Fourth-Term Assertions. The whirlwind enactment of the bill over Mr. Roosevelt's veto prompted Republican assertions that there would be no fourth term and countercontentions that the action should not be considered a reflection criticism from members of his own party, with Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia asserting that the action was laden with politics.

On the other hand, Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, who voted to override the veto, said he believed Congress' action expressed only a bi-partisan determination to prevent further strikes in war industries such as the coal walkouts.

Eddie, named for a former squadron commander, fills the role by crying excitedly about 7 every morning, when he thinks he has gone long enough without his sugar. He had his first fighter ride over the field the other day and seemed to consider it quite a routine affair. He had been conditioned to it by a rougher and more perilous ride in a jeep, at which he protested vo-

WLB Still Is Believed Powerless to Force Lewis' Contract

Strike Law Raises Scores Of Questions; Labor Sees Act as 'Unrealistic'

The War Labor Board was vested with new powers today under the anti-strike law, but none, apparently, that would force John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to comply with its order to sign a contract with the operators or otherwise terminate the coal

The WLB, it appeared, will continue to rely on presidential author-The number of strikes beginning ity to enforce its orders on recalcitrant parties.

The act, passed over presidential veto, authorizes the board to subpoena witnesses, but Mr. Lewis could answer a summons without signing a contract and the board would remain powerless to deal with him.

Out of Board's Hands. Besides, said one authoritative source, the coal case is out of the board's hands. The WLB decided all issues, and it is up to the executive arm to make Mr. Lewis comply. Members called on War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes yesterday to urge just that.

The act raised scores of questions which WLB officials were unprepared to answer officially. It created a tremendous legal and administrative job for the War Labor Board, the National Labor Relations Board and the Justice Department. The general tenor of opinion in labor circles was that the act is unrealistic and cannot cope with spontaneous, "wildcat" walkouts. The impulse was to have every union, immediately on opening negotiations with an employer, give notice to the Government of a threat to war production and thereby obtain a strike vote in 30 days. The NLRB, charged vide machinery to cope with a widespread campaign of that nature.

Withdrawals Possible. Another immediate impulse in labor circles was to quit the War La-Board. The cooler heads thought that was the least likely development, though the act itself raised a question whether the labor members of the WLB could participate in certain cases. The bill disbars members from participating in any decision "in which such member has a direct interest as an officer, employe or representative of either party to the dispute.' This might create a situation where AFL members could participate only where a CIO union was involved and vice versa. However, the board may interpret it to mean that a board member who also is a member of the Electrical Workers' Union, for instance, could not participate in a case involving the Electrical Workers' Union. participate in a case affecting any other union whether it is an AFL or CIO affiliate. That is the cur-

There was some conwere in Pennsylvania, where about troversy whether this would apply to the soft coal mines because the section appears to pertain only to those plants or mines seized under where yesterday little more than authority of the Selective Service Act, as amended by the Connally-Smith-Harness Act. The question is under what authority the President took possession of the Mines

May 1. The act provides stiff criminal penalties for persons responsible for an interruption of production in a plant or mine taken over by the Government. The problem that raises, in the coal case, for instance, is one of proof against top officers of the union. A stoppage of work does not necessarily make union leaders liable. The act specifically says that the War Labor Board because it re- an individual has the right not to work. He violates the act only when he coerces, instigates, induces, conspires with or encourages another person to interfere with production. If the miners walk out on October 31—the deadline set by the UMW Policy Committee - prosecution of the committee members could be attempted. But UMW leaders contend they are not responsible for the current stoppages and have, in fact, ordered the men back to work. Another issue raised by the law is the scope of the WLB's authority. The act confers authority to rule in a labor dispute which may lead to "substantial interference" with the war effort. Montgomery Ward & Co. and other employers not directly producing war materials have questioned the WLB's authority in the past to rule in cases involving days to return and many others are them. The language of the act may to meet tomorrow. Most of them are give them grounds to go into court

Some members of Congress who supported the bill have contended too, that it would prohibit the board from ordering maintenance of union membership clauses in labor contracts. Gen. Johnson Believes 75 Pct. of 'Missing' Bomber Crews Alive

Men Are Expert 'Chutists, Says Air Force Leader; Denies Losses Too High

By NELSON SHEPARD.

At least 75 per cent of the crews of heavy American bombers reported "missing" after daily raids over Germany and occupied Europe are alive, Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson, commanding general of the 2d Air Force, estimated today at a press

Gen. Johnson based his figures on the opinion of combat airmen returned from the European front to

Because Europe is " the toughest air front" in the whole global war, Gen. Johnson said that all heavy bomber crews in this country are being trained for European combat which fits them for any other front. Gen. Johnson was asked if the increasing losses of our four-engined bombers over Europe were beyond calculated expectations "No," he said, emphatically. "The percentage of our losses is not too high or beyond our expectations. Of course, with larger numbers of bombers going over individual losses will be greater. But if we stay under an over-all loss of 10 per cent we can take it in stride," he said.

Gen. Johnson verified that recent reports on some of our losses on missions over occupied areas were 6 per cent, but he indicated that was a safe margin. Praising the morale and the high crews, Gen. Johnson said it may be presumed that 50 per cent of the crews reported "missing" after raids are prisoners of war. Experienced 'Chutists.

"These are all very experienced men flying at altitudes of about 25,000 feet and they can parachute to safety," he said.

Gen. Johnson explained that the large numbers of bombers shot down by the enemy was due to the fact the Germans are our most efficient air enemy. "In these raids the Germans are concentrating against us everything they have in the way of fighter planes," he explained.

More than 1,000 "war weary" veterans from every heavy bombardment front overseas have been returned to this country to serve as supervising instructors in the training schools of the 2d Air Force, Gen. Johnson said. More than 50 per cent of all supervisors have had varied battle experience.

The 2d Air Force is one of four similar commands in this country, all of which are utilizing the experiences of overseas aviation veterans to train men here as bomber and

Some London speculation, based on a study of the aerial onslaught and the stabilized Russian front, was that Mediterranean island outposts are on the 1943 Allied invasion program with an invasion leading to Berlin from the west unlikely until later.

German guesses on the invasion, meanwhile, ranged all the way to Norway, where a German admiral was reported to have told Nazi marines in a speech at Trondheim that the Allies would invade Norway "within a short time."

Texas Oil Chief Raps PAW for Refusal to Permit Bigger Output

Reports Industry Denied Full Use of Facilities To Help Eastern Area

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., June 26.—Beauford H. Jester, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil industry in that State, told a House Naval Affairs Subcommittee yesterday "if the East Coast is cold for lack of petroleum products this winter, the Federal Government alone will be responsible."

Although empty crude oil storage in the State exceeds 130,000,000 barrels, the Petroleum Administration for War has refused to permit adequate production to fill part of all of available storage as a reserve against future demands, Mr. Jester declared.

"Texas has the oil if the Federal Government will let us produce it and will provide transportation facilities to the East," he told the subcommittee investigating the Nation's crude production and supply pro-

Mr. Jester recommended that the Federal Government begin immediate construction of two additional pipelines from West Texas to California and to the Middle West.

Texas' largest crude reserve area in the Permian basin "should have an additional pipeline to the West Coast in California and still another pipeline to the Midwest area with Minneapolis or Chicago as a terminal," Mr Jester said.

He said Texas' daily output of petroleum projects can be increased by 250,000 to 350,000 barrels. The Railroad Commission last spring urged the Petroleum Administration for War to increase the flow of oil to the Eastern Seaboard, Mr. Jester told the subcommittee, "but it was September before that body realized the critical situation." Mr. Jester's testimony followed a recommendation by Representative Bates, Republican, of Massachusetts, subcommittee member, that a second "big inch" pipeline from Texas oil fields to the East should be built to meet offshore war demands and essential civilian requirements for petroleum products.

From major company and independent operators, the subcommittee received testimony urging an immediate crude oil price increase of from 50 cents to $1 a barrel, and relaxation of priorities on materials.

1,300,000 Barrels of Oil Pour Into East Daily

PITTSBURGH. June 26 (A).—"For two successive weeks, overland transportation has delivered well over 1,300,000 barrels of oil a day to the Eastern Seaboard area," declared Fayette B. Dow, petroleum director for the Office of Defense Transportation, here last night.

Mr. Dow was here for an off-therecord address at a banquet concluding the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association. After the dinner he made a statement on the oil transportation situation.

"Of this 1,300,000 barrels," he continued, "more than 960,000 barrels has been delivered by tank cars.

"This was in a period when the railroads had not yet fully recovered from the disastrous floods in the Central and Southwestern States and it is a reasonable expectation that tank cars will attain and hold the 1,000,000-barrel mark.

"New barge facilities under the ODT's barge-building program are now being put into service and while not all of these deliver oil directly into district 1 they do bring oil into areas from which it can be shipped by tank car with reduced turn-

"In that way they will indirectly increase the total deliveries into the Eastern Seaboard area.

"Last year an average of 56,000 barrels a day was delivered into Buffalo via the Great Lakes. PAW and ODT are now working on a program under which it is hoped that these deliveries can be increased to 90,000 barrels a day. A small part of that oil will be consumed locally, in Buffalo but at least 80,000 barrels, if these plans can be carried out, will be moved eastward by pipeline and barge"

A Worth-While Program

The extensive summer recreational program that went into high gear with the close of public schools furnishes additional proof of the value of a unified recreation system in the District. Under an act signed last year by the President, recreational properties formerly handled by the Board of Education, the Commissioners and the Office of National Capital Parks now are functioning under a single department, guided by a board of citizens and Government representatives.

Faced with the tremendously difficult task of providing recreation for the swollen-wartime population of Washington, members of the board and Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of recreation, are to be commended for the program they have put into effect. They have been faced with priorities, limited personnel and budgetary headaches, with everybody else. But the activities of the department have been expanded to some extent this summer and will be expanded still further in the near future, with completion of fourteen new projects made available by Lanham Act funds. The number of day camps has been increased from three to six. The report of the department that it has been swamped with applications for the camps from families in all sections of the city is a pretty good indication of how badly they were needed.

The department also has arranged, as much as it can do so, to keep certain recreational units open until dusk, instead of closing at 5 p.m., and to keep the larger centers open on Saturday and Sunday afternoon. In its city-wide division it has arranged at community centers for such activities as badminton, archery, choral groups, orchestras, dancing, games and drama groups. It has granted thousands of permits for the use of its tennis courts and fireplaces for picnics.

Despite the excellent progress which the board and the department staff have made, however, the city has still a long way to go in providing adequate facilities to the public. The city has nine public pools, of which only three are operated entirely by the department and none of which is open on Sunday-a day which can be just as hot as any other. Similarly, only three of the fourteen wading pools for young children at playgrounds are open on Sunday, and many of them are open only four hours a day during the week. They are not kept open now because of unavailability of personnel.

The Recreation Board has approved a six-year postwar recreation improvement and development program submitted to it by Mr. Christiansen, calling for the ultimate expenditure of more than $15,000,000. It is designed to make up for years of "accumulated neglect" and should rank high on any list of needed improvements.

Labor Ultimatum

In serving notice on Congress that organized labor will "demand" the scrapping of the hold-the-line program and the Little Steel formula unless an effective rollback and subsidy program is operating by July 15, CIO President Philip Murray, in effect, has delivered an ultimatum to the legislators.

The wisdom of this attitude is dubious to say the least. Perhaps there was a time when a labor leader could go before Congress and demand one thing or another with reasonable assurance of getting it. But that time has passed. Throughout the country there is a rising resentment against pressure-group demands, and this sentiment is plainly reflected in Congress. As of today the legislators are in no mood to submit to "demands" from Mr. Murray, and, as a matter of fact, he prejudices his case by taking this approach. But a more important objection to the position taken by the head of the CIO goes deeper than any question of legislative sensibilities. The clamor for a price rollback, supported by subsidies, is based on the contention, explicit or implied, that organized labor cannot keep abreast of price advances without breaking through the Little Steel formula. On the record, this is not a fact.

Figures compiled by the Government establish beyond dispute that the average increase in wage rates has kept pace with or exceeded the rise in living costs. And if the actual weekly earnings of workers, as distinguished from rates of pay, be considered, the increase in earnings is ganized labor, for it is in this cate- | That is a fine compliment, because | a black umbrella.

gory that earning power has risen

In the case of such groups as unorganized white collar workers and persons living on fixed incomes, the pressure of rising living costs is becoming extremely burdensome, and their case for relief stands on an entirely different basis than that of the organized groups for which Mr. Murray is a spokesman. So far as purchasing power is concerned, those in this latter category have improved their relative position since this country went to war. On the basis of the facts, rather than generalities, they have no valid reason to demand anything. Perhaps that is why the facts are so seldom permitted to intrude themselves into the picture.

Overriding a Veto

The prompt and decisive votes in the Senate and the House to override the President's veto of the antistrike bill are indicative of a deep and significant change in the temper of the American people and their elected representatives. This Nation is fighting for its life, and as the President has said on at least two occasions, the people know it. In such a time of national crisis there can be no toleration of labor tactics which defy the authority of Government, nor of governmental policy which seems to condone defiance. And the votes in Congress vesterday serve clear notice that this is the mood of the country.

It is to be hoped that those men who are responsible for shaping labor policy will not blind themselves to the real meaning of what has taken place. Over their extreme protests and the opposition of the President. the Connally-Smith bill has become law. It is not the best bill that might have been passed. But it is law, and it is going to be enforced. There has been some talk by some labor leaders to the effect that the law would not be obeyed unless and until it is finally sustained in the Supreme Court. To adopt such an attitude would be a grievous mistake, and would almost certainly lead to enactment of far more drastic legislation. If it is desired to avoid consequences harmful to the country and disastrous to organized labor, every effort will be made to comply with the statute. As has been said, it is not the best law that might have been adopted, but in its essentials it is aimed only at that minority which refuses to respect the no-strike pledge and which obviously cannot be controlled by the national labor leaders. If these leaders read the plain handwriting that is on the wall, they will welcome the support to be derived from this bill in what for them is a most critical period.

The action of Congress also has been interpreted as a protest against the President's labor policies, and | Christendom. Since 1929, the Papacy there can be no doubt that this had has been recognized by the Italian much to do with the overriding of his veto. The veto message, for the most part, was on a constructive plane. Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged that the bill has the "entirely praiseworthy purpose to insure full war production." He also said that he was in sympathy with the first seven sections. That includes Section 6, relative to strikes in Governmentowned or operated plants, to which labor had taken most vigorous exception. Mr. Roosevelt's fundamental objection ran only to Section 8, under which no strike may be called in a private plant until there has been a thirty-day cooling off period and a secret strike ballot. A similar provision in the Railway Labor Act has worked well, but if experience demonstrates that the President is right in his belief that the section will encourage rather than prevent strikes. the remedy of amendment is always open. Certainly, all things considered. Section 8 does not appear to represent a fatal weakness in the law.

There is one more point raised by the President's message that is worthy of notice. Expressing his own opposition to strikes in time of war, he emphasized that he intends to "use the powers of Government to prevent the interruption of war production by strikes." Perhaps the President feels he has made full use of his powers in this respect. But the Congress and the people do not share this view. At the very time the President made this statement, approximately half of the country's coal miners were engaged in an unauthorized strike, and in no real sense were the powers of Government being used against them. And this has been true all along the line. In one war plant after another, day after day, strikes have disrupted production, and in no instance has the Government made any effective use of its powers to prevent the strikes or penalize the strikers.

It may very well be, as the President so often says, that the effect of these strikes on war production is small when balanced against the total time worked. But their effect on the state of mind of the people has been exceedingly bad, and neither the President nor the labor leaders seem to have grasped this fact. Properly interpreted, the vote to nullify the veto is a clear reflection of the public resentment of strikes and the administration's handling of them. We will get along with the conduct of the war in better style if both the President and labor accept this as true.

Gentleman of the Press

In announcing the resignation of N. R. Howard, assistant director in charge of the press division. Director of Censorship Byron Price pays him the extraordinarily fine compliment of giving him credit, "more than any other one individual," "for the sucfar in excess of the increase in living | cessful operation of voluntary press costs. This is especially true of or- | censorship during the past year."

voluntary press censorship has worked so well. And another tribute, recognized by all of his friends, is that instead of going back to his work as editor of the Cleveland News afraid to look his fellows in the eye after a year of censoring their news, Mr. Howard leaves Washington with their full respect and undiminished

affection. In these days of general abuse for the bureaucrats, some moral must lie in the phenomenor, which finds a bureau, charged with one of the most onerous of all wartime jobsthe business of keeping things out of the papers-functioning smoothly through the co-operation of those with whom it deals. That moral may be that a bureaucrat ceases to be a bureaucrat and becomes a public servant when he knows his job, respects the other man's point of view and sticks closely to his knitting. Every intelligent person recognizes the necessity for wartime censorship. But making it work is another thing, and Mr. Howard and his associates, who have centered their attention on the Nation's press, would not have got so far nor done so well but for the fact that their victims, the editors, acknowledged that the idea of censorship is basically as abhorrent to the censors as to the censored.

His brethren will rejoice with Mr. Howard in the fact that while there was never any doubt as to his firmness as a censor, no one ever thought of him as a bureaucrat.

Will Rome Be Bombed?

The much-mooted question of Rome as a potential air-raid target is again to the fore. The Allied air campaign against Italy is being daily stepped up to new intensity, and its people have been warned that military objectives throughout the country may expect visitations from British and American bomber squadrons. From a strictly military viewpoint, Rome, the capital of Italy, is an important objective. Industrially it is not to be compared with the cities of the north, but as the administrative seat of a highly centralized state, the disruptive effects of intensive aerial bombardment would do much to weaken Italy's war effort, while the psychological effects on popular morale would be still greater. Ever since Italy's entry into the war, the bombing of Rome has been strongly advocated in Britain, but such a move has been opposed with equal intensity. Though the debate has not as yet become so vocal in America, a similar division of opinion undoubtedly exists here.

The primary objection is religious. Rome is not merely the capital of Italy, it is also the heart of Catholic government as sovereign over the domain known as Vatican City, a tract of land with an area of 108.7 acres. Similar recognition has been accorded by a considerable number of states in Europe and Latin America, and diplomatic relations are maintained between them and the Holy See. Vatican City has thereby acquired, to a considerable part of the world, the status of a sovereign entity bound to perpetual neutrality. A large-scale aerial bombardment of Rome would involve the likelihood of damage to Vatican City or to the buildings which, though outside its confines, are considered part of the Papal domain and enjoy extra-territorial rights.

This legal aspect is of course transcended by the fact that the entire city of Rome is dotted with religious and antiquarian treasures whose destruction would be deplored throughout the world. The psychological reaction to such losses would be unfortunate from a purely practical standpoint. Yet a blanket immunity of Rome from aerial attack would tend to rouse resentment among the United Nations.

These arguments, pro and con, have been carefully weighed by high officials of the Royal Air Force, who have come to the conclusion that Rome is no more entitled to exemption from bombing than any other city containing military objectives which happen to be situated near religious or historical monuments likely to be damaged. However, this does not mean that the RAF has determined on bombing Rome, and its spokesman has suggested that the Italian capital be declared an open city by the Fascist government. This would mean not only the dismantling of defenses and withdrawal of troops but the transfer of the government and administration to some other place. The spokesman for the RAF has intimated that Allied observers should be permitted to enter Rome in order to make sure that the conditions had been complied with. Such a concession by the Italian government would be unlikely unless Italy were on the verge of collapse.

The status of Rome in relation to aerial bombardment thus remains undetermined. Certainly there is nothing in the record of any of the Axis powers regarding "open cities" which should entitle the capital of Fascism to special consideration. If the Eternal City is spared the devastation which has so frightfully visited Warsaw, Rotterdam, London, Manila and many others, it will be due to Allied reluctance to undertake so tragic a task. Pressure on Germans Constantly Increasing

Major Eliot Illustrates Nazi Problem of Defense Against Allied Attack

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

In recent articles I have frequently spoken of the difficult and even desperate character of the decisions which this year confront the German high command.

The basic fact underlying these conditions is that German fighting power is no longer increasing. The accumulated reserves of 1939 have been used up. The loot of conquered countries has been used up, and further conquest is impossible to Germany. The steady and inexorable pressure of blockade in all its forms is having its effect. When a German division is destroyed, it cannot be replaced. When a supply dump of a German Army corps is captured, it is a net loss. When a German factory is wiped out by bombing, it is a permanent substraction from Germany's productive resources.

The United Nations, on the other hand, still have available very great reserves of manpower and raw materials, and are overcoming the difficulties of transporting those reserves to the European-African theater of war. Under these conditions, the pressure around the perimeter of Germany's vast European "fortress" is bound to increase. It is bound to grow greater than the defensive pressure from within.

To illustrate the German position, take a sheet of paper and draw a circle 111/2 inches in diameter. The circumference of that circle will be approximately 35 inches. If you consider each 5 inches of circumference as representing 1,000 miles, you can then imagine the circle to represent Germany's 7,000 miles of defensive perimeter around the continent

Inside this big circle, draw a smaller concentric circle 4 inches in diameter. and color it black with your pencil. Let the black circle represent Germany itself, the source of the manpower and the industrial output which defends the outer circle. Draw a number of radii from the center to the outer perimeterthese will represent lines by which the power of the black circle flows outward to defend the outer circle. They are the German lines of communication to positions all along the Russian front, the Mediterranean coast and the Atlantic coast.

Now imagine two mobile forces in the void beyond the outer circle. One of these forces, to the right of the circle, is slow-moving but of very great power. The other, to the left, moves much more rapidly but possesses somewhat less force. Both of these forces have complete freedom of action and can strike the outer circle at any point in their respective segments. The slow-moving force renresents the reserves of the Russian Army. The more rapidly moving force represents the amphibious power of the United States and Great Britain.

Now try to imagine what you do if you were in control of the German power inside the black circle and had the job of defending the outer circle against these two free-moving forces. Remember, the amount of strength you have inside the black circle is limited. If you lose any of it, you cannot replace it. Obviously, you must hold a great part of it in reserve until you know where the two free-moving forces are going to strike. If you made a bad guess, and put too much of it at one point on the outer circle, you will not be able to shift it to another and perhaps far distant point which may be the enemy's actual point of attack. If you distribute much of your power evenly along the outer perimeter, you risk having a piece bitten out by a sudden enemy attack and if this process continues, your power will be frittered away in distant battles, thus gradually stripping the center of its defenses. That is what has already happened to two German armies-at Stalingrad and in Tunisia. They were too far away from the center to be adequately supported, or to be withdrawn in time to save them.

I think that most of us, after considering this problem, would come to the conclusion that the outer circle should be reduced in size. To illustrate this, draw another circle about half way between your first big circle and the black inner circle. Compare the problem of defending this one with the problem of defending the original. Your defensive front is much shorter, which reduces the enemy's opportunities and your responsibilities. The lines of communication from the center to any part of the front are much shorter, which enables you to reinforce a threatened point more quickly, and reduces the amount of your resources which has to be expended in transportation. It is true that you have allowed the enemy to come closer to the vital center of your defensive area, but the very fact that you are on the defensive implies the necessity for strict economy of force, and it is better to make a stout defense of what is essential than it is to fritter away your strength in weak and distant attempts to defend the unessential.

All this works out beautifully on paper. The great difficulty is that a withdrawal which may be a military necessity is, in the psychological field, an acknowledgment of defeat. That is why German generals and German political leaders do not agree very well these

In Fairness to an Ally From the New Yorld Herald Tribune.

There is an immediately practical argument behind the movement for the repeal of the Chinese exclusion acts, those invidiously discriminatory laws which we still apply to our great Far Eastern Allies. They constitute one of the best remaining propaganda weapons in the hands of the Japanese, who ceaselessly use them to convince the Chinese that we look down upon them as inferiors and that they should place no faith in our lofty protestations; it is an effective weapon and the enemy should be deprived of it. But far more impressive is the less selfish argument of reason, fairness and common courtesy to the people who have so long sustained our battle. These laws, which prohibit Chinese from entering the United States and deny the possibility of acquiring citizenship to all those not born here, are as anachronistic as the extraterritorial treaty rights which effect.

"Minorities' Held Non-Existent In a Real Democracy.

Before war was declared in 1939, it will be remembered that Adolf Hitler made frequent use of the term "minority" in connection with alleged mistreatment of German nationals or those of German origin resident in territory the Nazi fuehrer then coveted and has since seized. Of late, our press has repeatedly been employing the term "minority" most frequently perhaps, in writing of Americans of Negro descent, but also in writing of other groups of our citizens, such as those of Chinese or Mexican ancestry, or, again, it may be those of Jewish faith.

In fact, so often has she read the word "minority" of late in our metropolitan dailies that this writer has come to ask herself just what or who, rather, constitute the American majority. Of course, the answer to that is the American people-the "one out of many" -the sum total of the loyal citizens, no matter what has been the country of origin of any one of them, of our democracy-our United States of America. Then, having supplied these answers to her own question, she has demanded to know just where-in such a democracy as ours-minorities come in. And her decision, after much careful thought, has been that, in a genuine democracy, there should be no "minorities" and that the use of such a term. applied to any selected group of American citizens, is not only erroneous, but unpatriotic, un-American, and the sort of designation that is pleasing to Axis ears. How better to divide a house against itself than for some of its citizens to refer to others as a "mi-

If the use of the term is, for example, acceptable when it is applied, as it is most frequently, to Americans of Negro origin, then we might properly speak of "the Syrian-American minority," "the German-American minority," French-American minority" and so on ad infinitum until we have these United States divided into innumerable small groups of citizens, exclusive of each other, the emphasis being placed on their differences and not on their solidarity-on their racial backgrounds, not on their American present and future. This writer happens to be of British, Scotch and "North River" Dutch ancestry, but she would resent being classed in "a minority of British-Scotch-North River-Dutch-Americans.'

So, if she chanced to be an American Negro, would she dislike being grouped in an "American Negro minority"? It seems to her that nothing could be more harmful to an American's self-esteem than to have another American insist that he or she must be classified as one of a "minority." The very word smacks of smallness-of dependence-of inferiority-of lack of maturity and, what is worse, of disunity. Our people are traditionally made up of many peoples. In that fact lies our great strength, both in the present and for the future. particularly for the future. If some of us are permitted to class others of us in a minority and if those so classed accept such a classification, the very roots of democracy will be threatened No one who is a reader of several newspapers, as this writer is, can have avoided noticing how much agitationbeen in the press lately for American reaucrats.

Negroes-"the Negro minority"-to be accorded full rights as American citizens. Much of this agitation, or, perhaps, one should say many of these pleas that have gotten into print are worthy pleas, thoroughly justifiable, made by responsible members of the Negro race, themselves the highest type of Americans, or by non-Negro Americans who have at heart the best interests of their fellow citizens. Such Americans have asked and are asking that the American Negro be given his fair share to do in our war effort and, having done that share, that he be accorded, when the war has been won by the United Nations, a better chance to prove himself an integral part of a majority of loyal, united, American citizens. In other words, in these critical times, it is being urged that the American Negro be given and helped toward the acceptance of more responsibilities of good citizenship because he has the splendid luck to be an American.

Then there are those out-and-out agitators in print who demand, accompanying such demands with all sorts of dire threats of racial wars to come, that the American Negro be given, with no further delay, "his rights." Nothing is ever said by such persons of the American Negro's responsibilities. That he is one of "an oppressed minority" is stressed over and over again. In fact, his minority status seems to be the very thing that entitles him to both privileges and even concessions because he has the misfortune to have been born in America. Actually, whatever minorities can truthfully be said to exist in this country are composed of just such misguided agitators as these who fill the columns of both the so-called white and the Negro press with their vitriolic comments and, too, of those unfortunates, both Negro and white, among us who deliberately flout law and order. It is such minorities that, in one way or another, intelligent Negro and white Americans hope in time to re-educate. But aside from those who ignorantly or, for Axis pay, inflame racial prejudice and those of any racial background who make crime their career, there are no minorities in these United States. We are one people-and he who does the American Negro a truly great service would begin by ceasing to speak of him as belonging to a minority group. The term simply does not apply to any good citizens of a democracy such as ours. Let's delete it, in that sense, from our national vocabulary.

Blow Dealt Prestige of Roosevelt

Veto Is Blamed On Stupidity of Left-Wing Advisers

By DAVID LAWRENCE. There is only one real basis for indignation today as a consequence of the overriding of President Roosevelt's veto by Congress. It is an indignation that should drive from Washington the smartaleck group of left-wingers who have misled and misinformed the President about the state of public opinion on the strike issue. There was no sound reason why in the midst

Such a vote with all its implications to the outside worldfor in parliamentary government it. would mean the ousting of the executive or else a general electionneed not have occurred.

The so-called group of advisers who keep the President from knowing the facts about what is happening in the country have done him a disservice and perhaps a disservice to the prestige of the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navv.

Whoever wrote that veto message for the President-for it seems incredible that he would write such an illogical and contradictory document himself-did more to break down the position of the President before Congress and the country than any political opponent ever has done or could do

Press Gave Warning.

Mr. Roosevelt was forewarned by the press, but he has developed a cynicism toward the press which warps his judgment. Still there must have been other advisers in his entourage who could read and analyze what has been happening since John L. Lewis began playing fast and loose with the prestige of governmental agencies.

There was only one way out-a law that would require Mr. Lewis to come before the War Labor Board and testify, a law that would prevent the encouragement or calling of strikes when the Government seized a property or plant. The country wanted such a law. The troops in our camps and our men overseas wanted such a law-they wanted auout fear of political consequences.

Men in Congress read newspapers. And, above all, they read letters from constituents-the mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters of the boys in our armed services. War is a serious business and politics has no place in it, or the wrath of the country will take its toll of Congressmen and Senators.

Weighty Disapproval.

Mr. Roosevelt, confident that he can do as he pleases without law, still nurturing the illusion that an executive order is a commandsomething Mr. Lewis challenged and proved to be fallacious-and still believing that Congress wouldn't override a veto on such a delicate subject as labor legislation, now has a bitter defeat on his record. It is the most vehement expression of dNapproval ever registered against the President since he came into office. It may even shake badly the confidence of his group of worshippers who up to now have taken for granted that a fourth term was inevitable and a walk-away.

Where the President made his mistake was, first, in listening to the labor lobby who asked him to veto the bill. Then he made his next mistake in the language of the message. After first reciting that labor had kept its no-strike pledge so that 99 and 95/100 per cent of the work went forward without strikes, he declared that "laws are often necessary to make a very small minority

But later on in his message, without any explanation whatsoever, the President turns about and says that some other innocently worded provision "would stimulate labor unrest | ing President Roosevelt's more than | strike agitations.'

But he evidently was told he could not afford politically to antagonize labor and that Congress would surely sustain a veto. His advisers guessed wrong, and Mr. Roosevelt is the victim of the stupidity of his own leftwing group of advisers. He should get rid of them all and get in tune with Congress and the country. He should forget politics and expediency-men are dying and homes are being saddened. This is no time for left-wing or right-wing.

Veto Makes Roosevelt Hero of Organized Labor, But May Alienate Large Segment of Voters

By GOULD LINCOLN. A wartime anti-strike law is finally on the statute books, notwithstanding a veto by President Roosevelt. For a couple of years Congress has been knocking at the door in support of such legislation. Every time. present, the off action. With the

until the administration has been able to stave country thor oughly aroused by the failure of the administration to control strikes in essential war industries, this time the torrent of sentiment swept aside administration opposition.

This always has been a country governed by law. The contention of members of Congress has been that the strike situation-with the country fighting for its lifeshould be controlled by law, rather than presidential directive. The tide of feeling rose in Congress when the coal miners went on strike, and the steel and other vital industries were hindered in their output.

Congress passed the Connally-Smith bill by overwhelming votes. The 56-to-25-vote in the Senate overriding the President veto was taken as soon as the veto message had been delivered. The House, too, declined to delay the issue and within an hour after the veto was brought before it, also acted. the vote was 244 to 108.

Substitute Lacks Support.

The suggestion by the President that as a substitute. Congress enact legislation making the military draft age 18 to 65, so that in plants taken over by the Government-as the coal mines have been taken-he could draft the workers into the military forces if they struck against the Government, did not meet with much favor on Capitol Hill. Under existing law, military draft for the younger coal miners already is Under the President's plan it would have been possible to take them of all ages-many, of course, being entirely unfit for actual military duty. Instead of being a "work or fight" proposition for these overage miners-it would have been a work for regular miners wages, or work for Army pay at $50 a month or go to the guardhouse.

Members of Congress did not oppose such a proposition because of sympathy for the miners on strike. Indeed, some of them expressed themselves forcibly to the effect that if a miner was unwilling to work in this crucial time of war and struck against the Government, the penalty of working for $50 a month was too light. But they did not believe that this was a proper way to meet such a strike. Nor did they like to do by indirection what they could do di-

Hero of Organized Labor.

President Roosevelt emerges from the situation as the hero of organized labor, whose unions demanded a veto of the anti-strike bill. It is true they would have protested vigorously the proposal of the President to draft workers into the Army-or to hold the threat of such draft over their heads. But it was pretty clear that Congress would have resisted such a plan, and the probabilities are that the President would not have exercised the power demanded, or have had an opportunity to exercise it.

It has been charged that the President was playing for the labor vote next year-and that he would not have signed the antistrike bill, or any other antistrike bill, which was opposed by the unions. Now he has the credit of having vetoed the bill-as labor desired-and he also has an antistrike law on the statute books, with whatever political effect it may have laid on the shoulders of Congress.

The thing cuts both ways, however. There are millions of voters in the country outside of organized labor. Many of these voters will resent the veto of the strike bill, and the President may lose ground with them

Farmer Boosts MacArthur.

A Western Nebraska farmer recently sent a check for $100 to Representative Curtis of his State. with a request that he pass it on to Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, to help bring about the nomination of Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur for President by the Republican National Convention next year.

In his letter of transmittal, the farmer said that he was struggling to pay his debts, but that he wanted to make this contribution in the hope that something could be done to oust the present administration in Washington. Unless there is a change, he said, there would be no chance of his ever paying his debts, and no chance for the country.

He was convinced, he said, that Gen. MacArthur was the man who could be elected over President Roosevelt if the latter is nominated for a fourth term. Because Senator Vandenberg has been outspoken in his advocacy of the nomination of Gen. Mac-Arthur for the presidential nomination, he urged that the check be given him.

Senator Vandenberg said today that he had returned the check to the farmer. He congratulated the farmer on his "constructive patriotism," but added that he had not been authorized by Gen. MacArthur, or any one acting for him, to accept or collect money for a campaign for MacArthur for President.

At the time, many members of Congress interpreted the order as an effort to head off the talk of MacArthur for President. Senator Vandenberg, in a speech in the Senate, said that if the order applied to Gen. MacArthur, then it also applied to President Roosevelt, commander in chief of the Army. He became commander in chief, he said, when he became President, and he did not hold the

They are like a grim, belated flowering of the kind of warfareby-hunch that we fought until last fall. They seem to indicate that some officials think we are ready to go, and others think we are not ready; that some are sold on bombings and others are not sold; that some think we can ship an invasion Sounding like a man who knows and that others have their doubts. The Moscow statements bring these questions up, for thy are the official thinking from us. The Russian complaint, plus these domestic indications of differences of conception among our officials

The spread of forces in North Africa and the Middle East is such that it is impossible for the Germans to determine whether we will attempt to invade the Mediterranean islands or Italy itself or the Albanian-Yugoslav coast, or whether we might attempt to go into the Balkans through Turkey.

Large forces appear to be concentrated on almost every point from which an invasion might start. The fact that important forces are on transports and invasion barges off Tunisia does not necessarily mean we will go to Sicily, Sardinia or Corsica.

These transports might be sent to any other points in the Mediterranean. Similarly, it is impossible for the enemy to determine where the much-improved armies stationed in Syria and Egypt might be sent.

McLemore-Panzer Boys

Scare Easily

By HENRY McLEMORE. LONDON.-This is a second-hand story from a first-class man. His name is John Jarvie and he is Scotch. For 32 years he has been motto always has been just one thing: "You can't miss if you go where there When I met him he was just seven hours off

Africa. He came in a convoyed ship, carrying, Henry McLemore. among other things, 2,000 German prisonersrather a select sort of prisoners, they being from the 10th and 15th Panzer Divisions. The 10th and 15th Panzer units were the flower of Rommel's army. They were the boys who shaved with Mausers, cut their hair with mortars and had "heil" elbow from throwing that salute. That was when they were on the sands of Africa and were in full charge. That's when they had supremacy in all phases of warfare. Ship Was Attacked.

Jarvie's story is what happened to the Germans when they were on the high seas as prisoners bound for England. All the way across the boat was attacked by German planes and German submarines and it faced the hidden danger of German

"I am no psychologist," Jarvie told me, "but if I have ever seen fear on men's faces, it was on the faces of those prisoners. We had women on board that boat. We had small children, refugees from Poland who had worked the long way back through Algiers. We had a long-haired BBC conductor and the loudest noise he had ever heard was the kettle drums in a Wagnerian overture. There were correspondents, wounded Grenadiers, Commandos and American technicians, but they concealed their fright, if any.

"I remember the first night out when the German bombers dropped flares and lighted up the whole convoy. The only people on board who got their wind up were the masterful Nordics in the hold."

I asked John Jarvie if there could be any explanation of this because he, like every other man who has seen the Germans fight, admits their toughness.

Bubble Burst.

"Yes," he said, with a burr that would make a chestnut green with envy, "I think their fright is based on the back-firing of propaganda. Before they were of military ag they had it drilled into them by Goebbels and his workers that the German military machine was inyincible. Up until the day they were forced to capitulate the German soldiers had every evidence that Goebbels was right. Then, all of a sudden, the bubble burst.

"But as they crossed the waters saboteurs who landed on American as prisoners the memory of the shores a year ago, by changing two lies they had been told still lin-$50 bills given him by Kerling, gered on They could not believe that any boat could escape the wrath of the Luftwaffe or the subs. With every turn of the ship's propellers they felt in their hearts that the enemy boat they were on would be sunk either from below or above.

"I watched them day after day as depth bombs went off, as bombers dropped their loads, and there was nothing but pure fright on their faces. They would sit and stare like inmates in a home for incurables.

"To me it was the greatest proof that you cannot beat into a man's mind the idea that he is invincible without risking a dangerous kickback. I am sure the Germans would have withstood more than they did in North Africa toward the end if they had not had it hammered into them that the Americans and British never could put them in a defensive position." Note to editors: Please send a copy of this to Der Angriff marked for the attention of Herr Goebbels.

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.) Jury Returns Verdict Of First-Degree Murder

A District Court jury yesterday found George Jones, 45, colored, of the 1400 block of Columbia road N.W., guilty of first-degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Sterling Williams, 40, colored, last March.

The conviction was the first for first-degree murder in the District

this year. The jury, consisting of eight men and four women, returned the verdict after 21/2 hours. Williams was shot twice in the stomach while at his home in the 1400 block of T street N.W. Assistant United States Attorney C. R. Heflin prosecuted the case. At the time of the shooting. Jones demanded to know the whereabouts of a woman who had left his home and gone to Williams' house, Mr. Heflin said. The woman, it was said, hid in a closet until Jones

Tommy Manville Loses Trust Fund Court Battle

NEW YORK, June 26.-Tommy Manville, gray-haired marital mara- Referred to Vinson thoner, lost a battle in a new arena yesterday.

Supreme Court Justice Lloyd Church denied him the right to set aside an indenture Mr. Manville signed in November, 1942, in which he surrendered the right to appoint an heir to a $2,000,00 trust fund his father set up for him.

Mr. Manville named his sister, Mrs. Lorraine Dresselhuys of New York, and the trust fund trustee, the Fifth Avenue Bank, as defendants in the action, and charged Mrs. Dresselhuys, "by misrepresentation, deceit and suppression of facts" induced him to sign the indenture. He claimed he had canceled the of the internal revenue code which otherwise would have included it in the gross taxable estate of the giver, Justice Church dismissed the allegations against Mrs. Dresselhuys.

"This cause of action is clearly defective since no facts in support of the conclusions pleaded are set forth," the court ruled.

Problem of Releasing Grew Believes Japs Midwest Corn Stocks | Erred by Attacking

WFA Admits Seizure Of Supply in Storage Is Only Stopgap

The whole problem of the Nation's critical corn situation today was referred to Economic Stabilization Diatacked the United States and esterday's action requisitioning ele- and the reason for this fatal error vator stocks of corn in 96 Midwest in timing was the unexpectedly stiff cities was at best a stop-gap.

A WFA spokesman said the agency rirtually had exhausted its possible plans of action to start corn moving into feed-deficit and corn-processing areas, and it now was up to agencles with wider powers to settle the

No figures were available on the amount of corn expected to be requisitioned under the order, but officials said they expected the amount would supply processors making corn food, feed and industrial products essential to the war effort possibly only two weeks.

Mr. Vinson's job is to find means of encouraging farmers, particularly in the Midwest hog belt, to release stocks of corn they are now feeding to their livestock or holding for higher prices. Under the present price ceiling-$1.07 a bushel-farmers can make more money feeding corn to hogs than by selling the grain on the market.

Some authorities see a solution if Mr. Vinson were to recommend an increase in the ceiling price and at the same time place a ceiling on hog prices, thus halting their advance along with corn.

The increase in corn price, officials admit, then would require some form of relief to dairy and poultry feeders in deficit corn areas as they could not pay much higher prices for corn on the basis of present ceiling prices for milk, eggs and poultry. The answer probably would be a subsidy, they say.

Meantime, WFA officials admittedly were concerned over a report yesterday showing that the prospective 1943 fall pig crop will be 21 per cent larger than last year's and 6 trator Chester Davis had recommended

United States Too Late

Former Ambassador Says War With China Slowed Enemy Machine

rector Fred M. Vinson, as War Food Britain too late, former Ambassador Administration officials admitted Joseph C. Grew said here last night, > resistance of China. In an address under the auspices of the Office of Civilian Defense, Mr. Grew recalled that Americans for a while were so impressed by this Chinese resistance to Japanese aggression that they overestimated its effectiveness and imagined Japan bogged down and bled white in a futile struggle to conquer 400,000,- > 000 people. After the attacks on Pearl Harbor and Singapore, opinion swung to the opposite extreme and there was a tendency to assume that "China's efforts had been in vain, and that Japan was stronger than ever."

Chinese War Toughened Japs. Actually, Mr. Grew asserted, what appened was that China's stubborn defense weakened the momentum of Japan's military machine to an extent that "the Japanese started their wider aggression too late for it to have even the slightest hope of ultimate success."

At the same time, however, this resistance had the effect of accelerating the full mobilization of Japan and of hardening Japan's troops in the furnace of actual war, with the result that it was a veteran army which lunged out at the Philippines, the Netherlands East Indies and Malaya.

Japan also utilized this period of ong-drawn-out campaigning in China to build up its stockpiles of strategic materials through heavy imports of oil, cotton, chemicals, scrap iron and other war-vital products offered on the world market by future enemies. Preparedness Is Jap Obsession.

Such systematic preparation for war and anything which war might per cent more than Food Adminis- bring came natural to the Japanese, Mr. Grew pointed out, for preparedness has always been an obsession with them-even during periods of greater strain on feed stocks and determined isolationism and peace. After more than 200 years of isolation and peace, when Commodore Perry knocked at the door and Japan awoke to the possibilities of modern trade and civilization, the make war. Their war against China in 1895 proved the efficacy of modernization, their attack on Russia in 1904 put them in the company of the great powers, the first World War gave them new bases in the Pacific and added prestige, and by 1931 they were ready to go places. Thus history shows, Mr. Grew warned, that merely defeating Japan well for the reason. In addition to its superb natural beauties and strategic location, one of the important appeals of Rock Creek Cemetery is the absence of any taint of commercial exploitation. That is why it will be so convincing to satisfy yourself of its sound financial structure and governing management.

A Lesson for the Week Real Reservoir of Nation Plain Folk Who Do Right By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

Virtue, thank God, is not news. Our big newspapers give us crime and scandal and carryings-on of a few politicians; they do not attempt the huge task of portraying the normal, home-loving, clean-living activities of the great mass of their readers. This is taken for granted; it is the real life of the Nation. In an average week a few gangsters get more newspaper space than all the ordinary citizens. The infinitesimal group of a big city's night club visitors are churches put together.

There has been endless vain conjecture as to the identity of "the elect lady" to whom the venerable apostle addressed his second letter. We shall never know her name, but most of us are familiar with the type. She was a gracious, home-keeping mother of such fine spiritual fiber that she won fellowship with the soaring-spirited John and with a host of fellow disciples. She radiated that charm which is found would be a perilous day for the at its best in women who know a real fellowship with God. No need of cosmetics for her. The inner life reading of good literature about the shone through her face and her Dr. Hollister Will Talk actions.

Her children, too, were loved by the great apostle. For her greatest influence had been exerted upon her own family. What a haven of refuge her home must often have been to the weary leader of the churches in Asia Minor! We catch a glimpse in the letter of the high themes upon which they had conversed. Conferees Eliminate Parking Agency and School Clerk Items

The House and Senate are expected to give prompt approval early next week to the conference agreement reached yesterday on the $55,-500,000 District supply bill in which most of the Senate changes are re-

The Senate gave up the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, for which it had allowed $10,500, and $57,600 for 40 more clerks in the school system. The House contended the parking agency will not be needed during the war, because of the restrictions on driving.

The House conferees, on the other hand, accepted these Senate provi-

Approve Purchase of School Site. For the purchase of a site in Prince Georges County, Md., for a new National Training School for Girls, $40,000, plus $42,000 for temporary buildings.

Removal of the Industrial Home School from property on Wisconsin avenue needed by the Navy, to the present Training School for Girls, on MacArthur boulevard, with $15,-000 for repairs.

To enable the Commissioners to co-ordinate the ambulance service of various local agencies, to answer emergency calls more promptly

For continuation of the house keeping aide service, $38,745. This will provide for a staff of 30 housekeeping aids to assist ill mothers. The House conferees will recommend that that branch accept the Senate item of $75,000 for the pennymilk school lunch fund, with authority to use the school-lunch kitchen for canning Victory garden

Separate Vote Required.

This is one of several Senate amendments the House managers were willing to accept, but which must be taken to the House for a separate vote because they contain legislative provisions.

In the same category are the two McCarran amendments to reduce juvenile delinquency by establishing mental hygiene clinic at Juvenile Court, and authorizing the School Board to assign pupil-guidance teachers to junior as well as senior high schools

The conferees, headed by Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming and Representative Mahon, Democrat, of Texas, decided to state in the conference report that the Commissioners will be expected to make an independent investigation of the water system, including the recent letter of Controller General Warren, criticizing the m collecting bills in the water registrar's office.

a new position of water registrar, Bethesda was named temporary with the present registrar becoming chairman. first assistant, and the present assistant becoming second assistant. The final agreement retains the $5,940 Senate increase for personnel in the Free Public Library, and the reappropriation of a $7,000 unexpended balance of the fund for preparation of plans for a new central library building.

The conferees will recommend that the House accept the Senate action in authorizing the Commissioners to settle their claims against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for part of the cost of the Franklin Street and Eastern Avenue Bridges. Both Houses already are agreed on revival of the $7,500 salary item for a people's counsel before the Public Utilities Commission, an office the President has left vacant in recent years. In the event the President appoints a counsel under this bill, the conferees allowed $2,000

VOLTA BUREAU-This sketch by Helen Gatch Durston shows the doorway of the Volta Bureau at 1537 Thirty-fifth street N.W., in Georgetown. The bureau is known all over the United States as a clearing house of information on new scientific and medical aids for deafness. It also is the headquarters of the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf. The organization was established at 1221 Connecticut avenue N.W. in 1880 by Alexander Graham Bell, partly with the $10,000 Volta Prize money he received for inventing the telephone. The Volta Prize was created by Napoleon in honor of Count Alessandro Volta, Italian inventor of the electric battery. Helen Keller turned the sod for the present structure in 1893.

Ramspeck Unit Ends Probe of Army Personnel

Committee Adjourns To Start Work on Interim Report

By WILL P. KENNEDY. The Ramspeck Civil Service Investigating Committee of the House today completed its hearings on the War Department and adjourned indefinitely to take account of its findings. Next week it will start writing an interim report for the House.

The report will include hearings touching on the Civil Service Commission, the Budget Bureau, the General Accounting Office and the War Department. Chairman Ramspeck said that some War Department officials may be called back later to answer a few questions, as a result of some incomplete surveys and a contemplated inspection trip by members of the committee.

Committee members, on comple-tion of the testimony today of Col. Gordon E. Clark, chief of the Civilian Personnel Division of the Army Air Forces, said that while conditions at some of the air service depots had been "bad," that the officials have been making a strenuous effort to correct them, and the committee is satisfied that "much mprovement has been made."

Placed in Small Towns. The complaint was that the depots had been placed in small communities, close to congested industria centers, which resulted in difficult living conditions for many thousands of civilian personnel. Congress had to appropriate many millions of dollars to relieve the situation, members of the committee said.

Col. Clark assured the committee: We intend to continue our effortsto simplify procedures and record keeping; to improve selection placement and training techniques; to foster sound employe relations and welfare programs and to improve employe morale."

He emphasized as "very important" the determination of his division "to continue to work closely with those charged with civilian personnel administration at each and every Air Forces station, to give them technical advice and assistance, because in the final analysis these civilian personnel officers at field stations are carrying the load and the value of our total program will, in large part, be the value of the sum of their efforts."

Bill to Empower Legal Examiners Scored by Byrd

Says Advisory Group Would Be Granted Too Much Authority

Championed by Attorney General Biddle, legislation providing statutory authority for the Board of Legal Examiners which already has passed the House, was sharply attacked at a hearing before a special Senate subcommittee today by Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia. The board already has been operating for two years in co-operation with the Civil Service Commission. Several witnesses announced they wished to be heard in opposition to the measure, but the committee recessed shortly before noon and it was uncertain whether it would reconvene before Monday. Senator Byr i's principal objection. which he pressed throughout the hearing, was to language in the bill which he claimed would make the Board of Legal Examiners superior to the Civil Service Commission, Amendment Proposed.

To meet this objection, Attorney General Biddle said he would favor an amendment to the measure insuring the Civil Service Commission's supreme authority. He said this could be accomplished by changing the language which provided the board would act "in con-sultation with" the Civil Service Commission to read "subject to the approval of" the Civil Service Commission. The Attorney General insisted, however, he would rather have the measure as it had passed

Welfare Chest ls Organized In Montgomery

Group Will Seek Greater Share of D. C. Area War Fund

The Montgomery County Com-nunity Chest was organized last night at a meeting of 125 representative county residents in the Liquor Control Board room in Silver Spring. Randolph G. Bishop of Bethesda was named temporary chairman. Object of the new organization is to obtain a more equitable allotment of funds for a larger number of county agencies from the Community War Fund of the Metropoli tan Area.

It was pointed out at the meeting that county residents last year paid approximately $250,000 into this fund and received in return, through the Social Service League and the Boy and Girl Scout organizations, less than $30,000.

Incorporation Approved.
With the approval of the Board of County Commissioners a steering committee composed of Lacy Shaw, board president; Mrs. Walter E. Perry, Mr. Bishop, Dr. Edwin Broome, William N. Big Water Use Brings Shortage In Falls Church

Conservation Plea Made; One Well Low And One Pump Is Out

Fourteen days of uninterrupted 90degree weather which put hundreds of lawn sprinklers into action, had by last night left home owners in many sections of Falls Church "high and dry" with only a trickle of water coming from their faucets.

Issuing an appeal for restricted use of water for sprinkling lawns and gardens, Mayor M. H. Haertel said between 100 and 125 residents were found late yesterday to have lawn sprinklers running full force. Mayor Haertel sald after a special policeman was assigned to stop lawn sprinkling last night, he pressure in the town's system immediately began to build up. He said there was no immediate danger of a stoppage as long as residents conserved water.

One Well Is Low. The Mayor explained that the water level in one of the town's five wells has become low, and a pump at another well has been out of commission for the last week. Parts for this pump have been ordered and it is expected to be placed in operation again in a few days.

"There is no danger of fire," Mayor Haerten said. "In an emergency the Falls Church water system may be hooked on to the Arlington County system by means of a booster pump at the county line. Arlington, however, has been unable to turn water into the town system because of a greater demand for water on the part of its residents. John McCauley, town clerk, said that a new well had been dug and would be placed in operation in about a week. Mr. McCauley explained that the town pumps its water into a 250,000gallon tank for distribution to consumers. He said the town attempts to keep the water level well up in the tank, and sometimes draws on

Uptrend Continues In Farm Land Sales In Nearby Areas

Dr. Davis Purchases Hollowtree; Duers Buy Woodburn Farm

Sales of nearby Virginia and Maryland farm lands this week once more continued the upward trend which has been noticeable for the last several months.

An old estate near Olney, Md., known as Hollowtree, has been sold to Dr. Roy T. Davis by Mrs. Wrisley Brown through the Sandy Spring Realty Co. The 119-acre property has a modernized main house and a large formal garden. Dr. Davis was president of the National Park Seminary in Forest Glen prior to occupation of the place by the Gov-

Building Permits Issued in D. C. Total $266,690

Bulk of Amount Is for Hospital And Development

Building permits issued this week by Robert H. Davis, District building inspector, amounted to $266,690, of which the major amount was for two large developments. Meanwhile, there are on file several applications for permits which next week may run the total to a much higher figure.

A permit was issued by Mr. Davis for the construction of 31 threestory brick and tile dwellings by Shapiro, Inc., 1341 Connecticut avenue N.W. Costing $4,800 each, the structures will be located at 1701-61 Harvard street N.W. J. H. Abel, 1636 Connecticut avenue N.W., is listed as architect.

Applications Pending. The Madison Housing Corp. has an application in for $196,000 to build 28 two-story brick and cinder block flats of four units each. Others pending include an application for seven two-story masonry four-family apartments by Ruthridge, Inc., to cost $10,000 each, and one for a three-story brick apartment by the A. & R. Construction Co., Inc., to cost $70,000. The District government received two permits amounting to $87,000 for repairs and new construction. The new project is for a $75,000 brick hospital to be located at Nineteenth and E streets S.E. The other District project is for $12,000 worth of repairs on buildings at 327-329 North Carolina avenue S.E., and 308-329 D street S.E.

Slight Drop Reported. Meanwhile, the Secretary of Labor reported that last month building showed a slight decrease amounting to about 2 per cent nationally. Washington, which at one time held the lead, dropped to 14th place on the five-month table of the Labor Department. Total value of building here amounted to $6,167,-000, as compared with $51,045,000 a year ago. Federal construction contributed $1,817,000 during the period, as compared with $41,354,000 a year ago. The leading cities, according to the report, were Chicago, Detroit and New Orleans.

Building permits of $300 or more issued locally during the week include the following: Maurice Schlein, 915 New York avenue N.W., owner and builder; J. Marcus Hallett, 6525 Piney Branch road N.W., architect; to erect four (See PERMITS, Page B-2.)

To Defer Firemen

BALTIMORE, June 26.-National Civilian Defense Director James M.

Landis believes firemen should receive Selective Service consideration similar to that given physicians. In a speech at the Eastern Association of Fire Chiefs in Baltimore yesterday, Mr. Landis said the draft seriously had depleted fire-fighting staffs and that replacing these men was difficult.

He asserted the problem "has reached proportions which involve a real threat" to public safety in some critical war zones in this coun-

Connie Still Picks the Nats as the Top Team

Kindly old Connie Mack scrawled his autograph on a score card at the request of an insistent soldier, then turned and said softly, "Yes, I still like Washington to win the pennant. I think New York has a fine still like Washington to win the pennant. I think New York has a fine club, too, understand, but I believe Washington is better. I may be wrong in my prediction, but I think Washington will win."

What in particular did Mr. Mack like about the Nats? "I like the whole works—everything about them," he answered. "Gracious, goodness; Washington has lots of power, it's good defensively and it's pitching has been fine. It has all the ingredients necessary to win.

The Philadelphia Athletics' 80-year-old manager could be wrong, of course, but it isn't hurting the Nats to have him relish their chances He was the fellow, you remember, who called the turn on the collapse of

Leonard Also No Aid Against A's, Foemen Again Tonight

From the rear end of a machine to help gear him for his climb over that has been purring along rather smoothly, Manager Ossie Bluege today detected a wheezy, sputtering sound that might indicate his Washington product is running out of gas. From the lower portion of his batting order Bluege is obtaining what amounts to no help.

Only recently Gerald Priddy emerged from a prolonged slump to provide the Nats some punch, but there's no guarantee he'll remain consistent. Last night, for instance as the Nats dropped a 5-2 decision to Philadelphia before 14,500 fans at Griffith Stadium, Priddy struck out After Bob Johnson has finished swinging Bluege anticipates the innings when the top of the Nats' batting order will lug lumber plateward, for Jake Early, Ellis Clary and Johnny Sullivan aren't giving Washington any swatting support. Top Hitters Get No Help.

Bluege has learned to expect simultaneous protracted slumps from one or two of his athletes, but Early, Clary and Sullivan have plunged into a hitless era that is threatening to choke the Nats' hope of catching the league-leading Yankees.

Early hasn't obtained a hit in his last 21 attempts. He has batted a damaging .045 in the Nats' last seven games, but he has company. Leonard Is Dub at Home.

Dutch has been whacked from the mound six times here in eight starts and last night his pitching was pathetic. Leonard was clipped for 13 hits in seven innings by the Athletics and the only reason the score wasn't worse than 5-2 against him when he left the premises was due to Johnson's presence.

Elmer Valo greeted Leonard with a home run to the center-field coris ranked fourth nationally—that ner. It was then that Johnson just last week he won the Eastern made a brilliant stab of Jo-Jo White's liner after a long run to rob him of a triple. War Threat Speeded Mass Production of Radar in 1940

Admiral Bowen Praises Researchers for Great Contribution to Victory

The first 20 sets of radarradio "eyes" of the Army and Navy-went into the American fleet less than three years ago. Discovered and developed at the Naval Research Laboratory, it has contributed to many an American triumph in this war. The account of its coming-ofage in mass production is told in this final installment of John M. Hightower's story.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER. Arrangements were made for mass production of radar in August, 1940, when Admiral Harold G. Bowen realized that the Nation was faced with limited production facilities and war was threatening on every hand.

Admiral Bowen had lunch one day with Charles E. Wilson, then president of the General Electric Co., now vice chairman of the War Production Board. The two men were good friends and the admiral felt he could be blunt about it.

"Charlie," he said, "one of us is a fool for visualizing such great possibilities for radar or else you are, for failing to get in on it. I've been laughed at for a long time, but I think it is a billion-dollar industry. Now I believe I can prove it to you. Sends Scientists.

Two weeks later Mr. Wilson sent 20 scientists from the GE laboratory at Schnectady to inspect the Navy's radar equipment at the Naval Research Laboratory and, in the restrained phrase of an official report, they were "most enthusiastic." Another two weeks and Mr. Wilson himself came back to Washington for a demonstration.

He was so impressed with what he saw and heard that he directed Dr. Walter R. Baker, head of GE's radio division, to do whatever was necessary to enable GE to catch up with the Naval Laboratory's work on radar. He also reorganized the company's radio division, making Mr. Baker a vice president and starting the installation of radar manufacturing facilities. Subsequently GE got a large contract for naval radar. In October, 1940, Admiral Bowen

The Pay-as-You-Go Tax Penalty Provided for Substantial Underpayment on Income

Seventh of a series of articles on the pay-as-you-go tax act.

Filing of Final Return for Year. 46. Question. Is any final accounting made for the year, based on the actual income, actual deductions,

Answer. Yes: on March 15 folowing the close of each taxable year final return is filed, as at present. At that time adjustments are made on account of any difference between the estimated tax and the final tax liability for the year as shown on the

If the final tax liability is greater than the estimated tax paid during the year the difference must be paid in a lump sum March 15. This balance cannot be paid in installments.

Penalty for Substantial Underpayment.

47. Question. Suppose a person estimated his tax for 1943 to be $100 and the final liability as shown on the March 15, 1944, return was $200, would he simply pay the difference in a lump sum on March 15?

Answer. A 6-per-cent interest damn fool. Either I am a damn penalty is imposed where the taxpayer substantially underestimates his tax, the purpose of which is to induce the making of reasonably accurate declarations of estimated tax. However, a 20-per-cent tolerance is allowed, which means that the interest penalty does not apply unless the amounts paid during the year were less than 80 per cent of the amount finally shown to be due. The interest is imposed on the total amount of the underpayment, not just the amount below 80 per cent.

Thus, if the final tax was $200 and the estimated tax paid during the year was $100, the taxpayer would be charged 6 per cent interest on the amount by which the $100 estimated tax fell short of the $200 final tax. Hence the taxpayer would have to pay on March 15 the $100 which was still owing, plus 6 per cent interest on $100 (the amount of under-

The Japs were well drilled in the tricks of jungle fighting. One of their favorite stunts was to toss firecrackers into the trees some yards from one of their machine-gun nests. The exploding firecrackers resembled the crack of Jap rifles. When our soldiers went over to investigate, the hidden machine gun would cut them down. The Japs also threw firecrackers in night attacks to confuse our troops and create the illusion of strong forces. Some of the Japs wore pads on their Marriage License hands and knees to enable them to creep stealthily through the underbrush

In charging our positions the Japs would shriek what they imagined to be blood-curdling yells, interspersed with such English words as "Assault!" and "Attack!" They infiltrated our lines wherever possible and then split up into groups of two or three men yho climbed trees and sniped at our officers, or attempted st. o.e. and Sarah Newman. 19, 2305 17th or three men yho climbed trees and sniped at our officers, or attempted and sniped at our officers, or attempted and still a s to approach our behing-the-line camps, where they threw grenades and tried to create confusion. They camps, where they threw grenades and tried to create confusion. They took the uniforms from our dead soldiers, especially the Filipinos, and tried to pass our sentries at night. They were very clever at lying quietly in the brsh until they learned our password and then imitating it. This trick worked until our officers discovered that the Japanese could not pronounce the letter L. After that our passwords were liquid with L's—words such as "Hula-hula." The Japs invariably pronounced that "Hura-hura." It was a dead give-away.

In fighting at close quarters the Japs would quickly learn the names of some of our officers and also attempt to imitate the voices of those they heard most frequently. They tried this on Comdr. Frank Bridget during the fighting at Langoscawayan Point. He was coming down a path alone and he called out to Col. Fry, commander of the 57th Filipino Scouts, who was somewhere up ahead, "Where are you, colonel?" "Down here, Frank. Come down here!" Bridget had just seen the colonel going in the opposite direction, so he refused to be fooled. The Jap who shouted was killed a few minutes later by the Scouts.

The Japs were vicious and cruel when they had the upper hand. I saw the body of one American officer. He had been suspended from a tree limb and bayoneted repeatedly in the back and buttocks. Then his away and large had been backed.

The prisoners admitted they were glad to be alive and did not regret their failure to die as heroes. They admitted that they had been terribly frightened when they first came under artillery fire-so frightened that at Langoscawayan many of them jumped off a cliff to their deaths rather than stand up under the fire of Corregidor's 12-inch mortars. They told us that when a Japanese units was cut off, the officers would almost always commit suicide. They wanted to die quickly rather than fire their last bullet at their enemies and then await the suspense of being killed.

In action and under fire the discipline of the Japanese Army is generally good. But when Japanese troops are not fighting they are hard to control, especially if they have been drinking. They drink badly and after one or two glasses of beer they frequently become surly and unmanageable.

The Japanese have been taught that Americans and Englishmen are enemies who threaten the existence of their country, and that it is their sacred duty to drive them out of the Orient. The Japanese humiliate the white man wherever possible, by every means from small annoyances before the war to the outright murder of unarmed Canadian troops in Hong Kong after the capture of that British stronghold. This is part of a deliberate program to impress their fellow Orientals with press their fellow Orientals with Japan's strength. Until it is completely disproved, I believe every

Uncle Ray's Corner

Last Saturday we were speaking about problems of a rocket trip to a planet. Such a journey never has been tried, but many persons have sight to watch a declarer make a thought how interesting it would be to go to Mars or the moon aboard a rocket. Certainly it would be "interesting." but it would be dangerous as well. Perhaps the chances would be a thousand to one against a person setting foot on another planet alive. Probably there would be a million chances to one that he would not get back to the earth safely. One odd part of a rocket trip to a planet would be the end of gravity on the way. At a distance of 1,000 .-000 miles from the earth, there would be little, if any, "gravity pull" on people in the rocket. They could hardly say that one direction was "down" and the other "up." They might not be able to walk from one

Some idea of the strange state which would exist has come from England. Several British aviators returned to their homeland with strange tales of what happened aboard a Sunderland flying boat a few months ago. The flying boat was making a trip across the Bay of Biscay when it passed through a mass of cumulonimbus clouds. Suddenly the piane was tossed upward by a violent wind

Brackett-Wilder Team Finds Fine Drama in Rommel Case History In Earle's New Photoplay

By JAY CARMODY.

Another screen-writing team turns successfully to producing and directing in "Five Graves to Cairo," which opened yesterday at the Earle. Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett are the ones and they have made a quite dramatic item out of L'affaire Rommel in North Africa. Their tense story of men at war with pleasant undertones of romance and darting asides into comedy is considerably better than just another war picture. It should make them popular. Para-

The story which is told in "Five Graves to Cairo" is a dramatic, sus- narrative. She is considerably more penseful, personal segment of Rommel's advance and retreat. Its hero is Tone, an English 8th Army corporal who is trapped in the Nazi capture of Sidi Halfaya. The action takes place almost entirely within the ruins of the village's last hotel. The Germans make it their headquarters and the British corporal makes it the scene of his espionage addled by his fear of the occupying operations in the course of which he picks up Rommel's whole plan of campaign while pretending to be a crippled fifth columnist waiter. The prospect that he may be exposed at any moment, and that he won't get Rommel's program to Gen. Montgomery in time, persists in spite of the fact that North Africa has been a closed book for weeks.
