Pope Is Quoted By Axis Radio as Lamenting Raid

Pontiff's Alleged Note Says History of Shrines Destroyed of Shrines

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) By the Associated Press. The Rome radio broadcast today what it described as a letter written by Pope Pius XII to Francesco Cardinal Marchetti-Salvagiani, his vicar general for the district of Rome, deploring Monday's bombing of Rome.

The broadcast, in French, was recorded by the Associated Press in New York. It gave a Vatican City dispatch of the Italian agency Stefani as authority for a purported text of the letter.

The British Ministry of Information in London recorded a Vatican radio broadcast giving the text of a letter from the Pope to Cardinal Marchetti-Salvagiani, which it said appeared to be the same as that broadcast by the Rome radio.

The Rome radio also broadcast a Stefani dispatch saying that the Pontiff's letter was given the place of honor in L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper.

The Rome radio broadcast of the letter quoted the Pope as recalling his efforts as Bishop of Rome to insure the safety of the city and then saying:

Calls Hope Vain. The broadcast quoted the Pope as recalling his efforts, as Bishop of Rome, to insure the safety of the city and then as saying: "But, alas, our hope was vain. And now what we feared has happened. That which we foresaw now is a sad reality, for one of the noted Roman basilicas, that of San Lorenzo outside the walls, generated by all Catholics for its antique memories, is now in great part destroyed. Upon seeing the ruins of this noted temple the words of the prophet Jeremiah come to my mind: 'Quomodo obstruentur esturum, mutatus est color optimus, dispersi sunt lapides sanctuarii.' 'How is the gold become dim, the finest color is changed, the stones of the sanctuary are scattered in the top of every street.'

The Pope also was quoted as calling on the faithful to pray that God "may speed the hour of his mercy when arms are laid down, souls pacified and the light and joy of true peace shall shine again in a troubled world."

Pope Visited Basilica. Previously the Vatican radio had reported that the Basilica of San Lorenzo had been badly damaged in the raid and that the Pope visited it late Monday afternoon.

The broadcast attributed the following paragraphs to the Pope: "Reflect upon the severe judgment that future generations will pronounce upon those who destroy all that which should be safeguarded and jealously preserved because it constitutes the riches and glory of all humanity and the progress of peoples."

"Consider that hate never was the mother of peace and that resentment provoked by hate and unnecessary destruction postpones and makes less certain and less serene the day of a peaceful meeting which cannot come out of the humiliation of the conquered, but must be based upon and show itself solely in fraternal concord, which reconciles."

Russians Gain On Three Sides In Orel Drive

(Earlier Story on Page A-1.) By the Associated Press. LONDON, July 21.—Russian troops captured a railway station within 9 miles of Orel in a continued advance on three sides of the central German base, a special Russian communique said tonight.

Sweeping in from the north, the Russians overran 40 populated places. Another 50 were captured in a drive from the east, including the railway station of Zolotarevo, only 11 miles from Orel.

Yet another army driving up from the south advanced "in the face of heavy fire, enemy resistance and counterattacks," the communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor from the Moscow radio, said.

Bishop Hurley Calls Air Attack on Rome Tragic Mistake

Former Papal Aide Sees Prospect for Just Peace Darkened by Raid

(Earlier Story on Page A-12.) By the Associated Press. ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., July 21.—The Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Bishop of St. Augustine and formerly attached to the Vatican as aide to the Papal Secretary of State, declared today that "every decent Christian thought and sentiment within me cries out that we have made a tragically mistaken decision" in the bombing of Rome.

Bishop Hurley, now at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., issued his statement through the chancery here. "The news of the bombing of Rome by our own soldiers has pained me beyond expression," he said. "I realize very well that the Fascist government of Italy has sought with craven cunning to protect some of its military activities by carrying them out within the shadow of the sacred shrines of Christendom. I appreciate, too, the meticulous care with which our airmen endeavored, though vainly, to avoid hitting churches and historic monuments in the Eternal City. But every decent Christian thought and sentiment within me cries out that we have made a tragically mistaken decision in the higher moral strategy of this war."

"I am convinced, too, that the raid on Rome has darkened our prospects for the sort of peace so ardently desired by all of us. . . . 'Whatever the professionals of war may say about military necessity, good men the world over will earnestly pray that the Eternal City be spared further air raids. Such raids would only serve to imperil our hopes for a future of Christian peace. . . . Let Washington not be deceived by the obscene chorus of approval which is registered in the regimented press. Our government will show wisdom and virtue if with sincere contrition it addresses itself at once to rebuilding these ruins. . . ."

Byrnes Sees More Goods For Civilians

Procurement Study Expected to Free Men and Material

War Mobilization Director Byrnes today saw a possibility that more materials soon will be released for civilian use. Mr. Byrnes said at a press conference that he would be "greatly disappointed" if a study now being taken by Bernard Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board, whom Mr. Byrnes recently announced was assisting him in an advisory capacity, Mr. Baruch, he commented, said that he wouldn't sell the United States short.

At the same time, Mr. Byrnes explained he is getting reports on the progress of the programs of the Army, Navy, War Production Board, War Manpower Commission, the new Office of Economic Warfare, Agriculture and the War Food Administration and plans to keep these current, so that it will be possible at all times to have an accurate picture to place before the War Mobilization Committee.

Baruch Optimistic, Too. He said today that he was optimistic over the result thus far obtained, and that a like attitude was taken by Bernard Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board, whom Mr. Byrnes recently announced was assisting him in an advisory capacity. Mr. Baruch, he commented, said that he wouldn't sell the United States short.

Fishermen Vote To Continue Strike

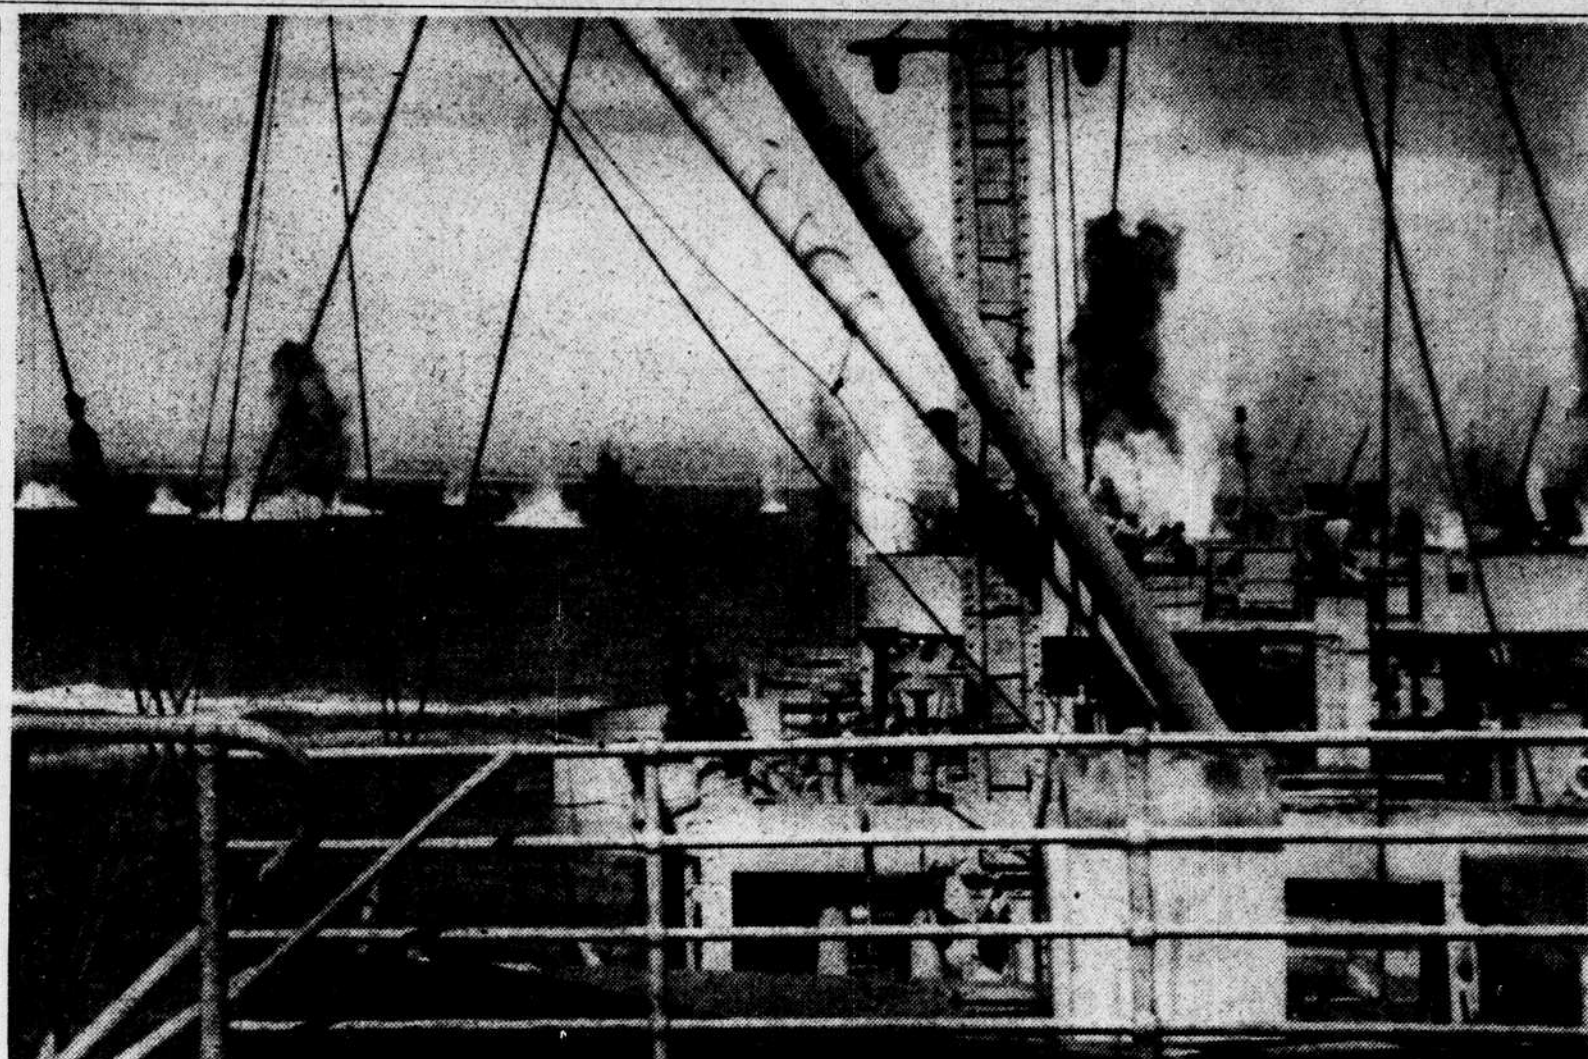

Boston Union Rejects WLB Work Directive

(By the Associated Press.) BOSTON, July 21.—A meeting of nearly 400 fishermen today rejected a War Labor Board directive that they return to work, unanimously voting to continue a walkout which has tied up approximately 70 trawlers at Boston and 40 others in New Bedford, in addition to 30 which are being refitted.

Fishermen who attended the meeting said that several fist fights among those attending broke out during the session. Patrick J. McHugh, secretary-treasurer of the Atlantic Fishermen's Union (AFL), and Louis R. Becker, assistant director of the disputes division of the Regional War Labor Board, addressed the closed meeting, urging the men to return to work.

Mr. McHugh said that when a show of hands was asked on the question of continuing the walkout, the reply was unanimously in favor. He announced that another meeting of the fishermen would be called not later than Friday of this week.

Meanwhile, not one pound of fish, other than mackerel, was brought into the port of Boston while the fishermen, on "holiday," met to consider the directive. The board called upon the crews of the vessels to return to work pending a "fair appraisal" of their complaints that new OPA wholesale fish price ceilings prevented them from earning a livelihood.

Three Stock Firms Face Trial August 30 On SEC Complaint

Companies Accused of Violating Federal Securities Laws

(By the Associated Press.) MINNEAPOLIS, July 21.—Trial of a complaint by the Securities & Exchange Commission against Investors Syndicate, Investors Mutual, Inc., and Investors Syndicate of America, Inc., was set today by Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye for August 30.

Trial date was set in conjunction with a motion by SEC counsel withdrawing a petition for a preliminary injunction in favor of hearing the full complaint as well as a motion for a permanent injunction at the August trial. The SEC has accused the three companies of violating certain federal securities laws and charged certain officers with gross misconduct. The company denying the SEC charges, recently won a federal court decision refusing an SEC motion for a temporary restraining order.

A principal charge of the complaint was that Investors Syndicate "devised a fraudulent scheme" whereby "special offers" were made to certificate holders to "switch" them out of high interest bearing certificates when they became most burdensome to the company. In this connection, it was alleged, some company salesmen made false statements concerning the value of other securities offered and the necessity for the asserted transfer. The SEC asked that the company be prohibited from making such "offers of exchange."

The company denied that the special offer constituted a "switch" or "exchange in any respect, said that it had been zealous in educating its salesmen and that while the SEC had known of the program for at least four years, it had never objected to it until last December. Then, the company said, it promptly withdrew it, although still believing it sound. The SEC, in turn, denied knowing details of the program until recently.

Solvency of the company was not questioned and the SEC, in answer to a court question, said no fraud was charged in connection with securities offered in the alleged replacement of the original certificates.

Churchill Unaware Newsman Got Advance Word on Sicily

(By the Associated Press.) LONDON, July 21.—Prime Minister Churchill informed Commons today he was not aware that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower gave newsmen in North Africa advance information about the invasion of Sicily, but implied that, if it were true, he thought the secret was well kept.

The statement was made in a written reply to Thomas Naylor, Laborite member of Parliament, who asked July 16 if the Prime Minister was aware such a vital military secret had been entrusted to Allied correspondents nearly a month in advance and if British commanders would be warned against making such disclosures in future. "I have no information in regard to the first part of the question," Mr. Churchill's reply said. "As regards the second part, full and precise instructions are already in force. 'In view of the tactical surprise effected and of the results achieved in the present operation, no addition to these instructions appears to be necessary.'"

(Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent, disclosed in a dispatch from North Africa that Gen. Eisenhower told the assembled Allied press in mid-June that Sicily would be the object of the next Allied offensive.)

Nancy de Marigny Indicates Belief Husband Is Innocent

Tells Reporters Presence in Nassau Makes Her Opinion Obvious

(Earlier Story on Page B-10.) By the Associated Press. NASSAU, Bahamas, July 21.—Nancy Oakes De Marigny called in reporters today to tell them that her trip to Nassau makes it obvious whether she believes her husband, who is accused of killing her father here, is innocent or guilty.

There was no immediate elaboration of the statement. She made it known in advance of the late afternoon conference that she probably would visit Alfred De Marigny at the Bahamas prison daily, and that she will remain here until the charge against him is settled. De Marigny is charged with murder in connection with the budgeon slaying of Sir Harry Oakes, one of the world's richest men.

The pretty, 19-year-old eldest daughter of the British baronet was in the United States for medical treatment of sinus trouble, resulting from an infection in Mexico a year ago, when her father's body was found.

She came to Nassau yesterday, and soon after her arrival went to the prison to see De Marigny, greeting him with a kiss.

Germans Seek Escape From Bombs, Report Says

(By the Associated Press.) STOCKHOLM, July 21.—Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press today described a great stream of Germans flowing through the German capital to places of greater safety farther east from the bomb-blasted cities of the west and north-west. Their ultimate destination was not stated. Empty stores near railway stations were being utilized as resting places for the refugees, the dispatches said, and the zoo in Berlin's west end also has been converted to this purpose.

Allies Take Enna, Axis Rail Center; Hold Half of Isle

British Repel Attack By German Forces In Catania Sector

(By the Associated Press.) ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21.—American and Canadian troops have seized Enna—defense prop of all Central Sicily—cutting off large numbers of Axis forces and forcing a general withdrawal as resistance on the island weakened almost to the point of collapse.

To the east, British 8th Army units hammered at the door of Catania, shattering another Nazi counterattack with heavy casualties and advancing on the seaport, it was officially announced.

Half of Sicily now is in Allied hands for tactical purposes. Enna's fall cut off Catania from Western Sicily except for one long, rough northern coastal road. Allied observers reported a general retreat along all roads leading up from the center of Sicily, and Italian prisoners were seized. It was German forces in the central sectors were speeding eastward for a quick getaway.

Italians Hit Own Government. The withdrawal appeared intended for a last stand or possible evacuation in the Messina area of North-eastern Sicily, or between Catania and Messina.

Italians complained against their own government as well as the Germans. The Nazis, they declared, were repeating their African tactics of abandoning them every time the situation became hopeless, fleeing in all available transport.

They asserted their own Fascist government had given them too few guns and food and issued obsolete transports, armor and ammunition. The American and Canadian troops were spearing deeper into Sicily beyond Enna in a swift, powerful advance. They are only about 40 miles from the north coast of Sicily and are rapidly splitting the island in two.

The Italian communique announced earlier that Enna had been evacuated and the German war bulletin said that "in the western sector of the Sicilian front German and Italian forces, unmolested by the enemy, executed ordered movements according to plan. British attacks at Catania were repulsed, it said."

Entire System in Jeopardy. The fall of Enna, 45 miles west of Catania, threw the whole Axis communication system in Sicily in jeopardy.

The town controls the main highway and railroad lines running east and west across the mountainous island, and it thus cuts the German defenders of Catania off from contact with Italian forces in the west.

These Italian troops have been yielding ground rapidly and surrendering in huge numbers. Most of the German troops apparently are concentrated in the Catania area, battling desperately to hold the 8th Army from sealing off the entire east coast of Sicily by plunging through Catania up toward Messina.

With Enna's fall, the only contact between Catania and Western Sicily is by a single, roundabout road from Palermo and Termini on the north coast down around Mount Etna through Paterno, or by a still longer way along the coast.

Pierlot Reveals Plan For Free Belgium

Speaks to People by Radio On Independence Holiday (By the Associated Press.) LONDON, July 21.—Hubert Pierlot, Prime Minister of the Belgian government in exile, said today in a radio address directed at occupied Belgium on the 112th anniversary of its independence that "victory is on the march," and presented a plan for liberating Belgians after the arrival of Allied armies.

These liberation steps, he said, would be taken, accompanied by Belgian military civil missions to act as intermediaries. "Food supplies will be distributed with arrival of the army. Contact will be made with Belgians 'above reproach from the national point of view,' with others sidetracked or arrested; the government will be transferred to the liberated zone as soon as possible to maintain order; food supply services of the army will be co-ordinated with distributing agencies existing in Belgium."

Public administrations will be cleaned of traitors and collaborators with "swift, exemplary punishment for all who have given criminal help to the enemy; the King, now a prisoner among his people," will again exercise constitutional powers; Parliament will meet again; the government will submit for approval reports to the King and Parliament on actions taken since the occupation, and Ministers will submit resignations to facilitate formation of the new government. "Belgian men who lived through the occupation."

Red-Nazi Battle Is Raging Along 400-Mile Front

Russians Continue To Tighten Circle Around Orel Base

MOSCOW, July 21.—Following the Russian front spreading along the southern Donets and Mius River sectors yesterday as Red Army troops recaptured town after town in their drive to encircle the Germans at Orel on the central front, the Russians reported today.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said the Red Army had reached Erelmova which is located at less than seven miles east of Orel.

Russian armies thus were on the move on a front extending some 400 miles south from Orel to a point southwest of Voroshilovgrad, where the Soviet midnight communiqué said Russian forces had crossed the Mius River, improving their positions.

Heaviest fighting still raged, however, in the vicinity of Orel, where the Soviet Army was closing in around the German supply base. Advances of from four to six miles were reported during the fighting which saw the Germans make 10 counterattacks in a futile effort to halt the Russian advance.

Today's German communiqué acknowledged that Nazi forces were engaged in "fierce battles of defense," especially east and north of Orel.

The communiqué said that 133 Soviet tanks were destroyed during the day. Soviet attempts to break through Nazi lines of the Mius River and in the middle Donets were declared to have been repulsed.

The Germans reported that from July 5 to 19 they captured 45,172 prisoners and destroyed 4,827 tanks and 2,344 planes on the eastern front.

Mitsenk Falls. Among the towns captured by the Russians, a special bulletin said, was Mitsenk, 31 miles northeast of Orel. The same Russian column that took this town was reported pushing on to the west.

Meanwhile, the bulletin said, the Red Army force operating directly east of Orel captured 20 villages in the day's fighting, including the railway station town of Voroshilov.

On the southern flank a Soviet force took the city of Mias Arkhangel'sk 39 miles from Orel, the communiqué said.

Russian advances were met by stubborn resistance all along the line, the war bulletin declared. Nazi counterattacks were launched constantly. Soviet forces were limited only to have the Germans reform their shattered tank units and infantry for another, the communiqué said.

Russians reported the desperate Nazi thrusts were accompanied by the same heavy loss of life and armored equipment which has marked the battle on the central front since its beginning 16 days ago.

The Russians also reported action at the southern end of the Kursk salient, in the vicinity of Belgorod. Here the Red Army has been busily engaged erasing the gains which the German Army made in the opening days of the battle.

Leningrad Area Stale. The Germans were hurling armor forces at the Russians, and the communiqué said that in one engagement Soviet troops killed 400 Germans and disabled 17 tanks and 3 self-propelling guns.

The Russians gave only meager details on the fighting in the Donets and Mius River area.

Berlin Broadcasts Unconfirmed Report Of New Rome Raid

Observers in London Regard Night Attack As Highly Unlikely

LONDON, July 21.—The Berlin radio reported today that Rome had been raided again last night by Allied planes. The broadcast, recorded by Reuters, was not immediately confirmed by any other sources, however.

The German announcer said details of the reported raid were not yet known.

Nothing was known of such a raid here and observers considered a night attack on Rome highly unlikely, pointing out that leaflets dropped by American airmen during Monday's raid said specifically the attack was being made by daylight to guarantee accuracy.

Observers also pointed out that the leaflets mentioned the possibility that Axis planes might be used to drop bombs and lend credibility to propaganda claims that the Allies were deliberately destroying cultural monuments.

A Rome broadcast recorded by the Associated Press last night said King Victor Emmanuel of Italy had placed 1,000,000 lire (nominally $32,000) at the disposal of American airmen during the raid for the purpose of helping families that have remained victims of the enemy's air raid.

Pope May Consider Moving Residence, Nazi Radio Says

The Berlin radio, quoting what it said was "competent Vatican circles," reported today that in the event of further air raids on Rome Pope Pius XII would consider the removal of his residence from Vatican City to one of the papal palaces within Rome.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, said the Pope "wants to express that he is not only the head of the Catholic Church but also the Bishop of Rome, and that he therefore is determined to share the dangers and fate of the city's population."

The broadcast added that "it is not only of importance to the Pope that Vatican City be spared from enemy air raids but also that Rome itself will not be exposed to enemy attacks."

The broadcast was in line with the attempts of Axis propagandists to arouse agitation abroad against further bombing of Rome.

A partial text of a Vatican radio announcement saying Pope Pius XII visited damaged areas of Rome shortly after the American bombing raid Monday was issued yesterday by the Ministry of Information in London.

The ministry recorded the broadcast, which it said was made in English for Great Britain and Ireland.

"This afternoon after the bombardment of Rome the holy father went to visit and console the victims, part of the flock of his own diocese," the broadcast said.

"Accompanied solely by Mgr. Montini, without any escort or cortege, his holiness left the Vatican about 5 p.m. Rome time, and went directly to the Basilica of San Lorenzo, one of seven churches of the Eternal City which had been hit.

"There before the ruins of the Church of the Basilica, so famous for its old frescoes, he prayed for some moments. He was at once expected and blessed by the people."

Slow Advance In Sicily Seen By Eisenhower

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21.—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today he was confident of a complete Allied victory in Sicily, but that the task facing British and Canadian forces was one of bitter fighting.

"Due to the nature of the terrain and the location of the enemy forces, the task facing the (British) 8th Army, including Canadian forces, is one of bitter fighting with a generally slow advance."

The American 7th Army is making a more or less rapid advance through weaker resistance, thus overrunning substantial portions of the island and confining the enemy to progressively smaller areas.

The commander in chief made his statements at his first press conference since late last month.

Kiska Island Cove Again Bombarded

Main Japanese Camp Hit By Light Surface Units

The Gertrude Cove on Kiska Island and the main Japanese camp area of Kiska Harbor were bombarded by two American light surface units yesterday, the Navy announced today.

On most previous occasions the enemy did not return fire.

The Navy also disclosed that Japanese planes Monday bombed the American air base on Funafuti, in the Ellice Islands, in the South Pacific.

There was no damage to materiel or installations and no injuries to personnel, the communiqué said.

The Jap attack in Funafuti was carried out by a squadron of three bombers. The planes are believed to have come from the Japanese naval air base at Tarawa, in the Gilbert Islands, which are 695 miles to the northwest of the Ellice Islands base.

It was the second attack on the island reported by the Navy. The first was on April 29 and it was at that time that the Navy disclosed for the first time that the American forces had been on the island for some time and had a base there.

Roosevelt Asks Action To Prevent Race Riots

President Roosevelt has asked the Attorney General and heads of several other Government agencies "to give special attention to the problem" of race riots in this country.

The President's action was disclosed in a letter to Representative Marcantonio (American Labor, New York), who had written the Chief Executive about riots in Beaumont, Tex., and Detroit.

Roosevelt told Mr. Marcantonio he shared his "feeling that the recent outbreaks of violence in widely scattered parts of the country endanger our national unity and comfort our enemies."

"I am sure," the President said, "every true American regrets this."

Duce Believed Urging Hitler To Rush Aid

Sicily Considered Lost Cause Already, Observers Assert

BERN, July 21.—Informed diplomatic circles expressed belief today that Premier Mussolini had made an urgent appeal to Adolf Hitler for more help in the defense of his gravely-threatened country when the Axis partners met Monday somewhere in Northern Italy—perhaps Verona.

(London circles expressed belief that if Mussolini asked Hitler for more aid he did not get very far. They doubted that the Germans could rush very strong reinforcements into Italy even if they wished.)

Bern sources agreed that immediate events in the battle of Sicily had prompted the conference, which apparently was held as American bombers pounded Rome, but most of them felt that the situation in Italy itself was the main topic of discussion.

Considered Lost Cause. In reaching this conclusion they pointed to recent Axis statements hinting that both Germany and Italy already regard the defense of Sicily as a lost cause.

The observers reasoned that if the Axis has given up hope of holding the island the next line of defense must be on the Italian mainland and that ways and means must be found of withdrawing the remnants of the Sicilian theater, and reorganizing to resist an Allied landing.

Obviously, informed sources said, one of the big problems of effective resistance to the Allies is air power. They pointed out that even the Axis has acknowledged Allied air superiority in the Sicilian theater, while the Allies have reported only negligible resistance to their aerial assaults.

Military observers estimate the Axis has 5,000 to 6,000 planes in combat on all European fronts. Of these approximately 1,800 to 2,100 are said to be fighter planes, backed up by a reserve of unknown quantity.

They agreed that if the Allies are to be quarantined on Sicily and the Italian mainland saved by an effective delaying action on the island this reserve must be thrown into the battle.

They pointed out, however, that the question is a tough one for Hitler, since it is on the German Air Force, which is larger and better equipped than the Italian, that the brunt of the fighting would fall.

There were two sides to the question confronting Hitler, observers believed. First: Would German commitments in Russia, the Balkans, in Occupied France and Norway, and at home be undisturbed, and, second, is bomb-blasted Italy a good risk?

They pictured Hitler as asking Mussolini several questions. Hitler would want to know, they thought, whether Mussolini had any impression of the impression that Roosevelt-Churchill appraisal had made on the rank and file in Italy. They considered it unlikely that Germany would squander her air reserves in an effort to protect a nation on the verge of cracking up internally.

Large-Scale Desertions. If Mussolini could convince Hitler that the Fascist position was successfully countering Allied propaganda and was likely to keep the Army and the civilian population in hand, then the latter might consider greater aid, they felt.

The sources pointed out, however, that there were definite rumors of a growing underground movement in Italy in addition to widespread reports of large-scale desertions in the Italian Army.

They also felt that Hitler probably would want to know what measures Italy was taking in her own behalf. There was, for instance, the question of the Italian Navy, which did not venture out of its mainland bases to oppose Allied landings on the island.

Observers said the Fascist press has explained that the Italian Navy was being saved for a bigger task when the attempt to invade the continent and press had sounded the retreat. The German press has commented on its failure to go to sea.

Nazi Ability to Aid Italy Is Doubted in London

LONDON, July 21.—Military and diplomatic circles today expressed the view that if the purpose of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting Monday was an Italian plea for additional help, Duce probably did not get very far.

Since Germany's war resources are strained and press has sounded the retreat, they doubted that Hitler could rush very strong reinforcements into Italy even if he wished.

They also noted that Axis communiques reporting the meeting made no mention of decisions being reached or failed to sound the usual note of "cordiality" of discussions and "unanimity" of decisions.

It was considered significant, too, that Hitler flew to the meeting—indicating perhaps that it was called hurriedly.

Fly Plans for FCC Without Consulting Aides, Craven Says

Commissioner Declares Chairman 'Usually Has His Way'

T. A. M. Craven, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, today told a special House committee investigating the agency that "many things" occur at the FCC which he and other commissioners know nothing about.

"The official admitted he was taken 'strictly by surprise' on learning that the FCC had 30 representatives in the North African war zone, whereas he believed the number was four."

"My understanding was that we had four men in North Africa to get information," he declared. "I had no knowledge that the Federal Broadcast Intelligence Service (a unit of the FCC) had gone there to establish a listening post for Axis broadcasts. The number of employees we had over there never came before the commission."

"Who authorized the employment of these officers and the Committee Counsel Eugene L. Gary?"

"I don't know," the witness replied.

At one point, Mr. Craven said he knew of no authority in the 1934 communications act for operation by FCC or listening posts abroad, although he said Congress had appropriated funds for the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, which mans the posts.

He suggested the Army should have jurisdiction over such activities in the case of operation and proposed that the communications act be clarified by Congress to define the duties of the chairman and its members.

Former Chief Engineer. Mr. Craven, who rose from chief engineer of the commission to become FCC chairman, said that, while he did not "want to be placed in the position of criticizing any of my colleagues, the situation at the commission is unsatisfactory and could be improved."

He said FCC Chairman James L. Fly did not actually "dominate" the commission. (See COX, Page A-3.)

Rail Bridge in Burma Bombed by Americans

NEW DELHI, July 21.—Heavy and medium bombers of the United States 10th Air Force yesterday heavily attacked the Myingye railway bridge on the important, Japanese-held Andaman-Ramboon rail line in south central Burma.

United States headquarters communiques said today.

About 30 tons of bombs were dropped on the bridge during the concentrated attack. One formation reported that bombs were seen to straddle the 150-foot span for its entire length, but resulting smoke made accurate assessment of damage impossible.

Other formations reported hits on the north approach and in the center, and additional possible hits were reported.

The Mu River railroad bridge was attacked by B-25s, with both direct and near hits reported.

Nazi Brigade Reported Moving Into Aegean Area

IZMIR, Turkey, July 21.—A new German brigade was reported yesterday moving down the Aegean Sea in the direction of the Dodecanese Islands.

The first units of the brigade, which was reported to include all battle elements, were said to have reached Rhodes in the Dodecanese on July 10 and the remainder was said to be following steadily.

The reinforcement of the Italian Dodecanese Islands in the eastern Mediterranean indicated that the Axis might fear a new Allied assault from large Allied armies reported stationed in the Levant, or perhaps a revolt of the Italian garrisons there.

'Misunderstanding' Of OWI Procedure Blamed in Ickes' Talk

News Agency Declares Method of Clearance Was Misinterpreted

The Office of War Information said today that although the controversial speech of Secretary of the Interior Ickes was delivered in New York yesterday before a clearance was completed, because of a misunderstanding, the OWI raised no "policy objections" to the Secretary's remarks.

At the same time White House Secretary Stephen Early said OWI retains responsibility for passing on such speeches and that setting up the Office of War Mobilization, which seeks among other things to prevent inter-agency disputes, had not relieved OWI of its job.

Mr. Ickes told the Sales Executives Club of New York that any criticism of the conduct of the war effort should be directed against businessmen who are actually running things rather than "bureaucrats" and "New Dealers."

Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board, singled out by Li Gen. William S. Knudson and Lease-Lend administrator Stettinius by Mr. Ickes, refused today to comment on the Secretary's speech.

Submitted Saturday. OWI said the speech was submitted for clearance late Saturday afternoon. Clearance was started Monday morning. The remainder of the OWI statement follows:

"Meanwhile, a few minor changes had been made by the Department of the Interior, and some officials of that department, due to a misunderstanding, believed that these changes represented OWI clearance. Thereupon the speech was released."

"Although this release occurred before OWI had actually completed clearance, it is apparent that the Department of the Interior acted in good faith in the matter and that there was no conscious effort made to violate the OWI speech-clearance procedure."

"For the record, clearance was completed without any policy objections having been raised."

When a reporter asked Mr. Early if the Ickes speech came under the presidential ban on airing of governmental controversies in the press, Mr. Early said:

AFL Deal for Return Of Miners Reported Mapped at Parley

Lewis Offered Free Hand In Coal Areas if He Stops Organizing Other Fields

Return of the United Mine Workers to the American Federation of Labor hinged today, it was reported, on a deal whereby UMW President John L. Lewis would be given a rather free hand in coal areas provided he ceases organizing workers in other fields.

Labor spokesmen, emerging from the UMW-AFL conference on the proposed merger yesterday, disclosed this plan was in the wind.

Mr. Lewis and his UMW would be given jurisdiction as virtually the sole crafts union for coal diggers. That would, in effect, freeze the charter and in time abolish the Progressive Miners, the AFL's mine union which is strong in Illinois, Indiana and parts of Kentucky.

In exchange, Mr. Lewis would drop his so-called "Dining 50," which was set up to organize all kinds of workers, including farmers.

Mr. Lewis took back to his 200-man Policy Committee today a report on the conversations with three AFL vice presidents.

Tobin indicates Progress. Daniel A. Tobin, AFL vice president serving as chairman of the committee considering the application before its presentation to the AFL Executive Council next month in Chicago, indicated some progress had been made at yesterday's conference, but just how much he would not say.

The outlook for reaffiliation, he told reporters, "looks somewhat better."

Mr. Lewis handed reporters a brief prepared statement on which he declined to elaborate. He referred to the UMW as a "going concern" which has proposed rejoining the AFL "in the interest of unifying the policies of organized labor."

The UMW, the Lewis statement said, "accepts the American Federation of Labor as it now exists, and expects the American Federation of Labor to accept the United Mine Workers of America as it now exists."

Asked by a reporter if Mr. Lewis' reference to the AFL accepting the UMW as it now exists meant that the former organization would condone the strike of coal miners in violation of labor's no-strike pledge, Mr. Tobin said the UMW was not a part of the AFL when the Federation made its pledge and consequently was not bound by the commitment.

Concerned With Wage Demands. While the ticklish merger problem commands the attention of UMW Policy Committee, it also was concerned with the general coal situation and the UMW's demand for wage increases, largely in the form of portal-to-portal pay, which the War Labor Board has refused to approve.

The miners may take to the courts, as suggested by the WLB, their fight for pay for the time spent traveling underground. There was a possibility, too, that the operators might go into litigation on the issue.

Edward Burke, head of the Southern Coal Producers' Association, disclosed his group was considering "a friendly suit" to get a judicial determination of the question.

Meanwhile, Carl E. Newton, director of Federal coal mining operations, warned that the Government would tighten its control of mines unless labor relations were ironed out. In a speech to the American Mining Congress at Cincinnati, Mr. Newton said he hoped the operators and the UMW soon would solve their differences so that the workings could be returned to their owners without risking further walkouts.

Besides Mr. Tobin, the UMW's committee handling the AFL's application includes Matthew Wolf and George Harrison, vice president. Mr. Lewis' conferees were Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW; John O'Leary, vice president; William Mitchell, Percy Tetlow and Matt Brennan, district presidents.

Britain Has 5th Quiet Night

LONDON, July 21.—Britain enjoyed another raid-free night tonight—the fifth successive night to pass without the sounding of an alert anywhere in the United Kingdom.

First U. S. Ships Reach Turkey Via Inland Sea

IZMIR, Turkey, July 21.—The first Allied shipping to reach Turkey directly through the Mediterranean from the United States since the North African campaign has arrived in this Southern Turkish port without incident.

The vessels were three medium-sized freighters which sailed from the Atlantic seaboard with military and civilian supplies for Turkey, mostly lease-lend goods.

Dr. Kindler Returns For Concert Tonight

Dr. Hans Kindler, permanent conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, will return to the podium at the Water Gate tonight. Dorothy Maynor will be soloist. During the broadcast portion of the concert, to be heard over The Evening Star station, WMAL, from 8 to 9:30 o'clock, the orchestra will play Mendelssohn's "Symphony No. 4 in A Major."

Jap New Guinea Base Hit With 500-Pound Bombs

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, July 21.—Mitchell bombers blasted the air strip, ammunition dumps and installations of the Madang sector yesterday with one of the largest loads of 500-pound bombs ever showered on that Japanese base.

A heavy fighter escort screened the medium bombers on the mission which up New Guinea coast line from Samarua. The Japanese put up slight antiaircraft defense, but attempted no aerial interception whatever.

All the American planes returned. Meanwhile, another B-25, on reconnaissance, dropped a 500-pound bomb from an altitude of 50 feet within 15 feet of a foot bridge across the San Francisco River south of Salamaua. Much of the narrow suspension structure was blasted to bits.

This bridge was the principal means of line ammunition and supplies on foot into the Komiatum sector, where Australian troops are advancing against enemy patrols. Three main Japanese trails from Salamaua into Komiatum and Nassau Bay converge at this little span.

Japs Lose Three Ships in Effort To Aid Munda

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 21.—American bombers were credited today with sinking a cruiser and two destroyers, a Japanese convoy attempting vainly to run the Allied sea and air blockade around the big Munda air base in the Solomons.

A force of three light cruisers, six destroyers and two transports, undoubtedly seeking to aid the hard-pressed garrison at Munda, was spotted by Catalinas which blasted shortly after midnight yesterday in Vella Gulf just west of Kolombangara Island.

The Catalinas followed the convoy until strong formations of Liberators, Mitchells and Avenger bombers arrived with bombs which blasted at least three warships to the bottom and sent the remainder fleeing or limping northward.

Destroyer Probably Sunk. A third destroyer was listed as probably sunk, and a transport and yet another destroyer were damaged. Four bombers were lost—two Mitchells and two Avengers.

Five Saved From Sea By Rescue Plane as Bomber Sinks

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star.
STRATEGIC AIR FORCE STATION, South Africa (By Air Mail).—On his way back from Sicily in command of a fighter escort group the other day, Lt. Col. Gordon H. Austin of Washington saw five men on a rubber life raft, tossing on the Mediterranean.
 They were the crew of a crashed bomber. Col. Austin, with several of his flyers, got in touch with the air sea rescue service, then swooping low, kept encouraging the men to hold out until help came.
 Once ashore, the rescued were "interrogated," a routine procedure with men returning from a mission. The five men were Lt. Paul Mathews, Weymouth, Mass.; Lt. J. A. Davis, Syracuse, N. Y.; Sergt. John Maturas, Chicago; Sergt. T. D. Descalzo, Duluth, and Sergt. K. E. Chard, Winchendon, Mass.
 Lt. Mathews told the following story:

"Our right engine is gone and we'll have to feather it," said the pilot, and he spoke without alarm. But when I fastened my attention from the spectacle outside and saw the oil pressure drop to zero, my heart flopped with it. It was a fairly certain indication that a piece of flak had found our oil system, which assumption was promptly corroborated by a report from the rear that the engine was throwing out black smoke.

In Range of Flak.
 "We were just leaving the Sicilian coast behind us, but the enemy batteries still had our range and the black puffs were breaking in close with their 'womp, womp,' and frequent spatters of hail against the fuselage. We feathered up on the right, and I took control while the pilot proceeded to contact the flyers on the emergency channel.
 "We have an engine shot out. Come down and cover us up please."
 "Our speed was fast falling off and we saw the last flight of our formation overtake us and pull steadily ahead of sight. We were expecting each minute to see the enemy vultures come swooping down for this head meat. What we saw instead were angels from Heaven, a flight of our P-40 escorts had answered our call and came in to fly formation with us.

"They waved their assurance across the narrow space and I came back, thinking, 'Those are the prettiest planes and bravest pilots in the whole damned air force.'
 "Presently a call came from the turret: 'We're standing by to throw over the guns, sir,' and the order was given to do so. Piece by piece, every article of loose equipment in the ship was jettisoned—guns, ammunition and radio sets. Still we continued to lose air speed and altitude at an increasing rate, which clearly foreboded the unpleasant prospect of a crash landing at sea.

Stand by for Crash.
 "Our good engine ran hot and was soon in the red although the pilot was sparing it in the hope that it would draw enough at minimum altitude to get us over dry land. When at last we availed ourselves of everything our falling engine was staggering heavily at 150 m.p.h. and using up the last 1,000 feet of altitude.

"The crew was already forward and now they received their formal instructions and took their positions in perfect calmness and order. Sergt. DeSicilo, engineer gunner, took his place behind the co-pilot's seat with the emergency escape hatch in one hand and the fire extinguisher in the other. Sergt. Chard, radio operator, was in a similar position behind the pilot.
 "Lt. Davis, navigator bombardier, was backed against the forward bulkhead of the navigator's compartment in position to release the life raft. The turret gunner, Sgt. Maturas, braced himself standing beneath the open navigator's hatch. Everything was in readiness and as I slid my seat back the pilot turned and said to me with a grim sort of smile:

"Let's make this a good one."
 "Just then I saw I noticed that he was still in his position. I grabbed the controls and held her off while he extricated himself from the harness. He had barely resumed the controls when he gave me the signal to cut the switches. What happened between then and the final impact happened in less time than it takes to tell.

"When the switches were cut the resistance of one prop exerted such a powerful torque that the strength of both of us was not enough to overcome it, with the result that we struck slightly crabwise with the left very low. Twice the tail section smacked the waves with a resounding 'rump, rump'—an endless moment in which I knew that we had done all we could do and the rest could get us to witness and not to direct. Then the final shattering impact. It was as if the earth suddenly had stopped turning. All was bright, then gleaming, then dark."

Held by Safety Belt.
 "I brushed my helmet back over my eyes and sprang up. My safety belt arrested me. I tumbled frantically with the catch which was on the left hand, finally released it, then the hatch, and floated out."
 Here the narrative was taken up by Lt. Davis who said:

"The impact and the rush of water through the broken bottom threw me tail over teacups, and for a moment I was lost as to what was up, down or sideways. Then a gleam of light through the dark water showed me the open hatch and I made for it, clawing everything I could get a purchase on. Maturas had me by the ankles, and I expedite my exit, but my knees were buckled and his efforts only served to bind me in the narrow aperture. In a moment, however, I was able to boost myself out, and he followed me. Presently Chard bobbed up with his dripping helmet still on his head and goggles over his eyes."
 Then, resumed Lt. Davis, "It is not clear in my memory where I was while the three men were getting out of the navigator's hatch, but as I tried to account for them one by one I suddenly noticed that the life raft had not opened. I grabbed for that precious red handle and yanked the door off. Mathews, who was beside me yelling that the raft was stuck, helped me pull it free. Then he heaved it clear of the ship.
 "Not until this had been accomplished was my mind free to grasp that the pilot must have been struck unconscious in the crash and unable to take care of himself. I made my way to the pilot's compartment which was already awash and groped inside in a futile attempt to find him. The ship was settling rapidly and I had to abandon my efforts and struck for the dinghy. It is worth note at this point that the ship never did nose over, as has often been told, but glided gently out of sight beneath the water with hardly a ripple or bubbles."

Trouble With Dinghy.
 Then Sergt. DeSicilo said, "Maturas had the dinghy inflated, but slightly upside down. I paddled out to help him right it but it seemed to be slipping away from me as fast as I swam toward it, and for a passing moment I experienced a strange feeling of uncertainty of my fate. I just relaxed, in mind at least, and said 'What's the difference.' The next thing I knew we were all about the dinghy and soon had it righted though the task was not easy due to the suction of the poen side against the water. When it flopped over I was directly beneath it and I came up between Lt. Davis' legs, startling him somewhat. I think."

Here Sergt. Maturas took up the story: "Safely aboard we began to take account of our injuries. Lt. Davis' hands were lacerated and bleeding profusely. He swathed them in a rag which somebody produced. But finding the bandages cumbersome and quickly saturated he cast them off into the sea. I protested this action vigorously and the words were hardly out of my mouth when the rag disappeared in a swirl of bubbles."

Aerial War Continues.
 The great aerial war continued to strike at weakening Axis communication lines, raining bombs particularly on airfields and hitting road transport.
 Decimannanu airfield in Sardinia was attacked in daylight by fighter-bombers which downed five Axis planes, and on Monday night medium bombers struck at the communications center of Randazzo, northwest of Catania. Six Allied aircraft were listed as lost.
 Italian soldiers, choosing between surrender and continuation of resistance which could serve only to lay more of the island in ruins, were reported officially to be mutinying against their German officers and giving up in droves.

Rearguard Operations.
 Only the Germans, thrown into the Eastern coastal area in an attempt to halt the Allied tide, were fighting fiercely, but these battles were regarded as little more than rearguard delaying operations.
 No Axis propagandist now dared a public prediction that Sicily would be spared from conquest and the alibi of defeat—by superior forces on land and sea and in the air—already had been prepared by Fascist leaders in Rome, who gloomily spoke of the prospects of an Allied invasion of the Italian peninsula itself.

Sheriff Arrested on Charge Of Helping Two Escape

The arrest of Sheriff Rodney T. Chambliss of Madison County, Tex., on charges of aiding the escape of Federal prisoners held in the Montgomery County (Tex.) jail was announced here today by the Justice Department.
 J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the 29-year-old sheriff "aided and counseled the escape" of Gen. Paul Norris, held under a Federal indictment for violation of the Selective Service Act, and Len C. Gillnam, serving time for violating a Federal impersonation statute.
 He identified Norris as "a member of the notorious Norris gang whose vicious underworld activities are known throughout the Southwest." Both Norris and Gillnam escaped from the jail on May 30, and have since been recaptured.
 Sheriff Chambliss is held in Houston, the FBI said.

Richmond Youth, 21, Rated Outstanding Mediterranean Flyer

By THOMAS R. HENRY, Star Staff Correspondent.
STRATEGIC AIR FORCE BASE, North Africa, July 19 (Delayed).—He looks and talks like the most irresponsible, carefree fellow on earth—this Richmond high school boy. Actually, he is the outstanding United States flyer in the Mediterranean area.

His name is "Dixie" Sloan and he is fast becoming a legend from Morocco to Tripoli as his victims mount week by week. It is hard to imagine that this 21-year-old boy, sitting on a blanket roll in the British moonlight of a remote Tunisian valley on the eve of the great Rome raid, is credited with shooting down 11 enemy planes. Particularly since the boyish "killer" hardly looks his age as he sits there recalling nostalgically Washington night clubs and his bride in Richmond.

Yet such is First Lt. William J. Sloan, who left Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond in 1939 to enlist in the Air Corps. He learned to be a radio operator and gunner and says, "I woke up on a train from California one morning to find myself a second lieutenant, instead of an enlisted man, and on my way to North Africa. It felt kind of funny."

Doesn't Seem Like Killer.
 "Killer" they say, but Dixie doesn't look like enough killer to sweat a fly when you first talk to him. He would fit better in a picture of a University of Virginia fraternity living room cribbing a French lesson than in the strange moonlit valley where he leads a horribly monotonous life between missions, broken occasionally by high school pranks.
 Dixie, after a mission, is like a high school boy after a football game. Last night was the second time I saw Dixie Sloan. I found him after he had been lost for half an hour in rough riding jeep with Don Sheehan of the Bomber Wing. The first time was two months ago, when he had only four victories and his name was practically unknown. He hadn't changed, but I talked with him longer and saw emerge from the fraternity-boy veneer the real Dixie Sloan, hard, cold, methodical. He is a fraternity boy on the ground; in the skies he is a self-

Disciplined soldier in the best sense of the term.
 "My job isn't to get the enemy unless he gets in the way," he said. "I'm a member of a fighter group and my duty is to escort bombers over the base and to keep enemy planes away. That's absolutely all. If I can scare Jerry off without firing a shot so much the better. It's a serious offense to leave formation to get a shot at one. It should be."
 "It's no business of mine to destroy enemy planes. We don't want dog fights cluttering up the sky. If the enemy comes for our bombers, our job is to drive him away, so we shoot at him. If he stays up front long enough we can get him."
 It is also part of the job, he added, to prevent the enemy from getting one of our fighter formations. Fighters usually work in pairs, and curiously enough, most of Dixie's victories were won driving attackers off the tails of partners.
 Dixie says it would be best to avoid any shot exchange if the mission can be accomplished any other way.
 "It's nonsense to say that I'm a better fighter or shooter than anybody else," Dixie said. "I've just gotten into more situations where it's necessary to shoot to accomplish my object."
 Doesn't Like Killing.
 Dixie Sloan takes no pleasure in killing. Victory, he says, gives him no pleasure at all, but a feeling that some one mismanaged or the enemy wouldn't have gotten close enough to kill.
 He loves to fly. "I never want to do anything else," he says. "Every

Japs Claim Raising Of Singapore Drydock

By the Associated Press.
 A Domei dispatch from Shanghai, broadcast by the Tokio radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said today that Japanese naval salvaging experts have succeeded in raising the King George VI floating dock, said to be the world's largest, in Singapore Harbor.
 Terming it "one of the greatest salvaging feats in history," Domei said the giant dock was raised in three months from the time work was undertaken last May.
 The dock, which could accommodate ships up to 50,000 tons, was built in England in 1928 and towed in sections to Singapore during the following year. Its installation in Singapore Harbor, Domei said, was intended to make that port Britain's "Gibraltar of the East."
 According to Domei, British naval authorities in Singapore, anticipating the fall of the port, ordered the drydock scuttled in December, 1941.

Bethesda's Untagged Dogs Will Be Impounded

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday announced that the Animal Rescue League and county health officer will impound untagged stray dogs in the Bethesda area.
 Captured dogs will be kept for five days at the Meadowbrook Riding Club on the East-West Highway to give owners an opportunity to reclaim them on payment of $2. Dogs not called for will be killed. Police will notify owners where possible that their dogs have been picked up.
 The board was informed by Dr. R. H. Riley, director, that the State Board of Health had approved the reappointment of Dr. V. L. Ellicott as county health officer. The commissioners were also advised by Gov. O'Connor he had granted their request that Luke J. Bennett, Jr., of Takoma Park, be appointed a justice of the peace.

Tokio Radio Reports Jap Raid on Ceylon

The Tokio radio reported today that Japanese naval planes had raided the island of Ceylon off the southeast coast of India Sunday night, bombing the ports of Colombo and Trincomalee.

Sicily Has Fascination For Civilians Gifted With Musical Minds

NEW YORK, July 21.—There's many a military man poring over the map of Sicily today—of that we can be certain. But it also has its fascinations for the civilian, especially if he is of musical turn of mind.

To begin with, the whole of the island memorialized by Verdi in one of his early operas, the one called "Sicilian Vespers." This deals, of course, with a famous massacre on that island, one of the bloodier chapters of a history perpetually sanguinary.

Then, too, there is "Cavalleria Rusticana," whose "Rustic Chivalry," according to the librettist's own description, is concerned with: "Place: A Sicilian village. Time: The present. It embodies a rustic reduction, complete with the picturesque, ear-biting practiced by the natives, to signify that honor has been outraged and a duel is in order. In American slang, it might be transferred into some such expression as: 'You got an earful when I got a mouthful.'"

Intermezzo Also Is Reminder. Patti, whether she be any of Gen. Patton's men, are thinking about the "Intermezzo" from "Cavalleria" when the noonday sun is high, but it could well occur to them—for more than one observer has testified that its languid, sweeping measures are a better equivalent than anything else in sound for the sultry scorch of the Sicilian sun.

However, all is not as impersonal and remote as that. On the northern shore of the island nestles a village which the maps describe as Patù. Whether it is the home soil of the family which fostered the glamorous Adelina is not known; but it is not at all improbable.

Tracing a line directly to the south, one comes eventually to the much-mentioned town of Ragusa. Friends of the late Ernest Schelling, American composer and pianist, will find that strikes a responsive chord, for he wrote a piece called "Nocturne a Ragusa," which Ignace Paderewski occasionally played in concert.

All Not Long Hair. But all is not strictly long hair, so far as Sicily and the music are concerned. Beginning with the east coast, where the Anglo-American forces made their initial landings, we find the port of Avola, which reminds us of an excellent guitar player named Al Avola, who was with Artie Shaw's band for a long stretch. A good deal to the west there is a settlement called Bivona. Gus Bivona is a first-class saxophone player who has seen service with the Benny Goodman orchestra as well as others of that rank.

Finally, far to the west, at the extreme point fronting on the Sicilian Straits, is Marsala, which every proper jazz enthusiast will associate at once with Joe Marsala, an excellent clarinetist and leader of one of the few small bands that still play in the authentic Chicago style.

Thus, in whatever fashion the Axis prefers to sing its "Swan Song" in Sicily, there is something forsworn for it. In the overall picture, "Sicilian Vespers" would certainly be appropriate. If something sweet is preferred, Patti's "Home, Sweet Home" would do very nicely. On the hot side, there are few things as blazing in music as certain passages from "Cavalleria." And if the young Yank, blasting into Messina, wants something that is both sweet and hot, Messrs. Marsala, Avola and Bivona will be very happy to oblige.

Cox (Continued From First Page.) commission, but he "generally has his way." Mr. Craven added that Mr. Fly "has a vivid personality and a strong will and you just can't blame him for that."

Chairman Cox told the committee he was getting information daily that "broadcasters big and little live in mortal fear of the commission" and that its licensing powers are being used "to destroy free radio and free speech."

Mr. Craven said in response to a question by Mr. Garey that the "chairman of the commission has no more 'power' than the six other members."

"Does the chairman dominate the commission?" asked Mr. Garey. "He takes a leading part," was the reply. "He generally has his way."

new combat—the question arises whether his resignation accompanied the challenge as the President had instructed.

"Here is the opportunity for the President to decide once and for all whether we are fighting a war abroad or whether the political battle of Washington comes first," he added.

In letters to all agency heads, the President pointed out that "if, when you have a disagreement with another agency as to fact or policy, instead of submitting it to me or submitting it to the director of war mobilization for settlement under the terms of the order creating that office, you feel that you should submit it to the press, I ask that when you release the statement for publication, you send me a letter of resignation."

Fish Calls Talk "Typical." Representative Fish, Republican, of New York described Mr. Ickes' criticism as "typical of such 100 percent New Dealers as Mr. Ickes who together with other left wingers are determined to destroy the influence of any conservatives holding office under the radical Socialist Roosevelt administration."

Mr. Fish's statement commended business men holding Government positions and what he called "the few conservative elements left in the Democratic party, such as Senators Byrd and Tydings." He said they are doing "everything in their power to stop the reckless expenditure of money by radical New Deal bureaucrats, often in defiance of the Congress."

Italian Airfields Hit By Allied Bombers From North Africa

By the Associated Press. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 21.—Allied air attacks were on a somewhat reduced scale yesterday after the previous day's giant blasting of Rome by more than 500 planes, but there still was enough reserve power to leave vital enemy airfields in Southern Italy and Sardinia strewn with flaming wreckage.

Six enemy planes were destroyed and five others were missing from widespread attacks against the air bases of Vibo Valentia and Monte Corvino, at the toe of the Italian boot; Aquino and Capodichino, near Naples, and Decimomannu, in Sardinia.

Two waves of American Marsuder bombers struck Vibo Valentia, stunning hangars and blanketing a number of parked aircraft with hot steel. RAF bombers from the Middle East had attacked the same airfield the previous night.

American Mitchells repeatedly raided Monte Corvino, setting at least 12 enemy planes ablaze on the ground. Crewmen said fragmentation bombs splintered among 20 to 40 Axis aircraft in the dispersal area and that numerous fires broke out in hangars. Lightning fighters escorted both American missions.

Canadian and RAF Wellington bombers from North Africa heavily attacked Aquino Monday night, starting at least 30 fires, of which 6 or 8 were of huge proportions. After getting their bombs away the Wellingtons returned to shoot up the field and damaged a number of grounded planes. Returning crewmen said enemy night fighters and ground batteries offered little opposition.

American Warhawk fighter-bombers attacking Sardinian targets destroyed five enemy planes. Capt. Ralph G. Taylor, Jr., Durham, N.C., shot down a Messerschmitt 109 and a Macchi 202 for his fourth and

Attack, Counterattack, Attack Again—That Is Sicilian Campaign

By DON WHITHEAD, Associated Press War Correspondent.
WITH THE UNITED STATES 7th ARMY IN SICILY, July 17 (delayed).—The bell steeple on the gray crutch flung a long shaft of shadow over Mazzarino as we bounced over the cobbled streets in a jeep and turned down the steep road to the plains stretching below.

For a moment the grandeur of the scene made you forget the wretched poverty of the people on this island and the dull look in their eyes. We forgot for a moment about the war, the sight of blood spilled on streets, the bullet-riddled bodies lying in side roads and the stench of death that clings to a land cut by war.
This plan below was a lovely place, stretching to the hills beyond. The fields were tinted with that peculiar yellow brightness which sunsets sometimes paint on the landscape. White roads wound lazily through the valley and disappeared into the dark, serious-looking mountains. But the illusion of a peaceful countryside lasted only a moment. There was the thunder of cannon and clouds of smoke billowed up where the shells landed.

Fight Seems Indecisive.
This was a battle field out there today. A tank battle had been fought and the enemy repulsed. Now it was our turn to attack.
Attack, counterattack, attack. It seemed this had been going on for weeks instead of only seven days. But then, time has become meaningless, except to the generals in headquarters, whose thoughts are on the broad mirror of war and not fixed on the miniature battleground below Mazzarino.
They can juggle time and mark the calendars as good generals must do. But for the men in the front line the hours run into days, the days into weeks. The thoughts are on the next bridge, the next valley, the next town.

Outlined against the sky on the ridge across the plain was the next town, Barrafranca, and still farther across the ridges was Caltanissetta, one of the key island cities of Sicily. That's where our drive from the beaches was leading us.
(The capture of Caltanissetta was announced officially by Allied headquarters on Monday.)

Major Won't Rest.
In the valley the jeep turned off the main road and came to a stop under a grove of trees gray with the dust which billowed up from each passing vehicle.
"Where's the major?" some one asked.
"He's getting things lined up. He'll be here soon."

A jeep rolled up and a young mustached major with lines of worry and weariness in his face walked over. He introduced himself—Maj. Charles T. Horner of Doylestown, Pa. But he was off again in a few minutes.
"Chuck is wearing himself out," an officer said. "He won't rest."
We followed Maj. Horner across the fields to the foot of the slope where he gathered his officers around him to review the night's operations. He pointed out the objective—the high ground around

NEW DEVICE FOR SAVING LIVES—A new fire truck for extinguishing gasoline fires and aiding in the rescue of victims of airplane crashes, was demonstrated yesterday at Billing Field. The "Crash-truck" carries a 1,000-gallon tank and can produce 300 gallons of water a minute at a pressure of 800 pounds. It brought this fire under control in 1 minute and put it out in 2 minutes and 40 seconds. —Harris & Ewing Photo.

Barrafranca—and studied the contours of the terrain on a map.
"We've got to watch our left flank," he said. "It's wide open. Everything will be all right if we can get on the high ground of Cozza di Manganaro."

Artillery to Follow.
"Yeah," said Capt. Kimball Richmond of Windsor, Vt. "But if there's any one on that hill we're going to get the hell shot out of us."

Maj. Horner shrugged. "The heavy weapons and mortars will follow behind us. They can't fire at night."
"Those were big babies they were throwing over today," said Capt. Emil Edmond of Pawling, N. Y. "They say it's a mortar that fires five 210-mm. shells simultaneously. They've got a terrific whack."

"We'll start moving about 7:30," Maj. Horner said.
Across the wheat fields came the troops, getting into line for the march. They looked tired and walked like men in a dream. The heavy woolen uniforms were dark with perspiration. They had the heavy, springless tread of old men.

Troops Were Tired.
"The boys are tired," Maj. Horner said. "They marched all last night after a fight and they couldn't sleep much because of the heat today."
"Then at 2:30 we received our orders to attack again. They had no supper and very little water."

"What about rations?" asked Capt. Albert H. Smith of Baltimore.
"We'll have to go without rations until they catch up with us," Maj. Horner said. Then he turned to Capt. Robert A. Peterman of Hicksville, N. Y., medical officer, and said:
"How does it look, doc?"
Capt. Peterman crossed his fingers and said:
"I can't tell, but I don't like the evacuation setup in this tough country."

He watched the troops slopping up the slopes to their assembly point.
Colonel Arrives.
The regiment's colonel drove up for a conference.
"The tanks already have entered Barrafranca," an officer reported. "They say the enemy has withdrawn from the town."

"All right," said the colonel. "We'll go through the town to the high ground beyond, but let's have a reconnaissance."
This sudden development threw the plans out of kilter and the time of the march was delayed until midnight.

Second Lt. John Walker of Mahanoy City, Pa., drew the assignment to reconnoiter the terrain immediately behind Barrafranca and I accompanied him. We drove slowly down the road, wary of mines. Ahead of us was a hulk of a burning tank which had gone up on an enemy mine. We detoured around a haystack and came back into the road.
We drove into Barrafranca, which our troops had entered only a few minutes before. People stood on the narrow sidewalks and doorways applauding each soldier and vehicle that passed. They seemed genuine in their welcome to the troops. Several ran alongside the vehicles begging for cigarettes.

We drove slowly down the narrow main street to the edge of the town where a few troops lounged on the roadside.
Asked for Cigarettes.
"What's ahead?" Lt. Walker asked.
"This is as far as any one has been," said Lt. Allen Ferry of Alton Bay, N. H. Lt. Ferry led the first infantry troops into Barrafranca behind the tanks. "The people gave us quite a welcome."
"They were applauding us as though we were conquerors," laughed Staff Sgt. Frank A. Rizzo of New York City. "You should have seen us. Any they just about went crazy when we gave them cigarettes and some of our rations."
"This tops off a full day," said Sgt. Alton B. Balred of Mount Pleasant, Tex. "We had a fight yesterday. We marched all last night, then this morning. Our company was caught in a tank battle and we got a shelling along with it. We were right between the tanks and that's no place for the infantry to be."

We got in the jeep and began looking for a road leading to the northwest of the town. Lt. Walker drove up a narrow lane to the crest of a ridge where we left the jeep and went ahead on foot. We had the light of a full moon.

Hear Women's Voice.
We walked ahead steadily. We heard voices and dropped to our knees. Lt. Walker had the Tommy gun poised. Then a woman spoke.
"It must be Sicilians civilians," Lt. Walker said. We continued down the slope into a little valley and passed a new high wall into a dry stream bed where the trail ran out. Vehicles could not travel this way.
We drove back through the dark town to our encampment. The troops lay on the hillside sleeping. Some were wrapped in blankets. Others slept with no covering, looking as though they had fallen asleep as soon as they sank to the ground.

I picked a soft looking spot, moved a few rocks and fell asleep. It was midnight when I awoke, cold and shivering. The company on the next hill was having hot supper, but our food and water had not arrived for some reason. The men had to be content with boxed "K" rations.
Maj. Horner gave me a blanket.
"The plans now are that we march at 3 a.m.," he said. "We get through Barrafranca and push off from there."

Enter Barrafranca.
Shortly before 3 o'clock the troops began to swarm out of the wheat fields and off the ridges where they had been sleeping. Slopes that appeared bare were alive with dark forms forming into columns for the march into Barrafranca.

They poured into the town in a long brown column and their hot coffee was waiting for them. They gulped great cups full and came back for more.
At 6 a.m. the column began moving again, this time into no-man's-land where no one knew what to expect, although reconnaissance had encountered no resistance.
The few hours of rest had helped the men. They walked with vigor in the cool morning air. They no longer moved like automatons.
"We don't have to walk too damned fast," one soldier said to another. "The sooner we get there the quicker the fight will be over," was the retort.

Crowds Cheered Troops.
Before long we reached a crossroads, one fork leading to Caltanissetta and the other to Pietraperzia. I jumped onto a jeep with Lt. Col. Richard O'Connor of Long Beach, N. Y., and we drove behind an armored car into the town, which was just beginning to stir.
Within a few minutes crowds were cheering in the streets, cheering frantically. A hastily organized band began playing. Men, women and children clung to our vehicles. They tried to shake our hands. Hundreds milled about in the main square in one great jambooree.

Suddenly a soldier jumped from the armored car and ran down a side street. He came back with two Italian soldiers. One of them grabbed the soldier and kissed him on both cheeks. Obviously both of them were pleased to be captured. And the people cheered again. I still don't know whether they were cheering the soldiers for capturing the Italians or the Italians for being captured. It didn't matter.

We managed to get our jeep through the mob and started back to the troops when Col. O'Connor pulled his pistol. Ahead of us was a German truck and three soldiers were scrambling out of it and trying to get into another.

Col. O'Connor hauled them out and put them in his jeep while I towed the captured vehicle back to battalion headquarters.
They were more pleased with the trucks than the prisoners, for transportation is a valuable commodity in Italy.
Across the fields we could see the troops marching toward a ridge looking across another valley on Caltanissetta.
Another ridge . . . another valley . . . another town.
That's invasion.

Metal Shortage Brings Order to Release 4,500 Miners From Army

By the Associated Press.
Miners of vital metals are needed so badly that 4,500 soldiers who know something about the trade will be mustered out for jobs in the larger-producing mines.
The disclosure was made yesterday by Acting Secretary of War Patterson, who said the military program was being jeopardized by shortages in copper, zinc and molybdenum mines.
Mr. Patterson said efforts to recruit additional miners from civilian sources had failed to obtain the required numbers.
"The Army is the only source from which the men with the necessary skills can be obtained as quickly as is necessary," Mr. Patterson added.
The step was taken at the direction of the Office of War Mobilization, Mr. Patterson said, and the men will be released only for work in mines of highest productivity located in areas of critical labor shortage.
"Mines in which the yield of metal per man is relatively small will not be permitted to hire the soldiers who are to be released," Mr. Patterson added.
The commanding general of the 9th Service Command, with headquarters at Fort Douglas, Utah, has been placed in charge of the program for releasing soldiers, and the selection of the men will start among troops stationed within the 9th Service Command, and will be limited to units stationed west of the Mississippi River.
Where possible, those in the service less than three months will be selected. Any men slated to go overseas soon will not be eligible for release.
The shift from uniform to miner cap will be voluntary; none of the men have to do it unless they want to, Mr. Patterson emphasized. Once they are back in the mines they will be civilians, not under Army jurisdiction, but subject to recall if conditions change.

Mrs. Hardwig is holding the baby girl, while Mr. Hardwig holds the notarized birth certificate made out for "Richard Allen Hardwig." The complaint added the Hardwigs are Catholics and they fear the child may be held by others not of "Catholic persuasion."

Destroyer to Be Named For Farmer's Hero Son

By the Associated Press.
PYFPE, Ala., July 21.—A Navy destroyer escort vessel will be named for a North Alabama tenant farmer's son who was killed in action in the Solomons area.
The vessel will be designated the Frank O. Slater in honor of the youth who died at his post on the cruiser San Francisco November 12, 1942. Slater was awarded the Navy Cross posthumously.
His 45-year-old mother, Mrs. James L. Slater, who has never seen a ship or the sea, has accepted an invitation from Secretary of the Navy Knox to christen the destroyer escort at a port yet unannounced. She said she wanted to christen the ship with water drawn from a well which Frank helped dig almost four years ago.
Mrs. Slater and her 51-year-old husband, James Lafayette Slater, have nine children. Thomas, 20, is serving with the Army overseas.

Samuel Will Oppose Bullitt in Philadelphia

By the Associated Press.

The Republican City Committee endorsed Mr. Samuel after he announced his candidacy for a full term. He has been acting mayor since August 23, 1941, the day after the death of Mayor Robert E. Lammert.
Mr. Bullitt, now an assistant to Secretary of the Navy Knox, accepted the Democratic city organization's invitation to be a candidate last week.
Since both have organization endorsement, neither is expected to have opposition in the September primary election.

Lepke Is Resentenced To Die Week of Sept. 13

By the Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., July 21.—Heavily guarded, Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and two Murder, Inc., associates were resentenced yesterday by New York's highest court to die during the week of September 13—but all pinned hope of escaping that fate on several eventualities.
Execution of Buchalter depends on presidential action. He is in Federal prison serving a 14-year term on a narcotic conviction.
Emmanuel Weiss and Louis Capone, charged with murdering Samuel Rosen, Brooklyn storekeeper, in 1936 on Buchalter's order, are expected to appeal to Gov. Dewey for a commutation of their sentence to life imprisonment on grounds they had an unfair trial. They have been at Sing Sing prison.
Either before or after hearing the clemency appeals of Weiss and Capone, Gov. Dewey will appeal to President Roosevelt to release Buchalter to New York State for a decision as to whether he should die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair or be sentenced to life imprisonment after completion of his Federal term.

District 50 Brought Into UMW Inquiry

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, July 21.—The United Mine Workers' District 50 was brought into the Federal grand jury's broad inquiry into recent work stoppages in the bituminous coal fields when Tony Rose, an organizer from Cleveland, was called as a witness yesterday.
Henry Scheinhaut, Special Assistant Attorney General, said Mr. Rose was the first of at least three District 50 organizers who will testify. He said Elgie Crawford and Robert Gould, both of Philadelphia, will appear today.
The grand jury is seeking to learn whether there were any violations of the Connally-Smith antitrust law in the costly work stoppages. The law provides a penalty as heavy as a year's imprisonment and a $5,000 fine for any one convicted of promoting work stoppages on property operated by the Government, as the mines are.
Mr. Rose followed three UMW District 4 organizers to the stand—John Kramlich, John Komlo and Sam Seehofer. Several rank-and-file miners also testified yesterday.
Mr. Scheinhaut would not comment on the significance of the subpoena of District 50 organizers.

Lease-Lend Aid Tops Billion Mark in June

By the Associated Press.
Monthly lease-lend aid by the United States to other United Nations passed the $1,000,000,000 mark for the first time in June, Lease-Lend Administrator Edward R. Stettinius announced last night.
The June total of $1,030,000,000 represented a big jump over the May figure of $790,000,000 and was nearly double the $548,000,000 total of June, 1942.
Mr. Stettinius gave no details as to where the record shipments went or their exact nature, except to say that $570,000,000 represented munitions, $237,000,000 industrial items, $147,000,000 foodstuffs and $76,000,000 services.
England and Russia usually get the major percentage of such shipments, but equipment of the French forces in North Africa has been a growing factor in recent months.

Inventor's First Wife Sues Widow for Alimony

By the Associated Press.
CLEARWATER, Fla., July 21.—Lady Patricia Ellison Ross, first wife of the late Sir Charles Ross, widely known British inventor, has filed suit in circuit court here against his widow for payment of alimony purportedly in default since his death.
Sir Charles, who died at Passaic, N. J., in June, 1942, and Lady Patricia were married in 1901. The baronet instituted divorce proceedings in Mexico in 1931 and later married Dorothy Mercado, against whom the suit was filed.
The petition set out that an agreement was reached whereby Lady Patricia was to receive $300 per month, a cash settlement of $10,000 and a trust fund of $117,000. Sir Charles was inventor of the Ross rifle, formerly used by the Canadian Army.

Sicily Invasion Seen By Gen. McNaughton As Warning to Japan

By JOHN GUNTHER, Representing the Combined American Press Staff at the Associated Press Headquarters of 15th Army Group (Delayed).—Lt. Gen. Andrew McNaughton, commander in chief of the Canadian Army, says the chief lesson of the Sicilian landings is the evidence they provide that the Allies are now capable of striking with tremendous efficiency and force on any front.

It was announced officially at Allied headquarters in North Africa last night that Gen. McNaughton had been to the Sicilian front and had returned to North Africa. Mr. Gunther's dispatch carried no date.

This correspondent, who is the only American newspaperman attached to this advance headquarters, got a sharp impression that the veteran Canadian general spoke with Japan in mind. In fact Gen. McNaughton said our invasion of Europe, began so auspiciously by the Sicilian operation, is certain to damage the morale of the Japanese as well as the Germans and Italians, since the Japs now know we can marshal overwhelming pressure to bear on any place, at any time, from the four corners of the earth.

Proud of Canadians. Gen. McNaughton naturally is proud of the part played by Sicily by his Canadians, whom he has carefully nurtured and expertly trained for the past several years in England. Just as there is an undefined and unfortified boundary for 3,000 miles between the United States and Canada, so in Sicily today there is a common front between the American and Canadian fighting side by side.

The first impression gained from the interview with Gen. McNaughton was that everybody seems to be delighted at the way things are moving and satisfied that every thing is coming off as planned, if anything, ahead of schedule. Speaking particularly of the Canadians, Gen. McNaughton said: "It was a pretty remarkable feat. We assembled our force on plans worked out in England and Africa. A few officers had any personal contact and there was very little conversation."

"Marvelous Achievement." "When plans were transmitted to us in England we went to work. Landings had to be scheduled, various craft waterproofed and everything loaded so the rigging would be on top and come out first. The ships were marshaled in perfect order; they made the correct rendezvous to the minute; they carried out intricate maneuvers as planned, and they landed on the right beaches at the right time.

"What a wonderful augury for the future," the general exclaimed. "What's more, he proceeded, correlation had been remarkable. Canadians never served in this theater before, but there has been no difficulty whatever in fitting them into the general picture. The whole system has proved most flexible when our troops were complete strangers to Africa, yet there was no friction, no slippage, no difficulty in the staff organization or system of command."

Had Three Impressions. The general, asked to summarize his impressions, said he had three things in mind. "First, the operation gave me a sense of the tremendous power we have—that plus disciplined nerves. That's the chief thing to say. "Second, I want to pay tribute to the quality and equipment. Some of us remember the early phases of the war when equipment was most notable for its absence or the fact it was out of date. Now that former situation is well behind us. Keen new minds in the United States and Canada have been at work on new methods of fighting the war. Much credit is due to the National Research Council at Washington."

Equipment Problem Being Solved. "The unending struggle for equipment is being won not only in quantity and quality, but as regards the factor of time. It's one thing to have a perfect weapon, but we must have mass production, too. For this we must look on and rely on the great American continent. "Third, the general wanted to emphasize the factor of youth. Modern war, fought with mechanized weapons on a wide variety of fronts, demands field officers picked for physical fitness and endurance. This means that it is a young man's war. The general concluded that this great combined operation in Sicily represents the co-ordination of four forces, not merely three—land, sea and air. The fourth is the civil administration which follows the invasion and makes the occupation work.

"I hope that's enough," the general concluded. "I'm a factual sort of bird. I don't suppose I'm breaking any state secrets, but if so, the censor can cut 'em out. "Our amiable and totally efficient censor—in the room with us—winked."

Choir Work Led to Discovery Of Dorothy Maynor's Voice

Water Gate Singer Started Musical Career as Flautist

Her face half hidden by the deeply dipped brim of her beige straw hat, Dorothy Maynor breathed a sigh of relief at the cool of the restaurant at Union Station.

She had just arrived from New York yesterday afternoon for her appearance at 8:30 o'clock tonight with the National Symphony Orchestra at the Water Gate.

On her arrival the colored soprano asked Ralph Lyeet, summer concert manager of the National Symphony, the distance to Fort Meade.

"My brother has just been inducted," she explained. "I'm going to private life. Mrs. Shelby Rooks, wife of the professor of religion at Lincoln University, said her musical education did not start with the study of voice. In grade school she specialized in music, but her main interest there was the flute.

Tried French Horn. "I played the flute from morning to night," she said. "Then I became interested in the French horn." She granted that there might be some truth in the words of those who say that a great deal of her superb breath control was fully nurtured during her study of these instruments.

Among her other activities at school, which included many sports, was membership in the choir. An instructor insisted that she study voice at a music school, which she did, thus setting her foot on the road which has led her to fame.

"I do not come from an especially musical family," she remarked, adding that her father was a minister, and except for her sister's playing the organ in his church, they were not more than the normal music-loving family.

Insists on Hat in Photo. Asked whether she would mind removing her hat for a news photograph, the singer fingered the sweeping brim and said "can't I just leave it on? I'll hold my face up like this." The hat remained in place and she smiled into the camera.

Among her selections tonight with the National Symphony, which will be conducted by Dr. Hans Kinsler, Miss Maynor will sing "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino"; Schubert's "Ave Maria"; "Devotion," by R. Strauss, and "Ah, Love But a Day," by H. H. A. Beach.

Rear Admiral Wright, Comdr. Greenslade Decorated by Knox

Two high-ranking naval officers whose homes are in Washington have been decorated by Secretary of the Navy Knox for gallantry in the South Pacific, the Navy Department announced today.

Rear Admiral Carlton H. Wright, 3800 Thirty-ninth street N.W., was awarded the Navy Cross for "skillfully intercepting the approaching Japanese forces at a critical hour in the fight for control of the Guadalcanal area."

The Legion of Merit has been awarded Comdr. John F. Greenslade, 39, of 4914 Glenbrook road N.W., for outstanding service as operations officer of the staff of the Commander of Aircraft, South Pacific Forces.

Courtesy Praised. Admiral Wright's citation said his "great courage and outstanding leadership contributed to the success of our forces in that area." Under his leadership the task force inflicted severe damage on Japanese ships attempting to land troops and supplies on the island on the night of November 20, 1942.

Admiral Wright was in command of the cruiser Augusta when President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met on the ship in the Atlantic Ocean in 1941.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in Annapolis in 1912, Admiral Wright first came to Washington in December, 1917, with the Bureau of Ordnance, where he has served at intervals on later occasions. He also holds a B. S. degree from George Washington University here.

Before being assigned to temporary duty outside of the continental limits of the country he lived here for several months last January, 1943.

A brother, Comdr. George C. Wright, has a naval command at sea, while another brother, James L. Wright, is correspondent here for the Buffalo Evening News.

The citation that went with Comdr. Greenslade's award stated his actions from September 23, 1942, to May 30, 1943, were marked by "superb organization, skill and steadfast devotion to duty," and added, "frequently extending his

Gen. Hurley's Virginia Estate Sold to District Hotel Man

George C. Clarke, owner and manager of the New Ebbitt Hotel, announced today that he had purchased Belmont, historic 1,200-acre estate near Leesburg, Va., from Brig. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley. The price was not disclosed.

Mr. Clarke said he expected to use the estate for summer vacations and hoped to increase its productivity.

Belmont, built in 1800, has extended hospitality to many famous people. Lafayette visited it in 1826, and Presidents Monroe, John Quincy Adams and Madison were greeted there. President Madison and his wife lived at Belmont for two weeks in 1814 when the British invaded Washington.

The home was built by Ludwell Lee, a son of Richard Henry Lee, signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1818 it came into the possession of James F. McKenna. Other owners of the property, according to Leesburg records, were Margaret Mercer, Elias Mercer, George Kephart, who bought it in 1851; Frank P. Stanton, former Governor of Kansas; Mary Ross Stanton and Nancy Ferguson.

Edward B. McLean bought the estate in 1907 and quartered his racing stock there. In 1931, while he was Secretary of War under President Hoover, Gen. Hurley purchased the property. Frequent flower shows were held at Belmont during the 12 years of Gen. Hurley's ownership. Recently Zev, famous race horse owned by Harry Sinclair, died at Belmont, where he had been put out to pasture.

Mr. Clarke, a trustee of American University and a member of the bar of the Supreme Court, has been in the real estate business in Washington for a number of years. Besides the New Ebbitt Hotel, he also owns the Gratton Hotel, which is leased to the British government for office space.

Reichard Is Elected Head of Credit Men

Roscoe W. Reichard, credit manager of the Hecht Co., was elected president of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington at their annual meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club last night. It was the second time in five years he has been elected to that office.

Other officers elected are Frank P. Scott of Woodward & Lothrop, vice president; John K. Althaus, secretary-treasurer, and Charles W. Prettyman, assistant secretary.

Directors elected are William R. Davis, Richard H. McLaughlin, Harry N. Aiken, Leo Baum, Benjamin Blanken, Abe Conin, Charles M. Keefer, Elsie M. Lee, Herbert J. Rich, E. Emerson Snyder and Ben Stein.

Milton W. King was reappointed general counsel.

Roosevelt Foes Seek Byrd-Farley Ticket, Senator Guffey Says

By the Associated Press. Senator Guffey, Democrat, of Pennsylvania says "opposition-to-Roosevelt leaders" within the Democratic party hope to boom Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia for President and James A. Farley for Vice President.

Returning from a 10-day trip to Texas, Senator Guffey, New Deal supporter and chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Committee, declared yesterday he had heard that the former National Democratic Committee chairman "has been brought around to accepting second place on the ticket."

"In Tucson, Ariz., Mr. Farley said he was 'very much amused' to hear of Senator Guffey's statement. Senator Guffey described as 'nonsense' the 'predictions that the Southern States are about to turn to the Republican party for salvation.' 'No forward-looking Southerner believes the GOP even understands the problems of the South,' he said. 'Furthermore, no Southerner believes that the Republican party backers and leaders hold views in sympathy with Southern problems.'"

Senator Guffey said that mention of Senator Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa for the presidential nomination was "a trial balloons which has not sailed very far."

"The feeling is general that he was being used as a trial horse," he added. "That feeling is corroborated by Senator Gillette's prompt repudiation of the boom."

War Veteran Still Serves at 63 Years

Despite his 63 years, Corpl. Jonathan Maduna of Peddie, South Africa, one of the oldest natives in the South African Army, continues on active service.

His military career began in the South African War, when he was attached to the King's Royal Rifles. During the World War he served in the Southwest African campaign. He is now a member of the Native Military Corps.

Congress Is Nearing Truce With Agencies On Food and Farms

By the Associated Press. The executive branch and legislative leaders appeared to be headed toward a truce on some of their major farm and food policy differences today as:

1. Senator Russell, Democrat, of Georgia called on his farm State colleagues to meet the administration halfway on any move it might make toward reconciliation of those differences, and.

2. The Agricultural Adjustment Agency forbade its 200,000 field employes and committeemen to distribute information about AAA farm programs through news channels.

Senator Russell told reporters he was pleased that War Food Administrator Marvin Jones planned to consult with members of Congress before making final decisions affecting future farm programs.

Wants "Give-and-Take" Spirit. "It would do well for the administration and members of Congress to approach such conferences in a spirit of mutual helpfulness, and without chips on their shoulders," the Senator added.

The Georgian said congressional sentiment still favored better farm prices rather than Government subsidies, but he believed a "spirit of give and take" would iron out differences of opinion on the subsidy question, as well as other issues.

His assertions followed an Agriculture Department interpretation of a provision in its new appropriation act which prohibited the use of Federal funds in paying salaries and expenses of any AAA information employes. The announcement told the employes, as well as the State, county and local farmer committeemen, that they must not carry on any promotional activity for the AAA as an institution or for its policies, or attempt to build public pressure for or against congressional action on farm measures.

Other Developments on Food. The congressional refusal of funds for informational work followed complaints that AAA employes and committeemen had sought to influence legislative attitude on a proposed crop incentive payment program.

These armistice moves coincided with a variety of developments on the ever-pressing food question. They included a War Food Administration decision to require slaughterers to trim more fat for lard off pork cuts, a Senate committee's plans to investigate charges that chain stores have bought small meat packing plants and cut off supplies from small retailers, and the setting of new retail price ceilings on fresh fish—possibly to combat a reported "strike" of fishermen.

Apparently disappointed at the failure of lard output to keep pace with expanding production of heavy hogs, WFA is preparing the rigid meat processing order to revise the present situation which permits packers to leave a larger percentage of fat on pork cuts than normal, and still find a ready market. Because of that situation, WFA spokesmen said, much fat which otherwise would be processed into lard for commercial sale has been wasted in family kitchens.

The new regulation could be expected to hold down the prices of the heavier hogs—since lard sells for less than most pork cuts—and change feeding practices among farmers who have been fattening hogs to extra weights.

Senator Wherry, Republican, of Nebraska, who will reside over the Senate Small Business Committee's inquiry into the charges against chain stores, said small retailers are requesting that the Government refuse to transfer the meat quotas of newly-purchased packing plants to the chain stores. He said the complaints charged that the plants previously served small retailers.

Meanwhile, the Office of Price Administration ordered retail fish sellers to limit their prices—starting tomorrow—to a formula based on the number of cents mark-up customarily placed on fish between July 5 and July 10. Ceilings recently were imposed on wholesale transactions, which officials said brought complaints from fishermen that dealers were able to make extra profits.

From the Office of the Co-ordinator of Fisheries, a news estimate that the work-stoppage of insect fishermen already is costing the country more than 5,000,000 pounds of fish a week.

1,837 Travel Permits Issued Motorists by Local Ration Boards

A total of 1,837 vacation travel permits have been issued to motorists by the 15 local ration boards, the District Office of Price Administration reported today.

Despite the large number of applications granted since the vacation ruling became effective last Thursday, the District OPA maintained that in all cases the local boards are carefully investigating the amount of gasoline in an applicant's tank, the speedometer reading and the number of target points remaining in his ration book.

The OPA office reported only five motorists were cited for pleasure driving yesterday—these by Metropolitan Police.

Local OPA inspectors, who customarily report a large number of pleasure-driving suspects, were busy last night serving subpoenas on motorists previously suspected of nonessential driving, the District office said.

In hearings reported yesterday by two local ration boards, six persons were assessed penalties for pleasure driving.

The largest fine was levied against Raymond Bynum, 2042 L street N.W., whose A ration was suspended for 60 days.

Others fined were: Leslie S. Noble, 1728 F street N.W., one C and two A coupons; Sidney H. Brown, 1831 Nineteenth street N.W., two As; Pierce E. Reeves, 1408 Twenty-eighth street S.E., one B; Finley J. Wilson, 1831 Vernon street N.W., one B, and Albert Pairsal, 1926 S street S.E., one A.

ships in the harbor. They saw what appeared to be an ancient fort built long before bombers were ever made. Nearby was a mile-long airplane landing strip.

Several large buildings were set afire. The raiders, who were in the air for more than nine hours, spent at least 40 minutes over the target, climbing and circling before dropping their bomb loads. Bad weather areas forced them to take a circuitous route to Paramushiro, and clouds prevented the contemplated deck-level bombing when they were over the target.

The big bombers carried no special equipment except life rafts for possible forced landings on the cold sea. But all agreed the thing to do if their planes were crippled was to try to reach the Russian territory.

The pilots, veterans of raids on Attu or Kiska, knew they were making a dangerous survey flight in preparation for future attacks which eventually will hit all of the Kuriles and extend to more thickly populated islands of Japan proper.

Capt. James L. Eudene, Benton, Ill., who already holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal for his achievements in Aleutian combat flying, led the flight.

D. C. Clearing House On War Ads Planned

A master committee will be set up in the District to serve as a clearing house on wartime advertising, members of the Advertising Club of Washington decided last night at a conference in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Slated to include many business, professional and other leaders in the District, the committee will coordinate war message advertising with programs being carried on by the Government, Charles J. Columbus, secretary of the club, said.

The committee will include many business, professional and civic leaders in the District, and will be subdivided into smaller groups that will handle special activities, Mr. Columbus added.

At last night's meeting, Donald M. Bernard, director of the club, pointed out that since Pearl Harbor, Washington newspapers have carried 700 full pages of war message ads.

Ted Reppner, an OWI representative, told the meeting that "there is need for unity," and said there have been too many pressure groups going different ways.

He subsequently finished his flight training at Pensacola, Fla., in 1928, and was then assigned to the ill-fated carrier Lexington.

Comdr. Greenslade was connected with the Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington on two occasions: From June, 1936, to May, 1938, and from December, 1940, to July, 1942.

His wife, Mrs. Rosemary Greenslade, is now on the West Coast, visiting Admiral Greenslade.

American Captives Escape From Nazis; Find Sicilians Cordial

By SERGT. RALPH MARTIN, Stars and Stripes Correspondent. (Distributed by the Associated Press.) WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, July 21.—Six American soldiers, too tired to care about anything else but sleep, returned from German captivity in Sicily yesterday.

Pvt. John Gort of Roseland, Minn., said the adventure started at an outpost when a flock of Germans surrounded the little Yankee squad. "All day we had been watching a tennis game. The artillery shells were the tennis balls and all six of us were right on top of the net," explained Sergt. Robert Lowery of Eggs, Okla.

The prisoners were kept at a point where the Germans were loading supplies, small guns and ammunition on waiting trucks. Their only food for the day was a single skinny sausage, one orange and some bread and water.

Afterward the trucks pulled out and the Americans were taken along, only to be handed over hours later to a German captain, who confessed in good English, "The American soldiers have been very fair."

The group seized a chance to run away, and Pvt. Fred Patterson of Indiana, Pa., grinned at the recollection. "We didn't bother wasting any time asking any foolish questions. The setup was so crazy," he said.

As the six started out, they took the wrong way to the American lines. Luckily, Pvt. Paul Ferraro of Worcester, Mass., spoke fluent Italian and when they stopped at a small town they got correct directions.

They also got food and wine, hugs and kisses.

"These Sicilians hated the Germans," Ferraro said. "They blamed the Heines for being the cause of the war and said it was the fault of the Germans that the Americans bombed Sicily so much. They hated Mussolini worse than anybody. When they bade good-by to us, they said one thing that impressed me very much. They said, 'Now that you Americans are here—peace will come very soon.'"

Limited Service Class Set Up in Draft

A new draft classification, 1-A-L, to include men qualifying for limited service, was announced today by national selective service headquarters.

Local boards will pool all men in this class and thus will be provided with an available list from which the Army can draw as needed.

Under the new plan, which goes into effect August 1, no limited serviceman will be accepted by the Army at the time of his first examination at an induction center. Instead he will be returned to the jurisdiction of his local board to await possible later induction.

The plan is expected to eliminate constant shifting of 4-F registrants by local boards. The ad system was to induct at once those needed and send the rest back home classed 4-F. The Army was calling a certain number of these men regularly, and calls will continue to be cleared through State selective service directors.

Gen. Anderson Promoted

Army Prepares People For Invasion of Italy

By the Associated Press. BERN, July 21.—The Italian 5th Army command, with headquarters in Rome, has prepared the Italian populace for a "state of emergency" in the event of an Allied landing within its zone on the Italian mainland, a Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Rome reported today. Notices posted on walls in Rome and elsewhere tell the people that invasion would be signaled by bells, after which they would be compelled to remain day and night in their homes or air-raid shelters, the dispatch said.

Government Workers Now Exceed 3 Million; 280,288 in Capital

Government employment passed the 3,000,000 mark in April. It was disclosed today when the Civil Service Commission published revised figures for that month in connection with the issuance of the May personnel report.

Actual employment, the commission said, was 3,005,812 instead of the 2,991,327 previously reported as of April 30, which represented an increase of about 1,000,000 in a year. The tentative May total is shown at 3,029,483, while in Washington alone the figure is 280,288, which represents a decrease of about 3,000 in the past month, a continuation of the decline recently in evidence.

The overall Government employment figure has virtually tripled since the war production program was launched just three years ago. In this time, the War Department has added approximately 1,000,000 employees and the Navy about 400,000.

The commission noted that there are approximately 1,000,000 women on the Federal rolls now—or more than the total employment of the World War. More than 69,000 women came into the service in May, it was said, principally in War and Navy field establishments, showing that they are replacing men by the thousands.

WFA Acts to Provide Holiday Turkey for Forces Overseas

American soldiers on every battle front will get turkey for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year Day if the turkey industry in this country complies with the War Food Administration request to supply 10,000,000 pounds of turkey meat during August and September.

WFA today called for this quota of turkey which will be shipped overseas in plenty of time for the holiday dinners. Coupled with this announcement was an appeal to civilians to forego eating turkey for a few weeks during the early season "until this urgent requirement for American military forces is met."

Once the emergency demands are met, WFA said, indications are there will be plenty of turkey for the folks on the home front—well before Thanksgiving.

In order that our fighting men will get the best, the WFA urges producers to begin now to separate the heaviest birds from their flocks and to give them extra feed in time for the early market.

over the top again in the Third War Loan drive in September, sure to sustain Washington's reputation for patriotic response to all such appeals.

Fascist Frenzy

Carlo Scorza has hitherto been known as a man of deeds rather than of words. His unenviable reputation dates back to the "club-and-castor-oil" epoch when he stood out even among the strong-arm mobsters who bludgeoned their way to power with Benito Mussolini in an Italy fallen into postwar disintegration.

This flamboyant address is a masterpiece of Fascist causticity and invective. It contains all the traditional cliches used by Mussolini and his henchmen for upwards of twenty years. Every possible appeal to pride, prejudice, narrow patriotism and hatred of all that is not Italian is carefully marshaled and elaborated.

These are merely a few typical high lights of an amazing farrago of untruths and fallacies which, to any one who knows the actual facts, is raving nonsense. To read Scorza, one would never suspect that Mussolini eagerly abandoned a safe and profitable neutrality to plunge Italy into the maelstrom of war for what he cynically speculated would be cheap and easy spoils.

So we have the pipeline, and we have it without giving up the planes and the tanks. Mr. Ickes refrained from any "I told you so's" when he helped weld the last link of "Big Inch," contenting himself with a few admonitions against expecting too much in the way of gasoline for pleasure driving.

A Job Well Done. We owe a great deal to the public-spirited citizens who are giving their services so freely these days in the various volunteer war activities of the community. In this connection the appointment of John A. Reilly to succeed H. L. Rust, Jr., as chairman of the District of Columbia War Finance Committee is appropriate occasion for an expression of appreciation over Mr. Reilly's acceptance of the responsibility and of congratulations to Mr. Rust for the fine record established under his leadership.

Rome a Target. Aerial bombardment of military objectives in Rome by the Allies recalls to mind the scores of other occasions upon which the "central city of the universe" has been attacked. The history of Italy always has revolved around the ancient settlement on the yellow Tiber. Thus it truly may be said that every operation against the Apennine Peninsula has been in some sense aimed at its focal point.

Coriolanus besieged Rome in 488, the Aequi in 458 and 446. Then in 390 came the first of the Barbarians, Gauls under Brennus, who sacked and burned the city and withdrew from its environs only when they had been richly paid for going. Fear of a similar disaster characterized the inhabitants during the Punic wars. Rome was in terror when Hannibal crossed the Alps and turned south. The Carthaginian leader was within a mile of the gates when he was recalled in 211. He left the surrounding country exhausted.

Internece troubles followed. The Romans, unfortunately, never learned to avoid fighting among themselves. Civil strife mars the record almost from the start. The contest between Sulla and Marius in 88 B.C. wrecked the town. A few months later it was besieged by four armies at one time. Cinna was the leader of the victorious party. His example subsequently inspired the rebel Spartacus in 72. But even the excesses of that strange and still mysterious chapter were surpassed by the crimes which developed from mob rule instigated by the partisans of Clodius and Milo in 52 and the bitter conflict between Caesar and Pompey in 49. Anarchy ended only when Octavian, nephew of the murdered "enemy of the republic," marched into Rome and compelled his own election as consul in 43. He ruled the empire thus established from 31 B.C. to 14 A.D.

The "golden age," however, was too brief. In its stead there rose the horrors of the degenerate emperors and their "heirs," the savage captains of the north and east. Rome burned for six days in Nero's reign, July, 64. It was saved temporarily by Commodus who purchased peace from the Goths between 180 and 192. The Barbarian invasions really began in earnest in 236 and no amount of ransom sufficed to meet the demands of the invaders. Alaric took the metropolis, sacked and burned it in 410; Attila, who held sway from China to the Atlantic, was held off by Pope Leo in 452; Genseric plundered what had been left by his forerunners in 455 and Odoacer imitated him in 476.

Later conquerors were: Totila in 546, Arnulf in 856, Otho the Great in 962, Henry IV after two years' siege in 1083, Ladislav of Naples in 1408, Colonna and his Spaniards in 1526, Constable de Bourbon and the French in 1527. The Napoleonic Wars brought armies from France again in 1800 and 1808. Rome also surrendered to the troops of Napoleon III in 1849. When they retired in 1870, Italian "liberators" breached the walls and entered the city in fulfillment of the dream of Garibaldi. The Fascist blacksmith, Il Duce, entered the "prima urbes inter aurea Roma" on October 30, 1922.

No Place for Isolation

It would be a bold candidate for the Republican nomination for President, with any hope of winning the nomination, who proclaimed himself an "isolationist." The Republican party, it may be safely predicted, will write into its platform next year a pledge of international co-operation for peace by the United States after the war has been won.

Each month brings further confirmation of this view. The Republican Postwar Policy Association, meeting in New York on Monday, adopted a series of resolutions urging the party to take a strong stand in support of an international organization to maintain peace. The 250 delegates attending went even further. They instructed the chairman, Deneen Watson of Chicago, to call upon Chairman Spangler of the Republican National Committee and demand that the Republican Postwar Council, appointed by him, take early action. In plain English, they intend to prod the council into a declaration of policy on a par with that favored by the association.

The Republican National Committee in 1942 adopted a resolution saying that the United States has an obligation to assist in bringing about co-operation among the nations after the war. The resolution was adopted unanimously. But the friends of Wendell L. Willkie insisted at the time that he was responsible for this action. It is of more than passing interest that the recent meeting in New York of the Postwar Policy Association was attended by many of Mr. Willkie's ardent supporters for the 1944 presidential nomination, among them Gov. Baldwin of Connecticut and Representative Clark Baldwin of New York.

If the Spangler Postwar Policy Council does the expected and writes a foreign policy plank pledging the Republican party to support an international policy of co-operation, the association may attempt to take credit for having "forced" such action upon the council. And some of this credit may slip over to Mr. Willkie and his friends.

It is no secret that Mr. Spangler, as chairman of the GOP National Committee, and the members of his postwar council, do not relish the idea of being badgered by the Postwar Policy Association. On the other hand, should Mr. Spangler send Mr. Watson and his supporters away with a sharp answer, the policy association will be in a position to complain that the Spangler council is far from being international-minded, and is pretty close to being isolationist.

The Republicans generally are moving toward a position of internationalism in contrast to their old isolationism. It would be a pity if they should fall out because of the personal ambitions of any particular candidate over the terms of a foreign policy pronouncement and thus end the hope of party unity in support of international co-operation after the war.

Some military authority says that our present warriors will seem as ridiculous 500 years hence as the participants in the battle of Agincourt would appear today. It is hoped that in far less than 500 years any sort of warriors will seem ridiculous.

The Capital Garage on New York avenue is to be taken over to house a big pool of Federal automobiles. What with the dearth of new car models, it may regain its one-time title of "Halls of the Ancients." Also, who can remember when it housed a swimming pool?

It is time that some title be given to ordinary nonmilitary, nonnaval housewives who neither weld nor rivet, but remain behind to keep the home fires burning. Try the WINKS—Women in Numerous Kitchens.

Axis Communications In Sicily Cut by Allies

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

Two points which are well illustrated by present operations in Sicily are: (1) The vital importance of communications in modern war, because of the tremendous demands of modern fighting forces for an uninterrupted flow of munitions and supplies; (2) The very great advantage, in consequence, which air superiority gives to the side which possesses it, because of its ability to strike at the enemy's lines of communication.

The war in Sicily is above all else a war of communications because of the fact that Sicily, like Tunisia, is far distant from the Axis centers of production and has little or no resources of its own. It must be supplied from Germany and Northern Italy. From the very first, it has been apparent that one of the major objectives of our strategic air force was the cutting of Sicily's main supply route across the Strait of Messina, by constantly bombing the docks, ferry terminals and railway yards and stations on both sides of the strait. It seems likely that, so far as any major movement of supplies is concerned, this route has been pretty definitely interrupted.

It is, of course, possible that small vessels may slip across the strait at night, or with good luck may even make the dangerous run from an Italian mainland port to one of the very few anchorages on the North Sicilian coast. The only good port on this coast is Palermo, and Palermo too, has been on our bombing list. We may assume that our warships, as well as our aircraft are watching the northern and western coasts of Sicily with unceasing vigilance.

The port of the south and east coasts are all in our hands, with the exception of Catania, which is now closely besieged by land and blockaded by sea. On the whole, we may assume that the exterior communications of Sicily have been cut. That means that resistance within the island is dependent on the stores and munitions which were already there when our air and naval blockade began to take effect. The further and necessary extension of that blockade lies in the interruption of the internal communications of the island so that these munitions and the troops which use them cannot be shifted about from point to point as the enemy may desire. When this has been accomplished, the enemy forces can be broken up into separate parts, and separately destroyed.

In the beginning, we were, of course, concerned with making our own internal communications system in Sicily secure. We obtained the great advantage at the very first of seizing three seaports through which we could bring in our troops and supplies—Licata, Syracuse and Augusta.

We now hold the whole of the road system in the southeastern part of the island, including the important transverse highway, Agrigento-Canicatti-Caltanissetta-Caltagirone-Syracuse. We are fighting our way into Enna, which controls not only the one remaining interior east-west highway available to the enemy but also the Palermo-Catania railway. A second threat to both these enemy lines is presented by an American advance northward from Caltanissetta.

Before this was accomplished, however, the enemy succeeded in concentrating the greater part of his German troops in the Plain of Catania, and is putting up a very fierce fight to keep us from occupying the airfields on that plain and taking the city of Catania itself. It is reasonable to suppose that his main supply depots are at Palermo and Messina. The fall of Enna will cut the only railway connecting the German troops directly with Palermo, and will greatly reduce the capacity of his road communications with that city, leaving him only the difficult mountain highway through Nicosia.

The direct road to Messina skirts the coast, squeezed in between the sea and the frowning heights of Mount Etna and is certainly subject to interruption by naval bombardment. It is probable, therefore, that the enemy at Catania is now dependent on the north coast highway between Palermo and Messina, and the roads which branch off from it southward toward the general region of Mount Etna. By this somewhat circuitous route, it is still possible to bring supplies from either Messina or Palermo to the vicinity of Catania.

Probably the most important of the branch roads is that which leaves the main highway at Naso and runs southward to Randano, where it connects with the circular road which runs around the foot of Mount Etna and is paralleled by a little narrow gauge railway, familiar to so many tourists in days gone by. From this point it is possible to reach Catania by way of Adrano and Paterno. It is notable that Randazzo recently has been heavily raided by our aircraft, and the German resistance before Catania appears to be diminishing—doubtless in direct proportion to the failure of the communications system by which it lives.

Children Spared. For this we Americans can be thankful: The children of this land are spared the horrors of war and can laugh and play with the normal appetites of the very young, who find life a perpetual joy. But in England and many other Allied countries, the war has cast a deep, dark shadow across the faces of children who have never known peace.

The first walls of many of these youngsters were lost amid the wails of air-raid sirens. They have been reared in an atmosphere of danger and sacrifice and hardship. Many of them have experienced the horrors of falling bombs and incendiary fires. And always, the enemy has been only a few miles away. Here in Kansas, and in all America, the children are still safe. It is to keep them safe that men are fighting in other lands.

THIS AND THAT

By Charles E. Tracewell.

A correspondent wants to know the name of a bird which he declares says "Berlioz—Verdi!" and later "Cherookee-kee-kee."

This is probably the wood thrush. People hear what they want to hear, when listening to this and other songsters.

The wood thrush, finest of birds, says "Clara Lee," to our ears. Every other listener hears it a different way. Hearing the birds "say" something is a ticklish business. No two persons ever hear them "say" exactly the same thing.

A brief inspection of the words attributed to famous singing birds reveals clearly that what people hear is what they want to hear.

A farmer worried by planting problems—his name was Pevery—heard a small bird say, as clear as anything, "Sow wheat, Pevery, Pevery, Pevery," which advice was taken, and which, all things taken into consideration, was very wise of the bird.

If you and I were to hear that bird, we would not hear him "say" the same thing. Indeed, all we would hear would be a succession of notes.

If we tried to write them down in musical notation, no two of us, granted they were able to do it at all, would set down the same notes, nor in the same positions on the scale.

Some observers, including some of the more famous, have heard the oven bird say: "Teacher, teacher, teacher," with the accent in old New England fashion on the second syllable.

To most listeners it says nothing of the sort. The white-throated sparrow (the one referred to above), says "Sow wheat," etc., but to others it has said, rather, "Old Sam Peabody, Peabody, Peabody."

Our correspondent has put the words "Berlioz—Verdi!" to notes which much resemble the first of the four triplets of the wood thrush, but makes the notes for the "Cherookee" part of the song resemble the common song of the white-throated sparrow.

It is often difficult to be sure of what one hears, and possible to mix up the songs, or parts of songs, of two different birds.

The wood thrush's song is wild and free, whereas that of the white-throated sparrow is shy and plaintive.

A good look at the singer would settle it. The wood thrush is a distinctive bird, with beautiful brown back and wings, and a spotted light-gray chest, whereas the white-throated sparrow is, as its name indicates, a sparrow-like bird, but with white and yellow stripes on its head, and a definite white patch beneath the chin.

Observers are well advised to keep on the watch for the various sparrows.

Many persons who just "like birds" never go beyond the English sparrow. They do not differentiate between it and the song sparrow, the white-throated sparrow, and the white-crowned sparrow. In addition, there are 16 other species of sparrows found in the District of Columbia and vicinity.

Tree, chipping and field sparrows are seen now and then. But almost every suburban yard will have the song sparrow, the white-throated sparrow, and, of course, the English or house sparrow, sometimes called the European sparrow. The song sparrow is one of our very finest birds. He remains in this vicinity all winter, and is one of the few songsters to sing during the cold.

No night is finer than one of these fellows singing vigorously from a fence post in the snow.

During the summer months the song sparrow will walk to within a few feet of one in the yard. It is not afraid of cats and dogs, hopping around calmly in their very presence.

It delights in a sunken bath. Any old pan or dish, put in the ground, so that the bird can walk up to it, will delight them. If a few stones are put around the dish and some plants, it will make a very pretty layout. Once we watched a song sparrow taking a bath, and counted 50 times he went beneath the surface. Such a bath is best made not more than two inches deep. If deeper, a stone should be placed in the center, so that it sticks up.

Letters to the Editor

Moving Office of Education Brings Complaint of Discrimination. To the Editor of The Star: It seems unbelievable that the Office of Education is to be expelled from its present quarters in the new Interior Building.

Also, it must be remembered that the Education Office is an agency of government that was never intended to be kicked around. Its job is to help make democracy work—in times of war as well as in peace. It is charged by Congress with the task of promoting education on the several levels. Its task is to give leadership to the States in behalf of today's and tomorrow's citizens.

By no means a "war baby," the Office of Education began to help the Nation prepare for war long before the war was a reality. One section has led the training of more than 5,000,000 war plant workers, so that America could produce more and better planes, tanks, guns and ships than the Axis could build.

Perhaps the Education Office does not "belong" in the Department of the Interior. The President thought it didn't and placed it in the Federal Security Agency, representing anything but security from a standpoint of quarters for its various sections. The new Social Security Building is occupied by others, while the Office of Education has remained in its old quarters until now.

The honorable thing for Secretary Ickes to do would be to move out some of his old files which clutter up section after section of his building, and leave the Education Office where it is until a satisfactory set of offices can be found for it after the war. A LIBERAL.

OPA Debated Pro and Con. To the Editor of The Star: There's a war on, folks! Our fathers, brothers and sons are being killed and maimed daily and suffering hardships beyond description. Yet many of us persist in carping about trifling inconveniences which slightly mar the even tenor of our peace-time serenity and which we should be ashamed even to mention in time of war.

Letters to the Editor must bear the name and address of the writer, although the use of a pseudonym for publication is permissible. The Star reserves the right to edit all letters with a view to condensation.

Spreading discontent and ill-feeling about imaginary or trivial personal grievances is not going to help. Let's get behind the President and help push for victory. So-called "intelligent opposition" to the administration doesn't win wars. What we need is more intelligent and whole-hearted co-operation, regardless of our own personal views as to the wisdom of all the policies or methods employed. We can't all be in the driver's seat. LLOYD C. HOOKS.

I have noticed with interest the unsuccessful attempt of an OPA official to answer your editorials, which, in my opinion, were 100 per cent correct. The American citizen never has gotten any consideration from the OPA except the attitude "you're guilty until you prove yourself innocent."

They call their men "investigators" and pay them high salaries, out of our money, when a 10-year-old boy could copy down license numbers at a ball park. Investigators are supposed to investigate—not harass the American public. In that regard, the District Commissioners are to be congratulated for not allowing the police to stop cars over the Fourth of July. A man with an "A" card cannot waste much gas at 1.37 gallons per week, yet he must explain every trip and is stopped and asked questions.

The source of the supply of the coupons is what should be investigated. If they investigated, I wonder how many so-called war workers they would find who have listed four or five passengers to be carried each day in order to get the gas. I also wonder if the passengers' applications were investigated. If they would find that they also asked for and took gas for the same purpose and returned in driving to work. I also wonder if they would find that the mileage was greatly exaggerated.

We need rationing, but not the way it is handled now. The OPA's answer to such a letter as this probably would be that I am an individual who can do nothing. That is true with the exception that as yet they haven't been able to take away my right to vote against an administration that tolerates such practices. E. J. J.

Plain Talk Can Create Realism

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Warnings against overconfidence and undue optimism apparently were purposely issued by Secretary Knox in his press conference jointly with Vice Admiral Frederick Hone, vice chief of naval operations, and Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production Board.

David Lawrence.

It is a difficult task to accept the artificial atmosphere of sun spangled efforts to mold public opinion as it is to swallow the alibi of alleged complacency being the reason why war production under Mr. Wilson's management has lagged.

It is interesting to recall that Undersecretary of War Patterson called attention publicly to the lag in airplane production and criticized the slowness of the program long before the present wave of military successes began. For the executive head of WPB now to assert that we have the manpower, the plants and the materials but that "war complacency" is responsible for the slowness is to ignore altogether the element of governmental control and governmental red tape which it is the business of officials to remove or regulate so as to achieve smooth operation.

Muzzling Inevitable

What Admiral Hone says concerning the war in the Pacific is, of course, thoroughly sound, and if some of America's military or naval chiefs were permitted to speak more often instead of being muzzled, the public would have a better appreciation of the real facts.

The truth is that the American people are adults and not children and when they read the pronouncement from so important a figure as Prime Minister Churchill, which stresses the possibility of winning the war by means of airpower, it is natural for readers to derive from the recent bombings in Europe the impression of an early end of the war.

The moment any high official would undertake to refute the Churchill statement, he would be accused of airing grievances in public and he might find himself stripped of his rank or just of responsibility. The American people have been misled into thinking the end of the war is just around the corner and perhaps only a few months off because the Washington administration has allowed the impression to be cultivated that airpower is enough to win his war and that land operations and sea battles will play a secondary role.

Long Confident of Victory

It is true that airpower has played and will continue to play a tremendous part in winning the war but the notion that the war can be won inexpensively so far as casualties are concerned seems to have taken hold widely in America.

It is doubtful, however, whether the average American worker has slowed his efforts or management has relaxed its vigilance just because the war news happens to have become favorable. In many an athletic contest taking the lead often spurs the winning side to new and greater effort.

The administration would do far better to let the military and naval men outline the road that lies ahead. They are not mercurial nor are they interested in creating any particular impression.

Cleanup May Take Years

When Admiral Hone speaks of laying plans for a naval war in the Pacific that might last until 1945 he is, of course, thinking of the cleanup job that may be necessary in the islands of the Far Pacific long after the main backbone of Japanese resistance has been broken. The distances are so vast and the problem of mobilizing an armada of ships to fight the more advantageously arranged interior line operations of the Japanese is, to be sure, no secret.

The Allies still are fighting many thousands of miles south of the equator and, as for attack on Japan from the Arctic, this is a long drawn-out process from which the people have been permitted to draw optimistic conclusions largely because no dispassionate military or naval analysis is permitted from Washington.

Somewhat the same colored and one-sided impression has been given about military operations in the European theater. Instead of telling the people that cleanup operations in the Mediterranean, including a possibility of the collapse of Italy, still will not mean that the Allied armies can reach into the heart of Central Europe for another six to nine months and that the real invasion has been postponed until next spring, the official information—that is, information that is released—gives the impression that when Sicily is occupied and Italy crumbles, the end will be in sight.

Russians Realistic

No such unrealistic pictures have been allowed to befog the vision of the Russians, who from the very beginning have clamored for a second front and by a "second front" they do not mean amphibian operations in the Mediterranean. They want to see a hundred or more divisions of Allied troops in action somewhere on the continent of Europe leading directly to Berlin.

Some of the blame, incidentally, must rest on those extremists in the ranks of airpower enthusiasts who have unwittingly caused many people to think that the air bomber can do it all. Nobody in the high

Tightening the Allied Noose

By BLAIR BOLLES.

The American and British agencies dealing with economic warfare have begun intensive studies of the Balkans. These investigations are corollary to the invasion of Sicily and promise hot times for Germany, because if all goes well, new points from which heavy bombers can take off for new Third Reich targets will be in United Nations control.

Blair Bolles.

For the Allies, Sicily is said to lie on the road to Italy, and many observers here who occupy high positions where they can hear the secrets of the future hold that Italy is but a stop on the way to the Balkans. The view of these men is that north of Rome Italy would be a liability for the Allies. Control of Italy to the Tiber would be enough to put American, British and associated armies on location for a leap across the Adriatic.

The value to the United Nations of holding Italy and the Balkans for the mere sake of possession is probably slight. But they possess great geographical value for the encirclement of Germany. Gen. Giraud commented here that the Nazis will fight to the bitter end. The end will be hastened by drawing tight the noose around Germany from outside.

Targets in Small Area

During the past two years the bombing of industrial targets has been turned by the RAF—which during the past year has had the great advantage of close American assistance—into a pretty scientific instrument of aggressive warfare. An authoritative estimate is that Germany has lost the use of 65 per cent of the industry of each of more than 30 cities.

Unfortunately for the Allies, most of those cities are clustered in one area. Most of them are within 400 miles of Great Britain. They are the cities of the Ruhr Valley. They are Cologne and Dusseldorf. They are Wilhelmshaven, Emden and Hamburg. They are the industrial and shipping centers of the western occupied countries, like Amsterdam and St. Nazaire. They are important centers, but Germany is a large country with many cities and industrial areas west of the circle whose center is London and whose radius is 400 miles.

Bombing Germany from England beyond the edge of the 400-mile circle is an uncertain undertaking. The fighter strength and the flak concentrated by the Nazis along the approaches to Germany from England are so great and menacing that the military or naval command has had any such illusion, but it is none the less an impression too widely held. If complacency is here it may be traced to no small extent to those who took their cue from Prime Minister Churchill's speech on the "air experiment," which he and presumably President Roosevelt sanctioned.

It was pointed out at the time mightily four-engined bombers, the Fortresses and Lancasters, the Liberators and Stirlings, intrude beyond the 400-mile circle only for occasional raids that are almost stunt-like.

Berlin Raids Costly. To bomb Berlin, less than 600 miles from London, is a costly undertaking. The Allies have sent their heavy bombers on visits to Nurnberg, in Germany's center, and to Stuttgart, in Wurttemberg. The RAF made a spectacular raid on Augsburg, approached by a flight that never rose much over 50 feet in altitude until the target was reached. But Augsburg, Nurnberg and Stuttgart were costly in planes and men, and raids to be effective must be repeated.

Here lies the prospective advantage of action in the Balkans, Germany is due to feel bombs regularly on points where they never felt them regularly before. Three great eastern industrial centers which the Allies could not hope to reach now except in an expensive display of aerial exhibitionism are the Skoda plant, the factories at Wiener-Neustadt, a few miles south of Vienna, and the works at Budapest, which are valuable to the Nazis. Balkan airfields in Allied hands could turn Skoda, Wiener-Neustadt and the Budapest industrial fringe into copies of Essen and Wuppertal.

Possession of the great green plain of Lombardy in Northern Italy would also provide the Allies with airfields relatively close to useful German bombing targets such as Munich, the Black Forest industries, Augsburg and Stuttgart. Between Lombardy and Germany lie the Alps. RAF heavy bombers go over the Alps near Genoa and Turin have been laid waste by trans-alpine bombers from English bases. But the Alps in wintertime are dangerous to cross, and it might be winter before Allied armies could be encamped within sight of the Po.

Would Force Dispersal

The opportunity to bomb Germany's southern and eastern industrial targets regularly probably would make it easier for the 8th Air Force and the RAF based on England to carry out their missions. For the Germans would have to disperse the concentrated fighter strength they keep guarding the air approaches to Western Europe, and they would have to disperse their antiaircraft guns.

The Germans lack sufficient flak guns now to protect every potential target in the 400-mile circle, where they are stationed, score heavily in his, and the guns themselves are effective and have long range. Occasionally the Germans have found it necessary to move flak batteries from one city to another. The batteries once were taken from Hamburg. The dispersal of the guns depresses seriously the morale of the town which loses its flak protection.

that a day of disillusionment might be forthcoming.

The war has ahead of it battles of the most critical nature and in many respects it may be said that the World War has just begun and that we will be lucky if the end is achieved in less than 18 months or two years.

The Great Game of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT.

As violent and spectacular a feud as the Jones-Wallace affair cannot suddenly be driven underground without reverberations being felt for a considerable time.

Frank R. Kent.

Now that the effects of the President's disciplinary action can be assayed without heat, several things stand out.

One is that of all the participants, Jesse Jones is left in the best position. He is the least sorry and best satisfied of them all. The surest evidence of this is the bitterness voiced by his personal, political and journalistic enemies who insist that Mr. Roosevelt has been timorous and inept in his handling of the issue—that he has sold his own Vice President "down the river" and permitted Mr. Jones to emerge as a victor in a fight when the odds were heavy against him and in which it had been asserted that the President's sympathies were on the other side.

Actually, nothing untoward seems to have happened to Mr. Jones at all. He was fiercely attacked by Mr. Wallace, who was prodded by Milo Perkins, personally hostile to Mr. Jones and real head of the BEW, who appears to have swollen rather than grown since he became a big war agency executive. Mr. Jones hit back hard at his assailants.

Perkins Loses With Wallace

There were further exchanges, and then Mr. Roosevelt, belatedly, stepped in with his order abolishing the entire BEW. Thus, Mr. Wallace lost everything he had in the way of public position except the vice presidency, which could not be taken from him.

Mr. Perkins, instigator of the row, has had his highly paid job shot from under him and, at the moment, is groggily hanging on the ropes, uncertain whether after July 31 the director of the new setup will retain him in a subordinate position.

But look at Mr. Jones. He still is Secretary of Commerce. He still is head of half a dozen subsidiary Federal spending corporations and he still has control of more money than all other Federal officials combined. True, with Mr. Wallace, he was rebuked by the President for publicly quarreling, but his very convincing answer to that is: "Mr. President, I was not the fellow who started the fight."

Deflates Pro-Wallace Hopes. Clearly, Mr. Jones has not been hurt. On the contrary, there is reason to believe him stronger than before. The position of the other participant is different.

It is pretty well agreed that Mr. Wallace has been politically wrecked. A year or so ago he was being trumpeted by the radical press and advanced New Dealers as the man, if any, Mr. Roosevelt wanted to succeed him. His cloudy, Utopian speeches were the subjects of superlative praise.

He was pictured as a great, global statesman and reaching heights of silliness, various Administration writers likened his utterances to the Gettysburg address. At great expense, the OWI sent millions of copies of his speeches all over the world.

And, now look at him! Those allegedly inspired utterances have been utterly forgotten and the fourth-term strategists regard him as a political liability whom they are preparing to ditch before the 1944 convention. Not one of the voices which screamed his praises a year ago is now raised in his defense. All of which seems to prove again the old political axiom that "the higher you climb, the harder you fall."

What happened to Mr. Perkins as a result of the feud was pretty bad, and there is some sympathy for him as an able though too aggressive young man who let his personal feelings get the better of him. But the embarrassment of Mr. Roosevelt is, of course, more interesting and more important.

Delay Unexplained

In the first place, no explanation is made—nor can be made—of his long delay in acting to stop so shocking a row in his own official family. Everybody agrees he could have prevented it from ever becoming public. Everybody agrees, too, that he could have stopped it after the first outburst.

He did neither. Instead, he let it blaze along for two weeks, until the whole thing had attained the size of a major scandal and people began to believe that Mr. Wallace really had gotten presidential approval before making his attack.

In the second place, before he acted the fight had furnished the Republicans with much campaign material and spoiled the plans of the fourth-term managers to "smear" Congress for feuding with the executive departments. And, finally, it is exceedingly irritating to Mr. Roosevelt to have the incident used—as it should be used—for again pointing out that if he had taken counsel, frequently urged on him in the last year, and created a war cabinet along the Wilson lines, this degrading spectacle could have been avoided.

Until and unless he creates such a cabinet he never will have coordination and co-operation among the governmental agencies. This is so clear that no one disputes it. In all our history we never have had a President as eager to embark on new and untested experiments nor one as reluctant to accept the lessons of experience.

Gerard Buys 97,000-Acre Ranch in New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N. Mex., July 21.—James W. Gerard, Ambassador to Germany during the Wilson administration, has purchased the 97,000-acre Mocho ranch in Santa Fe County at a cost of approximately $100,000.

Mechem and Hannett, Albuquerque attorneys who filed the purchase contract in Santa Fe, announced the sale.

Belgian Mine Output Cut

Although more men are employed than before the war, coal mines in Belgium are producing only 54 per cent of the normal output.

This Changing World

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Gen. Giraud is said to have decided to cut short his visit to London after receipt of alarming news from his friend, Gen. Alphonse Georges, in Algiers. Cables from Gen. Georges to Gen. Giraud are reported to have dealt with the political aspects of the North Africa situation, which is rapidly deteriorating.

Constantine Brown.

High Washington circles would not be surprised if there were another open disagreement between the French factions.

Authorities here are concerned deeply over the possibility of a new crisis, but there is little that they can do. At this time they are strongly supporting Gen. Giraud, who made an excellent impression—as a soldier—on all those with whom he came in contact during his visit to this country.

As a student of politics, the French commander has shown, however, that he knows little or nothing. He is honest, though glib, and is irritable at the wrong time. He is at a loss to understand why the civilians who came to his side should want to double-cross him.

From the day of our invasion last November, the so-called "African affair" has been the football of politics here and abroad.

France Favorite Here

France always has been and will continue to be a favorite of the American people. It is only natural that there should be a keen interest in the political future of France with which we have had the closest ties since the American Revolution.

But ideologies today are more powerful than ever before. Although the American Government, and those who opposed its Darlan, Giraud and De Gaulle policies, have the same aim—the restoration of France to all her splendor—there has arisen a strong misunderstanding between a group of self-appointed defenders of pure democracy in this country and their own government.

At present the Government is interested chiefly in winning the war in Europe at the earliest possible moment. It does not wish to impose any particular leader on the French people and it has no means honestly to verify whether Gen. de Gaulle is really considered by them as a combination of Joan of Arc and Clemenceau.

There are about 800,000 Frenchmen in North Africa; they represent less than 5 per cent of the empire's total population. Many of them and their families have been in that territory for more than a generation and they cannot be considered as representing the point of view of the French in Europe.

Under these circumstances the administration has adopted the attitude that as soon as the Nazis have been kicked out of France it will be up to the French people themselves to decide who will be their leaders and what form of government they desire. It would be betraying our pledges if we were to present to them a ready-made government.

Two Leaders Contrasted

Gen. Giraud has made emphatic statements—and there is every reason to believe he is truthful and honest—that he does not wish to mix in politics and take over the reins of government after the war is ended. On the other hand, Gen. de Gaulle talks about his tremendous following in Occupied France and all his actions are political rather than military.

Gen. Giraud has insisted that he wants the French armies in Africa, comprising some 350,000 men, to be reconstructed as a fighting force as soon as possible so they can take an active part in the defeat of the common enemy.

So far he has proved his contention. In the battle for Tunisia, the French under Gen. Juin suffered comparatively greater casualties than the other Allies, when we consider that only 60,000 poorly equipped Frenchmen participated in the campaign.

On the other hand, the so-called De Gaulle forces under Gen. Leclerc were composed of only 1,200 men and suffered very slight casualties.

Charges Unfounded

Gen. Giraud wants to use his armies to relieve some of our burden; he wants Frenchmen to shed their blood for the liberation of their country. Gen. de Gaulle, as can be gathered from his present activities, intends to preserve the North African army as a force with which he can enter France after the Allies have defeated the Nazis and support him as the eventual leader of postwar France.

The fact Gen. Giraud is the so-called "white-haired boy" of the administration leads to charges that the State Department has in its midst a group of dangerous anti-democrats who want postwar deals with reformed Fascists.

The fallacy of this is obvious. To accuse Secretary of State Hull or officials of the State Department handling French affairs of having Fascist tendencies is to accuse President Roosevelt himself.

The State Department's policies today are not its own. It merely executes the instructions of the White House, just as the joint chiefs of staff must follow the broad strategic policies of Mr. Roosevelt.

Political considerations have had a paramount role in the framing of America's military strategy. In the same way, military considerations have an important repercussion on diplomatic activities.

In supporting Gen. Giraud the military men (and this includes our Commander in Chief) are thinking principally in terms of the African French army on the battlefield and they are bound to oppose any one who wishes merely to transform it into a praetorian guard with the help of American war material.

McLemore

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK.—Somewhere in England are my second or third chins and that part of my stomach which used to precede the rest of me into rooms by a good minute and a half.

Henry McLemore.

From the day I left the United States until I got back a few days ago, I shed exactly 32 pounds. I left looking like a clean-shaven walrus and returned looking like a clean-shaven anteater.

For years friends and acquaintances had been telling me that I was too fat and that I was silly not to do something about it. All the way back from Europe I relished the thought of showing off my streamlined frame. The idea of throwing my no-weight about gave me tremendous pleasure. In my mind's eye, I pictured admiring groups standing about me saying, "Well, if you don't look like a new man," and "Henry, I can't tell you what an improvement that loss of weight has made in you."

I could scarcely wait for my wife to see me. For eight years she has been beating me over the head with pieces of rye cracker, forcing me to get up in the morning and do calisthenics, frowning when I reached for a second pat of butter and never missing an opportunity to make a snide remark about fat men. So, when I saw her for the first time in six months I expected her to look on me as an Adonis and spend at least 15 minutes admiring my 146-pound outline.

Wife Burst Into Tears

She didn't do anything of the kind. She took one look at me and burst into tears. Then she started blubbering this sort of talk: "You poor baby. You poor, poor baby. Where are you? Where is the man I sent to England? You are only half of him, I don't know you."

But she finally got a little stern. She told me that I was emaciated. That I looked sick. I couldn't possibly feel well, and that what she wanted most of all was to get me back home to Florida and start feeding me so that I could put back on a few pounds. This, mind you, from a gal who had spent some of the best years of her life trying to get me to reduce. I give up. I give up completely.

This is what will happen. She will give me the "prodigal son" treatment for a month or so and bring back my lost jewels into full bloom once more. Then some morning she will eye me across the breakfast table and say, "It just seems as fat as you are at your age. I have a new diet that I am going to start you on tomorrow."

Egad! Begorra! Hoot hoot! Zounds! And all the other foreign words that I learned. It just doesn't make any sense.

There is something else about losing weight that bores me to death. All your friends come up to you and say, "You look 10 years younger." No one ever says you look nine years younger or 11 years younger. It is always 10 years younger.

No Dream Prince Then

Now when I look back on myself at 26, I was nobody's dream prince. I was fresh out of those cotton fleecy of Georgia about then. I was still cutting my own hair at the time, if I remember. I spent 10 years of hard labor trying to get over looking the way I did when I was 26. And now, just because the English rations were a little tough on me it seems that I am right back to the Rochelle, Ga., days where the hottest telephone number I had in my address book was the livery stable.

The hell with that, then. I'd rather have seven chins than something better than livery stable numbers in that little book all of us husbands kept tucked away where we hope our wives can't find it. Of course, when they do find these little books all of us would like to be back in Rochelle with nothing but livery stable numbers written down.

But now that we are on this subject there is only one thing to tell a wife who pops up with your little secret address book in her hand and this is it. "I won't tolerate a snoop in this home. Aren't you ashamed of yourself for working behind my back when I am trying so hard to work behind yours?"

My wife has just looked over my shoulder at what I have written and I am not at all sure now that I won't be eating words instead of all that good food she threatened me with.

Oil Industry Group To Study Problems Of Gas Rationing

By the Associated Press.
A committee of the Nation's leading oil men has undertaken a study of the gasoline ration problem, William R. Boyd, jr., chairman of the Petroleum Industry War Council, said last night.

Declaring that neither the industry nor the Petroleum Administration for War has authority to determine the rationing system, Mr. Boyd said, "Our joint responsibility has been and still is to supply the gasoline to be rationed, and that duty makes it only right that the oil industry should suggest ways to make the rationing system as effective as possible."

He said that while it is "obvious" that the present gasoline rationing system is not perfect, the council's action should not be construed as "critical of rationing authorities."

The oil industry, he added, has "vital responsibilities for supplying both military and essential civilian demands that will be affected by the future success of the rationing program."

The committee, headed by John A. Brown, president of Socony Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., New York, will make its suggestions to Petroleum Administrator Ickes.

Navy to Name Warship For Colored Hero

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, July 21.—The first United States warship named in honor of a colored man, the destroyer escort Harmon, will be launched Sunday at the Fore River yard of the Bethlehem Steel Co., Quincy.

Secretary of the Navy Knox assigned the name to honor the late Roy Harmon, mess attendant, first class, who was awarded the Navy Cross posthumously for "extraordinary heroism" while serving aboard the cruiser San Francisco.

Mr. Harmon was 26 years old and the son of Mrs. Naunita Harmon Carroll of Cuero, Tex., who will sponsor the new ship. He was killed in action against Japanese in the battle of Guadalcanal November 12 and 13, 1942.

Civil Service Orders Liberal Leave Attitude

The Civil Service Commission today advised all supervisory officials to adopt a "liberal attitude" on requests for short periods of leave to permit employees to attend to personal matters. This conforms to recent instructions from the White House.

The Commission said that leave of two to four hours, for example, should be allowed when the work of the agency will not be hindered. Leave should be granted on Saturday afternoon only in cases of emergency, it was added.

The Commission is limiting lumped leave allowances to 12 working days, except for employees residing more than 1,000 miles from Washington, when additional allowance may be given for travel time.

Increased Production Of Household Articles Authorized by WPB

By the Associated Press.
The War Production Board has authorized a resumption or increase in the manufacture of a number of household articles, including carpet sweepers, pot scourers and food grinders.

The agency yesterday emphasized, however, that although greater production is now permitted, it is not guaranteed because of the limited amounts of steel and iron available.

A WPB spokesman said about 300,000 tons of steel, which cannot be used for military or essential civilian manufacture, could be released from frozen inventories for the purpose.

In addition to the sweepers, grinders and pot scourers, the WPB authorized production of baking and roasting pans, flour sifters, jar wrenches, vacuum bottles and lunch boxes and dinner pails.

Production of ice picks also can be resumed, the WPB said, but can be sold only to commercial users. About 3,329,000 workers' lunch boxes and miners' dinner buckets were made annually in normal times, and the same rate of manufacture may be resumed for the rest of 1943. If the steel is available, therefore, about 1,400,000 boxes can be made this year.

Scholarship Awarded

Edward H. Cashell, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Cashell, has been awarded a competitive four-year scholarship to Washington College, Chestertown, Md. Mr. Cashell will enroll at the college in September.

Taft Deplores Efforts Of GOP 'Hotheads' to Stir Prewar Issues

By the Associated Press.

Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio deplored what he terms the efforts of some "hot-headed" Republicans to "stir up and keep alive" party differences based on "prewar issues."

He old reporters yesterday he believed resolutions adopted at New York Monday by the Unofficial Republican Postwar Policy Association "were very reasonable," but added:

"I can't see why any one interested in Republican success in 1944 could call other Republicans a lot of names, when there seems to be no wide difference in the party."

Mayo Shattuck, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, chairman of the association's Resolutions Committee, told the New York gathering the people should be shown that the election of a Republican administration "does not mean another gang of inward-turning, narrow-minded, isolationist, stuffed shirts."

At Hingham, Mass., Mr. Shattuck last night urged Republican presidential candidates to "say clearly what is in their minds" and tell the Nation how they plan to prevent a recurrence of war.

"There is no virtue in throwing up a lot of dust about dividing the party," Mr. Shattuck said. "The party isn't going to be divided; it is going forward to a triumphant and united victory.

"There are several men in the United States who want the Republican nomination for the presidency. All they need to do and all the party chieftains need do is to say clearly how they stand on the great issue . . . what steps we are going to take as a Nation to prevent the recurrence of the tragedy of war?"

"Let these men speak out and then the people can choose the man big and broad enough for the job. We must get rid of any further wesseling; the people may be trusted to make the right choice, if the candidates only will say exactly what is in their minds."

The resolutions adopted, Senator Taft declared, were "about what I advocated more than two months ago with reference to planning now to assume responsibilities for co-operation with other nations to prevent future wars."

"There are no wide differences within the party as to goals," he continued, "only as to methods of reaching these goals."

"It will do neither the party nor the country any good to call names in discussions of what differences remain."

"Wholesome debate and discussion may help in a final solution. Such discussion should be on a high plane."

Senator Taft said he commended to some of the "hot-heads" the "calm and judicial" statement by Senator Austin, Republican, of Vermont, who told the New York meeting judgment "must be formed by the people" after "tests by debate and discussion on the platform, in the press and over the radio."

First of Four Barge Power Plants to Be Dedicated Monday

By the Associated Press.

The first of four floating power plants, any one of which could produce enough electricity for a city the size of Galveston, Topeka or Madison, Wis., will be commissioned into Government service next Monday at Pittsburgh.

A dedication ceremony is planned for the huge barge, built to be towed through the inland waterway system to places where war production demands exceed electric generating capacity, or breakdowns make an emergency power supply necessary.

J. A. Krug, director of the Office of War Utilities, who first announced plans for the revolutionary "floating power" more than a year ago, is expected to attend, along with other War Production Board officials, including Executive Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson.

A total of $13,000,000 is being spent on the four barges, each of which is 250 feet long and carries a completely equipped power plant with boilers, fuel oil tanks and auxiliaries. Capable of delivering 30,000 kilowatts at full output, the barges may be used separately by simply tying up to a point where a transmission line is available, or may be connected to provide a total of 120,000 kilowatts.

Built with Defense Plant Corp. funds by private contractors, the plants will be operated by Army engineers under direction of Mr. Krug's office. They will be leased to private or public utility firms.

Axis Planes Renew Bombing of Malta

By the Associated Press.

VALLETTA, Malta, July 21.—Axis aircraft made a "concentrated attack" on Malta last night, it was announced today.

Bombs fell in widespread areas, causing civilian damage. Heavy and light ack-ack sent up a formidable barrage against the enemy planes. Malta has been relatively free of air attacks since before the fall of Tunisia.

Youth Draft for Mines Essential, Bevin Says

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 21.—British boys from 18 to 18 years of age must be drafted for work in English coal mines to boost the lagging production of coal for the nation's war industries, Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, told the Blackpool Mine Workers' Federation yesterday.

Pleading with the federation not to "raise a political storm" over the issue, Mr. Bevin said it was urgent that 30,000 to 60,000 youths be called up. He disclosed that although 47,000 miners have returned to the pits from other higher-paid jobs, the number of miners has fallen to 690,000. He estimated the absolute minimum needed to keep production at the necessary level at 720,000 to 750,000.

Herebefore boys reaching the draft age have been given their choice of going into the armed forces or into

Odd Lottery Case Finally Is Decided

Argentina's queerest lottery case ended when the Federal Court, confirming a lower court decision, denied a lawyer any gain from the winning lottery ticket of his client.

The client was a fireman on a River Plate steamer who was arrested on a charge of smuggling Uruguayan lottery tickets into Argentina. Later, one of the tickets won $10,000 in gold, which the authorities in Buenos Aires collected through diplomatic channels.

The lawyer defending the fireman claimed the prize money because his client had transferred rights in the tickets to him, Judge Janius of the lower court held that no matter who owned the tickets, their possession was illegal and that they were, therefore, subject to confiscation.

Axis Equipment Taken In Africa Is Sent to Aberdeen for Tests

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—Tons of captured German and Italian war materiel, sand-incrusted but otherwise bearing few battle scars, are arriving in this country from North Africa for tests at the Aberdeen (Md.) Proving Grounds.

The Army will test its staying quality, firing power and armament with that of American-made materiel.

One such consignment, totaling an estimated 500 tons and representing what a War Department spokesman said was "some of the best equipment the enemy used in his effort to stop our boys in North Africa," was unloaded recently from the hold of a drab, weather-beaten ship at a United States port.

Cranes Lift Huge Tank.
Huge cranes, with a lifting capacity of 150 tons, raised from the ship onto waiting barges for transportation by rail to Aberdeen about 30 pieces of field equipment, including a 52-ton German Mark IV tank.

The tank was a present to President Roosevelt from the officers and men of an ordnance battalion, a stenciled inscription on its chassis disclosed. A similar model, a crew member had been presented to Prime Minister Churchill by British forces.

Scrawled in chalk over the 40-ton chassis (the turret when removed weighed 12 tons) were the names of about 25 members of the armed forces in North Africa.

Included in the cargo were 17 artillery pieces of 88 and 105 mm. size, mostly of high velocity and described as usable for antitank defense and as field pieces. One or two tank guns also were in the lot.

Crew Has Own Souvenirs.
Three sealed machine shops, one the size of a large moving van with all the equipment "necessary to make repairs to heavy tanks and artillery," were in the consignment. The others were described as a machine gun repair shop and an electrical shop.

Members of the crew of the merchant ship displayed their own collections of captured materiel. Ike Boone of Hattiesburg, Miss., showed an Iron Cross which he said he obtained from a German prisoner in exchange for a package of cigarettes.

Alvin P. Shores of Baltimore, Md., had a Hermann Goering Division armband. He said he was one of the first merchant marine men to land in Tunisia after its capture.

Amateur Mummifiers 47 Ration Points

By the Associated Press.
GREAT FALLS, Mont.—When even the gray was tough, Mrs. Andy Cowan began to worry—and rightly so.

Her husband, volunteering to prepare the roast, had rolled it in plaster of paris instead of flour.

Norden Planning Bombsights for Great Altitudes

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, July 21.—Scientists soon may improve the Norden bombsight to permit precision bombing from "unheard of altitudes," an executive of the concern producing the "country's No. 1 military secret" declared yesterday.

Theodore H. Barth of New York, president of Carl L. Norden, Inc., told the International Association of Lions Clubs that his concern's scientists and engineers right now are visualizing 10 to 20 years ahead—"just as they were visualizing bombing from a plane that could reach an altitude of 50,000 feet when precision bombing from 10,000 feet seemed fantastic."

The Norden bombsight, with its thousands of precision parts, is one of the world's most difficult instruments to manufacture, Mr. Barth said, because "its parts are held to such close tolerances as to make the finest watch a crude gadget by comparison."

"And that is why we do not worry about reports that the enemy may have captured some of our sights by this time. The enemy couldn't duplicate the Norden bombsight and its related equipment within at least two years. Even if they could duplicate it by that time it would take them another two years to get into production and then there would be the tremendous problem of training the bombardiers."

Army Given Priority Over Jail Term

By the Associated Press.
PORTLAND, Oreg.—Richard S. Sherman, 18, was ordered to jail to serve out a $175 fine for speeding and driving without a license.

Then the judge heard his story—and released him. Sherman explained he had to speed—or be late for Army induction.

Gas Coupon Signing By All Motorists Starts Tomorrow

All motorists throughout the country will have to identify their ration coupons by writing in the State of registration and license number of their cars in advance of purchases, under an Office of Price Administration regulation effective tomorrow.

Motorists outside the East where new A books have been distributed will identify all coupons on the face, but OPA ruled that Eastern car owners may continue to place the required data on the back of coupons until new books are distributed in this section some time this autumn.

Beginning tomorrow, however, no service station is permitted to sell gasoline to a motorist unless the registration and license number have been placed on the coupons surrendered.

OPA had said all holders of high-way gasoline rations would have to identify coupons at the time they receive new books or, where old books were valid for some time, the required data must be placed on all coupons by tomorrow.

The new requirement applies to all holders of A, B, C and D (motorcycle) ration books.

In the case of holders of the new TT (commercial) rations, which become valid July 25, the requirements are somewhat different. Where ration books are used interchangeably among vehicles of a fleet of trucks, cabs or buses, the official fleet designation must be placed on the front of coupons. When TT rations apply solely to a particular commercial vehicle, the number of the certificate of war necessity is required.

The District OPA pointed out also that the number of the Federal use stamp appearing on the windshield of each vehicle should be shown on the cover of A ration book issued for any privately-owned vehicle that is not part of a fleet.

Nazis Kill Frenchman For Aiding U. S. Flyer

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said today that an innkeeper in the French town of Cormelles had been put to death by order of a German military court for giving overnight shelter to an American aviator.

The broadcast, recorded by the OWI, did not disclose the fate of the American, who was said to have bailed out near the town.

Bergman Hopes Skins Can Match Wismer's Broadcasting

Dutch Bergman, whose task it will be to construct the Redskins' second wartime team, was introduced by Masters of Ceremonies Ray Michael after the guests had gobbled tri-colored ice cream at the Hotel Statler. "I don't know what kind of a team we'll have," began Dutch, "but I know that if we're successful on the field as Harry Wismer is up in the radio booth I can promise another championship club for Washington."

The occasion was the introduction of husky Wismer, new voice of the Redskins, who made a special trip to the village to meet the gang. Represented was a coast-to-coast collection of coaches, sports writers and broadcasters that included Pete Cawthon, new mentor of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Doc Spears, Maryland's athletic director; Bill Henry, former sports editor of the Los Angeles Times who now is CBS's chief; Columnist Leo MacDonnell of the Detroit Times and Redskins Bob Masterson, Bob McChesney and Joe Zeno.

Arch McDonald, the baseball broadcaster, had touted Arch McDonald, the horse slater, as his first start today at Garden State, and Cartoonist Jim Berryman had been besieged for some of his originals when the brief speeches started.

Dutch Hasn't Answer Now

"This reminds me of when I was playing football under Rockne at Notre Dame," said Bergman. "I lacked a credit or two so I signed up for Rockne's chemistry class, figuring the course would be a snap. After all, he was the football coach and I was one of his players, so the setup seemed ideal."

"Well, shortly before Christmas vacation Rockne gave me a written examination and it was tough. The last question on the exam was so tough, in fact, that I scrawled across the space left for an answer, 'Only God can answer this.'"

"I went home for Christmas and I thought it might be a good idea to cement relations with Rock, so I wrote him, inquiring casually about the outcome of the examination and wishing him a Merry Christmas."

"Several days later I received a letter from Rock. It read, 'God gets an A. You get an F. Happy New Year.'"

Wismer Is Appreciative

"Well, that sort of explains the Redskins for the coming season. I don't know what kind of a team we'll have—too many things can happen. I hope, though, that we won't disappoint you."

General Manager Sid Carroll revealed elusive-hipper Andy Farkas may not be available to the Redskins.

Game Stocks Great, New Code Gives Nimrods More Time

Early rising sportsmen will get in an extra half hour of hunting today during the open season on migratory game birds this year.

The 1943 hunting regulations, just announced by Interior Secretary Ickes, permit shooting to begin a half hour before sunrise, 30 minutes earlier than last season. As last year, it must end at sunset.

This good news for the Nation's 8,000,000 bird hunters was accompanied by word from Ickes' Fish and Wildlife Life Service that game stocks this season would be "decidedly big" with the "greatest southward flight of ducks and geese in a couple of decades."

Get More Ammunition. Furthermore, it was reported that the Government would make available some additional ammunition to sportsmen, although "not much should be expected."

Changes in open seasons announced included, for West Virginia, on woodcock, from October 15 to October 29, and for Maryland, on rails and gallinules (except coot), from September 1 to October 31.

Villain Singh to Take Mat With Steinborn Tonight

Nanjo Singh, a favorite villain with local mat fans, will struggle with Milo Steinborn tonight at Turner's Arena in one of a pair of feature attractions on the weekly mat card.

Other matches will find Tony Martelli grappling with John Vansky, the Mask meeting Abe Yeurist and Angelo Savoldi facing Sailor Corby. The first of the preliminaries will start at 8:45.

Langston Center Takes Region Track Meet

Langston Recreation Center's track team compiled 73 points to capture Region I honors yesterday in a colored playground meet at Brown Junior High School. Loveloy was second with 68 points, while Logan was third with 49.

James Bailey of Logan won the 50-yard dash and broadjump in the 75-pound class.

Philpitt's Methods Seen as Degrading Pro Grid Loop

Denny says these mid-summer practice sessions and using part-time players who work at other jobs "label us as Humpty Dumpty outfits. We don't want to play in town team manner while we're still charging big league prices."

Berg, Hicks Head Fair Players; Chambers Is Amateur Medalist

By CHARLES DUNKLEY, Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, July 21.—Golf on a tremendous scale—three tournaments rolled into one—was presented with theatrical setting in the Tam O'Shanter extravaganza today.

The tournament became the Nation's biggest show of the year when the professionals and women joined the amateur ensemble which has held the stage since Monday.

There were 200 swingers in action—105 professionals, 64 amateurs and 31 women.

While the surviving 64 qualifiers in the All-America Amateur were sweeping through their first day of match play, the pros battled for 71 places in the $10,000 All-America Open and the women played for 18 spots in their tournament.

Both of which start tomorrow at 72 holes of medal play.

Nelson Is Heavy Favorite. Blond Byron Nelson of Toledo, twice winner of the Tam Open, was rated as a topheavy favorite to repeat, while Patty Berg, famed crackie-red reedhead of Minneapolis and Betty Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., were favored to dominate the women's tournament.

The Misses Berg and Hicks are considered several shots better at medal play than any other girl player in the field.

Due to the list of pros exempted from playing a qualifying round today, none of the big guns in the pro ranks unsacked their shots other than in practice rounds. This situation gave the amateurs and the women the spotlight in today's play.

Nelson played a few practice holes, but was hitting the ball with rare skill. With many of the leading pros in the armed service, Nelson promises to shadow the field even more than in previous championships.

Since few of the pros had any competition of importance this summer, opposition to Nelson's third straight victory may come from unexpected sources.

Harbert Is Chief Threat. One of the youngsters who threatens to give Nelson a battle is Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich. Harbert was actually in the tournament field before the war and won the St. Paul Open last summer.

Clayton Haefner, now a sergeant in the Army, tied Nelson in the 1942 Tam Open, only to lose in the play-off. Haefner, who is pounding the ball for long distances, also is in the challenging class along with Lloyd Mangrum, the Californian, and Alan Francis, the former Australian amateur.

The windup of a qualifying round yesterday for amateurs installed Bill Chambers, a sailor from the nearby Great Lakes Naval Training Station, as medalist, with a 36-hole total of 145, the lowest card in a field of 250.

Plays Without Sleep. Chambers, a third-class storekeeper at the world's largest naval training station, played without sleep. He was on duty all night and at 6 a.m. he went to school to take an examination for second class seaman.

Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., runner-up to Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., in last year's Tam Amateur, sizzled to a subpar 70 yesterday, the lowest round of the tournament. He placed his bid along with six others in the 144 delegation.

Runner-up to Chambers at 147 was Walter Kroll of South Bend, Ind. Then came a pair of Chicago veterans, Art Doering, former trans-Mississippi champion, and Steve Kohn, cracked at 144, a score of 160 or under was necessary to qualify.

The only better known veteran who failed to qualify was Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., former Western amateur champion and member of the Walker Cup team.

Metheny, Yankees' Forgotten Man, Suddenly Sparkles

NEW YORK, July 21.—His chance was a long time coming, but Arthur Bearegard (Bud) Metheny has made good with the New York Yankees.

Metheny was a star outfielder for the Newark Bears in the International League last year and when the American League champions brought him to training camp this season he, and almost everybody else, thought the youngster from Norfolk, Va., would be the regular rightfielder.

Bud would have been, too, except for two things. One of them was that he is a young married man with no children and eligible for a draft call at any moment. The other was that Long John Lindell, the converted pitcher, sprouted as bright as a dandelion in the spring batting averages.

Keller's Injury Gives Him Chance. Manager Joe McCarthy reasoned that to use Metheny might mean he would have to break up his outfield combination at any time and since Lindell was slugging everything in sight, Lindell went to the pasture that Babe Ruth made famous and Metheny went to a corner of the dugout where he became the club's forgotten man.

He still might be there moldering in the shadows if Charley (King Kong) Keller had not been injured.

Louis Overswings In Golf Tourney

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 21.—Missing from the list of 64 qualifiers for the All-America Amateur championship in Tam O'Shanter's mammoth golf show today was Sgt. Joe Louis of the United States Army.

Louis, the heavyweight boxing champion, took 86 swings at the little white ball yesterday for a 36-hole total of 173 and failed to get into the select list. However, he will continue to play exhibition golf daily until the tournament winds up next Sunday.

Cards Look to Brazle As Slab Troubles Come in Bunch

By the Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals, smack at the mid-way mark in their National League pennant quest, open the hard half of the campaign today by playing a 21-game home stand—and the pitching troubles that have plagued the team since Billy Southworth feel like a motherless child.

He's beckoned in a rookie, Alpha (Al) Brazle, from the Cards' Sacramento farm, and Brazle probably will start the nightcap of today's double-header with the New York Giants.

The Cards pace the pack by 3 1/2 games—a margin which could fade quicker than last week's haircut, with another session or two like that closing road visit in Pittsburgh last week. The Redbirds dropped four of five decisions there and word has gotten around that they aren't what they used to be.

Nash Meets Watson In Duckpin Special; Lucy Rose Victor

By the Associated Press

Turning on the heat against an old rival, Lucy Rose, the Nation's new duckpin queen, last night at Silver Spring handily defeated Lorraine Gull by a score of 645 to 551 and before calling it quits posted top scratch in the women's section of the War bond tournament which continues tonight with Ed Nash and Ray Watson. District stars, shooting it out in a five-game special attraction at 8 o'clock.

Two youngsters and their mother also played conspicuous parts in the third day of War bond tournament which runs until July 31, when Mrs. Evelyn Puryear, secretary of the Women's Country Club League, marked up high game of 126 before 6 o'clock and her 14-year-old daughter Sally tied with Rachel Culp for top scratch in the women's section with a gross 414, rolling 285 from scratch, while 11-year-old Dick Puryear gained sixth place in the men's division with 426. His games were 91, 95 and 81 from scratch.

Rolling for the second time Samuel FINE of Silver Spring moved from fourth place into a third-place tie with Billy Mitchell with 430. Others to move among the leaders in the tournament in which the winners will receive more than $3,800 in prizes were R. E. Holt, Building Supply League, 102-427; Ben Cady, Methodist Church League, 162-423; and John (Shorty) Moyer, Southern Railway, 66-422. Sue Paula Stokes, Silver Spring, with 73-396, and Nina Wyant, Ladies' Federal League, with 73-396, tied for third place in the women's class.

Katherine Jones of Brookland Ladies' League edged fifth place with 73-395 and Mildred Hewitt moved to sixth with 144-365.

Arville Ebersole, the bond-selling National Duckpin Bowling Congress executive, reported total sales of $2,125 for the day.

Tonight's special match between Nash and Watson promises another real bowling battle. Both veterans, Nash is at the peak of his game and during last season won the Red Bird Open 11-10. Watson, who was the Virginia State Open, besides being one of the few pinmen to post a 200 score. Watson, with an average of 127-58, missed the District League championship by only nine pins.

Byron Nelson May Play Here in September

By the Associated Press

Byron Nelson, 1939 national open golf champion and twice winner of the Tam O'Shanter Open, now being played in Chicago, may come here to play an exhibition benefit links match, according to word received from him by Pro Cliff Spencer.

Nelson generally is rated the top playing pro of the Nation not in the armed services. He has been deferred by his draft board.

Minor Leagues In Service Uniforms

By the Associated Press

Neatest trick of the week: Find a nesting champion who isn't wearing a uniform.

The National Boxing Association in its quarterly ratings released last night listed as the champions of the gate-attracting divisions:

Heavyweight—Joe Louis, United States Army. Light heavyweight—Gus Lesawick, United States Coast Guard.

Middleweight—Tony Zeno, United States Navy. Welterweight—Freddie Cochrane, United States Navy.

Logical contenders for Billy Crown, the NBA said, were Billy Conn, also the Army; Melio Bettina and Jimmy Bivins. Cochrane's closest rivals were posted as Ray Robinson, also of the Army, and the perennial Henry Armstrong. There wasn't much to choose in the light heavy and middle classes.

Other champions listed were Jackie Callura of Canada, featherweight; Manuel Ortiz, California, bantam, and Little Dado of the Philippines, flyweight.

SMOKE GETS IN THEIR EYES

—By JIM BERRYMAN

Minus Holdout Andy Farkas, Redskins Hike for San Diego

Andy Farkas, fast-moving Redskin back, today is a holdout for more money and says he will not report to the Redskins unless he gets it. Andy has a job with the Engineering Research Corp. in nearby Maryland.

The advance guard of the pro football champs was to leave Union Station at 5:20 this afternoon on the first leg of the long trip to their training base at San Diego, Calif., where they'll stay nearly four weeks.

Players definitely to go from here were Bob McChesney, Bob Masterson, Bob Seymour, Joe Zeno, George Smith, Al Fiorentino and Dave Bernard, along with President George P. Marshall, Coach Dutch Bergman and General Manager Sid Carroll.

The Skins' advance guard will be guests at a luncheon tomorrow at the Illinois Athletic Club, arranged by the sponsor of the College All-Star game in which the world champs will be the featured outfit at Duche Stadium, Evanston, Ill., August 25. The Skins will train at a school about a dozen miles from San Diego and are scheduled to play an intra-squad Shrine benefit game there August 15.

Between Washington and San Diego the group will be augmented by players heading from their homes or jobs for the training camp.

Major Leagues Use Breathing Spell to Gird for Stretch Run

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Staff Writer

The major leagues are heading into the home stretch today with plenty of opportunity as well as determination to shuffle the standings before the end of the season.

There has been comparatively little action on the field since the two big leagues took time out 10 days ago for the All-Star show, but this breathing spell has been used by many of the clubs to gird themselves for the grind ahead.

More player swaps have been made in the last week than in any similar period since the 1942 campaign closed. The Brooklyn Dodgers have undergone a house cleaning that has sent Pitcher Bob Newsum to the St. Louis Browns, Outfielder Joe Medwick to the New York Giants and Catcher Bill Moore to the Philadelphia Phillies.

More Deals Likely Soon. Many other clubs, even the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, have dipped into the farm systems for additional strength and some more moves of this character probably will be completed before the week is over.

Now all the changes will add up to the standings remains to be seen, but both the Browns and Giants appear to be strengthened and hope to rise.

St. Louis now is just half a game out of the first division and with the acquisition of Newsum, who was one of the Nation's League's leading hurlers until he became involved in the revolt of the Dodgers, yet may get into the battle for the American League pennant.

The team is nine games behind the first-place New York Yankees, but only three and a half back of the second-place Washington Senators. Manager Luke Sewell was given a new two-year contract yesterday and recently two of his star players, Vernon Stephens and George McQuinn, were turned down by the Army, thus stabilizing the whole picture for the Browns. Their test will start today with the opening of a series against the Yanks.

Altogether 11 games are on tap today and tonight, with the Eastern clubs of the National League heading into the West and the Western clubs of the American League invading the East.

Sewell Back 14th Victory. The Phillies and Pirates beat their rivals to the draw with a game at Pittsburgh last night which the Buccaners captured 1-0 in Trust (Rip) Sewell's 14th victory against two defeats. His five-hit hurling was matched by Richard (Kewpie) Barrett of the Phillies, but the Pirates bunched three of their singles for the only run of the game in the second inning.

During the rally the Pirates got involved in an argument with Umpire George Magerkurth and two of them, Bob Elliott and Max Butcher, were banished. This forced Manager Frank Frisch to use Outfielder Tommy O'Brien on third base because of his desperate shortage of infielders.

Tigers, Here for Four Tilts, Out to Gain Second Position

A challenge to Washington's second-place status will be issued by the Detroit Tigers tonight when they move into Griffith Stadium for the opener of a four-game series, with the Nats seeking to tie their longest winning streak of the season.

Washington will be pursuing a fourth straight victory, and in an effort to keep his Nats geared at top speed Manager Ossie Bluege will dispatch Mito Candini after his eighth triumph, a goal that has eluded the trim Italian in five successive starts.

Harold Newhouser, who permitted the Nats only five hits and one run the last time he faced them, also will be shooting for his eighth win. The slim southpaw was beaten by the Nats in his only other start against them.

Johnson Back in Garden. Candini twice has trimmed the Tigers, but the last time he opposed them Mito traveled eight innings, permitting only five hits, only to be lifted for a pinch-hitter in a game ultimately won by Detroit in 16 innings.

Outfielder Bob Johnson, absent from Sunday's two victories over the Red Sox, will return to left field. Bob suffered a sprained left hand attempting a diving catch Saturday night but now is ready for action.

Ready for duty, too, is Third Baseman Ellis Clary, who sprained his ankle three weeks ago at Chicago. Clary's return to the line-up will be delayed, though, pending a more exhaustive examination of Sherry Robertson, who played third base acceptably as the Nats took three straight from Boston.

Griffs Bow to Belvoir. Detroit is bringing the league's third leading hitter in Outfielder Dick Wakefield, batting .323 and representing some of the power with which the Tigers hope to grasp second place before leaving town. Washington now owns a 1 1/2-game lead over Detroit.

Washington got some bad baseball out of its system yesterday as it dropped a 7-2 decision to Fort Belvoir at the nearby Army post. Dewey Adkins and Ewald Pyle were thumped for 15 hits by the Soldiers, while George Myatt and Red Marion accounted for the Nats' scoring with home runs. They were two of the five hits Washington obtained off Ed Grovelney.

Pomerantz Is Fleetest In Circling Bases

Harry Pomerantz circled the bases in 177 seconds to win the 135-pound class base running contest conducted by the Boys' Club of Washington yesterday at Hoover Playground. Second was Arthur Smith and third was Roland Baldwin.

George Charuhars won the 105-pound class competition, while Allen Stadler took the 90-pound class run, with John Stevens finishing second and Lee Peed third.

Mar Outpoints Florida

LOS ANGELES, July 21 (AP)—Tony Mar, 136, of Sonora, Mexico, last night won a decision over Jimmy Florida, 137, Stockton, Calif., at the end of a 10-round bout in which Mar knocked his opponent through the ropes once and twice had him down for a count of nine.

Hill Wins Munny Net Tilt

Only one match was played yesterday in the Public Parks tennis tournament at East Potomac Park courts and in that Ensign R. L. Hill defeated Lee Wood, 6-4, 6-2. Two singles matches and three doubles battles were to be played today.

Fights Last Night

Weakened Wills Bows To Bob Montgomery As 10,288 Watch

"We knew Saturday night that trimming down to 145 pounds had sapped his strength too much," says Bob Hayden, one of Frankie Wills' handlers, in explaining the local welterweight's decision defeat by Bob Montgomery, world lightweight champion, last night at Griffith Stadium.

"Frankie just didn't have the stamina for the distance," explained Hayden. "He didn't have anything to eat from 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon until 6 o'clock yesterday. He simply was burned up inside. He can't give his best fight at 145 pounds."

"I'd like for Wills to meet Montgomery at 147 pounds. Drying out to make 145 pounds took too much out of Frankie—he didn't have anything in his tank for the last round. I think he could win a return match with more weight on his frame."

Wills has no complaint to register with the unanimous decision. Before the decision was announced, in fact, Wills conceded he had lost weight in his head through the ropes and said to reporters, "Making that weight was too much for me. I just didn't have anything left."

That described the bout, but none of the 10,288 fans who paid $17-942.60 to view the struggle felt short-changed. For five rounds Wills had them visioning an upset, but he sagged badly in the sixth and seventh sessions as the colored lightweight division ruler took command.

Wills captured three of the first five rounds, employing a sharp left jab to compile a lead. In the fifth round he butted open a slight cut over Montgomery's right eye after possible trouble had been averted when they exchanged blows after the bell in the third round.

Punches to Body Decried. Starting in the sixth round, however, Montgomery's relentless body attack paid off. Wills' punches lost their sting and as their effectiveness evaporated Bob banged Frankie's midsection almost at will, threatening to dispose of the local lad in round seven. White and second rounds before Wills braced and hugged his way through the final three rounds.

Herbert Marshall, New York heavyweight, chided Jimmy Napolitano after a minute 53 seconds of action in the fifth round. Napolitano kayoed Jack Dwyer, Philadelphia featherweight, drop Jack Butler of Baltimore.

In other preliminaries, Billy Banks, local colored lad, traveled eight rounds to register a decision triumph over Jesse Domingo, Rozza and Larry Torpey outpointed Jimmy Jeannette, local bantamweight, in a blistering five-round battle.

Workers Are Needed To Maintain Vital Civilian Services

Steps to recruit 50,000 more non-Government workers needed in the Metropolitan Area in the next eight months to maintain vital production goals and essential civilian services were taken today by local officials of the War Manpower Commission...

Mr. Hetzel said a report by Jack A. Serber, area labor market analyst, after a survey of conditions in the various essential industries and services.

Mr. Hetzel said an extension of the minimum wartime work week was under consideration, with a view of "the fullest utilization of workers currently employed."

Expansion of day nurseries was mentioned as one necessity if womanpower is to be used fully.

Mr. Hetzel said that about 11,000 workers are unemployed, though this figure included unemployables.

While many persons are believed to have left Washington because of difficult living conditions, with others fearing to come here, a WMC spokesman said the Federal Housing Administration is pushing its consideration of essential civilian needs in planning its future program.

Out of the more than 50,000 workers who will be needed, Mr. Hetzel said, about 11,000 will represent net additions to the labor force of this area.

The number of workers in the District area has increased by almost 250,000 since March 1, 1940, it was estimated.

The extraordinarily rapid expansion of population and working force in the area, Mr. Hetzel said, has placed an unprecedented burden on housing, transportation, day care for children and community facilities.

Mr. Hetzel also said that "wages will have to be increased and adequate housing provided if Washington is to compete with industrial areas."

WMC officials are engaged in a series of meetings with associations of laundries, restaurants, food and fuel distributors and hotels, apartment and office building maintenance to discuss the situation and agree on means to relieve it.

Part-time work was mentioned as one possibility. Mr. Hetzel pointed out that "in other 'white-collar' cities, workers employed in sedentary occupations have been utilized for additional time."

Higher Wages Held Necessary. Mr. Hetzel also said that "wages will have to be increased and adequate housing provided if Washington is to compete with industrial areas."

Ralph McCabe, make-up editor of The Star, who has given many hours of volunteer service as a Red Cross first-aid instructor, was named "V-man of the week" by the Junior Board of Commerce at a special ceremony yesterday on the stage of the Palace Theater.

Mr. McCabe, who lives at 6124 Thirtieth street N.W., has been with The Star since 1926.

Mr. Mileham cited Mr. McCabe's editorials in The Star on safety and the first-aid classes which he has been conducting since Pearl Harbor, both in primary first aid and instructor training, as being particularly meritorious.

Huff Opposes Institution Here For Alcoholics

Says Gallinger and Workhouse Provide Facilities Now

Ray L. Huff, District welfare director, today took issue with the recommendation of Wilbur L. Roe, Jr., chairman of the Committee on Civic Affairs of the Washington Federation of Churches, that an institution be founded in the post-war period for the care and rehabilitation of inebriates.

"I think it would be most unwise to become involved in any large expenditure of public funds for a specialized service for alcoholics until we can be sure that there is more than an experimental proposition," Mr. Huff declared in a memorandum to Commissioner Guy Mason.

Mr. Huff said the immediate problem was the length of time that alcoholics must serve in the workhouse "before we can approach our problem realistically."

Mr. Huff argued that the correctional services are inadequate in this problem any more so than medical services are inadequate, for the simple reason that these persons come to us for such a brief time that it is unreasonable to assume that the time allowed to us is enough to interrupt the habits established by the use of alcohol.

Mr. Huff said that the correction of alcoholism in any case involves re-establishing the moral and ethical factors concerned, and "this problem includes more than any institution, whether it be a hospital or correctional institution. It is the sort of thing that in social work is referred to as 'case work.'"

2 D. C. Area Flyers Get Decorations for Raids Over Europe

Col. Stillman Prisoner of Germans Also Cited

Col. Robert M. Stillman, formerly of 3734 North Dittmar road, Arlington, who was captured by the Germans when the entire flight of bombers under his command failed to return after a raid over Europe May 16, has been awarded the Silver Star Medal, the War Department announced today.

Col. Stillman was first reported missing after his bomber failed to return, but a week later he was reported being held a prisoner of war by the Germans.

In a letter to his wife, a niece of Mrs. John K. Herr, wife of Maj. Gen. Herr of Washington, Col. Stillman said he was in a German prison hospital suffering from a slight wound. He said he expected to be transferred to a prison camp in the near future.

A native of Colorado, Col. Stillman attended Colorado College at Colorado Springs, and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1935.

After graduating from Hyattsville High School, Lt. Padgett was employed as a mechanic in a local automobile firm. He had a pilot's license and also was part-owner of an airplane. He received his civilian flying training at Schrom Airport in Greenbelt.

Ration Official Forgets How To Open Safe

Locked Securely Inside the Safe

Ration applicants at Board No. 30, 3000 Wisconsin avenue, and Quaker street N.W., were turned away for about an hour this morning while the substitute chief clerk tried to remember the combination to the safe.

Locked securely inside the safe was the board's supply of ration coupons.

Mr. Mudd, the acting chief, said Head Clerk Robert U. Geib gave him the combination to the safe yesterday before departing for his vacation. This morning, however, Mr. Mudd couldn't open the lock with the numbers he remembered.

After "fiddling" with the lock for nearly an hour, he finally hit on the proper combination, Mr. Mudd said.

High Military Leaders Invited to Review Civil Defense Parade

Roosevelt Commends Commissioners' Efforts To Maintain OCD

The Arrangements Committee for the civilian defense parade July 30 announced last night that invitations to review the parade had been sent out to more than a score of prominent Government and city officials and their wives and civic leaders.

Meanwhile, in a letter to Commissioner Young, President Roosevelt commended the Commissioners' efforts to keep the District's volunteer Civilian Defense Services at maximum strength.

Women to Aid Restaurant Price Rollback Work

Volunteers Will Help In Obtaining Typical April 4-to-10 Menus

A plan under which several hundred eating places here neglected to turn in copies of these menus, which were to have been in the hands of OPA by the week of May 2, a local OPA spokesman estimated.

The spokesman explained that the menus are needed for enforcement of the rollback order, which freezes restaurant prices in the District, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York at the April 4 to 10 level.

The spokesman said, however, that the District OPA does not regard previous failure to turn in the menus as an intentional violation and will take no action against the restaurant operators who turn in the menus now.

Price clerks, recently employed to handle clerical work for the District's 15 neighborhood price panels, are checking the names of establishments which have turned in menus against the list of those that have applied for food rations, the spokesman said.

District Swelters, No Relief in Sight

Three Persons Victims Of Latest Heat Wave

District residents were sweltering again today, and the Weather Bureau saw no prospects for immediate relief.

The maximum temperature was expected at least to equal yesterday's high of 91, registered at 3:30 p.m., the forecaster said. The mercury at noon had reached 89 degrees.

Three victims of heat prostration were reported yesterday before the thunderstorm pushed the mercury down into the low 80s.

Robert Dunn, 47, of 801 31st, MacArthur boulevard, Md., collapsed at his work at Glen Echo Park at 4 p.m. and was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Essential Workers Can't Shift for Pay

Barred From Changing Jobs Without Release

Managers of several local services, including laundries and restaurants, have asked the War Manpower Commission to correct an erroneous impression which has gained circulation here to the effect that a new regulation was to be issued next Monday allowing workers in essential industries receiving "substandard" wages to take better paying jobs without obtaining a release from their employers.

Mr. Huff said also that certain improvements in housing at the workhouse should be added and that they could be used for the different types of inmates.

Such an improvement to the workhouse services, he said, would take care of the alcoholic who is offensive to the community.

Mr. Huff said that the correction of alcoholism in any case involves re-establishing the moral and ethical factors concerned, and "this problem includes more than any institution, whether it be a hospital or correctional institution. It is the sort of thing that in social work is referred to as 'case work.'"

Hotel Owner Receives 6 Months in Vice Case

Samuel Ishkanian, 53, Owner of 'New York Hotel'

Samuel Ishkanian, 53, owner of the "New York Hotel," 612 F street N.W., was sentenced today by Municipal Judge Hobart Newman to six months in jail plus a $500 fine for operating a disorderly house.

Opposing the defendant's plea for leniency, police last month, Assistant United States Attorney John B. Diamond told the court:

"Only by meting out heavy sentences can these small hotel operators be deterred from renting their premises for immoral purposes. If Washington's high general disease rate is to be wiped out, small hotels here must be carefully watched."

Three other defendants arrested in the raid pleaded not guilty and demanded jury trials.

Torpedoing Survivor Among 85 Soldiers Given Citizenship

William Plotnik, 22, a native of Latvia, who has survived three ship torpedoings, late yesterday was among 85 soldiers naturalized as American citizens in District Court ceremonies.

In this country when the war started in Europe, Mr. Plotnik made his way to England in an effort to join the Royal Air Force. He was thwarted, however, he explained, due to citizenship formalities. Subsequently he served for two years in the Merchant Marine. One of the ships hit by a torpedo managed to limp into port. Mr. Plotnik explained, but two others were sunk. On one occasion he landed on shore in a lifeboat after two days at sea. Another time he was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter near Trinidad.

Native German Naturalized. A graduate of a university at Riga, Mr. Plotnik declared he liked becoming an American "very much indeed."

Those naturalized included Louis Barth, 37, a native of Germany, who was in France on a trip when the war began in Europe. He volunteered for service in the French Army, he said, and later served with the British expeditionary forces. He expressed himself as being violently opposed to the persecution of the Jews by the Germans.

"Today is the happiest day in my life," he said, adding that his wife in New York would be as happy over his American citizenship.

Hopes to "Do His Duty." "Maybe I will have a chance one day to save my parents in Belgium," said Mr. Barth, adding: "I am very grateful to this country for giving me a chance to be a full-fledged citizen." He hopes to repay this country, he said, by doing his duty in "every respect."

Eric William Walder, 32, who holds a degree of doctor of jurisprudence and is a native of Switzerland, also was naturalized. He formerly owned a motion picture theater in Switzerland, he said, and since coming to this country some four or five years ago has worked as a cost accountant.

All but a few of the 85 naturalized arrived in a motor caravan from Camp Ritchie in Maryland.

Cousin of Stimson Attended Von Arnim

By NAT A. BARROWS, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

LONDON, July 21.—Maj. Barbara Bartlett Stimson, first cousin of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, was one of two women doctors who attended Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, the Nazis' North African commander, when he was taken to a British Army hospital recently. Maj. Stimson, the only American woman officer in the Royal Army Medical Corps, is a distinguished orthopedic surgeon.

The extent of Von Arnim's ailments and the nature of the treatment are not revealed but he is reported to be suffering from a foot ailment and a mental disturbance. It is significant that Maj. Amy Thoms, widely known for her methods of treating neurosis, was also assigned to his case.

Maj. Stimson is reported to have said that the Nazi general is a "good patient."

Another German general, Von Kramer, has been under treatment at the same army hospital suffering from sinus trouble, a common ailment among veterans of desert campaigning.

Newcomers Among Chileans In the Capital Expected

Gen. Arturo Espinosa, head of the Chilean Military Mission, will leave the end of next week for Mexico City, where he has been invited by the Mexican Army. He will spend a short time in Mexico, visiting the various military posts and manufacturing centers before going on to Chile about August 2. Gen. Espinosa has been relieved of his post here and shortly after his arrival in Chile he will assume his new post as chief of the Chilean Army.

Gen. Oscar Puentes has been appointed to succeed Gen. Espinosa as head of the military mission here and is expected to arrive in Washington the middle of August.

The air mission from Chile also will have a new head, as Commodore Rafael Saenz has returned to Chile to take over the directing of the National Air Lines of his country.

The Chilean government owns and manages both the air lines and the railroads and Commodore Saenz has been transferred from his post here as chief of the air mission. He will be succeeded by Group Capt. Raul Gonzalez, former undersecretary of aviation, who already has arrived in this country, having come to California. He will start East shortly and is expected to arrive in Washington before the first of the month.

Gen. and Senora de Espinosa have made many friends here during their comparatively short stay and are being extensively entertained before their departure. Yesterday Senora de Espinosa was honor guest at luncheon given by Mrs. Edward Porter, wife of the secretary general of the Inter-American Defense Board. The party was given at El Retiro, an unofficial club for members of the board and its secretariat. The place is the former summer home of the late M. B. F. Saul in Kensington, Md.

Group Capt. Gonzalez is a brother of the former Commercial Counselor of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Higinio Gonzalez, who now is Counselor of the Chilean Embassy in Rio de Janeiro.

Senor Jorge Delano, editor of Topaze, a weekly political magazine of Santiago, has been invited to visit this country by the Department of State. Senor Delano also is a leading motion picture producer of Chile and he is making the trip by boat, having sailed from his native land early in June. Senor Delano will visit his son, Senor Jorge Delano, Jr., who has been connected with the motion picture industry in Hollywood for some time. After his visit in California Senor Delano, Sr., will come East and visit Washington before returning to Chile.

The Norwegian Ambassador, M. Willem Munthe de Morgenstjerne, was host at a late afternoon party yesterday, entertaining in honor of Maj. Gen. Marie-Emile Bethouart, head of Gen. The award was made because of Gen. Bethouart's successful part in the retaking of Narvik, a seaport in the north of Norway, following the German invasion. The Ambassador also presented the War Cross to the naval attaché of the Embassy, Capt. Per Askim, who was in command of Norwegian naval units during the German invasion.

By the Way—

BETH BLAINE

Every Red Cross Gray Lady in the District of Columbia is placed in the hospital where she serves by Mrs. Atherton Macondray. Mrs. Macondray's official title, by the way, is vice chairman of Gray Ladies and head of the placement committee for the District. She is herself a member of the Gray Lady unit which serves at the Naval Hospital, which is only natural, since her husband is a naval officer—a captain. Ever since she made her debut in the Nation's Capital, as Helen Tucker, Mrs. Macondray has contributed more than her share of work to civic enterprises. She has always been prominent in Junior League work and helped their benefit entertainments to the outstanding successes that they were when she served as chairman of publicity for the league. She is on the board of the House of Mercy, a member of the Garden Club of Alexandria, Va., and a member of the Navy Relief Board.

Since the war the Macondrays have made their home in Washington proper, but they manage to get out to their lovely old house in Seminary Hill, just outside of Alexandria, for week ends—and the entire family joins in working on the farm. Mrs. Macondray has three daughters. The eldest, Mary Lord Andrews, is a nurse's aide; the next, Helen Tucker Andrews, is at business school here in Washington, and the artist of the family, Carter Randolph Andrews, is studying art in New York.

She looks far too young to be the mother of a 21-year-old daughter. She is brisk, and tailored and neat as a pin. There are no frills about her, either her appearance or her temperament. She is forthright and sincere, and you're pretty sure that she means what she says and she isn't going to beat about the bush. When she tackles a job you can be sure it's going to be well done. But don't think that because she is so very efficient about the serious side of life she can't be fun, too. She has a wonderful sense of humor, and is as popular as a matron with her own contemporaries as she was with the young fry back in the days when she was an outstanding belle in Washington society.

Mr. Steinberg had Lt. Douglas S. Steinberg, his brother, as his best man and the ushers were Mr. Robert Chaney of College Park, Mr. Clifford Wannan of Silver Spring, Mr. Willis Todd of Preston, Md., and Mr. Alan Mayer of Annapolis.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority house at College Park, of which the bride is a member. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg left for a wedding trip in the South. For traveling the bride wore a brown silk suit with matching accessories, and a white orchid. The couple will reside in College Park.

Mrs. Steinberg attended the University of Maryland and the bridegroom is a recent graduate of the college of commerce of the same university. He is a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity.

Mrs. Stevenson Back From South

Mrs. Victoria Faber Stevenson, president of the National League of American Pen Women, has just returned from a two-week tour of the South, where she attended the Huckleberry Writers' conference at Hendersonville, N. C.

Keynote of the conference was the responsibility of the writer in wartime. During the discussion sessions the men and women present, most of whom were Southern writers of note, showed their contribution to the prosecution of the war effort. Many of the group are members of the Writers' War Board.

Before returning to Washington, Mrs. Stevenson visited branches of the league in Asheville, N. C.; Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn. On her visit to Hendersonville, she tells of the saving of the snap bean crop by the townsfolk. To make up for the shortage of pickers in the region, men, women and children journeyed by trucks to the bean patches where they successfully harvested the crop in spite of the heavy downpour of rain at the time.

Mrs. Stevenson is now busy at the league headquarters in the Willard Hotel and hopes to have the new roster in the mails shortly to the several thousand members.

Mrs. Roosevelt Reveals Elliott's 2 Lucky Escapes

SEATTLE, July 21.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told wounded sailors and marines yesterday of the close calls her son, Col. Elliott Roosevelt, has had.

With her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, she toured the Seattle Naval Hospital and stopped to chat with 19-year-old R. L. Carline, San Antonio, Tex., an aviation radioman, third class. He escaped injury in an Aleutians plane crash, but broke his hand three days later.

"I am very interested in wartime's curious coincidences," she said. "My son Elliott wrote me only recently of two such coincidences. Only 15 minutes after he landed in England the tail dropped off his plane. And on the return to Africa the wind blew the plane into a transport ship, completely demolishing it, but my son was not injured. More than ever, I say it's all luck."

Mrs. Roosevelt had a word of encouragement and handshake for every sailor and marine in each of the seven wards.

Equal Rights Action By Congress Forecast

Representative Robison, Democrat, of Kentucky believes Congress will act in the autumn on the equal rights amendment.

Mr. Robison spoke yesterday at a garden party at Alva Belmont House as the National Woman's Party celebrated the 95th anniversary of the Seneca Falls convention, which launched the equal rights movement.

"I think the Congress should have the opportunity to vote on the proposed amendment, as there is much interest in the subject. I think the ## American people should have a chance to say whether women should have equal rights with men,"

Mr. Robison, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said.

The guest of honor, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, told the guests that in 1907 the Board of Directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs was a significant portent of its early success.

Mrs. Ella Allen, representing California teachers, said they vigorously supported the amendment, adding that the National Education Association is already committed to the principle of legal equality.

Miss Mary E. Downey, chairman of the District of Columbia branch of the National Woman's Party, introduced the speakers.

Gen. Mohr to Adopt English Methods in Maryland Guard

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, July 21.—Brig. Gen. Dwight H. Mohr, thoroughly impressed with the morale, discipline and training of the British Home Guards, announced today that many of the methods he saw used in England would be inculcated immediately in Maryland's State Guard.

The Maryland Guard commander said he was preparing a schedule for the annual encampment starting Sunday at Fort George G. Meade to include, among other things, house-to-house and street-to-street fighting.

Gen. Mohr, who spent four weeks "on the run" in England at the invitation of the British government, was lavish in his praise of the Home Guards.

Praises Work of Guards.

He asserted that if the Maryland Guard should invade England, it won't be long before "the Home Guards will have the situation well in hand."

Gen. Mohr was enthusiastic about the organization of the British guard in general, and of the compulsory service method in particular.

"Before they were inducted, morale wasn't so good," he said. "When general induction began, morale jumped tremendously."

He explained that the English labor board decides whether a war worker, for instance, shall stay at his machine all the time, or serve part time with the home guards. Women also are subject to service, and Gen. Mohr declared "they are doing a fine job."

The Maryland Guard commander said he believed the training of the British guardsmen in some respects was superior to regular army training.

Guardsmen go on duty for a 24-hour stretch every eight days, manning anti-aircraft batteries, doing guard duty, and other military jobs where they release Regular Army personnel. They eat, sleep and stay at their posts constantly during the 24 hours.

"They have a given time to report," Gen. Mohr said, "and there are no excuses."

Among the things the Maryland State Guard may expect to get is training to function as small, co-ordinated units. Gen. Mohr explained that some of the units are as small as a squad of eight men, trained in co-ordinated fighting, yet able to function independently if need be.

County in Virginia to List All Over 16 for War Jobs

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., July 21.—As part of an all-out effort to recruit war workers, a plan for registering every individual over 16 not already engaged in war work was inaugurated in Buckingham County yesterday.

Whether the plan is successful will determine its widespread use in finding workers for farms, lumber camps and other industries, Frank A. Cavado, State director of the War Manpower Commission, said.

Two crews of specialists in the recruitment and placement field have been selected from the Roanoke, Lynchburg, Charlottesville, Farmville and Richmond United States Employment Service offices.

Grand Jury Investigation Of Detroit Riot Sought

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, July 21.—Mayor Edward J. Jeffries' Interracial Board has decided to ask a grand jury investigation into the causes and circumstances of the race riots here last month which claimed 34 lives.

William J. Morton, chairman of the 12-man board, said the members had adopted unanimously a resolution asking Wayne County Prosecutor William E. Dowling for a one-man grand jury investigation of unsolved crimes growing out of the rioting.

The resolution also asked that the

U. S. Overconfidence Deplored by Admiral

By the Associated Press. CINCINNATI, July 20.—Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward questions whether Americans can stand prosperity in war news.

The admiral, chief of the Navy's industrial incentive program, said last night in a speech at the American Mining Congress' annual banquet:

"There has never been any doubt about our ability to take it when the going was rough. Unlike the Germans, defeat only makes us more dangerous. . . ."

"But today, the question is whether we can take it when we have to face success? Have we the will power to stand up to good news as well as bad? Have we the mature judgment to accept the winning of a few battles without exaggerating their importance to the war as a whole? Can we watch the tide turning in our favor without letting our heads grow big with overconfidence and our hands become lax with complacency?"

"Thus far we have given our countrymen on the fighting fronts good cause to doubt us. In fact, the German home front is withstanding adversity more effectively than we are accepting success."

If you can't sleep at night—go out and buy a bond.

Reich Junker Clique Expected to Dictate Erasure of Hitler

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 21.—The German general staff can be expected to eliminate Hitler when Germany's complete collapse appears inevitable—that prediction came today from a high source whose job inside Germany for years was to keep tabs on the Reich military.

But getting rid of Hitler, this observer said, would be only the beginning in breaking Germany as a war maker forever.

The big job—and big danger, if it falls, he said—would be wiping out the legend of the "undefeated German Army"—a legend that the German military clique—the Junkers—sold to the German people. The theme was that the German Army never surrendered in 1918—it was the German government which quit.

The army, the Junkers argued, was "stabbed in the back" by Communists and social Democrats in and outside the government.

The Junkers won't give up easily, this source said, even though beaten in battle. They will try to find a way again to keep the door open for them to retire behind the smokescreen of gentlemen officers while they plot another war.

Military Chiefs to Call Quits.
When the time comes, he added, the German general staff—not Hitler—will decide to call it quits. They may be already playing with the idea of writing off this war, he thinks, even though there's long and bitter fighting ahead.

Two things, he said, would lead to the final decision—when the bombing reaches a point where the German people are beginning to develop a horror of war they'll never forget; when fighting on German soil becomes inevitable.

Then watch out for their campaign to maintain the myth of the "undefeated German Army." This observer said they would probably operate this way:

First, eliminate Hitler—even at the risk of civil war with the Fuehrer's own SS troops and the Gestapo.

Secondly, begin a campaign to win sympathy arguing they were forced into waging war.

Would Sing Tune Anew.
Later, if the chance came to sow the seeds for another war, they would revive the same old tune—invincibility of the German Army.

In beating the drums, they would try to bury their second failure with a new cry—that they called a halt because of "inhuman warfare." They would play up the Allied bombings in an attempt to blind the short-memory German people to the fact that the Luftwaffe invented wholesale bombing and "total warfare."

The German military clique has run the Reich since the Franco-German War in 1870, in the opinion of this observer. When Hitler first appeared in the German political picture, he said, they faced the decision of crushing him or using him. They chose to use him.

As long as Hitler's "intuition" worked or fell in line with their plans, he said, his direction of the war was not challenged.

But now it is approaching the time for the Junkers to think of saving themselves in the same way they did before—holding up the German Army as invincible in the eyes of the German people while they threw others off guard with a pose as gentlemen officers.

Idaho Ranches Speed Wool To Market by Canyon Route

By J. CLARENCE MOORE, Associated Press Staff Writer.
LEWISTON, Idaho, July 21.—The Northwest's lost valley, a strange sheep country where a river vessel smaller than a PT boat provides the only effective link between 12 great ranches and civilization, is floating its annual crop of wool to market.

Effectively sealed in for most of the 100-mile inhabited portion by scraggy rock walls that rear as much as a mile upward from the river, the ranches in the Grand Canyon of the Snake River depend almost solely on Kyle McGrady, an Irish boatman, for their needs.

During most of the year, on his weekly, two-day round trip up one of the wildest navigated streams in the world, Mr. McGrady brings supplies and equipment for ranching or family use. But in shearing season, the riverman increases his trips to three a week and carries a heavy load the other way.

Seventy-five per cent of the wool taken from the thousands of sheep in the canyon must come out to Lewiston by boat. Only in a few places is it feasible to drive the sheep "out on top" and shear them near trails or mountain roads leading to distant towns.

Hours Are Long.
The lush season means long hours and little sleep for McGrady. He feels lucky to get his head down for six hours, aside from cat naps he can steal on the river.

A trip begins at Lewiston early in the morning and it is late evening when the gasoline-powered river vessel, the Idaho, noses to the bank at Johnson's Bar, terminus of the run, 94 miles south of Lewiston.

Climbing up through numerous near-cataracts that make the Idaho squat down at the stern like a car on a steep grade, and careful zig-zagging in the bucking waters to hunt out the channel, consumes time on the upriver trip.

The return the next day, even with motors throttled down to ease the fierce impact of man-high rollers, is twice as fast and the boat docks at Lewiston in the early afternoon.

Shearing operations are carried out close to the river where possible and giant bags of wool weighing 300 pounds each await the Idaho at its various stops along the rare stretches of somewhat level shoreline.

Seven Tons of Wool Carried.
Mr. McGrady and his one deck-hand, John Olney, a Snake River gold prospector turned riverman, roll seven tons of the wool bags up gangplanks for each pay haul. Some are stowed in a hold amidships while others are piled about the deck until the Idaho takes on the appearance of an overstuffed davenport.

The wool bags provide a soft bed for weary, homeward bound excursionists for whom Mr. McGrady conducts a sight-seeing business on the side. Dozens of people—Mr. McGrady says he's swamped with them this year—make the trip up the river to see the celebrated scenery and view otherwise dangerous rapids from the vantage point of the safe and rapid-worthy Idaho.

Normally they fit themselves into any spot they can find amid the cargo or wander about the deck. After an overnight stop on the hard shore at Johnson's Bar, they're grateful for wool bags where they can recline in soft comfort and still not miss any of the thrills of the trip.

Beer Barrel Thieves Get Stuck on Loot

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Thieves broke into a Springfield brewery, selecting a barrel which they believed contained beer.

They rolled the 600-pound barrel a block and a half away from the brewery, inspected the contents, decided they didn't want to be stuck with it, so abandoned it.

79,076,426 Pounds Of All Kinds of Scrap Collected in 6 Months

The District Salvage Committee today reported the collection of 79,076,426 pounds of all salvage material during the first half of 1943, and at the same time warned that scrap metal collections had fallen to 73 per cent of the quota set by the War Production Board.

The scrap metal quota for the District in the first six months of this year was 44,000,000 pounds, but only about 32,120,000 pounds were collected, salvage officials said.

"As the war enters its most critical stage, the need for more materials becomes more acute," Chairman James E. Colliflower and Executive Secretary Horace Walker asserted in a joint statement. "It is absolutely necessary that we step up the collections of scrap iron and steel, non-ferrous metals, tin cans, waste kitchen fats, silk and nylon hosiery and rags."

Tin can collections have been "disappointing, particularly from apartment houses," they said, and promised a new plan for these collections would be announced shortly.

Plans also are being mapped for a "whirlwind" drive for old automobiles, in co-operation with the Police Department, the Director of Motor Vehicles and the Commissioners' Special Scrap Committee.

Total scrap collections in 1942 were 192,634,334 pounds. Assuming half of this as collected in the first six months of 1942, it would appear that collections to date this year are about 7,240,704 pounds behind.

The officials said that "in many respects" their report was "extremely gratifying and Washington is to be commended for its excellent job."

Hartle Reported Assigned To Head Camp Robinson

By the Associated Press.
Aides of Senator McClellan, Democrat, of Arkansas said last night the War Department had notified them that Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, who was in charge of the first American soldiers to reach the European theater in the present war, had been assigned to command Camp Joseph T. Robinson in Arkansas.

The aides said the new assignment of Brig. Gen. Francis B. Mallon, whom Gen. Hartle will succeed, was not announced but that the change would become effective in about 10 days.

Gen. Hartle, a native of Chewsville, Md., landed in Northern Ireland January 26, 1942. He was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1910 with a B. A. degree and did not attend West Point.

American planes had bombed the Japanese island of Paramushiro, but said China wanted to see the bombing of Japanese territory reach the same scale and intensity as the air attacks against the Axis in Europe.

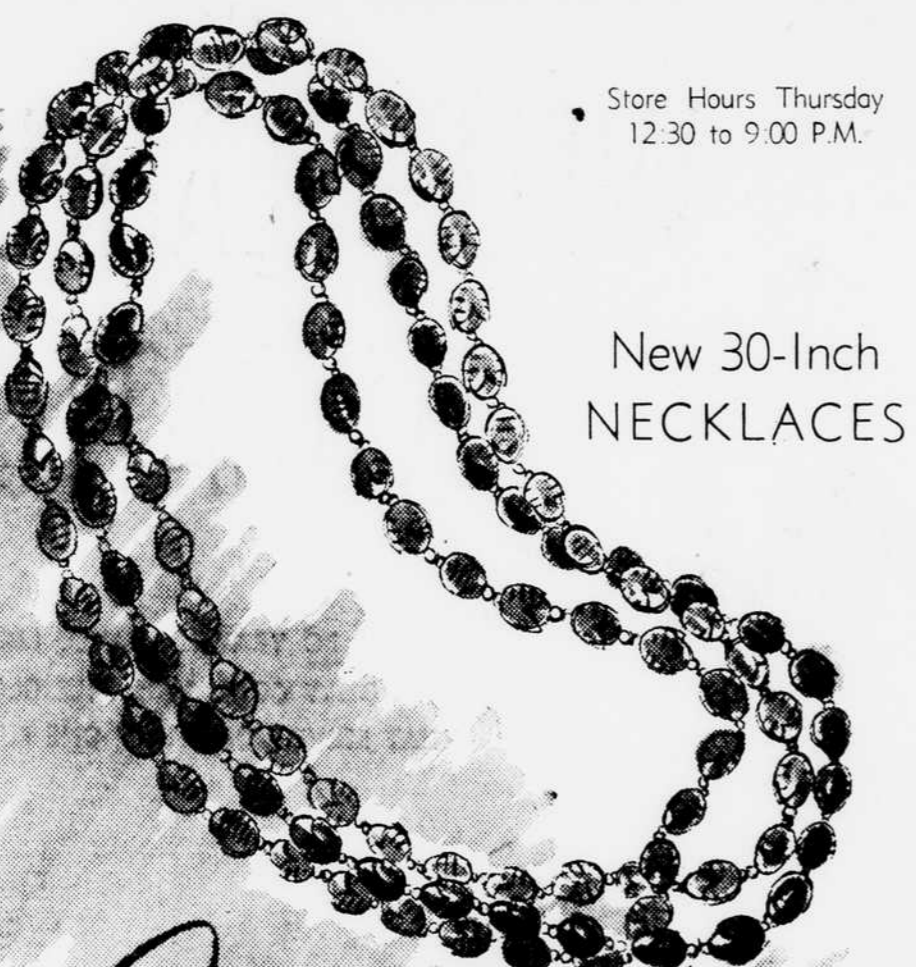

"The bombing . . . is not comparable with the bombings of Japan's Axis partners both in scale and intensity. It is hoped that as time goes on the bombings will increase . . . in order to penalize all Axis people, regardless of whether they are in the West or in the East," he said.

Deaf and Dumb Twins Find Roles in War

Jack and Bob Couper, 23-year-old twins, left their farm near Perth, Scotland, and went to an airplane factory. On a slip of paper they wrote: "We want to help win the war. We can't join the fighting forces. We are deaf and dumb."

With pencil and paper the shop manager questioned them. They admitted they had no factory experience. Now they drive home rivets in wingtips and tailpieces for Lancaster bombers at a speed few can equal.

Repeal of Wagner Act Urged by Banker

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—Fred I. Kent, president of the council of New York University and a director of the Bankers Trust Co., yesterday termed the Wagner Labor Relations Act "the most harmful piece of legislation ever passed by Congress" and advocated that it be repealed.

Speaking at a Commerce and Industry Association luncheon given in his honor by 100 leaders in industry and business in recognition of his half century of service, Mr. Kent said the Government must effect specific reforms if it is to win the peace as well as the war.

He listed those reforms, in addition to scrapping of the Wagner Act, as:

"Decrease by the Government of its employe personnel from 3,000,000 to 1,000,000; the breaking down and elimination of Government propaganda agencies; redefinition by Congress of certain Government commissions," and rebuilding of the Nation's tax system.

He said that under the Wagner Act, "it has become possible for certain labor leaders to create a situation that is making the war cost the Government of the United States, and therefore its people, a sum that in the end will probably reach somewhere between $50,000,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 more than was necessary."

A result of the act, he said, was that wages rose faster than the cost of living, causing a tremendous rise in agricultural prices and widespread retail purchasing of "many things that carried critical materials for the war effort."

WLB Modifies Contract Of UAW With Two Firms

By the Associated Press.
Modification of the maintenance-of-membership clause in a contract between the United Auto Workers and the Federal Bearing Co. and Schatz Manufacturing Co. of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has been ordered by the War Labor Board.

A wage increase of 8.8 cents an hour, approved by the New York regional board, also was altered. The board yesterday granted a blanket increase of 5 cents to the companies' 1,300 employes, but said the additional 38 cents could be used only to adjust inplant inequities.

The board approved the maintenance-of-membership clause on the condition that the union discipline workers participating in any unauthorized stoppages. The regional board was instructed to report in six months on the union's effectiveness in preventing stoppages, with the note that approval of the clause will be withdrawn if any occur in that period.

The cases of the two companies were handled as one, the board said, because the firms are managed by an interlocking directorate and operate in contiguous plants.

Fifty Frenchmen Reported Shot by Nazis in Paris

By the Associated Press. AT THE GERMAN FRONTIER, July 21.—Fifty French citizens were executed in Paris last week in retaliation for the shooting of a German lieutenant, trustworthy information reaching this Swiss area from the former French capital revealed today. One of the 50 escaped while marching to the shooting ground. He immediately was replaced by a man picked from the crowd of spectators, it was reported. Hostage executions were said to have been carried out at regular intervals in an effort to offset sabotage, but since the Axis occupation of the entire country they rarely are announced.

Dr. Mohler to Retire From Agriculture Post After 46 Years

Dr. John R. Mohler, head of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry, will retire at the end of this month after 46 years' service in the bureau.

Dr. Mohler, who is 68, has been head of the Animal Industry Bureau since 1917 and is internationally noted for his work in Federal meat inspection and suppression of bovine tuberculosis.

He is credited with saving this country's livestock industry by detecting the existence of a foreign livestock scourge in some apparently healthy Zebu cattle imported into New York.

Dr. Mohler will be succeeded by Dr. Arthur W. Miller, assistant chief of the bureau since 1928. Mr. Miller, a native of Manchester, N. H., formerly lived in Junction City, Kans.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said yesterday that Dr. Mohler has been one of the leading figures in the bureau and that he has headed drives to eradicate cattle fever ticks and to stamp out several outbreaks of hoof-and-mouth disease among cattle.

Dr. Mohler, who lives at 1620 Hobart street N.W., plans to rest and recover his health after retiring this month. His request for retirement, he stated, was based on ill-health for the past six months.

He plans to continue research and writing in connection with the work he has done with the department.

Witness Says Hitler Directed Bund Units

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The organization which later became the German-American Bund included 50 Nazi party members in its Chicago unit in 1926, and the Nazi party functioned as an organization in the United States until 1933, Peter Gissibl of Waukegan, Ill., testified in Federal Court yesterday.

Gissibl was the Government's first witness in its attempt to revoke the citizenship of 28 German-born naturalized Americans. All are charged with having held membership in the bund.

The cases have been consolidated for the hearing before Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman to determine whether the bund fostered disloyalty to the United States. The defendants then will be tried individually.

Gissibl said he and two of his brothers aided in organizing in 1924 the "Free Society of Teutons" in Chicago. He said he was active until 1938 in the group, which became the German-American Bund in 1936. He also held membership in the Nazi party from 1922 to 1927.

When Hitler became chancellor of Germany, in 1933, orders came from Berlin, Gissibl related, abolishing party units in the United States and ordering all party members to join the prebund group.

He said his brother, Fritz Gissibl, became national leader of the bund and after a trip to Germany returned with an order that all members who did not hold American citizenship must resign. As a result, Fritz Gissibl resigned and named Fritz Kuhn as his successor. Then the former members were organized into a "Prospective Citizens' League" and were eligible for bund membership after they had obtained final citizenship papers.

Gissibl said the bund organized units in Milwaukee, Detroit, St. Louis, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Kansas City.

"We considered Adolf Hitler our leader," said the former bundist, adding that his brother, Fritz, the former bund leader, is now a member of the Gestapo in Germany.

John Cowles Resigns Post With Lease-Lend

By the Associated Press. John Cowles has resigned as special assistant to Lease-Lend Administrator E. R. Stettinius, jr., to return to his post as president of the Minneapolis Star Journal and Tribune.

Mr. Cowles has been with lease-lend since early January, and in his resignation, made public today, said that in his opinion "lease-lend has done an outstanding job."

"I terminate my official connection with lease-lend and with you with real regret because of my appreciation of what an effective part in winning the war lease-lend under your leadership has played," Mr. Cowles wrote Mr. Stettinius. The administrator said he accepted Mr. Cowles' resignation "with great regret" and added that the newspaper publisher had made "an important contribution to the war effort."

Mr. Cowles went to North Africa and England last spring on a lease-lend survey mission for Mr. Stettinius.

Age for French Officers Lowered Provisionally

By the Associated Press. ALGIERS, July 21.—The French Committee of National Liberation yesterday provisionally adopted an ordinance lowering the age limit for French officers which, if made effective, would make possible the discharge of 40 generals and nearly 600 other officers above captain's rank.

The step was taken in connection with the rejuvenation of the Army which Gen. Charles de Gaulle long has sought on the ground that many of the present high officers were incapable of commanding a modern type Army.

Theorists in Government Assailed by Farley

By the Associated Press. TUCSON, Ariz., July 21.—The people of the United States will be more concerned about the war and getting it over with for the next five or six months than they will be about politics, James A. Farley, former Postmaster General, says.

"After that time," he told a dinner meeting last night, "we will face a national election. There will come a time when people will talk politics and will have a right to talk politics."

"By that time I would like to see the war over. Then both parties would be able to select their men on the basis of the domestic situation; in other words, I would like to have the election settled on domestic issues."

Mr. Farley expressed himself as disturbed over the presence in Government of those who, he said, saw the war period as an opportunity to sponsor their theories and ideologies.

Mrs. de Marigny Sees Husband in Prison; Meeting Is Cordial

By the Associated Press. NASSAU, Bahamas, July 21.—Nancy Oakes de Marigny conferred for one and one-half hours in Bahamas Prison yesterday with her tall, bearded husband, Alfred de Marigny, who is charged with the murder of her father, the wealthy Sir Harry Oakes.

Going directly to the prison after her airplane trip here from New England, the 19-year-old wife greeted De Marigny with a kiss.

She talked with him in the presence of De Marigny's attorney, Godfrey Higgs, and Capt. Reginald Miller, superintendent of prisons.

Mr. Higgs quoted Mrs. de Marigny as saying the meeting was "very friendly" and Capt. Miller added that De Marigny was cheered by his wife's visit.

The marriage of Nancy to the former count, who is 35, is a factor in the murder investigation.

Sir Harry was known to have opposed the wedding and Capt. James O. Barker, one of the Miami police officers work on the case, said it was "common knowledge" that ill feeling existed between De Marigny and the financier.

Sir Harry was found bludgeoned to death July 8 in his spacious villa, Westbourne.

The prosecution's plan, Capt. Barker said, is to present evidence of 14 witnesses Monday, then ask for an adjournment until about October 1. A session of the Supreme Court, at which capital cases are tried, will begin at Nassau October 6.

Shakespeare Escapes Tax

A hopeful English internal revenue official recently addressed an income tax demand note to "Mr. Shakespeare, New Place, Stratford-on-Avon," and it was returned by the dead letter office with the explanation that Mr. Shakespeare had died in 1616.

Citizens' Committee Projected to Solve D. C. Racial Problems

An inter-racial committee to solve future race problems in the District was projected yesterday at a meeting of leading white and colored citizens. The members of the new committee, called the Citizens Committee on Race Relations, will come from labor groups, government workers, and other organizations. They will serve as individuals rather than as representatives of their organizations.

Understanding Sought. Wilbur La Roe, Jr., temporary chairman, said the committee will concentrate on the general racial problem in the District and will seek ways to create better understanding by eliminating the causes of friction. Special attention will be paid to sections where tension has been greatest in the past.

Representations by various groups of citizens to the Committee on Race Relations of the Washington Federation of Churches inspired the new committee, although there will be no actual connection between them. The names of the committee members will be made known in a few days, Mr. La Roe said.

War-time Service. Mr. La Roe, a prominent lawyer and member of the District's Parole Board, declared: "In view of the fact that this is the Nation's Capital, it is doubly necessary to face the problem realistically here and to deal with it vigorously, and to that end the strongest possible committee will be selected and its members impressed with the fact that this is a war-time service of first magnitude."

Recent race riots have resulted in several cities adopting similar measures to prevent future occurrences. An even broader step was made in Richmond several weeks ago when a large Southern inter-racial committee was created to foster better understanding. Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, is a member of that committee.

Navy Turns Down Petrillo On Offer of Free Records

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 21.—The Navy has declined the offer of James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, to make records free for sailors if it were considered necessary for morale, he disclosed yesterday. Mr. Petrillo first suggested that his musicians "play for free" to make records for the armed forces on July 9, after Elmer Davis and other Government officials had argued that the commercial recording ban, in effect almost a year, was harming morale. Commenting on the letter he received from Capt. R. A. Koch, special assistant to the chief of the Bureau of Navy Personnel, Mr. Petrillo said: "Well, there you are. If they don't think it's essential, that's O. K. with me." Capt. Koch said in his letter that "any plan duplicating present facilities, in view of current shortages of materials, would not appear to be essential to the smooth prosecution of the war effort."

G. W. Lodge Launches $50,000 War Bond Drive

A War bond drive to raise $50,000 by the end of July was started last night by the George Washington Lodge of the Independent Order of Brith Shalom at a meeting at the Jewish Community Center. A committee headed by Bernard Danzansky was appointed to carry on the campaign, and $12,000 was raised before the meeting closed. Other members of the committee are: I. H. Kartznel, C. Goldberg, S. Hoffman, B. Hayman, M. Garfinkle, H. Paretsky, S. Widre, B. Slioman, the Rev. L. Novick and H. Ecks-house.

New Zealanders Earmarked for Jobs

New Zealand is replacing its "grade 1" men in industry with "grade 2" men from the army. H. L. Bockett, controller of manpower, explains that it is desirable that every possible man in the "grade 1" category between 31 and 40 should join the forces and so maintain the dominion's war effort. "Those 'grade 1' men will have to be replaced as far as possible with men of a lower grading in the Army," he stated in Wellington. "It would cause endless confusion if each man released were allowed to drift back into any employment of his own choosing and the manpower office later found that he was required for a particular job."

District Court Rules Nevada Divorce of F. R. Noffsinger Invalid

Justice O. R. Lühring of District Court late yesterday ruled invalid a Nevada divorce obtained in May, 1942, by Forest R. Noffsinger in handing down a decision requiring Mr. Noffsinger to pay Mrs. Martha E. Noffsinger, to whom he was married in 1916, $200 a month for maintenance for herself and their minor child.

Under the decision of Justice Lühring, Mr. Noffsinger, described as a $6,000 a year educational director in the Safety and Traffic Engineering Department of the American Automobile Association, also is ordered to pay $500 for Mrs. Noffsinger's attorney's fees.

The decision was handed down in connection with a suit for separate maintenance and custody of the Noffsinger's minor child brought by Mrs. Noffsinger.

Remarried in December. Mr. Noffsinger, whose Nevada divorce was ruled invalid, was married again in December, 1942, in Missouri, according to a memorandum by Justice Lühring.

The Nevada divorce obtained by Mr. Noffsinger was declared invalid on the grounds that the Nevada court lacked jurisdiction. In his findings of fact and conclusions of law, Justice Lühring said the Nevada divorce in invalid "in the State of Nevada for the reason that the said defendant acted in bad faith and went to the State of Nevada solely for the purpose of obtaining a divorce and with no bona fide intention of remaining in said State permanently and indefinitely." Justice Lühring also said that from the time Mr. Noffsinger entered Nevada to the time he filed suit for divorce was only 41 days and asserted that the defendant had represented "to the Nevada court that he had resided in Nevada for more than six weeks." Justice Lühring asserted further in a memorandum opinion that records indicated that Mr. Noffsinger was out of the State for three days during the time residence was claimed.

Paying $175 Monthly. Since August, 1942, Mr. Noffsinger had been paying a total of $175 a month to Mrs. Noffsinger for maintenance, pending the outcome of her complaint for separate maintenance and custody of their minor child, one of two children, the other now being in the military service.

Justice Lühring pointed out in the decision that Mr. and Mrs. Noffsinger had been married in June, 1916, and lived together until sometime in November, 1940.

Justice Lühring, after asserting that Mr. Noffsinger, following the Nevada divorce, had remarried in Missouri, said: "No effort was made to establish his longer-for home in the State of Nevada."

Mrs. Noffsinger, who is listed as living in the 1700 block of G street N.W., was represented in the maintenance and custody suit by Attorney Lester Wood.

Some Mustang Planes Equipped With Cannon

By the Associated Press. INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 21.—Cannon have been placed in some P-51 Mustang fighter planes to increase their effectiveness. After a series of tests, a number of the fighting Mustangs were equipped with four 20-millimeter cannon each, making them capable of exploding locomotives and destroying small merchant ships, North American Aviation Co. announced yesterday.

Some of the cannon-equipped planes are being used by the Royal Canadian Air Force and the RAF and United States Army Forces are ready to send them into action, the statement said.

Officer and Soldier Shot to Death in Texas

By the Associated Press. SAN ANGELO, Tex., July 21.—Second Lt. Thomas Lawrence Henry, 32, of Salem, Mass., assistant provost marshal at San Angelo Army Air Field, and Adolph Mikeska, 23, a soldier, were shot to death yesterday at a residence in Eola, Concho County community 26 miles east of San Angelo.

The airfield public relations office said Lt. Henry, with three enlisted men, went to Eola, home community of Mikeska, to arrest Mikeska, sought as absent without leave. Sheriff H. G. Stephenson of Paint Rock, Concho County, said Lt. Henry posted men about the house and entered alone. The sheriff said he and the enlisted men heard a shot, entered and found Lt. Henry's body on the second floor, near the door to a closet which also provided access to an attic. Sheriff Stephenson said that he and two of the military police entered the attic and found Mikeska wounded in the head from a shotgun charge, and that two shotguns were found in the attic. Present Tank Models Believed Obsolete Due to New Weapons

By CARTER FIELD.
The tank is obsolete. Some new feature may develop which will start the warring nations again on tank construction, but the present models are simply not wanted. Curiously enough, while the best antitank weapons were developed in the United States, it was the Russian high command which first decided that it didn't want any more tanks. In fact it was the Russian cancellation of orders in this country for 4,000 tanks which was the first intimation we had that the tank was through—at least for the present. This cancellation, incidentally, caused the first of the important "cutbacks" which were so misinterpreted throughout the country. Here was the Government crying for more and more war production, and here were idle plants, which had been constructing tanks. Actually, we are still making some, but it would have been better, the Army now admits privately, if we had abruptly terminated all tank making at the same time the Russians canceled, and diverted the precious steel to other purposes. Precious for instance. There seems to be no limit to the amount of steel our shipbuilders are able to use.

Army Solves Problem.
Just two weeks more than a year ago that Army ordnance had found "the answer to the tank" and that some of these "answers" were then enroute Russia. No attempt was made in that dispatch to disclose the nature of the "answer." The writer, as a matter of fact, was not told then what it was, and could not have printed it if he had been. Actually the answer was twofold—the bazooka and the new antitank gun. Of these, of course, the second is considered the more important, but the bazooka took a great deal of usefulness out of the tank.

What the bazooka did was to provide infantry with a light weapon capable of destroying a tank—destroying it with one quick shot which not only put the tank out of business, but burned every one in it to death instantly. That ended the value of tanks against ground troops without armored protection, if, of course, the ground troops had a supply of bazookas handy.

The whole evolution of the tank up to that time had been in size, weight of armor and fire power. With bigger guns, a new tank could knock out a whole fleet of old ones. As they grew bigger the game of the big new tanks was to stand off, hull down on the horizon, and blast the lighter tanks to bits.

Armor Dispensed With.
The next logical step was an antitank gun bigger than any gun carried by a tank, and therefore able to fire at the largest existing tank before the tank got close enough to fire its own cannon. Because of the difficulty of maneuvering in sand and mud, a tank big enough to mount a large enough cannon resulted in a large enough cannon mounted on the antitank gun, which simply dispensed with the armor on the theory that if it could get a shot at its opponents they wouldn't be able to fire back.

By that time the tanks were fighting each other so far away that airplane spotting was necessary, rather upsetting the popular conception of tanks crashing into each other.

All this does not mean that all of the tanks we now have will be scrapped. From time to time some will be found very useful, especially in mop-up operations. But there is no more begging for more and more tanks. In fact, if you really want to see a tank come off the assembly line, you had better hurry up.

Hacker Held to Jury In Cash-Making Hoax

The story of the fabulous "money-making machine" was told again in Municipal Court yesterday as Walter Eaton, 40, of the 300 block H street N.E., a cab driver, was held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond, charged with grand larceny.

James D. Price, 1700 block Thirteenth street N.W., the victim, who says he lost $8,500 to "guardians" of the money-making machine in a downtown hotel last January, testified that the defendant "looked like the man" who posed as a policeman in the hoax.

Police arrested Eaton Monday after they found a marked $100 bill in his safety deposit box. The bill was said to be part of the money Mr. Price lost. Eaton pleaded not guilty.

Connie Powers, 40, was named in an indictment returned by the grand jury Monday, charging him with larceny by trick in connection with the hoax.

Yanks Are Worthy Foes, Jap Speaker Admits

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—The Japanese no longer are so sure that their flyers are more than able to match American pilots in skill and daring, a Tokio broadcast reported by the Office of War Information indicated yesterday. The broadcast, the OVI said, acknowledged that the Americans not only possessed "excellent morale" but are "enemies who never can be held in contempt."

The comment was made in the course of a discussion of "student mobilization in belligerent countries," and described the student training program in American schools and colleges.
"It is said that 80 per cent of the enemy plane pilots who counter-attack our Imperial forces were formerly students," the announcer said. "Furthermore, the morale of these students is excellent and we realize they are enemies who can never be held in contempt."

In view of these facts, the broadcast added, "it is natural that idleness on the part of Japanese students can not be tolerated."
The broadcast was made in the Japanese language for domestic audiences.

Face Facts—Fleas!

By Margaret Nowell

According to our week's telephone calls, there are many blushing housekeepers in Washington. They came home from a week end at the beach or the farm to find the house overrun with fleas. Most of them whisper the vile name, so shocked are they that such a thing could happen in their well-ordered houses! They feel a little better when they find that they are not alone in their misery, that our climate is ideal for the propagation of fleas, and the infestation can be corrected quickly, either by home treatment or the professional exterminator.

Pets in or near the house are usually the first cause of fleas. With ordinary good care, cool weather and good housekeeping, these vermin are kept in control. But a combination of warm weather, a closed, stuffy house, with the cessation of the usual cleaning and sweeping, and the fleas get the upper hand. You may not have your pets in the house, but fleas may be carried from the kennels or the garage on shoes and stockings. You may not have any pets at all—but the former tenants may have had them. The fleas tuck themselves comfortably away in floors, baseboards or rugs until the right combination of warm weather and lack of disturbance sends them forth in thousands. They may be carried from one floor to the other of apartments on the shoes of the deliveryman or the maid.

Fleas cannot travel upstairs, jumping from step to step. They seldom get up onto sofas, beds or chairs as they are happiest within a few inches of the floor. But they can cling to your ankles when you go down into the basement and travel all through the house with you.

If you attempt to get rid of them yourself be armed with a good household spray. This is a strenuous job, as the under and over parts of rugs as well as the floors must be thoroughly covered. Pyrethrum powder also may be dusted through the rugs to remain in place 10 hours and then be taken up with the vacuum cleaner. This will have to be repeated daily for about three days and weekly after that until you are certain all the small inhabitants have been killed off.

The professional exterminators can take over this job for you in very short order. They have pressure pumps, which fill the rugs with spray and penetrate every crack in the floors. Nothing needs to be removed, as the spray is not injurious to fabric or walls. Neither is it necessary to leave the house as the spray is directed only toward the floor areas and is not unpleasant to human beings.

While they are on the job they will spray the dog and the cat, too, to check the development of the vermin at their source. They will also investigate any dark corners or sandy areas in the basement, where fleas seem to enjoy hiding out.

The exterminator can do the average house in about an hour. There is immediate relief as the spray kills fleas on contact. It may be necessary to repeat within a week to get rid of the few remaining ones, who survived the first blitz and are ready to repeat the performance all over again.

Aside from the crushing blow to the ego of all good housekeepers fleas carry diseases, and by their bites may cause serious infection. Strangely enough some members of the family may not show a bite and others be peppered with small red marks as though they had measles. Rubbing alcohol or calomine lotion removes the sting, and if the bites are not scratched they usually disappear within an hour or two.

Whether you battle these vermin yourself, or get a professional exterminator to wage the war for you, lose no time in starting. Every hour sees the horde increase by thousands. Keep the dog or cat defleaed weekly. Sprinkle their beds generously with pyrethrum powder or one of the commercial flea powders. Be on the alert for a week or 10 days and you will once more be able to hold up your head about your housekeeping!

Readers' Clearing House

Each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday this space is devoted to an exchange of ideas, recipes, house-keeping short cuts and suggestions between the housewives in Washington and vicinity. Please send your contributions or requests to "Readers' Clearing House, The Woman's Page, The Evening Star."

The views expressed in this "open forum" are not necessarily those of The Star, but are simply an exchange of opinions between readers of the Woman's Page.

As it is obviously impossible for this department to test all recipes offered for the column we cannot assume responsibility for them.

TOMATO PRESERVES AND CHUTNEY RECIPES.

(Editor's note: Here are some more of those recipes for yellow tomato preserves and also several for chutney, as requested by another Clearing House reader. We're grouping them together to save space and are most grateful to those who took the trouble to send them in.—B. C.)

(Thanks to Mrs. E. A., Takoma Park.)

"Yellow tomato preserves" for Mrs. E. D. Arlington. Use small yellow pear tomatoes. Use equal amount of tomatoes and sugar. Split tomatoes in halves and for each quart of tomatoes use one lemon sliced thin and one quart of sugar. Cook until required thickness. Best to make small quantities at a time.

(Thanks to Miss B. B., Brentwood.)

2 pounds tomatoes (about 4 cups, chopped)
1 cup preserved ginger, chopped
4 lemons, juice and grated rind
6 cups sugar
2 tablespoons ginger sirup (optional)

Skin tomatoes, and cut in small sections. Place in a 2 1/2 to 3 quart kettle, and boil while preparing the other ingredients. Grate rind from the uncut lemons; then cut 2 of them in thin slices, and squeeze the juice from the other two. Chop the ginger. Add the prepared lemon and juice, sugar, ginger and ginger sirup to the tomatoes. Cook until clear and thickened, stirring to prevent sticking. Fill hot, clean jars, and seal. Note: This becomes thicker when cold. For a simple test, chill a spoonful; then let stand at room temperature.

Another lady, Mrs. S. E. N. Washington, requested recipe for chutney, so here is mine for "tomato chutney."

Chop 4 pounds ripe tomatoes, 1 pound apples, and 3 onions. Add 1 pint vinegar, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, and 1/2 teaspoon cayenne. Cook until thick and clear, stirring occasionally. Seal in hot sterilized jars. Makes 5 pints.

I just ran across another recipe for the lady who wanted the "yellow tomato preserves."

Select the small yellow tomatoes that are about the size of small plums. Pour boiling water over them and cover tightly for 2 minutes, then quickly drain and cover with cold water. This will loosen the skins. Peel the tomatoes, being careful not to break them. If any are found with the skins still unloosened, treat them again with boiling water. Place sugar and tomatoes in a crock or enamel bowl and let stand overnight. Drain off the juice and boil rapidly until it thickens. Add the tomatoes and the thinly sliced lemon. Cook until clear and thick. Seal in clean, hot jars.

(Thanks to Mrs. K. M. L., Washington.)

"Tomato chutney," requested by Mrs. S. E. N.:
4 pounds ripe tomatoes
1 pound apples, chopped
3 onions, chopped fine
1 pint vinegar
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup seeded raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon cayenne
Chop the tomatoes and add apples and onions. Add remaining ingredients and cook until the chutney is thick and clear, stirring occasionally. Seal in hot sterilized jars. This makes five pints.

Recipe for "tomato preserves" as requested by Mrs. E. D.:

2 pounds red or yellow tomatoes
3 cups sugar
1 lemon

Use the small yellow plum tomatoes. Cover with boiling water, cover closely and let stand 2 minutes. Drain and peel, taking care not to break them. Place in layers with sugar in bowl or enamel kettle and let stand overnight. Then drain and cook juice to 228 degrees or until it spins a thread. Add lemon, thinly sliced, and tomatoes. Cook until clear and thick. Seal in clean, hot jars. Makes 2 pints.

I'm very happy to be able to send these recipes in. Hope they will be of service to many of the Woman's Page readers.

WINDOW PLANT.

(Thanks to Mrs. G. L. G., Washington.)

In answer to B. M. G. Washington, in regards to a window plant, I have found the African violet to be a good plant for the north window. I have been greatly benefited by the Clearing House and enjoy it also.

STICKY ENAMEL.

(Requested by Mrs. C. O. L., Greenbelt.)

Last summer I painted the inside of my dresser and chest of drawers with a good quality enamel. I had read a suggestion to do this instead of using paper to line the drawers. However, this humid weather makes things stick to the enamel. I do not have this trouble in winter. What can I do to either prevent the enamel from getting tacky in this weather or to use some satisfactory method of removing the enamel?

I will appreciate any suggestions.

(Our Miss Nowell says that she believes nothing can be done to remedy the tacky enamel outside of removing it completely from the surface of the drawers. It has been her experience that when such softening occurs, no amount of additional treatment is satisfactory. However, should some of our readers have other ideas to suggest, we shall be most grateful for them.—B. C.)

OATMEAL COOKIES: JAM.

(Requested by Mrs. B. S. L., Silver Spring.)

Do you suppose any of your many readers have a recipe for a good rolled and cutout cookie containing oatmeal? I can't seem to find any in my cook books and my children, who love to help make cookies, want to make some like we used to get at the baker's.

Here is my grandmother's recipe for yellow tomato jam as requested by Mrs. E. D. of Arlington:

Cover small yellow tomatoes with boiling water for a few minutes; dip in cold water and then slip off the skins and halve. To each quart of tomatoes, add two pounds of sugar; juice and pulp and prepared peel of two oranges, one lemon and one-half teaspoon of ginger. To prepare orange and lemon peels, cut the rinds from the fruit and boil until soft, then cut rinds up very fine with scissors. Mix together thoroughly and boil gently for two

You can cool the burn of sunburn with Mexsana, formerly Mexican Heat Powder. This clean, white, fragrant powder forms a coat of medicated skin protection before the sun, and soothes the skin and clothing likely to chafe. Convenient, too. No grease. Nothing to mess clothes. Roll and rub on a fine medicated powder, the kind often recommended by specialists for just such skin irritations. Just sprinkle Mexsana well over your sunburned skin and feel the refreshing change as it cools the burn and hot feeling. Costs little. And there's even greater savings in larger sizes. Always demand Mexsana.

Take Day Off!

Even war workers need a day off occasionally. A day of rest and relaxation to repair tired muscles and to refresh tired minds. Take a cue from that, homemakers. Because you are war workers, too!

You are your own boss. Right now, make a contract with yourself to have one day off a week. Maybe that bromide about "a woman's work is never done" is true, but there are ways of planning your work and time to have one easy day out of seven. How about making Sunday a holiday? A real holiday, that is, with time and atmosphere devoted to fun and leisure.

You can't provide yourself with a holiday without making a definite work plan. The only answer is to plan your work on a weekly basis, instead of a daily one. It's necessary to make the work unit a week, instead of a day. You can cut down on Saturday's shopping, for instance, by buying staples and other things that keep well, such as potatoes, onions, apples, oranges, on some other day of the week. The time saved there can be used for cooking the major part of Sunday's meals on Saturday. Some of Friday's work may successfully be fit into another day of the week. It may mean that you'll be hopping a little faster on weekdays, if you plan to keep Sundays free, but that's what everybody in any business must do!

Have you tried the two-meals-on-Sunday plan? You can have brunch, that ideal combination of breakfast and lunch, in the late morning. That leaves only one more meal to prepare—dinner. This system cuts down considerably on the time spent for week end meal-getting and dishwashing. Of course, if there are small children in the family, you must have three meals on Sunday just as on any other day. But with careful planning, the food can be pre-cooked on Saturday, and be quick and easy to serve on Sunday. The hours you spend over a hot stove can be greatly reduced by planning meals so that several foods can be cooked simultaneously either on top of the stove or in the oven. Foods for two meals can often be cooked at the same time, thus saving fuel as well as precious hours. Nutrition experts have been drumming into our ears the fact that we should plan the three meals of the day as a whole. And when it is possible the menus for several days should be planned in advance. This is, of course, excellent from a nutrition point of view but is just plain common sense as well, for it makes the job of meal planning and shopping just that much easier.

The first thing to do is to decide in a general way what you are going to have to eat. This will depend on your family's likes and dislikes, on what food is in season and, of course, to a great extent, on your budget. The next step is to check up on calories and determine how many are required for all members of the family. The third step is to go over your menu and see if you have included a sufficient quantity of those foods rich in vitamins and minerals. The fourth and last step in the preparation of a menu is to check the meals decided upon with a view to balance... that is, to see that there are correct proportions of carbohydrates, fats and proteins.

Even dishwashing can be made easier and at the same time more sanitary if you will take a lesson from Uncle Sam's armed forces. Army dishes are washed in water at a temperature of 135 degrees and rinsed in water of 180 degrees. Army sanitation experts found that the use of water that was too hot for washing dishes practically baked the food onto them. Just remember this, some day when you run scalding water over your unwashed dinner dishes. The Army also found that the use of very hot water for rinsing made the dishes dry quickly and was most satisfactory from a health standpoint. Perhaps we might look at our dishwashing habits to see if we are taking proper precautions and getting dishes really clean.

Army Perfects Output Of Big Bomber Pilots On 'Assembly Line'

By the Associated Press.
ROSWELL, Army Air Field, Roswell, N. Mex., July 21.—The manufacturers have found a way to turn out Flying Fortresses in quantity, and now the Army, employing much the same assembly line technique, believes it has conquered the problem of training pilots to take them into combat.

The Air Force, disclosing for the first time the new method of fitting men to fly the great B-17 bombers, took a party of eight newspapermen from Los Angeles on a tour of its four-engine transition flying schools here and at nearby Hobbs (N. Mex.) Army Air Field.

There was little on the restricted list.

Their questions were answered by Brig. Gen. Martin F. Scanlon, veteran of the Australian-New Guinea combat theater and commander of the headquarters 38th Flying Training Wing, and his subordinates.

Allowed to Fly Ship.

The newsmen even were permitted to handle the controls of the great bombers from the co-pilot's seat at a safe altitude, of course.

The basic difference between the new and old systems of training Fortress pilots is in the method of selection from the co-pilot's seat to the 25-ton plane, a transition much more difficult than might be imagined.

Under the old system a youth graduating as a commissioned officer from a two-engine school and selected to fly the B-17 would be sent directly to a four-engine operational unit for his final training as a combat pilot. At the operational unit a B-17 crew would be formed, of pilot, co-pilot, bombardier, navigator, engineers, radio operators and gunners.

That's where the pilot's instruction in B-17 piloting would start, and if he is eliminated (sometimes they are) a team would be wrecked, and the job of welding a co-ordinated crew would have to be started all over again.

System Revised.

But under the new method the pilot must prove he's capable of flying and commanding a Flying Fortress before he ever goes to operational school. The other crewmen must likewise prove they know their duties. So when a team is organized it's very likely to stay organized, and go into action a perfectly blended unit, each man confident of himself, his nine mates and the crew as a whole.

That's where the transition schools come in. The purpose of the Roswell and Hobbs schools is to effect this transition of pilots from two-engine trainers to the big four-engine brutes. It is concerned only with first pilots. The co-pilots and other crew members are trained elsewhere, and all are fed into the operational units in a procedure not unlike the flow of parts off an assembly line.

These men are not cadets. They are already commissioned officers, it was emphasized by Col. John C. Horton, commandant of the Roswell Field, and they are treated as such.

Students Are Officers.

"But their work has just started when they come here," said Col. Horton, 37 years old, graduate of West Point in 1929.

The course includes more than 100 hours' actual flying and even more hours' ground instruction, said Lt. Col. Lawrence Coddington, 34, veteran of the battle of Midway and director of the four-engine transition school.

The final phase is a 10-hour long-range mission, so arranged that it comprises five hours' day flying and five of night. It always includes some bad weather, Col. Coddington explained.

"It may seem a little peculiar to look deliberately for bad weather," the colonel smiled, "but it's a part of the program of fitting the boys for conditions they're bound to meet eventually."

An instructor, of course, accompanies the students.

Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
Peter Rabbit had run over to the Smiling Pool for a bit of gossip with Grandfather Frog if he were in sight, or with any one else who might happen to be there in case Grandfather Frog was not. He had just reached the bank of the Smiling Pool and had time to see that Grandfather Frog's big green lily-pads was quite lonely looking without Grandfather Frog sitting on it, and that Jerry Muskrat was sitting on the end of an old log which was half in the water and half out, when he looked toward the Green Forest and saw the stranger who belonged to the Hawk family headed toward the Smiling Pool.

"Hello! Good-by!" shouted Peter to Jerry Muskrat and scampered for a hole between the roots of the big hickory tree which grows near the bank of the Smiling Pool. Once in the hole he drew a long breath of thankfulness. Then he turned and watched the big stranger, whose broad wings were bringing him straight over the Smiling Pool.

"Queer I never have seen him try to catch any one, nor have I ever heard any one looking being chased by him," muttered Peter. "I wonder what he lives on."

As Peter said later, things happened then just as if they were in answer to his thoughts. The big stranger was just above the Smiling Pool and headed straight toward the Big River. Just as he got right over the middle of the Smiling Pool he turned a little circle in the air, seemed to hang there perfectly still for a second, and then with his wings closed he shot down, down, down so fast that it quite took away Peter's breath just to watch him.

Peter's first thought was of Jerry Muskrat. Of course, that must be who this great stranger with the ugly great claws was after. From his hiding place he couldn't see the Smiling Pool, although it was so near. Any so, of course, he couldn't see Jerry Muskrat. With all his heart he hoped that Jerry saw the splash when Jerry dived into the water. But there was no splash—that is, there was no splash by Jerry. Down plunged the stranger, and Peter watched for him to spread those great wings and stop
