OPA Raises Point Value of Butter, Canned Fruits

Ration Cost of 35 Meat Cuts Reduced, Effective Sunday

(Chart on Page A-8.)
By JAMES Y. NEWTON.
The Office of Price Administration today raised the ration cost of creamery butter two points a pound, lowered values of meat cuts and increased the point values of many canned and processed foods. All changes effective Sunday.

Lowering of point values of most lamb cuts, bacon, sirloin steak and rib roast reflect an improvement in civilian meat supplies, officials said. It follows closely action of the War Food Administration in lifting all quota restrictions for two months on the slaughter of livestock. The WFA move, it was said, will put more meat in civilian markets.

Reflecting the effect of this year's short fruit crops, point values of most canned fruits were raised from two to six points. All frozen fruits and most of the popular frozen vegetables were increased in ration cost three points a package.

WFA Move Is Experimental.
In moving quota limitations on livestock slaughter, WFA officials said it was an experiment that possibly might be made permanent. It coincided with the Agriculture Department's prediction that a large increase in livestock production this year would raise total food production 5 per cent over last year's record. Officials said the action should encourage greatly the flow of livestock to market.

OPA raised the ration cost of creamery butter from 10 points a pound to 12. Officials said the higher point value takes in account the increased quantity of butter made available to civilians by the reduction in the amount set aside for Government use, which was announced earlier this week. It reflects a decrease in the amount of storage (See MEAT, Page A-18.)

Mercury Sets Mark, Soaring To 90 Again

A 71-year-old record for hot weather in Washington was smashed today when the thermometer recorded 90 at 3:50 p.m. for the fifty-fourth day this year. Showers promised this afternoon failed to arrive but the forecaster said it would be slightly cooler tonight and that tomorrow morning would bring showers.

Apparently satisfied with creating a new record, the mercury dropped back to 89 degrees at 4 o'clock.

Italy Says No Prisoners Have Been Shifted to Nazis

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 2.—War Secretary Sir James Grigg yesterday announced Italy's assurance that no British prisoners had been transferred from her hands to Germany since the fall of the Fascist regime July 25.

"We know a certain number were transferred shortly before the change of government, but still await details from the protecting power," he said.

Inquiries had been made through the International Red Cross.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the Italians in a radio broadcast message July 29 urging surrender that the hundreds of thousand Italians captured in Tunisia and Sicily would be returned home "provided all British and Allied prisoners now in your hands are restored safely to us and not taken away to Germany."

Two Flyers Die in Mechanicsville Crash
Two Army flyers were killed when a plane crashed at Mechanicsville, Md., late this afternoon, it was learned from State police at Waldorf, Md. Hecht Co. Appeals on OPA Injunction
In a test case, the Supreme Court was asked today to decide whether the OPA is entitled to an injunction to restrain a store from future violations of general maximum price regulations whenever the act has been violated in the past, even though unintentionally. A ruling was sought by the Hecht Co. in appealing from a decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, that an injunction was required by the Emergency Price Control Act whenever a violation was found.

Gripsholm Leaves Jersey City To Exchange Jap Prisoners

Swedish Vessel Also Carries Parcels For U. S. Citizens Remaining Captives
The Swedish ship Gripsholm sailed today from Jersey City, carrying 1,330 Japanese and supplies to meet a Japanese vessel in Portuguese India, where an equal number of American prisoners of Japan will be picked up, according to a War Department announcement.

The Gripsholm will proceed to Noronaga, the port of contact, under arrangements negotiated through the State Department. Americans who have been interned in Japan and the Far East since the start of the war will be exchanged and brought back to this country.

The Gripsholm originally was scheduled to leave New York on September 15. Due to circumstances over which the United States had no control the sailing date was advanced.

In addition to parcels of food and clothing furnished by the Army and Navy, and Red Cross medical supplies, the department said the Gripsholm carried many parcels (See GRIPSHOLM, Page A-2.)

August War Spending Put at $7,232,206,853; Topped Only by June

Pay-as-You-Go Taxes Boost Monthly Receipts To $2,720,821,506
War spending in August rebounded from the July slump to total $7,232,206,853, only $237,059,821 short of the June record, the Treasury disclosed today.

War activity expenditures last month were more than $200,000,000 below the $7,469,266,674 for June, although the Treasury daily statement for August 31 said about half the drop represented a bookkeeping transaction.

Except for June, the August spending for war was the highest on record for any month—$140,000,000 above that for May, first month to pass the $7,000,000,000 figure.

Spurred by pay-as-you-go tax collections, receipts for the month netted $2,720,821,506, a $713,398,127 increase over July. Of that amount $547,726,863 came directly from payroll deductions contrasted to only $19,378,195 reported for July.

Although the current collection system was started July 1, much of the month's receipts did not show until August. Likewise some August withholdings still are to be deposited with the Treasury.

The public debt at the end of August stood at $148,000,071,037.67, an increase of $2,684,207,676.56 for the month.

450 Fires Reported Still Burning in Berlin
Swiss Dispatches Quote Dead Estimates of 5,000
STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—Swiss dispatches said today that 450 fires were still burning in Berlin after Tuesday night's RAF block-buster raid and that estimates of the dead ran as high as 5,000.

The newspaper Allehanda reported from Bern, Switzerland, that some of the fires raging in German capital were so large no effort was made to extinguish them, firemen merely attempting to keep them from spreading.

160 U. S. Planes Raided Marcus, Japs Report

Damage Is Admitted; Speculation Arises Over Future Blows

By the Associated Press.
While there was wide speculation as to whether the American raid on Marcus Island yesterday was a feint or a well-aimed knockout blow, a Japanese imperial headquarters communique today admitted damage to the small defense base less than 1,200 miles from Tokyo.

The communique, broadcast from Tokyo and heard in New York by the Reuters news agency, said 160 bombers and fighters participated in the attack and added there was "some damage suffered by our grounded planes."

Claiming 12 American planes were shot down, the communique said in telling of the raid, which was first announced by the Japanese early yesterday and later disclosed by the Navy here as "presumably in progress."

A broadcast of the same communique heard in New York by United States Government monitors said, "Although we received slight damages on our planes on the ground, damages inflicted on our personnel and military facilities were almost negligible."

Two Carriers Reported in Raid.
Another Tokyo broadcast, also recorded in New York, said two American aircraft carriers took part in the attack, sending out "90 Grumman fighters" and "about 60 carrier bombers."

The Japanese announcement yesterday said the attack was carried out by "many planes." A naval spokesman here said an aircraft carrier task force had been dispatched to attack the island, which is on a retreat route between Hawaii and Yokohama.

Three possibilities emerged from the meager accounts of the spectacular raid:
1. The carrier task force which bombed and shelled the island may have been preparing the way for occupation. It is not a large place but in American hands it could serve as an outpost which would harry Japan's communications with the South Pacific.

2. The attack could have been a feint to cover some highly important move elsewhere, conceivably occupation of Wake Island, or a drive on the vital Japanese positions in the Kuriles.

3. The Navy may have moved in for a slashing hit-run blow for its psychological effect, alone.

At any rate, the action served notice on Tokyo's admirals that the (See MARCUS, Page A-2.)

Army, Navy to Play Football This Year

McCloy Says Place Not Yet Determined
By the Associated Press.
The Army and Navy football game will be played this autumn. The decision was made known today by John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War.

Asked at a press conference whether any decision had been reached on the West Point-Annapolis contest, Mr. McCloy replied: "It is my understanding that the game is to be played, but there is no decision yet as to where it will be played."

There has been no question on the remainder of the West Point schedule, Mr. McCloy added, and "they are going to play that out."

Still unsettled, apparently, is whether to yield to repeated demands from sports fans, including Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York and other members of Congress, that the game be played in a metropolitan center, such as New York or Philadelphia, to permit the greatest possible number of people to witness it.

Axis Reports Allies Massing for 2-Way Invasion of Europe

Paris Radio Stresses Dispatches Telling of Warships at Gibraltar

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 2.—In a series of nervous broadcasts, Axis radio commentators declared today the Allies were massing vast invasion armadas both in the Mediterranean and in Britain for a two-directional continental assault which might be sprung at any moment.

Whether based on fact or fancy, or in the hopes of gleaming information on Allied plans, the sudden spurt in the enemy's invasion speculation betrayed his uneasiness over what the immediate future will bring.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio gave considerable attention to reports from La Linea, Spain, telling of the presence at Gibraltar of 2 battleships, four aircraft carriers, 20 cruisers, 48 destroyers and 45 merchantmen.

Move Across Channel Seen.
At the same time a military commentator of the German news agency, DNB, asserted in a Berlin broadcast that "It cannot be denied that the Anglo-Saxons have succeeded in assembling a great flotilla consisting of transport and landing craft for their plans in the Mediterranean."

In another broadcast the Paris station said a second amphibious force was assembling in Britain and that "The moment is approaching when an Anglo-American invasion armada will cross the Channel and disembark its armies on the French coast."

"Two gigantic armies will come to grips in the near future," the broadcast said, "and Frenchmen will witness far more vicious battles than anything experienced in 1940. Allied air attacks on French towns have only been a foretaste of things to come."

Troops Being Withdrawn.
Earlier, Berlin came out for the first time with an assertion that German troops were being withdrawn from the Russian front to meet the Allied invasion threat in the Mediterranean and Western Europe.

This appeared to be more of an attempt to discourage Allied invasion plans, for the best information in London was that instead of reinforcing troops in Western Europe the Germans might have been diverting them from France and the Low Countries to Italy, Denmark and the Balkans.

Negro Council Head Urges Protest Vote for GOP
By the Associated Press.
Edgar G. Brown, national director of the National Negro Council, called on colored persons today to vote for Republicans in the next election in protest against what he termed the administration's "Jim Crow policies in the military services and on the home front."

By the repudiation of every Democratic office seeker in New York, New Jersey, Kentucky and Philadelphia in the special elections this fall, and of the national administration next year," he said in a statement, "the Negro will definitely advance the uncompromising fight to end once and for all the continued disfranchisement, segregation and unequal treatment of the colored race."

Kursk Region Freed; Donets Town Taken

Nazis Pushed Back All Along Front In New Victories

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 2.—Hard-driving Red Army forces, pushing the Germans back all along the far-flung Russian front in one of their most successful weeks of the war, captured the important Ukrainian town of Sumy and the Middle Donets town of Lisichansk today and drove the Nazis out of the entire Kursk region north of Kharkov, Moscow announced tonight.

A special communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor, announced the capture of Lisichansk and many other populated points in the Donets Basin. Earlier Premier Joseph Stalin issued a special order of the day telling of the liberation of Sumy, vital rail center about 100 miles northwest of Kharkov.

South of Bryansk, the communique said, the Russians captured over 130 populated places in addition to Sumy. The district center of Grushkovo in the Kursk region fell to the advancing Russians.

Kursk Region Freed.
"Thus the Kursk region is completely freed from German fascist invaders," said the war bulletin. Lisichansk is in the middle Donets region between Izyum and Voroshilovgrad, about 37 miles east of the important rail junction of Slavyansk.

The Donets River point of Slavynovcevo also fell to the Russians, along with several other towns in the region, indicating that the breakthrough was at least 30 miles across.

In the Smolensk region the Russians advanced 4 to 6 miles and captured over 100 populated places, the communique said. The center of the region, indicating that the breakthrough was at least 30 miles across.

Other Red Army forces attacking from the coast of the Sea of Azov captured the town of Budennovka, Moscow reported.

The special order was the fourth to be issued by Premier Stalin in four days as the Russians rolled the German forces back along the 600-mile front from the Smolensk-Moscow road to shores of the Sea of Azov.

The capture of Sumy carried the Red Army within 185 miles of Kiev in its westward drive across the Northern Ukraine.

The special order said the Russian divisions involved in the fighting for the liberation of Sumy would be called Sumy divisions hereafter "to commemorate the success."

"For the excellent military operations and valorous expression of gratitude to all troops which participated in the fighting for the liberation of Sumy," Stalin's order said.

The newest gain in the dead center of the sagging Nazi front widened and deepened the Russian bypass assault north of Poltava, (See RUSSIA, Page A-2.)

U. S. Heavy Artillery Begins Softening of Kolombangara

Santa Isabel Believed Evacuated As Flyers Report Guns Silenced

By the Associated Press.
GUADALCANAL, Sept. 2.—The Americans have opened fire with heavy artillery for the first time in the process of softening up Southern Kolombangara Island for capture as fighter and bombing planes carried the war spectacularly to the Japanese by air.

The artillery was placed on Northern New Georgia Island, only recently taken from the Japanese in the Allied offensive up through the Solomons.

The heavy shelling began Tuesday on the heels of a raid by American Mitchell medium bombers on Vila in the same area.

"Dispatches from Allied headquarters said there was some reason to believe the Japs have abandoned Santa Isabel Island with its seaplane base at Zekata Bay."

At the same time near Vella Lavella four Warhawk fighter planes daintily attacked 6 to 10 Zeros and 12 dive bombers which were assaulting American shipping. Five enemy planes were downed, and probably two others.

U. S. War Casualties Now Total 104,658 For All Services

Army Losses in Sicily Put at 7,500; Merchant Marine Loses 4,751

By the Associated Press.
Army losses in the 38-day conquest of Sicily numbered 7,500 killed, wounded and missing to bring the Army's over-all war losses to 70,872 and lift the announced casualties for the armed services and merchant marine to 104,658 since the Pearl Harbor attack.

The latest Army figures were given at a press conference today by John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War. He said that of the 70,872 casualties in all combat zones, 9,209 were killed in action or died of wounds, 20,159 were wounded, 21,764 are missing and 19,740 have been officially reported prisoners of war.

9,000 Wounded Recover.
Of the Army wounded, Mr. McCloy said, more than 9,000 have recovered completely and returned to active duty. He added that the total of missing included a large number of Philippine Scouts lost at Bataan and Corregidor.

British Flyers Blast Antwerp Canal Locks

Shipping Also Damaged In Holland Attack
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 2.—British Hurricane bombers today destroyed the lock gates at the south end of the Hantswater Canal, one of Holland's busy waterways links for sea-going shipping.

The Air Ministry news service announced tonight that the Hurricanes, escorted by Typhoons, scored "bull's-eyes" on the gates.

The lock enabled ships to approach Antwerp without going into the sea where they would be exposed to air and naval attack.

Flying at rooftop height, the planes smashed through strong anti-aircraft fire to reach the target. The escorting Typhoons damaged the tugs, a barge and a 400-ton coastal vessel, and machine-gunned sentries standing near the lock gates.

The announcement said the gates were destroyed, with debris flying so high in the air that one plane was damaged while flying through it.

Three Hurricanes and one Typhoon were reported missing from the daylight attack.

Sick Father's Plea to Son, 16, To Return Home Is Broadcast

Station WMAL today broadcast a plea of a paralyzed father to his missing son to return home.

Lindy Fields, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fields, Cabin John, Md., has been missing from his home since Monday night. District police also have been asked to seek his whereabouts.

The father has suffered three paralytic strokes and is not expected to live, a member of his family told The Star today. "He cried this morning and was asking for his son," a relative said.

Young Fields, described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds and having brown hair and blue eyes, telephoned to his home Monday night from Bethesda to say he

Nation's Gas Supply May Run Out Soon, Ickes Declares

Appealing for curtailment of all but essential driving. Petroleum Administrator Ickes warned last night that at the present rate of consumption the entire Nation faces the prospect of running out of gasoline and in the East it may be only "a matter of days."

In a radio address Mr. Ickes declared that motorists are now dipping heavily into inventory gasoline stocks and the unusually heavy military demands for fuel lie ahead.

Painting a dark picture for motorists, Mr. Ickes said the East has and is using more gasoline coupons than it has gasoline quota. He added that consumption has been exceeding the 342,000 barrels allotted daily for civilian use by anywhere from 30,000 to 35,000 barrels.

Crisis in Midwest.

The Southwest and Midwest, he commented, are living on borrowed time" as far as gasoline is concerned.

The Pacific Coast has a "comfortable supply," but "if the military demands that be ahead when the war in the Pacific really gets under way, they would know that there is anything but comfort ahead."

The armed forces are using 600,000 barrels of gasoline a day and need almost a third of the output east of the Rocky Mountains during the last half of 1943. Mr. Ickes said. Military requirements will mount to 37 1/2 per cent of that production next year, he added.

Explains Easing of Ban.

He said lifting of the pleasure-driving ban in the East was only a change in administrative policy—it did not mean there was more fuel available.

Appealing for curtailed driving, Mr. Ickes declared that "although you have coupons, you should not use them at this time for other than really necessary driving."

"I ask this urgently so that * * * there shall be no breakdown in any activity essential to the prosecution of the war or to the maintenance of our civilian economy," he said.

Allies can hit from many directions. If worried enough by it, the Japanese might be induced into dispersing their available forces to meet all possible threats, in such manner that a vulnerable hole would be opened in their defenses.

Indication of Confidence.

The willingness of the Navy to say anything in the fleet breaks its radio silence with details was another indication of growing Allied confidence in its Pacific front. It put an exclamation point behind the recent statement of Secretary of the Navy Knox that a warship is a day is going into the theater and translate into action the word that the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences are dealing largely with ways of getting at the Japanese for a showdown scrap.

The raid was the deepest naval penetration of the enemy's defense perimeter of the war, as James Doolittle's squadron bombed Tokyo in April, 1942.

If it was an opening blow in a full-scale offensive in the Central Pacific, then Japan may well expect a strong Central Pacific offensive in the fall, possibly into the Marshall and Gilbert Islands or Wake Island, and always with the probability of another strike against Tokyo itself.

Scavinius Spurns Nazi Offer To Form New Cabinet

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—Eric Scavinius, Danish Prime Minister who resigned when Germany clamped a military dictatorship on Denmark last week end, has refused a Nazi offer to form a new government, Danish refugees said today.

Scavinius, one of the few Danish political leaders to escape arrest following Sunday's bloody revolt, had been invited by Gen. Hermann von Hanneken, Nazi military dictator, to head a new cabinet. Other members of the cabinet who resigned in a body with Scavinius, refused even to meet the Germans to discuss the situation, the refugees reported.

Von Hanneken is expected to explore further the possibility of establishing a Danish government. He is reported to be anxious to have the Danes handle the civic affairs of the country with the Nazis retaining the power, through martial law, to punish saboteurs and suppress disorders.

Air traffic between Stockholm and Copenhagen, suspended since Sunday, was resumed today. This also restored air traffic between Stockholm and Berlin, since these planes fly via Copenhagen.

Stirring for Compromise.

Danish refugees arriving here today said it was apparent that von Hanneken is striving to reach a compromise with the Danes but that his efforts so far have been unavailing. They said that for the first time in more than 10 days no German soldiers were seen patrolling Copenhagen streets and disorders appeared to be diminishing under the rigid controls set up by the Germans.

Sabotage was said to be continuing, though on a scale smaller than that of a week ago, and industrial slowdowns were reported prevalent throughout the country despite all German efforts to speed up production.

One refugee asserted that while Gen. von Hanneken was in control of the military dictatorship, Warner Best, German minister to Denmark, still was at the head of the civil authority. He said Danish newspaper editors who had been arrested were released and allowed to resume operations under a strict Nazi censorship only after they had agreed to follow Best's instructions.

Gen. von Hanneken's reported attempt to win over Scavinius followed by a few hours the resignation of Johan C. W. Kruse from his post as Danish Minister to Sweden. Kruse declared that a constitutional government had ceased to exist in Denmark with the advent of the German military dictatorship.

His announcement, made at a press conference in Stockholm last night, was considered significant by Danes hoping to form an exiled government. It was against setting up an "exile" government in the United Nations because the 62-year-old Minister is a personal enemy of the interned King Christian X.

Kruse said the King, as a prisoner of the Germans, was unable to perform his constitutional functions. He refused, however, to say that he was joining the Free Danish movement.

In London, the Danish conservative leader, Christmas Moller, declared the Free Danish Council was against setting up an "exile" government at the present time.

"If the head of the state of Denmark (King Christian) had been outside the frontiers of the country our position would have heightening the flanking hazard to the Germans in the Stalino bulge of the Southern Ukraine and strengthening the Russian air being drawn around Bryansk from the south.

The victory touched off another 124-gun salute in the Soviet capital, where thundering salvos have signaled the quickening cadence of German reverses since August 5, when Orel and Belgorod fell, and on through successive victories at Khar'kov, Izium, Sevsk, Rylyk, Taganrog, Yelnya and Dorogobuzh.

The Germans, by their own admission were hastily withdrawing today from their once strong Donets Basin salient in Southern Russia, presumably in fear of an even greater setback than the one at Taganrog, which the Russians say cost them 41,000 troops.

Berlin military circles attempted to explain away the retreat by telling Swedish correspondents that greater forces were needed in the west to meet an expected Allied invasion.

Gen. Moscow communiques told a far different story—one of an avalanche of Russian military power sweeping against and around outflanked and outmaneuvered Nazi armies.

A Russian war bulletin recorded today by the Soviet monitor, giving figures which made Taganrog the greatest single German defeat since Stalingrad, said charging Red Army troops had killed more than 35,000 Germans and captured 5,100 in the final liquidation of enemy forces encircled west of the Sea of Azov port.

In all, eight Nazi divisions totaling 120,000 men were routed and mauled by the smashing Russian attack, the bulletin said.

Keeping up the steady pace of enemy attrition, Moscow reported, Premier Stalin's troops yesterday cut down an additional 6,000 of the enemy who got in the way of Russian drives reaching toward Stalino, Poltava, Bryansk and Smolensk along a 600-mile front.

The Nazi high command was said in today's Moscow bulletin to have shifted part of its troops and German forces to the south in an effort to halt the Russian break-through, but the Russians in a strong charge southwest of Voroshilovgrad, punched out gains of four to six miles toward Stalino and Debaltsevo.

To prevent export of critical items the contents of the parcels were restricted to certain items prescribed by the Office of Economic Warfare. Instructions had been sent to relatives by the provost marshal general on August 14 with the statement that the parcels had to be in New York no later than September 15.

The unexpected change in the sailing date of the Gripsholm necessitated that parcels be in New York no later than August 27. Time did not permit this information to be mailed to the relatives of prisoners so press and radio facilities were called upon.

Danish Revolt Gives Heart to Subjugated Peoples, Hull Says

By BLAIR BOLLES.

The Danish revolt "will give new heart and encouragement to all the people of Nazi-subjugated Europe," Secretary of State Hull told his press conference today.

At the same time, Mr. Hull wrote an encouraging letter to Minister Henrik de Kauffmann in which he said:

"I shall continue to look to you as the duly accredited representative in this country of the Kingdom of Denmark and hope that in the not too distant future your relations with this country may be conducted against the background of a freed and happy Danish people."

Conveys Sympathy to Minister.

Mr. Hull conveyed to the Minister the sympathy of the American Government and people "for the sufferings already endured and still to come in Denmark."

Minister de Kauffmann was repudiated by the Nazi-controlled Danish Foreign Office almost two years ago.

In a prepared statement for the press, Mr. Hull said:

"Recent events in Denmark are an eloquent reminder that German rule in any circumstance is intolerable to a free and democratic people."

Ally of United States at Heart.

"Germany, on the defensive in the Mediterranean area and on the Russian front, has gained another bold and illusive 'victory' over a small, defenseless country."

"The resistance of the Danish king and people to German domination will give new heart and encouragement to all people of Nazi subjugated Europe."

Mr. Hull was asked if the revolt puts the Danes in the category of an ally of the United States. The Secretary replied that they have been an ally at heart during their entire subjugation.

AMG Is Criticized by Russians As Undemocratic in Principle

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—AMG—The Allied Military Government for Occupied Territories, formerly called AMGOT—was sharply criticized today in the Soviet magazine, War and the Working Class.

The magazine said "the administration itself is the very development based on principles which have nothing in common with the principles of democracy."

Divorcing the Soviet government from any affiliation with AMG in Sicily, the magazine said: "The Soviet government does not participate in this organization."

Secretary of State Hull, in his answer to a question at his press conference today as to whether the Russians were invited to participate in AMG in Sicily, said the U. S. S. R. had been kept informed on arrangements and developments in our occupation of the island.

Following its usual style of quoting foreign press reports, the magazine emphasized the dissolution of the Fascist party in Sicily and the dismissal of Fascist leaders from civilian posts, but said that the "disrespectful name of 'gauleiter schools'" had been given to places

Haig Won't Play Kirkwood For Money or Marbles

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Walter Hagen made it clear today that neither for money nor marbles is he interested in a golf match with Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist.

"What makes Kirkwood think the public is interested in a couple of duffers playing?" retorted the Haig, winner of dozens of major titles, to the latest challenge by Kirkwood, who expressed bitter disappointment over being left off Hagen's challenge list in the recent Ryder Cup matches.

"As to his chances of beating me, he's never been able to do it," Hagen added, "even though I've been taking him around the globe for 20 years. I'll leave it to the record books as to who was the better player."

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 2.—The headquarters of the Third Civilian Defense Region announced yesterday the promotion of Lt. Col. Mark V. Ziegler to the rank of colonel and his appointment as medical director of the War Shipping Administration with headquarters in Washington.

been clear," Moeller said at a public meeting of the council yesterday. "Then he could have set up a government which would have the recognition of all."

The German-controlled Danish radio said Gen. von Hanneken had ordered martial law restrictions eased.

It said the 9 o'clock curfew, imposed when martial law went into effect on August 29, would be effective at 11 p. m. in the future, and limited telephone and mail service was ordered resumed within the country. Food shortages, however, continued in the larger cities, refugees said.

Gen. von Hanneken's move to ease martial law restrictions was interpreted by the Danish people as a "feeling out" process to see how much freedom could be given before resistance flared again.

The German radio, in a wireless dispatch reported by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said railway ferry service between Copenhagen and the Swedish port of Malmo would be resumed today. It had been suspended since Sunday.

Dewey Lists Domestic Issues Confronting GOP at Mackinac

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York said here today that there are many domestic problems, equal in importance to postwar international problems, that will be discussed at the Mackinac Island Republican conferences next week.

Gov. Dewey, en route to the Mackinac Island meetings, planned to spend tomorrow and part of Saturday with his mother at Owosso, Mich., before proceeding to the conferences.

Asked whether he had changed his mind since he was quoted recently as saying he would not be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944, Gov. Dewey smiled and told reporters: "When I change my mind, I'll let you know."

Gov. Dewey listed the following postwar problems as of equal importance with America's international role after the war: Preservation of a strong United States, preservation of a free economic system, prompt demobilization of what is termed "Federal bureaucracy," restoration of freedom of the States from "Federal dictation" and restoration of "the complete freedom of the individual."

Curtiss-Wright Welders Strike for Recognition

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—A strike of welders, called under terms of the War Labor Disputes Act, began today at Curtiss-Wright Corp.'s St. Louis airplane division.

A company spokesman said the walkout, while not immediately affecting other departments, eventually would force curtailment of operations.

The United Brotherhood of Welders, Cutters and Helpers (independent) ordered the strike in demand for the establishment of a separate bargaining unit for its members at the plant.

The International Association of Machinists (independent) is the certified plant-wide bargaining agent.

In an election last night, 89 per cent of the welders voted for a work interruption. Other production and maintenance workers voted 89 per cent against a strike.

The board will now take the code under consideration and if accepted it will become law 30 days after acceptance.

Among those who indorsed the code were Willy Arneheim and John Locher of the Washington Central Labor Union, W. T. Cameron, safety adviser of the Labor Department; George Morgan, Building Laborers' Union No. 74, and C. F. Preller, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' Union.

Lifting of Driving Ban Has Slight Effect

Only a slight increase in automobile traffic resulted last night from the lifting of the pleasure driving ban, according to police and an official of the Capital Transit Co.

Inspector Arthur J. Miller of the Police Traffic Division, said he noticed no difference in the number of cars on the street.

E. P. Giddings, assistant to the president of the transit company, reported that streetcars and buses moved more slowly than usual at some points, indicating automobile traffic was heavier. Mr. Giddings said, however, that generally there was no change in the number of persons riding street cars and buses.

The only area in which automobiles created a traffic problem was on Fourteenth street between Independence and Constitution avenues, Inspector Miller said. This difficulty, he explained, resulted from the blocking of roadways through the Monument Grounds, which three additional cars into Fourteenth street.

Auto traffic now is unmistakably heavier than it was two months ago, Inspector Miller observed, but the increase began about a month ago, when the District Office of Police Administration relaxed its enforcement of the pleasure-driving ban. During the last 10 days or two weeks there have been few, if any, additional cars on the streets, he said.

Penicillin Is Released To Mother in Midwest

By The Associated Press.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, Sept. 2.—Physicians at a hospital here today believe they have the first case in the Midwest in which the new chemical penicillin is being used.

Virtually all of the limited supply of this powerful germ-killing chemical is reserved for the armed forces, but because of the critical condition of the patient, the penicillin was obtained from Dr. Chester Kneffler of Boston, who allocates the distribution among civilians.

The patient is Mrs. Delbert Rupp, 36, mother of a healthy month-old baby, who is being treated for streptococcal empyema.

Woman Is Released In WAC Slaying

By The Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Naoma L. Ridings, 32-year-old WAC corporal from Camp Atterbury, Ind., continued a mystery today as detectives admitted, after checking the records, that they were unable to disclose any developments.

A 27-year-old woman, Marie Simpson, brought to police headquarters this morning by a taxicab driver who said she told him she wanted to give herself up as the slayer, was released after being questioned. She had been charged with drunkenness and vagrancy. Officers also released a 19-year-old boy companion of the woman.

Investigators in the brutal slaying said today they were entertaining a theory the crime was committed by more than one person "in a moment of blind fury." They did not elaborate.

Detective Lt. Noel Jones said authorities were intensifying their search for a "woman in black" whom the witness said he saw in Corp. Ridings' Claypool Hotel room, shortly before she was found slain Saturday night.

Detectives continued to hold under $2,500 bond, on a vagrancy charge, Robert Wolfington, 22, another bellboy. Questioning yesterday produced some "discrepancies" in his account of his actions in the hours surrounding the slaying, Lt. Jones said. He added, however, that Wolfington was "frank, straightforward and co-operative."

Detective Serg. Fae Davis, seeking continuance of the vagrancy charge in Municipal Court yesterday, told Judge John L. McNelis that Wolfington "definitely is a suspect of first-degree murder." Continuance was granted until tomorrow.

Corp. Ridings' body, nude from the waist down, was found in a pool of blood in her hotel room. She had been struck on the head and her throat and wrists had been cut. The only weapon found was a broken, blood-stained whisky bottle.

Medium Bombing Unit Of Negroes To Be Formed

In December Negro cadets will start training as navigators and bombardier officers. They will be trained as such for 18 weeks, after which they will go to gunnery school.

To complete the crews of the new bombardment group, which must be activated by July 1, 1944, many Negro enlisted men are already in training.

Hearing on Privileges In Testimony Before OPA Set for Sept. 13

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—A Federal court today set September 13 for hearing arguments on whether the Office of Price Administration can require witnesses to testify before an OPA examiner without benefit of counsel or court reporter of their own choosing.

In setting the date Judge John P. Barnes informed Robert B. Johnstone, OPA chief trial attorney, that the burden of proof would rest on the OPA and added:

"You may be able to show me that witnesses are not entitled to attorneys, but you are going to have a difficult time proving that a witness is not entitled to an independent court reporter when the OPA has its own reporter there."

Mr. Johnstone contended before Judge Barnes today that the OPA had such authority, and termed proceedings before an examiner analogous to grand jury proceedings. This position was opposed by Attorney Edward J. Rothman, secretary and agent for the Empire Packing Co., meat wholesaler under investigation for possible violation of ceiling prices on beef sales.

Mr. Rothman also represents most of 15 meat dealers who refused to testify before Harry Adelman, OPA examiner, after he had ordered their attorneys and court reporters to leave the hearing chambers. They were to be questioned about dealings with the Empire company.

More than one-fifth of all the active nurses in the country already are in the armed forces and the number must be doubled by next July, the division said. A tripartite panel will meet here within the next few weeks to adjust the contract, dispute between the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and 6,600 of its District employees, the regional War Labor Board in Philadelphia, which certified the disagreement, announced yesterday.

The panel will include one representative each of the public, labor and industry. THE REAL BOTTLENECK

SINCE Pearl Harbor, American brains and brawn have broken every bottleneck that has threatened to choke our war production. Today, the toughest bottleneck of all remains to be shattered before it strangles our spirit of sacrifice and service. This bottleneck is Over-Optimism! Over-Optimism, compound of Axis propaganda, recent Allied victories, and American complacency! Over-Optimism, manifest in absenteeism, sagging production, relaxed vigilance, and loose talk! Over-Optimism that is the target for four fighting articles in the October issue of The American Magazine. "In the Service of the Nation," these articles, authored by authorities, pull no punches, face brutal facts.

HARRY HOPKINS, Presidential Advisor, writes
WE CAN WIN IN 1945
Here, straight from the pen of the President's right-hand man, is the authoritative assertion that peace, with victory, is two bloody, bitter years away; that we're up against military might as yet unweakened by significant enemy shortages in men, munitions, or material. Here's a challenge to all who labor under the delusion that we have already blunted the blade of the axe of the Axis.

J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director F. B. I., writes
NEW TRICKS FOR NAZI SPIES
The heat's on Hitler. In turn, he's putting the heat on his henchmen here. If ever our victory depended on your vigilance, your reported suspicions, it's now! How do you size-up a spy? Where do spies come from? How are they made? How do they pick up information? Why must their master minds be gigawatt experts? Here revealed by J. Edgar Hoover, for the first time, is the inside story.

SERGEANT FRANK HERKNES, U. S. Paratrooper, writes
SICILY WAS NO PICNIC
If you think Badoglio's boys are pushovers, read this on-the-spot account of the Sicilian invasion... how Yankee paratroopers of Italian blood were brutally knifed and murdered by blackguards in Black Shirts... why we'll have to fight every inch of the way against weapons worse than castor oil.

MARTIN AGRONSKY, Ace War Correspondent, writes
HOW WE WILL BEAT JAPAN
Japan has taken, is now exploiting, all her objectives... holds them in the palm of her grasping, blood-stained hand. To beat her, must we painfully lop off her defensive fingers, one by one, or shall we sever the hand at the wrist? Agronsky, predictor of the Sicilian and Russian offensives, sizes up our Pacific strategy in a preview of the invasion of Japan.

These stirring articles in the October issue of The American Magazine mark another milestone "In the Service of the Nation"... a service rooted in a publishing plan, an editorial technique formulated to awaken Americans to an awareness of problems and issues of national and international significance. That this editorial formula is of absorbing interest is manifested (1) by the accelerated newsstand demand for each successive issue, a demand undampened by restricted distribution, and (2) by The American Magazine's substantial influence among substantial people, "the people who give a damn", the solid, not stolid, people whose opinions shape policies, make markets. In the October issue The American Magazine takes another step forward... breaks with tradition... discards outmoded editorial dogma... eliminates the continued story... to win more attention, interest, and acceptance from an audience no other magazine can match... for advertisers fortunate enough to appear in its pages.

U. S. Army Doctor Seals up Doorway to 'Hell,' Huge, Noisome Air-Raid Shelter at Messina

By THOMAS R. HENRY, Star Staff Correspondent. MESSINA, Aug. 21. (By Mail).—The gate of "Hell" was closed with a stout brick barricade today, sealing forever in the black depths of a cannon-scarred mountain the noisome odors, the hordes of vermin, the awful memories.

The 8,000 lost souls hidden in the fetid darkness with bars of fear stronger than bars of steel were freed, protesting and weeping with relief to the bright sunshine of a world they had left behind months ago. Once they were men, women and children. Probably in a few days they will be men, women and children again. But as the bleached skeletons in filthy rags came out of the mountain today they bore little resemblance to human beings. It was like the rising of the dead in their grave clothes on earth's last morning.

The tortured populace of this inferno were ordered out and the barricade put across the entrance by the management of the American Red Cross. Dr. Anthony Pine of Bridgeton, N. J., well known American orthopedic surgeon, now a captain in the army medical corps, who undertook the role of the archangel after going from one end to the other of this fearsome hole tunneled into the base of a high mountain overlooking Messina.

Outside the stricken city itself was rising from the dead and stood trying to shake off the torpor of its long, cold sleep. The hellhole was a terrible menace to the health of the native community and the American and British soldiers stationed here. It could not be tolerated any longer. Dr. Pine said, after he had once compromised with the fear-stricken population and allowed them to stay in the inferno another night.

These refugees did not rise joyfully from their Titanic grave. In three months "Hell" had become home. For a few hours, blinking in the sunshine, they were like miserable exiles in an alien heaven. "Hell" was the largest air-raid shelter in the world. Over the entrance its capacity is 7,500. Ever since the bombing of Messina on a large scale started it has housed continuously between 7,000 and 10,000 human beings. They were gathered in little family groups along the walls, each group with its fedid pile of personal belongings. Inside, with the sun high over the mountain, it was as hot as a furnace. At noon, there was inky blackness in the depths it warded here and there by flickering candles. Even near the entrance where most of the people congregated in daylight, there was smoky dusk such as one would associate with Hades.

Was Well Built. The great shelter was well intentioned. The Messina city fathers contemplated a haven where a vast number of people could find safety during air raids. The place was well built. It was fitted with a few toilets and a half-dozen medical aid stations where doctors and nurses would be on duty. But the planners never imagined that it would become a permanent home for a vast horde of persons—nearly half the total remaining population of the city when the American 3d Division infantry made its first entrance. A curious thing happened which could not have been foreseen—except perhaps by a skilled psychiatrist. Air raid after air raid terrified the populace. Under the mountain there was safety, for these illiterate peasants. Many of their homes were destroyed. They became conditioned to the darkness and the stench. They got to know people of other and little communities evolved within the great cave. They came to like the life in the dark where all the moral and social conventions of civilization were suspended.

ished order. As the people became conditioned to the cave they seemed to forget the world they had left behind. When Dr. Pine ordered the place evacuated and closed the inhabitants seemed to regard the order as an atrocity. They thought he was ordering them out to be massacred with bombs. The Germans had told them this would happen if the savage Americans ever got into the city. In fact, Capt. Pino delayed the execution of his order for one day until he was sure that places outside could be found for the tottering skeletons. They would have been infinitely better off under the open sky but he feared that if a bomber should come over and anybody be injured the great propaganda use would be made of it.

Sickness Was Slight. Sickness and death within the shelter, it seems, were remarkably low, considering conditions. Fortunately no epidemic got a start. Approximately 100 babies were born in the medical dressing stations and, at least until a few days ago, there usually was a doctor or nurse in attendance. Two childbirth cases were in progress while the captain was making his inspection. He was high in his praise of a few Italian doctors and nurses who stuck it out there. They realized fully the danger, but there was nothing they could do about it. They couldn't break the bars of fear which sealed hell.

The distinguished American surgeon is himself a native of Messina. The city is full of Pinos, perhaps distant cousins. At least 10 persons a day approach him and claim close relationship. Probably some of the lost souls in the mountain depths were relatives. He was born while his father and mother, both American citizens, were on a visit to their native Italy, but was brought back to the United States almost immediately afterward and has had little contact with Italian kinfolk.

He contemplates a curious twist of fate the chance that has brought him back to his native town as a practical dictator of the lives and fortunes of its people. The chief problems are medical, and on these his voice is law. But because of his knowledge of Italian he has taken a leading part in all sorts of dealings with the inhabitants. This has been true especially in matters pertaining to the very limited food supply. Already the rumor is going around that the doctor is one of the sleeping folk heroes, common in the legends of every European country who has come back in accordance with prophecy to aid his people in their hour of direst need.

Other Shelters Were Clean. There was really little excuse for "hell," he says. He has inspected all the air-raid shelters in the city and was impressed with what can be accomplished by intelligent, industrious people with a sense of personal responsibility. He found, for example, one comfortable three-room, three-hallway home with electric lights and water, heap out of solid rock in the mountainside of five men in three months. They have taken in neighbors until now 15 persons are living there. The place is immaculate. As luck would have it, a bomb bounced into the entrance the other night, but it proved to be a dud. The cleansing of "hell" has been only a side job for Dr. Pino. His biggest activity has been in the finding of food, drugs and dressings for the sick and trying to persuade the Messina doctors and nurses who fled into the hills when the shelling became heaviest to return to their duties. The hospitals are full of bomb-injury cases and persons injured in street fighting with the evacuating Germans. One of his biggest strokes of luck was to find a lot of immaculate salt cloth which could be used for bandages and a storehouse of naval uniforms which could be turned into hospital garb for the patients. In addition, he himself worked as doctor and surgeon both among the civilian population and the soldiers when no other physician was to be found.

McCloy Praises Army For Kiska Landing After Flight of Japs. Military authorities in charge of the Kiska occupation were exuberant today by Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy for allowing the Japanese to escape. Mr. McCloy, who arrived on the Aleutian island two days after American and Canadian troops landed last month, said there were indications the Japanese had evacuated some 10 days before the occupation forces moved in. "As we went ashore," he said, "the odor of human occupation was still strong." He pointed out that there were many signs of a hasty retreat, but said he did not believe that the Army had left only a day or two before the Allies landed. "The landing operation itself was beautifully carried out, the timing was exact and I didn't know of any beaching boats being lost, though perhaps some were," he said. "It was certainly an improvement over anything ever undertaken like that before."

2 Stretcher-Bearers Give Lives to Save Patient From Shell

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. WITH U. S. FORCES IN SICILY (By Mail).—The story of two stretcher-bearers who gave their lives for a patient from shell today. They were Pvt. Robert S. Jacoby of Carthage, Ill., and Adam Goertlitz of Rison, Kans. All afternoon during the desperate battle in the hills above the north coast road near Coronla in the advance beyond San Stefano the stretcher-bearers with well-high superhuman endurance carrying wounded to places of safety. When they realized the dressing station they had set up might be hit at any moment they picked up the wounded man and started to carry him to their own foxhole. They seriously wounded take their chances in the open. A shell dropped directly in front of them. As they saw it was about to explode both threw themselves on their faces over the body of the patient. Both were killed by shell fragments. The man for whom they sacrificed their lives received no further injury and now is well on the way to recovery at an evacuation hospital.

Recommended for Medals. Both men have been recommended for posthumous DSCs. Other Medical Department personnel attached to another regiment of the 3d Division performed almost equal acts of valor in evacuating wounded over country so rough it was necessary to carry their burdens for miles on stretchers. The less seriously wounded had to be tended and sheltered as best possible under fire. At the end German prisoners were pressed into service to carry the stretchers and, from all reports, worked willingly.

72 Soldiers Are Stricken At Indiana Army Camp. By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Capt. Elmer Sherwood, public relations officer at Fort Benjamin Harrison, reported yesterday that 72 members of an Army Air Force military police battalion were stricken with food poisoning and are in the post hospital under observation. Capt. Sherwood said all were mild cases. The military police had creamed eggs and toast at breakfast. Capt. Sherwood said, and he attributed their illness to that meal, but added none of the men complained of ill effects until after about 2 p.m. The 72 men hospitalized constituted "about half" of the Air Force M. P.'s stationed at Camp Glenn, a part of Fort Harrison.

the last. He ordered his companions back to shelter and remained alone directing fire in the face of the advancing enemy. Then suddenly his voice ceased. The post was out of operation. Maj. Morrow had been killed.

Signalman is Outstanding. One of the outstanding heroes of the advance through the hills flanking the coast road, officers of another regiment said today, was Corp. Ben R. Austin of Los Angeles, Signal Corps wire layer. He distinguished himself on five occasions when establishment of wire communication in the face of enemy fire was of vital importance. Capt. Austin first came into prominence the day after the landing near Licata on July 10 when under heavy fire he laid a line connecting a shore party with the beach head. A bullet went through the top of his helmet but he worked on as if nothing had happened.

Then he appears to have done nothing extraordinary until August 1 when the regiment was on the point of entering San Stefano. He volunteered to lay a wire across a heavily mined dry river bed before the engineers had a chance to sweep a path with a mine detector. Two days later he laid another wire down a steep mountain slope under direct enemy artillery fire.

Then followed three hectic days. From August 7 to 9, when Corp. Austin labored without rest laying and repairing wires along San Fratello ridge under heavy fire. These wires constantly were being cut by shell fragments. As soon as one went dead Corp. Austin went out to patch it.

Liberator Crew Bags 7 of 20 Zeros Firing On Flyers in 'Chutes

By the Associated Press.
 GUADALCANAL, Aug. 30 (Delayed).—Thanks to Lt. Homer W. Faucett, 1941 National AUU middle-weight wrestling champion from Indiana, and the gallant crew of his Liberator bomber, the Japanese have paid dearly for firing on American flyers dangling helplessly in parachutes, floating down to sea.

Lt. Faucett and his companions supplied some of the most dramatic moments of the day on the trip back from today's smashing raid on Japan's Kahili airdrome on Bougainville, in the Solomons, in which 37 out of 60 defending Zeros were shot down.

Near Vella Lavella Island one of the Liberators was hit by pursuing Zeros. Four men parachuted from the stricken bomber.

Attacked by 20 Zeros.
 Twenty Zeros went after the descending flyers, their guns blazing. Lt. Faucett, 25, whose home town is Hillsboro, Ind., was in a nearby formation of bombers.

"I checked with the crew first on the interphone, talking with every man," Lt. Faucett said.
 "Pilot to turret gunner: Shall we go back?"
 "Turret gunner to pilot: Let's go back."

It was that way in each case.
 "All well knew there was a strong probability we would never come back," Lt. Faucett continued.

Vowed to Down All They Could.
 "When we turned back, one man in a chute was hanging limp after a Zero strafed him. Our gunner drove off another Zero trying the same dirty trick. Then 20 Zeros started working on us at 4,000 feet. We went down to 200 feet and dropped a life raft to the men who had jumped from the other bomber. The Zeros made a co-ordinated attack, using as many as six coming at us at the same time.

"We would have been shot down if it hadn't been that our gunners were good marksmen. We half figured we didn't have a chance, so we vowed to get all the enemy we could before they got us.

"When we got home there were more than 80 bullet holes and several cannon holes in the fuselage."
 But Lt. Faucett's Liberator had bagged seven out of the 20 parachute-attacking Zeros.

65,000 Nazis Lost In Norway Invasion

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Germans lost 65,000 men killed or disabled in their invasion of Norway in 1940. Rear Admiral Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, chief of the Norwegian Air Force, declared today.

At the end of the campaign, the admiral said, the Germans demanded that the Norwegians pay pensions to the widows and dependents of the Nazi soldiers killed or wounded in the invasion. Norway promptly agreed.

"I am surprised that you accept," said the German general who transmitted the demand.
 "Not at all," replied the Norwegian official with whom the general was dealing. "Hitler has announced that you lost only 1,163 killed and wounded. We can afford to pay pensions for them."

The Germans, Riiser-Larsen said, thereupon dropped their demands. He declared that when Norway was attacked there was 1,024 Norwegian ships on the high seas and Maj. Vidkun Quisling, Nazi-appointed premier, ordered them to make for Axis ports. Not a single ship obeyed the order.

Citizens Name Lloyd To Head OCD Group

The American University Park community now has a reconstituted Civilian Defense Committee, and plans are under way for a stimulation of civilian defense work in the area, after a meeting held at the Methodist Memorial Church, Civilian Defense Director H. C. Whitehurst today announced the appointment of Dr. George W. Lloyd, president of the Mount Vernon School for Girls, as chairman of the American University Park Civilian Defense Committee.

The vice chairman is Cyril W. Woolcock, treasurer of American University. Mrs. Joseph H. McElvaine is treasurer and the secretary is Mrs. Frances G. Hopkins. Other members of the committee are Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security and Trust Co. and treasurer of the American Automobile Association; Fred Burka of the Apex Theater, Archibald J. Kengla of Julius Garfinkel & Co., Dr. W. I. Smalley and Dr. Milburn E. Colvin, Jr.

In keeping with civilian defense regulations, Thomas E. Lodge, as deputy warden for the American University Park area, is ex officio member of the committee.
 The area has been without an active committee for some time because its former chairman, Anderson A. Murphy, and other committee members were inducted into the armed services.

Just for Fun—Picnic at Home

Lack of time, tires and gas may mean that picnics in the woods, at the seashore or in the mountains are out of the question. But there's nothing that says we can't picnic at home. A backyard or nearby park, or even the roof of an apartment house offers opportunities to get out of doors. It's surprising how delicious commonplace meals taste when eaten out in the open, even if it is only a few steps from the kitchen.

THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY—Picnicking is a grand way for the entire neighborhood to get together and have fun. And if there are children of the romping age, the out-of-doors has added advantages.

Everyone can bring one part of the menu and everything can be pooled for a complete meal. Each family can contribute its share of meat, vegetables and the like to be made into sandwiches, salads, and other offerings. Or the neighbor who has chickens, rabbits or eggs might want to make his contribution accordingly, as well as the neighbor who has the prize Victory garden. In any neighborhood, there are always some people who are long on some foods and short on others who would welcome this chance to share.

To make it a real party affair, let your neighborhood gathering be followed by a good old-fashioned sing fest. It's lots of fun.

THE PICK-UP AFFAIR—Remember how you used to decide at the last minute to go to the woods for a spontaneous picnic? Pack the same kind of a last-minute picnic or supper and take to the backyard. Plan and pack the eats just as though you were going miles away from home. That eliminates running in and out of doors for something every other minute.

PORTABLE MEALS—Casserole dishes are easily transportable for either planned or last-minute picnics. Bring the casserole out oven-hot at the last minute.

PORTABLE SUPPER MENU
 *Baked Navy Beans
 Cream Cheese—Relish Sandwiches
 Green Onions Whole Tomatoes
 Lettuce Wedges
 Sliced Fresh Peaches Beverage
 Gingerbread

*BAKED NAVY BEANS—Boil beans until tender, then combine in casserole with grated onion, finely chopped green pepper, fresh tomatoes, salt, pepper, molasses and dry mustard. Bake in slow oven (300° F.) to heat thoroughly and blend flavors. Delicious hot or cold.

AMERICA'S ONLY SALAD DRESSING WHIPPED WITH FRESH CREAM

...and somehow, home is closer —

It's only a snapshot . . . perhaps creased in the middle . . . stained and dog-eared from constant thumbing . . . but to a boy on some distant hilltop, it brings treasures of memory. It's home . . . made real, brought nearer, by a few square inches of paper . . .

When it comes to pictures, we of Pabst have no axe to grind. But we do know how much they can mean to a boy away from home...and—well, how long has it been since you sent him new pictures?

These hints will help you to give him the kind of snapshots he likes best

- ★ You needn't spend a lot of money. If you haven't a camera, chances are your neighbor will be glad to lend you his.
- ★ Be sure and have your pictures made small enough to fit a wallet—because that's where they'll be kept!
- ★ Under certain restrictions, pictures may now be sent by V-mail, but you may find it more convenient to send the originals by regular mail. Your Post Office will give you full information.

- ★ Remember, the poses everyone likes best are informal ones—the family and friends out in the back yard, for instance. Don't dress up and "pose." Look as though you're enjoying yourselves!

Of course, if a glass or two of Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer happens to get into the picture—that's only natural when good friends get together! For all over America, this great beer is the symbol of friendly companionship. It's full-flavor blended to give you all the taste-tones of a complete beer.

And whether you're taking pictures, or just enjoying a quiet hour of relaxation—a cool, frosty glass of delicious Blue Ribbon Beer always hits the spot! No matter where you go, there's no finer beer, no finer blend, than Pabst Blue Ribbon.

Harry C. January, 70, Drowned in Potomac Near Noland's Ferry

The body of Harry C. January, 70, retired brokerage employe, of St. Paul drive, Kensington, Md., was found yesterday half submerged in the Potomac River near Noland's Ferry after the persistent barking of a Chesapeake Bay retriever dog had attracted Lewis C. Stunkle to the scene, Frederick County police reported today.

Assistant Medical Examiner B. O. Thomas issued a certificate of death by drowning.

Officials believe Mr. January was drowned Sunday and said his dog apparently had stood vigil ever since. The man probably had been training the retriever in the Potomac when he fell into the river, they said.

Mr. January's car had been observed parked near the scene of the tragedy since Sunday.

Attendants at the M. R. Etchison funeral home at Frying Pan, where the body was taken, said Mr. January's widow, Mrs. Josephine Poe January, has been visiting a son stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

They said the drowned man is survived by another son, Dr. D. A. January of Hartford, Conn., and a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Daniels of North Carolina.

Funeral services and burial will take place in St. Louis.

Danish Ship Rescues 9 American Flyers

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Henry Frandsen, 33, Danish fishing boat captain, saved nine American flyers forced down at sea recently and by his act of mercy he escaped their names, who established a military dictatorship in his homeland Sunday.

Frandsen sighted a dinghy bearing survivors of the crew of a Flying Fortress about 100 miles west of Helgoland. He took them aboard and instead of returning home, headed for England.

The Americans had been injured when the Fortress crashed and burned after being hit by anti-aircraft fire over Helgoland. Frandsen said the British whicker firm away said he never learned their names, so fast he never learned their names.

"All I know is the pilot was a cowboy from Texas and the navigator a gardener from Brooklyn," he said in broken English.

"They gave me and the three members of my crew American cigarettes, watches and other things, but I didn't get their names. However, I am happy to have saved them. If I hadn't a German patrol boat might have found them. And it turns out I am now safe in England."

However, Frandsen is worried over the fate of his wife, a daughter, 5, and a 3-year-old son he left in Denmark.

President Camacho Lauds U. S.-Mexican Relations

By The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 2.—President Manuel Avila Camacho said in his annual address to Congress yesterday that relations between Mexico and the United States "never before have attained the quality they have now and we trust they shall increase in the future."

The Mexican President said 11,215 Mexicans were enlisted in the armed forces of the United States and that the sacrifices made by those Mexicans who already have fallen in battle "stiffens our will to carry on."

Avila Camacho told the Congress that 58,000 Mexicans had gone to the United States to work and he said that they have equal rights with American labor.

Welfare Problems

There is a lot of common sense embodied in the new budget requests of District welfare authorities to permit drafting of actual specifications now for construction projects which are deemed desirable and necessary after wartime restrictions are lifted.

For such purposes $190,000 is sought for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, the total cost of the suggested new institutional homes and expanded facilities being something over $6,500,000.

It is proposed to provide at some later date new housing for the industrial home schools for boy, girl, colored and white delinquent youths and for the Home for Aged and Infirm, as well as improvements at the District Training School for Feeble-minded and at the Occoquan Workhouse and the Lorton Reformatory.

Certainly, there is no point in waiting until the war is won to start planning for construction projects which then can be executed. Effective postwar planning means the completion now of plans for needed programs which will be ready to go as soon as priorities permit.

Many of the District's welfare institutions are out-moded or insufficient in facilities or unsuited for their purpose and some smack of neglect if not a pinch-penny attitude. This was the focus of the case at the Home for Aged, as pointed out many times in recent years in The Star.

Judging from declarations by welfare officials, the present industrial home school for white children is a disgrace. The old building is described as a fire trap, there is said to be a 33 per cent shortage in staff, a lack of sufficient chairs, dining tables, beds and other equipment, an inadequate recreational program, with employees having to work long overtime hours, and if the morale of the staff is low, as reported, there cannot be much accomplished as to the intended "rehabilitation" of the delinquent youth confined there.

New construction will have to wait until critical materials are available but partial correction can be achieved by the prompt provision of extra help and supplies. There is no excuse for permitting the deplorable conditions to continue.

King Christian X

From its start, the difference between the Axis and the Allies has been a moral issue. Events in Denmark during the past few days have demonstrated that solemn truth once more. Two thousand persons, it is estimated, have been killed in clashes with the Nazi police. Authentic news of conditions in Copenhagen is difficult to obtain, but the broadcasts from the controlled radio station there suggest a reign of terror, street fighting, summary executions, wholesale arrests, discontinuance of necessary public services, famine and all the nameless horrors associated with barbarian occupation of a modern city.

Probably it will be months before the whole story can be told. Meanwhile, enough is known to justify a few words of appreciation for Denmark's people. The contrast between their oppressor, General Hermann von Hanneken, and their lawful sovereign, the good King Christian X, a hostage with his wife, Queen Alexandra, at Sorgenfri Castle, is striking. His majesty, born September 26, 1870, no longer is young. His threescore and twelve years show in the lines of his face; his tall form is bent. But not even the heavy burden of sorrow which he has carried since Der Fuehrer ordered the seizure of his country on April 9, 1940, has broken his spirit. He submitted to the Germans because he lacked the physical force, the mechanized strength, to oppose them; yet he never conceded them the right to do what they had the might to do. On the first anniversary of the Nazi invasion, the royal family was widely cheered in the streets. Those who participated in the demonstration risked their lives to encourage their legitimate monarch. He consistently has responded in kind. Through words of deep symbolic significance, he has advised the loyal Danes to continue the assertion of their nationality.

It follows that the Allies have in Christian X a friend whom they should be happy to help when they can. He is the brother of the brave King Haakon of Norway and is known to share his ideals for the liberation of Europe—an aspiration which means more to the freedom-loving Scandinavians than it may to other continental populations, less accustomed to democracy.

Tweaking the Jap's Nose

The Navy paid its first visit to little Marcus Island, only 1,200 miles from Tokyo, on March 4, 1942. The mission evidently was part of the same harassing tactics begun in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands including a raid on Wake about a week before. The attack was carried out only by carrier-based planes, which destroyed hangars, dropped bombs on the airfield, knocked out a radio station and set fire to stores of fuel and ammunition. Chief damage must have been done to the sensibilities of the Japanese Navy, however, prompting a sailor's remark, reported by one of the correspondents aboard the raiding carrier, that we had tweaked the Jap's nose and gotten away with it. The Japs were thrown into radio hysterics, having been caught completely by surprise.

Something of the same sort of reaction from the raid reported yesterday is evident from the Tokyo broadcast, which warned the Japanese people that "the enemy could have raided the mainland if he wanted to." Whether or not that is literally true, the raid obviously was too close to the mainland for the Jap's comfort. He must wonder what sort of protection his fleet is giving him when an American naval force can approach Marcus Island close enough, and in sufficient strength, for bombardment. Otherwise unimportant, this little island is one of Japan's outposts, maintained as a fuel base for submarines and planes patrolling the approaches to Japan proper. The last time it was attacked, Navy men said the Japanese were more upset than by the heavier attack on Wake a few days before.

There is apt to be no report from the Navy for some time on the result of this last raid. Unless made in sufficient strength and for the purpose of tempting a Jap Navy to come out and fight, our people followed hit and run tactics and are now running. The Navy Department's handling of the news in Washington, however, was unique. For the first time since the war began, there was immediate confirmation of the raid—reported first from Tokyo—while it was still in progress.

That may not mean any significant change in Navy news policy. For while there has been some criticism in the past that the Navy has held up news too long before releasing it to the public, inquiry usually has revealed an excellent reason for holding it up. The news that we had raided Marcus Island on March 4, 1942, was not announced until March 25, when the details were released from Honolulu. The carrier, from which the attack was launched, was steaming full speed to escape counterattack and the Japs were sweeping the seas in their search for her. Yesterday the Navy confirmed Tokyo's announcement of the raid almost casually. Yes, said the Navy, a raid was planned for September 1 and if Tokyo says it came off on schedule, this must be it. The encouraging thing about that is not so much that the Navy speeded up confirmation of the news, but that the Navy saw no danger to our ships and men in its confirmation.

The national chairman of the British Nursery School Association contends that only one mother in ten thousand knows her maternal job as she should. Possibly, but do not forget all the grandmothers and especially all those spinster aunts who know it far better than any mother ever could, and are ready to assist at the drop of a hat.

State Law Falls

The War Labor Board has pushed its authority out to new boundaries in holding that its orders take precedence over State laws governing conditions surrounding the negotiation of collective bargaining contracts.

The eight-to-four decision of the board was rendered in a dispute over wages and working conditions between the J. Greenbaum Tanning Company of Milwaukee and a CIO union, which had been certified as the bargaining agent by the National Labor Relations Board. The WLB turned down the wage demand, but ruled the union was entitled to maintenance-of-membership. The company challenged the right of the agency to grant union security, contending that under the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act such an arrangement is valid only when it is approved by the secret vote of three-fourths or more of the employees concerned.

"No law of a State which is aimed at inserting conditions in a collective-bargaining contract between an employer and the bargaining agent of the employees can be said to supersede any order of the War Labor Board regulating relations between employer and employee in time of war, when the power to issue that regulation flows from the war powers of the United States," said the majority opinion by Wayne L. Morse, in which public and labor members of the board joined. The employer members dissented.

While the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board did not dispute the right of the WLB to order maintenance-of-membership under the plenary war powers of the Government, it made clear, in presenting its case to the board, the feeling that an employer complying with such an order, technically, at least, was violating the Wisconsin statute. The merit of this particular argument is open to debate, however, for while the Wisconsin law requires a three-fourths vote for employees to obtain an "all-union agreement," the National Labor Relations Act permits closed-shop contracts to be negotiated by a bargaining agent chosen by majority vote, and the WLB contends that in a court test the Federal law would prevail.

However this may be, the board, in this instance, was following a consistent pattern, which it holds to be justified on the ground of wartime necessity.

Not Aiming Too High

The goal of fifteen billion dollars, set for the Third War Loan Campaign which opens next week, is a whole of a lot of money to be asking citizens to contribute, without the aid of purchases by the banks. Or is it? What are the chances of realizing this sum, the largest amount ever sought in any bond-selling campaign?

One way of answering the question is to remember what has been done before. In the second campaign, earlier this year, the goal was set at thirteen billions, of which the banks were expected to subscribe some five billions. The goal for public subscription was set at eight billions.

What happened? The goal was oversubscribed by three and one-half billions. The banks went over the top by fifty-eight millions. The public, or nonbanking sources, subscribed thirteen billions, four hundred and eighty-five millions. If the public repeats this time, and does just a little bit better, the goal will be achieved. It may take some hard pulling, but the goal will be achieved.

All the people are partners in this enterprise of advancing money to our Government with which to fight the war. There should be no thought of personal sacrifice in doing what this partnership demands. There is plenty of money available, though there always are individuals, of course, who are hard pressed. One reason this money should go into bond purchases now is that so much of it is going into hoarding. The only justified form of hoarding is to hoard Government bonds. That sort of hoarding is desirable. It puts your money where it is needed most, where it is safest and where it will pay real returns on an investment in the future of the country.

The New Cities

An American flyer, taking part in the destruction of Hitler's industrial front, writes home: "Don't imagine that I have any pleasure knocking to pieces these beautiful old cities. The thought of it fills me with horror and remorse."

Such a reaction is normal in a civilized person. The Allies, striving for victory in the interest of the whole human race, have endeavored to spare religious and cultural establishments wherever they have found them in the neighborhood of their targets. Much that they gladly would have saved, however, undoubtedly has been demolished.

But some consolation may be had from the fact that the conscience of mankind will insist upon the restoration of all that is susceptible of restoration and the replacement of all that cannot be repaired. Something of the vision needed may be discovered in Frederick Harrison's "Meaning of History" published nearly fifty years ago. There it is written: "The citizen of the future will live in a city through which silver streams will flow, in which the air will be spotless of soot, in which gardens, promenades, open squares, flowers, green lawns, porticos and noble monuments will abound."

Not in large communities only would these facilities and adornments be available. The same prospect continues: "Museums, statues, galleries, colleges, schools and public halls will no longer be concentrated in overgrown capitals; they will be universal in every moderate town. No town would be free living in if it does not offer a free library, a good art gallery, lecture and music halls, baths and gymnasiums—free to all and within reach of all. To use... these, we shall need a day of rest in the week as well as a day of worship on Sunday. Every citizen will be free of all the resources needed to cultivate his body, his mind, his heart, his enjoyment of life, health, skill and grace, his sense of beauty, his desire for society, his thirst for knowledge.

Obviously, a new society is forecast in the words quoted, but it likewise will be a society in harmony with the ideals of such reformers of modern progress as Washington, Jefferson and Franklin, almost as well-known and as greatly respected in Europe as in America. The city in which these lines are printed was intended to fulfill Harrison's aspiration a century before he penned it. What now is wanted is a thousand cities, ten thousand towns seeking a similar beauty, a more general happiness.

Allied Bombing Aims At Nazi Air Strength

By Maj. George Fielding Eliot.

In a recent article, I pointed out the signs which were then just beginning to be apparent, that the German fighter defense against Allied bombing attacks is on the increase. It has been known for some months that the Germans are abandoning a great part of their bomber production in favor of fighter production; in other words, they are going on the defensive in the air war.

The results of this decision are now appearing, and the tentative conclusions of a week ago are unfortunately largely confirmed by what has happened since. The scale of German defense is rising. It now remains to be seen whether the scale of attack can overwhelm it, can turn downward against the German curve of fighter production and reduce the German defense system to impotence; or whether the air war will become far more costly to us, and less damaging to the Germans, thus losing any possibility of assuming that optimistic character which has been so desistively assigned to it by enthusiasts.

The index which seems most logical and informative as to the efficiency of bombing operations as against their cost, is the tonnage figure of bombs dropped for each bomber loss in the course of the operation. In the big raids of last year, this figure hovered around 35-40. As pointed out in the article above referred to, this year showed a radical improvement—up to the end of July. In April, for example, 45 tons of bombs were dropped for each bomber lost; in May and June, 53 tons; in July, under unusually favorable conditions, 86 tons. Three big raids on Hamburg, at the end of July, showed respectively 191, 127 and 82 tons—the stiffening of the defense as new fighter squadrons were rushed to the spot.

But recent raids are telling a different story. In the article mentioned, I pointed out that the raid on Peenemuende (August 17) showed only 36.6 tons of bombs dropped for each aircraft lost, while in the first big raid on Berlin (August 23) this figure fell to approximately 30 tons.

The past week has shown very clearly that this falling off is not due to chance, but to a definite stiffening of the German defense. The raid on Nuremberg (August 27) showed about 45.5 tons dropped per bomber lost; that on Muenchen-Gladbach (August 30) gave better results, 53.5 tons; but the second big raid on Berlin (August 31) dropped back to 38.3 tons. The average for these five August raids is just about the average of July, 1942—40 tons per bomber lost. All accounts indicate that the Germans used many more fighters in August than in July, and that some of these fighters now are using new tactical methods and improved weapons.

But it is not only over Germany that the Germans are showing a tougher defense against air attacks. The communique concerning daylight operations over France (August 28) speaks of "many combats with enemy fighters"; "we lost 12 aircraft to the enemy's 18, a rate of loss to which the Allied airmen are by no means accustomed.

The Germans also have greatly stiffened their air defense in Italy. On August 24, "large forces of enemy fighters" were encountered over Bari. On August 26, "a strong fighter opposition" was met at Foggia. August 28, the communique also mentions "strong enemy fighter opposition." On August 30, a force of enemy fighters estimated at 75 aircraft attacked our bombers repeatedly during a raid on Aversa, near Naples, and relays of these fighters equipped with special fuel tanks chased our bombers 100 miles out to sea. During the operations of August 30, we lost 21 aircraft to the enemy's 15, which is in sharp contrast to the total figure in the Mediterranean area since the fall of Sicily—360 enemy aircraft destroyed to our loss of 110.

It remains to be seen whether all this is a flash in the pan, a desperate throwing in of accumulated reserve power which presently will be dissipated, or whether it is backed by a steady flow of production and of personnel procurement which can make headway in the face of our attacks.

For the present, it is clear that the Germans have contrived to increase their defensive power at the expense of their offensive capabilities. But we are striking heavily at the sources of that power. The principal target of our precision day bombing is the German fighter, his factories, his bases and his aircraft in flight and on the ground. The crucial test of the air warfare against Germany now is in progress. The enemy has thrown in his last reserve to concentrate on defense. It is a desperate gamble, its purpose of course being to gain time and wear us out. But in the larger sense, it is only the working of the timeless law, that against every form of attack, sooner or later a defense is evolved. The pendulum of war may swing far out, but it does not stop. It always swings back.

THIS AND THAT

"TAKOMA PARK. "Dear Sir: "I would like to tell you a story and ask you if you think I was cruel. I know that rats are not much esteemed by humanity, for very good reasons, but when I saw those baby rats struggling in the water I felt ashamed of myself.

"It would be like to tell you a story and ask you if you think I was cruel. I know that rats are not much esteemed by humanity, for very good reasons, but when I saw those baby rats struggling in the water I felt ashamed of myself.

"I watched the bird-feeding station for several days, but didn't see my unwelcome visitors again.

"I concluded that the red squill had done the work, just as you said it would. "On the fifth day, on entering the garage, I saw two baby rats on the floor. "Undoubtedly they had come out of the wood pile, since one of them was quite close to it. The other was over to one side.

"One of them was on its back. "The poor things had not had anything to eat or drink since their mother had been taken.

"They had such big paws. "Their eyes were closed. I felt ashamed of myself, but realized that rats are rats, so I went and got a bucket of water and took up the rats one by one in a trowel and dropped them into the bucket.

"Now here is the surprising part. "Although they didn't have their eyes open even, and hadn't had anything to eat for five days, those baby rats began to swim like mad the moment they struck the water.

"Think of it—swimming away, although without food for so long, and with their eyes unopened! "I can't mind telling you that I really felt ashamed and marveled at nature once more, thinking of all that vigor in such weak things. A human baby dropped into water would sink like a stone, but these little rats struck out for the shore as if they had always known how to swim, which I guess they did.

"I turned my back and went out of the garage, as I could not stand to see them die that way, and yet I knew there was nothing I could do about it. "Sincerely, E. J. H."

Q. How many chaplains have lost their lives in this war?—R. F. A. The War Department says that casualties among chaplains of the Army of the United States from December 7, 1941 to August 19, 1943, totaled 71, distributed as follows: killed, 30; wounded, 6; missing in action, 2; prisoners, 33.

Q. Is it true that humming birds will attack birds much larger than themselves?—P. R. A. Humming birds are extremely pugnacious, especially the females at nesting time, and despite their tiny size are among the most fearless of birds. They will attack hawks, eagles and crows, striking with their long, sharp bills. Such battles may account for the small, dark marks often seen on the breasts of birds. After the fight the victorious humming bird usually returns to the exact spot it had left.

Q. What does the name "Lackawanna" mean?—M. C. W. A. "Lackawanna" is a Delaware Indian word meaning "a stream that forks."

Q. On what occasion during the Civil War was the phrase "unconditional surrender" used?—G. M. B. A. It was used by Gen. U. S. Grant in a note to Gen. Simon B. Buckner at Fort Donelson on February 16, 1862. A Confederate soldier with a flag of truce had brought a request for "the appointment of commissioners to agree upon terms of capitulation." The actual text of the reply was: "No terms except immediate and unconditional surrender can be accepted."

Q. What is the total quantity of bombs that has been dropped on Great Britain?—V. T. A. The British Information Service says that from the beginning of the current war to the end of July, 1943, 71,000 tons of bombs have been dropped on Britain.

Q. Why is American money accepted in Mexico restricted to $2 bills?—E. L. H. A. This is because very few such bills have fallen into Axis hands whereas it is known that large amounts of United States currency of other denominations have come under the control of the aggressors.

Q. How many carnivals tour the United States in normal times?—L. W. A. There are several hundred carnivals, large and small, with from 15 to 40 railroad cars in normal times, and with motorized units numbering a dozen to more than 50.

Q. When was the first knighthood bestowed upon an actor?—G. A. A. In 1885 Henry Irving was knighted, the first actor ever accorded this honor.

Q. Are forest rangers being trained in parachute jumping?—L. M. A. The Forest Service says that some of its forest rangers have been given instruction in parachute jumping. This training has been necessary for rangers assigned to isolated areas in the States of Idaho and Montana. This type of forest ranger work is temporary and the men are only employed for two or three months during the summer.

Q. What can be used to drive snakes away?—W. D. H. A. The Fish and Wild Life Service says that snakes are extremely hard to trap. The most practical way is to find their holes and kill them by suffocation with carbon dioxide or carbon monoxide gas such as comes from the exhaust pipe of an automobile. This will kill them immediately provided they are caught in a hole with only one entrance. Another more difficult method is to dig a fairly deep, steep wall trench completely surrounding the premises to be protected.

Q. When the Pan-American Highway is completed, how will automobiles cross the Panama Canal?—M. M. F. A. At present, automobiles and other vehicles using the Pan-American Highway in Panama cross the Canal at Panama City on a well-operated ferry. The construction of a bridge over the canal at this point has been given a good deal of consideration but no plans for such a structure have been prepared, and it is thought quite unlikely that it will be deemed important to replace the ferry service for some years to come.

Q. How long has sulfanilamide been known?—G. U. A. In 1908 an Austrian student named Geimo discovered a compound which was given the name sulfanilamide, and described in a thesis submitted to the University of Vienna by his doctor's degree. For many years, however, neither he nor other scientists discovered any use for it.

And with a little dog, a brown one now, I watched him go one misty day last fall, How blue his eyes beneath the eager brows, My slender son, just lately grown so tall. "You wait," he said, and then his young voice broke, With eyes too proud for tears I waved to him, Then out there in the war's grim battle smoke His plane was lost on some horizon's rim. Registered Nurse Discusses Shortage of Nurses. To the Editor of The Star: Regarding your editorial concerning the shortage of nurses, may I make a few remarks?

You say, at the end of your first paragraph, "The most encouraging prospect in connection with this problem is that there is no lack of intelligent effort to solve it." I am not disputing this statement, but there is still something wrong or there would not be so many of us tied up in our homes. I say, "so many of us," and yet do not know the exact numbers, but can judge only from my own community. I don't even know just how much effort has gone into the attempt to try to release the "inactive" graduate nurses from their home duties, or whether any attempt along this line has been made, or even considered.

I realize that each of us must have his own individual problems, many of which must be solved separately. The question would seem to be: Just how important are we to the national war effort? Are we important enough that competent, dependable help could be guaranteed so that our homes and children would be cared for adequately in our absence while on duty?

The thing that irks me more than anything else about all the publicity about the nurse shortage is that the graduate nurse is getting a black eye. How do you think we feel, day after day, listening to the ding-donging over the radio and reading the pleas in the newspapers? Some of us feel pretty helpless. I can tell you. When the nurses do not respond to the various eloquent pleas, the natural assumption is that they are either unpatriotic and won't respond because they don't care to be bothered or that they are mercenary and will not respond unless more money is offered. Both may be true, but I prefer to think, unless I can be proved wrong, that there are quite a few whose hands are tied, and who struggle from day to day with the problem of what to do—leave their homes and families and go to work, or stay home (where some competent persons are needed) and not answer that insistent call for help which is almost, if not entirely, as heart-rending to a nurse as a child's plea to its mother?

Maybe I am speaking only for myself, but have nurses been offered competent help to take care of their duties at home, and have they refused? Personally, my strength is limited, but I put in eight good hours a day here at home, and with broken hours (which are generally preferred in a hospital), could do just as much there. However, I can't do both. There are three of us (graduate nurses) living in a row here on our street. The two others have children. I haven't asked them, but if competent help were available, I don't doubt that they would contribute their valuable training to the hospitals at this time.

The Nurses' Aides, from all reports, have done a wonderful job, but as any graduate nurse knows, they cannot take responsibility or do highly skilled professional work for which they have not been trained. Why not give the same amount of training to a similar group of

Also for Canadian Girls

From the Halifax Herald. According to an estimate by Canadian military authorities in London, and quoted by the Manchester Guardian, no fewer than 10,000 English girls have married Canadian soldiers, sailors or airmen within the last few years. Few of these brides will reach their new homes in Canada until after the war, and the Guardian editorially commends the Canadian Legion overseas educational service in Britain for its provision of an "experimental week's course for the wives of Canadian servicemen." . . . It might not be amiss to adopt some such premarital educational course in our high schools and young people's societies. The syllabus outlines knowledge which every Canadian girl should possess.

Hope of Millions

From the Toronto Globe and Mail. Today Mr. Roosevelt has reached the same pinnacle of power and influence as Wilson had attained in 1918, but while he is no less an idealist, he is much more of a practical statesman than Wilson ever was, and so he has a better prospect of bringing to fruition the plans for a new world order on which Wilson had set his heart, only to see them frustrated by partisan spite. Today the hope of millions of men and women are centered upon this great American and most uncommon citizen of the world.

A dive bomber has proved that a man can reach a certain point ahead of the sound he creates. Many of us hope this may never be possible for certain telephoning friends.

Steps Urged To Cure Lag On Planes

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

The loss of 10,000 airplane motors to the war effort is a sensational occurrence. The American people are supposed to be given bad news as well as good news, but news of the slump in airplane engine production has not been given out officially. In a Washington dispatch to the New York Times, reference is made to "an alarming slump in output which, from the standpoint of the war effort, could hardly have been worse had a stock of 1,000-pound Axis bombs been dropped squarely into its center made that the slowdown is estimated to have cost the Army and Navy the equivalent of 10,000 airplane motors, counting the direct result at the Lockheed plant and its incidental effect on other plants of this and other companies."

This is an excellent example of how suppression of news has failed to bring the corrective which publicity would have brought about. The public will want to know why 10,000 motors are subtracted suddenly from the war effort, who is responsible and what steps have been taken to correct the mistakes that led to the slump.

The latest report is that production in the affected plant or plants is on the upward swing, but it is stated that the peak production figures reached last March are nowhere near in sight as yet and that it will take months to get back up to that level, to say nothing of the expanded goals which the Army and Navy had hoped would be reached by this time.

Gain Over July Held Unlikely.

Figures for August production of planes are not yet available, but the indications are that no gain over July will be shown. On the contrary, there are some here who think there will be a considerable drop.

What caused this slump? Undoubtedly manpower shortages had something to do with it as well as some management strain and difficulties in certain plants. Too rigid inspection is cited as another reason, and also the constant investigations and threats of criminal proceedings, all of which are said to have caused production men to tighten up schedules and take no chances.

The Truman Committee has been looking into the situation at some of these plants for several weeks. Its objective, of course, has been to stimulate production of good engines and planes, but the controversies that have arisen since the Senate committee entered into the situation are such that it isn't clear just where the responsibility for the slowdown of production really lies.

In such tangled situation it would appear best for an outside body or tribunal to be introduced lest those who have committed themselves to positive or negative positions fall into the error of seeking to justify their previous attitudes. If President Roosevelt were to select some outstanding civilian to study the testimony of all concerned and to make an independent inquiry which would not hesitate to step on anybody's toes, the country might be assured against a recurrence of the production slump that has cost the Army and Navy so heavily in recent weeks.

New Manpower Policy Urged.

Likewise, it would appear to be desirable for the President to insist that Chairman Nelson of the War Production Board or his agent should take the manpower problem into his own hands. Originally, the President delegated that authority to Mr. Nelson. A controlled manpower plan to function along the lines of the existing controlled materials plan would be a step in the right direction.

Until it was determined that priorities and claim checks for materials could not be honored in excess of the supply, little progress was made in controlling the flow of materials to the plants that required them. So also, with respect to manpower, the airplane factories and other war production establishments that need manpower ought to have first call on manpower, irrespective of the operations of the War Manpower Commission or the selective service mechanism. That was the original theory behind selective service—namely, that civilians would select the men best fitted for the armed forces and those best fitted for industry. It turns out that the military has been able to control the Selective Service System and that industry's needs have been neglected.

A report on the slowdown in West Coast aircraft production has been made by a committee headed by Bernard M. Baruch. It relates to manpower and labor problems.

Some centralized control over war production and manpower is still needed, even at this late day, in the war—unless slowdowns in output are to be accepted as inevitable and unavoidable.

The Political Mill

By GOULD LINCOLN.

The American shipping industry, through the American Merchant Marine Institute, Inc., has put forward a program for post-war American shipping which should challenge the attention of the people as well as that of Congress. The Institute consists of 61 American flag ship companies which own and operate a great part of the country's merchant fleet.

Gould Lincoln.

It is obvious that with the close of the war, the shipping problem will be acute, and that it is necessary to give consideration now to what shall be done about the huge fleet which already is built and still is building. Congress again and again has recommended that an American overseas merchant marine, capable of carrying a fair share of American commerce, be maintained. It has legislated along those lines, the last time in 1936. Institute Reveals Program.

What the industry itself has to say about this problem is worthy of consideration. Its program, as enunciated by the institute, contains the following 10 points:

1. Ultimate transfer of all Government-owned merchant ships to private ownership.
2. Retention of present maritime position by the prompt and progressive restoration of service on established routes.
3. Strengthening the position of American lines in foreign trade by carrying greatly increased share of our foreign commerce.
4. Establishment of new foreign trade routes opened up by war developments.
5. Modernization and expansion of the fleet in coastwise and intercoastal trade.
6. Placing American vessels in former trade routes of Axis powers.
7. Participation in indirect and tramp shipping.
8. Reserving not less than 5,000,000 tons of shipping as a pool for national defense purposes.
9. Opportunity of employment for seagoing personnel.
10. Desirability for collaboration with Allied maritime nations in developing the future shipping policy of this country.

It should be borne in mind that the American shipping companies today are operating the vast number of merchant vessels now going to the seven seas, according to directives issued by the War Shipping Administration.

New Government Agents.

They are operating the privately owned ships, requisitioned by the Government when the war pressure developed. In addition, except for those ships which are taken directly by the Navy and Army, they are operating the great number of ships which are being constructed under the Government shipbuilding program. They operate them as agents for the Government. The operating personnel, both ashore and afloat, has been greatly augmented, and it is getting valuable experience.

The program of the institute does not contemplate a monopoly of all shipping by the United States. It recognizes that other maritime nations will have their share of the carrying trade. But it does insist that the commerce of the United States with foreign nations should be carried in American flagships up to 50 per cent in any event. This would be a great increase over the percentage of American foreign trade carried in American bottoms before the country entered the war.

Competition with the ships of other nations has been difficult in the past because of the American shipping laws, calling for certain personnel, for higher wages and for better conditions than have prevailed in the ships of other maritime nations. It may be that operating subsidies will be required to meet these conditions after the war. But the problem of construction subsidies will have been wiped out, to a large extent. The country already will possess the largest merchant fleet the world has ever seen when hostilities are over. A condition, not a theory, will therefore, confront the country. The fleet will be there and something will have to be done with it. The personnel to operate it, trained during these war years, also will be there.

National Defense Involved. An adequate merchant fleet is needed at all times for two major purposes. The first is for national defense. It was found necessary to build a huge fleet of merchant vessels during the last World War, and in this war a much larger fleet has been constructed. The second is to promote international trade, and to aid in stabilizing it.

The merchant fleet should be privately owned and operated, after the war. It is sound national policy. This will mean putting many of the Government ships into private ownership. The companies which had experience, and had experience before the war, naturally will play their part. One of the first steps will be the restoration of services on established routes. A second should be the establishment of additional routes. Before the war, American lines carried less than a third of the country's foreign commerce.

There is one field in which American shipping may well move forward. The institute in its report said: "The enemy nations have for two generations used their merchant fleets as spearheads of world penetration and without them could not have prepared for war. Those nations should not again be permitted to resume such a position. Such of the trade routes formerly served by the Axis nations as are of importance to the defense or economic security of the United States should be serviced by American flag vessels."

The seagoing personnel of the American merchant marine had reached sizable proportions before the war. Since the war it has been increased three or four fold. If these men are to have jobs with which they are familiar, it is clear that the merchant fleet must be kept in large part in operation.

The American shipping industry recognizes the need of collaboration with the Allied maritime nations in working out future shipping policy. It is willing to go along. But very properly, in the interests of the country, it is demanding its share of the carrying trade.

I'd Rather Be Right

By SAMUEL GRAFTON.

The Russians are probably demanding a price for their attendance at a major conference. It seems unlikely that they would join any conference unless it had agreed in advance to the opening of a second front.

Samuel Grafton.

We want a conference; it would mean a great deal to us. But the Russians do not want a conference, especially; they want a second front. Their attendance at a conference which did not produce a second front would actually mean a decline in their bargaining power. So they are striving for what they want and are striving for what we want.

And at this point it comes clear that we are not going to have the brave new world merely by wishing for it, holding meetings and signing papers. There is a price to be paid for the brave new world; perhaps a large price.

A great discussion seems to be going on between the west and Russia as to the nature of that price, and probably the discussion is over the timing, the location and the extent of the second front. We are slowly coming to realize that we are not going to have international alliances merely by smiling suddenly and announcing that this time we are for them, as against last time, when we were not. International alliance will be won if, at all, in the heat of day, by brave men doing bloody and deadly work.

And it is for public opinion to say whether it wants a permanent understanding with Russia badly enough to be willing to pay the price.

No News Big News.

It certainly wants something. It is impressive to note the eagerness with which American and British newspapers, commentators and the general public seize upon every tiny indication which seems to point toward a general understanding between the west and Russia.

This is the big fact which shines out of the obscurity of the moment. The plain truth is that no news would be more sensational, or would give a greater lift to the spirits of the people of America and England, than the news that a conference had finally been arranged to include the two western democracies and the Soviet Union.

That is an important political fact. The majority of the people of the west want such a conference so much that the nonexistence of it is the biggest political news of the day. Our press is giving more space to something which is not happening, namely, this conference, than to many indisputably important things which are happening.

This is the great empty space on the map of the future. The empty space depresses the vast group which does not care for the prospect of having to be angry for the rest of the century.

Up to Public.

We try to fill the space in with words, but that does not help. We try to fill it in with men; we send Mr. Averell Harriman to Moscow, and Mr. Harry Hopkins, and Mr. Wendell Willkie, and Mr. Joseph Davies. But at the end, the space is still empty.

It is not easy to fill it in. One may well sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill in this task. They are not set up for that direct action, along a single chosen line, which the Soviet leaders, with their rigid control of their home political situation, can pursue. Their airmen perhaps tell them that a few more months of air battling may make the second front a much easier enterprise, and save many lives. If we die much in Europe, and then do not have Soviet help against Japan, American opinion will be profoundly outraged; the shock would be deep enough to throw many of the values of the war into doubt. It is in this setting that we grope for the brave new world of alliances.

And we thought it was just a question of making up our own minds as to whether we want alliances or not; to give the sunny side, or withhold it. Actually to build the world of alliances is going to be as hard as to fight the war.

It will not be built unless the American people want it far more desperately. It is they who must decide. An only partially roused public cannot any longer pass the blame on to one official, or two or three. The people must want it so badly that they will make it happen. They have only begun their thinking about it. They are still wishing for it, they are not yet willing to.

Henderson Questions Needs of Military

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Leon Henderson yesterday raised the question of the growing power of the military services over the civilian economy in his first published magazine article since he resigned as director of the Office of Price Administration.

The ex-boss of OPA said in his article for Common Sense, a monthly publication, that any considerations of the postwar period must include the role military powers will play in disposing of $50,000,000,000 worth of goods, half of which would be immediately available for sale.

"If the generals and admirals do not see the necessity of diaper pins they can make it pretty tough for the civilian requirements' representative to get the steel allocation. The military services never let up for a minute on their pressure for control of raw materials. They are now urging James F. Byrnes to give them control over certain non-combat articles, against the opposition of Donald Nelson and the War Production Board industry divisions."

This Changing World

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

The German forces in Russia have been pushed back almost to the Dnieper River—a distance of about 600 miles as the crow flies—in less than 12 months.

Constantine Brown.

With Smolensk definitely threatened, it appears to American military observers that the Nazis may have a hard time holding even their Dnieper defenses. If Smolensk were lost their flank would be turned and a further withdrawal toward the borders of the Reich might be necessary.

Most military observers wish they had more definite information about what is happening on the eastern front. They would like to know whether the Nazi forces are being routed or are retreating in order.

The Russians are prone to exaggerate the number of Germans they have killed. At one time last year we had been accustomed to reading in their official statements about tens of thousands of Nazis killed over a period of a few days.

Until yesterday's Soviet communique reported that 35,000 Germans were killed in the battle for Taganrog, the number of casualties listed by the Russians seldom exceeded four figures and the number of Nazi tanks and planes reported destroyed and damaged was kept to a modest average.

The Nazis in their communique speak about bitter fights of their famous SS corps, grenadiers and aviation. But there is little which would indicate that the fighting consists of more than relatively strong rear-guard actions.

Shortened Lines Would Aid.

In the battle for Stalingrad the Nazis lost whole armies with their complete equipment. No such reverses have been reported in recent weeks, although the Germans have two-thirds of their forces opposing the Russians on the eastern front.

By a complicated process of calculation and deduction, it appears that the Germans have lost in their present defensive fight not more than 200,000 men killed, wounded or captured. This is less than 7 per cent of their estimated strength in that area.

Should they succeed in holding Smolensk the Nazis are likely to take a line along the Dnieper River. This is a much shorter position than heretofore and can be held with approximately 100 divisions much closer to their supply base than when they were extended to the Don River.

The shortening of the Germans' defense line works in favor of the Russians, too, since the Reds will need a smaller force to fight the enemy. The present offensive was well mapped. Large stocks of war material and food had been prepared beforehand. But as the Russians move farther west their difficulty of supplying the fighting men with all they need will be greatly increased.

Hence the employment of a smaller body of men for offensive purposes must be welcome to the Soviet supply services particularly because in the winter months the roads from the main bases to the front line are almost impassable.

The whole story of the continued Nazi retreat is more or less of a puzzle to military observers. So far as is known here the Nazis have not suffered a single crushing defeat on the eastern front. At the mere appearance of positions which in the past cost them tens of thousands of lives.

Experts Are Puzzled.

A systematic and methodical destruction not only of military establishments but also of private buildings preceded the Nazi withdrawals.

This, together with the fact that we have had no definite indication that there has been a panicky flight from the front or that the morale of the Nazi troops is shot to pieces, makes American military observers wonder what is in the mind of the German general staff and what lies behind the retreat.

The Nazi divisions employed in Russia are believed to be among the best available in the Reich. From our own experience in the recent conquest of Sicily we met with little if any resistance from the war-weary Italians but we certainly had to fight heavily against the Nazi divisions. The odds against the enemy were overwhelming, particularly in the air. By all the rules of the game the lack of adequate air support should have demoralized the Nazis. It did not, however.

It appears from available reports that the Nazis do not lack air support in Russia; quite the contrary. Their lines of communication with their bases in the Sicilian campaign. Moreover, from intelligence obtained from prisoners taken in Sicily it appears that the German high command did not believe it could fight more than a delaying action there. This is not the case in Russia, where the Germans are said to be in a position to counterattack.

Hence the American strategists cannot understand clearly what the Germans have in mind.

There is only one place in town that Ferdinand studiously avoids. A couple of years ago some men in a hardware store a few buildings up from the beauty shop decided to do Ferdinand a kindness and give him a bath. They did, and that is the last they have seen of Ferdinand. To avoid passing the hardware store he crosses the street and makes a wide detour in front of the fire station before recrossing the street.

He runs a great many of the errands for the beauty shop. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will call the drugstore, order something and say that Ferdinand will be down in a few minutes to pick up their parcel. The store has become completely accustomed to handing out packages to the small tan mongrel.

Every dog owner in town wishes his dog were as smart as Ferdinand. I know I do. I have worked long and patiently with Cindy, but the only trick she has ever mastered is sit and howl and beg for food at the dining room table.

No, that not fair to Cindy. She has one more trick. She knows how to jump on you with her wet muddy paws. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Foxy Ferdinand Solves Food Problem

By HENRY McLEMORE.

If there weren't some silly prejudice against dogs running for office I am sure that Ferdinand would hold a responsible position in the city government in my home town.

Ferdinand is a tiny tan mongrel who belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Pete Moore, owners of a beauty shop. The sidewalk front of the shop is home base for Ferdinand, but he operates far and wide from every corner of town.

Practically every one in town knows Ferdinand and respects and admires him. He really has all the qualities of greatness; he is smart, independent, resourceful, courageous and a dog of great integrity.

Meat rationing hadn't been in a week before it was obvious to Ferdinand that dogs were going to come out on the short end, so he put his dog mind to work and came up with a solution that gets him more meat than he ever had before.

He found out that if he played cripple by holding up one paw he was very likely to get tidbits thrown him by sympathetic passers-by. He knows the location of all the butcher shops, and midmorning finds him outside one of them, hopping around on three legs. If this ruse doesn't work, Ferdinand goes even further; he tucks up another sound leg and hops around on two legs.

Three Regular Steps.

Few can resist this appeal. The moment he has gotten what he wants he lowers the two legs he has curled up and marches off on four sound legs.

Aside from the tidbits he gathers by this ruse, Ferdinand has three regular eating places. He eats in a nearby restaurant in the morning and at lunch time temporarily joins the WACS and eats with them. No one knows how he found out that the WACS line up at noon, or that the WACS get better than civilians. Their eating place is blocks away from the beauty shop, but he is right on hand at noon to limp pathetically alongside the WACS and get himself plenty of handouts.

At night he dines at the Aladdin Bar and Grill. He seems to like the food there very much, because he hasn't missed an evening meal there for several years. His owners say they don't have to feed him at all.

There is only one place in town that Ferdinand studiously avoids. A couple of years ago some men in a hardware store a few buildings up from the beauty shop decided to do Ferdinand a kindness and give him a bath. They did, and that is the last they have seen of Ferdinand. To avoid passing the hardware store he crosses the street and makes a wide detour in front of the fire station before recrossing the street.

Runs Many Errands. He runs a great many of the errands for the beauty shop. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will call the drugstore, order something and say that Ferdinand will be down in a few minutes to pick up their parcel. The store has become completely accustomed to handing out packages to the small tan mongrel.

Every dog owner in town wishes his dog were as smart as Ferdinand. I know I do. I have worked long and patiently with Cindy, but the only trick she has ever mastered is sit and howl and beg for food at the dining room table.

No, that not fair to Cindy. She has one more trick. She knows how to jump on you with her wet muddy paws. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Poisoning of 150 Blamed On Food Spoiled by Heat

By the Associated Press.

COLUMA, Calif., Sept. 2.—An investigator from the State Department of Public Health said last night that the food poisoning with which 150 Mexican prune harvesters were afflicted Tuesday resulted from spoiled, through heat, of sandwiches prepared for their lunches.

The inspector, Dr. H. L. Wynns, said he examined the Colusa growers farm labor camp, where some 300 Mexican nationals are quartered, and found it entirely satisfactory from the standpoint of sanitation.

He added that as far as he could see there was no negligence on the part of the catering concern. Of the more than 100 Mexicans hospitalized only 3 remained in hospitals.

Andrew J. Joyner, Trainer of Widener Horses, Dies at 82

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Andrew Jackson Joyner, 82, internationally known race horse trainer, died yesterday at his home on Erdenheim Farms, the estate of George D. Widener, president of Belmont Park. Mr. Joyner became associated with Mr. Widener about 30 years ago after service with August Belmont and Harry Payne Whitney. He trained such racers as Water Boy, Hamburg Bill, Eight Thirty, Ethelbert, Tradition, Iron Mask and Fair Play.

From 1909 until the outbreak of the World War he trained several many-time winners for Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Joyner's love of horses developed when he was a boy in Wellfleet, Mass. He used almost all his leisure time clocking yearlings in training on farms a few miles from his home. When he was 16 the late William P. Burch hired him as an apprentice.

Mr. Joyner came north in 1891 to become trainer for August Belmont, with whom he remained until 1908, when horse racing was abolished in New York State. He went to England as trainer for Harry Payne Whitney and soon became one of the most popular horsemen of Newmarket.

Before he left England to return to the United States in 1915, Mr. Joyner was given a dinner at Newmarket at which the leading horse owners of England and the Silver State Conference Orphanage here, where he had made his home since his retirement.

He had been confined to his bed for three years in the infirmary of the orphanage which he helped found, and which he served as first superintendent.

Dr. Mastin was the first secretary of the Virginia State Board of Charities and Corrections, and later became Virginia's first commissioner of public welfare. He was probably the oldest member of the Virginia Methodist Conference.

Postwar Cargo Fleet Seen Taking U. S. Flag To Every World Port

A postwar merchant marine which will carry the American flag and American private enterprise into every port in the world, take over Axis lines which endanger national security and provide immediate succor to war-devastated areas, is envisioned by Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute.

Mr. Taylor, whose organization represents 61 American flag steamship companies, believes that the American merchant marine can make a major contribution to the $130,000,000,000 annual national income it is estimated the Nation can achieve in postwar years.

"With our great war-developed plant capacity converted to peacetime needs," he said, "there will be a surplus of manufactured goods which must be distributed to the other parts of the world. It is here that the American merchant marine can make its greatest contribution to the postwar economy."

Way to Security.

"In order to maintain a strong, adequate and efficient merchant marine for our national defense and economic security it will be necessary that at the earliest possible moment after the cessation of hostilities all vessels requisitioned from private owners be immediately returned and that all Government-owned vessels also be allocated to private ownership.

"The American merchant marine can and should resume its place as the chief factor in maritime transportation, fully restored to the place it occupied in the old clipper ship days when it was foremost in carrying American flag service into all parts of the world."

Mr. Taylor said his organization believes that a secure future for the American merchant marine can only be assured by the most careful planning at this time. He pointed out that already there are four organizations at work blue-printing the problem. These are the committee in the Department of State headed by Assistant Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby; the Maritime Commission committee on postwar planning; the United States Chamber of Commerce Committee on Transportation; and the American Maritime Council committee headed by John Oterson.

Series of Recommendations.

In order to aid these organizations in their work, the American Merchant Marine Institute has issued a series of recommendations on postwar shipping policies. These, Mr. Taylor said, represent the result of several months of study by the institute's board of directors.

Since a major role in postwar affairs will be an "inescapable necessity" for the United States, in order to "promote peace and stabilize international conditions," the institute asserts, the United States must maintain a merchant marine adequate for national defense and economic security.

Facts in Situation.

At the end of the war, the institute asserts, the United States will have:

A preponderance of the world's ocean-going commerce.

A trained and competent seagoing personnel of United States citizens, entirely adequate for the operation of such a fleet.

A large number of long-established ship-owning companies which have demonstrated outstanding ability to provide efficient management for such a fleet.

In turning over, on a practicable basis, Government-owned ships to private operators after the war, the institute takes the position that preference should be given "to those owners and operators who maintained American flag services prior to the war."

A fixed national shipping policy faithfully followed, it is asserted, together with improved results from expanded operations, "will provide the inducement to attract private capital to an industry which is already one of the most important to the Nation and which promises to become one of the largest as well."

Mr. Taylor said one of the matters which should be dealt with directly at the peace table is the question of the disposition of Axis shipping routes after the war. These, he said, will naturally be attractive to all the Allied powers which have large shipping industries. But such lines as directly concern the security of the United States, he asserted, should be given over to shipping owners of this country.

He asserted that he had special reference to the Japanese services to the American West Coast, and to German lines in the same area. These, he said, proved to be especially valuable to the enemy in this war, providing bases for espionage.

Naming of FCC Men Granted Deferments Unfair, Fly Charges

By the Associated Press.

Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the Federal Communications Commission has accused a House committee investigating his agency of unfairness.

"The American ideal of fair play took a terrible kicking around when the Cox committee made public the names of 39 employees in the commission's engineering department who have been deferred (from the draft) and then refused to permit the commission to put into the record the full facts concerning them," Mr. Fly said in a statement yesterday.

The committee is headed by Representative Cox, Democrat, of Georgia, but Representative Miller, Republican, of Missouri was conducting hearings as a one-man subcommittee when the names of the FCC employees were made public Tuesday.

Mr. Fly said 10 of the men are

D. C. Newspapers' Plan For Joint Delivery O. K.'d

A plan whereby The Star and three other Washington daily papers combine their delivery facilities in order to conserve motor vehicle operation and manpower received the approval of the Office of Defense Transportation yesterday.

Approximately 186,000 vehicle miles a year are expected to be saved by this arrangement, it was said.

The plan, which has been operating for the last two months, provides for joint delivery in a particular section to avoid duplication of service. The Star, for example, hauls Times-Herald rural and News suburban deliveries, while the Times-Herald takes The Star "finals" to Alexandria and the latter takes the same editions to the Bethesda section.

Bulk deliveries to the Post Office, railroad stations and other centers have a similar arrangement.

On recommendation of the ODT, the War Production Board has issued a certificate to the parties which safeguards them from possible prosecution under anti-trust statutes.

Milk Producers to Meet Here on Dairy Shortage

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 2—An emergency meeting of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation will convene in Washington September 28, 29 and 30, in answer to a call issued today by John Brandt of Minneapolis, federation president, to consider the Nation's dairy production.

A critical shortage in the Nation's milk supply has resulted in the need for the emergency meeting, Mr. Brandt announced.

Ways and means of avoiding point rationing of fluid milk and of combating drastic shortages and providing better distribution of butter, cheese, cream and other dairy products will be discussed by representatives of dairy farmers from the 72 member units of the federation from 41 States.

The National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation is an association of commodity co-operatives.

WANT TO GIVE UP 'DOSING' FOR GOOD?

Try This Natural "Regulator" Food!

Don't lose hope, even if you've tried one harsh pill or cathartic after another with no lasting relief! For many people there is a safe, pleasant way! One that doesn't prod your bowels—rob your system of water—or "sweep you out"! It's KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN!

The secret, scientists say, is that KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN "gets at" one big cause of common constipation—by supplying the cellulose elements needed for normal evacuation—should they be lacking in the diet. These elements assist the intestinal flora in lightening and fluffing up the contents of the colon, for easy, satisfactory elimination!

Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't give up "dosing" for good! Remember, too—ALL-BRAN is amazingly nutritious! Each ounce contains more iron than two eggs, more phosphorus than a glass of milk! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

DRINK MILK FOR HEALTH

Signal Corps' Picture Reads Future Like an Open Book

By JAY CARMODY.

Because it made "Casablanca" in time for release when the word became the stuff of 96-point banners, Warner Bros. studio is rated as just about the most clairvoyant thing that ever aimed a camera.

But just as good, if not better, trick turns out to have been accomplished by the Army Signal Corps in that best of American war films, "Report from the Aleutians." With more timeliness than when it was released some months ago, it turned up again yesterday at the Little Theater. In it will be found—in the dramatic terms of serial warfare at its most deadly efficiency and under the most severe hardships—the answer to one of the week holdover for the Army's great film.

"This Is the Army" will continue its downtown run at the Metropolitan.

An all-new stage show, built around the Earle's Roxettes' fifth anniversary at the theater, will be offered with "Watch on the Rhine."

One million dollars in War bond sales will be represented by the Palace audience which sees the local premiere of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" the night of September 15.

Statistically supporting the announcement, the management points out:

a. That all $18.75 bond seats have been sold.

b. That all $37.50 bond seats have been sold.

c. That the same goes for all the $100 bond seats.

d. That 45 per cent of the $500 bond tickets are in the hands of buyers.

e. That there are still $1,000 and $5,000 seats available.

f. That six customers already have purchased $10,000 bonds for the privilege of being in on the million.

dollar premiere—one of the most successful since movies became one of the great inspirations of bond purchasers.

From "a" through "f," it adds up to $1,000,000.

war's prize mysteries: What happened at Kiska?

That the Signal Corps could not have known the brilliance of its participation is indicated in a line in the narration of "Report From the Aleutians" to the effect that:

"It is impossible, of course, to destroy the Japanese force on Kiska by aerial attack alone, but it will pave the way for the eventual landing of ground forces."

Just one sentence in the narration by Capt. John Huston, who directed the film, that one is. It is a confident sentence, however, one among many which describe the enormous scope and roundness of the campaign from Adak Island. But it turns out to have been far too modest in its anticipation of the results of the marvelously illustrated flight of bombers and bomber crews—hour after hour, day after day, in all kinds of weather (but mostly bad)—over the Jap's last foothold on the continent.

"Report" from the Aleutians, which this department went to see again just to check on a suspicion of its greater timeliness today, has another and unsuspected quality. It is the perfect illustration of "Victory Through Air Power."

Quicker than a wink—which we would like to see timed some day so we could use specific figures—the Earle management yesterday decided that "This Is the Army" would give way tomorrow to "Watch on the Rhine." It is the anticipated run of the former picture by a week at the chain's major house, but the management wants it distinctly understood that it was not a matter of business. "This Is the Army" not only broke first and second week records for the theater, but was right at the top for the third. The official announcement of the change in schedule attributes it to the pie-up of product, which is to say, that too many other pictures are waiting to permit another

Win, Lose or Draw

By BURTON HAWKINS, Star Staff Correspondent. Newsom in the News—Or Here We Go Again

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Buck Newsom has more trouble keeping his promises than Tommy Manville has keeping a wife for more than a week.

Newsom operates on the assumption that the public soon forgets such boastful chatter and so this season, in mid-July, he ranted, raved, steamed, snorted and stormed when the Dodgers peddled him to the St. Louis Browns as the aftermath of a tiff between bulky Buck and Manager Leo Durocher.

After informing the world, or at least that portion of the world which would listen, that he was the victim of a miscarriage of justice, Buck took a train for St. Louis and upon arrival blithely revealed to President Don Bums of the Browns, "I'm the guy who can win that pennant for you."

Color Boosts Income. It developed Newsom hasn't pitched the Browns within shouting distance of the pennant. When he joined the Browns they were getting along rather nicely, chasing the Yankees at a respectable distance.

Os Sees Hope for Buck. There still is a suspicion Newsom can be as good as a pitcher as he has been winning the Browns' only little of the time.

Bucks' color preference is black on white, which would be the color combination of newspapers. He's the easiest figure in sports to interview.

G. W., Out of College Sports, Plans for Postwar Boom

By ROD THOMAS. George Washington, out of intercollegiate competition for the duration, looks forward to a sports boom after the war and aims to be a leader in it.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, G. W. president, in announcing the College withdrawal from the intercollegiate field due to the university's capacity war effort, expressed regret and, as host to a group of sports writers at luncheon, painted a happy picture of the sports future at his institution.

Plans Physical Ed Expansion. In this connection Dr. Marvin said the G. W. physical education school, already having recognition through the general success of its graduates, will be expanded and revised somewhat with a view to assisting the rehabilitation of war casualties, a field in which the university already is busy academically.

Makes Sporting Gesture. Because George Washington won the Southern Conference basketball championship last season, Dr. Marvin thought to put a team in the sport.

Today letters were being sent to the Citadel, Richmond U. Duke and Boston U. G. W.'s scheduled football opponents, announcing the withdrawal.

Wilson With 75 Boys Has Largest Group Among Five Out

By GEORGE HUBER. Without a letter man regular returning to the squad this year, Central's high school football champions face the same problems as their league rivals do—that of shaping a team from a group of mostly young, light and inexperienced boys.

Wilson With 75 Boys Out. Central's turnout was exceeded only at Wilson, where 75 players were reported. "We'll give them a run for their money this year," Coach Carlo said. "My boys are green, but they'll learn. We're going to work them hard."

Coach, Ace Courtmen Are Gone, but Hoyas Hope for Keen Five

Despite loss of Coach Elmer Ripley and all of the players who last year carried Georgetown's basketball banner to the NCAA tournament final in Madison Square Garden, the Hoyas still hope to have a good basketball team this season. This was announced by Father John J. Kehoe, S. J., faculty moderator of athletics.

Just who will coach the team has not been decided. A possibility is Joe Gardner, athletic director, who formerly coached at Georgetown Prep.

Ripley, it was announced yesterday in New York, has taken over the coaching post at Columbia, succeeding Cliff Battles, now in the Marine Corps. A former pro player, Ripley became Georgetown coach in 1920, and moved to Yale in 1929. He returned to the Hoyas in 1937 and turned out some of the East's best teams.

Navy Bans 12 Trojans, Behind in Studies

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—Presaging what may be in store for other young men who want to play football, participate in Navy or Marine training programs and yet not spend too much time over the books, the Navy has ruled out 12 of Southern California's grid candidates as ineligible.

Coach Jeff Cravath got the bad news as he called a squad of 51 together. Naval authorities handed him a slip of paper bearing the 12 names and saying the ineligible candidates would be out of action for at least three weeks.

That meant they probably would not be available at all. They will have to be cramming when daily practice sessions are held on Bovard Field from 4 to 5:30 o'clock.

Most important deflection is Jackie Fellows, outstanding back last year at Fresno State, where he established a national scoring record. Other important ineligible are Jack Pattee, Fellows' running mate at fullback, and Doug Miller, Santa Ana Jayvee quarterback transfer whose passing was counted on strongly in Cravath's T formation.

Sharkey Is Much Meaner Than Leone in Mat Bout

Babe Sharkey won last night's battle of the mat meemies in the feature rassle match at Turner's Arena. He defeated Michele Leone in 16 minutes after both had been tossed out of the ring several times during a wild bout.

The semifinal was a scientific draw between Maurice La Chappelle and George Macrostas. Another draw was between Dick Lever and Jack Wentworth, while Nick Serio defeated Abe Stein and the Blue Streak won over Ben Morgan.

Scribe Roger Pippen Wins State Senior Golf Title

Sports writers aren't such terrible golfers after all. At least one of them holds a championship today. The man is silver-haired Roger Pippen, sports editor of the Baltimore News-Paper, who yesterday won the Maryland senior title over the Suburban Country Club course at Pikesville.

Rogger put together two nifty nines of 39 for a 78 to win by a stroke from a trio deadlocked at 79 for second place. In the tie were B. Warren Corkran, Arthur Levering and James Harrison, all of Baltimore. The tourney was for men 50 years of age and over.

John F. McCarron of Manor was the top Washington scorer with 81. Dr. Noah Pomeroy of Kenwood had 87.

The net award went to R. E. Roudabush of Baltimore with 79-14-65.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Helen Van Gaston, national women's rifle champion, has traded her .22-caliber rifle for a rivet gun and now is "shooting" rivets at the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co.'s plant.

Champion in prone, kneeling and standing positions with iron sights at 50 feet, Mrs. Van Gaston says her "rifle" training seemed to help some in becoming acquainted with the squeeze of the rivet gun trigger.

Maryland Postpones V. M. I. Tilt Action, Other Matters

University of Maryland's athletic board held a meeting last night but delayed action on whether it would field V. M. I. at football next year. The game at present is slated in Lexington on November 20 but the Cadets planned to ask a shift to Roskoe on Thanksgiving Day.

V. M. I. doesn't object to use of servicemen who have not played their allotted time in colleges but declines to oppose those who have had their year of freshman and three years of varsity competition. "F" transfers and others who do not meet the loop's old eligibility rules.

Dr. L. B. Broughton, chairman, said the board would meet again in about two weeks when decisions as to a number of athletic questions would be settled.

Maryland's Nine Finishes With Loss to Colesville

University of Maryland's summer baseball team closed its season with a three-run loss to Colesville after absorbing a 13-7 setback from the Colesville A. C. nine yesterday at College Park. The scheduled game against Camp Holabird on Saturday has been canceled.

Brother Lou started on the Colesville mound and the Old Liners couldn't do a thing until he had to leave after five innings. Then they managed to get seven runs, five of them coming in the eighth.

Floyd Roberts started for Maryland, with Larry Williams and Kermit Pritchard finishing. Colesville's big inning was the fourth when five runs were scored.

AWOL Soldier Faces Trial on Check Charge

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Charles Lorne Fisk McIntosh, 30, described as an AWOL Army private, waived a hearing when arraigned here yesterday before United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter and was held in $7,500 bail for appearance in Chicago September 14 to face charges of transporting fraudulent checks in interstate commerce. His home was said to be in Detroit.

E. E. Conroy, New York Federal Bureau of Investigation chief, said FBI agents had arrested McIntosh Tuesday night at the Billmore Hotel, where he had registered with a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Alice Rand de Tarnowski, member of a prominent Chicago family.

H. M. Richardson, attorney for McIntosh, said no bail would be posted here.

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday the arrest in New York of Charles Robert Lorne Fisk McIntosh, described as an Army private who went AWOL from his base at Liberal, Kans., on charges of writing worthless checks and violating the Mann Act.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said McIntosh and a woman companion had toured the country, staying at first-class hotels, and paying for their accommodations with bogus checks.

A complaint had been filed in Chicago charging McIntosh with "willfully and fraudulently" falsifying checks to be transported in interstate commerce.

A complaint also has been filed against him at Buffalo, N. Y., accusing him of passing bogus checks in Rochester, N. Y., and transporting his companion into the State in violation of the White Slave Traffic Act, the FBI said.

Mr. Hoover said McIntosh often posed as a sergeant in the Army Ferry Command. He is a native of Detroit and attended an Eastern university, but was expelled by the faculty for selling worthless stock, the FBI chief declared.

Last 3 Nazis Who Fled Fort in Canada Captured

By the Associated Press.

CLAYTON, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Three men identified as the three remaining escaped German war prisoners from Fort Henry, Kingston, Ontario, were captured yesterday by an immigration border patrolman.

Sixteen other prisoners who escaped from the fort last Thursday night had been apprehended by Saturday night in an intensive manhunt centering about Kingston.

An immigration official said details were still lacking as to where the escapees had been since Thursday, or how they crossed the St. Lawrence River.

He identified the three as Wilhelm Joesting, 36; Ernest Muench, 22, and Heinz Wirtz, 21.

Monthly Collections Planned in Paper Salvage Drive

Paper salvaged in Washington will be collected once each month in each section of the city beginning September 18, under a plan outlined last night at a meeting of area salvage and organization committee chairmen at the District Building, Saturday.

Told by Horace Walker, executive secretary of the D. C. Salvage Committee, that the drive for paper has lagged thus far, the group was exhorted to its utmost effort to make the plan effective in the various localities. Failure to get collections established on a workable basis, Mr. Walker said, would necessitate calling on the Army to do the job.

Collection Days Set.

The plan calls for paper collections in Southeast Washington every third Saturday of the month. The fourth Saturday will be given over to Southwest, the smallest area, with the idea of giving salvage workers a breathing spell to get their affairs in order for the customary first-of-the-month rush. Paper will be picked up in the Northeast section on the first Saturday and in Northwest on the second Saturday of every month.

Each section of the city is divided into areas, which, in turn, come under a committee. Southwest, however, is considered as a single area within itself. The D. C. Salvage Committee will furnish one truck for each area in a section for about four hours' work the Saturday paper is being gathered up in that particular neighborhood.

A total of 61 trucks will be required for this work, with Northwest claiming 34. In areas where more than one truck will be needed committee chairmen will be authorized to borrow trucks from civic-minded businessmen.

Mr. Walker said the District of Columbia committee would be glad to write letters of indorsement to ration boards for truck owners requesting additional gasoline coupons to be used in the work.

To Distribute Leaflets.

Salvage committees will be supplied with leaflets to be distributed throughout their areas instructing householders how to co-operate in the drive. Families will be asked to leave their bound paper on front porches on collection days and Boy Scouts and other civic and patriotic groups will be asked to help collect the material.

Paper not collected by 3 p.m. on the appointed day will be picked up by special trucks if the District of Columbia Salvage Committee is notified by telephone at Republic 8488. The committee guarantees to get every scrap off porches and sidewalks before nightfall.

Joseph Viner, speaking for waste paper dealers, promised he and his associates "will do everything within our power" to make the drive a success. Mr. Viner urged speed in getting under way, however, pointing out that the bulk of the District's quota must be collected before Christmas to reach paper mills in time to be put to the most effective use.

Scarcity of Newsprint For French in Africa Laid to U. S. 'Bias'

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK, Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

ALGIERS, Sept. 2.—Because of a serious newsprint shortage the two leading French morning newspapers here are now published in single-sheet tabloid form. Next to them, the four-page tabloid Stars and Stripes, American Army newspaper, looks huge.

When the Allied forces landed here, the largest newsprint stocks belonged to the collaborationist and anti-Allied newspapers, who were getting it from the Germans. Efforts to collect all available newsprint and distribute it equitably were unsuccessful, and it was some time before French economy was sufficiently organized to place orders for newsprint in the United States.

Then came the question of shipping. The tonnage allotted to the French was needed urgently for arms, food and clothing, and the newsprint shortage became acute. By the beginning of October, imports of newsprint should be coming in to relieve the present shortage but in the meantime the newspapers will appear in abbreviated form.

This is a matter of interest and importance to the Allies for two reasons: Because North Africa for nearly three years had to take the bulk of its news from Axis sources and has had only about eight months of Allied news, and because some elements here interpret the lack of newsprint as an American effort to exert political pressure.

The tone of some newspapers here has been increasingly critical of the United States because of Allied intervention in the question of the French military command—intervention which they attributed to the United States rather than to responsible Frenchmen, nor committee members, but by the man on the street.

Coal Deliveries Here Expected To Be Pooled

Dealers Hard Hit By Shortages of Men, Equipment

A system of pooling coal deliveries probably will be set up in the Washington area within a few weeks in an effort to overcome manpower and equipment shortages, it was predicted today by William Tobin, local manager for the Office of Defense Transportation.

In line with instructions from the national ODT, a dealers' committee of five members to work with the ODT was being set up. Similar groups are being established in 141 other motor transport districts in the country. These committees will study the problems of coal dealers and will make recommendations to assure adequate deliveries to all consumers next winter.

Need for action has become acute, it was said, because of the increasing shortage of manpower and equipment, as well as the expected increase in the residential use of coal owing to last winter's OPA program urging conversion of oil-heating facilities. ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman estimated yesterday that the national increase in the home use of coal would be 22 per cent over last season.

Conservation Under Way. Mr. Tobin said that details of the local program to speed deliveries among more coal consumers would not be available until after the committee had been named and had conducted several meetings. He pointed out, however, that local dealers already have taken many steps to conserve coal, such as curtailment of mileage and that measures in addition to those in effect last winter probably will become necessary.

A committee selected by the Coal Division of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association last season worked out a mileage-saving program which has been in effect since. This group has been in constant consultation with the local ODT office and was praised by Mr. Tobin for its efforts to curtail mileage and the use of equipment.

Most serious problem this year, according to A. E. Quinn, chairman of the association's coal division, will be manpower. This difficulty already plagued local dealers last year and prevented many of them from maintaining delivery schedules. In the meantime, Mr. Brown said, the shortage of coal has become worse and will be further complicated by the expected increase in coal consumption.

Experience Is Vital. "An experienced coal truck driver," said Mr. Brown, "can make six or seven trips a day because he is familiar with handling the equipment and can load and unload quickly and efficiently. But we don't have many such men left. The result is that we must rely on less efficient employees, who can make only two or three trips a day."

Of the last year's equipment, his policy of inducing residential fuel oil users of less than 10,000 gallons annually to convert their equipment to the use of coal. It was explained at that time that additional oil savings to be gained through this campaign were negligible and that both conversion parts and the types of coal needed were scarce.

A coal delivery pool is already in existence in Chicago, ODT said, and is resulting in appreciable savings. Public Warned Against Picking Up Squirrels

A warning to the public that squirrels should not be fed by hand or picked up was issued today by Deputy Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger as he reported that three persons living near Fourteenth and Clifton streets N.W. were bitten recently by a squirrel believed to be rabid.

One of the victims was 10-year-old Seda Kavalidjan, 1454 Clifton street, who suffered a gash on the right hand as she was attempting to feed a squirrel. Her grandmother also was attacked and another woman in the neighborhood was bitten. The squirrel was killed, and a Health Department laboratory test was said to have shown a "presumably positive" for rabies. The laboratory is making a confirmation in inoculation test. The victims of the squirrel were advised to take the Pasteur treatment.

Western Union Office Rifled of $787 Cash

Theft of $787.36 in cash and $3.75 in War savings stamps from a safe in the Western Union branch office at 3007 Fourteenth street N.W. was reported to police today by Charles A. Gable, Silver Spring, Md., manager of the branch.

Mr. Gable said the safe was found open this morning, having been broken into during the night. Also missing were numerous non-negotiable Western Union drafts.

Back From the Wars Soldier, Invalided Here, Thinks Nazi Shells Were Sabotaged

Six of 10 Found Duds in Tunisia, Pfc. Robinson Says

There are others, of course, who have cause to rejoice in the work that the German underground is doing to speed the defeat of their Nazi rulers, but Pfc. Carl L. Robinson, now invalided back to Walter Reed, has a special reason to be thankful for the work of the underground.

An artilleryman, Pvt. Robinson has a highly developed respect for the efficacy of shellfire, enemy or his own. Between the two, of course, he is quick to assure the listener that there is no comparison. Just the other day, however, he would much prefer to be a German soldier when the Jerry fire starts coming over.

On one occasion Pvt. Robinson remembers, the Germans looped a big 210-mm. shell right over in the direction of the battery to which he was attached. It landed within 30 feet of the Americans' camouflage net. "I heard it whistling in," Pvt. Robinson relates, "and headed for my fox hole, and the explosion brought down our net right over the guns."

Crew Spreads Out. The battery crew then decided that the atmosphere was getting a little close in the immediate vicinity and spread out into the human dispersal area around the guns, waiting to see where the next one was going to land. But they waited in vain.

It soon became evident that the German field piece which had fired the shot was engaged in random map firing, dropping occasional shells into likely American positions, and actually its commander had no idea how close he had come to hitting a worthwhile target. Subsequent shells fell farther and farther away.

It was later, while Pvt. Robinson's outfit was preparing the way for infantry in the attack at Fondouk, that he learned how it feels when the Germans really have your range and are out to finish you off. "They were landing them all around us," Pvt. Robinson said, "but there was one thing which was being heavy in our favor. Six out of 10 of the shells which landed in our vicinity were duds. If some of them had gone off, I might not be here today."

Sabotage, He Believes. For this fortunate circumstance, the artilleryman is quick to give credit where he believes credit due. It is his opinion that so high a percentage of defective shells could only have been the result of undercover work in a German munitions factory. In such a case, he observed gratefully, a little sabotage can go a long way.

Pvt. Robinson's battery took part in the major attacks in the African theater, but the outfit Mrs. Cleo Cox Wins Continued Custody Of 3-Year-Old Son

Three-year-old Barney Cox, whose antics during a District Court custody hearing prompted Justice Matthew P. McGuire to suggest he retire from the courtroom "to hunt ducks," will remain in the custody of his mother, Mrs. Cleo Cox, 20, of 1178 Morse street N.E.

The court today dismissed a habeas corpus writ filed by the father, Carson Cox, 27, of Triplett, N. C. Barney, who was unresponsive in locating any ducks, was presented a cardboard duck by reporters at the close of the hearing and seemed quite pleased.

The father had petitioned the court to grant the return of the blond-haired boy to him and his parents in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The couple had been separated in June, when Mrs. Cox came here with the boy to live with a sister. Mrs. Barney remained impartial through the hearing, which opened yesterday. While his mother testified, he sat quietly on his father's lap. When Mrs. Cox had completed her testimony, Barney went to his mother and was asked whether he preferred McGuire ruled that it was his best interests at his age to remain with his mother.

During testimony of the father yesterday, Barney several times climbed the stand. Then he had fun twirling a set of jacks and later talked a spectator into drawing pictures for him.

After more than 20 minutes of this, the jurist turned to a bailiff and said: "Escort this gentleman from the courtroom."

To the boy he said: "Barney, there are some ducks outside." Barney retired gleefully and the hearing proceeded.

Mrs. Cox is employed as a cashier in a Navy Yard restaurant, according to her attorney, Milton I. Lewis.

27,900 in D. C. Are Eligible for War Housing

NHA Surveys 7,000 To Probe Satisfaction With Living Status

Approximately 11,900 single Government war workers and 16,000 with families in the Washington area are eligible for war housing, the National Housing Agency estimated today, basing its statement on a sample survey of 7,000 Federal workers taken here last May by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

These are the numbers of people here, the NHA said, who are employed by Government agencies engaged in essential war work and who either: (A) Are commuting excessive distances to work. (B) Have been forced—with their families—to move through no fault of their own.

Relative Brought Here. (C) Have found it necessary to bring a husband, wife or other dependents into the Washington area, so that present living quarters are inadequate to house the additional members of the family, or (D) Have moved in the Washington area since July, 1941, and now are living under "intolerable" housing conditions.

The NHA's estimate did not include the many additional workers made eligible for war housing under a broadening of the eligibility requirements that was announced Monday.

Of the more than 7,000 Government war workers questioned in the survey, about one-fourth of the families eligible for war housing said they were dissatisfied with present housing accommodations and must have better quarters, the NHA reported. An additional 14 per cent said they were dissatisfied but, if necessary, would remain in their present quarters. Another 25 per cent expressed themselves as "reasonably satisfied."

Many Negroes Dissatisfied. Among the single Government war workers eligible for war housing, 70 per cent felt they must have better quarters, the NHA said. An equal number are dissatisfied, but will remain if necessary, while one-third are "reasonably satisfied."

The highest percentage of dissatisfaction was found among Negroes, who constituted 13 per cent of the group surveyed. Of the Negroes eligible for war housing, approximately 43 per cent of the families and 51 per cent of the single workers are dissatisfied with present living accommodations and say they must have something better, the NHA pointed out.

The survey also showed that about 27 per cent of the Government war workers in trailers, tourist camps or other temporary accommodations, are roomers; 61 per cent live with other members of their families in houses or apartments; 11 per cent are living either alone or with unrelated persons and occupy houses or apartments, and the remaining 1 per cent live in trailers, tourist camps or other temporary accommodations.

Must Purchase Corn. Mr. Kline said he would have to purchase corn for winter feed, and in order to haul feed to his barn also will have to purchase an additional truck.

Another dairy farmer, W. R. Burston of Calverton, told the commission that he agreed with Mr. Kline on every point, but that his testimony would bear out everything the other farmer said.

A 2-cent per quart rise in price to be borne by the consumer is the only possible solution to the present problem, which farmers term more serious than the milk crisis. Frank S. Walker of Orange testified. He asked the commission if it did not believe the consumer was in a position to pay 14 cents a week extra to raise a child.

Raises Labor Question. Estimating 91 cents per day as the cost of feeding a cow capable of producing 3 gallons of milk, he testified that $1.05 was the net price received for the milk.

"Where will we get the price for the labor, which is supposed to be 30 per cent of the cost of production?" he asked.

Farmers agreed that the increase in cost is essential to keep them from drawing on reserves, and to enable them to keep their herds until conditions improve.

Summing up the testimony of producers presented to the Milk Commission earlier today, B. B. Derrick, manager of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association, said he believed the 70-cent-per hundredweight increase in price which producers are requesting would enable them to maintain their present production level.

Gas Co. Doubts Postwar Drop in Population

PUC Told Rate Plea Is Based on Need To Continue Services

Belief that there will be no extensive reduction in the population of the District after the war was voiced today by E. J. Boothby, vice president of the Washington Gas Light Co., as he continued arguments before the Public Utilities Commission against a reduction in the basic rate of return allowed the company under its sliding-scale plan.

The witness said that while there may be a postwar exodus of Government workers, he did not believe it would be more than a temporary leveling off of population, and therefore he did not anticipate a sharp decline in service demands placed on the company.

Mr. Boothby said repeatedly that the gas company is faced with strong competition from electric power and coal. This was offered as justification for a higher basic rate of return for the gas company than that for the Potomac Electric Power Co. The gas company's rate now is 6.5 per cent on its valuation, and the commission is considering reducing it to 4 per cent, which is the basic rate allowed Peppo.

If such a change is ordered, there would be a greatly increased amount of "excess" profits shown for the past year, and thereby a very much larger sum indicated for the summer rate reductions for the new billing year, dating from yesterday than the $38,000 rate cut suggested by a PUC witness.

This phase of the rate hearings was brought to the fore at yesterday afternoon's session. Statistics were presented by V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the PUC, and additional data was supplied by Mr. Boothby.

Mr. McElfresh testified that in his judgment, which was based on his studies of utility concerns, the gas company would be able to maintain its "financial integrity" and to attract additional capital, when and if needed, should its primary rate be reduced to 6 per cent.

Earnings Price Ratios. Mr. McElfresh offered data to show that the average cost of money invested in the plant and other assets of the gas company is 4.48 per cent for its long-term indebtedness, 4.90 per cent on preferred stock, and 10 per cent on common stock, arriving at an average of 5.87 per cent for the overall, including a 10 per cent figure on earned surplus as related to common stock.

Considerable time was devoted to these earnings price ratios, and Mr. McElfresh offered other exhibits showing such findings as to a list of electric power concerns compared with a separate list for gas companies.

Mr. Boothby placed before the commission data showing that there had been net additions to the company's investment of $22,000,000 between 1932 and 1942, but while the investment in property had increased 96.8 per cent, revenues from sales of gas 93.4 per cent and gas consumption 129 per cent, the gross corporate income—company revenue less expenses except for interest and dividends—had increased only 8.7 per cent. It was suggested this latter was due to reduced consumer charges and to increased expenses and taxes.

Students at American U. Adopt Work-Study Plan

Students at American University have been using War Manpower Administration work-study programs for some time, university officials announced today.

They said so many students have been working and studying at the same time that Assistant Prof. Peter F. Stapp has had a full-time job. Without lowering of educational or labor standards, Mr. McNutt said, he is anxious to have as much part-time student help in war industries as possible.

Recalls Indian Trail. John F. Duhamel told how he had found an old Indian trail in the Piney Branch valley. Alongside the trail were discovered caches of stones used to make arrowheads. Also in the neighborhood of Albee-Marle street and Connecticut avenue N.W. and near the Zoological Park were found pipe stones from which Indians had fashioned their pipes.

Mr. Proctor announced that he had received word at 6:30 last night that Theodore W. Noyes, who has been ill for quite some time, was "getting along very nicely and in excellent condition, all conditions considered." The association also sent its greetings to Mr. Noyes.

Greetings and a box of salt water taffy were received from member William L. Martin, who is vacationing in Point Pleasant, N. J. All members present enjoyed Mr. Martin's gift and suggested he send more such greetings.

Earnings Price Ratios. Mr. McElfresh offered data to show that the average cost of money invested in the plant and other assets of the gas company is 4.48 per cent for its long-term indebtedness, 4.90 per cent on preferred stock, and 10 per cent on common stock, arriving at an average of 5.87 per cent for the overall, including a 10 per cent figure on earned surplus as related to common stock.

Considerable time was devoted to these earnings price ratios, and Mr. McElfresh offered other exhibits showing such findings as to a list of electric power concerns compared with a separate list for gas companies.

Mr. Boothby placed before the commission data showing that there had been net additions to the company's investment of $22,000,000 between 1932 and 1942, but while the investment in property had increased 96.8 per cent, revenues from sales of gas 93.4 per cent and gas consumption 129 per cent, the gross corporate income—company revenue less expenses except for interest and dividends—had increased only 8.7 per cent. It was suggested this latter was due to reduced consumer charges and to increased expenses and taxes.

Students at American U. Adopt Work-Study Plan

Students at American University have been using War Manpower Administration work-study programs for some time, university officials announced today.

They said so many students have been working and studying at the same time that Assistant Prof. Peter F. Stapp has had a full-time job. Without lowering of educational or labor standards, Mr. McNutt said, he is anxious to have as much part-time student help in war industries as possible.

Recalls Indian Trail. John F. Duhamel told how he had found an old Indian trail in the Piney Branch valley. Alongside the trail were discovered caches of stones used to make arrowheads. Also in the neighborhood of Albee-Marle street and Connecticut avenue N.W. and near the Zoological Park were found pipe stones from which Indians had fashioned their pipes.

Mr. Proctor announced that he had received word at 6:30 last night that Theodore W. Noyes, who has been ill for quite some time, was "getting along very nicely and in excellent condition, all conditions considered." The association also sent its greetings to Mr. Noyes.

Greetings and a box of salt water taffy were received from member William L. Martin, who is vacationing in Point Pleasant, N. J. All members present enjoyed Mr. Martin's gift and suggested he send more such greetings.

Gas Co. Doubts Postwar Drop in Population

PUC Told Rate Plea Is Based on Need To Continue Services

Belief that there will be no extensive reduction in the population of the District after the war was voiced today by E. J. Boothby, vice president of the Washington Gas Light Co., as he continued arguments before the Public Utilities Commission against a reduction in the basic rate of return allowed the company under its sliding-scale plan.

The witness said that while there may be a postwar exodus of Government workers, he did not believe it would be more than a temporary leveling off of population, and therefore he did not anticipate a sharp decline in service demands placed on the company.

Mr. Boothby said repeatedly that the gas company is faced with strong competition from electric power and coal. This was offered as justification for a higher basic rate of return for the gas company than that for the Potomac Electric Power Co. The gas company's rate now is 6.5 per cent on its valuation, and the commission is considering reducing it to 4 per cent, which is the basic rate allowed Peppo.

If such a change is ordered, there would be a greatly increased amount of "excess" profits shown for the past year, and thereby a very much larger sum indicated for the summer rate reductions for the new billing year, dating from yesterday than the $38,000 rate cut suggested by a PUC witness.

This phase of the rate hearings was brought to the fore at yesterday afternoon's session. Statistics were presented by V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the PUC, and additional data was supplied by Mr. Boothby.

Mr. McElfresh testified that in his judgment, which was based on his studies of utility concerns, the gas company would be able to maintain its "financial integrity" and to attract additional capital, when and if needed, should its primary rate be reduced to 6 per cent.

Earnings Price Ratios. Mr. McElfresh offered data to show that the average cost of money invested in the plant and other assets of the gas company is 4.48 per cent for its long-term indebtedness, 4.90 per cent on preferred stock, and 10 per cent on common stock, arriving at an average of 5.87 per cent for the overall, including a 10 per cent figure on earned surplus as related to common stock.

Fairfax County Police to Get Monthly Bonus

Supervisors May Ask Federal Funds for Lateral Sewer Line

A bonus of $25 per month for each member of the Fairfax County Police Department was authorized yesterday by the County Board of Supervisors.

The present salary scale for privates on the force ranges from $140 to $155 per month, depending on the length of service.

The supervisors will hold a special meeting at 8 o'clock tonight to approve an application for Federal funds for the construction of lateral sewer lines to connect with the trunk line sewer in the Holmes Run watershed.

Data needed to file with the application has been compiled by J. J. Corbals, sanitary district engineer.

Following an intensive survey of the needs for sewage in the various communities within the district, Mr. Corbals said the application would be for approximately $500,000.

The trunk line sewer, now nearly completed, was constructed with a Federal grant of more than $1,000,000 and supervised by the Federal Works Agency.

The board authorized J. Wilmer Smith, architect, to prepare preliminary sketches of a proposed new office building to be added to the Trial Justice Building.

The ordinance would require owners throughout the year to confine their dogs to their premises.

Supervisors D. W. Buckley and Maurice W. Fox were named members of a committee to investigate a site on which to erect the dog pound and also the establishment of a trash dump.

Mr. Corbals informed the board that the War Department has approved a contract for the purchase of water and disposal of sewer for the Accotink water and sewer system now under construction.

The increase which the association is requesting, Mr. Derrick said, is 15 cents a quart, or 15 per cent more than the present price of $4.35 per hundredweight.

Mr. Derrick pointed out that since January, 1941, the cost of dairy feed to local farmers has risen 73 per cent and wages paid farm hands 15 per cent, while the overall cost of milk production has increased 61 per cent.

During this period, he pointed out, the cost of fluid milk to the distributors has risen only 24 per cent, and the blend of all milk and cream sold by distributors only 36 per cent.

Mr. Derrick said that while the drought has aggravated the milk shortage here, actually Washington faces a long-term shortage unless farmers are encouraged to increase milk production.

Veteran of 3 Wars, 81, Seeks Job to Release Fighting Man

Maj. Henry K. Love Served With Knox In Rough Riders

Living in a quiet Forest Glen inn is a retired Army officer 81 years of age, veteran of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders in Cuba, the Philippine Insurrection and the World War, who is willing to work at "any dirty or dangerous job" if it will release an able-bodied man for fighting.

He is Maj. Henry K. Love, who served in the same Rough Rider troop as Secretary of the Navy Knox, whom he outranked at that time. Anxious to perform some work in this war, he wrote to Secretary Knox, recalling that they had been together once as soldiers, and asking for a job without compensation at any place he might be used—Iceland or Dakar.

In fact, he is so anxious to help that he went to the Forest Glen branch of Walter Reed Hospital and offered to cut the lawn or wash windows if it would release a man for military service.

"I'm husky and able to work," he said. "I'm always beautifully treated but turned down," he added.

His daughter, Mrs. Bonnie Von Steiner-Goell, of Kensington, Md., who worked in a hospital at Newport News, Va., at the age of 15 in the World War, is serving again in this one.

"She's a real worker," her father commented.

Mrs. Von Steiner-Goell used to help her mother at the hospital in the World War, when her mother was serving as a lieutenant in the canteen service. In this war, she studied nursing and became a nurse's aide at Garfield Hospital.

Then, in March, when Walter Reed started using nurse's aides, she went to the Army Medical Center.

Maj. Love started his military career in Roosevelt's regiment in Cuba and was later commissioned in the volunteer infantry, serving under Col. Craig, father of the former Chief of Staff, Gen. Malin Craig.

PUC Continues Study of Returns Of Gas Light Co.

McElfresh Says Capital Could Be Attracted Despite Earning Cut

Debate was to be continued today before the Public Utilities Commission on the question whether the primary rate of return allowed the Washington Gas Light Co. should be reduced from 6.5 per cent of the valuation to 6 per cent.

If such a change is ordered, there would be a greatly increased amount of "excess" profits shown for the past test year, and thereby a very much larger sum indicated for consumer rate reductions for the new billing year, dating from yesterday than the $38,000 rate cut suggested by a PUC witness.

This phase of the rate hearings was brought to the fore at yesterday afternoon's session. Statistics were presented by V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the PUC, and additional data was supplied by E. J. Boothby, gas company vice president.

These seemed to indicate no disagreement over the theory that a gas company operation was more speculative than that of an electric power concern. While the primary rate of return allowed the Washington Gas Light Co. under its sliding scale plan is 6.5 per cent, the basic rate for the Potomac Electric Power Co. under its sliding scale arrangement has been 6 per cent for some years.

Mr. McElfresh testified that in his studies of utility concerns, the gas company would be able to maintain its "financial integrity" and to attract additional capital, when and if needed, should its primary rate be reduced to 6 per cent.

Mr. McElfresh offered data to show that the average cost of money invested in the plant and other assets of the gas company was 4.48 per cent for its long-term indebtedness, 4.90 per cent on preferred stock, and 10 per cent on common stock, arriving at an average of 5.87 per cent for the overall, including a 10 per cent figure on earned surplus as well as on common stock.

Mr. Boothby placed before the commission data showing that there had been net additions to the company plant of $22,000,000 between 1932 and 1942; that while the investment in property had increased 98.8 per cent, revenues from sales of gas 93.4 per cent and gas consumption 129 per cent, the gross corporate income—company revenue less expenses except for interest and dividends—had increased only 8.7 per cent. It was suggested that latter was due to reduced consumer charges and to increased expenses and taxes.

Mr. Walker said seed dealers in many drought areas have informed him they are not selling seeds for fall and winter plantings. There is no need for seeds, he said, when the entire country is too dry for germination.

Continuation of the drought a few weeks longer, he stated, would seriously disrupt the planting of alfalfa, clovers and pasture grasses. A reduction of these crops, he pointed out, will mean another short hay crop next year in the drought area.

Frederick County Jury To Be Chosen Tuesday In Clatterback Case

Judge Alexander Admits No Competent Loudoun Panel Is Available

By a Staff Correspondent of The Star. LEESBURG, Va., Sept. 2.—The trial of Thomas William Clatterback on murder charges will be resumed here next Tuesday when a panel of 24 veniremen from Frederick County will be examined as to their qualifications to hear the case.

A defense motion for a change of venue was granted yesterday by Judge J. R. H. Alexander in the Loudoun County Circuit Court. The jurist conceded it was apparent no "competent jury" could be found in Loudoun County to try the man accused of slaying five persons on a Purcellville farm. Victims of the mass slaying on June 1 were A. Morris Love, his wife and son, James, and his tenant farmers, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Russell.

Judge Alexander agreed to the request to import a jury panel after having first denied a petition for a change of venue, which would have taken the case to some other Virginia county. The court agreed with the contention of Commonwealth's Attorney Charles F. Harrison that the atmosphere here was not such as to deny the defendant a fair trial.

50 Are Disqualified. Yesterday's action followed a day-long session Monday, when only six jurors could be obtained from a panel of 60 summoned by the court. Fifty of those examined admitted they had preconceived opinions and were disqualified to serve. Two others were excused for having confidential scruples against capital punishment and two were relieved of service for physical reasons.

Judge Alexander said he did not believe the court should be expected to exhaust the Loudoun County jury list of 300 before conceding the difficulties of getting an impartial jury. He said he was satisfied in his own mind that a competent jury could not be obtained from among the citizens of this county.

Some observers doubted that the necessary 20 veniremen could be procured from the panel of 24 which the court requested Frederick County to send next Tuesday. It was pointed out that Winchester, the county seat of Frederick County, was the place where Clatterback was held in jail for several weeks after his arrest and that many residents of that community already had formed opinions as to the prisoner's guilt or innocence.

Clatterback Is Calm. Clatterback, who has remained calm during most of the proceedings, broke into sobs at one point yesterday when his attorney, Maj. Robert A. McIntyre, told the court that no one could be found to sign affidavits supporting the defendant's position for a change of venue because of the feeling against the man in the county. The prisoner wept quietly for several minutes and then dried his tears with a handkerchief.

Capitation Tax Payment Is Necessary, Citizens Are Reminded by Mann

Harrison Mann, chairman of the Arlington County Democratic Campaign Committee, today urged all residents who are eligible to vote, but have not registered, to do so before October 2.

Mr. Mann pointed out that under Virginia laws it is necessary for a voter to register only once. Those who already have done this need not register again.

Morton's Held For Grand Jury In Murder Case

High School Youth Testifies He Saw Suspect in Park

Steadfastly maintaining his innocence, John Walter Morton, 39, yesterday was held to the grand jury in the death of Mrs. Grace Grubbs Groome, 57. The coroner's jury had heard nine witnesses, including two new ones, and their testimony to the circumstantial evidence confronting the accused man.

Morton is suspected of beating Mrs. Groome to death in Rock Creek Park Saturday night. She testified that they left the place together and that she saw Morton in the park Saturday night.

Other witnesses heard included T. C. Hutchinson, 30-year-old bus driver, who told of exchanging glances with the suspect when the latter appeared in bloody clothing in a restaurant after the block of Park road N.W. Saturday night, and Miss Minette Sherman, who identified Morton as the man wearing bloodstained clothing who boarded a Connecticut avenue bus near the park Saturday night.

Taking the stand in his own defense after a conference with his attorney, Morton denied being in the park with Mrs. Groome the night of the crime and also refuted the testimony of Detective Sgt. Robert Murray that he had seen the officer he had struck the dead woman during an argument about Morton's money. He declared he had not been on a bus or streetcar in Washington in a month.

Explains Blood on Shirt. Morton, responding to the cross-examination of Assistant District Attorney John Fishely, said his shirt was bloodied in a fist-fight with a man who attempted to pick his pocket in the 1400 block of Newton street N.W. He described the man's appearance as "sort of Latin" and said he was going to visit a friend when the incident occurred.

Asked to retrace his steps after parting company with Mrs. Groome at the restaurant, the defendant had only a "faint recollection of 'going some place' to get some food to eat. He could not get the address of the place, he said, he could not get the names of his friends or acquaintances who might have seen him there.

Morton admitted purchasing a picnic basket and sharing it with Mrs. Groome. He said he had drunk some of the liquor in an alley off Fourteenth street and that he gave her the bottle and left.

Met Woman in February. Morton, speaking in a low, moderate voice, described his first meeting with Mrs. Groome last February and declared he had not seen her regularly since then. He denied knowing her home address but said he "had an idea she lived on Columbia road."

Funeral arrangements for the dead woman have not been completed. The funeral home where the body will be removed said it had not yet been released by the coroner.

Rise in Milk Prices Will Be Urged Today At Alexandria Hearing

Virginia Commission Opens Investigation at Request of Producers

The Virginia Milk Commission today opened a hearing in Alexandria on a request by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association for a 70-cent per hundredweight increase in the price of milk.

Mr. Derrick, secretary of the association, which is made up of dairy farmers, serving the Washington milkshed, said increasing costs together with the drought, which has seriously affected milk production in this area, have made necessary an "immediate" increase in prices to be paid producers.

The increase which the association is requesting, Mr. Derrick said, is 15 cents a quart, or 15 per cent more than the present price of $4.35 per hundredweight.

Mr. Derrick pointed out that since January, 1941, the cost of dairy feed to local farmers has risen 73 per cent and wages paid farm hands 15 per cent, while the overall cost of milk production has increased 61 per cent.

During this period, he pointed out, the cost of fluid milk to the distributors has risen only 24 per cent, and the blend of all milk and cream sold by distributors only 36 per cent.

Mr. Derrick said that while the drought has aggravated the milk shortage here, actually Washington faces a long-term shortage unless farmers are encouraged to increase milk production.

Fall, Winter Planting In Virginia Reduced As Drought Continues

States Agriculture Chief Says '43 Harvest in Many Areas Is Lost

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 2.—L. M. Walker, jr., state commissioner of agriculture, said yesterday that this year's crops are virtually lost in many sections of Virginia and that the outlook for planting winter wheat and other crops which carry over into the next year are far from encouraging.

Mr. Walker said seed dealers in many drought areas have informed him they are not selling seeds for fall and winter plantings. There is no need for seeds, he said, when the entire country is too dry for germination.

Continuation of the drought a few weeks longer, he stated, would seriously disrupt the planting of alfalfa, clovers and pasture grasses. A reduction of these crops, he pointed out, will mean another short hay crop next year in the drought area.

While detailed reports of actual damage were lacking, the general condition of hay and feed crops in those areas was described as "alarming."

In the northern and central counties, Mr. Walker said, the drought had done its damage and farmers there now were concerned mainly with getting their winter grain and cover crops planted and with getting rid of surplus livestock to cut down their feeding needs as much as possible for the winter.

Bethesda Jeep House Ends Defense Work

300 Children Parade As Program Closes

The Jeep House in Bethesda was formally closed yesterday after a two-month program of varied defense activities in which more than 300 children of the area participated in eight Jeep House services.

More than 250 children marched down Wisconsin avenue to the Bethesda-Chevy Chase recreation center on Norwood drive, where they were reviewed by officials of the Red Cross, under whose direction the work was carried on this summer, and a delegation from the Bethesda Board of Trade, which sponsored the project.

The parade was led by 41 boys, members of the bicycle corps, who served as messengers for Red Cross units during the summer. They were followed by 30 boys of the woodworking classes and more than 100 girls wearing blue pinafores with Red Cross insignia, representing the sewing, knitting, miscellaneous production, first aid, nutrition and home nursing groups. Sixty-five girls in the surgical dressing unit wore white veils banded with the Red Cross emblem.

Parade of Pretty Brides Continues Through Summer

The procession of pretty brides continues through the late summer and the ranks probably will be enlarged each month as winter approaches.

One of the attractive affairs of this summer was that yesterday afternoon of Miss Margaret Somerville Berry and Mr. Calvert Thomas. The ceremony was performed on the lawn of Concord, the ancestral home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Belt Berry, in Prince Georges County, Md. The Rev. James Shrewsbury of the Episcopal Church officiated at 5 o'clock before an improvised altar of palms, white gladioluses and asters. Mrs. Oscar Carlson, pianist, and Miss Katharine Elder of Baltimore gave the wedding music.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. Her wedding gown was of ivory satin with long fitted bodice, the full skirt having a train. Her full-length ivory tulle veil was held by a satin halo and she carried white roses and gladioluses.

Mrs. John B. Morsell, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Miss Katharine Berry was maid of honor for her sister. The bride's other attendants were Miss Rosalie Bowie and Miss Florence Magruder of Upper Marlboro. Miss Virginia Judd of Takoma Park and Mrs. Donald R. Jones of Washington. Their frocks were of taffeta with long full skirts made with ruffles at the bottom, the matron of honor in gold color, Miss Berry in dusty rose and the others in aqua. Their bouquets of roses were tall, many deep red and yellow.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. W. D. Nelson Thomas and the late Mr. Thomas of Baltimore, had as his best man his brother, Staff Sergeant James L. Lamb, Jr., of Media, Pa., and Mr. E. Conway Taylor, Jr., of Mr. Walter E. Gregg, Jr., and Dr. Charles B. Porter of Baltimore.

The reception was held on the lawn at Concord for the large number of relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom who witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left later in the day for a short wedding trip the bride wearing a French rose linen suit with matching accessories and a shoulder bouquet of white roses. They will make their home at 4520 MacArthur boulevard, while Mr. Thomas is connected with the solicitor's office of the Department of Labor. He was graduated from Washington and Lee University and from the Law School at the University of Maryland. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi and Omicron Delta Kappa Fraternities. His bride was graduated from Mary Washington College and for the past year has been connected with the United States Geological Survey.

Geneva E. Gordon Bride Last Night

Miss Geneva Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Howell Gordon of Chevy Chase, and Mr. Erling Martin Hagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian A. Hagen of Minneapolis, were married last evening. Their wedding took place in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. George W. Burroughs, Jr., officiating at 8 o'clock and the reception was held in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Lewis Curtis. Miss Karlian Meyer played the wedding music and the church was decorated with palms and white gladioluses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin, the full skirt falling into a train and the fitted bodice having long sleeves. Her full length veil was held by the wreath of orange blossoms which held her mother's wedding veil and she carried white roses with a shower of stephanotis.

Miss Winifred J. Gordon was maid of honor for her sister and Mr. W. Gordon Brierley, Jr., of Minneapolis was best man. The ushers included Mr. James Howell Gordon, Jr., brother of the bride, Mr. Richard Townsend of Ireland, Mr. Joseph Marshall of Atlantic City and Mr. Harry Thompson of Rochester, N. Y.

Latin Faith in U. S. Great, Dr. Cannon Says After Trip

That the women of South America expect a great deal of the women of the United States because the women in this country have more independence and more opportunities was one of the impressions brought home by Dr. Mary M. Cannon, who recently visited Brazil, Paraguay, Peru and Ecuador.

Miss Cannon, who is inter-American representative of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department, reported on her trip to members of the Zonta Club at a luncheon yesterday at the YWCA.

"It was very sobering to realize how much people of the countries I visited this year look to the United States as the exponent of democracy—not just political democracy—but democracy in every phase of life," Miss Cannon declared.

"They take seriously all the points of the Atlantic charter. In practical terms, they believe democracy means better living conditions, among other things."

In referring to what the women of the countries she visited expect of United States women, Miss Cannon declared that some who have been here are disappointed that our women do not do more with their advantages.

"They are surprised that there is still a differentiation in wages, that barriers against women's advancement still exist," she said. "We have a responsibility—they expect us to move forward and to make democracy work."

Because of limited time, Miss Cannon devoted most of her talk to Brazil, cautioning against failure to differentiate between the countries of South America. The point was emphasized, she reported, in a conversation she had with Dona Maria Sabina Albuquerque, president of the Brazilian Federation for the Progress of Women.

"When the South American woman is referred to in the United States, she is generally the Spanish South American woman—not the Brazilian. There is a difference," Dona Maria Sabina told her. The difference, she pointed out, stems from the fact that Brazil once belonged to Portugal, the language is Portuguese and her history and traditions different from those of the Spanish-speaking countries.

Dona Maria Sabina also told Miss Cannon that the American woman, as typified by the women of the United States, is a pattern for Brazilian women.

Declaring that great strides have been made by Brazilian women since 1914, Miss Cannon declared that there are many women in public affairs in Brazil and that there are a number in offices and stores as well as in industry. Before 1914, women have not appeared on the streets alone, even in the daytime. To have to work was considered a disaster.

Brazilian women also are busy in "war work now," Miss Cannon reported. "On the streets of Rio in December," she said, "there were more young women than men in uniforms—the uniforms of volunteer nurses, Red Cross and Civilian Defense."

Veteran of 3 Wars, 81, Seeks Job to Release Fighting Man

Maj. Henry K. Love Served With Knox In Rough Riders

Living in a quiet Forest Glen inn is a retired Army officer 81 years of age, veteran of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders in Cuba, the Philippine Insurrection and the World War, who is willing to work at "any dirty or dangerous job" if it will release an able-bodied man for fighting.

He is Maj. Henry K. Love, who served in the same Rough Rider troop as Secretary of the Navy Knox, whom he outranked at that time. Anxious to perform some work in this war, he wrote to Secretary Knox, recalling that they had been together once as soldiers, and asking for a job without compensation at any place he might be used—Iceland or Dakar.

In fact, he is so anxious to help that he went to the Forest Glen branch of Walter Reed Hospital and offered to cut the lawn or wash windows if it would release a man for military service.

"I'm husky and able to work," he said. "I'm always beautifully treated but turned down," he added.

His daughter, Mrs. Bonnie Von Steinner-Goeltz of Kensington, Md., who worked in a hospital at Newport News, Va., at the age of 15 in the World War, is serving again in this one.

"She's a real worker," her father commented.

A nurse's aide at Walter Reed Hospital, Mrs. Von Steinner-Goeltz made her ninth donation of blood since Pearl Harbor at the Army-Navy Blood Donor Unit when it visited Silver Spring this week.

Mrs. Von Steinner-Goeltz used to help her mother at the hospital in the World War, when her mother was serving as a lieutenant in the canteen service. In this war, she studied nursing and became a nurse's aide at Garfield Hospital. Then, in March, when Walter Reed started using nurse's aides, she went to the Army Medical Center.

Maj. Love started his military career in Roosevelt's regiment in Cuba and was later commissioned in the volunteer infantry, serving under Col. Craig, father of the former Chief of Staff, Gen. Malin Craig.

In the Philippines he saw duty in Bataan and was appointed treasurer of that province by the late William Howard Taft, at that time Philippine commissioner. Following service in the Philippines, he was sent to Alaska at his own request, later being appointed United States marshal for Division 3, which took in Seal Islands, Kiska, Attu, Dutch Harbor, the south coast of Alaska and nearly all of the Yukon Valley.

With the election of President Wilson, a Democrat, his nomination for reappointment was allowed to lapse. He then re-entered military service and was assigned to Newport News as constructing quartermaster. At one time he had 12,000 men on his pay roll and spent $18,250,000.

On one of his old discharge papers is a penned note, signed by Theodore Roosevelt, describing Maj. Love as "one of the very best men in my regiment; modest, fearless, prompt to render every soldierly duty. I prized him not only for his entire fearlessness in battle but the quiet thoroughness with which he performed every duty in camp and on the march."

He was awarded the Silver Star for his service in the Philippines and is also the recipient of four other medals.

Writer Finds Newspapers Lead in Soldier Interest

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The newspaper probably is the reading material most widely demanded by servicemen, according to Miss Alice J. Garwood, assistant librarian, 2d Service Command.

In an article on "Reading Interests of Servicemen" in the current issue of New York Branch Library Book News, Miss Garwood said home town papers were requested most often.

The unabridged dictionary is the most popular book in Army libraries because "it settles more arguments on the use and misuse, spelling and pronunciation of words, and helps to get more letters in the mail than Mr. Webster ever dreamed it would," the article said.

Senator Hatch Hopes For Early Action on Postwar Collaboration

By J. A. O'LEARY.

Senator Hatch, Democrat, of New Mexico, one of the authors of the pending resolution for United Nations co-operation to prevent future wars, came back from the West yesterday hopeful of early action on the basic idea.

He indicated he was greatly encouraged by a speech broadcast from Texas last week by Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in which the Texan said:

"So long as the nations imposing the peace shall be ready and willing to maintain that peace by the last argument of military force, it will live. The United Nations must, when our enemies are mastered, establish an international agency to determine disputes over boundaries, over all of the quarrels that lead to international war and to arrest aggression and criminal conquest."

"Such an agency, unless invested with power to enforce its decisions, cannot survive. It must have authority to call upon member nations for troops and navies when necessary, to enforce its decrees and impose upon aggressors and violators of the law of nations, punishment for their crimes."

Difference in Details.

Senator Hatch said "it is apparent, not only from the speech of Senator Connally, but from the remarks of other Senators that the Foreign Relations Committee will report out a resolution and that the Senate will act on it."

Emphasizing the phrase "a resolution," Senator Hatch said there may be some difference over details, but he saw in the Connally speech an endorsement of the principles contained in the Ball-Hill-Burton-Hatch resolution. The heart of the resolution, he said, is that there be some machinery to prevent war, and the use of military power to back it up.

Senator Hatch made it plain, however, that he would not be content with the Fulbright resolution, reported unanimously by the House Foreign Affairs Committee before the recess, which, he said, is too general in its terms.

He agreed that the declaration of policy to be voted upon now should not be too specific but at the same time, he argued, it should not be so general as to command the support of opponents as well as supporters of collaboration.

Even if machinery for maintenance of peace is established, Senator Hatch said, he believes that at the end of the war "the aggressor nations as now constituted must be disarmed." He pointed out that, while the pending resolution limits the proposed co-operation to the United Nations, provision is made for admission of other nations when justified.

House Resolution.

The House resolution, which Senator Hatch called too general, reads:

"That the Congress hereby expresses itself as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein."

The Senate proposal calls directly for the assembly and maintenance of a United Nations military force to suppress any future attempt at aggression by any nation. Senator Hatch said the mere existence of such a force would render its use unnecessary. The Senate resolution also would express the belief of that branch that the United States should take the initiative in calling meetings to plan, not only for co-operation against future aggression, but to plan also for the immediate problems that will arise in the war-torn areas when hostilities end.

Who should turn up among the Mario Hurado band at Treasure Island but good old Chago. You know Chago Rodriguez (as he was known when he worked with Tito Guizar on the radio networks), Chago Rodrico R. (as people have recognized him about town at such places as the Lounge Riviera and the Victory Room). Yes, Chago Rodriguez R., the fellow whose third initial serves no other purpose than to excite comment, has brought his own faintly weird brand of color to a place and an outfit which are probably the most congenial both he and the public have found to date.

He looked happy about it, too, the other night this department happened into Treasure Island in its eternal quest for nocturnal gaiety. We couldn't at first quite determine who it was sitting on that low box or something somewhere behind the marimba and the piano. It seemed to be just another musician slavishly hunched over a guitar, earning his board and keep. But then sounded one of those orchestral transitions which inevitably mean somebody is going to sing. A great beaming smile emerged from the rear of the platform, a smile closely followed, if not surrounded, by a garish blanket of Navajo origin. This could only mean one thing: Chago. We were not alone in our applause.

Life, in fact, is full again now that the blanket, the sunlit smile and Chago have returned. With the three suspended in the midst of the after-dark its jelly-like consistency disappears, and there is firmness instead. Going the rounds will always seem just a little less unreal.

Harold Nagel, maestro of the new band of the new Carlton Night Club, has listened to the views of many patrons regarding the place's unique and discreetly bizarre decor. After recovering from the initial shock, patrons, it appears, are unanimous in their approval of the mural work, the elephant superstructure, the bamboo hut in front of which the band plays. Many even have come to dote on the huge brown mask with the kissable lips which dangles from a bamboo cave. But the folks are still not above enjoying an occasional snicker at the decor's expense. The other evening while Mr. Nagel was fronting the band, fiddling and otherwise minding his own placid business, he got the uncomfortable sensation that the spectators were laughing out loud. It was a perfectly routine number the band was playing and the drummer-vocalist was singing: "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home to." But still the spectators' laughs, it ain't that way any more. In New York W. G. van L. gained his reputation in such places as the Cafe Pierre, a smart sort of place, and the Casbah, which is usually frequented by Charles Boyer, the Algerian. It was his experience at these and other New York cocktail havens that brought the man out of his state of despairing loneliness here. For he went to the Stetler's Embassy Room shortly after his arrival, and there he met Ted Straeter, the bandleader. Mr. Straeter had played for W. G. van L. several times in Manhattan, so it was of course old times for the boys in their Embassy Room encounter. A few nights later, upon learning that Harold Nagel was playing at the Carlton, he made for that spot; and there was the close acquaintances theme all over again. Back at the Embassy Room the following day, and there was Bob Knight, who leads the other band there. "Hallo, Bob!" greeted W. G. van L. "Hallo, Gus," returned Mr. Knight. "Remember that night the band opened for the Pierre, and all that champagne you bought the boys." Common ground, you see.

Moreover, you may be wretchedly assured that the social life of W. Gustave van Lowenfelt will be fully reported as it unfolds in the future—step by step, from Carlton, to Stetler to Roosevelt.

On the same principal as "Play of the Year," "Book of the Month" or "Fossil of the Era," this department hereby inaugurates a new and special service for subscribers and the man in the street (that tattered fellow who sells apples). This will be the "Arrangement of the Night," musically speaking.

What is more, we are prepared to announce the first award winner having just returned from the Del Rio where Eddy Rogers and his band are playing. We give you Toselli's "Serenade" (dance time plus very nifty violin duo passages). We'll even give you Mr. Rogers' sleekly rhythmic, tartly harmonized "Night and Day."

And you may now consider the campaign closed.

Two D. C. Soldiers Cited For Pacific Air Action

Staff Sgt. Stephen D. Batson of 1051 Crittenden street N.E. and Tech. Sgt. Hyman Marder of 3442 R. street N.W. were awarded the Air Medal by Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific Area, for "meritorious achievement," it was announced yesterday.

Sergt. Batson was born in Washington in 1919 and was graduated from St. Ann's Academy in West Palm Beach, Fla., in 1935. He played on the football and baseball teams while there. He was in charge of the sports department in the Palm Beach Mercantile Co. until he enlisted in the Air Corps in November 1940. After special training at Vegas, Nev., in aerial gunnery, Sergt. Batson was sent to the South Pacific area on May 15, 1942.

His father, Daniel C. Batson, works at the Navy Yard in Washington. His brother-in-law, Staff Sgt. Harold E. Torman, is now at Fort Meade, Md.

Both Sergt. Batson and Sergt. Marder took part in 100 flight missions "during which hostile contact was probable and expected." They showed outstanding ability and devotion to duty, the citation said.

1,000 Unionists to Mark Labor Day by Blood Gifts

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Officials of the CIO and AFL in Greater Boston said yesterday that 1,000 members of their ranks would mark Labor day by contributing a pint of blood each to the Red Cross.

State CIO President Joseph Salerno and Daniel J. Goggin, president of the Central Labor Union (AFL), in a joint statement said: "We can think of no more fitting way for our fighters on the home front to back up the men on the battle front than by giving pints of blood which to them may mean the difference between life and death."

ONE HORRIBLE FIGHT after another! She didn't guess that his maddening indifference was really caused by her own "one neglect"—carelessness about feminine hygiene. Today, so many modern wives use Lysol disinfectant. It cleanses quickly, thoroughly, and deodorizes, too. Yet it's so gentle it won't harm sensitive vaginal tissues—just follow easy directions. Costs so little. Write to Lehn & Fink, 688 5th Ave., New York-22, N. Y., for FREE Feminine Hygiene Booklet (in plain wrapper).

1,400 Axis Fighters Reported Used in Defending Berlin

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—German military experts claimed a big air victory over British bombers in Tuesday night's raid against Berlin, but it was apparent today from their own accounts that the RAF succeeded in dumping a huge load of bombs on the Reich's capital.
 Neutral Swedish correspondents reported that the Germans massed nearly 1,400 night fighters in their effort to keep the British bombers from reaching Berlin.
 Nazi experts told Swedish newspapers the RAF used about as many planes on Tuesday's raid as they did on August 23, when 1,700 tons of bombs from 700 heavy British bombers devastated the west and south sections of the city and left fires which burned for two days.

 (The London Daily Express reported that the Germans sent up 1,000 fighters Tuesday night in an attempt to beat off the RAF bombers, which the paper said dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on Berlin.
 "The Express called the raid 'the greatest air battle of the war.' If the Express tonnage figure is correct the Tuesday raid was lighter by 200 tons than the attack of August 23.)
 When the British bombers returned to Berlin Tuesday night Nazi commentators acknowledged to foreign correspondents that about 350 planes broke through the German anti-aircraft and fighter defenses, which on the basis of the August 23 raid meant that about 350 tons of bombs and incendiaries were dropped on the capital.

Details Still Restricted.
 It was on that scale that the RAF raided Berlin three times during March, causing tremendous destruction.
 Details of Tuesday's raid still were restricted by Nazi censorship, but the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen was permitted to say that since a large number of bombers got through to the city damage was "heavy both inside Berlin and on the outskirts."
 (The British Air Ministry said the Germans sprang a new defense tactic during Tuesday's raid, but it back-fired and this possibly accounted for smaller RAF losses than the 58-plane casualty suffered on August 23.
 (German night fighters dropped flares from a great height to silhouette the RAF planes, but returning British pilots said these slow-burning aerial torches outlined the Nazi fighters as well.)

 Neutral correspondents in Berlin reported that the city was just beginning to clean up from last week's raid when the new devastation occurred. They said, however, that the number of casualties was small because most of Berlin's population has been evacuated from the city. The latest information to reach Stockholm said that about 500,000 persons have been moved from Berlin.

Macaroni 'Family' Valuable

In planning war-time menus, the macaroni family should be considered—the nutritive quality of the food, its vitamin content, its cost, quality, appearance and ease of preparation.

Well up on the list of essential war-time foods, and one that meets all of these important requirements, is the macaroni family, which includes not only macaroni, but spaghetti and egg noodles. This energy trio, as these foods have so appropriately been called, give to every homemaker economy in cost and preparation, delicious flavor, and standard products of high quality that have universal appeal.

It is true, of course, that no food is so good that your family will not see it on the table day after day in the same form, but when serving macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles, remember there are innumerable ways in which it can be prepared. Familiarity with the possibilities of combining macaroni products in recipes with various dairy products, meats, fish, cheese, eggs and vegetables will be an asset to any thrifty homemaker. They not only insure wholesome, low cost meals, but also make possible the conversion of leftovers into attractive, appetizing dishes.

Since every one is becoming more and more conscious of food values these days and what they do for us, it is no wonder that homemakers discover the correct way to prepare macaroni products so as to insure the full retention of all those natural vitamins and minerals they contain, and which you may have been boiling out, then pouring down the drain. Macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodles are good foods and contain natural vitamins, but some of these are soluble in water, so when you boil these foods in large quantities of water, then drain, you lose much of the vitamin content.

To overcome this follow this simple trick—4 cups boiling water is sufficient to cook 1/2 pound spaghetti, macaroni or egg noodles. The time required will be about 15 minutes for the macaroni and spaghetti products and about 10 minutes for egg noodles. By that time all of the water will be absorbed. These amounts may vary slightly because of the different types of cooking utensils used and the size and shape of the macaroni products, but by trying this new idea several times you can make it work. Remember to keep the water boiling throughout the cooking period and stir frequently.

Macaroni products store well and can, therefore, always be on hand. Keep a good supply of them in your cupboard—there's plenty of variety in this line—elbow-style macaroni and spaghetti, the shells, the straight and any number of special shapes. They're good in souffles, too. Be sure to try the new method of cooking macaroni products recommended in the following recipes and save for your family the important vitamins and minerals they need in their diets. You'll discover that all of these recipes are especially appropriate for this time of year.

MACARONI ELBOW SALAD.
1 1/2 pound elbow macaroni.
1 1/2 teaspoon salt.
4 cups boiling water.
Cook elbow macaroni in boiling water until all water is absorbed and the macaroni is tender, but still chewy in consistency. Stir frequently. Cool, then chill thoroughly and combine with the following salad ingredients:

1/2 cup small cubes cheese (optional). (American-Swiss or Roquefort type.)
1 cup diced celery.
2 hard-boiled eggs, diced.
1 tablespoon minced onion.
1 tablespoon minced green pepper.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Mayonnaise or salad dressing.
Toss salad ingredients with enough salad dressing to blend well. Then arrange on plate with assorted cold cuts. Serves 8 to 10.

It's a feather in your cap to serve thrifty foods with glamour and an easy way to do it is to prepare this new and different Meat Loaf-Noodle Pie:

MEAT LOAF-NOODLE PIE.
1/2 lb. medium cut egg noodles.
4 cups boiling water.
1 teaspoonful salt.
MEAT LOAF INGREDIENTS.
1/2 lb. beef or veal, ground.
1/2 lb. pork, ground.
1 egg.
1 cup milk.
1/2 cup bread crumbs.
Minced onion, if desired.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Combine the meat loaf ingredients and mix thoroughly. Press mixture in a thick layer on the sides and bottom of a pie plate. Place in oven at 350 degrees and bake 40 to 50 minutes. Then fill center with egg noodles that have been cooked by the following method to insure the retention of valuable minerals and vitamins:
To 4 cups boiling water, add salt and 1/2 lb. medium cut noodles. Boil until all water is absorbed and noodles are tender. This will take about 10 minutes. Stir frequently during this cooking period. After the noodles are placed in the center of the meat loaf pie, dot top with butter and return to oven for a few minutes before serving. Serve this dish in pie-shape cuts.

Honey Krisp Ice Cream, made with evaporated milk in your own refrigerator, is a real treat—so plan to make it over the holiday week end. The recipe shows how easy it is to do.

Meat Loaf-Noodle Pie is a grand way to provide appetizing nourishment for the household, with little expenditure of cash or coupons. You'll find the recipe on this page, together with others, making use of macaroni and its "family."

Herbs Offset Troubles of Rationing

By A. H. Deute

War-time cooking is becoming more difficult, bit by bit, but also more of a challenge to the cook. The proverbial big juicy steak and the half dozen French lamb chops are practically museum pieces with most of us. We should be happy in the thought of the war contributions we can make. And then we might turn to flavors and combinations old as the well-known hills in many parts of the world—but new discoveries in many American homes.

We are thinking of the culinary herbs—parsley we know and use. But there is chervil, too. Chervil is much like parsley only milder and more delicate. A package from your herb dealer will prove delightful as an alternative for parsley. Of course, it is dried and rubbed. Use it by the pinch.

And then tarragon. What a wonderful herb! Tarragon is a tiny plant, about 14 to 18 inches in height. The leaves are used fresh and green, but are equally good dried and rubbed and available in small jars.

If your grocer does not carry tarragon, ask him to get some from his spice house. Then, when you make a sauce for fish, add a pinch or two as you cook the sauce. Feel your way at first, not to get too much. Think of using herbs as you use salt and pepper—"season to taste."

If you are broiling mushrooms use a pinch or two of tarragon in the butter sauce which goes over them. Or in cream sauces for fricassees tarragon lends a piquant flavor. In tartar sauce by all means add a few pinches of tarragon. And make yourself a bottle or two of tarragon vinegar. Just let a tablespoonful or so of tarragon from the package steep in a cup of vinegar. And then pour the warm mixture into a bottle of vinegar and let it stand for a few days. Then strain through a cloth—and there you are. It will do wonderful things in French dressing. If you make bernaese sauce and sauce ravigote, of course, you and tarragon are on more than speaking terms.

And do you know savory? It is such an important herb in the preparation of string beans in light cream or similar sauce that in Germany many savory is called "bean herb." In England it has always been such a standby in the making of savory sauces that it is called simply "savory." There is summer savory and winter savory—very similar in flavor. Put some in your turkey, chicken, goose or duck stuffing. Add a pinch or two to salad dressing. Enliven vegetable juice cocktails with savory. Again follow the simple rule—"season to taste."

Salt Fish Can Pinch Hit For Fresh Nowadays
Our food tastes are formed in childhood. This is probably responsible for the fact that salt codfish is perhaps the most popular of any type of fish. Friends of mine from the interior of the country where fresh fish is seldom available often exclaim about their liking for creamed codfish and codfish cakes. At the same time they are quite likely to scorn fresh fish which those of us who were accustomed to its use during childhood value highly. Of course, I share the taste for salt fish also.

It was rather surprising to me the first time I visited the West Indies to find that one of the best-liked and most typical dishes was this same salt fish, prepared, however, in a different manner. Cutting off shipments of this food from Canada has been a great hardship to the islands and we shall hope that supplies will be more liberal soon. They will be as welcome as the removal of coffee from the ration list to us.

In this country two types of salt

Readers' Clearing House

This space is devoted to an exchange of ideas, recipes, housekeeping short cuts and suggestions between the housewives in Washington and vicinity. Please send your contribution or requests to "Readers' Clearing House, The Woman's Page, The Evening Star."
The views expressed in this "open forum" are not necessarily those of The Star but are simply an exchange of opinions between readers of the Woman's Page.

BURN ON MAHOAGANY.
(Thanks to G. C. M., Washington.)

For a burn or scratch on mahogany I find iodine very useful. Cover the damaged part with the iodine and after drying wax (if you wax your furniture) or cover with clear varnish.

I find your column very interesting and have tried several of the recipes.

KEEP BURNING SHINING:
CLEAN PARCHMENT SHADE.
(Requested by Mrs. D. W., Gaithersburg.)

Will some one be kind enough to tell me what I can use to keep an old brass kettle shiny?
I would like also to find some way to clean a parchment lamp shade.
Your column is very interesting, and I have learned how to do many new things.

SWEET PICKLE WATERMELON RIND.
(Thanks to Mrs. W. R. O., Washington.)

In answer to your request for sweet pickle watermelon rind I wish to submit mine which I consider very fine. It is so clear, never turning dark as some.

Trim off green and pink parts of 7 pounds rind, cut into 1-inch cubes. Parboil until tender but not soft. Drain. Combine 7 cups sugar, 2 cups vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon oil of cloves and 1/2 teaspoon oil of cinnamon. Bring to boiling; pour over rind. Let stand overnight. In morning drain off sirup. Heat and pour over rind. The third morning heat sirup and rind, seal in hot, sterilized jars. The oil of cloves and cinnamon keeps the rind clear and transparent.
(Thanks to Mrs. S. L. W., Washington.)

Rind of one medium watermelon pared and cut in shapes. Cover with:

2 teaspoons of powdered alum in 2 quarts of boiling water.
Let this stand for three hours or more. Rinse in cold water; drain well. Boil in sirup made of 1 cup vinegar and 3 cups sugar, cinnamon and cloves (whole or 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves ground in bag) for two hours. Next day boil sirup again and pour over fruit. Heat all third day and put in sterilized jars and seal tight.

MEATLESS MEALS.
COOKED RADISHES.
(Thanks to M. M. S., Edmonston.)

In the Readers' Clearing House of August 24 Miss C. M. of Riverdale made the statement that she had some recipes for meatless meals which she would like to see in the column. Well, as I am in the position of requiring something along these lines I would be very glad to accept them.

Have you ever cooked radishes? Just boil them like potatoes, drain, add a little pepper salt and butter. They are nice for those who cannot eat them raw.
Thank you for the recipes.

MERINGUE.
(Requested by G. L. McC., Alexandria.)

I have no trouble at all in making pie, the pie crust variety, or the pie crust kind, but do get the best looking meringues. I use the whites of three eggs, have tried adding a pinch of salt, also sweetening with granulated or confectioner's sugar. Would some reader give me detailed instructions as to time in the oven, over temperature, etc., so that this very "simple" trick can be mastered and make my pie look as good as they taste? My thanks.

SUGAR PIE.
(Requested by Mrs. W. A. L., Washington.)

For years I have tried to find a recipe for sugar pie. (Not being funny, it is really a delicious tidbit and an old-fashioned one.) I seem to recall that some people called it "Philadelphia sugar pie" or "Philadelphia butter pie." It is very rich in both sugar and butter, etc., so that this very "simple" trick can be mastered and make my pie look as good as they taste? My thanks.

HOT MILK CAKE.
(Requested by Mrs. E. B., Washington.)

Will any of the readers please give me a recipe for making a hot milk cake?

Chow Served Navy Men Is Best

Just outside the gates of the Brooklyn Navy Yard there is a huge barracks building where men off the ships check in and wait for their new assignments. There are English as well as American sailors there, 3,000 to 5,000 constantly coming and going. In the last few months the demands for quarters and food have almost doubled.

The kitchen facilities are of the best. There are whole batteries of ovens and grills and 80-gallon steamers all working overtime to get their part in preparing three meals a day, not only for the seamen, but for officers as well. Of course, the latter pay the cost of their food, but they have the same menu.

The commanding officer asked the commissary officer to conduct my tour and when we were in the kitchen the food was ready for service for the noon meal. The roast mutton was sliced and waiting in covered pans so that it would not dry out, the scalloped potatoes—appetizing with their sprinkling of paprika—were kept warm in the ovens, the bean soup, the creamed peas and the gravy—about 80 gallons of each—were in the steamer kettles. There were huge bowls of shredded lettuce, cottage cheese and pineapple salad. The apricot pies, made every day at the Floyd Bennett Field and sent to the station, were being cut.

I watched the sailors pass down the line with their trays. They were served with liberal, but not enormous, portions. The sign above the counter said, "This chow is the best in the world. Take all you want, eat all you take. Don't waste it." It was interesting to note that everything was more popular than the salad, which was passed up by almost half of the men.

Then I sat down and tasted every dish. The food was well seasoned and appetizing.
This station was one of those commended for the lack of waste, as shown by the report made by the Investigating Committee to Secretary Knox. Mr. Clarence Frances of General Foods is the chairman of this committee.

Cheese Fondue

1 1/2 cups soft stale bread crumbs.
1 cup milk.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon mustard.
1/2 pound American cheese, grated.
3 eggs.

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks lightly and add the bread crumbs, milk, salt, mustard and grated cheese. Last, fold in egg whites, beaten stiff. Turn into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes, or until firm.

The above is just one of the many practical and tempting suggestions to be found in Betsy Caswell's War-time Canning and Cooking Book. Many others, equally good, as well as directions for canning and preserving and suggestions for lunch box meals are to be found within its 64 pages.

Nature's Children
 By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.
 Monkshead.
 Aconitum columbianum.

Monksheads and columbine and larkspurs are cousins. All three should be in your garden, because they have such individuality and they are so willing to grow for you. There are many kinds and they can be found growing in almost any temperate climate. It is the blue and white blossoms with the "hood" that is the reason for their name. This hood is formed by the larger and upper petal of the five petal-like sepals which arch over and form the dainty hood, sometimes called a helmet.

The Western member shown here is one of the most handsome monksheads. It is a perennial, reaching a height of 6 feet. The streams in the mountain meadows call to this plant and about their edges the lovely blue and white flowers are often reflected in the water below. Sometimes you will find it in the open woods.

The flowers are large, often as much as an inch long, and where sunshine reaches them all day they are a bright blue and white tinged with exquisite violet. In the shade, or partially shaded, the flowers are almost white and again a deep blue, veined in purple.

The blossoms are always a paler shade inside and they grow on slender pedicels in a long, loose cluster on a slightly bending stem. Two smaller hammer-shaped petals are hidden under the hood.

The leaves grow alternate along the stem, the lower ones on long leaf stalks and deeply cleft into divisions.

The Eastern monkshead is a meadow flower found from New England west to Iowa and Ohio. The Western blossom will grow at an altitude of 12,000 feet.

The fruit consists of a head of from three to five many-seeded pods. The turnip-shaped root is thick and used medicinally and is a violently poison, which accounts for the name wolfsbane. Aconite is the ancient Greek name for the plant and in some places it is known as Friar's Cap.

For medicinal purposes aconite is obtained from the roots of a species grown in Europe and England. Chinese and Japanese species yield other types of poison. Some of the plants were used to poison wolves. The roots and seeds of our garden variety contain a dangerous poison which affects the respiratory organs.

In Europe the monksheads are greatly valued for their showy flowers. We are learning to use them for the same purpose—colorful background for lower growing plants.

Prophet Is Loser

ALBANY, Ore. (AP)—Seth T. French glanced at the clear skies and decided not to throw a canvas over the temporarily unshingled roof of his bedroom.

Hours later he was awakened by a heavy downpour in his face. Mr. French is local weather observer.

South could have made his contract

South could have made his contract despite West's third lead of clubs, but it was a difficult line of play, and South preferred to try for a three-two trump break.

Yesterday you were Howard Schenken's partner and, with both sides vulnerable, you dealt and held:

♠ A K Q J 7 5

 ♦ A J 5
 ♣ 5 4 3

The bidding:
 You Jacoby Schenken Lightner
 1♠ Pass 2♣ Pass
 2♥ Pass 4♥ Pass
 4♥ (?)

Answer: Four spades. Conceivably your partner is showing a solid club suit, in which case you can probably make a slam; but you have shown your strength by your jump to three spades, and he has not enough extra to make even a mild slam try.

Score 100 per cent for four spades, 50 per cent for four diamonds or five clubs.

Question No. 1,479.

Today you are Theodore Lightner's partner and with neither side vulnerable, you hold:

♠ 9 6 4
