HEAVY FIGHTING FLARES ON TUNIS RAIL LINE

Rubber Program Endangered, Jeffers Says

Tells Senate Supply May Fall Below 'Disaster Line'

Rubber Administrator William Jeffers reported today that because other war construction is competing for critical materials, the Nation's supply of crude rubber and synthetics may fall below the "disaster line" of military demands.

He said any delay in bringing synthetic rubber factories into production would be "disastrous" and that there were indications there would be some delay.

Senator Johnson, Democrat of Colorado, member of the Joint Committee to which Mr. Jeffers presented his first report on rubber, asked for an explanation, saying "as I read that, you say any delay will be disastrous, then you say there probably will be a delay."

Mr. Jeffers replied: "Either we get the material to bring the synthetic plants into production or there will be a delay which in my opinion will be disastrous."

Complaints of interference.

Mr. Jeffers complained that other production programs were interfering with the task of obtaining vital machinery for synthetic rubber plants.

"This, he added, was contrary to his understanding of President Roosevelt's endorsement of the statement of a committee headed by Bernard M. Baruch, that rubber was the country's "most critical problem."

"The rubber program is receiving notable help in obtaining priorities and critical materials," the report said. "But its relationship to other programs endangers its completion in time to avoid a crisis and I am not hopeful."

Mr. Jeffers mentioned the construction of high-octane gasoline plants as one program competing with the rubber plants for materials, adding at another point: "It's for others to determine whether the Army, Navy and escort vessel program is more important than rubber."

Predicts delay in program.

"Present indications," he added, "are that, because of other programs, there will be such a delay. It is too early to say how much of a delay."

The other programs which Mr. Jeffers referred to as delaying the rubber plant construction are the Army and Navy powder and other ordnance plant construction.

"We will come to the end of 1943 with 120,000 tons of rubber if we have the delay which is the irreducible minimum mentioned in the Baruch report," Mr. Jeffers said. The report continued:

"Our studies have emphasized that unless these components for synthetic rubber manufacturing plants reach the plant as rapidly as they can be installed, the resultant delay will cause such a drain on the crude rubber stocks that there may be no crude left for heavy-duty tires, self-sealing gasoline tanks and other military uses which demand crude rubber."

"The decision as to whether this can be accomplished without too serious delay is in the hands of those who have also to consider other programs, including the program for the building of plants producing high-octane gasoline. Some of these call for the same critical materials. The final solution is not yet developed."

Sees Crisis As Inevitable.

"The rubber program is receiving notable help in obtaining priorities and critical materials. But its relationship to other programs endangers its completion in time to avoid a crisis, and I am not hopeful."

Mr. Jeffers said that "although the only sure solution of the rubber problem is to subordinate other important programs to it, the demands of the services make this impossible."

"This," he added, "is in direct conflict with my understanding and conviction that the President's executive order of September 17, 1942, and its accompanying letter, has been clearly and unequivocally the Baruch report, its program and its statement: 'Thus the rubber situation gives rise to our most critical problem.'"

It is apparent, said the report, Mr. Jeffers "first, dealing with the Nation's rubber supply, that even if production objectives are attained, 'the inventory of crude and syn-

ATLANTA.—PARATROOPERS MATCH JAPS ON MARCH—This is a column of United States Parachute Infantry, which made a forced march of 115 miles in three days in toughening practice. Col. Robert F. Sink, commanding officer, said the march was "unparalleled in continental American history for many years." The men marched in full war equipment and every man finished. The route was from the Toccoa (Ga.) camp base to Atlanta, via fields, paths and highways. Observers said the average of 40 miles a day matched anything the Japanese could do. —A. P. Wirephoto.

WPB Wins Fight For Control of War Output

Wilson Given Charge After Nelson Confers With Service Heads

Charles E. Wilson, vice chairman of the War Production Board, today received final power to direct the output of aircraft, radio equipment and escort vessels, along with supervisory control over all other munitions production.

The climax of a weeks-long struggle for authority over production schedules and performed exclusively by the services and military officials, represented by WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson on one hand and heads of the armed services on the other, came in a statement announcing "full agreement" by all concerned.

Issue jointly by Mr. Nelson, Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox, it was interpreted as a substantial victory for the WPB chairman.

An accompanying statement vested in Mr. Nelson the "general supervision over the scheduling of the programs between the various services."

WPB Recovers Control.

This meant that WPB had recovered authority over production scheduling previously delegated to the services and performed exclusively by them since last March.

It was stated that Mr. Wilson would exercise his duties, however, through the existing supply and procurement branches of the services. "The latter were described generally as naval vessels smaller than destroyers used in anti-submarine and escort work."

WPB officials previously had indicated their belief these three elements of the armament program were the ones most in need of overhauling.

Spokesmen Careful.

Apparently because of unwillingness to add fuel to the contest for authority, WPB spokesmen were silent on interpretation of the new agreement, save to say it superseded any previous document which might conflict with it.

The joint Nelson-Knox-Stimson statement said:

"Conversations among officials of the armed services and the WPB on the organizational plans necessary for achieving the 1943 war production program have now ended with full agreement by all concerned."

"Such questions as have arisen had to do with method, never with purpose or principle. To win the war quickly, effectively and with the lowest expenditure of life, is everybody's goal. From time to time re-examination of the plans and methods for achieving that result is necessary."

"That has been done. The new arrangements give assurance that the immense production task for 1943 will be carried through to a successful conclusion."

Nelson Text.

Following is the text of the Nelson statement:

"An outline of the duties of Charles E. Wilson, production vice chairman of the WPB, was announced today by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the board.

"This announcement supplements the accompanying joint statement growing out of the conversations between officials of the armed services and the WPB concerning certain organizational plans in order to insure the carrying out of the war production program for 1943."

"Mr. Wilson will exercise general supervision over the scheduling of the programs between the various services to see that they do not conflict, and that they are of such a nature that they may be performed in accordance with the requirements of the joint chiefs of staff and of the total war program."

"In carrying out these duties Mr. Wilson will pay particular attention to the following:

"The status of the war production program for 1943."

"The status of the war production program for 1944."

"The status of the war production program for 1945."

Forced Conversion To Coal Is Near, Ickes Aide Says

Voluntary System On Use of Fuel Oil Held 'Disappointing'

Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator, said today the time is near when domestic consumers of fuel oil who can convert their furnaces to burn coal may be forced to do so.

Appearing before a New England congressional delegation discussing the fuel oil shortage in that area, Mr. Davies said voluntary conversion has been "thoroughly disappointing."

"People who can convert at little expense are not doing so," he said. "They want to use oil as long as possible."

"Despite of getting results 'voluntarily' the time is near when we will have to force conversion."

WPB Has Authority.

Mr. Davies disclosed he was meeting later in the day with Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chairman, to discuss a program to enforce conversion. He said the WPB had the authority to issue the necessary order.

Mr. Davies said Petroleum Administrator Ickes had recommended conversion by force some time ago but so far no action had been taken.

"Now we hope to prevail upon the WPB to issue the necessary order," he said.

Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, asked Mr. Davies if it was true that many users of fuel oil hadn't converted because they could not get the necessary equipment. The deputy administrator replied there were people who could change to coal with little trouble or expense.

Deaths Could Result.

"It is not unfair," he said, "to require in this critical situation the individual who has the equipment to burn coal to convert so his neighbor who cannot convert won't be killed."

Mr. Davies said the expression "freeze to death" was more than a figure of speech.

"Unless this oil situation is handled properly that could happen," he said. "We are dealing in human lives, military and domestic."

Mr. Ickes said, barring unforeseen obstacles, that it was hoped at a press conference held by the minister today.

Count Tomadelli Gets 1 to 5 Year Sentence On Swindling Charge

Judge Calls Term Light In Denying Request For New Trial

"Count" Juan J. Tomadelli, 55, self-styled inventor and one-time man about Washington, was sentenced in District Court this afternoon to from one to five years for using the mails to defraud in connection with the promotion of a light bulb said to take its energies from the atmosphere.

Justice James M. Proctor imposed the sentence immediately after denying a motion for a new trial. Tomadelli was convicted November 19.

Defense Counsel Vincent E. Martin, in a plea just before the sentencing, said that Tomadelli had been engaged recently in trying to perfect a device to combat the submarine menace. The attorney asked the court to take this "secret war consideration when fixing the penalty."

Justice Proctor pointed out, however, that Tomadelli had been found guilty of an indictment charging him with swindling Ernest M. Swingle, Elberon, N. J., and Massimo Antonietti, Union City, N. J., out of about $420,000 over a period of 13 years.

"While the indictment lists five counts," the jurist said, "I am inclined to view the matter as one offense, although a serious one, as you know the sentence could be 25 years on a total of five counts, but I will recommend a sentence of one to five years."

Canadian Price Slashes Start This Week

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Canadian authorities announced today that reductions in the retail prices of milk, tea, coffee and oranges through tax remissions and subsidies at an estimated annual cost of $40,000,000 to the government were expected to become effective this week.

Finance Minister James Hiley first reported the proposal last night. The marking down of price tags this week end was announced at a press conference held by the minister today.

President Roosevelt remarked laughing to Herbert H. Lehman late today that his $10,000 a year salary as director of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations "perhaps will pay part of the rent of an apartment in Washington."

Mr. Lehman, who resigned as Governor of New York Wednesday, took the oath of office for his new Federal position in the President's office.

Mr. Roosevelt made his wisecrack about Washington's rents in handwriting of Mr. Lehman his letters of appointment.

Indicating the Lehmans already are having trouble finding a place to live, Mr. Lehman chimed in to say, "If you can find one."

Blocking of Arsenal Investigation by U. S. Denied by Biddle

Attorney General Says Indictments Will Be Sought Next Week

Attorney General Biddle today described as "ridiculous" charges made yesterday by United States Commissioner Sidney E. Friedman at Harrisburg, Pa., that investigation of alleged irregularities in connection with the new $40,000,000 Naval Supply Depot at Mechanicsburg by the FBI and other agencies had been "hamstrung" by orders from Washington.

He also announced that Tom C. Clark, chief of the war frauds unit, has been directed to call Mr. Friedman before the grand jury at Harrisburg "so that he can tell the grand jury what evidence he has which indicates that any one in Washington prevented either the United States attorney or the Federal Bureau of Investigation from proceeding vigorously with this case."

"I am distressed that the press should have given such prominence to the irresponsible statement of an uninformed minor official," Mr. Biddle said in a formal statement.

"(4) Harrisburg, Mr. Friedman advised of the Attorney General's statement, said:

"If the grand jury wants the facts all they have to do is to ask me. I don't fear the truth. I don't scare easily."

"When his remarks were called to my attention, I personally investigated the background of this case," Mr. Biddle said. "His charges are ridiculous. The facts are simply these. Shortly after the war began I created the war frauds unit of the Department of Justice for the specific purpose of giving No. 1 priority to war frauds cases. The results of the investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation are immediately turned over to the war frauds unit to determine whether there should be criminal prosecution. The Federal Bureau of Investigation submitted its report on this case on November 5."

"The war frauds unit determined on presentation to the grand jury in the same month, and a few days ago sent two Department of Justice attorneys to Harrisburg to submit the indictment to the grand jury on this coming Monday, December 7. As any lawyer knows, that is unusually speedy preparation for such a case. Therefore, at the moment this irresponsible official was making his unfounded charges, Department of Justice representatives were already waiting in Harrisburg for the grand jury to convene next Monday."

"There seems to be some misapprehension in the public mind about the status of Mr. Friedman. A United States commissioner is not an employe of the Department of Justice."

Presentation to Arroyo del Rio Fizzles as Portrait Is Lost

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A bronze portrait of President Roosevelt was to have been presented today to Ecuadorian President Carlos Arroyo del Rio, but the portrait got lost, the President had to leave, and the person scheduled to make the presentation was covered with embarrassment.

The ceremony was scheduled for 8 a. m. in President Arroyo del Rio's Waldorf-Astoria suite and at 8:15 a. m. the presidential party was scheduled to leave for the airport to catch a plane taking them to the first leg of their return trip to Ecuador.

While Post Wheeler, former American Minister to Paraguay, distributed copies of the speech he had prepared for the occasion and members of President Arroyo del Rio's party nervously eyed their watches, bellhops, baggagemen and hotel checkers scurried about in fruitless search for the portrait.

Finally at 8:20 a. m. the Ecuadorian chief executive indicated he could wait no longer and left for the airport. Mr. Wheeler informed him that he would send the gift as soon as it could be located.

The portrait, done by artist Commandatore Ettore de Zoro of Santa Barbara, Calif., was said to have been delivered in New York last Thursday, but nobody seemed to know what happened to it subsequently.

It was to be the gift of the Commandatore of the Order of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem resident on the Pacific Coast, a chivalric order ministering to lepers.

Two New Indictments Against Leiner Charge Trading With Enemy

Dealings With Saboteurs Outlined in Counts, Biddle Announces

Attorney General Biddle announced today that a Federal grand jury in New York City had returned two indictments against Helmut Leiner on charges of misprision of treason and trading with the enemy.

Leiner was found not guilty of treason on November 30. The Government had charged that Leiner had committed treason in helping Werner Theil and Edward John Kerling, two of the six Nazi saboteurs executed after trial by a military court here in August.

The first of the indictments returned in New York today, according to the Justice Department, charged Leiner under four counts with changing bills of large denominations for members of the saboteur group in violation of the Trading With the Enemy Act.

The second indictment charges Leiner with misprision of treason in failing to report his knowledge of the treasonable acts of Kerling and Miss Hedwig Engemann, who was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and fined $1,000 in New York on Wednesday on her plea of guilty to misprision of treason. Miss Engemann, according to the Justice Department, admitted knowledge of treasonable acts committed by both Leiner and Kerling and failed to report this knowledge to the proper authorities.

Maximum penalties under the Trading with the Enemy Act are 10 years' imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both. Penalties for misprision of treason are imprisonment for not more than seven years and a fine of not more than $1,000.

Imitation Palms Burned 'Like Christmas Trees,' Chemist Testifies

Boston, Dec. 4.—An industrial chemist commissioned to test decorative materials used in the Cocoanut Grove night club testified at an official inquest today that virtually all of the 15 samples he obtained burst immediately into flame or ignited soon after a flame test was applied.

Capping an earlier report that burning imitation leather had produced poisonous gas fumes that added heavily to the toll of 493 deaths in the fire disaster of last Saturday night, Andrew Landini, employe by a firm of industrial chemists in Boston, testified: "We do not feel that we can state positively that none of these materials tested had ever been flame-treated, but it is our opinion that with the possible exception of samples 3 and 6 they are not now flame-resistant."

Boy, 7, Cleared of Killing As Sister, 11, Confesses

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 4.—Juvenile Court Judge Paul Alexander said today Charles Ibbotson, Jr., 7, charged with fatally shooting his 10-year-old sister, Rita, Thanksgiving Day in their shack home, has been cleared of the charge with the confession of his sister, Lois, 11, that she accidentally shot her sister.

Judge Alexander said the girl previously had testified to Coroner Frank Krefl that Charles shot his sister in a bed.

Mrs. Nellie Maek, juvenile court officer, said Lois told her Charles shoved her as she took the gun from him. This angered her and she kicked him, the gun accidentally discharging and killing Rita, who was seated on a bed.

Judge Alexander said he was not satisfied with the child's story and would hold Lois for further questioning.

'Whistlin' Bob' Smith Dies; Was Trainer of Cavalcade

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Bob Smith, 73, veteran trainer of race horses, including Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade and High Quest, died today after a long illness.

For half a century, "Whistlin' Bob" Smith had been famous as a sportsman, training notable horses and managing fighters, including Frank Ernie, onetime world lightweight champion.

Things hadn't been going too well for him in recent years, but wherever you met him, sitting down to a lonesome dinner in some Broadway restaurant or ringsiding down at a fight or marking your program at a race track, "Whistlin' Bob" always had a pleasant word.

He'd been around horses for nearly 50 years since he first started training for the old August Belmont, Ten years ago, Mrs. Sloane had

In announcing the pending divorce action, her attorney, Joseph P. Hailer, said Mrs. Di Maggio and Joe separated at San Francisco shortly before she came to Reno Tuesday.

Glamorous Strip-Tease Artist Identified as WAAC AWOL

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 4.—That glamour girl billed as Amber D'Georg and that she was supposed to be from Fort Worth, Tex., the manager said.

"I had no idea at all that she was a WAAC. I was shocked to death when I found out."

The "M. P. S." showed up after the matinee, he said, and waited while Amber put on more appropriate street clothing. They missed her then, but found her at another theater.

Col. J. A. Hoag, commandant at the WAAC post, confirmed the arrest and said:

"We picked the girl up ourselves and we have brought her back here to the fort and are working the thing out. She was just a girl who had no understanding of her responsibilities. The matter will be handled inside our own group here."

Morocco Radio Tells of Clash Near Mateur

Axis Ship Losses Mount in Efforts to Reinforce Troops

LONDON.—The Morocco radio said today that the "larger part" of more than 50 enemy tanks which the Axis used in its counterattack in the Tebourba sector were destroyed or damaged and that Axis parachutists who landed in the Allied rear had been rendered powerless in short order.

"Violent fighting" is going on in the Mateur sector, the broadcast said, while Allied aviation is attacking Axis air-dromes and troop concentrations with great fury. Six enemy planes were shot down in this latest phase of the aerial battle, the broadcast added.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The toll of Axis shipping sunk by Allied sea and air battles rose today to six Tunisia-bound supply vessels, three destroyers and a torpedo boat, all apparently sunk within a 24-hour span.

These losses in the enemy's sea communications across the Sicilian narrows, announced in British communiqués of successive days, countered frantic Axis efforts to get new men and supplies into North Africa for the attempt to hold Tunisia.

Britain has announced the loss so far of only one destroyer, sunk by enemy air action, in the running battle for sea and air mastery of the 90-mile-wide strait between Sicily and North Africa.

Two More Axis Ships Sunk.

"Squadrons of our latest warships, many still in the secret list," have been added to the British Mediterranean fleet and have "scored a signal victory in the opening battle," the naval reporter of the London Express said.

The two Axis merchantships latest sunk were knocked out of a convoy by Allied air action, announced officially, and the Admiralty said light naval forces sank an Italian torpedo boat which had been escorting them shortly before.

"The Axis can't keep troops in Tunisia if they can't get supplies," said a naval source, and we intend to see that they don't get them."

Heavy Blows Struck at Ports.

New and heavy blows also were struck simultaneously at Bizerte and Tunis, chief enemy ports of entry, as the Allied land forces regrouped for a new showdown announced during 48 hours of bitter fighting in which losses were declared by an Allied spokesman to have been heavy on both sides.

Despite the repeated enemy assaults, the Allied forces were reported to be in control of two of the towns forming the strategic Tunisia triangle, Tebourba and Mateur, and to be fighting in the western outskirts of the third, Djerba.

The Allied spokesman, stressing that the British and Americans have their hands full in their campaign to drive the Axis from Tunisia, declared the edge in the new "will go to the one who regains his strength more quickly."

Nazi Embassy Accused by Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 4.—Federal Judge Miguel Jantus said today a government investigation had proved that the German embassy was involved in espionage within Argentina.

Judge Jantus has been hearing in secret the evidence supplied by the United States against 38 persons arrested in a spy hunt. In ordinary cases before a Federal tribunal the testimony is taken by the court secretary, but Judge Jantus has been hearing the cases personally.

The inquiry grew out of charges of Undersecretary of State Welles in Boston two months ago that Argentina and Chile were being used as bases for Axis agents. When Argentina asked for concrete evidence a memorandum was supplied to the Argentine government.

Tunisia Toll Heavy on Both Sides, New Clash for Key Triangle Near; Nazis Move Up Reserves in Russia

German Attempts To Retake Points In Africa Repulsed

LONDON, Dec. 4.—American and British troops mopped up a new showdown with Axis forces in Tunisia today after a bitter 48-hour battle in which they repulsed a series of desperate German attempts to recapture key points on the approaches to Tunis and Bizerte.

An Allied spokesman in North Africa declared that losses in the last two days had been heavy on both sides and that the edge in the impending test of strength "will go to the one who regains his strength more quickly."

The scene of action was the triangle formed by the towns of Tebourba, Djedida and Mateur, situated astride the vital railway between Tunis and Bizerte.

(The Italian high command declared today that Axis forces had captured an important position in Tunisia, but did not name the site. A communiqué said 68 prisoners, including 300 British paratroopers, had been captured.)

Nazi Effort Fails. Knowing that control of this triangle is the key to the whole situation in Tunisia, the Germans made a supreme attempt to eject the Allies but failed. The Allied spokesman said, although Djedida—12 miles northwest of Tunis—changed hands several times.

At present, he declared, Allied troops are holding the western part of that town and are in control of both Tebourba and Mateur. Tebourba is about 20 miles west of Tunis and 35 miles south of Bizerte, while Mateur is 12 miles south of Bizerte.

The Allied spokesman estimated that the Germans have about 14,000 combat troops in the area and said it was evident they "intend to stay in Tunisia until the last possible moment."

The Germans always have denied the British for Dunkerque," he added, "and maybe they are out to prove they are ready to die for the Fuehrer."

The Nazis hurled strong armored forces into action in their attempts to break the Allies from Tebourba and Djedida, and the field was dotted with wrecked tanks when the smoke of battle cleared: the spokesman said.

Heavier Nazi Assault. An Allied communiqué described the second and final German counterattack near Tebourba as even heavier than the assault the Nazis launched there the day before and said it "resulted with considerable destruction of enemy equipment."

The communiqué told of continuing Allied air attacks on airbases at both Tunis and Bizerte, and said especially heavy damage had been done at the former, with many enemy aircraft destroyed on the ground.

A spokesman of the 12th United States Air Force reported that American airmen alone had shot down five enemy planes in combat.

White House Sets Good Example by Cutting Car Use

President Roosevelt today cited a cut of nearly one-half in the use of White House automobiles as a good example for other branches of the Government as well as individual Americans.

As a result of efforts to cut down on the use of gasoline and conserve tires, Mr. Roosevelt said the mileage of White House cars had decreased from 18,403 miles in November, 1941, to 10,733 in November, 1942.

The President said 13 cars are in operation by the White House. Two of those in use last year have been given up, and two others retained have not been used. The number in use includes automobiles used for carrying mail and for other activities, as well as those for personal use, Mr. Roosevelt added.

Additional saving in gasoline and tires has been effected by some members of the White House staff, who use lighter automobiles than the big cars previously provided for them.

8,000 to 10,000 Jap Troops Lost as Navy Sinks Nine Ships

Guadalcanal Landing Smashed at Cost Of One Cruiser in Third Round of Battle

Smashing another major Japanese effort to bolster their tired and dwindling ranks on Guadalcanal Island, United States warships have destroyed nine enemy vessels with an estimated loss of thousands of enemy troops. One American cruiser was sunk.

Two Japanese transports, a cargo ship and six escorting warships were sent to the bottom of the Solomon Islands waters, the Navy reported late yesterday, when the enemy armada blundered into an American naval trap under cover of darkness Monday night.

The Navy announced today that 14 Japanese were killed during routine patrol operations in Guadalcanal yesterday.

There was no information as to the area of the island in which the patrols were in action in this latest of several Navy reports showing that small groups of American marines and soldiers were keeping Japanese outposts on the island under constant pressure.

Monday night's attempted landing was completely frustrated, the Navy said. Only a few sailors, rescued from life rafts the following day, reached Guadalcanal as prisoners. The rest, including probably 8,000 to 10,000 troops on the transports, apparently were lost.

Aside from the cruiser sunk in the night sea battle, other United States vessels were damaged, the communiqué added. Among the Mikado's sunken warships, the Navy listed four destroyers and two other ships which were either sunk or heavily destroyed.

Thus the tropical waters around the Solomons now envelop at least

Nazis Say Americans Are on Defensive in Battle of Tunisia

Still-Continuing Fight Declared Going in Favor of Axis

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Dec. 4.—A Transoceanic dispatch asserted today that American forces in Tunisia are on the defensive, pressing closely together, in a still-continuing battle, which is going in favor of the Axis in the region of Tebourba.

"A group of 60 enemy paratroopers which landed south of Tunis has been surrounded and is facing annihilation," the dispatch said.

"The announcement did not repeat the claim, made by the German radio yesterday, but not by the high command itself, that Tebourba, a rail junction 35 miles south of Bizerte, is being held by Axis forces in Axis hands. Allied headquarters said last night that the Germans had been hurled back in a second counter-attack in the Tebourba area and that both sides were regrouping after suffering heavy losses in a 48-hour tank battle."

The high command said German troops captured important positions and took 754 prisoners in Tunisia and Italian troops yesterday destroyed a unit of British paratroopers.

"The Italian high command, in a communiqué issued earlier, said German troops had captured 456 Allied soldiers and an Italian battalion rounded up 300 British paratroopers."

Port installations at Bone, Allied-occupied port of Eastern Algeria, were raided by night, the German communiqué said.

Little activity except artillery fire was reported from the Libyan front.

One German-Italian scouting patrol was said to have sliced deep into the British flank south of Gasr El Brega and captured two tanks with their crews. Gasr El Brega is on the shores of the Gulf of Sirte about 25 miles northeast of El Aghela.

Axis planes were credited with hits also on truck columns and tank concentrations in the same area. Eight air attacks, the radio said, set fires and an Allied supply column near Derna and destroyed six anti-aircraft battery positions at Tobruk.

Ill-Trained Men See Action on Eastern Front

MOSCOW, Dec. 4.—The Germans were reported rushing ill-trained reserves into action on the central front east of Velikie Luiki and west of Rzhev today in desperate but futile effort to stop a Russian offensive knocking deep into the Nazi lines.

Front line dispatches said many of the German infantry units being thrown into the battle were hastily formed from the ranks of technicians, engineers or air force ground crews and were led by pupils and teachers from officers' training schools.

The middle communiqué of the Soviet Information Bureau said the Germans were launching repeated counterattacks on the central front but declared they were all repulsed and that the Red Army's offensive was continuing.

Several thousand more Germans were slain in the fighting and large quantities of booty were captured by the advancing Russian troops, the bulletin said.

Counterattacks Repulsed.

The same communiqué also spoke of German counterattacks in the Stalingrad area, but here, too, it declared, the invaders were thrown back with a loss of some 850 men.

Red Star, official army organ, reported that the last Germans had been driven from the northern part of the Don elbow northwest of Stalingrad and said the Russians now were turning their attention to enemy strong points on the east bank holding open the jaws of the pincers squeezing the Nazi siege army.

For the third successive day the Information Bureau, in its early morning communiqué, announced that Russian troops had driven the Germans from a strategic height on the Stalingrad front. The Red Army is trying to push southward and encircle the Nazi forces besieging the city.

Position Overrun.

The position, strongly fortified, was overrun in fierce hand-to-hand fighting in which the Germans lost 300 men, 10 blockhouses and five guns, the Russians said.

Southwest of Stalingrad, where the Red Army is reaching out another encircling claw, Russian troops were said to have slain 1,200 Germans and destroyed 28 blockhouses, 13 tanks and 90 trucks in continuing offensive operations.

Inside Stalingrad itself, the bulletin said, Soviet troops dislodged the Germans from a number of buildings in the northern factory area and wiped out a company of infantry, while in the southern outskirts of the city they captured a Nazi strongpoint covering the enemy flank in that area.

50 Planes Destroyed.

The Russian air force, meanwhile, was reported to have destroyed 50 German planes in the Stalingrad region, including 40 big transports used for ferrying reinforcements to the front. Only last Sunday the Russians reported the destruction of 46 such transports.

The Russians said they had overcome stubborn enemy resistance to make a new advance west of Rzhev, which is 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

"N" unit broke through a strongly fortified defense line and came out to a branch railway line, capturing the area of the station," the earlier communiqué said. "Another unit cleared the Germans out of several inhabited localities, annihilating 1,000 German officers and men and destroying six tanks and 150 trucks."

Canadian Prime Minister Pays Visit to White House

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada today began a week-end of discussions about what Mr. Roosevelt termed some of the deeper problems of humanity after the war.

The Prime Minister arrived at the White House this morning, and the President became so engrossed in talking with him that he was half an hour late for his press conference scheduled at 10:30 a. m. Mr. Mackenzie King conferred later with Secretary of State Hull before resuming his talks with the President.

Mr. Roosevelt said he and his guest planned a quiet week-end. The discussions are being held with emphasis on the conviction that the United States and Canada have essentially similar problems, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Engineer in Wreck Fatal to 13 Given 2½-Year Sentence

Action Resulting From B. & O. Crash Believed To Establish Precedent

By PAT JONES, Staff Correspondent.

ROCKVILLE, Md., Dec. 4.—Raymond Rufus McClelland, 59, of Baltimore, engineer of the B. & O. flyer which plowed into the rear of another passenger train, killing 13 persons, at Dickerson September 24, was sentenced in Montgomery County Circuit Court here today to serve two and one-half years in the Maryland House of Correction at Jessup.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Charles W. Woodward overruled a defense motion for a new trial based on the contention that the negligence which the engineer had been found guilty was not "criminal, culpable negligence to justify conviction of manslaughter."

McClelland's attorneys said they had no immediate plans for an appeal.

Believed to Set Precedent.

An official at the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers here, asked if he knew of any other case of an engineer being sent to jail in a wreck conviction, replied that he "knew of none."

The Interstate Commerce Commission said that it had "no interest in the case, whose service after its investigations and therefore had no record of previous court action."

The engineer's conviction was on a specific charge of manslaughter in the death of Dr. Frederick Hochstetler of Pittsburgh. Similar charges had been filed against him for the death of the 12 other victims but State Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson, when questioned by the court, said he would follow the customary procedure in such instances and note press the other cases.

The prisoner sat today directly in front of the courtroom seat occupied by his wife, who was in tears most of the time. She was not present at his trial earlier this week.

As the court prepared to pass sentence on McClelland, a record including 32 years as an engineer, was asked if he had any reason to offer why he should not be punished. He stood up, undecidedly at first, and then said in a voice shaken by emotion:

"No, sir. I believe not. I believe I have been punished enough as it was."

Judges Hold Conference.

Sentence was passed by Judge Woodward after he had retired from the court and conferred for a few minutes with Judge Stedman and Judge Crayton.

On returning he made the following statement to the prisoner:

"Your counsel referred to your action as mistake, but the jury found your act was culpable negligence. There is no question that if a man violates the rules of a railroad..."

2-Ton Howitzers Sent 1,500 Miles By Air to Front

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA.

American 105-millimeter howitzers—whose effectiveness against Nazi steel in North Africa won Prime Minister Churchill's praise—have been flown 1,500 miles from Australia and have gone into action against the Japanese clinging to their Buna-Gona positions in the New Guinea jungles, it was disclosed today.

Military experts said it was the first time in American Army history that artillery of that type was transported by air.

Each gun with its crew of eight men, ammunition, spare parts and a small tractor, was flown to New Guinea in Flying Fortresses at a load weight of more than 10,000 pounds.

Senators Approve Plan To Control Rent on Commercial Property

Amendment Assures That District Act Will Remain in Force

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate Banking Committee today approved a modified plan of rent control on commercial property in defense areas throughout the country, with an amendment to make sure the District's separate rent act will continue to apply to residential property here.

As it passed the House October 15, the bill gave the Federal Government broad control over rents for commercial property anywhere in the United States or its possessions. The Senate substitute confines the control to property being used by a war contractor, or within particular defense areas.

Since Washington is a defense area, the measure would make it possible for OPA to control at least some industrial or commercial rents here through the Price Control Act.

The Senate committee, however, wrote in an amendment specifically preserving the existing setup for control of residential rents in the District.

During the hearings, Corporation Counsel Keech told the Senators there was "a real danger" that "a might occur in any attempt to make to transfer the problem from the existing local agency to a Federal rent administrator. It was feared the House bill left some doubt as to the continued life of the local law."

The Senate committee laid down certain conditions that must exist to invoke Federal control of commercial rents.

"The bill provides specifically for the stabilization or reduction of the rent of industrial or commercial real property wherever situated producing or using such industrial or commercial real property is being utilized by any contractor or subcontractor engaged in the production of war materials, or is being utilized within a particular defense area in securing adequate production and distribution of commodities within such particular defense rental area."

"If within 60 days after the issuance of such recommendations rents for any such defense area..."

Job of Mobilizing Manpower Expected To Go to Byrnes

New Labor Program To Be Ready in Few Days, President Reports

By JESSE O. IRVIN.

Reports were circulated in Congress today that President Roosevelt might ask James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, to assume control over the Nation's mobilization of its labor force.

The President told his press conference today that he expected to have a new manpower program to announce soon. He would not promise the exact time, but indicated it would come within a few days. He also said he would have something to say on a food administration program.

Mr. Roosevelt, according to labor sources, may confer with his AFL-CIO Victory Committee early next week on his reported plan to transfer the Selective Service System to the War Manpower Commission and to revise and strengthen Chairman Paul V. McNutt's powers.

Labor sources are reported to have informed that Mr. Roosevelt plans to hold in abeyance his proposal to concentrate all manpower functions in the Labor Department under Secretary of Interior Ickes. Other authoritative sources have substantiated this report.

McNutt to Retain Title. Mr. McNutt, who was slated for the Interior portfolio, is to remain manpower head, while the President is reported to be casting about for an administrator to succeed Arthur J. Altmeyer, the commission's retiring executive director. The President is said by labor sources to be desirous of obtaining a "strong man" for this position which would be responsible for integrating selective service functions with other WMP operations.

Mr. Altmeyer, an expert in employment fields, is preparing to devote full time to his position as Social Security Board chairman because the administration may seek expansion and extension of insurance coverage under the Social Security Act. Mr. Altmeyer is said to be slated to guide the proposal through legislative channels.

It is understood the President feels the 11-member commission is not performing to the best of its ability and that Mr. McNutt's position should be strengthened. Practice each commission representative is reported to be more concerned with manpower problems within his own jurisdiction than in working out a policy of benefit to all.

Talks With Labor Leaders. Meeting with labor leaders yesterday, the President is reported to have gone over several of the outstanding manpower problems and informed members he would request them to return in three or four days to look over his program on paper. Mr. Altmeyer's selection, it was said, until his so-called labor cabinet had had an opportunity to review the reorganization plan.

The chairman of five congressional committees studying the manpower situation hailed the report that Mr. Roosevelt would transfer selective service to WMC as a step in the right direction. The chairman, however, withheld comment of Mr. Roosevelt's reported decision not to place, at least for the time being, all manpower operations in the Labor Department.

Earlier in the week, the committee chairman issued a joint statement commending the President's proposal to restore in the Labor Department many of its transplanted functions.

The proposed transfer of selective service will be reported to the President by Mr. McNutt. (See MANPOWER, Page A-18.)

Roosevelt Halts All WPA Work As Unnecessary

Orders Liquidation Of Project in Letter To Gen. Fleming

By GARNETT D. HORNER.

President Roosevelt today ordered "prompt liquidation" of the Work Projects Administration because the tremendous increase in private employment makes a Federal work relief program "no longer necessary."

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal works administrator, the President directed the "closing out of all work relief project operations in many States by February 1 and in other States 'as soon thereafter as feasible.'"

He pointed out that his action will make it unnecessary for the next fiscal year budget to provide any funds for the WPA, and that it will conserve a large amount of the funds already appropriated.

While saying there would be no need for WPA "project funds" in the next budget, the President indicated that a skeleton organization might be continued by pointing out WPA's "knowledge and experience would be valuable in the post-war period."

Defends Relief Program.

Mr. Roosevelt declared "experience has amply justified" the policy on which the Federal work relief program was started seven years ago—"that providing useful work is superior to any and every kind of dole"—and added:

"With the satisfaction of a good job well done and with a high sense of integrity, the Work Projects Administration has asked for and earned an honorable discharge. In his letter to Gen. Fleming, Mr. Roosevelt said certain groups of workers who still remain on the diminished WPA rolls 'may have to be given assistance by the States and localities,' while others will be able to find 'work on farms or in other private employment continues to increase.'"

Some Works to Be Finished.

Some of the certified war projects which the WPA has under way "may have to be taken over by other units of the Federal Works Agency or by other departments of the Federal Government," the President suggested.

He added that "State or local projects should be closed out by completing useful units of such projects or by transferring the same to carry on the work."

The President's letter to Gen. Fleming indicated that they had discussed the matter earlier as the result of a suggestion by the administrator that it was time to end the WPA program.

"I agree," the President wrote Gen. Fleming, "that you should direct the prompt liquidation of the affairs of the Work Projects Administration, thereby conserving a large amount of the funds appropriated to the Federal Works Agency."

"I am proud of the Work Projects Administration's organization. It has displayed courage and determination in the face of uninformed criticism. The knowledge and experience of the organization will be of great assistance in the consideration of a well-rounded public works program for the post-war period."

The WPA spent $10,468,249,000 between the time it was established in the summer of 1935 and last June 30.

Rolls Down Over Cent. Mr. Roosevelt's order came when the organization had shrunk to one-tenth of what it was in its hey-day. The WPA reported that the number of persons on its rolls had dropped to 354,619 by November 24, compared with a peak employment of 3,334,594 back in November, 1938.

WPA's appropriation from Congress for the fiscal year begun last July 1 was $280,000,000, a marked cut from the $875,000,000 allowed it the year before, and a big slash from the peak allowance of $2,550,000,000 it got for the year ended June 30, 1939.

The cut in funds, the shifting of WPA workers to industrial payrolls with the rising demand for manpower for war production—and a program tightening up by WPA a self-were termed contributing causes for the decline.

New Projects Held Up.

The WPA already had adopted a policy of not starting new projects unless the sponsor showed a definite employment need in the local community. It also considered whether the project would contribute in some way to the war effort.

Also, Gen. Fleming had directed that all employees and those awaiting assignment be classified as follows:

- 1. Those qualified for immediate placement in war industries or agriculture.
- 2. Those suitable for training and (See WPA, Page A-3.)

Japs Must Be Cleared Out of Guadalcanal, Marine Officer Says

Their Patrols Are Active, Gen. Mitchell Asserts; Sea Attack Expected

By CLAUDE A. MAHONEY. Giving additional details on the aviation defenses of Guadalcanal, Maj. Gen. Ralph J. Mitchell...

Now and then it is advantageous to move from one strip to another, he added, as when "Millimeter Pet" the Japanese artillery in the hills...

The strips are on a grassy plain near the shore and there is ample room for expansion, Gen. Mitchell said. It is little more than a matter of skinning the grass from the surface...

Asked if it would be necessary to drive the Japs completely from Guadalcanal before extending operations to another island, Gen. Mitchell said he believed it "most advisable"...

Must Be Driven Out. "I feel a solution will be reached without much difficulty," Gen. Mitchell said.

The governor earlier appealed to private motorists to help prevent interruption of war production by picking up stranded workers.

Damage to Field Sight. The Japanese air forces were termed "pest raids" by Gen. Mitchell. He said they came over in V formations described as "loose flying"...

Agreeing with Secretary Knox, Maj. Gen. Mitchell said he believed the Japs would make further attempts to retake the island.

Brief Delay Might Have Spoiled African Invasion, Officer Says

By the Associated Press. ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 4.—If the invasion forces of the United States had waited two weeks longer, to make their North African attack in November, they never would have met with the success they did, Lt. Joseph F. Brooks of Orlando said today on his return here from Casablanca.

Heavy Gunfire Encountered. "We were immediately met with heavy gunfire from shore batteries and other transports at Fedala Bay, near Casablanca, French Morocco, 4 o'clock Sunday morning, November 8," he said.

The Japanese ship was off at night in small boat landings. "Occasionally it was necessary to bomb holes in the dense growths. Discussing further the existence of the small units of Japs, he said they could probably continue for a considerable time without additional food being brought in."

Damage to Field Sight. The Japanese air forces were termed "pest raids" by Gen. Mitchell. He said they came over in V formations described as "loose flying" since there are few buildings, the field is the main target and the danger generally is slight. Besides, when Gen. Mitchell left the island on October 23 the score of planes shot down was 310 Japanese to 62 American. The ratio has remained about the same since that time.

New Book by Cooper Of A. P. Tells of Long News Monopoly Fight

'Barriers Down' Reveals Twenty-Year Crusade For Free Press

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A 20-year crusade which broke up one of the most powerful world monopolies and opened news sources of the world to all news agencies, was revealed today in the publication of "Barriers Down," the first book written by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press.

When, in 1914, Mr. Cooper became acquainted with the ramifications and strength of the world news monopoly held by certain European news agencies, a struggle to break the situation began which continued for two decades. The Associated Press, in order to get the news of the foreign monopoly, was itself under contract to furnish the news of the United States to the foreign pool.

Mr. Cooper interested the directors of the Associated Press in endeavoring to break the control of international news held by the three great European news agencies—Reuters of London, Havas of Paris and Wolff of Berlin. At a critical time in the effort, Mr. Cooper proposed to the United Press Association of New York that the Associated Press and the United Press sign an agreement that neither would make nor maintain any exclusive contracts with any European news agency. Such a contract was signed.

Hitler's Rise Aided.

At an earlier date, "Barriers Down" discloses, Mr. Cooper advanced the idea of the Versailles treaty providing for a free press and freedom of international news exchange. His efforts, backed only by his own voice, were unsuccessful. The news barriers placed around Germany by Havas and Reuters after the World War, the book points out, contributed to Hitler's rise to power and the eventual outbreak of the present war.

The crusade had its birth in a little cable message Mr. Cooper accidentally discovered unanswered in the general offices of the Associated Press in September, 1914. That document was from the Argentine newspaper La Nacion of Buenos Aires, asking for the text of German communications and all official news concerning the World War.

Mr. Cooper, then chief of the A. P. traffic department, saw here a call from a continent in which the Associated Press never had served any newspaper. He went to the then general manager, Melville E. Stone, and offered to handle it, only to learn that the Associated Press could not serve La Nacion.

His query, "But why?" brought from Mr. Stone an explanation that shocked him but made him more interested, more determined.

"There had been crusades before—there could be another one," he wrote.

When La Nacion's cablegram was turned over to Stone it refused to make the German reports available to South America on the ground that they came from an enemy nation.

"We are French; we cannot do it," they told Mr. Stone.

As the French Havas agency owned the news rights to South America," Mr. Cooper wrote, "the whole continent was treated as a French vassal state in a news way. And as it kept an enemy communique from being read in South America, it could insist that French news in all the Havas news that was read in that continent. All South America could be blanketed out on anything not pro-French—the only entire continent that could be treated thus by any single news agency."

When he learned of this refusal, Mr. Cooper felt that the Associated Press by its contact was a party to this suppression of legitimate news in many countries, and that it was not desirable to continue a contact guaranteeing any agency a monopoly of a nation outside its own territory, or even in its home territory if by so doing it kept the people of that nation in the dark.

"Out of this conviction came my idea that the Associated Press news standards should prevail everywhere," he wrote. "Later I realized this would be impossible unless access to the source to the news of all nations should be denied to no one."

Struggle Lasted 20 Years.

The 20-year struggle to make news available at its source to every one and to permit the Associated Press to tell the news of the world on its own way and without influence by governments ended successfully on February 12, 1934, when Sir Rodrick Jones, head of Reuters, signed an agreement with Mr. Cooper in New York.

The head of Reuters had not tried to do this, however, until after he had tried unsuccessfully to interest the United Press in taking the place in the combine which the Associated Press had of its own volition decided to vacate.

"To the Associated Press," Mr. Cooper says, "I give credit for the creation of what has turned out to be the finest moral concept ever developed in America and given the world. That concept is that news must be truthful and unbiased."

The book discloses the interest in the movement started by Mr. Cooper by leaders of American journalism, including Frank B. Noyes of the Washington Star, the late Adolph S. Ochs of the New York Times, William Randolph Hearst of the Hearst newspapers and owner of the International News Service; Roy Howard of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and once president of the United Press; the late V. S. McClatchy of the Sacramento Bee; Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune, and Oswald Garrison Villard, formerly publisher of the New York Post and once a member of the Board of Directors of the Associated Press.

Traveling Salesmen To Receive More Gas Under Revised Plan

OPA to Issue Orders Granting Enough Fuel For Essential Needs

By JAMES Y. NEWTON.

The Office of Price Administration will issue within the next three weeks a revision of rationing instructions which will provide extra gasoline for the essential needs of nearly a million traveling salesmen throughout the United States, it was learned today.

Loosening of rationing regulations for salesmen was decided on after conferences between Price Administrator Henderson and Rubber Director William F. Jeffers.

Salesmen now are restricted to a "B" book, plus the basic "A" book. In the East, where "A" coupons are worth only 3 gallons, this limits them to approximately 500 miles a month.

Under the new instructions it is expected that salesmen who can prove their need and show that other means of transportation are inadequate will be given the minimum number of "C" coupons necessary to cover their routes on a strictly essential basis.

Salesmen and members of Congress have protested to OPA heretofore in vain that restrictions placed on their driving worked a hardship on them and robbed them of their means of livelihood.

Last summer OPA issued a statement which said "the rationing of gasoline for business as usual if we are going to take care of war workers and provide for heating homes."

Mr. Jeffers is said to have taken the initiative in the move to get more gas for salesmen. He is reported to have convinced Mr. Henderson that salesmen not only play an important role in the Nation's economic life but could be invaluable to OPA in explaining price ceilings, rationing regulations and OPA policy in rural communities.

Wounded Coast Guardsmen Describe Fighting in Africa

Trio Helped Knock Out Foe's Lights And Guns Hampering Our Operations

Illustrating the hazards faced in landing troops in North Africa, the Navy today released the stories of three Coast Guardsmen who were wounded near Casablanca and removed to the United States for treatment.

The stories involve dodging machine-gun bullets, shells from shore emplacements and of maneuvering landing boats to keep them out of the path of shore searchlights. The Navy did not tell the number of men wounded in the landings, nor the name of the East Coast port where the men were landed. The injured men are part of a complement of several Coast Guard transports.

Donald E. Burns, 22, gunner's mate, third class, of Sutton, Neb., was a member of a crew of five manning a small armored support boat. Assigned to knock out a machine-gun nest and a searchlight on the beach which were hampering operations, his party managed to sneak up almost to the beach before their presence was given away when they opened fire.

"I was manning the bow gun and began firing at the searchlight," Burns said. "Just as it went out I was hit by a bullet from the machine-gun nest. It was the only bullet that hit in our boat. We continued the attack for 20 minutes. Then I was transferred to a tank lighter and from there to a transport, where I received treatment for my wound."

The other two, Richard L. Buckheit, 22, boatswain's mate, second class, of St. Marys, Pa., and Abraham L. Jessen, 25, surfman, of Washington Island, Wis., told of driving boats into shore gunfire.

Buckheit, coxswain of the lead Coast Guard boat of the assault party on the way in, but the first boatload of soldiers was landed successfully. They returned to the ship, picked up a second load and landed it without damage. On the next trip back to the ship they stopped for dry clothes and dinner, and then, led by Lt. Bernard E. Scanlan of Edwardsville, Ill., set out to try to find a new landing place.

"We got safely through more gunfire and finally landed," he said. "The lieutenant took the rest of the crew ashore to reconnoiter and left me to take care of the boat. Just after they had gotten out of the boat we were all strafed by six or eight planes. The shore party escaped in-

Senate Group Fears Roosevelt May Usurp Peacemaking Power

Panama Aid Bill Stirrs Attack on Pact Made By Executive Order

By the Associated Press.
A fear that President Roosevelt might make a peace settlement after the war without consulting Congress was held before the Senate today by opponents of legislation to turn United States property in Panama over to that republic.

A minority attack on the administration for not having submitted the Atlantic Charter, the United Nations pact to refrain from making a separate peace and other international agreements to the Senate for ratification grew out of yesterday's discussion of a joint resolution authorizing the Panama transfer.

Senator Johnson, Republican, of California was expected to conclude the debate in opposition to the resolution today, with the administration confident of its adoption. Opponents held that the transfer should have been submitted in a treaty, requiring ratification by two-thirds vote of the Senate, rather than by legislation which requires only a majority vote of both houses.

Taft Sees Danger.

Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio declared that unless Congress curbs what he called an administrative tendency to make international arrangements by executive agreement "we may find it reaching an international settlement without any consultation with Congress or the people."

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri said a friend told him it was "common talk" in the State Department that instead of submitting a peace treaty to Congress at the end of the present war, arrangements would be concluded by executive agreements.

On the other hand, Majority Leader Bailey said he had heard "no suggestion" that such a course was even under consideration.

Senator Taft, while asserting he concurred in the principles of the Atlantic Charter and the mutual aid agreement among the United Nations, declared they represented a statement of policy and were not binding on Congress.

Usurpation Feared.

"There is a tendency toward executive usurpation of power in the foreign field as in domestic legislation," Senator Taft asserted. It is "unfortunate," he said because "foreign government assume such agreements are an obligation on the United States."

"I do not believe that Congress is bound to make any treaty carrying out the policies of the Atlantic Charter," Senator Taft added. He and Senator Danaher, Republican, of Conn., declared that Secretary of State Hull's "attempt to incorporate the Atlantic Charter in lease-lend agreements with China and Canada" is wholly void and not binding on the United States Government.

"It is terribly important the world should understand this so as not to mistake the nature of the agreements," added Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan.

The resolution under consideration would transfer to Panama certain property owned by the United States, including water and sewerage systems, and cancel a $2,700,000 debt to the Export-Import Bank.

Nye Hits Proposal.

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, said the proposed legislation apparently stemmed from "an unusually liberal moment in the life of Senator Taft."

He said the proposal was a "tend to bypass the Senate in treaty-making power," but that the "end to be attained" of averting irritation on the part of Panama "is worth the effort."

Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee explained that under the Constitution Congress alone can transfer title to property owned by the United States. Even if the transfer had been negotiated and ratified in a treaty, he said, "we would have to pass an act diverting the United States title in the real estate."

Panama, he said, for years had "put forth the claim that it was a reflection on its sovereignty for a foreign government to own property there."

Bodies of Eight Crewmen From Lost Barge Found

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—The terse report "all hands lost"—today told the fate of 18 crew members after the tanker-barge Cleveco broke up and sank, raising to 32 the toll in a double disaster on icy Lake Erie.

The life-jacketed bodies of eight of the Cleveco's crew were found near a long patch of oil slick late yesterday, nearly 18 hours after the vessel was last sighted. The two owners to conclude that the crew went down with the barge, which was carrying 24,000 barrels of oil to Eastern war plants.

"In all probability all hands on board have been lost," the owners said.

Boats and planes continued today a search for the bodies of seamen still missing. The tug Admiral, which was towing the Cleveco, sank Wednesday with the barge. Wisconsin, Both vessels were operated by Cleveland Tankers, Inc., for its parent, the Allied Oil Co.

The double disaster was the worst on the Great Lakes since October 22, 1929—the date the car ferry Milwaukee and the freighter Wisconsin sank in Lake Michigan with a loss of 68 lives.

The first identified bodies from the Cleveco were those of Edward J. Crooks, 33, Cleveland, wheelsman; Allen Duguid, 37, Bayonne, N. J., fireman; Elton Altier, 30, Avon Lake, Ohio, chief engineer; Mike Zacker, 30, deckhand, age and address unknown.

Legion Commander Assails Government's Suit Against A. P.

Waring Brands Ceiling On Salaries Communistic In Its Inception

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Declaring that the American Legion is against "encroachments on the American ideals of government," Col. Roane Waring, national commander of the Legion, yesterday criticized the order limiting net salaries to $25,000 yearly and assailed the Government's anti-trust suit against the Associated Press.

The Legion commander, speaking at a luncheon of Legion members, referred to the salary ceiling as "communistic in its inception." Its purpose, he asserted, was to stifle personal endeavor and initiative and deny man the right to earn whatever he can by his own efforts.

Mr. Waring declared the Government suit against the Associated Press was "one of the most dangerous things that happened in this country."

Stifles Freedom of Speech.

"It is stifling freedom of speech, freedom of contract," the Legion commander declared. "It is saying that a group of men can't get together and decide they are going to get some news and publish it without requiring them to give it to everybody else. There is nothing American in that."

No monopoly was involved, he asserted.

"It isn't intended as a suit to stop a monopoly," he continued. "It is intended for the very purpose for which it is being done, to stifle private interest, private energy, private ability and say to them: 'You have got to work under a regimented form of life and Government.'"

Serious Blow.

The suit, he said, was "one of the most serious blows yet along the line of regimentation and bureaucratization."

"There is no use in winning this war, there is no use in winning this peace," he asserted, "and then coming back and finding ourselves living in an alien land or in a land where the rights that we were born to have, that our forefathers gave to us, to find that those rights have been taken away from us by regimentation and by a lot of orders and bureaucratic orders of bureaucrats who only live and exist on the sweat and blood of honest American initiative and labor, and it is that bureaucratic kind of stuff that we have got to guard against, not in the war effort."

Suit Threatens Unbiased News, Publisher Says

By the Associated Press.
DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 4.—Fear that success of the Government's monopoly suit against the Associated Press would "impair the unbiased nature of news reports by all press associations" was expressed yesterday by D. E. Chase, publisher of the International Falls (Minn.) Daily Journal.

Mr. Chase's comment was contained in his endorsement of a movement through which publishers of smaller newspapers have joined the defense of the A. P. against the Government's suit.

Edward E. Lindsey, editor of the Decatur Herald and Review, is chairman of a committee representing 1,000 newspapers in smaller cities.

"The defense by members of the Associated Press will have the support of its countless readers who have abiding faith in the Associated Press for its factual and accurate reporting in the daily presentation of the news," said Otis A. Brumby, publisher of the Cobb County Times at Marietta, Ga.

Indorsement continued to flow into Mr. Lindsey's office from throughout the country as they have since Monday when formation of the committee was announced. Communications were received yesterday from:

John Stewart Bryan, News-Leader, Richmond, Va.; W. T. Marneau, Daily Idahoian, Moscow, Idaho; J. Hale Steinman, Intelligencer Journal, Lancaster, Pa.; Fred A. The promotion of Sergt. Joseph D. Harrington, veteran hack inspector and traffic officer, to lieutenant, was approved today by the Commissioners.

Lt. Harrington was selected a year ago as a model traffic officer by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, and was an instructor in the new rookie traffic school. He has handled the downtown Christmas rush traffic with a detail of nearly 100 men for the past 20 years.

Lt. Harrington, a native of the District, was appointed to the police force August 19, 1918, and seven years later made a sergeant and assigned to the hack inspector's office.

Lt. Harrington's record shows 12 commendations, several arrests of holdup men and a citation for the efficient manner in which he handled the schoolboy parade.

WPB Would Simplify Portable Power Tools

By the Associated Press.
The War Production Board sought today to relieve a developing bottleneck in the supply of portable electric tools by authorizing the standardization and simplification of such tools as saws, vises and machine tool accessories.

The board said the demand for portable electric tools exceeds the industry's production capacity by more than 15 per cent and estimated today's order will increase capacity by 10 per cent. It also estimated a saving each year of nearly 25 tons of copper and 26 tons of crude rubber.

Herriot and Borotra Reported Arrested By Vichy Authorities

Ex-Premier Held Earlier; First Hint of Trouble For Tennis Player

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 4.—Reuters said the Rome radio broadcast a Vichy report today that Edouard Herriot, 70-year-old former Premier of France, and Jean Borotra, French Davis Cup tennis star, had been arrested by Vichy authorities.

(A dispatch to the Chicago Daily News reported that Herriot had been taken to Evaux, a tiny, remote village in Central France. (A Stefani dispatch broadcast by the Rome radio said Leon Jouhaux, former chief of the French General Confederation of Labor, and Francois de Tesson, former undersecretary of foreign affairs, also were placed under arrest.)

Herriot, Socialist leader and Mayor of Lyon, was placed under house arrest October 2 after he had written a letter of protest to Marshal Petain against anti-democratic measures.

This was the first indication that Borotra, who accepted a role in the Petain government as director of sports, was in political difficulties, but Herriot, who remained outspoken in favor of continued friendship with Britain and America after the 1940 armistice, has been at least a prisoner within his own home for months.

The German and Italian radios announced on October 2 that Herriot had been detained at his chateau outside Lyon, in then Unoccupied France, because of his strong opposition to Vichy's collaboration with the Axis.

This was a sequel to the announcement of the Fighting French that they had a copy of a letter by Herriot in which he resigned from the French Legion of Honor because that award had been given to two Frenchmen fighting for the Germans on the eastern front.

An official statement in Vichy the next day confirmed that Herriot had been "invited to reside on his property in the country because of his attitude and the political agitation in which he engaged."

Thrice Premier of France, Herriot was president of the Chamber of Deputies when France fell.

Policy Expected Soon On Army Dictation Of College Courses

Educators Regard Plan As Death Blow to Many Small Institutions

By NELSON M. SHEPARD.
The White House is expected to disclose soon to the bewildered heads of the Nation's colleges and universities exactly what is meant by the veiled threat of Army plans to dictate the terms on which thousands of soldiers are to be given technical training during the war.

Undersecretary Patterson, at a press conference last yesterday, disavowed the intention of the Army to take over any institutions for the purpose, but he put them on notice that since the Army is going to pay the bill it also intends to get from them the kind of training it wants.

On at least one other score Mr. Patterson's statement seemed to strengthen the fears expressed by some educators that the Army plan, if it is put into effect, means the loss of independence for the duration and a probable death blow to many of the Nation's small, liberal art colleges.

Extent Not Decided.
Mr. Patterson said he did not know how many colleges would be used in the Army program, but he made it clear that the ones selected would be "the best equipped to give the training desired by the Army."

The plan to give college students three months of basic military training in camps, then send them back for certain technical training, was said to have been worked out in cooperation with the colleges. War Department reluctance and refusal to discuss the details of policy in the making, however, have kept educators as well as the public in the dark.

The implied "whip hand" which the Army can exercise over the colleges is feared unmistakably in many educational circles, especially since the Government has made 18 and 19 year old students subject to the selective service law. The teen-age group comprises about 95 per cent of the student body of the average "small" college.

Lowering of the draft age also means that practically every able-bodied student in the large universities and professional schools is eligible for military service.

In discussing the Army's training program yesterday, Mr. Patterson gave no more details than were relayed to educators at a New York meeting of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and Affiliated Associations last Saturday by Army spokesmen.

Developers Army's Plans.
"I've heard a lot of talk about the War Department may take over colleges," Mr. Patterson said. "We have no plan to take over any colleges, but there has been a plan worked out whereby a limited number of soldiers will be given technical training at certain colleges. These will be the ones with the facilities to teach the kind of things desired by the Army."

"Obviously," Mr. Patterson added, "the program will be for the benefit of the Army, and that is the only reason why the War Department would adopt it."

He indicated that the technical training may be given to civilian students as well as to soldiers, but emphasized that the bulk of the instruction given the soldiers will be outlined by the War Department.

"We will be paying the bills so we will naturally get the kind of training we specify," he added.

He did not know how many colleges would be used, nor how many soldiers would be sent to them for training.

Dr. Edmund E. Day, president of Cornell University, at the recent New York meeting told educators that as many as 250,000 service men would be sent to the colleges under this plan. Dr. Day is chairman of the Committee on Relationships of Higher Education and the Federal Government which was appointed by the American Council on Education.

"That group has been serving as a liaison between the War and Navy Departments and more than 500 colleges and universities in the war effort."

Mr. Patterson did point out, however, that the soldiers will be selected as students on much the same basis as the Army now selects officer candidates from the ranks.

British Methods of Handling Small Business Told at Hearing

Balance Achieved by Subcontracting, Commercial Leader Informs Senators

By CARTER BROOKE JONES.
The Senate Small Business Committee turned aside today for the moment from its investigation of Army purchasing practices to hear a report on how England has handled small business during the war years.

Chairman Murray excused until later Frederick Tomkins, purchasing co-ordinator for the New York Army Ordnance District, who testified concerning the earmarking of contracts for certain firms and said the Army had not been able to use the full resources of small plants in his area.

I. M. Sieff, British commercial leader, told the committee that the British government had done much to bring the smaller factories and machine shops into war production.

"At the retail level," Mr. Sieff said, "no direct action has been taken, although Board of Trade committees have already reported on the need for a plan to prevent accidental casualties among small retail firms."

Bottlenecks Encountered.
In the early days of the war, Mr. Sieff explained, the government permitted contracting firms to find their own subcontractors. While manufacturing agents combed the country for suitable equipment, he added, "all kinds of bottlenecks were present, and it was not always possible to find suitable plants at the right time in the right place."

Mr. Sieff said: "Since the battle of Dunkerque the tangle of subcontractors has been unraveled and an effort and time-saving mechanism have been evolved. This mechanism, imperfectly though it may have worked originally, is the clearing centers, which are far more than exchanges for machine tool capacity. They are increasingly becoming the clearing centers for all production problems."

"Very few factories in Great Britain possess completely balanced capacity for fulfilling any particular order, and subcontracting has been used as a means for bringing about a balance, by utilizing equipment and labor of other factories. This lack of balance may be either foreseen in advance and planned for by means of regular and long dated contracts, or it may arise from day to day."

Mr. Sieff explained that some machines were used part-time to fill portions of various contracts. He described how "blocks of time" had been worked out for different types of machines and their skilled operators, under an arrangement for almost daily exchange of production information.

450 Japs Are Killed In Merciless Attacks On Gona Coastal Area

Allies Blast 21 Planes In Blow at Enemy Base At Koepang, Timor

By the Associated Press.
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 4—At the cost of only light casualties, Allied troops were reported today to have slain 450 Japanese in the Gona area of New Guinea as they tightened the noose around enemy forces trapped in that coastal stronghold and at nearby Buna.

A communique announcing the Allied successes acknowledged that the Japanese were resisting stubbornly, but said they were being subjected to a merciless battering by aircraft and artillery designed to soften their defenses.

Allied airmen also ranged across the sea northward of Australia to strike a heavy blow at the Japanese base at Koepang, Dutch Timor, where they destroyed or damaged 21 Japanese planes, the bulletin said.

In the action at Gona two Japanese machine-gun posts were reported captured in the Allied advance. In addition to the 450 Japanese reported slain, an Allied patrol was said to have inflicted approximately 20 casualties on the enemy in a skirmish.

At Buna, isolated from Gona by Allied forces holding a seven-mile strip of coast, the Japanese were savagely contesting every foot of ground.

Probers Will Seek 'Wizard' Who Thinks Up Questionnaires

'We'd Like to Know,' Says Chairman Byrd; May Cut Appropriations

By JAMES E. CHINN.
One of the next moves of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures, Chairman Byrd said today, will be an "attempt" to find the "wizard" who thinks up all the questions with which Government agencies have deluged American business and the public in the last year in the form of questionnaires.

"We would like to know who makes up these 864 questions," he said, "but I doubt if we ever find out."

The committee, composed of members of both the Senate and House and Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau and Budget Director Smith, will resume its investigation into the plethora of Government questionnaires early next week. Meaning it expects the heads of Federal departments and agencies to furnish the members with copies of information with which business concerns and individuals have been forced to struggle since Pearl Harbor.

May Cut Appropriations.
Senator Byrd said the committee would complete its inquiry into the "paper work" phase of the investigation before the new Congress convenes in January. But after that, he predicted, "there will be hell to pay."

In explanation, he intimated Congress may cut off the appropriations which are now being used by the Government in swamping the country with questionnaires.

"The committee's investigation so far," declared Senator Byrd, "has shown that the Government has sent out a fantastic number of questionnaires and requests for reports, none of which has been standardized and which cost both the Government and the American public thousands of dollars. In my opinion, this constitutes a very substantial obstacle to the war effort and a detriment to the morale of the American people."

Indications are the committee will resume its investigation Monday. Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration, which has been accused of being one of the chief offenders in the questionnaire epidemic, is expected to be called among the first witnesses.

Waste of Time and Money.
The avalanche of questionnaires and other forms the Government is demanding that American business and the private citizen answer, were denounced before the committee yesterday by representatives of both industry and little business concerns and farmers.

Representatives of the business concerns complained that too much money and too much time was being wasted in answering the Government questionnaires, and the farmer representatives wailed loudly about the small amount of gasoline allowed the farmer under national rationing to carry on his activities.

Canada Newspapers, Magazines Queried On Use of Newsprint

Move Held Significant In View of Plans for Control in North America

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Canadian Wartime Prices and Trade Board has sent a questionnaire to all newspapers and magazines in the Dominion requesting information on their use of paper, preparatory to control of consumption following establishment of quotas for each publication, it was learned today.

While no announcement has as yet been made of this step in Ottawa, the fact the questionnaires have gone out was regarded as significant in paper circles here, in view of the fact wartime control of the North American paper industry has been undertaken jointly by Washington and Ottawa.

Thus far, there has been no restriction on consumption in North America, but the Canadian and American governments, by simultaneous orders, have restricted paper production as of November 1 at levels no higher than the average for the second and third quarters of this year and ordered producers to deliver paper to no consumers having over a 90-day inventory on hand.

Meeting Called Here.
The printing and publishing branch of WPB has called a meeting in Washington of its newspaper Advisory Committee for December 10 and is providing for the distribution of study methods of reducing use of newsprint.

The Canadian questionnaire was sent to publishers in the Dominion November 28, with instructions to reply in five days. A statement accompanying it said "until an order is issued providing for the distribution of paper supply on the basis of consumers' use," previous orders restricting delivery to those not having more than 90 days' supply would continue to apply. It said further: "The allocation of paper supply, through the establishment of a quota for each publication, will be based upon the use of paper by each publication, during a period to be determined, prior to November 1, 1942. Economies currently effected by a publication, within the limits of any prescribed inventory, may be made without prejudice to the publication's future paper supply quota."

Incentive for Economy.
"There is a direct war need for every economy publisher can effect in the reduction of their use of paper, materials, labor, transportation and power. Knowledge of this fact will be a sufficient incentive to publishers to make every possible economy in the reduction of the size of their publications, by diminishing or eliminating return and free copies, by cutting advertising checking copies to two or three, and by making a searching survey of every operation in which waste may be avoided."

The questionnaire for newspaper users asks the amount used in the 12 months ended September 30, and from whom bought. If more than 5 tons was used in the 12 months, the publication is asked the amount used in the six months ended March 31 and September 30, frequency of issue, average number of pages per issue and average press run per issue in each six-month period; also, the average press run per issue for the month of October, the overall single page size, and inventory on hand March 31, September 30 and October 31.

Temporary Food Ceilings Extended Indefinitely
By the Associated Press.
A 60-day temporary order fixing maximum prices on certain food commodities, scheduled to expire yesterday, was extended indefinitely by the Office of Price Administration.

The order applies at the processor, wholesale and retail levels to milk products, including butter, cheese, evaporated and condensed milk, as well as eggs, poultry (except turkeys), flour, cake mixers, fresh citrus fruits (at retail only), canned citrus fruits and juices, corn meal and hominy.

Ceiling prices of these commodities will remain frozen at the highest level at which they were sold by each individual firm during the September 28-October 2 period, until replaced by specific dollars-and-cents ceilings.

The order yesterday provides that if any maximum price is lower than any price set by a marketing agreement, order or license issued under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1937, the price set by the marketing agreement becomes the seller's maximum price.

Sale of raw and unprocessed milk fluid by farm co-operatives, covered in the original 60-day "freeze," were exempted today from price control because they fall under similar classification, to sales by farmers, which are not controlled.

Fluorine in Drinking Water Blamed for Bone Hardening

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 4—A case of bone hardening because of excessive fluorine in drinking water—the first reported in the United States—was described today before the Radiological Society of North America.

Two Army doctors told of the case in Texas and recommended that public health authorities make a study to determine whether the condition is widespread.

The report was made by Maj. Joseph F. Linsman and Maj. Crawford A. McMurray, both of El Paso, Tex., who said that while fluorine in water has caused mottled teeth in some States, the only cases of this bone change reported previously were in North Africa, India and Argentina.

Fluorine is a gaseous element, one of the most active and destructive known, and it combines with other substances to form a fluoride, the usual form in which it is found in water.

The case reported was that of a 22-year-old soldier who had lived most of his life in Texas areas which the report said had an excessive high concentration of fluorine in drinking water.

The soldier entered an El Paso hospital last June and died in September from an anemia which the physicians said was caused by hardening of the bone marrow, where red blood cells are made.

Analysis showed the hardening, or osteosclerosis, was due to chronic fluorine poisoning, they said. Osteosclerosis may possibly result, they said, from the prolonged use of drinking water in which the fluoride content is more than three parts per million.

From a public health standpoint, excessive fluorine was said to be serious because of the extensive anemia and also kidney damage which it causes. Health authorities have reported a high fluoride content in drinking water in scattered parts of the United States, mostly in some Western and Southwestern States.

Richmond's 'Master X' Seeks Mule to Replace 11 Jalopies

Master X, who works as a red-robed mystic, once predicted the day would come when fish would come down the James River "kicking up dust" behind them. As a matter of fact, the drought last year did leave thousands of fish high and dry.

Italy Preparing to Care For 2,000,000 Refugees

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 4—German broadcasts describing hasty Italian preparations to withstand intensified Allied bombing indicated today that Italy expects to have a problem of caring for at least 2,000,000 refugees from areas of heavy attack.

The Berlin radio broadcast dispatched from Rome telling of housing requisitioning on a large scale, with 800,000 rooms ready and 2,000,000 expected to be provided by the end of next week.

Landlords are being required to give authorities lists of all unoccupied apartments in Rome, and similar steps were reported in other cities.

Non-essential civilians already are being removed by thousands from Turin, Milan, Genoa and other bombed industrial cities.

#13 SHERWOOD BULLETIN To Fuel Oil Users
Don't forget that fuel oil for heating HOT WATER is rationed the same as fuel oil for heating. You must cut down on your use of hot water. Reduce the quantity of water used in tub or shower. Eliminate unnecessary running of hot water faucets. See that all faucets are tight and do not drip. Insulate your hot water tank if you haven't already done so. Maybe the setting of your aquastat can be lowered. Remember, the Government puts it squarely up to you to make your reduced fuel oil supply last.

War Correspondent's Task Described to School Journalists

'Old-Fashioned Reporter' Returning to Glory, G. W. U. Conference Told

The return to glory of the "old-fashioned, rough-and-tumble reporter" was described to 200 high school journalists at George Washington University today by Paul C. Miller, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press.

Tonight President Cloyd Heck Marvin of the university is scheduled to award prizes to the high school papers selected as outstanding by the university's department of journalism. Speaker at the dinner at 7:30 o'clock at the Cosmos Club will be Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, professor of European history.

Mr. Miller explained that in recent years "rewrite men" have come into prominence, with "leg men" phoning in material to be written. The leg men often never write a line themselves, he said.

Now, Mr. Miller continued, war correspondents like the A. P.'s Vern Houghland, Clark Lee and the now-imprisoned Larry Allen go out with task forces, live through the battles and file vivid first-hand accounts of what happened. For these men, Mr. Miller emphasized, getting the story is only one-half of the battle. Difficulties in getting the story out from the battle scenes, he said, often take days to overcome.

Washington Editors Quoted.

Mr. Miller quoted to the staffs of high school papers in Washington and vicinity the opinions of two district editors on the future of newspaper work.

B. M. McKelway, associate editor of The Star, Mr. Miller said, believes a "more intelligent reading public" will demand the newspapers of the future more reporting of factual reporting and less editorial opinion. The public will want to weigh the material and to form its own opinions, Mr. Miller quoted Mr. McKelway as saying, hence it will demand improvement of reporting standards and more intelligent selection of editorial material, reading matter and photographs.

Mr. Miller said that Alexander P. Jones, managing editor of the Washington Post, emphasized to him the need for students of history and labor problems among the newspapermen of tomorrow. It will take a highly trained mind, Mr. Jones believes, to write accurately of the post-war problems.

Expense of Service Shown.

Mr. Miller described the efforts of the A. P. to build up its staffs in little-known spots which may suddenly become strategic. The A. P. spent more than $11,000,000 last year, he said, maintaining cable service and staffs in all parts of the world.

The students were welcomed by the Junior College dean, Dr. William Crane Johnstone, Jr., and Kinder Vought, president of the Student Council. Mrs. Marcelle Lane, assistant professor of journalism, presided.

After lunch, technical problems of scholastic editing were discussed by editors of the high school papers with members of George Washington University Hatchet staff and Miss Ann Bean, editor of the year book, Cherry Tree.

The high school press conference has been held by the university every fall since 1935.

Rev. J. Tracey Fenby Dies At Mount Alto Hospital

The Rev. J. Tracey Fenby died in Mount Alto Hospital on Thursday after a long illness.

From 1939 to 1942 he was agent for the Farm Bureau Insurance Co. in Washington and also engaged in promotional work for several co-operatives. Before that he had served five Methodist churches as pastor.

Mr. Fenby was a graduate of Western Maryland College, class of 1917. He served with the 311th Machine Gun Battalion in France from July, 1918, until May, 1919.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Olga S. Fenby of Greenbelt, Md.; his mother, Mrs. Phyllis T. Fenby of Reisterstown; two brothers, Jonathan of Reisterstown and Frank of Olney, Md.; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Bradshaw of California and Mrs. Phyllis Kay of Worton, Md.; a daughter by his first marriage, Harriet of Havre de Grace, Md., and two daughters by his second marriage, Jeanette and Juanita.

Domestic Workers' Union Here Is Second in Nation

A drive to unionize to seek better working conditions for domestic workers in Washington was announced today by an organizer for the CIO Domestic Workers Union, after 75 white and colored domestic workers, meeting last night at 1407 L street N.W., formed the second local of the union to be organized in the Nation.

Mrs. Marian Davis, who announced the campaign, said working standards to be sought will be determined later by vote of members of the Washington local.

At the meeting a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt extending "greetings to all those attending" was read.

"My good wishes that decisions will be wise and the union of household workers will obtain, ultimately, better standards for work and working conditions," the letter, addressed to Mrs. Davis, said.

Swords Contributed To Naval Officers By Scrap Drive

The Navy announced yesterday that naval officers were turning in their swords to the scrap metal drive, to be remodeled into more effective weapons.

Vice Admiral H. V. Butler, Belle Meade, Va., administrative officer of the Navy Department, was the first officer to surrender his.

Swords have long been out-moded as fighting weapons, but were retained as part of the uniform for formal occasions. New Navy regulations, however, discarded the sword as part of the uniform.

ON THEIR WAY TO LIBERIA—Chaplain J. R. C. Pinn conducts Sunday services on the forward deck of a troop ship for a colored unit of the United States Army Engineers bound for Liberia. Every available space was filled and the congregation sang traditional hymns accompanied by their own band. Chaplain Pinn is the son of the Rev. James L. Pinn, chaplain of the District Jail and pastor of Good Will Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Howard University and, before entering the Army about two years ago, was pastor of a church in Birmingham, Ala. His parents live at 1634 S street N.W.

Colored Soldier Trained at Fort Meade Led First American Troops Ashore in Africa

By JOSEPH MORTON,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN LIBERIA (Delayed) (AP)—Napoleon Edward Taylor, 31-year-old colored private who was trained at Fort Meade, Md., led ashore the first American expeditionary force ever to set foot in Africa.

The honor of being the first ashore of this AEF went to the Baltimore (Md.) soldier simply because he happened to be the first man in line in the first of a fleet of age-worn, canvas-topped lighters which carried the detachments of crack colored troops across the most treacherous sandbar known to seamen on the West African coast, and landed them, wet and bedraggled, on the Liberian shore (June 17).

On the advice of Maj. C. S. Ward, whom Pvt. Taylor serves as orderly, he composed and rehearsed carefully a one-sentence greeting to be delivered if he got the chance.

As the first boat pulled up to a dock "somewhere in Liberia" Pvt. Taylor jumped off, marched forward a few steps and recited it:

"Liberians! We are here to join hands and fight together until this world is free of tyrannical dictators."

The only Liberians around, a half dozen boatmen assisting with the unloading, stopped, looked and listened. One of the group walked over and shook hands. The others silently resumed their work.

A former packing house worker, Pvt. Taylor was inducted at Fort Meade 18 months ago, and eventually became a member of the colored unit forming the nucleus of the forces in Liberia. He was married last February.

His greetings to the Liberians terminated a hectic 60 minutes—the time required for the 30-ton lighters to battle their way through a mile of white-capped, dancing waves and across the dangerous sand bar.

The only sign of civilization that greeted them as they debarked was a crudely-fashioned jetty at the end of a road leading off through the bush to the military installations which they were sent to expand and protect.

The Yanks, glad to see solid ground again, came ashore smiling. Each knew that the bar they had negotiated was feared by the natives as a water devil; that its history, rich in disaster, had been dimmed into every seafaring man for a thousand miles up and down the coast.

The troops fled off through the rainsoaked tropical forest to a group of thatched-roofed structures built in advance by natives. They bivouacked, and by late afternoon were firmly planted on Liberian soil.

Norwegian Professor Says Nation Fights On

Asserting his nation still fights on, Dr. Sigmund Skard, former librarian of Norway's Royal Academy and professor at the University of Oslo, told the Federal Bar Association yesterday that "no nation has given more splendid proofs of its will to exist and to defend the principles on which it has built its life."

German brutality during the Norwegian occupation "does not work," the speaker said. "The Norwegians know well whom they are fighting and what they are fighting for."

"Only one desire exists in Norwegians now," he said, "and that is to liberate the country and the world from the nightmare of Nazism and then to participate in a world reconstruction which will make it impossible to let loose the forces of destruction again."

"When the Norwegian air force recently participated in the Dieppe raid," he continued, "it had the highest number of bagged German planes per squadron."

All Wounded Servicemen Eligible for Purple Heart

President Roosevelt today authorized award of the Purple Heart decoration to Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard personnel wounded in action.

An executive order issued by the President pointed out that the decoration now is awarded to those sustaining wounds in the Army, and declared that "it is appropriate" that the same recognition be given those wounded in action with the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

Secretary of the Navy Knox was directed to make awards in the name of the President or delegate his authority to "other appropriate officers."

Lord Shuttleworth, 25, Killed in North Africa

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 4.—Capt. Lord Shuttleworth, 25-year-old baron, whose recreation was recorded in Who's Who as "shooting Nazis and resting thereon," was reported today to have been killed in action in North Africa, where he served with the Royal Artillery.

He was born in 1917, shortly after his father was killed at Vimy Ridge in the First World War. He had held the title since 1940, when his elder brother, Flying Officer Lord Shuttleworth, was killed in a fighter plane over the English Channel.

3 Allied Ships Reported Sunk in Indian Ocean

LISBON, Dec. 4.—(Associated Press) Dispatches from Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, said today Axis submarines had sunk three United Nations vessels in shark-infested waters of the Indian Ocean this week, including the 10,799-ton British liner Llandaf Castle.

The Llandaf Castle was reported to have been bearing 1,000 South African troops toward Durban on leave. The dispatches declared she went down off Zululand and only 40 survivors were known to have been landed.

The 6,796-ton British liner Nova Scotia, hit by two torpedoes from a German submarine, was reported to have gone to the bottom off the Mozambique coast, leaving many persons, including 700 Italian war prisoners being transferred to Durban, concentrated in camps, struggling in the shark-churned waters.

A Portuguese warship saved 183 persons, including a number of the prisoners, the dispatches said. Survivors reported that most of the casualties were due to attacks by sharks, which struck so violently as to over turn life rafts.

The dispatches said 22 survivors were landed at Zavala yesterday from the 4,153-ton Greek steamer Cleanthis, which was sunk by a Japanese submarine 193 miles north of Lourenco Marques.

Thirty-four members were saved, but 13 of them were reported to have been wounded by machine-gun fire.

Hewes Survivors Torpedoed Twice, Warrant Officer Says

Veteran Discloses How Flashlights Saved Many Lives

A majority of the personnel on the torpedoed Army transport Joseph Hewes, sunk in the vicinity of Casablanca, was torpedoed twice within 24 hours, a Navy warrant officer disclosed at his home in Alexandria, Va., today.

Robert C. Johnson, 41, on leave after the North African sinkings, said most of the crew was picked up by the transports Bliss, Rutledge and Scott, which in turn were torpedoed by Nazi subs within 24 hours of the sinking of the Hewes.

Mr. Johnson, a veteran of both the Navy and the Merchant Marine, attributes his rescue to flashlights he snatched up after torpedo hit the Hewes. He was picked up by a small boat and eventually landed.

Flashed by Salt Water. "I had placed the flashlights in my life jacket, but after jumping overboard, I found I couldn't get to the lights," he said. "In a short time the salt water got to the lights and they flashed on."

"This attracted the attention of a rescue boat," he said.

Following the unloading of troops from the Hewes, the warrant officer undressed for the first time in 16 days and turned in.

"I hadn't been asleep more than three hours, when a terrific crash threw me from my bunk," he recalled today. He donned pants and shirt and then put on an overcoat which he had made a practice of keeping by his bunk loaded with ammunition and a pipe and tobacco.

He said he ran to the engine room and turned off switches to prevent fires and explosions. After that, he went on deck and climbed down one of a number of rope ladders dangling over the transport's sides.

Sank in 32 Minutes. "I got about half way down then decided to jump." He hadn't been in the water very long before several of the four flashlights he carried went on. A little later he was picked up.

The Hewes sank 32 minutes after the torpedo hit, he said.

Mr. Johnson explained the flashlights in his possession by saying he grabbed up nine of them to distribute to other crew members. He managed to pass out five of them before deciding it was time to go over the side.

"In previous years when a bus became unseaworthy the safety department recommended to the county superintendent that it be replaced with better equipment, and the superintendent could either have the contractor secure another bus or secure another contractor."

"Today, replacements are impossible and so it is incumbent upon us to see that our buses transporting children be operated safely and in the best possible condition."

Gens. Parker and King Held With Wainwright

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A Tokyo broadcast disclosed today that Maj. Gen. George M. Parker and Maj. Gen. Edward P. King, Jr., who commanded United States forces in the Philippines under Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, are in the same prison camp as their chief.

WARRANT OFFICER ROBERT C. JOHNSON.

He praised the bravery and efficiency of the Hewes' crew, and said it was because of them that the loss of life was so small. The Hewes landed at Fedhala, near Casablanca, on November 2, and despite a heavy surf all troops were landed within six hours, Mr. Johnson said.

During that time he witnessed the naval action off the African port. "It was something like a football game," he commented. "We could see the shells as they left the warships, and over our radio we heard a play-by-play description from the radio of a spot plane."

Native of Washington. Mr. Johnson said there was at least consolation in the sinking of the Hewes. Crew members claim that a United States warship sank the sub that sent a torpedo into their transport.

The warrant officer is a native of Washington. He was in the Navy from 1919 to 1926, and then in the merchant marine for seven years.

He was recalled to active duty in the Navy last June. His wife and two children, Robert, 10, and Janet Irene, 7, live at 235 Lynhaven drive, Alexandria.

He is now on a 30-day furlough. At the end of which he expects to go to sea again.

Hawks Defeat Ranger Jinx and Reach Hockey Lead

Only two games were played in the National Hockey League last night, but they rearranged both ends of the standings.

The Chicago Black Hawks broke a jinx by stopping the New York Rangers, 3-1, to move into a first-place tie with the idle Detroit Red Wings.

It was the Hawks' first triumph over the Rangers in three meetings and it pushed the New Yorkers back into the league cellar, which was vacated by the Montreal Canadiens on the strength of their 4-2 win over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the other game.

Lt. Col. G. F. Marshall Gets Posthumous DSC

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Lt. Col. George F. Marshall, 32, of Washington, D. C., who was killed while commanding an infantry detachment during the North Africa landings, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross today by Lt. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

The citation said that Col. Marshall, a native of Florida and a graduate of West Point in 1935, disregarded his personal safety, inspired the confidence of his men on the craft taking them ashore and materially aided the accomplishment of a mission of great military importance.

Household Stove Makers To Get Unlimited Metal

Because of the fuel oil shortage, the War Production Board today made unlimited quantities of iron and steel available to certain manufacturers to produce coal and wood burning stoves.

The board withdrew orders limiting the amount of metal that could be used for such production. The order applies to manufacturers who in 1940-41 did less than $2,000,000 a year business and are not located in labor shortage areas.

Meanwhile, John Neukom, chief of the fuel oil rationing branch of the Office of Price Administration, said yesterday at Chicago that the fuel oil rationing program is going comparatively well, but it is too early to tell if modifications are necessary.

The program, Mr. Neukom said, is in a critical test period, the results of which will be known early in 1943 at which time changes, if necessary, will be made.

Because of the "astronomical needs of the armed forces," a cut in rationing is more probable than an increase, he indicated.

Montgomery Ward Head Called He's in CIO Row

The War Labor Board re-entered the dispute between Montgomery Ward Inc. and a CIO union of its Chicago employees today with a request that the company's president, Sewell Avery, come here Monday prepared to sign a contract.

President Roosevelt, as Commander in Chief, recently directed the company to comply with a War Labor Board order to write a union security clause into its wage agreement. The union complained to the board two days ago that the company insisted on incorporating a clause saying it believed the board's order was illegal and unsound and that the contract was being signed under duress.

Montgomery-Ward filed suits in Federal courts at San Francisco and Portland yesterday, asking a total of $4,882,153.11 actual and punitive damages against a number of common carriers as the result of labor trouble which closed the company's West Coast stores last year.

Both suits were based on the carrier's refusal to handle merchandise shipments between December 4, 1940, and July 26, 1941—during the strike of American Federation of Labor Retail Clerks, Teamsters and Warehousemen.

The unions struck at the Oakland store on December 4, 1940, in support of demands that Montgomery-Ward negotiate a contract.

Out-of-State defendants named in the San Francisco suit were the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, the Railway Express Agency, Consolidated Freightways of Washington and the Southern Pacific Co.

Innocent Bowl of Milk Becomes Something New

ANNISTON, Ala.—After all, there is something new under the sun.

The patron of a local barbecue stand ordered sweet milk and crackers. He mixed them in a bowl, and seasoned with salt and pepper. Then he chipped an apple into the bowl. Finally he took a bottle of whiskey from his pocket and poured in a liberal portion.

Then he disposed of it all with a spoon.

10 U. S. Sailors Saved By Seaplane After 2d Solomons Battle

Writer Tells of Taxing Over Water for Hours Hunting Survivors

The drama has been told of the Japanese air and naval defeat in the Solomons from November 12 to 15, during which 28 of their ships were sunk. But here is new drama in the tragic scene after battle's end.

By WILLIAM HIPPLE, Associated Press War Correspondent. SOMEWHERE IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS, Nov. 15 (Delayed). —The Japs have fled.

They made another desperate attempt last night and early today to land troops and equipment on American-held Guadalcanal Island. Again our naval forces threw them back.

As I write this, four large Japanese transports lie beached and burning on the northwest coast of Guadalcanal. We understand our naval forces, including battleships and aircraft, have been pursuing the remainder of the Japanese transports and supporting warships, which are retiring to the northwest, and that many of the enemy ships have been sunk.

During last night I again saw the tremendous flames and flashes of guns in the channel in the Guadalcanal, Savo and Tulagi Islands area as the United States forces blasted at Japanese trying to bring in transports.

As dawn came this third day of almost continuous naval and air battle over a wide area of the Solomons, I saw two Japanese transports burning and two others immobilized near the beach. Then our ships were dispatched with orders to polish them off. They did their work well and all soon were burning fiercely.

Water Littered With Debris. Today I hopped into the second seat of a seaplane piloted by Lt. Hubert (Patches) Perry of Phoenix, Ariz., who flies as expertly as he used to break broncos on Arizona ranches. We had orders to pick up survivors.

Over the battle area, the water was a mass of oil littered with boxes, cans, shell cases, life rafts, life jackets, pieces of lumber and other debris.

We covered the outer area between the northwest tip of Guadalcanal and Savo Island. Many landing boats and whale boats picked up survivors while they were thicker to the east.

We traveled low over the water, peering closely at the debris. We saw several bodies with the arms and legs outstretched grotesquely; but we had to pick up the living first.

The first live man we saw was a Jap clinging to a raft. We went low and waved we would pick him up. The Jap sailor had been in the raft, probably thinking we were going to shoot him. We circled again and once more he hid.

Pilot Perry then gave up trying to save the Jap and continued looking for our own men. An unwilling Jap is dangerous in a burning life boat. On another trip Lt. Perry had stopped to pick up a Jap. The Jap tried unsuccessfully to smash a wing with a club. So now Perry is wary.

First U. S. Sailor Sighted. We soon saw our first American sailor in the water. He was waving weakly. We waved back, then circled, landed and taxied to him. I crawled from the rear seat, got on the pontoon under the fuselage and held my leg out as far as possible. He caught hold and swung onto the pontoon. He was covered with oil. Black oil in his eyes made it impossible for him to see much. He lay gasping for breath on the pontoon a few minutes, then managed to crawl onto the wing.

Lt. Perry taxied the plane forward and spotted another man. We repeated the procedure. He, too, grabbed my leg and managed to crawl onto the pontoon.

He was in bad shape from exhaustion, heat exposure and consumption of too much oil and salt water, but kept trying to tell me something through cracked lips. I put my ear close to his mouth and heard him mumble: "Get my buddy over there—get my buddy over there."

He managed to raise an oil-covered arm to point to the right. I climbed on the wing and shouted to Perry but this sharp-eyed pilot already had seen the other man. We taxied to the spot and took aboard "Buddy."

Next, Perry taxied several hundred yards to four men in the water. Luckily they were spread out, and we managed to get them onto the pontoon one by one. We now had seven men aboard. We managed to get two of the stronger men onto the wings, where they spread out on both sides to distribute the weight.

10 Men Taken Aboard. One man on the pontoon was murmuring "So I got out, so I got out." Lt. Perry kept taxiing the plane toward a destroyer in the distance.

Five of the rescued men were too weak to get onto the wing and remained on the pontoon, holding onto the wires. One man at the stern of the pontoon rolled off several times although he retained his hand grip. We rolled him back on the pontoon each time.

All these men had been in the water from 10 to 15 hours and were off two sunken destroyers. All were wearing life jackets. They made a firm sight with oil smeared thick in hair, eyes and ears.

Ruth Gordon and Film Director Married Here in Hotel Rite

Ruth Gordon, stage actress, and Pvt. Garson Kanin, Hollywood movie director, after their marriage at the Willard Hotel last night.

Two well-known figures of the stage and screen, Ruth Gordon, one of the co-stars of "The Three Sisters," now playing at the National Theater, and Pvt. Garson Kanin, Hollywood director assigned here to the Office of Strategic Services, were married before a group of close friends last night at the Willard Hotel.

District Judge James W. Morris officiated at the ceremony immediately after the performance of the play at the National.

Besides leading members of the cast—Katharine Cornell, Judith Anderson and Edmund Glenn—guests included Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter and Herbert Bayard Swope.

It was the first wedding for the 30-year-old movie director, and the second for Miss Gordon, a widow, who gave her age as 46. Mr. Kanin said he could not get leave and added that this was the earliest date he and his bride had been able to set for the wedding, although it had been planned for some time.

Miss Gordon, long a star on Broadway, had leading roles in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "The Silver Bullet." Acclaimed for his movie productions, Mr. Kanin directed "My Favorite Wife," "A Man to Remember" and "Bachelor Mother."

They took off again. We scouted again to the west but did not see any more survivors. An inconspicuous sight was two black natives padding across the channel in a log boat. We saw the bow of a destroyer striking straight out of the water to a height of about 20 feet.

I suggested over the phone to Perry that we head over to Guadalcanal beach to take a close look at the burning Jap transports. He turned in his cockpit, grinned and pulled his trigger finger back and forth and said "bang-bang-bang" over the phone. He knew better. The Japs might still shoot at us from the burning ships and also probably had anti-aircraft guns ashore. However, we had a good view throughout our patrol of the burning Japanese transports. One was near the northwest tip of Guadalcanal, the second several miles to the east along the coast, and the other two close together still further east. There were burning from stem to stern and one was blazing afire. Large columns of smoke were coming from below their decks.

Warned of Approaching Zeros. I saw a few of the personnel scurrying on the deck of one of them but the others appeared to be abandoned. Loss of life on the "lightly-packed" transports must have been terrific. A few surviving troops may have reached shore but I am positive no equipment or supplies were landed.

All through our flight, radio messages had dinner into our ears, giving rescue instructions to boats and planes and messages to our attacking forces further out. Suddenly I heard a voice say: "Five Zeros approaching—all seaplanes return to base."

Perry whipped the plane around so fast I almost was jerked out and we headed for home. Soon I saw the Zeros in combat with our Grumman Wildcat fighters.

One of our seaplane group, piloted by Lt. George W. Polk, New York City, and formerly of the New York Herald-Tribune, was on the water at the time the message was received. His plane was disabled on by a Zero which dropped two small bombs 100 yards away and then started to strafe. Lt. Polk saw the Zero pilot grinning at the prospect of an easy kill of a seaplane, but a moment later a Grumman plane came up behind and exploded the Zero from the sky. Polk reached safety.

Life is like that in the Solomons. The Northeast Conference of Citizens' Associations last night endorsed plans for week end housing of servicemen in Washington.

The motion was made by Thomas W. Joy, Chairman delegate, following a discussion of possibilities for housing in schools and other public buildings. The conference, which did not back any specific plan, requested more information about such facilities from the District Commissioners.

The group also approved the motion of L. M. Green, delegate from National Gateway, that a name be given the new viaduct over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, connecting Florida and Rhode Island avenues. N.E. Names for the bridge will be submitted at the next meeting.

A letter of congratulation was sent by the confederation to James Crooks, delegate from the North Capital area, who was recently appointed public relations officer for the District Rent Control Office.

The meeting was held at the 12th precinct police station. Vincent P. Boudren, conference president and delegate from Metropolitan View, presided.

BOSTON.—RELATES FIRE'S HORRORS—Mickey Alpert, master of ceremonies at the Cocoanut Grove night club, is shown here as he testified at an inquest into the holocaust, which killed 491 persons last Saturday night. His right hand was bandaged from burns he suffered in the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. O'Neil of Cambridge, Mass., let the club photographer take this picture at their wedding supper and minutes later they had perished in the fire. The photographer had left to develop this and other negatives. —A. P. Wirephotos.

Poison Gas Report Studied in Probe Of Boston Fire

Chemists Say Imitation Leather Furnishings Caused Fumes

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Attorney General Robert T. Bushnell today possessed a State chemist's report that burning imitation leather furnishings produced a poisonous gas in the Cocoanut Grove Night Club fire, which took 491 lives. The basic substance of the material was nitrous cellulose, a chemical composition which, when subjected to intense heat, emits nitrous oxide fumes, inhalation of which can be deadly, the report said. State investigators discussed also that they were carefully checking a bundle of food and liquor checks which they said had been charged off by the management to prominent guests. The bundle was found undamaged after the fire. The investigators added that the checks identified the guests and bore notations such as "important," "a good friend," "see me," and "will settle later." The gas described by the chemists is essentially the same as that which played a part in the Cleveland clinic fire in Cleveland on May 15, 1929, when 124 persons lost their lives. Fumes in the Cleveland disaster were attributed, however, to burning X-ray film. Witnesses in a city inquest, being conducted separately from the State investigation, have testified that the smoke in the Cocoanut Grove holocaust Saturday night contained an acrid odor they were unable to identify. Medical examiners who conducted autopsies on scores of the victims expressed belief that there was something poisonous in the smoke besides carbon monoxide and flame.

U. S. Will Present Navy Depot Bribe Case To Pennsylvania Jury

Justice Officials Deny Hampering Probe of $40,000,000 Plant

By the Associated Press. HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—Evidence involving alleged fraud and bribery at the $40,000,000 naval supply depot at nearby Mechanicsburg will be presented to a Federal grand jury here Monday, Justice Department officials disclosed yesterday. After United States Commissioner Sidney E. Friedman charged that "reports of wholesale irregularities in construction of the depot have a sound basis in fact." Mr. Friedman said in a written statement that he had reached "an almost inescapable conclusion that the FBI and Naval Intelligence were hamstrung when their investigation revealed serious offenses which might lead to higher-ups." Justice Department officials at Washington denied the investigation had been hampered and explained that considerable time was required to obtain all the information desired. A. A. Doherty, special assistant to Attorney General Biddle, working with the War Frauds Unit, has been assigned to the case, co-operating with Frederick V. Follmer, United States attorney for the middle district of Pennsylvania, with offices at Scranton. Naval officials at the depot refused to comment but a spokesman for the Fourth Naval District said at Philadelphia that an inquiry was being made by proper Federal agencies.

"into what appeared to be financial transactions of a questionable nature." The depot, dedicated October 1, is a chief supply base for East Coast shipping. Mr. Friedman said he entered the case when Martin H. Rutt, Jr., a civilian employe at the depot, was brought before him on charges of theft of Government property. Later, Mr. Friedman said, FBI and Naval Intelligence officers brought to his office a member of a firm doing business on the project. He said the officers had "a signed confession and $2,500 cash bribe money." "The investigators," Mr. Friedman continued, "called the United States attorney in Scranton and asked authority to issue warrants and proceed with the prosecution. This is a compulsory procedure. "The officers were told to remain in my office while Washington was consulted. About 30 minutes later the Scranton office called back with instructions for the FBI and Naval Intelligence to stop the prosecution and release their prisoners because the inquiry was being turned over to the War Frauds Unit of the Department of Justice."

Barney Ross Kills Seven Japs, Promoted to Marine Corporal

Barney Ross, former lightweight and welterweight champion, shown holding up his rifle for inspection during training at the San Diego Marine Corps base last summer.

—A. P. Wirephoto.

By J. NORMAN LODGE, Associated Press War Correspondent.

MARINE FRONT LINES, Guadalcanal, Nov. 22 (Delayed).—Barney Ross, the game little fighting man who once held two world's boxing championships, today holds the greatest title he ever possessed. He was called a "damned good marine" by his captain after an overweight match with Jap snipers here on Guadalcanal, in which he killed seven for sure and probably 10.

But the only thing worrying him was "this damned arthritis." For his heroism in standing guard over three wounded comrades and blazing away in defiance, although it was almost certain death to remain exposed to a hidden machine-gun nest, Pvt. Ross is now a corporal and he has been recommended for the Navy Cross or the Army Distinguished Service Cross.

Capt. O. K. Le Blanc of Abbeville, La., the commander of Ross' company, related the story to me as I sat at the edge of a foxhole 300 yards from a Jap-infested hill.

Coaxed to Go on Patrol. "Ross, a hell of a good marine, has been suffering a bad knee and was ordered to refrain from going on patrols. He coaxed and coaxed and finally I sent him to the front, on November 18.

"That night Ross, a first-class private at the time, was in a unit ordered to act as a covering force for an infantry regiment, take them forward and cover their approach to a point west of the Mananikau River.

"The movement began at 9 a.m. on November 19, supported by artillery and heavy machine-gun fire. The enemy was engaged near the eastern base at Point Cruz, but the forward movement continued.

"The patrol knocked out one Jap knee mortar and two light machine-guns and continued forward, reaching its objective at 4 p.m. There was no opposition after passing Point Cruz, and Ross' patrol relieved by the infantry unit, began a withdrawal, their mission having been accomplished.

"Suddenly the patrol was hit by heavy ambushed machine-gun fire and one casualty was sustained. Four of our boys improvised a litter for the evacuation of the wounded man, but five minutes later all the stretcher-bearers had been riddled in the legs by machine-gun fire.

Three Stay With Wounded. "The patrol was then ordered to withdraw, leaving casualties behind because of the heavy fire.

"Three men refused to leave the wounded. They were Pvt. Barney K. Ross of Chicago, M. L. Guarnett from some Arkansas town and Leo J. Washville, a New Jersey boy.

"These three stood guard over the wounded all night. Finally Washville made his way back to the front to get help and contact me. With Lt. J. B. Murdock of Everett, Mass., and eight litter bearers, we evacuated two wounded to Matanikau at 10:30 a.m. on the morning of the 20th.

"On the return trip, from Ross and the other two we learned what transpired during that long night of the 19th.

"Ross was in one foxhole with three wounded men, ministering their needs as much as possible and keeping up rifle and tommygun fire between times. Shortly after midnight, two infantrymen armed with another tommygun and a Garand rifle with plenty of ammunition tumbled into Ross's foxhole. It was cramped with three men and three wounded, so Ross took charge, doing all the firing during the night.

All Three Promoted. "When verification of this remarkable saga was obtained, I ordered a merit promotion for Ross from private to corporal and Guarnett and Washville to first class privates. In addition, the regiment is preparing papers recommending Ross for either the Navy Cross or the Army DCS, the latter possible because Ross was working in conjunction with Army units. The two others also were recommended for citations."

Capt. Leblanc then said Ross had been evacuated for a two-day rest after the trying experience. I went looking for him and found him in the divisional medical area. Ross refused to enlarge on the exploit.

Finally, in desperation, I popped: "Feel any bad effects from your exploits, Barney?"

"This damned arthritis is giving me hell," was all he had to say. "That's what makes up champions."

Mr. McNutt Holds On

The report that the President, after a period of indecision, has made up his mind to continue manpower control in the hands of Paul V. McNutt seems reasonably well authenticated. But it remains to be seen whether this decision will be accompanied by a sufficient delegation of authority to enable Mr. McNutt to bring any semblance of order into the chaotic manpower situation.

LANCIE DELANEY.

Major Issue May Develop On Inflation

Lifting of Curb on Court Reviews Seen In Next Congress

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Once upon a time there was a Supreme Court composed of liberal as well as conservative justices, and yet they agreed unanimously that Congress could not delegate legislative power to the executive agencies of the Government unless suitable standards were prescribed marking the extent of the delegated power.

Justices Stone and Roberts concurred in that decision in the NRA case in 1935. The great liberals—Justices Cardozo and Brandeis—also concurred.

But today it is being said openly that there is no questioning the validity of the recently passed anti-inflation law because the courts will not question any act of the Executive.

The assumption that the courts will be guided by the Hitler rule—judgments according to "prevailing sentiment"—is a reflection on the judiciary, but such impressions do exist because the present Executive has appointed all but two of the present members of the Supreme Court and more than half of all the Circuit Court of Appeals and District Judges—possibly a number closer to two-thirds than a half.

Experience has proved, however, that judges do not always follow the wishes of the party to which they have belonged or the administration which gave them the appointment. The idea that the courts will not deal justly with a usurpation of power by the executive agencies is not borne out by recent trends among the lower court justices, some of whom have courageously reversed the fantastic petitions of some of the New Deal agencies and rebuked them as well.

The anti-inflation law contains the seeds of a major issue. It is an issue bigger than inflation itself, because it goes to the roots of constitutional government. Shall an executive agency—in this case, the Office of Economic Stabilization, created by executive order—be permitted to nullify bona fide contracts entered into by employers and employees governing their compensation for the year 1942 and thereafter?

Shall the vaguely expressed statement in the anti-inflation law to the effect that the President shall have the power to correct "inequalities" be interpreted to apply to salaries or wages contracted for even before the present began and before the conditions referred to as "inflation" were present? Shall the mere decree of the Chief Executive that he thinks reduction of a man's salary below pre-war levels is needed to correct an "inequality" be sufficient justification for the taking of a man's earnings from him? Shall there be said to be a fair standard when persons of similar income go untouched within the same bracket?

If the answer is in the affirmative, then the famous decision of the Supreme Court requiring that Congress prescribe the standards within which executive agencies must operate will have been nullified and the power of the Executive over the legislative body becomes absolute.

The issue, too, of whether the executive agencies may issue ex post facto rulings governing contracts in existence in 1941 and prior years by merely declaring them invalid is also a pertinent one for consideration. Certainly the State courts will be interested to know that they no longer may pass on the validity of contracts for wages and compensation and that a decree from the White House invalidates all such contracts.

It is interesting to observe that the high-handed manner in which the first executive order undertook to deprive the citizen of his right of court review has been modified to a large extent. The language of the latest regulations issued this week says concerning the new wage and salary decrees:

"Any such determination of the commissioner is final and not subject to review by the Tax Court of the United States or by any court in any civil proceedings. Nothing herein is intended, however, to deny the right of an employer or employee to contest in the Tax Court of the United States or in any court of competent jurisdiction the validity of (1) any provision of these regulations on the ground such provision is not authorized by law, or (2) any action taken or de-

President's Move to Limit Salaries Hit; British Economic Reform Plan Praised

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. Within the last few days Sir William Beveridge has submitted to the British government a 150,000-word report on the reform of the social and economic structure of Britain, intended to achieve for the British people freedom from want.

And, within the last days, President Roosevelt has indicated that he wishes his decree, now limiting all salaries to $25,000 annually, to be applied, with the co-operation of Congress, to all incomes from whatever source. Since Congress refused, in the first instance, to take action on salaries, and the President then carried out his wishes by fiat, it is possible that he will take the second step by fiat.

I think it well to compare these two actions. The Beveridge report proposes fundamental, social and economic reform, to be achieved by consent. It lays all the cards on the table. It is a program, prepared at the request of the government, by a disinterested and scientifically-minded man, a leading authority on social insurances.

Four Factors Involved. Sir William lays down a thesis regarding the modern world that is hardly controvertible, namely that every person in a developed industrial country can be secured against poverty provided, first, that after the war nations co-operate for production in peace instead of re-entering an armament race; second, that economic policy is so adjusted as to maintain continual production; third, that a universal plan of social security, or, as he calls it, maintenance of income is adopted; and fourth, that decisions regarding the nature of such a plan be taken now, during the war.

There is nothing of the agitator or the demagogue in this report. There is malice toward no class. It is an appeal to the intelligence and common sense of all the people of Britain. This report will be discussed in the House of Commons and by the people of Britain. It can be accepted, rejected or modified. But whatever happens, people will know what they are discussing, what they are aiming at, what it will mean in sacrifice, what it will mean in gain to the whole community.

If it is adopted, Britain will be the first country in the world to have established a new 20th century social and democratic order by the historic process of debate and consent. And if Britain does this, it will have an enormous effect on the world and hasten the end of the war.

Roosevelt Move Compared. Now, compare this with the President's action—that already taken regarding salaries and that now proposed. It occurs in a termination made under these regulations, on the ground that such action or determination is not authorized, or has not been taken, or made in a manner required, by law.

Remedies Foreseen. What is meant by "not authorized"? This is probably a halfhearted way of conceding that the commissioner might be wrong in going beyond the regulations but it doesn't clear up the question of whether the commissioner's judgment on the "finding of facts" is to be final.

In tax matters, a "finding of facts" is final, but this is so by virtue of a congressional enactment supported by a Supreme Court decision. Nowhere in the anti-inflation law did Congress provide for an appeal or denial of appeal.

Doubtless Congress will remedy this in the coming session, for if executive agencies can limit court reviews or say what shall be reviewed, the American system of government has undergone a considerable change even as American soldiers and sailors are being urged to give their lives for the blessings of democracy.

24 D. C. Boys to Attend 'Y' Session at Annapolis. Twenty-four District boys are scheduled to attend the three-day session of the 20th annual Older Boys' Conference of the Young Men's Christian Association, opening late today at Annapolis, Md. The Washington delegation will vacuum. There is no social system, existing or proposed, into which it fits. The limitation of income is no system; it takes from one group without securing anything to anybody else. It also is a revolutionary act, and it will bring about economic and social disorder. It will, for instance, hit a tremendous blow at real estate values, insurance systems, and charitable, educational and cultural activities, for they are supported in the main from the group about to be expropriated.

It has another social consequence. The society of the better-off will become a closed shop in which there is no opportunity for this individual or that to rise. In this sense it is more revolutionary than anything in the Beveridge report. Yet it is utterly unsystematic and related to nothing.

Furthermore, it is fallacious to believe that the State can stand still at this point. It will have to pick up the wreckage and take over the obligations that this income group will be unable longer to fulfill. And it will therefore be all but impossible to reverse it after the war.

War Financing Not Affected. The ground on which it is advocated is phoney. The decree limiting salaries was taken under a law giving the President powers to stabilize prices, wages and salaries affecting the cost of living. No reputable economist, whether of the right or of the left, could present reasonable proof that these limitations will in any way affect the price level. It has nothing to do with financing the war. The financing of the war is a matter of taxation, not of arbitrary limitation of income.

It is a demagogic proposal, demagogic not because it is radical, but because its radicalism has no foundations in reason and because its purposes are not the purposes which it pretends. It is revolution off the cuff. And its effect can be disastrous—disastrous, among other things, for the war, the peace and Mr. Roosevelt.

New Order Held Necessary. This column is written by one who is convinced that we should begin, during this war, to build a new, more productive, more just, and more reasonable social order in America. But this sort of arbitrary and disorderly action, outside the framework of any considered plan, put over by decree, and without discussion, will consolidate reactionary elements around an issue in which they have justice and reason on their side.

It will have just the opposite effect of the Beveridge report, which disarms the reactionary elements in Britain by forcing them to present considered reasons why a universally desirable goal cannot be achieved. And in this country the reactionary elements are exactly those who will want to sabotage a great constructive international peace after the war.

The President could not have chosen a less favorable battleground for a showdown with these isolationist circles. (Released by the Real Syndicate, Inc.)

The Great Game of Politics

Byrnes' Host of Congressional Friends Impair His Efficiency in New Post

By FRANK R. KENT.

It is interesting but not encouraging that one of the qualities which made former Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes one of the best-liked men in American public life, and which contributed more than anything else to his influence in the Senate, should now operate against the successful management of the great job he has undertaken as director of economic stabilization.

The reference is to his engaging personality, which, coupled with a genuine liking for people, gave him a wider acquaintance and more friends than any other member of Congress who can now be recalled. With the exception of the late Nicholas Longworth, who was in a class by himself.

But practically everybody who knows "Jimmie" Byrnes likes him. Almost as good a story-teller as the late Admiral Cary T. Grayson, shrewd, able, companionable, one of the reasons for his extraordinary effectiveness as a Senator was his willingness to interest himself in the causes of his friends and his eagerness as well as his ability to help.

It is easy to understand how such a man would endear himself to his colleagues and why when the President drafted him for a position of such tremendous power and responsibility their gratification was great and their commendation warm and sincere.

Spoke Their Language. Most of them at once felt that here in high administrative position was a man who not only spoke their language and understood their "situation" but, in addition, was a personal friend, always ready to do a favor and generally able to. Here, at last, was a man to whom they could take their troubles and tell their grievances; who could and would do something about them.

No wonder they rejoiced. Many members of Congress dislike and distrust the more important heads of the new governmental agencies—particularly the advanced New Dealers of the Henderson type. There has been an accumulation of resentment against them in House and Senate. Members have been unable to get audiences when they wanted—or to get satisfaction when they got audience. As a result, there is a considerable feeling in Congress—not altogether without foundation—that things are being run here by men swollen with authority and without understanding. But, "Jimmie" is something else. "Jimmie" is very different. "Jimmie" is their friend, a "guy you can really go and talk to." And that at the moment is "Jimmie's" great trouble. His congressional colleagues have descended upon him very heavily, indeed. They flock to his offices; they grab him for lunch and dinner; they keep his telephone jangling. "Hello, Jimmie, this is Bill. I've got to see you right away, something important. I'll be right down." So, it goes all day long. The pressure never relaxes and the demands on his time daily increase.

For Mr. Byrnes it is worse than embarrassing—it is devastating. He cannot shunt these House and Senate friends off on secretaries. They won't stand for that; they know him too well; insist on seeing and talking to him personally. He cannot refuse to see and talk to his close personal friends, whom he numbers by the score. He cannot be expected to turn these friends into enemies, as he certainly would if they found they could not get to him when they want.

Would Bring Bad Reaction. If he tried to erect a protective shield about himself, it would be so out of character that the reaction would be quick and strong. It would mean that all those close friends would be saying: "Well, Jimmie has swelled like the rest of them," and, "Well, who would have thought Jimmie would go back on his friends?"

No one can blame Mr. Byrnes from shrinking from that sort of thing. And besides, he wants to see in a spot. The man actually has no time to think. With a job conceded of vital importance to the Nation and with power second only to that of the President, it is essential for him to have sufficient leisure to plan and to direct. If he is to succeed, he has got to have opportunity for thought, for conference and for administrative work on the broad lines of policy. He cannot possibly do these things adequately if he is overwhelmed with personal interviews on trivial affairs.

It is, of course, essential for him, as a public official, to keep on good terms with Congress, and it is essential to him as a man to keep his friends. But his friends ought to grasp his situation and show some consideration. Let up on him. Give him time to think. Don't go to him on unimportant matters and don't take up too much time on important ones. No man in Washington has as many friends as he. No man values his friends more highly. But his friends could ruin him. They do not want to do that, do they?

Valor and Discipline of Our New French Allies In North Africa Praised by U. S. Officers

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The gratitude of the common people remains great regardless of how much politicians endeavor to sabotage good relations among nations.

This was amply illustrated in the operations of the American forces in North Africa when the memory of the Argonne and Belleau Wood r-kindled old thoughts among the French officers and even native African troops. After only a token resistance they rushed with extended hands toward the friendly invading American troops.

American officers who have just returned from the zone of operations are full of praise for the remarkable spirit of comradeship of the French and express amazement at the discipline and valor of our new Allies.

Of course, there had been a deal with some of the French commanders before our troops went ashore. But that deal, which had been kept secret from the rank and file, would have worked with difficulty only had it not met with the full approval of the local commanders and troops.

The navy men alone were adamant since no deal had been made with the admiral in command at Casablanca whose sense of duty prevented him from receiving our agents. Thus the fleet fought although the air arm in most cases contented itself with circling around our ships and returning to base without attempting to harm us.

French Good Marksman. American parav men are delighted at the idea that at least a number of the remaining French ships will soon be fighting on our side. The performance of the French Navy at Casablanca had been surprisingly efficient. The tactical handling of the ships was brilliant and the accuracy of their fire remarkable.

Although for more than two years these men of war had had little or no opportunity to fire at any targets their gunnery was exceedingly accurate. Had we not had an overwhelming superiority there is no question that the handful of cruisers and destroyers supported by the battleship Jean Bart—which was firing from the harbor since it could not put out to sea because of engine trouble—would have given us serious difficulty.

The discipline of the land forces is exemplary: The French Army at its best. The equipment, however, is antiquated for the type of war now being waged. Officers from the highest rank to the lowest are reported burning with desire to renew the fighting and are anxious to meet the enemy even with poor equipment. American officers and men are lionized not only by the native and French population in Morocco and Algeria, but particularly by the North African armed forces.

The French Navy, since the order to co-operate with the Allies was issued, is equally eager to fight. It is considered extremely fortunate that we obtained control over the Dakar area by a friendly agreement. At Dakar there are a number of men of war which will come in extremely handy in our operations in the Mediterranean. Besides the 35,000-ton modern battleship Richelieu, which will have to be taken to an Allied yard to be reconditioned, there are three cruisers, the Montcalm, the Georges Leygues and the Gloire. These three fast cruisers, together with some 10 destroyers and a score of corvettes and submarines, are in perfect fighting trim.

War Material Being Rushed. According to existing plans, they will continue to fly the Tricolor, remaining under the command of a French admiral, and will aid the Allies in the Mediterranean as soon as the last details of an agreement are completed.

Another modernized battleship, the Lorraine, and two heavy cruisers, the Duguay-Trouin and the Suffren, are demilitarized at Alexandria. Their officers and men are on board and these ships can be reconditioned in a short time and sent into action against the Axis probably early next year when the Mediterranean basin is expected to become the scene of bitter naval, air and land battles.

Large shipments of war material, rather than men, are now being rushed to North Africa. Modern American tanks, artillery and machine guns and planes, together with the necessary quantities of ammunition, are being distributed to the French forces which are being sent into the field as soon as they are adequately equipped.

Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, who is in command of the French Army in North Africa, expects to be able to put 300,000 fully trained soldiers into battle when the fight for the Mediterranean reaches its peak and landing operations on enemy soil are contemplated.

While the hatred of the Nazis is great, the hatred, mixed with contempt, for the Italians is even greater. The American high command fully expects the African forces to live up to their old reputation which has always rated them among the best fighting troops in the world.

Lo! the Poor Traveling Salesman

By HENRY McLEMORE.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Is there a taxidermist in the house? If there is I'd like to talk to him, because I have a spot of work for him. He must be exceptionally capable, because what I have in mind is a big job, much bigger than the average taxidermist does on salifish, moose heads and household pets who are gone but not forgotten.

I want a taxidermist who can stuff and mount me a traveling salesman. Yes, a traveling salesman. Yes, the kind you have seen all your life moving from town to town, State to State, selling goods of all sorts.

The traveling salesman appears to be doomed, for a good while, at least, and I want future generations of Americans to be able to see what one of our most familiar species looked like. Certainly if objects of art of long ago are worth preserving, then a traveling salesman is entitled to the same respect. As a whole they are more interesting than Colonial sideboards, mother-eaten violins and worn-out rugs and tapestries.

The traveling salesman I have selected for preservation is an average one. He stands about 5 feet 8, wears a conservative suit, is a fast talker, wears his hat at a gay angle, calls nearly every one Mac, has one leg that is slightly longer than the other from reaching for the accelerator on his car, and slants slightly to one side because of the tens of thousands of times he has leaned against the window in a train smoker in an effort to get a moment's nap before calling on the next customer.

He knows ten thousand stories, can take punishment that would fold up most men, and nearly always has a smile. He has a wife and kid at home whom he doesn't see half as much as he would like to, and generally works like the devil for what he gets.

The salesman is being doomed by the gas rationing boards. Washington apparently looks on him as something about as necessary as a haircut for the busts in the Hall of Fame, and has laid down the law against giving him anything better than a B card. A traveling salesman with a B card has about as much chance as a valet at a hobos' convention. He might just as well lock his car and use it for a chicken roost, provided he is lucky enough to have laid up a chicken or two for a rainy day.

This is not a knock against gasoline rationing and tire conservation, but I do wish that some one in charge in Washington would please explain to me what traveling salesmen are going to make a living at without any gasoline. It is like taking the dice away from a craps-shooter.

It requires genius, and nothing short of genius, to be a traveling salesman if you can't travel. I also wish some one would explain to me the justice in giving every Tom, Dick and Harry an A card and refusing salesmen anything but a B card. It seems to me that the tens of thousands of us to whom an automobile is a convenience, but not a necessity, should have our A cards taken away and the gasoline given to men whose living depends on being able to get around.

If the traveling salesmen could get around on the trains after their gasoline is taken away, then it would be all right, but travel by train now is all but impossible and getting worse. Trains are so congested that even contortionists, capable and willing of sitting three in a lap, have to make their reservations two weeks in advance. By the time a calendar salesman, say, got train booking for a swing through his territory his calendars would be out of date.

The plight of the traveling salesman is a serious one. Unfortunately, they are human like all the rest of us and have to have food to eat, clothes to wear, and a roof over their heads. How they are going to be able to earn these essentials is a mystery to me.

Man Who Defied NRA Jailed in Tax Fight

By The Associated Press. YORK, Pa., Dec. 4.—Frederick C. Perkins, 72-year-old battery manufacturer who served 18 days in 1934 for defiance of the NRA, was committed to York County Jail yesterday on a charge of failure to pay social security taxes. Mr. Perkins is charged with failure to pay $516 taxes on a payroll of $5,116 for the year ending June 30, 1942. Arrested by Deputy United States Marshal William L. Capello, he was jailed in default of $2,500 bail. Mr. Perkins claims the social security tax is "confiscatory, discriminatory and unconstitutional" and says he will "go all the way to the Supreme Court, provided I have some help from friends."

D. C. Merchant Marine Officer Is Listed Among 296 Missing

Lt. Hewey Lived Here 26 Years; 21 Reported Dead in Latest List

Lt. Hudson Adoc Hewey, 42, of 1631 Euclid street N.W. is listed as missing on merchant marine casualty list No. 3 released by the Navy today.

Lt. Hewey, a resident of the Metropolitan Area for 26 years, makes his home with his brother, Dr. G. A. Hewey.

The list, covering a period from October 22, 1942, to November 21, named 21 seamen killed and 296 others missing.

Lt. Hewey, who formerly attended

LT. HUDSON ADOC HEWEY.

Emerson Institute here and is a graduate of a New England radio school, has been at sea as a radio operator for 20 years. Dr. Hewey said his brother was senior radio officer on his last trip. Dr. Hewey said he received a postcard and a radiogram from his brother about two months before official notification that he was missing came to him on November 5.

In addition to Dr. Hewey, another brother, Rufus S. Hewey, of the United States Navy, is also in Washington at the present. Another brother, Edward W. Hewey, of Lamesa, Calif., is in the Navy.

Listed as missing from Virginia are Moody Clay Harrison, able seaman, of Redwood and Fenton Partidge, fireman water tender, of Jarrett. Four Baltimore (Md.) seamen are listed as missing.

The third casualty list covers 32 States, the District and Puerto Rico. It brings the total of United States merchant marine casualties reported to next of kin during the period from September 27, 1941, to November 21, 1942, to 2,901, of which 483 are listed as dead and 2,438 as missing.

Army and Rail Chiefs Ask Holiday Traffic Be Cut to Minimum

Seek to Keep Roads Clear for Servicemen And War Workers

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Civilian pleasure trips on the Nation's railroads, in the opinion of Army and railroad officials, should be held to a minimum during the holiday period—extending from December 12 to January 12.

In a radio forum last night, the officials urged civilians not to plan any unnecessary railroad trips during the month period because of the increasing strain on existing railroad equipment in the war effort. They emphasized that there would be no rationing of railroad travel.

Army to Get Preference

They said that if the public adhered to their requests, the railroads during the holiday season could give preference to official troop movements; military personnel going home for Christmas and returning to camp; to families visiting relatives in camps and for civilian travelers engaged in war work.

"Naturally, if these groups come first, other civilians must be inconvenienced to some extent," said Hugh Siddell, chairman of the Western Passenger Association. "So, it's necessary for us to ask the general public to think twice—maybe even three times—before making plans for pleasure trips during the period of December 12 to January 12."

50,000 Troops Moved Daily

Col. F. C. R. Lasher, deputy chief of the Traffic Control Division, Army Transportation Corps, said 15 per cent of the day coaches and one half of the sleeping cars in the country were being used for transporting approximately 50,000 troops daily.

"Most Americans appreciate the fact that they still enjoy the privilege of traveling when and where they will, and will not abuse it in the days to come when Army pre-

Chinese Envoy Urges Direct Drive on Japan

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A conclusive assault on Japan should spring directly from China, Wei Tao-ming, Ambassador of the republic of China, declared last night.

Wei, speaking at a dinner given for him by the China Society of America, warned that while the passage of time worked against the aims of the Axis in Europe, it aided Japan.

Others taking part in the forum were Brig. Gen. Charles B. Young, assistant director of the Office of Defense Transportation, and George A. Kelly, vice president of the Pullman Co.

Gen. Patton Target of Sniping During First Few Days at Casablanca

our position as we circled and zig-zagged through eight hours of battle.

Patton Target of Snipers.

Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., commander of United States troops in Western Morocco, was the target of much sniping for the first few days of the Casablanca operation. He made a special study of the Koran on the way over, but the natives apparently didn't know it.

The general's orderly, Sergt. George W. Weeks of Georgia, refused to leave the officer. He carried a tommy gun and a pistol and slept outside Gen. Patton's door every night.

Capt. F. C. Denebrink, Washington, D. C., fought his cruiser with his helmet on backwards. No one dared tell him it was that way.

Seaman Charles L. Mer, 16, of Bedford, Va., is one fellow who had no interest in congressional disputes over drafting boys of 18 and 19. He joined up six months ago and has put on 25 pounds. Friends swear he is only 15 and he looks it.

Vessel Misses Torpedoes.

The submarine experience Comdr. G. G. Herring, Harrisonburg, Va., had years ago probably saved our vessel from being hit. We had been rushing straight toward some French ships when Comdr. Herring suggested that we zig a little. Moments later we saw the telltale bubble of torpedoes fired by air. As we turned sharply, five torpedoes swept by the place we would have been if we had continued on for 12 more seconds.

Men working in the fire and engine rooms below can take it. It is a long way to the open deck when a submarine or aerial torpedo strikes a ship below the water line. Lt. Andrew Burgess, Charleston, S. C., said he could hear enemy shells striking in the water near his ship. It was an uncomfortable feeling to hear something you couldn't see.

Father Francis T. O'Leary of Boston was the victim of an odd bit of thievery. Some one entered his room and stole his favorite Bible.

Indecency Conviction To Close Show in N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The curtain fell on Margie Hart's G-string and Noel Toy's fan dance in "Wine, Women and Song" yesterday, when a jury of seven men and five women held the show to be indecent.

The producer agreed to close the production immediately when that action was made a condition of bail continuance until December 17, when sentence on a misdemeanor charge will be passed.

The defendants in the case—so much in the background at the trial as in the theater—were Producer I. H. Herk, Company Manager Samuel Punt and Stage Manager Herman Shapiro. They face maximum sentences of one year imprisonment or an indeterminate sentence and a maximum fine of $500 or both.

Senate Unit Approves Measure to Pay Kin Of War Prisoners

Jap Failure to Report On Men Held Brings Approval of Bill

By the Associated Press.

Failure of the Japanese to comply with the Geneva Convention in reporting men held as war prisoners prompted the Senate Naval Affairs Committee yesterday to approve a bill extending the period under which dependents missing in action are entitled to various benefits.

Under present law, the Secretary of the Navy or of War is required to declare a missing man legally dead after a 12 months period has elapsed.

Early enactment of the legislation was urged by both the Army and Navy in view of the fact that nearly 12 months have elapsed since the opening of hostilities with Japan.

Teacher Rationing Program Urged at Missouri Convention

Action Proposed as Means of Replacing Men in Armed Forces

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 4.—Pupils won't need coupons—but educators are attempting to devise a teacher-rationing program.

And for the benefit of the oncoming generation, the services of competent teachers had better be rationed, two speakers told the Missouri State Teachers' Association convention.

"We have no time to lose," declared Dr. John Milton Potter, president of Hobart and William Smith Colleges, Geneva, N. Y. He urged an immediate wartime policy to distribute teaching manpower.

Otherwise, "we may easily raise up a new generation with only a superficial knowledge of the very values for which we are fighting; a generation unprepared to meet the shocks and strains of the post-war era."

The convention earlier yesterday approved a resolution offered by President Uel W. Laming of Northwest Missouri Teachers' College, calling for a program to assure a qualified teacher for every school.

Unlabeled in the resolution but advocated in his address was a system of outright teacher-rationing, to be handled by a central defense agency.

Missouri's 25,000 teachers are moving into the armed forces or war plants at an increasing rate, he told the convention, and "the panic method of hastening poorly prepared, immature or incompetent teachers into schools merely to fill gaps will retard the effectiveness of education for years to come."

He suggested the assignment of competent teachers on a basis of one to every 40 pupils (the State's elementary average is now 30) with higher salaries, and with State funds offered to co-operating school districts.

And how would pupils reach more distant classrooms?

Pay parents a subsidy for providing transportation—probably the horse-and-buggy kind, he said.

Effect of Parity Bill On Cost of Living Sought by Roosevelt

Swift Senate Action Asked on Measure House Approved

Adoption by the House of a bill to include all farm wages in figuring parity prices brought from President Roosevelt today the comment that the first thing to do was to find out the effect this would have on the cost of living.

The President had taken a vigorous stand against this revised parity formula at the time anti-inflation legislation was before Congress. Opponents of the bill contend it would raise the cost of living several billion dollars.

Government economists have estimated the new formula would raise old parity levels by 10 to 12 per cent, and Price Administrator Henderson has contended it would result in a substantial increase in living costs.

Apparently caught off guard, Mr. Henderson's office had no new statement as to whether the legislation passed by unanimous vote in a surprise move by the House yesterday would crack retail ceilings on agricultural commodities.

Quick Action Sought. Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, Agriculture Committee member, telegraphed Chairman Smith at his South Carolina home, asking for quick committee action on the bill.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana told reporters the unanimous House vote "shows that the people have spoken and the administration is getting scared." He predicted speedy Senate approval of the measure.

The House action was viewed by Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming as proving his contention that the farmer was going to face a labor squeeze and that his prices would have to be adjusted so as to keep labor on the farm and prevent a food shortage.

Some Senators expressed the view privately that if the measure is enacted, the increased prices might be met by Government subsidy to prevent any general breakdown in retail ceilings.

Provisions Explained. The bill, sponsored by Representative Pace, Democrat, of Georgia, would require that all the farmer's labor costs, including himself, his wife and children and his hired help, be included in the parity computation of prices of agricultural commodities.

Parity is an arbitrary price calculated to give farmers the buying power of some past favorable period for agriculture, usually 1909-1914. Under the anti-inflation law, which conferred on executive authority over wages, salaries and prices, a floor of 90 per cent of parity, by the old definition, was put under the six basic commodities—wheat, cotton, corn, rice, tobacco and peanuts (except grains used for feed); and the statute provides that no ceilings can be placed over farm commodities at less than 100 per cent of parity or the highest price from January 1 to September 15, whichever is higher.

Labor Costs Seen in Formula. It was assumed that if parity is redefined, then a formula including labor costs would be used in computing the floors and ceilings for all farm commodities.

Mr. Pace told the House yesterday that under agricultural labor policies virtually no crops will be produced next year unless farmers are allowed to embrace the increased labor costs in the parity formula and in the prices they are to receive.

Farm bloc leaders privately expressed confidence the legislation not only would be passed by the Senate, but that it had sufficient strength to override a presidential veto if Mr. Roosevelt disapproved.

New War Powers Act Designed to Affect Few, President Says

Two or Three Dozen Persons Per Year Would Be Admitted to U. S.

Replying to critics of his recommendation for power to suspend the tariff and immigration laws whenever he deems it necessary to support the war effort, President Roosevelt told reporters today that it was intended, under the immigration part, to bring into this country only two or three dozen persons a year.

A questioner at his press conference noted that most of the criticism had been directed against suspending the immigration laws for fear it would let down the bars to unwanted individuals.

The President replied he did not care how the bill was worded and said the few persons the Government wanted to let in would be needed to strengthen the war effort. He agreed with a questioner that that was all that the shouting was about at the Capitol.

Hearings Continued. The House Ways and Means Committee continued hearings on the legislation, trimmed down by a subcommittee to cover only suspension of tariff regulations, after being informed by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that the Treasury has no new tax program for immediate consideration.

Mr. Morgenthau's position was disclosed late yesterday after the committee heard high-ranking Army, Navy and Maritime Commission officials endorse a bill to broaden the Chief Executive's war powers with respect to tariffs.

Chairman Doughton announced that Mr. Morgenthau had told him the department had not worked out a new tax plan, but other members said undoubtedly there would be new tax legislation early in the next session.

The committee went into the second day of public hearings on the tariff bill with many members obviously unconvinced that the general grant of power it proposes is necessary. Called to testify were representatives of the State Department, the Tariff Commission and the Customs Service.

Facts on Barriers Sought. Throughout yesterday's questioning members unsuccessfully sought to learn what existing laws or regulations were impeding the war effort and indicated a willingness to remove those barriers.

Undersecretary of War Patterson, Undersecretary of the Navy Forrestal and Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, appeared yesterday to support the bill.

"I think the bill is pretty well pared down; there's nothing superfluous in it," argued Mr. Patterson after saying the War Department considered the measure necessary to remove impediments to the war effort.

Mr. Doughton asked him whether President Roosevelt had asked for the new authority as a result of requests by the War Department "or to enlarge his own powers."

"I understand that it was made on the recommendations of the War Department," Mr. Patterson replied.

Reasons for Measure. He said the chief reason the department wanted the bill was to facilitate speedy movement of supplies and cited delays at the Canadian and Mexican borders in the passage of both raw material and finished goods through customs.

Mr. Forrestal backed Mr. Patterson's testimony, asserting the legislation was "born of war and I assume it will end with the war. I frankly don't see any sinister shadows behind it."

A protest that Congress might be reduced to the same state of impotence as Hitler's Reichstag was made to the committee by Representative Gearhart, Republican, of California.

Bluntly asserting that powers already granted have been "abused and misused," Mr. Gearhart declared that "it is time for Congress to check up before it finds itself in the low and lonely position of the Reichstag."

Meanwhile within the committee a movement to rewrite the measure—already twice redrafted—and to specify in detail just what laws could be suspended appeared to be gaining ground.

It was reflected on the Republican side by statements and questions by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, ranking minority member; Representative Jenkins of Ohio, and Mr. Gearhart; among the Democratic members by the comments of Representative Disney of Oklahoma.

Such a course, if followed, probably would mean the sidetracking of the legislation for the time being, for less than a month remains of the Seventy-seventh Congress in which to push the bill through public hearings and gain House and Senate approval.

"A burned child fears the fire," declared Mr. Disney as he joined in protesting "interpretations of laws which never were intended by Congress."

He attacked in particular an executive order limiting salaries to a net of $25,000 after taxation and other deductions. He said this was part of a "Communist party platform."

Mr. Gearhart cited also the construction of the "Pentagon monstrosity," huge new home of the War Department. He said it had been built at a cost of $50,000,000 in excess of the amount authorized by Congress.

Chicago Women May Sit At Bars Again—Escorted

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—After a four-months' experiment, the City Council has decided it's all right for women to sit at tavern bars and drink, provided they are accompanied by male escorts.

Last August the council passed an ordinance removing the women from the tavern bar stools and putting them at tables to sip their drinks. Yesterday they amended the measure by simply adding a clause to the law to require male escorts.

Tony Martin Reclassified 1-A by Draft Board

By the Associated Press. BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 4.—Tony Martin, 29, actor-singer who was dismissed from the Navy Tuesday for unfitness, was reclassified as "1-A, subject to physical examination," A. H. Pier, board chairman, said.

Martin, who had served as chief specialist in the Navy for 11 months, reported to his Draft Board immediately after his dismissal, and expressed a desire to enter an Army gunnery school.

He was the principal witness in the recent court martial of Lt. Comdr. Maurice N. Aroff, accused of accepting an automobile from Martin in connection with the latter's enlistment in the Navy.

ALLIED FORCES MASS FOR SHOWDOWN IN TUNISIA; LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES HEAVY

Wednesday and destroyed three on the ground. Twenty-one more were damaged, he said—6 in combat and 15 on the ground. Considerable Axis aerial activity also was reported over the battle area with German bombers making repeated attacks on the Allied positions.

JAP REINFORCEMENTS BASTED—Nine Japanese ships, carrying reinforcements for their harried troops on Guadalcanal, were sunk just north of the island Monday night, the Navy said yesterday. Meanwhile, American forces ashore on Guadalcanal hacked away at the Japanese (A) left flanks there without reinforcements of men or fresh supplies.

ALLIES AND AXIS FIGHT FOR THREE KEY TUNISIAN TOWNS—Allied forces (represented by black arrows) today massed for a new showdown with Axis troops (white arrows) after a bitter 48-hour battle in which they repulsed a series of desperate German attempts to recapture the three key cities of Mateur (1), Djedeida (2) and Tebourba (3). Arrows indicate how Allies have forced their way into Axis defensive positions (jagged lines) about Bizerte and Tunis by occupying Mateur and Tebourba and by seizing part of the town of Djedeida.

Cold Weather Spurs Heavy Christmas Buying in Week

Store Stocks Reduced Rapidly, According to Dun & Bradstreet

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A sharp increase in retail trade this week indicated Christmas shoppers were starting in earnest now that Thanksgiving was out of the way...

A widespread shift to generally colder temperatures proved a favorable impetus to apparel sales, the business research organization added. Tremendous sales were reported by stores in Western States on Monday with consumers buying to beat the cold...

Retail trade comparisons this week were distorted by the double Thanksgiving holiday last year. A tentative estimate indicated an increase of perhaps 8 to 12 per cent for the country with estimated regional increases of New England, 6 to 10 per cent; East, 9 to 13; Southwest, 12 to 17; Pacific Coast, 13 to 19; Northwest, 4 to 7.

Family Men In Government Eligible for 3-B

List Includes Men In War Production Or Health Duties

By MIRIAM OTTENBERG. With few exceptions, any man with dependents who is employed in a Government department is eligible to the "double deferment" of classification in 3-B for being engaged in war production or in the national health, safety or interest, local selective service headquarters said today.

Those classified in 3-B are not called until the draft boards have finished reclassifying men with the same claims to dependency who are not in an essential activity.

The President's order last month calling a halt to occupational deferments of Federal employees without specific permission from him, it was said, did not affect the 3-B classification.

Those affected. "Under 3-B classification," a draft official explained, "come the men engaged in war production or in the national health, safety or interest who have dependents. We assume any governmental setup must be there for some public purpose and is therefore essential to the national health, safety or interest."

The official pointed out that a man does not have to be in an "essential activity," it would be impossible, he said, to break down every Federal agency, section or division to find out which are essential activities.

Actually, he said, if dependency were removed as a cause for deferment, 80 per cent or more of the Federal employees classified in 3-B would go into 1-A as available for service, but as long as they have a dependency claim they should be put in 3-B.

The official said he could not name specific exceptions but he assumed that some did exist. "Governmental services" was listed among the 37 activities which the War Manpower Commission considers essential. Local and appeal boards, however, were uncertain what procedure to adopt in connection with 3-B as available for service. The President's order eliminated Federal employment per se as a cause for deferment.

Registration Proclamation. District draft headquarters also announced that the District Commissioners had issued their proclamation for the coming year in collaboration with selective service, they give approval to the registration dates chosen locally. These are December 14 for youths who became 18 in July and August, December 21 for youths who became 18 in September and October, and December 28 for youths who became 18 in the last two months of 1942.

The Commissioners' proclamation follows the presidential proclamation as to the three-week-long registration, but in turning the registration over to the schools in collaboration with selective service, they give approval to the registration dates chosen locally. These are December 14 for youths who became 18 in July and August, December 21 for youths who became 18 in September and October, and December 28 for youths who became 18 in the last two months of 1942.

For the December 14 and December 21 registrations, 15 senior and junior high schools will be used as a part of the registration work. Those also registered on either of these two registration days, but they also can register from December 26 to December 31 at the local board in their residential area.

Bradbury Heights Group Asks New Park Portal

The Bradbury Heights Citizens' Association last night advocated construction of an entrance to Fort Dupont Park at the intersection of Alabama avenue and Burns street S.E., and improvement of paths within the park area.

Frank P. Randolph, who introduced the resolution, outlined the history of the park since its execution as a fort during the Civil War.

The association recommended that a letter be written to the captain of the 11th precinct, requesting that a traffic policeman be stationed at the intersection of Thirty-eighth street and Alabama and Pennsylvania avenues S.E., during school rush hours.

Samuel E. Peake told members that Seat Pleasant express buses refused to stop for school children, thus forcing them to wait until the local buses came along.

"One bus driver today refused to pick up some school children at Pennsylvania and Minnesota avenues S.E.," Mr. Peake said. "Instead he told them to wait for the local and closed the door in their faces."

Mr. Peake expressed the fear that this procedure would work a hardship on the children on cold days, adding that the particular bus, on which he was riding, was not full. The association met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Baker, 4465 Alabama avenue S.E.

Virginia's Health Head Chilly in 65-Degree Room

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 4.—It's all right with Dr. I. C. Riggan, State health commissioner, if Surg. Gen. Thomas Parran wants to sit around in 55-degree temperature, but personally Dr. Riggan would be chilly.

In a letter to War Production Board officials here, Dr. Parran said that the 65-degree temperature in the Government war agencies have asked Americans to maintain is well within both the health and comfort zones and that, in his opinion, a room temperature of 55 degrees would not result in any material impairment of public health.

Dr. Riggan said he feels chilly at 65. He said it might be injurious to health to keep home and office at 55, but that this is only a personal opinion, because there's no scientific data on the subject.

Six Nearby Boards Complete Plans to Register Youths of 18

Remaining Four Units Expected to Announce Procedure Soon

Plans for the registration of 18-year-old youths for military service have been completed in six of the 10 selective service boards in nearby Maryland and Virginia, a survey revealed today.

The procedure to be used by the four other draft boards is expected to be announced either tomorrow or early next week.

Approximately 2,600 youths in nearby areas are affected by the President's recent proclamation calling for the registration of young men who will become 18 since the last registration, June 30.

While the President's proclamation provided for three week-long registration periods beginning next Friday, 18-year-olds in the area covered by Montgomery County Draft Board No. 2, in Silver Spring, may register at the board's office on any day beginning December 17.

At Montgomery County Draft Board No. 1, in Rockville, and No. 3, in Bethesda; Prince Georges County Draft Board No. 1, in Hyattsville, and No. 3, in Upper Marlboro, and in the Alexandria Draft Board, the registration procedure will follow that outlined in the President's proclamation.

Those born on or after July 1, 1924, but not after August 31, 1924, will register on any day during the week beginning next Friday, 1924, but not after October 31, 1924, will register on any day during the week beginning December 18.

Those born on or after November 1, 1924, but not after December 31, 1924, will register on any day during the week beginning December 26.

As the war continues, those who were born on or after January 1, 1925, will register on their birth anniversary, unless that date comes on Sunday or a legal holiday. In such cases, they will register the following day.

In all except the Alexandria Draft Board, 18-year-olds will register at their local board offices. Alexandria youths will register in Room 304 of the City Post Office Building.

Plans have not yet been completed by Arlington Draft Board No. 1 and 2, Prince Georges County Draft Board No. 2, in Upper Marlboro, and the Fairfax County Draft Board.

Officials in the two Arlington boards said youths in their areas probably will register at their respective draft board offices, but added that no definite arrangements have been made yet.

22 Detectives Detailed To Protect Shoppers

A special Christmas shoppers' detail of 22 detectives, including two policemen, was named yesterday by Inspector Richard H. Mansfield, chief of detectives.

Picked from all precincts for ability to spot shoplifters and pickpockets, the 22 detectives will be under direction of Lt. Tubrey M. Tolson, chief of the general assignment squad.

Joyriders Suspected Of Borrowing 'Jeep'

A "jeep" parked near the corner of Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue N.W. by two military policemen disappeared late last night, but was found early today near the Navy Department on Constitution avenue, according to police. The 22 detectives will be under direction of Lt. Tubrey M. Tolson, chief of the general assignment squad.

Federation Hits Wood Burning At Airfield Site

Prince Georges Unit Also Protests Plans To Shift Rail Spur

The Prince Georges County (Md.) Federation of Citizens' Associations today was on record as condemning the burning of wood cut from land now being cleared for the Army airfield in the Camp Springs-Meadows area instead of it being sold to farmers who want it.

The federation, meeting last night in Bladensburg High School, also attacked the recent Office of Defense Transportation order granting permission to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to relocate its freight spur crossing the Baltimore highway in Hyattsville.

Declaring that the wood "needlessly" destroyed at the airport could keep nearby farmers warm for months, the federation called on airport officials to sell the wood to those desiring to purchase it.

Walter F. Mulligan, president of the group, said he had been told by "reliable sources" that workmen on the project even pour kerosene on the wood before setting it ablaze.

May Take Spur to Court. A reporter from The Star on Tuesday witnessed the burning of between 10 and 15 cords of firewood on two of the runways, although a farmer in the vicinity had failed in several attempts to purchase the wood.

In a resolution bitterly opposing the relocation of the B. & O. freight spur, the federation indicated that court action may be sought in an effort to reverse the ODT ruling.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the ODT, had asserted that relocation of the spur would require a right-of-way approximately 75 feet south of its present location, just below the Hyattsville overpass, as proposed by the railroad, was necessary to the war effort.

Describing the ODT's action as "arbitrary," Mr. Mulligan declared that "it is ridiculous to spend a quarter of a million dollars to eliminate one grade crossing and then put another in its place."

He said loaded trucks coming down the slippery overpass in winter would not be able to stop in time and would crash into trains passing over the relocated spur.

Opposed by Several Groups. The move, which previously had been approved by the Hyattsville Mayor and Town Council, has been opposed by the Maryland State Roads Commission, the Maryland Motor Truck Association, the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce and the Maryland and District of Columbia automobile clubs.

A group of proposed amendments to the county alcoholic beverage law was approved by the federation. They were presented by Daniel M. Greene, chairman of the Legislation Committee.

"One of the proposals would prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages other than beer and wine after midnight, instead of the present 2 a.m. deadline.

Another would provide that no liquor license shall be granted to establishments within 1,000 feet of a school or church or one mile of an Army camp. There are no restrictions on the location of liquor establishments at present.

Ask Hyattsville Meetings. The federation also approved a motion offered by Mr. Greene calling on the county commissioners to hold alternate weekly meetings in the county Service Building in Hyattsville instead of holding all their meetings at Upper Marlboro.

Introduction of a bill in the General Assembly to amend the State weights and measures law so as to include automatic gasoline pumps in its provisions was favored by the group.

Mr. Greene, Charles Sayre and Frank Fiester were elected to a Nominating Committee to nominate officers of the federation for the coming year.

A. P. Bell, sanitary engineer of the Health Department; Dr. John M. Byers, county health officer, and County Agent P. E. Clark spoke on damage caused by rats and mice and discussed methods for their control. A motion picture, "Four Little Mice," was shown in conjunction with the talks.

President Limits Workers To Day at Christmas

Christmas holiday for Government employees will be limited to Christmas Day only, President Roosevelt told his press conference today.

The President said he and Budget Director Harold Smith had agreed that this should be the plan for Federal workers during the war year.

In the past it had been customary to allow at least half a day on Christmas eve, and sometimes more time off after the holiday, especially when the next day was Saturday, a half day.

Naval Officer, Wife, Boston Fire Victims, Buried in Arlington

Rites Held in Chapel Where Jesse D. Elliotts Were Wed in 1939

Funeral services for Lt. Jesse D. Elliott, U. S. N., and his wife, who were burned to death Saturday night in the Boston night club fire, were held yesterday in Fort Myer Chapel, where they were married in July, 1939.

They were buried side by side in Arlington Cemetery, with full military honors accorded Lt. Elliott. Lt. Elliott was the commander of the Marine Corps band at the time of the fire, which killed Mrs. Elliott, who was the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Charles H. Nulson, commandant at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Friends of the couple and their parents, including officers in the various branches of the armed forces, attended the services.

Serving as honorary pallbearers were seven Navy lieutenants and one Marine lieutenant, Annapolis classmates of Lt. Elliott. They were Lt. N. E. Thomas, W. M. Porter, F. F. Smart, A. R. McFarland, R. H. Northwood, R. A. Beverick and Geoffrey Norman of the Navy and Marine Lt. G. P. Carroll.

Capt. Robert D. Workmen, Navy chief of chaplains, read the funeral service.

White House Luncheon Honors Gen. Sikorski

Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Prime Minister of the Polish government-in-exile and commander in chief of Poland's fighting force, was honored by President Roosevelt yesterday at a White House luncheon attended by more than a dozen State, War and Navy Department officials.

Gen. Sikorski is here on invitation of President Roosevelt to discuss present and post-war problems.

Those attending the White House luncheon today included Ambassador Ciecianowski, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Representative Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles; Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson; Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal; Assistant Secretaries of State Breckinridge Long and Dean G. Acheson; Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross; Harry L. Hopkins, special assistant to the President; James P. Byrnes, director of Economic Stabilization; Col. William J. Donovan, director of Strategic Services; Ray Atherton, chief of the State Department's Division of European Affairs; Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to the President; Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, the President's military aide, and Capt. John L. McCrea, his naval aide.

$25,000 in Jewelry Takes Accidental Ride on Train

Jewels valued at $25,000, left in a taxicab here yesterday by Mrs. Alice Seeburg, wife of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, were recovered several hours later on a New York-bound train, where the jewel case was among the luggage of a prominent Long Island woman, police reported today.

According to police, Mrs. Seeburg forgot the valuables as she left a taxicab shortly before noon to check into the Mayflower Hotel. The Long Island woman, a departing hotel guest, engaged the same cab to take her to the railroad station, and the taxicab had checked out of the hotel at the time Mrs. Seeburg arrived.

The taxi driver recalled that his passenger had said she wanted to catch the train to New York. Pennsylvania Railroad police, notified by local railroad officials, boarded the train at Trenton and located the jewel case, which the Long Island woman mistakenly had carried along with her own luggage.

Santa Claus Receives Gift; WPB Removes Salary Ceilings

The fat old gent in the red suit and white whiskers, who turns up in the stores about this time every year, received a Christmas present himself today from the War Labor Board.

Demostating that there is no ceiling on the Yuletide spirit, the board issued a blanket wage-control exemption to all bona fide Santa Claus employees on condition that they raise the pay of their Santa Claus this year from $20 to $25 a week.

In an unanimous resolution, the board decided that Santa Clauses could receive raises "provided that the bona fide Santa Claus shall be construed to include only such persons as wear a red robe, white whiskers and other well-recognized accoutrements befitting their station in life and providing that they have a kindly and jovial disposition and use their high office of juvenile trust to spread the Christmas spirit of good will among all men, women and children."

The exemption covers only the Christmas season, the board said, and "shall not be considered as a precedent, since the role of Santa Claus in a war-torn world is unique."

D. C. Jalopy Roundup In Scrap Drive Falls Short of Expectations

Only 169 Donated Out Of 350 Listed as Junk; Original Goal 1,000

The District's "jalopy drive," geared to collect 1,000 junked and abandoned automobiles for a 2,000,000 scrap metal total in November, fell far short of this effort, the Salvage Committee revealed today, but the campaign will continue indefinitely.

According to a committee tabulation, approximately 350 cars have been tabbed as jalopy possibilities, of which 169 have been donated. "More than half" of the 169 have been jacked up and dismantled, the announcement said.

Greatest source of jalopies, the committee pointed out, are parking lots, where operators are holding the cars for small storage or repair charges. Parking lot managers with jalopies are asked to get in touch with the committee at Republic 8488, if they have not already done so.

It also was revealed that collections to date include jalopies ranging from a 1920 Ford to a more recent Packard model which sold originally for $14,000.

In urging continued co-operation in the jalopy drive, the committee observed that one jalopy contains enough steel scrap to produce more than twenty-seven 20-mm. aircraft cannon or three 2,000-pound aerial bombs.

Johnson Renamed Head Of Midway Citizens

George Johnson was re-elected and installed as president of the Midway Citizens' Association at a meeting last night at the Morgan School.

Other officers installed by Woolsey H. Hall, retiring recording secretary of the Federation of Civic Associations, included Lawrence Larry, vice president; W. E. Elsworth Reid, recording secretary; Malcolm Daniels, corresponding secretary; Miss Louise Walker, financial secretary; James Campbell, treasurer; Joseph Jenkins, chaplain; and Mr. Daniels, Mrs. Virginia Peters, Mr. Quander and Mrs. Georgia Johnson, delegates to the Federation of Civic Associations.

Dr. Edward Harris, president of the Civic Federation, addressed the meeting on civilian defense and the need for support of better housing conditions.

Dr. Harris also urged the education of all children in the District. He also called for steps to be taken for better moral conditions in District communities.

The association voted to send its regrets to the family of the late Dr. George H. Richardson, former president of the Federation of Civic Associations and civic leader.

Baltimore Boy Tells How Ship Was Sunk Off African Coast

Blasts Force of Torpedo Stopped Watches Of Men Aboard Craft

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—An 18-year-old Baltimore youth who was aboard one of the five United States Navy transport which the Navy Department announced yesterday had been sunk in the North African campaign, said his ship was torpedoed twice after it had landed American troops at Fedala, French Morocco.

Hubert Kirchner, a seaman second class, said friendly Moroccans had helped unload the ship. After they had taken food and supplies off, the vessel anchored three miles offshore.

A torpedo struck the ship at 5:43 a.m. on November 12, Kirchner said, adding that the force of the explosion had stopped the watches of a number of men aboard.

Running out of the mess hall, he heard a friend shout that he couldn't swim. The boy refused to jump, so Kirchner helped pitch him overboard.

"He knew how to swim by the time he hit the water," the seaman said. "He got away from there fast enough to get a record."

When a second torpedo struck a few minutes later, Kirchner jumped. "Things happened so fast you didn't have time to get scared," he continued. "Our guns went into action at once. No one got excited. But most of the crew were in the water when they were still ordering 'abandon ship.'"

Kirchner said he had a choice of about 50 rafts floating around the sinking ship. With three other men, he climbed aboard one and saw the sun set before a small amphibian craft picked them up.

This point was made as the committee announced it had ordered the American Federation of Labor and the McAvoy Shipbuilding Corp., Savannah, Ga., to permit a Savannah colored local of the AFL-Carpenters Union to "sign, and become a party to," a closed-shop agreement between the AFL, its affiliates and the McAvoy firm.

The order followed oral directions given George H. Googe, Southern representative of the AFL, after a hearing in Birmingham, Ala., last June, to admit the colored union as a co-signer. Mr. Cramer said these directions had not been observed and the Army and Navy had been asked to help enforce the war plant workers' order.

The Birmingham hearing was held on a charge that the McAvoy Corp., which builds concrete barges for the Government, discriminated against colored carpenters.

The committee found the company employed six carpenters through the AFL-Savannah Building Trades Council under a closed shop agreement, and that "the council's policy was to refer white members only."

It absolved the company of the discrimination charge after company officers had said that 40 per cent of its total working force were colored persons and that the company was willing to have the colored local made a co-signer of the closed-shop agreement.

Gen. Holcomb's Wife To Sponsor New Carrier

The Navy announced yesterday that Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, will sponsor the new aircraft carrier Belleau Wood at its launching from the ways of the New York Shipbuilding Corp., Camden, N. J., Sunday.

The carrier is the third to be launched by the corporation in the last 15 weeks. Lt. Gen. Thomas Holcomb is a hero of the World War battle fought at the French spot for which the craft is named.

OCD Advocates Simpler Medical Service Plan

Would Cut Casualty Stations, Start New Rescue Setup

In a move to conserve medical manpower to profit by recently observed British experience, the Office of Civilian Defense yesterday urged on local defense councils a simplified plan of operating their Emergency Medical Services.

OCD Director James M. Landis personnel required to take first aid in the number of casualty stations for the slightly injured and the abolition of most of first aid posts at the scene of incidents and all first aid parties as such.

Under the new plan, first aid would be limited to a few simple measures administered at the scene by medical personnel or a rescue team under professional direction.

OCD officials emphasized the new plan does not affect the warden service and other civilian defense personnel required to take first aid since the revised instructions apply to medical treatment of large-scale bombing incidents and not to the ordinary calls on warden talent for first aid.

Plan New Rescue Service. The early establishment of an OCD Rescue Service specially trained as a phase of emergency medical work also indicated in the instructions. The details of the new service are not outlined and it has not yet been made clear how the contemplated new service would affect the existing rescue organization which, in the District, is under the Fire Department.

It has been clear for some time, however, that additional emphasis would be put on rescue work, presumably as an independent organization.

Asked to comment on the new recommendations for the Emergency Medical Service, Dr. John Reed, local chief of the service, said that for some time the District had been following the general plan outlined in the new instructions, sending teams to the scene of incidents in proportion to the number supposedly injured.

The District has 78 casualty stations, which is far above the one to 25,000 population recommended by OCD. Dr. Reed said, however, that the number of stations is not their psychological effect. Since they require no equipment or personnel until actually in use, he pointed out, they are in no way a drain on existing resources.

British have found more lives can be saved if the bombing victims are treated for little more than shock and bleeding at the scene of an incident, and then only by doctors as crushed under the weight of demolished buildings are either dead or severely injured.

Most Injuries Serious. "Less than a third are slightly injured and can be cared for at casualty stations. All the severely injured must go to a hospital. Victims are covered with dirt and dust, which hangs in the air for hours, the result of which is that the rescue workers encounter a condition and the urgent need for immediate hospitalization make it impossible to apply most peace-time concepts of first aid."

Under the new plan, an "express party" composed of a rescue team, a mobile medical team, an ambulance and possibly a passenger car or station wagon will be dispatched to the scene of an incident.

Very large hospital was urged to have at least one or more mobile medical teams, consisting of a physician, a trained nurse and two auxiliaries, always on call, but these would not be dispatched unless casualties were reported.

It was also recommended that the practicing physicians of each neighborhood be mobilized to relieve mobile medical teams when there is continuing need for first aid or where the incidents call for the use of a nearby casualty station.

Based on British Practice. The instructions, based largely on the recent visit to England made by Dr. George Baehr, chief medical officer of the OCD, point out that it is ordinarily impossible to do much more than cover wounds, control bleeding, apply a simple splint and administer morphine before the victim is removed to a hospital. Most of this has been done, it was said, by the rescue workers and physician at the scene by the time the casualty is extricated.

It was also recommended that wherever possible one and two-stretcher ambulances should be made into four-stretcher ambulances to reduce travel during the war and reduce casualties to hospitals as long as possible. At least one of these ambulances, the instructions go on, is required for every 10,000 persons in target area cities. In addition, passenger cars should be made available to transport the slightly injured to casualty stations and a number of large vehicles such as buses should be on hand to evacuate a hospital without interfering with ambulance service.

Radios Wanted

The District needs radio equipment in order to develop an emergency communications service. This equipment is a critical material and cannot be purchased. If you have an unused or even "junked" radio, leave it at your nearest fire station. The parts will be rebuilt into two-way radio sets. This program is essential to the civilian defense of the Metropolitan Area.

Navy Calls Coast Alert 'In Error' as Reported Fleet Fails to Appear

Servicemen Summoned To Ships Resume Leaves; Jap Attack Was Feared

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—The reported presence of a "large number of unidentified surface vessels" off the California coast brought an unprecedented alert yesterday, but the Navy announced later the report was "considered in error."

The alert came from a naval patrol at dusk Wednesday and led to a radio broadcast ordering all fleet personnel to report to their ships immediately. The force was reported 450 miles offshore proceeding eastward. The resultant alert affected only service personnel and police, who were ordered to their posts.

A statement by Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade said a thorough search of the area did not confirm the presence of any unidentified craft. The broadcast to fleet personnel was discontinued.

Jap Attack Hazardous.

Word of the naval patrol's report gave rise to considerable speculation as to whether the Japanese might be trying for a mainland attack on the first anniversary of the Pacific war, December 7, but there was no official comment or any word of an alert other than in this area.

Admiral Greenslade's statement said: "A large number of unidentified surface vessels was reported by naval patrol at dusk on the 2d of December on an easterly course 450 miles off the coast of California. Since the presence of such a force would constitute a serious hazard to the West Coast, every effort was made by Army and Navy aircraft to verify the reported contact and all available forces were alerted and steps taken to intercept any enemy forces."

"A thorough search of the area concerned failed to confirm the presence of any unidentified vessels and the report is considered in error."

First Alert of Kind.

Unofficial sources said the general broadcast to fleet personnel was the first of its kind on record since war began.

Later in the day the 12th Naval District issued this statement: "Early this morning the Navy issued a notice for radio dissemination that all personnel on leave from ships and stations on the West Coast return to their ships and stations. Inasmuch as the situation occasioning that notice has been cleared, the notice has been rescinded, and such personnel may continue their leaves until their normal expiration dates."

Limited Overtime Pay Favored by Stassen

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota last night proposed a wartime labor program that would provide an extended work week with limited overtime pay and would place Dan Tobin, president of the Teamsters' Union (AFL) or any man of similar standing in the CIO at the head of the Nation's manpower administration.

In an address over "America's Town Meeting of the Air," Gov. Stassen, a Republican, said he took the position "frankly and plainly that we must plan on working longer hours in 1943."

Longer hours, he said, should not be brought about by "blunt, thoughtless repeal of the 40-hour law."

He suggested for the duration, "hours worked over 40 shall be compensated at time and one-half to the extent and only to the extent that the individual received time and one-half for overtime worked in 1942. Beyond this, and up to 60 hours per week, he said, overtime should be compensated at time and one-tenth."

The Minnesota Governor declared that under this proposal the hours of work could be increased in non-war and non-cost-plus work without changing the price ceilings.

Col. Wagner Still Missing In Gulf Coast Area

The War Department still was without word today of Lt. Col. Boyd D. (Buzz) Wagner, ace of aerial warfare in the Pacific, who has been missing since he took off November 30 on a routine flight from Florida to Maxwell Field, Ala.

All planes flying cross-country area and over Gulf of Mexico waters were on the lookout for Col. Wagner. Army officials believed it probable that Col. Wagner, flying a single-seat fighter plane, had been forced down into the Gulf.

Rationing to Include Food, Clothing in '43, Henderson Tells NAM

Flagrant Violators to Be Punished; Fuller Protests Shutdowns of Factories

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The American people today had it straight from Leon Henderson, Price Administration boss, that they could expect in 1943 rationing of more items—including clothing and food—and punishment of flagrant rationing violators.

Mr. Henderson made the forecast to 4,000 industrialists of the National Association of Manufacturers, who tonight wind up a three-day convention marked by pleas for less regimentation—balanced by promises of more.

The OPA head told the plant owners last night that the American public had not yet reached the "bottom of the barrel" and that 1943 would bring "more caps, more red tape and rationing."

Nevertheless, he said, despite all the talk of the people's impatience, "I know that the American public still has a barrel of patience overflowing."

Mr. Henderson said one of the biggest mistakes the Government had made was in underestimating industry's productive capacity and he congratulated the manufacturers for their record, "the greatest of all time."

Sees OPA Decentralized.

He said 1943 additionally would bring more decentralization of the Office of Price Administration away from Washington, raising of substandard wages, and maintenance of present corporate practices.

But Walter D. Fuller, chairman of the NAM board of directors and president of the Curtis Publishing Co., told a radio audience in an address in connection with the convention that curtailment was being carried to extremes, industries were being concentrated and plants shut down to an extent unnecessary for prosecution of the war.

He said: "There seems to be a conviction among some of our administrators that sacrifice is an end in itself, that mortification of the flesh will win the war."

He said concentration of industry was an idea imported from England, and was "born in the great production drive that followed Dunkerque," when men and women worked to their jobs 70 hours and more a week, and it still was not enough.

Would Shift U. S. Workers.

"Fortunately," Mr. Fuller said, "industry concentration is still largely in the talk stage." He expressed the opinion many steps could be taken for more efficient use of workers, including millions of Government employees, which would help the situation before civilian plants would have to be shut down.

"The very lives of many small industries are at stake," he continued, "with all that this means to their employees and to the communities where these businesses are located."

He said that materials were all ready under control, so shutting down plants would not help.

Mr. Fuller asserted "we must do everything possible to avoid wrecking our business structure and distribution channels," to be ready to regain our standard of living when war ends.

Father and 6 Children Die in Cabin Blaze

By the Associated Press. BRISTOL, Tenn., Dec. 4.—Dana H. Maye, 30, and six of his seven children were burned to death Wednesday night when their rural log-cabin was razed by fire. The home was 15 miles southeast of Bristol.

Mrs. Maye was awakened by the fire and called to her husband before escaping with her 18-month-old daughter, Glen, the only other survivor.

The family had gone to bed with a large fire in the downstairs room of the cabin.

The production unit of the American Red Cross is one of its busiest and most interesting. Mrs. J. H. Fishback is chairman of production for the District of Columbia Chapter and Mrs. J. Douglas Jones is chairman of the cutting and planning. It is she who sees that the garments are cut, assembled and made ready for shipment. Most of the volunteers who work under her give two to three days a week to the work. All of the women are volunteers excepting the professional cutter who is a paid worker.

Mrs. Jones is a Navy wife. Her husband is a commander and with him and their two pretty young daughters, Patricia and Peggy, she has lived just about all over the world. But best of all the Jones family loves their own home on Magnolia parkway which has been theirs and where they have lived (when ever they were in Washington off and on for 20 years. There's a big living room with an open fire and a shady garden for summer. The house has comfortable attractive furniture and some of the things which the commander and his lady have brought back from far off lands, and which mean much to them both.

For over a year now Patricia Jones has been a nurse's aide. She's on duty at Emergency Hospital and is interested and thrilled over the work she's doing. Mrs. Jones started working with the Navy Marine Sewing unit of the Red Cross four years ago and went over to the production end a little more than a year ago. We told her we had written our last column about the cutting department of one of the other chapters and asked her to tell us about the work being done in the District. So she did.

All cutting and sewing and assembling of garments is done in the District Chapter House, the entire second floor having been taken over for production. In the room that was once used as a lecture hall the stage is piled high with bolts of materials. There are long cutting tables and over a hundred sewing machines. The women work steadily and hard.

"Sometimes it looks almost like a sweat shop," says Mrs. Jones smiling. "But every one gets along with perfect team work, each helping the other, and we do work hard."

We asked her to tell us a few of the things they make. And she told us . . . snowsuits, hospital pajamas and nightgowns, skirts and blouses, operating gowns for the doctors, bedside bags, hot water bag covers, women's dresses, men's and boys' shirts, children's coats and right now they're in the midst of making and filling 25,000 of the famous ditty or property bags. These are the overseas bags that are given to each soldier as he leaves, and contain toilet articles, writing materials, a sewing kit, detective story, razors, chewing gum and cigarettes. This District unit already has made and filled 5,000 of these and are well on their way toward that later 25,000 goal, a total of 30,000. Every month between 8 and 10 thousand items are cut and assembled under Mrs. Jones' direction. The sewing is under the direction of production chairman, Mrs. Fishback.

Author Says War May Bring New Type of Writing

Mrs. Alice T. Hobart Foresees a Spiritual Renaissance

By Frances Lide.

Whereas a type of literature called "realism" came out of the last war, perhaps this war may result in a spiritual renaissance, suggests Mrs. Alice Tisdale Hobart.

The author of "Oil for the Lamps of China" and more recently, "The Cup and the Sword," speculated on the future of literature in an address yesterday before the Twentieth Century Club at the YWCA.

Pointing out that we are now talking about the four freedoms and a better world after the war, Mrs. Hobart saw a possible spiritual influence on literature from the adjustments which will have to be made if these objectives are achieved. But whether a spiritual renaissance develops in writing will depend on both the reader and author, she contended.

Posing the interesting question of whether the reader is receptive and the writer creative, or whether the positions are reversed, Mrs. Hobart inclined to the theory that each group had both qualities.

And a union of the two forces—the receptive and the creative—may make for a spiritual renaissance, she believes.

Devoting most of her talk to the process of writing novels, Mrs. Hobart emphasized that her own work had been the result of experience.

Sixteen years of experience went into the writing of "Oil for the Lamps of China," she said, recalling her long residence in the Orient, while 30 years went into her latest book, "The Cup and the Sword."

Speaking of the long span of experience which contributed to the latter novel, her first American story, Mrs. Hobart said that after knowing the "violence of China," she had begun to forget there were such things as peace and security.

On returning to this country, however, she said, she knew how a man would feel who has the opportunity and violence to live in America. "In other words, I knew how a refugee would feel here," she said, "and I thought I was ready to write an American novel. I thought a man would have two things in him—a spirit of liberty, but also the seeds of violence."

Identifying herself as among the authors who "float a story on a theme," Mrs. Hobart said her own theme has been "harmony between the spirit and the material."

"It just happens," she said. "I don't intend to do it. But it happens for these reasons: Because I'm a puritan—although it's not smart to say it—and also because I've lived 16 years in China. Nobody can live there so long without being affected by their philosophy. The Chinese philosophy is harmony between the opposites."

As for plots, Mrs. Hobart said: "I never made one in all my life. With me it is more like growth or ascending a ladder." Her plots develop as she determines the reaction of her characters to a given situation, she explained.

Mrs. Clod Heck Marvin, president of the club, presented the speaker and presided over the business session.

New members voted into the club were Mrs. Charles H. Shaffer, Mrs. John Parker Van Zandt and Mrs. G. Louis Weller.

Petworth Club To 'Adopt' Ward At Walter Reed

Members to Send Gifts to Patients At Army Hospital

A plan to "adopt" a ward of 30 beds at Walter Reed Hospital was approved yesterday by the Petworth Woman's Club at a meeting at the Petworth Methodist Church. Members will send gifts and Christmas cheer through the office of the Red Cross field director to all the men in the ward they have adopted.

The club also voted a contribution to the War Gift Service Fund at Mt. Alto Hospital and to the home at Blue Plains.

Mrs. John Ulrich, a totally blind member of the Zion Lutheran Church, was presented to the club by Mrs. V. H. Sehorn, chairman of the Red Cross Production Unit. The guest told how in spite of her handicap she has knitted many things for the Red Cross, including a turtle-neck sweater, a child's suit and a patchwork lap robe for hospital use, which was on display. She told the club members how her interest in the Red Cross was due to her love of humanity. She also related how she was able to knit by copying directions on her Braille slate and by counting with her fingers.

Mrs. Taft to Talk Dec. 7 on Nation's Reaction to War

Mrs. Robert A. Taft, wife of Senator Taft of Ohio, will discuss the people's reaction to the war a year after Pearl Harbor, in a talk before the League of Republican Women at 2:30 p.m. Monday at club headquarters, 1612 Rhode Island avenue N.W.

The speaker, who recently returned from campaigning with Senator Taft in North Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, Illinois and Ohio, will tell what she heard people discussing, particularly women.

The league has eliminated all activities from its program that do not have a direct bearing on winning the war. Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, the president, declared that the time for "Victory luncheons" would come when the country is victorious.

Mrs. Gann will preside at the meeting. Mrs. Charles L. McNary, first vice president and program chairman, will introduce the speaker.

A board meeting will be held at 11 a.m. Reports will be given by committee chairmen, including Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, chairman of the Advisory Committee, and Mrs. R. A. Boone, chairman of the Membership Committee.

Edwards, past regent of Livingston Manor chapter, DAR, will be guest speakers on the broadcast sponsored by the Radio Committee of the District daughters at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow over station WOL.

Miss Aiton will discuss "Citizenship Training for the Foreign Born," and Mrs. Edwards will tell of the work being done by the 60 District chapters through the Americanism Committees.

Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt is chairman of the DAR Radio Committee.

Head of Chevy Chase Pen Women to Be Feted at Luncheon

A luncheon in honor of Miss Mary Elizabeth Downey, president of the Chevy Chase Branch, League of American Pen Women, will be given tomorrow by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, honorary president and founder of the branch, at her home, 103 Newlands street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. Mary Gray, a member of the league, who has known Christabel Pankhurst, Flora Drummond and almost all leaders of the suffrage movement in England, will be the guest speaker. Her subject will be "The Woman's Movement, Past and Future," a subject on which she recently spoke before members of the National Woman's Party.

In her travels Mrs. Gray, who is now living in Chevy Chase, has lectured in the interest of Anglo-American friendship in England, Scotland and Wales.

A series of brief talks on the life story of members of the Chevy Chase Branch has been inaugurated by Miss Downey, to be presented at each meeting. Miss Viola Offutt, past president and treasurer, will tell her story before the luncheon group tomorrow.

Several out-of-town members are expected to attend, as well as Miss Elizabeth Smart and Mrs. John C. Fischer, newly elected members of the Chevy Chase Branch.

Hadassah Members To Give Chanukah Fetes for Children

About 40 parties in celebration of the Feast of Chanukah will be held at the homes of members of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah for children and guests from 4 to 7 p.m. tomorrow. Money raised from the parties will be used for the child welfare fund of the organization.

In addition to games and refreshments, a radio program will be given over WJDC at 6:05 p.m. giving the story of Chanukah.

The Saturday evening discussion group which is sponsored by Hadassah and the Louis D. Brandeis District of the Zionist Organization of America will be unable to meet tomorrow evening. Rabbi Solomon Metz will resume his talks December 12.

The second member-bring-a-member function sponsored this season by the Washington Hadassah will be held at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Abraham Kay, 4700 Seventh street N.W. Mrs. Albert Levin is chairman.

Dr. Quintanilla Appointed Mexican Envoy to Russia

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4.—Appointment of Dr. Luis Quintanilla as Minister to Moscow was announced last night.

Quintanilla, now first secretary at the Mexican Embassy in Washington, formerly was minister to France.

He is the first Mexican envoy to Russia since Jesus Silva Herzog, now dean of economy at the University of Mexico, was recalled 12 years ago. The diplomatic break resulted from what Mexico called "propaganda activities of Russian diplomatic missions in other American countries."

Resumption of relations was announced by the Foreign Office November 19 after an exchange of notes in Washington between Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera, who has just returned to the United States after coming here for conferences, and Russian Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff.

Primo Villa Mische will succeed Quintanilla as secretary at the Washington Embassy.

Fort Davis Citizens Protest Any Increase In Cost of Milk

Opposition to Limitation Of Washington Shed After War Also Voiced

Protest against any increase in the cost of milk in the District and opposition to any limitation of the Washington milk shed after the war was voiced by the Fort Davis Citizens' Association at its meeting last night.

The resolution, presented by T. J. Lynch, directed that copies of the resolution be sent to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, the Commissioners and the chairmen of the Senate and House District Committees. It charged that costs of milk "have been maintained at an unnecessarily high level in the District by rigid limitation of the area from which milk may be obtained."

Another motion by Mr. Lynch placed the association on record as endorsing the action of the Randle Highlands and Anacostia Citizens' Association and the Southeast Council in petitioning for immediate purchase of a site for a hospital on the Anacostia side of the river.

Taken Fight Pushed.
A petition asking the Public Utilities Commission to reconsider its refusal to authorize the selling of three tokens for 25 cents was presented by William A. Duval.

Pointing out that the PUC has issued an order for investigating charges of discrimination in transportation in Southeast Washington, Mr. Duval presented another motion authorizing the Public Utilities Committee of the association "to take all necessary steps to see that an adequate case is presented before the PUC on improving the transportation situation."

The association also passed a resolution requesting that the justices of the District Court announce in advance the date on which they will be ready to consider appointments for the District Board of Education and suggested that interested organizations "submit names of qualified candidates with a complete statement of their qualifications."

Utility Rate Probe Urged.
On the motion of Mrs. Mabel I. Morris, secretary, the association petitioned the PUC to investigate "matters relating to the rate base and the rate of return for local utilities to the end that fair and reasonable rates may be maintained

Baltimorean Admits Commuting To D. C. for Eight Burglaries

A 32-year-old Baltimore colored man was held here today by police, who said he had confessed commuting to Washington for eight burglaries since September and was suspected of more than a dozen other housebreakings.

A carload of property, including jewelry, fur coats, radios and a typewriter, has been recovered from Baltimore pawnshops, police revealed. The search for stolen property will continue this week.

Natally dressed in a tweed suit and carrying a large roll of bills, the suspect was arrested in a Baltimore pawnshop at the request of authorities here. Investigators charged he had pawned more than 20 stolen articles.

According to police, the man admitted giving up a war plant job so that he could travel to Washington for forays. He has been arrested on larceny charges on eight previous occasions, four of them in Washington, police said. The suspect served part of last year in a Maryland penal institution.

The capture followed a month-long investigation by two Washington detectives, Fred M. Rawlinson and Louis M. Wilson, who learned some time ago that a colored man known as "Big Boy" was robbing local apartments. The detectives located the suspect by checking through rogues gallery records.

Among victims whose property has been recovered, police listed Comdr. Mortimer Loewi, 1725 New Hampshire avenue N.W., who lost belongings valued at $140 November 30; Raymond E. Smith of the same address, $100 on October 20, and Mrs. Walter B. Miller, 1825 New Hampshire avenue N.W., $90, September 22.

Annapolis Man Brought Here With Possible Fracture of Skull

Three persons were treated at Casualty Hospital after a collision of a truck and streetcar yesterday at Dix and Fifty-eighth streets N.E.

The injured were Arthur Penn, 44, of Alexandria, broken wrist; Spencer Clinton Hyde, 35, of Camp Springs, Md., fractured pelvis, and Edward C. Coffey, 35, of Ritchie, Md., head injuries. Mr. Hyde and Mr. Coffey were passengers in the truck.

In an accident early today, Ruby Marden, 40, of 4925 MacArthur boulevard, received head bruises and a possible hip fracture when the automobile in which she was riding ran on to an unoccupied safety zone at Seventeenth and K streets N.W. Driver of the automobile was Robert Webb Goghill, 36, of 2127 California street N.W.

Olav Stokkin, 28, of Annapolis was seriously injured early today when an automobile he was said to have been driving collided with a truck on the Crane highway near Priest Bridge, in Anne Arundel County, Md.

Mr. Stokkin was taken by the Bowie Rescue Squad to Casualty Hospital here, where he was reported to be suffering from a brain concussion, cuts and possibly a skull fracture. His condition was said to be serious.

The other officers elected in addition to Mr. Keach are: Horace H. Edwards, Richmond, president; Ray L. Chesebro, Los Angeles, first vice president, and Fred T. Van Liew, Des Moines, second vice president.

Government Orders Work Stopped on Savage Dam

By the Associated Press
CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 4.—Work on the Savage River Dam, big flood-control project about 27 miles west of Cumberland, will be halted as soon as feasible.

Chairman John J. McMullen of the Upper Potomac River Commission, which is supervising the project, said a stop order had been issued by the War Production Board, Army engineers and the Works Project Administration.

"The commission has been advised that construction will be resumed when the war ends," Mr. McMullen said, "and while the interruption in work is deeply regretted, we feel that our first duty is to comply with the War Production Board's request and release all manpower and equipment for war purposes."

Virginia's Raid Test Is Marred by Death Of OCD Worker, 19

Messenger's Motorcycle Hits Standing Trolley On Richmond Street

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 4.—Civilian defense authorities termed Virginia's surprise test blackout last night generally successful, although violations in some cities sent tell-tale shafts of light skyward.

The test also was marred by at least one fatality. William Robert Cheatham, 19-year-old motorcycle messenger for the OCD in Richmond, was fatally injured when his machine struck the rear of a standing trolley, which was blacked out.

The gasoline tank exploded and caught fire. The youth died three hours later in a hospital.

John J. Howard, state chief of air-raid precautions, said first reports showed the blackout was very successful.

The completeness of the surprise was evidenced by the fact that several hundred Roanoke air-raid wardens were caught congregated at Hotel Roanoke when the sirens sounded and had to scamper all over the city to their posts of duty. Co-ordinator Sydney F. Small said the Magic City's showing was good.

The giant plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. at Newport News was blacked out for the first time since the war began. Newport News, Norfolk, Danville, Staunton and other cities reported co-operation of the public, and the test was good.

Richmond had a number of violations, particularly in the downtown section, where some signs and windows glared brightly against the background of a darkened city.

The sirens sounded at 7:50 p.m. and the all-clear came 50 minutes later.

Alexandrian Sentenced To 15 Years for Assault

Leonard R. Robinson, 300 block of East Howell avenue, Alexandria, last night was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment after his conviction by a Fairfax County circuit jury on a criminal assault charge involving an 18-year-old Takoma Park girl.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy pronounced sentence.

The court was told the offense occurred last October 7 in a parked car on Telegraph road.

POINTS OF BRILLIANT LIGHT

There's a woman's creed this year in the purchase of shoes. "I want my shoes lovely. They must be exciting to look at, help me feel gay, and lend their gayety to those around me. I want my shoes practical. They must be right for any costume I choose in my hurried, duty-laden moments. I demand my shoes comfortable . . . I must forget I have them on until I'm reminded again of their beauty in a friend's admiring glances." The new patent footwear as now presented by Hahn's is the answer to this sensible shoe creed of the wise woman of today.

U. S. Charges Pair With Approving Faulty Ammunition

2 Arms Plant Inspectors At Des Moines Accused Of Substituting Slips

By the Associated Press.
 Charged with causing defective ammunition to be approved and certified for use by the armed forces, Robert C. Mercer, chief area supervisor of inspection at the Des Moines (Iowa) ordnance plant, and Henry A. Replogle, former assistant chief, are scheduled to be arraigned tomorrow.

The Justice Department announced yesterday that an indictment was returned by a Federal grand jury at Des Moines in what the Justice Department's War Fraud Unit described as its first case involving ammunition intended for use on the fighting fronts.

The men have been accused, the department said, of altering an inspection machine so that it would pass defective ammunition, and of having substituted approval slips for rejection slips which were removed and destroyed.

Replogle Resigns.
 In some cases the men had approved ammunition containing insufficient powder, the department said.

One of the specific incidents alleged was approval October 14 of a truckload of ammunition which examination showed contained 2,400 rounds of defective ammunition.

A Justice Department official said that Mercer still was employed at the plant, but that Replogle had resigned.

The aggregate maximum penalty for conviction on all counts would be 92 years imprisonment and $80,000 fine for Replogle and 32 years and $20,000 fine for Mercer.

Motive Not Disclosed.
 The department said that the two men had been employed by the United States Rubber Co., which is the operating contractor for the War Department at the Des Moines plant.

Both men were taken into custody a few hours after the indictments were returned.

Federal officials declined to indicate what motive might have been behind the acts.

Job-Selling Unit Inspector To Maritime Charge

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4 (AP).—A Maritime Commission inspector and four others are under arrest on Federal indictments charging they sold jobs to several hundred shipyard workers for fees aggregating between $25,000 and $50,000.

Seized by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at Long Beach, Calif., last night were the inspector, Charles W. Heid, W. F. Moffet, described as a former tire shop operator; O. B. Bartlett, James F. Thornton, identified as a former Bethlehem Steel Co. employe, and Ray Palmer. All live in Long Beach.

The indictment says the defendants operated the Modern Shipbuilding School at Long Beach, which, the Government alleges, was a cloak for job-selling activities.

M'Nider Wounded Eight Times In Jap Night Raid on Buna

Grenade Blast Kills Soldier Talking To Officer

BRIG. GEN. HANFORD MacNIDER.

Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider, former Assistant Secretary of War, and one-time Minister to Canada, received eight wounds in the explosion of a Japanese rifle grenade November 23 during a night attack on Buna, according to a delayed Associated Press dispatch received here.

The War Department announced late yesterday that Gen. MacNider had been wounded slightly in action, and the news dispatch from New Guinea said his wounds were "not critical." Mrs. MacNider, who is living at their home in Mason City, Iowa, has been notified.

Shot by Germans in 1918 and decorated many times for gallantry during the World War, Gen. MacNider was recalled to duty a month after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was sent to the Southwest Pacific area last Summer, and August 3 was made a brigadier general.

In Australian Hospital.
 Gen. MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion, was in the American front lines before Buna during a mortar barrage when he was wounded, the dispatch said. At present he is recovering in an Australian hospital.

The Japanese grenade killed one American soldier and bowled over but did not injure Gen. MacNider's aide, Maj. C. M. Beaver, Yankton, S. Dak.

Here is Maj. Beaver's story:
 "We had been at the forward line where the Americans were laying down a mortar barrage against machine-gun nests and located two of them. The Japs retaliated with machine-gun fire and mortar fire."
 "Gen. MacNider and I were sitting there when we saw a soldier jump into a hole. Gen. MacNider went over to talk to him and was standing only about 5 feet away."
 "There were three blinding explosions."
 "Soldier Blown in Half."
 "All of us were thrown to the ground. The soldier was blown in two; Gen. MacNider was wounded, but the rest of us were unhurt."
 "Back in the hospital the general refused to use another blanket, saying some other soldier needed it worse than he."
 "He also complained that other soldiers needed blood plasma worse." Gen. MacNider was given a quart of blood plasma despite his protests that he wasn't badly hurt. He received two wounds in the right arm, one in the abdomen, two in the right thigh, one on each knee and on the right hand.

For his service in the World War Gen. MacNider received the Distinguished Service Cross decoration twice, the Silver Star decoration twice, the Purple Heart for wounds in action and was given several French decorations. He saw much of his service with the 2d Division.

OPA to List Maximum Prices on Ice Boxes

Householders Assured Gas Until Appeal Is Heard

Residents of the River Terrace development today were assured gas at least until the United States Court of Appeals has ruled on their appeal from a District Court decision refusing to halt the conversion of their furnaces from gas to coal.

The appellate tribunal yesterday directed the Washington Gas Light Co. to furnish gas to the houses pending outcome of the court proceedings. Arguments on the appeal will be heard Monday.

In their appeal the householders told the court it would be impossible for some of the families to maintain a coal furnace, when both husband and wife work.

They are seeking an injunction to prevent the War Production Board from carrying out its intention to have the gas cut off on the ground that the houses are not eligible for it under an order issued last February, when the houses were under construction. The WPB order forbids the delivery of gas to houses whose foundations were not completed by March 1. Only the footings were poured on the River Terrace houses at that time.

Gas Hoarders Warned They Endanger Lives
By The Associated Press
LUBBOCK, Tex., Dec. 4.—Fire Chief W. E. Twitty warned today he would "let property burn to the ground" rather than risk lives of firemen where "we have reason to believe hoarded gasoline is hidden."
"We'll fight gasoline when we know where it is, but we won't fight a fire when we have reason to believe the personnel has to stand on hidden gasoline bombs, planted by a bunch of gasoline bootleggers, hoarders violating one of the Government's most stringent wartime measures."
"We won't risk lives to protect the unpatriotic who risk others' just so they can chisel a few miles of joy-riding."

2 Girls, 3 Others Die in Canadian Bomber Crash
By The Associated Press
HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Dec. 4.—Two girl war-plant workers taking an airplane flight as a reward for victory bond sales were among five persons killed yesterday when a Canadian bomber crashed in wooded Point Pleasant Park here.
One was Miss Jean Curran of Dartmouth. The other's name was withheld temporarily pending notification of her relatives. The girls were employees of Clark Rust Aircraft, Ltd., owner of the bomber, which had undergone tests and was to have been turned over shortly to the Canadian Air Force.
The cause of the accident, in which all aboard were killed, was not determined. The plane's pilot was Flight Lt. Harry Prentiss of Toronto, chief test pilot for the company, on loan from the RCAF.
The others killed were Arthur Cahill, Ottawa, flight engineer of the company, and Owen McCauley of Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Virginian Named by WPB
RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 4 (AP)—E. I. Williams, president of the Riverton Lime Co. of Riverton, has been appointed to the War Production Board's advisory board for the lime industry.

Argentina Limits Code Sent by Radio in Blow At Axis Embassies
Diplomatic Messages Restricted to 100 Words Daily Except by Cable
By The Associated Press
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 4.—The Argentine government has limited diplomatic code messages to 100 words daily in drastically revised radio, telephone and telegraph regulations which will operate to the disadvantage of Axis embassies.
Last night, shortly after the interior ministry announced establishment of control stations, especially to detect clandestine radio transmitters, the post office department, charged with carrying out the communications decree, disclosed the regulations affecting diplomatic messages.
While no nations were mentioned by the regulations, they clearly operated against Axis representatives.
The cause of the accident, in which all aboard were killed, was not determined. The plane's pilot was Flight Lt. Harry Prentiss of Toronto, chief test pilot for the company, on loan from the RCAF.
The others killed were Arthur Cahill, Ottawa, flight engineer of the company, and Owen McCauley of Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Loss of Privileges Threatened
In effect, the diplomats of Germany, Japan and Italy each were limited to sending 100 words daily in code by radio. Other nations mostly use cable, to which no limit has been applied, but the totalitarian states are unable to employ this method because all cables which carry out privileges, makes difficult any communication on the results of espionage.
The Post Office director, Horacio Rivarola, ordered that all messages whether in plain language or code from all diplomatic missions must be presented to the department under the signature of the chief of the mission, and he warned that he reserved the right to reduce or increase the wordage of code messages or to totally suspend them "if he thought such action necessary."
Pan-American Agreements Cited.
There was no limit on the wordage of messages in plain language and these may also be sent by radio-telephone, a privilege not accorded coded communications.
The new regulations also prohibit the sending or receiving of radio-transcribed facsimiles of documents, thus preventing the use of radiophoto transmission as a substitute for wireless code.
The decree of the Interior Ministry asserted that the "state of war in which American countries find themselves and the obligation emanating from Pan-American agreements signed by Argentina" make it necessary to adopt measures to prevent communications from being to the detriment of the military interests and safety of the American hemisphere.

British Cotton Industry Planning Expansion
Britain's cotton goods trade is planning, under government auspices, for post-war markets, Hugh Dalton, president of the British Board of Trade, announced in London.
The industry will try to attract young people, offering them good prospects, and will play a salient role in home and foreign policy. Inventions and economic research will be encouraged and a central body will pilot the industry.

Nazis Holding Petain Virtual Prisoner, Stripped of Power

Collaborationist Regime Under Laval Reported Emerging in Vichy

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Marshal Petain, a prisoner of the Nazis in all but name, virtually has been stripped of power and a new all-out collaborationist regime is emerging in Vichy under the guidance of Pierre Laval, the Associated Press was informed today by usually reliable sources.

The identity of these informants may not be divulged, but they are known to have had access to authoritative Vichy circles, including persons in high diplomatic places and one man until recently a member of Petain's cabinet.

This former cabinet member told of deceit and coercion by Laval and his cohorts to bend the old marshal to their will and of Petain's own resigned admission that affairs in Vichy had become a matter of each man for himself.

Occupation Surprise to Petain.

At a cabinet meeting on November 26—just eight days ago—he said Petain ruefully addressed his colleagues:

"Gentlemen, I regret I can no longer take responsibility for your safety. The time has come for every man to depend on himself."

This minister, who must remain anonymous, said Petain was taken completely by surprise when the Nazis marched into Unoccupied France November 11, although his own cabinet had been informed fully beforehand that Hitler intended to tear up the armistice provision setting aside France's free zone.

Laval, he said, left Vichy two days before, ostensibly on his usual business trip to Paris, but actually to go to Munich, where final arrangements for the occupation were made—and returned in time to silence Petain's protests.

Marshal Under Surveillance.

This source said the Germans already had marched in and the German military command had established itself in Vichy hotels when Laval returned November 11 and immediately stopped repeated broadcasts of Petain's protests.

Since then, these reports said, Petain has been in constant conflict with Laval and the Nazis in Vichy. Although the marshal stubbornly insisted on his right to direct the government, it was said that Laval and the occupation authorities have placed before him one fait accompli after another, denying him any voice in important decisions and, when necessary, exacting his signature under pressure.

On some days, it is said, the marshal is kept under constant German surveillance—not actually under arrest, but deprived of freedom of movement—while Laval works on to win backing for a government acceptable to the Germans and compel demobilized French soldiers to accept work in Germany.

This picture of Petain as housebound and watched coincides with a report received recently by the United States Office of War Information. It said the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter had received a report from its Vichy correspondent that Petain was "inaccessible" in the Hotel du Parc, his residence, under the watchfulness of a chain of sentries.

Satisfied With Darian's Moves.

Admiral Jean Darian, in assuming authority as chief of state in North Africa, has insisted that he is fulfilling Petain's mandate and that the marshal is a prisoner, unable to make his own voice heard.

The former cabinet member, who sat in Vichy's councils as recently as November 26, quoted Petain as saying then that he was "well satisfied" with all that Darian had done.

From the demobilized Frenchmen now under pressure to go to Germany, these sources said, there are believed to be 80,000 or more specialists available. More than half of them were described as skilled workers who had left French industry to enlist in the Army to evade deportation to Germany.

About 15,000 more are said to include technical specialists from the Toulon arsenal, French railways, aircraft repair shops and army air force ground units. Still others, it was said, belong permanently to French defense forces, and any of these who refuse to go to Germany have been told that their contracts would be canceled.

Laval Balks at Including Duce's Nominee in Cabinet

Special Radio to The Star and the Chicago Daily News.

SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE, Dec. 4.—Pierre Laval's recent conversations in Paris with France's new boss, Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, were called off after two days owing to the Vichy dictator's refusal to accept into his new government Mussolini's nominee, according to a usually well-informed source. This nominee is Anatole de Monzie, public works minister in Edouard Deladier's last cabinet and staunch pro-Fascist.

Laval, it is believed here, was prepared to include Marcel Deat and Jacques Doriot in the French cabinet but refused to include de Monzie, whom he personally dislikes although the two men have often in the past held almost identical views.

During the war, Anatole de Monzie, then French minister secretary, negotiated with Italy and showed himself ready to make the largest concessions. Since then he has outwardly lived in retirement on his country estate near Cahors but on several occasions has tried to replace Laval in the Vichy government. Last April he was reported to have suggested that Otto Abetz form a pro-Nazi government in Paris.

Mussolini's insistence that de Monzie should enter the "Vichy government" is another indication of the Duce's increased influence on French affairs. It is no secret that at the Munich meeting of Laval, Hitler and Ciano, the Italian foreign minister, duly instructed by his father-in-law, insisted that all Laval's arguments in favor of the status quo in France should be overruled.

Today Italy continues its jackal policy toward France and Mussolini's cunning is only too clear. If no agreement can be reached between Laval and the Nazis, then the Vichy government will be suppressed and Italy should get the opportunity of her life to proclaim the annexation of Nice and Corsica.

There are indications that Italian officialdom rejoices to see the foreign legations leave Vichy. An important Italian here, when talking with a national of one of the few countries still represented in Vichy, is reported to have expressed his "amazement" that this country should maintain relations with Vichy, which, he added, could scarcely be considered as a government.

Italy's present attitude toward France and Mussolini's historically wrong assertions that France has repeatedly stabbed Italy in the back have caused bitter resentment among the French and may well have deep repercussions when the time comes for Europe's reconstruction.

Kansas Diva Makes Metropolitan Debut

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—With only 26½ hours notice, Marie Wilkins of Lawrence, Kans., made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera Wednesday, singing the role of "Lakme" in place of Lily Pons.

Mrs. Wilkins, the wife of Joseph F. Wilkins, head of the voice department at the University of Kansas, was notified Tuesday evening that she could sing the role, after a physician announced that a cold would prevent Miss Pons from taking the part. Largely, the critics reacted favorably.

Payne Jury Listens To Final Arguments On Mattingly Slaying

Indiana Woman Accused Of First-Degree Murder In Official's Death

By the Associated Press.
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 4.—A jury of Monroe County farmers and laborers heard closing arguments today before retiring to decide the fate of Mrs. Caroline G. Payne, 45, former business manager of a Bloomington newspaper, charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Charles O. Mattingly, 41, attorney-examiner for the Indiana Public Service Commission.

The State has accused the widow of State Senator Earl Payne of firing five shots into Mr. Mattingly's body as he and his wife ate a midnight lunch at the home of friends here on July 5, 1941. Tried last spring, Mrs. Payne was returned to the Monroe County Jail when the jury disagreed.

Defense Attorney J. Frank Regester was to conclude a summation begun yesterday by Q. Austin East, while Prosecutor Sylvan Packitt was to follow, adding to introductory remarks made yesterday by Deputy Prosecutor Harrell Young.

Insanity Question Raised.
Discussing the question of the defendant's mental health (she has pleaded not guilty and not guilty because of temporary insanity), Mr. Young stated that if the lack of will power is the result of a diseased state of mind, there is mental unsoundness within the meaning of the law; but if the will is simply overborne by uncontrolled passion, there may be criminal responsibility.

Mr. Young said the defendant's actions on the night of the slaying were unusual, but he pointed out that her behavior indicated insanity only if it was so purpose.

He told the jury Mrs. Payne accomplished "what she wanted in a very efficient manner." After Mr. Mattingly had left her, Mr. Young said, "she, who never learned she couldn't always have her own way, decided that if she could not be lived the way she planned it, it would not be lived at all. So she smashed it down."

Defense Attorney East sketched his client as a successful business woman who heaped benevolence on Mr. Mattingly. "She fed him, she clothed him, she loved him," Mr. East declared.

Comments on Wife.
He brought into his summation Mr. Mattingly's widow, the former Lurayne Oberholzer, Mr. Mattingly's secretary before their marriage.

"Mr. Mattingly thought Miss Oberholzer could take the place of Caroline Payne, who was sick, who was failing in health and who was failing in mind," Mr. East asserted.

Although he admitted Mrs. Payne was near the scene of the slaying, Mr. East termed State's evidence circumstantial. He said the sill of a window through which Mr. Mattingly was shot was 6 feet above ground, but bullet marks in Mr. Mattingly's chair were 14 inches above the sill, and that the defendant, because of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, was unable to raise her arm above her shoulder.

Rodier Named to Head FPMA Technical Division

Gilbert L. Rodier, former director of war housing for the Metropolitan Area, has been named acting director of the technical division of the Federal Public Housing Authority, it was announced yesterday. He succeeds A. C. Shire, who resigned to go to the Board of Economic Warfare.

Mr. Rodier, who lives at 4515 Elliott street N.W., is a native of Washington. He attended District public schools, George Washington University School of Architecture and studied at the Corcoran School of Art for several years.

A practicing architect in private industry and in the Government since 1906, Mr. Rodier has served with the Public Works Administration housing division and as chief of projects division with the United States Housing Authority. His appointment as director of the Metropolitan Area Office of FPMA came last May.

N. Y. Legislature to Get Plan to Cut Voting Age

By the Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Eighteen-year-olds may vote in New York elections three years hence, provided the 1943 Legislature approves a "right to fight, right to vote" proposal.

A plan to reduce the voting age from 21 to 18 will be introduced by Republican Assemblyman Robert J. Crews, Brooklyn, according to Harold R. Moskowitz, president of Affiliated Young Democrats, Inc., who claims sponsorship for the proposal for his organization.

He declared in a statement yesterday it is evident the belief that if a youth is entrusted to fight for democracy on the battlefield, he must be capable of fighting to maintain it at the ballot box, is gaining support among educators and legislators.

Revision of the voting age qualification would require a constitutional amendment needing approval by the 1945 and 1946 Legislatures before going to the people at a general election.

Canada Acts to Lower Price of Coffee, Tea, Oranges and Milk

Will Reduce Duties And Taxes and May Provide Subsidies

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—In a pre-Christmas gift to ease the strain of the high cost of living on the consumer's purse, the Canadian government is taking direct action to give the nation cheaper coffee, tea, oranges and milk.

The new assault on the cost of living, to be effected by reducing duties or taxes or by outright subsidies, was announced last night by Finance Minister J. L. Isley, who estimated that the cost to the Treasury might run up to $40,000,000 a year.

Coffee is to be reduced 4 cents a pound, tea 10 cents a pound and milk 2 cents a quart from current retail prices.

Orange prices are to be put back to about the levels of September and October, 1941. No official figures were given, but in September, 1941, oranges were being sold for 25 to 35 cents a dozen.

In addition, the finance minister said, the government was instructing the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to examine measures for reducing the profit margins of some retail dealers in beef "to reasonable limits for the benefit of the consumer."

The coffee and tea reductions are to be accomplished by Government subsidy or sale to the trade by the Prices Stability Corp. at reduced prices. Cheaper oranges will be provided by elimination of duties and taxes. A subsidy will be paid on fluid milk, which the finance minister said would be "designed to obtain the general objective of a 2 cents per quart reduction in the price of milk to the consumer."

"The consumer will benefit to the full amount of such subsidies and remission of taxes," Mr. Isley said. "The producer and dealer will not be affected."

He said the government's plan, full details of which are to be announced by the Wartime Prices Board, was designed to offset increases in the cost of living experienced in spite of ceiling control and would be aimed at bringing the cost of living "at least part of the way back to the level of the basic period (September 15 to October 11, 1941)."

Mr. Isley recalled that just 12 months ago the "bold and broad policy" of complete price, wage and salary ceilings went into effect. "The government reaffirms its policy," he said, "not as a fixed defense against inflation, but as a developing attack on it, using such methods as are suitable to the conditions faced."

He reported that the official cost of living index in Canada moved up by 2.7 per cent in the 13 months ended November 1, as against 20 per cent during the comparable period in the first World War and 8 per cent in the United States for the 12 months ended October 1.

Wounded Marine Killed Eight Japs in Solomons

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Taking on Japs, even at 8-to-1 odds, wasn't too much for one marine who helped storm the Solomons and capture Henderson Field August 7, the Navy disclosed today.

Pvt. George Louis Turzal, 18-year-old Gary (Ind.) marine, now is in the Great Lakes Naval Hospital recovering from a Jap bullet wound in the neck, but before he fell at Guadalcanal, he was credited with killing at least eight Japs—six with rifle fire and two by bayonet.

In addition, the Navy said, grenades tossed by Turzal and other marines wiped out four enemy machine gun nests.

In close combat, Turzal slipped and fell and a bullet struck him in the neck before he could regain his feet.

Age Security Scheme Gives Britons Chance To Plan for Peace

Beveridge's Proposal Debated to Prepare For End of War

By VICTOR GORDON LENNOX, Special Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Many people here were shocked when Production Minister Oliver Lyttelton stated that the war could be won by next June, but that reaction sprang from a long period when contemplation of an early enemy defeat was condemned as wishful thinking.

Today, the people have a subconscious feeling that perhaps the end is nearer than they should allow themselves to think and that it is the merest prudence to make preparations against the risk of being caught unprepared for the peace.

Social Security Plan Studied.

That is why discussion of Sir William Beveridge's social security plan and of kindred post-war problems is being conducted most actively by those not having direct responsibility for the conduct of the war and, consequently, are able to address their minds to these weighty problems affecting the whole concept of a post-war world.

Already constructive examination of Sir William's "freedom from want" plan has started. The British cabinet has nominated Sir John Anderson, lord president of the council, to conduct a ministerial examination.

The powerful Conservative 1922 Committee, representing the Peers and Commons, has appointed a sub-committee, after a two-hour hearing on Sir William's personal explanations Tuesday, to study the scheme. The liberals are acting similarly.

Before Christmas the Socialists, jointly with the British Trade Unions Council, are to hold a joint conference on the subject.

Large Issues Studied.

Already, as anticipated, there are signs of factional criticism from the vested interests, but the more constructive discussion fixes on larger issues. Thus, it begins to be realized that Britain could not long pursue an ideal and necessarily costly policy alone, but only in concert with other nations.

After the last war, responding to public demand for greatly extended social services, the government found itself obliged to cut down its defense program if budget balance were to be maintained without placing excessive burdens on industry.

It is widely agreed that that policy substantially contributed to permitting the present disastrous resumption of armed conflict. Nevertheless, the present social services are costing 432,000,000 pounds sterling ($1,728,000,000) annually and Sir William contemplates an initial increase to 697,000,000 pounds, rising after 20 years to 858,000,000 pounds.

Heavy Weight of Production Methods to Hit Axis in 1943

U. S., Now 45% at War, Expected to Reach 60% Level in About a Year

By the Associated Press. One year after Pearl Harbor America is 45 per cent at war in terms of production. More important, the arsenal of democracy has passed in the 12 months from making tools and plants to making "things that shoot."

The fact that munitions output has nearly quadrupled since the Japanese assault in the Pacific is one measure of success in arms production, but the fact that the United States can land an expeditionary force on foreign shores, American-armed and American-equipped, is a better measure.

It means in the words of one of the War Production Board's top officials, that "the Sunday punch is coming and it's not far away."

To Climb Toward 60%. By next year's anniversary of Pearl Harbor nearly 60 per cent of the country's entire output for goods and services will be for war purposes, by latest WPB estimate, as compared with today's 45 per cent.

But in terms of military impact on the enemy, the difference will be tremendously greater, for an increasing share of war expenditures will be going into warplanes, artillery, ships, tanks and ammunition; less and less of the war effort will be devoted to machine tools, plants, canteens and the other non-shooting stuff which had to be produced before mass production of arms could take place.

Under the whip of WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson, the problem of converting civilian factories into arsenals has been licked. Industry has been converted or is well on the way.

This revolution of industry was equivalent to a major military victory. In 74 classes of metal-working industries, more than 91 per cent of all unfilled orders this autumn were for war goods.

Exceeds Peacetime Output. In many cases, of course, this didn't mean a change of product, but a change of customer—the Army and Navy became the buyers. Motorcycle makers, for instance, still are making motorcycles, but they have had to double their output.

Even in the great industries which actually had to retool and convert—automobiles, vacuum cleaners, radios, washing machines and others which contributed $6,000,000,000 worth of "standard of living" goods to peacetime America—the rate of war production now is higher generally than the peacetime peak.

After the initial wrench, employment in most cases is back to normal or higher.

The big job ahead is to find material to feed into the auto plants that are making planes, the locomotive works that make tanks, the lingerie factories making mosquito nets, the spark plug firms which make bayonets, the typewriter plants that make machine guns, the toy train producers who turn out gun mounts.

Forecast for 1943. Aside from the problem of manpower, the coming production developments will revolve around that task: Feeding the war machine. Therefore, these are the emerging trends of 1943:

1. Skimping the civilian—Bell-lightening for the civilian to a point previously unknown in this land of abundance is inevitable. Just how lean the civilian economy can become WPB does not know exactly, but means to find out.

2. Standardizing goods—To make every pound of metal and every yard of fabric go as far as possible, WPB will lay down wartime standards of design.

This means more than cutting two inches off the end of shirt tails, ordered last month. It means streamlining lines and models will disappear, so as not to tie up materials that odd styles and unusual sizes will be eliminated in fields ranging from railroad wheels to apparel.

3. Choking off construction—We now are building storage space and similar buildings equivalent in space to 35 Empire State buildings a month. We are building fields, complete with paving, buildings and utilities, at a rate equivalent to building an airbase the size of Rhode Island in a year.

"Must" Construction. In sum, construction is a vast drain on manpower and materials. Only the "must" type of construction of synthetic rubber, high octane gasoline, steel and some other plants—will continue.

The goal is to eliminate all construction that can't be completed next year. The viewpoint of the war planners may be summarized as: "It isn't essential unless it can be thrown at the Axis."

became evident that self-propelled artillery and mobile anti-tank weapons were fully as important in a balanced war machine. We'll make less than the 45,000 tanks that the President called for this year, but their equivalent in other hard-hitting mobile units will be produced.

The goal of 8,000,000 deadweight tons of cargo ships will be met. It would have been exceeded by about 100 ships, Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the Maritime Commission, said last week, except that "we had to put two of our yards on work for the Navy."

New Plane Goals for 1943. New, secret aircraft goals for 1943 have been transmitted to Mr. Nelson by the President. These and the other 1943 objectives will be altered, however, whenever the chiefs of staff feel the production emphasis should be changed to weapons better suited to the job in hand.

So far, much American equipment has had to be kept in this country for training; much of that exported hasn't had time to reach the combat areas; and it has had to be spread thin over the whole world.

With the United Nations taking the offensive and choosing their own theaters of war, the American mass production technique will be felt in full and perhaps decisive weight on the battlefields of 1943.

The tank picture is similar. It already has been revised downward. Instead of building 60,000 planes this year, the aircraft industry will build a lesser number of planes whose total striking force on the enemy will be greater than that of 60,000 planes of the type being turned out 12 months ago.

Some Simply Warned. Where penalties were imposed, they took the form of suspension orders, which withhold material from the offending manufacturer or dealer for a time. These have been comparatively few, because WPB doesn't like to put a war producer out of business even for a month or two.

In virtually all cases, however, discovery of the violation and the threat of punishment have made the offending businessman promise to be good.

Compliance will improve, WPB officials say.

Concentration to Continue. The industries thus far concentrated or partly concentrated include typewriters, stoves, farm machinery and bicycles. Next year may bring the technique to paper, furniture, cooking utensils and many more.

8. Making the goals: "Objectives" have never been sacred cows with the production planners, for two reasons: They are deliberately set impossibly high to spur production; and, second, they change as the strategic picture of the war changes.

Already the "blueprint for victory" goals set by President Roosevelt for aircraft and tanks in 1942 have been revised downward. Instead of building 60,000 planes this year, the aircraft industry will build a lesser number of planes whose total striking force on the enemy will be greater than that of 60,000 planes of the type being turned out 12 months ago.

The tank picture is similar. It already has been revised downward. Instead of building 60,000 tanks this year, the tank industry will build a lesser number of tanks whose total striking force on the enemy will be greater than that of 60,000 tanks of the type being turned out 12 months ago.

Some Miscalculations. Absence of one or two parts has delayed delivery of bombers in certain plants in 1942; on the other hand, some parts have been produced in such lavish supply that factories have four or five months' inventory ahead.

To balance output of parts with weapons and output of weapons with strategic needs is Mr. Nelson's immediate concern; whether he or the armed services do it remains to be seen, as they wrestle for control, but vigorous strides in that direction will take place in 1943.

Streamlining of WPB: Around the new "controlled materials plan" for distributing scarce metal to war plants, WPB is rebuilding its own organization.

The complex "CMP" machinery, expected to give the Government ironclad control over the flow of materials, demands delicate administration and a close-knit organization.

A continuing process of weeding out WPB misfits will continue through 1943. Unless something

Priest Hopes to Lead Flock to Bleak Home By Christmas

Friend of Eskimos Delayed on Alaskan Mainland by Illness

By the Associated Press. NOME, Alaska, Dec. 4.—The Rev. Father Tom Cunningham, if his pneumonia will allow it, hopes to be back on the island by Christmas. Just now, Father Tom, Arctic priest extraordinary, is flat on his back in a Nome hospital and annoyed about the whole thing. He had intended to cruise over to Little Diomed in a leaky sealskin boat in October, but pneumonia interfered, just as the skin boats of his parishioners were setting out to sea. When a week's nursing failed to bring any improvement, he was flown here—somewhat against his will—in a private airplane. Hearing about Father Tom—how he has translated 7,000 Eskimo words into English and made a dictionary of them, how he has encouraged, and personally overseen, the planting of potatoes by Eskimo communities, how he has outwitted witch doctors and taken part in the seal hunting—a visitor might expect to meet a wrinkled and ancient priest. Instead, he shakes hands with a vigorous, wiry man of about 35, industriously rolling his own cigarettes. Unaffected by Publicity. There are, Father Cunningham figures, about 110 members in his congregation. The fact that Little Diomed, half way between Siberia and Alaska in the Bering Straits, received a couple of years ago the first widespread publicity in all its history had no effect at all on the congregation. That publicity concerned Russian building on Big Diomed, Soviet island only a mile from the American-owned Straits Rock. What with language difficulties and the Eskimo belief that the best way to get along in the world is by agreeing with everybody, the story of the Russian construction work attained considerable proportions by the time it reached the United States. However, Father Tom says now—and maintains that he always has told the same story—that there never was any construction on Big Diomed except a weather observation station. As a matter of fact, any considerable construction is impossible on either of the Diomedes, which have no soil at all except a little tundra on the highest peaks. The rest is rock. These natives are seal hunters, fishermen, ivory carvers. Some of the women have tattooed chins and most of the men have scars from harpoons or fights with bears on the ice that each year fills the straits from November until June. Perhaps two-thirds of them have tuberculosis, although, Father Tom says, many of them seem to have had it for years without any particular ill effects. Old men have told him they have been coughing as long as they can remember—and still they go out hunting each season, pull a paddle with the best when the annual trip is made from Diomed to the mainland in 40-foot umiaks built of sealskins. It was the return part of this annual journey which was interrupted in October by Father Tom's illness and by unfavorable weather which forced the islanders' own boats back to the beach where the priest's umiak had been left. Now, while Father Tom recovers in a hospital, the Diomed islanders are staying with some of their many relatives on the mainland. Worries for Dr. Tom. Some of the supplies intended for the island also have been left on a mainland beach, so there appears to be no danger of starvation or any more hardship than the natives accept as an annual feature of their life. For the priest, however, there are various worries. There also might be considerable embarrassment, for example, if one of the islanders should die during the mainland stay. By Diomed custom, a dying man makes one last request of his good friends: That they "accompany" him to his last resting place, which he picks out among the various spires and shelves of rock on Little Diomed. And what would happen should one of them die on the mainland and request to be accompanied all the way back to Diomed? Incidentally, there are no burials on the island, interment being impossible. The bodies left on the high rocks merely remain there, frozen solid. Out of Element. The life of the Diomed island people, according to the priest, has been variously affected by the war, which made the Bering Straits strategically important. A few of the young men have been called for the draft, although the prevalence of tuberculosis has made most of them exempt from Army service. Supplies have been difficult to get and supply ships infrequent. Conversely, however, the islanders have more money than ever before, both from sale of carved ivory at highly inflated prices and from ordinary labor jobs on the mainland. All in all, Father Tom is reasonably certain his people would be better off on Diomed, where the hunting and fishing is something they know. Working for wages and adjusting themselves to mainland conditions they do not know how to do well. If the pneumonia and the weather will just co-operate, the New Zealand-born priest hopes to have them all home by Christmas.

Col. Larr of Arlington Decorated for Aerial Action Against Japs

MacArthur Staff Officer Barely Escapes When Plane Is Forced Down

Col. David Larr of Arlington, Va., a member of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff, has been awarded a Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in aerial action against Japanese columns in New Guinea, the War Department announced yesterday. His wife resides at 4910 North Eleventh street, Arlington. Details of Col. Larr's exploits, occurring September 16 and 17, were received by the War Department yesterday, describing how he narrowly escaped capture when his plane made an emergency landing in Eastern New Guinea. Although a field artillery officer, who was assigned to make a reconnaissance flight, Col. Larr proved himself an efficient machine gunner in manning one of the plane's guns. Col. Larr set out September 16 on a mission over enemy-occupied territory. The small, slow airplane in which he was the observer was forced down in an emergency landing far inside enemy territory in a field fortunately covered with high grass. All that night he worked on repairing the plane. Meanwhile, Japanese had observed the landing and the following morning Col. Larr took off just in time to avoid capture. Despite these experiences, Col. Larr took off on another reconnaissance flight over Japanese lines. He served as front gunner. On the return trip they spotted a Japanese column moving along a trail and the artillery officer took part in machine-gunning the enemy. Col. Larr was born in Sullivan, Ind., January 20, 1901 and was graduated from West Point in 1923. He is an experienced military observer, having served in that ca-capacity in the Middle East from May to October, 1941. After his experiences in the Middle East, Col. Larr was returned to this country and served in Washington for a brief period before being assigned to the Southwest Pacific. He received his promotion to colonel August 8. Parachute Troops Slog 115 Miles in 3 Days. ATLANTA, Dec. 4.—More than 600 parachute troopers from Toccoa, Ga., rested here today after a 115-mile, three-day, forced march under full equipment, including machine guns. They marched in fog, rain, sleet and hail, through soggy fields and along concrete highways. Some had to catch up after falling out briefly to nurse sore feet. When the commander, Col. Robert F. Sink, made a talk at hike's end, he congratulated those who fell out: "When you fell, you fell face forward." You, too, can go on a raid. Make yours on that old pile of junk metal.

Mickey the Maltese Gets Tail Trimmed in Electric Washer

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Mickey, that Maltese pest, was strangely out of sight when Mrs. Lillian Neyman set about her weekly wash.
He wasn't hiding in the sheets; he wasn't curled up among the socks.
Mrs. Neyman dumped an armful of linen in her electric washer, clamped on the lid and pressed the button. There was at first a faint swishing of soapsuds. Then came a sound neither faint nor gentle. It was a feline screech. Mrs. Neyman shivered.

In obligato, there came from within the machine a popping and sputtering, illuminated by a shower of blue sparks. The lights went out. The fire department arrived in force. Efficiently it switched off the washer, lifted the hood of the motor housing, extracted Mickey, inserted a new fuse, left.

Mrs. Neyman salved Mickey's furless tail.
Mickey just spluttered.

Greek-Owned Businesses To Buy Bonds Dec. 7

More than 200 Greek-owned businesses in Washington will celebrate Pearl Harbor Day Monday by investing their entire gross receipts on that day in United States War bonds, it was reported today.
The announcement was made by the American-Hellenic War Bond Drive Committee.
"The best method we have of combating the Axis on the home front is buying War bonds to our very limit," said Peter L. Dounis, chairman of the drive. His committee is composed of James Shenos, James Comings, John Charuhas, Gus Wallace, Dr. Charles J. Demas, John T. Glakas, Constantine Poulos and Emanuel Kilis.

The Greek businesses participating in the one-day drive range from the White House peanut vender, who inaugurated the drive to attain a million-dollar goal last October by selling a bond to wholesale dealers and market commission merchants.

Traffic Property Damage Cut Reported by Miller

Inspector Arthur E. Miller of the Police Accident Prevention Unit told the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association last night that traffic accidents involving property damages have been reduced 25 per cent from last year's figures.
Although traffic fatalities are higher than last year's, Mr. Miller pointed out that this is due chiefly to the increase in pedestrians and streetcars and buses.

He listed the three main causes for accidents as excessive speed, failing to give right of way and intoxication. Another reason is crossing between intersections, he said.
Miss Elizabeth Groves, treasurer, reported that 13 new members had been admitted.
On a motion by Miss Groves, the association voted to appropriate $10 to the Central Union Mission, $10 to the All Souls' Episcopal Church, where meetings are held; $5 to the Tuberculosis Association and $15 more to the War Fund, increasing the association's contribution to $25.

The meeting was presided over by Harry C. Grove, president.

Plan Set Up to Aid Officers Seeking Rooms for Week End

8 Hotels Agree to Reserve 166 Until 7 O'clock Saturday Night

A clearing house to make hotel room reservations for officers Saturday nights will go into effect today and function every weekend, it was announced yesterday at a press conference held at the office of Arthur J. Harnett, executive secretary of the Hotel Association.

Eight Washington hotels have agreed to reserve 166 rooms for officers and their families until 7 p.m. Saturday. After that hour the usual policy of first come, first served will be followed.

Two Phone Numbers.
The plan for setting aside these rooms and for having two phone numbers, Executive 2532, extension 15 or Executive 2841, which officers can call for information on rooms was worked out by the OOD War Hospitality Committee subcommittee on servicemen's lodging, in cooperation with the hotels.

"Until now," said Grover Hartman, acting chairman of the subcommittee, "we have devoted our energies to housing enlisted men. We have made splendid progress in this field and feel now that we should attempt to alleviate the most unfortunate problem of officers who find it necessary to go from hotel to hotel in a vain search of rooms on Saturday nights."

Mr. Harnett said that though the experiment of reserving rooms for officers only was starting with eight hotels, it was hoped that the plan would expand. Officers will pay established hotel rates, he added.

Wives Can Make Reservations.
Mr. Hartman explained exactly how the service would work, saying, "When an officer arrives at Union Station, he can get Traveler's Aid or the USO for hotel rooms. These organizations will then give him the two telephone numbers, one at the Officer's Service Club and the other at War Hospitality Committee. The workers at those two numbers will have current information on the location of available rooms and will give that to the officer."

Officers' wives can make reservations for their husbands, should the officer arrive later in town. It was stressed, however, that no rooms will be held for officers after 7 p.m. Saturday, although the service of telephoning will continue until 12:15 a.m. The service begins today at noon.

"THE PRIME OF LIFE CAN BE PROLONGED"—this is the news announced by the eminent scientist, Dr. Henry Sherman of Columbia University, in the following statement: "A generous supply of calcium results in better development of the young, a higher form of adult health, and a longer lease of what we may call the prime of life, the period between maturity and old age."

KAL furnishes a generous supply of calcium, a dependable supply of calcium—only six small tablets furnish enough calcium for the daily needs of the average person.

KAL then does more than that—it is also rich in phosphorus and vitamin D, elements that are necessary in calcium metabolism. KAL is rich, too, in vitamin B1 which has a favorable influence on appetite, digestion and metabolism.

A calcium deficiency may be one of the causes, or may be the cause, of various ailments, nervousness, early aging, brittle nails, fatigue, poor bones and teeth, or other results of this form of malnutrition—and calcium is more often deficient in the American diet than in any other mineral element.

Add KAL to your daily diet—see how much better you feel as KAL helps your body overcome a deficiency of calcium or Phosphorus or Vitamin D or Vitamin B1 as it helps to gradually build and maintain a normal balance of these essential nutritional factors.

Library Seminar to Study Problem of Just Peace

A round table seminar on the subject, "On What Conditions a Just Peace Can Be Had, as Distinct from an Armistice Between New Wars," will be held at 8:15 p.m. next Wednesday under auspices of the Library of Congress

Discussion Group, which will meet in the library cafeteria.

Frederick L. Schuman, professor of political science at Williams College and writer on world politics, will be discussion leader. Others who will take part include Raymond Clapper, newspaper columnist and radio commentator; Michael Straight, Washington correspondent; Prof. Goetz Briefs of Georgetown University, Alexis St. Leger Leger, French poet and statesman, at present consultant in French literature at the Library of Congress; Alfred Vagts of the Board of Economic Warfare, Louis Lorwin, expert on labor problems; Egon Ranshofen-Wertheimer, formerly with the Secretariat of the League of Nations, and two members of the library staff, Sinclair Armstrong and Benjamin Akzin. Members of the library staff and general public are invited to attend, it was announced.

It will be the second in a series of monthly round table seminars conducted by the Library Discussion Group. On January 13, members of the library staff will discuss the subject, "A Bill of Duties to Accompany the Bill of Rights."

25 $1,440 Jobs Open

The Civil Service Commission today called for 25 adding machine operators for immediate service. The pay is $1,440, and it was specified that applications are not desired "from persons performing war work of equal skill."

Yule Seals Purchased By 10,000 Here So Far

More than 10,000 persons in the District have purchased Christmas Seals so far in the annual drive of the District Tuberculosis Association, it was announced today.

Paul D. Sleeper, chairman of the Citizens' Committee of the association, said this is slightly in excess of the number of contributors at the same time last year. Mr. Sleeper said many contributions are coming from servicemen. So far, 3,000 contributors in the city at large have registered as members of the tuberculosis association. This means they have paid $1 or more for seals.

The Christmas Seal sale is conducted independently of the Community War Fund and derives no income from that source, Mr. Sleeper stated.

Goal of the seal sale this year is $75,000, to be reached by Christmas.

Lehigh Club Meets Tonight

The Washington Lehigh Club will hold its annual oyster roast and meeting at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Hamilton Hotel. Guest speaker will be Jack Kirkpatrick, former football team captain, who will discuss effects of the war on the university. In addition, pictures will be shown of the Lehigh-Rutgers football game and films of the national drive to collect scrap metal.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER —By Ramon Coffman

The smallest furry animal in Great Britain is the "harvest mouse." Not counting its tail, this mammal has a length of only about 2 inches!

The harvest mouse was given its name because British farmers found it running or hopping about the fields at harvest times. Cutting down wheat or other grain, the farmers cause homes of these mice to fall.

The nest of a harvest mouse is a rounded affair about the size of a tennis ball. It is of leaves, neatly woven together. Usually it is placed —of the harvest mouse. They are known as "meadow mice" or "field mice." Thousands of them run about fields and meadows and they are especially numerous in eastern parts of Canada and the United States.

Field mice sometimes make their nests in barns and are a danger to grain which has been harvested. They also damage growing grain; they dig into the ground to eat the sprouting kernels.

Snakes, hawks and owls are enemies of field mice. If they are not for their enemies these mice would become worse pests than they are.

Also related to harvest mice are the "jumping mice" of Canada and northern parts of the United States. They have extra long hind legs and make big leaps when they see a farmer coming into a field where they are spending their time.

A jumping mouse makes leaps of from 10 to 12 feet. The distance may be 30 or 40 times the length of its body.

Jumping mice eat grain, leaves and bark. They have pouches in their cheeks and use them to carry away grain from a field.

When winter comes jumping mice go to their nests, which are built in holes in the ground or in spaces between rocks. There they stay during the cold months, nibbling stored-up food now and then, but spending most of their time sleeping.

Bridge Swindles—No. 127

Before he played to the first trick South happily counted nine tricks...

The bidding: East South West North Pass Pass 1 Pass 3NT...

But South suffered from the delusion that he was going to make overtricks. Hence, he returned to his own hand with a heart and finessed the queen of clubs.

A spade return by East was finessed and lost to West's king. A third round of spades knocked out South's ace.

The spectacular success of East's deceptive play doesn't mean that it was very brilliant or very difficult. It often pays to refuse a finesse that can be repeated.

Take My Word for It

By FRANK COLBY. Ratio Her childish brow was knit in concentration. "I've come to ask a question. Oh, please tell me, I implore. Is 'rash-un' right, or should I call it 'ray-shun'?"

Her nervous, quivering fingers flicked her little binafore. Her face was drawn, her lips and cheeks were ashen.

"Oh, tell me—I'll be grateful to you, sir, forevermore—Should I pronounce it 'ray-shun,' or say 'rash-un'?"

"I've listened to the radio. Where'er the dial twirls. Oh, why do some say 'rash-un,' others 'ray-shun'?"

The other two now began to shake with sobs from head to toe. I begged, "My darling, weep not in this fashion."

Ratio, both noun and verb, may be pronounced either way. The listings of Webster's Oxford English Dictionary, Century, Funk and Wagnalls, Winston, and Macmillan's show:

NATURALLY, this medium of exchange lost its value. The clam industry is one of our most productive and valuable fisheries. Canned clam products rank sixth in value of production, even exceeding the oyster canning industry.

There are two species of clams, the long-neck or soft-shell and hard-shell or little neck, the latter shown here. Both clams are of commercial importance in the New England States.

The spawning season for clams is from June to August. The egg is transformed into a tiny free-swimming ciliated larva within 10 to 12 hours after it is fertilized.

Soft-shell clams seek gravely mud flats of river mouths, bays and sounds from South Carolina to Greenland, and also in Great Britain.

Nats Still on Trail of Barter With Browns After Poor Hunting at Chicago

Win, Lose or Draw

By WALTER McCALLUM.

Lions Still Hope to Prove Worth on Ice

How does it happen that an ice hockey team which, according to the owner and the general manager, is "the class of the American Hockey League," has been able to win only once in every four starts? For that, so far this season, is about where the darlings of Owner Mike Uline's heart, the ice-cutting Lions of the American League, are nowadays.

They've shown themselves more or less impotent in the won and lost column, although Uline, General Manager Lee Perrin and Team Captain George Mantha agree that the Lions potentially form the strongest team in the pro-circuit.

"Defense is the answer," says Perrin, long a hockey man, grown gray and bald in the process of welding together winning outfits in air-cooled rinks in this country and Canada. "You can't win when you have a porous defense, no matter how good your attack is, or how many goals you score. But we'll get that defense going and when we do, watch our smoke."

Out on the rime-covered ice, chopped up by the skates of the hockey players, George Mantha, captain of the Lions, blew a whistle and yelled the French equivalent of "Get in there and stop 'em, boys." Although ice hockey is a Canadian game, most of the players speak French. Mantha gives his commands in French. "It makes it easier," he said. "Our men speak both English and French, but mostly they speak French on the ice."

Defense Woes Keep D. C. Team From Stardom

"Yes, we are having defense troubles," said Mantha, who plays defense himself. Mantha is one of the hockey immortals. Now 34, and nearing the end of his active stick toting career, he started playing hockey at the age of 5. He has played with the fabulous Howie Morenz and for years was a wingman with Les Canadiens. It takes gobs of ability to stick with that team. "We have the best scoring punch in the league, but our defense has been a sieve. We were lucky to get Ceryance in front of the net, but a goalie needs more than a stick and leg guards. He needs men in front of him."

Naturally the next question would be, "Why doesn't Mantha, an outstanding hockey player, take over the defense himself?" That isn't possible. Hockey isn't a 60-minute game. It is so fast and takes so much out of the players that those frequent substitutions you see are necessary. But a defense man takes less punishment than a wing, even in those fast charges down the ice that have the feminine patrons screaming and usually mean so little in the scoring column.

"This is a new team," said Mantha. "I don't mean the men are new to hockey. They are all experienced players. I mean they are new to each other and they haven't had enough time to work out passing combinations and perfect their team play. We have had only four practice sessions on our own ice and we can't be sure of ice on the road."

New Talent Expected to Make Club Click

"It takes time to work out team play but we'll get it. Then watch our wins pile up. But I want that defense airtight. The goalie can't do it all. Those defense men out in front of him have to break up the charges or two goalies couldn't handle all the hot shots aimed at the net."

Something is being done about defense by the Lions. On the attack side they have signed Freddie Weaver, the blond youngster who did all right with the now defunct Eagles of the Eastern Amateur League. They have signed Cully Simon, a fast skater and good checker from the Detroit Redwings. Weaver and Simon are with the team.

And they hope to get back in Lion uniform a bulky guest named Tony Graboski, now with Les Canadiens. "If we get him most of our troubles will be over," beamed Owner Uline. "Also we hope to get Roger Leger from Montreal," said Perrin. "He weighs 230 pounds and he's a pretty big piece of man in the defense zone." Perrin intimated that absence of one good man means the difference between winning and losing a hockey game. Take Tommy Mont out of Maryland's backfield and it isn't quite the same football team, or take Joe Di Maggio out of the Yankee baseball line-up and it isn't the old punch.

"We've spent a barrel of money to put a scoring punch in this club," said Uline. "But we haven't much to prevent us from being scored on."

Courteau Suffers by Picking Wrong Job

Just then Mantha bellowed something in French. It sounded like "Goachie." Fernand Gauthier grinned. The half-frozen onlookers were puzzled. "Sounds funny, doesn't it," said Mantha. That name Gauthier is pronounced like Goachie in English. We have three Goachie's on this club, not related to each other.

Huddled up in the stands watching the Lions work was Paul Gauthier, 165 pounds of goal, temperally out with a set of pulled muscles. You would think that a goal keeper with plenty of heft and height would be necessary to keep enemy shots out of the big net, but it isn't so. "Most good goalies are comparatively small men, with fast reflexes," explained Perrin. "We think Paul Gauthier is the best in this league." "Goachie" just grinned. He will be back tending goal in a few days.

"Defense," said Perrin, "is by far the biggest part of hockey. We score a lot of goals, but if we can't keep the other team from scoring we aren't going to win." It seems that the Lions may not get Paul Courteau, the flying Frenchman of the Eagles, and probably the most colorful player to don skates on a Washington rink. Paul pulled a boner, soon after he had been signed by the Lions. Canada's selective service won't pass him across the border because Paul told the military authorities he is a machinist. "He doesn't know anything about machinery," said Perrin. "And besides, he's half blind. But he is a good hockey player and he wants to play."

Georgia's Sinkwich Lone Repeater on All-Southeast

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 4.—Three players—Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia, Harvey Hardy of Georgia Tech and Don Whitmore of Alabama—were unanimous choices for the 1942 All-Southeastern Conference football team, chosen by 20 sports writers.

Monk Gafford of Auburn almost was a universal choice, and George Poschner of Georgia, Joe Dominiano of Alabama and Clint Castleberry of Georgia Tech also were given more than half of the total votes cast.

Sinkwich is the only repeater from the 1941 team. Vanderbilt's Jack Jenkins, the only other member of last year's team in school, was placed on the second team.

Castleberry, Tech's sensational freshman, and Whitmore, a junior, are the only possibilities for play next season. The other nine are seniors.

First Team. Ends—George Poschner, Georgia, and Al Rust, Tennessee.

Tackles—Don Whitmore, Alabama, and Clyde Johnson, Kentucky.

Guards—Harvey Hardy, Georgia Tech, and George Hecht, Alabama.

Center—Joe Dominiano, Alabama.

Fullback—Monk Gafford, Auburn.

Second Team. Ends—Van Davis, Georgia, and Mervy Comer, Tulane.

Tackles—Dick Huffman, Tennessee, and Jim McClarkin, Auburn.

Guards—Walter Ruark, Georgia, and Honey Britt, Ole Miss.

Center—Mutt Manning, Georgia Tech.

Backs—Jack Jenkins, Vanderbilt; Alvin Durr, S. U.; Bobby Cifer, Tennessee; and Lou Thomas, Tulane.

Late A. A. Start Menaces 'Little World Series'

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The American Association has decided to open its season April 29, two weeks later than in the past, and that all of its clubs should train as close home as possible.

The delay in starting jeopardized the "Little World Series" because the International League previously adopted a schedule ending a week earlier than the September 19 closing date for the Association.

No decision was reached on the St. Paul franchise which owner Walter G. Seeger wants to sell.

Griffith, Barnes Will Talk Trade Here Monday

Hurler Leonard Key To Swap; Night Play Increase Denied

By BURTON HAWKINS.

Clark Griffith returned to his succeeded office today with no more help for his Washington baseball club than when he departed the village Monday evening for the annual winter meeting of the major leagues at Chicago, but the talking he did there may have its effect later.

Monday, for instance, President Don Barnes of the St. Louis Browns will pay Griffith a visit here. For two hours yesterday at Chicago, he and Griffith were closeted, but according to Griffith when they departed they weren't close to making a trade.

Barnes still is seeking Pitcher Dutch Leonard of the Nats and Griffith wants Third Baseman Harold Clift of the Browns. They are the principal figures in a deal that may materialize later, but the accessories to such a swap haven't been determined.

Griffith still professes he is unwilling to part with Leonard and Clift. He'd like to buy, but every time I open my mouth these other fellows start talking about Leonard, Case or Spence. I don't want to get rid of the good players I have. I want to add to them."

Proposed by the Browns has been a deal that would send Pitcher Elden Aufer and Infielder Ed Dillinger of Toledo to the Nats for Leonard and Infielder Jimmy Poffa, who would be sent to Toledo. Dillinger, who hit .305 last season, is likely to be drafted by Griffith and may be interested in Dillinger's hasn't been summoned into the service by spring.

Griffith attempted without success to land Outfielder Roy Weatherly of Cleveland and Babe Dahlgren, former Yankee infielder who now is the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Cleveland officials aren't interested in parting with Weatherly, and Griffith lost interest in Dahlgren when he learned he is likely to be drafted by Griffith.

Griffith also is looking for a replacement for young Johnny Sullivan. Even if the Nats locate a more talented shortstop, Sullivan is likely to be retained, for Manager Ossie Bluege feels he has a smooth performer.

Washington will view no more night games next season than it did last season. The American League had granted Griffith permission to play 28 games next season at a joint meeting of the leagues the National League vetoed the idea. That left the fate of the number of night games in Washington up to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and he ruled the Nats could play no more than 21.

The Nats thus came out of the meeting empty handed and somewhat disappointed in failing to bolster their definitely whether they would go through with their plans.

Lions Tie Cleveland, Tackle Providence Here Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

The Indianapolis Capitals, idle since November 24, celebrated their return to action in the American Hockey League by defeating the Buffalo Bisons, Western division leaders, 4-2, last night.

The Capitals were forced to go overtime before they could win out with Johnny Holta, late of the Detroit Red Wings of the National League, scoring the winning goal. It was the first overtime game in Buffalo since the season.

In the only other league game, the Washington Lions and Cleveland Barons played a 3-3 tie.

Playing before 1,915 fans, the smallest crowd since the opening of the Cleveland Arena five years ago, the Barons made a futile attempt to gain their first victory in almost a fortnight.

The Lions had a 3-1 lead before the Barons tied it up late in the second period on goals by Tommy Burlington and Capt. Bill Mackenzie.

Fernand Gauthier tallied his second goal of the evening early in the final round to put the Lions ahead, but here Foster tied it up at 8:04. Both teams ended up in the overtime session.

The Lions will be home tomorrow night to play the Providence Reds at Uline Arena.

Skins Look to Hare Brothers For Heavy Duty in Title Tilt

By the Associated Press.

Unsung until recent games, Cece and Ray Give Evidence They Can Carry Mail

Unsung during the regular campaign while the Redskins were inching their way to the Eastern title, the Hare brothers, Ray and Cece, likely will play important roles in the championship game with the Bears a week from Sunday at Griffith Stadium.

By all the laws of environment the brothers should have been hockey players because they were born in the little Canadian town with the idyllic handle of Robinson, Saskatchewan, although of American parentage. Had hockey been their game they would have been just as good on skates as they are on cleats because when Ray Flaherty sends them into action you know you're going to get plenty of it.

With only two touchdowns each to their credit the Hares aren't among the Tribe's leading scorers, but it's no fault of their own. Flaherty simply didn't let them lug the leather in the earlier stages of the campaign, but both busted loose in recent games and ran like fire engines with pants on. Needless to say, Flaherty intends to make the most of their ability in this department in the playoff.

Although he is a good passer and punter, and a southpaw at that, Ray has done no throwing nor kicking for the Skins because those chores have been assigned to others. But in an emergency Hare can dig a mean foot into the pigskin and it might be part of Flaherty's strategy to let him pass or even get off a punt against the Bears. The novelty of such a stunt has unbounded possibilities.

Six International Sports Events Slated in Europe

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr., Associated Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—You can put whatever value you want on Berlin radio announcements (and get plenty of change from a buck) but the folks who have been hollering that we ought to give up sports because of the current shortages of players, transportation and equipment may be interested in a recent item snatched from the airwaves.

The Berlin announcer reported that no fewer than six international sports events are scheduled in Europe next Sunday. They include tennis matches between Sweden and Denmark at Stockholm, international cycle races at Zurich, Switzerland; a wrestling meet between Italy and Croatia at Bari, Italy; Budapest vs. Vienna women's swimming at Budapest, Switzerland vs. Sweden ice hockey at Zurich and a triangular amateur boxing meet at Zurich, Switzerland.

Non-professional—A copy boy on an Indianapolis newspaper won the office football pool a few weeks ago by picking Iowa to beat Wisconsin. One of the losers couldn't understand. "Didn't you know Wisconsin was undefeated and had tied Notre Dame?" he asked. "Sure," replied the kid, "but those Seahawks are tough."

Prexy So Tardy Evans Given Southern Job

Minor Moguls Irked By Scott Bring Bill Back to Baseball

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The minor leagues took baseball's winter show away from the majors today and the choicest topic of conversation was not the business facing the convention, but the startling switch of Southern Association presidents which brought Billy Evans back into baseball.

It was the most dramatic story in many years of minor league meetings. And it came about because a train was late.

All day yesterday Evans, former general manager of the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox, and for 22 years an American League umpire, was just another famous job hunter among the milling mob of baseball men in the hotel lobby.

Trammell Scott, who had headed the Southern Association for five years and was a member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues for two, still was the president of his league and no one suspected a change—least of all Evans.

Scott had left Atlanta on a train due here at 1:30 p.m. and intended to preside over the Southern meeting at 4 p.m., but when his club owners convened, Scott had not been heard from and some of the members, disgruntled for various reasons over past incidents, recalled seeing Evans on the scene for several days.

They knew he was at liberty because Evans had come to the meeting rather expecting to become president of the American Association while George Trautmann was on leave of absence as a colonel with the Specialist Corps of the Army.

But the Specialist Corps recently was disbanded and on Tuesday when the Army accepted his resignation, he returned to the presidency of the American Association.

Halas' Draft Plan Makes Bears Great, Cards' Conzelman Says

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—"When you look at all the troubles baseball had before it got established," some one remarked in a gab session in the Chicago Cubs' room at the baseball meeting, "it makes you realize what a relatively easy time professional football has had."

Jimmy Conzelman, visiting coach of the Chicago Cardinals, grinned. "Yes, sir," he said, "nothing out of the way ever has occurred in the football league. The nearest we've had to a scandal are the current Chicago Bears."

The Bears were very much on Conzelman's mind, for his thwarted Cardinals must play the big, bad North Side pro football champions Sunday in Comiskey Park in the season's finale here.

"I think the Bears always are a tribute to George Halas' system of picking players," Jimmy said. "He use to get the pick of four of the first 10 players in the yearly draft of college seniors. Here's how he did it.

"He'd come around and offer you Joe Tincup, a guy you needed badly but who probably was a third or fourth stringer with the Bears. All George would ask in return was the right to take your place in the draft picks.

"And usually you were tickled to death to accept. You might even go farther and give him a big kiss or offer to buy him all the milk he could drink. And then, when your turn came in the draft and George would go to pick a player instead, he always got a prize. And Joe Tincup, well, you know what happened to him.

"Well, the Bears have won 10 straight league games this year and the Western division championship. I hope we can put them to their biggest test this Sunday. I hope we get a chance to prove the Bears can't win in tennis shoes."

Three Minor Players Bought by White Sox

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Chicago White Sox have purchased three minor league players—two pitchers from Shreveport and an outfielder from San Diego.

The hurlers were Floyd Spears, who won 16 and lost 12 last season, and Gordon Maltzberger, who won 16 and lost 12. The outfielder was Melvin Mazer, who netted 20.

All are married and have children.

Former Big Leaguer Killed

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Dec. 4 (P).—Chad Kimesy, former major league pitcher, was killed yesterday when a gravel truck he was driving crashed into a highway bridge near Pryor, Okla.

Kimesy formerly was the season's outstanding trend in the one you can't take to the bowl games.

Dutch Dehnert, who piloted the Detroit Eagles last season, will coach basketball at Bishop Loughlin High in Brooklyn this winter. After a long tussle with the A. F. poll on football "trends" this department is convinced that the season's outstanding trend is the one you can't take to the bowl games.

Cleaning the cuff—Jane Ann Jones, known as one of the most capable executives in minor league baseball, has resigned as secretary-treasurer of the Colum-

Gas Masks Worn In Basket Tilt

By the Associated Press.

CHANUTE FIELD, Ill.—Basket ball players with gas masks! It really happened here recently in a pair of exhibition games at the post. The masks were worn to add interest to the intersquadron cage program and to emphasize the over-all scope of the chemical warfare training program at the field. Officials of the game were exempt only because no one could figure out a way for them to blow whistles while encased in the headgear.

Willie Turnesa, Star At Miami, Upholds Fame of Family

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—For the second time this year a uniformed member of the golfing Turnesa family from Elmford, N. Y., put a dash of suspense today into a wartime tournament.

Chief Specialist Willie Turnesa of the Navy—the 1938 national amateur champion and now an instructor in the free gunnery school at Hollywood, Fla.—started the second round of the $5,000 Miami open in third place after carding a 2-under-par 68 for an opener.

He was only two strokes off the first-round pace, set by Ben Loving of Springfield, Mass., with a pair of 33s, and trailed Harold McSpaden of Philadelphia by the thinnest of margins.

Brother's Feat Recalled. Turnesa's threat to the supremacy of the pros recalled the amazing performance of his brother, Corpl. Jim of the Army, who went to the final round of the PGA championship last summer—upsetting both Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson on the way—and then lost the title to Sam Snead.

"I was hitting my shots pretty well," the short-compact-built Willie related after posting the score which gave him a clean three-stroke lead over the other amateurs.

"Of course, I get to play golf only on Sundays now, and it's hard to keep your game up when you're in the Navy. But I'd say that my long game is about as good as it ever was, although my short game is off a little."

Loving Misses Record. Loving had an opportunity for a 64, which would have equalled the competitive course record, but threeputted the 18th green from about 14 feet. He sank a 35-yard chip shot for an eagle on the 460-yard 13th hole.

Playing with a bandage on his blistered right thumb, McSpaden, in his own words, "hit some great shots and missed some easy ones."

Boston College and Holy Cross Place Two Men Each on All-Eastern Eleven

Seven Other Choices Distributed Among As Many Schools

Ace Gridders Plentiful Despite That Squads Are Below Standard

By HERB BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Boston College's Eagles, the East's leading team on the basis of won and lost records, and the Crusaders of Holy Cross, who dealt the Eagles their lone defeat, each place two men on the 1942 All-Eastern team, selected today by the Associated Press.

The seven remaining places on the team are spread among as many colleges.

Boston College's two representatives are Mike Holovak, backfield ace, and Don Currian, crack end. Chosen from the Holy Cross array, which smeared Boston College, 55 to 12, last Saturday in the season's greatest upset, are Johnny Bezemes, talented back, and George Connor, freshman tackle. Connor's selection marks the first time a yearling ever has been chosen for the first team and, at 17, he is perhaps the youngest player who ever gained a berth.

Olds of Army Chosen.

Rounding out the backfield along with Holovak and Bezemes are Paul Governal, Columbia's master passer, and Bill Dutton of Pittsburgh, the Panthers' one-man offensive all season.

Connor's running mate at tackle is Robin Olds, Army veteran, while Bob Davis of Penn State shares the wing posts with Currian.

Selected at the guard positions are two up-State New Yorkers, Ernest Alpher of Syracuse and Bob Orlando of Colgate. The center is Spencer Moseley, Yale captain.

The quality of Eastern football unquestionably is below former standards this season but no apologies need to be made for the all-star line-up. The line, with Connor's 226 pounds as anchor, averages a shade under 190.

The backfield, boasting all the necessary running, passing and kicking qualifications, averages 188 pounds.

Pair of Great Backs.

Governal and Holovak generally were recognized as the East's top-ranking backs. Governal, playing with a losing Columbia team that was outmanned in most of its tests, tied the national record for touchdowns passed in a season, 19, and came within 15 yards of the national record for yardage gained via passes with a total of 1,442. He was virtually the whole show for the Lions.

Holovak averaged 100 yards a game rushing for Boston College until the Holy Cross debacle and even on that day the Red-Hot Crusaders could not stop him completely. A splendid defensive back, Holovak was rated the most valuable man on the team which will meet Alabama in the Orange Bowl New Year Day.

During the first half of the season when Holy Cross' potentially great team was founded by Bezemes was the Crusaders' one consistent star on offense and defense. And when the Worcester machine finally began to click late in the season, Bezemes still was the sparkplug.

Dutton Stars for Losers.

Pitt has just completed one of the most dismal seasons in its long history with three victories in nine games, but Dutton was a stand-out all the way.

Currian and Davis gave the all-star team a finely balanced pair of wingmen. Currian, a fine passer, catcher and defense star, was the only Boston College star aside from Holovak who played anywhere close to form against Holy Cross. Davis was consistently good for Penn State's Military Lions whose record of six victories, a defeat and a tie was excelled only by Boston College.

Connor was a tremendous figure in the Holy Cross line despite his youth and inexperience. He was a tough man to handle as Boston College found out. He may well develop into one of the East's greatest tackles unless war conditions end his collegiate career before it really gets under way. His running mate, Olds, was the outstanding man in the Army line.

No Standout Guards.

There were no Endicott Peabody or Ralph Pifer among Eastern guards this year but Alther, the steady Syracuse star, and Orlando, Colgate's place kicking specialist, took much over and over as McMertrie Sheikman of Penn, Johnny Jaffurs of Penn State and Rocco Canale of Boston College.

Moseley, one of the East's best centers for three years, was Yale's chief defensive bulwark and an inspirational leader as the Elis, under their new head coach, Hovie Odell, finally emerged from the gridiron doghouse to win the Big Three championship.

Czekaj of G. W. Placed at End On Dixie Loop Soph Eleven

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 4.—North Carolina and Duke, which related a great deal on sophomores during the 1942 football season, virtually monopolized positions on the all-Southern Conference sophomore team selected for the Associated Press.

Each gained three berths. The other five positions were shared by N. C. State, Clemson, George Washington, William and Mary and South Carolina.

Ends—Ed Czekaj, George Washington, 195 pounds, Mount Pleasant, Pa., and Walter Clark, Clemson, 170 pounds, Lexington, N. C.

Tackles—Dominick Fusel, South Carolina, 206 pounds, New York City, and Alex Lucke, Duke, 200 pounds, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Guards—Gene Speacht, Duke, 190 pounds, Altoona, Pa., and Ralph

Ahearn Challenging Ring Body's Right To Set Prices

Promoter Also Asks Why He Must Remove Uline Ice for Boxing Show

Goldie Ahearn and the District Boxing Commission were at loggerheads today over, of all things, the prices for the Liberty Athletic Club's card next Tuesday night at Uline Arena. Peculiarly, Ahearn wants to drop the tariff from $3.60 to $1.65 and, just as peculiarly, the commission has raised a forbidding hand.

Moreover, the fathers governing the sport have decreed that Ahearn must see to it that the hockey rink at Uline is melted down before he can stage another show. In the past, boards have been placed over the ice and seats put down on them.

Ahearn, vigorously wielding a rules book, virtually has defied the commission to stop his show either of the above reasons. The board wants him to charge at least $2.40, basing its case on the plea that this is the established price for ringside seats at fights of ordinary caliber.

Ahearn, thumbing through the book, insists the commission to show him its authority for setting prices. Moreover, he wants to know why he can't charge $1.65 when Joe Turner, rival promoter, despite the established price of $2.40, has been selling out rate tickets below that scale. Further, he wants to know why the commission suddenly has developed cold feet sitting on ice when Riverside Arena staged boxing shows over a period of several years with the ice on its rink and without complaints from officials or fans.

The commission must have a pretty good answer—it hopes.

Tilt Between Tutor, Pupil May Decide U. S. Cue Title

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Building up toward a possible "teacher versus student" championship climax, the world pocket billiards tournament may find Andrew Ponzi and Willie Mosconi eventually matching shots for the title.

Mosconi's first defeat in six games made such a finish a likelihood yesterday and the two former Philadelphia neighbors, now running one-two in the tournament, perhaps will have the final showdown to themselves.

Now a Jackson, Mich. war worker, Mosconi, 29, learned a lot of billiards from Ponzi when both lived in Philly. Ponzi is 39.

"I learned a lot trying to beat him," says Willie.

A doting old man of the pool table, Ponzi thus cautioned to the winds again yesterday while registering his fourth and fifth victories in seven games. He beat Erwin Rudolph of Chardon, Ohio, 125 to 101, in 19 innings, and Ralph Greenleaf of New York, 125 to 74, in 11 innings.

Meanwhile Mosconi, in his only start of the day, was losing to Jimmy Caras, also a former rival in Philadelphia. After the second inning Willie couldn't score a point and lost 125 to 43, in 19 innings. Caras rolled in 90 balls on his last two turns.

Defending Champion Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., kept alive his hopes for retaining the title by defeating Rudolph, 125 to 37, in 17 innings, for his third victory in six games.

Standings:

Player	W	L	HR	BP	TP	Pct
Mosconi	5	1	114	4	658	.873
Caras	3	3	68	8	605	.500
Crane	3	3	68	8	605	.500
Rudolph	3	6	47	15	617	.286

Fisheries Group to Meet

Members of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission will hold their next meeting in Baltimore on Wednesday at the Hotel Longfellow, with representatives of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service slated to attend.

S. Rayburn, North Carolina, 205 pounds, Durham, N. C.

Center—Chris Highsmith, North Carolina, 200 pounds, Brunswick, Ga.

Backs—Eddie Teague, N. C. State, 170 pounds, Washington, D. C.; Billy Myers, North Carolina, 175 pounds, Lexington, N. C.; Nick Forkovitch, William and Mary, 165 pounds, McLean, Va.; and Buddy Luper, Duke, 170 pounds, Rock Mount, N. C.

The second team, nearly as brilliant an aggregation as the first, included: Benny Cittadino of Duke and Tommy Peters of Davidson, ends; Bo Coppedge of V. M. I. and John Wagner of N. C. State, tackles; Johnny Clowes of William and Mary and Andy Karres of North Carolina, guards; Steve Slijanoff of Richmond, Va.; Joe Poltz of V. P. I.; Hubert Werner of Maryland; Jack Wilbourne of Georgetown; Russ Perry of Wake Forest, backs; Czekaj, a regular with George Washington, was one of the best defensive ends in the business.

Hyattsville Bowlers Enter War Savings Event En Masse

Use League Prize Money To Pay Entrance Fees; D. C. Stars to Travel

If showings at Silver Spring and Hyattsville followed the examples of what is to come, the field of The Star's war savings bowling tournament, to open Monday, will surpass the record group of nearly 10,000 men and women that competed in last year's event.

All but one league at Silver Spring a week ago followed the greatly urged, time and toll saving plan of entering entire memberships with money lifted from prize funds. The lone exception would have made it unanimous had there been enough money in its treasury. Most of this league's members will compete anyhow.

Jim Money, manager of Oscar Hiser's flourishing Hyattsville alley, announced today that every league in the place, close to a dozen, will be in line when the firing starts.

The majority already have appropriated prize coin for the entry fees and Money has been assured the others will follow suit.

"With those full handicaps, $1 entry fee and a great prize list," said Money today, "this tournament is the easiest to sell I ever heard of."

Virginia Tournaments Draw.

Two Virginia tournaments will provide the top action for a host of the Capital's leading bowlers tomorrow with seventh annual Women's Old Dominion juring the fair rollers to Richmond and the fifth annual Jefferson Open attracting the male sharpshooters to Roanoke.

Seeking his third major victory of the season and at the same time out to break the four-year monopoly held by Virginia pinmen will be El Geib in the seven-game Jefferson tournament which will be held in Alexandria Recreation teammate who also has returned in several brilliant tournament scores: Percy Wolfe and Joe Price, Lafayette stars; Dave Burrows of Georgetown and Lee Marney, member of the pacesetter Clarendon quint in the District League.

Lynn recently established an all-time Baltimore seven-game record of 1,025 as co-winner with Walter Stahler, an Oriole, in the Recreation Inaugural while Geib tied this mark to win the Ray Von Dreeke at Baltimore after his first victory in the Frank Jett at Richmond.

Lucey and Lorraine Feud.

Hi-Skor's Lorraine Gull and Rosslyn's Lucey Rose, who have been going great guns in tournaments this season, will carry their perennial bowling feud to Richmond. Mrs. Rose, victor in the 1940 Old Dominion, is the only Capital bowler to win the 10-game event. Ethel Brewer of Baltimore will be the defending champion.

Among the Roanoke delegation will be Arville Eberole, executive secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, who besides directing the Jefferson will aid proprietor Callahan in promoting the affair as a Red Cross benefit. Eberole also will help to promote the Roanoke City War bond tournament, modeled after The Star's.

Mary Jones, with highs of 132 and 331, sparked the Victory Guard's to an odd-game win over the Green Bees in the Farmerettes League at Hi-Skor.

Manager Eddie Winslow of Hi-Skor will lose one of his popular assistants when Al Weiner joins the armed forces soon.

Jimmy Jenkins' 165 was the big blow as the Jenkins' Sheet Metal quip, chalked up a season record of 613 in Clarence's Commercial B loop. His top 394 also was scored in a 2-1 win from Conklyn Flowers.

John Ash fired the first 400 set of his career last night at Takoma. His 413 capped by a 159 game featured Modern Way Movers' sweep over Stevens Decorators with scores of 625 and 1,847.

Football Officials Honor Central, W.-L. Coaches

John Jankowski, coach of Central High School's championship eleven, and Harry Deming, mentor of Washington-Lees' team, the only squad to beat Central, were honored last night at the District of Columbia Football Officials Association's first annual banquet at the Touchdown Club.

(Rusty) Doran, incoming president, was inducted into the organization and the evening's program which included speakers, Hardy Pearce, Jack Gass, Gus Welch and Andy Parks.

Nearby Maryland Girls Honored at Hollins

Special Dispatch to The Star.

HOLLINS COLLEGE, Va., Dec. 4.—Cornelia Thomas of Sandy Spring, Md., and Mary Jane Lattimer of Chevy Chase, Md., were among those receiving chevrons for sports participation at the end of the girls' field hockey season at Hollins College here.

Miss Thomas scored three goals as the Events defeated the Odds, 4-0, in their annual game, high light of the season, and was named right inside on the honorary varsity team.

UNUSUAL PERFORMER—Alex Agase, Illinois guard, who probably pulled the prize oddity of many strange happenings on the gridirons this season. During Illinois' upset victory over Minnesota he scored two touchdowns, once by "stealing" the ball and the other by falling on a fumbled oval back of the goal.

Great Lakes, Inspired By Revenge, Faces Irish Eleven

Notre Dame Yet to Lose To a Bluejacket Team; Tars Well Tested

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Great Lakes Bluejackets, recently voted the country's outstanding service team after getting shutout victories in their last six games, will try to tighten their claim to this honor tomorrow by beating Notre Dame in Chicago's huge Soldier Field.

The contest, colored by a revenge motive, will be the last for both elevens. The Irish boast a clean record against Navy teams, having defeated the Iowa Seahawks, 28 to 0, and the United States Naval Academy, 9 to 0.

The Bluejackets would like to spoil this mark and at the same time average a 7-7 tie the undefeated sailor team of 1918 received from the Irish.

The Bluejackets, in good physical condition after nine-day layoff after pummeling Northwestern, 46-0, have held 11 opponents to an average of 80 yards a game by rushing and 607 yards by passing—the top defensive record in the Midwest.

The sailors have been beaten averaging nearly 218 pounds to the man. Working behind it are several backfield combinations, featuring Bruce Smith of Minnesota from the regular single-wing attack and Stanfield's Pete Kmetovic from the T.

Despite Great Lakes' pass defense network, Notre Dame is expected to lean heavily on the arm of Angelo Bertelli, who has gained almost a third of the Irish's total yardage this season with his slingshots.

The Irish have been beaten three times in 11 starts, while the Irish have won seven, lost to Michigan and Georgia Tech and tied Wisconsin.

Giant Smallmouth Catch Is Surprising; Ducks Increase in Currituck Region

There is listed this year the catch of a giant black bass, that, according to Maryland's Eastern Shore-Ten, is of the smallmouth variety. The fish weighed 7 pounds 2 ounces and was caught in a Dorchester County stream.

We wouldn't say no smallmouth black bass are there, but the section typically is conducive to the ways of the largemouth variety. Occasionally, most any water will produce big fish—and oddities, too—but it is difficult to understand why season after season larger smallmouths than are caught anywhere else in the Dorchester fishing contests.

The know of many anglers who would wear a path there quickly to get such fishing.

Striper Fishing Still On.

Striper fishing from Chesapeake Bay ports and down the Potomac River lent over by any means. It was the tough weather over the week end that held in the few boats still operating, so reports were not so numerous as usual.

There has been further reduction in the ranks of the guides. We have news of several more giving up the fishing in favor of duck hunting.

The good going should continue until a long stretch of cold weather comes along.

At Ridge, there now is an additional skipper running, Capt. Taft Tippet's brother is back for the remainder of the season.

Knowing the disregard Maryland widowlers have shown for the no-baiting law, it is difficult to believe that during 1942 they became more law-abiding. Yet it is true. There were 54 fewer violations than in 1941 and a decrease in the total of fines of more than $500.

Black Bass Season Poor.

The Maryland black bass season in non-tidal waters closed November 30. It was not one that anglers will remember, for there were few good fishing days up to the flood and none afterwards. Quite a contrast to the exceptional fishing of 1941 when there was crystal clear water for nearly five months.

From down Currituck way come reports of increased numbers of redheads, cars and ruddy ducks, but in the Mattamuskeet area the increase is in pintails, while there are less than half the number of Canada geese reported last season.

In this area, there are reasonably large numbers of canvasbacks and a noticeable increase in most species. There are greater numbers of geese and a remarkable increase in blue-bills.

Players Catching Own Passes Among Grid Season Oddities

Guard Scores Twice in Game; Back Runs Width of Field 3 Times, Gains Yard

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Two players caught their own passes, a guard scored twice in one game and a tackle once carried the ball for a 6-yard gain during the 1942 football season, which produced enough upsets to drive the fans crazy, but didn't confine all its dizzy doings to the final scores.

These and other oddities were uncovered today in an Associated Press survey of the Nation's gridiron-goofiness, much of which contributed to the welter of form reversals.

Probably the prize oddity of the year came in the Illinois upset of Minnesota when an Illinois guard, Alex Agase, scored two touchdowns on plays that originated with the Gophers snapping the ball. Agase first stole the ball from Bill Daley on the dead run and didn't stop until he had crossed the goal line. Then a bad pass from the Minnesota center scooted into the end zone and Agase pounced on it for another touchdown.

Odd Passes in Big Six.

Big Six Conference passers did all sorts of peculiar things. Ray Evans of Kansas tossed a pass against Iowa State, but it was batted back and he caught it himself for a 1-yard loss. Royal Loehr of Iowa State pulled the same stunt against Villanova, but lost much more ground.

Bob Steuber of Missouri hurled a pass intended for Marshall Shurnas in the Oklahoma game. The ball struck Shurnas on the head, bounced back to the line of scrimmage and was intercepted by Oklahoma's Dub Lamb.

It was in the game between Texas A. and M. and Texas Christian that Wayne Cure, an Aggie tackle, caught the ball on a field goal attempt and rambled back for a 6-yard gain. When T. C. U. played Texas, the hope we can continue as proud of our success in 1942 as we were in 1941. The United States Golf Association says golf is a "must."

The association presented a watch to F. H. Kramer, retiring first vice president and former tournament chairman.

More Than $1,000 in Bonds Bought.

War bonds to the value of more than $1,000 were distributed in prizes by the feminine golf organization this year. In addition, the association gave nearly $100 to the American Women's Volunteer Service, and $50 to Army-Navy Relief. More than $280 was spent with the professional golfers at Washington clubs in prizes this year.

Woman Golfers Split District Tourney Into Two Divisions

Classes A and B, Governed by Handicaps, Will Be Staged on Different Courses

By WALTER McCALLUM.

Committed to a policy of regular tournaments in 1943, the Women's District Golf Association has O. K.'d the playing of the District women's championship on a new schedule providing for championships in classes A and B, according to handicaps.

The move to change the entire setup of the District title tournament, for the crown now held by Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, was approved at the annual meeting of the women's association at Kenwood yesterday, where Mrs. Walter L. Weible of the host club was elected president for the third straight year. Other officers elected were: Mrs. J. H. Bullock, Kenwood, first vice president; Mrs. F. Dickson Letts, Chevy Chase, second vice president; Mrs. G. K. Heiss, Army and Navy, secretary; Mrs. E. A. Swingle, Congressional, treasurer.

Mrs. Weible said that her predictions for a bad year in 1942 were 100 per cent wrong. Her husband, probably 1943 would see much the same interest in women's golf. "It was a most gratifying year," she said, adding that the Women's District Golf Association spent more than $1,200 for War bonds and for various relief agencies.

Seven Clubs Send Boxers Into Opening Tonight Of Golden Gloves

National Training School, which is expected to make a strong bid for the novice crown, will have the lion's share of fighters on the opening program of the annual Golden Gloves boxing tournament tonight at Turner's Arena. The first bout is scheduled for 8:30.

Coach Bill McKeever will have 16 youngsters on the program and expects a couple of champions, at least, to emerge from the group.

Other clubs represented on tonight's card include Apollo A. C., Police Boys' Club, Naval Air Base, Merrick Club, Marine Barracks and Boys' Club of Washington, Central Branch.

NBA Hits at New York Title Ranking Given Jack-Larkin Fight

Says Victor Must Meet 13-Man Tourney Winner For Lightweight Crown

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—There's a new fight cooking on the fire today, because the National Boxing Association doesn't believe in "hand-picking" a champion.

That, says NBA President Abe Greene, is, in effect, what the New York State Athletic Commission is doing in insisting on recognizing the winner of a Beau Jack-Tippy Larkin fight in Madison Square Garden, December 18, as the world lightweight champion, succeeding Sammy Angott, who abdicated a few weeks ago because of injured hands.

Before the victor gets NBA sanction, he'll have to tangle with the survivor of a tournament open to 13 fighters from coast to coast.

New York's fistie fathers also dipped into the tournament angle yesterday, in addition to announcing their title recognition for the Jack-Larkin scramble. A tourney will start at the Manhattan moguls of Maul Decreed, immediately after December 18, and the survivor of the 13-man elimination will get first crack at the "title" from Jerseyan Larkin or Georgian Jack, whoever hits the jackpot two weeks from tonight.

It was this roundabout "rhubarb" that brought from Greene the assertion that General John J. Phelan, New York commission chairman, had broken the agreement he made with Greene a week ago.

The first of the 15-round elimination bouts will be held in one of New York's small clubs, the St. Nicholas rink, December 21, bringing together Cleo Shans of Los Angeles and Chester Rico of New York. The other 11 eligible to enter the tournament are Allie Stoltz of Newark, Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia, Richie Lemos and Juan Zurita of Los Angeles, Sluggie White of Baltimore, Willie Joyce of Gary, Ind., Joe Peralta of Tamaqua and Roman Alvarez, Terry Young, Carmine Fatta and Maxie Shapiro of New York.

CIO Denied Chance to Plug Negro Cause in Baseball

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Ten men from the Chicago CIO Council made an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to appear before a joint conference of the major leagues, with a request that baseball clubs hire Negro players.

Members of the committee, who identified themselves as members of the CIO labor organization, came to the meeting, officials of National and American League clubs were conferring with Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis. They telephoned a request to the Landis apartment for an audience and were advised to wait for a reply.

Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Landis, came out, and the delegation informed him that it would go before the Fair Employment Practices Committee of Congress if it wasn't admitted to the session.

"If you put it that way," O'Connor said, "I don't think you'll get in." Later he told them the answer was "No."

The group, one of them a Negro, then repaired to the press room and told reporters that they would write to Landis for an opportunity to present their case.

Homes to Be 'Lived In'

Hard-Wearing, Colorful Fabrics And Informal Furnishings Best

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: We have just bought a small house in Washington. It isn't an "important" house at all, nor does it have any special period atmosphere. We are going to recover floors and refinish walls and woodwork, and as we have three husky children we would like advice on what would stand the greatest amount of wear and tear and still be presentable for "grownups." We don't spoil our children, but we do like to have them live all over the house. We will be getting new dining room furniture, several new lamps and slip covers. Would appreciate your advice on best materials, wood finishes, fabrics and colors. K. H. R.

Answer—Your letter brings up many points that are of interest to innumerable people, and accents the fact that most of us these days wish a livable, usable, informal home. As far as your new furniture is concerned it may be of any wood, pine, maple, walnut, cherry or mahogany, but do not go in for a high "piano" finish on any of them. Select a wood and a style that goes well with your other possessions, that is informal in character, and use any one of the "antique" or "rubbed" or "natural" finishes which will stand wear and scratches and still look well. Lamps with pottery or metal bases stand hard wear also. In fabrics, avoid silks and satins and plain colors. Go in heavily for washable fabrics, the Colonial calicoes, cotton, small, all-over patterns and lots of color, or the heavy basket-weave cottons. Floor covering of linoleum in the children's rooms would be ideal. For other rooms, the textured cotton rugs or the old-fashioned braided rugs on the finished floors would be serviceable. Avoid pastel paint and too many ruffles. Stair rails and woodwork of natural finished wood, wherever possible, would be best. Next to that, an enamel finish that washes easily would be efficient. Use plenty of bright, warm color to set off the natural wood tones.

Dear Miss Nowell: We have a wedding check to invest in furniture. We had decided to get a break-front secretary and a writing desk, but there was nothing in between these two prices. We would hate to pay $200 if the furniture is only worth $100, yet the $60 piece did not seem to have the quality we were looking for. We would appreciate some information from you on why there should be this variance in price and what causes it. D. L. M.

Answer—This will get us into a long discussion on furniture making, but, briefly, "you get what you pay for." Your $60 piece is probably a small-size piece with all the usual proportions which manufacturers are turning out right now. It looks well and will give adequate service. On each detail of the $200 piece you will find the reason for the higher price. All joints are perfectly made and are matched exactly. Details of carving done by hand and all working parts smooth and polished. Muntins on the glass doors and hardware on drawers are carefully made and applied. An important piece of furniture is probably the intricate details, is the reason for extra cost at every point. These points are the ones which will make your furniture as pleasing to your grandchildren as it is to you. Possibly the war effort will explain the fact that there are no available pieces in the middle-price bracket right now. There is a great need for more expensively streamlined, well-designed furniture on the market which is adequate to furnish the modest home for the duration. There are also many luxury pieces ordered before restrictions were put into effect, still in the stores. But the greatest curtailment has been in the middle price field, where good furniture at reasonable cost will be missing until after the war.

Dear Miss Nowell: I am planning to use three fireplaces in my house this winter, but I find the screens and hearth tools which have been stored are very rusty. What is the best way to clean these and may they be repainted to freshen them up? If so, could regular black screen enamel be the proper paint? S. C. B.

Answer—Wipe the screens and tools with kerosene or turpentine to remove the light rust. If it is deeply rusted, you may need some steel wool. Suggest that you use black stove enamel rather than screen enamel. It is treated to resist heat and will last much longer on your fire screen.

Dear Miss Nowell: Recently we removed the finish from a walnut table with paint remover, and repainted it with two coats of enamel. Now lint, paper and everything else sticks to the surface. We have waxed it, but it does no good. Can you suggest any way that the finish may be hardened? T. W.

Answer—It is my guess that you failed to remove the paint remover with alcohol before repainting, and the residue of remover is softening the present enamel. The only course is to remove the paint again, counteract the remover with alcohol and start all over.

This 'Share-the-Car' Business Has More to It Than Meets the Eye

By Betsy Caswell

Women's News Editor

Judging by the bitter controversy that has been raging in letters "to the editor" in Washington newspapers, there is much more to this "share-the-car" business than at first meets the eye.

One group of letter writers maintains the fact that the owners of "big cars" won't stop to offer them a ride, even in the worst kind of weather. Another group, from the driver's point of view, insists rather sourly that they try to invite people to ride with them, and get a haughty and sometimes insolent refusal.

Then there is the car-pool argument. This bids fair to be a first-class breaker-upper of beautiful friendships. One member of the group has to stay and work late—the rest of the pool waits around. If the pool is a masculine one, and includes married men, doughnuts will yawn and wives give forth their wrath, as dinner dries up on the stove. Occupants of the doughnuts will cordially dislike the individual who led them there—and the cause of the trouble will be martyred because he had to relinquish. And because any extra nerve irritation should be avoided when we are all so tense and keyed-up, we suggest that perhaps if the drivers and the passengers would realize this dislike for dawn conversation is a very real thing and would refrain from infringing upon the other fellow's desire for meditation, the car-sharing picture would be a lot happier.

There would be plenty more rides given and taken if people kept their mouths shut in the early morning! And as for mixed car pools—well, it's tough enough for a man and wife to stay pleasant to each other after one member of the team has been kept waiting by the other. So what can you expect when casual acquaintances are confronted by the same situation?

But to get back to the "pickup rides" question. It seems, from reports, that women are to be congratulated for accepting a ride downtown with a lone man, even on the way to work in the dim and unromantic dawn. This is, perhaps, understandable. But to hear that a great many refuse to ride even when there is another woman—usually the driver's wife or sister—also in the car. That, it seems, is carrying caution too far. Such timid souls should be left without a claim to the exigencies of bus or streetcar.

Other young ladies are delighted to accept my invitation to a ride down town—but, we are told, repay the courtesy by such unethical performances as asking flocks of personal questions, trying to make a date with the driver, chewing gum loudly and annoyingly, smoking heavily with a great disregard for the burning cigarette ash and possible damage to upholstery, and talking a mile a minute the entire trip.

Men, too, are said to be guilty of too much talk, careless smoking and disregard for the car owner's feelings in various ways—but the consensus is that women are the greater offenders. This puts the feminine car-sharer in a mighty poor light.

There is no doubt about it that one of the greatest drawbacks toward giving strangers a lift is the fact that most people don't like a lot of chatter—especially early in the morning. Men, as a rule, are the silent lot at breakfast and for a time thereafter, and to have to make polite conversation is something that bids fair to spoil the whole day for them. If their passengers insist on chatter they seethe with resentment until the trip is ended. And the same thing holds good in the case of the quiet passenger. He is loath to accept a ride for fear that the driver of the car will invade his privacy with questions and upset his morning meditations with idle chit-chat.

Clean Oriental Rug

To clean an Oriental rug first beat it thoroughly then brush to remove all dirt. Rub with stiff brush dipped in warm soapsuds to which a little ammonia has been added, and rub dry with a soft cloth.

Why Grow Old Question Box

By Josephine Lowman

a. "I am 23 years old. As long as I can remember I have had puffs under my eyes. Can they be removed?"

Answer—Have a physical examination to see if there is any organic reason for them. Sleep lots, take exercises to whip up the circulation, get outdoors, avoid fatigue, don't cry (this will cause them), be sure you have no eye strain, don't bury your eye in a pillow at night, lubricate skin around them, don't smoke heavily and build up general health.

b. "Please give me a prescription for harmless hair bleach for my arms and legs."

Answer—Lemon juice or a mixture of six tablespoons of peroxide and one-half tablespoon of household ammonia.

c. "It is hard to find a bathing cap which will keep the water out while swimming. Do you suggest washing the hair after each swim? I go swimming about four times a week."

Answer—This frequent wetting of the hair is not good for it. Have your hair washed with a wide band of chamomile around the hair line, just under the edge of your cap. This is quite effective.

What's New in Town?

By Dorothy Murray

'Better a Dish of Herbs' . . .

With the housekeeper becoming more and more herb-conscious these days, offerings from a well-known herb farm are most timely. You may select some of these for your own use, but we urge you not to overlook their possibilities as gifts. There's a beautifully made pine shelf that holds eight jars of herb seasonings; boxed sets of herbs and herb vinegars with a copy of the booklet "ABC's of Herb Cooking"; a trio of vinegars complete with the booklet "Adventures in Herb Vinegars"; an ABC seasoning set of herbs blends for seasoning certain types of foods; a delicious herb tea and a mustard sauce that is "tops" in its field. These are all inexpensive—but oh! so useful and interesting!

A Pat on the Back . . .

Let "her" pat herself on the back, not for self-praise, but for beauty. The ladies on your shopping list will adore an attractive mitt filled with delightful dusting powder. It's moderately priced and comes in dainty colors with floral designs.

Smart Desk Set . . .

"Dress up" your office desk or the one in the library at home with an attractive five-piece set made of smart onyx. The set includes a pen with onyx base, a perpetual calendar, rocker blotter and letter opener, and the ensemble makes an excellent and practical gift that is not too costly. To "set off" this arrangement to best advantage, you might add a desk pad with fine leather corners.

Muffs for Moppets . . .

Little girls love fur almost as much as do their big sisters, so if you're wondering what to give a small tot, consider an adorable miff made in the form of a kitten or bunny. These come in several styles and colors, helping to keep tiny hands warm at the same time they're providing a thrill for fashion-minded kiddies.

On the Shelf . . .

Replace that is heavier, is waterproof and greatly resembles linoleum. It comes on a bolt, is about the width of the average shelf and available in a large variety of patterns.

'It's Wrong Not to Write' . . .

Style and quality are combined in a smart writing kit that would make an excellent gift for either a man or woman. Today, with almost every one writing more letters than ever before, it is almost necessary to own such an article. The set includes a batch of letter stationery that requires no envelopes, a blotter pad, pencil calendar, memo pad, stamp book and several roomy pockets in which letters may be placed until they are answered. Comes in blue and brown leather.

'Yankee Clipper' . . .

Inexpensive and practical is a sturdily built "streamlined" stapling gadget which holds a large supply of wire staples and is ready to use at a moment's notice. Keep one on your desk in a convenient spot and you'll have no trouble clipping important papers together.

Gentle Reminder . . .

An attractive wall plaque for the kitchen indicates such necessities as butter, flour, bread, etc. Opposite each word is a hole where a small peg may be placed, so that when the supply of a certain commodity gets low, you just put a peg in the hole opposite the name as a reminder to use when you make out your shopping list.

Set for Smokers . . .

Give the modern man a modernistic smoking stand for his very own. (Of course, we hope it goes well with the rest of your furniture, too.) Finished in light wood, it is patterned after a walking cane with a round base and holder for a glass ash tray. Has bamboo trim to add to its appearance.

Few of the Many Christmas Gift Suggestions Are Listed Today

By Helen Vogt

If you're planning to write a love letter to that man with the white beard and the red wool suit, we hope you won't mind if we look over your shoulder. We've been doing a little investigating of this Christmas gift business and, though space won't permit our going into detail, here's a list of some items that the weaker sex will welcome. More later.

LINGERIE: Make the "bridesmaids" very feminine, very silly this year. Lace-trimmed slips, gowns and panties are "tops," and black is a best seller. "Bridal" lingerie is a delight to every woman. Consider matched ensembles of negligee and gown, or a set of slip, panties, bra and gown in the same fabric and pattern. Look for new satin negligees, lace-trimmed, with short sleeves, elbow length. Very smart. Practical for fuel-rationed houses are flannelette gowns and pajamas with feet in them. (But not nearly as exciting as the filmy garments for Christmas giving.)

ROBES: Quilted satin robes still are among the best offerings, and this year they're available in black and navy for practicality's sake. Corduroy and flannel robes also are in the picture, very tailored and wearable. Not quite as utilitarian, but infinitely appealing, are the plushlike "furry" robes in white, pale pink and blue.

Finicky Appetite

Great Problem To Overcome

Most Children Go Through Stage; Be Diplomatic

By Lettice Lee Streett

Frequently a mother will become alarmed because she does not think her child is consuming the proper amounts of vitamins, minerals, proteins, carbohydrates and fats, or, rather, she has decided that his diet is inadequate, and so her anxiety reflects itself in her tone of voice, her expression and her handling of her contrary young one. Not eating becomes a problem in the household, the mother exaggerates the situation out of proportion to its true importance and the child either secretly relishes the excitement he causes or balks like a stubborn little mule because he becomes angry, too.

Hardly a child lives who has not gone through a finicky stage. Many look listlessly at custard, a dish she used to adore; she announces that eggs taste funny, she turns a disdainful small nose away from green vegetables, all the while slyly observing mother from beneath her long lashes. Bobby, for no apparent reason known to man, takes it into his head that tomatoes have little things in them that aren't good, he wrinkles his nose just enough to annoy his mother over string beans and shepherd's pie, sadly stating that the potatoes are "hard on top" and that Tom's mother always has ice cream every day.

This is the way children behave, at one time or another, the world over. The thing to do is to outsmart such children. Supposing your youngster suddenly dislikes milk. I would suggest that you surprise him by not offering him milk for a week or so. Pretend that you have forgotten all about it and entirely stop trying to entice him to drink. During this period include dishes like this in his diet:

Rice puddings, bread puddings, junket, cocoa puddings, desserts, cottage cheese, cream cheese, cereal cooked with milk, cream soups, potatoes, spaghetti and macaroni cooked in casserole with milk, creamed minced lamb, made with milk, is tasty.

Mothers never succeed in "making" a child drink milk or eat disliked food by any such obvious methods as begging, scolding, bribing, etc. A reward is often a good trick, but must be used very cautiously because the goal is to lessen the importance of milk drinking in the youngster's mind.

DAYTIME ACCESSORIES: Seen here and there, too, are the slightly less personal gifts than those listed above. Scarfs are excellent and you'll find them with patriotic designs, with monograms, whimsical prints and other "conversation touches." Fine plaid wool scarfs are selling well. Neckwear ranges from simple, unadorned dickeys in assorted colors to elaborate collars and vests, sequin studded and really beautiful. Hair ornaments include jeweled butterflys, flowers, felt bows sprinkled with applied felt dots in contrasting colors, velvet bows, birds and a few thousand other ideas to high light milady's tresses whether she is in dinner clothes or lounging slacks. Ornate hat pins, inexpensive and very smart, are coming back.

Lovely, Soft Suit Frock Pattern

1690-B

By Barbara Bell

When you want to look your very prettiest for him . . . rely on this soft suit! The jacket, lying at the waist, magically produces graceful curves at this point; the dickey fills in the neckline with flattering white, and the skirt flares gently.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1690-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, 19. Corresponding bust measurements, 29, 31, 33, 35, 37. Size 13 (31) jacket with three-quarter sleeves requires 1 1/2 yards 39-inch material, skirt and trim for jacket 2 yards, dickey, 3/4 yard.

For this attractive pattern send 15 cents, plus 1 cent for postage, in coins with your name, address, pattern number and size, wanted to Barbara Bell, Washington Star, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Gloves for day and evening are so magnificent that they deserve, and will get, more space than we can give them here. Purse, too, will get a going over in a future column. And jewelry, tops on the Christmas list, is so varied and so delectable that by now you probably are overwhelmed by the selection. As for us, we'll just take six pairs of nylons.

HOW MRS. SMITH BECAME A "GENERAL"

She's still plain "Mom" to the family. But the job she has now calls for some real generalship—and some mighty shrewd tactics.

For the whole family is busier now than ever. Busy doing things to help win the war—all sorts of things from real, productive jobs to salvage drives. And they're burning up lots of energy—more than in a long time.

But that doesn't stop General Mom! She knows that good bread is one of the best energy-foods, one of the first things to be added to the diet in extra-big quantities when hard-working folks come home clamoring for dinner.

And she has learned all about Schneider's Enriched Dan-Dee White Bread, which is delicious, inviting, flavorsome white bread—with some mighty important food factors added. Things like Vitamin B1, which is needed for normal appetite, and niacin and iron, all of which are called for the best of health.

Remember—Bread Is Basic—for good nutrition insist on Schneider's Enriched Dan-Dee White Bread.
