from him about two weeks ago."

The telephone in the Klakrings' neat white bungalow rang constantly as friends and neighbors called to congratulate them. However, Comdr. Klakring's father, a former Maryland National Guard captain and now commander of the Annapolis Minute Men company, did not celebrate the big news with a holiday. He was right on the job as clerk in a plumbing contractor's office.

Commenting on her son's report that the crew of his submarine was celebrating the sinking of the Japanese during the course of the patrol, Mrs. Klakring said, "I'll bet he and his crew were the first persons in the world ever to see a horse race through a periscope."

In Service About 12 Years. Comdr. Klakring has been in the submarine service "about 11 or 12 years," his parents said. They don't expect to see him for some time, but are going to his home at San Mateo, Calif. next week to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife.

Comdr. Klakring entered the Naval Academy in 1923 after attending Annapolis High School and graduating from St. John's College here. He is an accomplished pianist and was leader of the "Navy 10," Naval Academy orchestra, during his midshipman days.

"He was such a good pianist," his father said, "that the late George Gershwin once gave up his seat at the piano in New York to let Tom play for him. He and Mr. Gershwin were close friends."

Jeep-Driving Marine Finds Bomber-Riding Has Its Thrills, Too

Ex-Volunteer Fireman Just Naturally Gravitates To That Kind of Work

The following story was written by Technical Sgt. James W. Hurlbert of Arlington, Va., a Marine Corps combat correspondent at Guadalcanal, and was distributed by the Associated Press:

GUADALCANAL, Nov. 9 (Delayed).—The job of driving the "Press Club" jeep on Guadalcanal has its compensations. For Pvt. (First Class) Girolomo Grande, USMC, of Shrewsbury, Mass., it recently brought the opportunity to take part in a bomber attack on an enemy concentration area.

Pvt. Grande, a volunteer fireman in civilian life, naturally gravitated to jeep driving as an acceptable substitute for fire engine riding after he enlisted in the Marine Corps.

When he was assigned one morning to drive two correspondents to the airfield he learned that three planes instead of two were going on the bombing mission, and that there would be room for one more man in the third plane. He suggested that jeep driving might qualify a man for the rigors of bomber riding.

"It sure was exciting," he said when he got back.

"We flew over high and then each plane peeled off and dove on the target. We were going so fast I could not see my own plane's bombs crack, but I saw the one behind drop its load and it sure made some explosion.

"Say, I'd rather be in a plane than in a jeep any time."

The pilot walked over to the ship and dug out several bomb fragments that had peppered its belly after the low altitude run.

"On second thought, maybe I wouldn't," Grande added.

Grande is 20 and a native of Shrewsbury, where his parents, his wife and 1-year-old daughter live. He enlisted in the marines January 6, 1940, his 18th birthday.

Darlan Takes Over Chief of State Power In French Africa

Morocco Radio Says Admiral Has Set Up Imperial Council

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Admiral Jean Darlan, acting with the assertion that Marshal Petain is a prisoner of the Germans at Vichy, has taken over authority as chief of state in French Africa, it was announced last night from Morocco. The Morocco radio said Admiral Darlan, who is co-operating with the Allies, had set up an imperial council to advise him. This was announced after he had conferred with Auguste Nogues and Pierre Boisson, Governors General in Morocco and French West Africa, which embraces Dakar. Fighting French quarters in London, who still regard Admiral Darlan as a traitor to France because of his Vichy record, said they assumed his assumption of his new powers was in an effort to strengthen his political position.

Internal Revolt in France. Presumably it was his intention to set up a full-fledged French government in North and West Africa. As the one-time political heir to Marshal Petain, Admiral Darlan has contended all along that he was acting in the name of the marshal, who was unable to speak independently from Vichy.

Marshal Petain, however, according to Vichy broadcasts, has stripped Admiral Darlan of his authority as a minister and as his presumptive successor. The announcement from Morocco came as evidence grew of internal revolt in France, where rioting by hundreds of sullen workers at Toulon compelled authorities to drop their attempt to reopen the naval arsenal that was closed last Friday when French sailors scuttled the main fleet.

Toulon Shipyards Reopened. But orders, presumably from German officials, brought about reopening of Toulon's huge La Seyne shipyards, which were still enveloped by a thick pall of smoke from the hulks of the fleet and blasted oil tanks.

The Vichy radio itself described how French laborers first rioted Monday when German conquerors tried to make the arsenal resume activity, leading Vice Admiral Marquis to broadcast a notice that the gates "will be closed until further notice."

One London source expressed belief that Admiral Darlan planned to use the vital West African port, Dakar as a club over the Allies and predicted that its naval base would be neutralized until the admirals' purposes were achieved.

King in New York On Way to Capital

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada arrived in New York today to address a dinner meeting of the Pilgrims of the United States. His address, entitled "Defense of Common Liberties," will be broadcast over the Columbia network from 10:30 to 11 p.m.

It was announced in Ottawa last night that the Prime Minister would be a guest of President Roosevelt over the week end.

Secret U. S. Planes Called 'Enough to Make Angels Gasp'

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The United States has some secret new planes that are "enough to make the angels gasp," the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was told today.

Maj. Nathaniel P. Slesbee of the Army Air Forces explained in a paper prepared for a meeting of the society, that a score of new fighters, bombers and transports are under test. Many, he said, already have been flown, but are still on the secret list. In addition to the new designs, the air force has developed a method of making wholesale alterations in planes after manufacture. This is done in places called modification centers, of which he said there are dozens. They are not all at aircraft factories.

Make Quick Alterations. These centers make quick alterations demanded by battle conditions, such as, said Maj. Slesbee, installing different type guns, or refitting with a landing gear that will not crack up in desert fighting.

Such centers altered Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's planes for the bombing of Japan. They have painted planes a dusty pink for the Egyptian desert, and fitted others for Arctic regions. He said that the tail gun added to the Flying Fortress caught the Nips so by surprise that nearly 100 Japanese planes were downed before a single ship was able to get back to tell the others what was happening.

"As the war proceeds," he added, "there is no intimation what further surprises in the way of speedy alteration and adaptation are in store for the Axis."

Production Is Fluid. America is not building planes on a strictly mass production basis, but keeping the production fluid. Nevertheless, he said, there were present large-scale orders for planes in 1,000 and even 5,000 lots.

It is not generally realized, he declared, that most of the first-line military planes fighting today are the result of designs six years old. As examples he cited the German Messerschmitt ME-109, British Spitfire and Hurricane and American Curtiss Hawk P-36.

STAR CARRIER

Kyle Cantwell, who lives at Sandy Spring, Md., has been delivering The Star, under Distributor C. Leroy Thompson, for a year and a half. His route extends from Sandy Spring to Ashton, Md., and he has bought, from earnings made on his Star route, a motor scooter that makes the delivery of his 95 papers easier.

Kyle is greatly interested in sports of all kinds, particularly basketball.

When he isn't busy with school work or his Star business, he assists his mother, Mrs. J. H. Cantwell, in her general store at Sandy Spring. It is Kyle's ambition some day to manage the store for his mother.

gushed progenitors—the good Count Albert—established for him and for his contemporaries of the Hawk's brood a doctrine which retains a certain attraction even now. It reads: "My sons, cultivate piety; give no ear to evil counselors, never engage in unnecessary war, but when you are involved in war be strong and brave. Love peace even better than your own personal interests. Remember that the counts of Hapsburg did not attain their heights of reputation and glory by fraud, insolence and selfishness, but by courage and devotion to the public weal." Argentine Food

Current suggestions that neutral Argentina be given a share in the sale and shipment of its agricultural products to famine-stricken populations in areas recovered from the Axis by United Nations forces have diplomatic as well as economic implications.

A Second Warning

Many of our fire regulations today date from the Iroquois Theater disaster in Chicago in 1903. It can be taken for granted that the Coconut Grove tragedy in Boston will lead to a review of fire and building regulations in most of the municipalities in the country.

But sometimes these lessons go unheeded. About a year and a half ago three persons were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the White Court Apartments on O street. There were two separate investigations. A coroner's jury found there had been no criminal negligence, while a special committee appointed by the Commissioners placed the blame primarily on faulty construction and lax building inspecting.

It is revealing to discover now that the legislation, pushed so vigorously at the time, is still reposing in the Senate District Committee and that instead of seven fire escape inspectors—who inspect installation of all safety equipment, such as exits, lights, fire escapes, etc.—there are only three. The war has reduced the force of inspectors below what it was a year and a half ago, although statutory increases in the force were provided.

Corporation Counsel Keech has written to Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee asking for immediate consideration of the legislation and suggesting that at least two of its controversial features be eliminated, so that enactment can be expedited. One of these relates to installation of fire alarms connected directly with the Fire Department system, a suggestion that has been fought by some interests on the ground that the regulation would create a monopoly in alarm devices to be used. The other concerns fire escapes, difficult to provide under war restrictions. But even without these provisions, the legislation still would enable the Commissioners to modernize fire and building regulations, and if it is possible through regulations to increase the public safety in any degree, the necessary legislation should be completed now before another tragedy calls attention to the need.

The Hapsburgs

Whether it be spelled Hapsburg or Habsburg, the name of the royal and imperial family of Austria has returned to the news. An effort on the part of the Archduke Otto to participate in the organization of a so-called "Austrian Legion" to cooperate with United Nations forces has brought forth a storm of protest from representatives of European minorities to whom his pretensions to his father's dual throne and crown are offensive. The famous house to which he belongs has been "out of power" since April 2, 1919, and spokesmen for the Czechs, the Yugoslavs and the Poles agree in expressing the wish that it may remain so.

Mr. Ickes Wins Friends

It is not likely that Secretary Ickes has been making any special effort to win Republican friends and influence industrialists, but, purposefully or otherwise, he is enjoying a considerable measure of success. Some few months ago the relations between Mr. Ickes and the industrial world were anything but cordial. The same thing was true of his exchanges with most of the Republican party leaders. Then the Secretary of the Interior was designated as petroleum co-ordinator. He got to know the leading figures in the oil industry, and they got to know him.

Soon thereafter Mr. Ickes made a speech in Baltimore, in which he paid tribute to the oil men for the patriotic co-operation that he had received from them. Instead of the stiff compliments which might have been dictated by good taste, Mr. Ickes spoke with evident sincerity. And now a voice has been heard from in the oil industry. Echoing the sentiments of a great many of his associates, W. G. Skelly, president of the Skelly Oil Company, has appealed to the President to keep Mr. Ickes as petroleum co-ordinator. To remove Mr. Ickes as oil co-ordinator, he said, would be "a big loss to the industry and to the war effort." He's done a whale of a job." If that

Military Writer Says Russians May Force Germans to Retire To Gulf of Riga Line

By Maj. George Fielding Elliot. So far there has been some occasion to believe that the Russian offensive in the general Rzhev-Velikiye Luki region is in the nature of a holding attack, intended to prevent the Germans from shifting troops from North Russia southward to the Stalingrad area. Presuming, as still seems likely, that the latter is the Russian main effort, this view is consistent both with the facts as they are known and with sound military theory. The German high command attaches great importance to Rzhev and previously has made great sacrifices to hold that fortress. Should it give way, Vyazma, to the southwest, probably also would fall, bringing the Russians into possession of additional communication lines which would give them much greater freedom of action for further offensive actions in northern and central Russia. Specifically, the Russians then would be able to concentrate considerable forces in the direction of Leningrad without much fear of a German attack on their flanks.

New Wage Plan

Prospects for a pay raise for Government workers have brightened considerably in the past few days as the result of efforts of Senator Mead and Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee to work out a compromise that will satisfy all employe groups and end the conflict over the form the increase should take. The general overtime legislation sponsored by the administration, which would have benefited principally the "white collar" employes who are not compensated for extra work, has been shelved, and it now seems likely that a flat 20 per cent increase, applying up to a maximum of the first $2,900 of annual wages, will be proposed for all personnel. At the same time, the Saturday half-holiday law would be shelved for the duration of the war, permitting administrative officers to fix the work week at 48 hours if desired.

This arrangement, modeled somewhat along the lines of the cost-of-living bonus granted in the First World War, seems fair. It assures a sizable increase to employes who could not benefit by an overtime plan because of the manner in which their hours are regulated. Correspondingly, the thousands of departmental workers whose hours long have been in excess of the statutory 39-hour work week would be compensated for the additional time. Work for which the wage is fixed by boards or other authorities is not affected.

Pay legislation has been hanging fire for months, primarily because postal workers were dissatisfied with the two measures that have been proposed—one a straight overtime bill, and the other a combination bill providing for overtime or a 10 per cent increase for those to whom the overtime provision would not apply.

From all indications, the new compromise has a fair chance of passage if discussion is held to a minimum. Further controversy, however, can only spell defeat, with Congress so near the end of the session. This would be unfortunate, particularly where lower-bracket workers are concerned.

Horizon of New Hope

Yesterday's Star reported the discovery of a three-story apartment house within a few blocks of the Capitol, standing vacant and forlorn since August, 1941. At that time the purchaser, Uncle Sam, evicted the tenants, planning to convert the building to office use. Then it was found that the structure might not support the heavy files needed in a Government office. So the plan to use it for offices evidently was abandoned and the building was forgotten. Now that it has been found again perhaps it will be reconverted to an apartment house, providing thirty-eight housing units—a veritable gold mine in crowded Washington.

But why are Government files so heavy? The answer, of course, is that they are filled with questionnaires, weighted down with the sweat and tears of harassed citizens. And why are these questionnaires necessary? To give employment to those who send them out. And why must they be sent out? To give employment to those who store them away when they are returned. And why must they be stored away? Aye—perhaps we have something there! Perhaps Senator Byrd's committee, which yesterday began an investigation of questionnaires, may make a discovery that will benefit uncounted generations of taxpayers for years to come. Perhaps it is not necessary, after all, to store away the questionnaires. And if it is not necessary to store away the questionnaires, it may be unnecessary to hire people to store them away. And if it is unnecessary to hire people to store them away it may be unnecessary to hire people to send them out. And if it is unnecessary to hire people to send them out, the housing shortage, the office-space shortage, the shortage of tempers, the shortage of breath, the shortage of national unity—many, many shortages can be ended, and our people will march on to quick victory, unimpeded.

The Germans claim they are in the final phase of "a three-year war." Not only are they correct about the "finality" but this time their conquerors are going to see to it that they do not come popping up at intervals like the 17-year locusts and causing trouble to mankind in general.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"Dear Sir: "CHEVY CHASE, Md. In they flew, ready to wrest the bread from the smaller sparrows.

Our experience with starlings shows that, as a rule, they are not mean birds. There are, unfortunately, some exceptions. On the whole, they get along very well with other birds at feeding stations. Often in the fall and winter bands of them will leave the downtown areas and search far and wide over nearby Maryland and Virginia.

In recent years the increase in the number of feeding stations has been large. Fortunately such stations do not attract the starlings in such numbers as might be imagined. Nor with such regularity. The starling is a large and powerful bird, something like the blue jay in its air of independence. Instead of coming back to the place it has found food every day, it evidently prefers to seek for new fields.

This is a good thing, for the everyday standpoint of feeding the wintering birds, because if these large creatures came regularly, the cost of feeding would rise by leaps and bounds. Smaller birds would have to eat off the ground beneath the feeder. This is not so bad, from the birds' standpoint, because they do not mind it, but the observer who is setting up the free meal would miss the better sight of his favorites which he gets when they eat off the feeding shelf.

Starlings often seek shelter from rain and wind by going into feeding stations. There they merely perch on the food, often without eating any of it. We have watched them do this, and have marveled at their apparent lack of appetite. Or maybe it is a sickly starling which so seeks shelter.

Our correspondent's observations show very well what a lure bread is for starlings. Although it will seldom attract them so quickly, it always will do it. If a friend of birds does not wish to attract starlings, he or she should be very careful not to use slices of bread. Meat in any form, in fall and winter, will lure them.

In spring and summer the few starlings which remain here may bring their young for ground meat, but they will never be in sufficient numbers to cause much trouble. In the cold months meat will attract starlings in too great numbers. While there is not much likelihood that much meat will be used for this purpose from now on it is a good idea to keep in mind, especially by persons who do not like these birds.

We will never forget the time, when salmon was plentiful, and a platter of it had been placed on the porch for the cat. A band of a dozen starlings found it first, and were ringed around the plate, eating away, when suddenly the cat's head appeared over the porch floor. Such a fluttering of wings was seldom heard. It was difficult to tell which was frightened the most, the band of starlings or the cat.

Letters to the Editor

Tells Reasons Why Chapel Should Be Spared Unspoiled. In the Star of November 30 I read with nothing less than horror of the suggestion that the Chapel of Mount Vernon Seminary may be remodeled to become an office building of the United States Government.

I am a graduate of Mount Vernon Seminary and I was one of the alumni who contributed toward the $80,000 that went into the building of that chapel. The chapel is an exquisite piece of Colonial architecture, designed by a well-known architect, and every detail is simple and beautiful and fitting. There are many memorial gifts, among the most impressive being the fine-toned organ and the hand-wrought pulpit and chancel furniture. In the belfry hangs a bell, inscribed "For trinity, for liberty, for truth and beauty, ring ever, O bell."

The latter was a gift of appreciation in honor of Anne Seymour Ames, one-time librarian at the school, who made naught of a great physical affliction as she performed the arduous duties of chairman of the Chapel Committee. When the building was finished Miss Ames could "see" it only as her hands could touch its surfaces, but the look on her face when her bell rings is something unforgettable.

It was present on the chapel's first Christmas eve. Back of the chancel are great windows with panes of clear glass through which can be seen the tips of pine trees. Daylight turned to dusk, the chapel was unlighted, and just as darkness fell over the top of a tree outside there suddenly shone a great star, Christmas eve!

If it were imperative—few of us believe that it is—to sacrifice our beautiful school, none among us is disloyal enough to wish to withhold it, but surely, surely, with 33 acres of ground about it, it cannot be necessary to ruin that gem of a chapel so dear to so many of us. We are having world-wide examples of the ruthless defacement of what man has held dear. Is it possible that we, too, must sin against a source of spiritual strength and against physical beauty to build an office for which walls and a roof would suffice? FAITH BRADFORD.

Expresses Minorities' Objection To Austrian-Hapsburg Legion. The announcement of the creation of an Austrian legion led by Otto von Hapsburg has caused alarm and anxiety among Yugoslavs, Czechoslovaks, Poles and other members of the United Nations. For these people the name of Hapsburg is scarcely less abhorrent than the name of Hitler or Mussolini. The evil memories of the Hapsburg monarchy still live. To free itself from this apostolic imperial majesty, Serbia sacrificed a quarter of its inhabitants. Even now, in spite of the losses they have sustained in fighting the Axis, the Chetniks and the soldiers of Gen. Draza Mihailovitch in the mountains in Serbia, Bosnia, Montenegro, from Ohrid to Trieste, would fight as bitterly and as desperately against the Austrian Legion led or sponsored by a Hapsburg as they are doing against Hitler. They would

Dissent From Conception Of Nation as "Cosmic Cow."

To the Editor of The Star: According to the starry-eyed lads, who evidently regard the New Deal as perpetual, America is destined to become a glorified, cosmic cow, supplying mankind with milk or perchance a utopian hen, sheltering countless beings beneath her broad, beautiful wings.

It must be a pleasant pastime to picture benevolent Bossy chewing the cud of contentment in universal New Deal pastures during the postwar period. But let us dismiss the dreams and face the tragic fact that the destitute are crowding our own doorstep. According to the President, a third of the American people are undernourished and underfed.

We should do all within reason to assist the stricken in foreign lands, but always remember that charity begins at home and that Uncle Sam's purse unfortunately cannot be stretched "ad infinitum." EDMUND K. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Class War Seen in New Income Cut

New $25,000 Proviso Might Bring Balking On Additional Powers

By DAVID LAWRENCE. President Roosevelt apparently has decided to reopen and intensify class warfare in America. He has disclosed that he is going to press for the enactment of a law not only leveling off salaries in America, but cutting down the incomes of all men, women and children who have estates netting them more than $25,000 a year.

David Lawrence.

Just what this reduction of incomes has to do with winning the war or just why America's most successful and talented citizens must be subjected to socialistic experiments in the midst of war, diverting energies and time that should be devoted to the production of goods and vital services needed in the war effort, is not explained by the President.

But it was not a chance comment that came from the President in his press conference. What he said must represent a deliberate policy of carrying on his feud against America's successful businessmen, because Mr. Roosevelt has been well aware of the furor which has resulted from the curtailment of his subordinates, who, in disregard of the plain wishes of Congress, wrote into the anti-inflation law a power that doesn't exist by mandate of law.

The Office of Economic Stabilization was supposed to prevent inflation, but in fixing limits it has not only reduced pre-war salaries, but it has actually increased thereby the profits of corporations while denying individuals the salaries to which they have thought themselves entitled by contract with their employers.

Restricts Deductions. Not only this, but the President's order undertakes to nullify the revenue laws passed by Congress, denying the customary deductions to any citizen who may have more than $25,000 left after paying the taxes that have been figured on his gross income "undiminished by any deductions."

In the new phase of the controversy the President concedes that congressional action will be necessary, but he has stated heretofore that when Congress doesn't pass a law he wants he can act anyway. So it is possible, using the same specious reasoning, for the Executive to proclaim any day that all investments are equally subject to his anti-inflation policy. He has just as much authority to do that as to reduce pre-war salaries and call it a step to prevent inflation.

The President made a rather peculiar defense of his policy in his conference with the press. He said the reduction of the salaries of executives was necessary to prevent national bankruptcy if we lose the war. Nobody in Washington, not even the President, thinks we are going to lose the war, and nobody with any knowledge of the statistics would make such a statement because if 100 per cent of all incomes above $25,000 a year from salaries and investments were confiscated by the Government it wouldn't pay for three days of the war effort nor would it pay off even seven-tenths of 1 per cent of the national debt as it stands today.

Opens Old Wounds. What Mr. Roosevelt chooses to overlook is that his administration has encouraged the biggest wave of extravagance and the biggest inflation of payrolls in all history and that he has done this by insisting that "the social gains of the New Deal" must be preserved.

Since this kind of inequality and inconsistency is known to all students of Government fiscal affairs, it should not be surprising now if there is opened up again in midst of war all the wounds of class warfare which began in 1933 with the President's attack on the successful and thrifty and which has furnished the principal ammunition for the demagogues ever since.

The tragedy of the President's blunder—for it is a blunder of major proportions and will hurt the morale of the war effort rather than help it—is that Congress, which is inclined to be rebellious anyway, will now refuse to grant any powers on any subject that are not specifically defined. The President this very week is being refused powers by the House Ways and Means Committee, because the distrust of his administration, which is showing up in Capitol Hill, is increasing rather than diminishing.

Might Embolden Isolationists. Members of Congress are saying the executive agencies merely want more and more power over the citizenry and refuse to be specific. This means that important powers really needed in the war effort will be withheld.

Likewise, it will mean that, as the demand for socialization is intensified by the President, the isolationists will be given opportunities they never should be given. They will see in the administration's misuse of its war powers a plan to use post-war period for the enrichment of special groups and classes whose votes have been such an important part of the New Deal.

On the Record

Blitz Surrender Would Find Allies Unprepared for Post-War Chaos

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

In his last speech, Mr. Churchill warned against entertaining the idea that this will not be still a long and bloody struggle. This also is the consistent line taken by our own authorities.

However, a survey of the situation as it must appear through the eyes of Hitler and Mussolini indicates a different view of the war in the west by the autumn of 1943. And if it so appears to them, the war might easily end before then, for it is the habit of generals and politicians to anticipate events. Fighting for an already lost cause simply means an increase of ultimate disaster.

The public attitude regarding the length of the war appears to be: Let every one do his duty and fate will determine the outcome in due time. This is a good attitude. Such warnings are a wise hedge against inscrutable elements which may always occur in the course of so titanic a conflict.

But in reality the duration of the war is not chiefly a matter of destiny, but depends on planning. We can plan a military program, a production program and a shipping program aiming at victory in 1943, or we can plan for victory in '44 or '45. If we are planning for the latter victory we can make it difficult or impossible to win the earlier one.

So, for our political and military leadership, the length of the war is a matter of decision—taking account, always, of hazards. It is, for instance, a matter of decision whether we plan to strike the decisive blows before we have an army of 7,000,000 or more trained men. The larger the Army, the greater the amount of equipment that we must withhold from the theaters of war and retain here for training purposes.

Numbers No Longer Decisive. There is a widely held belief on the part of our Allies that an American army of from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 operating in Europe can deliver the decisive blow, and there are speculations as to why we want such prodigious reserves over here. It is perhaps true that we are still outnumbered by the Axis, but numbers are no longer the chief determining factor.

The success of the British 8th Army proved that. Strategic position and equipment, above all airpower, are what count now. Besides this, the quality of the troops is a primary factor. Russian, British, and American troops cannot be compared with Rumanians and Italians. Hitler has lost the cream of his shock troops and the average age of the German soldier, who three years ago was the astonishment of the world, is now much higher than even a year ago.

Presuming that we wish an early victory, we must not only make military preparations, but political ones as well. It is obvious that we no longer consider the Axis as a solid alliance. It is clear that since the fall of France there has been fundamental disagreement about strategy between the Italians and Hitler. The Axis military strategy, determined by Hitler as the dominant factor, has left Italy terribly exposed in Africa. Mr. Churchill made the most of this fact in his speech. Italian Fascism has already lost its war aims. When Mussolini entered the war he had every reason to fear a Hitler-dominated Europe, but he hoped to balance it off by a great empire in Africa. His speculations are in shambles, and now a German victory is anything but desirable to Italy, for in such a case Italy would be reduced to, at best, a fifth-rate power, and at worst a vassal state.

Italy's Survival Important. Thus the continued Italian resistance is only a matter of the Fascist regime, which obviously could not survive defeat and Mr. Churchill's reiterated "One man and one man alone and his regime" is the effective propaganda in Italy. If one can put oneself in the mind of the Italian general staff one can see that the wisest thing they could do would be to withdraw the Italian armies to Italy, protect the integrity of Italy herself and surrender to the Allies. For not only Allied promises, but common sense will not favor the weakening of Italy, as a nation, in Europe.

But what about Germany? If political warfare can hasten the end of the war by hastening Italian surrender, can it not also hasten German surrender? Our fundamental weakness there is that we have not, apparently, decided what to do with Germany in the event of our victory. So Goebbels and Hitler are able to stiffen the resistance of Germany by apocalyptic pictures of the ruin and dismemberment awaiting her. Stalin alone has stated that he does not intend to destroy the German nation, as a nation. He has also promised to destroy the Hitler army but not leave Germany completely disarmed, a situation, which, he said, would be "unadvisable."

Now, the consequence for the Germans must logically be either to continue the war to its apocalyptic catastrophe, or to turn hope toward Russia—unless our own attitude toward the future of Germany becomes clarified.

If we really foresee the possibility of victory next year, it is high time to make up our minds on the whole European question, and not postpone political thinking on the ground that we are in for a very long war. Perhaps we are not. And a Blitz surrender might find us as confused and unprepared as the Blitz war found us in the first place.

The Great Game of Politics

U. S. Should Be Ready With Post-War Policy, Such as Hull's, to Help Oppressed Nations

By FRANK R. KENT.

It is natural that the turn of the tide of war in our favor should actively stimulate discussion of post-war problems. Already our military conquests have imposed on us heavy political burdens connected with the care and control of civilian populations. It is easy to see that as we liberate more and more occupied territories these burdens will increase in weight and importance.

Frank R. Kent.

Our responsibilities of this nature are as great as they are unescapable. On the way in which we discharge them depends whether chaos, famine and disease can be averted from the millions of oppressed peoples whose freedom will be restored through the victory of the United Nations.

It is as clear that if these enfeebled countries are permitted to sink into a state of anarchy the effect will be very damaging to us as it is that they will do exactly that if we do not hold them up.

It therefore is sense to urge that we not be caught unprepared for the great salvage job that must follow liberation nor be without a well-thought-out, easily comprehensible policy on which to operate. Such a policy, so far as this nation is concerned, already exists. It was proclaimed in a speech last July by Secretary of State Hull. Brushing aside the loose utterances and muddy thinking on the subject, Mr. Hull then laid down a specific program of continuous co-operation among the United Nations after victory.

Full Responsibility. This involved not only the sending of food, clothing and medicines to the countries ravaged by war but aid in the rehabilitation of their agriculture and industry. It involved further the creation of another international organization along the lines of the League of Nations, the establishment of a permanent court of international justice and the removal of all economic barriers to free trade.

Finally, it involved not only protective care of the devastated nations until such time as they could, themselves, establish stable governments, but a continued "surveillance" over the aggressor nations until they had given "convincing proof that they have repudiated and abandoned the monstrous philosophy of superior race and conquest by force and have embraced loyally basic principles of peaceful processes."

In brief, he proposed that the United States assume its full share of the responsibility for the rehabilitation and stabilization of the world. It was a bold, concrete and practical program, wholly free from sappy sentimentalism, and its strong endorsement, previous to delivery, by the President gave it weight as accepted American post-war policy.

Mr. Roosevelt's recent appointment of Gov. Herbert Lehman is one step toward implementing that policy. The way in which our forces are propping the civil government and helping the people in French Africa is another. As the end approaches, the principles laid down by Mr. Hull will appear more and more basic. It would be fine if they were more generally understood and more widely accepted.

All of which makes this a particularly untimely moment for the ardent advocates of Vice President Wallace to begin again to beat their breasts over his cloudy common-sense one-quarter-of-a-milk-a-day address, on the basis of which they, rather absurdly, tried to elevate him to the Lincoln level.

Correction Is Made. In this connection a correction is due the Office of War Information. Recently it sent out a pamphlet entitled "Toward New Horizons," dealing with post-war problems and containing the speeches of Messrs. Wallace, Welles, Winant and Milo Perkins.

The absence of Mr. Hull's speech, which had far overshadowed all these in importance, was commented on in this column and the suggestion was made that it had been sidetracked by New Deal influences, always hostile to him. This was a mistake.

The pamphlet was originally issued last summer. Mr. Hull's speech was not included because the pamphlet was in the hands of the printer before Mr. Hull spoke. His speech was subsequently printed by the OWI, widely circulated here, and very widely indeed abroad, through Robert Sherwood, director of the Overseas Service.

I herewith acquit the OWI of any wish to disparage Mr. Hull and regret the error, which, however, was made not unnatural by the redistribution at this late date of the Wallace pamphlet. Entirely aside from the OWI and its pamphlets, the friends of Mr. Wallace have reached the point where they curiously resent any one not taking him as seriously as they take him themselves.

Recently one of them admitted that his speech was vague and then vigorously defended it on the ground that vagueness was necessary and desirable, which certainly is a new idea. Actually, the effort to keep that Wallace speech alive has come to the funny stage, and the strain is severe.

Prospects of Peace Are Declared Remote Despite Improved Military Position of Allies

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Military and civilian policy makers in Washington are not nearly so sanguine about the prospects of victory and peace by the end of 1943 as are some of the British leaders.

There is no question that the Allied position has been vastly improved in the last six weeks. On the other hand, the Axis position in Africa and to a certain extent in Europe has deteriorated. But while our definite progress is hailed as being of great assistance for future operations, responsible men in the highest quarters are emphatic in saying that we still have a long way to go before we reach our ultimate goal.

This opinion is, of course, based on military factors only. It does not take into consideration the psychological or political factor such as an open rebellion against the Fascist regime in Italy or the conceivable overthrow of Hitler and his gang in Germany, with a new group of leaders attempting to make a peace favorable for the Reich.

The Russian offensive is regarded here as an indication that, in spite of heavy punishment, the Soviet forces retain their excellent spirit. They have been able to gather sufficient reinforcements to start an offensive before the Nazis actually managed to enter their winter quarters. It is hoped that the present attempt of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko to encircle the Axis forces in the Stalingrad area will be successful. The Germans did not suspect that the Russians still had so many men available and they also were taken in by Russian propaganda which complained so bitterly that the U. S. S. R. was not receiving war materials and supplies promised by the United States.

Nazi Were Outwitted. The Nazi high command knew how much war material had been destroyed or captured in the 1942 German offensive and figured that the Russian supplies must be very low; hence, it decided to withdraw its troops to the east wall.

It is now obvious that the quantities of war material—tanks, planes and artillery—sent from this country by various routes have been so large that, despite the losses of the last four months and the destruction of the principal Russian industrial centers, the Soviet armies have been able to hit the Germans with unexpected and unbelievable strength. The grumblings of the Russians and their utmost secrecy concerning their military strength have paid good dividends.

But in spite of these spectacular Russian successes the situation on the eastern front does not justify the general optimism in America and Great Britain that the Russians have smashed or are smashing the Axis forces. Even if we accept the figures announced from Moscow regarding enemy losses, there are at least 150 Axis divisions in Russia in strong and well-prepared positions.

In Africa we have been very successful so far and our armies have incurred insignificant losses because of the great assistance given us by the French. The fight over Tunisia will be somewhat more bitter. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson is moving cautiously, principally because the supply lines are long and he does not want to risk a battle without being sure he has all the war material he needs.

Preliminary Operation. Communications would be easy through the many ports dotting the region between Algiers and Bizerte. Ports such as Bougie, Bone and Philippeville would make ideal supply bases if it were not for the continuous Axis submarine and air attacks on our warships and merchantmen.

Allied losses are said to have been serious. The naval commander in the Mediterranean does not want to risk more ships than is absolutely necessary when supplies can be routed with lesser danger by the longer land route with excellent roads and adequate railways.

Even if some units of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa Corps manage to get into Eastern Tunisia before the 1st Army occupies Bizerte and Tunis, no serious setback is expected. Although severe fighting is expected it is anticipated in responsible military quarters here that we will be in complete possession of Tunisia before Christmas.

However, occupation of the entire North African coast is considered only a preliminary operation. Spectacular as the whole campaign has been, from a military point of view, the fighting has amounted to only a few skirmishes. Even if the Allies defeat the Axis forces in Tunisia, it would be unwise to conclude that the invasion of Europe will be an easy operation. Or, for that matter, that it will occur shortly.

Our lines of supply for the hundreds of thousands of men needed for a large scale operation against Europe must cross submarine-infested waters. And our shipping problem continues to be the principal difficulty of the war.

forget it and accept the Hull speech, in which there isn't a single vague word, as real American postwar policy. It is just as high-minded and humanitarian as Mr. Wallace's—and a lot more sensible.

McLemore—

Navy Obstacle Course Is Rough on Scribe

ATHENS, Ga.—If you have a nice family plot and no one to put in it, I'm available.

Henry McLemore.

You can get me cheap, too, because I'm too worn out and miserable to haggle over prices. I have just finished the obstacle course at the Navy Pre-Flight School here, and while attendants are setting up the oxygen tent and warming the adrenalin, I'll give you the harrowing details.

The obstacle course which is used to condition the youngsters who'll soon be wearing gold wings is 608 yards long and is laid out over a terrain that a war hog would have trouble traveling over, even with the use of an alpenstock. There are 30 obstacles or death traps on the course and each one presents a problem that would blanch the face of a circus daredevil.

I was only joking when I said I would like to have a try at the course, but Lt. Charley Burton and Lt. Buddy Savage took me seriously and before I could protest I was at the course and in charge of an officer whose name I forget but who I am sure was the stand-in for Warden Lawes at Sing Sing.

He suggested that I put on a track suit. I held out for a suit of armor but that not being available I insisted on wearing a double-breasted blue serge and a black tie. I at least wanted to look good when I passed on.

You start the course at a desk. The official timer sits at the desk, flanked by a pair of gentlemen whose duty it is, I am sure, to notify the next kid and handle any calls from the insurance company.

The first obstacle is comparatively simple, being nothing more than a log hurdle that a Grand National Steeplechase entry wouldn't jump without a blindfold and a fire underneath him. You no sooner get over this than you must jump into a deep pit and try to get out. I was in this pit so long I began growing a coat like a mole. I finally got out. And, after that everything was a blur. But not such a blur that I can't remember a log cabin I got into, a sort of log cabin. Anyway it was a tremendous pile of logs and you either had to go through or over them.

Somehow I managed to get myself squarely in the middle of this log jam. Faint cries of encouragement reached my ears, but I was stuck. I was in this rustic setting for so long that termites began eyeing me thinking I was a log. This must be the end, I thought, as I finally escaped but it was only the beginning. A bear trap loomed up—a huge stockade of logs.

"Don't let him get in there," I heard someone cry as I struggled up the sides. "He'll be in there forever." The State will have to feed him.

As I toppled into the trap I prayed that a bear would really be in there and put me out of my misery. But there was no bear and I had to carry on to the rope swing, a device by which you are supposed to swing yourself over a rocky ravine and land on a soft cushion of boulders.

"Thank goodness I was smart enough to pay that little extra for double indemnity," I said to myself as I swung out over the canyon. Many of the McLemores that has swung by a rope, but there was always someone there to cut them down. I was out there alone, dangling over a man-made Grand Canyon, so I let loose. I would have leaped even if the entire Japanese army has been waiting for me below.

That was my last obstacle. Tenderly they lifted me from the rocks and laid me out on the Georgia soil from whence I had sprung, while scouting parties went in search of my blue serge suit. The vest they found in the bear trap. One trousers leg still fluttered from the log pile. My tie whipped from a splinter on the wall climb.

When consciousness returned I asked the timekeeper how I had done.

"A new record," he announced. "You started on Friday and reached here on Saturday. You are the only competitor we have had to use a calendar on."

You might be interested to know that the average time of the Pre-Flight cadets on the course is under five minutes, and that the record is three minutes 32 seconds. I didn't meet the chap who set the record. I didn't ask but I am sure they have sent him off to the Smithsonian Institution to hang beside Eli Whitney's cotton gin.

Third French Sub Fleeing Toulon Reaches Africa

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Dec. 2.—The sea-going 1379-ton French submarine Le Giorieux joined a sister ship, the Casabianca, and the smaller Marsouin in Allied North African ports yesterday as the only units of the French fleet at Toulon to escape capture, destruction or internment.

The Morocco radio announced last night the arrival of the Le Giorieux at Oran after a voyage which had taken it to Valencia, Spain. The submarine stopped there less than 24 hours.

The Casabianca and the Marsouin arrived at Algiers Monday, where they put themselves under the orders of Admiral Jean Darlan. A fourth submarine, the Iris, which escaped from Toulon was interned by Spanish authorities at Barcelona when it failed to leave in 24 hours, the normal period allowed a belligerent ship in a neutral port under international law.

"It's good to have you home for Christmas, son"

This Christmas is going to be brighter for thousands of mothers because their sons in the service came home for the holidays.

Other mothers will be traveling by train to visit their boys in camp.

Soldiers, sailors, marines... parents, wives, sweethearts... all must use our regular trains... for Uncle Sam says, holiday or no holiday, we can't run extra trains or sections for civilian travel. That means crowded trains, at best.

So... before you plan to travel by train during the holidays, ask yourself this question: "Which is most important, my trip or theirs?"

If your answer is "theirs, of course"... and if you postpone your trip, you will know that you have helped someone to say: "It's good to have you home for Christmas, son."

Douglas Started 'The Robe' As 5,000-Word Story

DR. LLOYD C. DOUGLAS. —Star Staff Photo.

A 65-year-old man who once preached to Washington congregations from the pulpit of a Lutheran church sat in a Mayflower Hotel suite and talked of his rise to fame as author of "The Magnificent Obsession" and the background of that new book, "The Robe," which has taken a place with the No. 1 best sellers.

Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas arrived yesterday with his portable typewriter, the baggage he would no more go without than his pants, because to him writing in longhand is drudgery. "People have been awful good to that book," he said of "The Robe." And then he told of how it happened to be written.

For a long time he had wanted to write some unconventional equivalent to the life of Christ. It was firmly entrenched in the future files of his mind, where he files everything that is worth filing because what is had he doesn't want to remember. He hoped by this work to show the impact of Christ on the people who knew Him.

From Saleswoman's Letter.
A little more than two years ago a saleswoman in a Canton (Ohio) department store whom he never had met wrote him a letter asking if he ever had heard the story about what became of the robe the Roman soldiers gambled for at the base of the cross. He had heard that story, but he hadn't written about it, so he got busy.

He had in mind a magazine story and set out to write about it in words. The first thing he knew it had gotten away from him and he started to make it a novel.

"The Robe," he confessed, involved a lot of research and many problems. He knew the Holy Land from his many years as a ministerial student, but when it came to making the characters in the book step down from cathedral windows—"that was something else."

"I decided to streamline all dialogue," he related. "It would be foolish to present the modern reading public with a book made up of tiresome old Roman verbs. When I began, I thought I was pretty well acquainted with the daily lives of the Romans, but I soon found out that was another breed of cats. So in order to make it readable I had to show extreme diligence and draw some fine lines."

Publisher Wrote "Finis."
It was the publishers who put an end to "The Robe."

"There was no place to quit in writing this book," the author assured. "It could have gone on indefinitely."

Dr. Douglas has another confession to make. The first part of "The Robe" is a Roman map of Hitler's Europe, developed along the same line, but in another century.

The partly bald, rotund author thinks the secret of writing success is a full wastebasket, which results from lots of revision. He goes to work daily at 8:30 a.m. and quits at 2:30 p.m.—promptly, no matter if I'm in the middle of a paragraph.

His goal in the way of production is about 1,000 words a day. This is in addition to the part of the previous day's output which he finds on rereading is so rough it needs smoothing. Revision is the first task each day, and then creative writing follows.

Dr. Douglas left the ministry in May, 1933, four years after "The Magnificent Obsession" was published, because correspondence resulting from the book had grown so heavy that he had to quit the pulpit in order to attend to it. He settled first in Massachusetts, where he could be near his publisher, and then, when his novels began to appear in the movies, he moved to California to learn something about the picture business.

Lectures Tonight.
Last night he lectured at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets N.W. He will appear there again at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow, using the general theme "For Impatient Idealists."

As he looks back on the years when he served as pastor of the Lutheran Memorial Church here from 1908-11, he thinks members of his flock "were pretty good sports."

"They must have put up with a lot," he said. "I don't think my ministry here did much to speed up human revolution. I did what I thought was expected of me, but if I were to tackle the job 25 years later, I suppose I'd do a better job."

Dr. Douglas always will have a tender feeling for Washington, he assured. It was here during his ministry that he sold his first commercial article, a short piece for which Ladies' Home Journal paid him $5.

"I was just one of many who contributed these articles and got the same amount," he recalled, "but I was mighty proud of it."

He chuckled to himself. "I jolly well needed it then."

Arroyo Is Honored At Military Academy

By the Associated Press.
WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 2.—President Carlos A. Arroyo del Rio of Ecuador said yesterday that President Roosevelt's magnificent wartime job may be better understood after seeing the backing he has in the Military Academy.

He expressed assurance that with the welding of the civilian element in the United States as exemplified by Mr. Roosevelt, and the military element as represented by West Point, America will win the war and the peace that follows.

The Ecuadorian chief executive, greeted by a 21-gun salute upon his arrival here, was met by Major Gen. Francis B. Wilby, superintendent of the Military Academy. Later he dined with 17 other high-ranking officers of the institution.

President Arroyo marked his four-hour visit with a toast "to the illustrious President of the United States."

Navy's Job in Pacific Will Become More Difficult, Nimitz Says

D. C. Officer Among 21 Receiving Medals From Admiral at Sub Base

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 2.—The job ahead for the Navy in the Pacific will mount in difficulty as it moves forward into areas more strongly held by the enemy," Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said yesterday, but "our efforts in the past year have inspired the entire fleet with a dauntless spirit which gives me full confidence in ultimate victory."
The commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet presented a presentation of medals to 21 officers and men at the submarine base.
"It is a pleasure to present awards to this particular group as the first year of the war comes to a close," he said. "Submarines and air units have been the spearheads of our early efforts to push the enemy back and to establish stepping stones for our advance."
"We in the Pacific Fleet were greatly cheered by the successes of our submarines in destroying enemy shipping, much of it within sight of his principal harbors. Similarly, the courage and tireless devotion of the air arm has been a powerful stimulus to the fleet."

Many Officers Being Trained.
"I am mindful of the complex task this war has imposed on trained personnel. This is true particularly of officers of the submarine service. While carrying on highly successful battles in distant waters against a resolute enemy, they have had to train thousands of officers and men to man new construction.
"As an example, I mention Lt. Jack R. Crutchfield, who is to receive the Silver Star Medal. A new submarine to which he was attached as diving officer withstood three separate and severe depth-charge attacks largely because of his enterprise and tireless energy in training all personnel in the submerged ship control party.
"I especially commend the work of three flying officers. They are Capt. P. P. Sherman, commanding officer of the (aircraft carrier) Wasp when she was lost by enemy action in the South Pacific; Lt. Comdr. Wallace M. Beakley, who commanded the Wasp's air group, and Lt. Harold H. Larsen, commander of Torpedo Squadron 8.
"Capt. Sherman was largely responsible for the excellent planning of air support which made possible the complete success of our initial occupation of the Solomon Islands last August.
"Above Tulagi for Eight Hours.
"It was Lt. Comdr. Beakley who co-ordinated and supervised the execution of air support in these amphibious operations. He remained on station in the air above Tulagi for eight hours until the success of our efforts was assured.
"The unquenchable fighting spirit which Torpedo Squadron 8 displayed in its attack on Japanese carriers at Midway has since brought much misery to the Japs in the South Pacific.
"For the past three months this unit of veterans has been shore-based on Guadalcanal under the able guidance of Lt. Larsen. They have made 40 successful attacks on enemy shipping and contributed in an important degree to our major victories off Savo Island November 12-15.
"Capt. Sherman, whose home is at Melrose, Mass., and Comdr. Beakley of Vineland, N. J., were among nine to whom Nimitz awarded Navy Crosses, the former being cited additionally for directing his ship in pursuit of Japanese forces retiring from the Solomons area August 25.
D. C. Officer Gets Cross.
Others to receive the crosses included:
Lt. Comdr. Harry H. McIlhenny, Washington, D. C., commanding officer of a destroyer which forced a Japanese submarine to surface with a depth charge and then destroyed it by gunfire.
Lt. Comdr. Thomas B. Klakring, Annapolis, Md., submarine commander, whose craft sank eight enemy ships off the coast of Japan and damaged four others.
Lt. Larsen of Birmingham, Ala., the torpedo squadron commander, cited particularly for scoring a direct hit on a Japanese cruiser in the Solomons August 24.
Lt. Robert A. Divine, Fresno, Calif., and Lt. Corwin F. Morgan, Gainesville, Fla., for torpedoing a Jap cruiser August 24, and Lt. Robert E. Ries, St. Louis, for participating in the same attack in which Lt. Larsen was credited with torpedoing the cruiser.

Silver Stars were presented to these other officers and enlisted men:
Lt. Herman J. Kossler, Portsmouth, Va., for valuable assistance in fire control aboard a submarine, resulting in a highly successful war patrol during which 51,000 tons of enemy shipping were sunk.
Seaman Donald M. Smith, Asheville, N. C., an anti-aircraft gunner aboard the carrier Yorktown, who, although wounded in the battle of Midway, kept his gun firing after most of the other members of his gun crew had been killed.

Pilot Gets D. F. C.
Jewell H. Field, Paducah, Ky., a patrol plane pilot, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. Reid detected and tracked an enemy task force 100 miles off Midway last June 3 despite the presence nearby of Japanese aircraft.
Navy and Marine Corps medals were presented to:
Lt. John E. Shepherd, 3d, Charlottesville, Va., who as gunnery officer of a submarine, had his crew so trained that they sank an enemy destroyer within 4 minutes after sighting it.
Lt. (j. g.) Edward S. Parks, Atlanta, Ga., deck officer aboard the same submarine.
Lt. (j. g.) Hugh C. Van Roosen, Newton, Mass., another submarine deck officer, who brought his ship to bear when an enemy submarine was sighted and thus enabled the American craft to deliver a fatal attack.

Shipfitter Stanley Thomas, Port Kent, Me., who braved enemy strafing and bombing attacks at Pearl Harbor December 7 to swim to an injured Navy officer and keep him afloat until rescued by a small boat.

All America is glad to Share the MEAT

Spread your share of meat over the week—
Make the most of it nutritionally

10 lbs. limit FOR A FAMILY OF FOUR
(As available)
Typical week's supply of restricted meats for family of 4, based on 2 1/2 lbs. per week per adolescent or adult.
PLUS NONRESTRICTED MEATS:
(As available)
Oxtails, bacon squares, tongue, pork feet, liver sausage and the Variety Meats—liver, sweetbreads, kidneys, brains, tripe and hearts; also poultry and fish.

Meats shown—(left to right)—Shoulder lamb roast (2 lbs.), beef hot roast (2 1/2 lbs.), pork tenderloin (1 1/4 lbs.), sliced bacon (1/2 lb.), lamb stew (1 1/2 lbs.), veal chops (1 lb.), ground beef (1 1/4 lbs.). Your meat-man can suggest other assortments of available meats.

Why we must share
The Foods Requirement Committee of the War Production Board has asked civilian consumers to limit their use of meat to 2 1/2 pounds of meat per person per week—on a voluntary basis. Why? The answer is simple.
The meat packing industry, now serving three customers—the American armed forces, our fighting allies and the domestic civilian population—has converted from normal peacetime operations to an all-out effort for victory.
The Army, Navy, and Lend-lease come first. For victory, civilians must share what is left. Patriotic citizens prefer to follow the American way—of choosing to share. The "Share the Meat" Program is based on the honor system; it is a voluntary plan.

AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE, Chicago

Only a strong people under the best of nutritive conditions can win the war and rebuild a war-torn world.
For good nutrition it universally is recognized that meat should be eaten at least once a day.

Meat is man's outstanding protein food. In addition to its complete high-quality proteins, meat supplies valuable amounts of the B vitamins—thiamine, riboflavin and niacin—as well as the necessary minerals, iron, copper and phosphorus.

To make sure that our fighters and our allies get the meat they must have, the government is asking civilians to limit their meat consumption voluntarily to 2 1/2 lbs. per week for each adult or child over 12; 1 1/2 lbs. for each child of 6 to 12; 3/4 lb. for each child under 6 years of age.

You have a moral contract with 128 million other Americans not in uniform to give them an equal chance at the available meat supply.

Here are simple ways to stay within your allotment and still keep the good nutrition and good flavor of "meat on the table."

1. "Manage your meat." Distribute it over the week. Your meat-man will help you plan meat and sausage selections.
2. Learn more cuts of meat—learn to make delicious dishes out of available cuts, even if you haven't served them before.
3. Use more nonrestricted meats (as available) including the Variety Meats—liver, sweetbreads, kidneys, brains, tripe and hearts. Learn how to prepare them deliciously for rounding out meals each week for growing children—and grown-ups as well.
4. Spread the good nutrition and flavor of meat by combining with such foods as cereals, rice, noodles, dumplings, macaroni, spaghetti, potatoes and other vegetables.
5. Plan leftovers carefully for use in such dishes as stew, hash, croquettes, soufflés and chop suey.
6. Remember meat goes further when cooked at moderate, even temperatures.
7. Send for the booklets shown below.

THESE BOOKLETS WILL HELP YOU
1. "32 Tested Meat Recipes"—Step-by-step recipes and complete menus.
2. New Edition of "Meat Buying Guide for Thrifty Meals"—Purse size—48 page handbook of more than 80 meat cuts. What to ask for, how to prepare, what to serve with them and easy ways to plan meals for good nutrition.
FOR BOTH BOOKS, send 5¢ in coin to AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE, Dept. 10, Lock Box No. 1133, Chicago, Illinois.

Membership Clause Denied Union for Powder Plant Strike

WLB Imposes Penalty For First Time, Citing Minor Issues in Case

By OLIVER MCKEE.
Because it called a serious strike in an Illinois powder plant "over comparatively minor issues" with thoroughly irresponsible disregard of its national obligation, the War Labor Board today for the first time deprived a labor union of an established maintenance-of-membership clause in its contract.

By unanimous decision, the board denied the request of Local 22574 of the Chemical Workers' Union (AFL) for a maintenance-of-membership clause in a new contract with the East Alton (Ill.) Manufacturing Co., similar to that in the 1941 agreement.

If the union convinces the WLB of its "good faith and responsibility," after a six-month probationary period, the board stated, it will be granted the usual voluntary maintenance provision, with a 15-day "escape" clause.

Members of the Chemical Workers local union went on strike September 8, returning to work three days later at the request of William H. Davis, WLB chairman, and William Green, AFL president.

Closed Down Plant.
The walkout resulted in the closing down of the adjoining plant of the Western Cartridge Co., throwing more than 10,000 workers into idleness.

In its action today, the board followed the unanimous recommendations of its panel in the case. The panel consisted of Mark Howe, public member; F. J. Madden, employer representative, and William J. Gallagher, labor member.

"Although the panel is convinced that the company is by no means blameless for its highly unsatisfactory labor relations, it remains the undeniable fact that the local union, with thoroughly irresponsible disregard of its national obligations, called a serious strike over comparatively small issues," the panel said.

"If the panel were convinced of the whole-hearted repentance of the union for its violation of labor's pledge to the President, it might feel that the company's persistently anti-union attitude would make an immediate grant of union maintenance the surest guarantee of stability of relationship.

Not Convinced, However.
"Not being convinced of the local union's present responsibility, it seems advisable to leave the matter open."

Suggesting the six-month probationary period, the panel recommended that the company be ordered to do nothing during the probationary period to take advantage of the failure of the union to obtain a maintenance of membership clause in its contract at this time.

Action on the request of the union for a wage increase will be postponed.

Rejecting a company proposal for a penalty clause permitting it to collect a fine of $1 from each union member for every day he participated in a strike, the War Labor & Laughlin Steel Corp. to conform to the provisions of the board's United States Steel decision in negotiating its agreement with the United Steelworkers of America, CIO.

Specifically, the board, under this formula, approved a general wage increase of 5 1/2 cents an hour, retroactive to February 15, and ordered the inclusion of a maintenance of membership clause, permitting employees 15 days from November 23 in which to withdraw from the union if they so desire. It also ordered the incorporation in the contract of a provision for a check off of union dues.

Four plants and 30,000 workers are affected by today's order. Meanwhile, the War Labor Board directed Mr. Davis to seek an explanation from counsel for Montgomery Ward & Co. of a CIO union charge that the company had insisted on inserting in an agreement with the union a statement that the agreement was arrived at "under duress."

Samuel Wolchok, president of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees, telegraphed the protest. He said the provision demanded by the company "nullifies the purpose and intent of the directive order and the President's expressed order that the parties enter into a contract without further delay."

"The board recently ordered the company and the union to sign a contract including a union maintenance clause. The company said it considered such an order illegal and would not comply except under orders of the President 'as commander in chief in time of war.' The President subsequently so ordered the company to comply.

4 of 7 Amendments Pass in Maryland, Final Returns Show

Juvenile Court, Gifts, Publication Proposals Are Defeated

By the Associated Press.
 ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 2.—Final returns in November's general election have been announced by State Secretary Thomas Elmo Jones subject to official certification tomorrow by the State Board of Canvases.

Four of seven proposed State constitutional amendments were approved, the report showed, including: Authorization of $1,000 per year salaries for State legislators; authorization of the General Assembly to standardize fees for clerks and registers of wills; making it mandatory for one judge of the Third Judicial Circuit to be from Harford County, and permitting the State Roads Commission to condemn immediately needed property, with condemnation subject to court review.

Defeated amendments were those which would have: Authorized the establishment of Juvenile Courts as courts of record and have raised the age of jurisdiction from 16 to 18; reduced the number of required publications for constitutional amendments, and taken from the Legislature the authority to approve gifts and bequests of religious sects, orders and denominations.

Final figures in all contests were: Legislative salaries—61,340 for; 53,995 against.
 Condemnation procedures—54,618 for; 47,686 against.
 Court fees—64,369 for; 40,855 against.
 Harford judge—57,990 for; 40,855 against.
 Juvenile Courts—38,674 for; 67,367 against.
 Publication requirements—48,243 for; 50,239 against.
 Gifts—$1,145 for; 53,995 against.

They are included in an additional list of 47 American soldiers, sailors, civilian seamen and ambulance drivers reported held by the Germans, Italians and Japanese.

Maj. Houston, whose wife lives at Dundalk, is interned at Stalag VIII B, the name and number of a German prison camp. The Baltimore seamen, interned at another camp, Marla Gmlag Nord, are: James Edward Akins, Charles Frederick Blockston, Joseph Carl Rose and John Joseph Seate.

Among the prisoners listed were 12 Army officers and 5 enlisted men, 1 officer and 1 Navy enlisted man, 24 members of the American merchant marine and 4 members of the American Field Service, which is a voluntary organization operating as ambulance drivers with the armies of the United Nations.

Gas Rationing Violators Face Maryland Hearings

By the Associated Press.
 BALTIMORE, Dec. 2.—The first of 17 gasoline station dealers accused of flagrant violations of rationing regulations were called before State Office of Price Administration officials today for a series of administrative hearings.

The OPA said the hearings would determine whether any of the dealers would be granted future supplies of gasoline. The operators have been charged with accepting ration coupons illegally.

At the same time, Risque W. Plummer, chief attorney of the Baltimore Rent Division, said several landlords would face Federal Court proceedings next week for violating rent regulations. He added that the rent office was prepared to ask for indictments against landlords who refused to obey regulations.

J. William Eggleston, rationing officer, said at the same time that fuel oil ration books had been distributed to most homes in Maryland, estimating that a total of 278,000 such books would be sent out. Most Maryland householders should have their coupons by the end of the week, Mr. Eggleston added.

Referring to stories that the people of Genoa greeted the King and Queen with cries of "Peace, peace" on their visit to the bombed city, Mussolini said "only one woman in Genoa cried 'peace,' and she was one of the wealthy bourgeoisie."

He said there had not been a single case of sabotage nor instance of anti-war demonstrations in Italy.

"Political and territorial war objectives have lost in value," he declared. "Eternal values are at stake. It is a matter of to be or not to be."

After his speech the party-uniformed members of the Fascist Council of Corporations passed a vote of "unshakable confidence in ultimate victory."

The press was barred from the session, an Axis broadcast account said, and the speech by Mussolini was carried by radio to Italian people who gathered in homes and restaurants and in little knots outside shops where they could hear the broadcast.

ALLIES HAMMER AT AXIS BASES—Allied troops were reported today still driving (1) to set up a wedge between Tunis and Bizerte, while another force was reported to have cut the Tunisian coastal road near Gabes. This severed the Axis "escape corridor" to Tripoli (2). The Axis rushed reinforcements to Tunisia by air (black lines, 3) from Sicily. Allied planes based at Malta struck (arrows, 4) at Bizerte, Tunis and Trapani.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Continuing their recent broad advance, grain prices today rose 1 to almost 2 cents a bushel, with rye futures again in the lead.

Wheat, corn and rye quotations were around top levels for the past two months in some cases. Cash corn was the highest in more than three months.

Buying came from mills, industrial users of corn and dealers covering previous short sales in the rye pit. Record farm and industrial consumption of corn and belief that war developments may lead to re-increased traffic in domestic grains stimulated buying.

Wheat closed 1/2-1 1/2 cents higher than yesterday, December, $1.26 1/2; May, $1.31 1/2; corn, 1-1/2 higher, 1 1/2-1/2 up; rye, 1 1/2-1/2 higher; soybeans, 1/2-1/2 lower.

Mill buying of wheat expanded materially in late dealings and flour business was reported active in some markets. Large Eastern chain bakeries, small independent users and jobbers, as well as Government agencies were reported in the market for about 500,000 barrels of flour.

Volga and the Don River to the west, Russian forces were reported continuing their crowding operations, trying to cut off and destroy by piece the remnants of the vast army that Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock deployed in the area more than three months ago.

Here the Red Air Force came into play. The communique reported it had shot 20 tri-motored German Junkers transport planes out of the air yesterday and then had raided airbases to destroy 30 more.

"The enemy has been attempting to bring up supplies and war materials with transport planes," the communique said. "By attacking the far west of Stalingrad by Russian columns previously had cut Axis rail and road communications. Destruction of the flying freighters adds to the harassment of the invaders in the Don loop."

Soviet units repelled attacks in the factory area of Stalingrad, the communique said, and killed 300 of the enemy.

The war bulletin tallied more than 6,000 invaders killed in the day's fighting.

Electric Production Takes Drop From Last Week's Record

Output is still 12.8 per cent greater than last year's figure.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Electric power production in the week ended November 29, 1942, was 12.8 per cent greater than the like period of 1941, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Output this week stood at 3,766,381,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 3,340,000 kilowatt hours for the week ended October 26, 1941, a year ago the total was 3,339,364,000.

The Southern States led the major geographic divisions in percentage advances over 1941 with a 29 per cent increase. The Pacific Coast was next in line with a gain of 20 per cent.

Demand Broadens And Stocks Push Up Fractions to Point

Some 'Peace Shares' Are Prominent in Rally; 500,000-Share Day

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A further decline in tax selling worked in the stock market's favor today and on some broadening of demand in the late proceedings many leaders pushed ahead fractions to a round point.

The day's transfers totaled about 500,000 shares. International Harvester and Oliver Farm each rose a point or so to new highs for the year.

General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, United States Rubber, Anaconda, American Can, Allied Chemical and Johns Manville.

Rails and utilities showed minor changes with Santa Fe doing a little better than other carriers.

Coca-Cola and Douglas Aircraft failed to generate much recovery power after early declines of a point.

United States Governments were mostly inactive on the stock exchange and over the counter as the drive to sell $9,000,000 of new obligations moved steadily ahead on all fronts.

Demand for low to medium priced issues grew heavier at the start of the final hour in today's bond market, resulting in a fair number of gains of small fractions to a point.

The general corporate list was fairly steady.

Blackout Test Takes Even OCD By Surprise

Only 28 Violations Reported by Police; Results Are 'Spotty'

Washington's first total surprise blackout, the time for which was set and kept secret by Army authorities, caught most civilian defense officials and the public unaware last night, but produced only 28 cases of blackout violations to be presented to the corporation counsel for prosecution.

Police said today that, in addition to the cases presented for prosecution, only 22 warnings have been issued to blackout violators as a result of last night's test.

Two persons arrested last night and charged with breaking blackout rules were released today after posting bond. Hyman Gurewitz, 58, of 6022 Fifth street, N.W., posted $25 bond to insure his appearance in Police Court Tuesday on a charge of auto light violation. Ruth Falkerson, 20, of 410 Cedar street N.W., gave a $5 bond and elected to forfeit.

Results Called Spotty. Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of District civilian defense, said the blackout, though "spotty," was a satisfactory performance.

Street lights on several main streets blazed nearly nine minutes after the warning signal and there were a few glaring instances where street owners particularly had been caught completely off guard. But civilian defense officials considered that "for a bad night and a complete surprise" the blackout was fairly well carried out.

Col. Bolles said "95 per cent of the organization worked effectively" but warned: "If you need a 10-foot rope and you get a rope 9 feet 11 inches long, it isn't long enough." The system must be made perfect, he said.

Street Lights Problem. The executive civilian defense director said he would renew his recommendation that the turning off of street lights be transferred to the air-raid wardens, a system he said has worked effectively in New York and Philadelphia. Street lights here are now extinguished during blackouts by selected policemen.

That the blackout test, the first here in more than two months, came as a complete surprise to many civilian defense officials was emphasized this morning by Charles Stober, aide to Civilian Defense Co-ordinator John Russell Young.

The Commissioners late yesterday adopted the usual order for a blackout, but left the time blank. The time, Mr. Stober said, was determined by Brig. Gen. John T. Lewis, commander of the military district of Washington.

Large Crowds on Street. When the public warning sounded at 8:22 p.m. streets were crowded with early evening traffic and several civilian defense meetings, including a gathering of deputy wardens, were in session.

At the National Catholic School of Social Service, Conrad Van Hyck, director of civilian war assistance, was preparing to deliver a civilian defense talk to District members of the American Association of Social Workers.

The test lasted 27 minutes, with the sirens sounding in the all-clear at 8:49 p.m. The yellow signal was flashed at 7:55 and the blue at 8:13.

The blackout was the first held under regulations issued October 15 providing that civilian defense officials in this area shall seek permission for all test blackouts from the commander of the Military District of Washington rather than from Third Region Civilian Defense officials as previously.

In most private houses, lights went out or shades were pulled promptly when the sirens sounded. Scattered lights, however, were visible in many sections of the city long after the blackout began.

In several cases, it was reported, night watchmen assigned to extinguish store and sign lights were caught by surprise and were slow in cutting off the electricity.

At a shoe repair establishment on Eleventh street where a large neon advertising sign depicts a shoe walking, the shoe kept right on walking for about eight minutes after the red signal was given. It was until police and air raid wardens finally found a way of extinguishing the light.

Some Street Lights On. Officials touring during the blackout said they noticed that street lights on the east side of Upper Sixteenth street, on Connecticut avenue, Constitution avenue and Seventeenth between Corcoran street and Constitution avenue were still on for "a number of minutes" after the sirens had ceased to sound the public warning.

Making an observation tour together were Co-ordinator Young, Commissioner Guy Mason, Police Supt. Maj. Edward Kelly and Col. Bolles. The group began the inspection trip at the thirteenth police precinct, Ninth and U streets N.W., after the red signal was given.

For part of the tour, the officials were joined by Gen. Lewis and Col. William F. Rehm, G-3 officer under Gen. Lewis.

Wardens and auxiliary policemen on the street during the blackout reported bright automobile lights shed streams of light for blocks on the wet streets. Auxiliary policemen stopped a number of emergency vehicles with a request for them to dim their lights, but remarked that headlamp coverings which the District has been in process of getting for many months would be a much more effective problem.

James A. Toomey, 66, Law Professor at Georgetown U., Dies

Courts Honor Lawyer Who Practiced Here More Than 40 Years

James A. Toomey, 66, attorney here for more than 40 years and professor at Georgetown University Law School, died early this morning at Georgetown University Hospital after a brief illness. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

The death of Mr. Toomey was announced to Chief Justice Edward Eicher of District Court this morning by Dr. Hugh J. Fegan, vice dean of the law school. The court ordered entry of adjournment out of respect to the lawyer's memory. Similar adjournments were made in the United States Court of Appeals and the Municipal Court.

A native of Washington, Mr. Toomey was graduated from St. John's College and Georgetown College. In 1897 he received a master's degree from Georgetown and then joined the editorial staff of the New York American. Later he became assistant editor of Printers Ink, a New York advertising periodical.

During this time he was studying at New York University and returned to Georgetown to get his law degree in 1901.

Counsel in Milk Tests. Admitted immediately to the bars of the Supreme Court and the various District courts, Mr. Toomey served as counsel in the milk-test case in 1908 and represented the steel erectors in the Knickerbocker Theater cases following its disaster in 1922. He became an assistant professor at Georgetown in 1914 and in 1931 was given a full professorship. During his teaching there, which continued until his death, he specialized in negotiable instruments, evidence and creditors' rights.

Mr. Toomey had also been professor of medical jurisprudence at the Georgetown University Medical School since 1937.

The lawyer was a member of the American Bar Association, the Association of the Calver Club and the Association of Oldest Inhabitants. He had served several times as a delegate of Georgetown to the meetings of the Association of American Law Schools in Chicago.

Had Offices With Brother. Mr. Toomey lived with his family at 1875 Taylor street. He maintained law offices with his brother, Vincent Toomey, a member of the Catholic University law school faculty.

Besides his brother, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marion O. Toomey; two daughters, Miss Marion C. Toomey, also a lawyer, and Miss Helen E. Toomey; a son, Lt. James C. Toomey, now on active duty in the Pacific area, and two sisters, Miss Helen J. Toomey and Miss Geraldine C. Toomey of Washington.

tation of the blackout laws having left it up to the individual passenger whether to remain on the bus or seek shelter. Most passengers apparently preferred to remain on board rather than to stumble around in the rain, although shelters were available in the immediate vicinity.

One bus driver said he understood he was not supposed to empty his bus unless a warden led the passengers to a shelter area.

Though caught by surprise, civilian defense workers were on duty. Controller Herbert Friede said that when the yellow signal which went to deputy controllers on the District's seven control centers and the actual sounding of the public warning on the red signal, full staffs and extra workers appeared at the control centers. It takes about 40 people to operate a single control center.

Messenger Injured. Police reported few blackout incidents. A volunteer OCD messenger, Hugh Hansen, 25, of 1721 Riggs place N.W., suffered cuts on the head and possible concussion when the bicycle he was riding in the darkness struck a street car loading platform on Connecticut avenue near Q street N.W. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

The secrecy surrounding the calling of the blackout test was reflected in the Southeast section of the city in the case of a police station clerk who was caught in the middle of a bath by the warning and had to dress hurriedly and dash to duty.

A policeman at the third precinct station, it was reported, apparently thought the warning was for an actual air raid and arrived at the station equipped with tooth brush, shaving cream and other toilet articles, prepared for a long stay.

News Leaks Out. A police radio dispatcher reported that as he was driving to the Capitol Theater at 7:40 p.m. an unidentified pedestrian at Twelfth and H streets N.W. shouted: "There's going to be a blackout tonight." Fifteen minutes later the first yellow signal for the test was flashed.

Taxi Men Study All-Hour Plan Of Group Riding To Report to PUC On Problems Involved Prior to Hearing

Probably leading up to an eventual public hearing on the matter, the Public Utilities Commission has named taxi industry spokesmen to report on specific problems in connection with the proposal to introduce full, 24-hour "group taxi riding" within the District as soon as practicable.

Most taxicab spokesmen at an informal day-long conference yesterday at the District Building requested an increase in rates for group riding over the present emergency 20-cent "pick up" service. Representatives of the Office of Price Administration and Office of Defense Transportation attended the parley.

At the end of the conversations the PUC asked Harry Davis of the Diamond Cabs to report on uniform rates which might be applicable to all factions of the industry in instituting the group service. John R. Royer, jr., representing the Combined Cab Service, a group of fleet operators, and Edwin A. Glenn of United Taxicab Drivers, Inc., cab union, were named on the Davis committee to make such a study.

Check on Cabs Operating. Two other committees also were named. Mr. Glenn was requested to make a searching study into the hours of operation of taxis at present. The PUC also requested a study of dual records, including receipts given to passengers, to be added to the present manifests. He said the receipts would aid customers who lose articles in remembering what cabs they hired, and the manifests could be checked against records of drivers who tamper with them to take lengthy personal drives on holidays or week ends.

Group Rates Suggested. The Combined Cab Service suggested a group rate of 25, 35, 45 and 55 cents per person for zones of basic zones beyond a single regular fare passenger. This plan was endorsed by Mr. Davis for Diamond Cabs, but later in the day Diamond spokesmen said they were interested in a "little confused" on what they would agree to a zone of 25, 30, 35 and 40 cents per passenger.

Mr. Glenn proposed that group riding not disturb the present passenger rate of 30, 50, 70 and 90 cents, if the driver is allowed to charge "for service rendered" when carrying more than one person at a time group riding.

Sergt. Joseph Harrington, police cab inspector, suggested that a system of dual records, including receipts given to passengers, be added to the present manifests. He said the receipts would aid customers who lose articles in remembering what cabs they hired, and the manifests could be checked against records of drivers who tamper with them to take lengthy personal drives on holidays or week ends.

A gas station manager in downtown Washington pointed out that some motorists were unaware his station or other stations had been selected as official inspection centers. He added that a customer had promised to draw up several signs to be placed where passing motorists can see them.

Complaints, it appeared, came more from the station operators than the motorists. Most prevalent of these was the lack of forms due from the local OPA office. Some stations apparently had failed to send representatives to an instruction rally at the interior department auditorium Monday night.

A few motorists with plates numbered above 10,000 appeared at stations yesterday and were accommodated only because business was slow. It is hoped, however, that national sign follow-up dates set by the OPA office.

The complete list of the 287 stations last appeared in The Star on Sunday.

One of the largest crowds yesterday—and attendants there reported a similar rush today—was at the big Standard Oil station at Second street and Constitution avenue N.W.

Harry D. Kirk, fuel oil administrator, said all applications which had reached the board before last Saturday would be considered by the end of the week and the coupons for the applicants would be issued over the week end.

The Alexandria War Price and Rationing Board will be closed all day tomorrow in order to give members of the staff a chance to finish processing fuel oil applications.

Smoother Operation Of Tire Inspection Program Reported

First-Day Checkups Fall Below Expectations In Washington Area

Smoother operation of the District tire inspection program was reported at filling stations and garages here today following reports of "first day headaches" at a number of the 287 stations which began inspections yesterday.

The number of motorists bringing their cars to the stations for inspection here will have only 12 cars had been checked yesterday but blamed that on a late start. Forms required in the inspection were not available until 11 a.m., he said.

At another large station, the service manager said the public was a "little confused" on what they had to do, but reported things were going smoothly this morning.

A gas station manager in downtown Washington pointed out that some motorists were unaware his station or other stations had been selected as official inspection centers. He added that a customer had promised to draw up several signs to be placed where passing motorists can see them.

Complaints, it appeared, came more from the station operators than the motorists. Most prevalent of these was the lack of forms due from the local OPA office. Some stations apparently had failed to send representatives to an instruction rally at the interior department auditorium Monday night.

A few motorists with plates numbered above 10,000 appeared at stations yesterday and were accommodated only because business was slow. It is hoped, however, that national sign follow-up dates set by the OPA office.

The complete list of the 287 stations last appeared in The Star on Sunday.

One of the largest crowds yesterday—and attendants there reported a similar rush today—was at the big Standard Oil station at Second street and Constitution avenue N.W.

Harry D. Kirk, fuel oil administrator, said all applications which had reached the board before last Saturday would be considered by the end of the week and the coupons for the applicants would be issued over the week end.

The Alexandria War Price and Rationing Board will be closed all day tomorrow in order to give members of the staff a chance to finish processing fuel oil applications.

Harry D. Kirk, fuel oil administrator, said all applications which had reached the board before last Saturday would be considered by the end of the week and the coupons for the applicants would be issued over the week end.

Army Burns Up Wood on Airport Site, Yet Refuses to Sell It

Maryland Farmers Unable to Buy Cords of Timber Wasted Each Day

While the Government has appealed to citizens to use coal or wood for heating purposes in order to conserve oil, farmers living near the new Camp Springs (Md.) airport are unable to purchase it.

In a drive through the project, which is under construction on some 15,000 acres between Meadows and Camp Springs, a reporter of The Star yesterday witnessed the burning of between 10 and 15 cords of firewood on two of the runways.

Harry Moore, who raises tobacco at nearby Melwood, said he had appealed to Representative Sasser, Democrat of Maryland, after trying unsuccessfully for three days several weeks ago to find an official on the airport property who would sell him some of the wood.

Efforts Refused. Mr. Sasser made an unsuccessful effort to reach Lt. Col. Eben Longfellow, in charge of the project at that time, by telephone. He was referred to an Army captain who told him curtly that the wood was not for sale. Mr. Sasser also has received complaints that small houses on the site were burned.

Maj. Howard D. Nottingham, now in charge, told a Star reporter he had no comment to make. Maj. Nottingham could not even be seen personally, but had to be called over the phone at the camp site. The location is being cleared and the buildings built by contractors.

Brother Also Refused. He added that his brother, Allen E. Moore, also lost three days from his work in attempting to buy wood from the airport.

In a speech before the House about a month ago, Mr. Sasser said the War Department had caused undue hardship to residents of the area by not notifying them sufficiently in advance of the department's intention to condemn their homes to make way for the airfield.

He added the War Department must have known about the project in sufficient time to give the residents adequate notice.

Wickard Studies Petition For Milk Price Increase

The petition of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association for a 2-cent-per-quart increase in the price of milk was before Secretary of Agriculture Wickard today, but there was no word from the department as to when action might be expected.

The Secretary may either grant a hearing on the application to determine if the increase is justified, or turn it down without further proceedings. It was indicated that some time will elapse before this decision is reached.

Milk prices have been raised recently in such important centers as St. Louis and Memphis, following hearings, and in some other sections there have been automatic increases that followed advances in the price of butter and skim milk. The ceiling price on butter will prevent further automatic increases, however.

Senate Vote Sought This Session on Bill For School Nurseries

Parent-Teacher Institute Calls on McCarran To Press Measure

More than 200 representatives of District Parent-Teacher Associations unanimously approved a resolution today urging Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee to seek an immediate vote on a bill providing for establishment of day nurseries in District public schools.

The resolution, passed at the second day's session of the sixth annual Parent-Teacher Institute at George Washington University's Hall of Government, was introduced by Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers following a speech by Mrs. Henry P. Chandler, chairman of the OCD Child Care and Protection Committee.

Mrs. Chandler said, "If any Senator dares to object to the District nursery school bill, then there should be pressure for him to change his mind by every citizen in the District."

Mrs. Chandler said the bill, which would open the public schools to children under 5 has been "swirling in a whirlpool" for two months since its passage by the House on September 28. She urged that pressure be exerted by all those who wish to see the bill passed before the present session of Congress ends.

In describing the acute need of nursery school to care for children of District working mothers, Mrs. Chandler said that St. Elizabeth's Hospital had reported to her committee that 62 mothers of small children would have to resign jobs unless adequate day child-care facilities were provided immediately.

The Polish leader arrived in Washington yesterday on an official visit, presumably to discuss Poland's part in the United Nations' war effort and take up questions concerning post-war rehabilitation of Poland.

Virginia Militia Receives 3,300 CCC Uniforms

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 2.—Adj. Gen. S. Gardner Waller announced yesterday that a shipment of 3,300 green uniforms, originally intended for use by the Civilian Conservation Corps, had been received by the State for distribution to Virginia Protective Force companies, beginning next week.

A memorandum went to unit commanders yesterday requesting measurements of the men. The uniform consists of belt, garrison cap, mackinaw coat, necktie, flannel shirt and serge trousers.

The uniform will be issued for field service and the lighter gray uniform will be reserved for dress and armory drill.

Wins Land Verdict. A United States District Court jury awarded Mrs. George Shirley Kernan $15,000 yesterday for approximately 85 acres of land condemned by the Federal Government for annexation to Fort Belvoir. The suit was filed after the Government deposited only $7,000 for the property.

Details of Bill Raising U. S. Pay 20% Revealed

All Efforts Planned For Passage Before End of Session

By J. A. O'LEARY. The text of the compromise wartime pay bill to give Government employees a straight 20 per cent raise for a possible 48-hour week, instead of time and a half for work in excess of 40 hours, was made public today by Senate leaders.

The measure was introduced by Majority Leader Barkley for Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York, who is out of the city, and brings the Senate program into line with the views of Chairman Ranspock of the House Civil Service Committee.

The bill is made retroactive to December 1, and every effort will be made to get it through before the old Congress expires January 3.

Highlights of Bill. Highlights of the measure are: It applies to all Government employees, but the 20 per cent increase will be calculated only on that part of a salary not in excess of $2,900.

It applies to all employees of the District Government covered by the Classification Act, but this leaves out policemen, firemen and school teachers. A separate bill giving policemen and firemen a wage increase of $300 a year has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Local school teachers would have been given an increase by the original general overtime bill, but that has been sidetracked, presumably because of fear it would encounter opposition from members of Congress who believe the present wage and hour standards for industry, involving premium pay above 40 hours, should be set aside during the war.

Department Heads Excluded. Heads of departments, elected officials and those groups whose pay is fixed from time to time by wage boards in States Government, including the District of Columbia, are excluded from the 20 per cent straight pay increase.

The bill contains a clause permitting adjustments to remove inequities in any agency where wage board and per annum employees are found to be receiving different pay for similar work.

The Senate Civil Service Committee probably will meet early next week to act on the bill, and Representative Ranspock said he would wait to let the Senate act first.

Text of Measure. The wartime Government is authorized by repealing the Saturday half-holiday law as long as this measure is in effect. The text of the bill follows:

"That this act shall apply to all civilian officers and employees of the United States Government, including Government-owned and controlled corporations, and to those employees of the District of Columbia municipal government who occupy positions subject to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended; Provided, That it shall not apply to (a) those whose wages are fixed and adjusted from time to time in accordance with prevailing rates by wage boards or similar administrative authority serving the same purpose, (b) elected officials and (c) heads of departments, independent establishments and agencies.

"Section 2. Employees subject to this act shall be paid additional compensation amounting to 20 per centum of so much of their earned basic compensation as does not exceed a rate equivalent to $2,900 per annum.

"Section 3. The provisions of the Saturday half-holiday law of March 3, 1931 (46 Stat. 1482, U. S. C. title 5, Section 26 (A)) are hereby suspended for the period during which this act is in effect.

"Section 4. Whenever the Civil Service Commission shall find that within the same Government organization and at the same location gross inequities exist to such extent as to interfere with the prosecution of the war, between basic per annum rates of pay fixed for any class of positions under the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, and the compensation of employees whose basic rates of pay are fixed by wage boards or similar administrative authority serving the same purpose, the commission is hereby empowered, in order to correct or reduce such inequities, to establish as the minimum rate of pay for such class of positions any rate within the range of pay fixed by the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, for the grade to which such class of positions is allocated under such act.

"Section 5. The act approved February 6, 1942 (public law number 450, Seventy-seventh Congress) and section 4 of the act approved May 2, 1941 (public law number 464, Seventy-seventh Congress), as amended, are hereby repealed.

"Section 6. This act shall take effect as of December 30, 1942, or such earlier date as Congress by concurrent resolution shall prescribe."

Fuel Oil Meter's Discrepancy Explained, If You Can Follow It

This should be written from a sanatorium specializing in nervous collapses. It's all about mean temperatures and degree days and how The Star's percentage figure on the proper fuel oil consumption dived back down to 70 yesterday when it had been 81 the day before.

The right figure for yesterday was 70 per cent; for today 74 per cent. Anyway, those are the figures that came out under the patient tutelage of an Office of Price Administration technical expert, and the OPA, after all, is the agency that dishes out the fuel oil.

What happened, as coherently as possible, is this: The Star's figure seemed a little high, but the formula was checked and re-checked and it always came out the same. Nevertheless, people were getting more and more worried, so a thorough investigation was launched.

The first thing that became apparent was that the first heating period began on October 1—not when you first turned your furnaces on. The reason for this, it developed, was that the oil you burned during September did not have to be accounted for. The only oil you had to tell the Ration Board about was the oil you had in your tank on October 1, or if you filed your application after November 1, on the date you made out your application.

That should have solved the difficulty, but it didn't. It just created new and terrible confusion. The total of degree days compiled at The Star still didn't agree with the OPA total. Why, probably no one will ever know an OPA official pored over the problem long and searchingly and found several points of discrepancy, but the complete answer will always remain obscure.

So finally the OPA figure of total degree days was accepted. Even this is off slightly from the total given out by the Weather Bureau, which also furnished the OPA with its data. If you spend too much time trying to find a solution for that, all you get is a headache and a strong desire to join the Army. Anyway, the difference is slight enough so as not to affect the daily percentage.

Tuberculosis Seals Sent To 150 Montgomery Groups

One hundred and fifty organizations in Montgomery County have been sent seal bonds and 17,174 county residents have been mailed seals in the 36th annual Christmas seal sale, it was announced yesterday by William Dahl of Silver Spring, chairman.

For the benefit of new residents who have not received seals through the mail, booths have been established in Damascus, Rockville, Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Silver Spring and Takoma Park. All checks, Mrs. Dahl said, should be made payable to the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association and sent to the Suburban National Bank at Takoma Park.

Public Health nurses now are making 150 visits each month in the county because the county tuberculosis branch is paying one-fifth of the salaries of nine additional nurses who have been added to the staff in the last two years, Mrs. Dahl said.

'I'll Stay,' Says Gunner Sergeant, and Gives Life To Save 6 as Zero-Beset Bomber Falls Into Sea

By GEORGE WELLES, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 2.—I'll stay up here in case the Japs come at us again. Those are the words which saved six men's lives but cost the life of the one who stayed up. They were the last words of Sgt. Glenn Campbell and his valiant crew as they fell into the sea, stricken in a raid over Dilli, in Portuguese Timor.

Sgt. Campbell's last words buzzed in the interphone of his pilot, Capt. Charles Hitchcock of Winchester, Ind. The plane was burning. It had been burning since they left Dilli, when it was attacked by four Zeros.

Sgt. Campbell, who came from Franklin, Pa., was the top, or turret, gunner. When the four Zeros came on from straight ahead, making a simultaneous attack to scatter the bombers' fire, Sgt. Campbell had sent a raking fire from his machine gun which dissolved two Zeros into balls of flame. But before his fire was opened on the Zeros, anti-aircraft had put four hits in his right engine.

The engine turned into a streamer of smoke. The flames crept along a wing. The engine was flooded with fire extinguisher liquid, but still the flames ate their way around the nose of the bomber.

In the cockpit, Navigator Lt. Albert J. Lilkington of Mobile, Ala., fought the fire with a hand extinguisher. Still pursued by the Zeros, the plane was now out over Arafura Sea, limping along, its short, high-speed wings barely held aloft by a single engine.

Capt. Hitchcock, unable to see the instrument panel in the thick black smoke, twice opened the window and the flames suddenly licked up again. The controls were almost too hot to touch. The Zeros were still behind, watching for their chance. The other members of the crew, Sgt. Pershing Arboast of Dunmore, W. Va.; Sgt. Joseph G. Schank of Throop, Pa.; and Sgt. Samuel Miller of Prout Run, Pa., got out the rubber rafts and prepared for trouble.

The bomber sank lower and lower. The single remaining engine was whacking, groaning and coughing. Capt. Hitchcock gave orders for all to prepare to escape. From where he stood, Turret Gunner Campbell could see two big Zero holes in the left wing and knew that landing would be hard. Sixty seconds is eternity for such a plane to stay afloat after landing. But the Zeros were still behind. Their fire continued.

A cord of Rear-Gunner Schank's interphone was cut by bullets right under his throat. Then came Sgt. Campbell's words which no member of his squadron will ever forget again:

"I'll stay up here in case the Japs come at us again."

When the terrible moment came, when the plane hit the water and cracked open, the others got out but not Glenn Campbell. All were dazed and some were bleeding. Yet before the plane sank, Capt. Hitchcock in what was an equal risk of being drowned with the plane, managed to dive underneath the fast-sinking fuselage, fight his way up through the doors into the turret and pull Sgt. Campbell's unconscious body back down through this diving bell filled with water.

When they got him on a raft, they turned him over and saw that the man who had once saved their lives from two Zeros, which he had shot down himself, and then saved them again from the other two, was dead.

And when they looked in the sky, it was clear blue and the other two Zeros, apparently scared of not having sufficient fuel to return to Timor, had departed.

Counting bomber noses and finding them missing, another B-26, commanded by Lt. Patton of Richmond, Va., turned back and dropped them more rafts. For 17 hours they floated—all night long with their Australian co-pilot, not the least courageous among their saddened party. And the next morning, when a warship came to pick them up, all were present except Glenn Campbell, who had quite simply given his life for them. (Copyright, 1942, by Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

Eighth Colored 'Moslem' Convicted as Draft Evader

David Jones, 41, self-styled Moslem leader, today became the eighth colored man professing to the faith to be convicted here on draft evasion charges. Jones was convicted by a District Court jury yesterday on three counts of violating the Selective Service Act.

He faces a maximum jail sentence of five years on each charge. They were failing to register for the draft, failing to have a draft card on his person and failing to exhibit a draft card when requested. A directed verdict of not guilty on counseling others to evade the draft was returned.

Five women members of the sect—brightly garbed in flowing robes and headresses—sobbed as the jury of 11 men and 1 woman returned the verdict.

Jones, under cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney John L. Laskey, admitted he failed to register but maintained it was because "Allah has instructed us not to have anything to do with war." He denied counselling others not to register.

The defendant further denied having expressed his elation at the Jap bombardment of Pearl Harbor. A Government witness earlier in the trial testified Jones had hailed the attack as "the clash of righteousness and wickedness."

He was represented by Attorney Sandolphra Robinson. Justice Baltha J. Laws presided in the case, which opened a week ago.

Users Urged to Build Up Petroleum Gas Supply

By the Associated Press.

Farmers, businessmen and householders who use liquefied petroleum gas as a fuel were urged by the War Production Board today to build up supplies of the fuel on their own premises.

WPB said that building up reserves in homes and business places would afford protection against winter shortages of butane and propane gas when consumption of these fuels hits its peak later in the winter.

Supplies of the fuels for the Army, Navy and war industries now are taxing the storing space of refineries and distributors, WPB said. However, private consumers will be unable to rely on regular deliveries through the winter and "cannot any longer safely buy on a hand-to-mouth basis."

Iceland Minister, Mrs. Thors Hosts at Independence Party

Society Also Attends Concert Marking Anniversary of Philadelphia Orchestra

By KATHARINE BROOKS.

Society in the National Capital had varied diversions yesterday. The outstanding event, socially speaking, was the reception which the Iceland Minister and Mrs. Thors gave to celebrate their country's independence day. Considerate of their guests, the hosts gave the party at the Mayflower rather than in the attractive Legation at 3839 Massachusetts avenue, thus saving for some of them their precious gasoline.

The Minister and Mrs. Thors stood at the foot of the steps in the Chinese room to receive their several hundred guests and at the back of the room in standards were the Stars and Stripes and the flag of Iceland with its soft blue background and the cross of white with a red center. The table had a tall vase filled with red carnations, white chrysanthemums and blue delphinium. A similar vase in the center of the long, heavily laden buffet table in the ballroom held a large bouquet of the same flowers.

Mrs. Thors wore a severely plain black gown made with square, rather low neckline and having three-quarter-length sleeves. The only trimming was a large, deep red rose at one side of the waistline, from which a cascade of small roses and green leaves fell to the hem of the skirt. She wore an emerald and diamond bracelet matching the small stud earrings.

In the ballroom small tables were placed in the boxes and on the floor in front of them for the convenience of the guests. Here small groups gathered to enjoy the buffet supper which was prepared for this very delightful 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock party. Many commented on the cake, iced in white with the flag of Iceland in colors across the top.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, was among the callers to wish the hosts long continued independence for their country and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Chief Justice, also was there to celebrate with the Minister and Mrs. Thors their country's anniversary.

Mrs. Tom Connally, wife of the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was the ranking hostess from the Congressional circle, thus completing the representation from the three branches of the Federal Government.

Mrs. Connally's rich red frock and matching round hat were particularly becoming and, with it she wore a short sable fur cape. In the Lower House of Congress group was Mrs. Herman Koppelman, wife of Representative Koppelman of Connecticut.

The dean of the diplomatic corps, the Peruvian Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel de Trejer y Santander stood and chatted with the many friends and the ranking hostess of the corps, Senora de Espil, trim and smartly gowned, accompanied her husband, the Argentine Ambassador, Senora de Espil wore black, the skirt street length and the bodice fitted and with square neck and three-quarter length sleeve. Her very small black hat had a bright red flower on top and a similar flower relieved the severity of the black frock.

The dean of Ministers at this post, the Swedish Envoy, and Mme. Bostrom were others at the party. Guests also included the heads of other diplomatic missions with a few Army and Navy officers and Attaches as well as important officials of several of the independent Federal Agencies, such as the Chairman of the Maritime Commission, Rear Admiral Emory Scott Land, and Mrs. Land. Also, the deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue and Mrs. Eldon P. King, just back from a week's stay in New York; and numerous officials of the State Department including the Chief of Protocol, Mr. George T. Summerlin, and Mr. Don Purvis of the Protocol Office with Mrs. Purvis, the latter in very becoming dove gray, several strings of pearls hanging over the high and gracefully draped neckline and she wore a small close fitting black hat.

Another anniversary was celebrated in the evening and many of those at the late afternoon fete of the Minister and Mrs. Thors attended the concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which marked the 40th anniversary of that organization's first season in this Capital. The Chief Justice and Mrs. Stone were guests of Associate Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts in their box. The Chief Justice seldom misses a concert but rarely attends the afternoon parties.

The Polish Ambassador and Mme.

Ciechanowska, who were hosts to the brilliant pianist, Artur Rubinstein of Poland, overnight, had guests with them in their box and across the auditorium the Soviet Ambassador, Mr. Maxim Litvinoff entertained several guests. Among these was charming Mme. Soong, wife of the Chinese Minister of Foreign Affairs, wearing a black velvet gown after the pattern of her native land, the collar high and standing and the sleeves very short. Its only trimming were many small and shiny nailheads applied on the material, and in her hair she wore two small deep red roses.

Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Ambassador, was with Mrs. Adolf Casper Miller and occupying the box usually reserved for Mrs. Roosevelt were the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Diamantopoulou.

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann, who also were at the afternoon fete, were guests of the Assistant Secretary of State.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Francis Biddle were others in the boxes as were Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, Miss Alice Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Aspinwall, and Mr. Eugene Meyer. Others at the concert were Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin and her sister, Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard, Mr. and Mrs. Curt C. Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mrs. Truman Beale, who has been such a successful chairman of entertainment for the Woman's Committee of the National Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Snow, who had a family party in their box, Dr. Kemper Simpson and Miss Mabel Boardman and her sister, Mrs. Frederic A. Keep, who had guests with them in adjoining boxes.

Capt. and Mrs. Parker Return From Trip

Capt. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Parker have returned from their wedding trip and are now at home at 3422 South Dakota avenue N.E. Their marriage took place November 21 in the chapel at Fort Belvoir, Va., where the Rev. Alva J. Braisted officiated at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Before her marriage Mrs. Parker was Miss Mary Frances Hichle, daughter of Mrs. Ernest T. Hichle and the late Capt. Hichle, U. S. M. S., escorted her to the altar, and she was attended by Miss Katie Kelly and Miss Lamoyne Gabent of New Mexico and Fort Belvoir.

Mr. William H. Stannard was best man for Capt. Parker, whose home is in Edgelyville, Iowa, and the ushers were fellow officers at Fort Belvoir of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, and Capt. Parker attended State College.

Miss Mary Jane Inglis Married To Mr. Hecksher Last Evening

Wearing a gown of Ivory Duchesse satin Miss Mary Jane Inglis, daughter of Capt. Thomas B. Inglis, U. S. N., and Mrs. Inglis, walked with her father to the altar in Georgetown Presbyterian Church last evening for her marriage to Mr. Robert Hecksher, son of Mrs. Hecksher of Miami, Fla., and the late Mr. Hecksher.

Trimming of rose point lace featured the bride's dress, which was made with a fitted bodice, long sleeves, pointed neckline and very full skirt ending in a long train. A flat collar with shoulder caps of the lace edged the neckline and trimmed the sleeves. Her long, full veil of imported illusion draped from a head wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. Julian Keith Lawson, Jr., cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor and wore a costume of balsam green velvet made with a long basque, sweetheart neckline, bracelet length sleeves and a very full skirt. Her headress was made of green and rust ostrich tips and she carried a bouquet of cavalier roses.

Rust satin was worn by the bridesmaids, who were Miss Jeanne Stevens and Miss Betty Jane Fisher. The dresses were made like the dress of the matron of honor, with headresses also the same, and they carried bouquets of Joanna Hill roses.

The bride attended the College of William and Mary, and Mr. Hecksher attended the University of Miami and was graduated from the University of Florida.

On their return from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hecksher will make their home in Arlington.

If you should go into the basement of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross you'll find a miniature factory in production. Two enormous cutting tables stretch the full length of the building. On one there are a dozen thicknesses of heavy tweed of the sort that men's suits are made (this will be turned into hundreds and hundreds of warm snow suits for children) and on the other, 80 thicknesses of outing flannel to be made into sleeping pajamas. Master patterns line the walls and from these a huge cutting machine will cut the garments. It is almost unbelievable that this professional setup could have grown from a small "sewing circle" of women. The credit, says Mrs. Edward Helmuth, volunteer special service chairman, is due largely to the ability and efforts of Mrs. Harrison Flitts, who is head of the cutting group and who makes the master patterns herself.

Since February, 1942, when she was made chairman of the volunteer special services, Mrs. Helmuth has done an outstanding job of organizing for this chapter. She's a trim and alert little woman with neatly coiffured gray hair and bright brown eyes. Her manner is warm and friendly and she is so enthusiastic about the work that is being done by these women that you find yourself sharing her pride and enthusiasm just listening to her tell about it. The nicest thing about Mrs. Helmuth is that she wants to give every one else ALL the credit.

Mrs. Flitts deserves ALL the credit for this, she says, showing us the cutting room. Miss Mary Dunn, field director at the new Naval Hospital, deserves most of the credit for the new class of Gray Ladies, which we said we heard Mrs. Helmuth had organized there. The Motor Corps girls are wonderful, said she, showing us where they drilled, on the spacious grounds that surround the chapter house. For others she has only praise, for herself she is more than reticent. She loves the comparatively new chapter house (the Red Cross has been there since June, 1940), and showed us all about it.

At the end of Norwood drive, just off Wisconsin avenue, was taken over by the Recreation Center from Department of Agriculture, which had been using it as an experimental station. Unlike most of the city chapter houses of the Red Cross, it has an enormous amount of ground. It's quiet and off the beaten track and in spring and summer the large shade trees make it a cool and comfortable place in which to work. There is plenty of room in the house for all Red Cross activities. A storeroom, a room for surgical dressings, the office and the cutting room we've already mentioned. The draft board uses two of the first-floor rooms, and upstairs are held the community work meetings for the Bethesda and Chevy Chase areas and the Red Cross first-aid classes. There is plenty of parking space for the workers and for the chapter ambulance and soon, Mrs. Helmuth told us, there will be a Red Cross station wagon to help the Motor Corps girls with their Naval Hospital transportation and canteen work and the delivery of production materials.

Mrs. Helmuth herself is a Montgomery County woman. She lives in her own very attractive house on Brookville road, which is filled with charming furniture and her rare collection of Early American glass. Her husband is with the Government here and her job at the Red Cross is also a full-time one.

AWVS Is Opening Corps to Women Without Own Cars

Because tire and gasoline restrictions make it impossible for many women to offer the use of automobiles, and because of the increasing need for drivers, the American Women's Voluntary Services is now opening its night motor corps to women without their own cars.

The auxiliary drivers will be assigned to drive for members of the British Joint Mission and various details for the United States Government. The new recruits will be on duty in the evening, supplementing the services of the AWVS day motor corps.

Applicants must pass driving tests and take courses in civilian protection and first aid. All must have District of Columbia drivers' licenses before registering at AWVS headquarters, 2170 Florida avenue.

Advanced AWVS courses available to auxiliary drivers include motor mechanics and map reading.

Applicants may register between 7 and 10 p.m.

Alpha Delta Pi Fills Kit Bags For Servicemen

Alumnae Prepare Christmas Gifts for Elderly Women

The Christmas spirit prevailed at a meeting of the Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae Association last night, when numbers of kit bags were filled for servicemen embarking for overseas and gifts for a local home for elderly women were wrapped to be presented at Christmas time.

Each member of the association has pledged herself to make and fill at least one of the "buddy bags" as part of a national campaign to contribute 5,000 filled bags to the American Red Cross before January 1.

Alpha Delta Pi entered the field of war service early in 1941, recognizing the importance of college sororities becoming service organizations in wartime. Since that time the sorority has contributed more than $3,000 to British and American relief agencies and has recorded 75,000 hours of service contributed by members. An ambulance is being maintained in England as part of its war effort.

In addition to its Christmas projects members brought old silk and nylon hose last night to contribute to the salvage campaign. Toys were also donated for the toy lending library group headed by Mrs. Noble Boaz.

Mrs. Eugene V. Clendenin and Mrs. Dean Stephan were presiding hostesses at the meeting, which was held at the George Washington Sorority Hall, 2129 G street N.W.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Honored by Women Writers

Luncheon and Tea Are Held for Wife of President

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was honor guest of the Women's National Press Club at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel yesterday and later was entertained at tea by the American Newspaper Women's Club at the club's cozy headquarters, 1604 Twentieth street N.W.

Speaking at the Women's Press Club luncheon, Mrs. Roosevelt said she had received many letters from women since her return from England expressing concern over her statement that every woman in England is doing a specific war job and asking if she did not think their first duty was in their homes.

"When I told of the women in England I did not mean that women here should be guided accordingly," she said. "Conditions are not the same as they are in England and I think that every woman's first duty here is to see that her home functions well and to see that her children get the proper care, even if they are young. But even in England, women are urged to stay home if there are young children and they are able to do so."

Mrs. Roosevelt was introduced by Christine Sadler, president of the club, as "a foremost journalist because she always makes her deadline, gives rest in her column, shares her scoops with others and gets along well with editors."

of Brig. Gen. McCoach; Mrs. Edith B. Helm and Miss Malvina Thompson, secretaries to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the American Newspaper Women's Club about 4:30 o'clock and was met by Miss Alice Eversman, president, who stood with her to receive the guests. Following the reception, Mrs. Roosevelt led in the Pledge to the Flag.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin and Mrs. Henry Morgenstern, jr., all associate members. Others attending included Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Arthur Ramsay, widow of the founder of Fairmont Seminary, local school for girls, and Mrs. Joseph Platt of Columbus, Ohio, who recently arrived to join her husband, a member of the War Production Board.

Newcomb Club

Members of the Newcomb Club will be entertained at a luncheon Friday by Mrs. Sidney H. Karr at her home, 5403 Hampden lane, Bethesda. The program will include a one-act Christmas play, "Babushka," read by six members of the club under the direction of Mrs. Paul Elicker, literature chairman.

Mrs. Gordon M. Kline, the club president, will preside at the business meeting.

Rally Will Hear Missionary Tell of Experiences in Korea

His experiences in a Korean jail where he was held for four months while the Japanese tried to compel him to sign over mission property to the Japanese government will be related Friday by Dr. J. V. N. Talmage at the annual fall rally of the Washington Auxiliary of the American Mission to Lepers, Inc.

Dr. Talmage, who will talk at 2:30 p.m., will be one of two speakers at an all-day session to be held at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

The meeting will open at 10:30 a.m. Friday with a luncheon scheduled at 12:30 p.m.

Dr. Ida Patterson Storm, wife of Dr. Harold Storm, a medical missionary to Arabia, will be presented at 11 a.m. She will speak on her experiences as a professor at the University of Shanghai and among the Bedouin tribes of Arabia.

Dr. Talmage, who is a missionary of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, spent years in Korea and was left in charge of the Blederswolf Leper Colony near Soonchun, Korea, early in 1941. Following the attack on Pearl Harbor he was placed under guard and early in 1942 was arrested on the pretext that he possessed a government map. In reality, he explains, the map was one of his own leper colony which he had prepared at the request of the government.

Because of his persistent refusal to sign a document which would surrender the leper colony and other mission property to the government without the necessity of wartime seizure, he was kept in jail four months. Eventually, however, he was released under repatriation orders for return on the Gripsholm.

Virginia Coryell Wed Last Night To Lt. Campbell

Bethlehem Chapel Was the Scene Of Ceremony

The picturesqueness which characterized the formal weddings of half a century ago was recalled last evening when Miss Virginia Beverley Coryell, arrayed in the wedding gown of her grandmother, became the bride of Lt. Colin Stuart Campbell of the Royal Canadian Navy, in a ceremony taking place in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington and St. Peter and St. Paul.

White flowers in the altar vases and the lighted cathedral candles in the seven branch candelabra made an impressive background for the wedding party and Mr. Calloway, organist of the Cathedral, played the music for the march of the bridal procession.

The daughter of Mrs. Virginia Beverley Coryell of The Plains, Va., and Washington, the bride was escorted by her uncle, Mr. John McGill of The Plains, and given by him in marriage. The Rev. F. B. Tucker, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown, officiated at 8 o'clock.

Fashioned from moire grosgrain, the bride's gown was made with a pointed basque, fitted tightly with a small waist and no sleeves and off-shoulder low neckline finished with a bertha of heirloom lace. The basque was laced up the back and the panel of seed pearl embroidery down the front of the basque continued to the hem of the skirt and was stitched with silver thread. The skirt was full and made with paniers and a bustle. The dress was worn by Miss Mary Mayer of Philadelphia when she was married to Gen. Bingham Coryell, also of Philadelphia. Yesterday's bride wore a veil of tulle caught in the collar of the lace that trimmed the gown and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Robert Gooding of Alexandria was the matron of honor, wearing a costume of gold chiffon and velvet, the velvet forming the fitted bodice. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of yellow roses and bronze chrysanthemums and wore a spray of the chrysanthemums in her hair.

Maid of Honor of the bride was Miss Dorothy Dovell of this city. She wore a turquoise blue gown matching that of the maid of honor and her bouquet and headdress were also matching.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a small reception at the residence of Mrs. Coryell on O street which was decorated with white flowers and magnolia leaves. After the reception, Lt. and Mrs. Campbell left for a trip to New York City, from which they will go to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where the bridegroom is on duty and where they will make their home. For traveling the bride wore a Scotch brown tweed suit with a small

Ensign Edwards And Miss Roper Are Married

Bride Will Reside With Her Parents At Present Time

Word has been received here of the marriage of Miss Martha Sue Roper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Roper of Atlanta, to Ensign John Quincy Edwards III, son of Mrs. E. C. Wood of Washington and the late Mr. John Quincy Edwards II of Bryan County, Ga.

The ceremony took place November 5 in the First Methodist Church at Reno, Nev., the wedding being informal and the couple unattended. Wine velvet trimmed with Irish lace was worn by the bride with a strand of pearls, which was the gift of the bridegroom, and a corsage of gardenias.

Following the ceremony Ensign and Mrs. Edwards left for San Francisco to spend a few weeks. Mrs. Edwards then returning to Atlanta to make her home with her parents while Ensign Edwards is on active duty.

A granddaughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. Lucien Roper of Palmetto, Ga., and of Mr. and Mrs. Awtry A. Moore of Salem, Ore., the bride received her education in Atlanta schools and is a member of Gamma Phi Delta Sorority.

Ensign Edwards is the brother of Miss Margaret Edwards and Mrs. E. W. Laby of Washington. He is a graduate of Georgia School of Technology and has been on active duty with the Navy since graduating with the class of 1942.

Inspired Performances Given By Ormandy, Rubinstein

American and Polish Works Lend Modernism in Contrast to Concert Of Orchestra 40 Years Ago

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The visit of the Philadelphia Orchestra to this city for its concert of last night at Constitution Hall was fraught with difficulties. A train wreck delayed the arrival of the orchestra men for the afternoon rehearsal with the soloist of the program and just as the concert about to begin the test blackout signal was sounded and many of the audience were not able to reach the hall for the opening number.

In spite of these troubles, Eugene Ormandy, conductor, and Artur Schnabel, popular Polish pianist and soloist of the evening, showed no effects of the disturbances and gave inspired performances. The concert was in the nature of an anniversary, for 40 years ago to the day the Philadelphia Orchestra played for the first time in this city. The program of that concert was far different from the one offered last night, the conservative selections chosen for December 2, 1902 being balanced on this anniversary program by works in the modern idiom as presented by an American and Polish composer.

Mr. Ormandy tempered the dose of modernism which he included in his list for yesterday's concert with an equal amount of the tried and true, beginning with Haydn's "Symphony in G major, No. 88" and concluding with the appealing Grieg "Concerto in A minor" for piano and orchestra. Between were placed Szymanowski's "Symphonie Concertante, Op. 60" for piano and orchestra and the new "Second Essay for Orchestra" by Samuel Barber.

The performance of Szymanowski's "Symphonie Concertante" by Mr. Rubinstein and the orchestra was probably the first time a major work by the new musical spirit of Poland was heard here. For Szymanowski is definitely a patriotic voice incorporating in his music his feelings and impressions of his native land. An ardent admirer of Chopin, he, too, wished to express the soul of his people in his musical powers in the program of yesterday, one of the most widely varied the orchestra has presented here. That he could hold the interest of the audience through this bridging of centuries in music, impress it with his discriminating reading and arouse it to a storm of applause is the answer.

Indictments Returned Against 3 in Death Of Washington Girl

Two New York Doctors, Receptionist Face Manslaughter Charges

Two New York physicians and a receptionist faced manslaughter charges today in connection with the death of Miss Madeline McGeehan, 26, of Washington, allegedly after an illegal operation. Miss McGeehan, an employe of the Office of Price Administration, died November 18.

A Bronx County grand jury returned indictments yesterday against Dr. Joseph Nisonoff, Dr. Max Weinstein and Mrs. Pearl Tense, the former's receptionist, the Associated Press reported. Dr. Weinstein was to be given a hearing in Magistrate's Court today.

County Judge Harry Stackell fixed bail at $20,000 for Dr. Nisonoff and $2,500 for Mrs. Tense at their arraignment on the indictments. Assistant District Attorney Frank X. O'Brien had asked $150,000 bond for the doctor and $10,000 on Mrs. Tense, saying that another secretary had fled to Texas and had not been found.

Dr. Nisonoff and Mrs. Tense were released in bail. Previous charges in Magistrate's Court against the physician were dismissed.

At the request of Chief Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Ryan, a Magistrate's Court manslaughter charge against Miss Camille Ewald, a nurse in Dr. Nisonoff's office, also was dismissed.

Miss Ewald, however, was held in $10,000 bail as a material witness. She had appeared before the grand jury to testify and Mr. O'Brien said she had made a confession which included the statement that Dr. Nisonoff's weekly income from illegal operations ranged between $2,500 and $3,000, at $100 an operation.

Women to Urge Senators To Push Nursery Bill

Representing several thousand District women, Mrs. Louis Ottenberg of the Voteless District League of Women Voters, Miss Alice Mendham of the Emergency Committee for the Care of Children and Mrs. Mary Wheeler of the Council of Women's Auxiliaries, CIO, are beginning today visits to all members of the Senate District Committee to urge the immediate passage of the District nursery school bill. Their first stop will be to see Senator McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada, chairman of the District committee. Miss Mendham said the group will urge the Senator to give up the idea of hearings and to pull his committee and Senator Capper's subcommittee to get immediate approval of the bill. The measure would open the District public schools to children under 5, and would restore WPA nursery schools.

The coalition of women will next visit Senator O'Daniel of Texas, a member of Senator Capper's subcommittee on nursery schools. Senator Holman of Oregon, the third member, is in Oregon, they said.

The Rev. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point (N.C.) College, will preach at both services next Sunday while the Rev. Dr. R. Y. Nicholson, district superintendent of South Baltimore District, will preach on December 10.

Membership night will be observed on the evening of December 9.

Tony Martin, Dropped From Navy as Unfit, To Face Draft Board

Singer-Actor, Involved In Aroff Court-Martial, Returns to Los Angeles

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Dismissing for "unfitness" from the Navy with which he had served 11 months, Singer-Actor Tony Martin returned today to Los Angeles and the prospect of an immediate interview with his Beverly Hills Draft Board. The 29-year-old radio and picture performer boarded a bus for the south at Oakland last night, dressed in the civilian clothes he had said he did not "want to walk around in," and his face partly concealed by dark glasses. Only a few hours before, an order had reached the Treasure Island Navy Base stripping Martin, former husband of Film Star Alice Faye, of his rating as a chief specialist and releasing him from the service. Navy officials made clear the dismissal "doesn't carry any degradation" and should not be construed as a dishonorable discharge. At Treasure Island, Martin had been assigned to staging entertainment for Navy personnel. Last summer Lt. Comdr. Maurice N. Aroff was court-martialed at Treasure Island on various charges of falsehood and unofficerlike conduct, one of which was that, contrary to naval regulations, he accepted a $950 automobile as a gift from Martin for facilitating the singer's enlistment. Martin testified first that Aroff did accept the car as a gift and later that the officer had arranged to pay for it in installments. Notice of Aroff's discharge came from Washington only two weeks ago. No direct mention of the Aroff affair accompanied the order for Martin's dismissal. The wavy-haired entertainer's imminent encounter with the Beverly Hills Draft Board will not be his first. The board issued a complaint against him last Christmas week, charging failure to report for a physical examination. Board Complaint Dismissed. Martin, then in Chicago, flew to the coast and was accepted in the Navy as a non-commissioned officer. Later the Draft Board's complaint was dismissed by order of the United States Attorney's Office which termed it a "mistake." In Oakland, Martin's mother, Mrs. Hattie Meyers, viewed the dismissal as inevitable. "I guess after the Aroff court-martial they felt they had to do something," she said, "but it is an awful thing for a young man to go through life with that hanging over his head." Domestic help is hard to find—but you may find it through a "Want Ad" in The Star.

'Late Arrivals Club' Composed Of Flyers Downed Over Desert

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Dec. 2.—Pilot Officer E. H. Bicksler of Oak Hill, Ohio, a young fighter pilot, is now on the register of "The Late Arrivals Club," composed of RAF men who were shot down over the Libyan desert but got back to base safely, the Air Ministry announced today. "We were in a dogfight with some Messerschmitt 109s when a cannon shell hit me, smashed the instrument panel and shot my controls away," Bicksler was quoted. "I also got some shrapnel in one heel."

"I decided to bail out and grabbed for the ring of my parachute, but could not get it right away. I must have fallen 5,000 feet before I found it. In the heat of battle somehow it became tangled around my shoulders, so when it opened up I dislocated a shoulder, but I landed safely. "For some time I lay on the ground. Then, dragging my parachute I started crawling east. "I don't know how long I had been moving when some Army lads picked me up and I was taken to the hospital. "I'm doing swell now, and will have the plaster and dressing off the leg in a fortnight." Girdler, 65, to Marry Secretary, 36, Today By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Tom Mercer Girdler, 65, steel and aircraft executive, and Miss Helen R. Brennan, 36, of New York, a secretary, will be married here today. It will be his fourth marriage. The Cleveland industrialist's marriage to Mrs. Lillian Lewis Girdler ended in divorce last Saturday in Reno, Nev. Mr. Girdler's first wife died and his second marriage also ended in divorce.

Beer Sales Banned As Conference Starts On Shipyard Strike

Maine Authorities Create Dry Region To Avoid Disturbance

By the Associated Press
SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 2.—The sale of beer was banned for a mile around the South Portland Shipbuilding Corp. yard today as management and union representatives gathered for a conference to settle a walkout that kept the plant idle through the night.

Police authorities said there had been no disturbance, but that they had ordered the ban as a precaution against any developing.

The walkout centers about a dispute over reclassification of the workers under a pending new wage scale—the management contending there are four classifications and the union, two.

"I am ready to negotiate with them," said Mrs. Ellmore Herrick, Todd Shipyard's Corp. personnel chief, in reference to American Federation of Labor leaders.

Union representatives termed the walkout as "unauthorized." A less extensive work stoppage took place early in October at the yard, whose production record has been described by congressional investigators as the worst of any Liberty ship contractor.

General Manager Thatcher B. Pinkham said there was no dispute over a new wage scale, but that the management "disagreed firmly" with the union as to which workers should benefit. He said the company classified all employees as first, second or third class mechanics and helpers.

Edward Miller, president of the AFL Machinists' Union, contended that the War Labor Board order authorizing the new scale set up only two classifications—mechanics, who would get $1.20 an hour, and helpers, who would get 90 cents.

Mr. Miller added that it was "impossible for the union to hold the men in," and that they were "tired of being pushed around and want what's coming to them."

Probation Set for Man Who Posed as General

Maynard Kimberland, New York insurance agent, convicted of posing as a general and using Army cars to take him on job-hunting tours, was placed on probation yesterday by District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws after receiving a sentence to serve from four months to one year and a day.

Kimberland was found guilty by a District Court jury October 29 of impersonating an officer in the armed forces.

Ford Workers Return To Jobs in Canada

By the Associated Press
WINDSOR, Ontario, Dec. 2.—The huge Ford Motor Co. of Canada resumed production yesterday with all striking workmen back at their jobs after a week's idleness and an investigation begun of the status of 37 women workers.

Justice C. P. McTague of the Supreme Court of Ontario was appointed to study the cases of the 37 women, whose employment in one plant department brought on the strike. The union—United Automobile Workers (CIO)—charged the women were hired on men's jobs at lower wages than those paid to men in violation of a union-company collective bargaining agreement.

Both company and union agreed to accept Justice McTague's decision. The strike was settled Monday.

War Brings Prisoners Opportunity to Fight for Nation

Rehabilitation Meeting Is Told How Offenders Can Join Services

Lawbreakers are now being given an opportunity to serve their country that they did not have in time of peace, Benedict S. Alper, research assistant of the Bureau of Prisons and executive secretary of the American Parole Association, declared yesterday at the annual luncheon meeting of the Bureau of Rehabilitation.

The speaker urged that steps be taken to provide opportunity for the lawbreaker to do useful work during time of peace. Those in penal institutions throughout the country represent about one-tenth of 1 per cent of the population, he said.

He told those assembled at the meeting in the YWCA Building that youth in the 18 and 19 year old group is being offered an opportunity to serve the country in the military service and pointed out the Army has relaxed its rules to permit worthy men who have broken the law to serve.

Crime Increases for Group.
He indicated the military service may serve as an aid to reduce the number of criminal offenses in that age group. Federal Bureau of Investigation figures, he said, show that the number of offenses in the 18 and 19 year age group has increased about 20 per cent.

Mr. Alper said that in the prisons, the men are told: "You are behind bars, but you can render a big service to your country." The result, he added, has been that many prisoners have asked to work longer than the regular prison hours.

"We are now combing out in Federal institutions fit and worthy men to give them the opportunity to serve their country," he added.

Crime Cause Traced.
Assistant Secretary of State G. Howland Shaw, president of the Rehabilitation Bureau and president of the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies, declared that on the whole juvenile delinquency has increased and attributed it partly to interruption of family life, the schools' lack of experienced personnel and the general element of uncertainty.

Joseph E. Dayton, director of the Rehabilitation Bureau, told of keeping in contact with persons during their incarceration with a view to aiding in their rehabilitation. The number of those committed here, he said, was about 25 per cent greater in July, August and September of this year than in a corresponding period last year. The number though recently has been reduced with the "rotation of judges" at Municipal Court, he said.

Marines Insist on Giving Blood for Plasma Bank

When shipmates spill their blood on Guadalcanal, marines at Quantico, Va., insist at least on donating theirs to the American Red Cross.

When the Red Cross mobile unit called at the base for 80 donors for its plasma bank, it was stipulated that only civilians and marines' families were to be considered. But the leathernecks didn't appreciate the discrimination and 50 fighting men turned up demanding the privilege of participation. Said one of them:

"A lot of my shipmates are spilling their blood. I guess I can spare a pint."

The response was a pleasant surprise even to the mobile unit's directors, when 105 persons donated blood. Many whose urgent duties compelled them to leave before their turn came, did so reluctantly.

Facilities of the United States Naval Hospital at the base were placed at the disposal of the Red Cross and naval physicians and nurses were pressed into service.

"Marines are a fighting outfit," W. J. Gordon, Red Cross field director at Quantico, said. "They believe in doing everything they can for their country. We couldn't deny them."

70 Persons Are Admitted To U. S. Citizenship Here

Seventy persons, including an 81-year-old native of Norway, became American citizens yesterday at a naturalization hearing in District Court before Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

The Norwegian was Adolph E. Arneson of 1023 East Capitol street, father of four children born in Washington. Before 1900 he served with the United States Army and Navy. He came to this country in 1879.

Francesco Pirrone, 78, a retired furrier, also became an American citizen. He is the father of 15 children, all born here. He came to this country from Italy in 1886. He lives at 617 I street N.W.

Also admitted to citizenship were 11 members of the armed forces. Sixteen persons were granted permission to change their names.

Pig Goes to Market, Aids Bond Campaign

MURPHY, Idaho.—This little pig went to market—and with the aid of some barnyard friends—netted the War bond campaign more than $5,000. The pig, a calf, some chickens, eight cakes, a blanket and a sack of potatoes were auctioned off for that amount at a bond social.

Milk Producers' Head Sees Farms Facing Wage and Hour Law

Drafting of Manpower May Cut Food Output, Dairy Industry Told

By the Associated Press
CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—President John Brandt of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation declared today that the shortage of manpower for the Nation's farms would put farmers under provisions of wage and hour laws and "might well" bring a decrease in agriculture production.
"Let's be forewarned that the drafting of manpower to be sent wherever needed will bring to the farmers' door the provisions of the Wagner Act and the Fair Labor Standards Act."
"Sees Agriculture Saddled."
The drafting of manpower not only will regulate farmers' hours and wages, he said, but will "saddle agriculture with the influences and controls that are now hindering all-out production in industry and defense plants. Instead of increasing farm production, it might well decrease it."
The federation president's remarks were contained in an address to the 26th annual meeting of representatives of the co-operative dairy industry from 41 States.
Discussing manpower, Mr. Brandt asserted that "in our planning we must decide the size of our Army, our defense operations, and food production so that the three will be in balance."
"It is simple folly that can only result in disaster if we increase our Army and our defense factories beyond our ability to produce the food that will supply the energy generated by this manpower."
He declared that the use of subsidies "to correct the disparity and inequality that exists for agriculture" would result in eventual collapse.

"A proper analysis of subsidies as they apply to agriculture proves that they are neither subsidies to agriculture nor a preventative of inflation. Too much emphasis is being placed upon the question of inflation and not enough on the question of unlimited and all-out production. Price ceilings and subsidies as a means of thwarting inflation or increasing production will end in disappointment."
"Records will prove that the imposition of ceiling controls, instead of stop inflation, have fallen first and almost completely upon the shoulders of agriculture, with the disastrous result of turning a threatened scarcity into a famine accompanied by uncontrolled inflation."
"I think we are extremely egotistical as a Nation and woefully lacking in judgment and appreciation of the problems of the people of the world, when we convey the idea that we cannot only feed and supply our own Nation and, at the same time, finance and feed all the rest of the world."

The possibility of a food shortage has caused public sentiment to shift in favor of the farmer and his problems, Mr. Brandt said.
"Now that rationing is closing in upon us," he continued, "the people are realizing that the philosophy of plenty, even though it create a temporary surplus, is better than too little and too late. It is sounder than planning based on temporary expediency that views surplus as a national calamity."
Urges 54-Hour Week.
Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in another speech at the convention said that farm production was retarded by a lack of equipment and labor and by "restrictions designed to keep food prices down."

He said farmers and their families were working 70 hours a week and more to meet Government food goals and that they had little sympathy with industry "working on the average only 43 hours a week."
Mr. O'Neal recommended as a quick and effective way of meeting the manpower shortage that every body work 54 hours a week. Under such a program, he said, millions of workers could be released from their present jobs and put where the need was most critical.
Charles W. Holman, federation secretary, asserted there was not much of increasing milk production until the dairy farmers were assured of minimum prices on all they produce.
Asks End of Uncertainties.
Another necessary step, he said, was removal of "the uncertainties involved in Agriculture Secretary Wickard's farm production program."

"Any basic plan which does not take care of the actual needs of family-sized farm operators, who are already straining their backs to win the war, will not work," Mr. Holman declared.
On the question of the shortage of manpower, Mr. Holman added only about one-fourth of the men leaving the farms had been taken into the armed services and that most of the balance had been lost to industry because of higher wages. He expressed the belief that compensatory prices were essential for dairymen so that they could compete to some extent for labor in the open market.
The Japs have a yen for world domination. Your dollar, in War bonds, will defeat that yen.

Roosevelt to Present Congressional Medal To Air Hero's Father

Capt. Earl Pease, Jr., Gave Life in Plane He Patched Up to Raid Japs

President Roosevelt arranged today to present a Congressional Medal of Honor to the father of Capt. Earl Pease, Jr., of the Army Air Forces, missing in the Southwest Pacific.

Earl Pease, sr., of Plymouth, N. H., accompanied by Mrs. Pease, was scheduled to receive the medal from Mr. Roosevelt in a brief ceremony in the President's office this afternoon.

The Nation's highest decoration was awarded Capt. Pease for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty" in action with a heavy bomber squadron against the Japanese near Rabaul, New Britain, on August 6-7.

"When one engine of the bombardment airplane of which he was pilot failed during a bombing mission over New Guinea," the citation read, "Capt. Pease was forced to return to a base in Australia." The citation continued:

"Knowing that all available planes of his group were to participate the next day in an attack on an enemy-held airfield near Rabaul, New Britain, although he was not scheduled to take part in this mission, Capt. Pease selected the most serviceable airplane at this base and prepared it for combat, knowing that it had been found and declared unserviceable for combat missions.

"With the members of his combat crew, who volunteered to accompany him, he rejoined his squadron at Port Moresby, New Guinea, at 1 a.m. on August 7, after having flown almost continuously since early the preceding morning. With only three hours rest he took off with his squadron for the attack.

"Throughout the long flight to Rabaul, he managed by skillful flying of his unserviceable airplane to maintain his position in the group.

"When the formation was intercepted by about 30 enemy airplanes before reaching the target, Capt. Pease, on the wing which bore the brunt of the hostile attack, by gallant action and the accurate shooting of his crew, succeeded in destroying several Zeros before dropping his bombs on the hostile base as planned, in spite of continuous attacks.

"The fight with the enemy pursuit lasted 25 minutes until the group dove into cloud cover. After leaving the target Capt. Pease's aircraft fell behind the balance of the group, due to unknown difficulties as a result of the complete and violent maneuvering. He was unable to reach this cover before the enemy pursuit succeeded in igniting one of his bomb-bay tanks. He was seen to drop the flaming tank.

"It is believed that Capt. Pease's airplane and crew were subsequently shot down in flames as they did not return to their base.

"In voluntarily performing this mission, Capt. Pease contributed materially to the success of the group and displayed high devotion to duty, valor and complete contempt for personal danger. His undaunted bravery has been a great inspiration to the officers and men of his unit."

A native of Plymouth, N. H., Capt. Pease was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve at Kelly Field June 21, 1940. Promoted in November, 1941, to first lieutenant, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross last April for evacuating personnel from Japanese-occupied territory. He was promoted to captain July 10.

Plant Sites Selected For Synthetic Rubber Program, Thomas Says

800,000-Ton Production Planned, Federal Heads Have Advised Oklahoman

By the Associated Press
All sites have been chosen and necessary funds allocated for plants to produce 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually, Senator Thomas, Democrat of Oklahoma said today.
Senator Thomas, a member of the Senate subcommittee which studied the rubber situation early this year, said he had been advised by Federal authorities that these preliminary steps had been taken and the entire program was about to get under way.
He added he did not know where the plants were to be located or in what numbers.
The Government's synthetic rubber program, under Administrator William Jeffers, calls for 600,000 tons a year to be produced from petroleum and 200,000 from grain alcohol, Senator Thomas said, adding:
"That would be sufficient for imperative needs. Anyway, it's all they say they can produce."
Time Needed for Setup.
"It will take some time for the plants to be built and the machinery to get going," he added.
A statement that the production rate of synthetic rubber would reach "something like" 1,000,000 tons annually by the end of 1943 was attributed to Secretary of Commerce Jones yesterday.
Mr. Jones' estimate—considerably higher than goals previously mentioned—was disclosed by Chairman Steagall after an executive session of the House Banking and Currency Committee.
Mr. Steagall said the Government now had a rubber stockpile of between 600,000 and 700,000 tons, and added: "This is my personal opinion—I think that we ought to be pretty well out of the woods as far as rubber is concerned by the middle of next year."

Later, Mr. Steagall said he based his remark on figures he received from various sources, not solely on testimony before the committee yesterday.
Service Needs Come First.
Just how far the expanded production of synthetic rubber, if realized, would go toward meeting the national rubber shortage obviously would be dependent on the needs of the armed services. There have been estimates that the Nation's needs in normal times amount to nearly 700,000 tons.
Meanwhile, the Banking Committee unanimously approved a measure increasing the Reconstruction Finance Corp.'s lending authority by an additional $5,000,000,000.
Mr. Jones, behind closed doors, outlined the RFC's need, but declined after the session to specify the uses to which the additional loans would be put beyond saying that they would be "entirely for war purposes."
However, in view of his reference to the rubber situation, it appeared that some of the money would be used to develop the synthetic rubber program.
Mr. Jones will appear before the Senate Banking Committee today.

Head of Rotary Urges New World Order on Human Touch

Fernando Carbajal Calls On the Americas to Pioneer Pattern

A call for the development of "a human touch" between the people of North and South America as part of the pattern for a new world order was made here last night by Fernando Carbajal of Lima, Peru, president of the International Rotary in an address marking the 30th anniversary of the Washington Rotary.

Official friendship is not enough, the speaker told some 350 Rotarians from the District, Maryland and Pennsylvania who gathered for a dinner meeting in the Willard Hotel.

Mr. Carbajal, a prominent Lima businessman, began his address, which was rebroadcast to South America, during the surprise black-out test here. He read from a prepared address by candlelight.

He called for a "genuine deep-rooted bond of international friendship that can be felt by the individual on the same basis that acquaintance ripens into friendship within our communities."

Asserting that inter-American cooperation has become a pattern for a new world order, Mr. Carbajal declared: "We are also alike in our love of freedom . . . a living example of nations, great and small, working together in equality and concord for their common good, respecting the rights of each other and cherishing peace as the first and greatest step toward prosperity and advancement."

There are differences between the people of the two Americas, he said, but underlying all of these are the ideals and hopes which are common to all of us in the Western Hemisphere.

Turning to a discussion of the post-war world, the international head of Rotary declared that prosperity of one region at the expense of another is "the surest way of keeping the spectre of war hanging over our heads at all times." He added: "A hungry man in Timbuctoo is a constant threat to the well-fed, happy citizen of Washington."

Post-War Problems Studied.

Emphasizing that Rotarians must prove their value in the war years, he declared:

"If we are leading business and professional men of our communities and countries, as we like to think, then surely we must play a helpful part in reconstructing the economic system after the war so that freedom from want and fear will be a reality and not merely a slogan."

He disclosed that Rotary International was carrying on a study of post-war problems and their possible solutions and that he had requested each Rotary club president to plan one program a month for six months devoted to this subject.

The coming peace, Mr. Carbajal asserted, will require sacrifices of the rights of nations as well as individuals. At the conclusion of his address he presented to the local club a Peruvian flag. M. X. Wilberding, president and toastmaster, in turn presented Mr. Carbajal a bound volume of Washington in photographs.

Guests included Senators Capper, Austin and Tobey, and Representative Clinton P. Anderson, past international president of Rotary. W. W. Everett, past president of local Rotary, read a history of the club, and George O'Conner and George Myers sang.

Gun-Firing Chaplains Held Within Rights Under World Law

Noted Authority Calls Any Man in Uniform Part of Armed Forces

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—If an Army chaplain of "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" sentiments actually did fire a gun at his country's enemies, he was within his rights under international law. One of the chaplains credited with inspiring the song has denied firing a gun and said such action would have violated international law and might have instigated reprisals. But listen to Dr. Charles Cheney Hyde, Columbia University authority on international law and former solicitor for the State Department: "We regard priests and ministers as non-combatants, it's true. But any man in uniform is part of his country's armed forces and as such has every right to help win his country's battle in any way he can. I know of no treaty or agreement among nations which forbids any uniformed man to bear arms."

Most Misunderstood Law.
Dr. Hyde thinks that of all international subjects, international law is the most misunderstood. "And it would be a good thing if people generally knew more about it," he went on, "because in my opinion all this war is a fight for international law." In spite of wars, Dr. Hyde says international law has been gaining strength during the last 300 years and has done much to mitigate the evils of war. "Why do you suppose we have neutral inspection of prison camps?" he asked. "Why is there so little maltreatment of prisoners? Why was the Gripsholm unmolested on its trips to exchange belligerent nationals?" "Why has no nation used poison gas in this war? Why do we allow the Red Cross in Switzerland to forward Christmas presents from people in Germany to Germans held prisoner in England? "All these merciful benefits derive from international law." Other Side of Ledger.

On the other side of the ledger there are such things as the Lidice massacre, the reported use of germ warfare by Japan against China, the abuse of civilians in Nazi-occupied territory. "After the war such reported violations of international law must be investigated," said Dr. Hyde, "and the offending belligerents must be penalized."

International law, Dr. Hyde explains, is a code of conduct established by custom as well as by treaties, conventions and other agreements among civilized nations. "The Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907 are basic documents in international law," he went on, "and I am sure that the Atlantic Charter, naming the four freedoms, hereafter will be regarded as an addition to that law." Although not codified and not backed by police power, international law has great strength, Dr. Hyde contends. As the late Elihu Root said, "There is an indefinite and almost mysterious influence exercised by the general opinion of the world" regarding the character and conduct of every state. "This influence is potent, even in wartime, in restraining nations from unbridled criminality. The armies of the United States are bound to abide by the War Department's "rules of land warfare" and other regulations, all based on the law of nations, or international law. The commander of a victorious army—as in North Africa—has to have the rules in mind when he decides terms of surrender. . . . How prisoners shall be cared for. . . . Whether to confiscate the arms of the conquered territory. . . . Whether to help himself to foodstuffs. . . . How the country shall be governed pending a final peace treaty." At the Army School of Government, in Charlottesville, Va., and elsewhere, the Government instructs high-ranking officers in the subject. Dr. Hyde will contribute to that instruction in lectures at Charlottesville.

The courts of many nations have upheld international law, Dr. Hyde points out, on the theory that the law of all nations necessarily is a part of the law of any nation. Supreme Court Sanction.
"Our own Supreme Court has sanctioned that law again and again," Dr. Hyde went on. "In 1909 Justice Gray said 'International law is part of our law, and must be ascertained and administered by our courts.' That law was invoked by the Supreme Court recently in reviewing the trial of the six German saboteurs. "When Justice Stone, in his opinion, described the saboteurs as unlawful combatants, not entitled to the privileges accorded lawful combatants, he was referring, not to any statute on the books of the United States, but to the law of nations. "Under that law, as well as according to our own laws, the saboteurs were executed." The Hague Convention of 1907 defined a lawful combatant as one who wore a uniform or other easily visible emblem of identification, who bore arms openly, and who was subject to the discipline of a responsible commander. Definition Still Stands.

"That definition still stands," said Dr. Hyde, "and a lawful combatant, when captured, is entitled to the privileges of a prisoner of war. "Those privileges are very real, and heaven help the lad who doesn't get them." Dr. Hyde, assuming victory for the Allies, says, "my sublime hope for the future is based on the fact that for 300 years international law has grown and thriven because the countries in whom power was lodged willed it so. The strong countries willed that weak countries like Holland and Sweden and Ecuador be allowed to exist. The strong countries have said, 'it is desirable that we have some rules of justice among ourselves.' "After victory, I am confident, those rules will be strengthened." Finds Better Mouse Trap, Prepares for Parade

Mail Order Educator Trains Thousands Of War Workers

Vocational Schools' Founder Has Had Alger-Like Career

By KATE HOLLIDAY, Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—I have just met Ralph Hemphill, a man who took this country's opportunity and made the most of it.

At 48, he is sole owner of about 80 vocational schools throughout the country. He is sole owner of a mail-order educational system which teaches thousands of men how to make a living. He has outlets in 21 cities in this country, instructs an average of 30,000 persons annually, and is branching into Latin America. And he has only a partial high school education.

He began his endeavors after the last war, in which he was an airplane ground mechanic. Up to 1917, he had been an automotive worker and a salesman.

Mr. Hemphill has plunged three times into education. He has bet three times on spheres of industry which he believed ultimately would prove valuable to the world. And, three times, he has hit the jackpot.

Began in 1920. It began in 1920, when he contracted for a school in Oakland, Calif. This was one of many in a rehabilitation project which the Government had undertaken for ex-soldiers. He was 26, knew very little about schools, but he soon made $20,000 and branched into larger fields. In the next three years he investigated the educational needs of various types of industry and, in 1929, opened a school for instruction in Diesel engineering in Vancouver, British Columbia.

The Diesel was then in its infancy, as far as the United States was concerned. But Canada had taken to it because of its cheapness. Instead of paying 30 to 60 cents a gallon for gasoline, Diesel users there paid a fraction of this for fuel to run trucks, mining equipment and so forth.

Canada needed mechanics and maintenance men. Mr. Hemphill saw that Canada got them. Later the United States also cried for aid. So he went to work in this country, opening schools across the land.

This initial expansion occurred in the midst of the depression. But he reasoned that, with the cheapness of Diesel power, its sales would benefit from a lack of money. That it did is well known, of course, and from this came the corner stone of the Hemphill educational empire.

Entered Aircraft Field. His next major venture was in the field of aircraft. In the manufacture of planes and the training of men to build them. This, up to 1936, when the first Hemphill project went into effect, had never been touched. Men learned how to construct planes the hard way, by a slow apprenticeship with a skilled mechanic. They could not get knowledge out of books.

But Mr. Hemphill changed all that. He was responsible, to a large extent, for the quick teaching of mechanics in the present war. His courses, or variations of them, are being used by the Army, Navy, aircraft manufacturers and the Canadian government. His school at Glendale, Calif., for instance, has been taken over completely by the Army, which now teaches soldiers the maintenance of all types of planes.

Two years ago Mr. Hemphill made his third plunge. This time the sphere was plastics. Through a Du Pont connection he devised a series of courses in this highly technical subject, which, incidentally, is not only of tremendous importance now, but which will be the namesake of the post-war era. Hemphill schools for plastics training are now in operation in 20 cities.

As a sideline, he also owns two flying schools. These are the official training centers for the University of Southern California and Pasadena Junior College.

Graduates 30,000 Yearly. The figures on his endeavors are staggering. As I said before, Ralph Hemphill graduates about 30,000 students from his schools per year. Three thousand of these receive education by mail in the United States. Another 1,800 do so in Latin America. More than 6,000 workers in factories receive "home study" courses, both in America and Canada. Schools soon will be opened in Mexico and, Mr. Hemphill hopes, the other countries to the south.

Ralph Hemphill teaches America how to use its hands. And did not even finish high school.

The answer is that he is and was a salesman. He was also a mechanic. He knew a mechanic's problems and could therefore lick the outstanding bugs in mechanical courses.

He has not been infallible, of course. He once risked $45,000 on a new type of airplane. It didn't work.

But, for the most part, he has made a success. Out of nothing. Just like Horatio Alger's heroes.

Federal Lottery Plan Broached Again in House Measure

Ramsay Bill Embodies Scheme Giving Return To Each Ticket Buyer

By the Associated Press. A new congressional drive for a Federal lottery, with War bonds as the prizes, got under way today.

Backing it was Representative Ramsay, Democrat, of West Virginia, who introduced legislation authorizing the Treasury Department to operate a lottery plan developed by Ernest W. Fogel, Beaver, Pa.

Unlike some systems, Mr. Fogel's plan would guarantee some return to every ticket holder. Each ticket will sell for $1.25.

Mr. Ramsay said conservative estimates of monthly sales would be about 20,000,000 tickets, or a dollar volume of $20,000,000. Most of this would be profits for the Government, under whose supervision the lotteries would be operated. Monthly cash awards would range from a high of $46,875 to the first winner, $37,500 for second and 4,000 awards of 18.75 each. All cash prizes would be paid in War bonds.

The maximum operating cost was estimated by Mr. Ramsay at about 10 per cent of total sales. Deducting this and the amount of prizes from the total, the Government, he

Numerous lottery proposals have been introduced in the past, but Congress to date has frowned on them as an unethical way of raising money. One of the most persistent lottery boosters, Representative Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, said he would renew at the next session his drive for lottery legislation which he estimated would yield the Government about $1,000,000,000 annually.

Mr. Knutson's proposal is for an outright lottery managed by the Government, with prizes similar in value to those given in the Irish Sweepstakes drawings.

Jo Davidson Does Norris in Clay; Where's Bronze?

By the Associated Press. Sculptor Jo Davidson came to Senator Norris' office one day last month and asked the veteran Nebraska Independent to sit for him.

He has done so—every day, even Sunday, since Thanksgiving. Now there's a clay bust of the 81-year-old Senator who concludes a 39-year congressional career this month, but Senator Norris doesn't know.

Where Davidson is going to get the bronze to cast the bust; Where, if any place, the statue will turn up, or Who's going to pay for it. "I never thought of asking Davidson," Senator Norris told reporters.

Philippine Mopping-Up Virtually Over, Japs Say

By the Associated Press. TOKIO (From Japanese Broadcasts), Dec. 2.—Imperial Japanese headquarters announced today "the virtual termination of mopping-up operations in the Philippines" against American and Filipino remnants holding out in mountainous or other inaccessible parts of the islands.

(Despite past claims of having wiped out all resistance, the headquarters statement confirmed that survivors from the defending army had waged a bitter if hopeless fight for six months or more after the fall of Bataan and Corregidor.)

Headquarters reports said "the bulk of these American and Filipino marauders have been annihilated." In operations from August until October, it was stated, imperial forces achieved these "outstanding war results": 3,940 enemy bodies abandoned, 2,000 enemy troops taken prisoners, seizure of 33 rapid-fire guns, 71 heavy and light machine guns, 105 automatic rifles, 7,458 other firearms, 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 44 motor cars.

Southeast Council Urges Anacostia Area Hospital

Some members were of the opinion that the proposed hospital should be in the vicinity of Nichols and Alabama avenues S.E., but it was pointed out that due to the war it would be difficult to obtain a site and that the matter of priorities must be considered. A committee was appointed, with S. G. Deckman as its chairman, to look into these obstacles and to carry the plea to the proper authorities.

Additional policemen for No. 11 police precinct were again recommended by the association. More police protection was stressed because of the increase in population in the area and the large amount of territory which the precinct covers.

Mrs. Charles H. Hagerly was elected secretary, succeeding Mrs. Loretta S. Landon. William J. Smith, president, presided at the meeting.

U. S. Guard Is Sentenced For Criminal Operation

A sentence of from 10 months to 3 years in prison was imposed by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Court yesterday on Claude E. America, Government building guard, convicted of performing a criminal operation on a 20-year-old Federal worker.

America was convicted by a District Court jury in July. The alleged act occurred in June, three months after the girl employe came here from her home in Wisconsin. Assistant United States Attorney Cecil Hefflin prosecuted the case.

Civilian Defense Songwriters Await Reaction

Judges Find Novelty in Some of Rhymes Submitted for Capital To Sing in Wartime Theme Song

What rhymes with civilian defense? A trio of judges found the answer to that today, when they sat down to determine which of a score or more entries should be chosen the theme song for the District's civilian defense.

Actually, civilian defense was given the go-by in most of the musical efforts. One of the authors rhymed civilian defense with "a chance," but the rest of them let it alone.

In most cases, music went along with the offerings, but there were a few contributions of sheer poesy and one author suggested that his song be sung to "Lights Out Sweetheart."

Two on One Sheet.
 This author submitted two contributions, explaining that on the other side of the sheet he had written the verse for the Washington area.

"The above," he said, simply, "is for the whole country."

There was a touch of poetic license in his offering.

"Blackout, lights out,
 Five short blasts is what you'll hear," the verse begins.
 "Blackout's all clear
 Is three long blasts, then three long cheers," the poet ended.

The people who make the sirens wail might carp about the poet being misinformed on the warning. The "three long cheers" is something else again.

Another Blackout Gem.
 Another nearby contributor sounded a different note.

"Our house has blackout curtains,
 No light is seen from the sky,
 When the whistle blows,
 We just go below,
 Without asking the reason why."

This contributor's warden had apparently sold her on the subway life because she comes back to that refrain in the final stanza.

"Our wardens serve without medals,
 They never get any dough,
 But you'll hear them shout,
 In every blackout,
 'The cellar's the place to go.'"
 Most of the contributors leaned

YMCA Open House Committee Named

Ross H. Snyder yesterday was named chairman of the New Year Day Open House Committee of the Central Young Men's Christian Association.

Assistants will be Thomas W. Dobson, George E. Harris, David Linden, Harry V. Porter, Dean V. Peterson and Dudley F. Holtman. YMCA staff members also serving on the committee include L. W. DeGast, general secretary of the Central "Y"; Ralph W. Foster, R. H. Gaber, Dr. James A. Bell, E. S. LaPetra and P. B. McKillip.

Tentative plans for the "open house" program, to be held on January 1, include a dance for servicemen, a square dance and numerous other events.

War job for housewives! Help make explosives by saving every drop of waste kitchen fats. Take them to your meat dealer.

heavily on the Stars and Stripes, the "grand old U. S. A." (to rhyme with "this is no childish fray"), the light of liberty, the dear old flag and those saps, the Japs.

Must Fight to Win.
 One and all agreed that we would win, but it would take some doing— "Up and at it," "Wake up, America," "We'll not let you down" (to rhyme with old Uncle Sam).

The three judges—Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra who stayed over after last night's concert to help judge; Art Brown of the Capitol Theater and Station WOL, and Miss Alice Eversman, music editor of The Star—expected to make their decision today.

After the first few hours of trying to decide what the civilian defenders will henceforth sing, they may take comfort from this bit of advice:

"The volunteers are ready.
 'Do be jolly, please,
 You can bet your newest tires on the O.C.D.'"

"SO MUCH MORE SUDS it just made my old soap look foolish!"

Mrs. Marguerite Shepherd couldn't get over the suds miracle she saw in this MILK-BOTTLE TEST. Won't you please try it, too?

"UNTIL TODAY I THOUGHT I COULDN'T DO BETTER THAN THESE SUDS. BUT NOW THEY SURE LOOK STINGY AND LOOK STINGY AND PUNY. IN LESS THAN FIVE MINUTES THEY WERE PRETTY NEAR GONE, TOO."

"LAND'S SAKE! LOOK AT ALL THESE EXTRA SPUNKIER SUDS FROM SUPER SUDS! AND THE LONGER THE TWO BOTTLES STOOD, THE MORE SUPER SUDS SHOWED UP THE OTHER SOAP."

"LOOK AT ALL THAT UNDISSOLVED STUFF THAT STICKS TO CLOTHES. THAT'S WHY I HAD TO RINSE AND RINSE. AND IT CERTAINLY ISN'T MAKING SUDS, EITHER."

"NO BIG UNDISSOLVED PIECES—ALL OF SUPER SUDS SEEMS TO GO TO WORK—A BIG SAVING!"

MAYBE you're "from Missouri" about "more-suds" claims. Frankly, we kind of hope you are—because then you'll be more likely to make this easy milk-bottle test. Use whatever granulated soap you have on hand. Just put two teaspoonfuls of it and a glass of water (even cold, hard water) into a milk-bottle. Shake both with new sudsier Super Suds in another milk-bottle. Shake both bottles and compare them. That's all there's to the test. Just a couple of minutes of your time to find out how to get more suds... and get clothes whiter and cleaner with less scrubbing!

Reynaud's Protests To Petain, Laval on Eve of Arrest Revealed

Former Premier Calls on Marshal to Specify Guarantees on Life

By PAUL GHALL, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.
ON THE FRENCH FRONTIER. Dec. 2.—Copies of three telegrams addressed by former French Premier Paul Reynaud to Marshal Petain and to Pierre Laval on the eve of Reynaud's arrest by the Nazis have just reached your correspondent. These dramatic last messages speak for themselves and their texts are given here in full without comment.

November 11, 1942.—Paul Reynaud to Marshal Petain: "At the moment when German troops are entering Port Portalet (in the Pyrenees, where Reynaud had been in detention), I turn to you to ask what guarantees you intend securing in order to save the life of your former chief."

November 11, 1942.—Paul Reynaud to Pierre Laval: "German soldiers are taking over the guard of Port Portalet. I am ready to sacrifice my life, but insist that you assume full responsibility from now on for the serious events which may supervene so that you cannot plead your ignorance on the day of reckoning."

November 12, 1942.—Paul Reynaud to Marshal Petain: "I do not know what fate is reserved for me, but I am prepared for anything since enemy troops have entered Portalet, to which you condemned me without even judging me, without even allowing me to defend myself. I sacrifice my life, but must remind you that it was I, your chief, who called upon you to join the government, and I am proud to believe today that had my policy been pursued it would have safeguarded the honor of the French Army, the French Navy, the French people and the French empire."
 Paul Reynaud was taken prisoner by the Nazis a few days after sending these telegrams. He was last heard of in Bordeaux on November 21.

War Boosts High Schools Toward Grid Peak

War conditions being what they are, with the resultant drafting of many boys who otherwise would be college students, and the manpower shortage, which figures to eat into pro ranks, it may be that by the time another gridiron season rolls around our high school teams will be pretty much top dog in football.

The more pessimistic sports observers already see an end to college and professional football for the duration and even those who view the situation through rose-colored glasses admit that these branches of the sports are due for plenty of curtailment. Even if enough athletes of college and professional age and ability are around, the transportation situation will be difficult to solve. Mr. Eastman and his ODT organization as yet haven't forbidden travel by athletic teams, but they constantly are asking all the curtailment possible.

All this leaves the high schools in a good position to earn a more important place in the public eye. They are prepared to do just that. The draft doesn't affect them to an appreciable degree. Transportation is the least of their worries. In Washington it can handle right in its own back yard. There were 18 schools in and around the city with football teams this season and nine is planning to drop the sport next year. Nearly all have stadiums as part of the school plant, so transportation not only will be no problem for the teams, but spectators as well will have little traveling to do.

Contests Only Part of Extensive Program

This, in a way, the high schools are having a more important position thrust upon them. They are taking over by default, as it were, but in addition, they are making their own bid for prominence. This was coming, regardless of the war; it just happens that the war is hastening the process.

Hardy Pearce, head of the department of health and physical education in Capital schools, has planned a football program he hopes will find favor with the public. The principal purpose of the schools' physical education program is to turn out healthier boys and girls, better equipped in mind and body to cope with modern living conditions. One immediate purpose is to have the boys leaving high school for the armed services better able to meet the tough physical standards set by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. They have to be able to stand the gaff more now than ever before.

This program has been in effect only this year and it seems to be doing all it was intended to do. Interhigh football competition, and competition in other sports, merely is the window dressing. It's the part the public, the parents of today's schoolboys see. If football, baseball, basketball and track are better it will prove, or at least bring to public attention, the fact that the schools' physical fitness program is working as planned. Only a small percentage of the general public will read charts or long lists of comparative figures on the advance of physical education, but many persons will get an idea that the program is better if they see in the window dressing of interhigh competition some real forward steps.

Return to Round-Robin Series Sought

Competition was better this year and the improvement is steady. The boys taking part in interhigh sports are the best discovered and developed in the gymnasium classes and by the intra-mural programs. Classes and intra-mural work really have a more important place in the programs than outside competition, but never will earn the recognition given to competitive sports.

Thus if the schools turn out better teams and have a real program the public can see the good results. And with the war making a prominent place for high schools in sports it is a good time to formulate a program to please the public and to show it what it is buying with its tax money.

To this end Pearce has made several recommendations regarding a change in the football competition set-up. He recommends that the Board of Education, but it is likely Pearce's program will be adopted.

He recommends a return to the round-robin football series. Each of the eight schools would play every other school in the public high series. This would make seven games for each in its own group and still leave room for one game against such outside competition as Gonzaga, St. Johns, Washington-Lee, George Washington High, etc. It wouldn't be robbing these other schools of a chance to get full schedules with good teams.

Turkey Dew Playoff Helps Athletic Treasury

At the end of the round-robin the two top teams, even though they had met before, would meet in a championship playoff. This would give a break to a team that comes along strong at the end of the season, as did Woodrow Wilson this year. Wilson didn't have a chance, though, because it made a slow start.

The title playoff would be on Thanksgiving Day afternoon. Pearce doesn't want to drop that. The 8,000 spectators at this year's playoff between Central and Tech were a big help to the athletic treasury.

Another suggested change would lengthen the time of quarters from 10 to 12 minutes. It seems a small thing, but it would have been done long ago. Practically every class A high and prep school in the country except those in the District plays 12-minute quarters. The extra eight minutes in a football game can mean much and certainly if our high school students are expected to step from school into the armed forces the best of them playing on the football teams can stand 48 minutes of a game. Few, if any, play the entire game anyway with the free substitution rule in force and with the larger squads of well-conditioned boys the schools now have.

Part of Frosh in Increased Grid Scoring Is Debatable

Midwest, Not Using Them, Rocky Mountain, Where They Play, Only Sectors to Gain

By HAROLD CLAASSEN,

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Whether freshman football players, given 1942 varsity status in many sectors because of the war's manpower demands, increased or decreased the scoring still is open to question, although the season is virtually over.

The Associated Press' 21st annual scoring survey, involving 193 teams scattered throughout the country, shows that only two sections showed a gain in the average number of points in a game compared with similar figures of a year ago.

One of the sectors was the Midwest, where the Big Ten and the Big Six Conferences did not use the freshman rule, where the Rocky Mountain area, where the fresh were welcomed.

South and East Decline. The Southern and Eastern districts, where use of the freshmen was common, showed a decline as did the Far West and Southwest which followed the Midwest in not allowing the freshmen to play.

However, the Midwest and Rocky Mountain sector increased their scoring to such an extent that the entire country showed a gain.

A year ago the teams averaged 14.54 points a game. This season the 193 schools collected 24,081 points in 1,601 contests for an average of 15.04, the highest since 16 points was registered in 1930. The record average, 19 points, was set in 1922.

Along with the increase in the average game scoring, the team totals for the season also took a decided leap, zooming to 124,77. That

Robinson Boosts Stock With Win Over Jannazzo

Referee Stops Welter Bout as Izzy Takes Beating in Eighth

By LARRY SMITH,

Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—Ray Robinson, Inc., isn't listed on the New York Stock Exchange but many a fight fan wished today he owned a slice of the stock.

The company, whose business is fighting by the president and treasurer, Mr. Robinson—better known as Sugar—last night eliminated a business competitor, Welterweight Izzy Jannazzo, of the Cleveland News' 17th annual Christmas fund show at the arena.

"Eliminated" is the word, for the 148½-pound Jannazzo absorbed such a barrage of lefts and rights in the eight stanza of their scheduled 10-rounder that Robinson was awarded a technical knockout while a crowd of 12,190 that paid $47,934.90 to watch the program roared its approval.

Jannazzo—Stout-hearted. Robinson, weighing 145, delivered a volley of lefts and rights to Jannazzo's face during most of the first seven rounds. In the eighth Sugar slammed Izzy all over the ring and finally floored him for a count of nine. Robinson resumed his deadly attack after Jannazzo arose and Referee Jackie Davis halted it after 2 minutes and 43 seconds of the round.

Jannazzo probably could have saved himself a lot of punishment by not mixing it with Robinson, but he was long on courage. Every time Jannazzo landed one blow he took three or four in return from Robinson. Izzy even staggered Sugar with a hard right in the fifth, but that only brought on a flurry of hard lefts and rights from Sugar.

Bobo Knocks Out Lane. The match was the second between Robinson and Jannazzo in recent weeks. Izzy dropped a 10-round decision to Robinson in Philadelphia but was outclassed thoroughly last night by the unbeaten Sugar. Robinson won 134 fights, amateur and pro.

It took big Harry Bobo of Pittsburgh, 211-pound aspirant for the world heavyweight championship, only two minutes and 49 seconds of the opening stanza to knock out Larry Lane of Trenton, N. J., in a bout listed for 10 rounds. Lane weighed 191.

Ezzard Charles, 21-year-old Cincinnati light heavyweight at 166, gave away 18 pounds in a 10-round rematch with Heavyweight Joe Maxim of Cleveland, but this was no handicap as Charles registered his second win of the year over the Clevelander.

Berger, Pirrone Win.

In an eight-round battle Maxie Berger of Montreal, 143, won a decision over Bobby Richardson, 150, of Cleveland. Richardson outpunched Berger in several rounds, but lost three because of low blows.

Dick Chamer, 139, of New York, Ray Robinson's sparring partner, made a quick exit in his scheduled four-round opener with Joey Pirrone, 137, of Cleveland. Pirrone chalked up a technical knockout in 33 seconds of the first round.

Vanderbilt Would Halt Help for Athletes

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 2.—Athletic Commissioner M. C. Conner of the Southeastern Football Conference has received a proposal from Vanderbilt University to outlaw all athletic scholarships in the league for the duration.

Under the plan scholarships now in existence would not be affected. The conference meeting in Knoxville, Tenn., December 11-12 probably will vote on the proposal, Conner says.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 2.—Eastern Air Lines will pilot for a few days but the $5,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament will gain a well-remembered competitor.

More than 100 players are expected to tee off in the tournament.

Blackhawks Use All-Brother Line

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—For the first time this season the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team will present an all-brother line—the three Bentleys, Doug, Max and Reggie—in tomorrow night's game with the New York Rangers.

Injuries forced Manager Paul Thompson to put Bill Thoms on defense and pave the way to forward Reggie Bentley into the forward line with his brothers, both regulars and holdovers from last year. Reggie is playing his first season with the Hawks.

The all-brother line is believed to be the first in the National Hockey League.

Isbell in Easy Spot To Beat Out Baugh For Aerial Title

Green Bay Star Needs Six Completions in His Final Contest

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The race for forward passing honors in the National Football League appears headed for a photo finish between Washington's Sammy Baugh and Green Bay's Cecil Isbell.

Baugh was back in first place this week, official tabulations disclosed today. Leading Isbell in both completions (132 to 129) and in percentage of completions (.87 to .84). However, his small edge in completions may not stand up against Isbell's efforts in the Packer star's final game Sunday against the Pittsburgh Steelers. Baugh already has completed his league schedule.

Isbell could tie Baugh for first place on points by completing five passes against the Steelers and might get first call on the title, since he already holds an advantage in touchdowns passed (21 to 16) and in total yards gained (1,778 to 1,524). This would make him the first player to win the passing championship two years in a row.

Already have better records for the most passes in one season, most yards gained by passing and most touchdowns.

Player	Att.	Gain.	Avg.
Ducy, Pittsburgh	115	601	5.2
Condit, Brooklyn	115	557	4.8
Rime, Pittsburgh	93	443	4.8
Pfeiffer, Bear	100	418	4.2
Goldberg, Chi. Cards	111	361	3.3

Lou Daddio of the Chicago Cards led the field-goal kickers with 5. Field-goal hero Don Hutson, who already has broken every record in this season, remained far ahead in the pass-receiving department with 73. Dante Manenti of Cleveland was next with 24.

Big Ten Grid Laurels True to Statistics; Graham Unusual

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Statistical championships in the 1942 Western Conference football race, unlike the surprising season itself, have gone just where they were expected—the team honors to Ohio State and the individual laurels to Otto Graham and Gene Fekete.

Final conference figures released today showed Ohio State, league champion and No. 1 team of the Nation in the Associated Press poll, easily the Big Ten's leader in offense and second in Minnesota in defense.

Among the individuals, Graham carried off total offense and forward passing honors despite the fact his Northwestern team failed to win a game. Fekete, Ohio State sophomore fullback, led in scoring, in ball carrying, and was fifth in total offense.

Punting honors went to Earl Dowday of Indiana, while Jim Brieske, substitute Michigan center, led in conversions after touchdowns, getting 15 in 16 tries. No more than one field goal was kicked by any single player, and only four goals in all were made in the season.

Philly Berth for Terry Would Entail Oratory

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Should Bill Terry become associated with the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, he'll have to brush up on his after-dinner speaking, says Jimmy Wilson, Chicago Cubs manager.

Wilson, former Phillies' manager, said that once he made 51 dinner and luncheon talks in 40 days. "But it didn't do much good in Philly, because we kept on losing. Nobody has found a substitute yet for winning."

Griff Dispairs of Making Any Trades at Chicago Meeting

Lays Foundations for Swaps; Will Curtail Training; 'Everybody Scared,' Says Bluege

By BURTON HAWKINS,

Star Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Clark Griffith, the 73-year-old pre-idea of the Nats, flopped exhausted on his bed after a day of wrangling at the Major League's annual winter meeting here and said wearily, "These danged meetings wear me out. It doesn't look like we'll do any trading here. All those other fellows want to talk about are George Case, Stan Spence and Dutch Leonard. But I think we're laying the foundation for some swaps later."

"I'm gonna cut our spring exhibition games drastically. We've been playing 30 games or so, but this year I think we'll cut it in half. I can't tell yet just how many games we'll play because I haven't gotten the ideas of the other clubs. We're supposed to play the Yankees in Orlando, for instance, but I wouldn't be surprised if they canceled that one."

"Yes, we'll go back to Orlando. I have a contract with Orlando for another year and, besides, I don't believe we could get any closer to Washington and be guaranteed good weather. We'll probably start training later and do a lot of playing among ourselves rather than travel all over Florida. The games we play will be near by Orlando or in Orlando. We won't be traveling to Miami, Miami Beach, West Palm Beach or St. Petersburg."

No Startling Announcements. "I won't know if I get 28 night games until the joint meeting of the Nats. Also seeking Leonard is Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees."

The Browns made the Nats an offer but nothing will come of it. They said they'd be happy to part with Pitches Eiden Auker and a character named Dillinger who played third base for Toledo last season, providing Washington would send St. Louis Pitcher Paul Dean and infielder Jimmy Pofahl. Block and suggested trade was the fact Washington bosses had been informed Dillinger shortly will enter the Army.

The Nats' quest of either Oscar Grimes or Russ Peters of the Indians probably is a case of disappointment. The Indians have been notified that Second Baseman Ray Mack might remain at his defense plant job and that First Baseman Les Fleming is likely to be forced to play Grimes at first and Peters at second.

"Everybody is scared to death," says Manager Bluege. "The minute you start asking about one of their players they come back with a proposition that's equivalent to taking your whole club. I don't believe there will be much trading at this meeting."

"We may not even make a deal here," agrees Prexy Griffith. "Seems the best we can hope for is that we'll do enough talking to set the stage for deals later."

Cardinals Renew No Minor Agreements, Will Reduce Scouts, Says Bredon

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Sam Bredon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he had not renewed any minor league working agreements for 1943 and that he also intended reducing his scouting staff.

One of the scouts expected to go is Frank Riskey, brother of Branch Riskey, who recently left his post as vice president of the Cardinals to become president of the Brooklyn Dodgers. However, Bredon said Frank Riskey still was on the St. Louis payroll.

Bredon said no connections would be concluded with minor league clubs until the outlook for players becomes clearer. He had reached informal understandings with one or two clubs.

"We want to help whatever clubs we can, but right now we don't know how many or what players will be available, and we are not in a position to send assistance to any one," he concluded.

Feders for Bowl Bids Both Go This Year

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 2.—With Alabama and Tennessee both headed for bowl games this season, something new has been added to their long-standing bowl feud.

For five years the winner of their annual regular season game has come to a bowl but the loser has missed a bid. This year, although Alabama was thrice defeated, both are headed for post-season bowls.

Two Maryland Sophs Brighten Outlook For Basketball

Seen as Help to Travis And Mont; Good Boxing Squad Awaits Coach

By the Associated Press.

Winter sports held the spotlight on the University of Maryland campus with prospects good for winning teams in both basketball and boxing this season.

Ernie Travis and Tommy Mont, who accounted for 63 per cent of the Old Liners' court totals last year, are back in harness and expected to generate most of the power on the quintet, but this time they may have some badly needed help.

Coach Burt Shipley, beginning his 20th season at the helm, is counting on Paul Flick and Jack Huffman, both outstanding as freshmen, to add a punch to the attack.

Quigley Tuning Scrapers. The boxing situation is hopeful although Prof. George Quigley, faculty adviser for the sport, still is casting about for a successor to Coach Bobby Goldstein, now serving in the Army. In the interim Quigley, a keen student of the game and able student of his mitts, is directing the team's early training sessions. The most serious loss from last year is that of Hotsy Alperstein, crack welterweight, who was graduated.

Travis, reverting to basket ball, hung up a new scoring record for the Washington Metropolitan Area last season, ringing the bell with 327 points in 22 games. Mont trailed with 180 but stood out like the proverbial sore thumb among a dozen other contenders whose total added up to a meager 297.

Flick, a 212-pound, 6-foot 3-inch husky, is agile and fast and is expected to be a tremendous help under the backboard retrieving stray shots. He also displayed a fairly good scoring eye for the fresh last season. Huffman, 6-foot 1-inch guard, is a good defensive man and an excellent shot.

Other Promising Talent. Also winning favor in Ship's eyes are Bob James and Don Schuerholz, lettermen; Jim Kinsman and Jim Horn, both of whom have had some varsity experience. The starting quintet probably will be picked from those mentioned, with Eddie Baltz and Carlton S. Eimer, also lettermen, and Julian Anderson and Jack Brenner supplying the reserve power.

Basket ball and boxing schedules are as follows: December 16, Richmond; January 1, North Carolina; 9, Virginia; 12, Penn.; 19, Wake Forest; 23, Washington and Lee; 24, Lexington; 16, V. M. I.; at Jacksonville, George Washington at Washington; 30, Navy; at Annapolis; February 4, Virginia at Charlottesville; 6, Army at West Point; 13, Duke; 13, Washington and Lee; 16, North Carolina at Chapel Hill; 17, Duke at Durham; 20, Georgetown; 23, William and Mary; 25, V. M. I.

January 9, U. S. Coast Guard Academy; 16, Western Maryland at Westminster; 16, Maryland at Lexington; 23, Virginia at Lexington; 26, North Carolina at Chapel Hill; N. C. Wake Forest; 27, Wake Forest (ending); February 4, Richmond at Lexington; 9, Virginia Tech at Blacksburg; 16, George Washington at Washington; 19, William and Mary at Williamsburg; 20, Richmond at Blacksburg; 26, Virginia at Charlottesville; February 6, Army at West Point; 13, Catholic U.; 20, North Carolina.

Curri Made Captain. COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Charles Curri of Cleveland, described by Coach Paul Brown as the Midwest's outstanding tackle, has been elected to captain the 1943 Ohio State University football team.

Majors at Odds Over Make-up Of Baseball

National for Rubber, Junior Loop Desires Cork for Center

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The major leagues returned to their wartime baseball discussions today still at odds over night-game schedules and what should constitute a standard baseball for the duration.

It was considered likely that both differences would be settled tomorrow when the National and the American Leagues meet jointly with Commissioner K. M. Landis. Meantime, separate sessions continued today, with still no semblance of a player deal in the offing.

The National League voted yesterday that each team be restricted to seven night games in 1943. The American League agreed a maximum of 14 for clubs other than Washington, which was allowed 28 on Clark Griffith's contention that the Senators were the only team in Washington and that most workers had daytime hours.

Differ on Ball Cores. The question of an official wartime baseball was taken up because of a rubber and cork shortage. Both leagues would use re-processed materials, but the National asked a rubber core while the American voted for a cork center. The National League said it was its intention to use a reported 1,000,000 rubber cores now available with the manufacture of golf balls halted.

The majors, however, were in agreement on these subjects: 1. To hold the 1943 All-Star game at Philadelphia's Shibe Park July 7, with the American League as the home team and proceeds going to baseball's "ball and bat" fund. 2. To maintain the present player limit of 25 for each club. 3. To extend the present major-league agreement for another year.

A three-point request from Joseph Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, that baseball travel be curtailed came in for some attention by the American League, which ordered all its clubs to review spring training plans and to cut down on travel where possible. The result might be a number of changes in exhibition schedules.

Phils' Problem Complicated. The National League, however, became wrapped up in the financial plight of the Philadelphia Phils. President Ford Frick said the league's Board of Directors was working on three plans to solve the Phils' money problems, but added that he doubted a solution would be found during the Chicago meetings.

Frick also disclosed that a fourth plan, one in which "Bill Terry could fit into the picture," was abandoned yesterday. He hastened to add, however, there might be other propositions forthcoming and that abandoning of this one did not mean that Terry, who resigned Monday as farm director of the New York Giants, might not turn up in Philadelphia.

U. C. L. A. Eleven Has Best Chance to Be Georgia's Opponent in Rose Bowl

Seems Certain Choice If U. S. C. Is Beaten On December 12

Tie Might Even Suffice, But Loss to Trojans Would Mess Matters

By FRANK FRAWLEY, Associated Press Sports Writer. PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 2.—Walter Butts, who coaches the University of Georgia football team, has the choice of scouting his potential Rose Bowl opponents Saturday in Los Angeles or San Antonio, Tex.

Washington State plays Texas Aggies in San Antonio and there's one of those bizarre base-line attractions here, a marathon double-header bringing together U. C. L. A.'s Bruins and the University of Idaho and University of Southern California's Trojans against Montana.

Los Angeles is Best Bet. Los Angeles might be the better bet for Butts. The weather is nice at this time of the year in both places, but the trip to San Antonio probably would be a pleasure junket for the Bruins.

In fact, it's hard to see how Washington State is going to get into the New Year game. The Cougars undoubtedly have a good football team. They have lost only one game this season, but it was to Southern California, 26 to 12, and they have closed their Pacific Coast Conference season with five victories and a scoreless tie with the University of Washington.

If U. C. L. A. beats the Trojans here December 12 it's U. C. L. A. against Georgia, for by that time the Bruins will have six victories, one defeat and no ties in conference competition. If the Trojans win this city battle, U. C. L. A. is out of consideration with two defeats, and Washington State then is tied with Washington in the standing, but has that 26-12 decision against it.

It all assumes, of course, that Trojans and Bruins win their games this week against Montana and Idaho, respectively. If U. C. L. A. and U. S. C. battle to a tie the Trojans are out of it and U. C. L. A. and Washington State share first place.

U. S. C. is out of it, so if the Bruins win or get a tie against U. S. C. it seems likely they'll get the New Year nod. U. S. C.'s inter-sectional record is perfect, for the opposition, with defeats at the hands of Tulane, Ohio State and Notre Dame and still another licking from Stanford.

Stanford, with five wins and two losses on the coast, may be the strongest club, but it lost its first three games at Washington State, Santa Clara and Notre Dame, and later was dumped by U. C. L. A., 20 to 7, so it seems likely the Palo Alto Indians have closed their schedule, and impressively, by thrashing previously unbeaten St. Mary's Navy Pre-Flights, 28 to 13.

WDGA to Install Officers At Luncheon Tomorrow. Mrs. Walter L. Weible, president of the Women's District Golf Association for the past two years, will be installed for another year at the annual luncheon meeting of the WDGA at Kenwood Country Club.

With her will be installed the following officers: First vice president, Mrs. J. H. Bullard; second vice president, Mrs. P. Dickinson; secretary, Mrs. E. A. Swink; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Swink; and president, Mrs. J. H. Bullard.

Election of the state is automatic following the report of the Nominating Committee each year. Never have there been nominations from the floor in opposition to the scheduled slate. More than a hundred women are expected to attend the luncheon.

Late in January the new Executive Committee, composed of chairmen of committees at each of the 13 member clubs, will meet to set up a schedule of events for 1943. Mrs. Weible already has declared in favor of continuance of feminine tournaments next year, if held at courses within reach of established public transportation lines.

Sees Hutson Ace As Ballplayer. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Don Hutson, Green Bay's pass-catching genius, has been named the outstanding player in pro football's history, but Al Schacht, baseball's funny man, insists that Hutson would have been even greater on the diamond, provided Hutson could hit.

"He'd be a natural with that quick pickup of his," says Schacht. The participant pays an entry fee of $1.00 for the prelim first league set during qualification week and must shoot the final at the same plant if he qualifies.

Fifty per cent of the contestants at each alley quality and roll the final without charge. Handicaps are based upon averages as of November 28, with the full difference allowed between men's scratch of 129 and women's of 120.

No foul line judge is employed in the preliminary, but one is mandatory in the final, where most of the prizes are distributed. In computing handicaps an entrant's highest league average is used.

Vet Greenleaf Given Chance to Scramble Cue Title Event

Plays Unbeaten Mosconi; Flashes Old-Time Form In Defeating Caras

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Dec. 2.—Once the world's cleverest pool shooter, the veteran Ralph Greenleaf of New York is having trouble making the balls behave now, but he had a chance today to throw the current world pocket billiard tournament wide open.

Greenleaf, below form in recent years after winning the title 17 times, met Willie Mosconi of Jackson, Mich., in one of today's five matches. Mosconi, with three straight victories, was leading the tourney as the only undefeated contender.

Showing a flash of his old style, Greenleaf indulged in a high run of 122 yesterday in defeating Jimmy Caras of Philadelphia, 125 to 52 in seven innings. It was Greenleaf's first victory. Last night he suffered his second defeat, losing to Andrew Ponzl of Philadelphia, 125 to 93 in eight innings.

Greenleaf's high run, record for his world record of 126. He was minus two at the start of the run. But he fell last night before a series of daring call shots by Ponzl, who won his third match in four starts.

Ponzl's only loss was the 125-0 lacing administered by Mosconi in the first day's play. Mosconi, with a high run of 92, trimmed defending champion Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., yesterday, 125 to 45 in 17 innings. It was Crane's second loss in three matches. In a second game last night, Erwin Rudolph of Chicago, Ohio, won from Caras, 125 to 118 in 12 innings.

Jack Adams brought his National Hockey League leading Detroit Red Wings to Boston last night and the reception he received was so hot that six minutes before the game ended eight of the Detroiters were under the showers and hurrying to get out of town.

As it was, the Detroiters were defeated by a 5-to-0 score and the Bruins moved into a second-place tie with the Chicago Blackhawks. Adams, coach of the Red Wings, could have sent his entire team to the dressing room at the end of the first period as the Bruins registered four times in the opening session and then protected their lead the rest of the way.

Don Gallinger getting the fifth counter in the second. It was the first appearance of the season for the Wings in Boston, but in a previous meeting at Detroit the Bruins were blanked, 3 to 0.

The Wings, with 15 points, are only a full game ahead of the Bruins and the Hawks. Boston has moved into second place by winning 6, tying 1 and losing 1 after dropping its first four.

Kansas City Is Eager To Watch Missouri, Seahawks Battle

Getting Chance at First Big Contest in Years, 20,000 May Turn Out

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2.—Ticket sales climbed briskly today as Kansas City football fans—with a chance to see their first major college game at home in many years—heard contrasting practice camp reports that would indicate a close struggle between the Iowa Seahawks and Missouri Saturday.

A crowd of almost 20,000 may see the contest in Ruppert Stadium between the big six conference champions and the underdog Missouri Pre-Flight squad that has bowed only to Ohio State and Notre Dame in nine games this fall.

At Iowa City the former Minnesota master is busy reshuffling his service squad after last week's 42 to 12 loss to Ohio State, the No. 1 team in the nation, and with his staff is doing a rush job of breaking in raw cadet replacements.

Fans who witnessed the Seahawks' impressive debut in the big six field against Kansas will be unable to recognize the team that posted the Jayhawks 61 to 0 in the season opener. In its best physical condition, the team transfers and injuries have robbed the Bierman squad of more than half the athletes who made the jump to Lawrence.

Coach Don Faurot, who has had more than his share of the injury jinx this season, has the Missouri squad in its best physical condition in more than a month, and has banned contact work entirely in an effort to keep the Tigers at a playing peak.

The Bears have been bolstered by the acquisition of several new players, including Charlie Isles, Sonny Woods, Puggy Bell, Zach Clayton and Bus Plummer.

Weaver, Once Eagle Star, Coming Back As Hockey Lion

Joins Club Tomorrow In Cleveland With Grabeski, Simon

Freddy Weaver, a star of the Washington Eagles' line last season, is coming back to Washington, this time in the working clothes of the Washington Lions.

With him is coming Tony Grabeski, a defenseman obtained from Les Canadiens in exchange for Charley Phillips, and Cully Simon, another defenseman, who has been toiling for the Indianapolis Capitals.

The trio are to join the Lions tomorrow night in Cleveland where they tangle with the Barons and will make their home debut Saturday night against the Providence Reds at Uline Arena. Coach George Mantha feels that the additions will bolster the third-place Lions considerably and put them in the thick of the trophy fight.

Pittsburgh's surprising Hornets, trying to overhaul the pace-making Buffalo sextet, will be shooting for their fourth straight victory tonight against Bill Cook's Cleveland aggregation. The Hornets have yet to win from the Barons.

Hershey, making a runaway of the Eastern division race, is host to the second-place Reds tonight and figures to add a couple of points to its total. The Bears, showing 11 victories against three defeats and two ties, are six points in front of the Reds and 16 ahead of Washington.

Pros Not Affected. "I don't mean that every layout should be shortened and made into a miniature course," said Al. "But the average golfer should have a chance to make a respectable score."

Al has been the Prince Georges pro for quite a while. "Prince Georges is one of the longest and toughest courses around town. Al said he had pleaded with members of his golf committee to shorten the course by installing shorter tees, but the move wasn't made.

Wake Forest's Perry Tops Sophs in Last Dixie Loop Tilts. Leads in Defeat of S. C.; Pressed for Honors by De Shazo of V. M. I.

By the Associated Press. RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 2.—Right down to the finish line the Southern Conference's bumper crop of sophomores kept up the sizzling pace it set in the early part of the 1942 football season.

Every one of the five games in which eight of the conference teams participated produced one or more soph stars and leading them was Wake Forest's Russ Perry—the season's last sophomore of the week.

Perry, a 180-pound fullback, with a brilliant record for his first year of varsity play, was one of the Deacons' leading ground gainers in the Thanksgiving Day 33-14 triumph over South Carolina.

In second place, and pressing Perry hard, was Dick De Shazo, V. M. I. back, who played his best game of the year against Virginia Tech.

Buddy Luper of Rocky Mount, N. C., and Gordon Carver of Durham, N. C., were standouts for Duke in the Blue Devils' 10-0 loss to Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

Nick Parkovitch, William and Mary's quarterback, and Johnny Clowes, hefty guard, took a good share of the credit for the Indians' 10-0 win over Richmond, which clinched the Southern Conference title.

Golf to Suffer Unless Duffer Is Given Break, Houghton Says

Backbone of Clubs Discouraged by Unfair Courses, Says Pro, Who'll Toil for U. S.

By WALTER McCALLUM. Golf's duffer deserves and must have the biggest break that has come his way since the first ambitious greens chairman started to make his course one of the tough numbers. And Al Houghton, one of Washington's top golf professionals, on the eve of renouncing a full-time job as a golf pro and becoming a servant of Uncle Sam, thinks Joe Duffer should have this real break.

Prefacing his warning that golf courses must be shortened and made easier with a prediction that if this doesn't happen golf will lose a lot of addicts, Houghton says that when a course is made too tough for the average player it gives him a sense of inferiority and undoubtedly licks him to the point where he gives up the game.

"I don't mean that every layout should be shortened and made into a miniature course," said Al. "But the average golfer should have a chance to make a respectable score."

A 'New Deal' for Guests

Make Room They Are to Occupy Comfortable and Cheerful

By Margaret Newell

Did you ever try spending a night in your own guest room? Probably not. Usually the furnishings are "castoffs" from some other part of the house, such as the uncomfortable beds you put there when you bought new ones for your own room. The drawers in the chest always stuck and you missed the bus every morning after spending 10 minutes trying to get out clean clothes, so you put that item in the guest room, too. The mirror over the dresser was so poor that you started each day with an inferiority complex, so it joined the collection. Now the sum total of the whole thing would fit nicely into a hall of horrors.

This was more or less permissible back in the days when every one drove around in cars and distances were nothing. The guest room was seldom used and reputations for hospitality were made at the luncheon and dinner table. But today dinner guests are invited to spend the week end, relatives come for a month's visit rather than a week and the guest room once again has become the "best" room in the house. With the holidays ahead you are almost certain to have company and it will add much to the holiday soliloquy to offer "bed and board" without a blush.

A comfortable bed is the first and foremost requisite. The bedstead does not matter, do without it if you like and save your money in a good spring and mattress. Then arrange lamps for good lighting. At least one beside the bed and one at the dressing table is minimum. A snap-on light as you enter the room and a standing lamp beside the young chair would be helpful, too. Many drawers for clothing are not essential, as most guests do not stay for weeks, but two are handy. A dressing table with good make-up light is more important.

A small, adequately furnished desk is a great joy. It gives a sense of settled contentment that is most refreshing to the traveler. So does a deep chair with an ottoman or a chaise longue for those moments of snatched relaxation when a round of engagements puts "priorities" on sleep.

Don't be afraid of color in your guest room. Many of us hesitate to be too gay, fearing that we will tire of a vivid color scheme if we have to live with it. But the guest does not have to live with it. The meek and timid ones will love the zest of living up to brilliant colors and the not so meek will feel as though the room was made for them. You will get a lift out of their exclamations of pleasure over the room they are to occupy.

Be as lavish as you can with all the amenities. Satin-smooth sheets, deep pillows, fluffy cotton blankets and light tufted puffs will make your guests feel as though they are visiting royalty. The thermos jug of cold water on the night table, fresh flowers around the room, the new books and current magazines beside the reading chair are small attentions which bring dividends in good friends.

There is a difference in the austerity of a hotel room and the impersonality of a guest room. In your own home, the room should have the small accessories for good living, such as small wall decorations, interesting pictures, decorative bric-a-brac and other details of home comfort. But these things should not be so personal that they give the impression that you have moved out just before the guest moved in. Pictures should be of interest, but not photographs of your own friends and family. Dressing tables should be well appointed with emergency guest-size toilet preparations, though most visitors use their own. Closets and chests should be reserved for guests and should not contain the whole family's evening clothes or the extra blankets in mothballs.

In short, the room should make each guest feel that he has been expected for weeks and will be missed when he leaves. Each need for comfort should be supplied, and the best that the house affords should be offered by a gracious hostess.

Wartime may bring many household difficulties, but the wartime guest is getting a "new deal."

Top-of-Stove Limas

Lima beans "baked" on the top of the stove have much the same flavor and appearance as those that are oven-baked. This method uses a much shorter cooking period.

- QUICK "BAKED" LIMAS. 1 pound dried limas. 2 1/2 cups water. 1 small onion, sliced. 1/4 pound bacon, cut in squares. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 2 tablespoons brown sugar. 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard. 2 tablespoons dark molasses. 2 tablespoons catsup. Soak limas 4 to 5 hours. Add remaining ingredients; simmer until limas are tender; about two hours.

Child's Honesty Behind Unkind Remarks

Teaching Tact and Restraint Every Mother's Task

By Leticia Lee Street

Small Betty was dressed in her daintiest frock, and her curls were still damp where mother had persuaded them to fall in pretty ringlets. Daddy and mother were having an afternoon party, and Betty was much excited over the prospect of meeting the guests, but principally over wearing such a lovely new dress. She wriggled out of her mother's reach as soon as possible and dashed downstairs where she stood, small nose pressed against the window, watching for the first people to arrive.

An elderly woman came to the front door, and Betty promptly opened it for her to enter. The lady smiled and held out her hand, which Betty took politely as she piped, "How do you do?" and dropped a graceful curtsy.

The two eyed each other, smiling. Said Betty suddenly, for no good reason, "I do not like your hat, and you have lots of wrinkles on your face. You must be awful old." She said all this with bright and friendly eyes, and with a sweet, unmalicious smile.

The lady bridled, and scolded, "What a rude child you are!" Betty stared in astonishment, stood for awhile observing the guest uncertainly, and then ran out of the room.

Another child I know, Billy, by name, is a gentle, kind-hearted little boy of 5. He is gentle, that is, where animals and little children are concerned, but he is as lively and boisterous as the next one when he is playing. His mother took him for a train trip one day, and in the station as they were waiting, she suddenly heard Billy's clarion clear voice echo through the large building. He shouted, "Mummy, look! That man has only one leg!"

There might be some stuffy old grown-ups who would raise shocked eyebrows and snort about how ill behaved the children were. Granted that these three youngsters all made remarks that are not considered good taste according to adult standards. Grown-ups are likely to forget that what seems wrong to us seems perfectly all right to a youngster. They live in an entirely different world, their ideas are as foreign to ours as night is to day.

It is not, then, that children who make uncomfortable statements are mean, or rude or vicious, they simply have not yet acquired the sick veneer of "culture" that our civilization and customs demand. Children are unmalicious, forgiving and guileless. They are also utterly honest, and if they do not like something or some one they see no reason to be hypocritical and pretend that they do.

Conforming to custom is a necessity of course, and refraining from making tactless remarks is not hypocritical, it is kind. So a mother must gradually teach her frank and outspoken small fry to realize what is and what is not a polite thing to say, from the viewpoint of kindness to "the other fellow."

She will not succeed if she berates or punishes a child for any bald statement. This only serves to confuse, hurt and frighten the youngsters. He then thinks there is something evil about wrinkles, ugly hats and physical deformities, following the statements of the children above. He is likely to think that what he said is wrong, not the fact that he said it.

Boston Night Club Fire Shows Need For Carrying Clear Identification

By Betsy Caswell

Women's News Editor.

Aside from the horror of its unnecessary tragedy, the fire in the Cocoman night club in Boston should teach women a stern lesson. This is the absolute necessity for carrying means of identification. According to news reports, much of the delay in notifying relatives or friends as to the fate of loved ones caught in the holocaust could have been eliminated had the women present carried or worn something that would identify them. Men, it seems, were quickly identified, in the majority of cases, but authorities were confronted with a serious and well-nigh hopeless problem where the women were concerned. These feminine guests of the ill-fated club were dressed in formal evening gowns, with fur jackets, or evening capes or coats checked or thrown over chair backs. They carried small evening bags, containing, probably, a handkerchief, lipstick, a compact and, perhaps, "mad money." Few had a card or any other missive bearing their names in the bag; and, even if they had, nine chances out of ten the bag would have been separated from its owner in the wild stampede that ended so many lives.

Some bright gals have long since adopted the habit of wearing a bracelet or an anklet with a disc engraved with their name. This is a good idea, but should be carried further to include the wearer's address, or the name and address of her nearest relative as well. Identification tags similar to those worn by our men in the armed forces could be adapted for the ladies. Then the possibility of losing a bag, or a coat in whose pocket some enlightening papers might be tucked, would be a matter of small importance.

In this world of violence, it becomes a vital matter to look at all possibilities and prepare for them. The aftermath of the Boston fire points a dread finger toward what might happen following an air raid on one of our cities. Authorities would be confronted with a problem of major proportions in just the matter of identification alone. To spare families and friends unnecessary anxiety and grief and to aid defense workers to the utmost in the stupendous job that might be theirs, we should make sure, every man, Jack and every girl Jill of us, that we carry on our persons swift means of identification.

This goes for the children, too. Their parents should be attached to them at all times. We hope the need for such identification will never come—we pray earnestly that it will not; if it does not, no harm has been done. But should the grim necessity arise, much sorrow and much confusion will have been avoided.

Manners of the Moment

Seating oneself is an art. It should be learned by every woman, unless she really enjoys being a comic. She should lead, for example, with her whole back, not with just one part of it. She should appear to sink into her chair rather than to angle into it. She shouldn't drop suddenly from the spot where she shifts the weight from her knees to the cushion of the chair. All these are axioms. Every observant woman has noticed how graceful seating can be done. But the part that is not axiomatic is whether or not you yourself live up to your own observations. Half the time a girl doesn't know how she looks while she is in the process of sitting down.

Now, if I have you sufficiently worried, get out the mirror and try sitting down so that you can watch yourself. And, of course, if you're not worried, forget it. What you don't know won't hurt you. JEAN.

A 'Beautiful' Christmas

Luxuries With Practical Touch Are in This Year's Gift Array

By Helen Vogt

Wartime restrictions so far have done little damage to the feminine appearance—as you will discover when you go shopping for cosmetics and beauty aids this Christmas. There are all the perfumes, traveling kits, bath accessories and assorted "pretties" that you possibly could desire for yourself or for gift giving. No Christmas array of presents is ever complete without a few of these "necessary luxuries," so from now until the "last minute," we'll try to suggest some of the newest and smartest.

From one world-famous beauty house comes an imposing collection of beauty aids that should solve many of your problems. "Tops" is their new perfume, a mysterious, haunting aroma, quite heavy and super-sophisticated. (Its popularity has been proved here in the office where a small flacon has disappeared like magic.) Exquisitely packaged in a curved bottle that appears "topical," it is contained in a white and gold box that looks wonderfully expensive. This, very definitely, is a perfume for a chic woman. And it is wonderful!

Buttered Onions Are Welcomed On Menu

Avoid Tearfulness By Paring Them Under Water

By Edith M. Barber

A letter from the American dietitian who is now serving in England with the Harvard unit expressed her delight over the fact that onions had come back on the ration card. Charlotte Raymond had found it as difficult as any one of us would to plan savory meals in the absence of this piquant vegetable.

Onions are more expensive this year than usual, but they are still in the low-cost group. The yellow variety is cheaper than the white, and will do for most purposes. White onions seem to be graded more carefully, and it is easier to get white onions of even size—which we like when we are cooking them to serve whole at the table. Perhaps my favorite method of preparing them in this way is to cook them in butter without water in a heavy utensil with a tight cover. They may also be baked after being prepared in the same way.

I am not particularly fond of vegetables dressed with cream sauce, but make an exception in the case of onions, which lend their flavor to the sauce itself. A good addition is chopped raw celery added at the last moment. Then, of course, there are chopped roasted chestnuts which go even better with onions than they do with Brussels sprouts.

Then there are fried onions, which belong with steak or liver. These are usually "smothered" or sautéed. Sometimes you may go to the trouble of French-frying them, although now these may be purchased in canned form to heat. Just one more note. Always pare onions under water. This will prevent weeping and there will be less of that tell-tale odor on your hands.

SMOTHERED ONIONS.

- 1/4 cup butter or drippings.
- 1/2 teaspoon salt.
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and peel onions and cut in thin slices. Melt butter or drippings in heavy frying pan, add onions and cook over low heat until brown, stirring often. Add more butter, if necessary. Add seasonings. Yield, six servings.

BUTTERED ONIONS.

- 1 1/2 pounds onions.
- 1/4 cup butter.

Wash and peel onions. Melt butter in heavy saucepan, add onions, cover and cook over low heat 25 to 40 minutes, until tender. No seasoning is necessary when onions are cooked in this way, and even strong flavored onions will be sweet and delicate. Yield, six servings.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Long ago Diane de Poitiers said, "The years that a woman subtracts from her own age are not lost. They are added to the ages of other women." The famous beauty was not wrong. However, that is not why women like to be youthful looking. It gives them a thrill to look younger than their friends because that means they look younger than their years. Certain definite ideas exist as to how a woman should look at different ages. These preconceived notions lead us into errors. We are too likely to feel complacent if we stack up pretty well against the average. The rate of aging in the average represents not what is necessary but what is usual.

If we are to follow the example set by many of our sex we will drop sports by the time we are 30. Our only indoor sport will be bridge and our only outdoor sport will be walking back and forth from the car (or bus). By 35 we will have a protruding tummy and the beginning of a dowager's hump, due to poor posture. By 40 we will carry at least 20 pounds more than we considered right for us at 20. We will console ourselves with the idea that we need more weight as we get older.

These age signs and many more are average but they are not necessary. Regular care of the face can keep it youthful looking for years and years. Essentials are facial exercises, meticulous cleansing, lubrication for dry skin, care to avoid lines from mannerisms and frowns, enough sleep, vital food and good health generally.

The above are absolute essentials. Astringents and ice wrapped in cloths and patted on help too.

If you wish to have my facial exercises send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with 15¢ your request for them to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Drama About Russia Today Wins Soviet Indorsement

Gilbert Miller Announces Helen Hayes in Play On Harriet Beecher Stowe

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

Midweek roundup of news, fact and opinion: Mme. Ivy Litvinoff, wife of the Soviet Ambassador, serving as guest dramatic critic, makes it plain that the Embassy wastes no affection on Anton Chekhov's portraits of Russian family life in the pre-Lenin Era. . . . Chekhov's introspections, written in 1900, seem unimportant, and the problems of the "Three Sisters" trivial, when measured beside the tribulations conceived by global war. . . . However, the official representatives of Joseph Stalin are more concerned in building up Konstantin Simonov, war correspondent who writes of Russia today, has the official blessing of the Kremlin. . . . His play, "The Russian People," which debuts here on December 14, is running simultaneously in many Russian theaters. . . . Simonov expresses today's problems and their effect on the people of the U. S. S. R. . . . Where most Russian plays are inclined to be wordy and without dramatic movement, the Simonov script is said to be vital and alive, touching dramatically upon the changes impelled on the average family when Hitler began his invasion on June 22, 1941. . . . Embassy has been approached, will probably accept an invitation to take part in a network broadcast from the National Theater stage on Sunday night, December 13, the program to be sponsored by "We, the People."

Andrew R. Kelley.

Helen Hayes Has New Role. Washington playgoers will welcome the news that Helen Hayes, who has been busy promoting the American Theater Wing and Stage Door Canteens, sees the end of her holiday and will soon return to the footlights. . . . Gilbert Miller will be sponsor of her new play about Harriet Beecher Stowe, called when presented at Syracuse University "Harriet," but to be christened something else for its professional performances. . . . Play is by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements. . . . Since most producers favor Washington as a troupe city, and Gilbert Miller in particular, it is not idle dreaming to expect that Helen Hayes may be at the National Theater sometime late in January.

Cuss Words Deleted. Surprising indeed is the news that the Noel Coward picture, "In Which We Serve," became a problem feature for the Will Hays office. . . . The usually well-mannered British punctuated this story of a destroyer with some salty cuss words. . . . Since it had to have a Production Code seal in order to be released in the United States, the Hays moral minions went into conference. . . . United Artists explained that if some of the proposed deletions were made continuity would be ruined. . . . Impossible to get retakes since most of the cast are on sea duty with the British Navy. . . . Joe Breen was asked to rule on the UA appeal and he decided that the use of several swear words was not bad, but technically a PCA violation. . . . So the feature was passed, and Gradwell Sears, vice president of United Artists calls the deletions minor, not affecting the enjoyment of the story in any way.

Buck Jones Aided U. S. Buck Jones, the cowboy star whose like ended so tragically in the Boston night club fire, was really a war victim. . . . He was making a Nation-wide tour of Army camps for USO, was engaging in bond sales and helping the Navy on recruiting. . . . In Milwaukee he organized a Buck Jones platoon on Navy enlistees, swearing in 64 sailors and pledging aid to their families in the event of casualties. . . . He was doing some promotion for his Monogram Pictures on the side, and it was at one of these parties, arranged by the producers, that he came to his death. . . . When he was luncheon guest at Variety Club on November 24, he and his manager, Scott Dunlap, sat with District Commissioners John Russell Young, Guy Mason and your correspondent, eager listener, while the table debated old-time theatricals. . . . At the request of Commissioner Young he visited the Industrial Home for Boys and the Commissioner loaned him his official car for the trip. . . . While he was 53, Buck Jones was a marvelously preserved man, looked 10 years younger. . . . Those who recall the luncheon have the memory of a picture star who was a most agreeable personality, accepted a most arduous schedule for the day he spent in Washington. . . . Seventeen motion picture executives of Boston and vicinity perished in the flames.

Navy Gets Joseph Bernhard. Navy Department reached out and plucked Joseph Bernhard, vice president of Warner Bros. and in charge of all their theater operations. . . . He had 400 houses under his wing as president of Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp., which runs the cinemas. . . . His new duties were not defined but he was in conference with Navy officials yesterday. . . . He was also chairman of the War Activities Committee which co-ordinates Government requests for 16,000 theaters from coast to coast. . . . UNCLE RAY'S CORNER —By Frank Cosman In recent weeks I have received many letters from readers asking about the Stone Age. Although we had a number of Stone Age articles two years ago, I shall use the space today for another topic in that field. The topic I am thinking of is about the Late Stone Age, also called the New Stone Age. It is the period after men moved out of their caves and began to polish, or smooth out, their stone tools and weapons.

2♠ Pass Pass Pass Pass

West opened the king of spades, continued with the ace and then led a third spade. East ruffing with the deuce of hearts. He returned his singleton diamond, dummy winning with the jack. A low trump was led from dummy. East put up the jack and South won with the ace. The club finesse next was taken, losing to East's king. But no further defense could win more than one additional trump trick and South made his contract of two hearts.

Can you spot the crime and the criminal? Try to spot them for yourself before reading on.

West was the criminal, but not for what took place in the play. It would have been rather double-dummy defense to have defeated two hearts. But West never should have allowed that contract to stand. He should have bid either two spades or three diamonds and either contract would have been made.

In spite of what humorists say about penalty doubles, there is a reason to treat them as edicts from on high. If you have good reason to believe that you cannot help in the defense as much as your partner expects you to a further bid is indicated. Note that North did not allow the double of two diamonds to stand and West should have used his judgment in the same way by running out of the double of two hearts.

Yesterday you were Theodore Lightner's partner and, with neither side vulnerable, you held:

Answer—Bid two hearts. Your partner may have four-card heart support which he has been unable to bid. If not, your "reverse" bidding, which shows a strong hand, may encourage him to try for game at no-trump if he has a little spade strength.

Score 100 per cent for two hearts, 50 per cent for two no-trump.

NATURE'S CHILDREN —By Lillian Cox Athey

MUSKRAT
(Ondatra zibethica)

With the exception of the gray wolf and the red fox, it is said, no North American animal has so wide a range as the muskrat. This busy cousin of the beaver is clothed in a chestnut brown coat. The shade is darker on the crown and head and gray on the cheeks and underneath the body. The chin, throat and inner side of the legs are white. The feet are covered with close, shiny, coarse hair of silvery brown.

A muskrat is happy with his home locality and will live and thrive in meets his needs, raise a family and, incidentally, benefit man. His food consists of the bleached ends of reeds, lilies, stalks and the roots of flags, all growing in the area in which he has established his winter residence. He enjoys clams, fish and insects and even young birds.

Musk rats are not so sociable as their cousins, the beavers. Several of them, usually members of the same family (though neighbors also will lend assistance) build the large mound that can easily be seen in marshy places. They are always careful to announce to one another that danger is near. This alarm is by way of a sudden loud splash. Musk rats also will join together to rout a common foe.

The mound home has an outlet in the water. Musk rats do not make a dam. A bank den is quite as important as the home and when the water becomes too shallow the muskrat digs a canal from the deeper water along the bottom, gradually extending this tunnel to above the water level on the bank. The home in the bank serves as a sleeping lodge and resting place and sometimes as the nursery.

The muskrat is desperately angry for his mate and there is some form of marriage contract for the couple work together for the home and children and use the same dwelling as long as they have need for it, or until another one must be constructed.

In Connecticut the muskrats are born in April. They are naked, blind and helpless until they are a month old. By this time they are one-third grown, clad in soft fur of a lead color that is quite different from the family uniform. They make excellent pets. They have neither fear nor hatred in their make-up. They love to play, make themselves tidy after eating by brushing their fur, and are quite undisturbed by your presence. Later they find they must be alert, fight and take care of themselves if they are to succeed, and a muskrat, when convinced that he must fight, is no coward.

Sonnysayings

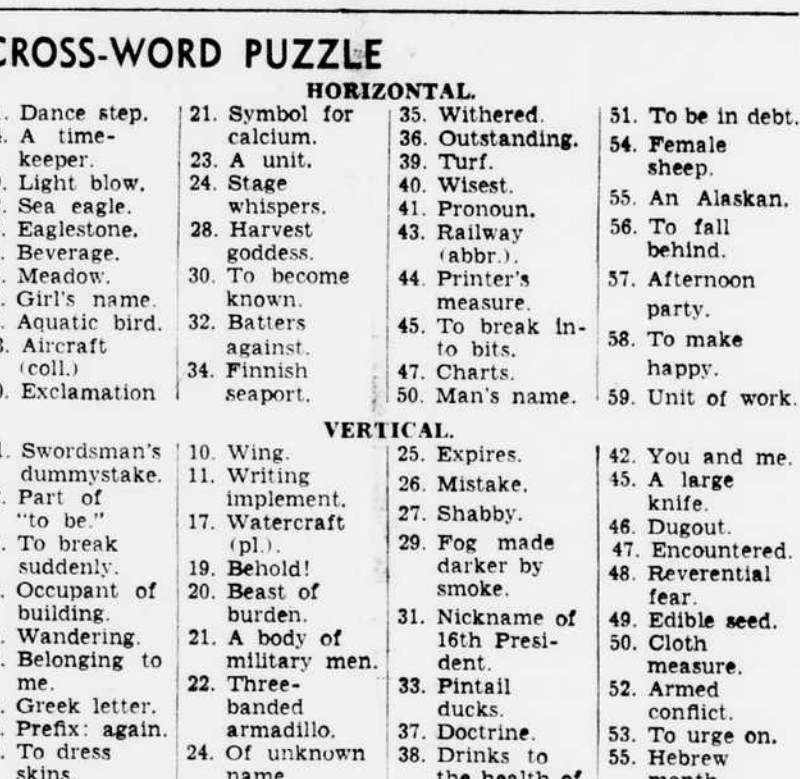

a small marshy place less than 200 yards wide. He never moves unless the place dries up.

The muskrat is a valuable fur-bearer and, like all our important fur producers, it was killed in great numbers until at last it had to have legal protection. At one time the number of skins shipped abroad ran into millions. Even today 10,000,000 pelts are used annually without depleting the supply. This natural heritage must be protected and managed if future generations are to have their share. Sometimes a generation forgets that it is a custodian, not an owner, of a resource.

On land the muskrat is slow; any fast walker can overtake him, and he does not seem to try to escape. Instead, he is ready to defend himself if occasion demands. In the water he is perfectly at home and is an excellent diver.

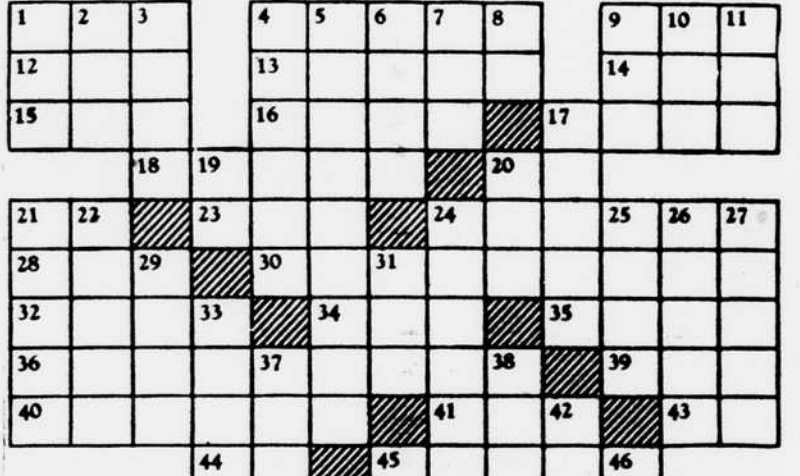

No one claims that the muskrat is an intellectual wonder, but he manages to construct a home that

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME —By Thornton W. Burgess

Paddy the Beaver floated in his pond and grinned in the most provoking way at Old Man Coyote, who had so nearly caught him. Old Man Coyote fairly danced with anger on the bank. He had felt so sure of Paddy that time that it was hard work to believe that Paddy had really gotten away from him. He hated his long, cruel teeth and he looked very fierce and ugly.

"Come on in, the water's fine," called Paddy.

Now, of course, this wasn't a nice thing for Paddy to do, for if only Paddy had said "I'm not in the mood for a swim today," he could have avoided the whole thing. You know he had had to be so sure of Paddy that time that it was hard work to believe that Paddy had really gotten away from him. He hated his long, cruel teeth and he looked very fierce and ugly.

"You said I had warned Paddy that you were trying to catch him and that was why you failed to find him at work at night, and all the time you had warned him yourself!" screamed Sammy. "I used to think that you were smart, but I know better now. Paddy is twice as smart as you are.

Mr. Coyote is ever so sly. If you believe all you hear, you had better be careful. Mr. Coyote is stupid and blind. He can't see things on his ear."

Paddy the Beaver laughed till the tears came at Sammy's foolish verse, but it made Old Man Coyote angrier than ever. He was angry with Paddy for escaping from him and he was angry with Sammy, terribly angry, and the worst of it

Throngs Move Westward To Escape Threat of Famine in Honan

By A. T. STEELE, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

PAOCHI, Northwest China, Dec. 2.—This remote region of China has seen many refugees come and go, but none more pitiful than the weary, ragged, hungry legions who are moving in from the famine region of the Yellow River Valley. American and Chinese relief agencies, who are doing what little they can to contend with the overwhelming difficulty, estimate that 6,000,000 Chinese are affected by the twin scourges of drought and flood. Of these it is believed that 2,000,000 are on the move.

During the last few days I have seen many hundreds of these unfortunate folk—mostly from Honan Province—trudging along the roads or trying to eke out an existence in the squalid encampments outside the bigger towns.

The heart of the famine area lies athwart the Sino-Japanese front in Central Honan, but it is an interesting fact that despite the acute distress the majority of the victims of this natural calamity are choosing to move westward into Free China rather than eastward into areas of Jap domination. They are strung all along several hundred miles of roads and railways between Chingchow, in Honan Province, and this railway terminus, deep in the Chinese northwest.

Railways Give Transportation. The railway is providing free transportation but thousands have walked the entire distance pushing wheelbarrows loaded down with babies, chickens and personal belongings salvaged from abandoned homes. These wheelbarrows are their most precious possessions. With them they are able to pick up odd haulage jobs at stopping places along the route.

The vanguard of the weary procession is now penetrating the arid frontier province of Kansu, in their search for food and work.

At Sian, Midway, on the long road, I visited big refugee encampments where hundreds of famine fugitives were barely supporting themselves under the plan of work relief financed by the contributions of American churches, dispensed through the American Advisory Committee. The American money is employed to purchase old-fashioned spinning wheels and raw cotton with which refugee women are spinning yarn. From the proceeds they are supplementing the meager earnings of other members of the family from odd jobs and begging.

It is an incredible sight—these tattered women sitting at their wheels in front of their mud shelters and caves busily helping produce what is one of wartime China's biggest needs, yarn for gowns and uniforms. Because of the limited number of cotton mills in China home-spun yarn is easily marketable.

Tens of Thousands Face Death. The American Advisory Committee has expended $250,000 in direct relief in the famine region and another $300,000 in Sian. Chinese agencies have appropriated bigger sums. But the problem is still immense. Tens of thousands will die this winter unless more help is forthcoming.

Jack Hunter, a Chicagoan, who is directing the American church relief in Sian, said numbers of Honan wanderers already had died of exhaustion and exposure on their trek westward and that the care of abandoned children was becoming a serious matter. In some cases the desperate parents were attempting to sell or give away their starving children. The problem is expected to reach the most acute stage in January, February and March. By then freezing weather and malnutrition are certain to reap a heavy crop of human lives and the majority of the evacuees will have disposed of most of their salable possessions for food.

The refugees are of three kinds—those from the drought area of central Honan where the summer crop was an almost complete failure, those from the flooded Fukow district in Northern Honan where a breakage in the Yellow River dikes inundated an entire county and those from the Tali district on the
