Allies Get Third Of Tanks, Planes, Says Stettinius

Lease-Lend Aid Exceeds Eight Billion, Congress Is Told

By the Associated Press

Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., reported to Congress today that one out of every three tanks and combat planes built in this country last year went to our Allies, either through leaselend or direct purchase. He also announced that the cumulative value of lease-lend up to January 1 was $8,253,000,000.

Aside from tanks and planes, lease-lend has taken much smaller shares of weapons. Mr. Stettinius estimated that in the last six months lease-lend exports of munitions amounted to 15 per cent of American production of these items. Of the eight-billion-plus total since the program began March 11. 1941. about 79 per cent, or $6.548.-000,000, was for goods transferred to United Nations and $1,705,000,000 was for services rendered Lease-Lend Not "Charity." "Lease-lend is not a loan of money," the administrator emphasized. "Nor has it even been an act of charity. The lease-lend program of providing goods and services to nations resisting the Axis aggressors was undertaken for the defense of this country and has been carried out in the interests of the people of the United States.

"We have aided other peoples under lease-lend because their interests coincided with our interests.' The program of aiding our Allies Mr. Stettinius said, was far from one-sided, since other United Nations are supplying each other, and reciprocal aid to the United States "has already saved millions of tons of shipping space and many hundreds of millions of dollars." Reciprocal aid, he said, has been supplied principally by the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand to American forces overseas and by China, South Africa, Fighting France and Belgium

During 1943, Mr. Stettinius aspicture, the goal of this country being "to double its war production" in order to supply "arms in the quantities necessary for victory."

Mr. Stettinius listed the total value of lease-lend aid in 1942 slone at $7,009,000,000, more than five times 1941's volume and significantly pointed out that $2,482,-000,000 of the 1942 total was provided during the year's last three

"The basic war strategy of the United Nations," he commented, "is to combine all their material and manpower resources in such a way as will achieve the maximum possible impact upon the enemy in the shortest possible time. Lease-lend is a principal means by which the United States combines a share of its material strength with the material strength and manpower of our Allies in order to carry out this Etrategy. "When a Gen. Britain's Output Large.

Although lease-lend shipments have already played an important part in the war. Mr. Stettinius said, "they have formed only one of many streams flowing into the pool of United Nations resources.

He said that until last spring Great Britain, with one-third of our population, was producing more arms than the United States, and pointed out that "more Nazi soldiers have been killed by Russian-made weapons since the beginning of the war than on all the other fronts

Seven Important Positions Taken On Guadalcanal

Base Near Munda Nearly Wiped Out; 201 Japs Killed

American forces on a general offensive in the Solomon Islands were reported by the Navy today to have won seven important positions from the enemy on Guadalcanal, to have killed 201 Jap soldiers and captured 40 and to have virtually wiped out an enemy island base 190 miles to the northwest by sea and air at-

The places captured, a communique said, were six important elevations west of the American airfield on Guadalcanal and the coastal village of Kokumbona where quantities of stores and equipment were seized. This meant that the American front lines had been advanced about 2 to 3 miles beyond previously held Point Cruz which had been the furthest known point of advance on the coast.

The front apparently is being pushed forward in an effort to bottle up and eventually wipe out dwindling Japanese forces on the northwestern end of the island. The enemy still holds about 16 miles of coastline on the northern side of Guadalcanal, today that war-borne air mightily, but that it would serve only as a spur to the automotive trade in the peace years.

"Air transport is a lusty infant and is growing phenomenally." Robert F. Black, president of the White Motor Co., told the House Interstate Commerce Committee, discussing research work of the Automotive Council for War Production.

"There has been much speculation and prediction that air transport will take over many types of transportation now profitably performed by highway vehicles," Mr. Black said. "Whether it takes away present business or not, it is certain o develop new business both for itself and for the others."

After the war the truck industry will develop more horsepower in its models, 100-octane aviation fuel will increase compression ratios and superchargers may be introduced in truck engines, Mr. Black asserted. He forecast also introduction of lighter metals in manufacture, wider use of multi-drive wheels as devellower cost and better service.

Cardinals Pick Cairo (III.) As Training Camp Site

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25 .- The St. Louis Cardinals announced today the selection of Cairo, Ill., as the site of their spring conditioning camp. The club plans to begin workouts Monday, March 15.

President Sam Breadon said he was completely satisfied with the Cairo accommodations, which include two outdoor fields and an indoor running track. There is no indoor playing space. The Browns said Saturday they would train at Cape Girardeau, Mo., across the Mississippi from Cairo. The Cardinals were the last major league team to name their Northern training site.

"Hotel conditions are excellent, commented Breadon. "The field is old, but it's good and can be put into proper condition.

"Thus far we have made no plans to play exhibition games other than those with the Browns. We have booked seven games with them, including the two week ends immediately preceding the opening of the league season.

Manager Billy Southworth sounded a note of optimism, saying, 'Altogether, we are in pretty good shape despite the loss of some of the stars of our champion team.

Turkey Views May 1 As Crucial Hour, With Nazi Attack Possible

Desperate Gesture Might Be Made to Divert Allies And Get Caucasian Oil

By PRESTON GROVER. NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 24.-Information gathered in the wake of a visiting Turkish press mission indicates that Turkey considers May 1 her crucial hour, seeing an outside possibility that Hitler may attempt then to break through into the Middle East and drive behind the Russians in the Caucasus.

Would Divert Pressure.

Such an outlook is by no means officially aired, but was obtained from a competent source. The supposition is based by the Turks on these points:

1. The attack would be designed to divert both Anglo-American and Russian pressure from other fronts. 2. It is a military logical zone for German operations to get at the Caucasian oil and split the enemy

3. It could come as a desperation gesture, since Hitler cannot simply sit tight while the Allied ring

Sales Tax During War Urged by Brookings; Disney Indorses Plan

Institution Believes Levy Would Stabilize Prices; 5-Billion Yield Seen

Proponents of a Federal sales tax have received new support from the Brookings Institution and Representative Disney, Democrat, of Oklahoma, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The institution, a private research organization, recommended a Federal retail sales tax as a war

Such a levy, its report said, would distribute the bax burden "more widely over the population" and 'would also be much more effective than most taxes of similar yield in stabilizing the price situation, be-cause it would be chiefly out of money that owners would otherwise seek to spend for current consump-

The Brookings' report said advantages of a sales tax lie in the fact that it would be paid currently and its ability to reach income which otherwise could not readily be tapped. Most Federal taxes tend to reduce savings rather than spending and they "consequently are not effective checks on the development of sellers' markets and the resulting weakening of the Nation's efforts toward controlling prices and keeping down the cost of living," the institution The study found that a tax on retail sales would be far more desirable than any other form of sales levy. Simplicity of administration and ease of collection could be obtained, the report said, by a system involving the sale of stamps to retailers who would give them to customers as evidence of payment of the tax. Administrative Difficulties. A turnover tax applying to all sales in all levels of production would discriminate in favor of large concerns which carry goods through successive stages of production from the raw material to the final sale, the institution declared, adding that the would be made more difficult by the concealed taxes in the final price. A tax on manufacturers' sales would involve serious inequalities

PORTLAND, Oreg., Jan. 25.-The slaying of comely Mrs. Martha Virginia Brinson James, 21, whose throat was slit as she lav in lower berth 13 of a California-bound train, grew more mystifying today.

Clues abounded, but police in their third day of investigating the strange death of a Navy ensign's bride said they could determine no motive and could find no suepects. A brakeman said he saw a colored man resembling the one Pvt. Wilson described on the train between Portland and Salem. The man was not seen after the train left Salem, 30 miles north of Tangent.

Senator Murray Asks Special Liaison Group To Aid Small Firms

State Council Hears Centralization of Power Assailed by O'Conor

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Jan. 25.-Asserting that small businesses had been ignored by war agencies, Senator Murray, Democrat, of Montana, to-day suggested to the Council of State Governments the formation of an independent civilian supply administration and of a special State and Federal liaison committee to consider small business problems.

Senator Murray said the war had changed the Nation's production picture so that, instead of small plants producing 70 per cent of the country's manufactured goods and 100 big plants producing 30 per cent, as in peace time, the figures were just the other way around

"If this spectacle of concentration of business is permitted to continue, he said, ". . tens of thousands of small concerns will vanish, never to return. Bankruptcy will surely invade the once prosperous small communities; ghost towns will rise all over America.'

O'Conor Appeals to States. Gov. O'Conor of Maryland, president of the Council, yesterday called on the States for vigorous opposition to "greater and greater centralization of powers in Washington," but added that "the States can blame none but themselves if their future power and strength is sapped by naction and indifference.

Opening the sixth General Assembly of the Council, Gov. O'Conor said the war was being fought and would be won by the men and the sinews of the 48 States, not "by some detached central agency.'

Asking for a strict watch on State rights, Gov. O'Conor said the States had shown they could "cope with changing conditions to meet any emergency" and "the States must carry on without letup or limit, the part which is rightfully theirs in

Wickard Warns U. S. Of Increased Food Restrictions in '43

Diet to Be Adequate, but Choice Limited, He Says In Annual Report

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard served notice today on civilians that they must make further adjustments in their consumption habits during 1943 despite the fact well-directed farm activity enabled agriculture in 1942 to answer the "food-forfreedom" call with phenomenal production.

The announcement came in Secretary Wickard's annual report to the President, in which he also warned farmers of difficulties ahead in achieving food goals in 1943 and called on civilians to accept rationing as a "part of the price of vic-

No one will go hungry, the Secretary and administrator of the wartime food program promised. He pointed out that the nutrition value of civilian food will be about the same as in the 30s.

"Undoubtedly, however, civilians will not be able to obtain their usual supplies of many items," Mr. Wickard said. "Transportation will not be available for long hauls of some kinds of vegetables. Other products will be in shorter supply for civilians because we must make larger provisions for our fighters and our Military Needs Come First. Mr. Wickard explained that in controlling food supplies the Government acted on the principle that military and lease-lend needs rank

"The rationing procedure applies only to what remains after the requirements of the battle fronts have been met and reserves accumulated to provision recaptured areas and help write the peace," Mr. Wickard declared. "In war for survival this is obvious common sense. Letting the United Nations' fighters down would let us all down—in a hurry."

In his report, the agriculture head noted that total food production. including crops and livestock, was 10 per cent higher than in 1941. a record year, and that overall acreage yield during 1942 was close to the practicable limit. Production of livestock and dairy products also broke all previous records, he re-

Pointing out that the demand for food outstripped the supply during 1942. Mr. Wickard said that this year the gap may be wider. Military and lease-lend needs alone will be half again as great as they were in 1942 and these two sources will take about one-fifth of our total food production.

Land Resources Shrink. "Yet farm production equal to that of 1942 is probably the maximum for which we can plan. * * * We don't have the land resources for much further expansion," he said

The Secretary further warned that "it will be a miracle if the weather is as good for crops as it Gerard Hits Sniping" was in 1942," and reminded farmers that they would have to contend with "greater obstacles, especially Af Political Program that they would have to contend with worse shortages of labor and machinery" and would have to do with less fertilizer, insecticide material, bagging and other means of

The farm machinery shortage has reached a point now, he said, where it necessitates a full-scale rationing program for the 1943 crop year. Warning of serious and increasing manpower problems, Mr. Wickard said the outlook for farm labor in By the Associated Press. 1943 is "critical." Labor shortages are keeping both the quantity and quality of farm production from being as high as it might otherwise

The Secretary advocated "some form of wage control" to narrow the differential between farm and industrial wages, and then commented in his report: "Letting farm labor | the war. be drained away through competitive bidding threatens failure in not permit the clash of the rival the food-for-freedom drive."

Heavy Man-Day Loss.

He estimated a potential 500,000,-000 man-days of labor is being wasted each year on American farms, more than 80 per cent of it on some 2.400,000 low-income farms. Unused farm manpower will remain largely unused for the duration "unless we do something more

Pointing out that our victories must be consolidated through the swift relief of famine, the Secretary said that victory and peace would temporarily increase the food responsibilities of the United Nations and particularly of the United

He urged extension of Government direction of agriculture into the post-war period, declaring that a system of price supports, such as is now being used to bolster production of vital foods, and the crop adjustment system must be retained after the war.

The Secretary reported that unity was developing on the food front. "Bickering over the dollars-andcents aspect of it and over group shares in the national income is giving way to broad acceptance of stabilization policies based on the Price Stabilization Act," he said. The potential benefits which will eventually accrue to military personnel from the application of the tenets which he espoused can hardly be adequately estimated."

Rites for Father Graham Held at Georgetown U.

The Rev. Thomas J. Graham, S. J., 69, well-known priest and educator, who died Thursday in Georgetown University Hospital, was buried today in the university's faculty cemetery. Requiem mass was celebrated in the Dahlgren Chapel. Father Graham, whose death came after a long illness, had served for 17 years as a parish priest at St Joseph's Catholic Church in Philadelphia before going to Georgetown

He had been a Jesuit for more than 48 years, having entered the order at Frederick, Md., in 1894. Prior to taking his Philadelphia pastorate in 1926 he had served as dean and president of St. Peter's College in Jersey City. At the turn of the century Father Graham taught at Boston College and in 1913 was prefect of discipline at Fordham

Closed Shop Barred By Railway Labor Act, Biddle Rules

Tells Mediation Board Membership Maintenance Is Also Forbidden

By the Associated Press.

The Railway Labor Act forbids maintenance of membership as well as the closed shop in a railway labor contract, Attorney General Biddle has formally

Mr. Biddle's opinion, requested by the National (Railway) Mediation Board, eliminates the union security issue from a dispute between the 15 non-operating unions and the carriers, leaving only the wage question to be settled.

The unions are demanding a 20cent hourly increase and the closed shop. The wage issue is expected to go to the Railway Labor Panel created by the President, the board having been unable thus far to get

Hecht's Made Three Sales Above Ceiling Price, Hearing Told

Director of Store's OPA Compliance Office Offers Testimony

Louis G. Etelson, director of the OPA compliance office of the Hecht Co., admitted today in the District Court trial of his company on charges of violation of the Price-Control Act that there had been three violations where sales were made above the ceiling price. This testimony, before Justice F.

Dickinson Letts, came in cross-examination by George M. Austin, counsel for the Office of Price Adminstration. The OPA is seeking an injunction to prevent violation of the price-posting, price-ceiling and price-recording provisions. Earlier, on direct examination by Charles A. Horsky, Hecht Co. counsel, Mr. Etelson went through a long list of records in an attempt to

In regard to one charge by OPA for instance, that a studio couch with a ceiling price of $64.50 had been sold for $69.50, Mr. Etelson said one of the records of the store, a "confirmation sheet," had listed the figure at $69.50, but this was an error, and it was reduced to $64.50

before any sales were actually made.

"There were no sales above $64.50." In an effort further to prevent any sales above the ceiling, Mr. Etelson said the store had adopted the policy of stamping the ceiling price in green ink on the guide cards. He said the practice was started since the opening of the OPA investigation. It is in effect in three departments and will be spread to others, he said. On cross examination, Mr. Etelson admitted that some suits had been marked up from $22.50 to $25 most of the 41 paratroopers up for greeted by Mrs. Robert P. U. S. Soldiers Healthy In Africa Despite Native Diseases

Army Surgeon General Says Preventive Methods Keep Sick Rate Low

By the Associated Press.

Health of American troops in North Africa is excellent, Maj. Gen. James C. Magee said today, despite the prevalence of "almost every disease you can think of" among the native population there.

The Army Surgeon General, just back from a flying inspection trip to North Africa, England, West Africa and South America, said the sick rate is little more than 1 per cent, though the troops have been through the worst rainy season North Africa has had in years. Gen. Magee told a press conference that malaria and venereal diseases were the main medical problems of the Army overseas.

Venereal Disease Trouble. The preventive methods adopted by medical officers have been almost completely successful against malaria, he said, but venereal diseases cause more trouble because "some parts of the world just refuse to regard venereal diseases as a prob-

Maybe it causes your passenger train to be somewhat late.

But these are days when "first things must come first." Train movements-both passenger and freight-vital to the war command the rightof-way. And this traffic grows steadily heavier.

So far, we've kept troop trains rolling as Uncle Sam likes to see it. We're pushing oil and petroleum products through to the East just as fast as possible. All classes of freight go forward steadily, though some not as speedily as in peacetime days. Our main difficulty is in maintaining passenger train schedules, with the number of "first things" growing.

But it's good to see how travel inconveniences and delays bring/out the best in Americans. They know wartime train service can't be as it used to be "in the good old days"-and they take it like good soldiers. Glad to surrender the right-of-way to the U.S.A. Let the Work Go On

It is gratifying that the Facility Review Committee of WPB will at least hear what Commissioner Mason and Milo F. Christiensen, recreation superintendent, have to say in support of completing the recreation projects on which the committee arbitrarily halted work some time

But it is significant that this hearing has been granted after, not before, the work was stopped. It is significant because it is more or less characteristic of the bureaucratic fumblings which have so exasperated Commissioner Mason and everybody else in connection with getting anything done in the maze of conflicting authority possessed by various Federal agencies with which the municipality must deal.

Take these projects as an example. Last winter the War and Navy Departments were taking over tennis courts, softball and baseball diamonds and golf courses in Potomac Park and the Monument Grounds as sites for temporary buildings and parking lots. The matter was discussed at some length in hearings on the Lanham Act and there was general agreement that effort should be made to replace recreational facilities thus lost. There was considerable testimony as to their value in crowded Washington.

When the Lanham Act made funds for such purposes available the Commissioners submitted a carefully drawn plan to the Federal Works Agency for the development of new The Federal Works Agency studied it, the Federal Security Agency studied it, the Budget Bureau studied it. They all approved the plan as "essential to the war effort." The work was begun, one consideration being that no critical materials would be used.

This work was going forward as scheduled when the Facilities Review Committee of WPB, without any discussion with local authorities or inquiry, stopped it on the general theory that only essential war work should proceed. It even sent its stop order to the wrong agency. It had no plans for utilizing the men and machinery in other types of work. The contractors were pulled off the job without notice and, according to what they tell The Star. they have been cooling their heels

These recreational projects are relatively unimportant, in so far as the great war effort is concerned. But they are important locally. They are not playgrounds for children. They have been located near residential sections to provide some recreation facilities for adults. They are not wasting manpower or materials needed for other types of war work. Nothing but useless delay has resulted from stopping the work; no slight advantage has been gained in furthering the war effort.

Gloomy Communique

The Germans last week issued what is said to have been their gloomiest communique of the war. It was a story of defeat mounting to disaster on the Russian plains, and it must baye had a profoundly depressing effect on the German people.

They have been conditioned to a heady diet of war news. In the early days of the conflict, when the Reichswehr was running roughshod over all opposition in Poland, the Lowlands and France, Hitler and his arch-propagandist, Goebbels, fed the Germans generously on the strong meat of victory. This was in marked contrast to the policy followed with respect to the food that men can eat. The policy there was a wise one. Strict rationing was in effect even before the war, the purpose being to prepare the people for the hardships that inevitably were coming. In the Nazi plan there was no place for a collapse of morale that might accompany the sudden denial to the people of bread and meat in the

But Der Fuehrer and his aides were not so far-sighted in the case of propaganda. They paraded the invincibility of the Nazi armies before the people. Time and again they were told of the destruction of the Russian Army, of the thousands of Soviet planes and tanks which had been destroyed or captured, and reaping of the rich Nazi rewards. tation than unfair labor practices, pup tent preferable to the dog house.

is still fighting; it is on the offensive, putting more emphasis on the orand it is German armies that are | derly processes for determining barbeing encircled and destroyed, German propagandists who are talking hopefully of the vastness of the eastern territories in which there is ample room for retreat. No one can say with any certainty how these harsh tidings will be received by the people back home in Germany. Apparently their leaders are trying to prepare them for still worse news to come, and if their task is unduly hard they have only themselves to blame. It was they who built up the myth of Nazi invincibility when the tide of war was running their way. And now that defeat has set in, it is up to them to tear it down, if they can, without destroying the will of their people to fight.

MacArthur's Tribute

The tribute which General Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander in chief in the Southwest Pacific, has paid to the potency of air power in the modern sense of that term may be expected to have a farreaching influence on the conduct of the war.

General MacArthur has just concluded an extraordinary campaign. In a relatively short space of time the forces under his command have won a notable victory, driving across the towering Owen Stanley Mountain range and through the steaming jungles of New Guinea to pin down and destroy a force of 15,000 crack Japanese troops. With conventional tactics employed, this is the sort of operation that might have taken months, even years, and then there could have been no assurance of victory. But, with traditional concepts out the window, the American and Australian forces achieved a coordination of air and ground units that swept on to final victory in a matter of weeks, and, in General MacArthur judgment, thereby worked out the pattern for future fighting in the Pacific.

So impressed was the commander in chief with the performance of the air units, that he went to the unusual extent of issuing a formal written tribute to Lieutenant General George C. Kenney's Papuan air force.

"The outstanding lesson of this campaign," General MacArthur said, "was the continuous, calculated application of air power * * * employed in the most intimate tactical and logistical union with ground troops. The effect of this modern instrumentality (air power) was sharply accentuated by the geographical limitations of this theater. For months on end, air transport with constant fighter coverage moved complete infantry regiments and artillery battalions across the almost impenetrable mountains and jungles of Papua and the reaches of the sea. transported field hospitals and other base installations to the front, supplied the troops and evacuated casualties." In addition, he declared. the bomber units provided all-around reconnaissance, "protected the coast from hostile naval intervention" and blasted the way for the infantry as it drove forward.

In this experience, General Mac-Arthur concluded, "a new form of campaign" was tested which points the way to the ultimate defeat of the enemy in the Pacific-a defeat to be accomplished by the "application of offensive power in swift. massive strokes rather than the dilatory and costly island-to-island advance that some have assumed to be necessary." Although General MacArthur has not been numbered among those old-line officers who have resisted the advance of air power his military background has been with the infantry and the engineers, and this lends special emphasis to the estimate he has given of the proper employment of the air arm. It should be noted, for instance, that he credits the bombers with having protected the coast from hostile naval intervention. Traditionally, this has been the function, first of the Navy, and then of the ground forces. Only recently, perhaps since Midway, has it been generally recognized that air power can do this job more efficiently and at far less cost. Significant also is the fact that the Navy is mentioned but once in the General's statement, and then it is cast in a supporting role. This should not be construed necessarily as an indorsement of the theme that the Navy has been supplanted by air power, but it does mean-clearly and unmistakably-that naval power can exert little influence in the type of warfare that we must wage in many sections of the Pacific. If this be correct, however, it should be heartening to the people of this country, for it is in the air, and in the all-around employment of air power, that we can most surely outdistance the enemy. By modern standards General MacArthur had but a negligible air force at his command, for we are just hitting our stride in the production of airplanes and the trained crews to man them. In the near future we will have many more, and better, planes in the Southwest Pacific. If this new instrument, properly employed, can open the way to victory, that is cause for rejoicing on our part. Labor Board Report

> Due to increased membership of organized labor, the division within the labor movement which encourages rivalry, and the wartime relinquishment by labor of the right to strike, the board had a record docket during the year, nearly 11,000 cases being filed. Representation cases were in the majority, in the proportion of about six to five, and while this means that there was an appreciable number of unfair practice charges-approximately 5,000the point stressed by the board is that this is an increase of only 3 per cent over the previous year, while representation cases were up 39 per cent. The board adds that in many instances it was possible to effect settlement by informal procedure. because the parties were able to get together.

> Several reasons present themselves for the changed situation. Largely responsible, no doubt, are the war and the fact that the law no longer is regarded as an innovation stoutly to be resisted, but has become an accepted factor in industry. A further explanation probably lies within the board itself, where new administrators have sought to be less the prosecutor and more the judge. This was bound to be reflected in better labor relations.

Alexander Woollcott

Alexander Woollcott probably was not a great original thinker. He will be remembered as a commentator rather than as the sponsor of new conceptions. No idea hitherto unexpressed came from his fertile brain. He was a critic in the true meaning of that word-a person of keen enthusiasms and searing prejudices. Nothing under the sun escaped his interest. He had fixed opinions about everything. Thus it happened that he never completely won-nor losthis audience. Invariably, a substantial minority disagreed with him and he, with more or less energetic violence, with it.

People consequently accused him of being professionally perverse. They blamed him for illiberality and intolerance, and he took up their challenge with a zeal which generally was effective beyond even his own expectation. His vanity was a natural result of the ease with which he achieved his triumphs over less able controversialists. None of those with whom he battled ever succeeded gloried in such conflicts. He got enormous pleasure out of throwing verbal bombshells. Yet he also found authentic joy in sentimental exercises of the more generous sort. He was the most graceful payer of compliments as well as the bitterest dispenser of sarcastic punishment. The things he cared about were objects of tearful emotion to him. He could -and not infrequently did-weep over a tale of his own telling. None of his contemporaries surpassed him in the art of putting language together. He was a master stylist-not without fault but certainly without willful carelessness. His mannerisms both in writing and in speaking were those of a deliberate virtuoso. He chose to be what he was. His genius to that degree and extent was self-created. The power which he developed in his journalistic labors and as the radio Town Crier could not be regarded as an accident. He generated it out of his own determined soul. Lacking such driving force, he might have been only a neighborhood character in the obscurity of his birthplace. the otherwise undistinguished village of Phalanx, New Jersey. And the world would have been the loser had he not possessed the peculiar endowment which accounts for his success. Mr. Woollcott justified his existence not exclusively by making readers and listeners laugh and cry. Over the years he espoused a long list of good causes which truly needed the help which he could give. The most constant and the best of the loyalties which he delighted to serve was that of civilization itself. He has died with his face toward the enemy, and his epitaph should include the phrase which he adopted as the title of one of his earlier books, "The Command Is Forward!"

Fish Farmer

Secretary Ickes now suggests that farmers add a new crop to their listfish. Briefly, the idea is to flood lowlands of poor agricultural value, plant fish, and reap them at intervals as they ripen. The food value per acre, he says, may compare favorably with that of more common crops, while the cost is less and the harvesting easier and more fun.

The farmer might at first feel rather nonplussed at not being able to complain, as he sometimes does. about heavy rains that drowned out his crop, but there would be other compensations. The Governors of many States are constantly urging citizens to get out and help farmers at harvest time, but no urging will be needed if the crop has fins and scales and may be reaped with a rod and reel instead of a pitchfork. Usually at this time, just when cash is low, the farmer must make a big outlay for harvest hands; if he is farming fish, he should be able to make his help pay him, or at least make some basis for part of the catch. Finds Urgent Need For Supreme Council

Military Critic Argues For Political Co-ordination And Single High Command

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

It is most earnestly to be hoped that the rumors emanating from London and Washington forecasting the early establishment of a supreme war council for the United Nations may prove to be

The need for a central direction for the war effort of the great alliance has been long acknowledged by many leaders of many of the United Nations. If it now comes to pass, it may well be that it is the earliest moment at which agreement could be reached as to its constitution and powers. But it is more likely that the pressure of difficulties has compelled the seeking of a solution satisfactory not only for the present troubles, but for dealing with future crises of the same nature.

In the last World War, the formation of a supreme council was the immediate result of military difficulties. It came in November, 1917, after every other means of securing inter-Allied co-operation had proven a dismal failure.

Words then written by Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, in a memorandum to Prime Minister Lloyd George, might almost have been written vesterday of this war: "We have tried many expedients, but always with most disappointing, sometimes even with disastrous results. We have had frequent meetings of ministers, constant conversations between chiefs of staff, deliberations of commanders in chief, mass meetings of all these high officials in various capitals.... And all these endeavors have failed to attain any real concerted co-ordinated effort in diplomacy, in strategy, in fighting or in the production of war material.'

Sir Henry was then thinking principally of military troubles. Russia had been knocked out of the war. Italy had suffered the crushing disaster of Caporetto. The best blood of Britain was being poured out in the mud of Passchendaele without appreciable result, save to hold fast the German armies while France recovered from the effect of the widespread mutinies of the summer of '17.

It was a black hour for the Allies, and the formation of the supreme war council, composed of the prime ministers of Britain, France and Italy, with one other minister from each country, was the result. Military advisers were appointed by each country, and also by the United States a little later on. It was under the auspices of this superior political direction of the war that it was later found possible to appoint an interallied commander in chief, Marshal in defeating him. Mr. Woollcott Foch, at the final moment of military crisis-and the result was salvation and

It is not too much to say, that without first having attained political co-ordination it would never have been possible for Marshal Foch to obtain the military results which he in fact achieved. No commander and no general staff can serve two or three or more political

But our troubles today are more political than military. Just as military difficulty brought about unity of direction for the last war, so political difficulty may bring about unity of direction in this one. The United Nations have shown that they are capable of planning and carrying through a great joint military effort with their present machinery of co-operation; but they have not shown that they can solve the political difficulties whose complexities are now besetting their military leaders in North Africa, and which are likewise looming up from many other directions.

One needs only to mention the withdrawal of the Chinese military mission. the question of the immediate future of Finland, the confused and critical situation of Yugoslavia and the uncertain status of Spain and Spanish Morocco as a handful of examples; there are many others.

Moreover, the splendidly co-ordinated offensive which has been unloosed on the Germans does not necessarily mean that the machinery exists for carrying it through, for exploiting success, for dealing with every future military contingency that may arise. It is, for example, quite clear that the anti-submarine campaign is badly in need of a more closely unified command and more effective study and control; and success in this is fundamental to all our hopes beyond the seas. In the long run, the conference and consultation method will not bring results in war. There must, somewhere, be a central organ of political control and direction for the war. The physical presence of the chiefs of state of the various major United Nations may not, will not, always be possible but the absent ones can be represented by capable and trusted deputies.

One enormous advantage will be the possibilities for the exchange, study and correlation of information at a single center; this alone would probably justify a demand for the creation of a supreme war council. It has been objected by some military men that you cannot run a war by a committee, that military decisions cannot be taken by "a show of hands." Of course not, but you cannot run a war better by long range radio and wire conversations between presidents and prime ministers and chiefs of staff either; to bring them together. and to provide them with unified political, military and economic staffs, is at least better than the existing meth-

It is difficult enough in any case to conduct a war of coalition; there is no ideal solution for all difficulties; some of them can never be wholly solved. They can only be reduced as much as is humanly possible. Naturally in the end the military decisions will be made by the great powers, whose forces must

"Very truly, L. T. G."

Houseflies are not fools, by any means, They protect themselves in various ways, the chief one being to find some place which is relatively warmer than the open air.

Crevices in rabbit burrows will serve. Dens of field mice, of chipmunks and the winter nests, so-called, of the gray squirrel, afford them shelter.

It has been established that a housefly can live in winter about four months This, in many cases, would carry it through the coldest months, even in such a climate as this.

Instructions B, C, D, etc., can be worked thereafter with comparative ease, but nothing at all can be done if the foot cannot be wedged in the door. A heartlessly latched screen stops all argument.

Houseflies come in the year around whenever a door is left open too long. All those who do the family wash at home know about this.

Even if the door is open no more than to allow the clothes from the line to be carried in, soon half a dozen flies will be winging around.

Some of these are blow-flies, as they are called, the large variety with the big buzz.

This species seems much more stupid than the housefly.

The housefly is one of the most clever of all living things.

Any one who has tried to "swat" a fly knows about this. Miss it once and you have a time of it ever hitting it. The creature seems to be able, thereafter, to gauge every blow aimed at it, and to get out of the way just in the famous nick of time.

Its complete disappearance acts would do credit to the late Houdini. The fly is here one second, and then it is gone. No matter how still you remain, with "swatter" poised in the air, the insect will not come into sight. You give up the hunt and begin to read. All at once there is the fly, trying to find food on your knee, as if nothing had ever happened. This ability of the fly to hide itself is one of its greatest assets, both outdoors and indoors. In the open it has many enemies, and not much food; inside, it meets that greatest killer of them all, man, but finds food.

Time Ripe For Major Decisions

Better Distribution Of Weapons and Materials Likely

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Major decisions are in the making. Press dispatches from London, passed by the censor there, speak of global strategy being worked out whereby Britain, Russia, America and China would participate in a supreme war council.

While this probably means the establishment of a council analogous to that which sat in Paris in the last war, it does not mean any change in the allocation of areas of responsibility nor any important changes in the commanders who are in supreme charge in those

What apparently is on the way, and it concerns war strategy much less than it does logistics and the allocation of lease-lend production, is a better distribution of weapons and materials. For the war is now approaching a crucial stage where the United Nations can be depended upon to assume the offensive and this involves an even more thoughtful sharing of available weapons and manpower than has been necessary in the past.

Long-Range Planning.

From an operating standpoint there are fewer difficulties. After all, the principle of unified command on the spot has been accepted both inside our own armed services and as between governments. National prides still play a part, but once a decision is reached it may be assumed that the execution of the plans laid will not be slowed down because of national rivalries. The stakes are too vital.

What is paramount, on the other hand, is a decision on the per cent of American production to go to help China and Australia carry on against Japan and how much shall be allocated for a southern front on the continent of Europe and perhaps one or even two northern fronts sometime in the year 1943. Military plans, though often changed by unforseen events are, in the main, long-range affairs. That is, they usually cover from six to nine months of arrangements toward objectives. The principles of the United Nations' strategy are open to discussion in an academic sense, for students of military affairs on both the Axis and our own side can recognize the obvious. At the moment it is plain that, disregarding morale factors that might suddenly bring an internal collapse inside Germany, the road to a complete military victory is long and hard. Germany cannot win, but she can delay our winning by from one to three years. Europe Not Yet Invaded.

Though the Russian forces may sway back and forth across vast areas, the Nazis still hold huge chunks of Russian territory. Though the United Nations have tremendous supply depots and big armies in Britain and in North Africa, the fact is not a single part of Europe proper has been invaded. From Berlin's viewpoint, this can be looked upon as meaning that the St. Elizabeth's Cost to D. C. looked upon as meaning that the front except Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves Russia involves crossfront except Russia involves Russia involv vet even begun, and invasion on any the submarine menace.

One fact that stands out, and which may be disappointing to the extremists who think the war can be won by air power alone, is that despite the tens of thousands of tons of explosives dropped by air raids 4.800 patients in St. Elizabeth's Hos- on recommendation of the Commison Germany and occupied areas, not pital is proposed in the 1944 budget sion on Mental Health. a single foot of soil has been obtained by that method. If American naval experts, on the other hand, have their way in the councils of the over-all planners the defeat of Japan will come simultaneously if not ahead of the defeat in Europe. At least there is a growing opinion that the Pacific war must be pushed hard simultaneously and not secondarily. Whatever method is used to bring about an exchange of views by telegraph or by conference of officials, the time for major decisions is here.

The brilliant exploits of Gen.

Montgomery's 8th British Army must not deflect our attention from the over-all military picture in North Africa. Gen. Montgomery's campaign will remain forever among the great military movements of history. The British 8th Army has advanced more than 1,000 miles as the bird flies, over 1,300 miles by road, or farther than the distance from Berlin to Moscow, Kansas City to New York or Berlin to Ankara. Its advance has liquidated Mussolini's new Roman empire.

But in the last part of this movement the Rommel army has not been retreating under pressure, but racing for a goal, and it has reached that goal with losses, but intact. It is establishing itself in Tunisia, behind the Mareth Line, which is the old French defense line against Italian Libya. It is a very strong position and one easily supplied from Sicily via Tunis, Bizerte and other Tunisian ports.

It will take some time for Gen. Montgomery to prepare an assault on this line. And, meanwhile, Rommel is making contact with the army of Gen. Von Arnim in Tunisia, which is being rapidly reinforced, not from the strategic reserves of Hitler, but from German troops that are, and have been for a long time, in Italy anyhow

No Easy Wax Out. Had it been possible for the American Army, either to smash the Von Arnim army in Tunisia, or to reach the Mareth Line first and thus to trap Rommel's retreat, the Montgomery move would have been a complete victory. But this has not been achieved. On a large scale the Germans are making a move to encircle us, instead of vice versa, by holding Tunisia, using Spain and Spanish Morocco as the opposite cornerstone, and cutting off our supplies by sub-

The American public must be prepared for the realization that there is no easy way of getting out of this situation. One of the decisive battles of this war has got to be fought. And the fact that we were numerically superior at the outset, and have nevertheless failed to prevent the German coup, must be acknowl-

Gen. Montgomery's troops have gone through the trial by fire of two years' bitter warfare. They suffered defeats before becoming a match for Rommel's army, which has had still longer experience. Our troops are green. They are universally admitted to be as tough fighting material as exists in the world. But neither training, nor morale, nor courage is a substitute for military experience. We have seen that everywhere, in Russia, for instance. The art and science of war has to be learned, eventually, in war.

In Charge for Patients From Here

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. Mr. Hull's recent remark that he wished the Americans would keep their minds fixed for 2 minutes a day on the military situation Nevertheless, political speculations and political moves have a direct bearing on the military situation and must be judged from that viewpoint.

Appeasement for Franco. There is some reason to believe that our political moves in North Africa are being made with a view to appeasing Gen. Franco. It is true that Franco has considerable forces in Spanish Morocco and that their presence is demobilizing an American group on that frontier, neutralizing nearly half our forces in North Africa.

But that is not the whole story The political setup created partly to reassure Franco is hampering the rear of our fighting front in Tunisia. There is reason to believe that among the old Vichyites with whom we are playing are informers of the Germans, and the lack of a clear situation creates uneasiness among troops and popula-

Also one wonders whether the Spanish menace is not vastly overrated. The Spanish Moroccan Army has no supply lines, and an army without supply lines is a bluff. The latent threat that the Germans might invade Spain has been dissipated by events in Russia. Hitler's situation there is such that he must keep all his reservesand I doubt whether they are sufficient-to stem the Russian flood and prepare for a new offensive in the spring. He cannot risk any of them on a new adventure in so remote a field of operations.

Militarily spoken, Spain is a vacuum. That it is a menace to our flank is a bluff. On the contrary, our armies would be a mena e to Spain-that is to say to the open flank of the German armies in Western Europe-if we were not politically determined to respect Spanish neutrality.

Under these conditions it is a question whether it is even shrewd to make any concessions to Franco or allow ourselves to be terrorized by him. It is a question whether a strong and clear political policy would not terrorize Franco, instead of vice versa. A policy of compromise and wavering always gives an impression of weakness and creates uncertainties which carr over into the field of morale. Appeasing ghosts never got any one anywhere. There are three ways by which we can smash the Axis in North Africa. By successful assault, together with the British, on the Tunisian fortress: by driving Spain politically out of the picture, or by solving the submarine problem-which is necessary, anyhow, for our continued campaign in the West. Probably we will attempt all three, but we must achieve one. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

GOP Gains Attributed to New Deal's Tolerance of Professional Labor Leaders

By FRANK R. KENT.

Noting new symptoms (such as tween the labor leaders and the the recent Missouri by-election) of White House nor diminishes the the popular turning against the New Deal, discerning politicians on both sides are fairly unanimous in ascribing as the chief cause the tolerance and support which the White House has given-and still givesto the professional labor leaders, particularly of the CIO, who are using the war to force higher wages and acquire greater power through the closed shop and in other ways. So clearly has it been shown that the political link between the President and these leaders has made

Situations in Chungking and Ankara May Prove Trouble Spots for Allies

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The situation in China and Turkey is now engaging the attention of the Allies as much as their military operations on the various fronts.

It is no longer a secret that the Chinese government at Chungking is intensely dissatisfied with the prosecution of the war in the Pacific and Indian Oceans. Gen. Cihang Kai-shek and his representatives in Washington and London have been quite frank and outspoken about the whole situation.

He maintains that it is of vital importance for the Allies to make a determined effort to open up at least the upper portion of the Burma road in order to get supplies into China and enable the Chinese forces to fight the Japanese with modern equipment.

The quantity of modern war material received by the Chinese by way of India is totally insufficient. The road which the Allies are building from India into China will not be completed for some time and the Chinese cannot wait that long. They point out that the Japanese are pushing forward whenever they wish to advance. Burma Offensive Urged.

the extension of the 40-hour week The so-called Chinese victories of a few weeks ago were nothing but the reoccupation of certain localities from which the Japanese had withdrawn. The Chinese troops are most eager to fight, but they cannot do much with the skimpy war material at their disposal.

> Generalissimo Chiang has been pressing the Allies to open an offensive in Burma. The Chinese soldiers are willing to cooperate and sacrifice themselves provided Gen. Archibald Wavell, the Allied commander, decides to start a large-scale offensive. They are convinced there are sufficient troops at Gen. Wavell's disposal to start a move against the Japanese and he could succeed in dislodging them from important positions as soon as he is given the "go" signal.

The generalissimo is convinced that the British need not fear any major trouble from within India should a large-scale move be started against the Japs. An Allied victory in Burma would do much to pacify the Indians.

Hence, earnest representations have been made on the part of the Chinese commander in chief, who, while devoted to the Allied cause, has recently been compelled to warn Washington and London that there is a grave danger of his losing face with his own men unless something is done soon to push the Japanese back from Burma and open up the channels of communication between the outside world and China.

Unless action comes it will be difficult for Generalissimo Chiang to maintain his position in China and the results could have incalculable consequences not only for the Chinese government, but for the Allies themselves.

U. S. Realizes China's Position. It is easy to realize what would happen in Asia should the Chinese be knocked out of the war and the Japanese be free to use some 750,000 men and a substantial air force on another front, such as Siberia.

Generalissimo Chiang's requests are not falling on deaf ears in Washington. America is more keenly aware of the importance of China as an ally than any other member of the United Nations. But, of course, the decisions of this country must be co-ordinated with the views of the other Allies, and until Russia and Great Britain are convinced that a major offensive from India is essential America can not act alone.

The situation in regard to Turkey is equally disturbing. The policy of the Ankara government has been one of friendly neutrality. Since the United States has entered the war the Turkish government has been seriously considering the possibility of cooperating actively with the Allies. Turkish Situation Advantageous.

The Turkish Army is an excellent one. Turkey's strategic position as an Asiatic-European country is of great importance to both belligerent groups. But the Turks lack modern equipment. They also would like to deal directly with the United States, in whose honesty of purpose they have implicit faith, while they are suspicious of all the other great powers.

Russia, Britain, Germany and Italy at one time or another have attempted to obtain for themselves slices of what used to be the Turkish empire. For more than a century these nations have endeavored to obtain a dominating position in the coun-

In recent weeks, Britain, because it has an important force in the Middle East, has insisted that most transactions between the Turkish government and the United Nations be cleared through London and Cairo, the headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, the commander in chief of the Allied forces in that Lease-lend goods are being sent to Turkey directly by the United States. It appears that London would now like to supply the Turks from its own stock of lease-lend materials and all such deals should be negotiated directly between London and Ankara without American interference.

The Washington Government is interested principally in defeating its memies. Whether any of our associates receive war materials directly from us or through some other of our Allies is immaterial. But the suspicious Turks don't like the method of business. They would rather be indebted to the United States than any of the other Allies, The Turks look on the request of the British as an indication that Britain may want to peg some future claims and they have shown their discontent with the projected arrangement in no uncertain terms. It appears that they would prefer to be poorly armed than accept war materials from Britain alone.

Turkey is now neutral, but she could become an important item of strategy in the Allied war scheme if the Allies chose the Near East for an offensive against the Axis.

McLemore— Says You Can't Beat Those Wily Dutch

By HENRY McLEMORE.

You can't beat the Dutch! Certainly you can't beat them when it comes to thinking up novel ways to hinder and harass the enemy. From Holland via Switzerland came a report not so long ago that Dutch industrial workers have been urged by their underground leaders to be sure to blow their noses several times a day.

It seems that some Nazi-hater with a flair for statistics had figured out that if thousands of Dutch workers took a minute or two off each day to blow their noses whether they wanted to or not, that it would cost the Nazis countless thousands of man-working hours each year and seriously hamper the production of war material.

This set me to thinking, and out of my thinking came the conviction that we, right here in the United States, are wasting untold hours which could be devoted to our own war effort by yielding to such things as the sneeze, the cough, the yawn and the clearing of the throat.

Take the sneeze, for example. A minimum of 14 battleships could be built in the time Americans waste sneezing each year. As patriots, we either should learn to sneeze in a hurry or to stifle the sneeze altogether. The average American takes a full minute to complete a sneeze. I know this to be true because I have clocked a dozen or more representative sneezes with a stop

The sneeze, according to my research, is divided into four parts. First, there is the warning that the sneeze is coming on. This lasts about 10 seconds and you can tell when a man has heard the signal by the fact that he straightens himself up and gets a slightly wild look in his eyes.

Second, is the face wrinkling period. The sneezer-to-be shuts his eyes, sniffs in short little sniffs, opens his mouth, puts his hand to his face, and finally gasps. The average time for this phase is 22 seconds.

The third part is the sneeze itself, and my study has convinced me that the 20 seconds required for this is not entirely necessary, and takes such a long time only because Americans like the sensation of sneezing and draw it out as long as possible. I am quite sure (and Dr. Paftry B. Plumber of Weatherstripping, Ohio, one of the world's recognized authorities on sneezing and skeet shooting, is in complete agreement with me) that the sneeze could be completed in half the time

The fourth, and final, phase of the sneeze-the recovery-requires 8 seconds on the average. It could easily be cut to 2 seconds if sneezers would only quit trying to look as if they hadn't sneezed right after they had sneezed. Four seconds, at least, are wasted on this phoney

Now we will consider the possibilities of stifling the sneeze altogether. There are numerous ways and means of doing this, the most common, perhaps, being the business of pressing the upper lip with the fingers. Sometimes this works and sometimes it doesn't. My research, some of which was conducted on myself, has convinced me that a man is playing with dynamite when he tries to smother a sneeze. True, 9 out of 100 can be smothered, but that one that isn't smothered, the one that stands up for its rights as a sneeze, is a dangerous fellow.

I think I can say without fear of contradiction that a "trapped" sneeze is one of the most vicious things in the world. By "trapped" sneeze I mean one that, foiled in its efforts to escape, runs berserk in the nose, head, eyes, ears and throat of its owner. Personally, I would rather have a wolf loose in my head than a frustrated sneeze. It beats at your eardrums, claws at your nose, slides into your throat with its spikes up and finally explodes somewhere in your head with a roar like ice breaking in an Arctic sea.

I would advise that we Americans hurry our sneezes rather than try to stifle them.

Now for the cough and yawn. As Dr. Paltry B. Plumb . . . K-k-k-er

Who am I to talk about hurrying the sneeze? I should be ashamed of myself. That one took me 1 minute and 12 seconds. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Anthracite Industry says "THANKS!"

HE anthracite strike is over.

All through it, eighty per cent of the regular anthracite production was mined and moved on schedule to keep our customers warm.

And the strike had another very heartening side. The way in which Americans met it was a good picture of democratic co-operation.

Our deep and sincere thanks go to everybody concerned.

To the public, for level-headed conduct during the emergency. There was no panic, no hoarding. Most folks ordered coal only as they needed it, in moderate amounts. To the press and radio, which contributed to the general calm by reporting events quickly and clearly.

To dealers, who delivered available anthracite as fairly as possible, as fast as possible, so that no home was cold as far as we know.

To the 71,000 miners who did not strike, but dug hard and deep to help meet the situation.

Finally, to the 17,000 miners who have gone back to work.

That kind of teamwork got results - and it will get results in the year to come.

The coal cars are really rolling now. Production is climbing fast. We expect to fill the tremendous quota of 65 million tons that Secretary Ickes has set for 1943. We expect to have enough anthracite for our millions of old customers and the thousands of new ones who have converted from other fuels.

There's one more way in which you can do your patriotic part. Please don't scramble for coal now, if you have enough on hand to meet your immediate needs - so that those who need coal most can be served first.

That's the American spirit in action - the spirit that unites neighbors — and nations!

Bowlegs vs. Knock-Knees

NEW YORK (N.A.N.A.) .- In the midst of the turmoil of nations and the crash of planets the argument has arisen as to which is the more proficient type in competitive sportthe fellow who is knock-kneed or the one who is bowlegged?

This query comes in from one of the Army camps, where it seems that quite a debate followed without arrival at any proper exit.

As a starter, I put the matter up to P. Hal Sims, golfer, bridge player and a close follower of all sports where he might pick up a worthy wager-and on the right side. Mr. Sims promptly went for the knockkneed entry.

"I know in golf," he said, "that it provides a more comfortable stance, and it also allows you to pivot much more freely.

To carry out his point Mr. Sims picked up a random brassie and proved that a bowlegged golfer had to turn with great effort, whereas the knock-kneed party had no trouble at all in this respect.

"With the two knees bearing in, Mr. Sims continued, "you are balanced at the start. You are all set." To prove his point further, artisti-cally and financially, Mr. Sims then played the first nine holes at Garden City in 36, one under par

I courts should say the pigeon-toed stance would come more naturally from a knock-kneed player than from one on the bowlegged side.

Stance is largely a matter of balance and leverage. There is certainly more power to be gotten from the inside of the feet than from the outside. You can get inside grip, whereas there is no outside grip.

This may not clear up the camp argument completely, but it is something for a starter. There is no handicap in being either knockkneed or bowlegged, provided one understands the law of balance and

Quick Win Over Wills By Davis Not Likely, Manager Feels

Capital Welter's Boxing Expected to Restrain Slam-Bang Bummy

You can write your own ticket that Bummy Davis will put the chill on Frankie Wills tonight at Turner's Arena, but Lew Burston, who handles the Brooklyn strong boy's business affairs thinks Davis has a tougher assignment than most fans realize.

"Wills is a good boxer," he said today. "And if he decides to make championship playoffs slated to Davis look bad he may do it. If he'd start September 8. stand up and fight I think Bummy would take him out of there with one punch-Al will flatten anybody he tags—but it's the old story of hitting 'em first. I think we'll win, of course, but I'm not predicting a quick or easy victory. This Wills should be plenty tough."

Davis, despite his unpopularity in hovered on the fringe of the bigtime for the last several years. A couple of times he has been in the select circle and no sooner does he make the grade than he bounces out again. This time he's playing for keeps and dead serious about making good. He rates as one of the best welters in the game today, although put in the "honorable mention" group in the National Boxing

Association's last rankings. Wills strictly is a local boy with some native ability, but not much love for boxing. If he ever gets mad at the other party he might be a tornado in action, but thus far Frankie has displayed an even temperament, too even to do him any good in the cold circles of the

Hospitals See Order Allowing Pay Raises As Only Partial Relief

Plan Fails to Provide For Subsidies to Meet Personnel Shortage

Superintendents of non-profit hospitals in the District looked today on the War Labor Board order authorizing them to grant wage wherever necessary to safeguard the health of communities as only partial relief in the serious problem of personnel shortage. The board's ruling opens the legal path for them to offer more money, they explained, but the authorization was accompanied by no subsidy or other source by which hospitals might pay higher salaries. There has been a general exodus of hospital personnel, especially men, since more attractive wages were offered in industries and war plants. Under the new ruling, hospitals still may not be able to offer more than they have in the past, thus possibly increasing to an extent the number of their

Vast Turnover Cited.

As one superintendent explained. hospital help can be obtained if enough attention is given to the effort, but the great trouble after enlisting new employes is keeping them. The turnover of graduate nurses in the District last year, for instance, was reported to have been better than 100 per cent.

The War Labor Board, making its first grant of such blanket authority since its initial exemption of employers of eight persons or less. said it was acting at the urgent request of the hospitals of the Nation to forestall an emergency. In California, 60 of them appealed to the regional office for the action.

Salary or wage adjustments now may be made by non-profit hospitals without prior approval of the board. They still are subject, however, to final review by the WLB. which asked for monthly reports. Should it be found that they have been raised above prevailing wage or salary levels for similar services in a given area, it was warned, the in a given area, it was warned, the modification may be reversed, but it would not be retroactive.

Gallinger Is Better Off. In the District, the ruling will apply to all hospitals except Gallinger and Glenn Dale and possibly doctors. The first two are operated by the District and pay their help according to salary scales set up under the Regional Classification

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 .- An advance in rye futures which sent deferred contracts into new seasonal high territory imparted strength to all grain pits today.

Although gains in other grains were confined to fractions, rye moved up more than a cent on buying by houses with Eastern connections and covering by traders who had previously sold short. There was considerable profit taking on the upturn, but it failed to cause any pronounced reaction.

Wheat and oats started lower, but soon turned higher in response to the rye strength. Corn tended to lag behind other cereals and interest in that market was light.

Wheat closed 1/4-5/8 higher, May, 1.40-1.401/8; corn was unchanged to 14 higher, May, 981/4-3/8; oats addvanced 3/4-1/2, rye gained 2-21/4, May, 831/8-83, and soybeans were inactive.

Bills for Mutualization Of Prudential Ready

TRENTON, N. J. Jan. 25.— Assemblyman C. Milford Orben said today that he would introduce four bills in the Legislature today designed to complete the mutualization of the Prudential Insurance

zation of the Prudential Insurance
Co. of America, whose home office is in Newark, N. J.

One of the bills provides for participation of the company's 20,000,000 policyholders in elections of members of the Board of Directors.
Franklin D'Olier, president, said that the company had recently acquired all but 32 shares of outstanding stock. These are qualifying shares, of which the 16 directors

The regime would be temporary, it was said, and all important French groups would be asked to co-operate, each administering the local territory it controls.

The effect, it was hoped, would be to postpone the dispute over French policy until the military problem of North Africa had been solved by ejection of the remaining Axis forces.

Was still time to avert war. We thought we could escape war if it came. We never have," he said.

As in the past week or so, the advance was far from unanimous. Minor irregularity prevailed at the start but prices improved as the session progressed. While dealings were relatively slow throughout, and declines were plentiful, gains were well distributed near the close. Transfers were around 700,000

Reports an important announcement was imminent regarding Allied war strategy caused some potential buyers to stand aside although inspiring light bidding by others. Strongest issues, it was noted, were among the dividend payers. The question of a further technical correction of the lengthy recovery served to restrain some customers.

Registering 1942-43 peaks were General Motors, United States Rubber common and preferred, J. I. Case, Oliver Farm, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Allied Chemical, Zenith Radio and Pepsi-Cola. Upward tilters included United States Steel, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Telephone, DuPont, Sears

Roebuck and Eastman Kodak. Backward at intervals were New York Central, Pensylvania, Southern Pacific, Texas Co., Kenecott, General Electric, Dow Chemical and Goodyear.

With this superb volume resting in your hands, expect to discover unsuspected pleasures - a Shakespeare that your school-day type of reading may never have revealed!

On these vivid "first-night openings" you will chuckle at Falstaff, be fascinated by Cleopatra, shudder at Macbeth, thrill with Romeo, be amazed at Iago's treachery. Here, in Shakespeare, is the one mortal who understood human nature as no other has, before or since. Look in his mirror and read-yourself!

Why The CLASSICS CLUB Offers You a Free Copy of This Book

TILL you accept this lovely 1312-page volume now, from The CLASSICS CLUB? It is offered to you free, just to try membership in the Club and enjoy its many advantages. You are invited to join now ... and to receive on approval beautifully bound editions of the world's finest masterpieces chosen by the four distinguished judges pictured at the right.

These four celebrated literary experts need no introduction to you. Each is famous in the literary world. Each bears an unexcelled reputation in a particular branch of letters to which a lifetime has been devoted.

At the request of The CLASSICS CLUB, these four authorities formed themselves into a Selection Committee to choose the masterpieces which offer the greatest enjoyment and value to the "pressed-for-time" men and women of today. They agreed that every book selected must receive the unanimous vote of all four members of the Committee. And the newly-formed CLASSICS CLUB now presents these great books to you.

Why Are Great Books Called "Classics"?

A classic is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination It rivals the most thrilling modern novel. It brings you a new, fresh viewpoint and a broadness of understanding so necessary in times like these.

The truly great books would not have lived unless they were read, and would not have been read unless they were interesting and easy to understand. Those very qualities characterize the Committee's selections: Readability, interest, simplicity.

For instance, the first volume you receive is a work practically synonomous with the word "classic"-Five Great Dialogues of PLATO. From its pages speaks out one of the most provocative thinkers of all time-whose challenging ideas apply as truly today as an inspired article in one of our current magazines.

Examine some of these ideas of Plato's. How would you like to be an inhabitant of his ideal state, "The Republic," where "kings were philosophers, and philosophers kings"-where every man was allowed to do the work for which he was best fitted, and where politicians, soldiers, workmen, artists were trained for such careers from early youth-where women were established on an equal basis with men, and regulated marriage and breeding were the rule?

This Classics Club Edition of Plato contains the famous Jowett translation, edited and annotated by a leading authority, to make Plato's prophetic words even more surpassingly alive for the modern reader than ever before. A striking frontispiece and a series of Greek medallions taken from authentic Greek vase designs gives added spirit to this immortal book.

Only Book Club of Its Kind

The CLASSICS CLUB is different from all other book clubs in these four ways: 1. Its sole purpose is to distribute to its own members the world's great classics at low prices. 2. Its basic price is lower than that of any other book club. 3. Its Charter Members are not obligated to take any specific number of books. 4. All its volumes are bound in attractive, uniform CLASSICS CLUB bindings.

A Trial Membership Invitation to You

You are invited to accept a Trial Membership in The CLASSICS CLUB. You will have the privilege of receiving, each month, one of the world's greatest books. With your first book, FIVE GREAT DIALOGUES OF PLATO, will be sent an advance notice about future selections. You may reject any book you do not wish.

As a Trial Member, you need not take any specific number of books-only the ones you want. No money need be paid in advance, no membership fees. You may cancel membership at

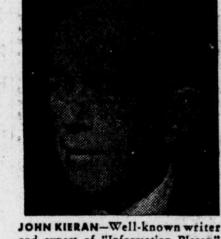

We suggest that you mail this Invitation Form to us at once. Paper, printing, binding costs are rising, and these low prices-as well as your FREE copy of Shakespeare's Complete Works-cannot be assured unless you respond promptly. THE CLASSICS CLUB, 330 W. 42nd St., New York City.

NOTE: The De Luxe Edition is luxuriously bound in fine buckram (the same material as used in $5.00 and $10.00 bindings); is richly stamped in genuine gold, which will retain its original lustre for years; and has tinted page tops. For books which you and your children will read and cherish for many years, the De Luxe Edition is most desirable.

Pool Proposed To Cut Use of Federal Autos

Byrd Unit Hears Agency Heads Outline Plan

By JOE RICHMAN.

A "decentralized pooling arrangement" for Federal cars would help abolish a current system permitting extravagance and the purchase of too many cars in proportion to the needs of Government agencies, in the opinion of some representatives of major Government regulatory agencies, it was learned today from a spokesman for the Byrd Committee on Non-Essential Federal Ex-

The "pooling arrangement," he said, would be similar to suggestions For Making Home of given the committee for pooling of Government tires to permit all bureaus to share with agencies which have large tire stock piles.

The OEM also reports an effective "decentralized pooling arrangement,"

The OEM, which services 20 ageneies and 36,000 employes in Wash-Ington, has 67 cars. Cars are available to those requiring them at all times, according to its report to the committee. The plan is such that it reduces mileage to an absolute minimum, the report states.

For each trip a form slip is provided the driver, which requires the names of the passenger, additional passengers, car number, dates, location, time, name of driver, destination, time dispatched and time returned, and number of minutes idle. Grand Jury Indicts Pair in Thefts From Furniture Warehouse

Former Employe Charged With Using Key to Gain Admittance

The District grand jury today indicted two men for the theft of several hundred dollars' worth of furniture and household goods, alleged to have been stolen October 3 and December 10 from Goldenberg's warehouse, 472 L street N.W. Some used in a local rooming house.

Two separate indictments, one for grand larceny, the other for house-Mrs. Roosevelt defended her use breaking and larceny, were returned of a Navy plane to fly to Newport against John S. McCauley, 36, and Horace Gray, 42. McCauley, former Goldenberg's employe, is said to have used some of the furnishings to outfit a two-story rooming house which he is alleged to have operated in the 1800 block of Ontario place

> The two men removed the furniture by truck during the night, according to investigators, storing part of it in a garage in the rear of a house in the 1800 block of Columbia road N.W.

McCauley was dismissed as a company employe on December 2, a store official revealed today. The second indictment charges him and Gray with returning to the warehouse December 10 and gaining access by all, the two men are charged with chusetts avenue N.W., 7:15 p.m. three separate thefts in the warehouse.

17 Exonerated In Pleasure Driving Cases

43 More Motorists Cited as Violators Over Week End

All 17 of the motorists called before Ration Board 30, Sixteenth and Lamont streets N.W., yesterday were found to have been on legitimate business at the time they were cited for alleged violation of the pleasure driving ban, Board Chairman L. Walton Sanderson reported today. A week-end check added 43 names to the local list of suspected pleasure drivers.

Meanwhile, the District Office of Price Administration revealed first results of its plans for increased preliminary investigation, announced last week, and spokesman predicted the new system soon will put an end to the needless summoning of obviously innocent motorists before local ration boards.

Notices Mailed to 26. Twenty-six pleasure driving suspects have been mailed notices by the District OPA under the new procedure, it was disclosed. Given three days in which to present explanations in person or by letter to the District OPA headquarters, seven of the 26 motorists already have established their innocence and will not have to face ration board hearings. One alleged pleasure driver who asked the District OPA to exonerate him was instructed to tell his story to his local ration board.

Explanations Accepted. Most of the 17 motorists summoned before Board 30 yesterday would not have been forced to appear had the new system been put into effect soon enough to govern their cases, a spokesman for the board said. All had acceptable explanations, he indicated, and the majority were obviously innocent. Explanations accepted by the board included that of a head-waiter in a downtown hotel, who stopped at a restaurant on his way home from work at an hour when his own hotel was no longer serving meals. A plasterer was exonerated when he said he had stopped near a downtown amusement hall to sign a contract for plastering the establish-

More Hearings Set Today. Results of the District OPA's new plan for increased preliminary investigation of cases were expected to have their effect on the ration board hearings for the first time today. Four boards were to hold hearings today as follows: Board 31, Georgia avenue and Upshur street N.W., 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.; Board 40, Seventh and D streets S.E., 4 to 7 p.m.; Board 42, use of a key which McCauley had Twentieth and Evarts streets N.E. not turned in when dismissed. Virginia Starts Liquor Rationing Registration

Coupon Books for Use At State ABC Stores To Cost 25 Cents

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Jan. 25 .- Virginia's ABC stores, closed since Thursday night, were open today and will remain open throughout the weekonly to register those eligible to purchase whisky under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's rationing

Only residents of Virginia 21 years of age or over who are not barred legally from purchasing alcoholic beverages may apply and qualify for liquor ration books, provided they can meet certain conditions. Since the sale of liquor is controlled under a State monopoly system, Virginia can bar purchases by non-residents

Must Prove Identity.

Eligible residents must furnish positive documentary evidence as to their identity. Acceptable proof of identity will include employment identification cards showing photograph, address and signature of applicant, selective service registration cards: automobile driving permits and Federal ration books which show name, address and signature of person applying. In addition, applicants may be asked to present his or her social security card as a further proof of identity,

Illiterate persons must be accompanied by a literate person, who first must be able to establish his own identity. After proof of identity is estabished, ABC clerks will complete the application form and issue the ration book, for which a fee of 25 cents will be charged to help defray cost of rationing. Schelude for Applicants. It has been stressed that each person desiring a liquor ration book must apply in person, and to facilitate the handling of applicants Virginians have been asked to apply in the following order: Today, those whose last names begin with the letters A through C; tomorrow, D-F;

Wednesday, G-J; Thursday, K-O; Friday, P-S, and Saturday, T-Z. The hours will be 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. for stores having three or fewer The amount of liquor to be purchased with each coupon will not be determined until the latter part registrants and the amount of liquor on hand will be known. Attempts to cheat the ration system, according to ABC officials will be met with swift and sure penalties, ranging from confiscation of ration books up to fines of $500 and 12-month jail sentences.

Orson Welles in Bed With Back Ailment

By the Associated Press. HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25 .- Orson Welles, actor, producer and general dramatic factotum, was confined to bed today on his physician's orders, suffering from a back ailment.

Jack Moss, Mr. Welles' manager, attributed the attack, which necessitated cancellation of the actor's radio program last night, to overwork. His condition is not serious, the physician said.

Dr. A. Guani Entertained By Officials

Uruguayan Visitor Extensively Feted; Other Social Notes

Dr. Alberto Guani, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Uruguay, who will take up his new duties as Vice President of his country shortly, has a crowded program today. He was entertained at luncheon by the Attorney General, Mr. Francis Biddle, at the Department of Justice. This afternoon he is visiting the Inter-American Defense Board and tonight he will be the honor guest at a dinner given by the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles at their beautiful estate at

A luncheon and dinner marked Dr. Guani's social calendar yesterday, with the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, the luncheon hosts, and the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr., giving the dinner at their residence for the distinguished visitor.

The prominent Uruguayan, who will leave the Capital Wednesday, has several other social engagements before his departure. After a visit in Canada and New York, Dr. Guani will return to Uruguay, where he will be inaugurated as Vice President, along with the new President, Senor Juan Jose Amezaga. The new Chief Executive succeeds Senor Alfredo Baldomir.

Newcomers in the diplomatic corps are welcome additions to an already interesting group in the Capital and are in a measure compensation to Washingtonians for the loss of their predecessors. STEINWAY Piamos RIMBALL PIANOS AND HAMMOND ORGANS AT CAMPBELL MUSIC CO. NA. 3659 721 11th St.

By the Way—

Since last February, when her husband was on duty with the American Embassy in Istanbul, Turkey, Mrs. Melvin Hall has had a job for herself. She is junior liaison officer in the Division of Soviet Supply in the Lend-Lease Administration. This. you know, is that part of the Lend-Lease Administration which is primarily concerned with getting the necessary supplies to the U.S.S.R. in order that they may continue their gallant fight against the Nazis. Requests for material by the Soviet Government Purchasing Commission pass through this division. Certain goods that do not come under a general license granted the Soviet Union must be cleared through the division of the WPB and then given final clearance by the Board of Economic Warfare. Periodic reports must be made to the President of the United States and to Congress. To carry on the work efficiently and successfully, facts must be ascertained about the material desired by the Russians-whether it is available and how it can be procured. Then ways and means of getting these supplies to the Soviet Union by the quickest and safest routes must be arranged. You can well understand that all this demands a large amount of technical procedure and that knowledge of the workings of different departments of Government as well as of the geography, conditions and industrial resources of the various countries is necessary for the workers in this division.

Mrs. Hall is ably qualified for her position. Despite her delicate blond and very feminine good looks she has a head on her shoulders and a background of education that includes much travel all over the world. She and her husband were married in Paris and lived in France for a good many years, which accounts for the excellent French both speak.

Back in the beginning of the war of 1914 Melvin Hall helped the French with their mobilization. In October of that year he joined the British Army and was one of the very few men ever to be commissioned a captain by the British without swearing allegiance to the Crown. He has received such outstanding decorations in the last war as the British D. S. O., Chevalier of the Order of the Crown of Belgium, the Belgian and French Croix de Guerre with palms. Now he is back from his recent post in Turkey and is a lieutenant colonel in the Army Air Corps, detailed to the combined chiefs of staff. From time to time he has made notes on some of his very interesting and exciting experiences which his friends all hope he'll put into book form, for they would make good reading. And Mrs. Hall might do a companion book, too, of an eventful life from the feminine angle. But, whatever they do, together or separately, will be interesting and extremely worth while.

GOP Women Give Reception For Congressmen

First Get-Together In District Since November Elections

Entertaining at the first large "get-together" of Republicans in the District since the November elections, the League of Republican Women gave as its only party of the year yesterday a reception in honor of Republican members of Congress and the chairman and assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee.

The annual Lincoln Day dinner, held jointly by the league and Republican members of Congress, has been canceled because of wartime conditions here, while other social functions have been dropped from the league's calendar in favor of war activities.

Transportation difficulties due to the ban on pleasure driving seemed to have little effect on the attendance at the reception yesterday.

EVERYONE is going to have to carry a lot of extra packages this year: tremendously higher Income Taxes, the 5% Victory Tax, War Bonds, and a rising cost of living. Most people are going to have to carry 2-ton loads on 11/2-ton trucks. And it is going to be an uphill haul over a rough road.

A business-like budget is therefore more important than ever. Only by working out a careful and orderly arrangement for your personal financial affairs . . . just as the experienced truck operator does in putting a capacity load of packages on his truck . . . will you be able to make the grade.

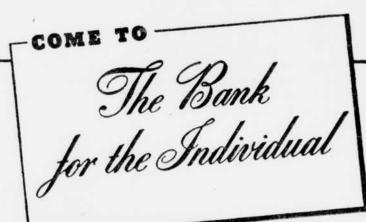

So figure up exactly how much it will take to pay what you owe now and the things that will be coming due in the next twelve months . . . taxes, bills, and insurance premiums. Then, for whatever help you need in setting up a business-like plan for meeting your obligations, come to "The Bank for the Individual." It may be that a bank loan, to be repaid over a convenient number of months, would help distribute the load to best advantage for you and level out the bumps in the road ahead.

For the past 18 years, The Morris Plan Bank of Washington has specialized in serving men and women as individuals. In most instances, no endorsers or collateral are required on loans to husbands and wives, home owners, executives, department heads, administrative employees, or anyone else of similar financial capacity and good credit standing in the community.

More than 50,000 Washington men and women already look to this bank for down-to-earth help and guidance in the wartime business of living . . . because this bank has their best interests at heart . . . and they know it. It means a lot to them in keeping their personal financial affairs in order. It can mean a lot to you in increasing your carrying-capacity as a citizen at a time when all America is all-out to win. Neat Little Tunisian Village Administration Seen Mapping Compromise Ripped by Stukas' Bombs On Farm Price Fight

Biddle Reported Writing Opinion on Adding Labor Costs to Ceilings

By the Associated Press. The Administration was reported above. preparing today for a strategic retreat at some point on the agricultural price front in an effort to were friendly. avoid a general assault by the congressional farm bloc on Federal controls over food costs.

Attorney General Biddle was understood to be drafting a legal opinion defining the extent to which increased farm labor costs should be taken into account in establishing price ceilings on agricultural prod-

The economic stabilization bill passed by Congress last October directed the administrative agencies to compute these increased wartime labor expenses to the farmer. Thus far little was said to have been done toward raising price ceilings accordingly James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, and Leon Henderson, former price administrator, relied on an interpretation placed in the Congressional Record by Prentiss M. Brown, then Senator from Michigan and now OPA chief, that only hired labor costs should be taken into account.

Farm bloc members had sought to force a sharp upward revision of the ceilings to include the time spent by the farmer and his family in production as well as the cost of hired hands. This move, which would jack up price ceilings from 10 to 15 per cent, has been renewed.

While the Biddle opinion was expected to hold that only hired labor costs should be taken into account, it was believed likely to furnish the basis for upward adjustment of some food price ceil-

Whether such a partial retreat would ease the farm bloc pressure on the whole agricultural price structure was problematical but administration leaders were said to believe they might thus head off an overwhelming attack.

Poet-Husband of Author Of 'Mrs. Wiggs' Ends Life

Although Mr. Rice confined most of his work to poetry, he completed two novels, "Youth's Way" and "Early Reaping," and an opera, "Yolanda of Cyprus." Some of his better known works include "From Dusk to Dusk," "With Omar," "Song-Surf," "Nirvana Days," "With Many Gods" and "For Guests" Many Gods" and "Far Guests."

Born at Dixon, Ky., he received an A. B. degree from Cumberland University and an A. M. degree from Harvard. He was professor of English at Cumberland before resigning to devote his entire time to writing.

Two Washingtonians Win Flying Medals in England

Two Washington men have been awarded medals in England for "exceptionally meritorious service on American bombing planes."

Second Lt. Peter Branch, 23, son of Randolph W. Branch, Federal Trade Commission attorney, was awarded a medal for his work as a navigator. He joined the American Air Force in 1941 after several months with the Canadian Royal Air Force. Lt. Branch was graduated from Western High School in

The second Washington recipient, First Lt. Albert W. Dieffenbach, was awarded a medal for his work as a bombardier. A student at Western High School and Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, he was gradu-ated from Maryland University in 1940 and joined the Air Force in 1941. His wife, Mrs. Virginia Wood Dieffenbach, lives at 417 Tenth street N.E. and works at the War Production Board.

Lt. Branch has two brothers in war service, Lt. Hugh W. Branch on foreign duty and William R. Branch as an officer on merchant marine

THIS GREAT MEDICINE-First Sips Must Relieve Your

For years thousands upon thousands of Doctors' Prescriptions called for Pertussin—the same effective yet inexpensive Pertussin you can get today from your druggist. It promptly relieves distress of bronchial, croupy, or night coughs-caused by colds.

The first spoonfuls of Pertussin often bring amazing relief because it's scientifically prepared to work internally. It acts at once to relieve your coughing spell. It increases natural secretions in respiratory tract to soothe dry cough-torn membranes. It improves ciliary action and loosens sticky phlegm so it's more easily raised. Pertussin is free from dope, chloroform and coal tar products. Safe and mighty effective for both young and old!

How to Save Time by Saving Money

Here's really an easy way to avoid tiresome Saturday shopping crowds and save just as much money, too. Get your big grocery order early in the week when there are no crowds—Safeway advertised prices are now effective from Tuesday up to and including Saturday each week.

Hunches for Carry-Lunches

The lunchbox has assumed an important place in our daily menu these days. And sometimes it taxes the imagination to a straining point to keep those carry lunches from becoming monotonous. There are ways, though, of making them as appetizing as the other meals. And we're passing along a few hints that may help to add interest to meals that go to work.

THE BREAD'S IMPORTANT

Sandwiches are the mainstay of the lunchbox . . . and that means bread. Be sure the bread is fresh. Keep the crusts on because they add chewiness, and besides, crusts help to keep the sandwiches from drying Vary the bread, too. There are a number of different breads to change ordinary sandwiches from day to day. One trick in a bread way is to spread the sandwich between two kinds of bread like white and whole wheat. Since nutrition is important, it's important to see to it that the white bread is enriched so that none of that important vitamin B is sacrificed.

MAKE THOSE FILLINGS HEARTY

Dainty sandwiches haven't any place in the workman's lunchbox Make them with fillings that stick to the ribs. Spread the bread first with butter, butter substitute, mayonnaise, salad dressing, or prepared sandwich spread. This steps up the flavor and keeps that freshly-made flavor.

The fillings should be generous . . . a third to a half the thickness of the bread. This is not the place to be saving.

MEAT FILLINGS-Cold cuts, cold roasts, meat loaves, canned meats, chicken, and fish are all welcome when lunchtime comes around. If you want to stretch them, then grind the meat and add olives, pickles, hard-cooked eggs or chopped cheese.

EGG FILLINGS - Chopped hard-cooked eggs with mayonnaise or mixed with relish, cheese, bits of leftover cooked bacon, ham, olives, relish or chopped nuts have that substantial quality that workers need.

CHEESE-Sliced cheese or chopped cheese mixed with dressings, meats, and relishes can add variety and deliciousness to that PEANUT BUTTER - There are hosts of ways this favorite can be changed to avoid monotony. Send it along plain one day, mix it with honey, jam, jelly, sliced fruits and tomatoes for those other days.

About Peanuts and Peanut Butter Did you know that peanuts and peanut butter contribute the same appetite sustaining qualities to the diet as does meat? Besides that, they're cram-packed with that teriffically important vitamin B you've heard so much about. They're a subtle food, too, for they can be slipped into the menu most anywhere to add much to the flavor.

Ingenuity Works Wonders Fine Dinner Is Given Jeudi Members Despite Food-Buying Difficulties

As Reported by Arthur H. Duete

When the little club of four couples formed the cook's night out club or Club de Jeudi, providing opportunities for the male members to display their culinary skill, none thought that such practice would soon stand in very good stead indeed. While Thursday used to be the cook's night out, in more than one family the cook is "out" every night, what with war work jobs and so.on.

And so the 21st meeting of the club with Joe Kendall, the original member, at the skillet, carried special interest. Not only how to cook, but what to cook have become important questions For this dinner, Joe went foraging. He assembled an egg plant, some onions, a bit of bacon, a shoulder of . lamb and some potatoes. At a vegetable stand, he found half a dozen plump tomatoes. Then came a fine head of lettuce and the meal was in the making. The menu shaped up like this:

Cups of Special Oyster Soup Lamb Melange en Brochette Baked Tomatoes Lettuce Salad Chocolate Eclairs Coffee

SPECIAL OYSTER SOUP.

Pick over one quart of oysters, remove any bits of shell and heat in the oyster liquor until edges curl. Strain, reserve liquor. Chop oysters. Add to oyster liquor 6 cups hot water, 1/2 bay leaf, 2 whole cloves, 1 small onion, chopped, and 2 stalks celery, chopped, with a couple of sprigs of parsley, also chopped. Also add to this mixture 1/2 cup rice. Bring mixture to a boil and simmer. covered, for 40 minutes, then strain. Season with salt, pepper and mace

Community Service Society of New York. The gap between available nursing service and the need for nursing services is great in our country. That's why so many American women have already responded to the call to become nurses' aides and are spending their free time supplementing professional nursing care in hospitals. Others, forced by home responsibilities to remain at home, realize their need for basic skills to be able to give adequate care during

GALLONS OF GASOLINE

A REPORT TO MANHATTAN CUSTOMERS

IN the months since Pearl Harbor we have asked you to accept certain adjustments incollection and delivery schedules so as to cooperate with the government's wartime conservation program.

We are now happy to report that, as a result of these adjustments, Manhattan trucks are traveling less than half the mileage of pre-war days, yet providing essential laundry service for more families.

This means that about 25,000 gallons of gasoline and nearly 1,000,000 tire miles are being saved each year for the war effort . . . It also means that the life of Manhattan trucks is being extended so you may continue to receive collection and delivery service.

Because this saving of precious gasoline and rubber was only possible through the combined efforts of Manhattan customers, we take this means of publicly thanking you for your cooperation.

Rest assured that the 500 men and women of the Manhattan Organization are sparing no effort to give you the best quality and service possible under the difficulties and limitations of wartime laundry operation.

The bidding: North Pass Pass Pass Pass 4 NT Pass Pass 5 NT Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass West led a spade and South grinned with satisfaction when he saw the dummy. The poor fellow didn't realize the horrible fate that was in store for him. East ruffed and returned a club. West ruffed that, and when the smoke cleared. East had ruffed three spades, while West had ruffed three clubs.

Every reader can easily imagine the discussion which followed. How could they have foreseen the disaster and how could it have been avoided?

The first question is easily answered. The disaster could not have been foreseen. Short of peeking, there is no way to foretell how the cards held by the opponents 22d birthday he was able to go to they never enter the bidding.

South might have bid six no-trump aces and a king, three sure tricks, over for sports or games. and South's nine sure tricks made been no cross-ruff.

Uncle Ray's Corner By RAMON COFFMAN.

Seventy years ago there lived in Northern Ontario a boy named James Naismith. His home was in a village called Bennie's Corners, a place which contained a blacksmith shop, a store and a small schoolhouse. James was fond of sports, and spent much of his free time playing games with other boys of the village. Having no skates of his own, he turned two old files into runners and fastened them on his shoes; those home-made skates served fairly well to carry him over the frozen surface of the "old swimming hole."

As the years passed, James went on with as much school work as possible, then did full-time work on his uncle's farm. Had it not been for a desire to add to his education, he might have spent the rest of his life as a farmer. In that case we might never have had the game of basket ball.

As it was, young Naismith wanted to attend college. Shortly before his are distributed, particularly when Montreal and start a course in Mc-Gill University. It was his plan to

At length the director of the school gave Naismith charge of a class in gymnastics. The instructor, now 30 years of age, was far from pleased. The work of teaching men to move dumbbells and Indian clubs seemed dull to him. The students showed little liking for the course. Yet it was to lead to the birth of one of the most popular modern games.

many cousins in Europe Limpets are famous for their ability to cling to their support when frightened. You have to creep up on them, catch them off guard and push them aside quickly, before they clamp down.

A limpet begins life with a spiral shell and a marginal slit. As it grows, the shelly substance is added uniting the margin below the slit The spiral seems to uncoil and finally disappears, the keyhole having traveled upward and replaced it at the apex.

The shell is steeply conical, with a hole in the top. The lining is white and of a porcelainous nature. The body of the animal, when at rest, is within the shell. The outside of the shell is ridged. Some species are beautifully colored. Limpets have a well-developed

"It's got everything to do with him," said he, stopping just long enough to open and gobble up a little package of teeny, weeny eggs he had overlooked when he was in that tree before. "You see, all summer long Farmer Brown's boy has to fight the worms that eat the leaves and spoil the apples. Now, all those worms come from teeny, weeny eggs hidden under the rough bark and fastened on the little twigs, and the more I find and eat the fewer worms there will be to bother Farmer Brown's boy. Now do you see?" "No. I don't." replied Chatterer shortly. "Partners usually do some-plays the ideal type of American soldier as Quizz West, clean-If this sounds as though the play flinching in the path of great sacrifice. Mary Rolfe makes the is wholly lugubrious the title is misleading. For "The Eve of St. Mark" has been written in a spirit of cyning at a church door on St. Mark's ical banter, captures soldiers in their care-free barracks moments, and in other lighter shades serves laughter There is a complete absence of stirring war songs, parades and glamorous heroics. It is a dramatization of a phase of war which seems starkly realistic.

This is the story of Quizz West. a farmboy who answers the call. leaves his sweetheart and his family behind because he feels an inner urge to contribute to save liberty. You follow him to his barracks with crap shooting, freedrinking and outspoken colleagues. Later the action shifts to a juke joint where Quizz and his companion resist the blandishments of twin strays, eager for catch-ascatch-can romance; then to the port of embarkation and later to a lonely island in the Philippines, the last brave stand by hardy soldiers. There the malaria-ridden group face the worst that war can bring, vote to make a last desperate stand, which means annihilation or capture, because something inside tells them it's the thing real soldiers do. It ends on the farm with Quizz's brother enlisting, and the youngest in the family joining the Air Corps, to do their bit for
