Three Chemical Firms Accused of Creating World-Wide Cartel

Enemy Corporations Were Included in Bloc, Government Says

The Justice Department announced today that three American chemical companies, including the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Co., had been charged in a Federal grand jury indictment with creation of a world-wide cartel in conspiracy with German, British, Italian, Japanese and other foreign interests.

It was charged that the cartel had been in operation since July 30,

Tom Clark, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department, said the cartel was in titanium compounds used in the production of strategic war materials.

Mr. Clark, saying the companies and four of their officers were charged specifically with violation of the Anti-Trust Act, disclosed that the indictment was returned by a Federal grand jury in New York City

December will be in excess of 800,000 tons a year, "which is more than we have ever used and sufficient for our essential purposes," Mr. Jones declared in an address prepared for a "made in America rubber" luncheon at Houston, Tex. Telephoned from Washington, his address was broadcast over a Texas State net-

Reporting on his prewar stockpiling program, Mr. Jones declared: "About this time in 1940, 18 months before we were drawn into the war, your Government began protecting our rubber supply. In July, 1940, President Roosevelt asked the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to build up a stockpile of rubber. Between that time and the capture of the Dutch East Indies by the Japanese we bought every pound of rubber we could possibly get.

Much Still in Stockpile.

"As a result, when we entered the var we had accumulated the largest rubber stockpile the world has ever known. We have drawn upon that stockpile for all our essential needs, as well as for those of the United Rails Face Postwar Nations, and we still have several hundred thousand tons. We have been stimulating the production of Slash in Earnings, natural rubber in South and Central America and in Africa by every means possible, and we are getting some natural rubber from these and other sources.'

Of the synthetic program, he said "the task has not been an easy one Those in charge of the program have had to overcome not only such problems as shortages of material and manpower, but also the confusion created by critics who sought —not always unselfishly—to question means and methods, without knowledge of all the facts.

Exploding Shells Bombard Grand Junction, Colo.; At Least Four Injured

By the Associated Press.

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. June 28.—Residents of this city dug jagged shrapnel from their yards and the walls of buildings today as souvenirs of a terrifying four-hour bombardment from munitions set off by a freight train fire.

At least four persons were injured yesterday by particles of highpowered shells, some of which hurtled a mile from the siding where the blazing cars were isolated by trainmen.

Fire Chief Charles Downing's right arm, torn by shell fragments. was amputated. He was given two blood transfusions.

Felled by Fragments.

Mr. Downing was standing at the corner of a warehouse when a shell landed 36 feet away, burrowing into the ground. The shell exploded and some fragments knocked him backward about 10 feet, at the same time gashing holes in the metal wall of the building.

The fire chief walked about two blocks, was taken into an automobile, and driven to a hospital. A piece of the flying metal struck Bob Walraven, railroad workman, while he stood on a freight caboose half a mile from the fire. He suffered a possible jaw fracture. Shrapnel also injured Mrs. Virginia

Buckley and Henry Tebo, a fireman. Denver & Rio Grand Western Railroad officials said today the fire was caused by sparks flying from a defective brake just as the freight train pulled into town about 2 a.m. Sharp reports awoke the community shortly thereafter.

"It scared the daylights out of people," said Joseph Lowe, Grand Junction newspaperman.

1942 Figures Collected By Federal Bureau Published in May

In the message accompanying his veto of the antistrike bill, President Roosevelt told Congress that the time lost by strikes in 1942 averaged only five one-hundredths of 1 per cent of the total man-hours worked in the United States in that year. Though not specifically cited in the message, the authority for the President's statement was, of course, the Bureau of Labor Statistics. According to the bureau's figures, contained in an article in the May issue of the Monthly Labor Review. idleness during strikes in 1942 amounted to about a twentieth of 1 per cent of the time worked in industry, or less than one-fifth of the time lost by strikes in 1941. During the year there were 2,968 strikes, it said, involving approximately 840,000 workers, and 4,183,000 man-days of idleness. About 28 workers out of every 1,000 employed, the article explained, were involved in a strike at some time in 1942.

Data Collected From 1914. How does the bureau obtain its strike-statistics, and how does it compute the time lost by work stop-

The bureau has been collecting and publishing strike statistics since released yesterday, which show that 1914. During the eight years between 1906 and 1913, no Federal agency was assigned the job of collecting such information, though earlier, from 1881 to 1905, the commissioner of labor had collected strike data.

Compilation of strike statistics is one of the duties of the bureau's industrial relations division, which has been headed since 1934 by Miss Ads" located throughout the city. Florence Peterson, who studied labor economics at the University of Wisconsin. Prior to entering the Federal service here, Miss Peterson was State director of unemployment relief in Wisconsin. About a dozen of the division's employes at present are assigned to the work of collecting and analyzing strike statistics.

Give Man-Days Involved. The three basic measures used by the bureau in compiling strike data are the number of strikes, the number of workers involved and the man-days idle. Since it incorporates the two elements of number of workers and the number of work days these persons lost during the work stoppage, the number of mandays idle is regarded by bureau experts as one of the best criteria of the magnitude of a strike. The man-days idle during a strike

New Deal Reputation

Woman Representative Assails Roosevelt's Home And Foreign Policies

APPLETON, Wis., June 28.-Representative Clare Boothe Luce, declaring that the Federal administration had offered only a false security, asserted yesterday that Americans would demand a postwar victory that would guarantee a "free and ever expanding economy."

In a keynote address before the Wisconsin Republican Convention, the Connecticut playwright-Congresswoman told delegates the New Deal reputation was dead on the home front and that President Roosevelt could survive it only by convincing the people his foreign policy is sound.

"This he cannot do." she added. "Today what all Americans want from the cradle to the grave is real opportunity-not the New Deal's false security," she said. "Today

"Let us once and for all face this fact. The same philosophy of charity as government which has inspired the New Deal at home will inspire the New Deal abroad.

WPA at home will become WPA abroad. Washington bureaucracy will become world bureaucracy and all will be run overseas with the same juggernaut inefficiency with which it has been run at home."

All "Dazzle Dust Terms." Mrs. Luce asserted the present administration had no coherent policy "unless it's keeping it secretly

"And let us get this clear," she added. "The Four Freedoms are not a policy. They are simply expressions of principles and sentiments which are totally incapable of application to the whole world Indeed they are only capable of application to parts of the world in which our Nation embraces a foreign policy vigorous enough to comple ment them.

"Windy, high-flown talk of world councils, regional federations, world federations, world government world police forces, or even another league of nations-indeed, talk of any machinery for so-called collective security is meaningless unless our statesmen first collect their wits and decide how America can best secure herself. These are all dazzl dust terms.

"Charity is what you are given when you don't get justice. Then you get doles, handouts, WPA-ism special subsidies and special benefits to the favored and special groups within the economy.

A LITTLE-KNOWN STORY...

How America really prepared for w

THIS IS A STORY about a country called America 1 ... and about something we did that Hitler thought we couldn't.

Chapter One is about our Armed Forces. Chapter Two is entitled Co-operation (may sound dull, but it isn't). Chapter Three contains a few facts you've never heard before about the Belly Turret in the Flying Fortress.

CHAPTER I

From the time Hitler came into power until the year before war came to America, Germany was spending as much on war goods each week as we were spending in a year.

With our military budget so limited, our Armed Forces were in a pretty bad spot. So what did our Army and Navy do ... give up? No, they used their heads instead.

They decided-because they didn't have enough money to buy great quantities of weapons-to develop working models of the best, the most advanced weapons that brains could devise.

Also, they decided to complete plans so that these weapons could be produced in mass-and we mean mass quantities-when and if war struck. End of chapter.

CHAPTER II

To get these working models developed, our military and naval leaders asked for help from trusted concerns with which they had worked for many years.

They got what they asked for. These concerns laid out the necessary money, often big money, for experimental work. They had no assurance of future orders for any equipment they might develop. All they knew was that the country's security demanded that the work be done.

These companies opened up their laboratories to one another. Gave the use of their patents, royalty free. Developed new weapons of all kinds. Tested them. Ironed out the bugs. The weapons developed in those peacetime years included much of the well-known and recently publicized equipment, as well as devices which must remain secret.

When war got so close you could taste it and appropriations were finally made, the working models and the blueprints were ready! They were immediately turned over to our great mass-production industries.

The Army and Navy helped these companies tool up, provided machinery, buildings, and (where needed) money to launch the biggest production effort in history. And the best workmen in the world went to work on war goods instead of peace goods. End of

CHAPTER III

A typical example of how the job worked out has to do with work done prior to Pearl Harbor in protecting the belly of the Boeing Flying Fortress.

When attacked from the side, rear or above, the Fortress could knock the spots off enemy fighters. But when attacked from below, neither the tail gunner nor the nose gunner could cover all attackers.

Air Force officers at Wright Field took the problem up with the Sperry Gyroscope Company, because of Sperry's experience in developing aiming and firing controls for guns . . . aviation equipment such as the Sperry Automatic Pilot and the Sperry Bombsight ... and several hundred other precision weapons, instruments, and devices.

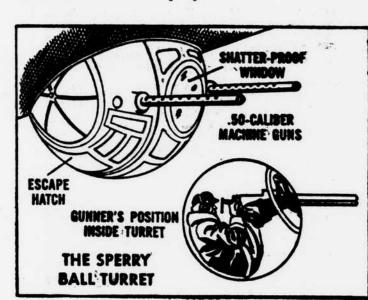

Working together . . . and aided by Vickers, Inc., a Sperry company ... they created the Sperry Ball Turret. This turret is a sphere made of aluminum and Plexiglas, installed in the belly of the plane. Inside it sits a gunner with two .50-caliber machine guns that can stop an attacker before the Fortress comes within the enemy's range.

The gunner has full vision through an opening of shatterproof glass. His guns are aimed by a Sperry Computing Sight that takes into account the range. course, and speed of an enemy plane. In aiming, the whole turret (propelled by hydraulic "muscles" developed and built by Vickers, Inc.) turns smoothly at the will of the gunner.

These belly turrets-and the top turrets developed by Sperry and made by other American concernshave helped make America's big bombers the deadliest air battleships in the world.

After the Sperry Ball Turret had been perfected, assistance in turning out the vast quantities needed was sought from two of America's great mass-producers... the Briggs Manufacturing Company and the Emerson Electric Company.

The necessary adaptations were made that permitted faster mass-production, and Briggs and Emerson are now turning out Sperry Turrets in quantity, while National Cash Register Company helps Sperry turn out the Computing Sights.

That's the story...the little-known story of how America really prepared for war . . . a story that, we hope, will make you even prouder of our Armed Forces and of the American way of getting things done.

Role of Messengers In Civilian Defense Is Lauded by Landis

More Than One Million Now Are Being Trained For Service, He Says

Plans to expand the role now played by the air-raid messenger service in civilian defense were forecast yesterday afternoon by James M. Landis, national director of civilian defense.

Mr. Landis, who was speaking before nearly 3,000 air-raid messengers and their parents at the Uline Garden, Third and M streets N.L., messengers training for present or future service. Pointing out that as the intensity of raids has increased in bombed cities of Europe, the damage to telephones and similar facilities has likewise increased, Mr. Landis emphasized the importance of the work being done by the messengers unit, which is open to every boy or girl over 15 years of age. He also spoke of the opportunity for younger boys from 12 to 15 to act as inside messengers within control centers. Messages Important.

"Getting fire reports to the control center has just as much to do with putting them out as bringing a hose. If the fire report gets there in time, the damage may be limited; if it does not, the whole city may burn in a conflagration out of control," he declared.

William J. Mileham, chief air-raid warden for the Metropolitan Area. introduced Melvin A. Grawitz, a 15-year-old boy honored recently by the Junior Board of Commerce as "V-Man of the Week" for his work in organizing the Mid-city area. Young Melvin, in speaking to the fellow members of his corps, urged that each one work to enlist additional personnel.

Retail butter prices were reduced an average of about five and onehalf cents a pound, or 10 per cent, on June 10.

The subsidized rollback of meat prices went into effect June 21. These prices were reduced about three to six cents a pound, for an overall average of about 10 per cent. Subsidies for cured pork are scheduled to go into effect July 5.

Subsidies to processors are paid through the Defense Supplies Corp. Should the Senate and House conferees reject the subsidy program, and no acceptable substitute be found, retail prices of meat and butter eventually would be increased

Many preliminaries, however, would have to be disposed of before retailers could increase their present ceilings.

German Paper Assails Spanish Regime for Listening to Allies

Some Spaniards Appear To Forget Civil War Aid, Editorial Says

By the Associated Press. BERN, Switzerland, June 28 .- The German newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung published an editorial broadside yesterday against Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Spanish government, declaring it was "doing hardly anything decisive" to check talk of a monarchial restoration, and also was tolerating Allied attempts to bring Spain "into active co-operation with the western powers.' Spain is flooded with "the wildest rumors and promises," said the Madrid correspondent of the Nazi newspaper in a telephoned dispatch which was placed on the front page The Frankfurter Zeitung's signifi-

The German correspondent declared Spaniards appear to be relyclared Spaniards appear to be relying on Allied assurances given Spain Poles in Middle East when North Africa was occupied. "Attempts are being made to bring them into active co-operation with the Western powers," he said.

Some Spaniards, he added, appeared to forget the civil war in peared to forget the civil war in Sikorski Declares his Nationalists, thereby making it easy for the Allies "to fill empty heads with propaganda, false reports and speculation."

This propaganda, he asserted, was circulating throughout every class in Spain, and was done "mostly under diplomatic protection."

The correspondent said religious and monarchial circles especially were receptive to "rumors about supposed arrests of Fascists, generals and of a future liberal economic order.

Labor and the Law

Taken as a whole, the reaction of the men who speak for organized labor to the passage of the Connally-Smith bill over their protests and over the President's veto, reflects most creditably upon their respect for democratic processes, even when they work in a manner which is distasteful to them.

Speaking as the national leaders of the AFL and the CIO, William Green and Philip Murray, although deploring enactment of the law, have announced their determination to re-inforce the no-strike pledge while abiding by the requirements of the statute. Earlier threats to withdraw AFL and CIO members from the War Lat Board also have subsided, and it is now expected that the labor representatives will continue to participate in, and abide by, the board's

Meanwhile, it is indicated that labor will work toward repeal of the law by demonstrating that it is not needed. This is a commendable exhibition of the quality of labor leadership which is needed by the country at this time, but which has been lacking in too many instances

When this war broke, organized labor was presented with an opportunity to establish a high and enduring place for itself in the realm of public opinion. And in many respects the record which labor has made is good. But, unfortunately, there have been a number of instances in which the welfare of the Nation was subordinated to the narrow interests of some labor group, with the inevitable result that labor lost the public support which it once enjoyed and which had made possible the gains of the past ten years.

Beyond any reasonable doubt, it was this progressive alienation of public opinion which brought about the passage of the Connally-Smith bill, and which has laid the groundwork for still more drastic legislation, should it become necessary. Apparently the responsible leaders of labor, in moving to recapture the ground that has been lost, have recognized that this is true, and they are to be congratulated upon the wisdom of the decision which they seem to have made. The Connally-Smith bill will not remain upon the statute books for long if labor, by curbing strikes and placing the national interest first, can demonstrate that there is no necessity for it.

Dr. Scott

Dr. James Brown Scott was a man of great usefulness and value, but he never courted popularity and it therefore is likely that his services were not known to the generality of his contemporaries. Born in Canada and educated at Harvard, Heidelburg, Berlin and Paris, he began his professional career in Washington as a protege of Elihu Root in the Department of State in 1906. When the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace was established four years later, he was named its secretary. The rest of his life was spent in an effort to develop an intelligent approach to the solution of those problems of human society which produce armed conflict.

It was part of his genius that Dr. Scott was conscious of the difficulties involved in the designing of world harmony. He realized that the race cannot climb into heaven on a stepladder. Again and again he made it clear that he had no faith in madeto-order schemes for the pacification of the universe. But he did believe in the feasibility of international jurisprudence, and he toiled with unwavering devotion toward the goal of a single principle of law which should apply to all peoples equitably. His books were careful studies of the gradual evolution of an "international conscience." They were written in three languages and became standard reference assets in all important public libraries and in many private collections.

Dr. Scott meanwhile took an energetic share in the labors of the Paris Conference of 1919 and the Washington Conference of 1921; was president of the American Institute of International Law and the American Society of International Law; edited the American Journal of International Law; helped in the adjudication of differences between Belgium and Switzerland, Denmark and Brazil and other countries; aided in promoting better relations with Latin a practical idealist in the field of international affairs should be.

Patience perhaps was Dr. Scott's most distinctive personal characteristic. He had inexhaustible confidence in the theory of justice among nations as among individuals. With philosophic appreciation of all the various factors involved, he looked forward to a time when global anarchy and planetary strife would cease because men willed it so. He has died in the midst of the cruelest and costliest of struggles, but he leaves a noble contribution toward its liquidation in victory for righteousness.

No Need to Exaggerate

When a congressional committee delivers a report on some of the disgraceful conditions in Washington and refuses to mince words in its description, the result is helpful. For such a report is in the nature of a pitiless self-examination. Congress is charged under the Constitution with exclusive legislative control over the District, and some of the things pointed out by the committee report reflect on the faulty execution of that responsibility.

It is all the more to be regretted, therefore, that the committee did not reflect, in its report, a more realistic attitude in its discussion of some of the conditions it criticized. When the committee reported that in "delving" into the local housing situation it found "50 per cent of the population of the District of Columbia were living under slum conditions" it should have given the source of its statistics and a definition of slum conditions. Otherwise, the statement appears to be a manifest exaggeration and in that respect is weakened. As a matter of fact, conditions in the housing field require no exaggeration for emphasis.

If by slum conditions, the committee had in mind overcrowded and inadequate housing, it is possible that 50 per cent of the people of the District are affected. But the examples cited by the report have more to do with the squalor of poverty than with the shortage of housing. When the two problems are confused, it makes the solution equally confused.

As a matter of fact, the committee is talking about two separate and distinct phases of the housing shortage. One is found in the alley communities, which fit the popular conception of slums. The other is a housing shortage in Washington, due to the great influx of war workers. One is confined to a relatively small section of the District, densely populated and the breeding place for crime and disease, which, in years, can be cleaned up if there is a will to do it. The other applies to the city as a whole and will remain with us until the exodus of war workers, after the war, brings its own relief. As for the alley communities, it is unfortunate that the committee revealed its findings-always shocking-as if it had discovered something brand-new, quickly remedied by making the facts known. For the problem represented in the alley communities began to manifest itself some years after the Civil War and, for a variety of reasons, has defied a cure. In the First World War, for instance, a Congress moved by the indignation of a comparable 'slumming expedition" decided that the way to do away with the alley dwellings was to order them vacated by a certain date. But as there was no provision for alternative housing, the old alley-closing law died on the books and was in a way responsible for another long period of continued inaction.

But another, more far-seeing Congress finally established the Alley Dwelling Authority, now more appropriately known as the National Capital Housing Authority, with powers of eminent domain and a small fund for conversion of alley property to decent, low-cost housing, or to other use. But just as this work. under the intelligent direction of John Ihlder, was demonstrating its real possibilities, another session of Congress wiped out the revolving fund and declined to appropriate another cent.

In the meantime, the influx of war workers has created another type of shortage in housing, aggravated by the public and private demolition, during the past few years, of structures which were sheltering an estimated 20,000 persons at a time when private construction was halted by the war and when low-cost public housing was reserved for people whose Government employment gave them priority. What we need in Washington is less "delving" into the housing shortage and some decision to use the experience and machinery of the National Capital Housing Authority in an orderly program of slum reclamation. That requires money, which can be appropriated only by Congress. If the members of the D'Alesandro committee will work toward that end, its preliminary delving may yield helpful results.

State Sovereignty

The Governors' Conference last week adopted resolutions advocating a return of powers to the States which in recent years have been centered in Washington. The resolutions were adopted unanimously.

During the three-day sessions of the conference, attended by forty governors and the representatives of several others, governor after governor declared that the safety of America's traditional form of government had been threatened by the exten-ward a centralization of power in Federal hands.

The attack upon the encroachment of the Federal Government upon powers and duties which in earlier years had been retained by the States came from Democratic and Republican governors alike. They were representative of every section of the country. Governor Maw of Utah, a Democrat, delivered a blistering criticism of the Federal Government and of the bureaucracy which it has developed, exerting its influence in every State. Strong State governments, in the opinion of the governors, will mean a stronger Nation, and a more healthy one. An example of what has happened is found in Ohio, the meeting place of the conference. Within its borders today, exclusive of the military, are 90,000 Federal officials and employes. The number of State employes is 20,000. This gives an idea of the extent to which the Federal bureaus are overrunning the States.

The governors conceded that during a war the Federal Government must be given wide authority in order to make the most of all the resources of the country, including manpower. They pointed out, however, that the State governments have played important roles in the war program, in the matter of civilian defense and the selective service draft. When the war is over, they intend to demand a retreat by the Federal Government on all State fronts.

The dual system, under which the United States has been governed for more than 150 years, has been threatened by the Federal encroachments of the last decade. The recognition of this fact by the State executives may go far to correcting this drift.

Ban on Rollbacks

Barring last-minute changes of heart in conference, the administration's program to roll back the cost of living to the levels of last September has been killed by action of the House and the Senate. On the facts of the case, as distinguished from the arguments that have been made, there seems little reason to mourn its passing.

The demand for large subsidy payments to permit a cutback in prices has developed step by step with the unfolding failure of the Government's price control program. Only a few months ago administration spokesmen were advocating the use of subsidies to encourage the production of critical minerals and certain crops that are especially desirable in wartime, and to offset abnormal transportation costs of a limited number of key commodities. To this restricted extent the argument in behalf of subsidies appears to be valid, and it is the apparent intent of Congress to permit their continued use for these purposes. But as the arbitrarily imposed price ceilings began to waver under the pressure of rising costs there emerged a demand for a broadening of the subsidy program to include a rollback of prices. Obviously such a device would serve to conceal, rather than correct, the basic weaknesses in our stabilization program. In the long run it was almost certain to lead to the piling of subsidies upon subsidies and thereby accelerate rather than check the growing menace of inflation.

But because of the supposedly popular appeal of price rollbacks these considerations received scant attention. The administration took up the program, and spokesmen for organized labor jumped in with the assertion that unless prices were rolled back the Little Steel formula and the hold-the-line order would have to give way to renewed wage demands. And on two occasions the President has encouraged this claim by saying that without the subsidy program it would be impossible to deny additional wage increases to organized workers.

This is a point of view which can only be based on a determined refusal to face the facts. Using the average for 1939 as a base, the Government's own figures show a rise in living costs to February, 1943, of 19.5 per cent. It has gone up a few more points since, but the increase is still well under 30 per cent. During the same period the average weekly earnings of factory workers went up 67.4 per cent. On the basis of these figures-and they are those of the Government-how can any one say that factory workers will have to be paid higher wages to keep abreast of the rise in living costs? Instead of giving encouragement to unwarranted wage demands, why does not the President resist them with an emphatic statement of what the facts show as to the extraordinary gains which labor already has made in relative earning power?

If Congress is going to forbid any future use of subsidies to roll back prices, as appears certain, it will be essential to keep a firm grip on the facts. Organized demands for higher wages will have to be resisted in those cases where actual earnings already are ahead of the rise in living costs. But if there is going to be a further increase in prices, something will have to be done to aid those whose earning power has not kept pace. There are many in this category, and unless they are to be mercilessly ground down, Congress and the administration will have to bury the hatchet and, on the basis of the real facts, work out a solution to relieve their plight. It can be done if there is the will to do it.

Hard Blows Urged To Ruin Enemies

Major Eliot Discusses Allied Advantages In Initiative

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

One of the great advantages of possessing the initiative in war is the ability to choose the time, place and circumstances of combat. When one side has grown strong enough to deprive the other of freedom of action, the strong side can make its advantage cumulative by forcing a fight on its weakening opponent under conditions favorable to itself, thus producing disproportionate loss and com pelling disproportionate expenditure of effort. The battle of Tunisia was an excellent example of this principle.

We, the Allied powers, used our strategic mobility, our command of the sea, to open a new theater of operations in Northwest Africa. The enemy had to come and fight us there. If he failed to do so, then he had to submit to the early and complete destruction of Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps, the opening of the Mediterranean last winter instead of this spring, and the enormous loss of prestige.

He had to fight under crushing disadvantages. He could go to Africa only by air (against powerful opposition) and by what ships he could contrive to slip through our blockade, which were not many. Our sea lanes to Africa were wide open, save for the attrition of U-boats. The enemy was not able to build up in Africa sufficient fighting strength by the means which were at his disposal to match the fighting strength we could put there by the much ampler means at our disposal.

The result was inevitable. We had seized the initiative, and we used it to force the enemy to come and fight us on a battleground of our own choosing, and at a time of our own choosing. It is almost axiomatic not only that the enemy should, under the conditions, be defeated, but also that he should suffer far heavier losses than we, because he had to put forth so much more effort in proportion to the actual amount of fighting power he was able to bring to the decisive combat area.

We can and will bring this principle into further practice. Let us take Sicily as an example. Suppose we now begin an invasion of that island. The Germans can withdraw and leave the defense of Sicily to the Italians. If they do that it is not improbable that the defense will collapse after a more or less considerable show of resistance. The loss of Sardinia might follow, and the loss of Corsica. Peninsular Italy would be hopelessly in thrall to our air power and our amphibious power.

From Corsica, the south coast of France would be menaced with invasion. The Italian garrisons in the Balkans might throw down their arms. The Germans would then have to make up their minds whether to make a stout defense of Northern Italy, or to admit our air bases to the Plain of Lombardy, threatening all the hitherto comparatively safe industrial establishments of South Germany, Austria and Bohemia. Each advance of ours would present a new problem, a new danger.

So let us suppose the Germans decide to take a forward part in the defense of Sicily. In that case, they will have to put strong air forces and at least five or six divisions of their best troops into the island. They can delay us, cause us severe losses, but in the end our sea and air power will isolate the Axis troops in Sicily, and they will very likely perish there. Another German army will be destroyed, like the one at Stalingrad and the one in Tunisia.

Once more we shall have compelled the Germans to come and fight us on a battlefield of our choosing, and once more the Germans will have purchased time at the cost of a net reduction in their defensive strength when the final and decisive battle of Germany comes to be joined.

Take the problem of Spain. From the German point of view, an invasion of Spain is strategically very attractive. If German air and submarine bases could be established on the Strait of Gibraltar. cur use of the Mediterranean-one of the principal gains of our victory in Africa-might be sharply reduced, if not altogether nullified for the time being. But the moment the Germans cross the Pyrenees, the Spanish government must take its stand. It must call in our forces to defend it, or it must admit the Germans and thus become our enemy.

In either case our course is perfectly clear-we take steps to occupy Spanish Morocco, we expand the bridgehead covering Gibraltar till it commands most of the southmost tip of Spain, and we occupy the Balearic Islands. The Germans are then committed to a campaign in Southern Spain, against a distant stronghold to which their lines of communications are long and difficult, while our lines of communication are seaborne and of great capacity.

The more force the Germans employ in such an enterprise, the more they weaken themselves on other fronts. The greater the proportion of their reserves they use in Spain, the greater their loss of freedom of action on the Russian front, and against an Allied invasion of Europe at some other place.

Or let us suppose that we now attempt an invasion of Northern Norway-but why continue with such details which repeat themselves? You can figure them out for yourself. We have the initiative, we have the sea power, we have the air power, we have troops sufficient to back up our amphibious enterprises or to meet anything the enemy may do.

All that is needed now is leadership, courage, determination to carry the fight to the enemy, to make him come to meet us on our chosen battlefields, and thus ultimately to work his complete and utter ruin. The harder the blows we strike, the sooner we shall be at the end of the need for striking them at all. (Copright, 1943. by New York Tribune, Inc.)

"Dear Sir: "I have read your column for a long time and my first wish is to congratulate you on the simply marvelous work that you are doing, particularly in war time, when so very many people seem to forget that man's dear friends among the dumb animals need just as much care as they ever did, even more during blackouts.

"But my real reason for writing to you is to enlist your help in stopping something frightful that I heard about at a lawn party in Fairfax recently.

Replies to Criticism

Of Jehovah's Witnesses. To the Editor of The Star:

In the hope of doing good to some of your readers and harm to none and in answer to three letters appearing in the June 23d Star, I humbly submit the following facts.

Does F. M. stop to think that the great and all-powerful Creator of the universe created the first human pair as free moral agents and did not make them do anything, not even the right thing? Is the Supreme Court to be reproached because it shows a spark of the Maker's wisdom? Sincere and honest-hearted persons would do well to study Acts v:34-39 and xxii:3. Now as to Mr. Walker's comment concerning the rendering of certain things to Caesar and other things to God, the question naturally arises as to where to draw the line. To hypocritical religionists of all times there is no line. "The chief priests answered, 'We have no king but Caesar'." Matt. xix:15. Daniel of old, the three faithful Hebrew children and the prophets and apostles surely would not have suffered such unspeakable persecution if they had gone totalitarian and been snared by "Caesar," "The fear of man bringeth a snare." Proverbs xxix:25.

Now as to H. M.'s remarks I have something in common with him, or is it her. I, too, have visited Fort Lauderdale. Just as H. H. says, there are J. Ws'. even in that "neck of the woods." I know some of them personally. For instance, there is a Roy D. Goodrich, much my elder in both age and Christian service. Roy Goodrich has been the victim of two vicious cowardly mob attacks, almost causing his death because he has studied the Ten Commandments and tried conscientiously to obey the second one even when not considered expedient by un-American mobsters who make their own laws. The severity of his bodily punishment, scars of which still remain, is beyond my ability to describe. Those who "frame mischief by law" (Psalms xciv:20) will find a more foolproof statute to use against "those pestiferous Jehovah's Witnesses" and may seem to succeed for a time. To such mischiefmakers the following words are applicable: "For it must needs be that offences come but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh." Matt. xviii:6.7. J. R. SAVAGE.

'Confusion' In New Act Denied

Chief Contribution Is Provision for 'Cooling Off'

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

A curious effort to make it appear to the public that the new War Labor Disputes Act is "confusing" has developed in labor circles, though the truth is the law is so innocuous and so lacking in penalties that the mystery will always be why the labor unions raised such a furore in opposition.

Congress has merely done what it always has done for the last 35 years when labor dis-

David Lawrence. putes became acute-it has provided "cooling off" machinery and yet has not abolished the right to strike or quit work. Congress in the new law has not imposed compulsory arbitration or placed on either labor or employers any legal obligation to accept the War Labor Board's settlement of labor controversies.

Stated in logical sequence and in the order in which the disputes may develop and come within governmental machinery for mediation, the operations of the new law would be substantially as follows:

1. A dispute arises between employes and management in a war production plant. It grows serious. A strike is talked of and is actually planned. The "representative of the employes" must give the Government 30 days' notice of an intended work stoppage. A secret ballot is taken under the auspices of the National Labor Relations Board so the workers may express themselves freely.

Remote Penalty.

The employer and employes must continue to work under the existing conditions until a vote is taken There are, however, no penalties for ignoring or violating this provision except the vague language that damage suits can be filed by injured parties, including the Government. This is at best a remote deterrent.

2. While the strike vote machinery is under way, the "no-strike pledge" influence of the labor leaders can come into play and if the situation appears to be developing toward a real work stoppage, the War Labor Board can enter into the controversy of its own initiative and prescribe the conditions of the contract or settlement. But again there is no penalty provided for failure to obey such an order from the War Labor Board. There is no power of coercion whatsoever behind this except the influence of public opinion.

3. If the influence of public opinion and the pleas of national labor leaders fail, then the Government may seize the plant in question and operate it until "productive efficiency" has been restored and then the properties must go back to their owners. Just what is "productive efficiency" will be decided in each case on the facts but since productive efficiency does not usually come while there are unsettled labor questions, it is doubtfu! whether a plant would be returned until a complete settlement is reached.

Strikes Then Barred.

long established and publicly accept- it should not be confined to wared by President Roosevelt and time. former Presidents because it is a necessary counterpart of the right of the State to protect its own property and work projects.

To say that workers in war plants will wish to strike because there is available now a machinery that requires them to give notice is to say that labor leaders do not mean what they have been publicly proclaiming about the effectiveness of their "no strike" pledge.

If some labor union officers misjudge a situation and fail to give notice of a work stoppage, nothing serious can befall them. The same provision of law could be used by patriotic labor leaders to squelch the "unauthorized" or "wildcat" strikes which national unions have sometimes claimed to be powerless to

The ban on labor union contributions to political campaigns is, of course, really serious for the unions and also for President Roosevelt who, understandably perhaps in view of certain coming events in 1944, cited the clause as one of two principal objections to the bill last week. He said the proposed restriction wasn't relevant in wartime and yet there will be a big election in wartime in 1944 and the corporations, banks and other individuals who are forbidden to contribute to political campaigns will be under restraint of existing law, whereas if the President had had his way the labor unions would have remained free to confiscate union dues out of their huge treasuries to support candidates whom their rank and file might not wish to support. Workers can still contribute as individuals but under the law of last week they cannot be solicited by union officers nor can assessments be imposed for political purposes. The net effect may possibly be to reduce some of the coercive tactics of the labor lobbyists who have threatened members of Congress with defeat by means of these same

Swedes See Danger to Democracies in Subjecting Conquered Germany to Revenge

By DOROTHY THOMPSON. In our preoccupation with European events, it is well to observe what those who are closest to them think. Sweden is an island in a Nazi sea. It has close contacts with the fog-veiled continent of Europe. Though neutral. Sweden s y m pathizes with the Allies, and especially with Norway. Their relative independence enables them to maintain greater objectivity than is given to belligerents or victims. And they are a European people and will have to live in whatever Europe emerges after the war. In this connection it is interesting that the most pro-ally Swedes are beginning to worry at the apparent growth in both Britain and America of revenge ideas directed against the Ger-mon people as a whole. These ideas received powerful impetus a few days ago from the British Labor Party, a majority representation of which accepted a resolution stating that Hitlerism "is the truest expression of the German nation.'

Theory Prolongs War.

If so progressive a force as the Labor Party, whose basic principles should lead them to quite other conclusions, takes this view, it is not astonishing that here in America some newspapers and politicians are bristling with revenge, and there are suggestions that the German nation will be punished by being dismembered, put for years under foreign control, educated by foreign teachers, and even de-industrialized, i.e., sentenced to starvation.

Such ideas grow in the absence of any clear, official statements regarding the future of our defeated German enemy. And there is no doubt in my own mind that the dissemination of these ideas contributes to prolonging the Recently the leading Swedish daily, Dagens Nyeter, which has been astonishingly outspoken against the Nazis, considering the precarious position of Sweden, published an article which will certainly not please the Nazis, but will not please the revenge-politicians either.

The author, Albert Brock-Utne, warned that the democracies must maintain a legal and ethical attitude, and fight for law and justice, not vengeance, or they will lose their own democracy

Laws Provide Means. "Vengeance," says the author, associating himself clearly with the enemies of the Nazis, "is contrary to the nature of de-

Quoting an anti-Nazi Norwegian leader who also had warned against lynch law, he says, "The Norwegians fight not only for a nationally independent, but also for a democratic Norway. Public security is one of the most important parts of a democratic constitution. We

The pen- sociations or nonprofit organizaalty for this is a fine and imprison- tions and at the same time should ment for a year or both. But all make the prohibition of labor union that is said here is that nobody can contributions an integral part of the encourage or bring about a strike Federal Corrupt Practices Act for among Government workers against all time. For, as the President rethe Government itself-a principle marked, if the reform is meritorious,, fight the Nazis because they repeal public security, and it would be moral suicide to follow their example."

Then, the author points out that the laws of every country, including those of Germany itself, provide means for dealing with the Nazis. "Quisling and his satellites have broken a long series of paragraphs of the Norwegian criminal law, and we would do them a service by letting them escape with lynching and giving the ma martyr aureole. Tried and sentenced before the regular courts, granting the accused all legal rights, they would be revealed for what they are: Inferior and nasty gangsters. . . .

Broke German Laws. "Everywhere the Nazis have broken the laws of the mother country and should be sentenced according to these, and this also applies to the dictators. In 1933 the Nazis had no majority in the German Reichstag but nevertheless usurped all the power, which is a clear breach of the German law, and it is not necessary to make new laws to punish the Nazi leaders."

This argument could be enlarged indefinitely. Hitler became chancellor under the Weimar Constitution, to which he swore allegiance. This constitution has never been legally abrogated, and Hitler is indictable for nearly every crime on the law books, including murder. Under the Weimar Constitution, international law and treaties are part of the German law. It is not necessary to enumerate here how often he has violated these provisions.

The Swedes have seen, more clearly than we, the outrages committed by the Nazis throughout Europe. Nevertheless, they reject the theory that the behavior of peoples under the heel of tyrants is characteristic of their permanent nature.

The author of the article I have quoted points out an historical truism: "History's cultural curves show that it is not impossible that Germany may, in the course of some years, be more humane than the Allies. Perpetual national character does not exist."

Finally, he warns against what is most greatly to be feared: "The tide of vengeance would bring to the surface those we last want to see in power. As long as we keep to democracy, law and humanism, our own would-be dictators will have no chance of winning power. The process of revenge would lead to dictatorship; therefore, revenge is treason against ourselves. Western culture can only be preserved after the war through a clear, well-thoughtout, humanistic and democratic

Justice is not softness. But justice presumes an ethical order of affairs, and judgment according to that legal and ethical order, and not according to who happens to be top dog. Justice does not generalize. Justice is specific; it brings its case. Bill Unleashed Pressure.

Anything but that has been their constant plea. For a long time, with the help of the President, they staved antistrike legislation off with phony nonstrike pledged until Congress, angered not only by the coal strike but by plenty of others with which John L. Lewis had nothing to do and friends of the President had much, finally passed the Connally-Smith bill.

Then the labor lobbyists descended on the President and applied full pressure. And, though Mr. Roosevelt was strongly urged to sign the bill by his most intimate friends and aides, he went in the other direction. No one contended the bill was a

This Changing World

Spaniards, Seeing U.S. and Britain as Guard Against Communism, Lean More Toward Allied Cause

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The unequivocal adherence of the bulk of the Latin American republics to the Allied cause begins to be felt in the Iberian Peninsula.

The strong cultural and in tellectual bonds which tie the former Spanish and Port u guese possessions in the New World with the mother countries are having an effect on the population of Constantine Brown. Portugal and Spain.

The fact that the American and British ground and air forces have had the upper hand in the last nine months in all their engagements against the Axis has contributed greatly to the gradual change which is reported occurring among the people in the southwestern corner of Eu-

Portugal has maintained a strict neutrality since the outbreak of the war in spite of heavy pressure exercised on her by the belligerents. The Nazis, however, were happy to see her remain neutral because it offered an excellent field of activity for Axis agents.

The situation in Spain, however, is totally different. The government of Generalissimo Franco has been patterned to a great extent after that of Mussolini and Hitler. The strongest bond which tied the Spanish government to the Axis has been the hatred of Communism. This has played an even greater role than the gratitude of Franco to the Axis powers for the support given him in defeating the Loyalists.

Axis Charges Answered. The Axis agents have been very active since 1941 in charging the British, and later the Americans, with desiring to hand the whole of Europe over to Communism by giving a free hand to Moscow on the European continent.

Allied propaganda has been successful in disposing of this story. It has explained to the Spanish people, who have a keen political mind, that Russia certainly has no political views about Western Europe and that even if Moscow wanted to spread Communism everywhere. it would not suit the people of

The Allies' action in North Africa have been such that they appealed neither to the extreme rightests nor to the extreme leftists in Spain. But they did appeal to the average Spaniard because we attempted to apply old-fashfoned liberalism in the areas entered by Allied forces.

The result of this policy, according to diplomatic reports, has been that the Spanish people have changed their attitude toward the Allies from one of hostile to friendly neutrality. The fact that the American and British Governments have done their utmost to ease the terrific economic crisis in Spain also has contributed to a better understanding between the Allies and the Spanish people.

The Madrid government continues to look on the situation as one in which the main issue is between Communism and totalitarianism and continues to prefer the latter. But it cannot ignore the trends which are becoming clearer every day among the Spanish people. The Spaniards are deeply religious and are individualists politically. The Nazis were uncouth and heavy handed in the earlier stages of the war through their Gestapo agents and clumsy propagandists.

At the same time they were extravagant in their promises to help Spain overcome her economic predicament.

The principal trump card the Reich possessed in the last few months-permission to let Spanish merchantmen circulate unmolested to take supplies from Argentina to Spanish ports-has much less value now. The Allied anti-submarine campaign has been so successful in the last two months that immunity from submarine attacks is now of little value to the Spaniards.

In the meantime, neither food nor manufactured products-except some ersatz junk-reached Spain from Axis countries. Furthermore, Mussolini, who was more popular with the masses than Hitler, has been shown up to be nothing but a weak leader who is ready to collapse under the strain of the Allied attacks. Feels Pulse of People.

All these factors indicate to the professional diplomats that Spaniards are much more favorably disposed toward the United States and Britain than they are toward Italy and Germany, in spite of the policy their government still appears to follow. Generalissimo Franco, who has a fair idea of the trends and tendencies in his country, realizes that his position might easily become jeopardized if he made a wrong move. He is loath to have internal trouble and should the Spanish people decide that they want to throw their lot with the Allies, there is little he could

The Allies do not need Spain for military purposes. They are satisfied with her unequivocal neutrality. But they maintain that Spain's neutrality must be genuinely friendly.

In order to improve a situation which a year ago looked extremely doubtful and created grave concern when our military strategists formulated plans for the invasion of North Africa, it is considered necessary that Spain's economic situation be improved as much as possible, in spite of Franco's black record with the American people

Tries to Outdo Chair Strategists By HENRY McLEMORE. LONDON.-Some of the most profound nonsense being written in the world today comes off the typewriters of English military observ-

Until I had Henry McLemore. read these gentlemen's daily analyses of what was going to happen, I thought our American swivel-chair strategists were supreme when it came to saying nothing in two or three thousand words, but the English strategists can spot our very best men four hollow phrases and three cliches and beat them to the finish of a dull paragraph by 100 vards.

At the moment, these Fleet Street field marshals are enjoying their greatest hour in the sun. With a second .front either just about to happen or just NOT about to happen, they are having a tremendous field day. They have the whole world to pick from as to where the second front will start and they have overlooked few places as likely spots for an all-out offensive. In one paper you will read that the Low Countries are the only logical spot, while in another you will see where another observer favors the Himalaya Mountain peaks.

Twilight Lost.

I have read so many of these pieces in the past few months that I feel obliged to give my views on a second front, couched in the meaningless words of my British contemporaries. There can be no gainsaying that when 8,000 tons of bombs are dropped on a tool shed in the Ruhr, even the most skeptical will admit that the tool shed will at least be temporarily rendered useless for military purposes. On the other hand, if the tool shed is missed, is daylight bombing worth-

As Arthur J. Topknot, in his fourth volume on modern war, said so brilliantly, "Night bombing can only be effective at night and daylight bombing can only be effective in the daytime. All-out war must utilize the twilight. We are wasting those precious hours in the gloaming and the balance of power may yet swing to that nation which first produces a twilight bomber.

Subs Are Subs

There can be no questioning of Prof. Topknot's reasoning. However, as I pointed out in my lectures before the Royal Dustmen Fellows at the Thames College for Flower Arranging, many of England's greatest battles were won without bombing, so is bombing necessary at all?

After four years of war the submarine menace is still the submarine menace. Soldiers must be fed and clothed. Food and clothing must be carried by boats. Boats will sink when hit by a torpedo. Clothes and food that sink cannot be worn or eaten by soldiers. Some of my colleagues will argue with this line of thought but I am sure that if they will take the trouble and time to think this problem through, they will admit the logic of my position

At the risk of later being called a false prophet, I flatly say here that the chances of a second front being opened on a weekday as against a Sunday are six to one.

One Never Knows.

No right thinking man will deny that it would be much better if Generals De Gaulle and Giraud would not squabble. Certainly that is the way the Algerian picture looks to me and my opinion is based on an extensive knowledge of France gained by a three-day stay there in 1934 and a serious study of most of the Louvre nudes as well as by long talks with diplomats in Montparnasse and the American Express Co. office, where I was waiting for a check from

This is the war as I see it today. Of course, it may be changed by tomorrow. But that's the heck of it in this world of flux-you never know what's going to happen next. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

De Gaulle Is Warned Political Squabbles Must Not Interfere

Allies Insist on Measures To Speed Up Campaign And Safeguard Forces

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON,

Gen. Charles de Gaulle and his adherents had unofficial but emphatic notice today that the Allied commander in French Africacharged with final preparations for an assault on Axis-held Europewill brook no interference due to French political controversies.

An exposition of Anglo-American policy and purposes made available to this writer by such informants and in such circumstances as to leave no doubt as to its authenticity makes it clear that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be firmly supported by both governments in whatever additional steps he finds it necessary to take to secure his communication lines, avert delay in using the French African bases for aggressive action against the enemy and, above all, reduce the hazards to American, British and French forces under his

The Allied commander took the first step when he insisted to the French Committee for National Liberation at Algiers that Gen. This institution, birthplace of Radar, has produced, during the last two decades, many secret devices which have made the United States Fleet the most formidable in the war. The hundreds of scientists, technicians and other civilian employes engaged daily around the clock will pause briefly during the afternoon. They will be addressed by Undersecretary of the Navy James V Forrestal, Capt. Thomas L. Gatch, and Dr. Charles F. Kettering, director of General Motors Research

In addition to its work on Radar, the laboratory is responsible in large measure for the growing success of the United Nations in combating Axis submarines through the perfection of underwater sound detection and echo ranging instruments. Basic research and development of this apparatus was accomplished under the supervision of Dr. Harvey C. Hayes.

The chemistry division, under the supervision of Dr. P. Borgstrom, has improved chemicals for decontamination of poison gases, gas de-tectors, masks and cannisters, protective clothing and has solved many other gas problems. The mechanics and electricity division has made outstanding progress in the field of ballistics, particularly in the field of Army plate and projectile penetration.

The institution trains hundreds of Navy personnel in installation. operation and maintenance of the

The laboratory was formally opened in 1923 following the early efforts of Thomas A. Edison, and other scientists to meet the Navy's research needs.

Action on Money Bills Speeded by Congress, Anxious to Recess

Finish Fight Is Due On House Demands for Liquidation of NYA

A recess-minded Congress opened full throttle today in an effort to complete legislative action this week on appropriation bills totaling $115,000,000,000. The way was cleared for quick Senate passage of the War Departmen's appropriation bill, which provides for nearly 100,000 new planes, and for a finish fight over House demands for liquidation of the National Youth Administration. Barring unexpected complications, congressional leaders hope to start a vacation soon lasting until about the middle of September, after taking the unusual precaution of empowering minority leaders, as well as those of the majority, to call members back into session in event of an emergency.

Senator Truman, Democrat, of Missouri sought support for a $47,-000,000 amendment to the $1,100,-000,000 Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill to finance a continuation of NYA's youth training and student-aid program under the War Manpower Commission.

Truman Backs NYA Work.

Senator Truman, chairman of the Senate's War Investigating Committee, contended NYA's work was "absolutely essential" in training young men and women for manual tasks in war plants and shipyards.

On the other hand, Chairman Byrd of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures voiced vigorous support of the House proposal to allow NYA $3,000,000 with which to liquidate by next January 1.

The Senate Appropriations Committee sought to complete hearings today on a $2,800,000 war agency bill from which the House lopped $35,000,000 of price administration funds. The House wrote in a ban against subsidies and deducted $5,500,000 from Office of War Information funds with a view to scrapping its Domestic Operations

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, expressed the view the committee would recommend "a little money" for OWI Director Elmer Davis' Domestic Operations with strict limitations against issuance of pamphlets and other domestic ac-

Recess Resolution Ready. The recess resolution is ready for adoption before the lawmakers leave for their vacation.

Significantly, the resolution comes at a time when relations between President Roosevelt and Congress are complicated by conflict over such ti-strike subsidy payments.

House Majority Leader McCormack, however, made a point of explaining that the this "unusual but justifiable" procedure was necessary because of the war with its accompanying uncertainties.

Under normal procedure, Congress cannot reconvene during a recess unless recalled by the President or unless it has fixed by resolution a specific date for reconvening the next regular session

But under the procedure decided on by the leaders the recessed Congress may go back into session at any time on The call of Speaker Rayburn and

He recomputes the 1942 tax to see how much of this excess was due to the inclusion of the "earned" income (i. e., from wages or salary) up to $14,000. Subtracting from the 1942 income all salary income not in excess of $14,000 would leave $1,000 of the salary income and the $5,000 of investment income, or a total of $6,000, on which the tax would be approximately $1,200.

U. S. Employes' Union Asks Senate Unit to Table Lawyers' Bill

Fahy Defends Measure; Veterans Ask Preference Be Considered Further

Stengle of the Federation of Gov- Jersey, and Vorys, Republican, of ernment Employes (AFL), today Ohio. asked a special subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee to table the bill.

Mr. Stengle was one of several opponents of the legislation presenting their views to the subcommittee session attended by three Democratic members, Senators George of Georgia, Byrd of Virginia and Scrugham of Nevada.

Charles Fahy, solicitor general of the United States and chairman of the Board of Legal Examiners, defended the measure and sought to justify its continued existence.

Veterans Express Doubts. The spokesman for the Disabled American Veterans and the American Legion, who said they previously had hoped that a special amendment inserted by the House in the measure would protect the rights of the veterans, today expressed serious doubts and asked further consideration for veteran's

The pending legislation is designed to give statutory authority by the board, appropriations for which during the forthcoming fiscal vear beginning July 1 have been stricken from two different appropriation bills. Attorney General Biddle on Saturday appealed for immediate favorable action on the pending

Mr. Stengle charged the proposal was "disruptive." He pointed to the proposal made by Attorney General Biddle that the measure could be amended to make the board subject to the Civil Service Commission's jurisdiction. Mr. Biddle's proposal Mr. Stengle contended, made the board itself unnecessary as its work could be taken over by the Civil Service Commission.

Veterans' representatives were L. S. Ray of the American Legion National Legislative Committee and Millard W. Rice of the Disabled American Veterans.

First witness today was George D. Riley of the Washington Times-Herald, who sharply criticized the

"Unranked Register."

Mr. Fahy contended that the socalled "unranked register" of potential Government lawyers set up by the board was operating to "improve the caliber of men in the lower brackets."

If the board were abolished, he predicted, the same work would have to be thrown to the Civil Service Commission requiring the same amount of personnel and appro-

Mr. Fahy pointed to a report of the House Civil Service Committee on the measure, saying the committee had "obtained a rather favorable impression of the work of the Board in recent months but prefers to withhold approval until pending legislation on the matter is favorably acted on."

They Are Expendable

IN the language of the Navy a ship is expend-A able if it can be sacrificed to protect a larger and more valuable force.

On the production front railroad cars and coaches and engines are expendable-for to those charged with winning the victory they are less valuable these days than the materials of war they carry.

Ask any traveler, or any shipper, or any railroad employee about the war job being done by these tireless public servants of steel and wood.

All previous performance records have been broken and broken again. Despite the fact that thousands of old cars and locomotives have been brought back from retirement and pressed into service, the ton-miles of freight now carried per car and per engine are the highest in railroad history.

But the situation is not without its cost—to the country as well as to the roads. For rails and engines and cars wear out with use rather than with age. And during the war they are being "consumed" at an enormous rate.

It is not to be expected, in the midst of total war, that such equipment can receive normal maintenance and repair. The men and materials this would take are needed for ships and tanks and guns.

But if our railroads could put away in a tax-free reserve the earnings that would now be spent on such repairs (were it possible to make them), it would help to solve the problem. After the war, when the work can be done, the roads could put themselves back in good order.

If the railroads could make the repairs now, the cost, of course, could be charged to their normal expense of doing business. But because they cannot, the money is subject to tax as "profits."

No thinking American wants us to face our post-war reconstruction with impoverished and depleted railroads. And one of the best ways to guard against it is to allow the railroads to set aside now tax-free reserves for deferred maintenance.

The iron horse is expendable in wartime. But he is also indispensable to our future.

The last time the Nats viewed Curtwright he was in the White Sox line-up only against left-handed pitching. Now he's an established regular, hitting .368 after serving a nine-year apprenticeship in the minors.

Gordon Appears Snapping Out of Great Slump

Yank Boosts Average 45 Points in 4 Tilts; Races Unchanged

Associated Press Sports Writer Don't look now, folks, but the atest hospital reports indicate Joe Gordon's long-ailing bat may be about to sit up and take a little nourishment again. The patient still is pretty weak, mind you, with a hitting "temperawhich means no visitors and plenty of sunshine still to come. But in the last few days it's been showing that there still are signs of life. Topping off the "recovery" with four hits in the twin bill the Yankees cut up with the Red Sox yesterday-including a two-run homer that won the opener for the Bombers-the Flash has chipped in with eight safe wallops in four games and pulled his average up 45 points.

Now, this may not mean that the slump which has been taking all the shine off Joe since early last September finally has responded to medical treatment. But the fact that he shows he still knows a bat may be used for something besides stirring up bathtub gin is heartening, Slump Hard to Explain. It's been one of the worst slumps in modern times, largely because there didn't seem to be any reason for it. In the World Series last fall. he wasn't only the goat—he was the whole sheep ranch. At the time, there was one story that the war was affecting his play; that he worried so much about where he could fit into the picture that he just didn't give a rap about baseball.

With Weill he should go places and And his awful antics have been going on all through this spring up to now. At times it not only has been evident in his stickwork, but even in his fielding, which is like saying he also stopped eating, be-cause playing that middle base is about as natural to Joe as tearing

But now he's on the way again and yesterday, with a single, two doubles, a homer and three runs batted in, he was the head man of a big league party that popped up with some of the fanciest parlor tricks of the year.

There were such things, for instance, as Hurler Howie Krist winning both ends of a double-header for the St. Louis Cardinals; Clevebatting pile, and the Cincinnati Reds taking both ends of a double bill for the first time since last Sep-

By LARRY LAWRENCE. Members of Eva Rabbitt's victorious North End team have another blue ribbon in their collections after yesterday's victory in the third and final North-South competition of the Washington Bridle Trials' Association summer horse show.

Though Mrs. Dorothy Smith's South Enders hit their stride and came through with only three faults. the Northerners amassed just 11/2 faults to give them a decisive triumph in the series, 312 to 19. Elsie Thompson's Hi-Boy, ridden by Peter Prins, and Mrs. F. Stone's Sing Song with Mrs. Walter Kees up mainly were responsible for the North's victory, going through all three competitions with perfect scores. A jumpoff within the North team for the horse to represent it in the individual low-score championship of the two teams was necessary. Hi-Boy kept his record intact in the jumpoff and against Mrs. Smith's St. Nick, low scorer for the South, had another perfect round. 6 SHELLS FOR EISENHOWER-INSTEAD OF 5

A revolutionary new method that saves steel, cuts costs and speeds production to smash six hammer blows at tyranny—in place of only five

Six shells where only five grew before!

The secret of that potent increase is a different type of draw bench which permits far greater accuracy of forging and produces a 155 mm. howitzer shell from a 126-pound billet instead of from the standard 150-pound billet. More than six for five-actually six and four-tenths!

Pullman-Standard alone has saved 28 thousand tons of precious steel by this method-fed an extra ration to Freedom's hungry guns everywhere; to say nothing of saving countless dollars for American taxpayers. Pullman-Standard introduced this better method in this country-tried it, proved its worth-made it available to all who sought to learn. Alert manufacturers recognized and adopted this new process, thus saving countless additional tons of precious steel.

Six instead of five!—and this is only one of many stirring war-born improvements that must surely, in days to come, help to win peacetime victories; even as now they contribute so much to winning on battlefields of human Freedom!

For, as we explore into complex postwar problems, we shall find this to be true -our most precious "discoveries" will be those devised and perfected in the vast laboratory of America's war production. Scientific and engineering improvements past counting!-new and better metals and techniques, faster production methods, new and ingenious applications of proved and trusted devices and processes-and above all, better Men! Men who have dug deep into themselves and found new and inspiring capacities for usefulness!

Men from apprentice workers to highest executives, who have been forged and tempered to new alertness, to new capabilities! Men who are dynamic symbols of the extraordinary inventive genius, the infinite resourcefulness, the inextinguishable curiosity of American industry.

To Transportation of Tomorrow, Pullman-Standard dedicates all its wealth of new and better methods developed in the crucible of war production; and rededicates its 84 years of rich and varied experience. We serve Transportation. We have grown with it-we are part of it. All our potent resources of men and machines have this one objective-that through better Transportation we may serve you Tomorrow, with such convenience and economy, comfort and safety as this world has never before known.

3463 Manufacturers, Large and Small Unite to Spread the Work

Under Pullman-Standard's co-ordination and direction, and operating under 29,435 contracts, 3463 suppliers and sub-contractors contribute to the vast armament production program undertaken by this Company. Pullman-Standard draws upon 1630 small manufacturers, 1200 medium-sized ones, and only 633 that could be considered large. Many of these sub-contractors have in turn let sub-subcontracts — thousands of them — one medium-sized manufacturer alone drew on 500 subsubcontractors and suppliers. With this democratic plan of spreading the work there have been or are now being produced by Pullman-Standard:

Tanks • Howitzer Carriages • Bombs • Shells of various calibers & sizes • Parts for Anti-Aircraft Gun Mounts • Aircraft Major Sub-Assemblies • Trench Mortars • Naval Patrol Craft • Freight & Passenger Cars for the Army, Navy & Railroads

Other materials for the war program are also being manufactured by Pullman-Standard under sub-contracts.

Pullman-Standard plants at Butler, Pa. and Hammond, Ind. have been given the Army and Navy "E" Production awards.

Speedy Action On Slum Report

Other D. C. Leaders Call for Measures In Health Menace

Speedy action to improve health and sanitation conditions in the District, along the lines recommended yesterday in the strongly-worded D'Alesandro report, was urged today by Dr. Thomas Parran, United States surgeon general.

Other Government and civic leaders also joined in demanding the "corrective measures" which the report warned must be initiated immediately if serious threats of epidemics here are to be eliminated.

tions dealing with venereal disease, providing additional low-rent public housing to replace existing insanitary slum dwellings, and greatly extending services of the District Health Department

Among those calling for action was Representative Plumley, Republican, of Vermont, whose March 21 speech on the House floor charging insanitary conditions here led to the investigation which produced the report. Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas and Harry Wender, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, also made statements commending the D'Al-

Dr. George Ruhland, District health officer, who, the report said, "must display more aggressive action in the solution of public health problems," hailed the D'Alesandro committee's recommendation that appropriations for public health work here be virtually doubled from the present $1.20 per capita.

Of the District Commissioners, who were sharply criticized at several points in the report, only Commissioner Guy Mason was available today. He refused to comment.

Chairman Randolph of the House Plumley made his charges, indi- ratification, it was learned today. cated the District Committee would meet some time this week to take formal note of the subcommittee's recommendations.

Findings Called Vigorous.

Dr. Parran described the findings of the D'Alesandro committee as been sent to 55 organizations, con-"the most comprehensive, vigorous and interesting report I have ever seen come from a Congressional committee on health conditions in the District of Columbia.'

Dr. Parran said he knew that Dr. Ruhland "has agitated for five years or more to secure a competent sanitary engineer," appointment which the report recommended as one of the first needs in meeting cal sanitary problems.

"In recommending more aggressive action by the health officer," Dr. Parran said, "it should be recalled that recommendations from the health officer in Washington and in other jurisdictions must be approved by layers of higher authority before being released to the public.

The surgeon general indorsed as "quite accurate" the subcommittee's statement that insanitary housing is a greater menace than violation of food and drug laws. He said, however, that the report "failed to suggest an equally specific law to deal

Dealers Fear Cut In Deliveries if Heat Continues

A critical shortage in ice faces Washington restaurants, hotels and hospitals unless there is a break in the heat wave, ice dealers said today following the poisoning yesterday of five persons who had eaten improperly kept sea-food.

A spokesman for the American Ice Co., largest ice dealer in the city. said that "in spite of everything, deliveries were made on schedule yesterday—"but we expect anything to happen if this heat keeps up." Some of the smaller dealers did not fare so well, however, and many of the restaurants were without ice over the week end, a situation which was believed responsible for the food poisoning cases. Main difficulty in obtaining ice was due to the manpower shortage and the added burden put on sup-reasons contributed to the ice short-Ice dealers said the situation here is reflected over the Atlantic seaboard from Philadelphia to Florida American follower of the Dominican Additional burdens were put on ice supplies by a heavy movement of crops, manpower shortages and transportation troubles. The spokesmen here, however, pointed out that a single cool day would make a difference in supplying ice and there was no reason, "at this time," to get panicky.

As far as crop movement is concerned, it was said, much of the food is being moved in boxcars piled high with ice, instead of in refrigerator cars, thereby adding to the demand for bulk ice. One of the leading ice distributors here said his plant only had two days' supply left in storage because of the drain due to the heat. He said he had attempted to get ice from manufacturers in Cumberland, Md.; Alexandria, Va., and other places, without success. Ice houses also are experiencing difficulty in obtaining the manpower to distribute the ice to hotels, restaurants and the like. In one large distributing plant, there is an immediate need for about 25 menmostly storage helpers-and the situation is reflected in more than a score of plants here. The ice plants need more drivers and helpers, in addition to men who cut and store the ice. A spokesman for one large plant said he could put more than 50 men to work at once. Laundry Delays Boom Sales of Shirts, Sheets

Purchasers Complain Of Slow Service, Stores Report

By MIRIAM OTTENBERG. Delays in getting shirts and linens back from the hard-pressed laundries have resulted in men buying far more shirts than they need and

"steady run" on depleted stocks of sheets, a survey by The Star revealed today. Men's haberdashery stores reported an increasing number of nen who complained they had to buy three to six more shirts because their shirts hadn't returned from the laundries. Many of them reported their shirts had been lost or torn by the inexperienced help that is all the laundries can get, when they can

The two largest linen departments in the city both reported their stocks were being depleted because housewives are buying up to three weeks' extra supply of sheets, pillowcases and towels. The explanation they get is that their usual supply of sheets are still in the laundry.

Steady Buying Reported.

One sheet saleswoman said that housewives used to wait for "white" sales to replace torn sheets in their linen closets, but now they are buying linens steadily.

"We have been selling a great many sheets," said another saleswoman. "Most housewives have a two weeks' supply. Now they must have enough sheets for three or four weeks because their linens aren't coming back from the laundries as fast as they used to. I'm quoting the customers.

Another department store said the sheet situation had been bad for several months but was not getting worse. A buyer reported a number of people had called to ask the prices of sheets because their wash had been lost and they wanted to know how much they should ask

Luncheon Mats Favored.

Many customers, the buyer reported, are buying luncheon mats which don't have to be washed to replace their diminishing supply of clean table linens.

In addition, the men aren't so particular: They will buy anything they can get to tide them over till their laundry returns.

Increased by Hot Weather.

One man, according to a haberdashery salesman, complained his wash had been gone for 23 days. The laundry had promised each week to return it but he couldn't wait any

The stores reported a noticeable increase in shirt buying because of the hot weather, but said it was larger this year because the hot weather had made men change shirts more often and they didn't have a backlog of shirts to fall back on.

A national effort is now being made to conserve textiles. War Manpower Chief Paul V. Mc-Nutt, who is responsible for seeing that essential industries have enough workers to continue, told his press conference today that he, too, had suffered in the laundry crisis. A shirt, he said, was returned with two buttons missing. He said it was up to the area war manpower direc-

McLean Gardens Child Center To Be Opened

Wednesday Afternoon Set for Formalities: 20 Already Enrolled

The Child Care and Volunteer Training Center at McLean Gardens, a project of the District Unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services, will hold its formal opening from 5 to 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, according to an announcement.

With accommodations for 36 chileren from families living in McLean Gardens and from the nearby neighborhood, it already has an enroll-

Its two-fold purpose will be to icas. provide all day care for pre-school age children whose mothers are holding war jobs and to offer a training center for volunteers taking the District of Columbia child care aide training course.

The District AWVS has the responsibility for staffing, equipping and operating the center. The child care aide course is to be sponsored jointly by the Child Care Committee of the OCD, the Emergency Committee for the Day Care of Young Children and the AWVS.

A professional nursery school staff will be headed by the director, has had extensive experience in nursery school teaching and student training. Three nursery school teachers also will be associated in a professional capacity.

Trained AWVS volunteers, however, will have an important part in the functioning of the center. Some who have completed the will serve as assistant teachers under direct supervision of the professional staff.

All food at the center will be prepared and served by volunteers trained by the AWVS canteen unit. Menus and purchasing of food will trained in nutrition and dietetics, and all office and housekeeping details will be managed by AWVS volunteers especially qualified for

Its concern will be with all aspects of the child's development-physical, emotional and social.

In addition to two large playrooms, the building will have an administrative wing, containing a professional staff room, a student-volunteer confernece 100m, a children's isolation room and a kitchen. The outdoor play space, with a sunny exposure for winter days, also has the shade of century-old oak trees for protection through the summer

Each playroom will have a oneway vision screen for observation of the children with a minimum of disturbance to their normal daily routine. Some of the women taking the child care aide training course also will be practice teachers there. These volunteers will be trained to serve wherever they may be needed in wartime child care centers for pre-school children throughout the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Threat of Rain Holds Down Crowd For Marrow's Appearance as Symphony Guest Conductor

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

The threat of rain diminished the ordinary Sunday crowd at the Water Gate last night, where Macklin Marrow made his appearance as guest conductor of the National Symphony and the popular Margaret Speaks was the soloist. A balmy atmosphere rewarded those who attended and a refreshing breeze that stirred the flags on the barge into motion. Were it not for the change in temperature the orchestral part of the program might have been less gener- * ously received, for it did not follow ! the pattern of other summer concerts where the purely melodious and pleasing seemed to be the first

Mr. Marrow paid tribute to an American composer in his choice of Hadley's overture, "In Bohemia," for opening number. The works of this American are seldom programmed today, for they have little of the substance that stands up against either the old masters or the modernist, who have changed or educated the public's ear to other harmonies and styles. The overture has its particular melodic scheme although not of the appeal of the music of Victor Herbert, who shares with the Bohemian Club of San Francisco in the composer's dedication. Debussy's "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun" and Smetana's Moldau" followed, both of faithful allegiance to tradition. The guest conductor, while exerting a and tempi that were spirited, did not exhibit great feeling for nuance or for orchestral effects. The Debussy "Prelude" lacked atmosdescriptive potency, and Smetana's deeply felt and charming musical picture of the river and the life along its banks missed in the projection of an underlying sentiment. His of Mendelssohn's 5000

The beloved "Annie Laurie," which she gave as encore, Henschel's "Morning Hymn" and Mary Howe's "Berceuse," were beautiful examples of this gift of hers. Mrs. Howe's song, in particular, was given with rare tender-register and the fluency of her production give a soft brilliancy to numbers such as Bizet's "Ouvre ton which Mr. Marrow presented with Vienna Woods" without any metallic blemish. Elzy, 33, colored stage, screen and concert singer who played in more than 800 performances of "Porgy and Bess" and who appeared in films with such stars as Paul Robeson and Bing Crosby, died here yesterday in Parkside Hospital. Miss Elzy had been a surgical patient in the hospital which she entered after completing a coast-tocoast tour of the folk opera "Porgy and Bess," written by the late George Gershwin, who selected her to sing the soprano role of the widow Serena. The singer also had appeared in the leading role of Dolly opposite Paul Robeson in the film version of "The Emperor Jones," and with Bing Crosby as the singer of "The St Louis Blues," in the picture "Birth of the Blues.

She had appeared in special performances at the White House, and with symphony orchestras in the Hollywood Bowl and the Lewisohn Stadium in New York.

In private life Mrs. Jack Carr, Miss Elzy attended school in Pontotoc, Miss., where she won a scholarship to Rust College. She was awarded a scholarship to Ohio State University, where she was graduated from the department of music, and later she was graduated from New York's Institute of Musical

First Aid in Miniature

Teach Youngsters to Care for Minor Cuts and Bruises By Helping Them to 'Play Doctor' This Summer

All small children love to play nurse or doctor. And at the present time, when they hear so much before they dive in; to enter unof first aid, aid to the injured and known waters carefully, watching keeping in good physical condition, a wise mother may utilize these interests to help them learn to take soon after eating and make them care of themselves.

Let them help fix up a "doctor's box" with the necessary things for minor first-aid treatment and then instruct them how to use these. A trin to the five and ten for small packages of the necessary things will be both interesting and instructive. Cotton, bandage and similar things are too valuable to be wasted these days. Large packages of these will be handled and ruined for practical purposes, so invest in small containers or keep the miniature containers refilled from bottles and packages out of the reach of the

It goes without saying that any supplies in this kit should be nonpoisonous. Antiseptics should be both harmless and of a type that does not sting or burn. Peroxide is good for washing cuts. Children like to see it "boil." There are others which do not hurt and are highly effective germicides. A small roll of sterile cotton, narrow and wider bandage should be included. Put in a tube of an unguent for use in small burns or scraped shins, zinc ointment for rashes and calomine lotion for bites and poison ivy. Paste in the top of the doctor's box brief instructions for treatment of minor cuts and bruises. Then in the first two weeks, whenever a cut finger or a bruised knee provides practical opportunity, give each child in the house a chance to play doctor. You might even have weekly quizzes on first aid for "very" first-aiders, with small awards for all who qualify.

When sun baths are in order, instruct the young 'uns about sun safety. Let them understand that half an hour of play in the sun the first day is plenty. Teach them to oil up with cocoa butter or some other preparation for the first week to get a good tan without time lost with painful sunburn.

On the first trip to the swimming pool, teach them to look before they

Children Benefit By Experience At Camps

By Lettice Lee Streett Summer camps nowadays are regarded by foremost educators as an ideal and integral part of the education of the young.

That is a rather sweeping statement and, to my mind, the decision designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, that parents make as to whether or 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires. not their child is to attend camp with short sleeves, 312 yards madepends entirely upon the individual chine-made ruffling. case-it is a mistake to autocratically say-"all children should and fall sewing-a new Pattern Book go to camp." This may be tempered for fall Contains 85 new patterns instead with the sound belief that for practical wartime fashions, 15 most children are helped by the experience of summer camp and that with a 15-cent pattern for 25 cents many times parents are faulty in plus 1 cent postage. judgment when they think a young child should not leave them even for a few weeks in the summer.

Even though this may prick your maternal vanity, the fact is that children are often notably helped by being removed from their home environments for short periods of time if they are placed in harmonious surroundings during their absence from their families. Most honest mothers will ruefully admit that their small fry showed changes for the better after having been away from home for several weeks or months in schools or camps where the youngsters are properly supervised and trained.

Families who find they are obliged to remain in towns and cities during the hot months should seriously consider the possibilities of sending their children away to camps—even youngsters as young as 6 and 7 will thrive and have the times of their lives in camps that are designed expressly for members of this very young generation. There is no question about it-children look better and feel better if they can have long hours of outdoor play in a good climate at some time during the summer.

If they play in the grass underbrush, teach them to look for ticks and chiggers. Chigger bites may be lessened by washing the legs with kerosene and then with soap and water. Ticks must be discovered and picked off bodily with tweezers. They like to settle down at the back of the neck just at the hair line, in back of ears or a fold of the skin. Disinfect the spot immediately. Best of all, keep the tick in a jar with a tight lid, for identification in case a fever develops, and there is a chance that

The fact, Mrs. S. F. C., Arlington, that you cannot spread the raspberry jam is not that you overcooked it, but that your sugar content is too high for the liquid or semi-liquid of the jam. In cooking it too long, as you say, you evaporated too much of the liquid.

Here is the way to make the stuffing: Mash a nubbin of garlic and chop fine three-quarters of a cup of onion. Mix this with half a pound of raw hamburger, two cups of soft bread crumbs, one teaspoon of cinnamon, three tablespoons of chopped parsley, salt and pepper and last of all moisten with three well-beaten eggs. Mix all this thoroughly before spreading it on the slices of eggplant.

If you think that running too close to a true Armenian menu involves the use of too much eggplant, Americanize your version by substituting mushrooms or onions with the meat on the skewers. You can also omit the hamburger in the mushroom stuffing if your ration book indicates such a step is necessary. Or you can replace the whole dish of stuffed eggplant with a raw or cooked vegetable salad. However, to give the dinner a really exotic flavor, in keeping with its nationality, the more eggplant the merrier!

Fruit compote may include any cooked fruits which one fancies, but "musts" include some pears, cherries, apricots and, for each serving, a good stewed plum. See to it that they are well chilled before serving.

I had to quit school about that time. But I was still hungry to learn about planes, so I joined the Army as a day I came out of a dive too late and shaved a sorghum patch right down to the skin. I got my wings on November 15, 1940.

I was sent to McChord Field, near Tacoma, and went into B-18s. By the time the improved B-23 came along, in February of 1941, I was a first pilot.

Two months later, after a lot of wild speculation, new B-25s were sent to McChord and I couldn't eat until I had a crack at mine. I saw a lot of the B-25s after that. They're grand ships, fast and full of fight. God knows that the last one I ever flew-it was the best-deserves a better fate than it found. What is left of it is on exhibition in Tokio today.

Columbus found that the natives wore earrings and other ornaments made of gold. This is believed to explain the name of the republic which, in English, means "Coast

DISPATCHER CALLING:

The nerve center of Capital Transit is the Dispatcher's Office. Here, 24 hours a day, are cleared the myriad incidents that occur in the operation of our Street Car and Bus system. To this office by phone come reports of accidents, fires, street blockages and the many minor incidents that occur when hundreds of Cars and Buses are running all over town.

Dispatchers must have an excellent working knowledge of the whole system, be familiar with the city. As reports come in, they are quickly analyzed and instructions given. After a call is received, services needed are notified and on their way, police, fire department, Company scout cars, and emergency trucks.

To keep the dispatchers up to the minute, two short wave radios are constantly in service, one through which our own Cars and Trucks are dispatched. Normally fairly quiet and matter of fact, that office becomes a beehive of activity in bad weather, especially during snow-storms.

Biography department: Hollywood's sudden fascination for contemporary biography sweeps on. With "Rhapsody in Blue," the life of George Gershwin being "readied" as they say in the cinema, dozens of Broadway and hinterland figures will be snatchily mentioned. Already Paul Whiteman and George White have been signed to play themselves in the picture. Mr. Whiteman will be a few pounds over the weight he made back in the days when he was &-
