Flood Halts War Output In Pittsburgh

Rail, Highway Service Curtailed; Homes, Offices Inundated

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 30.—Several war plants were closed, hundreds of homes, stores and streets were flooded and rail and motor transportation was curtailed in the far-flung Pittsburgh industrial area today as rivers and streams overflowed their banks.

The floods swept down the Allegheny River north of Pittsburgh and moved down the Ohio River toward Ohio and West Virginia.

In Pittsburgh proper, waters rising 6 inches an hour flooded low-lying streets at the edge of the "Golden Triangle" business section, devastated by the big St. Patrick's Day flood of 1936. Firemen and civilian defense workers assisted families marooned in nearby communities. Red Cross relief committees evacuated families and began setting up mass feeding units.

36-Foot Crest Predicted.

The Ohio River stage at Pittsburgh, 32.4 at noon, was the highest for December in 100 years. A crest of at least 36 feet-11 above low flood stage-was predicted.

Curtailment of operations in industrial plants near the rivers left hundreds of workers idle. The newly-constructed American Bridge Co.'s yard at Leetsdale, near Pittsburgh, closed when Ohio River water reached the floor level. Another big plant closing was the Labelle works of Crucible Steel Co. in Pittsburgh

Some other factories feverishly moved vital materials and equipment out of the reach of the floodwaters.

Alabama Flood Routs Farmers; Death Toll 4

MOBILE. Ala., Dec. 30.-The bodies of two colored persons, both drowned as they attempted to drive cattle to safety, were found today in the flood waters of the Cahaba River near Centerville as rising streams sent scores of farm families from lowland homes in Central and Southwest Alabama.

Discovery of the bodies of Percy Wallace and Eugene Sanders brought the Alabama flood death toll to four. More than 100 families, most of them colored farmers, were being removed by boat from their homes along the Cahaba west of Selma. The Red Cross arranged for them until the flood subsides. Other streams in the mid-section of the State continued to rise, but no great damage was expected. In North Alabama freshet type streams already had subsided and larger rivers had begun to recede.

y the Associated Presi ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 30.—United States and British bombers and fighters, braving violent electrical and rain storms and severe icing conditions, have continued their day-and-night assault on important German communications lines and troop concentrations in Tunisia, it was disclosed today.

(Allied shelling of enemy positions in the hills northeast of Medjez-El-Bab was reported by the War Department today in a communique which also said forward patrols had inflicted casualties on Axis forces and taken some prisoners. The same communique also was issued at Allied headquarters in North Africa.)

Flying Fortresses with Lockheed P-38 escorts bombed the harbor and docks at Sousse yesterday, but were hampered by icing conditions which compelled one bomber to turn back after one crewman, on the pilot's orders, had bailed out over friendly territory.

(This reference was not further explained, but the bail-out order might have been intended to lighten the bomber in the hope it could then proceed on its mission.)

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superinendent of police, acting on instrucions from District Commissioner Young, today ordered all precinct commanders to require alleged blackout offenders hereafter to post the maximum collateral of $300 or a sum judged sufficient to compel the person cited to appear in court. The new order, it was pointed out, will end the practice of alleged blackout offenders' avoiding a court appearance by posting and forfeiting $5 or $10 collateral. It was Maj. Senator Austin On Radio Forum

Senator Austin of Vermont, assistant minority leader of the Senate, will speak in the National Radio Forum this evening on why it is necessary to work on a plan for peace while we are fighting a war. The Radio Forum is a Blue Network feature arranged by The Star and heard locally on Station WMAL at 10:15 p.m.

Senator Austin has been a vigorous supporter of the war effort and an outstanding advocate of preparedness before Pearl Harbor. He has also been a leader in the Senate in his advocacy of wise planning for the sort of peace that should follow victory in the war. His address this evening is significant in view of Vice President Wallace's outline of days ago.

Shipbuilders' President Says Deliveries Were Seven Times 1941 Output

By the Associated Press NEW YORK, Dec. 30 .- The American shipbuilding industry turned out in 1942 a record number of 750 merchant vessels, totaling 8,000,000 deadweight tons, to meet President Roosevelt's "blueprint for victory" goal, H. Gerrish Smith, president of the National Council of Shipbuilders, said yesterday.

Axis submarines have sunk 575 Allied and neutral cargo ships in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor in the Associated Press tabulation of announced sinkings.

Mr. Smith, saying his statement was approved by the Navy and Maritime Commission, asserted that shipbuilders, rising to meet the challenge of mass production, delivered more than seven times the output of 1941. when 1,088,497 tons were completed, and smashed all standards for monthly production. The industry built 125 merchant-

Would-be appeasers of Hitler were never assailed with half the invective employed in condemnation of any suspected of being willing to stop short of final, complete and permanent conquest of Japan. This attitude is not based mere vindictiveness - though most of our Pacific fighters hate the Jap with implacable, revengeful hatred. President Leaves Cut In Non-War Funds to Incoming Congress

Cites Difficulty of Classification; Starts On Messages Today

Responsibility for any drastic new slashes in Federal non-war expenditures is being left largely up to Congress by President Roosevelt

The President emphasized at his press conference yesterday that only Congress properly can say whether the financing of many ordinary activities of the Government is a necessary expense in time of war.

He pointed out, however, that there has been a steady and continuous cut during the last few years in Government expenses not directly related to the war, with more than a billion dollars saved last year. This type of steady chopping down on expenditures that can be decreased without eliminating essential functions will be continued, he said.

Queried on Budget Message. Mr. Roosevelt's press conference non-war expenditures.

He first remarked that he did not know how some people got that non-war expenditure

Asked specifically what might be done about reducing appropriations for the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, he said this involved a question of whether Congress wanted the administration to enstatute books for half a century.

The President said he believed that previous administrations have spent money for enforcement of these laws, some applying them vigorously and some leniently. He remarked that he was being mighty polite in saying this.

But if Congress now wants to keep the anti-trust laws on the books and not provide sufficient Congress.

Typical of their determination is an instance in another sector in which American troops which captured the area found one Jap operating eight machine guns by means of strings and wires rigged in a series.

The apparent delay in wresting this last portion of the old air strip from enemy hands is explained by the type of booty taken. It includes two 3-inch naval guns, one 37-millimeter cannon, two 13-millimeter anti-aircraft guns, two heavy and

Long before the days of Fascism. Italy was the foremost champion of fairer distribution of the world's resources. When a League of Nations was discussed in Paris at the end of World War I, the Italian delegation put forward a scheme for pooling raw materials. The proposal was then turned down. WLB Refuses to Order 7 Returned to Jobs In Detroif War Plant

Independent Union Officer Branded 'Irresponsible' For Calling 19 Strikes

The War Labor Board announced today it had refused unanimously to order reinstatement of seven workers at the Briggs Manufacturing Co.'s Connor Avenue plant in De-troit where the Mechanics Educational Society called a strike November 4.

The board approved the recommendations of a panel majority which condemned Matthew Smith, national secretary of the independent union, for "highly irresponsible and reprehensible" actions in calling the strike and a sympathy strike in 18 other Detroit war plants November 7. Mr. Smith also is head of the Confederated unions of America, a new organization of independent unions. In causing the strikes, the panel said, Mr. Smith was seeking to force he WLB to assist his union in obtaining negotiations with the Briggs management to circumvent the company's contract which gives exclusive bargaining rights to the CIO

The Treasury, it was learned authoritatively today, has ruled that the new victory tax must be withheld from all wages and salaries paid in January, even though part or all of the money was earned this month, or at any time in 1942. In other words, a man paid

Fulmer Unit to Probe Middleman Profits in Distribution of Food

U. S. Co-operatives Seen Means of Saving Money For Consumer, Farmer

Visualizing establishment of a federally financed marketing system through which consumers would pay less for their food and farmers would receive more, Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee said today the committee would undertake a study of the proposal shortly after Congress convenes next week

The investigation, Mr. Fulmer said, would be to determine how much of the Nation's food bill goes to "middlemen." Out of the probe probably would come recommendations for overhauling the entire marketing setup, he added,

"It is about time." Mr. Fulmer declared, "that the public was told who gets most of the money spent for food produced by our farmers. Too many people long have had the idea the farmer was getting the money, when as a matter of fact there has been a spread of as much as 200 per cent between the price a farmer received for his produce and the price the consumer paid."

Author Says Private Urged Her to Return To Army Post

By the Associated Press MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.-Ursula Parrott, the author, today took full responsibility in a press statement for helping Pvt. Michael Neely Bryant, former dance band musician leave an Army stockade, where he was being punished for going absent without leave.

Dear Friends:

It is an old Sherwood custom to pause at the end of each year to thank our neighbors and friends for the business they have given us. This year we have some special reasons to thank you one and all.

You have shown a fine cooperative spirit in helping meet the difficulties of Government rationing of gasoline and fuel oil, and I want you to know that this is greatly appreciated by our Betholine-Richfield Dealers and by the folks here in the Sherwood organization. You have made 1942 a better and more satisfying year than we might have expected under wartime conditions. In turn, each and every one of us will try to express his thanks during the New Year by keeping the standards of Sherwood products and Sherwood service as high as is humanly possible in these unusual times.

I could not close this message without a word of heartfelt appreciation to our Betholine-Richfield Dealers and their employees, as well as to every single member of our Sherwood organization. You folks who are responsible for the production, distribution, servicing and sale of Sherwood products have had some unusual and difficult problems to meet, and I am truly proud of the loyal, efficient, cheerful way in which you have met them. Your work has never been so important to your community and to your country as it is right now.

Collier Trophy

This week the Collier Trophy, awarded each year for the greatest achievement in aviation in America, was made jointly to the Army Air Forces and the Airlines of the United States.

It was presented by Vice-President Wallace, and reflects the appreciation of our allied nations for the work these two organizations did during the dark days of 1941, in supplying aircraft to strategic battlefronts.

This award takes on special significance at this time, because it brings to light the vision and foresight of the Congress of the United States and the Government in adopting years ago a long-range program to foster, develop and encourage civil aviation.

Such a program, under which the Airlines of the United States were developed to a degree of usefulness and efficiency unsurpassed anywhere else in the world, enabled them to be ready to help the Army solve one of the most difficult problems of the whole war.

Later, history may tell us that this service, webbing across continents and oceans, laid the foundation on which our ultimate victory was achieved.

The award takes note of the difficulties, hazards and hardships which surrounded the ferrying of bombers, men, munitions and materiel to the war fronts during a crisis in which every hour counted.

These air fleets brought life and hope over incredible distances. Inaccessible outposts, weakened by terrific onslaught, were made strong.

Since then, the Army Air Forces through the Air Transport Command, have extended into a world-wide service, flying planes, supplies, personnel and mail to the four corners of the earth . . . blazing new skyways in an effort to answer the critical problem of time and space.

In all of these activities the Airlines of the nation are grateful for the services which they have been able to contribute. They furnished the nucleus of the world's greatest pool of experienced pilots... all ready, able and willing to serve their country in any part of the globe. They are training mechanics, repairing and modifying aircraft, performing special missions.

Eastern Air Lines, together with all the other Airlines, is proud to have played a part in building this global system of air transportation and are pleased that this trophy was given jointly to the Army Air Forces and the Airlines... because the job could be done only by each organization working closely with the other.

In accepting these joint honors with the Army Air

Forces and other Airlines, Eastern is gratified that although many of its Silverliners were converted into Cargoliners to operate in this important service of Logistics, we have been able to continue regular schedules on our routes.

In this way essential transportation is being furnished on the home front to people engaged in war production—and for the rapid movement of materiel from the war production centers of the nation direct to the fighting fronts.

While we pause on the occasion of this award, to write a brief chapter in the history of the airplane in this global war, we would be woefully amiss if we failed to realize and appreciate that none of this would have been possible were it not for the loyalty, skill and determination in the hearts and souls of the men and women who build our planes—and our men who fly them!

For herein lies the reason why our planes are so superior in performance, safety and reliability . . . and why our service in both Tactics and Logistics is being so excellently performed.

But Who Is Right?

The Facility Review Committee of the War Production Board-an agency hitherto not heard fromhas halted all recreational development in the District on the general ground that such work detracts from the war effort.

The committee evidently is not concerned with the history of this development, what brought it about or what general purpose it will serve. Nor has it made any inquiry to determine whether the men and materials used in these jobs in the District are needed in some specific work more closely connected with the war effort. The committee is merely applying a general policy for the country at large.

But the arbitrary application of such a general policy to these particular undertakings in the District is peculiarly unfortunate. The Federal Government has taken many acres of recreational area in this crowded city as temporary building sites. Some of the work, now halted by WPB, was to provide substitute areas, financed by Federal appropriations made for that purpose. The need was carefully examined by the Federal Works Agency and the construction work scaled down to the use of men and machines in clearing and grading land. No "vital" materials were used.

The difficulty in dealing with a situation of this sort is in the fact that this Facility Review Committee of the WPB suddenly turns up in possession of a broad authority to stop anything it chooses to stop, without any consideration of the local conditions which made the work necessary, and without any responsibility to prove that its decision is the correct decision. If the Facility Review Committee could show that the men working on these projects, or their machines, are needed on some particular war job somewhere else and that the work they now are doing actually detracted from the war effort, it would have all the justification it needed for its orders. But the committee does not have to show anything of that sort, nor can it show anything of that sort. It merely says the work must stop, and It will involve delay to have its pronouncements changed or modified.

This is the sort of bureaucratic muddling that hampers, rather than aids, the war effort. It is merely another manifestation of the phenomenon which finds great numbers of men and agencies possessing almost unlimited authority to act, but none of them with the authority to step In and decide what acts are justified and what acts are merely the capricious notions of newly formed agencies looking for new worlds to

Great Event of 1942

Each year at Christmas the editors of the Associated Press carefully appraise the "big news" of the twelve-month period then closing. Their "selections" of important stories serviced during 1942 include: The American expedition to North Africa, the American offensive in the Pacific, the Russian counterattack, Japan's conquest of the Philippines, the Malay States, the Netherlands East Indies and Burma; the bombing of Tokio, April 18; wartime price controls, rationing, etc.; the Republican victories, November 3; the execution of six German saboteurs. August 8: the rescue of Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions, November 14; the Canadian raid on Dieppe, August 19; British and American aerial bombardment of Nazi Europe, and the Cocoanut Grove fire in Boston, November 28.

Among somewhat less impressive incidents considered by the experts were: The burning of the Normandie, the visit of Prime Minister Churchill to President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie's tour of the globe.

Of course, the Associated Press editors necessarily judge contemporary history as it comes to their hands. It is not within their province to make news or to attempt to alter the fundamental character of news when it has been made. They limit their comment to the evaluation of facts without regard to cause or effect. Beyond the boundaries of reality as it is demonstrated to them, they cannot go. For example: They know as well as any other group can know that the greatest story of 1942 is the story of the survival of civilization. The banner heading on their appraisal of the year very well might have read: "Axis Fails to Triumph Over United Nations." Looking back three centuries hence, it probably And of the pending cases, 60 per will be plain to observers that the most significant event of this present era of human experience is not what Hitler and his partners have done but rather what they have not been able to do. And much credit for the frustration of the Axis may be found to be due to the elemental nature of democracy. The free peoples of the earth may not be so conspicuously efficient as the Germans and the Japanese. It is conceivable that totalitarian criticism of the laissezfaire philosophy of the liberal communities is justified. What the tyrannical perfectionists have left out of account is the undaunted spiritual integrity of average men and women who have been measurably independent and self-sufficient in the ordinary routine of their lives.

If only one single truth about the past twelve months is remembered, it should be this: During 1942 freedom survived-because under God it deserved not to die.

After the War

The fact that Vice President Wallace consulted with the President before delivering his address in commemoration of Woodrow Wilson's birthday justifies the inference that the concept of a post-war world which he laid before the American people represents, at least in outline form, what the official peace program of the administration will be. And since that is the case, it merits careful consideration.

Mr. Wallace, at the outset, avoids one dangerous error. It has been the practice of many commentators to blame the failure of this country to adhere to the League of Nations on a small band of Senators motivated by their personal dislike of President Wilson, and to ignore the attitude of the people. But Mr. Wallace does not make this mistake. "Unfortunately," he said, speaking of Mr. Wilson's failure, "the people of the United States were not ready (for the League)." It is important to recognize this fact, for any settlement which follows this war, and which involves the assumption of new responsibilities by the United States, will have to be "sold" to the people. To take for granted that the people as a whole are, or automatically will be, ready to shoulder new burdens when peace comes would be merely to invite another Explaining that it is not possible now to "blueprint all the details." Mr. Wallace gave a general picture of the "new democracy" which he hopes will materialize after the war. "It will be," he said, "an adventure in sharing-sharing of duties and responsibilities and sharing of the joy that can come from the giveand-take of human contacts and fruitful daily living." A first step would be the setting up of machinery for the disarmament, presumably permanent, of those who would break the peace, and for the prevention of economic warfare. "Probably," he added, "there will have to be an international court to make decisions in cases of dispute. And an international court presupposes some kind of world council, so that whatever world system evolves will have enough flexibility to meet changing circumstances as they arise.

As Mr. Wallace himself pointed out, this is the sketchiest of outlines. Perhaps, as he suggests, it would serve to prevent the rise of Adolf Hitlers of the future, but there is nothing in the blueprint to indicate, for example, how a decision in a dispute between powers now friendly would be enforced. Without regard to the non-participation of the United States, the great weakness of the League of Nations was the absence of any effective means of enforcing League decisions when they happened to run counter to the interests of any of the major signatory powers, and we must assume that the same problem will arise to plague any world council or international court which may be set up after this war. If such an agency is to be at all effective in adjudicating and regulating conflicts of interest it will need the machinery and the power to enforce its decisions. And if human experience teaches anything it is that the joy of sharing duties and responsibilities is a poor substitute for force when the selfish interest of an individual or a nation collides with a policy designed to serve the common good.

From the American viewpoint, this question of the nature and function of an international police force in the post-war settlement is apt to be a dominant consideration. Thus, while it is useful, as Mr. Wallace suggests, at least to begin now to consider the questions pertaining to individual freedom and economic security after the war, it also is essential that we not neglect consideration of some of the grimmer problems which will arise with the cessation of hostilities.

Municipal Court Report

Chief Judge George P. Barse and his associates have reason to take pride in the showing of Municipal Court since the reconstituted tribunal, combining the functions of the old Police and Municipal Courts, began to operate early in July. Reporting to Attorney General Biddle, the chief judge recalls that the Attorney General had expressed the desire that the new court give first attention to clearing up the backlog of criminal jury cases, then numbering 889. Just how well this task was discharged may be judged from the fact that but 196 cases were pending December 1, while in the five-month interval, 1,731 had been disposed of, including several hunfrom the vantage point of two or dred that arose during that time.

cent were assigned for trial when the report was completed. Under the practice instituted when the court was set up, Chief Judge Barse explains, demand for jury trial is followed by immediate assignment on a definite future date, ranging from three days to a month. This schedule has been adhered to rigidly, and as a result, the criminal jury calendar is current.

In addition, the court has been keeping abreast of the non-jury criminal cases, and of the civil actions, as well as other business.

"The foregoing results," Chief Judge Barse says, "could not have been accomplished without the wholehearted co-operation and the persistent efforts of all of the judges of the court and of the prosecutorsthe United States attorney and the corporation counsel and their assistants and the clerk of the court and his assistants."

Leaders of the bar and bench here had expressed the conviction that the new Municipal Court and Municipal Court of Appeals would work a material improvement in court procedure here. The record justifies that belief.

Rewelding Free France

General Charles de Gaulle's pronouncement to his compatriots everywhere, praising General Giraud and calling for united action against the Axis, is a hopeful portent that the deep rifts which have divided Frenchmen for the past two and one-half years may be bridged over at least provisionally in a common effort against the common enemy Yet facile optimism should not blind outside observers to the difficulties inherent in the undertaking. In the first place, it should be remembered that, long before the technical unity of France and its colonial empire was shattered by the armistice with the Axis in June, 1940, the spiritual unity of France had been undermined by bitter political and ideological feuds which reduced the country to a state of latent civil war and played a major part in the tragic collapse and disintegration that followed the German invasion. Indeed, it is probable that if France had not been spiritually disunited the disintegrating collapse would not have occurred.

The first open schism was that between General de Gaulle and the new regime established at Vichy under Marshal Petain. De Gaulle and his followers took the position that the Armistice was illegal and the Vichy regime a mere usurpation. For them, the Third Republic remained constitutionally intact, and all else was null and void. Hence, they claimed to represent the true France, even though their status was not achieved by constitutional methods.

However, the Free (later "Fighting") French movement did not gain much momentum. It won out only in minor sections of the colonies, such as Equitorial Africa and the South Pacific. Most of the empire followed the homeland in yielding allegiance to Marshal Petain and his Vichy regime. At the start, this regime was quite solidly based. But, as time went on, it was morally undermined by the combined pressure of the Allies and of the Axis. Petain's hope of standing aloof from the war faded as the Axis demanded greater "collaboration" which, in turn, led Britain and America to take increasingly extreme measures to protect themselves against a Vichy "neutrality" that was becoming more and more unneutral. Those combined pressures caused a further disintegration within the Vichy regime itself. At home, public opinion was progressively alienated, while the colonies began to split off in autonomous fragments like the French West Indies under Admiral Robert and the interned fleet at Alexandria, Egypt, with allegiance neither to Vichy nor to De Gaulle. The schism of French North Africa under Admiral Darlan, precipitated by the landing of an Allied army of occupation, was thus a further stage in a process already well under way.

However, all these later schisms derive from Vichy and are led by men who originally accepted Marshal Petain and his regime. They all were hostile to De Gaulle and they reject his claim of being the true representative of a Third Republic that still theoretically exists. It is most unlikely that these schismatics will subordinate themselves to De Gaulle and his Fighting French movement. But the Fighting French, on their side, are equally disinclined to abandon their principles and subordinate themselves to men whom they regard as time-servers or even as traitors. The problem thus is deep-going from both the political and ideological aspects. The most hopeful factor is General Giraud, now head of the provisional regime in French Africa, who has the respect of all factions and has been identified politically with none. But Giraud is the one personality who thus stands "above the battle." The others are all compromised in one way or another. How they can be welded into an effective unity remains to be seen.

The other services admittedly are wonderful, but the Marines have an advantage over them in the glorious words and music of "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli."

People complaining about three days of rain ought to be glad that what is falling out of the sky is not frozen.

Now is the time for at least a few old-timers to observe once more: "Resolutions? Yes, we make them, not to keep them but to break them."

Russians Advancing On 250-Mile Front

Hitler Seen Threatened With Loss of Caucasian And Stalingrad Armies

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. The development of the Russian offensive on both sides of the Don is now beginning to make a somewhat clearer strategical pattern on the map than was the case in its earlier stages. East of the Don the general axis of direction of the Russian advance appears to be southwestward along the Stalingrad-Rostov railway. Here the Russians are approaching the German stronghold of Kotelnikovsky and have by-passed this point on both sides of the railway. East of the railway Russian advance elements must now be in contact with the Germans in the vicinity of Elista. This latter German force is probably a flank guard for the German offensive directed toward the Grozny oil fields which has for sometime been halted in the vicinity of Nalchik. There are some suggestions of a German withdrawal from Nalchik. and the Russian threat to the flanking position at Elista may be one of the reasons for this.

West of the Don, the Russians appear to be pushing south on a broad front and to have completely surrounded, save for a single line of railway, the German garrison at Millerovo. Here again the eastern flank of the Russian advance appears to be moving faster, its armored advance guards having already reached the main east and west railroad from Stalingrad to the Donetz basin.

As for the German Army in the Stalingrad region itself, this force has no rail connection which is now open and appears to be receiving its supplies partly by air and partly by road through a corridor about 50 miles wide between the two main arms of the Russian offensive. This corridor is gradually closing as the Russians extend and consolidate their gains. As the weather grows worse, it becomes less and less adequate for the purpose of supplying the trapped Germans and more and more subject to Russian raids as the superior Russian winter mobility takes effect.

The Russian offensive now takes on the character of a broad general advance astride the Don River on a front of about 250 miles and it is obvious that it involves the use of very large reserve forces which have been held back until the precise moment had arrived for their employment. The Russian superiority in mobile artillery is even greater than it was last winter, but the excellence and strength of their tank equipment comes as something of a surprise and it is clear that the Russians have been hoarding this material all year and training troops in its use in order to make the most effective possible employment of it at a strategic moment. It is, in fact, almost impossible to give sufficient praise to the sound strategical judgment and moral courage displayed by the Russian high command in accepting the tremendous risks of withdrawal from so much territory and of holding on at Stalingrad with the bare minimum of force necessary for the purpose until the time had come for their great counter stroke, which is now in progress.

On the basis of this record it can be stated categorically that as a supreme commander, that great military genius, Adolph Hitler about whose military capacities we were told so much when he assumed personal command of the German armed forces last December, has been completely outgeneraled by his Russian opponents and is now face to face with a situation which must be painful to him indeed.

With each day that passes the danger of complete loss of his Stalingrad and he states has been taking place during Caucasian armies increases. With each day that passes, such capable generals as he may have who still dare to offer him unpalatable advice must be urging upon him the necessity for beginning a general withdrawal of all the German troops beyond the Don. But to do this would be an acknowledgement of defeat; to do this would be to admit to the world that Shaposhnikov, Zhukov and Timoshenko are greater generals than Hitler. It is an acknowledgement therefore, which Hitler seems unable to bring himself to make, but with each day that he delays it, he is risking having to make the even more damning admission of his military incapacity which would result, if the jaws of the Russian trap snap shut on the crossings of the lower Don leaving 80 odd Axis divisions to face the choice between death or surrender

Improvements at Circle Called for to Save Lives.

To the Editor of The Star:

Conditions at the bus loading station at Barney Circle during the rush hours are so deplorable that something should be done about them immediately

The situation is bad at the start be cause, since there is a double line of buses, it is necessary for people boarding the outer line to stand in the middle of the street, crossing in front of the buses driving up next to the curb. There is no loading platform, nor even a safety zone marked to keep the crowds within bounds. Drivers have to watch out constantly for people darting in front of them or being pushed by the crowds into their path. Much worse than this, however, is the pushing, shoving and fighting that goes on among those boarding the buses. The disgraceful exhibition of selfishness, disregard for the rights and safety of others and plain bad manners that goes on every morning and evening during the rush hours hardly can be described to any one who has not experienced it. About half of the crowd are natural-born shovers who apparently have had no upbringing to start with, and the remainder push because they have to. The task of getting on a bus under such conditions is an ordeal for a strong person in good health; one wonders how the elderly and less robust people can stand it, and how long it will be before some of them are knocked over in the rush and trampled to death. Immediate steps should be taken, first, to mark a safety zone in the street to protect those waiting for buses, and, second, to detail policemen or employes of the bus companies to handle the crowds. This should be done before some unfortunate is run over or knocked down and possibly killed by the crowds.

There are always a few left, and these come to our bird feeding station, being the very first to arrive on cold snowy mornings. "The other day other members of the

"The result was a series of tracks almost as if made by a giant walking in a straight line across the yard. "I have often wondered how the squirrels get something to eat in the snow. According to my observations, the gray squirrels of this vicinity are not at all provident. They do not lay up food for the winter season, as the proverb has it. "In communities where very little bird feeding is carried on, the squirrels as well as the birds must be hard put to it to find anything to eat. "It is always helpful when people put out grains and bread for the birds, since the squirrels also will eat them. I mean the grains. Usually they do not care for bread. "When snow is on the ground the quail come in from the farms and at times will eat with the songsters at our feeding station. Mostly they scurry around under shrubs and hedges. What they find to eat there I do not know. "Sincerely yours, T. V. B."

It is the red squirrel, not found hereabouts, which gathers food for the winter. These red ones are much more intelligent than the ordinary gray form of this vicinity. They also are meaner. Out in the West and Middle West, where they abound, many persons tell of their intelligence.

One way they show it is to load their nests with food, particularly nuts and acorns

The gray forms found hereabouts live in the trees in winter, but are not particular about nests. They do not store away food, but depend upon what they have hidden in the ground. When snow is deep it prevents them from getting to the buried food. So they go hungry.

Usually the first reaction of the owner after putting up a bird feeding station is to try to run the squirrels away. In time he comes to see that they are as much a part of his home outdoor scene as the hirds. He stops trying to invent "squirrel-proof" feeding stations. He permits the rodents to win. They are cousins to the rat, it is true, but possess traits which set them far apart from their harmful relatives. Despite much study, very little has been dug up against the squirrel.

Ordinarily it minds its own business very well. If we let it alone it will let us alone. This is more than can be said for many creatures nowadays, both two-legged and four-legged.

* * * * Only those persons who feed the birds and squirrels every day and who thus watch them constantly, know how the squirrel population of a given garden falls off during a heavy snow.

Whereas before the snow there may have been as many as a dozen festive rodents, after the ground is covered to a depth of several inches there will not be more than one or two. The remainder are up in the trees, hanging desperately to a limb until the snow melts. They could come down if they wanted to, but most of them do not want to. They like trees, above everything on earth, and hate getting wet even more than a cat does.

Occasionally a squirrel will descend to the ground, but his tail will be limp and bedraggled and he will scurry back to his refuge as fast as he can, and that is pretty fast. * * * *

The tracks left by various animals in the snow are always of great interest to nature lovers.

Since the earliest days, such tracks have excited men, not only because they pointed to the presence of game and showed exactly where the animals had gone, but also by reason of their beauty Something about the impressions, with their varying patterns, is intriguing to the mind of man.

It is, of course, pattern. Pattern, or design, is something which came into existence when God first made the world. It came with the snowflakes, and with the boughs of trees and the arrangement of spines and other parts of the body. Two eyes, two ears, two hands and so on-these are all part of the great universal design. The animal track in the snow shows the acute observer not only which way the animal went, but what the animal is. Often on otherwise unbroken expanses of snowy field the tracks of some animal offer a beautiful and fascinating picture.

and Toulon. He replied: "Of course not. Why should I?" That was the attitude of all press and radio commentators though they believed unreservedly in Darlan's treason! The rest of the world drew a different conclusion from the same major premise: Because we believed unreservedly in Darlan's treachery we were absolutely certain that all fleet units in Vichy custody were subject to Hitler's call. The behavior of the French sailors in Toulon Harbor falsified both conclusion and premise. We had erred because of our inability to distinguish between a belief in Nazi invincibility and a wish for a Nazi victory. Often, the two states of mind would produce identical behavior reactions. Yet we persisted in our condemnation of the man who had the French Navy at his absolute disposal. It is conceded that Admiral Darlan was an "opportunist." Has our condemnation of that trait been particularly bitter because it never is exhibited by our own public servants? Or, is it the result of the operation of a defense mechanism-like Satan's denunciation

Until the character and conduct of Darlan can be viewed objectively in the clear cold light of proved facts we emphatically should reject any evaluation that does not give due preponderance to the admiral's actions as the supreme head of the French Navy.

The rejoicing over Admiral Darlan's death has been as indecent as the official apologies for Gen. Eisenhower's action were silly and unnecessary. The leaders of the Fighting French simply blinded themselves to the fact that after 125,000 French soldiers chose their own leader, it would have been a futile impertinence for us to have said: "Discard Darlan and take another or else * * *"

The introversion of those who criticized our method of enlisting the French African army in our cause is shown by their complete disregard of the fact that their attitude had the warm approval of all our Axis enemies. HOWARD PITCHER OKIE.

Rear Guard Action May Provide Time To Bolster Defenses

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Absorbed as Americans are in the European phases of the war, little attention has been paid to the strategy whereby Japan hopes either - to win the Pacific war or at least to force a stalemate. The Japanese strategy is the subject of much speculation hereabouts, and it is interesting to note that many observers here about the same guard action. Only such a plan explains why such heavy naval and air forces have been used up on such comparatively minor places as Buna and the Tulagi area of the Solomons. The Japanese have hoped to keep the American Fleet and our marines occupied in the islands and zones east and southeast of New Guinea while the main Japanese strength is concentrated in a line of airfields stretching from the Dutch East Indies to the Gilbert and Marshall Islands in mid-Pacific.

The Japanese already have many airfields from which they can operate land-based aircraft against our approaching naval forces. Judging by the length of time consumed in the Tulagi operation-nearly five months-and in the mopping up of the Buna area in New Guineajust about as long-the Japanese are counting on just such a slow campaign on the part of the American Government, which has the principal responsibility for what is to develop offensively and defensively in the Pacific Ocean.

Kiska Feint Failed.

The Kiska operation in the vicinity of the Aleutians is now viewed as having been part of the same major strategy of the Japanese, to immobilize American planes and ships in a part of the world far removed from the main Japanese possessions and conquered areas. The United States chieftains failed to fall for the stratagem and yet did manage to render the Japanese occupation of Kiska valueless.

A press dispatch from Australia by Jack Turcott, which was passed by the censors there, gives what appears to be a well-informed discussion of the Japanese strategy.

"The most striking feature of the enemy's aerial plan is the fact that he has bases within 700 miles of every Allied outpost in the Southwest Pacific, giving Jap pilots easy bombing range.

"Timor provides an excellent illustration of the enemy strategy. The Japs are secure in Timor so long as the American Fleet is kept tied to the Solomons, since the United Nations could not undertake an invasion of Timor from Australia without a powerful task force for the crossing of the more than 400 miles of the Arafura and Timor Seas. "It is true that the Allied bombers have been delivering steady blows against the Timor airfields but damaged runways are repairable within a few hours and planes destroyed on the ground are replaceable within the same time from neighboring bases. An invasion like that of Guadalcanal is the only means by which the Allies can take an enemy base and that requires naval strength which we do not For France and Reich

Weaken Distant Posts. "And as a result the Japs, finding It unnecessary to maintain large aerial and naval forces around Singapore, Java, Sumatra, Borneo, the Moluccas and the Philippines because the Allies lack bases from which to attack them, are able to concentrate warships throughout the New Britain-Bismarck area, keeping our Solomons naval units and our Southwest Pacific air forces armies captured Paris in 1940, was actions which do not materially affect Japan's position." The foregoing reflects an analysis obtainable here among experts who follow the Pacific situation closely and it indicates clearly that if the United States is to keep on considering the Japanese war as a secondary affair the Japanese will use all the available time to build up their line of air bases so as to utilize their resources intensively behind that line. Their shipping can go unmolested in large part to and from the conquered ports in the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines. The Japanese fleet-all of which is in the Pacific, whereas our fleet is necessarily occupied in large part in the Atlantic-can protect the. sea lanes between the conquered areas and the Japanese mainland.

At a time when we need more food than ever in our history, farms are closing down by the tens of thousands. Dairy cattle are being slaughtered in droves. A widespread Axis plot could not accomplish as effective sabotage as follows from failing energetically to deal with the needs of farmers.

I spent the Christmas holidays in a rural New England community. Within the last months two splendid and productive farms, within two miles on either side of my farm, have been dismantled. One is a 500acre farm with a new $10,000 barn that normally supports 50 head of dairy cattle. Today there is not a cow on the place. The other is a 200-acre dairy and general farm occupied for 40 years by the same family. It was sold this winter and all the equipment auctioned. In our town there are normally three carpenters. On them the farmers depend for the repair work now more than ever essential, since there is a shortage of materials. All have left us, to work in defense plants.

True, prices are high. But they still do not produce sufficient income to enable the farmer to compete for workers with the war industries. The most incompe tent hired man can move to the nearest industrial center and, at some automatic process requiring less skill and manual effort than the manifold skills of the farm, earn an income the payment of which by a farmer

Wallace's Talk Monday Night Called Fine Speech; Friends Warned Not to Spoil It by Overpraise

By FRANK R. KENT. pletely victori-

total disarmament of the enemy; which we will be confronted. second, a cooling-off period, devoted to solving the major problems after deliberate study by competent men. This makes sense. But now thought has been further stimulated by the Monday night address of Vice President Wallace. which has the advantage of a predelivery approval by Mr. Roosevelt and the facilities for distribution of the Office of War Information.

Incidentally, the OWI is still distributing the last summer's spech of Mr. Wallace, which some of his more unrestrained admirers likened to the unwisely tried to make Mr. Wallace posals he now advocates. appear to be a second Lincoln, succeeding only to make him appear

Now they, themselves, are in a plight. Having exhausted their superlatives in laudation of the first speech and eulogized Mr. Wallace By the Associated Press. as a superstatesman with an inspired vision, they will find themselves at a loss adequately to treat this latest speech, which is very much better in every way.

The contrast between the two speeches is, in fact, very marked, not that they do not go in the same general direction but that they are gaining election conducted by the otherwise as differently constituted National Labor Relations Board and phrased as if they had been were announced last night by John written by different men,

It is interesting, indeed, to note the effect of the criticism of Mr. Wallace's first post-war planning address upon his second. There could hardly be a better example of how well-directed criticism makes for improvement—in this case not only in style and phraseology but in thought.

That it was the criticism that made the change is attested by the fact that Mr. Wallace himself takes note of it in his most recent utterance, repating the phrases of sentimentalism," "vagueness" and "utopianism."

In his most recent utterance, there is no "soggy sentimentality" and nothing at all vague. On the Workers of America the third.

> Apparently he has profited not only by criticism but by reading the great speech of Secretary of State Hull delivered last July. Apparently, too, he has been reading the various magazine articles and columns treating of post-war problems.

In other words, Mr. Wallace has neither ignored his critics nor disregarded their criticism. Instead he appears honestly to have profited by them, which is not only disarming but illuminating.

The small man adopts a different method. He refuses to let in the light, declines to concede that any just fault could be found with him, falls back upon his yes men and greasers to confirm his opinion of his own nobility and greatness. Mr. Wallace did nothing of the sort. As a result, he has made a really fine speech

It is to be hoped that Mr. Wallace's overardent friends do not spoil this really good speech as they did his first one by overpraise.

That will be unfair to Mr. Wallace for two reasons. First, every man suffers soon or late from overpraise; second, if too much is made of this speech it will give rise again to the suspicion that, in the midst of a war he and his friends are conducting a Wallace-for-President campaign.

That would be unfortunate. Certainly, it would detract from the Gettysburg Address and somewhat beneficial effects of the sound pro-

U. S. May Assume Full North Africa Rule; De Gaulle-Giraud Meeting Delayed

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The North African political waters remain troubled despite optimistic reports about the pending reconciliation between the Fighting French and those in North Africa. The possibility of further complications has become such that certain quarters would not be surprised if the United States decided to cut the Constantine Brown. knot by assuming full control of the entire area until the end of the war, when the North African empire can be handed back to a government elected by the freed people of France. The meeting between Gen.

Charles de Gaulle and Gen.

Henri Honore Giraud, the new high commissioner and commander in chief in North Africa, will not take place until after Gen. Giraud has formed his cabinet and established his new government. It appears that while the governors in Morocco, Algeria and Senegal have pledged themselves to co-operate unrestrictedly with the Allies they would oppose the presence of Gen. de Gaulle in any kind of administrative job in, North Africa. Gen. Giraud himself is willing to go along with Gen. de Gaulle and is considering giving the leader of the Fighting French a military job with the battling forces.

But he is reported reluctant to offer De Gaulle any other position except in a military capacity compatible with his military experience.

Whether Gen. de Gaulle will be willing to yield political ambitions and accept a subordinate position such as commander of a tank division, remains to be seen.

London Backers Concerned. In the meantime, however, there is much concern over what reaction the Fighting French leader and his backers in London will have when Gen. de Gaulle realizes that his role in North is said to have objected strongly to the broadcasts from both these stations, which are considered by the Americans in North Africa as likely to jeopardize our war effort.

For the time being the powerful British wireless stations at Akkra-southeast of Dakar-and the Fighting French station at Brazzaville are reported to be "shooting" at the unsatisfactory situation in North Africa.

Lt. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower

Should there be a further delay in the improvement of relations as regards Gen. de Gaulle and the present North African setup there is a possibility that the United States will become the official trustee of the North African Colonial Empire in order to avoid unpleasant complications which might play into the hands of the Nazis.

Confidence in Roosevelt. The French governors of North Africa have full confidence in the pledge given them by President Roosevelt that the status of France's North African possessions would not change at the end of the war.

But, rightly or wrongly, they look with suspicion on Great Britain and Gen. de Gaulle, whom they describe as too strongly identified with British interests.

But it is an open secret that there are strong suspicions among these Frenchmen that if France emerges greatly weakened from the war-which is inevitable-Great Britain may desire to take over at least Morocco and Tunisia which are neither French colonies nor possessions. They are French protectorates under nominal, native rulers.

But even if the two protectorates were to remain under French overlordship, the French in North Africa believe that Great Britain may ask the privilege of using Oran. Mers-el-Kebir and Bizerte as naval and air bases in order to have complete control over the lines of communication between the Atlantic Ocean and the Indian Ocean. This the French are determined to oppose.

Intentions Suspected.

They suspect that such may be the intention of Great Britain, on the theory that after this war the British must try to prevent a repetition of their present difficulties in controlling the Mediterranean. They can avoid future troubles if they possess a number of bases along the entire southern shore of the Mediterranean. And the fact that the British government insists on having an important mission of civilian, political and economic experts in North Africa tends to strengthen the suspicions of the French. Up to now we have managed to avoid sending such a mission to Algiers. There are a number of British officials in the capital of North Africa, but they are all on the staff of Gen. Eisenhower and are nominally under his orders.

London, however, is insisting that since there is a British army in North Africa it is logical that there should be a British mission there also to assure communications, supplies and the many other requirements of a nonmilitary nature which are correlated with a military expedition. The American Government would have no reason to object to the opposition of the French themselves, who cannot overcome their suspicion of the British in regard to future plans of the region. The point of view held in responsible official quarters in Washington is that we are in Africa to defeat the Nazis and for no other reason

The administration does not share the suspicions of the French. But since it looks on the African campaign as a purely military matter it hopes that the British will take our viewpoint and avoid further complications by not insisting on civil "experts" in an area where those responsible for its administration do not want them.

McLemore-

Picks Red Tape Garb For Costume Ball

By HENRY McLEMORE.

Unless the Governor comes through with a reprieve, or there is presidential intervention, I am going to have to go to a costume party on New dressing for this My dread of costumes, other than the standard O'Jones pre-

Henry McLemore, scribed for the male frame by Hart Schaffner & Marx, started when I was a child and custom forced me to dress for Halloween.

I sometimes feel that the growth of the Ku Klux Klan in the South was chiefly due to the Southern habit of wrapping children up in sheets on Allhallow eve and sending them forth in bands to play at terrorizing the neighborhood. Many of the children never lost their love for being hooded in percale and unbleached muslin, and, upon growing up, joined the Klan to not only get a sheet to drape themselves in, but a pillow slip to pull over their heads as well Personally, I hated playing at ghosts. Not that I didn't. wandered over half the towns of Georgia, giving off falsetto squeaks, running into trees and lampposts, banging my shins against fences, and generally acting like an adolescent without the gift of seeing through a sheet, which I couldn't. Mister Five-by-Five.

When I outgrew sheets and Haloween masquerade, I advanced to what is known as the "tacky" party. My teen-age period was filled with these events, at which the idea is to look just as ill-dressed as possible. I did fairly well at thesemy trophy room today is filled with prizes I won-because my taste never has been too good, and at the time I was attending "tacky" parties my wardrobe consisted almost entirely of cut-on-the-bias hand-medowns

As I grew in stature to become what I am today-Mister Five-byfive-I started attending the regular, or grownup, costume party. You know the ones I mean-the ones where every one is either Pierrot or Pierrette, a gypsy or a Spaniard, a hobo or a farmer, a little Dutch girl or a kid.

This is just the kind I must attend on New Year eve. There will be masking, of course, with everyone trying to pretend he can't recogn nize his next door neighbors. Fortunately, the masking doesn't last long because no one has ever perfected an itch-proof mask or one that didn't fall down over the eyes and nose, shutting off vision or completely and seriously threatening the important process of breathing, Same Winners Always. First prize for the best costume always goes to the same couplethe couple that takes costume parties seriously and rents expensive get-ups. Everyone resents the prize winners. They start getting smug, and wondering what the prize will be as soon as they come in the door and get a look at the homemade costumes with which they have to compete. A standard prize winner is the Romeo and Juliet couple. They have no trouble beating the average amateur outfit which was stitched up on the sewing machine on the day of the party. Once I had the pleasure of seeing a Romeo and Juliet couple get beaten. They lost to a Cyrano de Bergerac and an Aunt Jemima. The two couples, dear friends before that, have been very cool ever since.

dreamy look in my eyes I'm going to carry a quart of milk in my hand and go as Henry Wallace. If I can't do that I may just dress up as a typical jerk and go as James C. Petrillo. No, on second thought, not even to win first prize would I go as James C. Petrillo. The chances are I'll just wind myself all up in red tape and go as Washington, D. C. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

I haven't made up my mind as

Ellis, of New Bedford, Mass., was convalescing at Mare Island Navy hospital here. Pvt. Ellis told this story: He was among the first marines to land on Guadalcanal. They had to leave all their personal equipment aboard ship. He took his wrist watch-his folks had given it to him when he enlisted—and stuck it in his bedroll. Subsequently this bedroll, with other equipment, was dumped on the bank of a river. Pvt. Ellis believes a Jap raiding party made a foray through the marine lines—there was considerable fighting then-and stole the equipment, and his watch. The Jap who got the watch later was killed by

Pvt. Ellis suffered from shellshock when bombs dropped only a few feet from him. He now is feeling fit.

Hollywood Calls Hepburn, She'll Cut Short Hit Play

'Without Love' to Close In February as Star Meets Studio Request

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

Katharine Hepburn, bless her little independent heart, is causing the New York Theater Guild plenty of grief, not relieved by doses of aspirin. Specifically, Katie will close her hit play, "Without Love," while it is selling out on Broadway. Closing date is February 13, so La Hepburn can answer the call to Hollywood.

Of course, it makes Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Languer, coadministrators of the guild, per- *

RKO immediately dispatched a contract calling for $800 a week, thinking a beginner would snatch it forthwith. Not Katharine. It was $1.500 or nothing. Picture was ready to shoot before the company capitulated. Her family thought she was crazy to risk this initial chance, but Katharine told me she had fixed $1,500 as her contract salary, felt she would get it.

On the other hand Miss Katharine can do many gracious things. When she was making "Stage Door" with Ginger Rogers on the RKO lot, the set was "closed," meaning no visitors. Yet she opened the door for this correspondent, welcomed him to the shooting. Furthermore she instructed Herman Bernstein, her personal manager, to arrange that her visitor have good seats to see the Lunts in "Amphitryon" in San Francisco. In Washington, barring the first Union Station fiasco, she has always been most considerate and thoughtful to drama editors.

Star Hopes to Bring-Troops in Solomons Touch of Hollywood

By SHIELAH GRAHAM,

HOLLYWOOD.-Cary Grant spent the holidays organizing a group of top film stars to journey to the Solomons to entertain the boys who are fighting the Japs. I was talking to a young flying officer, just returned from there, and he agrees with Cary that it would be a splendid idea to get a little film glamour into Solomons. It would give the boys the idea that they are not forgotten. Grant, who is 39, and considered too old for combat service, and with enlistments.

He is down to play Claudia's husband, David, in the film version of "Claudia." There is great danger to the future of Hollywood in the current mad scramble by every one to get into picture theaters. Studios are making money hand over fist, and there is a tendency to turn out any piece of rubbish in the belief that the public, with money to burn, will pay, regardless of the quality of the product. A word of warning to the producers: This war will be over one day, and it would be too bad if, with an overdose of bad movies, you had killed the goose (the poor old public) who lays the golden box office eggs. When lots of pictures are poor, people get the habit of staying away

I know all about Cifers and Hast and the others self, even to the point of winning they have. Sophomores improving every game. Good enough to wreck Fordham and L. S. U. and Vanderbilt. Tennessee now is one of the best teams in the country. Tulsa's only hope is a great passer and kicker known as Glenn Dobbs, and two fine receiving ends. Tulsa will outpass and outkick Tennessee, or most of the others. Dobbs is a standout.

Rice-Frnka writes me that Dobbs is a better passer and kicker than Sammy Baugh was at T. C. U. I don't mean today.

Owen Would Like Dobbs for Giants

Owen-Dobbs is good enough to bother any team. I only wish I had had him on the Giants this last fall. I don't believe Tulsa can win, but I in the Nation were Ohio State and feel sure these Oklahoma boys, on their first start in big bowl company, Georgia. will give anybody all they can handle. Having may be in there, Sinkwich taking gotten by Alabama, the Yellowjackets had set their hearts on a clean slate. The Georgia crash was a jolt. Both know Texas has a big, hardhitting squad. Neither Alexander nor Dodds is very optimistic.

I know Georgia Tech never has been quite the same since her Alabama game. Neither mentally nor physically, in a football sense. I would say that Texas has the better chance to be on edge, so far as

There is no yardstick of comparison. The Bruins and Bulldogs met no common foes. Georgia, a team of veterans that won 20 of its last 22 games, established numerous vardage and scoring records in 1942. By many it is regarded as the greatest passing outfit in the history of

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 .- A new administrative setup for the Navy's pre-flight schools goes into effect January 1, but nearly as we can make out it won't mean any less sports activity. Instead of each school coming under their respective naval districts, they'll all be under the jurisdiction of the Air Primary Training Command, Similarly the more advanced schools will come under the Air Operational Training Command. The big change, which was scheduled anyway, will be that the teams will have to do most of their playing close to home instead of making those long trips, whose main purpose was to stimulate recruiting. Also, due mainly to limited facilities, there'll be more attention than ever to intramural competition and less to Action is on tap tonight at virtually all maple plants and if the scores of Boteler and Miss Sheehan withstand the barrage they probably will head the list at payoff time. Only a few alleys have regular rolloffs scheduled after tonight. Virtually all, however, have arranged for squads of eligibles who were unable to shoot at appointed times.

Bowlers eligible for the final who missed their regular turns are urged to communicate with the managers of their respective alleys. There is no charge for bowling the three-game final and an eligible who passes it is missing an opportunity to cash in handsomely. The deadline falls next Sunday night.

Industrials Lead Stocks Higher

Best Advances in Two Weeks Scored After Early Irregularity

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Dec. 30.-A late rally by top industrials and a few rails gave the stock market its best rise in two weeks today after early irregularity in a continuation of year-end adjustments.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 0.5 of a point to 41.5, equaling the year's high.

From a moderately active opening the market settled down to a pace slightly under yesterdays highest volume of the year. Prices stiffened somewhat in late dealings.

A little pressure was evident in spots and numerous "cash" sales to establish valuations for 1942 income statements were noted.

Some sizable blocks of stock were transferred, ranging to around 4,000 shares and helping to boost turnover to about 1,100,000 shares for the full session

Developments in the war apparently did not make much impression in the cross-currents of book balancing.

Carriers made about the best showing, progressing fractionally to around a point. There were some wider swings. On the upside were Santa Fe Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred. Norfolk & Western, New York Central and Southern Railway American Telephone, Standard Oi (New Jersey), International Nickel, United States Steel, Air Reduction. Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, United States Rubber pre-Montgomery Ward and ferred.

Among those which found a little rougher going were Youngstown, Chrysler, United States Rubber and American Can.

Aircraft. Radio Corp.

On the curb Niagara Hudson attracted buyers after announcement of a liquidation plan to be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Trends here were mixed, with better prices at times for Creole Petroleum, Aluminum Ltd., New Jersey Zinc and Electric Bond & Share.

Reorganization rails led selected bonds fractions to a point or more higher.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 30 (AP) .-Checks now are being mailed for the 21/2 and 3 per cent semi-annual dividends being paid by Southern States Co-operative on its two issues of preferred stock, for the half year ending December 31. W. G. Wysor, general manager, announced.

Fuel Oil Users Get Little Hope Of Added Supply

Rails Hold Key For Improvement, Byrnes Declares

The fuel oil situation advanced further into the midwinter period today with virtually no hope for increased supplies following Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes' conference yesterday with Government officials and presidents of six major rail-

Mr. Byrnes announced after the meeting that railroads expected to deliver more gasoline and oil to the Atlantic seaboard during January but added that the best consumers can hope for is that their present rations will be maintained.

Factors Named.

He named several factors which might increase deliveries and then offset these by recalling that military needs in the battle areas were expected to increase. He reported that every possible way of augmenting available fuel oil had been explored, but that his own conclusion was that Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes and Price Administrator Henderson had not been too pessimistic in their predictions concerning the winter fuel supply

Meanwhile, District fuel oil dealers were asked by District OPA Director Whitney Leary and his recently named consultant, Renah F. Camalier, to submit their problems in writing not later than tomorrow Mr. Camalier said he would confer with Mr. Henderson probably by Friday afternoon with a view to taking definite steps to iron out the difficulties listed.

Rails Only Hope.

Mr. Byrnes said railroads offer the only hope of providing any immediate improvement in the fuel oil situation. The greatest hope for improvement at this time, he added, rests on efforts of railroad executives to facilitate the unloading of tank cars at their destinations and to reroute trains wherever possible.

The rerouting will go into effect in the next few days, he revealed, but the improvement of terminal facilities will depend first upon approval of the War Production Board those for ample unloading tracks.

Mr. Byrnes was of the opinion nope exists in the use of boxcars carrying drums of oil. Both boxcars and drums are available, he added, but most metal drums are recently returned from command of controlled by the Army and Navy. He said he would explore the possibility of the armed services using even when he left, the Japs on the their drums to haul their own oil island already had shown signs of and thus release tanks for civilian privation and near starvation. Citing that all ocean-going tankers are needed to deliver oil to military and naval stations overseas, Mr. Byrnes said that a barge line offered no hope for immediate relief, Technical Sergt. In another move vesterday to improve the petroleum situation, Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman prohibited the withdrawal, except in special cases, of any railroad tank cars now bringing oil or petroleum products to the He said the regulation was part of the recently announced of increasing railroad transportation of petroleum to the East by 20 per cent.

The request for District fuel oil dealers to outline their problems in writing was made by Mr. Leary and Mr. Camalier at a meeting of the dealers yesterday afternoon. The dealers' principal problem, it was indicated at the meeting, is one of delivery rather than supply. it is not dangerously short.

Powers Assails Fairfax Sewer Construction

Head of Alexandria Water Company Fears Seepage

Declaring that the new Governent-built Fairfax County (Va.) anitary sewer is being constructed such a way as to endanger the Alexandria water supply, Jerome Powers, president of the Alexandria Water Co., has protested to the Federal Works Agency against completion of the line along present construction methods.

Right of way for the sewer around the Barcroft Dam, property of the company, located on Columbia pike est of Baileys Crossroads, was obtained by condemnation.

Portion of Line Laid. One portion of the 24-inch line already has been laid around the dam. The sewer follows Holmes Run from the Barcroft Dam to the conversion dam, a distance of more than three miles. In a letter to the FWA, Mr. Powers said the sewer is being constructed to permit leaks in the joints of the pipes. These leaks, he added, will permit sewage to seep into the city water supply and pollute it, thus necessitating chlorination and conequent alteration of taste. In addition, Mr. Powers asserted the leaky joints will draw water from the city supply and greatly deplete it.

Placed in Loose Earth. According to Mr. Powers, the pipes in the major portion of the sewer are not "cradled" in concrete. but are laid in loose earth. Settling of the earth, he said, will cause the joints to loosen, causing even greater seepage.

Contract for the sewer called for a maximum of 10,000 gallons of water per day per mile seepage, and the officials of the water company feel that it will be impossible to maintain this maximum with pipes laid without a concrete cradle.

The letter was addressed to Henry J. Sullivan, in charge of the project. Mr. Sullivan said the alleged seepage is an engineering problem that exists in every project of this kind. He refused to make any further comment, however, pending completion of the sewer and tests next

Howard Richards, general manager of the Alexandria Water Co., has sent a copy of Mr. Powers' letter of protest to City Manager Carl Budwesky with the request he bring it to the attention of City Council in an effort to have that body also send a protest to the Federal Works Agency.

Council O. K.'s 14 Measures For Maryland

Decision Due Today On Controversial War Powers Bill

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 30.—The Legislative Council, in executive ses-sion late last night, approved all but 3 of the 17 proposals made by the Governor's War Emergency Legislation Committee of the Maryland Council of Defense, one of the exceptions being the controversial war council bill.

This bill would vest in Gov. O'Conor and a war council to be appointed by him, the authority to suspend statutes considered detrimental to the war effort.

The measure was not even discussed at the executive session because several council members were absent and decision on it was postponed until today, Dr. Horace Flack, council secretary, announced. Two Not Discussed. The other two bills not accepted also failed to come up for discus-

They were: The proposed amendment which would authorize the State Roads Commission, during the period of the present war, to construct any highway, or do any other work, the cost of which was estimated to exceed $1,000, without the necessity of competitive bids, within certain restrictions. The Comprehensive Transportation Act, the primary purpose of which was described by proponents of persons and property in, into and through the State.

Earlier in the day proposals other than the war council bill had met tentative approval from the council.

Kimbel Heads Opposition. Senator Robert Kimble, Republiices are assuring Americans of vic- can, of Allegany led the council's opposition to the war council bill earlier in the day, charging that the proposal would nullify the people's legislative rights and in turn place the State's operation, both military and civil, directly in the hands of a few officials.

Mr. Kimbel asserted that the measure had many good points, but added that if it were approved by Mr. Wallace declared that use of the General Assembly the people officials called on Mayors and other world, where science is bringing us Legislature could be convened, in case of a serious emergency, almost as rapidly as could a war council. He added that it would be a good W. Frank Roberts, chairman of > the Maryland Council of Defense, admitted that the committee failed to consider the point about the constitutional requirement regarding the convening of the Legislature. Gen. Reckord in Favor. Mr. Roberts then proposed that some provision be made to allow the lawmakers to meet in the interim, but the constitutionality of such a provision was quickly questioned. Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford. commanding officer of the 3d Service Command, spoke for the plan and urged the council to give it full consideration before reaching a conclusion. He added that the plan would allow greater State participation in the war effort and possibly avoid stringent military laws if and when an emergency arises. Walsh Backs Plan. Senator Frank Flynn of the 5th district of Baltimore City expressed his views thus: "The whole question revolves around the question of whether or not we want to invest law-revoking authority in appointed officials-who are not responsible to the electorate, in preference to duly elected officials—who are responsible to the people.' The views of Attorney General William C. Walsh were expressed deputy attorney general. Mr. Walsh said: "It should be understood that the entire act is a war emergency measure and that its existence is specifically limited to the duration of the war and for a period of six months thereafter.

Proposal Termed Sound. "It should also be remembered that the exercise of the power to for it and to amend or modify existing laws is specifically limited to by the Governor and the War Council to be necessady or advisable in the prosecution of the war or the preservations of the safety of the State or its people in some situwith the war. Mr. Walsh said the proposal at first seemed "startling," but added experience in the office of attorney general during this war has convinced me that the proposal, with proper safeguards, is sound.' He added that this department had "twisted" several laws to conform with Federal requests.

Miss Jane Randolph Cain Presented at Informal Tea

Affair Is Held at 1925 F Street Club; Many at Debut Attend Concert Later

Formal debut parties have been abandoned for the duration, but more than one charming young lady is having an informal coming-out tea. One of these is Miss Jane Randolph Cain, who was presented vesterday afternoon by her mother, Mrs. Cain, wife of Lt. Col. Benjamin Cain, U. S. A., now on foreign duty. The tea was given in the 1925 F Street Club as the quaint house in Georgetown which Col. and Mrs. Cain recently purchased was not large enough for such a fete. A string orchestra played during the reception hours and for dancing in the ballroom. The attractive club has a bit of the Christmas decorations and Mrs. Cain added nothing to these because of the war.

Mrs. Cain received her guests in the drawing room, her daughter standing with her to be presented. The hostess wore a becoming gown of gold-color crepe made with long. &gracefully full skirt, and long sleeves in the bodice, which was trimmed about the neck with gold kid appliqued in a conventional pattern. The narrow black kid belt and her A Popular One of her costume. Many who attended the debut yesterday afternoon were in Constitution Hall later in the evening for the concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugen Ormandy conducting and Rudolf Serkin pianist, as the soloist. Numerous parties preceded the program and a number of the patrons gathered for informal supper parties after the concert. Among the latter was the midnight supper which Mr. and Mrs. Preston B. Kavanagh gave in honor of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Day of Chicago, which also celebrated the wedding anniversary of the hosts. By the Way—

There's something about a Southern accent on the radioor at least the radio experts think there is. But Mrs. Carlton Todd, chairman of radio for public relations of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Red Cross, says she wishes her Southern accent weren't quite so pronounced and that she would write the script than take part in the programs. Personally we think she does both pretty well. A native of Vicksburg. Miss., she is much rather

now the wife of a Navy captain stationed in Washington. Like most Navy people the Todds have lived a great many different places. And everywhere they lived wherever there was any sort of amateur dramatic club Mrs. Todd took part in the entertainments and helped with the programs. Since her graduation from Goucher College, where she studied dramatics she has been intensely interested in anything and everything to do with the theater and writing and now she finds the perfect medium and combination of both-in radio.

The Red Cross has put on some splendid programs and the scripts have nearly all been written and edited by Mrs. Todd's committee. The Christmas programs were especially successful. Mrs. Todd says she can do a superb black face. About all her other accomplishments she is extremely modest. She didn't, for instance, tell us that she personally turns out two programs a month. Some one else on her committee did. She did tell us about the committee meetings that are held by the radio committee of public relations each month when programs and policy and plans are discussed and decided upon-and about the listening committee that hears the preview of each program and comments

Since the Todds were first stationed in Washington about a year and a half ago they've lived in acharming house near Chevy Chase Circle. They have two sons, one 12 and one 16 who both go to school in the District.

Before Mrs. Todd was made chairman of the radio committee she had taken the staff assistants course, and she is a member of the speaker's bureau. She speaks naturally and well, usually without notes, and she says she likes to speak. One of her most successful talks was given recently before the DAR's. (She is a DAR herself).

-Woltz Photo.

She is extremely popular with the people with whom she works. And one quality which endears her to them all, they say, is the fact no job is ever too small or too boring for her to tackle. Just because she's chairman doesn't mean that she won't undertake and carry through the most menial and unexciting job-and she does it with such enthusiasm that it becomes interesting. Which, say the Red Cross ladies, is a topnotch asset in any worker!

Request for District Nursery School Fund Withheld From FWA

Gen. Fleming's Agency Meanwhile Streamlines Procedure for Speed

Lanham Act funds for nursery schools in the District could be available in one month, if the ap- music. Federal Works Administration which nology and, before coming to Washgrants the funds.

The procedure at the Federal level of Scranton Junior High School, with War bonds. for approving applications for nursery schools and other child-care funds has been streamlined by an order of Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, it was announced today.

Gen. Fleming's order declares that child-care programs are caused by the war emergency and releases all child-care applications for Lanham funds from deficit financing. Surpluses that schools have at the end of the year will not have to be used for nursery schools, according to the order. Nor will public school sytems have to fear being saddled with nursery schools after the war.

Still With Van Hyning. Despite the streamlining by FWA chances for the District's application reaching Federal Works today or in the near future remain slim. The District application for Lanham funds for a city-wide child-care program has not even left the office of Conrad Van Hyning, chief of civilian mobilization.

And it will not leave, according to Mr. Van Hyning, "until Federal Works approves our master plan' for administration of the funds. The bill authorizing use of schools for nursery schools was signed by the President last week. Funds. however, must be obtained from the Federal Works Agency by application on the part of the District Commissioners, official sponsors.

Agreement Held Necessary. The application for funds, according to Mr. Van Hyning, was drafted originally by the OCD Child Care Committee, headed by Mrs. Henry P. Chandler. Mr. Van Hyning, as chief of civilian mobilization, is charged with co-ordinating the opinions of all District officials who might have a hand in the administration of the

Mr. Van Hyning insists that he cannot send the application to Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and other District officials until Federal Works has agreed on a plan of organization submitted to Federal Works Agency officials insist the application for funds could be sent to the Commissioners and then to Federal Works immediately without prior agreement on an organization plan. Mrs. Izetta Jewell Miller, director of war services for FWA in the Metropolitan Area, says that FWA is ready to process the application for funds immediately. At present, FWA is processing the application for three small District child care projects sent in two weeks ago for approval. Legal and financial officials at FWA say that they could just as easily be processing the entire city-wide application. Every effort, however, is being made to speed the smaller project through, they add, in recognition of the critical need for nursery schools.

Plan for Your Future

War Bonds Bought Today Insure Well-Equipped Home Later

By Margaret Nowell

With Christmas over and a new year about to begin we should stop buying anything except "essentials," for this is patriotic, conserves needed materials and is a wise investment for the future. The money saved should go into War bonds. A valuable aid to the war effort now, it also will mean that when the war is over, and the new and vastly superior furnishings and materials are available, we will have the wherewithal to purchase them.

When the war is over we will have our War bonds to pur-chase new furnishings to last a life-

Another point to consider at this time is that many of the materials used in manufacture of furnishings and equipment are not of the best quality. Naturally, all the best we have is being used for military equipment. Factories have set up those dies and patterns for civilian equipment which demand the least amount of labor and handwork. For this reason we would all be wise to get along with the things we now own, mending, patching, "making do" until the day dawns when we are free to buy again. When that time comes we will all go on a buying spree. The factories furnishings and household equipmost superior to what we now use. make present equipment look like it came over on the ark.

The only thing which will prevent our enjoyment of all of these things will be the lack of money for their purchase. That is another reason for buying War bonds. As you acquire each one, put it safely away for that future date when you will want something new for your home. This may be an addition to the house, a new bathroom, a new heating system, new floors, carpets or washing machine. All the things that you are doing without now, or cherishing and coddling to prolong their usefulness, will then be available through your War bond

It is a most pleasant feeling when each crisp, new bond is delivered. It will be doubly pleasing when they are brought out after the war, their value increased, ready to buy the things we all need.

Right now they are winning the war, keeping the materials flowing to the battlefields all over the world. Later, when they are cashed, they will help keep American homes the finest in the world and do much to stabilize post-war business. If we were asked to give the same amount outright to the war effort we would not hesitate. As it is, we are asked merely to loan what we can spare, need will be worth buying.

The second almost as good and after that you begin to be impressed with your holdings.

We are now aware that manufacture for civilian use, except for seentials, is out for the duration. There will be no "kick" about this, for it is the way each one of us wishes things to be. There will be

Sensible Advice

Use Small Amount Of Water in Pan; Cover Tightly

By Edith M. Barber

Vegetable cookery is or should be matter of concern to the young housekeeper. It is no longer a mat-ter of dumping vegetables into a quantity of salted water and turning on the heat so that they may cook until tender. Our ideas in regard to tenderness have changed materially in the last few years.

Most vegetables are the better for being just a shade crisp when they are served. Of course, this is not which are all out for war produc- true in the case of potatoes and tion are perfecting some amazing other vegetables of the mealy type. new devices and equipment for ci- Practically all vegetables, however. vilian use after the war. The general rules for all vegetables are a small amount of water, just enough to cover the bottom of the pan to a depth of not more than half an inch. I use less than this for many vegetables. Then it means a cover which fits as tightly as possible, as this will prevent evaporation. It also means having the heat low, very low, after the water begins to boil. If these two simple rules are followed, then there need be no concern in regard to the pots boiling dry and the vegetables burning. There are one or two warnings which should be given in the case cauliflower and broccoli. The heads should be placed up instead of down. Broccoli is perhaps the hardest vegetable when it comes to giving consistent rules. The time for cooking depends so much upon the length and the tenderness of the stalks. Parsnips and turnips I find, do better in a larger quantity of water, as they take so long to cook when they are of the winter type. Those are the exceptions to the general rule given above. And don't forget that it is easy to overcook vegetables.

Accessories Go Gay . . .

The season for gay print dresses and colored accessories is creeping upon us and even now some of the stores are featuring these articles. The latest vogue in handbags are those made of corded material with wide stripes of several colors. The bags are large and roomy and the color combinations have been carefully selected. Go very well with black frocks, but, for that matter, would also blend beautifully with almost any color. Smart wooden tops are finished in one of the colors shown in the bag.

For a Modern Miss . . .

The modern young lady loves to "dress-up" her tailored suit with unusual lapel gadgets, and, if they are inexpensive, she can have one to suit the particular mood of each day. At a moderate price, we recently saw an attractive one made of plastic material in the shape of a banjo. The base of the instrument is designed of clear plastic with black for the neck and top. The small article was even equipped with four pieces of gold colored metal to represent strings. Another item that was both feminine and dainty was a large bowknot also made of plastic in a deep shade of green.

West cashed his last heart and exited with a spade. South managed to get four spades, a heart and a club, but only two diamonds, for a total of eight tricks. He was therefore set one trick.

When dummy won with the jack of diamonds, it should have been apparent to South that the diamond ace was in the West hand. Correct play was to return to his own hand with the ten of spades and lead the other low diamond from his hand.

As it happened, West would have had to play the ace on this trick, allowing South to make three diamond tricks without any more trouble. But even if West had been able to play low, dummy could put up the queen and return the suit. hoping for a 3-3 break or a doubleton tenspot in the East hand.

Bach, Beethoven, Brahms Heard on Ormandy Program

Philadelphia Orchestra and Serkin Applauded Generously at Concert Lacking Works of Americans

By ELENA DE SAYN.

A program of music by master bards-Bach, Beethoven and Brahmswho glorified eras never to return, was presented last night at Constitution Hall by the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting. Rudolph Serkin, pianist and soloist of the occasion, was heard in Beethoven's "Concerto in E Flat No. 5, Op. 73," the tumultuous reception of which brought him back a number of times after its conclusion. The artist insisted on sharing honors with Mr. Ormandy more than once. This was an extra concert by

The piano concerto, nicknamed 'Emperor." the last from Beethoven's pen, and composed while Vienna was bombarded by Napoleon's armies, finds its counterpart in Shostakovich's "Seventh Symphony," written lately during the siege of Leningrad, however, only in circumstances. There is nothing to indicate war in the concerto, except perhaps the exuberance of the last movement, which could be interpreted as a joyful delivery from the enemy.

Mr. Serkin's familiar command of the keyboard, his use of light and shade in lyric passages and his flery temperament found yesterday a perfect response in the orchestra and in Mr. Ormandy's artistic support.

The democratic principles of America were best illustrated by the enthusiastic applause which followed each number on the program. It is doubtful whether citizens of any other country in the world, be it the smallest, would have turned out in numbers at Christmas time to hear music by composers of an alien country and an enemy one at that.

Of course, long since, the three "Bs" have been regarded as "citizens of the world," yet public opinion may be challenged as to whether it is tactful to choose such a type of a program at this time, when music literature in general has so much to offer

It seems any mixed program of masterpieces chosen at random from several countries, by com-

So we want to say thanks, a thousand thanks, to you new friends and you old ones, including our many friends in the Service, to whose approval we owe this good fortune.

Thanks also to you dealers and distributors, to whose enthusiastic co-operation we owe so much. And thanks to all you loyal employees who have worked so hard to keep up with our greatly increased demand.

We approach the New Year with a new sense of our obligations to all of you. We shall continue to give smokers a cigarette blend of the finest quality - using the finest tobaccos available and the most modern methods of manufacture.

And for all of you, our friends, we wish a happier New Year and a victorious one.
