Admiral Leahy

Move Follows Proposal By Chief of Staff for Four-Man War Cabinet

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. A powerful and concentrated pressure is being exercised on the White House to induce President Roosevelt to dispense with the services of his chief of staff, Admiral William

The arguments set forth are that Admiral Leahy is too old, too reactionary and ultimately will prove a liability to the President in the 1944 elections.

His ability as a military man is not being disputed, but it is emphasized that the military situation-in the minds of the those who are seeking the ouster of the uncompromising admiral—is such that his services as a strategist are of little value compared to the harm he may cause to the party in the political fiield.

Admiral Leahy and those who think as he does point out that there are many agencies which have independent and semi-independent heads who proceed on their own without any co-ordination of effort. Fate of Mummers' Parade Will Be Decided Today

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.-Philadelphia's last scheduled Mummers' OPA Official Named parade for the duration may be ealled off because of bad weather. Worried by four days of adverse weather, a Mummers' committee meets today to decide whether to march tomorrow, postpone the color- tioning branch of the Office of ful New Year carnival to Saturday or cancel it entirely. If the weather is bad both New Year Day and Saturday, Grand Marshal Charles E. O'Halloran says, there will be no spectacle.

Six hundred of the merrymakers are marching in olive drab and Navy blue this year anyway, and some months ago those left behind debated whether to arrange a parade this New Year Day or invoke a wartime ban immediately.

The servicemen themselves, learning of the proposal, urged that the parade be held. Mr. O'Halloran said about 10,000 are expected to be in the line of march—2,000 fewer than last year.

Discussing the progress which has been made, Secretary Stimson recalled that as short a time ago as July, 1940, the Regular Army consisted of only 250,000 men and said that none of these forces were trained in modern war. Further-The strong Communist element in more, he said, there was practically from the World War

There was not in the entire country, he declared, enough powder "to last anything like a day's warfare' for the men now overseas.

A War Department announcement in connection with the Secretary's review said the United States was now turning out enough rifle and machine gun ammunition each month to fire 83 rounds at every individual soldier in the Axis army.

"In the first year of war," it said, production of small arms ammunition has increased more than 550 per cent and is still rising rapidly.

James H. Warren, 29, of 2606 University place N.W., a member of the Secret Service guard force, died this afternoon at Garfield Hospital as a result of burns received early today in a spectacular three-alarm fire at 1365 Euclid street N.W., which injured six other persons.

Mr. Warren, who police said was visiting friends at the three-story rooming house, was given blood plasma in an unsuccessful effort to save his life. He had been taken to the hospital suffering from first and second degree burns and smoke

The District fire marshal's office earlier had launched an investigation of the fire. An official there said a preliminary survey indicated damage would be approximately $20,000. More than 30 persons fled in night clothes from the building and an adjoining home, while firemen rescued seven persons. John Bruce Vaden, 19, was in a critical condition at Emergency Hospital from a fractured skull received when he fell from a third-story window to the street.

Wicomo Constable Linked To Operation of Stills Over Five-Year Period

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 31.-Thirteen Eastern Shore men, one of them a Wicomico County constable, were indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of participating in a five-year conspiracy to defraud the Government of liquor taxes, Federal officials announced today.

The officials said the Government contended it was defrauded of more than $60,000 in taxes during the fiveyear period, ranging from early in 1937 to last June. The distilling enterprise was described as one of the largest discovered in this section since the days of prohibition, operating more than 30 stills.

Taft Calls for Probe Would Cut Employes

Democratic Leaders Accept Roosevelt's Economy 'Challenge'

A thorough-going investigation of the expenditure of war appropriations was proposed today by Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, in response to President Roosevelt's declaration that Congress must decide where to make economies in the new budget.

While Senators Byrd, Democrat. of Virginia; Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, and Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana predicted Congress would accept Mr. Roosevelt's "challenge" to trim ordinary Government expenditures, Senator Taft said he believed the time had arrived to go much further by shaking down some of the war agencies to see if economies could be made in that field. "The War Production Board has

19,000 employes and probably could do a much more efficient job if it were reorganized and had about 5,000 fewer workers, Senator Taft told reporters. "Similarly, the Office of Price Administration has 40,000 employes, and it's likely that a lot of them are falling over each other's in the current use of paper by newspapers and magazines was ordered today by the War Production Board, Printing and Publishing Division of WPB told newspapermen they could "expect this to be followed by a second and possibly a third order," imposing even more severe cuts in the use of paper. He added that he could only hope for the new order to last for the first quarter of 1943. The restrictions, he explained, are necessitated by shortage of manpower in the pulp industry, need for electric power used in making paper and increased demands for paper for war uses.

The order governing newspapers restricted publishers to the same tonnage used for net paid circulation in 1941, plus a 3 per cent allowance for spoilage. This would effect a Red Cross decided to engage a full- saving of approximately 10 per cent of current newsprint use, the WPB

At the same time, the WPB warned that orders would be forthcoming soon restricting the use of paper in books commercial printing and containers. Mr. Chandler predicted that most publishers would be able to effect the 10 per cent in paper without limiting their circulation. He suggested that many economies could be made, such as reducing slightly the size of the newspaper page. It was emphasized that the WPB was not telling publishers how to effect the saving, but was simply ordering them to reduce their paper use in any way they saw fit. Mr. Chandler added the 10 per

Although the carriers earn more than ever before, hundreds have left their routes to take jobs usually held by men who have gone to War or in Defense Work. New boys have taken their places. As a subscriber you are urged to encourage your carrier and explain to him how you want him to serve you. Remember, schools are closing later now and delivery is somewhat delayed in some sections.

Please pay the carrier or collector the first time he calls or leave the money for him and don't ask him to call back

The Star is proud of its service in these difficult times when frequent changes and mistakes are unavoidable. Restrictions on gasoline and rubber have reduced The Star's total truck mileage by over 40%, but delivery service, although greatly curtailed, is well maintained. Service to subscribers goes on every day, rain or shine, with few interruptions and at a lower cost for newspaper delivery service than in any other large city in the United States.

D. C. Gas Dealers Hold Texan Assails Failure Little Hope to Improve To Use Inland Waters Stocks Until Spring In Fuel Shortage

Supply and Demand Committee Seeks Plan To Keep Fuel Flowing

With gasoline supplies in the District dwindling again, local dealers predicted today there would be little improvement in the situation before

At least one large chain of staline and most other stations were operating pretty close to a hando-mouth basis. One glimmer of hope was seen in the meeting in Baltimore yesterday of the recently organized Supply and Demand Committee, set up by the Government to help relieve the pressure which has existed here in recent weeks. This group, it was reported. was attempting to work out plans to provide for a steadier flow of gasoline into the Washington Metropolitan Area.

In New York, the gasoline situation reportedly is more critical than it was two weeks ago when the OPA suddenly invalidated passenger car rationing coupons for a period of three days. There was no evidence declared at this time, although it taken by the OPA to alleviate the shortage which has spread along the entire Eastern seaboard. The cut in the value of "B" and "C" coupons from four to three gallons, it was believed, was not producing the desired results, and the possibility exbecome necessary.

Dealers Hopeful.

The dealers themselves are hopeful that the long holiday week end will give them another chance to fill up their own tanks. A number of dealers were again closing their pumps, as they did the day before Christmas, to avoid running completely out of gas.

There was no particular rush of customers, it was reported, and dealers do not expect any, on the theory that the motoring public is becoming acclimated to the general condition here. As a matter of fact, gasoline dealers pointed out that the best way to prevent total famines of gasoline was for drivers to purchase it only as it is actually needed.

Fuel Oil Dealers Meet With Ration Officials On Delivery Problem

Hope to Work Out Solution Before New Cold Spell Comes

Fuel oil dealers were working n conjunction with rationing authorities today in an effort to ward off serious distribution problems before the next cold spell brings hardship to hundreds of oil-heated homes in this

Persons conversant with local conditions still believed that the task of getting oil from the dealers to the consumers was the major problem. Although it was conceded that suppliers' stocks were not at the same comfortable levels they were during pre-ration days, it was felt that the total supply is adequate provided equitable means of distributing it can be worked out.

According to Lester Scott, director of the Oil Heating Division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, the local supply situation is "tight," but he said "it hasn't yet reached the point where there isn't any oil."

Full Stocks Wouldn't Help.
"As a matter of fact," Mr. Scott pointed out, "it wouldn't help very much if there was plenty of oil here so long as the distribution difficulies still existed." The first steps in making distribution easier were already being taken by Renah F. Camalier, OPA consultant to the District, who began yesterday to reduce the extent of the areas covered by fuel oil dealers. Mr. Camalier said, at his suggestion, one company yesterday transferred 40 of its customers to another dealer whose bulk plant was in the area to be served. He explained that he hoped to extend this system to other companies. Although this first step increased to some extent the load on the firm which accepted the new customers, Mr. Camalier said he hoped a full-fledged co-ordination of effort would eventually bring about a balance in that dealers would, in effect, "trade" customers. Dealers Co-operate.

Mr. Camalier said he has discovered a willingness on the part of dealers to co-operate in any plan that will relieve the overburdened situation. "I see no reason," he said, "why

Retail Bread Price Increase Is Sought By Organized Bakers

Price Ceiling Puncture Asked to Prevent 'Business Casualties'

President Jack Koenig, jr., of the Associated Retail Bakers' of America announced in Chicago that he had asked Food Administrator Wickard to "permit a puncture of the present price ceilings on bread and other bakery products to prevent further casualties among the retail type of bakery operators."

Forced Out of Business

Mr. Koenig estimated that 10 per cent of that type of operators had already been forced out of business by increasing labor and material costs "due to the fact that no relief has been forthcoming on the ceiling prices of their products." Ralph D. Ward, Brooklyn, presi-

One of the outstanding features of the 1942 football season was the number of strong teams left for Bowl games in a campaign that left so much wreckage in its wake.

Teams participating in Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls won over 85 per cent of their games, beating such strong outfits as Notre Dame, LSU, Alabama, Tennessee, Auburn, Navy, Fordham, Baylor, Vanderbilt, Oklahoma, Oklahoma A. and M., Duke, N. C. Pre-Flight,

The Eternal God Is Thy Refuge

WASHINGTON—Capital City of our Nation.

WASHINGTON—where the future of our national life is being planned.

WASHINGTON—where the global policy of the American people is being shaped.

WASHINGTON is more than any or all of these for within this Capital City are religious forces seeking to translate the ideals of justice, righteousness, truth, goodness and brotherhood into livingness and resolution.

The religious forces of the Capital City are symbolized through a Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital. This committee endeavors to impress upon the oldest resident and the newest comer in this city that religion has a message for all times. It says that "The eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms." Above and beyond the contemporary scene God has an eternal purpose and that purpose, because it is Divine, shall not fail. The forces of religion are agreed that God is the one Father of all men and that man has not only a direct relationship with God but a direct duty and responsibility toward God in all times. High ethical religion asks man to see that which is "timeless amid the timely," that which "towers o'er the wrecks of time," and that "through which all time abides." Namely, that God is: therefore man cannot fulfill his purpose without God nor can God's purpose be fulfilled without man.

Men, women and children of America still possess freedom of worship as a birthright. This is no heritage to be taken lightly or to be neglected. The doors of the churches of Washington are open to all who will "enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise."

Let the Father's House be a place of worship and prayer—a place where men are quickened to render human service.

The religious forces of the Capital face the New Year with confidence knowing that "God is our refuge and strength . . . therefore, will not we fear." Long ago de Tocqueville after visiting this country said, "America is great because America is good and when America ceases to be good she will cease to be great."

Lined up here, in smart military formation, is a "squad" of the mighty locomotives that work night and day for Uncle Sam.

Passenger engines, their specific job is to move troops. And, with the aid of other locomotives, they are doing this at a rate of over a million troops a month!

To the right are their comrades-in-arms, freight locomotives. Their job is to haul war materials. And they are moving 1,250,000 tons of freight a mile every minute of a 24-hour day!

Of course, to keep up a war pace like this requires the railroads to give right-ofway and a very large part of their passenger and freight equipment continuously to the war effort.

Naturally, under the circumstances, service to the public cannot be all that either you or we would like it to be. Trains may be late. Accommodations and seats may be hard to get. But—with the cooperation of travelers and shippers, the Office of Defense Transportation, the Army, the Navy and Government agencies—the railroads are doing, and will continue to do, everything within their power to provide the best service possible to the public in the midst of the greatest war civilization has ever known.

Teday's freight locomotives can haul much heavier loads than the engines that served the nation in the last war.

'Sanctions' for Manpower

We may expect to hear much about "sanctions" soon in connection with the grave war manpower problems of 1943. Neither the Administration nor Mr. McNutt is ready yet to press the question of a national service act, drafting all able-bodied citizens for the war effort and enabling the War Manpower Commission to assign workers to essential jobs. So the matter of invoking indirect sanctions against recalcitrant citizens, chiefly employers, is being considered.

In law, to sanction means to enforce by attaching a penalty, or a reward. Under authority of executive orders, the War Manpower Commission might invoke sanctions against an employer in one less essential war industry who refused to release skilled workers for a more essential industry, the penalty being enforced by some such agency as the WPB, ODT, OPA, etc., by denying the employer priorities on essential material or special privileges necessary for him to remain in business.

The matter of sanctions is now being debated in the Management-Labor Policy Committee of the commission. Mr. McNutt himself sees in it certain disadvantages, such as reliance on other agencies to enforce the directives or policies of the commission and the danger of penalties far more severe than might be justified. But the greatest objection is not mentioned by Mr. McNutt, and that objection lies in accomplishing by indirection and a certain amount of subterfuge the thing that should be accomplished by direct action, if it has to be accomplished at all. For the failure to face the facts directly and honestly is not good for public morals or morale.

The hesitancy to rely on a national draft of manpower and womanpower to do what it may be possible to do through voluntary acquiescence with War Manpower Commission directives is understandable. Certainly the voluntary method deserves every trial. But if it fails to work and compulsory assignment of manpower is necessary to win the war, then a national service act is necessary and it is trifling with the interests of the Nation to look around for half-way substitutes

When men can be involuntarily assigned to service in the Army and sent to the ends of the earth to fight and die for their country, there is no longer any argument against drafting men and women to work in war plants-or anywhere else the Government needs them-provided the same ends cannot be accomplished by voluntary methods.

Planning the Peace

In emphasizing the necessity of organizing an informed public opinion before the end of the war with respect to problems that will arise in connection with the peace, Senator Austin of Vermont, the assistant minority leader, is on unassailable ground.

As Senator Austin pointed out in a National Radio Forum address last night, we know from the experience of the First World War that building a structure for enduring peace will be "utterly impossible" if public opinion in this country is not ready for the progressive steps which a satisfactory post-war settlement will entail. The peace will not make itself. It must be the product of informed decisions, largely made in advance, by the people on the great questions that will confront us when the representatives of the victorious nations assemble around the conference table.

It will be necessary, of course, to make certain that the Axis nations are disarmed and kept disarmed. But that will be relatively easy. Some of the larger and more difficult questions will concern the delimiting of the economic aspirations of the Allied nations in normally competitive fields; the problem of what to do about our old tariff and immigration policies; the character of international organization best suited to the implementation of any peace plan which may be adopted; the nature of the joint protection which should be extended to small nations, and the role the United States should play in setting up an international police force to maintain order in the world. It would be fatal to postpone these decisions until after the fighting is over and the war-inspired spirit of sistance the bright hope of prevent- | Constantinople, Cairo, Belgrade and | rolling along."

ing another great war, which is the | Buenos Aires. In 1937 when he was primary justification for this conflict. will not be realized, and the appalling price which is going to be exacted from us will have been paid to a futile end.

It is to avoid such a dismal conclusion of the struggle, even though the military victory be ours, that Senator Austin and others are striving now to bring these matters to the attention of the people. In the last analysis, it is the people who will shape the character of the peace, and the sooner they get down to the essentials of that task the better the peace will be.

Finland's Dilemma

.The State Department's ban upon news releases and pamphlets by the Finnish Information Center in New York, and the correlative stoppage of informational material issued by the American Legation in Helsinki, mark another stage in the deterioration of diplomatic relations between the United States and Finland.

The reason for this particular episode has been given by the State Department as due to difficulties raised by the Finnish Government regarding the type of material distributed by our Legation at Helsinki, this material being prepared here in Washington by the Office of War Information. Similar difficulties regarding consular activities were advanced as the reason for a mutual closing of consulates here and in Finland some months ago. But such incidents are significent, not so much in themselves as symptoms of a deeper trend.

The basic trouble is that the United States and Finland are on opposite sides in the most terrible war the world has ever seen. That is the stubborn fact whose tragic implications are inescapable. For surely it is a tragedy that Finland, with its consistent record of democratic idealism and civilized achievement, should be aligned with Nazi Germany against our Allies. It speaks volumes for the high regard enjoyed by Finland with the American people that our Government has forborne to consign Finland to the ranks of its enemies, as has already happened with the other satellites

Americans realize the sad dilemma in which Finland is placed. For Finland, Russia is the hereditary foe which, for centuries, has menaced its very existence as a nation. Russia's attack upon Finland three years ago, coming hard on the heels of Russia's obliteration of the Baltic States, confirmed Finland's worst fears. The Finns are undoubtedly sincere in believing that Germany's attack on Russia was a unique opportunity to recover those frontiers which they deem indispensable to their elementary security. The Finnish Government claims that Russia has never made a genuine peace offer that could assure their future. Indeed, they go further and ask, in view of past relations, how Russian forebearance could be relied on in default of an iron-clad guarantee by the United States and Britain to see that Russian promises would be lived up to. And there have been no intimations that either America or Britain was ready to pledge itself to go to war with Russia in Finland's

Hence, the Finns are today fightng alongside the Axis in what they deem to be a war for national life. To be sure, that war has its limitations. By what looks like a tacit agreement, the Finns have made no all-out effort to capture Murmansk or cut the railway which leads from that ice-free Arctic seaport to the Archangel line. Neither have they pressed the siege of Leningrad from their side. But Finland allows the use of its territory for German land forces and for German planes attacking convoys bound for Murmansk and Archangel, thereby seriously handicapping the supply of Russia with vitally needed munitions and foodstuffs. This is war, and we are bound to help our Russian ally. The Russian government undoubtedly dislikes our forebearance and would prefer to see us follow Britain's example in breaking relations with Finland and declaring open hostilities. How much longer the iron logic of this situation can be averted remains to be seen.

The recent episode of the reception at the Japanese Legation in Helsinki should not obscure the larger realities involved. The Finnish Legation here has denied many of the details in the stories circulated concerning just what happened on that occasion. But whether certain Finnish officials did, or did not, express sympathy with Japan should not decide the question whether the traditional friendship with Finland is to be terminated.

Sir Nevile Henderson Many harsh complaints have been registered against Sir Nevile Henderson for his part in the fruitless endeavor to "appease" Adolf Hitler in the months immediately preceding the beginning of the Second World War. Much of the criticism, at least so far as it applied to him personally. was unjustified. He was a professional diplomat, trained to represent the policy of the Foreign Office of Great Britain, expected to make himself agreeable wherever he was sent. It is a mistake to suppose that he was a free agent, at liberty to think or to speak independently. His duty was to do what he was told-and nothing more nor less than that.

To appraise Sir Nevile accurately, it is necessary to consider his career as a whole. He was born to the co-operation among the United Na- | service of his country, educated at tions has died down. Should we Eton, assigned successively to Saint follow that easy path of least re- Petersburg, Tokio, Rome, Paris, appointed Ambassador to Germany the pattern of Nazi expansion already had been established and there was little that any envoy from England could have done to have halted its development. The British people were unprepared for war. Prime Minister Chamberlain was regarded as a hero when, on his return from Munich, September 30, 1938, he declared: "I believe it is peace for our time"

Such was the condition of the public mind in all the democratic nations at the moment. Sir Nevile shared it to a certain regrettable extent, but he did not invent it. The work he was required to do was distasteful to him. So much is plain from the text of his "report," published under the title "Failure of a Mission." All the more, then, should he be commended for staying at the post to which he had been designated. It would have been easy for him to have asked to be recalled. That he remained until Der Fuehrer attacked Poland brought him vilification from "advanced" groups at home and in America. He felt the censure keenly. His health, never robust, gradually collapsed. Now he has died in retirement. It is a pity that he will be denied his share in the satisfaction of victory when at last it is achieved as he hoped.

Meanwhile, Sir Nevile's epitaph well might be the words of the London Times to the effect that he deserved "the sympathy and respect of his countrymen for his energetic. if unavailing, efforts to make the arguments of common sense, honor and fair dealing prevail with men who did not understand them."

No Man's Land

The District coroner and police voluntarily assumed jurisdiction in investigating a traffic fatality at the Pentagon Building, for there was no other authority available or willing to assume it. The same thing would happen in case of fire at the Pentagon Building that got beyond control of the building attendants. The District would send apparatus to fight the fire, but the building is beyond the District's jurisdiction. And the same question bobs up, in another form, in connection with the Capital Transit Company's petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish another five cent shuttle bus service between the District and the Pentagon Building. The ICC takes jurisdiction because no other agency has the authority to assume it. Congress eventually must assign jurisdiction in such matters, for the rapid expansion of the Federal establishment beyond the District's borders now makes it very necessary to do so. When thirty or forty nousand people are working in the Pentagon Building, adequate police, fire and public utility service authority is no longer an academic question. There should be definite and fixed responsibility. There are too many "No man's lands" growing up around the District.

There is no doubt as to the need for the new bus service to be established by the Capital Transit Company. There is no determination by any regulatory agency, however, as to the justification for the extra five-cent fares to be charged. The ICC undoubtedly will grant a permit for operation of this line, but will do so without any thorough investigation of the question of fares. Some agency, as The Star has suggested many times, should be charged with responsibility of regulating transportation in the Metropolitan Area; regulating it in the public interest and with regard to convenience, necessity, fares and adequacy of service. These are matters which the new Congress should

Too Thick

It is said that "no matter how thin you slice it, it is still boloney," and no doubt this is true; yet the real danger consists not in slicing it too thin, but in piling it on too thick. As a perfect example, consider the case of the golfer at Newark who combined four characteristics, each important to the drama. One, he was a dub. Two, he was ambitious. Three, he was nearsighted. Four, he was generous, especially to caddies whenever, by some minor miracle, he made a good shot.

The diminutive devotees of St Andrew, with the shrewdness of the species, soon found that the interval between miracles was annoyingly long and unprofitable, and set about a cure. Their generous and ambitious dub began to turn in wonderful scores, thanks to his other qualification, myopia, which enabled the caddies to move his ball up fifty yards or more, and from the rough to the green, without detection. But, alas, like Hitler when he attacked Russia, they were not content to let well enough alone. They bit off a large indigestible mouthful one fatal day by dropping the pill into the cup for a hole in one. That settled it. "Golf is too easy," said the dub, "and now that I have my ace, I am satisfied. I will never play again." Nor did he, to the dismay of a corps of caddies who learned, too late, that boloney, like gasoline, should be strictly rationed if it is to provide the greatest good for the greatest number.

Recently completed flood control work the length of the Mississippi impels engineers to prophesy that it will never again go on its devastating spring rampages. It is hoped so; but one cannot help thinking of that line in the song about "Ole Man River": "He doan' say nuffin'; he

German Ports Seen As Berlin Approaches

Army Officer Discusses Allied Chances of Success In Attacks on Nazi Coasts

By Maj. Gen. John N. Greely, U. S. A. Previous articles in this series have treated of the historic roads to Germany. These are: Across the Rhine, up the valley of the Danube and through the mountain passes from the south. The straightest road to Berlin is through Germany itself, and we can force a landing in Germany only from the North

This would be a formidable undertaking for Allied naval, ground and air forces alike. The determining factor might well be in the air. We are bedeviled today by the basic problem of priorities. Which do we need the most Ships, planes or tanks? An excellent case can be built up for each of them. Germany faced the same sort of a problem at the beginning of her rearmament, when Goering announced that its people chose guns rather than butter. They balanced their program, not always correctly, according to their conception of the war to be fought; and we are doing the same thing today.

To win the war we must move overseas in strength, and to do so we need many ships and planes. Which should come first is all important to production, and the decision must be based on our own conception as to how the war best can be fought. Opposing theories have simmered down to the two following views: Air enthusiasts think that overwhelming attack from the air can crush our enemy so that mere occupation by land forces of the defeated country will be necessary. More conservative soldiers think that air power can go no further than to sap enemy strength until victory can be achieved on the land.

Nowhere is air supremacy more likely to be decisive than in an attack on the North Sea coast of Germany. The choice of this route of invasion also is arrived at from a different point of view in "The New Second Front," recently published by a prominent British geographer. Assuming that a landing in Europe must and can be made, he finds that this is the best natural approach to the heart of Germany. It is no easy way. The North Sea is the natural habitat of U-boats and other torpedo-bearing craft. All approaches to the German shore are likely to be extensively mined. Nazi airfields are close and numerous. Helgoland is an outer bastion and the Frisian Islands an inshore line of defense. The great German harbors are sure to be elaborately fortified. Axis reinforcements can be rushed up from the Berlin area and the Rhineland.

On the other hand, many of these defenses are natural targets for attack by planes, in view of the definite and increasing superiority we hold in the air. Coast defenses, docks and railroads easily are identified and hit by bombers. Our control of the sea is of immense value even in these restricted and dangerous waters. Our surface craft might take heavy losses; but the U-boats would take losses, too. As in many a land attack, the time for establishing a beachhead would be an all-important command decision. It might be a swift surprise, hidden in fog, or it might follow weeks of preparation on the sea and over it.

Conditions for preparing such a daring venture are not too unfavorable. American reinforcements can be massed in the British Isles in comparative safety We showed this in sending important forces there before moving on French North Africa. Further movement by sea is relatively short and might take advantage of the concealing mists which so often shroud northern waters.

The landing in force against determined resistance is the great and allimportant difficulty. If we can establish a beachhead at any one of the German ports, conditions favor a further advance. Emden is the westernmost port of any size. At the mouth of the River Ems we would have a friendly Holland at our back. The river valley itself is a natural route leading to the great industrial region of the Rhineland farther

Bremen, the second port of Germany in size, might become an American base even more important in this war than French Bordeaux was in 1918. It has been great as a shipping center since the days of the Hanseatic League of cities, which did so much to build European civilization out of the ruins of the Dark Ages. Here again the valley of the Weser winds south into the center of Germany, with fine lateral communications toward the Rhineland on the west and the Berlin industrial region to the east.

Hamburg finally is the greatest of German shipping centers, comparable with New York and London. Its advanced seaport at Cuxhaven is 80-odd miles down the Elbe; but the situation of Hamburg at a junction of land and water routes made it great even before the days of the Hanseatic League. A base at Hamburg would have a not unfriendly Denmark a little way off to the north. So far as communications are concerned it is ideally situated for a drive into Germany. The city has, of course, lost much of its former greatness as a shipping center, as German seaborne trade has withered. But all that remained of its vast facilities would be of the greatest value to a conquerer preparing for a further attack.

Hamburg is, in fact, the real port of the Berlin industrial area. It is connected directly with the Nazi capital by motor roads and railroads, and a river and canal system. A beachhead here would be the next to the last stop on the road to victory which must end in Berlin.

Verses by Soldier Quoted For Guidance of War Workers.

To the Editor of The Star: The following lines are copied from the New Haven Register, to which they were contributed by a soldier "somewhere in the Pacific." My belief is that they should be inscribed on the walls of every essential war industry plant:

YOU. And if our lines should fail and break Because of things you failed to make-The extra tank or ship or plane, For which we waited all in vain. And for supplies that never came-Will you then come and take the blame? For we, not you, will pay the cost must know som'pin; he jes' keep | Of battles you, not we, have lost.

THIS AND THAT

"ARLINGTON, Va.

"Dear Sir: "I dislike an exaggerator, so I won't say that every starling in Washington moved in on me that snowy Sunday morning as soon as I finished sweeping off a space and put out feed for my many bird visitors and hung several pounds of suet around. There was one starling which had a hangover and said he would rather sleep than eat, so he didn't accompany the invasion. And an invasion it was, for they drove every other sort of bird away until they got so full they couldn't fly straight when they did leave.

"If I had fired a gun, there couldn't have been more instantaneous and unanimous action. Every starling took wing as though started by some spring, and now, two or more hours later, none has come back. I did nothing to disturb them, as I think even starlings, even Japs and Huns, have to eat, and if we don't take that into account even with pests, we miss opportunities to observe their habits and learn lessons,

"I have some visitors here that for days I have just thought were English sparrows, and, side by side with English sparrows, they look identical, but they have one distinguishing trick which differentiates them. When feeding on the ground, they hop forward about 2 inches. on both feet, and almost in the same motion scratch backward with both feet, like townees

"There is no chance of confusing them with twohees, as there are plenty of them around feeding right with these visitors and there is no other similarity. I heretofore never saw any bird but a towhee scratch with both feet, and will appreciate it if you will identify them in your vastly interesting column.

"Yours truly, B. E." Our correspondent's bird is the white-throated sparrow. This is one of the scratchingest birds in the winter garden. Other scratchers are the towhee, the fox sparrow and the purple finch. The two latter arrive early in the new year. The white-throated sparrow is one of the superior relatives of the English sparrow, but is confused by many persons with it.

The white-throat, as it is commonly called, is larger than the English sparrow, being about 714 inches long, as compared with 534 inches for the common form. A close-up view shows it to have a neat black, white and yellow-stripped cap, a sort of white tie and a fine brown jacket. Its song is very appealing, being composed of two notes, rising, and a series of about eight or nine notes following on the second note. This song is famous in birdland, not only because of its sweet simplicity, with known as the Peabody bird, and in others as the Peverly bird. Some people call it the Canada bird, whereas in Manitoba they name it the nightingale. In some sections it is known as the white-throated crown sparrow. In the old days some person with more imagination than scientific accuracy thought he heard the bird call "Old Sam Peabody, Peabody."

Another imaginative story is that a New England farmer named Peverly was wondering when he should put in his wheat, when he heard a small bird say, as plain as anything:

"Sow wheat, Peverly, Peverly, Peverly," These stories demonstrate very well that a heightened imagination, combined with being quite self-centered. will permit a listener to bird songs and calls to hear almost anything he wants to hear.

Stewart Edward White, in his book, "The Forest," tells an interesting story about the plaintive song of the whitethroated sparrow.

"The white-throated sparrow," he says, "sings nine different variations of the same song. He may sing more, but that is all I have counted.

Argues Necessity of Increase In Canned Food Rations. To the Editor of The Star:

So, we are to have rationing of canned goods and the like. We have been told the reasons, and probably they are quite valid. At any rate, my family and I, and our neighbors, and all other honest folk throughout the length and breadth of the land will co-operate and will do as we are told. We want our soldier boys and sailors to have all they need, and more besides.

But here at home. Procrustes is come to be our host. Who, gifted with understanding, can fail to see what is so plain before him? Famous (or infamous) old Procrustes, who put all his guests into the same bed, once they were in his clutches, stretching on the rack those who were too short, and cutting off the toes or feet of those who were too tall. until they fitted exactly to his accom-

We are not told the method by which the 33 pounds per capita annual allowance of canned goods was calculated, but it is plain, on the face of it: Only commercially canned goods were reckoned, and the divisor must have been the entire population—those who depend upon store stocks plus those who buy none. The result: A fictitious and unreliable figure, from which a practical ration cannot be deduced.

Up in the New England hills where the writer has gone for many years for his vacation, he is well acquainted with his farmer neighbors. Not infrequently, dropping by at any of a dozen nearby homes, he will be shown rows of glass jars filled with whatever happened to be in season at the moment, still warm, the prized results of that day's canning -30 quarts of corn or beans, or maybe bear the name and address of the writer, although the use of a pseudonym for publication is permissible. The Star reserves the right to edit all letters with a view to condensation of various sorts, and every other kind of fruit or vegetable that the Department of Agriculture has helped the farmer to learn to keep in this way. Every few days, sometimes every day, brings a similar addition to the store, until many long shelves are crowded with these home-canned foods for use in winter and spring. They are the pride as well as the dependence of nearly every home. Now, this occurs not in a few hundred or a few thousand homes, but in hundreds of thousands of homes throughout the farming communities of the country. Secretary Wickard, whose department helps them do it, ought to People living in cities and towns, of course, have to buy, and if you want to know how much per capita these families use, you will divide the quantity they consume by the number of people who consume it. And you will not include in the divisor the millions of persons who do not buy from the store. Complicated, isn't it?

So, next February or March, after we have all been operated on by Procrustes, the farmer's family will have coupons for the purchase of store shelf goods for which they have as little need as for the proverbial fifth wheel to a cart, while families in the city will find they have to pull in their belts to whatever notch is made necessary by the inflated divisor that has been applied to available store-stocked supplies.

Another factor, which will contribute to a cumulative inequity is the presence or absence of very small children in city families. Adults, where there also are babies in the household, obviously will be benefited, as to coupons, to the disadvantage of wholly adult households.

If there still remains doubt in any one's mind, let him make even a casual examination of actual figures for a typical small family, say, a family of three adults. Here we have 99 pounds of processed foods for a year, or less than two pounds for one week, for the three of them.

A can of peaches weighs 1 pound 13 ounces (and a family of three will not buy diminutive cans since these are wasteful of tin and should be reserved for bachelors or bachelor-maids who "live alone and like it"), so, if our family of three opens a can of peaches, we cannot have, at any time during that same week, a can of peas or of beans or of corn, no vegetable or table juices, nor anything else of the sort until another week rolls around.

You need only to look at your grocers' shelves, pick out any not-quite-two-pound item or assortment and say, "This is all that three people will get for a whole week." Any practical example such as this will provide a "reductio ad absurdum" which will make safe the prediction, and inevitably the conclusion, that the quantities proposed for this food ration radically must be increased (multiplied-not added to), or the plan

Heavy Blows Against Japs In '43 Urged

Strong Action to Choke Off Long War Advocated for U. S.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Important decisions of policy confront the American people with respect to the war in the Pacific. A significant dispatch by B. J. Mc-

Quaid, correspondent of The Star and the Chicago Daily News who is attached to the Pacific Fleet, has just been published, appearing in The Star yesterday. It is dated Pearl Har-

Mr. McQuaid strikes the same note that Jack David Lawrence.

Turcott did in a recent dispatch from Australia, so it is apparent that the viewpoint of the correspondents who come in contact with the Army in Australia is very much the same as that of the correspondents who mingle with the Navy in Hawaii. It seems plausible that these dispatches are based on conversations with men in the armed services who are apprehensive lest the Pacific be neglected as a theater of war.

Mr. McQuaid says there are persons in Hawaii who are talking in terms of a war that may outlast this decade, and he doubts whether the American people are psychologically prepared for a war of such a long duration.

"The conventional strategy. writes Mr. McQuaid, "of a stepping stone approach to Tokio via the myriad islands of Melanesia, Micronesia and the Indies, involving piecemeal reconquest of all the territory bagged by the Japs in the first months of the war, is still regarded as a theoretical possibility. Practically, this is now nearly everywhere regarded as a project demanding impossible outlays of manpower and material. Instead, observers here are talking in terms of the 'soft belly of Japan.' . .

Burma Action Necessary.

"The soft belly of Japan is roughly that area of the Pacific lying between the Japanese homeland and the Asiatic coastline north of Hangchow. . . .

"The reconquest of Burma and Thailand and French Indo-China is an indispensable prerequisite to such kicks in the Jap belly as our Pacific leaders joyfully contemplate. This means a huge land and air offensive, the establishment of ample supply routes to China and subsequent large scale utilization of Chinese manpower.

"Seapower would by no means be idle in such an offensive . . . But seapower's ultimate role will be realized in great amphibious bellykicking expeditions which can be organized only after the China coast has been cleared of the Jap

Do the American people know what is involved? Do the heads of the various war agencies in Washington realize the scope of the offensives being contemplated by the strategy outlined? If so, is American production being geared to the coming strategy or is American official authority leaning too heavily on the idea that once Hitler is licked the Japanese will fall easy victims.

Japs May Capitalize on Gains. All the information received from sources that know the Japanese and the whole Far Eastern situation is the opinion that unless the Japanese are aggressively handled this year and next they may get such a big head start as to make a long war certain.

The Japanese themselves have had an inferiority complex about defeating the United States, but since their conquests came with such relative ease in the first part or stalemate out of the conflict.

New Year's Political Possibilities In the Light of 1944's Presidential Race

By GOULD LINCOLN. The year 1942 passes into history at midnight. It has been an amazing year of war activity, in which the United States has caught its second wind. Politically, the passing year has seen the first serious rebuff of the New Deal party at the polls in a decade. What during the next 12 months. Politically, the potentialities of the New Year are great. Although the elections which are to be held in 1943 are few and far between, their results will be scanned closely for indications of what may be expected when the people go to the polls in the national election of 1944 to select a President. Mississippi and New Jersey will elect Governors. A considerable number of cities will hold their municipal elections. New Jersey has a Democratic Governor, and Democrats have held that office continuously for a long time. Despite the fact that the presidential nominations will not be made until midyear 1944, a great amount of spade work will be done during the coming year. The expectation now of many Republican as well as Democratic leads is that President Roosevelt will be nominated to succeed himself-especially if the war is still on. The smashing of the third-term tradition in 1940 has opened the way to a fourthterm candidacy. President Roosevelt has given no inkling of his future political plans. He did not in 1939 and 1940, when the question of his seeking a third term was uppermost in the minds of the politicians-nor did he indicate he would run until the last minute before the Democratic National Convention was to meet in Chicago. Presumably, he will make no statement now. Repeatedly he has asserted that the war is occupying his attention to the exclusion of politics.

Can Win Renomination.

That the President can win renomination if he desires it. most of the political leaders believe today. There are some who point to the serious rift in the Democratic party in New York, the President's own State, and in some other States in which the President and the party leaders—some of them at least-are seriously at odds. It has been suggested that, with "Jim" Farley in control of the New York Democratic organization as State chairman, an anti-Roosevelt delegation will be sent to the next Democratic National Convention. Immediately following the Republican victories in the November elections, several other Democratic leaders indicated a willingness to split with the New Dealers. Nevertheless, the power of a President to bring about his own renomination, if he wishes it, is enormous. If the President does not intend to run and finally will not run, and so informs his supporters, the question of a presidential candidate will be complex.

While Mr. Roosevelt can win renomination for himself, it will be a very different matter for him to select the party nominee and compel the convention to accept him. This will be especially true if the pendulum swings still more sharply againts the New Deal faction of the Democratic party. The result will be a host of candidates, among whom may figure Vice President Wallace, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator; James F. Byrnes, Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court and Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia, Mr Byrd would be recognized as the candidate of anti-New Deal Democrats. Not since the Civil War has the Democratiac party gone to the South for a presidential candidate, although three wars have since given ample evidence of the solidarity of the Nation.

Show Their Powers. The coming year will give an opportunity to a number of newly elected Republican Governors to show their administrative powers, as well as reelected Republican Governors. It will give Wendell L. Willkie further chance to demonstrate his powers of leadership as the 1940 nominee of the GOP. There is also the possibility that out of the war will come a great figure who will capture the imagination of the American people and become the choice of either one or the other of the major political parties.

The eyes of the Republicans will be particularly upon Gov. Bricker of Ohio, who is a receptive candidate for the nomination, and upon Thomas E. Dewey, Governor-elect of New York, who has said he is not and will not be a candidate. Mr. Willkie, notwithstanding he is poison ivy to most of the Republican politicos, has a following of his own in the country. He will not let the grass grow under his feet. He is bent not only upon making the Republican party more internationally minded, but also more progressive. Gov. Bricker, on the other hand, will be the favorite of many political leaders and a more conservative candidate.

Already there is one House byelection coming up to fill a vacancy in the 6th Missouri congressional district, where the late Representative Bennett died recently, following his re-election. Mr. Bennett was a Republican. His son, Marion Bennett, has been nominated by the Republicans for the election which takes place early in January. The Republicans expect to carry this district again, in view of the strong GOP swing in Missouri shown in the November elections. For a year prior to the 1942 elections the Republicans were successful in most of the by-elections to fill House vacancies. With the opening of the new Congress, in which the Republicans occupy a greatly strengthened position, the voters will have opportunity to see what constructive measures the Republicans put forward or support. The record of the party nationally must, in fact, be made by the Republicans in Congress.

All members, of whatever party, in the Congress are dedicated to winning the war, both by their party platforms and their personal platforms. The record must be made, however, not only on war measures, but upon those measures which affect domestic issues and the lives of the civil THE opinions of the writers on this page are their own, not necessarily The Star's. State Department Monitors Suggested For OWI Propaganda Broadcasts

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The State Department soon may be compelled to establish its own monitoring station to learn what is being said from OWI offices in New York in shortwave broadcasts to the rest of the world.

The branch of OWI dealing with propaganda abroad is nominally under Elmer Davis, but it is directed by Robert Sher-Constantine Brown. wood, assisted by his two New York representatives, James Warburg, jr., and Joseph Barnes, a well-known newspaperman with experience abroad. To this branch is intrusted the delicate mission of telling the people abroad in their own language all about the United States war effort and conceivably our aims of world settlement after the war.

Necessarily these broadcasts contain promises and admonition to friends, neutrals and enemies. But the State Department, which still considers itself as the principal foreign policy-framing agency, has no idea what the broadcasters are saying and fears that in some instances they are telling the other countries things which are not in keeping with the department's policies.

Unfortunately none of the department's policy-framers from Secretary Hull on down can obtain transcripts of these broadcasts. The OWI foreign propaganda branch, like the entire organization, was created by an executive order from the White House and, consequently, is responsible only to the White House. If any other agency, be it the State. War or Navy Department, wants to know what is being told to the hundreds of millions of people abroad and asks for copies of speeches made by OWI specialists, they are politely turned down on the ground that OWI, being responsible to the White House, cannot permit other Government departments access to its files.

The fact that no texts of the broadcasts are available to the State Department unless a special request is made to the White House is the greatest fly in the ointment today. It is burdensome for the Secretary of State to have to continue to ask the extremely busy executive offices for information the State Department should receive automati-

It appears that the State Department had given the information on the reception to the OWI the day after it occurred, but no one in the department knew what the OWI had told the Finns. There seems to be no doubt, however, that the State Department, for diplomatic considerations, was not anxious that the story should be played up in America. But had it been consulted, the text of the broadcast would have been different so as not to give the Finns a chance to say that our short-wave broad-

But the law of averages never offered a helping hand and I left the sports writing business with the reputation of being unable to call even the turn on the tides of the ocean.

But man is a creature of habit and with five bowl football games being played tomorrow I must express my opinion. I do not fear being out on a limb. It's a second home to me. In fact, my feet are curved like those of a bird from years of hanging on to the end of a limb, and if forced to I can live for weeks on acorns and tender shrubs alone.

I do not advise you to wager on my choices. As I have hinted they are likely to be wrong, and, besides, Mayor La Guardia, who frowns on betting, may be snooping around. The chances are that he will, being as he is built along key-hole lines.

Chance for Profit.

But if you must risk a farthing or two in the hope of getting enough profit for another War Bond, please give every consideration to:

Georgia in the Rose Bowl against U. C. L. A.; Georgia Tech against Texas in the Cotton Bowl; Tennessee against Tulsa in the Sugar Bowl; Alabama against Boston College in the Orange Bowl, and the Second Air Force of Spokane against Hardin-Simmons in the Sun Bowl.

But for the choice of the Air Force squad, my ballot is strictly Deep South. It might have been marked on a beaten biscuit in ham gravy and cast by Jefferson Davis, himself. But this must not be considered partisanship on my part, although that is exactly what it is. This blind faith in Southern football has cost me a pretty penny over the years and there have been days when I wished I had been born under the sign of the baked bean, the cod. and the nasal twang, instead of where the sun shines bright on the magnolia, the bandanna, the pick-aninny and the boll-weevil. But to get back to football:

Here are the scores (with explanations) of the various bowl games: Georgia, 21; U. C. L. A., 13. That's a conservative estimate. It will be a free-scoring game. It's not difficult to score on Georgia, but it is tough to keep the Georgians from scoring more than you do. Georgia has two fine passers in Sinkwich and Trippi and three great receivers in Van and Lamar Davis and George Poschner. Georgia is strictly a desperado team, and its style of play is as unconventional as can be imag-Same Score as Above.

Alabama, 21; Boston College, 13. Same score as the two above. This is the only game about which I have the slightest doubt. There is a chance that the score will be reversed, but I have had too many quail suppers at Coach Frank Thomas' house in Tuscaloosa to let him down at this late date.

Tennessee, 21; Tulsa, 13. Same score as the three above. Tennessee has been accused of being a rough football team. I wouldn't know about that, but if you didn't come out on the field with a very brave and manly elven you might not last the first half against Tennessee. Tulsa has a fine team and one of the great backs of the years is Glenn Dobbs, but may find that life in the Missouri Valley Conference is slightly different from that in the South-

Second Air Force, 21; Hardin-Simmons, 13. Same score as the four above. My suggestion to the losing team is to cross into Juarez, Mexico, as soon as the game is over and have a duck dinner at the Tivoli. It will make the loss of the game seem a trivial matter.

Don't pay any attention to these selections. To wager on them is as dangerous as playing drop the handkerchief with a bushmaster. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Best part of "Stand By for Action" is its by-play, showing how a man who has made the U.S. Navy a career and loves it, gradually impresses the code of the sea on the socialite executive officer of the ship. This young Harvard graduate, commissioned the easy way, is inclined to think the best strategy is paper work, gradually learns that action at sea and quick thinking are what counts. Cagney got what might be called an overwhelming majority, 13 of the scribes tossing him a ballot. Runner-up was Humphrey Bogart, who received two votes for his work in "Casablanca" and "Across the Pacific." This tribute to James Cagney is ratified here, as it was by the late George M. Cohan, who saw it and attached the credibility hallmark. No other acting performed in Hollywood can touch it for versatility.

In awarding the laurel for the best feminine performance, the New York editors went far afield. They chose Agnes Moorehead for her performance in Orson Welles' "Magnificent Ambersons," not enrolled with the box office screen mighty. She played Aunt Fanny in the picture.

Greta Garbo Will Expire As Heroine for Russia

Star Hopes Soviet Film Will Restore Popularity Lost in Last Feature

By SHEILAH GRAHAM,

North American Newspaper Alliance. HOLLYWOOD.-Greta Garbo will die in "Russia," the country in which, if you remember, she achieved a rebirth of popularity-in "Ninotchka." In the new movie Greta works on a collective farm, and expires heroically, scorching the earth before the German advance. Her leading man portrays a famous orchestra maestro (not the one you are thinking of), and will be either William Powell, Spencer Tracy or Walter

Drop Given Impetus By Saturday Closings Of Many Stores

Es the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Retail sales declined sharply this week from the record Christmas peak with Saturday closings of many stores giving impetus to the drop, Dun & Bradstreet said today.

Activity increased early in the current week, however, and volume still continued above a year ago.

The business research organization said announcement of canned goods rationing to be instituted in February failed to produce panicky buving by consumers because retailers strictly limited sales. Grocers' volume expanded steadily, however, to cause good turnover for the ordinarily dull week, it added. Clearances and special-priced sales generally were higher than a year ago, good interest was noted. Christmas returns and exchanges generally were indicated to be less than normally expected Because retail stocks often were smaller than a year ago limitations were in vogue and, although prices frequently were seen in clearance sales and broken assortments were emphasized. In pre-inventory sales demand was noted for seasonal apparel, such as furs and fur-trimmed coats, sportswear, dresses, shoes and foundation garments. Men's clothing activity was spurred because of offprice promotions and deferment of men over 38 years old from military Holiday parties stimulated a demand for evening dresses and accessories, accounting for brisk sales in women's wear. Promotions of ski and resort wear was toned down in comparison with former years because of wartime recreation curtailment. Ski clothes were suggested for war work and Southern fashions for visits to Army camps. Country-wide trade gains over 1941 were estimated at 2 to 6 per cent. Regional increases were: East, 0 to 3 per cent; New England, 2 to 4; Middle West, 3 to 6; South, 4 to 8; Southwest, 6 to 11; Northwest, 2 to 6; Pacific Coast, 9 to 13.

Enjoying one of the best months Ar this year, net income of the Chesa- An peake & Potomac Telephone Co. in A November reached $277.948, against A $153,950 in November, 1941, an in- A crease of $123.998, according to the monthly report filed with the Public Ar Utilities Commission today.

Operating expenses amounted to $2,000,262, compared with $1,404,939 +1 a year ago; operating expenses totaled $1,399.200, against $1,040,185. leaving net operating revenues of $601,062, compared with $364.754 last year. Operating taxes required ta $282,270, while this figure stood at A $129,089 a year ago.

The report for the 11 months of 1942 sho ed a net income of $1,-437,372, against $1,425,877 in the like period a year ago, a very modest increase of $11,495. For the 11 months of 1942, operat- A ing revenues were 35.75 per cent Ar higher than last year, amounting Ar to $19,456,645, compared with $14.-332,595 last year. At the same time operating expenses were 41.14 An higher, requiring $15,035,460 against Ar

$10,550,380 last year. Taxes called for $1.842.220 this year and $1.408.005 in the same period a year ago. Interest deductions required $1,127,088 this year and $932.720 in the first 11 months of 1941, the report revealed.

There were 356.195 telephones in the service at the end of November, which was an increase of 1.533 telephones over the previous month. Telephone users made 39.703.000 calls during the month, or 552,000 more ar than in November, 1941.

Bank Notes Back in Service. Federal Reserve Banks are now A utilizing the existing stock of currency printed in the early thirties, known as 'Federal Reserve Bank Notes,' authorized by the Federal A Reserve Board as a part of the program of the Government to conserve both labor and materials during the war period. In announcing the plan earlier this month, the Reserve

Board said: "The stock of these notes, which is in $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100 denominations, amounts to approximately $660,000,000. By making available B for use, as needed, this stock of un-Issued paper currency, which is identical with Federal Reserse Bank Notes now in circulation, it is estimated that more than $300,000 will be saved in the cost of printing new B currency

"In terms of labor and materials, there would be a saving of 225,000 man-hours in printing alone, and of 45 tons of paper in addition to a substantial saving of nylon and ink.

Big War Stamp Drive Near. "The January Stamp Album Clearance Drive" announced by H. L. Rust, jr., chairman of the District of Columbia War Savings Committee, is to be one of the liveliest campaigns witnessed in the Capital in a long time, according to plans B outlined to the full committee. It will even include house to house

The drive is to be national in scope, the Treasury announcing that there are 100,000.000 War stamp alburns partially filled. The object of I the drive, Mr. Rust says, is to get these books filled and converted into War bonds.

Efforts will be made to get the stores to give change in War stamps when satisfactory to the customer and give the drive a big boost in B

FEARLESSLY-COURAGEOUSLY-STEADFASTLY

This New Year brings a hope, and a promise. It also brings a test of our determination, our sincerity, our integrity. We believe that NOW is the time to re-dedicate ourselves to the task before us... to contribute of our ideas, our energies, and our worldly goods towards the speediest possible Victory.

Of course, the needs of our Armed Forces come first. But, the job of bringing to you those things that are necessary to daily living, takes on an added importance during Wartime. Our increased obligations to our Nation and City have not lessened our responsibilities to you, who depend upon us for so many things.

You have been most understanding about shortages, restrictions and curtailed services; you have cheerfully carried your purchases; you have brought in your discarded silk and nylon hosiery and other articles for salvage; you have been patient and ready to make any necessary sacrifice of your own comfort and convenience . . .

You have responded magnificently to our appeals to invest in

WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

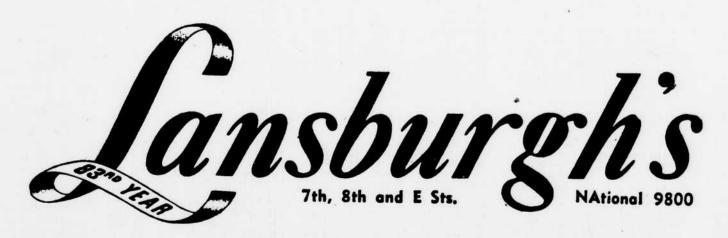

We won't forget these things in 1943. Nor shall we neglect to do everything within our power to merit such whole-hearted co-operation.

83 years ago we started to weave a pattern, and, while our task was punctuated from time to time by wars and other untoward circumstances, we've never deviated from our standard of Quality which has a prominent place in our original pattern.

That's why, in these days, when it's up to you to buy more wisely than ever, you can depend upon us to keep always before us that pattern which has stood every test of time:

Let's Resolve in 1943 to

Warden Service Faces 50% Cut In Enrollment

'Pearl Harbor Patriots' Who Shirked Training To Be Dropped Tonight

The midnight deadline tonight on training and certification in the warden service may cut in half its present enrollment, eliminating the "Pearl Harbor patriots" who have taken no training, it was indicated

Officials of the service emphasized, however, that the move to insure trained workers was not to be considered a purge, but was in line with regulations calling for certification of all those enrolled in the service. Approximately 16,000 members of the service either have been certified, have applied for certification or are in the final stages of training.

Issues Only Partly Limited for Hearing On Sale of 3 Tokens

Pre-Hearing Conference Maps PUC Session For January 12

Issues to be involved in a hearng January 12 before the Public Utilities Commission on sale of streetcar tokens at a rate of three for 25 cents (the present rate is six for 50 cents) were only partly limited at a pre-hearing conference yesterday afternoon before the PUC. It was agreed by spokesmen for the public and the Capital Transit Co that reduction of revenues to the company, should the change be ordered, would not be considered an issue. Heretofore, the company has claimed the change would mean the possible loss of $192,000 to $250,000 in revenue as more patrons elected to buy tokens instead of paying a 10-cent cash fare.

Arguments Develop. However, efforts to agree on other developed between G. Thomas Dunlop, company counsel; George Hankin, PUC member, and representatives of public groups. It was agreed level is reached, but the Potomac memerous suggestions as to what there are some groups of riders in the low-income group who might | not have 50 cents at any one time to invest in streetcar tokens, while they might have 25 cents for three tokens, but there was no specific understanding recorded on this

The conference discussion indicated that proponents of the changed system would present testimony to the effect that sale of tokens at the rate of six for 50 cents was discriminatory to an "undue" degree, ut James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman, said he hoped it would be possible to consolidate testimony so as to eliminate that which was merely a duplication.

Week's Recess Called in D. C. Hospital Quiz

McCarran Calls on FWA and WPB To 'Get Together'

The Senate District Committee hearing on the present delay in the District hospital expansion program was recessed for one week by Chairman McCarran late yesterday to give WPB and FWA officials an opportunity to "get together."

The recess came shortly after Maury Maverick, director of the Governmental Division of WPB had made a report before the committee and had been told by Senator McCarran that he was "beating the devil around the bush" by showing "utter disregard of things before you.'

In answer to questioning, Mr. Mayerick admitted that he had not conferred with the Commissioners. but added that he would be willing to talk with them and with the FWA "any time they say."

Asks for Quick Action. Senator McCarran interrupted to ask the director if he thought he could act quickly.

"We could do part of it right away," Mr. Maverick replied, turning for confirmation to Everett W. Jones, chief hospital consultant for

"We could do it in three or four days if we get men together who want to work," agreed Mr. Jones Mr. Mayerick added that he would see Commissioner John Russell Young, a neighbor, who had been at the hearing during the morning. and would try to make arrangements for a meeting.

"All right, then," said Senator McCarran, "we'll recess with the understanding that you will report back in a week. That should give you time

"We'll have right much of it done by then," assured Mr. Maverick. Surprised by Testimony.

The WPB director opened his formal statement before the committee by complimenting it for bringing the hospital matter to a head, commenting: "It must be brought to a head." He added further that the testimony made before the committee during the morning had surprised him, "not so much because it was honest and unprejudiced, but because it showed so many beds vacant.'

He said further that when he originally had prepared the report he had been of the opinion that venereal disease cases could be taken care of outside the District. At the hearing, he explained he had learned that Glenn Dale Sanatorium was outside the city and commented that "that's the logical place lieve you yourself can go ahead. If you say this hospital work can be done, it will be done Commenting that hospitals have got to use the facilities at their disposal, Mr. Maverick contended that the testimony during the morning had abundantly borne out that even more beds than those cited by the WPB report were available without construction "Most of the hospital heads who spoke showed that the facilities they need are beds," observed Senator

McCarran. "Then why don't they get them?" asked Mr. Maverick.

"They can't get priorities from you," replied the Senator Promises Priorities

"Yes, they can," quickly answered Mr. Maverick. "They'll get them as quickly as I get to my office if they show some disposition to co-operate in this matter.

Earlier in the afternoon, Paul B. Cromelin, chairman of the Sibley Hospital Board, told of a financial loss to the institution of approximately $450 a month because of the delay in the expansion program. He explained that the hospital, in answer to instructions from FWA informing it that a $70,000 application for improvements had been approved, had removed the tenants from six dwellings which were to be converted into nurses' quarters and that the buildings still are vacant.

Answering a questionnaire sent him by the committee, Dr. John M. Orem, superintendent of Sibley, reported that six different surveys had been made of the hospital's facilities, but added it was possible some of these were part of others. "Conditions were the same when all of them were made," he an-

Garfield officials told of FWA recommending a one-story project to provide 44 additional beds and bassinets, but this was not mentioned in the WPB report today. WPB consultants said in their report 54 beds could be added without new construction and 18 with minor construction. Hospital officials told the committee it might be possible to add a few more beds "but we don't believe it advisable or safe.

Legislation making penalties for blackout violations mandatory and to increase the number of committing magistrates in each election district are among the measures to be sponsored by the Prince Georges County (Md) delegation to the General Assembly, which opens Wednesday in Annapolis, it was learned

In addition, delegation members are expected to present proposals to streamline the Hvattsville city government and to redistrict the town of Mount Rainier into two election precincts

Declaring that the present county blackout ordinance "lacks teeth," J. Robert Sherwood, county civilian defense director, pointed out that while penalties for blackout violations have been approved by the county, in most instances, these penalties have not been imposed on

Auxiliary Force Sought. Mr. Sherwood said he also wanted the legislature to grant the county commissioners authority to create a county-wide auxiliary police force. At present, he explained, towns and incorporated areas have set up their own auxiliary police force, but no such force has been established in unincorporated areas. Creation of a county-wide force under the jurisdiction of the civilian defense council would do much toward clearing up confusion of authority,

The State law limiting the number of committing magistrates to one in each election district was enacted four years ago, county officials said, and repealed a measure authorizing two or three magistrates in each district.

These magistrates, it was aid, have authority to commit persons to jail, issue warrants to, in some instances, to try violations of town write letters, play cards and eat a ordinances

Members of the council termed the proposal one that would "eliminate a lot of overlapping." Mount Rainier officials have approved a proposed bill to include Wards 1 and 2 in one precinct and Wards 3 and 4 in another precinct. County officials said the delegation also may seek enactment of

$33,300 Budget Increases Voted In Alexandria

Ordinance Covers $1,476,164 Expenses For Coming Year

Voting increases of $33,300 over the originally proposed 1943 budget, Alexandira City Council has passed an appropriation ordinance covering $1,476.164.16 expenses for the coming year.

Major change in the budget is the increase from $315,000 to $340,000 for the operation of schools. This is an increase of $40,000 over last year's appropriation but does not meet the $361,000 asked from the city by the School Board.

Other increases voted after public hearing of the proposed budget include $1,500 salary for the employment of a policewoman. This move is a result of petitions from civic organizations for some action to be taken by the council to curb the rise in juvenile delinquency.

Largest Salary Raise. Largest salary raise voted in the oudget boosted the pay of the health officer, Dr. W. A. Browne, to $5,400. The proposed budget had set his sal-

Open House at Congressional Club: Mrs. Edward McLean to Be Hostess

Nineteen-hundred and forty-two will be sped on its way as 1943 is welcomed in many homes with small groups of guests as well as larger groups in clubs and hotels and tomorrow many informal at homes have been arranged as a celebration of another new year.

The Congressional Club, which has given up its social affairs for Red Cross work and lectures, will follow the custom of its much more than 25 years, and will keep open house tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 3 and 6. The attractive little clubhouse at 2001 New Hampshire avenue at the corner of U and Sixteenth streets was built some years ago on the site which was presented by the late Mrs. Henderson, widow of Senator John B. Henderson. Mrs. Henderson, who built and occupied Boundary Castle on Sixteenth street at Florida avenue, was one of the leaders in the organization of the club which first .

had headquarters on K street near Sixteenth. Several years ago the club built an addition to the north Mary M. Wilson which has made more comfort for its members and given more room Recent Bride for kitchens and pantries.

The Czechoslovak Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Cervenka will be hosts this evening at a New Year eve party entertaining in their new home at 3280 Chestnut street in Chevy Chase where they moved several weeks ago from the apartment at 2138 California street. Their guests will be members of the Legation staff and their wives. There was no celebration of Christmas and the New Year at the Legation this year as the Minister, M. Vladimir Hurban is in London and Mme. Hurban is spending the holidays with her family in New York.

> As an institution catering to the material needs of the public our thoughts naturally turn to the continuation of the task we have been performing for almost sixty-three years - supplying the best available merchandise. Because this war demands so many and so varied materials there are now and will continue to be shortages in some goods and a total lack in others; some will be rationed. In all of these difficulties we ask, and are sure of receiving, your sympathetic understanding and help.

To a spirit of sincere gratitude we add our deep appreciation for your cooperation and patience during the Christmas season. The lack of personnel made it impossible to render the type of service you have been accustomed to receive from us in past years.

Faithful Brushing Gives the Scalp Stimulation

By Patricia Lindsay Well-groomed and shining hair is a wonderful asset! No meticulous beauty is ever content with her appearance if her hair is in need of econditioning and a new coiffure. Today's emphasis on the practical has brought back the feather bob, the 2-inch cut and the windblown. But short hair is not a "must," even for the women who have taken strenuous man-sized jobs in factories. There is a wide choice of hair-dos. The main thing is to keep the hair neatly coiffed and shining. A clever stylist in a well-known salon once said. "It is amazing that women understand so little about hair. Fashions for the Future

Confident Reply Given to Query 'Where Do We Go From Here?'

Now that we're teetering on the edge of a new year, the big question in fashion circles is "What'll happen to clothes in 1943?" Most popular phase of the discussion centers around clothes rationing, of course, and there are just as many who think it imminent as there are those who believe it unlikely.

Apparently nobody knows for sure whether rationing of clothes will come, or if it does, what form it is likely to take. However, nobody is terribly worried, primarily because, rationed or not, women will be buying only the things they need when they need 'em. They know that what is unavailable automatically becomes unfashionable—so there is no sense in hoarding garments because they

One serving developments in fabrics. of a yellow vegetable, such as carrots, offers 2,100 units. Average servings of meat and potatoes will provide about 160 units. A small orange contains 200 units, while one serving of prunes provides 900. All of these added together provide 6,-

The simplest way to find large quantities is to use every day green greens, and just one serving of them, will give us 16,000 units. Kale is just as high and spinach almost as rich in this vitamin. The outer leaves of lettuce and all salad vegetables which are bright green will give us 3,000 or 4,000 at one serving. Sweet potatoes, yellow squash, carrots, green peppers, peas and tomatoes, all highly colored vegetables, can be counted upon for units, the number of which runs into the thousands.

If you will make it a rule to use highly-colored vegetables, some of them in raw form, each day, and to put a cooked green on your menu once or twice a week, you are not likely to be short of vitamin A. It is good to use liver, which is exceptionally well endowed with this vitamin at least once a week. As a certain amount of vitamin A can be stored by the body, we can check our diet by the week rather than just by the day. It is particularly important as cold weather comes on and epidemics of colds are common to have enough of this vitamin in our diet so that we will be protected from the effects of cold germs to which we are all exposed. The other outstanding contribution of this vitamin is in regard to the condition of the eyes.

It seems reasonable to assume that should rationing be put into effect it will be done fairly and squarely with enough for everybody -as has been the case in almost everything else rationed. One of the most interesting opinions of what will happen to clothes was voiced by Dorothy Anderson, executive director of the New York Dress Institute, the association of more than 800 manufacturers who supply the bulk of America's retail It is simple to check the day's diet dress trade. Tulsans Pay for Ersatz Cheering at Sugar Bowl

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (N.A.N.A.).—The wartime transportation ruling which says "stay home" has had more than one peculiar effect on the football season of 1942 not the least deffy of which is effect on the football season of 1942, not the least daffy of which is the development of the second-hand or ersatz rooting section.

Ersatz rooting has carried right up to the final football day, tomorrow, when bowl rivalries will be adjusted. At the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans servicemen will go to the Tulsa-Tennessee game at the expense of loyal but grounded Tulsans, and will proceed, for the modest consideration of $1.10 apiece, to root with enthusiasm for dear old Tulsa an institution with which most of the boys in uniform are not very

The faithful fans of Tulsa proper, as you know, are marooned at home by railroad and rubber priorities. It would tear their heartstrings to think who has steered baseball through that the team on this, the biggest day in Tulsa football history, was numerous rocky channels, squared struggling on hostile ground with no grandstand support.

Amount of Rooting for $1.10 Is Not Fixed

So Tulsa passed the hat, collected a respectable bundle of scratch, and Transportation. shipped the money to neutral stakeholders in New Orleans with an application for ersatz rooting. Tulsa pays for a ticket and a serviceman goes to the ball game. I understand that each soldier, sailor or marine will carry with him a set of instructions, or tip sheet, outlining the chores when they convene shortly, that that are expected of him in return for the $1.10. The serviceman will:

(A) Study the colors carefully, so as not to emit an unsolicited and to complete co-operation with the unpaid for "rah!" for Tennessee. If Tennessee wants ersatz cheering let 'em put up the sugar

(B) Use his own judgment about how much Tulsa cheering constitutes $1.10's worth. He does not have to wreck his voice. (C) Master the football scoring system, and give out with twice as Eastman, Landis also pried a prom-

Offers No Reason to Uproot Goal Posts

There is nothing in the contract which requires ersatz rooters to tear down the goal posts in the event of a Tulsa victory. Union rules for ersatz yesterday indicated he will issue rooting have not been thoroughly codified as yet, but the best legal opinion revolutionary orders. is that you cannot expect goal-post tearing for $1.10.

I learn from a trustworthy source that next year, if football still is being played, this sort of work will be compensated by full time for overtime and time and a half in case the posts are rooted in concrete. Tulsa ought to get pretty good value for its money in tomorrow's experiment. Presumably, servicemen not affiliated with either university were neutral as of one minute before they got their tickets.

Each ticket, therefore, may be expected to sway the pendulum of uniformed sentiment toward Tulsa to the extent of $1.10, and with 1,000 able-bodied fellows out there in the grandstand that's important cheering.

They played the game in Navy's home town, and when Army applied for ersatz support it developed that there was not a neutral pair of tonsils to be had. Army settled for a "cadet" rooting section composed of seafaring men. It was the best it could do, but the results were most Mind you. I do not accuse the ersatz rooters of deliberately dogging it, but they just could not get their hearts into the thing, and neither could the Army football team. A little loyal racket, subsidized or otherwise, goes a long way toward winning a game.

The Sugar Bowl contest will be a milestone in the ersatz rooting industry if Tulsa wins. If she doesn't it may be necessary to revise the wage scale upward throughout the industry.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis away today to spank the vast in-dustry over which he presides. Thus it seemed following his conference here with Josesph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense

Indications are that Landis is prepared to get tough with confused major league club owners he will demand drastic action geared

Landis, though, left little doubt he He may wipe out spring training at Southern sites, slice East-West trips to two, reduce the player limit or abbreviate the schedule-only he and Eastman know-but Landis' conduct following his conference

"We Don't Need Orders." "We want to do and will do what everyone will agree is the decent thing to do," declared Landis following his conference with Eastman. "We don't need orders. Baseball is going to do everything possible calculated to help solve the transportation problem and you can add that I think it's a very small contribution to the war effort on our part.

The Judge'll Tell 'Em. Landis, though, never has been content to go halfway. It is likely will be severe in orders to clubowners where Eastman made requests. Landis left the impression that baseball will do more than has been asked of it.

When Landis decides to get tough he pulls no punches. Three years ago he declared 91 Detroit-owned players free agents, fined Owner Walter O. Briggs of the Tigers $47,500 and stripped him of $500,000 in playing talent. Landis is the Federal judge who. in 1907, fined the Standard Oil Co. $29,000,000 in a freight rebate case and compelled John D. Rockefeller, sr., to come to Chicago and testify. That the fine didn't stick is beside the point. Landis levied it in good Landis isn't easy with himself. When approached by baseball club owners and asked to take command of baseball he rejected their salary offer of $50,000. He took $42,500, his salary as a Federal judge. In 1932, when his salary had risen to $65,000, he gave himself a $15,000 cut. The following year he sliced off another $10,000.

Tokle Greatest Athlete, Griping Skiers Claim Sport Requires More Nerve Than All Others Combined, They Say

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Dec. 31.—The boys who built and run the biggest "man-made ski slide in the world" here contend they have a first-class gripe. It's with the Nation's sports experts who annually pick the year's outstanding athletes for the Associated Press. · Here's the gist of their com-

"They pick 30 athletes, include swimmers, tennis players, golfers and baseball players-and don't mention a man who has never been outjumped in his sport. A man who can travel by his own momentum 90 miles an hour and jump nearly the length of a football field—Torger Tokle, the greatest ski jumper of all time. "Competing in a sport that takes more nerve than football, baseball, golf, tennis and all others put together, Torger has not been outjumped since he came here from Norway nearly four years ago. Yet he isn't even mentioned among the 30 best athletes of the year. "He came here from Norway January 21, 1939, a fat kid who had taught himself how to jump. and 24 hours later he had borrowed a pair of skis and broke the hill record at Bear Moun-

"During the following four years, Tokle didn't have any blocking backs or big tackles to pave his way to fame. He soared down those icy chutes alone in 50 meets, winning 44 titles. In six meets he was outpointed on form, but never has a competitor outjumped him.

"The way Torger jumps a slip might mean death, yet he never hesitates but stretches for it. Last March at Pine Mountain slide here, a crowd of 20,000 came. hoping to see a new American

"Torger didn't disappoint them. He jumped 289 feet for a new American record. What the crowd did not know was that if he had jumped 5 feet longer he probably would have suffered serious injuries. He knew that hill was very dangerous if you went beyond 285 feet, but it didn't stop

"If Torger's ski-jumping ability was transformed into football talent, the great 'Sinky' couldn't carry his shoes.' Frank "Sinky" Sinkwich of Georgia, was named by the experts as the No. 1 athlete of Torger is jumping for the American Army now. He's with the ski troopers.

The Real Danger

Most players know how to handle suit so as to get the most out of it. But sometimes the plan for an entire hand conflicts with the best play of a single suit. Today's hand is a case in point: East dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

West led the six of spades and South considered his problem before he played even the first card from dummy. He could count six immediate winners in diamonds, together with the heart and club aces. That would yield eight tricks, making it necessary for him to win only one spade trick to fulfill his contract.

If he played a low spade from dummy he would have a chance to 11. A beverage win two spade tricks, for West's lead might be from the ace-queen. But if East won the first trick with eitner the ace of spades or the queen a low spade, East would have taken 3. A line that ace of spades he would have taken the king with his ace (as South actually played the hand) and then might easily have led another spade. With dummy's king captured it might well appear that South had no spade stopper, in which case the defense might hope to win four spade tricks at once. * * * *

Austin Asserts Peace Must Be Planned in Midst of Conflict

Victory Not Limited to Beating Enemy, He Says In Radio Forum Talk

Why it is necessary to plan the peace while the war is being fought to victory was explained last night by Senator Austin, Republican, of Vermont, in an address on the National Radio Forum, arranged by The Star and broadcast over WMAL and the Blue Network.

"Winning the war," he pointed out, "is not limited to beating the enemy. Moreover, winning the war would not be accomplished by causing an armistice. A peace must be dictated to the Axis by the United Nations which will guarantee, by all the force that is necessary, that the children of the men who now give their lives shall not be obliged to repeat that sacrifice in the periodic, barbarous aggression by Axis forces. * * *

"This involves wise planning on our part, and patient negotiation with our Allies for a structure of peace having those bastions of security, of justice, of economics and of law enforcement which will maintain freedom as the prevailing principle throughout the world."

Drawing from the experience of the World War, he said, "We know that the necessary advance in civilization through international convention and the structure for enduring peace is utterly impossible if public opinion is not ready for the progressive principles and theories essential to the peace treaties."

"We can attribute the failures of the United States in 1920 to recognize her responsibility largely to lack of information during the period of negotiation," the Senator added. These were among the questions which Senator Austin asked his
