Jap Destroyers Hit by P-T's Off Guadalcanal

Small Craft Attack 8 Enemy Warships Trying to Land Stores

American motor torpedo boats attacked eight Japanese destroyers off the northwestern end of Guadalcanal Saturday and definitely scored a hit on one vessel and three possible hits on two others, the Navy reported in a communique today.

Enemy aircraft counterattacked and bombed our P-T boats, inflicting slight damage, the communique added.

The destroyers, presumably headed for a rendezvous to leave stores for Japanese forces trapped on Guadalcanal, were attacked in what the Navy termed "isolated engagements." The northwestern end of Guadalcanal is about 20 miles from Henderson Airfield, which is near the center of the island.

This was the first mention of Japanese naval vessels near the island in about a month, and the first attack by enemy aircraft at that point for some time. On December 28, 30 cargo parachutes, laden with supplies, were found on the beach at the north side of the island, obviously dropped from a plane which flew over in the night. The supplies were bombed and strafed early in the morning by our flyers.

The Navy gave no further details of the torpedo boat attack. This also was first mention of P-T boats in the Guadalcanal area.

It was not made clear whether any of the destroyers got through the torpedo boat attack to make contact with the shore, or whether they all were driven off. 'Major Victory' At Mozdok Hailed By Russians

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.-The Red Army of the Caucasus advanced along both banks of the Terek River today, driving the Germans back to the northwest and west from newly recaptured Mozdok and breaking a salient which the Nazi forces had thrust forward more than four months ago toward the Grozny oil fields, Russian reports said.

The swift Russian recapture yesterday of Mozdok and Malgobek, 15 miles southeast of Mozdok, was considered a major victory like the vic-tories of Stalingrad and Velikie Luki, where the Red Army continled its offensives.

The German lines appeared to be crumbling in the most important sectors, the Russians said, as the Nazi command stiffened resistance at some points only to be hit at others by the hard-driving Red appeared to be Prokhladnenski, which is a railroad junction for lines running east and west and south and lies 35 miles west of Mozdok. The reoccupation of Prokhladnenski would cut off the German forces at Nalchik, now under attack from the southeast. Winter rains have broken the terrain and made the Caucasus campaign slower than the drive across the Don steppes, but the entire German position in the heart of the North Caucasusalready imperiled by the Russian push south from Stalingrad—now appeared in greater danger from frontal assaults.

"It will help to relieve the situation, but even so we don't feel warranted in holding out any hope of relaxing gasoline rationing and not more than a very small fuel oil relaxation." said the Secretary. "It's going to be a tight pull until March 1, when the weather should offer

Navy Changes Pay Period for Civilian Force

The Navy Department moved today to lessen bookkeeping problems 1-Florizan Sam, Betty Leon, Ho The regular pay days for civilian employes in Washington will remain the 4th and 19th of each month. Formerly the periods covered work done through each date, and necessitated additional bookkeeping to provide for work which had not been done at the time the checks were made out. The new system will compensate employes for services for the 1st to 15th and the 16th to the last day of the month. The plan already is in effect at naval shore establishments and in the Marine Corps.

Despite the change in the pay period with the attendant four-day withholding, the majority of civilian employes all receive larger checks 6than usual on January 19. Patman Bill to Ask U.S. to Share Some State, City Debts

Proposal Is Designed To Cushion Effect of Decreased Revenues

A proposal that Congress require Federal Reserve Banks to take over some of the obligations of States. counties and cities now confronted with decreased revenues, was made yesterday by Chairman Patman of the Special House Small Business

He estimated that States owed approximately $3,500,000,000 in outstanding obligations; counties, $2,-500,000,000; cities, $10,000,000,000; school districts, $2,000,000,000, and other political subdivisions, $2,000,-

Bill Being Drafted.

Representative Patman said he was preparing for introduction soon a measure which would require the Federal Reserve Banks to accept those obligations that became delinquent and pay for them at par and accrued interest, or at the fair market price or at some date before Pearl Harbor, whichever is the

The Federal Reserve banks would be required to hold these obligations until the war is over and for at least a definite period thereafter. The interest charge could not be in excess of one-eighth of 1 per cent a

In a statement, he said that he was considering also a move to release revenue raised through the Federal gasoline tax to the States and political subdivisions.

Gas Tax Losses Cited. "Most political subdivisions have been affected by the war because of their reliance upon sales taxes and local gasoline taxes," he commented. Representative Patman estimated that 31 per cent of the revenues of a State comes from sales taxes on motor fuel and general sales and another 15 per cent from business and motor vehicle permits and licenses, both of which are seriously threatened by wartime conditions.

Now, just a moment. A foreign phrase tossed in with an air of nonchalance often is a timid way of escape from a tough spot. It goes down easily with those who catch it on the fly. It flatters some listeners or readers. And if a subscriber doesn't understand a phrase, he certainly can't take offense at it. McNutt Tells Industry To Expect Huge Loss Of Men to Armed Units

'Every Replaceable Male' May Be Inducted Before End of War

By JESSE O. IRVIN. Manpower Chairman Paul V. Mc-Nutt today issued a warning that the coming impact of selective service withdrawals on industrial personnel is still not generally realized.

"Employers must accustom themselves to the fact that, as the war goes on, the armed services will almost certainly claim every replacable male employe of military age and fitness in every industry, re-gardless of its essentiality," he declared, adding that:

"In any average plant, the with-drawals of 1943 will probably be equal to the total of all previous withdrawals since the start of the

Lists Are Revised.

This statement was made as the commission revised its labor shortage and supply areas' list for guidance of the War Production Board in awarding and renewing contracts. The list plainly shows that man-power is not a single problem, but a network of specific difficulties arising in communities throughout the United States, with some cities suffering from labor shortage while others have an oversupply.

Thirty-one areas from Buffalo to Seatle, from San Diego to Panama City, Fla., from Detroit to Pasca-goula, Miss., and including the Dis-trict of Columbia, Baltimore, Elkton, Md., and Hampton Roads, Va., are listed as having sent frantic appeals for labor help to the commission. So acute is the labor shortage in these areas, the commission has asked the WPB not to award or renew contracts.

Paradoxically, labor surpluses, according to this list, can be found in 85 communities, including New York City, Boston, Richmond, Danville, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Chattanooga, Bloomington and Peoria, Ill.; Muncie, Ind.; Birmingham, Altoona, Scranton, Knoxville, Nashville, Oshkosh, La Crosse, Sheboygan and the West Virginia cities of Charles- thing should be done. In these days ton, Huntington, Parkersburg and Wheeling. Labor is so plentiful in be some who are not able to conthese communities that new war vert. The oil administrator said contracts are urgently requested by the commission

Between Group 1, where acute shortages exist, and Group 4, where unemployment is prevalent, the commission classified 95 cities where there exists a current balance of labor supply, and 61 cities where there are anticipated balanced labor supplies. The WPB is asked to exercise caution in awarding contracts in these areas.

The commission said it has modified its standards for classifying leaders in the mine industry in an areas to make classifications more effort to expedite satisfactory agreeuseful to procurement authorities ments and to prevent undue hardships to potential suppliers.

"It should, of course, be realized," the commission emphasized, "that Inquiry, Chairman Maloney quashed officials in negotiating war-procurement contracts are guided by many might lead to increased allotments considerations, of which manpower is only one. The ability of the firm to deliver or perform a contract on time and the ability of a concern to fill a contract with a minimum amount of new machinery or equipment, and other factors are likewise important influences."

Using Factory Management and Maintenance, an industrial organ, as a vehicle to carry a message to employers, Mr. McNutt predicted that a pronounced drop in "turnover" of industrial personnel would follow the cessation of voluntary military enlistments.

"We of the Manpower Commission saw the need for stopping enlistments and I am gratified beyond measure that the change has come,' Mr. McNutt declared. "Employers will be equally gratified when the effect of the order becomes evident. They will find, I am sure, that the rate at which they lose men to the armed services will become more stable and predictable, while the restless tendencies of military-age workers will naturally be stilled. Pirating Causes Turnover.

"Labor turnover has many causes. of course—not the least of which pirating. But, in plant after plant, voluntary enlistments have made heavy, irregular and often disruptive inroads on personnel, frequently exceeding selective service withdrawals.' The manning table plan is to allow employers to prepare a schedule of withdrawals of employes into military service in the inverse order of their essentiality. When a plan prepared by an employer is approved, selective service local boards are notified that employes listed thereon should be deferred for the length of time required to train replacements. An interim procedure, while manning tables are being drawn up, is called the "replacement schedule," a simplified form of the manning table which temporarily accomplishes the same purpose. A broader object of the manning table plan, however, is to provide data for a national inventory of industry's

Prosperous Two Years To Follow War's End, Brookings Predicts

Wartime Restrictions Build Future Demand For Civilian Goods

The Brookings Institution predicted today on the basis of a survey that the first two years or more following the present war are likely to mission and the Office of Defense be characterized by good times rath-

The forecast was based on the exernment agencies pointed out that perience of the United States after

"Just as extraordinary war demands stimulate war production," the Brookings statement said, "so the accumulated needs resulting from wartime restrictions and the consequent shortages stimulate resumption of peace production on a vast scale to meet replacement requirements.

Difficulty Follows Boom.

"Economic difficulties are more likely to occur after the replacement mand produced by the war is ended." The financial colarse of 1920 itwas pointed out in the report, was due largely to maladjustments arising out of the 1919 boom rather than the war.

Contrasting the situation which may be expected at the end of this war with that after the First World War, several major favorable and unfavorable major factors were cited as likely to be operating.

Favorable Side. On the favorable side were a retarded rate of demobilization, large reconstruction requirements abroad. domestic shortages of consumer goods, deferred maintenance and replacement of industrial equipment, housing deficiencies, relatively large purchasing power, less exten-

Unfavorable conditions were expected to include the unprecedented size of the employment problem, difficulties in reconverting industries, possible shortages of working capital in industry, high corporate taxes and an unfavorable ratio of costs to selling prices in industry, particularly manufacturing.

Maj. Taylor, a native of Cleveland, entered the Army in 1898, and saw service in Cuba and the Philippine Islands during the Spanish-American War.

When the World War began he was recalled from the Philippines, where he was on active duty and given a commission as a captain in the Field Artillery. Before leaving for France he was made a major. During the 18 months he spent in France he commanded Batteries A and B. 347th Field Artillery.

Wounded Five Times. Maj. Taylor earned the right to wear five wound stripes during his 31 years in the service. He was gassed in November, 1918. For service during the battle of the Meuse-Argonne he was awarded the Order of the Purple Heart.

Montgomery County school system have been nearly completed, according to Dr. E. W. Broome, county superintendent of schools. Dr Broome said that the Leland Junior High School in Chevy Chase, Md. would be converted from the use of oil to coal immediately, since priorities approval for the necessary parts has been obtained.

Approval of priorities is still pending on the Takoma Park-Silver Spring High School and on the school administration building in Rockville, formerly the Rockville High School Forced to Close Early.

It was recalled that students at the Leland school had to be released from classes several days before the beginning of the Christmas holidays. Dr. Broome explained this was due to the breakdown of a motor on one of the two oil burners and the difficulty in getting replacement parts. He said both heating plants in the school were now in operation.

Federal officials were still trying today to bring more oil into the District against the day when the temperature drops to near the zero mark again. Consumers were warned, however, that even if more oil is found for the District, they could not expect increased allotments. The principal effect would be to provide dealers with enough oil to make proper deliveries.

Renah F. Camalier, consultant to District OPA Director Whitney Leary, said today he had been conferring over the week end both with Mr. Leary and Leon Henderson.

"The situation is still pretty desperate," he said, "and we are pulling every available wire to get the oil Civilian Mobilization Division of the estimate the Russian methods and none of us is laughing about the armor Bolshevism has again fixed to itself." he added.

HE New Year promises to be one of the most strenuous this nation has ever endured . . . both on the battlefronts and on the home front.

It is just a little more than a year since that Sunday afternoon when Japanese bombs blasted us into the maelstrom of another World War . . . after a little less than a quarter century of formal peace.

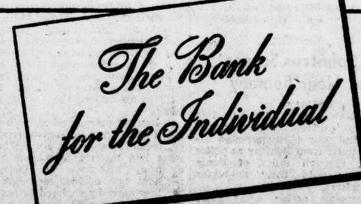

But in this War there are no silk shirts ... no silk stockings ... no new automobiles. In the midst of soaring wages, we find it necessary to sacrifice temporarily many of the things we associate with the more abundant life. Rationing has been applied to sugar, coffee, rubber shoes, typewriters, bicycles, automobiles, tires, gasoline, fuel oil. By press and radio we are forewarned of further impending shortages.

It all adds up to this: War means sacrifice. We can't pay higher taxes, buy War Bonds, meet higher living costs, and still "come out even." No one is going to "come out even" while this War goes on. But the period of strife will end-perhaps not soon . . . but not too late.

When Victory Day arrives ... when Peace comes ... we shall find that we have grown stronger by the sacrifices we have made for freedom. People throughout the world who have seen all but their faith overthrown . . . who have lived by faith : . . who have had the courage never to yield . . . will join with America in a world brotherhood of free peoples.

Those who return from the battlefields shall not be disappointed in the nation they left to defend. It will be a stronger land of greater opportunities, and broader horizons. Factories will turn once more to the manufacture of the good things of life . . . both the old and the new. The things that have been sacrificed will be replaced with newer and better things. We shall have more universal education, more individual security—a better life.

President's Administrative Assistants Vary In Successes as Capital's 'Mystery Men'

By HERMAN ALLEN.

Associated Press Writer. The Capital's mystery men-those administrative assistants President Roosevelt chose because of their "passion for anonymity"—are living up to their advance billing in varying degrees. On the whole they've Although Congress authorized the President to appoint six administrative assistants, he at present has only four on his staff. They are David K. Niles, William H. McReynolds, Lauchlin Currie and Lowell Mellett: Ranking right alongside with them, however, are Eugene Casey, listed as an executive assistant, and Wayne Coy, liaison officer between the President and the Office of Emergency Management, overall agency which heads up WPB, OCD, ly, present at FDR's press confer-OPA and the rest of the wartime establishments.

The one who has most consistently buried himself in anonymity is Mr. Niles. This short, stocky veteran of Massachusetts politics, a Harvard graduate, was assistant to Harry Hopkins when Mr. Hopkins was administrator of WPA and Secretary of Commerce. Later Mr. Niles became an adviser on labor matters in the OPM and WPB. He was appointed an administrative assistant last August, the most recent appointee.

Keeps Out of Papers. He has kept himself out of the newspapers, off the radio, away from lecture platforms. He nevertheless has an enormous first-name acquaintanceship and can get almost any job done for the President by simply picking up a phone and calling some big shot.

he will admit that "I believe I may have been of some slight service to the President from time to time." Mr. Currie toys constantly with an ivory cigarette holder while talking but he actually smokes few cigarettes. Another bashful member of the executive family is Mr. Coy. He dislikes to talk about his job, refuses to take the glory for anything which may be one reason for his success in Washington,

The descendant of an Irish pioneer, Mr. Coy had a struggling youth and manhood until he climbed on Paul McNutt's bandwagon. He helped elect him Governor of Indiana, was put in charge of State relief (which gave him contacts with Harry Hopkins) and rode the bandwagon on into Washington, becoming assistant Federal Security administrator when Mr. McNutt took over the Security Agency. Youthful Descendant Of Columbus Plans Spanish Navy Career

Christopher, 17, Studies In Madrid for Coming Entrance Examinations

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, Jr., sociated Press Poreign Correspo MADRID, Jan. 4.-Admiral Chriscopher Columbus, who dearly loves the sea, hopes he'll pass his examinations and can enter Spain's naval academy as a cadet this June. Christopher is 17. He's an admiral by inheritance, for he's head of the house of Colon (Spanish for Columbus) and a descendant of the great admiral. He'll be the first of his line in generations to go to sea as an officer under Spain's flag. His full name is Cristobal Colon de Carvahal y Maroto, Duque de Veraguax, Duque de la Vega de la Isla de Santo Domingo and Admiral and Adelantado Mayor of the Western Indies, Marquis of Jamaica and a grandee of Spain.

Meal Planning in Wartime

We're making readjustments everywhere these days. Meals are likely to be a bit topsy-turvy with eggs, for example, going over to the dinner menu, and being replaced at breakfast with whole grain cereals. But even if foods have to be shifted around, our meals shouldn't ... mustn't be lopsided or out of balance.

Nutrition's the Thing

The pace we've set for ourselves on the home front makes it doubly important that we get our full quota of health and energy-giving vitamins, minerals, proteins and other food essentials. It takes a bit of maneuvering so precious vitamins are not sacrificed.

That's where a simple, working knowledge of nutrition pays dividends. If you have more than a flavor acquaintance with foods . . . if you know what each contributes to the well being of the family, then it is a simple matter of nutritional calculation to know what replacements to make on the menu.

For instance, if you've used your quota of meat for the time, then you can build your menu around other proteinrich foods such as eggs, cheese, dried beans and peas, fish or fowl. Down through the menu you can go replacing those limited foods with more plentiful ones which contribute the same nutritional elements.

Avoid Monotony

As the variety of foods grows less, meals are likely to become a trifle on the tiresome side. Monotony discourages appetite, and poor appetite cuts down on efficiency. Get out of the cooking rut by serving those day-inand-day-out foods a little different each time.

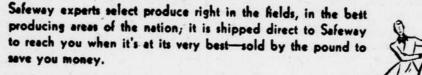

Try baking those eggs with cheese or chili sauce, or serve creamed, chopped hard-cooked eggs over steamed rice. A dash of paprika, a few drops of meat sauce, that ever-faithful onion or an iota of spice work wonderful changes in an ordinary dish.

Macaroni and cheese can be varied no end by adding sauteed chopped onion, celery or green pepper or by pointing up the flavor with tomato or chili sauce, a sprinkling of sage or garlic salt.

Fateful Decade

The State Department's White Paper, setting out the steps which plunged the world into war during the decade beginning in 1931, is a fascinating and a disturbing document.

Its purpose, in the words of Secretary of State Hull, is to give the American people "a clearer understanding of the problems and tasks which have confronted us, of those which confront us now, and of those which will confront us in the crucial days ahead." To express it another way, this is a move to put the record of the fateful decade before the people in the hope that, by examining the mistakes of the past, they will avoid repetition of those mistakes in the future. Primarily, it is true, responsibility for the conduct of our foreign relations rests upon the President and the Secretary of State. But it is also true, as the White Paper says, that "they must closely approximate the prevailing views of the country." Herein lay our greatest weakness, for the failure to awaken the people of the country to the danger which was creeping upon them possibly brought on the war and certainly was responsible for the fact that the beginning of hostilities | find him. Perhaps the fault lies with found us relatively unprepared to the driver-men or women whose refight.

Years before Pearl Harbor the administration's foreign observers realized that war was inevitable, and so advised Washington. But as these thunderheads built up in the early part of the decade, with their truly ominous character to be confirmed with each passing year, there was little to warn the American people of the storm that soon was to burst upon them. The year 1934 was one of deep depression for us, and, although the Japanese were devoting almost half their national budget to the army and navy and despite Ambassador Grew's urgent (but unpublicized) warning that we should maintain our naval superiority "regardless of cost," we were spending billions of dollars on a great social experiment, while the thought of war, or of preparation for war, was very far from our minds. From time to time, as we moved deeper into the decade, there were official warnings, more or less veiled, but in too many instances the effect of these was rubbed out by confident official assertions that we could and would live in peace. By the time the shape of the future had become unmistakably clear, the President and his advisers were trying hard to of war, but it was too late. The probabilities are that on the day before Pearl Harbor the majority of the people still believed we could escape involvement in the conflict.

It is easy to picture the satisfaction with which that declaration was received in the capitals of the aggressor nations. And it also is easy to understand the lesson which we must learn from it.

The assertion often has been made that the League of Nations failed because we did not adhere to it. But that is not merely unfair, it is incorrect. Through various treaties we assumed obligations commensurate with those which would have devolved upon us as a League member. We were disposed, at least our chiefs them up. But the treaties failed, as the League failed, because of a disinclination by others to respect their terms or to compel compliance with their terms. The great problem of the peace that follows this war will agreements. It is hard to see how there can be any guarantee of peace unless there are guarantees of enforcing the terms of agreements to maintain the peace.

Getting at the Cause

Increased traffic fatalities in 1942 followed a pattern so well established by past statistics that the number and age group and circumstances of death in 1943 might be predicted with almost mathematical accuracy. The typical traffic victim in 1943 undoubtedly will be the pedestrian, over thirty years old, who tried to cross a street between intersections. There is undoubted significance in the fact that in about seven cases out of ten the victim will not have a driver's permit, indicating his unfamiliarity with the operation of an automobile. Too many people, of course, will die in accidents legally attributable to carelessness or recklessness in driving automobiles. But these will constitute a relatively small percentage of the total deaths. The chief problem in Washington is the pedestrian who has not learned to respect the hazard of stepping into a street at a time and place where the automobile or streetcar driver least expects to actions are too slow to act quickly in an emergency. But that has not been proved, nor is there any known method of remedying the condition if it could be proved.

What has been proved-fifty-two reported from Tokio that the dom- | times in 1942, and about as many upon conquest and that we would be vears—is the danger of crossing a "reprehensibly somnolent" if we were street between intersections. As safeguard our own interests. At an of education designed to reach the ly the most effective program of edulations against crossing between inment of such regulations.

This has been opposed in Washington on the ground that the regulatouched with madness from brooding | tions could not be effectively enforced. But even partial enforcement would represent a more direct program of education than painting so-called safety slogans on trash boxes, distributing literature and delivering lectures. We know what causes most of the traffic accidents. But very little is being done to eliminate the cause.

The noted Sioux chief Red Cloud once made the following pithy observation in council: "He is a great warrior, but one does not give the care of the people into the hands of a man just because he is strong in fighting." White military men with lurking political ambitions might take note.

Book Campaign

The second campaign for the collection of books for men and women in all branches of national service is scheduled to begin tomorrow and to continue until March 5. During the two months' period it is hoped that the total of 10,000,000 volumes contributed in 1942 will be surpassed.

Britain Rebukes Argentina

The British government has aligned itself solidly with the United States in its open disapproval of Argentina's policy of neutrality in the World War. It has done this through a statement issued by the London Foreign Office deploring Argentina's continuance of diplomatic relations with the Axis powers, stigmatized as "the enemies of humanity."

The immediate reason for this sharp rebuke was the publication in an Argentine official organ of press of government were disposed, to back | material from London phrased in such a way as to suggest that the British government was in sympathy or actual agreement with the neutral policy maintained by the Castillo administration. This implies that, for some time past, British diplomacy has been quietly reinforcing our State Department's efforts to get the Castillo regime to mend its ways and fall in line with all the other Latin American republics, save Chile, who have broken relations with the Axis enemies of the United Nations.

> Back of this diplomatic flare-up stands an attempt by the Castillo regime to capitalize on the traditionally close economic relations between Britain and Argentina. That country's phenomenal development has been largely due to British capital invested in its bonds, agriculture and public utilities, while Britain has long been Argentina's best customer for its great meat-packing industry. In return, Argentina has been an important outlet for British manufactures. This valued foreign market has been maintained by British industry against sharp American competition, and it is no secret that the rivalry between the two in Argentina has been intense. Anxious to maintain their hold during a difficult period, it is not strange that resident Britons have written home in ways tending to excuse or smooth over what was being done at Buenos Aires. Some of this material has been published in the British press, especially in trade journals. And that material, in turn, has been eagerly republished, with editorial touches, in Argentina. It has also been avidly seized upon by Axis propaganda, both in Europe and in Argentina, in persistent efforts to drive a wedge of misunderstanding be> tween Britain and the United States. The British government now cracks down on this whole sorry business, exposing it with emphatic clarity, so that henceforth no one can be in any doubt as to where Britain stands and what it thinks of the Castillo foreign policy. Washington has expressed its gratification and full accord with London's attitude. The entire episode thus re-emphasizes the solidarity of the English-speaking nations and the harmony of their foreign policies in South America as in the rest of the world.

> Whatever the ultimate effects may be, the immediate result of the foreign office's statement has been an angry retort from Argentina. Publication of the text or editorial comment thereon was promptly forbidden the Argentine press. Shortly afterward, Foreign Minister Ruiz-Guinazu expressed "amazement" that Britain should have criticized the policy of a sovereign state in a manner hardly compatible with friendly relations. This stiff attitude might have been expected. But the weight of British influence, added to that of the United States, can hardly fail to render more difficult the path of the Castillo regime. already opposed in its foreign policy by large sections of Argentine public opinion. The last word has not yet been spoken.

Off the Track

With a grinding roar, the crack train of the PRL piled through an open switch into a head-on collision with a freight on a siding. There was really no excuse for it. A complex system of lights had been in working order, signaling a block to any one but a blockhead, yet therein lies the rub. The engineer was not only incompetent; he had not even the right to run the train. When quizzed, he sheepishly admitted this, giving the lame excuse that he had run the train only to make sure it

A fantastic tale? Not at all. It happens often, around this time of year. The PRL is the Play Room Limited, brought out from its box in the cellar for the Christmas traffic. It really belongs to Junior, the only licensed engineer. The offender knew this, but violated the law. It is up to him to keep the rolling stock up to par, by making good on the damage to each miniature tank car, flat or locomotive put out of commission by his meddling. Some have known how to wreck railroads for profit, according to report, but Junior's father lacks the knack. He may have to go to some bank and get it to underwrite him a six per cent equipment loan to get the railroad back in shape. If he will not do it voluntarily, all Junior need do is to appeal to mother to act as Interstate Commerce Commission, and that will settle the matter.

Denies Fuel Oil Plan Was New Deal Project

Heating Industry Spokesman Insists Rationing System Is Best Possible Device

To the Editor of The Star:

Public clamor against the fuel oil rationing plan, fanned by writers who haven't looked beneath the surface, has reached the point that it's time a few statements were made in its defense.

Widest objection is to the complexity of the plan, which has caused delay in local rationing board offices. Admittedly it is not as simple as rationing gasoline, tires or sugar, but in the case of those three only inconvenience is being decreed, while with fuel oil it is the much more serious matter of health and comfort. The plan had to check more factors than was necessary with the earlier simpler rationing programs. It is complex to about the extent that it would take an informed person an hour to make it perfectly clear to an average high school student, not only clear as to its mechanics but also in reasons why each feature is the most practical method for the moment. I'd wager a dinner with music that I could do this with any bright office boy.

Newspaper writers have gone pretty far out on the limb in insisting that the plan could have been much better if every one had been given simply a uniform percentage cut from last year's fuel oil consumption. The truth on this will eventually come out, and there will be some red faces.

For two reasons, a straight percentage cut is impractical. The first of these could be learned by visiting a local board office. Less than half of all applicants can supply a clear record of last year's consumption-they don't know what it was. True, the substantial citizen who bought his oil from a large company on a monthly credit basis can readily get an exact record. But with few exceptions, C. O. D. deliveries were not identified by customer; they were simply "cash sales."

By and large, major oil companies kept a record of cash sales, companies like Shell, Socony, Esso. But all of the major oil companies combined deliver at retail to homes only about 20 per cent of all such fuel oil; the remaining 80 per cent is delivered by independent marketers, many of them small, and their records are anything but complete. Moreover, in many cities there are more people who buy oil to heat their homes with space heaters (oil-fired parlor stoves) than with basement boilers or furnaces. They get oil every few days from the man who comes to the door, and they get it in small lots, anywhere from 5 to 50 gallons at a time. Rarely do any of these "peddlers" keep customer records. When pressed by customer who think they must have a certificate of last season's consumption, the peddler will make a guess, but every one concerned knows it's only a guess, and usually a quite liberal one.

While total gallons sold to these homes that use space heaters is only one-third of that sold for central heating plants. the number of such homes is in higher proportion. The latest estimate of oilheated homes in the 30 rationed States is 3,554,700. Of these, only 2,097,150 have central heating plants; the other 1,457,550 use oil space heaters only. In the latter group, dependable past consumption records would not cover 10 per cent. Thus, if past consumption were the only measure of a ration, half of the applicants would get little or much oil, depending upon the lucid imagination of their supplier.

There is a second sound reason why past consumption, even where available, would work severe injustice. Every oilheating industry man knows that some houses have been using twice as much oil as others the same size. For example, Mr. McDougal has had his house insulated, weather-stripped, storm sashed, turned down his thermostat at night, held a 68-degree daytime temperature, his burner adjusted for highest combustion efficiency; he burned last year 1,500 gallons. His neighbor, Smith, with the same size house, has done none of these things to save oil-his thermostat was set at 75 degrees day and night; he burned last year 3.000 gallons. Assuming each were cut a uniform percentage of past consumption, say one-third, Smith, the oil waster, would get 2,000 gallons; McDougal 1,000. Smith could then moderate his heating habits, fix up his house and heating plant, and spend the winter in luxurious comfort on his 2,000. McDougal finds nothing more can be done to his place, so he spends the winter shivering, with his 1,000. The straight percentage cut would thus bless the waster and damn the frugal McDougal.

This is why square feet of floor area had to enter the plan. Where past consumption figures are available, both factors are used to cross-check. Where no past reliable consumption records are to be had, the ration is based on square feet.

The present plan still blesses the fuel waster slightly at the expense of the frugal, but much less so than if only historic consumption were the basis. Those two measurements are the foundation of the program.

Minor considerations include allowing an extra 100 gallons if there is a child under 4. auxiliary ration for old or sick people and a slight variation for number of people in a family.

The plan was not developed, as often claimed, by New Deal theorists: it was evolved lock, stock and barrel by heating engineers, fuel oil and oil-burner men called in consultation by OPA. No one of them is fully satisfied that it is the final answer, but after probing and evaluating a hundred plans this one seemed best for the prevailing conditions. Next year, with a clear history of every user, the whole thing can be simpler. My interest is in letting the public know a little more of the facts or reasons, so there will be less ignorant criticism. Informed criticism would be welcomed by the industry. A Nassau County Republican (nee Missouri), my patience with star gazers in Government is thinner than most, but this is one program that was devolved by hardheaded industry men from stem to gudget. The real rationing troubles are due to one thing-time pressure. It was not until August 10 that OPA was given authority to develop a fuel oil rationing program, while the industry had been shouting for somebody to start something since May—the industry knew

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"QUESADA STREET.

'Dear Sir: "Maybe this is a funny time of year to be pondering the ways of earthworms. Perhaps it is a side line of that fireside gardening you write so delightfully about.

"So many people think earthworms are harmful, that they make the soil acid, and perhaps even eat the roots of plants. Personally, I have always marveled at the unending quantities of them there must be, to supply all the 'Lilly Belles' and other worm-loving birds. "On doing some reading on this matter, I have found out several interesting facts. Of course, most people have heard that if you cut off the head or tail of a fish worm, a clean cut, either part can be regrown, that is, two worms will thrive where one grew before.

"I always thought worms ate dirt, but I learn that they eat dead leaves. They drag these into their burrows, which they help to furnish with comfortable softness, while decaying into food for the worms, and at the same time enriching the soil.

"The earthworm burrows are often more than a foot deep. They take in the soil, and then coming to the surface of the earth, tail first, void the earth that has passed through their digestive tract, making the familiar earthworm castings familiar to all gardeners.

"The earthworm's gizzard is said to be one of the most important mills on earth, or in the earth, to be literal, for this grinding of the soil exposes more of it to the action of wind and rain and sun, making it more useful. Bacteria are brought to the surface, where the sun and frost can kill them.

"The worm tunnels let air and rain into the ground, and make easy growing for plant roots. The worms bruise the soil and plough it and fertilize it with the decaying leaves.

"Darwin estimated that in cultivated ground, with an estimated 53,000 earthworms to an acre, 10 tons of soil would be brought to the surface in a year. He watched an unploughed field over a period of 30 years, and at the end of that time, the field, which had in the beginning been covered thickly with stones, was completely covered with worm castings so thick that a horse could gallop across the field without striking a stone with its shoes.

"Earthworms also drag unprofitable objects into their burrows; being blind creatures, they mistake the feel of things. and cherish strings, feathers, etc. On the other hand, they show an uncanny knack of handling difficult leaves like twin needles of pine, which they seize by the base. Often they pile a small mound of pebbles over the opening of their tunnels to protect it from heavy. washing rains, and intruding centipedes! There is often an enlarged chamber at the lower end of the burrow, to enable the worm to turn around easily.

"Darwin says 'It may be doubted if there are many other animals which have played such an important part in the history of the world as these lowly organized creatures.' If Darwin found them worthy of such serious considerato study them a little, instead of think- | getting back into its burrow.

ing of them solely as bait or even bird food.

"But isn't it truly wonderful, the cooperation in Nature-the worms help the farmer by helping the soil and they help him also by providing food, however unwillingly, for the birds who help the farmer by eating evil insects that would damage crops.

"The next earthworm I see, I promise you I am going to really look at with more appreciative eyes and mind. "Very truly yours, T. J. O'C."

The humble earthworm is one sort of worm which does not strike most persons as obnoxious Our correspondent well points out some of the many ways in which they help mankind.

Too many of us think of them solely as

Their main help is to agriculture. And this includes our small home gardens in city and suburbs. Some home gardeners have the idea that earthworms will make the earth "sour." Perhaps there is not much to fear in this respect, after all. Few of us will have to worry over such a problem, because probably there are always too few worms, seldom too many.

One oddity of these interesting creatures is that the hemoglobin of their blood is in the fluid of the blood.

In man and other backboned animals it is in the red blood cells. The skin of the worm acts as the membrane, similar in function to our lungs, which permits the intake of oxygen. We see that earthworms are red in appearance due to their good red blood. * * * * These interesting creatures pass many tons of earth through their digestive systems during a year. The food they are after, however, is not the earth, itself, but dacaying particles of vegetable matter. It is no wonder, then, that a fish

"goes" for the angle worm when he finds it on the end of a hook. The fish not only gets meat, but also the vitamins of the particles of vegetable

Earthworms do not have ears or eves but possess sensory cells in the skin. These cells respond to light and sound

The reason earthworms like moist soil, and refuse to remain aloft in dry weather, is that the skin must be moist, just as our lung tissue must, to be able to interchange oxygen and carbon di-

This process can go on only in the presence of moisture. Wetting dry soil in summer often brings the worms to the surface. Earthworms boast several hearts, at least five pairs of them, to function in all the blood pumping. As all small boys know, earthworms come to the surface to prowl around in the dew at night, and it is then that, with the aid of a searchlight, one catches them easiest.

Scientists tell us that it is not the early worm which the early bird catches. tion, it looks like all of us might pause | but the belated worm, which is late in

Explains Discrimination Against Government Workers at $5,000.

To the Editor of The Star: Twenty years ago two men entered the Government service in the same positions and at the same salary. "A" was industrious and applied himself to his work and his efficiency rating always was excellent, so that by the end of 1942 he was receiving a salary of $5,000 per year. "B" did only enough work to get by, and his efficiency rating as a rule was fair and sometimes good, so that by the end of 1942 he was receiving a salary

In December, 1942, Congress passed the pay raise bill. This bill provided that any one receiving an annual salary of less than $5,000 and working 48 hours a week would receive 20.6 per cent of $2,900 if his salary exceeded that amount but did not exceed $5,000. Both these men will work 48 hours of $4,400 per year.

per week in 1943. According to the new law, "A" will not receive any additional pay for his overtime work; however, his base pay will be reduced as follows: Reduction of 5 per cent of $5,000 for retirement fund Reduction of 10 per cent of $5,000 for bonds

Reduction of 5 per cent of $5,000 for Victory tax Total reductions.... $1.000

Therefore, "A" will receive $4,000 cash "B" will receive 20.6 per cent of $2,900 for overtime pay, which amounts to $597.40, and "B" will have deducted: 5 per cent of $4,400 for retirement fund 10 per cent of $4,400 for bonds ___ 440.00

5 per cent of $4,997.40 for Victory tax _____ 249.87 Total reductions _____$909.87 Less overtime pay..... 597.40

Net reduction from base pay of $312.47 $4.400 "B." therefore, will receive $4.087.53 in cash for his services during 1943, or $87.53 more than "A" receives, who has

To have held the many industry conferences that were necessary, consider and discard all the possibilities, write the law and steer it through the legal maze of Washington in seven weeks was creditable performance. But then there was no time for proper education of field forces, of local boards, with the result that mistakes have been made. but these will be cleared up on review. Most boards have cleared all coupon releases and are now reviewing appeals.

Proposes Warning Nazis Of Horrors to Come.

November 4, 1862.

To the Editor of The Star

Given a crowd as utterly determined to win, at whatever cost, as the Nazis are, and considering how desperate the Nazis steadily are becoming, and how many souls are completely in their power and you have a situation of such horrible possibilities as to stagger the imagination

Therefore, even though we cannot reach those hyenas directly, we must not allow ourselves to forget that we too, can make certain threats, and make them with the guarantee that they will be carried out to the full. I do not believe in torture, even for such devils; and I do not believe the threat of torture would move the Nazis any more than would the threat of death. But we certainly should not delay one moment in making all such threats as we have the will to carry out.

We can make terrifying use of our increasing air superiority by not merely bombing factories and defense installations, but "Rotterdamming" (after the Nazi's own fashion) the residential sections. If Nazi atrocities continue beyoud such a dead line as we may set, we in retaliation should bomb without mercy. BOLLING SOMERVILLE.

Just Peace Depends on U. S. Policy

Administration Must Win Confidence Of Nation First

By DAVID LAWRENCE. It has become the fashion for public speakers to utter eloquent appeals for a new post-war order, to issue warnings that we must not "lose the peace" and to insist that this time the job must be "completed." To whom are all these speeches a ddressed? To some faraway audience overseas, to some unborn militarists who may said in part: "It is certain that none of us is guiltless and we who are Americans recognize that a great burden must rest upon us. 'For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required.' During the period preceding, and formative of. the present wars, our Nation possessed great power and influence. Through our action or non-action we exerted a profound influence upon the course of world events. That course has generated a widespread unrest, great violence and immense disaster. Obviously, we have fallen far short of that which was required.

"It is no excuse to say that we were blind, or that we ourselves preferred peace. Our blindness was not an affliction from without, but a result of our smug complacency and narrow selfishness. And to profess a love for peace is no great virtue in those who control so disproportionate a share of the world's wealth that to retain it is their principal concern. 'Peace' which means merely an undisturbed exploitation of power and privilege, is not true peace, but only an interlude which inevitably provokes revoit. To seek, through power, to maintain a status quo of inequality and injustice may be no less evil than to invoke to change it."

Second Message Followed. About 15 months later-March, 1942-there was convened at Delaware, Ohio, a commission comprising priate agencies of their respective communities and allied religious organizations, including city and of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. That conference brought forth a message of 13 points, the first nine of which were commended to Christians and non-Christians alike. The tenth point was especially addressed to all the people of the United States and read as follows:

"We believe that, in bringing international relations into conformity with the moral law, a very heavy responsibility devolves upon the United States. For at least a generation we have held preponderant economic power in the world, and with it the capacity to influence decisively the shaping of world events. It should be a matter of shame and humiliation to us that actually the influences shaping the world have largely been irresponsible forces. Our own positive influence has been impaired because of concentration on self and on our short-range material gains.

"Many of the major pre-conditions of a just and durable peace require changes of national policy on the part of the United States. Among such may be mentioned equal access to natural resources, Association. He is one of the 50,economic collaboration, equitable treatment of racial minorities, international control of tariffs, limitation of armaments, participation in world government.

Must Win Confidence.

"We must be ready to subordinate immediate and particular national ing together the Muslims and the interests to the welfare of all. If members of the All-India Congress the future is to be other than a repetition of the past, the United States must accept the responsibility for constructive action commensu- to abide by any decisions about the rate with its power and opportunity.

To put into effect the foregoing principle, however, it is essential that the administration which expounds it shall have the confidence of the people on the domestic front. The Wilson administration lost the peace on the home front and that's where it can be lost again if the persons in positions of responsibility in the New Deal, for instance, continue to abuse power, misuse and races and groups in India ever to waste public funds, and entrust to incompetent and arrogant officials the task of administering war restrictions. The last election showed a definite protest against the administration. It was that way in November, 1918, and two years later the issues of the domestic front had overshadowed all else. Woodrow Wilson kept his eyes on the international skies and lost touch with the voting population at home. President Roosevelt, too, appears to be betting heavily on the swing of the international pendulum and the ringing phrases of Atlantic Charters, the peace conference and the treaty. But it is at home-right now-out of a regenerated Government, divested of those who are still

Defeated Nations Should Be Given Share In Proposed Post-war World Police Force

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. In discussing what to do with our late enemies, Germany, Italy and Japan, once they are defeated, and the present regimes crumble, as they certainly will as a result of defeat, Mr. Wallace seems to me to be somewhat contradictory. He repeats and enlarges point 8 of the Atlantic Charter

"This time Dorothy Thompson. we must be absolutely sure that the guilty leaders are punished. that the defeated nation realizes its defeat and is not allowed to rearm.'

And, "obviously the United Nations must have machinery which can disarm and keep disarmed those parts of the world that would break the peace."

Finally, "If we are to expect guarantees against aggression from other nations, we must be willing to give guarantees that we will not be guilty of aggression ourselves.'

In these passages we have, therefore the concept that it is the guilty leaders that we want to punish—a regime rather than a nation; second, the concept that nevertheless there are peoples or "parts of the world" more congenitally dangerous than others; and third, that these parts of the world must be disarmed while the rest of the world proceeds to create some sort of mutual police force.

Russian Sympathy Doubted. Since Mr. Wallace's speech, he has given an interview which enlarges and somewhat clarifies what he means by mutual protection in the shape of a police force. He has recommended an international air force, with ports throughout the world. The idea that international peace can be maintained by Federal control of the air is not new; it was advanced by H. G. Wells a long time ago and Mr. Wells has shown great prophetic gifts.

But who is to control such an air force? This is the crux of the whole matter. Is it to be controlled by a grand alliance of the United Nations? That, in effect, would mean control by America, Britain and Russia, for only these are great industrial nations capable of creating and maintaining such a force.

Or is it to be controlled by some new supernational institutions? By a form of strictly limited world government? And, if such a world government for police purposes is to be created, shall it include or exclude our late enemies? If they are to be excluded, then what is proposed is a grand alliance for the mutual enforcement of peace against our late enemies-at least until, as Mr. Wallace also seems to propose, they have been re-educated by us

Now, I personally hold a grand alliance of this sort to be one of the most fragile of instruments. For one thing, I gravely doubt whether Russia shares such ideas. Stalin, for instance, does not appear to think that Germany or Japan as nations and peoples are congenitally and ineradicably tainted with original sin. The didactics of Marxianism lead to no such conclusions, nor for the matter does the most classical study of history. Nor does the Christian philosophy.

In reality this doctrine of the original sin of nations is a race myth.

It is a distortion of history, and particularly a distortion of the history of Germany and Russia to assume that the interests of the latter must permanently rest with Britain and America rather than with her present enemy. In the World War, not only Tsarist Russia but afterward Soviet Russia was at war with Germany, and it was Germany who imposed on Russia the terrible peace of Brest Litovsk-yet four years later, under the Weimar Republic, the Treaty of Rapallo was concluded between the two nations and until the advent of Hitler there was a continual collaboration between them. The reasons were economic and geographic. A grand alliance, also, would not only disarm Germany and Japan, but would, in effect, disarm the small nations also, and the space therefore, for diplomatic maneuvers, would be en-quota system from every nation, and recruited, furthermore, from the nations of our late enemies. The only way in which Germany, Italy and Japan can be prevented in the long run from rearming and again splitting the world into two factions, is to integrate them immediately into the new world system and call upon them immediately to assume their share in policing it. The exclusion of Germany, after the last war and for years from the League of Nations was a terrible political error. It laid the foundation for Hitlerism, and it prevented there being any true League of Nations or any true league of Europe. It made the League into an instrument of the

If this be true then what concerns us pre-eminently is what sort of regime succeeds Hitler in Germany. It is obviously necessary that this regime be one completely purged of Naziism. and one which is internationally minded and eager for co-operation. But unless from the outset, we offer concrete hopes to such a regime, we won't get it. What we will get will be a facesaving device for all shades of Nazi tendencies which will then continue to work underground. It is an error to think that the Germans did not believe themselves defeated in the last war. They did. But since the internationally minded and cooperative elements who came to power were unsuccessful in really participating in world reconstruction, the elements of the old regime found new forms. The myth that Germany was not defeated was created years later by Hitler for purpose and it was only really believed by ignorant youth.

farms for the untouchables. The untouchables, in his view, should be grouped around villages separated from villages where men and women of other classes live. He urges greater political recognition of the untouchables by some sort of assurance that in the Indian legislature and in the provincial and municipal councils they will be represented in proportion to their population.

Ripe for Communism. Mr. Shivraj devised his plan as a method, for one thing, of combatting the Communist influence among the untouchables. In their poverty-stricken, landless state, they are ripe prospects for Communism. They are the agricultural laborers for the most part and perform the most menial of tasks. They are most thickly settled in the Madras state. The British government "is guided by a lack of desire to antagonize the majority" of Indians-the Congress Party and the Muslims-and therefore does little to help the untouchables, Mr. Shivraj said. The political leader of the untouchables, Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, is the Minister for Labor in the Indian Viceroy's executive council. Improvement in the educational opportunities for the untouchables is another point in Mr. Shivraj's program. Few children of the depressed classes, he said, obtain schooling above the first few grades and even the lower schools are located at distances from the sections in which the untouchables

On the Senate side, the addition of eight Republicans, plus the anti-New Deal Democrats, plus the acknowledged stumbling and feeble administration floor leadership make impossible anything like effective White House domination of that body. So, after 10 years the New Deal grip on the legislative branch of the Government has been broken and its independence, which Congress had appeared permanently to have lost, has been restored-restored, too, as a result of an expression by the people at the polls.

To many, this will seem a gratifying and fortunate thing, indeed, but it is premature to rejoice now. The uncertain elements in the situation are the character of the Republican policies and the quality of the Republican leadership. Until these have developed sufficiently to judge no one can be sure that the change is beneficial.

All we know is that the Republicans, more compact as a party than the Democrats, split into two and in other ways. factions, are in position to enact | Along all these lines—and others or reject every controversial legis- the Republican party can attack lative proposal that comes up at with benefit to its own prospects this session

Undoubtedly, the temptation for nesday is that for the first time men with their eyes and hopes centered on the 1944 election will be to conciliate and placate the two great lobbies which have more influence in Congress and supposedly can deliver more votes than all others combined-to wit, the labor lobby and the farm lobby.

If they yield to this temptation the Messrs. McNary and Martin will forfeit the respect of many who look to them for a more enlightened and patriotic leadership. Further, they will justify the charge that their party lacks the character to run the country. In addition, they will del prive the Republicans of their chance to commend themselves to the country as a whole instead of to special classes which may or may not be grateful on election day. Plenty of Openings.

If they yield to the farm lobby, they will nullify the administration efforts to avert inflation and precipitate a disastrous rise in prices. And if they yield to the labor lobby, they will lose the opportunity to ameliorate the evils and injustices of existing labor legislation from correction of which, despite strong public sentiment, the administration still shrinks and which the President used his influence in the last session to prevent.

Aside from these, there are plenty of vulnerable spots in the administration handling of the domestic problems created by the war. It has made a mess of the manpower problem, the price-control problem, the tax problem. It still retains in high positions incompetent and inexperienced men. It still is inexcusably wasting the people's money on useless agencies, such as the Office of Government Reports-

This Changing World

China Might Come to Terms With Japs If Aid From Allies Dwindles Too Low

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. Washington quarters are showing increasing concern over the attitude of the Chinese, who are beginning to lose patience with their Allied comrades. The thought that their situation is regarded by the United States and Britain as of secondary importance does not hearten them. All the nice words being Constantine Brown. bestowed upon the Chinese from Washington and London are now of little avail. Chiang Kai-Shek appreciates them as well as he appreciates the large credits extended to him by this country, but he is worried lest our delay in starting a real campaign against the Japanese may jeopardize China's

At the Pacific council meeting in Canada, the Chinese delegation let its hair down and emphasized that there is an important theater of operations in the Pacific which is being greatly neglected by the Allies. It also was pointed out that there is a potential manpower in China which is being overlooked. This manpower can be of great assistance to the Allies as long as it is on their side, but might become a thorn in their side should the neglect of China lead to some internal catastrophe. The plain talk of the Chinese was followed by a gesture on the part of Gen. Chiang, who recalled his military mission from Washington, where it had been cooling its heels, doing nothing for almost a year. Despite the optimistic diplomatic interpretation given to the withdrawal of the delegation, those who keep in close touch with the situation in the Pacific are seriously con-

May Come to Terms.

For the time being the plain talk given to the Allies in Canada and the recall of the military mission from Washington are considered shots across the bows from Chungking. But there is no question that the generalissimo is growing most uncomfortable because supplies are not reaching him and because the Japanese are strengthening defenses of territories separating the United States from China. Unless we take some strong action in the Pacific in the very near future and attempt to stop the Japanese defensive preparations the Chinese government fears indefinite postponement of the day when war material will begin to pour into China.

In the meantime, the commanders of the Chinese armies and the Chinese people themselves may tire of waiting for the pleasure of the Allies and begin to think of making the best of a bad bargain by coming to terms with the Japanese. This has never been said bluntly but those familiar with the innuendos of the language of the East are afraid that this may be written between the lines.

The fact that some of the war material sent from the country to China via India never reached its destination because the British forces in India needed it more immediately has not caused any particular indignation in

Nine Merchantmen Sunk In Week in South Atlantic

Allied naval and air patrols, covering a vast stretch of the Western Atlantic from Canada to South America, still find submarines a dangerous problem off the southern continent and in the South Atlantic. Navy announcements showed the U-boats sank nine marchant ships in southern waters during the week ended Saturday—the heaviest announced seven-day toll in more than a month. No sinkings in other Western Atlantic areas were an-

that the pillars of the United Nations have made their final decision to dispose of Hitler first regardless of time and cost. The realistic Chinese, who are reputed to have the best intelligence service in the world, doubt that Germany will crack up. They see that the African campaign is in its infancy and believe that much water will run down the Yellow River before the Allies can make their way across the Mediterranean into Europe to crush Hitler. Doubt Russian Success.

The Chinese seem to take little stock in the Russian drive against the Nazis. They appear to think that this offensive is much along the lines of the winter offensive of last year. But they do not seem to share the viewpoint of many Americans and Britishers that the Russians are going to crush Hitler by themselves. But the psychological trend among the people of America and Britain seems definitely toward an all-out effort in Europe. The Chungking officials are said to interpret this as meaning that the Allies will be compelled to put off indefinitely an offensive against the Japs. The shipping situation continues to be such that it will be difficult for the United States to detach a sufficient tonnage of merchantmen to the Pacific to change from defensive-offensive strategy to a real offensive.

We may have some more spectacular local victories and, as far as we are concerned, may remove definitely the threat to our own shores. But so long as the accent is on defeating the European branch of the Axis, it is highly doubtful if we will have the necessary tonnage to undertake major aggressive operations in the Pacific

According to the Chinese way of thinking, the operations in Europe will be so costly in manpower and war materials that when we finish off Hitler any suggestion for a compromise peace from Japan might be listened to by the Allies. The Chinese realize that a large section of the American public and the Government itself wants to accept only one peace proposal from Japancomplete surrender

But the politically wise Chinese fear that the other members of the United Nations may look at the situation from a different angle and accept a suggestion for a compromise, particularly if that compromise were based on a status quo in China. The public in countries other than the United States is not as aware of the potential danger of the Japanese as it is of the Germans. And this is natural and logical as far as Europe is concerned. The Chinese, however, have only a remote interest in Europe. They look at the enemy who has occupied their own country as the greatest menace. So it is that observers are gravely concerned over the open anger expressed by the Chungking government would like to remove as quickly as possible the potential danger of China's giving up the war.

Pearl Harbor, according to the Associated Press count. Of these, 112 have been lost off South America and in the South Atlantic. The tally for other areas: Off the United States, 197; off Canada, 50; in the Caribbean, 176; in the Gulf of

McLemore-Food Rationing Will

Influence Romance

By HENRY McLEMORE. At the risk of becoming known as Nostradamus McLemore I am going to make a few prophecies on the far-reaching effects of the general food rationing plan which goes into operation next month. It will influence love and romance. It will influence music. It will influence people and lose and make them friends.

The effect of

Henry McLemore. the food ration plan on love and romance is as obvious as why Venus de Milo never won the national bowling championship. Do you think for a minute that in the future a man with a great big appetite would even consider courting a girl with a great big appetite? No indeed, not when there are sparrow-like eaters running around loose with just as many "points" in their ration book as the hefty eaters.

From now on the real charm of a maid for a man will not lie in blue eyes, or dimples, or skill in needlepoint, but rather in how she tucks away that food when it is placed in front of her.

Just as heiresses have been warned to guard against some one marrying them for their money. light-eating girls will be cautioned, "Are you sure that it is you he loves, my dear, and not all those ration points you have left over each month?" New Songs Coming.

Men, of course, face the same danger. The most eligible man in town may be the fellow with stomach ulcers. Girls who like their food are going to think twice before plighting their troth to a man who needs 700 or 800 points a day to keep his 6-foot, 200-pound frame moving around. When inquiring into a suitor's background parents will care more about the oats he has eaten than the ones he has sown The ration plan will result in a thousand new songs. Already the slap-happy Wagners of Tin Pan Alley are hard at work composing immortal songs to the food shortage. Here are a few likely titles:

"I Met a 700-Point Baby in an A and P-ee Store." "My Heart Went On a Riot When

I Met a Girl on a Diet.' "My Heart Is All A-Flutter Over a Gal Who Doesn't Like Butter." "I Can't Ration My Passion for

You." Just wait and see, there'll be some even worse than these

As for friendship, the food you serve a guest in your home is going to show plainer than any of your other actions how much you think of him. Give him a dinner that cost you more points than Notre Dame gets in a season, and he will think of you as a true friend. On the other hand, give him a dinner which his knowing eye will quickly see hasn't cost you more than a few measly points from your ration book and he will never again shake your hand with the same fervor. May Revise Social News. For the first time since the founding of this country friendships are going to be made and lost over such items as canned sifted peas, dried apricots, catsup and noodle scup. In the future ration points will determine the great hosts and hostesses of the country. Those who are willing to sacrifice all week to really give a bang-up dinner on Saturday night, and not necessarily the wealthy, will be the famed entertainers. Already old Nostradamus McLemore can see the society columns. A big dinner will be written up like this:

"The highest point dinner of the season was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Gus Riboflavin. Mr. and Mrs. Riboflavin, who had existed on plentiful cereals for a fortnight in order to give the 2,700-point dinner, were so weak that they had to be helped from the table at an early hour. The dinner started with a 60-point appetizer, was followed by a 200-point clear soup, a 500point entree, and they shot the rest of the points on the salad and dessert."

Maybe this all sounds far-fetched, out wait and see. Nostradamus McLemore has never made a wrong prediction on general food rationing in the United States. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

STRETCH YOUR COFFEE RATION

LROM now on, you'll hear about many ways T to "stretch" that coffee ration of yours! Some sensible, some fantastic, some dreamed-up by those who should know better.

Here are the plain facts, based on 35 years' experience in buying, blending, roasting the finest coffees grown. Freshness is all-important in making your coffee go farther. The fresher the coffee the less coffee you have to use for a thoroughly satisfying cup. But how can you be sure the coffee that you buy is really fresh?

Not being in a position to roast and grind your own coffee, your next best insurance, says your Government, "is to purchase coffee at a store which you have found to have a consistently fresh supply . . . and buy coffee that is freshly ground."

Long ago we developed a way to meet these requirements exactly.

First of all, our coffees are roasted fresh every day in seven big modern roasting plants, so strategically located that deliveries can be made quickly and frequently. All stores selling Dwight Edwards coffee keep a constant check on stocks; and not a single pound is allowed to remain past peak goodness.

But here's the most important point: Dwight Edwards coffees are kept in the bean, full strength and flavor protected nature's own way - not ground till the minute you buy. You see them ground! You know they're fresh!

Furthermore, this controlled distribution and store grinding permit us to pack Dwight Edwards coffees in a sensible container that saves you precious pennies on every pound you buy. Our direct roaster-to-grocer distribution brings additional economies. Added together, these represent important savings to you.

CHOOSE A BLEND THAT SUITS YOUR

TASTE. Tastes in coffee vary with individuals. In fact, most coffee drinkers have their own ideas on what makes a truly good cup of coffee. For this reason, the Dwight Edwards Company packs three fine coffees-Edwards, Nob Hill and Airway. Each is top quality of its kind. If you like rich, robust coffee try Edwards or Nob Hill. If you prefer coffee on the mellow side, try Airway. We think you'll find that one of them will bring you the greatest possible enjoyment from your CORRECT GRIND IS IMPORTANT. For maximum coffee flavor, select the grind that the manufacturer recommends for your particular type of coffee maker. With Edwards, Nob Hill or Airway that's easy! Your grocer offers you your choice of four grinds-one exactly right for pot, percolator, drip or vacuum. There's no extra charge for this special service, and it gives you more good cups per pound. Here's one more important reason to have your coffee storeground at the time you buy.

HOW TO CONSERVE COFFEE . . . AND IMPROVE IT. Keep your coffee in a tightly covered container. When making coffee, measure both water and coffee carefully. Use only fresh cold water and bring to a full boil. Make only what you will use at one time and serve it immediately. Be sure that your coffee maker is scrupulously clean. Remember, one good cup is worth two inferior ones.

Dies Unit Report Hits Agencies for Failure To Make Dismissals

Offices Said to Retain Subversive Employes; Voorhis Dissents

The House Committee on Un-American Activities today issued its "final report" to the House, protesting that the Office of Price Administration, the Agriculture Department and a number of other executive agencies of the Government are keeping on their payrolls men whom the committee long ago suggested should be dismissed for connections with subversive organiza-

The men named in the report are Robert A. Brady, Office of Price Adminstration, whose dismissal was recommended by the Civil Service Commission; Goodwin Watson, Federal Communication Commission; Gardner Jackson, Agriculture Department, and 19 officials listed for the House by Chairman Dies of the Un-American Activities Committee last September 24

"However great the sacrifice still required for victory," the report said, "we must, as a people, grimly resolve that no part thereof shall be the loss of that human liberty which is the essence of Americanism. To this end we must guard, as never before in any wars of the past, our internal safety against the machinations of fifth columns.

Recounts Activities.

The committee report brought a vigorous dissent from one member, Representative Voorhis, Democrat, of California, who criticized his colleagues for having "neglected . . . to strike a blow" for the unification

Representative Voorhis complained that members of the committee had no opportunity to disreleased by Robert E. Stripling, secretary and chief investigator for the committee, and added that the report was handed to members on a

The Californian deplored what he said was "too much tendency" for "so-called Left-wingers to shout Fascist' at every conservative who holds an important position * * * and for Right-wingers to shout 'Communist' at liberals and progres-

Martin Dies of Texas. Mr. Dies probably will ask for a new lease on life for the committee cuss or amend the report, which was late this month and for another appropriation.

Lists Axis Fronts.

In the resume of its activities during the past two years, the committee disclosed that it has been at work on a "comprehensive report on the Axis front movement in this country," covering the activities and propaganda of 298 organizations "and several thousand individual leaders who are connected with these organizations." The committee found these types of Axis agents and propagandists:

Clark Griffith Facing Another Business Milestone

When hastily summoned Major League baseball club owners trudge into a special meeting with Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis tomorrow at Chicago the Nats' boss won't be among them. Clark Griffith will be in his little stucco office at Griffith Stadium, where the business of naming him president of the Washington Baseball Club will be conducted.

While Landis is showing baseball's 1943 blueprints to other club owners the Nats' stockholders, out of long habit that over the course of a generation has become compelling, will re-elect Griffith to the Nats' top spot. Since 1919 there has been no other candidate for the presidency. Nobody will dispute Griffith's right to reign.

The stockholder who owned the temerity to suggest another president would be received like Hitler in Quantico. Griffith's handling of the Nats' affairs never is questioned by the tight little family group of Washington club stockholders.

Representing the Richardson estate tomorrow will be the former vice president's brother George, and there has been no indication he'll deviate from the course charted by his brother. He probably will string has in mind. He hasn't mentioned along with Griffith in anything he suggests.

It was in 1919 that Griffith became president at a time when the stockholders were dissatisfied and disgruntled. Griffith searched for a partner and found him in the late Richardson, a wealthy Philadelphia businessman and lover of baseball

From the start Richardson acknowledged his confidence in Griffith. Together they acquired four-fifths of the Washington stock. Griffith and his silent partner held equal shares, but the vice president preferred to remain in the background and leave the running of the Nats to Griffith.

Calvin Griffith May Be the New Vice President

Richardson virtually was unknown to Washington fans but Wash- augurating the season April 13 or ington players learned to love him. Occasionally he visited Washington and when he did he never failed to visit the clubhouse, hand out cigars from 154 to 140 games, reducing and chat pleasantly with the rawest rookie.

Eynon can be tough when the occasion demands it, but generally he is an easy-going, soft-spoken man who can wade through a mountain of detail quicker than George Case scoots from first to second. He is a teetotaler who mixes marvelous drinks. He hasn't been hunting since the time he held and fired a gun dangerously close to a companion's face, but he goes along, without a gun, for the companionship.

Eynon likes his food, cigars and ballplayers good. Prior to Pearl Harbor he'd spend $4 in cab fare to reach a restaurant that served calves' liver the way he wants it. He's particular about his cigars, which cost considerably more than the conventional dime, and he's particular about the Nats when he travels with them.

Scratch Score of 433 Also Rates Well Up; Alley Men Meet

By ROD THOMAS.

One of the last to roll, Clifton D. Hollis, member of the New Recreation Businessmen's League, today headed the list of prize winners in the men's division of The Star's War savings tournament with a score of 493, including a 60-pin handicap. Late Saturday night, in company with four others, Hollis took his turn in the final at New Recreation and not only turned high gross set of the roll-off but probably the top scratch total of 433. His games were 132, 154 and 147. Shooting with him were C. C. Self and Thomas G. Guy the Recreation Businessmen's League, William Elliott of the Western Electric League and Daniel Monaco of the GAO circuit.

Won Prize Last Year. In last year's Star tournament Hollis, a consistent prize winner in outside competition, but a mediumaverage performer in league play, tied for 50th place with 45-451. His big set at Recreation displaced Joseph H. Robertson of Alexandria Recreation, who rolled 120-478 several nights earlier.

There is a remote possibility that even Hollis may be supplanted, for complete returns from all the 30odd maple plants represented in the giant maple party have not been received. The deadline for participation fell last night.

Heading the women's pay-off is Mrs. Mae Sickles, who chalked up 90-429 at the Columbia.

Prize List on Way. Following a meeting of the Metropolitan Washington Bowling Alley Operators' Association today the potential prize winners will be checked and the list, to be made up by Arville Ebersole, executive secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress and referee of the tournament, will be published as soon as possible. A lot of auditing is entailed and the high scorers are urged to be a little patient.

Due to a decrease in entries over last year, ascribed to obvious conditions, the prize list will not be as pretentious as that of the last tournament, but it will be by far the most generous of any event of the

Last Is First as Frostbiters Sail Novel Turnabout Race

British, U. S. Officers Team to Triumph; Only Ice Will Stop Hardy Boatmen

By MALCOLM LAMBORNE, Jr.

Frostbiting made its appearance on the Potomac River here yesterday, attracting 12 boats and not a little comment from the few waterfront followers aboard through the day.

Comment ranged from "not a bad idea" to "crazy fools." Skippers and crews said, "good fun; see you next time." Ten penguins, a D class dinghy and a B class boat came out for series of short races. The feature event, a three-race affair for a trophy sponsored by Penguin Fleet Secretary Walter Lawson, was won by young Ray Reckord of Baltimore. His brother Jack was second. The pair trailed their penguins over, but plan to keep them at Capital Yacht Club for the rest of the frostbite

The novelty event of the day, a so-called turnabout race, was won by Syndicate, sailed by Col. Roland Birnn, U. S. A. A. F., with Col. Malcolm Prentice, British Army staff officer here, as crew. The feat is explained this way: The fleet starts off for the leeward marker as in any race. When the Race Committee-yesterday it was stationed on the end of a CYC dock-blows the starting horn, all boats must come about and head for the finish. Another blast and they must come about again. It's a case of the leading boat one day being the last to finish, or the tailend boat being the winner. You

Semipro Baseball Chief Sees Big Year

Fans Serious-Minded In Wartime; Dumont, Too, Tones Down

Predicts More Sandlot Clubs in 1943 Than In Last Decade

By JOE DE GEORGE, Associated Press Sports Writer

WICHITA, Kans., Jan. 4.-Circus stunts and novel gadgets, once the aces in Ray Dumont's pack of tricks to keep the turnstiles clicking, have no part in the 1943 plans of the national semipro baseball congress

It's not that the war has shaken his confidence in the lot of the sandlotter-far from it. It's just that he believes a serious attitude is more in keeping with the times

"People during wartimes are serious-minded," says the man who in years past has banked to a great extent on such devices as a pneumatic home plate duster, and a jack-in-the-box microphone for the home plate umpire to attract the Dumont has laid the groundwork for what he calls a wellrounded program for the coming season. Confidently, he tells you that the semipros should forge ahead to a more prominent place in baseball because of the war. "The baseball clubs, the players and the fans may not be the same as they were in former years, but you can mark it down that there'll be more sandlot teams than at any time in the last decade," Dumont

Industrial teams will increase 50 per cent, he predicts, because 'the 2,000 to 2,500 professional players who have gone into war plants in the last two years will be unable to return to organized baseball next year with fewer minor league clubs operating.

Dumont holds to the view that town baseball is far from through. "Gasoline rationing will keep most of the home folks from traveling next summer," he reasons. "They'll want something in their home town will be the solution.

Waterfowl Hunters Urged to Return Bands as Aid to Administration

Did you shoot any banded waterfowl this season? If so, did you return the bands to the point of their origin? Perhaps, if you shot in the Old Dominion, a banded quail fell to your gun? It's not unlikely, for during the last 12 years the Virginia Game Commission has branded more than 35,000. The number of ducks and geese branded by Jack Miner, the Canadian authorities, Ducks Unlimited and the United States

Clear-Cut Title Crown Shared by Two Or Three Teams in

Last Four Races By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Jan. 4.-With four loop games carded this week the Big Six Conference inaugurates its 15th basket ball season seeking a definite championship reckoning for the first time in five years. The title, once perennial possession of Kansas, has been shared the last four seasons by either two or three teams. Kansas and Oklahoma halved the crown in 1942, and the two teams, still manned largely by veterans, continue their duel Saturday at Norman in the spotlight tilt of the week's program. Indiana Promises to Be Plenty Tough, Too; Big Ten Campaign Opens Saturday Night

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The Western Conference basket ball campaign opens this week, and Indiana's coach, Branch McCracken, said today to watch out for Wisconsin and Illinois. This left the impression that you don't have to watch out for much we can depend upon our sophomores," he added Williams Proves Ability. There's one sophomore (and probably several more) McCracken has found out about, however. He's Ward Williams, 6-foot 4-inch center -a rebound hound who has dropped in 56 points in six games. The team's scoring honors go to Ralph Hamilton, junior forward, who has contributed 77. The regular Big Ten season will open Saturday night after five warm-up games tonight and one Wednesday. Tonight's program will send Indiana to Butler, Great Lakes to Purdue, Michigan to Michigan State, Hamline's national intercollegiate champions to Wisconsin and Chicago against De Paul. Dartmouth will give Minnesota its first real test Wednesday. A scoring schedule will start off the conference race Saturday-

> sota at Iowa Indiana, having shared the conference crown three times without capturing it outright, definitely must be counted in this season. But because of the caliber of play in preconference contests, the 1943 championship may be split up with a good possibility of slices going to the Hoosiers, Illinois and Wisconsin after a season of dizzy upsets.

> A hint of what is to come already has been given. Camp Grant was the only team to beat Illinois in six starts, and Northwestern came in for another surprise by winning its first game of the season from none other than the star-spangled Great Lakes outfit.

> Aside from being one of three unbeaten Big Ten clubs, Indiana has the top scoring attack with a 54.6 average in six straight victories. Undefeated Minaesota and Michigan have averaged 49 and 42.5, respectively, in four games, but hold a slight defensive edge over the "Merry Macs." The Wolverines, buoyed by Capt. Jim Mandler and ophomore Bob Wiese, have shackled opposition to 32.7 points per game—the lowest mark in the Iowa, mostly because of its 69-to-38 verdict over little Ripon Saturday night during which Co-Capt. Tommy Chapman posted 20 points, is second to Indiana in power with 52.5. Co-Capt. Ben Trickey has helped greatly the Hawkeves' record with an average of 14 points in four contests. Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois have been beaten only once each-but the last two have played a longer and tougher schedule.

Illinois' precision unit dropped Stanford, 38 to 26, after keeping the NCAA champions behind all the way, and as much as 15 points at times. Advances of Fractions To More Than Point Predominate

By VICTOR EUBANK,

Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Jan. 4.-The stock market, on balance, today chalked up another new high since early October, 1941.

Rising tendencies were in evidence at the start and, while there were scattered exceptions, gains ranged from fractions to a point or so. There were a few wider spreads for year cent. blue chips. The upswing was fairly well maintained in the final hour. Dealings, as in the first part of January last year, were much slower than in the latter days of December although sizable blocks of low-priced issues put the day's turnover at around 600,000 shares. There was little change in the fairly hopeful international picture. Reinvestment demand continued as the principle price bulwark. Profit taking on the recent rally impeded certain stocks but realizing generally was well absorbed. Some customers inclined to stand aside pending opening of Congress and clues regarding legislative trends. Absence of tax selling served to revive sentiment to a considerable Rails trailed along with the rest of the market, but the majority never got far out in front. Southern Pacific sold in the neighborhood of 161/2 notwithstanding the road reported 11 months' net per common share of $19.38, against $9.01 in the same time a year ago. Stocks in new top ground for extent.

1942-3 included General Motors, Philip Morris, General Electric and Radio Corp. Quiet strength was displayed by the tobacco group as talk of big sales gains for the important companies in this industry was heard. American Tobacco "B" and Liggett & Myers "B" were up better than a point each most of the day. Favored were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Great Northern, Southern Railway, American Telephone. United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Zenith Radio, United Aircraft, Sperry, United States Gypsum, American Can, Dow Chemical, Anaconda and Union Carbide. Among occasional losers were Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Chrysler and Du Pont. Bonds were selectively improved.

Increase Is Expected In Anthracite Prices

An increase of about 50 cents a ton in the retail price of anthracite is expected to be announced soon by the Office of Price Administration, reliable quarters reported yesterday.

OPA officials have been conferring with representatives of the mine operators. In return for the increased prices operators are expected to put into effect a six-day mine week. The War Labor Board recently decided that payment of time-and-a-half rates for a sixth day of work was not a wage increase and therefore did not require Government approval.

WPB Holds Up Blackout Device For Headlights

Present Priority Too Low to Permit Manufacture

By MIRIAM OTTENBERG. The War Production Board has dened a high enough priority to permit manufacture of the blackout headlight device sought by the District, it was learned today.

As a result: 1. District emergency vehicles will not be allowed within the city limits of Alexandria during a blackout since that part of the Metropolitan Area requires blackout out head-

2. The District is no nearer getting controlled driving lights than it was 11 months ago when it first recognized that driving lights revealed the city from the air.

3. Emergency vehicles driving during a blackout will continue to be stopped every few feet for lack of a clear identification, such as would be provided by the headlight device. 4. Low beam headlights on emergency vehicles will continue to threat en the lives of those who have to be on the streets during a blockout. Critical Material Involved.

Manufacturers interviewed imme diately after WPB granted a AA-5 priority for the steel required to make dies for the plastic headlight device, stated definitely they could not consider going into production with less than an AA-1 priority.

Authoritative sources said they understood the War Department had advised WPB not to permit manufacture of any device except that approved by the War Department, although the War Department devices cost $20 and is not available because of the amount of critical material involved.

Although the District had been looking for an ecceptable device for many months, it was in August that Policeman Claude E. Glass, worked out a fiber device, in collaboration with Oscar Fetterman, auxiliary policeman and inventor.

Mr. Fetterman was sent to the to obtain Army approval. The de- duce cllues, police said, which would tempts, finally arrived at a design substitute has yet come to meeting dragged, leading police to believe he the War Department's optical specifications.

The War Department sent him to the Electrical Testing Laboratories in New York. On his return, De fense Co-ordinator John Russell Young and the other Commissioners and Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of District civilian defense, gave tentative approval and sent him to National OCD which arranged for a test at the Bureau of Standards. The District wanted Army approval, for fear the Army might order cars to the curb after the devices had been bought and installed. The Engineer Board, however, proposed that Mr. Fetterman produce a handmade plastic model of the device in its true form. He had been using a metal model. Then he was to begin his testing rounds

all over again. Couldn't Get Toolmaker.

The inventor protested that not only would it take months to produce a plastic model by hand but that he couldn't get a toolmaker to waste three months with nothing to show for it at the end but one model. He proposed that he have a toolmaker make the dies for the plastic model, for which he would have to get 1,150 pounds of steel The War Department refused approval.

District officials, meanwhile, were so anxious to get the devise that they accompanied the inventor on some of his rounds and sent a man with him to the WPB to see if a priority could be obtained through the Bureau of Governmental Requirements. Even Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, irked by the long delay, wrote to the Engineer Board, complaining of Army red tape and demanding action.

Applying for a priority on December 1, Mr. Fetterman was advised that War Department approval was necessary for him to get the steel. WPB, however, agreed to accept OCD approval as a substitute.

Substitute Encouraged. The National OCD, which has also had its hands tied by the War Department with the result that a number of States have gone ahead en their own to develop blackout devices-some of them, according to OCD, pretty bad-wrote that it could not give official approval but felt this was the type of substitute with a ruling of the War Labor that should be encouraged. Brig. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, chief of the OCD protection branch, personally recommended that the masks be purchased "as there is little prospect of the prescribed equipment becoming available." Col. Bolles added his plea, pointing out that the finished product would require almost no critical materials since it is of a plastic composition. He declared the District was "entirely unprepared adequately to deal with the emergencies resulting from enemy action" since it has no control over driving lights, that it was "absolutely impossible" to conduct training of the Citizens Defense Corps without the device and that it was feared some fatal accident might occur because of improper driving lights. December 31, WPB notified Mr. Fetterman of the priority granted. According to District officials, the War Department has refused to take any action to allow the District to obtain the model it can get for less than $2 in lieu of the model it can't get for $20.

Virginian, Better After Illness, Will Return Here Soon

Senator Glass of Virginia is 85 years old today, but the event was being observed more quietly than usual at Mount View, his farm on the outskirts of Lynchburg.

Draft Eligibles Must Carry

Classification Notice Also Is Mandatory to

All men in the 18-to-45-age groups who have been subject to draft registration for six months or more must carry their classification card, beginning February 1, or face "vigorous action" from the Justice Department, the Bureau of Selective Service of the War Manpower Commission announced yesterday.

Both the classification card and the registration certificates must be in the registrant's possession on his person after February 1 or he will e subject to fine or imprisonment or both, it was said. The classification card, usually a buff-colored piece of cardboard somewhat smaller than a penny postcard, is the notice sent to registrants by their draft boards informing them of their status in the draft.

The new requirement is directed against men "believed to be delinquent by reason of failure to keep n touch with their local boards as required." It was pointed out that less than three-tenths of 1 per cent of all registrants are believed to be delinquent.

Most delinquencies, it was believed, are due to negligence or lack of understanding of selective service regulations. Between 1917 and 1918 about 41/2 per cent of all registrants were considered delinquent. Anticipating that some registrants have lost or misplaced their notice of classification, selective service has provided for the issuance of duplicate cards. The persons sought by selective service are those required to register who have failed to do so or whose registration cards have been lost in transit to local boards and those for whom selective service had a record but who have dropped out of sight or moved without leaving forwarding addresses. In addition, there are the persons who have registered, who are in touch with their

local boards but are "deliberate, known violators." Such cases, the local board instructions said, should be in the hands of United States attorneys. All Cards May Not Be Out. District selective service headquarters said it knew all cases of registrants through the June 30 registration had been reviewed but cards had been mailed out to regis-diately, it was said, to get the cards out as rapidly as possible. While national headquarters said violators are subject to a maximum fine of $10,000 or five years in prison or both, it pointed out that the arrest or prosecution of violators was not a function of the selective service system, but of the Justice Department, with the FBI handling trants. Steps will be taken imme-most of the investigations. So that each man will comply with the new requirement, national headquarters said that: 1. If he is subject to registration he should be registered and have his

Is evaporated milk included in the new rationing program? and frozen fruits and vegetables, fruit and vegetable juices, dried fruits and soups:

Q. Why does the Government ration all of the listed canned foods

A. If only the canned foods that are more scarce were rationed, consumers would rush to buy the un-rationed foods which could be used instead. This would create shortages of the alternate foods, which ings here after the annual meeting would then have to be rationed after of the association scheduled in the supply had been seriously de-

Navy Announces Plan To Expand WAVES By at Least 50 Pct.

Recruiting Drive Starts To Increase Force: Now Numbers 5,000

Plans to expand the WAVES by at least 50 per cent were disclosed by the Navy Department over the week end and a Nationwide recruiting campaign announced.

It is estimated that 5,000 officers and enlisted women are today either on active duty or training at the various schools established by the Monthly recruiting quotas for the naval districts have already been raised 35 per cent. In November Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel, said there were started in the 36 district and regional offices of naval officer procurement and will soon to augmented through the use of posters, pamphlets and radio programs.

For prospective officers, however, the age limits are 20 to 50 and the educational requirement is, in general, a college degree.

Right now she is full of enthusiasm for the new Philadelphia packing center. Mrs. Stacy Lloyd is chairman of it. There are to be 60 volunteers a day working there and it is expected that they will turn out 100,000 packages a month. The project has a building in Philadelphia all its own, an old stocking factory which is being completely renovated. It's made completely of glass panes and ought to look pretty dashing and modernistic when it's finished. The food storage will be on the top floor, the production line on the second floor and the packing is to be done on the ground floor. Into each parcel will go 16 different kinds of food packages-all approved by the Nutrition Committee of the Red Cross-also cigarettes. And the parcels will go-and very shortly, Mrs. Garrett hopes-to all the United Nations' prisoners of war.

Ellis Credle of Alexandria Rewarded For Careful Study of Juvenile Tastes

By Frances Lide.

It took Ellis Credle, author of numerous self-illustrated books for children, about four years to prepare her first, "Down, Down the Mountain"-a volume of some 30 pages and not over 1,000 words.

But back of that effort was a studious approach to the literary field which has paid rich rewards in the number of her published works and in the niche she holds in the market for juveniles She lives in Alexandria with her husband, Charles de Kay Townsend.

Queen Caroline Fund Presented for Relief Work in England

Money Raised at Lee Homestead in Virginia Repays Old Kindness

The Queen Caroline fund, totaling 406 pounds and 6 shillings, from the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Inc., has been presented to Queen Elizabeth of England by Lady Astor, a director of the foundation, to be used for relief work in that country.

The fund came into being because an act of kindness of Queen Caroline more than two centuries ago, and was named for her. It is made up of small sums donated by persons who have visited Stratford Hall, historic home of the Lees of Virginia and birthplace of Robert E. Lee

Back in 1729, when Queen Caroline was regent of England, she sent to Thomas Lee, Acting Gövernor of Virginia, a gift of 300 pounds to help build Stratford after his previous home had been destroyed by fire, set by escaped felons whom he, as magistrate, had imprisoned.

Queen Elizabeth, in a response to Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, president of the foundation, proposes to allocate the gift to a fund for relief of those who have lost their homes by fire and bombs. So, a Queen's gift of more than 200 years ago goes back to England to help those who are suffering today.

Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, a director of the foundation and widow of the former Ambassador to England, last April gave the sum into the keeping of Lord Halifax at a ceremony at the British Embassy. A large number of the foundation members witnessed the ceremony.

At that time Mrs. Bingham said:
"It is our wish that her majesty use this money for relief work as she sees fit. It comes with our warmest greetings and with our sincere prayers that out of the ruins and ashes of houses in England, destroyed by the criminals of today, there may arise homes like Stratford—homes standing strong and firm, symbols of a way of life that Great Britain and America are fighting for today."

Mrs. Bingham returned recently from England, where she visited Lady Astor at Plymouth, just in time to see Lord Astor made Mayor of Plymouth for the fourth consecutive time.

DECLARE WAR NOW ON EPIDEMIC COLDS

Put "Vicks Plan" To Work

Results of medically-supervised test show followers of Vicks Plan had fewer colds... shorter colds...50% less sickness from colds!

WITH contagious colds spreading, you've got to keep on your toes. So put Vicks Plan to work at once! Certified results of a winter-long test among 2650 children show that followers of Vicks Plan had fewer colds...shorter colds...50% less sickness from colds!

Right in your own home this simple easy-to-follow plan may do less—or it may do even more for you and your family than this remarkable record indicates. But with colds on a rampage, it's certainly worth trying! Get full details in your package of Vicks.

IT'S EASY— HERE'S WHAT YOU DO!

Observe A Few Simple Health Rules. Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Avoid crowds and people who have colds. At First Sniffle or Sneeze, put a few drops of clinic-tested Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Use as directed in package. This specialized medication is expressly designed to aid your natural defenses against colds—and if used in time, Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing. (Even when your head is all stuffed up from a head cold, Va-tro-nol relieves distress, makes breathing easier.)

VapoRub on back, as well as on throat and chest. VapoRub penetrates to the cold-congested upper bronchial tubes with soothing medicinal vapors. It stimulates throat, chest, and back surfaces like a warming poultice. This penetrating-stimulating action works for hours to relieve miseries of colds . . . even while you sleep!

NOTE: If the miserable symptoms of the cold are not relieved prompily—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family doctor right away.

Army-Navy Output Banner to Be Given Army Map Service

Ceremonies Tomorrow Will Honor Record Of Local Plant

An Army-Navy Production Ban-ner, awarded the Army Map Service for service "over and above the call of duty," will be presented at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in ceremones at the Map Service plant, "somewhere near Washington," it was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy will turn over the banner formally to Col. W. A. Johnson, commanding officer of the Army Map Service.

The "E" pins for all workers who contributed to the winning of the production award will be presented by Rear Admiral C. H. Woodward. They will be accepted by Thomas L. Sharkey, representing the civilian management of the plant, and Miss Bertha A. Hall, representing the Win Bond Award.

After the banner has been displayed by William H. Pistel, the plant's oldest employe, and Mrs. Anne McEnally, it is to be raised on the flagpole. From the flagpole also will fly, for the first time, War Department flag, awarded in recognition of the fact that 90 per cent of the plant's personnel have subscribed to the 10 per cent payroll-deduction plan for purchase of War bonds.

Music at the presentation ceremony will be provided by the Army Band, led by Capt. T. F. Dorsey, jr. The Army - Navy Production Award was granted the Map Service plant for its excellent reproduction and lithographic work and for the work of its cartographic section, which handles the compilation and preparation of new maps and charts. Graduates from officer candidate schools also are trained in lithography and other features of map making at the local plant. Later they are assigned to mobile map units, which operate in the field, furnishing "on-thespot" maps for the combat forces.

Under Army Command. Started in 1909 as the "Lithographic School" for Army engineers in one end of a warehouse at what is now the Army War College, the may enable the general public to get Map Service has grown from a personnel of 18 enlisted men to a plant which employs 1,874 men and 1,700 women. At present, the plant is turning out about 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 maps each month.

A military organization under command of an Army officer but operated almost entirely by civilians, the Army Map Service has subsidiary plants in several other sections of the country and also maintains four other libraries where maps are collected, classified and of the water. filed. It is accumulating the greatest military and general map library in existence, which probably will be available for civilian use after the war.

Eight Bodies Discovered

bodies of eight men, missing eight days in a flight from Barksdale Field, La., to the Walterboro (S. C.) Army Air Base, were found yester-day in the wreckage of their plane 9 miles northeast of Monroe, La., Barksdale officials said.

The missing plane was found in a "tangled swamp," in about 2 feet of water. Apparently it had landed with terrific impact, searchers said. The plane was located from the air by a Selman Field pilot who was investigating a duck hunter's report that he had seen the craft,

To Be Popularized

Army, Navy Announce Number Designations Will Be Abandoned

Combat planes in the armed services of the United States are to be their picturesque names instead of the alphabetical-numerical designations. A joint Army-Navy state-ment today said the new system a better idea of the character of military aircraft and to identify combat planes more easily. The practice has long been in effect in England and the names of "Spitfire" and "Hurricane" have become almost household words there and in this country, the statement said. It added that the British have also adopted certain names for American-built aircraft and, with few exceptions, these names have been retained on this side

Since many of these names have earned fame under the British designation, it was believed that this practice should be maintained rather than to plant new and perple's minds. However, certain minor changes have been made, as in the case of the Curtiss P-40 series. which has been known variously as the "Tomahawk," "Kittyhawk" and 'Warhawk," but will be designated in the future as the "Warhawk."

New Drive for Books For Men in Services Begins Here Tuesday

Modern and Technical Reading Material To Be Sought

Emphasizing the need of service-men for the latest type of reading material rather than "any old book from the attic," Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith yesterday announced the opening tomorrow of the 1943 "Victory Book Campaign." The campaign will continue through March 5.

Mrs. Smith is directing for the second time the District's share in the national drive for books for soldiers, sailors, marines, Coast Guardsmen and merchant seamen. The national campaign held from January to March of last year netted 10,000,000 books, of which the District contributed 95,000.

"This year the accent will be on quality rather than quantity," Mrs. Smith explained. "We want recent books for the boys."

On Nazis' Religious Attacks

She said that either regular or pocket editions are acceptable. She listed as the most desirable current fiction and no-fiction, "westerns," adventure, mystery, humor and technical books.

newer books, Mrs. Smith said, the Communications Commission said method of collection has been yesterday. changed from trucks to mailing. This year, as last year, books may be left at any branch of the Public Library and the libraries of George Washington University and Catholic University. It is preferable, however, Mrs. Smith said, to mail the newspaper December 17, was quoted books to the classification center at as saying in part: the Southwestern Branch of the Public Library, Seventh and H from German printing presses.

The director explained that the plea for modern books was made Many, many of them are sent because thousands of the books turned in nationally last year were "hopelessly out of date" and "in very poor condition." She said that the District had done unusually well compared to the rest of the country. Only 20,000 books were not acceptable, and 95,000 were approved by the public librarians here.

Army Libarians Help.

As was the case last year librarians of the armed forces stationed near Washington are assisting Mrs. Smith in management of the campaign. Sponsored nationally by the American Library Association, the Red Cross and the United Service Organizations, the drive is also backed here by the District Commissioners and Miss Clara W. Herbert, public librarian. Last year President and Mrs. Roosevelt also joined in the local campaign, the President contributing one of his published speeches and Mrs. Roosevelt her autobiography.

The books branded last year as acceptable for shipment to United Joseph Hamilton Dies; in poor condition or otherwise not States forces all over the world were sold as scrap paper. The money was ordered by the services. The same system will be followed this year Hamilton, 65, advertising agency with the addition that lists of the head and director of information for desired technical books will also be the WPA in 1939, died Saturday published periodically for private night after a short illness. contributors to prchase. The director added that money sent by persons who have no books to give should be mailed to her at the Franklin Building, 13th and K streets N.W.

Books Sorted, Graded.

The books mailed to the Southwestern Branch Library should be wrapped in strong wrapping paper and tied securely, Mrs. Smith said. She added praise for the librarians there, who voluntarily sort all the books into literary types and then grade them as to condition.

Books donated here last year were sent as far as Greenland and Iceland, Mrs. Smith said. Some of the soldiers stationed at nearby Fort Meade and Fort Belvoir were so anxious to get their share, she recalled, that they sent their own trucks to pick up thousands of books before the campaign had officially closed. Although the bulk of the books were turned in during the three months of the drive, a small number have been coming in regularly through the public library branches ever since.

Last year the Army and Navy distributed most of the books to soldiers and sailors, but this year the coast guardsmen and marines also will get a substantial portion. As an offset of the drive, Mrs. Smith added, several hundred phonograph records were also brought into the Public Library, and those again will be acceptable.

RAF Continues Assaults On Jap Bases in Burma

B; the Associated Press NEW DELHI, Jan. 4.-RAF fighter planes, continuing their daily assaults on Japanese bases in Burma, yesterday raided several enemy-occupied villages in the Rathedaung area, strafed a column of trucks at Meiktila and set fire to buildings and railway cars near Monywa, a British communique announced today. The raids were carried out without the loss of a plane, the announcement said.

The bulletin made no mention of British ground forces which have been reported operating in the Rathedaung area me 25 miles northwest of Akyao, after pushing down the Burmese coast from the Indian frontier.

Of Simple, Well-Cooked Foods

As Reported by Arthur H. Deute

The little club of four couples, calling themselves the Club de Jeudi or Cook's Thursday Night Out Club, carried on for its 18th consecutive dinner meeting last Thursday night, with Roy English master of the pots and pans. As the four men gain in experience, it is interesting to note the improvement in their culinary skill. Now, with wartime rationing comes a further challenge to their ingenuity. No more great roasts and 3-inch strip sirloin steaks. This time, the

Unless you are an exception to the rule, you probably think a handmade tablecloth is beyond your means; perhaps it is, if you have to buy it. But the smart thing to do is to make your own. This lovely filet-crochet tablecloth is completely made by combining two triangular motifs of different design. Each triangle measures 8 inches across and 8 inches deep when you work with No. 30 crochet cotton Heavier cotton will make the motifs correspondingly larger, for a bedspread, if you like.

Pattern envelope contains two filet-crochet diagrams of easy-to-see dot-in-square method; also full directions. Send 11 cents (in coin) for pattern No. 1306 to Needle Arts Dept., thington Star, P. O. Box 172, Station D. New York, N. Y.

With school days coming around again, mother once more becomes preoccupied with that nourishing midday meal. If the youngters come home for it, and daddy is off to the wars, the usual luncheon can be turned into a real dinner, and supper can be light and simple. Plenty of vegetables, fruit and milk should be used to supplement the main protein dish. Lots of enriched bread, spread with butter or reinforced margarine, should be included, toq. If your children take their lunches with them, perhaps our leaflet containing suggestions for school lunch box menus will help you. 'Start Day With Good Meal' Is Wise Rule to Follow

By the Bureau of Home Economics, USDA

"Eat a good breakfast to start a good day" is a wise rule any time. It's an especially wise rule to follow in winter and in this busy wartime. To rate praise as "good," a breakfast scores on three counts, say home economists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It has appetite appeal. It is nourishing. And it provides needed amounts and proportions of energy foods to carry through until lunchtime.

The year 1943 probably will be econd in importance in our history only to the year 1776. Every man woman and child is anxious and willing to do his part for the deense of his country

The functions of the women and children will be less spectacular han those of our men, whether they are in the service of the Army, lavy, in Government work, in munition plants or giving volunteer service after their own daily jobs are ione. There is nothing dramatic about tending. planning, buying and preparing three meals a day. There is a challenge, however, more than ever this year when our Government tells us that we have a patriotic duty to give our families food which will supply everything necessary for good

There are two other factors which must be considered. There must be no hoarding of supplies. It is not necessary to have on hand more than enough for a few days, according to every good housekeeper's custom. Then there must be no waste After supplies reach the kitchen they must be taken care of in such a way that there is no spoilage. One thing the Japanese may be waiting for is the repair of damaged carriers, or perhaps the comoletion for sea of new carriers. It is notable that no Japanese carriers took part in the battle of the Solomon Islands, in which the Japanese fleet was so disastrously beaten, and none has been reported since as engaged in any action anywhere in the Pacific. It is, therefore, quite possible that for the moment every Japanese carrier has been sunk or is in dockyard hands undergoing repair. The carrier has been the spearhead of most of the Japanese naval offensive thrusts and the Japanese may well be reluctant to risk a large-scale operation until they have at least one or two carriers to oppose to ours.

Subject to limitations of radius of action from operating bases it would do something to offset their deficiency in carriers, and it would have the additional virtue of contributing greatly to their defensive system in case they are thrown back on the defensive. It is particularly neces-sary for the Japanese to have sylvania avenue N.W., 6 o'clock this greater flexibility now because their evening. air force is declining in strength and every unit must therefore be employed to its fullest efficiency. The bidding: South. North. East 1 NT Pass Pass Pass Pass West opened the ace of clubs and continued the suit, South ruffing. A trump to the ace and a return finesse of the heart jack disclosed the expected bad break in trumps. South expected that West had 11 black cards from his vigorous bidding, so laid down the diamond ace as a safety play. When that dropped the king he went into a Apparently East was bound to win trump and a diamond. But South finally figured out a line of play which would prevent the loss of diamond trick.

He cashed the ace and king of spades and ruffed dummy's last 12. Cylindrical club. Next he laid down the king of trump, leaving himself trumpless while East still held the trump queen and the ten-nine-six of dia- 17. Indian monds. Then South led his last spade. If East ruffed he would have to 19. Prophets return a diamond. No matter which diamond he chose he would be unable to win a diamond trick. (If he led low, South could win with the eight at once; if he led the ten or nine, dummy would win with the jack and return the suit for a finesse of the queen-eight.) If East refused to ruff the third spade, he would have to discard a diamond. Then South would cash the top diamonds and let East make the last trick with the high trump.

By this line of play South held the loss to two tricks, making one overtrick. As all tournament players know, an overtrick in many cases is worth just as many points as bidding a slam on some other hand. In this case it netted South a well-deserved top.

The flowers are inconspicuous and both the staminate and pistillate ones appear on the same tree about the time the young leaves emerge in May or early June. These alternate compound leaves are from 15 to 30 inches long, with 11 to 17 leaflets. They are a lighter shade of green than those of the black walnut, have fewer leaslets and are quite sticky to the touch.

The male flowers are long, yellowgreen and covered with pollen. The wind lifts it in clouds so that it may drift to the globular female blossoms. Soon after this, you may find the pear-shaped sticky fruits. As they take on size, the pulpy husk can be seen. This covering

The upshot was that, finally, some one decided to kill Nurse Lamont. This was done. Then, just to prove that everything was blissful, they put Laraine into a little movie called "Fingers at the Window," in which she and Lew Ayres attempted to remain dramatically alive until the last reel. Evidently this was the caliber of the pictures in which MGM wanted Day to work. She rebelled again. At this point, there began a period in which messenger boys came bearing scripts. Miss Day read them. The lads returned the scripts.

She turned down 14 pictures before they sent her "Journey for Margaret," which was to feature herself and Robert Young. This she read. This she liked. It was a good story. She played it.

She's new working in "From Here to Victory," which RKO is producing. It stars Cary Grant. She's on loan-out from her home lot, but she's finally found a part in which she can prove again that she's an actress. And, she's in line for better roles at MGM. (Associated Press.)

What Hollywood Stars Show Off in Fashions

By SHEILAH GRAHAM,

HOLLYWOOD.-Linda Darnell grows prettier every day. And wish you could see her in her new evening gown. It has a contrasting bodice and skirt. The top of the off-shoulder gown is black taffeta embroidered in Kelly-green polka dots, while the full skirt is all-black taffeta. Linda's next picture is "War Correspondent."
