Unanimous Decision Says West Coast Order Is Needed

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) The Supreme Court today upheld the right of the Government to impose a curfew on American citizens of Japanese ancestry in time of threatened danger in the eight-State military zone of the Pacific Coast, as a fifth-column control measure.

The unanimous decision, read by Chief Justice Stone concluded the court's work for this term and adjournment was taken until October. Earlier, in a 5-3 decision, the court had ruled that membership in the Communist party in 1927 was insufficient grounds for canceling the citizenship of an alien. In this decision, it was held that William Schneiderman, Russian-born secreary of the Communist party of California, was entitled to retain the citizenship which the Government sought to revoke because of his Communist membership. The court, however, refused to pass on the controversial issue of whether the Communist party advocates the overthrow of this Government by force and violence.

Stone Reads Decision. In the Japanese case, the Chief Justice said:

"Like every military control of the population of a dangerous zone in war time, it necessarily involves some infringement of individual liberty, just as does the police establishment of fire lines during a fire. or the confinement of people to their houses during an air-raid alarmneither of which could be thought to be an infringement of constitutional right.

that had been raised-namely, the right of the Government to exclude citizens from the military zone which was set up by Maj. Gen. J. L. DeWitt, commander of the area.

> He also contended that the curfew restriction unconstitutionally discriminated between citizens of Japanese ancestry and those of other ancestry in violation of the fifth amendment. Since the sentences on the two counts ran concurrently Justice Stone said, it was unnecessary to pass on the question of evacuation, once it was decided that the student was subject to the cur-few order As to the latter, the court said: "We conclude that it was within the lawful power of Congress and the executive arm of the Government to prescribe this curfew order for the period under consideration ing June 21 a six-degree start on and that its promulgation by the military commander involved no unlawful delegation of legislative

> Special Conditions Cited. Hirabayashi was a resident of Seattle, which was included in the curfew rule. The curfew order was promulgated three days after Congress had enacted legislation providing punishment for violation of any order of that nature. On that basis, Justice Stone said. "The conclusion is inescapable that Congress by the act of March 21, had ratified and confirmed the executive order from which Gen. De Witt'e order stemmed

"The actions taken must be appraised in the light of the conditions with which the President and Congress were confronted in the early months of 1942," he continued recalling the attack on Pearl Harbor and the subsequent Japanese victories in the Pacific. He added:

"That reasonably prudent men charged with the responsibility of our national defense had ample ground for concluding that they must face the danger of invasion, take measures against it and in making the choice of measures consider our internal situation cannot be doubted. "The challenged orders were de fense measures for the avowed purpose of safeguarding the military area in question at a time of threatened air raids and invasion by the Japanese forces from the danger of sabotage and espionage.

Steel Leaders Predict 'Disaster' In New Walkout of Coal Miners; Next Move Is Up to Government

Ickes Awaiting Possible Talks With Union Men

Steel men today predicted a cut within 24 hours as the Nation's coal mines were thrown into idleness for the third time in seven weeks. The walkout at the pits, which started at midnight Friday became general last night when John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers rejected what they termed an "infamous yellow dog contract" proposed by the War Labor Board. Today the only prospect of coal being dug was in Illinois, where most members of the American Federation of Labor Progressive Mine Workers were expected to stay on the job. Even there, however, at least 2,500 of the State's 15,000 Progressive Mine Workers were idle in a sympathy stoppage that affected 11 of the 130 mines with PMW con-in at least two steel centers. The Republic Steel Corp. said at Birmingham, Ala., it was forced to halve its coke oven production and added that its four blast furnaces there and one at Gadsden were operating at only 80 per cent of Federal Control Seen as Goal. Some observers believed the UMW was seeking Federal control of the Industry for the duration. When the Government took over the mines ing to the Dardanelles. it was with the understanding they would be turned back to private operation when uninterrupted production was assured. The operators have been acting as agents of the Government, under Federal control. In the meantime, men responsible for turning out steel for the war effort were predicting disaster.

The Carnegie-Illinois Corp., largest steel producer had estimated earlier that the effects of a general strike would be felt within 24 hours, and that "in a very few days' production would fall to 25 per cent of current

Jones & Laughlin Corp., another Pennsylvania producer, said present stocks of coal would last less than three weeks and that steel production would begin to drop within a week. A day earlier the pinch was beginning to be felt in the Alabama steel mills, and a source there today said furnaces would be going down in 73 hours for lack of coal.

The operators declared with the breaking off of negotiations yesterday that "no possibility of agreement exists" so long as the miners continue their insistence on $1.30 a day extra pay for underground travel This figure had been whittled down from an original demand of $2.

Willing to Work for U. S. The Mine Workers' policy Committee, in a 750-word statement assailing the War Labor Board, which Mr. Lewis has charged with prejudice, declared:

"We assert the willingness of the mine workers to work and continue the production of coal for the Government itself, under the direction of the custodian of mines.

"The executive officers of United Mine Workers of America are hereby instructed to hold themselves in readiness to confer with the Secretary of the Interior." The third stoppage in the recurring crises, which hit anthracite as well as soft coal mines, came in the face of a report by the Office of War Information stressing the importance of coal to the war

Elmer Davis Warned Senate Group Plans Searching Questions

Hoyt Due This Week To Succeed Cowles as OWI Domestic Chief

By the Associated Press. Elmer Davis, whose Office of War Information is threatened with a drastic curtailment through a House economy drive, was warned today to have all the answers ready for senatorial critics.

Mr. Davis is scheduled to appear before the Senate Appropriations Committee this week to ask res-toration of funds eliminated by the House in voting abolition of OWI's domestic branch.

Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire, who last week assailed Mr. Davis' statement that Washington news is inadequately reported, said he planned to ask the OWI chieftain "the answer to a great many things." Other Senators expressed similar views.

Meanwhile Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Portland Oregonian, was due here this week, as the new chief of OWI's domestic branch, a post which will become non-existent unless the Senate restores the appropriations cut decreed by the House. Mr. Hoyt was named to succeed Gardner Cowles, jr., publisher of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register and Tribune, whose resignation was announced long before the fight on Capitol Hill over OWI though not an A. P. member.

The House cut off $5,500,000, leavfinance foreign propaganda but nothing for home front activities. Senator Bridges told reporters:

Italians Are Declared Eager for Invasion or Peace to End Raids

People Short of Food And Sleep and Have Lost Faith in Duce

STOCKHOLM, June 21 .- The Italian people want to get out of the war and gain relief from Allied bombings, which have hammered pre-invasion warnings home to Italy's industrial centers, informants recently returned from that country said today.

Short of food except in highpriced black market trading, short of sleep because of Allied air raids, and short of hope because they have lost faith in Mussolini's Fascist regime, the Italians were reported welcoming invasion or a separate peace as putting them out of their current misery. As the invasion threat grows, it was said, the Italians talk more and more about their chances of getting out of the war. Populace Looks Hopefully to Pope.

"Many of them feel they are between two fires," these sources said. 'They say 'if we sued for peace today we would have only German bombers over our cities tomorrow instead of Allied planes." (Rumors among the French civil population in North Africa Saturday that highly placed Italian envoys were there asking for a separate peace were officially declared by Allied sources to be without basis. Axis spokesman previously had denied the rumors.) Among all the wartime confusion,

Pope Pius XII stood out as the most important figure in Italy, the informants said here, with the average Italian looking hopefully to him as "the man of the hour." Because of the nearness of Vatican City, which leads to a popular belief Rome will not be bombed, the capital now is jammed with evacuees from other bombed cities, with lodging non-existent and food scarce. Rome Raid Shelters Inadequate.

Sub Packs Beaten Off In Five-Day Running Battle in Atlantic

97% of Allied Ships Safe; 2 U-Boats Destroyed, 3 Others Probably Sunk

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 21.-Land-based bombers, escort carrier planes and warships, teamed in the Allied effort to clear the Atlantic of Hitler's submarines, are credited officially with beating off "one of the fiercest and most sustained offensives ever mounted" against convoys in a fiveday battle last month.

British authorities announced last night that from two to five of the submarines were destroyed and that the air and surface screen was so effective only 3 per cent of the convoy vessels were even molested-attacked, damaged or sunk.

"Two U-boats were destroyed, three probably were destroyed and others may have been damaged," said a communique issued jointly by the Admiralty and Air Ministry.

Battles Miles from Convoys.

The known submarine sinkings were credited to warships, but pocket-size escort carriers' planes and the big bombers detected the submarines so effectively that most of the engagements were fought many miles away from the convoyed vessels, the communique said. As a result, it added, "97 per cent of the ships forming the convoys reached harbor in safety and without hav ing been molested."

The engagements ranged over hundreds of miles, said the communique, which did not give the

The escort carrier, the first of the American-made pocket-sized vessels to be reported in action, was H. M. S. Biter, a converted freighter. The definite kills were credited to the British destroyer Broadway, formerly the U.S.S. Hunt, and the destroyer Hesperus, which also was credited with two probables.

At least two convoys were engaged by the submarines during the running battle. The Biter's planes first sighted the U-boats and attacked with depth charges and machine guns. They were quickly joined by shore-based bombers which forced the U-boats to dive, and the battle then was taken up by British destroyers.

De Valera or Coalition Issue in Irish Election

DUBLIN, Eire, June 21.—Irish voters will decide tomorrow in their first wartime election whether to continue Prime Minister Eamon de Valera in control of the Eire government he has headed since 1932 or substitute a coalition rule, advocated by the opposition leader, William T. Cosgrave.

Pre-election betting favors the New York-born Prime Minister. The campaign has been vigorous, although it has failed to stir the warm-blooded Irish as elections usually do. The loss of nine seats by De Valera's Fianna Fail party would swing control to the combined

Isolationism Dead For America, Dewey Tells GOP Leaders

Attends Conference of Governors; Bricker Uses 'Lay-Low' Strategy

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 21.-Isolationism for the American people or for the Republican Party is a thing of the past, according to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, here for the 35th annual meeting of the Governors' Conference.

He was asked whether there was any chance of a return to isolationism either for the GOP in the coming presidential campaign or for the United States after the war. He snapped an emphatic "NO."

Speaking as a member of the newly-appointed Republican Postwar Advisory Council, which is to aid the GOP formulate its platform declarations next year, the New Yorker said:

Long before the Battle of Britain, they foresaw a wall of detective rays ringing the frontiers of nations endangered by air attack. Proved Most Effective. Skepticism as to their value vanished rapidly as they went on ship after ship and proved themselves by amazing performance. Thus officers and men were ready to use them to the fullest when war came, and in battle they proved them-selves all over again, enabling our warriors of the sea to pull off feats they had not dreamed possible in pre-Radar years.

Late on the evening of November 14, 1942, among the Solomon Islands in the South Pacific, one of our warships was out looking for Japanese warships

The sea battle for Guadalcanal was in its final phase, the issue still undecided. Aboard the American vessel, a Radar, like an invisible searchlight, probed the enshrouding darkness with its magical waves. Suddenly the indicator on which Radar registers its discoveries disclosed the presence of an enemy vessel more than 8 miles away.

The big ship lifted its gun muzzles toward the stars. They flashed and thundered by salvoes. The second salvo, despite the darkness and 16,000-yard range, landed squarely on the target.

The American ships went on not only to win but to turn the battle for Guadalcanal into one of the most costly routs in Japanese history. The British version of Radar known as radio-locator, matched in military results the heroic sacrifices of the handful of fighter pilots who saved England during the Nazi aerial blitz of late 1940. Land-based

Radar ringed England's coast and sionary of progress, Admiral Bowen rode in its night fighter planes. Radar's unerring fingers picked up the range, direction and speed on Hitler's bombers far out over the water sometimes even over Europe itself. Assured of adequate forewarning of each attack, the handful of RAF heroes who saved the British Isles from destruction by air found it unnecessary to maintain incessant fighter patrols which would quickly have exhausted men and planes. They rested until the foe approached and went into action at the last minute. It was this conservation of energy, machines and fuel which enabled England to fight back until the blitz collapsed.

An hour later the dog's insistence on giving the alarm was justified when a Japanese fish float, used by the Japs to support their nets washed ashore. The cheap greenglass float blended so well with the ocean it was imperceptible to human eyes, but P-40 in some manner had spotted it long before it

The trainers and keepers, always taking an intense and personal interest in the dogs they are training or keeping, reward meritorious acts such as P-40's by declaring an advancement in dog rank ratings for the war dog. Second Lt. Ernest H. Moor, Lakewood, N. J., supervisor of the dogs heard Lorrie snarling and growling deeply as she stalked around and around me. He yelled the signal for cease attack, and Lorrie, looking very pleased with herself, trotted over to him.

Lt. Moor told me that had I moved Lorrie would have grabbed me, and warned that "you shouldn't have tried to pet her. If you leave her alone, she'll leave you alone."

Special training is given the dogs, he said, to insure their resentment toward occasional visitors. The dogs naturally love the marines who care for them, so periodically a stranger appears to assault a keeper in their presence. That makes the dogs wary of every stranger unless the keeper is present and directs the dog to submit to petting.

By the Associated Press NEW YORK, June 21.-Mayor F. H. La Guardia intimated in a roundabout way yesterday that evid-doers might force him into a campaign for a fourth term at City Hall in the interests of a vice-free city.

Speaking on his regular weekly radio broadcast, the mayor cited his 10-year battle against vice and gambling in the Nation's largest city

He has two more years of his current term to serve. When reporters asked him if his remarks meant he might run for mayor again, Mr. La Guardia replied: "I hope it won't be necessary."

A Clear-Cut Issue

As the Nation's coal miners begin their third strike, it is perfectly clear that there is but one real issue involved in this controversy. In the latest pronouncement from John L. Lewis and his policy committee an effort is made to obscure this issue in a welter of intemperate, irresponsible and unfounded charges against the War Labor Board and the coal operators. But this attempt to muddy the waters will fail.

Stripping aside the verbal camouflage which Mr. Lewis has thrown around his indefensible position, the essential facts become plain. In his own language, "There exists but one major problem: Namely, compensation to the mine workers for travel time from mine portal to portal." And this claim, in turn, rests on the provisions of the wage-hour law as interpreted by the Fifth Circuit Court.

Thus this whole threat to the security of the Nation comes down to a question of the meaning of a law that has been in effect for several years. The War Labor Board has published figures which indicate that the miners would be entitled to little if anything under the law upon which Mr. Lewis stakes his claim. But if Mr. Lewis honestly differs on this question, he is faced with no difficulty in obtaining full satisfaction. All that he has to do is make a demand on the Wage-Hour Administration and the validity or invalidity of his claim will be promptly adjudicated.

This is the course that any other American citizen would be required to take. But the lawful processes are not good enough for Mr. Lewis. Probably because he lacks faith in the merits of his own claim under the law, he has sought to compel the operators and the WLB to grant cash concessions which bear no reasonable relation to any legal claim that he may have, and, failing in this effort, he now serves notice that the miners will dig coal only if the Government continues to operate the mines.

What this might mean in terms of depriving the operators of the right to control and operate their properties is uncertain at this stage of the game. It may represent nothing more than a face-saving move on the part of Mr. Lewis, or it may be an unabashed attempt to punish the operators for refusing to bow down to his demands by denying them the privflege of earning a profit for the duration of the war. This is a matter which cannot be determined unless and until the terms of an agreement are worked out. But it is perfectly evident that the Government cannot become a party to any agreement for a literal taking over of the mines for the duration without an open and shameful surrender to expediency at the expense of principle. For the country's sake, it may be hoped that the Government of the United States has not been reduced to such a low

Expediting Appeals

The Municipal Court of Appeals, in a recent decision, took occasion to serve notice on litigants and their counsel that it will not tolerate needless delays tending to defeat the basic purpose underlying the creation of the District's new Municipal Court

The case before the court involved an appeal from a suit for damages growing out of a minor automobile accident. The record had been poorly prepared and was not filed with the appellate court until more than six months after it was due under the rules. Speaking for the court, Judge Nathan Cayton said: "In the interest of orderly dispatch of court business, we cannot condone the particularly flagrant disregard of court rules which stands out so plainly in this case. The purpose of Congress in creating this court and of the rules we promulgated by authority of the statute was to provide litigants an appeal of right with a simple, expeditious, inexpensive procedure. That purpose will be thwarted if rules are disregarded, limitations of time ignored and appellate records and briefs prepared dition which it says threatens the and presented here at counsel's own | safety of thousands of soldiers, and convenience."

This rebuke is in keeping with the concept of the Municipal Court as a tribunal in which the people may obtain prompt adjudication of their claims without the formalities and the delays usually associated with proceedings in the higher courts. Had the Office of War Information been created in the beginning to perform a definite function for which there was a demonstrable need, the precipitate action of the House on Friday in laying it low, insofar as its domestic operations are concerned, might be subject to sound criticism. For if there ever was need for such an organization, the need has increased rather than diminished with the intensity of the war effort. But as a matter of fact OWI never was brought into being to do a job that was ever precisely defined. It was the accidental product of another of those queer evolutionary processes in which a number of vague ideas, taking form in the shape of new agencies created by executive order and unsuccessfully striving to justify their independent existence, are suddenly catalyzed by the addition of a new set of initials. Thus, offshoots of the old Office of Emergency Management, the Office of Facts and Figures, the Office of Government Reports, the Office of Information and perhaps some others finally became the Office of War Information.

The resulting amorphism under the direction of Elmer Davis, called away from a commentator's microphone to give it form and substance, has been subjected only once before to congressional examination and since receiving its first appropriation has figured in public discussion more as the center of discord and uncertainty than as the fountain head of unadorned facts about the war. Its notoriety has been achieved through new controversies and suspicions regarding ultimate motives and objectives. Mr. Davis himself made a peculiarly unfortunate speech in Boston last week which did much to alienate a hitherto rather sympathetic press. A more inappropriate speech at a more inappropriate time hardly could have been made, and Mr. Davis did not help himself noticeably by following it up with counterattacks on his congressional criticsa procedure which has never been advisable on the part of the man anxious to get ahead in his government

The test of OWI's continued service. of course, should be the value to the people of what it is doing. Although this may be to some extent established before a more sympathetic Senate committee, OWI has added more critics than supporters and is not in a strong position to demonstrate that the war effort would suffer in the least by its disappearance from the domestic scene. Certainly it will be hard to show tangible results to counterbalance the heavy expense of its operations to date.

Any one desiring a complete showing "must acquire literally scores of items, many of them printed in painfully small editions for private circulation." Also mentioned are the President's "Rec- and rapidly accelerated, so that ords of the Town of Hyde Park," a speech to the pupils of Milton Academy entitled "Whither Bound," a pamphlet urging the election of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, and "the privately printed editions of various addresses which Mr. Roosevelt has regarded as milestones in his three terms and therefore deserving of the mighty." The last named of these productions, it seems, have been manufactured in the Government Printing Office, beginning in 1935. Only a hundred copies of "Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, 1942," were issued. A definitive assembling of the President's writings, naturally, will be brought together at Crum Elbow; but the Library of Congress is an

Production Controversy The difference of opinion between the War Department and the War Production Board concerning the significance of last month's military production figures is typical of the sort of administrative clash which, in the opinion of OWI Director Elmer Davis, is being overemphasized by the men who report the news from Washington. Presumably, Mr. Davis would prefer to have news of this kind subordinated. But when the War Department makes a special point of calling attention to a conwhen the WPB takes issue with that contention, it is a matter of too much concern to the people to be relegated to the inside pages of the newspapers. The War Department's view was presented by Undersecretary Patterson, who told reporters in a formal statement that production for the Army's ground forces in May had little and too late" now will cost thousands of lives tomorrow. He attributed the slump to overconfidence and complacency growing out of recent Allied victories, and appealed for recognition of the fact that a failure of supplies can easily mean a loss of the strategic initiative which was recently wrested from the Axis.

A few hours after this disturbing report had been released by Mr. Patterson a spokesman for the WPB took issue with his figures. Although agreeing that every effort should be made to accelerate production if our military victories are to be exploited, the WPB said that actually there was an overall increase of 2 per cent in arms production last month. Supplies for the ground forces, it was said, represent only about one-sixth of total production, and it was in the ground force program that the largest deliberate "cut backs" were ordered.

The net effect of this is to give the impression that the WPB is not worried about a condition which Mr. Patterson indicated was causing serious concern in the War Department. And the newspapers, obviously not qualified to determine where the line should be drawn between these views, were left with no alternative but to publish both opinions.

In this situation, where was Mr. Davis? It is his job to compose these administrative differences of opinion, to prevent public statements of conflicts which disturb and confuse the people. In all fairness, it should be recognized that it is asking too much of Mr. Davis, or any other individual, to head off all administrative disputes. But it is not asking too much to expect Mr. Davis to refrain from criticizing newspapermen for reporting controversies between responsible officials that are too hot for him to handle.

Canada Fights Inflation

The inexorable pressure of total war upon even the most wisely regulated national economy is illustrated by mounting difficulties in Canada. Our northern neighbor enjoys a deserved reputation for the comprehensive measures taken betimes to maintain economic stability and combat inflationary trends. The result has thus far been a much better record in such respects than our

Canada entered the present war from its very start in September, 1939, two years ahead of the United States. That was also true of World War Number One, from which it grievously suffered economically. Determined to profit by those costly lessons, Canada resolved to regulate with problems piecemeal as they became pressingly urgent. Accordingly, the Canadian government presently established an over-all, horizontal price ceiling, including wages and salaries, all of which were "frozen"

This basic formula was not inflexiceptional circumstances. But the burden of proof for any specific change was on the complaint and the need had to be convincingly demonstrated to the Dominion Wartime Prices and Trade Board which administers the system. Wage and salary increases were bound up strictly to living costs. Price rises were sometimes averted by governas to assure continued adequate pro-The list, of course, includes intro- duction of essential goods or products Until recently, this pioneering experiment worked extremely well. This was notably true of living costs. These had begun to rise with the war when the ceiling was imposed in November, 1941, it stood at 14.6 per cent over September, 1939, the velocity of increase just before the ceiling imposition being 114 per cent monthly. But, from the establishment of the ceiling to last April, the further rise was only 2.1 points, whereas in that same period the rise in the United special circulation in the councils of States was approximately 11.6 points.

This gratifying record may not, however, be maintained, according to a report recently issued by Donald Gordon, Dominion price director, chairman of the board which enforces the ceiling. A survey completed by his economic experts reveals pressures on the ceiling from many quarters, especially from wage demands and price rises urged by farmers. Mr. Gordon points out that yielding to those pressures would crack the ceiling, asserting: "If we Canadians cannot hold down food and labor costs, we shall have to abandon our price ceiling." Mr. Gordon gives as one of the prime reasons for the current inflationary trend the widening gap between disposable income and available goods. He shows that, this year, Canadians as individuals will have some $400,000,000 more to spend than they had in 1942, but that there will be $300,000,000 less goods for them to buy. This "inflationary gap" has arisen despite war taxation heavier than ours and designed to mop up surplus purchasing power. Those figures may look small to us, but they apply to a nation of only 12,-000,000; so the inflationary impact is proportionately severe.

All this shows that even the wisest and most scientific planning may delay and mitigate but cannot wholly avert the disrupting effects of total war upon the economic life of any nation engaged therein. Those effects are too all-embracing for any system fully to compensate the

President's Decision on Strike Bill Appraised

Critic Argues That Politics Necessarily Will Affect Executive Action

To the Editor of The Star: The President's disposition of the Connally-Harness anti-strike bill will rank second only to the continuance of the war and the seriousness of the coming food famine as the pivotal factor in his success or defeat in 1944. However he may dispose of the bill, it is certain that the President will be actuated solely by political considerations relating to a fourth term campaign. Most observers feel that these considerations will cause him to allow the bill to become law without his signature. They believe that the so-called "soldier vote" already has replaced the union lobby as the Nation's dominant pressure group; that the President appreciates the ever-evolving character of this faction, and that he will feel it essential to bow to its undoubted wishes in the matter, apologizing, as best he can, to his much-disgruntled unioneer following. We need not discuss this eventuality further. It is the more probable, and certainly the more desirable, result. Others, however, tend to discount the present political force of the soldier vote and believe that the President will manifest his habitual solicitude for the forces of organized labor by either vetoing the bill in toto, or, more judiciously, by vetoing it on the basis of one particular feature thereof. The latter strategy contemplates a jealous Congress defeating itself by what unquestionably would be a failure to procure the vote necessary to override the veto in a futile effort to keep the conference bill intact. At any rate, this course involves a clear commital of the President's re-election chances to the continuing effectiveness of five political drawing cards: (1) the historically minded South, (2) the moregrateful-than-ever labor union vote, (3) the sketchy information and short memory of voters in other geographical and social groups, (4) the setting of the flag in the center of every political picture. (5) the blurring of every important issue with the President's own undeniably dynamic personality.

That the President may adopt this course as the more expedient is an alarmingly distinct probability. There is an old adage that "it is the wheel that squeaks the loudest that gets the grease." The air and press currently are freighted with the hypocritical cries of the unioneer leaders, the only persons who stand to suffer any real detriment from the act. These cries are specious, they are shockingly ignorative of the issues involved, but they are apt to prove successful. If so, in order to cushion the shock of this disappointment to the American people, the President probably will employ his customarily effective device of delivering an explanatory message by radio broadcast. Whatever the means used, however, the defense or its wartime economy this time as an apology will include three wholly unorganic whole instead of dealing supportable arguments designed to distort the popular conception of the problems involved. It will be well to examine these arguments now before they become embellished and coated with protection against the damaging rays of an objective analysis by having passed through the President's mouth:

A. The President will attempt to eclipse every real issue by focusing our eyes upon the person of John L. Lewis, as sole provocator and target of the legislation

B. He will attempt to present the bill as hastily conceived and illy considered He will suggest that Congress was prompted by anger and kindred emotions in creating an inequitable legislative product.

C. He will attempt to minimize the importance of the current strike rate relying upon the oft repeated but dangerously deceptive and thoroughly fallacious device of comparing the number of man-hours lost with the number thereof which actually were worked.

The President would not think of submitting these arguments to what he considers an informed, fact-finding, deliberative body. He will rely upon drawing card No. 4 above; i. e., the sketchy information and short memory of the American people. Let us, however, ourselves assume the role of a deliberative body and examine the merits in these

Vicious as it is, the coal strike has not been the only strike, or even the only major strike in this country since labor voluntarily took the "no-strike" pledge after Pearl Harbor in December, 1941. Glance back through the newspapers of the past few months. It would require many times the space of this article to even catalogue the plants which have been involved in various labor stoppages. The list is shamefully long. It is a national disgrace. When the President in a fairly recent speech said that "we shall strike, and strike again," all of us thought he was speaking about Europe. We are now beginning to have our doubts as to his reference.

But the President and his Charley McCarthys have told you, and the President will tell you again, that the number of man-days lost is only a fraction of 1 per cent of the number of days worked, and Mr. Green and other union leaders never tire of telling that the harmful effect of work stoppages is negligible and that they are keeping their promise with more than 99 per cent fidelity.

For a real appreciation of the "accuracy" of this statement, let us go back momentarily to the old red schoolhouse. This school has 100 pupils and year after year there is always, on the average, one pupil who plays hookey each day. It is not always the same pupil, but each day some one absents himself. Finally, one year, the teacher exacts a no-morehookey pledge. After the promise, however, day after day, there is still one pupil a day who plays hookey. In fact, the rate goes up slightly. Now, this is the question: Have those children, in view of the fact that 99 out of a hundred were there each day as they always had been, kept their promise with 99 per cent faithfullness or have they actually kept

Apply this analogy where it belongs. On the Department of Labor statistics for the 15-year period from 1927 onward there was an average of 1,945 strikes a year, involving an average of about 865,474 workers a year, and entailing a which "sacrifice" the unions have been controls over their members and over dent.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"ALBEMARLE STREET.

"Dear Sir: "Your column is so interesting I seldom miss reading it. But I don't remember reading anything about catbirds—are they really dangerous to cats?

"Of course, I know the catbird-medium size, dark gray, black on top of the head, and end of the tail, with a long, sharp, black bill to peck our cat's eves out.

"Besides that, they have a 'stance' different from that of other birds. I do admire them for being pert and impudent, but they are not even afraid of me-can you imagine!

"I have a wired-in pen in the back lot for my Persian so he can chew grass. The top edge of the fence is bent down so Spunky can't jump over or crawl out. "These catbirds have no nest anywhere close by. I didn't want to run them away until I was sure. They are afraid of nobody, cats or dogs.

"The cathirds even have a 70-pound pointer cowed. "The birds get on a tree branch about 3 feet from me. These birds are the only thing in the world the dog is afraid of. What can I do w get rid of them without having to give up my bird bath for the others? "I like the pretty, impudent things—but my pets come first. "Sincerely, A. B. M."

It is seldom that catbirds are this belligerent. Only the presence of their nest close by could account for it. The nest is large, constructed of dried leaves, twigs, grasses and roots, lined with smaller grasses and roots. The nest is placed in shrubbery, usually within 10 feet of the ground.

This means that the nest is very low. Mostly it is put not more than 3 or 4 feet high.

It may be realized that catbird nests are unusually open to depredations. No doubt the birds know this. Why they do not put them higher is a question. It would seem, at least, to the human observer, that they should know enough, from experience, to build the nest where marauding animals could not get to it. Yet it is common observation that birds, as humans, go on doing the same things generation after generation.

Some species of birds will place highly colored yarns in their nests, thus attracting enemies. Given the chance, the birds will use bright objects, despite the fact that they should know it is dangerous.

The catbird lays from 4 to 6 eggs, of a deep bluish-green, without spots or other markings.

The color, while resembling the famous robin's egg blue, is much darker. The parent birds are solicitous for their young and will attack anything which comes toward the nest.

Usually this species is not given to such tactics, which are usual with the more belligerent mockingbirds, their cousins. There is no danger of any real harm from a catbird. The best thing would be to forget about it. As soon as nesting is over, the birds will stop chasing cats and dogs. * * * * The catbird belongs to a group called mimic thrushes. These include the mockingbird, the brown thrasher and the cathird. To some observers, the catbird is the best of the trio, although most observers place the meeker at the top as a

Some one has said that the catbird sings Chinese." which is no slur on the gallant Chinese, but a simple implication that their music is, to occidental ears, rather on the strange side.

The catbird achieves this effect by throwing in various gutteral notes. It is believed that he picks up some of these from other birds, notably the wood thrush, which sandwiches in between his purer notes a certain number of harsh whirrs.

The catbird's song is often mistaken for that of a mockingbird. Often when the long flowing phrases are heard, a bird lover will say, "Oh, listen to the mockingbird," without going out to try to locate the singer. If he did, he might give himself a genuine surprise.

Not only in appearance, and song, but above all in actions, he belongs to the company of the good birds.

This respect and liking for him grows in any observer. He is not flashy, in any sense; often several years are required before an observer gives him his due. But if he keeps on watching the bird, and feeds it raisins, so that it will come close, where he can get a good look at it, he will see at last that this is a mighty fine American.

In some parts of the country he is popularly called the black-capped thrush, and in others the slate-colored mockingbird.

Certainly when a bird is compared to two such birds as the thrush and the mocker, he is in good company, If the observer is fond of cats, there must be a special appeal to the catbird, not only on account of its name, but peculiarly so because of its odd cry. There is no other bird call like it in all the world. Down in Virginia some people call it the "snake bird," because they think it is saying "Sna-a-a-ke." What it really says, according to admirers of the house cat, is "Meow," or "Mew." The sound is so unmistakably cat-like that many a person has mistaken it for a real cat. Just how a bird managed to get this inflection remains one of the minor unexplained mysteries.

Tax Concessions Trouble Serviceman Who Could Pay More. To the Editor of The Star:

Last year my income was about $4,000, mostly from civilian employment. The Federal tax thereon was $600, all of which I was ready and cheerfully willing to pay on March 15 last, and would have paid had it not been for the existing confusion regarding tax legislation.

This year my total service income, including base pay and allowances, will be about $3,000, a sum which should be taxable at current rates at about $500. However, my rental and food allowances. amounting to nearly $1,000, are not taxable, and my base pay of $2,000 is entirely canceled by the $500 personal exemption and the special $1.500 exemption recently authorized for members of the armed forces. Thus, I pay no tax on 1943 in-

Further, by another special provision applicable to servicemen, I may elect to have the 75 per cent forgiveness apply to the greater income, that for 1942, reducing my tax on 1942 income to $150. I could well afford to pay a total income tax of $1,500 for the two years, yet the their employers. During 1942, however, the year following "labor's" promise, the number of strikes were 2,968, the number of workers involved were 839,961 for the year, and the number of man-days lost was 4,182,557. During 1943 the rates have climbed even higher. In April alone the number of strikes were so frequent as to approach a 5,000-a-year rate. Again, is this the fullfilment of a promise with more than 99 per cent faithfulness or is it a palpable failure to observe a solemn promise in the slightest degree?

Why, then, do the President and his spokesmen continue to offer us statements that the "voluntary" method is working, that "labor" is keeping its promise with more than 99 per cent accuracy? Clearly a comparison of mandays lost to man-days worked is an intentional effort to disguise "labor's" defections. At the least, it fails to serve as

Then too, the Labor Department's statistics ignore any strikes which were of less than a day's duration as well as the conglomoration of such practices as "walkouts," "labor stoppages," "conferences," "labor holidays," etc. For the President to present the bill as a recent congressional conception would be an insult to the memory of the American people. The Connally bill was put forward in 1941 and again in April, 1942. It was abandoned each time at the President's request. The Smith bill (the original version of the Harness bill) passed the House in December, 1941, by a vote of 252 to 136, but the President's executive subordinates succeeded in getting it shelved in the Senate. Thus, both bills are over a year and a half old. An examination of the lengthy congressional debate is all that is needed to show that there was tediously careful consideration given to the merits of every part thereof and that such discussion was only incidentally centered upon the subject of Mr. Lewis.

To the Editor of The Star: I am just in receipt of a V-mail lettioned in England, and I thought I would like to pass on to the readers the reactions of those young fellows who are fighting to keep America free: "The coal mine strike has been headlined in the papers over here, and I have a difficult time explaining to the English why we permit such things in time of war. What the coal miners are striking for ($2 a day increase?) is more than the average miner over here makes in a day-and living costs are not lower. And coal is scarce—every one saves, and shivers all winter to conserve coal supplies-and coal is a war item. The soldier can't strike for shorter hours, or higher pay, so why should the civilian in a war industry? He's in it as much as we are-or doesn't he know it? Send the labor leaders over here for a winter; let them go through a few air raids; and then to the hell that was Tunisia—they'll be glad to go home and work!"

How discouraging it must be for soldiers overseas to feel that all their efforts are going toward protecting a country that will allow such moralebreaking situations to occur! I hope that public opinion will run strong enough to oust the union leaders—and that the coal miners, without the leadership of these radicals, money-seeking saboteurs, will realize that unless they go "all out" for victory now, their cause is lost; for without a doubt, the boys on the fighting fronts are coming back to do a thorough job of housecleaning, and they'll get of facts that we must weigh the argu- plenty of support from those of us at

House Shuts Purse on Abuses

Uses Old Power To Check Punitive Reforms of Radicals

By DAVID LAWRENCE. The "power of the purse" is the oldest parliamentary power in the long history of the people's struggle for self - government. And the matic "power of the purse" is just now being exercised with unthat way.

mistakable vigor by the House as a check against misuse and abuse of power by the executive agencies. When our forefathers wrote the Constitution, they imposed a four-David Lawrence. year tenure on the executive and they gave him through the veto power a controlling judgment over the acts of both Houses of Congress equal to the votes of two-thirds of one House and just one vote less than two-thirds of the other House. The people can speak at the polls on presidential policy only once in four years. The Canadian and British people can force an election at any time. This means that the American legislature, unlike the British parliament, does not possess an overnight check against arbitrary or autocratic action by executive agencies of government-a fact which the radicals who have been patterning their "administrative law" on British practice by means of executive regulations have overlooked.

So when the radicals in Government agencies introduce social reforms and punitive measures, taking as their cue some vaguely worded phrases in a statute, Congress can do nothing about it except to exercise the "power of the purse." And that's what is happening today.

Intrigue Against Brown.

Specifically, the Office of Price Administration started out to be an innocent-looking agency to help ward off inflation by imposing price ceilings on various commodities. Leon Henderson, who is a member of the original New Deal group of economists, picked for his staff professors and lawyers who saw eye to eye with him in his economic philosophy-an understandable and logical approach from his standpoint. But when Mr. Henderson left the OPA, his advisers and policy-makers

Prentiss Brown, who took over, was faced with the necessity of putting in new personnel. He was vehemently fought on this by the powerful intrigue of the radicals who have access to the White House, where in its outer offices sits another group of radical advisers at the elbow of James F. Byrnes, once director of Economic Stabilization and now War Mobilization chief.

For weeks the press was filled with "left wing" criticism about the wobbly OPA and how Mr. Brown wasn't functioning effectively. Actually he was facing an internal war -one of those things Elmer Davis wishes the press wouldn't report. It turns out that Mr. Brown still has the advisers who believe that the war can be used to achieve reforms, in connection with price control but especially the control and regulation of the profit system by Government.

Blow at Business Uncovered.

Thus if a company finds a way to lower costs per unit through expansion of output, it must lower its price to suit the OPA. Congress has never voted that policy, and it is contrary to the whole development of American industrial production. Large companies are penalized on the profit side on such vague basis as the need for controlling inflation. It was brought out, too, that the OPA acts even when no price rise has occurred or is threatened in a particular article, but when there is a sort of inflationary tendency in the air in other commodities. The justification given is admitted to be to appease labor groups and prevent demands for wage increases.

Arbitrary Base Set Up. The OPA officials on the stand have conceded that their rollback in prices or their freezing of prices can mean a reduction not only in profits but in taxes due the Federal Government. Also they concede that their moves sometimes increase purchasing power and widen the "inflationary gap." Nowhere has Congress authorized 1936 to 1939 as the

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. From the beginning, Hitler hoped to win this war largely by diplomatic means. His strategy was to achieve critical positions-Austria, Czecho-

Derothy Thompson. Thus before the attack on Poland, he offered the pact to Russia; after the fall of Poland he offered peace to France and Britain; after the successful blitz against the Low Countries and France, he offered peace to Britain Before the campaign against Russia, he offered an alliance to Britain, after an outright alliance had been refused by Russia.

The critical comments of Mr. Davis concerning the way in which Washington correspondents do their work and on what he considers the general deterioration of the newspaper business since he left it, may have lent force to the blow, but it would have come anyhow. Nor was there much point in Republican defense of the press after Mr. Da-

Old Stuff to Writers. For one thing, Washington correspondents have been lectured by even more pompous and pretentious persons than Mr. Davis. And, they have been publicly buttered many times by politicians of greater importance than those who arose last week to tell them what fine fellows they are and what a low creature Mr. Davis is. With the correspondents this is all in the day's work. They expect to be unpopular with jobholders whose ineptitudes they have pointed out. And they expect to be praised by those on the other side who think they see an opportunity of ingratiating themselves with the "newspaper boys" and at the same time score against an opponent.

Each cancels the other out. Both are well understood by every newspaperman and neither is of importance. Of course, Mr. Davis is not a low creature, nor a Goebbels nor a Gayda. On the contrary, he is devoid of any sinister nurnose It is possible to say that his personal manners could be improved. that his capacity as a public administrator is slight, that his sense of humor is feeble, that his judgment of men is poor and that he thinks more highly of himself than the facts justify. But efforts to depict him as an evil man are just ridiculous. He may be a bore, but he isn't bad.

Considering his type, Mr. Davis' temperament it is natural to feel time when "I was a reporter myself." and are breaking down business and implying that reporting was on a much higher level in those days. administration and its opposition

He was made head of the OWI not because mestic unit, it should be made clear of his newspaper record but because as a radio commentator he had done a good job and made a national

But there was another reason Mr. Davis was also a New Dealer of the more advanced kind, a member of the radical American Labor party, an ardent third termer and just as ardent for the fourth term Without those qualifications he might have been much more gifted than he is and he would not have been given the chief propagandist job in this administration. When he came to Washington, Mr. Davis had a very good press. Correspondents and columnists alike were cordial up to the time of certain developments. One of these was that Mr. Davis' OWI was using the taxpayers' money to distribute literature which, in effect, was New Deal campaign material.

Friction and Feuds.

Another was that Mr. Davis' very expensive organization was full of friction and feuds and that Mr. Davis, himself, did not know a great deal about what was going on. When these things were pointed out in the press, Mr. Davis aggrievedly members of Congress rushing to the proclaimed that all he was doing was giving the American people "full and accurate information." There was considerable documentary evidence to contradict this and his contention was not strengthened by his public reference to fourthterm talk as "hot air." In face of the facts, that was anything but "full and accurate." It was, in fact, extremely silly.

Mr. Davis' reaction to press comment on these things was resentful and his speech defending the bureaucrats and criticizing correspondents clearly was due to hurt feelings. But no one should be surprised at this. Criticism of the press is a major New Deal policy, and Mr. Davis' reaction in a small way is exactly Mr. Roosevelt's in a big way. No doubt Mr. Davis has been commended for his "attack" by the White House "inner circle," and probably it will be followed by others-which is all right.

Some Feel Only Contempt. Like his chief, he conceives it his duty to point out the errors of the while he is filled with a too deep press and correct the correspondconsciousness of his own rectitude, ents who show this regretable disposition to carp and cavil at great men. The correspondents do not mind. Some of them are amused over the efforts of a bungling bureaucrat to tell them how not to report his bungling. Others just feel contempt. But few really care.

They know that long after Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Davis and the rest of those who now strut upon the Washington stage have passed away, Washington correspondents still will be reporting to the country the attitude toward newspapermen is facts about Presidents and public entirely natural. Fresh German Troops Being Sent to Italy In Large Numbers at Mussolini's Request

By CONSTANTINE BROWN. The Nazi high command is reported taking advantage of the fact the Allies have not yet invaded Sardinia and Sicily, the two most important outposts of the E uropean fortress. Whether the delay of Gen. Eisenhower's forces is due to increased resistance of the enemy in the air or disturbed internal political Constantine Brown. conditions in North Africa, where the De Gaulle-Giraud row has not been settled, or whether the time set for the invasion has not arrived, is a military secret. But information considered reliable indicates that in the last two weeks Hitler, answering SOS calls from Mussolini, has been moving troops across the Brenner Pass with great speed. From intelligence reports, it appears that these troops have been taken from the general reserve pool in. the Reich as have the fighter planes which have appeared in the Mediterranean to oppose Anglo-American air squadrons.

It seems the two dictators believe the Allies might attempt to go farther than the Mediterranean outposts this summer in the event the Italian forces in Sicily collapse.

Mussolini has a number of divisions in the Balkans and Southern France-about 27 in all. The total mobilization of Italy, which was ordered a few weeks ago, is nowhere near complete. A number of divisions which fought last year on the Russian front have returned to the homeland and are forming the backbone of the Italian defense army. Their number is estimated at between 7 and 12 divisions. Nazi Troops Rushed to Italy.

The reported German plan to let the Italians shift for themselves in the south and concentrate a strong defensive force along the Po River and in the Alps appears to have been changed. The Nazi high command, answering Mussolini's call for immediate help, is now rushing troops and airplanes as fast as it can, and, according to reliable observers, these troops are being sent to the south to bolster the resistance of the Italian Army.

There are even indications that 88 forces which had been pulled out of Sicily after the collapse of Axis resistance in Tunisia have been sent back and have taken battle position at strategic points on that island. The arrival of fresh German troops in large numbers in Italy is interpreted in military quarters to mean that Hitler will accept battle on Italian soil should the Allies wish to make Italy their From the Nazi point of view, it has a three-fold advantage: They expect the Italian-German troops to offer stiff resistance to the Allies and possibly discourage them from pushing farther than the fortified Mediterranean islands; it will hold the Italian people who are more war weary than in the past, and will prove to the European people who are beginning to lose confidence in Nazi invincibility that Axis forces are to be found everywhere. According to competent observers, the dispatch of an indefinite number of divisions to Italy has not weakened the Nazi forces in Russia.

The Germans have almost completed their last total mobilization which has yielded more than 300 divisions. This gives them about 100 divisions to use in any section of the European fortress which we may attempt to attack this year. The communications system is such that they can be transported to the danger spots in as quick time as we can concentrate our forces

Plane Factories Retooled.

The Allies have a tremendous air superiority over the Nazis in the Mediterranean and in Western Europe. But the Nazi factories, which ceased work last September to be retooled for manufacture of new, speedy day and night fighters, started producing planes in large numbers last April. The production from a number of factories spread over Germany and Nazi-occupied territories is sufficient to make our air raids more costly than in the past. Military observers in London have noticed a much-increased air resistance in Western Europe since the middle of May and that resistance is now noticeable also in the Mediterranean. Our job in the Mediterranean is, of course, easier since the short distances which separate Anglo-American bases in North Africa from objectives in Sicily and Southern Italy make it possible for our fighter planes to accompany the heavy bombers.

Yet in spite of this distinct advantage, Allied airmen have encountered increasing opposition recently over Sicily and the Italian boot. The number of Axis fighters has substantially increased and it is believed it will increase further in the near fu-Of course, the Allied high com-

McLemore-

Can't Understand Potato Shortage

By HENRY McLEMORE. LONDON,-At the risk of breaking a military secret, I must tell you that Americans are arriving in England pretty frequently nowadays. I am not subverand even if I were, the censors would call me up and say. "You subversive little agent, you, you quit writing that sort of stuff or we will come down there and make you eat those words

McLemore. for a week."

These newly-arrived Americans bring the strangest tale I have ever heard since I took a course in Sax Rohmer at Harvard. They tell me, with the complete frankness that the world has learned to accept as a part of Americans, that there is a shortage of potatoes, or, as the French say, a potato shortage, in the United States of America. I don't believe it. If there is any shortage of Irish potatoes, as you call them in the South, or white potatoes as they call them in the East, then leaselend should be turned over to Jimmy Durante or Laurel and Hardy or Olsen and Johnson. If the censors will let me tell you, these Liberty ships go back to America loaded with sand, water, gravel and almost anything that will give them weight enough to keep their propellers in the water. * * * *

There was a time when England sent tweeds and Scotch. They are not sending it any more, so in Heaven's name, why not send potatoes. There are so many potatoes in England that if this war goes on for three more years all Englishmen will have one eye, as has a potato, and will only be at their best when soaking wet with butter. I don't like to write another column about food. I must have written at least 10 on the subject since I came here, but when recent arrivals from the States tell me that they are having to use macaroni as a substitute for potatoes I am forced to take a whack at the subject. There are more potatoes in the British Isles than there are Canadian soldiers who have married English girls-which is saying quite * * * * But to get back to potatoes in England, you get potatoes with every single meal. It is the only vegetable that can pass Brussels sprouts with out saluting because of rank. You can get potato soup, potato canapes, potato bread, potato pastry, potato chips, imitation potato cutlets, imitation potato steak, imitation potato dessert, and, to top it off, when you leave, the English proprietor, in an endeavor to make an American feel at home, often says, 'Well, good night, Old Potato."

Three thousand miles away from home I wonder if "Old Potato" was said by Al Smith to Franklin D. Roosevelt or by Franklin D. Roosevelt to Al Smith. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Help give vital telephone calls THE RIGHT OF WAY

Maybe you've waited on a siding while a troop train, or fast freight loaded with munitions roared past. And you said, "Sure—that's right. We've got a war to win!"

Like the railroads, Long Distance telephone lines today are carrying a vastly increased load of wartime traffic ... and the congestion can't be relieved by adding equipment because the needed materials are going to the front.

You'll help give vital war calls the right of way if you'll remember these three things:

Make only really urgent Long Distance calls.

Especially avoid calling the congested centers busy with the war.

Be as brief as you can.

Gunder and Greg Disappoint the Customers

NEW YORK, June 21.-It wasn't surprising to see big batches of empty seats at Triborough Stadium. It had been announced in the newspapers that track fans wishing to view the widely heralded Gunder Haegg-Greg Rice race would be forced to leave the subway at One Hundred Twenty-fifth street and walk nearly a mile across the Triborough Bridge. A lot of prospective customers didn't care about walking a mile to see the world's fastest distance runners romp a little more than 3 miles.

On Saturday people, who viewed the National AAU championships, obtained bus transportation to the stadium from One Hundred Twentyfifth street only if they arrived early. At 2 o'clock Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's office issued an ultimatum cancelling bus trips to the stadium. Sunday morning's papers informed the public no buses would leave

Both the swift Swede and the stumpy stepper from Notre Dame had been doing so much hollering about their lack of condition for yesterday's 5,000-meter national championship that you got the idea it was the fatmen's race at the annual Sunday school picnic.

But, while Gunder the Wonder still was off form-as witness his 14:48.5 time for the 5,000 compared to his world record 13:58.2—he had a chance to run himself into some kind of workable shape in the New Hampshire hills since arriving in

It's a tough break, therefore, that he probably won't get another crack at the Scandinavian skimmer. It would be asking altogether too much | a rut. even for the AAU to want him to tackle Gunder again without getting into shape. And one of the officers of the Merchant Marine School said yesterday, after the race, that the little guy with the big chest would have no more time to train than he's had up to now. So hurryin' Haegg likely won't see any more of Greg in his July 2 start in Chicago or thereafter on his tour.

This isn't taking a thing away from the Swedish sizzler, even though the 19,000 (estimated by officials) fans did kick in up to $5 per copy to see a foot race at the AAU's party yesterday. The fact that it turned out to be a one-man show was no fault of his.

Top To Bottom, A. L. Race Seen Tightest Ever

Yanks' 3-Game Edge Over Nats Largest; N. L. Is Shuffled

Associated Press Sports Writer. This year's pennant race in the American League may become historic as the tightest from top to bottom that the major leagues ever have seen.

By JUDSON BAILEY,

With the season approximately one-third gone the standings should have thinned out like shoe customers after the No. 17 coupon expired. But instead, the eight clubs are separated by only eight games and six of them are bunched within 21/2. Startling shifts have been going on in the standings as a result. The Cleveland Indians, who were in seventh place before they started play Saturday, had soared into third at the close of competition yesterday The Boston Red Sox, who dragged along near the bottom for weeks, bounced blithely into the first division. The Chicago White Sox, who were third 10 days ago, dropped into a tie with the St. Louis Browns

Let peanut butter be the home front standby

It's time we realized the importance of peanut butter as a nutritious food, and not as a delicious snack food. Its flavor is only one of the things in favor of peanut butter. It is a protein food and that means that it can take the place of meat on the menu. It is a food high in energy value, the kind of food that gives that power needed for heavy work. As for minerals and vitamins, peanut butter scores high. It is particularly high in some of those all-important B vitamins.

Let it be your standby food when the menu needs building up in flavor and heartiness. Here are just a few of the many ways you can put peanut butter

ation of the new posts in the British Empire is expected in a few days. The present Turkish Ambassador to Vichcy, Behic Erkin, probably will be succeeded by Shefki Berkekes, now general secretary of the Turkish Foreign Office, it was learned. (A Thursday dispatch from Switzerland said Erkin had been recalled from Vichy because of Turkish anger over German Gestapo surveillance at the Turkish Embassy and Nazi restrictions on Erkin's use of diplomatic code messages. Quoting a Turkish diplomatic source, the dispatch said the envoy's recall was not considered a rupture in relations between Vichy and Ankara, but that it could lead to that.)

Other changes in Turkish foreign posts are projected, it was said. One of these is expected to be the withdrawal of the Ambassador to Russia, Cevat Achikalin, who probably will held that office before his appointment to Russia last August.

The concert at the Water Gate last night practically turned into a James Melton recital. The genial tenor of the Metropolitan, soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra, was scheduled for two groups of numbers but the encores and his pleasant manner of making the more than 10,000 people present feel as if he were there to sing just the songs they wanted to hear, made his part of the program predominating. the War Department. The bill, which Army officials said would help them take the war to the homelands of Germany, Italy and Japan, was slated for consider-ation by the Senate Appropriations Committee Tuesday after today's House action.

Debate on the bill started Saturday, with members concurring in the Appropriations Committee's description of the amount as "frightful," but agreeing with its necessity to carry on global war.

Five other departmental appropriation bills were tied up because of differences between the Senate and the House, with deadlocks threatening to interfere with plans for a congressional recess early next

Tied up in conference over House action abolishing the Farm Security Administration was the regular Agriculture Department supply bill for the 12 months starting July 1. 160 Blood Donors Sought June 30 in Alexandria

The National Red Cross request that blood donations be doubled. means 160 donors will be needed during the visit of the mobile unit to Alexandria June 30.

Mrs. Thomas G. Reamy, chairman of the blood donor unit, is urging residents to make appointments to donate blood on that day. Many Alexandria donors have returned several times, but new donors will have to be found to meet the increased demand.

Mrs. Reamy said that to date 40 per cent of the donors have been industrial employes, notably the personnel of the Naval Torpedo Station; 40 per cent have been housewives, and 20 per cent professional workers.

The chairman emphasized that blood type is of no importance, since only the plasma is used, and urged volunteers to call the Red Cross chapter, Alexandria 5259, for appointments for June 30.

BEFORE YOU GET A LOAN Ask yourself this question

THIS is a time to avoid borrowing if you can. So before you get a loan, ask yourself this question. Is a loan the best answer to my problem? If it is not, solve your money problem some other way

Sometimes a family can avoid borrowing simply by spending less. Before you borrow, go over your budget item by item. Strike off the things you don't really need. See whether you can't squeeze through without going into debt. If you must get a loan, don't borrow more than you really need-and make every effort to pay it back as quickly as possible.

Sometimes a loan can help It often happens that a loan, repayable in monthly instalments, can help a family to work its way out of debt. The loan is used to pay up accumulated bills so that the family can put this way all the family's expenses can readily be paid out of current income. It becomes easier for the family to save something out of each pay check.

How loans are made

Borrowers who will use their loans constructively can get $50 to $300 at Household Finance. Loans are made on furniture, cars or without security. We never take wage assignments or require endorsers. Borrowers repay in regular monthly instalments. They may repay in advance at any time to reduce the cost. CHAPTER XXII.

I remember, especially, Capt. Arthur Wermuth of the 57th Filipino Scouts and Corpl. "Jock" Yacob, alive and well. You said they were who was Wermuth's partner. Wer- having a tough time of it, but were muth was already a legend among cheery about the whole thing. our forces by the time in early during those mopping-up operations against the Japanese land- But you'll never know how much before, in similar fighting, he had the whole town a shot in the arm been shot through the chest, the bullet just missing his lung and coming out through his back. Jock had been shot at the same time, but the 6-foot-2-inch corporal had put Wermuth on his back and carried him out of range of the Jap machine

Wermuth was tough and competent, a veteran of life outdoors. All his life he had spurned conventions and looked for adventure. Many times his dislike of stifling forms and customs had got him into trouble, but now, in war, he had come into his own. I had difficulty getting him to tell me his story, but when he finally did, checking his diary as he went along and occasionally calling over one of his scouts to refresh his memory, I remarked, "Art, I'm going to call you our 'one-man army!'

The scouts had followed Wermuth on a score of epic feats of reconnaissance: the burning of Samal; an anti-sniper "suicide" detail in which the scouts cleaned out - 300 Japs who had infiltrated our lines and tied themselves in trees; a scouting trip on which Wermuth alone killed 30 Japs with his tommy gun and the scouts killed 40 or 50 more; several daring patrols behind Jap lines where Wermuth captured prisoners and brought them back alive; an attack with hand grenades on a hidden Jap machine gun which had cut down three marines who went to the front lines with Wermuth in search of excite-

To the scouts, Wermuth was a symbol of American boldness and resourcefulness. He told them repeatedly, and he believed himself, that help was coming; help in sufficient quantities to turn the tide and enable them to drive the Japs from their homeland and return to the families which, of necessity. they had left behind in Manila or in their native villages, at the mercy of the Japs.

As we sat in the woods that night and talked. Wermuth told me: "You know, I've been lucky. Three wounds and still walking around. I wouldn't mind being killed, but the one thing I hate to think about is capture. If there is any way to avoid it I will never be taken prisoner as long as I can shoot."

Ten months later the name of Capt. Arthur Wermuth was on a list of prisoners published by the Japs. Apparently, when the end came in Bataan, he had nothing left with which to shoot. Every minute of imprisonment must be a lifetime of torture for him

Another fighter like Wermuth, another one-man army, was Lt. Roland G. Saulnier of New Bedford, Mass. Everybody along this sector of the western Bataan front knew "Lt. Frenchy." Frenchy's parents were French-Canadians and he spoke English like a character in a play on French-Canadians. When the war started he was a private in the Army at Manila, in charge of pigeons. In the early fighting in Bataan he suddenly found himself the only American with a battalion of Filipino troops and he took command. For a few days he was scared stiff, but then he discovered that he enjoyed fighting, had a talent for it. He nursed his Filipino youngsters along as a mother pigeon would her flock, slapping them on the back, running to help in re-sponse to their frantic cries of Those damn' Japs are attacking!" He stopped the Japs cold along this sector of the front. fighting with machine guns, hand grenades, pistol, rifle and bayonet. And Frenchy, too, assured his young Filipinos that help was on the way. There were the boys of New Mexico's 200th, whom I met the second night of the war and whom

I visited on Bataan whenever possible to swap yarns and stories of our experiences. They quickly changed from green youngsters to experienced, resourceful antiaircraft experts. Their physical appearance also changed shockingly, from the husky, healthy youngsters of Manila to thin, sickly men with deep-lined faces. Just before I left Bataan I went over to see Sergt. Joe Smith and the Davis brothers and the other boys of Battery F. I wrote a story about them and months later, through an editorial in their home town paper, I learned that to many people in the United States, also, the Battle of Bataan was not remote but highly intimate and personal.

The editorial in the Carlsbad Current-Argus, written by Managing Editor Kenneth L. Dixon and entitled "Letter to Lee," said in part

"Detroit in 1836"... Original painting in Detroit Institute of Arts.

The City that put the World on Wheels is now the Arsenal of Democracy

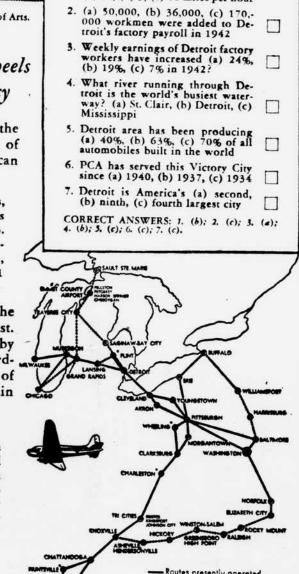

"F.O.B. DETROIT," a phrase that is known the world over today, means the point of origin of more war production than any other American city-20 million dollars' worth every day!

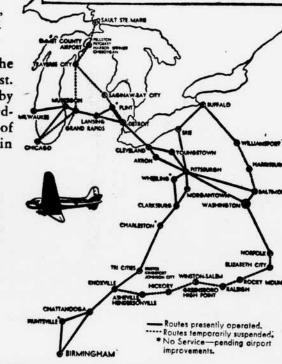

Its automotive industry is making more tanks, planes, guns and motorized equipment for United Nations Armed Forces than was dreamed possible a year ago. It's doing this because it has mass-production "knowhow." Between January and December, 1942 alone, deliveries of war materials jumped from 173 to 591 million dollars' worth!

Detroit has a heart, too! It led the nation in the speed with which it raised funds for its War Chest. It recently exceeded a national charity quota by more than half a million. This hard-hitting, hardworking, never-say-die city is a Victory City of which all America is proud. America is plain lucky to have it! PCA salutes Detroit!

By shortening the distances and minutes between America's Victory Cities, Pennsylvania-Central Airlines proudly serves the daily transportation needs of those whose efforts are so essential to the winning of the war-just as it has faithfully served America's peacetime civilian needs for sixteen consecutive years.

Land of Make-Believe

Counteract the Children's Constant Awareness of War By Giving Them Moments of Relaxation and Quiet

There is very little that most | mothers can do directly about the every waking hour.

Sit by an open window for an hour and listen in on the play of the 3-to-6-year-olds outside. You will probably feel that what you know about war is mild in comparison to the blood-curdling wails of the wounded, the rushing to the rescue of the Red Cross nurses, the sneaking up of the snipers and the wild yells of the Commandos. There will be little doubt in your mind that children learn a lot about war in spite of the fact that parents try to keep the tragedies of battle put in a long seige trying to calm his own. Do what you can to quiet

First thought on watching this play is that it makes a wonderful game which keeps the children enthralled for hours. Appreciation of the attention to detail, the dramatic quality and the histrionic ability displayed by such little children is the second point of amazement. It is not until after several hours of this pageant that one begins to realize that these little ones are By Dorothy Dix getting almost as tired, mentally and physically, as their big brothers who are waging a real war.

Children have played war ever since history began. Children of every country have fashioned with their hands and a jacknife a gun or a bow and arrow, or imagined one out of any old stick they could find. They have waged great battles and planned remarkable maneuvers. History does not relate what effect this had on the youngsters. But today they not only imagine war, they have it poured on them every waking hour. Though they understand that their own games are make-believe, they are just as over, something that takes the bubsure that the ones described on the bles off our glass of champagne. radio, in the movies, in the magazines and papers are the real thing. For Scalp Care In Summer

By Patricia Lindsay

Quite unwittingly many women let their hair be robbed of much beauty during the summertime-and the beauty cannot be completely regained in autumn through reconditioning treatment.

Far better logic is it to care for your head sensibly during the summer months, and then you can go hatless if you wish, without fear of harming your hair.

Direct sunshine does dry the hair and fade it. So the hair ends should be constantly anointed with a little pomade or hair dressing. This is applied sparingly by rubbing a speck over your hair brush and lightly brushing your hair. Appli-cation every other day is sufficient to keep the ends protected and looking glossy and curlier, to boot. Dry hair usually is rooted in a dry scalp, so that indicates that a tonic, not too oily, is needed to keep the scalp lubricated. A little experimenting with tonics which are mixed especially for a dry scalp and hair, will convince you which brand is better, and how much of it you need to use to keep your hair soft but not sticky.

From Betsy Caswell's Cook Book To Cook Fresh Salmon

(Or Other Fish)

(A wonderful help in wartime. Cook your own salmon for salads, casserole dishes, salmon loaves and all purposes for which you formerly used canned salmon.)

Purchase fresh salmon by the pound. It is best in a piece rather than in slices. Place in a kettle enough water to cover the fish. Add one tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice, 1 small onion, sliced; 1/2 cup celery leaves (if on hand) and 1 teaspoon salt. When the water boils, put in fish. Reduce heat and simmer until tender (about 12 minutes to the pound). Do not let the water boil. Drain and serve hot with lemon slices dipped in chopped parsley, and with tartar sauce. Or serve hot with cream sauce containing fresh green peas or with plenty of melted butter.

If the fish is to be used cold for salads or cold platters, drain and let cool covered with a cloth. Remove skin. Excellent cold or used in salmon loaf, cutlets or other dishes in which canned salmon was formerly used. If served cold alone, serve mayonnaise tinted green to which chopped cucumber has been added.

The above is just one of the many practical and tempting suggestions to be found in Betsy Caswell's Wartime Canning and Cooking Book. Many others, equally good, as well as directions for canning and preserving and suggestions for lunch box meals are to be found within its 64 pages.

IT LOOMS LARGER NOW

This loom, and thousands like it, is more important today than ever.

They used to spin fine fabrics for your MISS SWANE slips. But now they loom larger in the war plans of our country. For they produce cloth for the sinews of war, for the equipment of fighting men.

This leaves considerably fewer looms to spin the rayon for the MISS SWANK SLIPS you love so much for their "anti-wriggle" Straight-Plus-Bias construction.

So, if you can't get the MISS SWANK SLIP you want, remember the loom that's working for war. And try your store again the next week.

In the meantime, thanks for being patient with your store-and with us. RAYON SATIN

Indians of Mexico and elsewhere are noted for their custom of carrying loads on their heads, but many Latin American natives follow a different plan. They carry baskets on their shoulders, holding the baskets in place with a broad band which passes around the forehead.

Let us go, for example, to the little Central American republic of Gautemala. There we find hundreds of Indians carrying loads in this manner. They practice from childhood, taking more and more weight as the years go on. They like to carry heavy loads to prove their strength.

What do we find in the baskets? All manner of things. Water bottles, striped blankets and several kinds of fruit are common parts of a load. Some of the carriers transport water from place to place, selling it at doorways, much as a milkman here takes milk from house to house. If a person did not practice in advance, he would have a hard time become expert at the task because
