The new regulations cover Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., and Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria. Va., as part of the Metropolitan Area labor market, but will be administered in the nearby counties by area directors in Maryland and Virginia.

They provide that a worker should be given a statement of availability allowing him to change jobs if he is discharged, if he is not using his skill most effectively in the war effort, if he is laid off, if he be working at less than full time or if he is subjected to "undue personal

Statement of Availability.

The Washington plan provides for issuing a statement of availability where a worker, for any reason, has left a firm's employ and the firm refuses to re-employ him in his former or comparable position "without prejudice to any rights or privileges previously enjoyed by him." Mr Deschner said this provision would apply where a worker had left without a statement of availability, had been told to go back to his former employer and then had been refused employment.

Pacific Air Battles Center on Jap Efforts To Hold New Guinea

Enemy Trying to Bolster Bases With Barges Slipped Down Coast

By the Associated Press. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, May 22.-Dogged efforts of the Japanese to supply their menaced New Guinea bases by barge and determination of the Allies to neutralize enemy air strongholds above New Guinea with a great weigh of bombs have intensified the Southwest Pacific air war. Showing more and more inclination to challenge the daily forays of Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney's bombers and fighters, the Japanese used 47 planes vesterday in raid and combat, bringing to 300 the number they have employed in a week's period. Their losses yesterday of 22 destroyed or damaged raised their total for the week to approximately 70. Allied Bomber Downed.

Today's communique also listed one Allied bomber as shot down and three missing.

The Japanese, rather than risk more ships to Gen. Kenney's accurate bombers in directly supplying Northeast New Guinea holdings nearest Allied lines, prefer to move barges down the coast from supply centers which are more removed from Allied airdromes. Mitchell bombers yesterday spotted more than a dozen of these barges carrying men, ammunition and supplies, above the enemy's hardpressed Salamaua. Out of 10 observed near Alexishafen, 5 were sunk and the others had to be beached. Still other barges were swooped on near Finschhafen, three being de-

Ward Sent to Nashville For 'Safe Keeping'

By the Associated Press. MANCHESTER, Tenn., May 22.-

Pittman Ward, colored, charged with first-degree murder in the killing of Mrs. Norma Fave Scogin, 19year-old wife of a Camp Forrest Army lieutenant, has been taken to Nashville for safekeeping, Coffee County Sheriff Jim Banks said to-

Sheriff Banks said he had served a warrant on Ward, 20-year-old civilian employe at the camp hospital, but another warrant charging first-degree murder against a colored soldier, Pvt. Cyrus Key, has not been served. Key, formerly of Florence. Ala., and now stationed at Camp Forrest, is being held by military authorities.

Another Tullahoma colored man Hugh Morehead, was placed in jail on a warrant charging sale of a pistol to George (Slim) Johnson, with which Johnson shot Mrs Scogin and later took his own life in Nashville when police sought to arrest him. Sheriff Banks said Morehead, too, was removed to an undisclosed county for safekeeping. The report of a coroner's jury soon after Mrs. Scogin's body was found in a thicket near Tullahoma that she had been murdered and criminally assaulted was modified by another report made to the coroner yesterday by Dr. J. M. King that his subsequent autopsy indicated there was no complete assault According to the story told by

Ward and Key, Johnson forced his way into the automobile in which they were riding in Tullahoma and then compelled Mrs. Scogin, who lived in a Tullahoma rooming house. to enter it. The men said that Johnson shot the young woman and dragged her out of the car, after which Ward and Key drove off and reported the affair to authorities. The statements made by Ward and Key did not agree in all respects, Sheriff Banks said, and the investigation is being continued.

The WPB official did not give precise figures for April plane construction. He did say that more adding that Mr. Jones has ruled cast by the Moscow radio and heavy bombers were produced last month than in March, when the output was said to be approximatel 500. Production of all types of launched drives of its own as pre- planes will be increased greatly each month this year.

Mr. Wilson discounted the "cutbacks" which have been made in some phases of the munitions program. He attributed these to "the fluidity of war" and added that greater effort will be needed all along the line if we are to meet this year's production goals. The Nation produced only about 20 per cent of this year's war production quota in the first quarter, leaving approximately 80 per cent for the remaining nine months.

Mr. Wilson described aircraft output so far as somewhat better than the output of all types of munitions. pointing out that the plane construction program must be pushed forward faster than any other phase of the war effort.

Elmer Davis Suggests Yamamoto Was Killed By Other Jap Officers

Suicide Also Hinted or Admiral May Have Died in Airliner Crash

By the Associated Press. Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, says that perhaps Admiral Isoruku Yamamoto, reported by Tokio to have died in air combat, "was bumped off by some of the rest of the mob-as has happened to high officers in Germany and Italy.'

Mr. Davis, in his weekly radio broadcast last night, reviewed various guesses on what-in addition to the official Japanese explanation of death in combat-might have caused the death of the commander in chief of the Nipponese Navy, including the possibility of suicide. Saying that hatred of foreigners and overconfidence after victories early in the war might have "affected his judgment," Mr. Davis said:

"At any rate, the Japanese Navy was none too brilliantly handled in the latter half of 1942, so his colleagues may have decided he had outlived his usefulness and that they could cover up his murder by giving him a great publicity buildup as a

City officials in Muskogee, Okla., discontinued water service to the small supply remaining in the res- personnel ervoir after floods left the waterworks inoperative. The Arkansas River stage at Muskogee was 48.47. five inches below the crest predicted by the Weather Bureau. State agricultural experts estimated 750,000 acres of crops were ruined in 38 counties and damage to highways was placed at more than $1,000,000. All rivers in the Tulsa area, except the Verdigris, were reported falling.

Breaks in the Illinois side of levee on the Wabash River relieved the greatest part of the pressure at Vincennes, Ind., and dikes in that city were considered trustworthy. The number of homeless in the State was still about 10,000, with rehabilitation of evacuees started last week. There were no casualties among soldiers patroling the bridge, but some equipment was lost. The city of 40,000, which normally uses 7,000,000 gallons of water daily for itself and nearby Camp Chaffee, had a reserve of between eight and nine million gallons in storage. Mayor Chester Holland said it would be at least five days before new temporary lines could be laid and "the reserve on hand must be made

House Hoists Red Flag Against Subsidies as It Extends Lease-Lend

Writes in Stipulation Barring Such Pay in Buying Food Stocks

A red-flag warning against the administration's food subsidy pro gram was hoisted in the House today as it turned over to the Senate a $6,273,629,000 lease-lend appropriation measure to finance this Nation's share in the Allied mutual aid program.

By rollcall vote of 214 to 96, the House wrote into the lease-lend bill an amendment to prevent use of any of the funds as subsidies in purchasing food to ship to other United Nations.

Just what effect the amendment might have on the lease-lend program remained uncertain, but the House left no doubt that any subsidy program sent up to Capitol Hill in the future will likely run into rough treatment.

The action came as the House Banking Committee considered War Food Administrator Chester Davis request that the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corp. be boosted by another $1,000,000,000. There already have been strong committee indications that as amendment will be hung onto that bill preventing use of the money for subsidies—a move aimed at the administration's recently-announced plan to roll back some food costs 10 per cent by subsidy payments to processors.

The lease-lend measure itself boosting the total mutual-aid outlay to approximately $24,500,000,000. swept through the House late yester. day by an overwhelming roll call vote of 309 to 4.

The action came after four hours of discussion, interspersed by de-

Stalin May Reply Soon May Assails Shafer To Roosevelt Letter Selfridge Field Delivered by Davies

No Indication Offered On Contents of Note Taken to Kremlin

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, May 22. - Premier Stalin's answer to President Roosevelt's personal letter may be in the hands of former Ambassador Joseph

E. Davies for delivery to Washington in a few days. At a press conference yesterday at which he described his meeting with the Soviet Premier at the Kremlin, Mr. Davies said Premier Stalin smiled after the long translation was completed, and said he based on Prime Minister Churchill's recent statement before Congress that he and Mr. Roosevelt hoped "in the not far-distant future" to achieve a meeting with the Russian leader, was that the letter was designed to bring about such a meeting.)

Mr. Davies told newsmen he talked with Premier Stalin for more than two hours. The Premier was described as a smiling host "who doesn't look like a man who was worried. Admiral William H. Standley, the American Ambassador, and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov also were present. The Premier listened attentively and once stopped the interpreter to ask him to repeat a "He looks better than when I saw

Further Discussions On Capital Transit's Hiring Scheduled

Conferees Refuse to Comment on Yesterday's Effort for Solution

Further informal discussion over the disputed issue of the Capital Transit Co.'s hiring policies and its alleged discrimination against Negro operators on streetcars and buses will be continued by leaders concerned, it was apparent today.

The problem was under consideration for about two hours yesterday in the office of Ramy B. Deschner, area manpower director. At the meeting were Mr. Deschner, J. G. Bigelow, president of the Transit Workers' Union, AFL; E. D. Merrill, president of the transit company, and Lawrence W. Cramer, executive secretary of the Fair Employment

Practice Committee.

This committee has called a hearing for Wednesday, June 2, to hear the company explain why it has not complied with previous committee orders to hire Negroes on "platforms" of both buses and Deschner Issues Statement.

Following the session yesterday in Mr. Deschner's office, all conferees declined to comment, referring the press to Mr. Deschner for a statement to represent them all.

Mr Deschner issued a brief statement, saying the officials had "met on invitation at the area manpower office to discuss informally the alleged discrimination shown by the transit company in its hiring prac-

"Neither the participants nor Mr. Deschner,' said the statement. "would comment further on the meeting, since other conferences probably will follow.

This apparently left the way open for further informal discussions in efforts to reach a solution to the problem. Mr. Deschner recently challenged the right of the FEPC to hold the public hearing, claiming the matter should be turned over to his manpower office. But FEPC officials claimed authority under an executive order of President Roosevelt. and an interpretive decision by the war manpower general counsel.

Reorganization in Prospect. Meantime, high Government officials were known to be preparing a new executive order to "reorganize" the FEPC. Already a new chaerman has been appointed, Msgr. Francis J. Haas, dean of the school of social science of Catholic University, a nationally known conciliator, who has had extensive experience in settlement of various kinds of disputes. Admitting only that he has accepted the chairmanship. Msgr. Haas has so far declined to discuss either the Capital Transit case or the general principles under which he expects to serve as chairman.

The new executive order apparently was receiving protracted attention from legal experts, according to indications today. When it will be promulgated still was uncertain, but informed quarters indicated it might

Couple Will Make Their Residence In Washington

The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sells Wilson, to Ensign Charles P. Maloney, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Maloney, is of more than usual interest in resident circles of the District of Columbia where both families long have been prominent. The wedding took place this morning at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrement, the pastor, the Right Rev. Msgr. Thomas G. Smyth officiating at 10 o'clock. Mr. Joseph Maloney, brother of the bridegroom served the mass during which Miss Elizabeth Kirkley sang several solos

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a wedding gown of Chantilly lace and marquisette, made with fitted bodice and full skirt which ended in a train. Her illusion veil was held by a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Virginia Wilson was maid of honor for her sister, wearing blue organza modeled after the gown of the bride. She wore a wreath of blue flowers and carried a bouquet of spring blossoms.

The bridesmaids were sisters of he bride and bridegroom, the Misses Marian and Nancy Wilson and the Misses Anne and Gertrude Maloney. Their costumes were like that of the maid of honor made of yellow organza, their wreaths matching their frocks and their bouquets like that of the bride's other atendant. Mr. Charles P. Maloney was best nan for his brother and the ushers included Lt. James E. Beach, Ensign Levin P. Handy, jr., Mr. Merton L. White and Mr. Laurens Sullivan, all of Washington. The wedding breakfast and re-ception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Wilson receiving the guests assisted by Mrs. Maloney, mother of the bridegroom. Mrs. Wilson's costume was of gray chiffon, ker natural color straw hat trimmed with shaded pink flowers and her shoulder bouquet of orchids. Mrs. Maloney was dressed in wood-violet crepe and had a small flower hat and an orchid bouquet. Ensign and Mrs. Maloney will leave later this afternoon for a Southern wedding trip, the bride wearing a brown and yellow print frock with brown accessories. They will make their home in Washington while Ensign Maloney is on duty here.

Another 'Czar' Needed

Original air-raid signals were confused by lack of uniformity between communities. When the Army changed the system and prescribed only two standard signals on the sirens-the "blue" and the "red"some of the original confusion was eliminated, but another source of confusion was injected by the absence of any "all clear" siren signal. The original plan of leaving the "all clear" to be announced on the radio or, at night, by the turning on of street lights, proved obviously unsatisfactory.

The reason for omitting the "all clear" on the siren seems to have been the advice by sound experts that the sirens were limited to two distinct signals, a long one and a series of short, warbling notes. If local authorities could devise another one, not to be confused with the "blue" and the "red," it would be approved. The authorities in Washington are working along this line and their decision is expected to be announced

This may be satisfactory. But there has been too much disposition to leave this and other protective phases of civilian defense to the local authorities. We have a lot of "czars" now, but none is more needed than a ezar who can prescribe the basic rules to be observed in air raids and insist on uniform compliance everywhere. If there is the slightest danger of air raids, and on this point the authorities themselves seem to hold different opinions, it is a sad commentary this late date we are still depending on the originality and initiative of various local authorities to agree on what the complete set of signals should be.

Coal Panel Report

Without making any specific recommendations, the report of the War Labor Board's fact-finding panel in the coal case suggests various ways in which the miners might receive pay increases without openly breaching the little steel formula. In fact. the labor and public members of the panel seem to have approached the matter primarily from the point of view of devising some way in which the pay of the miners could be increased, although, in theory at least, the function of the board's panels does not extend to discovering ways and means of bypassing the steel formula.

Thus, without directly advocating anything, the panel suggests that the miners might be given more money through the granting of portal-toportal pay, by making cash concessions to them to cover the cost of materials used in mining, by inaugurating a six-day week in which overtime would be paid for Saturday work even though a miner might not have worked the five preceding days, by taking into account the higher weekly earnings of men employed in other industries, or, in the case of the bituminous miners, by approving an outright wage increase.

The panel seeks to justify this last suggestion by calling attention to the fact that the miners were in the "unusual situation" of working under a two-year contract. Just what relevancy this might have is not clear, but the panel report observed that while the little steel formula was based on increases in straighttime earnings since January 1, 1941, it does not preclude consideration of other dates "under exceptional circumstances where special inequities are shown to exist." Apparently the thought behind this is that if the miners had been working under a one-year contract they might have received an increase in wage rates prior to January 1, 1941, which they did not get under the two-year arrangement, and that, therefore, there is a special inequity in making that date applicable to them in construing the little steel formula.

It remains to be seen whether the full board will respond to any of its panel's implicit suggestions as to methods of getting around the steel formula. Under this formula, it is clear enough that the miners are not entitled to a pay increase, and this has been recognized by John L. Lewis from the beginning. But the board in this instance is faced with a more difficult problem than that involved in interpreting its own formula. It must also consider the likelihood that Mr. Lewis, who has refused to have anything to do with the board's proceedings, might now decline to be bound by any decision the board But that was at a time when war the Defeat garden. Rabbits are nomight make which falls short of out-unlikely that the board will refuse to make any concession. But the task of measuring its extent, in the face of a probable rebuff of any compromise, will not be an easy one.

Eastern Front Prospects

The eastern front has made relatively few headlines during recent weeks. This was natural, because the great spring thaw, sweeping northward across Russia with the returning sun, has progressively transformed the icebound soil into slush and mud wherein major military operations are impossible for either side. That enforced interim period usually lasts from six weeks to two months, depending on the intensity of the spring rains. But by now, the thaw line, which began its northward march in the Crimea and adjacent Caucasian Black Sea coast in late February, has completed its 2,000-mile journey to the Arctic coasts, and in Southern Russia the ground is fairly firm. So, as might be expected, the fighting line is following the thaw line with an appropriate time lag.

For nearly a month a fierce struggle has been raging at the Caucasian bridgehead which the Germans still hold, both as a defensive bastion to the Crimea and as a potential springboard for a fresh offensive toward the Baku oil fields and the Caspian Sea. Despite repeated Russian attacks, the Germans cling stubbornly to this highly strategic vantage point. Similarly indecisive fighting is developing in the Ukraine sectors, while activity is increasing in the still mud-bound segments clear to Leningrad and the Baltic. Both the German and Russian war machines are obviously tuning up for a renewed trial of strength.

The magnitude and importance of the eastern front was brought home to us by Winston Churchill in his recent address before Congress when he reminded his hearers that "not for one moment must we forget that the main burden of the war on land is still being borne by the Russian armies. They are holding at the present time no fewer than 190 German divisions and 28 satellite divisions on their front." He compared this with the 15 Axis divisions destroyed in North Africa after a long and costly campaign by the Anglo-American armies and their French allies, and stated "there is little doubt that Hitler is reserving his supreme gambler's throw for a third attempt to break the heart and spirit and destroy the armed forces of the mighty nation which he has already twice assaulted in vain."

Mr. Churchill's expectations of a great Axis offensive in Russia this on our state of preparedness that at | summer are shared by most military | observers, though it is also quite possible that the Red Army may try to beat Hitler to the punch and disrupt his plans by a late spring offensive of its own, as happened last year. Thus far, the German and Russian high commands have alike. screened their intentions. But they must show their respective hands before long, since the short summer campaigning season will be on by mid-June everywhere except along the Baltic and sub-Arctic fronts. Heavy German concentrations on the central sectors incline some observers to believe that Moscow may be the main Axis target this year, with a secondary drive to cut the narrow corridor connecting Leningrad with the rest of Russia and thus again isolate the Baltic metropolis. This would be a logical procedure if the German high command is bent on crushing Russia's military power rather than gaining the Caucasus and cutting the Volga artery as was tried last summer. Berlin undoubtedly realizes that this is its last chance to smash Russia's offensive strength before Allied pressure in Western Europe and the Mediterranean forces the Axis to a generaily defensive role.

This raises the larger question as to whether the Allies are ready to launch attacks on their side of Hitler's European fortress powerful enough to divert Germany's strategic reserves and thus compel Berlin to abandon whatever offensive plans on the eastern front it may have in mind. But this is likewise veiled in strategic reticence which the course of events alone can dispel.

A discussion is current in military and scientific circles as to the advisability of bombing the craters of Vesuvius and Fujiyama. Our marksmen undoubtedly could hit these bull's-eyes with ease, but it would be bad if the volcanoes woke on the instant to bop the bombs right back in the bomber's face.

Berlin announces that Rommel left Africa "ill." It is not unlikely that his particular form of sickness may soon assume almost epidemic proportions. It may prove to be a new form of "German measles."

General Lear

It is gratifying that the Senate, with only one dissenting vote, has taken favorable action on the President's recommendation that Ben Lear be permitted to retain his temporary rank as lieutenant general. As commander of the Second Army, General Lear played an important and constructive part in the training and organization of the Army of the United States. Having come up from the ranks to win his general's stars, he was a strong believer in discipline, and this brought him a considerable measure of unfavorable publicity during the "yoohoo" incident in the summer of 1941. seemed remote, and when many rethinking has changed since then, and with war having demonstrated the importance of discipline, there will be but few to hold to the belief that the punishment imposed on the offending troops—a penalty march—was either excessive or unreasonable. For a while, however, it appeared that this one incident might serve to overshadow the accomplishments of a distinguished career, and the Senate is to be commended for its refusal to be a party to any such patent injustice.

Crimean Contrast

When the Office of War Information recently reported that "the wounded don't die," many a grateful American must have recalled those passages in "Eminent Victorians" in which Lytton Strachey tells about conditions in the military medical service as they used to be. The distinguished British author says: "Miss Nightingale arrived at Scutari-a suburb of Constantinople, on the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus-on November 4, 1854; it was ten days after the Battle of Balaclava, and the day before the Battle of Inkerman. The organization of the hospitals, which had already given way under the stress of the Battle of the Alma. was now to be subjected to the further pressure which these two desperate and bloody engagements implied. Great detachments of wounded were already beginning to

No proper preparation had been made for the transportation of sick and injured soldiers from the fighting front to the only relief center. "The men, after receiving such summary treatment as could be given them at the smaller hospitals in the Crimea itself, were forthwith shipped in batches of two hundred across the Black Sea to Scutari. This voyage was in normal times one of four days and a half; but the times were no longer normal, and now the transit often lasted for a fortnight or three weeks. * * * Between, and sometimes on the decks, the wounded, the sick, and the dying were crowded-men who had just undergone the amputation of limbs, men in the clutches of fever or of frostbite, men in the last stages of dysentery and cholerawithout beds, sometimes without blankets, often hardly clothed. The one or two surgeons on board did what they could; but medical stores were lacking. For many months, the average of deaths * * * was seventy-four in the thousand." The miracle is that the mortality was not much higher.

When the hospital at last was reached, what awaited the wounded there? Mr. Strachey answers: "Want, | neglect, confusion, misery-in every shape and in every degree of intensity-filled the endless corridors and the vast apartments of the floors were in so rotted a condition that many of them could not beat serubbed; the walls were thick with dirt; incredible multitudes of vermin swarmed everywhere. And, enormous as the building was, it was yet too small. It contained four miles of beds, crushed together so close that there was but just from to pass between them. * * * The stench was indescribable. • • • In these surroundings, those who had been long inured to scenes of human suffering-surgeons with a world-wide knowledge of agonies, soldiers familiar with fields of carnage, missionaries with remembrances of famine and of plague—yet found a depth of horror which they had never known

Florence Nightingale applied her genius to the problem. How many lives she saved, nobody can testify. Still more important than the immediate results of her labors was the example she set. The fruit of the science of nursing in wartime which she established ninety years ago is evident in the OWI declaration: "Never before in the history of the world has the fighting man had available the medical care and equipment the United States now furnishes its defenders." Only 2.6 per cent of the men wounded at Pearl Harbor died of their injuries. Similar figures are reported from North Africa.

Hare-Raising Tale

A Victory gardener in New Jersey noticed a rabbit in his plot. He had just planted the seed, and there was no immediate danger, but the gardener was far-sighted. Undoubtedly the intruder had come to case the joint, and would make its raid when the time and the vegetables were ripe. The gardener, a stickler for legality, wrote some one for permission to destroy the animal.

The answer, much delayed, was to apply to the State Fish and Game Commission. So he wrote the commission for a permit to destroy six rabbits, and was told, sometime later, that he should ask the State House. This he did, requesting a license to destroy approximately forty rabbits-and please hurry up, because the beans were almost ripe. From State House, in undue time, came a form to fill out. Nature, however, had waited for no red tape, so the number of bunnies now was in the eighties, and they were almost standing in line to take turns at the garden. He filled out the form, and eventually got the necessary death warrant, but for the wrong amount. The rabbit population had increased to 158 and they were just on the verge of setting up some sort of a rationing system of their own, so that each might have a fair share of the rapidly dwindling produce of

Defeat of Germany Brooks No Delay

Major Eliot Stresses Importance of Red Army In Winning Over Axis

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. Decisions in war must be based not on hopes or fears, on prejudices or personalities, but on facts.

The United States is not fighting this war alone. We are fighting as a member of a great coalition.

No coalition can hope to succeed in war unless its members are willing to subordinate selfish national interests for the common victory. The victory of one must mean the victory of all; the defeat of one may well mean the defeat of all. Victory in war is finally to be obtained only on the surface of the land. The combined effort of sea power, air power and land power will be necessary to attain victory, but victory becomes complete only when the enemy land forces have been defeated, when his bases and vital centers have been occupied, and when he has been compelled to surrender control of his territory.

This is because man is not a marine animal, nor yet a flying animal. He lives and has his being on the surface of the land. From thence he draws his sustenance, and there are located all his major possessions and vital interests. On the surface of the land will all his great decisions of peace and war be taken.

There is nothing in the experience of this war to suggest that air power alone, or sea power alone, is capable of producing decisive victory under modern conditions any more than in the past.

Very well, then-let us face the facts. By far the largest and most powerful land force on our side—the United Nations' side, is the Red Army. That army is irretrievably committed to war against Germany. It cannot be shifted else-

British land power and American land power are only just coming into the picture as instruments of offensive warfare. Distance and geography prevent their immediate use against Japan.

Moreover, the principle of concentration demands that they be added to the Russian land power, in order to bring about the decisive defeat of the German land power. The fact that the British and American power can be moved, while the Russian cannot, should not be permitted to tempt us into unwise dispersion of our total strength.

Then what about air power? Land power cannot win without air power. Hence our land power being committed to the European theater by reason of the immobility of the greater fraction of it (the Red Army) the bulk of our air power is, likewise, committed to that theater, for our land power cannot win without it.

The case is a little different with sea power. Those elements of sea power which are necessary to maintain the communications of our land and air forces in Europe and Africa still must remain on that assignment; but (especially in heavy ships) the bulk of the United Nations sea power is not required, gigantic barrack-house. . The Tor this purpose and tatt be employed usefully in the Pacific and Indian Oceans against Japan, our strongest naval air power and land power will, likewise, be required there.

These are the fundamental considerations which dictate the strategy of seeking a decision against Germany before we seek a decision against Japan. They cannot be argued away: they are inescapable in the facts of the case. There is, however, one major political consideration which, likewise, cannot be argued away, and that is the vital necessity of sustaining our Chinese allies, Whatever is necessary to do this, must be done. It will represent a detachment from our European striking power, but it is a necessary detachment in the common interest, for the interest of the coalition as a whole is involved in seeing to it that none of its major pillars is stricken down.

The increase in our total armaments the reopening of the Mediterranean, the crushing German defeat in Africa, the weakening of Italy—are all factors which tend to increase our margin of strength. Our major problem now is not to debide whether we shall strike first at Germany or first at Japan, for the logic of fact commits us to choose Germany. Our problem is, rather, to make such a wise and careful allocation of our means as shall enable us to sustain China and keep Japan in check, without jeopardizing the prospects of an early victory over Germany.

The worst error we possibly could make would be so to divide our forces as to weaken our blows against Germany while fighting an indecisive and lengthy war against Japan. The prolongation of the war is the one great hope of both our enemies. Their separate and successive destruction at the earliest possible moment must be our opposing purpose. We are not strong enough to destroy them both at once. Therefore we must destroy them one at a time. Germany first-Japan next. There is no other way to serve the common and vital interests of us all, no other road to swift and total (Copyright, 1948, New York Tribune, Inc.)

other day. It was the Canada warbler, with a necklace of black over its yellow neck.

The bird was flying in and out of a large althea bush. Nature had provided the ornamentation, unusual enough to attract the attention of any one. This was the 58th different bird seen in the yard to date.

The Canada warbler, sometimes called the necklaced warbler, or the Canada necklace, is 51/4 inches long. The upper parts are pale slate-gray; the under parts are yellow. The bill is short and the wings pointed. It is a typical warbler. The female does not have such a pronounced "necklace."

This is a great little bird for fitting through shrubbery and vines. At this season, almost any small bird in such a position may be thought to be a Canada warbler, and if the necklace is seen the identification is complete. Another small one which likes shrubbery is the Maryland yellow-throat. This is a smaller bird, slightly below 5 inches in length, with upper parts olive-green and lower parts yellow. It wears a sort of black mask and is combination. The female yellow-throat is an olivegreen bird, without the mask. Her nest is a favorite of the cowbird, which likes to put its eggs in her nest because she does not know the difference between them and her own. Often the yellowthroat feeds the young cowbirds while neglecting her own. As pointed out here the other day, the vellow-breasted chat, largest of the warblers, does not fall for this confidence game of the cowbird. She knows the difference, and will push the cowbird eggs but of her nest

Lewis Girds For Fight on Legislation

Move Serves to Bolster Himself And Labor Front

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

John Lewis has gone back to the AFL not merely to strengthen his own position and that of the miners' union, but to build a stronger front for labor as a whole in its coming battle against restrictive legislation and the wage freeze policies of the administra-Fighting alone in a third organization, independent of both the CIO and the AFL, it was only

David Lawrence a question of time before the administration would have been able to force the disintegration of the Lewis hold on the miners' union, if not of the union itself. The moment the, President appealed over the head of Mr. Lewis for the miners to go back to work and the moment he ordered the mines seized, that moment Mr. Lewis faced the governmental influence as the biggest challenge he has ever had to his leadership.

Mr. Lewis saw at once that he could expect no sympathy from the ranks of labor itself. The CIO, which he had helped to found, denounced him and indicated that it was playing ball with the administration against a labor leader who was trying to get some concessions for his own followers which would inevitably benefit all other labor organizations.

Chooses AFL.

Under such circumstances, Mr. Lewis noted that the AFL has not attacked him and that despite his own attempts to build through the CIO a rival to the AFL, the latter organization remained unbrokenstill the principal labor organization in all the world, Mr. Lewis swallowed his pride and decided to choose between two hostile influences—the administration or the AFL. He chose to go back to his former associates.

There are rumors that Mr. Lewis had an understanding in advance or that he felt sure he could become the successor to William Green at some future convention. This may be discounted. If Mr. Lewis becomes the leader of the AFL some day, that's something else again. For the moment he is anxious to become a part of a national organization and play his part in the councils of that body.

The intimations that he is seeking to oust Mr. Green may well have been started by CIO supporters or opponents of Mr. Lewis who would like to see the AFL block the admission of the miners' union.

Check With Application.

Such a contingency is unlikely Mr. Lewis sent a check for $60,000 when he transmitted the application of the miners' union, so it would have a paid-up status and be privileged to participate in the next AFL convention. He brings to the AFL also a huge annual fund of dues from the 600,000 or more members of his union. The AFL has no logical reason to deny the application, especially since it has been consistently urging the wavward unions to come back into the fold.

One result of the maneuver may be to force the CIO to make peace with the AFL and bring about unity in the labor field. With the miners in the AFL, the CIO may find itself facing desertions of its own unions, and in the end Phil Murray may find it desirable to devote all his time to the steel workers' union as president, which is a pretty big thing in itself.

The AFL, of course, has needed some of the dynamic drive and energy of the CIO movement, and had there been a better approach to the question of industrial unionism a few years ago when Mr. Lewis broke with his colleagues, the split might not have occurred, though founders of Marxism and Leninism opinions differ as to whether the the Communists have never supportbreak might have come anyway.

Politics Enters Picture. Another angle of the Lewis return to the AFL is said to be political. It is being asserted that Mr. Lewis, who supported the Republican ticket in the presidential campaign of 1940 New Dealers came into power-may now seek to throw as many AFL votes into the Republican party as he can. Mr. Lewis has made an alliance with William Hutcheson of the carpenters' national union, who is a Republican.

It may be doubted, however. whether political considerations had national. much to do with the Lewis decision. If they crop out, it will much more likely be in the direction of a labor party such as already exists in New York State. The AFL's tradition, established by the late Sam Gompers, is to be bi-partisan—that is to thrown its influence from one party to the other, depending on the of peoples and states of the anti-History records, however, that this is not as decisive a factor as has often been claimed, and it may be that President Roosevelt will find that his labor-agriculture British Communist party will conagain as it was in 1936 and 1940.

The Lewis strategy concerns the immediate future and not so much 1944. It has a relationship more directly to the coal controversy, which is far from settled. (Reproduction Rights Reserved.)

Text of Communist Resolution

Executive Committee of International Moves to Dissolve Centers in World

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 22.-The text of the resolution of the presidium of the Executive Committee of Communist International, as broadcast by Moscow and recorded here by the Soviet radio

The historic role of the Communist International, which was founded in 1919 as a result of a political union of the great majority of the old pre-war working class parties, consisted in upholding the principles of the working class movement, in helping to promote consolidation in a number of countries of the vanguard of the foremost workers in the real working class parties and in helping them mobilize workers for the defense of their economic and political interests. and for the struggle against Fascism and the war which the latter was preparing, and for the support of the Soviet Union as the chief bulwark against Fascism.

The Communist International from the first exposed the real meaning of the anti-Comintern pact as a weapon for the preparation of war by the Hitlerites. Long before the war it ceaselessly and tirelessly exposed the vicious, subversive work of the Hitlerites who masked it by their screams about so-called interference of the Communist International in the internal affairs of these States.

Insuperable Obstacles.

But long before the war it became more and more clear that with increasing complications in internal and international relations of various countries, any sort of international center would encounter insuperable obstacles in solving the problems facing the movement in each separate country. Deep differences of the historic paths of development of various countries, differences in their character and even contradictions in their social orders, differences in the level and the tempo of their economic and political development, differences finally in the degree of consciousness and organization of workers conditioned different problems affecting the working class of the various countries.

The whole development of events in the last quarter of century and the experience accumulated by the Communist International convincingly showed that the organizational form of uniting workers chosen by the first Congress of the Communist International answered conditions of the first stages of the working class movement, but it has been outgrown by the growth of this movement and by the complications of its problems in separate countries and has even become a drag on the further strengthening of the national working class parties.

The world war that the Hitlerites have let loose has still further sharpened the differences countries and has placed a deep dividing line between those countries which fell under the Hitlerite tyranny and those freedom loving peoples who have united in a powerful anti-Hitlerite coali-

"Countries" Own Problems. In countries of the Hitlerite bloc the fundamental task of the working class, toilers and all honest people consists in giving all help for the defeat of this bloc by sabotage of the Hitlerite military machine from within and by helping to overthrow the governments guilty of war. In countries of the anti-Hitlerite coalition the sacred duty of the widest masses of the people and in the first place of foremost workers consists in aiding by every means the military efforts of the governments of these countries aimed at the speediest defeat of the Hitlerite bloc and the assurance of the friendship of nations based on their equality. At the same time the fact must not be lost sight of that the separate countries which are members of the anti-Hitlerite coalition have their own particular problems. For example, in countries occupied by the Hitlerites which have lost their state of independence the basic task of the foremost workers and of the wide masses of people consists in promoting the armed struggle de-

At the same time the war of liberation of freedom loving peoples against the Hitlerite tyranny which has brought into movement the masses of people unit-ing them without difference of party or religion in the ranks of the powerful anti-Hitlerite coalition has demonstrated with still greater clearness that the general national uprising and mobilization of people for the speediest victory over the enemy can be best of all and most fruitfully carried out by the vanguard of the working class movement of each separate country working within framework of its own country.

Changes in Conditions.

Already the seventh engres of the Communist International meeting in 1935, taking into account the change that had taken place both in the international situation and in working class movements that demand great flexibility and independence of its sections in deciding the problems confronting them, emphasized the necessity for the Executive Committee of the Communist International in deciding all questions of the working class movement arising from concrete conditions and peculiarities of each country, to make a rule of avoiding interference in the internal organizational affairs of the Communist parties. These same considerations guided the Communist International in considering the resolution of the Communist Party of the U. S. A. of November, 1940, on its withdrawal from the ranks of the Communist International Guided by the judgment of the founders of Marxism, Leninism Communists have never been supporters of the conservation of organizational forms that have outlived themselves. They have always subordinated forms of organization of the working class movement and methods of working of such organization to the fundamental political interest of the working class movement as whole, to peculiarities of the concrete historical situation and to problems immediately resulting from this situation.

They remember the example of the great Marx, who united foremost workers in the ranks of the Workingmen's International Association, and when the First International had fulfilled its historical task of laying the foundations for the development of working class parties in the countries of Europe and America, and, as result of the matured situation creating mass national working class parties, dissolved first the International inasmuch as this form of organization already no longer corresponded to the demands confronting it.

International to Be Dissolved. In consideration of the above and taking into account the h and the political maturity of Communist parties and their leading cadres in separate countries and also having in view the fact that during the present warsome sections have raised the question of the dissolution of the Communist International as the directing center of the international working class movement. the Presidium of the Executive Committee of the Communist International, in the circumstances of the World War not being able to convene a Congress of the Communist International, puts forward the following proposal for ratification by the sections of the Communist International:

The Communist International, as the directing center of the international working class movement, is to be dissolved, thus freeing the sections of the Communist International from their obligations arising from the statutes and resolutions of the congresses of the Communist International.

The presidium of the Executive Committee of the Communist International calls on all supporters of the Communist International to concentrate their energies on the whole-hearted support of and active participation in the war of liberation of the peoples and the states of the anti-Hitlerite coalition for the speediest defeat of the deadly enemy of the working class and toilers-German Fascism and its associates and vassals.

The second result would be a gift to Hitler of the entire summer of this summer in a military way already has been planned. We know that. Stalin Is Cool to Suggestion That He Confer With Roosevelt and Churchill on Strategy

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. Whether and when President Roosevelt. Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin will meet as a result of the pressing invitation dispatched to the Russian leader through Special Ambassador Joseph Davies is still in doubt. It is known in Washington that the Russian leader is not anxious to get into a conference Constantino Brown. with his western colleagues. Stalin's "on the record" argument is that he, as commander in chief and keeper of Russia's destinies, cannot leave his country at this time when a blow from the Nazi forces against the Russian lines may be expected almost any day. Neither did he believe a few weeks ago that it would be advisable for President Roosevelt to meet him in Moscow or any other place in Russia. Stalin is said to have contended that he must give his undivided attention to the manifold military and economic problems of the vast empire and a conference of several days would interfere with Shuns Perfunctory Talk.

A meeting to shake hands with Mr. Roosevelt and have a perfunctory discussion of the many matters of common interest to both nations would not be worthwhile and would be an inconvenience for the President who would be required to take a long journey.

Those who claim to be able to read the mind of the Russian leader say, however, that he sees no reason for a parley with his associates in the West if it would result only in encouraging words and a personal description of the Allied strategy in the West.

That strategy is conceived by the Russian general staff to mean an attack against the Nazis in Western Europe and not operations in the Mediterrean which the Russians are said to have described as mere nibbling at the outskirts of the Nazi fortress. Had the Allies decided that Western Europe would be invaded at about the same time the Nazis start their last offensive against Russia, there may have been some good reason for the three civilian leaders to meet and put touches to their plans.

Bnt if the attack on the western front should be delayed until 1944, it is hardly conceive. able that such a strategy would be to the taste of the Russians.

Cool on Postwar Plans. Stalin is reported to be interested only mildly in present planning of the postwar world. He takes the realistic point of view that discussing these matters now would be like selling the bear's skin before it has been killed.

willing to discuss matters of immediate strategy which would bring the American, British and Russian forces in a convergent move toward Berlin this year. In the event, however, that he and his advisers believe that round-the-clock bombing of the Reich could have the same immediate effect on the Nazi forces as actual invasion, there is a good possibility that a meeting among the three leaders might be arranged soon

The speech made by British Foreign Secretary Eden Thursday gives the first clear hint as to what decisions are to be reached at the meetings of the joined chiefs of staff of the American and the British forces under the eyes of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. __

Mr. Eden spoke of the roundthe-clock bombings as the thing that will hurt the Nazis most. From that speech it is inferred that while important amphibious and ground operations will take place, the main Allied activity in Western Europe will be confined to relentless bombings of German and German-subjected military and industrial establishments.

There is a heated debate on the subject of bombing among responsible military and naval men. Some believe that aviation, while a powerful and essential weapon in modern warfare, cannot reduce the armed forces of a nation, regardless of how devastating the air bombardments may be, unless the enemy is totally lacking in air and ground defenses.

Infantry Called Decisive. It is pointed out that in the Tunisia campaign, for instance, the overwhelming air superiority of the Allies was of enormous help to them. But had it not been for the American, British and French divisions we would still be fighting in North Africa. Other equally competent soldiers say the power of the air force has not yet been fully shown and that the overwhelming superiority of the Allies over the Luftwaffe is bound to bring such havoc in the Reich that the Nazis soon will be crying for mercy.

For the time being, it is difficult to say which of the two strategies will prove correct.

But so far as the Russians are concerned, they are merely interested in whether these heavy bombings will compel the Nazi high command to dispatch a sufficiently strong portion of the Luftwaffe to the western front to make the operations of its ground forces ineffective and thus remove altogether the danger of a Nazi break-through in Russia.

This is the only thing that matters to the Soviet high command. If events prove this to be the case, there seems to be little doubt that Stalin will meet with his American and British colleagues. If the Russians believe round-the-clock operations are only a poor substitute, Stalin is likely to remain in his tent.

Allied Decision To Speed Arms Called Godsend

China Needs

By DEWITT MACKENZIE. Determination of the Allied War Council in Washington to speed the movement of war materials and other supplies into China is a Godsend for that hard-hit and longsuffering country.

This presumably will involve an extension of the American job of transporting stuff by air over the dangerous route across the mountains between India and Chinaone of the toughest assignments of the war. It will be worth it, though, for that's about the only way to move goods pending the recapture of Burma and the reopening of the mountain wilderness. Every extra hundred - weight package moved to the Chinese will be a tower of relief. When king early this

Dewitt Mackensie. year, the situation as regards supplies was terribly bad-far worse, I believe, than the people of other countries ever realized.

The Chinese have been so hard up for fighting equipment that their success in withstanding utter defeat is one of the wonders of the world. They have been hamstrung for lack of arms and equipment of all categories. About the only weapon they have had with which, to wage war, apart from their splendid determination and courage, has been limitless space to trade to the enemy for time.

Can't Launch Offensive.

The Chinese have been waiting to get equipped by the Allies. Meantime, their resources have been so small that the military command hasn't found it feasible to engage in major offensive operations. About all that could be done was hold the line as best possible.

But there's a lot more to China's troubles than that. She's been asking for arms and hasn't been saying much about food or raiment.

The economic position is dependent on the military situation. With the Japs in possession of most of the centers of production and trade, it's not hard to see that the economic structure of Unoccupied China must be shot as full of holes as a sieve. Things are bad, and inflation is running through the country.

The Chinese need equipment with which to recapture military positions which would help them economically. For that matter they need it right now to protect themselves against the Japanese offensive aimed at the great rice-growing area in Hunan Province which is now partly in Jap hands and partly in

Key City Invaded.

Involved in this Nipponese drive is a city which the Chinese have been very anxious to get back-Ichang, the strategic port on the Yangtze. west of Hankow. This is the most, important city on the middle Yangtze and its possession by the invaders, who captured it last June, has been of great value in military operations.

I was told in Chungking that the Chinese felt if they had airpower they could reclaim Ichang and thus open up Hunan Province with its badly needed rice. For this operation and others, they wanted between 300 and 500 warplanes. Had it been possible to get those planes then, we might have had a different story today.

Burma can't be invaded before the end of next September, because of the monsoon weather. Thus the urgently needed aid will have to be handled by air transport for a long ime to come. This presumably means that the chief help from China to stand off the present Jap offensive will be in bombers and fighter planes.

Kampouris Haunted Priddy for Two Years

CHICAGO, May 22.-When Utility Infielder Alex Kampouris joins the Nats it will revive painful memories for Second Baseman Gerald Priddy, for it was the ex-Dodger who messed up the early portion of Priddy's major league career.

Priddy was installed as the Yankees' second baseman when they came out of the South two years ago to play a series of exhibition games with the Dodgers at Ebbets Field. In one of them, Kampouris slid hard into Priddy, damaging Gerald's ankle, and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees then instituted some changes.

McCarthy returned Joe Gordon to second base-he had been testing him at first base-and inserted Johnny Sturm at first. Thereafter, Priddy never had an opportunity to wedge his way back into the line-up as a regular and after being used as a .

utility infielder for two years, finally was traded to the Nats.

Sox and Cubs Lonely

"I wouldn't be honest if I didn't say I've always felt he delayed my really getting started in the majors." explains Priddy, "but now that he's with us, all is forgiven." If Ellis Clary should falter at third base, incidentally, Manager Ossie Bluege says he'll shift Priddy to third base and install Kampouris at second.

Johnny Burke, the former Georgetown golfer who recently was killed in action, once played an Eastern League match with Prince Fumi Konove of Japan, when the latter was attending Princeton. Hoyas and Burke were favored, but Princeton won the match as Konoye beat Burke, 5 and 4.

Baseball Starting Times Reflect U. S. Economic State Continuous Performance Now Suggested; Bakers, Cooks Challenge WAAC Softballers

NEW YORK, May 22.-It has been said that there's nothing like a good depression to help baseball, so maybe the prosperity of these times is reflected in the experiments this season with starting times for ball games. The "depression" theory is that when men are out of work they have plenty of time to visit the ball park, but when they're working hard they can't get away afternoons. So far this season major league clubs have played afternoon, night, twilight and morning games-the last presumably for the benefit of war workers. Now, with double-headers piling up, the Dodgers and Reds have scheduled a daylightand-dusk double-header for June 30 and the Phillies and Braves are booked for morning and afternoon bills June 15. How about likely can remember when there weren't so many places to go and when a holiday always meant one game in the morning, lunch at the place across the street from the park and another game right afterward. And on July 4 you tossed firecrackers at the umps and likely as not hung around to toss rocks at the carryall in which the visiting team was riding to its hotel. Well, you're riding to the park in streetcars again, so maybe the rest will come back.

Non-attendance record-A lot of ball clubs have been polling the fans about starting times, but the most novel poll was conducted in Oakland, Calif., recently (result hasn't reached here yet). The idea was to start a double-header at 1 p.m. and count how many people left after the first game. If many departed, that was supposed to prove that swing shifters, continuous performance next? | who had to get to work about 4, | dare the gals to try a cooking liked the idea of having a game | contest.

Buying Timidity Laid To Cloudy Labor and Tax Prospects

By VICTOR EUBANK, Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 22.-The stock market today was mainly a stoplook-and-listen affair and, while made a little headway, numerous leaders got nowhere.

Buying timidity was blamed partly on the cloudy union labor outlook in the coal and motor fields, the still far from settled tax situation and the desire of many customers to await the next phase of the Allied offensive in the world conflict. War provide scant purchasing inspiration.

Cathedral Planning Massing of the Colors Services Tomorrow

200 Patriotic Groups Will Be Represented; Ralph Bard to Speak

The annual massing-of-the-colors service will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow in the amphitheater of Wash ington Cathedral, with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard as guest speaker. The service, which is sponsored jointly by the District of Columbia Chapter of the Military Order of the World War and Washington Cathedral, will honor Americans who have died in this war, and special tribute will be paid to Chaplain Frank L. Miller of Washington, who lost his life in a recent plane crash in Iceland.

Representatives of more than 200 military, veteran and patriotic organizations, wearing uniforms and carrying banners and flags, will march in procession with the Cathedral choir and clergy. For 30 minutes prior to the procession the United States Marine Band will play, under the direction of Capt. William F. Santleman. Music for the service will be sung by the Cathedral choir of men and boys, under the direction of Ellis C. Varley, acting organist and choirmaster. Also participating in the service will be Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, who will introduce the speaker. Lt. Col. Walter S. Welsh will command the color guards and lead the march into the amphitheater. Marshals of the four main divisions of the parade will be Lt. Col. Robert P. Parrott, Maj. Russell P. Freeman, Lt. Lester O. Renninger and Maj. Paul M. Filmer. Lt. Col. Edwin S. A Lesson for the Week Four Groups of Recruits

Needed for Final Victory

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS. Our lesson this week may be traversed as a narrow-gauge track, or as a broad gauge. I prefer the latter, for its enables us to confront the major issues of this critical present. We cannot too often or too frankly face the facts involved in this war. Providence has made us, all unfit as we are, the major actors in the greatest drama ever enacted on this earth. So we must study our parts, with life-and-death zeal. We have no doubt about our armed forces. They are tested and | that burns brightly in the core of sure, real hero stuff. But about their being. I look about me at my conditions behind the lines we are concerned. This

We must walk where we are overvocal; let the church find its used to ride; we must wear simpler clothing and longer; we must eat for the army of "speak-outers." plain food where once we enjoyed luxuries; we must give up winewhich in this Scripture stands for all forms of booze-for our own sakes and for the sake of the common weak.

For this duty of "do-withouters' runs into the whole global field of altruism. It is the first large-scale attempt to fulfill the New Testament's clear teachings upon unselfishness. As one explicit statement for the reason for the sacrifice of Christ we have this: "He died for all, that they which live should no longer live unto themselves." Self-pleasing is out, not only for the duration of the war but for all the new era of brotherhood that so many persons are invisaging.

The "Stand-Fasters." Public opinion is a volatile thing. Or, at least, voluble politicians and newspaper commentators make it seem so. These surely do not replent time, proving by their labor neighbors, and at the people I know, and I see that they do not mirror he hectic headlines, but, instead, go quietly about the business of being true citizens in a testing time. In strictions are accepted without Christian duty.

Agitators, theorists, partisans, with all their screaming contentions, are unable to shake the sheer loyalty of the great mass of common people, who stand fast for their country and cause, and who cheerfully accept any sacrifices, even to the surrender of their sons and sweethearts. Others may subject the Government to bursts of criticism from the rear, but ordinary men and women are of better stuff: they stand fast by their leaders, ration card. In a great democratic all the while doing faithfully the on in unshakable loyalty.

The "Speak-Outers." Perhaps the "do withouters" and he "stand-fasters" are too silent in their simple steadfastness. They should speak up oftener in tones of their innate loyalty. An overlarge proportion of letters from readers that are published by newspapers are carping and critical, and often incredibly petty. Good citizens should often make themselves heard in newspaper columns, expressing approval of the right. On such issues as temperance they should temperately register their convictions. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so.'

"God front" of this war awaits calling up. The deep spiritual passion, which puts God's honor and God's will first, is not in full formation. There is inadequate realization of God's part in the conflict, and there is not a constant crying out in prayer for His aid. Yet the issue is certainly with him. Our "do-withouters,' our "speak-outers" and our "stand-fasters" must all be in the spirit of our "look-uppers," who cry "Our help is from the Lord."

"Whereof I Was Made a Minister"

Ephesians, 3rd chapter, Oftentimes we ministers are asked the question, "What lead you to become a minister?" "What reason did you have, in your own thinking, that ever made you want to be a minister of the Gospel?" I declare to you I was made a minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ by the gift of God and His

In the 8th verse of the 3rd chapter of Ephesians Paul said, 'Me, who am less than the least of the saints," and he declares himself to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ.

These preachers that "mama called and papa sends" are never much of a preacher! They might have made a good lawyer businessman; but unless God calls a man to preach his ministry is fruitless and his life a

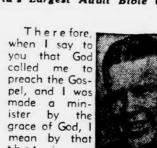

If Jesus Christ calls a man to preach the Gospel He will never give anyone a job that is too big for them to do.

We are told in Mark the 16th chapter that Jesus works with us. We are also told in the Scripture we must be partakers of the fruit before we can give it

I am sure there are countless numbers of preachers, priests and rabbi's who can tell you all the formalities of a church. They can tell you the perfect law of how to run and operate an organization.

But if some drunkard would stagger in their office, with tears on his cheek, and tell him his home was broken, and he had been drinking for so many days, but he desired to know the God Whom to know is life eternal-if you would ask him to pray with that man, he would say, "I have no remedy for such a man!"

I heard a prominent minister say one time, "If being a Christian is anything more than to join the church and treat your fellow-man right, I know nothing about it!"

that in my youthful days I didn't study for Rev. Billington the ministry.

Neither my father, mother nor loved-ones suggested that I ought to preach the Gospel. But after I was married, God gave us a precious baby boy. And I felt, as I looked into his face there in the cradle, something "Dad, you ought to be a better man!

And I began to study the Scriptures and at three o'clock in the morning, alone in my home, the great call of God came to me, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature!

Please don't be ashamed of

Let the grace of God save vou through Jesus Christ's own precious blood that was shed on Calvary: then you will be happy as others. Then you will know what people mean when they say, "I know I am saved!"

Sponsors of Charity Project Give Visitors A Thrilling 'Show'

By HELEN LOMBARD. The glamour of old-time diplomacy, of which the gold salon and flower-decked banquet table were the outward expression, still holds for the feminine residents of Washington

One thousand women or more were so eager to get an intimate glimpse into some of Washington's embassies that they were willing to pay $2.50 for the privilege. The money to charity-one of Washington's oldest institutions, the Home for Incurables. The drive succeeded so well that both the sponsors and the foreign diplomats who agreed to lend their residences were surprised at the response.

Among the missions which cooperated were the Turkish, the Yugoslav, the Greek, the Norwegian Embassies and the Luxemburg Legation. The British Embassy was unable to place either the grounds or the building at the services of receive his B. S. degree from the the charitable ladies due to the current pressure.

On the other hand there have been a number of formal entertainments attended by the "rank" of Washington in honor of President Benes, whose country's expectancies are, to say the least, somewhat nebulous. In fact, some diplomats in Washington actually become alarmed when new diplomatic honors are suggested for them.

The envoys of the occupied countries have been almost without exception elevated to ambasasdorial rank. Not long ago one of the few remaining ministers, the envoy from neutral Sweden, Mr. W. Bostrum was asked when he expected to be made an Ambassador. "Not soon," answered the Swedish Minister with a twinkle in his eye. "My country does not expect to be in-

Planners Stress Ofilitarian Projects

Postwar Development Mapped for Service As Well as Beauty

By NELSON M. SHEPARD. Federal planners were on record today as favoring major emphasis on projects of a strictly utilitarian nature in forwarding any general program of postwar development in Washington involving the use of public funds They practically shoved out of the picture the type of project usually associated in the public mind with seek to avoid in connection with postwar development Guided by this principle, the National Capital Park and Planning and Fine Arts Commissions reviewed plans at a joint session vesterday afternoon for a continuous study of public work to be undertaken after the war. Two main phases are in-

First, the commissions will endeavor to co-ordinate the public works programs of the Federal and District Governments in harmony with the general plan for the orderly development of Washington and its environs. Secondly, they will begin drafting proposed legislation setting up local authority for the redevelopment of so-called blighted or trouble urban areas. A national bill of this character has been introduced by Senator Thomas of Utah, providing for Federal grants of aid to the Bridge an Example.

By "utilitarian" projects, planning officials said they meant, for example, such as the proposed South Capitol Street Bridge, the Fort Drive which has provided a cross-town route for motorists, general recreation areas and the like. Projects of this kind would afford not only employment and distinct services for the public but would also enhance the general appearance of the city.

The adoption of such a policy in connection with postwar development was not construed as meaning that these guardians of city planning have discarded their traditional role of keeping a wary outlook for anything that would serve to disrupt the orderly growth of the Capital City. This was in sharp evidence yesterday when they protested against indiscriminate proposals for the erection of any number of war memorials in Washington. Most of these plans, it was said, are emanatbeing given to the type of memorial by to the location. Plans involve statues to today's heroes, fountains and the renaming of streets and

Both commissions felt strongly that the erection of World War II memorials should be postponed until the end of hostilities, one official making the suggestion that "today's hero might not be tomorrow's hero." It was recommended that general plan of war memorials should be studied carefully in advance, with specific types and locations in mind.

"Unless something like this is done. Washington may be cluttered with memorials of every conceivable type," another official said. Consider Building Height.

The two commissions also considered proposed changes in zoning regulations governing the heights of buildings. While there is a general limit of 110 feet, setbacks and other variations make it possible to build to heights of 130 and 160 feet

The Fine Arts Commission thought a definite limit should be fixed and street; Mrs. Ernest I. Lewis, 3099 he expected a fine, well-rounded will so recommend to District authorities. It was felt that the general cessation of private building Davidson, 3238 R street, and Mrs. operations in Washington as a result of the war offers a good time to give this matter official attention Three additional building projects were approved at the joint session.

Although Col. Hurban was officially deprived of Czech citizenship last year by the Nazi-controlled government of his country, he is still recognized by the State Department as the representative here of the captive Czech people. Col. Hurban recently was appointed to the rank of ambassador and now is awaiting letters of credence. Three months ago he visited London to confer with the exiled President of the Czechoslovakian Republic, Eduard Benes, and Jan Masaryk, Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the fate of the country. President Benes recently came to Washington on a visit. There are many other legations and embassies along this stretch of Massachusetts avenue, near Sheridan Circle, including the Japanese Embassy at No. 2514. Its door bears a large sign, "Spanish Embassy in charge of Japanese interests." Around the corner from the Czechoslovakian Legation, at 2340 S street N.W., President Woodrow Wilson went to live in 1921. He died there nearly three years later.

Draft Boards Ready to Weigh Fathers' Claims

Sympathy Pledged, But Sentimentality Will Be Shunned

When fathers are drafted, Disrict draft bards will look "with sympathy but not sentimentality" on their claims for continued deferment as extreme hardship cases District Selective Service Director William E. Leahy said today.

"Although there can be no hardnd-fast rules as to what constitutes extreme hardship," Mr. Leahy said. "the earlier conception that a family needs the father's control love and affection can no longer be the controlling factor in placing men in class 3-D.'

Class 3-D was created recently by Selective Service to take care of cases where induction would result n extreme hardship to dependents. since fathers are not yet being drafted, the class now is limited to single men with collateral dependents and childless husbands where extreme hardship is involved.

Local Boards Confer. Mr. Leahy's comment followed a eek of meetings with 25 local oards "in order to perfect some reasonable rule of uniformity in the District." The discussions, Mr. Leahy said, centered on the new 3-D classification "in anticipation of the time when national Selective Service headquarters will authorize the induction of fathers who are, as yet still deferred.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey recently predicted that the induction bona fide fathers would begin around August 1. He said he hoped, however, that fathers would be given 30 days' notice before the general draft of men with children begins.

Boards to Demand Facts.

"A registrant seeking classification in 3-D must be careful to submit concrete facts to substantiate his claim and must thoroughly prove his case because each one will be investigated carefully by the board," Mr. Leahy said. "Obviously there can be no general definition of extreme hardship as no two cases will be exactly alike. Often it is much easier negatively to determine what does not constitute a case of extreme hardship than affirmatively what given situation may be one of privation. In the end we must and can depend with confidence on the good judgment of the local board members.

From this week's discussions, I have found that our boards are already approaching the matter intelligently and from a practical stand-I am sure they will not be confronted with too much difficulty in passing on this new classification. "I am sure the board members will approach all such claims from the registrants will be given every consideration consistent with the Selective Service regulations. However, although the boards may be sympathetic, that does not mean that either they or this headquarters will be swayed by sentimentality."

A detailed explanation of the working of replacement schedules also was given the board members during this week's meetings. These replacement schedules, filed by employers, list all their employes within draft age, their particular jobs ized so as to include a dance or- and the time necessary to find and train replacements. In providing for the orderly withdrawal from civilian employment of these men. Mr. Leahy pointed out, replacement schedules are proving a definite benefit to both the employers and the Selective Service System.

A considerable number of private concerns and Government establishments in Washington already have submitted replacement schedules, the District director reported. Although the filing of such a schedule is not required as a prerequisite seeking the deferment of an essential worker, plants with large numbers of employes subject to being drafted have been urged to them so that war production will not be unduly disrupted by workers leaving to join the armed forces.

Manpower Shortage Threatens Laundry and Cleaning Services

Two Companies Report Recent Curtailments As Work Piles Up

Dry cleaning and laundry services are in danger of being drastically curtailed here because of a serious manpower shortage in many cleaning plants, a survey disclosed today. One large laundry temporarily discontinued its dry cleaning service yesterday. At least two large surburban plants now return all have the association's Campaign laundry unironed, except for shirts and heavy flat work, such as sheets. Virtually all local cleaning plants are overloaded with work, the survey indicated. One laundry has given up the attempt to render oneweek service and now is returning Accepts Only Uniforms.

Green Vows AFL Won't Let Down Men at Front

Tells Labor Rally Strikes Are Barred; Servicemen Speak

Pledging that the 6,000,000 memers of the American Federation of Labor never will let down the men on the battletronts, AFL President William Green declared last night that no strike "will be authorized, approved or condoned" by the AFI. and its affiliated unions until the enemies of America have been forced to unconditional surrender.

In addressing a "Labor for Victory" rally at Constitution Hall, under the auspices of the Washington Central Labor Union and the AFL, he said soldiers of the production front will march with soldiers on he battlefronts until victory is won. Pointing out that labor has a great stake in the present world conflict, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson warned that victory is far from won." either on the batlefield or in the workshops.

Needs Not Yet Supplied. "We have nowhere near supplied our war needs," he said. "The rate of production has been speeded up, but more and always more, is needed. The requirements of war are never satisfied-that is the only sure thing about war." Other speakers at last night's meeting included War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. Mc-Nutt, Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, chief of the Incentive Division of the Navy, and John Locher, president of the Washington Central Labor Union, who explained that the purpose of the meeting was to enable AFL members to rededicate themselves to their war jobs. Thomas Mitchell, screen and stage star, served as master of ceremonies. Music was furnished by an orchestra provided by Local 161 of the Musicians' Union, while Alfred Manning, secretary of the musicians' local, led a large mixed chorus in patriotic songs

A feature of the program was a recital of their experiences on the battle fronts by a number of war heroes. These were Lt. Col. I. F. McAlpin of the Black Watch Regiment, commander of No. 6 Commando, which took part in the initial landing in Algiers; Sergts, Al Schmidt and Barney Ross of the United States Marines, and Lt. James Kayser of the Army Air Forces. All were loudly applauded as they appeared on the platform.

Planners Stress Utilitarian Projects

Postwar Development Mapped for Service As Well as Beauty

By NELSON M. SHEPARD.

Federal planners were on record today as favoring major emphasis on projects of a strictly utilitarian nature in forwarding any general program of postwar development in Washington involving the use of public funds

They practically shoved out of the picture the type of project usually associated in the public mind with plans for the "beautification" of the National Capital, a term they now seek to avoid in connection with postwar development.

Guided by this principle, the National Capital Park and Planning and Fine Arts Commissions reviewed plans at a joint session yesterday afternoon for a continuous study of public work to be undertaken after the war. Two main phases are in-

First, the commissions will endeavor to co-ordinate the public works programs of the Federal and District Governments in harmony with the general plan for the orderly development of Washington and its environs. Secondly, they will begin drafting proposed legislation setting up local authority for the redevelopment of so-called blighted or trouble urban areas. A national bill of this character has been introduced by Senator Thomas of Utah, providing for Federal grants of aid to the

Bridge an Example.

By "utilitarian" projects, planning officials said they meant, for example, such as the proposed South Capitol Street Bridge, the Fort Drive which has provided a cross-town route for motorists, general recreation areas and the like. Projects of this kind would afford not only employment and distinct services for the public but would also enhance the general appearance of the city.

The adoption of such a policy in connection with postwar development was not construed as meaning that these guardians of city planning have discarded their traditional role of keeping a wary outlook for anything that would serve to disrupt the orderly growth of the Capital City. This was in sharp evidence yesterday when they protested against indiscriminate proposals for To Be Candidate for when they protested the erection of any number of war memorials in Washington. Most of these plans, it was said, are emanating in Congress. Little regard is being given to the type of memorial or to the location. Plans involve statues to today's heroes, fountains and the renaming of streets and

Both commissions felt strongly that the erection of World War II memorials should be postponed until the end of hostilities, one offihero." It was recommended that a general plan of war memorials should be studied carefully in advance, with specific types and locations in mind.

Unless something like this is done, Washington may be cluttered with memorials of every conceivable type." another official said.

Consider Building Height. The two commissions also considered proposed changes in zoning regulations governing the heights of buildings. While there is a general limit of 110 feet, setbacks and other variations make it possible to build to heights of 130 and 160 feet.

The Fine Arts Commission thought a definite limit should be fixed and will so recommend to District authorities. It was felt that the general cessation of private building operations in Washington as a regive this matter official attention. Three additional building projects were approved at the joint session.

They included: An administration building for the Navy's WAVES in East Potomac Mr. Magruder attended elementary Park. Rooming House Operator Fined; Plans Appeal

James Yeager, colored, a rooming house operator, was fined $200. in Municipal Court yesterday following his conviction on charges that four houses he operated in the 500 block of Nineteenth street N.W. had inadequate bath facilities and were unlicensed.

The defendant said he would appeal the verdict to the Municipal Court of Appeals. Judge Walter J. Casey set the appeal bond at $200. Meanwhile, 27 additional charges, involving eight other rooming houses said to be operated by Yeager, were continued until Wednesday. CZECHOSLOVAKIAN LEGATION-Helen Gatch Durston has sketched through the trees the turret and chimneys of the Czechoslovakian Legation, maintained by Minister Vladimir Hurban at 2349 Massachusetts avenue N.W. Although Col. Hurban was officially deprived of Czech citizenship last year by the Nazi-controlled government of his country, he is still recognized by the State Department as the representative here of the captive Czech people. Col. Hurban recently was appointed to the rank of ambassador and now is awaiting letters of credence. Three months ago he visited London to confer with the exiled President of the Czechoslovakian Republic, Eduard Benes, and Jan Masaryk, Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the fate of the country. President Benes recently came to Washington on a visit. There are many other legations and embassies along this stretch of Massachusetts avenue, near Sheridan Circle, including the Japanese Embassy at No. 2514. Its door bears a large sign, "Spanish Embassy in charge of Japanese interests." Around the corner from the Czechoslovakian Legation, at 2340 S street N.W., President Woodrow Wilson went to live in 1921. He died there nearly three years later.

Sympathy Pledged, But Sentimentality Will Be Shunned

When fathers are drafted, Disrict draft bards will look "with sympathy but not sentimentality" on their claims for continued deferment as extreme hardship cases, District Selective Service Director

William E. Leahy said today. "Although there can be no hardnd-fast rules as to what constitutes extreme hardship," Mr. Leahy aid, "the earlier conception that a family needs the father's control. ove and affection can no longer be the controlling factor in placing men in class 3-D."

Class 3-D was created recently by selective Service to take care of cases where induction would result n extreme hardship to dependents. Since fathers are not yet being drafted, the class now is limited to ingle men with collateral dependents and childless husbands where extreme hardship is involved.

Local Boards Confer. Mr. Leahy's comment followed a week of meetings with 25 local boards "in order to perfect some reasonable rule of uniformity in the Boards to Demand Facts.

'A registrant seeking classification n 3-D must be careful to submit concrete facts to substantiate his claim and must thoroughly prove his case because each one will be investigated carefully by the board," Mr. Leahy said.

"Obviously there can be no general definition of extreme hardship as no two cases will be exactly alike. Often it is much easier negatively to determine what does not constitute a case of extreme hardship than affirmatively what given situation may be one of privation. In the end we must and can depend with confidence on the good judgment of the local board members.

"From this week's discussions, I have found that our boards are already approaching the matter intelligently and from a practical standpoint. I am sure they will not be confronted with too much difficulty in passing on this new classification. Loan League Cites 8 Pct. Boost for First Quarter of '43

Homeowners paid back an 8 per eent larger volume of their indebtedness to savings and building and loan associations in the first quarter of this year than in the same period of last year, the United States Savings and Loan League reported today. The organization pointed to an estimated $260,000,000 of repayments on the principal of home mortgage loans the first three months of this year, the largest sum received on this account since the

This counter-inflationary activity on the part of the borrower group was supplemented by the savings members in these thrift and home financing institutions. They increased the amount of their holdings by a net of $118,000,000 in the same period, it was estimated. Thus $378,000,000 of the excess purchasing power which is mounting so rapidly in the Nation was drawn of Postwar Building from the channels of today's spending by operation of these local institutions, Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the league,

75th Annual Meeting Set for This Week In Cincinnati

The American Institute of Architects at its 75th annual meeting in Cincinnati this week plan to prepare for postwar reconstruction. Chapters of the institute will form committees to work with the building industry in carrying out the recommendations of the convention as formulated by the institute's National Committee on Postwar Reconstruction.

'We are now struggling with chaotic conditions created by the mass of obsolete, obsolescent and unrelated structures which overwhelm our cities and discourage the financing of new buildings on a huge scale," said a statement by the

Painting Provides Extra Conservation Aid in Wartime

Stimulus to Morale On Home Front Cited As Another Effect

Necessary painting is a wartime measure to protect the vital materials contained in the $250,000,000,-000 worth of paintable American property, which includes industrial machinery and tools, agricultural implements, railroad and utilities equipment, motor vehicles, ships, household equipment, appliances and furniture, as well as business, industrial and residential and institutional structures.

At the same time, paint so applied automatically performs another highly important service-the stimulation and maintenance of individual and collective morale on the home front.

It provides this added service without extra cost, for it costs no more to select and use cheerful, attractive colors in harmonious combinations in accordance with modern methods of paint styling, than it does to use duller and less attracwhims and good taste. Modern sciin the right places may be equiv- out your color scheme. alent to an effective medicine for certain types of mental depression. and actually stimulate efficiency and production by relieving the individual of the inhibition of dull and depressing surroundings which definitely retard progress in everyday occupations.

The effect of colors on the human mind is emphasized by definite findings that according to the colors used, rooms may be made to seem warmer or colder than the actual registration of the thermometer longer and higher, or shorter and lower than their actual measurements, dark or depressing, or bright and cheering to the occupants.

Can Have Physical Effects. Benefits to morale which have been mentioned are psychological and important, but color can have physical, as well as mental effects. as is evidenced by its relation to human eyesight. The proper use of colors in connection with modern lighting equipment can help to relieve serious eyestrain, both in children and adults, and in homes, schools and places of employment. When this fact is carefully considered, it may often be thoroughly justifiable for the protection of eyesight, which is such an important factor in human health and efficiency, to change the color of an interior on that basis alone

Here again is a contribution to morale without extra cost, for the $4,000 better people see, the better their disposition is likely to be, and the better they will work.

Outdoor Furniture In Wood Still Offered

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1943.

Yes-there is outdoor furniture for 1943-most of it in wood, although here and there a store may be found which has some metal goods still in stock.

The gay colors predominate in porch and garden equipment. Bright tints prevail for chairs, tables and settees, including yellows, greens, reds and whites. Many outdoor sets combine several colors effectively reflecting nature's trends. In place of spring seats you'll find padded cushions, covered with water-repellent fabrics. These, too are shown in the bright colors of the outdoors. Tables with tile tops and wooden egs, shaped like bamboo, are on the market, and some bamboo and stick reed pieces will be found. Loomwoven fiber is less plentiful than it was but is to be had.

New Resin Sources Found in Coal Fields

Recent discoveries of deposits of fossil resins believed to be sufficient to meet the Nation's needs for many years have been found in the coal fields of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Washington. Seams 14 feet thick in which resins constitute per cent of the coal have been found between Castlegate and Salina Canyon, Utah, a distance of 70 miles. It is estimated that in 100 tons of coal there are five tons of resins Search for the natural resins was stimulated by the cutting off of imports of some types of resins from foreign sources and the diversion of some chemicals used in making synthetic resins to war uses. The result of the prospecting is expected to result in a permanently adequate supply of domestic fossil resins for the paint and printing ink indus-

Wood Replaces Steel In Erecting Partitions With Glass Blocks

By HILSON MUNSEY.

A large manufacturer of glass blocks used for interior partitions, has developed a method of erecting them which will not transgress priorities rules. While these blocks often are set in cement they also are held in place by steel rods which now are unobtainable.

This manufacturer uses wood in place of the steel rods. These blocks are held in place by wooden strips running both verically and horizontally. When in place the panel is secured by wedges that are driven in at the head and the jamb. The wedges are concealed by decorative woodwork and any standard openings such as windows or doors can be built into the panel.

The panels can be removed as easily as they are erected and salvage is 100 per cent possible. When the wedges are removed, the blocks and wooden strips can be taken down and are in good condition. These panels, erected with wooden strips, lend themselves to colorful treatment. The strips can be painted any color desired and the color changed by repainting whenever necessary. The erection of these glass panels is simple. In addition to the blocks there are only three basic pieceshorizontal strips, vertical strips and wedges. These are packed complete for standard construction.

The work of erecting a glass block panel consists of laying the blocks on horizontal wood strips and inserting vertical wood strips between them. As the panel is built up wedges are driven into the jambs and at the head of openings. The wedge construction is concealed by a decorative wood trim or any other material that will harmonize with the surrounding construction.

It is necessary that the wood frame members be plumb and true. A table showing the exact dimensions of the pening sizes for various | night. panels is supplied by the manufacturer. The framing is used as a guide for laying the block and bia road N.W., 8 o'clock tonight. opening sizes must be accurate so that the units and wedges will fit

These glass block partitions can be used for dividing a large room into two smaller ones, thus conserving fuel by limiting the space to be heated. After the war, the partitions can be removed and the room restored to its former size.

At this time it might be a good idea to look at the valves of the radiators to see if they are in good shape. There are several valves on the market that are adjustable. This means that the heat entering the radiator can be equalized. Those radiators farthest from the furnace can be opened up to admit a quicker outflow of cold air than those nearer to the supply of heat. There is one valve that depends on the expansion and contraction of metal to open and close valve.

When heat begins to come up into the radiator, the valve is automatically closed. These valves are adthe air outlet hole. With a little tomorrow. patience all the radiators can be balanced so that they will all heat

Metals-Discarded things made of metal or containing it are needed. How to dispose of material (150 pounds or more). 1. To sell: Call any junk dealer. 2. To give away: Call a charity collecting agency. 3. Or call District Salvage Committee, Republic 8488, to arrange for speedy pickup. Dispose of less than 150 pounds by taking to the nearest salvage depot or by arranging for it to be taken there through area salvage chairman. Salvage committee will tell you how to locate depot or salvage chairman. Fats-Strain pan drippings from meats, frying fats and all kinds used into a wide-mouthed can. Keep in a cool place. When a will pay you 4 cents a pound. Rubber-Place in container. Dis-dispose of metals. Hosiery-Take old silk and nylon stockings or those containing these materials mixed with each other or with rayon or cotton to your nearest hosiery counter. Rags-Place in container and dispose of by same methods used to dispose of metal and rubber. (Cast off clothing, blankets, pillows, mattresses, furniture covers and other material needed.) Tin cans-Wash thoroughly. Remove labels. Cut out the tops and bottoms and flatten. Place in suitable containers so they can be picked up. They will be taken from private homes by District garbage collectors and by special collectors from apartment buildings or other commercial establishments

BEDROOM SCENE - The bedspread is often the largest color area in a small bedroom. If the color is too dominant it may make the whole room seem crowded. The natural color background of this counterpane blends perfectly with wheat-colored furniture. Floral design, in high color, accents other color notes in the room and retains a spacious effect.

Carbon disulphide is a poisonous gas and should be handled with care. Ordinarily, the easiest method of application is to pour some of the liquid into a small oil can. Then the squirting of a small quantity—a teaspoonful of the liquid into a tunnel is easy. Since the gas given off is quite heavy it is not necessary to stop up the openings. If cyanogas is used-it is lighter than air-the tunnels should be carefully covered to prevent the gas from escaping. These two poisons, carbon disulphide and cyanogas, are easier, quicker and more effective than baits. They should not be used in large quantities.

South thought a moment, then led a low diamond and finessed dummy's nine. East showed out, and declarer was highly gratified at the result of his finesse. Another club lead was trumped with the diamond ace, and dummy was put in again with the diamond queen. After that North led clubs, and with the heart ace as a re-entry to dummy the only trick the defense could get was West's diamond ten. "How could you be sure my diamond jack wasn't a false card?" asked East in some disgust.

"I couldn't," was South's reply. "But if you had the ten I wouldn't | FBI. mind losing a trick, because then your side would have only one diamond left and I would need only two re-entries to dummy, the diamond queen and the heart ace. If West had all the remaining trumps, however, I would need three re-entries-but in that case the finesse of the nine would also succeed in giving me the extra entry.' * * * *

Uncle Ray's Corner

Quite often I receive letters from readers who want me to help in deciding an argument of one kind or another. Here is one of the latest of these letters:

"Dear Uncle Ray: "I am a boy in the eighth grade. got in an argument the other day with two other boys in my class. I finally convinced one that I was right, but the other offered such a good point that I decided to ask you. The question is this: 'Is the chief function of the United States or to enforce them?' "Yours, truly, "HOWARD PETERS." From Howard's letter I am unable to tell which side of the argument he was on, so I think he presented the question very fairly.

Supreme Court to interpret the laws

The chief duty of the United States Supreme Court is to interpret the law, not to enforce it. The American Constitution makes special mention of the court's power to decide cases "between two or more States; between a State and citizens of another State," and "between citizens of two or more States."

There is no special mention of the power of the Supreme Court to decide whether or not a law passed by Congress is "constitutional." This power has been exercised as a result of a custom which grew up during and after the time of Chief Justice It was Marshall's belief that the no power to enforce its decisions. That power is in the hands of the President. The first section of Article II states: "The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America."

Whoever holds the executive power is the one who executes, or enforces, the law, the President, not the Supreme Court or Congress, has the duty of making sure that national laws are carried out. One can distinguish this fern from its relatives and from nearly all our other wood ferns by its finely divided foliage. The blade is almost three times pinnate, the tip pinules being small, oblong and blunt at the ends and spinulose toothed. On the backs of ordinary fronds

the sori are borne in what amounts to a double row on each of the secondary divisions. A sorus is located at the base of each pinnule. All the species of shield fern are evergreen, though the blades do not remain erect during the winter. This group is found from Canada to North Carolina and northwestward to Alaska. There is one cousin well known in Europe and Asia; another is a common resident in Alaska. It is recorded of this shield fern that its root stock is the first vegetable food the Alaskan Indians are able to find in the spring. It is sought before the fronds develop and

Miss Healey, Tops as Dancer, Still Would Rather Sing

But That May Be Just the Way Of an Irish Lass, Not Content With a One-Way Stardom

By JAY CARMODY.

Miss Eunice Healey, the pretty lass who is dancing at the Earle Theater this week, is Irish enough to be quite dissatisfied—in a laughing way-in spite of the fact that she stands at the top of the distaff branch of her profession. She loves to dance, understand, but she would rather "I would rather be a singer than anything I know," Miss Healey says. "What is more, I never give. up hope of being a singer. If I keep her business, will go right on with on getting jobs in musicals, and get the right musical, then perhaps I shall be a singer." Miss Healey does not plan to be a great singer. She does not think she has the kind of voice that could offer Kirsten Flagstad, or some one like that, the faintest competition. She just wants to sing pleasant songs from musical comedy that other people sing, the ones that become popular and are sung by families grouped around pianos in homes, or in Saroyan pictures.

She did that in "Hold on to Your Hats," her longest run musical and the one which starred Al Jolson. She did it also in "Beat the Band." a spectacularly short-lived production of George Abbott's, which had such a bad book that its good music and considerable supply of talent was completely obscured. One of the things she would like to dance, if she ever can find the inspiration and the time to create it, is a satire on bad tap dancers. is enormously amused with what Paul and Grace Hartman have accomplished in the way of hilariously comic carricature on ballroom and adagio teams. She would like to do the same thing, a little specialty item, in her own field. She thinks it has a compensatory place in the entertainment of people who sit patiently through some of the inept performances of entertainers billed as tap dancers.

"Bad dancing," Miss Healey says. needlessly admonishing not to think the notion is conceited, "is wasted as such. But bad dancing done as brilliantly as the Hartmans do it is a very fine thing. Maybe I can work up something in taps some day that will be like what they Miss Healey is not certain what she will do next. She would like, in a way, to take an offer from San Francisco. There are two good reasons for that. One is that her family still lives there and has not seen her dance in nine years. The other and better reason is that her husband, Dance Director Al White, is in Hollywood working on the This Is the Army" picture at Warner's Studio. San Francisco is closer to Hollywood and Miss Healey feels just like any other Army wife about distances these days.

WPB Symphony Orchestra Shows Exceptional Talent

Experience, Training and Enthusiasm Blended Into Artistic Whole Under Lanning as Director

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The concert given last night by the War Production Board Symphony Orchestra in the Social Security Auditorium placed that young organization in the front rank of non-professional symphonic groups. Directed by Van Lier Lanning, the program presented had a finish unbelievably accomplished in a short period of weekly rehearsals and was a revelation p.m. of talent and musicianship modestly submerged in Government work

These excellent musicians responded to a survey taken a few months ago by the WPB Division of Person-4 nel Management Recreation Unit to discover what recreational activities could be arranged for those who give their time to departmental work. It was then discovered that many with fine musical training and packground sought an opportunity to follow what had become in many cases an avocation, music. The founding of the orchestra brought ogether instrumentalists of experience, training and enthusiasm which has been welded together in an artistic whole. Like other similar organizations, he orchestra faces the unexpected. The day before yesterday's concert, three of the key men were called away, but were replaced by two musicians from the Navy School and former member who returned for this concert in his sailor's uniform. Many women fill important posts such as flute, trumpet, double bass and percussion. In spite of distance and transportation problems, a mafactor for some of the instruments, one night a week is religiously devoted to practice for the concerts, scheduled monthly. Last night's program contained numbers of special interest. There was listed the "Serenade for Strings, Op. 12," by Victor Herbert; Harl McDonald's "Bataan," given its premiere last summer at the Water Gate, and played for the first time in this country was Lorenzo Fernandez's tone poem, "Imbapara." Soloist of the program was Kurt Hetzel, pianist, who was heard in Liszt's "Concerto in E Flat."

Mr. Hetzel's performance was marked by fire and brilliancy and he evoked an enthusiastic response

James Bopst, Pianist, To Present Recital

James Bopst, pianist, assisted by Lawrence Lewis, baritone, will give a recital Tuesday evening, 8:30 o'clock at the Arts Club. A special feature will be the first public performance of Frank Bowman's "Miss Kate and the Peacock" by Mr. Bopst and three of Mr. Bowman's songs: "Bright Stands the Sun's Eye at Noon," "O Love, My Love, and Perfect Bliss" and "I Go My Road" by Mr. Lewis,

Mr. Bopst has programmed two of Bach's "Two Part Inventions, in B Flat and F." the Bach-Liszt "Organ Prelude and Fugue in A Minor," Scarlatti's "Pastorale in E Minor," Chopin's "Nocturne in F Sharp" and stairs and is now rated a star at "Fantaisie-Impromptu." the latter the Columbia studio . . . The caliber of the players is excellent throughout—from the strings, whose tone is pure and full, to the woodwinds that gave such noteworthy account of themselves in the McDonald number. Mr. Lanning is an authoriative conductor who preserves clarity of line and strives for variety in coloring. Herbert's "Serenade." which seems to embody the full range of the composer's talent in its melodic richness and pleasing rhythm, was given with charm and

Operating without funds, the or chestra is indebted often to various CAROLINA sources for its music. The Music Division of the Pan American Union provided the score of Fernandez' Imbapara," thereby making known another of the worthwhile compositions by Latin American writers. Composed some 14 years ago, the tone poem utilizes the indigenous Indian music of Brazil in strong contrasts of plaintiveness and excitement sharply set off by an intriguing use of the drums. The program opened with Weber's "Abu Hassan Overture."

The plan of the Recreation Unit for these orchestral concerts calls for two in succession and the same program will be repeated tonight in the Social Security Auditorium.
