Mr. Williams estimated he could take on 50,000 more trainees with existing stations if three changes are made in the law: To drop the requirement that a youth must be unemployed; to change the age limits, and to raise the pay.

Senator McKellar told Mr. Williams he had a high regard for him personally, but felt that NYA had become "a fifth wheel on the wagon" and industry itself are doing the Eyes

Pay-as-You-Go Tax Plan Favored By President

Declares Proposal, However, Would Mean Loss to Treasury

By GARNETT D. HORNER.

President Roosevelt said today that he is in favor of getting income taxes on a pay-as-you-go basis, but there is a big problem involved on just how that might be done.

The President pointed out to a press conference that many persons believe the Government should forgive all or part of one year's income taxes to the individual in switching to a current payment basis, but he insisted that would result in ultimate loss to the Treasury. Unless a portion or all of current taxes were canceled in a shift to a pay-as-you-go tax plan, Mr. Roosevelt said a taxpayer would be confronted with the difficulty of paying present taxes and also saving ahead for next year's taxes.

Leaves Question Unsettled.

His discussion left unsettled whether the Chief Executive would approve such a plan as proposed by Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, but he indicated that he would be inclined to prefer some method that would not result in writing off an entire year's income tax. The President also said he probably would send to Congress later additional information bearing on expansion of the social security program, but refused to say whether he intended to make any specific legislative recommendations. A report of the National Resources Planning Board, which is understood to go into detail on expanding the social security program, will be a EA, Jan. 7 (Delayed).—With a part of such data as he will send to Congress, the President told ques Asked if he intended to go any MOSCOW, Jan. 8.-With their bombers roaring low overhead to blast a path for their tanks, the Russians have smashed an attempt by the hard-pressed Germans to form a new defense line on the lower Don and are continuing their advance in that sector as well as in the Caucasus. It was announced today.

Military Catastrophe Pictured as Result

Of Further Delay

By JAMES Y. NEWTON.

Rubber Director William M. Jeffers said today that unless an immediate "green light" is given to construction of plant facilities for 65 to 70 per cent of the gigantic synthetic rubber program, the Nation would face a military catastrophe and collapse of its transportation sys-

The program, beset by delays in obtaining priorities for vital materials and equipment, right now is so delicately balanced between success and failure that a good or bad break in luck could throw it either way, he added. Mr. Jeffers, in an interview, also revealed that it will not be necessary at this time to invoke a ban on pleasure or Sunday driving throughout the Nation as a rubber conservation move. He said that the current gas rationing program was reducing driving to the point made necessary by the tight rubber situation. Unlike heavy trucks and military vehicles, passenger cars can be kept rolling for some time through use of reclaimed rubber for new tires and recaps.

Backs Pleasure Driving Ban.

OPA action outlawing pleasure driving in the East was absolutely essential to the conservation of limited petroleum supplies along the Atlantic seaboard, Mr. Jeffers emphasized. Mr. Jeffers disclosed that under the most favorable of conditions it will be a long time before ordinary motorists obtain any tire rubber from the synthetic program. A "go" signal now for completion of 65 to 75 per cent of the program would assure production of about 600,000 tons of rubber in 1944, he said. All of this will be needed by our armed services, the armies of our allies and to keep buses and essential trucks in ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN operation. Rubber for the motorists ralty announced today that an AUSTRALIA, Jan. 8.—Allied will be provided in the last 30 to 35 per cent of the program, to be in operation some time in the distant

Given Highest Priority.

A short time ago the War Production Board with Army and Navy approval, gave the highest priority possible-something called a "special direction"—for completion of 20 per cent of the rubber program. This order took precedence over every priority except AAA ratings for materials for near-immediate delivery and equipment for the African campaign. A similar rating also was given for 20 per cent of the highoctane program. Neither action was

Mr. Jeffers said this was not nearly enough to assure him success. His pleadings have failed to bring further assistance. Some one high up in Government will have to decide between the relative importance of the rubber program and the programs for aviation gasoline, shipping and aircraft. Although Mr. Jeffers did not say the matter was up to the White House, the decision undoubtedly will rest with President Roosevelt. An odd angle in the dispute is that the rubber for which Mr. Jeffers is fighting is used extensively in the other programs.

The rubber director and his deputy in charge of the synthetic program, Col. Bradley Dewey, described To WPB Field Offices in detail the current rubber outlook. The Baruch report, the rubber "Bible," figured on a reserve of 224,000 tons of rubber in this counthe fall of this year. We already was heavily hit by a 500-pound have lost through delay 100,000 tons of the expected inventory. A total of 120,000 tons is needed to keep in operation rubber fabricating plants

Col. Dewey said that "the reserve will dip right down and kiss the 120,000-ton danger line. In fact, we

The 120,000-ton "disaster" deadline in inventory, which Col. Dewey hopes can be met next fall, includes crude rubber from all sources, synthetics and rubber drained from such plants as guayule. It includes supplies of crude anticipated from South America, Ceylon and Liberia.

Mr. Jeffers described conditions which would result from further delay in the synthetic program as chaotic. He said factories making tires for the Army and our Allies would be forced to close, as well as those which produce other vital products of rubber. The factories would lose already scarce manpower, which would be virtually impossible to replace. A breakdown in transportation, including both buses and essential trucks, would almost surely ensue. It would be impossible for us to supply tires to Russia and our other Allies

Sees Nation-Wide Ban.

Mr. Jeffers does not believe it is oo late to save the rubber program. Tomorrow, he feels, may be too late. Although the director declared that a Nation-wide ban on pleasure driving is not necessary now, he conceded that the action may be by such indirect means. The reecessary next summer, "when people start driving to the ball park,

Roosevelt Is Seen Unifying Congress By Tone of Speech

New GOP Member Asks if Address Had Hint of Fourth Term

By the Associated Press

A Congress which exhibited unusual bi-partisan approval of President Roosevelt's road-tovictory message noted further today what many members called the "conciliatory" tone of the speech and pondered its significance.

•Many Republicans joined the Democrats in predicting the restrained non-belligerent wording on domestic questions would go far toward strengthening prospects for unity in the new Congress. One Republican asked the question whether the President had not cast his hat in the ring for a fourth

While the comment on the conciliatory nature of the address did not contend that the Chief Executive was heeding last November's election results, some informed legislators expressed the belief privately that Mr. Roosevelt was attaching greater weight to the counseling of conservative members of his party. Security Program Omitted.

This, they said, was evidenced by the manner in which he advocated a broader social security system for all Americans. While saying he dissented from suggestions that this was no time to speak of a "better America after the war," the President omitted any specific program or time for its enactment in declaring that this great Government "can and must" provide assurance for its ciitzens against all "major economic hazards * * * from the cradle to the

New Guinea Commander Says U. S., Australian Troops 'Did Wonders'

By GEORGE WELLER. Poreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 6 (Delayed).-Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, a member of the Allied high command, inspected the Buna battlefields and watched bombers strike the Jap line of communications at Sanananda today. While ground-strafing planes peppered the lines, the commander of the Allied land forces, with the veteran American commander of the local front at his side, paused in an American jeep to watch the renewal of the air offensive against these thoroughly intrenched and formidable Jap positions.

After greeting the troops, Australian and American, encamped under the shattered palms on the ground they won, Gen. Blamey, who wore an open-shirted Anzac blouse and carried a shooting stick, speaking from experience in the Middle East and Flanders said:

"This is the most closely fortified area I have ever known since France. The troops who captured emplacements like these did wonders. It was the most terrific feat ever to get here." Paid Necessary Price. Gen. Blamey said Buna's captur has been not without cost. "It was not a cheap victory by any means. But the price had to be paid and the troops stood up to the task and paid it." When asked to compare the performance of the less-experienced Americans with the Tobruk veterans with whom they shared three salients and are still sharing the Sanananda front, Gen. Blamey said:

"The Americans did their job. Our men have had three years of war. They got their experience the only way it can be gained." In one section of the marshy government gardens, east of the bloody triangle of Buna where the roads to Buna village and Mission fork, bury-

Gov. Stassen Proposes 'Single Parliament' After War Is Won

Minnesota Executive Says United Nations Must 'Keep Sights High'

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. .-Gov. Har-old E. Stassen of Minnesota, recommending immediate planning for post-war world co-operation, last night proposed establishment of a United Nations of the World with a single House of Parliament as the key governmental device. "We now have a world-wide vision to win the war," he declared. "We must keep our sights high and maintain a world-wide vision to win an enduring people's peace.

The War Department took steps today to aid in the conservation of rubber and gasoline by helping its military and civilian personnel share rides to and from the Pentagon Building, which now accommodates 22,000 persons.

Traffic surveys have indicated about 8,000 employes up to a month ago were using automobiles for daily transportation while the remainder relied mostly on buses. The "share-your-car" campaign, it was believed, would also help the bus transportation problem. A large map of Washington and

Assembly Votes Recess Until Monday Night

205 Bills Introduced At First Session In Annapolis

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 8.—Committees of the Maryland General Assembly today began work on 205 bills introduced at the first general business session following organization of the two houses.

Both the Senate and the House were in recess until 8 p.m. Monday despite repeated gubernatorial statements that the Assembly should stay on the job until the work at hand was completed.

word, it was believed that Gov. O'Conor had requested sessions of both houses today, but Senate President Arthur H. Brice of Kent set chamber held today would be mere

Mr. Brice said the Senate would before the printing of bills already introduced, and the House of Delegates quickly followed the Senate's lead in recessing.

Bill Stirs Controversy.

Speaker Thomas E. Conion of Baltimore said the House had intended to meet today, but adjourned "out of a spirit of co-operation" with the Senate.

Meanwhile, a heated controversy appeared to be developing about one of the bills on which committees of both chambers began study

It was House bill No. 98-one of the last of 100 legislative council and five independent bills introduced in the lower chamber yesterday. It provides for a building and loan board to police the State's building and loan associations, and members of the House quickly predicted a stormy future for it.

Maryland is currently the only one of the 48 States without a building and loan control act, and the measure introduced yesterday bore the stamp of approval of the legislative council.

Similar Bill Failed. Veteran lawmakers based their predictions of a controversy over the measure on their recollections of a similar bill introduced at the 1941 session. That one was pigeonholed in committee.

The bill provides for the appointment by the Governor of three nonsalaried building and loan board members and a director of the building and loan program who would receive $5,000 a year and would be responsible to the board. The bill would also provide for State auditing of building and loan company books and would place restrictions on lending practices. Another bill introduced in the House would fix the highway speed limit in the State at 40 miles per hour, although both President Roosevelt and Gov. O'Conor had recommended a 35-mile limit. House Republican Leader J. Milton Dick of Allegany said "that if Federal officials had made proper investigation, they would have set the 40-mile limit * * *." Other Repealers Introduced. Another bill which legislators believed might provoke much discussion was a Senate proposal to repeal the Declaration of Intentions Act. Maryland is the only State which has such an election law, which provides that new residents of the State shall declare their intention of becoming citizens a year before they become eligible to vote. Similar repealers have been introduced in previous sessions, precipitating much controversy.

Among other bills introduced in the Senate were proposals to repeal all county and Baltimore City laws relating to sale of property for nonpayment of taxes, to create chronic disease hospitals when funds were provided for construction, to permit State prisoners to work on farms, to control weights and measures outside Baltimore City, and to provide continuous assessment of property in all counties except Baltimore City and Frederick County, which now have such laws.

Organization Completed. A House resolution was offered by Delegate J. Howard Jonson, Democrat, of Wicomico requesting that the State Roads Commission grant free passage over State-owned toll bridges and ferries to pedestrians in the armed forces.

Floor Leader John S. White of Prince Georges suggested, however, that the resolution be referred to the Ways and Means Committee since there was some doubt as to its constitutionality Organization of the Assembly was completed yesterday, the second day of the 1943 session, with appointment of committees. As was expected, Senator James J. Lindsay of Baltimore County was appointed Senate Finance Committee chairman, and Delegate White was named to nead the House Ways and Means Committee.

Would Restrict Firms. The building and loan bill pro-poses an effective policing of the State's building and loan association's, with, its supporters assert, the intention of putting them on a sound financial basis throughout. Under the provisions of the 1943

RAF Bombers Start Fires, Sink Sampans Near Akyab

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 8.—RAF bombers raided the Japanese-occupied port of Akyab in Western Burma again last night after a series of daylight forays in which four enemy supply sampans were sunk off the coast farther south, a British communique announced today. Several fires were started in the night raid on Akyab and objectives in the immediate vicinity of the port were attacked with good results, the communique said. The daylight sweeps also included attacks on oil installations near Chauk and on enemy positions near Rathedaung, 25 miles northwest of Akvab. All the operations were carried out without the loss of a single aircraft, the bulletin said.

Rome Withdraws Film Of Pope's Life After Earlier Praise

Glorification of Peace Seen as Main Cause For Fascist Action

By PAUL GHALI, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

BERN. Jan. 8.—"Pastor Angelicus," a film of the Pope's life, which was given its Rome premiere shortly before Christmas, has been withdrawn from the Italian screen after only a few performances.

Following the film's recent preview, the Fascist press unanimously hailed it as a masterpiece which would take the world by storm. Every critic stressed its superlative technical and artistic qualities and pointed with pride to the fact it was the product of the Italian film Furthermore, reviewers promised their readers that before long the film would be showing in every Italian cinema.

After such extravagant praise, the film's short life comes as somewhat of a surprise. The reason for it was described yesterday in a Rome dispatch to the Basler Nachrichten as "not quite clear," but the film, wrote the correspondent, did not quite come up to first expectations. In various circles, for various reasons, it caused a "certain displeasure," he

After suggesting that strict Catholics might have been offended by the pomp and pagentry that the Pope's court disclosed, the film correspondent then gets to the obvious root of the matter. Fascist circles see a "certain pacifistic tendency" in the film, he writes, and therefore do not regard it as particularly timely.

The first reviews of the film re vealed that the last part is devoted to the "glorification of peace"-a fact which at the time caused some foreign observers here to wonder whether the Fascist authorities might not be a little embarrassed by Ey the Associated Press. the manner of its reception on the (Copyright, 1943, Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

The President's Message

In his message to the Seventyeighth Congress, President Roosevelt said that he sought to amphasize a sense of proportion in appraising the great events of 1942 and, to the extent that they can be foreseen, those which lie ahead in 1943. He succeeded admirably, in a statement which deserves to be ranked with his very best.

Reviewing the progress of the war, Mr. Roosevelt spoke with confidence of the certainty of ultimate success, but avoided any suggestion of quick and easy victory. For 1943, the most that he would promise was a "very substantial advance" along the roads to Tokio, Berlin and Rome. And on this occasion he was able to bolster his verbal assurance with impressive statistics, not on what we are going to produce in the way of military weapons but on what we did produce in 1942. As he called out the numbers-48,000 military planes, 56,000 combat vehicles, 670,000 machine guns and so on-the desperate men who control the Axis countries must have experienced a deep sense of despair. For them, the game is up; they cannot win and they know it.

The President properly described our effort during the past year as a production miracle, but he claimed no credit for himself or for his administration, although many of the foundations of our vast military production machine were laid before Pearl Harbor because he had foreseen the inevitability of war. In his message, however, he preferred to give the credit to those who have actually done the work-to the "owners, managers and supervisors, to the draftsmen and engineers, to the workers-men and women-in factories and arsenals and shipyards and mines and mills and forests and railroads and highways." This was something new, and it will be welcomed.

In similar vein Mr. Roosevelt sought to disarm his critics by candidly admitting that mistakes had been made on the domestic front; that he, too, had been annoyed by too many complicated forms and questionnaires. But, as he correctly said, these mistakes are inherent in doing big things for the first time. The important thing is not that mistakes have been made, but rather that those responsible for the errors learn to correct them. The President said that the lessons have been learned and that, as far as possible, the mistakes will be rectified. To what extent this will be done remains to be seen, but this candid statement from the President is an encouraging first step.

Somewhat surprisingly, the message contained few specific recommendations and set forth no concrete legislative proposals. In general terms the President outlined the shape that he believes the post-war world should take, and he spoke briefly of his desire to provide greater protection in the United States against the evils of major economic hazards. But the details remain to be filled in.

As he said at the outset, his main purpose was to emphasize a sense of proportion, to put first things first. In keeping with this intent, he emphasized that "victory in this war is the first and greatest goal before us. Victory in the peace is next." That undoubtedly is the way most Americans feel about the matter, and it is a statement of objectives behind which they can and should unite.

The Dies Committee

The question of renewing the life of the Dies Committee, which was terminated with the conclusion of the Seventy-seventh Congress, is one of the controversial matters that will have to be settled by he House, now that the new Congress is in session.

As in the past, there is considerable opposition to the Dies group, and there have been predictions that the House will be less willing than on former occasions to provide funds for continuance of the committee's work. Unquestionably, the committee has made mistakes and it would seem that room remains for improvement in some of the procedures that it has followed. At the same time, however, the committee has rendered a useful service, which was not being rendered by any other agency, and it has labored under the handicap of the open or covert opposition of a good many influential individuals in Congress and in the reasonable degree upon a single pracwhich is properly within the scope into seven different units, each struc- to be dizzy.

Should the decision be to renew the committee, there is one suggestion which might be offered, however. In dissenting from Mr. Dies' recent majority report, Representative Voorhis, one of the members of the group, deplored what he described as the excessive tendency of "so-called left-wingers" to shout "Fascist" at every conservative who holds an important position, and for right-wingers to shout "Communist" at liberals and progressives. The suggestion implicit in this observation could be adopted with profit, not only by the Dies Committee but by all others who have been parties to the controversy which its investigations have stirred up. It is one thing to turn the spotlight of publicity on the real Fascists and Communists in this country, but it is quite another to create needless division by indiscriminate use of these appellations. This is the sort searcher may discover error instead of thing in which restraint is its of truth, and be misled, and mislead own reward.

Waste of Manpower

As the war continues to reveal our weaknesses as a Nation, along with our strength, it is natural that new emphasis is being directed to the fearful loss of manpower resources from preventable accidents. Wednesday night's discussion of this topic on the National Radio Forum, timed to coincide with the beginning of a national campaign against preventable accidents under direction of the National Safety Council's War Production Fund to Conserve Manpower, gave point to some statistics forcefully presenting the nature of the accident hazard.

Between the attack on Pearl Harbor and December 1, 1942, for instance, 46,300 workers have been killed in accidents, 13,800 of them while at work and 27,500 of them away from work. This loss of life on the home front may be compared with yesterday's new summary, by the Office of War Information, of total casualties to date on the war fronts-8.531 killed out of 61.126 killed, wounded, taken prisoner, interned or missing. In the same period, there have been 4,000,000 accidents involving lost time, 165.000 of these resulting in permanent disabilities. Accidents represented a loss of production comparable to a stoppage of work by 450,000,000 men the very start of our participation rine tenders. This fact suggests that for a day. "Next week," Surgeon in the World War, it has been evi- the original Japanese war plans did General Thomas Parran said, "work- dent that the weight of our war not contemplate the operation of de ers in the United States will lose seven and a half million days from | European end of the Axis. The inthe job" from accidents or illness, nine out of every ten from common ailments and the tenth from some preventable accident.

There is a vast opportunity here for constructive work in bringing home to our people the importance of being careful, and of keeping well. Aside from the prevention of tragic and needless loss of life and permanent injury, even a reasonable amount of attention to the prevention of carelessness would add enormously to our war production facilities. The President has taken a personal interest in the campaign now underway, to be centered in regional committees established in industrial cities throughout the country. Correct emphasis has been placed on the necessity of local leadership and pooling of responsibility in accident prevention between labor and management groups. We are doing so many marvelous things in industry these days that there is hope for new progress in an old and neglected field.

President Lowell

Few men were qualified to succeed Charles W. Eliot as head of a great American institution of learning. The twenty-fourth president of Harvard University had prepared for the position under the most friendly of conditions, and he entered upon its duties with every reason to believe himself equal to the task. Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, however, was a person whose capacities improved in the ratio of the development of his opportunities. At the time of his retirement in 1932 he had won acknowledgement of .pre-eminence among educational administrators. It is not too much to claim for him that he remade the Nation's oldest and most widely famous academy.

Under Dr. Lowell's management Harvard more than doubled its enrollment. The endowment rose from $22.000,000 in 1909 to $123,000.000 when his active solicitation of funds terminated. No other individual ever was so fortunate in finding money for the university's expansion. The Baker gift for the business school and the Widener offering of a vast new library were great achievements. Construction never stopped at Cambridge while Dr. Lowell remained in office. He was an enthusiastic builder, keenly alive to the joy of watching the progress of a noble design. But it is not merely for physical monuments that Dr. Lowell's memory will be held in grateful esteem. He deserved recognition as a reformer of outmoded cultural procedures. None of his contemporaries was more alert to the imperative demand for specialization. Without hurt to the traditional concept of general instruction, he brought about changes in curriculum arrangements whereby each student concentrated to a administration. There may be some tical course. The so-called "house doubt as to whether the ground plan" for the division of the College

His contribution to a changing philosophic point of view likewise merits mention. Dr. Lowell's particular interest as a scholar was in the direction of a better comprehension of the science of government, a more creative appreciation of the basic principles of organized communal association. His book on the British system of parliamentary democracy is a classic. He also produced several important volumes on the forces which influence public opinion. Perhaps the whole purpose and effect of his long and useful career may be summarized in these inspiring words, quoted from one of his reports to the Harvard Corporation: "Education has proved, and probably no one would now deny, that knowledge can advance, or at least can advance most rapidly, only by means of an unfettered search for truth on the part of those who devote their lives to seeking it in their respective fields, and by complete freedom in imparting to their pupils the truth that they have found. This has become an axiom in higher education, in spite of the fact that a others thereby. We believe that if enough light is let in, the real relations of things will soon be seen, and they can be seen in no other way."

Our Allies Listen In Perhaps the most attentive portion of the world-wide radio audience which followed President Roosevelt's address to the new Congress was to be found outside our borders among the many lands and peoples who are our Allies in the war. Most of them have the parliamentary system, where their political leaders, being directly responsible to the legislatures, frequently address those bodies on their official policies. Under our form of government, the President is required to do this only once a year in his report to Congress on the state of the Nation.

Ours being pre-eminently a war period, Mr. Roosevelt was bound to devote most of his speech to the overshadowing topic of the day. This he did in a broad survey of the war's evolution during the past year, together with general indications of our grand strategy, policies and prespects. It was those portions of his address which were most eagerly awaited abroad

Broadly speaking, well-informed foreign listeners heard about what they had expected to hear. From effort has been thrown against the escapable deduction from the President's address is that this overall strategy will be continued during the current year. Mr. Roosevelt forecast relentless hammering of Germany and Italy by land, sea and air, in conjunction with Britain and Russia, including concentric attacks on Hitler's "European fortress" from perhaps several unspecified points. He even intimated the possibility that this sustained assault might culminate in decisive victory within the life of the new Congress; that is, within the next two years. That is undoubtedly causing deep satisfaction in London and Moscow, typified by the broad smile on the face of Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet Ambassador, as he listened from the diplomatic gallery to the President's emphatic phrases.

The joy in Chungking and Canberra, however, may not be so unconfined, because the President indicated no similar grand offensive in the Far East and the Pacific for the immediate future. The best he could forecast was a shift from defensive to attritionally offensive tactics designed to wear down Japan's strength and thus pave the way for an ultimate assault on the heart of Japanese power. It is to be doubted that this will content either China or Australia, whose official criticisms of what they deem our insufficient efforts against Japan are becoming more and more outspoken. Their contention is that, unless Japan is prevented from consolidating her huge conquests and exploiting their vast natural resources. Japanese power will become so formidable that it may become impregnable to attacks from enemies partially exhausted in the task of crushing the European end of the Axis and preoccupied in the ensuing post-war settlements of Europe and the Near East. Such differences of viewpoint are inescapable in a global war, wherein each of the participants inevitably puts its special needs first on the list. Vast though America's resources may be, they are not unlimited. Some strategic scheme of apportionment must be made, and thereafter adhered to. Our Government is obviously determined on continuing its basic decisions concerning the conduct of the war. It cannot satisfy all its Allies in equal measure. The best that can be done is to see the war picture as a whole and maintain the best practicable balance under fluctuating circum-

Japanese Can't Stand Strain of Ship Losses

MacArthur Blow From Air May Have Crippled New Rabaul Move at Outset

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. There seems considerable evidence of a renewal of Japanese activities in the Southwestern Pacific. Japanese destroyers have attempted to land supplies on Guadalcanal, and a transport off Shortland Island. In the operation off Bougainville, 25 Zero fighters and float-type biplanes rose to attack our aircraft. Japanese dive-bombers from Munda resisted a naval bombardment of the airfield

At Rabaul, a concentration of Japanese shipping was attacked by bombers of Gen. MacArthur's command with results reported as the destruction of eight merchant ships and destroyer tender, and probable sinking of a destroyer moored along ide the tender. The total tonnage sunk in this operation is estimated at 50,000, which means that the nine ships sunk averaged over 5,000 tons each, indicating that they were vessels of considerable size. So many ships of such tonnage would hardly be collected within reach of our bombers save for some serious purpose. Thus, both by sea and in the air, the Japanese are growing active, and we may expect further signs of activity unless Gen. MacArthur's blow has crippled the Japanese operation at the outset. What the Japanese intentions may be we do not yet know. They may be merely trying to reinforce their garrison at Sana. nanda Point, or that on Guadalcanal. They may be engaged in strengthening of their positions on Bougainville, New Georgia and Santa Isabel, and at Rabaul itself, in anticipation of a coming Allied offensive-for which the bombardment of Munda may be a preliminary move. Or they may be intending to make a real endeavor to retake Guadalcanal and throw us out of the Solomons alto-

One thing is certain, the Japanese cannot go on losing shipping in 50,000ton lots indefinitely. This loss represents probably about one-eightieth of their remaining merchant fleet, which is a pretty heavy blow for a single action lasting only a few minutes.

It cannot be too heavily emphasized that Japanese shipbuilding capacity is simply not equal to keeping up with such strains. Working at full blast, it will take 4 per cent of Japan's annual production to replace, just the loss of this one action alone; of course, we do not do this well every day, but our total sinkings, including the losses inflicted by our indefatigable submarines, are well over the total possible replacement.

Another interesting feature is the reported appearance of a Japanese destroyer tender. Available information does not indicate the possession by the Japanese of any vessels of this class, though they have a number of submastroyers at great distances from established bases, since the purpose of destroyer tenders is to provide routine maintenance and overhaul facilities for destroyers operating with fleets in areas where normal base facilities are not available.

It is, of course, possible that the American aviators have made a mistake, and that the ship reported as a destroyer tender is actually just a tanker engaged in refueling the destroyer. But if the Japanese have really been compelled to fit out ships of the destroyer tender class, this suggests that the base facilities they have been able to provide at Rabaul and elsewhere in the Southwest Pacific are not of very extensive usefulness.

Still another point to be noted is the constant appearance in this and other communiques of Japanese "float-type" planes. These planes are designed to alight on and take off from water surfaces, as distinguished from land-type planes with wheeled carriages. In the Japanese Navy, the float-type planes are operated from seaplane tenders, a type for which Japanese naval constructors have gone in heavily, no less than nine large ones (three being of very recent construction and equipped with four catapults each) being reported in the latest issue of Jane's Fighting Ships, though there have been some losses in this class.

The continued presence of float-type seaplanes in Japanese operations, despite the fact that the extra weight of the floats imposes a severe handicap on these planes as against land-based or carrierbased fighters, gives the impression that the Japanese are compelled to use really desperate measures in order to have some sort of mobile air power in the fighting areas; and is another sign pointing to a present shortage of Japanese aircraft carriers, though this may be only a temporary condition pending the repair of damaged carriers or the completion of new ones.

A Suggestion for Reporters On Conducting Interviews.

To the Editor of The Star After reading the interview of Mrs. Clare Booth Luce by Miriam Ottenberg that appeared in The Star Tuesday, January 5, I was thoroughly convinced that I do not blame celebrities for trying to avoid press conferences and reporters, particularly if the reporters speak in the manner in which Miriam Ottenberg quoted. It seems to me that most of their questions were silly and futile, and their remarks very uncalled for (i.e.), "I checked. The train was only 20 minutes late." This was a remark of a reporter after Mrs. Luce explained that the train was two hours late. Perhaps reporters are supposed to act in this manner and perhaps that is why they get where they do, but it only seems natural that they could get further and get more conférences with important people if they acted in a more lady-like and gentleman-like fashion.

Mrs. Luce was certainly justified in saying that she would not have any more press conferences.

* * * * This is one of the intimate phases of bird feeding which demands a practical solution.

Fortunately for this combined indooroutdoor sport, few species except the starlings and pigeons are really dirty. A little soap and water, now and then, together with some elbow grease and a brush will undo quickly the little harm they do.

If the feeding station is at least 12 inches wide, the birds stick to it pretty closely. If larger birds attempt to get in, they may be kept out by covering the station with chicken wire, sometimes called poultry netting. Smaller species, even the cardinals, can enter freely. If the feeding station is a simple flat tray, it will be necessary to erect four posts, one at each corner, to hold the

Since birds are really food motors, it is impossible to expect them to be strictly antiseptic, in the human sense.

They eat a great deal, and digest it quickly. This is all necessary to maintain the high heat which keeps them warm in snow and ice. The temperature of birds ranges from 101 to 106 degrees, in some cases.

We are here dealing with one of nature's great triumphs. We should not expect, therefore, to find that nature has given much consideration to mankind's idea as to what is fit and proper.

Cats wash themselves with their own saliva, a proceeding which seems proper enough, for a cat, but which would strike human beings, if they saw one of their own kind do it, as strictly unwholesome and disgusting.

One sure way of protecting windows is to put up an outside screen. The sort which covers the entire win-shatters easily at a blow, as most people know. Even the shatter-proof glass, socalled, used in automobiles, will break, although the fragments will not fly.

It is a good thing to erect a feeding tray on a stake at a window, if this can be arranged.

This may be put back a foot or so, and thus keeps the sill and pane clean. Any one interested in bird life should not find the very little cleaning which will have to be done any great chore. at a time. And the convalescent worked up quite an admiration for the old starling, and came to look forward to his visits.

Many a person has gained a lifelong admiration for birds while ill, provided there is a feeding station where it can be seen easily, without head bending or twisting.

Sometimes such an installation requires much thought, but it is worth it, since the rude health of the feathered folk is always a wholesome tonic

Comments on Utterances

Of Ministers of Religion.

To the Editor of The Star The Star of December 30 carried under a Cleveland date line remarks of the Right Rev. John A. Ryan of Washington, constituting a diatribe upon the "authentic Bourbons of our time." Among his remarks is the following pertinent sentence: "I do not believe that an economy dominated by the philosophy of 'free enterprise' will be able to meet that demand." He also makes a second positive statement, according to the article. to the effect that unless the middle classes cease to get their opinions from the daily papers they may exercise sufficient voting power to place the champions of free enterprise in control of economic reconstruction after the war. Another speaker, namely, the Rev. William J. Smith, is credited with an indictment of organized management as having fought the natural rights of the workers from the beginning of industrial relations in America. It appears to me, as an American citizen, that these faction-promoting utterances are most unfortunate, particularly coming from men whose duty it would seem to be to further the teachings of Christ and to bring harmony among mankind, rather than create ill will. This is not the first general and abstract indictment of the so-called Bourbons, and it is interesting to notice that when these indictments are uttered they are never specific. It certainly seems that the American people have proved themselves sufficiently intelligent to separate the wheat from the chaff in reading daily papers and journals, and the suggestion made by Bishop Ryan would indicate that he is strongly in favor of more severe editing of the free press. It is not my intention in answering this indictment of Bishop Ryan and his colleague to raise any religious issue. My observation would be just the same if the remarks had emanted from Protestant ministers. The point that I wish to make is that anything that engenders factionalism is not Americanism. It matters not from whose mouth the utterance comes. It is much better that all of these "men of God" (Protestants, Catholics and Jews) confine their teachings to the word of God and not delve into matters wholly outside their realm of authentic activity. F. F. E.

Calls for Establishment of National School of Oriental Cultures.

William H. Stoneman's news report in The Star of December 30, "North African Arabs Reported Being Won by Nazi Propaganda." calls attention to the fact that our armed forces are being sent into hitherto remote areas without any knowledge of the languages and civilizations of the natives with whom they will come into contact. There is no excuse for this state of affairs. It arises from two prevalent superstitions, first that the Oriental languages are so difficult as to defy learning except at the expense of years of study; and second, that Americans cannot learn languages, anyway. Both are nonsense. No language can be intrinsically very difficult; if it were, no large group of people would speak it. And some of the greatest linguists in the world happen to be Americans.

Mr. Stoneman is correct in asserting that our Axis enemies have none of sistant Secretary. I these inhibitions. For instance, before our conduct of the war. JACK PREISS.

the war there were at least 16 institutions in Germany at which one could learn African languages; in America there was not a single one. At the present moment, however, the picture probably is not so black as Mr. Stoneman paints it. The education branch, Special Services, of the United States Army now has a highly intelligent and carefully planned language program. Its major defect is that it was not started two or three years ago. It should have the strongest support from those who make Army policy. Moreover, a private organization, the American Council of Learned Societies. seeing two years ago that the Government was unlikely to do anything about the obvious need for developing Americans competent in the languages useful in the war, set afoot its own intensive language program, under which not only are grammars and the other paraphernalia of learning languages hitherto untaught and unstudied in America being produced, but 56 courses in 26 unusual languages have been given in 20 universities to upwards of 1,000 students. Many of these students already are in the combat and civil services, though no systematic method of placing them has been worked out as yet. Under these auspices an intensive course in Moroccan Arabic has been running at the University of Pennsylvania since last June. The eight students are now completing the first stage of their study. They have a good working knowledge of Moroccan Arabic. They are eligible to selective service and presumably will be in the Army before long. We nope that the Army will use them where their talents will be valuable. The instructor in this course, the only man in the United States teaching Moroccan Arabic, also is about to be drafted. We hope that the Army will use him where his ability will do the most good.

But for these reservations Mr. Stoneman's assertions are correct. On the language side we were, and still are. seriously unprepared to fight a global war. Why should we not have a Government-supported national school of modern Oriental languages and civilizations in Washington? Every other major nation has such an institution in its capital city; certainly none of them has a greater stake in the spherical world of the second half of the 20th century than has the United States of America.

Unity Speech To Rank High In History

President's Words Seen Inspiring Allies Everywhere

By DAVID LAWRENCE. No better demonstration of national unity could have been given than that which millions of listeners heard over the radio as President Roosevelt's address to Congress was applauded by both Republicans and Democrats.

The message was splendidly conceived, as an address really to the peoples of the world, and congressional members were quick to

As a document calculated to tell the whole world of the resoluteness of American purpose, the speech will rank high in history. For while at a critical time like this the measured words may not have the same meaning that they will later on when the victory has been won. there can be on doubt that the phrases carry an inspiration and an encouragement to Allied forces everywhere.

If the short wave radio which the British, for instance, used to relay the message to all of Europe carried well to the occupied areas. the message may be regarded as the most valuable piece of American psychological warfare that could have been devised at this time.

The President's utterance was in excellent spirit, and, notwithstanding the presence of a bitterly partisan line-up on domestic issues and a consciousness of deep-seated strife, the emphasis given by Mr. Roosevelt to the conduct of the war, and particularly the review of the achievements of the Army and Navy, was a master stroke of judgment.

Note of Concilation. It is significant that, except for some broadly implicit paragraphs that might be interpreted as a bid for social security legislation, the President kept away from controversial issues. He dealt mildly, of course, with the complaints of the people about rationing and questionnaires and used an approach that would have been even more effective if it had been adopted by his lieutenants in handling restrictions of the civilian economy in the past.

There was a note of conciliation in the speech which will not be lost on the Congress.

"We have learned by the mistakes that have been made," said the President, and added this assurance: "Our experience will enable us during the coming year to improve the necessary mechanisms of wartime economic controls and to simplify administrative procedures. But we do not intend to leave things so lax that loopholes will be left for the cheaters, for chiselers, or for the manipulators of the black market."

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. For days rumors have been circulating as to who killed Admiral Darlan. The name on numerous lips is that of a young aristocrat who belonged to the royalist "Action Francaise" and can be presumed to have been pro - Facist. All the small details about the person named check with the meager offi-

If, however, the assassin came from these circles one wonders why the facts have been suppressed. The first questions, of course, are: Are our authorities exercising the censorship? Or is it the French authorities? And, if so, who are the French au-

Apparently the initiative in the suppression came from French authorities and our authorities, by courtesy, collaborated. The head of the civil authority in North Africa is Henri Giraud. But the general is a newcomer in North Africa. he is not politically experienced and he depends on the Resident Gen. Auguste Nogues and Gen. Yves Chatel, governor of the colonies.

Now, if the assassin was a Fascist sympathizer one can readily see why Gen, Nogues and Gen. Chatel would wish the fact suppressed. For they were also Vichy men a short time ago, and their administration is full of them.

Purge Early Last Year. Early in 1942 Marshal Petain undertook a purge in North Africa, ousting every known Republican and pro-ally official. Of course, some remained whose sympathies were not so well known; for instance, Gen. M. E. OWI $50,000,000 Budget and Its Results Sure to Face Close Scrutiny of Congress

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The Office of War Information, together with other independent agencies greated since the outbreak of the war, will come under close scrutiny of Congress this vear. Members of the Senate and House want to know the relation of the yield of these agencles to the large amounts of money they are Constantine Brown. spending. There is a good deal of criticism of the OWI, some justified and some unjustified. The head of the organization, which in importance ranks second only to the fighting services and is at least at par with the production management, unquestionably is the best man President Roosevelt could have found for the job.

Director Elmer Davis was one of the ablest newspapermen and commentators in the country before he accepted the job which yields relatively little income and offers many headaches. He could have given the country remarkable service had he only been given a complete free hand to deal with news in all its aspects in his own way. He is frequently blamed for situations for which he personally is not responsible. All the threads leading from the sources of information to the public are not in his own hand.

The OWI's budget amounts to close to $50,000,000 and in many quarters it is felt that the public is not receiving its money's

There is much confusion in the country about how well the war is progressing, the whys and wherefores of the many restrictions imposed on the Nation, and the reasons why, for instance, synthetic rubber production is in such a mess.

Over-all Picture Wanted.

The public is being fed with releases from various departments which are grinding their own axes, but it seldom obtains an over-all picture giving the whole story.

Everybody, from newspapermen to the reading public realizes that any indiscretion in giving out certain types of news might be fatal to thousands of men. But that does not apply to a comprehensive survey of the actual situation. Every day we are confronted with conflicting estimates of both the local and general situation.

Some quarters feel compelled to tell the news-hungry public that victory is just around the corner while others feel that overoptimism can be more harmful than pessimism. A perfect illustration was given recently when statements from the "source"-Admiral William F. Halsey, jr .were in contradiction with what is believed in responsible Washington quarters to be the real truth. Should the declaration given to the press by the hero of the South Pacific battles contain too many sporadic ingredients the American public may be spot and is doing the fighting says since he must know the situation out there better than people in Washington. The optimism of our fighting admiral, however, is not indorsed fully here. No one doubts that eventually we will bring the Japs to their knees, but for the time being it would be unwise to bein for an unpleasant awakening.

The readers of his statements naturally are inclined to believe what an admiral who is on the lieve that they are on the run. The situation on the other fighting fronts is equally obscure. While there have been no definite statements that we are close to expelling the Nazis from Tunisia, there has been information which by implication, led us to believe that they will be ousted soon.

North African Tangle. The political situation in the North African area has been even more misunderstood. It is fair to say that our propaganda and new organizations, which are both under the direct control of Mr. Davis, have not worked hand in glove with the American military and diplomatic representatives in that region.

While Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and his civilian adviser on North African affairs, Minister Robert Murphy, have attempted to deal with the complex situation to the best of their ability and taking into consideration only the military needs, the OWI has indorsed the ideological point of view.

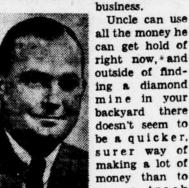

The result was a bitter controversy involving the late Admiral Jean Darlan.

There is a crying need for a correlation of information in such a manner that the public gets the good and the bad news together. This, however, is easier said than done. The OWI is working in close relationship with the British Ministry of Informa-

There have been suggestions that the OWI issue a weekly review of the political and military situation. This would have the great advantage of enabling high officials, who have at their disposal all the facts, to take the public into their confidence. Many things, which would sound blunt and unpleasant if released alone, could be told in a composite picture to be given to the public through the medium of the press and radio.

McLemore-Tip for Uncle Sam From the Feedbox By HENRY McLEMORE. Uncle Sam should get himself a checkered vest, a diamond horseshoe stickpin, a handful of tout sheets, and go into the horse racing

Henry McLemore. where the horses

go 'round and 'round. The annual report of the New York State Racing Commission just reached me through the courtesy of its chairman, Mr. Herbert Bayard Swope, and it is a statement that would make the directors of the Chase National Bank roll their eyes in envy.

In New York alone, those dauntless stormers of the pari-mutuel bastions wagered 175,158,374 buckeroos, and all over the country $534,000,000 was bet. The New York tracks kicked back more than $10.-000,000 in taxes to the State. In a year of global war, racing broke all records - attendance, purses and amount of money wagered.

Think of how the money would roll in if Uncle Sam could only build himself a dozen or more tracks all over the country. And think of how these Government-owned tracks would please every one. Those citizens who frown on horse race betting would take much satisfaction from the knowledge that the suckers were not only losing their money at the tracks, but also losing it for a worthy cause—the raising of love it. When their horses lost they would be comforted by knowing that their money would soon be paying and carriers. For once, they would be able to lose a photo-finish with their horse decided to catch up with sleep during the run down the back-for their country. Certainly they run them.

The Government wouldn't have any trouble finding enough horses to run at its tracks. It wouldn't get a great many Whirlaways, Alsabs, Count Fleets and the like, but the people wouldn't care about that. I am convinced that the average race track customer doesn't care what kind of a horse he wagers on, just so it has the standard mane and tail equipment and has strength enough to hold a jockey on its back.

No End to Side Lines.

I have often wondered, as I

There are no end to the side lines from which money can be made out of racing.

He soon went into research on his own, sending forth a stream of inventions. He conceived the first effective method of using alternating electrical current. Four years after landing in the United States, he patented an induction motor. making it possible to convert electrical energy into mechanical energy more efficiently and economically than by direct current.

The principle of the rotary magnetic field embodied in the apparatus used to transmit power from Niagara Falls was his invention.

Pewer Without Wires.

In 1924, when he was 67 and famed as a radio pioneer, he announced the perfection of a system of transmitting power without wires. He said it would be possible to send power to the greatest terrestrial distances.

It could be used for ships and aircraft, illumination and-machinery he said, and one of its most desirable uses would be to light isolated homes by vacuum tubes.

The invention comprised, he explained, an electrical generator which would deliver its energy into the earth, whence it could be unlocked by any one having the proper electrical "key." Planes, without engines, darting through the air by dint of wirelessed

> She began her program with four choice songs in German, Italian, French and English. The long sustained notes of Handel's "Begruessung" gave evidence of the singer's extraordinary breath control and endurance.

Like a noble Guarnerius, her voice has a carrying power which can be fully appreciated only at a distance. Those, close by, seeing her effortless emission, may have been deceived as to its actual volume. Her pianissimi in Scarlatti's "Se Florinda e Fedele" and in the Negro spirituals, sung at the end of the program, floated to the farthest corner of the auditorium. Haydn's "La Vie" and "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair" stressed her lower range, occasionally a trifle unsteady, and the loveliness of her middle register. The Schubert group, which in-cluded "Suleika," "Auf dem Wasser zu singen," "Der Tod und das Maedchen" and "Musensohn," was notable for long phrasing, delicacy, dramatic intensity and gayety. When Miss Anderson sings Ger-

HOLLYWOOD. Eddie Cantor is convinced he'd better try Hamlet. Even a Shakespearean performance would be safer than the comedy role he's playing in Warner Bros.' 48-star musical, "Thank Your Lucky Stars." # All Hollywood Studios Busy on New Features

Producers Reveling in War Prosperity Putting Profits in Production

BY SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD.—The studios are indulging in an orgy of picturemaking. The dollars flowing in faster than the producers can collect them, and they are wisely re-investing the money in pictures that will keep audiences supplied for the next two years, at least. Paramount has eight new pictures on the sound stages this month. Metro has more: RKO will have at least six; Warners expect ten new movies to start production. And 20th Century-Fox+ is hiring as many producers-direc-Jory as Novice tors and writers as can be found in "Gunmaster," story of the early life of "Bat" Masterson, once sheriff of famed Dodge City, has been defithe ever shrinking manpower market. At the latter studio the Lubitsch movie gets under way this nitely set for production by Harry Metro begins "Girl Crazy," with Rooney and Garland; "Best Foot Forward," with Lucille Ball; "Cry Havoc," with its all-woman cast; "Russia," with Hedy Lamarr.

Paramount, which is torn between comedy and war, has "Five Graves to Cairo," originally intended for Ingrid Bergman, but now for Anne Baxter with Franchot Tone; "Let's Face It," with Bob Hope, Eddie Bracken, Marjorie Reynolds, Betty Rhodes, and Dona Drake; "Hostages," giving William Bendix his first starring assignment, and "Incendiary Blonde," with Alan Ladd and Betty Hutton.

Eddie Albert Joins Navy. Joan Davis does a strip-tease in "Queens of Burlesque." . . . Eddie Albert finished his role in "Bombardier" and joined the Navy. . James Craig tells me he has a good role in "A Guy Named Joe," with Irene Dunne and Spencer Tracy. . . Ginger Rogers will not get to her Oregon ranch for quite some time because she goes into "The Gibson Girl" immediately she completes "Lady in the Dark." . . . Ginger is also wanted for "This Is the Army." So is Clark Gable or Jimmy Stewart The question is: Will the Army lend either of them? Hollywood is used to borrowing stars from different studios, but the Army is not a studio.

Seek Leading Man. Over at Republic they want a leading man for "The Purple V." He must be between the ages of 18 and 21 and must portray an American flyer with the RAF. . . . But it is harder to find a young man of this type in Hollywood right now than it is to buy a piece of butter, and, brother, that is impossible. . . . The new Merle Oberon-Brian Aherne movie is titled "Attack by Night," and the locale has been shifted northward—to Norway instead of France. . . . Miriam Hopkins' siege of flu is getting to the stage where it will soon be impossible to shoot around her in "Old Acquaintance." Poor Miriam, she is having a tough time all around-financially, working and now health. But that's the way it always comes. Sighs for the Marxes.

Looks as though Alan Ladd has not passed his third and final physical test for the Army, because Paramount announces yet another film for the blond screen menace, "Min-O'Rourke," which Rene Clair will direct. Alan suffered an internal injury when a boy and this is what keeps him out of the Army. . . Susan Hayward is starred in "The Good Fellows" . . . Frances Langford is keeping busy with "Cowboy from Manhattan." with Robert Paige, for Universal. But didn't Warners make "Cowboy form Brooklyn" not so very long ago? . . . I wish Fay Bainter could make more movies. For my money she is one of the best female character actresses on the screen, And I'M glad Mervyn Leroy had the sense to give her an important role in

"Cry Havoc." Harpo Marx, who refused to talk for the movies, is giving his voice to the Army camps and naval stations in his third USO camp show of the last few months. I wish the three mad Marxes would get together again and do another film. How about it, boys?

Wage Ceiling Deals Moviedom a Blow

HOLLYWOOD. The Government's $25,000 ceiling on wages effective last Friday, struck the screen industry its first telling blow today when plans of half a dozen leading film and radio stars were disclosed.

Business representatives of Abbott and Costello, the screen's leading money-making team, as well as agents for Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Red Skelton and several others. were passing along word to studio heads that their clients expected to devote most of their entertainment time in 1943 to radio and camp shows, to the exclusion of movie work.

All of the players mentioned grossed more than $100,000 through combined radio and picture performances in 1942. A few, notably Crosby, Benny and Hope, doubtless will show returns of twice that amount when United States tax returns are checked. Under the new law the amount a player can gross, with tax deductions, is about $67,000. What happens to earnings over that sum, whether they revert to the employer or to Uncle Sam, has not yet been made clear, legal experts in the studio say. Performers with no radio connections are expected to fall into line and fulfill screen contracts at the new wage ceiling, but the loss of such heavy box office draws as Abbott and Costello, Hope, Benny and Crosby would be bitter medicine for their respective studios.

Teagarden Plays for Second Uline Dance

Jack Teagarden and his famous Dixieland swing band will be fea-tured next Sunday night at Uline Arena in a special public dance under Goldie Ahearn's promotion, Teagarden made a smash hit with Bing Crosby in the "Birth of the Blues." In fact, from the list of Dixieland bands the noted Bing picked out Teagarden to furnish the musical background.

In addition to conducting the band, making the musical arrangements, Teagarden plays trombone. He is rated as one of the best swing trombonists in the world.

Tech Favorite for Crown as High School Basket Ball Series Opens Tonight

Win, Lose or Draw Scene of Games

By JOHN LARDNER.
Special Correspondent of The Star.

Terry Moore—Great but Little Acclaimed

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.( N. A. N. A.).—The St. Louis Cardinals, mpions of the world, have just lost their captain, a point of champions of the world, have just lost their captain, a point of mild enough significance in major league baseball-but in so doing they also have lost the most graceful and effective ballhawk of the last generation, a player who looked so good at his work that every fan with an eye for art will feel the loss.

Terry Buford Moore has left the Cards to look for a job in the Army Air Forces. He picked a good and dramatically fitting time to go, apart from considerations of war, for his last performance on the ball field was his best, and was played to the biggest gallery.

It's been said in the National League for several years-practically since he broke in, in the season of 1935—that Moore was the best outfielder in the business. A year after Terry's debut, another great outfielder appeared in the American League, of whom the members of his own lodge said the same thing.

Terry Had the Breaks Due Him in Series

The issue of Di Maggio vs. Moore was by no means settled last fall, when their teams finally met in a World Series, but the luck of the meeting was with Moore: His team dominated the series, and Terry dominated his team's defense. He had more spectacular plays to make than oline ban probably will have little Di Maggio, and he made them in the style to which his league is effect as Tech gym is served by two accustomed.

There was justice in this turn of events, for Giuseppe Di Maggio has enjoyed fame and large dividends all his baseball life. Moore has as a favorite but is being conceded been a ballplayer's ballplayer, with quiet, limited prestige among the no walkaway with several of the fans; and as for worldly rewards, you have only to remember that he other teams having excellent worked for Mr. Samuel Breadon in St. Louis.

Part of Di Maggio's fame accrued from his work with a bat. He was always a much better hitter than Moore. This, of course, is son's defending champions are reno discredit to Moore, a good, timely batsman with considerable power. It just happened that Di Maggio was one of the great sluggers of the present time.

Fielders Can't Be Rated in Tangible Terms

However, Joe's teammates, competitors, and daily admirers went is Eastern against Wilson in the farther and called him the game's best outfielder, and that is a score on which National Leaguers always have been willing to argue.

Fielders cannot be rated, like hitters, in tangible terms. Every critic is entitled to his say, and there are some who dispute the pre-eminence of both J. Di Maggio and Moore. The Di Maggio family alone, which practically crawls with defensive genius, has produced strong contenders in both leagues. It's possible to make out a case for Dominick over Joseph in the American League and for Vincent Di Maggio over Moore in the National. And there were others, in the last 10 years, with substantial backing-Mike Kreevich, Johnny Cooney, Harry Craft.

Most ballplayers, though, are partial to Moore or the middle Di Maggio, Joe, depending on which league they work in. Last fall these two rival virtuosos came together for a five-game joint inspection, under the eyes of the entire baseball world, and it is safe to say that the lesscelebrated Moore lost nothing by the test.

Terence Gives Great Display of Speed

It was said in advance that Moore, in his 31st year, had less speed height and with their experience of foot than Di Maggio, who is slightly younger. Yankee Stadium, with its broad reaches in center field, was a good proving ground. You can run backward practically all day in the stadium's left-center field sector. And that is about what Terence did.

Three of his greatest catches were races between himself and a tough. well-hit ball, and Moore always caught up. He was playing alongside a very young and brilliant operative. Bob Musial, and it strikes me that if Moore were slowing down the contrast of Musial's speed would emphasize bach, too, is an experienced team it. In the series Moore played his own broad position and half of Musial's that figures to be dangerous despite

It was Di Maggio who sent Terry backward on two of his longest first two games. One was against ks to left center. In reply, Moore whaled one to the a college freshman outfit and same neighborhood and Di Maggio caught it. Remember, I am not implying that there are any flies on Giuseppe.

In the test, however, Moore more than held his own, and I am glad Wannan as forwards, Charley Howthe test came—the test that every one watched—before the self-appointed and as center and Bunny Citrenlapse of his playing career in baseball.

Resented His Opponent Training for Contest In Jim's Old Gym

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8. - Ezzard Charles probably will be more careful about choosing gymnasiums when he trains for his next fight. The Cincinnati light heavyweight, who absorbed a right smart licking at the hands of Cleveland's Jimmy Bivins in a 10-rounder at the arena last night, prepared for the scrap at the Bivins conditioning emporium and no doubt regrets it today.

Bivins was peeved because his fellow Ohioan moved in on his old stamping grounds and that was unfortunate for Charles. The Cleveland clouter has gained a local reputation as a clowner in Graham of the Coast League San the ring, but he was all business as Francisco Seals predicts that the he earned a February 23 date with 1943 league schedule will be scrapped. Anton Christoforidis in the final of ment designed to crown a "duration champ.

Few Utilities, Rails And Other Selected Shares Favored

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.-Recovery in today's stock market continued taining bids and slipped into the losing column.

A few utilities, rails, farm impleslightly uneven start. Up to midday minor declines and advances were fairly well split. Trends began to slip here and there after noon and, near the close, the direction was irregularly lower. Sizable blocks of low-quoted issues, in addition to a special 10,000share offering of Lee Rubber & Tire common, enlarged volume. Despite intermittent sluggish stretches, turnover for the full proceedings was around 800,000 shares. The Lee Rubber sale at 28 was completed in 34 minutes, a trifle longer than similar transactions of past weeks. Some customers inclined to stand aloof pending the presidential budget message due Monday. Others lightened commitments when it was recalled that the market, on average, has retreated during the last five Januaries. Persistently good war news and moderate reinvestment demand, along with individual business and economic factors, provided sustaining straws for scattered favorites. Despite the generally slip-shod General Gas & Electric "A" and

Store Sales Pick Up, But Fail to Equal Same 1942 Week

Shortages Cause Spotty Funds; Clearances Win Good Response

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 8.-Retail trade picked up this week after the end of unseasonal weather which curtailed shopping but activity generally was a matter of notable selectivity as slightly below that of the same many leaders failed to draw sus- period last year, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

Shortages in some lines gave trade a spotty picture compared with last year. Consumers were in a buying ments and mail orders gave a pretty mood but did not purchase as they good account of themselves after a did a year ago when the stock-up rush was on for foundation garments, rubber products and woolen goods.

Clearance sales were reported as drawing excellent early response. Womens' wear and dry goods lines sold strongly and fur coats moved Warm underwear and nightwear demand was very heavy. Substantially reduced prices stimulated sales of men's suits and overcoats. Seasonal lines expanded both in promotional activity and sales volume. Sharp markdowns were limited to some slow-moving lines and bargain selections were smaller than usual Wide-scale white goods sales were reported but customers were limited to the quantity they could buy in some sections because of tight supplies. Grocery volume still registered gains over last year even though scarcities of meat, butter and canned goods were widespread. Record - breaking registrations opened this week in midwinter wholesale markets. Early commitperformance, new 1942-43 tops were ments were higher than last year posted for both classes of Inter- because buyers were anxious to cover national Telephone, Radio Corp., ahead on available merchandise to assure future stocks. Countrywide preliminary reports On the upside most of the time indicated retail trade was about the

FROM STREAMLINERS TO SHIPS THANKS TO THE WORKERS OF PULLMAN-STANDARD WHO TAKE IT IN THEIR STRIDE

W/HEN Pullman-Standard started to build patrol craft it W entered another entirely new field. New problems had to be solved by applying known techniques and methods -workers were trained in adapting to shipbuilding, trades and skills employed in the building of the world's crack trains. Thus, carbuilders became shipwrights, and with the 82 years of know-how that built streamliners, passenger and freight cars, the ship program was launched.

The Watchword: Speed and More Speed

Since Pearl Harbor the men and women of Pullman-Standard have set a remarkable record of armament production. Speed and more speed has been achieved in all 8 plants where, as in the two expansions now building, the company is confident that they will raise their sights even higher to better their present fine production record. Pullman-Standard, in co-operation with 984 sub-contractors, is producing huge quantities of:

In the last 12 months workers have received almost 2,000 awards for suggestions which have helped increase production, conserve materials, improve products and reduce accident hazards. Their remarkable safety record, together with the high level of physical fitness, plays an important part in maintaining production schedules that will insure ultimate victory and the American Way of Life.

Congratulations are due those men and women who by their purchases of war bonds and stamps have earned the award of the Treasury Department's Minute Man flag.

To all Pullman-Standard's men and women in the armed forces and plants, to the firms with whom we have placed

Scott Discloses Plan for Special Fuel Committee

Trade Body Director Says He Urged Naming Group a Week Ago

The proposal submitted more than a week ago to Renah F. Camalier, fuel oil consultant to the District for the defense of Montgomery OPA director, calling for creation of County or the safeguarding of its ational project to include 18 club a special committee to work for an people and property. immediate solution of local oil problems, was disclosed today by Lester Scott, director of the oil-heating division of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Scott said he sent his recommendation to Mr. Camalier on De- or impending disaster or peril." cember 31 with the suggestion that it be forwarded to OPA Director Leon Henderson. He said he has not yet learned what action was taken on it. Meanwhile, representatives of downtown department stores were to meet at 2 p.m. today with officials of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association in an effort to determine what steps can be taken Gasoline Coupons turers' Association in an effort to to meet the OPA's latest cut in fuel oil for non-residential users. The use of oil for such consumers has been cut to half of last year's use.

In his letter to Mr. Camalier, Mr. Scott suggested that the committee "be locked in a cold room for 24 or 48 hours, with a view toward developing a set of sound and practical recommendations to overcome the local difficulties as far as pos-

One of the most pressing problems that could be handled by such a committee, according to Mr. Scott, would be the many emergency cases that are developing among consumers who are runing out of oil. Mr. Scott believes some sort of clearing house might be set up by the local rationing board and representatives of the fuel oil industry to assure instant action for persons who have run out of oil and are unable to obtain supplies from their usual sources.

It also is proposed that rationing boards assign two or three staff members exclusively to fuel oil problems. Persons going to ration boards to obtain adjustments in their allotments or to find some way of obtaining more oil, Mr. Scott pointed out, usualy do so because cold homes. Such matters, he said, should be given priority over problems relating to sugar, coffee, gasoline and tires.

It is such a clearing house service, developed between the rationing board and representatives of the industry, which Mr.

Some relief for oil transportation into the District was seen for later in the season in the announcement of the War Production Board today that the manufacture of 500 additional semi-trailer petroleum tanks had been authorized. These tanks, it was said, would be ready for service by February 15. This order supplements a recent one permitting the manufacture of 300 semi-trailer tanks which should be ready by the

Reserving for further study questions of regulation of hours of servce by Washington taxi drivers, the District Public Utilities Commission has set down for formal public hearing January 19, at 10 a.m., proposals for compulsory group riding, including issues over group riding fares now cause of confusion and driver as well as the riding public if some more regular system for hours of service were made possible than the present work-when-youwill program came to nought, for the nonce, as some taxi spokesmen demanded to know how any regulation could be enforced. Commission members indicated they had not eliminated the question from consideration, but it was passed over for the moment. On this point, however, Gregory Hankin, PUC member, said the commission had not exhausted its resources, suggesting that perhaps withholding of hacker permits might be one way of enforcement. Cab spokesmen retorted drivers were "as patriotic as any one," and did not need compulsion, assuming enforcement were possible.

As to rates of fare for group riding, about which there was considerable dispute, a possible new complication arose when Russell Gorman, representing the OPA utilities section, voiced a warning that if group riding fares constituted a rate increase it would be necessary under the Economic Stabilization Act of October 2 that the OPA be given 30 days' notice before any increase went into effect, to permit OPA an opportunity for intervention.

Members of the PUC questioned whether adoption of proposals of cab spokesmen for prevailing full fares for group riding passengers would constitute a rate increase. since the service rendered would not be the same as the individualized cab service given in the past at these rates Some cab leaders insisting on full fares had declared earlier that "no one would be hurt or have to pay a penny more" and had argued such full fares for each passenger or for each party of two poarding a cab at one place were justified by increased maintenance and operation costs now borne by cab operators. Edwin A. Glenn, head of the United Taxicab Drivers, Inc., estimated full fares for group riding would increase cab revenues by about 30 per cent. One or more formal proposals for group riding rates and the hours when such a program should be compulsory are expected to be filed for consideration at the hearing. Some spokesmen thought group riding should not be compulsory at night, for fear of "trouble" or harm to passengers, and others declared the cab driver should be given discretion at all times as to whether to allow group riding. The session developed that leadby the PUC to report on the working hour arrangement. John H. Royer, jr., of Premier Cab, and Jack Dolton, of Blue Light, both told the PUC they would not give Mr. Glenn such data, while protesting his questionnaire plan, but

Boards Prepare To Issue Nearby B and C Books

Some to Use Mails for Distribution to Over 75,000 Motorists

War Price and Rationing Boards in nearby Virginia and Maryland today were preparing to issue supplementary gasoline ration books to more than 75,000 motorists whose B and C coupon books will expire January 22.

With the exception of Arlington County, Va., and Prince Georges County, Md., where gasoline rationing officials will mail supplementary books, motorists in nearby counties will apply for renewals at their respective board headquarters and will receive supplementary coupons following a review of their

H. H. Jackson, executive secretary of the Prince Georges County Rationing Board, said supplementary ration coupons will be mailed motorists following a "careful" check by board officials of the approximately 30,000 original applications for basic A ration cards.

Bans Personal Applications. Emphasizing that "under no circumstances" should a motorist apply in person to the board due to the burden now being thrown on workers, Mr. Jackson said supplementary books will be mailed motorists just as quickly as applicaions can be reviewed.

He said motorists whose mileage requirements have changed should notify the board by letter, stating the new gasoline requirements and added that no C books will be issued until a careful study has been made by rationing of-

Supplementary books are being mailed, officials said, on receipt by mail of applications for the renewal of B and C books. These applications may be obtained at board headquarters, it was stated, although the gasoline section of the board will be closed until after January 15.

On receipt of suplementary gasopoard officials said, motorists should write the book number on the margin of their automobile registration cards.

In Fairfax County motorists will register for their suplementary ration books next week or the week following at the Hillwood Square Recreation Center in Falls Church. instead of at the board headquarters in Fairfax, Mrs. Mollie W. Cleveland, board executive secretary, an-

The registration will be held between the hours of 12:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, of the week to be announced, Mrs. Cleveland said. All motorists must register in order to receive supplementary rations, and should state at the time of registration any change in gasoline requirements.

Alphabetical Sequence Suggested. Motorists whose names begin with A through E will be asked to register on Monday; F through J on Tuesday; K through O on Wednesday; P through T on Thursday, and U through Z on Friday.

The nominations were made by Daniel M. Greene, chairman of the Nominating Committee.

WPB Employes Given Chest X-Ray Tests

Chest X-ray examinations of em-ployes of the War Production Board were begun yesterday in the Railroad Retirement Building under auspices of the United States Public Health Service. The examinations "will be available" to all WPB employes, Dr. O. F. Hedley, co-ordinator for em-ployes health facilities for the USPHS, said.

Donald M. Nelson, WPB chief, will be examined sometime in the near future during the course of the examinations, it was said at the WPB. Tuberculosis and certain heart ailments, such as enlargement of the heart, are readily detected through the chest X-rays, Dr. Hedley said. Any case of tuberculosis is reported to the District Health Department, which then handles the case as a health problem, it was pointed out.

Similar examinations already have been made at the Government Printing Office, procurement divi-sion of the Treasury Department and of those at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, it was said. A count of the number examined was not immediately available.

In New York yesterday Kaiser said the country needed "a lighter, cheaper automobile" and that if no one else would make it when the war was over, he'd try it himself.

The shipbuilder's interview had not long been in print before manufacturers here took him up on the proposition, welcoming him as "a pioneering spirit" with talents of value to this country.

In a statement issued after a conference with manufacturers, Alvan Macauley, president of the Automotive Council for War Production, and who built Packards before the war, told Kaiser, in effect, to go right ahead.

The statement: "We're glad to see that Mr. Kaiser has the right idea about the automotive industry. There's room for any one who has the ability to produce a better or a cheaper car. They won't be needing many ships after the war is over, and the American people will unquestionably welcome the opportunity to buy a better car at a lower price if Mr. Kaiser can build it.

"I think, as Americans, we should be thankful that we still have a country where a pioneering spirit like Henry Kaiser can use his talents to our greatest possible advantage in war or peace. All it takes to build automobiles and stay in the business is ability to satisfy the American consumer.

"No automobile manufacturer believes he has built a perfect automobile and each expects in the future to build a better automobile at a better price. There's plenty of room for Mr. Kaiser's talent or the talent of anybody else, so we'll welcome him, but the American consumer will be his final judge. # Distinguished Group Hears President Deliver Message

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads Colorful Feminine Contingent Packing House Galleries

By Katharine Brooks.

Another momentous occasion has become history. The Seventyeighth Congress-only 24 hours old-was informed of the state of the Union by the President amid an impressive setting. Every inch of room was filled in the galleries of the House of Representatives yesterday as well as every seat on the floor of the House with many additional chairs placed for the use of the cabinet, diplomats and members of the Senate who were present to hear the President personally deliver his annual message to Congress.

He was accompanied to the Capitol by Mrs. Roosevelt and his military and naval aides, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson and Capt. John Livingston McCrae. Guests of the Chief Executive and his wife were the Crown Prince Olav of Norway and the Crown Princess Martha with the latter's lady in waiting, Mme. Oostgaard. The President's uncle, Mr. Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Resources Planning Board, sat between the Crown Prince and Crown Princess.

Mrs. Roosevelt entered the gallery very shortly before the President took his place at the Speaker's desk, greeting Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, who was in her place some minutes earlier. Mrs. Wallace sat at Mrs. Roosevelt's right and at her left was Mrs. Basil O'Connor, wife of a trustee of the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Library. The President's wife wore a very becoming blue wool suit with a brimmed hat in the same shade trimmed with matching feathers and about her shoulders a threequarter-length cape of Persian lamb. Mrs. Wallace had a wool dress of grayish-green with which she wore a round hat trimmed with a band of mink matching her full-length coat. Mrs. O'Connor was dressed in black over which she wore a short honey-color fox fur jacket and her small round hat, worn at the back of her head, had three small feathers across the front

By the Way—

All her life Mrs. Laurence S. Kuter has been intensely interested in dramatics, so that her job as vice chairman of the Radio Committee for the Red Cross seems made to order for her. In college she majored in dramatics both at Northwestern and at the University of Illinois and took her degree in speech.

her graduation she married a young Army officer, Laurence Kuter, now a brigadier general in the Air Corps overseas. But even with a house and a husband and later a small daughter, she managed still to give a great deal of time to her dramatic interests. Wherever the Kuters were stationed from one end of the country to the other, Mrs. Kuter allied herself with the little theaters, reviewed plays, gave women's club programs and while living in Montgomery, Ala. (where they were stationed for five years), she taught dramatics at Huntingdon College for girls.

This latter she loved especially. It's the teacher's dream course, she says. There's no problem of discipline and every girl who studies dramatics does so entirely from her own choice and because she is interested in it. Later, when the Kuters were ordered to Washington, Mrs. Kuter worked with the Civic Theater here. She liked that, too. but she says she finds that in a large city theatrical work seems only one of a great many things to do, whereas in a small town it's all important to the people who are interested in

Having started working for the Red Cross when she came here four years ago, she now is able to combine it with her dramatic training and radio experience and be a real asset to this Radio Committee. But that isn't all Mrs. Kuter does, by a long shot. Her days are busy and crowded. Each Monday she works with the Air Corps Women's Club, of which she is treasurer, and which is now doing welfare work exclusively. On Monday she works also for the group of women which Mrs. Arnold has named "spotters," because their job is to find a "spot" for every Army Air Corps wife doing some sort of volunteer work.

fust as their husbands have, in a different way. Tuesday is Mrs. Kuter's day at the Red Cross, Wednesdays and Fridays are the radio program broadcasts, Thursday she works with the Army Emergency Relief started last March to take care of emergencies under its jurisdiction working hand in hand with the Red Cross. In addition to this, there's her home service work (also of the Red Cross), running her own house, supervising her pretty young daughter's activities (she goes to school at the National Cathedral and shows every indication of following in her artistic mother's footsteps), and then she not only designs her own smart wardrobe. but makes all her own clothes.

All this activity seems to agree with Mrs. Kuter, however. She always looks glowing and animated and fresh and trim. Her black hair had touches of gray in it when she was 21 and now it is what the fashion magazines refer to as chic "silver fox" hair. Anyhow, it's becoming and attractive with her youthful face and her slender, girlish figure and her warm and friendly smile.

'No Snap Solution' To Situation, Expert On Far East Says

By Frances Lide. Whatever personal feelings Amer-Icans have about India, they will be traitors to the whole cause of humanity if they let these feelings interfere with our open and frank relations with our British allies, Dr. Maynard Owen Williams declared

"And I believe we are serving our Intelligence very badly when we think there is a snap solution to the Indian situation," he added The speaker, who is chief of the foreign editorial staff of the National Geographic Magazine, addressed the monthly meeting of the Twentieth Century Club, devoting most of his address to geographical and historical background.

Touching on the current picture. however, he explained he doesn't "worship the English" and he denounced the type of imperialism he had seen in Hong Kong and Singapore.

"But I'm not betting my bottom dollar on British pig-headed im-perialism," he declared. "I'm just betting on the great majority of the British as you and I know them

Citing the course of events in the Far East since Pearl Harbor, Dr. Williams called the cordial relations between the American and the Filipinos at the time the Japs struck "the one bright light."

Much of this he attributed to this country's belief in the power of education. "When we went into the Philippines," he said, "we splashed education high, wide and hand-

Farm Bloc Acts to Get Higher Prices and Halt Draft of Labor

Bankhead and Thomas Say 'Real Decision Is Up to the President'

By the Associated Press. An official request to President Roosevelt to boost farm prices and release agricultural labor from military service was considered today by congressional farm State spokesmen. Senators Bankhead, Demicrat, of Alabama and Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma said preliminary efforts to reconcile differences between the administration and the farm bloc indicated "the real decision is up to the President.' Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee, who participated with Senators in a conference yesterday with Economic Stablization Director James F. Byrnes, said he would meet with Mr. Byrnes again Monday and deliver "the minimum proposal acceptable to the

"We want Mr. Byrnes to get over to the President that it is necessary that the farmers be allowed sufficient prices and sufficient labor to raise the crops necessary to feed our own and our allies on the military fronts.

"Unless the President takes action, Congress will and it will not look good for the administration." The farm spokesmen are insisting on a parity formula that includes labor costs with no ceiling below this parity, priorities on farm machinery and not only an end to military drafting of farm labor, but a release of labor already drafted or recruited.

Meanwhile, it was reported that farmers are running into a livestock feed bottleneck and shortages which threaten the success of the Government's 1943 war food program.

The bottleneck lies in the inability of the Nation's limited processing facilities to provide sufficient quantities of high-protein feeds needed for hogs, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and poultry. Protein feeds are mixed with corn and other grains to provide balanced rations.

Cheerful and Helpful Advertising Urged

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 .- "The store that keeps up a running fire of cheerful, helpful advertising during the public's trials and tribulations is the store that will have the first dance when the music begins to play again," Bernard F. Gimbel said yesterday in discussing how to advertise in wartime.

Writing in the current issue of New York University's school of retailing magazine, Gimbel, head of chain of stores, suggested

Newly-Arrived Flyer Downs Six Zeros in Debut Over Munda

Princeton Man Leads In American Attacks Netting 29 Jap Planes

By WILLIAM HIPPLE,

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON GUADALCANAL, Dec. 24 (Delayed).-Maj. Donald Yost, a 31year-old newcomer from Princeton, N. J., was the outstanding figure in the collection of 29 Japanese Zero planes during raids of the last two days on the enemy's Solomon Island base of Munda, New Georgia.

Maj. Yost, a Princeton University graduate, arrived only a week ago and didn't see the enemy until he met six Zeros near Munda yesterday. In a few minutes he had shot down two of them, and chased three others off the tails of his mates dive bombers.

Then this morning he shot down four more in 10 minutes, making a two-day bag of six. "I just tangled around with them awhile," said Maj. Yost, using his hands and arms to explain combat movements. (A Washington naval announcement Christmas Day said United States airmen had destroyed a total of 24 planes during the Christmas eve attacks on Munda.)

Thwart Air Base Building.

The Japanese are trying to build a new airfield and base at Munda but our dive bombers, fighters and Flying Fortresses have been hammering them daily, sometimes two or three times a day.

This morning Marine and Army pilots flying Douglas dive-bombers, Grummans and Bell Airacobras dealt the heaviest blow in two weeks against Munda when they surprised and destroyed 22 Zeros. The dive bombers got approximately 16 either on the ground or just taking off, and our fighters knocked out six in the air.

The Japanese first were seen trying large-scale air operations over Munda yesterday, and the Americans promptly went up and shot seven Zeros and hacked chunks out of the enemy field. We lost three fighters yesterday.

Pilots returning from this morning's raid said terrific explosions. fires and smoke resulted when they dropped their bombs in the mids of the milling Japanese planes on the ground. Some enemy planes were only a few feet in the air when they were blasted, and crashed.

The United States airmen believed they had sighted a new type of Zero plane-a large one with square wingtips, they said. Maj. Yost had one close call in today's scrap when he and an enemy pilot headed straight toward each other spurting bullets. He said they missed each other by a few feet, and "the Jap left bullets in my engine and wing."

Downs 2 Zeros in Debut.

Another newcomer, Lt. Kenneth Kirk, jr., of Barre, Vt., shot down two Zeros this morning. Lt. Kirk has been flying all types of aircraft including seaplanes for six months in this area, but it was the first time he was up against a Zero.

Low-flying American pilots have discovered another Japanese trick of pouring oil in small depressions on their runway so that from the air and in photographs the field appears to be full of craters.

The Japanese plan at Munda apparently is to establish fighters there so that enemy bombers flying down from Rabaul, New Britain, can pick up a fighter escort at that point to strike at Guadalcanal. But our devastating attacks on Munda are making this impossible

FROM BAREFOOT BOY TO NAVAL HERO-Slivers bothered 9-year-old Tommy Gatch of Salem, Oreg., just as they did other youngsters; but they didn't interfere with his dreams of becoming a sailor. He attended the Naval Academy, was commissioned and now is Capt. Thomas Leigh Gatch, commander of a battleship credited with destroying 32 Japanese planes that attacked a flotilla of which his craft was a unit. The woman probing for a splinter was Mrs. Sarah West, mother of Tommy's friend, Oswald West, who later became Governor of Oregon.

Loss of 21-Year-Old Car Proves No Joke

JERSEYVILLE, Ill.—Carl Busch thought his friends were playing a practical joke when his 21-year-old automobile disappeared from its parking place recently.

When it wasn't returned, he told Sheriff Asa McGuire of Jersey County that the joke apparently was on him-the car is still missing. "I thought it was a joke so didn't report it," he said ruefully, "I aimed to turn the joke on them and wait for them to return it."

She's Only a Volunteer. conscription systems, volunteering schools. You accompany children to for active service at the front seems clinics, visit families in special ina little out of date. But in the stances. field of civilian defense and the auxiliary services the volunteer comes into his or her own. Some of the jobs involve the smart trappings of a sky-blue uniform; others offer no more glamorous badge of office than a mop and bucket. Some jobs are as vital to the prosecution of the war as those of the infantryman, the tank driver, or the airman. Others release able-bodied men to the fighting forces. Still others serve to promote needed friendliness and warmth.

Whatever you find to do, keep your appointment and commitments with ironbound punctuality. Don't wear a uniform unless it is required. Even if it is permissible to, but not required, don't wear a uniform. If it is both required and necessary, just wear your uniform during the allotted time and change back into ordinary clothes as soon as you can. Don't expect or take privileges for volunteer work and openly attack any one who does.

There are three kinds of volunteer work: Full-time, day part-time, night work. If you are busy all day trying to earn your living, all into the evening hours. Whatever civilian defense, photography, garfeeling it gives you of being part of kitchens and acts as a transporta-

One of the most important tasks in the big city is that of the airraid warden. Don't be put off by remarks like that of the woman who had volunteered for ARP at the height of its vogue and was now rather irked by those who took it seriously. "Won't it be terrible," she said, "if we don't have an air raid after all this trouble? So silly otherwise."

So silly of her instead. Next to a brave and well equipped fighter command, like that of the RAF, a well-organized ARP is the chief deterrent against enemy bombers.

However if you have a child you may find that ARP has to be ruled out as one of your set assignments. What you can do is offer to help out your air-raid post by remaining within telephone reach in case of emergency and acting as a pivotal point for getting information to all wardens. But if you have no child why don't you apply at your local police station to see if they need any assistance in the neighborhood

The USO can use evening volunteer workers in many ways. Of course you can go on call for dances or parties, although the unmarried girls naturally are better at gladdening the hearts of the troops than you would be. The USO also maintains service desks in many railroad denots and if you take over the desk for a few nights each week you may give to some uniformed man what another woman, perhaps 1,000 miles away, has given to your husband-a welcome hand when he

If you want to prepare yourself for some kind of war work which may be of service later, why not take one of these evening courses? 1. Red Cross First Aid, instruction in what to do between time of accident and arrival of doctor. Training period, 11 weeks, one 2hour session each week.

2. Red Cross Home Nursing, instruction in how to protect the health and learn basic nursing methods for care of home individual. Training period, six weeks, two 2hour sessions each week.

3. Red Cross Nutrition Course, study of food values, how to budget, select, prepare, and serve nourishing foods on limited budgets. Training period, 10 weeks, one 2-hour session each week; or five weeks two 2-hour sessions each week.

Your work will take you into hospital wards, accident rooms, bloodflonor centers and on emergency medical field units.

If food is your metier, why don't you apply to the local Red Cross for work in their emergency canteen? The corps is trained to serve meals to evacues in any disaster and every one knows what a wonderful job they've done in floods and fires. You must take the Red Cross standard course in food and nutrition and the canteen course. Then you get 80 hours of practical training in chapter and veterans' cafeterias. One job totally without glamour but almost more vital than any other to the final defense of the Nation is that of nursery work. Defense nurseries are springing up in every production center. So far there aren't enough teachers to take over the work or enough money to pay them. If you took an education or teaching course at college by all means volunteer. If you aren't a qualified teacher there are still dozens of tasks you can do around a nursery school.

Because there is so much good to be done you must do it. Better than anything else it will keep you from being isolated from the very thing in which your husband is now actively involved. Total war, say the experts, means total defense. And total defense means no fooling

Dresser Drawers Which 'Stick' May Be Remedied With Ease

By Margaret Nowell

Dear Miss Nowell: I have two new chests of drawers which are not more than six months old. During the summer the drawers swelled so that they would not close. I thought that it was dampness that had caused the swelling and felt sure they would go back to normal when the heat was turned on in the house. This is not the case, and the drawers work so hard we have pulled the handles off one of them. Can you suggest some way to remedy the situation?

N.C.

Answer—It is possible that the dampness caused some swelling on the interior construction of the chest which has moved the drawers out of alignment, thus causing the tension. Suggest you remove all the drawers, lay the chest down on its back and be sure all the runners are in place. You may discover where the drawers bind by the marks on the wood. These may be planed or sanded down until they run easily. If the roof falls in and if we are under it, maybe we won't be able to get out and perhaps we shall die there. Awful. What of it? Suppose the roof does not fall, and if you are not under it, then surely you won't die under such awful thoughts. You see, we usually worry about the wrong thing, the thing that does not happen and because we are worrying we overlook doing something we should have done and that goes wrong and there we are with something actual to worry about and we don't. We just set to work and mend it. That is what we have to do anyway. Why waste worry on what has not happened, may not happen and wouldn't matter if it did happen? If you live you can do something about what bothers you and if you don't, you won't have to worry.

the new volume. It seemed to be a peii." He was only 31 years old when it appeared. Of all the books written by this author, the one which has won the most lasting fame is "The Last Days of Pompeii." It is a historical novel written about people who saw the world fall to ruin around them. In the old days of the Roman empire, the city of Pompeii was buried in ashes. The bare story of the event is interesting enough, but the author gave it added excitement. He imagined peopleflesh-and-blood human beings-in the midst of it all. He wove a plot, including a love story, into his book, and he produced one of the great novels of history.

When he was 35 years of age, the author added "Lytton" to his name. tell us whether he is better." This was done in memory of his mother, whose maiden name was Lytton. He is best known as "Bulwer-Lytton." At the time he changed his name, he was made a knight. Twenty-eight years latter he was given the title of "Baron

All through his long life, Bulwer-Lytton kept on writing. Among his later books are the novels. "Harold" success when performed on the 70th birthday, and was buried on Westminster Abbey.

Bridge Swindles—No. 132

The "shift bid" is one of the oldest bits of hocus-pocus in bridge. West was cutting it rather fine in the hand shown today, for he could not be sure that his suit would run or even that it would defeat the contract. But his daring was rewarded far more than even he had North dealer.

The bidding: North West Pass 2♥ Dbl. 1NT Pass Pass 20 Pass 2NT Pass Pass Pass West didn't think he could afford to let his opponents steal the hand at two diamonds, but hated to bid three clubs and give up entirely his chance for a real killing. He therefore bid two hearts, hoping South had enough strength in that suit to go on with two no-trump. (If either North or South doubled instead of bidding two no-trump, West intended to run to three clubs.) South fell into the trap, not suspecting that the real attack was to come 16 To wash in clubs, and West promptly doubled two no-trump.

West opened the king of clubs and wasted no time in taking five tricks 18 Exclamation in the suit. Forced to make three discards from the dummy, South elected to save all the diamonds in the hope of making six tricks in that suit, together with his two side aces. That obliged him to blank both of dummy's queens.

After finishing with his clubs. West led the king of spades, picking up dummy's blank queen and forcing out South's ace. South then tried for a diamond break, but found that West had a stopper. All he could win was his own two aces, together with dummy's two top diamonds! The contract was set four tricks, for a penalty of 1,100 points!

CALICO BASS

(Pomoxis sparoides). Many ardent anglers are too busy these days with absorbing problems which prevent them for getting away for even a few days' fishing. This may be the opportunity to find out something about the habits and family life of the gamey fish they had so much fun landing. Take the calico bass, a small but decidedly gamey fish that is found for the bass. throughout the Great Lakes region and south to New Jersey and Texas. They inhabit ponds, lakes, bayous and sluggish lowland streams.

Calico bass belong to a family of North American freshwater fish in which is found about 12 genera and 30 species forming one of the most characteristic features of our fishfauna. All members of this family are valued as food. The larger the fish, the more important its value. and 19 years old to the United All are carnivorous, gamey and voracious. They breed in the spring and defend their nests with determination and courage.

Most of the calicos caught are less than 12 inches long and weigh about one-half pound. However, many have been caught that reached a length of 14 inches and weighed almost a pound.

As these fish are wide rangers they have acquired several names— strawberry bass, grass bass, bitter-head, barfish and lamplighter. There is some reason for all these names, but we can only find the best known name having a definite reason—the mottlings are bunched in spots all over the body in a design often found on calico.

In Northern Indiana, this be the favorite one of anglers of all ages. The fish bite more readily in early spring, June, and again in the autumn. Great numbers are taken in still-fishing. The bait used is grasshoppers, worms or live min-nows. They are also caught with an artificial fly or spoon, but the most exciting method of catching the calico is said to be by trolling. The sight of what appears to be a fast-disappearing tidbit is too much

Fishing from flat-bottomed skiffs or sailboats, using minnows, small pieces of fish or worms for bait, is the method approved by others. Usually, these fishermen have two lines with spoon-baits or "whirl." for by this method larger catches are made.

Going fishing is one of the most nealthful ways of relaxing and forgetting your troubles. Many times, the so-called unsolvable problem will suddenly clear up when the subconscious mind has a chance to fields through the woods to the "old fishin' hole."
