House Unit Deals Death Blow to Guffey Coal Act

Committee Tables Resolution to Extend Law

By the Associated Press.

A death certificate for Government regulation of the soft coal industry, under the Guffey Bituminous Coal Act drafted seven years ago in an administration effort to stabilize the coal industry, was signed in effect today by the House Rules Committee.

By majority vote, the committee tabled a stop-gap resolution to extend the act's life beyond its present August 23 expiration date until January 1.

Chairman Sabath said the Rules Committee's decision meant that the stop-gap resolution could not be brought up before Congress later, probably later this week, for a summer recess.

The lawmakers plan to return in September, after the act has expired.

"Of course," he added, "the Speaker could have some one bring it up in the House under suspension of the rules, but I doubt he will do that."

Suspension of the rules requires a two-thirds majority.

Notwithstanding a plea by President Roosevelt, the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday rejected, 13 to 11, a bill that would have extended the stabilization machinery for two years after the end of the war.

Spokesmen of the United Mine Workers and persons claiming to represent a big majority of coal producers, urged the setup be continued.

However, opponents raised the question as to need for the act since the Government, as a result of the recent coal strike, had taken over the mines.

The act, written in 1937, provides machinery for a system of minimum prices at the mines, on a regional basis, with the view to preventing price cutting, and to stabilizing the industry in which many producers are reported to have found difficulty making ends meet.

President Praises Act. Mr. Roosevelt, in a letter to Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee, said that "both the industry and the miners would feel on a more solid ground if they had the assurance that they and the country would have the benefits that have been demonstrated under the Coal Act."

"The whole coal situation is so unsettled that it would be helpful if any phase of it could be definitely concluded. . . . I am again concerned about the failure to extend the Guffey Coal Act and I hope the Ways and Means Committee will find it possible to conclude its hearings and report the bill favorably."

Argued Representative Cooper, Democrat, of Tennessee, on the purpose of the act.

"I ask you if the coal industry has been troubled? There has been more trouble in this industry than in any other in the country."

Laws Controls Prices. Operator spokesmen have testified that they like the law because of its price stabilizing features. Representatives of the miners also have asked continued as helpful to their pay envelopes.

A 1-cent a ton tax is levied under the law and the proceeds go to defray expenses of price control. The Bituminous Coal Division, which administers the law under the Interior Department, has about 1,200 employees.

McGranery Plea Fails. In a last-minute appeal, Representative McGranery, Democrat, of Pennsylvania went before the Rules Committee in an effort to get an extension on the grounds that adverse action would discourage expansion of wartime coal production.

Arguing that the measure eventually would have to be revived for postwar use, he told the committee bluntly, "You're going to have another coal act whether you like it or not."

LEFTY GOMEZ.

Nats Release Gomez; Pitcher Reveals He Will Quit Baseball

Former New York Star Hurler Only One Game For Washington

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.

DETROIT, July 6.—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, Washington pitcher, who had been service in only one game since joining the club six weeks ago, today was given his unconditional release by the Nationals.

Gomez, one of the great pitchers of his era while at his peak with the New York Yankees several years ago, said he planned to take a job outside baseball. He said he has received several offers from business concerns.

"Clark Griffith, Nats' president, has been swell to me," said Gomez, "and if I feel I can pitch next season, providing there is baseball, I'd like to go to spring training with the Washington club and see if I could make a come back."

Gomez pitched only four and two-thirds innings with Washington, starting against Chicago on May 30, but being forced to retire in the fifth inning due to a muscle cramp in his shoulder. He since has pitched only in exhibition games.

Fifteen Workers Missing In Halifax Harbor Crash

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, July 6.—Fifteen workmen were missing today after the Halifax Shipyards, Inc., tug Erg sank in Bedford Basin after a collision with a freighter.

The men were part of a crew of welders and electricians aboard the tug en route to a ship in the basin. Twenty-seven men were reported on the 55-foot craft. Twelve were accounted for, seven of them picked up by the freighter.

It was said the tug was traveling alongside the freighter, with about 20 yards separating the two vessels, when they suddenly came together, side on. The tug rolled over several times before she sank.

R. J. R. Nelson, general manager of the Halifax Shipyards, Ltd., said all aboard the tug were employees of the shipyards.

Poor visibility was advanced as a possible cause of the collision, which occurred shortly after the two craft entered the basin through the narrow gateway from Halifax Harbor.

The basin, an extension of the harbor, is one of the largest anchorages in the world.

OPA Will Allow Single 'A' Trip For Vacations

Cars May Be Used Only Where Other Means Is Lacking

Price Administrator Brown announced today relaxation of the pleasure driving ban in the 12 Northeastern States to permit one vacation trip this summer.

"If no alternate means of transportation is available."

Mr. Brown said OPA will permit such trips, however, only where motorists have enough gasoline in their existing A ration books and will not grant any additional gasoline for the purpose.

All other provisions of the pleasure driving ban remain in effect.

Mr. Brown's announcement followed the lines of a proposal made public earlier today by Representative Hartley, Republican of New Jersey, who headed a group of Eastern members of Congress interested in making more driving available in their territory.

Effective July 15. The new plan will go into effect July 15, and will require any one contemplating a vacation trip to go to his local ration board and get a special permit which will identify him as a nonviolator of the pleasure driving ban.

A message to the regional New York office from the OPA in Washington containing the amendment to the gasoline ration order read:

"That basic ration may be used in restricted area for one round trip, to be completed in 1943, for vacation travel or travel to summer homes, in absence of alternative means of transportation.

"The local board, if satisfied that applicant has sufficient gasoline or coupons in basic ration to make trip, will grant permission on special form R-572, in duplicate, showing name of traveler, description of vehicle, destination, time of leaving and time of returning."

Explaining that the trips will have to be made out of A coupons already held by motorists, Mr. Brown warned drivers "will not have recourse to further rations should they be stranded along the road."

Gas Increase Barred. "The gasoline quota for the East Coast," Mr. Brown said in a statement, "remains at 228,000 barrels a day. Moreover, Mr. (Ralph K.) Davies, deputy administrator of the Petroleum Administration for War which establishes the gasoline allocations for civilian use, informs me that no additional gasoline can be made available for any kind of driving."

"Both Mr. Davies and I believe, however, that with strict compliance no substantial increase in gasoline consumption will result from allowing those motorists who have A coupons available to make a single round-trip vacation trip."

Should it develop that despite vigorous enforcement, an excessive amount of gasoline is being used, it will be necessary for OPA to abandon the plan."

Gardeners Get Cut. In the meantime, the OPA announced that no more special gasoline rations will be issued to Victory gardeners after July 12, but rations already out may be used as long as valid.

The action was based on an Agriculture Department stand that gardens planted after July 12 would be too late to produce enough food to warrant extra use of tires and gasoline in cultivating them.

In addition to using special rations already issued, OPA said, gardeners may continue to use their "A" books for short trips to their gardens, provided they are not more than 3 miles distant.

"The Eastern group which has been working on this matter is very gratified at the OPA's decision," Mr. Hartley said, "but at the same time we must stress that any abuse of this privilege might result in the complete loss of 'A' coupons in this area."

The "A" coupons in 12 Eastern seaboard States have been good for 1 1/2 gallons a week.

Holders of B and C gasoline books would not be disqualified from making a vacation trip, but OPA indicated it would take all possible safeguards to prevent use of gasoline from those books for vacation travel.

The plan now under consideration would require a showing before a local rationing board that the vacation traveler has sufficient A book gasoline for the trip and would use no gasoline from B or C books.

New Vote Is Sought On Job Confirmation And Crop Insurance

Senate Expected to Drop Issues if House Stands By Former Action. (Earlier Story on Page A-1.) The House will be asked to vote again on the controversial McKellar amendment to require Senate confirmation of all persons making $4,500 or more a year in the 18 war agencies, after conferees failed once more to reach an agreement on the issue today.

The conferees also decided to ask the House to vote again on the Senate's effort to continue the crop insurance program, which the House is insisting be terminated.

Indications were that if the House stands by its former action against both proposals the Senate probably will abandon them.

Senator McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee said he tried without success to work out a compromise on the confirmation amendment in conference. The conferees, it is understood, refused to accept modifications that would have required confirmation only of persons appointed hereafter, and raising the salary limit to $5,000.

The conferees on the second deficiency bill agreed on $100,000,000 for additional housing for war workers, instead of the Senate's $150,000,000. They also accepted $50,000,000 for community facilities in war areas, instead of $75,000,000.

The $120,000,000 Senate amendment to build a part of the Inter-American Highway in Costa Rica was agreed to.

There were concerted efforts today to complete congressional action by midnight on the four remaining appropriation bills.

Congress Asked to Probe Activities of 'Falange'

A congressional investigation into the Western Hemisphere activities of "Falange," an organization which he said is carrying on "Hitler's work," was demanded on the House floor today by Representative Coffey, Democrat, of Washington.

He declared the Falange Espanola Tradicionalista, "sole political party in Fascist Spain," has been under the direct control of "Nazi Gen. Wilhelm von Paupel" since 1935 and has branches in every Spanish-speaking country.

"These branches of the Falange have been doing Hitler's work since 1936," he said. "Their blue-shirted members receive military training, act as spies and propagandists for the Axis and swear allegiance only to Franco—the sworn enemy of the United Nations."

BOMBAY, India, July 6.—Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck warned India today that she still faces a serious threat of invasion, but said "we are preparing to help carry the war East to Japan."

Hearing Told How 'Loaded' Dice Once Embarrassed Walker

A dice game in which Postmaster General Walker was host and the evening's big winner was described to a Post Office Department hearing today by H. H. Roswell, publisher of the National Police Gazette.

Mr. Walker suffered considerable embarrassment later, Mr. Roswell added, when the dice were found to be "loaded."

Mr. Roswell testified that advertisements for the sale of dice were barred from the Police Gazette after Mr. Walker cited his personal objection to such solicitations.

Mr. Roswell appeared in behalf of his application for restoration of the second-class mailing privilege for the Police Gazette, which was revoked last year on charges it was devoted to obscene material.

The publisher once asked Mr. Walker to look at the magazine and state was wrong with it. Mr. Roswell said, whereupon the Postmaster General pointed out the advertisements for dice.

Bill to Continue CCC Revived By Senate

Proposal to Allow Limited Subsidy Is Struck Out

By the Associated Press. Climaxing an unusual demonstration of mind-changing, the Senate today revived legislation to continue the Commodity Credit Corp., after striking out of the measure a proposal to authorize a limited subsidy-rollback program.

neither dead nor approved, but simply was up before the Senate once more for consideration.

Decision to reconsider the bill extending the life of CCC until January 1, 1944, came on an appeal from Majority Leader Barkley after the Senate voted, 36 to 29, to reject the continuation measure.

First the Senate approved by a one-vote margin, 32 to 31, a provision to authorize spending of $25,000,000 in the next six months to keep retail food prices down. Then it suddenly reconsidered its vote and rejected the provision, 33 to 31.

The Senate then killed the CCC bill by 36 to 29. The change of mind in this provision put the bill again before the chamber with some lawmakers urging immediate approval and others demanding inclusion of a strict subsidy prohibition.

If returned to power, Marshal Smuts is expected to leave for a trip to Britain and North America some time in August.

Considerable Damage Dealt Japs, Destroyer Lost by U. S. in Battle; Russians Repulse German Thrust

Reports Indicate Hit-Run Type of Engagement by WILLIAM J. WHEATLEY.

Considerable damage has been inflicted on a Japanese surface task force which was engaged early yesterday by American naval vessels operating in Kula Gulf, the Navy reported this afternoon.

"Some damage was suffered" by the American force, but the Navy at this time is without details. However, it announced that the 2,100-ton destroyer leader Strong, with a normal complement of 250 officers and men, was torpedoed and sunk during the bombardment of Vila and Bairoko, which touched off the battle between the two task forces in the waterway between Kolombangara and New Guinea Islands.

The Navy also was without information as to the number of casualties as a result of the sinking of the Strong, but it was indicated there were some, in view of the department's statement that the next of kin had been notified. The ship was commanded by Comdr. Joseph Harold Wells, U. S. N., of East Boston, Mass., concerning whose fate the Navy was without information. The Strong was commissioned last year.

Information fragmentary. Naval spokesmen here said information from the battle scene was very fragmentary. Their dispatches gave no indication of the size or type of the vessels which joined battle in Kula Gulf. They also said it probably was a sort of hit-and-run type of engagement in which the Japanese force came into the gulf while the American force was bombarding the two places, engaged the American fleet and then ran out.

There was no indication that the battle was continuing at this time, although from the experiences in the taking of Guadalcanal such hit-and-run forays may be expected. It was recalled that last Friday a Japanese force of three cruisers and four destroyers attempted to bombard American forces on the west coast of Rendova Island, which is to the southeast of Kula Gulf. However, this force would have proceeded up and around Kolombangara Island in order to get to the entrance to the gulf.

Two Places Bombed. The American force had gone well down to the southern head of the gulf in order to bombard the two places on Kolombangara and New Georgia Islands, Vila, on Kolombangara, is a large Japanese air base which has been under bombardment by an American land force implanted on Rendova Island.

Because of the fragmentary dispatches from the scene of the battle, it is not known whether the enemy force attempted to trap the Americans at the head of the bay or whether they came in while the United States forces were attempting to unload supplies from New Georgia Island beach at Bairoko.

The sinking of the destroyer Strong brought to a total of 38 the number of American vessels which have been sunk since the South Pacific operations began. At the same time, the figures show that the Japs have lost 65 ships sunk, 40 of which were warships, 12 probably sunk and 11 damaged.

The number of destroyers sunk during the campaign total 24, including the Strong.

Installations Attacked. On the evening of July 5 Army liberator heavy bombers attacked Japanese installations on Bailale Island in the Shortland Island area, where five fires were started. During this attack about 12 Zeros fighters attempted to intercept the two American forces but were driven off with no losses to American forces.

Kula Gulf lies between the northwestern coast of New Georgia Island and Kolombangara Island. It is about 15 miles long and very deep and can be approached either from the north or south by deep-water vessels such as battleships, cruisers and heavily-laden transports. However, it is probable that the southern entrance would be closed to the American fleet, as it undoubtedly had been mined by the Japs through the narrowest part of the strait, which is only a half a mile wide.

Yanks Bag 30 of 100 Planes in Fight Over Sicilian Airfield

Fortresses, Outnumbered More Than 3 to 1, Also Destroy 25 Aircraft on Ground

By The Associated Press. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 6.—A furious air battle developed over Gerbini yesterday during a Flying Fortress raid on that Sicilian airfield, Allied headquarters announced today, and the American gunners shot down 30 of approximately 100 attacking enemy fighters.

The communiqué described the resistance there as "vigorous." The Flying Fortress striking at Gerbini was what is considered one of the greatest single-mission victories of the entire Mediterranean.

The battle lasted 15 minutes. One of the greatest individual victories emerged, too, when Staff Sergeant Benjamin Warner of San Francisco destroyed seven fighters.

The feat of Sgt. Warner, formerly a member of the uniformed forces of the Secret Service stationed at the Treasury Department in Washington, D. C., was praised by Col. Pay R. Uphogrove of Olean, N. Y., leading his 13th mission.

The crew of Sgt. Warner's Fortress was credited with a total of 13 victories—7 for Sgt. Warner, 3 for Sgt. Emmett R. R. Worthey of Eldon, Mo.; 2 for Sgt. Robert H. Croo of Pittsburgh, and 1 for P. Alvey G. Haynes of San Angelo, Tex.

Despite the spectacular and seemingly suicidal tactics of the Germans, the Fortresses successfully reached and bombed Gerbini, where they showered explosives over the main airfield and nine satellite fields.

More than 30 of the big four-engine craft participated in the raid. Outnumbered more than 3 to 1, they shot down an average of one enemy plane a piece and destroyed 25 on the ground.

152 More Tanks Knocked Out. The midday communiqué reported an additional 152 tanks were knocked out of the fight, including a number of the new 60-ton Tiger tanks. In one sector alone in the Orel-Kursk area, the bulletin said, Soviet troops destroyed 50 out of a German unit of 100 tanks.

Military experts said it was too early yet to speculate whether Hitler aims to try to capture Moscow to the north, the Caucasian oil fields to the south, or both.

Orel, at the northern end of the 165-mile central front, is about 200 miles south of Moscow. Kursk is halfway between Orel and Belgorod, the southern terminus which the Germans had advanced to within 20 miles northwest of Rostov, Russian-held gateway to the Caucasus.

Nazis Suffer Big Losses All Along Central Sector

By The Associated Press. MOSCOW, July 6.—Vicarious German thrusts by armored divisions and infantry have been flung back with heavy losses all along the 165-mile central front from Orel to Belgorod, the Russians reported today, as the long-expected Nazi summer offensive moved into its second day.

Despite terrific destruction to their armored units, amounting in some cases to as high as 50 per cent of total attacking strength, the Nazi army kept boring into the heavily defended positions. In only isolated sectors, however, have they managed to penetrate the defense lines, Red Army leaders said.

The Russian communiqué said that in the initial hours of the battle Red Army units destroyed 586 tanks and 203 planes.

The German communiqué reported heavy fighting in the Belgorod and Kursk areas and declared it grew out of "a successful local attack by German infantry" in the Belgorod sector followed by "strong Soviet counterattacks."

The fighting has spread to the east north of Kursk and is "assuming ever greater violence," said the communiqué broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press.

A later Berlin broadcast denied the Germans had launched the large-scale offensive and declared that reports that the goal of this operation was the occupation of Moscow were non-sensical.

Terminating the Russian report of the German movement a trick of enemy propaganda, the broadcast said, is intended to ascribe to the German high command alleged plans and intentions in order to speak of German failure when such plans are not pursued."

The German move is a trick of enemy propaganda, the broadcast said, is intended to ascribe to the German high command alleged plans and intentions in order to speak of German failure when such plans are not pursued."

Dispatches reaching Moscow from the front told of the start of the battle just after dawn yesterday.

The Nazis, these dispatches said, used classic tactics—a smashing artillery barrage coupled with heavy air bombardment designed to destroy Russian men and guns and blast a path through the Russian line for the German infantry and armored divisions.

The Germans were firing with everything they had—long-range batteries, medium-range cannon, howitzers, short-barreled mortars and even multiple-barreled weapons rolled out before the German front line.

Senae Seeks Guards For Producers Under Price Rollback Plan

Passage of Bill Setting $525,000,000 Limit on Subsidies Due Today

By The Associated Press. Apparently convinced of congressional inability to block the administration's subsidy-rollback program, the Senate turned today to installing producer safeguards and a spending limit in legislation authorizing Government payments to push down retail food prices.

Barring a last-ditch fight by subsidy foes, the Senate is expected to approve before nightfall a stopgap measure continuing the Commodity Credit Corp. until January 1, 1944, and authorizing subsidy payments up to $525,000,000.

Revising a House bill which removes all subsidy prohibitions recently approved overwhelmingly by Congress, but vetoed by President Roosevelt, the Senate adopted an amendment designed to prevent subsidy payments from harming the producer.

The proposal would forbid either CCC or the Reconstruction Finance Corp. from starting any rollback program "if in its opinion such program will result in reduction in the price paid to the producers."

The action came after a day of debate over Senate revisions in the House-approved measure. While the Senate bill also would increase the agency's borrowing power from $2,650,000,000 to $3,000,000,000, it would limit subsidy price rollback payments of CCC to $175,000,000 and of RFC to $350,000,000.

Authoring by Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, critic of the subsidy-rollback plan, the proposal to safeguard the producer also would require both agencies to issue "suitable regulations to prevent any" (See SUBSIDIES, Page A-7.)

By The Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 6.—Irving Goldfarb, 16-year-old Miami youth flown here two weeks ago for a delicate throat operation, died in a Brooklyn hospital last night.

Dr. M. Hineburg, executive director, said the condition of the youth, operated on June 24, had grown "progressively worse" in the 24 hours before his death.

Early in June, young Goldfarb was shot accidentally in the throat by a playmate. Miami doctors had advised an operation by a New York surgeon which it was hoped might save his life. His spinal cord was paralyzed from the neck down.

Crop Insurance Row Reopened by Senate's Switch of Funds

Action Is Pressed On Four Remaining Appropriations Bills

By The Associated Press. A Senate attempt to revoke a death sentence on the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. reopened an old controversy with the House today, amid concerted efforts to complete congressional action by nightfall on four remaining appropriations bills.

The Senate voted to House-drafted legislation which would include in the $848,295,883 farm bill a provision limiting the FCIC to $3,500,000 with orders to liquidate. That action was taken in order to send the farm bill to the White House.

Subsequently, however, the Senate wrote into a $366,418,748 second deficiency appropriations bill an amendment raising the FCIC appropriation to $7,818,748 which would allow it to continue for another year writing insurance on wheat and corn.

"We just switched the amendment from one bill to another in the hope of getting another House roll call vote on crop insurance," Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota said.

By taking it out of the farm bill, we removed the danger of its impending passage of that vital measure."

The FCIC program provides insurance against weather and other natural hazards to wheat and cotton crops and guarantees the farmer 50 to 75 per cent of his average yield. Both premiums and indemnities are paid in the commodity insured. Congressional critics argue that losses have been so much heavier than premiums that the program does not work out on an actuarial basis; that it is "relief" rather than "insurance."

The deficiency measure, in which the Senate increased House allowance from $36,158,000 to $366,418,748, went to a conference committee today for consideration of changes. Principal Senate additions were $150,000,000 for war housing and $75,000,000 for the Federal Works Agency to finance war-needed community projects.

Quick Senate acceptance of an $80,568,000 appropriations bill for the Interior Department embracing a conference report approved yesterday by the House was forecast by Senator Hayden, Democrat, of Arizona.

War Agencies Bill Delayed. The conference report cut many Senate allowances for Western irrigation and other projects to mere token appropriations, but Senator Hayden said an effort would be made to provide increased funds for all of them when budget estimates are available in the autumn.

Records With Messages Barred for AEF by Army

By The Associated Press. A ban on shipment to soldiers overseas of phonograph discs recording personal messages has been announced by the War Department.

As a result of a plan adopted by several commercial companies, the department said yesterday, large numbers of such recordings addressed to soldiers are being received in the mails, though transmittal of such messages either to or from soldiers overseas is prohibited by Army regulations.

There is no objection, however, to the mailing of such discs within the United States.

Senate Group Orders Probe of 'Restraints' Placed on Business

Brookings Institution To Sift BEW Foreign Deals, George Discloses

By The Associated Press. An investigation of "restraints" that have been placed on business and their probable effect on the shift from a military to a civilian economy when the war ends has been ordered by the Senate Committee on Postwar Planning, Chairman George disclosed today.

Senator George told reporters he had authorized the Brookings Institution, a private survey organization, to analyze and report to the committee on various restraints which he said had been imposed on business, including Government competition with private enterprise, the effect of taxes on industrial operations and the weight of Government regulations.

Report on BEW Operations. Senator George said the institution also will prepare for the committee a report on the foreign operations of the Board of Economic Warfare, particularly with regard to any commitments the BEW may have made that might affect this country's postwar economic situation.

These will be in the nature of preliminary reports for the committee, giving an outside view of the problems involved," Senator George declared. "What we want to learn primarily is what will be needed on the part of Government to keep prices and to help it meet the difficult problems of employment, financing and operation."

Senator George said it is obvious that in some fields the Government is likely to play an important role for some time in housing and social security, for example. He in-sinuated that such a role would be (See POSTWAR, Page A-7.)

Treasury Considers Excess Profits Tax On War-Swollen Pay

Withholding Provisions Will Not Be Applied to Retroactive Raises

By The Associated Press. Application of the principle of excess profit taxes to war-swollen incomes is under Treasury Department study, officials said today.

Intended to avoid gross inequities and hardships that might arise from imposition of levies higher than this year's record rates, the plan probably will not broaden the present system of basic exemptions to include considerations of "normal" income.

This John Doe whose income rose from a peacetime normal of $2,400 a year to $4,800 would pay $4,800 salary remained constant, even though both pay the same amount under present exemptions.

Complicated by Two Factors. The idea still is in the hands of research experts whose problem is complicated by two factors: (1) The absence of historical background for such a system, and (2) the difficulty of determining the point at which income increases can be attributed directly to the war.

Treasury authorities emphasized it is only one phase of the department's continuing inquiry into the entire tax picture.

Administration demands for at least $12,000,000,000 in new revenue to synphon off excess purchasing power and to bring Treasury income to at least 50 per cent of outgo rose before the department and the House Ways and Means Committee.

The war-income study is concerned chiefly with the first objective of those demands and is predicated on the assumption that excess buying power is not spread evenly among the population.

Meanwhile the War Labor Board announced that the withholding provisions of the income tax law are not applicable to retroactive wage increases ordered by the WLB for work performed before July 1.

Regional War Labor Boards were advised that the commission's internal revenue had ruled that the provisions covering collection of the tax at the source is not applicable in WLB cases even though payment is made subsequently to July 1.

Jones Assails Wallace Anew; Gets Hot Reply

'Smoke Screen' to Cover Shortcomings Charged by Perkins

The Jones-Wallace feud hit a new high today, with the Secretary of Commerce tossing "malice," "innuendo" and "falsehood" at the Vice President, and a spokesman for the latter retorting with the accusation that Mr. Jones was attempting to hide his reputed shortcomings as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. with a "smoke screen" of rough language.

The fight, in which the White House already has intervened unsuccessfully, flared anew last night when Mr. Jones, in a 1,500 word statement to the Senate Appropriations Committee hitting back at Mr. Wallace's charges that the latter's Board of Economic Warfare had been hindered in the acquisition of a stockpile of war materials by the tactics of the RFC.

If anybody is guilty of delaying the stockpiling of strategic materials, Mr. Jones asserted, it is the BEW.

Milo Perkins Hits Back. In Mr. Wallace's absence, Milo Perkins, executive director of the BEW, said the RFC and Mr. Jones had acted like the fabled sleeper, Rip Van Winkle.

"He has not proved and he cannot prove that he bought what the Vice President charged him with not buying," Mr. Perkins said.

There was prompt reaction in the Senate. Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, declared he was renewing his demand for an investigation of the exchanges to be handled by the Military Affairs Committee.

"Congress ought to find out who is right," he said.

Resolution in Committee. Senator Bridges' resolution for an inquiry lies in the Banking Committee which has indicated little desire to get into the ruckus.

The Senate Committee on Postwar Planning may make an exhaustive investigation of the BEW's operations, however.

The House Rules Committee deferred until later in the day action on a resolution authorizing an investigation into the controversy. It heard Representative Wiglesworth, Republican, of Massachusetts, sponsor of the resolution, declare BEW has been "in almost continuous friction, since its inception, with the State Department, the RFC, the Import and Export Bank and, it is my impression, the War Production Board."

Representative Cox, Democrat, of Georgia, a member of the Rules Committee, predicted three-fourths of the House would approve such a resolution, adding "I can find neither wisdom nor wit in Wallace's attack on Jones."

Jones Charges Malice. Mr. Jones spoke in this vein: "His (Mr. Wallace's) tirade is so filled with malice, innuendo, half truths, and no truths at all, that business leaders, who are men of common justice to my associates force me to expose his unscrupulous tactics."

He took up one by one the Vice President's complaints that RFC had held up BEW purchases of beryllium, cobalt, cerium, thorium, uranium and quartz crystal and he denied them all. RFC, in fact, is purchasing 37 different metals and the 29 not mentioned by Mr. Wallace account for 97 per cent of its dollar commitments and 99 per cent by weight, Mr. Jones said.

Mr. Wallace's statement that Mr. Jones had "harassed" BEW's administrative employees, "is as silly and ridiculous as it is false," the white-hot Texan added.

BEW Methods Called Hysterical. Mr. Jones declared back at Mr. Wallace the very charge aimed at him, declaring BEW had been running around in circles in its purchasing program and resorted to "methods bordering on the hysterical" without getting anywhere. He said the board had sent 100 men to Berlin on the very charge, and added that he believed it would have been handled better if all had stayed home.

Mr. Jones said he was glad to plead guilty to a charge of safeguarding the taxpayer's money, asserting: "The RFC does not pay $2 for something it can buy for $1. Some men know when they can buy it for $1, some don't, and some don't care as long as they are spending other people's money."

Mr. Jones also took a shot at the Vice President on another count—postwar planning—asserting that "our immediate efforts in the foreign field should be concentrated on war procurement needs, and not postwar planning."

When the trouble between the two officials broke last week, James F. Byrnes, President Roosevelt's "trouble shooter," brought them together, but the conference did nothing to compose their differences.

Severe Quake Recorded Apparently in Peru

By The Associated Press. WESTON, Mass., July 6.—An earthquake 4,070 miles south of Boston, apparently in Southern Peru, and described as "quite severe," was recorded at 11:17 p. m. (E. W. T.) yesterday on seismographs at Weston College, the Rev. Daniel Linehan announced today.

Father Linehan, the seismologist, said that the record of the earthquake continued for two hours.

Great Britain Halts All Exports of Wool

High-Octane Gasoline Plants Born From 40-Foot Blueprints

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Staff Writer. CHICAGO, July 6.—An eight-hour day often seems like only five minutes to men planning great 100-octane gasoline plants as they work in a 22d floor room of a Chicago skyscraper.

They make huge blueprints, sometimes 40 feet long. On these blueprints they engineer and design a complete plant, which may cost up to $14,000,000.

No two plants ever are alike. Such is the speed of progress of America's co-operative petroleum industry that each blueprint is different and contains improvements over the preceding plant. And time is always urgent, for the great blueprints are airmailed all over the Allied world, part of the production planned to overwhelm the Axis.

Chemical Line Detailed. The prints are made in the drafting engineering department of the Universal Oil Products Co. As the huge blue sheet, covered with white, red and yellow lines, comes into final form, the operators forget time in the fascination of doing something new.

The great blueprints are not alone the structural designs of buildings that may be 200 feet high and hundreds of feet long. They are also the complete plans of a chemical line, a huge structure where crude oil enters one end and aviation gasoline and other war products emerge from the other end.

The blueprints cover every last detail, joint, pipe, furnace, pump, safety mechanism, column, dimension, valve. They show where each part fits into miles of processing. All of this has to be automatic in operation, and this means virtual perfection on the blueprint.

In the completed plant, human hands guide the operation only by turning valves here and there. A plant costing $14,000,000 is operated by less than 100 men, counting all three shifts.

By the time each big blueprint reaches the finished stage, fully 200 experts have worked on it. In addition, its lines contain the results of suggestions by men from other companies, and sometimes from other countries, who come here under the co-operative arrangements of Allied war industry.

The problem that causes men to forget time is the conversion, on paper of a little plant, 5 feet high, into one 200 feet high; from one that produces one barrel an hour into 15,000 barrels an hour.

The little plant really exists, as a pilot plant. The big one cannot be made simply by multiplying by 200 or 15,000 or any other number. Some dimensions increase only a few inches. Always there are new puzzles.

"But those," said the head draftsman, "are not headaches. When we get them, a day goes by like five minutes."

A new design that recently has been intriguing the planners is "cat" chamber, the diameter of a ballroom floor, high as a church, and set on top of a 200 foot tower. "Cat" means catalyst. This catalyst is a new one, a powder fine as talcum that flows like water. This catalyst is America's newest method of making 100-octane aviation gasoline.

Former Member of Secret Service Here Shoots Down Seven Planes in One Fight

(Earlier Story on Page A-1) This dispatch was written by Staff Sgt. Benjamin F. Warner, 3d, of San Francisco, a Flying Fortress gunner who shot down seven enemy planes in a great aerial battle over Gerbini, Sicily, yesterday. This probably was a record kill for a single gunner on one mission. Sgt. Warner for three months in 1940 was a member of the uniformed force of the Secret Service assigned to the Treasury Department in Washington.

By STAFF SERGT. BENJAMIN F. WARNER, 3D. A FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, July 6 (AP)—"Judge, I kept my word. This is what I want to tell my father, Superior Court Judge Benjamin F. Warner of San Bernardino, Calif., because I promised to get a few planes for him when I came over here. I named my gun 'The Judge' and it came through today in great shape.

I got at least seven planes and I believe I hit and damaged more. We were told before the take-off that we were hitting one of the toughest spots in Sicily, and we accepted it at its face value without losing confidence in our ability to come through. The warning turned to be a bit of an understatement.

About five minutes off the target we ran into a howling anti-aircraft barrage, and coming up through their own flak were more enemy pursuit planes than I had ever before. I got to leave their habit to lay outside their flak until it was over, but today they came right into their own fire.

Messerschmitt First Victim. The first plane that I got a shot at came in at the start—a Messerschmitt peeled off from our right and leveled straight at us with his guns winking. I winked back until the German was 50 yards away, and then I saw him burst into flames and plough down under our Fortress. I signaled the left waist gunner to look out of his window and see if the plane went down. He nodded yes.

No. 2 and No. 3 were daisies. Two ME-109s made a run together at the Fortress. I got one on the way in. He peeled off in a roll. The other came on but broke his run at about 50 yards, and I opened up on his belly when he exposed it in a turn. The first plane was after me, and I shot it down. The second plane went down and the pilot also left it.

Meantime one of our own Fortresses had been set on fire. The next two victories I didn't even intend to claim, but the gunner in some other plane saw them parachuting down. There was a Messerschmitt making a run at our Fortress and I picked him up as he started his bank, held the trigger down until the plane began to smoke, and he started out of control like a leaf floating in the breeze.

Only 50 Yards Away. The other one was making a run on a ship of ours—the one that was in trouble. The enemy had to pass within 50 yards of me, so I put approximately 200 rounds into him and the last I saw of him he was in a vertical dive and burning. We passed every other fellow who was shot out with us today with sort of mixed emotions. We respected them for their flying ability, because they are part of the German air force's Flying Circus.

I think we are capable of handling them in the same way on every mission if it becomes necessary but I don't think they can stand it. In fact, I doubt if they ever had a worse beating than they received today.

I've just finished reading the synopsis of a book, "Queens Die Proudly" and it explains perfectly just how I felt when I saw two of our Fortresses go down. One was burning from stem to stern as three fighters made passes at her. The ball turret gunner was still in position and he got all three in that one pass. Every gunner in the squadron will verify it. He went down with the queen.

Dies Probers Are Told To Get FBI 'Findings' On Jap Espionage

The War Relocation Authority has "gone intensively and as far as possible" into Japanese espionage and subversive activities in this country, Dillon S. Myer, WRA director, told a Dies subcommittee today, but he suggested the "findings" be sought from the Government's various intelligence agencies.

"Most" of the activities of the pro-Japs, he declared, were carried out before he became head of the WRA, which has supervision over the 10 relocation camps into which more than 100,000 alien Japanese-Americans—Japanese on the West Coast were placed after outbreak of the war.

Defends Agency's Policy. Mr. Myer was called before the subcommittee to defend the policies of the WRA in releasing from the relocation camps Americans of Japanese ancestry.

He insisted that the WRA maintained a "very close" liaison with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Army and Navy Intelligence Services, and it had received "excellent" co-operation in a pre-release checkup of those given freedom from the camps either for a temporary or indefinite period.

"I have been supplied with information from time to time about a great number of individuals," he declared, "but I cannot give the number."

25 Working Here. Mr. Myer testified that 25 of the Americans of Japanese ancestry released from the camps are now working in the Washington headquarters of the WRA and some others are employed in the field relocation offices. The Washington office, he emphasized, also is staffed with a number of native-born Americans who have lived and worked closely with the Japanese on the West Coast.

The WRA has made no effort to "police" the vast labor force of the thousands of Japanese released from the camps, Mr. Myer said.

"Our advice to those going into private business upon their release," he said, "is this: Ask for no more or take less than others doing the same kind of work."

Gavin Assails Move For Congress Recess. Representative Gavin, Republican of Pennsylvania, told the House today that Congress should recess the job while there is work to do, and there is plenty to do to restore order out of the chaotic situation in the various departments of the Government.

"In the midst of this all-out effort to win the war and with the damage to the economy and the Washington with personal personality discriminations, bickering and wrangling among the high places in the administration forces who are conducting the fight on the home front, and by-passing of the Congress in an effort to regiment the people of America into a socialistic program of administrative democracy, in their effort to indoctrinate into our economic life the philosophy of production for use and not for profit from producer to consumer, in the middleman and small businessman, a situation has developed which may ultimately prolong the war at the cost of thousands of American lives," he asserted.

"And suddenly," he added, "the Congress decides to recess and leave this critical situation in the hands of groups such as we have in the OPA who have the slightest conception of what it is all about.

"Bureaucracy is anxious for us to get out of Washington. However, I am of the opinion here is where we belong."

Commander of Sunken Strong Was Former District Resident

The destroyer Strong as it was launched at the Bath Iron Works, Inc., shipyards at Bath, Me., May 17, 1942.

Comdr. Joseph Harold Wellings, who was in command of the United States destroyer Strong sunk off New Georgia Island in the new South Pacific offensive, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1925.

The 40-year-old East Boston, Mass. officer served consecutively in the United States ships Utah, Florida, King and Tillman after completing his Annapolis course.

Comdr. Wellings was for a year and a half aide and flag lieutenant on the staff of Admiral W. D. Leahy, then commander of battleships of the United States fleet battle force. He also served in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations here and as assistant naval attaché at the American Embassy in London.

He was observer with the British fleet and was aboard H. M. S. Rodney during the chase and sinking of the German battleship Bismarck.

He has been awarded the American Defense Service Medal, fleet class. The Strong was commissioned as a fighting ship of the fleet last August 7, the day the American invasion of the Solomon Islands began at Guadalcanal. Comdr. Wellings fitted out the ship after assuming command in February, 1942.

The vessel was launched May 17, 1942, at the Bath (Maine) Iron Works. She carried eight 5-inch 30-caliber guns, effective surface as well as anti-aircraft weapons.

Russia Expected Push Million Cars Believed By Nazis, Says Cuban Envoy Visiting Hull

The Soviet Union expected the current German offensive on the central front "all along" and was confident it would be thrown back, Cuban Ambassador Aurelio F. Conchoso said today.

Ambassador Conchoso, who paid a courtesy call on Secretary of State Hull today following his return from Russia, where he presented his credentials as the first Cuban Ambassador to the Soviet Republic, declared in an interview that he found a strong spirit of confidence among Soviet officials and the man in the street.

Saw Many U. S. Cars. "You can see American cars, trucks and planes everywhere," said Ambassador Conchoso, who estimated that 80 per cent of those he saw were of American make. Many evidence of United States leasing of food supplies were seen in Moscow and Kulybshew, he said, adding that "the food situation among the civil population is not so good."

The Red Army seemed to be well fed, the diplomat declared. Ambassador Conchoso, the first Latin American diplomat received by Joseph Stalin, said he found the premier a "very fine man."

Railway Traffic Faces 50 Pct. Postwar Cut, Wage Hearing Told

NEW YORK, July 6.—H. E. Stevens, vice president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, predicted today that railroads would "do well to hold 50 per cent" of the Nation's transportation business after the war in the face of competition from trucking, pipelines, planes and inland and coastal shipping.

Testifying before an emergency board of the National Railway Panel, Mr. Stevens said railroads should be permitted to invest in their properties a large part of the net income they now receive to prepare for "the era of intense competition which will follow the war."

He argued that "enormous fleets of ships" now being built must find postwar traffic or be dismantled, track traffic would increase, large pipeline divert a percentage of oil now handled by rail, and that planes would "pick off some of the cream of the passenger, express and mail traffic with a serious effect on railway's net earnings."

Points to Average Wage. Railroad employees are paid consistently higher wages than the average to workers in other industries, D. P. Loomis, executive director of the Association of Western Railroads, testified before an emergency board.

The board is considering demands of five railway brotherhoods for a 30 per cent wage increase affecting approximately 300,000 workers.

Mr. Loomis said railroad employees earned an average of $2,038 in 1941, against an average of $1,478 in other occupations. In 1929 he declared, the national average for all workers was $1,461, but railroad employees averaged $1,747.

He asserted the railroad wage average was consistently greater than the all-employee average for each year since 1929.

As compared with the average of $2,038 earned by railroad employees in 1941, Mr. Loomis testified that power and gas industry workers averaged $1,855; transportation industry employees $1,755; contract construction workers $1,707; manufacturing $1,672; finance $1,638; Government $1,582; retail trade $1,588; miners $1,580; and farm laborers $677.

The average weekly earnings for railway train and engine service employees, Mr. Loomis declared, was $61.35 in December, 1942, an increase of 21.7 per cent above the average for January, 1941.

He testified that on a hourly basis the average for all per cent was 10.7 per cent, but the durable manufacturing group; 31.4 per cent greater than the average in all manufacturing industries and 56.4 per cent more than the average for all non-durable industries.

Weinberg Resigns Post As Counselor to Nelson

The resignation of Sidney J. Weinberg as Counselor to Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board, was announced by Mr. Nelson today, effective August 1.

Mr. Weinberg, a director in several large corporations, said his resignation was necessitated by ill health. Mr. Nelson told Mr. Weinberg in a personal letter to resign him to return to WPB when he is well again and expressed "deep appreciation for the fine patriotic service you have given to your country."

Mr. Weinberg came to Washington in May, 1942, as one of Mr. Nelson's assistants in the purchases division of the old Office of Production Management. When Mr. Nelson became chairman of WPB, Mr. Weinberg was made assistant to the chairman, with the primary responsibility of advising the board of executives. He has been a member of the New York Stock Exchange and was senior partner of Goldman-Sachs & Co. when he took leave to join WPB as a $1-a-year man. He is on the boards of General Foods, Consolidated Paper, Sears & Roebuck, General Cigar, Van Ralite Co. and other corporations.

Jablonsky Qualifies For Paratroop Duty

By the Associated Press. FORT BENNING, Ga., July 6.—Lt. Col. Harvey J. Jablonsky, 34, outstanding football player at West Point, qualified as a full-fledged paratrooper at Fort Benning's parachute school today with the assistance of the gridiron's "tame" compared to parachuting.

Col. Jablonsky completed his fifth qualifying leap from a C-47 transport plane high over Benning. He now becomes executive officer of a parachute infantry regiment.

Col. Jablonsky played on West Point's grid teams in 1931-32-33 and was captain in his final year. After graduation he returned annually to help coach the eleven for the fall campaigns. He starred at the guard position.

Between seasons, he did tours of duty at Fort Monr, Va., and in the Panama Canal.

"About a year ago," Col. Jablonsky asserted, "I thought I'd like to join the paratroopers. Now that I've qualified, I have no question about the excitement and action I'll get with my troops in the airborne command."

He is married, and the father of two children. Mrs. Jablonsky and the children live at Clayton, Mo. Besides football, he starred on West Point's baseball, basketball and track teams.

Old-Type Tires For Bicycles Unobtainable

If your old-fashioned, single-tube bicycle tire wears out or is punctured beyond repair, you may as well put the two-wheeler in storage because that style bike tire and rim is one of war's casualties.

One store, which operates the bicycle-renting concession in Potomac Park, can fix you up with a second-hand, old-style tire, but other dealers simply throw their hands up when one mentions the subject.

New bikes now come equipped with balloon tires and inner tubes on a new type rim—"victory tires." They're made of reclaimed rubber and don't need as much pure crude rubber as the single tubes. After the war production of old-style tires will be resumed because there are "millions of bikes in service using them," according to one dealer, but the new brand, complete with inners, is expected to replace them eventually.

Sweden Is Planning Summer Maneuvers

Nation Held Ready to Fight if Necessary. By the Associated Press. STOCKHOLM, July 6.—A Swedish communiqué announced today that military exercises will be conducted this summer on the same extensive scale as last spring and winter, with the air force participating in the concluding maneuvers.

The order followed recent statements by various Swedish officials that Sweden still was in danger of being drawn into the war.

There was no indication of how many men would be involved in the exercises. Under complete wartime mobilization Sweden could muster about 600,000 troops.

Maharajah Divorces U. S. Wife in Reno

RENO, Nev., July 6.—The wealthy Maharajah of Indore was granted a divorce today from the former Margaret Lawler, a Los Angeles, N. D., whom he charged with extreme cruelty.

The divorce complaint filed under the name Y. R. Holkar vs. Marguerite Lawler Holkar showed they were married in Toluca, Mexico, on September 1, 1932.

The Maharajah, 33-year-old ruler of 1,325,089 subjects, met Mrs. Brainer in 1936 at a Los Angeles hospital where she was a nurse. He employed her as nurse to his only child, Yusha Devi, daughter of his first wife, who died in 1937.

Mrs. Holkar has obtained custody of the minor child, whom she has adopted legally. A property settlement granted her includes a huge estate at Laguna Beach, Calif.

The Maharajah was educated in England and assumed full power of his kingdom after the death of his father, Maharajah H. H. Tukoji Rao 3d.

Airline. (Continued From First Page.) equipment was available, but expressed the belief that little progress would be made until after the war.

Seek More Stops. One of the company's applications to include Lubbock and Wichita, Falls, Tex.; Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., and Fort Smith, Ark., in American's transcontinental route between Boston and Los Angeles.

Another asks that Evansville, Ind., and Louisville and Paducah, Ky., be included in the transcontinental route that touches Memphis and Washington.

American also seeks to extend both ends of its Cleveland-to-Nashville, Tenn., line which operates via Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati and Louisville.

The route would be extended north to Toledo and Detroit and south to New Orleans via Meridian, Miss.

Besides asking for permission to extend present lines and start new routes, American has applied for authority to finance a number of other cities on existing lines.

Would Affect Richmond. Granting of these requests would put Joplin, Mo., on the Chicago-to-Dallas-Fort Worth line; Birmingham and Elmira, N. Y., on the Buffalo-New York route, and Wilmington, Del., and Richmond, Va., on the transcontinental line between Boston, New York and Los Angeles.

An application to embrace Pitts-burgh on American's route 25 also would provide direct service between Wilmington, Pittsburgh, Chicago and the West.

The cost of the proposed expansion could not be estimated, Mr. Kemp said, but he added that about four times as much equipment would be needed as the line now operates.

Establishment of the new routes, he said, would entail a personnel increase of about 50 per cent.

$3,950 Reported Stolen From Home Strongbox. The theft of $3,950 in cash and bonds from his home at 28 I street N.W. was reported to police today by John F. Gallagher. The money, which was kept in a green metal box, consisted of $1,000 in War bonds, $2,500 in postal savings certificates and $450 in cash.

The box also contained a bank book on the Washington Loan & Trust Co., which were taken.

Guffey. (Continued From First Page.) Representative Michener, Republican of Michigan, referring to the Ways and Means Committee decision, reported "doing nicely" following an appendectomy at Doctors Hospital last night.

"It took place," replied Mr. McGraney, then asked the committee to hear Representative Keel, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, coal operator.

Mr. Keel was permitted to speak briefly, but only after Representative Cox, Democrat, of Georgia declared the Bituminous Coal Division as a "cockeyed outfit," which renders no service.

Mr. Keel said operators would be reluctant to enter into a contract with workers without assurance they are going to have minimum prices.

Reduction of 5 Pct. In Use of Newsprint Ordered by WPB

The War Production Board today ordered newspaper publishers to reduce further their consumption of newsprint during 1943's third quarter. The cut ranges up to 5 per cent for large users.

The additional 5 per cent reduction does not apply to the first 25 tons for newspapers using less than 500 tons a quarter. This provision, WPB said, is designed to aid the operation of smaller newspapers.

Last December 31 newspapers were limited each quarter to 100 per cent of the tonnage of paper used in printing their net paid circulation during the corresponding quarter of 1941, plus a 3 per cent allowance for production waste. It was estimated at the time this requirement meant an over-all reduction in current newsprint consumption of about 10 per cent.

Recommended by Committee.

H. M. Bitner, director of the WPB Printing and Publishing Division, said, however, the 10 per cent reduction was not accomplished. The further reduction follows the recommendations of the Newspaper Industry Advisory Committee announced June 18. The committee recommended an additional cut of 5 per cent for the third quarter, and that was agreed on by the board.

Here are examples of how the additional reduction will operate for various representative tonnage groups on a sliding-scale basis.

Users of 25 tons a quarter, no reduction; 50 tons, 2.5 per cent; 75 tons, 3.33 per cent; 100 tons, 3.75 per cent; 200 tons, 4.33 per cent; 300 tons, 4.60 per cent; 400 tons, 4.70 per cent; 500 tons or more, 5 per cent.

In commenting on the order, Mr. Bitner told publishers the necessity for economy in use of print paper becomes more pressing each week. He said requests for exceptions to the order should be filed with the newspaper section of WPB's printing and publishing division by July 12.

Any usage of paper over the quota until an exception is granted will be at the applicant's risk, WPB said.

Curb on Additional Tonnage.

Mr. Bitner said the newspaper section, when considering requests for additional tonnage, would not recommend to the WPB Appeals Board that extra paper be granted for the publication of extra editions. Likewise, no grant of additional tonnage will be recommended on the basis of circulation gains achieved through prize contests or other similar promotional campaigns, nor will additional tonnage be recommended for newspaper circulation through throwaways or advertising supplements not physically incorporated in the newspapers themselves.

This, however, does not prevent a commercial printing plant, which may be owned by a newspaper, from using its own tonnage quota for the production of such printed matter in accordance with provisions of another limitation order, L-241.

The announcement said WPB will consider each request for additional newsprint "solely upon its own merits and based upon the facts which the publisher considers pertinent to the issue of whether the order will occasion unreasonable hardship."

In all such appeal cases the following information is required:

A. Amount of print paper used during the third quarter of 1941 in printing net paid circulation alone. Publishers should not include any print paper used for unpaid distribution, spoil copies, production waste, etc. To this is added 3 per cent for production waste to the net paid circulation. If the resulting figure is 500 tons or more, deduct 5 per cent; if it is less than 500 tons, deduct 5 per cent of the amount in excess of 25 tons. This gives the allowable quota of print paper for the quarter, and publishers are requested to show separately the net paid tonnage, the 3 per cent for production waste and the deduction of the further 5 per cent reduction.

Minimum Requirements.

B. Estimate in specific number of tons the minimum requirements for the third quarter of 1943.

The following additional information is asked for the third quarter of 1941 and the second quarter of 1942, with figures for morning, evening or Sunday listed separately, except item one:

1. Gross tons or pounds of newsprint used a month, whether in publisher's plant or used for supplements produced for the publisher by others. This figure must include all production waste and damage in transit waste, unless compensation has been received from the transportation companies for the damaged paper. Not included is paper used in commercial printing or in printing of other publications.

2. Net press run average by months and the quarterly averages.

3. Net paid circulation averages by month, according to Audit Bureau of Circulation standards and the quarterly averages.

4. Per cent of difference between net press run and net paid circulation for each quarter.

Average Number of Pages.

5. Average number of pages are issued each month, including all supplements.

6. Number of issues each month.

7. Total number of lines or inches of paid advertising a month.

8. Total number of lines or inches of unpaid contests a month.

Publishers also are asked to state in detail whether anticipated conservation measures have been accomplished.

If additional tonnage for the third quarter of 1943 is requested, and if no previous appeal for additional tonnage has been granted, specimen copies of the newspaper should be submitted, together with a description of methods and plans devised to conserve print paper to offset print requirements.

Perkins' Letter Jones' Counterattack Called 'Smokescreen'

Following is the text of a letter sent yesterday to Senator Glass, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, by Milo Perkins, executive director of the Board of Economic Warfare:

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Vice President Wallace is away from Washington today. In his absence I desire to make the following comments on Mr. Jones' letter of July 5 addressed to you. It will be appreciated if you will place this in the official record.

On June 29, the Vice President cited chapter and verse on a long list of strategic materials which the RFC failed to buy for Government stockpiles. Mr. Jones has taken 30 pages in an attempt to justify his delays, frequently blaming the old OFM. Most of the good things he has to say about RFC deal with actions after April 13, 1942, when all RFC imports were placed under BEW directives by executive order of the President.

Mr. Jones has thrown up a smoke screen but he has not proved and cannot prove that he bought what the Vice President charged him with not buying. The Vice President can deal with the many specific inaccuracies in Mr. Jones' statement at the appropriate time.

If Mr. Jones had put a simple statement indicating the imported raw materials actually warehoused in Government stockpiles as of either December 7, 1941, or April 13, 1942, it would be apparent to every one that he failed miserably to build the Government stockpiles authorized and directed by the Congress some 18 months before Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Jones has attempted to defend the way in which RFC has delayed the aggressive BEW quarantine for soil conservation payments, including "incentive" allowances, but restricting authorized payments on the 1944 crop to $300,000,000, this sum to be paid farmers for engaging in soil and water conservation practices. The bill also wipes out parity payments on 1944 crops. Funds of parity payments on the current crop are provided.

WFA to Control Funds.

The bill also contains $200,000,000 for administration of rural rehabilitation loan and grant program of the Farm Security Administration, $50,000,000 of borrowing authority for making new rehabilitation loans

Health of U. S. Troops Attests Value of Typhus Vaccine

By THOMAS R. HENRY, Star Staff Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa (By Wire), July 6.—A vaccine against dread typhus developed by a Bethesda (Md.) Public Health Service physician is being hailed by medical authorities here as one of the most valuable in public health history following disclosure that our North African Army has only three mild cases.

This record is the more remarkable in the light of a bad typhus epidemic which raged all winter in three Northwestern African countries.

Dr. Col. Perrin H. Long, medical director for the North African theater, revealed these facts today.

The vaccine, which is given to each American soldier and civilian, was developed by Dr. Herold Cox of the Public Health Service laboratories at Bethesda, and until its success in this area, it had never been proved to the satisfaction of medical men.

Prior Tests Inconclusive.

Its value was first questioned in America and more recently in England. The PHS attempted to test the Cox vaccine in Hungary in 1940, it was learned today, but reports were not completed before that country joined the Axis. Other tests were made in Spain and Bolivia, but they, too, were inconclusive.

Capable of being made in enormous quantities, the vaccine is made by injecting typhus organism in slightly incubated eggs and developing embryonic tissue. Other methods called for the use of animals—a slow process.

Looking ahead, medical authorities see supplies sufficient for millions in war-weakened Europe. They recall all too well how typhus swept East Europe after the last year.

With Arab unsanitation the year around, this is an old typhus area, which turned out to be a real proving ground for the new vaccine.

Other "Shots" Effective.

Our fighting men and American civilians also are given shots by the Army against typhoid, tetanus, smallpox and yellow fever. All have stood remarkably well, Col. Long says. Hundreds of typhoid cases have been reported among the natives, but only five or six among our men.

There were many cases of tetanus in the last war, but none to date in North Africa. As for smallpox, four cases were reported compared with hundreds every month among the natives. Nor has there been a single case of yellow fever among American troops.

Col. Long says the overall record is remarkable compared with the record in the last war.

Medical experts still are compiling information on results of sulfa drug treatment of war injuries. They say it will be several months before the drug's value can be assessed, as patients are scattered over a wide area.

and $30,000,000 for making loans to tenants to purchase farms. All the money, the bill specifies, must be spent under the direction of the War Food Administration.

Other allowances include $20,000,000 for Rural Electrification Administration loans and $12,000,000 for protection against forest fires.

Senator Reed, Republican, of Kansas told the Senate the effect of the restrictions on parity and crop payments on 1944 crops would mean a difference of 23 cents a bushel in the price received by the wheat producer.

He said he would not agree to abandonment on crop insurance as well, adding:

"I have no intention of agreeing that the wheat farmer shall be forced to play the role of Czechoslovakia in a Munich appeasement conference, to satisfy the prejudices of some of the House conferees."

Maxon's Camp Gets Rations for 50 Daily

By the Associated Press.

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., July 6.—A Cheboygan County ration board has allotted Maxon, Inc., Detroit advertising agency headed by Deputy OPA Administrator Lou R. Maxon, sufficient ration points to feed 50 persons daily at its Onaway (Mich.) summer camp during July and August.

The firm submitted a new application here after surrendering 7,812 processed food points issued in error by a Detroit ration board, which failed to make deductions for canned goods on hand.

Issuance of the points by the Detroit board was criticized by R. J. Thomas, president of Automobile Workers' (CIO) union, who urged Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown to dismiss Mr. Maxon.

Herbert D. Bockes, chairman of the Cheboygan County board, said that "the application complied with OPA rules in all respects and we allowed it. A considerable quantity of processed food was left from last season, so the number of new points allowed is not large."

The camp has been used as a vacation resort for Maxon employees and their families and for entertainment of clients of the agency. Mr. Bockes said the camp was in the same category as a boarding house under OPA rules.

Working among the native population, she says, she has been a witness of many heartrending scenes. The work has consisted chiefly in delivering milk rations and layettes made by American Red Cross chapters for new-born children. "The most intense poverty has been encountered among the Arabs, but on the whole, she says, she has had very good cooperation.

Up to now more than 600 distribution centers have been set up throughout Algeria and there is hardly a village which is not within easy reach of a Red Cross station. ## Nomad Arab Children Of Remote Oases to Get U. S. Milk Rations

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.

ALGIERS (By Mail).—The nomad Arab children of the Sahara oases, many of whom now are in a desperate state of malnutrition because of the shutting off of the supplies they used to get from the fertile farm lands north of the Atlas Mountains, soon will be getting a daily ration of American dried milk.

The civilian relief section of the American Red Cross here has just completed a survey of the needs of these little ones in a desolate, roadless land to which the only practical entrance is by plane. The distribution will be in addition to 160,000 rations of milk daily now distributed to French and Arab children throughout the more accessible parts of Algeria. This will soon be extended to Tunisia.

A prominent part in this civilian relief work is being taken by Miss Aline Lamelle, 3000 block of Q street, last year secretary to Gen. Auguste Bonavita, then Military Attaché to the French Embassy in Washington. Previously Miss Lamelle, an American by birth, had worked for five years in the intelligence service of the French Air Ministry, first in Paris and later in Vichy.

When the Germans occupied Paris, she escaped into Unoccupied France, but later, with permission, returned to Paris to recover her belongings left there. She was characterized as a suspicious person by the German customs authorities at the border of Occupied France, who threatened to take her American passport away.

She came directly to Washington from Paris, arriving with $4 in her purse. She came to North Africa as a Red Cross worker last January.

Intense poverty, which she has witnessed among the natives, she says, she has had very good cooperation.

Up to now more than 600 distribution centers have been set up throughout Algeria and there is hardly a village which is not within easy reach of a Red Cross station. ## Driving Inspectors Rest During Holiday

Yesterday was a holiday in the matter of enforcement of the automobile pleasure driving ban—at least, so far as District OPA inspectors were concerned.

After a week end in which they joined with park police to round up a record-breaking total of about 900 pleasure driving suspects, the local OPA inspectors rested last night and reported no violations.

District and park police had not completed their reports, but it was indicated they had few, if any, names of suspects to turn in.

Meanwhile, the District OPA disclosed that six motorists were penalized and three exonerated in pleasure driving hearings held last Tuesday by three local ration boards.

Board No. 50, Seventh and I streets S.W., assessed "fines" in three cases, as follows: Herbert Bryant, 2218 G street N.W., two C coupons; Robert Farrell, 2425 Snows court N.W., one A coupon, and Joseph Flacioni, 426 Seventh street S.W., four B coupons.

Lenox Chew, 4514 South Dakota avenue N.E., and Andrew E. Bowen, 4013 Eighth street N.E., both were penalized single A coupons by Board No. 33, Tenth and Monroe streets N.E. The board dismissed two other cases.

Frank B. Crider, 1800 Twenty-eighth street S.E., was ordered to surrender a C coupon by Board No. 60, Fifteenth and Good Hope roads S.E. The board dismissed one case.

Missing Witness Found In Dempsey Divorce Case

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 6.—The Daily Times said in a copyrighted story today it had located in Chicago Yvette Muriel Colbert, French musical comedy actress and missing witness in Hannah Williams Dempsey's divorce suit against the former world heavyweight champion.

Miss Colbert, 28, has been in hiding in a near North Side rooming house with her mother, Eve, the Times said, "while lawyers and private detectives scoured the country for her."

The newspaper said that failure of New York deputies and Mrs. Dempsey's private detectives to find Miss Colbert had forced Mrs. Dempsey to drop her divorce suit, in which she charged Dempsey had been unfaithful.

Miss Colbert, the story said, declared she would not return to New York State and reopen the Dempsey case. Dempsey's suit for divorce has been taken under advisement by a court referee at White Plains, N. Y. He alleged misconduct.

Argentine Judge Cancels Case Against Germans

By the Associated Press.

BUEENOS AIRES, July 6.—Charges of illicit association were lifted yesterday from 31 leaders of the German Cultural Welfare Circle by Judge Ramon Vasquez after a higher court held the accusations, brought by a congressional investigating committee, had not been proven.

Ten of the group, also charged with defrauding contributors in collection of funds, were absolved partially of that charge, although Judge Vasquez indicated the investigation would continue.

The organization had functioned as the German National Socialist Party, but a federal order dissolved it as such in 1939.

Under German occupation, such as France itself, the degree of actual distress in this normally rich agricultural country has been relatively mild compared with that encountered almost anywhere on the European continent.

Richthofen Reported Sent to Italy to Aid in Defensive Moves

By the Associated Press. LONDON, July 6.—The Berlin marshal reported today that Field Marshal Baron von Richthofen, commander of the German air fleet in the East...

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said that Marshal Richthofen would assist Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Axis air chief for Southern Europe, in organizing a defense against assaults on possible invasion points in Sardinia, Sicily and the Italian mainland.

The flying Field Marshal is a cousin of the late Baron Manfred von Richthofen, German ace of the last war.

Reuters said the Berlin correspondent of the German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraphic Bureau reported in Stockholm that Marshal Richthofen's squadrons had been transferred to Russia to Italy where they will reinforce Marshal Kesselring's air force.

There was ample evidence, meanwhile, that Fascist officials were exerting every effort to kill any hopes of the bomb-shocked Italian populace that they might be able to withdraw from the war.

Virginia Gayda, writing in the Giornale d'Italia, again warned that the Italian nation rejects with indignation determination all British-American appeals for unconditional surrender," he said.

stroyed an estimated 25 more parked on the ground.

Three Fortresses were lost.

They handed the Germans such a savage mauling that throughout the rest of the day only 10 enemy fighters rose to meet succeeding bomber formations.

Other Allied air squadrons inflicted damage on three other landing fields in Sicily—at Licata, Marsala and Sciacca, the war bulletin said.

Allied planes were placed at 12 during yesterday and the night before, when night bombers blasted targets at Villacidro, in Sardinia, and at Catania, in Sicily.

Striking in from the eastward yesterday, the Allied heavy bombers of the Middle East force blasted the Sicilian ferry terminus of Messina again, returning to their bases without loss.

More than 60 Liberator bombers dropped 375,000 pounds of bombs on Messina, a communique of the 9th Air Force declared.

This blanketing the ferry terminal installations in Messina "caused extensive damage," the communique said, and bombs were laid on railway tracks, a roundhouse, a warehouse, freight yards, oil tanks and barracks by the Liberators, striking in three waves.

The Liberators downed three enemy planes and returned without loss to themselves.

The headquarters war bulletin reported that, during yesterday and today, the British-American Air Forces had knocked down 42 aircraft.

Besides the 30 victories officially attributed to Fortress gunners and five scored by Lightning pilots also were credited to Liberator crews.

Announced that the British-American Air Forces had destroyed by Malta aircraft and coastal squadrons had downed two more.

In contrast, the German communique as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press asserted that the British-American air forces lost 51 planes, mostly four-engined bombers, "in repeated thrusts against the Sicilian coasts yesterday."

The Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press, said the raids at Messina, Catania and Marsala caused "limited" damage and casualties. This communique reported an Axis raid on the harbor of Bizerte, a claim not immediately confirmed by Allied sources.

New Peak of Intensity.

The swarms of enemy fighters met yesterday over Gerbini gave new impetus to the Axis air campaign, the communique declaring: "The enemy resisted determinedly."

At the eastern end of the Mediterranean, small bodies of British troops dashed on to the beaches of Axis-held Crete from shallow draft vessels Sunday night, raided airfields, destroyed grounded planes, laid a number of oil dumps afire and withdrew safely. The raid was announced last night in a Cairo communique.

Greeks Cautioned.

In a broadcast to the Greek patriots on Crete, the British Ministry of Information in London quickly pointed out that "this is not an invasion" and cautioned them not to betray themselves by premature resistance.

"The day is coming when the signal will be given for the warriors of Crete to fight side by side with the invasion forces to exact justice for your enemy's crimes," the broadcast added. "Until then stay in your places."

The hard, quick thrust, which caught the Axis unawares, was described by the Cairo communique as "successful."

London sources said the British raiding units apparently were Commandos. One of the first questions raised in the capital was what had happened to the minefields which Axis propaganda had asserted were sown heavily along all coasts menaced by invasion armies, but there was no official answer.

Revolt in Congress Directed Against Pet New Deal Theories

By JAY HAYDEN.

Clearly identified New Deal philosophies have been targets in every instance where President Roosevelt's wishes have been denied by the congressional revolt of the last six months.

It is important to note also that there is a sharp demarcation of congressional attitude for the "military" and "civilian" governments.

The War and Navy Departments in their entirety, and the top uniformed commanders, Gen. George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King, in particular, have the confidence of Congress to a degree probably unexampled in any other war in American history.

Everything that has been asked for the Army and Navy has been supplied without diminution and in record time.

It is only the domestic policies of the administration that are under attack.

Behind Food Subsidy Fight.

In the recent contest over food subsidies White House spokesmen have assiduously promoted the notion that Congress favors inflation.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. What Congress has opposed is the idea that the price line can be held by taking money from a Federal Treasury, already 140 billions in the red, and using it to reduce just a little bit the consumers' grocery bills.

For 10 years the New Deal's stock method for meeting economic crises has been doles provided from borrowed money. And food subsidies, as Congress sees it, are just another form of dole. It believes, and many reputable economists agree with it, that the main cause of inflation has been this same dole policy.

Another misconception is that the farmers, in their current demands, are aiming primarily to profit at the expense of the war effort. It is true that the farmers want "parity," in the sense of a balancing of what they receive to the crops, as against what they have to buy, including the rising cost of farm labor. But much more, the farmers are determined to shake themselves loose from a system under which part of their income has come from Government bounties in exchange for bureaucratic dictation as to what and how they shall grow.

Alienated by Labor Policy.

More than any other single factor, President Roosevelt's loss of control of his own party representation from the Senate and West has been cited to the growing belief in these sections that organized labor has been unduly favored. This is the view that Congress expressed when it overrode the President's veto of the antistrike bill by substantially more than a two-thirds majority in both houses.

Earlier the House had passed, 270 to 107, the Hobbs anti-union law, which would have had to be bottled up by a pro-administration minority in the Senate.

Congress has backed away at the New Deal's other directions. Without a record vote in either house, it rescinded the President's authority to devalue the dollar. Mr. Roosevelt's executive order limiting salaries to $25,000 was wiped out, 260 to 129 in the House and without a record vote in the Senate, because this was regarded both as an illegal assumption of executive authority and just another "share-the-wealth" experiment.

Agency Activities Probed.

Confidentially disclosed, by a vote of 294 to 90, created a special committee to inquire into activities of Federal agencies which (1) are beyond the scope of their authority; (2) invade the constitutional rights of citizens; (3) inflict penalties without hearing before an impartial tribunal.

The National Youth Administration finally was killed, as was President's cherished National Resources Planning Board.

Disbanding of many of the activities of the domestic branch of the Office of War Information was ordered, because Congress could not see how these contributed to efficient conduct of the war and suspected that they were mainly designed to promote the fourth term.

The Senate rejected nominations of Edward J. Flynn for Minister to Australia and James V. Alford for a place on the Federal Court of Appeals on the ground that these were in payment for political services rendered in the New Deal.

Shull's Program Wins.

It is significant that the administration's one notable triumph in Congress was the renewal of the Hull reciprocal trade program by larger majorities than were given for the same act on its original passage or any previous extension. This action, however, serves only to point the prevailing rule.

Cordell Hull is one administration official who is definitely tagged as Today's reunion brought together Brig. Gen. Harold Barker, resident of Providence, R. I.; Brig. Gen. Leonard F. Wing of Rutland, Vt.; Brig. Gen. William Rose of Worcester, Mass., and J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press War Correspondent, formerly of Methuen, Mass.

Gen. Wing, 49, veteran of the group, was host to his former (Yankee Division) buddies outside his quarters on Banika Island, serving tropically heated beer, and reminiscing. Gen. Barker, 48, took the ribbing, having been in what was facetiously referred to as the "Kaiser's own" among Yankee Division men since 1918; Gen. Rose, 45, was a kid soldier with was Lodge, 44, the baby of the group.

And, as a red alert was sounded, the young "old" soldiers sat 'neath the tropic moon, watched the Nips fly by, Guadalcanal - bound at heights that would have been considered fantastic in World War I; they ragged each other as to the respective qualities of their units, the highest physical standards and the I. Q. of present-day soldiers, and cured the ills of the world.

Gen. Wing, the eldest, hasn't a gray hair in his red-thatched top, nor has he a middle-age paunch. Gen. Barker, prematurely gray many years ago, hasn't a wrinkle in his face and is as straight as an arrow. Gen. Rose, slightly bald and naturally chubby, is all muscle. And Lodge (with a modestly protruding concave stomach, rather than convex.

"I wonder if I should have remained in the Army. I, too, might have been a brigadier by now."

Scientist Sees World's Metal Greatly Depleted in Generation

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Calif., July 6.—The bulk of the world's metal deposits will be "greatly depleted" in a generation or so due to the enormous demands of war and the increasing requirements of industry, says Dr. Donald H. McLaughlin, retiring professor of the University of California mining professor.

Only iron, aluminum and magnesium are likely to remain in supply indefinitely, Prof. McLaughlin told the Sigma Xi, honorary scientific society. These three metals, he explained, are sufficiently abundant in ordinary rocks to meet the world's needs. Magnesium also can be obtained from sea water.

The other principal minerals, he said, come from restricted sources where natural geological processes have concentrated them in sufficient amounts to make their extraction commercially profitable. There are traces of these metals also in rocks and other earth materials, but the concentration is so low, he said, that they offer little hope of recovery on an industrial scale.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as boss of the Government-operated coal mines, today announced steps to "bring safety and health conditions (in the mines) fully up to legal standards" in order to safeguard the miners and assure maximum production.

Mr. Ickes ordered the Federal mine managers to comply strictly with laws and regulations setting safety standards and to report promptly the measures taken to carry out safety recommendations made by Government mine inspectors.

"Last year 1,480 men were killed in the coal mines and 70,500 were injured. Although this terrible loss is less than that of previous years, deaths due to mine accidents appear to be increasing with the growing pressure upon the mines to increase production," Mr. Ickes said.

"At the rate experienced during the first four months of this year, we may expect that 1,500 men will be killed in 1943 unless we can do something to prevent it. Every man we lose is a man out of the labor force by accident means not only grief and loss to his family, but also loss of production. The heavy damage to mining properties and precious equipment also means loss of production."

"For the most part, accidents are preventable, and we must act vigorously to prevent them."

Liquor Stocks Indicate Only a 3-Year Supply On Rationed Basis

(This is the first of three daily stories on the liquor situation, reporting findings of a nationwide survey by the Associated Press.)

By the Associated Press.
It's going to be a longer time between drinks from now until possibly the end of the war. With production of beverage alcohol now banned by the Government, estimates of how long the available liquor supply will last vary from two to four years. Most industry spokesmen set it at three years—on a rationed basis.

A survey of the liquor situation made by the Associated Press shows:

1. There is no immediate likelihood of lifting of the ban on making beverage alcohol.
No Federal Rationing.
2. The Office of Price Administration says no rationing of liquor is presently contemplated by the Government—considering liquor a luxury item—but evidence gathered throughout the Nation indicates that virtually the same thing will be accomplished either by State laws or voluntary rationing systems, many of which now are in effect.

3. For some tastes the situation may be eased—but only slightly—through increased imports of Puerto Rican and Cuban rum, Cuban and Mexican gin. But imports of Scotch and Canadian whisky may be less as time goes on.
4. More and more tipplers are shifting to beer, some to wine.

With distillers operating on the assumption that what they have in warehouses now may be all they'll have until the war is over, they have rationed wholesalers in an attempt to stretch out the supplies.
Closings Have Begun.
The wholesalers, in turn, are rationing the retailers, with this result:

The pinch already is such that some package stores, bars and taverns have closed in certain sections of the country, the highest mortality so far being in Ohio, where 1,000 bars and taverns have locked their doors due to lack of supplies.
The survey shows the cut in supplies now is about 50 per cent, ranging from a drop of 90 per cent in some parts of Louisiana to a 25 per cent lowered supply in New York State. Of all the States, only little Rhode Island reports anything resembling a normal supply.
The Office of War Production Board, who would have the say on whether the Nation's distillers sometime during the war could resume at least limited production of alcohol for beverage purposes, decline to make a flat statement, but are declaring that much depends on the agricultural situation—how much corn there is—and the demands of our war machine for alcohol, used in making gunpowder and synthetic rubber.

Millions of Gallons for Rubber.
You could mix a lot of Tom Collinses with 72,000,000 gallons of alcohol, but that is the gallonage estimated as necessary to turn out the synthetic rubber slated for production in a year's time at just one Government-supervised plant—the big one at Institute, W. Va.

Bourbon is particularly scarce among the whiskeys, and it's virtually impossible to get gin in some sections of the country.
Rum and brandy still are fairly plentiful.
Standard brands of liquor are particularly hard to get, and in place of many old favorites a number of new brands have appeared on the shelves, of varying proofs and ages.

Distillers have lowered proofs—the alcoholic content—of some stocks in order to stretch out supplies.
Allied Liquor Industries, Inc., a trade organization, offers this outlook:

"The consumer of ardent spirits—or, in everyday terms, whisky, gin, rum and brandy—can probably count on a supply of somewhat less than two bottles for every three he consumed last year."
Tighter in Monopoly States.
And why are stocks of spirits not the same in every part of the country?

Various reports show that stocks are tighter in monopoly States—States where liquor retailing is supervised by the States themselves—than they are in open States where the stores are run by private enterprise.
A large manufacturer explains it this way:

"In the monopoly States there was usually a scientific system of inventory for the very purpose of keeping the stock down. In the open State, however, the wholesaler and retailer may have had heavy stocks when distillers started rationing."
"The combination of high inventory in wholesalers' hands and high inventory in retailers' hands has delayed the pinch on the consumer. But it is only a delay."
In the majority of the 17 monopoly States, formal ration systems already are in operation, with purchasers compelled to register for permits.

Ohio System Stiffest.
Stiffest rationing system so far is that of Ohio, where the limit is one quart for a ration period. Last month this extended from June 1 to 25.
Utah allows the "equivalent" of a pint a week, and also rations wines at two bottles a month.
Iowa allows a quart of whisky a week.

It's a pint a week in Washington State, North Carolina, Montana, Virginia and Oregon, but observers in Oregon report that the boys there are getting more by having their wives—and even their secretaries—register for permits.
West Virginia permits a "bottle" a week now under a preparatory system, but formal rationing starts August 2, and the grapevine has it that the ration will be a pint a week.

Michigan to Start System.
Michigan has announced it will institute rationing soon. Pennsylvania's Liquor Control Board has legislative authority to start rationing whenever it sees fit.
The rest of the monopoly States have restrictive systems of various types, ranging from Idaho, which allows four quarts weekly, to New Hampshire, which has urged tipplers to be content with a quart a week under an honor system.

Since Kansas, Mississippi and Oklahoma are dry States, they don't come into the rationing picture.
In virtually all the open States

JULY 4 IN NORTH AFRICA—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied North African commander, addresses American, French and British officers during the Independence Day celebration at Allied force headquarters.

some system of unofficial or voluntary rationing is in effect.
In Kentucky, famed for its bourbon and mint juleps, the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has placed the limit at "a case a week," but some retailers are allowing only a pint a week.
Retailers in other States are restricting customers to a bottle at a time.

Supply About 402,500,000 Gallons.
Variations in estimates of how long the liquor stocks will last add up this way:

The Nation's stock pile of all distilled spirits in warehouses, the Treasury reports, is something less than 453,000,000 gallons. That's the equivalent of about 350,000,000 actual gallons, distillers say, when you allow for loss through seepage and evaporation.
But then you have to add 15 per cent for the normal increase due to blending with neutral spirits. That gives 402,500,000 marketable gallons. However, since no figures are available on supplies of neutral spirits—a war secret—it can't be said how much will be available for blending. So the 402,500,000 gallon figure is tentative.

Furthermore, the distilling industry has earmarked a considerable quantity of young whisky to be held back for distribution after the war. Some sources put this amount as high as 180,000,000 gallons.

Last year, the Distilled Spirits Institute reports, the Nation's "apparent" consumption was about 190,000,000 gallons. At that rate the present marketable stock, even if none was held back, wouldn't last much more than two years.

Hoarders in Picture.
But the institute figures there was plenty of hoarding done last year, particularly just before the tax was boosted $2 a gallon. They believe that about 10,000,000 gallons were hoarded.
They say, too, that if distillers continue to limit released quotas to about 75 per cent of normal—as they say many of them are now doing—the stocks will last just so much longer.

Harry L. Lourie, executive vice president of the National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, says Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands represent a source of rum which could reach three million cases a year or more, if—and that's a big "if"—shipping facilities are available. And that depends on military requirements.
Mr. Lourie says distillation of spirits stopped some time ago in Scotland and Canada, and "it is our view that it is not only going to be impossible to increase present importations from those countries, but we will be extremely fortunate if decreases do not actually occur in 1943."

While more beer was produced in the country for the year ending May than was brewed a year ago—57,559,000 barrels, against 51,347,000—consumption for the same periods jumped from 49,000,000 to 53,210,000 barrels. Stocks were down from 8,946,000 barrels to 8,704,000.
Some brewing sources report that 20 to 25 per cent of our beer is going to the armed forces, with a corresponding cut in the allotment to Joe Civillian.

California's wine production (90 per cent of the Nation's) was lower last year than for the two previous years, although it reached 60,000,000 gallons. Grapes are being used for raisins to feed our troops and allies.
The California Wine Institute estimates national wine inventories at the end of June "reduced to around a 100,000,000-gallon level, compared to 135,500,000 gallons on hand at the same time last year."

President Sees Loss Of Sikorski as Blow To Cause of Liberty

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt said yesterday the death of Polish Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski, killed in an air accident near Gibraltar, was "a severe loss to all freedom-loving people."

In a message to Polish President Wladyslaw Raczewicz, Mr. Roosevelt recalled Gen. Sikorski's several visits here and said he had learned to admire "his integrity, his patriotism and those great qualities of leadership which so fully justified the confidence which you and the Polish people placed in him."
"His high sense of statesmanship and devotion to the cause of liberty and democracy," the message continued, "made him one of the outstanding leaders of our times. His passing represents a severe loss to all freedom-loving people."

Only yesterday Mr. Roosevelt had received a Fourth of July message which Gen. Sikorski sent from Gibraltar before the fatal take-off, expressing faith in America and confidence for the United Nations.

Secretary of State Hull sent a message of sympathy to Polish Foreign Minister Count Edward Raczynski praising Gen. Sikorski's sincerity of purpose, high-minded devotion to duty and outstanding statesmanship.

"Poland and the United Nations have lost a great friend, a great statesman and a superior officer," Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said.
"In his appearances before the House Foreign Affairs Committee he gave us an exceptionally clear picture of conditions abroad," Mr. Bloom said. "His plans for the future were most enlightening. American statesmen realize now the excellence of his work, especially in whatever negotiations took place between Poland and the United States."

Lord Halifax, British Ambassador, sent the following message to the widow of Gen. Sikorski:
"Lady Halifax and I grieve deeply at your tragic double bereavement. It is a cruel loss for you and your country that has borne so much. The recollection of your illustrious husband's courage and vision will continue to inspire all who are pledged to bring victory to the cause in which he gave his life."

Gen. Sikorski's daughter, Mrs. Sophia Lesniewska, also was killed in the crash.

Gen. Sikorski's Death Big Blow to Allies, Churchill Declares

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the death of Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish government-in-exile, who was killed Sunday in an air crash at Gibraltar, is "one of the heaviest strokes we have sustained."

At the same time the House was advised that Brig. Gen. J. F. Whiteley, a member of Parliament, was among the 15 persons killed in the crash of the Liberator aircraft which was bearing Gen. Sikorski home from an inspection of Polish forces in the Middle East.

Gen. Whiteley, who was 45, was a veteran of the World War and had been in Commons since 1937.
Representatives of the Polish government looked on from the galleries as the Prime Minister solemnly told the House that "we learned yesterday that the cause of the United Nations has suffered a most grievous loss."

Pays Tribute to Premier.
"It is my duty to express the feeling of this House and pay tribute to the memory of the great Polish patriot and staunch ally, Gen. Sikorski," Mr. Churchill said.

Gen. Sikorski, who in addition to being Premier had served as commander in chief of the Polish armed forces, commanded the devoted loyalty of the Polish people, now tortured and struggling in Poland itself," Mr. Churchill said.
He personally directed the movement of resistance which has maintained ceaseless warfare against German oppression in spite of sufferings as terrible as any nation ever has endured.
"This resistance will grow in power until at the approach of the liberating armies it will exterminate the German ravagers of the homeland."

Polish Cabinet Meets.
President Wladyslaw Raczewicz met at noon today with the Polish cabinet to pay tribute to Gen. Sikorski, but there was no business transacted and it was believed unlikely that permanent appointments to the premiership and the command of the army would be made for some time.

Meanwhile, Gen. Sikorski's body lay in state today in the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Gibraltar.
Beside him lay the body of Gen. Tadeusz Klimceki, chief of the Polish general staff, who met death in the same accident. A guard of honor composed of Polish officers, was posted at the cathedral, where a solemn pontifical mass of requiem will be celebrated tomorrow.

13 Others Killed.

Two other British subjects who were killed in the crash were announced today as W. W. Lock and a man named Pinder, otherwise unidentified. Mr. Lock was en route to England from the Persian Gulf area, where he had been a representative of the Ministry of War Transport. He had been assigned to a similar post in Canada.

Only survivor of the crash, the cause of which has not officially been determined, was the pilot of the plane, said to have been a Czech, whose name was withheld by British authorities at Gibraltar.

The Polish party was en route to London from the Middle East, where the Premier had been visiting a large contingent of Polish troops.

LADY, we're just as sorry as we can be. Now, as always, we would do anything in our power to make your train trip comfortable.

Now, as always, we'd like to provide a seat for everybody—but war comes first.

The R. F. & P. RAILROAD today carries 80% more passengers than last year, and nearly 5 times the traffic carried in 1940 just before the war.

Furlough travel at times is so heavy that we find it necessary to discontinue the sale of tickets for some trains. Often even standing room is not available.

Every patriotic American is urged to be SURE his trip is necessary before he buys a ticket. Please do not make non-essential trips, but if you MUST go, travel if possible on Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday; limit your hand-baggage to actual requirements, other baggage can be checked; and if your plans are changed, cancel your reservations promptly.

This railroad, like all railroads, wants you to enjoy Travel by Train. But, as every patriotic American knows, war comes first in wartime.

Gen. Chiang Sees Defeat of Japan Within Two Years

By the Associated Press. CHUNGKING, July 6.—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told China today on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the outbreak of the conflict with Japan that the time limit for utter defeat of the aggressor "cannot exceed two years."

"In the seventh year of our war of resistance," he said in his anniversary message, "an offensive that will deal crushing blows to the enemy will be started in various theaters of the world and there will be an unending stream of victories."

"Our war of resistance and the World War situation on this day have reached the highest peak of our uphill struggle," he went on. "One step beyond will be smooth sailing for us."

His message was one of a series of confident predictions from Chinese leaders of a complete Allied victory and elimination of Japan as a military power.

Urges Utmost Effort. The generalissimo cautioned that the "present marks the beginning of our greatest trials" and exhorted his countrymen to "brace themselves up, defy all hardships, concentrate on their will and exert their utmost" to enable China to join hands with her Allies "in negotiating the hardest stretch of the road to victory."

He emphasized the "utmost importance to the entire war situation" of the cleanup of Axis forces in North Africa, "for from now on the lines of transportation between the Allies in the East and West will be kept open without interruption and the European and Asiatic war theaters will be merged into one."

"As things stand now," the generalissimo declared, "the initiative in the different theaters of war has passed into Allied hands while Allied military power, economic strength and war production are daily increasing."

Final Victory Assured. "Henceforth the aggressor has no alternative but to await his doom. There is no longer any possibility of his making further sneak attacks and the time limit of his utter defeat cannot exceed two years."

It was the first time the generalissimo ever had set such a time limit. The military situation as a whole, he declared, "is even brighter now and our final victory is further assured."

"The current year," he said, "was the decisive year of the present World War." The resistance of China's armed forces and civilians "forced the Japanese invader to exhaust much of his war resources and retain a great part of his strength in the Chinese theater," he added. "At the same time, our armed resistance has made it possible for our Allies to carry out satisfactorily their production programs and strengthen their fighting power in various war theaters."

Gen. Ho Optimistic. Confident predictions of a complete Allied victory and the elimination of Japan as a military power came from Chinese leaders today on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the outbreak of war with Japan.

Declaring that the situation in the Far East has changed greatly for the better in the past year, Gen. Ho Ying-chin, War Minister and Army Chief of Staff, said that the outcome of the struggle is now assured beyond all doubt.

While the United Nations are growing stronger daily, he asserted, Japan is facing an acute manpower shortage, is far weaker in sea strength, has been surprised in the air, and is running into difficult material and food problems.

Says Japs Lose 3 Million. The War Minister placed the total number of Japanese casualties at around 3,000,000 men, including the losses inflicted by United States and British forces.

Estimating Japan's first line planes at not more than 3,000, Gen. Ho declared it should not be difficult for the United Nations to wipe out the enemy air force and cover a direct attack on Japan when the time comes.

China was described by H. H. Kung, Vice Premier and Minister of Finance, as "the most convenient advance base from which the war can and must be carried" to Japan. China, he said, is just bidding her time "to launch a general offensive."

Praises Gen. Chiang. "During six years of war," added Mr. Kung, "China not only has held her own but has even registered gains of epoch-making significance. Under the inspiring leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, our forces in the field continue to keep the flower of the Japanese Army pinned down."

Sun Fo, fiery cabinet minister and son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the republic, urged that the Allied naval forces try to knock out the main Japanese battle fleet and thereby open the front door of

Dependents' Benefits Compared

This comparison of allotments and allowances paid to dependents of servicemen under the present act and those proposed in pending legislation show how the new bill seeks to meet the greatest hardships.

Additional children (each)	10	11
Former wife divorced	42	42

Dependent for chief support	5	11
Dependent for substantial support	5	0

It will be noted that in the case of the former wife divorced the allowance in no case is to exceed the amount of alimony awarded. This remains the same under the bill.

The bill provides that allowances can be claimed for either class B-1 or class B dependents but may not be paid to both groups.

China to an adequate flow of materials. In the matter of supplies for China, Tseng Yang-fu, Chinese Minister of Communications, disclosed plans for a new backdoor route by way of the Turkistan-Siberian railroad. He said it was hoped shipments would begin "in the nearest future."

Cites New Treaties. Dr. Wang Chung-hui, secretary general of the Supreme National Defense Council, said his country was pledged to "total victory and lasting peace," and Gen. Wu Te-chin, secretary general of the Kuomintang (Nationalist party), declared new treaties recently signed by Great Britain and the United States with China assured the latter a "new role in international affairs."

The anniversary, July 7, is known in China as "Double Seventh Day," because it falls on the seventh day of the seventh month.

In a statement prepared for the National Broadcasting Co., Gen. Joseph E. Stilwell, commander of American forces in China, praised the Chinese for their "bitter and heroic struggle" and said their "indomitable spirit has always been strengthened by their confidence in ultimate victory."

Tokio Raid Pioneered Path for Additional Ones, Knox Says

SEATTLE, Wash., July 6.—The American air raid on Tokio, Secretary of the Navy Knox said yesterday, was a "pioneer raid" rather than a "raids raid."

Just as did the early pioneers who settled this magnificent country, some of our men lost their lives," Secretary Knox said at an Independence Day celebration. "But where they pioneered, others followed."

Secretary Knox's only reference to the Southwest Pacific offensive was that "there are proof that the United States Navy is on the move. Our fleets * * * are on the offensive and they are headed straight for Japan."

The winning of North Africa, he added, was not only a stepping stone to Europe but "also the opening of the back door to Japan's conquests. I believe we can all begin to see the strategy of global warfare."

Cities Gain Over U-Boats. At a press conference the Secretary indicated both surprise and satisfaction with the improved trend of submarine warfare in the Atlantic.

"We had feared and the enemy evidently expected," he said, "to have a strenuous and effective attack on our Atlantic convoys. In March it looked as if they'd put it over. The number of sinkings increased ominously."

"Then there was a sudden change—the only increase in sinkings was in the sinkings of submarines. We haven't won yet, though. This phase of the campaign has ended successfully, but there may be a new one next week."

Warns Against Disarming. He attributed the reduced effectiveness of the U-boat packs to a combination of increased air protection, improvement of technical anti-sub devices and skill in operating them, and to use of the newly developed escort aircraft carriers.

Later at a brief meeting with American Legion members, Secretary Knox told the Legionnaires their hardest job was "still ahead"—to see that the Nation doesn't repeat the mistakes of the World War postwar period and that the Nation's defenses are never again permitted to drop.

"We will have a great fleet after this war," he said. "Let us hope we never have another Washington conference. There couldn't have been a Pearl Harbor if we hadn't sunk those ships."

SOME years ago, "PEPCO" followed Teddy's advice and promptly and amply prepared for the then evident greater growth of Washington and its anticipated increased demands for electrical service.

To date, every reasonable electrical need of the National Capital has been met, but the increasing requirements of Global War demand vast supplies of materials to maintain our armed forces and those of our Allies. Fuel and other materials, vitally necessary to create and maintain our electric service to you, are likewise essential in other war activities, and require use of transportation facilities already overburdened. The transportation companies are doing a magnificent job under most trying conditions. We can all help materially by a reasonable, considered use of electricity in the shop, office, store and home. This effort in teamwork will reduce, in part, the necessity for use of fuel and transportation facilities for our local civilian needs that are so vitally necessary to supply our armed forces with men, fuel, food, ammunition, guns, planes and supplies.

While we have sufficient generating equipment and fuel supply to maintain present requirements of "Matchless Service", it is patriotic to remind ourselves that we should not waste electricity simply because it is cheap and unrationed. ### Coal Workers' Strike Is Virtually Ended; Only 9,000 Idle

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, July 6.—The Nation's third big coal strike, which started on June 30, virtually ended today as United Mine Workers leaders reported less than 9,000 of the 521,000 diggers remained idle. They predicted these men would be back in the pits by nightfall or tomorrow.

Most of the holdouts were in UMW District 9 of Eastern Pennsylvania's anthracite belt, where eight collieries, totaling about 4,500 men, were still out of production.

UMW leaders reported only eight mines were down in the bituminous fields of Central and Western Pennsylvania, where production today was nearing normal.

Two Pits Down in District 2. "Everything seems to be normal here, with only two pits down," said Don Gingery, Federal co-ordinator for District 2. This had been the biggest holdout spot in the bituminous district. Only 10,000 of 40,000 had worked Saturday.

The other idle pits today were in Districts 4 and 5 in Pennsylvania, the largest being the Maxwell mine of the United States Steel Corp. This employs 900 men.

John P. Busarelli, president of District 10 of Eastern Pennsylvania in his district had called meetings this afternoon and tonight.

Get Time and Half. Reports from the far-flung fields showed mines employing approximately 470,000 men operated yesterday—the first time the men had worked on a July 4 holiday. They received time and one half pay and will get the same rate Saturday if they work every day this week.

Quickly reflecting the increased activity in the coal pits was the firing of two more blast furnaces by the United States Steel Corp., leaving six still down. A week ago the corporation had closed 14, giving the coal shortage as the reason.

Production increased in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields, where the office of J. J. Forbes, Federal administrator of the mines, estimated 49,000 of the region's 83,000 miners worked yesterday, making approximately 61 per cent of a normal day's tonnage.

A break occurred also in the steel company owned "open-pit" mine region of southwestern Pennsylvania where two of the four Vesta mines of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. resumed production yesterday for the first time since the strike began in mid-June.

Giraud to Consult Joint War Chiefs

Gen. Henri Giraud, commander of French forces in North Africa, will consult with the combined chiefs of staff on the conduct of the war against the Axis during his visit here, the White House announced today.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said yesterday that "emphasis will be given to the military" during the general's stay. Gen. Giraud also is co-chairman of the French Committee for National Liberation.

President Roosevelt has designated Admiral William D. Leahy, his personal chief of staff, to take Gen. Giraud on his arrival and take him to the White House. Gen. Giraud last was reported officially at Natal, Brazil, but there was speculation he had proceeded to Martinique to review the situation on the French Caribbean coast.

Since he is not the head of a government, Gen. Giraud will not spend a night at the White House, as do visiting chiefs of state, but will be lodged at the Blair House as the Government's guest.

Mr. Early said he expected that Gen. Giraud and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, would be "much together" during the French leader's stay in Washington and that Gen. Giraud also would see Secretary of War Stimson and other officials.

Farm Help

 Agricultural labor shortage persists in most States, and that many of them expect a crisis at harvest time. For instance, California, source of one-tenth of the Nation's food, wants more than 300,000 laborers for the big July-to-October push. Across the continent, New York figures it could use an extra 100,000 during the September period. Demands vary in other sections.

Some Meet Minimum Needs. A half dozen States report their minimum needs have been or will be met. Among them are two where the harvest is under way. In Kansas, hundreds of children—from 10 up—whitened through an organized recruiting program, have gone into the fields. In Oklahoma the gaps were filled by volunteers, including a "victory corps" of high school boys and 300 former farmhands furloughed from the Oklahoma Ordnance Works.

These expedients may outline the shadow of things to come in other regions as the harvest gets under way. In Georgia and Arizona, Japanese-Americans from relocation centers got jobs in the Western Mountain States, South Dakota and Nebraska.

The Nation-wide inquiry among farmers, far organization leaders, State and Government agencies and others concerned established that labor supply has increased since expressions of alarm from the country sectors focused attention on the farm manpower problem last winter. There were several contributing

GERMAN OFFENSIVE ENDS 100-DAY LULL—A heavy German offensive in the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod sector (forked arrow) ended the 100-day lull on the Russian front, the Soviet high command announced last night.

Scene of the Germans' greatest effort a year ago—and costing 586 tanks and 203 planes in a single day thus far—the offensive indicated the Germans have embarked on a full effort to knock out the Soviet Union. Shaded area is Russian.

Russia

State officials advised that, for the most part, and with some exceptions, draft boards now are deferring essential farm hands.

In at least six States a backlog of men from industry and business to farms became apparent. The phenomenon was ascribed to "draft pressure"—i.e., a shift from non-essential pursuits to agricultural occupations affording deferment. In some cases, however, experienced farm men returned to the soil from war plants or at the conclusion of war construction projects.

Vacationers Volunteer. Volunteer vacationers swelled the working crews, although it was acknowledged that they lacked the skill for many tasks in a highly mechanized agriculture. Importees and internees rendered assistance.

But in the majority of the States, the release of men of 38 or older from the armed services resulted in only a thin trickle back to the land.

The decisive contribution to the food-growing campaign came from bona fide farmers. And they did it the hard way. They labored longer hours—often from sunup to sundown or, as the colloquialists put it, "from kin-see to kaint-see." They helped themselves and their neighbors by trading labor and equipment. They pooled machinery and set up community repair shops in rural districts to offset, as much as possible, the loss of men.

Despite the influx of new helpers, many States contemplate the forthcoming harvest with some degree of trepidation. Agricultural authorities fear that, at best, Ohio can muster but 75 per cent of the labor force required. Shortages were envisioned in Illinois and Nebraska. New Jersey reckoned it would have to have 6,000 more migratory workers. Pennsylvania calculated its needs at 40,000 seasonal hands.

To prepare for the titanic test in these and some other States, mobilization and recruiting drives are in progress. Much will depend on aid from townfolk.

Pennsylvanians Warned. J. M. Fry, Pennsylvania's director of Agricultural Extension, warned that people who don't live on farms "will have to help out if we're going to get enough to eat next winter."

North Dakota going all-out, has begun registration in every county and most communities under the "North Dakota plan"—which calls for businessmen, students and housewives to drop whatever they are doing temporarily and help bring in the crops.

The commandant of Camp Atterbury in Indiana has arranged to farm out Italian prisoners in five nearby counties. Ohio American Legionnaires were asked to form labor groups to assist farmers and processors.

By the Associated Press.
RENO, Nev., July 6.—The Maharajah of Indore will file suit for divorce today, charging his white maharani, the former Marguerite Lawler Branyen of Fargo, N. Dak., with extreme cruelty.

The attorney, E. Herbert Herlihy of Los Angeles, said the maharani had signed a property settlement, granting his wife the huge estate at Laguna Beach, Calif., and custody of Princess Usha, the maharani's only child by a previous marriage.

Mr. Herlihy said the divorce proceedings would be behind locked doors and the transcript would be sealed.

The maharajah completed the required six weeks' residence Sunday.

OPA Raises Prices On Three Types of Canned Vegetables

By the Associated Press.
 New prices for canned asparagus, mustard greens and turnip greens have been set by the Office of Price Administration.

This was the last of a series of orders covering the various kinds of vegetables in the 1943 pack.

With allowances for increased labor and material costs, the new regulation will eventually increase retail prices of a No. 2 can of asparagus by 4 cents and the same size can of mustard and turnip greens an average of 1 1/2 cents. Allowance also was made for adding on the cost of canned spinach a 4 1/2 per cent increase in wages.

Yesterday's order applied specifically to the prices canners may charge, but these prices automatically determine ultimate retail prices under OPA's pricing formulas.

The OPA also set maximum prices which canners and other processors may pay for certain types of cherries and berries.

The regulation, effective immediately, does not affect prices of cherries and berries sold for table use in their natural form. A later regulation is expected to regulate those prices.

The new prices limiting what processors may pay growers: Red sour-pitted cherries, 8 1/2 cents a pound; black raspberries, 15 cents; youngberries, 13 cents; boysenberries, 12 cents; loganberries, 12 cents; blackberries, 12 cents, and gooseberries, 8 cents.

OPA officials said these prices were generally lower than prices recently charged processors, but local prices varied so much that no precise comparison is possible. They said a similar control method may be expected for other fresh fruits, berries and vegetables.

Primary purpose of yesterday's order, the officials said, is to hold down the prices which processors have to pay so that the latter will not be forced to ask increased prices of the public.

Bombers Painted White For Special Service

White bombers now over Britain are not for service in that area directly faced by the white cliffs of Dover, London has learned. Instead, they are for work in an undesignated area, possibly in the Arctic, it was stated.

Some Flying Fortresses and Wellingtons are now white, a strange contrast to the camouflaged planes customary to British Isles service.

 leads westward to the sea is known as Blackett Strait. The deep channel there separate Kolombangara from Wanawana and Arundel Islands. The latter island stands like a backdrop at the southern end of the bay while Wanawana is to the south and west.

The channel is only a half mile wide as it leaves the gulf, gradually opening after it passes the western extremity of Arundel Island. Vessels seeking to get from the southern end of the gulf to Munda or Rendova Island would have to round both Arundel and Wanawana.

There are several fine anchorages on the eastern side of the gulf on the beach of New Guinea Island. One of these is Rice Anchorage, about three-quarters of the distance south from the northern entrance to the gulf. It is about a quarter of a mile in width, with a shore that is densely wooded. The Wharton River discharging on the eastern side is fringed by a bank of sand and mud. Vessels can anchor to a depth of 20 fathoms (120 feet).

Koleiuro Inlet, another anchorage, is 3 miles southward of Rice Point. It is larger, being about 2 miles in length and 350 yards wide between the entrance points.

Both of these anchorages would offer ideal points for the landing of American troops and supplies over smooth waters in land-locked harbors, but once ashore the land forces would be in the dense tropical country placing them from 10 to 12 miles from Munda, the longer distance being from Rice Anchorage.

The landing forces successfully put ashore there would join the American force which is working its way up the coast from the landing point established last week at Viru Harbor, while to the east and five miles away is Rendova Island, from which the Munda air base has been shelled by land artillery.

Because of the small area within Kula Gulf there is not much maneuvering room for any decisive battle between any sizable force of surface naval units. For that reason, it is believed that any decisive naval engagement which might take place in this area as part of the Japanese efforts to recover the territory now occupied by the Americans would have to be outside of the gulf.

 shells of the warships and bombs dropped by Mitchell medium bombers the night of July 4 and in the pre-dawn of July 5. Later, dive-bombers dropped 1,000-pound bombs on Bairoko which is above the menaced enemy air base of Munda, also in New Georgia.

Over Rendova, which is within artillery shelling distance of Munda, the Japanese sent 40 Zeros yesterday in a continued effort to balk expansion of American action in that sector. Outnumbered American fighter planes shot down two of the Zeros and dispersed the remainder while losing one plane, the pilot of which was saved. The Japanese now have lost 157 planes over Rendova in almost daily sky fights since the island was invaded June 30.

The Solomons area of the offensive virtually monopolized developments reported in today's communique.

Another air strike in the Solomons area was directed by torpedo bombers at the enemy seaplane base of Rekata Bay, on Santa Isabel Island above New Georgia.

The communique made no mention of ground action, either in the Solomons or on Northeastern New Guinea.

Above Australia, a long-range fighter strafed and set afire an 80-ton enemy power barge near the Aroe Islands.

Viereck's Accountant Describes Payments From Nazi Library

George Sylvester Viereck's tax expert and public accountant today described to the District Court jury how the defendant received thousands of dollars annually from the German Library of Information—in addition to his salary of $6,000—for such items as "white books" and "special work."

Harry Abramowitz, who said he had known Viereck since 1927 and had set up a bookkeeping system for him, specifically identified accounts of the defendant for 1940.

That year Viereck's salary from the German Library was $500 a month, but in addition he received a total of $22,871 under the heading of "other income," the accountant testified.

Entries Identified. Under questioning by Prosecutor Albert E. Arent, Mr. Abramowitz identified such entries in Viereck's accounts as:

"Special editorial work on books, $1,000;" "Literary services, $2,000;" "White book No. 6, $500;" "Professional services, $500."

Viereck, who is charged with violations of the Foreign Agents Registration Act, listed the German Library as one of two foreign principals for whom he worked prior to our entrance into the war. At the time of registering with the State Department he professed to be "literary adviser" for the library.

Employe Testifies. First witness called to the stand as the trial moved into its second week was Eric Posselt, who identified himself as a writer and translator. He told of being hired by the defendant in 1941 to do rewrites and translations—at 1 cent a word—on materials which found its way to "Facts in Review," weekly magazine published by the German Library.

He identified a manuscript handed him by Mr. Arent as composed of speeches by former Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia. He said that Viereck gave him the manuscript to type, that it was his understanding that it was to be printed in book form.

The Government, barring further delays, hopes to close its case this week.

Formula Is Sought To Grant Wage Raise To Railway Workers

By the Associated Press. Administration advisers are looking for a thornless path for Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson to plow in backtracking on the 8-cent railway wage award, according to word today from an authentic source.

Mr. Vinson's decision not only lited officers of the 15 nonoperating railroad unions and the chairman of the emergency board which recommended the raise, it was said, but it vexed President Roosevelt, too, because a couple of weeks earlier the President had asked union officials to accept the 8 cents in lieu of the 30 they had asked.

The objective now is said to be a formula which will give the nonoperating employees something approximating the 8 cents without causing any loss face in the official family.

Reconsideration Suggested. Mr. Vinson's opinion, in the form of a letter to members of the Emergency Board, said they may reconsider a revised recommendation and suggested they use the "substandards" test of the stabilization program.

L. L. Sharfman, who was chairman of the board, replied that the group "no longer exists as a functioning tribunal."

Even if it were reconvened, Mr. Sharfman added, "no useful purpose could be served by a reconsideration of its recommendation on the basis of your memorandum opinion."

Dr. William M. Leiserson, who appointed the Emergency Board from the Railway Labor Panel of which he is chairman, has shown no inclination to reconvene the board.

Breakdown Feared. Dr. Leiserson, who is a member of the National Railway Mediation Board, was described by associates as disturbed because of a confusion of the issues of a labor dispute on the one hand and the stabilization program on the other, and fearful that the result might be a breakdown of the labor disputes machinery provided by the Railway Labor Act.

There appears to be no dispute about Mr. Vinson's authority to advise the President of the effect of the award on the stabilization program and to reduce the amount accordingly, but there is a dispute whether Mr. Vinson had authority to advise the emergency board (if it exists) of the basis on which it might make an award, in view of the fact that the board heard testimony for 44 days and not even the record of it was before Mr. Vinson.

Dr. Leiserson believes that such procedure would make emergency board hearings a futile gesture.

Subsidies (Continued From First Page) such reduction in the price paid to producers of such commodity as result of any subsidy program.

"I'm working on the old theory," remarked Senator O'Mahoney, "that a tenth of a loaf is better than no bread."

Taft Sees Plan Inevitable. Appealing for a limitation on the amount the administration could spend on subsidies, Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio acknowledged yesterday that "there is no way so far as I can see" of stopping the rollback program.

"We may come back here," he said, "and find commitments of two or three billion dollars. The second year may be $5,000,000,000. Unless we put on some ceiling, we're saying 'a right Mr. President, we have no further interest and do as you please.'"

Senator Taft also offered an amendment which would give CCC an extra $175,000,000 authorization to finance its commitments on the 194 crop program. The money, he said, would be paid chiefly to producers for next year's crops and would not be part of the rollback funds.

Both Senator Taft and Majority Leader Barkley predicted Senate approval of the subsidy authorization measure.

Senator Shipstead, Republican, of Minnesota told the Senate, however, that the program is inviting "the dirtiest evils of inflation."

"It must be clearly understood," he remarked, "that any Government undertaking to operate a substitute

New FEPC Convened Here for 2 Days to Study Pending Cases

The newly organized Fair Employment Practice Committee convened today for a two days' meeting to study many cases left over from the old FEPC which was abolished. Assigned to prevent discrimination in war industries or Government service because of race, creed, color or national origin, the committee has before it, among other questions, the Capital Transit Co. case. The old FEPC had called on the company to explain why it had not hired colored "platform men" on buses and streetcars here.

In a Detroit case the FEPC had called several companies for alleged discrimination because of race. Msgr. Francis J. Haas, chairman of the new committee recently returned from Detroit, where it was understood he made a careful survey of the situation there.

Prior to the committee meeting today there was no indication as to how it will define its jurisdiction. President Roosevelt took the committee out from under the War Manpower Commission where it formerly operated, and placed it in the Office of Emergency Management in the executive offices of the President.

The committee has a new setup, representing management, labor and the public, with Msgr. Haas representing the public. Labor representatives are the same as in the old committee, but there are three new members representing industry.

To ascertain inland waterway possibilities, a technical mission from the United States is making a study of Venezuela. The transportation system has developed weaknesses under war conditions. Recently freight rates between the principal port of entry at Caracas were revised to insure greater transportation economy. One company which operates a coastwise service will extend its activities in such a way as to bring the western and eastern parts of the country into closer communication.

Summers Would Let Congress Override Veto by Majority

By the Associated Press. Representative Summers, Democrat, of Texas saying that President Roosevelt has vetoed almost 14 times as many bills as did the first 16 Presidents altogether, has proposed that a bare majority in Congress be made sufficient to override a veto.

A two-thirds vote in both Houses and Senate is now required to enact a vetoed measure.

Mr. Summers, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, argued in presenting his proposal in the House yesterday that it would "get the executive branch of the Government back on its side of the fence."

It would, he said, "remove a hurtful confusion in the allocation of Government power, which allocation is violative of the nature of a representative government."

An amendment to the Constitution would be needed to make the change and it would have to be ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the States.

Mr. Summers said he would not press for action, but that he wanted the people to think about it.

He also proposed a constitutional amendment to prevent appointment of members of Congress to Government posts during their elected term and for two years thereafter.

decision, whatever it may be. At the same time, he pointed out, both the labor and the industry members are getting a better understanding of each other's problems, and the problems of government as well.

This, in his judgment, points to the conclusion that it is "short-sighted for labor to go to the Government for help every time it is in a jam and wishes an easy way out."

In this comment, Mr. Lapham undoubtedly meant that Government intervention in labor disputes is bound to be a progressive process, which, if unchecked, will reach deeper and deeper into the employer-employee relationship and bring with it an increasing control over the affairs of labor as well as of employers.

It is significant that this is a point of view which is beginning to be shared by more and more far-sighted union leaders.

Eastern Front Flare-up. Moscow's announcement that the Germans have opened a big offensive south of the Soviet capital comes as an unexpected break in the prolonged lull that had settled over the eastern front.

We still do not know whether this is a true offensive in the strategic sense or whether it is a large-scale tactical action designed to better the German position for defensive strategy during the coming winter.

The sectors involved stretch from Orel to Belgorod. Between these two Axis-held key points the Russians last winter punched a huge blunt salient approximately 100 miles wide and 100 miles deep.

General Sikorski. Well known and much appreciated in Washington, General Wladyslaw Sikorski was one of the leaders who made the United Nations an alliance in the complete meaning of the word.

Dangerous Big Balances. The proposed inquiry into war expenditures by the Byrd Committee on Non-essential Federal Expenditures can serve a useful purpose.

Experienced Counsel. It is of more than passing interest that Roger D. Lapham, retiring from the War Labor Board after more than two years in the forefront of the Government's effort to bring labor and industry together, should see fit to stress the desirability of holding to a minimum the participation of Government in the employer-employee relationship.

In other words the Government, spending as fast as it can, will not be able to pay out more than the balances now on hand.

Why, asks Senator Byrd, should Congress continue to roll up still bigger balances by appropriating more and more money? Yet, in his opinion, the probabilities are that the administration will be seeking another $100,000,000 by next winter.

Big balances in the Treasury encourage big spending, and big spending too often leads to waste and extravagance. The Byrd committee proposes, therefore, to show to Congress and the country that further huge appropriations are unnecessary for a long time to come.

World War I, including the money which the United States loaned to other nations at that time, cost only $40,000,000,000, or one-eighth of the $400,000,000,000 already provided for the prosecution of the present war.

General Sikorski. Well known and much appreciated in Washington, General Wladyslaw Sikorski was one of the leaders who made the United Nations an alliance in the complete meaning of the word.

Every higher commander. In addition to his general staff, has a technical staff of specialists—an engineer officer, a signal officer, a medical officer, chemical warfare officer and so on.

As to the means by which action is to be taken, this composes the so-called staff and things are not sufficient, for the Nation, unlike the Army, must find the money for everything, must produce as well as use, must take into account the needs of the civilian population and the force of public opinion.

Probably the major subdivisions under this head requiring representation on the presidential staff are manpower, production, transportation, food and internal security.

Every activity of the Nation at war should be brought under the direction of one or the other of these 11 staff departments, and their chiefs should be the President's assistants and advisers in the discharge of his mission as Commander in Chief.

Unity. If unity had not been celebrating a triumph in Tunisia, not now looking forward eagerly to yet greater triumphs in Europe, unity under the national government which was formed just three years ago, was essential to sustain the morale of the people in days of defeat.

Nation Must Organize On Army Pattern

Major Eliot Argues For 'Staff of Chiefs' To Advise President

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot. (This is the third of a series on American problems of war organization and leadership.)

In the preceding two articles, we have reviewed certain principles of military organization and leadership. We have seen that modern war has grown so complex that the higher leaders must have the assistance of a competent staff in order to perform their tasks.

The basic idea on which the general staff system of the Army is organized is to simplify the work of the commander, to relieve him of detail. Therefore the organization of the staff is itself as simple as possible.

He is given certain means with which to do it. (a) Men, dealt with by the personnel section of his staff, and (b) Things, dealt with by the supply section of his staff.

Every higher commander. In addition to his general staff, has a technical staff of specialists—an engineer officer, a signal officer, a medical officer, chemical warfare officer and so on.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

"Dear Sir: "So many times we have felt tempted to write you how much pleasure we receive from your column, but the impulse has always gone the way of all good intentions.

"The other evening I saw a young robin with a broken wing. It couldn't fly, but it hopped so fast it got away before I could catch it.

It is comparatively easy, if you are at all a handy person, to put a splint on a bird's leg, but a wing is an altogether different matter.

A bird with a broken wing should be confined in a garage, or large box, and no attempt made to set the wing, unless one is thoroughly sure that he knows exactly what he is doing.

While it is serious, it is never so much so as the broken wing. Keep in mind that often what seems to be a broken wing is only an injured wing. If left alone, it will come around all right, but if it is poked and pulled by an inexperienced hand, real trouble may be in store for the bird.

Letters to the Editor

Japanese-Americans Excoriated By Critic of Their 'Savagery.' To the Editor of The Star: I have read the article of Clarke Kawakami in the April 17 issue of The Star criticizing Lt. Gen. John L. De Witt, chief of the Western Defense Command, for opposing the return of Japanese to the West Coast area, and further stating that the Army has given a vote of confidence to "Americans" of Japanese descent by placing them in our Army, and because of this, his opposition is ill-considered, untimely and unfortunate.

As a Californian, I am deeply grateful to Gen. De Witt for his decision. Apparently, the Japs are not trusted by the authorities or they would be permitted on the coast. There must be some doubts, and rightly so, in view of their history in our country, and also in the light of more recent events. Nor has any one forgotten the firearms, ammunition, maps, short-wave radio sets, etc., found in great quantities on the Pacific Coast shortly after December 7, 1941.

I recall after Pearl Harbor when Japanese were evacuated from coast areas that Gen. De Witt was most generous and considerate of them, almost to the point of defending them, to the apprehension and disgust of most Californians. No doubt Gen. De Witt has seen his mistake, which undoubtedly was gained by personal experience and in part from valuable information given him by older citizens of California who know the Japs and know them well. And it is to be regretted that other sections of the country do not seem to understand this grave problem.

We Californians believe that the Japanese came to California for the sole purpose of conquering us, and they have left no stone unturned to acquire riches in order to accomplish their purpose. It is unnecessary to say they never will conquer us, but undoubtedly their money has bought them many favors from unscrupulous politicians. Nor have we forgotten that the Japanese government offered subsidies to Jap coolies to come to our shores by the thousands back in the early 1900s, and who, incidentally, are few pennies a day in Japan for their labors and often only rice.

Nor have we forgotten the picture-bride system of selecting wives they never had seen before, and whose steamship fare was advanced so they might come to this country to marry Jap coolie men, for the purpose of increasing the Jap population and so that they could buy tracts of land in the names of their Jap infants since they, as foreigners, could not purchase property (money for which was provided by the Japanese government)—the future "loyal Americans" of Japanese ancestry, the present arrogant and aggressive Japanese in our midst, to whom we have been so generous.

Nor have we Californians forgotten the fact that their parents intended that they should remain Japanese citizens by registering their births with their Japanese consuls; also the fact that Japanese children were sent to Japanese schools by their parents, after their daily attendance at American schools, to say nothing of the fact that the Japanese language and the brutal principles of the Shinto religion were taught in their homes; all of which is definite proof that they had no intention of becoming American citizens, and very conclusive proof that they came here for subversive reasons. In the light of this, just how

Public Called Gainer by Jones' Fight

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
When Vice President Wallace took his case against the RFC to the court of public opinion, disregarding President Roosevelt's specific admonition that officials must not air their disputes in the press, it was natural that Congress should want to investigate the subject. But the administration had enough influence to squelch the inquiry, which left Secretary of Commerce Jones, head of the RFC, out in the cold. He had to stand aside and see the charges leveled against him by Vice President Wallace ignored.

David Lawrence.

So Mr. Jones, who is a fighter, simply carried his case to the court of public opinion, too. And the public is the gainer thereby. For the Jones letter, addressed to the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, reveals that while there has been on the part of the RFC considerable caution in approving contracts for the use of public funds, there has been an attitude of carelessness toward the expenditure of public funds on the part of the would-be spenders. The complaints of the latter have brought charges against the RFC. But Mr. Jones now responds that he doesn't think it is a major crime to wish to be careful about the way the taxpayers' money is spent.

Vice President Exceeds Powers.
When the Secretary of Commerce feels it necessary to say of Mr. Wallace's statement that "his trade is so filled with malice, innuendoes, half-truths, and no truths at all," it is certainly a bit of understatement to say that these are just "healthy differences of opinion," as they were called by one of the members of the Board of Economic Warfare the other day in describing the reasons for the Wallace statement.

It is interesting, too, that the Vice President of the United States, who is a member of the Senate and can upon occasion cast a vote on matters of policy and even on appropriation bills, should be not only issuing directives and orders, as revealed by Mr. Jones' statement, but actually delegating to others such power to sign important documents involving hundreds of millions of dollars.

Under the Constitution, the Vice President is a member of the Senate and no member of the Senate can hold office under the executive branch of the Government. Mr. Jones holds a portfolio in the cabinet by virtue of an act of Congress, but there is no statute which permits the Vice President to act in any executive agency.

Dispute Is Not Blame.
The dispute might not have arisen if the President had more interest in keeping the constitutional functions of the different branches of the Government separate. But from the beginning he has "oversteered the notion that he is the head of the whole Government, and he does not hesitate to put Supreme Court justices to work under him or rather to let them act in an influential advisory position on matters of legislative policy on which some day they might have to pass.

It is true the justices can always disqualify themselves from sitting on any question that arises out of legislation or policies they helped to prepare, but that was not the purpose our founding fathers had in decreeing that the executive legislative and judicial branches of the Government should be separate and co-ordinate.

The merits of the issues raised in the Jones-Wallace controversy should be thoroughly studied by some committee of Congress, because evidently the administration isn't interested in getting to the bottom of this revelation of friction as well as incompetence in handling important problems related to the war effort. But apart from the issues in the controversy itself, public opinion should demand that the dignity of the Senate requires that no member—including the Vice President—should violate the Constitution by holding office or exercising any executive power under the President.

Mr. Jones says that "squandering the people's money even in wartime is no proof of patriotism," and from one end of the country to the other, as the taxpayers this week see 20 percent of their wages and salaries withheld, there will go up a chorus of approval.

Mr. Jones has had a reputation of trying to buy economically for the Government. He has been the same, no matter what the issue—he believes in acting as a trustee for the people's interest. He says: "The RFC does not pay $2 for something it can buy for $1. Maybe no one does, but the point is that some men know when you can buy it for $1, some don't know, and some don't care as long as they are spending other people's money."

This is the kind of criticism which Congress should welcome as a cue for a thorough inquiry as to what is happening to the expenditure of Government funds—the taxpayers' money. Maybe as the number of taxpayers increases, some public sentiment to that effect will be developed.

The Political Mill

By GOULD LINCOLN.
Loose legislative methods of Congress have been responsible for loss of time and unconscionable "log rolling." Unrelated subjects, neither of which could stand alone, command a majority vote, have been jammed together on occasion into the same bill, and so have become a law or have failed only because of a presidential veto.

Senator Andrews of Florida recently introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to cure this situation. The language of the proposed amendment is brief and easily understood, and worth quoting. Here it is: "Every bill or joint resolution passed by the Congress shall embrace but one subject and matter properly connected therewith, which subjects shall be briefly expressed in the title of such bill or joint resolution."

"No law shall be amended or revised by reference to its title only; but in every case the law, as revised, or section as amended, shall be re-enacted and published at length."

Two-Edged Sword.
The adoption of such an amendment to the Constitution would have the effect of making each issue which comes before Congress stand on its own feet. It would be voted up or voted down without having to bear the burden or have the advantage of running in company with another and usually entirely extraneous matter.

The amendment would prevent the practice of adding objectionable "riders" to bills before Congress. It would be of benefit both to the legislative and to the executive branches of the Government. For while Congress in the past has forced a President to take legislation which he did not approve by tying it in with legislation which he earnestly desired, the President, through his own influence on party leaders, has forced Congress to accept legislation by tying it in with subjects which had congressional approval.

The rules of the House and Senate, as they stand today, do make some effort to preserve germaneness in subject matter of the bills which come before them. Too often, however, they are entirely ineffective in this respect. Indeed, in the Senate, any legislative proposal may be offered as an amendment to any bill before that body—except to an appropriation bill. And even in the latter case, if the legislation has been able to receive the approval of the Appropriations Committee, it may be tied to an appropriation bill.

Rule Changes Difficult.
The rules of the House and Senate could be amended to conform to the proposed constitutional amendment. Changing the rules of the House and Senate, however, is no easy matter. Indeed, it has taken almost a legislative revolution to bring about amendments to the rules in the past.

More than a quarter of a century ago the Senate labored mightily and brought forth its so-called "cloture" rule. Still earlier in the House, the old rules which made Speaker "Joe" Cannon and his predecessors "czars" in that body were overthrown, but only after an intense struggle, a forerunner of the progressive-conservative split in the Republican party which brought the GOP eventually to its knees.

So, it may be easier to win this proposed legislative reform by amending the Constitution itself. Further, the reform would be permanent—unless the Constitution were again revised.

Good Reason for Single Subject.
There is no good reason for including two subjects in the same bill. Indeed, the reasons for not doing so are very good. Why should it be possible, for example, to tie an anti-lynching bill to a relief measure, or an anti-poll tax bill to a public works bill?

This is not said in derogation of either anti-lynching legislation or anti-poll tax legislation. These are measures which should be considered on their merits alone. To both strong constitutional objections have been raised. The Senators and Representatives from Southern States have fought them again and again, by whatever parliamentary maneuvers were possible. The strongest has been the filibuster in the Senate, made possible by the rule of unlimited debate in that body.

The second section of the proposed amendment, which declares that no law shall be amended or revised by reference to its title only, deserves support. There has grown up a practice by which Federal laws are amended merely by eliminating from, adding to or substituting words in a statute, with a reference in the amending law only to the title of the original law and the section which it is proposed to amend. It is a lazy man's way of doing business.

Instead of rewriting and re-enacting the law, so that the purpose shall be clear to any one who reads an amending bill, there is only a jumble of meaningless words, numbers and references—a crazy quilt which can only be put into understandable form by a careful reading of old laws.

Vote Without Understanding.
The consequence is that Senators and Representatives, in many instances, are called on to vote on changes in existing law which are meaningless to them—unless they employ legal talent to put the loose pieces together, or can find the time themselves to do this work.

Here is a random example of amending laws by reference only. A bill, H. R. 2798, entitled "An Act to amend the act entitled 'An Act to provide that the United States shall aid the States in the construction of rural post-roads, and for other purposes,' approved July 11, 1916, as amended and supplemented, and for other purposes," was passed by the House on June 8. There were five amendments by reference to sections of the earlier laws by the House, and the Senate committee, when it reported the measure, added a new section in which there were four more amendments by reference. Particularly has this method of amending laws by reference been used in tax legislation.

The proposed amendment is practically identical with a provision in the Florida constitution. It is similar, too, to constitutional provisions of other States. Senator Andrews insists that the Legislature in Florida is enabled by reason of this constitutional provision, to accomplish its work quickly and in a far more orderly fashion than Congress. If the sessions of Congress can be expedited, it would be a good thing for the country.

I'd Rather Be Right

By SAMUEL GRAFTON.
I think it would be more useful if the European underground could speak to us every day, than if we could speak daily to the underground.

Samuel Grafton.

It do not believe they would tell us about how little they have to eat. Vacuum tubes are precious. There are so many more important stories to tell, about friends who were killed yesterday, and others who may die tonight.

They might say: Hitler holds Europe. Every year which passes gives him another leg toward permanent possession. These would be good, steady broadcasts, by men who have gone beyond the point at which they can become angry about food subsidies.

Of course, there is no law to prevent any American from speaking, with heat and sympathy, as if he were a member of the underground; speaking for those who cannot speak, which is the highest function of any man who writes or talks.

Yanks in Iran Hold Two-Way Celebration
By the Associated Press.
AT AN IRANIAN PORT ON THE PERSIAN GULF, July 4 (delayed).—One thousand American Army dockworkers and other soldier-workmen went on parade today—the Fourth of July wasn't the only event they were celebrating.

They were celebrating, too, the fact that the tonnage of war supplies that had passed through the Russia was fast approaching seven million for less than seven months, and they had official documents to prove it.

Mal. Gen. Donald H. Connolly, heading the Persian Gulf supply command, announced the tonnage from the reviewing stand and called it "Uncle Sam's present to Uncle Joe Stalin."

Then he conferred hero's medals on Corp. Hugh F. Menton of Crockett, Calif., for rescuing two native workmen from drowning, and Pvt. John P. Powers of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., for saving 12 loaded cars on the Transiranian railway which broke loose on a heavy grade and roared along out of control 15 miles. He was a rear brakeman on the train. Corp. Menton formerly was a San Francisco longshoreman.

This Changing World

By CONSTANTIN BROWN.
The question of the control and organization of Martinique and Guadeloupe, after Admiral Georges Robert packs his bags and departs for France, is likely to produce a number of headaches to the American Government.

Constantin Brown.

The War, Navy and State Departments consider those two French islands as hot potatoes which will have to be handled with asbestos gloves.

From the strictly military point of view, these French islands should constitute an integral part of the American Caribbean defenses and like the others should be placed under the control of the American Navy.

But while the problem of civil administration on bases we have leased for 99 years from Great Britain is simple—the British have their governors and civilian administrators who are co-operating in a most friendly manner without military authorities—Martinique is on the verge of a revolution and there seems to be no civil authority to guarantee law and order.

Under these circumstances it would appear logical that this country should take over the administration of the islands and place them both under representatives of the American armed forces, such as Vice Admiral John H. Hoover, and let the military handle the situation until order has been established definitely.

French Politics Involved.
This procedure, however, faces a political snag. For some reason or other the French are very touchy on this matter. The French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers has appointed its administrators even before the negotiations with Admiral Robert have ended.

Any endeavor by the United States to establish naval bases in the French Caribbean area at this time might be denounced to the French people as an indication of "American imperialism" and be used as an excellent vehicle for anti-American propaganda in North Africa and France.

Hard-boiled military men are not particularly sensitive over French politics hurling unsavory epithets at the United States. But reports from Africa reach the State Department indicate that there already is a good deal of anti-American propaganda being dispensed to the people of that country and France.

Island Situation Unclear.
The State Department fears that an "arbitrary" decision, such as taking over control of the two islands, might give further impetus to those who have been accusing this country of following selfish motives in its actions concerning France.

At the same time, the situation in Martinique itself is as clear as mud. There are several political formations suspecting each other and ready to jump at each other's throat. The Navy—some 2,000 officers and men—is obeying the order of whichever faction may be in command.

The Army—some 1,200 natives and 170 white commanded by French officers—is mostly de Gaulleist. The gendarmerie—military police composed of 200 French gendarmes, is like the navy, obeying orders of the constituted authority.

Then there are several political organizations, de Gaulleists, near-de Gaulleists, Giraudists and opportunists, ready to make political capital out of any trouble which is now likely to break out at any time.

Military Move Planned.
The Committee of National Liberation already has appointed its officials who are described in Washington as either de Gaulleists or Giraudists with strong leaning toward Gen. de Gaulle.

These appointees intend to go to Martinique with a military force which has been organized in the United States and has about completed its training in a camp in this country.

On the surface this would appear an excellent solution. The trouble is that the appearance of an armed force of natives from Martinique, led by men who are believed to be more in the service of Gen. de Gaulle than of the committee, might cause trouble.

Nobody knows what the sailors—the bulk of whom are ashore—might do when they no longer have a definite authority to obey. Many months of internal dissensions and hardships due to privation have caused the political temperature in Martinique and Guadeloupe to rise to a boiling point and it is by no means certain that the appearance of a French force would not be the signal for widespread trouble throughout the islands.

White House Decision.
This prospect is being fully taken into consideration by the American diplomats principally in charge of settling the problem, but it is considered by many of them as more advisable than to suggest the occupation of the islands by an American force, even if such occupation were of a temporary character.

The final decision rests, of course, with the White House, where it is realized that any hasty step might give rise to unpleasant repercussions.

In some quarters it is hoped that the arrival of Gen. Giraud in the United States will somewhat ease the situation, provided the French commander in chief feels he has sufficient authority to take decisions from Washington. This is doubted in quarters closely in touch with the situation in Algiers.

Ed Wallace, told of the trip last night in a broadcast. Mr. Wallace, who accompanied the general, said the PT boat was commanded by 22-year-old Frank Dean, Jr., of San Diego, Calif.

The boat was equipped with an anti-aircraft gun called "Balls of Fire" which its planner, Ralph Mitchani of White Plains, N. Y., said had sunk 14 Japanese barges while sub-hunting along the New Guinea coast.

Robes as Parachutes.
My Jarvis never even looked around as we fell off like over-ripe fruit. His sensitive ears heard the thud of our bodies and his sensitive hands told him that his load had been lightened. He would drive unconcernedly on for half a block or so and then just as if he were collecting a robe that had been blown off, he would wheel about and collect it.

The lap robes are a great help to those who ride quite a bit in the cars. They have learned to use them as improvised parachutes and some of the veteran passengers can make a landing as gracefully as a paratrooper. I tried this on my third jump but became entangled in it and almost had to be cut free to prevent the wind that was rather high from blowing me under the wheels of another car.

Before I travel in a cart again I am going to the Red Cross sports department and get myself a complete football suit that along with the emergency first-aid kit that has been issued to me should enable me to reach my destination with a fighting chance of survival.

McLemore—Tries Jaunting Cart As Irish Taxicab

By HENRY McLEMORE.
BELFAST.—I never met Ben Hur, he being slightly before my time, but I hope to run across him some day and swap experiences. He will undoubtedly have some thrilling stories to tell of his chariot-driving days. But, even Ben and any of his contemporaries who happen to be about will stop and listen when I tell them of riding jaunting carts in Ireland.

Henry McLemore. If you have never ridden in an Irish jaunting cart with a "jarvie" at the reins, then you'll have to take my word for it that it is one of the most heart-stopping adventures a man can experience.

The jaunting carts are now used for taxicabs and I shared one with four other intrepid souls on a cross-town journey. A jaunting cart is the only conveyance I have ever seen in my travels that was designed with but one purpose in view—to make it impossible for a passenger or passengers to stay aboard it.

It is a two-wheeled vehicle about eight or nine feet high that has seats on either side and the passengers face outward. The seats are very narrow and slope toward the street. I think they have greased cushions, too, for let the car list even the slightest bit and extreme agility is required to prevent those seated on them from being catapulted onto the street.

Hills Present Difficulty.
When going uphill the passenger slides backward and as there is nothing to check his descent he either has to roll off the end or clutch the driver around the waist or neck. This annoys the driver, who, through years of experience, has learned to balance himself as does a sailor on a pitching deck, and to show his annoyance he invariably cracks the horse with the whip, forcing him into a gallop. Anything can happen to those on a jaunting cart drawn by a galloping horse.

The wisest thing to do is to cast uncertainty to the winds and make a jump for it. It did this twice right in the middle of Belfast and no one paid the slightest bit of attention to it. Belfastians long ago became bored with the spectacle of Americans clutching their luggage and leaping onto the cobblestones from carts.

Given Another Chance.
The natural courtesy and graciousness of the Irish always causes the driver to turn around and come back to pick up his lost fares. This is unfortunate and I saw one American threaten to sue his driver if he tried to make him climb back.

Having watched champions in all lines of sport perform for many years I did get a thrill out of watching my Jarvis handle his cart. He was as good in his line as Babe Ruth, Tilden, Hoppe and Jones were in theirs.

The Jarvis has an even more precarious perch than the passengers and when his cart is fully loaded he must sit on practically nothing and he must be a man of iron, too. He must not be tender-hearted and worry about little things such as throwing a fare land on the curb when driving off.

My Jarvis never even looked around as we fell off like over-ripe fruit. His sensitive ears heard the thud of our bodies and his sensitive hands told him that his load had been lightened. He would drive unconcernedly on for half a block or so and then just as if he were collecting a robe that had been blown off, he would wheel about and collect it.

Like radio, electric refrigerators and many other modern conveniences, the streamlined train has become an accepted part of our lives. It symbolizes the progressive spirit of American industry—of individual enterprise.

Union Pacific developed the first streamlined train during the depression era; an outstanding example of farsighted engineering and executive genius. It is largely due to this same spirit of progress that miracles in war production have been achieved by our country's industrial plants; it is the spirit that has spurred our railroads to accomplish seemingly superhuman tasks in the transportation of war materials and troops.

It is this spirit of progress, this truly American characteristic, that will eliminate the Axis. Union Pacific, for its part, will continue to "keep 'em rolling."

Beveridge Says U. S. Rich Enough to Keep Citizens From Want

Great Britain can afford to avoid want for every one and "it is obvious that in a country as rich as the United States it is possible to keep every one free from want," Sir William Beveridge, elder statesman, told an audience of 2,000 last night in the open-air theater near the Washington Monument.

"Taking the income of the working classes only in 1936," the white-haired speaker said, "the white-haired speaker said, referring to Britain, 'there was ample to avoid want for every one.'

Sir William quite evidently enjoyed his Washington appearance on as balm a midsummer night as villagers have ever known and the Kenish down with the Navy Band playing the national anthem at the opening of the meeting.

He was eager to answer questions from the audience and would have continued to do so late into the night had not Representative Baldwin of New York, the chairman, called an end to the meeting pronounced in front of the audience were Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

Says Britons Support Plan.

"Put a penny tax on a pint of beer and a sixpence on a pound of income to abolish want," said Sir William. "There isn't a rational person in Britain who doesn't think it worth the price. We can do it and obviously you can do it."

One of the young men in the audience asked Sir William how he "justified" not paying benefits immediately to the aged.

"Because it is insurance and not charity," the speaker explained. "There are lots of elderly people in Britain who are old, yet not in want. They would not wish to be paid benefits they had not contributed to. Many of us were born too young for this plan," he added, and laughed along with the audience.

Senator Burton of Ohio, Representatives Gale of Minnesota and Dingell of Michigan and Social Security Chairman Arthur Altmeyer were on the platform with him. All spoke in approval of more social security in this country.

A woman with a foreign accent asked the speaker how, if 4 shillings a week "was not enough to keep body and soul together," he could justify the "$10,000,000 paid the King and Queen."

Mr. Baldwin ruled the question out.

Explains Plan.

Sir William in the beginning of his talk called the Beveridge report a "rather dull and lengthy report" and offered to save his audience the trouble of reading it by explaining it in three sentences.

"First," he said, "it proposes a comprehensive scheme of social insurance to make certain that all citizens and their dependents have income sufficient for subsistence when earnings are interrupted by any cause, whether sickness, accident, unemployment or old age, or are brought about by the death of the breadwinner."

"Second," it proposes a comprehensive health service to make certain that whatever medical treatment of any kind, general or special, at home or in the hospital, is needed by any citizen, is available for him and all his dependents without charge at the time of treatment.

"Third," it proposes a system of children's allowances paid both when the responsible parent is earning and when he is not earning, in order to make certain that no child need lack the physical means of life."

He added that "no system against unemployment is satisfactory if there is mass unemployment or extended unemployment." Governments, he said, will have to take other steps to abolish these economic blights.

Living Standards Lifted.

Referring to the pre-war incomes held sufficient to avoid want, he said, "From 1920 to 1939 we had a very bad time in England, but due to engineering advances the standard of living was 20 per cent higher than it was in the generation before."

As for his suggestion of a comprehensive health service, he said, "People ought to pay for their doctoring when they are well and not when they are ill. That is just sheer common sense. Because when you are well you have an income, and when you are ill, you haven't."

He thought, he said, that the system of children's allowances paid to all parents, poor or well-to-do, would mean a "slight increase in the number of children in Britain, and that will be a good thing; they're good children; it's a good race."

His plan, he insisted, "is an attack on poverty, not an attack on wealth, not an attack on capitalism."

"Will it be enacted?" he asked himself. His answer was: "Winston Churchill has declared himself and his colleagues 'as strong partisans of national compulsory insurance for all classes for all purposes from the cradle to the grave.' Having regard to this and the reception accorded to the report, I am not afraid to prophesy that most of it

British Officers 'Raid' Stores To Toast Yanks on July Fourth

By the Associated Press.

AN ALLIED OFFICERS' TRAINING CAMP IN NORTH AFRICA, July 6.—It was the Fourth of July in this joint British and American officers' training camp, and the day was not very old before the American quartermaster sergeant and the British stores sergeant were angrily comparing notes.

The American said: "Some so and so busted into the storeroom and stole 30 pounds of sugar and a whole hell of a lot of bread and, cripes, how much coffee!"

The British sergeant replied sadly: "Our whole month's ration of whisky has disappeared."

Meanwhile, as the day wore on the American officers began to be a little disgusted, too. No announcement was posted about a Fourth of July celebration. The camp was to follow its usual routine.

There would be a route march at 5 o'clock. They said: "That's a fine way to spend the Fourth."

And "marching around those mountains—that's just fine."

At 5 o'clock they fell in on the parade ground and started away up the trail. They noticed that the American general was making the march with them, but they did not see any British officers around. They murmured among themselves: "It's our holiday and they get the day off. Can you beat it?"

The trail then led through a big thick grove of trees winding up and down the slopes of the mountain and the sun was nearly down when they emerged into a clearing.

At the same moment they heard singing. They came rigidly to attention, saluting.

Just ahead in an open space among the trees the British officers were lined up in two files. They were singing "The Star Spangled Banner." An American flag waved above their heads.

Nearby was a long table covered with dishes and glasses and some large pitchers. When the anthem ended they all crowded around the table and drank the first of many toasts to America's most important national holiday.

A British officer said, "We had to steal some sugar from your stores—didn't have enough to make whisky sour for you."

And then he apologized for making whisky sour with Scotch. "But that's all we had," he added. Domestic help is hard to find—but you may find it through a

I "GREW UP" IN A FOXHOLE

I didn't think it was going to be like this the day we all marched down to the station. The band was playing and Mom and Dad and Dot were waving goodbye. And even though there were tears in Mom's eyes, I felt great.

I remember Bob Allen [slapped me on the back and said, "You'll be a hero, chum." And we waved some more and the train pulled out.

I didn't know what I was fighting for then . . . but I know now.

I'm not kidding myself.

I'm not fighting for glory or medals or big parades with ticker tape and paper coming down like a snowstorm.

I'm not fighting to cram my religion or my ideas down somebody else's throat.

I'm not trying to create a new world order or a dream state.

Out here you catch on quick. In a fox-hole you strip things down . . .

And what I'm fighting for is home!

For the right to come home again to the town, the folks, the girl, the job I had before I went to war. Home to America where freedom of speech means a man can grouse or praise as he sees fit . . . where freedom of worship and freedom from fear aren't just talk but are taken for granted. America, where I can live like my folks lived . . . where our way of living has always brought us new and better things . . . and where there's freedom of opportunity for every man to plan and build and grow to the top of his ability.

That's home . . . that's America to me.

Keep it that way until I come back.

Providence Journal Labor Controversy Certified to WLB

By the Associated Press.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 6.—A dispute over an arbitration decision between the Providence Co.—publishers of the Morning Journal, Evening Bulletin and the Sunday Journal—and the Providence Typographical Union last night was certified to the War Labor Board.

The certification was announced in Washington by the Conciliation Service, as a spokesman for the union issued a statement in which he said the union was determined to stand by its refusal to "arbitrate arbitration."

The union voted Sunday to strike tomorrow at 7 a.m., and the Journal company followed with an announcement that if the typographers struck, it would suspend publication of the three newspapers.

Declaring that the arbiter, the Rev. William C. Meehan, O. P., of Providence College, had ruled that the contract between the publishing company and the union had been broken, Alfred Whittle, international representative of the Typographical Union, said the union had requested the company to negotiate a new contract.

Further Interpretation Asked.
The Journal statement said, however, that the Meehan decision was handed down, Commissioner John J. O'Reilly of the Conciliation Service asked for a further interpretation of the decision, and that Father Meehan replied his "decision did not intend to decide that the entire contract was abrogated."

"Our position is simple," Mr. Whittle said. "We have arbitrated the question, and we now contend that we are entitled to negotiate a new contract. The management says they are willing to negotiate a new section of the old contract, but they have already broken three sections of it."

"The sum and substance of the question was this: Whether or not the contract was broken by overpayment to some composing room men."

"The arbiter decided it was."
The Journal company, in a 2,500-word statement on the front page of this morning's Providence Journal, announced its intention to suspend publication for the first time in 114 years, if the compositors went out on strike.

Custom of Years.
The company statement said that it had followed the custom of 40 years in making over-the-scale payments to some members of the composing room staff who had "more than ordinary merit."

Some of these were linotype machine operators who formerly were employed on piecework, and others worked in other capacities in the composing room.

Earlier in the day, the Journal Co. announced, the Rhode Island Department of Labor had sought to enter the case, inviting representatives of the company and the union to a conference.

However, the Journal said, Deputy Labor Director Joseph T. Cahill later informed the invited conferees that Gov. J. Howard McGrath had asked him to rescind the invitation.

In a statement issued to the Journal, Mr. Cahill said the governor made the request so that neither the Journal Co. nor the Typographical Union would "think the State was attempting to butt in, or dictate to either party."

Mr. Cahill said that Gov. McGrath and Director of Labor William L. Connolly would confer today, and he added that if the Typographical Union and the Journal Co. "feel that the State of Rhode Island, through the labor department can be of any service to help straighten out the situation, we are only too willing to serve."

"I knew we couldn't bank on any new models for a long while after this mess, so I played safe with our car... kept her engine OIL-PLATED like always, with Conoco Nth motor oil, especially to not let the engine get ruined by acid. Your old Mileage Merchant pal told me why there was no worse wartime danger than engine acid."

"Dad, I learned that too, in the service, you bet—"

"Quiet Sergeant, till I show off what I know. That acid comes from ordinary combustion, but when the car was run often and got plenty warm the acid petered out—not causing rank corrosion the way it does with the engine mostly resting. But knowing as I did that chromium-plating won't corrode easy, I could see it would check corrosion to give the engine's insides OIL-PLATING. I found out a synthetic in Conoco Nth oil acts sort of like 'magnetism'—to keep OIL-PLATING fastened to inside engine surfaces—not all draining down to the crankcase even standing still. The car ran sweet bringing you back home, didn't it? Too bad some folks have got to wait months for new models, when they should've used Conoco Nth to OIL-PLATE and save their car. Let's go."

Commercial trade activities—H. T. Bissell, chairman, vice president Riggs National Bank, W. H. Ireland, vice chairman, First National Bank, Security Trust, M. F. McCorm, president Washington Loan & Trust, and John E. Fowler, president Arlington Trust Co.

Government regulations—David Borne, chairman, vice president National Savings & Trust; Frederick H. Siddons, vice chairman, vice president and secretary American Security & Trust; Charles H. Hillier, vice president and assistant trust officer, Union Trust Co.

Advertising—S. William Miller, chairman, vice president Union Trust; Eliot H. Thomson, vice chairman, publicity director Washington Loan & Trust; F. E. Hildebrand, vice president National Metropolitan; J. B. Skinner, vice president Liberty National, and Howard Moran, vice president American Security & Trust.

Auditing—James C. Elean, chairman, partner W. B. Hibbs & Co.; William B. Mehler, jr., vice chairman, assistant cashier, City Bank, and Millard S. Yeaman, auditor, Hamilton National.

Broader Trading Rules Urged. Howard R. Taylor, president of the Baltimore Stock Exchange, has sent a letter to every member of Congress urging that all the smaller stock exchanges be allowed to trade in unlisted securities the same as in listed securities which are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

He declares that the small exchanges should be allowed to trade in all securities, unlisted as well as listed, and asks that such "rank discrimination be eliminated. The small exchanges are markets of record, have definite commission schedules and are regulated so that the public cannot be deceived."

Unless the small exchanges are permitted to trade in any and all securities, some will be forced to close and the entire securities business of the country will become concentrated in a few large financial centers, he asserts.

Chairman Names Committees. James C. Elean, chairman of the auditor's section of the District Bankers' Association, has appointed the following committee chairman for the coming year:

Program, William F. Orlisman, fr. American Security & Trust Co., membership, Ernest R. Wilson, Gen. of Commerce & Savings, budget, Audley A. P. Savage, National Savings & Trust, assisted by M. L. Clements, American Security & Trust, and J. O. Bickel, Riggs National.

War Bond Receipts Requested. Fred L. Luttrell, executive president of the Suburban National Bank, Silver Spring, has asked the Washington banks to present receipts to War bond buyers who wish to enter the Silver Spring bowling tournament.

The Board of Trade has set a July limit of $500,000, entry in the tournament being through the purchase of War bonds only. The District banks will still get full credit for their sales, the receipts being merely for the information of the Board of Trade.

Pham New Chapter Chief. Cyril B. Uphan, deputy controller of the currency, has been elected president of Washington Chapter, Society for the Advancement of Management. E. J. Hickman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. also is an officer.

Irving Zippel, secretary of the Union Trust Co., is taking a month's vacation at Tall Timbers, Md. A good many other District bankers are now turning their thoughts to vacations.

Edward A. Wayne, former secretary of the North Carolina Bankers' Association, becomes vice president of the Richmond Reserve Bank on August 1.

Soaring Commodities Overshadow Slight Rise in Stocks

By VICTOR EUBANK. Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, July 6.—Stocks had to contend with soaring commodities markets and, while putting up selectively good competition, they were overshadowed throughout.

Utilities, air transports and specialties were outstanding share favorites from the start, but leaders in other departments were more or less indifferent. Gains ranged from fractions to 2 points or so for popular swingers, and many new highs were recorded.

A little profit taking toward the last reduced peak marks here and there, and there was a smattering of minus signs at the close. Dealings dwindled after a fairly lively forenoon, but transfers for the full proceedings were around 900,000 shares.

Chief stimulus for grain futures came from the Senate Agriculture Committee to seek a much higher level for corn ceilings.

Bonds were irregularly better. Large buyers received the bulk of merchandise on wholesale markets in the last week, while smaller accounts were able to secure only a limited amount, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

Wholesale volumes continued well above normal periods, despite a sharp decline in inventories, the agency added.

Good Earnings for Apparel Firms under wartime conditions are reported by Fitch Investors Service. "Swollen wage envelopes serve to maintain civilian demands at high levels and the impact of enhancing buying power has been felt more in quality lines, on which profit margins normally are larger, the service declared.

Railroad Equipment Profits this year should compare favorably with 1942, according to Standard & Poor's, which finds "the increased proportion of military business, together with higher costs, will reduce profit margins, but the substantial gain in volume should more than offset this factor."

Short Grain Yields compared with last year are indicated in Frederick County, Maryland. The wheat yield per acre is expected to be down 25% and the barley yield 50% to 60% lower. In the Martinsburg, W. Va.,

WORKING TOGETHER

American enterprise and its time-tested production methods are meeting and fulfilling the most imposing demands ever placed upon the industry of any country

IT HAS BEEN our privilege to play an important part in war production—geared with the supply services of the Army and Navy, and with almost 19,000 other producers who have worked with us.

Figures show how successful this "partnership" has been. But they do not show the valuable direction and cooperation we have had from Army and Navy officials. Nor do they indicate the fine spirit of "teamwork" shown by our suppliers and sub-contractors.

While 18,735 organizations have shared our big job of war production, there have actually been more than 68,000 such "partnerships" established. For, in many cases, several divisions of General Motors have gone to the same source, though for different types of work.

It is interesting to note that nearly three-fourths of the firms which have furnished us parts for war products, employ less than 500 people. Of these more than half employ 100 or less.

We have chosen our sub-contractors and suppliers carefully, in order to secure those best qualified for the work at hand.

In this we have had one great advantage: "Sub-contracting" is merely a wartime extension of a time-honored General Motors method. We have always dealt with thousands of suppliers of materials and parts.

And so we have known how to proceed in establishing sources dependable as to both quality and efficiency of performance—not only among organizations with which we have formerly worked, but also with the thousands of others which it has been necessary to add.

This sub-contracting "know-how"—combined with manufacturing "know-how"—is largely responsible for the consistent quality of the war goods produced. It also accounts for cost reductions totaling hundreds of millions of dollars, turned back to the Government.

The "partnership" of the Armed Forces, General Motors and the thousands of other businesses involved—some large, some small—is but one example of cooperative wartime endeavor by the automobile industry.

All companies in this mass-production industry have been cooperating with one another—and with organizations not formerly supplying the automotive industry—in order to utilize all knowledge and facilities suited to the task.

The success of this method demonstrates one fact of tremendous importance to all Americans:

American enterprise and its time-tested production methods are meeting and fulfilling the most imposing demands ever placed upon the industry of any country.

The most optimistic report came from a wholesaler who said he received a carload of butter this morning and expects another later in the week.

Several refrigerated trains were expected to arrive from the West today, but wholesalers said they didn't know if the shipments would include any meat.

Painting of Gorman To Be Unveiled Today

An oil painting of former Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Democrat, of Maryland is being unveiled in the Capitol this afternoon.

Gorman died in office in 1906, after more than 20 years of service, and was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The picture is being presented on behalf of the family by Arthur Gorman Lambert, son of the late Wilton J. Lambert, the senator's oldest grandson.

Senator Radcliffe, one of Maryland's two present Democratic Senators, will deliver an address, after which Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky will accept the painting for the Government.

It will hang in the main corridor leading from the Senate chamber to the old Supreme Court section of the Capitol.

Senator Gorman was born in Howard County in 1839. In his youth he served at a House page and later as a Senate page. After service in the State Legislature he was elected to the Senate in 1881, serving continuously until 1899.

After a lapse of three years he again was chosen Senator in 1902.

The FBI said Brown was charged with failing to report last December for physical examination to his draft board in Maryland, Tenn. He told FBI agents he had not received the notice because he had forgotten to advise his local draft board of a change in address.

Before moving to the Eighth street address Brown lived at 806 L street N.W. On Saturday he went to the Washington field office of the FBI, saying he had heard the FBI was looking for him.

Commissioner Turnage continued the case until July 16.

Severn Man Admits Driving Over Soldiers, State Police Say

Freed on $1,000 Bond In Hit-Run Accident Which 15 Were Hurt

David William Bussey, 21, of Severn, Md., was free under $1,000 bond today following his arrest by Maryland State police yesterday on charges of reckless driving and failure to stop after he drove through a column of 200 members of Companies A and B, 159th Combat Engineers Battalion, injuring 15 of the soldiers as they were marching from Fort George G. Meade to Patapsco State Park, near Ellicott City.

According to police, Bussey was arrested six hours after the accident when his car, found parked in a locked garage, showed evidence of having been involved in an accident. He was booked at Fernalde Police Station, where police said he signed a statement that he had driven the car which knocked down the soldiers.

Troopers B. J. Nolan and H. L. Ricker, who made the arrest, quoted Bussey as saying he was blinded by lights when he drove into the rear guard, which was some 50 feet behind the main body of troops.

The police said he told them that after he struck the first body of men he became too excited to stop and drove on through the other troops.

According to Capt. Frank G. Hubbard, executive officer in charge of the battalion, the lead and rear men of the column carried lanterns. The driver first hit the rear guard, then shifted the car into second gear and plowed through the members of Company B, knocking down and injuring the 15 men.

The enraged soldiers threw steel helmets and flashlights at the fleeing driver, Capt. Hubbard reported.

One Has Both Legs Broken. Capt. Hubbard suffered a compound fracture of the leg, but would not allow himself to be treated until all enlisted men had been removed to the Fort Meade station hospital in Army ambulances and a commandeered bus.

According to Fort Meade public relations officers the most seriously injured was Pvt. Carl J. Holcomb of Ball Ground, Ga., who suffered fractures of both legs.

Of the 15 injured, five were treated and dismissed and Army physicians reported the others are out of danger. The others injured were Pvs. Paul S. Snyder, Arcadia, Calif.; Albert C. Wilcox, Pittsburgh; Francis R. Sykes, Philadelphia; Martin J. Gaughan, Girardville, Pa.; Jack W. Bostian, Savannah, Ga.; William R. Bobo, Columbus, Tenn.; Oliver W. Sanders, Hinstell, Tenn., and Coe-man M. Wells, Chatham, Va.

Rent Bureau Sifts 'Hotel' Profiteering

Agents Check Up On Servicemen's Stories of Gouging

The District Rent Control Administration is doing everything within its power to discourage the practice of small, so-called "hotels" from boosting rates over week ends to reap a rich harvest from servicemen.

The spotlight was focused on a situation in which many lodging house operators are profiting at the expense of servicemen last Saturday night when a Star reporter tried in vain to rent one of the $1 rooms advertised in neon signs over many of the establishments.

Three persons who picketed the British Embassy yesterday in support of freedom for India are shown being taken into custody by Policeman R. C. Redifer.

Some of the placards read: "Celebrate Our Independence by Helping India Get Freedom From England Too." "No Nation Is Good Enough to Rule Another Nation—Abraham Lincoln." "It's 1776 for India" and "Release Gandhi and Nehru."

Under the Rent Act effective January 1, 1941, rates in force that date were frozen. This meant, Mr. Henry said, that "their practices were frozen, even though some of those practices were not so good."

Among the practices he referred to was that of advertising as "hotels," when they actually were lodging houses, operating on $15 lodging house permits, and of publicizing $1 rooms and then telling prospective guests all rooms at that price had been rented.

The RCA has difficulty obtaining evidence against such places because transients don't have the time or won't trouble to complain about overcharges. The lodging houses are supposed to display a list of prices which guests may see them and also file copies of such lists with the Rent Control Administration.

Suspect Admits Hitting Soldiers, Police Report

Severn (Md.) Man Free on Bond in Hit-Run Case

David William Bussey, 21, of Severn, Md., was free on $1,000 bond today following his arrest by Maryland State police yesterday on charges of reckless driving and failure to stop after he drove through a column of 200 members of Companies A and B, 159th Combat Engineers Battalion, injuring 15 of the soldiers as they were marching from Fort George G. Meade to Patapeco State Park, near Elliott City.

According to police, Bussey was arrested six hours after the accident when his car, found parked in a locked garage, showed evidence of having been involved in an accident. He was booked at Pennington Police Station, where police said he signed a statement that he had driven the car which knocked down the soldiers.

Troopers B. J. Nolan and H. L. Ricker, who made the arrest, quoted Bussey as saying he was blinded by lights when he drove into the rear guard, which was some 50 feet behind the main body of troops.

The police said he told them that after he struck the first body of men he became too excited to stop and drove on through the other troops.

According to Capt. Frank G. Hubbard, executive officer in charge of the battalion, the lead and rear men of the column carried lanterns. The driver first hit the rear guard, then shifted the car into second gear and plowed through the members of Company B, knocking down and injuring the 15 men.

The enraged soldiers threw steel helmets and flashlights at the fleeing driver, Capt. Hubbard reported.

One Has Both Legs Broken. Capt. Hubbard suffered a compound fracture of the leg, but would not allow himself to be treated until all enlisted men had been removed to the Fort Meade station hospital in Army ambulances and a commandeered bus.

According to Fort Meade public relations officers the most seriously injured was Pvt. Carl J. Holcomb of Ball Ground, Ga., who suffered fractures of both legs.

Of the 15 injured, five were treated and dismissed and Army physicians reported the others are out of danger. The others injured were: Paul S. Snyder, Arcadia, Calif.; Albert C. Wilcox, Pittsburgh; Francis R. Sykes, Philadelphia; Martin J. Gaughan, Girardville, Pa.; Jack W. Boettin, Savannah, Ga.; William R. Sanders, Columbus, Tenn.; Oliver W. Sanders, Hinesville, Tenn., and Coe-man M. Wells, Chatham, Va.

Maryland WMC Places 1,500 Discharged Soldiers

BALTIMORE, July 6.—Lawrence B. Fenneman, State director of the War Manpower Commission, reported that 1,500 overage and disabled servicemen had been cleared through the Veterans Employment Service of the War Relocation Authority and predicted the number would increase greatly this summer.

"Most Maryland veterans cleared through the service to date," Mr. Fenneman said, "were those who obtained discharges from the Army because they were over 28 years of age. In most cases they returned direct to jobs, this being a requirement for discharge."

"Recently the flow of returned veterans has been from the Army and Navy discharge hospitals," with the WMC taking over jobs in industry and predicted the number would increase greatly this summer.

Golden Wedding Fete Held in Art Gallery

By Katharine Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford K. Berryman held a delightfully informal reception yesterday afternoon in the Corcoran Gallery of Art, which marked not only the opening of his exhibit of original cartoons but the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Berryman's pen and ink drawings of his outstanding cartoons which have attracted much attention during the past 15 years are hung in several of the gallery's rooms, and Mr. and Mrs. Berryman received their several hundred guests in the center of the suite.

Mrs. Berryman held court at one side of the room while her famous husband greeted old friends as they arrived or stood and chatted with various groups in the different rooms. Mrs. Berryman wore black crepe with a lace bodice and a becoming black wide-brimmed hat trimmed with white. Orchids and gardenias were on one shoulder. Assisting her parents was Miss Florence Berryman dressed in a street-length gown of black and white crepe with a white hat trimmed with black. Also assisting through the reception hours were Mr. and Mrs. William E. Knight of Troy, N. C., who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Berryman and came for this anniversary, the Berrymans having gone to their home last year for their golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Knight was dressed in rose beige with a small figure and had a straw hat with generous brim.

The guests were representative of the various circles of Washington, art, scientific and resident circles with a goodly number of Mr. Berryman's colleagues from The Evening Star, where he has been cartoonist for 36 years. Mr. Frank B. Noyes and Mr. and Mrs. E. McKelway were among these. Others prominent in affairs of the National Capital were Mr. Corcoran Thom and Mr. Charles Carroll Glover, Jr., first and second vice presidents of the Corcoran Gallery of Art; the Director of the gallery and Mrs. C. Powell Miningerode, the former Surgeon General, U. S. A., and Mrs. Merritt W. Ireland; Rear Admiral Edward Rhodes Stitt, Miss Leslie Jackson, Miss Hattie Burdette, Miss Bertha Noyes, Dr. John Oliver Lawrence, Dr. Cabell Moore, Mr. William Moulton, Mrs. Samuel J. Campbell, treasurer general of the N. S. D. A. R.; Mrs. Robert Locke, Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Custis, the chairman of the Senate, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the Foundry Church, and Dr. George F. Bowerman, former librarian of the District.

Mrs. Rudolph Max Kaufmann was among those arriving early, and others attending the reception were the Chaplain of the House of Representatives and Mr. James H. Doolittle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Bunker, Mr. Leon Henderson, the former United States Ambassador to the Argentine and Mrs. Robert Williams Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Edward I. Hillier, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. B. H. Lingo, Mrs. Finley Calvert, Mrs. and Mrs. of the Colonial Dames; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, Mrs. Robert A. Johnson of Laurel, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter, III, Mrs. Moncure Burke, Miss Temple Bayley, former Senator and Mrs. James E. Watson, Dr. Magill James.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freeman Clark and their daughter, Mrs. John S. Carpenter; Mr. James Colliflower, Mr. Eugene Meyer, present owner of the Washington Post, where Mr. Berryman started his work as cartoonist 32 years ago; the Chairman of the Maritime Commission and Mr. Emory Scott Land, former District Commissioner and Mrs. Sidney F. Tallafiero, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Kaufman, Lt. Comdr. Charles Buttlinger, former president of the Arts Club, and Mrs. Billinger; Mr. Everett Warner, the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, Mr. Charles G. Abbot; Mrs. Charles W. Fairfax, Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, Miss Grace Burton, Miss Ann Tuohy, Mai, and Mrs. Guy Withers, and Mrs. Samuel Burton, who, as Mrs. Kitty Thompson Berry, was a leading soprano singer and was music editor when Mr. Berryman started his work as cartoonist.

Guests lingered well after the appointed hours to enjoy the pictures, one of them being Mr. Berryman's illustration of the Inaugural ball of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, in which the faces of the leading political figures of that day are easily recognized.

Mrs. Yourousky Goes Home

Mrs. Joseph Yourousky, who has lived in Alexandria for a year or more while doing work with the American Red Cross, will return to her home in Scranton, Pa., tomorrow. Mrs. Yourousky has made her home with the Misses Gladys and Elizabeth Ramey while in Alexandria.

Mr., Mrs. Leizear Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Leizear celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Sunday, entertaining at a delightfully informal early evening fete. The party, from 6 to 9 o'clock, was given in the honor of Mrs. Leizear's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Graeves, in Forest Hills. Both Mrs. Graeves and Mrs. Leizear who, with their husbands, received the 75 or more guests, wore street-length frocks, the former in black and the latter in rose color.

Mrs. Charles E. Graeves, mother of Mrs. Leizear, who before her marriage was Miss Florence Graeves, was among those assisting and others included Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Weber, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Graeves; Miss Kathryn Mater and Mrs. Robert E. Mater, all nieces of Mrs. Leizear; her cousins, the Misses Marguerite, Pearl and Mary Cashell, and Miss Gertrude Marlow, who served as hostess of honor when she married Mr. Leizear in the Church of the Advent in Washington.

Illinois Society Annual Picnic

The Illinois State Society will have its annual picnic Thursday evening at Palsades Park, one of the newer recreation centers in the District. The park overlooks the Potomac River not far from Chain Bridge and is easily accessible, being on the Cabin John car line. There is a large recreation hall in addition to the picnic grounds, so that the Illinois Society will hold its picnic in rain or shine.

Supper will be at 6:30 o'clock and will be followed by a short business session, after which there will be entertainment in the form of games and dancing.

Mrs. Julia Cullen, secretary to Representative C. W. Bishop, the retiring president, and Mr. Lawrence W. James are in charge of the picnic, and there will be hosts and hostesses to make the newcomers welcome.

Festivities For Holiday

Numerous informal fetes were given over the week end and holiday, residents of the suburbs being particularly active. Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. William Howard, who left yesterday for Mare Island, Calif., were entertained at a farewell buffet supper Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Harlow C. McCord were the hosts and gave their party in the attractive garden of their home in Chevy Chase. Others at the supper were Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, parents of Comdr. Howard; Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. William Snyder, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. R. K. James and Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. William Leahy.

Another party in Chevy Chase Sunday evening was that of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Weir, who entertained a group of 25 in the garden of their home. The evening before Mr. and Mrs. Weir were among the guests at dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Sibley Everett of Belle Haven, who entertained at the Laura Lee in Alexandria. Mr. and Mrs. Everett's other guests were Comdr. and Mrs. Virgil Goode of Washington and Mrs. Paul H. Williams and her daughter, Miss Shirley Williams of Bethesda.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. George B. German of Hyattsville, formerly of Duluth, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Constance May German, to Mr. Richard Gray Oden, son of Mrs. Sarah Oden of Frederick, Md.

The wedding will take place July 19.

Society and Clubs

MISS HELEN WIEHLE (left) and MISS ELAINE WENTZEL. Miss Wiehle and Miss Wentzel are cousins, whose engagements were announced simultaneously by their parents. Miss Wiehle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. V. Wiehle, will be married to Mr. Robert C. Kuehling, son of Mrs. Elsie C. Kuehling, U. S. C. G. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Doss B. Cloninger. Wedding dates have not been set, but if conditions permit, it will be a double wedding. —Harris-Ewing Photos.

Cabinet Couple Wed 50 Years

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry Lewis Stimson are observing the 50th anniversary of their wedding today, though the Secretary, as usual, is at his desk. There will be no celebration as both the Secretary and Mrs. Stimson realize the difficulties of transportation not only from one city to another but from one part of the city to another. Therefore they have given up the plans they have held for many years of giving a garden fete at Woodley their lovely and historic place on Cathedral avenue.

The Secretary has had more than one tour of duty in the cabinet and both he and Mrs. Stimson have a very wide circle of friends in the Capital. He was Secretary of State for President Herbert Hoover returning to the States from the Philippines where he was Governor General for the late President Calvin Coolidge.

Woodley is a popular spot and the entertainments which the Secretary and Mrs. Stimson usually give there, on the rolling and wide lawns overlooking the Potomac, are always among the most delightful in a Washington season.

Dr., Mrs. Caviness To Visit Here

Dr. and Mrs. Leon Lester Caviness, formerly of Takoma Park, will come from their present home in California to visit the latter's mother, Mrs. C. C. Lewis, in Takoma Park. Their trip East will not be until later in the summer, but will be before Dr. Caviness resumes his work as head of the biblical and modern language department at the Pacific Union College, where Mrs. Caviness is a teacher of French.

Miss Mary Dunn Weds Lt. Noonan

Miss Mary Theresa Dunn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Bartholomew Dunn of Mahanoy City, Pa., was married yesterday morning to Lt. Austin Edward Noonan, adjutant general's department, U. S. A., son to Mrs. Ann Noonan and the late Mr. Austin Edward Noonan of Mahanoy City, Pa. The wedding took place in the chapel at the National Naval Medical Center, where the bride is Red Cross field director.

The Most Rev. Thomas J. Love, S. J., president of St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, officiating at 10 o'clock. He was assisted by Comdr. Robert White, Corps of Chaplains, U. S. N. R., and only the members of the two families witnessed the ceremony, which was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Carlton.

Mrs. William H. O'Malley of Philadelphia, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Daniel Tolon of Mahanoy City was best man. The bride wore white organdy, the skirt long and full with dainty figures outlined with French blue, matching the French blue girdle of velvet. Her small hat had a short veil, and she wore a cluster of gardenias and roses at her belt. Mrs. O'Malley wore French blue silk, a close-fitting flower hat and a short veil, with a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mrs. Lester C. Hass, wife of Ensign Hass, has returned to her apartment at 2800 Woodley road after a brief absence from the city.

Mrs. Hass Returns Joins Husband

Mrs. Charles McHugh, formerly Miss Alice Riehl, has left to join her husband, Lt. McHugh, at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Educator Tells Club Women of Valiant Poland

"Defeated, beaten and starved, the Polish people's only word from one end of the nation to the other, remains that of 'victory'." The Rev. Galther P. Warfield, head of the American Methodist School in Warsaw before Nazi occupation, said yesterday in a talk before the Woman's Democratic Club.

The Rev. Mr. Warfield, who lived in Warsaw from 1924 until 1940, and was one of those exchanged by the United States Government for Germans after the attack on Pearl Harbor, said that without freedom of worship there can be no freedom of speech. "The two are inextricably bound together, today, has neither."

For five or six months after his return a year ago he wondered if his freedom weren't a dream and he would suddenly find himself back in Poland among the "specters of Warsaw."

He said that in all magazine articles he had read about Poland, he has found only two articles in which he did not know the people and in which he did not see the horrors described.

The Rev. Mr. Warfield illustrated the spirit of the Polish people by a story of a group of Boy Scouts in one of Poland's cities.

"Boys of 13, 14 and 15 were marched by Nazi soldiers into the market square, lined up and shot," he said. "The two are inextricably bound together, today, has neither."

Witold Wankowicz, former co-sponsor of the Polish Embassy here, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Hale J. Shenefield, first vice president, presided at the meeting and luncheon. Mrs. Tom Clark and Mrs. Edward R. Street were the hostesses for the day.

Guests and members at the speakers table included Mrs. Norman Little, program chairman; Mrs. H. C. Walburn, Mrs. South Trimble and Mrs. Herbert Dorsey.

Mrs. Lounsbury Honor Guest

Mr. and Mrs. Courtland D. Ferguson will be hosts at a buffet supper this evening, entertaining in the garden of their Kenwood home in honor of Mrs. Ferguson's sister, Mrs. E. L. Lounsbury, and her daughter, Miss Peggy Lounsbury, of Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Lounsbury and her daughter are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson for this week, on their way home from New York, where Miss Lounsbury was graduated last week from the American Academy of Art. The 50 guests this evening will be mostly young people invited to meet Miss Lounsbury.

Visiting Here

Lt. Charles Ernest Tait, United States Air Force, and Mrs. Tait are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Richard H. Stuart, and of Lt. Tait's mother, Mrs. Barbara Smith Tait, for several days. They arrived in time for a visit with Mrs. Tait's brother, Petty Officer Richard H. Stuart, U. S. N., but missed by only a few hours Lt. Tait's twin brother, Sgt. Francis Tait, U. S. M. C., who, with Mrs. Tait, left Sunday evening for San Diego. Lt. and Mrs. Tait will return to his post at San Marcos, Tex., the end of the week. Mrs. Tait formerly was Miss Caroline Stuart.

"I Want One, Too!"

"Wait for me!" called Elsie, "I want to see your new fur jacket!"

"I was shopping with June the other day," Betty called back, "when she bought L. Frank Company's beautiful Northern Muskrat coat . . . and I picked this dyed skunk jacket. Isn't it stunning? Isn't it beautiful and luxurious? Being a good patriot, I'm walking to my date this evening."

"Oh, I love it!" Elsie exclaimed, pulling up her bicycle. Come on, tell me . . . how much . . ."

"One hundred ninety-nine dollars, fifty cents!"

For THAT beautiful skunk jacket . . . it's superb! Could I get one?"

"Be smart and get one tomorrow. Buy it on L. Frank Company's lay-away plan, if you prefer . . . make your deposit; it's stored for you until you've paid the required one-third . . . then, you've an extra charge on the long-time payment plan. By all means, get this fur jacket."

Confessed Murderer Admits Taking Part In Second Slaying

By the Associated Press.
LARAMIE, Wyo., July 6.—Sheriff Ed A. Wood announced today that a suspect questioned in three slayings had admitted he tied a rope around the neck of Mrs. Percy Cota, one of the victims—but the suspect said a soldier with him did the actual shooting.

Sheriff Wood said the suspect, jailed as Howard William Pickell, 26, of Syracuse, N. Y., told Albany County officers he was only an accomplice in the slaying of Mrs. Cota and her husband. He had admitted an earlier shooting, the sheriff added. No motive except auto theft has been advanced in any of the cases, he said.

County Attorney Lenoir Bell announced earlier that Pickell had admitted killing Matt Katmo, 44-year-old Cheyenne man, and beating and binding Mr. Katmo's companion, Mrs. O. W. Larson. Mr. Katmo was shot three times at a mountain camp ground last Wednesday by a gunman who sped away in Katmo's car, later abandoning it. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Cota were found near a garage on their ranch Saturday.

Mr. Bell said Pickell made a lengthy statement, taken down by a court reporter to be transcribed later, concerning the slayings.

Mr. Bell said he would file murder charges, probably today. Enraged by the shootings, ranchers had scoured the Rocky Dale Creek area of Southeastern Wyoming for two days.

German White Paper Accuses British of Attacks on Civilians

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 6.—The Germans who laid waste to Warsaw, Rotterdam and Coventry climaxed their sympathy-seeking campaign against the bombing of their industrial cities with a Foreign Office white paper today charging Britain with "sole guilt" for what it termed attacks on civilians.

Without mentioning the 40,000 British civilians killed and the 120,000 wounded in German air raids on Britain, the white paper asserted that "German efforts have failed to affect the determination of the enemy to use air terror as a plan thought out in the last detail for the destruction of Europe."

The white paper charged that the "English wanted to 'take off the gloves' from the start. Thus the question of guilt in the bombing war has been unequivocally clarified."

Asserting that the destruction of towns and the deaths of thousands of women and children were a "flaming accusation against the two mainly responsible for the war—Churchill and Roosevelt"—the Nazi white paper threatened to exact "eye for eye, tooth for tooth" reprisals.

The white paper was described by DNE, German news agency, in a Berlin radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press. During the reading a ghost voice gave a running commentary asking, "Why is no white book published on Hitler's crimes and barbarism?"

In the German effort to prove Britain's guilt, the white paper went back to the disarmament conference in 1932 when it claimed that proposals by the German delegation for the limitation of armaments were rejected.

It cited various other so-called documents, including a German government peace plan of 1936. It charged that the bombing of the Ruhr was discussed at a secret meeting of the "Allied War Council" in November, 1939.

Recall Roosevelt Appeal.
The White Paper also asserted that bombings in the Polish campaign at the start of the war were directed only at military objectives and cited Hitler's alleged orders to the German air force in reply to President Roosevelt's appeal against the bombing of civilians. Hitler, the White Paper asserted, told the air force to limit its activities to military targets.

The paper asserted that despite Hitler's appeal for humanity and reason the British began a series of attacks "against civilian population."

"In spite of this the German air force has been extremely restrained in the fight against England while at the beginning of operations in the West British air attacks on non-military objectives in Germany have quickly increased," the paper said.

Two District Generals Stationed in Britain Awarded Decorations

Awards for meritorious service have been received in London by Brig. Gen. Robert M. Littlejohn, 1851 Columbia road N.W., and Brig. Gen. Oscar B. Abbott, 3133 Connecticut avenue N.W., an Associated Press report said today.

Gen. Littlejohn, chief of the Quartermaster Corps in the European theater, received the Distinguished Service Medal for his work in organizing supply services, which "contributed markedly to the successful landing of the African Task Force."

The Legion of Merit was conferred on Gen. Abbott for his work in the Personnel Division of the General Staff, which the report said played an important part in "initiating and processing essential legislation affecting the military forces of the Nation."

Gen. Littlejohn graduated from West Point in 1912. He attained the rank of major in the World War and was with the Army of Occupation in Germany until 1919. He has spent much time in the Philippines, having been Philippine Department quartermaster prior to a transfer to Washington in 1940. Mrs. Littlejohn has remained in Washington since her husband's departure for the British Isles a year ago.

Gen. Abbott was a sergeant in the Texas National Guard in 1916, and attained the rank of captain in the Regular Army during the World War. He was assigned to the General Staff here in 1940 and received his overseas assignment in September, 1942. Mrs. Abbott makes her home here.

Brig. Gen. Paul R. Hawley of College Corner, Ohio, also received the Legion of Merit for his work as chief surgeon for the Eastern Theater of Operations.

Gen. Williams Receives Undisclosed Assignment

Succeeding Gen. Williams is Brig. Gen. Robert F. Travis, another Air Force veteran.

Born of a distinguished military family in Georgia in 1904, Gen. Travis was graduated from the Military Academy in 1928 and immediately went into the Air Corps. He was one of the original 12 B-17 (Flying Fortress) pilots to serve under the late Maj. Gen. Robert Olds at Langley Field, Va.

Admiral Robert Is Reported Ready To Yield to Force

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Herald Tribune says that after a secret trip to Martinique, Camille Jean Fernand-Laurent, a former member of the French Chamber of Deputies, has reported that Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner for the Antilles, is seeking an honorable way to go over to the Allies.

The newspaper states that M. Fernand-Laurent, who was a Paris publisher, indicated in his report that Admiral Robert feels bound by oath to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and that the admiral would welcome force as an honorable solution of his problem.

M. Fernand-Laurent is quoted in the story as saying:

"Contrary to the secret wish of the admiral (who would welcome American attack as a glorious way out of the dilemma in which he finds himself) there is not hope of any intervention by the United States, which has decided, to use his own expression, 'to let him stew in his own juice.'"

The Herald-Tribune says M. Fernand-Laurent reported that the only force to which the admiral could yield would be French force and he volunteered for the job of representing the government of Algiers in the matter, saying:

"My definite opinion is that I can bring the two islands (Martinique and Guadeloupe) with the fleet intact to the Allies by persuading Admiral Robert to yield to the appearance of force."

M. Fernand-Laurent, the newspaper said, escaped from France into Spain on December 31, 1942, and made his way to London and Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Orange Shortage Acute

Because oranges imported into New Zealand at this time would have to be retailed at from 16 to 20 cents each, government officials have decided to bring in only enough for hospitals, undernourished children and similar needs.

Old Records Serve Again to Save Paper

Old official files are yielding paper in an intensive salvage campaign conducted in South Africa. After a lapse of generations ancient papers are going back into office circulation in Johannesburg and other cities. On the back of scratch paper issued in pads are memoranda set down by long-forgotten government employees in the 1880s.

Typists use as backing sheets pieces of correspondence written with quill pens. Most of the paper

Cox Says Fly's Blast Won't Alter Course Of Probe of FCC

Chairman Cox of a special House committee investigating the Federal Communications Commission was prepared today to go ahead with the inquiry despite a bitter blast issued by FCC Chairman James L. Fly, in which he charged the committee with "joining with the military, the radio monopoly and Wall Street interests" in a move to wreck the commission.

"If the first hearing . . . has thrown Mr. Fly into such a state of hysterical wrath, what will be his condition after this inquiry has really gotten under way?" Mr. Cox asked in a statement issued last night.

"As to the attack of Mr. Fly upon the select committee of the House of Representatives, now investigating the commission, the committee has no statement to make," Mr. Cox said. "The committee does not mean to be drawn away from the constructive job it has undertaken."

Reports Cited.

The text of Mr. Cox's statement follows, in part:

"Mr. Fly's attack upon the military and naval departments for objecting to his attempt to take over the responsibilities of war activities cannot be ignored. The joint chiefs of staff of the Army and Navy, the chief of staff to the commander in chief of the Army and Navy, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of Navy say they have found that the operations of Mr. Fly's commission constitute an interference with the war effort and a threat to the Nation's security. If this be true then all possible effort must be made to stop this action."

Charges Dismissed.

"The fathers and the mothers of the boys and the girls fighting this war, the wives and sweethearts of the soldiers and sailors and the men of the armed forces themselves are looking to our military authorities to direct the winning of the war in the shortest possible time and with the least possible loss of lives."

"Even Mr. Fly owes a service to the Nation rather than the disservice of trying to destroy the confidence of the soldier in his commanders by charging them with conspiring to destroy the FCC. This commission is made up of seven members and several hundred employes that many of our citizens feel could better serve our country during this great conflict by carrying guns.

"The welfare of the millions of our boys at the battlefronts and in the camps is of far greater concern than Mr. Fly and his commission. The citizens are supremely interested in saving this country."

Silver Spring Man Back In U. S. From Guadalcanal

Francis M. (Pinkie) Miller, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Miller of Hollywood Park, Silver Spring, Md., who saw service with the Marine Corps at Guadalcanal, is at the Naval Hospital at Coronado, Calif.

Mr. Miller, an outfielder who played in the minor leagues for a time and with sandlot teams here, is suffering from shrapnel wounds, his family was informed. He is expected to return to his home here within the next month or so.

Mr. Miller wrote his parents that his life was saved by a sergeant, but he has given no details. His brother, Staff Sgt. Wilfred E. Miller of the Army Air Forces, was killed in a plane crash in Texas last October.

His father is employed in the press room of The Star.

MANY WOMEN OVERJOYED OVER THIS "IMPROVED" FEMININE HYGIENE

Modern New "BACTERIOSTATIC" Hospital Tested With Splendid Results!
Many doctors today recommend the regular use of douches for women who want to be refreshingly clean, for women troubled with offending odor, discharge and minor irritation.

Some products may be harmful germicides which burn, harden and damage sensitive tissues. The regular use of strongly alkaline douches may cause irritation and injury, too.

But NOT Lydia E. Pinkham's SANATIVE WASH! Instead, this is a mighty effective "bacteriostatic" (the modern trend). It contains the same type beneficial ingredients which great numbers of Doctors and skilled chemists say is one best principle of douching. It discourages bacterial growth and infection, cleanses, deodorizes and relieves itching, minor irritations and discharge.

Pinkham's Sanative Wash is one product for Feminine Hygiene that, despite its great strength, has a beneficial, helpful effect on delicate membranes. Thus it may be used often as needed. Inexpensive, too.

Government Asked To Shift Physicians To Neglected Areas

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 6.—A committee of eminent physicians, headed by Dr. Channing Frothingham of Boston, yesterday called on the Federal Government to allot physicians to "medically-neglected communities" throughout the Nation.

"With the tremendous shifts in population necessitated by the war," the physicians stated, "a solution of the problem of the distribution of physicians to care for the civilian population is becoming increasingly urgent."

They said "one centralized Federal body should be given responsibility for the control of medical manpower," and recommended that the responsibility for dispatching physicians to the communities be given to the United States Public Health Service.

The committee, known as "the Committee of Physicians for the Improvement of Medical Care, Inc.," observed that the Office of War Information had recently called attention to a shortage of physicians in some communities.

"So critical has the situation become," the committee declared,

Thousands Ride Home From Beaches On Horse Cars

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Some of the thousands who visited the New Jersey seashore the week end came home on the "Whirlaway Special."

Unable to handle the record crowds with available day coaches, the railroads utilized horse cars equipped with wooden benches.

Passengers said the cars smelled a little "horsey," but they were glad to get a seat in them.

"that the health of many communities is seriously threatened."

The committee recommended a plan which would call for relocation of nurses and other medical personnel in addition to physicians, stating:

"This plan will involve little or no relocation of medical practice. It will probably involve the recruitment and assignment of at least 4,000 physicians, less than 5 per cent of the number remaining in private practice."

It suggested the Public Health Service grant commissions to physicians in order that they might be assigned to communities where they are needed, without interference from State licensing boards.

stairs a fiddler and an accordionist were supposed to hold forth nightly. Very neat, very good from an organizational standpoint, forgive a trifle of vocal preponderance on floor No. 2.

Except for a certain nomadic tendency among the performers. Mr. Oxley, the upstairs man, suddenly acquired a preference for the microphone downstairs. So at every opportunity, he would leave the upstairs microphone to Miss LaRue and novachordist and sing for the folks on the lower level. Now Miss Lee (who last night moved to the Dubonnet Room) sang passing fair duets with Mr. Oxley, and on that gentleman's periodic jaunts downstairs she would join him there at every opportunity.

In view of the rather limited performing space on the first floor, and since an accordion is usually a simple accompaniment for duets, this would mean that the violinist would be better off out of the way. Thus, with the advent of duets downstairs he would retire to the bandstand upstairs, there to join Miss LaRue and the novachord. Sometimes when the intermission periods of the two groups overlapped every one but the accordionist would be either upstairs or on the way upstairs. At these moments that lad would be left, a forlorn creature staring blankly into space. But for all he knew, the very next minute he would be shoving over to make room for the returning fiddler and Miss LaRue, or some other combination like Oxley-fiddler or fiddler-Oxley-Lee.

Naturally, matters weren't simplified a whole lot when patrons, exercising a downstairs privilege, would take the mike for a few impromptu solos or duets.

The average stairway scene, in the 400, in short, looked something like the storming of the Bastille. Listen for a rending crash.

Only 2 Liberty Ships Of More Than 1,000 Lost Through Defects

By the Associated Press. Out of the more than 1,000 Liberty ships built under the Maritime Commission's war construction program only two have been lost as a result of structural defects, Representative Jackson, Democrat, of Washington said yesterday.

Representative Jackson, chairman of the House Merchant Marine Subcommittee studying the structural failure question, said today the first phase of the subcommittee's study had been completed and a formal report would be made public soon following its submission to committee members.

The J. L. M. Curry, built by the Alabama Drydock & Shipbuilding Co., Mobile, encountered structural difficulties at sea in enemy waters and was sunk March 8, 1943, by gunfire from friendly ships to prevent her falling into enemy hands, he said.

The Thomas Hooker, built by the South Portland (Me.) Shipbuilding Corp., was lost March 6, 1943, when she came apart and was abandoned at sea, he said.

No Lives Lost. In neither case were any lives lost, he said.

"As to structural defects," Representative Jackson said, "there have been a number, some in the nature of minor failure and a few major ones necessitating drydocking. All cases so far as we know were related to welding practices and the committee has not found evidence of any case where defective material has been a direct cause."

The yard with the highest percentage of structural failures, Representative Jackson said, was one on the Gulf Coast. Speed of construction, Representative Jackson said, appears to have nothing to do with incidence of defects—for example, a vessel built by Kaiser, launched in a little over four days and at sea in slightly more than seven, has had no trouble.

Lack of Training Hit. "It all appears to be a question of the welding procedure followed," he said. "When this became apparent, the Maritime Commission looked into the matter and required all yards to adopt new methods. Since that time no known defects have developed."

Much of the difficulty, Representative Jackson added, could be traced to the lack of trained supervisory personnel both in welding and other phases of ship construction to keep pace with the tremendous expansion of the industry.

Praising the Maritime Commission as "about the only agency having a substantial part in the war production program which has not only kept up with its program but is ahead of it," Representative Jackson said:

"It is to be expected that when ships are turned out in such volume that some defects will be encountered, but the percentage is not higher than in any other industry."

Van Zandt Denies Saying Kaiser Ships Broke Up

PORTLAND, Oreg., July 6 (AP).—Denying he ever had said that four Kaiser-built Liberty ships broke up at sea, Representative Van Zandt, Republican, of Pennsylvania, declared after a congressional shipyard hearing that the statement attributed to him was caused by confusion and misunderstanding.

Newsmen quoted Representative Van Zandt as making the charge last week during sessions of a House subcommittee investigating production in yards operating under contract to the Maritime Commission. Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser demanded a public retraction.

In a subsequent statement Representative Van Zandt said:

"I did not say that four Liberty ships from the Portland (Oregon Shipbuilding Corp.) or any other Kaiser yards have broken up at sea due to faulty construction. No such statement will be found in the record of our congressional hearing in Portland or elsewhere."

Corrects Misunderstanding. "I am glad to correct a misunderstanding by the statement I make here. I think the report, which, I repeat, is not in the record of our hearing, arose from the misreading of some statistics. If there is any responsibility involved in this incident I wish to accept it personally and not let it rest upon the committee."

Virginia Church Paper Calls for Study of Interracial Report

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., July 6. — The forthcoming issue of the Virginia Methodist Advocate calls for Virginians to follow the pathway "of justice, of reason, of sanity, of brotherhood" in solving the racial problem.

In an editorial the publication declared that the Negro in the South is uncertain whether Southern whites will support efforts at better race relations or whether he must team up with radical leadership in the North to get redress of grievances.

The paper said the recent meeting in Richmond, in which 33 white and 33 colored leaders of the South inaugurated a study of race relations, may prove to be "of epochal importance." It added that whatever recommendations come out of such studies, however, are of no value "unless the churches and schools and the various social and civic groups bend every effort to study these findings and to broadcast them to others."

The publication said that the riot in Detroit was not one conducted by white and colored leaders.

"It was the rank and file, and mostly young men in their late teens and early 20s," the paper said. "The Negro in the Southland . . . is trying to make up his mind whether Southern whites will give their support to such measures as will come from these interracial studies or whether the only redress the Negro has is to team up with radical leadership in the North and try the method of bloodshed and revolution."

The Advocate declared that what happened in Detroit can happen in Virginia, but that "if it does, both races will be the loser."

TO THE MAN OR WOMAN ABOUT TO GET A LOAN

THINKING of getting a loan? Before you borrow, ask yourself two questions. 1. Is your loan really necessary? 2. Are you getting it at the lowest rate you can?

It's a good idea not to borrow unless a loan is the best answer to your problem. In wartime that's an especially wise policy. Perhaps you can squeeze through this time without borrowing. If you do borrow, get only as much money as you really need—and pay it back as soon as possible to reduce the cost.

Sometimes a family must have a substantial amount of cash to meet an unexpected emergency. Sometimes a family has debts too large to pay out of current earnings. That's when a personal loan, repayable in monthly instalments, can often solve a troublesome problem.

Loans without endorser. To families who will benefit from borrowing Household lends $50 to $300—without endorser. Loans are made on furniture, cars or without security. We have various payment plans in order to meet borrowers' needs. Borrowers may repay in advance at any time to reduce the cost. Household's rate is 2% per month on the unpaid balance. The Maryland Small Loan Law authorizes a maximum rate of 3% per month. If you need a loan to straighten out your money affairs, phone, write or visit Household Finance.

	3	4	6	9	12	18
$ 50	$ 17.34	$ 13.13	$ 8.93	$ 6.13	$ 4.79	$ 3.79

300	104.03	78.79	53.56	36.75	28.37	21.51

WE GUARANTEE that these payments will repay loans in full, if payments are made on schedule. Total cost will be reduced if payments are made ahead of schedule. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on unpaid balances. This rate is substantially less than the maximum prescribed by the Maryland Small Loan Law.

Fashion Report

By Helen Vogt

Remember the other day we said that hats, in all probability, never will be restricted, no matter what clothing regulations come forth? Of course, we meant that it was almost a sure thing that the Government would not regiment millinery unless the manpower shortage became terribly acute.

Now it develops that the milliners themselves have imposed restrictions on their own industry. They have limited themselves voluntarily to conserve fabrics and the result, we believe, will be better-looking headgear from now on.

Speaking from a fashion group luncheon in New York the other day, Designer Sally Victor said that to be fashionable this fall you must have not more than one yard of veiling on your hat. Reason for this is that machines which make veiling also make mosquito netting for the armed forces, used for camouflage, as well as for protection against insects. So, we civilians must use as little as possible, employing veiling once again in the better things as a complexion aid. As Mrs. Victor says, if you use more than one yard you are "taking the net off some poor fellow's back."

Other voluntary limitations in the millinery world include the use of a small yardage of ribbon, no elastic, a hat circumference of not more than 48 inches and as little felt to be used as possible. Reason for the latter is that chemicals and glue, both essential in war industries, go into felt.

According to this authority, restrictions will not hamper milliners any more than they have in the past. An insurmountable obstacle to designers of other fashions. She believes that in place of trimming and yardage, milliners will use manipulation and better silhouette to keep hats attractive, again in the better things as a complexion aid. As Mrs. Victor says, if you use more than one yard you are "taking the net off some poor fellow's back."

Another speaker at the same luncheon was Mrs. Eleanor Whitaker of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., reporting on the dyes and colors available for civilian use. Mrs. Whitaker explains that though quantity has been limited, quality has not, and that the consumer has just as much right to expect good dyes now as he did before the war. "Let no one tell you that they cannot guarantee color," she said. "If they

Hives Treatment Is Suggested

By Dr. J. B. Warren

When a food or drug causes hives the system is shocked because there is a loss of red corpuscles from blood, blood pressure becomes lower and the blood loses some of its clotting ability.

Prevention is to avoid foods or drugs causing hives. Immediate treatment of hives is to tickle the throat and cause vomiting or giving a little mustard and water. If seen hours after, a dose of Epsom salts is good treatment. A hypodermic of adrenalin, 10 to 15 drops, is the most effective immediate treatment.

Hat in a Hurry

By Peggy Roberts

You'll be well paid for the hour it takes to make this hat, even at overtime rates. You couldn't buy one in less time for six times the cost, which is about 60 cents. For summer crochet it in celtage or rayon straw. For fall and winter, it looks quite different in wool. Add your own touch in the contrasting ribbon run through the crown and bow-knotted in front.

Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for the above.

Send 11 cents (coin) for Pattern No. 1814 to Washington Star, Needle Arts Dept., P. O. Box 172, Station D, New York 3, N. Y.

Never Copy Another's 'Style'

By Josephine Lowmy

The woman of true poise and charm usually is the possessor of a rich spirit. Any attitudes or poses assumed to impress others lack the warm magnetic glow of the real thing.

Yet, we should work for charm and an increasingly attractive personality, that is, if we work from the right angles. Charm should be a by-product of vibrant living. It should come because we have made a real effort to contribute more happiness to the life about us, because we possess a keen awareness of the adventure of living, because we are interested in many things and people.

If we make a serious effort to think of others more than of ourselves, if we take the trouble to be actively friendly, if we are tolerant of the mistakes of others, if we practice daily seeing the funny side of things, if we make up our minds not to fret, if we do not talk about ourselves, do not stew about things, if we try to be a better sport, and if we achieve any measure of success in these attempts, we need not worry about charm. It will come along without an invitation and so will dozens of friends.

One important reason for overcoming factors in physical attractiveness is the direct effect they have on personality. If you are ashamed of your big stomach it will make you awkward and self-conscious. The size of a waistline can affect the vibrancy of a personality because a large one may make you feel middle aged.

Ginny Simms, the lovely songstress who rose to fame via radio and movies says, "Express your own personality. Copy no one. Do not assume the style or manners of others."

"When people say that you are original you may be sure that you have already achieved distinction." She adds, with a friendly smile, "Be plain and simple."

Women of striking personality do not ape others. However, if you are not gifted along the line of individual styling try the current styles and fads and adopt only those which seem suited to you. In this way you can discover your individual style.

Cold Dishes Will Tempt Family On Hot Days

By Edith M. Barber

As soon as a stretch of hot weather arrives we begin to take a greater interest in cold main dishes for the evening meal. Appetites will be tempted by a hearty salad in which meat and fish are featured. Celery or crisp cucumbers are always good in combination with these foods and today, with the meat situation as it is, they will be used in larger proportions than usual. To supplement we may use sliced hard-cooked eggs or stuffed hollowed eggs.

Often, meat and fish salads are offered. This makes the ingredients stretch farther, and there is something very refreshing about a chilled jelly. Meat extracts or bouillon cubes which were mentioned a week or two ago, furnish good seasoning for this quick-as-pie jelly. A cheese ring filled with a vegetable salad which has a few shreds of meat with it and which is then given the name "cheese salad" may be used as a filling for the ring. Sometimes, mayonnaise or cooked sausage dressing is mixed with the softened gelatin before flaked fish or meat is added, and we have a "mousse." Mincéd green pepper, olives, celery or cucumbers, are also added.

When gelatin is used as a base for either a salad or a dessert, the finished product should be put in the refrigerator as soon as it has cooled slightly. If there are any leftovers from the meal, they must be returned to the refrigerator at once, as in warm weather gelatin acts as a culture for molds which are always in the air.

When clear gelatin is used as a base, a mayonnaise or some variation, such as Russian dressing, is served with it. If mayonnaise is a part of the base, French dressing should be used with the filling of the ring mold. If you do not use a mold of this type, a bowl may be used, and the salad arranged around it after it has been turned out on a serving dish. Small molds may be used for individual service, if you like.

FISH MOUSSE.

- 1 cup cooked fish.
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin.
- 1 cup cold water.
- 3/4 cup cooked salad dressing or mayonnaise.
- 1/2 cup diced celery or cucumber.
- 2 tablespoons minced green pepper.
- 1/4 cup chopped olives.
- 1/2 teaspoon salt.
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice.
- Dash of cayenne.

Remove bones and skin from fish and flake. Soften gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Place bowl over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool slightly and add salad dressing or mayonnaise and mix well. Add remaining ingredients and blend well. Pour in 1-quart mold and chill until set. Unmold on bed of lettuce and garnish with olives and sliced hard-cooked eggs. Yield: Six servings.

JELLIED MEAT LOAF.

- 2 teaspoons beef concentrate.
- 1/4 teaspoon mixed powdered herbs.
- 1 teaspoon leafed herbs.
- 2 slices onion.
- 3 peppercorns.
- 2 1/2 cups boiling water.
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin.
- 1 cup cold water.
- 1 cup minced cooked meat.
- 1 cup finely shredded carrots.
- 2 hard-cooked eggs.

Combine meat concentrate with seasonings and boiling water. Boil 5 minutes and strain through cheesecloth. Soften gelatin in cold water, add strained stock and cool. Chill until mixture is slippy. Slice eggs, arrange in bottom of small bread pan. Cover with a thin layer of gelatin mixture and chill until set. Add meat and carrots to remaining gelatin mixture, and place over eggs. Chill until set. Unmold and garnish with lettuce, watercress and sliced tomatoes. Yield: Six servings.

Note: Mincéd green peppers, sliced green cucumbers or celery may be added to the meat.

Chic in the victory garden—that's the fashion formula this summer. Even if you've never sewed before you can make both smock and slacks with tailored precision by taking a few lessons at your local sewing center. This tricky ensemble is easy to create and fun to wear.

Shopping Around

By Dorothy Murray

Paper table mats will help greatly to eliminate your housekeeping problems for there will be just that many less pieces to gather together for the overworked laundries. These mats are very sanitary, for they can be washed with a damp cloth after each using, and made of very heavy paper with a bright glazed finish they should last for a considerable length of time. Inexpensive and attractive, four mats come to a package and each side of the individual mats is finished in a different design in the same color schemes. Rose, blue and green are represented in the collection.

Coupon Catchers . . .

There is a new supply of ration book covers on local counters. These are much nicer than the old variety for there is room for 10 books (the others only held one) and they are equipped with several small slots to hold those loose stamps that accumulate. The books are inexpensive and come in blue, tan and green.

Serviceman's Gift . . .

A wardrobe "orderly" would be an excellent addition to the serviceman's equipment. It can be hung on any wall to provide wardrobe space for shirts, handkerchiefs, general utility socks, etc. Rolls up for easy carrying to make an ideal furlough bag, and also can be used as a straight laundry bag. Small enough to fit snugly into his duffel bag without taking up too much room, it comes in a dark, durable fabric.

Practical Pretties . . .

Those heart-shaped shoe pads make excellent shower gifts. There are four to a set and the rayon silk material is nicely padded and stretched to resemble quilting. The pads help to keep your shoes in shape, yet they are not bulky like the old prewar metal ones. Come in attractive colors to match your closet accessories.

Swimming Styles . . .

"Going-to-the-beach" season has arrived again, though this year finds that pleasure unavailable to most people. Of course, some few will make the grade with train or bus transportation, but for the majority it will mean swimming in the closest pool. Bathing bags will be very much in evidence on public conveyances so be certain yours is neat and smart in appearance. Some recently noted fit this description to a "T" for they are made of a rubberized fabric, ideal in size and equipped with twisted cotton handles. Green, dusty rose and yellow seem to be the outstanding colors on display, with some plain in color, others with designs, and a number banded in contrasting shades.

Fine Refreshments

A plate of attractive cookies, and, perhaps, a refreshing soft drink is just the thing for career girls and busy housewives to serve unexpected guests. Packages of cookies are always available in various assortments which are ideal for this purpose. Have some on hand so that the next time friends drop in on you without warning, you won't be caught short with nothing to offer them.

Invitations Properly Mailed

By Emily Post

A professional wedding consultant who is called upon to settle practically all of the wedding problems "I should like to take a definite position on the correctness of sending invitations to the bridegroom's family when they and the bride's family live in the same town. Half of the best people here protest against sending invitations to the groom's family because it puts them in the category of outsiders. The other half are just as positive that every member of the family should receive invitations but that they should get them by personal presentation and not by mail. What is the right way? Also, should the attendants always be sent invitations?"

The answer is that it is generally customary to mail the bridegroom's family a formal invitation when and if these are sent. Quite apart from any question of correctness, it is taken for granted that the family of the bridegroom is likely to be more interested in receiving the invitations than other people. For this same reason an invitation is always sent to the bridegroom who is away from home and unable to see them at the bride's stationers. When there are sufficient to go round each of the attendants should also be sent an invitation. All of these are properly sent by mail—unless equally easy to leave them at houses which are conveniently nearby. In this case a note left by hand is always especially courteous, even though not necessary.

Dear Mrs. Post: On all occasions which can be considered informal it is rude for a woman not to offer her hand when she is meeting either man or woman for the first time? Let's say she is being introduced by good friends of hers to very good friends of theirs and all of them feel as if they know each other even before they have actually met.

Answer—When introduced, men always shake hands with each other. Whether women do or not ordinarily depends on whether they are near together. Under the circumstances you describe I think they would be rather lacking in friendliness not to cross the room to shake hands.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is organedy too youthful for a middle-aged bride to wear at her wedding? I am small and very thin and I want to make myself look heavier and the only other crisp material that I can think of would be taffeta. But mid-summer weather makes taffeta unappealing to me.

Answer—I agree with you about taffeta and in my opinion organedy material for almost any bride in mid-summer. While it is perhaps associated with youth, the fact that you are small and slim should make it becoming. Another angle in favor of its use is the present-day popularity of all cottons.

Domestic help is hard to find—but you may find it through a "Want Ad" in The Star.

Summer Romance

By Dorothy Dix

The good old summertime in which our thoughts and our manners melt down with our collars, and in which we do things we would be incapable of doing at other times of the year, is upon us, and it behooves us to watch our steps if we want to save ourselves a lot of grief.

Especially do girls seem to think that the dog days are the open season when they are free to swat Mrs. Grundy in the face, and to go about with no more clothes on than Mother Eve had before she got enlightenment and made herself that original fig-leaf confection. So to the little lovelies I offer a few DON'TS that may possibly prevent them from going native just because the weather is that way.

The first and most important DON'T of all is: Don't park your code of conduct along with your fur coat and put it in cold storage. You will need it just as badly in August as you do in December. Maybe more so, and more this year than ever before in your lifetime, for never before does there so many wolves in dressed up in sheep's clothing, seeking little lambs whom they may devour. They look so handsome and frisky. It will be a temptation to play about with them, but after they are done with you there will be nothing left of you but your bones and a few shreds of a damaged reputation.

Don't try to make patriotism a mantle to cover up your follies. Don't think it any safer to pick up a sailor or a soldier on the street than it is any other man. A uniform does not make a sinner into a saint, or make a boonder into a gentleman. Put on your prettiest frock and dance with the boys at the service balls. Pour coffee for them and feed them on cookies at the canteens. Do what you can to cheer them up and make them think of the girls back home. But do your Girl Scout good deeds in the light and not in dark places, and under the eyes of the chaperons.

Don't go out alone on dates with strangers of whom you know nothing. They may be Sir Galahads with whom you would be as safe as with your own brother. They may be Jack the Rippers from whom you are lucky to escape alive. Anyway, no man feels he has to respect a girl who doesn't respect herself enough to make him show his credentials.

Don't drink with the boys anything that is stronger than weak tea. Don't listen to the tempter who tells you that one small drink can do no harm and that you have to drink to be sociable, and that you are spoiling the party and being a wet blanket by not taking as many highballs as the other are. Many a girl gets her whole life's happiness in a cocktail glass in the hands of a man who doesn't respect himself enough to make him show his credentials.

Don't let your heart go haywire. Right now, when the war has made us all a bit hysterical, when we are filled with anxieties and forebodings and a sort of this-may-be-our-last-chance-at-happiness feeling, it is imperative that every girl should keep the safety valve on her emotions in good working order and be able to clamp down on it tight and hard when necessary.

For she is keyed up to a high romantic pitch, and it is so easy for her to think herself in love with any good-looking chap who comes along and who has a keen line of sentimental patter. So we have the girls who mistake a passing fancy for the grand passion and who marry strangers for whom they have lost their taste even before their wedding cake grows stale. And so romantic the girls who think it is so romantic to go off and spend week ends with soldiers and sailors because the poor dears are about to sail for somewhere on our far-flung battle line.

Don't think you are being noble and heroic by rushing into a hasty furlough wedding with a boy who knows as little of you as you do of him, and who only thinks he is in love with you because he is glib-tongued and you are the best-looker in sight; or that you are conferring any blessing on a lad by getting engaged to him when you know that he is only asking you to wait for him because he is homesick and wants some woman's hand to cling to.

The sum of all these don'ts is: Don't pay too high a price for your summer fun, girls. One good time can cost you a lifetime of repentance, and it isn't worth it. Don't do anything away from home that you wouldn't do at home. Don't marry in haste. Wait and look him over when he gets back and see if you still want him. Just be as good a girl in August as you are in January. After all, the summer is only three months long, but there is a long, hard winter that we have to live through.

The sooner you get that War savings stamp in your book the sooner you will get victory in the bag.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave 1/2 inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about 1/4 turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

An Old Melodrama to Get New Chance and Bergner

By JAY CARMODY.

In these days when playwrights are too busy with the war effort or too dejected by world events to write plays, producers scurry about among the dead and dormant scripts looking for something to salvage. After all, interest in the theater never was more vibrantly alive and something has to be done to satisfy it. Producers logically take the position that it not only is their patriotic obligation to lift the morale of the people, but a chance to pick up some rationed coffee and unrationed doughnut money.

One illustration of the zeal with which they are going about their work is the announced intention to revive the melodrama, "The Two Mrs. Carrolls."

If the title evokes a twitch or two in the back of the mind, that is as it should be. "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" might well be remembered as one of the dizziest melodramas ever offered at the National Theater. A large and embarrassed audience saw it on opening night and smaller, but equally embarrassed ones, saw it at subsequent performances during that week five years ago.

Critics and customers alike, however, felt that no play could be as bad as "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" appeared to be. After all, it had had a long run in London, it seemed well enough cast with Eleanora Miranova and other talented people. However, there it was, a screaming, inept thing without a semblance of validity.

Subsequent research disclosed the explanation of what had happened between the play's London success and its Washington flop. The story went that when Burke Meyers, who saw it in London, purchased the

American rights from Martin Vale (Mrs. Bayard Veiller), she asked for the whimsical privilege of the author to make changes.

Mr. Meyers did not know the extent of the changes she had in mind, but they turned out to be extensive enough to make "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" an entirely different play. And a pathetically bad one.

The revival, which will use the English version, will bring Elizabeth Bergner to Broadway.

You probably think of Max Gordon as a play producer, and a very successful one. That is a very correct way to think of Mr. Gordon whose current major enterprise is "The Doughnuts," which is making lots of dough for Mr. Gordon and the seats of actors working in the Broadway and road companies.

That, however, is by no means the limit of his activities. Mr. G. has opened a sort of Hollywood branch of himself, spread-eagled himself into a national institution which reaches from coast to coast and back again. He has accomplished this by becoming associated with 20th Century-Fox studio. The arrangement, which carries with it a weekly retainer of enviable proportions, is that Mr. G. shall keep his eye open wherever he may be for human or literary material which he thinks might profitably be brought to the attention of the studio.

A widely traveled man who is always on the alert, Mr. Gordon probably will turn out to be one of the wisest pieces of employment to which the studio ever was a party.

Not for the world would Hollywood denigrate realism in a writer, at least not in an established writer whose realism is an element in his popularity.

It would not mind, however, if the readers of such authors were less fanatical in their verbatim worshipfulness, or if it worshipful verbatimness? That only causes trouble.

That is one of the things being pointed out now of Hemingway on the eve of Paramount's release of "For Whom the Bell Tolls." He writes with such pounding effect upon the minds of his followers that the movie adaptation of him has to be literal down to the smallest detail.

The prize case in point was the effort to make-up Akim Tamiroff for the role of Pablo. With a copy of the novel in one hand, a brush in the other, and Tamiroff in a chair in front of them, the studio's artists struggled and struggled to make Pablo of Tamiroff. Always, however, something seemed to be wrong and no one could figure out just what it was.

Finally, the most rabid Hemingway fan of the lot thought he had found it. Wasn't it, he wanted to know, a matter of the hair? Were not the Tamiroff locks a little too fine and Russian to conform to the Spanish coarseness of those of Pablo?

A series of wigs, one coarser than the other, proved that that was just what was wrong.

In the final wig, Pablo was perfect.
