Bill Designed To Curb Labor 'Racket' Pushed

Landis' Measure Requires Union Financial Reports

The House Military Affairs Committee late today approved unanimously a more drastic wartime anti-strike bill in reporting out the Senate Connally measure. In addition to the Senate penalties against encouraging a strike after the Government has taken over a plant or mine, the House bill revives the Smith bill, which passed the House in December, 1941, but died in the Senate.

Representative Landis, Republican, of Indiana told a House Labor Subcommittee today his bill to require unions to furnish the Labor Department with periodical financial statements Japanese-Americans would "get at these racketeers who charge big initiation fees" on war construction jobs, then fire the workers.

"My bill seeks to put labor unions on exactly the same basis, in so far as their financial activities are concerned, as corporations have been on for many years," Mr. Landis said. The measure also would prohibit contributions by labor organizations and Mr. Landis, without mentioning specifically the United Mine Workers' contributions to Democratic campaigns early in the New Deal,

The letter, dated February 23, was read by Representative Baldwin, Republican, of New York.

Only this morning Republican members of the House held conference on the trade agreements and their leader, Representative Martin of Massachusetts, said the meeting developed "a great deal of sentiment" to give Congress veto pow-ers over the President's authority to negotiate the pacts.

Cap Bon Break-Through by British Closes Trap on Enemy Remnants; "It's All Over," Allied General Says

Enemy Raked by Fire From Land, Sea and Air

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 11.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today that British armor had forced a complete break-through on the neck of Cap Bon Peninsula, closing that blind alley at its mouth and pocketing enemy forces which still were fighting fiercely to the south and west.

Advancing from the Hamman Lif area on the north side of the neck, the British 1st Army crossed the base of the peninsula to the outskirts of Hammamet on the south side, and took Soliman, Grombalia and Menzel Bou Zelfa in the center, the communique announced.

(A Reuters dispatch from Allied headquarters said the British entered Hammamet early today) Scorched by Allied fire from land, sea and air, the remnants of the German and Italian armies which were crowded onto Cap Bon appeared to have lost their nerve after this swift stroke by British armor and the prospects of a last stand on the mountain-ribbed penins

Opposition Slight.

The opposition from these troops was slight, and the trapped soldiers were inclined to surrender at the first opportunity as British naval forces scoured nearby waters in what was described as a "mopping up" of small parties attempting a disorganized escape.

Pilots who continued to sweep the beaches reported little activity and said the cornered enemy apparently had recoginized the futility of attempting to get away, while huge fires blazing along the roads of the bomb-riddled cape indicated the Germans already were burning their

More than 5,000 prisoners were taken by the British in their lightning thrust across the peninsula, including 600 members of the crack Hermann Goering Regiment, which had fought strongly around Hamman Lif from intrenched and buried tanks. Senate Tax Fight Narrows to Sum Of Abatement

Both Sides Concede They Favor Principle Of Some Forgiveness

By the Associated Press. It's not the principle, it's how

That's what the controversy over tearing up income tax IOU's boiled down to in the Senate today as members continued cloakroom arguments over the amount of tax abatement that should be granted to get the country on a current payment

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, a proponent of the Ruml-Carlson "skip-a-tax-year" bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee, told reporters that tax abatement now seem to have the approval of almost everybody and he couldn't see much left to fight

"Tax abatement is approved by nearly everybody at some level," he "There is no matter of principle involved any more, it's ust a matter of degree.'

On the other side of the fence, Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia, an opponent of the Ruml-Carlson bill, conceded this had become almost the sole issue in a battle that dragged through weary months in the House and will open a new phase in the Senate tomorrow.

Seek to Offset Opposition.

The committee-approved Senate measure provides for cancellation of 1942 or 1943 taxes, whichever is the lower, for all persons except those with so-called windfall incomes, and the institution of a 20 per cent withholding levy on wages and salaries as the basic effort to collect taxes currently.

The House bill, on the other hand cancels only the 6 per cent normal and the 13 per cent first bracket surtax for all taxpayers, leaving those in higher brackets liable for payment of the remainder in the regular way that taxes now are collected.

Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin submitted a minority report on the skip-a-tax-year plan today, declaring that "cancellation of any liability now can only mean a heavier liability later.' He added:

"It is my conviction that the average taxpayer would rather learn the bad news now while he still has time to plan for 1943 taxes, than to be misled by the false sound of concellation and then be presented with a drastic increase in 1943 rates when the calendar year is almost over and his income spent or earmarked for other purposes.'

Eventual Senate approval of the Ruml-Carlson bill seemed likely and advocates were reported laying plans to offset an administration attempt to revise the measure in conference by seeking to force a prior vote in the House to accept the Senate's version.

That might be done, it was explained, by a motion to instruct the House conferees to agree to the Senate amendments. The Ruml-Carlson bill, in somewhat different form, was defeated previously in the House by the slim margin of Finance Committee's bill would give the Treasury at least $1,800,000,000 in new revenue and yet abate taxes for more citizens than the Houseapproved measure. Senator Vandenberg told reporters he was informed by the congressional tax staff that Treasury receipts would be boosted $1,800, 000,000 over the level of the present law by "windfall" provisions inserted in the bill. This would be in ment rolls as the result of the addition, he said, to an increase which would be brought about by (See TAXES, Page A-16.)

The opening up of the Mediterranean will shorten tremendously the route which vessels now have to take to the Middle East-around the Cape of Good Hope, he said.

However, Mr. Knox said he did not know when the Allies would be able to operate the much-shortened Mediterranean route. If the Axis forces continue to hold the north shore of the Mediterranean, it would be necessary for the United Nations to provide an effective air umbrella for ships operating along this route he declared. He said German planes on Sicily and Crete would undoubt edly attempt to stop the operation of Allied supply ships through this shortened route, but they will be unable to prevent it. He pointed out that the occupation of Sicily by the Allies would be a tremendous asset.

The Secretary offered the Navy's congratulations to the Army on its magnificent victory in Tunisia and to the British navy and American and British air forces for the effective way in which they cut off supplies to the Afrika Korps. He said it was a tribute to the effectiveness of the blockade, which was attributed by the Germans as one of the main reasons for their defeat.

Monroe Quoted as Saying Politics Is His Principal Business

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, May 11.-The Post-Dispatch in a copyrighted story today from one if its Washington correspondents said the House at 2101 R street where John P. Monroe lived was a "working center of a small but potent coalition of wealthy Republicans and insurgent Democrats with one paramount 'deal' as their objective-the defeat of President Roosevelt for a fourth term."

The story was written after a 4hour interview with Mr. Monroe who was called before the House Military Affairs Committee last week to explain his Washington Fleming Urges Plan activities. It quoted Mr. Monroe as elected again and making a WPA out of the whole world. We want a peace that will make the countries that lose the war pay for it. Man, then we'll be in for a hundred years of prosperity that will rival that of the British Empire."

Mr. Monroe intimated, the Post-Dispatch said, that the "war contract" story built up around him was a blind to hide the real activities of the anti-Roosevelt clique.

"Figure it out for yourself," Mr Monroe said. "I said I got but one single war contract and that was the truth. Do you think I want to go to jail for perjury? If I wanted war contracts, obviously I could have gotten them because I know every big official in Washington. I'm not interested in that. I'm interested in a much bigger kind of business-

The Office of Price Administration seeking to speed up its appeal of the Hecht Co. case in the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and has filed a motion asking that the case be set for argument before the tribunal adjourns for a summer recess.

French Troops March Into Tunis to Cheers Of Freed Residents were under German oppression. A regiment of Tunis' own troops many of whom fled to join the Allies at Algiers a few hours before Axis war planes circled above the capital 'last November 10, was chosen to lead French forces into the Whatever political differences existed among Frenchmen were forgotten as a column, paced by a band, marched through the main streets. Tearful men and women, many of whom wore the Lorraine cross of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, ran into the streets to kiss soldiers marching along.

The city already has been brought under his administration. Gen. Alphonse Juin, commandant of French forces in Tunisia, has been named provisional resident general pending the resumption of duties by Gen.

There was no indication of the fate of Admiral Jean Esteva, bewiskered governor general who continued to hold office under Axis control. In the last six months, the Vichy-sponsored admiral had signed orders compelling first the Jews, and later Frenchmen and even Italians living in Tunisia, to do forced labor on the docks in clearing away debris from Allied bombings.

Esteva was reported to have been taken handcuffed from the city in a German car presumably because the Axis feared he would throw in his lot with the Allies and wield whatever power he had left. Allied troops gained for the first NEWARK, N. J., May 11 .- Consolidation of the State-by-State unemployment compensation programs into a Federal bureau better to "cope with any severe depression" after the war was advocated today by Wilburg L. Cohen, technical adviser to the Social Security Board in Washington.

Mr. Cohen's stand was expressed in a speech prepared for a convention of the New Jersey League of Women Voters. "The causes and cure for mass unemployment are beyond the control of individual States," he said.

"The Federal Government in the past has been obliged to assume prime responsibility for coping with the problems of mass production and undoubtedly will have to do so in the near future." After the war, Mr. Cohen continued, policies followed in demobilization of the armed forces and in termination of war contracts would 'vitally affect the volume of unem-

Division of responsibility then may well lead to failure to act consistently and effectively." Germans and Allies Bargain for Goods From Neutral Spain

Each Side Tries to Block Other From Purchasing Much-Needed Supplies

By THOMAS R. HENRY,

Star Staff Correspondent. LONDON (By Mail).—Neutral Spain is a battleground of bargain drivers. Often in adjoining rooms of the same hotel in a Spanish town today may be found an energetic, wirv American or English buyer and a stolid, thick-necked Germanprobably dressed in imitation British tweeds-who are waging a battle of wits which may be as significant as a battle of guns.

Spain produces certain war essentials. In some cases it is the sole source of supply left open to the Axis. In very few cases are the Spanish goods vital to the United Nations, although they are appre-

The object of the business battle is to buy them before the other fellow gets his hands on them. It is far from a simple proposition of outbidding one another. By and large this battle of the shock troops of business, which started with the Axis in a favorable position, has been swinging of late towards the United Nations, it is revealed by experts of the Ministry of Economic Warfare here. For example, a little over a year ago Germany was purchasing about 2.000 tons a year of one essential product. Since then these purchases have been cut down to 400 tons a

Perhaps the most important of all the Spanish products for German war purposes is the mineral wolfram, necessary in steel production. So far, these officials say, job recruitment campaigns have "skimmed the cream" of those willing and able to work.

The census report shows a total employment (outside of the armed forces) of 52,100,000. That compares with a total of 53,500,000, which military men, in calculating the raising of the armed forces, figured would be required to meet civilian manpower needs.

The armed forces are figuring on getting approximately 2,500,000 more men this year. Subtracting this number from total civilian employment for April would leave 49,600,-000-or 3,900,000 workers short of the total the military men figured would be needed.

Backs McNutt Estimates. This squares with Mr. McNutt's estimates: 1,000,000 women have been added to the working force since last September; nearly 4.000,-000 more workers would be needed on the basis of these figures. Other figures emphasized in the Census Bureau's report:

A drop of 400,000 from March to ployed in non-agricultural jobs, but rease of 600,000 in the number in agricultural work, thus a net gain of 200,000 in persons employed (outside the armed forces). These figures, the bureau indicates, reflect these facts: 1. The number of previous non-workers coming into the labor force has fallen considerably short of the number required to offset military withdrawals. 2. There's a strong back-to-the farm movement (into almost certain deferment under selective service), along with early employment of schoolboys in rural areas.

In Army Medical Corps

Dr. Margaret D. Craighill, dean of Women's Medical College of Philadelphia, has been commissioned a major, the first woman to become an officer in the Army Medical Corps. She was assigned immediately to the Surgeon General's Office and will specialize in preventive medicine in the Women's Army Auxiliary

She was born in Southport, N. C. in 1898. Both her father and her grandfather were West Point graduates and engineer officers of the regular Army. She was educated at the University of Wisconsin and the medical schools of Yale and Johns Hopkins Universities. Before going to Philadelphia she practiced medicine at Greenwich, Conn.

Dr. Craighill was married in 1922 to James Leonard Vickers, who now is a surgeon in Greenwich, Conn. Her two sisters were nurses. One served overseas in the World War.

The second officer stared with frank disapproval, and the answer was no. Some of the recruits go out at night, of their own volition, to drill. Others try their hand at the obstacle course that was left behind when the soldiers moved out. Giraud Supplements Proposal for Joint Governing Council

He and De Gaulle Would Preside Alternately Over Provisional Setup

By the Associated Press.

ALGIERS, May 11 .- A government for French North Africa and later for a liberated France, under control of a joint council of the followers of Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen Charles de Gaulle, with the rival French leaders presiding over it alternately, has been proposed by Gen. Giraud.

No immediate answer was forthcoming from Gen. de Gaulle, head of the Fighting French National Committee in London, who previously had suggested that he should head the civil authority of a provisional French government, leaving to the French North African high commissioner control of French fighting forces.

Gen. Giraud's offer, it was re-vealed yesterday, was contained in an "appendix" to the reply he made to Gen. de Gaulle's suggestion for a provisional government now, an idea which Gen. Giraud rejected on the grounds that such a move should await the opportunity for all Frenchmen to choose a government by vote after Metropolitan France has been freed.

Insists on Election.

Gen. Giraud's insistence on the necessity of an election to create a provisional government was known to have the support of the United States State Department and British Foreign Office quarters. The body of the Giraud note was made public in London April 20, and London press reports since then have only hinted at the existence of the proposals contained in the appendix. Gen. Giraud made it clear that he proposed ultimate authority over French territory should rest with the council itself, to be composed of members chosen jointly by Gen. de Gaulle and himself.

A text of the proposal was made public by the French Military Commission in Washington, which said the personnel of the council and a small Executive Committee "would be decided between Giraud and De Gaulle," and that the Executive Committee "will meet periodically and have responsibility for the general direction of affairs." 'The two generals shall preside committee and the council," and "their responsibilities are merged in the collective responsibility" of the two bodies, the text said. Gen. Giraud was emphatic in stating that the arrangement would

The Washington text of Gen. Giraud's proposal said: "Distinction must be maintained between a council having its origin in necessity and a provisional government resulting from the laws of France. "The council will represent a national effort and will continue to depend for the liberation of France on American and British assistance."

Wheat Crop Outlook Believed Better Than U. S. Report Indicated

Conditions Have Improved Since May 1 Forecast of Smallest Crop Since '35

by the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The pessimistic implications in the latest Government winter wheat forecast, howing a substantial decline from last year, are at least slightly negated by recent favorable crop deelopments, grain experts asserted

The Government forecast, issued esterday, set winter wheat production at 515,159,000 bushels, against 703,252,000 bushels last year and a 10-year (1932-41) average of 550,-181,000 bushels. One month earlier the Government had forecast this year's crop at 558,551,000 bushels. Based on May 1 Conditions.

Grain experts said, however, that the Government's forecast was based on conditions as they existed May 1, which was a date on which green bugs were doing much damage in Texas and Oklahoma, and a drought was developing over a wide area west of the Mississippi.

Since the beginning of this month the drought situation has greatly improved. While weather reports are subject to censorship, and not easy to obtain by grainmen, it was said that many of the areas which needed rain on May 1 subsequently obtained it. Thus the crop conditions improved considerably.

At the same time, it was admitted the Government's estimate was not only below recent private crop forecasts, but indicated a total supply of wheat on July 1 under the 200,000,000 bushels which is believed desirable if the supply-demand situation is to if the supply-demand situation is to be in balance.

Situation Summed Up. Crop experts figured the supply ituation in this manner: The Government now expects a rinter wheat crop of 515,159,000

The Government said March 1 intentions to plant spring wheat mounted to 14,700,000 acres, which, on average yields, would produce a spring wheat crop of 175,000,000

Together, winter and spring wheat rops would give a 1943 production of 690,159,000 bushels, smallest since

The July 1, 1943, old wheat carryproduction, would give a total supply of 1,239,159,000 pushels.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 11.-Wendell Willkie said yesterday he believes that "under progressive leadership the Republican party will be returned to office in the presidential and congressional elections of November, 1944."

His statement, made public by Simon & Schuster, publishers of his book, "One World," was sent to the London Daily Telegraph as an introduction to a series of articles condensed from the book on his world

"It is also my belief that it would be tragic if people in other lands, and particularly the people of the British Commonwealth, assume that world outlook is the exclusive possession of either political party in

House Republicans Meet to Map Fight For Trade Pact 'Yeto'

Vote Is Due Tomorrow On Bill to Extend Reciprocity Program

Republican House members were called into conference by their leaders today amid indications that an attempt would be made to line up the party solidly behind a move to apply congressional veto checks on President Roosevelt's reciprocal trade agreements.

The party meeting, with Minority Leader Martin presiding, was set for the House chamber prior to opening of the second day of debate on a measure extending the President's trading authority for another three years.

Meanwhile. Democratic leaders tightened their lines in an effort to beat down the "veto" amendment. which they argued would deal a death blow to the whole reciprocity program. A vote is due tomorrow.

Charges Fly in Debate.

Exchanges in the debate gave a hint of issues that probably will reverberate in the 1944 presidential campaign, as Democrats accused Republicans of "isolationism" and history, civilians may earn the right though they cannot man a gun or heard themselves described as fostering an effort to shape the post-

Mr. Plumley also professed great respect and admiration for Cordell Hull, whom he described as "one of the greatest statesmen who has ever discharged the duties of the high office of Secretary of State." However, he said Mr. Hull, Frank B. Kellogg and Newton D. Baker were "dreamers of dreams" and that "these trade treaties are two-edged swords, both sides of which will cut their throats.

Free Trade Policy Opposed.

Mr. Plumley said he opposed "an unlimited free trade policy under the guise of good neighborliness," adding that "good fences make good neighbors.

"It is not reciprocity, decidedly not, to destroy our industries, put our employes out of work, just to be a good fellow and a good neighbor. "Until we win this war, they (the

Doughton Defends Proposal.

Opening the debate, Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee called for renewal of the trade authority without any "crippling" amendments, declaring any other course would be a move toward isolationism and a cause for "jubilation in the chancelleries of Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini." Mr. Doughton said the coming vote would afford an opportunity for the minority party "to forever dispel the charge that they are isolationists." Saying, "The eyes of the world are focused on this legislative body," he declared the "clear-cut" issue was: "Shall we continue along the enlightened and progressive course which recognizes that our last hope of civilization lies in the development of international harmony among the family of nations, or shall we revert to the policy of nearsighted selfishness which has proved so disastrous in the past?" Mr. Knutson said the reciprocal trade program had "failed to expand our export markets for agriculture, it failed to preserve world peace. and it has failed to lay a foundation for peace." He added: "If it be true that the goodwill of other nations may be bought with trade concessions why is not Japan

Ashes of Maj. Rowan To Rest in Arlington

'Message to Garcia' Hero Died in West Jan. 10

The ashes of Maj. Andrew S. Rowan, U. S. A., retired, carrier of the famous "Message to Garcia," will be buried with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery at 2 p.m. Friday.

Maj. Rowan, whose Spanish-American War feat was immortalized through Elbert Hubbard's romantic legend, died January 10 at Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco. His widow, who is 83, is in ill health, and in consequence the ashes were brought to Washington by airplane by Chaplain Thomas L. McKenna, stationed at the hospital The Spanish War hero retired from the Army in 1909 after 30 years of service. The historical version of the "Message to Garcia" shows that the then Lt. Rowan performed a highly important military mission, but under different circumstances than related in the story.

Actually, the War Department said yesterday, he set out for Jamaica in April, 1898, with Lt. Henry H. Whitney to obtain information about the size and location of the Spanish and Cuban forces. When the war broke out, Lt. Rowan went to Portillo. Cuba, crossing with the aid of Cuban sympathizers. He met Gen. Senator Lucas said he believed that by the adoption of longer voting hours a greater number of persons would be able to vote.

He pointed out that many of them now work long hours in war plants, which in many cases are long distances from their homes. Many of these workers, he added, will be unable to vote in many States next year. In Illinois he said, the polis open at 6 a.m. but close at 5 p.m. Under the Constitution, he said, Congress is authorized to deal with the matter. House Group Works To Broaden Senate Anti-Strike Bill

Backers Hope for Final Action on Measure Before Coal Truce Ends

By J. A. O'LEARY. The House Military Affairs Committee is in closed session today seeking to draft a stronger wartime anti-strike bill than the Senate passed last week.

If the measure is completed today its backers will make every effort to pass it and send it to the President before the 15-day coal truce ends.

Spurred into action by the mine walkout 10 days ago, the Senate passed the Connally bill bolstering the President's power to take State Funeral Ordered over factories or mines involved in labor disputes, and imposing a fine and jail sentence on any one who promotes or encourages a strike or lockout after the Government has moved in. It also would strengthen the hands of the War Labor Board by sanctioning its existence and giving it the power of Taft Amendments Rejected. The Senate, however, turned down mendments by Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, which sought to prevent labor tie-ups in any war plant by a plan of compulsory arbitration.

Chairman May of the House Military group headed a subcommittee that began yesterday to redraft the Connally measure along broader lines. At it stands it virtually is limited to cases where the Government takes possession.

Mr. May has not revealed the nature of the subcommittee changes in advance of full committee action, but some members expect the amended plan to include some features of the bill of Representative Smith, Democrat, of Virginia which the House passed a few days before the attack on Pearl Harbor, but which died in a Senate committee. Changes Must Not Be Used to Boost Prices or Resist Fair Price Decrease

To prevent loss of perishable foods through inability of processors to obtain adequate seasonal labor, economic Director James F. Byrnes today authorized wage adjustments by anners and other processors.

Recommended by the War Labor Board, the adjustments will permit the correction of substandard wage conditions, the maintenance of intra-plant differentials adequate to maintain production and efficiency and the restoration of usual wage relationships between the food processing industries and agriculture. Any adjustments which would cause a price increase or be used to resist a justifiable price decrease can become effective only with Mr.

Dr. John J. Field Present Disposition Of 8th Army May Be Clue to Next Blow

Axis Would Like to Know Where Montgomery and His Forces Are Now

LONDON, May 11.—The present disposition of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army, used as a decoy in Lt. Gen. Kenneth Anderson's master strategy for the capture of Tunis, may answer the riddle of where the United Nations will strike

Its position was last reported in the Ainhallouf area north of Enfidaville, facing powerful German dark night less than a week ago and Italian units near the base of the Cap Bon "thumb" thrusting into the Mediterranean. But in the welter of frantic rumor and conjecture would like to know is: where are facing the Axis as it tries feverishly to prepare for the next blow, this must be one of their major worries: How much of the 8th Army remains

It is known that some of the best units of the 8th Army—notably the an's Christian Temperance Union 7th Armored Division and the 4th announced the cancellation of its Indian Division—were pulled out of 69th annual convention, which had the Ainhallouf area and sent to join been scheduled for Des Moines. the 1st Army for the Tunis attack. Iowa, in September. The Executive The main Axis worry is this: Is the | Committee will meet in Chicago Auremainder of the 8th still in the Ainhallouf sector, or have other units been withdrawn to the rear for regrouping and preparation for another stroke elsewhere-either in the final phase of the Cap Bon campaign or the initial phase of the new battle of Europe?

Communiques Vague.

Wherever the bulk of the 8th Army is, front-line dispatches to London have made it clear that the headlong flight of Axis forces into the Cap Bon Peninsula was as much due to the 8th as if it were in at the kill at Bizerte and Tunis, because strong Axis forces held by the German command to face the 8th at Ainhallouf have made more difficult the storming of the two vital cities

In recent days Allied communiques have been vague about the 8th Army, merely using brief sentences to the effect that active patrolling has continued on its front, with limited objectives and some prisoners taken. A small advance was reported yesterday. There has been nothing in these communiques to indicate the size of the British forces

Briefly, here is how an intriguing doubleplay between Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Anderson fooled the

One night just before dark the 8th was all set for an attempt to smash through the strong forces facing it and take Tunis for Gen.

Called Off Before Zero Hour A few hours before zero time, Gen. Montgomery called his corps and divisional commanders together, told them the attack had been called off, and detailed a few units which were to join the 1st Army 25 miles

These units were pulled out of the line and within an hour of joining the 1st Army just about dawn, pushed to the front of the advancing forces and stormed toward

The Axis, left with most of his armor and the major part of his guns and troops facing the 8th Army, was caught off base.

There wasn't even time to pull up the dormant force to meet the new threat because Tunis and Bizerte fell too quickly. So this strong and well-equipped Axis force remains where it was in imminent danger of being trapped and cut off, losing slightly against line-straightening attacks from what is left of the 8th Army and wondering where the rest

Only a Taste

Of all the news dispatches to come out of this war, none makes better reading for the average American than details of the unconditional surrender of the Germans and Italians in front of the tough Second Corps, which broke their line, took Bizerte and cut them off from escape.

There is something very humanly soul-satisfying in the picture of the cocky German generals, thoroughly licked, walking into American headquarters. We laugh, with the soldiers, over the Prussian commander who meekly stripped the Red Cross emblem from his car after it had performed its function of protecting his valued person on his trip through the lines. We share that sentiment, one of the strange anomalies of war, displayed by the soldiers who herded the prisoners into barbed-wire stockades, then showered them with cigarettes and candy. We are inclined to puff with pride over the surprised comments of prisoners who saw for the first time the power and quantity of the American equipment behind the lines and who remarked on the excellence of American food.

But we should not let this gratifying little taste of victory wipe out the memory of a somewhat similar scene, thirteen months ago to the day, enacted on the Bataan Peninsula. That was when our own generalsseventeen of them if we include those who later were taken at Corregidorwere wearily walking into headquarters of the grinning and hissing Japanese. They were also offered, and accepted, unconditional surrender. Some of them must have shed tears, too, as they looked at the sick and ragged American soldiers, limping into barbed-wire inclosures under the prodding of Japanese bayonets. And in Japan the Japanese were avidly licking up the details, from the newspapers, of how some 36,853 men in American uniform -11,500 more later at Corregidorwere laying down their arms and holding out their hands for food.

No matter what victories we may have, none will be complete until it effaces, for all time, the memory of Bataan and Corregidor.

Joan of Arc

Thomas R. Henry, Star staff correspondent in North Africa, yesterday reported how "a risen France" celebrated the annual fete day of Joan of Arc in Algiers. The fall of the sister cities of Tunis and Bizerte to the United Nations gave opportunity for a demonstration of the French Republic "at its best." A great parade of troops bearing the tricolor moved down the Rue Michelet in homage to the martyred Maid and in remembrance of her services to her country five hundred years ago. Not many Americans understand what it was that Joan really did for France. The story of her life and death commonly is told in detachment from the annals of Europe. Yet to comprehend her achievement her proper role as an actor in the world drama of the fifteenth century. She was a child of an epoch of war. The battle of Agincourt was fought when she was three. Henry V of England took Caen, Bayeux, Falaise and many other towns when she was ave. Paris surrendered to him in Joan's native village-Domremy on the Meuse-was burned by the invaders. With her parents, she fled to Neufchateau. The "voices" of Saint Michael, Saint Catherine and Saint Margaret urged her to "a mismion of patriotism" far more significant than her contemporaries could realize. She sought nothing less than the establishment of the kingdom of God upon earth. The message which Joan gave to Charles VII, when finally she met him at Chinon, was to the effect that France "belongs to my Lord" and that "my Lord wishes that the Dauphin be made king and hold his realm in trust." Such a mystic communication well might have been rejected. A commission was appointed to examine the Maid. When it reported in her favor, she put on white armor and proceeded to the relief of Orleans. In the fighting there, her example spurred knights and ordinary soldiers with a holy zeal. The siege was raised. A long series of French victories followed. The Dauphin was crowned at Rheims July 16, 1429. Had his gratitude been equal to his obligation, Joan never would have been burned. How she fell into the hands of her enemies and was delivered to Pierre

Rouen was the place of her death, be excessive in relation to the need-May 30, 1430. Her ashes were thrown into the Seine. But her work was not finished. France, having need for her, again finds strength in her immortal spirit. When peace at last is restored to Europe her grand ideal of continental harmony may be attained. Stranger things have happened, and nothing is more poignantly to be desired.

Mediterranean Mastery

Where the victorious Allies may plan to strike the mainland of "Fortress Europe" is naturally as yet undisclosed. But it is a practical certainty that the large Allied land, air and naval forces freed for other services by the collapse of Axis resistance in Tunisia will be employed in reducing at least some of the Axis island outposts in the Mediterranean. This has to be done, not only to pave the way for a direct attack on the Axis' soft underside but also to clear the Middle Sea of Axis interference and establish a practicable route for merchant convoys all the way from Gibraltar to the Middle and Far East via the Suez Canal. This natural short line will save millions of tons of shipping now employed in the immensely long voyage around Africa via the Cape of Good Hope. Such an objective is worth attainment.

Sicily and Sardinia are the targets most discussed. Both are large islands, mountainous and presumably strongly held, in part by picked German troops. The conquest of either probably will be a stiff job, needing a large expeditionary force. But before those offensives can be prepared, two minor tasks could well be undertaken. These are the little islands of Pantelleria and Lampedusa. Small though they are, those two rocky dots are dangerous hazards in the narrow waters between Sicily and Tunisia. They are, indeed, Axis counterparts of Malta, which has so splendidly proved its value to the Allied cause.

Pantelleria lies squarely across the narrowest part of the Sicilian Straits. About half the size of Malta, it bristles with gun emplacements, has a small harbor used as a submarine base and contains an airfield reportedly connected by tunnel with an underground hangar that is bombproof. Malta's example shows that Pantelleria can prove a hard nut to crack if held by resolute defenders. Yet Malta was never exposed to an attack by an expeditionary force of troops, whereas Allied control of the sea in this area permits such an attack at any time. The reduction of Lampedusa, 100 miles southeast of Pantelleria and midway between Malta and Tunisia, should be a simpler matter, because Lampedusa is much smaller and reportedly less heavily fortified. Both these islands have recently been intensively bombed by air, which may be the preliminary softening up of their resistance to Allied assaults soon to

The logic of the situation thus points to the preliminary reduction of Lampedusa and Pantelleria, followed by invasions of Sicily and Sardinia. Another natural objective in this general area is Corsica, politically part of France but occupied some months ago by Axis forces. An Allied landing in Corsica would certainly be welcomed by the native population, and once in Allied hands it would be a pistol pointed squarely at both Northern Italy and the French Riviera, which lie literally within sight of Corsica's mountainous northern tip.

Such is the strategic picture in the Western Mediterranean. Eastern Mediterranean strategy centers about the island of Crete, which the Axis has converted into an enormously strong base. This central bastion is flanked on the west by the rugged Peloponnesus Peninsula of Southern Greece and on the east by the Italian archipelago of the Dodecanese, lying close to Turkish Asia Minor. In view of transportation difficulties, it would seem that the breaking of the Axis hold on the Cretan bastion and its supports must await a clearing of the Western Mediterranean along It is imperative that she be seen in | tactical lines already surveyed. Yet high commands do not always map their strategy according to geographical logic; so the actual course of events may contain startling surprises. The one thing sure is that the Allies now hold the initiative in the Mediterranean and can be counted on to press their advantage at the earliest possible moment.

A Local Matter

Senate hearings yesterday on amendments to the District Unemployment Compensation Act brings nearer to completion congressional action which is long overdue in this

It is to be hoped that a favorable report from the Senate District Committee and Senate approval soon will follow. For in considering this measure for the District, the Congress is acting as a local legislature and the benefits which are sought are the same benefits, in general, that the Legislatures of thirty-six of the States already have provided for their constituents and that will be provided in four additional States before the end of the year.

The most debatable feature of the amendments, in the past, is the switch from the so-called flat-rate principle of taxing employers for unemployment insurance to the experience-rating principle, under which tax rates are fixed on the basis of employment records. The relatively small degree of opposition to this change comes, in the main, from those who favor the flat-rate principle of taxation for the Nation. They Cauchon for trial and execution is a would, in other words, prefer that because they favor the flat-rate principle in unemployment insurance throughout the country.

Acting as a local legislature for the District, Congress should be guided by what is best for the District, not what some minority groups may feel would be best for the Nation. If the National Social Security Act is later amended, to include additional classes of beneficiaries, to increase the size and to provide for federalization of all local unemployment reserve funds and to fix all tax rates at the same level, then the District act would, of course, have to conform. But the question now is amendment of the District act in accordance with the national law as it now is, which prescribes the adoption of the experience-rating system as the method for reducing local tax rates.

The amendments do not curtail or in any manner modify existing unemployment compensation benefits; on the other hand, the local law would become one of the most liberal in the country as concerns benefits, the experience rating should add an incentive to maintain steady employment and a more equitable system of taxation would be established under which adequate reserves are maintained automatically in relation to the demonstrated demand for benefits.

Broadcasting Curbs

By a vote of five to two the Supreme Court has upheld the new Federal Communications Commission regulations to govern broadcasting, which the major chains assailed as a "death blow" to Nation-wide network operations.

The regulations, entailing sweeping changes in the contractual relationship between the broadcasting companies and their station affiliates, are the product of an inquiry undertaken five years ago by the commission to determine if "public interest, convenience or necessity" dictated the imposition of restrictions on an industry which in the space of two decades converted radio from a novelty into one of the most potent factors in modern life. Their principal effect is to set aside certain requirements which the networks have laid down for their affiliates in connection with the distribution of programs. The National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System opposed the regulations. The Mutual Broadcasting System sided with the Government in the litigation.

Basically, the regulations are designed to break up the "exclusive" relations hitherto existing between the networks and their affiliates. Contracts which have prevented stations from broadcasting the programs of more than one chain are outlawed. The so-called "territorial exclusivity" contractual provision permitting stations to bar the use, by others in their territory, of programs they had rejected, also goes. Stations are restricted on the conditions under which they may option time to the networks. Other curbs also are in-

The philosophy of the Communications Commission was that the regulations—which were adopted by a divided vote, incidentally- would "encourage competition and prevent undue concentration of control of the radio industry," and correspondingly inure to the public benefit.

The protesting chains contended that the commission exceeded its powers in applying the regulations which are given force by denying licenses to non-conforming stations. The court, in the opinion by Justice Frankfurter, admitted the Communications Act does not spell out the authority assumed here by the commission, but asserted that the regulatory body was given a "comprehensive mandate" to regulate broadcasting, and that the new rules represent the exercise of that power. Dissenting, Justice Murphy, who was joined by Justice Roberts, declared that the court was "gratutiously" endowing the commission with power that Congress has not granted. Justices Black and Rutledge did not participate the case. In the light of the drastic changes which the court's decision will force. the Communications Commission should, and no doubt will, move to lay down explicit guides for the direction of the broadcasting industry, so the regulations may become effective with the least possible dislocation.

As is well said by Niles Trammell, president of NBC, the commission has a grave responsibility to see that the broadcasters are enabled to continue to render a satisfactory service to the public.

"This is the most dramatic moment in our history," declares Fascist Virginio Gayda in speaking of the "Italian Empire." There are two principal elements in drama - tragedy and comedy-and perhaps the speaker is right. Italians are finding plenty of the former and their opponents quite a dash of the latter in the present situation.

North African Victory Won by Generalship

Major Eliot Compliments Allied Leaders on Proof Of Superior Strategy

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. Of splendid promise for the future is the generalship displayed by United Nations' commanders in Tunisia. The last phase of the Tunisian campaign was marked by clearly superior Allied generalship on the highest plane.

The test was a fair one, and we can draw from it no small degree of satisfaction. The opposing generals were the products of the best that the military training and education of Britain and America, on the one hand, and of Germany, on the other, could produce.

Gen, Dwight D. Eisenhower, the United Nations' commander in chief, is an American professional soldier who is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School and the Army War College. The commander of the Allied ground forces, Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, is a British professional soldier, a graduate of the Staff College and the Imperial Defense College. On the German side, Col. Gen. Jurgin von Arnim is a Prussian professional soldier, a product of the carefully graduated German system of military education and ranking high in the estimation of his colleagues. Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. von Arnim are 52. Gen. Alexander is 51. All three may be considered to be at the height of their powers and at the peak of their professional careers.

They met on the battlefield. Let us observe the result, for it is instructive. Gen. Eisenhower began by producing and emphasizing an erroneous impression in the mind of his adversary. That impression was that the main Allied effort would be made on the right flank and that the main blow would be struck by the British 8th Army.

Gen. von Arnim fell for this hook, line and sinker. He found it easy enough to believe, because the 8th Army was the most experienced of the forces facing him, and because its appearance in the Southern Tunisian campaign had been immediately decisive of the result. With a Prussian arrogance and self-sufficiency which Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Alexander correctly gauged and made use of, Gen, von Arnim had acquired a comfortable sense of superiority as regards the British 1st Army and the French troops, with which up to that time, he had been chiefly dealing. So that Gen. von Arnim began by doing something which not even a junior officer at Fort Leavenworth would think of doing in the solution of a map problem—he fixed his mind on "the enemy's most probable intentions"-and did the rest of his thinking on the basis of that assumption.

He promptly was confirmed in his error when the 8th Army attacked and made a moderate gain which was checked by heavy German counterattacks and the fire of major caliber guns. Gen. von Arnim obviously expected this attack to be renewed and he shifted his reserves to positions where they could deal with such a renewal. The next thing that happened was the sudden appearance of the American 2d Corps on the left flank of the British 1st Army, far up on the northern sector of the front. Whatever hint this may have conveyed to Gen. von Arnim that his original assumption might be wrong, he was given no time to make any change in his dispositions. He was at once attacked with great violence along his whole front by the French, Americans and British, working in unison, Local reserves were unable to check these advances: only by using what few troops he still had in general reserve was Gen, von Arnim able to prevent the British 1st Army from breaking right through his center into the Tunisian plain, and even then his counterattack only checked the British advance and did not force the commander of the 1st Army to put in his own reserves. which were still kept in hand.

But Gen. von Arnim had nothing left with which to stop the Americans: when they broke through to Mateur, he was found vainly trying to stop up the gap with cooks, labor units and Luftwaffe ground forces.

Meanwhile the cagey Gen. Eisenhower, and the equally cagey Gen. Alexander, were shifting the reserves of the 8th Army around behind the 1st; they struck again, broke through the weakened German center, and through that gap poured two British armored divisions into the German rear areas, while to the north the 1st American Armored Division, likewise, broke through.

The rest is history; Bizerte and Tunis fell at almost the same moment, the German army was cut to pieces, 75,000 Axis prisoners are already in our hands. organized Axis resistance has almost ceased, and Africa is won.

The battle of North Tunisia was a true battle of destruction, almost a battle of annihilation. It was a triumph of superior generalship, of the flexible, imaginative, resourceful generalship of the democratic armies as opposed to the rigidity of the Prussian military mind. It is a bright augury for the grave trials which lie immediately before us.

The Hooligan in Wartime

The failure of our system of education, understood in the widest sense, is nowhere made more clear than when young people find themselves suddenly released from the discipline, restrictions, and ordered framework of their ordinary lives. Some whose homes and schools have given them a sense of their own dignity, and also a sense of community. can adapt themselves to the new freedoms and the removal of barriers. The others because they have been imperfectly taught, think that freedom from restraint and the excellent prospects of not being found out give them license to indulge any foolish or destructive whim that enters their heads. What is regrettable is that nothing very much can be done about the irresponsibles until the war is over and the lights go up again, and the order and restraint of normal living can be restored. But it will leave the nation with a substantial problem of postwar reconstruction to be carried out on the characters of a good many thousands of young people who have tale which even now cannot be read the District remain on the flat-rate proaches the number of those of a and who must be re-educated as respon- you'll agree with me. "WHEELER ROAD.

"Dear Sir: "I'm planning on building some bird houses and a friend suggested I write to you for help.

me dimensions on following birds: "Sexangular flicker, golden-winged woodpecker, great crested flycatcher, purple martin and bluebird.

"Thanking you, I remain,
"Sincerely, H. H. F."

We never heard of a "sexangular flicker," but a flicker is called the "golden - winged woodpecker" in some parts of the country. This is a bird of many names. In various parts of the United States it is called, besides flicker and golden-winged woodpecker, the following names: Yellow-shafted woodpecker, clape, pigeon woodpecker, yellow-hammer, high-hole high-holder, yarrup, wake-up, wood pigeon, heigh-ho, wick-up, hairy wicket, yawker bird and walk-up. Probably no other species has so many and certainly not so interesting a variety of names, some of them pure corruption

This is a fine bird, a few of them remaining all winter. It is large, with a red spot on the back of its neck, as any member of the woodpecker family should have, and a black crescent on its throat. It is a marvelous ant eater.

The only bad trait it has, according to the experts, is its broadcasting of the seeds of the poison ivy. While it eats some fruit and grain, the amount is trivial.

* * * * A house for a flicker, or goldenwinged woodpecker, is made according to the following dimensions:

Floor of box, 7 by 7 inches. Depth of box, 16 to 18 inches. Diameter of hole, 3 inches. Hole above floor, 14 to 16 inches. Height above ground, 8 to 20 feet.

These are the dimensions as recommended by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. It is a good plan to make all woodpecker boxes of soft wood, because these birds like to change them a bit to suit themselves. It is a good idea to leave a few shavings and some sawdust inside. Leaving the bark on the wood, if possible, is another good idea. No one who puts up one of these large bird houses, with such a comparatively large door, need be surprised or angry if the squirrels take to it. Such a box makes an excel-

a bit is left hanging out the door. The idea, among the flycatchers, seems to be that a snakeskin is a protection, scaring off other birds. Just how or when the members of this bird family made this momentous discovery is unknown, but it must have been a long time ago. Specifications for a bluebird house are as follows:

Floor of box, 5 by 5 inches. Depth. 8 inches. Diameter of hole, 11/2 inches. Hole above floor, 6 inches.

Height above ground, 4 to 10 feet. This is one of the standard bird houses. It will attract English sparrows, but they may be kept away by putting the house low, about 4 or 5 feet from the ground, in an open and preferably sunny position. The martin house is an elaborate piece of construction, and nobody who is not familiar with carpenter tools should try to build one.

It should have at least eight compartments, each 6 inches square, with the holes 24/2 inches in diameter near the bottom of each compartment. They like to look out, in distinction from most songbirds. All members of the martin family are gregarious, and cannot abide not being able to see each other at all times. They are the real communists of the bird world.

One may make as many houses, or individual cells, as one desires, and make the whole affair as elaborate as time, money and ability permit.

The whole apartment house is best placed on a pole 15 or 20 feet from the ground, and completely away from buildings and the shade of trees.

Too often martin houses are put up too close to houses. The colony building is best painted white or some very light color. The four most generally useful sizes

"Q. What was the real cost of the Jefferson Memorial?-H. L. "A. The cost of the memorial was between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000, considerably in excess of the $3,000,000 originally planned."

The above statement is incorrect. The actual cost of the construction of the memorial, including architects' fees, sculptor's fees and the landscaping of the grounds within the central roadway surrounding the memorial, administrative and supervisory costs and the expenses of the dedicatory exercises, was $2,980,000. This amount includes funds which have been obligated for the casting in bronze of the Jefferson statue at the termination of the war. I do not know the source of Mr. Haskin's misinformation concerning the cost of the memorial, but it was not obtained from this service, which has served as the executive agency for the construction of the memorial and has maintained all cost records.

May I suggest a simple thing which would serve to give us Washingtonians a needed "lift" and do much to improve our concerted war effort and to improve civilian morale? Inject some ceremony into the routine changing of the guards at the White House and other public buildings and places where military or naval personnel is on guard duty. Troop the colors, have a band (and plenty of martial music and flags), put some military precision and zest into the proceedings. Surely there are enough soldier and sailor musicians on duty in Washington to provide some martial music for these occasions. There should be no shortage of flags to carry and display. Let there be flags and service and organizational banners displayed everywhere. After all, we are in this war up to the very hilt. Let's be proud to carry on, and have

As a Middle-Westerner (and there are many people from all over the country who formerly resided in non-military areas where the pomp and ceremony and glory associated with such military activities are unknown) one of the biggest "kicks" I ever got out of living in Washington was to be able to attend the changing of the guard and the trooping of the colors at the Marine Barracks. Boy, what a show! It was a "must" for all houseguests, and none of them ever failed to thrill to the patriotic seal and the pride-in-country which the ceremony gave them.

If you doubt my contention that things need improving along this line, just send one of your reporters, say to the White House, and watch them change the guard there. It is done in strict accordance with military regulations, no doubt, but there should be flags and music and ceremony. The British people know the value of that sort of thing and know what it does to public morale. Witness the changing of the guard at Buckingham P what I am trying to say occurs to each Civilization Held Endangered By "Root Causes" of Confusion.

To the Editor of The Star: Nations are plunged into war not because the people of one nation, out of a clear blue sky and for no reason whatsoever, burst forth in a sudden fury and attack their neighbors. However militaristically minded a people may be nothing can hasten actual bloodshed more than poverty and accumulated hatred.

Unless labor and industry can live in world which guarantees individual freedom, a world whose natural resources are not privately monopolized, then war and poverty eventually will crush civilization.

Government encroachment in domestic and foreign affairs is something which must be stopped. Unjust taxation levied upon all forms of honest endeavor, trade-strangling, war-breeding tariffs, the denial by government of the right of the individual to lead his own life as nature intended—these are the root causes of the so-called complex and confused state in which the world today finds itself.

Either we destroy these causes of war and poverty or those causes most assuredly will destroy us.

Coal Miners Expected To Share Hardships of War. To the Editor of The Star:

In The Star for May 8, Samuel Grafton says: "The whole issue in the coal crisis is whether there shall be equality of sacrifice in fighting the war."

Nothing more true has been said. John L. Lewis is not thinking of any sacrifice for the members of his union. His whole purpose is to take advantage of war conditions to press for higher and higher wages.

There are millions of people in the United States whose incomes have not increased due to the war and whose higher living expenses cause considerable sacrifice, not to mention their efforts to buy all the War bonds possible. The members of Mr. Lewis' union are not "starving." They are living about as well as others; and if some small sacrifice should be necessary, why should they not make it, as others are doing? When our boys, now fighting to save their country (and the world) return after the war, they should have something to say about labor unions and A. E. LEWIS. strikes.

With reference to the letter of "Benign" to The Star, let me say that according to Webster's New International Dictionary and other standard authorities, the correct pronunciation of "water" is either "woter" or "woter."

Some of us are inclined to give too much attention to the usage of our own particular environment in matters of pronunciation, not realizing that other

Ruling Opens Way to Curb Free Press

Supreme Court Holds Congress Can Govern

Conduct of Radio By DAVID LAWRENCE. The first step toward abridging the freedom of the press in America has been taken by five members of the Supreme Court in a decision which, while it puts radio broadcasting into a Government strait jacket, opens the way for strangulation of the newspapers of America. The decision. written by Justice Frankfurter in behalf of his four colleagues David Lawrence. on the court. seeks to draw a distinction between radio and the press on the ground that wave lengths are limited and hence must allocated by the Government. But the decision doesn't limit itself to a judgment on the power of the Federal Communications Commission to allocate or ration wave lengths—a point on which there has been general agreement heretofore—but states that Congress has already granted the FCC power to decide who shall get the wave lengths and that the vague language "public interest, convenience and necessity" is a sufficient standard for the regulation of the entire broadcasting business if necessary. Heretofore the phrase "public interest, convenience and necessity' was supposed to relate to possible conflicts in mechanical facilities, but now the Supreme Court has said that, incident to the licensing power, Congress may make rules or delegate to the FCC the right to regulate the entire conduct of the broadcasting chains and stations.

Can Apply to Papers

If this principle is correct, it means that it can be applied to newspapers which also must depend on licenses from the Government, such as the second-class mail privilege, and that it can now be used as a basis for deciding how many newspapers there shall be in a given city and how many magazines of a particular type may be published and just what may be the commercial practices governing the publishing of those media of communi-

The Supreme Court majority has made the same mistake which a majority made and then assisted in reversing on the case of Jehovah's Witnesses. In order to get at one point, it made a sweeping decision that affected freedom of speech.

The decision just rendered means that, even though Congress may enact another statute specifically limiting the powers of the FCC and of the Post Office Department which issues second-class mail permits, a precedent has been created ingeniously whereby the First Amendment of the Constitution governing the freedom of the press, can be circumvented by the arbitrary act of a simple majority of Congress in the future-perhaps a Congress smarting under the criticism of a press which is vigilant to point to the wrongdoing of the Congress in highly controversial matters.

George's Own 'Ruml Plan' May Be Compromise On Which Senate and House Could Agree

By GOULD LINCOLN.

The Ruml plan to put American income tax payers on a payas-you-go basis has more lives than a cat. It was defeated in the House Ways and Means Committee twice and twice in the House itself. But now the Senate Finance Committee has given it approval -and the chances are the Senate will go along

Gould Lincoln. with its committee's recommen-

Obviously there must be something in this plan, or it could not have survived the onslaught of the administration, backed up by many of the Southern Democrats in the House who ordinarily in these days do not see eye to eye with the White House on domestic issues. It was defeated the last time in the House by the slender margin of 206 votes to 202. The administration turned its back on the Ruml plan soon after it was presented last summer-although it was even then apparent that some plan must be devised to get the income tax payers on a current basis.

The administration has never brought forward a workable substitute plan. On the contrary, the administration has been gradually forced, by public sentiment and the votes in the House, to modify its original position. The Ruml plan calls for the abandonment of 100 per cent of the income taxes on 1942 income-with payments this year made to cover the 1943 income.

The administration approved the bill. It was defeated. The second Ways and Means Committee bill proposed that about 40 per cent of the 1942 tax be "forgiven," and the rest paid in three annual installments. with the taxpayers paying in addition their annual income taxes. so as to become current four years hence. This, too, was approved by the administration

In the end the House turned down the second committee bill. as well as the Ruml plan as presented in the so-called Carlson bill, and passed the Forand-Robertson bill, which forgives 75 per cent of the 1942 income tax. The administration, it is now reported, is willing to go along with the Forand-Robertson bill. Anything to get away from the Ruml plan in its entirety. The Republicans in the House made an issue of the Ruml plan. giving it their earnest support. In the Senate, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican member of the Finance Committee, issued a statement some time ago announcing that all eight of the Republican members of that committee supported the Ruml plan. They did, when the time came to vote in committee. The cohesion of the minority party in this fight, up to date, has been a remarkable demonstration of what a minority party can do, if it has the backing of public sentiment. The success of the Ruml plan in the Senate Finance Committee, however, must be credited to the strong teamwork of Senator Vandenberg and Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, who marshaled Democratic strength for the plan. Senator Clark was an early supporter of the Ruml plan, going to the bat for it last summer, and demanding that something be done to place the income tax payers on a current basis. He has been a tower of strength for the plan, and undoubtedly will be during the tax bill's consideration in the Senate

It was Senator Clark who insisted, in the Finance Committee, that in rewriting the House bill, everything after the enacting clause be stricken out, and that the Carlson-Ruml bill be then inserted. This parliamentary maneuver gives the conferees on the measure greater latitude when the time comes to reaching an agreement, if the bill is finally sent to conference between the Senator George, chairman of the Finance Committee, does not like the House bill because it is discriminatory and does not treat all the income tax payers alike. The bill forgives 96 per cent of the income tax payers all of their income tax for 1942, but the other 4 per cent are compelled to pay all except the normal 5 per cent tax and the first 13 per cent surtax bracket. In the opinion of Senator George this is unfair. It is, moreover, cheap politics.

George Has Own Plan. Senator George has a plan of his own, however, which he offered in committee as a substitute for the Ruml plan. It is to forgive 75 per cent of the 1942 tax-with the forgiveness applying to all income tax payers alike, on a 75 per cent basis. The other 25 per cent of the tax would be paid in equal installments, the first next March 15, and the second March 15, 1945, with the understanding that no further increase be made during the next two years in the rates of taxation on individual incomes. Either Senator George or one of his colleagues may offer this plan as a substitute for the Finance Committee bill—the Carlson-Ruml bill-during the Senate debate. But if not, the George plan may be advanced in conference. Senator George is confident that the administration leaders in the House would accept his plan if they had an opportunity.

May Satisfy Clark.

Senator Clark might have been willing to accept the George plan -and he would be satisfied with it today. But if the Senate should pass the George plan and send the measure to conference, concessions might be forced by the House conferees, reducing the George plan to something less than it now is. The Missouri Senator, therefore, insisted on the 100 per cent forgiveness of the Ruml plan-from which Senate conferees may retreat if necessary to the George plan. It is essential that the taxpayers be placed on a current basis as soon as possible, and particularly essential that the tax be withheld at the source. The Government may lose a billion or even three billion dollars in revenue, it has been variously estimated, if these steps are not taken. The administration and Congress have temporized with the situation for nearly a year. It is too bad that the Treasury Department did not think up the Ruml plan before Beardsley Ruml, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, did.

treatment. We start then, with Tojo, who just has told an outdoor audience in Manila that the Filipinos will have their independence restored only when they "return to their true Oriental spirit."

But if there is anything that Tojo's Axis partner, Hitler, hates, t is the "Oriental spirit." He murdered Jews on the claim that they were Orientals, and he excused the invasion of Russia on the theory that it was an attack on dangerous Eastern, or Oriental, hordes.

Enemy of Everybody. The Axis is mobilizing Europe on a slogan of down with the Oriental races, and it is mobilizing Asia on a slogan of down with the Occidental races, in which somewhat roundabout manner it reveals that its enemy is the human race.

We go on, now, to the case of Marshal Petain, who says he deals with Hitler because that is the only way to preserve France and the French Empire.

But in its propagands work in Syria, the Axis asks the natives to throw the British out, and be free, for, it says, France will be "dead" after the war, and will never return to Syria. So the Axis promises life to France at Vichy, and it promises death to France in the Near

> But a German paper reports that number of German farmers are being punished for sending parcels of food to foreign workers who had been transferred from their farms to munitions factories. Apparently these German farmers had developed feelings of friendship for their orisoner-workers. But Hitler, who is forced to preach the propaganda line of friendship among European peoples, is also compelled to fear that friendship when it does arise, unofficially and down below, making his war seem stupid. He has to stimulate European friendship and he has to fight it, both. The German press is also in > continuous tizzy against those Gernan maidens, who, perhaps taking the new friendship line too seriously, are accused of being too friendly with foreign prisoners. Many new laws have been issued against advanced manifestations of community spirit.

Middle Class Weakened. The headiest of German doubletalk wells up in the economic field. The Hitler regime came to power promising national "socialism." It never delivered and never intended to. But the German middle class sections of which had rather smugly enjoyed the Fascist freezing of economic relations, has now found itself sold out, too Some 300,000 German retail stores have been closed. Meanwhile, the great German corporations grow bigger, at the price of giving up their freedom and putting high Nazis on their boards, so that (Switzerland reports) the Dessau-Gas concern has just swallowed the Schorch-Rheydt Co., Allianz Insurance has taken in Freia, the big Siemens Co. has engulfed the Licht und Kraftanlagen A. G., etc., etc.

Germany's workers, promised enormous benefits, were sold out first. Then the German middle class, promised stability, was sold out to big German capital. Now big German capital has been sold out to Hermann Goering.

The Axis beats us on the doubletalk front, two to one. Its contradictions go far deeper than the admitted and unconcealed differences between, say, Russia and the west. Those differences are acknowledged and clean, by compari-The Germans have dropped the son, and have stood the test of two

The Allied forces in North Africa have gained a splendid victory. They have delivered the first clear-cut defeat in this war on the Axis armies. Allied strategy, the valor of the fighting men and the excellence of their modern equipment have eliminated the old saying, "Too little and too

The victory naturally has created tremendous joy in all Allied nations, particularly those which are suffering under the Nazi boot who now see the day of their deliverance as very close; probably closer than it actually is. The people of these long-suffering nations, together with the Americans and British, appear to believe the Tunisian victory is definitely the turning point of the war and are inclined to draw a parrallel between the present and the summer and fall of 1918 when the imperial German forces and their allies collapsed. Optimism Not Shared.

Responsible quarters, however, do not share this optimism. They are loath to pour cold water on a most legitimate enthusiasm. But they also are fully aware that cold judgment and a sense of realism must prevail again if the present super optimism is not to be replaced by gloom. This is true particularly about the nations which still live "within the confines of the European fortress and who look for their deliverance this year.

Medals Presented to Col. J. H. Carruth and Lt. Col. McMillien

Frederick Hall Fowler, chief consulting civil engineer in the Office of the Chief of Engineers, was elected president of the Society of American Military Engineers at the annual meeting of the society held yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel. Mr. Fowler succeeded Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, former chief of Army engineers, who announced at the meeting that he will be called back to active duty.

Two medals were awarded at the meeting, but due to wartime restrictions the society did not have its usual inspections of military features and the meeting was devoted to business. It was pointed out that many members of the society are on duty in various parts of the world. Col. John H. Carruth, Corps of Engineers, who recently returned from Europe and Africa, was presented the Gold Medal Award for the most meritorious service for the society during 1942. The Toulmin Award for contributing the best article during 1942 to the society's publication, the Military Engineer, was presented to Lt. Col. Shelby A. McMillien, author of the articles, "The Strategic Route to Alaska" and "South America's Vital Road." Col. McMillien has been on duty in the intelligence section of the Office of the Chief Engineers, By the Associated Press. the McGraw Hill Co.

Frank C. Jonah, a former engineer of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad; Maj. Victor V. Martin, administrative assistant in the office of the Chief of Engineers and associate editor of the Military Engineer; Col. Otto Frederick Ohlson, general superintendent of the Alaska Railroad, and Col. Christopher Van Devanter, now in private practice and formerly of the Century of Progress Exposition Brief addresses were made by Mr. Fowler and Gen. Schley. Pointing out the society was started during the World War, Mr. Fowler said it now has a membership of 22,000.

WEST POINT, May 11.-Col. Arthur W. Meehan, one of the Army's great football players on one of its greatest teams, was reported by the Army today to be missing after a night bombing mission in the Southwest Pacific in November. He played quarterback for the Academy in 1925 and 1926, but in 1927 hit his stride when his teammates included Chris Cagle, Bud Sprague, Harry Wilson and Blondy Saunders.

He was graduated from West Point in 1928, but returned in 1932 as assistant coach in the backfield, continuing there under Coach "Biff" Jones through 1939. Except during football season each year he was on duty in the Air Force.

With his wife and two daughters, Col. Meehan was in Hawaii when the war started. He was on active duty in that war theater before he was transferred to the Southwest

The Brawl Is Over, but the Conversation Isn't

No game was scheduled yesterday at Griffith Stadium but apparently for lack of anything better to do some of the Nats straggled in to pick up their mail or merely chat and inevitably the conversation was funneled to fighting, or baseball players' facsimile thereof.

Washington's Ellis Clary and Boston's Johnny Peacock had tangled in a brawl at home plate on Sunday and in barber shops and cocktail bars that battle was ranking one-two with the Tunisian tiff as conversational fodder, with the customary leader, the weather, running a poor third. It had been a few years since local fans had seen a Nat with enough spirit to take a sock at anybody. Everybody agreed Clary's blood is diluted with nitroglycerin, that since nobody was hurt it was a lot of fun and that the Nats third baseman &will be an interesting fellow to and was ready to use it as a weapon.

Scrappers Shake Hands

"Clary had told us on the bench that Peacock (Red Sox catcher) was giving him a terrific riding," said one of the Nats. "He said he was gonna punch him it he kept it up, so Peacock kept it up and Clary punched him. It's as simple as that-when Clary gets mad he's nobody to fool with He didn't get much chance to fight because Peacock wrestled him to the ground too quickly but Ellis can handle his

Peacock and Clary both were sorry about the affair later, it developed. Clary had invited Peacock to continue the fight under Griffith Stadium stands after they both had been banished from the field, but after the double-header they shook hands, talked it over and decided the scrap had been silly after all. "I've never seen anything like that since I broke into baseball." said

Coach Benny Bengough of the Nats. "Usually a hard slide a spiking or tagging somebody too hard may lead to a fight, but I've never seen two players just exchange words and then tear into action.

"Joe Cronin (Red Sox manager) was funny. He couldn't see why Peacock should be put out of the game, but Bill McGowan (plate umpire) was telling him it took two to make a fight and that he was putting 'em both out. Cronin velled. 'Who in the h-l do you think you are-Judge Landis? Let's you and I mix it up a little.

"You have to be able to stand a lot of knocking down as a catcher. Fatty Fothergill doubled to score Dale Alexander from second in a close play at the plate and he sent me sprawling. Then doggoned if somebody didn't get a hit to score Fothergill in another close play and he knocked me for a loop.

Bill Barrett came in on me at the plate. He didn't slide, so I bent over and he flipped up in the air and turned a double somersault. His knee hit me in the kidney, though, and knocked me out. He came down on his head and was

I couldn't get up either and I slithered along on my stomach trying to beat him there "I learned a long time ago that I tagged his hand inches from the though, by Pitcher Mel Harder's

NEW YORK, May 11.—According to the table of performances for the AAU primary physical fitness test, a guy over 35 should be able to run 100 yards in 14.5 seconds and a mile in 7 minutes or run and walk a mile in 10 minutes. What, on an "A" card? Back-tracking the rumor that the Army has been negotiating to take over Madison Square Garden, we learn that the source probably was a recent visit by a couple of Government men who were asking about hiring the joint for some sort of show next fall. A Columbus (Ohio) newspaper reported there were 500 people in the stands when Beulah Park racing began and 5.000 cars in the parking lot. Wonder how the other 4,500 got there? Wrong Team-When Bill Mc-Kechnie, jr., arrived in Syracuse Chiefs, he ruefully recalled his last previous visit to the city, as captain of the Penn State baseball team in 1935. More Grid Enthusiasm, Less Finesse Seen

Scouting Upheld, More Competent Coaching for Junior Highs Urged

NEW YORK, May 11.-Maybe this isn't the best time to be talking football, since spring practice this year proved only that nobody knows what football will be like next fall. But when you talk to Jack Lavelle, eventually you talk football, and generally you come up with some fresh ideas on the subject. Jack, you remember is the old Notre Dame guard who coaches a New York high school team and in his spare time is about the best grid scout in the business. The suggestion that "informal" football may do away with a lot of scouting brings a pained look to Lavelle's round face. "Scouting," he argues, "is what makes football games good. It's football's new service for the quick dissemination of information. A scout sees some new trick or a new defense, brings back the know all the coaches are trying it-if they have the material. Do you know," Jack asks "I've actually had college coaches ask me what was meant by a looping line? How long do you think it would take them to learn things without scouting?"

Idea No. 1 from our latest discussion is that the college game may not be as bad from the spectator standpoint as a lot of fellas think. The loss of coaches and older players won't spoil the game. There'll be less finesse but a lot more enthusiasm, says Jack. Of course, that may be true only here in the East. Reports from some other sections say there won't even be many 17 and 18year-old players on hand because the kids that age are going from high school right into the Army instead of into college. Another of Lavelle's ideas is that football needs more competent coaches in the junior high schools. That's the place for the kids to learn such things as blocking and tac-

Late Bidding Trims Losses and Some Gains Appear

By VICTOR EUBANK. Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 11.-Light selling put leading stocks down frac-tions to more than a point in today's early market proceedings, but enough bidding eventually arrived to cut initial losses substantially or switch assorted issues into the plus column.

The morning stumble was attributed partly to the desire of some customers to cash in on the lengthy climb to three-year peaks. The good African war news aided sentiment although commitments were trimmed here and there by those who thought the big Tunisian victory may have been discounted to a certain extent. Timidity of liquidation was helpful to bullish psychology.

Dealings, even in the sprinting low-priced utilities of Monday, slackened appreciably, notwithstanding a few blocks of 10,000 to 15,000 shares were recorded. The first hour's turnover was about half that of yesterday and volume for the full stretch was around 2,000,000 shares. versus 2.515.000 in the preceding session. Prices near the close were no worse than moderately mixed. Bonds were irregularly lower, reorganization rails being in supply.

Oil Production Slightly Higher During Week

TULSA, Okla., May 11.-Daily crude oil production in the United States increased 4,975 barrels to 3,901,270 for the week ended May 8, the Oil and Gas Journal said today. California production was up 7,000 to 293,050; Louisiana, 1,700 to 345,150, and East Texas, 50 to 319,800.

Here's a deadly example of what well-disciplined teamwork can achievea stirring proof that a sub-contracting relationship can be the basis of truly democratic co-operation

Tough, merciless sluggers-these husky, vicious devils! Built to take it-outside. Built to keep everlastingly going-inside. We know, for we build them here at Pullman-Standard—with the able co-operation of 865 suppliers and sub-contractors, large and small, pouring forth steady streams of necessary materials and parts which flow together on precision schedule -to emerge as these 30-ton dealers of destruction.

There is nothing accidental about the smooth effectiveness of that industrial teamwork. It is the result of engineering-of patient planning and preparation. Even though Pullman-Standard's plants could have built practically the entire tank, yet was it clear that many manufacturers working together in a huge co-operative effort, utilizing investments already made, must surely build tanks and other essential war matériel a great deal faster than could any one plant alone.

Combing highway and byway, city and hamlet, Pullman-Standard sought capable, experienced teammates for a vast share-the-work program; sought those essentials-plants with management, men and facilities; sought and found them. And this is the clinching evidence that the plan is good-it works!

Brains worked together, pooled experience to develop sound methods, to perfect tool designs, to synchronize production schedules. In many instances Pullman-Standard loaned supervision to get the job going smoothly. And of every dollar received by Pullman-Standard for a great fleet of 30-ton tanks, 80% is passed along to those suppliers and sub-contractors. Pullman-Standard itself-for coordination, painstaking engineering, exhaustive planning, manufacturing, assembly, rigid tests, and for assuming full responsibility for the tanks' unfailing performance -retains the remaining 20%, which in turn is distributed for labor, overhead, services and Federal taxes.

Participating in that great program on tanks alone are 865 suppliers and sub-contractors located in 206 cities in 25 states—from a one-man shop to a great industry employing 150,000 workers-operating under 5432 contracts from Pullman-Standard.

Nor is this chapter of extraordinary achievement the full story of Pullman-Standard's share-the-work program for aiding the nation's war effort. Today, in addition to TANKS, Pullman-Standard has produced huge quantities of HOWITZER CARRIAGES, TRENCH MORTARS, BOMBS, SHELLS of various calibers and sizes, parts for ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN MOUNTS, AIR-CRAFT MAJOR SUB-ASSEMBLIES, FREIGHT CARS for the Army, Navy, and Railroads, and NAVAL PATROL CRAFT.

In addition to that great co-operative enterprise, Pullman-Standard is itself a sub-contractor-chosen to provide great quantities of other matériel essential to the war program; chosen because of particular fitness, long experience, ample facilities, and an intimate, readymade"know-how" concerning the problems to be faced.

The Pullman-Standard plants at Butler, Pa. and Hammond, Ind. have both been awarded the Army and Navy 'E" pennant for efficiency in production.

Eager to give "all-out" aid to the nation's war effort, Pullman-Standard opened its doors to all who sought to learn from its experience. Many came and still come - with the result that thousands of ordnance items are pouring forth faster in many plants, because alert manufacturers recognized methods for speeding production and adopted them.

Core and heart of this teamwork is Pullman-Standard's 84 years of varied and fruitful experience. Here, truly, are the supple minds eager to tackle knotty problems, the endless resourcefulness of American industry, the stirring capacity to "do it better" that is so characteristic of Democracy inspired to its ultimate best.

We long for peace-for a return to the kindly relationships of neighbors; to making things for pleasant, happy living—in place of building instruments of death. To those joyous peace-time tasks think what treasures we shall bring! New methods born of battles! Better ways to make the things we need, learned under the driving necessity of war! New short-cuts, new devices, new knowledge, that will produce new comforts and conveniences of which we have not dreamed! If proof were needed, this is it—that Democracy alone can make a world fit to live in.

Monroe Case 'Smear' Charge Inquiry O. K.'d

House Committee Orders Probe of Commentator's 'Tip'

The House Military Affairs Committee today ordered an immediate investigation of charges that a member of the Louisiana delegation had been "smeared" by an accusation broadcast by Drew Pearson, Washington newspaper columnist and radio commentator, over the Blue Network Sunday night. The commentator charged that the House member was to "get a juicy commission" on a contract deal promised by John P. Monroe, host at the widely publicized dinner parties for the elite of Washington at the big four-story red brick house at 2101

Action of the committee was taken in executive session after Representative Brooks, Democrat, of Louisiana, had read to the members a statement from the Louisiana delegation demanding the inquiry. The committee convened, behind closed doors shortly after 10:30 a.m. and, according to the earlier promise of Chairman May, first took under consideration the request of the Louisiana delegation. After approving the investigation, the committee. it was said, began consideration of a new bill it plans to sponsor to aid in relieving the present labor and manpower situation.

Fairfax Leaders Map Program For Child Care

Survey Pushed On Communities' Need for Centers

Tentative plans for working out a child-care program in Fairfax County were discussed at a conference yesterday of members of the County Child Committee and State officials at Fairfax.

Principal speakers were Dr. Lorin Thompson, chairman of the Child Welfare Committee of Virginia; Miss Frances Cromwell, State Department of Education, and Mrs. Flora Yowell, chairman of child care, State Department of Welfare. Programs Pushed.

It was decided to complete as soon as possible a survey in each community to learn the number of homes with children where both parents are working, so the committee may determine the needs for recreational centers. The program is being pushed to combat juvenile delinguency, which is said to be on the increase in the county.

The committee will also launch an extensive educational program on child care through parentteacher associations and the press Mrs. Chester Lane of Chesterbrook was named to direct this.

The Brandywine (Md.) Grange has requested the Board of Managers of the House of Reformation and Cheltenham School for Boys to remove immediately "certain employes" whose "unwarranted actions" have stirred up "racial strife"

Pointing out that for the last 75 years the school has been operated in an orderly fashion "in the interest of colored delinquent boys who have been committed to its care," the grange said in a resolution that a "group of conscientious objectors" recently has attempted to create a situation at the school "distasteful" to both colored and white

Civic Federation Lauded for Aid In Charter Fight

James Praises Group For Support of Change in Rule

By MRS. J. REED BRADLEY. Tribute to the Montgomery County Civic Federation for the part it played in sponsoring the drafting of a county charter was paid last night by Stephen James, member of the Charter Board, at the monthly meeting of the association in the Bethesda Elementary "Every worthwhile governmental reform has behind it the inspiration and ideals of some organization. The advice and help of the Civic Federation and the knowledge that would support a constructive charter made it easier for the Charter Board to complete its task,"

Mr. James declared. The changes incorporated in the final draft of the charter as the result of federation suggestions were reviewed by Allen Gardner chairman of the Special Charter Committee. Mr. Gardner praised the charter and said he felt that the carrying out of its provisions would go a long way toward promoting democracy in the county. While he thought the provisions for home rule, merit system and control of spending by a system of checks were the highlights of the charter, he felt that the principle of seeking a man for a particular jcb and not a job for a particular man would contribute most to governmental reform.

Draft to Be Published.

The final draft of the charter will be published in six weekly erning its use will be adopted and newspapers in the county during the week of May 17, Mr. Gardner said, and he hoped every voter would study it before the general Pointing out that cool weather election in November, 1944, when

World Policemen To Guard Peace Urged by Hill

Isolation Ended. He Tells Woman's Democratic Club

By Gretchen Smith

A plea for establishment of an international police force to guarantee fulfillment of world peace and freedom after the war was presented in an address by Senator Hill, Democrat, of Alabama before members of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday.

"The world has grown too small for isolationism," the speaker declared, "and the United States must realize that her duty lies in participating in forming an international organization for maintaining peace throughout the world."

Speaking at the last of the club's information hour luncheons this season, Senator Hill said, "Instantaneous communications and rapid transportation have given the deathblow to isolationism; in fact, it died on the day of Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941.

Sustaining our men in winning the war is not enough, the speaker continued. We must assure them also that neither they nor their sons ever will have to go into another war, he added

"It is our lasting obligation to make sure we don't lose the peace,' he asserted. "We must build a world peace and maintain a world in which there will be no third

"We must abolish international war by the same processes that we eliminate strife among other groups," he asserted. "We must establish international machinery to adjudicate disputes with power to enforce the judgments."

Former peace efforts have failed because there has been no power to enforce the efforts, he declared. The Senator appealed for support of the resolution which he sponsored recently in the Senate with the support of Senator Joseph H. Ball, Republican, of Minnesota; Senator Harold H. Burton, Republican, of Ohio, and Senator Carl A. Hatch, Democrat, of New Mexico. This resolution, he explained, would provide for an international police force which would suppress efforts of an aggressor nation to violate international laws.

"No organization is any stronger than its powers to enforce decrees," he declared. "Without force, an arbitrating organization becomes a debating society.

Senator Hill pointed out how an effective organization established by the United Nations with "the kindred idea-love of freedom," could force an aggressor to abandon any plans which again might disrupt the peace of the world. Myrtle Richards for "Exult O

Anti-Strike Measure Is Denounced by Textile Workers

Labor Doing Superb Production Job, Roosevelt Informs Convention

NEW YORK, May 11 (AP).-Nine hundred delegates to the third biennial convention of the Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO) have adopted unanimously a resolution denouncing the Senate-approved Connally anti-strike bill.

The resolution charged that the bill introduced by Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas was a move toward "outlawing the rights of unions." The measure, the resolution continued, would "enmesh decisions of the National War Labor Board in court reviews at the option of recalcitrant employers."

Emil Rieve, president of the union, read a greeting from President Roosevelt which stated that "American workers are doing a superb pro-

The President's message to the delegates representing 400,000 union

"Please extend my greetings to the delegates attending the 1943 con-vention of the Textile Workers Union of America and convey my best wishes to them for a constructive and successful meeting.

"Your members, like workers all over the country, are producing for the Nation's fighting men and for those who are turning out the weapons of war for their use in many parts of the world.

"Our American workers are doing a superb production job, and I know they will continue it in the months to come, so as to have their full share in destroying the power of the Axis and in safeguarding the rights

Mr. Rieve told the delegates that labor should "prepare for the 1944 elections now so that we will perpetuate the New Deal candidates in office," adding that jobs must be found after the war for 19,000,000 men, and "if private enterprise can't give them jobs, public enterprise

Without mentioning John L. Lewis by name, Mr. Rieve said in his address that the president of the United Mine Workers had "pledged to maintain unbroken production for the war effort," and that "no matter how great the grievances of the miners, there is no justification for the complete stoppage of the production of coal in this emergency period."

The suit naming the three union defendants asked judgment from "each of them for $1.500 actual damages and $48,500 punitive

The suit for the permanent injunction and damages claims Mr. Kay was prevented from working for the A. Schulte Cigar Co., because of alleged union action. He was tried by the local in Philadelphia, the suit says, on charges of infractions of union rules, and without having representation at the trial was fined $250, it adds, which he allegedly refused to pay.

Mr. Kay, the suit says, had re-fused to attend the trial because he claimed the so-called offenses against the union allegedly were committed here.

The temporary restraining order named Arthur F. Murray as Washington representative of Local No. 934, Retail Cigar Employes' Union

Mrs. Lane Goes on Trial May 24 in 1931 Murder

Trial of Mrs. Edythe Dodsworth Lane on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Elizabeth Jaynes during a holdup of the Garden T Shoppe on Good Friday in 1931 is scheduled in Dis-trict Court on May 24, it was announced late yesterday by United States Attorney Edward M. Curran.

The prosecution will attempt to show that Mrs. Lane was driver of the automobile used in the holdup, the United States attorney said. Thomas Jordan now is serving a life term at the Lorton Reformatory for the slaying during the holdup.

Mrs. Lane was brought here from California in February, following her arrest there on a drunkenness charge. She had been indicted here along with Jordan in 1935, but her whereabouts remained unknown until her arrest. Mrs. Lane, who is said to have been employed in a West Coast airplane factory, has steadfastly maintained her innocence in connection with the holdup and murder.

An unusual and very smart lamp recently seen in a local shop is patterned after the Chinese influence with a tri-cornered base of light wood and an attractive cone-shaped shade covered in naturalcolored homespun. There are very few metal outdoor cooking sets left. However, you still can secure a set consisting of a fork, broiler and spatula made of steel with convenient long handles. It's worth the investment if you go in for outdoor cooking in a big way, for with care this set should last indefinitely.

From Our Good Neighbors . . .

For summertime serving there's a wooden tray with six glasses, an ice bowl and another center tray. The article was made in Mexico and is painted with designs typical of that good-neighbor country. The center tray is of raffia and the ice bowl is decorated with the same material. The glasses fit into separate compartments to keep them from slipping or turning over.

Value of Toys

Today, More Than Ever, Children Find Comfort and Refuge in Playthings

Children need toys now more than they did in times past because there are so many things to upset and frighten them. Mothers are away more, and fathers are seldom seen in many homes. In others, both fathers and mothers are far away and the children have been left to others. The children do not understand all that is going on and often they are afraid and afraid of being afraid. They cannot tell what bothers them, and talking to them rarely helps matters.

In this predicament the children find comfort in their toys. They lose themselves and so forget their troubles when they play, and the things they play with soon take over the emotional overflow of their owners. They become identified with the child's feelings to such an Slender Frock extent that they become personalities. This can mean that a truck is a dear friend, a box of blocks a 'Neat as a Pin' beloved and familiar confidant. Remember this when the playthings seem to get in the way and treat For Housework them respectfully.

Give the lonesome child a new toy, something he has not had before for the same reason that you cherish the old ones. Associations formed anew can often wipe out old and painful ones. That depends on the child. If his old toys bring tears, sad memories, let them stay in the background and allow him to make new associations [with the new toy. In any case a new toy is bound to help.

Don't buy the biggest and most expensive thing in the shop. Let him indicate a preference. Take him to the shops several times so you can be certain of his wishes. and so that he can work up an interest in the things he sees. Then surprise him with the new toy.

Don't worry about its educational values. Any toy that persuades a child to use it, is an educational toy. Using it is what educates him. Facts in themselves will not do much for him but action will. The letters on his blocks are facts. He learns A and maybe apple, but he learns far more than that the day he piles his blocks into a house or a garage and pushes his toy cars in and out between them.

Give him simple toys that he can use. Wind-up toys are good. Building things, making things go. using tools to make things, no matter how crude, pulling and pushing and wheeling are the actions most loved by little children. The Government will not ration milk unless it becomes absolutely necessary, since it is such an important wartime food. The United States Government Office of De-fense, Health and Welfare tells us that milk does more for the body than any other one food, and it is a cheap and important source of calcium, protein and vitamins A, B and G. United States Food Administrator

Wickard said "The fluid milk that goes to American families is just as important as the cheese and powdered milk which goes overseas, and of all the foods produced in this country milk is perhaps of the greatest importance. It is one essential of every good diet and is particularly needed to guard the health of growing boys and girls." The American soldier has a field ration of 1 pint of milk a day. On distant fronts powdered and evaporated milk are being used. Combat zone emergency rations include a cheese spread. You can see what Army nutritionists think of milk! If you do not like it, try to develop a taste for it. If you simply cannot do this add more cottage cheese to your menus, use milk in custards, ice cream, cream sauces or milk shakes. Try buttermilk. The addition of a little sugar and vanilla makes this a palatable beverage for many persons.

The Navy reinforcements that had come in included many old friends of his and there was so much gossip back and forth about what so-and-so was doing and what so-and-so had told the commander that a man had no time to think of what lay ahead of him when he got into the air.

They do not have rubber bands for hearts.

He saw Joe's plane diving and thought, this was split-hair stuff, this was walking tight rope on a split hair, and kept throwing his plane around, jinking and corkscrewing. That Jap gunner wouldn't get off him. He followed Swede's every move and Swede knew that when he leveled off to drop his torpedo and gave the man a steady target, it was going to be bad

But what had to be had to be and Swede leveled off at the time he had planned to and at the time he had figured on with Joe, and dropped his torpedo. Then nothing happened. Swede got away, as did all the others and Joe and the dive bombers, too. An officer, flying over the scene as an observer in a scout plane, reported that Joe's 1.000-pound bomb had hit the battleship amidships a few seconds before Swede's torpedo had hit it The torpedo had gone in right under where the bomb had hit courtroom and said quietly: "In spite of the sentences, this case will be appealed and reversed. We believe in the laws of the land." Defense Attorney Russell Parsons said a motion for appeal would be made in United States Circuit Court.

A Scratching Dog

The best dog in the world can't be truly happy when he must continually scratch, dig. rub and bite himself, seeking relief from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. He is in frenzied torment—can't help himself. But you may. Try giving him, as thousands are doing, Rex Hunters Dog Powders, once each week. Note the quick difference. Learn why a glad purchaser wrote: "I surely was pleased, as the 25c package helped my dog immediately. He has practically quit scratching, has more pep and his hair is glossy again." Nazi Book-Burning Reprisal Urged on Day of Victory

Anniversary Meeting Is Told of Difficulty in Winning German Mind

When the victorious Allies march into Berlin they ought to burn Nazi books in Opera Square just as the Nazis burned English and American books 10 years ago yesterday, it was suggested by Dr. Antonin Ordlik, attache of the Czechoslovakian Legation, at a panel discussion of the significance of the book

"Democracy must not be over-tolerant," he declared last night to the other eight officials and authors commemorating the anniversary of the Nazi bonfire. The audience at Coolidge Auditorium in the Library of Congress applauded the remark. Burning Nazi ideology from the minds of the Germans will not be so easy, countered Robert Neuner of the Federal Communications Commission. "Some people believe that after an Allied victory democracy will spring out of the German ground like mushrooms," he said.

Actually there is no German underground and "democracy does not exist at all them." not exist at all there," declared F. W. Foester, author.

First Secretary Craig McGeachy of the British Embassy, first British woman ever to be given diplomatic status, said making democrats out of the Germans would be complicated by their complete lack of civic responsibility. She doubted that Germans could ever advance to the point of taking the initiative to criticize and improve their own government. As proof, she cited the Germans who claim they are weary of tyrants and yet have done nothing about them for years.

Burning of the works of Heine, Schiller, Einstien, Gorky, Helen Keller, Hemingway and Freud may not have meant as much to the Germans as it did to the outside world, said Sigmund Skard, consultant in Scandinavian literature at the Library. He said that its literary heritage had not become part of the "national mind" in Germany as it had in his native country of Norway. The Rev. Ignatius Smith of Catholic University said he knew well the German libraries from which books were taken to be burned on May 10, 1933. Mr. Obrdlik said he had seen some of the first orders to teachers in occupied Czechoslovakia, forbidding books "harmful from the viewpoint of Nazi Others on the panel, led by Harry Lee Franklin of the Tariff Commission, were Charles H. Judd, former professor at the University of Chicago, and David Wills, director of the British Supply Council. Stephen Vincent Benet's "Burning of the Books" was read by Dr. Joseph Auslander, poet and editor.
