ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 1.—American troops, continuing their stubborn advance toward Mateur, stormed and captured Debel Tahent yesterday and wrested a neighboring high point from the Germans in a fierce bayonet charge, Allied headquarters announced today.

The 2d United States Army Corps of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., took Djebel Tahent, known as Hill 609, 16 miles southwest four hours before the scheduled of Mateur, in the Sidi N'sir area, and captured Hill 523, just to the Derby post time (6:30 p.m. EWT) south. Their new positions permitted them to begin long-range shelling of Mateur, 18 miles southwest of Bizerte.

Twoses Also Cut From Field, Giving Edge To Count Fleet

(Earlier Story on Page A-12.)

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, May 1.-Warren Wright Chicago and Lexington sportsman, announced this afternoon that he had decided "not to start" his Ocean Wave in the 69th Kentucky Derby late today, a decision that left the $75,000 race virtually at the mercy of the mighty Count Fleet.

Mr. Wright made the statement and before the colt, who has been suffering with an injured left foreleg, had been officially withdrawn through the secretary's office.

The Wave, stablemate of Whirlaway in the Wright string, won the Blue Grass Stakes and the Derby Trial in the last 12 days and came out of each with a cracked left foreheel. # Action to 'Roll Back' Pledged by Brown

Warns Miners Pay Raise Would Bring Increase In Cost of Living

(Text of Mr. Brown's Radto Address on Page B-14.) While promising to "roll back" excessive prices, especially on meats, canned and fresh vegetrator Brown, in a radio talk last night, warned the Nation's miners that wage increases will not improve their economic position in the race against rises in the cost of living. The OPA chief, who told the miners that "your Government needs your support in this critical hour," pointed out that UMW President John L. Lewis' demand for a $2-a-day wage increase would result in raises for workers in other industries and in higher farm prices, further increasing the cost of living. He denied Mr. Lewis' assertion that the cost of living has gone up at greater rate than wages. Mr. Brown's promise that his office would soon implement the President's recent "hold-the-line" order against inflation by reducing prices was recognized in some quarters as a last-minute appeal by the administration to the miners to end the coal strike before it becomes necessary for President Roosevelt to act when his ultimatum expires at 10 a.m. today. Four-point Program Set. The pledge to control prices was outlined in this four-point program: 1. Extension of price control to 'every important commodity.' 2. "Rolling back" of prices now considered excessive. Mr. Brown particularly mentioned meats, fresh and canned vegetables the War Department and was pro-

Mr. Brown said he had issued instructions to his staff to act without delay to "roll back those prices which have got out of hand. The prices of meats, fresh and canned vegetables, coffee, among others, will be rolled back.

The text of President Roosevelt's statement and the executive order on the operation of the coal mines

On Thursday, April 29, I sent a telegram to John L. # 'Martyred Flyers' Day Brings Record Sales Of War Bonds in D. C.

Amount to Be Added to Total of $46,409,699 Through Thursday

Residents of the District kept faith with the American aviators who were executed by the Japanese by shattering all previous records for War bond sales in one day of the Second War Loan drive. District war finance officials announced today, as the District soared more than 10 per cent above its quota of $42,000,-000 for private investors.

With total bond sales now standing at $46,409,699, as reported Thursday, officials said through "record sales" were made yesterday on "remember our martyred flyers day" at banks, building and loan associations, retailers, post offices and theaters

The added impetus of the memorial bond sales, plus a great volume of reports being received from the Fifth Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, led officials to believe that many more sales are in the process of being reported.

All Quotas Topped.

With the drive officially closing at midnight tonight. Undersecretary of the Treasury Bell reported approximately $15,500,000,000 received up until last night, as compared with the original $13,000,000,000 quota. All 12 of the Nation's Federal Reserve districts have topped their quotas, a Treasury official said.

All sales of series E, F, and G War bonds, however, reported to the Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond before the close of business on May 8 will be included in the campaign This means, officials explained, that if workers in their 'mop up" can get their orders to Washington banks by Thursday May 6, the orders can be sent with remittance to Richmond, and Washington will receive credit in the final tabulation.

The story of a Hungarian immigrant's love for America came to the attention of the District War Finance Committee yesterday when Robert St. John, news-analyst for the National Broadcasting Co., purchased $20,000 worth of War bonds for Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fischer of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Fischer wrote the commentator, sending along a check for $20,000 to the Treasury Department, after hearing Mr. St. John | counter battery fire and the heaviest urge support for the Second War artillery dueling since the American greatly facilitates its advance, the Loan drive in one of his broadcasts.

Appreciates Opportunity. The Detroit man wrote, in part:

"I was born in Hungary in 1879 and came to America in 1909. I have always worked hard for what I have today. This country has given me opportunities that no other country in the world could offer and these opportunities are given to every one who was born here or days. those who came to America, if they advantage of them

"I would say that the average fortunate-born American doesn't realize what America stands for. But. of course, they don't know what it means to be homeless, hungry and penniless. I know because I went through all that, and that is why I appreciate this country.

Response to "remember our martyred flyers" day was magnificent, officials said. Downtown merchants displayed the American flag, special window displays were shown, and extra persons had to be assigned to sell at War bond booths, so great was the response

They also pointed out that it was the first time other than a major legal holiday that the flag flew from the top of all streetcars and buses of the Capital Transit Co.

Allies Step Up Plans To Hunt Down U-Boats And Guard Convoys

Canada Announces Air Patrol Extension;

Japs Try Wolfpacks

Signs that the German U-boats soon may be the hunted instead of the hunters in North Atlantic sea lanes coincided today with hints that Japanese subs have shifted their undersea strategy and started raiding South Pacific supply lines in Nazi wolfpack style. Reversal of the German role was seen in a Canadian announcement disclosing realignment of commands and greatly expanded protection for vital convoys moving between Canada and England.

The switch in Japanese undersea tactics-hitherto limited largely to battle action in conjunction with warships-was indicated in a communique from Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur's Allied headquarters in Australia. It said the Japanese have opened a submarine attack "in some force in the waters east of Aus-

Such a supply line stab would mark the first Japanese try at wolfpack hunting style and Japan's first major submarine strategy shift from combat action to supply raiding. For the most part, though, experts here preferred to wait for the details before speculating as to whether the enemy has thus changed its undersea pace. However, the Atlantic action picture seemed clearer. Most important new anti-submarine phase seen here in the Canadian announcement is a planned extension of air patrols from Canada eastward and Britain westward to close a 500-mile gap in mid-Atlantic where the convov lanes up to now have been without air protection.

Planes and ships together, the Ottawa statement said, will guard every mile of the route from North America to Europe." Probably the greatest weakness in convoy protection in recent months has been the lack of bomber patrols in the mid-Atlantic gap. Planes are the U-boats' most deadly enemy and their mere presence over a stretch of dangerous water often is enough to keep wolf-packs submerged and State District Forester R. H. Hershberger said 200 troops from Fort George G. Meade last night helped nearly 800 sailors, residents and firemen, to build backfires along the St. Andrews road to stop the northeast sweep of flames toward the Hollywood section.

Early today, however, a sudden shift in wind direction sent the blazes roaring back southward over partly-burned woodland to new timberland in the Great Mills and Jarboesville sections. No Estimate of Damage.

The State forester said no accurate estimate of the damage to St. Mary's virgin timber could be made at present. He said, however, that several tracts, each valued at $60,000 or more, had been burned. He said another 1,500 acres might burn before firemen would be able to bring the flames under control. # Conference to Plan Punishment of War Criminals Suggested

International Law Society Hears Dr. C. C. Hyde; President's Letter Read

A call by President Roosevelt for a United Nations conference to plan legal punishment for war criminals was suggested today at the annual meeting of the American Society of International Law at the Hotel Statler. The speaker was Dr. Charles Cheney Hyde, professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia University and former solicitor of the State Department. The sessions of the society opened last night with speeches by Frederick R. Coudert of New York, president of the society; Francis B. Sayre, former United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, and Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British Merchant Shipping Mission. President's Letter Read.

A letter from President Roosevelt was read at the opening session reminding the members of the society of the importance of this wartime meeting. The President said:

"With war raging on all seas and in far-flung lands, we are face to face with the proposition that the alternative to such shocking destruction as exists today is a definite body of law accepted and followed by nations in their relations with each other.

"It is not sufficient to hope that international problems will automatically adjust themselves. We know too well that progress is achieved the hard way. Men on the battlefield are dying that civilization may be saved and that law by which we have learned to govern our conduct toward our neighbor and not force shall prevail. The body of law under which our civilization must advance must be a steadily growing one, tempered by past experience but capable of fulfilling the needs of a rapidly changing world. The world must have such a law for its dependence. It cannot permit a recurrence of the present reign of

Health Officials Visit Crippled Children in May Day Observance

Dr. Ruhland, Dr. Daily And Dr. Martha Eliot Make Tour of Gallinger

May Day was being observed today by District and Federal officials offered by the District Health Department for the care of crippled children at Gallinger Hospital. Among those making the tour, beginning at 10:30 a.m., were Health Officer George C. Ruhland and Dr Edwin F. Daily, director of health services for the United States

Children's Bureau.

Others participating in the program were Dr. Martha M. Eliot, assistant chief of the Children's Bureau; Assistant Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger; Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, chief of the District Maternal and Child Welfare Bureau; Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, Gallinger Hospital superintendent, and Dr. Bernard J. Walsh, cardiologist of the Cripple Children's Clinic. Commenting on the District child health work, Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the United States Children's Bureau, expressed appreciation of the "outstanding service" being rendered here. She added: "The District should be especially proud of the new sanatorium for children with rheumatic fever. It is one of the few cities where such valuable facilities have been made available for the convalescent care of children suffering from rheumatic fever." Dr. Ruhland explained that during the past year the first unit in Washington for sanatorial care of rheumatic fever patients was opened Parents should seek the advice of physician promptly if their children show signs of being sick, for

The general feeling in official cir-

Mr. Mr. Suter said that the greatest Davis reported yesterday that since need for people in the District is to last November Selective Service had deferred 1.012,302 agricultural workers and estimated by the end of the year a total of 3,000,000 essential amendment before Congress would farm laborers will have been de-

The program outlined by Mr. Davis also disclosed that WFA planned to use facilities and personnel of the Farm Security Administration in transporting and housing migratory and foreign labor. Congressional critics of FSA, whose fate is in the hands of the Senate, would eliminate the agency from any participation in the war food program.

The farm labor program will be directed by Lt. Col. Jay L. Taylor, deputy food administrator. Under Col. Taylor will be M. L. # Capper Urges Citizens Of District to Press For Representation

Pledges to Keep Up His Fight for Passage of Joint Resolution

Pledging his personal support to bring about the real Americanization of the Washingtonian," Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas last night called on District citizens to do all in their power to bring about passage of the Sumners-Capper joint resolution by Congress and its ratification by the States.

"I will keep up my part of this fight and if you are the kind of people I think you are, you will redouble your efforts to Americanize the Washingtonian," the veteran member of the Senate District Committee declared in a radio address featuring the monthly dinner meeting of the Central Businessmen's Association in the Statler Hotel.

Unique in Capital.

Explaining that the identical resolutions propose an amendment to the Constitution empowering Congress to grant representation in Congress and among the electors of President and Vice President to residents here, Senater Capper asserted:

"Nowhere else in our country does such an indefensible and illogical condition exist as this deprivation of voting and representation rights to a large body of intelligent, upstanding Americans."

Congress, he pointed out, is the national, the State and the local legislature of the District. Te added: "It is very illogical and un-American that there are no representatives in this three-power legislature from the people who are thus governed without their consent."

"I have long felt that if I were one of these voteless and unrepresented Americans whose home is in the Capital of our Nation, I would be more concerned over the acquisition of these fundamental American rights of voting representation in the Congress and the electoral college than over any other matter affecting District people," Senator Capper declared. "My reason for this would be based on my conviction that every American is justly entitled to have a part in the Government of his country."

Praises Groups for Effort.
Senator Capper praised the "consistent and persistent efforts of large, well-organized groups" in working for District representation. At this point he made the comment that "these voteless and unrepresented Americans should realize that in their politically degraded condition they are really the subjects of the Nation rather than the equals of the other citizens of their country."

He said he did not believe the framers of the Constitution intended to impose upon the people of the District a condition below that of a citizen.

The Senator pointed out that the resolutions would not deprive Congress of "an atom" of its constitutional power of executive legislative control over the Capital.

"But the job which now confronts

But the job which now confronts us and challenges our fundamental Americanism is to induce Congress by argument and persuasion to submit the amendment to the States," he declared.

To Remedy What Is Wrong

Intercession by a committee of members in the controversy which has involved the board of the District Tuberculosis Association in unpleasant publicity for the second time in three years should produce helpful results. The members of the committee enjoy the respect of the community, they are actuated by a genuine interest in the welfare of the association and they have resolved, as one of their first principles, to forget the past, insofar as it concerns any clash of personalities, while seeking to iron out other sources of manifest dissatisfaction.

It is necessary that this be done. The District Tuberculosis Association has a fine name and a fine record of accomplishment behind it. Last Christmas season some 50,000 individuals contributed about $80,-000 for its support. It is a voluntary organization, responsible only to the people of the community. Controversies within its ranks will be damaging if continued to the point where people lose confidence, along with their interest, in a body that is hampered in its work by continued disagreements.

The criticism has been made that there is not enough rotation of officers and that the board tends toward self-perpetuation without adequate participation by the membership. Every effort should be made, of course, to infuse new blood into the board and to stimulate membership activity. But every one familiar with volunteer organizations of this character knows that a few people often do all the work, and without them work stops. This is particularly true in organizations with the rather casual type of supporting membership found in the tuberculosis association.

There should be more general agreement on the policy of the association as it concerns the Health Department of the District. The association should be a spur, not a crutch, for the Health Department. Except in emergencies, or to support some demonstration project, it is difficult to establish the validity of using funds privately contributed to a volunteer organization to augment public funds appropriated for the Health Department. Policy in this respect obviously is in need of clarification.

Discussions between the members' committee and the board in advance of the postponed annual meeting will be most helpful if they result in agreement on an agenda for this meeting which will bring out into the open, for constructive discussion, these and other subjects concerning which there has been too much whispering and not enough frank debate. The association is in the hands of its friends and should be strengthened by the interest in its affairs already manifested by the supporting public.

Msgr. McCormick

In the appointment of Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick to be rector of the Catholic University of America, Pope Pius XII formally acknowledges the growing importance of the science of education as such. The significance of the Holy Father's designation thus goes far beyond the ordinary limitations of the naming of an administrative head of an Institution of the church. Its connotations are universal in their scope.

To understand the values involved It is necessary to know that Christianity always has been essentially a teaching mission, and yet that only comparatively recently has systematic pedagogy been recognized in itself as a constructive factor in Christian civilization. The explanation of the paradox may be found in the fact that only in the modern age of turmoil and confusion has imperative need for specialized instruction In the arts of instruction developed. Constantly increasing complexity has made necessary the more exact and rigorous teaching of teachers.

And it is to that great and useful work that Msgr. McCormick has devoted his life. Born at Norwich, Connecticut, December 10, 1880, he prepared for the priesthood at Saint Joseph's Seminary, Dunwoodie, New York, and was ordained at Hartford in 1904. He was superintendent of the schools of the Hartford diocese from 1906 to 1910, then came to Washington to be successively instructor in education, associate professor of education, professor of education, vice rector and twice acting rector. His services in the still larger field of cultural enterprise include his editorial direction of the Catholic stabilization program is coming from success in their happy haunting wins. This is one of the few traditions Educational Review since 1921 and leaders of organized labor, their basic the presidency of the Catholic Educational Press since 1932. He published a history of education in 1914 and has contributed to the Catholic Encyclopaedia, the Cyclopaedia of Education and the Encyclopaedia of Sunday Schools. Msgr. McCormick obviously was a logical choice for the position he already had demonstrated his capacity to fill with distinction. He is the seventh rector of the university in the fifty-six years of its existence and the first of its alumnae to be so honored. His neighbors in the District of Columbia felicitate him and cordially wish him well in the discharge of his exacting but congenial duties.

The Connally Bill

With a general strike under way in the coal fields—a strike that is fully capable of destroying this country's capacity to fight the warthe Senate is planning to take up the Connally bill when it meets on Monday. If this measure is to be the Senate's answer to John L. Lewis, it is important to consider what it does and what it leaves

Through some curious misuse of language the Connally measure has come to be known as the "no-strike" bill. Actually, the bill does not prohibit strikes and provides no penalty whatsoever for those who participate

Three things would be accomplished by passage of the bill. (1) The President would be expressly authorized to take over and operate plants or mines in which labor disputes threatened to interfere with the conduct of the war. (2) While under Government operation, the union status in the plant or minewhether open or closed shop-would be frozen. (3) A three-man wage board would be created with authority, subject to approval of the President, to order payment of such wages as it deems fair and reasonable. Its findings and orders "shall be final, and shall not be subject to review by any person, tribunal, or governmental agency." This bill was drafted before the present War Labor Board had been set up; before the little steel formula had been heard of. In 1941, in similar form, it passed the Senate by vote of 67 to 7, but the House refused to concur. A year ago Senator Connally was pressing for renewed consideration of the measure, but at the personal request of the President, who was then negotiating the no-strike agreement, Mr. Connally agreed to withdraw his demand for consideration of the bill. Since then a great deal has happened.

The no-strike agreement has been breached by Mr. Lewis. The little steel formula and the War Labor Board are under heavy fire, not alone from Mr. Lewis but from virtually all other units of organized labor as well. The President, quite properly, is insisting that the WLB and its wage formula both must be maintained. But what will happen if the Connally bill becomes law? Can the little steel formula be maintained, or the WLB continue to function, if a new wage board comes into the picture, empowered to authorize wage increases which it deems fair and reasonable in plants which have been seized by the Government? Obviously not. Approval of a wage increase by the President is required, but is it wise to put the President in the position of possibly having to veto wage increases which a board created by Congress says are fair and reasonable? Certainly not, if there is any intent to continue the fight against inflation.

Mr. Lewis might look with favor on this bill since its passage would accomplish at least two of his principal objectives-the destruction of the WLB and the elimination of the little steel formula. But this is not what the people of the United States will expect of Congress, if at long last it should undertake to deal with the strike question.

Mr. Connally told the Senate on Friday that the people are looking to Congress to give the President the necessary power and authority to make "their will" known. And what they want is legislation that will discourage and penalize strikes against the Government in time of war. Shortly before Pearl Harbor the House, by a two-to-one vote. passed a strong anti-strike bill which was allowed to die in the Senate Labor Committee. If the Senate agrees with Mr. Connally that the time has come to demonstrate that the Government, and not Mr. Lewis, is running this country, it can easily revive and pass clear-cut legislation to forbid and punish strikes. If this were to be done, there is no doubt that the House would concur and the people approve.

To the People

It should be the business of every American to give careful attention to the speech made last night by Price Administrator Prentiss Brown. For unless there is understanding of the facts that he sets forth and a broad response to the appeal which he makes, the people of this country are going to suffer as they have not suffered in many a long year.

"Your Government," Mr. Brown said, "needs your support in this critical hour." That is both an appeal and a simple statement of fact. In our fight against a ruinous inflation we have exhausted the possibilities of compromise and retreat. Our backs are to the wall and we must hold now or accept the disastrous consequences of failure. At this particular time the great pressure against the Government's claim being that wages have not kept pace with living costs. Mr. Brown denied that this was true, citing statistics to show that the rise in the cost of living had been substantially exceeded by the average increase in wages. Averages, as every one knows, are apt to be misleading. Some workers have received a great deal; others have had little if any increase. But, taking the country as a whole, as we must, there is no evidence to support the charge that incomes are insufficient to protect the people against extreme hardship. There are, and always will be, relative injustices, but it may be doubted that any American, working in this country, is being called upon for anything approaching the sacrifices demanded of the men we are sending to the battle fronts.

Conditions at home can be improved, and Mr. Brown promised that his organization now has the equipment and the experience to do a better job. The people will expect that pledge to be kept. In return, they must do their share. Black markets cannot survive without the support of Mr. and Mrs. America.

In this matter the question is: Are you going to support the black market or your Government? It is the Government that needs the support.

Litvinoff's Trip

Moscow's recall of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador to Washington, for consultation with his home government naturally arouses much speculation as to the precise reasons for the trip. The acute diplomatic crisis within the United Nations camp, caused by the rupture of Soviet-Polish relations, and America's relation thereto, undoubtedly will figure largely in the projected conferences between Mr.

Litvinoff and Premier Joseph Stalin. Even before the Polish controversy erupted a week ago, informed observers had believed that a consultative visit of Mr. Litvinoff to Moscow was likely in the near future, because a number of important developments have occurred in the past year bearing on Soviet-American relations, and personal conferences between the Soviet leaders and their Washington representative will be useful at this time. Such matters as the co-ordination of grand strategy during the coming summer campaigning season, economic cooperation, transportation routes for supplies, the recent visit of Anthony Eden, and Finland obviously suggest themselves.

Mr. Litvinoff has been continuously in America since his arrival here early in December, 1941, to take up his ambassadorial post. His forthcoming journey will be his first visit home, and he will undoubtedly almost a year and a half in our midst. Enjoying a reputation for competent analysis of conditions and shrewd judgment of personalities, he should be able to enlighten his government on the attitude of the administration and the trends of American public opinion. Moscow is reported to be rather resentful of critical comments of Soviet actions and policies voiced in certain sections of the American press. This is especially true of comment in Polish-American circles since the Soviet-Polish controversy became acute. To Soviet home officials, accustomed as they are to a completely regimented and controlled press and public opinion, it is hard to understand that this could happen without official connivance or tacit approval. Mr. Litvinoff doubtless will be able to make it clear that, under our democratic system, freedom of speech and the press are supremely cherished, and that our Government has neither the right nor the desire to curtail frank discussion of any issue not directly concerned with military information helpful to the enemy. Such a recognition and understanding on the part of Moscow has never been more necessary than today. That clarification alone would justify Mr. Litvinoff's homeward journey and would contribute toward the harmonizing of diverse viewpoints among the United Nations which, if left uncorrected,

War Spirit

might produce unfortunate conse-

From the jungles of New Guinea come many reports of Jap soldiers found dead with no marks of violence and no evidence of disease. Much speculation has taken place on how this happens, and now the solution is given by a British explorer, Evelyn Cheesman, who insists that they have been scared to death by ghosts. New Guinea, she says, is chock full of ghosts-not the shy, pale retiring variety that gibbers half-heartedly in dismal moated castles, but real dead commando ghosts who violate all the rules of the union and attack intruders wherever they may be.

Yet American soldiers in New Guinea are intruders, too, at least from the New Guinea spiritual point of view, and there is no record of any of them passing out from fright. Miss Cheesman explains that, too. She says that the Jap is primitive, and makes a tactical error by believing in ghosts, thereby automatically becoming vulnerable to their assaults. According to her theory, a ghost not believed in is harmless. The State Department, therefore, is advised not to be fooled by the apparent fact that the New Guinea spooks seem to be on the side of the United Nations, and make the mistake of recognizing them officially. The risk is too great. Better leave them alone, and breathe an unofficial wish that they may have continued

Major Eliot Sees Signs Of Growing Resistance On 'Northern Front'

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. There are some indications, which as yet lack any degree of certainty, that what we may call the northern front in Europe is coming to life.

It is quite possible, for example, that the Germans have decided that a limited offensive in North Russia will be the best move they can make within the limitations which their shortages of manpower and air power impose upon them. This may be intended to forestall a Russian offensive in this area, for which the Russians now possess considerable advantages since the reopening of communications with Leningrad and the recovery of the fortress of Novgorod. In this connection the mining of the Baltic ports by the RAF and the Russian air attacks on Koenigsberg and Danzig are not without significance. It will be remembered that last spring. when the Germans were preparing to use their Baltic ports as bases of operations against Russia, the RAF bombed Rostock and Luebeck.

Closely connected with the strategic possibilities in the Leningrad area are the present difficulties of Finland. Obviously the Finns are anxious to get out of this war and one of the best reasons for their desire to make a graceful exit would be that they think the Germans are not going to be able to support them any longer. This would indeed be the case if the Russians recovered control of the south shore of the Gulf of Finland. The fact that Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, commander in chief of the Finnish army, has just arrived in Switzerland for "a few days convalescent rest" may or may not have some significance in this connection. The Germans have certainly shown themselves nervous, not to say touchy, over the prospect of Finnish defection from their cause. Their troops have fought desperately to avoid being pushed back any farther in the vicinity of Leningrad, and their political agencies have been extremely alert to deal with any sign of anti-Axis tendencies on the part of the Finnish government or people. Of course this is all wrapped up in the same packing with Swedish - German relations which are getting steadily worse. The tone of recent Swedish government communications to Germany can only be described as truculent. Undoubtedly the Swedish government at last believes that it can permit itself the luxury of allowing the tone of its diplomatic correspondence to reflect the state of Swedish public opinion, which has been growing more anti-German by the hour.

Sweden, as previously remarked in these articles is literally armed to the teeth and would be an exceedingly dangerous enemy for Germany at the present moment. There have been rumors that the Swedish government, in response to popular pressure, is about to put a stop to transit of German troops through have much to tell his superiors after | Swedish territory enroute from and to Norway. These are supposed to be only soldiers going on leave, and an equivalent number of replacements going from Germany to Norway. It is interesting to note that some, at least, of the RAF's mining operations in the Baltic yesterday were directed toward stopping ferry transit between Germany and Sweden. Whether this is a hint that the British think something more than replacements for men on leave are going into Norway is of course uncertain. But British interest in stopping this traffic suggests the possibility that Norway may not be outside the scope of present plans for Allied offensive operations on the

It should be noted that everything that happens on this northern front is part of a single "big picture." A German or a Russian success in the Leningrad area affects Finland: what Finland does affects both Russia and Sweden; the the growth of Swedish armed power becomes more and more of a threat to Germany as the Swedish people become more and more anti-German in their attitude; and an Allied attack on Norway would almost certainly result in Swedish involvement in the war since the Swedish people in their present mood and with their present confidence in their fighting strength would be hardly likely to yield to German demands for the use of Swedish railways—without which the German garrisons in Norway could not be adequately reinforced. So far there is nothing really tangible to show what is going to happen in the north. But there are plenty of excursions and alarums. (Copyright, 1943, N. Y. Tribune, Inc.)

'Bridge of Escape'

From the Christian Science Monitor. Outside Congress many Republicans have been expressing appreciation for the Hull program's freedom-extending, peace-promoting effects. Wendell Willkie has been frank and courageous in his support and in pointing to the need for such a policy in shaping the postwar world. He has sought to give Republicans a bridge of escape from protectionism by pointing to the Mc-Kinley and Taft advocacy of reciprocity. A multitude of Americans have become convinced that barriers to trade are economically unsound and politically dangerous and that reciprocal agreements are a careful, intelligent method of lowering them. When the National Association of Manufacturers, that traditional citadel of protectionism, comes out for the Hull agreements, it is time for the Republicans in Congress to wake up.

A Tradition Survives

From the Los Angeles Times. An estimated 530 Axis submarines have been sunk or damaged since the war's start, not a few of them by Americans. On their own account, British submarines have sunk or damaged 87 Axis warships, sunk 300 supply vessels and damaged 50 more. Perhaps the most spectacular feat of the whole war to date was the navycovered evacuation of Dunkerque, where 335,000 British and French troops were rescued under heavy German ground and air fire by boats operating under the protection of the navy's guns. At Crete, the English Mediterranean fleet similarly rescued 16,500 soldiers. particular attention to the birds, from now on, for they are the first musicians, and spring is their time.

Great composers have been lured by their songs. Musicians not so great have, nevertheless, found inspiration in the songbirds.

Some of our popular song writers and singers attribute their first love of music to listening to the birds, especially in the springtime.

One of these composers is Will Handy, whose "St. Louis Blues" is regarded as a popular classic.

In his amazingly interesting book, "Father of the Blues," published in 1941 by Macmillan, Mr. Handy has a chapter entitled "Songbirds and School Days." In this he tells how he listened to the birds, and could place their notes on the scale. River steamboat whistles also taught him something.

Robins, blue jays and many others sang notes which he kept in his mind. Even the mooing of cows meant something to him.

All of us can get this good musical education, if we listen to the birds. Music is, after all, something more than symphony and concert. Sometimes "city folk" acquire the idea that for a musical work to be truly musical, it must be nothing less than a symphony, a concerto or a choral work on the grand scale.

The marvelous opening of Bruckner's symphony No. 4, or "Romantic," is built entirely on two notes, E and B.

With the horn playing these notes, in front of a background of shimmering strings, we have one of the most poignant of all symphonic introductions. Yet many a music lover who rather prides himself on his knowledge has never heard this masterpiece.

Now is the appointed time of the real bird chorus.

It begins very early, so one either has to get up to hear it, or be a light sleeper. If you live in the suburbs, and want to be sure of hearing it, set the alarm clock for dawn, and be certain it is the real and genuine aurora. The birds know nothing about daylight saving time. They have never heard of clocks, and have never heard of any changes in time. They are the true realists.

All persons who like music should pay I tree to tree, until within half an hour there is a perfect bedlam of sound.

Air-Raid Test Confusion Protested by Observers.

To the Editor of The Star: I noticed in the paper an article headed: "Public Confused with Air-Raid Signals," but I think the headlines should have read: "Air-Raid Heads Confused With Their Own Signals."

I am an air-raid warden on upper Connecticut avenue. When the blue signal sounded, the streets lights were supposed to go out. The lights on the side streets went out, but Connecticut avenue lights were on fully five minutes or more. Why should this have happened? When the test was over and the second blue sounded, the street lights went out at the exact same second as the siren was sounded. This also was wrong. In other words, the test started off wrong, and it ended wrong. Some one is to blame for this. It makes us air-raid wardens feel silly.

In order for the public to co-operate, the "head men" should operate the test efficiently.

What this city needs is more test raids, and I would suggest one test raid a week on a different day or night each time, so the officials readily could see if we are weak on any particular day or night. I am thinking of Thursday night when most of the retail stores are open. Why haven't we had a test raid on one of those nights to see how the situation would be handled, particularly downtown?

AIR-RAID WARDEN.

To the Editor of The Star: From where I was Wednesday night, the air-raid test seemed to be the worst yet! The street lights on Connecticut avenue were only off for a period of 10 minutes. Even while the second blue signal was sounding, these street lights came back on. Just after convincing the residents that this was not the allclear signal, the avenue lights went out again and those on the west side of Connecticut avenue came on. After the lights west of and on the avenue were both put on, the street lights on the east side stayed off for over five minutes after the all-clear had been announced.

Surely by this time some system should have been devised for turning all street lights on and off at the same time! How can we convince the people that their lights should be out when the street lights in front of their houses are blinking on and off?

Readers Express Themselves Concerning Miners' Leader.

To the Editor of The Star:

It is amazing that in such times as these John L. Lewis should be the instigator of an ultimatum to our Government. Is this not inciting civil disobedience?

The British had courage to deal with such wartime emergencies in India. Why not give Mr. Lewis a loin cloth, a spinning wheel and "time"-to meditate that "blackmail," at the expense of our boys fighting overseas, has no place in our war effort. C. A. G.

To the Editor of The Star: I misread a headline in Tuesday's paper, thinking it said, "26,000 Die as Strike Closes Fifty Mines"-shocking, for a moment. Oh, they're only idle; but is it so different after all? Think about it: What about the 26,000 men who may die in foreign fields as a direct result of the lack of coal vital to produce the things without which our armed services cannot survive? Don't let John L. Lewis, or any "socially" minded person tell me about the miners starving. I know about starving. I went to Seattle with my husband, many then) at a salary ranging from $48 to $62 per month, depending on the amount of layoff time in the month. Of this amount $25 per month went for life insurance and payment of debts incurred during my husband's medical education. Por three more years, this time in Minneapolis, my husband earned $50 per month as a hospital resident physician. I earned $70 per month. Meanwhile, we increased the insurance payments to $33 per month. Show me the miner in America who earns less than this, even allowing for the rise in living expenses, somewhat compensated for by increased wages. Would I have accepted more pay? You bet I would, but not at the expense of some one else's chances for that pleasant or sometimes not-so-pleasant condition of being-life.

If Mr. Lewis says the miners are starving, I doubt it; and if any one is lying, I am not. My husband has been in the Army for more than a year. I have (I'm not alone in this experience) a baby whom he has never seen. I want my husband back from Africa soon and I don't want the war delayed by uncalled-for occurrences such as strikes. K. F. N.

To the Editor of The Star: Robert St. John, on the radio, said the coal strike issue is now between Franklin D. Roosevelt and John L. Lewis. This seems also to be the consensus of most commentators and newspapers, but is it exactly true?

I read the papers very carefully, yet I have failed to see any mention of a change in our democratic procedure of government. Since this present Congress convened there seems to have been an even greater demonstration of its prerogatives; in fact, it seems to have been running wild. Congress threw out of the window the $25,000 income limit set up by presidential order, it forced Leon Henderson. who was succeeding in keeping the cost of living down, out of office and seemingly has been doing any and every thing it wanted to do.

If my memory serves me right, the first business of this new Congress was to outlaw all strikes for the duration. Well, nearly four months have passed and this same coal strike was pending when it came into being. Why is the solution at this late date still up to Mr. Roosevelt? CHARLES H. FLAGG.

Concessions For Lewis Possible

Mine Union Chief May Capitalize on

Changes Effected By DAVID LAWRENCE.

John L. Lewis has maneuvered the Roosevelt administration into a difficult and embarrassing situation which won't be disposed of at all by the attitude of miners in the next few days, for the controversy is much more far-reaching than appears on the surface. There are some observers who see only a powerful labor leader defying the War Labor Board and the Government. David Lawrence. There are some who think that the exchange of communications between the President and Lewis covers the controversy. But actually there have been some serious mistakes in policy by the administration which Lewis has been quick to use to the advantage of his cause.

It was a mistake, for instance, for the President to issue his executive order, now known as the "hold-theline" order. The War Labor Board's public members feel so strongly about it that they sent a memorandum to the executive offices a few days ago asking that some of their powers in handling wage increases be restored

Mr. Lewis knows that the "holdthe-line" order cannot possibly be maintained, because the CIO and the AFL are as bitterly opposed to it as he is, and there is no doubt but that some modifications are coming. Mr. Lewis may be able to capitalize on those changes and appears to be the man who forced a change in the Byrnes-Roosevelt "hold-the-line" order. His prestige in the labor world will go up correspondingly.

Wants Independent WLB. It is a fact, of course, that Mr. Lewis has ignored the War Labor Board, but he has also said plainly that his reason is that it operates with "political limitations," which means that it is directed or influenced by Stabilization Director Byrnes and the President. Mr. Lewis wants the War Labor Board to operate independently and, while he thinks it is prejudiced, he really means it is influenced against him. Now, however, it becomes apparent that some change in handling wage matters is in prospect. Lewis will get something in the way of an increase It may be basis of the so-called "portal-toportal" method of computing wage rates which was recently upheld in a court decision. It may come out of the latest effort to discover costs of living in mining communities. But whatever be the means used to increase wages, Lewis will be able to view the result as a substantial victory for his tactics. His idea has been to go to the very edge of precipitating a Nationwide strike and then recede He may even permit the so-called unauthorized walkouts to go on here and there, but the general effect created in labor circles will be that dering the men back and that he does so only after he feels sure som concessions are coming his way.

OPA Checks Up on Prices. One concession may have escaped general notice. It is the administration's order to OPA to send investigators to check up on prices in selected mining communities. This affords a way out for the President and the War Labor Board, for up to now no such evidence was permitted relating to specific situations.

Also when the "hold-the-line" or der is modified, it will unquestionably allow the War Labor Board to determine "inequities" and "inequalwhich gives the labor union leaders a chance to earn their salaries by being able to egitate for something other hand, that there are some legitimate "inequalities" and "inout, especially if the inflationary before we could reach those places trends brought on by the continued payment of time-and-a-half and double-time keeps billions of dollars of purchasing power in circulation against the diminishing quantities

'44 Election Will Be Unfortunate Campaign Full of Personal Resentment, Bitterness

By GOULD LINCOLN.

The "fourth-term" campaign burst into bloom at both ends of Pennsylvania Thursday night. In Philadelphia Senator Guffey, addressinga $25 - a - plate Jefferson Day dinner - the Democratic way of raising fundspredicted the renomination and re - election of President Roosevelt next vear. At the same time Pittsburgh staged a hot debate over the fourthterm issue before the American Town Meeting of the Air Forum. Gov. Neely of West Virginia, Democrat, and Max Lerner, a New Deal professor at Williams College, took the affirmative and Senators Bridges of New Hampshire and Wherry of Nebraska the negative.

The bitterness of debate in Pittsburgh and the no less bitter remarks of Senator Guffey in Philadelphia forecast a hardfought political campaign next year. If the Democratic speakers are to be believed, there is not the slightest doubt that the President will run again. To all intents and purposes, so far as the New Dealers are concerned the Democratic presidential nomination has been settled for 1944. The holding of a Democratic National Convention, if they are correct, will be no more than a ratification meeting. And with a campaign to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt already under way, it matters little whether the Democrats nominate their candidate in July, August or September.

Time Important to GOP.

By the same token, it matters a good deal to the Republicans when they nominate their candidate. If they are to contest the election with the President. they must have a man-and they must have time, and give him time, to stage an effective campaign. That is one reason they would be slow to agree to a late national convention to pick the nominees and a brief campaign period. It all goes back to the old political principle that you can't beat some one with no one. Not until the Republicans have named their candidate can they wage a real fight.

Eighteen months—a year and a half-must elapse before the people vote for President. Rarely, if ever, has any national campaign developed so bitterly so long in advance of an election.

The Republicans already are seeking to raise the "dictator" issue, on the theory that a fourth term would so intrench the President he would be able to do anything he wished, whether the war was on or had ended. The Democrats counter with the cry that President Roosevelt is the only man who can handle the war-that it would be folly to make a change in leadership in the midst of the conflict.

have their influence on the campaign. The Republicans are hitting hard already at the New Dealers with whom the President has surrounded himselffor example, Harry Hopkins, who has become a chief target. With two Republicans in the cabinet and many others in important war jobs, however, the President is in a position to reply to that line of attack.

Talk Arouses Bitterness During his speech in Philadelphia Senator Guffey said: "We must make sure that our party, our principles, our policies and our personnel, together with the many loyal, patriotic Republicans who have really adjourned politics to serve the country, shall continue to direct the Nation after 1944." The Pennsylvania Senator sought to put the blight of lack of patriotism on those who are opposing the re-election of the President. He said that mind of the Nation is confused because there is a two-pronged war in this country-in which "part of us are out to beat the Axis; the others are out to beat the President." This is a hard saying, and one that will arouse great bitterness among Republicans who are in the armed forces, have sons in those forces, or who are aiding the war effort in other ways. The same goes for the anti-New Deal Democrats who oppose a

The Republicans are not pulling their punches in this row. It would be ridiculous to expect the New Dealers to do so. The whole thing adds up, therefore, to an unfortunate campaign in which personal resentment and bitterness will manifest itself. In the midst of a war this is tough going.

War Appears Secondary. Greed for power and greed for money are the handmaidens of any war. Too many groups, whether they be organized workers or capitalists, are using the war as the means to boost their gains. Sometimes the war appears to be a secondary thing. What's needed in this country is more good nature and a singleness of purpose. There is danger that the American people will miss both.

The Republican factions in New Jersey, which have threatened to go into a devastating struggle over a gubernatorial nominee this year, have, through their leaders, united on former Senator Walter E. Edge as their candidate. Mr. Edge was Governor of the State during the last war and will be 69 years next November—one of the so-called elder statesmen.

New Jersey is one of the very few States electing Governors this year. The GOP believes it has an excellent chance to win. First. the State went strongly Republican in 1942, electing, among other officers, a Republican Senator. Second, Gov. Edison, Democrat, is engaged in a struggle against the Democratic boss of the State, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City. Hague has sought to have former Gov. Harry Moore run again. The outcome of this election will give some idea of the political trend in the Eastern industrial section of the country.

What Is Sex Education?

Social Hygiene Stands for the Protection. Exfension and Development of the Family

Executive Secretary, D. C. Social Hygiene Bociety. That great humanitarian and education with him and such other Garlin Spencer, today's summary rather than an attempt to define to maturity. detailed problems and methods. Much of it outlines principles enunciated by our present "dean" of social hygiene teaching in the United States, Doctor Maurice A. Bigelow, director emeritus, School of Practical Arts, Teachers College, Columbia University.

Let's consider, first, what social hygiene education represents. It stands for the protection, preservation, extension, improvement, and development of the monogamic family, based on accepted ethical ideals. It seeks to aid individuals to control and guide their sex lives for the purpose of securing the greatest social health and happiness. Successful marriage and family life is the greatest good within our present vision, for it aims at the fullest development of the possibilities of friendship and affection between the sexes.

Social hygiene education or sex education are not names for new courses of study in schools or colleges. They are simply convenient headings for the educational activities which contribute to the general aim of social hygiene. The terms are practically synonymous if sex education is taken in its largest sense.

Five Tasks Presented.

Social hygiene education is now understood to include all educational problems or situations of life that have their origin in human sex relations and the sex instinct-problems that inevitably come in some form into the experience of every normal human being. These problems extend over a vast range of life's experiences from simple little matters of personal sex health to the exceedingly compliacted physical, mental and social relationships that concern marriage and the

There are five great tasks for this type of education: (1) Developing an open-minded, serious, scientific, and respectful attitude toward all problems of human life which relate to sex; (2) giving that knowledge of personal sex hygiene which makes for the healthful and efficient life of the individual; (3) developing personal responsibility regarding the social (including ethical) and eugenic aspects of sex as affecting the individual life in its relation to other individuals of the present and future generations-in short, the proband is never likely to be, a British lems of sex instinct and actions in relation to society: (4) developing If we fail to serve the air routes an appreciation and understanding of family life; (5) teaching very And if any cabinet minister or briefly, during adolescence, the escompany director still harbors doubts about the air-mindedness of regarding the destructive venereal rising generations, let him try to diseases, and dealing with them as It is wrong to imagine the Mer-

Old Policy Is Useless. Since human beings are by nature eft to control or manage the sex instinct solely by intelligent choice, it is evident that the old policy, from Britain across the Alps to based on silence, superstition, ignorance and mystery, is useless. Accumulated evidence indicates that normal children are almost certain to get more or less sex information, not later than the early adolescent years, from unreliable and vulgar sources. Morals may become corrupted, vulgar attitudes fixed, and health injured several years before puberty. The only sure pathway to health, wholesome ateducator, Charles W. Must Be Progressive.

Sex education in childhood and youth should aim at protection of physical and mental health and development of character as these are affected by awakening sexual life. Obviously this combination of health education and character education cannot be accomplished at any one time. It must be a progressive process of hygienic care. guidance, instruction and example This places upon the home the chief opportunity and responsibility for direct sex education of children before adolescence As for social hygiene in courses of study, it is not desirable that any parts or courses of the curricula for schools and regular colleges should be known to the students and to the public as "sex" studies. Such terms as "social hygiene" and "sex education" should be used only to indicate to teachers and parents that definite parts of the education of young people are being directed toward a healthy, natural, and wholesome understanding of life as it is affected by sex. The facts of life which directly or indirectly concern sex should not be taken from their normal settings and organized into separate courses. On the contrary, the subject-matter and regular courses in biological and social measures which may help human giene, homemaking, general literasciences, physical education, hybeings of any age, especially in ture, psychology and extra-curricuchildhood and youth, to meet the lar activities offer many natural situations for dealing with funds tal facts and problems of sex.

> For the purpose of training teach. ers and workers, there should be cial hygiene in professional schools education, medicine, theology nursing and social work.

> The earliest instruction in hom or in school that looks toward social hygiene education is biological. The life-histories of plants and animals, as taught in the home or in the best natural study and biology of our schools, are important in forming attitudes toward sex and reproduction and in giving a basis for simple and truthful answers to children's questions as to the origin of the individual human life Should Stress Moral Standards. Social hygiene education should stress sex ethics or moral standards. The marvelous progress of sanitary and medical science may some day control the health problems of sex (e.g., venereal disease) without improving morality. In short, the future teaching of rational sex ethics must show youth the advantages of those relations of the sexes which society at its highest development sential hygienic and social facts approves, and calls "moral." Individualism in sex relations means so cial chaos. Sex normally involves with other communicable diseases in more than one individual and the college hygiene and in lectures to great sex problems are social problems and must be solved, not as demanded by individual desires, but with reference to the best interests of social groups—the family, the Social hygiene education also has led the way to public support for medical camthe ways and means for control of paigns against the venereal diseases. But lest we expect too much from teaching in this field, it is well to heed one of Bigelow's wisest warn-"Sex education at its best cannot be a universal solution for the problems of sex. It helps solve the problems of many persons and does great good for others. Me must remember that general education often fails to make good citizens. Why, then, should we expect social hygiene education to solve all the sex problems for everybody who is instructed? Sex education, like all other education, points toward ideals that individuals and society may always continue to approach but will never reach, in the ever advancing improvement of conditions in individual as well as social

This Changing World Litvinoff Trip Planned Before Break

With Poland, but May Ease Pressure

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The departure of Ambassador Litvinoff for Moscow, where he's expected to report to Premier Stalin and Foreign Secretary

Molotov about conditions in the United States Was decided several weeks ago and is said to have nothing to do with the relations between Russia and the Polish government-in-exile. Constantine Brown. The ambassador was instructed last January to return to Russia at his convenience. It is merely a coincidence that he leaves at a time when the governments-inexile of Eastern and Southeastern European countries are seething with excitement as a result of the dispute between Poland and Rus-

It is believed here that as a result of conversations between Ambassador Litvinoff and high American officials he will be able to convey to Moscow the feeling in Washington that all pending problems between Russia and her future neighbors should be left. in abevance until such time as the enemy can not take advantage of any dissension or argument among members of the United Nations

The ambassador further will be able to say that should the Soviet government decide to extend 'suspension" of diplomatic relations with Poland into a definite break, it will be extremely difficult for the American and British Governments to recognize a new Polish government-in-exile in Moscow since both London and Washington are pledged to recognize the present regime in Eng-

May Hurt Small Nations. And Mr. Litvinoff has been told that creation of two governments of a country which is now entirely under the Nazi boot may have a most unfortunate reaction on all small United Nations coun-

Moreover, such a situation would provide the Nazi propaganda machine with a tremendous weapon to wield against rebel leaders in Greece, Yugoslavia and even in France to convince them that the major members of the United Nations are arguing among themselves over the spoils of the war.

Of course, the American and British Governments have gone on record as favoring restoration of the invaded countries to their pre-war independence and freedom. But the Nazi propaganda machine can twist speeches and statements to their advantage by inserting a few words or taking a few sentences out of Prime Minister Churchill's speeches and making them sound as if the British government intended to sacrifice the nations of Europe for the sake of political expediency. This, of course, is one of the most serious dangers of the present.

Need Captive Nations' Aid. In our plans to invade Europe. we must definitely rely on support from the subjugated nations which have been awaiting America's arrival ever since the Japanese attacked Pear Harbor. Nazi propaganda describing America as a defeated nation before it actually began to fight, because of the surprise Jap attack, made no dent on the people across the Atlantic who helieve in America's might and are confident they will receive a fair deal after Hitler has been defeated. It would be unfortunate if propaganda, at which the Germans are past masters, could convince those leading the open or underground revolutionary movements in Europe that we are interested only in defeating the Nazis and afterward will be willing to pass the hand to nations still thinking in terms of power politics. The leaders then might give up and our expected support would be lost completely.

A typical example of how high our main stock in trade in international politics-absolute fairness and honesty-stands, was the landing in North Africa. Had the people of that area and their commanding officers not believed that we had come to fight the common enemy without any ulterior motive there is no question that we would have had a heavy war on our hands before we could establish a bridgehead at any point. The firm belief that we went there to fight the Germans and nothing else turned a difficult operation into a relatively easy one.

Want More Indulgence.

The same situation will exist when we decide to land in Europe. The co-operation of the millions of men and women, disarmed as they are and of the poorly-equipped but good-fighting organizations which exist throughout European territory will be of great assistance.

Should these people, however, lose faith in us, the operations would be much more difficult. For these reasons the American Government hopes-and it is believed that these hopes have been communicated to the Russian Ambassador-that Moscow will decide to be more indulgent toward its future neighbors and will not strengthen the hand of the common enemy by creating new governments - in - exile in Russia to compete with those already in existence.

"training for living." Yet the very sources of human life and its reproduction have been tabooed subjects here. A few courageous principals and teachers have done notable work-but largely without official support or approval. Garden and pet projects in our elementary schools are decidedly valuable—but why, on the higher levels, must biology stop with the frog, when human life is so much more vita! and interesting?

And on the health sector of social hygiene, a few simple paragraphs devoted to the scientific facts of syphilis and gonorrhea surely should incorporated in health and physical education units. Other health hazards are dealt with, but these two-the great menaces of youth-are left untouched. Had our schools given youth the protection of knowledge, Washington might not have been in the unenviable situation of seeing her selectees eading the Nation's large cities in syphilis prevalence, and her juvenile sex delinquency and illegitimacy rates rising ominously.

In conclusion it is well to reemphasize the point that the home is the logical place for most hygiene training. For social hygiene, in essence, is only a part of character training, and schools and churches even though of the finest-cannot do the whole job. But, until parents are better qualified for this physical and mental recreation as what about Washington? Educa- hands—a challenge that they cancounter, or if you have a telephone call NA. 5000.

I have just completed the most exhaustive pell on the matter since Dr. Gallup started buttonholing people and asking them what was on their minds. Even Dr. Gallup would have given me A markings on the way I conducted my poll.

I started early in the morning and stuck on the job until a blackout made it impossible for me to distinguish uniforms. I worked 10 to 12 of the most prominent spots in London-Grosvenor Square, Leicester Square, Piccadilly Circus, Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens, Berkeley Square, and the front of the enlisted men's post exchange. And, to the American soldiers who passed I put the same question: 'What makes you homesick the most? What do you miss most over

The answers covered a tremendous range and, oddly enough, they didn't include the big things such as I mentioned earlier in this story. That's understandable, though. The boys who are here to fight know that circumstances make it impossible for them to have any contact with family and home. They accept that. They don't fret too much about such things. They know they have answered a call that makes even the biggest things seem small. So they have become reconciled in a way to being separated from their loved ones and not having food that Mama can cook.

Miss Little Things Most. But they haven't quite grown accustomed to the little changes. The changes that you wouldn't think they'd notice. I must have talked to a thousand soldiers and I feel safe in saving that it is the little things they miss.

Take the private I talked to in Kensington Gardens. He was out for a walk to enjoy the grass under his feet, the trees in bud and the Massachusetts. But the English park didn't quite satisfy him. "It's all lovely and pretty, but it isn't the same, the flowers don't smell different. They just aren't American grass, flowers and trees.

In Memoriam

BARNES (BABY SIS) ANNIE. In loving memory of my darling daughter. ANNIE (BABY SIS) BARNES, who died two years ago today. May 1, 1941, beloved daughter of Hattie Barnes.

adughter of Hattle Barnes.

Another year has ended,
Another sun has set:
Still your memory grows stronger—
How can I ever forget?

A daughter who was true and kind.
No daughter on earth like her will we find;
For all of us she did her best
HER MOTHER, HATTIE BARNES. CARTER, REV. ROY A. In loving remembrance of my devoted husband. Rev. ROY A. CARTER, who departed this life six years ago today, May 1, 1937.

Remembrance is a golden chain Death tries to break, but all in vain; To have, to hold and then to part Is the greatest sorrow of our hearts. Short and shocking was the call When you were taken from us all. But never will we who love you best Forget the day you were laid to rest. HIS DEVOTED WIFE. COX. ELLSWORTH C. In loving remembrance of our husband, father and grandfather. ELLSWORTH C. COX. who departed this life one year ago today, May 1, 1942.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain:
But though we're parted for awhile
We know we'll meet again. We are sad within our memory, Lonely are our hearts today. For the one we loved so dearly Has forever gone away.

We think of him in silence.
No eyes may see us weep:
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
YOUR DEVOTED WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILD.

GRAY, DORSEY R. In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather. DORSEY R. GRAY, who departed this life two years ago today, May 1, 1941. Two years have passed since that sad day. The one we loved was called away: God took him home. It was Hiss will, But in our hearts he liveth still. At the end of the road there lies
A gate to gardens fair:
A place of rest and happiness,
With sunshine everywhere.

Where hearts at last are free from pain
And sorrow's crushing load.
And where our loved ones wait for us.
In peace at the end of the road.
HIS LOVING CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN, CLARA E. BROWN, CATHERINE V. MARTIN, EARL GRAY, JUNE
L. BROWN AND GILBERT M MARTIN. * GRIER. ALEATHA. In loving memory of my dear mother, ALEATHA GRIER, who departed this life three years ago today, May 1, 1940.

Today recalls the memories
Of my leved one gone to rest:
And those who think of her today
Are those who leved her best.
HER DEVOTED DAUGHTER, MAGGIE
LEE. HARVEY, REV. JAMES THOMAS. In

loving remembrance of our dear husband and father. JAMES THOMAS HARVEY, who entered into eternal rest two years ago today. May 1, 1941.

Another soldier gone
To get a great reward:
He fought the fight and kept the faith
And now gone home to God.

He fought until he fell
Upon the battlefield.
And there he heard the general say.
"Lay down your sword and shield."
HIS DEVOTED WIFE AND DAUGHTERS. HIGGS, BETTY. In loving memory of our dear mother. BETTY HIGGS, who passed away four years ago today, May 1, 1939.

Today recalls the memory Of a loved one gone to rest; And those who think of her today Are those who loved her best.

From this world of many changes, To the land of perfect rest. God has taken you, dear mother, To have eternal rest. A light from our household gone, A voice we loved is still; A place is vacant in our home Which never can be filled.

Some may think you are forgotten.
Though on earth you are no more.
But in memory you are with us.
As you always were before. Surrounded by friends we are lonesome In the midst of our joys we are blue: With a smile on our faces we have heart-aches.

Thinking, dear mother, of you.
THE FAMILY. HOLTZCLAW. W. CLAYTON. A tribute of love to the memory of our devoted husband and father. W. CLAYTON HOLTZ-CLAW. who passed away thirteen years ago today, May 1, 1930.

WIFE AND CHILDREN. MIDDLETON, ELLA G. In loving memory of my dear little friend. ELLA G. MID-DLETON, who passed away thirty years ago today. May 1. 1913.

Loved in life, remembered in death. HER DEVOTED FRIEND, MARIE JARVIS LEWIS.

PAYNE, JOHN. A tribute to the mem-ory of my beloved husband, JOHN PAYNE, who passed away one year ago today, May 1. 1942.

1, 1942.

What matter though life be dreary And I tread its paths alone. If when the journey is ended. In Heaven I will know my own. DEVOTED WIFE, ANNIE C. PAYNE.

DEVOTED WIFE, ANNIE C. PAYNE.

SCHINETTI, ALEXANDER. In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father. ALEXANDER SCHINETTI, who departed this life twelve years ago today, May I, 1931.

Time may pass and bring its changes Fresh with every coming year:
Until memory and life departs. He will live forever in our hearts. HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER, LUCILE.

SELLERS LE ROY In loving memory.

SELLERS, LE ROY. In loving memory four friend, LE ROY SELLERS, who left three years ago today, May 1, 1940. Always in our memory.
THE McKENZIE FAMILY. SMILER. JAMES H., SR. We cherish the memory of our devoted husband and father. JAMES H. SMILER. who entered eternal rest five years ago today, May 1, 1938.

"Always remembered for the good deeds he has done." THE FAMILY. WARD, SAMUEL J. In memory of SAMUEL J. WARD, who died one year ago today, May 1, 1942. The one we loved was called away.
God took him home. It was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
It's lonesome here without you.
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
But. oh. the saddest part of all—
You never said good-by.
Loved and longed for.

Martinique Put Under Navy Surveillance as Relations Are Cut Off

Showdown Seen at Hand As Hungry Islanders' Discontent Rises

The long-awaited showdown on Martinique-problem child of the Caribbean since the fall of France in 1940-appeared at hand today.

Only segment of the French Co-Empire neither occupied by the Axis nor at war with it, the island territory administered by Admiral Georges Robert was cut off formal relations with the from United States by order of Secretary of State Hull, but kept under closest surveillance by the American Navy.

Both Navy and State Departments awaited "further developments" without indicating what THURMAN, RICHARD BERTRAM. On Wednesday. April 28, 1943. Previous recruits from Martinique included more than 1,000 soldiers, among them Maj. Jean Sarrat, who was Admiral Robert's island commander of ground forces. Secretary of the Navy Knox said no reply had yet been received to the blistering note in which Mr. Hull informed Robert the United States could no longer "recognize or negotiate with any French representative in the Antilles who remains subservient or maintains contact with the Vichy regime," which he denounced as "now an integral part of the Nazi system."

Latin American reaction to the Martinique developments was a vital factor in the Government's calculations, in view of the convention entered into between American republics last year concerning "provisional administration of European colonies and possessions in the Americas.

NEW YORK, May 1.-A 28-yearold mother threw her two daughters; 4 and 5, from the room of a six-story apartment house here yesterday, authorities said, and then followed them to death on the ground below.

Assistant District Attorney Albert E. Short of Queens County said the case was closed after he had talked with the woman's aunt, who said the woman who died, Mrs. Rose Tanelian, had stabbed her in a vioent quarrel earlier in the day.

Mr. Short said Mrs. Tanelian, wife of a dress operator, apparently had taken her life and those of her daughters "because she was stricken with fear" as a result of the stab-

The Tribune's editorial was in reply to a recent statement by Mr. Davis criticizing an earlier Tribune editorial as containing "about as much misinformation per square inch as I have ever seen."

Mr. Davis quoted the earlier editorial as saying there were 3,641 'draft dodgers" in the OWI. He denied this, asserting the OWI had obtained deferments for only 65 to 70 persons, with 20 applications

The Tribune today said a member of its Washington bureau writing about "the draft deferments among the 3,641 employes of the Office of War Information referred instead to 3,641 deferments for OWI employes." Asserting it regretted the mistake, the paper added: "The gravamen of the charge against the OWI lies not in the number of deferments it has sought nor the proportion of draft dodgers among its employes but in the fact that it should have sought a single deferment or should be sheltering a single draft dodger." Two Women, Boy, 6, And Man Found Shot Dead in Westminster

WESTMINSTER, Md., May 1 .-Carroll County police today pieced together the story of what they said was a triple murder followed by suicide after finding the bodies of four persons in a tenant farm house near here vesterday.

State's Attorney Donald C. Spon-seller said Ralph Milton Wentz, about 37, formerly of Littlestown, shot Mrs. Verna L. Smith, about 23, his housekeeper; the woman's mother, Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Sykes, 56, and Mrs. Smith's son Sterling, 6. Mrs. Sykes, mother of 10 children, lived with her husband at Patapsco.

The two women, both shot through the head at close range, were found seated upright, while the boy's body was found at the foot of the stairs leading to the second floor. An autopsy showed the child had been shot twice in the head and through the heart, and investigators said this indicated that he had put up a

O'Leary New Leader At Side of Lewis in Miners' 'Big Three'

Workers Face Holiday Without Murray for First Time in 18 Years

The United Mine Workers, for the first time in 18 years, face a general miners' holiday with a new face among the triumvirate to which they traditionally look for generalship. John (Jack) O'Leary, new vice president of the union, is at the side of President John L. Lewis and Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer, the one-time Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania.

Missing is Philip Murray, now president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations as the successor to Mr. Lewis. Mr. Murray became vice president of the miners when Mr. Lewis was elected president in 1920. Mr. Kennedy joined the triumvirate in 1925.

For 18 years it was Lewis, Murray and Kennedy who constituted the union's Big Three, both around the council table in negotiations with the operators and afield when they resorted to a strike in an effort to gain new advantages for the miners.

Kennedy Mild-Mannered. To the men across the table, the operators, both physically and in debate Mr. Lewis and Mr. Murray suggested the bludgeon and rapier. Mr. Lewis, physically powerful with a voice that booms menacingly; Mr. Murray, slight of build and soft spoken. Together with Mr. Kennedy, the mild-mannered, inveterate cigar smoker and anthracite authority, they constituted a trio of experts at collective bargaining the operators learned to respect.

Frequently they won, sometimes they lost in their jousts with management but, win or lose, they stuck together as well as the famed 'Three Musketeers" of fiction until

When President Roosevelt made his successful bid for a third term Mr. Louis opposed it; Mr. Murray supported the President.

Mr. Lewis made good his promise to quit as president of the CIO when Mr. Roosevelt was re-elected and Mr. Murray succeeded him. The bond that had tied Mr. Lewis and Mr. Murray was severed finally in 1942 when Mr. Lewis declared Mr. Murray had vacated the vice presidency and named Mr. O'Leary as his successor. There has been no public indication since that time of a reconciliation.

Carried Union Card Since 1898. Mr. O'Leary, like Mr. Lewis and Mr. Kennedy, rose to prominence in organized labor from a humble start

Priddy Makes a Pretty Picture at Second Base

When 23-year-old Gerald Priddy joined the Nats and proceeded to get acquainted with 22-year-old Shortstop Johnny Sullivan, his initial advice was, "You're in the big leagues now, kid—act like it." Blond, mild-mannered Priddy was citing his own creed to Sullivan, who has taken Second Baseman Priddy has brought more native baseball intelligence to Washington's infield than it has owned since the days when Manager Ossie Bluege was functioning as a player. He's no swaggering, cocky character, but neither is he apologetic for his presence in the majors. Confidence is the word that sums up Priddy's attitude.

Ocean Wave Granted Slim Upset Chance In Turf Classic

By SID FEDER.

Associated Press Sports Writer. LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.-Minus nuch of its face paint and its fireworks—and definitely a "war baby" this year-the Kentucky Derby will be unfolded for the 69th time today and from end to end of Derbytown the neighbors' children are convinced it's a cakewalk for Count

In fact, the expected 50,000 fans who are riding the streetcars, the A cards and Shank's mare to picturesque Churchill Downs, because of wartime travel restrictions, are so sure "the Fleet's in" that many are wondering why the 11 other 3-yearolds who entered will even bother to show up when the band takes aim, at 6:30 p.m. Washington time, and lets "My Old Kentucky Home" drift out in that way that makes even a Yankee bare his head.

Only one of these 11-Ocean Wave, stablemate of Whirlaway in Warren Wright's barn—is being given even the faintest chance of sinking the Fleet and thereby spoiling the rosy hopes of Mrs. John D. Hertz of the Chicago cab and livery service Hertzes, for her second Derby triumph.

Jones After Third Victory. But the Wave walked home with cracked left foreheel last Tuesday, and it wasn't until this morning that his trainer, plain Ben Jones, the Parnell (Mo.) magician of the turf, could even decide about sendthan New York or Cleveland, locked was after his third victory in the run for the roses, to follow up his conquests with Lawrin in 1938 and Whirlaway in '41.

The rest of the field, in which there is a total of 11 colts and one gelding-the high-speed Gold Shower, owned by Mrs. Vera S. Bragg of Greenwich, Conn.—appears to be able only to give it the good old college try for second or third place. Allen Simmons' Blue Swords, which gets the Akron (Ohio) vote, and W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule, one of the "Boeing Bombers" which make up a racing "entry" for the Seattle airplane builder, are given some slight consideration by the long-shot plungers, but only by those affiliated with the society of 2-buck bettors.

This is a Derby in which war has been an added starter from the word go, and which threatened for a time to end the continuous run for Col.

Usual Derby Mob Missing. As a result, the cash customers sitting in on this year's party are drawn, almost exclusively, from the Greater Louisville area, as Col. Winn promised. Of course, there are the usual few who seeped in, but they're not having much fun about it. Hotels here are bulging at the seams with uniformed men and defense workers, so newcomers have about as much chance of finding a place to hang their hats as they have of finding a good bottle of bourbon in this virtually whisky-less village.

You notice immediately that while Louisville is loaded for its annual rip-snorting party, it's not the usual Derby mob. The streets late at night aren't jammed as in past years with celebrants. The decorations around town, the "Welcome Derby Visitors" banners—the icing on the cake -just isn't here.

But the race itself is. And while the Count definitely is the Mr. Big and some say he's the greatest since Man o' War, stranger Derby things have happened in this mile and a quarter than for him to chase some oat-burner home. It was only three years ago that unbeaten Bimelech was just as much the fair-haired boy and along came the 35-1 shot Gallahadion to burst the bubble.

Chance of Surprise Slim. If there's going to be any surprise, however, the Wave looks to be the fellow who can pull the snapper, off his recent triumphs in the Blue Grass Stakes and the Derby Trial Mile and always providing his heel injury won't trip him up. It might possibly be Blue Swords and Slide Rule, too.

Anything beyond these three, and possibly Gold Shower, however, strictly is smoking a cigarette on the wrong end.

For instance, there's Amber Light, from the Dixiana Farm of Charley Fisher, the Detroit automobile body builder. He's a nice young fellow and he nipped Ocean Wave in the Louisiana Derby. But now he's regarded as strictly out of his league One hundred and two hits! That's running against these gee-gees at the total Coast batters collected in a mile-and-a-quarter and carrying 126 pounds.
Then there is No Wrinkles, whose chief claim to fame is that he is the hope of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago and Trainer Roy Waldron for their second Derby winner follow-ing Gallahadion; and Modest Lad, dark horse entry of Mrs. Henry L. Finch, wife of a New York stock-broker, and Twoses, the other half of Boeing's one-two punch, and Dove Pie, which sports the silks of J. Warfield Rodgers of Memphis, and Townsend B. Martin's Bankrupt, and finally, Burnt Cork, entered by Eddie (Rochester of the radio) Anderson. Rochester insists this is not a gag for Mr. Benny.

Insures India's Safety, Returning Officer Says

Col. O'Donnell Reveals Remote Lookouts Block Jap Surprise Attacks

Back in this country for the first time in more than three years of overseas flight duty, Col. Emmett O'Donnell, assistant chief of staff for the 10th Air Force, told Army officials today that a unique aircraft warning system is making India virtually surprise-proof against Japanese aerial attack.

Warning units of the Army Air Porces, living on friendly terms with native head-hunters on mountain peaks, maintain such vigilance that the Japs have not been able to advance into India or exploit their gains in Burma. Invariably, when Jap bombers approach outposts, he said. American fighter planes are waiting for them in the air to shoot them down.

The teams perched on the mountain tops stand a 24-hour vigil and are able to signal or radio the approach of enemy plans so far in advance that the 10th Air Force fighters have ample time to get into the air. These hardy outfits are composed of radio operators, observers and radio repairmen. Each unit has its own medical attendant and cook. Supplied by Air.

"These men are in real headhunter country," Col. O'Donnell said. "But the Americans have gone in there and succeeded in getting on friendly terms with them. Most of the warning units are in such remote places that it takes two to three weeks to reach them by trail. Supplies are dropped regularly from Combined with this warning sys-

D. C. Manpower Stabilizing Plans NearCompletion

Will Be Enforced By Public Opinion And 'Sanctions'

By MIRIAM OTTENBERG. A formal plan telling Washington employers whom they may and may not hire, with enforcement mainly by public opinion and threat of "sanctions," appeared to be reaching its final stages today.

Area Director Ramy B. Deschner told a press conference late yesterday that his Management-Labor Committee had named a subcommittee of three to prepare a tentative draft of an employment stabilization plan to present to the full committee on or before next Saturday for final action.

The subcommittee charged with preparing the plan that will affect Washington employers and workers includes W. A. McCoy of the Civil Service Commission, representing management; Ernest B. Spangler of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance, representing the AFL, and Joseph D. Phillips, an employe of the War Shipping Administration, representing the 600 Cases to Be Decided. Another subcommittee is to be appointed to handle the other major problem of the area WMC-operation of the 48-hour week. The subcommittee, Mr. Deschner said, will go through the file of "involved and controversial" cases in which he has granted temporary exemptions and recommend what policy is to be followed in deciding them.

About 600 cases are still to be decided here, of which some 25 were described by Mr. Deschner as controversial. Several hundred cases he said, had already been decided and there have been no appeals.

As soon as the stabilization plan is agreed on, Mr. Deschner said, his office will be in a position to carry it out because "budgetary matters have been overcome to a considerable extent" and additional personnel can be taken into the United States Employment Service. Area headquarters, now at Fifth and K streets N.W., will be moved to other quarters in the near future, a move D. C. Milk Firm Wins which Mr. Deschner had said also was necessary for a successful pro-

Powers Defined. Mr. Deschner made it clear that in this area the Management-Labor Committee would have the authority to formulate policies, establish employment controls and give a "critical evaluation of the administration of the area program.' He admitted that this definition of the committee's role in guiding manpower activities here came on demands from members of the committee who had been under fire from organizations and individuals to find out what they were doing in the sence of a stabilization plan, particularly since there had been no regular meetings of the committee. If the area director and the committee fail to agree on policy, he said, the question will be submitted to the regional office. Mr. Deschner said he would overrule the committee "only in real emergencies" and even then, I will have to submit an explanation to the regional director and his committee. Since he was absent in St. Louis

Asked how he would enforce a stabilization plan when it is adopted here, Mr. Deschner said that if an employer in an essential activity continued to "pirate" labor, refused to issue or require releases, and recruited workers from other areas County Women Voters without clearing through the United States Employment Service, "we can bring to bear every agency comprising the commission itself as well as any of the co-operating, collaborating or constituent agencies to demand that they bring pressure to bear on an employer to conform to the stabilization plan.

If the employer still refused to comply, Mr. Deschner added, the area director could, with the approval of his committee, deny the employer the benefits of the stabilization plan by declaring him nonessential under the plan and "publishing that decision so the community may know who refuses to carry out the spirit of a voluntary

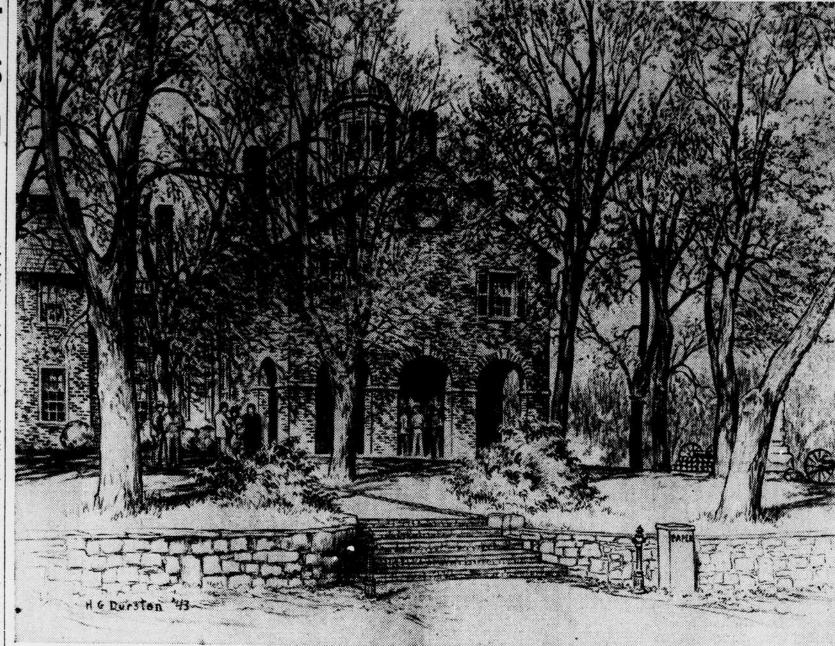

If the employer was declared nonessential under the plan presumably other employers would be given a blank check in hiring workers away from the non-complying employer The area office also is charged with certifying housing needs for an employer's workers and approving selective service replacement schedules, which might be used to bring the employer into line

To Define Activities. The stabilization plan also will define locally needed activities, possibly enlarging the list to other service industries considered essential here, Mr. Deschner said.

Yet to be decided are whether the United States Employment Service will be the exclusive hiring agent for any workers and whether releases will be required only where transfers are made for higher pay On the former question, Mr. Deschner said that if the USES is the exclusive hiring agent in any case it will be for workers in critical occupations. He refused to comment on the latter question because of the national WMC controversy on

Under stabilization plans in some areas, workers in essential activities cannot leave essential activities and regardless of pay. In two areas-Buffalo and Louisville—all male employes are hired through, the United States Employment Service.

FAIRFAX COURTHOUSE-Helen Gatch Durston has drawn the 143-year-old courthouse in the county seat of Fairfax County, Fairfax, Va. For years the entire town took its name from this building, and many older residents of the State still address mail to relatives in "Fairfax Courthouse, Va." Organized in 1742, the county government had seats near Vienna and at Alexandria before settling at Fairfax.

George Washington was on the board which supervised the construction of the courthouse, although he died the year before it was officially opened in 1800. Additional wings built since then show slightly in the sketch, as does the county bulletin board, where notices are posted for the citizenry. Hitching posts still stand in front of the building.

A marker on the courthouse lawn commemorates the first skirmish of the Civil War, fought when a company of Union cavalry rode into Fairfax in the early morning of June 1, 1861. Another marker there honors a man believed to be the first Confederate to die during the war. Capt. John Q. Marr of the Warrenton Rifles was killed as he attempted to organize his troops to meet the cavalry attack. Two years later Fairfax was the scene of a daring raid by Confederate Col. John Singleton Mosby. He captured Union Gen. Edwin Stoughton and several aides as they slept in the Episcopal rectory and successfully smuggled them through the Union lines as prisoners of war for Confederate Gen. J. E. B. Stuart.

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, May 1.—Richmond benefit of Georgetown Children's has been selected as the mailing center from which approximately 3,000,000 copies of War Ration Book No. 3 will be distributed through the mail by the Office of Price Administration throughout Virginia.

Officials of the three OPA district offices in Virginia said, however, that issuance of the new book is not to be construed as a forerunner of plans to ration other commodities. Book 3, they pointed out, is a replacement book and contains a new supply of stamps to take the place of those now being used in Books 1

Dr. C. Hart Schaff, Richmond district rationing executive, said the OPA office here is making plans to handle the huge job and that a formal call would go out in a few days calling for 1,000 volunteers to help the OPA in getting the books to every Virginia family.

Under a plan worked out by Price Administrator Prentiss Brown and Postmaster General Walker, the book will be sent to those persons who mail a post-card application There will be no schoolhouse registration, such as there was in the issuance of the first two ration books. a park and planning tax. A portion of Chevy Chase was removed from the Montgomery County suburban district by another measure, Senate Bill 391, and the boundaries of that community were increased in Senate Bill 392.

The tax rate of Riverdale was increased from 25 cents to 35 cents per $100 on assessable real property to pay for garbage collection service. The Board of Public Works was authorized to convey certain land to Laurel under the provisions of House Bill 414, and the corporate limits of the towns of Riverdale and Mount Rainier were extended in House Bills 340 and 371.

Oxon Hill Bill Signed. Another bill the Governor signed authorized the inclusion of 137 acres of the Oxon Hill district of Prince Georges County in the Washington Suburban Sanitary District.

A revision of the fourth, sixth and tenth election districts of Montgomery County was effected by the Governor's signing of Senate bill 202. Most of the other measures relating to the two counties were of minor importance.

The Governor signed the "little war council" bill, only after Attorney General William C. Walsh had order to pass inspection. # For New Fuel Rationing

In order to avoid a repetition of last fall's rush in issuing fuel oil ration coupons, J. S. Douglas, executive secretary of the Alexandria Ration Board, has called for volunteers to report Monday to start sorting the files preparatory to issuing the cou-

Mr. Douglas said that while the board has had no official order as yet, it is his understanding that homeowners will be given cards on which to indicate whether their situation entitles them to the same allotment they got last winter. If they have moved, or the number of persons in the household has changed, they will have to fill out new applications. In the meantime, volunteers will get the files in shape so that rations for unchanged households can be issued with a minimum of work.

123,500 Units Of War Housing Are Completed

147,000 Are Begun In First Quarter of '43, NHA Reveals

Approximately 123,500 new war housing units were completed and made available for war workers during the first quarter of this year and 147,000 units were placed under construction, National Housing Administrator John B. Blandford, jr. announced today.

This represented an increase of more than 25 per cent over the last quarter of 1942 in number of completions and of more than 60 per cent in the number of units started, Mr. Blandford said

The report reflected a sharp acceleration in starts under the publicly financed phase of the program, which includes dormitory units and trailers, as well as family accommodations in new structures. All but a minor percentage of the publicly financed war housing started during recent months represents temporary construction, scheduled for dismantling after the war.

D. C. Slips to Eighth In National Listing For First Quarter

The office of Robert H. Davis, District building inspector, today reported building permits issued during April amounted to but $544,939, nearly half of which was issued this

Meanwhile, a report by Secretary of Labor Perkins showed that dur-ing the first three months of this year Washington dropped to eighth place in construction values after having held the leading position for some time last year. Chicago and New Orleans, where the majority of building listed was Federal, were

The first quarter in the District showed $4,944,000, of which $1,622,-000 was Federal construction, as compared with $41,001,000 during the same period last year. Last year, $35,522,000 was in Federal building, the Secretary announced. The report also stated that in March $376,000 was awarded in Federal contracts for 106 units here and that contracts for 200 units in Arlington County amounted to $452,000.

"A 72 per cent decline in the value of contracts awarded for federally financed building projects in March was accompanied by a similar drop in the value of permits issued for private work, she said. "New non-residential building valuations dropped 85 per cent, as compared with decreases of 60 per cent in new residential building and 55 per cent in alterations and repairs to existing structures.'

The largest local permit issued this week was for $162,000 to erect six family apartments of 54 units at 3000-4-12-16-52-60-68 Thirtieth street S.E. W. ### The Home Clinic Service-Weary Canvas Can Be Renewed And Protected With New, Pliable Paint

One of these days you will be thinking about your first outdoor grill and sitting in the control of the car and produce a swanky effect.

This new paint can be used as the control of the car and produce a swanky effect. grill and sitting in the sun again. With the stores prcatically stripped of outdoor furniture and the cotton duck industry gone to war, last year's chairs, settees and garden umbrellas must serve again this year Before the sight of streaked or faded canvas gets you down, here is some spirit-lifting news. Something can be done about it! A new paint comes to the rescue, especially formulated to protect and renew service-weary canvas.

Made by a well known manufacturer of chemical coatings, this canvas paint has special properties. It is water-repellent, completely sunresistant, will not crack or stiffen the fabric and contains a mildew-killing agent. This one application not only decorates but also preserves the fabric. Regular paints are designed to "stay put" on rigid surfaces, but this paint reaches each thread of a fabric, and the thread will remain pliable after the paint is ap-

Protection Against Friction. And here's further news. When you are painting porch chairs, gliders, cushions or any canvas articles where friction is a factor, there's an auxiliary product called "overcoating" which gives double protection. This clear liquid, brushed over the canvas paint, seals in the pigments. There is just one rule to remember! Before applying the overcoating, make sure that the canvas paint underneath is thor-

War Housing (Continued From Page B-1.)

Homes Corp. and allotments of $274,339,303 from borrowings made pursuant to the Housing Act as amended. These funds are financing not only the public war housing units thus far completed, but also projects on leased sites rather than all other public units now under construction.

As against this program, however, privately financed war housing completed or started, plus the private projects scheduled by NHA under the current program, present an aggregate investment of at least $3,000,000.000, according to the official estimates supplied Mr. Mullenix. The present outlook is for additional war housing, both privately and public financed, to meet the needs of war labor migration before July 1 this year.

The report also discloses that in the publicly financed phase of the program 272,989 units had been completed as of February 28. This included 195,888 family units, 60,-305 dormitory units and 16,796 trail-

"During the last six months of 1942 of the war housing assigned to the Federal Public Housing Authority 95 per cent was temporary construction, 3 per cent was demountable and only 2 per cent represented permanent housing. This indicates that the Federal Government is not using public funds to build a large amount of permanent housing which will plague the real estate

Dries in Short Time. There is no trick to applying canvas paint. It goes on as quickly and easily as water colors, and dries in an hour or two. You may choose from 10 colors plus black and white And if you have a special color scheme, that, too, may be matched, for each color is designed to mix well with all the others, so that and in the public interest. any desired shade can be achieved with proper mixing.

You will find that the canvas paint covers a lot of ground with a minimum of effort. A quart will redecorate about 60 square feet, or about two average size awnings in average condition. If your grass, fibre or sisal rug is old and porous, use a coating of sizing first. This will cut down appreciably the amount of paint needed to give it a complete beauty treatment. And the mildew-resistant feature of the paint is another asset, especially in the climate which makes Washington summers famous.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, May 1 (P).—Cotton prices continued to move in a narrow range today as traders held to the sidelines until the wage and labor situations were clarified. Scattered commission house liquidation and light hedging was absorbed by trade and price fixing and buying by locals. The spot markets continued quiet with indications of an easing in prices possibly influences by the CCC stabilization program.

A Lesson for the Week One Fisherman's Tale of An Old Waterside Wonder

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

This is a fishing story, told by one who participated in it. To a person familiar with the Lake of Galilee it recalls memories of fishing life along shore, the night of fruitless toil, the clumsy net and boat, with its big sweeps, the naked fishermen returning without a catch, then the final cast with its load of 153 big fish—even in his old age, Fisherman John could not forget the number of the memorable catch.

On the shore a figure, Himself a fisherman, cried the familiar greeting, "Any luck?" Then His word of &counsel to cast on the right-hand which more later-the threefold side of the boat, with the amazing injunction of the Master was breakfast. "Some persons, like Teddy Roosevelt," a famous editor once said to me, "are instinctively news-makers. Whether you like them or dislike them, they interest you." Peter was of this sort. He was forever doing or saying something that holds the eye. On this occasion, he grabbed his cloak and girdle, for he was naked, and simply swam or strode the hundred yards to John's report of the nakedness of Peter is a little touch of verisimilitude. To this day the fishermen of Galilee are often naked. One day, strolling along the shore at Tabgha, Milady and I came upon our friend, Ali, without a stitch of clothing upon him. He instantly submerged to the neck, grinning sheepishly, while his comrades cast jibes at him.

Whatever else he was. Peter was a doer. Life is roughly divided into two groups: the spectators or critics. and the doers. Some folk do things, and the other folk talk about them. We weary of the critics, but we rejoice in the doers-the ones who dare go overboard for a conviction. So quick-acting Peter was the first to greet the Lord whom he had lately denied.

stimulate a widespread observance. of National Family Week in view of disrupted home conditions, with the the assault against the family by totalitarian powers. It is pointed out that one of the principal tactics of the Nazis has been to try to destroy the influence of the church of families in defense or camp comover the family, and the influence of parents over children. The Nazis, it is stressed, are attempting everywhere to break up the family as the central unit of the community because this conception is antagonistic to the Hitler idea that the state must be the one and only focus of influence and power.

Because of the threat to the family inherent in the Nazi ideology, a in Moscow after the war was exgrowing number of church leaders in the United States are thinking of the church-family relationship in new terms. They believe that now, more than ever before, it is important to emphasize that the family is the fundamental unit of society and that religion must continue to be essential for family welfare. But some church leaders want toward his co-religionists, but urged to reverse the relationship between religion and the family. The tradi- ganda for religion. tional community attitude has been that the family should get behind the church. Now the plea is in- of liberty to carry on Sunday creasingly heard that the church schools, removal of the veto on Bible must get behind the family.

Sacredness of Marriage. Special emphasis will be placed during the observance upon the sacredness of marriage and particularly upon the welfare of children Keeping in mind that totalitarian governments seek to indoctrinate children at an early age, religious leaders are stressing the democratic principle that the child is not a creature of the state, and that child training is primarily the right and duty of the parents.

Attention will also be centered upon the place of the child because of the growth of juvenile delinquency as a result of wartime conditions. Church leaders will call upon parents during the forthcoming observance to pay closer attention to the rearing of children during this war period

On this point, the Committee or National Family Week states: "The disturbances of family life growing out of war conditions constitute an emergency which requires the attention and concerted action of religious and all constructive community forces. "The responsible constructive forces of the community must be brought face to face with a rising tide of juvenile delinquency due to

To All Bible Lovers

ALL LOVERS OF GOD'S WORD-of every denomination—are invited to come and fellowship with us in our SPRING BIBLE CONFERENCE to be held each evening at 7:45 o'clock, Tuesday, May 4, through Sunday, May 9. This is an annual treat enjoyed by our members, our friends, and our neighbors, and we desire this to be the best we have ever held.

REV. CHARLES H. STEVENS, pastor of Salem Baptist Church, Winston-Salem, N. C., will be the conference speaker. He is known throughout the land as a great student and expositor of the Bible. He was a speaker at the great Congress on Prophecy held in New York last

Let's take time out from a world of toil and strife to listen to God for a short season. You will find it pays big dividends. Bring your Bible! THE FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH, 12th and E Sts. S.E.

Six and one-half times, The flexibility is achieved by keeping the lady with us said, but she has everything as simple as possible, and been losing her head over "The Skin resorting where need be-as in the of Our Teeth" ever since it opened in Washington last autumn. Mr. Wilder's play, as you may have heard, is about man, the most magnificent of the mammals. It is about man in all the states and stages he has lived, and all at the same time. Naturally this is not quite as easy on the imagination as an Abbott and Costello picture or a Shubert Bros. musical comedy, but it is wonderful for the spirit and the age. The hero is George Antrobus (Fredric March), but he is all men instead of merely one named George Antrobus. He invents the wheel, the multiplication table, he thinks up a way to survive the ice age and working on universal peace at the end. He also gets a little bored with Mrs. Antrobus and the children and has an affair with a maid (Miss Bankhead), but he is essentially a good man with a deep faith that everything will come out all right if humanity uses its head and its heart in the right ways. Mr. Antrobus, you see, is a little fuzzy in outline, but you would be too if you had lived 5,000 years and come all the way from the Garden of Eden to Excelsior, N. J. Fuzzy or not, however, he is the most inspiring figure that ever walked on a as Antrobus, Florence Eldridge as stage. Being such, he fulfills his his wife, pretty young Frances Heffin purpose (or Mr. Wilder's) which is as the eternal Antrobus daughter, to make you proud to belong to the Florence Reed as the wise old clairsame species and to make you confident that no matter how often he stumbles, man is going places. Good places, too.

You may think this sounds like so much to the cockeyed wonder of William Saroyan, a writer whose it all, and to Albert Johnson who philosophy has been questioned by devised the settings which make the people who have cared to penetrate watch the burning of the old man's books and clothing. That man was Halfdan Waller, set designer assigned to the picture and a native born Norwegian whose children only recently were rescued from their homeland and brought to Hollywood. Waller, during his stay in Oslo, Norway, under the German yoke, was put to work at his trade as an architect, changing Masonic temples into less reputable places of amusement. He is, he told his associates, still too closely associated with the troubles of his native land to enjoy watching them depicted even for a motion picture. As usual, the collection of books

Brown's Talk on Prices

OPA Administrator Cautions Against Race to Beat Living Costs

The text of Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown's speech

last night follows: Your Government needs your support in this crisis in the coal fields a crisis which, if not averted, will reach the battlefields. The argument of those who would break the industrial peace and junk the "no-strike" agreement is that increases in the cost of living have run beyond increases in wages. This, my fellow Americans, is not so.

Wages in industry, factory and mine have risen more since the outbreak of war in 1939 than have either the general cost of living or the cost of food. Tonight I propose to show these facts.

Stabilization is not easy. It is not easy for people to live with. It is not easy for Government. The Government can do the job only if the people-all the people-are willing not only to accept stabilization but to support it; only if every one is ready not only to support the stabilization of the other fellow's price or wage but to accept stabilization of his own price or his own

Must Hold Everywhere.

A year of experience has shown us that increases in the cost of living beget increases in wages and that wage increases in their turn beget increases in the cost of living. It has shown us that we cannot hold the line anywhere unless we hold it everywhere.

A month ago I wrote leaders of the Congress to oppose the Pace bill, which would have substantially increased farm prices. I did this not because I was unmindful of the claims which the farmer has upon the Nation. I did it because an increase in farm prices would have touched off a race between wages and the cost of living, and because of my profound conviction that farmers, like workers and all the rest of us, have nothing to gain from such a race and must, indeed, lose everything. The Pace bill did not pass.

Today we are faced by a crisis on the wage front. Demands are now being made for substantial wage increases. I am compelled to speak in opposition, just as a month ago I spoke up in opposition to the proposed rise in farm prices. I am compelled to point out that if this wage increase is granted, increases cannot be denied to workers in other industries and increased farmer, manufacturer, wholesaler prices cannot be denied to farmers. These increases in wages and in farm prices can only mean further rise in the cost of living. What will it profit workers to have more dollars in their pay envelope if it takes all these extra dollars, and perhaps more, to feed and clothe their families?

Miners Earning More.

I recognize how strong are the claims of the coal miners. Theirs is hard and dangerous work and it is work without which the wheels of industry must falter and stop. But I cannot say too strongly that and the cost of living. Now for the Coal miners are earning today far more than they earned at the time war broke out. Average hourly earnings in the bituminous mines in January of this year were 22 per cent above the average for August, 1939. This does not measure the full improvement, however. Where three years ago thousands of miners ing the line. were working one or two days a week, with frequent layoffs, today they are working full time. Their Seaman Held in Jersey weekly pay envelopes show the difference.

Average weekly earnings in January of this year were 53 per cent | By the Associated Press. greater than in August, 1939. I cite these figures, not because I begrudge the miners their gains, but only to show that they have shared with most of the rest of us in the economic improvement of the past three years.

Rising Prices Cut Gains.

There is, to be sure, another side to the story. These gains have not been wholly real. Rising prices have eaten into this increase of earnings. Nonetheless, they have not eaten it away altogether. During the Blanchfield, who ordered him held period in which weekly wages rose 53 per cent, the cost of living increased 22 per cent. Therefore, despite the rise in the cost of living, the weekly wages of the miner will buy 25 per cent more goods today than in the summer of 1939.

It must be admitted that the prices paid by miners for food and clothing have undoubtedly risen more than is shown in the official figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. As we all know, there are chiselers and black market operators who are profiting from the Nation's need, who are charging, not the ceiling prices we have established, but what the traffic will

It is doubly bitter for those who honestly abide by the rules of the game to pay tribute to those who How serious this black market is, no one knows. A careful study made by a great labor union in New Jersey shows a 10 to 12 per cent higher cost than does the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The true figure is probably somewhere between the two. But accepting for the purpose of argument the full price rise stated by the union, wages in industry on a 1939 base outstrip the claimed rise in the cost of

Rise Reasonably Stabilized.

Even if we confine our inquiry to food costs alone, which we were legally unable to hold until the Stabilization Act was passed, wages have risen more than the cost of living, as examined by the New Jersey CIO. Our purpose in the law was not to change but to hold the level, to stabilize.

In the year just past, the Office of Price Administration was confronted with the enormous task of will speak on "Britain and America moving swiftly to control millions of prices. It is understandable that mistakes were made, that the performance fell short of perfection. Nevertheless, the rise of prices has been reasonably well stabilized What is more important, the tools of control have been forged. Finally experience in their use has provided the "know-how" we must have to do the job. Today we can do the job and we shall do the job.

I have drawn up a four point program to control and in many instances to roll back the cost of liv-ing and then to hold it. I have instructed my staff to put this program into effect without delay to the limit of our powers.

Control "Across the Board."

These points are: First, to extend price control across the board, to every important

Second, to roll back those prices which have got out of hand. The prices of meats, fresh and canned egetables, coffee, among others, will be rolled back. Third, to establish specific dollarsand-cents prices for foods, so that all may know—sellers and buyers alike—what the legal price is. These prices will be printed in small booklets which the housewife can put in her handbag when she goes to market, and will be otherwise displayed. Fourth, to bring the chiseler, the racketeer, the black market operator to justice. These parasites feed not only upon the consumer but upon the overwhelming majority of businessmen, who are eager to abide by the law and our regulations under the law. I propose with your help to enforce these ceiling prices and to exterminate these criminal operators of the illegitimate markets.

Responsibility With Public.

The main responsibility for control of the black market is with you, the American people. In a short time you will know the legal price for practically all food you buy. If you pay a higher price, you are a law violater. If you are charged a higher price, the seller is a law violater. I do not think the United States Army could enforce price control completely without the active co-operation of the American people. You can enforce it if you refuse to pay the price above those established by law.

The claimed justification for this strike would fade entirely if every American coal miner and housewife would make and keep this simple pledge: "I will not pay one cent

We in the Office of Price Administration are charged with the responsibility of fixing prices. We are keeping the value in the American dollar. We are the protector of your savings, your insurance policy, bought for the benefits of your old age and your dependents. We aim to preserve the value of the bonds of your Government so that the dollars you now loan to your Government will have the same value when they are returned to you as Thankless Task.

We do not mind the criticism, often very bitter. We expect it. We cut across the family life of every one in the Nation. We have the thankless task of saying to the and retailer that their prices cannot exceed fixed limits. We necessarily reach into the complicated and intricate structure of business with fixed and arbitrary rules. It is not surprising that we are resented by those we control.

Every day under normal conditions in good times and bad times there are business casualties and failures. Now these are blamed on the Office of Price Administration. Actually, business casualties are today lower than in a generation. Your Government needs your support in this critical hour.

the coal miners cannot better their that this office is holding as nearly The simple truth of the matter is position in a race between wages as humanly possible to the principle of the Stabilization Act of last fall. Our answer to those who assert that we are not holding the cost of living line is that wages in industry, factory and mine have risen amply and sufficiently to cover the inevitable rises in the level of living costs. There is no justification for breaking the stabilization program. Let the American people join us in hold-headquarters.

By the Associated Press. CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., May .- The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Roberts of Meltons were killed by a train on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway tracks near their home yesterday.

The children, Lewis J., 3, and Jeanne Norwood, 2, had been playing in their yard about 40 yards from the tracks and presumably wandered onto the right of way. The scene of the accident was a curve and the fast passenger train could not be halted in time to save the youngsters. One report said they were sitting on the rails. A highway separates the Roberts home from the tracks. The father of the children is stationed with the Army Air Forces at Columbus, Ohio.

It should not take too much study to realize that this cannot be a real raise. If South really liked the diamonds he would redouble, or possibly if he didn't want the opponents to take the double out he would pass. Hence there is no sense to South's raising his partner to three diamonds directly following a business double of that suit except to tell North that he, South, had no losing diamonds and that, played at another suit, North need not fear

Actually the slam could have been defeated if West had led the ace and another trump. But West opened a diamond—the suit East had doubled. North's queen forced East's ace and declarer ruffed. He cashed the spade ace, ruffed a spade in dummy and discarded two spades on the diamond king and the second high club. Then he cross-ruffed clubs and spades for the next four tricks. This left South with only trumps, all of which were high except for West's ace. The trump opening and continuation, however, would have left North with one trump too few to take care of spade suit; why not show your suit South's losing spades. Yesterday you were Oswald Ja-

Uncle Ray's Corner

A letter from 13-year-old Kay Gorson brings up a question which is interesting but hard to answer. She would like me to tell "how language began."

The story of language goes back farther than the story of writing. People must have been able to speak to one another before they first made pictures on the walls of caves. No one can be sure what kind of words poeple used during the Stone Age. There was no writing in those days, unless we call the cave pic-tures a rough kind of writing. The pictures show objects, but they do not tell us what the objects were called.

The best we can do is to guess what words were used at the time language began. Quite a number of scholars have worked on the problem and they have brought forward several theories.

One theory was nicknamed "the bowwow theory." It suggested that language grew out of the efforts of people to imitate sounds. Thus a person who did not have any name for a dog might call it a "bowwow." In the same way we call certain birds "bobwhites" because they make "bobwhite" sounds. Other experts have produced what may be called "the ouch theory." They say that language probably started with cries of pleasure or pain, which a person might utter without being taught the meaning of any words. No single theory can explain the many kinds of words in a well-grown language. Each language, no doubt, grew very slowly, with new words being added with the passing years. Even our great English language, with its hundreds of thousands of words, keeps on adding words as time goes by. the diamond strength which East's As to the bowwow theory, we can think of a number of names which The only possible argument against are like sounds uttered by birds

Bedtime Stories

Flitting here and flitting there, Silently the livelong day. Peering, prying, shrewdly spying, Is the way of Sammy Jay.

Of course, I do not mean that he is doing this all the time. But that is Sammy's way when he wants to find out something that no one will, tell him. There isn't a cleverer spy in all the Green Forest. And there isn't any one who knows more about the affairs of other people. So when Sammy made up his mind that Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy had managed to dig a new house and keep it a secret, and when he noticed that Reddy was doing a great deal more hunting than there seemed any good reason for if he had only one stomach to keep full, he promptly decided that he would do a little spying just to satisfy his own curiosity. He had a feeling that he might discover something very interesting.

So the next time Sammy saw Reddy hunting on the Green Meadows he kept Reddy in sight, all the time pretending to be very busy hunting himself. He kept his tongue still and he kept as much out of sight as possible, but he managed to keep Reddy always in view. Reddy had very good luck that morning. Sammy was too far away to see what Reddy had caught. but presently Reddy started off as if bound straight for some particular place. Sammy chuckled to himself and followed, taking great care to keep just as far behind Reddy as possible and still keep him in sight. Reddy trotted along swiftly to the edge of the Green Forest. This surprised Sammy because Sammy had hunted and hunted through the Green Forest for Reddy's new home and hadn't found a sign of it.

When Reddy reached the edge of the Green Forest he followed it to where it joined the Old Pasture. Then he looked this way and that way to make sure that no one was watching him. He was very crafty, was Reddy, as he always is. Sure that no one was watching, for he couldn't see Sammy Jay in the thick top of a tall hemlock tree, he turned into an old cowpath among the bushes of the Old Pasture and trotted on as swiftly as before. But even then the claver rascal didn't go straight to his new home. He was far too smart for that. He followed the old cowpath a short distance and then leaped lightly to MODERN MAIDENS one side among the bushes and jumped up on a big rock, where he sat for a few minutes looking back the way he had come to make sure that no one was following him. It was well for Sammy Jay that he knew the ways of Reddy Fox. He had expected Reddy to do some such smart trick as this, so he was not caught. Instead of following Reddy he had at once made up his mind that Reddy's home was somewhere in the Old Pasture and so he had flown swiftly by a roundabout way to a certain tree in the Old Pasture beyond where Reddy was watching and from which he could see much of the Old Pasture. There he sat perfectly still.

Presently Reddy came trotting along right under the tree in which Sammy sat. Reddy didn't once think of looking up. He was quite sure that no one was watching him and he trotted on with an eager look in his eyes which puzzled Sammy. From bush to bush Sammy followed and in a little while came to a place where he could see a heap of yellow sand in front of a great rock and back of the yellow sand an opening in the ground.

"Ha!" said Sammy, but not aloud. His eyes snapped joyfully. He knew that he had found Reddy's new home. Then he hid in a bush close by, where he could watch, for he was not yet satisfied.

"There is something here worth seeing," said he to himself. And (Released by the Associated Newspapers.) "I haven't got the heart to break it myself."

SPEARHEADING THE MOBILIZATION OF:

"The Un-Armed Forces of America"

A Statement on Retailers' Support of America's War Effort, by Charles B. Dulcan, Sr.

Vice President and General Manager of The Hecht Co.

• A few decades ago, the Village Store became the mecca and the meeting place for the frank and neighborly exchange of gossip, news and opinion. So today, in a broader sense, the Market Places of America have become the great "meeting ground" for millions. And at these crossroads of Trade, where men and women seek their requiremnts for daily living ... thru this channel, the tide of humanity ebbs and flows ... not twice in twenty-four hours, but every second, and every minute, and every hour ... of every working day.

- The Retail Industry knows and meets more people every day than any other on the face of the globe. No individual, or family, can exist in a free and democratic civilization, such as ours, without almost daily contact with some branch of retailing.
- The contact may be with your corner drugstore, or a food market, or a shop... or a larger store dealing in tens of thousands of commodities:.. but the make-up of our scheme of daily life demands a constant contact with "America's Civilian Supply Line"... the distributors of essential things... that people want and need to live.
- Today every merchant, large or small, is a vital link in the Supply Line for the civilian population of our country.
- It seems significant, therefore, that the Retailers of America have been asked to join with our Government in bringing to public view the Four Freedoms War Bond Show, which is having its world premiere showing at The Hecht Co., under sponsorship of the United States Treasury Department and the Saturday Evening Post.
- From Washington, the exhibit will travel to other important stores, in other great American cities . . . and the fact that the local showings will be held under the auspices of large retail institutions indicates an awareness of the important part that American merchants are playing, and will continue to play, in the active support of our Nation's war effort.
- Perhaps, because we are so close to the lives of millions of our fellow citizens... perhaps, because we understand their wants, their needs, their requirements and their problems...

- perhaps that is why so many of America's great stores have given so generously of their facilities to the active support of our Government's war program.
- And yet, this establishment is but one among hundreds of thousands, large and small... with whom people of America make daily contact. I feel that we may speak for all our fellow-retailers when I say that we recognize a definite responsibility to do our full part in furtherance of the national war effort.
- There exists a positive obligation on the part of American retailers ... and especially larger institutions ... to carry a full share of the burden ... not only in the selling of Bonds and Stamps ... to which the FOUR FREEDOMS WAR BOND SHOW is dedicated ... but also in support of all government activity ... Red Cross, Civilian Defense, Conservation, and all branches of the Armed Forces.
- Thus the retailers of America, by the very nature of their function, have been privileged to spearhead the mobilization of "America's Un-armed Forces" . . . and to unify public thinking and public morale solidly behind the war effort of our Government. In this endeaver we have been brilliantly supported by the press, the radio and by America's national magazines.
- We are indeed grateful for the honor of having been selected as America's first store to present the FOUR FREEDOMS WAR BOND SHOW. And we feel a deep sense of satisfaction in making available all the facilities at our command to assure the fullest measure of success which this great war effort so richly deserves.
- We shall continue in the future, as we have in the past, to fulfill our own obligation to our country and to our fellow-citizens in the support of all governmental war activities. And we extend sincere congratulations to Norman Rockwell, to the United States Treasury Department and to the Saturday Evening Post . . . who have made possible this important war bond exhibition . . . based upon Mr. Rockwell's brilliant interpretation of the FOUR FREEDOMS . . . the four essentials to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness . . . as conceived by America's great wartime President.
