23 Axis Planes Felled in Fierce Tunisia Battle

Aerial Dogfighting Is Hottest Yet in African Campaign

By WES GALLAGHER,

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16 .-American and RAF fighters and even bombers battled Axis aircraft in the biggest scale aerial dogfighting of the Tunisian campaign by day and night yesterday, blasting 23 German and Italian planes from the skies, it was announced today.

Aerial activity was intense over the entire Tunisian front. More than half the toll was taken in two actions. The Germans attempted to bomb advanced Allied airfields and lost seven planes.

Says They May Pretend Defeat in Effort to Catch U. S. Off Guard

In an address at the Women's National Republican Club luncheon, Mr. Grew predicted that the Japanese will pretend defeat, if necessary, to catch the United States off guard with a sudden, smashing blow.

Mr. Grew, who as Ambassador in Tokio in January, 1941, warned his Government of a planned "surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor" 10 months before it took place, explained the possibility of a "jujitsu" peace maneuver as follows: "In my various talks around the country I have repeatedly stressed the view that the Japanese will not crack * * * That is to say, the Japanese military code does not admit of surrender, even when it is the only alternative to annihilation; but this does not mean that the Japanese will stand up to be shot down to the last man when some other alternative presents itself, such as

7 American Aircraft Lost; Troops Advance On Guadalcanal

By CLAUDE A. MAHONEY. American forces in the Solonons have shot down 30 Japanese planes and damaged three destroyers and a cargo ship at a cost of seven American planes, the Navy reported in a communique today

The action, one of the heaviest ecently reported in the Solomons area, occurred on Friday (Solomons Our planes made repeated attacks on several groups of destroyers, some of which were approaching Guadalcanal. Although the possibility of duplication of reports has not been definitely ruled out, naval observers believed that it least 19 enemy destroyers were

The communique also reported bombing of American positions on Guadalcanal, with some casualties to our forces. No damage was done to American installations, however. Against "stiff enemy resistance." the communique said, our ground forces on Guadalcanal also continued to advance, gains of from 3,000 to 4,000 yards being recorded. Aerial forces bombed Japanese positions at Lunda and Sorum Village, 3 miles east of the Japanese airfield on the southern end of Buka Island.

failed to return from this action. The Japanese losses in the engagements reported today bring to a total of 766 the number of enemy planes shot down in the Solomons. Naval observers would not hazard any explanation of the appearance of the various destroyer groups in the Solomons, but the presence of so large a number of warships would indicate that increased attempts to retake Guadalcanal might have been planned. This was the first communique for some time that told of bombings on Guadalcanal by more than one plane at a time. Earlier this week one plane dropped bombs, and another had visited the island a month earlier. The Navy did not say how many enemy planes came over in the present raid.

Concentration of Oil Problem Under Ickes Proposed by Scott

Believes Transportation Rationing and Supply Should Be Unified

By NORMAN KAHL.

Concentration of the entire petroleum problem in the hands Petroleum Administrator Ickes and his Petroleum Industry Committee was proposed today by Lester Scott, director of the oil heating division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, in a letter to Chairman Maloney of the special Senate committee investigating fuel oil and gasoline rationing prob-

Mr. Scott said he had been convinced for more than a year that the solution to one of the East's most pressing problems lay in giving Mr Ickes full control over all oil matters, including supply, transportation and rationing

Under the present arrangement the petroleum administrator for war governs supply, the Office of Defense Transportation is in charge of movement of stocks and the Office of Price Administration has jurisdiction over rationing.

Would Bring Improvements.

In the absence of centralized control, Mr. Scott recommended to the Senate committee the adoption of his previously announced proposal to set up a special fuel oil committee, comprising representatives of the Federal agencies involved and of the industry. He said he believed the creation of such a board would "accomplish many improvements which apparently cannot be accomplished under the present

One large primary supplier explained that it had already used up its quota for January and that would be unable to distribute nore oil until February unless the restrictions were lifted. In another nstance, a jobber said he was unable to obtain supplies from Baltimore because he had already used up his quota for the month.

It was pointed out, however, that any oil held in excess of the quota amounts may be sold to other primary suppliers, even though it may not be distributed to the oil company's own customers. Thus, a distributor who has oil above the amount he is allowed to distribute to his usual wholesalers and dealers, is permitted to turn this oil over to another supplier which has not yet exceeded its quota, and this bil may then be distributed among dealers, who have enough coupons. The allotments to the suppliers are made each month by the Supply and Distribution Committee on the basis of the total quantity of oil expected to be shipped into the area.

Prejudice of Jurors Charged as State Asks Flynn Case Mistrial

Woman on Panel Says Two Others Discussed Opinions of Actor

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.-Alleged prejudicial remarks by two woman jurors were the basis of prosecution efforts today to obtain a mistrial in the case of Film Actor Errol Flynn, charged with three counts of statutory criminal assault on two teen-age girls. The district attorney filed a mistrial motion, backed with affidavits of three women called in the original venire panel that they heard the two jurors in question express opinions with relation to the actor. Hearing on the motion was set for Monday. The actor's attorney, Jerry Giesler, said he would resist it. Two of the women who made the affidavits had been removed from the jury box on peremptory challenges by the State. The third was a member of the panel from which the Flynn jury was drawn, but was not called in the actor's motored British plane crashed on Spanish soil at La Banqueta, near La Linea, across the bay from Gibraltar and that two of its crew members were injured. (The German radio described the American planes as "chasers" and said they were seized by Portuguese authorities and that the crews were interned. The German account said the aircraft landed about 3 p.m. because of fuel shortage (The German account said 33 to the United Nations for the duration, as under normal procedure belligerent planes and crews are interned when forced down on neutral soil.

The exceptional air activity over Portugal despite the unfavorable weather suggested that a largescale movement of planes and per-

State Department May Be Asked to Outline Flynn's Qualifications

Connally Says Custom Is to Invite Review of Appointee's Record

By the Associated Press. The State Department may be called on to outline the qualifications of Edward J. Flynn as Minister to Australia in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's public investigation of charges he is unfitted for the diplomatic appointment. Chairman Connally told reporters today the committee's custom, when a nomination of this character is challenged, was to invite State Department representatives to review the appointee's record. It was likely, he said, that some department aide thus would appear as the first witness when hearings begin, probably Thursday.

Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire, who had suggested asking Secretary of State Hull to tell whether he approved of the Flynn nomination, said he hoped the committee would exercise the right of subpoena to force the attendance of some New York witnesses he said he did not believe would appear otherwise.

Unable to Appear.

Senator Bridges has asked the committee to call Daniel Daly, foreman of a Bronx Grand Jury which exonerated Mr. Flynn after an investigation of charges that New York City materials and labor were used in paving a courtyard on the Flynn estate, as well as George H. Coburn, a member of the jury. Senator Bridges said he understood that unless subpoenaed neither could appear to testify concerning grand jury matters. Senator Connally, who previously had said the committee might have to obtain passage of a Senate resolution to subpoena witnesses, later said the committee had sufficient authority to issue subpoenas, but did not believe that power would have to be exercised.

The committee voted unanimously resterday to conduct a public inquiry into the appointment, instructing Senator Connally to arrange hearings as soon as Mr. Flynn and his legal counsel could be present.

Decision Unanimous.

Meanwhile, Sidney Baron, who said he was the unpaid secretary of and she also wears a Victory Medal the New York City Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case, told reporters he would make available to the Foreign Relations Committee complete files concerning four specific an awful lot of personal satisfaction, charges filed with the Senate group I have always been considered a by Senator Bridges.

REMEMBER THIS PICTURE? IT'S NOT A PRETTY ONE . . .

Look closely at the faces . . . the grinning Japs . . . our own American boys in their moment of dark despair . . . CORREGIDOR! The name strikes deep into the heart of every American with a stabbing pain that cries out for vengeance. Here is a bitter lesson—let it remind us again and again of the great duty we here at home owe to these men who were "expendable" for us. EXPENDABLE? In the famous book by W. L. White, we read, "In a war anything can be expendable . . . money or gasoline or equipment or most usually men." Being expendable means simply, standing by to give your all so that those behind you may be spared, may be given time to consolidate and return to fight again under more favorable conditions. That was the job these men on Corregidor did for you and for me. What are we going to do about it? One of the most important things is buy more War Bonds. Mobilize all those half-filled War Stamp books and turn them in for War Bonds during January. A HALF-FILLED WAR STAMP BOOK IS LIKE A HALF-EQUIPPED SOLDIER . . . a completed book means a share in outfitting the best-manned, best-equipped army the world has ever known . . . the army that will return to Corregidor . . . to VICTORY!

Why Not Change It?

Real bombers flying over Washington, with incendiary bombs previously placed in safe locations being detonated to simulate exploding missiles from the air, will give a sound touch of realism to air-raid drills and stimulate flagging interest in preparedness for civilian defense.

But one wonders how long we shall continue to use the British system of warnings, transplanted from London early in the war and adopted by the Office of Civilian Defense with barely a change? It will be recalled that the "yellow" signal, of which the public is unaware, warns police and other officials of planes which may be half an hour away. In London, this signal was chiefly for the benefit of public utilities, the police and other officials who needed this warning in advance. Next comes the "blue," also unknown to civilians, which means that planes may be twenty minutes away, and in London-where everything was perpetually blacked out already except essential transportation and other operating lights-this signal meant extinction of those lights. Then comes the final, or "red" signal, and the sirens-which means the public must scurry for shelter.

There is no good reason for perpetuating in this country a system of signals designed for a condition existing in London during nightly bombing raids, but which could hardly exist here. Most important enemy planes bound in this direction | their control are sighted the public should be notified immediately, and every available siren should screech at its maximum capacity and continue to

In the opinion of people who ought to know, and with whom The Star has discussed this matter informally, the public should be warned by every means available as soon as the first enemy plane comes within striking distance of its possible objective, without wasting precious minutes on "yellows" and "blues." It should not be difficult to change the signal system to meet the actual conditions anticipated in this country.

Mrs. Richards

For the proper appraisal of Mrs. Laura Elizabeth Richards new and more meaningful words should be invented. She was the last and in many respects the most attractive member of the New England literary group to which Emerson, Thoreau, the Alcotts, Margaret Fuller, the Hawthornes, Horace Mann, Longfellow, Lowell and Oliver Wendell Holmes belonged. Her parents were Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, the "champion of peoples and persons laboring under disability," and Julia Ward, the author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," noblest of American songs of freedom.

Born in Boston on February 27, 1850, Mrs. Richards grew up in an atmosphere which was vibrant with humanitarian zeal. She was named for Laura Bridgman, the deaf and blind pupil whom her father educated as a living proof of his creative theories of culture. Her literary career began when she was ten and continued until just a few months ago. The list of her books includes approximately a hundred titles. Probably the best known of her efforts is the unforgettable juvenile story of "Captain January," published in 1890 and still a classic. Scholarly biographies of Joan of Arc. Florence Nightingale, Abigail Adams, Elizabeth Fry and other heroic characters demonstrated her right to be regarded as a "serious" artist, but her fictional interpretations of people she enrich one's experience

This is the strategic objective behind the complicated maneuvers of at least half a dozen Russian columns, striking converging blows from the upper Don below Voronezh to the Caucasus. The most immediate threat to Rostov is in the center of the 600-mile battle front, where three parallel Russian columns are working their way down the Don valley and two railway lines. One of these columns has reached a WLB. point only 50 miles from Rostov, with the others not far behind. However, those last 50 miles should prove emphatically the hardest. The German high command is countering the Russian drive by the system known as elastic defense. Its first decision was to hang on to its positions in and around Stalingrad, allowing upwards of 100,000 troops to be isolated there. That big garrison, presumably well supplied and re-enforcible to a certain extent by air, serves as a block on Russian communications. So long as the Germans at Stalingrad hold out, the Russian offensive on Rostov cannot use the captured railway segments. all of which pass through Stalingrad. On the other hand, the Germans defending Rostov are served by the excellent railway network which exists in the Ukraine, narrows to the Rostov bottleneck, is an outright closed shop and and again spreads out through the of all, however, is that as soon as western Caucasus which is under

The same system of elastic defense is seen in the Axis retirement from the central Caucasus. Once the Axis drive on the Grozhny oil fields had failed, there was no reason for trying to maintain this exposed salient through the winter. Therefore, in sharp contrast to the holding strategy at Stalingrad, the German high command executed a rapid retreat up the railway and highroad which runs across the Caucasus region parallel with the mountain chain. That retreat has been conducted skillfully and with minor losses for over 100 miles. It has now reached a point where the Germans can be supplied by intermediate railway lines which cover the relatively fertile region of the western Caucasus known as the Kuban. Already German resistance is stiffening there, though it is too soon to say whether they intend to stand there or retreat another 100 miles or so. This they could do before their hold on the Maikop oil fields and their communications with the Crimea via the strait of Kerch would be endangered.

Obviously, the campaign in South Russia is as yet far from its strategic climax. The Russian offensive has been going on for more than two months. It has inflicted great losses on the Axis and has gained much territory. But its supply problems are growing, while those of the Germans are diminishing. This is reflected in the slower rate of Russian progress in every sector except the Caucasus, where the Axis has been putting up only a rearguard resistance. The supreme test will come when the Russians run up against the close-knit system of Axis defenses around Rostov itself. Until then, no objective analysis can be more than speculative in character.

Evidently, although they cannot come into court with clean hands, the miners believe they can secure concessions through the intervention of the

> Whether this will be the case remains to be seen, but there are aspects of this strike which should prove highly interesting to the WLB. For some time now the board, almost without exception, has been granting its maintenance of membership clause whenever requested by a union. As applied to those employes who want to remain in the union. this clause amounts to a closed shop with a check-off of union dues, the theory being that union leaders, armed with this provision, can control and discipline the members. In arguing for a closed shop, or in accepting maintenance of membership, union spokesmen had said repeatedly that it is necessary for them to have this control over the workers if they are to prevent wildcat strikes and similar disturbances. But in the anthracite coal mines, where there check-off, it is not working out that way. Mr. Kennedy told the board that the union had exerted every effort to have production resumed pending a settlement of the issues at stake, but without success. This is a significant admission, for it shows that the closed shop and the checkoff, even in one of the strongest and supposedly best disciplined unions in the country, are utterly unavailing as instruments to compel workers to live up to the obligations imposed on them under a freely negotiated collective bargaining contract. It is also worth noting that the unwillingness of the miners to pay higher dues, voted at the UMW convention, was the original cause of the strike. Had there been no check-off, which requires the employer to deduct the dues from pay envelopes, this grievance would not have given rise to

It is not to be supposed that the WLB, because the officials of the miners' union cannot control their members, will revoke the maintenance of membership clauses heretofore granted. But this experience should serve as a warning against any extension of the closed shop in any form under the self-asserted war powers of any Government

Schlusselburg Siege Seen Well-Timed

Timoshenko's Reported Drive Aimed at Anchor Of Leningrad Salient

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

The persistent and detailed reports from Stockholm that Russian troops under the command of Marshal Timoshenko have opened a heavy attack. supported by powerful siege artillery, on the German stronghold of Schlusselburg, may be of great importance, if true. Stockholm is not always a reliable source of news, but in this case Swedish sources in Finland ought to be able to report with considerable accuracy on events so close to the existing Russo-Finnish border, and to the persistence of the reports may be added the fact that such an operation would be a very likely one for the Russians to undertake.

Last Winter, despite their best efforts, they were not able to free Leningrad from the German grip, so that the city was dependent during the winter on the famous "ice road" across Lake Ladoga, and during the summer on intermittent deliveries by boat across the lake. During the periods of spring and autumn when the lake is closed to navigation, but the ice is not thick enough to support traffic. Leningrad was cut off altogether from the rest of the Soviet territory. The reason for this is the German salient of which Schlusselburg is the anchor. Based on the German positions south and southwest of the city, the enemy pushed forward a long narrow heavily fortified salient swinging around southeast and east of Leningrad, the tip of which rests on Lake Ladoga where the great fortress of Schlusselburg stands, immensely strengthened and fortified by the Germans. This salient cuts the main highway and the main railway between Leningrad and Moscow, and it also cuts the main east-west railway to Vologda and another and newer line between the two, which connects Leningrad and Moscow by way of Sonkovo. The Russians are in full possession of all these lines right up to the eastern edge of this narrow German salient. Thus, if only Schlusselburg and the salient reaching to it could be reduced, the Russians would reopen rail and road communication on a large scale with Leningrad. This would be of immense relief to the population of Russia's second city. But in the military sense it would mean much more. With its communications open, Leningrad could become a most important advance base, where an attack on the extreme left flank of the German line could be concentrated and delivered. This would tend to outflank the German positions around Lake Ilmen, and if co-ordinated (and all the Russian attacks have paid great heed to co-ordination) with further Russian offensive operations in the Veli kie Luki area, might compel the Germans to do what they must long have been contemplating, pull their left flank back to Lake Peipus or even to the Dvina.

Already, as previously noted in these articles, the fall of Velikie Luki and the Russian pressure west and south of that regained stronghold is endangering the whole German position north of that point all the way up to Leningrad. The Germans can hardly have any reserves to spare for counterattacks, save local ones, in all this area; and a comparatively slight Russian advance from Velikie Luki, or the fall of Rzhev, which may well be imminent, would release much additional pressure against their

If this moment has been chosen for an attack on Schlusselburg, therefore, it has been well chosen. The Russians have not yet made any claim of success in that area, but the Russian custom has been to withhold reports of a new offensive until something worth reporting has been accomplished. The fall of Schlusselburg, should it come, would be a welcome indication-coming so soon after the fall of Velikie Lukithat the great German strongholds are not going to prove as impregnable this winter as last. A factor in this regard must, of course, be the heavy losses in transport planes which the Germans have sustained in their desperate attempts to hang on at Stalingrad, and in the central Mediterranean. It was on the air transport command that isolated strongholds depended last year. The reappearance in the news of the name of Marshal Timoshenko is of much interest. After his relief in command of the southern front by Gen. Zhukov, nothing had been heard officially of his activities. There were rumors that he was wounded, and others that he had been assigned some secret post. If he now reappears in command of the Leningrad front, it seems very likely that his temporary retirement may have been due to wounds or illness, and that he is resuming his post of duty at the earliest possible moment. The fact that the Senate rejects Mr Flynn while at the same time both Republicans and Democrats doubtless will vote to confirm the new Supreme Court and Office of Price Administration appointments should serve to remove the idea that objection to Mr. Flynn is merely

"FOURTEENTH STREET. worms come up out of the soil of a lawn

"Dear Sir: "I always read your daily contribution to the pages of The Evening Star, and was particularly interested in your recent dissertation as to earthworms. When I saw what was the subject of your discussion for that day, I hoped I might find something in it on a point which has interested me for a good many years, but you did not touch upon it. "Since childhood days on a farm I have heard it said that earthworms occasionally rain down. Now, this seems on its face to be a preposterous statement. But from observations over a good many years, I am all but thoroughly convinced that they do.

"I recall once when I was a boy that my mother, with the housewife's eagerness to get rainwater for certain household purposes, set a washtub under the eaves of an outbuilding, and placed a wide board slanting into the tub to catch as much water as possible from an approaching rainstorm. After the shower a live earthworm was found in the tub Of course, no one had examined the tub carefully immediately before the shower, to be able to state positively that there was no worm in the tub when the shower began. But certainly no one had placed an earthworm in the tub, and it is hardly conceivable that one would or could crawl into a tub.

"I particularly remember a summer shower in a small Texas city some years ago. It was a very hard shower which lasted not more than 20 minutes. When the shower was over I saw earthworms on the asphalt paving of the street and on the cencrete sidewalks of the residential section where I happened to be. The street from curb to curb was literally covered with earthworms, and I am certain that there was not a single square foot of pavement which did not bear an earthworm or two, at least half of them broken or mutilated as though bruised from a fall, and those apparently uninjured were not moving to any ex-

Hence he is really largely mutilated, makes it evident to me that they were rained down.

"Repeatedly over the years, after heavy summer showers. I have seen earthworms on payements and sidewalks. Usually they are dead or mutilated. If a sudden rain brings them up out of the lawns, why do they never come up when the lawn may be flooded from a hose?

"Do earthworms actually fall from the "Sincerely yours, C. L. C."

Earthworms are nocturnal, and when the darkness of a heavy storm comes on, they react in the customary way to the lack of light

The water then catches them, as they crawl out of the earth, all at about the same time, and floods them outward to ward the sidewalk and street.

Since most sidewalks and streets are continuations of the grassy areas, it is only natural that the worms would be deposited on them at the end of the storm. The mutilations and breakages would result from their enforced journey. Just why they would be evenly distributed is another question. On the other hand there have been instances of "rains" of various living things, but they do not often occur, and usually only in strange and far places where climatic conditions are more severe and dramatic.

* * * * Our earthworm has many relatives some of them of astonishing size.

One earthworm in Java is several feet in length, and makes a noise as it creeps around in the night.

This sound is said to result when the creature's bristles hit against stones. Tasmania, however, takes the prize, with an earthworm of 6 feet in length. It is said to retire into its burrow with a gurgling noise. No information comes as to the sort of noise made by unwary passersby when they see the creature.

Tree-climbing earthworms are to be found in certain foreign lands.

All of these worms, including our own humble species, are really marvelous creatures, having red blood in abundance, with a thin integument showing it plainly. That is why they are red. The red coloring matter exists in the blood itself, in the fluid, rather than in the red blood cells, as in man,

The skin enables the creature to take in oxygen, right into the blood, and to get rid of the carbon dioxide.

Thus an earthworm is "all lung," as one might say in the plan of speech devised by the Indian, when some one asked him why, with very little clothes on, he did not get cold in winter. "Me An earthworm is all lung, and the rest

Danger of Smoking in Bed Discussed by Advocate of Education. To the Editor of The Star:

A fire in a District rooming house on December 31 caused the death of two young men. Since this disaster, certain officials have been issuing statements containing such severe condemnation as to leave the general impression that many rooming house proprietors must be potential murderers. It may be that some buildings used as rooming houses are overcrowded and not properly equipped with fire escapes. But the chief culprit in causing property damage of $20,000 and the loss of two lives in the fire on Euclid street N.W. has not been denounced by any representative of the District government. I refer to the careless smoker.

In The Star for January 1 Fire Marshal Calvin G. Lauber was quoted as confirming "police reports that a lighted cigarette ignited a fire on a day bed in a first-floor hallway, which quickly spread to all parts of the house."

The Brighton Hotel fire probably was caused by a lighted cigarette in the hand of the unfortunate victim, who might have fallen asleep while smoking. In this instance property damage was relatively slight because a passerby in the hall smelled smoke soon after the fire had started. But for this early detection the fire might have spread to the entire building, causing its destruction. Moreover, the press has recently reported the cases of two women whose untimely death was attributed to falling asleep while smoking. Thousands of people in Washington apartments and rooming houses are exposed nightly to the danger that claimed the lives of the above persons. There is no way of estimating the number of smokers, driven by habit to smoke in bed, who endanger their own lives and those of defenseless neighbors in the same buildings Yes, rooming houses should be inspected with a view to saving lives in case of fire, but there also should be inaugurated an educational campaign revealing the cigarette as an agent of death when smoked in bed. DR. J. RAYMOND SCHMIDT,

Is it not a fair estimate that the average value of motor cars owned by A card holders is at least $500 per car?

Does this not mean that approximately two and a half billion dollars of private property ($500 times 5,000,000) is threatened with complete ruin and loss by Government order? Is it not a fact that many of the A

Is it not a fact that when the Govern-

Was this not done, for instance, in the case of the expensive Friendship estate and the enormously high-priced property taken over for environs and roads around the Pentagon Building?

Is there any law, practice, custom or ethic that requires preferential treatment for owners of real estate as against owners of personal property when either is seized or estopped from use by the Government? Is it not a fact that in Britain when the government ordered use of motor cars for "pleasure" halted that the government offered to, and did buy, from the owners all such cars at a fair, arbitrated value?

'Membership' Clause Fails to Solve Discipline Issue

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

The War Labor Board, which has upon occasion interested itself aggressively in forcing "maintenanceof-membership" clauses into contracts between employers and unions, finds itself face to face with the issue of union discipline and union responsibility.

The board has argued that whatever it has done in the past to coerce employers has been justified on the ground that the David Lawrence.

war effort will be aided by compelling workers to remain in unions they have once joined, but now it is a serious question whether the board will devise a formula to do something more important than maintain union membership-namely, to maintain coal production and any other kind of production requisite to the war

The representatives of the miners in the anthracite coal regions and their national officers have appeared before the board. The top officials confess that they have no control over the workers and that the strike is one of those "unauthorized" affairs. But Congress passed the Wagner law and insisted on making it one-sided in order, as it was alleged, that union responsibility should be developed

The United Mine Workers is one of the oldest of the unions. For a long time, in its contracts, the closed shop has been agreed to by employers, so the anthracite fields, as well as all of the bituminous fields, now are all-union. There is no allegation of employer interference. In this case, both the employers and the public are the innocent victims of a quarrel inside the union.

Grounds for Strike.

The grounds for the strike are twofold-a protest against an increase in union dues and a demand for a $2-a-day increase in wages. The former is believed to be more of a protest against the recent assessment and not as much of a grievance as the effort to get an increase in wages. Incidentally, at the hearing before the War Labor Board, John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, served notice that when the miners' contract came up for renewal he would press for an increase in wages beyond the socalled "Little Steel" formula, which grants wage increases when costs of living have risen 15 per cent above the January 1, 1941, level.

It begins to appear as if the national officers are content to let the agitation for an increase in wages develop at this time as a stepping stone toward the making

Meanwhile, the strike of the anthracite miners may come to a conclusion when the War Labor Board fixes up some gesture to permit the leaders of the workers to save their faces. But when the miners return to work, nobody will be punished for the interruption of production of an essential commodity. To strike on an "unauthorized" or "wildcat" basis involves no risk to any union leader or workers.

No Penalty Provided.

Congress has failed to provide any penalty for interruption of production by workers even when organized to restrain the flow of interstate commerce. The manipulators of legal language in the New Deal can find plenty of phrases under which to threaten and even persecute managements but they seem to be at a loss to find any law that can penalize a union for violating the no-strike pledge given to the President of the United States.

In fact, whatever semblance of a Wife of Sergeant penalty might have been derived from the interstate commerce laws concerning impediments to production was removed by a decision of the New Deal majority of the Supreme Court, so that today the exepreme Court, so that today the executive bureaus will not venture to penalize strikers even when their own chiefs call it an "illegal" strike.

Democratic Split in New York Widened As Flynn Steps Out as National Chairman

By GOULD LINCOLN.

Democratic politics in New York has been at sixes and sevens ever since the devastating Democratic State Convention last summer, in which the Roosevelt and Farley factions went to the mat. with the Farleyites on top. The situation is becoming still more complicate d — now that Edward J Flynn is

Gould Lincoln. stepping out, as Democratic national chairman and party leader in the Bronx, to go to Australia as United States Minister. Mr. Flynn has been one of the strongest supporters of President Roosevelt in the State. He broke with the then Democratic organization of New York City in 1932 to fight for Mr. Roosevelt's nomination for President, when Al Smith was a candidate, too. He has been a close friend of the President for years, so close that he and Mrs. Flynn have been guests at many Roosevelt functions to which others have not been invited and to which Mr. Flynn's position as Democratic leader of the Bronx did not necessarily place him on the list of

Mr. Flynn's selection by the President to head the National Committee and to run the Presidential campaign in 1940, after Mr. Farley had stepped out, was logical. The paving block episode, of which much is being made in opposition to Mr. Flynn's new diplomatic appointment-although two grand juries exonerated him of wrongdoingmade Mr. Flynn vulnerable to political attack

Move Long Expected.

It has been obvious for sometime that he would move out of the national chairmanship. And the President's appointment of him to be Minister of Australia certainly softens the blow. Unless the uproar from the public becomes too great, Mr. Flynn's confirmation by the Democratic majority of the Senate seems

Mr. Flynn is not stepping out of his position as New York's male member of the Democratic National Committee, although he is relinquishing the chairmanship of the committee and his leadership in the Bronx. It may be he is holding on to that job for the reason that if he resigned from the national committee. Jim Farley might be chosen by the Democratic State Committee of New York to succeed him.

The State committees fill vacancies in the national committee when vacancies occur between national party conventions. Mr. Farley has hung on to the chairmanship of the State committee and it looks as though nothing would get him out. It would not be part of the New Deal book to have Mr. Farley, who is now strongly anti-Roosevelt, step into membership in the national com-

New Deal Democrats are anxious to maintain a grip on the national committee. They wish to be in a position to renominate the President in 1944 if they can If the war is still on in 1944 it looks as though the President's renomination was a foregone

With Mr. Farley riding herd over the New York State committee it is almost certain, however, that it will be difficult to have a solid Roosevelt delegation sent to the 1944 Democratic National Convention. But while it may be a split delegation, it would be a great surprise if Mr. Farley was able to hold the delegation entirely aloof from the President. He may succeed in electing many up-State anti-Roosevelt delegates and perhaps a few in the city, but presumably there will be a sizeable Roosevelt bloc in the delegation. If the war should be over by the time delegates are pledged and elected, the picture may be different

New Color to Organization. With Mr. Flynn resigning as Bronx leader, the Democratic organization in New York City takes on a new color, too. The Bronx, next to Brooklyn, is the most populous of the city boroughs. So far Mr. Flynn has not yet been able to dictate his successor as leader. The strong man of the city, in the Democratic organization, may well turn out to be Frank Kelly, the Brooklyn

Mr. Kelly allied himself with Mr. Farley in the fracas last summer, and held his delegation in line for the nomination of John J. Bennett, jr., the Farley candidate for Governor, over Senator Mead, who had the President's backing. Obviously something must be done to get the city Democratic organization to functioning more efficiently. For some years now the party has been unable to elect a mayor, although the city is known to be overwhelmingly Democratic. Perhaps Mr. Kelly will be able to turn the trick, if he gets the

The terrible licking which the Democrats took in the recent gubernatorial election has left the party in bad shape. The Democrats have neither a Governor of New York nor a Mayor of New York City-and the Legislature is Republican in both houses. Gov. Dewey's ambition is to solidify Republican gains and to keep New York a Republican State. He has just begun his administration, but the prospects are good. His appointments to office have been well received, and his determination to be Governor-and not a prospective candidate for the Presidency in 1944—giving all his time to the job, is also helping him.

New "Paving" Probe Doubted. Efforts are being made already to get Gov. Dewey to reopen the Flynn "paving block" case. If Mr. Flynn is confirmed by the Senate as Minister to Australia and he sets off on his long jaunt it does not seem likely that the case will be reopened at this time anyway. Gov. Dewey in all probability will not initiate a new investigation on his own, but if a considerable number of responsible citizens petition him to do so that would be a different matter. He could get at the matter by appointing a special commission to investigate the administration of affairs in the Bronz if he wished.

How far Mr. Farley is going in a campaign to head off a Roosevelt nomination for a fourth term remains to be seen. The former chief political lieutenant of the President has just gone to Mexico on business. Before he left, however, he had been traveling extensively around the country and had consulted with a number of anti-New Deal Democrats. He may be expected to renew such expeditions when he gets back.

One thing is obvious, however, and that is if the President is to be a candidate for another presidential nomination he will get it unless another candidate can be found who might defeat him. It would be toughest kind of a job under all the circumstances, not the least of which is the tremendous power which any President has to dictate his own nomination if he desires to do so. Mr. Farley's effort will be, however, to make it certain there is no unanimous draft among the Democrats for a fourth-term nomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

Netherlands Indies group, including Borneo and Timor, soon will become almost impregnable fortresses. The Japs hope to make them into strongholds more powerfully fortified than those of the mandated islands. News of the Japs' activity reaches Washington occasionally but receives scant public attention because interest is focused on the North African-European theater of war.

Once in a while when our forces under Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., or Gen. Douglas MacArthur gain some spectacular success the American people remember that a deadly war is being fought in the Pacific.

It is true that with the relatively small means at their disposal these two commanders managed to inflict severe casualties on the Japanese Navy and Air Force and wiped out more Japanese in a couple of weeks than have the American and British forces in the battle zone across the Atlantic.

Nazi Defeat First Interest.

But at the moment the chief interest lies in the defeat of Hitler. Government-controlled information and propaganda agencies naturally are following the main pattern of our strategy, which is to conquer the Germans first and then turn on the Jap-Under the circumstances and under the demands of our strategy, the bulk of the available men and materials is being rushed to Russia, Britain, North Africa and other sections across the Atlantic which might later develop into secondary fronts all leading to an all-out blow at the European end of the Axis.

Meanwhile, however, the Japanese are far from idle. Heavy losses in merchantmen and warships have sobered up the extremely optimistic Tokio leaders. While they are planning more offensive moves, in spite of their shortage of destroyers and cruisers, they also are preparing hundreds of strategic islands as bastions against an eventual American offensive.

They have learned one definite lesson—that the American fighting men in the air, on sea, and on land are not "soft." Hence, in whatever, offensive operations they may decide on in the near future we must expect them to be thoroughly prepared. It is unlikely that they will repeat the mistakes their overconfident commanders made at Guadalcanal.

The possibility of another setback is not discounted by the Japanese general staff. There was a time some six months ago when, had we directed our major efforts against the enemy in the Pacific, we could have taken some of their conquered islands and established strong forces in vital strategic positions such as Timor or Borneo and from them we could have waged a war of attrition against the Japanese by cutting their lines of supplies.

No Easy Victory. Such an effort was not made because the United Nations high command had other plans-the invasion of North Africa, for instance, and all that could be spared for the Pacific battle was just enough to keep us on the defensive. Now the prospects of a relatively easy victory in that area are slim.

The Japanese are exploiting their newly acquired territories, rich in tin, rubber and oil, and intend to make them their chief source of supply for Japan's resistance against the Allies in the event Hitler is defeated soon. While the exploitation was done in a more or less perfunctory manner in the months following the expulsion of the United Nations forces from those territories, the Japs set to work with a will after their first defeat at Guadalcanal.

After completion of the new Canton-Saigon railway, the Japanese-because of this new line of communications—will be less concerned over possible increase in submarine activity against their sea lanes. The railroad will make safe the transportation of food and raw materials from Malaya and Indo-China.

Jap Psychological War.

The Japanese have not neglected psychological warfare. They are exploiting the Atlantic Charter for their own benefit by telling the people of Malaya, Indo-China and China that the four freedoms which have aroused such enthusiasm among the conquered nations are meant for the white man's territories only and will not be applied to the yellow races.

The Japs' propaganda agencies are playing up the slogan. "Asia for the Asiastics." The Japanese officials placed in charge of the newly conyuered territories were at first minor officials whose main interest was to squeeze out of the subjected nations as much as they could to fill their own

But this situation has been changed. The new set of officials are men of integrity mostly educated in American, British and French universities. They are treating the Malayans and other races of that area almost as equals and are endeavoring to assure their support for the future when American and British forces may attempt to dislodge the Japanese.

According to some competent observers, the job of defeating Japan after Hitler has been liquidated will be far more difficult, lengthy and costly than the defeat of Germany and Italy.

Modern'war reporting began with the boats equipped with composing rooms were sent Mexican war and The Associated Press grew out of the experience.

Never had the world seen such initiative in news gathering up to then. The newly invented "electro magnetic" telegraph was in operation in a dozen or more cities and in addition American newspapers employed pigeons, ponies and boats to speed the news of the fighting at Monterey, Vera Cruz, Buena Vista and Mexico City.

A New York newspaper offered $500 an hour for every hour that a pigeon could deliver the news ahead of its rivals. Two others set up a dispatch system using "60 blooded horses" to cover the 2000 miles to the Mexican front. Often, riders were ambushed by Mexican guerrillas. Fast out to meet the slower steamers. Large sums were spent to get news beats.

Yet the news arrived weeks late. It had to move by boat across the Gulf of Mexico and thence by pony express across the hostile southern plains before it reached the telegraph at Richmond. A "bulletin" on the victory at Buena Vista arrived in the east fully five weeks after the battle. moreover, such coverage proved costly.

So it was that the first real cooperative news gathering organization was formed. It was called The Associated Press.

America was to learn to look for Associated Press news thereafter.

Moves Vital To Peace Analyzed

Recent Developments Emphasize Russia's Key Position

By PERTINAX.

Several developments of great political importance support the view expressed this week by Admiral William H. Standley, United States Ambassador in Moscow, that "the conditions in which peace can be made are not discernible." The developments concern Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and, indirectly, Greece, of all the European nations, the most cruelly afflicted by the war.

Their governments (now in London) realized long ago that quarrels and conflicts within their group had contributed to bringing about catastrophe. And to prevent such discord from occurring in the future, they decided to bind themselves to a closer mode of association than ordinary alliances or even "collecive security."

In November, 1940, Poland and Czechoslovakia agreed to unite in a federation on the day the Anglo-American-Russian victory had materialized. Yugoslavia and Greece did the same, some months afterward. Since then, nothing has been heard of those far-reaching schemes. Today, it is clear that they are little more than castles in the air.

Barriers Discussed. In the case of Poland and Czechoslovakia, the fact that the claims which Russia intends to put forward, at the time of the peace, have not yet been disclosed, seemingly raises an insuperable bar. In the other case, the root of the trouble is that the Yugoslav union is being shaken to its foundations. Yugoslavia was, by itself, a federation. If it were proved that Serbs, Slovenes and Croats cannot harmoniously live together, it would be meaningless to speak of a larger federation with Greece. Besides, the Communist forces which compete with Gen. Mikhailovitch are a disintegrating force and, rightly or wrongly, their action is commonly ascribed to Russian influence.

Some months ago Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski and Edouard Benes, respectively the heads of the Polish and Czecho-Slovakian governments, undertook to translate into concrete obligations the federative principle on which they had bestowed their blessing. Then, the Polish Premier had to realize that the proposals which came from the Czechs merely embodied some military alliance of a kind and stopped short of the full and intimate partnership which had

On the part of the Czechs, that attitude of reserve is not to be wondered at. As in the past, the Slavs of Bohemia will be sentimentally inclined to look for protection to the Russian empire. It does not matter to them that the Soviets replaced the Romanoff dynasty. The old bond is likely to hold fast and it must have been tremendously strengthened by the achievements of the Red Army.

Frontiers Are Key. Therefore, before committing himself to a Federal union, Mr. Benes must be sure that territorial controversies are not going to break out between the Poland of tomorrow and the Soviet Union. Obviously, a Russian-Polish agreement must be a preliminary for a Polish-Czechoslovak consolidation. All controversies about frontiers have first to be disposed of. The whole question turns on the chance of a settlement between Gen. Sikorski and the Kremlin. It was announced last month that the Polish Premier had made up his mind to go to Moscow and broach the subject with Premier Stalin. Gen. Sikorski is the wisest, the most enlightened premier Poland ever had. He is better fitted than any one else to perform the task. However, the probabilities are that he will not report himself to the Russian capital unless he can judge that the odds are not heavily against him. In Yugloslavia, as is well known, Gen. Mikhailovitch, Minister of War, is not left free to concentrate on the invaders: Germans, Italians, Hungarians, Bulgarians. His "Tcherniks" are not alone in the field. Croat politicians and irregulars are at work, whose purpose it is to safeguard, for the future, the Kingdom of Croatia in the extensive limits it has received from the Italian conquerors—those nearly go as far as Belgrade.

Moreover, a national assembly met in December at Bihac, Bosnia, where Croats and Communists mixed together as they have done for a long time in the so-called army of partisans. Its aim was to discredit the Yugoslav government in London, to spread the belief that the latter must not be taken to be the true representative of the people.

Cabinet Reconstructed. The reaction was immediate. It ook the form of a cabinet reconstruction. While Foreign Minister Nintchitch withdrew (perhaps because he had not succeeded in coming to an agreement with Molotoff last May), the Yugoslav premier, Mr. Yovanovitch, expressed his resolve to resist more vigorously all disruptive elements, and he selected the new ministers accordingly.

The conviction grows on the Serbs that they had better disentangle themselves from the composite state set up after the First World War than to be drawn into compromises where their national spirit would be diluted to the point of extinction. The Europe which will emerge from the victory of the United Nations is not to be firmly stabilized if the democracies of the West do not come to terms with Soviet Russia. Even the internal reconstruction of a country like France would be jeopardized unless Communists do not remain a hostile faction. But this is not the time to tackle such problems.

He told reporters he will "bring action to get a vote on the bill' when he returns within two weeks from a trip to investigate the fuel situation in the Midwest.

Late Prices Uneven, With Gains a Shade In Majority

By VICTOR EUBANK, NEW YORK, Jan. 16.-Resistance to the stock market's forward drive developed today and, while favorites if any headway.

Prices were best at an active opening in which sizable blocks of low and medium-priced issues December sales were the largest crowded the ticker tape. Activity for any December on record, reach- slackened later but the turnover of ing $3.914,932.48, an increase of around 500,000 shares was one of $624,937.71, or 19 per cent, from the the largest for a Saturday in the total of $3,289,994.77 in December, past several months. Near-closing trends were a trifle mixed, with plus marks having a shade the advan-

The fact that the list, on average, had touched peak levels for more than a year in the two previous sessions apparently inspired profit taking. The opinion was expressed that perhaps the runup of Friday on the biggest turnover since December 31 last, called for at least a temporary correction. Investor purchasing of dividend payers as a means of offsetting heavy income tax demands again provided a prop for individual issues. The war news still was viewed as bullish marketwise, especially for equities with a peace rating.

Steels displayed considerable indecision after yesterday's lively performance. Estimates of fourthquarter earnings for the principal producers in this field, while optimistic as compared with the third three months, seemed to disappoint some analysts. American Telephone, which Friday successfully contested a drop in net under the regular dividend rate, was one of the few soft spots in today's proceedings.

Underdogs Mar Jacobs' Boxing Promotions

La Motta, Wright Beat Wilson, Peralta in Big Ring Upsets

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Jan. 16 .- Proving that fight oddsmakers are the 'craziest people," Joey Peralta is just about eliminated from the aughable lightweight tournament today and California Jackie Wilson is just about ditto from Ray Rob-

For little or no reason the charitable betting wise guys installa Wilson a 1-to-4 favorite in his Madison Square Garden debut against Jake La Motta last night. And California Jackie, generally regarded as one of the world's three ranking welterweights, obliged by dropping a 10-round decision to Bronx Jake, who made good use of a 16-pound weight edge.

Then, just to make it unanimous, the betting big shots followed up by making Peralta a 5-to-12 choice over Ex-featherweight Champ Chalky Wright. And the ancient Chalk whacked Mexican Joey all around the premises to take another 10round "duke."

Jacobs' Plans Messed. Aside from maintaining a gaudy record that shows more than 60 per cent of the price-makers' betting underdogs have come home winging in Garden clambakes the last two years, last night's proceedings, which were put on for the entertainment of a slim turnout of 9,684 customers, also served to make quite a mess of hash out of part of Promoter Mike

Jacobs' winter and spring program. For Uncle Mike, who can spot a gate attraction almost as far off as a cab driver can spot a pedestrian, had been looking forward to matching (a) Wilson with Ray Robinson in a profitable welterweight waltz and (b) Peralta with Bob Montgomery in the final elimination of the New York State Commission's lightweight elimination tournament. Wilson, a sergeant at Mitchell

Field out on Long Island, had been touted as the one welterweight in the world with more than an outside chance of ending Robinson's two-By GEORGE HUBER.

Tech definitely is established as with all players on the starting team having a hand in last night's whom he had to give 16 pounds in

Jake used his weight edge last night as if he'd learned it from a script. He leaned all over the 145pound Los Angeles Negro, mauled him from rope to rope and tossed roundhouse swings that started all the way over in Brooklyn. And enough of them landed to give Bronx Jake the edge, although his style of fighting was about as sensational as a slightly used weather report. The result was that Jake "spoiled" Jakie's style handsomely and just about ruined his hopes of taking on

As for Wright, when he lost his featherweight crown to Willie Pep a couple of months back, the boys began writing his fistic "obit." Well sir, the ageless Chalk bounced back last night against the Mexican from Arizona by way of Tamaqua, Pa., and wrapped up a fair-sized surprise package, with pretty pink ribbons and all.

And since Peralta had been one of the two lightweights still in the New York Commission's 135-pound elimination tournament, it would appear Chalky did quite a favor for the other one—Philadelphia Bob Montgomery. For, with Peralta demonstrating conclusively that he can't whip a supposedly washed-up featherweight, the Empire State's august fistic fathers can hardly ask Philadelphia Bob to give Joey an opportunity to prove that he's hotter than the better lightweights, although the New York commissioners can thing up some good ones once they put their minds to it.

Legislature May Get Budget On Monday

Maryland Members Hope to Get First Pay Next Week

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 16.-Maryland's legislators, enjoying the second week-end recess of the brief session today, were expected to return Monday night to find the Governor's budget message awaiting them.

Although Gov. O'Conor has not yet set a definite date for delivery of the message, required within 30 days after the Assembly convenes, he had expressed the hope of delivering it early next week. Legislative sources expected it would come Monday night or Tuesday at the latest. The lawmakers, however, won't find the salary checks they had hoped would be there on their re-

Both houses rushed through the bill which would permit them to draw their quarter-annually pay checks in advance, but a hitch in procedure will keep the bill locked in Speaker Thomas E. Conlon's office until Monday night. It will then be returned to the Senate and rushed to the Governor for signature.

May Get Paid Tuesday. Mr. Conlon said the lawmakers would probably receive their first $250 pay checks Tuesday. Under a constitutional amendment, they are now paid $1,000 a year instead of $5 a day, as was previously the

There was little other action during yesterday's sessions, which saw the introduction of seven Senate and 11 House bills.

A bill introduced in the House by three Baltimore City Democrats would provide a referendum in the 1944 general election proposing reduction of the voting age from 21 to 18 years. Sponsors were Delegates John T. Booth, Albert L. Sklar and Bertram L. Boone.

"Any person who may be called on to lay down his life for his country is entitled to a voice in the Government," Mr. Sklar commented Delegate Leon A. Rubenstein of Baltimore offered a bill which would permit men or women in the armed forces to obtain marriage licenses on application, without waiting the now-required 48 hours.

Veto Opposition Backed. New support for the plan to abolish immediately the Maryland Governors' power of absolute veto came, meanwhile, from Republican leaders in the Senate.

Senators Robert B. Kimble of Allegany and Wilmer Fell Davis of Caroline introduced an order requiring that Senate bills be dated on passage. A similar resolution was offered in the House Thursday by Delegate Bernard S. Melnicove, Democrat, of Baltimore.

Past Legislatures sent all approved bills to the Governor without dating them. This permitted the Governor to hold the measures on his desk, until after adjournment if he wished, and thus removed the Assembly's power to override his veto. A bill which would accomplish the same purpose, but which would not

HOME OF THE SUPREME COURT—Helen Gatch Durston has drawn the Vermont marble building where the Supreme Court of the United States now sits after 145 years of wandering about Capitol Hill. The highest tribunal first met in the Royal Exchange at the foot of Broad street in New York and then here in the old Capitol Building. It is claimed the justices once had to sit in a tavern because members of Congress needed all the available rooms in the Capitol.

When the Capitol was damaged in 1814 the justices met in the home of the clerk of the court, Elias B. Caldwell, at 206 Pennsylvania avenue. The site where the new building was erected seven and a half years ago was once occupied by the old Brick Capitol. James Monroe was inaugurated there in 1817, delivering the first inaugural address ever given outside the precincts of the Capitol itself. John C. Calhoun died there in 1850 after the building had become Hill's Board House.

The new structure was the dream of the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft. It has the space to permit it to become one of the most complete law libraries in the world. More than 125,000 volumes can be housed on the second floor and there are book stacks for 220,000 law books on the third floor. As visitors proceed up the steps and toward the courtroom itself, a silent attendant swings open the door of justice with a long cord.

Montgomery Democratic Leader Calls Charges 'Indefinite, Unfounded'

Lacy Shaw, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Montgomery County and president of the Board of County Commissioners, today challenged Willard A. King of Chevy Chase either to outline reforms needed in the county government or to "stop attacking the reputation of the ungood government of the usually county in which he lives."

Mr. King, a former Democrat, who was an unsuccessful Independent candidate in November for the House of Delegates, yesterday urged county Democrats to switch to the Republican party. He charged that the county government is now conrolled by a small group of Demorats, dominated by one man. In a statement, Mr. Shaw de-cribed Mr. King's charges as "indefinite and unfounded," and said hey were made because Mr. King is "obviously unhappy" over the November voting and is displeased with the Democratic party. Mr. King, he said, has never been a Democratic candidate for a county nomination

In reply to the charge that the Democratic organization controls the party's primary elections. Mr. Shaw pointed out that every registered Democratic voter is entitled to vote in all Democratic primary elections.

"No one can receive a Democratic nomination in Montgomery County," he asserted, "unless a majority of the Democrats are willing to vote in favor of such a nomination."

Planners Urge Early Action on Boundaries Bill

Delay May Nullify Virginia Agreement, Congress Warned

Early congressional settlement of he years-old boundary dispute between the District of Columbia and Virginia was urged today by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission following its rein-dorsement of the Randolph bill which would establish the new line at the present mean high-water mark on the Virginia shore.

There is only one party to the dispute now, planning officials said, in view of the fact that the Virginia Legislature already has declared its willingness to accept the boundary line set forth in the pending Randolph bill.

"Congress can enact the bill or it can nullify the action of the Virginia Legislature by delaying action," a commission spokesman said yesterday after the question was threshed out in an interdepartmental conference. On the other hand, he pointed out that Virginia can nullify the action of Congress if that body should enact a bill changing the proposed boundary line in a manner unsatisfactory to

Before ending its monthly meeting, the Planning Commission late yesterday approved plans for Alley Dwelling Authority developments on the old Shoemaker tract along Georgia avenue near the District ine and in the Fort Totten area. It also agreed to co-operate with Fairfax County authorities in working out population trends in that section of Virginia to serve as a guide for future public utilities. John Nolen, jr., director of planning submitted estimates which placed the population of the Washington Metropolitan area at approximately 1.300.000 and of the City of Washington at 900,000. The estimate was of January 1. Indicating the ex-pansion of Federal employment, the report showed that the number of Government employes in the whole area in relation to total population is now 1 to 41/2, compared with 1 to 6 or 7 several years ago under nor-

Fitness Parley Ends Today With Student Drill

Results of Period Training in High Schools to Be Shown

Local educators and recreation leaders this afternoon were scheduled to see the George Washington University physical fitness conference conclude with drills by dozens of high school students.

Boys and girls from Calvin Coolidge, Roosevelt, McKinley and Eastern High Schools were to show the results of their new five periods a week of physical training in the gymnasiums at Roosevelt High School. This morning the conference group heard discussion of the new United States Office of Education physical training manual by three specialists from that office. Dr. Jackson Sharman. Miss Dorothy LaSalle and Miss Ruth Grout.

Five-Period Setup Praised. The five-period a week program here was praised by Dr. Sharman, specialist in physical fitness of the Office of Education. He said the officer's new manual of physical education had been planned especially around this amount of instruction each week. School systems which still give the students only one to three periods of physical instruction per week are behind the times he said

Miss La Salle said the manual has been aimed particularly at physical fitness for the women who are now taking jobs in war offices and factories. Miss Grout added that a new manual on general health is soon to be issued by her office.

Just before the students' exhibition, the conferees were scheduled to hear a discussion of "supplements" to the regular school health examination by Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, director of school services of the Office of Public Health.

"Overloading" Advised. The responsibility for saving American fighting men from death by beginning their physical training long before they enter the service was laid squarely on the shoulders of school teachers at the opening session of the conference at the ing session of the conference at the university last night by five speakers from the services themselves. Lt. Col. Theodore Bank, Army director of athletics, and Comdr. from Hamilton of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics stressed the "overloading" principle of getting boys

HOME OF THE SUPREME COURT-Helen Gatch Durston has drawn the Vermont marble building where the Supreme Court of the United States now sits after 145 years of wandering about Capitol Hill. The highest tribunal first met in the Royal Exchange at the foot of Broad street in New York and then here in the old Capitol Building. It is claimed the justices once had to sit in a tavern because members of Congress needed all the available rooms in the Capitol.

When the Capitol was damaged in 1814 the justices met in the home of the clerk of the court, Elias B. Caldwell, at 206 Pennsylvania avenue. The site where the new building was erected seven and a half years ago was once occupied by the old Brick Capitol. James Monroe was inaugurated there in 1817, delivering the first inaugural address ever given outside the precincts of the Capitol itself. John C. Calhoun died there in 1850 after the building had become Hill's Board House.

The new structure was the dream of the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft. It has the space to permit it to become one of the most complete law libraries in the world. More than 125,000 volumes can be housed on the second floor and there are book stacks for 220,000 law books on the third floor. As visitors proceed up the steps and toward the courtroom itself, a silent attendant swings open the door of justice with a long cord.

Senate D. C. Unit Hears Several Plans To Raise Salaries

By J. A. O'LEARY.

The Senate District Committee is expected to reach an early decision on a pay increase for local policemen, firemen and school teachers, with several solutions to choose from as the result of an all-day hearing yesterday.

The Commissioners offered a substitute to limit all three groups to a 10 per cent raise on not to exceed $2,900 of basic salary-placing them in the class with Federal employes whose exact hours cannot be determined for overtime pay-

Commissioner Young made it clear in his testimony yesterday he was not supporting the bill now before the committee, giving policemen and firemen a $480 raise.

Other Federal personnel, including most departmental employes, who have been put on a 48-hour week, are eligible for a 21.6 per cent raise, based on time and a quarter for work above 40 hours.

The Commissioner's plan would be substantially below the pending McCarran bills, which, for the duration of the war, would grant policemen and firemen in the maxi-A lawyer and former newspaper- mum grade a $480 raise, from $2,400 to $2,880, and a similar raise for officers; a 15 per cent increase for school teachers, based on the War Labor Board's formula in the "Little Department's Pentagon Building in he believed his new job offered a Steel" case to meet the rise in living cost, and a 10 per cent increase for certain employes of the Board

10 Per Cent for Teachers.

2. Give the teachers the 10 per cent flat increase until April 30, when the general Federal pay law expires, and draft a more equitable teachers' salary act in the meantime, as is slated to be done for Federal personnel generally.

Chairman McCarran of Nevada expressed fear that the Commiscent proposal would fire and teaching services. He pointed out it would be only a $190 increase for the rookie policeman and firemen and only $140 more for a $1,400 teacher. Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, emphasized an urgent need for a permanent upward revision of teachers' salaries, pointing out that 268 teachers have resigned to take more gainful jobs and 132 problem is not one of a scarcity of good teachers, said the superintendent, but of their inability to live on the salaries offered. A more serious phase of the situation was Dr. Ballou's prediction of a falling off in candidates for teacher training schools. He said if the war lasts three or four years the schools will not have a roster of qualified teachers coming through the training schools If a temporary measure is to be passed pending permanent revision,

Dr. Ballou said the School Board was inclined to go along with the Commissioners and not insist on any different treatment for the teachers than other employes. Dr. Ballou objected strenuously to one provision in the teachers' temporary 15 per cent bill, which sought to raise the entrance pay of temporary teachers by allowing them to count experience elsewhere. Dr. Ballou expressed fear it might result in such teachers being made permanent without going through the regular examination procedure here, and lower the standards of the local system.

Miss Selma Borchardt, national vice president of the American Federation of Teachers, said there was no desire to lower standards, but it was felt the provision might attract some teachers here from areas where there is no war congestion. She suggested a conference with school officials to work out differ-officer, estimated the 15 per cent raise for teachers would cost $1.161,336. Sparrel A. Wood of the Citizens' Forum of Columbia Heights, sup-

"Enthuse and educate your audience with speakers-don't kill them with too many speeches."

This was one of the suggestions made in a memorandum by Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of civilian defense in the District, for the "program routine for civilian defense meetings.

The instruction of speakers in this local OCD "primer" suggested that they be limited to two, one of whom will 'enthuse the audience," while the other should "deal with specific problems, making your workers feel they are moving ahead and making progress,"

Col. Bolles also urged that the programs should stop and end on time, leaving the "people wanting more instead of feeling that they have had too much."

These suggestions, Col. Bolles said, "are offered in response to inquiries and suggestions that have been made concerning the conduct of civilian defense meetings of all character.

Col. Bolles' first recommendation was to give form to the meeting and spiritual sanction by opening with an invocation and closing with a benediction. Esprit de corps, the "primer" said, could be built up psychologically by standing and singing "God Bless America" at the opening of the meeting and the "Star Spangled Banner" at the conclusion. Cautioning that the program should start on time, the memorandum said that "the invocation and song will help to get the people in the auditorium. The speakers should be held to a limited time and the meetings should not run over 90 minutes, it added. There also should be a brief entertainment, the Bolles memorandum continued, with not more than two numbers and "where possible have the original humoreducation skits dealing with area

Police Begin Laborious Checking of 656 Items In Shops of Chungking

By A. T. STEELE, Poreign Correspondent of The Star and

Chicago Daily News. CHUNGKING. Jan. 16.-Chiang Kai-shek's edict regulating prices and wages went into effect in all important cities and towns of Free China yesterday in what is China's biggest effort to solve its serious economic woes

In Chungking the newly-organized economic police went from shop to shop checking prices on a selected list of 656 commodities which cannot be sold at prices exceeding the level of November 30, 1942. Red labels bearing the official price are attached to the regulated goods As this is not China's first attempt at price fixing, officials were reluctant to predict whether it would succeed. The stopping of innumerable leaks will be a formidable task. The present plan differs from previous efforts in several ways and has sterner sanctions behind it.

Instead of basing the new price level on production and marketing costs, the government is adopting half ago as the standard. Responsibility will be more widely distributed, with provincial and municipal governments, chambers of commerce and trade guilds strictly accountable for enforcement of the new (Copyright, 1943, Chicago Dally News, Inc.)

A degree issued by Gen. von Falkenhausen, military governor of Belgium and Northern France, directs priests to give advance notice of requiem masses for executed Belgian patriots and for soldiers killed in the war or who died in Nazi prison

In the case of an executed patriot the mass, which must be a low mass, can only be held in the victim's parish church and no announcement of the service may be made from the pulpit or in any other way. Only relatives of the executed person may be present and the number of these may not exceed 20.

The Belgian national colors may not be displayed in the case of masses for soldiers who died in the war or in prison camps, and patriotic organizations are barred from participating in the service. Sermons and hymns must be purely rethe actual level of a month and a ligious. It is forbidden to "give the serive a political character by the choice of the day, the hour or any other suggestive detail."

According to reports, the order has been ignored in a number of cases. In one instance, during funeral services for a Belgian soldier. the altar was decorated with two large Belgian flags, the national anthem was played and seminarians sang a patriotic song which ends with the words, "May God protect free Belgium and her King."

A Traveler's Memories of Jacob's Well at Old Sychar

A Lesson for the Week

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS. Older than the pyramids, many springs and wells have flowed ceaselessly for uncounted millenniums. Mighty palaces and fortresses have

The Christ who once sat the Patriarch Jacob, is slightly off & wearied on this well-curb offers estine. It is a short distance below the city of Nablus, the ancient Shechem. Beside it are the remains of a Crusader church, and the beginnings of a new Greek church: for the Greeks hold title to the spot, and maintain worship in a chapel built over the well. One's imagination plays over the long succession of thirsty men and women and children who, throughout 3,000 years, have drunk from this well which Jacob dug for the use of his own company and flocks, never dreaming of the heritage he was bequeathing to mankind.

Morale Indictment Challenges Are Taken Under Advisement

Hectic Hearing Held; Mrs. Dilling Enters Plea of Not Guilty

Justice Jesse C. Adkins today had under advisement various motions to dismiss an indictment charging 28 persons with conspiring to undermine the morale of the armed forces, in District Court yesterday, during which the marshals continually rapped for silence and the judge cautioned one defense counsel about "improper" remarks.

The late afternoon session followed earlier arguments in which Albert Dilling, whose wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago, is charged with conspiracy, told Justice Adkins there are rumors current a third indictment, leveled against Republicans who voted against Mr. Roosevelt in 1932, is being prepared by the Government.

William Power Maloney, special assistant to the Attorney General who is presenting the Government case, answered this with an opinion that "Those rumors have their origin in the fertile mind of Mr. Dilling.

Mr. Jackson's third point was that the first indictment is "fatally defective" because it lacks certain essential allegations explaining that acts charged against the accused were investigated in the original term and were unfinished in that term and in succeeding terms up to the time the indictment was returned in court. Atlanta: In giving the correct pronunciation of JUAREZ, Mexico, you give "z" the sound of "s." Why not put before your readers the Castilian pronounciation which gives "z" the sound of "th?"-A. B.

Answer-There is as much difference between the pronunciation of Castilian and American Spanish as there is between British and American English. In Mexico "z" always is ponounced "s." Since Juarez is a Mexican town the correct pronunciation is the Mexican: HWAH-

Roswell: Why is it that we say "head over heels" when we mean that something is topsy-turvy?—I.

Answer-Unaccountably the expression itself is upside down, for originally and logically it was "heels over head." Woodburn: Please pronounce the word FRIEZE. Almost every one says "free-ZAY." Right?-R. B. Answer-Sorry. The mispronunciation "free-ZAY" apparently is the result of thinking that frieze is French. The word is English (from the French frise) and should be pronounced exactly like the word "freeze."

New Orleans: What is the origin of the word VETO?-J. B. Answer-The word is Latin and means "I forbid."

Houston: On the Quiz Kids program the question was asked, "What is the title of the poem in which the boy stood on the burning deck?" The answer was "Casablanca," which was held as correct. Isn't there something wrong here?-Mrs. J.

Answer-Yes. The title of the poem (and the brave boy's surname) is CASABIANCA, pronounced KAHsah-BYAHNG-kah. The name is Corsican. However, the Spanish Casablanca and the Italian Casabianca have the same meaning, white house."

The Japanese have the story that the earth was created by two of their deities, a god and a goddess. They also say that their Emperor is a direct descendant of the sun goddess. # 'Road to Morocco' Riotous Fun With Bing and Bob

Unorthodox Madcap Film Finds Melody and Laughs In North African Scene

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

North Africa may be overrun with war and politics, but Bing Crosby and Bob Hope in Morocco discover nothing but laughter and melody. This is the third in the popular "Road" series and definitely the best.

This is a gag-packed and wacky piece of fantasy, stopping occasionally for musical interruptions and witty asides directed to the audience. It begins with Bing and Bob shipwrecked and washed up on the shores of Africa. They manage to land on a .-

camel and as they go singing across the desert remark that they are

Amos 'n' Andy Off Air.

Amos 'n' Andy are the latest to be hit by rationing. They go off the air February 19 unless somebody picks up their services at $7,500 weekly. They've been on the air continuously for 15 years but their sponsor, rationed on production, doesn't need their salesmanship now. They began in 1920 as "Sam 'n' Henry," and on their various public activities have amassed enough to be called the wealthiest comics in show business.

On Tolling the Bell.

This department has a wire from Paramount's West Coast offices indicating they are much disturbed over the rumors "For Whom the Bell Tolls" will be banned because of war politics. George E. Brown wires: "Buddy De Sylva states that if this picture is held up American public will have missed one of the greatest pictures of all time. Dudley Nichols, who saw the picture yesterday, states that this is by far the outstanding of the 25,000 pictures produced in Hollywood. It seems to me that the issue is bigger than whether one picture is to be banned or not. Isn't that what the four freedoms are intended to guarantee? Isn't this what this war is all about? Is American industry to be sacrificed to whims of groups and isms? As far as Paramount is concerned we have received no official word from Washington or other sources concerning possible banning of picture and studio having completed first editing of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" is proceeding with plans for initial

Star Says He's Moronic, With Future of Series Based on New Formula

By SHEILAH GRAHAM,

HOLLYWOOD .- "I hear you are going into the Army," this columnist says to Mickey Rooney on the set of "Girl Crazy."

"I wouldn't know about that," replies the Boy Wonder of the screen. "But," he says by way of a hint, "I'm still making pictures, aren't I?" that doesn't go today. He should be ironic to be really up to date. His mother should also be brightened up.

Completed No. 13. Mickey recently completed the Dances Tonight thirteenth of the Andy Hardy series, tentatively titled, "Andy Hardy's Double Life."

"Thirteen is my lucky number, so perhaps the picture will be all right," says Rooney, adding, "Pardon me, but I have to telephone my wife. Did I ever tell you what a swell girl she is?' He has just bought the bride an-

"There's no knowing what women like, I've learned that," he replies. It would seem that Master Rooney is growing up.

Also on the set of "Girl Crazy" is Judy Garland who is again playing Mickey's girl friend. And she, like Rooney, prefers to talk about her real life romance, Dave Rose. "He's been made a corporal," she boasts. "He started as a private." Judy is still too thin, although a little heavier than while making "For Me and My Gal," when she dropped to a low of 96 pounds. She is overworking.

Merle Oberon's Plans. Merle Oberon saw David Niven, fession being those which make the Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier and she brings me news of all three on the set of "Attack by Night."

"I am sure they will come back to Hollywood when the war is over, but Vivien, who could return now if she wanted to, will never leave England while Larry is there," Merle says, adding that Olivier, with whom she co-starred in "Wuthering Heights," looks "So handsome in his uniform!" I can well believe that. "I'm going back to England, as you know," continues Merle, or should I call her Lady Korda? That's her rightful title since Husband Alexander was knighted by the King. "My husband is leaving for England in a week or two, and I shall go there in May to play Natasha in 'War and Peace' which he will make in England. My ideal way of living is to work in this country six months every year, and six months in London. I did that for seven years before the war. That's why I have no money, I've had to pay taxes in both countries." Metro wants to make a deal with Merle to star in one picture every year.
